"National Bank Safety for Savings"

Charlotte National Bank
Resources Over $5,000,000.00

BELK BROS. CO.

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Correct in every detail—appealingly pretty—easy to make because of the Special Guide for Cutting and Construction.

Pictorial Review Patterns for July

20c to 35c
None Higher

WE HANDLE

HOME JOURNAL PATTERNS
PICTORIAL REVIEW PATTERNS

We carry the most extensive Stock probably in the State. Send us your Mail Orders on Patterns.

Some of the things you probably can't get else where as conveniently:—Fleishers Wool Yarns, in almost any Shade and Kind.

All kinds of Knitting Threads and Crotchet in Silks or Cotton.

A Home Journal Pattern

In SIZES
14 - 16 - 18
years

Voile and Lace are used in making model shown.

Dress 1131, 35 cents

WARNER'S CORSETS—To fit any form—Back or Front Lace.

KAYSER'S ITALIAN SILK LINGERIE—

KAYSER'S SILK HOSE—In all the New Colors and styles: Gordon-Van Raalte-Lehigh-Merrell & Burson Hose: $1.50 to $4.95 All Silk.

GLOVES IN LONGS AND SHORTS—In all the New Leading Shades—in Kids—Chamoisettes & Silks—Niagara made and Kayser's: 98c to $2.95

NEW SUMMER SWEATERS

IN FIBRE SILK—Mohairs and Fine Wool.

IN THE SLIP—Over and Tuxedo Styles from $4.95 to $12.50

"Red Cross"—The Criterion of the Finest Grade Felt Mattress throughout this territory for 37 years.

Built of finest grade cotton felt, covered with beautiful art ticking and packed in separate, sanitary cartons. Prepaid shipments made same day order is received.

W. T. McCoy & CO.

211 South Tryon St.

Charlotte, N. C.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

A Religious Newspaper for the Family

Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.

Rev. J. R. Bridges, D.D., Charlotte, N. C., Editor

Rev. R. C. Reed, D.D., Columbia, S. C., Editor

Vol. LXIV

CHARLOTTE, N. C., JUNE 6, 1923

No. 23

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $3.00 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE
REV. W. L. BOGGS, Circulation Manager

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
BY PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY,
A. M. GRAY, Treasurer.

ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858.

Entered at the Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as second class matter

A Religious Newspaper for the Family, Devoted to the Interest of Christ's Kingdom as Represented by the Southern Presbyterian Church.

Address all communications, and make all checks payable, to the company, and not to individuals.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The label on the paper gives the date to which subscription is paid.

When change of address is desired, give the old and new address. When the date of the label is behind the date of this issue of the paper the label is a reminder that the subscription price is past due. When the date of the label is in advance of the date of this issue it is a receipt for the last subscription paid.

In accordance with the wishes of our patrons, the paper is discontinued only upon the written request of the subscriber. Arrearages must be settled in full at the same time, at the rate of three dollars a year.

No charge is made for the insertion of marriage and obituary notices of fifty words or less. For all over fifty words remit at the rate of one cent a word. Correspondents are requested to give the post office address of married couples when marriage notices are sent.

News items should be in our hands by Monday morning in order to insure their publication in the current issue.

CHANGE OF ADVERTISEMENTS

Advertisers who want their advertisements changed or want to insert new advertisements will please bring their copy to this office by Saturday. It is impossible for us to insert new advertisements or make changes for the current week at a later date.

Advertising rates furnished on application. The size and character of this paper indicate the size and character of its constituency. For reputable advertising there is no better medium for North and South Carolina and the most prosperous section of the South.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

EDITORIAL—
The Work of the Assembly (Conclusion)	1
CONTRIBUTED—
The Old Leader and the New—By Rev. T. M. McConnell, D.D.	3
In the Hush of Evening—By Frank L. Alderman	3
A Burro Trip in Mexico—By Rev. W. A. Ross	3, 4
Another Year of World-Wide Service by the American Bible Society	4
Dr. F. H. Gaines—A Memorial	4
"Meet Me at Massanetta"	4
"Not Why"—But "Why Not"—By Rev. H. F. Beatty	5
Men of the Church, Attention!—By Rev. William Ray Dobyms, D.D.	5
Open Letter of Dr. Pitzer to Dr. R. C. Reed ..	5
Opposes Evolution—By J. L. Sherrard	5
DEPARTMENTS—
Devotional	2
Woman's Auxiliary	6
Sunday School—By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.	7
Christian Endeavor—By Rev. J. G. Garth	7
Church News	8, 9, 10
News of the Week	10
Children	12
Advertisements, Etc.	12, 16

TREASURERS OF BENEVOLENT CAUSES

- Foreign Missions—Edwin F. Willis, 154 Fifth Ave., N. Nashville, Tenn.
- Home Missions, General Assembly's—A. N. Sharpe, 1522 Hurt Building, Atlanta, Ga.
- General Assembly's Training School—Geo. W. Call, Richmond, Va., Union Bank.
- Bible Cause—Gilbert Darlington, Bible House, N. Y.
- Christian Education and Ministerial Relief—John Stites, Fifth and Market Sts., Louisville, Ky.
- Publication and Sabbath School Work—R. E. Magill, 618 N. Sixth St., Richmond, Va.
- The General Assembly's Equipment Fund—T. R. Preston, Treasurer, Chattanooga, Tenn.

EDITORIAL

THE WORK OF THE ASSEMBLY (Conclusion)

In our last issue we closed the account of the proceedings of the Assembly, when they had disposed of the Presbyterian Foundation. The next important matter, coming up from the Assembly of 1922, was the work of the men.

For many years the laymen of our Church have been doing fine work, especially in arousing interest in Foreign Missions; but they were an independent body, not amenable to any church control. Throughout their history, however, no control was needed, yet it was felt that it would be better to unite all such efforts under one organization and have that under the control of the church.

The Laymen's Missionary Movement was asked to become an integral part of the organization of the men's work and to act as the Department of Inspiration, primarily by holding conferences and conventions under the direction and with the approval of the Permanent Committee of Men's Work.

One of the most important aims of this committee, from which much benefit to the Church is to be expected, is the following plan: "The Presbyterian Permanent Committees are also urged to enroll from among the men of the Presbytery a corps of laymen who may be used under the direction of the Presbytery's Home Mission Committee in supplying vacant churches and doing other Home Mission or evangelistic work."

On Tuesday evening the Home Mission Committee held its popular meeting. For years this has been one of the best of the popular meetings, due partly to the fact that by reason of the different branches of work that come under their control, they can prepare a more varied bill of fare, and also to the fact that Home Mission work comes nearer the heart of the average audience.

There were six speakers, but owing to the fact that their speeches were limited and their details fresh, the time passed like a dream. As usual the colored men sang, and they sang well.

Then C. S. Guerrero, a Mexican elder, who has been working among the Mexicans near Austin, Tex., gave an interesting account of his work.

He was followed by Rev. J. W. Rice, a negro, and a graduate of the Tuscaloosa Seminary. He began by quoting Booker Washington's remark, that whenever you found a negro in any other church than the Baptist or Methodist, it is a sure sign that some one has been tampering with his religion. This address was worthy of any man in the Assembly, as it was delivered in a dignified style and in the best of English.

At this point Rev. R. A. Brown, the superintendent of the colored work, was asked to stand up in order that the Assembly might know what manner of man we have in charge of the colored work. After Mr. Brown had been sufficiently exhibited, Rev. E. Hotchkiss, of Durant, Okla., was introduced as the third generation of missionaries who labored among the Indians. He said that he had never attended an Assembly, when he was given more than ten minutes in which to speak. He very feelingly remarked that he wished that the other members of the Assembly would be so limited.

He told the story of a man who came before an audience with holes in the knees of his pants, but excused himself with the remark that these holes proved that he was a man of prayer. As he walked away, holes were seen in the seat of his pants, and thereupon some one remarked, "You were a man of prayer, but there seems to have been some backsliding."

Rev. E. V. Tadlock, of the Stuart Robinson

School, in the mountains of Kentucky, gave a most interesting address about his experience in a whiskey ridden town in the mountains of Kentucky.

As one listens to these home missionaries he is convinced that not all the heroes in this world are found upon the field of battle.

We have often heard Mr. Tadlock, and he is always impressive and interesting.

Dr. W. M. Fairley, of El Paso, Tex., is one of our North Carolina boys who reflects credit upon this Synod wherever he goes and in whatever he says. His address dealt with the encroachments of the Catholics and the efforts we are making among the Mexicans. He described his method of extending Presbyterianism in El Paso by colonizing—a method that many pastors in our large cities could follow with profit to the Church.

Dr. J. S. Lyons, President of the General Council of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches in America, made a verbal report. He praised the work of this Council and contended that the adoption of the Articles of Agreement several years ago has quieted efforts toward Organic Union.

Dr. A. M. Fraser presented the Report on Christian Education and Ministerial Relief.

Among many items of this Report are the following: The sum of $70,811.05 has been given to aid 423 students; it has expended $163,033.00 in giving relief to 375 homes of disabled or deceased ministers, which is 20 per cent more than is usually given; the endowment fund has been increased $55,762.85, and has reached the sum of $1,450,530.00; and that the committee be authorized to spend a sum not exceeding $25,000.00 in denominational work in connection with State institutions of higher education.

Dr. Walter Lingle presented the Report of the Stewardship Committee, which presented facts of which the Church has reason to be proud. From it we learn that our Church is sustaining its reputation for liberal giving. The per capita for all causes is $28.50, or a total of $12,097,565. The churches are urged to install the Every Member Canvass as the most approved and scriptural method of church finance. Though this recommendation uses the word "urged," a long discussion took place over the idea of "ordering" churches to do anything.

When we remember that according to the statement of the Stated Clerk, it was costing the Assembly at the rate of $8.00 per hour to conduct its sessions, it seemed a great pity to many of us that the Assembly did not "order" the speakers to take their seats, or else pay for wasted time.

The Presbyteries of Holston, Potomac, Abingdon and Winchester overtured the Assembly to rescind the action of former Assemblies in putting Montreat on the Equipment Budget.

This request was declined for the following reasons:

(a) The Mountain Retreat Association had on a canvass when the General Assembly put on its campaign for equipment. In order that there might not be any cross-canvassing, the Assembly put Montreat on the Equipment Budget for $200,000 with the understanding that Montreat would discontinue her individual campaign. This was agreed to and Montreat called off her campaign. For three years Montreat has been waiting for the Assembly to get its Equipment campaign under way. Therefore it seems to your committee that we are under moral obligations to Montreat to keep her on the Equipment Budget.

(b) Montreat has from the beginning been fostered by the General Assembly and has never belonged to any one State or Synod. It is therefore not in competition with State conferences. It is the meeting place of the Assembly's church-wide agencies and therefore needs larger equipment to accommodate these than it otherwise would need.

The membership of the Stewardship Committee was enlarged by the addition of four men, taken from the Church at large, on the ground that men of experience are needed and also that it is sometimes difficult to get a quorum.

While the Committee refused to put the Lord's Day Alliance on the Budget, the Assembly did recommend that the churches be asked to give $20,000 for the work of the Alliance.

One Presbytery complained of the expenses of the Stewardship Committee, but the Standing Committee replied: "We fail to find from all reports and itemized statements of expense submitted to us, that there has been any unwise use of this fund, and in view of the fact that much of the benefit derived from it will extend through coming years, we cannot regard it as excessive."

One item in the report of the Committee on Bills and Overtures brought about a sharp debate, as any reference to union always does.

The Presbytery of Muhlenburg overtured concerning the status of united churches that are under the jurisdiction of two Presbyteries and two Assemblies. The Bills and Overtures Committee gave the following answer:

We find that the General Assembly of 1887, page 230 of the minutes, decided that, "No minister can constitutionally be at the same time a member of two Presbyteries." Obviously the same principle applies to sessions and churches.

We further find that the General Assembly of 1915, page 28 of minutes, took the following action: "The form of government of the Presbyterian Church in the United States makes it impossible that a minister, officer or church be under the jurisdiction of more than one ecclesiastical court of the same grade."

Your committee recommends:

First. That the Assembly reaffirms these past deliverances.

Second. That this action of the Assembly is not to be retroactive, but is to serve for the future guidance of churches and Presbyteries.

Third. That hereafter Presbyteries shall not give their consent to the union of churches after the manner described in the overture.

Fourth. Should any church enter into such union without the consent of Presbytery, its name shall be stricken from the roll of the Presbytery.

The third and fourth sections of this reply were stricken out, though many were anxious to retain the third section, which would guard against a similar disregard of the Assembly's views.

The debate over this matter was warm, and the views of some occasioned surprise among their friends.

Rev. R. E. Telford, of Richmond, Ky., urged that the present status be not disturbed.

Dr. E. E. Smith, of Owensboro, Ky., from whose Presbytery the overture came, spoke very feelingly of the evils of federation.

Rev. J. C. Williams, of Arkansas, who is pastor of a federated church, argued for it.

Dr. Cecil, of Richmond, Va., contended that we must face conditions, not theory, in this matter, and warmly favored the striking out of the third and fourth sections.

Ruling Elder J. A. Logan, of Kentucky, argued against federated churches, while Rev. W. G. Harry, of New Orleans, argued in favor of federation, as did also Judge S. F. Hobbs, of Selma, Ala.

Those in favor of federation carried the day, much to the surprise of the men who believed that such a position is illogical.

An amendment was added to the effect that an Ad-Interim Committee be appointed to report to the next Assembly the conditions in the Kentucky churches.

The exact duties of this committee seems rather vague; but it is supposed to deal with conditions affected by two churches occupying the same ground.

Where the question of organic union enters, it will be always difficult to obtain an impartial committee.

Whether the Moderator succeeded in securing such an one in this case, we do not know. Rumor, however, has it that the appointment of Dr. Homer McMillan, as an after thought, was an attempt to balance views.

Another action of the Assembly that caused much discussion at the time, and has caused much dissatisfaction since, was the appointment of women on the Executive Committees.

One lone Presbytery in Florida, with a membership of 41 ministers, overtured the Assembly to appoint at least one woman on each of the Executive Committees of the Assembly.

Apparently there was no general demand for this action, and it was in conflict with our past position on the place of women in the church; yet the majority report was snowed under, and by a vote of 140 to 49, it was decided that the request be granted.

The following protest and reply was presented:

Protest Against Appointment of Women on Executive Committees

The undersigned respectfully protest against the action of the Assembly in placing women on the Executive Committees, thereby rejecting the report of the Committee on Bills and Overtures, which by a large majority advised the Assembly to answer in the negative overtures to that effect.

This protest is not based upon any want of recognition of the ability, good judgment, or consecration of women, nor upon any failure to appreciate the magnificent work the women are doing.

It is based upon the following grounds:

1. Only those should be placed on the Executive Committees who are eligible to membership in the Assembly itself. As women are neither ministers nor ruling elders they are not eligible to membership in the Assembly and therefore are not eligible to membership on the Committees.

2. Membership on an Executive Committee is a position involving authority to rule. The Bible expressly forbids the woman to exercise ecclesiastical authority over a man.

3. The action is based on a wrong theory of human rights. The Creator has made the human race in two distinct and different sexes—"male and female created he them." The difference is in the entire physical and mental structure. This difference does not imply the inferiority of one sex to the other, but it points out a different sphere of service. There is a world-wide revolt against this divine ordinance and an effort to obliterate all the distinctions between the two sexes. In the judgment of the protestants, the Assembly has done that which is, in its essence, akin to this widespread and revolutionary movement and will make it easier to go further in the same direction in the future. We disclaim the slightest intention of imputing to the Assembly any conscious sympathy with the movement referred to, but nevertheless we believe the effect will be the same.

(Signed) Jas. W. Marshall, J. B. Bittinger, A. M. Fraser, D. P. Rogers, M. S. Smith, A. N. Gordon, J. M. Moore, W. H. Miley, W. P. M. Currie, L. D. King, R. A. Austin, T. H. Newkirk, A. F. Fogartie, V. L. Bryant, R. W. Hardy, C. W. Greenwood, J. J. Brown, Edgar G. Gammon, J. C. Watson, L. McC. Williams, R. O. McInnis, C. M. Gibbs, R. C. Reed, W. C. Alexander, E. C. Lynch, R. E. Carroll, G. F. Kirkpatrick, T. H. Spence, A. H. Key, A. L. Patterson, C. F. Allen, B. L. Wood, W. L. Crawford, J. Walter Cobb, E. E. Smith, A. P. Gregory, J. A. Logan, E. R. Long, J. H. Lumpkin, E. B. Barden, Francis M. Allen, Hugh H. Baird, R. M. Hall.—43

Response to Protest

The General Assembly is in entire harmony with the great principles which are expressed in the protest, but there is nothing in the Word of God nor in the government of our Church to prevent the Assembly appointing private members, male and female, upon its Executive Committees, and the action protested against was taken in order to recognize in this way the Woman's Auxiliary in its loyal and faithful work.

(Signed) Russell Cecil, E. M. McCorkle, S. F. Hobbs.

The Ad-Interim Committee on Vacancy and Supply presented its report, which was referred to a committee to report next year with any additional matter, with the exception of the article dealing with the Incorporation of Churches and Church Courts—which was adopted. After the committee has considered any additional matter, their report will be given to the Presbyteries for discussion and to be returned to the next Assembly. The committee was thanked and their diligence commended.

Another Ad-Interim Committee was one to study the conditions of the Country Church. It is as follows: Rev. W. H. Mills, D.D., Rev. H. W. McLaughlin, D.D., and Ruling Elder F. S. Neal.

To the report of the Committee on Vacancy and Supply the following amendment by Dr. E. C. Murray was referred:

Amend status of vacant church, paragraph 2, by adding these words:

This committee shall utilize for this purpose as far as possible ministers who by reason of age or infirmity have been relieved of the work of the regular pastorate, but who are still capable of efficient service as temporary supplies, and have therefore been placed on the Ministers' Roll of Honor, to be used as "pastor at large" in the Presbyteries.

The Committee on Amendments to the Book of Church Order did not fully agree. Three of them presented the following Supplemental Report:

We, the undersigned, beg leave to report that we approve the work of revision as far as it has been carried, but in our judgment it has not been carried far enough.

Especially is there need of revision touching the matter of church officers. The doctrine of our Church is that there were only two permanent officers in the Apostolic Church, Presbyters and Deacons. The Presbyters were of two classes designated by us, Teaching Elders and Ruling Elders, corresponding to the two principal functions of the Presbyter's office, namely, teaching and ruling, but the office is one.

A glance at our Book shows that it recognizes three distinct and widely separated officers. Chapter IV, section 11, treats of Ministers of the Word, and asserts that this office is the highest in the Church for dignity and usefulness, thus making the Ministry of the Word a distinct office, higher in dignity and usefulness than the office of Presbyter. It gives to the Minister of the Word the title of Presbyter, not because he holds the office of Presbyter, but because while holding a higher office, he discharges one of the functions of the Presbyter, namely that of ruling. Section 3 of the same chapter treats of the Ruling Elder. It does not recognize him as a Presbyter, and assigns him an office distinctly lower than that of the New Testament Presbyter. The language of our Book defining the Ruling Elder comes down to us from the Westminster Assembly. We learn from the history of that body that many of the leading men in it did not believe there was any scriptural warrant for the office of Ruling Elder. While many others, and especially the Scotch commissions, held to our view of the office, called the "Presbyter theory." Yet they had to accept a compromise. Their main scriptural warrant for the office, and for the ordination of those holding it, was drawn not from the New Testament, but from the Old, from the example of the Elders of the Jewish people. The only texts adduced from the New Testament in support of their contention were Rom. 12:7, and I Cor. 12:28. This anemic view of the office has come down to our day, and prevails extensively in some of our Presbyterian bodies. Where it prevails the office has suffered deterioration, frequently falling into innocuous desuetude. We have maintained in large measure the dignity and usefulness of the office by claiming for it many of the prerogatives of the New Testament Presbyter. Our practice has been in advance of the theory of our Book. Furthermore, we have amended our Book from time to time, to bring it nearer to the Scripture Standard. Now that opportunity offers, we should thoroughly revise our Book, and make it conform to our doctrine of two and only two permanent officers in the church.

We recommend, therefore, that the committee be continued and instructed to embody such a revision of the Book as will make it conform to the doctrine of only two permanent officers in the church.

Arthur G. Jones,
Geo. H. Gilmer,
R. C. Reed.

Resolved, That a Committee on Amendments to the Book of Church Order be continued and that the proposed Amendments to the Book of Church Order be referred to the Presbyteries for their study, with the request that each Presbytery appoint a special committee on this subject at its fall meeting and that through these committees the Presbyteries suggest to the Ad-Interim Committee as soon as possible any Amendments to its report and any further Amendments to the Book of Church Order, and that the Ad-Interim Committee take the suggestions and make such revision of their report and such further revision of the Book of Church Order as may seem wise, and report to the next Assembly.

(Continued on page 10)

THE OLD LEADER AND THE NEW

Deut. 34:5 and Josh 1:1, 2

By Rev. T. M. McConnell, D.D.

No name upon the pages of history shines with a brighter luster than that of Moses. With the possible exception of the tent-maker of Tarsus, he was doubtless the greatest man God ever made. Poet and philosopher, statesman and scholar, law-giver and leader of God's people, he stands conspicuous in every sphere of life. He is the author perhaps of the oldest poetry in existence, the first pages of the world's history were written by his hand, the earliest prophecies concerning the Messiah come to us through him, the germinal principles of all our civil laws are found in his writings. His influence is as wide as the world, and as lasting as eternity. The record of the world's creation challenges the consideration of the wisest men, while the story of the Baby in the Basket holds the rapt attention of the little child. His life reveals one of Satan's numerous blunders, and at the same time shows how God overrules those blunders for the accomplishment of His own purposes. The Devil thought he could defeat God's purposes by destroying His people, and so he induced Pharaoh to issue a decree to put to death all Hebrew boys as soon as they were born, but God took that cruel scheme and out of it He wrought a plan that provided this great man to deliver Israel from bondage, and to mould this motly mass of brick-making slaves into a mighty nation of free and independent people. But for that decree Moses would have been left to grow up in his cabin home like any other Jew; to become just another slave to work in Pharaoh's brick-yards.

But the life of Moses also shows how the guiding hand of God takes the voluntary acts of men, as well as the blunders of Satan, and so uses them as to execute His own eternal purposes. Here in the fascinating story of His man, recorded by the pen of inspiration, we see divine sovereignty and human free agency running along in parallel lines without the slightest clash or conflict. In setting their several parts in the interesting drama all the agents are unquestionably free; the anxious mother in planning to save her child; the daughter of Pharaoh in taking her accustomed walk by the river; the lonely babe weeping just at the psychological moment, to touch the mother heart of the princess; the eager, alert sister, with her apt suggestion, securing for him the best nurse a child ever had, his own mother; and yet it is easy to see the hand of God using them all in carrying into effect His own purpose to prepare a deliverer for His people. God's predestinating purpose, working through the voluntary, spontaneous acts of human beings, provided the boy a teacher that could impress the principles of the Jewish religion upon his young mind as no one else could do, and later on, in the palace of Pharaoh, a school where he could become "learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians," the most cultured people of that day. But Moses needed other training to fit him for the important mission for which God designed him, and which he could not get amid the gay scenes of the court. He had learned to know books, and men, but he needed also to know God, and himself. Here again the guiding hand of his unseen Friends leads him along the pathway of his own voluntary conduct. He may have already chosen to "suffer affliction with the people of God rather than enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season," but his murder of the Egyptian who was mistreating a Hebrew slave brought things to a crisis, and became the turning point in his life. He knew that when his crime became known he would be punished, perhaps disinherited, or possibly put to death, and so to escape the peril he flees to the solitudes of the desert, the very best place to hold uninterrupted communion with God, and learn lessons more important than any he had learned in the palace. Thus again divine sovereignty, working through human free agency, brings him into the very conditions where he can best be fitted for his important mission. After another school term of 40 years, spent in the seclusion of the wilderness, with God as teacher, he is at last prepared for his life work, and sent back to Egypt to lead the very people whom Satan and Pharaoh had tried to destroy, out from their bitter bondage, to become the most wonderful people of the world. After 40 years more of difficulty and discouragement he brings them to the borders of their promised inheritance. There, after having received from God honors accorded to no other mortal, he is promoted to higher service. But God's purposes are not complete. The nation must be settled in their new possessions, and so a new leader is needed for this new work; and God has a man ready for the place. He is never dependent on any one man; and He has men fitted for different kinds of work. Moses was a scholar, Joshua was a soldier, and just now Israel needs to fight. Moses is gone, but Joshua is ready to take his place. While Moses was at school in the palace and the desert, Joshua is learning in the cabin and the brick-yard, each being trained for his own peculiar work. He was a descendant of the beloved Joseph, and was named by a pious mother "Joshua," the Hebrew form of "Jesus."

Contributed

The first time we see him he is engaged in battle, leading Israel against Amalek. He seems to have been a soldier by nature, and is the only general known in history who never experienced a defeat. He is never seen except at the post of duty, and is one of the few men mentioned in the Bible over against whose name the Holy Ghost has written no word of disapproval. He had been tested and found faithful, and so although it was a difficult place he was called to occupy, he was ready for it. Moses was a man of unusual gifts and graces, and it was a great honor to be called to succeed him. He had led the people a long time. They knew him well and loved him. But they recognized Joshua as the man whom God had selected to be their new leader, and so they received him as such, and rallied around him. Perhaps a few criticized him because he did not do things just like Moses. But as a congregation they realized that he had a difficult place to fill, and so they gave him their loyal support. They welcome him with the encouraging words, "All that thou commandest us we will do, and whithersoever thou sendest us we will go. According as we hearkened unto Moses in all things, so will we hearken unto thee; be strong and of a good courage."

That is a picture of the past, but we can easily bring it up-to-date. In fact it is being reproduced almost every day. Old leaders of God's people are being removed and new ones put in their places. But I, for one, approve of these changes. No man has all the gifts and qualifications needed in God's work; no church needs exactly the same kind of work all the time. Many a church today would be more efficient if "Moses" could only be induced to allow "Joshua" to succeed him. There are churches, perhaps, that have had for years a "scholar" as their leader, that would gain more victories for the King if they could exchange him for a "soldier." Most men exhaust their powers of initiation in a few years, and then the work degenerates into daily routine and dull monotony, trying alike both to pastor and people. Far better for such a man to go to some other field, and allow another man, with new visions and new methods, to take his place. No two men are alike, and no two missions in life are alike. One man is a pulpiteer, another a pastor, another an organizer, another a church builder, another an expert in constructive work among young people. Neither do churches always need the same type of man. Conditions change with the passing years, and call for a change now and then in the pulpit. Possibly some churches and some preachers may be dying of stagnation, for want of a wise and judicious change. It is said that in the matter of physical health a change of climate and association is often better than a course of medicine, and the same may be true in spiritual things.

When, like Moses, a man has led a people for many years, through checkered experiences of joy and sorrow, a separation causes sadness. We read that "the children of Israel wept for Moses in the plains of Moab thirty days," but we also read that "the days of weeping and mourning for Moses were ended," and the people went back to work under the leadership of Joshua. The Lord's work is more important than any man. The weeping for the old leader is all right, provided it does not interfere with loyalty to the new and thus hinder the Lord's work. The new leader always has a difficult place to fill, because people are prone to make comparisons; somehow their minds will go back to the days and ways of the old leader. We ought to remember that the very fact that he is a new leader and has new methods calls for our sympathy and support, because it indicates that God is calling the church to new work.

IN THE HUSH OF EVENING

By Frank L. Alderman

In the sweet hush of evening—
When the twilight steals softly away,
I come to my room to thank Him,
For the peace of a vanished day.

In the sweet hush of evening—
When the dust lies thick on the street,
I pause at my window to thank Him,
For His love that is endless and sweet.

Neath the clinging sweetness of April's moon,
I thrill with a joy divine—
For here alone in my room, I feel
God's hand touching mine . . .

It is not permitted to a man who has received an injury to revenge it by doing another.

A BURRO TRIP IN MEXICO

By Rev. W. A. Ross

It was quite natural for me to take some trips out into different parts of our great field during the past few weeks. Mrs. Ross was away from home in the States, and I have been on vacation from the Seminary. One of these into the southern part of the State of Mexico will always be remembered as one of the greatest experiences of my missionary life.

It was into the very heart of Mr. Murray's field. He gave me the privilege of going with him. It is in the mountains. Their beauty cannot be surpassed in the world. One morning just after sunrise as we were leaving one of the towns we saw in the distance at one sweep of the horizon four of Mexico's most famous peaks: the Nevado de Toluca, Ixtaccihuatl, Popocatepetl, and Orizaba. These range in height from 14,000 to 18,000 feet. "How beautiful it is here in the mountains to hold services and hear the preaching of the Gospel," said Don Juan Perez, one of the leaders in one of the towns. A certain fascination always attaches to work among the people in the more primitive mountainous sections of both Mexico and the United States. There is a very marked similarity between the people of the mountains of our own country and the people of the mountains of Mexico. In both their customs are simple and their ways are primitive. As we passed above one of the villages our coming was announced in the valley below by an explosion of dynamite carried for the purpose. Two shots indicated that we would spend two days in the place, and that meant services in two villages. I wonder if feuds find a more genial soil among the mountain people than among others. We found one of long standing right in the heart of one of our leading congregations. In August a son of one of the principal families was killed. It will be a miracle of grace if it stops with that killing. One wondered what was back of this remark made to us by one of their number: "I have had the misery of being married five years." Are they more frank than we are?

The Burro is the "Ship of the Mountains." We met them everywhere. The miners use them to carry the ore to the railroad. The farmers use them to carry their produce to the market. The ministers use them to carry them from place to place. The Mexican landscape would be insipid without the burro. He is meek and lowly and his fidelity to children and to the poor makes us love him. He was our friend on the trip. One especially won the heart of Mr. Murray. He is called "Simpatico." To be called "Simpatico" in Mexico is to be paid the highest compliment possible. Every missionary hopes that some day he may be "simpatico" to the Mexican people. You can well understand the high esteem in which this particular burro is held. The good humor and diligence of the burro fits into the Mexican character. His patience and leisureliness make him a suitable companion for the people of the mountains.

Dofe Catalina came to see us one afternoon. She showed her happiness at the coming of the ministers by bringing a chicken to them. She told us something of her life story. She is now 94 years old. Was married at 25. While still a young bride her husband convinced her of the truth of the Protestant faith by taking her to a shop where saints and images were being made. He asked her: "Did Christ tell His disciples to go and make idols like those?" It was enough to convince her and from that time she has been a loyal member of the Protestant Church. Her son is one of the leaders in the Church in Zauapan.

In one place they told us of the regular weekly services which are held. It is very rarely that there is a minister with them. Each Sunday morning, when the priest of the local Catholic church rings the bell, it serves also as the rising bell for the Protestants. At 6:00 o'clock all the congregation meets for morning prayers. This lasts for two hours. On Sunday evening they meet again and hold the services until 11 o'clock. On Thursday night they meet again for a two-hour service. Week after week they are thus meeting far out in this mountain town, the leaders in these services being those among them who have been taught the New Life, and are teaching it to others.

One of the most characteristic features of a trip of this nature are the welcomes and farewells. They spend whole days decorating the houses for the coming of the ministers. At one place on the side of the mountains when we came up to the home, we found all the people of the congregation standing out in the yard singing a song of welcome. Arches of flowers had been prepared and we marched under seven of the arches before we got to the rooms that had been prepared for us. We spent three days in the neighborhood and the whole community laid aside everything to care for us, to study and sing and listen to the Gospel. Don Rosalio, the head of the home, is 70 years old, and he told us that he had never been more than 40 or 50 miles from his home. He was born there and there he expects to die.

It is in communities like these where we are reaping some of the finest harvests in Mexico. Here the Gospel is indeed the Good News, and they never tire of hearing it.

God's hand has been lavish in making Mexico beautiful and fruitful. One day we rode up a narrow valley, alongside a stream of crystal water. Along the banks we rode through groves of oranges, bananas, pineapples, mangos, lemons, alligator pears, etc., with coffee plants of the finest quality thrown in for good measure. Most of these fruits were ripe. The garden of Eden must have had some such scenes in it as we saw that day.

We were visiting these places just as they were making preparation for the celebration of Christmas. The young students who are working in that section during vacation were leading in this preparation. There are eight or ten congregations in that part of the State and instead of having a Christmas celebration in each place, as is the custom, they were preparing to have only one fiesta for all of the congregations. That meant a long journey for the majority of them. But they were planning to make it. And they did make the journey, as I have heard since. One group walked for nearly two days. It seems that the training of the people in the art of making religious pilgrimages since the pagan days makes such marches perfectly natural.

During the past quarter the Mission was greatly honored in a visit from Mr. Willis, our treasurer. This was the first visit that Mr. Willis ever made to a mission field. His visit did us a lot of good. He is now our warm friend. It is great to have a friend who holds the purse. Before his return to the States, and since, we have been reaping valuable financial benefits from his visit. Write and get the very interesting tract Mr. Willis wrote on Mexico just after his visit.

Any letter with two cents postage, addressed to Rev. W. A. Ross, 5a Nuevo Mexico 110, Mexico, D. F., Mexico, will reach him in due course of mail.

ANOTHER YEAR OF WORLD-WIDE SERVICE BY THE AMERICAN BIBLE SOCIETY

The American Bible Society reports the distribution of 4,667,839 volumes of Scripture during the past year. Its work has been conducted in practically every country of the world and more than 2,373 persons have been engaged during the year in this task. In the 107 years of its history this society has circulated 151,258,360 volumes.

One of the outstanding features of this year has been the completion of the new Hispano-American New Testament which will be ready for circulation among the 90,000,000 of people that speak the Spanish language in all parts of the world. Translation work has been carried on during the year in the following languages: Yiddish, Quechua, Portugese, Kurmanji-Kurdish, Siamese, Lao, Union Wenli, Chinese Phonetic Script, Japanese, Olunyore, K'pelle and Zulu.

In the United States alone the Scriptures have been circulated in as many as 100 languages and dialects among the immigrants of many nationalities. Scriptures have been furnished to the American Merchant Marine Library Association, and vessels on the Great Lakes. It is the desire of the society to see that no American ship will be lacking a copy of the Christian Scriptures.

In the Republic of Mexico, unprecedented interest and enthusiasm for the Bible has been developed through a united "Know the Bible" campaign. Without doubt the demand for the Bible in Mexico will increase with the growing improvement in international relations.

In the Near East, where the society had planned for extensive advance, its hopes have been shattered. With the burning of Smyrna, its colporteurs were forced to flee with only the clothing they were wearing. The stock of Scriptures were burned, and the last of the fields in Asia Minor was closed to the society's workers. The scattering of the Christian peoples of Turkey has added to the calamity. The society has undertaken to supply copies of the Scriptures free to all the destitute refugees in this region.

In the Far East there has been notable interest in the circulation of the Bible. The secretary for Japan speaks of "a lively time at the Bible House." He states: "While other dealers around us have complained of decreasing business, we have had the pleasure of experiencing continued increase of sales." During the year the smallest complete Bible ever issued in Japanese, measuring 3x4x1 inches, having 1,654 pages, although only on sale since the first of April, 1922, reached a total distribution of 4,150 copies by the end of the year.

The total receipts for the society from all sources for the year was $1,142,729, of which only $488,838 was received from the sale of books. The society's work is conducted as a missionary program.

Guard well thy thought:
Our thoughts are heard in heaven!

DR. F. H. GAINES

A Memorial

The committee appointed to draft memorial resolutions on the occasion of Dr. Gaines' death submits the following testimonial:

We feel that formal resolutions on this occasion would be inadequate for the expression of the deep emotion experienced by the faculty in the realization of this event which has deprived us so suddenly of the presiding influence of the college, and that it will be more fitting to record a statement of Dr. Gaines' outstanding traits of character because of which we who were very close to him shall always cherish his memory.

It is a fact that every great calamity brings with it certain blessings for those who are bereaved. When a great man is taken from us, we are prone to mourn, forgetting, it may be, the fact that his place justly won among the immortals gives to us permanent memories of his work, lasting influence of his character which continues to preside over and direct our fortunes. As we consider the life of Dr. Gaines as president of this college, there are several definite facts that come to our minds, facts that will outlast all material evidence of his great achievement in the building of this college. They are the facts of his character.

Fundamental in the structure of that character was his faith in God. Before he began his work as an educator he was widely known as a preacher of the Gospel—an evangelical preacher of great power. He carried with him into his work for the founding and development of the college this same evangelical spirit—a spirit of faith and enthusiasm which fashioned all his acts with one end in view, as stated in his formulation of the Agnes Scott "Ideal," to accomplish in every activity of the institution the glory of God.

Those of us who knew him longest can trace this fundamental motive through all his ambitions and achievements in connection with the life of the college up to the present moment:

His insistence on Christian character as an indispensable qualification for all members of the teaching force; his constant effort to preserve the spirit of Christ in every activity of the student body, whether academic or otherwise; his unhesitating loyalty to his faith in every policy of the college; his unflinching effort to be just in every decision; his fearless integrity in small matters as well as in great; and, withal his tender sympathy, which all who have found themselves in trouble have experienced, these are the traits which will give him a permanent place in the affectionate memory of every member of this faculty; these are the traits which we wish to place on record for future generations of faculty members. The college will stand as a permanent and lofty public memorial of his life-work. It is our pleasure to try to record our impressions of the sources from which this great achievement was able to grow.

Only from a faith like his could so large a vision have been realized. Only from a faith like his could so great a courage have been brought forth.

It was his faith in God that enabled him to hold steadfastly to the admission standard as stated in the catalogue, year after year in those trying days of a decade and more ago when the very life of colleges appeared to depend on their ability to attract large numbers of students. Knowing full well that adherence to the standard of admission would probably mean a deficit to be reported to the board of trustees at the end of the year, he yet never let himself be turned a hair's breadth from his purpose to maintain an honest standard, despite the mental worry that would inevitably result from his action, and the ease with which he might have doubled the student body by making the concessions which most institutions similarly situated were making freely. No one who did not live through those years with him can fully appreciate the greatness and steadfastness of the man in these trying circumstances.

It was that same faith in God tranquilizing and making firm his life purpose, which gave to him his broad policy as an executive. He never intruded himself into the affairs of any department, after he had once committed the work to one whom he had reason to believe competent. No college president ever exercised greater care in the selection of his staff of instructors. Once chosen, they were free always to do what seemed best to them in their respective departments—a policy the wisdom of which has been abundantly proved in the gratifying advancement that has steadily marked the growth of the college. He regarded each department head as a specialist in his particular work, demanding only that the Spirit of Christ should always be recognized as supreme and that every student should have a fair chance to do her best, that every student should always have clear access to the truth that brings freedom.

It was the recognition throughout the South of this integrity of motive based on faith in God that gave to him so wide and profound an influence in the matter of advancing the school and college standards of this section.

Educators everywhere saw what his faith and integrity had accomplished, and, in the course of years, it became apparent that standards were gradually being adapted to the ideals which he so forcefully maintained. There is usually a personality back of general movements forward. We believe that to him is due a very large share of the credit for the realization of higher ideals in education in the Southern States. He placed this college in a commanding position with regard to both high schools and other colleges of this section so that we all feel now the responsibility that rests upon us, and must shape our policies accordingly.

In his removal we suffer an irreparable personal loss. But we have large cause for joy as we reflect on the triumphant close of his earthly career—with a joy that we would hand down to the generations to follow us.

We rejoice that he lived to pilot the college through its years of struggle. We rejoice that he lived to see the triumph of his efforts in the national recognition of the institution as a permanent part of the higher educational hope of the country. We rejoice that he was able to go to his reward so easily and so swiftly—straight from the very midst of his best activity.

But most of all we rejoice in Agnes Scott as he has left it to us. Pervaded since its inception by his personality; permeated through and through by the faith with which he built it; infusing that faith, consciously or unconsciously, into the hearts of its students; having as its great mission the sending forth into the world of young women trained in all that is most perfectly and truly womanly, with a womanliness based deeply in Christian character—we rejoice in it as a legacy the sacred keeping and wise promotion of which must be always our dearest concern.

And so, we commend the memory of Dr. Gaines to the future. May those who follow us here always treasure the inner secret of his triumphant life.

"MEET ME AT MASSANETTA"

This is the slogan of the Young People's Conference to be held at Massanetta Springs, near Harrisonburg, July 18-22. The programs of the Young People's Conference and the Standard Training School for Church and Sunday School workers have been gotten out by Rev. T. K. Currie, Virginia Synodical Superintendent of Sunday School and Young People's Work, and are being sent broadcast over the Synod from this office. These booklets are very attractive, and give in detail the program for the two conferences above mentioned, as well as other important information. The booklets may be secured by applying to Rev. T. K. Currie, Box 1176, Richmond, Va.

Mr. Chrystal Brown

Mr. Chrystal Brown, Paterson, N. J., who so ably led the singing at Massanetta Springs last summer, has consented to come back for two weeks this summer, namely for the Woman's School of Missions, August 1-7, and for the Men's Conference, August 9-15. It is with pleasure the management announces it has been able to secure Mr. Brown for these two conferences.

Homer Rodeheaver, "Billy" Sunday's song leader, says of Mr. Brown, "He is a very cheerful, interesting personality, fine, clean Christian gentleman. He has been a teacher of voice and a choir leader ever since I have known him for the past five years."

Dr. W. E. Biderwolf states in a personal letter: "You can take it from me that Chrystal Brown will put the thing over in great shape for you. He is an affable fellow, but not affected in the least. He is unusually tactful and especially happy in his methods and conversation. He is one of the very best in the country."

Renting of Tents, Etc.

Camping by church groups is becoming more and more popular. There are at least 25 acres of land adjoining the hotel grounds which are specially adapted for camping parties.

At a recent meeting of the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees of Massanetta Springs the following rates for the renting of tents and cots were established:

Tent, 16x16, without floor, per week	$ 3.00
Tent, 16x16, without floor, per season	15.00
Tent, 16-16, with floor, per week	4.00
Tent, with floor, per season	20.00
Bare cot, per week	.40
Bare cot, per season	2.00
Portable house, size 12x20, with windows, etc., per week	7.00
Or per day	1.00
Portable house, size 12x20, with windows, etc, per season	35.00

Board may be secured at the hotel for those occupying tents at $8.50 per week per person, or $1.50 per day. Those who desire to bring their own provisions and do their own cooking on the grounds will be gladly permitted to do so.

No charge will be made for tenting sites, but a small tax will be expected from those occupying tents. This x will be used to keep the grounds in sanitary condition and for supplies of spring water.

For further information concerning tents, cots, houses, etc., write Wm. E. Hudson, Box 684, Staunton, Va.

"NOT WHY" BUT "WHY NOT"

By Rev. H. F. Beaty

Some time ago our Foreign Mission Committee gave all evangelistic work in Cuba, turning it over to the Northern Church. No reason has been given for doing so, and now they are seeking to give up the school work. That this action is not due to lack of success is plain, for during the time when we were in the work, leading men of other denominations said that our evangelistic work was the best on the island, considering the equipment and the number of workers. Is indifference of our Church to the salvation of the Cubans the cause? When I note the little that has been done for the Cubans in Florida, I am constrained to believe that our Church is indifferent or does not realize our responsibility to meet the needs of the foreigner in our midst.

If we give up all work in Cuba, there ought to be an enlarged effort to meet the needs fully in Florida. Do you not think it necessary to give the Gospel to Catholics? There are more than 20,000 here who are not even claimed by Catholics. They are both foreign and native born, but practically all are here to stay. They are our fellow citizens. Left unchristianized they are a menace politically as shown by the prevalence of the lottery, cock-fighting, and gambling here. The corrupt politician can vote them to elect his crowd and he in turn protects them in their vices. A part of the wages is spent in these vices, leaving the family half starved and subject to every disease, especially tuberculosis. Thousands are now in danger of development beside the hundreds that have it in active form.

In the school, on the streets, and by intermarriage, they are lowering our race because left unevangelized.

The tobacco factory has proven a terrible moral curse here, due to the custom of having readers in the factory. Everything published against the Church, the Bible, and Christ, has been translated into Spanish and read to the workers. Their minds are filled with prejudice, arguments and even hatred against religion. A boy never returns to the church and the Sunday School after starting to work in the factory, due to hostile atmosphere, severe ridicule and sarcasm that he would have to endure. After exhausting other bad literature they began to read vile and immoral literature. These things have caused the parents, though caring nothing for religion, to earnestly desire other opportunities for their boys to make a living. This feeling against the factory is at its height now and will wane in time unless we provide a way to fill the need. Many are too poor to send their children to a business college, but would gladly patronize a church school if we give them a training to fit for other occupations. In such a school as has been endorsed by St. Johns Presbytery and by the Assembly's Home Mission Committee, these boys can be fitted for a better employment, will be saved from a life of vice, and many saved for Christ and active work in His Church.

If the work in Cuba is given up, why not concentrate on the Cubans in Florida? Thus we save our land from a curse, and bring a blessing both upon them and upon ourselves. Mingled with the Cubans are more than 10,000 Italians and many Spaniards. All can be saved together. If these Latin people are saved they will prove a great blessing to our country. There runs through the veins of these people the blood that for centuries dominated the world, giving it the laws, art, singers and orators, etc., while our ancestry roamed the forest as naked savages. Though crushed down for centuries by Catholicism, they become a power when the power of Christ is manifest in their hearts. See what Giovanni Papini is doing in Italy today.

Many of you have given liberally to feed the starving bodies in the care of the Near East Relief. Yet the person saved may be an enemy of the Church. That same $5.00 a month would save a boy from errors' ways, start him into a higher occupation, in a life of usefulness, and best of all, would most likely bring him to a living saving knowledge of Christ. "This ye ought to do and not leave the other undone!"

Who will adopt a boy? Why not help now? Any amount will be gladly received.

951-11 Ave., Ybor City, Tampa, Fla.

MEN OF THE CHURCH, ATTENTION!

By William Ray Dobyens, D. D.

By invitation of the Montreat authorities the General Assembly's Permanent Committee on Men's Work will hold a conference on the general subject of "Men's Work," June 30-July 4, next. The program will include sermons and addresses by Rev. William Crowe, D.D., Missouri; Rev. D. H. Ogden, D.D., Alabama; Rev. H.

W. DuBose, D.D., South Carolina; Rev. S. M. Glasgow, D.D., Tennessee; Rev. J. L. Mauze, D.D., West Virginia; Alfred Hume, LL.D., University of Mississippi; J. P. McCallie, Ph.D., Tennessee; Frederick Sullens, editor, Jackson Daily News, Mississippi; and a daily Bible study by Marion McH. Hull, M.D., of Georgia.

The conference on the week days will consider the subject from three angles—the "Retrospect," what has been done; the "Introspect," what is being done; and the "Prospect," what should be done. Each day's session will have the Bible lesson, one address and ample time for discussion, and it is urged and hoped that the time for the open parliament may be promptly occupied by remarks, questions, and suggestions from the floor. Often a just criticism is lodged against "conference" programs, namely, that no time is given for any but the speakers appointed, and therefore "conference" is a misnomer. In this case we have arranged for conference.

Each evening will have only one address, giving ample time for the speaker to develop his subject, yet keeping the session within reasonable limits.

June 30th being Saturday, we are expecting a get-together, devotional meeting at 8:00 p. m., preparatory to the Lord's day and other services.

During these days we also desire group meetings, or other form of association as will afford opportunity for individual conversation, mental fellowship, and personal touch, from which so much good is possible to every man.

The "retreat" which the Laymen's Missionary Movement has successfully held for several years at Montreat, will be incorporated as a part of our association while there.

Your committee earnestly covet the presence of pastors, officers, and all classes of men, to the end that our work may be discussed and advanced in each church, and in the whole denomination. Every church should see that key men are on hand, that their local work may be set forward, and the great task of our Church at large manfully undertaken.

The Church needs her men at work and our Lord desires and expects every man to be on duty—"to every man his work."

Begin at once to plan for representation at Montreat, June 30th to July 4th.

Birmingham, Ala.

OPEN LETTER OF DR. PITZER TO DR. R. C. REED

My Dear Brother:

I am nearly 89 years old; and was at the Augusta Assembly when our Church was organized in 1861.

I was thrilled when Dr. Thornwell read the "Address" to the public, giving the reasons for our separate existence, and setting forth the "Principles" of the Southern Presbyterian Church. It would edify any Assembly to have this address read for the information of members.

This leads me to thank you for your sermon at the Assembly on Hell; it was timely; it was eminently Biblical; it was Christlike in spirit. I hope that it will be published, and have a large circulation.

I was delighted with your remarks on the Parity of Presbyters. Years ago Dr. B. M. Smith led the contention in the Synod of Virginia, and then in the Assembly, "that all Presbyters or Elders are of the same rank or order;" and the opinion prevailed, and the constitution was amended to allow a ruling elder to be elected moderator of the General Assembly itself.

If the "Ruling Elder" can hold the highest office in the church, surely he has the right to preach the Gospel, or to preside at the Lord's Supper.

Some people who are old enough to know better, often speak of the "Elder" as a "Layman;" this remands him to a back seat or one in the peanut gallery.

Once more, let me thank you for your position on the Federal Council of Churches. As I am writing this, June 1, 1823, a call comes from my friend, Dr. Macfarland, the able secretary of the Council, to all the churches to rally to the support of President Harding to cause the United States to enter the International Court of Justice.

Dr. Macfarland, not Dr. Speer, is the real power in the Council, and he has many calls and messages to his constituent churches on all manner of subjects—national, international, economic, civil.

My good friend Dr. Summey, in the Christian Observer of recent date, is quite jubilant over the fact that at the last meeting of the Council the business committee prevented the real leaders from presenting their various resolutions on a great variety of subjects to the Council. Surely Dr. Summey does not think that any real change has taken place in the mind of Dr. Macfarland and his associates in the Federal Council.

This action of the business committee may have had influence in putting the "F. C." back on the pay roll of our Assembly for $750.

As we have a representative on the "Conference on Faith and Order," the next Assembly may be asked to put that body on the pay roll.

Salem, Va.

A. W. Pitzer.

OPPOSES EVOLUTION

By J. L. Sherrard

Does the evolution hypothesis—for that is all it is—conflict with Bible teachings? The life of Charles Darwin, its chief exponent, affords a sufficient answer: Let the tree be judged by its fruits. In his early life, Darwin tells us, he was an orthodox believer in the Bible. He "felt compelled to look to a first cause." At Cambridge, he took a course with a view to entering the ministry. From this, however, he soon turned aside to scientific inquiries, for which he had a strong liking, and more and more devoted himself to such pursuits to the exclusion of everything else. The result of this course he gives us: "Disbelief crept over me at a very slow rate, but was at last complete." The rate was so slow "I felt no distress"—no distress at losing his early beliefs and hopes. They were all dead, and no longer held any interest or attractions for him. Later he wrote: "For myself, I do not believe that there ever has been any revelation. As for a future life, every man must judge for himself between conflicting vague probabilities."

Here we see the effect on a bright, well-disposed mind, of deliberately turning away from the plain teachings of the Bible to work out some other things that are seen." He went to nature rather than the Word. He followed science and reason rather than faith. His study of nature left him no knowledge of nature's God, or of a life to come. He had "grieved the Holy Spirit," who only can teach spiritual things, and he had been left to utter darkness. At last he writes: "I must be content to remain an agnostic." He did not "know."

How different his state from his who in old age wrote: "I know whom I have believed. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown."

No doubt Darwin had no intention at first to do anything to weaken the authority of the Bible; but he was used, unconsciously, to do it. Evolution removes God as far off as possible. Those who embrace it for this end, as many do, should take up with Christian Science, which does this more effectually.

The saddest thing is to see preachers of the Word proclaiming their acceptance of this hypothesis. Why not keep it to themselves, if they really believe it? There is no conceivable benefit from such belief.

It all smacks of the wisdom of the world, which God declares is "foolishness."

It is not wrong to study nature, or unwise. Nature will reveal God's glory as well as the Word. Nor can there be conflict between nature and Scripture. If there seems to be any, it is because one or both is misunderstood. But nature must be studied in the light of the Word, and in subordination to it, not exalted in place of it. The Bible demands faith. It is "through faith" we understand that "the worlds were framed by the Word of God." And that faith must embrace the whole account, man's origin by the direct act of God as well as the rest.

In Darwin's history we see that there is a subtle danger in the neglect of Scripture. It may lead us away from Scripture. Pride of intellect may lead us to reject what seems contrary to reason or observation. It may destroy faith and religion. An eminent doctor of divinity advised his students to throw their religion away if they could not reconcile it to biology. This is what Darwin did. And biology is ever changing.

The Bible warns against this danger. "For he that hath to him shall be given; and he that hath not from him shall be taken even that which he hath." It speaks of "intruding into those things which he hath not seen, vainly puffed up," of "oppositions of science falsely so called"—of "giving heed to fables and endless genealogies," of "striving about words to no profit to the subverting of the hearers," of "those who receive not the love of the truth, and to whom strong delusion is sent that they should believe a lie."

Life is too short to spend in trying to find out how we came into this world. "So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom." If we are truly wise in due time we shall know all we need to know.

Our public school teachers are not paid to teach hypotheses. Let the truth of this be established first, if it can be. Let scientists get together on it, for there are as many opposed to it as favor it. Let the "missing links" be found before asking sensible people to believe it. Mr. Bryan has clearly shown that this teaching is subverting the faith of those who hear it; that in nine colleges, 15 per cent of the freshmen, 30 of the juniors and 40 of the graduates have abandoned the Christian religion.

It is time to put a stop to this teaching in the public schools. The Bible should be used in them for its literature and its morals; but no statements of personal beliefs or opinions should be allowed there; no covert attacks under guise of teaching science, "falsely so called."

The plain people, the great majority, do not want these matters taught and their wishes should be regarded.

Crozet, Va.

Woman's Auxiliary

Conducted by Mrs. J. M. McIver, Gulf, N. C.

The North Carolina Conference for Colored Women—Don't forget the conference for colored women of the state, beginning Thursday, June 7th, at Biddle University, Charlotte. Won't you be much in prayer that the delegates may receive such a vision of God and his will for them and their power to serve Him, that their lives and communities may be shining lights for Him and show forth His glory and willingness to use even the humblest instruments, if surrendered to Him.

Program, First Annual Conference for Colored Women, Biddle University, Charlotte, N. C., June 7-13, 1923. Conducted by the Synodical of North Carolina. Presiding, Mrs. E. F. Reid, President of the Synodical.

Thursday night, June 7th, 8 o'clock—"Get Acquainted Social," by Phyllis Wheatley Branch, Y. W. C. A.

Daily Program—9:00—Opening Exercises. 9:15-10:15—Practical Demonstration of Nursing, by Miss Ross and Assistant of the Health Department, Charlotte, N. C. 10:15-11:15—Bible Hour, Mrs. W. A. Turner, Newnan, Ga. 11:15-12—Conference Period. 12-12:30—Community Talks. Different Speakers.

Noon Intermission—2:00-3:30—Sewing Class, Miss Nellie Cooper. 4:00-5:00—Playground Demonstration, Miss Morrell, Charlotte Y. W. C. A.

Night Sessions—7:15—Vesper Service. 8:00—Friday, Foreign Missionary; Saturday, Dr. McRorie; Monday, Mr. J. B. Spillman; Tuesday, Mrs. C. Hawkins Brown; Wednesday, Open Conference.

Sunday—11:00—Sermon, Rev. Mr. Gideon, Homer, Ga. 7:15—Vesper Services. 8:00—Song Service. 8:15—Sermon.

Alamance—By M. E. C. Read at Woman's Presbyterian of Orange Presbytery, April 18, 19, 1923, which was the celebration of the 100th anniversary of Woman's Work in Alamance Church.

'Twas here our mothers gathered,
And organized their band;
The first to work for missions,
In this and other lands.

They came through heat of summer,
They faced the winter's chill;
Undaunted by their hardships,
They worked with might and will.

From far and near we're coming,
Coming home today,
To pledge anew our service,
To work, and give, and pray.

Will carry on the work begun
One hundred years ago,
And work for all "the causes,"
As our reports will show.

We'll send the light to others,
Who now in darkness lie;
And to the distant heathen,
The gospel we will give.

And now with fresh incentive,
Let each resolve anew,
To try to be more faithful
In everything we do.

Cleveland, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of the First Presbyterian Church, entertained the congregation and friends with a Mexican Fiesta.

The setting for the Fiesta was beautiful. Mexican and United States flags were used in abundance, while from the center were draped bands of crepe paper in green, white and red, the Mexican colors, which were caught to the side.

The stage was banked in greens and numerous potted plants and cut flowers carrying out the Mexican colors.

The program for the evening—consisted of a musical program in connection with the Fiesta. Two duets by Mesdames G. J. Scott, C. H. Rosebro, Miss Priscilla Kincaid and Mr. S. A. McNeely. A male quartet and anthems by the choir.

Those who presented the Fiesta were: Misses Louise Thompson, who acted as hostess for the Auxiliary, Sarah Kincaid, as Carmencita; Mattie Fink, Juanita; Annie Marlin, Maria; Priscilla Kincaid, Louisa; and Elizabeth McLaughlin, Anna. The little sisters were: Nellie McNeely, Sarah Murdock and Lydia Henkel. J. D. Fink was the little messenger boy. Rev. A. E. Wallace brought us greetings from the border state, Texas, and offered a prayer of dedication.

The neat sum of $52.10 was realized for a school for Mexican girls.

We are indebted to Mesdames C. H. Rosebro and R. H. Foard for this delightful program which was one of interest, beauty and educative note.

Attention Secretaries of Y. P. Work. Local Auxiliaries, Fayetteville Presbytery—We are hoping to have a large delegation from our Presbytery at the conference at Davidson College, June 12-19. Don't let anything keep you from sending your delegates.

The conference will be followed up by three one-day rallies. One June 26th, at Lumber Bridge Church; one the 27th at Sardis Church, Linden, and on the 28th at Gulf Church. Let every young people's society elect delegates. The program will be good. Mr. Frank P. Wilson will speak on C. E. work, and Mr. Russell Woods on life enlistment.

Remember the date of the one nearest you, and be sure to have your society well represented. All are asked to bring a picnic lunch.

Mrs. J. H. Suttentfield, Pinebluff, N. C., Secretary Y. P. Work and S. S. Ext., Fayetteville Presbytery.

The Woman's Auxiliary of Rex Presbyterian Church had a Mexican Fiesta, May 26th, in charge of Secretary of Assembly's Home Missions, Miss Laura Shaw.

After devotional exercises, there was a short business period and then the Mexicans (Senior and Junior Christian Endeavor girls), came in to plead for a Christian school for the Mexican girls in Texas.

An offering was taken for this cause and then all were invited into the Sunday School rooms, which were tastefully decorated with the Mexican colors.

Refreshments were served by the hostess circle to the Auxiliary and visitors, which closed a very pleasant and profitable meeting.

Mrs. J. S. Johnson, Secretary.

"We Know Him!"—A white colporteur once visited a part of central China into which to the best of his knowledge no white missionary had ever penetrated. Gathering a big crowd of Chinese round him in one of the towns, he began to read to them from the New Testament in Chinese. He read the story of Jesus' healing a blind man and also of His healing a lame man. Then he read of His healing lepers, like the lepers that crowded the streets of the town; whereupon the faces of the people lighted up.

"Oh, we know him!" they cried, "He used to live here. Our mothers and fathers have told us about him. He lived in a house down the street. We know where he is buried. His grave is here; we will show it to you, teacher. When the great plague came the rest left us, but he would not leave us. He gave us strange things out of a bottle. We took the things and were better. We had babies; they were blind. He washed their eyes and made them well; they could see. Oh, we know him very well! He has often walked down our streets and spoken to us when we were little."

"No, that could not be!" said the colporteur. "He lived in a land far, far from here. He belonged to a different nationality."

"No, sir," they insisted, "you are mistaken. He was right here. Come and we will show you the grave!"

He went and saw the grave and its inscription, which was in English. He looked up the history of the town and learned that the man whom the people had spoken of was a British volunteer, a young doctor who had just completed his medical course, who had gone up the Yangste River six hundred miles and, breaking into the central and northerly interior, had settled in the little town. The plague at last had taken his life.

And away out there years after when the people heard the words about Christ they called out: "We knew him! He lived here! We know him well!"—The Youth's Companion.

Mexican Fiesta Offering! All offerings at the Mexican Fiestas must be sent by the local Treasurer to the Presbyterial Treasurer. Credit can then be given each Presbyterial for the quota expected from it. Please give this matter your careful attention, Madame Local President and Madame Local Treasurer!

These offerings are for the building of a school for Mexican Girls in Texas, not Mexico, for during the recent strife in that country thousands of Mexican families crossed the border, remaining in Texas to make their homes.

At Kingsville, Tex., the well-known Tex.-Mex. Institute is doing a fine work for the refugee Mexican lads, so it is the intention of the Woman's Auxiliary to build a school that will do as fine a work for the sisters and future wives of those lads.

The Woman's Auxiliary, Presbyterial Church, U. S., 273-277 Field Building, St. Louis, Mo.

Presidents of Local Auxiliaries, Synod of North Carolina—Dear Madam President: We want your help in making the Young People's Conference a success. As you know the Synod has made the Synodical Auxiliary jointly responsible with them in the management of the conference, our committee as named below serving with Synod's committee on Y. P.'s work as the Board of Directors. And the Synodical contributes annually $200 toward the expenses of the conference. We believe our women are backing this work with their interest and prayers. However, we are dependent on you and the leaders in the local church to see that the young people get to the conference.

The enclosed folder tells of the good things planned for the 1923 conference at Davidson, June 12-19.

May we depend on YOU to see that this matter is presented to your session and to your young people? Will you not consider this an opportunity to serve?

Sincerely yours,

Mrs. W. B. Ramsay,

Chmn. Synodical Committee on Y. P. Work.
Members of Committee: Mrs. E. F. Reid, Mrs. D. H. Shaw, Mrs. A. Currie, Miss Mamie McElwee, Mrs. W. B. Ramsay.

Spiritual Aims—The deepest need of this world is a Spiritual need. What should be the Spiritual aims of the members of our Auxiliary? Has our Christian life been as fruitful as Christ expects it to be? Let us strive during the coming year to be:

As Individuals:

1. More consistent in our daily walk and conversation.
2. More exercised for the salvation of others.
3. More given to Prayer. Every woman in the church should be a member of Intercessory League. Cards sent free.

4. More obedient in the dedication of life and possessions to the Master's work.

As a Society:

1. More emphasis should be placed upon the Devotional. Prayer and Bible Study are the foundation of all Missionary power.

2. A larger horizon as to our Missionary responsibility, "beginning at Jerusalem to the uttermost parts of the earth."

3. A finer courage to dare to undertake greater things for Him than ever before.

4. A larger dedication of time, life and money for the cause of the Kingdom.

5. Definite, Daily Prayer for the work of the church on the part of a large number of women of the Auxiliary.

GOAL: Every woman in the church praying for studying and giving to all the work of the church. Woman's Auxiliary, 257-259 Field Bldg. St. Louis Missouri.

Literature For Jews—The other day a Christian friend sent me a booklet entitled, "What think ye of Christ?" by Rev. Dr. Robert I. McArthur, president of the World's Baptist Alliance. As I read it it struck me, what a wonderful little tract it would make for Jews! It is an admirable and strong little composition and carries a fine appeal to the heart and mind of the reader. Its doctrine and viewpoint are perfectly sound.

We should like to publish a translation of it into Hebrew and Yiddish and distribute it by the thousands among the vast numbers of Jews of our country.

Some good friends of ours gave us a printing press a few months ago, and so we can do the translating and the printing at our mission. We have a good variety of English type but we shall have to buy the Hebrew. We reckon to give the pamphlet out to be printed elsewhere will cost us as much as to buy our own Hebrew type and do the work at the mission. And apart from the missionary value of the booklet it will also give us a start in Jewish printing which will be of great advantage in our work among the Jews.

An edition of 75,000 copies will cost approximately $700 and we should like to put this matter before our Christian friends and ask them to bring it prayerfully before the Lord if He would not like them to have a share in this most valuable service.

The printed page has been a powerful means of bringing many a Jew to his Lord. And it found him in places where the voice of the missionary would never have reached him.

A missionary friend of mine in England, a very devoted and successful worker for the Lord told me the story many a time how he first read the message of the Gospel in a little pamphlet which someone had put into his hand far away in a country town of Poland. What he read had roused his interest and curiosity to know more. He began to look out for opportunities to come in contact with the servants of the Lord. Now he is one of His devoted servants himself, and several missionaries in this country who have come from England, including the writer of these lines, are indebted to him, under the mercy of God, for light and blessing. But the beginning of it was a little tract.

So was Rabinowitch, Rabbi Lichtenstein and others brought to the Lord by means of the printed page.

The matter is urgent. We should like to have the tracts out before the beginning of our summer work, and we need to have at least half the amount in hand before we can start. Will those whom the Lord leads to give for this purpose mark their gift "Jewish Literature."

A Good Suggestion How to Get Us New Subscribers for the Hebrew Messenger—Please read the following:

The Hebrew Messenger,
1523 E. Lombard Street.
Gentlemen:—

I am enclosing my cheque for $2.25 for subscription to the Hebrew Messenger from nine members of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Maryland Avenue Presbyterian Church. It is certainly a most interesting paper, and our prayers are with you in the noble work you are doing for the Master.

Very cordially yours,

Mrs. Laura F. Maxwell,
2834 Maryland Ave.

Are you an officer or member of a Woman's Auxiliary? If so please interest your branch in our work among Israel and get them to become subscribers to our paper.

The Hebrew Messenger, published monthly at Westminster, Md. (except July and August), by the Emmanuel Neighborhood House 1523 E. Lombard St., to give information regarding Christian Work among the Jews in the City of Baltimore, under the auspices of the Northern and Southern Presbyterian Board of Home Missions.

Rev. Paul L. Berman, Field Representative, 420 Bellvue Ave., Phone Lib. 4567-W, Baltimore, Md.

Rev. S. Birnbaum, Director, 525 N. Luzerne Ave. Baltimore, Md., Phone Wolfe 0806-W. Mission Phone Wolfe 0350.

Miss M. E. Foard, Educational Worker; Mrs. Grace White, Deaconess; Miss E. Erck, Visitor.

Members of the Committee: Rev. T. Rolan Philips, chairman; Rev. Andrew H. Neilly, secretary; Rev. Dr. W. J. McMillan, Judge Harry N. Abercrombie, treasurer; Maryland Casualty Tower, Baltimore, Md. Claude T. Kimmey, publication manager, Westminster Md. Subscription in Advance, 2 cents per year.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT

(Conducted under the auspices of Synod's Committee of Sunday Schools and Young People's Work, in the interest of Sunday Schools and Young People's Societies)

W. ARNETT GAMBLE, JR., Editor

ADDRESS ALL COMMUNICATIONS TO THE DEPARTMENT EDITOR DAVIDSON, N. C

EDITOR'S LOOKOUT

Conference time comes next week! Are you going? The South Carolina and the North Carolina Conferences will both be fine. The speakers and conference leaders are excellent, and splendid programs of instruction, inspiration and entertainment have been arranged. The finest young people in our churches will be there. The time and money will be well invested. Be sure to be there.

Several times in our department we advertised the South Carolina Conference for Sumter. This was an error, for this conference will be held at the Presbyterian College of South Carolina at Clinton. Dr. J. P. Marion, of Sumter will be glad to give information concerning these days of study and prayer and fellowship.

We are requested by those in charge of the North Carolina Conference at Davidson to remind delegates and the leaders in Presbyteries of certain conditions which will obtain there. Towels, soap, a pair of sheets and a pillow-case, with an extra sheet for a curtain, should be brought to the conference. Also, a blanket should be brought or sent by parcel post. All the baths at Davidson are showers, and those who will desire bathing caps will do well to bring these with them, though caps will be on sale at the conference store. Especial attention is called to the fact that the conference fee of ten dollars covers meals beginning with supper June 12th and ending with breakfast June 19th. The conference dining room will not be opened before or after these times and those who come early will have to provide themselves with lunches or secure extra meals outside the conference.

Let us all be much in prayer for these meetings of our young people. The young folks will be the bulwarks of our church in the days ahead, as they are its hope in the present. May those who attend come in an earnest spirit, and those who do not attend be praying earnestly.

Prepare for the Young People's Conferences
South Carolina: Clinton, June 11-17
North Carolina: Davidson, June 12-19

Sunday School

By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.

JUNE 10, 1923

NEHEMIAH, THE BOLD BUILDER

Lesson: Nehemiah, Chs. 1 and 2; 4:6; 8:9-12; 12:31-13:31. (Survey of Nehemiah's Life.)

GOLDEN TEXT—"Be not afraid of them: remember the Lord."—Nehemiah 4:14.

SCRIPTURE LESSON

6 So built we the wall; and all the wall was joined together unto the half thereof: for the people had a mind to work.

7 But it came to pass, that when Sanballat, and Tobiah, and the Arabians, and the Ammonites, and the Ashdodites, heard that the walls of Jerusalem were made up, and that the breaches began to be stopped, then they were very wroth.

8 And conspired all of them together to come and to fight against Jerusalem, and to hinder it.

9 Nevertheless we made our prayer unto our God, and set a watch against them day and night, because of them.

10 And Judah said, The strength of the bearers of burdens is decayed, and there is much rubbish, so that we are not able to build the wall.

11 And our adversaries said, They shall not know, neither see, till we come in the midst among them, and slay them, and cause the work to cease.

12 And it came to pass, that when the Jews which dwelt by them came, they said unto us ten times, From all places whence ye shall turn unto us they will be upon you.

13 Therefore set I in the lower places behind the wall, and on the higher places, I even set the people after their families with their swords, their spears, and their bows.

14 And I looked, and rose up, and said unto the nobles, and to the rulers, and to the rest of the people, Be not ye afraid of them: remember the Lord which is great and terrible, and fight for your brethren, your sons, and your daughters, your wives, and your houses.

15 And it came to pass, when our enemies heard that it was known unto us, and God had brought their counsel to nought, that we returned all of us to the wall, every one unto his work.

SHORTER CATECHISM

Q. 40. What did God at first reveal to man for the rule of his obedience?

A. The rule which God at first revealed to man for his obedience was the moral law.

Nehemiah's name signifies "God will comfort," and he brought great help and comfort to his nation. George Washington never imparted greater blessings to America than Nehemiah did to Israel. Nehemiah was a man eminent in gifts and service. His intellectual, moral and spiritual endowments were of a high order. He had the ability to plan, organize and execute a vast work. He had excellent moral qualities. He was courageous, self-sacrificing, energetic and generous. He was heavenly minded and prayerful. Burdened with weighty cares and exhausting labors, he was constantly mindful of dependence on God and held continued intercourse with heaven. We will contemplate Nehemiah's Missions; His Difficulties; The Means Employed; His Triumphant Success.

I. Nehemiah's Mission

He was sent by the King of Persia on an arduous and important enterprise. He was charged with rebuilding the walls and homes of Jerusalem and restoring the prosperity of Israel. He had the sanction and co-operation of the king, but stern toil, great sacrifices and formidable obstacles awaited him. He was not only to restore the walls and provide Israel with adequate defences against surrounding foes, but to re-establish the laws and religious institutions of God's chosen people. He was to meet with stern toil for the work itself and with fierce opposition from vindictive enemies, and with much discouragement from weak, despondent friends. To engage in a task like this and to carry it to a successful issue required a strong man, aided in his efforts by the sovereign Jehovah. Such was Nehemiah.

II. The Difficulties He Encountered

No man ever did much for God and humanity who did not meet and overcome difficulties. Nehemiah faced difficulties in the work itself. There was much rubbish to be removed before the walls could be built. A large quantity of material must be prepared and transported and put in place before their enterprise could be completed.

Machinery at that time was not what it is now, and most of the work was done by human hand labor. It was a formidable task, even if unhindered from without. But Nehemiah met with opposition from many hostile opponents. The surrounding heathen, combined and led by such men as Sanballat and Tobias, made persistent efforts to hinder their enterprise and to defeat their object. They employed ridicule, strategem, falsehood, arms and war to bring to naught their purpose. Besides the frequent assaults from without, Nehemiah and his co-workers met discouragement from among their own people. The unbelieving, weak-hearted and desponding among them said, "There is much rubbish to be removed, the strength of the burden-bearers is decayed and we are not able to build the walls." Under such conditions a man less determined, capable and pious would have abandoned his enterprise in despair. But a person like Nehemiah and with his helpers can not know defeat.

III. The Means He Employed

He had faith in his work and in its Divine approval. He had faith in Jehovah and believed that He as well as the earthly king had sent him to achieve this task. He gave it wise thought, systematic organization, and his best and persistent endeavors. He was willing to concentrate upon the work, to contend with opposing enemies, and to point his desponding brethren to the matchless resources and manifest faithfulness of their covenant God. He was determined to fight and work, the sword in one hand and the trowel in the other, until the task was completed. Above all he mingled prayer with work and struggle. In every emergency he called on Jehovah for aid. He complied with the Divine direction, "Call on me in the day of trouble and I will deliver thee and thou shalt glorify me." He did not call in vain, in this case as in another remarkable instance.

"The might of the Gentile unsmote by the sword, Melted like snow in the glance of the Lord."

IV. Nehemiah's Triumphant Success

Jehovah crowned his earnest, prayerful efforts with complete victory and achievement. The parts of the wall were joined together and Jerusalem was made secure against their enemies. The inhabitants rejoiced in the success of their endeavors, in the protection of Jehovah, and in their safety against the assaults of their foes. The law of the Sabbath was enforced and they were shielded from the impious deeds of godless traders, as well as from the assaults of armed men. The law of God respecting the needy and the poor was obeyed, and men of means ceased to oppress their brethren. The authority of Jehovah was honored, His worship maintained, and that "righteousness which exalteth a nation" was fostered by Nehemiah.

Christian Endeavor

By Rev. J. G. Garth, Chairman of Synod's Committee of Sabbath Schools and Young People's Work.

REFORMS

- M., June 11—Worship of Gold: Exod. 32:1-4.
- T., June 12—Civic Justice: Acts 16:19-24, 35-40.
- W., June 13—Sabbath-Keeping: Amos. 8:4-10.
- T., June 14—Public Health: Lev. 13:1-8, 46.
- F., June 15—War: Mic. 4:1-5.
- S., June 16—Brotherhood: Acts 17:22-31.

Sun., June 17—Topic: What Are Some Reforms That Call for Our Help? Luke 3:7-14.

- How can we help prohibition?
- How can we help community health?
- How can we help to abolish child labor?

A reform is to make something better than it was. While men and women can reform their lives, the reference in this topic is to public matters that need to be made better than they are. The scripture lesson tells us of the great reformer, John the Baptist, who, with courage and faith in God reproved the people who came to hear him preach, and urged them all to reform. He declared that the wrath of God would be visited on them if they did not change. The people were greatly stirred, and asked John how they might reform. He replied to the Jews that they must give up their racial pride, and be generous to everybody. He told the publicans, or tax-gatherers, to extort no more money from the people than the law demanded, and the soldiers that they must not use their weapons to be injurious to the innocent, and ought to be content with their wages.

Ever since the world began and sin entered this earth, the human race has been going wrong. There has always been a constant need for reforms in the government, society, business, and even the Church lets abuses grow up in it. One of the greatest and most important reforms was that of Martin Luther, when he brought about a reform in the Church in the 16th century. We feel the benefits of his work to our own day. But we still need reforms, and it is our duty to bring about the bettering of things, if we can, so people will be happier, and it will be easier to be good. Let us notice some things that need reforming today.

Public Abuses that Need Reforming

The public laws were intended to protect the rights of all, and to compel evil men and women to respect those rights. But there are people who disregard the rights of others, and trample on the law to suit their own desires. The opposition of the bootlegger and the selfish drinker to the prohibition law is making a serious situation in America. The law requires the support of all, and this great reform of intemperance will fail unless all do their part. The United States has 50 times as many murders as Great Britain, because our courts set men free who ought to be punished for their crimes. Many of our business men get around the law and profiteer in trade; thus stealing the money that belongs to others. Cruelty in prisons is being discussed now, and the people are calling for reform of abuses of men and women in jail. One of the big questions of the day is the reform of labor and capital, by discouraging strikes, and giving the workers better wages, and better conditions for work, and keeping capitalists from holding more of the profits of business than their share. Many other reforms in business and politics might be mentioned.

Social Wrongs That Need Reforming

There are other wrongs that need righting in the social world. The rapid increase of divorce, and the consequent injury of many homes calls for a great reform. The bad and immoral moving pictures must be stopped. Gambling on ball games, and card games, and other forms of gambling should be discouraged. The terrible toll of deaths by automobile accidents shows we need to reform speeding on the streets and highways. The modern dance calls for reform and probably modern dress needs it too. One of the greatest reforms is the cessation of war, and the bringing of peaceful settlements of national difficulties. Sabbath desecration also calls for reform.

The Influence of Young People in Reforms

Young people have their part to play in reforms, for they will be the next generation that will battle against wrongs in the business, social and political life of the world. First, they should form their own ideals and do their best to live up to them, so that they will not lend their influence to customs that lower morality and justice. They should encourage every one who is trying to do right, and by their societies, they can support and strengthen each other and, by working together, will do more than by individual effort. The young people of the church can bring about many reforms, for political leaders are more concerned about a group that acts together than they are about individual voters. But most of all, young people should feel that they are a unit of Christ's kingdom and that their power is spiritual. With Christian ideals, with love for Christ, and the purpose to serve Him, with prayer for help, with consecration to the work in hand, young people can accomplish great things for God and the right. They have done their part in bringing about reforms, and they can do it again.

NEWS FROM THE FRONT

We have the following from our correspondent in the Senior C. E. Society of the Church of the Covenant, Greensboro, N. C.:

Although college girls have always visited our C. E. Society, they have not often attended regularly or taken part in the meetings. We have not urged them to join the society because it conflicted with their Y. W. C. A. vesper services. Any interest shown by them was voluntary. Recently, however, members of Miss Lucy Pell's Sunday School class of girls from N. C. C. W. have been attending regularly, several joining as active members. A number have been taking an active part in the meetings and are some of our most enthusiastic members. The number attending regularly has been steadily increasing during the last few months. The last Sunday night of their regular college work, May 27th, there was a large number present and several took part in the interesting Foreign Mission program. Afterwards several girls spoke of how much they hoped to do for the young people in their own churches during the summer.

Recently a very informal social was given by the C. E. in honor of all the college students who had attended our society. Enjoyable games were played for more than two hours. When refreshment time came they were served in rather a unique way. All were lined up alphabetically and to the tune of a "Grand March," paraded through the kitchen, receiving their refreshments in cafeteria style.

A great day was had at McConnellsville, S. C., on May 13th, on the occasion of the anniversary visit of the C. E. Society of Richburg, which society was organized two years ago by a delegation from McConnellsville. The pastor of the church at McConnellsville being an enthusiastic Endeavorer and knowing what Christian Endeavor can do when given the opportunity, gladly gave over the day to the anniversary celebration. The day was truly spent in service and worship and it was a Sabbath filled with worthy effort for the good Lord. More than 40 of the Richburg society members and about 150 of the home church members were present, and all returned home enthused and inspired by what they had seen and heard.

The Richburg Society rendered the program in the morning upon the subject of Prayer, and Rev. Roy Brown, pastor of the Richburg Church and an enthusiastic Endeavorer, preached on Answered Prayer. In the afternoon the Mothers' Society gave a program representing missionaries in conference upon their work. "Dr. Stixrud," the Presbyterian C. E. Missionary to the Congo, "presided" over the meeting.

The officers of the Southern District C. E. Union of North Carolina met in Charlotte on May 16th, to discuss the district work. Plans were made to promote registrations for the State Convention in Greensboro in October. Greensboro City Union had challenged the rest of the state to register as many delegates as were registered from Greensboro. The Southern District accepted its quota of 225 and all officers present at the meeting immediately sent in their own registrations. It was decided that each district officer should send a monthly report to the district secretary, who should compile the reports and send a complete report to each district officer and to Mr. Frank Wilson, State Field Secretary. The Presbyterian Young People's Conference at Davidson was stressed and definite work is being done to promote that meeting.

Church News

A CORRECTION

Through a misunderstanding of the action of the Assembly, in our recent account of its proceedings, we stated that two men were to be appointed to take the places of Dr. Chester and Dr. Williams at the same salary as these brethren have heretofore received. We have been informed that we were in error.

Only one Secretary was ordered to be elected for three years.

We regret greatly that we made this mistake, and we take pleasure in correcting it.

THE DEATH OF MRS. W. R. COPPEDGE

As we go to press, the sad news comes that the wife of our college mate and dear old friend, Rev. W. R. Coppedge, departed this life, May 31st.

The funeral service was held Thursday afternoon from the Presbyterian Church, conducted by Rev. J. A. McQueen, assisted by Rev. Bruce Benton, Rev. J. D. Bundy, and Rev. Howard Hartzell.

Mrs. Coppedge was 75 years old last January 7th. She was, prior to her marriage, Miss Mary Elizabeth Duffy, of New Bern, and granddaughter of Rev. Wm. P. Biddle, one of the charter trustees of Wake Forest College. She was married to Rev. W. R. Coppedge in April, 1877. She is survived by five sons—Walter; Dr. N. P., of Candor; Dr. Llewellyn, of Mexico; Hervey, and Don. It was impossible for Dr. Llewellyn Coppedge to get here from Mexico either for last illness or funeral.

NOTICE CONCERNING SPECIAL OFFERINGS IN JULY

The General Assembly at its recent meeting asked the churches to take an offering on the first Sunday in July for Protestant relief in Europe, adding Hungary and Transylvania to the fields we are now assisting. The Assembly urges that not less than $80,000 be provided for this year's work.

Rev. James I. Vance, D.D., Nashville, Tenn., is the chairman of the Assembly's Committee.

On the same day the Assembly asks the churches to raise the sum of $20,000 for the Lord's Day Alliance.

Rev. I. Cochrane Hunt, D.D., Nashville, Tenn., is the Southern Secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance.

Publicity is given to these special offerings by order of the General Assembly.

NORTH CAROLINA

Fayetteville Presbytery stands adjourned to meet in the First Church, Fayetteville, N. C., Tuesday, June 26, 1923, at 1 p. m. E. L. Siler, S. C.

Sugar Creek—Rev. M. E. Peabody was installed pastor of Sugar Creek Church, June 3, 1923.

Dr. W. H. Frazer and Rev. H. M. Pressley conducted the installation services.

Dr. Frazer preached the sermon and charged the people. Mr. Pressley propounded the questions and charged the pastor.

Kings Mountain Presbytery—The constitutional requirements having been met the Presbytery of Kings Mountain has been called to meet in the Lincoln church, Monday, June 11th, at 2:30 p. m., to transact the following business, if the way be clear:

To receive Rev. C. G. Brown, from Clio, S. C., and arrange for his installation as pastor of the Dallas group of churches.

To receive Mr. Frank McLaughen, of the First Church of Gastonia, as a candidate for the ministry.

To hear an application from the Home Mission Committee for an appropriation from the Church and Manse Erection Fund for the Cherryville Church, and to attend to any other matters arising from the above mentioned.

Signed this First Day of June, 1923.

Geo. R. Gillespie, Moderator.

Attention Young People of Fayetteville Presbytery—We are hoping to have a large delegation from our Presbytery at the conference at Davidson College, June 12-19. Don't let anything keep you from sending your delegates.

The conference will be followed up by three one-day rallies, one June 26th at Lumber Bridge Church, one the 27th at Sardis Church, Linden, and on the 28th at Gulf Church. Let every young people's society elect delegates. The program will be good. Mr. Frank P. Wilson will speak on C. E. work and Mr. Russell Woods on Life Enlistment.

Remember the date of the one nearest you and have your society well-represented.

Mrs. J. H. Suttentfield, Pinebluff, N. C., secretary Young People's Work and Sunday School Extension, Fayetteville Presbyterial.

Concord, Second Church, Rev. W. C. Wauchope, pastor. This church has just passed through a wonderfully blessed season of revival. Rev. Leonard Gill, Synodical evangelist for North Carolina, did the preaching. Twenty-one persons united with this church on last Sunday, and there are others to follow. Some have united with other churches. Mr. Gill's preaching is characterized by energy, zeal and fearlessness, and his sermons by soundness, directness and convincing power. He organized a Personal Workers' band which was a power in the bringing of souls to Christ.

A junior choir of 40 voices assisted the church choir, and there were appropriate solos and special musical numbers at each service. Through the coming of Mr. Gill to us at this time we have received a spiritual uplift and a new vision of service. Souls have been born into the kingdom, back-sliders brought back, and Christians strengthened in their spiritual life.

Concord Presbytery—Met in adjourned session in Statesville, May 29th at 2 p. m. Present, 15 ministers and six ruling elders. Licentiate N. E. Oplinger was received from the Presbytery of North Alabama. He is engaged in Home Mission work in Caldwell County.

August and September were adopted as the months for an evangelistic campaign in the Presbytery.

The committee on Christian Education and Ministerial Relief made a report which was adopted. Mr. George W. Steen, was at his request, dropped from the roll of candidates.

Calls from Third Creek and Elmwood for the pastoral services of Rev. J. E. Robinson were placed in his hands and he was allowed to hold them and supply the churches, together with Bethesda till the Fall meeting.

Rev. H. H. Cassidy tendered his resignation a pastor of Unity Church. The members of the Home Mission Committee were made a commission to visit the church and dissolve the pastoral relation if the way be clear.

E. D. Brown, S. C.

Gastonia—Rev. Geo. R. Gillespie, assistant pastor of the First Church and pastor of Armstrong Memorial Church, has been appointed to represent the State of North Carolina among the commissioners who will visit the Near East this summer. The appointment is a high honor and expresses the appreciation of the National Board of Commissioners of the singularly fine work that Mr. Gillespie has done, not only in Gaston County, but in a number of other places in the interest of Near East Relief. The Near East Commission will bear the expenses of those who make the trip from the time they reach that part of the Near East covered by the relief work of the commission. The men's Bible class of the First Church will provide funds to cover the other expenses of the trip, having undertaken to raise the sum of $1,000.

The commission expects to sail from New York about July 1st and will be gone not less than two months. The itinerary will cover Gibraltar and points of interest in the Mediterranean, including a trip through Egypt, Palestine and points of interest in Greece and Italy, in addition to the tour of Asia Minor and the Holy Land.

Mr. Gillespie is to be heartily congratulated on this honor which has come to him. It will not only serve to promote the interest of this most needed and deserving cause, but will prove of great pleasure and benefit to him personally.

High Point—We have recently closed one of the most profitable and delightful meetings ever held in the High Point Presbyterian Church. Rev. R. C. McLees of Chatham, Va., came to us and preached twice a day, from May 7th through 17th. Previous to that, a large number of home prayer meetings had been held in every part of the city. The members of the church were faithful in their attendance and efforts, and gave the meeting first place. The preaching was of the highest order, simple, clear, spiritual, beautiful, and with that appeal which characterizes Mr. McLees' preaching, was effective. The large congregations were charmed with the preaching. In its effect upon the church, the meeting was most satisfactory. There were many professions of faith and many Christians renewed their vows, consecrating themselves anew. As a result, 36 have already come into the church, and more will follow. The church is perhaps in the best condition it has ever been. June 1st will be the tenth anniversary of the present pastorate. During that time nearly 400 members have been added to the church. There has been gratifying growth along every line. The work of the Woman's Auxiliary and the Bible School especially the large organized Bible classes are outstanding features. Our contributions last year totaled over $21,000, $10,000 of this was for benevolent causes. The present year has started off very hopefully, and we trust this will be the best year of earnest work so far. C. P. Coble.

Ashe County—Presbyterianism in Ashe County is coming to its own again after several months of lethargy. The pastor-elect, R. H. Stone, a recent B. D. of Union Theological Seminary of Virginia and Mr. D. R. Freeman, of the middle class of the same seminary are on the field and have held services in all of the churches. Peak Creek Sunday School, under the able leadership of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Fennie, held its regular service every Sunday except one throughout the winter. Obids Sunday School has been reorganized and is going right for ward. Ebenezer and Jefferson churches will reorganize on the first Sunday in June and every effort will be made to make it the best and largest in its history.

There are several new features about our work this summer. This is Mr. Freeman's first summer work in the county. He is a cornetist of rare ability as well as a popular preacher and the people are delighted with him. In two of the churches there are no musical instruments and his cornet is of such great help. Another feature is the use to be made of a new mimeograph with which much information and Bible teaching will be put into the hands of the congregation. The pastor-elect expects to have a series of mid-week services at Obids on "What Presbyterians Believe." Mr. Freeman has not announced the subject of his mid-week services.

The Brown-Belk Company, of Charlotte has sent 4 Bibles and four testaments and three dictionaries to be distributed in homes where there are none. On the third Sunday in June in the Jefferson Church the ordination and installation of the pastor-elect will take place. The commission appointed by Orange Presbytery is as follows: Revs. S. M. Rankin, C. W. Erwin, and E. N. Caldwell and elders A. R. Vail, John Burghess, and J. C. Crawford.

Albemarle Presbytery met in Kinston, April 10th. Rev. W. B. Neill, retiring moderator, preached the opening sermon. Rev. W. T. Wadley was elected moderator; Rev. J. A. Vache, temporary clerk; 22 ministers were present, and 19 elders. Rev. W. S. Harden, of Congaree Presbytery was received, and order was taken for his installation at Greenville. A commission was appointed to organize a church at White Oak, in Wayne County. Geneva Church called Rev. F. F. Comerford for two afternoon services a month.

Order was taken for the installation of Rev. F. H. Scattergood as pastor over Cann Memorial Church, Elizabeth City.

Insistent appeals were made to a number of churches, who had not sent in any reports, to send same to the clerk for tabulation.

Rev. C. K. Taffe was reappointed once more to preach the Presbyterial sermon. Rev. Daniel Iverson substituted for him at this session, preaching on "Assurance." Rev. W. T. Wadley presented another report, carefully considered and forcibly expressed on Sabbath Observance and Family Religion. All our churches are asked to send an offering to Rev. I. Cochrane Hunt for the Lord's Day Alliance. Rev. G. W. Belk made a short visit to the Presbytery, as did also Rev. R. E. Loven. A full report on Foreign Missions was presented by Rev. Stanley White at the conclusion, special prayer was offered.

In Sunday School work there was reported a great quickening of interest and in attendance, but failure to plan and equip for the best work.

A Presbyterial Sunday School Convention was ordered for Wilson, July 10th, also other district institutes as far as feasible. The Y. P. Society Conference at Davidson was commended.

Home Missions, in this Presbytery, is the impressive cause. Mr. Searight is chairman. Mr. Crane is superintendent. It was reported that every field out one will soon be filled. Several new church buildings are in process of building, others undergoing repairs; 276 additions, mostly by profession, were made; seven Sunday Schools were organized.

Another county, Hertford, will be entered soon. The evangelist, Mr. M. A. Tremain will live at Ahsokie. The Presbyterial gave us a thrill of pleasure in venturing to raise $2,000 for Presbyterial Home Missions for an unoccupied county. Mr. Leach reported five candidates, also very nearly $2,000 contributed to Christian Education and Ministerial Relief. We are all always glad to have superintendent Crawford with us, and again he gave us an encouraging outlook, complimenting the Presbytery on exceeding her apportionment slightly.

Mr. McDiarmid reported 29 women's societies; 15 Y. P. societies; three men's and boys'. An overture, asking for better blanks for spring reports, was ordered sent to the Assembly.

Falkland's invitation for the Fall Presbytery was accepted.

An inspirational evangelistic address, and a 20-minute Bible study, were planned for the next meeting.

Presbytery adjourned till June 6th at Raleigh at 11 a. m. S. C.

SOUTH CAROLINA

At a special meeting of Piedmont Presbytery, held in Anderson, S. C., May 28th, the resignation of Rev. J. R. McRee as pastor of Good Hope and Varennes churches was accepted, and he was dismissed to Augusta Presbytery to become pastor of the Monticello Church. Robert Adams, S. C. Pendleton, S. C., May 28, 1923.

Laurens—The baccalaureate sermon of the commencement program of the Laurens city schools was preached Sunday evening by Rev. Henry Wade DuBose, D.D., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, of Spartanburg. The services were held at the First Baptist Church. Dr. Weston Bruner, pastor, and Rev. C. T. Squires, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, assisted in the exercises.

Dr. DuBose took "Ideals" for the subject of his sermon as based on the record of Joseph as a dreamer, the text being "We shall see what becomes of his dreams." In all ages, the speaker said, dreamers and idealists have left their names on the pages of history.

Columbia—The Rev. F. Ray Riddle of Columbia has accepted the call to the Shandon Presbyterian Church, pending action granting him a transfer to Congaree Presbytery from Bethel Presbytery and release from the secretaryship of Home Missions of South Carolina.

Educated at Erskine College, Rev. Mr. Riddle took his theological degree at the Columbia Theological Seminary.

He has been pastor at churches in Monticello, Fla., and at Lowryville. He was married soon after his graduation to Miss Caroline Chandler of Mayesville, and has a son and a daughter.

Pee Dee, Kentyre and Hamer Churches, Pee Dee Presbytery—Rev. Yosick Benjamin, of Columbia, S. S., who came to this country from Persia and Russia, to protect himself and family from persecution during the world war gave these churches on the fourth Sabbath three interesting and instructive talks on his experience and work in Persia.

Liberal contributions were made by these churches for the support of himself and family. In view of the circumstances under which he and his family have by the providence of God been placed and in view of the great suffering that he and his family experienced in Persia and Russia during the World War and the self-denying that he did there all of our churches should be willing and glad for him to visit them and tell them of his life and work. He is highly commended by some of the most prominent and godly ministers of our Church to the confidence and liberality of God's people. No one will lose anything by ministering to this consecrated servant of God. It is highly necessary for this to be done until God opens a way for him to return to his people. Aside from this we will receive great spiritual benefit from his talks. A. H. Atkins.

Edgefield—On Tuesday, 20th, the three churches in this group met and installed their new pastor, Rev. H. E. Wright, in a joint meeting in the Edgefield church, Rev. J. O. Van Metre, Dr. Melton Clark, and Dr. R. A. Lapsley, of Columbia, officiating. Since this time the churches of this group have all put on new life. Each has oversubscribed its full quota in the every member canvass and at the same time has increased the pastor's salary.

In the Edgefield Church the weekly offering through the duplex envelopes has been put on with great success.

The manse has been put in good repair and thoroughly screened and painted. A Christian Endeavor Society is well organized, also two of the classes of the Sunday School.

An unusually profitable and interesting Bible study class is taught every Thursday by the pastor. This class is composed of the women of the church, although especial invitations have been extended to all who can come.

The Auxiliaries of the Edgefield and Trenton churches are most active, and that of the Edgefield church had attained the silver seal on the Standard of Excellence.

The group composed of Edgefield, Johnston, Newton, presented the pastor with a nice new car to assist him in covering his territory and in doing much missionary work for which he is peculiarly fitted.

Recently Rev. Mr. Wright conducted a profitable series of services in the chapel of the Addison Mills. His interest in and attention to the sick of the mill village has attracted the attention of the officers, and they are glad to co-operate with him in his work.

The Trenton Church has increased its board of deacons by electing Mr. B. T. Hord, and has also taken in new members recently. The prospects are bright, and the congregations thank God and take courage. E. A. D.

With South Carolina Endeavorers, C. F. Evans, Southern Secretary—The pathway of a Christian Endeavor Secretary is not always strewn with roses, but there are occasions so refreshing as to greatly help in smoothing the rough places which may appear. Such an occasion recently came to Southern Secretary Evans at Kershaw, when the Juniors presented to him an immense "May Basket," which they had made with all kinds of blooming flowers, and tucked away among the flowers was a box of candy which they had also made for him.

The Intermediates of the same church presented him with a handsome bouquet of blooming flowers, while the Seniors took him to see his first gold mine.

Rev. F. M. Hawley is the pastor of this aggressive group of Christian Endeavor societies, and both he and his wife are greatly loved by the young people.

Timmons ville gave another outstanding and exceptionally fine demonstration of loyalty to Christian Endeavor, and to the State officers. Due to a misunderstanding these folk were under the impression that Southern Secretary Evans would arrive at 8:20 on a Monday morning and leave at 10:20 the same morning, and in spite of the unusual hour, and the fact that the day was a Monday, plans were made for a meeting at nine o'clock, and the school principal had planned to allow all Endeavorers in the school to be excused for the meeting.

When it was found, upon the arrival of the Secretary, that he was not to leave until the next morning, notice was rushed to the school rooms, a large sign was placed in front of the church, folks got busy on telephones, and special hand bills were struck, announcing the postponement of the meeting until that evening, which resulted in a splendid meeting.

The Juniors of this church, under Mrs. Winn, held the State Junior Loving Cup last year, and as soon as it is awarded this year are expecting to get it back again.

The First Presbyterian Church of Sumter, S. C., has five splendid Christian Endeavor societies, which are doing good work. Each Sunday afternoon these societies hold services in the county convict camp, the county infirmary and in another institution of the city.

Rev. J. F. Marion, pastor of this church, is in charge of the Young People's Conference which is to be held at Clinton, June 11-17.

Because of mail being lost in transit the Endeavorers of the First Presbyterian Church of Anderson, S. C., did not know of the proposed visit of Southern Secretary Evans until 24 hours before his arrival, but in spite of this a splendid meeting was worked up which had an attendance of more than 75 folk.

Rev. R. F. Kirkpatrick, vice-chairman of the All-South Extension Committee, is pastor, and the new State Junior Superintendent, Mrs. W. M. Todd, is a member of this church.

At Clinton the meeting was held in the beautiful chapel of the Thornwell Orphanage, and was attended by the Endeavorers of the Orphanage, of the Presbyterian College and of the city proper.

This Orphanage is one of the outstanding institutions of the Southern Presbyterian Church, is wonderfully managed by Dr. Lynn, and in it Christian Endeavor is recognized as an important factor.

At the meeting held in the Long Cane Church, near Abbeville, Endeavorers drove from six surrounding societies, swelling the attendance to more than 125. Two auto loads came from Due West, which is the society of which Field Secretary Wilson is a member.

On a 36-hour notice Camden gave one of the best meetings of the tour, and the interest was so splendid that the worker's conference lasted until after 10 o'clock, p. m., and plans were outlined for the starting of a new Junior society.

Field Secretary Dendy drove Southern Secretary Evans from Columbia to Camden and return, a distance of 65 miles, and greatly helped in making the meeting a success. South Carolina Endeavorers are thoroughly enthusiastic about Mr. Dendy, and rejoice that he is now in the seminary preparing for larger service.

The Alcolu folk gave a cordial welcome and a splendid meeting. This society is a splendid example of what a rural society can do when real efforts are made.

Hodges stands second in the state in the number of its boys in the Presbyterian College, being led only by Sumter. On a proportionate basis Hodges would stand first, as it is not nearly so large as Sumter.

The outlook in South Carolina is fine and the Endeavorers are lining up for their very best year.

APPALACHIA

Plumtree, N. C.—Thanks to the Christian Endeavor programs prepared by our Executive Committees, we had a most interesting meeting of our Endeavor Society last Sunday evening with our doctors and nurses. We feel that our interest reached the "boiling point" when one of our boys decided on being a medical missionary as his life work.

Our little congregation is doing its part in a financial way; it has subscribed its quota for benevolences and is keeping the pastor's salary paid. Cor.

Morristown, Tenn.—Upon recommendation of the pastor, Rev. S. H. Hay, this church in congregational meeting recently assumed support of a second foreign missionary. The church now has a missionary in China, a missionary in Brazil, and a representative in the mountain work in this country.

The Woman's Auxiliary held the past week a social gathering in the interest of the Mexican Fiesta, at which was contributed $71 for the school for Mexicans.

The board of officers in formal session has unanimously ordered the formulation of plans for the immediate construction of much needed kitchen equipment and additional Sunday School space.

Hendersonville, N. C.—A number of interesting things have taken place here in the past two or three months. The manse, an attractive and convenient bungalow, was painted inside and out for the coming of the new pastor, Rev. L. T. Wilds, D.D. A residence adjoining the church has been purchased for social purposes and to give more room for an expanding Sunday School. And an order is being placed for a new pipe organ. Fifty new members were added to the church in April and May without any special services, 16 of these on profession, nine of whom received baptism. This gives us a resident membership of 340. The men have been organized after the fivefold plan, gathering for a monthly banquet of song, fun, fellowship and service. The boys 12 years old and up have been organized into a troop of Boy Scouts, the best organization we know of for boys provided the right kind of Scoutmaster is secured. This is an especially attractive field by reason of a growing population, a large number of tourists all the year round, openings for congregational missions, and three up-to-date boarding schools—Blue Ridge for boys, Carolina Military and Naval, and the Fassifern school for girls—many of whose students attend our church. It is a strategic point in our Southern Church and Dr. Campbell, of Asheville says that he doesn't know of a more attractive field in North Carolina.

ALABAMA

Birmingham Third Church has sent out the following invitation:

"The officers and members of this church invite you to attend the thirty-fourth anniversary services of the pastorate of Dr. J. A. Bryan with this congregation. These services will be held in the church Sunday, June 3d, at 11 a. m., and at 7:45 p. m. Pray for us. Psalm 103:1."

(Continued on page 12)

Educational

Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va.—The summer engagements of the professors, which sometimes keep them as busy during the vacation as they are in term time, have already begun. Dr. Eugene Caldwell was the preacher at Williamsburg, the seat of the College of William and Mary, last Sunday. Dr. Edward Mack preaches the baccalaureate sermon at Clemson College, S. C., June 3d. Dr. W. L. Lingle renders the same service at the commencement of Washington and Lee University. Dr. W. W. Moore preaches the baccalaureate sermon at the University of Virginia and makes a commencement address at the University of Richmond. Dr. W. Taliaferro Thompson has a series of engagements for conferences here and there on his special line of religious education and work for young people. Prof. Ernest Trice Thompson is to supply the First Church, Huntington, W. Va., in August. Dr. T. C. Johnson, as usual, looks after the Ginter Park Church throughout the summer.

Oglethorpe University.—The principal exercises of the fourth annual commencement were held at the Wesley Memorial Church on Sunday evening, May 27th, at 7:30 o'clock. It will be recalled that the Wesley Memorial Church is equipped with radio apparatus and it is believed that these services were the first commencement exercises ever radioed in the history of America.

The sermon was preached by Dr. George L. Petrie, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, of Charlottesville, Va., after which followed the conferring of degrees and the presentation of the appropriate academic hoods during the ceremony of investiture.

The Executive Committee of the Board of Founders of the university, in considering the matter of the conferring of honorary degrees, bore in mind the fact that this commencement marked the decennial of their institution and decided to emphasize in the honors that they conferred the memory of Old Oglethorpe and the part that Atlanta had played in the refounding of the institution in this city. To this end, they selected as their baccalaureate orator Dr. George L. Petrie, a graduate of Old Oglethorpe in 1864 and the class-mate of Sidney Lanier, who is one of the few graduates of the old institution still in the active service of the ministry. Dr. Petrie is known as a distinguished and eloquent divine and holds one of the most important charges in the state of Virginia. In his sermon, Dr. Petrie referred most touchingly to his own graduation day at old Oglethorpe 64 years ago when, with some 19 other boys, he received his diploma at the hands of old Dr. Samuel K. Talmadge, the then president of the institution. All of this Dr. Petrie said seemed to him to have happened but yesterday. Upon him was conferred the degree of Doctor of Laws.

The university also conferred upon Mr. Nathaniel P. Pratt, of Atlanta, the degree of Doctor of Laws. Mr. Pratt is the chairman of the Executive Board of the Georgia School of Technology, so that this honor conferred upon him is a complimentary expression of appreciation of their great sister institution which such friendly and cordial relations in every department have been maintained during the lives of the two institutions. The grandfather of Mr. Pratt was given the degree of Doctor of Divinity by Old Oglethorpe in 1854. His uncle, Henry Barrington Pratt, who translated the Bible into the Spanish language for the American Bible Society and who had been a Presbyterian missionary in South America for many years, was a graduate of Old Oglethorpe. His father, who bore the same name as his grandfather, Nathaniel Alpheus Pratt, was graduated from Oglethorpe University in 1852, and when the storm of war broke upon the country in 1861 he was professor of chemistry and geology in his alma mater.

Oglethorpe University has watched the great work done by Mr. Willis A. Sutton, as superintendent of the public school system of this capital of the southeast, and has not failed to note his fine judgment and ability. They, therefore, requested him to allow them the privilege of conferring upon him, on this occasion, the degree of Doctor of Pedagogy.

During the past decade few men have conferred upon the public of Atlanta more pleasure and few have done it more skillfully or with higher mark of ability of art than Mr. Charles A. Sheldon, Jr., the city organist of Atlanta, who is perhaps the best known organist in the southern states. The university conferred upon Mr. Sheldon the Degree of Doctor of Music.

The Executive Committee desired also to honor Mr. Joel H. Hunter who is among the best masters of statistics and mathematics in relation to business that the southern states affords. Mr. Hunter is the author of a number of exceedingly high-grade volumes and essays on his favorite subject, and his reputation as an auditor has spread all over the nation. The committee, therefore, requested the privilege of conferring the degree of Doctor of Commercial Science upon Mr. Hunter.

The university also conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity upon Dr. Hay Watson Smith, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Little Rock, Ark. Dr. Smith, as is well known, comes from a family which stands almost unique in the denominations, having furnished to the Church so many distinguished leaders. Dr. Smith is well known as a liberal leader of the denomination, his recent brochure on Presbyterianism and Evolution, stamping him as a man of courage and devotion to the pure faith, which the authorities of Oglethorpe University felt should be fittingly recognized at this time.

One of the best deserved and most interesting honors conferred was the degree of Doctor of Pedagogy upon Mr. Benjamin P. Gaillard, who, for 50 consecutive years, has been a professor in the North Georgia Agricultural College at Dahlonega, Ga. This record made by Mr. Gaillard has been rarely equaled in the history of American education.

Lees-McRae Institute, Banner Elk, N. C., opened April 12th, with a full attendance. All day the teachers were busy registering pupils, and attending to the many duties connected with the opening of the session.

That night all the school assembled in the beautiful new auditorium, in the North Carolina Building, for the formal opening. Dr. Robert King, of Kingsport, Tenn., chairman of the board of trustees, came to us for this occasion, which was one of mingled joy and sorrow to many of us, who recalled the days and months of Mr. Tufts' time and strength that has gone into the work. Mr. King cheered us all by his helpful and inspiring address on "Character Building."

Now the first month of school work at "L. M. I." has passed and everything has gotten into smooth running order. All day long girls can be seen going back and forth over the campus for classes, music lessons, practice, basketry, and sewing, or headed for work in the kitchen and dining room. Here 91 hungry people are fed three times a day. The Domestic Science teacher often remarks that a miracle has been performed when she gets enough cooked for so many hungry ones.

The different school organizations are in full swing, and led by enthusiastic girls. The Missionary Society has been re-organized. Many new members have been added to both the Missionary Society and "The Tithers' League." All are anxious to give more for missions than they have in the past. The Philolethian and Eirenean Literary Societies have had enthusiastic times initiating new members and getting up interesting programs. The girls of the upper classes, promoted by the Student Council, gave a delightful evening in honor of the new girls, the first Friday of school.

Instead of having a formal receiving line, as had been planned, they asked each one to get up, move around, and shake hands with each other. Many peals of laughter filled our new auditorium when "Miss So and so" met "Miss So and so," whom she had probably known for years or to whom she had sleepily said that morning, "Oh, there goes that old rising bell." A talk was made by Miss Eugenia Stinson, president of the student body, explaining the object of the organizations. She called on others for brief remarks. They were most interesting and helpful and we "old teachers," who had seen many of these dear young girls come up through the grades, were swelling with pride over the fine spirit, so well expressed in their works and in their lives. We are indeed proud of the way the student body is upholding the spirit of the honor system.

Estelle McIver.

EDITORIAL.

(Continued from page 2)

The following letter to the Moderator was read and admitted to record in the minutes:

Mr. Moderator:

We, the editors of the Church papers, wish, through you, to express to the Stated Clerk, Rev. Dr. J. D. Leslie, and all of his assistants, our sincere thanks for the great help they have so cheerfully and willingly given us during the meeting of this Assembly. They have relieved us of much of the work that we have had to do sometimes in the past, and of much anxiety about getting all the papers needed for our reports. These papers have been furnished us accurately prepared and promptly delivered.

This help has lightened our labors, enabled us to do our work better and added much pleasure to our attendance upon the meeting of the Assembly, and we appreciate it very highly.

(Signed)

Wm. S. Campbell, Editor Presbyterian of the South.

J. R. Bridges, Editor, Presbyterian Standard.

David M. Sweets, Editor, The Christian Observer.

This concludes our story of the official acts of our Assembly.

In our next issue we propose, as is our custom, to add some notes on the Assembly, in which we hope to touch upon sundry matters that would be out of place in a regular report, and yet they give a flavor to the story.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S HANDBOOK, KINGS MOUNTAIN PRESBYTERY

This handbook with suggested program for "Presbytery Day" in June has been received. It is issued by the Committee of Sunday School and Young People's Work of Kings Mountain Presbytery. In this book will be found much useful information for young people. It tells what a Presbytery is, its powers and duties, and it also tells what Presbyterians believe. The remainder of the book is devoted to the Young People's Work, which seems to be systematically carried on. Copies will be sent free upon application to Rev. Roswell C. Long, Gastonia, N. C.

News of the Week

Governor Smith, of New York, signed the legislative bill wiping the Mullen-Gage state prohibition enforcement act off the statute books.

Strict application of the recent supreme court decision barring liquor from territorial waters of the United States has been practically decided upon by treasury officials, who hold out no hope of meeting the views of the foreign powers through regulatory provisions.

A detailed survey of the cotton crop reports received for May show that the month just closed has been quite as unfavorable to cotton growth as was April.

It falls under the 10 year average of 76.0 per cent, and excepting the poor yields of 1920-21 is lower than any year since 1907.

Governor Morrison has appointed Heriot Clarkson, of Charlotte, to the Supreme Court Bench. This is one executive act that apparently has the approval of all shades and tinges of Tar Heel politics as represented in the capital.

Representative Claude Kitchen, formerly minority leader in the lower house of Congress, died at 6:14 o'clock May 31st, at Wilson, N. C.

Governor McLeod, of South Carolina extended clemency to eight prisoners, full pardons to two of them and suspended sentences for six. In granting these terminations of sentences the Governor disposed of practically all remaining cases in which clemency had been recommended by the present and former boards of pardon.

The body of Joseph W. Folk, former governor of Missouri, who died in New York, at the home of his sister, Mrs. James A. Webb, after an illness of a year, was sent to his birthplace in Brownsville, Tenn., for burial.

Robert R. Reynolds, candidate for the democratic nomination for lieutenant governor of North Carolina, in a state where nomination is equivalent to election, announces that on July 9th he will try a trip around the world in an automobile. The start will be made from Asheville with Washington, D. C., the first objective after visiting the principal cities in the state.

Dr. J. F. Spruill, of Sanatorium, has been chosen as superintendent of the Guilford County tuberculosis hospital, and will assume his duties on September 1st.

He is widely experienced in the war against tuberculosis.

The court of appeals has affirmed the conviction of the American Cotton Exchange of New York, of a felony in that the exchange maintained a bucket shop.

Shortage of food in the bandits' stronghold at Paotzuku before the kidnapping of a number of foreigners from the Shanghai-Peking express May 6th, caused the brigands to throw 80 Chinese prisoners to death from one of the mountain cliffs, according to information received from Father William Lenfers, German priest who has made several trips to the outlaw headquarters.

Paresis, long found incurable, has at last yielded to treatment, according to a report of more than 50 cases mentioned in the current issue of The Journal of the American Medical Association.

Tryparsamide, a new drug, which is injected into the blood and is carried to the spinal fluid which contains the diseased organism which affects the brain, is the source of the great benefits found through the research and experimental work of Dr. A. S. Lovenhart.

Memorial Day was observed in Charlotte, Major General Lejeune, as orator. A memorial to the Doughboy was unveiled.

CHILDREN

A CUTE LITTLE SISTER

Dear Standard:
I am a little girl 11 years old. I live on Joe's Creek Farm. This is a very pretty place to live. I go to school at Laurel Hill, N. C. I am in the fifth grade. My teacher's name is Miss Ethel Brothers. I like her fine. I have two brothers and two sisters. My baby sister can walk; she is real cute; her name is Ruth Wilson Yates. I go to church at Laurel Hill to the Church in the Pines. Rev. Charles R. Bailey is my pastor. I like him fine. I will close, hoping to see this in print.

Your unknown friend,
Bertha Yates.

Ghio, N. C.

COUGHING OUT HER WAY

Dear Standard:
I enjoy reading the letters in the Standard so much. I have written you twice before and you were so nice to publish them. I go to Sunday School at Steele Creek every Sunday. Our pastor is Rev. J. M. Walker. Our superintendent is Mr. F. B. Spratt. I will miss Sunday School for a while. We have whooping cough. My school teachers are Miss Clara Hall and Miss Bertha Berryhill. Miss Hall has been with us three years. I had not missed a day at school until I took whooping cough. I was trying to go a whole school without missing a day. I have three brothers younger than myself. We have a time when we all get to coughing. We had a sad death near us yesterday, Mrs. Will Berryhill; she left seven children, six girls and one boy. The oldest one is 10 years old. They are my playmates. I hope you will publish my letter.

Louise Wilson.

Charlotte, N. C., Route 5.

RIDES IN THE TRUCKS

Dear Standard:
I am a little boy eight years old, and go to school at Big Spring; am in the second grade. My teacher's name is Miss Mary Boyles. We have a lot of fun riding in the truck. We have pet squirrels in our yard. This is my first letter, and I want to see it in print.

Murray Bigham.

Charlotte, N. C., R. F. D.

IN FOURTH GRADE

Dear Standard:
This is my first letter to you. I am a little girl 11 years old. I am in the fourth grade at school. My teacher's name is Miss McPherson. I like her fine. Our school is going to close in three weeks. I will close for fear of the waste basket.

Your unknown friend,
Eugenia Long.

Matthews, N. C., R. 28.

WONT REACH WASTE BASKET

Dear Standard:
I am a little girl seven years old. I have a bag swing; it is made with a long rope and a pillow. I want my grandfather, Mr. R. A. Brand, from Wilmington, N. C., to see this letter. I hope my letter will not reach the waste basket.

A friend,
Madge Taliaferro.

Atlanta, Ga.

RAGS IS AN AIRDALE

Dear Standard:
I am a little girl four-and-a-half years old. I am telling my mother what to say. I have a dog named Rags, a year old, I believe. I go to Sunday School, but there is so much measles around I can't go now. My teachers are named Mrs. Minnie Nicks and Mrs. Caldwell. My dog is an airdale. I have two grandmothers, one lives here and one lives in Winston. I was born in Winston. I am the mascot of the senior class at the school. My nurse is named Olla Graves. We are through, aren't we, mother? My name is Jean Gray Scott.

Graham, N. C.

THE STRATFORDS' BALL

"This world is such a busy round
For children one and all,
No wonder, then, that we have thought
We'd like to give a ball.
So we invite you now to come
Next Saturday at two,
And bring a ball of any kind,
Then find out what to do."

Robert Andrews read the verse aloud from a card he had received by mail, and his father looked up from the morning paper he was reading at the other end of the breakfast table, and said:

"What's all that?"

"It's an invitation from the Stratfords," said Jean, "and I have one just like it, too. May we go?"

"What! Go to a ball? You two children? Well!"

"It is all right," chimed in mother. "It is perfectly all right for them to go. I have seen Mrs. Stratford, so I happen to know what it is all about; and it is not the sort of ball you have in mind, at all, but just the thing you would be glad to have them attend. Besides, you and I are to be allowed to steal in to see the ball in progress, and to stay for the supper, which is part of the ball. So don't you dare say no!"

"Oh, well, if you know all about it, that is different," said father, "and I'll accept for myself right away, for I'd like to see with my own eyes if it is as proper for children as you say it is."

"Well, if you go," said mother, "remember you will not be admitted unless you carry a ball."

"What kind of ball?" he asked.

"It does not matter," she replied, "and you must decide for yourself. You can go to any store you like, and pick out whatever sort you wish, but you won't be allowed to enter the Stratford's house unless you have some kind of ball with you."

The whole family had such fun deciding what balls to take! They went to all the shops they could think of, and looked at everything that was a ball. Then they made the whole thing more fun by keeping secret what ball each one chose. It must not be too expensive, Mrs. Stratford said, but it could be a ball from a store, or a home-made ball, or anything that could be called a ball.

On Saturday, the children went at 2:00 o'clock. At the door sat a maid with a large hamper, into which each child placed carefully his or her ball, for some of the balls were breakable, and some would crush. Then when everyone had arrived, the fun began. In the large library, several great tables had been placed in the middle of the room, and the hamper was brought in. Mr. and Mrs. Stratford had the children all seated about the room where they could see what went on, and all the balls from the hamper were placed upon the table, and there were shouts of delight and cheers when the wrappings were taken off, and the balls of all sorts were shown. There were rubber balls, baseballs, footballs, worsted balls, pin-balls, a golf-ball, two tennis balls, a card of round button-balls, a perfectly round nut, several oranges, some apples, a huge puff-ball carefully wrapped in wax paper.

This was brought by a child whose father found it in his meadow the day before. There were a croquet-ball, some ping-pong balls, marbles, a huge ball of carpet-rags one little girl had begged from her grandmother's work-basket; a darning-ball, candy balls, and even a ball of soap. Mr. Stratford said he had never laughed so much in all his life, and he laughed so much he almost bawled besides!

The fun was all repeated when the grown-ups came, for they had to see all the children's offerings, and theirs had to be seen by the children, too. One man said he was sorry there did not happen to be any snow, for he would have liked to bring a snowball.

The grown-ups had not happened to think of anything that the children had not thought of, too, but Mr. Andrews made every one cheer with loud hurrahs, for he had brought the largest toy balloon he could find, and, as he had been taken into the secret, he had an envelope attached to it, and in the envelope was a fine check, for the party was for the benefit of the new Children's Home, and all the balls were to go to the children to play with, while the grown-ups made the balls keep rolling by adding contributions of money to their ball, as Mr. Andrews had in the case of his gift of the check.

Did the laughs and fun stop there? Indeed they did not! For then came supper, and, so far as possible, every thing was ball-shaped. There were round buns, meat pressed into ball shape, potato balls, cottage-cheese balls, doughnut balls, and, last and best, ice cream balls.

Afterward, the whole party, young and old, went into the large music-room, and played round games—even ring-around-a-rosy—and they had such fun that all the children decided a party was vastly more worth-while when the fathers and mothers played, too.—Blanche E. Wade, in Christian Standard.

PEGGY PARKER'S MEMORIAL DAY SURPRISE

On the morning of Memorial Day all the boys and girls who attended school in the Little White Schoolhouse marched to the little cemetery at the back of the Old Gray Church and decorated the soldier graves.

They had brought flags, and wreaths of evergreen, and bouquets of spring flowers from their gardens.

It was a beautiful morning. As they marched, singing, past old Aunt Lida Fogg's dingy little house, the old woman was sitting on her steps in the sunshine. Everybody said Aunt Lida was queer. And most people thought she had a very bad temper. Some even said she was a witch—think of it!—and many of the children were more than half afraid of her, with her sharp eyes and sharp voice.

But Peggy Parker called out a happy "Good morning!" as they passed.

"Good morning, Peggy Parker!" she answered, in her high-pitched, creaky tones. "You'll be surprised when you get to where you're going!"

"What does she mean, I wonder!" said Peggy. And they all wondered. But in a few minutes they had forgotten all about it. They marched on, still singing. But when they reached the church, and began to place the flags and flowers, they were very still.

Then, suddenly, all the children turned to look at Peggy. For she had exclaimed, "Oh, oh, oh!" in a surprised, happy voice.

At the far side of the cemetery was the grave of her brother Stanley, who had been an aviator in France. Peggy stood beside it, her eyes shining, shining with happiness—and tears.

"Look!" she said.

All over the green turf, as thickly as there was room for them to blossom, there were crocuses! Yellow, and blue, and white, so shining and satin-smooth, and glad-looking! And last year there had not been one where they now made a radiant loveliness.

"Oh, I know, now!" exclaimed Dick Harper. "That's what old Aunt Lida meant, when she said you'd be surprised. I remember last fall, when I was over here helping my brother John fix the fence, she went in and stayed a long time. She had a paper bag full of something. It must have been the crocus bulbs. And she set them there!"

"But why?" puzzled Peggy.

"I remember, if you don't!" exclaimed Kitty Hollis. "Don't you know, when we—a lot of us girls—found her old black cat in a trap, in the woods, and you took it to her, trap and all, because we couldn't get it out? And you carried it to her alone, because the rest of us didn't dare go near her house? And you went afterward to ask her how it was getting along? And you went and took it some catnip?"

"Oh," said Peggy, "of course, I forgot a little thing like that! But aren't the flowers beautiful? And Stanley loved crocuses!"—Minnie L. Upton, in Banner.

SYMPATHETIC

Whenever I start out to walk, our dog he seems to know,

And runs along ahead of me to show he's coming, too;

And when there is a reason why he really mustn't go,

The hollering "Go home" to him is awful hard to do.

He wags his tail and jumps around, and seems as if he said:

"I guess you didn't mean it; you were only jokin' then!"

But when he sees I'm serious he kinder droops his head,

Or looks up at me sorrowful, an' looks away again.

And then at last he minds me if I keep an angry tone.

It's awful hard to do it, but I try with all my might:

And sometimes when I look around I see him all alone

A-watchin' me and watchin' me until I'm out of sight.

You see I know just how it is, 'cause some days when I find

My brother's got to hurry off with bigger boys to play,

And when he says I mustn't go and tag along behind,

He leaves me sittin' somewhere and a-feelin' just that way!

—From "Rhymes of Little Boys," by Burgess Johnson.

THE BOY WHO FORGETS

I love him—the boy who forgets!
Does it seem such a queer thing to say?

Can't help it; he's one of my pets;
Delighted at work or at play.

I'd trust him with all that I own,
And know neither worries nor frets;

But the secret of this lies alone
In the things that that laddie forgets.

He always forgets to pay back
The boy who has done him an ill;

Forgets that a grudge he owes Jack,
And smiles at him pleasantly still.

He always forgets 'tis his turn
To choose what the others shall play;

Forgets about others to learn
The gossip things that "they say."

He forgets to look sulky and cross
When things are not going his way;

Forgets some one's gain is his loss;
Forgets in his worktime his play.

This is why I must take his part,
Why I say he is one of my pets;

I repeat it with all of my heart:
I love him for what he forgets.

—St. Nicholas.

Nine little sausages
Sizzling on a plate;

In came the boarders,
And then they were ate.

—Boston Transcript.

CHURCH NEWS

(Continued from page 9)

Mobile, Government Street Church—May 27th was a notable day in the work of this church. At the 11 o'clock hour the Children's Day exercises were held. The attendance was large and the program was excellent. The offering for Foreign Missions amounted to almost $1,400.

In the evening Dr. Ogden preached in the Lyric Theatre to a splendid congregation. These theatre services have drawn great crowds from all classes and have become one of the outstanding features of the city's religious life.

GEORGIA

Decatur—Work is progressing satisfactorily on our new Sunday School building and the contract calls for completion in October. This building and the surrounding grounds will give us one of the most complete working plants in this section of the Assembly, and we are looking forward very hopefully to a year of continued and larger growth. Mr. S. W. Dendy, who is known to Christian Endeavor throughout the Southeastern States, is in charge of our Young People's Work for the summer, and has already made a wonderful impression. Our Daily Vacation Bible School, with Mrs. S. H. Askew as principal, will open again on July 2d, and indications are that our enrollment will be limited only by our equipment for effective work.

Oakhurst—This church is rejoicing in the coming of Rev. Marshall S. Woodson, a recent graduate of Columbia Seminary, to their pastorate. Mr. Woodson will be ordained and installed at an adjourned meeting of Atlanta Presbytery to be held in the Oakhurst Church, Sunday afternoon, June 10th, at 3 o'clock.

TENNESSEE

Memphis, Westminster—Rev. J. J. Hill, D.D., superintendent and treasurer of Presbytery, presented the cause at Westminster May 27th, and had a cordial response.

The Mexican Fiesta was well represented by circle 7, of the Auxiliary, May 28th, and a good offering was made for the school for Mexican girls.

The brotherhood, recently organized, held its first real conference June 1. Mr. P. T. Shanks, of Selma, Ala., is expected to speak to the men June 3d. Our minister preached a week in Dyersburg, Tenn., May 21-28, and baptized five men.

VIRGINIA

Charlottesville—The baccalaureate sermon of Oglethorpe University was preached by Dr. G. L. Petrie, of Charlottesville, May 27th at Atlanta, Ga. The service was held in Wesley Memorial Church, one of the largest auditoriums in the city. Dr. Petrie is an alumnus of Oglethorpe University of the class of 1850, of which only three members are now living. At the close of the service the degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred on Dr. Petrie.

The Massanetta Springs Summer Bible Conference Encampment, Harrisonburg, Va., opens July 16th and closes August 26th.

About $12,000 has been expended on improvements. The facilities for entertaining delegates have been greatly enlarged, cottages renovated and put in splendid condition, capacity of dining room increased, tents purchased and grounds put in order.

In view of the tremendous expense to which the committee has been put, the churches of the Synod of Virginia are most earnestly urged to send their contributions for the year 1923-24 to Mr. R. C. Dingleline, treasurer, Harrisonburg, Va.

The Synod of Virginia meets at Massanetta Springs on August 28th.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Central Church of Washington—Yesterday, May 27th, this church commemorated its 55th anniversary. It was organized May 31, 1868, by Rev. A. W. Pitzer, who has been our pastor emeritus since April 1906. He has thus been pastor of this church for 55 years. The anniversary was appropriately observed in the Sunday School under the guidance of the superintendent, elder Roy W. Prince. Emphasis was given to a quotation from a sermon delivered by Dr. Pitzer on his 34th anniversary in which he stated what this church stands for: "We have stood for the spirituality of the church and against its secularization. We have not substituted sociology for salvation, reformation for regeneration, or civic centers for the cross of Christ." At the morning service the pastor, Rev. Dr. James H. Taylor, read to the large congregation Dr. Pitzer's letter to his people, as follows: Philippians 1:1-11, 21-24, 28, 29; 4:10-14, 19, 20, 23. Several brief letters were read from members who could not be present, one of them from ex-President Woodrow Wilson. At night the pastor read to the congregation the reply to Dr. Pitzer's letter, Isa. 26:3, "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on thee, because he trusteth in thee." This church is very rich in what no money could buy—the affection and prayers of two devoted pastors, and the abounding labors of its junior pastor. A. H.

PERSONAL

The Secretaries of Stewardship of all denominations met in Baltimore, Md., April 24-26.

Our Dr. M. E. Melvin represented our Church, and was given special honor by being made president of the Stewardship Council.

Rev. W. Bruce Doyle, who has been recuperating at Hot Springs, N. C., has been greatly improved and expects to begin his work June 1st. His address is changed from Hot Springs, N. C., to Opelika, Ala.

James Ross McCain, formerly vice-president under Dr. Gaines, has been made president of Agnes Scott College. As a co-worker with Dr. Gaines, Mr. McCain is eminently fitted to carry out Dr. Gaines' plans, as well as make plans of his own. This excellent school is to be congratulated upon having such a successor ready to step in.

Rev. M. B. Lambdin, who has been touring the lands beyond the seas, has returned, and may now be addressed at 3534 Park Place, N. W., Washington, D. C. He visited Tutankhamen's tomb, and is full of first-hand information of this remarkable discovery. He is open to calls for Evangelistic, Inspirational and Lecture work.

SCARLET AND PURPLE

The Christian's colors: scarlet for sacrifice, typified by "the Lamb;" purple for royalty—"in the midst of the throne." While His shed blood was encrimsoning the cross, above His "sacred head now wounded" was reared the trilingual inscription of kingship. This union of sacrifice and royalty reaches into eternity. What God hath joined together in revelation think not to put apart in experience. You may not retain the scarlet of the atonement to cover your sins if you trample under disobedient feet the purple of His kingship. If His death becomes your pardon, it must result in His life becoming your pattern. You cannot dispense with either the scarlet or the purple.—Evangelical Messenger.

FAITH, HOPE, LOVE

Faith says there are good things prepared; hope says they are prepared for me; love says I will endeavor to walk worthy of them, not only for the glory of God, but for the good of others. Faith and hope are both of the taking kind, but love gives. Therefore, love is more noble, for it is better to give than to receive. Then, too, love is the greatest, for it includes the others. One may have faith and hope without love, but one can not have love without faith and hope.—Alexander Lewis.

THE SILVER LINING

The Bible makes it plain that God plans for the happiness of every one. A Christian who was giving his life in service for his fellows was asked this question: "What does life mean to you?" His reply was: "A place where a Father above deals differently with His different children, but with all in love; a place where true joys do not hang on material pegs, and where all the time the fact that God our Father is on His throne lines every cloud with silver light.

Our thoughts may be prayers. There are moments when, whatever the attitude of the body may be, the soul is on its knees.

Marriages and Deaths

MARRIED

Covington-Ingle — At the Nurses' Home, Sanatorium, N. C., June 2, 1923, by Rev. W. C. Brown, Mr. Clay Wall Covington, of Timberland, N. C., and Miss Grady Ingle, of Sanatorium, N. C.

DEATHS

McCubbins—Mr. J. Absalom McCubbins, a faithful member of the Thyatira Presbyterian Church, entered into rest May 14, 1923. He will be greatly missed, not only by the members of his family, but by the whole community.

He was a brother-in-law to Drs. W. L. and T. W. Lingle.

IN APPRECIATION

Of the Rev. J. Andrew Smith, student, preacher and teacher, a man of God who by his cheerfulness under affliction, his ready sympathy and his willingness to serve had endeared himself to all with whom he was thrown in contact.

His profound knowledge of the Word of God, gained throughout a life of the study of His Word, lead him into a wide field of usefulness both as a preacher and an evangelist. In later years, owing to his afflictions, this knowledge of the Word was intensified and, while his activities were confined to a narrow field of service, yet, the members of the Men's Bible Class of the First Presbyterian Church, Statesville, N. C., whose beloved leader he was for months before his death, wish to express their gratefulness for the service he rendered them and feel that each of them have been lead closer to the Master by having had the Bible taught them in such a masterful way by Mr. Smith. They feel that their faith has been strengthened by observing Mr. Smith's cheerfulness under affliction and his readiness to help.

Therefore, be it resolved:

That this class desires to express its sincere appreciation of his character, its gratefulness for having had the privilege of this close association with him and that we express to his family our deepest sympathy in their affliction and ours.

That we spread these resolutions on our minutes and that a copy be sent the family.

J. A. Steele,
J. T. Montgomery,
W. R. Mills,
J. A. Brady,
W. W. Turner, Committee.

HUGHES COTTAGE

Montreat, N. C.

Open June 15th. Modern Conveniences

Rooms and excellent table board. Special reduced rates during Young People's and Sunday School Conferences. Address

Hughes Cottage, Box 91
Montreat, N. C.

FREE!

No. 2 Film Pack Hawk-Eye

Eastman-made

Picture Size
2 1-4 x 3 1-4 inches

We will give a No. 2 Film Pack Hawk-Eye camera FREE to everyone who buys at our store three or more 2 1-4x3 1-4 Kodak Film Packs for this camera at 50 cents each. There is absolutely no other condition attached to this offer which will continue only as long as our supply lasts.

Because we want to advertise our Kodak Finishing Department, we have decided to make this offer.

If by mail add 15 cents to cover packing and postage.

W. I. Van Ness & Company

23 NORTH TRYON ST.

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

EXPERT KODAK FINISHING

WHY DRUGS FAIL

Many chronic diseases fail to respond to drug treatment, even in the hands of the best physicians, whereas acute diseases usually respond readily. When a disease has become chronic, drugs often seem to do as much harm as they do good, for the system rebels against them. It is just this class of cases which derive the greatest benefit from drinking Shivar, America's best stomach, liver and kidney Water. If you suffer with chronic dyspepsia, indigestion, sick headache, rheumatism, kidney or liver disease, uric acid poisoning or other curable conditions due to impure blood do not hesitate to accept the Springs liberal offer as printed below. Their records show that only two in a hundred, on the average, have reported "no benefit." This is a wonderful record from a truly wonderful Spring. Sign the following letter:

Shivar Springs,
Box 3H, Shelton, S. C.
Gentlemen:
I accept your offer and enclose herewith three dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if I report no benefit you agree to refund the price of the water in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return within a month.

Name _____
Address _____
Shipping Point _____
(Please write distinctly.)

MARY BALDWIN COLLEGE AND MARY BALDWIN SEMINARY
Established in 1842
For Young Ladies Staunton, Va.
Term begins Septembr 6th. In Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. Unsurpassed climate, modern equipment. Students from 33 States.
Courses: Collegiate, 4 years, A.B. Degree; Preparatory, 4 years. Music, Art, Expression, Domestic Science. Athletics—Gymnasium and Field. Catalogue.

THE NORTH CAROLINA COLLEGE FOR WOMEN
An A-1 grade college maintained by the State of North Carolina for the education of its young women.
Liberal courses leading to the usual degrees in Arts, Science and Music.
Equipment modern, including furnished dormitories, library, laboratories, literary society halls, athletic grounds, etc.
Fall term begins in September, Spring term in February, Summer term in June.
For catalog and other information, address:
JULIUS I. FOUST, President
Greensboro, N. C.

The McCallie School
A non-sectarian school founded for Christian education, never more needed than today. Here your boy will have the right sort of associates and will be under the influence of men chosen for their Christian character as well as for their teaching ability. Bible classes most popular in the school.
Thorough preparation for college and for United States Military and Naval Academies. Small classes, personal attention for each boy.
Military training of the best sort. Daily drill under graduates of Army training camps familiarizes boys with essentials of military discipline.
All athletics. One of the best athletic fields in the South. Gymnasium and new concrete swimming pool.
Headmasters:
S. J. McCallie, M.A., and J. P. McCallie, M.A., Ph.D.
For catalogue, address
The McCallie School
Mission Ridge Chattanooga, Tenn.

Story and Incident

AUNT JANE ON CHURCHES

(From "Aunt Jane of Kentucky," by Eliza Calvert Hall.)

"Don't you think a wife ought to join her husband's church, Aunt Jane?" I asked with idle irrelevance to her remark.
"Sometimes she ought and sometimes she oughtn't," replied Aunt Jane oracularly. "There ain't any rule about it. Everybody's got to be their own judge about such matters. If I'd 'a' been in Marthy's place, I wouldn't 'a' jined Amos' church, and if I'd been in Amos' place I wouldn't 'a' jined Marthy's church. So there it is."

"But didn't you join Uncle Abram's church?" I asked, in a laudable endeavor to get at the root of the matter.

"Yes, I did," said Aunt Jane stoutly; "but that's a mighty different thing. Of course, I went with Abram, and if I had it to do over again, I'd do it. You see the way of it was this: my folks was Campbellites, or Christians they'd ruther be called. It's curious how they don't like to be called Campbellites. Methodists don't mind bein' called Wesleyans, and Presbyterians don't git mad if you call 'em Calvinists, and I reckon Alexander Campbell was jest as good a man as Wesley and 'a sight better'n Calvin, but you can't make a Campbellite madder than to call him a Campbellite. However, as I was sayin', Alexander Campbell himself baptized my father and mother out here in Drake's Creek, and I was brought up to think that my church was the Christian church, sure enough. But when me and Abram married, neither one of us was thinkin' much about churches. I used to tell Marthy that if a man'd come talkin' church to me, when he ought to be courtin' me, I'd 'a' told him to go on and marry a hymn-book or a catechism. I believe in religion jest as much as anybody, but a man that can't forgit his religion while he's courtin' a woman ain't worth havin'. That's my opinion. But as I was sayin', me and Abram had the church question to settle after we was married, and I don't believe either one of us thought about it till Sunday mornin' come. I ricollect it jest like it was yesterday. We was married in June, and you know how things always look about then. I've thought many a day, when I've been out in the gyarden workin' with my vegetables and getherin' my honeysuckles and roses, that if folks could jest live on and never git old and it'd stay June forever that this world'd be heaven enough for anybody. And that's the way it was that Sunday mornin'. I ricollect I had on my 'second-day' dress, the prettiest sort of a changeable silk, kind o' dove color and pink, and I had a leghorn bonnet on with pink roses inside the brim, and black lace mits on my hands. I stood up before the glass jest before I went out to the gate where Abram was, waitin' for me, and I looked as pretty as a pink, if I do say it. 'Self-praise goes but a little ways,' my mother used to tell me, when I was a gyirl; but I reckon there ain't any harm in an old woman like me tellin' how she looked when she was a bride more'n sixty years ago."

And a faint color came into the wrinkled cheeks, while her clear, high laugh rang out. The outward symbols of youth and beauty were gone, but their unquenchable spirit lay warm under the ashes of nearly eight decades.
"Well, I went out, and Abram helped me into the buggy and, instead o' goin' straight on to Goshen church, he turned around and drove out to my church. When we walked in I could see folks nudgin' each other and laughin', and when meetin' broke and we was fixin' to go home, Aunt Maria Taylor grabbed hold o' me and pulled me off to one side and

SOONER OR LATER

Have you ever thought of how much pleasure and happiness you are depriving yourself and family by neglecting to provide that which affords the most elevating and educative pleasures, and which relieves life of its every-day monotony?

Sooner or later you must have a Piano or a Player-Piano in your home. You cannot afford to be without one or the other for this is pre-eminently an age of musical accomplishments and the home which does not afford some opportunity for its young people to acquire a knowledge of music have fallen short of its duty toward them.

The Standard Piano Club makes it possible for you to have the very best of musical instruments at a tremendous saving in price and on terms that will suit your circumstances. Satisfaction is guaranteed to every Club member. Hundreds have placed their orders through the Club and are enthusiastic in their praise of it. You are cordially invited to join. Write today for your copy of the catalog and full information. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Standard Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

World's Best Roofing at Factory Prices

"Reo" Cluster Metal Shingles, V-Crimp, Corrugated, Standing Seam, Painted or Galvanized Roofings, Sidings, Wallboard, Paints, etc., direct to you at Rock-Bottom Factory Prices. Positively greatest offer ever made.

Edwards "Reo" Metal Shingles
cost less; outlast three ordinary roofs. No painting or repairs. Guaranteed rot, fire, rust, lightning proof. Send for samples and free roofing book.

Edwards Ready Made Buildings
Send for the Edwards Catalog of "Superior" Ready-Made Buildings, showing a complete line of houses, bungalows, barns, wood garages, poultry houses, etc., all at money-saving factory prices. These buildings are not merely "ready-cut" but actually ready built, and represent a wonderful money-saving.

READY MADE

Let Edwards Save You Money

Be Sure to State Which Books You Want
—Roofing and Free Samples; Ready-Made Buildings; or Metal Garages. Postal or letter brings one more of them FREE.

Free Roofing Book
Get our wonderfully low prices and free samples. We sell direct to you and save you all in-between roofing profits. Ask for Book No. 2373

LOW PRICED GARAGES
Lowest prices on Ready-Made Fire-Proof Steel Garages. Set up any place. Send postal for Garage Book showing styles.

THE EDWARDS MFG. CO.,
2323-2373 Pike St. Cincinnati, O.

FREE Samples & Roofing Book

BINGHAM MILITARY SCHOOL
ASHEVILLE, N. C.—"The Land of the Sky"

Has stood the tests of 130 years. Buildings one-story brick—for safety, sanitation and service. Each pupil carefully studied. Small classes allow individual attention. Ideal school life, of the simpler type, directed by men of ability and experience. R. O. T. C. Unit under U. S. Army officer. All forms of athletics. COL. R. BINGHAM, Supt. Emeritus. COL. S. R. McKEE, Supt.

BLUE RIDGE SCHOOL FOR BOYS
HENDERSONVILLE, N. C.

A select Home School for boys from 9 to 20 years old. Ideally located in healthful, invigorating climate conducive to study. A teacher for every 7 or 8 boys. Greatest stress laid upon teaching correct methods of study. On Accredited List. All branches of athletics. Total charge for session, September 18th to June 4th, $650. Summer term July and August. For Catalog, address,

FASSIFERN
A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

is situated on a plateau over two thousand feet above sea level and completely surrounded by the majestic Appalachian mountains, in the city of Hendersonville, N. C., far-famed for its year-round delightful and health-giving climate. Fassifern offers thorough preparatory courses both for entrance to colleges of highest rank and professional work. Teachers have A. B. and M. A. degrees from the following colleges and universities: Columbia University; Smith, Wellesley and Goucher Colleges; Tulane University. Next session opens September 26, 1923.

MISS KATE C. SHIPP, Principal :: HENDERSONVILLE, N. C.

Largest and Most Modern Plant in the Carolinas

Charlotte Marble & Granite Works
R. E. SCOGGINS, Proprietor CHARLOTTE, N. C. W. 7th St. and Southern Railway
Oldest Largest Best Phone 281

Kill All Flies! THEY SPREAD DISEASE
Placed anywhere, DAISY FLY KILLER attracts and kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient and cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed.

DAISY FLY KILLER at your dealer or 5 by EXPRESS, prepaid, $1.25.
HAROLD SOMERS, 150 De Kalb Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

FISHBURNE MILITARY SCHOOL Waynesboro Virginia
44th year. In Blue Ridge Mountains. 1300 ft. altitude. Four hours from Washington. Prepares for universities and business life. Small classes and individual attention secured through faculty of one teacher for every ten cadets. New $250,000 fire-proof buildings. Swimming pool and all athletics. Rate $600. Annual Spring Encampment. For catalog write

Build on resolve, and not upon regret,
The structure of thy future. Do not grope
Among the shadows of old sins, but let Thine own soul's light shine on the path of hope
And dissipate the darkness. Waste no tears
Upon the blotted record of lost years,
But turn the leaf, and smile, oh, smile, to see
The fair white pages that remain to thee.

A GOOD INVESTMENT

Seventy-five dollars will pay the tuition of some worthy girl at Durant (Oklahoma) College next session, and help a Presbyterian institution maintain itself on the western "firing line." Can we count on you, your class, or your society? Write W. B. Morrison, President, Box 471, Durant, Okla.

EXPERT KODAK FINISHING

Developing and printing by experts. Most beautiful work guaranteed at all times. Satisfaction or no charge. Developing 6 exposure rolls 10 cents, 10 and 12 exposure rolls 15 cents, film packs 20 cents per pack. Printing 1 5-8 by 2 1-2, 3 cents; 2 1-4 by 3 1-4, 4 cents; 2 1-2 by 4 1-2, 5 cents; 3 1-4 by 5 1-2, 6 cents. Quick delivery. Send one film to test our service.

LIGONS DRUG STORE
Spartanburg, S. C.

THE WESTMINSTER TEACHERS' BUREAU SPECIALIZES

in securing Christian teachers, officers and helpers for schools, colleges and universities—private, public and denominational—and in helping trained, Christian teachers and helpers to larger fields of service. Write today. Henry H. Sweets, Manager, 410 Urban Building, Louisville, Ky.

ALL HEALING SPRINGS

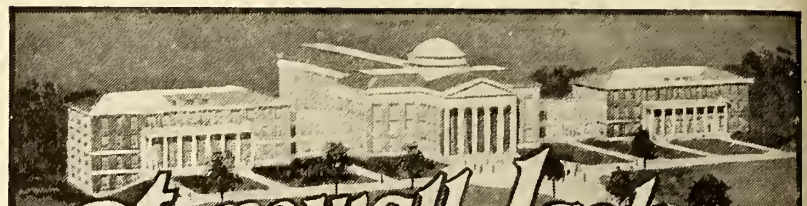

In the Brushy Mountains of North Carolina, 1400 ft. elevation. Rates $12.50 to $17.50 per week. The place of "good eats," six miles west of Taylorsville, N. C., on State highway No. 75 from Statesville, N. C. to Lenoir, N. C. Only 40 miles to Blowing Rock, N. C. The finest mineral water and the most ideal climate in the temperate zone. Two large comfortable buildings with or without bath. Rooms full of windows or sleeping porches if desired. Capacity 125. The place for a real vacation. Fried chicken, country ham, the spice of life from the Brushy Mountains, with beans, potatoes, and corn fresh from the farm, and milk, butter and real hen's eggs. In the mountains and at a mineral spring. Hotel open June 1st. Write for particulars.
O F. POOLE, Proprietor
Taylorsville, N. C.

says she, 'That's right, Jane, you're be-gimmin' in time. Jest break a man in at the start, and you won't have no trouble afterwards.' And I jest laughed in her face and went on to where Abram was waitin' for me. I was too happy to git mad that day. Well, the next Sunday, when we got into the buggy and Abram started to turn round, I took hold o' the reins and says I, 'It's my time to drive, Abram; you had your way last Sunday, and now I'm goin' to have mine.' And I snapped the whip over old Nell's back and drove right on to Goshen, and Abram jest set back and laughed fit to kill.

"We went on that way for two or three months, folks sayin' that Abram and Jane Parish couldn't go to the same church two Sundays straight along to save their lives, and everybody wonderin' which of us'd have their way in the long run. And me and Abram jest laughed in our sleeves and paid no attention to 'em; for there never was but one way for us, anyhow, and that wasn't Abram's way nor my way; it was jest our way. There's lots of married folks, honey, and one of 'em's here and one of 'em's gone over yonder, and there's a long, deep grave between 'em; but they're a heap nearer to each other than two livin' people that stay in the same house, and eat at the same table, and sleep in the same bed, and all the time there's two great thick church walls between 'em and growin' thicker and higher every day. Sam Amos used to say that if religion made folks act like Marthy and Amos did, he believed he'd ruther have less religion or none at all. But, honey, when you see married folks quarrelin' over their churches, it ain't too much religion that's the cause o' the trouble, it's too little love. Jest ricollect that; if folks love each other right, religion ain't goin' to come between 'em.

"Well, as soon as cold weather set in they started up a big revival at Goshen church. After the meetin' had been goin' on for three or four weeks, Parson Page give out one Sunday that the session would meet on the follerin' Thursday to examine all that had experienced a change o' heart and wanted to unite with the church. I never said a word to Abram, but Thursday evenin' while he was out on the farm mendin' some fences that the cattle had broke down, I harnessed old Nell to the buggy and drove out to Goshen. All the converts was there, and the session was questionin' and examinin' when I got in. When it came my turn, Parson Page begun askin' me if I'd made my callin' and election sure, and I come right out, and says I, 'I don't know much about callin' and election, Brother Page; I reckon I'm a Christian,' says I, 'for I've been tryin' to do right by everybody ever since I was old enough to know the difference betwixt right and wrong; but, if the plain truth was told, I'm j'inin' this church jest because it's Abram's church, and I want to please him. And that's all the testimony I've got to give.' And Parson Page put his hand over his mouth to keep from laughin'—he was a young man then and hadn't been married long himself—and says he, 'That'll do, Sister Parrish; brethren, we'll pass on to the next candidate.' I left 'em examinin' Sam Crawford about his callin' and election, and I got home before Abram come to the house, and the next day when I walked up with the rest of 'em Abram was the only person in the church that was surprised. When they'd got through givin' us the right hand o' fellowship, and I went back to our pew, Abram took hold o' my hand and held on to it like he never would let go, and I knew I'd done the right thing and I never would regret it."

There was a light on the old woman's face that made me turn my eyes away. Here was a personal revelation that should have satisfied the most exacting, but by vulgar curiosity cried out for further light on the past.
"What would you have done," I asked,

Stonewall Jackson College
ABINGDON VIRGINIA

A JUNIOR COLLEGE FOR YOUNG WOMEN

LOCATION: In the fine old town of Abingdon, on a beautiful fifty-acre campus, commanding a magnificent view of the mountains.

BUILDINGS: Modern new dormitories, accommodating 175 students, every room with bath and plenty of sunshine. New $300,000 Dormitory just completed. Administration Building costing $150,000, in course of construction.

COURSES: Standard Literary, leading to A. B. diploma; preparatory for College entrance. Special courses in Music, Art, Expression, Home Economics and Business.

STANDARDS: A school emphasizing Christian Culture and Character. A home life amid beautiful surroundings is the ideal of Stonewall Jackson. Under control of the Presbyterian Church.

For Literature, address FRED W. ALEXANDER, President

Educate Your Boy Under Christian Influences

Safeguard his morals, start him in with high ideals and a sound foundation with a thorough course at the Presbyterian College of South Carolina
Renowned for its Christian teaching, beautiful campus, modern buildings, strong faculty, excellent athletic teams, field and coach. R. O. T. C., high standard of scholarship.
For catalogue and information, write—
Dr. D. M. DOUGLAS, President, Clinton, S. C.

THE LOUISVILLE PRESBYTERIAN THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
BRILLIANT FACULTY MODERN CURRICULUM

Situated in the heart of the institutional section of a great metropolis, with all the added advantages of these associated institutions
Write for particulars to JOHN M. VANDER MEULEN, President
109 East Broadway, Louisville, Ky.

STOP! LOOK! LISTEN!

There is danger ahead if you are not saving part of what you earn. The world is a hard place for those without money. There is no friend like "ready money" when sickness, or old age comes.
Be fair to yourself and family by taking Building and Loan shares. Shares cost twenty-five cents per week and usually mature in 333 weeks. Net you 6 1/4 per cent at maturity.

NEW SERIES OPENS MARCH FIRST
MECHANICS PERPETUAL BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION

J. H. Wearn, President. 207 N. Tryon St. CHARLOTTE, N. C. E. J. CAFFREY, Sec'y & Treas.

PEACE INSTITUTE

RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA
For Young Women Established 1857
College Courses. Preparatory Courses for Standard College Requirements. Diplomas in Piano, Voice, Art, Expression and Home Economics. Commercial-Secretarial Course. Teacher Training Course. Specialists in all departments.
LULA B. WYNNE HALL, HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
MARY OWEN GRAHAM, President

Flora Macdonald College

Red Springs, North Carolina
Where the Spirit of SERVICE and LOYALTY Abounds
3,000 Alumnae engaged in 60 Occupations
10 Graduates "On the Firing Line"
Courses leading to A.B., B.S., B.M. Degrees
Catalog on Request Address the Registrar

TEACHERS WANTED
Positions to offer in grades, High School subjects; Principals and Superintendents of High Schools; also in Colleges. Correspond with us at once.
SOUTH ATLANTIC TEACHERS' AGENCY
410 Wesley Memorial Bldg. Atlanta, Ga.

GOOD POSITIONS
Paying fine salaries can be had for ambitious young men and women who complete our commercial and stenographic courses.
Our aim this season is to enroll a very large number of such students who can be trained for high and responsible positions.
Won't you be one to enroll? A postal addressed to us will bring you our catalog. Write for it.
DRAUGHONS BUSINESS COLLEGE
Knoxville, Tenn.

TYPEWRITERS
New and Rebuilt
For Sale, Rent or Exchange
S. H. WILEY
Salisbury, N. C.

College of
WILLIAM AND MARY
For Men and Women
Supported by the State of Virginia for the benefit of all the people.

Regular DEGREE COURSE and SPECIAL COURSES in Teacher Training, Pre-Medicine, Pre-Engineering, Home Economics, Law, Business Administration, etc.

Healthful location; students under splendid moral influence; four churches, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A. Sunday Schools, etc.
For particulars address:

COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY
Williamsburg, Virginia
H. L. Bridges Registrar
J. A. C. Chandler President

FOR GIFTS OF Watches, Jewelry or Silverware
Write
JAMES ALLAN & CO.
THE JEWELERS
185 King St. Charleston, S. C.
67 years in business selling the best goods at the most reasonable prices
Memorandum packages sent upon receipt of satisfactory references
We prepay charges on all purchases

School Desks,
Opera Chairs,
Folding Chairs
Kindergarten Chairs,
Church Pews,
School Supplies,
Blackboards

Southern Desk Co., Hickory, N. C.

No matter where you live you can get six per cent on your money. Free from taxes, risk and worry. Amounts received from $50 to $5,000. Write for free literature.
SECURITY SAVINGS AND LOAN CO.
Assets $1,011,288.30
F. W. DIXON, President - Birmingham, Ala.

NORFOLK SOUTHERN RAILROAD COMPANY
Passenger Schedules
Effective January 28, 1923
Charlotte, N. C.
Daily Except Sunday as Shown
Lv. 7:30 A. M.
Raleigh and intermediate points. Connection for Belhaven, Norfolk, and intermediate points.
For tickets, Pullman reservations and information address or apply to
J. K. POWELL, D. T. A.
P. A. JENKINS, C. T. A.

"if Uncle Abram hadn't turned the horse that Sunday morning—if he had gone straight on to Goshen?"
Aunt Jane regarded me for a moment with a look of pitying allowance, such as one bestows on a child who doesn't know any better than to ask stupid questions.
"Shuh, child," she said with careless brevity, "Abram couldn't 'a' done such a thing as that.

I WAS JUST WONDERING
About Walking

GEORGE WESTON has JUST WALKED 435 MILES.

"OLD GEORGE" some FOLKS CALL him.

I DON'T.

IT ISN'T nice.

AND BESIDES he's ONLY EIGHTY-FIVE years OF AGE.

AND ANY young FELLOW WHO has WALKED 85,000 miles.

LIKE HE has.

AND THEN walks FROM BUFFALO to new YORK.

JUST FOR the FUN OF it.

NEVER WILL be old.

HE DOES it so AS TO get people to HIKING MORE.

HE BELIEVES they'd LIVE LONGER.

AND BETTER.

AND I guess he's RIGHT.

I WAS WONDERING IF FOLKS wouldn't WALK MORE.

IF THEY had to HAVE TICKETS at say A DOLLAR a mile.

THEN THEY'D think IT MUST be good EXERCISE.

LIKE GOLF.

BECAUSE IT'S expensive.

AND THEY'D have WALKING CLUBS with DUES AT one hundred DOLLARS.

AND THEY'D get up EARLY IN the MORNING.

ABOUT EIGHT or NINE O'CLOCK.

JUST TO be fashion-ABLE.

AND GET out on THE BOULEVARD.

WHERE THEY could EXERCISE IN style.

MAYBE THAT'S the TROUBLE.

WALKING IS so FREE FOLKS think

IT CAN'T be any GOOD.
—McAlpine, in C. E. World.

We are not here to play, to dream, to drift;
We have hard work to do, and loads to lift.
Shun not the struggle; face it. 'Tis God's gift.

ART GLASS
for Churches and Residences
Memorial Windows
Catalog and Special Designs free on request
F. J. COOLEGE & SONS
ATLANTA, Ga.

N. C. State College of Agriculture and Engineering
SUMMER SESSION JUNE 12th to JULY 25th
Courses for teachers holding standard State Certificates, and for graduates of Standard High Schools. Courses giving College Credit for graduates of Standard High Schools. Cotton Cladding courses. Catalogue upon application. Numbers limited to 1050. Apply for Reservation at once to
W. A. WITHERS, Director :: :: Raleigh, North Carolina

NORTH CAROLINA STATE COLLEGE
OF
AGRICULTURE AND ENGINEERING
STATE COLLEGE STATION RALEIGH, N. C.
Technical Education at State College prepares its graduates for personal success and for leadership in industrial progress. The college offers
FOUR YEAR COURSES IN:
Agriculture—including General Agriculture and Specialized Courses in Farm Crops, Agricultural Engineering, Animal Husbandry and Dairying, Biology, Horticulture, Poultry Science, Soils, Veterinary Medicine, Vocational Education.
Chemistry, Agricultural Chemistry, Textile Chemistry and Dyeing.
Civil Engineering, Architecture and Highway Engineering.
Electrical Engineering.
Mechanical Engineering.
Textile—Textile Engineering, Textile Manufacturing, Textile Chemistry and Dyeing.
Agricultural Economics, Business Administration, Rural Life.
General Science, Physics, Biology.
TWO YEAR COURSES IN:
Agriculture, Mechanic Arts, Textile Manufacturing.
One Year Course in Auto Mechanics.
Winter Course in Agriculture for Farmers.
Summer Session for Teachers, for College Entrance and for College Credit.
Excellent equipment in all departments.
Session 1923-1924 begins September 4.
Entrance requirements for Freshman Class, 15 units—English, 3; History, 2; Mathematics, 2½; Science, 1; Elective, 6½.
For catalog, illustrated circulars, and entrance blanks, write E. B. OWEN, Registrar.

Queens College, Charlotte, N. C.
A High Grade Institution for the Education of Young Women
Christian Ideals constantly held before the Students; Christian Characters in the chair of each Department; Five Teachers with M. A. Degree; Two Teachers with Ph.D. Degree; Christian Atmosphere permeating the Student Body.
Location, the very best: Myers Park, Charlotte. Equipment rapidly reaching standard requirements. Curriculum equal to that of any institution in the State. Expenses very moderate indeed, considering advantages offered and work done.
Our Motto: "Christian Women for Christian Homes." Send us your daughter, support us in our administration and instruction, and we will return a thoroughly developed and fully refined Christian woman.
For catalogue and other information, write
WILLIAM H. FRAZER, President
Box 300
Charlotte, N. C.

Aberdeen & Rockfish Railroad
BETWEEN ABERDEEN AND FAYETTEVILLE

EAST BOUND			DISTANCE FROM ABERDEEN	STATIONS	DISTANCE FROM FAYETTEVILLE	WEST BOUND
Pass.	Local Freight	Pass.				Pass.	Local Freight	Pass.
DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY				DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY
NO. 14	NO. 22	NO. 38				NO. 41	NO. 21	NO. 15
f 7:00 pm	f 7:30 am	s 9:00 am	0	Lv. Aberdeen Ar.	45	s 6:50 pm	f 3:50 pm	8:30 am
f 7:19 pm	s 8:15 am	f 9:15 am	5	Ashley Heights	49	f 6:35 pm	f 3:20 pm	8:12 am
s 7:28 pm	s 8:36 am	s 9:26 am	9	Sanitorium	36	f 6:26 pm	s 3:05 pm	8:02 am
f 7:34 pm	f 8:39 am	f 9:30 am	10	Montrose	35	f 6:22 pm	f 3:00 pm	7:58 am
f 7:46 pm	f 8:51 am	f 9:38 am	13	Timberland	32	f 6:13 pm	f 2:45 pm	7:48 am
8:00 pm	s 9:55 am	s 9:53 am	19	Rae ford	26	s 6:00 pm	s 2:25 pm	7:30 am
			24	Dundarrach	21	f 5:45 pm	s 1:25 pm
			26	Arabia	19	f 5:39 pm	f 1:15 pm
			30	Rockfish	15	s 5:25 pm	f 12:55 pm
			31	Hope Hills Jct.	14	f 5:22 pm	f 12:50 pm
			34	Fenix	11	f 5:13 pm	f 12:38 pm
			36	Clifton	9	s 5:08 pm	s 12:33 pm
			40	Skibo	5	f 5:00 pm	f 12:18 pm
			42	Owens	3	f 4:55 pm	f 12:11 pm
			45	Ar. Fayetteville Lv.	0	s 4:45 pm	12 noon

East and North bound trains have right of track over West and South bound trains of the same class.
All trains stop on flag at Lake field.

Mitchell College

(JUNIOR)

(Founded 1856 by Concord Presbytery)

Two years of standard, accredited college work—courses leading to Baccalaureate degrees—Excellent department of Music—Certificate courses in Home Economics and Secretarial.

MITCHELL ACADEMY

An accredited High School, with standard and flexible courses

Bible teaching emphasized throughout.

Teacher Training courses for secular and Sunday Schools.

Catalog on application.

W. F. Hollingsworth, Pres.

Statesville, N. C.

BOILS

Old Sores, Cuts and Burns have been healed since 1820 with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 724 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Skin Eruptions

Are Usually Due to Constipation

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe. Try it today.

Nujol

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF. A LUBRICANT—NOT A LAXATIVE

Sparkles

Mother—"No, Bobbie, absolutely no. For the third time I tell you that you can't have another chocolate."

Bobbie (in despair)—"Oh, gee, I don't see where Dad gets the idea that you're always changing your mind."—The American Legion Weekly.

"Your predecessor," said the travelling salesman's new employer, "has got his business all tangled up, and I expect you will have a difficult task to get order out of chaos."

"I don't know who Chaos is," replied the new man cheerfully, "but I bet I'll get an order out of him if I have to hang onto him for a week."—Boston Transcript.

This from the program of the College Club scholarship benefit: Harvard Man—"I've a friend I'd like you girls to meet." Bryn Mawr Girl—"What can he do?" Wellesley Girl—"How much has he?" Radcliffe Girl—"What does he read?" Vassar Girl—"Who are his family?" Holyoke Girl—"What church does he belong to?" Smith Girl—"Where is he?"—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

When Aiken met Payne, back in the old home town, he inquired: "How is Umson; and how is Amley?" "Umson is so prosperous he rides in his own machine—" Yeah—?" "And Amley is so well off, he walks for exercise."—Youngstown Telegram.

Old Lady—Did you ever do a single day's work in your life?

Old Hobo—Jest about, leddy.—The American Legion Weekly.

Traffic Cop—Come on! What's the matter with you?

Truck Driver—I'm well, thanks; but me engine's dead.—Buffalo Express.

A Florida paper says the moonlight in that state is so bright that the owls are dying of insomnia.—Saskatoon Star.

Printing--

Send us your orders. We can serve you. Anything from a visiting card up.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING CO.

Printers
GARLAND COURT

Rulers
Phone 643

Binders
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

The STIEFF TONE

Is famous with three generations of music lovers. It has never been duplicated. It is the expression of a passion for perfection that has actuated three generations of piano makers.

Chas. M. Stieff, Inc.,
Charlotte, N. C.
Please send catalogue and prices of Pianos.
Name _____
Address _____

CHAS. M. STIEFF, Inc.
Charlotte, N. C.

STIEFF PETIT GRAND
The smallest Grand Piano made that embodies all the essential qualities of the Concert Grand.

ABLE, INTERESTING, GODLY MEN

Fill Charlotte pulpits. They are our Universities. They are Chapel Hill, Davidson College, Trinity, Wake Forest, A. and E., brought to our door. Literature, forceful speech, information, entertainment are their free gifts, and these are the least of their attainments. Hear them, then, on Monday morn, read the simple truths of these ads, and act on them.

THE MUTUAL B. AND L.

Has no equal, and the October series still awaits you.

JNO. R. PHARR, Pres.

E. L. KEESLER, Sec. & Treas.
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Opportunity Never Seeks

The man or woman without money. That is why you should save and steadily build up an account in a strong bank where the money will be ready for you when the right opportunity comes along. Your account will be welcome here.

"National Bank Safety for Savings"

Charlotte National Bank
Resources Over $5,000,000.00

BELK BROS. CO.

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Correct in every detail—appealingly pretty—easy to make because of the Special Guide for Cutting and Construction.

Pictorial Review Patterns for July

20c to 35c
None Higher

WE HANDLE

HOME JOURNAL PATTERNS
PICTORIAL REVIEW PATTERNS

We carry the most extensive Stock probably in the State. Send us your Mail Orders on Patterns.

Some of the things you probably can't get else where as conveniently:—Fleishers Wool Yarns, in almost any Shade and Kind.

All kinds of Knitting Threads and Crotchet in Silks or Cotton.

Dress 1131, 35 cents

WARNER'S CORSETS—To fit any form—Back or Front Lace.

KAYSER'S ITALIAN SILK LINGERIE—

KAYSER'S SILK HOSE—In all the New Colors and styles: Gordon-Van Raalte-Lehigh Merrell & Burson Hose: $1.50 to $4.95 All Silk.

GLOVES IN LONGS AND SHORTS—In all the New Leading Shades—in Kids—Chamoisettes & Silks—Niagara made and Kayser's: 98c to $2.95

NEW SUMMER SWEATERS

IN FIBRE SILK—Mohairs and Fine Wool.
IN THE SLIP—Over and Tuxedo Styles from $4.95 to $12.50

A Home Journal Pattern

In SIZES
14 - 16 - 18
years

Voile and Lace are used in making model shown.

THIS IS "PULLMAN WEEK" at McCoy's

Another big carload of the celebrated "Pullman" bed davenport and "Pullman" living-room suits has just arrived. This elegant suit in fine grade tapestry is $235—as handsome as you would want and has the added advantage of the "Pullman" bed.

W. T. McCoy & CO.

211 South Tryon St.

Charlotte, N. C.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

A Religious Newspaper for the Family

Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U. S.

Rev. J. R. Bridges, D.D., Charlotte, N. C., Editor

Rev. R. C. Reed, D.D., Columbia, S. C., Editor

Vol. LXIV

CHARLOTTE, N. C., JUNE 13, 1923

No. 24

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $3.00 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE
REV. W. L. BOGGS, Circulation Manager

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
BY PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY,
A. M. GRAY, Treasurer.

ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858.

Entered at the Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as second class matter

A Religious Newspaper for the Family, Devoted to the Interest of Christ's Kingdom as Represented by the Southern Presbyterian Church.

Address all communications, and make all checks payable, to the company, and not to individuals.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The label on the paper gives the date to which subscription is paid.

When change of address is desired, give the old and new address. When the date of the label is behind the date of this issue of the paper the label is a reminder that the subscription price is past due. When the date of the label is in advance of the date of this issue it is a receipt for the last subscription paid.

In accordance with the wishes of our patrons, the paper is discontinued only upon the written request of the subscriber. Arrearages must be settled in full at the same time, at the rate of three dollars a year.

No charge is made for the insertion of marriage and obituary notices of fifty words or less. For all over fifty words remit at the rate of one cent a word. Correspondents are requested to give the post office address of married couples when marriage notices are sent.

News items should be in our hands by Monday morning in order to insure their publication in the current issue.

CHANGE OF ADVERTISEMENTS

Advertisers who want their advertisements changed or want to insert new advertisements will please bring their copy to this office by Saturday. It is impossible for us to insert new advertisements or make changes for the current week at a later date.

Advertising rates furnished on application. The size and character of this paper indicate the size and character of its constituency. For reputable advertising there is no better medium for North and South Carolina and the most prosperous section of the South.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

EDITORIAL—
Dr. Chester's Retirement	1
A Voice From the Pew	1
Seen and Heard in the Southern General Assembly	2
"Fools Rushing In"	2
Poem—By Rev. W. L. Latham	2
CONTRIBUTED—
Enoree Presbytery of South Carolina Finds an Oasis in the Desert of Africa—By Rev. C. Goshen Gunn	3, 4
College Publicity Bureau to be Established by the Standard	4
Brotherly Love Sunday—By Rev. Jas. I. Vance, D.D.	4
The Scolding of the Giants—By J. McN. Johnson	4
Make the Vision Real—By R. E. Magill	4
Mix Good Fellowship With Religion at Montreat Meet—By John A. Livingston	5
The Work of a Pastor—By Ruling Elder J. E. McLaughlin	5
DEPARTMENTS—
Devotional	2
Woman's Auxiliary	6
Sunday School—By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.	7
Christian Endeavor—By Rev. J. G. Garth	7
Church News	8, 9, 10
News of the Week	10
Children	12
Advertisements, Etc.	12, 16

TREASURERS OF BENEVOLENT CAUSES

- Foreign Missions—Edwin F. Willis, 154 Fifth Ave., N. Nashville, Tenn.
- Home Missions, General Assembly's—A. N. Sharpe, 1522 Hurt Building, Atlanta, Ga.
- General Assembly's Training School—Geo. W. Call, Richmond, Va., Union Bank.
- Bible Cause—Gilbert Darlington, Bible House, N. Y.
- Christian Education and Ministerial Relief—John Stites, Fifth and Market Sts., Louisville, Ky.
- Publication and Sabbath School Work—R. E. Magill, 618 N. Sixth St., Richmond, Va.
- The General Assembly's Equipment Fund—T. R. Preston, Treasurer, Chattanooga, Tenn.

EDITORIAL

DR. CHESTER'S RETIREMENT

I SHALL write this editorial over my own signature because of my peculiarly close relation to Dr. Chester. Our acquaintance began in the Theological Seminary. He was one class above me. Only seminary students know how much above that means. To those below an awe-inspiring halo encircles the brows of the upper class men. They are supposed to be in possession of a prodigious amount of sacred and mysterious knowledge, veiled to those who as yet have reached only the foothills. The respect inspired at that time has remained with me to this day.

It so happened that I was a member of the Executive Committee of Foreign Missions when Dr. Chester was elected as secretary. The choice was forced on the committee. Dr. Houston had resigned; the office of assistant secretary, held by D. C. Rankin, had been abolished; Dr. Henry M. Woods, who had been elected by the Assembly to take the place of Dr. Houston, declined to serve, and so the committee found itself helpless. Moreover, there had come to be widespread dissatisfaction with the management of the committee. Hostile criticism from both the home land and the foreign field was abundant. In these distressing circumstances, the committee felt that it was a matter of first importance to secure a secretary of such outstanding prominence, of such well known reputation for ability and missionary zeal as to win back the confidence of the Church. It did what it could to secure such a man. It wrote urgent, pleading letters, sent out S O S calls over the telegraph wires, but all in vain. The place was going a begging. Dr. Chester was a young man, unknown and untried, but he was on the ground, and was available. These were his only recognized qualifications. Something had to be done. After earnest prayer for light, the only man in sight was Dr. Chester. This was in the afternoon. The next morning the committee met and reconsidered. It engaged in further prayer for light, with the result that Dr. Chester remained the only man in sight and he was re-elected. He was given to understand, however, that he was chosen as a mere makeshift till the meeting of the next Assembly, and was instructed to sign all documents, issuing from the office, as "acting secretary."

What was the sequel of this timid and hesitant action of the committee? The sequel was that Dr. Chester at once displayed a talent for conducting the affairs of the office, especially its correspondence, that was little, if anything, short of genius. The many knotty problems that had been perplexing the committee were solved, the many disgruntled parties at home and abroad were pacified, and the whole machinery of the committee was running as smoothly as if a fresh and effective lubricant had been applied to all its parts. The change was so remarkable and so gratifying that the attitude of the committee was entirely changed. Its confidence in Dr. Chester's fitness for the office was completely won. By the time the next Assembly met, there was not a member of the committee who was not glad to see him elected secretary by that body.

During his long term of service, Dr. Chester has been subjected to much criticism, some of it unsparing, but all of it based on very imperfect knowledge. Those best informed have been steadfast in their conviction that his services to the Church have been invaluable. I may cite my own case as an instance. When he was elected provisional secretary by the committee, my vote was cast against him. I thought the committee had better continue its search for a man of recognized leadership. I soon changed my mind as to the wisdom of the committee's course. Through the succeeding years, I have had an opportunity to know intimately the character of Dr. Chester's work; and there has never been a time when I should not have thought it a calamity for the Church to be deprived of his services.

It is high praise to any man to be able to say of him that those who know him best esteem him most. This can be said with emphasis of Dr. Chester. He does not carry his best wares in his show-case. Only those who have access to the varied and costly merchandise stored on the shelves behind the counter, know how rich he is. His official duties have brought him into close and frequent contact with many of the leaders of the other great denominations. These leaders have learned to put a proper estimate on his worth, and I doubt if they put a higher estimate on any man in our Church.

Of course, the time comes sooner or later to all of us when we must recede to the rear. It is greatly to our regret and to the Church's loss that this time has come to Dr. Chester. "He has fought a good fight; he has kept the faith." Many are the friends who hope that it will yet be many years before he finishes his course.

R. C. REED.

A VOICE FROM THE PEW

Those of us who may be depressed over the growth of false doctrines in the churches of this day, may take courage from the fact that the pew is at last aroused to the danger and is letting its views be known with no uncertain sound. Modernism in its many forms is creeping into the pulpit of every church. Some are worse than others. We have the Episcopalians, the Methodists, the Baptists, and the Presbyterians, boldly repudiating old beliefs and substituting a false gospel for the one we learned at our mother's knee.

If we may judge from the expressions of opinion in the New York pulpits since the action of their last Assembly, the prominent Presbyterian preachers of the great metropolis have gone over to the modern views, bag and baggage, and are openly defying the highest court of the Church, notwithstanding their ordination vows wherein they solemnly promised to be in subjection to their brethren in the Lord, and to be zealous and faithful in maintaining the purity and peace of the Church.

The Baptist brethren of the North are also in the same position, while, if we may believe the charges of their own brethren, the Methodist Church is permeated with error.

The recent performances of Rev. Mr. Grant in New York are familiar to every reader of the secular press.

The Men's Bible Class of St. James' Episcopal Church, of Richmond, Va., asked of the Rector of that church the privilege of speaking at the Sunday services in the month of May, in order to express their dissent from "certain teachings which are receiving wide publicity."

This privilege was granted, and we have before us an address delivered in that church, May 13, 1923, by John B. Mordecai, teacher of the Men's Bible Class of that church. The speaker lays down as a plain proposition that "no man while holding a position of authority in a church is justified in publicly asserting beliefs that are contrary to the doctrines of that church." He further claims that the preachers in their effort to gratify the interest of a scholarly few, are starving the souls of many.

He concludes with these words: "We need the Gospel of the crucified Son of God, and we wish to hear it preached by men who believe the Gospel. We want the Bible taught us by men who believe the Bible."

These are cheering words, and they should hearten us all.

What is true in this instance is true in every church. The preachers may be wandering off, but the people in the pew still hold to the old truths and have little patience with modern views.

SEEN AND HEARD IN THE SOUTHERN GENERAL ASSEMBLY

The election of a moderator is always a time of interest. The nominating speeches do not always confine themselves to facts.

This year a check was put upon their elongation by a provision in the new rules that in nominating a man you can only speak ten minutes and only five minutes in seconding any nomination.

At first it seemed that the time gained in making the speech would be lost in the number nominated. One wise brother, however, moved that the nominations be closed before the entire Assembly be placed in nomination. As it was, there were six nominated.

* * * *

The new stated clerk, Dr. J. D. Leslie, won the hearts of all, especially of the editors, by his efficient arrangement of every detail and his prompt service in furnishing copies of every action.

* * * *

Though the stated clerk had figured down the expenses of the Assembly so that the minutes spent in talk would buy a meal for the starving Armenians, it had no effect upon the flow of words. Some men seemed possessed with the idea that unless they appeared on the floor, they would not justify their election as commissioners.

* * * *

It is always an interesting study in every gathering to note the different styles of delivery.

One speaker had a delivery that could have been expressed in musical note, in which the "crescendo" and "diminuendo" followed each other in regular order. Then there was the explosive delivery, such as a gasoline engine makes when sawing wood.

* * * *

As usual, the ex-moderators were not conspicuous by their absence. There were present eight of these honored brethren.

* * * *

The Assembly, judging from the size of the new Digest, of more than 1,000 pages, has made a deliverance upon nearly every subject under the sun. It would seem that some deliverance should be made upon the proper pronunciation of the word "Seriatim." At every church court, whether Assembly, Synod or Presbytery, this little word is pronounced in such a variety of ways that one is at a loss to know what is meant.

* * * *

In reading over the reports of the standing committees, one encounters too frequently the split infinitive—which shows that however strong the chairman may be in church law and rules of procedure, he is below par in his knowledge of good English.

* * * *

At every Assembly one of the most enjoyable occasions is the banquet given by each Seminary to its alumni who are present.

The Union Seminary banquet was given at the Montreat hotel, and was presided over by Rev. Dr. Lingle.

There were 90 present, the largest number ever gathered at any Assembly.

Owing to the lack of time, there were only one or two talks made, but the brethren did full justice to the excellent food.

* * * *

Speaking of food, reminds us that there have been times, when great complaints were made of Montreat fare.

However deserved such criticisms were in the past, they would be out of place now. During the sessions of the Assembly the hotels served the best of food in abundance. The commissioners put their imprimatur upon it three times daily by the manner in which they cleared the dishes.

* * * *

We heard nothing except praise for the fare. Moderator Sprunt, by his courtesy, firmness, knowledge of parliamentary law, and innate goodness, made one of the best moderators we have had for a long time.

* * * *

The Assembly was abundantly blessed in fine singing.

The Columbia Seminary Quartette was first on the ground, and delighted the Assembly. Then Dr. Myers, of Greensboro First Church, brought his quartette, two ladies and two men, who more than met every expectation.

We hope that these quartettes will, either in person or by proxy, continue this form of entertainment.

After listening to long speeches, the change is refreshing.

* * * *

The spirit of the Assembly was fine. The members were mainly new men who did their best, we believe, though we often wondered if they had ever studied the past history of their Church and knew the principles for which our forefathers fought.

* * * *

The list of deceased ministers was a long one, 39 in all.

God's workmen die, but God's work goes on.

"FOOLS RUSHING IN"

Socrates is said to have defined the difference between wise men and fools in these words: A wise man is a fool who knows that he is a fool and keeps silent, while a fool is a fool who does not know it, and insists upon exposing his ignorance.

One is reminded of this distinction when he reads the views on theological questions, as expressed by the average editor of the secular papers.

POEM

By Rev. W. L. Latham

The Christian's warfare ceases not;
Hosts of evil bold appear
Against the righteous making plot;
But to His followers Christ is near.

No shells explode nor cannon roar,
No swords glitter in the light,
No dreadnaughts venture enemy shore,
No armed hosts needed in this fight.

But Truth, and valor at its height,
Life directed by the Word;
'Tis not-by power nor by might,
'By my Spirit, saith the Lord."

The Spirit of the Christ who died
Upon a cross to save us;
Let's ask Him with us to abide,
Him whom Heaven gave us.

If He in us and we in Him,
Abide continually,
The best there is in life we gain,
Then also Eternity.

He fits us for the Future Life,
And gives us hope to gain it,
—And though this world be filled with strife,—
Through Him we can attain it.
Senatobia, Miss.

In questions of politics and business we willingly sit at the feet of the Gamaliels, but where the doctrines of our Church are concerned, we wish that they were wise according to Socrates' definition.

One of these wise men rushes in as follows: "It is safe to say that the Westminster Confession is not accepted or believed in by many of our best informed and most intelligent church members."

This is only one of many such expressions that we read from time to time.

The main idea seems to be that the atmosphere of this age is different from that in which the Confession was written, and therefore we ought to make our beliefs conform to the changed condition.

They seem to ignore the fact that the Confession was the expression of Scripture truths as men found them in the Bible. These men interpreted Scripture not by any influence of their surroundings, but by a careful study of the Bible itself.

Truth never changes, neither does it conform itself to its environment.

These men found the doctrine of total depravity in the Bible and also in man, and this same truth still meets us in the world, even if society has become more polished.

Civilization has done much for the race—but it can never regenerate the race. That can only come through the work of the Holy Spirit. Man has changed in many ways, and this world has more comforts and conveniences than it had in the time of the Westminster Assembly, but what was said of the imagination of the thoughts of man's heart as being only evil continually can still be said.

Let men rid themselves of the idea that progress in civilization is progress in holiness.

If we could reason away sin and abolish hell, we would gladly do so, but any such hope is in vain.

Let the secular press, like the shoemaker, stick to its last.

Devotional

UNHURRIED

"Mine hour is not yet come," protested Jesus when some of His friends felt that the clock was already striking. Considering the vast urgency of His business and the issues at stake. He was the most unhurried Man that ever led on the world's hopes. "First the seed, then the corn, after that the full corn in the ear," He admonished. He had blood to spill, but not to waste. His advent was not according to feverish calendars of Messianic expectation. Only "when the fullness of time was come" did God "send forth His Son." And He asks no sort of harvest ahead of its season. "With slow haste" come all enduring earth betterments. Hurry implies want of faith. Real faith has plenty of leisure of the highest type. The man who is unsure of his ground is the man who cannot wait. An age of doubt is always restless. Whereas, "he that believeth shall not make haste."—George Clarke Peck.

WHEN ON THE WING

Nature students often speak of the unsuspected beauty concealed in many of God's tiny creatures, particularly in those belonging to the insect world. One of our greatest living naturalists on referring to this beauty comments somewhat sadly upon the fact that in many instances it cannot be seen until the insect unfolds its wings to fly away.

A beetle crawling upon the ground seems commonplace and even ugly to the casual observer. But the moment it opens its hard wing cases and mounts into the sunshine, it glistens with iridescent hues and colors hitherto unsuspected. A dragon fly at rest with its long, snaky body curled under it seems almost repulsive, but flitting through the sunshine above some quiet pond it flashes and gleams like some glistening jewel.

But it would seem that there are many other things in life whose beauty we never fully perceive until we see them going from us. The sun is always at its best when it is dropping away from the world, and the open blossom reaches its best just before it droops and dies. Who can contemplate the marvelous autumnal tints of the fading leaves without experiencing a kind of indefinable sadness of heart that arises from the subconscious knowledge that they are about to go from us forever? It seems to be a law of our nature that a thing must be taken from us before we can fully appreciate its true worth and preciousness.

Life abounds in innumerable illustrations of this thought. There is the home. How few of us appreciate the blessings we have had in our homes until we have followed the call of duty out into the world, and the doors of the old home have closed upon us forever? The happy hours we have had with our brothers and sisters, the games and the childish sports, the family circle perhaps broken now, never to be reunited in this world—how wonderful the picture as we gaze upon it in retrospect, and what beauty and loveliness show forth in it that once were hidden from our eyes!

And what is true of our homes is true also of our friends. How many of them God sends to cheer and help and encourage us along the way! Too often we do not realize their value until we lose them. We have thought, perhaps, we did appreciate them, but as we have stood beside their lifeless form in the chamber of death, a score of beautiful virtues and traits shine through the placid face that we never really perceived before.

Religion also—fellowship with God—a childlike trust and confidence in his goodness and love—this, too, is a beautiful thing that is not always understood until it is thoughtlessly thrown away or bartered for something of no value. Some one sings:

"Where is the blessedness I knew
When first I saw the Lord?
Where is the soul-refreshing view
Of Jesus and His Word?"

Many a thoughtless child of God has watched his faith and belief go from him without realizing that he was losing something beautiful and of infinite preciousness until too late to recall it. Afterwards, when face to face with some bitter emergency, some acute crisis, he realizes the folly of which he has been guilty and the grievousness of the mistake he has made. In youth let us determine to appreciate our blessings while we have them.—Forward.

ENOREE PRESBYTERY, OF SOUTH CAROLINA, FINDS AN OASIS IN THE DESERT OF AFRICA

By Rev. C. Goshen Gunn

Some folks, particularly "hard-headed" business elders, get the idea that a meeting of Presbytery is D-R-Y, and that commissioners are elected just to pick one bone after another. But a visit to this valley of dry bones soon proves there is really life in the valley, and that dry bones are clothed with flesh. So may the elder who faces his task, as a traveler faces the desert, be assured that many an oasis will be reached on the journey.

At the spring meeting of the Enoree Presbytery, in the Synod of South Carolina, there were many oases—they happen frequently there—but this particular one was found in a little journey into an "African desert."

A visiting brother, who had been given permission to labor outside the bounds of the Presbytery, was given five minutes to present a matter which had been hanging heavy on his heart ever since those bounds had taken him into a section of the Synod where there are more colored residents than white. So immediately following the report of the Home Mission Committee, its chairman asked the Presbytery to hear him.

The speaker said nothing new, but it created a response. He had hardly been seated when several others were on their feet, among them the secretary of the home missions. The oasis had been reached and it was blooming. Everybody was wide awake and eager to catch what was being said. Indeed this was a brand new development. More interest was being shown in this question than had been manifested for years—"since the Assembly's Home Mission Committee took over the work of colored evangelism from the local presbyters," said the home mission secretary, Rev. J. K. Roberts, who later spoke with authority on this question.

The time was extended 20 minutes longer. At the end of this allowance, the 11 o'clock order of the day had arrived, which was to be a conference on men's work in lieu of the sermon. But a motion was made to substitute the present discussion, and the motion carried. The desert was developing into a "colored" rose garden. And most unexpected blossoms were being found. Every man who arose led into an area of undiscovered verdure. And this was the desert of Africa!

Here are some of the blossoms plucked in the blooming: "The Negro is not responsible for being here; he is not responsible for his freedom; he is not responsible for the privilege of the ballot; he is not responsible for his education; and finally, he is not responsible for his attitude toward the Southern man, as it has largely been made by those who do not understand him. We are the logical ones to deal with the Negro, and we should meet the responsibility."

"There is no doubt that the colored people do not get a square deal. I have lived among them on the plantation and I have seen it myself. Some one has mentioned the 'Jim Crow' car. They do not object to such a car, but they do have reason to resent the fact that they pay the same fare as the whites, but have dirty, crowded accommodations, in the most dangerous part of the train."

"I know the influence of a certain colored preacher, which was so marked that not a member of his church had been arraigned before the law for 30 years. And in another community the influence of the colored preacher was responsible for a like condition over a period of 20 years."

"We ought to help the colored preachers: they are the ones we can help and we should use every opportunity to do so."

"As ignorant as is the average colored preacher, it has been his preaching which has put the fear of God in the hearts of his people, and this has many times prevented them from breaking our own doors down and doing violence to us. We owe them much."

"The most intimate person next to your family are your colored servants. They become acquainted with the conditions in your home, and you are responsible for the impressions which they receive. The imprint they get, they carry away."

"The Woman's Auxiliary had prepared to teach the colored women of the community the Sunday School lesson, and the church session wouldn't let them."

History shows us that every great movement has had its beginning in the heart of some man. Others may entertain like convictions, but to this one man falls the position of leadership. Rev. John Little, D.D., of Louisville, Ky., has taken this place in our Church, relative to Colored Evangelism. Many times have I thought of him since I became pastor of Salem and Lebanon Churches, of Congaree Presbytery, in Fairfield County, South Carolina. In this time I have seen more colored people than in all the previous years of my life. For there are more colored residents than white. In the county seat of Winnsboro there are 1,000 Negroes out of 1,800 population. Saturday is "town day" for the Negroes all over

Contributed

Fairfield, and the way they come to town! Truly it can be said that Main street is "well shaded" even on a sunny day. Fairfield is 75 per cent colored.

One of my churches, Lebanon, which dates from 1789, is seven miles from Winnsboro. Down in a peaceful little valley within sight of the church and the spot where the manse "was," is a little "darkey" church, and it is Presbyterian, a mission of the Board of Freedmen of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., although its early members were undoubtedly members of the old Lebanon Church, during the days when master and slave belonged to the same church and attended the same service.

But ever since I came to this spot the fact that our brethren of the North had established a mission in the very shadow of our church has been a thorn in my flesh. "Sectionalism? Sectarianism? The old feeling of North and South?" you are asking. Not a bit of it! I simply hate to see my neighbors fixing my own front fence. Of course rather than to be an eye-sore to the community, he may have it to do. But were I providing for "my own" he wouldn't have it to do. According to the Good Book, I might be called an "infidel." When I suggested that the little mission belonged to the Southern Church, because we belonged to them, and they belonged to us, the colored congregation sat in respectful silence. Later old "Uncle Allan," the most venerable member of them all, and the chief of the elders, quietly told me that could never be. I listened to the ancient presbyter, as he smiled, and his old teeth glistened. He had attended Presbytery in Winnsboro just a few days before, and of matters ecclesiastical I knew, that he spoke with authority. "They came to us," said he, and he seemed to be reaching back into the prehistoric ages to find a landing place, "in about '73." Think of it! Fifty years ago. That was three years before we established Stillman at Tuscaloosa. And it may be interesting to note that in Fairfield County are seven colored Presbyterian churches, organized and fostered by the Northern Church. There are more colored Presbyterian churches in the county than white. In addition to this evangelistic work, is a school in Winnsboro. This work needs much to make it all it should be, but it is up and going. Certainly they would never leave their Northern friends. They would be "wuthless, no-count niggers" if they thought of such a thing.

And yet we have not been unmindful of them. The mother of our own Dr. R. F. Kirkpatrick, during the pastorate of her son at Lebanon, interested herself in the colored Sunday School. There she prevailed upon one colored boy, Will Young, to go to Spillman. Later this same boy became a splendid preacher among his own people in our Church. We are therefore debtors to our sister denomination. They have "fixed our front fence," and although we may be ashamed, we must never fail to be grateful. Precious souls would have been lost in the breach, if they had not. Our women are awake to the responsibility. They never fail to respond. The good women of Salem Church choose a colored woman, defraying all of her expenses to the conference for colored women held each summer by our Women's Auxiliary. Last year it met in Atlanta. The entire community felt the reaction of that woman's experience. I do not know a more signal piece of service. Ponder upon the result if such a course were pursued throughout the South. "A little leaven leaveneth the whole lump." One member of Salem holds a Bible class for a dozen little colored boys near her home. This reflects the spirit of their Auxiliary.

The colored population of the United States is 10,463,103. One out of 10 persons in this land are Negroes. Thirteen Southern States contained in 1916, six-sevenths of the colored population. Only five out of eleven Negroes are members of any church, and it is easy to sense the significance of this to the five, knowing the average colored communion. No Macedonian call has ever sounded more clearly than this call to the Southern churches. The Negro belongs to the South, not by legal ownership, but by traditional relationship. Without the black man's consent he was brought to Christian America, and the responsibility to evangelize and educate him rests upon the white man. It is just as far ahead of our responsibility to go into the wilds of Africa and evangelize those who are there, as the distance between this American Jerusalem and that African Samaria, which is greater by three thousand miles. And it is not lessening one fraction of an inch, our Christ-given duty to all the world, beginning at Jerusalem. The task is only rendered more appealing, and more appalling.

Our first obligation is to love them. We need to change the letter "r" in "colored" to the letter "v," and put "l-o-v-e" into it. That does not have an inkling of "social equality." Not all whom you love may be your social equals, nor even think themselves so. A certain Northern editor needs not to have defended the colored students of Harvard, when the president of that institution refused to house both races under the same roof. Right-minded Negroes prefer to be segregated. They may appear to feel otherwise, but it is only to secure the advantages of the white man, not his society. Our first obligation, therefore, is to be guided in our decisions by love. My wife, a Southern woman, said, as we passed a group of dirty, ragged, colored children: "They have immortal souls." We can solve the only problem of the South by this primal realization. Then will evangelistic, social, and educational questions be faced aright.

Along with the evangelistic there are other obligations. One may pass a hundred little tenant cabins and only ten will have a sign of any window glass. Many such houses are little better than barns. On dark days the tenants cannot see unless the weather permits the shutters to be opened. How can they read, or write, or sew? God said, "Let there be light," and man is the greatest offender against the law of God when he fails to provide the things for himself or for his servants. There is no health for body, mind or soul without it. Let the landlord think of this as he sings, "There is sunshine in my heart today," or "The Light of the World is Jesus."

There is another situation which will be remedied when the first obligation of love is adopted, and that is the sanitary condition. For every house without a window you are likely to find a house without a toilet. Why should this be noted? Because it is unavoidable to connect the large amount of immorality among the colored people with the conditions which break down the very safeguards, God and man have placed around society, to preserve decency and modesty. The negro is not a beast and therefore unmoral. He is the possessor of a soul and is either moral or immoral. Let us grant that the Negro as a race has lower ideals, and greater weakness, is it not imperative that the white brother assist in every way to fortify rather than stultify? "I am my brother's keeper," and my sister's, too, whether the color be black, red, or yellow. The American Negro, according to former Ambassador Bryce, in the first 30 years of his liberation made a greater advance than was ever made by the Anglo Saxon in a similar period of years." But he did so by his white brother's help, and only can he thus advance. Unless the white man be a "big brother," he is no brother at all. God has endowed certain races to fulfill this relationship. There is no reason why a colored girl should not be considered virtuous, but she must have a fair chance to preserve her good name. God made her a woman.

Public educational facilities are inadequate to meet the present demands. The average colored school is badly over-crowded. One which I visited I shall never forget. They were huddled together around a poor broken stove, there were no desks, not enough books, not even a school building, as this was a church. And when the colored taxes gave out, school was out for the season. The Northern Presbyterians supplemented this with a short term following for the younger children. There is a sentiment that education will ruin the Negro. A certain kind might, but not the elementary kind with the industrial adjunct. Until this is realized, the South will hold herself back. This is the great opportunity for the Church. We grasped it in the mountains when they had no educational facilities, and why should we not do as much by the rolling hills and fertile valleys, filled with the race in whose hands is the industrial salvation of the South, and in whose souls is the spirit of the living God?

As one reads the papers and magazines of the South he becomes convinced that an awakening is taking place relative to two facts. The first thing of which people are thinking and talking, and concerning which editors are writing, is that something is wrong among the Negroes. All of "Dixie" is concerned over the general exodus which has taken place in the last few years, as thousands of Negroes are leaving their old homes to go, they know not where, into a mystical Northern "Land of Promise." Many have returned sadder but wiser. Yet they have not stemmed the tide. We are told that from 1910 to 1920 almost one-half million colored people moved from the colored states, increasing the Negro population in the North about 50 per cent. They have largely settled in cities—"Unfinished Tasks"). The American Survey tells us, "The Negro faces serious problems when he migrates from his Southern surroundings to a Northern neighborhood. He enjoys larger liberty, but he pays an excessive rent, to raise which he must crowd his rooms with promiscuous lodgers, a danger to health and an impairment to family life. Northern migration brings problems for both Negro and white neighbors, and the odds are against the Negro. Keener competition, racial animosity, and unfair discrimination are the scale against him."

However, the North is awakening to her responsibility with the aggressiveness which is thoroughly characteristic. The unfortunate part of it is her lack of experience in dealing with her new citizens. On the 23rd of February of this year, an all-day conference was held in New York to discuss this situation. White and colored church leaders and social workers from 18 cities gathered together. Think of it! When has the South had such a gathering? Their findings were exceedingly interesting and very suggestive to Southern as well as Northern readers. They reflect a great passion for service, and while they are literally "fixing our front fence," we can make no criticism until we have evidenced the same passion in the same direction. Down here everybody knows something is needed, and no one seems sure of a remedy. Not long ago a prominent Kiwanis Club of this State invited a noted Episcopal Bishop to address them on this subject. Laymen and churchmen are putting their heads together to solve the problem. Something is wrong.

The other thing to which the South awakes today is that "something is right." As every poison has its own antidote, so has every wrong its own right; that which makes it no longer a wrong. This sudden burst of interest in Enoree Presbytery proves this consciousness in the minds of thoughtful men. Under all our prejudice and doubt, it is becoming more and more evident that to fulfill life's first obligation and to solve this problem, men must go back to the obligation of giving a pure Gospel to a needy neighbor. Not only has Louisville caught John Little's vision. It has spread it to Richmond and Atlanta. Dr. J. S. Lyons, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Atlanta, has instituted a special day each year, which is known as "Blak Day," and at that time the question of Colored Evangelism has full discussion and careful study. Little wonder that the mission in Atlanta has grown in five years from nothing to 1,000 in weekly classes. Other Southerners are being aroused upon this question. You see evidences everywhere of it. Prof. and Mrs. W. H. Morton, of Spartanburg, S. C., have undertaken a colored mission in this city. Professor Morton is professor of chemistry in Converse College. He isn't the fanatical type. He is a "safe and sane" Southern gentleman. As one talks to him, he sees that here is a new type of Christian layman in the South. He and his wife have found it hard. There was only a shack to begin with. But today a community recognizes them as friends. Professor Morton is rendering the peaceful ministry as arbiter, the healing ministry as physician and the gentle ministry of pastor, to those for whom no one cared, but for whom Christ died. It was this keen minded layman who observed to me, "The further away the object of our missionary endeavor, the greater our missionary interest." And you know, and I know, that he is right. While men and women, and boys and girls hang upon the words of a returned missionary from the Congo, there are multitudes of unevangelized, uneducated, half fed, almost naked colored people in their alleys or on their farms. And the American Negroes have all the vices of civilization to combat against, without the Gospel's power to save. It is safe to say that during the 20 years John Little went without knowing where he or his family would get their next meal, not less than $100,000 went out of Louisville Presbyterian Churches for foreign missions in Africa.

Some whose vision may yet be honestly "color blind," may fear such talk scents of "social equality." "Black Day" in Atlanta's First Presbyterian Church is not court-ing "equality"; it is simply showing a desire to offer friendly and Christian co-operation. This is the secret of it all, and therefore the South's greatest need today. It is a duty resting upon black as well as white. "Co-operation"—what does it mean? It does not mean living together, eating together, playing together, traveling together, but it does mean "working together." Every Southerner knows that the "White South" cannot live without the black man's "helping hand," nor can the "Black South" live without the white man's "counseling conscience." This does not imply laziness on the part of the whites, nor mental weakness on the part of the blacks. It implies only the divine destiny of the races. And happy that race which fulfills its own destiny.

Well, what about it? Why all this talk? Talk is so cheap. What do you want us to do? That is a question which only you and your community can decide. Every community, and every church, must solve its own problems and utilize its own opportunities. The Southern Presbyterian Church is blind today if she says there is no problem and no opportunity. She cannot see at all if she does not sense this "something" which is wrong, and likewise the "something" which is towering above the wrong—the right. What one place has done another can do. What one man has seen, another may see. What one church has accomplished is open for another. Enoree's discussion is possible in any other Presbytery.

See what followed in Enoree and also in Congaree Presbytery. Immediately following the discussion, a motion was made that the Home Mission Committee of the Synod be requested to invite Dr. Little to present the subject of Colored Evangelism at the next meeting of the Synod. And that is not all. The Woman's Auxiliary of the little country church, Lickville, where Presbytery met, were having a special executive committee meeting to fill out annual report blanks. "What opportunity is there in your community for home mission work?" There was only one answer for them, "Colored Evangelism." Three weeks later, at a meeting of Congaree Presbytery, which met in Wimsboro, there was a similar discussion, except much more brief. The enthusiasm was spontaneous and sincere. The matter was referred to the Home Mission Committee, and it was further suggested that this work be recommended to the Men's Evangelistic Clubs of South Carolina as a splendid field of service for the layman also. And so the fire spreads. There is a similar vision for all who will take their little journey into the oasis in the desert of Africa. Have you seen it? Look!

Wimsboro, S. C.

COLLEGE PUBLICITY BUREAU TO BE ESTABLISHED BY THE STANDARD

The Presbyterian Standard Publishing Company will on July 1st establish a Central Bureau of Publicity for Presbyterian Schools and Colleges. The purpose of the bureau is five-fold, and may be stated as follows:

First. To systematize present methods and to increase the amount of publicity given to the schools.

Second. To bring to the attention of those interested in Christian education more actual facts about the Church schools.

Third. To create a greater spirit of co-operation among the schools of the State and to increase the interest taken in these schools by the church members.

Fourth. To line up and consolidate the alumnae in support of their respective institutions.

Fifth. To present facts about the Church colleges in attractive form to the people of the State.

Two of our strongest Presbyterian Colleges for Women in North Carolina have already endorsed the plan and will place their publicity work in the hands of this bureau.

R. H. Rice, for the past four years with Flora Macdonald College, as business manager and secretary of publicity, will be associated with the Presbyterian Standard Publishing Company and will have charge of the work of this bureau. Mr. Rice was for some time connected with the Houston, (Tex.) Post, has done newspaper work for North Carolina dailies, and for seven years was with Salem College, Winston-Salem, in the business and publicity departments.

With reference to the new bureau, Dr. H. H. Sweets, Secretary of Education and Ministerial Relief, says:

 "I am very much delighted with this fine statesmanlike plan. I believe it is going to accomplish wonderful results. Please push right along into it. If we can be of any help in any way at any time, do not hesitate to call upon us."

Mr. James B. Spillman, Secretary of Stewardship for the Synod of North Carolina, says:

 "I am sure that this plan will build up the prestige, increase the enrollment of students, as well as increase the actual receipts from the Church for the support of the Schools and Colleges of the Synod."

BROTHERLY LOVE SUNDAY

By Rev. Jas. I. Vance, D.D.

That is what July 1st is to be. The Montreat Assembly changed the day for taking the offering for Protestant Relief in Europe from the last Sunday in October to the first Sunday in July. On this day a double offering is to be taken. The Church is asked to give $80,000 for European Relief and $20,000 for Lord's Day Alliance, or $100,000 for the two causes, divided on the basis of 80 per cent for European Relief and 20 per cent for Lord's Day Alliance.

Both funds have the same treasurer, and all contributions should be sent to Miss Margaret Vance, Treasurer, 154 Fifth Ave. N., Nashville, Tenn.

It is important to note that Protestant Relief in Europe is not the same as Near East Relief; the former being aid to churches that must die if not helped, and the latter aid to the needy victims of the ravages of war. Both are vastly important, but contributors should note the difference.

The action of the Assembly in moving European Relief to July 1st leaves little time for preparation; and unless pastors and sessions get into action at once, the cause is in danger of disaster.

Protestantism in Europe is in peril of extinction. There is no other way to put it. Unless America helps, there is no human way out. Of course there is always a divine way; but have we who are God's people any right to expect Him to work a miracle to do what He is making it possible for us, His people, to do?

We are full, European Protestantism is empty. Does the Lord mean what He said: "Ye that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak?"

"Let brotherly love continue." Shall we not make July 1st in every Southern Presbyterian Church such a "Brotherly Love Sunday" that our Protestant friends in Europe, sorely pressed, will know that we care?

Nashville, Tenn.

THE SCOLDING THE GIANTS A Summer Night's Rain-Storm

By J. McN. Johnson

The toil of the long summer day was done,—
The frugal supper was eaten with zest;—
I had smoked the briar-pipe, blowing rings at the moon,
And betaken myself to grateful rest;
At peace with the world; at peace with God;
In love with His glorious handiwork;
Thankful,—even tho' I should kiss the Rod,—
Be the coming years or bright or dark.

The comforting touch of my felten cot,
Was grateful, as balsam-balm to pain,
Gave the mind free rein, and unbound thought,
Through the ether of space, and over the main;
The range this wholesome rev'rie took,
Lifted the veil from the Is-To-Be;
Pensively gleaned from the Fairy Book,
Till in fancy I sailed the Glassy Sea.

A fairy wee zephyr from the Somewhere came,
Stole through the lattice in innocent play,
Snatched a kiss from my brow, and whispered his name,
Danced, and curvetted and scampered away.
His fellow and playmate tripped suddenly past
Followed suit with the kiss and was instantly gone,
When Lo! a whole troupe came bounding so fast,
They jostled each other and at once scurried on.

The vainguard these, foretelling distress;
The harbingers these of mighty portent!
Hark! I hear a deep rumble,—'tis an Ogre's voice,
As he comes from his eavern on mischief bent!
There are TWO! They are quarreling,—an ominous growl!
But now I knew they're the Giants o' the skies!
Their voices have reached a frightful howl!
Mark how they scold as their passions rise!

A-Rumble-lum-boom! Hark! They fight in the cloud!
Their sabres now flash in jagged red light;
Then a CRASH! an EXPLOSION! So horribly loud,
As deafening the ears and blinding the sight!
With their lurid red swords they shear through the Bowl
That contains God's Nectar for feeding the corn,—
Then a patter, patter, patter,—and over us roll
The wealth from the great Cornucopian Horn!

The Rumble-lum-boom recedes to the East,—
The patter, patter changes to Morpheus' float;
The fairies return as if to a feast,
And bear me away in a dream-spangled boat.

'Tis morning again: Creation's renewed;
Come see the rich treasures the Giants have brought;
The world is refreshed by their make-believe feud;
"Behold What Wonders God Hath Wrought."
Aberdeen, N. C.

MAKE THE VISION REAL

By R. E. Magill, Secretary

A quiet nook on the mountain top, away from the heat, jar, and noise of the rushing world, fellowship with kindred spirits, opportunity for mental stimulus, quickening the spiritual pulse, toning up tired bodies, and quieting jangling nerves. No, I am not picturing the New Jerusalem, but some choice corners of this old world—Montreat, N. C., and Kerrville, Texas—where a large group of our overworked and underpaid home mission workers should be sent for a season of rest. They can't go unless some generous friends make such a vacation possible. Their meagre salaries do not provide the actual necessities of life, much less a vacation fund. Scores of them are burning out their lives in the hard places of the mountains, the mill centers, the country-side and in city slums with no hope of a rest or change unless it is provided by thoughtful friends. A recent letter tells of a teacher who declined the principalship of a fine public school at $1,800 that she might accept work in a mountain mission at $50.00 per month, and she is spending her "summer vacation" teaching in a remote mountain cove where Christian work has never before been undertaken, at a salary of $30.00 per month.

Such instances of Christian heroism and sacrifice are not unusual and it is to give such workers a rest that I appeal for a vacation fund. Ten dollars will provide for a week's entertainment and all these workers should have at least two weeks' vacation. Three hundred invitations have been mailed and the list should be enlarged.

If you would enjoy your own vacation and bring untold joy into quiet, self-effacing lives, mail your check today to R. E. Magill, Treasurer Vacation Fund, Box 1176, Richmond, Va.

MIX GOOD FELLOWSHIP WITH RELIGION AT MONTREAT MEET

John A. Livingston, in News and Observer

Close by a gurgling brook in a valley between two mountain ranges that run together five miles away has been planted an auditorium here that fits so naturally into the surroundings that it seems almost a part of nature's handiwork.

It is in this auditorium, built of native stones, that the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church is being held this year. In connection with the auditorium are a dozen committee rooms that are ideal for their purpose. There is but one objection to the auditorium. It has more room than the Assembly needs.

This is the biggest gathering from the standpoint of importance in its deliberations that the Southern Presbyterian Church has. And yet there are hardly three hundred persons present. Each commissioner represents 2,500 members of the church or a majority fraction of that number of members.

This auditorium is the pride of Dr. R. C. Anderson's heart. He labored long to make it possible and the trustees of the Montreat Association have named it for him. Dr. Anderson has been president and presiding genius of Montreat since 1911, when he resigned the pastorate of the Presbyterian Church at Gastonia to come here.

Dr. Anderson has a large place in the hearts of the Presbyterians, but the commissioners attending the Assembly have been chuckling over an incident at the opening session at the expense of the doctor.

Dr. Anderson was explaining that the acoustics of the auditorium while excellent did not lend themselves so well to an audience of three hundred as it did to an audience of three thousand, which is its seating capacity.

"But if you will speak distinctly and not too fast, you do not have to speak above a conversational tone to be heard in every part of the auditorium," Dr. Anderson explained.

As proof of the statement he had just made, Dr. Anderson said he was not speaking in loud tones and asked anybody who had not heard him to hold up their hands. Of course, he meant to say if anybody had not heard him distinctly, but his Presbyterian brethren had their joke. They claimed that the doctor was trying to put something over on them, that he was using unfair tactics, and that his Irish bull had been deliberately planned. But just the same they are as proud of this auditorium as Dr. Anderson is.

* * * *

Singing is one of the features emphasized at the Assembly. Rev. G. W. Belk, of Pelzer, S. C., son of Rev. George Belk, pastor of the church here and the "Bishop of Montreat," directs the singing. At intervals selections are sung by a quartette composed of young Belk, Rev. J. B. Belk, of Piedmont, S. C.; Rev. E. L. Baker, of Carrollton, Ga., and Rev. B. F. Yandell, of Columbia, S. C.

* * * *

While many eloquent addresses have been made by prominent speakers, there is never any applause because it is a religious gathering. But the other night after the formal session had been adjourned, the brethren remained for some entertainment by McCoy Franklin, a mountaineer, who teaches at the Crossnore school, which Mrs. M. M. Sloop runs. He soon had the preachers and ruling elders applauding vigorously. Franklin imitated the various kinds of birds that sing in the mountains and did it remarkably well. His imitation of the whippoorwill brought down the house. Then he marshalled adjectives into a grand rhapsody on mountain scenery and mountain brooks, and that again caught the churchmen. But they applauded most of all after he had told briefly his life's story. Twenty-one years old before he could get a chance to go to school, he shouldered his trunk and tramped six miles to a railroad station. Twenty-five dollars represented his earthly wealth, secured by selling three pigs and a calf. He bought a ticket to Berea College, and by dint of dogged tenacity got a chance to enter the fourth grade. They let him into that because they did not have a third grade. Ditching at 7 cents an hour, cutting cordwood and doing whatever else came to hand, he worked his way through that college and went to the seminary. By the grace of God and plenty of grit, he is back again on his native heath among his own people as a Christian leader and educator. And here he was addressing the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church. No doubt it was the happiest moment of his life, for he had made good before as discriminating an audience as can be found in this nation. Then afterwards, he was the center of a big reception. One by one the doctors and elders filed by and clasped his hand. Franklin won't forget it, and those attending the Assembly won't either.

* * * *

Clear as a crystal glass is the beautiful lake nestled down here in the valley. At night electric lights mirror into its bosom the reflections of the hotels and residences on the mountain side. During the day-time schools of mountain trout can be seen engaged in frolicsome play. One of the diversions is feeding these fish. After each meal, the preachers line the bridge across the dam that holds the water in and throw bread to the fish. Some of the preachers are sure that some mighty good fishing is being missed by them. And being fishers of men, they like to be real fishermen, too. But fishing in the lake is not on the schedule of activities here, and they have to forego the pleasure.

* * * *

The valley in which is nestled Montreat is bounded on the west by the Black Mountain range and on the east by the Blue Ridge range. They come together five miles to the north. The boundary of the property owned by the Mountain Retreat Association is on the crest of these two ranges, a distance of about two miles, and extending six miles to the south from the crest of Graybeard, which is formed by the juxtaposition of the two ranges. It is a natural retreat and here one can get away from the maddening crowd, completely away. It is ideally suited for such a purpose and nowhere in the mountains is there such a natural amphitheatre on so large a scale. Eighteen miles to the north—across from Graybeard lies the peak of Mount Mitchell. There is an automobile road that runs to within three-quarters of a mile of Mitchell's peak, and a number of the visitors took the trip Saturday. An hour's walk from their hotel takes them to the top of nearby mountains and from these one can get a wonderful view of the Swannanoa valley that stretches out from east to the west with Black Mountain four miles away from Montreat and Asheville 15 miles to the southwest.

* * * *

Three hotels provide accommodations for the visitors to the Assembly. The hotels are owned by the Montreat Association. They are lighted with electricity from a dynamo run by a mountain stream, and mountain springs furnish plenty of cold water. The dining rooms are run on the democratic plan. There are no portions, but eight sit at a table and eat from the common supply of food that is served in the good old-fashioned way. Doctors of Divinity and plain laymen eat together in a comradeship that is delightful. There are judges and farmers, business men and doctors, preachers of high and low degree, but here they are all of the same rank and kind, just plain men without rank or station.

* * * *

Debate was waxing warm the other afternoon on some subject of church policy. An elder wanted to make a motion and was ruled out of order by Moderator Alexander Sprunt, and told to sit down.

"I know I am out of order, but I just wanted to tell the chair how to rule intelligently next time," shouted the elder.

"The chair wishes to inform the brother that it can rule intelligently without his help," replied Dr. Sprunt.

Needless to say the moderator and the elder are good friends. It was just a bit of repartee in which these Presbyterians delight.

EXPERIENCES

The problem of life for each of us is to take the daily grist of experience and transform it into character and personality. The mind is quick to learn, and the hand is quick to imitate; but character is a slower growth, it can not be hastened. Thought leaps like a flash of lightning to the earth's remotest bound; but character is like adding cell to cell in the woody fiber of the tree trunk.—Williard Brown Thorp.

BLESSED ARE THE PURE IN HEART

I used to wonder why I couldn't hear God's voice, but Mother made it all so clear. When good thoughts come to me, I rejoice, She says that I am hearing then God's voice.

I wondered why I couldn't see His face, But now I know His goodness fills all space, And I am seeing Him most when I bring Myself to look for good in everything. —Isla Paschal Richardson, in The Girls' Weekly.

The greatest events of an age are its best thoughts. It is the nature of thought to find its way into action.

THE WORK OF A PASTOR

(Charge to Rev. J. A. McQueen, Rockingham, N. C., June 3, 1923)

By Ruling Elder, J. E. McLaughlin, Hamlet, N. C.

Sir, I have been commissioned to deliver unto you a solemn charge.

By this, I do not take it that I am to tell you what you should do or what you should not do as pastor of this flock, but rather, I am to represent the average congregation and tell you some of the things that please and some that displease in the ministrations of a pastor.

In Jeremiah, first chapter and tenth verse, Jehovah tells his prophet, "See, I have this day set thee over the nations and over the kingdoms, to root out, and to pull down, and to destroy, and to throw down, to build and to plant." We all know that in the wake of progress there is always destruction. We destroy the tree in order to obtain material for building houses. We raze an entire block of buildings to make room for a sky scraper. We kill the seed to produce a plant.

In your service in this congregation it is likely you will be called upon to root out, pull down, destroy, throw down and certainly you will be expected to build and to plant. To root out preconceived ideas. Some of your members mayhaps have imbibed the Fosdick ideas and are denying their Christ (I sincerely hope this is not true). Some may have wandered so far from the Master, their conscience ceases to guide them aright. You will have to root out this misconception and indifference. Per chance, as you go in and out among your flock or within the circle of your acquaintances, you will find the high-minded and haughty, who find it hard to condescend to mere mortals. You will have to pull them down. Unless this community is far better than the average, you will most assuredly run afoul of sin in all its forms. Sins of commission and sins of omission, especially sins of omission, including neglect of religious duties. Your paramount duty is to destroy sin wherever or whenever you find it. There are idols here, yes, in Rockingham, even in your congregation. May I mention some? The idol of greed; the idol of selfishness; the idol of pleasure seeking. These and all other idols you may discover, you are solemnly charged to throw down.

Now let's turn to the constructive side of your ministry. You are to build characters of those over whom you are to shepherd. I am of the opinion that your greatest work of building will be among the lambs of your flock. Become thoroughly acquainted with every boy and girl in your congregation. Know them by name and have them know you. If possible get them to make a confidant of you, and insist upon them coming to you with their perplexities. The future of our Church depends upon the teaching and the training of our little ones. Do not neglect the Sunday School and Young People's Societies.

It has been demonstrated that mission work is one of the most prolific sources of growth for a church. No church is too small to have out-posts or missions, either as Sunday Schools, prayer circles, or an organized mission church.

Jeremiah was told to build and to plant. Be careful that you make the right selection of your seed when you start your process of planting. This means you are to spend much time in communion with your heavenly Father, who will guide you in the selection of your seed. Seeds of friendship; seeds of love; seeds of kindness will always bring a harvest of joy and delight. Remember, "Whatsoever ye sow, that shall ye also reap." Seek council of the heads of your church. Do not be afraid to consult your session freely and frequently and bring your congregation together in council when there are perplexing questions confronting you. Seek the judgment of experienced minds. That renowned and martyred statesman and elder of our Church, Woodrow Wilson, once said, "One cool judgment is worth a thousand councils. The thing to do is to supply light and not heat." In any deliberation, consider well the cool judgment of your elders.

To accomplish the things I have charged, you have only to preach the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, born of the Virgin Mary, died on the cross, was buried and was raised from the dead by the power of the Holy Trinity, and that He now sitteth on the right hand of God, the Father, making continual intercession for sinful man.

CHRIST THE CENTER OF ALL

Christ is the center of all history. The synagogue no less than the church recognizes the date of his birth. The more profoundly we become interested in humanity the more deeply do we see that our hopes all center in Him. Mr. Gladstone has left in his home church of Hawarden this strong testimony: "All that I write and all that I think and all that I hope is based upon the divinity of our Lord, the one eternal hope of our poor wayward race."

Woman's Auxiliary

Conducted by Mrs. J. M. McIver, Gulf, N. C.

Woman's Summer School of Missions, July 12-19, 1923, Montreat, North Carolina.

Montreat. Can't you hear her calling? In the calm voice of Christian Fellowship; in the rippling laughter of fern-fringed streams; in the noble tones of majestic mountain heights clothed in purple rhododendron and veiled in vanishing mist, she calls to the summer wanderer, "COME HITHER!" "Vacation days are sweetest spent with me." If you would heed her call!

Make your plans NOW to hear the following leaders:

Foreign Mission Text Book—Miss Anna Milligan, Educational Secretary of the United Presbyterian Church.

Home Mission Text Book—Mrs. H. N. Price, Council of Women for Home Missions.

Bible Study—Miss Grace Saxe, of the Billy Sunday Party.

Normal Classes, Methods Classes, Demonstrations, Pageants and Delightful Social Life.

For further information write to The Woman's Auxiliary, Presbyterian Church, U. S., 256-259 Field Building, St. Louis, Mo.

Six Mile Church—The young ladies of Six Mile Church gave a most interesting pageant, "In the Name of the Cross," trained by Mrs. W. S. Hamiter and two daughters, Misses Emma and Mary, on last Sunday evening, May 27, 1923.

The Fort Mill quartette rendered the musical part of the pageant. Our pastor, Rev. W. S. Hamiter, gave a very interesting talk which was very effective. There was a large attendance and a generous offering, which was used for paying for the lights. The names of the young ladies who gave the pageant were, Misses Alta and Florence Rogers, Miss Beulah Yarborough, Misses Laura Mae, Ola Belle, Lillian and Grace Pettus, Miss Mae Belle Harris, Miss Rebecca Howey, Miss Ida Gordon, and Mrs. Jno. A. Kell.

This church is 103 years old, having recently been remodeled. It is the home church of many prominent citizens of Charlotte. A few of which are as follows: Mr. R. M. Miller and Miller family, Mr. R. A. Dunn, Mr. W. H. Belk, Dr. W. O. Nisbet, the late Benjamin D. Heath and Heath family, and Rev. W. E. McIlwain, D.D., formerly of Charlotte. Dr. McIlwain became a member of this church at the age of about 16 years. All of these friends whose names I have mentioned were very generous in helping remodel this church.

We expect to have another "Home Coming Day" this summer, which will be announced later and hope to have all these friends with us.

Mrs. John A. Kell, Secretary Woman's Auxiliary.

Red Springs, N. C.—At the regular meeting, May 30th, of our Woman's Auxiliary the Mexican Fiesta was presented by members of the girls' circle. The stage, decorated with potted plants, and the Mexican colors, was simply and tastefully arranged. The program, under supervision of Mrs. J. H. Townsend and Mrs. W. E. Sikes, was impressively rendered. A liberal offering was received for the school for Mexican girls in Texas.

At conclusion of the program, the members of the Auxiliary, and visitors repaired to the nearby manse, where delightful refreshments were served, and a social hour very much enjoyed.

Mrs. B. F. MacMillan, of Red Springs, writes the editor as follows in regard to the regular work of this Auxiliary: "The women and girls of our church are organized into nine circles, including a home circle. We study Foreign and Home Missions, four months to each, and then have Bible study four months. Are now studying Exodus, using Grace Sakes' exposition. Have completed her study on Genesis and Acts, in last month."

Wilmington, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of St Andrew's Presbyterian Church held its May Auxiliary meeting Monday the 28th, in the Memorial Hall of the Church. The president, Mrs. T. A. Lawther presided.

After a brief business session, the meeting was turned over to the program committee.

The devotional was led by Mrs. J. C. Stewart, after which a lovely program was presented in the form of a "Mexican Fiesta." The hall was beautiful in the Mexican colors and flowers with the American flag as a back-ground. A very urgent appeal for a Mexican girls' school in Texas was made by the six girls participating in the play.

The Auxiliary responded with a free-will offering to the amount of $62.65.

A special feature of the social hour was the cutting of the birthday cake with eleven candles representing the Eleventh Birthday of the Auxiliary.

Mrs. A. M. Mattocks, Sec.

Columbia, S. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of the First Presbyterian Church celebrated the eleventh anniversary of the founding of the Auxiliary movement on Monday afternoon with a Mexican Fiesta. There was a festival of flowers and the rooms were a bower of spring blossoms in riotous bloom. Red, white and green, the Mexican national colors were introduced in the decorations. Mrs. B. L. Parkinson, the president, presided and received the Mexican guests as they arrived. When they had been introduced these Mexican girls gaily dressed in Mexican costumes with tambourines, presented a beautiful pageant, making an appeal for the school in Texas for Mexican girls. They also sang two songs to popular airs. These girls were members of Miss Margaret Spratt's circle and were Mrs. J. Robt. Durham, Misses Lois Jordan, Margaret Spratt, Lucia Murchison, Jean Wilson, Caroline Banks and Miss McDonald. At the close they took up a collection for the school in their tambourines which amounted to $55. During the program a telegram was received from the Synodical in Texas stating that they would match every dollar up to $25,000 that was given by the Auxiliaries in the Southern Presbyterian Church to build this school for Mexican girls.

During the social hour Mrs. B. H. Abbott and her circle served delicious Mexican refreshments.

The attractive decorations were supervised by Mrs. W. T. Aycock, chairman of the committee on decorations.

There was a large attendance for the unique affair and a delightful afternoon was enjoyed.

Mrs. Wyatt Taylor.

Our Jewish Mission—At the Spring meeting of Orange Presbyterial held April 17-19, with day sessions in historical Alamance Church, and night sessions in the Church of the Covenant and Westminster, Greensboro, no speaker was heard with more interest, attention and genuine pleasure than was Rev. Paul L. Berman, of Baltimore, representing the newest phase of Assembly's Home Mission Work, the Jewish Mission in that city. This mission has been in operation several years, and is under the auspices of the Northern and Southern Presbyterian Board of Missions. Mr. Berman gave a close insight into the work conducted by the Jewish Mission (by name "The Emmanuel Neighborhood House.") The methods used are similar to those used in other missions. A superintendent and an able corps of workers are employed. The workers are Hebrew Christians familiar with the habits and customs of the Hebrew people. Through Bible classes and different organizations, many children and adults are reached. Mr. Berman says one of his mediums of service is the reading room. The men gather around at evening, which chance gives him the personal contact, and an opportunity of sowing seeds of the Christian religion. His many, and oft-times pathetic illustrations convinced all his hearers of the sincerity of his work. The Church has only recently awakened to its opportunity of Christianization of the Jews, many of whom are hungering for the Truth.

Mr. Berman will greatly appreciate the interest and prayers of our church people in behalf of our work there in Baltimore. He will be glad to supply literature in Yiddish, Hebrew and English to all those who desire to distribute same in your own town or city. His address is 1523 E. Lombard St., Baltimore, Md.

Charlotte, N. C.—An interesting and most helpful conference of the country churches of Mecklenburg County was held in the Second Presbyterian Church of Charlotte, Monday morning, June 4th from 10:30 to 12:30. A letter of invitation had been sent to every officer and secretary of each cause of all the woman's organizations of the country churches. And informal invitations were extended to the women of the Charlotte churches. With result that over 125 women came together to study and discuss the problems of the woman's work in the Auxiliary.

The program was as follows: Address of welcome, 10:30 to 10:40, Mrs. E. F. McGowan, district chairman; Devotional and talk on Spiritual Life, 10:40 to 11, Mrs. R. S. Query, second vice-president of Presbyterial; Discussion of Standard of Excellence, 11 to 11:15, Miss Annie Wilson, Synodical secretary of literature; Discussion of Budget and Tithing, 11:15 to 11:30, Mrs. J. B. Spillman, president of Mecklenburg Presbyterial; Group Conferences, 11:30 to 12; General Conference, 12 to 12:30.

The group conferences were led by the following ladies: Foreign Mission, Mrs. E. M. Cole, Mrs. L. W. Brown, Presbyterial Secretary of Foreign Missions; Assembly Home Missions, Mrs. W. B. Taylor, Mrs. A. V. Russell; S. P. and C. Home Missions, Miss Sallie Phillips, Mrs. C. C. Anderson; Presbyterial Secretary of S. P. and C., Mrs. W. B. Hodge, Presbyterial Secretary of Orphanages; Orphanage, Mrs. W. B. Hodge, Mrs. P. H. Harrelson, Mrs. S. O. Brooks; Spiritual Life, Mrs. A. R. Craig, Presbyterial Secretary of Spiritual Life, Mrs. J. R. Irwin, Mrs. E. A. Ridgeway; Literature, Mrs. E. V. Irwin, Presbyterial Secretary of Literature, Miss Annie Wilson, Mrs. V. P. Rosseau, Mrs. Alston Morrison; C. E. and M. R., Mrs. W. H. Fowler, Mrs. W. W. Pharr; Y. P. Work, Mrs. Connor Reid, Presbyterial Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. C. H. Little, President, Mrs. H. J. Spencer, Mrs. Parks Kirkpatrick, Mrs. W. S. Hamiter, Mrs. E. F. McGowan; Vice-Presidents and Program Chairmen, Mrs. J. B. Spillman, Mrs. J. G. Baird, First Vice-President of Presbyterial; Secretaries, Mrs. C. N. Sloan, Mrs. M. E. Peabody, Presbyterial Recording Secretary; Treasurers, Presbyterial Treasurer, Mrs. F. C. Roberts.

Mrs. E. F. McGowan, District Chairman welcomed the ladies in her usual gracious manner. An invitation was extended to all Presbyterians to make use of the comfortable rest room of the Second Church at any time they might be in the city. Miss Terry, Executive Secretary of Woman's work of the Second Church and Mrs. Glenn, Hostess of the church were both introduced to the ladies at this time Mrs. McGowan explaining that these two ladies were to be found at the church at all times and that they were always ready to lend assistance to any one.

Mrs. McGowan then made it clear that the object of the conference was to act as a sort of clearing house for the numerous problems that are constantly presenting themselves in the work of the women in the Auxiliary. Each woman was asked to present her particular problem either in the group conferences, or toward the close of the general conference at which time there would be an open discussion.

Several decisive problems were discussed in the main conference. The first one:

How best to develop the Spiritual Life of the Organization was handled in a most capable manner by Mrs. R. S. Query, Secretary Spiritual Life, Second Church. Mrs. Query read the 5th chapter of James and gave a most earnest talk on the importance of fervent prayer. She said, "The deepest need of our time is a Spiritual need, the greatest aid in Christianizing the world is our prayers."

Miss Annie Wilson, Synodical Secretary of Literature, presented another most important problem. How to grade your Auxiliary. Miss Wilson probably has a more thorough knowledge of this subject than anyone in the work, and in her clear concise way she made the matter very plain to all. Miss Wilson said that each Auxiliary should be carefully graded according to the Standard of Excellence. This is the pulse of our Mecklenburg Presbyterial—every up-to-date Auxiliary keeps before its members a Standard of Excellence wall chart.

Mrs. McGowan then stated that one more and perhaps the greatest bug-a-bear is the question of how to make the budget conform to specifications of the General Assembly. She then introduced Mrs. J. B. Spillman, saying that she would "Give the last word" on the subject.

Mrs. Spillman spoke most interestingly and clearly upon the subject of finance. She said, "We should begin the study of the subject not only with the view of bringing our Auxiliary into line with the churches plan of finance, but of bringing our church into line."

I want to set before you three great financial plans.

1. God's plan for financing his Kingdom.
2. The Church's plan for financing our share.
3. A plan of finance in the home by which we may co-operate in these great plans.

First, God's plan, He has said, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature," and He has a plan by which this expedition may be financed; an adequate plan, a plan with a promise. "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse that there may be meat in mine house and prove me now herewith saith the Lord of hosts if I will not open the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing that there will not be room to receive it."

Mrs. Spillman emphasized the obligatory nature of the tithe. Unless the tithe be observed our worship does not signify pure worship; also the fact that it would solve all the financial problems of the Church, at home and abroad; the church coffers would be full—overflowing. Mrs. Spillman then explained the making out of a budget taking as an example a small Auxiliary and making it out on the black board.

This conference was considered most helpful and the President together with the District Chairman is planning to hold similar conferences in each district of the Presbyterial.

A period of 30 minutes was given to group conferences, each group retired to a separate class room and spent the time asking and answering questions and discussing informally the special phases of their work.

The last half-hour was spent in general discussion of the work of the Auxiliary.

WHAT, WHEN, WHERE?

Mrs. R. G. Lowry, Sec. Lit. Lexington (Ky.) Presbyterial

What should I know about?
The work of the Southern Presbyterian Church for the Secretary of Literature.
When should I learn about it?
All the year around.
Where can I find out about it?
From the Synodical and Presbyterial Secretaries.
What did I forget last year?
Some forgot to distribute literature, or to have a literature table. Did I?
When should I do this?
Distribute literature or have a literature table at every Circle or Auxiliary meeting.
Where can I read on the subject?
In leaflets secured from the Woman's Auxiliary, 250 Field Building, St. Louis, Mo.
What did I forget as an officer?
Some forgot to send their reports in time for the Presbyterial. Did I?
Some forgot to organize Mission Study Classes. Did I?
Some forgot to canvass for the Survey and the Prayer Calendar. Did I?
When did I forget the Best Methods?
Some forgot to urge the Year Book of Programs as one of the Best Methods for building up a good Auxiliary. Did I?
Where did I fail?
In studying the "Duties" of a Secretary of Literature, and the best plans and methods outlined at our Presbyterial meetings. I should know these plans, if I am to be a loyal Secretary of Literature. (From the Survey, repeated by request.)

To do evil that good may come of it is for bunglers, in politics as well as morals.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT

(Conducted under the auspices of Synod's Committee of Sunday Schools and Young People's Work, in the interest of Sunday Schools and Young People's Societies)

W. ARNETT GAMBLE, JR., Editor

ADDRESS ALL COMMUNICATIONS TO THE DEPARTMENT EDITOR DAVIDSON, N. C.

EDITOR'S LOOKOUT

The young people of the Synods of North Carolina and South Carolina are meeting this week in their annual conferences. The South Carolina young people are meeting at the Presbyterian College, Clinton, June 11th to 17th, and the North Carolina young people are meeting at Davidson College, June 12th to 19th. It is very fitting that the young people should meet at these two colleges which are doing so much to fit leaders for the Church. The boys of the Church seem to attend better the conferences held at the boys' colleges, and the girls have always attended the conferences in larger numbers than the boys.

The delegates at the conferences are having a feast of inspiration and information and fellowship, and will come home strengthened and enthusiastic. This enthusiasm and earnestness should not be allowed to go to waste, but plans should be made for immediately getting the people who stayed at home aroused to more earnest work and better plans. Those at home this week should be praying for the influences of the conferences, praying for the young people and for the leaders. There are great possibilities in these annual gatherings of our young people. Gradually the programs are being bettered and fitted more to the needs of the young people, and the attendances will doubtless increase from year to year.

We would like to speak a word to our young people and their leaders about proverbial "summer slump." We hope that not a single Christian Endeavor society or other organization will "disband for the summer." The devil works the entire year and there should be only a very rare occasion when our young people should suspend operations. The society that keeps going through the summer will be stronger in the fall, and can do some fine work even if the weather is hot. Stand by your guns, young people!

Sunday School

By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.

JUNE 17, 1923

ESTHER, THE PATRIOT QUEEN

Lesson: The Book of Esther. (A Survey of Esther's Life.)

GOLDEN TEXT—"Who knoweth whether thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this?"—Esther 4:14.

SCRIPTURE LESSON

13 Then Mordecai commanded to answer Esther, Think not with thyself that thou shalt escape in the king's house, more than all the Jews.

14 For if thou altogether holdest thy peace at this time, then shall there enlargement and deliverance arise to the Jews from another place; but thou and thy father's house shall be destroyed: and who knoweth whether thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this?

15 Then Esther bade them return Mordecai this answer; 16 Go, gather together all the Jews that are present in Shushan, and fast ye for me, and neither eat nor drink three days, night or day: I also and my maidens will fast likewise; and so will I go in unto the king, which is not according to the law; and if I perish, I perish.

17 So Mordecai went his way, and did according to all that Esther had commanded him.

Ch. 5:1 Now it came to pass on the third day, that Esther put on her royal apparel, and stood in the inner court of the king's house, over against the king's house: and the king sat upon his royal throne in the royal house, over against the gate of the house.

2 And it was so, when the king saw Esther the queen standing in the court, that she obtained favour in his sight: and the king held out to Esther the golden sceptre that was in his hand. So Esther drew near, and touched the top of the sceptre.

3 Then said the king unto her, What wilt thou, queen Esther? and what is thy request? It shall be even given thee to the half of the kingdom.

SHORTER CATECHISM

Q. 41. Wherein is the moral law summarily comprehended?
A. The moral law is summarily comprehended in the ten commandments.

Esther was a Jewish orphan, at Shushan, the capital of the Persian empire. She was the adopted daughter of her cousin, Mordecai, the son of her father's brother. She had been made the Queen of Ahasuerus by the King of Persia. Haman had been made the prime minister of the king. Because Mordecai, who sat at the king's gate, did not render Haman the homage he desired, he hated him and plotted the utter destruction of his family and all his countrymen throughout the empire. Haman obtained from the king a decree for the entire extermination of the Jews, and offered their spoils to the king as an inducement. In this emergency Mordecai endeavors to induce Esther to interpose for the preservation of her people. We will attend to The Motives Mordecai Employs; The Difficulties Esther Encounters; Her Decision and Plan; The Success She Won.

I. The Motives Mordecai Uses

He sends her a message containing the incentives that should control her conduct. He tells her that she need not expect to escape the threatening massacre if she does not interpose and that her own life is endangered. He asserts that though the queen and in the palace, she will perish, as she belongs to the prescribed race. He appeals not only to personal love of life, but to patriotism or love of countrymen appointed to death. He assures her that even if she declines to act God would preserve His people in some other way, while she would be slain. He directs attention to her social position and advantages and suggests that perhaps in the providence of God she was called to be queen to meet just such an emergency as this. He intimates that she was placed in her position by an all-wise and gracious God for the very purpose of being His instrument in delivering Israel. Love of life, patriotism and acting as Jehovah's agent for a noble purpose were all cogent motives.

II. The Difficulties Esther Encounters

To safeguard the king's person, a law had been passed that if anyone approached the king without being bidden he should be put to death, unless the king lifted toward him or her the golden sceptre in token of favor and acceptance. Esther had not been invited into Ahasuerus' presence for 30 days, and was not assured of her standing with him. She knew that he had recently repudiated Vashti, though a beautiful woman, from being queen because of disobedience to his orders. Going into his presence unasked might consign her to immediate death. The law might be executed, if the king was displeased, and she might lose her social position, her comforts, her honors and her life. Under such conditions it is not wonderful that a defenseless woman should hesitate to seek her husband, avow her lineage, prefer her petition and entreat his favor. Had Esther been a weak, selfish, cowardly woman, she could not have pursued the course she did. But her faith in Jehovah, her patriotism, her love of righteousness, and her self-consecration rendered her equal to her task.

III. Her Decision and Plan

She manifests decision of character in this crisis of her life. All who perform noble deeds must reveal the same quality. It was displayed by Ruth, the Moabitess. Esther determines to make the effort at all risks. Her sublime language is, "I will go into the presence of the king, and if I perish, I perish." She decides to succeed or to die in the attempt. But she adopts a wise plan. She proposes that the Jews in Shushan fast and pray for three days, and that she and her maidens do the same. She cares for her physical appearance and makes herself as attractive to Ahasuerus as possible. She arrays herself in royal apparel for conquest. Thus she seeks the king. She does everything in her power to win her case, and allies herself with the Almighty.

IV. The Success She Wins

She succeeds beyond her highest expectations. When has human power supplemented by Divine might every failed? Ahasuerus is won, the golden sceptre is raised and any petition she prefers is granted, even to "half the kingdom." Her life is saved, she is honored by the king, she gains more influence with him than she ever had before, for she manifests loftier qualities. Her people are preserved. Her cousin, Mordecai, is promoted and honored. Her nation attains a higher position in the provinces of the Persian empire than they ever had before. Haman, the cruel and vindictive enemy of her race, is condemned and hanged with his sons on the gallows he had prepared for Mordecai.

Christian Endeavor

By Rev. J. G. Garth, Chairman of Synod's Committee of Sabbath Schools and Young People's Work.

HOW TO WIN FRIENDS

M., June 18—By Generosity: Gen. 13:1-13.

T., June 19—By Love: Ruth 1:6-18.

W., June 20—By Honesty: I Sam. 18:1-4.

T., June 21—By Understanding: John 11:1-5, 35, 36.

F., June 22—By Mutual Service: Rom. 16:1-7.

S., June 23—By Attraction of Character: Phil. 8:19-30.

Sun., June 24—Topic: How Can We Win Friends and Keep Them. Prov. 27:5, 6, 9, 10.

Friendship is called "that mysterious cement of the soul." It binds human hearts together in a joyous fellowship. Friendship is one of the elements of love. In fact, the word is the past-perfect tense of the old Anglo-Saxon verb, to love. But it has come to mean the tie of a strong interest and affection, rather than a romantic love between the sexes, which creates our homes. Of course, the finest place for friendship is in the home, and the association we have with our parents and brothers and sisters ought to be the sweetest friendship on earth. It is said that many brothers and sisters drift apart, and become distant, and sometimes even bitter toward each other. This is often due to the spirit of selfishness, the expectation of receiving more than we are willing to give, and that ruins any friendship. We must be considerate and unselfish at home, if we would cement the hearts of brothers and sisters in friendship.

But this topic has a more direct bearing on friendships between persons who have no blood kinship. How shall we win such friends and keep them?

Seek Worthy Friends

A boy is known by the company he keeps, and companionships often ripen into friendships. We think people are interesting who like the things we like, and as we associate with them, we find ourselves agreeing with their notions and falling in with their desires. If they are good, true, noble, pure-hearted people, let us make them our friends. If they express evil thoughts, do evil deeds, plan evil pleasures, we should withdraw from them. Let us seek worthy friends always.

Cultivate a Friendly Spirit

He that would have friends must show himself friendly. A kind face, a merry smile, a genial, cordial manner, will win its way into other hearts. We must be neighborly, sociable, companionable, and not be silent and keep off to ourselves. These grumpy, speechless folks look like they are very unhappy. We humans want to be sociable, and therefore we love sociable people. Loneliness is the child of selfishness. Friendship is like the air, ready to come in if we open our doors and windows. "The only way to have a friend is to be one." Let us be sincere in seeking friends. The business world depends on pleasant manners for trade; but we should not be merely polite and artful in meeting people, purposing to get more than we give to them. Also we must avoid feeling and looking superior and condescending. Folks like to suppose they are as good as you are, and if you impress them that you think yourself better than they, no friendship will develop between you and them.

Friends Should Have Mutual Interests

Oil and water won't mix. Their natures are different. Our friendships are usually formed with people who like similar things. If you wish certain people to be friendly with you, learn to enjoy and enter into their interest. Listen with sympathy to their problems, and hold sacred their confidences and revelations. Look with favor on their plans and help them when you can render aid. Christians ought to find much in common with each other, and young church members should make their friendships among their fellow Christians, and their work and play, their difficulties and problems, will be yours, and together you will work, and encourage each other in the Christian life.

Friends Should Be Unselfish

The very germ of friendship is unselfish regard for the interests of our friends. We must be generous toward them, sympathize, give, think of them before our own selves; rejoice when they are praised; be glad when they prosper, and share your good things with them. Don't be jealous or envious of them. Don't abuse friendship by using it to your advantage alone. Friendships perish by riding a willing horse to death. Remember it is finer to be a friend than to have one. Be careful of criticizing friends. Don't carry a jest too far with them. Friendship is like a flower: tender, though beautiful, and its roots may take years to get deep hold in the heart. Therefore water the plant with love and service, and in the years to come, it will be your pride to say, I have a friend.

NEWS FROM THE FRONT

A Junior Christian Endeavor Society was recently organized in the Cornelius, N. C., Presbyterian Church. On Sunday night, June 3rd, 19 of the 20 Juniors took part in sentence prayers. A fine record for any Christian organization! On Sunday night, the 10th, the Juniors gave a program before the whole church congregation, and did it well.

The members of the Christian Endeavor Training Class of Davidson, College have done an enterprising thing in getting out note-books for the North Carolina Conference. The note-book is designed to promote the deputations plan of the class. The members offer themselves to the churches needing them, and believe that it pays to advertise. The note-book carries information about C. E. in general and about the class and its work. The students do not feel that they have attained, but they continue to study every Sunday during the college year and are happy if their services are found at all helpful.

SOUTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE CLOSE-UPS

The program of the South Carolina Young People's Conference includes a number of recognized leaders in our Church and particularly in its work for the young people.

Rev. R. F. Kirkpatrick, D.D., of the First Church, of Anderson, came to his present post after a fine service with the West End Presbyterian Church, of Atlanta. While in Georgia he served as president of the Georgia C. E. Union and did much to enlist the support of our ministers for the C. E. work. He is now vice-president of the All-South Extension Committee of Christian Endeavor.

Rev. H. W. DuBose, D.D., of the First Church, of Spartanburg, is known as one of the Church's strong men and has been doing a fine work since going to Spartanburg.

Rev. W. T. Thompson, D.D., serves as Professor of Religious Pedagogy and Sunday School Work at Union Seminary, but in addition to this finds time, or makes it, to address a widely distributed number of meetings, and is a charming and helpful speaker.

Mr. S. Wilkes Dendy, of Columbia Seminary, served for nearly three years as a C. E. field secretary and is affectionately known as "Sunshine of Dixie" Dendy. Any set of young people would be fortunate to have him in their gathering.

Rev. J. P. Marion, D.D., of the First Church, of Sumter, has been behind the whole conference program and preparations, and to him a great part of the success of the conference will have to be attributed.

Mr. Walter A. Johnson, athletic director of the Presbyterian College, is a great coach. The way he can take a group of college boys and make them fight for the honor of their school in the various contests is the talk of all who have observed his work. The South Carolina young people are fortunate to have him in their conference as director of their athletic work.

Rev. J. B. Belk, pastor of the church at Piedmont, is known by a large number as a worth-while leader of song and of young people. His smile that won't come off and his helpful influence will add a great deal to the value of the Clinton conference.

Rev. Melton Clark, D.D., Professor of English Bible at Columbia Seminary, is a charming and forceful speaker. He is a real friend of the young people, believes in them, and supports every worth-while movement for advancing their interests.

WHO'S WHO AT THE N. C. CONFERENCE

The young people in the state of the long-leaf pine have a real feast spread before them this week in the speakers and conference leaders making up the Davidson Conference program.

Rev. Flournoy Shepperson, D.D., pastor of the Purity Presbyterian Church, Chester, S. C., is so good that he is in demand for the conferences in both the Carolinas.

Rev. W. B. McIlwaine, of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, of Charlotte, is pastor of a church that has a large number of young people in it, and he is a real leader of young people. The committee was fortunate in securing him for the Senior Bible course.

Mrs. S. H. Askew, Atlanta, has a great heart for young people, and is a writer and conference leader in as many places as her time and strength will permit. All who know her, love her, and it is good to be able to have her in the N. C. Conference again.

Miss Virginia Nourse, of the Assembly's Training School, certainly knows Sunday School work, and the Tar-Heel young people are glad to have her again as a teacher and moving spirit.

Rev. Woodrow Hassell comes from far away Marugame, Japan, to teach the Foreign Mission course. To be a moulder of thought in a growing international nation is an enviable work and each day the young people are getting new views of the work in the far East.

Rev. Samuel Glasgow, D.D., Knoxville, Tenn., is present again to lead the vesper services, tell his interesting stories, and exert an uplifting influence. He has a hustling church in Knoxville, and it is no wonder.

Miss Julia Lake Skinner, of White's Bible School, New York, and formerly with Dr. Glasgow, in Knoxville, is giving a much-needed course in Young People's Society Work. In her the young people have a real friend and helper.

Rev. Homer McMillan, D.D., Secretary of our Home Missions Committee, is a leader recognized both in our Southern Church and outside of its bounds, and his address will be well worth-while.

Rev. C. M. Richards, D.D., of the Davidson Church, is a staunch supporter of the worth-while principles that our Church has ever stood for, is a well-informed pastor and an interesting and helpful speaker.

Mr. Dwight M. Chalmers, Union Seminary, has charge of the athletic work for the boys, and Miss Marion Moore, of Statesville, this work for the girls.

Rev. J. J. Murray, Wilmington, is doing a fine work for Home Missions in Wilmington Presbytery, and is well fitted to teach the course in this subject.

Presbytery's Committee on Sabbath Schools and Young People's Work in Bethel Presbytery, S. C., has put on four one-day rallies throughout the Presbytery, the bounds of the Presbytery being contiguous with those of the York District of the State C. E. Union. The plan of the rallies follows closely those of C. E. rallies. The committee has also made an appropriation of $25 to the C. E. District, to be used in the District Conventions.

REPORTERS' HONOR ROLL

- Carey P. Lowrance, Mooresville, N. C.*
- Paul W. Rawlins, Greensboro, N. C.
- Miss Eunice Long, Greensboro, N. C.*
- Miss Minnie Hopkins, Concord, N. C.*
- Miss Leila Hubbard, Lumber Bridge, N. C.
- Miss Elizabeth Kirkland, Route 5, Durham, N. C.
- Miss Aline Whitener, Hickory, N. C.
- Miss Maud Little, Charlotte, N. C.*
- Mrs. Z. V. Turlington, Mooresville, N. C.
- Miss Bess D. Arrowood, Morganton, N. C.
- Miss Kate Sutton, Fayetteville, N. C.
- Mrs. W. H. Howell, Wilmington, N. C.*
- Miss Bessie Cox, Lowell, N. C.
- Eugene Brown Morgan, Concord, N. C.
- Miss Rachel Beall, Durham, N. C.*
- Miss Anne Sample, Hendersonville, N. C.*
- J. M. Carr, Davidson College, N. C.
- Miss Ruth Beard, Cornelius, N. C.
- Miss Lillie Gilleland, Greensboro, N. C.
- J. M. Harvey, Wilmington, N. C.
- Chalmers R. Carr, Mooresville, N. C.
- Garton Pearce, Fayetteville, N. C.
- Miss Annie Davis, Greensboro, N. C.
- Mrs. Chas. Lilly, Sanford, N. C.
- Mrs. E. C. Murray, St. Pauls, N. C.
- M. DeLorme, Sumter, S. C.
- Miss Elizabeth Falk, Maxton, N. C.
- Miss Isabel Jean Lamont, Raeford, N. C.
- Miss Margaret McQueen, Rowland, N. C.
- Miss Alma Culp, Mooresville, N. C.
- Rev. R. C. Wilson, McConnellsville, S. C.

*Additional reports.

Church News

CHRISTIAN WORKERS' ASSOCIATION MEET AT MONTREAT

The Christian Workers' Association of the Southern Presbyterian Church will hold its annual meeting this summer at Montreat during the Young People's Conference, June 19-28. All of the members of the association and all other employed Christian workers are urged to take advantage of the splendid Advanced Leadership Courses offered during this conference for young people.

NEW BOOKS

"Surprising Antonia," by Dorothy Foster Gilman. "Our Little Yugoslav Cousin," by Clara Vostrovsky Winslow.

These books are from the Page Company, Boston, Mass. This firm sends out the best children's books that we know. They are for all ages and are always pure in sentiment. Parents can make no mistake in placing their publications in the hands of their children.

THE NEW PRESIDENT OF AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE

At a recent meeting of the board of trustees of Agnes Scott College, James Ross McCain, Ph.D., was elected president of the institution to succeed the late lamented Dr. F. H. Gaines, who founded the institution and was its only president until the time of his death.

James Ross McCain was born near Covington, Tenn., April 9, 1881, the son of John I. and Lula Todd McCain. He received the B.A., degree from Erskine College in 1900 and the M.A. degree from the same institution in 1906. He studied law at Mercer University, graduating with the LL.B. degree in 1901. He took the M.A. degree in history at the University of Chicago in 1911 and the Ph.D. degree in history and economics at Columbia University in 1914.

During the years 1901-03, he practiced law in Spartanburg, S. C. with J. T. Johnson, then Congressman and later U. S. Judge. In September, 1903, he became principal of the Covington (Tenn.) High School and continued in this place for two years. In 1905 he started the Darlington School in Rome, Ga., and was headmaster of the institution for ten years.

In 1915 Dr. McCain was called to Agnes Scott College as registrar and professor of economics and sociology. He has been with the college since that time. In May, 1920 he was elected a member of the board of trustees and made vice-president of the institution.

Dr. McCain has published three works bearing on Georgia history: "The Early History of Slavery in Georgia," "The Executive in Proprietary Georgia," and "Georgia as a Proprietary Province."

In 1906 he married Miss Pauline Martin, of Covington, Ga., and they have four children, two boys and two girls.

Dr. McCain takes an active interest in church affairs, being a member of the Decatur Presbyterian Church and clerk of the session. He is a member of the Stewardship Committee of the General Assembly and also a member of the Assembly's Home Mission Committee.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Harmony Presbytery stands adjourned to meet in Lake City Presbyterian Church, June 19th (Tuesday), at 12 m. W. H. Workman, S. C.

Piedmont Presbytery—Licentiate S. H. Fulton was ordained by a commission of Piedmont Presbytery at Honea Path, June 3d, and was installed pastor of that church. In the afternoon of the same day, he was also installed pastor of Broadway Church at Belton. His address is Honea Path, S. C.

That evening, candidate G. W. Belk, Jr., was ordained by a commission of the same Presbytery, and was installed pastor of the Pelzer Church. His address will be Pelzer, S. C.

Robert Adams, S. C.

Pendleton, S. C., June 4, 1923.

Charleston, Second Church—Through the generosity of a member of this church, the series of sermons preached by the pastor some weeks ago,—"Why I Believe the Bible is the Word of God"—have been printed and are now being distributed to the college students of the State. This is a worthy and thoughtful endeavor and should receive the commendation of the church. A copy of this booklet is available for each family of the congregation. Read it and pass it on. A book on the shelf does no one any good.

NORTH CAROLINA

Ellerbe Church—Messrs. W. C. Rourck, J. H. McRae, Tom Cranford and Melvin Lowe went to Cheraw last Saturday to place an order for 40,000 brick to be used in erecting the new Presbyterian church building at Ellerbe.

The work will start within this month, and it is hoped to get it completed by October 1st. The building will be of brick colonial veneer, with the auditorium 35x68 and seating 350. Four class rooms open on to the auditorium, affording seating space for about 50 more.

The congregation owns a lot 150x150, on Ballard Street, opposite the new school building; on this lot is the manse that was recently built at a cost of $4,000. The church and fitting same will cost between $8,000 and $10,000. It is interesting to note that at the Mecklenburg Presbytery in Charlotte early in April, Rev. Mr. Rourck made a short talk on the new church proposition of Ellerbe and at its conclusion Mr. Belk, of the Belk chain of stores, volunteered to pay for half the brick needed for the erection.

Edenton, Mitchener Memorial—This church was recently favored with a visit by Rev. A. W. Crawford, superintendent of Synod's missions, who preached at both the morning and evening hours on Sunday. His sermons were of a high order, and greatly appreciated by those who heard them.

Superintendent Crawford and his splendid committee are doing an ever-increasing and indispensable work in our Synod; and the churches, recognizing and appreciating this fact, are heartily co-operating with them.

Mitchener Memorial Church is annually paying her quota to all regular benevolent causes, and in addition is responding to some of the special calls. This church has an increasing number of willing tithers, and has increased its gifts to benevolent causes about 600 per cent within the last four years.

Children's Day was observed the third Sunday in May. An interesting and inspiring program on Missions in Brazil was rendered, and a liberal offering was made to that work.

The money has been secured for repairs and improvements on our church buildings, and the work is about to begin. W. T. Wadley, Pastor.

Rockingham—On Sunday evening, June 3rd, Rev. J. A. McQueen, was duly installed pastor of the Rockingham Presbyterian Church. Mecklenburg Presbytery appointed Rev. John J. Douglas, of Wadesboro, to take charge of the installation service and to propound the constitutional questions to pastor and congregation. Ruling elder J. E. McLaughlin, of Hamlet, was appointed to charge the pastor, and Rev. A. T. Young, of Hamlet, the congregation. Mr. Douglas took for his text, "I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ, for it is the power of salvation, first to the Jew and then to the Greek." He delivered a most entertaining address. The charge of elder McLaughlin is printed elsewhere in this issue. Rev. Mr. Young told the congregation things they were expected to do as co-workers with their pastor.

The congregation has just bought a manse. This will be used until another larger in size and better in location can be secured. The officers have seen to it that this house has been put into good condition and made as comfortable as possible. The women of the Auxiliary and others have "pounded" the occupants of the manse very generously and have remembered them very thoughtfully in many respects and ways.

J. E. McLaughlin.

ALABAMA

Tuscaloosa—The First Presbyterian Church is to be cleared of debt at once. On the completion of the new building, which with its furnishings cost $175,000, the congregation found itself with a debt of $55,000. Recently Mrs. James Spence, who had already given so liberally, proposed to contribute one-half of the debt on condition that the congregation immediately raise the other half. The offer was enthusiastically and gratefully accepted by the congregation.

The fondest hopes of Mrs. Spence, who is now advanced in years, and who is held in deepest affection by the whole congregation, has been to see the building of her church home not only completed, but freed from every incumbrance. The first of these hopes was realized a little more than a year ago. The second will be reached now not many days hence when the bonds that have been and are yet outstanding against the building will be burned.

Chas. M. Boyd Pastor.

ARKANSAS

Arkansas C. E. News—Charles F. Evans Southern Secretary United Society of Christian Endeavor. Starting a tour in Arkansas on the night of the most terrible cloudburst in the history of the state, which sent water down the streets of Hot Springs nine feet deep, carrying waves that much higher, and causing damage of more than a million dollars to the beautiful city which so splendidly entertained the All-South Christian Endeavor Convention last July, Southern Secretary Evans went to the far western side of the state and for ten days toured in the "Strawberry Section," where the big, ripe, red, luscious fruit was delicious and abundant.

The first meeting was with those wonderful Endeavorers in the Tuberculosis Sanitarium at Booneville, where there is a splendid Senior Society of more than 50 members, and an excellent Junior Society of about a dozen members. A Workers' Conference and a Junior meeting filled the afternoon, followed by a splendid mass meeting of all ages in the evening. Dr. Stewart, superintendent of this very splendid institution, is an enthusiastic Endeavorer, and took as much interest in the meetings as did any member of the society. This society purchased a complete Christian Endeavor Library, and at once will start a campaign to make its members more efficient.

Ft. Smith and a banquet! The two naturally associate themselves in the mind of a Christian Endeavor Secretary, as those Endeavorers seem to know to the nth degree just how to put on a real Christian Endeavor banquet, with lots of good food and fine fun, and this trip was no exception, as more than sixty of the finest Endeavorers in the state enjoyed the banquet hour with Secretary Evans, after which the evening meeting came, with more than eighty present, ninety per cent of whom were under 25 years of age, from all societies in and near Ft. Smith.

The work in and around Ft. Smith is being directed by Mrs. Earl Bullock Varnadore, Mrs. Hattie Carmichael and Mrs. Eunice Shipley, all of whom are of the cream of Christian Endeavor workers in Arkansas, and who for years have been assisting the state go steadily ahead in its work for Christ and the Church.

During the day the Northwest District was officered and started on its work for the year. The president is Hugh Boggs, Fayetteville; vice-president, Mrs. Claude Kelly, Springdale; secretary, Miss Lucile Akers, Bentonville; treasurer, Miss Ella Quinn, Fayetteville; county directors, Carroll and Madison, Miss Hallie King, Fayetteville; Boon, Newton and Searcy, Miss Margaret Earle, Fayetteville; Washington, Mrs. S. A. Berrie, Fayetteville.

Meetings were also held at Bentonville, Gravette, Prairie Grove, Clarksville and the tour closed at Russellville with a great meeting in preparation for the State Convention.

The work of Arkansas' new field secretary, Mr. Bert G. Jones is bearing splendid fruit, and everywhere the Endeavorers are enthusiastic about him.

OKLAHOMA

Duncan—The First Church received three members, all of a prominent family, Sunday, June 3, 1923, into its membership. This makes 89 members received into this church in the last 12 months. The membership is now 158 against 21 in 1920. The pastor, Rev. J. W. Moseley, thinks that the Duncan Church is now a self-perpetuating organization.

TEXAS

El Paso—When the sessional reports to Presbyterian were compiled for the Manhattan Presbyterian Church of El Paso, Texas, it was found that this flourishing new church organized but two years ago has a resident membership of 230 and that its Sunday School enrollment is 466. This is a record of which the officers of the Manhattan Church feel duly proud as there are not many churches in the Assembly with an actual Sunday School membership of double the church enrolled membership.

Rev. Jas. V. Johnson is pastor of the Manhattan Church having come here in October, 1922. Mr. H. H. Major is superintendent of the Sunday School.

PERSONAL

Dr. Charles B. Chapin, who for the past four years has been the professor of Biblical Literature in Converse College has just received and accepted a flattering call to the same chair in the Southwestern Presbyterian University at Clarksville, Tenn.

Great and widespread regret has been expressed by the many students in Converse who have been in his classes at his severing his connection with the college. But the Southwestern Presbyterian University has a great future before it, as in another year it will move to Memphis, Tenn., where it will be enlarged along every line.

Educational

Presbyterian College of South Carolina—On May 30th the Presbyterian College of South Carolina closed one of the most pleasant and successful years in its history. The commencement exercises began Sunday morning with an excellent baccalaureate sermon, preached by Dr. John W. Douglas, of Baltimore. The sermon was fresh and scholarly, at the same time earnest and practical and made a deep impression upon the great congregation that crowded the church. An earnest, strong sermon in behalf of the Y. M. C. A. preached to a large crowd that evening by Rev. J. A. MacLean, of Greenwood. Wednesday morning Governor Thos. G. McLeod delivered the commencement address. This address was literary in preparation, practical in its delivery and made a most pleasing impression upon the crowd that assembled in the hall to take part in the graduating exercises.

There were 24 men in the graduating class who received the degree of A. B. The valedictory was delivered by Mr. H. E. Montgomery, Jr., of Kingstree, the first honor man. The salutatory was delivered by the second honor man, Mr. R. L. Edmunds, Jr., of Sumter. Mr. D. L. Williamson, of Belmont, N. C., won third honor.

Mr. Frank K. Clarke, of Sumter, received the medal won in the spring at the State Oratorical Contest. Mr. H. E. Montgomery first honor man, won the scholarship medal and also the orator's medal; and Mr. L. L. Perry, of Easley, won the declaimer's medal.

The honorary degrees of D. D. were conferred upon Rev. G. G. Mayes, of Winnsboro and Rev. T. Ellison Simpson, of Chattanooga, who is now a member of the Stewardship Committee; and the honorary degree of Litt. D. upon Dr. Frazer Hood, professor of Psychology and Education at Davidson College.

The development made by the Presbyterian College in the last 12 years is wonderful. Twelve years ago the college was worth about $150,000 with an indebtedness of between $30,000 and $40,000. Now it is worth approximately $1,000,000. Twelve years ago the annual budget for running expenses was less than $10,000. Last year it was $55,000. The class of work and enrollment has well kept pace with the physical and financial development. The architect has about completed plans for the new gymnasium which is to be built at once. It will cost when completed $100,000. A new dormitory costing $75,000 and accommodating 100 students will be built in the near future. The construction of a modern and complete athletic field with a quarter mile running track is just being completed. The growth of the college is shown by the fact that there are now as many applications as can be taken care of next year in our present dormitory space. It is the intention of the authorities to make arrangements to care for 20 or 25 additional men. At least one new instructor will be added as it is the policy of the college not to increase enrollment more rapidly than instructors. There is now a full professor to every 15 students.

The wonderful growth of the college is partly due to the fact that it is young and not tied down to traditions, therefore capable of adapting itself to modern demands in the educational world. The buildings are handsome, the equipment and library modern, the faculty strong, the campus beautiful and the student body from the best Presbyterian homes. The elevation of Clinton is between 800 and 900 feet, and gives a good climate for the training of students.

Davidson—A survey of current events as these relate to the 87th annual commencement of Davidson College that came to a close June 6th. Among these are to be named the very delightful baccalaureate sermon by Rev. Dr. Vander Meulen, president of Louisville Seminary; the gripping sermon before the Y. M. C. A. by Rev. Dr. D. N. McLaughlin, of Norfolk, class of '88; the strong and deeply spiritual address of Dr. J. Campbell White, of New York on Tuesday morning; student oratory by representatives of the Junior and Senior classes; the magnificent gift of the class of '23 to alma mater—a class room in the new Chambers with an inscription in honor of Dr. J. M. McConnell for whom it is to be named; an optimistic report by Mr. Robert M. Miller, chairman of the committee in charge of the raising of $600,000 for the rebuilding of Chambers and additional endowment; President Martin's statement that already half of the space that can be reserved for new men the coming session had been assigned; the presence here of representatives of the class of '71 in the person of Captain Hearne, of the class of '72 in the person of Rev. Dougald Munroe, of the class of '73 in the person of Rev. J. N. H. Summerell, and of the class of '74 in the person of W. H. Moore; honorary degrees bestowed on men whom the college has found it a pleasure to honor and which pleasure it is easy to believe will be shared by the thousands that read the announcement; social features reaching their climax for the older folks in the reception held on the lawn in front of the Library Tuesday evening highly diverting and historically interesting plays on Monday evening presented by the Davidson College Dramatic club—these and other plays in part appearing this week in book or permanent form; and last to be named, summer weather, glorious June days. This goodly list constitutes some of the things that the commencement program staged.

Gifts received during the college year are as follows:

The C. E. Graham annual grant of $3,000 for the support of the C. E. Graham chair of Education and Psychology.

The General Education Board's grant of $8,750 for the general salary fund.

The income from the Million Dollar Campaign since last June 1st: $51,390.

The Kate Parrott Memorial Scholarship of $1,000, founded by Miss Lilly Parrott, of Morristown, Tenn.

The legacy of $5,000 in his will by Captain M. H. McBryde, of Laurinburg, N. C., an alumnus of the college.

The foundation of $5,000, the income of which is to assist ministerial students, established with certain conditions by the Long Street Presbyterian Church, of Hoke County, N. C.

A special foundation through the Million Dollar Campaign of the Kornegay family of Mount Olive, N. C., in honor of father and son recently deceased, to be known as the Kornegay Hospital Fund: $4,000.

Mr. C. W. Johnston of Charlotte, N. C., $2,500 as a loan for student assistance.

Mrs. J. Edward Johnston, of Winston-Salem, N. C., third payment of $10,000 toward the establishment of the R. J. Reynolds chair of Biology.

The gift of the Senior Class of 1922 toward the Clock-Tower, $250.

An Annuity Bond for $1000—Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Collins, of Havana, Ill.

$30,000 for a stadium to be known as the "L. Richardson Stadium," by the Richardson family of Greensboro, N. C.

Faculty Bible for the Prayer Hall—Chapel Service.

Funds for the rebuilding of Watts Dormitory with instructions to rebuild in larger, better, fire-proof form—the building to be known as the George W. Watts Dormitory—this a gift from family unnamed.

The following men are on the honor roll for the year—an average of 95 or more—Seniors: Ogden, D. H., Davidson R. F., Guille, W. G., Kimsey, W. P., Davis, J. H., Gamble, W. A. Juniors: Galloway, W. F., Walthall, D. B., Smith, J. I., Hillhouse, A. M. Sophomores: Trawick, M. W. Freshmen: Shaw, H. L., Lawson, H. C.

Punctuality Roll—Garrison, J. M., a freshman; Trawick, M. W., a sophomore.

L. Richardson, of Greensboro, was reelected president of the Alumni Association, with Henry Mills, of Greenville, and Robert M. Miller, of Charlotte, vice-presidents; F. L. Jackson, secretary and treasurer. Archibald Cannon was elected to succeed B. R. Lacy Sr., resigned as an alumni-trustee. Dr. J. M. Douglas gave a report as to the outlook in athletics for the coming year that was optimistic and cheering to a degree, in regard both to fields, coaches, and student teams.

Rev. Dr. Thornton Whaling, of Louisville, and W. C. Bailey, of Greenwood, were re-elected as alumni trustees of the college.

The following degrees were conferred:

Master of Arts Degree—Oscar J. Thies, Davidson; Robert Marion Brice, Marion Junction, Ala.; Laughlin McLaurin Currie, Davidson, N. C.

Bachelor of Arts Degree—Ralph Park Alexander, Greenville, S. C.; Hugh Alvin Bailey, Chester, S. C.; Perry Harvey Biddle, DeFuniak Springs, Fla.; Jean Patrick Booth, Warrenton, N. C.; Samuel Hugh Bradley, Sutsien, China; William Payne Brown, China Grove, N. C.; LeRoy Perry Burney, Greensboro, N. C.; Malcolm Patterson Calhoun, Laurinburg, N. C.; Clifford Rankin Crawford, Sumter, S. C.; Neill Roswell Currie, DeFuniak Springs, Fla.; Robert Franklin Davidson, Chester, S. C.; Leonard White Dick, Jr., Darlington, S. C.; William Talley Elliott, Columbia, S. C.; George Durant Fleming, Jr., Miami, Fla.; Martin Boger Foil, Concord, N. C.; Thomas Layton Fraser, Hinesville Ga.; William Arnette Gamble, Jr., Macon, Ga.; Edgar Talmadge Gentry, Jr., Atlanta, Ga.; Arthur Van Gibson, Mebane, N. C.; Robert Andrew Gordon, Fort Defiance, Va.; John Hugh Grey, Jr., Bedford, Va.; Wilberforce Gettys Guille, Athens, Tenn.; Frank Smith Johnston, Winston-Salem, N. C.; William Patton Kimzey, Brevard, N. C.; Lex William Klutz, Bierut, Syria; John Baxter McCallum, Jr., Maxton, N. C.; George McCutcheon, Jr., St. Charles, S. C.; Roger Martin McGirt, Maxton, N. C.; Robert Lee McLeod, Jr., Maxton, N. C.; Eugene Harman Mauze, Huntington, W. Va.; George Watts Mauze, Huntington, W. Va.; Wallace Henry Moore, Takamatsu, Japan; Henry McAllen Morris, Staunton, Va.; Zebulon Alexander Morris, Concord, N. C.; Dunbar Hunt Ogden, Jr., Mobile, Ala.; Graves Baxter Roberts, Greeley, Colo.; Harry Kitsun Russell, Lumberton, N. C.; William Hiram Sharpe, DeFuniak Springs, Fla.;

John Benson Sloan, Jr., Ninety-Six, S. C.; Hugh Hollingsworth Smith, Easley, S. C.; James Trenholm Spillman, Charlotte, N. C.; Francis Cecil Thames, Little Rock, Ark.; Frank Kimbrough Toney, Pine Bluff, Ark.; Guy Edward Weeks, Miami, Fla.; James Sidney Whiteside, Edgemoor, S. C.; Robert Underwood Woods, Soochow, China; Harry Hastings Wyman, III, Aiken, S. C.; Archibald Lafayette Young, Charlotte, N. C.

Bachelor of Science Degree—John McLaughlin Adams, Raeford, N. C.; Robert Chalmers Aiken, Laurens, S. C.; Joseph William Baldwin, Clarkton, N. C.; James Douglas Bernhardt, Lenoir, N. C.; David Walker Bethea, Dillon, S. C.; Joseph Manor Bostic, Hendersonville, N. C.; James Franklin Brawley, Mooresville, N. C.; William Stewart Buchanan, Gifu Japan; William James Cooper, Fowler, S. C.; Keith Cornelius, Cornelius, N. C.; Samuel Malloy Davis, Jr., St. Pauls, N. C.; James Clarence Deaver, Perry, Fla.; Paul Bennet Guthery, Charlotte, N. C.; Jennings Elliot Haney, Spindale, N. C.; Hayes Shipman McCallum, Jr., White Springs, Fla.; John McCrummen, West End, N. C.; James McCutchen, Nesmith, S. C.; John Creighton McMaster, Winnsboro, S. C.; John Hector McRailey, Parkton, N. C.; William Joseph Martin, Jr., Davidson, N. C.; Henry Francis Northrup, St. Pauls, N. C.; William James Richards, Liberty Hill, S. C.; Charles Pinckney Simmons, Laurens, S. C.; George Bascomb Sorrels, Calhoun, Ga.; Robert Edward Sydenstricker, Lewisburg, W. Va.; Charles Franklin Wildman, Parmelee, N. C.; Ellis Trigg Woolfolk, Tunica, Miss.

Honorary Degrees—Doctor of Laws—Henry Hayes Sweets, Louisville, Ky.; Atwell Campbell McIntosh, University of North Carolina.

Doctor of Pedagogy—Charles Gilmore Mapis, University of Virginia.

Doctor of Divinity—Reverend David Howard Scanlon, Durham, N. C.; Reverend Albert Sidney Johnson, Charlotte, N. C.; Reverend George Fisher Bell, Charlotte, N. C.; Reverend Robert Campbell Anderson, Montreat, N. C.

Awards of Medals—Valedictory (First Honor): Dunbar H. Ogden, Jr., Mobile, Ala.

The commencement which just closed at Peace Institute can well be called the best the school has ever had. This was possible because this commencement was the 50th anniversary commencement, and on that account a reunion of all former students was held, and as a special feature of the reunion a pageant, "The Progress of Peace" was given. This pageant was given on Monday evening of commencement.

The pageant was staged under the oaks on the campus of the school and its setting was most appropriate. The stage was backed by a mass of evergreens, and in the distance the main building of the school with its every window softly lighted formed a background which added greatly to the spirit of the pageant.

The pageant reviewed with admirable fidelity of detail and spirit the outstanding events in the history of the school since it was founded. As a pageant, it ranked well with former productions in Raleigh, and in addition it carried a wonderful personal appeal to almost every one in the audience as the various characters re-created characters who were once a part of the soul of Peace, and who still live in the memories of many of the audience.

The baccalaureate sermon on Sunday was preached at the First Presbyterian Church by Rev. B. R. Lacy, D.D., of Atlanta, Ga. Dr. Lacy styled himself the grandson of Peace since he is a grandson of Rev. Robert Burwell, the first president of the school. Dr. Lacy's sermon was clear, short, forceful, and a call to service. He made a more personal sermon than is usual on such occasions, and this added greatly to its interest. Dr. Lacy's outline was based upon the school, its physical, mental, social, and religious possibilities of service.

The business meeting of the Alumnae was held on Monday. Routine business was transacted Mr. James R. Young, treasurer of the board of trustees of Peace Institute presented some ways in which the alumnae can be of service to their Alma Mater. The alumnae made plans for better organization, and with Mrs. Margaret Merrimon Kenney as resident alumnae secretary, the association has great hopes for an unusually efficient organization.

The annual election of officers was held. Miss Sophie Busbee, of Raleigh, was elected president of the association, while Mrs. C. W. McAlister, of Fayetteville, was elected vice-president. Mrs. Margaret M. Kenney was elected alumnae secretary.

Mrs. Josephus Daniels, chairman of the Reunion Committee was toastmistress at the luncheon which followed the business meeting. The luncheon was one of the most pleasant parts of the commencement, and was entirely taken up in a social way.

Mrs. Josephus Daniels also was hostess to the alumnae at a tea at her new home, "Wakestone," on Monday. The affair was delightfully informal.

The graduating exercises were held on Tuesday evening Judge Kerr Morehead Harris, Judge of the Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court in Danville, Va., was the speaker. She was introduced by Hon. Josephus Daniels. The invocation was made by Rev. B. R. Lacy, D.D. After the presentation of diplomas to 28 seniors by Miss Mary Owen Graham, president. Dr. W. McC. White, president of the board of trustees presented Bibles to all of the seniors. The graduating class this year was the largest in the history of the school.

Over 500 alumnae returned for the commencement. Each exercise had a capacity attendance. The interest shown was manifest on all sides, and presages well for the future growth of the school.

News of the Week

The meeting of the Shriners in Washington, D. C., has been the event of the past week.

President Harding had a prominent part in the festivities incident to the opening of the forty-ninth convention of the Ancient Arabic Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. He reviewed a parade of 20,000 nobles, delivered an address on fraternalism at the first session of the imperial council and attended a banquet given for Imperial Potentate James S. McCandless, of Honolulu.

President and Mrs. Harding had an "old home day" at the White House, when nearly 2,000 Ohio Shriners, received on the south lawn, entertained their host and hostess with concerts by their bands, songs by their chanters and drills by their patriots.

The Oasis Temple Band and Patrol, of Charlotte, N. C., were the center of activities, when a goodly number of the other bands, tired with three days' strenuous activity, were hushed into silence, while the Tar Heels, still in fine shape, played two magnificent concerts, one before a very small and choice audience, Woodrow Wilson, the other before perhaps the largest single assemblage that has packed itself in one spot on Pennsylvania Avenue.

Shriners in session selected Kansas City as their 1924 convention city, and elected Conrad V. Dykeman, of Brooklyn, to the post of imperial potentate, succeeding James S. McCandless, of Honolulu.

A pageant, depicting numerous historic events in which Masons played a part, and dancing on Pennsylvania Avenue brought the annual Shrine convention to a picturesque close.

Representatives of the direct lineage of three North Carolina colonial governors stood on the courthouse green at New Bern last week, and saw their forbears honored, when Richard Dobbs Spaight Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, joined by city and county, unveiled a boulder erected to the memory of Gov. Abner Nash, Gov. Richard Dobbs Spaight, and Gov. Richard Dobbs Spaight, the younger.

Rev. E. L. Pierce, pastor of four Baptist churches in Cumberland County, was killed, and R. O. Garrett, clerk of the Cumberland County court, was seriously if not fatally wounded at Cumberland Courthouse in a shooting affray which local state and police authorities believe was the culmination of a political feud which has raged in the county for a number of years.

Dr. E. C. Brooks has been elected president of the State A. & E. College, Raleigh, N. C., to succeed Dr. Riddick, resigned.

Representatives of 50,000,000 Protestants, Roman Catholics and Hebrews joined forces in a statement condemning as unworthy and untenable the arguments of the committee of the American Iron and Steel Institute which recently reported unfavorably on the proposed elimination of the 12-hour day in the steel industry.

The supply of cotton in Georgia is steadily decreasing and is hardly sufficient to meet the demands of the crushers, W. M. Hutchinson, secretary of the Georgia Cottonseed Crushers Association, declared in an address.

Police of New York City as well as district attorneys, have promised their full co-operation in aiding the Federal authorities to enforce the Volstead law, it was announced after a conference called to discuss methods of enforcement as a result of the appeal of the State Mullan-Gage law.

Dr. L. O. Miller, of the State Orthopaedic Hospital, held a clinic in the interest of the crippled children of Stanly County, and during the day examined 43 and reported that about 35 per cent of those examined could be cured if given proper treatment.

Governor Al Smith did not improve his prospects for the Democratic nomination for the presidency by signing the bill to repeal the Mullan-Gage prohibition act. He has embarrassed his party, and destroyed any shadow of a chance he may have had for the White House.

Chairman Cordell Hull, of the Democratic committee, served notice on the Republicans that his party would make an issue out of the advance in sugar prices. He called attention to the profits made by two or three beet sugar companies under the Fordney-McCumber proteftee's tariff.

The Confederate dead were honored and the memory of Jefferson Davis extolled at memorial services in Arlington national cemetery, conducted by Camp 171, United Confederate Veterans, with the assistance of the Confederate Southern Memorial Association, Sons of Confederate Veterans, the United Daughters of the Confederacy, and the Marine Band. About 2,000 persons witnessed the ceremony.

Governor Morrison will call an extraordinary session of the General Assembly if the newly created state shipping commission reports favorably on his plans for development of the waterways and navigable streams of North Carolina.

The trustees of Catawba College, the Reformed college at Newton, N. C., took action that will mean the removal of the institution from Newton to Salisbury and the raising of the school from a junior college to an A-grade institution that will rank with any of the colleges of the state.

It has become known that the State Department is engaged in the business of soliciting the support of clergymen and church organizations through the country in arousing sentiment for the court of which Secretary of State Hughes is chief sponsor.

The ranks of America's millionaire tax-payers continue to grow thinner, according to statistics of income for 1921, made public by the internal revenue bureau, which show that of the 6,662,176 firms and individuals filing returns for 1921, only 21 had incomes exceeding one million dollars. This total represents a decrease of 12 from the number receiving million dollar incomes in 1920.

MONTREAT CONFERENCES FOR THE SUMMER OF 1923

The dates of the several conferences to be held at Montreat this season are as follows:

1. Young People's Conference—Tuesday, June 19th—Thursday, June 28th.
2. Men's Conference—Saturday, June 30th—Wednesday, July 4th.
3. Stewardship Conference—Thursday, July 5th—Tuesday, July 10th.
4. Woman's Summer School of Missions—Thursday, July 12th—Thursday, July 19th.
5. Seminary Work—Sunday, July 22nd—Sunday morning, July 29th.
6. Conference on Christian Education and Ministerial Relief—Sunday night, July 29th—Wednesday, August 1st.
7. Sunday School Conference—Thursday, August 2nd—Wednesday, August 8th.
8. Home Mission Conference—Thursday, August 9th—Sunday, August 12th.
9. Foreign Mission Conference—Tuesday, August 14th—Sunday, August 19th.
10. Bible Conference—Monday, August 20th—Sunday, August 26th.

The speakers and lecturers for these conferences represent the most attractive and able speakers to be found anywhere and the approaching season promises to be the best in every way that has ever been enjoyed at Montreat. Full programs of the conferences can be had by applying to the Montreat office, Montreat, N. C.

On account of Religious Conferences, Black Mountain, N. C., the railroads in the Southeastern territory, east of the Mississippi River and south of the Potomac River, have authorized reduced rates on the round-trip identification certificate plan on basis of fare and one-half for the round trip, minimum excursion fare $1.00, tickets to be sold to delegates and members of their family only upon presentation of certificates to ticket agents at time of purchase of tickets. The reduced rate tickets allow no stop-over privileges and will be on sale on the dates given below upon the presentation to the ticket agent of identification certificates properly filled out.

Selling dates:

June 2, 4, 5, 15, 16, 18, 19, 28, 29, 30.

July 3, 4, 5, 10, 11, 12, 19, 20, 21, 26, 27, 28, 31.

August 1, 2, 4, 6, 7, 8, 9, 11, 13, 14, 17, 18, 20, 25, 27.

Identification certificates can be had by applying to the following addresses:

Mountain Retreat Association, Montreat, N. C.

Presbyterian Committee of Publication, Box 1176, Richmond, Va.

Foreign Mission Committee, Box 330, Nashville, Tenn. Committee of Education and Ministerial Relief, 410 Urban Bldg., Louisville, Ky.

Home Mission Committee, 1522 Hurt Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

Woman's Auxiliary, 257-259 Field Bldg., St. Louis, Mo. Stewardship Committee, 408 Times Bldg., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Some very attractive Montreat folders also will be sent to anyone who will make application through the Montreat office.

.....
CHILDREN

HAVE THREE CALVES

Dear Standard:

I am a little boy nine years old. I have three sisters and two brothers. I have recited the Child's Catechism and got my Testament Monday. We have three young calves. Please publish my letter, for I want to surprise my papa.

William Monroe.

Council, N. C.

PROMOTED TO JUNIOR

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl eight years old. This is my first letter to you. I am in the third grade. My teacher is Miss Laura Grier. I like her fine. My pastor is Rev. J. M. Walker. I like to go to Sabbath School. I was promoted to the Junior Department on Promotion Day. We are just getting over whooping cough, and are so glad we will not have it again. I have five brothers. My oldest brother, Elbert, is teaching in Halifax County, and the next brother, Cook, will finish at Union Seminary in Richmond this spring. I will ask one Bible question: When the children of Israel were bitten by fiery flying serpents in the wilderness, how could they be cured?

Your little friend,
 Margaret Neel.

Charlotte, N. C., R. D. 11.

THE HONOR ROLL

Dear Standard:

I am seven years old. I go to school. I am in the first grade. Miss Carroll is my teacher. I got on the honor roll one month. I averaged 94. I go to the First Presbyterian Church to Sunday School.

Your friend,

James Lonza Garrison.

Burlington, N. C.

A MEASLEY TIME

Dear Standard:

I am a little boy four years old. My grandpa takes the Standard and I enjoy hearing mamma read the letters. I go to Sunday School every Sunday I can. Miss Bason is my teacher. I like her fine. I have two brothers; we have all had the measles. We are getting over them now.

Yours truly,

Charlie Carl Garrison.

Burlington, N. C.

CHICKS AND GOSLING

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl eight years old. My school closed April 20th. Miss Margie Campbell was my teacher. I like her fine. I will be in the third grade next year. We have lots of little chicks and one little gosling. Hope to see my letter in print. I love to read the letters and stories in the Standard.

Your unknown friend,
 Annie Margaret Smith.

Vass, N. C.

A FAMILY NAME

Dear Standard:

I am nine years old and in the fourth grade, A section. This is my third letter to you. I enjoy reading the stories and letters in your good paper. My grandma has just come back from visiting my Aunt Eugenia. I am named after both my grandma and aunt. I take music lessons and enjoy it very much. I enjoy going in swimming, camping and toasting marshmallows. I went to Cleveland Springs last summer and camped out one day and one night. We were in a beautiful place in the woods. The wind blew very hard and we had to go to the hotel for one day. We were really at Cleveland Springs two days and one night. I must stop now as I am afraid Mr. Waste Basket will get me. I want all the readers of the Standard to write to me. My address is 306 East Boulevard, Charlotte, N. C. I will sign myself

A new friend,
 Laura Eugenia Ross.

Charlotte, N. C.

OLD DOC SILVERWINGS AND TOMMY

When the news reached Fairyland that six-year-old Tommy Totkins was the greediest boy in all the world old Doc Silverwings was sent post-haste to his bedside. Perching on the foot-board of Tommy's bed and buttoning his coat of invisibility tight around him, the little man studied his patient. Light brown fluff of hair, chubby pink cheeks and a surprisingly small mouth for such a very greedy little boy. Hunching his shoulders till his long wings met in a peak above his grizzled head, he waited—his gaze sometimes on the sleeping face, sometimes on the bottle of thick, black medicine clasped tight in his arms.

Tommy slept on. A merry little sunbeam slipped through the window, glistened for an instant on the doctor's peaked wings, then hurried up Tommy's face and gave a tremendous push to his eyelashes. A short struggle, and the eyes opened. Giving his bottle of medicine a quick shake, old Doc Silverwings waited for the first symptom of greediness to appear.

He didn't wait long. Tommy's eyes, fresh opened by the sunbeam, stayed sweet and innocent looking for barely three seconds by the doctor's wrist-watch; then a greedy little sparkle hopped into each of them. More greedy sparkles and more greedy sparkles till his eyes just danced with them. His feet wriggled and popped out from under the covers. Down the stairs pattered the little boy—closely followed by the doctor.

Straight into the dining room he skipped, where Dickie in his cage by the window was singing his morning song. A delicious smell of frying bacon came from the kitchen where Tommy's pretty, young mother was preparing breakfast. In the center of the white table a glass dish of luscious red strawberries, the first of the season—picked by his mother that very morning from the garden. Mmmm—mm—m—m—a big berry slipped between Tommy's eager lips. Another! Another! Doc Silverwings' eyes kept zigzagging dizzily from the dish to Tommy's mouth till—till the dish was quite empty. Yes, sir! Not a berry left for his kind, sweet mother. Not one for his daddy, whistling upstairs—probably thinking of those very berries. Just a reddish watery spot of juice in the bottom of the dish. Curving his fat little finger, the greedy little boy carried this to his mouth and scampered softly up the stairs. He must hurry into his blue rompers and have some of that delicious smelling bacon. Doc Silverwings grimly watched him dress.

At breakfast Tommy said sweetly: "I'm sorry 'bout the berries; honest I am. But they tasted so good, so awful good, that I just couldn't stop eating 'em." Then his face crinkled into the most engaging smile—a smile that Tommy's mother never could resist.

"But, Tommy," she began weakly, "they're daddy's favorite fruit."

"Never mind," broke in dad, "more berries will be ripe tomorrow. I can wait."

Old Doc Silverwings quivered angrily. "Its that smile of his that does it," he sputtered to himself. "It ought to be cut out. I wonder now—" pulling a sharp, a very sharp little knife from his pocket, he looked at it thoughtfully for a moment, then put it back. "No; I'll use milder methods first," he decided.

But as the morning advanced he grew stern and more stern. Tommy, while his mother was hanging out some clothes, emptied the cooky jar to the crumby bottom. Then ate the crumbs. Discovered with his sticky little finger fishing up the last crumb, that smile of his saved him again. And his poor mother had to stop in the middle of washing to make some little cakes for dinner to take the place of the cookies. And later Tommy found those six little cakes, hidden away on the top shelf of the pantry behind a big stone crock. Standing on tiptoe between the sugar bowl and the overturned bread bowl, down they went one after the other into Tommy, thick chocolate frosting and all.

Right then and there old Doc Silverwings made up his mind.

Upstairs Tommy's mother was singing a gay little song as she dressed for dinner. Old Doc Silverwings quickly unbuttoned his coat of invisibility. He had just tucked it into his vest pocket when Tommy turned and caught sight of him. "Yes," snapped the doctor in answer to Tommy's startled eyes; "I'm Doc Silverwings. Sent from Fairyland to cure you. Here we are."

A quick pinch of Tommy's nose, and down went a spoonful of the thick, dark medicine. How Tommy did shrink from the bitter dose! Shrank and shrank and shrank—till he became even smaller than the tiny doctor. "This way," commanded the little man as he grasped Tommy's hand.

In the sunny window of the dining room Dickie was trilling a marvelous song to the pink apple blossoms outside. Doc Silverwings, entering with Tommy, flew to the ledge outside the golden bars of the swinging cage. "Dickie," he cried, opening the little door, "I need your cage. Fly away now and take a vacation."

Out flew the joyful canary, and in popped Tommy. Bang, shut the door—with the doctor outside. "Now we'll see how the medicine works. I'll drop in again soon." Then the doctor was gone.

But Tommy Totkins scarcely noticed that he was gone; the medicine inside him seemed to be burning him up. And how loud his heart was beating. It was saying something. What—what—Oh, yes—"Gree-dee, gree-dee, gree-dee." Ah, those cakes, and mother just coming down the stairs! Huddled down in the cage, the little boy waited. Surely his mother wouldn't find him there.

But she did. As she was hurrying through the dining room she glanced up to see why Dickie had stopped singing. Well, I declare! A tiny blue-rompered Tommy in Dickie's place. No wonder she leaned against the wall and rubbed her eyes; then looked again. Exactly the same as the first time—a cowering little Tommy with a red, shamed face. "I'm sorry I ate the strawberries and the cookies, and oh, mamma, I ate the cakes, too!" Not a smile this time, no, indeed!

"Gree-dee, gree-dee, gree-dee," thumped his heart while his mother stared and stared. The fairies! Even before Tommy told her she knew. And she soon found out that a charm was on the cage, too. The door refused to open. The slender golden bars wouldn't bend. Even Tommy's dad couldn't bend them when he came home. "No use," said he. "We'll just have to wait till the little people free you."

That night Tommy slept on the floor of the cage in one of his own white woolen mittens. To the tune of "Gree-dee, gree-dee, gree-dee" he fell asleep only to be awakened in the middle of the night by old Doc Silverwings. The medicine in his bottle this time was golden as the sunshine, lighting up "More medicine! I don't need any. I'm cured, I'm cured," wailed Tommy.

"Cured? Not by a long shot," cried the little man, uncorking his bottle. "Being sorry is only the beginning of the cure."

A quick pinch of Tommy's nose, and down went the golden medicine. What would this new medicine do? Tommy fell asleep wondering. And while he slept his heart stopped thumping its hateful tune.

How glad Tommy was in the morning. And happy, so happy that he wanted every one else to be happy. If he could only do something to make his mother happy when she came down to breakfast. But what could he do, shut up in a cage. Mother used to love to hear Dickie sing. Tommy smiled softly to himself. The next moment a song, a kindergarten song with a happy little thrill in it filled the cage, filled the dining room, slipped up the stairs into mother's room.

Mamma Totkins opened her eyes. Daddy Totkins opened his eyes. What had come over Tommy? Mamma flew into her kimono. Daddy hopped into his bathrobe. Down the stairs they raced in double quick time. What a sight. Tommy swinging gaily back and forth on Dickie's little perch, trilling his happy little song. "It's fun," cried Tommy smiling delightfully. "I'm most as good as a Dickie bird. Do you like it?"

Did they like it? This bright, cheerful, jolly little boy in the golden cage, who was so eager, so very eager to make them happy? Of course they did. Fascinated they stood there watching him.

"Ah ha," cried old Doc Silverwings from the window sill; "a complete cure, I believe. Only one dose of the unselfish happy mixture. Wonderful, won-der-ful! Dickey," called the excited little man, "you hay have your golden cage back now."

A flutter of yellow wings, and Dickie was beside him. "Now, young man, if you'll have the goodness to step out of that cage—" In a flash Tommy was out and Dickie back in. Placing Tommy carefully on his mother's shoulders, Doc Silverwings, making a deep bow, flew through the window and disappeared among the apple blossoms.

Tommy's mother and father started at the wee figure of their little boy. No bigger than his daddy's hand. Why—why—why—ee!

"Pardon me; I forgot something." Old Doc Silverwings grinned at them from the window. "See this stick of candy. Eat it, Tommy, slowly and care-ful-ly. Don't—be—gree-dee."

Tommy began to eat, and Tommy began to grow. Oh, my the candy was dee-licious! "Not so fast," cried Tommy's mother. "Not so fast," cried Tommy's father. Tommy ate more slowly. "Stop," cried both together.

And Tommy stopped on the dot—just at the right size.

"Hurray," shouted Old Doc Silverwings, taking the stick of candy and flying out of the window. "Tommy Totkins is cured at last."—Myra A. Wonn, in The Continent.

Marriages and Deaths

DEATHS

Troy—Mrs. Elizabeth Shaw Troy, daughter of Hiram and Flora C. Vickers, of Cumberland County, N. C., died at her home in Bolton, N. C., in her 67th year, June 6, 1923. Her husband, Alexander A. Troy, an elder in the Presbyterian Church, preceded her to the grave 16 months.

Campbell—At the home of A. A. Graham, near Raeford, N. C., on the 8th day of February, 1923, Daniel Campbell, a typical Scotchman, a soldier of the Confederacy, a kind neighbor, an humble Christian, and a member for many years of Antioch Presbyterian Church, entered into his reward in the 78th year of his age. Pastor.

JOSEPH A. McBRYDE

Resolutions of Respect

Whereas, God in His Providence, on December 3, 1922, removed from our midst our esteemed brother elder, Joseph A. McBryde, in the 84th year of his age, and

Whereas, we, the Session of Antioch Presbyterian Church, desire to place on record some appreciation of his life and labors; Therefore be it resolved:

1st. That we bear testimony to his faithfulness as a ruling elder in this church for the past 25 years. Truly he "adorned the doctrine of God, our Saviour in all things."

2nd. That as a member of the church for more than 50 years he was consistent and constant, his seat in the sanctuary being seldom vacant until debarred by the infirmities of age.

3rd. That as a kind neighbor, loyal friend, honorable and upright citizen, faithful husband and devoted father, he was ever ready to do anything in his power to help.

4th. That as a soldier of his country in the Confederate army he was loyal and faithful to the end of the dreadful conflict and no one enjoyed more than he attending the reunions and meeting with his comrades of former days. But he valued even more highly his being a soldier of the cross, enduring the hardships as a good soldier of Jesus Christ, and when at last the Great Commander had "taps" called for him, he was glad to lay down the burdens and be forever with the Lord.

4th. That a page in the Sessional Records be set apart for this memorial, and that a copy be sent to the Presbyterian Standard for publication.

J. W. Goodman, Moderator.

J. A. Hodgkin, Clerk.

For the Session.

MISS JENNIE BURBANK

In Memoriam

Jane Jennett Burbank, daughter of Wm. R. S. and Mary E. Burbank, was born in New Bern, N. C., on July 3, 1851, and departed this life on May 23, 1923. When but a child the family moved to Beaufort County, and settled near Washington, N. C. Their country home was known as "Idelette," and here, close to nature and to God, she spent the major part of her long and useful life.

Nature endowed her with a strong and ambitious mind which she cultivated and enriched by diligent reading and study.

At the age of 19 she graduated with distinction from Dr. Caldwell's Academy in Greensboro, N. C., and began to teach school. Miss Burbank was a teacher by profession, and excelled in her vocation. She bore a real love to learning; and took a genuine delight in teaching and training the young. Upon a large number of youthful minds and hearts she left the lasting impression of her faithful work, and of her refined and cultured personality. She followed her calling until needed at home to minister to her aged parents in their declining years. This filial duty she performed with exemplary devotion and fidelity—it was to her a labor of love. Her whole life was one of unselfish service to others, after the example of Him who came not to be ministered unto, but to minister; and in thus losing her life she found it sweetened and sanctified by the spirit of Christ.

After the death of her parents, she came to Washington, and resided with her niece, Miss Mamie Burbank. Here she continued her life of love and service, being interested and active in every good work in her church, and in her community. But it was in the home that her light shone most brightly; and only those nearest to her knew the full beauty of a life lived with Christ in God.

Miss Burbank was an intelligent, loyal, and consecrated member of the Presbyterian Church. She was acquainted with its doctrines, and proud of its heroic history and noble principles. During the latter period of her life she grew very deaf; but this affliction never kept her from the house of God. On Sundays and Wednesday nights she was regularly in her pew. She came to worship her Lord, and to partake of the blessings of the sanctuary, even though she could not fully share its pleasures. Her example was an inspiration to the God-fearing, and a rebuke to the negligent and unfaithful.

Her death was sudden, tragic, and in a way terrible. She was found burned to death in the bath-room. All of the circumstances, however, indicate conclusively that in some way she lost consciousness—either fainted or had heart failure—and did not suffer any pain from the jet of flame from the gas heater, which burned dreadfully one side of her body.

Miss Burbank was a staunch and logical Calvinist, and did not believe in accidents or contingencies; but in a Divine Providence which orders our lives in every detail. Shocking and grievous to her loved ones as her end was, I am sure she would have them to accept it, and humbly submit to it as the will of God. For her, sudden death was sudden glory. She fell asleep in Jesus, and swiftly passed out of earth's shadows into the radiant presence of God, to see the King in his beauty, and to share in the joys of her Lord. "And I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me, Write, Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them."

H. B. Searight.

Washington, N. C.

Story and Incident

GEORGE PAINTS THE CAR

Fortunately, George Possessed a Goody Supply of Perseverance

Ernest Elwood Stanford, in C. E. World

The George Carsons wanted a car.

The want was, to speak bromidically, a long-felt want, and, like most of this genus, it appeared likely to attain an indefinite age, inasmuch as the George Carsons—rare family—were not in the habit of patterning their budget on the neighbors'. Besides George and Mrs. George there were George, Junior, and Georgiana, the twins, aged eight, and the "baby," aged four, who for the sake of consistency was sometimes addressed as Georgette, but who was entered in the vital statistics as Edna Louise. That was quite family enough to keep the Carson dollars athletically occupied without accelerating them with gasoline.

But industry and perseverance and all that sort of thing had finally its reward, as, of course, it always should. Prices, after their long skyward climb, took a turn. Some folks, a good many folks, lost their jobs, but not George, who was a capable and efficient sort, who seemed able to assimilate the work of two or three men without making much noise about it. George's firm, too, was not badly hit by the prevailing depression. So, when the gentle stir of spring was beginning to be felt in the air, George got, not only a raise, but a promise of a month's vacation that summer—a vacation being something of which George had heard before, but had not seen in recent years.

It was not surprising, perhaps, that the news of all this should set the family mind, or the collective minds of the family, moving in a certain direction.

"George," said Mrs. George one evening after the vacation had been predicted long enough to make it seem a certainty, "don't you suppose that now we can afford a car, an inexpensive one?"

"Well," said George slowly. He compressed into the monosyllable a good deal of evident deliberation, while Mrs. George and the young Carsons awaited with breathless anticipation. As a matter of fact he had been wondering a good while just how to phrase a similar remark. He was too wary of the future, however, to commit himself immediately. He remembered some of Mrs. George's previous enthusiasms which had evaporated, under pressure of expenses, when it was too late to do any good. "Cars cost a good deal."

The faces of the youngsters fell, but they took courage immediately from the expression of Mrs. George, which had set, on this hint of opposition, into the very lines into which George had wished it to set.

"George, you ought to have a car to drive to town with. It would save you at least an hour a day, and you come home at night so tired from that long walk to the trolley."

"I think," said George, preparing skillfully for a strategic retreat, "that the walk is good for me. I wouldn't think of getting a car for my own benefit. But I know, my dear, that you're been cooped up at home pretty closely these last years. If we had a car, you could get out a good deal more. Perhaps it's worth considering."

"I wouldn't think of it on that account," said Mrs. George very firmly. "But for your sake and the children—"

"Aw, please, Pa!"

"O Pa! We want a car!"

"Car! Car!"

The three little Carsons, even to the baby, came in on the cue as aptly as though drilled for it. Perhaps they had been.

"Possibly," went on George, evacuating second and third line trenches at one march, "we might find a used car within our means."

"The Veeders got a real bargain," pressed on Mrs. George, consolidating the open territory with a rush, but prudently resisting the temptation to advance further. "And you don't have to await delivery on a used car. And you know so much about machinery that I'm sure you'd get a good one."

"Well," said George, uneasily conscious that most of his mechanical knowledge had been got from puttering about a lawn-mower, "perhaps we will look into it."

So the George Carsons looked into it. By some occult means every agent, broker, or factor within a twelve-mile radius of the suburb, and a good many

Southern Railway System

Announces

POPULAR EXCURSION

to

Washington, D. C., June 15, '23

Round Trip Fare From Charlotte

$10.00

Tickets Good Three Days
Schedule Special Train and Round Trip Fares

Leave:	Schedule	Round Trip Fare
Charlotte	7:30 P. M.	$10.00
Concord	8:08 P. M.	9.50
Kannapolis	8:20 P. M.	9.50
Salisbury	9:00 P. M.	9.00

Arrive Washington 7:50 a. m., June 16th.

Round trip tickets on sale all stations North Carolina west of Marian and east of Raleigh.

Pullman Sleeping cars and day coaches.

BIG LEAGUE BASEBALL GAMES

Washington Americans vs. Chicago Americans, June 16-17.
Washington Americans vs. Cleveland Americans, June 18.
See Ray Schalk, Walter Johnson, Stanley Coveleskie and other great stars in action.

Tickets good returning on all regular trains (except No. 37) up to and including train No. 33 leaving Washington, D. C., 9:35 p. m. June 18, 1923.

Make your sleeping car reservations early.

For detailed information apply to ticket agent or address

R. H. GRAHAM
Division Passenger Agent
Charlotte, N. C.

other citizens, became immediately aware of their decision, and flocked to help them look.

"I wish to goodness," said Mrs. George, about a week later, "that you'd hurry up and decide. These fellows come here at all hours of the day, when you're safe at the office, and talk and talk, and plague me to death."

"I have nearly decided on a car," said George with his usual conservatism. "It is a second-hand Hopper. It has been run comparatively little. Mechanically it's in good condition, but the paint needs renewing badly. It has been allowed to stand in the open a good deal. I can get

SCHOOLS AND CHURCHES JOIN THE CLUB

That the superior quality of the pianos and the big saving in price effected by the Standard Club are being appreciated by Institutions as well as by individuals is shown by the fact that Secular Schools, Sunday Schools and Churches are joining the Club in goodly numbers. The following letter from a school trustee emphasizes one of the many good reasons. He writes: "The piano obtained through the Club is being used in the Musical Department of the School here and all are highly pleased with it. We feel that we saved from $75.00 to $125.00 by purchasing through the Club."

A Church official writes as follows: "I will say that the Church is pleased with the Club plan. The piano is first-class material, workmanship and construction—fine tone, clear, soft and musical. It is an extra fine instrument for the price. The plan of payment is good, sound and satisfactory."

If you or your Church, Sunday School or Public School need a fine piano, by all means write for the Club's catalog, prices and terms. Address the managers, Ludden & Bates, Standard Piano Club Depart., Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

WHY DRUGS FAIL

Many chronic diseases fail to respond to drug treatment, even in the hands of the best physicians, whereas acute diseases usually respond readily. When a disease has become chronic, drugs often seem to do as much harm as they do good, for the system rebels against them. It is just this class of cases which derive the greatest benefit from drinking Shivar, America's best stomach, liver and kidney water. If you suffer with chronic dyspepsia, indigestion, sick headache, rheumatism, kidney or liver disease, uric acid poisoning or other curable conditions due to impure blood do not hesitate to accept the Springs liberal offer as printed below. Their records show that only two in a hundred, on the average, have reported "no benefit." This is a wonderful record from a truly wonderful Spring. Sign the following letter:

Shivar Springs,
Box 3H, Shelton, S. C.
Gentlemen:

I accept your offer and enclose herewith three dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if I report no benefit you agree to refund the price of the water in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return within a month.

Name _____
Address _____
Shipping Point _____

(Please write distinctly.)

it for little more than a third the price of a new one."

"Isn't that a bargain?" cried Mrs. George in delight. "And you can paint it yourself, just as you did the window-screens. You can do it the first week of your vacation, just as Jim Veeder did. It will save a lot of money."

"Hum!" said George, who had formed other plans for that first week. "It's a lot of work to paint a car. You have to wash all the dirt and grease off, and scrape and sandpaper it—"

"It costs a lot to have it done," said Mrs. George firmly. "Really, George, if you're so set on buying a car, you'll have to economize somewhere. It costs an awful lot for gasoline and repairs. Mrs. Veeder said so. And a little physical work will be good for you."

"Um!" said George, reflectively rubbing his chin and resolving to look more thoroughly into the merits of certain other offerings.

But the advantage in price of the Hopper was so great, and the automobile-enamel circulars with which Mrs. George bestrewed his path were so seductive, that George finished by purchasing the car with the damaged paint-work.

"I think," said George to the agent, after the transaction had been completed, "that the first thing I'll do will be to paint that car."

The salesman thrust his hands into his pockets—which held George's money, and eyed the car and George thoughtfully.

"Sure," he said cordially. "Nothing easier. You slap on the paint one day, and use it the next. But let me give you a pointer. Don't paint her till you've learned to drive pretty well. You might have it to do over again. And another thing. If you get into any kind of a jam, with a new-lookin' car and that sort of nervous way of yours, it'll go hard with you, because you'll be known for a green driver, and the blame'll be put all on you. But if you drive a rusty old hooker like that,—these were not the terms with which he had described the car before the sale,—and look hard-boiled enough, you can get away with anythin' but murder."

"In-deed," said George pensively, looking at the car with some misgivings, as he began to visualize its possibilities as an engine of destruction.

"At any rate," said Mrs. George, eyeing the agent with some antagonism, "that will give us a chance to ride about in it before it's laid up. But I hate to have the Veeders and the other neighbors see us in such a looking thing."

"Quite so," said George. While wishing to get a disagreeable job out of the way, he was not wholly averse to postponing the painting.

After a few lessons, during which George carefully left his family at home, Mrs. George and the young Carsons, with the fire of enthusiasm in their eyes and the heat of the sun on their necks—for Mrs. George had advanced the idea that the car looked better with its somewhat faded top lowered—were admitted for their first trip in the new equipage.

"I think you do very well," said Mrs. George in a high compliment after their safe return. "Anybody can see that you try to be careful. But the manners and language of these other drivers are something awful. If driving a car gets you into any such habits of speech, you'll have to give it up."

George, whose "way" was still more nervous than hard-boiled, had preserved a concentrated silence during most of the trip. He now continued the silence.

"You're nearly ready to paint the car, I think," pursued his wife. "You'd better plan it for about Thursday. Tuesday and Wednesday you can scrape it, and we can use it again by the first of next week."

"That's a little soon," demurred George. "I think I'd better get more practice."

"You have four days before Tuesday," said his wife, firmly.

Tuesday morning, then, found George ensconced in the portable garage which he had purchased coincidentally with the car, flanked by a miscellaneous array of paint-cans, brushes, sandpaper, paint-remover, a water-bucket, a gasoline-can, and various other impedimenta more or less adapted to the purpose in hand. He had washed off the car with the hose, and was now attacking the more arduous portions of the cleansing. George sighed. He looked at his well-kept, somewhat wheel-blistered hands, and sighed again. George was a tidy soul, and he hated a mess.

Sighing, however vigorous, blows off little dust. George put up the step-ladder, and prepared to clean the top. It took an hour or so to get this covering ready for the dressing. As he was preparing to rub down the rusted supports with steel wool, Mrs. George entered with some excitement in her eye and an envelope in her hand.

"You'll have to put that off," were her words. "Aunt Lydia Wickham writes that she is coming tomorrow to spend a week. You must meet her at the station, and we'll have to drive her all over the city. We can't lay the car up now. But goodness knows what she'll say to see it looking like this."

"She'll say a plenty," said George, with a sigh not altogether of regret. "Especially after she gets home."

"Mercy me!" ejaculated Aunt Lydia, a

STATEMENT

SOUTHERN LIFE AND TRUST COMPANY GREENSBORO, N. C.

Condition December 31, 1922, as Shown by Statement Filed

Amount of Capital paid up in cash	$ 1,000,000.00
Amount of Ledger Assets December 31st of previous year, $4,-
186,355.95; Total	4,186,355.95
Premium Income, $1,562,713.95; Miscellaneous, $339,154.90; Total	1,901,868.85
Disbursements—To Policyholders, $576,750.21; Miscellaneous
$638,486.43; Total	1,215,236.64
Business written during year—Number of Policies 12,898; Amt.	12,157,553.00
Business in force at end of year—No. of Policies 29,097; Amt.	49,148,419.00
Assets
Value of Real Estate (less amount of encumbrances)	$ 51,516.80
Mortgage Loans on Real Estate	2,568,960.03
Loans secured by pledge of Bonds, Stocks, or other collateral	11,216.59
Loans made to Policyholders on this Company's Policies assigned as collateral	1,264,373.73
Net Value of Bonds and Stocks	379,350.89
Cash	529,898.50
Interest and Rents due and accrued	85,832.79
Premiums uncollected and deferred	194,472.01
Assets Trust Department	1,257,508.10
All other Assets, as detailed in statement	69,762.53
Total	$ 6,412,901.15
Less Assets not admitted	66,794.88
Total admitted Assets	$ 6,346,106.27

Liabilities
Net Reserve, including Disability Provision	$ 4,535,162.40
Present value of amounts not yet due on Supplementary Contracts, etc.	44,377.17
Policy Claims	7,850.00
Dividends left with Company at interest	7,096.67
Premiums paid in advance	2,048.30
Unearned Interest and Rent paid in advance	63.77
Commissions due to Agents	9,541.62
Estimated Amount payable for Federal, State, and other Taxes	9,500.00
Dividends due Policyholders	13,553.63
Amounts set apart for future dividends	361,953.78
Liabilities, Accident and Health Department	17,371.10
Liabilities Trust Department	139,825.09
All other Liabilities, as detailed in statement	56,234.62
Total amount of all Liabilities, except Capital	$ 5,204,578.15
Capital paid up in Cash	$1,000,000.00
Unassigned funds (surplus)	141,528.12
Total Liabilities	$ 6,346,106.27

Business in the State of North Carolina During 1922

	ORDINARY		INDUSTRIAL
	No.	Amount	No.	Amount
Policies on the lives of citizens of said State in force December 31st of previous year	15,684	$32,735,093	2,975	$ 407,243
Policies on the lives of citizens of said State issued during the year	1,974	5,180,638	4,634	742,416
Total	17,658	$37,915,731	7,609	$ 1,149,659
Deduct ceased to be in force during the year	1,808	$ 5,015,951	4,316	$ 638,389
Policies in force December 31st	15,850	$32,899,780	3,293	$ 511,270
Losses and Claims unpaid December 31st of previous year	5	$ 6,000
Losses and Claims incurred during year	91	190,467	14	1,083.13
Total	96	$ 196,467	14	$ 1,083.13
Losses and Claims settled during the year, in full, $189,700.13	89	$ 188,617	14	$ 1,083.13
Losses and Claims unpaid December 31st	7	7,850
Premium Income—Total		$ 1,063,875.16

President, A. W. McAlister; Secretary, Arthur Watt; Assistant Treasurer, T. D. Dupuy; Actuary, F. E. Cann; Home Office, Greensboro, N. C. Attorney for Service: STACEY W. WADE, Insurance Commissioner, Raleigh, N. C.

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA

Insurance Department

Raleigh, March 5, 1923.
I, STACEY W. WADE, Insurance Commissioner, do hereby certify that the above is a true and correct abstract of the statement of the Southern Life and Trust Company, of Greensboro, N. C., filed with this Department, showing the condition of said Company on the 31st day of December, 1922.

Witness my hand and official seal the day and date above written.
STACEY W. WADE,
Insurance Commissioner.

(Seal)

large, emphatic lady in black silk, as her nephew by marriage escorted her to the car on her arrival. "If you ain't got a Hopper! I'm afraid of them things. John Howland, in our town, had one, and it went over a bank with him, and 'twas only the mercy of Providence it didn't kill the whole family. A Hopper! And I did suppose you was doin' real well, George. It does look as though you'd had it an awful long time, and Ethel never told me. But then, them Hoppers do grow old dreadful fast. Maybe it's nearly new. Is it?"

George had to confess that it wasn't.

"Dear me!" foreboded Aunt Lydia, trusting her bulk within in considerable trepidation. "A second-hand car! That's just what John Howland had! The front wheels had a trick of floppin' over when he went round a corner or struck sand. 'Twas that wrecked him. They do say all Hoppers get it when they get about so old. Do drive dreadful careful, George."

George drove, with compressed lips. Half-way home it occurred to him that he had forgotten to get gas on the way down. It was no wonder that he remembered it. Midway of a crowded avenue the motor whirred in a peculiar manner for a moment or two, then stopped, as did the car. A crash as of tinware behind and a strident imprecation from the same direction testified that it hadn't occurred to George to stick out his hand.

"Outa gas, eh?" commented a big mounted policeman, who appeared as the other motorist, finding his own machine

A GOOD INVESTMENT

Seventy-five dollars will pay the tuition of some worthy girl at Durant (Oklahoma) College next session, and help a Presbyterian institution maintain itself on the western "firing line." Can we count on you, your class, or your society? Write W. B. Morrison, President, Box 471, Durant, Okla.

EXPERT KODAK FINISHING

Developing and printing by experts. Most beautiful work guaranteed at all times. Satisfaction or no charge. Developing 6 exposure rolls 10 cents, 10 and 12 exposure rolls 15 cents, film packs 20 cents per pack. Printing 1 5-8 by 2 1-2, 3 cents; 2 1-4 by 3 1-4, 4 cents; 2 1-2 by 4 1-2, 5 cents; 3 1-4 by 5 1-2, 6 cents. Quick delivery. Send one film to test our service.

LIGONS DRUG STORE
Spartanburg, S. C.

THE WESTMINSTER TEACHERS' BUREAU SPECIALIZES

in securing Christian teachers, officers and helpers for schools, colleges and universities—private, public and denominational—and in helping trained, Christian teachers and helpers to larger fields of service. Write today. Henry H. Sweets, Manager, 410 Urban Building, Louisville, Ky.

ALL HEALING SPRINGS

In the Brushy Mountains of North Carolina, 1400 ft. elevation. Rates $12.50 to $17.50 per week. The place of "good eats," six miles west of Taylorsville, N. C., on State highway No. 75 from Statesville, N. C., to Lenoir, N. C. Only 40 miles to Blowing Rock, N. C. The finest mineral water and the most ideal climate in the temperate zone. Two large comfortable buildings with or without bath. Rooms full of windows or sleeping porches if desired. Capacity 125. The place for a real vacation. Fried chicken, country ham, the spice of life from the Brushy Mountains, with beans, potatoes, and corn fresh from the farm, and milk, butter and real hen's eggs. In the mountains and at a mineral spring. Hotel open June 1st. Write for particulars.

O. F. POOLE, Proprietor
Taylorsville, N. C.

uninjured, drove off, leaving George to straighten out the rear mud-guard of the Hopper. "Well, shove that rusty tin can to the side of the road, and get some. No! Throw 'er in neutral, ya big stiff. Traffic can't wait all day for ya to push engine an' all. Hurry up, now, and I'll be waitin' for ya if it takes ya over fifteen minutes."

"I don't see how you could be so careless," reproved Aunt Lydia, after George had perspiringly got the car, including herself, safely parked. "Though they do say that second-hand cars usually leak. John Howland—"

But George had vanished, almost at a trot, in search of a gas-station.

"You've been gone fourteen minutes," announced Aunt Lydia when he returned. "I've felt so conspicuous. There was a girl—saucy thing—that asked her feller which was the oldest, me or the car. They've got better manners 'n that back home. And in another minute that officer would 'a' been back. To think how near I come to bein' arrested."

George slopped the gasoline into the tank, and got home without further misadventure. For the week of her stay Aunt Lydia, despite frequently voiced misgivings and occasional allusions to John Howland and to the appearance of the car, proved quite willing to help keep the machine busy.

"Now," said George, when Aunt Lydia had been safely—naded with thanks—delivered at the Union Station again, "we'll get busy and paint that car. I don't propose to have any more old hons from yards of five hundred pop. throwing off on the looks of it."

"Why, George! That's just Aunt Lydia's way. She really can't help it. She doesn't mean any harm. She's the best-hearted old soul—"

"All right, all right," George hastily interrupted the encomiums of Aunt Lydia's niece. "She's an angel—with worn finish, like the Hopper. She ought to have more of a fellow-feeling for it. Thank goodness, the car can be fixed, at any rate."

"I'm afraid you can't this week," replied Mrs. George. "I hate to have it held up, but the children's Sunday School picnic comes this Saturday, and they'll be heart-broken if they miss it. And I can't let them take that long, hot ride on the interurban."

So the painting of the Hopper was again deferred, though this time it was George who protested. Aunt Lydia's acidity had eaten considerably beneath his own enamel.

Monday morning, early, found George at work again. He washed the car thoroughly, and was splashily investigating the crevices with gasoline when he heard the familiar voice of Jim Veeder, his next-door neighbor.

"Hello, George. Well, you are a sight! Better keep those doors wide open, or you'll asphyxiate. Say, what do you know? My boss rented a cottage down at the shore, and can't stay out his month, which is up this week-end. He's turned it over to me for the rest of the week. It's plenty big for two families. Pask your wife and youngsters into the fliv, and come down with us."

"I don't know," said George doubtfully, wiping his hands on a big rag that had been used for that purpose before. "This car—"

"Hang the car," cut in Jim inelegantly. "It'll go, won't it? You'll see worse-looking ones on any road—most any road."

Mrs. George, overhearing something of the matter, had come out.

"I hate to go to that fashionable place in such a looking car," she demurred. "But nobody knows us down there. And we may never had another chance."

"I'll go over some of it, at least, the Saturday afternoon we get back," promised George.

"Indeed you won't," declared Mrs.

George, definitely. "For one thing, we're going to stay every blessed moment we can. And for another, now our church is closed for the summer I'm going over to Grace Church to hear the new rector they say is so wonderful."

Another Monday again found George determinedly scraping the car. It was Jim Veeder again who broke in just as George was about to open his first paint-can.

"You're not going to use that Splasho stuff, George! Bill Andrews painted his flivver with that, and it was sticky for two weeks, and then began to flake off."

"What's better?" asked George in surprise, for the product thus condemned had been widely advertised and much recommended.

OAK RIDGE INSTITUTE, Oak Ridge, N. C.
T. E. Whitaker, President

Founded in 1852. Military. Courses thoroughly covering Literature, Science, Book-keeping, Short-hand, Typewriting, and Music. Eight buildings; electric lights, steam heat and shower baths. 350 acres in campus, athletic grounds, orchards, and farms. Beautiful lake nesting between hills covered with virgin forests. Healthful—1040 feet above sea level; accessible location near Greensboro. Sane, moral influences. Costs reasonable. $425 for the year. Fall session opens first Tuesday in Sept. each year. Write for illustrated catalogue. Address Oak Ridge Institute, Oak Ridge, N. C.

Educate Your Boy Under Christian Influences

Safeguard his morals, start him in with high ideals and a sound foundation with a thorough course at the

Presbyterian College of South Carolina

Renowned for its Christian teaching, beautiful campus, modern buildings, strong faculty, excellent athletic teams, field and coach. R. O. T. C., high standard of scholarship.

For catalogue and information, write—

Dr. D. M. DOUGLAS, President,

Clinton, S. C.

THE LOUISVILLE PRESBYTERIAN THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

BRILLIANT FACULTY MODERN CURRICULUM

Situated in the heart of the institutional section of a great metropolis, with all the added advantages of these associated institutions

Write for particulars to JOHN M. VANDER MEULEN, President

109 East Broadway, Louisville, Ky.

STOP! LOOK! LISTEN!

There is danger ahead if you are not saving part of what you earn. The world is a hard place for those without money. There is no friend like "ready money" when sickness, or old age comes.

Be fair to yourself and family by taking Building and Loan shares. Shares cost twenty-five cents per week and usually mature in 333 weeks. Net you 6 1/4 per cent at maturity.

NEW SERIES OPENS MARCH FIRST

MECHANICS PERPETUAL BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION

J. H. Wearn,
President.

207 N. Tryon St.
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

E. J. CAFFREY,
Sec'y & Treas.

PEACE INSTITUTE

RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

For Young Women

Established 1857

College Courses. Preparatory Courses for Standard College Requirements. Diplomas in Piano, Voice, Art, Expression and Home Economics. Commercial-Secretarial Course. Teacher Training Course. Specialists in all departments.

LULA B. WYNNE HALL, HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

MARY OWEN GRAHAM, President

Flora Macdonald College

Red Springs, North Carolina

Where the Spirit of SERVICE and LOYALTY Abounds

3,000 Alumnae engaged in 60 Occupations

10 Graduates "On the Firing Line"

Courses leading to A. B., B. S., B. M. Degrees

Catalog on Request

Address the Registrar

Tuesday, found George again busy in the garage. Each trip, no matter how short, left on the much-scrubbed surfaces a new accumulation of dust and grease, which, of course, had to be removed before any paint could be expected to stick. And each place from which a coating of rust had been painstakingly rubbed off showed a tendency to reclothe itself overnight. At the voice of his wife George turned with a mixture of wrath and resignation in his face.

"George"—Mrs. George's voice mingled apology and entreaty—"you know our Sunday School is sending a lot of poor children for a week in the country—"

"My vacation," said George with determination, "is up Monday. I can't—"

"Oh, don't be a silly," interrupted his wife with some asperity. "Nobody expects you to be gone a week. But they're sending them out to the farms in cars—it's such a pleasure to the poor dears—and Mr. Stimson just phoned that several people haven't—"

"Several people never do," cut in George. "Well, slum kids at least ought not to be fussy about an unpainted car."

George returned somewhat wearily at nightfall. "I guess," said he, "that it was lucky the car wasn't finished. If it had been, there wouldn't have been any paint left on it by now."

"Did the children enjoy the ride?" asked Mrs. George with interest.

"They enjoyed themselves," said George with conviction. "They called it an old rust-pot. They amused themselves, between somesaults and the like, in wondering audibly how much I made. Estimates ran anywhere from eight dollars a week to eighteen."

"Well, you can't paint it tomorrow," his wife informed him. "Mrs. Hamerton phoned—"

"She's asked us out there every month for a year."

"But we had an excuse; it was so far. Now she knows we've got a machine—"

Friday morning, the last Friday of his vacation, found George, with a patience born of desperation, again scraping the car. George, as may have been inferred, had in his make-up a considerable amount of determination. From his open door he descried the postman as he deposited several envelopes—many more than usual—in the mail-box. Mrs. George, providentially, was on an errand.

George wiped his fingers hurriedly, and ran up to the house. He glanced hastily over the postmarks, scanned the hand-writings, and hastened after the disappearing gray-coat. He thrust the letters into his hands.

"Here!" he said sternly. "I don't want these now. Bring 'em back this afternoon."

The postman eyed George sharply—his damaged, disreputable clothes, his smudged features, and the wild light in his eye. He backed away hastily, sniffing the air from George-ward. He was a little man, and George was a big one.

"Sure," he jerked out apprehensively. "Sure. Oh, sure."

Mrs. George came down to the garage soon after her return.

"It's funny," she said. "Usually we have mail in the morning."

George, recumbent beneath the running-gear, merely grunted.

"What's that you said?"

"I said," said George very casually, "that maybe we'd have some this afternoon."

Through the morning George scraped and sanded feverishly. He scarcely stopped for lunch. It was about three o'clock when the mail came.

"George!" called Mrs. George from the house, with tragedy in her voice. "O George!"

George, wiping his hands with a practiced motion, ascended to the house with deliberation. On the dining table, open, lay four missives.

"George," said his wife, with the tragic note still sustained, "what ever shall we do? Here's a note from Aunt Lydia—it must have been delayed—demanding us for a week-end in the country. She'll be mortally offended if we don't come. Here's one from your cousin Emma Wilkins—you know what an old maid she is—asking if we won't drive over and bring

(Continued on page 16)

1854 COLUMBIA COLLEGE 1923
COLUMBIA, SOUTH CAROLINA
One of the South's oldest Colleges for the Christian Education of Young Women. Standard Courses leading to B. A. and B. S. Degrees. Strong Departments in Music, Art, Home Economics, Expression. Christian Atmosphere. Magnificent Plant. Write for Literature.
J. CALDWELL GUILDS, President

BLUE RIDGE SCHOOL FOR BOYS
HENDERSONVILLE, N. C.

A select home school on Accredited List, offering to a limited number of boys, from 9 to 20 years old, a more intensive system of training than public schools can give. Ideally located in healthful, invigorating climate, conducive to study. Each boy's personality carefully studied and directed by efficient teaching staff composed of verile, patriotic men with successful teaching careers. A teacher for every seven or eight boys insures individual attention in studies. Boys taught HOW TO STUDY. All branches of athletics directed and supervised by able instructors.

High moral tone; cultured, home-like environments; parental discipline.

Total charge for session, September 18 to June 4, $650. Summer term, July and August. For catalog, address,
J. R. SANDIFER, Headmaster, Hendersonville, N. C.

WHERE TO GO TO COLLEGE?

There are three major considerations that determine the greatness, or the potential greatness, of an educational institution.

1. The Plant, including grounds, library, classrooms, laboratories, and apparatus.
2. The Faculty.
3. The Student body and its democratic standards.

In addition to the thirty-four buildings already on the campus, the State of North Carolina is this year putting $1,650,000 into new buildings and equipment. The library of 150,000 volumes is spending $24,000 annually for books and periodicals. Eight thousand volumes were received in 1922-1923, and one thousand and five magazines and learned journals were received on subscription.

The Faculty numbers 128 of the country's best scholars. Speaking of the student body of the University, Mr. Sherwood Eddy, of Yale University, who has spent the major portion of his life studying in four continents, said, that with one exception, it was the most seriously thoughtful and democratic group of students he had ever known.

Registration for fall quarter, September 25, 26, 1923.

For further information address

The Secretary to the President
UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA, CHAPEL HILL, N. C.

Queens College, Charlotte, N. C.

A High Grade Institution for the Education of Young Women

Christian Ideals constantly held before the Students; Christian Characters in the chair of each Department; Five Teachers with M. A. Degree; Two Teachers with Ph.D. Degree; Christian Atmosphere permeating the Student Body.

Location, the very best; Myers Park, Charlotte. Equipment rapidly reaching standard requirements. Curriculum equal to that of any institution in the State. Expenses very moderate indeed, considering advantages offered and work done.

Our Motto: "Christian Women for Christian Homes." Send us your daughter, support us in our administration and instruction, and we will return a thoroughly developed and fully refined Christian woman.

For catalogue and other information, write

WILLIAM H. FRAZER, President

Box 300
Charlotte, N. C.

Aberdeen & Rockfish Railroad

BETWEEN ABERDEEN AND FAYETTEVILLE

EAST BOUND			DISTANCE FROM ABERDEEN	STATIONS	DISTANCE FROM FAYETTEVILLE	WEST BOUND
Pass.	Local Freight	Pass.				Pass.	Local Freight	Pass.
DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY				DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY
NO. 14	NO. 22	NO. 38				NO. 41	NO. 21	NO. 15
7:00 pm	7:30 am	9:00 am	0	Lv. Aberdeen Ar.	45	6:50 pm	3:50 pm	8:30 am
f 7:19 pm	s 8:15 am	f 9:16 am	5	Ashley Heights	40	f 6:35 pm	f 3:20 pm	f 8:12 am
s 7:28 pm	f 8:36 am	s 9:26 am	9	Sanitorium	36	f 6:26 pm	f 3:05 pm	s 8:02 am
f 7:34 pm	f 8:39 am	f 9:30 am	10	Montrose	35	f 6:22 pm	f 3:00 pm	f 7:58 am
f 7:46 pm	f 8:51 am	f 9:38 am	13	Timberland	32	f 6:13 pm	f 2:45 pm	f 7:48 am
s 8:00 pm	s 9:55 am	s 9:53 am	19	Raeford	26	s 6:00 pm	s 2:25 pm	s 7:30 am
	s 10:13 am	f 10:08 am	24	Dundarrach	21	f 5:45 pm	s 1:25 pm
	f 10:21 am	f 10:15 am	26	Arabia	19	f 5:39 pm	f 1:15 pm
	s 10:40 am	s 10:29 am	30	Rockfish	15	s 5:25 pm	s 12:55 pm
	f 10:43 am	f 10:31 am	31	Hope Hills Jct.	14	f 5:22 pm	f 12:50 pm
	f 10:53 am	f 10:40 am	34	Fenix	11	f 5:13 pm	f 12:38 pm
	s 11:00 am	s 10:46 am	36	Clifton	9	s 5:08 pm	f 12:33 pm
	f 11:12 am	f 10:56 am	40	Skibo	5	f 5:00 pm	f 12:18 pm
	f 11:19 am	f 11:02 am	42	Owens	3	f 4:55 pm	f 12:11 pm
	s 11:30 am	s 11:15 am	45	Ar. Fayetteville Lv.	0	s 4:45 pm	s 12 noon

East and North bound trains have right of track over West and South bound trains of the same class.
All trains stop on flag at Lake field.

MARY BALDWIN COLLEGE AND MARY BALDWIN SEMINARY
Established in 1842

For Young Ladies Staunton, Va.
Term begins September 6th. In Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. Unsurpassed climate, modern equipment. Students from 33 States. Courses: Collegiate, 4 years, A.B. Degree; Preparatory, 4 years. Music, Art, Expression, Domestic Science. Athletics—Gymnasium and Field. Catalogue.

RANDOLPH-MACON INSTITUTE, Danville, Virginia, for Girls. College preparatory and special courses for those not wishing to go to college. Vocal and Instrumental Music, Art and Expression. Attractive home life. Gymnasium. Branch of the Randolph-Macon System. Rates $500. Catalogue. Address Chas. G. Evans, A. M., Principal, Box C, Danville, Virginia.

TYPEWRITERS

New and Rebuilt
For Sale, Rent or Exchange
S. H. WILEY
Salisbury, N. C.

JAMES M. McMICHAEL
Church Architect
Charlotte, N. C.

THE McCALLIE SCHOOL
Founded for Christian education, never more needed than today. Prepares boys for leading colleges and Government Academies. High academic standing. Small classes, individual attention. Military training. All athletics. Fine athletic field, and new concrete swimming pool.
Headmasters
S. J. McCallie, M. A., and
J. P. McCallie, M. A., Ph.D.
For catalog address The McCallie School
Mission Ridge Chattanooga, Tenn.

Church Furniture
WORK OF THE HIGHEST QUALITY
AT REASONABLE PRICES.
Write for Catalogue
BUDGE & WEIS MFG. CO.
JACKSON, TENNESSEE

THE SALISBURY MARBLE CO.
Salisbury, N. C.

Anything in...
CEMETERY WORK
Satisfaction our Motto
A card will bring full information.

School Desks,
Opera Chairs,
Folding Chairs
Kindergarten Chairs,
Church Pews,
School Supplies,
Blackboards
Southern Desk Co., Hickory, N. C.

No matter where you live you can get six per cent on your money. Free from taxes, risk and worry. Amounts received from $50 to $5,000. Write for free literature.
SECURITY SAVINGS AND LOAN CO.
Assets $1,011,288.30
F. W. DIXON, President - Birmingham, Ala.

NORFOLK SOUTHERN RAILROAD COMPANY

Passenger Schedules
Effective January 28, 1923

Charlotte, N. C.
Daily Except Sunday as Shown
Lv. 7:30 A. M.

Raleigh and intermediate points.
Connection for Belhaven, Norfolk, and intermediate points.

For tickets, Pullman reservations and information address or apply to

J. K. POWELL, D. T. A.
P. A. JENKINS, C. T. A.

Mitchell College

(JUNIOR)

(Founded 1856 by Concord Presbytery)

Two years of standard, accredited college work—courses leading to Baccalaureate degrees—Excellent department of Music—Certificate courses in Home Economics and Secretarial.

MITCHELL ACADEMY

An accredited High School, with standard and flexible courses

Bible teaching emphasized throughout.

Teacher Training courses for secular and Sunday Schools.

Catalog on application.

W. F. Hollingsworth, Pres.
Statesville, N. C.

Sparkles

Famous Last Words

"Which one of these is the third rail, anyway?"

"I wonder whether this rope will hold my weight?"

"I wonder if it's loaded? I'll look down the barrel and see."

"It's no fun swimming here. I'm going out beyond the lifelines."

"Look at this wire hanging down into the street. I'll throw it to one side."

"I've never driven a car in traffic before, but they say it's perfectly simple."

"I wonder how much electricity these wires carry? I'll touch one and find out."

"I wonder if my gasoline tank is empty? I'll strike a match and see."—Cgregationalist.

"Where is the car?" asked Mrs. Diggs.

"Dear me!" exclaimed Professor Diggs. "Did I take the car out?"

"Of course you did. You drove it to town."

"I remember now that after I got out I turned around to thank the gentleman who gave me a lift and wondered where he had gone."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

In the recent drive to raise money for an endowment fund an alumna employed two small boys to sell soap. "Why are you selling the soap?" inquired a lady at a house on Johnnie's beat. "To raise $3,000,000 for the college," was the prompt reply.

"Three million dollars!" the lady exclaimed. "And are you going to raise it all by yourself?"

"No, ma'am," said Johnnie, "there's another little boy helping me."—Ex.

Young Wife (to her husband)—But you see, my darling, it is really to your interest. The more money you give me voluntarily, the less I'll ask you for.—Sans-Gene (Paris).

STORY AND INCIDENT

(Continued from page 15)

her for a visit over Sunday. This is from Uncle Homer, asking you to drive out to his house—it's only twenty miles—and get a package for the Salvation Army, so as to save postage. The other is from the Wards—they could hire a dozen taxicabs if they wanted—saying that Mrs. Ward's father is in the city, and would we mind taking him for a few little trips around town? What ever shall we do?"

George sighed, but it was a sigh of contentment, and the contentment illumined such of his features as were still visible. He pointed to the open garage door, where appeared a glistening surface of black.

"The answer," he declaimed, "is like wise an alibi. We're painting the car!"

SORES

BOILS, CUTS and BURNS have been healed since 1820 with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 724 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Headaches Are Usually Due to Constipation

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe. Try it today.

Nujol

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

A LUBRICANT—NOT A LAXATIVE

BELK BROS. CO.

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Correct in every detail—appealingly pretty—easy to make because of the Special Guide for Cutting and Construction.

Pictorial Review Patterns for July

20c to 35c
None Higher

Dress 1131, 35 cents

WARNER'S CORSETS—To fit any form—Back or Front Lace.

KAYSER'S ITALIAN SILK LINGERIE—

KAYSER'S SILK HOSE—In all the New Colors and styles: Gordon-Van Raalte-Lehigh-Merrell & Burson Hose: $1.50 to $4.95 All Silk.

GLOVES IN LONGS AND SHORTS—In all the New Leading Shades—in Kids-Chamoisettes & Silks—Niagara made and Kayser's: 98c to $2.95

NEW SUMMER SWEATERS

IN FIBRE SILK—Mohairs and Fine Wool.

IN THE SLIP—Over and Tuxedo Styles from $4.95 to $12.50

WE HANDLE

HOME JOURNAL PATTERNS
PICTORIAL REVIEW PATTERNS

We carry the most extensive Stock probably in the State. Send us your Mail Orders on Patterns.

Some of the things you probably can't get else where as conveniently:—Fleishers Wool Yarns, in almost any Shade and Kind.

All kinds of Knitting Threads and Crotchet in Silks or Cotton.

A Home Journal Pattern

In SIZES
14 - 16 - 18
years

Voile and Lace are used in making model shown.

The STIEFF TONE

Is famous with three generations of music lovers. It has never been duplicated. It is the expression of a passion for perfection that has actuated three generations of piano makers.

Chas. M. Stieff, Inc.,
Charlotte, N. C.
Please send catalogue and prices of Pianos.
Name _____
Address _____

CHAS. M. STIEFF, Inc.
Charlotte, N. C.

STIEFF PETIT GRAND
The smallest Grand Piano made that embodies all the essential qualities of the Concert Grand.

SEE HERE, BRETHREN

We advertise in but one religious paper, yet Methodist preachers predominate as to the clergy on our books. Now conducting a final test as to the value of a religious publication as an advertising medium. The argument stands against it.

THE MUTUAL BUILDING AND LOAN

Is the largest between Washington and New Orleans, and, we believe, the best in the U. S., but Presbyterian preachers don't seem to grasp these facts. Must we discontinue this ad? It's for you to decide, and that shortly.

JNO. R. PHARR,
President

E. L. KEESLER,
Secretary-Treasurer
Charlotte, N. C.

Opportunity Never Seeks

The man or woman without money. That is why you should save and steadily build up an account in a strong bank where the money will be ready for you when the right opportunity comes along. Your account will be welcome here.

"National Bank Safety for Savings"

Charlotte National Bank
Resources Over $5,000,000.00

NO FURNITURE IS CHEAP THAT DOES NOT POSSESS REAL QUALITY

Here is an exquisite suit—Bed, Vanity Case and Chiffarobe—in old ivory, with dainty blue tinting at $232.50 that we regard as the market's finest value for this moderate price. This is an ideal suit for the young lady's room or the guest room. Visit us often.

W. T. McCoy & Co.

211 South Tryon St.

Charlotte, N. C.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

A Religious Newspaper for the Family

Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.

Rev. J. R. Bridges, D.D., Charlotte, N. C., Editor

Rev. R. C. Reed, D.D., Columbia, S. C., Editor

Vol. LXIV

CHARLOTTE, N. C., JUNE 20, 19

No. 25

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $3.00 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE
REV. W. L. BOGGS, Circulation Manager

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
BY PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY,
A. M. GRAY, Treasurer.

ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858.

Entered at the Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as second class matter

A Religious Newspaper for the Family, Devoted to the Interest of Christ's Kingdom as Represented by the Southern Presbyterian Church.

Address all communications, and make all checks payable, to the company, and not to individuals.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The label on the paper gives the date to which subscription is paid.

When change of address is desired, give the old and new address. When the date of the label is behind the date of this issue of the paper the label is a reminder that the subscription price is past due. When the date of the label is in advance of the date of this issue it is a receipt for the last subscription paid.

In accordance with the wishes of our patrons, the paper is discontinued only upon the written request of the subscriber. Arrearages must be settled in full at the same time, at the rate of three dollars a year.

No charge is made for the insertion of marriage and obituary notices of fifty words or less. For all over fifty words remit at the rate of one cent a word. Correspondents are requested to give the post office address of married couples when marriage notices are sent.

News items should be in our hands by Monday morning in order to insure their publication in the current issue.

CHANGE OF ADVERTISEMENTS

Advertisers who want their advertisements changed or want to insert new advertisements will please bring their copy to this office by Saturday. It is impossible for us to insert new advertisements or make changes for the current week at a later date.

Advertising rates furnished on application. The size and character of this paper indicate the size and character of its constituency. For reputable advertising there is no better medium for North and South Carolina and the most prosperous section of the South.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

EDITORIAL—
Columbia Seminary Commencement	1
Liberalism in the Northern Assembly	1
"Your Fathers! Where Are They?"	2
CONTRIBUTED—
Working by a Power Not Our Own—By Rev. J. Keir Frazer, D.D.	3, 4
Jesus Did Not Teach a Religion of Service Only	4
Fields of Labor	4
"The Seven Black Sheep"—By Rev. A. Sydenstricker	5
"Stillman Institute and Summer Conference for Colored Ministers"—By Rev. R. A. Brown	5
"A Dream of Children and the Master"	5
Albemarle Normal and Industrial Institute	5
DEPARTMENTS—
Devotional	2
Woman's Auxiliary	6
Sunday School—By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.	7
Christian Endeavor—By Rev. J. G. Garth	7
Church News	8, 9, 10
News of the Week	10
Children	12
Advertisements, Etc.	12, 16

TREASURERS OF BENEVOLENT CAUSES

- Foreign Missions—Edwin F. Willis, 154 Fifth Ave., N. Nashville, Tenn.
- Home Missions, General Assembly's—A. N. Sharpe, 1522 Hurt Building, Atlanta, Ga.
- General Assembly's Training School—Geo. W. Call, Richmond, Va., Union Bank.
- Bible Cause—Gilbert Darlington, Bible House, N. Y.
- Christian Education and Ministerial Relief—John Stites, Fifth and Market Sts., Louisville, Ky.
- Publication and Sabbath School Work—R. E. Magill, 618 N. Sixth St., Richmond, Va.
- The General Assembly's Equipment Fund—T. R. Preston, Treasurer, Chattanooga, Tenn.

EDITORIAL

COLUMBIA SEMINARY COMMENCEMENT

COULD there be a more conclusive proof of continuous and growing prosperity than the fact that each commencement is better than the last. Such is the proof of the prosperity of Columbia Seminary. It is now ninety-five years old, and never in its history has it shown such vigorous life. It had last year the largest enrollment in its history—sixty-nine. The prospect is for a decided increase next year. The Seminary has reached that happy condition when if you wish to get a good seat, you must come early. The quantity is not the only cause for felicitation. The quality is equally gratifying. Of the sixteen who went out in the graduating class, fourteen are volunteers for the foreign field. We would not imply that this is a sure mark of higher piety than is possessed by those who remain at home. It simply signifies that the missionary spirit pervades in an unusual manner the entire student body. Those who remain in the homeland are as thoroughly imbued with it as those who propose to go abroad.

The commencement began this year with two fine sermons on the first Sunday in May. On Sunday morning, in the First Presbyterian Church, Rev. Alex. Martin, of Rock Hill, S. C., preached the Baccalaureate. It had in rare measure the prime quality of "ad-remness". It was exactly suited to the occasion, stressing as the first requisite to a successful minister that the man behind the sermon be what he ought to be. The thought of the sermon ran after this fashion: God does not call into the ministry only men of fine talent. He calls many men of ordinary ability. It follows that all cannot become noted for their learning, or their oratory or for any other shining quality. But there are three things that should characterize every one called of God to preach. He should be a godly man. His life should bear continuous witness to the transforming power of divine grace. Second, he should have a proper appreciation of his high calling. He should recognize that the honor and privilege of preaching the Gospel are in themselves a sufficient reward. If a candidate finds that he needs the bribe of a fat pastorate and a comfortable manse, he should go before his Presbytery and ask that his name be stricken from the roll. And third, he should be sincere. He should be dominated by such deep convictions of the truths which he preaches as to free him from all suspicion of affectation and pretense. It is inexcusable in any preacher not to possess these three qualifications, and possessing these his ministry cannot be a failure. Dr. Martin drove these points home with great power.

Sunday evening, in the Arsenal Hill Church, Rev. W. L. Caldwell, D.D., of Nashville, Tenn., preached the annual sermon before the Society of Missionary Inquiry. He rendered a splendid service by imparting freshness and enthusiasm to an old subject, that of Foreign Missions. He laid the burden of a dying world's spiritual needs on the hearts of his hearers till they felt almost a painful sense of their obligation to hurry to meet those needs with God's one great remedy for sin and sorrow—the Gospel of Christ.

On Tuesday evening, in the First Presbyterian Church, Dr. J. B. Green, Professor of Systematic Theology, delivered his inaugural address. The Board had allowed Dr. Green an extra year in which to prepare his address. He rewarded the Board by giving them an address that was worth waiting an extra year to hear. In his usually brilliant, sententious and epigrammatic style, Dr. Green expounded the nature of theology, and emphasized its importance as a discipline for those who are to interpret the Word of God to the people. It would be a blessing unspeakable if the thoughts of this address could be lodged in the hearts of all those who stand in the pulpit to proclaim the message of salvation to lost sinners.

On Wednesday at noon the graduating exercises were held in the Seminary chapel. We doubt if any finer class of young men have ever stood in that consecrated place to receive the official testimonial to their having completed the prescribed course of study. The only sad feature of the occasion was that there were three times as many vacant places calling for their services as they could fill. One interesting incident connected with the exercises was the announcement of the winner of the Book prize amounting to $30.00. There were four men in the class so near together that it was only by counting up their grades with the utmost care during all the three years of their course that any distinction could be made. At last the prize had to be divided between Samuel Hewitt Fulton and Charles Rees Jenkins, while Samuel Burney Hay and Marshall Scott Woodson came in for honorable mention.

The social features of the commencement are worthy of notice. On Monday evening, in the Seminary dining hall, Dr. Henry Alexander White and Mrs. White gave a most enjoyable informal reception to the students. Dr. White and his charming wife have indulged in this kind of service until practice has rendered them well nigh perfect. They know exactly how to please the boys.

On Thursday afternoon President J. M. Wells and his wife threw open their elegant home to the students, and feasted them and their young lady friends on choice and dainty comestibles. The rooms were beautifully decorated with a great profusion of lovely flowers; and nothing was wanting to make the time pass most delightfully.

On the same evening, the Senior class gave a banquet at the Jefferson Hotel. The faculty of the Seminary, and many friends of the class were invited to share in the joys of this festal season. There was everything to eat that any reasonable appetite could crave. And after all appetites had been satisfied the "feast of reason and flow of soul" was something to be remembered. The list of speakers seemed almost interminable, "and for all there were so many yet was not the net broken." It was a time of loving and happy fellowship. Sparkling wit and rollicking humor abounded throughout for the space of two hours, and the hours seemed all too short. The faculty wondered how they could have lived in close, intimate contact with these young men for three years and yet saw so little of the fresh, buoyant and effervescent side of their lives. It was something to rejoice the heart to see them confronting the stern battles of life with such a wealth of exuberant vitality. The festivities closed with a very earnest prayer that God would give them abundant joy in the service to which He had called them.

Columbia Seminary is looking forward with well grounded hopes to a future of ever enlarging usefulness.

LIBERALISM IN THE NORTHERN ASSEMBLY

It has been known for some time that there has been a liberal element in the Northern Church, though generally it has been denied, or else it has been claimed that its strength has been exaggerated.

At the last meeting of that Assembly the lines were clearly drawn, and the strength of Liberalism disclosed. Instead of their strength being exaggerated, it has been found to have been underestimated. Though they appeared in the minority, when the final test came, they showed strength enough to give the Conservatives anxious thought for the future.

The defeat of Mr. Bryan for the moderatorship was not a fair test, because other elements entered in. There was, in the first place, the evolution theory. There are many men who, while they have not fully accepted it, are yet unwilling to take a decided stand against it. Again, there are others who imagine that freedom of thought ought never to be hampered, and then there are those who either believe, or imagine that they believe, that they can reconcile evolution with the Genesis account of the creation of man.

Besides these seemingly earnest seekers after truth, there are many who imagine that belief in evolution is a mark of intellect.

While Mr. Bryan's views on evolution were largely a determining factor in the opposition he encountered, politics also played a prominent part in his defeat.

Among the rock-ribbed Republicans of the North, a vote for a Democrat, even for an ecclesiastic position, seems deadly treason. By reason of all these probabilities Mr. Bryan failed to reach his goal.

Of course his resolution on Evolution was doomed to defeat for the same reasons.

We do not know the custom in the Northern Assembly, but with us, the successful candidate for the moderatorship always, in his appointment of standing committees, gives the highest place to the one who received the next highest vote. This rule would have made Mr. Bryan the Chairman of the Committee on Bills and Overtures. The moderator, however, appointed Dr. Hugh Walker, who stood far below Mr. Bryan in the voting.

As Dr. Walker is a liberal, it gave the liberals an advantage in the most important committee.

When the show-down came in the evolution matter, the moderator by his vote arrayed himself on the same side as Dr. Walker, which no doubt explained Dr. Walker's appointment.

The liberals have boasted greatly over their evolution victory, but they are still trying to explain their defeat in the Fosdick case. One explanation is that the members were worn out and in order to get through without further debate, they allowed the anti-Fosdick resolutions to pass.

Of course to the most casual thinker this has a thin surface, that will prevent it from holding water.

Another reason given is that the thinking men were for Dr. Fosdick, but, as is always the case in large assemblies, the non-thinkers were in the majority.

If we may judge from reports in the secular press, the New York ministers do not propose to submit to the Assembly's verdict nor carry out its instructions. Already there are signs of rebellion among the defeated men.

We shall watch with interest what course the Assembly will follow in order to carry out its instructions.

"YOUR FATHERS! WHERE ARE THEY?"

Presbyterians, like many other people, are stronger in theory than in practice. We love to dwell upon the virtues of our ancestors, and to tell the story of the heroic struggles of our Church in early days.

If you wish to kindle the enthusiasm of a Presbyterian audience, paint the scene of the signing of the Covenant by the hard-headed Scotchmen.

To come down to modern times, we love to picture that scene in Augusta, when the Southern Presbyterian Church was born, when Thornwell, Palmer and others of that type of manhood, withdrew from the old Church, and with a handful of ministers started the Home and Foreign work as a separate organization.

These divisions were all based upon an abstract principle, the allegiance of the Church to Christ and not to the State.

Our only reasonable defense against the charge that we are dividing the Church and thus promoting schism, has been the claim that we could not conscientiously admit that the Church should try to control the State, or the State the Church.

Such is our theory, but how different is our present practice.

The last Assembly by a vote of 149 carried the majority report that the Southern Church remain in the Federal Council, despite the plain proof that the Council was doing the very thing against which our Church has always protested.

They decided that we remain in a Council that tries to dictate to the State how to run the government, and to intervene between capital and labor.

It is true that the plea was made by more than one speaker, from Dr. Speer in his great address, down to the chairman of the committee, that by reason of the great good done we ought to overlook these departures from the right.

But what avails such pleas? The Jesuits can defend their practices upon the same ground that the end justifies the means.

When we saw 149 commissioners in the last Assembly vote to place our Church in such an equivocal position, we wondered if they realized fully the meaning of their vote.

In reply to the charge that we refuse to unite with the Northern Church because we still cling to our Civil War prejudices, we have always been able to reply that the Southern Church's reason for a separate existence is not due to any sectional feelings, but simply to the same reason why she separated in the beginning—a protest against the Northern Church proposing to make political deliverances.

But now that plea will sound absurd, because it can be replied, You are in a Council that is constantly doing the same thing. We fear that our younger preachers do not know the history of their Church as well as they should.

When they face questions depending upon such

GLADNESS

Are you not sad for sorrows past?
No! I am glad they did not last.

Do you not hate the false you knew?
No! I love more the good and true.

Do you not mourn for work undone?
No! I rejoice for triumphs won.

Have not Life's struggles wearied you?
No! They revealed new work to do.

Do you not fear the long, dark night?
No! I await the coming light.

Surely some dread the future mars.
No! Hope and Faith can see the stars.

— Jas. L. Hughes.

knowledge, they do not know what to do, so they follow the majority.

An honest old elder remarked after the last Assembly that though this was his first experience as a commissioner, he had managed to vote right every time. When asked how he knew that he was right, he replied, "Because my side won."

It is evident that we need instruction in order that men may learn that minorities are not necessarily wrong.

Old Athanasius was a lone minority, when in the defense of the Trinity, he stood against the world, but today the Church of God, both Catholic and Protestant, stands where Athanasius stood.

THE OVERFLOWING CUP

"My cup runneth over." David had not only a fullness of abundance, but of reabundance. Those who have this happiness must carry their cup upright, and see that it overflows into their poor brethren's emptier vessels. The showers which fall upon the highest mountains should glide into the lowest valleys.

"The fact that you are a Christian may, without doubt, assure you a safe entrance into heaven, but it may not mean that you are much of a blessing to your friends about you. God makes the life to overflow that other men's lives may be touched with your power. For it is only the overflow of your life that proves a blessing to your friends and kindred. It is the overflow of the Nile that makes the valley of the Nile fruitful."—J. Wilbur Chapman.

"Lost" means to have missed something or to be missed. The sinner misses the joy of salvation and the bliss of eternal life. The church misses his service and fellowship on earth, and loved ones are disappointed at the gates of pearl.—Selected.

Devotional

MR. BRYAN'S PRAYER AT THE ASSEMBLY

Our heavenly Father—all wise and all powerful—we bless thy holy name that thou art also infinite in love.

We thank thee that after thou hadst made the limitless universe and filled the earth with flowers and food and life, thou didst make man in thy own image—"the child of a King"—endow him with vast possibilities, link his happiness to his virtue, his prosperity to his righteousness, and invite him to become thine own child.

We thank thee for thy revealed will with its instruction, its inspiration and its revelation—with its invitation to prayer, and with the assurance of thy willingness to forgive our trespasses.

We thank thee that thou didst send thine only Son our Lord, to reveal thyself to us, to suffer for our sins, to redeem us by his blood and to direct us by his heaven-born wisdom.

We thank thee for "thy church, O Lord, the house of thine abode," with all its hallowed history, for all its courageous servants of God, and for all its saintly women—and we thank thee that we are permitted to enter it with the faith of little children.

We thank thee that, while thou canst consecrate to mighty service the minds of men, when they surrender to thee, the doorkeeper of thy house does not require of those who enter it either certificates of learning, college diplomas or university degrees, but opens it wide to all who have "a broken and contrite heart"—that, while thou canst use for the advancement of thy kingdom money, honestly acquired, thou dost furnish salvation free and open thy tabernacle to rich and poor alike, if they will but put their trust in thee—that, while thou dost remember and reward the children of those who love thee and keep thy commandments, thou wilt welcome to thy household the weakest and the lowliest and give them Christ for their Elder Brother.

Help us, O Father, to make thy church a continuing shelter for every soul that is weary and heavy laden, so that when our Saviour comes again, he will find thy house filled to overflowing with those who worship thee in spirit and in truth.

To this end, we pray thee to bless each and every member of this Assembly; make us conscious of our responsibilities as the representatives of the great Presbyterian Church; fill us with a sense of thy nearness; make our hearts receptive to thy suggestions, and so rule and overrule all that we think and say, so that we may glorify thee. Help us to hasten the coming of thy kingdom that thy will may be done on earth as it is in heaven.

Hear our petitions for our loved ones; may their lives and health be precious in thy sight. Guard them from harm, lead them by the still waters, feed them with heavenly manna, and save them, every one.

Bless, we beseech thee, our beloved country; may it be a land where God is the Lord. Give our people wisdom to solve wisely all domestic problems and to promote universal and perpetual peace. May our flag be everywhere and always the emblem of justice. Grant that these United States may hold aloft the torch of thy truth and lead the world in its ascending march.

All this we ask in the name of Jesus—our Friend, our Guide, and our Saviour. Amen.—The Presbyterian.

GOD AND THE IMPOSSIBLE

When the men came back from building the Panama Canal they begged not to be put to work on any petty jobs. Some one put in their mouths the great line: "We specialize in the wholly impossible, doing what nobody else can do." Can any one doubt that it is just this spirit the world needs today, just this spirit the church needs today? It is perfectly proper to reckon up the amount of power available for any enterprise before it is undertaken. The church ought to do this, the nation must do it. But where shall church and nation look for power? Where shall it set the limit? Suppose it finds an enterprise in which it has the right to enlist the power of God, then the matter of impossibility is simply ruled out. The sole question is whether the right ways of enlisting and using this power have been found and applied. There is power enough to do anything that ought to be done, anything the program of Christ calls for.—The Continent.

THE ROCKS AND THE QUICK-SANDS

Every apostate church has gone to its doom either on the rocks of fanaticism or in the quicksands of compromise, and although these are listed as opposites, they strangely approach each other in many of their manifestations.—Herald of Holiness.

WORKING BY A POWER NOT OUR OWN

By Rev. J. Keir Fraser

John 15:5: "Without me ye can do nothing."

Phil. 4:13: "I can do all things thro Christ who strengtheneth me."

It has always seemed to me that these two verses ought to stand side by side in the Bible. They certainly complement each other, the one implying what the other directly expresses. Put both together and you have the same truth viewed from its positive and negative sides.

"Without me ye can do nothing."

"I can do all things thro Christ who strengtheneth me."

Now, the important thing to be noted about both of these statements is that in estimating ability to do any kind of work they bring God into account. And this is something that most of us don't do today, and the consequence is we are led to a conclusion quite the opposite of that of St. Paul. There is nothing more common today than to hear persons when called upon to do something, replying, "We can't." The drunkard is asked to control his appetite and live a temperate life and he says, "I can't, I simply can't stop drinking." The man who is subject to fits of temper says, "I can't, I have tried to control my temper and find I can't." A person is beset by some great temptation, and he says, "I can't overcome this temptation, I can't break away from my old habits." Or he is called upon to bear some great sorrow and he says, "I can't stand it, it crushes me to the ground, I can't bear up under it."

And we hear the Church giving the same answer. It is asked to undertake a certain task, and its reply is, "We can't." "We can't support all the schemes of the Church; we can't send the Gospel to China; we can't secure the suppression of corruption in politics; we can't put men in office who are above being bought and sold; we simply can't."

And so it goes. It is that way with most of us. When asked to do anything, our reply is, we can't.

Now what is the difference between this answer and St. Paul's ringing cry, "I can." "I can do all things."

Why, it is very easy to explain the difference. Paul brings God into account, and we leave Him out. The question with Paul was not what he could do by himself, but what he and God could do together; not what he was in himself, but what he was when he placed himself in God's hands.

So you see it makes a great difference whether we bring God into account or whether we leave Him out. It makes a difference as wide as the Atlantic Ocean. A man says to me, "I can't control my temper," and I reply, "I agree with you, you can't control it in your own strength, but will you say you can't control it in God's strength? You have been leaving God out of account, supposing you bring Him into account after this, what then?" The broken-hearted mother says to me, "I can't hold up under this sorrow, the trial is more than I can bear;" and I say to her, "My dear friend, you are mistaken, you can bear up under it, you can with God strengthening you." The merchant says to me, "I can't be honest in business—perfectly honest." And I say to him, "You can, you can with God strengthening you."

This is the difference between taking God into account and leaving Him out, between undertaking anything in our own strength and undertaking it in God's strength.

"I can do all things"—that may seem to be boastfulness, but the rest of the verse explains it: "through Christ who strengtheneth me;" and when we put the two together we have what is a simple fact, and what the weakest person in any of our churches has a perfect right to say:

"I can do all things thro Christ who strengtheneth me."

Now I want to show you, if I can, that this taking God into account, and using His strength, does enable us to do all things.

I. And first I want to show you that this is true in the material world.

Why is it that we are able to do many things in the material world today that our fathers were unable to do? Why? Simply because we have learned the secret of using God's strength as seen in the forces of nature. The forces of electricity, of radium, of heat, and so on, are all divine forces. God stored them away in nature ages ago, and within the last few years we have learned the secret of using them, and the result is today we are doing things that our fathers never dreamed of doing. Today, for example, we are using the Niagara Falls to light our cities and drive our trolley cars. Here we have a power which is making for civilization. But it is not our power. It is God's, and we have simply learned to use it.

It is that way everywhere in the material world. You are not any stronger physically than your grandfather was. You can't run any faster than he could, and yet you can run across the Pacific ocean in a few days and never feel it. You can't row a boat any better than he could, or swim any better, and yet you can step into one of our big ocean liners and make your way against the strongest tide. You can't lift any more than he could, and yet a ten-year-old child today in one of our great factories can lift a hundred tons and swing it into its place with perfect ease.

Contributed

Now, why is this?

It is because we have learned to use God's strength. We have learned how to conquer tide and wind and wave by a power not our own. Why couldn't your grandfather do all this? Because he hadn't learned that power. We have learned it, and that is the only difference between us. God has placed His great muscles at our disposal, and we have learned to use them, and that is the secret of our civilization. We have taken God into account. We have learned to use His power as resident in steam and heat and electricity and radium and all the other forces of nature. We are literally doing all things because we are doing them through God strengthening us.

II. Now let me ask you a question.

Do you think that if by learning to use God's strength in the material world we can do such wonderful things, can we not also learn to use His strength in the moral and spiritual worlds and do wonderful things in these worlds also? Do you think that God has left forces at our command in the material world and then gone away and forgotten to leave forces at our command in the spiritual world? Is progress in the material world so much more important to Him than progress in the spiritual world that He should do this? Are there material forces that make for civilization and not spiritual forces that make for righteousness? Do you mean to tell me that God furnishes the universe with power for food and clothing and light and transportation, and all the rest, and at the same time leaves His children to struggle with temptation and doubt without reaching down so much as a little finger to help them? Will He feed them if they are hungry, clothe them if they are naked, light them if they are in darkness, and then when they are surrounded by temptations too great for them, say, "You may go down to Hell, I will not help you." Surely not. It wouldn't be reasonable to suppose that. But as there is a power not our own which makes for civilization, so there must be a power not our own which makes for righteousness; and Paul learned the secret of using that power, and that was what enabled him to say, "I can do all things thro Christ who strengtheneth me."

Now, there was nothing exceptional about Paul that enabled him to say that, nothing peculiar that we do not possess.

Physically he was weak and of mean appearance. He tells us this himself. He says that this was one of the objections taken to him by his enemies.

Then he did not possess any oratorical gifts. There are men in all of our churches who are better public speakers than Paul was.

Nor was he exempt from our moral weakness. He knew what it was to struggle with temptation. He knew what the conflict with the lower nature meant. It was he who said, "What I would that I do not, and what I hate, that I do."

And then he had to cope with far greater opposition from the church than we have today. Today, for example, almost everybody believes in evangelizing the heathen, but when he started on his foreign missionary tour it was a hundred times worse than when Dr. Paton went to the New Hebrides. Practically the whole Church disbelieved in foreign missions, so much so that he himself says that he went into pagan cities in "fear and trembling and much weakness."

All these elements of weakness he experienced—a poor physique; an imperfect utterance; moral conflict; fear within; a cold, careless, disbelieving church—and yet, in spite of it all, we hear him saying, "I am not afraid, I can do all things."

Now, what was the difference between Paul and us that he could say this and we can't? Simply the difference between us and our grandfathers in material things—we have learned that there is a divine power which makes for civilization and we are using it; our grandfathers had not learned that and therefore they didn't use it. So Paul learned that there is a divine power which makes for righteousness and he used it; we have not learned it and therefore we are not using it. That is the difference, and the only difference. We know that there are forces in the material world, and by using these forces we are making them feed us and clothe us and light us and carry us and lift us and do a hundred other things for us. Now what we want to do is to go a step further and learn that there are also spiritual forces which if we use will enable us to overcome temptation, to bear sorrow, and to make moral progress. When we learn this and begin to use God's power in the spiritual sphere just as we are now using it in the material sphere we will be able to say with Paul, "I can do all things thro Christ who strengtheneth me."

This is the power we need as churches today as well as individuals. It is the power referred to in the verse which says, "Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you."

This has been the secret of all moral progress down through the ages. It is the secret of every victory which has been gained by the individual over sin and self; it is the secret of every battle which the Church has won over darkness and unbelief. It was this that turned Paul from a proud Pharisee to an apostle of Christ and sent him marching in triumph through pagan cities. It was this that made Elijah the conqueror of haughty kings and nobles. It was this that inspired Martin Luther to go forth and sound the note which shook the world and ushered in the great Protestant Reformation. It was this that lifted John B. Gough from the mire of drunkenness into which he had fallen so low that no power on earth could reach him. It was this that made Christ the power that He was—that enabled Him to put His finger on the eye of the blind and make it to see, to touch the ear of the deaf and make it hear, to stand over the grave of Lazarus and call, "Come forth," and see His command obeyed; because did He not say Himself, "The Father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works."

This, too, is the secret of all the great reform movements that the world has ever seen.

Why was it that that cowardly band of serfs in Egypt became such a nation of warriors, and such a center of light and civilization, that even today in this advanced age we have to go back to their laws for our fundamental principles of social righteousness? Was it that they were so much wiser or greater than other nations?

And why was it that when the world was sleeping in darkness and morals and religion were dead, there came a young man, a son of a carpenter, who took with him twelve rude fishermen and with them went forth to conquer the world? And why was it that after three years, when He was crucified, these unlearned peasants went out and preached His name with such effect that in less than four centuries the whole of the Roman Empire had accepted the religion of the despised Nazarene?

Why was it? It was because they had learned the secret of using a power not their own. They learned that God not only is, but that He is in the world, working in human hearts, and that to lay hold on Him is to lay hold on Almightyness. And this is the lesson for us today—not what we are alone but what we are when we give ourselves to God; not what we can do ourselves but what we can do through God strengthening us.

Now, I cannot tell you exactly what this power is, but I know there is such a power, because I see it working. I see it turning men from the paths of sin to the paths of purity. I see it reforming the drunkard and making a man of him. I see it standing by the bedside of the dying and making them strong to go into the valley of the shadow. I see it giving joy to the broken-hearted and enabling them to bear a sorrow which one would think would crush them to the very earth. I see it lifting whole races of savages to manhood. I see it entering the slums and doing more for them than the school is doing. I see it making its way into public offices and politics and purifying them. I see it changing the relations of labor and capital. I see it obliterating class distinctions. In short, I see it creating a new world.

I don't know just what it is, but I know that it is doing all this, and I know that it is able to do all things because it is the power of the living God—the power of Almightyness.

Men and women, let us never again be heard saying, "We can't" to anything that we are called upon to do in God's universe, but let us learn the wonderful secret of taking God into account and of working by a power not our own—a power which is at the command of the weakest, and which if used will enable us to say with the great Apostle, "I can do all things thro Christ which strengtheneth me."

Galt, Canada.

SPEAK OUT, DR. PREACHER

One-half and more of the preachers I have heard in a score of cities in several states during the last three years while I have been "a traveling man" lose a large part of the effect of their message because they speak so low that most of the audience cannot hear them. With plenty of voice they drop into a conversational tone and are not heard. The entire point of an illustration is lost because in the desire to be impressive they cease to speak loud enough to be heard.

In leading in prayer the shortcoming is even greater. I am not deaf—I can hear as well as the average person in a congregation. I have just come from evening service in a Presbyterian church here. The pastor is a fine man and preaches what is worth hearing, as far as I heard it. Tonight I could not distinguish a single word of his invocation except "Our Father in Heaven." I heard the noise of words which prevented me from enjoying a period of silent prayer. The same was true of his closing prayer.

I have heard this preacher at two morning services and one evening and failed to get a large part of each sermon. I got the first half of a sentence and could not get the next.

This pastor is like a number of others I have worshipped with, of other denominations as well as Presbyterian. I am sure the fault is not in my hearing, because I have frequently asked others near me if they had heard, and found they had not.

This is a serious matter. It is as bad as speaking in an unknown tongue, which the apostle warns against.

E. A. H., in The Continent.

JESUS DID NOT TEACH A RELIGION OF SERVICE ONLY

In a recent address at Baltimore, Dr. Edward Leigh Pell said that he had no interest in any religion that was not a religion of loving relationships. "That," he insisted, "is the religion which Jesus offers us—a life of loving relationships; a life which we live through Him with God as our Father and, as a natural consequence, with our fellow men as our brothers.

"I cannot understand the man who can content himself with a religion that is a mere philosophy," continued Dr. Pell. "Nor can I understand how any man can be satisfied with a religion of service only—a religion that consists in nothing more than doing things for people. A religion that is a mere philosophy never gets us anywhere except into hot water—where so many of us are now. I never meet an intelligent young man—either minister or layman—who is in trouble over such questions as evolution or the supernatural—that was not led into it by mistaking the religion of Jesus for philosophy. When a man is thinking of religion as a philosophy almost everything that develops in the progress of modern intelligence frightens him out of his wits. Try religion as a life and these developments will no more disturb your faith than a baby's breath will blow out an evening star.

"Nor do I mean to make light of the part of service in religion. What I mean to say is that while the religion of Jesus includes service, it is not a life of service. It is a life of love, and a life of love is not a life of service, but a life of service plus comradeship. We can no more live with God as our Father and with our fellowmen as our brothers without comradeship than we can run a stream without a fountainhead.

Surely we have indulged in this foolish experiment long enough. We have tried it in our homes until the home is almost bankrupt. We know what happens when husband and wife decide that they no longer have time for spiritual comradeship and content themselves with trying to keep their love alive by simply working for each other. We may work our fingers to the bone for our loved ones, and if we don't find a quiet hour now and then for spiritual comradeship with them, our love will starve to death. And the same is true of our church life. We may wear out our lives in what we call Christian service, and if we don't take time for comradeship with God as well as with our fellow men our love for both will starve to death.

"That is the secret of the distressing situation in many of our great city churches today. Let a people—no matter how good they may be—persist in this impossible experiment of living a life of service by love alone—by merely doing things for people, and they will inevitably lose their vision of God and become mere humanitarians in practice and deists in belief. We are waking up to the fact that we have got to find time for spiritual comradeship with our loved ones at home or the home is doomed; it is time we were waking up to the fact that we have got to find time for fellowship with God or the Church is doomed.

"We are seeing strange things today," said Dr. Pell, in closing. "We are witnessing the strange spectacle of ministers of Christ going over to the world's materialistic teachers and joining them in their superior sneer at the Master's own doctrine of fellowship with God. As a crusty old bachelor who has lived so far away from the world of love that he has lost his sense of its reality and laughs at mother love as sentimental nonsense, so the burnt-out man of God who has lived so far from the world of spirit that he has lost all sense of the reality of spirit and of the Great Spirit Himself, is now laughing at what we call realizing God-living in vital, conscious touch with Him, as mystical nonsense. Friends, if we don't know God we have nothing but a dry bone to gnaw on. And we have nothing but a dry bone to offer to starving men."

"No painter's brush, no poet's pen,
Has reached half high enough
To write the name of mother.
Go, make ink of tears and molten gem,
With holy hand and golden pen,
Go with the name of mother."

FIELDS OF LABOR

We give below the fields of labor to which the students from our theological seminaries have gone. The members of the Senior class have, for the most part, accepted permanent work, and the others are engaged for the summer.

Those marked with a star are volunteers for foreign missions, but are temporarily at work in this country.

UNION THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Senior Class

Name, Presbytery, Field of Labor, respectively:
*George C. Bellingrath, Atlanta, Missionary Ridge, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Walter Lee Brown, Arkansas, 2409 Arch St., Little Rock, Ark.

J. C. Clarke, Holston, Iron Gate, Va.
M. O. Cockerham, East Miss., San Augustine, Tex.
T. I. Dean, St. John's, Mt. Hope, W. Va.
C. J. Hollandsworth, Montgomery, Buchanan, Va.
Coyte Hunter, Mecklenburg, Willow Springs, N. C.
*Stirling L. Hunter, East Hanover, Tallulah Lodge, Ga.
S. B. Lapsley, Lexington, Craigsville, Va.
E. O. G. Lilly, West Lexington, Chiquapin, N. C.
W. C. Neel, Mecklenburg, Fayetteville, W. Va.
*C. H. Patterson, Roanoke, R. D. 2, Staunton, Va.
*R. P. Richardson, Memphis, Augusta, Ga.
Wm. R. Reed, Richmond, Va.
Ben Reed, Abingdon, Meadowview, Va.
*C. G. Smith, East Hanover, Danbury, N. C.
R. H. Stone, Orange, Jefferson, N. C.
W. B. Sullivan, Atlanta, Raleigh, N. C.
*Martel A. Tremain, Wilmington, Ahsokie, N. C.
J. W. Witherspoon, Orange, Harrisonburg, Va.
*G. R. Womeldorf, Lexington, Lexington, Va.
*J. R. Woods, East Hanover, Smithfield, N. C.

Middle Class

D. L. Beard, Lexington, West Canada.
R. A. Brown, Norfolk, Roxbury, Va.
D. S. Chalabie, East Hanover, U. T. S., Richmond, Va.
R. R. Craig, Piedmont, Alvon, W. Va.
Wm. Crowe, Memphis, Virginia Beach, Va.
N. L. Dennis, Holston, Newport, Tenn.
R. B. Eberly, Norfolk, Oriskany, Va.
J. Edwards, Dallas, Dallas, Tex.
D. R. Freeman, Mecklenburg, R. D. 4, Charlotte, N. C.
H. C. Hamilton, Orange, Swoope, Va.
W. H. Harrell, Southwest Georgia, Antlers, Okla.
J. W. Hogshead, Lexington, Mint Spring, Va.
W. B. Holmes, El Paso, Tex.
J. R. Johnson, Courtland, Va.
J. S. Jones, Orange, Burlington, N. C.
E. S. King, Montgomery, Rocky Mount, Va.
J. A. Lacy, Roanoke, U. T. S., Richmond, Va.
R. T. L. Liston, North Alabama, Boswell, Okla.
F. V. Long, Mecklenburg, Banner Elk, N. C.
D. S. McCarty, Abingdon, Chatham Hill, Va.
K. B. McCutcheon, Lexington, Staunton, Va.
C. A. McGirt, Southwest Georgia, Poulan, Ga.
F. E. Manning, Concord, Germania, W. Va.
L. A. McMurray, Winchester, Jacksonville, Ala.
J. A. McMurray, Western Texas, Gatesville, Tex.
B. C. Moore, Mecklenburg, Richmond, Va.
C. N. Morrison, Concord, Hebron, Va.
S. T. McCloy, Pine Bluff, Monticello, Ark.
E. S. McGavock, Max Meadows, Va.
C. F. Newland, West Lexington, Crozier, Va.
L. C. Northen, Richmond, Va.
C. H. Pritchard, Montgomery, R. F. D., Charleston, W. Va.
S. M. Query, Concord, Rapidan, Va.
T. B. Roddy, Memphis, Memphis, Tenn.
D. W. Roberts, Wilmington, U. T. S., Richmond, Va.
L. B. Schenck, Norfolk, Castle Hayne, N. C.
W. C. Smith, Fayetteville, Sylvanus, Va.
T. H. Spence, East Hanover, Madill, Okla.
G. C. Venable, Golddale, Va.
J. R. Walker, Nashville, U. T. S., Richmond, Va.
E. A. Woods, East Hanover, Knoxville, Tenn., First Presbyterian Church.
M. B. Wyatt, Orange, Richmond, Va.
G. O. Yount, Concord, Tygart's Valley, W. Va.

Junior Class

P. C. Adams, Montgomery, Fort Pitt, Saskatchewan, Canada.
Chester Alexander, Bethel, Jacksonville, N. C.
J. T. Barham, Norfolk, Mullens, W. Va.
B. B. Breitenhirt, Kanawha, Charleston, W. Va.
C. G. Brown, Mecklenburg, R. D. 11, Charlotte, N. C.
C. M. Brown, Potomac, Ashburn, Va.
P. W. Buchanan, East Hanover, U. T. S., Richmond.
L. G. Calhoun, Fayetteville, Steele's Tavern, Va.
B. K. Chappell, Riverside Drive, South Bend, Ind.
W. N. Cook, Norfolk, Danville, Va.
W. E. Crane, Central Mississippi, Richmond, Va.
F. C. Davis, U. T. S., Richmond, Va.
F. M. Dick, Orange, Wyliesburg, Va.
J. M. Duckwall, Winchester, Stephens City, Va.
J. S. Duckwall, Winchester, Piedmont, W. Va.
J. C. Faw, Tygart's Valley, Washington, D. C.
N. M. Fox, U. T. S., Richmond, Va.
J. I. Knight, Fayetteville, Carthage, N. C.
C. G. Long, Mecklenburg, R. D. 8, Charlotte, N. C.
J. F. Merrin, St. John's, Plant City, Fla.
N. M. Mesrop, Norfolk, St. Elmo, Tenn.
A. M. Mitchell, Southwest Georgia, Thomasville, Ga.
Wilson W. Moore, Concord, Taylorsville, N. C.
J. L. McGirt, Southwest Georgia, Sylvester, Ga.
W. M. McLeod, Fayetteville, Timberland, N. C.
J. L. Parks, Concord, Thomas, W. Va.
H. R. Poole, Concord, Mocksville, N. C.
J. H. Powell, Jr., Winston-Salem, N. C.
C. B. Reid, Richmond, Va.
A. B. Shiflet, Lexington, Calloway, Va.
James Sprunt, Summersville, S. C.
A. C. Summers, Tuscaloosa, Abingdon, Va.
J. R. Tackett, Central Mississippi, Lexington, Miss.
A. D. Viernes, Norfolk, Camp Greystone, Tuxedo, N. C.
E. D. Viser, East Hanover, Saint Albans, W. Va.
J. D. Wilson, Red River, North Fork, W. Va.

T. N. Wilson, Lexington, Churchville, Va.
D. E. Wood, South Carolina, Decca, Va.
J. C. Wool, Mecklenburg, Charlotte, N. C.
Marshal Yacoe, East Hanover, U. T. S., Richmond, Va.
L. J. Yelanjian, Knoxville, U. T. S., Richmond, Va.
D. M. Chalmers, Mooresville, N. C.
C. M. Yates, Atlanta, Atlanta, Ga.

COLUMBIA THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Senior Class

J. W. Anderson, Bethel, Toccoa, Ga.
S. E. Ayers, Charleston, Evangelist, Atlanta, Ga.
A. R. Batchelor, South Carolina, Whitmire, S. C.
G. W. Belk, Jr., Mecklenburg, Pelzer, S. C.
C. D. Brearley, Harmony, Columbia, S. C.
J. V. Cobb, Central Mississippi, Vaiden, Miss.
H. R. Foster, Piedmont, Carrollton, Ala.
S. H. Fulton, Pee Dee, Honca Path, S. C.
S. B. Hay, Atlanta, Covington, Ga.
*G. A. Hudson, Enoree, China.
C. R. Jenkins, Charleston, Undecided.
R. W. Park, Congaree, Lake City, S. C.
W. G. Neville, South Carolina, Landrum, S. C.
D. C. Stogner, Mecklenburg, Simpsonville, S. C.
A. T. Taylor, South Carolina, Atmore, Ala.
M. R. Williamson, Bethel, Savannah, Ga.
M. S. Woodson, South Carolina, Decatur, Ga.
B. F. Yandell, Wilmington, Columbia, S. C.

Middle Class

H. N. Alexander, Atlanta, Undecided.
E. A. Beaty, Bethel, Clemson, S. C.
W. K. Beaty, Bethel, Hazlehurst, Ga.
W. K. Blake, Bethel, Douglas, Ga.
W. C. Copeland, Albemarle, Mt. Vernon, Ga.
M. B. Dendy, Athens, Swainsboro, Ga.
A. W. Dick, Harmony, Batesburg, S. C.
R. M. Dickson, Piedmont, Smith County, Miss.
E. A. Dillard, Congaree, Undecided.
D. H. Dulin, Bethel, Blenheim, S. C.
J. D. Henderson, Pee Dee, Winsboro, S. C.
F. W. Langham, East Alabama, Undecided.
C. N. Medlin, Mecklenburg, Undecided.
W. D. Morriss, Memphis, Staunton, Tenn.
J. C. McGehee, Congaree, Undecided.
A. E. S. McMahon, Holston, U. S. A., Undecided.
C. W. McMurray, Bethel, Saluda, N. C.
L. E. Polk, Knoxville, Knoxville, Tenn.
W. T. Smith, Mecklenburg, Rockingham, N. C.
C. L. Wilson, Pee Dee, Undecided.
D. McL. McDonald, Fayetteville, Undecided.

Junior Class

R. T. Baker, Athens, Brittan, N. C.
T. C. Bryan, North Alabama, Morganton, N. C.
V. A. Crawford, Charleston, S. C., Undecided.
W. M. Crofton, Brazos, Undecided.
S. W. Dendy, Piedmont, Decatur, Ga.
A. F. Doty, Harmony, Undecided.
C. K. Douglas, Congaree, Greenville, S. C.
J. H. Dulin, Lake City, Fla.
M. A. DuRant, Harmony, Lake City, Fla.
A. T. Elsberry, Tuscaloosa, Selma, Ala.
I. M. Ellis, Mecklenburg, Atlanta, Ga.
L. C. LaMotte, South Carolina, Tampa, Fla.
R. D. Leppard, Undecided.
J. W. McFall, Piedmont, Calhoun Falls, S. C.
N. D. McInnis, Pee Dee, Holly Grove, Ark.
C. E. Piephoff, South Carolina, Lake City, Fla.
W. E. Smith, Harmony, Hazlehurst, N. C.
G. F. Swetnam, Undecided.
W. S. Swetnam, Undecided.
Edison Stauffer, West Hanover, Undecided.
R. D. White, Harmony, Undecided.
P. W. Wilson, Norfolk, Rockville, S. C.
B. H. Wiggins, Macon, Undecided.
E. D. Wood, South Carolina, Tifton, Ga.
R. L. Wood, Harmony, Rockmart, Ga.

KENTUCKY SEMINARY

Senior Class

H. E. Bradshaw, Fort Worth, Bevier, Ky.
W. G. Butler, Louisville, Ky.
J. M. McLean, Fort Worth, Stamford, Tex.
J. E. McLean, Fort Worth, Itasca, Tex.
John M. Macmillan, U. S. A., Louisville.
W. I. Munday, Methodist, Louisville.
W. A. Stevenson, Athens, Pisgah, Ky.
J. C. Vander Roest, Louisville, Louisville.
E. T. Austin, Mangum, Hosmer, Ind.
M. L. Baker, Dallas, Winchester, Ky.
J. A. Buck, Louisville, Louisville, Ky.
John R. Clarke, Jr., West Lexington, Louisville, Ky.
H. F. Cunningham, Louisville, Louisville.
Clover A. Daniel, Lafayette, Chaffee, Mo.
S. A. Gilbert, U. S. A., Sassafras, Ky.
W. A. Gordon, West Lexington, Greenville, Ky.
C. M. Hanna, Louisville, Marlinton, W. Va.
T. E. Nelson, East Mississippi, Rockport, Ky.
T. Duke Williams, Suwanee, Louisville, Ky.
A. C. Windham, East Alabama, Glasgow, Ky.

Junior Class

I. O. Alexander, Louisiana, Crothersville, Ind.
D. F. Barnett, Transylvania, Campbellsville, Ky.
B. B. Blalock, Fort Worth, Rockport, Ind.
W. R. Booth, Louisville, Orleans, Ind.
F. H. Caldwell, East Mississippi, Corinth, Miss.
Paul E. Cates, Methodist, Russellville, Ky.
Volney Cavitt, McGregor, Tex.
J. W. Cochran, Brownwood, Santa Anna, Tex.
W. F. Dierking, U. S. A., Cary, Ind.
C. W. Dilworth, Rienzi, Miss.
J. B. Green, Transylvania, Danville, Ky.
Arthur Gross, U. S. A., Columbia, Ky.
J. A. Hayes, U. S. A., Louisville, Ky.
F. W. Hoffman, Ebenezer, ?
S. M. Hutchison, Louisville, care Rev. W. A. Sunday,
R. D. No. 1, Hood River, Ore.
Louis Hutton, U. S. A., ?
M. M. Keith, U. S. A., Louisville, Ky.
Frank Kincaid, Gastonia, N. C.
C. R. Luton, U. S. A., Jeffersonville, Ind.
J. H. Meenge, U. S. A., Holland, Mich.

J. E. Moore, Disciples, Louisville, Ky.
 E. E. Morris, U. S. A., Louisville, Ky.
 O. W. Nelson, Fort Worth, Fort Worth, Tex.
 D. A. Noble, U. S. A., Louisville, Ky.
 C. A. Pharr, East Alabama, Welsh, La.
 J. B. Riddle, U. S. A., Bentonville, Ark.
 Clement Ritter, Tuscaloosa, Selma, Ala.
 M. C. Robinson, Louisville, Louisville.
 E. H. Roby, U. S. A., Wabash, Ind.
 E. N. Rock, Louisville, Louisville, Ky.
 D. N. Roller, U. S. A., Louisville, Ky.
 R. R. Rose, Shelbyville, Ky.
 N. J. Salyer, U. S. A., Greenville, Ky.
 B. R. Schwegler, Lafayette, Forsythe, Mo.
 J. L. Scott, U. S. A., English, Ind.
 W. R. Smith, Central Texas, Lewisburg, W. Va.
 J. D. Spragins, Jr., Ouachita, Hope, Ark.
 G. D. Strassler, U. S. A., Louisville, Ky.
 L. A. Taylor, Concord, Elizabeth, Ind.
 K. G. Tucker, Central Texas, Waco, Tex.
 Robert Veazey, U. S. A., Louisville, Ky.
 W. H. Wakefield, Columbia, Bryson, Tenn.
 B. A. Weimer, U. S. A., Peru, Ind.
 G. S. Wuthrich, Louisville, Shepherdsville, Ky.
 F. W. McLaughlin, U. S. A., Gastonia, N. C.
 E. R. Daughtrey, Western Texas, Rio Hondo, Tex.

AUSTIN THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

*Emory R. Boyle, Central Texas, Austin, Tex.
 C. S. Guerrero, Texas-Mexican, San Marcos, Tex.
 Frank Kostohryz, Austin, Tex.
 John S. McRae, Eastern Texas, Rusk, Tex.
 Claude D. Peake, Central Texas, Leander, Tex.
 Malcolm Purcell, Clifton, Tex.
 S. G. Ramirez, Texas-Mexican, Beeville, Tex.
 Dwight A. Sharpe, Central Texas, Gorman, Tex.
 Hugh Smith, Central Texas, Pleasanton, Tex.
 G. A. Walls, Texas-Mexican, Austin, Tex.

"THE SEVEN BLACK SHEEP"

By Rev. A. Sydenstricker

Your issue of April 4th contains a humorous letter from Rev. T. B. Grafton with the heading, "The Seven Black Sheep," of which your correspondent is the first on the list; also an editorial, "Our Missionaries and the National Christian Council." In this editorial the word "compromise" is used. The above will serve as an introduction to what I have to say.

It may be stated with reference to unorthodox teaching in China that we may err in either of two directions: To compromise with error, or surrender and give up the battle. In signing the paper which came to me some time since asking for me to vote re the National Christian Council, I signed my name in favor of our going into it, and so got among the "black sheep," which may look very bad for the oldest missionary on the field of labor. When I returned the paper to the sender I explained in a letter precisely my position with reference to the matter.

My contention with reference to the Council is precisely the same as with reference to the seminary here in Nanking. I have been in connection with the seminary in one way or another from its very first inception, with one or two short intervals, that is, for a longer time than any other man, either foreigner or Chinese. I know that at some periods of its history the teaching has not all been exactly safe. Not infrequently in our mission meetings the question has been raised as to whether or not we should withdraw from this institution and erect our own school. To this I always said, "No. We must stand by our colors and fight. To withdraw means to surrender a strong fort to the enemy and give him an immense advantage." To surrender under such circumstances would not be the act of a brave and trustworthy soldier, but of a base coward. Some years since, when the "ad-interim" committee met in Shanghai, Dr. Davis, of Soochow, and your correspondent were members of this committee and were both present. Dr. Davis had resigned his connection with the seminary and was congratulating himself because he had returned to Soochow and was living in peace. I had the utmost respect for the Doctor and for work which he had done. He advised us all to follow his example. But in this matter I stoutly disagreed with him in a speech which he described as a strong one. My point was that we must "stick to our guns" and not yield an inch to the enemy.

Now this is precisely my contention with reference to the National Christian Council. Join the Council and make a brave fight for the truth when it becomes necessary to do so. If we remain outside, our influence for the truth is lost and, so far as we are concerned, the battle is won by the enemy. I say the above granting for the sake of argument that the Council is going to be heretical, which is by no means a certainty. It may be "all correct" then we shall lose both our position on it, our face and our power for good that we could have had in connection with it. To refuse to join the Council and remain to ourselves looks too much like the practice of the medieval monks who hid themselves in out-of-the-way places in order to escape the world, the flesh and the devil, not aware that his Satanic majesty was their chief guest all the while. We are soldiers and because there may be fighting that must be done, we should by all means be present and be ready for the fray.

Nanking, China.

"STILLMAN INSTITUTE AND SUMMER CONFERENCE FOR COLORED MINISTERS"

By Rev. R. A. Brown, Superintendent Colored Evangelization

This year has been the best of all conference years at Stillman Institute. The attendance was good and the program was the best ever put over. The colored ministers were happy in their selection of subjects and had made thorough preparation for the occasion. The commencement exercises which interspersed conference week, proved a great delight to all.

The main feature of the program was the addresses delivered and the commencement sermon preached by Dr. William Black, of Charlotte, N. C. We have never had any one since the conference that so won the hearts of the ministers as did Dr. Black.

It was indeed a 10-day feast at the feet of their Lord. The head and heart of each preacher was won and the life was dedicated to the Master for more efficient service. Eternity alone has in store the great good that God's faithful servant did for us while at Stillman. The colored brethren voiced these words: "We love him for his great worth and for the profound messages brought to us." Not only has Dr. Black done a great service for Stillman, its student body and the ministers, most of whom are alumni of the divinity school, but he has rendered an invaluable service to the Church. His great messages and his marked religious personality will go into hundreds of homes and in many different communities to sweeten and inspire the soul to greater things. The world's great social and economic problems could be easily and speedily solved if more of our great preachers would stand between the races of men and proclaim the oracles of God.

Stillman was proud to be host to one who seemed so intensely interested in our Home Mission program. It is now or never and the King's business requires haste. The Devil, whose very being is saturated with prejudice and hatred, has his forces in the field and they are taking every opportunity to throttle God's divine purpose.

Two distinct races have lived and loved each other for over a century in the South, and have enjoyed the fellowship that only the old-fashion religion can bring. We have believed as races in the old Bible as the very Word of God. We know that Jesus Christ is the only begotten of the Father and that love and righteousness are the great principles upon which peace and purity abound. If from each pulpit and the lips of each Christian teacher the eternal truth of God was spoken, there need be no speculation as to what the future will bring forth.

We shall long remember the visit of our friend and brother and trust that other good friends may come our way and get a vision of the opportunity presented to the Church to put over the most vital Home Mission program offered today. Nay, the words of the eternal God ring in your ears, "Despise me not because I am black," and may you get the same joy that Dr. Black did while preaching to them.

"A DREAM OF CHILDREN AND THE MASTER"

On the night of June 5th the congregation of the First Presbyterian Church, of Wilmington, N. C., witnessed the presentation on the church lawn of a beautiful and impressive pageant of the Gospel Story. The pageant was written by and presented under the direction of Miss Susan E. Hall. The title was: "A Dream of Children and the Master." Based on the Gospel as narrated by Mark and composed almost entirely from the words of that Gospel, its aim was to present the story of the life of Jesus from the standpoint of the children who knew Him, to show what He must have meant to the children of His day, and how He must have been refreshed in His human and yearning heart by their loving trust in the midst of "enduring such contradiction of sinners against Himself."

In the prologue are a band of children of the present day who, wishing to see Him and singing the children's hymn, "I think when I read that sweet story of old," dream of the days when He was on earth. The five scenes showed the Day of the Blessing, the Day of Triumph, the Day of Betrayal, the Day of the Tomb, and the Day of Resurrection. In these scenes the children of the prologue are represented as taking the places of the children who knew Him and whom He healed and helped and loved. It is through their eyes we view the sacred story unfolding. We see the men—selfish, scornful, wrapped in tradition, who hated and mocked and condemned and killed Him; the men and women who loved Him and were loyal to Him; and those, too, who started as enemies and ended as disciples. And we feel the deepening note of the passion until it culminates on the day of resurrection in triumph for Him and all who love Him. In the epilogue comes the awakening of the children with their hearts stirred by the things they have seen in their dreams and singing again with new feeling their hymn of love and reverence.

At intervals throughout the scenes the church quartet sang the great hymns of the church connected with the incidents portrayed. The presentation of the pageant was reverent and spiritual. The atmosphere of the Gospel days was caught in such marvelous manner that the audience felt that they were seeing the people of Mark's story walking in the flesh. Nowhere in the pageant was the Saviour depicted in person, but the effect was so skillfully handled that everywhere He seemed present in spirit. The pageant was so beautiful in its simplicity and so impressive in its spiritual message that all who saw it were stirred, and the whole effect was to make a deep appeal for love and loyalty to Him who suffered for us in that day and calls to us as our Lord today. It is hoped that this pageant will be printed so that it may be used in many other places.

ALBEMARLE NORMAL AND INDUSTRIAL INSTITUTE

(The following is the report of this institution made to Mecklenburg Presbytery. It is published at the request of Presbytery.—Ed.)

Committee of Presbytery's Schools and Colleges:

Dear Sirs: We are glad to report that "The Albemarle Normal and Industrial Institute" is having a very satisfactory session, with an average of 70 boarding and 20 day pupils.

We have a graduating class of 17 girls, 16 of whom are boarding pupils. They are a fine group of splendid Christian girls with an earnest purpose to make the most of their lives. Some of these are from very poor homes, and were not in reach of any but country schools, which have only seven grades.

We have 18 girls receiving help. Of this number four have neither parents, and no one to provide for them. Four others are half orphans, and six who have homes live on rented land. Several girls give notes to cover expenses, in whole or in part. We do not count these as scholarship girls. A number are now paying up notes given in past years. We encourage this spirit, wishing to avoid pauperizing them by giving too much help.

Several Northern teachers who have been here for years have been forced to resign. We have the prospect of filling the vacancies with consecrated, capable young women from the South; but it will be necessary to make a decided increase in all salaries.

We are needing a new dormitory worse than we did last year. The old frame building is in bad condition, and the danger from fire is great. The business men of the town seem interested, and, we believe, will do their share, when Presbytery is ready to take hold of the matter.

We have no one to canvass for pupils. We shall appreciate it if the members of Presbytery will put us in touch with girls who need to attend our school.

We had almost forgotten to mention that during the year we have built and paid for a five-room frame building, which accommodates the grammar grades, domestic science and sewing classes. The need was so great that we decided to build these rooms, which will be of great service till we get a permanent building.

(Mrs.) Elva C. Harris.

Financial Report, April 1, 1922-April 1, 1923

Amount received from pupils	$ 8,758.53
Amount received from other sources	5,556.74
<hr/>
Total receipts for year	$14,315.27
Disbursements for year	$12,236.96
Balance on hand April 1, 1923	2,078.31
We hope with this balance, and what is still to be collected, to meet all bills till the close of the school year.
Itemized list of amount received from other sources:
Received from Million Dollar Fund	$ 1,552.00
Received from Synod's Schools and Colleges ..	1,492.99
Churches, Auxiliaries, Individuals in Presbytery	984.75
Churches, Auxiliaries, Individuals outside Pres.	761.00
Notes, back dues, etc.	766.00
<hr/>
Total	$ 5,556.74

The money given outside of Presbytery was more than usual. Miss Rupert collected most of this from Northern friends for new school house.

Following the downfall of the Czar of Russia and the consequent religious freedom, many independent Christian organizations have been formed. A Hebrew Christian who recently returned from that country, reports finding an independent which calls itself Presbyterianski Church. It had no knowledge of western Presbyterianism, but from the study of the Scriptures was convinced that this was the proper form of church government.

Woman's Auxiliary

Conducted by Mrs. J. M. McIver, Gulf, N. C.

Wallace, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Rockfish Presbyterian Church enjoyed a Mexican Fiesta at the beautiful country home of Mrs. D. S. Williams on last Wednesday afternoon. Quite a number of guests were present. Attractive invitation cards were sent to the members of the church and of the Auxiliary. The program was very effectively rendered by ladies of the Auxiliary. The parlor and dining room were beautifully decorated in the Mexican colors. Several new members were added and a neat sum was realized for the Mexican schools. At the conclusion of the program the guests were invited into the dining room where a delicious ice cream course was served.

Lowell, N. C., R. 1—The Woman's Auxiliary of Union Presbyterian Church presented the Mexican Fiesta on May 27th. Invitations were sent out to all members of the church and their families. The church was beautifully decorated in the Mexican national colors. The young ladies dressed as Mexican girls gave a very impressive program. A liberal offering was received for the proposed school for Mexican girls in Texas.

First Annual Conference for Colored Women Conducted by the Synodical of North Carolina—Miss Margaret Rankin, representing the Synodical of North Carolina, arranged a conference for the colored women of the state, which met at Biddle University, Charlotte, N. C. June 7-13, 1923.

Most of the speakers were white people, and not one of them received any remuneration for this service. The 71 registered delegates were sent by the Woman's Auxiliaries of white churches or by white friends, and they represented three denominations, and came from 34 different towns and cities, 16 being residents of Charlotte.

The work accomplished in this conference and the spirit of the delegates were truly remarkable. All the ladies commented on the responsiveness of the women, and on their earnestness and sympathetic appreciation. And each speaker seemed especially fitted to deal with the subject assigned to him or her.

The presiding officer was Mrs. E. F. Reid, president of the North Carolina Synodical, and the Bible hours were conducted by Mrs. W. A. Turner, president of the Synodical of Georgia. The practical demonstrations of nursing were given by Miss Ross, of the Charlotte Health Department; Miss Morrell, Physical Director of the Charlotte Y. W. C. A., had charge of the playground demonstrations each afternoon; and the sewing class was taught by Miss Nellie Cooper.

One of the delightful features of the conference was the Vesper service held on the campus each evening at sunset. The singing, by the colored women, of the old negro spirituals touched the hearts of all the listeners.

The Vesper talks were given by Mrs. C. C. Anderson, Mrs. J. B. Spillman, Miss Margaret Rankin, Miss Sallie Phillips, and Miss Annie Wilson.

At the noon hours, community talks on better homes and better schools, were given by Mrs. E. F. Reid, Mrs. T. W. Bickett, Dr. Annie Alexander, Miss Florence Terry, and Mrs. R. L. Ryburn.

On the evening of June 12th, the delegates had a rare privilege in hearing Mr. Frank Gilliam, of our Congo mission, who came from Lynchburg, Va., especially to address this conference. Mr. Gilliam's description of the conditions in this African work was full of interest and appeal.

So successful was this conference for colored women in every respect that the delegates urged that it be an annual event. This success was largely due to the planning and work of Miss Margaret Rankin.

Florence Terry.

To the Auxiliary Presidents—I am writing to you about a most important matter to which I trust you will give immediate attention.

You doubtless know the trying situation which Protestantism is facing in Europe. Unless America comes to her help, Protestantism will soon be a thing of the past in the war-torn countries of Europe. The Protestant denominations of America are endeavoring to rally to the aid of their sister Christians in Europe and every denomination is sending a contribution to help rebuild churches, re-establish schools, support the ministry and give Protestantism a new start.

The last General Assembly directed that every church should take an offering for this cause on the first Sunday in July. At the same time an offering is expected for the Lord's Day Alliance. An arrangement has been perfected by which only one offering will be taken on that day, 80 per cent of which will go to Protestant Relief in Europe and 20 per cent to the Lord's Day Alliance.

Many of our ministers will overlook this offering unless their attention is called to it. I am asking you as President of the Auxiliary to see that the matter is brought to the attention of your pastor with the request that he present this great need to his congregation and take up a collection for this cause on July 1st.

All offerings should be sent to Miss Margaret Vance, treasurer, 154 Fifth Ave., N., Nashville, Tenn. Perhaps it would be well for you to give this information to your church treasurer.

Will you not see that your church observes this first Sunday in July by making an offering for this needy and worthy cause?

Depending upon you to bring this matter to your pastor's attention promptly, I am, with every good wish,

H. P. Winsborough.

Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-Three—A Staff for the Journey—"Thy shoes shall be iron and brass; and as thy day, so shall thy strength be."—Deut. 3:25.

"The Eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms."—Deut. 33:27.

Orders for the March—"And now, Israel, what doth the Lord thy God require of thee, but to fear the Lord thy God, to walk in all His ways, and to love Him, and to serve the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul, to keep the commandments of the Lord, and His statutes, which I command thee this day for thy good."—Deut. 10:12-13.

Woman's Work for Woman—Executive Committee Foreign Missions, Presbyterian Church, U. S., Chamber of Commerce Building, Nashville, Tenn. (Extract from poem read by Mrs. Angie L. Bosley at Women's Missionary Meeting in Second Church, Danville, Ky.)

Christian women dwelling in a fair and beautiful land

Heard the weeping of their sisters far away; Living in the sunshine of a Gospel high and grand, That turned their night of darkness into day.

They listened to the story of those sad, barren lives Where ignorance hung like a shadowing pall; Few words of sweet affection for mothers or for wives

In those dreary homes of Asia ever fall.

They heard a piteous wailing of children from afar— Of small Hindu widows in cruel slavery; The death moan of the infant beneath the dreadful car;

Tiny Chinese daughters on the hillside left to die. Christian women heard the voice of weary ones in pain,

Of broken-hearted sisters, and children not a few, Who were calling—calling as they long had called in vain—

And the voice of Christ Himself was calling, too.

His blessing He had given to cause their land to bloom

And He held them in the hollow of His hand; He had given them the key to unlock that living tomb—

"Go teach my Gospel," His command.

They were true ambassadors of Christ upon His throne

To bring into dark lands where sin has long abode The greatest, sweetest promise the world has ever known:

"Ye shall be My people, I will be your God."

Many dear, obedient workers from their places now are gone;

They were pioneers to open up the way.

But woman's work for woman will unceasingly go on Till all shall stand before Him on that great eternal day.

From this sacred house of praise many a saint has gone;

They sing the anthem of ransomed ones above, Besides the saved ones shining each a jewel in a crown,

And the banner over them, forevermore, is Love.

The Study of the Bible in Korea—Probably each mission field has some special line of work in which it takes peculiar pride, and certainly there is no phase of the work in Korea of which we are prouder than of the Bible class work. A God arranged combination of circumstances;—a lack of books, a hunger for learning, and a natural interest in philosophical and spiritual matters,—all combined to make the Koreans eager students of the Word as soon as the opportunity was given them.

The founders of our mission with more than human foresight, decided from the start to capitalize this desire on the part of the people, and immediately began to lay plans for intensive Bible study. Thus it was, that within less than two years after any of the five Korean Stations were opened, little groups of new believers were gathered, and from five to twenty days were spent in Bible study. The Koreans were diligent and eager students, and being by nature exhorters, they carried back to their fellows the Bible's message, and won converts by preaching the word to them. No doubt the quality of the Korean converts, which has been surprising as to numbers, is due largely to the fact that they were converted by hearing Scripture from students in some of these Bible classes. In other words, the Korean Church is a Gospel saturated Church.

This work has been carried on for over 25 years, and those who held the first classes did it so wisely that there have been but slight changes since then. The work is carried along on three lines: Four to six day classes in country groups for one church or several united; ten day classes in the stations for a whole field, one for men and one for women; one month advanced Normal work for men in four of the five stations, and one for women in two of the stations. But these last have been in operation for only about 15 years, or after there was a sufficiently advanced constituency. There is also conducted a three months' Bible school for women. The plan for carrying on the classes is identical. The Bible is the main book taught, and only such other studies as will fit men or women to be better leaders.

From the first there has been no subsidizing, or coercion. In the country groups the Church bears all the expenses. In the station classes the mission furnishes a room, fuel and light, but no food or books, and of late years there has been a fee charged for entrance to any of the station classes. Already some have graduated from the two main Normal classes for men and for women, which have a course of ten years,—a course that for thoroughness and difficulty would make any Bible School in America sit up and take notice.

The average number of students in these classes now, per year, is over 2,500, and in the last 25 years in our mission alone, over 50,000 Koreans have studied the Bible under good teachers for more than ten days in a year, and this number does not include country classes that reach as many more. Of course most of these have come in several times, and are by now well versed in the Bible. This large number of Christians, who have studied until they can give a reason for the faith that is in them, is the whole secret of the success of the work in the Land of the Morning Calm.

L. T. Newland.

BOOK NOTICES

"Being a Preacher"—By Rev. Jas. I. Vance, D.D.

We have always been a great admirer of Dr. Vance, whether as a preacher or a writer. His crisp and epigrammatic style delights the heart in these days when verbosity uses space in the paper or time in the pulpit.

He has, for a busy pastor, written much, but we doubt whether he has ever written anything better than this book. Here we have the Sprunt Lectures, delivered at Union Seminary, Richmond, Va., being the eleventh series of lectures on the Sprunt Foundation.

The preacher who is satisfied with his work will find little pleasure in this book. His ministerial life will be held up before him in retrospect, and as he looks back, he will be filled with shame, as he realizes how far short he has fallen. Yet it will be wholesome medicine for him to take, because if he has the root of the matter in him, he will go back to his work with a new and higher ideal.

The young man, particularly, who stands upon the threshold of life, trying to decide upon his work, will find here a triumphant call to the ministry, as he sees the vivid picture of the minister's calling, what it demands and what it gives to the world.

"The White Fields of Japan"—By Mrs. Lois

Johnson Erickson. Paper, 50 cents; cloth, 75 cents. Presbyterian Committee of Publication, Richmond, Va.

This is a neat volume of 207 pages, written in a charming style by Mrs. Lois Johnson Erickson, the wife of one of our missionaries. It deals with the various phases of missionary work in Japan, and at the end of each chapter there are questions which are intended to fasten the facts in the mind of the reader. It is an excellent book for mission study classes.

"Why I Believe the Bible Is the Word of God"—

Such is the title of a pamphlet containing three sermons delivered in the Second Presbyterian Church, of Charleston, S. C., by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Hickman.

Through the generosity of a member of this church this pamphlet was published, and it is being placed in the hands of the college students of South Carolina.

We have seldom found such a grouping of clear and strong facts, made available for young men, whose faith in the Old Book has been shaken. The young man who reads this small booklet will find that seed thoughts have been planted, that in time will produce fruit.

The Bible has nothing to fear from the fierce attacks made upon it just now by preachers, scientists, and editors. We are not concerned over the fate of the Book, but we tremble for the callow youth of our land who may be deluded by the loud pretensions of scientists so-called. These addresses by Mr. Hickman would help them if read.

A REMARKABLE CLAIM

Has the Turk had a change of heart? Gen. Ismet Pasha is quoted to have said recently: "Turkey is dedicated to liberty and does not believe that people should be held in bondage against their wishes." Since when has the Turk believed this? This claim is something new in a changing world. How happy the world would be to see some evidence of the truthfulness of the statement!—Nashville Christian Advocate.

JUST FOR TODAY

Take your life day by day, and hour by hour. Do not look too far ahead. If you are suffering, you have only to suffer that day. If you have an anxiety, God undertakes to see you through it, but only day by day. One of the great secrets of a happy, calm and strong life is to pray day by day, and trust day by day.—Bishop of London.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT

(Conducted under the auspices of Synod's Committee of Sunday Schools and Young People's Work, in the interest of Sunday Schools and Young People's Societies)

W. ARNETT GAMBLE, JR., Editor

ADDRESS ALL COMMUNICATIONS TO THE DEPARTMENT EDITOR DAVIDSON, N. C

EDITOR'S LOOKOUT

Conference week with the young people of the Carolinas has been full of good things. Many new friends have been made, many inspiring addresses and helpful conference talks have been listened to, and many fine resolutions have been made to strive for higher planes of living and more energetic, effective Christian service. Let us all be praying that the effects of the conferences will be lasting and our young people become stronger and stronger in their Christian faith and earnest service.

We give this week a report on the Davidson conference and hope to have one next week on the Clinton conference in South Carolina. Montreat next calls for representatives from the churches, and many interesting hours will be spent there.

The heart of the editor was made glad one morning last week when a hundred or more of the delegates at the Davidson conference promised to send him some news of their activities. There is no better way in which to make Young People's Department really and truly helpful to the young people of the Carolina Synods than by sending in reports on plans used in the various societies and organizations. The department can be made a veritable mine of information on plans and a real promoter of enthusiasm in young people's work, if we can just be able to include in its news of what our organizations are doing. Only 31 people in five months have been interested enough to write news for the department. We are expecting a larger number of reports from those in attendance at the Davidson conference, and hope that many others will report also.

After this week and through August 23rd the editor will be at Camp Sapphire, Brevard, N. C., and time can be saved by sending mail to him there. Of course mail sent to Davidson will be forwarded, but it will be better to mail it to Camp Sapphire, at Brevard. It should reach there by Friday for the following Wednesday's paper.

Sunday School

By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.

JUNE 24, 1923

REVIEW: GREAT MEN AND WOMEN OF THE OLD TESTAMENT
Selection for Reading: Psalm 99

GOLDEN TEXT—"Wherefore seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us."—Hebrews 12:1.

SCRIPTURE LESSON

- 1 The LORD reigneth; let the people tremble: he sitteth between the cherubims; let the earth be moved.
- 2 The LORD is great in Zion, and he is high above all the people.
- 3 Let them praise thy great and terrible name; for it is holy.
- 4 The king's strength also loveth judgment; thou dost establish equity, thou executest judgment and righteousness in Jacob.
- 5 Exalt ye the LORD our God, and worship at his footstool; for he is holy.
- 6 Moses and Aaron among his priests, and Samuel among them that call upon his name; they called upon the LORD, and he answered them.
- 7 He spake unto them in the cloudy pillar: they kept his testimonies, and the ordinance that he gave them.
- 8 Thou answeredst them, O LORD our God: thou wast a God that forgavest them, though thou tookest vengeance of their inventions.
- 9 Exalt the LORD our God, and worship at his holy hill: for the LORD our God is holy.

SHORTER CATECHISM

Q. 42. What is the sum of the ten commandments?
A. The sum of the ten commandments is, to love the Lord our God, with all our heart, with all our soul, with all our strength, and with all our mind; and our neighbor as ourselves.

The quarter's lessons cover a period of 482 years, from the call of Abraham, 1925 B. C. to the rebuilding of the walls of Jerusalem by Nehemiah, 444 years before Christ. Ahasuerus was king of Persia and Esther his queen, before Ezra and Nehemiah came to Jerusalem. One way of receiving the quarter's lessons is to present an outline of each lesson, giving the times, places, persons, and topics considered in each. During the quarter we have had our attention directed to nine notable men and two heroic women. At present we will consider these persons in four groups and the spiritual or moral qualities or graces that distinguished them. We will contemplate Abraham, Joseph and Moses, Ruth, Samuel and David, Elijah, Isaiah and Jeremiah, Nehemiah and Esther.

I. Abraham, Joseph and Moses

Abraham is called "the Father of the Faithful and the Friend of God." He was noted for his faith and obedience. When God called him to leave his land, his home and his kindred and to go to a land that He would show him, he trusted His word. When Jehovah required him to dwell in tents in the land of Canaan, and promised to give that land as a heritage to his seed, He believed His promise, though He owned in it only a burying place. When the Lord commanded him to offer Isaac, the child of the promises, to be slain by his own hand, he believed that God would raise him from the dead. In every case his faith was manifested by unquestioning obedience.

Joseph was remarkable for godliness and fidelity. He was not only godly in the sense of being pious from his youth, but he was godlike in his aversion to evil. When tempted to sin he said, "How can I do this great wickedness and sin against God." He was godlike in forgiveness, in pitying love for the evil, and in enlarged beneficence. He showed fidelity to duty and in all relations during life. He revealed fidelity as a son, as a brother, as a servant, as a falsely accused prisoner, as a friend, and as the second ruler of Egypt.

Moses manifested meekness and faithfulness in high degree. God pronounced him "the meekest of men" and the scriptures declare him to be "faithful in all God's house." He was not weak but strong. He was not cowardly but courageous. But when Jehovah spoke he was meek. He bowed and submitted to the Divine will. Meek towards God, he was meek in regard to those that injured him and unresentful. He was faithful in going to Egypt to rescue Israel, in establishing Jehovah's worship as commanded on Sinai, in rebuking Israel's idolatry, in visiting deserved penalty on obstinately evil doers and in caring for Israel's needs in the wilderness.

II. Ruth, Samuel, David

Ruth displayed decision and love. At the most important crisis of her life she showed decision of character. She was capable of deciding to change her country, to leave her native land to go with Naomi and to worship Jehovah. She was prompted by ardent love for Naomi and supreme love for Jehovah. From her pious mother-in-law she had learned to love her God. She expresses her decision and love in language of rare force and beauty.

Samuel, the last of the judges, was distinguished for devotion and righteousness. He was devoted to God from his infancy, was largely reared in the tabernacle, held communion with Jehovah from boyhood, and was consecrated to His service during life. Though a prophet and civil judge, he was righteous and after a long life of service his people testified that he had wronged no man.

David manifested patience and prayerfulness. Chosen by God to be king instead of Saul, he had the patience to wait many years and to endure much training before he ascended the throne. His prayerfulness appeared in prosperity or adversity during life and is revealed in the Psalms.

III. Elijah, Isaiah, Jeremiah

Elijah, "The Prophet of Fire," the most honored of his brethren, was remarkable for courage and loyalty. He would stand up for truth and Jehovah before an idolatrous court and nation. He would advocate the claims of Jehovah before all the priests of Baal. He would slay with the sword these perverters of the nation and insulters of Jehovah's majesty. He would appear before Ahab to denounce judgements or promise relief. He was loyal to Jehovah's worship and commands at all times.

Isaiah was noted for vision and eloquence. No prophet seems to have had clearer vision of Messiah's advent, character and functions than he manifests. He describes these visions too in terms clear, forcible and beautiful.

Jeremiah was sympathetic and courageous. He wept over the sins of his rulers and the woes of his people. He was brave in speaking God's words of truth even when they exposed him to danger and want.

IV. Nehemiah and Esther

Nehemiah was devout and energetic. He prayed under all circumstances. He showed tireless energy in organization, toil and struggle, till success was won.

Esther was patriotic and self-sacrificing. She determined to save her race and go to the king if life was lost. Her sublime words are, "If I perish, I perish."

Christian Endeavor

Rev. G. F. Bell, D.D., of Caldwell Memorial Church, Charlotte, has kindly prepared the discussion of the topic this week while I have been busy with the conference at Davidson.—J. G. G.

A HISTORY PSALM

- M., June 25—A lesson in providence: Gen. 45:1-8.
- T., June 26—In deliverance: Exod. 14:8-31.
- W., June 27—In consecration: Gen. 28:16-22.
- T., June 28—In sacrifice: II Sam. 23:13-17.
- F., June 29—In leadership: Judges 7:1-9.
- S., June 30—A traitor: II Sam. 15:1-6.
- Sun., July 1—Topic: Lessons from the Psalms.
- 7. A History Psalm. Ps. 44:1-8. (Patriotic consecration meeting.)

What lessons can we learn from American history?
What traces of God's providence do we find in history?
How can we help to make history?

The forefathers of those Israelites who were living at the time this psalm was written had a history which God had clearly guided and in which He had wrought. Remember Abraham's divine call and his victory over four kings, Jacob's vision at Bethel and his subsequent prosperity, Joseph's rise to power in Egypt, the rescue of the family of Israel from famine and their education through the descent into Egypt, the preservation and special training of Moses, the plagues of Egypt and the Exodus, the crossing of the Red Sea, the giving of the law at Sinai, the conquest of the warlike tribes of Canaan under Joshua, and the exploits of such men as Samson, Gideon, Jonathan, and David.

Therefore the Israelites said: "Thou art my King, O God—I will not trust in my bow—In God have we made our boast all the day long, and we will give thanks unto Thy name forever."

We see clear evidence of God's guiding hand and overruling providence in American history. God should be exalted and honored as King in our hearts. We ought to be a grateful people and put our trust and make our boast, not in material things such as wealth or armies, but in God, the Power behind and above all other forces.

In the middle of the 15th century came the Renaissance, or great revival of learning, which gave new impulses and new freedom to the spirits of men. In the middle of the 15th century came the invention of the art of printing, which greatly facilitated learning and the dissemination of truth and placed the Bible in the hands of the common man. Early in the 16th century came the great Protestant Reformation that sought to purify a worldly and corrupt church and turn Christians back to the Bible as their religious guide and the charter of their faith and ideals. Sandwiched in between these epochal events, just at the close of the 15th century, came the discovery of America. And America supplied the needed refuge for various reformers who had to flee for their lives, a new land where they could follow the dictates of their own consciences, a soil favorable to religious liberty and a progress of thought and spirit unfettered by the traditions of the past and oppressive governments. Did not God fit event to event just as distinctly as a carpenter dovetails two planks together?

In all this early history a higher Force was working. Men builded better than they intended or knew. Columbus was irresistibly impelled to make the attempt to reach India by voyaging westward, and discovered a new continent. Others sought a northwest passage, and incidentally chartered the new continent. Others sought gold, and founded colonies which were the beginning of America. God was guiding and preparing the way for a new exodus and a new chosen nation to bear His light before the world.

A series of providential wars and purchases placed the choicest portion of North America from ocean to ocean under the dominion of liberty-loving and stable Anglo-Saxons and Protestant Christians rather than effervescent Latin races and Romanists.

It was fortunate for America that the great British power was busily engaged in another war nearer home at the time of the Revolution. And aid came from France when it was sorely needed. At one time a strong wind detained the British fleet moving on New York; on another occasion a thick fog arose and covered the retreat of Washington's army when escape seemed impossible; at another time roads which had been miry for the British froze hard for the American advance. The God of battles won the Revolution for us. Washington said: "The hand of Providence has been so conspicuous in all this that he must be worse than an infidel who has not gratitude to acknowledge his obligations."

God has providentially raised up leaders of great faith, character, and genius at crucial epochs in the nation's life; notably Washington in the beginning, Lincoln at the time of civil strife and threatened division, Wilson for the period of the great World War.

Two generations ago the South fought valiantly for what they believed right, for state's rights and an equal part in the nation's destiny. But men of the South today believe that the sovereign God, to whom both sides in the conflict prayed so earnestly, decided the issue and are glad that the Union was providentially preserved and that slavery is no more. It is a good thing that America has been able to confront the corrupt power of Spain, the autocracy of Germany, and the possibility of conflict with Japan as a united and not a divided people.

"In God we trust" is on our coins. Our nation provides chaplains for Congress and for Army and Navy. Religious liberty is a part of our national constitution. The Christian pennant is the only flag allowed to fly above the stars and stripes on board our men-of-war. This is as it should be. We need to be alert and do our part that the nation observe the spirit as well as the letter of these acknowledgements of divine sovereignty.

Nearly all our presidents have been devout evangelical Protestant Christians.

"What hath God wrought" was the first message sent over the Atlantic cable laid by an American, Cyrus W. Field.

Washington, Lincoln, Roosevelt, Wilson, and Captain Phillips, of the Texas, all acknowledged God in prayer at crucial times in the national history. Washington at Valley Forge, Roosevelt and Wilson at cabinet meetings, Phillips on board his ship after the battle of Santiago.

We can help to make history by loyal patriotism in time of peace as well as in time of war; by unflinching adherence to that religious faith which has made America great; by true character, high ideals, and worthy achievement; and by an unselfish attitude of service toward all men, including negroes and immigrants and men of other lands.

The statue of liberty enlightening the world in America's greatest port should remind us that this nation has a mission as well as a heritage; that the only way to preserve civil and religious liberty is to help propagate it; that America cannot afford to play a selfish part in the fact of the world's problems, conflicts, and sufferings; and that the further, as Christians, we send the light of God's Word in missionary endeavor the brighter and more beneficently it will shine here in our own native land that we love.

God has made America the richest nation in the world. If she forgets God, history will repeat itself as in the case of that other chosen nation and she will become the poorest.

THE NORTH CAROLINA Y. P. CONFERENCE

From June 12th through the 19th the Davidson College campus was busy with more than 400 delegates and leaders and workers for the fifth annual conference of the young people of the Synod of North Carolina. The heavy rain of the opening day, with its consequent depression of spirit, gave way to a week of beautiful (and hot) sunshine, and a happy time was had and the usual regret expressed at having to leave the great lawn and beautiful trees.

Six-thirty seemed an early hour to be aroused by Willie P. Neshitt's bugle and the giant college bell, and "ten-ten" seemed an early hour by which to have said "good night" and climbed the stairs, but the fittest survived, and most of the delegates and others were fit.

Each day was full to the brim. Each morning after breakfast Miss Julia Lake Skinner gave splendid plans for the Christian Endeavor and other societies to use in their meetings and other work. A well-kept notebook on these conferences on methods will prove a great storehouse of workable plans. A show of hands one morning indicated that about 90 per cent of the delegates were Christian Endeavorers, but the plans given were by no means confined in their usefulness to C. E. societies, and any organization represented will profit by the plans given.

Miss Virginia Nourse gave another helpful course in Sunday School work, ending with a "model" demonstration.

(Continued on page 10)

Church News

E. H. HAMILTON, OUR PLAYGROUND DIRECTOR

You see him surrounded by his subjects, the only living King Tut-hank-Ham in captivity.

He has only been with us a month, but the young folks are "crazy 'bout him" and everywhere he hits, he gets in good. Every afternoon our playgrounds are alive with folks—big folks, little folks and medium-size. Sometimes there are as many as ten different events on at one time, and no matter which one of them you look at, you will observe "Ham" in the midst of it. That just shows how fast he gets around. He plays all over the diamond—literally. You have heard the expression before, but you never saw it done before. Ham can play anything from Tiddy Winks up to Elephant Boomalong and get away with it. He can sing anything from "Little Sunbeams" to "Bloody War." He can perform on any musical instrument, from a Jew's Harp to a Knife and Fork. He can ride anything from a velocipede up to a flying machine. He can blow his whistle and everything will gather to him, except one charming bit of human sweetness far away in Japan—and only the Pacific Ocean prevents that. We like Ham and we don't believe that even the Pacific Ocean is big enough to keep us from ultimately making life so ideal for him here that he—yea, both of them—will be content to sojourn with us a good long time—"The Church by the Side of the Road."

NORTH CAROLINA

The Presbytery of Mecklenburg will meet in adjourned session in Charlotte First Church, Monday, July 2, 1923, at 2 p. m. C. C. Anderson, S. C.

Harmony Church—Protracted meeting at Harmony Church, June 3d to 10th; preacher, Rev. McK. Long, singer, Rev. H. W. Roth. We received a great blessing from God under the faithful preaching of Mr. Long. There were about 50 reconsecrations, eight signers of the family altar league, and seven professions of conversion. There was shown a fraternal spirit by the Christians of other denominations that was very pleasant, and helpful. J. A. Scott, Pastor.

Tabor—Protracted meeting at Tabor Church, May 13th to 20th; conducted by Rev. J. M. Clark, D. D., our able and devoted superintendent of Home Missions. The church was greatly benefitted. The spirit of prayer and work was promoted. There were many reconsecrations. There were signed 11 family altar league cards. The people of Tabor, who had become somewhat scattered and discouraged, have been quickened to a better and stronger Christian life, we believe. J. A. Scott, Pastor.

Attention, Young People's Societies of Fayetteville Presbytery—The time is nearly here for our annual Young People's Echo Rallies. Lumber Bridge, June 26th; Sardis, June 27th; Gulf, June 28. Send your representatives to the one nearest you. A report of activities will be called for. Young people who attended the Davidson Conference will tell what they saw. Rev. J. R. Woods will speak on Life Enlistment. A Christian Endeavor man will be present. Bring your lunch and be there at 10:30.

Charles R. Bailey,
Chairman Committee Sabbath Schools and Y. P. Work, Fayetteville Presbytery.

Gilwood—An addition has lately been made to the building here that will give three more Sunday School class-rooms. Members have given much of the material and have done nearly all the work. The Teacher Training Class is using one room and the Missionary Teacher another. The latter is Miss Louise Chester, a young school teacher, home for the summer, who teaches missions to some class every Sunday. We commend the plan to country churches with larger attendance and more available teachers in summer than at other seasons.

Parkton—Rev. V. G. Smith was installed as pastor of the Parkton and Lumber Bridge churches the fourth Sunday in May. Rev. S. K. Phillips, of the Highland Church, Fayetteville, N. C., and Rev. Luther Smith, brother of the pastor, and superintendent of Home Missions in Fayetteville Presbytery with elder J. G. Hughes, of the Parkton church and elder Dr. Thos. A. Stamps, of the Lumber Bridge Church were a part of the commission that took part in the installation.

Rev. V. G. Smith was also installed pastor of the Rex Church the first Sunday afternoon in June. Rev. Dr. E. C. Murray, pastor of St. Paul's and Rev. J. W. Goodman, pastor of Antioch Church took part in this installation with elder J. M. McIver, of Rex Church. All the services were impressive and the congregations were large at each church. The work is starting off well at each place in this important field. V. G. Smith.

Henderson First Church—This Church recently had the great privilege of having Dr. J. Ernest Thacker and Mrs. Thacker and their singer, Mr. T. B. Roddy, to conduct a meeting from May 2-16. There were 97 additions to the various churches and 589 reconsecrations, a large number of these in our church. The preaching of Dr. Thacker was of a very high order and void of the sensational, eminently scriptural, and appealing to the heart and mind of his hearers. The singing of Mr. Roddy was a splendid feature and his consecrated life impressed all who heard him. The brilliant and helpful addresses of Mrs. Thacker on Christian Science and The Human Touch were most inspiring and instructive and well received by large audiences at the opera house. We feel that the kind of revival these consecrated Christian workers gave us will express itself far beyond the immediate results of church accessions and will be felt in all departments of the church life for months to come.

Burlington—Piedmont Church, at the beginning of the current year increased its pastor's salary by $100. This church has just experienced a great blessing in a series of meetings conducted by Dr. Black, assisted in the service of song by Mr. Andrew Burr. Eight members have been received into the communion of the church on profession of faith as a partial result of this meeting, two or three others having been held back because of their youth. Including small children of six years of age and under, there were 35 who professed faith, some of them being already members of churches, of whom 15 expressed a preference for the Presbyterian Church. Seventy-five covenanted to read the Bible and pray daily, five heads of families agreed to hold family prayer, and $60 was contributed for Synodical Home Missions. Dr. Black preaches with great vigor and power, "his bow abides in strength." Mr. Burr's solos were also a means of grace to the congregation, and his leadership in the service of song was inspiring. Cor.

Concord, First Church—On Sunday, June 10, 1923 seven new elders and eleven new deacons were ordained and installed in the First Presbyterian Church at Concord, of which Rev. Jesse C. Rowan is pastor. The new elders installed are W. L. Bell, T. T. Smith, F. C. Niblock, E. C. Barnhardt, Sr., Jones Y. Pharr, Charles A. Cannon, L. D. Moore. The new deacons installed are Frank Morrison, Henry M. Winecoff, Geo. Fisher, Jesse L. Johnston, Alex Howard, Edward Sanvain, Martin L. Cannon, Brevard E. Harris, John G. Parks, Julius Fisher, and Ernest Porter. Mr. J. Frank Goodson, elder-elect and Mr. J. Archie Cannon, deacon-elect, were not present and were not installed, but it is hoped that both will accept the offices to which they have been elected. Most of these men are young men, capable of doing wonderful service in the Master's kingdom.

The board of elders now numbers 16, and the board of deacons 18. Mr. Rowan has the loyal support of all these elders and deacons as well as the love of all the congregation, and his ministry, by the blessing of God, will accomplish great things for the upbuilding of Christ's kingdom on earth. C.

Gastonia—At a called meeting of Kings Mountain Presbytery in the Lincolnton Church, Monday morning, June 11th, Rev. C. G. Brown, formerly of Clio, S. C., was received from Pee Dee Presbytery and after the usual examination was welcomed to the Kings Mountain body. Revs. J. H. Henderlite, D.D., J. J. Harrell and J. T. Dendy were appointed a commission to install Dr. Brown as pastor of the Dallas Church the first Sunday afternoon in July.

Mr. Frank McLaughen, a member of the First Church, of Gastonia, was received as a candidate for the Gospel ministry under the care of Presbytery. Mr. McLaughen will be a "middler" at Louisville Theological Seminary next semester and will be in charge of the Armstrong Memorial Church in Gastonia during July and August.

A donation of $500 was made from the Church and Manse Erection fund of Presbytery to the Cherryville Church for a new manse now under construction.

"Presbytery Day," according to manual issued by the Young People's and Stewardship Committee of Kings Mountain Presbytery was observed in the First Church of Gastonia Sunday, June 10th and in Armstrong Memorial Church, June 17th. This latter Church, organized April 1st, has in two months increased in membership from 161 charter members to 186 and has met all current expenses and gifts with a nice cash balance each month.

Attention! Treasurers of Albemarle Presbytery—For the first time since becoming treasurer of this Presbytery, the treasury is overdrawn, and have had to borrow money.

This is due to two causes: (1) We had very little carried over from last year, less than ever before. (2) Our budget is much larger than ever before, amounting now to $600 a month or more, and as usual we have had some very heavy drafts on our treasury the past two months.

I am sending out statements to every church in the Presbytery of the part of the apportionment due for the first quarter of this church year. It is hoped that every one of you will send in your part by the first day of July for unless we get a prompt and full return we will be greatly embarrassed in our work.

We are doing the greatest work we have ever done. We received four new men into Presbytery on the 6th of this month, and others to come soon. We believe all the churches will rejoice in this forward movement, and that you will be glad to support it with your means.

We can only forward as you furnish the "sinews of war" for the work.

We want to enter every field that is open to the work of our church, and these are many.

"Who will come up to the help of the Lord against the mighty?"

We are working and praying for your help, and we are expecting great things from the Lord.

Yours in His name,
A. J. Crane,
Superintendent of Home Missions.

Rae ford—The Woman's Auxiliary of Bethel Presbyterian Church, entertained at a Mexican Fiesta, Monday, June 4th. The church was decorated in Mexican and United States flags, greens and numerous cut flowers carrying out the Mexican colors, red, white and green.

After devotional exercises the Fiesta was presented by Miss Lucy Wilks, as hostess, Annie Parks as Carmencita; Kate Bell McLean, Juanita; Bonnie Teal, Maria; Maude Leach, Louisa; Martha Lee McLean, Anna. The three little sisters were, Dixie Teal, Viola and Francis Hall. Raymond Teal was the little messenger boy. Each character taking part in the play, dressed in effective Mexican costume, made an earnest appeal for a girls' school in Texas.

An offering was taken for this cause, after which Mrs. H. R. Cromartie, of Rae ford, offered a prayer of dedication. Refreshments were served in the grove by the hostess and Mexican girls, to the Auxiliary and visitors, which closed a very pleasant afternoon.

Mrs. W. A. McLean,
Secretary Assembly's Home Missions.

Salisbury, Second Church—On May 20th at the evening service Rev. Eugene Alexander, who recently accepted the call of the Second Presbyterian Church, Salisbury, N. C., and was received into Concord Presbytery at its Spring meeting at Lenoir, was formally installed as pastor by a commission of Presbytery, consisting of Rev. Byron Clark, D.D., Salisbury First Church, Rev. E. D. Brown, D.D., China Grove, N. C., and Dr. Wm. J. Martin, president of Davidson College. Dr. Clark presided, propounded the constitutional questions and charged the pastor; Dr. Brown preached the sermon from the text, John 6:68. Dr. Martin charged the congregation. This was a most impressive service, witnessed by a large congregation, including many from the other churches in the city. The new-pastor enters upon his new field of labor with bright prospects for a useful ministry.

The Sunday School has recently been re-organized and closely graded and is growing rapidly. A Teachers' Training Class has been organized and is making good progress with the first unit of the teachers' course. What was formerly a Ladies' Aid Society has been made over into a four circled Woman's Auxiliary, and is functioning smoothly. The attendance has almost doubled in the last two months. They have a mind to work.

With the able assistance of Mr. T. T. Parks, of the Salisbury Normal and Industrial Institute, a fine Christian Endeavor Society is doing good work. Their attendance is excellent and the programs are brief, to the point and well-executed. The society will send two of its membership to the Young People's Conference at Davidson, June 12-19. Cor.

Charlotte—Rev. Dr. A. A. Walker, prominently known throughout the Southern Presbyterian Church, has arrived in Charlotte to direct the campaign for a $500,000 endowment for Queens College, and to become actively identified with the college until the endowment is raised. Dr. Walker, formerly located at Clarksdale, Miss., has been associated for some time with the Stewardship Committee of the Presbyterian Church with headquarters at Chattanooga, Tenn. He is largely credited with having put the Southern Presbyterian Church in the forefront in benevolences in the last year, through his work with this important committee.

Dr. W. H. Frazer, president of Queens College, in announcing the arrival of Dr. Walker to direct the endowment campaign, said that the work would be started immediately. The campaign he stated, will be entirely under the direction of Dr. Walker.

"Queens is going to make the attempt," Dr. Frazer said yesterday, "to overcome the only deterrent that has been set up against its future, and remove the only barrier that stands in its way of becoming a standardized college, meeting every requirement of the school authorities of the state and of the nation. That lack is its endowment.

"The institution otherwise is rated foremost among colleges for women in this state and the south. Its scholarship is unquestioned, authorities say, and its faculty ranks with any boasted by the best institutions in the south. Because of its lack of endowment which is necessary in order to obtain an A rating, it has suffered the loss of this additional prestige and has been unable to launch new plans to make its work increasingly effective throughout the Church and for this community."

The college, Dr. Frazer said, would first appeal to its friends in Charlotte and particularly to the Presbyterians. The college is an establishment of the Southern Presbyterian Church, and while the campaign will begin locally it is expected to take in whatever territory it is ultimately necessary to cover. An effort to get in touch with some of the greater educational institutions will be made, asking for donations from that source conditional upon the raising of a certain amount from the friends of the college.

In speaking of the prospects for the new term Dr. Frazer said that he expected to present one of the strongest faculties assembled at any like institution in the south when the college opens its fall sessions.

Davidson—It is a safe guess at the very opening of the sessions of the Fifth Annual Conference for the Young People of the Synod of North Carolina, June 12 to June 19, is going to prove the finest of them all, certainly in point of attendance. At the first gathering the enrollment reached 350 and there was the confident expectation that the numbers would run greatly in excess of this figure. Already there is talk of the necessity of dividing the conference next year into two sections with a view to getting the best results and giving each matriculate the training that will count for most.

The large dormitories of the college, the two eastern ones—new fire-proof concrete structures—for the girls and the two western ones—Georgia and Rumble—for the boys are well-filled and certainly this is true of the big gymnasium that serves as a refectory under the management of Miss Shumaker, where seating room has been provided for nearly 400 people.

The published program, giving the personnel of faculty, speakers for evening addresses, recreational leaders and counselors show that Rev. John G. Garth, Synod's chairman of Sunday School and Young People's Work, Mr. Claude T. Carr, Synod's Superintendent of the same, Rev. Roswell C. Long, platform manager, Mrs. W. B. Ramsay Synodical Auxiliary chairman of Y. P. Work, Mrs. D. H. Shaw, Synodical Auxiliary secretary of Y. P. Work, Miss Mamie McElwee, Synodical Auxiliary secretary of Y. P. Conference and Student Work, Mr. Wilson W. Moore, president of Presbyterian Y. P. League, Miss Elizabeth McDonald, secretary-treasurer of Presbyterian Y. P. League, have one and all done their work most faithfully and successfully and have arranged a most instructive and most pleasing program.

Teachers are: Rev. W. B. McIlwaine, Mrs. S. H. Askew, Miss Virginia Nourse, Rev. J. J. Murray, Rev. Woodrow Hassell, Miss Julia Lake Skinner, and in charge of music, Mr. Claude T. Carr.

Some of the speakers are: Rev. Dr. Homer McMillan, Rev. Dr. W. E. Hill, Rev. Dr. C. M. Richards, Rev. Dr. Samuel Glasgow, Rev. Dr. Robert Yost, Rev. Flournoy Shepperson, Rev. Woodrow Hassell.

The reception leaders are Mr. Dwight M. Chalmers, Union Seminary, Richmond, and Miss Marion Moore, Assembly's Training School.

Davidson students, notably W. A. Gamble, Guy E. Weeks, L. P. Burney, not to mention others, are making large contributions toward entertaining and serving.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Piedmont—The Intermediate Christian Endeavor Society has just returned from their summer camp at Jocassee. The party consisted of 28 young people and chaperons. The camp was under the personal supervision of Rev. J. B. Belk, pastor of the Piedmont Church.

Camp Jocassee is a wonderful camping place for young people. Through July and August Rev. I. E. Wallace conducts two summer camps of four weeks each, and many score of boys and girls will gather in this beautiful and historic mountain valley. The camp lies in the valley between the Toxaway and Whitewater Rivers. It offers every advantage to C. E. Societies that wish a delightful camping trip to the mountains. Particulars can be obtained from Rev. I. E. Wallace, Anderson, S. C.

ALABAMA

Gadsden—On May 27 a most helpful series of evangelistic services closed at the First Presbyterian Church. Rev. M. F. Daniels, of Charlotte, N. C., preached the pure Gospel for two weeks in a most convincing way, and was ably assisted by I. M. Ellis, a student in Columbia Theological Seminary, who organized and led three choirs. As a result of the meeting there were 19 professions of faith in Christ, five reconsecrations on the part of those who had grown indifferent, and a general quickening of the spiritual life throughout the church from the pastor to the youngest member. Mr. Daniels is a consecrated and humble preacher of rare gifts and our whole city was charmed with the simple Gospel of which the preacher was not ashamed. This is the second meeting Mr. Daniels has conducted for the present pastor here and both times he went away leaving the churches on a much higher spiritual plane. We commend the young brother to the church at large, believing that Mecklenburg Presbytery must want to share his gifts with the whole Southern Assembly.

F. P. Anderson, Pastor.

Tuscaloosa, First—"Thirty Thousand in Three Days"—Cash!—was the slogan adopted in the out-of-debt-campaign just completed in the First Church. Twenty-seven thousand, five hundred of that amount was essential to meet conditions on which Mrs. James Spence had given an equal amount. The other twenty-five hundred was for good measure and in order to meet certain needs not provided for in the budget of the year. Monday evening at eight was fixed as the hour for the victory celebration. When the hour arrived $28,300 was in the bank. That met the demand, but before the evening was over the other $1,700 had been raised. Next day other amounts came in sufficient to put the total well above $30,000. Dr. M. E. Melvin spent four days he had meant to spend in a little rest directing the work.

This great building erected at a cost with its furnishings of $175,000 has been in use a little more than a year. Of the building Dr. Melvin said "I know of no more elegant or commodious building in our Assembly" When it was completed there was a debt of $55,000. That is now wiped out. The outstanding bonds will be gathered in and within a very short time they will be burned. The congregation has never before known such a joyous and grateful mood as that it experiences today.

Chas. M. Boyd, Pastor.

ARKANSAS

The "Ark" in Arkansas—(C. F. Evans, Southern Secretary United Society of Christian Endeavor.)—Arkansas almost needed the "Ark" to get her delegates to her Thirteenth Christian Endeavor Convention which was held at Russellville, June 8-10, as hundreds of acres of her land were completely under water, and nearly all her creeks and rivers entirely out of bank, because of the exceptionally heavy down pour of rain she suffered during nearly all of May and June, yet in spite of conditions the Russellville Endeavorers were splendidly ready for the convention and looked after every detail in a fine way.

About 200 of the society, district and state leaders attended the convention, and pronounced it one of unusual depth and value. In addition to the state officers and leaders, and pastors of the state, Miss Cole, All-South Junior Field Secretary, Bert G. Jones, Field Secretary of Arkansas, Mississippi and Tennessee and Southern Secretary Evans, served on the program.

Rev. J. Ellsworth Coombs, of Hot Springs, who will be remembered by all Endeavorers of Dixie as the Hot Springs chairman for the All-South Convention, gave the opening address, and measured up to his usual high standard splendidly, stirring the young people to great depths with his challenges for tasks waiting to be done.

Clarkville, gave the address on Saturday night, and greatly pleased and instructed his audience.

Illness prevented the attendance of vice-president Hall and secretary, Miss Gore. Another gloom was cast over the convention because of Mrs. Earl Varnadore, who lived in Russellville when she was state president, finding it necessary to go to Mayo Brothers for a serious operation during the convention week.

Rev. J. E. Wallace, Pine Bluff, gave a stirring message on the subject, "Looking Upward." Rev. J. E. Wallace submitted the first song to Southern Secretary Evans, in the contest for a Dixie song for use in the Des Moines Convention.

To avoid conflict with denominational conferences it was recommended that the state convention dates be changed from June to a fall month, and Pine Bluff was chosen as the next convention city.

Because of heavy pressure of other duties state president Goslee and state treasurer Booth would not consider re-election, and the following officers were elected:

President, J. C. Hall, Hope; Vice-President, S. E. Byrd, Pine Bluff; Secretary, Miss Ruth Zeran, Helena; Treasurer, Walter Green, Little Rock; M. S. P. Superintendent, Miss Clara Beadle, Little Rock; Itinerary Director, Mrs. Hattie Carmichael, Fort Smith; Junior Superintendent, Mrs. C. A. Harper, Clarendon; Intermediate Superintendent, Mrs. J. P. Morrow, Batesville; Quiet Hour and Life Work Recruit Superintendent, Manson H. Lowe, Clarkesville; Tenth Legion and Missionary Superintendent, Mrs. Berrie, Fayetteville; Alumni and Evangelism, Mrs. Ed Russell, Pine Bluff.

TEXAS

Cleburne—The following are a few news items from the Young People's Christian Endeavor Society of the First Presbyterian Church, of Cleburne, Texas.

On May 14th Mr. James Wray, Christian Endeavor missionary to Mexico spoke to us about the interesting and splendid work he and other people are doing in Mexico. He told us of the willingness of the Mexicans to receive the Word of God and his stories were very interesting. His talk was enjoyed by everyone and after his talk he showed us some pictures of Mexico and of the people he worked among.

On May 27th the Sunday School went in a body to visit the Presbyterian school and home for orphans at Files Valley, Itasca, Texas. We left the church in cars about 2 o'clock and were there for their chapel exercises. The trip was enjoyed by everyone and we hope we can visit them again soon.

The Senior Christian Endeavor Society, of the First Presbyterian Church, of Cleburne, Texas, has just completed a class in Expert Endeavor conducted by Miss Stella W. Hovey, of Ft. Worth, Texas. There were ten in the class, all of whom took the examination, passing with a grade of above 90. The following are the names of those in the class. Harper Brown, Melvin Walker, Misses Gertrude Whitehouse, Annabel Riviere, Lulu Dowse, Jane Margaret Barlow, Elizabeth Harper, Ruby Dowse, Elberta Nelson, Louise Walker.

Melvin Walker,
114 S. Field St., Cleburne, Texas.

VIRGINIA

At an adjourned meeting of East Hanover Presbytery on June 18th, Rev. F. T. McFaden, D.D., was dismissed to Winchester Presbytery to become pastor of the Winchester Church.

(Continued on page 10)

Educational

Glade Valley High School—The session of 1922-23 closed April 28-30 with a very successful commencement. The past session marks one among the best in the history of the institution, and the enrollment in the high school for the past year excelled all previous ones. The high school enrollment for the year was 80, and 15 in the seventh grade. A total of 95. The high school enrollment alone made an increase of five over the total enrollment of last year. Over fifty per cent of the pupils boarding in our dining hall. The music department enrolled 25 regular pupils. Thirty-five pupils were members of the Presbyterian Church, and several more, members of other branches of the evangelical churches. The graduating class of '23 consisted of eight members, three girls and five boys—making a total of 58 graduates gone out from Glade Valley. The student body was composed of pupils from two states and 15 counties, the majority from Alleghany and the five adjoining counties.

Some very successful events for both pupils and school took place during the year. The school was represented in the inter-scholastic declamation contest at Trinity College by Mr. Clinton Burgess. Glade Valley was for the fourth time represented in the State debate at Chapel Hill by Messrs. Clinton Burgess and Lester Tilley, affirmative; Collier Parrish and Floyd Fender, negative. The affirmative team won in the first preliminary. Mr. Collier Parrish won a $10 cash prize in an essay contest, subject, Student Government in the High Schools. The contest was under the supervision of the Student Government Association of the N. C. State College for Women, Greensboro, and all high schools of the state eligible. Mr. Floyd Fender, during his spare time, wrote a thirty-page history of the Glade Valley School, which has brought him much renown, and will be of great interest to our friends when read, opening their hearts I hope for a larger and better equipped Glade Valley School.

We wish to thank all our friends for the aid given the school, and for your part in helping to make it a success.

E. B. Eldridge, Superintendent,
Glade, Valley, N. C.

YOUNG PEOPLE

(Continued from page 9)

tion of organized class work. Her class was taught in two sections, as were all the classes of the conference.

Rev. J. J. Murray, of Wilmington, conducted the study of Home Missions, and his close knowledge of this work was very evident. A clear and forceful and earnest speaker, he of course made a fine impression and gave a strong challenge for work in the home field. His vesper service was also a strong appeal for a deep prayer life and an expression of Christian love through service.

Rev. Woodrow Hassell, of Japan, gave some delicious discussions on foreign work. Wearing his Japanese clothes and shoes and demonstrating the practical use of chop sticks, and with his good humor and earnestness, Mr. Hassell contributed a great deal to the spirit of the conference. His Saturday evening address, which he termed a 45-minute trip to Japan, was certainly interesting and was a strong appeal to help those in Japan who are seeking the light, who are "looking for God."

The Bible courses were well looked after. Rev. W. B. McIlwaine, of Charlotte, taught the Senior Bible, and Mrs. S. H. Askew was back again for the Junior Bible. Two more interesting and helpful teachers of Bible work for young people would be hard to find. Mr. McIlwaine also gripped the delegates in his vesper service. Mrs. Askew is loved by all who know and have heard her, and little more can be said to these than to say she was present, for they understand what that means.

Dr. Homer McMillan, Atlanta; Dr. G. F. Bell, Charlotte; Dr. Albert S. Johnson, Charlotte; Dr. Samuel Glasgow, Knoxville; Dr. C. M. Richards, Davidson; and Mr. Hassell, gave strong addresses in the evenings. Dr. Glasgow also preached Sunday morning, and in this and his other words to the delegates gripped them as he always does for service.

The athletic work was well taken care of by Mr. D. M. Chalmers and Miss Marion Moore. The work was well organized, and baseball contests and a field meet aroused much interest and friendly rivalry between the Presbyteries. Orange Presbytery won the athletic meet with 25 points, with Fayetteville and Kings Mountain tied for second place with 24 points each. The girls' baseball game was won by the "West," composed of players from Concord, Mecklenburg, and Kings Mountain Presbyteries, over the "East," composed of players from Orange, Fayetteville, Albemarle, and Wilmington Presbyteries. The West boys were also victorious in their game.

If space were available much more could be told of the good things of the conference. Only a brief mention can be made of the fine way in which Rev. R. C. Long served as platform manager; a mere statement can be made concerning the morning watches, the personal conferences, and the excellent reports from the Presbyteries and the schools and colleges. The conference was the biggest ever held in the Synod, so big that the delegation will have to be limited next year, and it was a really BIG conference in many ways. The big Davidson gymnasium was crowded at meal times and the Davidson chapel was crowded in daylight and night-time with the different meetings. A big spirit prevailed and a big result was undoubtedly accomplished.

CHURCH NEWS

(Continued from page 9)

DuPont City—A petition for the organization of a church at DuPont City, a suburb of Hopewell, was answered favorably and a commission appointed to erect the same if the way be clear.

Rev. J. A. Cook has just closed a capital meeting at Woodlawn. This is a mission of the Hopewell Church, situated on the Petersburg and Hopewell electric line.

Tabb Street Church, Petersburg has called Rev. Edgar E. Gammon, of Hampden-Sidney to become its pastor. The congregation is very hopeful that he will accept.

Rev. L. W. Curtis is conducting a meeting at Centraia, on Petersburg and Richmond electric line, mid-way between the two cities. There is no church of any denomination in or near this growing village. There is Sunday School conducted under a tent on the lawn of one of the Presbyterian friends.

The Evangelistic Campaign of East Hanover Presbytery is beginning under most encouraging circumstances. The meetings already held show quite a number of additions to the churches. At the Spring meeting of Presbytery 45 of these meetings were assigned to the different ministers.

Colonial Heights, Petersburg—This church which was organized a few Sundays ago has secured for its future home the best site in that growing suburb. The congregation is very enthusiastic and believe there is a great future lying ahead of them. They have called a pastor and anxiously await his answer. The elders of this church are Messrs T. O. Williams, E. D. Sager, W. H. Vaughn.

Bret-Reed Memorial, Sweet Hall, King Williams County—This church was organized May 20th, with 30 members, seven of whom united on profession of faith. Messrs. N. R. Palmer and W. S. Timberlake were installed as elders and Messrs. W. C. Stone, E. C. Edwards, H. W. Vaughn were made deacons.

This is the first Presbyterian Church ever organized in King William County, and is the result of two years of faithful work on the part of Rev. H. B. Frazer and his most excellent wife. During all this time they were the only Presbyterians out in the county, though there were several elect ladies of that faith in West Point.

Staunton—The Third Church had the pleasure of having their missionaries, Dr. M. P. Young and wife of Soochow, China, to visit them from Saturday, June 9th through the 11th. Dr. Young is in charge of the Elizabeth Blake Hospital in Soochow, and, assisted by his capable and noble wife, is doing a most excellent work. Sunday night at the 8 o'clock service he told of his work to a crowded church, and all who heard him could not help but have their interest in missions greatly deepened by his clear and spiritual address.

Mrs. Young spoke to the Girls' Circle Monday afternoon, and the young girls, who have been sending materials to the hospital at Soochow, were happy to know Mrs. Young personally and hear her interesting and appealing description of their work in connection with the hospital.

On Monday night at the manse the congregation gave a reception in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Young, and also had as their guests Rev. W. F. Junkin, D.D., and wife who are also missionaries to China and friends of the Youngs. A very happy evening was spent with these beloved servants of God in China, and the Third Church congregation has received a great blessing from the visit of their missionaries, and from personal contact with Dr. and Mrs. Junkin. Dr. Junkin has also spoken at the Third Church during his furlough, and was greatly enjoyed.

Dr. Young is a native of Due West, S. C., and Mrs. Young is also a native of South Carolina, daughter of Rev. J. C. Oehler, D.D., now pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Palestine, Texas. They are on their first furlough home, and expect to return to China in September.

The financial part which the Third Church has in the support of Dr. and Mrs. Young is not large, but enough to be able to claim them, along with some others, and will be increased with the growth of the church. This sense of personal friendship and partnership is a wonderful stimulus to missions and all churches should have a special missionary or missionaries.

PERSONAL

Rev. J. R. McRee has changed his address from Iva, S. C., to Monticello, Ga.

News of the Week

The Pee Dee River bridge between Florence and Marion Counties, S. C., was formally opened on June 14th in the presence of throngs of people. A beautiful pageant symbolizing the union of the counties was staged.

Eight bearded, shabby men, four of them Americans, the last of the 77 foreign prisoners captured by Chinese bandits from the Shanghai-Peking express, near Suchow, May 6th, arrived at the Tung Hsing mines, near Tsoochwang, on June 12th. They came down the mountain side in sedan chairs, on donkeys, and some walking, with an escort of outlaws. At the mine compound they saw the last of their brigand hosts and were joyfully greeted by relatives and friends who had gathered there to welcome them.

The killing of three French soldiers—one in Gelsenkirchen and two in Dortmund—within the last few days has convinced the French military authorities that an organized effort has been launched by the Germans to carry on night attacks against the forces of occupation. Hence, drastic measures have been taken against the two municipalities.

President Harding in an address before the American Legion's flag conference advocated a code for civilian usage of the American flag and of proper behavior in its presence. He also expressed the hope that all Americans learn to sing with the true spirit "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Public offering of $25,000,000 Austrian government bonds, a part of an international loan of $126,000,000 to the Austrian republic, was made in the United States by a syndicate of bankers headed by J. P. Morgan & Co.

Every stream in Kansas and northern Oklahoma reached high-water mark the past week and the floods resulted in great property loss and seven deaths, with others reported missing.

A. T. Allen was appointed superintendent of public instruction for North Carolina to succeed Dr. Brooks, now president of N. C. State College, at Raleigh.

Sections of Oregon have been overrun by an army of caterpillars, and covering sections of the sidewalks of some towns. According to entomologists their march is in search of a sheltered spot where they can spin their cocoons.

Chairman Lasker, of the shipping board, is being criticized for his proposed expedition on the "Leviathan" in which he will entertain 600 picked citizens for a week's run on the big vessel in order, he says, to test it out. The expedition will cost thousands of dollars to the tax-payers of the country, it is claimed. Senator Overman has declined to take the trip on account of the cost to the people. Lasker himself laughs at his critics and says he is doing the customary thing in having a "trial cruise." He claims that provision was made for the cruise under a Democratic administration.

A religious experiment uniting 21 denominations under one minister and one roof is being tried at Jackson Heights, Queens, New York, where a community church was dedicated on June 10th. Baptists, Methodists, Presbyterians and Episcopalians were among the 21 denominations represented in the personnel of the congregation.

The Bulgarian Government has been conspicuous the past week for a series of dramatic events. On June 9th the cabinet in charge, headed by Premier Stamboulisky, was overthrown, the plot being carried out by reserve officers assisted by the regular army. To the allies watching the march of events in Bulgaria conditions seem very serious and an unwelcome pro-German influence was recognized. June 13th dispatches brought the news of a volunteer army of 100,000 ready for action, guarding the frontiers and ready to punish the usurpers. The week's news from Bulgaria closed with the death of Stamboulisky, the prime minister, who was shot on June 15th in an attempt on the part of a party of peasants to rescue him from guards who had captured him after a three days' pursuit.

The port of New York became officially dry at midnight June 9th when customs officers put into effect the supreme court ruling prohibiting all merchant vessels from possessing liquor within the three-mile limit.

A delightful letter of appreciation was sent A. G. Myers, illustrious potentate, Gastonia, N. C., by ex-President Wilson, thanking the Oasis Temple for the flowers sent him on the occasion of the recent Shriners meeting in Washington.

The headless Chinese government is drifting into a factional fight over the spoils of office. President Li Yuan-Hung, who fled to his home in the foreign quarters in Tientsin a few days ago with the Chihli militarists at his heels, still is in seclusion there.

CHILDREN

LIKES HER TEACHER

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl seven years old. I love to read the letters in your paper. I have one little brother and one sister. I like to go to Sunday School. I go to school at Stony Point. I am in the first grade. My teacher is Miss Corine Alexander. I like her fine.

Your unknown friend,
Margaret Lentz.

Stony Point, N. C.

A SOLDIER'S DAUGHTER

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl nine years old; am in the third grade at St. Margaret's School, and second grade in the Sunday School at the Church of the Covenant. My maternal grandfather was Rev. D. D. McBryde, of your Synod, and my paternal grandfather was an elder in his church since my father was a little boy. So I have many relatives in the Old North State, which I love as my parents do. I visit my "Aunt Fannie" at Linden, N. C., very often, and there see many little cousins, aunts and uncles. We are moving away from our sweet home here, going to Atlanta to train Uncle Sam's soldier boys how to defend our flag and country, and how to make and keep healthy camps. My father is a great big fine soldier man, graduated at West Point twenty-nine years ago, and when he has thirty years he can retire. I hope he will do so, as mother says she is tired of bumming and packing and moving. Though we all love our army and these fine unselfish men who stand ready to fight and risk their lives for you and me. I will write a story about my trip to Europe last year, if your little readers wish to read it. We were in an auto and now our old veteran auto is a "taxi" in the streets of Paris!

Your little friend,
Eleanor Williams.

Washington, D. C.

(We would love to have the promised story and shall look for it soon.—Standard).

POSTPONED THEIR PLAY

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl six and a half years old. I go to the graded school; my teacher is named Miss Emma Norment. I like her fine. Our school had planned to have a play on the 22nd, but the Chautauqua is coming and we had to cut it out till the fall. I hope my letter will not reach the waste basket, for I want to surprise my mother and daddy.

Your unknown friend,
Rosalie McNeill.

Lumberton, N. C.

IN SIXTH GRADE

Dear Standard:

I am a girl thirteen years old. I go to school nearly every day. My school teacher is Miss Currie. I like her fine. I am in the sixth grade. I have a little brother and two sisters. My little brother is eight years old and in the fourth grade. Our principal is Mr. Robert Proctor. I like him fine. Our school was out the 27th of May. I have recited the Child's Catechism and received my Testament. Please print my letter as I want to surprise my daddy.

Your friend,
Thelma Ledbetter.

Maxton, N. C., R. 2.

A NEW FRIEND

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl seven years old. My grandfather takes your paper. I read your page of children's letters and like them very much. My school teacher is Miss Josie Grainger Wright. My Sunday School teacher is Mrs. Alexander Miller. I hope my letter will not reach your waste basket for I want it to be published. I hope it will be.

Your new friend,
Eleanor Gilchrist Wright.
Wilmington, N. C.

"BEST PREACHER IN THE WORLD"

Dear Standard:

I am a little boy nine years old. I am in the fourth grade. My teacher is Miss Olive Duke. I go to Sunday School every Sunday. Our pastor is Dr. Grier. I think he is the best in the world. My mother is in the hospital. I am staying at my Aunt Jennie's. I have a brother at the University of North Carolina, and one brother at Bingham Military School. I have a little brother, Joe; he is five years old. I want to surprise my mamma and papa.

Your friend,
Bobby Knox.

Newton, N. C.

STRAWBERRIES AND STAMPS

When Mary Ann Benson and her sisters were little girls entertainments were few and far between. So there was much excitement in the household when Mary Ann came running in one hot June day crying as she came, "Strawberry festival! Strawberry festival!"

"Oh, where?" called a shrill little voice from upstairs. That was Mary Ann's younger sister, Sally.

"Oh, when?" shouted a gay voice from the kitchen. That was her older sister, Esther.

"Can we go?" a third little voice piped from the end of the hall. That was Emmy, the youngest sister of all, who was sitting on the back stairs for punishment because she had run away.

Then mother came calmly out of the sitting-room to see what all the hubbub was about. They all gathered round Mary Ann—even fat little Emmy, for her time was just up.

"It's to be next Thursday evening at Judge Walter's," Mary Ann said. "It's for the new church organ, and there'll be strawberries and cream, and it will cost twenty-five cents to get in, and"—Mary Ann stopped for breath. "And—and—we may go, mayn't we, mother?"

Mother looked at the old clock in the corner that told the day of the month as well as the day of the week. June 10, 1864, the old clock said it was; that meant that the following Thursday would fall on June 16.

Then mother looked at her four little daughters, who gazed back at her anxiously and hopefully. Twenty-five cents apiece; that would be a dollar; and money was scarce in those war days. But—"We'll see, we'll see," mother said.

Esther and Sally and Mary Ann understood why she could not be certain. They knew how scarce money was. In fact, in those war times there was hardly any real money to be seen anyway. People had to use paper money instead of coins; they were using postage stamps.

The postage stamps were hard to handle. There was a kind of soft mucilage on the back of them that made them stick to everything even before they had been moistened.

"The festival is for a very good cause," mother said. "I will write to your father; perhaps he will send some money before Thursday."

Oh, how the little girls hoped that he would!

The letter to father went that day, which was Friday; it would be possible to have an answer the following Monday.

When Monday came Esther hurried to the post office, but there was no letter. Tuesday was Sally's day to go; she had no better luck. The little girls were disappointed.

When Mary Ann went for the mail on Wednesday her heart was beating fast. It would be dreadful if there were no letter today! Emmy ran ahead with her feet twinkling in their little black slippers.

Mary Ann entered the office and walked slowly to the window. "Please, is there any mail?" she asked in a weak voice.

But Emmy was already peering on tiptoe over the edge of the little window. "Mr. Postmaster," she said bravely, "there must be a letter from our father this morning, because we want so much to go to the strawberry festival tomorrow."

But though the postmaster obligingly searched the pigeonholes, there was no letter for the Benson family. The two little girls went home almost ready to cry.

Thursday was bright and beautiful. "If a letter doesn't come today!" the little Benson girls said as they went to the postoffice together.

But that day it did come. It had been delayed in some way, but there it was at last. The four little girls were always glad to hear from father, who had to work so far away, but now they were gladder than ever to see the familiar handwriting. They went flying home.

When mother opened the letter a package of stamps dropped out of the folded sheet, and the little girls drew a long breath of relief.

"We can go to the strawberry festival," they said.

So it was all settled just in time. By 4 o'clock the little girls were all ready to start. Emmy was dressed in yellow muslin, Sally in white dimity sprigged with pink flowers. Mary Ann in blue lawn with buff bands, and Esther in green muslin. They wore white stockings and shiny black slippers, and their large bonnets were tied under their chins with broad silk strings. Long before the girls reached Judge Walter's house they could see the twinkling lanterns in the yard and hear the music.

"Can we eat all the strawberries we want?" Emmy asked loudly.

"S-sh!" said Esther. "If we don't want too many! Here we are, girls."

Just outside the gate Miss Annie Drake, the church organist, sat before a little table and took in the money. The girls noticed that a good many persons besides themselves had brought stamps to pay their way in. The night was very warm, and the stamps stuck to everything; it took Miss Annie a long time to count them. The four sisters stood in line and waited for their turn.

After a while little Emmy whispered to Mary Ann that she was tired standing up so long.

Mary Ann glanced round. There was a vacant chair a few feet away. "Sit down in that chair, Emmy," she whispered back. "Ten people are ahead of us still."

Emmy wriggled out of line and went over to the friendly chair; she brushed the chair off and then took her seat with a loud sigh.

At last it was the Benson girls' turn. Esther handed in her stamps and passed through the gate; Sally followed.

"Come, Emmy," called Mary Ann, and Emmy hopped down from her seat and skipped into line.

"Where are your stamps?" Mary Ann asked.

Emmy held out her hands with a bewildered look. "Why, I don't know," she faltered.

"O Emmy, did you lose them?" said Mary Ann with a sinking heart.

Emmy's chin quivered. She could not remember what had happened to the stamps. Mary Ann glanced hurriedly at the ground, but it was dusk now, and she could not see well. Miss Annie was waiting; on the other side of the gate Esther and Sally were looking back in surprise.

Emmy gave a little sob. "I cannot go to the strawberry festival," she said.

"O dear me!" thought Mary Ann. "Whatever shall we do?" In the dim light she could see great tears rolling down Emmy's chubby cheeks. Suddenly she laid her sheet of stamps in front of Miss Annie and then, stepping back, gave her little sister a gentle shove.

"Go on in, Emmy," she said.

Before Emmy knew what had happened she was through the gate.

Poor Mary Ann! She had wanted so much to go to the strawberry festival. But so had Emmy—dreadfully. She watched Emmy go slowly forward; the light of a Japanese lantern shone full on the little girl and turned her yellow dress to gold color. All at once Mary Ann gave a little cry. She ran to the fence.

"Emmy, come here!" she called.

Little Emmy turned and came back slowly; she was afraid Mary Ann had changed her mind. But when she reached the fence all that Mary Ann said was, "Turn round."

Wondering, Emmy turned, and as she did so Mary Ann drew a long breath of relief. For stuck firmly to the back of the little yellow muslin dress was a row of sticky postage stamps.

"Hold still for half a minute," Mary Ann said in a joyful voice. "Oh, Emmy dear, you sat on your stamps, and I've found them, and they are peeling off, and now I can go to the strawberry festival. I can go after all!"—Eleanor Fairchild Pease, in The Youth's Companion.

WHEN I WAS A BOY

By Eugene Field

Up in the attic where I slept
When I was a boy—a little boy!—
In through the lattice the moonlight crept,
Bringing a tide of dreams that swept
Over a low red-trundle bed,
Bathing the tangled curly head,
While moonbeams played at hide and seek
With the dimples on each sun browned cheek—
When I was a boy—a little boy!

And, O, the dreams, the dreams I dreamed
When I was a boy—a little boy!
For the grace that through the lattice streamed
Over my folded eyelids seemed
To have the gift of prophecy,
And to bring me glimpses of time to be,
Where manhood's clarion seemed to call,
Ah, that was the sweetest dream of all—
When I was a boy—a little boy!

I'd like to sleep where I used to sleep
When I was a boy—a little boy!
For in that lattice the moon would peep,
Bringing her tide of dreams to sweep
The crosses and griefs of the years away
From the heart that is weary and faint
today,
And those dreams should give me back again
The peace I have never known since then—
When I was a boy—a little boy.

A HURRY CALL

Good morning, Mr. Doctor Man;
I'm coming to you quick,
Because I'm so dreadful 'fraid
My dollies will get sick.
Ruth's doll has got the fever,
An' Flossie's has the mumps,
An' Stella's has the hoopin' cough,
An' Beth's some awful bumps.
Clarissa's has a broken leg,
An' Faye's has lost one eye,
An' Susie's has some chicken pox
An' measles, too—oh, my!
So hurry, Mr. Doctor Man,
An' blaccinate my two;
For if these dreadful things should spread,
Whatever should I do?

—Ex.

Marriages and Deaths

MARRIED

Thomas-Cameron—On May 30, 1923, at the Presbyterian manse, Broadway, N. C., by Rev. E. B. Carr, Mr. Sidney Thomas and Miss Maggie Kate Cameron, both of Broadway, N. C.

DEATHS

Ray—At the home of her nephew, Jno. B. Ray, in Hoke County, N. C., Miss Ann Eliza Ray departed this life, on May 15, 1923, at the great age of 87 years, 3 months and 7 days. She had been a member of Antioch Presbyterian Church for nearly 69 years. She was a splendid type of Christian woman and was highly respected by all who knew her, as was attested by the large crowd at her funeral. Pastor.

MRS. SAMUEL WATKINS

"Death is God's Method of Colonization."

When on April 25, 1923, God called His beloved servant home, He took to Himself a saint whose translation enriched heaven and left earth poorer by the loss of a noble and beautiful life.

Rebecca G. Cheatham, born in Henderson, N. C., August 11, 1860, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William Cheatham, and married on September 27, 1877, to Mr. Samuel Watkins, of Henderson, spent her entire life in the town of her nativity. At the age of 14 she united with the Methodist Church at the same time with her father, between whom and herself there was a singular bond of affection and understanding. At the time of her marriage she transferred her membership to the Presbyterian Church to be with her husband.

The married life of Mr. and Mrs. Watkins was an ideal union of heart and mind, and their's was a model home. Husband and wife were one in their Christian faith, one in aims and ideals, and one in the measure they took of successful living. Eight children nurtured in this Christian environment and bearing the molding impress of the instruction and godly example of this noble couple now rise up to call them blessed.

Mrs. Watkins was a true Christian. She had an intelligent grasp of the great doctrines of grace and the Scripture standards of life and duty. Jesus Christ was with her supreme as Saviour and Lord. She loved Him and she loved His Church. Her devotion to Him was the dominant factor in her life. An unusually well rounded character, in which culture of mind and heart were happily blended, she was, indeed, interested in all the life of her community. Her gracious hospitality made her home a happy and attractive center. She occupied a prominent and influential position in the town and was a distinct factor in its social life and civic organizations. But as a Christian she excelled. After her home, the interests of her church came first. Her husband was one of the chief builders of the Henderson Church. Throughout his life he loved it with whole-hearted devotion and served it with tireless zeal. And Mrs. Watkins fully shared in all his loyalty and service. Every department of the church felt the influence of her faith and love. But her Christian interest and activities far transcended the bounds of the local church. Looking back now over her busy life we think of Luke's description of Dorcas: "This woman was full of good works and of alms-deeds which she did." With her large family and the ceaseless demands made upon her time and strength by her household duties, we wonder where she found the energy and leisure for all she did. For six years she was president of Albemarle Presbyterian, then known as "The Union." In conjunction with her husband she started the first Sunday School to be organized among the cotton mill operatives in the industrial section of the town. She also helped her husband and his brother, Mr. John B. Watkins, one of God's choicest saints, to establish the fruitful mission school several miles from town, now grown into St. Andrews Church, and for years she taught a class there on Sunday afternoons.

Mrs. Watkins was deeply concerned for the welfare of the poor and the underprivileged. More than 12 years ago she made a personal investigation of tuberculosis among the colored people of her town, and helped many of them to better living conditions. She was a friend to the needy of all races, as many can testify out of a grateful experience.

For years she was a regular visitor at the jail and the county home. She was a charter member of the local chapter of the U. D. C., and the veterans who wore the gray were not strangers to her thoughtful care.

She was a liberal patron of various forms of community service and welfare work. Nor did she fail to hear the Macedonian call from across the seas. She thoroughly believed in the great Foreign Mission enterprise of the Church and gave it her generous support.

But those who knew her best will always think of her first in her home, as wife, mother, hostess and friend. It was a Christian home that she made. At the time of their marriage she and her husband established the family altar, and after his death she maintained it as long as she lived. The Bible was an open book in her home, and to her it was a daily guide and comfort.

All ministers were welcomed in this home as honored guests, and the "prophet's chamber" was in constant use. The pastor of her church was made to feel that he was more than a guest, and almost a member of the family.

Her daughter says of her: "She was a most unselfish mother, and no sacrifice seemed too great for those she loved." Such homes of Christian faith and truth are the mightiest bulwarks of our land, and the clinging memories of such lives are the richest heritage of sons and daughters.

"Happy he
With such a mother!
Trust in all things high
Comes easy to him, and tho he trip and fall,
He shall not blind his soul with clay."

Mrs. Watkins is survived by eight children: Mr. W. T. Watkins, Mrs. Carroll V. Singleton, Mr. Edwin G. Watkins, Mr. Alex. S. Watkins, and Mr. Irvine B. Watkins, of Henderson, N. C.; Mr. Samuel Watkins, of Apex, N. C.; Mr. Harry Watkins, of Memphis, Tenn.; Mrs. Paul Cummings, of Reidsville, N. C.; and by 14 grandchildren. Also by two sisters, Misses Jennie and Elizabeth Cheatham and one brother, Dr. Goode Cheatham.

Of all the thoughts of God that are Borne inward unto souls afar,
Along the Psalmist's music deep,
Now tell if that any is

For gift or grace surpassing this—
He giveth his beloved sleep.

And friends, dear friends, when it shall be
That this low breath is gone from me
And round my bier ye come to weep,
Let one most loving of you all say,
"Not a tear must o'er her fall—
He giveth His beloved sleep."

Contributed by Rev. J. H. Henderlite, D.D.

MRS. CATHERINE BAKER COLE

At her home, near Sanford, N. C., Mrs.

Catherine Cole passed away quietly on the 4th of March, 1923. She was born near Buffalo Church, April 25, 1841. At an early age she united with this church and continued a faithful member during her long life.

On January 2, 1866, she was married to G. B. Cole, who was an elder of the church and for many years the superintendent of the Sunday School. At the death of her husband a son was selected to succeed him in both of these offices, and in other ways has the church been blessed in the services of this family.

One son and three daughters are left to cherish the memory of a Christian mother. A Friend.

Distinctive Features About Davidson College

1. Standard A Grade College—no professional work, no short cuts.
2. One of the most beautiful campuses in the South, developed in accordance with an outlined plan.
3. Draws students from nineteen southern states—enrollment 550—270 coming from without the state of North Carolina—student body limited.
4. Careful supervision over individual student.
5. Distinctive college spirit—clean, manly, wholesome—the admiration of visitors.
6. Wholesome studying conditions; satisfied student body.
7. Only one man in college not member of some evangelical church.
8. One hundred men looking forward to whole-time Christian service.
9. Majority of students participate in athletics, literary societies and other college activities.
10. 7,687 people contributed to recent building fund.
11. Two new four-story, fire-proof dormitories built last year, another going up now. New central heating plant just completed.
12. Not more than two students to the room.
13. On June 5th 460 reservations for next year had been made and protected by $10.00 deposit.

For a Place Next Year Appy Now!

Davidson College

Davidson, N. C.

Invested Endowment	$610,000
Plant and Equipment (50 buildings)	605,000
Current Fund Assets	42,000
Annual Budget	200,000

NORTH CAROLINA STATE COLLEGE

OF AGRICULTURE AND ENGINEERING STATE COLLEGE STATION RALEIGH, N. C.

Technical Education at State College prepares its graduates for personal success and for leadership in industrial progress. The college offers

FOUR YEAR COURSES IN:

Agriculture—including General Agriculture and Specialized Courses in Farm Crops, Agricultural Engineering, Animal Husbandry and Dairying, Biology, Horticulture, Poultry Science, Soils, Veterinary Medicine, Vocational Education.
Chemistry, Agricultural Chemistry, Textile Chemistry and Dyeing.
Civil Engineering, Architecture and Highway Engineering.
Electrical Engineering,
Mechanical Engineering,
Textile—Textile Engineering, Textile Manufacturing, Textile Chemistry and Dyeing.
Agricultural Economics, Business Administration, Rural Life.
General Science, Physics, Biology.

TWO YEAR COURSES IN:

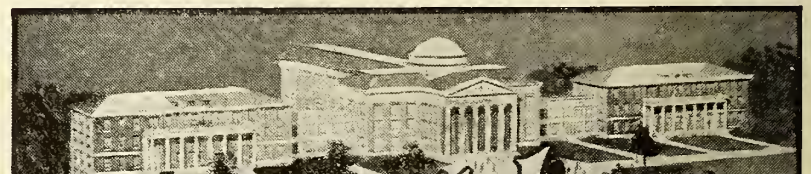

Agriculture, Mechanic Arts, Textile Manufacturing.

One Year Course in Auto Mechanics.

Winter Course in Agriculture for Farmers.

Summer Session for Teachers, for College Entrance and for College Credit. Excellent equipment in all departments. Session 1923-1924 begins September 4. Entrance requirements for Freshman Class, 15 units—English, 3; History, 2; Mathematics, 2½; Science, 1; Elective, 6½.

For catalog, illustrated circulars, and entrance blanks, write E. B. OWEN, Registrar.

Stonewall Jackson College

ABINGDON VIRGINIA

A JUNIOR COLLEGE FOR YOUNG WOMEN

LOCATION: In the fine old town of Abingdon, on a beautiful fifty-acre campus, commanding a magnificent view of the mountains.

BUILDINGS: Modern new dormitories, accommodating 175 students, every room with bath and plenty of sunshine. New $90,000 Dormitory just completed. Administration Building costing $150,000, in course of construction.

COURSES: Standard Literary, leading to A. B. diploma; preparatory for College entrance. Special courses in Music, Art, Expression, Home Economics and Business.

STANDARDS: A school emphasizing Christian Culture and Character. A home life amid beautiful surroundings is the ideal of Stonewall Jackson. Under control of the Presbyterian Church.

For Literature, address FRED W. ALEXANDER, President

Protestant Christianity in Europe Faces Death

From every Authoritative Source we learn that the Reformed Churches in Europe must have help from the American Churches or perish.

Through the Permanent Committee of our Assembly on Protestant Relief comes this statement: "In fourteen countries of Europe the churches are fighting a battle for existence.

They are passing through the most critical period since the Reformation. Many of the churches and evangelical institutions cannot function without help. In some cases activities have already come to an end; in others the choice is either extinction or transfer to Roman Catholic or secular hands.

In Austria, Poland, and Hungary there is deep anxiety for the preservation of evangelical schools.

These churches and institutions need an annual budget for the next three years of $1,470,000.

If it is raised, it must come from the churches of America. Southern Presbyterians are undertaking to raise $80,000 toward this fund on the first Sunday in July.

July 1st, is our Day of Brotherly Love."

Our Assembly has changed the date for the Special Offering for this Cause from October to the First Sunday of July (or as near thereto as practical.)

The Christian Sabbath in America Must Fight For Its Life

The Organized Motion Picture Business, and Commercialized Sporting and Certain Business Interests are spending over $1,000,000 per year to break down our Christian Sabbath—the corner-stone of our Faith.

Eighteen Evangelical Churches have adopted the Lord's Day Alliance as the Agency for the concerted defense of the Christian Sabbath. Our Assembly has said: "The battle ground of the churches in the next ten years will be on the field of the Christian Sabbath."

Formerly the Lord's Day Alliance appointed a Sunday in June for a Special Offering. But our last Assembly, in an effort to reduce the number of extra appeals for money decided to put both the Lord's Day Alliance and Protestant Relief in Europe on the same day (THE FIRST SUNDAY OF JULY). We have reduced the number of Extra Calls from four to two (one in July and one in December).

IN THE EFFORT TO PROTECT THE CHURCHES FROM TOO MANY EXTRA CALLS THE ASSEMBLY NOW ASKS THE CHURCHES TO RESPOND TO THIS BY GIVING THESE TWO MOST DESERVING CAUSES THEIR FULLEST SUPPORT ON THE FIRST SUNDAY OF JULY.

The Assembly asks for:

Protestant Relief in Europe	$ 80,000
The Lord's Day Alliance	20,000
Total	$100,000

Churches or individuals may designate if they wish. All undesignated offerings will be divided between these two causes, 80 per cent. to the first and 20 per cent. to the second.

Make all remittances to Miss Margaret Vance, Treasurer, 154 Fifth Ave., North, Nashville, Tenn. (She will act as the Treasurer for both causes for our Assembly.)

By the change of plan in asking for offerings for these two causes; and by the nearness of the date upon which they depend, they will suffer unless our pastors and officers make a special effort to protect them.

The General Assembly's Stewardship Committee
Nashville, Tennessee

Two comfortable rooms, bath, and good meals at "Ferndale" Cottage, near Auditorium.

MRS. T. F. MARROW
MONTREAT, N. C.

ART GLASS
for Churches and Residences
Memorial Windows
Catalog and Special Designs
free on request
F. J. COOLEGE & SONS
ATLANTA, Ga.

THE NORTH CAROLINA COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

An A-1 grade college maintained by the State of North Carolina for the education of its young women.

Liberal courses leading to the usual degrees in Arts, Science and Music.

Equipment modern, including furnished dormitories, library, laboratories, literary society halls, athletic grounds, etc.

Fall term begins in September, Spring term in February, Summer term in June.

For catalog and other information, address.

JULIUS I. FOUST, President
Greensboro, N. C.

FISHBURNE MILITARY SCHOOL Waynesboro Virginia

44th year. In Blue Ridge Mountains. 1300 ft. altitude. Four hours from Washington. Prepares for universities and business life. Small classes and individual attention secured through faculty of one teacher for every ten cadets. New $250,000 fire-proof buildings. Swimming pool and all athletics. Rate $600. Annual Spring Encampment. For catalog write

Maj. Morgan H. Hudgins
Principal

R. O. T. C.
under U. S.
War Dept.

EXPERT KODAK FINISHING

Developing and printing by experts. Most beautiful work guaranteed at all times. Satisfaction or no charge. Developing 6 exposure rolls 10 cents, 10 and 12 exposure rolls 15 cents, film packs 20 cents per pack. Printing 1 5-8 by 2 1-2, 3 cents; 2 1-4 by 3 1-4, 4 cents; 2 1-2 by 4 1-2, 5 cents; 3 1-4 by 5 1-2, 6 cents. Quick delivery. Send one film to test our service

LIGONS DRUG STORE
Spartanburg, S. C.

ALL HEALING SPRINGS

In the Brushy Mountains of North Carolina, 1400 ft. elevation. Rates $12.50 to $17.50 per week. The place of "good eats," six miles west of Taylorsville, N. C., on State highway No. 75 from Statesville, N. C. to Lenoir, N. C. Only 40 miles to Blowing Rock, N. C. The finest mineral water and the most ideal climate in the temperate zone. Two large comfortable buildings with or without bath. Rooms full of windows or sleeping porches if desired. Capacity 125. The place for a real vacation. Fried chicken, country ham, the spice of life from the Brushy Mountains, with beans, potatoes, and corn fresh from the farm, and milk, butter and real hen's eggs. In the mountains and at a mineral spring. Hotel open June 1st. Write for particulars.

O F. POOLE, Proprietor
Taylorsville, N. C.

A GOOD INVESTMENT

Seventy-five dollars will pay the tuition of some worthy girl at Durant (Oklahoma) College next session, and help a Presbyterian institution maintain itself on the western "firing line." Can we count on you, your class, or your society? Write W. B. Morrison, President, Box 471, Durant, Okla.

THE WESTMINSTER TEACHERS' BUREAU SPECIALIZES

in securing Christian teachers, officers and helpers for schools, colleges and universities—private, public and denominational—and in helping trained, Christian teachers and helpers to larger fields of service. Write today, Henry H. Sweets, Manager, 410 Urban Building, Louisville, Ky.

It is not talking, but walking with God that gives a man the denomination of a Christian.

LET YOUR BOY START RIGHT

Under Christian influences military training, careful supervision and thorough academic instruction at

CARLISLE SCHOOL

A well-known preparatory school of high standards. Excellent dormitories, class rooms, gymnasium, infirmary, library and general equipment. Two academic courses offered. Total fee for year, $362.50. For literature, address W. C. DUNCAN, Headmaster, Bamberg, South Carolina.

FASSIFERN
A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

is situated on a plateau over two thousand feet above sea level and completely surrounded by the majestic Appalachian mountains, in the city of Hendersonville, N. C., far-famed for its year-round delightful and health-giving climate. Fassifern offers thorough preparatory courses both for entrance to colleges of highest rank and professional work. Teachers have A. B. and M. A. degrees from the following colleges and universities: Columbia University; Smith, Wellesley and Goucher Colleges; Tulane University. Next session opens September 26, 1923.

MISS KATE C. SHIPP, Principal :: HENDERSONVILLE, N. C.

Educate Your Boy Under Christian Influences

Safeguard his morals, start him in with high ideals and a sound foundation with a thorough course at the

Presbyterian College of South Carolina

Renowned for its Christian teaching, beautiful campus, modern buildings, strong faculty, excellent athletic teams, field and coach. R. O. T. C., high standard of scholarship. For catalogue and information, write—

Dr. D. M. DOUGLAS, President, :: Clinton, S. C.

THE LOUISVILLE PRESBYTERIAN THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
BRILLIANT FACULTY MODERN CURRICULUM

Situated in the heart of the institutional section of a great metropolis, with all the added advantages of these associated institutions

Write for particulars to JOHN M. VANDER MEULEN, President
109 East Broadway, Louisville, Ky.

STOP! LOOK! LISTEN!

There is danger ahead if you are not saving part of what you earn. The world is a hard place for those without money. There is no friend like "ready money" when sickness, or old age comes.

Be fair to yourself and family by taking Building and Loan share shares cost twenty-five cents per week and usually mature in 333 weeks. Net you 6 1/2 per cent at maturity.

NEW SERIES OPENS MARCH FIRST

MECHANICS PERPETUAL BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION

H. Wearn, President 207 N. Tryon St. CHARLOTTE, N. C. E. J. CAFFREY, Sec'y & Treas.

PEACE INSTITUTE
RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

For Young Women Established 1857

College Courses. Preparatory Courses for Standard College Requirements. Diplomas in Piano, Voice, Art, Expression and Home Economics. Commercial-Secretarial Course. Teacher Training Course. Specialists in all departments.

LULA B. WYNNE HALL, HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
MARY OWEN GRAHAM, President

Flora Macdonald College
Red Springs, North Carolina

Where the Spirit of SERVICE and LOYALTY Abounds

3,000 Alumnae engaged in 60 Occupations
10 Graduates "On the Firing Line"

Courses leading to A.B., B.S., B.M. Degrees

Catalog on Request Address the Registrar

SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY

Announces

REDUCED ROUND-TRIP RATES

to

Wrightsville Beach, N. C.,
and Other Resorts

From	to	Week-end
Charlotte, N. C. -----	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	$ 8.60
Lincolnton, N. C. -----	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	9.95
Shelby, N. C. -----	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	10.90
Rutherfordton, N. C. -----	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	12.05

Tickets on sale Fridays and Saturdays of each week, May 18th to September 2, 1923. Limited to reach original starting point Tuesday following date of sale.

Sunday excursion tickets Charlotte, N. C., to Wilmington, N. C., and return $4.50, good going on train No. 20 each Saturday night or train No. 14 each Sunday morning, returning not later than on train No. 19 following Monday morning.

Season tickets Charlotte, N. C., to Wrightsville Beach, N. C. and return $11.30, sold any day May 15th to September 30th, with final limit to October 31, 1923.

For sleeping car reservation or other information apply to ticket agent or address,

E. W. LONG
Division Passenger Agent
Charlotte, N. C.

The Old Testament teaches men to seek the Lord while He is near; the New Testament teaches them to seek Him because He is near.

GOOD POSITIONS

Paying fine salaries can be had for ambitious young men and women who complete our commercial and stenographic courses. Our aim this season is to enroll a very large number of such students who can be trained for high and responsible positions. Won't you be one to enroll? A postal addressed to us will bring you our catalog. Write for it.

DRAUGHONS BUSINESS COLLEGE
Knoxville, Tenn.

FOR GIFTS OF

Watches, Jewelry or Silverware

Write

JAMES ALLAN & CO.

THE JEWELERS

185 King St. Charleston, S. C.

67 years in business selling the best goods at the most reasonable prices

Memorandum packages sent upon receipt of satisfactory references

We prepay charges on all purchases

DAISY FLY KILLER

PLACED ANYWHERE ATTRACTS AND KILLS ALL FLIES. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient, cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Sold by dealers, or 6 by EXPRESS, prepaid, $1.25.

HAROLD SUMERS, 150 De Kad Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

MARY BALDWIN COLLEGE AND MARY BALDWIN SEMINARY

Established in 1842

For Young Ladies Staunton, Va. Term begins Septembr 6th. In Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. Unsurpassed climate, modern equipment. Students from 33 States. Courses: Collegiate, 4 years, A.B. Degree; Preparatory, 4 years. Music, Art, Expression, Domestic Science. Athletics—Gymnasium and Field. Catalogue.

TYPEWRITERS

New and Rebuilt

For Sale, Rent or Exchange

S. H. WILEY

Salisbury, N. C.

THE McCALLIE SCHOOL

Founded for Christian education, never more needed than today. Prepares boys for leading colleges and Government Academies. High academic standing. Small classes, individual attention. Military training. All athletics. Fine athletic field, and new concrete swimming pool.

Headmasters

S. J. McCallie, M. A., and J. P. McCallie, M. A., Ph.D. For catalog address The McCallie School Mission Ridge Chattanooga, Tenn.

School Desks, Opera Chairs, Folding Chairs, Kindergarten Chairs, Church Pews, School Supplies, Blackboards

Southern Desk Co., Hickory, N. C.

No matter where you live you can get six per cent on your money. Free from taxes, risk and worry. Amounts received from $50 to $5,000. Write for free literature.

SECURITY SAVINGS AND LOAN CO.

Assets - $1,011,288.30 F. W. DIXON, President - Birmingham, Ala.

NORFOLK SOUTHERN RAILROAD COMPANY

Passenger Schedules Effective January 28, 1923

Charlotte, N. C.

Daily Except Sunday as Shown Lv. 7:30 A. M.

Raleigh and intermediate points. Connection for Belhaven, Norfolk, and intermediate points.

For tickets, Pullman reservations and information address or apply to

J. K. POWELL, D. T. A. P. A. JENKINS, C. T. A.

THE MAPLE

You were so tall . . . so sturdy . . . Thick leaved . . . beautiful . . . Your branches lifted Against the clouds, And the shade of you Was cool along the grass . . .

He said you were too near the house; That you made the roof rot; That we needed more wood for winter.

What could I do? What could I answer him?

I said, "But it makes the kitchen So cool afternoons"— I couldn't tell him That I liked Looking up through your leaves At the sky: That the robins nested in you; That I watched your buds Opening, growing, Turning from green To red and yellow . . . I couldn't tell him I loved you, And have him laugh—

Now you are under the shed, Cut into stove lengths, Split and piled up to season.

How can I burn you? How can I, who have loved you, Go stuffing you into a stove To keep me warm, To cook my food? —Abigail Cresson, in New York Herald.

DON'T TAKE CHANCES

About one piano purchaser out of four gets perfect and permanent satisfaction from the instrument he buys. If you knew the Piano business you would understand why this is the case, for most pianos now-a-days are made to sell and not to endure. The average piano looks good at first, and for a while sounds well, but after a few years it begins to show its poor workmanship and inferior materials by a thin or metallic tone.

Why take chances when the Standard Piano Club absolutely insures your permanent satisfaction, and at a great saving in price? A guarantee of permanent satisfaction means nothing unless it is made by a permanent firm. Ludden & Bates, the Managers of the Club, are the oldest piano house in this section of America, and they have always guaranteed and given permanent satisfaction.

Their guarantee is as good as gold, that is why they were selected to conduct the Club.

Write for your copy of the Club catalogue and get acquainted with the greatest piano buying opportunity of the age. Address the managers, Ludden & Bates, Standard Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

College of

WILLIAM AND MARY

For Men and Women

Supported by the State of Virginia for the benefit of all the people.

Regular DEGREE COURSE and SPECIAL COURSES in Teacher Training, Pre-Medicine, Pre-Engineering, Home Economics, Law, Business Administration, etc.

Healthful location; students under splendid moral influence; four churches, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A. Sunday Schools, etc.

For particulars address:

COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY

Williamsburg, Virginia

H. L. Bridges Registrar J. A. C. Chandler President

BINGHAM MILITARY SCHOOL

ASHEVILLE, N. C.—"The Land of the Sky"

Has stood the tests of 130 years. Buildings one-story brick—for safety, sanitation and service. Each pupil carefully studied. Small classes allow individual attention. Ideal school life, of the simpler type, directed by men of ability and experience. R. O. T. C. Unit under U. S. Army officer. All forms of athletics. COL. R. BINGHAM, Supt. Emeritus. COL. S. R. McKEE, Supt.

BLUE RIDGE SCHOOL FOR BOYS
HENDERSONVILLE, N. C.

A select Home School for boys from 9 to 20 years old. Ideally located in healthful, invigorating climate conducive to study. A teacher for every 7 or 8 boys. Greatest stress laid upon teaching correct methods of study. On Accredited List. All branches of athletics. Total charge for session, September 18th to June 4th, $650. Summer term July and August. For Catalog, address,

J. R. SANDIFER, Headmaster, Hendersonville, N. C.

Largest and Most Modern Plant in the Carolinas

Charlotte Marble & Granite Works

R. E. SCOGGINS, Proprietor CHARLOTTE, N. C. W. 7th St. and Southern Railway

Oldest Largest Best

Phone 281

Queens College, Charlotte, N. C.

A High Grade Institution for the Education of Young Women

Christian Ideals constantly held before the Students; Christian Characters in the chair of each Department; Five Teachers with M. A. Degree; Two Teachers with Ph.D. Degree; Christian Atmosphere permeating the Student Body.

Location, the very best; Myers Park, Charlotte. Equipment rapidly reaching standard requirements. Curriculum equal to that of any institution in the State. Expenses very moderate indeed, considering advantages offered and work done.

Our Motto: "Christian Women for Christian Homes." Send us your daughter, support us in our administration and instruction, and we will return a thoroughly developed and fully refined Christian woman.

For catalogue and other information, write

WILLIAM H. FRAZER, President

Box 300

Charlotte, N. C.

Aberdeen & Rockfish Railroad

BETWEEN ABERDEEN AND FAYETTEVILLE

EAST BOUND			DISTANCE FROM ABERDEEN	STATIONS	DISTANCE FROM FAYETTEVILLE	WEST BOUND
Pass.	Local Freight	Pass.				Pass.	Local Freight	Pass.
DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY				DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY
NO. 14	NO. 22	NO. 38				NO. 41	NO. 21	NO. 15
7:00 pm	7:30 am	9:00 am	0	Lv. Aberdeen, Ar.	45	6:50 pm	3:50 pm	8:30 am
f 7:19 pm	s 8:15 am	f 9:16 am	5	Ashley Heights	40	f 6:35 pm	f 3:20 pm	f 8:12 am
s 7:28 pm	s 8:36 am	s 9:26 am	9	Sanitorium	36	f 6:26 pm	s 3:05 pm	s 8:02 am
f 7:34 pm	f 8:39 am	f 9:30 am	10	Montrose	35	f 6:22 pm	f 3:00 pm	f 7:58 am
f 7:46 pm	f 8:51 am	f 9:38 am	13	Timberland	32	f 6:13 pm	f 2:45 pm	f 7:48 am
8:00 pm	9:55 am	9:53 am	19	Rae ford	26	s 6:00 pm	s 2:25 pm	7:30 am
	s 10:13 am	f 10:08 am	24	Dundarrach	21	f 5:45 pm	s 1:25 pm
	f 10:21 am	f 10:15 am	26	Arabia	19	f 5:39 pm	f 1:15 pm
	f 10:40 am	f 10:29 am	30	Rockfish	15	s 5:25 pm	s 12:55 pm
	f 10:43 am	f 10:31 am	31	Hope Hills Jct.	14	f 5:22 pm	f 12:50 pm
	f 10:53 am	f 10:40 am	34	Fenix	11	f 5:13 pm	f 12:38 pm
	s 11:00 am	f 10:46 am	36	Clifton	9	s 5:08 pm	s 12:33 pm
	f 11:12 am	f 10:56 am	40	Skitto	5	f 5:00 pm	f 12:18 pm
	f 11:19 am	f 11:02 am	42	Owens	3	f 4:55 pm	f 12:11 pm
	11:30 am	11:15 am	45	Ar. Fayetteville Lv.	0	s 4:45 pm	12 noon

East and North bound trains have right of track over West and South bound trains of the same class. All trains stop on flag at Lake field.

Mitchell College

(JUNIOR)

(Founded 1856 by Concord Presbytery)

Two years of standard, accredited college work—courses leading to Baccalaureate degrees—Excellent department of Music—Certificate courses in Home Economics and Secretarial.

MITCHELL ACADEMY

An accredited High School, with standard and flexible courses

Bible teaching emphasized throughout.

Teacher Training courses for secular and Sunday Schools.

Catalog on application.

W. F. Hollingsworth, Pres.
Statesville, N. C.

BOILS

Old Sores, Cuts and Burns have been healed since 1820 with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 724 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Why Take Laxatives?

Discovery by Science Has Replaced Them.

Pills and salts give temporary relief from constipation only at the expense of permanent injury, says an eminent authority.

Science has found a newer, better way—a means as simple as Nature itself.

In perfect health a natural lubricant keeps the food waste soft and moving. But when constipation exists this natural lubricant is not sufficient. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

As Nujol is not a medicine or laxative, it cannot gripe and, like pure water, it is harmless and pleasant.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals. Get a bottle from your druggist today. (adv.)

Sparkles

Heloise arrived at last with a pot of alleged coffee. She poured out a cupful of this liquid, and then began to manufacture a little polite talk.

"Looks a bit like rain, sir," she remarked conversationally.

"Er—yes," he answered gloomily, regarding his cup. "But it has a faint smell of coffee."—Continent.

After much excitement the Smiths had at last managed to catch the train.

Now, when they could sit quietly for a while, they began to wonder if they had left anything behind.

Mrs. Smith gave a shriek.

"Oh, Harry," she gasped, "I forgot to turn off the electric iron!"

"Don't worry, darling," he replied, "nothing will burn. I forgot to turn off the shower bath."—Ex.

"Is your wife happier since she got the vote?"

"Of course," replied Mr. Meekton. "But I want to tell the government that if it expects to keep Henrietta interested in the ballot, it'll have to see that the people she votes for are elected, every time."—Ex.

Doctor—"Allow me to congratulate you, sir. You are father of triplets."

Politician—"Impossible! I demand a recount."—American Legion Weekly.

The Height of Cunning

Rats are certainly cunning. They have destroyed all the copy for a rat poison that was to be advertised in this paper.—Paola (Kan.) Republican.

FOR RENT—Six rooms in pleasant country home, comfortably furnished for light house-keeping. One mile from Black Mountain; half-mile from Y. M. C. A. Assembly Grounds at Blue Ridge; easily accessible to Montreat and Ridgecrest. Just off paved highway to Asheville.

A. G. RANDOLPH
Hendersonville, N. C.

From a Schoolgirl's Essay

"Today I have seen a most wonderful sight—a pond whose shallows are full of black tadpoles. Just fancy, some day every one of those horrid, wriggling things will be a beautiful butterfly." A fact.—Morning Post.

All They Can

Stranger—"Rastus, do the people who live across the road from you keep chickens?"

Rastus—"Dey keeps some of 'em, sah." —Tips and Topics.

The STIEFF TONE

Is famous with three generations of music lovers. It has never been duplicated. It is the expression of a passion for perfection that has actuated three generations of piano makers.

Chas. M. Stieff, Inc.,
Charlotte, N. C.
Please send catalogue and prices of Pianos.
Name _____
Address _____

CHAS. M. STIEFF, Inc.
Charlotte, N. C.

STIEFF PETIT GRAND
The smallest Grand Piano made that embodies all the essential qualities of the Concert Grand.

SEE HERE, BRETHREN

We advertise in but one religious paper, yet Methodist preachers predominate as to the clergy on our books. Now conducting a final test as to the value of a religious publication as an advertising medium. The argument stands against it.

THE MUTUAL BUILDING AND LOAN

Is the largest between Washington and New Orleans, and, we believe, the best in the U. S., but Presbyterian preachers don't seem to grasp these facts. Must we discontinue this ad? It's for you to decide, and that shortly.

JNO. R. PHARR,
President

E. L. KEESLER,
Secretary-Treasurer
Charlotte, N. C.

Opportunity Never Seeks

The man or woman without money. That is why you should save and steadily build up an account in a strong bank where the money will be ready for you when the right opportunity comes along. Your account will be welcome here.

Charlotte National Bank
Resources Over $5,000,000.00

BELK BROS. CO.

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Correct in every detail—appealingly pretty—easy to make because of the Special Guide for Cutting and Construction.

Pictorial Review Patterns for July
20c to 35c
None Higher

Dress 1131, 35 cents

WARNER'S CORSETS—To fit any form—Back or Front Lace.

KAYSER'S ITALIAN SILK LINGERIE—

KAYSER'S SILK HOSE—In all the New Colors and styles: Gordon-Van Raalte-Lehigh-Merrell & Burson Hose: $1.50 to $4.95 All Silk.

GLOVES IN LONGS AND SHORTS—In all the New Leading Shades—in Kids—Chamoisettes & Silks—Niagara made and Kayser's: 98c to $2.95

NEW SUMMER SWEATERS

IN FIBRE SILK—Mohairs and Fine Wool.
IN THE SLIP—Over and Tuxedo Styles from $1.95 to $12.50

WE HANDLE

HOME JOURNAL PATTERNS
PICTORIAL REVIEW PATTERNS

We carry the most extensive Stock probably in the State. Send us your Mail Orders on Patterns.

Some of the things you probably can't get else where as conveniently:—Fleishers Wool Yarns, in almost any Shade and Kind.

All kinds of Knitting Threads and Crotchet in Silks or Cotton.

A Home Journal Pattern

In SIZES
14 - 16 - 18
years

Voile and Lace are used in making model shown.

"The DeQuincey"—10-Piece Dining Room Suit, with 66-inch Buffet. In Two-Tone Walnut or Mahogany. $287.50. We prepay delivery charges to any point in North or South Carolina.

W. T. McCOY AND COMPANY, CHARLOTTE, N. C.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

A Religious Newspaper for the Family

Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.

Rev. J. R. Bridges, D.D., Charlotte, N. C., Editor

Rev. R. C. Reed, D.D., Columbia, S. C., Editor

Vol. LXIV

CHARLOTTE, N. C., LIBRARY DEPT. MAY 27, 1923

No. 26

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $3.00 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE
REV. W. L. BOGGS, Circulation Manager

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
BY PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY,
A. M. GRAY, Treasurer.

ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858.

Entered at the Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as second class matter

A Religious Newspaper for the Family, Devoted to the Interest of Christ's Kingdom as Represented by the Southern Presbyterian Church.

Address all communications, and make all checks payable, to the company, and not to individuals.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The label on the paper gives the date to which subscription is paid.

When change of address is desired, give the old and new address. When the date of the label is behind the date of this issue of the paper the label is a reminder that the subscription price is past due. When the date of the label is in advance of the date of this issue it is a receipt for the last subscription paid.

In accordance with the wishes of our patrons, the paper is discontinued only upon the written request of the subscriber. Arrearages must be settled in full at the same time, at the rate of three dollars a year.

No charge is made for the insertion of marriage and obituary notices of fifty words or less. For all over fifty words remit at the rate of one cent a word. Correspondents are requested to give the post office address of married couples when marriage notices are sent.

News items should be in our hands by Monday morning in order to insure their publication in the current issue.

CHANGE OF ADVERTISEMENTS

Advertisers who want their advertisements changed or want to insert new advertisements will please bring their copy to this office by Saturday. It is impossible for us to insert new advertisements or make changes for the current week at a later date.

Advertising rates furnished on application. The size and character of this paper indicate the size and character of its constituency. For reputable advertising there is no better medium for North and South Carolina and the most prosperous section of the South.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

EDITORIAL—
"The Arkansas Traveler"	1
They Asked for a Man, and They Gave Them a Stone	1
A Word of Warning	2
"We Rise to Explain"	2
CONTRIBUTED—
The Grace of Stewardship—By Rev. J. H. Jowett, D.D.	3
Findings of Conference of the Forward and Promotional Movements of the Denominations Under the Auspices of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America	3
Map of Wilmington Presbytery	4
The Home Mission Work of Wilmington Presbytery—By Rev. J. J. Murray	5
Independence Day—By Rev. I. Cochrane Hunt	5
The First Answer to "Why Not"—By Rev. H. F. Beaty	5
DEPARTMENTS—
Devotional	2
Woman's Auxiliary	6
Sunday School—By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.	7
Christian Endeavor—By Rev. J. G. Garth	7
Church News	8, 9, 10
News of the Week	10
Children	11
Marriages and Deaths	12
Advertisements, Etc.	12, 16

TREASURERS OF BENEVOLENT CAUSES

- Foreign Missions—Edwin F. Willis, 154 Fifth Ave., N. Nashville, Tenn.
- Home Missions, General Assembly's—A. N. Sharpe, 1522 Hurt Building, Atlanta, Ga.
- General Assembly's Training School—Geo. W. Call, Richmond, Va., Union Bank.
- Bible Cause—Gilbert Darlington, Bible House, N. Y.
- Christian Education and Ministerial Relief—John Stites, Fifth and Market Sts., Louisville, Ky.
- Publication and Sabbath School Work—R. E. Magill, 618 N. Sixth St., Richmond, Va.
- The General Assembly's Equipment Fund—T. R. Preston, Treasurer, Chattanooga, Tenn.

EDITORIAL

"THE ARKANSAS TRAVELER"

He finds conditions much improved in these latter days. The house that didn't leak when it didn't rain has been covered nevertheless. The roads which were so bad that no matter which fork you took, you would wish you had taken the other one, have been made passable, and some of them have been hard-surfaced. These are but symptoms of a general development of the whole state, so that now the Arkansas traveler can enjoy the same comforts that he had before crossing to the west side of the Mississippi. When he reaches Little Rock he will find himself face to face with a fine city, massive business blocks, towering skyscrapers, elaborate department stores, elegant churches, magnificent Federal buildings, and all other things in keeping. If he have a friend to take him for a ride, he can pass through miles of beautiful streets, across the Arkansas River on a concrete bridge that makes him think of the spans that unite New York and Brooklyn, and then out into a farming community that suggests peace and plenty. One thing the traveler will notice is that the farmers of Arkansas are defying the boll weevil. They are planting cotton by the square mile, and propose to fight for their rights to the last ditch.

From Memphis to Little Rock the country is flat and low. Excessive rains have put a large part of it under water. Even the cultivated fields are holding much more water than the crops need. Rice is the prevailing product. It and the Baptists have a monopoly throughout this moist district. Little Rock is on the edge of the highlands—west and north of the capital city, the country is rolling, and other crops and other sects flourish accordingly. Oil has been discovered in some sections of the state, and that has set many to boring with a big auger. There is nothing like oil to make people run things into the ground. Occasionally one bores a hole and a fortune squirts out over night. Then others bore holes and look in vain for a squirt. They have bored holes in their pockets, and henceforth are sadder if not wiser men.

Presbyterians are having the same trouble here that they have elsewhere. They have competitors that get there first, and fool the people into thinking that something else is just as good as Presbyterianism or a little better. Of course, those they do get are very choice, people of fine discriminating minds, but their number is distressingly small. However, the Presbyterians are not discouraged, and they are putting up a splendid fight. They are not wasting any ammunition on those that have been induced to accept a different brand of religion, even if it be a somewhat inferior article. When so many are still "led captive by the devil at his will," they find ample scope for waging an aggressive warfare with all the resources at their command. In the presence of a common foe, they gladly fight shoulder to shoulder with the other departments of the Lord's army. They are just now in the thick of a campaign for Christian Education. They have named $406,000 as their objective, and they propose to reach this objective by putting to the test the perseverance of the saints. This sum does not sound large since we have become accustomed to hearing millions named by other Synods. But the Synod of Arkansas is one of the smallest of the tribes of Israel, and relatively this is a large sum. To write that sum as their goal means a remarkable courage and a flattering confidence in the quality of their constituency. The city of Little Rock is booked for $100,000. The campaign for this amount was launched Friday evening at a "Blue Hue" banquet. This is the name chosen for the launching banquets which they are holding all over the state. The color does not indicate depression of spirit, does not signify that they have the "blues," but it proudly proclaims their loyalty to the old blue banner of Presbyterianism. They are true blues, and look with pride upon their flag.

Yesterday the pulpits of all the Presbyterian churches of the city were filled by leaders of this educational campaign. It was our privilege to hear Dr. Arthur G. Jones, President of Austin Theological Seminary, who occupied the pulpit of the Second Presbyterian Church, the church of which Hay Watson Smith is pastor. Unfortunately the day was rainy, and Dr. Jones had to shoot his buckload at sparrows. It was undoubtedly a buckload. The address was worthy of the great cause. After setting forth in clear, strong arguments the claims of Christian Education, Dr. Jones made a powerful, even a thrilling appeal to the Presbyterians to rise to the demands of the occasion. We are sure that if all the Presbyterians of Arkansas could feel the urge of this address there would be a glorious victory to celebrate at the close of the campaign. However, there is reason to believe that victory will be achieved. The mettle of the people has been put to the test in many of the smaller churches, and the result has been most reassuring. In Arkadelphia, for example, seven thousand was asked for, and the response was over eight thousand. Batesville raised $100,000, the same amount that is asked of Little Rock. This phenomenal record is due in no small measure to the fact that the only Presbyterian college in the state is located at Batesville. This intensified the local interest. But after all, such a showing for that small community testifies to the determined spirit of the Presbyterians to see that the enterprise shall not fail. It means much for the success of the movement that Governor McRea is chairman of the State Executive Committee and Mr. A. B. Banks, an elder of the Second Presbyterian Church, Little Rock, and one of the leading business men of the state, is chairman of the local committee.

We have met none of the Little Rock pastors except Hay Watson Smith. The one bit of news obtained from him in a momentary interview at the church was that he is expecting to leave this week for Europe. His health is not vigorous; but as a generous friend gives him the trip, there is not necessarily cause for alarm. In the circumstances a very slight indisposition would be a sufficient excuse, if indeed any excuse were needed.

THEY ASKED FOR A MAN, AND THEY GAVE THEM A STONE

At intervals in the past, and the practice still continues, the scientists and their followers who are generally non-scientists, have been engaged in trying to prove that the creation of man as given in Genesis is mythical, and that man evolved from the lower orders.

Instead of coming perfect from the hand of his Maker, as Genesis relates, he underwent a series of changes, passing from one degree of development to the next higher, till he reached the stage when he first appears in history.

To do this required a long series of ages, which of course threw into the discard the Bible account of his creation on the sixth day.

To support this theory they depended largely upon the testimony of prehistoric man as found written in bones, discovered from time to time.

Of course to the scientists the testimony of old bones is more convincing than the testimony of God's Word, so the result has been that they have generally ruled out the creation of man by the direct agency of God, and have finally decided that he was thus evolved.

Let us give them credit, however, for claiming to magnify God's power even in this roundabout method of creation.

Whenever we read these claims, however, we are reminded of Jehu, when he went to slay the descendants of Ahab, who said, "Come with me, and see my zeal for the Lord."

Not long ago their hearts were cheered by the discovery in Patagonia of a petrified skull which the all-knowing scientists said belonged to the tertiary period.

Here was another nail for the coffin in which they had placed the myths of Genesis, and the scientists used it for its face value.

Those of us who were old-fashioned enough to believe the word of God, which says that in the image of God made He man, were regarded as old fossils, while strong-minded men of science and those who bask in their shadow, swallowed without choking this new bone testimony.

This joy seems to have been premature, as it has since been discovered that the supposed skull is only a stone shapen like a skull.

How it received this peculiar shape is a mystery, though different theories may be advanced for it. It may have been the hard head of some prehistoric scientist of the tertiary period which was evolved from a stone, and by a lapsus of nature returned to its original element.

It is the same old story, coming to us like a thrice-told tale.

Truth crushed to earth is rising again. Genesis still stands, and the Church of God still teaches that man was made in God's image on the sixth day, and that when he was created, God pronounced him very good.

The fact that prominent scholars of Scotland and England think otherwise has no effect upon us who believe that all Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness.

A WORD OF WARNING

At the General Assembly in Montreat, the following paper was offered:

"Whereas, there exists in many parts of our country a spirit of unrest and unbelief in the great fundamental doctrines of historic Christianity, and

"Whereas, a number of teachers and ministers are teaching and proclaiming false doctrines, and leading a number of people from the faith of the Church; therefore,

"Be it resolved by this General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, that we express and declare our unwavering faith in the fundamental doctrines as of the personality and sovereignty of God the Father; of the Deity and Humanity of Jesus Christ our Lord; of His virgin birth, atoning death on the cross; of His resurrection from the dead and ascension into heaven, where He now sits, and from whence He will come to judge the world; of the Divinity of the Holy Spirit and the necessity of His work in conviction of sin and the regeneration of the soul; of our adherence to the divine inspiration of the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments, and that they are our infallible rule of faith and practice, as declared in the ordination vows of all of our ministers, elders and deacons, and that we deplore any teaching contrary to these as contained in the Standards of our Church; and that we direct our Presbyteries to safeguard these great doctrines, and nothing contrary to them be taught by our ministers."

If this paper had been offered by a man well known throughout the Church, one of the so-called leaders, it would at least have had respectful consideration, but such was not the case. It was presented by one comparatively unknown outside of his own Synod, where he is doing faithful work. The result was that it was laid upon the table, on the ground that there was no need for it, that our Confession to which every minister subscribes, sets forth all that this paper does, and therefore that any such action would be superfluous.

In an instant, before any explanation could be given, it was hustled out of sight, and thrown into the limbo of things forgotten.

Let us see if these wise men were right in their action.

This paper has two parts, one, an affirmation of our doctrinal belief, along the line where in every denomination men are denying many of these very facts, while the other part calls upon the Presbyteries to safeguard these doctrines and to see that our ministers teach nothing contrary to them.

While it may not be necessary to reaffirm our belief in the doctrines clearly set forth in our Confession of Faith, yet it may hearten those who in other churches are contending earnestly for the faith once for all delivered unto the saints, to know that this great Church of ours is standing shoulder to shoulder with them.

The second part, urging Presbyteries to safeguard these doctrines and to see that our ministers teach nothing contrary to them, is of tremendous importance.

To insist that there is no need for such a paper is either to betray indifference to true doctrine, or else great ignorance of what actually exists in our Church as in other churches, though, it may not be, in as great a degree. Our seminary professors, who do not touch very closely the every-day life of the ministry, may not know it, but we who are in close contact with every section of the church, know that there is among some of our ministers a certain sympathy with the progressive theology of the day, and that in one Synod at least no concealment is practiced.

To our mind this paper is too mild.

We love peace, but we prefer a heresy trial if it will check this evil in the beginning, rather than, for the sake of peace, see our Church honeycombed with error, and our testimony for our Lord weakened.

Of course such action would not be necessary if those whose views have changed since they subscribed to the Confession of Faith, would, like honorable men, confess the change and seek some church where they would be welcomed. Unfortunately, they are afraid to risk the loss of their stipend or else they seek notoriety, with the result that they stay where they are and daily break their ordination vows.

"WE RISE TO EXPLAIN"

When an editor has worked steadily through eight days of the Assembly, trying to follow the debates and to lose nothing that is said, he finds when he attempts, upon his return home, to give a connected account from his own mass of notes, that he is apt to make some blunders.

If he thinks more of his reputation than of the truth, he lets his account go as it is written, but if not, he confesses his mistake and tries to correct the record.

In our account of the Kentucky entanglement upon which the Assembly made a deliverance, we confused federation with organic union, when in fact they are entirely distinct.

In Kentucky they have organic union of two churches, each belonging to a different Presbytery, yet they become one church, have one session and send commissioners to both the Presbytery, U. S. A., and the Presbytery, U. S., to the Synod, U. S. A., and the Synod, U. S.

A federated church, on the other hand, is understood to be two churches worshipping and working together, each maintaining its own organization and its own denominational connection.

The case before the Assembly was that of two churches organically united, yet sending commissioners to Presbyteries and Synods of both Northern and Southern Assemblies.

In the debate the two terms became confused, and as federation was used oftener than the other term, it crept into our notes, hence our blunder.

We hasten to say that the Assembly satisfied the Muhlenburg Presbytery's complaint that such a united church was unconstitutional.

While we are explaining, let us also say that in our remarks upon the Presbyterian Foundation and the appointment of a committee for that work, we did not mean, as has been inferred, that this committee will have a separate chairman. We were only speaking of the complaint in general that having a secretary to each committee was unnecessarily increasing our overhead expenses.

THINGS THAT PASS

Life passes, riches fly away, popularity is fickle, the senses decay, the world changes, friends die. One alone is constant; one alone is true to us; one alone can be true; one alone can be all things to us; one alone can supply our needs; one alone can give a meaning to our complex and intricate nature; one alone can give us tune and harmony; one alone can form and possess us. Are we allowed to put ourselves under His guidance? This surely is the only question.—John Henry Newman.

Devotional

IN TOUCH WITH GOD

A customer rushes into a big store. His time is limited. While he is waiting for a clerk, he glances up at the wall and sees a clock. "Is that the correct time?" is the thought that immediately flashes through his mind. Then he notices some reading below the face of the clock—"Corrected Hourly by Naval Observatory." "Yes, that is the correct time," he says to himself, and he begins to breathe easier.

The clock that is corrected hourly is the clock that men have faith in. Also, the man who has a fixed habit of daily communion with God runs in harmony with God's plans, and so is dependable. To change the figure, the man who keeps in constant communication with headquarters, knows the policy of the corporation. He can be trusted to give authentic information.

The man who keeps in touch with the Infinite not only enjoys the confidence which others put in him, but he also delights in the pleasures that accrue directly from the close contact with the Source of power. The ancient poet had the same experience, and he expresses it in the words:

"In thy presence is fulness of joy;

In thy right hand there are pleasures forevermore."

This is the secret of the charmed life, and happy are they who find it.

It is remarkable how a man is able to adjust himself to the varied changes of his existence, because he continues in close connection with his Maker. Prayer enables him to have "a constant" midst of life's shifting scenes. It gives him a clue to the mystery that surrounds him, and shows him the silver thread that runs through the tangled skein.

A man can pray in joy and in sorrow, in defeat and in success, in discouragement and in optimism. He needs to pray when he is on the up end of the balance, just as much as he does when he is on the down end. If he is full of joy, he should pray that his joy be made full of the richness of heavenly bliss. If he is successful, he ought to pray to make sure that his success is eternal and lasting, and not temporal and perishable. If he is optimistic, he should pray that his optimism is grounded upon the great principles of Christ which make for a bright outlook on life—forgiveness of sins and the hope of glory.

There is nothing like being in touch with the Infinite to give poise and balance to life. Like poplar trees in the breeze, our human natures tend to sway this way and that with every wind of fashion that blows. We fear public opinion, and we sometimes nearly break our necks to be in style—in thought, word, and deed. Prayer keeps us sensitive to the norm by which we may regulate our lives. It helps us to know what is proper for those who would obey God and keep His commandments.

"I will bless Jehovah at all times," sang the Psalmist out of an experience that had taught him the blessedness of intimate fellowship with God. At all times he had sought Jehovah, and he had answered him, and delivered him from his fears.

We have been advised to pray without ceasing, to be importunate, to ask largely. God never tires of our entreaties. Sir Walter Raleigh once approached Queen Elizabeth with a request. On this occasion the queen asked, "Raleigh, when shall you stop asking for things?" "When Your Majesty stops giving," was the reply. As long as God is willing to give we should not tire in our prayer.

Talk about praying at all times and unceasingly may mean little, however, unless the connections with the Infinite are made habitual. Cultivate the morning watch. It was Jesus' custom to rise before the day began and go out to a solitary place and pray. The Master has set the example, and shall not the servants do well to follow in His footsteps? The days of youth are the habit-forming days, and no habit will bring in such large returns as the prayer habit.

An English writer urges his youthful readers to cultivate the habit of prayer: "You are heaven-born! You must touch heaven, and the contact will make you invisible, more than conqueror through Him who loves you—but never forget that He has said, 'Apart from me ye can do nothing.' Defeat and dishonor are sure unless the touch with God is constantly renewed."—David Page, in Forward.

I can not tell if peace or pain has in my life the larger part,

Or if the sunshine or the rain must glorify my heart;
I only know that for the blest there is a dawn no dark can hide,

And, when I reach that realm of rest, I shall be satisfied.

THE GRACE OF STEWARDSHIP

By Rev. J. H. Jowett, D.D.

There are three judgments in the matter of giving in which I hope we shall all be agreed. And the first judgment is this: we are apt to be gravely deceived about the extent of our beneficence, and we vastly exaggerate the amount of money we give away. The majority of people have no idea of the range of their beneficence. They do not know how much or how little they give in the course of a year. But the bias of their estimate is always on the side of generous judgment. The people who do not know how much they give always give less than they think they do.

The Paralyzing Power of Money

And the second judgment is this: there is a strangely paralyzing power about money, and it so restricts the heart that the more we get the less we are inclined to give. And this is surely what the Lord was meaning when He spoke of "the deceitfulness of riches." Riches can make a man think that he is growing bigger when all the time he is growing less. He estimates his size by the inlet of income, and not by the outlet of beneficence. While the inlet is expanding the outlet is contracting. But the deception is frequently more deadly still. His growth in riches is often accompanied by a corresponding growth in fear. It is one of the pathetic ironies of life that men who are growing in wealth have an increasing fear of poverty. And the fear puts them into bonds and they are afraid to give of their treasure lest none should remain.

I went to see a very wealthy man in New York to ask him to help an exceedingly noble cause. His fear immediately answered my appeal, and he spoke as one who was on the verge of poverty. "I really cannot give any more." The word was apparently sincere, and it was accompanied by a sort of sigh which confirmed its reality. "I really cannot give any more. What with one thing and another I do not know what we are coming to." Fear seemed to haunt the man. It determined his thought and his speech and his services. A few weeks later he died and his will was probated at over sixty millions. And I wonder. I wonder if at the end of the day he heard the messenger of the Lord saying unto him, "Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee, then whose shall these things be?"

Deafness to Necessities of the Soul

And the third judgment is this: that conscience in the matter of giving is apt to become less sensitive as the appeals come from the necessities of the soul. Many a man will give generously in response to a cry of material hunger who is numb to the cry of spiritual hunger. Many men will give a large contribution to relieve the hungry children in Eastern Europe who feel no urgency in the cry of those who are spiritually hungry in Mongolia or Tibet. They would hasten to succor a fainting body, but they are careless to the needs of a fainting heart.

What course can we follow to make beneficence a spontaneous issue in our life? First of all we must cultivate a sense of stewardship. We must cultivate the sense as assiduously as we have cultivated the sense of ownership and possession. A sense of stewardship is the recognition of the ultimate fountain of our life and strength; it is homage paid where homage is due. The Lord puts His homage very early in the prayer which He taught His disciples. All that we have is ours in trust; and we are to bow in homage before the Lord and say: "Not my will but Thine be done."

The Strategy of Method

We cannot fight the enemies of magnanimity and beneficence by thoughtless and spasmodic warfare. We must have a scheme of action. There must be method in the enterprise. We must have a plan of campaign. There must be some designed strategy if we are to overcome the deadly attacks of the grim army of selfishness and meanness. And I am sure that part of this same method must be the assignment of a certain proportion of our income to ministries of beneficence. This must not be less than a tenth. Even the Pharisee could boast of that attainment. "I give tithes of all that I possess." It was no dull virtue when compared with the general giving of the members of the Church of Christ. If we all followed the Pharisee's example, and gave a tenth of all that we possessed, the appeals which call to our beneficence would be met with overflowing wealth and sufficiency.

But I would advise young people who adopt the method of proportion not to dribble their tenth away in small and insignificant contributions. Let them go in sometimes for the giving of large sums. If you have ten pounds a year to give away, have the satisfaction now and again of giving a five-pound note to something. If you do it you will know the reason of the counsel. It seems a big sum, and it challenges your powers, and there is a bracing influence in the endeavor. The subsequent experience will give you the needful justification. It is like a fine drive at golf; it is a good send off and the lesser strokes will come in its train. And if you find, as the year goes by, the tenth is exhausted, you may take a dash past your tithe and break all your records. You will do it just to prove that you are not the victim of your own rule. It will be like a plunge into deep cold water, and you will emerge with a healthy glow, not the fever of silly pride, but the satisfaction of healthy manhood.

Contributed

Shall the Fountain Go to Sleep?

I confess I am very much concerned about this grace and virtue of beneficence in the Christian life and character. The generosity of our people during the war was manifold and amazing. Every appeal was met with fervor, and our folk were strengthened by the energies of their own beneficence. But beneficence which flows freely in days of conflict may dry up again in the quieter days of peace. The necessity may seem to be over and the fountain goes to sleep. That is one of our dangers.

And the other equally imminent danger is this: We are surely living in a day of extravagance. There are signs of wasteful and even prodigal squandering on every side. Think of what is being spent in pleasure. Look at the crowded theatres and the movies with their long waiting queues. I do not object to these things, and I appreciate the reasonable reaction after all the strain and the fear and the terror of the last five years. But it is unhealthy when we spend a large proportion of our income on amusement and have no reserve to meet the demands of noble necessity. Professedly Christian people give more money to see performances in a cinema than they give to the cause of God's kingdom. I do not attribute this lack of beneficence to meanness, or to a stinginess which locks up its resources; it is explained by want of thoughtfulness, and by lack of method, and conscience, and piloted devotion.

The constraints which ought to move us are great and manifold. There are the needs themselves. Let us direct our thoughts and our imagination to play about the realms of necessity. And then let us walk with Jesus Christ. Let us talk with Him. Let us ask for His counsel. Let us hear what He has to say about things. Let us consult Him about this and that, and the other, and our hearts will burn within us as He talks with us by the way. His own example will be our abiding constraint. When we follow the young Prince of Glory from His throne to His Cross the springs of sacrifice are unsealed in our own hearts, we have the fellowship of His sufferings, and in the realm of beneficence we become ready and cheerful givers.

FINDINGS OF CONFERENCE OF THE FORWARD AND PROMOTIONAL MOVEMENTS OF THE DENOMINATIONS UNDER THE AUSPICES OF THE FEDERAL COUNCIL OF CHURCHES OF CHRIST IN AMERICA

Baltimore, April 24-26, 1923

Representatives of the following Forward and Promotional Movements of the denominations:

General Board of Promotion of the Northern Baptist Convention.

Forward Movement of the Christian Church.

Congregational Commission on Missions.

United Christian Missionary Society of the Disciples.

Centennial Movement of the Churches of God.

Department of Nation-Wide Campaign of the National Council of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

Forward Movement of the Evangelical Church.

Forward Movement of the Evangelical Synod.

Forward Movement of Friends in America.

Committee on Conservation and Advance, Methodist Episcopal Church.

Centenary Movement of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Forward Movement in the Methodist Protestant Church.

Larger Life Movement of the Moravian Church.

New Era Movement of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A.

Progressive Program of the Presbyterian Church, U. S.

Progressive Campaign of the Reformed Church in America.

Forward Movement of the Reformed Church in the U. S.

New Forward Movement of the Seventh Day Baptist General Conference.

United Enlistment Movement of the Church of the United Brethren in Christ.

New World Movement of the United Presbyterian Church—have met in joint conferences on five occasions during the past two years under the auspices of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America. The status, problems and achievements of these movements have been considered at these two- and three-day conferences.

At the last conference, held April 24-26, at Baltimore, the representatives present from the various movements adopted and recorded as their earnest convictions the following resolutions:

1. That the constant objective of all forward and promotional work is to develop and strengthen the whole normal work of the individual church by the larger enlistment of life and possessions for the service of the Kingdom of God. The success of all such efforts depends upon the voluntary response made by the individual churches to the suggested programs and methods, offered not with any coercive authority by official groups but as the best experience gathered from the Church at large and to be adapted to conditions of wide variation.

2. That we gratefully recognize the development of forward and promotional work from a temporary basis for special objectives to a permanent basis for the sustained work of the Church through officially established and properly co-ordinated agencies.

3. That foremost in all forward and promotional work must be the cultivation of the ideals of stewardship of life and possessions, emphasizing by group study, conferences and preaching, the following principles of stewardship:

God is the owner of all; we are His stewards and must account for all that we have; God requires acknowledgment of His ownership by giving a definite proportion of our income for His service; we should use all of the rest—what we spend and what we save—in ways that are pleasing to God.

We joyfully recognize in the churches a broadening conception of stewardship to include the administering of time and talent as well as money, interpreting all of life in terms of partnership with God; also, in business circles, a growing sense of trusteeship, regulating the acquisition as well as the use of wealth. We believe that, in the administration of time, talent and money according to the teachings of Christ, will be found the key to the baffling social, national and international problems of our time.

We believe that pastors should feel it not only an obligation but a privilege to present the ideals of stewardship as a vital part of the Christian Gospel and as essential both to deepening the spiritual life and to meeting tremendous world needs.

4. That we are encouraged by the discovery, made in the many conferences held under the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, that in our plans for expanding the resources of the Church, we have undergone substantially the same developments and arrived at practically the same conclusions for further work.

We deeply appreciate the services of the Federal Council in thus bringing us together and desire to inform our several constituents of the general agreement as to program and methods, and the remarkable results achieved thereby.

5. That the advantages of the budget system should be carefully considered by all local churches, and that, when adopted, there should be a thorough-going plan for effectively interpreting the greatness and the significance of the whole task for which the combined budget stands.

6. That the adoption of the budget system in the local church should not be allowed to diminish the public presentations of the missionary and benevolent work of the churches for purposes of education. We find an almost universal desire that there should be greater cultivation of interest and extension of information among the membership by the several causes included in the budget.

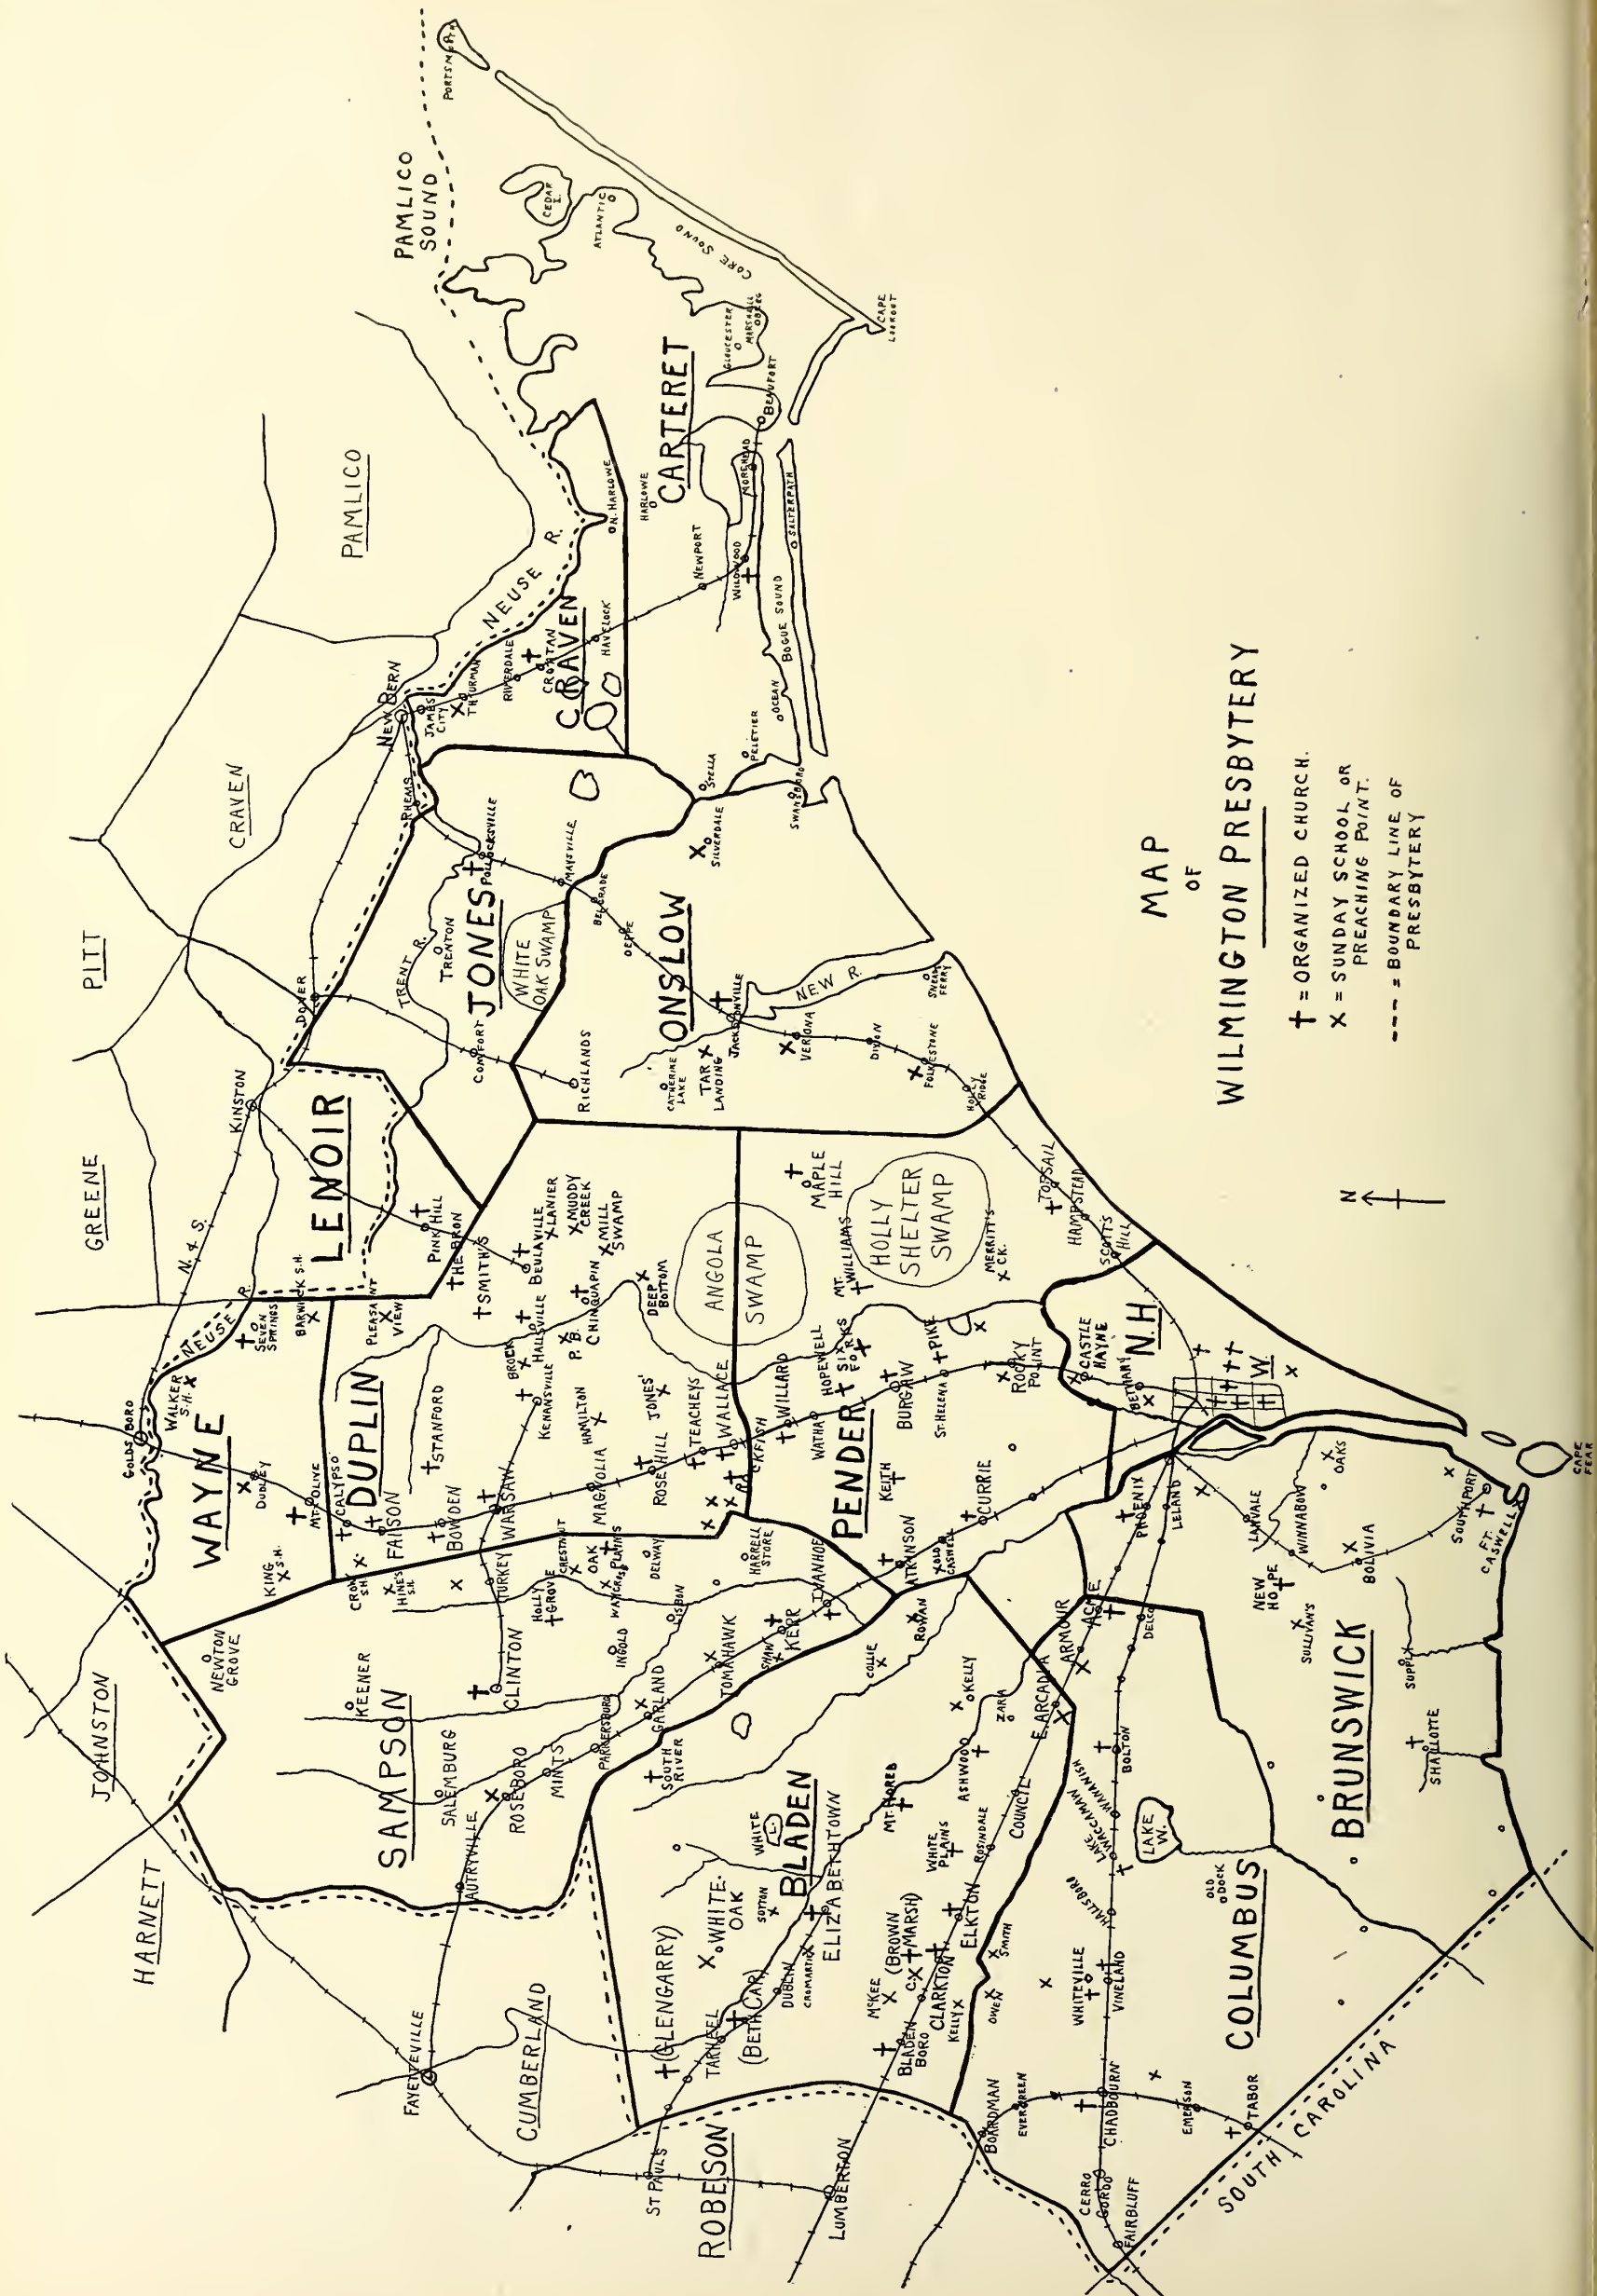

7. That we recognize the necessity for appeals to the general Christian public, including our constituencies, for funds to meet special needs to which it is impossible for Christians to close their hearts; and feel that it is unwise for pastors or finance committees to promise that if quotas are subscribed no other appeals for funds will be made during the year. At the same time, we express our earnest conviction that no local church should allow such appeals to prevent it from meeting its full obligation for the work carried on by the responsible agencies of the denomination. Caution should be exercised not to appropriate funds raised under the budget system for definite objects to causes not included in the benevolent budget.

8. That we deem it desirable to have from the various philanthropic and benevolent organizations, financial statements of gifts received from our constituent churches.

9. That we earnestly commend the ideal of "as much for others as for ourselves." We reaffirm our belief that the spirituality of our congregations is very definitely involved in the practice of this principle. We rejoice in all the enterprises of expansion in the individual churches, such as the building of splendid edifices. Nevertheless we believe that the Church should not only be strongly enlisted in the building of churches but should also go forward in the building of the Church.

10. That, side by side with the development of the budget system, efforts should also be systematically continued to cultivate the interest and generosity of large givers towards especially designated objects. The several phases of the work of the Kingdom demand the continued enlistment of men and women who can and will

(Continued on page 5)

MAP
OF WILMINGTON PRESBYTERY

- † = ORGANIZED CHURCH.
- X = SUNDAY SCHOOL OR PREACHING POINT.
- = BOUNDARY LINE OF PRESBYTERY

THE HOME MISSION WORK OF WILMINGTON PRESBYTERY

By Rev. J. J. Murray

At the meeting of Synod last fall, at Lincolnton, Rev. A. W. Crawford told again the story of the great wave of home mission enthusiasm that has swept over the Presbyterian Church in North Carolina in the last decade, and showed us how from that home mission movement our Church is growing faster today than any other denomination in the state. That enthusiasm came early to Wilmington Presbytery, and we have had our share in that growth. The coast country was not naturally Presbyterian territory. The country along the Cape Fear, in Bladen County, the Black River and South River section, and a part of Duplin County were settled by Presbyterian people. With these exceptions the territory of Wilmington Presbytery was not ours by inheritance. But even in the early days there was an aggressive spirit among some of our leaders, and in the last 20 years, first under the leadership of Dr. McClure, and then under that of Dr. Wells, the work of evangelism and church extension has been vigorously pushed. The Southern Presbyterian Church can show no finer example of church planning for a city than the work done in Wilmington. Colonization has been encouraged unselfishly by the stronger churches, and every section and suburb of the city is supplied with a Presbyterian church. And it has been the plan of the Home Mission Committee to enter in the same way every unoccupied section throughout the whole Presbytery. Our primary aim is to take care of the untouched rural districts, and after that to enter the towns where we have no work.

The following table prepared by Dr. J. M. Wells shows something as to the growth of the Presbytery under this movement:

	1900.	1920.	Increase.
Churches -----	48	64	33%
Ministers -----	15	25	66%
Added on Profession --	160	389	143%
Added by Letter -----	70	282	300%
Membership -----	3,412	6,317	85%
S. S. Enrollment -----	2,063	4,613	123%

Since 1920 the membership of the Presbytery has increased over 10 per cent and the Sunday School enrollment is now larger than the resident membership.

The accompanying map shows the territory of Wilmington Presbytery. It covers the southeastern corner of the state and comprises ten counties and parts of three others: New Hanover, Brunswick, Columbus, Bladen, Pender, Duplin, Sampson, Onslow, Jones, Carteret, and part of Wayne, Lenoir and Craven. To cover this territory we have 67 organized Presbyterian churches and 62 outpost points for preaching and Sunday School Work. There is no county in the Presbytery without a Presbyterian church, though Onslow, Jones and Carteret have only one church each for the entire county, and in Craven and Lenoir there is only one church in the section of each county that we are responsible for. To man this work we have a force (when the fields are all supplied) of 14 workers in the fields; the Sunday School missionary, Mr. J. M. Harvey; and the superintendent of Home Missions, Rev. J. J. Murray. We also use during the summer a force of from four to six seminary and college students.

Wilmington Presbytery is a Home Mission Presbytery. Two-thirds of our churches are in groups where the pastor gets part of his support through the Home Mission Committee. There are many districts in our territory as yet unoccupied by us or any other denomination, as will be seen in the statements made later on about the survey. There are in Wilmington Presbytery about 65,000 people over 10 years of age who are not members of any church. That means nine or ten unreached persons for every Presbyterian we have. And there are something like 100,000 people who are not in any Sunday School.

There is not space to speak in detail of the opportunities that lie before our Church in this part of North Carolina. An example or so must do.

1. Eastern Duplin—In the eastern part of Duplin County, across the Northeast River, we have one of the biggest Home Mission openings there is in the state. It is a section thickly settled by small farmers and home owners, developing rapidly in a commercial way, but poorly churched and without sufficient moral and spiritual leadership. Our Church has a strong hold and possesses the confidence and respect of the people. There is a big evangelistic opportunity, literally hundreds of people out of the church for us to reach. And we have just as great a chance for constructive church and community building. We have organized churches at Chinquapin and Beulaville, and an unlimited number of openings for mission points. A handsome church building has just been completed at Beulaville, and a manse is under construction at Chinquapin. Rev. J. M. McBryde is the pastor in this field.

2. Onslow County—We have only one church in this county, and the territory is not at all covered by other denominations. It is less churched than any county in this section, and 53 per cent of the people are not members of any church. The work of a summer student, Mr. E. A. Woods, opened up some six or eight points where there is need for us to work; and it is the purpose of our committee to locate a man at Jacksonville as a county evangelist as soon as the proper man can be secured.

It is the development of Congregational Home Mission work in our Presbytery that gives us most cause for pride. We have in the Presbytery 62 active outpost points—almost as many as we have organized churches. At 44 of these Sunday Schools are conducted, and there is regular preaching at 48 of them. The Clarkton Church is an outstanding example of this kind of work, with its five outpost points. Old Rockfish Church has three Sunday Schools in its congregation. Wilmington First Church has four outside points under its care; there are four in the Chinquapin congregation. Several of our pastors have three and four points in addition to their organized churches. Our Sunday School Missionary, Mr. Harvey, has been a great force in the development of this kind of work. Our Presbytery has averaged a new Sunday School per month since he came to us, and our Sunday School enrollment has increased by a third.

Last summer our committee made a careful survey of our territory. The object of this survey was to seek to determine accurately the amount of work for which we are responsible, the number of points which we should enter, and the number of workers required to fully occupy our territory as it now stands and in so far as we are responsible. Our aim is to enter every community in our bounds which is not being reached by some other church. We find that there are some 50 communities where we should begin work, communities where no church is working, and that to do this will require a force of 10 additional workers.

This Presbytery covers one of the finest undeveloped sections in the South, with an easy climate and fertile soil, rich in agricultural possibilities, adapted to trucking and diversified farming. With barely 10 per cent of the soil under cultivation in some of the counties, it presents an opportunity that is being sought by many people from the sections that are thickly settled and where the price of land is high. This section is developing rapidly in an economic way. Settlers are moving in, good roads are being built, health conditions are improving, schools are being consolidated and school systems perfected. And now it is for the Church of Christ to provide the fundamental need by winning the people to Christ and building them in Christian service. And it is the earnest purpose of Wilmington Presbytery to do its part in meeting this great opportunity.

INDEPENDENCE DAY

The Montreat Assembly decreed a new Declaration of Independence and set July the First for equipping its Army of Defence. This declaration was written for the Christian Sabbath and against the predatory interests which for sordid greed are striving to commercialize the day out of its very existence.

Our army of defence was created 33 years ago, but has never been completely organized and is utterly lacking in equipment. Yet it has done valiant service and has received the hearty commendation of the Assembly for its fidelity and success. Its campaign plans were approved at Montreat and the Assembly called upon the membership of its churches to provide $20,000 on July the first for organization work.

This army of defence is very properly called the Lord's Day Alliance because it is the alliance of the Protestant Churches of America (eighteen of them) to defend the Lord's Day.

The Assembly would, by its action, call the attention of its churches to the fact that this work is vital; vital to the home, the Church, and the Christian State. The enemy has won much valuable ground and is strongly entrenched. Its army of offense is numerous, perfectly equipped and directed by the most subtle strategy ever known to warfare. It comprises the motion picture and theatrical interests; the International Sporting Club; the American Amusement Corporation; organized baseball; the Sunday newspapers; besides numerous public service corporations and thousands on thousands of other businesses. The aggregate capital of these predatory interests mounts into the billions of dollars; they command the best legal and political talent in America; their supreme purpose is to denature Sunday for the sake of gain.

Our army of defence can win, for God is with us. One and the Almighty make a host, but His demands are that we constitute the one. The time is short; the need is urgent; next year may be too late; five years hence certainly will be far too late. If pastors will not make a special plea for the defence of the Lord's Day; if sessions will not order a special offering for this cause, in the light of the mass of irrefutable evidence of the enemies' accomplishments and present purpose, then where shall God look for an adequate defence of His day?

Our plans are complete and have the hearty approval of the Assembly; our work is halted for the lack of means; we need every dollar of the Twenty Thousand asked by the Assembly, and we need it now. Our sister churches are with us in the line of march; they stand with us for independence of predatory greed; they want the encouragement which your leadership has always been to them.

This is a big task and it cannot be done in a small way. Better to quit than to trifle with it; better to surrender the most prized possession of our faith than to merely play with the sacred responsibility and privilege of its defence. Twenty-five hundred dollars, received last year from one hundred and fifty churches is merely playing with the issue and can command no respect either from our allies or enemies.

July the First is truly Independence Day, when Southern Presbyterians will assert and prove their independence of predatory greed; rally to the war cry of the Church and provide ample funds for equipping their army of defence. It is, too, as Dr. Vance has so well said of his own great cause, before the Church at the same time, "Brotherly Love Sunday," and, if we truly love our brethren upon whose brows greed is pressing the iron crown of Sunday labor, we will respond as minute men of God and pour out of our abundant means to right this abominable wrong.

With the enthusiastic authority of the Assembly I make the plea that every church be found on the firing line of duty and of service on July the First and provide a liberal offering for our Army of Defence.

I. Cochrane Hunt, Southern Secretary,
The Lord's Day Alliance of the U. S.

Nashville, Tenn.

FINDINGS OF CONFERENCE

(Continued from page 3)

give large amounts and these can and should be secured only where the heart of the giver is first enlisted in consecration to a concrete cause or institution. The two methods of the unified budget and of special individual gifts involve no essential conflict and we especially commend efforts to preserve the balance between them.

11. That we recognize with great satisfaction the increasing adoption by local churches of a well thought-out program of publicity and advertising, supported by an item in the congregation's budget. We believe that such publicity should be used not simply as a means for announcing certain activities but as an evangelistic and educational agency for reaching those now outside all the churches with some message concerning Christ and the Church. We believe also that care should be exercised to see that all publicity methods are in keeping with the inner meaning and true spirit of Christianity.

12. That we rejoice in the increasing activity and interest of laymen in the work of the Kingdom. There seems to be a clearly recognized responsibility on the part of many denominations for the education and training of their laymen through congregational men's organizations, denominational congresses and other forms of appeal. We would commend this form of activity with the reminder that there is ever an oncoming generation whose interest and activity dare not be taken for granted.

THE FIRST ANSWER TO "WHY NOT"

By Rev. H. F. Beaty

The call for funds for a Boys' School had hardly been written before the first answer was sent. From where? Seffner, Fla. Now you will not find it in the Assembly's and Presbytery's records, for it is neither a church nor a Sunday School. In fact there are only a few Presbyterians in the place. But there is a godly Presbyterian home where the father and mother, like Aquilla and Priscilla, make it their business to "expound the Presbyterian way" to all who will hear. Even though they could not have a church nor Sunday School, Mrs. Sale organized a Woman's Auxiliary that contained fewer Presbyterians than of other denominations. It is this body of women that gave the first $10 for the Boys' School, and added a contribution for the support of the regular work at Ybor City.

But did they not make a mistake? The contribution at this time was for a girls' school in Texas. No, they gave first to the boys, and then did better for the girls. In fact, I have not heard of any society or organization that has given as much per member and ability as these of Seffner gave for the Girls' School in Texas. If all do half as well, that school is assured. And if all in Florida will do as well for the boys, we will be able to meet a distressing cry for help. Shall we save the boys or build prisons for them? Today I saw a policeman with a 15-year-old boy, guilty of robbery, but we are guilty of the crime of neglect unless we strive to save them. I am starting the school, counting on you. Here are treasures buried in a field . . . who will buy the field—support the work? $5.00 a month will save a boy. Who will hear the call?

951-11th Ave., Ybor City, Tampa, Fla.

Woman's Auxiliary

Conducted by Mrs. J. M. McIver, Gulf, N. C.

Chibley, Fla.—The Mexican fiesta, held on the lawn of the Presbyterian Church, Monday afternoon of the past week, was a pleasing event of the week and presented eight girls in Mexican costume who came with a call from their native home, for the establishment of a school for Mexican girls. The Synodical of Texas has challenged all Southern Synodicals to duplicate an appropriation of $25,000 made by the Texas organization, and the amount of $50,000 is now assessed as a starting fund.

During the afternoon vocal selections were rendered by Misses Caroline Servin and Wilhelmina Whitted and at the close of the program refreshments of ice-cream and cake were served.

The sum of $30.50 was reported as a result of the free-will offering.

A Note of Thanks—In our humble opinion the Colored Woman's Conference recently held in Charlotte was an unqualified success. When the suggestion that we hold such a conference for North Carolina was made at the meeting of the Synodical in Charlotte last fall, it met with instant approval. One of Charlotte's finest women, Miss Julia Alexander, told the president of the Synodical that she would underwrite the expense of the conference. This gave us a feeling of security in planning for the very best conference possible. Miss Alexander has fulfilled her promise and paid a deficit of $39.00—but she did not know when making her offer but that the deficit might amount to many times this amount, and we give her our grateful thanks.

Miss Margaret Rankin, another one of Charlotte's "best," was appointed to select a place for holding the conference and arranging the program. She gave unstintedly of her time, her prayers, her energy and brains, and to her is due the credit of the splendid program which was put on. We do not believe the statement that "Gratitude is the rarest flower that blooms." We are profoundly grateful to Miss Rankin, to Mrs. Turner, president of the Georgia Synodical, who taught the Bible each day, bringing out its truths so beautifully and yet so simply that all could "take it in," and to all, both white and colored, who gave of their time and talents.

Biddle University, with its beautiful campus and well-kept buildings, was an ideal place for such a conference. Special thanks are also due President McCrorey and his wife for their interest and courteous attention.

It would be difficult to find a company of women more in earnest, more responsive or more appreciative than the delegates who came from 34 towns and cities all over the state.

We thank God for answering our prayers and giving us the privilege of showing our Christian love and interest in our colored neighbors. Sincerely
Mrs. E. F. Reid, Pres. N. C. Synodical.

Aberdeen, N. C.—Mrs. J. R. Page, of Aberdeen, Bethesda Church, writes: I thought you would be interested in our "Mexican Fiesta." We had a lovely meeting with a large crowd. The younger girls gave the program and served Mexican refreshments. The collection amounted to $53, and great interest was shown in the Mexican girl and her needs. Ed.

Officers of Orange Presbyterian Auxiliary, Synod of North Carolina—Mrs. S. C. Brawley, West Durham, President; Mrs. Paul E. Morrow, Burlington, Vice-President; Mrs. J. Mel. Thompson, Mebane, Secretary; Mrs. F. D. Fanning, Durham, Treasurer; Secretary Foreign Missions, Miss Annie D. Davis, Greensboro; Secretary Assembly's Home Missions, Mrs. A. C. Goodwin, Greensboro; Secretary Christian Education and Ministerial Relief, Mrs. James Adderton, Lexington; Secretary Synodical, Presbyterian and Congregational Missions, Mrs. W. P. Knight, Greensboro; Secretary Young People's Work, Miss Alma Headen, High Point; Secretary of Literature, Miss Bessie Bennett, Reidsville; Secretary of Orphanage Work, Mrs. H. L. Riggins, Winston-Salem; Secretary for Development of Spiritual Life, Mrs. Chas. M. Norfleet, Winston-Salem; Glade Valley Representative, Miss Delphine Brown, Winston-Salem; Historian, Mrs. R. D. Blacknall, Durham.

Officers of Fayetteville Presbyterian, North Carolina Synod, 1923-1924—Honorary President, Mrs. R. N. Page, Southern Pines; President, Mrs. J. R. Page, Aberdeen; Vice-President, Miss Delia McGoogan, St. Pauls; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. J. T. Johnson, Aberdeen; Recording Secretary, Mrs. A. G. Carter, Sanford; Treasurer, Mrs. M. D. McNeill, Cameron; Secretary Foreign Missions, Mrs. E. C. Murray, St. Pauls; Secretary Assembly's Home Missions, Mrs. R. H. Hayes, Pittsboro; Secretary of Synodical, Presbyterian and Congregational Home Missions, Mrs. H. R. Cromartie, Raeford; Secretary Christian Education and Ministerial Relief, Mrs. John Knox, Lumberton; Secretary Sabbath School Extension and Young People's Work, Mrs. J. H. Suttentfield, Pinebluff; Secretary of Literature, Mrs. J. O. McClelland, Maxton; Secretary of Orphans' Work, Mrs. M. J. McGuire, Laurinburg; Secretary Elise High School, Mrs. A. M. Fairley, Laurinburg; Historian, Mrs. Laughlin McDonald, Hope Mills, R. F. D. No. 2; Secretary Development of Spiritual Life, Miss Margaret McQueen, Rowland.

Officers of Albemarle Presbyterian Auxiliary—President, Mrs. S. N. Harrell, Tarboro; Vice-President, Mrs. W. T. Clark, Wilson; Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. Goode Cheatham, Box 204, Henderson; Secretary Spiritual Life, Mrs. B. R. Lacy, 110 Peace St., Raleigh; Secretary Foreign Missions, Mrs. R. Y. McAden, 316 Halifax St., Raleigh; Secretary Assembly's Home Missions, Mrs. C. B. Foy, 171 Middle St., New Bern; Secretary S. P. and C. H. Missions, Mrs. C. E. Wilkins, 314 S. William St., Goldsboro; Secretary C. E. and M. R., Mrs. A. P. McPherson, Roanoke Rapids; Secretary Y. P. and S. S. Extension, Mrs. W. G. Sheppard, Farmville; Secretary Literature, Mrs. W. W. Eagles, Pinetops; Secretary Orphanage, Mrs. W. E. Fenner, Rocky Mount.

Officers and Secretaries of Causes for Concord Presbyterian—President, Mrs. Z. V. Turlington, Mooresville; Vice-President, Mrs. C. E. Stevenson, Salisbury; Secretary, Miss Cornelia Shaw, Davidson; Treasurer, Mrs. Geo. A. Banner, Marion; Secretary of Spiritual Growth, Miss May White, Concord; Secretary of Foreign Missions, Mrs. N. E. Aull, Hickory; Secretary of Assembly's Home Missions, Mrs. J. C. Sloan, Salisbury; Secretary of S. P. C. and H. M., Mrs. G. H. Spence, Harrisburg; Secretary C. E. and M. R., Mrs. Irwin Graham, Cooleemee; Secretary of Y. P. Work and S. S. Extension, Miss Bess Arrowood, Morganton; Secretary of Literature, Miss Flora McQueen, Kannapolis; Secretary Orphanage, Mrs. J. F. Cannon, Concord.

From Annual Report of Woman's Auxiliary of Presbyterian Church, U. S.—Auxiliaries Reaching Standard of Excellence:

	Blue	Silver	Gold
Synodical of Alabama	4	--	--
Synodical of Appalachia	16	9	1
Synodical of Arkansas	1	--	--
Synodical of Florida	9	8	1
Synodical of Georgia	30	24	2
Synodical of Kentucky	14	11	--
Synodical of Louisiana	1	1	--
Synodical of Mississippi	34	19	4
Synodical of Missouri	16	3	--
Synodical of North Carolina	8	7	1
Synodical of Oklahoma	1	1	1
Synodical of South Carolina	40	42	8
Synodical of Tennessee	--	--	--
Synodical of Texas	31	10	3
Synodical of Virginia	55	35	2
Synodical of West Virginia	6	4	--
Totals	266	183	23

Eleventh Annual Report of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, For the Year Ending March 31, 1923—Condensed Summary of Educational Report:

	Foreign	Home	Total Classes	Total Membership	Increase in classes over last year
Mission Study Classes	1,945	2,014	3,959	65,501	646
Bible Study Classes	--	--	2,079	27,085	556
Prayer Bands	--	--	3,277	32,733	620
Family Altars	--	--	13,417	--	--
Tithers	--	--	16,829	--	--
Stewardship Study Classes	--	--	291	5,540	--

With gratitude to our Heavenly Father for His guidance during the past year, the following report of the Woman's Auxiliary for 1922-1923 is respectfully submitted.

God has richly blessed the women of the Church and has granted them success in their efforts to increase missionary information and to deepen the spiritual life of the members.

The Spiritual Life—Two years ago the Auxiliary added to its roster of officers the "Secretary of Spiritual Resources," later changed to the "Secretary for the development of Spiritual Life." This officer has been doing fundamental and far-reaching work and this year we are able to tabulate some of the results of her labors.

Bible Classes—Reports this year show 2,079 Women's Bible Classes with a membership of 27,085. This is a gain of 556 classes and 6,488 members.

Prayer Bands—"Every Circle a Prayer Band" is the goal of the Auxiliary, and the thirtytwo thousand women pledged to pray daily and definitely for the Church constitute a wonderful source of power. We record this year 3,277 Prayer Bands with a membership of 32,733, an increase of 620 Prayer Bands and 5,800 members. We also note that 17,920 Prayer Calendars were in use, a gain of 7,084 over last year.

Family Altars—The Auxiliary co-operates with the Assembly's Committee on Family Religion in striving to establish a Family Altar in every home, through its Secretary of Spiritual Life in the local Auxiliary. Many copies of "First Steps in Family Worship" by Miss Elizabeth Shields have been circulated, as well as "Prayers for Family Use Among Young Children." Reports indicate an awakening conscience among the women concerning the importance of family worship. This year we report 13,417 Family Altars, an increase of 4,181 over last year.

Tithers—We hear from many quarters that sales, bazaars and money-earning plans have been abandoned for free-will offerings. All of these indicate a new understanding of the relationship between our belongings and the Kingdom. The number of Tithers reported is 16,829 or 6,560 more than last year.

The Weeks of Prayer for Home and Foreign Missions were widely observed. Self-denial gifts were brought to the meeting on the day set aside for a special program of Prayer and Thanksgiving for these causes.

The Day of Prayer for the Youth in our Schools and Colleges was observed by many Auxiliaries. An attractive program was issued for this important meeting.

The Birthday Celebration—The year just closed had a joyous beginning in the celebration of the tenth anniversary of the organization of the Auxiliary in 1912. This Auxiliary "Birthday Party" was happily celebrated in hundreds of Auxiliaries and the gifts were most liberal.

Long before the celebration was launched, a carefully prepared program for the occasion was submitted by the Auxiliary office to the Synodical Presidents for their approval, and later to the Supervisory Committee and to the Foreign Mission Committee. All these agreed unanimously that the major part of the gift should go to the Equipment Fund to build a new home for Miss Dowd's School in Japan, and a smaller part be used as a gift to Montreat, the birthplace of the Auxiliary. The plan thus approved was launched in April and was carried out in detail just as originally planned.

Although most of the gifts came in in May and June, belated sums were received by our Auxiliary Treasurer, Mrs. McMillan, for several months. The total amount reported from the Birthday offering was $27,532.66, of which $25,457.66 was sent to the Treasurer of the Foreign Mission Committee for Miss Dowd's School and $2,075 was given to Montreat. The latter sum was used to erect a gateway and lodge of great rustic beauty which bears a bronze tablet with the following inscription:

Erected by
The Woman's Auxiliary
Presbyterian Church, U. S. on its Tenth Anniversary
1912-1922

MADONNA OF THE CURB

On the curb of a city pavement
By the ash and garbage cans,
In the stench and rolling thunder
Of motor trucks and vans,
There sits my little lady,
With brave but troubled eyes,
And in her arms a baby
That cries and cries and cries.

She cannot be more than seven,
But years go fast in the slums;
And hard on the pains of winter
The pitiless summer comes.
The wail of sickly children
She knows; she understands
The pangs of puny bodies,
The clutch of small, hot hands.

In the deadly blaze of August
That turns men faint and mad
She quiets the peevish urchins
By telling a dream she had—
A heaven with marble counters,
And ice, and singing fans,
And dressed in white, a God whose face
Was like the drug store man's.

Honor her ragged garment
More than the robe of a queen
Poor little lass, she never has known
The blessing of being clean.
And when you are giving millions
To Belgian, Pole and Serb,
Remember my pitiful lady—
Madonna of the Curb.

—Christopher Morley, in Christian Century.

CONVERSION

By Rev. Chas. Kingsley

In the shade of a cliff a rose once grew,
Budded and blossomed, but without full light,
Watered and fed by morning dew 'twas true,
But shedding its sweetness in the darkness of night.

It blossomed some as it grew up tall,
Surely growing to a greater height,
'Till it came to a crevice in the wall,
Through which it found the golden light.

It crept through the crevice with added strength,
With never a fear or thought of pride,
The crevice and the sunlight gave length and strength,
Where it unfolded itself on the other side.

The light, the dew, the new-found view,
Were not like the things it had known before;
And it forgot the old in the beauties of the new,
While spreading its fragrance all the more.

The shadowy cliff, I would have you to know,
Was a mountain of miserable sin,
With its sides and summit covered with snow,
That would not let the sunlight in.

The crevice was the cleft in the rock,
Where the streaming light flows fast,
The shadows were a door with a lock,
Now thrown open to a home at last.
Rome, Ga.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT

(Conducted under the auspices of Synod's Committee of Sunday Schools and Young People's Work, in the interest of Sunday Schools and Young People's Societies)

W. ARNETT GAMBLE, JR., Editor

ADDRESS ALL COMMUNICATIONS TO THE DEPARTMENT EDITOR DAVIDSON, N. C

EDITOR'S LOOKOUT

From a summer conference to a summer camp of the Church's young people, all in one week, is getting a goodly supply of information as to what our young people are doing. It is good to see them busy with the combination of recreation and religious study. The Davidson Conference was predominantly one for study, but some happy hours of recreation were thoroughly enjoyed. The Greensboro First Church camp at Brevard, N. C., has larger opportunities for an outing, but the matter of religious study and inspiration is being well cared for.

One of the slogans of the Davidson Conference was "Work, Play, and Prayer Together Make Character." This is a great combination and one that all of our young people cannot lose by considering. Work, including real study, is needed to entitle one to a place in the world. Play is needed to give enthusiasm and spirit and the ability to work with others. Prayer is needed to bring us strength for work and study to give us direction in our play. We hope that the conferences and summer camps will grow in interest and usefulness.

Vacation is on us now, and yet it is not a bit too early to be planning for the fall's school work. We hope that many of our young people will have the desire and the opportunity to go just as far through school as is needed to fit them for a large service. Those who have finished high school are in a particularly trying situation. The matter of whether or not to go to college, or which college to go to, are pressing questions and need much prayerful consideration. We would strongly urge attendance at our church schools. Religion is a practical thing and we need to have it taught to us along with the arts and sciences. Think this over, young readers of this column, and make your reservation early in one of our church schools.

Sunday School

By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.

JULY 1, 1923

JOHN THE BAPTIST

Lesson: Matthew 3:1-17; 11:2-15; Mark 6:14-29; Luke 1:5-80; 3:1-22; 7:18-28; John 1:6-37. (Survey of the Life of John the Baptist). Printed Text: Luke 3:3-8; 7:24-28.

GOLDEN TEXT—"Blessed be the Lord God of Israel; for he hath visited and redeemed his people."—Luke 1:68.

SCRIPTURE LESSON

3. And he came into all the country about Jordan, preaching the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins;
4. As it is written in the book of the words of Esaias the prophet, saying, The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight.
5. Every valley shall be filled and every mountain and hill shall be brought low; and the crooked shall be made straight, and the rough ways shall be made smooth;
6. And all flesh shall see the salvation of God.
7. Then said he to the multitude that came forth to be baptized of him, O generation of vipers! who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come?
8. Bring forth, therefore, fruits worthy of repentance; and begin not to say within yourselves, We have Abraham to our father; for I say unto you, That God is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham.
24. And when the messengers of John were departed, he began to speak unto the people concerning John, What went ye out into the wilderness for to see? A reed shaken with the wind?
25. But what went ye out for to see? A man clothed in soft raiment? Behold, they which are gorgeously apparelled, and live delicately, are in kings' courts.
26. But what went ye out for to see? A prophet? Yea, I say unto you, and much more than a prophet.
27. This is he, of whom it is written, Behold, I send my messenger before thy face, which shall prepare thy way before thee.
28. For I say unto you, Among those that are born of women, there is not a greater prophet than John the Baptist; but he that is least in the kingdom of God is greater than he.

SHORTER CATECHISM

Q. 43. What is the preface to the ten commandments?
A. The preface to the ten commandments is in these words: "I am the Lord thy God, which have brought thee out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage."

Men of noble gifts, exalted office and beneficent deeds are attractive to mankind. This is the reason why such men as John Calvin, John Knox, George Washington, and Robert E. Lee are honored while living, and their effigies when they have departed are placed in the pantheons of human reverence. John the Baptist was one of the grandest characters of human annals. His mother, Elizabeth, was a cousin of Mary, the mother of our Lord. John, as to his humanity, was a cousin of Jesus Himself. As he reached manhood he was not a product of earthly schools. He did not learn his lessons of truth and duty from the Scribes or Pharisees, and the high priests of Israel. His only teachers were Zacharias, his father, and the All-wise Jehovah. Let us consider The Prophecies Respecting John the Baptist; John's Preaching; His Doubts; The Testimony of Jesus to John.

I. The Prophecies Respecting John

One of the distinctions of Cyrus was that many years before he was born he was designated by name as the ruler that should issue the decree that Israel should return to their own land and rebuild Jerusalem. So John the Baptist's coming and functions were predicted by Isaiah in his 40th chapter 700 years before his birth, and his relation to Messiah and appointed work were foretold by Malachi, the last prophet of the Old Testament dispensation, in his 3rd and 4th chapters 400 years before his advent. Isaiah speaks of him as "The voice of one crying in the wilderness, prepare ye the way of the Lord, make His paths straight." Malachi represents him as "Elijah the Prophet." Elijah in the days of Ahab was a witness for Jehovah and a reformer in Israel. John the Baptist was termed Elijah because he much resembled that prophet in moral qualities and appointed functions.

II. John's Preaching

He preached repentance or turning from sin unto God. He proclaimed it to all classes, Scribes, Pharisees, Sadducees, Publicans, citizens and soldiers. He baptized with water as a sign of repentance all who professed it. He required something more than profession. He charged all who made such profession to reform their lives, "To bring forth fruits meet for repentance." He preached duty as well as repentance and told all classes what they must do in their stations if they would prove their repentance genuine. He enjoined charity, benevolence, honesty and justice. He not only preached repentance and duty, but he claimed Christ and His claims. He declared Him to be far superior to himself, and the Son of God. He asserted that He "baptized with the Holy Ghost" and therefore was the author of regeneration and sanctification. He preached Jesus as to His sacrificial character and affirmed Him to be "the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world." He urged his hearers to "Behold the Lamb of God." To look at Him not only with the eye of sense or of the understanding, but with the eye of faith, the eye of the heart, that forms vital union and saves the soul. John not only preached repentance and duty and Christ's deity and Jesus the Lamb of God, and need of personal trust in Him, but he expounded the Divine law. He told Herod Antipas that it was not lawful for him to have his living brother's wife. For this bold testimony he lost his life. But the faithful preacher must preach law and gospel in their demands and provisions to all classes of mankind. To understand our condition under the law prepares the way for accepting the Gospel.

III. John's Doubts

For the reproof given him Herod Antipas put John in prison in the castle of Machaerus. He was here about a year and was then beheaded at the instigation of Herodias, Herod's wife. While in prison John hears of Jesus' deeds and sends two of his disciples to inquire, "Art thou He that should come or look we for another?" This question implies doubt. He had been assured that Jesus was Messiah. But long imprisonment, the injustice he had received and imperfect information had partly shaken his faith. Jesus points his messengers to His miracles and teachings as proving his claims and John's faith was confirmed.

IV. Jesus' Testimony to John

It is given negatively and positively. John was not a fickle man properly pictured as "a reed shaken by the wind," as some might have inferred from John's question. He was not a voluptuary "a man clothed in soft raiment." He was a prophet, "one who spake for God," and with Divine authority. He was more than a prophet, "he was the object of prophecy, and held a higher office than any prophet," he was "the Herald of Messiah." "None born of women greater than John the Baptist." He was great in gifts and graces. He was great in official position toward Immanuel and mankind. He was great in deeds. He was great as a martyr for the truth.

Christian Endeavor

By Rev. J. G. Garth, Chairman of Synod's Committee of Sabbath Schools and Young People's Work.

CHRISTIAN BROTHERHOOD

M., July 2—Brotherhood Means Good Will: Num. 12:1-13.
T., July 3—Love: I John 4:15-21.
W., July 4—Service: Mark 2:1-12.
T., July 5—Peace: Isa. 65:17-25.
F., July 6—Toleration: 1 Pet. 4:8.
S., July 7—Co-Operation: Exod. 17:8-16.

Sun., July 8—Topic: What Does Christian Brotherhood Mean? I John 3:10-24. (A Peace Meeting).

On What Is Christian Brotherhood based? What if kindly approaches are repulsed?

Does Christianity apply to international relationships?

While Jesus Christ came into the world to save sinners, one important result of His salvation is Christian brotherhood among His disciples. It would be great if all men acted like brothers, but with the presence of sin in the world and its persistence in depraving mankind, we can have no hope for a universal brotherhood among men. Men by their sin have forfeited the rights of sons of God. They are rebels to His government, and defy His rule and control. God is compelled by their sin to condemn them to judgment. But He invites them to become His sons by faith in Christ and repentance of their sin. There is no fatherhood of God for all men regardless of sin; so there is no brotherhood of man except as they are brethren in Christ. What makes any human being a son of God is the regeneration of his old nature. What makes men Christian brothers is a common faith in one Saviour. We have only to look about us and observe war, oppression, selfishness, and other sins to recognize that human brotherhood is impossible except with Jesus Christ as our Master.

Christian Brotherhood Is a Real Thing

John tells us that the devil has children, and God has children. The mark of God's children is righteousness; the mark of the devil's children is hate. Righteousness is keeping God's law, and Christ says that His disciples should love one another: He calls this a new commandment, and urges his followers to obey it by loving each other, showing this love by unselfish deeds, and even unto death. Greater love hath no man than this that a man lay down his life for his friends.

When the early church began to keep Christ's law, and rich and poor had fellowship as Christians, as they followed in the steps of Jesus by their pure lives and their kind feelings toward each other, the heathen world wondered at it, and said, "How those Christians love one another!" It made a deep impression on them. They were so accustomed to hatred, selfishness, cruelty, deceit, dishonesty, it hardly seemed possible for men to be like Christ. Would it not be fine for the world to speak of the church in such terms today?

The True Spirit of Christian Brotherhood

John tells us what we expect to find in the true spirit of brotherhood. Its first mark is righteousness, which includes honesty, truth, purity, contentment, honor and submission. Next, brotherhood means love. As hate and jealousy led Cain to kill Abel, so on the contrary Christian love prompts generous feelings, a deep interest and desire for the happiness of our brother in Christ and a compassion for his misery. Again, Christian brotherhood leads us to all kinds of service, to self-denial to help others, and even may call on us to sacrifice our lives for them. Sincerity and truth are other signs of Christian brotherhood. Flattery, fraud, and diplomacy have no part in it, and if we use them, we Christians should feel condemned, because we are living a lie. And if we feel condemned, remember God is greater than our hearts and consciences, and looks with judgment on our deeds.

The Blessings of Christian Brotherhood

Everyone admits that this world would be perfect, if men loved one another as Christ bade them to do. It is the duty of the Church to make a bit of heaven on the earth by Christian brotherhood. If each one will do his part to be a brother to his fellow Christians, we will lift the world's load a little, and that will be worth while.

Christian brotherhood brings many blessings. It is one way to assure ourselves that we are Christians, if we love our brethren in Christ. For only Christians can love one another with a spiritual love. Christian brotherhood helps us to be faithful to Christ. The example, love, sympathy and encouragement of our fellow Christians inspire us to be patient and dutiful to the Lord. Christian brotherhood aids us in our prayer life, and gives us more power in prayer. And by united prayer with our brethren, the Church can obtain large blessings from God. The last benefit John mentions to be gained from Christian brotherhood is the sense of God's abiding presence in each one and in the whole Church. As Christ and the Father are one, so He wants us to be united, and only by this unity of spirit will God be persuaded to manifest Himself to His Church. Let us all believe in and practice a spirit of generous, whole-hearted, sincere, self-sacrificing Christian brotherhood.

THE FIFTH ANNUAL YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONFERENCE IN THE SYNOD OF N. C.

By Rev. Roswell C. Long.

Attended by 408 delegates representing more than 125 churches of the Synod, the fifth annual young people's conference of the Synod of North Carolina, held this year at Davidson College, June 12th to 19th, was easily the most successful in point of attendance, interest and results accomplished of any such conference in the Synod. Much credit reflects upon the executive committee which conducted the conference, composed of Rev. John G. Garth, chairman; Mr. Claude T. Carr, Miss Mamie McElwee, Rev. C. M. Richards, D.D., Mrs. W. B. Ramsay, and Rev. C. R. Bailey. Messages of sympathy were extended from the young people and the faculty and leadership to Mrs. Ramsay, who was unable to be present on account of illness.

Each conference day began with the rising bell at 6:30, followed by morning watch conducted on each dormitory floor by the leaders at 7:15, and breakfast in the Davidson College Gymnasium, where all meals were served. The first hour of real work, the general conference on Methods of Young People's Work, held at 8:40, was in charge this year of Miss Julia Lake Skinner, of White Bible School, New York. She won and held the love of every member of the conference as she gave expert methods of doing young people's work. The young people adjourned to classes following this hour. Bible classes were taught by Mrs. S. H. Askew, who was serving her fourth year with the conference, and Rev. W. B. McIlwaine, of the Westminster Church, Charlotte, N. C. These teachers proved their ability to hold and instruct their pupils in a most able way.

"The White Fields of Japan," the new foreign mission book, was taught by Rev. J. Woodrow Hassell, of Marugame, Japan, the conference foreign missionary, and the home mission book, "Unfinished Tasks," was taught by Rev. J. J. Murray, the efficient superintendent of home missions in Wilmington Presbytery. Following a short recreation period the young people reassembled at 11:45 for a 15-minute conference with the leaders, when a "Leader's Challenge" was presented. Rev. J. G. Garth, Mr. Claude T. Carr, Miss Mamie McElwee, Mr. J. M. Harvey and Miss Helen Bailey proved themselves most competent in presenting various challenges on the several days.

One hour each day, from 12 noon until 1:00 o'clock, was given over to the young people themselves. Mr. Wilson Moore, president of the N. C. Young People's League, the organization that functions in all of the Presbyteries and includes every young people's society, conducted this hour in a most efficient manner. He had not only prepared conference buttons for the delegates, with a place for their names, but also a booklet giving a program for the conference hour each day. The physical, mental, social, and spiritual were the four sides of growth that were emphasized in this hour by devotional speakers, open discussion and definite plans. The Ramsay loving cup, for the best record for the year, was won by Wilmington Presbytery. The young people were also in charge of their own athletics, and were splendidly led by Mr. Dwight M. Chalmers and Miss Marion Moore in interesting events each afternoon.

Vesper services were held each evening following supper, usually conducted on the campus, and were led this year by Miss Julia Lake Skinner, Mrs. S. H. Askew, Rev. W. B. McIlwaine, Rev. J. J. Murray, and Dr. S. M. Glasgow. After a social hour the evening address brought the day to a fitting close. Powerful and gripping messages were brought by Rev. Homer McMillan, D.D., Rev. C. M. Richards, D.D., Rev. G. F. Bell, D.D., Rev. J. Woodrow Hassell, Rev. A. S. Johnson, D.D., and Rev. W. E. Hill, D.D., all well known leaders in our church. Prof. Claude T. Carr, Synodical superintendent of S. S. and Y. P. work, led the music most interestingly.

The conference was most efficiently managed through a system worked out by Mr. Garth, Mr. Carr and Miss McElwee. This plan included the placing of a counsellor on every floor where the young people were rooming, to whom the young people could come for advice and help. These counsellors this year included one representative each from the Presbyteries and Presbyterials. Messrs. Arnett Gamble, Leroy Burney, Guy Weeks, Thomas Lowry and Willie Nesbit, Davidson students, rendered invaluable aid to the conference in many capacities. Mr. Gamble served in the double capacity of secretary to the chairman of the conference committee and manager of the dining room help.

The entire conference, including both leadership and student body, takes this opportunity to express sincere thanks to Davidson College for the use of her property, and especially the beautiful gymnasium as a dining room. Dr. Martin and the trustees have rendered the young people and the Church as a whole a great service, a service that will no doubt yield good results in the increasing number of students that will choose this as their college. Thanks are also extended to Miss Cornelia Shaw, Davidson College librarian, for beautiful floral decorations, and to Dr. Richards and the membership of the Davidson Church for use of the church auditorium for evening addresses.

The announcement of the executive committee that subject to the approval of Synod, the conference would be held at Davidson again next year, was greeted with prolonged applause on the part of the young people. Owing to the increase in the popularity of the conference among the churches it was found necessary to adopt the following scale of representation for the next year: Two delegates from churches of 200 or under, and one additional delegate for each additional 100 members up to 500. No church will be allowed to send more than five delegates.

Gastonia, N. C.

GREENSBORO FIRST CHURCH CAMP

As a part of its program of activities as a real live church, the First Presbyterian Church, of Greensboro, N. C., is now conducting its annual vacation camp. The camp is being conducted at Camp Sapphire, Brevard, N. C., and all the equipment of this splendid boys' camp is being used in giving the members of this church, and some of its friends, a fine outing and season of religious instruction and inspiration.

The present camp is the third annual camp, and the fact that interest in the plan is still active is shown by an attendance of nearly two hundred. The main body of campers came to camp by a special train from Greensboro on June 18th, and will return by special train on the 28th. Several families visited camp for the week-end also.

A very attractive plan is carried out as to the expenses of a good percentage of the campers. Those who from October to June have not missed Sunday School, two Sunday church services, mid-week prayer meeting, and Christian Endeavor, have all their expenses incident to camp paid by the church. Sixty-one fortunate ones are in the present camp. Others who have missed a small percentage of the five meetings a week have their expenses paid to a corresponding extent. The others who attend pay all of their own expenses.

Beginning with the morning dip at 7:45, an interesting daily schedule is carried out. There are other swimming periods at 11:45 and 5:00 p. m. Chapel service is held at 8:45 a. m., at which time Mr. Melville Trotter teaches the Book of Acts. Mr. Trotter speaks again at the evening vesper service. A rest period of an hour and a recreation period of two and a half hours come each afternoon.

Mr. Mark Bush is general manager of the camp. Mr. Ashby Wharton, who has recently passed the various Red Cross life-saving tests, is giving instruction in swimming and life-saving and giving the tests in these. Games are in charge of Mr. Bush, Miss Aileen Geoghegan, and Mr. Robert Glenn. Dr. A. R. Wilson, an elder of the First Church, is camp physician, and Miss Annie Brooks is camp nurse.

There are a score of counsellors, among these being several visitors from other churches in Greensboro and elsewhere. Rev. E. C. Caldwell, of Graham, and Rev. M. E. Hansel, of the Hawfield Church of Mebane, are among the counsellors, as is also Mr. J. Foster Barnes, director of religious education of the First Church. Of course Dr. C. F. Myers is there, for he has a part in all of this church's activities.

Three members of the regular choir are at camp—Mrs. C. A. Mebane, soprano; Miss Catherine Johnson, contralto; Mr. J. Foster Barnes, baritone. Mr. Lyle Jones fills out the quartet, which is giving some good music for the campers. Miss Louise Geoghegan, church organist, furnishes the accompaniments.

The campers are divided into four groups, Mites, Midgets, Juniors, and Seniors, from the youngest upward. Various water and field sports and contests are being arranged to close the camp. Several baseball games will also be played, one of these between the older campers and a team from Brevard. Ribbon awards will be given the winners of the first, second, and third places in the different events.

Church News

THE MINUTES OF THE ASSEMBLY

Our excellent Stated Clerk, Dr. J. D. Leslie, has broken all records in having the Minutes of the Assembly ready before July 1st. They came nearly two weeks ahead of that date, and they are in every respect a credit to his systematic industry and his ingenuity.

Those of us who know his painstaking care, without previous examination are ready to vouch for the accuracy of his statistics and his list of ministers with their respective addresses.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Pendleton Church—Eight persons were received into the communion of the Pendleton Church on June 7th, four of whom were baptized. This church has a very active Woman's Auxiliary and a recently organized Christian Endeavor Society that is doing fine work.

Harmony Presbytery held an adjourned meeting at Lake City, S. C., June 19th. Mr. R. W. Park, a licentiate of Congaree Presbytery, was received under its care, a call from Lake City was placed in his hands, and after satisfactory examination for ordination a commission was appointed to ordain and install him on the first Sabbath of July, at 8:15 p. m.

Mr. W. S. Porter, Jr., was received under care of Presbytery as a candidate for the ministry; son of the Georgetown pastor; and Mr. A. C. Wilkins, from Williamsburg Church, also received as a candidate.

W. H. Workman, S. C.

NORTH CAROLINA

Burlington—Shiloh Church has also increased its pastor's salary by the amount of $50. We are looking forward to an evangelistic meeting in the fall, and praying for a blessing.

Charlotte—At the evening service last Sabbath, Rev. G. F. Bell, D.D., pastor of Caldwell Memorial Church, preached a special sermon to the Lions Club of Charlotte, an organization of which he is a member. A very appropriate and helpful sermon, a special musical program and a fine spirit of fellowship characterized the service which was largely attended.

Bethesda—There will be a home-coming service at Old Bethesda, near Aberdeen, on the first Sabbath of July, and this is an invitation to all whose hearts turn back to the old home church, to come and enjoy a Sabbath as it used to be observed. There will be a service at 11:15, after which there will be a dinner on the premises and an hour of fellowship, followed by the administration of the Lord's Supper in the church. Dr. A. R. Shaw, of Charlotte, a son of Bethesda Church, will have charge of both services.

Charlotte—From the Bulletin of the First Church we take the following news item:

"Miss Marion Wilcox, now at Rock Hill, S. C., has been appointed by the session of this church, and is now under appointment by the Committee at Nashville for evangelistic work in China. She has been notified that she can secure passage August 23d, if ready at that time. The full support, amounting to $2,700, has been subscribed.

"This church gave for foreign missions last year, $19,876, against $4,769 in 1918."

An Earnest Word From the Superintendent of North Carolina Synodical Home Missions—With greatly enlarged work our outlay is just the rise of $5,000 per month, 73 now in active service in the field depending on it. The third month of the ecclesiastical year is now closing. Receipts from churches and individuals all told for this whole time $3,190.89. There is no business in doing it this way. We are sure you will pay your part in the Fall or sometime during the year. We know you are loyal to the work. But what about NOW? The first of July is just on us when another month's salaries of $5,000 will be due. Will you not see that your church does its part by the 73? Do not leave them and us to carry the load through the sweltering season while your church lies almost dormant and you take your vacation. We will haunt you sure. Play the game fair by the 73. Any good sport would. You have a thousandfold more reason. They will be winning a thousand souls for Christ in these summer months, in many a hard field.

A. W. CRAWFORD, Supt.

Greensboro, N. C.

Statesville—The construction of the new church projected by the members of the First Presbyterian Church has been deferred until building conditions—the high cost of materials and labor—are more favorable. That is the decision of the meeting held Sunday following the morning service and incorporated in a resolution.

The determination of a favorable time is left to the building committee. Meanwhile the finance committee will continue its canvass for subscriptions and payments on subscriptions already made will be requested. Mr. J. R. Hill was elected treasurer. Payments may be made to Mr. C. A. Poole, at the First National Bank.

Rev. Dr. J. D. Leslie, of Dallas, Tex., occupied the pulpit of the First Presbyterian Church, Sunday evening. Dr. Leslie, who is stated clerk of the Southern Presbyterian General Assembly, attended the recent meeting of the Assembly at Montreat. He is a native of Iredell, but has lived in Texas for many years.

Greensboro—We take the following items from the news bulletin of The Church by the Side of the Road— Last Sunday morning the Men's Club met again in the splendid shady grove in front of the church. It was delightful—so much so that Pierce Rucker was given a rising vote of thanks for the use of his property. Pierce says he enjoys it just as much as we do.

"Mr. Sterling Hunter"—He is a native of Georgia. He fought in France. He is a graduate of Union Theological Seminary. And some other things, but they will come out later. That's enough for the present. We will just say this: we are lucky to get him as our playground director and young people's worker. Few men could have stepped into the vacancy made by Mr. Hamilton's departure and given the satisfaction right from the start, as "Sterl" has done—for that is what they're calling him already.

The young people are even now devoted to him. He is "one of them" and they quickly found it out.

Mr. Hunter preached the sermon at last Sunday night's service and it was a gem. Everybody enjoyed it thoroughly and went away stronger for it.

The people of our church and community will soon find out that the young folks, from the smallest to the largest, could hardly find anywhere a safer or more wholesome atmosphere, nor a better time, than on the church playgrounds under Mr. Hunter's careful and expert supervision.

It certainly has been a treat to have Mrs. O. G. Jones with us again and we only regret that her stay could not have been longer. There will always be a warm place for her in the heart of the Church by the Side of the Road.

Wilmington, First Church—Rev. A. D. P. Gilmour, D.D., pastor. From the Church Bulletin we take the following items:

"Our church has been fortunate in securing the services of Miss Helen F. Russell, of Spartanburg, S. C., to be the pastor's assistant and full time girls worker. Miss Russell will take up her work here the middle of September next.

Miss Russell is a graduate of Converse College in the Class of 1921 and since her graduation she has been a member of the faculty of that college, which fact proves the high estimation and appreciation which the faculty of Converse College placed upon her.

She is a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Spartanburg and has been a most earnest and active and sincere worker among the Young People of that Church, co-operating with the pastor's assistant most efficiently.

Miss Russell is a young lady of great personal charm and many varied talents. She is magnetic and winsome and attractive in every way, altogether highly fitted by endowment and experience to be a leader of girls and young women.

Miss Russell will spend the summer at Montreat, taking full advantage of all the conferences there.

Our church deems itself very fortunate in having secured the services of Miss Russell."

"Rev. W. W. Morton, head of the vacation Bible School of our church, which opens on June 25th, has arranged for a brief preliminary course of lessons in handicrafts, under expert teachers to be given to any of our women and young girls who are willing to assist later in the school. These lessons will begin on Monday afternoon, at 4:00 o'clock, in the Beginners room of the Sunday School. As the course is short and intensive, all who wish to join the class should be there promptly. There will be no charge to those who can help in the school, and they may keep all articles they make by paying for the materials. Please notify Mrs. John Hill if you wish to join the class."

APPALACHIA

"Weaverville, N. C.—North Buncombe Field—Mr. A. M. Mitchell, of the Junior Class of Union Seminary, is laboring with us for the summer in the North Buncombe field. Because of his valuable help we have already been able to organize a new Sunday School at Red Oak, with an average attendance of about 50. Red Oak was in former years a stronghold of Southern Presbyterianism, in fact it is one of the oldest in the Presbytery. However, no organized work has been done there for some 12 years. Workers go out each Sunday afternoon from the Weaverville Church to help in this work. We are also having preaching services there each Sunday afternoon. Four of our adult workers go out each Sunday to help in Sunday School mission work at two points. These are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Blankenship, Mrs. G. B. Hussey, and Miss Sarah McCormick.

"Covenanter's Church—Dillington, N. C.—This church is keeping up its old-time interest in religious matters and at the same time going forward in its work for the Master. Recently Mr. Reynolds Dillingham was elected superintendent of the Sunday School and is proving a very effective worker in that position. Rev. H. B. Dendy."

Abingdon, Va.—A most impressive service was held in this church on the evening of May 13th, when Mr. Robert P. Richardson, for the past two summers assistant to the pastor here, was ordained as an evangelist by a commission of Abingdon Presbytery with a view to his going to China. Rev. W. M. Walsh, pastor of the church, presided; the sermon was preached by Rev. Dan Graham, of Green Spring, Va., and the charge was given by Rev. C. M. Chumbley, of the Rich Valley field. Rev. J. B. Bittinger, of Winchester Presbytery, was invited to take part in the laying on of hands, as were also the elders of the Abingdon Church.

Mr. Richardson is greatly beloved in Abingdon, having rendered most efficient service in the out-post work, in the conduct of Daily Vacation Bible Schools, and other activities. He is well endowed and finely equipped for the important work of a foreign missionary.

Young People's Conference—The third annual Young People's Conference for the Synod of Appalachia was in session at Stonewall Jackson College, Abingdon, Va., June 5-12. It was under the efficient direction of Rev. John J. Fix, D.D., Synod's Superintendent of Sunday Schools and Young People's Work, and was conceded to be the best conference yet held, from the standpoint of diligence and earnestness on the part of the young people, and of the results accomplished. At the closing service 32 indicated their purpose to dedicate their lives to some definite form of Christian service. The social and recreational features were duly stressed under the leadership of Rev. C. L. Nisbet, of Pineville, Ky. It was a busy, happy group. Stonewall, with its new buildings and spacious grounds, is an ideal place for such a gathering.

The following served as teachers and leaders: Mr. R. K. Axson, executive secretary of First Church, Asheville, N. C., inspirational addresses; Rev. Dabney Carson, vesper services and church causes; Rev. Robert Yost, of King College, Bible hour and inspirational addresses; Rev. E. V. Tadlock, class in "unfinished tasks"; Rev. W. M. Walsh, class in "white fields of Japan"; Mr. Frank Wilson, expert Endeavorer; Rev. J. J. Fix, Sunday School methods; Rev. L. T. Wilds, Hendersonville, N. C., class in "creed of Presbyterians;" Miss Janie McGaughey, of Knoxville, class in "needed counsel for young Christians;" leaders of Presbyterial groups: Mrs. W. M. Walsh, Miss Mabel Anderson, and Mrs. R. E. Prater. Rev. W. F. Junkin spoke twice in the interest of foreign missions, and Rev. S. R. Hay, of Morristown, made a special address on Christian education. Rev. and Mrs. C. L. Nisbet were in charge of the music.

ALABAMA

Selma—Rev. E. G. Gammon, D.D., of Hampden-Sidney, Va., has accepted the call to become pastor of the First Church, Selma. He will begin his new work September 1st. The congregation is rejoiced over being able to secure a pastor in so short a time. The pulpit has only been vacant two months. There is also great rejoicing at being able to secure such a strong preacher as Dr. Gammon.

Our pulpit during June and July will be filled by Rev. S. W. McGill, D.D., of Kentucky, and Rev. T. S. Clyce, of Texas.

LOUISIANA

Presbytery of New Orleans—The constitutional requirements having been met, I hereby call the Presbytery of New Orleans to meet in the First Presbyterian Church, New Orleans, at 1:00 o'clock p. m., on Friday, July 6, 1923, to transact the following business:

1. To consider the request of Rev. C. H. Maury for the dissolution of the pastoral relation existing between himself and the First Presbyterian Church, Bogalusa, La., and any other business connected therewith, and also to grant Mr. Maury a letter of dismission, if so requested by him.

2. To consider Mr. Maury's resignation as a member of the Presbytery's Home Mission Committee and elect his successor.

E. M. Shepard, Moderator.

Attest: Louis Voss, Stated Clerk.

TENNESSEE

Home Missions in Memphis Presbytery—Rev. J. F. Forsyth began work in McNairy County group of churches the last of April. He and his wife have entered very encouragingly into the work of that important field, consisting of Bethel Springs, Purdy, Bethesda and Rose Hill. They are welcomed as very helpful additions to the working force of our Presbytery. The Gibson County field, consisting of Fruitland, Concord, Zion, Eaton and Oak Hill, under the able ministry of Rev. W. E. Powell, is making commendable progress. Rev. B. M. Cowan is supplying Collierville and Germantown. Rev. D. C. Young, pastor of Rosemark, is giving one Sabbath to Kerrville. Rev. A. L. Rhea is preaching, one Sabbath a month, at Denmark. Candidate J. L. Neely has done a splendid work at Whitehaven for the past year, giving that church two Sabbaths a month. In addition to this, he is now supplying Eastland Church two Sabbaths a month, with fair prospects of a fruitful work. Candidate T. B. Roddy is in charge of Highland Heights church for the summer, and with the help of his wife the church is rapidly growing. Candidate W. D. Morris is supplying Mason, Santon, Dancyville and Hebron during the summer. Candidate T. S. Daniel is supplying Arlington Church for the summer. Lamar Heights Church has called Rev. H. B. Wade, of Okolona, Miss., and he hopes to begin work in that important field the 1st of July.

The Presbytery, at the request of the Home Mission Committee, has undertaken the work of building a home for the Superintendent of Purdy School, and the Auxiliaries are entering into the task with zeal and determination, and the work will be done. A generous member of the Second Church, of Memphis, has provided the means for a light plant at Purdy, and it will be installed in the near future. Our churches are nearly all supplied with the ministry of the Word, and the work is in a very encouraging condition.

J. J. Hill,

Superintendent and Treasurer.

VIRGINIA

Suffolk—On June 7th the corner-stone of the new Presbyterian Church, of Suffolk was laid. Rev. Joseph G. Venable, D.D., of Norfolk, made the address. His subject was "Go Forward." All denominations were represented.

The Presbyterian Church was organized in Suffolk in 1876. Its first pastor was Rev. L. E. Scott. Pastors in order of service were Rev. E. B. McClure, Rev. William Chinn, Rev. Wilbur Shipley, Rev. F. L. Delaney, and Rev. W. A. Hall. The present pastor, Dr. R. B. Eggleston, assumed the pastorate in 1917.

The work of the church has been greatly advanced since Dr. Eggleston came to Suffolk. It has more than doubled in membership. The Sunday school is four times larger than it was at the beginning of his pastorate. The primary and junior Christian Endeavor have been organized and are growing. There are both men's and women's Bible classes with good memberships.

The General Assembly's Training School, Richmond—At a meeting of the board of trustees of the Training School, on June 14th, the resignation of Dr. F. T. McFaden as president of the Training School was accepted with great regret. He felt it his duty to accept the urgent call to the Presbyterian Church at Winchester, Va. During the year of his presidency he made a warm place for himself in the hearts of the students and faculty.

Dr. Walter L. Lingle, president of the board, was directed to take general oversight of the Training School until permanent plans can be made, and the work of the school will go forward without interruption.

Dr. O. E. Buchholz, of the faculty, was requested to take charge of the registration of new students. A large number of new students have already registered and the indications are that the school will be taxed to the limit to provide room for all who desire to enter.

Work on the new dormitory and dining hall, which are now under construction, is progressing rapidly and it is fully expected that they will be completed by the 1st of September.

With the completion of the new buildings the Training School will be in a position to accommodate men as well as women and will be glad to register men who are looking forward to becoming assistants to pastors, directors of young people's work, Sunday School workers, and home mission workers, and similar work.

WEST VIRGINIA

Spruce—On May 27, 1923, a Presbyterian church was organized at Spruce, a town on the top of Cheat Mountain, by a commission of Greenbrier Presbytery. Messrs. E. C. Smith and E. L. Duncan were ordained elders, and Messrs. G. W. Clinebell and Ed Lyle were ordained deacons. Steps are being taken to build a church. This church is the result of the Presbyterian evangelist, assisted by Rev. F. W. Gray, of Cass, W. Va. This is a high church Presbyterian church, being about 3,900 feet above sea level.

Huntersville and Westminster—These two churches are located in a beautiful little valley which runs parallel with the Allegheny Mountains for 25 miles. A hard surfaced state road is being built the full length of the valley. Formerly these two churches were grouped with the Marlinton Church, but the Marlinton Church now has a pastor for all his time and employs an assistant in the mission work in the western part of the county. Presbytery sent the evangelist to preach and spend a month in these churches with the result that the churches were strengthened by the addition of a dozen or more members, most of whom were heads of families and substantial people. Canvasses were made and the churches now with the help of the Home Mission Committee are able to support a pastor. We need a good man for this promising and attractive field.

Greenbrier Presbytery—At a recent meeting the matter of the call from Davidson College for the services of Rev. J. T. Pharr, as student pastor was taken up. A representative from Davidson faculty presented the call. Three ruling elders, representatives of the Spring Creek Church, presented the action of the session and of the congregation unanimously protesting against the dissolution of the pastoral relation. After considerable discussion and prayer the Presbytery unanimously declined to dissolve the relation and to release him from the field where he is doing such excellent work, and where he and his wife are so dearly loved by all the people.

At the same meeting Mr. W. C. Neel was received as a candidate for the ministry from Mecklenburg Presbytery. He is a recent graduate from Union Seminary. He was examined for ordination. Having passed a very creditable examination, a call from the Fayetteville Church was placed in his hands, and a commission, Rev. W. W. Pharr, chairman, was appointed to ordain and install him pastor of the Fayetteville Church at such time as most convenient for all parties concerned.

The pastoral relation between Rev. T. H. Wix and the Frankford Church was dissolved some weeks ago and he was given permission to labor without the bounds of the Presbytery till fall meeting. The Carmel Church has recently called Rev. W. A. Benfield for all his time. Owing to removal and the development of new work the Presbytery is in great need of several men especially after the seminary opens and the students return to the seminary.

Rev. John I. Armstrong, D.D., was given permission to labor without the bounds of the Presbytery, but the Presbytery is gratified to know that he will retain his membership with us, while serving as editor of our Sunday School periodicals. His services as a Presbyter are valued and appreciated by all the ministers and churches of the Presbytery.

J. E. Flow, S. C.

PERSONAL

His many friends will rejoice to learn that Rev. W. Bruce Doyle has so improved in health as to be able to return to his field of labor again after several months spent at Hot Springs, N. C. His address is once more Opelika, Ala.

Rev. F. T. McFaden, D.D., has changed his address from Richmond to Winchester, Va., where on July 1st he takes up the work as pastor of the church at Winchester.

Educational

King College, Bristol, Tenn., has just closed one of the best years in the history of the college. The attendance of students has been the largest in more than 25 years and the record in the various departments of college activities has been high.

The baccalaureate sermon was preached Sunday, May 27th, in the First Presbyterian Church, by Rev. Russell Cecil, D.D., pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, of Richmond, Va. Dr. Cecil's message was splendidly adapted to the occasion and was delivered with his usual preciseness of speech and clearness of thought. Dr. Cecil also occupied the pulpit of the First Church on Sunday night.

The annual declamation contest for the gold medal offered by the two literary societies, was held in the college assembly hall, May 16th. The medal in the Athenaeum Society was won by James White, of Asheville N. C., and in the Philothesian Society by William Thorington, of Montgomery, Ala.

Monday night, May 28th, the inter-society contest in oratory was held for the gold medal given each year by Col. Sam L. King, of Bristol. The decision of the judges gave the prize to Mr. J. Edward O'Dell, Jr., of Blountville, Tenn., a member of the Athenaeum Literary Society.

On Tuesday night, May 29th, the graduating exercises were held. The class was represented by Clifford E. Ford, Piney Flats, Tenn., who made the salutatory address and Eldridge H. Moore, of Church Hill, Tenn., the valedictory. The address before the graduating class was made by Rev. H. H. Pitzer, D.D., of Chattanooga, Tenn. Mr. J. H. McCue, president of the board of trustees, delivered the diplomas to the five members of the graduating class, who were: Eldridge H. Moore, Church Hill, Tenn., A.B.; Clifford E. Ford, Piney Flats, Tenn., A.B.; Thomas C. Jones, Bristol, Tenn., B.S.; Clifford W. Swanson, Moline, Ill., B.S.; and Rufus K. Sanders, Jr., Saltville, Va., B.S.

The gold medal in the Athenaeum Society was won by E. H. Moore, as best debater, and by Nelson Koehler, of Canal Fulton, Ohio, for improvement in debate; in the Philothesian Society, by Robinson Garland, of Carter, Tenn., as best debater and by Foy DeHaven, of Hillsville, Va., for improvement in debate.

The J. Albert Wallace memorial medal, for Philosophy, given by Mr. Bennet Y. Wallace, of Tifton, Ga., was won by E. H. Moore. Mr. Moore was also awarded $20 in gold given by Mr. H. E. King, a young business man of Bristol Tenn., to the student voted by the faculty, as the best all-round man in the school.

The president's scholarship was awarded to Robinson Garland, for having made the highest grades during the year, and the five dollars given by the Ladies Auxiliary of the college, was awarded to Albert Stone, of Emmett, Tenn., for the second highest average. The medal in the military department was won by Edward McKinley, of Quentin, Miss., as the most efficient cadet and to Harry Hudson, of Montreat, N. C., for the highest score made in the spring target practice on the rifle-range.

Announcement was made of the action of the board of trustees in conferring the honorary degree of doctor of laws upon Rev. J. Sprole Lyons, D.D., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, of Atlanta, Ga. The honorary degree of doctor of divinity was conferred upon Rev. Cecil Lee Ewing, a member of the class of 1871 and pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Brownwood, Texas; and upon Rev. Peter Pleune, pastor of the Highland Presbyterian Church of Louisville, Ky.

The 57th session will open on September 12, 1923, with good prospects that the college dormitory will be filled by the opening date.

Hampden-Sidney Commencement—On June 13th Hampden-Sidney College held what was in many respects the very best of all the commencements of her one hundred and forty-seven years of history. The preliminary exercises began on the Sunday morning of June 10th, when Rev. Graham Gilmer, pastor of Tinkling Spring Church, preached the sermon before the graduating class. That evening Mr. Gilmer delivered the sermon before the Y. M. C. A. Both of Mr. Gilmer's sermons were deeply spiritual and were just the messages that the student life of America needs today.

On Tuesday evening the annual inter-society debate took place in the college chapel between the Union and Philanthropic societies. In this debate the representatives of the Philanthropic society were the winners. The deepening interest which the students of Hampden-Sidney are taking in their literary society work is rather unusual in this materialistic age.

On Wednesday the commencement exercises proper were held in College Church and the address before the graduating class was delivered by Hon. Geo. Bryan, of Richmond, Va. Mr. Bryan's earnest talk on Some of Life's Handicaps was full of practical and helpful advice to the 20 young men who were in reality just starting out on life's work. The valedictorian and first-honor man of the class was Mr. M. I. Williams, of Moorefield, W. Va.; second honor went to Mr. C. H. Binford, Pamplin, Va., and third honor went to Mr. T. E. Gilmer, Draper, Va.

Prizes were awarded as follows: From the Union Literary Society, Mr. J. W. Benjamin, of Harper's Ferry, W. Va., received the Senior essayist's medal, and Mr. H. L. Rceves, of Mt. Solon, Va., received the declaimer's medal. From the Philanthropic Literary Society the Senior orator's medal went to

Mr. A. G. Williams, Winchester, Va.; the Junior essayist's medal to Mr. N. A. Bedinger, Charlotte C. H., Va.; the Sophomore debater's medal to Mr. H. D. MacPherson, Red Springs, N. C.; and the Freshman declaimer's medal to Mr. C. W. Kernan, Rural Retreat, Va. The Junior-Senior magazine medal was won by Mr. B. S. Morgan, Jr., Charleston, W. Va.; the Freshman-Sophomore magazine medal by Mr. W. C. Barger, Charleston, W. Va.; the magazine poetry prize by Mr. J. W. Benjamin, Harper's Ferry, W. Va.; and the Geo. W. Bagby prize by Mr. R. C. Garhck, Jr., Richmond, Va. Scholarships were awarded to the following: Mr. C. W. Friend, Drake's Branch, Va.; Mr. H. D. MacPherson, Red Springs, N. C., and Mr. L. B. Stephenson, Jr., of Rolla, Va. Ministerial scholarships were awarded to Mr. T. C. Hix, Prospect, Va., and Mr. V. L. Fisher, Norfolk, Va. The Sigma Upsilon short story prize went to Mr. W. A. Moncure, Jr., of Richmond, Va.

Honorary degrees were conferred as follows: Doctor of Divinity: Rev. L. E. Hubard, Elizabeth, N. J.; Rev. J. P. Smith, Campinas, Brazil; Rev. W. J. King, Leesburg, Va.; Rev. R. A. White, Mooresville, N. C. Doctor of Laws (LL.D.): President James E. Allen, of Davis and Elkins College, Elkins, W. Va.; Hon. Wm. Cabell Bruce, Baltimore, Md., and Rev. Prof. E. C. Caldwell, Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va. The degree of D. Litt. was conferred upon Dr. H. R. McIlwaine, state librarian of Virginia.

Never has the character of the student body been finer nor the work in the class room been of a higher order than during the session that has just closed. An experienced educator who has been associated with students in a number of different educational institutions remarked a few weeks ago that he had never come in touch with a finer or more intelligent student body than he found at Hampden-Sidney College.

The next session will open September 13th.

News of the Week

After several false starts United States officials enforced the ruling of the treasury department that no ocean liner should cross America's three-mile line with her supplies, when on June 23d they smashed the British government seals on the liquor stores of the steamships Baltic and Berengaria and confiscated all of the wet goods except that classed as medicinal.

President Harding in his big western trip has gotten as far west as Kansas. The trip is characterized by addresses to large audiences at every city and town at which a stop is made.

The North Carolina Press Association held its annual session the past week in the beautiful Blowing Rock country in North Carolina's inimitable mountains. The editors reaffirmed their stand for law enforcement. John B. Sherrill is president of the organization.

Owners of Lakeview Park, Inc., a scenic tract containing 1,400 acres, Asheville, N. C., have announced that they will tender a sufficient amount of this land for the site of the proposed home of America's passion play and two months of summer opera for the nation. The site combines the requisite qualities—modern conveniences, near modern accommodations and yet removed from noise.

Erwin R. Bergdoll, wealthy Philadelphia draft evader, is to be released from Leavenworth prison, after confinement of two years and ten months' time. He is a brother of Grover Bergdoll, who fled to Germany after the war to escape the same fate.

The South Carolina Cotton Growers' Co-Operative Association has within the past ten days made very large sales of cotton to Germany, for which it is reported they secured a good price.

The army's new "two-and-a-half-planer" air giant, known as the Barling bomber, the biggest thing yet in flying machines, will soon be tested at Wilbur Wright field, Ohio. The ship measures 120 feet from tip to tip, is powered with six Liberty motors, weighs 40,000 pounds and will have a flying speed of not less than 90 miles an hour.

Li Yuan-Hung, who fled from the capital to his home in Tientsin under threats of military occupation of the capitol, apparently considers himself still the president of China. It is reported that Li has withdrawn his resignation which he submitted more than two months ago and which was never acted upon.

From Rome comes the harrowing story of the vast ruin and devastation that have followed the eruption of Mt. Etna. Great rivers of molten rock, pouring down the steep sides of the mountain from numerous fissures, are overwhelming all before them and the inhabitants of the surrounding settlements are fleeing in despair while crops and homes disappear under the hissing flood. The main crater of Etna, after the displays of last week, suddenly opened up at midnight Sunday with a noise like the firing of a thousand cannons. There were subterranean rumblings, flames shot to the sky, and the populations of the little towns about the base of the cone fled to the plains. Five great cracks opened in the northeast side of the mountain and from these mouths, several kilometers from the old crater, came streams of lava. Thousands of tons of rocks and ashes were hurled to a height of from 30 to 60 feet from both the old and new craters, and the lava streams advancing on a frontage estimated at 500 yards, laid waste the vineyards and forests in their paths and progressed at a speed of a mile and a quarter an hour. Airplanes are being used for the first time to watch the progress of the eruption and special signaling stations have been established at various strategic points, giving confidence to the people in the fact that they are being protected. Special units of the Red Cross, with all supplies, have been dispatched to care for the homeless wanderers and provide food and shelter for them.

The congestion caused by the automobiles of tourists, curiosity seekers, and amateur relief workers in the affected area became so great that Prefect Pericoli and Generals Straco and Battaglia have issued orders that no car shall circulate in the district without permission.

Funds and offers of help have begun to pour in from all over the world. Pope Pius and King Victor Emmanuel have each given 50,000 lire, an Italian newspaper in New York has cabled 100,000 lire and the various municipalities throughout Italy are sending contributions.

The Leviathan, the world's largest liner, rebuilt and refurbished at a cost of $8,200,000, is making her trial trip to the waters in the neighborhood of Bermuda. With flags flying and guests of the United States shipping board, it is one of the most luxurious trips ever made. On her return she will go into the regular trans-Atlantic trade, starting July 4th from New York to Cherbourg and Southampton.

Confident that the government will finish the twelve-month period ending June 30th with a surplus of $200,000,000, President Harding told government officials at the "business" meeting June 18th that he expected greater economies to be effected during the next fiscal year.

North Carolina has taken a forward step along humanitarian lines in that she has substituted rewards of good behavior for the lash as punishment of bad behavior in her prisons and convict camps.

A gift of $150,000 to be distributed among 15 hospitals in the United States and Canada to promote the use of insulin in the treatment of diabetes is announced by John D. Rockefeller, Jr. The hospitals are in all sections of the country.

A. B. Stroup has been appointed head of the prohibition forces in North Carolina, to succeed R. B. Sams, transferred. Mr. Stroup's headquarters will be in High Point.

General Gouraud, of the French army, "the lion of the Argonne," will arrive in the United States June 30th, to be the guest of the Rainbow division during a six weeks' tour of the United States.

Asa G. Candler, the 72-year-old Atlanta capitalist and coco-cola king, on June 20th was married to a Mrs. Ragin, of Atlanta, a former stenographer. Rev. Ben R. Lacy performed the ceremony.

The South Carolina Railroad Commission has announced a decision to the effect that it is ordering the three and six-tenths cents a mile railroad passenger fare in South Carolina abolished and the three cent fare, authorized by state statute, to become effective.

As a last act before starting on his western trip President Harding ordered the release of more than a score of federal prisoners convicted of violating war laws.

June 21st, the longest day in the year, proved the hottest in many sections of the United States. However, in New Mexico and some other sections the temperature dropped so low that ice formed.

Secretary of State Hughes startled official and diplomatic Washington on June 23d with the announcement that he and British Ambassador Geddes had entered into a formal agreement contingent upon participation of the United States in the world court of the League of Nations. The announcement discloses what is regarded as misleading assumption on the part of Mr. Hughes in anticipating the course of American foreign policy as carried on with the advice and consent of the Senate. The formal understanding entered into, it is asserted, can be justified only on the theory that the state department expects the country and the senate to approve the Hughes idea of American participation in the world court.

CHILDREN

SCHOOL CLOSED IN MAY

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl nine years old; I go to Sunday School; my teacher's name is Mrs. Goodman. I like her fine. Our pastor's name is Rev. J. W. Goodman. We all like him fine. Our school was out the 10th of May and I was promoted to the second grade; my school teacher's name was Miss Archie McPhaul and I liked her very much. I am spending the week at Grandpa's and I want to surprise my mother and father.

Your little unknown friend,
Lessie Brown.

Red Springs, N. C.

A TWIN SISTER

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl 13 years old. This is my second letter to you. Papa takes the Standard and I enjoy reading the letters and stories. I have seven sisters and a twin sister; her name is Elizabeth. I go to Antioch High School; my teacher's name is Miss Sadie Culbreth. I like her fine. I was promoted to the seventh grade last year. I am spending a week at Grandpa's and I want to surprise my mother and father. I had better close for fear of the waste basket.

Your friend,
Rebecca Brown.

Red Springs, N. C.

A SPLENDID PASTOR

Dear Standard:

I am 14 years of age. I go to Sunday School at Cornelius. Rev. R. C. Clontz is our pastor. He is a splendid pastor and we all love him very much. Miss Laurine Beard is my Sunday School teacher and I like her fine. I go to the Cornelius High School and will be in the tenth grade next term. Father takes the Standard and I enjoy reading the nice letters and stories. I will close by answering the question Margaret Wicker asked in her third letter to the Standard: The shortest verse in the Bible is Jesus wept, found in John 11th chapter and 35th verse. I also want to ask, What is the longest verse in the Bible? As this is my first letter I hope to see it in print.

Your unknown friend,
Susie McConnell.

Cornelius, N. C.

AFRAID OF WASTEBASKET

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl 11 years old. I go to Sunday School every Sunday I can. My teacher's name is Miss Margaret Hudson. I like her fine. I have one brother and one sister. I will close for fear of the waste basket.

Your friend,
Sara Frances Cunningham.

MEASLES INTERFERED

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl six years old. I have been going to school but our school is out now. My teacher's name was Miss Brooks. I sure did like her. I passed to the second grade. I was in a play at commencement but I had the measles and could not be in it. I have a little sister named Sarah Margaret, but we call her "Peggy;" she can walk now. I have a pet kitten named Jimmy; he is black. I have written you twice before and neither one of them reached the waste basket, so I hope this one will not either.

Your friend,
Jean Smith.

Red Springs, N. C.

FEED DOLLS ON MUD CAKES?

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl four years old. My daddy takes your paper and I enjoy hearing mamma read the letters and stories in it. I have two dolls; their names are Sarah and Princess. My sister and I have a play house; we keep our dolls in it. We make mud cakes and have a good time playing. I must close as I want to surprise my Mamma and Daddy.

Your little friend,
Flora McNair Smith.

Red Springs, N. C.

THE LITTLE GIRL AND THE GARDEN

The hollyhocks grew in an even row in the little garden that belonged to the vacant house. They stood so stiff and straight that their colored ruffles never got tossed by the "silly breezes," as they called the summer wind. When raindrops drenched the garden the hollyhocks lifted their heads high above the spattering mud and sand.

Over in a corner grew the pansies, a cheerful little colony, always happy and good-natured.

The hollyhocks were always reproving them for their shortcomings. The pansies were careless and untidy, they said.

It is true that the pansies' faces were often smudged. That was because they were too close to the ground to keep from being spattered by the mud and soiled by the dust. They could not help themselves, but the hollyhocks did not understand that.

Some of the other garden flowers thought the hollyhocks a little too hard on their small neighbors and said so. But the hollyhocks expected every one else to be as proud and particular as they were themselves.

The pansies tried hard to please their tall, dignified neighbors; but they would no sooner stand stiff and straight than down they would go once more. Then if a shower happened to come along, the hollyhocks were shocked all over again.

One day it was rumored in the garden that a family was about to move into the little brown house. The news got round somehow that in the family there was a little blue-eyed girl. The pansies fluttered with excitement when they heard that, and even the hollyhocks looked interested.

On a golden afternoon in June there was a stir and a bustle in the small house. "The little girl will soon find her garden," all the flowers said to one another.

The hollyhocks drew themselves up and waited proudly.

"Now, pansies," the tallest hollyhock said, "if you want the little girl to like you, have your face clean and hold up your hearts as high as you can. Don't lean over and snuff the grass."

The pansies promised to do their best. But when the day came they were in such a flutter and bobbed about at such a rate that they got their faces smudged with dust.

Every flower was ready. The pink roses by the gate were already nodding a welcome, blossomy bushes were ringing their golden bells, and the graceful lilies had practiced their manners perfectly. The little pansies nudged one another and tried to keep from laughing aloud.

Suddenly the gate was flung open, and a voice cried: "O, the garden, the dear, dear garden!"

There was a flutter of white skirts and apron strings, and down the garden walk a joyous little girl came running. The flowers knew by the look in her eyes that she was going to love them.

A group of bright nasturtiums peered anxiously from behind a snowball bush, and a row of frilly pinks ducked their heads and curtsied politely. The hollyhocks, straight as soldiers, glanced over toward the corner to see if the pansies were in order.

"I should like to shake them!" the tallest hollyhock snapped. "Just look at the silly little things hanging their heads!"

For the pansies, suddenly shy and timid, were hiding their faces in the grass. Already they loved the little girl, but in their hearts was the thought: "What if we should not please her!"

The child danced merrily up to the row of hollyhocks. "Hello, you nice old things!" she said.

The proud flowers stiffened. They wondered whether she were treating them with the proper amount of respect.

She had a happy greeting for the graceful lilies, for the snowball bush, for the roses, the petunias, and the pinks. Then all at once she gave a little cry. Running to a corner of the garden, she clasped her hands and bent low.

"O you darlings!" she said. "You blessed little things! I hoped you would be here, and here you are!"

An instant later she was running toward the house. "Mother," the flowers heard her call, "didn't I say I knew there would be pansies?"

That night when the pansies had gone to sleep, each with a happy smile on its small face, the other flowers, wakeful, talked the matter over in the moonlight.

"I wonder," said the proudest hollyhock of all, "Why she loved the pansies so when they didn't even hold up their heads to greet her?"

A pink rose nodded thoughtfully. "I think," was her answer, "our little girl understood why the pansies hung their heads."—Elizabeth Thornton Turner.

THE PICNIC

By Mary C. Hamilton

"Mother, may we have a picnic for our birthday party this year?" asked James of his mother. James and Janie were twins of seven and were very devoted to each other.

"Why certainly, if that is what you want."

"We'll have our nearest friends, for we can't have everybody. Let's just have fourteen, so that we'll have one for each of our years." Janie was ready to plan for it.

"Yes, and let's take Rover for sure. He'll be nice to romp with us." James loved his dog.

"All right, you may run invite your friends now if you choose. Tell them to come at 5:00 o'clock."

At five the next day eight boys and eight girls started down the road with smiling mother. Mother had sent a servant on ahead with a huge hamper of "eats." They were going to a lovely green spot beside a placid lake which lay near their home. Rover frolicked along in front and the children thoroughly enjoyed the walk to the picnic grounds.

They played around in the grass until mother called them to supper.

And my! what a spread! There were so many things that children love; and at the end was a freezer of ice-cream and a large birthday cake.

After supper they grew rather restless and wandered around until mother had a hard time keeping them interested in anything.

"James! James! Mother! get him!" Janie rushed to her mother and pointed to the lake.

Mother rushed to the side and—Where was he? But her thoughts were interrupted by a sharp bark. There was Rover swimming toward them with his teeth in James' blouse.

When Rover had been petted, Janie hugged James until her clothes were almost as wet as his.

Of course that was the end of the picnic and they all went home.

As soon as the twins had dry clothes on they began to unwrap their presents. What a lot of presents they did get!

"What a nice birthday we had," they confided to mother as she tucked them in bed that night.

"Yes, and I certainly am glad we took Rover along," added Janie, as she kissed James.

BOBBY'S "REALLY-TRULY MAGIC"

Bobby was in a bad humor, and in a corner, pouting.

When his mother came home from market, she noticed the cloud which overshadowed the usually bright face of her boy, and asked, "Why, what's the matter, sonny?"

"Nobody'll do a thing for me," came the sour reply, while a big tear slowly trickled down the boy's cheek.

"Well, well, perhaps we can change things a bit. Wait until I take off my hat and coat, and we'll talk the matter over. I think I know a bit of magic which will do the trick."

"Magic," repeated Bobby to himself after mother had vanished into the kitchen; "magic—well, what on earth does mother mean?"

He was anxious for her return. "Magic" stories were his favorites. He was anxious to her this one.

"Oh, mother! Please tell me the magic story!" he cried, when she returned.

"Oh, my dear, it isn't much of a story; just a little secret or magic word which I want to whisper in your ear."

More mystified than ever, Bobby held his ear close to mother while she whispered something to him. The tears weren't flowing any more, and Bobby wiped his eyes, grinned, and then jumped up and ran to the kitchen.

"Oh, Sarah," he cried, smiling his brightest smile, "won't you please give me a glass of milk?"

"Why, of course I will," replied the cook, hastening to get the nice, cold milk.

Bobby took the milk, gave cook a hearty "Thank you, Sarah," and hastened back into the room where his mother was sewing.

"It works, mother!" he cried gleefully. "I'm going to try it all day."

Away he ran to play. In a short time, as Bobby was busy swinging in the yard, under the shady trees, the rope broke, and he was landed on his back in the grass. He wasn't hurt a bit, but it was so provoking to have the swing break just as he was having a good time!

Running toward the barn, he remembered the "magic" word.

"Oh, John," he called to the hired man, "my swing's broken. Won't you please come and fix it for me?"

John was very busy just then, and hesitated a bit, but seeing the bright smile on the little boy's face, and hearing the magic word, he laid down his tools and hastened to fix the swing. "Thank you, John," called Bobby, and the hired man smiled back, and said he was glad to do it.

All day long Bobby used the magic word. When evening came, mother said: "Well, Bobby boy, how does the magic word work?"

"Just fine, mother, dear! Only I've found that there's another word to be used with yours. One to get done what you want now, and the other to get something done the next time. You see, I say 'please' first and when I get what I want, I say 'thank you,' too.

"They're the first 'really-truly' magic words I've ever heard of," said Bobby. Then he added, with a bright smile, "Mother, won't you please let me say 'thank you' again?"—Chester E. Schuler, in S. S. Times.

What Made Him Sore

Mother—"Herbert, you mustn't ask your papa so many question. They irritate him."

Herbert (shaking his head)—"It ain't the questions, ma. It's the answers he can't give that makes him sore!"—Ex.

Marriages and Deaths

MARRIED

Brooks-Neill—At the home of the bride, May 28, by Dr. T. M. McConnell, Mr. Leonard Brooks and Miss Eleanor Neill, both of Columbus, Ga.

Laney-Bigger—At the home of the bride's grandmother, Columbus, Ga., Mr. Stephen Laney, Jr., of Pageland, S. C., and Miss Margaret Bigger, of Nankepoh, Ga., on June 3d, Dr. T. M. McConnell officiating.

Henderson-Burnside—In Columbus, Ga., June 10th, by Dr. T. M. McConnell, Mr. Wm. L. Henderson and Miss Myrtle Burnside, both of Phoenix City, Ala.

Beverly-Preer—In Columbus, Ga., June 14th, by Dr. T. M. McConnell, Mr. R. L. Beverly and Miss Mary Preer, both of Columbus, Ga.

Harrington-McNeill — On June 9, 1923, at the home of the bride, by Rev. E. B. Carr, Mr. John Harrington, of Rigeland, S. C., and Miss Annie Jane McNeill, of Broadway, N. C.

Miller-Leach—At the home of the bride, Alderson, W. Va., Mr. Marshall Lee Miller, of Huntington, W. Va., and Miss Mary Pauline Leach, on June 6, 1923, by Rev. J. E. Flow, D.D.

DEATHS

MRS. LAURA E. McDONALD.

As the day of March 13, 1923, drew to a close, God called away from Black River Presbyterian Church and the community of Ivanhoe, N. C., Mrs. Laura E. McDonald, wife of the late Rev. Kenneth McDonald, to the rest that remains for His children.

Laura Electra McDuffie was born May 7, 1854, in the historic Black River chapel community. She was the daughter of James and Catharine Murphy McDuffie, the youngest save one of ten children, six of which lived to maturity. She received her education from the best teachers of her section, among whom were Rev. S. C. Alexander, D.D., Mr. Archibald Ray Black and Miss Hettie James. She was married November 8, 1876, to Rev. Kenneth McDonald, of Rockfish, Cumberland County, who soon afterward was installed pastor of Black River Church and who nobly served in this capacity for nearly a quarter of a century. Having no children of their own, they adopted a daughter of his brother, Mr. John McDonald, Margaret Janet, at the age of three years, whom they tenderly reared to womanhood and whose devotion to her adopted parents was beautiful to behold. Their dwelling was the gathering place, the happy and ever-ready retreat for a number of nieces and nephews, and they imbibed deeply the sweetness and marked spirituality of that home.

Mrs. McDonald's life was spent in the neighborhood in which she was born and reared. For almost 50 years her church and community have glowed in the warmth of her personality and have received the richness of her service, and now bereft of both with only a day's illness as preparation, we can scarcely comprehend our loss. She was a tower of strength—the object of almost worshipful affection—in her own household, a vital force in her community; but probably the best of her time, talents and energies was given to the work of her church. She fully accepted the responsibility that was hers as a minister's wife, and her care increased rather than diminished after her husband's death. Black River Sunday School feels crippled indeed without the help of her wonderful teachings gathered from years of experience and study, her valuable and interested counsel and the inspiration of her presence itself. For 45 years president, or some other important official, and always a guiding force in the Woman's Missionary Society, stimulating its varied activities and ever assuming a mammoth share of the work herself, the Auxiliary in her death suffers a blow from which only the grace of God will enable us to rally. In all phases of church work we shall mourn that consecrated, efficient service that she so long delighted to give.

Her interest and sympathy extended to all those of her acquaintance. She was happiest when helping some one. She helped wholeheartedly, and there is hardly a person within the bounds of the section in which she lived that has not in some kind of difficulty received assistance from her. We could always depend on her complete understanding and generous judgment of a situation and her prompt espousal of a worthy cause. Although her years numbered nearly the allotted span of life on earth, we never associated age with her; for she entered with zest into the life of the community, she sympathized warmly with the shortcomings, achievements, ambitions and desires of the young folk, and possessed great courage and strength of mind herself. She was a true lover of little children and when in more vigorous health, found her greatest recreation in association with them.

In the last years of her life as her strength became less, she loved especially the quiet and peace of her home and the companionship of her books and magazines. Her wide and discriminate reading gave her a broad vision and a goodly share of the world's best knowledge. A beautiful optimism resulting from an unshakable faith in God and humanity was one of her chief characteristics. Young and old, rich and poor, cultured and illiterate, all loved and esteemed her as a wise, warm-hearted, sympathetic friend.

All saw in her the likeness of the Master she so joyfully and faithfully served.

Our hearts are wrung with the keen pain and sorrow of our loss. The days ahead loom lonely and sad without her. We are faint hearted as we think of carrying on our work without her help and encouragement. But we thank God for her life among us and we trust that the memory of that life may inspire and strengthen us to greater and more faithful endeavor. "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven."
M. C. M.

Our Father! through the coming year
We know not what shall be,
But we would leave without a fear
Its ordering all to Thee.

Dr. John Grant Newman says: "Team work is as valuable in church work as on the gridiron, but it takes us forever to learn it."

Renew Your Health At Nature's Fountain

Without the Expense and Loss of Time Necessary for a Visit to the Spring

THE CRISIS

There comes a time in the life of practically every man and woman when their digestive or eliminative organs, or both, fail to respond to drugs prepared by human skill. In fact drugs seem to do them about as much harm as good for their systems rebel against all drugs. These are the cases which physicians call "stubborn" and "chronic" for the reason that they persist in spite of drug treatment. We do not refer to incurable diseases such as cancer and consumption, but to that larger class of functional disorders which we meet every day, where the organs of digestion and elimination are impaired.

For this class of cases our best physicians and our big city specialists send their wealthy patients to the mineral springs where, in the great majority of cases they are permanently restored or decidedly benefited. But what about the poor man who has not the money or the busy man or woman who cannot spare the time to spend several weeks or possibly months at a health resort? Shall circumstances deny them the restoration to health which Nature has provided? Read our answer in the coupon at the bottom of this page.

We have the utmost confidence in the Shivar Mineral Spring Water for it has made us thousands of friends in all parts of America and even in foreign countries, whose faces we have never seen. Yet we count them our friends for the Shivar Spring Water has bound them to us by lasting gratitude.

We ask you to read their letters, a few samples of which we publish below for your benefit, and if you find among them any encouragement as to your own health do not hesitate to accept our offer which has no limits or conditions except those shown on the coupon.

INDIGESTION

I was suffering with indigestion, stomach and liver disorders and all its train of horrifying phenomena for several months. I had lived on milk, soft eggs, shredded wheat, a very insufficient diet for an active working man, and, of course, from disease and starvation was in a very low state of nervous vitality and general debility. I ordered ten gallons of your Mineral Water which I used continuously, reordering when necessary, and in four months gained twenty-nine pounds, was strong and perfectly well, and have worked practically every day since. It acts as a general renovator of the system. I prescribe it in my practice, and it has in every instance had the desired effects. It is essential to use this water in as large quantities as possible, for its properties are so happily blended and in such proportion that they will not disturb the most delicate system. It is purely Nature's remedy.
A. L. A., M. D.

I feel it my duty to suffering humanity to make public announcement of the benefits I have derived from Shivar Spring Water. I have been a sufferer for the past twenty-five years from indigestion and dyspepsia. After one week's trial of Shivar Water I commenced to improve, and after drinking it for four weeks I gained fifteen pounds. I feel better and stronger than I have in twenty-five years. I strongly recommend this Water to any one with stomach trouble of any character. I am writing this voluntarily and trust it will fall in the hands of many who are so unfortunate as to be afflicted with indigestion and nervous dyspepsia.

C. V. T.

DYSPEPSIA

For many years I suffered with stomach trouble as a direct result of asthma. I consulted the very best specialist in this country, and spent quite a large sum of money in my endeavor to get relief. However, I had about come to the conclusion that my case was hopeless, but by accident I happened to get hold of one of your booklets, and decided to try Shivar Spring Water. After drinking the water for about three weeks I was entirely relieved, and since that time have suffered but little inconvenience from my trouble. I cheerfully recommend the use of your Water to any one that may be suffering from stomach trouble.
O. T. S.

It is a great pleasure to tell you that your Water has been a great benefit, I may say a great blessing, to me. My wife says it has helped me more than anything else I ever tried. I have been, for thirty years, a sufferer from stomach trouble.
REV. E. H. E.

RHEUMATISM

I have tested your Spring Water in several cases of rheumatism, chronic indigestion, kidney and bladder troubles, and in nervous and sick headaches, and find that it has acted nicely in each case. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the liver, kidneys and bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter.
C. A. C., M. D.

I suffered with indigestion and kidney trouble, and a year ago was stricken with acute articular rheumatism; was helpless for months, and since using your Spring Water I am walking without any crutch and improving daily. Indigestion much relieved. I wish I could write Shivar Spring Water in the sky so that the world could become acquainted with it.
MRS. T. K.

RENAL AND CYSTIC

I suffered for eight years with kidney trouble and inflammation of the bladder to the extent that I would have to get up during the night some five or six times. After using this water only a few days, I am entirely relieved and suffer no more effect of the trouble whatever.
J. P. D.

My wife has had a bad kidney trouble for several years. She has been using the water only about three weeks and it has already made her a new woman. Her color is much improved, her appetite is all that she could wish for, her digestion seems to be perfect. We give Shivar Springs credit for it all.
T. G. S.

Fill Out This Coupon and Mail It Today
Shivar Springs,
Box 3T, Shelton, S. C.
Gentlemen: I accept your offer and enclose herewith three dollars ($3.00) for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Spring Water. I agree to give it a fair trial in accordance with the instructions which you will send, and if I report no benefit therefrom you agree to refund the price of the water in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns, which I agree to return within thirty days.
Name
P. O.
Express Office
Please write distinctly.

TWO GREAT CAUSES CLOSE TO The HEART of Presbyterians

Depend Upon a Special Offering
NEXT SUNDAY, JULY FIRST

I. PROTESTANT RELIEF IN EUROPE

Who can measure the debt we owe to the Reformed Churches of Europe? Where would Protestant Christianity in America have been without their sacrifices and sufferings in the centuries past?

The situation is now reversed. They face extinction in Europe unless the Protestant Churches in America come to their rescue. (See abstract of the report on this in the Church papers of recent date).

II. THE CHRISTIAN SABBATH

Commercial interests, with immense money backing, are making a great assault on the Christian Sabbath in this country, seeking to introduce the "Continental Sabbath" of Europe—a day of amusement and open business. We believe that the very cornerstone of our faith rests upon the Christian Sabbath. When it is gone, our first line defense has surrendered.

THE RECENT ACTION OF OUR ASSEMBLY

Numerous "Specials" have been urged upon our Assembly until it was endorsing four extra calls in the last half of the year. Some relief was sought. Without a dissenting vote, the Assembly decided to confine all Extra Calls, over and above the budget, to one Sabbath in July and one in December. This is a forward looking, constructive step.

By this action, Protestant Relief in Europe and the Lord's Day Alliance, both with the fullest endorsement of the Assembly for several years, have been assigned the First Sunday in July for their day, instead of a day each as formerly. These two causes are not very far apart after all in their appeal, and it is perhaps fortunate that they are hereafter linked together for this First Assembly Special Call.

WILL OUR CHURCHES LET THEM SUFFER?

An effort has been made to protect the churches and their budgets by this action. Now then, shall our Churches let these causes suffer? The Assembly by this action, contemplated that the churches would appreciate this step and do their best for these causes.

The Assembly asks for Protestant Relief $80,000 and for the Lord's Day Alliance $20,000. All undesignated funds will be divided 80 per cent to the first and 20 per cent to the second. A Joint Treasurer for the two Causes will serve the Assembly.

Make all remittances to Miss Margaret Vance, Treasurer, 154 Fifth Ave., North, Nashville, Tenn.

The General Assembly's Stewardship Committee

Nashville, Tennessee

Two comfortable rooms, bath, and good meals at "Ferndale" Cottage, near Auditorium.

MRS. T. F. MARROW
MONTREAT, N. C.

THE WESTMINSTER TEACHERS' BUREAU SPECIALIZES

in securing Christian teachers, officers and helpers for schools, colleges and universities—private, public and denominational—and in helping trained, Christian teachers and helpers to larger fields of service. Write today. Henry H. Sweets, Manager, 410 Urban Building, Louisville, Ky.

ALL HEALING SPRINGS

In the Brushy Mountains of North Carolina, 1400 ft. elevation. Rates $12.50 to $17.50 per week. The place of "good eats," six miles west of Taylorsville, N. C., on State highway No. 75 from Statesville, N. C. to Lenoir, N. C. Only 40 miles to Blowing Rock, N. C. The finest mineral water and the most ideal climate in the temperate zone. Two large comfortable buildings with or without bath. Rooms full of windows or sleeping porches if desired. Capacity 125. The place for a real vacation. Fried chicken, country ham, the spice of life from the Brushy Mountains, with beans, potatoes, and corn fresh from the farm, and milk, butter and real hen's eggs. In the mountains and at a mineral spring. Hotel open June 1st. Write for particulars.

O F. POOLE, Proprietor
Taylorsville, N. C.

EXPERT KODAK FINISHING

Developing and printing by experts. Most beautiful work guaranteed at all times. Satisfaction or no charge. Developing 6 exposure rolls 10 cents, 10 and 12 exposure rolls 15 cents, film packs 20 cents per pack. Printing 1 5-8 by 2 1-2, 3 cents; 2 1-4 by 3 1-4, 4 cents; 2 1-2 by 4 1-2, 5 cents; 3 1-4 by 5 1-2, 6 cents. Quick delivery. Send one film to test our service.

LIGONS DRUG STORE
Spartanburg, S. C.

GERMAN'S HEAR STRANGE PROPHECY

A new John the Baptist has appeared in Germany. His name is Hans von Menzel. The son of a notorious gambler who was once immensely wealthy but committed suicide when losses at the gambling table impoverished him, Hans has turned to a life different by every possible contrast from the life of his father. Dressing himself in shirt and sandals, with a long staff in his hand and with arms and legs quite bare, he goes about the streets and parks of Berlin, and even into the cafes where war profiteers are gorging themselves, and preaches things as startling as the Jews in Palestine heard from the lips of John the Baptist. Even at the present almost vanished value of the mark, Hans insists that five marks a day are sufficient for him to live on—and this amount he begs from passersby on the streets. When the little tin whistle he carries brings the children around him, he is very gentle with them, singing to them old German love songs, composed long before war brought hate into the land. But when he speaks to adult groups, especially if they look prosperous, he is stern as doom. These are sentences quoted as typical of his preaching:

"You are rich but most evil. If you could see yourselves as God sees you, you would be frightened. You are as ugly as sin, beasts wallowing in your trough. I am sorry for you. God will not blame you. He understands. But unless you cleanse yourselves, put cruelty out of the

Tennessee Military Institute

A school where orderliness, respect for government, and the desire to make good replace recklessness and the "don't care" attitude; where every boy is put on his mettle to measure himself by established school standards. Good name of school rests on thorough academic work, efficient military training and physical development, and the spirit of T. M. I., which inspires boys to their best achievement. Sound government through sensible restraints and incentives to good conduct. Health record unsurpassed. R. O. T. C. Modern buildings and equipment, laboratories, gymnasium, swimming pool, cinder track. All athletics. Charges moderate. For Catalog address

COL. C. R. ENDSLEY, Supt., Box R
SWEETWATER :: :: TENNESSEE

CLIP THIS NOTICE

And save it as a reminder to write for your copy of the handsomely illustrated catalog of the Standard Piano Club. As an individual buyer you are weak for you can only order one Piano and must therefore pay the highest price no matter whether you order from an agent or from the Factory. But if you place your order through our "Club of One Hundred" buyers you get the benefit of the lowest factory price which is given only on orders for One Hundred instruments or more. Others have tried it and are delighted. Write for booklet containing hundreds of letters from old Club members indorsing the plan, praising the instruments and expressing their appreciation of the big saving in price, the convenient terms and the many other attractive features provided by the Club. Address the managers, Ludden & Bates, Standard Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

WHEN WRITING OUR ADVERTISERS PLEASE MENTION THIS PUBLICATION

RANDOLPH-MACON INSTITUTE, Danville, Virginia, for Girls. College preparatory and special course for those not wishing to go to college. Vocal and Instrumental Music, Art and Expression. Attractive home life. Gymnasium. Branch of the Randolph-Macon System. Rates $500. Catalogue. Address Chas. G. Evans, A. M., Principal, Box C, Danville, Virginia.

THE SALISBURY MARBLE CO.

Salisbury, N. C.

Anything in...
CEMETERY WORK

Satisfaction our Motto
A card will bring full information

NORFOLK SOUTHERN RAILROAD COMPANY

Passenger Schedules
Effective January 28, 1923
Charlotte, N. C.
Daily Except Sunday as Shown
Lv. 7:30 A. M.

Raleigh and intermediate points. Connection for Belhaven, Norfolk, and intermediate points.

For tickets, Pullman reservations and information address or apply to

J. K. POWELL, D. T. A.
P. A. JENKINS, C. T. A.

Educate Your Boy Under Christian Influences

Safeguard his morals, start him in with high ideals and a sound foundation with a thorough course at the

Presbyterian College of South Carolina

Renowned for its Christian teaching, beautiful campus, modern buildings, strong faculty, excellent athletic teams, field and coach. R. O. T. C., high standard of scholarship.

For catalogue and information, write—
Dr. D. M. DOUGLAS, President,

Clinton, S. C.

THE LOUISVILLE PRESBYTERIAN THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
BRILLIANT FACULTY MODERN CURRICULUM

Situated in the heart of the institutional section of a great metropolis, with all the added advantages of these associated institutions

Write for particulars to JOHN M. VANDER MEULEN, President
109 East Broadway, Louisville, Ky.

STOP! LOOK! LISTEN!

There is danger ahead if you are not saving part of what you earn. The world is a hard place for those without money. There is no friend like "ready money" when sickness, or old age comes.

Be fair to yourself and family by taking Building and Loan shares. Shares cost twenty-five cents per week and usually mature in 333 weeks. Net you 6 1/4 per cent at maturity.

NEW SERIES OPENS MARCH FIRST

MECHANICS PERPETUAL BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION

J. H. Wearn,
President.

207 N. Tryon St.
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

E. J. CAFFREY,
Sec'y & Treas.

SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY

Announces

REDUCED ROUND-TRIP RATES

to

Wrightsville Beach, N. C.,

and Other Resorts

From	to	Week-end
Charlotte, N. C.	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	$ 8.60
Lincolnton, N. C.	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	9.95
Shelby, N. C.	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	10.90
Rutherfordton, N. C.	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	12.05

Tickets on sale Fridays and Saturdays of each week, May 18th to September 2, 1923. Limited to reach original starting point Tuesday following date of sale.

Sunday excursion tickets Charlotte, N. C., to Wilmington, N. C., and return $4.50, good going on train No. 20 each Saturday night or train No. 14 each Sunday morning, returning not later than on train No. 19 following Monday morning.

Season tickets Charlotte, N. C., to Wrightsville Beach, N. C. and return $11.30, sold any day May 15th to September 30th, with final limit to October 31, 1923.

For sleeping car reservation or other information apply to ticket agent or address,

E. W. LONG
Division Passenger Agent
Charlotte, N. C.

PEACE INSTITUTE

RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

For Young Women

Established 1857

College Courses. Preparatory Courses for Standard College Requirements. Diplomas in Piano, Voice, Art, Expression and Home Economics. Commercial-Secretarial Course. Teacher Training Course. Specialists in all departments.

LULA B. WYNNE HALL, HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

MARY OWEN GRAHAM, President

Flora Macdonald College

Red Springs, North Carolina

Where the Spirit of SERVICE and LOYALTY Abounds

3,000 Alumnae engaged in 60 Occupations

10 Graduates "On the Firing Line"

Courses leading to A. B., B. S., B. M. Degrees

Catalog on Request

Address the Registrar

JAMES M. McMICHAEL
Church Architect
Charlotte, N. C.

TYPEWRITERS

New and Rebuilt
For Sale, Rent or Exchange
S. H. WILEY
Salisbury, N. C.

WHEN WRITING OUR ADVERTISERS
PLEASE MENTION THIS PUBLICATION

heart, learn the joy of love, suffering and sacrifice, there will be greater torment. Things you delight in are doomed. You are destroying your souls by overeating. One cannot love God and his own belly. Eat today, starve tomorrow. Unless hate dies, your soul will die, and the body dies when the soul is dead."—Continent.

O God, in whom we live and move,
Thy love is law, thy law is love;
Thy present Spirit waits to fill
The soul which comes to do thy will.
—Samuel Longfellow.

The more truth an error has in it the more dangerous it is.

STATEMENT

SOUTHERN LIFE AND TRUST COMPANY
GREENSBORO, N. C.

Condition December 31, 1922, as Shown by Statement Filed
Amount of Capital paid up in cash $ 1,000,000.00
Amount of Ledger Assets December 31st of previous year, $4,186,355.95; Total 4,186,355.95
Premium Income, $1,562,713.95; Miscellaneous, $339,154.00; Total 1,901,868.85
Disbursements—To Policyholders, $576,750.21; Miscellaneous $638,486.43; Total 1,215,236.64
Business written during year—Number of Policies 12,898; Amt. 12,157,553.00
Business in force at end of year—No. of Policies 29,097; Amt. 49,148,419.00

Assets

Value of Real Estate (less amount of encumbrances) $ 51,516.80
Mortgage Loans on Real Estate 2,568,969.03
Loans secured by pledge of Bonds, Stocks, or other collateral 11,216.59
Loans made to Policyholders on this Company's Policies assigned as collateral 1,264,373.73
Net Value of Bonds and Stocks 379,350.89
Cash 520,898.50
Interest and Rents due and accrued 85,832.79
Premiums uncollected and deferred 194,472.01
Assets Trust Department 1,257,508.19
All other Assets, as detailed in statement 69,762.53
Total $ 6,412,901.15
Less Assets not admitted 66,794.88
Total admitted Assets $ 6,346,106.27

Liabilities

Net Reserve, including Disability Provision $ 4,535,162.40
Present value of amounts not yet due on Supplementary Contracts, etc. 44,377.17
Policy Claims 7,850.00
Dividends left with Company at interest 7,096.67
Premiums paid in advance 2,048.30
Unearned Interest and Rent paid in advance 63.77
Commissions due to Agents 9,541.62
Estimated Amount payable for Federal, State, and other Taxes 9,500.00
Dividends due Policyholders 13,553.63
Amounts set apart for future dividends 361,953.78
Liabilities, Accident and Health Department 17,371.10
Liabilities Trust Department 139,825.09
All other Liabilities, as detailed in statement 56,234.62
Total amount of all Liabilities, except Capital $ 5,204,578.15
Capital paid up in Cash $1,000,000.00
Unassigned funds (surplus) 141,528.12 $ 1,141,528.12
Total Liabilities $ 6,346,106.27

Business in the State of North Carolina During 1922

	ORDINARY		INDUSTRIAL
	No.	Amount	No.	Amount
Policies on the lives of citizens of said State in force December 31st of previous year	15,684	$32,735,093	2,975	$ 407,243
Policies on the lives of citizens of said State issued during the year	1,974	5,180,638	4,634	742,416
Total	17,658	$37,915,731	7,609	$ 1,149,659
Deduct ceased to be in force during the year	1,808	$ 5,015,951	4,316	$ 638,380
Policies in force December 31st	15,850	$32,899,780	3,293	$ 511,279
Losses and Claims unpaid December 31st of previous year	5	$ 6,000
Losses and Claims incurred during year	91	190,467	14	1,083.13
Total	96	$ 196,467	14	$ 1,083.13
Losses and Claims settled during the year, in full, $189,700.13	80	$ 188,617	14	$ 1,083.13
Losses and Claims unpaid December 31st	7	7,850
Premium Income—Total		$ 1,063,875.16

President, A. W. McAlister; Secretary, Arthur Watt; Assistant Treasurer, T. D. Dupuy; Actuary, F. E. Cann; Home Office, Greensboro, N. C. Attorney for Service: STACEY W. WADE, Insurance Commissioner, Raleigh, N. C.

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA

Insurance Department

Raleigh, March 5, 1923.

I, STACEY W. WADE, Insurance Commissioner, do hereby certify that the above is a true and correct abstract of the statement of the Southern Life and Trust Company, of Greensboro, N. C., filed with this Department, showing the condition of said Company on the 31st day of December, 1922.

Witness my hand and official seal the day and date above written.

STACEY W. WADE,
Insurance Commissioner.

(Seal)

THE McCALLIE SCHOOL

Founded for Christian education, never more needed than today. Prepares boys for leading colleges and Government Academies. High academic standing. Small classes, individual attention. Military training. All athletics. Fine athletic field, and new concrete swimming pool.

Headmasters
S. J. McCallie, M. A., and
J. P. McCallie, M. A., Ph.D.

For catalog address The McCallie School
Mission Ridge Chattanooga, Tenn.

School Desks,
Opera Chairs,
Folding Chairs
Kindergarten Chairs,
Church Pews,
School Supplies,
Blackboards

Southern Desk Co., Hickory, N. C.

1854 COLUMBIA COLLEGE 1923
COLUMBIA, SOUTH CAROLINA

One of the South's oldest Colleges for the Christian Education of Young Women. Standard Courses leading to B. A. and B. S. Degrees. Strong Departments in Music, Art, Home Economics, Expression. Christian Atmosphere. Magnificent Plant. Write for Literature.

J. CALDWELL GUILDS, President

OAK RIDGE INSTITUTE OAK RIDGE, NORTH CAROLINA
T. E. Whitaker, President

Founded in 1852. Military. Courses thoroughly covering Literature, Science, Book-keeping, Short-hand, Typewriting, and Music. Eight buildings: electric lights, steam heat and shower baths. 350 acres in campus, athletic grounds, orchards, and farms. Beautiful lake nesting between hills covered with virgin forests. Healthful—1040 feet above sea level; accessible location near Greensboro. Same moral influences. Costs reasonable. $425 for the year. Fall session opens first Tuesday in September each year. Write for illustrated catalogue. Address OAK RIDGE INSTITUTE, Oak Ridge, N. C.

Queens College, Charlotte, N. C.

A High Grade Institution for the Education of Young Women

Christian Ideals constantly held before the Students; Christian Characters in the chair of each Department; Five Teachers with M. A. Degree; Two Teachers with Ph.D. Degree; Christian Atmosphere permeating the Student Body.

Location, the very best: Myers Park, Charlotte. Equipment rapidly reaching standard requirements. Curriculum equal to that of any institution in the State. Expenses very moderate indeed, considering advantages offered and work done.

Our Motto: "Christian Women for Christian Homes." Send us your daughter, support us in our administration and instruction, and we will return a thoroughly developed and fully refined Christian woman.

For catalogue and other information, write

WILLIAM H. FRAZER, President

Box 300
Charlotte, N. C.

Aberdeen & Rockfish Railroad

BETWEEN ABERDEEN AND FAYETTEVILLE

EAST BOUND			DISTANCE FROM ABERDEEN	STATIONS	DISTANCE FROM FAYETTEVILLE	WEST BOUND
Pass.	Local Freight	Pass.				Pass.	Local Freight	Pass.
DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY				DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY
NO. 14	NO. 22	NO. 38				NO. 41	NO. 21	NO. 15
f 7:00 pm	f 7:30 am	f 9:00 am	0	Lv. Aberdeen Ar.	45	s 6:30 pm	f 3:50 pm	f 8:30 am
f 7:19 pm	s 8:15 am	f 9:16 am	5	Ashley Heights	49	f 6:35 pm	f 3:20 pm	f 8:12 am
s 7:28 pm	s 8:36 am	f 9:26 am	9	Sanitorium	36	f 6:26 pm	f 3:05 pm	s 8:02 am
f 7:34 pm	f 8:39 am	f 9:30 am	10	Montrose	35	f 6:22 pm	f 3:00 pm	f 7:58 am
f 7:46 pm	f 8:51 am	f 9:38 am	13	Timberland	32	f 6:13 pm	f 2:45 pm	f 7:48 am
8:00 pm	s 9:55 am	f 9:53 am	19	Raeford	26	s 6:00 pm	s 2:25 pm
	s 10:13 am	f 10:08 am	24	Dundarrach	21	f 5:45 pm	s 1:25 pm
	f 10:21 am	f 10:15 am	26	Arabia	19	f 5:39 pm	f 1:15 pm
	s 10:40 am	s 10:29 am	30	Rockfish	15	s 5:25 pm	s 12:55 pm
	f 10:43 am	f 10:31 am	31	Hope Hills Jct.	14	s 5:22 pm	f 12:50 pm
	f 10:53 am	f 10:40 am	34	Fenix	11	f 5:13 pm	f 12:38 pm
	s 11:00 am	f 10:46 am	36	Clifton	9	s 5:08 pm	f 12:33 pm
	f 11:12 am	f 10:56 am	40	Skibo	5	f 5:00 pm	f 12:18 pm
	f 11:19 am	f 11:02 am	42	Owens	3	f 4:55 pm	f 12:11 pm
	11:30 am	s 11:15 am	45	Ar. Fayetteville Lv.	0	s 4:45 pm	12 noon

East and North bound trains have right of track over West and South bound trains of the same class.
All trains stop on flag at Lake field.

Mitchell College

(JUNIOR)

(Founded 1856 by Concord Presbytery)

Two years of standard, accredited college work—courses leading to Baccalaureate degrees—Excellent department of Music—Certificate courses in Home Economics and Secretarial.

MITCHELL ACADEMY

An accredited High School, with standard and flexible courses

Bible teaching emphasized throughout.

Teacher Training courses for secular and Sunday Schools.

Catalog on application.

W. F. Hollingsworth, Pres. Statesville, N. C.

Sparkles

History

Breathes there a little girl with soul so dead who never once or more has said:

"Open your mouth' and close your eyes."

"Tattletale! Tattletale!"

"Smarty had a party!"

"Mother look what he did!"

"Oh what a naughty word!"

"I've got all my lessons done, mother."

"Another story, daddy p-l-lease."

"Boo-hoo! All the other girls have one!"

"I'll come straight home, mother."

—E. J. K., in Life.

Brother Erasmus Co'npone is of the opinion "dat the chicken am de most usefulest animal what is. You can eat him before he is bo'n, and after he am daid."

Courtesy is the quality that keeps a woman smiling when a departing guest stands at the open screen and lets flies in.—Freemont Tribune.

We feel very kindly toward Poland, and we hope President Wojciechowski will make a name for himself.—Associated Editors.

It does not pay to be crooked; look at the corkscrews out of wrk.—Chicago Phoenix.

A telephone-pole never hits an automobile except in self-defence.—Toledo Blade.

FOR RENT—Six rooms in pleasant country home, comfortably furnished for light house-keeping. One mile from Black Mountain; half-mile from Y. M. C. A. Assembly Grounds at Blue Ridge; easily accessible to Montreat and Ridgecrest. Just off paved highway to Asheville.
A. G. RANDOLPH
Hendersonville, N. C.

WANTED—Minister for supply work for one month beginning middle of July. Address "Supply Work," care Presbyterian Standard, Charlotte, N. C.

No matter where you live you can get six per cent on your money. Free from taxes, risk and worry. Amounts received from $50 to $5,000. Write for free literature.

SECURITY SAVINGS AND LOAN CO.
Assets $1,011,288.30
F. W. DIXON, President - Birmingham, Ala.

The STIEFF TONE

Is famous with three generations of music lovers. It has never been duplicated. It is the expression of a passion for perfection that has actuated three generations of piano makers.

Chas. M. Stieff, Inc.,
Charlotte, N. C.
Please send catalogue and prices of Pianos.
Name _____
Address _____

CHAS. M. STIEFF, Inc.
Charlotte, N. C.

STIEFF PETIT GRAND
The smallest Grand Piano made that embodies all the essential qualities of the Concert Grand.

SORES

BOILS, CUTS and BURNS have been healed since 1820 with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 724 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Bilious Attacks

Are Usually Due to Constipation

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe. Try it today.

Nujol

A LUBRICANT—NOT A LAXATIVE

BELK BROS. CO.

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

WE HANDLE

HOME JOURNAL PATTERNS
PICTORIAL REVIEW PATTERNS

We carry the most extensive Stock probably in the State. Send us your Mail Orders on Patterns.

Some of the things you probably can't get else where as conveniently—Fleishers Wool Yarns, in almost any Shade and Kind.

All kinds of Knitting Threads and Crotchet in Silks or Cotton.

Correct in every detail—appealingly pretty—easy to make because of the Special Guide for Cutting and Construction.

Pictorial Review Patterns for July

20c to 35c
None Higher

Dress 1131, 35 cents

WARNER'S CORSETS—To fit any form—Back or Front Lace.

KAYSER'S ITALIAN SILK LINGERIE—

KAYSER'S SILK HOSE—In all the New Colors and styles: Gordon-Van Raalte-Lehigh-Merrell & Burson Hose: $1.50 to $4.95 All Silk.

GLOVES IN LONGS AND SHORTS—In all the New Leading Shades—in Kids—Chamoisettes & Silks—Niagara made and Kayser's: 98c to $2.95

NEW SUMMER SWEATERS

IN FIBRE SILK—Mohairs and Fine Wool.

IN THE SLIP.—Over and Tuxedo Styles from $4.95 to $12.50

A Home Journal Pattern

In SIZES
14 - 16 - 18
years

Voile and Lace are used in making model shown.

SEE HERE, BRETHERN

We advertise in but one religious paper, yet Methodist preachers predominate as to the clergy on our books. Now conducting a final test as to the value of a religious publication as an advertising medium. The argument stands against it.

THE MUTUAL BUILDING AND LOAN

Is the largest between Washington and New Orleans, and, we believe, the best in the U. S., but Presbyterian preachers don't seem to grasp these facts. Must we discontinue this ad? It's for you to decide, and that shortly.

JNO. R. PHARR,
President

E. L. KEESLER,
Secretary-Treasurer
Charlotte, N. C.

Opportunity Never Seeks

The man or woman without money. That is why you should save and steadily build up an account in a strong bank where the money will be ready for you when the right opportunity comes along.

Your account will be welcome here.

"National Bank Safety for Savings"

Charlotte National Bank

Resources Over $5,000,000.00

"The DeQuincey"—10-Piece Dining Room Suit, with 66-inch Buffet. In Two-Tone Walnut or Mahogany. $287.50. We prepay delivery charges to any point in North or South Carolina.

W. T. McCOY AND COMPANY, CHARLOTTE, N. C.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

A Religious Newspaper for the Family

Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.

Rev. J. R. Bridges, D.D., Charlotte, N. C., Editor

R. C. Reed, D.D., Columbia, S. C., Editor

Vol. LXIV

CHARLOTTE, N. C., JULY 11, 1923

No. 28

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $3.00 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE
REV. W. L. BOGGS, Circulation Manager

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
BY PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY,
A. M. GRAY, Treasurer.

ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858.

Entered at the Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as second class matter

A Religious Newspaper for the Family, Devoted to the Interest of Christ's Kingdom as Represented by the Southern Presbyterian Church.

Address all communications, and make all checks payable, to the company, and not to individuals.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The label on the paper gives the date to which subscription is paid.

When change of address is desired, give the old and new address. When the date of the label is behind the date of this issue of the paper the label is a reminder that the subscription price is past due. When the date of the label is in advance of the date of this issue it is a receipt for the last subscription paid.

In accordance with the wishes of our patrons, the paper is discontinued only upon the written request of the subscriber. Arrearages must be settled in full at the same time, at the rate of three dollars a year.

No charge is made for the insertion of marriage and obituary notices of fifty words or less. For all over fifty words remit at the rate of one cent a word. Correspondents are requested to give the post office address of married couples when marriage notices are sent.

News items should be in our hands by Monday morning in order to insure their publication in the current issue.

CHANGE OF ADVERTISEMENTS

Advertisers who want their advertisements changed or want to insert new advertisements will please bring their copy to this office by Saturday. It is impossible for us to insert new advertisements or make changes for the current week at a later date.

Advertising rates furnished on application. The size and character of this paper indicate the size and character of its constituency. For reputable advertising there is no better medium for North and South Carolina and the most prosperous section of the South.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

EDITORIAL—
The "Modern Mind"	1
Pulpit Popularity	1
The Study of the Greek Testament	2
The Money Value of Brevity	2
"Academic Freedom"	2
CONTRIBUTED—
Law Enforcement—By Rev. J. C. Anderson, D.D.	3
Report of the Treasurer of the Executive Committee of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States	4
The Passing of a Great Editor	4
Quiet Talks on the Simple Essentials—By Mr. S. D. Gordon	5
Massanetta Springs Summer Bible Conference Encampment	5
"As Others See Us"	5
DEPARTMENTS—
Devotional	2
Woman's Auxiliary	6
Sunday School—By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.	7
Christian Endeavor—By Rev. J. G. Garth	7
Church News	8, 9, 10
News of the Week	10
Children	11
Marriages and Deaths	12
Advertisements, Etc.	12, 16

TREASURERS OF BENEVOLENT CAUSES

- Foreign Missions—Edwin F. Willis, 154 Fifth Ave., N. Nashville, Tenn.
- Home Missions, General Assembly's—A. N. Sharpe, 1522 Hurt Building, Atlanta, Ga.
- General Assembly's Training School—Geo. W. Call, Richmond, Va., Union Bank.
- Bible Cause—Gilbert Darlington, Bible House, N. Y.
- Christian Education and Ministerial Relief—John Stites, Fifth and Market Sts., Louisville, Ky.
- Publication and Sabbath School Work—R. E. Magill, 618 N. Sixth St., Richmond, Va.
- The General Assembly's Equipment Fund—T. R. Preston, Treasurer, Chattanooga, Tenn.

EDITORIAL

THE "MODERN MIND"

THIS has come to be a pet expression in much of the religious literature of the day. Nobody stops to tell us just what it is, or who are the happy or unhappy possessors of it, as the case may be. The natural assumption would be that the modern mind belongs to all the present generation, that the more recently one were born the more modern his mind would be, and that the most modern mind of all would belong to the latest arrival. But evidently this is not the meaning of those who claim to represent the modern mind. They are a class to themselves. They are the high-brows of literature, the dogmatists of science, the liberals of religion. They are those who on the ground of superior knowledge and a broader vision have broken with the past. One of themselves explains it by saying: "As there was a primitive view of history and of nature, so there is a modern view which Christianity must incorporate on pain of extinction." He further explains that "the main characteristic of this modern mode of thinking rests on the determined assertion of universal laws to which all phenomena, natural and spiritual, are subject." Of course, this rules out the supernatural. The modern mind will tolerate no outside interference with nature's universal laws. There is no place for miracles, for the virgin birth, the bodily resurrection of Christ, no vicarious atonement, and very emphatically the "good old doctrine of total depravity" must go. Christianity must slough off all these figments of primitive history on "pain of extinction." We are not told just how long Christianity will survive in case it refuses to do this sloughing. We recall two very distinguished men who possessed the modern mind, Herne and Rousseau. No one could have asserted more stoutly than did these two famous men the universality and inviolability of natural laws. No developments of knowledge in any sphere have added anything to the force and acuteness of their arguments against miracles. In the face of their arguments Christianity persistently held on to its miracles, even down to Jonah and the whale. We are told that a cotemporary of these men, Voltaire by name, predicted that Christianity would not survive more than a hundred years. More than a hundred and fifty years have elapsed, and there are no symptoms yet of the extinction of Christianity. Its pulse-beat has been growing stronger all the while, and today it is flourishing in greater strength and waging a more triumphant warfare than at any period in its past history. Men of the modern mind should be hesitant about predicting the extinction of Christianity.

When we come to think about it, the Greeks of Paul's day possessed the modern mind. They "sought after knowledge," and to them "the preaching of the cross was foolishness." Paul did not argue the matter with them. Much less did he try to adapt the Gospel to their minds. But he met their scoffs with this very significant statement: "The foolishness of God is wiser than men, and the weakness of God is stronger than men. For ye see your calling, brethren, how that not many wise men after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble are called." Paul served notice on those "wise men after the flesh" that God could get along very well without them, that, as a matter of fact, He did not need them, as there was plenty of other material that would serve His purpose better. Paul was right. God has abundantly demonstrated that He can take the foolish things and the weak things of the world and confound the mighty. The modern mind is exceedingly mistaken in supposing that Christianity must conform to its requirements on pain of extinction. Paul went further and said to those wise Greeks: "The wisdom of this world is foolishness with God." We can well imagine that our men of the modern mind, who claim to have found out by the study of nature that there is no place for any divine activity to manifest itself, must cut a most ridiculous figure in the sight of high heaven. Could there be a more signal display of folly than is seen when the puny creatures whom God has made propose to shut Him out of His own world? "He that sitteth in the heavens shall laugh; the Lord shall have them in derision."

For ourselves, we feel very little concern about the future of Christianity so far as that future is to be affected by the vaporings of the modern mind. We do feel a benevolent concern about the men who indulge in these vaporings. Only last evening we heard two darkies talking. One said to the other: "The Lord can't do anything with the high-minded; we must be humble." This ignorant darkey was in possession of a higher wisdom than the highest wisdom of this world. "Except ye be converted and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven."

PULPIT POPULARITY

The desire to be popular in the field to which one goes is a legitimate desire, within certain bounds. To be popular in the Synod or in the Assembly is what any man has a right to desire, provided that this popularity is for God's glory, not his own.

To come before men when you have a reputation as being the most popular man in the city or town will make your hearers more favorably inclined to what you say, and will in that way increase your usefulness.

Ministers in their effort to gain this popularity take different roads. The favorite way is to shock the public by preaching truths out of line with what he has vowed to accept. He is always certain of being advertised over the land, till his name becomes a household word.

Then if he can get some one to attack him in print, or if some loyal friend will publish his unsound views in an attractive booklet and send it broadcast over the land, his reputation is made.

This is by far the most favorite plan. For example, Dr. Fosdick is the best advertised man in the country just now, because he has preached doctrines at variance with what the orthodox believe, and also because he has had a fine publicity agent.

That such should be the result of wandering from the faith of the fathers is not very encouraging to young men who are just beginning their ministry. They are liable to be tempted to go and do likewise.

We would, however, remind them that such fame is ephemeral—"like the snowball in the river, a moment white, then melts forever."

A striking instance of popularity founded upon fidelity to the truth is seen in the case of Dr. Fosdick's chief opponent, Dr. McCartney, who led the movement in the Philadelphia Presbytery asking the Assembly to exercise its episcopal authority over the church in New York that employs him. Dr. McCartney preaches a solid Gospel sermon, yet he is drawing such crowds that they have overrun his auditorium and the galleries, and now the authorities of the church have secured another auditorium in the neighborhood which is connected by radio with Dr. McCartney's church. This auditorium has also large audiences, thus proving that the simple Gospel still has that drawing power of which Christ spoke when He said, "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me."

As long as souls are sick with sin, so long will they love to hear of that which is a cure for sin. The simple story of the cross never grows stale. The ministry in every land and in every age abounds in proof of the drawing power of the uplifted Christ.

THE STUDY OF THE GREEK TESTAMENT

Dr. J. Gresham Machen, assistant professor of New Testament Literature and Exegesis in Princeton Theological Seminary, has recently published an instruction book in Greek, which is intended for beginners and for those who have become rusty in their knowledge of the Greek.

Now that Latin and Greek have been almost banished from the college curriculum, the men who enter our Seminaries come with very inadequate knowledge of the original language in which the New Testament was written, with the result that their flocks must suffer.

Here is their opportunity to refresh their knowledge or else to acquire it.

Macmillan Company, New York, are the publishers of this most attractive book. The type is clear, the paper good, and the book itself leaves nothing to be desired in the way of a text-book.

Any man with its aid can easily make himself proficient in Greek, and thus be able to obtain the exact meaning of much in the New Testament that would otherwise be confused.

We would urge our ministers to get this book and begin the study of Greek anew. They will be surprised at the new meaning that the New Testament will have for them.

Then there are many of us who have grown rusty in our knowledge of the Greek language by reason of non-use. To such we heartily commend this book, as one that will not only refresh their memory, but will teach them much that was neglected in their college days.

It may be too much to expect the older men to begin again, but we trust that the younger men will gird up their loins and try the race again.

THE MONEY VALUE OF BREVITY

The Pulitzer prize for 1922 was won by an editorial containing less than 330 words, according to the Memphis News-Scimitar, quoted by the Charlotte Observer.

We do not know what are the conditions attached to this prize; but we suspect that brevity entered largely into the decision.

In our long experience in the reading of contributions to our own paper and editorials in the secular papers, we have long been impressed with the fact that the average writer imagines that the more words he uses to express his thoughts, the more forcible will his article be.

If some genius would invent a word squeezer by which we could squeeze out unnecessary words in a sentence, he would be classed as a public benefactor along with the man who makes two blades of grass to grow where only one grew before.

If our contributors would only think, they would at once realize that brevity in an article gives it an intrinsic value.

In the first place, the reader can the more easily understand what you wish to say, when you do not cover up the thought with a volume of words.

Then he will the more readily begin to read an article when he sees how short it is than he will when its length promises to take more of his time than he can spare.

Of course an article must have something more than brevity to appeal to the average reader. When you have anything to say, put it down in as few words as are necessary to express the idea, leave out the adjectives that can be omitted, without impairing the sense, and then leave it to the tender mercies of the editor and his readers.

If you will do so, many will rise up and call you blessed, and possibly some day you may get the Pulitzer prize.

"ACADEMIC FREEDOM"

This is a frequent phrase that falls constantly from lips of men in these days.

This should occasion no surprise when we realize, as all thinking men are bound to do, that we live in an age in which the minds of men are in a constant state of revolution.

In their minds thought is unlike wine, age does not improve it, but the rather renders it more open to suspicion. Men never say of any thought what they say of wine, "the old is better."

We doubt whether in the history of the world there has ever been a more wide-spreading revolt against the accepted in religion than at the present time. Sometimes this revolt can be traced to a desire to be conspicuous, to shine in the limelight; sometimes to a desire to create the impression of depth of thought, and sometimes to real doubt and honest conviction.

In the sphere of science the right of thought to be free is recognized by all. If a man believes that he descended from the lower animal creation, no man has any right to deny him that privilege.

In the sphere of religion, if a man believes that Jesus Christ was not divine and that He did not rise from the dead, no other man can deny him the right to think as he pleases. His mind is free, as far as human compulsion is concerned. No man can dictate to me how or what I shall think.

If, however, I am a teacher in a college that holds contrary to the evolution theory and I am receiving pay from that college, then they can dictate to me what I shall teach, even if they cannot dictate my thought.

In like manner a professor in one of our Seminaries, as long as he is receiving a salary, has no right to teach contrary to what that Seminary was endowed to teach.

Though this is a plain case of every-day ethics,

HOW THEY SPENT THEIR MONEY

SELFISHNESS—

I kept all my wealth and I mourn for my loss
For gold in a skeleton hand turns to dross;
Love, friendship, and gratitude might I have bought—
But I kept all my wealth till it moldered to naught.

PLEASURE—

I spent all my gold—I danced and I sang—
The palace I built with hilarity rang;
Plays, revels and frolics from even to dawn—
But I lie here with nothing—I spent it—it's gone!

AVARICE—

I loaned my good money—at grasping per cent—
'Twas I who got all that you kept and you spent;
While I counted my millions, Death plundered me bare—
And this grave I sleep in belongs to my heir.

CHARITY—

It was little I had, but I gave all my store
To those who had less, or who needed it more;
And I came with Death laughing, for here at the grave
In richness unmeasured I found what I gave!

—Robert J. Burdette.

yet whenever the trustees of such a school remove a teacher who is teaching contrary to the creed of their church, the men of the world cry out that they are muzzling freedom of thought and bringing back the dark ages.

Last year our Baptist brethren in Missouri had such a case. Dr. A. W. Slaten, Professor of Biblical Literature and Religious Education, in William Jewell College, when questioned by the trustees of the college, confessed that he did not believe the following points of the Christian creed:

1. The pre-existence and deity of Christ.
2. The infallibility of His teachings.
3. His vicarious death.
4. His bodily resurrection.
5. His mediatorial and intercessory work.

He also stated before the board that he does not worship Christ nor pray in His name.

When the board decided to remove him, there was a great cry raised about muzzling thought. The strangest part of this story is that all the faculty except three, and practically the entire student body, petitioned the board to keep him in his position, which they very properly refused to do.

It would seem that a clean sweep of the faculty would be in order.

Devotional

CHRIST AND CIVILIZATION

Thomas R. Marshall, former Vice-President of the United States, in an address, said: "I have not been called to the ministry—I wish I had been. I have searched the motives of men, and however wise and good and beneficent the purposes of mankind may be, they fall short if not inspired by the Nazarene and His only perfect life! This from a man of affairs is really worth noticing. Our race owes more than it realizes to the Man of Nazareth."

Jean Paul Richter said: "Jesus Christ, being the holiest of the mighty and the mightiest of the holy, lifted with His pierced hands the doors of empires off their hinges, turned the stream of the ages into other channels and still rules the ages."—Ex.

"I STAND AND KNOCK"

Rev. 3:20—Just after Holman Hunt had finished his great painting, "The Light of the World," a friend came into his studio. He looked long at the beautiful picture, the loving face of the thorn-crowned Christ, who stands so patiently outside the shut door; the door itself, overgrown with gnarled branches of ivy, the hinges rusted—it had been tight closed so long.

"Wonderful! Wonderful!" the man said at last. "Perfect, but for one thing, the door has no handle."

"No," answered Hunt at once. "The handle is on the inside. That door can be opened only from within."

* * * *

A man once stopped a preacher in a street of London and said: "I once heard you preach in Paris, and you said something which I have never forgotten, and which, through God, has been the means of my conversion." "What was that?" asked the preacher. "It was that the latch was on our side of the door. I had always thought that God was a hard God, and that we must do something to propitiate him. It was a new thought to me that Christ was waiting for me to open to him." "If any man . . . open the door, I will come in."—Banner.

A REJECTED CANDIDATE

A young man applied to one of the British missionary societies for service in the foreign fields, but his medical examination showed he was unfit, much to his disappointment. "If then, it is God's will for me that I must remain in this country in business, my business shall be the Lord's," he said, "and all the profits shall be devoted to His work."

He entered business life. His first year's profit was $300. This he sent to the Mission Board. The next year he sent $1,920; the third year $4,096; and the years that followed $10,000, $12,000 and $14,000.

During six years this consecrated, sickly man paid $42,316 for the personal service abroad which he was not permitted to render.

The obligation to give the Gospel to others is as universal as the privilege of receiving it. Why should not tens of thousands be willing to pay for a substitute at least if they can not go, or invest as a minimum the tithes plus free-will offerings for the various benevolence causes.—Telescope.

KINDS OF CHRISTIANS

There are two classes of Christians—those who live chiefly by emotion and those who live chiefly by faith. The first class, those who live chiefly by emotion, remind one of ships that move by the outward impulse of winds operating upon sails. They are often in a dead calm, often out of their course, and sometimes driven back. And it is only when the winds are fair and powerful that they move onward with rapidity. The other class, those who live chiefly by faith, remind one of the magnificent steamers which cross the Atlantic, which are moved by an interior and permanent principle, and which, setting at defiance all ordinary obstacles, advance steadily and swiftly to their destination, through calm and storm, through cloud and sunshine. "We live by faith," says the apostle. And those who learn so to live are stable, joyous and triumphant. It is the New Testament mode of life. Happy those who can say with the Psalmist: "My heart is fixed, O God, my heart is fixed;" or, with the noble apostle, "The life that I now live in the flesh is by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me and gave Himself for me."—Professor Upham.

They that know thy name will put their trust in Thee; for thou, Lord, hast not forsaken them that seek Thee.

LAW ENFORCEMENT

By Rev. J. G. Anderson, D.D.

Jesus said unto them, "Render unto Caesar the things that be Caesars." (Luke 20:25). This is the answer of our Saviour to the Scribes and Pharisees who were endeavoring to entangle Him in His talk. They presented to Him the question whether they should pay tribute to Caesar or not. In presenting this question they expected to place Jesus in a dilemma. Should He say that they should not, then they would present Him to the Roman authorities as disloyal to the Government. Should He answer that they should pay tribute, then He would lose His popularity with the people. The Jewish race hated Rome with a holy hatred. Jesus called for a piece of money by which the Jews acknowledged Caesar to be their civil ruler. They were living under his government, deriving benefit from the administration of Roman law. As they were doing this they were under obligations to render due homage to their ruler. And doing this would not hinder them from discharging their duty to their God. "Render unto Caesar the things that be Caesar's and to God the things that be God's." I would impress upon you that these are the words of our Lord Jesus Christ. He enjoins upon the Jews of His time their duty as subjects of the civil government. Caesar represented the civil government at that time and Jesus here gives sanction to civil laws and enjoins upon citizens obedience to them. Jesus Himself paid tribute money.

Church and State

Jesus here makes a distinction between Church and State. They occupy distinctly different spheres. The one spiritual, the other moral and political. The one concerns the salvation of the soul, the other concerns justice among fellow-men on earth; the one handles the sword, the other the keys. They may dwell together in the same territory and be at peace with each other. The one must not rule the other, nor exercise dominion over the other. There are some who have never learned this lesson. It will be an unspeakable loss if the church should give up her mission to accept the other. Mankind was never more in need of the mission of the Church than it is today. Though State and Church are separate, with separate missions and separate spheres, they are both of Divine institution. Paul, writing us in the thirteenth chapter of Romans, with reference to the civil government, says, "Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers; for there is no power but of God; the powers that be are ordained of God. Whosoever therefore resisteth the power resisteth the ordinance of God; and they that resist shall receive unto themselves damnation, for rulers are not a terror to good works, but to the evil. Wilt thou then not be afraid of the power? Do that which is good and thou shalt have praise of the same; for he is the minister of God to thee for good. But if thou do that which is evil be afraid; for he heareth not the sword in vain; for he is the minister of God, a revenger to execute wrath upon him that doeth evil. For this cause pay ye tribute also, for they are God's ministers attending continually upon this very thing."

This makes it very clear that civil government is a Divine institution. The State may use the sword to kill and be in accord with the will of God. I wish to have this thoroughly in mind before I proceed, and wish you to keep it there, the State is divinely founded.

Message to Citizens

In my text Jesus has a word for men and women in their capacity as citizens. He has of course a message for us as helpless, lost sinners, but He also has a message for us as citizens. I have again and again delivered His message to you as sinners, but I want today to deliver His message to you as citizens. "Render to Caesar the things that be Caesar's. Obedience to His command makes obedience to the laws of your country not only patriotism, but piety. You are to respect and obey the laws of your land because Jesus tells you to do it. I wish to make this emphatic, because I do not believe that the mass of people obey the law of their land from any pious motive. And further, because I will need Divine sanction when I tell you what should be the application of the principle I have enunciated, viz: that Jesus has a message for the members of the Presbyterian Church, as citizens of the United States, and the message is that they shall respect and obey the laws of the land.

Amendment

The law of the land to which special reference shall be made today is the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, forbidding the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors commonly known as our prohibition laws.

It has now been about three years since prohibition has been adopted as a national policy. It has been agitated for 100 years in the United States. I worked for it more than a half a century ago myself. Its growth has been gradual. A few states, such as Maine and Kansas, have forbidden its sale for a great many years. Through temperance societies and W. C. T. U., the teaching of temperance in Sunday Schools, the effects of alcohol in day schools, a strong public sentiment had been built up against the liquor traffic. Finally business saw great economic waste in the liquor traffic. In all its operations and its effects the liquor traffic was found to be evil, and only evil, and that continually. One by one the states passed laws prohibiting it until 36 of them had outlawed the traffic. It was then made a national issue. Then 46 of the 48 states voted for the Eighteenth Amendment, by which the liquor traffic was outlawed by the nation. Amendments are made to the Constitution of the United States by the submission of Congress to the States, through their Legislatures, the subject matter of such amendment. The Eighteenth Amendment was submitted to the states just as all others were, and was adopted by the largest majority ever given an amendment, and more quickly. There is more unanimity on the part of the people of the United States in adopting this amendment than there was in adopting the Constitution itself. If the people of the United States ever expressed themselves with reference to anything, they did it in adopting the Eighteenth Amendment. If they ever did anything constitutionally they did it in adopting that amendment. The supreme court of the land has more than once declared that the Eighteenth Amendment was constitutionally adopted. We have then, beyond question, in the Eighteenth Amendment a law which we, as a sovereign people, have made a rule for the conduct of our nation. In its making it has complied with every requirement and has been pronounced valid by the highest authority, our supreme court. Here then is the voice of our Caesar which is also our own voice, declaring itself against the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors. "Render to Caesar the things that be Caesar's." The voice of the Son of God is behind this prohibition law, and He requires you to respect and obey it.

Contributed

Volstead Act

When a constitutional amendment is adopted it then becomes the duty of Congress to pass a law putting it into effect. This is what Congress did when it passed what is commonly known as the Volstead Act. The supreme court has called attention to the task that was before Congress when it passed this act. The Eighteenth Amendment was intended by the states that passed it to suppress drunkenness. This the supreme court says is absolutely clear. In enacting this statute limiting the alcoholic content to one-half of one per cent, Congress acted advisedly.

The states that had had prohibition had experimented with this very matter. It was not an ignorant or arbitrary standard that Congress set. It was after taking advice from those who had tried this alcoholic content. It was agreed upon by the states that had tried a larger per cent that it did not prevent drunkenness, and the supreme court has made decision that if Congress was going to enact a statute that would make the will of the people effective, they must make the percentage of alcohol low enough not to make men drunk. The one-half of one per cent has been declared by the supreme court as good law.

It was believed from past experience that when the laws of states and municipalities and nations were against a practice that it would have the effect of restraining or abolishing that practice. For that reason we have laws against murder and theft, and who will say that those laws are not to a degree, effective, and do not confer great benefit upon society. The liquor traffic has been denounced by every organization and institution (except breweries and distilleries) including every court in the land, from the magistrate to the supreme court of the United States, to be beyond compare the greatest source of crime, misery, poverty, lawlessness, corruption, degradation, ignorance and vice. It blights everything it touches. There is nothing too sacred for it to lay its polluting hands upon. Home was intended to be a type of heaven. The liquor traffic makes it the vestibule of hell. It is a cancer that eats out everything high and noble in national life. It destroys womanhood, manhood, childhood.

The selling of a grog is a good device
To make a hell of paradise.
Wh'er may roll that fiery flood,
'Tis swollen with tears, 'tis stained with blood.

The liquor traffic is God's worst enemy and the devil's best friend. Is it any wonder that our people, with one voice, have said that it shall be destroyed. Notice briefly some of the effects: In New York City they prepared vast houses for the treatment of the dope fiend that they were sure would follow in the wake of prohibition. They found no use for the houses and had to close up some they already had for dope fiends. The Keely curcs over the land are being closed. Enforced prohibition is the best Keely cure we can have. Charity associations do not find half the demands that were made upon them. Bank vaults are bulging with bank deposits, schools are overflowing with scholars, debts, homes and wives and children are cared for. Insurance societies report that 1921 was the healthiest year ever known in the United States. In 25 large American cities the decrease of arrests for intoxication were from 408,000 to 214,000. This in the large cities, where it is much harder to enforce the law. How much better it is in the towns and in the country. Commissioner Haynes, of the Federal Prohibition Department, says: "Two years of national prohibition reduced the number of alcoholic drinkers from twenty million to two and one-half millions." Think of it. Seventeen and a half millions in two years! "Only 15 per cent," says he, "of former drinkers are drinking now, and these drink only five per cent of the former amount." "The drink bill," says he, "of the nation has decreased two billion dollars a year, and further that the importation of liquor for 1921 was only one per cent of what it was in 1919.

This is a strange question with reference to the Constitution of the United States. Every man and woman here who is a voter has sworn to Almighty God to support the Constitution, and it would look like an impeachment of your character to ask such a question. Still it needs to be asked. Thirty organizations are publicly trying to abolish or nullify this amendment. They are trying to elect men who promise if they are elected, to perjure themselves publicly in the halls of Congress. Then we have men who are trying to bring wine and beer under the Eighteenth Amendment and abolish the Volstead Act. When you remember that the Eighteenth Amendment was intended to suppress drunkenness, when you remember that nine-tenths of intoxicating liquors sold under the licensed system was beer, and another large per cent of that one remaining per cent was wine, what rational being can believe that we can suppress drunkenness by licensing wine and beer? Alcohol is alcohol, whether it be Scotch whiskey, German beer, Holland gin, French champagne, California wine or Florida moonshine. Chief Justice Taft says wisely: "It will be absolutely impossible to suppress the sale of whiskey if you license wine and beer." Massachusetts and Georgia have both tried the wine and beer plan and found it just as bad if not worse than licensing them altogether. There are some who tell us that prohibition was passed while the soldiers were away. At the time prohibition was passed there were only three hundred thousand American soldiers in Europe. If that three hundred thousand had all voted for whiskey, they could have done nothing to change conditions. Remember that that three hundred thousand were scattered all over the United States. Remember that before national prohibition thirty-six states had already gone prohibition. I stand up here to defend those three hundred thousand men. I resent the insinuation that those three hundred thousand men were friends of the saloon. They were amongst our noblest and best men; they had a voice in electing the Congress that approved prohibition and this matter has been put to the test since they returned. In the state of Ohio it was put to the test after the soldiers returned, and Ohio voted two hundred thousand stronger for prohibition than it had done before, and Michigan adopted prohibition and afterward defeated beer and wine by an increased majority of one hundred and thirty-five thousand votes. The vote in the National Congress was more than two to one in favor of prohibition and in the Senate more than three to one. The votes in the State Legislatures were four to one in favor of prohibition, and in the State Senates more than six to one.

Those who are friends of the liquor traffic are worse than pro-German. The kaiser taught his soldiers to bayonet a French baby—the liquor traffic teaches a man to dash out his own child's brains. The kaiser taught his soldiers to destroy a French home. The liquor traffic teaches a man to destroy his own home. We sent our armies to Europe on a crusade for Democracy—we have a far more important and urgent one here at home. Shall we be deaf to its appeal? Those who are indifferent to it are worse than the slacker. The message of Christ to you today is to "Render unto Caesar the things that be Caesar's," to obey, respect and defend this law of your land. Tampa, Fla.

No one need worry about preparation for death who is putting his best into the service of Christ. We build the heaven to which we go by loyal and faithful service here.

The recent elections in Palestine for the selection of members for the electoral college resulted in the selection of 63 Jews, 126 Moslems, and 22 Christians.

Whoever introduces into the public affairs the principles of primitive Christianity will change the face of the world.—Benjamin Franklin.

REPORT OF THE TREASURER OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF FOREIGN MISSIONS OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH IN THE UNITED STATES

Year Ending March 31, 1923

The Committee presents the Financial Summary of the results of the year as follows:

Total Appropriations -----$1,273,018.53
Total Receipts and Credits ----- 1,214,383.22

The appropriations, receipts and credits represent the total cost of the work under the Regular and Special Budget and the gifts received to meet them. The items covered by Special Appropriations are for equipment purposes, and gifts for such are appropriated when received so that the two accounts balance.

The Regular Appropriations were $1,124,019.85 and the amount received applicable thereto was $1,065,384.54, so that the deficit on the year was $58,635.31.

In considering the conduct of a business of such magnitude, covering territory far removed from the home base, these items must be kept in view:

1. That the Mission year closes the 31st of March and that there must be left in the Regular Mission Accounts the balances shown on the committee books on that date.

2. That the Missions have the right to transfer on what is known as the Local Work Classes, IV, V, VI, VII, IX and X, covering deficits in some classes from surplus in others.

3. That the Committee is liable for losses in exchange in the present unsettled condition of local currencies.

When the books were closed on March 31, 1922, there was due to the Missions on the Regular Budget accounts to be adjusted $49,116.31, and from the information at hand in the way of general reports of the shortage in appropriations to cover the work already done, the Committee had every reason to believe that it would have to pay these accounts in full, but to its surprise, and it hopes to the gratification of the Church, in the final settlements it gained $60,923.64, thereby reducing the original deficit from $251,704.49 to $190,775.85, which with its deficit on this year's Regular Budget of $58,635.31, leaves the deficit on March 31, 1923, $249,411.16.

In Schedule No. 1 there appears as adjustable Mission accounts under assets, due from Missions, $2,081.41, and under liabilities due to Missions, 3,806.51; and if on final settlement, the Committee gains on these accounts, such gains will apply on the reduction of the deficit. These balances are carried on latest advice, $30,000.00 of it being on cable advice received on March 31, 1923.

These two items and the item of exchange, $6,618.25, are the only adjustable liabilities shown in Schedule No. 1, as the amount due to the Missions Equipment Accounts are actual appropriations made on special gifts and the Missions draw or call for remittances as work on buildings proceeds.

The per contra items in Schedule No. 1 are carrying accounts and balances, the item of $15,200.00 being reduced $1,200.00 per year as credit is given for a gift and appropriation made for the Pernambuco, Brazil, Girls' School; and the $3,075.00 being an account in which to carry items that on collection will be credited as gifts.

The Endowment and other funds shown as liabilities on Schedule No. 1 (enumerated in Schedule No. 6) represents funds that have been established by individuals, the Special Annuity Fund on which annuities are paid, special agreements on which donors receive all the income, a memorial fund on which interest is being paid till it is used in equipment, and a Missions Loan Fund, the income from which is to be loaned to native churches for churches and manses. The invested assets shown on Schedule No. 1 (enumerated on Schedule No. 7) are the investments of these funds, but owing to payment of some investments and failure to get the proceeds reinvested, fail to cover the trust funds by $17,210.22, but this will be done as early as possible.

The Committee Reserve Fund has been established by the Committee from undesignated legacies and released Special Annuity Funds (the latter by recommendation of the General Assembly) and there was placed in it this year the profit on sale of certain securities. There has been some talk about the necessity of having this fund, and I take this opportunity of setting out its advantages:

1. It is the only fund which belongs to the Committee in the way of capital and is a potent factor in establishing the heavy line of credit needed to carry the business.

2. This fund produced in income to the Committee this year $2,942.70, and the total amount of interest paid by the Committee on borrowed money was $7,810.90, so that the general fund was chargeable with only $4,868.20 on a volume of business of $1,273,017, as compared with $4,232.40 in 1918 on a volume of $670,287.00.

3. That it is not only good business, but common sense as well to have such a fund is evidenced by the fact that every board of any size in the United States either has such a fund or is trying to create one.

The foregoing has been set out in an attempt to make clear the problems which the Committee faces in handling its business and to explain Schedule No. 1 showing the financial condition on March 31, 1923. In common parlance a frequent expression heard is a "Book-keep's Debt." Webster's Collegiate Dictionary defines book-keeping as "An art or practice of keeping, as in an account book, a systematic record of business transactions." Following this general principle, the net result at the end of a fiscal year is a surplus or a deficit as the case may be. The interest bearing part of the present deficit consists of notes held by friends of the Committee amounting to $38,743.50, one of which for $16,000.00 will probably be given to the Committee in due time, and certain equipment accounts amounting to $17,353.14, on which by special agreement, the Committee pays interest at five per cent per annum until the projects are completed and there is a probability that most of this will be used this year.

SCHEDULE NO. 1—BALANCE SHEET

Current Assets:
Cash in Bank -----$111,524.48
Due from Individuals on Guaranteed Checks ----- 2,618.30 $ 114,142.78

Unadjusted Balances and Advances
Due from Missions 1922-23—Advances -----$ 2,081.41
Due from Missions, March 31, 1923, on Mission Equipment Accounts ----- 1,229.93
Advance on North Brazil Class V, Pernambuco Girls' School (per contra) ----- 15,200.00 18,511.34
Due from Individuals and Organizations ----- 818.10
Advances on 1923-24 Mission Budget ----- 84,504.65

Total Unadjusted Balances and Advances ----- 103,834.09

Other Assets:
Real Estate and Notes not credited as receipts until converted into cash -----$ 3,075.00
Furniture and Fixtures ----- 3,905.71 6,980.71

Total Assets (other than Invested Assets) ----- $ 224,957.58

Invested Assets:
Stocks, Bonds and Real Estate Notes ----- $ 697,423.12

Net Deficit, March 31, 1923 ----- $ 249,411.16

$1,171,791.86

Current Liabilities:
Bills Payable to Individuals -----$ 38,743.50
Outstanding Drafts issued by the Committee for Foreign Remittances:

1921-22 Remittances ----- 3,525.00
1922-23 Remittances ----- 57,402.83
1923-24 Remittances ----- 83,200.00

Total Current Liabilities ----- $ 182,871.33

Other Liabilities:
Mission Accounts—
Due on 1922-23 Regular Budget—Accounts to be adjusted on final settlement ----- 38,096.51
Due Mission Equipments Accounts to be paid when drawn or remittance called for ----- 172,204.91

Total Mission Accounts ----- 210,301.42
Amounts for Payment and Distribution—

New Missionary Outfit and Travel ----- 500.00
Legacy Emergency Fund ----- 297.83
Borden Legacy ----- 20,787.77

Suspense Account (Advance payments on gifts) ----- 7,455.49

Accounts on Deposit (Individuals and Organizations) ----- 5,003.69

Unacknowledged Receipts, Real Estate and Notes not acknowledged as receipts until converted into cash ----- 3,075.00

North Brazil Class V, Pernambuco Girls' School (per contra) ----- 15,200.00

Total for Payment and Distribution ----- $ 52,319.78

Emergency Amounts:
Exchange (for Adjustment) -----$ 6,618.25
Special Annuity (Surplus Income held to provide for losses in investments and Annuity above average rate of investment) ----- 5,047.70

Total Emergency Amounts ----- 11,665.95

Total Liabilities other than Trust and Reserve Funds ----- 457,158.48

Trust Accounts:
Endowment Funds -----$471,760.72
Special Agreement Funds ----- 20,809.14
Special Annuity Funds ----- 162,251.07
Memorial Funds ----- 5,462.50
Missions Loan Fund ----- 4,000.00

Total Trust Accounts ----- $664,283.43

Committee Reserve Fund ----- 50,349.95 714,633.38

$1,171,791.86

The above statement is made to comply with the following paragraph in the report of the Standing Committee of Foreign Missions made to the General Assembly, May, 1923:

"The Executive Committee has taken the Church into its confidence in the fullest degree, as can readily be seen by an examination of the Treasurer's elaborate statement in the Annual Report.

"The misunderstanding on the part of the Church has arisen most probably because of the complex nature of this report, owing to the large amount of money handled, and the method of financing necessary in Foreign Mission work.

"That this may be cleared up we are herein requesting the Treasurer to make as simple and clear a statement as possible, through the Church papers, of the method of financing this work and the condition of the treasury. This would enable our people to see that our deficit, while not a debt in bank for the whole amount, is no less a liability, and would be so carried by any great business concern."

The full report of the Executive Committee of Foreign Missions is included in the combined reports of the four Executive Committees sent to all ministers.

Edwin F. Willis, Treasurer.

Nashville, Tenn.

THE PASSING OF A GREAT EDITOR WILLIAM ROBERTSON NICOLL

October 10, 1851—May 4, 1923

The British Weekly, in doing honor to its founder and its life-long chief, devotes the issue of May 10th to a sketch of the life of Sir William Robertson Nicoll, and many striking tributes from a large circle of his friends. Among these are acknowledgements of gratitude and respect from J. M. Barrie, Hon. David Lloyd George, the Marquis of Aberdeen, Doctors George Adam Smith, James Stalker, Kelman, J. H. Jowett, and Henry Van Dyke, Hon. John Buchan, and Lady Balfour—the whole forming a memorial edition of rare interest. What follows is gleaned from this notable issue.

Dr. Nicoll was the son of an Aberdeenshire manse. His father took the Free Church side in the Disruption of 1843, so it was necessary to start all over again in Lumsden, which was a village of only five hundred people. In the years that followed the plain two-story manse came to house a library of seventeen thousand volumes. The motherless boy ranged at will among the master minds of literature and here began the love of books and reading which was a marked characteristic of his later life. Rarely was he seen without books protruding from his pockets. His library, built to shelve twenty-three thousand volumes, carried the excess on the floor and chairs and tables.

In his delightful book "The Princes of the Church" (one of the latest of the twenty-two volumes which bear his name, or that of his nom de plume, Claudius Clear), he says: "It is or was the ambition of every hopeful youth in the North to wear the student's gown." At fourteen he matriculated at the University of Aberdeen, walking in joyous mood the eight miles to the railway station. Here followed a regime of plain living, on approximately a shilling a week, and hard work. The Master's degree was won by the time he was eighteen. His course in divinity was taken also at Aberdeen, and during it he became a regular contributor to various newspapers. From his father's store of books he brought to this work a mass of information in history, politics, philosophy, and literature. After his nineteenth year he was entirely self-supporting, and at twenty-one he was licensed to preach.

In 1877 he followed Dr. Horatius Bonar as pastor of the Free Church at Kelso, on the Tweed. At the close of his installation address he quoted the lines:

"Oh, that each in the day
Of His coming may say:
I have fought my way through,
I have finished the work Thou didst give me to do."

This in the light of 1923 seems prophetic of his own reward.

During his Kelso ministry of eight years came his first marriage and the birth of two children, and his acceptance of the editorship of The Expositor, a theological magazine which he conducted for 40 years.

Tuberculosis had claimed his mother in early life, and a brother and a sister in comparative youth, so when typhoid and pneumonia left him in a wrecked state his doctors demanded at least two years of rest from preaching, and removal to a milder climate became imperative.

In 1886 The British Weekly was founded as a journal of social and Christian progress. From that hour till last month Dr. Nicoll has prepared an average of 41 out of every 52 leaders for The Weekly, which have been devoted largely to religious instruction and to stimulating their readers to fight the good fight of faith. The paper has carried ample material for home reading and its church news department has been an important feature.

Dr. Stalker and Principal Edwards wrote the young editor commending the first issue, and Dr. Nicoll stated recently that since then there has never been a day "when letters written in pure kindness of heart have not been included in the postal budget." For more than 30 years letters from Claudius Clear have been also a vital part of the weekly offering.

In 1891 he founded The Bookman, and in 1893 The Woman at Home came into being.

In 1909, under Mr. Asquith's Government, King Edward VII bestowed upon Dr. Nicoll the honor of knighthood, and from King George he received in 1921 the Companionship of Honour.

While conducting four journals, the versatile man, who had never recovered normal strength, found time to write books, and, as Nonconformist leader, to accept numerous platform engagements, "to be a zealous guardian of the Free Church traditions," to keep in touch with the activities of his native village, to correspond regularly with boyhood friends, but the best-beloved child of his brain was The British Weekly. How characteristic of the editorial instinct was the anxious whispered inquiry near the end, "Have they plenty of copy?" The paper is read from John O' Groat's to Land's End, and in American,

Australian and Canadian homes children have grown up under its guidance.

Dr. Jowett writes: "I place the front-page article in The British Weekly, written when Dr. Nicoll was in his prime, as one of the great formative forces in the religious mind in the last generation. Amid all the confused and confusing sounds of those uncertain days, his word was like a trumpet."

Hon. David Lloyd George adds: "The Free Churches have not had in my time a more skilful swordsman or one who possessed a stouter heart. . . . In every struggle Nonconformity has been engaged in in his period the vitalizing gift of his personality has been a source of power and inspiration."

QUIET TALKS ON THE SIMPLE ESSENTIALS

By Mr. S. D. Gordon, Bijou Theatre, Boardwalk, Atlantic City, N. J., July-August, 1923, Auspices Atlantic City Council of Churches

No. 2.—The Big Five

Shelter of roof, warmth of fire, shoes for little feet and bigger, bread and bed—these, and the like, take our strength. The circle of loved ones, where one's very life centers, this must be cared for, and well cared for.

Yet our thoughts go insistently toward the real things, the essentials. The spirit life the real life, of course. I live in my body. I think through my mind. I, myself, am a spirit. We long to understand clearly, and so be at rest inside. We can't all be experts. The day's too short. And cross-currents run so strong. How shall the earnest man know?

Well, there are Five Simple Essentials for a strong, pure, true life. There is a Book of God. The outstanding thing in the morals of life is this, there is an outstanding Book. The outstanding Book of all books is this Book. Morals are the very life of life. This Book gives the true moral standard of life.

It states simply and clearly the moral principles that fit into every circumstance, and difficulty, and problem. Then there's more. It tells of the power that helps a man pull steadily toward that standard. And it tells of the Friend that meets your sore need, answers your perplexing questions, and solves your knotty problems. This old Book of God is utterly dependable.

Then, there is a Man. The outstanding thing about the Book is this: There is a Man. That Man lived the moral standard of life as no other has, actually lived it. He is our Brother-Man, our fellow, the one solitary God-Man. In him God came to us men, and comes to us.

He was as really God, as though only God, and nothing else. He was as truly a man, a really human man, as though he was only a man, and nothing more. All there is of the human was and is in him.

And all there is of God was in him as he worked in that Nazareth carpenter-shop amid the odor of the pine shavings, and then taught, and healed, and loved, and fed, and mingled freely among men. The outstanding thing about this Book of God is this God-Man.

Then the Man—died. The biggest thing about his life is the way his life snuffed out. The knot on the end of that thread catches your eye at once, and holds it. There is a thread. What a thread! What a life!

Then the thread knots, a toughly knotted knot. That knot has caught the eye, aye, the heart of the race. It's been discussed and discussed. But the thing that stands out biggest is the fact of it. There is the knot. He did die, as no one else has, or could, or can.

And there's the Fourth Thing that stands out, ugly and gaunt, dirty and odorless. But it's there. That's the fact of a Break, man's break away from the Father-God. The common word is sin. The root of the thing is simply that, a break, a bad break, away from the mother-hearted Father's desire and request.

And, "and"—the striking thing to mark just now is this, that Man tied up in an unravelable knot these two things, his Dying and that Break. He himself said the Break made the Death necessary. The more you think into it the less fully the explanations seem to explain. You feel there is always a something more. But the explanations are secondary. The fact is the thing. The Death is the outstanding fact.

And the Fifth Essential comes crowding quickly in. And it shows up at once what a princely brood and breed we men are of. Every man is a king in his right to choose. The man that knows about this Man must take sides. Choice of the Man who Died covers all moral choices. And choice makes character. It is an essential that a man makes personal choice.

The outstanding things in the morals of life is this: there is a Book. The outstanding of that Book is this: there is a Man. The thing that stands out about the man is this: he Died.

And that Man said the outstanding thing about his death is this: it had to be. The thing called sin caused it. And the thing standing sheer out about the Man, and the Dying, and the Break of sin is this: every man that knows must choose. And every such man does choose.

And it is a striking fact, that looseness of thinking about the Book leads to looseness about the distinctive personality of the Man. Looseness there leads to loose ideas as to the distinctive meaning of his Death. That in turn breeds decidedly loose ideas about sin, the Break with God.

Then follows loose ideas about the need of choosing Him in whom centers all moral source. And when moral choice loosens the moral fibre of character it begins unraveling, straight away, and not slowly. Look around you today.

A London astronomical expert superintending the erection of a huge telescope in Cairo, noted the noon gun fired daily at military headquarters, and found their time-piece was regulated by the watchmaker's chronometer in the city. Inquiring there he was astonished to find the chronometer regulated by the noon gun! Does that sort of dog-chasing-his-tail standard get into the serious things, sometimes?

NO. 3—THE BOOK OF GOD

MASSANETTA SPRINGS SUMMER BIBLE CONFERENCE ENCAMPMENT

The Massanetta Springs Summer Bible Conference Encampment, near Harrisonburg, Va., opens July 16th and closes August 26th. Improvements have been made on the grounds and buildings which amount to the sum of $12,000. The Executive Committee believes that the property will be in splendid condition for the opening of the Young People's Conference, which is the first of a series of five, beginning July 16th.

Speakers

The program is a most excellent one. Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, said to be one of the greatest Bible teachers on this continent or that of Europe, is to speak during the Bible Conference, August 17-26 inclusive. Probably no man has been more sought for to speak at summer Bible conferences than Dr. Morgan.

Dr. Wm. Evans, of Chicago, will be present from August 9-19 inclusive. Dr. Evans was one of the leading speakers at the Bible Conference at Massanetta Springs last year. He captivated his audiences and will be heard with unusual interest this summer. He speaks at the Men's Conference and three days during the Bible Conference.

Dr. A. C. Dixon, D.D., pastor of the University Baptist Church, Baltimore, Md., and former pastor of the Metropolitan Tabernacle, Spurgeon's old church in London, is to speak during a part of the Bible Conference. He is a wonderful platform speaker and Bible expounder. The announcement of his name will be of special interest.

Dr. John C. Acheson, president of the Kentucky Woman's College, will make two addresses at the Bible Conference. His address on Christian Education can scarcely be surpassed.

Mr. George W. Trotter, a brother of Melvin Trotter, and a rescue worker in Pittsburg, is to be present and speak on August 24th and 25th.

Mr. Homer Hammontree, Grand Rapids, Mich., will conduct the singing from August 15-30 inclusive. He has for a number of years been singing and directing the singing at Northfield, Mass. He comes to Massanetta Springs from that point. He has remarkable ability as a soloist and special gifts in getting other people to sing. He is said to be the best song leader in this country.

Dr. H. E. Tralle, of New York, is to give a series of lectures on Religious Education, during the Sunday School Conference, July 24-30 inclusive. Professor Athearn says that Dr. Tralle has the ability of popularizing his subject without losing scientific accuracy. Mr. Marion Lawrence says that he is one of the safest, sanest and best Sunday School leaders in all the country. Milton G. Evans spoke of him as the Mark Twain of the religious platform. In addition to Dr. Tralle, Mrs. H. E. Tralle, Rev. Walter Getty, Dr. W. H. T. Squires, Dr. J. L. Fairly, Miss Elizabeth McE. Shields and others will be on the program. The management is greatly pleased with the program for the Sunday School Conference.

Woman's School of Missions

The School of Missions is to be put on by the Virginia Synodical, August 1-7. Dr. J. O. Reavis, Dr. J. L. Mauze, Dr. Homer McMillan, Mrs. Margaret Russell, Miss Annie R. V. Wilson, Mr. Frank Gilliam, Dr. Wm. Junkin, and Mrs. W. C. Winsborough, are among the speakers so far secured.

Men's Conference

The Men's Conference, August 9-15 inclusive, which is to be held under the auspices of the Laymen's Missionary Movement and Men's Department of the Assembly, is going to captivate the men. Dr. Wm. Evans is to speak twice each day and laymen from all parts of our Church who have real evangelistic messages are expected to speak.

Mr. Chrystal Brown, who conducted the singing last summer at Massanetta Springs, is to lead the singing during the Woman's School of Missions, and during the Men's Conference. He was extremely popular last year. His many friends will welcome him back to Massanetta.

Young People's Conference

The Young People's Conference, July 16-22 inclusive, is already an assured success. Letters of inquiry are pouring into the office of Rev. T. K. Currie every day. Leaders of special note and fitness have been secured to lead and speak at this conference. Among the number are Dr. J. G. Venable, Mr. Frank P. Wilson, Dr. Edgar Gammon, Rev. Walter Getty, and Rev. W. L. Carson.

Location

Massanetta Springs is located in the heart of the famous Shenandoah Valley, four miles east of Harrisonburg. It has an altitude of 1,600 feet and is surrounded by the beautiful Alleghany and Blue Ridge Mountains. It has a well-shaded lawn and a 50-acre grove of native oaks directly in front of the hotel. The health-giving Massanetta Springs bubbling out of the bosom of the earth west of the hotel made Massanetta famous as a summer resort before the property was turned over to the Synod of Virginia.

Accommodations

The price of room and board will range from $13.50 to $20.50 per week per person, according to the number in room. During the Young People's Conference a flat rate of $11.00 per week with no refund will be granted. The rates in tents and cottages will be less than in the hotel proper. For program, renting of tents, rates in cottages, etc., apply to Wm. E. Hudson, Manager, Staunton, Va.

Those who wish accommodations at the hotel for all conferences except Young People's Conference, should apply to Mr. J. R. Lupton, Hotel Manager, Box 260, Harrisonburg, Va. For program and accommodations at the hotel during the Young People's Conference, apply to Rev. T. K. Currie, Box 1176, Richmond, Va.

"AS OTHERS SEE US"

Burns thought that a look at ourselves from the viewpoint of some one else would help us all.

The very Reverend Albert V. Baillie, dean of Windsor and chaplain to the King of England, after a visit to this country, writes his impressions as follows:

I do not profess to understand America or to be able to analyze her faults or qualities, but she has come to mean something very real to me. Who could confuse in memory the cosmopolitan vivacity of New York, with its many streams of almost hectic life, with the calm Boston wrapped in the robe of culture which it has woven out of the work of the great men who have enriched its past? Who could confuse the self-respecting dignity of Chicago, full of civic pride and an almost barbaric self-assertiveness, with the gaiety and joyousness of Virginia, whose deliciously harmonious, caressing voice gives it such an unforgettable charm? Who could confuse a village community of Scottish Highlanders in Carolina with country life in New England?

But these diversities are not the only difficulties in understanding America. It is the land of violent contrasts. In no other land is there a class so unblushingly given to the worship of mammon, but in no other land have I found so many men simply and whole-heartedly sacrificing opportunities of wealth and power to serve their country or help their fellow men in laborious work without reward or even recognition. In no other country is there such prompt reaction to pure idealism. In no other country is there such blatant vulgarity, and yet no other country has such exquisitely elaborate refinement. No other country has such almost brutal lawlessness, and yet no other country has such tender, affectionate home life. No other country has such arrogant conceit and yet such noble modesty. No other country has such innocent, childlike credulity and yet such shrewd, almost cynical, insight. But my experience has taught me to believe that while the weaker side is blatant and obvious on the surface, it is the nobler qualities which are growing with a steady, wholesome growth.

Yet with all these diversities America has a unity, complex and full of variety. It has a personality, and that personality is very real to me. The predominant feature is kindness. In my mind the American race, which has formed itself out of countless faces that I have watched, has always kindly eyes. The mouth is sometimes hard, the chin sometimes tells of almost ruthless pushing through to success, but the eyes are kind, and this kindness reflects in the endless kindly courtesies with which American social life is full. So I believe in the future of America, not because of its wealth and power, but because it is growing in nobility of thought and sending out a youth worthy to be entrusted with the work of dealing with the problems of the coming ages.

One test of a good prayer-meeting leader is ability to get others to take part.

Woman's Auxiliary

Conducted by Mrs. J. M. McIver, Gulf, N. C.

A WOMAN'S COMPLAINT

I cried to Buddha the whole night through,
And poured out my heart in these prayers;
When I left his feet the day was new,
But I came away with my cares.

I tied my rice in an old pine tree,
The bags were black and blue and white.
I thought the spirits would comfort me,
But my soul is lost in the night.

I dropped a rock on a mounting pile,
As thousands of women have done.
I sought for peace in a heathen style,
Yet of blessings I found not one.

In an old stone crock I have a god,
And daily I pause there to pray,
Lest death should come with a smiting rod—
I've buried my baby today.

Demons of air and demons of earth,
Too long have I served you in fear;
Would that I had the right of my birth
To cast on some Saviour my care,
L. T. Newland, Kwanju, Korea.

Charlotte, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of the Tenth Avenue Church is united in a Bible Class that meets every Monday afternoon. At present they are studying together the book of Genesis.

Chester, S. C.—The first gold star of the church year in Auxiliary circles of the Purity Church was given at the May Auxiliary meeting to Circle No. 6, Mrs. G. R. Dawson, leader.

Charlotte, N. C., Second Church—A number of the circles have been enjoying out-of-doors meetings since the weather has been so warm. The calendar for the past week announces that the Business Womens Circle will hold its July meeting on the campus of Queens College at 7:00 p. m. These out-of-doors meetings give a picnic flavor that is very attractive at this time of year.

Reorganization of Presbyterian Auxiliary, Sanford, N. C.—The Woman's Auxiliary of the Presbyterian Church has recently reorganized under the plan of "shifting" the circles. At the business meeting in April names of all members were drawn in groups of 17, which formed the eight circles of the Auxiliary. From each group a chairman was appointed by the President, Mrs. A. G. Carter. Under this new plan the circles will be more equally divided as to number and strength and members will get to know each other better. Mrs. D. B. King is secretary of the new organization and the chairmen of circles are as follows:

Circle No. 1, Miss Flora Wicker.
Circle No. 2, Miss Maggie Wicker.
Circle No. 3, Mrs. K. B. Griffin.
Circle No. 4, Mrs. D. B. King.
Circle No. 5, Mrs. R. E. Bobbitt.
Circle No. 6, Mrs. R. E. Carrington.
Circle No. 7, Mrs. E. T. Ussery.
Circle No. 8, Mrs. A. McN. Harrington.

"The Path the Calf Made" and the Application—Literature headquarters, Women's Missionary Society, United Lutheran Church in America, 844 Drexel Building, Philadelphia, Pa. Price 2 cents each.

THE PATH THE CALF MADE

By Sam Walter Foss

One day through the primeval wood,
A calf walked home, as good calves should,
But made a trail all bent askew,
A crooked trail as all calves do.

Since then two hundred years have fled,
And, I infer, the calf is dead,
But still he left behind his trail,
And thereby hang my moral tale.

The trail was taken up next day
By a lone dog that passed that way;
And then a wise bell-wether sheep
Pursued the trail o'er vale and steep
And drew the flock behind him too,
As good bell-wethers always do.
And from that day o'er hill and glade
Through those old woods a path was made;
And many men wound in and out,
And dodged and turned and bent about
And uttered words of righteous wrath
Because 'twas such a crooked path.

But still they followed—do not laugh—
The first migrations of that calf,
And through this winding woodway stalked
Because he wobbled when he walked.

This forest path became a lane,
That bent and turned, and turned again;
This crooked lane became a road,
Where many a poor horse with his load
Toiled on beneath the burning sun,
And traveled some three miles in one.
And thus a century and a half
They trod in the footsteps of that calf.

The years passed on in swiftness fleet
The road became a village street,
And this before they were aware,
A city's crowded thoroughfare;
And soon the central street was this
Of a renowned metropolis
And men two centuries and a half
Trod in the footsteps of that calf.

They followed in the beaten track,
And in, and out and forth, and back,
And still their devious course pursue.
To keep the path that others do.
For men are prone to go it blind
Along the calf paths of the mind,
And work away from sun to sun
To do what other men have done.

MISSIONARY RUTS

(Quotations from Mrs. Helen Barrett Montgomery.)

"A rut is the outward and visible sign of incompetence. The expert road-builder will have none of it. Rutless roads are possible; yet rutless roads are few, because the people have not learned that the unconscionable tax they pay for rutty roads is greater than the cost of making smooth mudless roads without ruts."

"In our churches, too, we have our ruts; old well established, highly though-of! . . . Over them with galled shoulders we drag one-horse loads a little way, when we might draw great burdens swiftly and with ease. Why do we tolerate them?"

"We tolerate them because on the surface it seems easier and less costly to endure ruts than to abate them."

"There is the monthly meeting. It has been monthly so long that there seems something sacrilegious in suggesting a missionary meeting oftener than once a month. To be sure a French class or a whist club or a reading circle would languish if held at such intervals, but 'missions' and 'monthly' begin with the same letter of the alphabet. Let that settle it."

"Then there is the place of meeting; what a deep old rut that is many churches! Why, for years and years, on the first Tuesday of each month, we have met in the church parlor, in the same seats arranged in the same way . . . (The hour of meeting is another rut; the election of officers, the type of program are others.)"

"The most dangerous rut of all is to continue the same officers year after year . . . In some of the most successful clubs no woman can succeed herself with an interval of at least a year . . . It may look as if it would kill the society for the beloved president to retire, but it won't. Perhaps she is so competent that she makes the rest inefficient just as many daughters never develop initiative because they have such executive mothers." "If there are six officers let three be retired each year, thus providing for both change and continuity."

How to Get Out of Ruts

There is only one way to get out of a rut. A sharp turn, a strong pull, a big bump and there you are! There is only one way to keep out of a rut—scientific road making and systematic road mending."

"Take the monthly meeting, for example. Why not frankly regard it as a minimum, and go to further councils of perfection? Why meet, usually, at three in the afternoon? This hour cuts out every stenographer and school teacher and business woman and mother of young children. . . . Why not alternate afternoon and evening sessions, holding one of each every month? If we have always met in the church parlors, why not try an occasional meeting in a private home? Or if we have been afternoon tea-ed to death try the church for a time. Change is the law of life; why make uniformity the law of the missionary society?"

"There is the order of exercise . . . Why should we always begin with a hymn, then have a Bible reading? . . . Suppose we sometimes take the message from the Word of God as the last thought which we carry away. Suppose we have a prayer after the program and that 'not a devotional exercise,' but real prayer for which our hearts have been prepared by the facts presented."

"I am comè, said Jesus, 'that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly.' Life means youth, change, joy, movement, color, courage, energy, will, love. It is the foe of death and stagnation and dullness. So the very spirit of the Master is opposed to the stereotyped, the formal, the traditional. His work is hindered when we allow it to become dry, dull, hackneyed, stereotyped, unvarying. We are to tend the beautiful Road so that over it may go loads of health and hope and love for the feeding of the world."

PRAYER

The Word says Jesus "Went up into a mountain to pray and as He prayed the fashion of His countenance was altered, and His raiment was white and glistening." So prayer brings out the glory in us, and brings down the glory of God upon us. It is strange commentary upon the weakness of the human spirit that, in the presence of the glory of God, the disciples' eyes were "heavy with sleep." But they awoke and saw the "glory of God." We need that vision now. Pray God that your eyes may see His glory. The glory-vision prepares us for heroic achievements.

News of the Week

Thos. W. Higginbotham, whose trial on the charge of whipping to death Martin Talbert, of North Dakota, a convict in a Florida camp, has attracted nation-wide attention, was found guilty of second degree murder and given 20 years in the penitentiary. The publicity resultant from this death has caused an investigation of camp conditions all over the country and the betterment thereof.

That part of the Washington naval accords dealing with limitations of armaments and capital ships, which created the most bitter opposition in French parliamentary and political circles during the past year, was jammed through the French chamber July 7th in record time by the Poincare-Bryand alliance. The half-hearted opposition from the socialists and communists was completely swamped and the treaty was adopted, 460 votes to 106. The news was received with elation in Washington.

Mrs. Nettie Fowler McCormick, widow of the inventor Cyrus McCormick, Sr., died July 5th, at the age of 88 years.

Inquiries received by the North Carolina State Board of health from widely separated sections of the State indicate a fear of the boll weevil that is entirely unfounded. The State board of health is advised that this pest of the cotton plant is without danger other than the damage which it does to one of the State's leading farm products.

The boll weevil is not poisonous.

Jack Dempsey, after his July 4th fight, remains the holder of the world's heavyweight boxing championship, although in full 15 rounds he was unable to knock out his challenger, Tom Gibbons. Dempsey won on referee's decision in the championship fight at Shelby, Mont. Probably not 10,000 paid admission to the arena, which was built to seat 40,000 people.

On July 5th lightning struck three people who were climbing Mt. Mitchell, N. C., and who, near the summit, had taken refuge in a cabin, that is used by rangers of the U. S. Forest Service. No one was killed.

General Henri Joseph Eugene Gouraud, of France, war-time commander of the Rainbow Division, is receiving a cordial welcome to America. On July 15th he is to attend the reunion of the Rainbow Division at Indianapolis, for which occasion he came to this country.

Purchase by the Illinois Mine Workers union of the Lester strip mine at Herrin Ill., the scene of the riots of last year, has been confirmed. The purchase price was $726,000.

Miss Margaret Woodrow Wilson, the oldest daughter of ex-President Wilson, has entered upon a business career, going into the advertising game in connection with the Blow Company, of New York, national advertisers.

Walter Hines Page, American ambassador to Great Britain during the great war, was given a place among the illustrious dead of the ages in Westminster Abbey. A marble tablet commemorating his friendship and sympathy in Great Britain's greatest hour of need was unveiled by Viscount Grey, of Fallodon.

A very distinguished company gathered in the Abbey in honor of the occasion.

The Georgia peach crop this year seems to be a bumper one. The season is at its height and trainloads of the luscious fruit are being shipped.

The reconditioned Leviathan, queen of the American merchant marine, sailed on Uncle Sam's birthday on her first trans-Atlantic pleasure voyage under the stars and stripes from New York harbor.

The celebration of the Fourth of July was safer and saner this year all over the country than ever before—a general holiday and pleasure day with most of the objectionable features eliminated.

That there is a possibility that the government hospital erected at Tuskegee, Ala., for disabled negro war veterans may be turned into a sanitarium for white veterans has been expressed by director Frank E. Hines, of the War Veterans' Bureau. The citizens of Tuskegee have protested against sending a full negro personnel to take charge of the hospital.

Senator Powell, speaking for the citizens, said that Tuskegee had the promise of a representative of the treasury department that the hospital would be in charge of white officers and doctors and that the people considered this a binding obligation. He said that "the people would have it no other way."

The 1923 convention of the National Education Association, and the world conference on education was held the past week in Oakland, Cal. Miss O. M. Jones, of New York City, was elected president.

Goldfield, Nevada, on July 6th was nearly wiped away by fire which ate out its business and part of its residence section.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT

(Conducted under the auspices of Synod's Committee of Sunday Schools and Young People's Work, in the interest of Sunday Schools and Young People's Societies)

W. ARNETT GAMBLE, JR., Editor

ADDRESS ALL COMMUNICATIONS TO THE DEPARTMENT EDITOR DAVIDSON, N. C

(We regret very much that the Editor's Lookout failed to reach us this week in time for publication. We feel sure the readers of this department will miss Mr. Gamble's always interesting article.—Ed.)

Sunday School

By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.

JULY 15, 1923

SIMON PETER

Matthew 16:13-18, 21-23; John 21:15-17

GOLDEN TEXT—"Lord, thou knowest all things, thou knowest that I love thee."—John 21:17.

SCRIPTURE LESSON

13 When Jesus came into the coasts of Caesarea Philippi, he asked his disciples, saying, Whom do men say that I, the Son of Man, am

14 And they said, Some say that thou art John the Baptist; some, Elias; and others, Jeremias, or one of the prophets.

15 He saith unto them, But whom say ye that I am?

16 And Simon Peter answered and said, Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God.

17 And Jesus answered and said unto him, Blessed art thou, Simon Barjona; for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven.

18 And I say also unto thee, That thou art Peter; and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.

21 From that time forth began Jesus to shew unto his disciples, how that he must go unto Jerusalem, and suffer many things of the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and be raised again the third day.

22 Then Peter took him, and began to rebuke him, saying, Be it far from thee, Lord: this shall not be unto thee.

23 But he turned, and said unto Peter, Get thee behind me, Satan; thou art an offence unto me; for thou savourest not the things that be of God, but those that be of men.

Jno. 21:15 So when they had dined, Jesus saith to Simon Peter, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me more than these? He saith unto him, Yea, Lord; thou knowest that I love thee. He saith unto him, Feed my lambs.

16 He saith to him again the second time, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me? He saith unto him, Yea, Lord; thou knowest that I love thee. He saith unto him, Feed my sheep.

17 He saith unto him the third time, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me? Peter was grieved because he said unto him the third time, Lovest thou me? And he said unto him, Lord, thou knowest all things; thou knowest that I love thee. Jesus saith unto him, Feed my sheep.

SHORTER CATECHISM

Q. 45. Which is the first commandment?
A. The first commandment is, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me."

Simon Peter was one of the most prominent of the Apostles. He was older and more mature than most of them. He was naturally bold, energetic, not quicker to apprehend than others, but more ready to express himself and to take the lead. He was remarkable for his gifts, his falls, his privileges and his services. He was one of Christ's earliest disciples. He was the only apostle that denied his Master in plain words. But he repented bitterly and was restored to discipleship and the apostolic office. He had the privilege of being present with the Master when He raised the dead, on the Mount of Transfiguration, and during His agony in the garden. He first proclaimed the Gospel to Jews and Gentiles, and his sermon at Pentecost is the only one recorded in the Scriptures. Attending to the present lesson we will consider Peter's Confession of Faith; Christ's Commendation of it as the Foundation of the Church; Jesus' Prediction of His Sufferings and Death; Peter's Love for Christ and its Tests.

I. Peter's Confession of Faith in Christ

He enquires of His Apostles as to the opinions of men respecting Him. He says, "Whom do men say that I am? They reply, "Some say that thou art John the Baptist, some Elias or Jeremiah or one of the prophets." He asks this not for information or because He did not know, but to bring up the subject and to manifest their own opinion. He then says, "Whom say ye that I am?" Peter, ready to speak for the rest, replies, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." These men had accompanied with him for three years, had heard His teachings and witnessed His deeds. They had the best opportunities for knowing His personality, and were fully satisfied that He was a Divine Person. He claimed to be God and because of that claim was condemned to die. He satisfied the apostles nearest to Him, that He was God in our nature or Immanuel. Peter's was a comprehensive creed. If Christ was "The Son of the living God" His claims were all true; His doctrines were all reliable; the duties He enjoined are binding and the Bible which He endorsed is the Word of God. If a man believes that Jesus is the Son of God he is ready to accept the Scriptures as inspired and Christ as the only Saviour.

II. Christ's Commendation of this Confession as the Foundation of the Church

Jesus commends Peter's confession as true, God-given and imparting blessedness. He says, "Blessed art thou, Simon Barjona, for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father that is in heaven." He also affirms, "Thou art Peter and upon this rock will I build my church and the gates of Hell shall not prevail against it." Peter's name means a rock, but he was not stable when tempted. The Lord gave him the name not to show what he was then, but to describe what he would become when matured by Divine grace. The belief or faith in Jesus as the Son of God was the rock on which the Church should rest unshaken by the powers of darkness. The Apostle Paul declares, "Other foundation can no man lay than that which is laid, even Jesus Christ." Jesus is the cornerstone of Zion. But it is not Jesus, the man, however excellent, but Christ the Son of God, anointed of the Holy Ghost as to His humanity and able to do everything needful for man's salvation, exaltation and eternal life.

Jesus' Prediction of His Sufferings and Death

The time drew near and "Jesus began to show unto His disciples how He must go unto Jerusalem and suffer many things of the elders and chief priests and scribes and be killed and be raised again on the third day." The necessity for this is to be found in the immutable laws' demands, in the proposed salvation of man and the decree of the Godhead. The sovereign Jehovah uses the wicked passions and deeds of men and Satan to accomplish His own wise and merciful purposes. Christ shrank from the cross but submitted to the Father's will. Peter, the natural man, shrank from the cross for his Master. But the Lord reproves him and calls him "Satan" or opposer. When men oppose God they not only attempt the impossible, but that which is designed for their own welfare.

IV. Peter's Love for Jesus and Its Tests

Christ asks Peter three times the question, "Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me," reminding him that he had thrice denied Him. Two words in Greek express love; one denotes strong and tender affection; the other is less strong and expresses the love of friendship. In the conversation Peter uses the strong and tender word "phileo" every time. The Saviour employs "agapao," the weaker word twice. Only in the last question does He employ the strong and tender word "phileo." Jesus employs two words to express strong and tender love for Himself. The first means to "feed," used first and last. The second signifies to "shepherd," to perform the office of a shepherd. He says, "If you have tender affection for me, feed my lambs," shepherd my sheep, feed my sheep.

Christian Endeavor

By Rev. J. G. Garth, Chairman of Synod's Committee of Sabbath Schools and Young People's Work.

CHRIST AND SOCIAL LIFE

- M., July 16—Approve unselfishness: II Cor. 12:11-21.
- T., July 17—Recreation: Luke 7:31-35.
- W., July 18—Social settlements: Luke 15:1-10.
- T., July 19—Interest in children: Matt. 18:1-10.
- F., July 20—Disapprove greed: Mic. 3:9-12.
- S., July 21—Hypocrisy: Matt. 23:25-33.

Sun., July 22—Topic: What in Present-Day Social Life Would Christ Approve? What Disapprove? I Cor. 10:23, 24, 31-33; 11:1.

The social life is that part of our lives we spend in the association with other people. When we speak of the social life, we usually mean our pleasures and friendly mingling with the people of our acquaintance, or with strangers. The social ideas and customs are those which are practiced in common with the majority of the people of our town or community. We cannot enjoy the company of other people, unless we do the same things, or are interested in the same subjects. Our Saviour gives us the example of social mingling with other people, for he constantly kept in the company of others. He enjoyed it, but of course, his higher purpose was to do good. Christ was a man of the people, and did not hold himself aloof. Therefore, he wishes his Church to do as he did, and live with men and women in every-day life.

But let us remember that while Christians are in the world, and must mingle with men, they should form their own standards and create their own social atmosphere. The world is very sociable and is anxious to do just as it pleases, and will mix in lots of sin with its social life. It has always made its bids for the company of the Christians; and there is where the danger lies. The flood was caused by wickedness of the people; but that wickedness sprang from the fact that the good people lowered their social standards to those of the world. And every decline in religion can be traced to the same thing.

Christ has given us clear and unmistakable principles for social life.

What Christ Approves of in Social Life

Paul, speaking for Christ, lays down several principles in the passage, by which we are to be guided in the social life. First, we must not engage in those things which are plainly wrong. If we break the moral law, we cannot call ourselves Christians. Then, he tells us we must do those things that are expedient, that is, profitable both for ourselves and others. Again, we must keep in mind the glory of God. This is the chief end of man. We do not live for this world, but for the world to come, where we shall enjoy the presence of our heavenly Father. The fourth principle Paul lays down is unselfishness. We must think of others first, and be careful lest our lives and deeds affect other people to their disadvantage.

Can we apply these principles to our present day social life? We can and we must, for unless we meet them and obey them, our Christianity is a failure. We must develop Christian brotherhood, and have fellowship with one another. We must derive from this mutual help, by example and service we render each other. It gives us opportunity to bear witness for Christ, and to develop a fine influence over our friends.

It is fine to know that the young people can have a good time, and yet be loyal to Christ, and helpful to one another. Nothing has done more along this line than the Christian Endeavor with its social committee which arranges parties, contests, picnics, and other social events. Our Christian young people ought to always keep in mind their influence for Christ.

What Christ Must Disapprove in the Social Life

Of course he disapproves of everything that is contrary to the principles we have just mentioned. He wants us to be sociable. Christ does not approve of snobbishness, or thinking too much of oneself, and looking down on others. He is grieved at extravagance in feasting and playing. He forbids all intemperance, revelling, continued late hours that waste the strength. Jesus would not like for us to make the Sabbath day a day of frolic and fun. He hates anything that lowers the fine regard we have been taught to have for the other sex, whether it be in the dance, or dress, or conversation, or any other way. Jesus warns us not to be insincere and hypocritical, trying to appear something we have no right to be. He especially warns us against doing anything that will offend his little ones, whether they be children, or people who are not fortunate, as we may be.

Let us make Jesus Lord of our social life as well as our business life, our home life, or our church life. He is lord of all. Let us crown him with many crowns, and make him king in every part of our lives.

NEWS FROM THE FRONT

During the Spring a Junior Expert Endeavor course was conducted in the Junior C. E. Society of the First Presbyterian Church of Mooresville, N. C. Nine Junior Experts have just been graduated from this class: Beth Norman, Annie Pleasant White, Wharey Moore Freeze, Owens Davidson, Sallie B. Davidson, Wilburn Freeze, Mary Mitchell Norman, Isabell Brawley, and Sara Henderson. This fine society of boys and girls is under the supervision of Misses Margaret White and Elizabeth Neel.

The young people of the Quaker Meadow Presbyterian Church of Morganton, N. C., have recently organized a Senior Christian Endeavor Society. Twenty members were enrolled at the first meeting. The officers of the society are: President, Miss Sally Ramseur; vice-president, Richard Spainhour; secretary-treasurer, Charles Bost. Miss Annie Sue Bost has been named as reporter from the society to the Young People's Department of the Standard.

A short time before the Senior Society was organized a Junior Society was organized, with 15 members. The Junior officers are: President, Lucile Fox; vice-president, Warlick Avery; secretary-treasurer, Margaret Spainhour.

MINUTES OF ECHO CONFERENCE OF FIFTH DISTRICT

The echo conference of the Fifth district of the Wilmington Presbytery met in the Warsaw Presbyterian Church, June 29, 1923. The number attending conference was the largest of any, there being 145 present.

The conference opened with a song service; then devotional exercises were held, conducted by Mr. McBride. Every visitor was cordially welcomed to Warsaw by Julia Farrior. A response was given to this by Miss Gavin. Mrs. Harvey, Secretary of the Young People's Work, then gave a talk to us, in which she told us about our Presbytery winning the Ramsey loving cup at the Synodical conference. She brought this cup with her. Several songs then followed, after which we all heard a most interesting talk on Brazil, by Mr. J. Porter Smith, who is a missionary to those parts.

Miss Nell Bowden sang a solo accompanied by Mrs. Jack Williams. Every visitor then registered. It was found that 145 were present and that Mt. Olive had the largest delegation. The offering was taken up and the money went towards paying the officers' expenses during the year. An inspirational address followed, given by Rev. A. D. P. Gilmour, D.D., after which everyone was dismissed, by a prayer, for dinner, which was served on the school ground, cafeteria style.

The afternoon session opened at 1:30 with a song service. Then the devotional exercises, by Rev. Edward Silly. Echoes from the Synodical Young People's Conference were given by Miss Sallie Faison Best, of Warsaw, and Miss Mildred Bell, of Faison. Short talks were made on "The Threefold Aim of Our Church: (1) Winning for Christ, Miss Roslyn Southerland; (2) Developing in the Likeness of Christ, Virginia Strickland; (3) Training for the Service of Christ, Lucile Bowden."

The banner was then given to the Intermediate C. E. of Mt. Olive and the silver loving cup was given to Calypso to keep for two months. As we had five societies to reach the standard of efficiency this is the longest any society can keep it. Three of these societies were in this district.

The narrative reports from the different societies present were then read: Calypso, Clinton, Faison, Kenansville, Mt. Olive, Seven Springs, Warsaw, Chinquapin.

Questions were then asked and answered, after which the benediction was pronounced.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONFERENCE IN SYNOD OF SOUTH CAROLINA

The second annual Young People's Conference of the Synod of South Carolina opened at the Presbyterian College, Clinton, on June 11th, with a total registration of 236. Among this number who had gathered for a week of work, play and fellowship were many adult leaders from various churches seeking information as to ways of meeting the needs of young people.

Dr. J. P. Marion, chairman of Synod's conference committee, has the happy faculty of enlisting the whole-hearted co-operation of every member of the committee, and for six months previous to June 11th, the minutest details had been given careful consideration. No efforts were spared to secure the best faculty possible. The young people responded loyally to the fine program and to the consideration shown them by Dr. Marion and the faculty. They pledged themselves to carry to their Presbyteries the fullest measure of helpful methods and materials.

Dr. R. F. Kirkpatrick was the genial platform manager and both requests and announcements were received with equal pleasure, made as they were with such tact and courtesy. Miss Zoulean Anderson, as chief councillor for the girls, and Rev. J. B. Belk, as chief councillor for the boys, by their sympathetic understanding of the students' needs won all hearts.

The daily schedule began with "setting up" exercises, followed by the morning watch—a quiet period of devotions in which the hearts of the young people were brought into communion with the heavenly Father and so prepared for the day's work. The song service, led by Rev. J. B. Belk, further prepared them for the Bible hour so ably conducted by Dr. Melton Clark, of Columbia Seminary. "The Personal Interviews of Jesus," as recorded by St. John, a series of helpful studies; "Presbyterian Fundamentals," taught by Rev. R. A. Lapsley, of Columbia, created intense interest among adults as well as young people, and this phase of instruction is much needed so that our young people may know the reason for the faith that is in them. The widespread discussion of "The New Theology," etc., makes it imperative that such teachers as Mr. Lapsley give themselves faithfully to the task of teaching the Bible as the inspired Word of God.

Following an intermission of 30 minutes, classes convened for the study of Missions. "The White Fields of Japan," foreign mission text-book, was taught by Dr. R. F. Kirkpatrick, who made real the fact of the waiting multitudes. Miss Earline Cox taught "Unfinished Tasks," home mission text-book, and to her knowledge of the book was added her personal experience as a missionary in the mountains of Kentucky. These so impressed her class that several dedications of life were made to this one of the church's tasks. The period of Young People's Work was conducted by Mr. Wilkes Dendy, whose very name inspires his audiences. In this series of lessons Mr. Dendy discussed the Progressive Program of our church and paralleled each objective with the program adopted by Christian Endeavor. Signs of the times indicate a consecrated, intelligent leadership for the Presbyterian Church of the future.

An innovation at this conference was the election by the students of a student president and a student secretary who presided over the open conference period. Mr. Charlie Douglas was chosen president and Miss Nellie Peck White secretary. These two splendid young people represented the student body in the administrative council.

Following a period of rest and quiet there were games of tennis, basketball, baseball and other forms of recreation. Miss Virginia Taylor was chairman of the social committee and she was ably assisted by the senior councillors in planning delightful and wholesome amusements.

The vesper services were easily among the most impressive features of the conference. Coming as they did at the holy twilight hour, there was a calm in which the Saviour manifested His presence and the young hearts were open to receive the message of the hour. Mr. Lapsley and Mr. Belk led the services.

The inspirational evening addresses were made by Dr. Wade Dugboise, of Spartanburg; Dr. Flournoy Shepperson, of Chester, and Dr. W. T. Thompson, of Richmond, who was also in charge of Sunday's program. Each of these addresses was of an unusually high order and met instant response from the audiences. Sunday morning was given to Sabbath School work, followed by services in Thornwell Memorial Church, with Dr. Thompson speaker. On Sunday afternoon a model Christian Endeavor meeting was held in the college chapel. This was planned by Dr. Kirkpatrick and presided over by Miss Nellie Peck White. A life work recruit service immediately preceded the evening address. At this time 20 young people pledged themselves to full-time service. Dr. Thompson brought this memorable week to a close with an earnest appeal for decision on the part of every one present.

Among the special features of interest outside the regular conference program were the invitations to Thornwell commencement, to the Country Club as guests of Clinton, and a picnic supper served by Mrs. Hunter, the beloved matron of the P. C. dining hall. "Stunt night" was one long to be remembered. Tribal rivalry was keen but friendly, and songs, stunts, and yells portrayed both tribal and conference spirit in a very fine way. Enoree tribe (Enoree Presbytery) won first place in stunt and yell. Seneca tribe (Piedmont Presbytery) won first place in song. The silver trophy cup offered last year by Synod's committee was won this year by the Choctaw tribe (Harmony Presbytery), Enoree coming second, Piedmont third. Individual record cards were kept and the cup was awarded on percentage basis.

Among the distinguished visitors who looked in up the conference were Dr. Alexander Sprunt, moderator of the General Assembly, and Mrs. Andrew Bramlett, president of the Synodical Auxilliary.

Thanks are due the management of the Presbyterian College, to the citizens of Clinton, to Thornwell Orphanage and to the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Presbyterian Church for kindness and comforts enjoyed.

Mrs. T. C. Peden,
For Synod's Conference Committee,

E d u c a t i o n a

Flora Macdonald College has received with much satisfaction and pleasure the news that Lochie chief of the famous Clan Cameron of Scotland will arrive in the United States about October 15th, accompanied by his wife, Lady Hermione. They will be the guests en route to this country of the Anchor Line Steamship Company and will take passage on the "Cameronia," this vessel having been christened by the wife of the chief. Plans are under way to make the occasion of the visit to Red Springs a great gathering of the Scots of the Carolinas and will be held under the auspices of the Scottish Society of America, which last year extended an official invitation to Lochiel to visit the States.

Westminster College, Fulton, Mo., closed its 73 year on June 6th. Rev. H. H. Forsyth, D.D., pastor of the Kings Highway Presbyterian Church, of St. Louis, delivered the commencement address. The degree of bachelor of arts was conferred on 15 young men. The baccalaureate sermon was preached by Rev. D. K. Ferguson, of Marshall, Mo., and the annual sermon by Rev. R. S. Boyd, of Kansas City. The year was pronounced by the various members of the faculty the most encouraging year of school work during their connection with the institution. This means the more when it is known that one member has taught on this faculty for 35 years and another for 58 years.

Lees College Institute, Jackson, Ky., has just closed the most successful year in its history. Tuesday evening, May 9th, the advanced music pupils gave a most interesting recital under the direction of their instructor, Miss Florence M. Geise. The program was an unusually good one.

The graduating exercises of the high school were held Wednesday evening, May 30th. There were ten graduates this year, eight young ladies and two young men. The essays and orations were very good indeed. The address and presentation of diplomas were delivered by Rev. J. C. Hanley, the president. In the primary grades scholarships were delivered to the different classes. The silver cup won by the girls in the State Bible contest, was presented to Miss Maud Hurt, the valedictorian and president of the class—also a prize of $5 offered by the D. A. R. for the best essay was won by Miss Hurt.

The session of 1923-4 opens the first Monday in September and this will be the first year of college work offered by this institution. The course of study will include Junior High School, High School, and Junior College. A special department in Bible will be arranged and a teacher therefor secured.

Extensive improvements will be made in the institution during the summer months in the way of repairing, painting and some rooms added. The prospects for the splendid institution in the heart of the hills never were so flattering, and Mr. Hanley and his splendid wife, with their corps of teachers have done remarkable work. Young men and women have gone out from this institution as teachers, lawyers, ministers, doctors and other vocations to bless the world.

Thos. B. Talbot.
Lexington, Ky.

Young People's Conference at Clinton, South Carolina

Church News

MEN'S WORK CONFERENCE

There has closed today one of the most significant conferences that has ever been held in America. The Men's Work Conference of the Presbyterian Church, U. S., at Montreat, N. C.

Many have become familiar with the expression "There is too much teaching about the Bible instead of teaching the Bible." We could well say that there are too many Conferences and Church courts related to or about Christianity instead of Christianity itself.

This conference by the men has dealt with the heart of and power of Christianity. This conference will live in the lives of those who attended, and will spread to the ends of the earth.

I have attended Christian conferences for the last 25 years and this conference is the first one to make the impression on me that the one aim and end of the gathering is to deepen the spiritual life.

Definite impressions:

1. Prayer—Trusting all to God—man zero and God everything.
2. Bible Study—With system and sacrifice.
3. Testimony—All the time and everywhere as to what Christ has done for me,—not ashamed of our Master.
4. Lead men to Christ.
5. Have a program and conceal the dry bones (the frame).

These things they taught and did. One big business man made a decision for Christ because other men loved him and prayer for God to save his soul and bring him into the church. He will join the ranks of those who will never be ashamed of Christ.

The large gathering was called on to look upon a young man, who never went further than the third grade in school, but who has been used of God to bring about one hundred souls to Christ in a year.

The "Flying Squadron" of Jackson, Miss., has led about ten thousand men to Christ in a year. Sometimes as many as 150 men going out to take part in one service by prayer and testimony.

Mr. Frederick Sullens told us that he had been born again. "Not a theory but a fact."

These men tell us that the country is ripe for a great revival.

My heart has been stirred and helped by the earnestness and devotion of "The men of our Church," and every one of our preachers should be on the alert to learn from these men and read the "Signs of the Times."

A missionary from China,
C. Fred Hancock.

PERSONAL

Rev. and Mrs. Motte Martin, and young son are spending the months of July and August at Chattanooga, Tenn., Signal Mountain. In September they expect to take up again their work in Africa.

Rev. M. B. Lambdin, since his return from abroad, is located at 3534 Park Place, N. W., Washington, D. C., instead of Montgomery, W. Va., as formerly. Mr. Lambdin will engage in evangelistic, lecture, and literary work.

Rev. William Crowe and Mrs. Crowe, by the generosity of the Westminster congregation, St. Louis, Mo., are planning to sail on July 25th, for Europe. The objective is the dedication of the Memorial Church at Compeigne, at which Dr. Crow will represent the Assembly Committee.

NORTH CAROLINA

Statesville—The Home Missions Committee of the Presbyterian Church is bequeathed approximately $6,000 by the will of Aspasia Clark, whose death occurred at her home on Lackey Street, Thursday. In addition to other holdings, the proceeds from her real estate constitute her bequest to the church.

Elmwood—We are glad to welcome Rev. J. E. Robinson and family, of Yadkinville, into our village. Mr. Robinson is pastor of Elmwood, Third Creek, and Bethesda churches. Last Thursday, the day of Mr. Robinson's moving, the churches extended their welcome to him in a material way by giving him a generous pounding.

Bensalem Church is holding her own in spite of the fact that she has given of her members liberally to establish her daughter churches of Spies, Eagle Springs, Pinehurst, and Elise. At Thanksgiving last year, Bensalem held a Home-Coming, which will be an annual event, with dinner on the grounds, and a large crowd gathered from far and near to the old church. The Woman's Auxiliary recently gave a Mexican Fiesta, which was greatly enjoyed. The meeting this year will be held by Rev. V. R. Gaston, of Bethesda.
W. L. Wilson, Pastor.

Charlotte—Rev. and Mrs. James E. Bear, who sail in August to take up language study in Nanking, China, as the first step in their work in that land, spent the past week in Charlotte, the guests of the Caldwell Memorial Church, which is to have a part interest in their support. On last Sabbath Mr. Bear filled the pulpit of this church at both the morning and evening services. On the Saturday before he and Mrs. Bear were tendered a delightful reception by the pastor and congregation of this church, thus giving the people an opportunity to know personally their representatives on the foreign field.

The Johnston-Harnett Field, Fayetteville Presbytery—Rev. A. T. Lassiter, pastor of this group of churches writes:

Alaska—Rev. Letcher Smith, superintendent of Home Missions of Fayetteville Presbytery was with this church recently in a series of evangelistic services. Our young people were greatly blessed by his preaching. The meeting made an impression on the whole community and built up the spiritual life of the congregation. Two were added to the church on profession of faith. This church has a very good Sunday School and a wide-awake Christian Endeavor Society. Rev. A. T. Lassiter is pastor in charge of this field.

Pinehurst—At a week's meeting held June 26th-July 1st, Pinehurst Church received into membership seven on profession of faith and one by letter. Rev. C. B. Craig, of Laurinburg was the messenger who gave us refreshment in the Lord. As usual we held meetings in the open air, placing the pulpit and piano on the portico and using the seats and polo 'bleachers' for the audience. Large gatherings attended and much good was done by Mr. Craig's faithful and clear presentation of God's truth.

Pinehurst Church is just three years old, and has 56 members, and bright prospects. It has a good Sunday School, Christian Endeavor and Woman's Auxiliary, and hopes before long to build a church and call a resident pastor for his full time.
W. L. Wilson, Pastor.

Roseneath—This church has just closed a very successful series of evangelistic services under the preaching of Rev. Neill McInnis, of Selma, N. C. This mission church was greatly encouraged by the meeting, and the life of the membership was deepened spiritually. This church is in the midst of a fine farming section with a very large percentage of both old and young people out of the church. This is the only active and promising work in the community. The prospect for a strong church is good. Have a very good Sunday School. The young people are asking for the organization of a Christian Endeavor Society. Two young ladies recently recited the Shorter Catechism. Two united with the church at close of the meeting and two united at the next regular preaching service.

Eagle Springs Church is just a year old, but has 30 members, and is doing excellent work. During the year a fine lot (an acre of land), in an excellent location, was purchased from Miss Agnes Graham, of Jackson Springs, who kindly sold the land for a very small sum; and thanks are also due to Mr. Mcl. Kennedy, of Bensalem, who purchased the lot for the congregation. It was hoped to build a church this summer, but the failure of the peach crop made postponement necessary.

Eagle Springs has a good Sunday School and one of the best Christian Endeavor Societies in the State; also a Woman's Auxiliary. Rev. Wm. Black will hold a meeting here November 11-17. Large crowds attended the preaching services and we believe this church will accomplish a great deal of good.
W. L. Wilson, Pastor.

Wildwood—A series of evangelistic services closed in this church on June 24th. Rev. C. M. Gibbs, of Linden, N. C., labored with us during the services. He preached the Gospel with great power and so simply that the children could understand the very forceful messages. The community was strengthened and made better by this meeting. The church and community have for some time been somewhat divided as to the location to build a house of worship. Just before the meeting the location was decided on very satisfactorily and the preaching of the Gospel, the excellent attendance and the co-operative work on the part of all, placed the seal on what had recently been done. This mission church is located in a thickly settled community with next nearest church and Sunday School three and one half miles away.

Elise Church—The trustees of Elise High School have presented a fine lot to Elise Church. It is a corner lot on the main street, next to one of the dormitories, and a choice location. A plan for a modern church building, with Sunday School and primary rooms, has been selected, and the building committee, consisting of W. G. Carter, E. R. Brown and C. A. Prevost, Jr., expect to begin work soon. This is a home mission church, with only 34 members, none of them very rich in this world's goods, so it is quite an undertaking for this weak church to erect a building suitable not only for its own services, but for the needs of Elise High School, and any help will be gratefully received. This church would be larger and stronger today if it had erected a building years ago, for as Rev. A. W. Crawford says, "People don't care to join a school-house."

It is hoped that the alumni of Elise High School will contribute toward a memorial window erected to Rev. R. S. Arrowood, first pastor of the church and principal for 10 years of Elise High School.
W. L. Wilson, Pastor.

Winston-Salem—The commission appointed to install Dr. D. Clay Lilly, pastor of the Reynolda Church, met at that church at 5 p. m., Sunday, July 1, 1923. A large congregation was present at the installation service. Rev. S. M. Rankin read the 91st Psalm.

Dr. Charles F. Meyers, pastor of the First Church, Greensboro, N. C., preached an inspiring sermon from the text, "If the foundation be destroyed what can the righteous do?" Psalm 11:3. The message was presented in a masterful way, and was particularly appropriate to a part of Dr. Lilly's plan, in his work at Reynolda.

Rev. R. M. Williams delivered the charge to the pastor and Dr. S. M. Rankin delivered the charge to the people in an appropriate, impressive way.

Dr. Lilly was accorded a most cordial welcome, publicly, at the close of the service by the congregation of Reynolda Church and a large number of friends and members of sister churches and denominations.

J. S. Kuykendall, T. C.

Spies—This little church is the northwest outpost of Fayetteville Presbytery and was organized two years ago. Spies is a small town on the Norfolk Southern, with prospects of future development. A year ago, a modern church building, with Sunday School rooms was erected here, although the church then had but seven members. A fine meeting was held in the fall by Rev. Jonas Barclay, of Pittsboro, and several were added. Large crowds attended the services and the attendance at preaching services is excellent. Under the leadership of Messrs. J. F. Monroe and A. F. Monroe a good Sunday School is held, and recently a Wednesday night prayer meeting has been started. There is still a debt of $500 on the church building and it should be painted, and any who care to contribute to this worthy Home Mission work can send their contributions to Mr. J. F. Monroe, Spies, N. C. Spies Church is grateful to Culdee Church for the gift of its old pews. Rev. I. N. Clegg will begin an evangelistic meeting here on the fifth Sunday of July and we are praying for a revival.
W. L. Wilson, Pastor.

Benson—The church at this place recently had the pleasure of having with us in a ten-days' meeting, Rev. Chas. R. Bailey, of Laurel Hill. The Gospel was preached with power. The morning services were in the form of Bible study and very helpful and interesting. This church was greatly built up in faith—a great deal of interest manifested by the membership and with the growing Sunday School and Christian Endeavor and the very splendid work of the Woman's Auxiliary and the co-operation and excellent work of the officers of the church, she is looking forward to greater things in the future. Four united with the church on profession of faith, two of whom were young mothers.

Mrs. E. M. Hall, wife of the Methodist minister here, directed the music which was greatly enjoyed by all. She is a very efficient leader.

Six children have recently recited the child's catechism. Our church people are happy to say we now have no church debt. Within the last few days the debt has all been paid. In addition the church has paid for a Ford car for Miss Roberta Bain, Sunday School worker, who is doing a very good work in the two counties.

Davidson—Work on the new athletic field—the $30,000 stadium which comes as the generous gift of the Richardsons of Greensboro—will begin Monday.

It is confidently expected that the grounds will be ready for use this fall and with equal confidence it is felt that the inter-collegiate games to be played here will attract large numbers as the paved boulevard between Statesville and Charlotte through Davidson will have been long since completed before the fall.

Posters and circulars will announce next week the beginning of a two-weeks union tent meeting to be held here beginning July 15th. The tent will be placed in the western section of the town near the Linden chapel. The music will be under the direction of Rev. J. C. Ervin, of Rutherfordton. For the first week local pastors will do the preaching, one service daily. Beginning with the second week, Rev. Dr. J. C. Abernethy of Trinity Church, Charlotte, will be present and preach twice a day till the close of the meeting. A united and serious effort will be made to have the town and community as a whole present at the services.

Of pleasurable interest to a wide circle of friends is a bit of news that comes east from Wyoming in regard to Rev. Dr. Thos. E. Winecoff, formerly a Concord boy and valedictorian of the class of '90—that in a state-wide sermon contest for a very worth-while cash prize in which contest the justices of the supreme court of the State were judges, he was by a unanimous decision awarded the first prize. The contest was open to all—Protestant or Catholic, Jew or Gentile alike. The prize was a check sufficient in size to pay in part for a summer outing for himself and family. The subject was "The Use and Abuse of Law." Dr. Winecoff will make a collection for the Museum d'Istorie Naturelle, Paris, of insects in Yellowstone Park during his vacation. The French museum has now two collections from Dr. Winecoff, one of these being from the Artic. This summer he will be entertained by the Park authorities and every possible facility for the work be given him.

Home-Coming at Old Bethesda—The Presbyterian Church at Aberdeen, N. C. is in possession of two church buildings, a brick building erected in Aberdeen in recent years, and the old building located about a mile from the town and erected in 1862. The latter building is called Old Bethesda, and is the third building erected in that location. Bethesda Church was organized during the last decade of the eighteenth century, and is at least 125 years old. Bethesda cemetery is older than the church as people were buried there during the Revolutionary War. In recent years the cemetery has been very much enlarged and has become the burial ground for Aberdeen and the surrounding country. Before Aberdeen became large enough to contain churches of other denominations, everybody worshipped with the Presbyterians at the old building. As a result the leading people in all the churches of the community have an interest in Old Bethesda. A call was sent out to the sons and daughters of Bethesda to gather at the old building on the first Sabbath of July in order to worship God and enjoy Christian fellowship with each other during the day. And they came from the four quarters of the earth—from the counties of Moore, Montgomery, Chatham, Lee, Cumberland, Hoke, Robeson, Scotland, Richmond, and the regions beyond. McCods, Camerons, Curries, McNeils, Grahams, Johnsons, McLeans, Shaws, Pages, Blues, Pattersons, Keiths, Bethunes, McKinnons, Campbells, Buchanans, McDonalds, McKeithens, and other names of distinction. The old church was packed including galleries, and enough people on the outside to pack the church a second time. Dr. A. R. Shaw, of Charlotte, also a son of Bethesda, brought us a message that touched all hearts. The music was led by Mr. Scott Pool, of Raeford, N. C., and was without any instrument, save the human voice. The hymns were those used at Old Bethesda in the long ago, and were sung heartily by the congregation. After the first service dinner was served in the grove under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary. At three o'clock we had another good message from Dr. Shaw to a full church, after which the Lord's supper was administered by the pastor, Rev. V. R. Gaston, and the congregation dismissed. There was no confusion or levity. A quiet, reverent, earnest seeking after the Lord seemed to pervade all hearts. All voted the day a splendid success and wanted to make the Home-Coming day a permanent institution at Old Bethesda.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Greenwood, First Church—At the quarterly communion service, on yesterday, sixteen persons were received into the membership of the church, making a total of 102 new members received within the past seven months.

Five of our young people attended the Young People's Conference, at Clinton, and upon their return, made enthusiastic reports.

A committee has been appointed to investigate conditions and make recommendations for the erection of a Sunday School building or addition to our present equipment. Our school is overflowing, but it now seems that the new building cannot be erected before next spring.

Kingstree—The series of revival meetings conducted at the Presbyterian Church here the past week by Rev. Daniel Iverson, of Tarboro, N. C., came to a close last night. Meetings have been held twice daily since Monday, June 25th. For the forenoon service business houses of the town closed their doors and the attendance upon each service taxed the capacity of the church. Rev. Mr. Iverson is a very earnest and forceful speaker. He is a young man and was a fellow student at the seminary of the local pastor, Rev. John W. Davis. He made many warm friends in Kingstree.

ALABAMA

Synod of Alabama—The constitutional requirements having been complied with a meeting of the Synod of Alabama is hereby called at the First Presbyterian Church, Montgomery, on Thursday, July 12th, at noon, for the following purposes:

1. To receive a report from the Campaign Committee.
2. To take action regarding the settlement of Synod's share in the expense of the general Educational Campaign.
3. To take such action as may seem wise, in view of the settlement arrived at with the receivers of the M. & M. Bank, in modification of the action of Synod at Talladega. (See minutes, page 651.)

H. M. Moffett, Moderator.

Birmingham, Ala., June 30, 1923.

ARKANSAS

Texarkana First—Rev. Julian S. Sleeper, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, at Hillsboro, Texas, has accepted a call to this church, and will begin work in Texarkana about September 1st. The first church of Texarkana has been vacant since last winter when Dr. C. H. H. Branch resigned to accept the Hyde Park Church in Tampa.

Ouachita Presbytery met at Ashdown on July 10th in special session to dissolve the pastoral relations between Rev. T. A. Park and the Mena Church and to dismiss Mr. Park to the Presbytery of Central Texas, and to receive into the Presbytery Rev. H. V. McColloch, who has recently accepted a call to the Ashdown Church.

Camden First—The new manse just completed by this congregation is one of the most beautiful and attractive to be found in the Assembly. The pastor of this church, Rev. Charles Haddon Nabers, has returned home from St. Louis, where he represented the local club at the convention of Rotary International.

FLORIDA

Florida Synodical Young People's Conference—The first Synodical Young People's Conference was held in the beautiful city of Gainesville, Fla., where the delegates were most delightfully entertained by the First Presbyterian Church. The conference was very well attended by a large number of splendid, enthusiastic young people, who received instruction, training, and inspiration for larger usefulness in the kingdom.

The inspirational addresses were delivered each evening by Rev. Robert McCaslin, D.D., of Jacksonville; Rev. Melton Clark, D.D., of Columbia; Dr. Duncan B. Curry, of Jacksonville; and Rev. Wade C. Smith, of Greensboro, N. C., who illustrated one lecture with his "Little Jets," and a second lecture with his stereopticon views.

The morning devotional period was conducted by Rev. Wade C. Smith, followed by the Bible Hour under Dr. Melton Clark. Then came the class periods, Miss Beulah Roney teaching "Expert Endeavor," Mr. Duncan S. Curry, "The C. E. Officer's Handbook," Mr. Laurence Williams, "C. E. Committee Work;" Mrs. P. W. Dubose, "Making Life Count;" Miss Wilhelmina Whitted, "The Child and America's Future;" Rev. P. W. DuBose, "The White Fields of Japan;" Rev. E. F. Montgomery, "Presbyterianism;" and Rev. Wade C. Smith, "Personal Work."

The conference period each morning was in charge of the students, and a splendid program portraying the points of the Presbyterian Progressive Program was presented, a group of girls and one of boys having charge each day.

The recreation periods under the efficient leadership of Miss Margaret Engle, of Lake City assisted by Miss May Graddick, of Jacksonville, were not only profitable, but delightful. Also, the story hour, in charge of Mrs. T. H. Ellington, was a fine feature of the conference.

The various groups of young people, under the leadership of their councilors, named themselves after missionaries. There was a great deal of friendly rivalry between the groups at meals, and their "stunts on stunt night were good.

A vote of thanks is due to Rev. A. E. Spencer and his able assistants for their splendid work in arranging and making possible the conference.

GEORGIA

Presbytery of Athens—At a called meeting of the Presbytery of Athens, at Toccoa, Ga., June 28, 1923, Mr. J. W. Anderson, licentiate, was received from the Presbytery of Bethel, and after the usual examinations was ordained to the full work of the Gospel ministry. Having accepted a call to the pastorate of the Toccoa Church, he was, at the evening service installed as pastor the commission for this purpose being the Revs. J. A. Simpson, J. C. Blackburn, and H. R. Boswell, and ruling elder W. R. Bruce of the Toccoa Church.

At the same time, Mr. W. A. Stevenson, a candidate under the care of this Presbytery, was at his own request dismissed to the Presbytery of West Lexington. S. J. Cartledge, S. C.

TEXAS

Godley—This church is being supplied for the summer by Mr. Charles Tucker, a candidate of Fort Worth Presbytery, who is a student at Austin College. He is making plans for the meeting to be held by Rev. J. M. Sedgwick, of Itasca.

Cleburne, First, Rev. W. T. Riviere, pastor—On the first Sunday in July the names of 21 new members received during the quarter were read. G. A. Baker and C. R. Walker, formerly elders in other churches, were installed elders here, and B. M. Fain and J. M. Wylie were ordained and installed to the same office. C. D. Conley, H. L. Jennings, Paul Kimbro, D. C. Scott, Max G. Schulze, and L. R. Sands were ordained and installed deacons. Large crowds attended both preaching services. In the evening Rev. E. A. Lindsey superintendent of Home Missions for the Presbytery, dropped in, and preached a fine sermon on, "The Inner Circle."

First Southern Church, Austin—The fifth annual session of the Daily Vacation Bible School closed June 22d; 101 were enrolled. In connection with this school there were Christian Endeavor Expert and Teacher Training classes. In some cases mothers came with their children and went in the Teachers' Training Class. After five years of operation, the Daily Vacation Bible School has become a fixed feature of this church's summer program. Another feature of the summer work is the sending of a delegation to the Young People's Conference at Kerrville. About 25 will go overland the 165 miles to this conference. Later in the summer Camp Geneva, a local camp of this church, will be held.

VIRGINIA

Virginia's 29th—(By C. F. Evans, Southern Secretary, United Society of Christian Endeavor.)—Hundreds of delegates poured into Roanoke for the 29th State Christian Endeavor Convention, which proved to be the best in history of the State work.

Roanoke Endeavorers had every detail cared for before arrival of the delegates, even to placing a large electric C. E. monogram on top of the convention church, and no convention was ever better handled by any convention city.

By actual count 574 attended the 6:30 meeting which was held Saturday morning on top of Mill Mountain. This meant either a street car or auto ride to foot of mountain, and an incline railway ride to top of mountain, which meant many had to travel several miles. In spite of all this the meeting was opened on time. After the meeting breakfast was served by the Roanoke City Union in the hotel on top of the mountain.

Frank P. Wilson was retained as Field Secretary, at a handsome increase in salary. Secretary Wilson has labored untiringly for the Virginia Union and his splendid labors helped largely to make this Virginia's greatest convention. His complete earnestness wins with the young people, and his is the type of work which lasts.

State President Miley, who has served the State for seven years, and who was compelled to give up the work in interest of the All-South Convention which is to be held in Richmond next year, was presented with a handsome gold watch by the State Executive Committee, and an exceptionally large purse of gold by the Roanoke Endeavorers.

In addition to the State officers, local and State pastors, the convention was served by Field Secretary Wilson; All-South Junior Field Secretary, Miss Cole; Religious Work Director of Seventh Street Christian Church, Richmond, Russell M. Bythewood; Educational Director Virginia Christian Missionary Society, M. E. Sadler; Field Secretary Young People's Work of Methodist Protestant Church, L. C. Little; President Columbia Theological Seminary, Dr. John M. Wells; Southern Secretary C. F. Evans, and others.

In the contest for District Banners the Western District was awarded the Superior Banner, and this banner went to the Second Presbyterian Senior Society of Staunton as being the best society in district. An Honor Banner was awarded the Eastern District, which went to the Westminster Presbyterian Senior Society, of Richmond. The Southwestern District also received an Honor Banner, which went to the Presbyterian Intermediate society of Blacksburg. The Central and Northern Districts each received a Standard Banner, the Central Banner going to the Rivermont Presbyterian Senior Society of Lynchburg and the Northern Banner going to the Waterford Union Society.

The State Efficiency Banner was won by the Second Presbyterian Senior Society of Staunton, while the State Loving Cups were awarded as follows:

Junior Expert, Blacksburg Presbyterian Junior. Intermediate Efficiency, Blacksburg Presbyterian Intermediate.

Tenth Legion, Staunton Second Presbyterian Senior.

Quiet Hour, Richmond Westminster Presbyterian Senior.

Life Work Recruits, Norfolk Baxter Avenue Missionary Senior.

The City Union Cup was won by the Norfolk-Portsmouth Union and the District Union Cup was won by the Western District. The District Union Cup will also be held by the Staunton Second Presbyterian Seniors.

The Fellowship Banquet tables accommodated almost 500, but could not care for nearly all who applied for tickets.

The next State convention will be held at Richmond, in connection with the Fifth All-South Convention, July 10-14, 1924.

State officers elected as follows:

President, Mr. Marion E. Deibert, Clifton Forge.

Vice-President, Miss Bertha Starrett, Roanoke.

Vice-President, Mr. W. H. Baker, Newport News.

Secretary, Miss Louise Cooke, Norfolk.

Treasurer, Mr. Robert G. Burnett, Charlottesville.

M. S. P. Superintendent, Miss Pauline L. Harris, Staunton.

Q. H. and L. W. R. Superintendent, Mr. W. Jones, Richmond.

Missionary and T. L. Superintendent, Miss Katherine Kerr, Roanoke.

Junior Superintendent, Miss Carolyn V. McKee, Richmond.

Intermediate Superintendent, Mrs. F. E. Dooley, Richmond.

Press Superintendent, Mr. John D. Everhardt, Jr., Richmond.

Alumni and Evangelism Superintendent, Mr. W. J. Finch Newport News.

Newport News—In connection with the Home-Coming week held in the city, an interesting event occurred in the S. S. of the First Church the morning of the 24th. The organizer of the school and for over a quarter of a century its superintendent, Mr. DeWitt Crane called the roll of the scholars who had been present 30 years before and gave a report to Presbytery rendered that year, the first of Dr. Wellford's pastorate. Six of those who had been present 30 years before answered the roll call, the statistics as read from the report to Presbytery that year showed an average attendance of officers, teachers and scholars amounting to 50. A collection for the year amounting to $184.50. The school at present numbers over 700 members in addition to which it has sent forth three colonies two of which have grown to be independent churches. The contributions have increased in a similar ratio. This church has also had the great pleasure in the last few weeks of enjoying the presence of Dr. Jas. Porter Smith and Dr. Hardie from the Brazilian mission. These brethren brought inspiring messages which will long be remembered by the congregation. Dr. Byrd, of Washington will present the work of the Church of the Pilgrims the first Sunday in July.

God can bring large results from small beginnings. You may count the apples on a tree but you can never count the trees in an apple. You may count the acorns on an oak, but not the oaks in an acorn. Let no one despise the day of small powers. The clock that will not strike one shall not strike twelve.

When a man has "too many irons in the fire" it is a waste of heat.

CHILDREN

THE NICEST KIND OF PET

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl eight years old and am in the second grade at school. Miss Russell is my teacher. I like her fine. I go to Sunday School every Sunday I can. Miss Addie St. Claire is my Sunday School teacher. I love her dearly. I have one little sister five years old; her name is Mary Ruth. I haven't any little pets, but my little cousin lives in the house with us and we all pet him. My daddy works at Siler City. We may move there this summer. My school is out next week. I have had measles and haven't been in a long time. I want to go to see my grandma this summer. Please print my letter as I want to surprise my grandma and grandpa and my Aunt Alice.

Your unknown friend,
Katherine Bruton.

Sanford, N. C.

A PONY AND BUGGY

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl 10 years of age. I will be in the fifth grade next year. This is my third letter to the Standard. I enjoy reading your letters. I have two sisters and one brother. I have a nice pony and buggy and I take my little sisters to ride almost every day. My pony's name is Prince. I go to Sunday School every Sunday I can. I will close for fear of the waste basket.

Your little friend,
Mary Louise Laurence.

NO WASTEBASKET

Dear Standard:

I would like to enter into the children's page once more. This is my third letter to you. My last letter was not printed. I haven't written you in a long time. My school was out last Saturday a week ago. I guess I had better close for this letter might go to the waste basket.

Your friend,
Azelee White.

Rutherfordton, N. C.

PROMOTED TO THIRD

Dear Standard:

I am a little boy nine years old. I go to Sunday School every Sunday. My teacher's name is Mrs. Elton Henderson and I like her fine. My school was out in April and I was promoted to the third grade. I have two little kittens. I have a little baby brother; his name is Walter Lee. I recited the Child's Catechism on Easter Monday and will receive a Testament. I have two first cousins spending the week with me and I enjoy playing with them. I will close for fear of the waste basket.

Your friend,
James Jernigan.

Maxton, N. C.

WANTS A DOG

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl six years old. I have been to school two months and can read. I am in Burlington now at my grandmother's; will go to Washington in a few days. I had two dolls and a doll carriage; and one brother; we call him Jack; we have a good time playing together. We used to have a nice little dog, but we left it in Raleigh. We want someone to give us another. I love to go to Sunday School, and know many questions in the Catechisms.

Your little friend,
Jeanette Moore.

Burlington, N. C.

"MUTT AND JEFF"

Dear Standard:

I am a little boy seven years old. I go to Sunday School at Culdee Presbyterian Church. I have not attended for the last month as I have had whooping cough. My pastor is Rev. R. G. Matheson. We like him very much. My brother joined the Pig club. He has a Berkshire pig and I have two calves; their names are "Mutt and Jeff." I have one brother; his name is Maurice, and two little sisters, Esther and Helen Grier. I live right near grandpa's. I am there now. I want you to print this to surprise my sisters and brother.

Your little friend,
Homer McKenzie.

Carthage, N. C., Route 3.

A YOUNG FARMER

Dear Standard:

I am a boy ten years old, and am in the fifth grade. I go to Sunday School at Concord Church in the morning and to Fourth Creek Chapel in the afternoon. I have recited the Child's Catechism and received my Testament, Sunday, May 27th. I have already learned 31 questions in the Shorter Catechism. I have one brother 14 years old and one two years old and one sister six years old. My daddy carries the mail, and my brother and I farm; he plows and I hoe. As this is my first letter to you I hope you will print it.

Your friend
John Dent Summers.

Loray, N. C.

READY FOR THE FOURTH

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl eight years old. I will be in the fourth grade next term. I was in the third grade grade this year. My teacher was Miss Sarah McEachin. I liked her fine. I go to Sunday School every Sunday I can. My Sunday School teacher is Mrs. Redden, and our pastor is Mr. E. F. Sullivan. We all like him fine. Please print my letter as I want to surprise my friends.

Your unknown friend
Blanche Cottingham.

Maxton, N. C.

ALL AT HOME

Dear Standard:

I have written you before and as my letters were printed I will write again. I have recited the Child's Catechism, but have not got my Testament. Mr. Hillhouse is our pastor. We live near Unity A. R. P. Church and I attend Sunday School there. Rev. S. J. Hood is the pastor there. My brother came home last week from the Presbyterian College at Clinton and my sister from Albemarle came home last week too. I have five sisters and three brothers and they are all at home now. I will stop now for fear of the waste basket.

Your friend,
Sarah Simpson.

Waxhaw, N. C.

WHEN WORK WAS PLAY

By Elizabeth Thompson

Mazie was sitting on a stool in front of an open fire. In her hand she held a little broom, as she had been sweeping up the hearth, and had sat down to consider whether she would take the corner of the dining room which was next to the parlor, or let Lucile have it when she came over to play paper dolls. This was the favorite corner, as the parlor door opened into the dining room in such a way as to make that corner a little room.

As she sat there thinking the matter over, her mother came in with her wraps all on. "Oh," she said, "you are brushing up. That's good! When you finish you can dust, and then set the table. I'm going up street. I won't be gone very long."

Mazie was a well-trained child, and did not argue with her mother. "Yes, mother," she said, but there was a look of disappointment in her face that made her mother think: "I'll stop at Kuntz's and bring her some candy." She kissed her daughter and hurried out.

Well, no paper dolls, that was clear, unless the work was finished before mother got back. For after she came, Mazie would have to help in the kitchen, and Lucile would have to go home to her dinner.

Just then a tap was heard on the window, and a face framed in a red cap looked in. Mazie jumped up and opened the side door.

"Oh, Lucile!" she exclaimed, "I was just fixing up to play paper dolls, and mother came in and told me to dust the dining room and set the table. She's gone out."

"Let's play a while first," suggested Lucile.

"I guess we'd better do the work first. Maybe there will be some time left if we hurry as fast as ever we can."

Tap, tap—another face at the window framed by two blue mittens and a fur cap. "There's Maud!" exclaimed both children at once, as they rushed to open the side door.

Again the woeful tale was told—work instead of play.

"Well," said Maud, "I know what let's do. There is a game I learned at Cousin Clara's that you can do work by!"

"A game!" said Mazie. "How can you play and work at the same time?"

"Just get me a sheet of paper and a pencil and I'll show you." She tore the paper into halves, quarters, eighths, sixteenths. On each piece she wrote the name of an article of furniture—mother's chair, father's chair, high chair, mantelpiece, sideboard, and so on. Then put these pieces into a box saying, "We'll draw these first." Mazie and Lucile watched with great interest. On other pieces she wrote the names of things to go on the table—asbestos cloth, white cloth, plates, knives, and so forth. These she put into a separate box.

Taking up the first box she held it out to Mazie and said, "Draw one." Mazie put her hand in and pulled out a piece on which was written "side table." "That means," said Maud, "that you must dust the side table."

It was not long before all three were as busy as bees, running to the box, drawing the slips and dusting the furniture. Soon the first box was empty, and they started on the second. These slips told how to set the table. Everything was on but the carving knife and fork, and Lucile and Mazie were both hurrying back for the last slip when the door opened and there stood Mazie's mother. They had been so lively they had not heard the front door open. What is this?" she said. You haven't put your friends to work, have you, Mazie?"

"Oh, it isn't work!" they all cried. "It's play. We've had lots of fun!"

"Perhaps, then, you don't want this?" said her mother as she handed Mazie a box of marshmallows.

"Yes, we do, too," said Mazie; "and we'll sit right down and toast them." —Churchman.

THE DAY NANNY WAS SIX

It was the sixth day of November that Nannie Russell was six years old. Her mother gave her six kisses, and she took six more from her baby brother, Lyndon, and she said those were her birthday presents. She did not grumble a bit because she had no others, and she only said, "Never mind, mamma dear!" when her mother wished she could afford to make her a pretty birthday cake.

Then she and mamma laughed at the funny little shoes that mamma had made for Lyndon, the evening before, out of some stout woolen cloth. Lyndon's real shoes were so worn that his little toes had been almost out of them, and there was no money to buy others. These would keep his feet warm, even if they were not pretty; but they were odd-looking shoes.

After breakfast Mrs. Russell said: "I want you to take this money down to Mrs. Miles for the rent. It isn't quite enough, but tell her I will pay the rest as soon as I can."

When Nannie gave Mrs. Miles the envelope, she repeated all her mother had told her and added something more.

"I guess when Mrs. Governor Adams pays her she'll have enough."

"Does Mrs. Adams owe your mother?" Mrs. Miles asked, in a surprised tone.

"Yes'm," replied Nannie, "for sewing, you know; she didn't pay her last week, and we've got to have something to eat, mamma says."

"Why, of course, dear! Come in a minute. Oh, dear, Willie's crying again! He is so fretful this morning, and I'm baking and can't attend to him. I wonder if your mother could spare you for a while. If you could stay and amuse him till I am more at liberty, I should be so glad."

"Yes'm, I'll stay a little while anyway; I know mamma won't care."

Two-year-old Willie was soon contented enough with Nannie for a playfellow, and Mrs. Miles went briskly to work. Now and then scraps of talk floated to her ears from the sitting room.

"I'm six years old today," Nannie told her charge. "Now you give me six kisses, and that'll make me another birthday present. Mamma and Lyndon gave me six—oh, those are very nice! Thank you!"

"What pretty shoes! I guess they're new ones. You ought to see my little brother's shoes—they're funny! They don't shine like yours. My mamma made 'em out of cloth, to keep his little feet warm, 'cause his are worn out. I guess he'll get holes in these pretty quick, scrambling round on the floor; then mamma'll have to make him another pair, or maybe there'll be some money to buy real ones by then."

When Nannie went home, Mrs. Miles thanked her for amusing Willie, and gave her a basket, saying: "There's something in it for you."

"Oh, mamma!" cried Nannie, popping off the cover as soon as she had shut the door, "it's full of little bags! What do you s'pose is in 'em?"

On top was a paper which read, "For Nannie's Sixth Birthday."

Everything was in bags, big and little, and all was in sixes—six small biscuits, six little pats of butter, six tarts, six dear little frosted cakes, six cookies, six bananas and six pretty shoes that Willie had outgrown but just right for Lyndon, and, last of all, three tiny bags, holding six pennies, six nickels and six dimes.

"Why, mamma," said Nannie, "how do you s'pose she knew it was my birthday? I'm sure I didn't tell her."—Emma C. Dowd, in Congregationalist.

Marriages and Deaths

MARRIED

Allen-Alexander — On April 24, 1923, at Carmel Presbyterian Church, by Rev. C. H. Little, the bride's pastor, Mr. Robert Lee Allen, of Rich Square, N. C., and Miss Pauline Alexander, of Charlotte, N. C.

Dick-Brown—June 19, 1923, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Brown, Greensboro, N. C., Mr. John R. Diek, and Miss Elise Elizabeth Brown both of Greensboro, N. C., Rev. R. M. Williams and Rev. W. C. Brown, officiating.

Hager-Harwell—At the manse of Hopewell Church, in Meeklenburg County, July 1, 1923, by Rev. R. S. Burwell, Mr. Wm. Robert Hager and Miss Ruby R. Harwell, of Cornelius, N. C.

DEATHS

DR. JAMES REID STERRETT

In the passing of Dr. James Reid Sterrett, on June 10, 1923, at the age of 42, apparently before the noon-hour of his useful life had arrived, a life, daily revealing new developments in ability and beauty of consecration; not only his family and this church, but the entire city of Durham suffered a loss irreparable and conceivable by only those who knew him by intimate contact with him and unto whom his hand of tenderness had ministered with such unusual ability to heal and comfort.

Inasmuch, therefore, as God, in His providence and infinite wisdom, has been pleased to remove him from our midst and active service in His earthly vineyard to his eternal home and unending service in His heavenly presence and glory:

And inasmuch as Dr. Sterrett has been a member and elder in Blacknall Memorial Church since May 7, 1916, the time the church was organized, and served with such unusual faithfulness, as pleasing Him, who had chosen him to be a soldier:

Therefore be it resolved:

1. That Blacknall Memorial Presbyterian Church, West Durham, N. C., has lost, by the translation of Dr. James Reid Sterrett, a devoted member and elder, a wise counsellor and model Christian example of living service.

2. That we bow in humble submission to the will of God and seek grace to say, "The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away: blessed be the name of the Lord."

3. That we extend to his family our deepest sympathy, assure them of our warmest love, and commend them to the sustaining grace of God in this, their hour of loss.

4. That a copy of this memorial be sent to his family, given space in the sessional records and be published in the Church papers.

Adopted by a rising vote of the congregation, June 24, 1923, when offered by Session and Board of Deacons of Blacknall Memorial Church.

Rev. J. S. Kennison, Pastor.
S. L. Claytor, Clerk of Ses.

JOHN McSWEEN

Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace. Psalms 37:37. These are the words of the Holy Spirit. Their setting is interesting and full of instruction. Says the Psalmist: "Wait on the Lord, and keep his way, and he shall exalt thee to inherit the land: when the wicked are cut off, thou shalt see it. I have seen the wicked in great power and spreading himself like a green bay tree. Yet he passed away, and, lo, he was not: yea, I sought him, but he could not be found. Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace."

Thanks be to God for such a word as this, and for such possibilities for us here and hereafter. Mark the perfect man, he is worthy of mark, and take diligent note of him; and behold, see, carefully observe the upright, for the end of that man is peace. Peace—yes, perfect peace. Let us not be misunderstood here. The Psalmist is not writing of absolute perfection, of course not, for One only is perfect in this sense; but comparatively speaking, and as these Scriptures so frequently use the word, note the consistent, well rounded and finished man in all the walks and duties of life. The end of that man is peace.

John McSween was a man of this kind. He exemplified the teachings of Him who said to His disciples, "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect." The Father bestowed His goodness on the evil and the good, and made His sun to shine on the just and the unjust; go and do thou likewise. As ye would that men should do unto you, do ye also unto them.

God's goodness to John McSween was noted in the beginning, for the lines fell to him in pleasant places. He was born in old Scotland, on the island of Islay, Argyleshire, in sight of the Christmas day, for it was the 21st of December, 1847. And he had a goodly heritage, for his father was a man of God, and his mother was like him to whom she bare the son. These were John and Catherine (McKenzie) McSween.

The father was a school teacher, and the son attended the public schools of the island. There is a word in the good Book like this: "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." His end was peace, because he was upright and walked in the ways of his father who taught him the fear of God.

When the son was 14 years old, he left the parental home and went to Glasgow, and engaged in the grocery business. In 1868 he left Scotland and came to America. It was not his purpose to come to our shores as he was gaining a vision of life. He intended to launch out for India; but by one of those wonderful providences of God, his course was turned to our land, and he became one of those who are the bone and sinew of this favored country. He first came to Robeson County, in North Carolina, and was for a while amongst relatives near Ashpole Church, about three miles from the town of Rowland. It was at old Ashpole Church that he first worshipped in America. And in after years his honored son, Rev. John McSween, was called and became pastor of this people. In the spring of 1869, Mr. McSween came to South Carolina, to Bannockburn, and engaged in the service of his three uncles, Robert, William, and John McKenzie.

In 1874 he moved to Timmonsville, near by, and entered the mercantile business with J. E. Keith. A few years after this Mr. Keith died and Mr. McSween in 1881 married the widow of his former partner in business. Two children were born of this marriage and survive the father, Mrs. Kate McS. Foster, of Columbia, and Rev. John McSween, the pastor of our church at Clemson College, S. C.

Mr. McSween was successful in every walk in life and was honored and esteemed both in the Church and in the State. He was an upright and consistent Christian man, and a conscientious and loyal citizen. He was almost from the time of his settlement in this country to the day of his death, a ruling elder in our beloved Church; and he was councilman and mayor of Timmonsville; and was appointed by the Governor of the State, M. F. Ansel, the president of the Board of Trustees of Thornwell Orphanage, to settle the affairs and conclude the business of the State Dispensary.

He was a merchant of the finest judgment and forethought, and built up a large business in Timmonsville; and it is still known as the John McSween Co. In 1891 he organized the Bank of Timmonsville, and was its president up to two years ago, and at his death was the chairman of its directors.

For many years before the organization of a church in Timmonsville, of his faith, he was a member and a ruling elder in the Presbyterian Church in Florence. In 1895 the Timmonsville Church was organized with seven members, five of them being in the family of Mr. McSween. He was its first ruling elder and continued to hold his office till called up higher. The church, so small in the beginning, now has a pastor for all his time and 109 members. Mr. McSween was as well the superintendent of the Sunday School all this while.

His sterling qualities as a man of business and as a devoted Christian brought to him many a trust to administer. He was made trustee of the Presbyterian College of South Carolina in Clinton, and a trustee also for Davidson College, in North Carolina, and a director in the Theological Seminary, in Columbia, and for 25 years he was a trustee of Thornwell Orphanage. He was devoted to the interests of the children gathered here, and it was his pleasure to serve them in this capacity, and to minister to their temporal necessities in many ways. He not only bore rule in his own church, but was frequently a member of all the Church courts, and was a moderator of Pee Dee Presbytery more than once, the last time about 10 years ago, when his son, Rev. John McSween, was licensed to preach the Gospel as a probationer for the ministry. For a few years before his course was run, our good friend and brother was in ill health. After his life of active service in Church and State, it was the Master's will that he should suffer a while, that he might be the better prepared for the fellowship of his Lord and be more intimate with Him in the heavenly Kingdom. Every effort was made for his comfort and no expense spared to relieve him of his distresses, but after it all, he fell asleep in the Florence Infirmary, January 22, 1923, just 75 years and one month old.

Again, let us hear the Spirit of God saying to us: Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace.

MRS. CHARLES A. PURCELL

Mrs. Charles A. Purcell was born March 10, 1852, near Little River Academy (now Linden), N. C., and died April 10, 1923, at Wagram, N. C.

Mrs. Purcell before her marriage was Martha Kitchen Lane Williams, the daughter of William L. and Sara McKellar Williams. She joined Sardis Church in childhood and was reared under the pastorate of Rev. D. D. MacBryde. December 18, 1878, she married Charles A. Purcell and came to Robeson County to live in the ancestral home of her husband. A few years before her death the old home was burned and Mrs. Purcell lived the last few years of her life in the town of Wagram, just a few miles distant. Mrs. Purcell came of one of the leading families of this part of North Carolina, and was a woman of rare culture and refinement. She loved her church and was faithful in attendance on the services of the sanctuary. She was also well informed as to the history and personnel of the Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Purcell was noted for her sincere piety and for her consistent, joyous and cheerful trust in her Lord and Saviour.

The following children survive her: Mrs. Sara (Purcell) Preston, Meadowview, Va.; Alexander Purcell, Cuba; Wm. Purcell, Wagram, N. C.; Mrs. Martha Hunter (Purcell) Nunamaker, of New Jersey; Charles A. Purcell, Jr., of Roanoke, Va.

WISDOM

By Anne Blackwell Payne

The ants are so little, I wonder they know

When seeking the pantry, the way they should go.

With their tiny eyes they must see very well;

They must have been carefully taught how to smell,

Because, when my mother makes cookies or pie

They find out about it much sooner than I.

AFTER ALL

Blackberries big as thimbles,

Peaches yellow as gold,

Crowds of fluttering daisies

Thick as the hills will hold,

Bluebird's song on the tree tops,

Meadows tumbled with hay—

If only beautiful summer

Could always stay!

Yet nuts are ripening slowly,

And apples are growing sweet;

Crickets will soon be playing

Their wee flutes at our feet;

Leaves will be colored and lovely,

And silver frosts will fall.

We couldn't spare sweet autumn

After all.

—Southern Churchman.

"Never give up to thy sorrows,

Jesus will bid them depart;

Sing when your trials are greatest,

Trust in the Lord and take heart."

WANTED—Teachers—English Department High School, also grades. Leading Mountain Mission School.

E. V. TADLOCK
Blackey, Ky.

WANTED—Christian Cook for leading Mountain Mission School. Attractive proposition for widow with children.

E. V. TADLOCK
Blackey, Ky.

FOR RENT—At Montreat, apartment in "Twin Gables." Light and dry. Accommodates two or three persons. Apply to Mrs. Elva Harris, Montreat, N. C.

UNION THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY Richmond, Virginia

Oldest and Largest Seminary in the Southern Church.

Equipment Unequaled

Faculty Unsurpassed

Conservative in Doctrine. Progressive in Methods.

One hundred and twelfth session will open September 26, 1923

Story and Incident

THE SLEEPY HOUR

I often wonder if Mother realizes what that tender kiss and tender pat means to a child as she tucks him into bed. Perhaps the caress would be given oftener and with added gentleness if she knew what an influence it had upon the unfolding of a little new life.

Over and over the brain repeats during the night the events of the day, twisting them into fantastic shapes. These ideas float through the mind of the child for eight or ten hours out of the twenty-four—during one-third to one-half of his life. Whether the fancies will be happy or sad is often determined by the last half hour before sleep begins. And the repetition of the ideas influences a child's temperament, making it more cheerful or pessimistic.

The last half hour is often a tax upon the patience of the mother and older people. The child is tired, the activity of the day has exhausted him and he relaxes control over himself; he becomes nervous and excitable or sluggish and obstinate. The adult is also not so well poised as during the day and the sleepy time is often a period of conflicts.

What is the result of discipline just before sleep? When a child has been very naughty and received some physical correction and had a good cry, he falls into a deep sleep. There is a certain soothingness about the finality to his treatment; he has been upset, in an irresponsible, capricious frame of mind during his naughtiness, then in a state of suspense as to the outcome, and the punishment has settled his uncertainty, there is a promise that life will run smoothly in the morning. The hard cry exhausts the child physically and he is in a state for rebuilding sleep.

There is another kind of crying to sleep which does not bring rest and health. When a child has been just a little petulant or reluctant to obey, not naughty enough to be dealt with severely, the adult sometimes speaks harshly or finds fault with the child and insists on exact compliance with commands. The little one goes to bed in a bad humor and cries fretfully. An older child will toss restlessly. The sleep is light and unrefreshing, there is a feeling of something wrong with the world that he cannot help or explain. Even if the displeasures incurred does not cause the child to cry himself to sleep, if that last event in the day has been disagreeable and no reconciliation has followed, the unhappy mood colors the night's dreams.

What shall we do, shall discipline weaken at the end of the day or shall we hold strictly to our rules? Shall we allow the child to be disobedient, or insist on compliance at the expense of everyone's happiness? What is truly best for the child's good?

The best attempt at solution is prevention of the difficult situation. The sleepy mood of the child should always be considered before any requests or suggestions are made.

Evening is not the time for correction if it can possibly be postponed. Of course real naughtiness must always be dealt with positively on the spot by an appropriate consequence. But a child should never go to sleep without the forgiveness and sympathy of the person who has been compelled to inflict the punishment. Comfort and love should go with him into the land of dreams. Often we can afford to let the correction of little perverseness and mischief wait over for the morning.

One little tired "cranky" child refused to put his toys away. The wise mother said, "Mother will do it tonight and we will talk it all over in the morning." After breakfast the heart to heart talk came, he was in control of himself then and could reason clearly. The conclusion reached was shown in her final sentence: "Tonight you will put your toys away because you must take care of your own property. Mother has the whole house and you and Daddy to look after." With his mind firmly made up and strongly set during the day there was no further trouble about the responsibility for clearing away the toys.

Few children express in words what they feel about the goodnight caress, but one mother was rewarded one morning by a voice beside her bed saying, "Mother, I just always have to hug you first in the morning, 'cause you always hug me last at night."

The influence of that hour may last through adolescence and youth. One grown-up son away at college wrote to his mother, "Do you remember how after I had been naughty I was always sorry, but I could not say a word until I had plumped down into your lap before going to bed and bored my head into your neck? I would be a pretty big lapful now, but I wish I could try it. It was even the same after I got big and sat on your bed telling you about parties and things."

It is at the sleep hour that intimate little confidences are given and quaint ideas expressed that lie too deep to be said in the midst of the happenings of the day. The mother who pauses to lend a sympathetic ear to little folks—and growing up folks—will gain and keep an intimacy and understanding companionship that will prove a safeguard and happy memory.—By Luella A. Palmer.

CENTRAL BUREAU of PUBLICITY

FOR

Presbyterian Schools and Colleges

Departments of
Newspaper-Church Paper Publicity
Alumnae Organization
General Publicity

For particulars address R. H. RICE, Director
Box 869, Charlotte, N. C.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION Emphasized Through PUBLICITY

Montreat Normal School

Accredited High School and Normal Courses. Household Economics and two years of college work in addition. Best advantages at least cost. Ideal location and surroundings. A limited number of rooms yet available. Apply promptly if you wish to enter.

Montreat Normal School

Montreat : : North Carolina

EVERY-DAY RELIGION

Keep Alongside the Children

A very practical father surprised his boy one morning by appearing in the school room at the study hour and talking with the teacher. There were a few hushed whisperings and snickerings, and knowing glances were directed toward the boy by his mates. But suddenly the boy found that he was really mighty glad that his dad was there, for the teacher and he seemed to be in a happy and friendly mood. As his dad went out of the room, the teacher walked all the way to the door with him, and in shaking hands showed he was much pleased with the visit.

Unconsciously, the boy had the feeling that "Dad is certainly a wonder." "He is a real dad." "What a fine man he is!" "The teacher certainly does like him." "I wonder what he was here for?" "Nothing wrong about me, I guess, because they didn't call me up." At the door the father gave a little wave of his hand and a smile to the boy. That was all, but it spoke volumes to his son. It was the kind of wave that meant good fellowship, and the smile was the kind of smile that meant "everything is all right." The visit also told the boy that his father was keeping in touch with him and with his school and that he knew what manner of man was teaching him.

Not long after that time the school principal and his wife were guests at dinner at the boy's home. The lad did not learn of it until that afternoon. He did not have to dress up. He was not told how to talk, but everything was just as natural as it always was. The food wasn't any better; the conversation was not stereotyped. They were "just folks," and the principal and his wife seemed to have just as good a time as all the rest of them. After dinner, they talked and listened to the victrola and then mother made a suggestion that they all go to a wonderful movie which had just come to town and for which they had tickets. The boy was not even asked to play his special number on the piano, or to "speak his piece." At the table he was not criticised for eating his soup from the end of his spoon, or for not sitting up straight, and there were no secret kickings under the table. Everything was just as natural as could be. The boy felt that the principal of the school was a real man.

* * *

This is only a homely illustration. We can't all invite school principals to dinner, and maybe if we could it wouldn't be the best thing to do. But how can we expect to hold the best and fullest influence over our children if we do not know their daily surroundings and do not take time to interest ourselves in their every-day life?

The man who does not know his boy in his school life and in his play hours and keep sufficiently in sympathy with him to be in spirit a boy, too, is missing one of the greatest opportunities of his life and can never make up for it by paying tuition in a fine boarding school or trying to "pal" with him in college days. The same observation applies to mothers with their daughters. The days of parenthood and childhood are priceless days. We lose or gain our children when they are children.

* * *

A famous lecturer on child development in speaking to a large number of men and women of influence urged that parents should spend more time with their children in innocent play.

WESTERN
NORTH CAROLINA
"The Land of the Sky"
MICHIGAN
WISCONSIN
MINNESOTA
COLORADO
UTAH
CALIFORNIA
CANADA
NEW ENGLAND
and SEASHORE RESORTS
Greatly Reduced
SUMMER FARES
Now in Effect
via Southern Railway
System
From CHARLOTTE, N. C.
Send for Free Booklet
Convenient Schedules
Attractive Service
Inquire
R. H. GRAMAM, D. P. A.,
Charlotte, N. C.

One of her hearers, a rather austere man completely absorbed in his business, was much impressed. He went home and that night said to his 17-year-old daughter:

"Mary, let's get down on the floor together and play blocks."

Then to his son of 15:

"John, have you some jackstraws, so we can have a game together?"

The children stole quietly up to their mother's room and asked if their father was crazy. They were of course past the age for that sort of thing.

The father should have begun ten years earlier, but he had thrown away his chance. Nothing could ever bring it back. He might profit by an adaptation of the lecturer's suggestion, but he could never regain what he had lost.

* * *

Let's enter into the pleasure of our children when they are children. Then it can be done naturally. They recognize that as we are really "grown-ups" we cannot see things and do things just as they see and do them; but if we are simple and genuine about it they instinctively see a place for us in their fun. And they will not on this account respect us less when it is necessary to speak with authority.—John Timothy Stone, D.D., in The Continent.

MISS TARBELL ON PROHIBITION

In a recent number of Collier's, Miss Ida M. Tarbell has an article on "After the Great Revolution," in which she discusses the present attitude of the American people towards prohibition. Miss Tarbell does not believe that revolutions go backward. She has every reason to believe that the decision of the country regarding the liquor traffic will stand. The country is something beside the city dinner table of the well-to-do. It is something beside the groups in the country clubs. The country is more than 30,000,000 people in farmers' families, probably nine-tenths of them against the repeal of the Volstead Act; it is nearly 27,000,000 women voters almost a unit against repeal. Count up all the bootleggers, the

WHAT IS THE CLUB?

The Standard Piano Club is both a theory and a fact. The theory is that a piano manufacturer can afford to sell one hundred pianos at a lower factory price than he would be willing to make on an order for only one instrument. The fact is that the Club has saved each of its members nearly one dollar out of three, and everybody is therefore delighted.

The theory of the Club is "Co-operation." The fact is "Perfect satisfaction." The theory is "A square deal to every member." The fact is "Not a single case of dissatisfaction."

If you are interested in securing a piano or a self-player piano of the highest quality, by all means write for your copy of the Club's catalog and the special prices and terms to Club members. Address the managers, Ludden & Bates, Standard Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

NORFOLK SOUTHERN RAILROAD COMPANY

Passenger Schedules

Effective January 28, 1923

Charlotte, N. C.

Daily Except Sunday as Shown
Lv. 7:30 A. M.

Raleigh and intermediate points. Connection for Belhaven, Norfolk, and intermediate points.

For tickets, Pullman reservations and information address or apply to

J. K. POWELL, D. T. A.
P. A. JENKINS, C. T. A.

hip-pocket carriers, the lawless, country-club drinkers, the personal-liberty agitators and their sympathizers, and can you muster five per cent of the population of the United States? They are a drop in the bucket beside the great mass who believe that, on the whole, the Volstead Act is making for happiness and prosperity."—Banner.

HE WANTED TO LEARN

Most boys want to know, but not all are willing to take the trouble to learn. Those who are willing to take this trouble get the reward some time.

A writer in "The Myrtle" tells how one boy persisted in spite of a good deal of discouragement, and how his persistence was rewarded.

More than a hundred years ago a stout, freckle-faced, awkward boy of eighteen years, dressed in a ragged waistcoat and short breeches, without stockings or shoes, rapped one evening at the door of a humble cottage in northern England, and asked to see the village schoolmaster. When that person appeared the boy said, very modestly, "I would like to attend your evening school, sir."

"And what do you wish to study?" asked the teacher, roughly.

"I want to learn to read and write, sir," answered the lad.

The schoolmaster glanced at the boy's homely face and rough clothes scornfully, and said: "Very well, you may attend, but an awkward, bare-legged laddie like you would better be doing something else than learning his letters." Then he closed the door in the lad's face.

This boy was the son of the fireman of a pumping engine in a Northumberland coal mine, and was born one hundred and thirty-two years ago—on June 9, 1781, to be exact. His birthplace was a hovel, with a clay floor, mud walls and bare rafters. When he was five years old he began to work for his living by herding cows in the daytime and barring up the gates at night. As he grew older he was set to picking stones from the coal, and after that he had to drive a horse which drew coal from the pit. He went half fed and half clothed.

When he called at the school house he was a plugman of a pumping engine, and though he knew nothing of reading or writing, he had studied the engine until he had a complete knowledge of the machine. He was able to take it apart and make any ordinary repairs.

Not discouraged by the advice given him by the schoolmaster, he made application and attended the evening school. At the end of about two years he had learned all this school could teach him. He conceived the plan of constructing a steam engine. It took him a long time, but at the age of forty he had made several engines, and was known as a successful and energetic engineer, and was called upon to build long and difficult lines of railroad.

But his locomotives were too slow; he wanted them to run faster. He proposed to build one that would run at the rate of twelve miles an hour! Everybody laughed at him. Some thought he was crazy. One gentleman, who considered himself very wise, said to him: "Suppose you invent an engine capable of running nine or ten miles an hour and suppose, while it was running, a cow should stray upon the track. Will not that be a very awkward circumstance?"

"I should think it might be very awkward—for the cow," he answered.

Well, he succeeded in making his locomotive, and at a trial which took place near Liverpool, it attained to the unprecedented speed of fourteen miles an hour! By making certain improvements, this same engine, the Rocket, was made to go at the speed of thirty miles an hour. People laughed no longer.

He was invited as a consulting engineer to foreign countries, and wealth flowed

OAK RIDGE INSTITUTE, Oak Ridge, N. C.

T. E. Whitaker, President

Founded in 1852. Military. Courses thoroughly covering Literature, Science, Book-keeping, Short-hand, Typewriting, and Music. Eight buildings; electric lights, steam heat and shower baths. 350 acres in campus, athletic grounds, orchards, and farms. Beautiful lake nesting between hills covered with virgin forests. Healthful—1040 feet above sea level; accessible location near Greensboro. Same moral influences. Costs reasonable. $425 for the year. Fall session opens first Tuesday in Sept each year. Write for illustrated catalogue. Address Oak Ridge Institute, Oak Ridge, N. C.

THE LOUISVILLE PRESBYTERIAN THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

BRILLIANT FACULTY

MODERN CURRICULUM

Situated in the heart of the institutional section of a great metropolis, with all the added advantages of these associated institutions

Write for particulars to JOHN M. VANDER MEULEN, President
109 East Broadway, Louisville, Ky.

STOP! LOOK! LISTEN!

There is danger ahead if you are not saving part of what you earn. The world is a hard place for those without money. There is no friend like "ready money" when sickness, or old age comes.

Be fair to yourself and family by taking Building and Loan shares. Shares cost twenty-five cents per week and usually mature in 333 weeks. Net you 6¼ per cent at maturity.

NEW SERIES OPENS MARCH FIRST

MECHANICS PERPETUAL BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION

J. H. Wearn,
President.

207 N. Tryon St.
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

E. J. CAFFREY,
Sec'y & Treas.

Flora Macdonald College

Red Springs, North Carolina

Where the Spirit of SERVICE and LOYALTY Abounds

3,000 Alumnae engaged in 60 Occupations

10 Graduates "On the Firing Line"

Courses leading to A. B., B. S., B. M. Degrees

Catalog on Request

Address the Registrar

SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY

Announces

REDUCED ROUND-TRIP RATES

to

Wrightsville Beach, N. C.,

and Other Resorts

From	to	Week-end
Charlotte, N. C.	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	$ 8.60
Lincolnton, N. C.	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	9.95
Shelby, N. C.	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	10.90
Rutherfordton, N. C.	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	12.05

Tickets on sale Fridays and Saturdays of each week, May 18th to September 2, 1923. Limited to reach original starting point Tuesday following date of sale.

Sunday excursion tickets Charlotte, N. C., to Wilmington, N. C., and return $4.50, good going on train No. 20 each Saturday night or train No. 14 each Sunday morning, returning not later than on train No. 19 following Monday morning.

Season tickets Charlotte, N. C., to Wrightsville Beach, N. C. and return $11.30, sold any day May 15th to September 30th, with final limit to October 31, 1923.

For sleeping car reservation or other information apply to ticket agent or address,

E. W. LONG
Division Passenger Agent
Charlotte, N. C.

upon him. Philosophers sought his friendship, and his king offered him knight-hood, but he preferred to remain plain George Stephenson. That is the name of this "awkward laddie," who became the inventor of the locomotive.—Ex.

Cares come often, cares last long;
Cares choke laughter, end sweet song;
Cares ache hearts and banish cheer;
But cares must fleet when faith is clear.

The roof-tree shields from cold and storm,
It can not stay care's lurking form.
But sullen care and racking fear
Must take their leave when faith is clear.

Why should we then fear a conquered world as if it were the conqueror?—Martin Luther.

EXPERT KODAK FINISHING

Developing and printing by experts. Most beautiful work guaranteed at all times. Satisfaction or no charge. Developing 6 exposure rolls 10 cents, 10 and 12 exposure rolls 15 cents, film packs 20 cents per pack. Printing 1 5-8 by 2 1-2, 3 cents; 2 1-4 by 3 1-4, 4 cents; 2 1-2 by 4 1-2, 5 cents; 3 1-4 by 5 1-2, 6 cents. Quick delivery. Send one film to test our service.

LIGONS DRUG STORE
Spartanburg, S. C.

MARY BALDWIN COLLEGE AND MARY BALDWIN SEMINARY

Established in 1842
For Young Ladies Staunton, Va.
Term begins Septembr 6th. In Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. Unsurpassed climate, modern equipment. Students from 33 States. Courses: Collegiate, 4 years, A.B. Degree; Preparatory, 4 years. Music, Art, Expression, Domestic Science. Athletics—Gymnasium and Field. Catalogue.

School Desks,
Opera Chairs,
Folding Chairs
Kindergarten Chairs,
Church Pews,
School Supplies,
Blackboards

Southern Desk Co., Hickory, N. C.

Church Furniture
WORK OF THE HIGHEST QUALITY
AT REASONABLE PRICES
Write for Catalogue
BUDE & WEIS MFG. CO.
JACKSON, TENNESSEE

THE SALISBURY MARBLE CO.
Salisbury, N. C.
Anything in...
CEMETERY WORK
Satisfaction our Motto
A card will bring full information

THE McCALLIE SCHOOL
Founded for Christian education, never more needed than today. Prepares boys for leading colleges and Government Academies. High academic standing. Small classes, individual attention. Military training. All athletics. Fine athletic field, and new concrete swimming pool.
Headmasters
S. J. McCallie, M. A., and
J. P. McCallie, M. A., Ph.D.
For catalog address The McCallie School
Mission Ridge Chattanooga, Tenn.

RANDOLPH-MACON INSTITUTE, Danville, Virginia, for Girls. College preparatory and special course for those not wishing to go to college. Vocal and Instrumental Music, Art and Expression. Attractive home life. Gymnasium. Branch of the Randolph-Macon System. Rates $500. Catalogue. Address Chas. G. Evans, A. M., Principal, Box C, Danville, Virginia.

JAMES M. McMICHAEL
Church Architect
Charlotte, N. C.

Tennessee Military Institute
A school where orderliness, respect for government, and the desire to make good replace recklessness and the "don't care" attitude; where every boy is put on his mettle to measure himself by established school standards. Good name of school rests on thorough academic work, efficient military training and physical development, and the spirit of T. M. I., which inspires boys to their best achievement. Sound government through sensible restraints and incentives to good conduct. Health record unsurpassed. R. O. T. C. Modern buildings and equipment, laboratories, gymnasium, swimming pool, cinder track. All athletics. Charges moderate. For Catalog address
COL. C. R. ENDSLEY, Supt., Box R
SWEETWATER :: :: TENNESSEE

SOME DISCOMFORTS THE MODERN HOUSEWIFE ESCAPES

The modern housewife who turns a gas-cock, lights the oven, puts in her roast, sets the thermostat to control the heat, and busies herself at some other task while the meat is cooking, knows little of the misery of her foremothers who for uncounted centuries could cook their food only by half-cooking themselves.

The island of Crete is the source of the earliest known cooking utensils, dating back to thousands of years before the Christian era. These are no more than crude earthen stowpans and pots, in which food was prepared over an open fire.

The first great forward step in cookery, with comfort, can be credited to the Eskimos and their stone seal-oil lamps over which they cooked their food in soapstone kettles and for the first time localized the flame upon the object to be heated, as is done today. Having no wood to build fires, the people of the icy North were compelled to be economical of fuel.

From early Rome came sumptuous utensils of bronze and copper and silver-plate; but no help for the cook, who continued to simmer down through the ages.

Medieval England, with her baronial splendors, was given to great feasts; but a fire in the middle of the earthen floor or in a wide-mouthed fireplace was the only stove, and roasting, frying, and boiling were the only methods of preparing meat.

Baking appears to have been the last development, and the primitive earth-oven first used still survives in many parts of the world.

The wood-stove, with its quick, hot fire that turns the stove to red heat one moment and lets it cool the next, was followed by the coal stove, when anthracite coal was discovered early in the nineteenth century. Coal gave a steadier heat, and stayed hot long after the need for it was over, but continued to cook the cook.

The first gas-stove was devised in 1823, just 100 years ago, when gas for lighting was still new. Two generations passed without great improvement; and then, suddenly, the women who used stoves awoke to the value of gas for cooking, in terms of efficiency and in comfort to themselves.

Today, in the United States alone, there are more than 7,000,000 gas-stoves, and other gas-cooking appliances, and the modern gas-stove is being used wherever gas service is available. Of the vast yearly output of manufactured gas, totaling some 340,000,000,000 cubic feet in 1922, more than half is used for cooking, water-heating, and other domestic purposes that, because of it, have ceased to cook the cook.—Ex.

"I spoke a cruel word
To one who heard;
Within that heart
It lodged like poisoned dart,
And that one mourned the morn,
When I was born."

"I spoke a word of love,
From God above,
To one sore tried,
And, though that one still cried,
He blessed the happy day
I passed that way."

"To every man there openeth
A Way and Ways and a Way,
And the High Soul climbs the High Way
And the Low Soul gropes the Low;
And in between on the misty flats
The rest drift to and fro.
But to every man there openeth
A High Way and a Low,
And every man decideth
The Way his soul shall go."

A pint of wheat will feed more hens than a sack of chaff.

PEACE INSTITUTE

RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

For Young Women

Established 1857

College Courses. Preparatory Courses for Standard College Requirements. Diplomas in Piano, Voice, Art, Expression and Home Economics. Commercial-Secretarial Course. Teacher Training Course. Specialists in all departments.

LULA B. WYNNE HALL, HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

MARY OWEN GRAHAM, President

Queens College, Charlotte, N. C.

A High Grade Institution for the Education of Young Women

Christian Ideals constantly held before the Students; Christian Characters in the chair of each Department; Five Teachers with M. A. Degree; Two Teachers with Ph.D. Degree; Christian Atmosphere permeating the Student Body.

Location, the very best: Myers Park, Charlotte. Equipment rapidly reaching standard requirements. Curriculum equal to that of any institution in the State. Expenses very moderate indeed, considering advantages offered and work done.

Our Motto: "Christian Women for Christian Homes." Send us your daughter, support us in our administration and instruction, and we will return a thoroughly developed and fully refined Christian woman. For catalogue and other information, write

WILLIAM H. FRAZER, President
Box 300
Charlotte, N. C.

ELISE HIGH SCHOOL

PURPOSE: To prepare boys and girls for standard colleges under Christian influences, and to supply trained Christian leaders.

A Presbyterian High School

With a reputation for thorough work; healthy location; comfortable quarters; strong faculty—all college graduates and experienced teachers; individual attention to students; four year course in Bible. Rates $156.50 the year. For catalogue and information, address

JOHN D. McLEOD :: HEMP, N. C.

A COLLEGE THAT DEVELOPS

Morals and Christian Character

As Well as Mind and Body

An A grade college, co-educational, of highest standards and scholarship.

GUILFORD COLLEGE

Thorough instruction, excellent equipment, under Christian environment. Courses leading to A.B., and B.S. Degrees. Excellent Musical training and Home Economics. Able faculty. Fine athletic record. 10 modern buildings. Large campus. Healthful climate. Rates reasonable. Six miles west of Greensboro. For literature and other information, write—

THE PRESIDENT, GUILFORD COLLEGE, N. C.

Aberdeen & Rockfish Railroad
BETWEEN ABERDEEN AND FAYETTEVILLE

EAST BOUND			DISTANCE FROM ABERDEEN	STATIONS	DISTANCE FROM FAYETTEVILLE	WEST BOUND
Pass.	Local Freight	Pass.				Pass.	Local Freight	Pass.
DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY				DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY
NO. 14	NO. 22	NO. 38				NO. 41	NO. 21	NO. 15
7:00 pm	7:30 am	9:00 am	0	Lv. Aberdeen, Ar.	45	6:50 pm	3:50 pm	8:30 am
f 7:19 pm	s 8:15 am	f 9:16 am	5	--- Ashley Heights	40	f 6:35 pm	f 3:20 pm	f 8:12 am
s 7:28 pm	f 8:36 am	s 9:26 am	9	--- Sanitorium	36	f 6:26 pm	f 3:05 pm	s 8:02 am
f 7:34 pm	f 8:39 am	f 9:30 am	10	--- Montrose	35	f 6:22 pm	f 3:00 pm	f 7:58 am
f 7:46 pm	f 8:51 am	f 9:38 am	13	--- Timberland	32	f 6:13 pm	f 2:45 pm	f 7:48 am
8:00 pm	s 9:55 am	s 9:53 am	19	--- Raeford	26	s 6:00 pm	s 2:25 pm	7:30 am
			24	--- Dundarrach	21	f 5:45 pm	s 1:25 pm
	s 10:13 am	f 10:08 am	26	--- Arabia	19	f 5:39 pm	f 1:15 pm
	f 10:21 am	f 10:15 am	30	--- Rockfish	15	s 5:25 pm	f 12:55 pm
	f 10:43 am	f 10:31 am	31	--- Hope Hills Jct.	14	s 5:22 pm	f 12:50 pm
	f 10:53 am	f 10:40 am	34	--- Fenix	11	f 5:13 pm	f 12:38 pm
	s 11:00 am	f 10:46 am	36	--- Clifton	9	s 5:08 pm	s 12:33 pm
	f 11:12 am	f 10:56 am	40	--- Skibo	5	f 5:00 pm	f 12:18 pm
	f 11:19 am	f 11:02 am	42	--- Owens	3	f 4:55 pm	f 12:11 pm
	11:30 am	s 11:15 am	45	Ar. Fayetteville Lv.	0	s 4:45 pm	12 noon

East and North bound trains have right of track over West and South bound trains of the same class. All trains stop on flag at Lake field.

Mitchell College

(JUNIOR)

(Founded 1856 by Concord Presbytery)

Two years of standard, accredited college work—courses leading to Baccalaureate degrees—Excellent department of Music—Certificate courses in Home Economics and Secretarial.

MITCHELL ACADEMY

An accredited High School, with standard and flexible courses

Bible teaching emphasized throughout.

Teacher Training courses for secular and Sunday Schools.

Catalog on application.

W. F. Hollingsworth, Pres.
Statesville, N. C.

SORES

BOILS, CUTS and BURNS have been healed since 1820 with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 724 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Coated Tongue

Nature's Warning of Constipation

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe. Try it today.

Nujol

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

A LUBRICANT—NOT A LAXATIVE

Sparkles

One traveling man to another in Thompson's restaurant:

"What's the matter, Bill? You are only eating crackers and milk. Are you on a diet?"

"No, on commission."—The Harrisonian.

"What do you mean by cheating me like this?" cried the angry customer. "You said this watch chain would last a lifetime, and here's all the plating worn off in a month."

"Mine frendt," replied the little Hebrew jeweler, "let me gongratulate you on your good heldt. Ven I said dat chain would last you a lifetime you look so sick I like you would not live de veek out."—Continent.

Lastly

Mrs. Brown was at the back of the church, waiting to have her baby christened. Baby was getting restless, so she beckoned the verger. "Is the sermon nearly finished?" she whispered.

"No, mum," replied the verger; "another half-hour of it yet. He's only in his 'lastly,'"

"But," said Mrs. Brown, "will it take him half an hour to get through his 'lastly'?"

"No, mum," was the demure reply, "but there's the 'one word more and I'm done,' and the 'finally,' and the 'in conclusion' to come yet. Don't be impatient."—Ex.

Mother—Tommy, what are you doing in the pantry?

Tommy—Oh, just putting a few things away.—Boys' Life.

"I tell you," said the real estate agent, "there isn't a finer residence on earth than this. Just look at the wonderful scenery!"

"The scenery is all right," replied the home seeker. "The only trouble is there is too much of it between here and the station."—The Christian Register.

TYPEWRITERS

New and Rebuilt

For Sale, Rent or Exchange

S. H. WILEY

Salisbury, N. C.

6%

No matter where you live you can get six per cent on your money. Free from taxes, risk and worry. Amounts received from $50 to $5,000. Write for free literature.

SECURITY SAVINGS AND LOAN CO.
Assets $1,011,288.30
F. W. DIXON, President - Birmingham, Ala.

The STIEFF TONE

Is famous with three generations of music lovers. It has never been duplicated. It is the expression of a passion for perfection that has actuated three generations of piano makers.

Chas. M. Stieff, Inc.,
Charlotte, N. C.
Please send catalogue and prices of Pianos.
Name _____
Address _____

CHAS. M. STIEFF, Inc.
Charlotte, N. C.

STIEFF PETIT GRAND
The smallest Grand Piano made that embodies all the essential qualities of the Concert Grand.

SEE HERE, BRETHREN

We advertise in but one religious paper, yet Methodist preachers predominate as to the clergy on our books. Now conducting a final test as to the value of a religious publication as an advertising medium. The argument stands against it.

THE MUTUAL BUILDING AND LOAN

Is the largest between Washington and New Orleans, and, we believe, the best in the U. S., but Presbyterian preachers don't seem to grasp these facts. Must we discontinue this ad? It's for you to decide, and that shortly.

JNO. R. PHARR,
President

E. L. KEESLER,
Secretary-Treasurer
Charlotte, N. C.

Opportunity Never Seeks

The man or woman without money. That is why you should save and steadily build up an account in a strong bank where the money will be ready for you when the right opportunity comes along.

Your account will be welcome here.

Charlotte National Bank
Resources Over $5,000,000.00

BELK BROS. CO.

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

We call your attention to our HOME FURNISHING DEPARTMENT

Just Received One Car Load of

Genuine Japanese Grass Rugs

All colors---browns, blues, greens. Borders to match colorings

18 x 36 Inches	-----	$.29
27 x 54 Inches	-----	.69
36 x 72 Inches	-----	.98
4 1/2 x 7 Feet	-----	1.69
6 x 9 Feet	-----	2.95
8 x 10 Feet	-----	3.98
9 x 12 Feet	-----	4.75

Let us estimate on your Shades, Floor Coverings, and Draperies.

Will send a man to see you.

Gold Seal Congoleum by the yard or the Rug

We appreciate your patronage and guarantee every article we sell Any business entrusted to us will have our prompt attention.

WE SOLICIT MAIL ORDERS

Belk Bros. Co., Charlotte, N. C.

We make Window Shades any size. Send us your measurements and we do the rest.

We carry a big line of Luggage. All kinds—See us on Trunks, Suit Cases, Hand Bags.

For Your Sun Parlor and Living Room

We are showing some splendid Baronial brown suits for the livingroom and some very pretty grey suits for the sunroom in genuine Kaltex fiber and Wakefield reed furniture from $85.00 to $175.00. Insist on the genuine "Kaltex---The Kind With A Heart of Steel"

W. T. McCOY & CO.

211 South Tryon St.

Charlotte, N. C.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

A Religious Newspaper for the Family

Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.

Rev. J. R. Bridges, D.D., Charlotte, N. C., Editor

C. Reed, D.D., Columbia, S. C., Editor

Vol. LXIV

CHARLOTTE, N. C., JULY 18, 1923

No. 29

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $3.00 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE
REV. W. L. BOGGS, Circulation Manager

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
BY PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY,
A. M. GRAY, Treasurer.

ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858.

Entered at the Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as second class matter

A Religious Newspaper for the Family, Devoted to the Interest of Christ's Kingdom as Represented by the Southern Presbyterian Church.

Address all communications, and make all checks payable, to the company, and not to individuals.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The label on the paper gives the date to which subscription is paid.

When change of address is desired, give the old and new address. When the date of the label is behind the date of this issue of the paper the label is a reminder that the subscription price is past due. When the date of the label is in advance of the date of this issue it is a receipt for the last subscription paid.

In accordance with the wishes of our patrons, the paper is discontinued only upon the written request of the subscriber. Arrearages must be settled in full at the same time, at the rate of three dollars a year.

No charge is made for the insertion of marriage and obituary notices of fifty words or less. For all over fifty words remit at the rate of one cent a word. Correspondents are requested to give the post office address of married couples when marriage notices are sent.

News items should be in our hands by Monday morning in order to insure their publication in the current issue.

CHANGE OF ADVERTISEMENTS

Advertisers who want their advertisements changed or want to insert new advertisements will please bring their copy to this office by Saturday. It is impossible for us to insert new advertisements or make changes for the current week at a later date.

Advertising rates furnished on application. The size and character of this paper indicate the size and character of its constituency. For reputable advertising there is no better medium for North and South Carolina and the most prosperous section of the South.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

EDITORIAL—
Our Ordination Vow	1
Montreat	1, 2
"By Their Fruits Ye Shall Know Them"	2
The Wisdom of This World	2
CONTRIBUTED—
A Modern "Westminster Confession"—By Rev. C. G. Gunn	3
Daily Vacation Bible School Leaders, Attention!—By Rev. Gilbert Glass, D.D.	3
Quiet Talks on the Simple Essentials—By S. D. Gordon	3
The Gotemba Conference—By Rev. A. P. Hassell	4
The Call of the Children—By John Jordan Douglass	4
Miracles, Ancient and Modern	5
DEPARTMENTS—
Devotional	2
Woman's Auxiliary	6
Sunday School—By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.	7
Christian Endeavor—By Rev. J. G. Garth	7
Church News	8, 9, 10
News of the Week	10
Children	11
Marriages and Deaths	12
Advertisements, Etc.	12, 16

TREASURERS OF BENEVOLENT CAUSES

- Foreign Missions—Edwin F. Willis, 154 Fifth Ave., N. Nashville, Tenn.
- Home Missions, General Assembly's—A. N. Sharpe, 1522 Hurt Building, Atlanta, Ga.
- General Assembly's Training School—Geo. W. Call, Richmond, Va., Union Bank.
- Bible Cause—Gilbert Darlington, Bible House, N. Y.
- Christian Education and Ministerial Relief—John Stites, Fifth and Market Sts., Louisville, Ky.
- Publication and Sabbath School Work—R. E. Magill, 618 N. Sixth St., Richmond, Va.
- The General Assembly's Equipment Fund—T. R. Preston, Treasurer, Chattanooga, Tenn.

EDITORIAL

OUR ORDINATION VOW

"Do you believe the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments to be the Word of God, the only infallible rule of faith and practice?" This is the first question that is put to every Candidate for the Ministry when he comes before the Presbytery for licensure. It is put to him a second time when he applies for ordination. Every minister of the Gospel in the Presbyterian Church, North and South, who has entered the ministry through the regular process of licensure and ordination has twice publicly and solemnly professed to believe that the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments are the Word of God, the only infallible rule of faith and practice. It is on the ground of this profession that he is given authority to preach as an accredited minister of the Presbyterian Church.

Let us briefly analyze this question and see what it means. It declares that the "Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments are the Word of God." Of course, this means that the whole Bible, from Genesis to Revelation, is the Word of God. It puts the Old Testament and the New in the same category and assigns to them the same position of authority. They are both equally the Word of God. How much authority is thus assigned to them? Does the statement mean no more than that the Bible contains the Word of God? If not, then the Bible may contain much else beside the Word of God. It may contain myths, and legends, and fables, and folk-lore and misinformation of all kinds and descriptions. No one acquainted with the "faith of our fathers" can doubt for a moment that the statement means far other than this. It means that the Bible contains naught else but the Word of God. It means what is expressed in the first chapter of the Confession of Faith, namely, that God is the author of the whole Bible. It means that God so inspired the writers of the Bible as to make Himself responsible for what they wrote.

Do all the preachers in the Presbyterian Church hold to this view of the Bible? Do they all believe that the Scriptures, the writings, the contents of both the Old and New Testaments are not merely the words of men, but are in the aggregate the Word of God, nothing more and nothing less? We have no hesitancy in answering this question in the negative. Many Presbyterian preachers openly declare that they do not believe that the Bible in the sense defined is the Word of God. They rather boastfully claim to have outgrown this medieval conception of the Bible. On the ground that the Bible was never designed to teach history and science, they repudiate its teachings in the sphere of history and science. Many go even further and condemn the moral standards of the Old Testament.

What is meant when it said the Bible is the "only infallible rule of faith and practice?" Unquestionably the fathers from whom we receive the statement meant by it that we were to believe all that the Bible teaches as infallibly true, and to obey all its requirements as of Divine authority. An infallible rule of faith and practice is one that cannot mislead us if we follow its teachings. If the whole Bible is such a rule then we cannot go astray if we believe and practice all that the whole Bible teaches and enjoins.

Do all Presbyterian preachers believe that the whole Bible is infallible in its teachings? Do they subject their faith to all that the Bible teaches? Many of them very frankly say they do not. What about the profession which they made when they were licensed and ordained? Are they loyal to their ordination vow? No doubt they have some way of reconciling their course to their own con-sciences. But they should know that to those who judge by outward appearance they are deliberately, grossly and criminally contradicting themselves. They are now repudiating what they once professed to believe, and by which profession they secured their position as ministers of the Presbyterian Church. Many of them are doing this in an arrogant and boastful spirit. In some sections nothing so discredits a preacher as loyalty to his ordination vow. This at once marks him as a reactionary, a doctrinal moss-back, as wanting in brains and breadth of vision.

Obviously the most serious question touching this whole matter of liberalism is not how much of it is true and how much is false, but it is the question of intellectual honesty. It may not be a great sin for one to be a liberal in his theology, but to be liberal in dealing with his own professions is another matter. For a man to secure and hold a position in the church by professing loyalty to its doctrines, and then to scout those doctrines, has all the appearance of what a professed free thinker calls "religious lying."

MONTREAT

There is an old saying that when one has tasted the water of the town pump, he will always come back to the town.

The same seems to be true of Montreat. When one has once tasted, not only its sparkling water, but its social and religious life, he is always glad to get back.

The editor has been a taster of its waters, its religious life and its sermons, for many years, ever since its first session, so for that reason he gladly yielded to the advice of his doctor to give its air and water a chance to build him up after a tedious attack. Ordinarily he comes in August, but this year he came the first week in July, at a time when the mountains were dressed in the rhododendron, a view of them that the August visitor never gets.

He finds that the pure air and light water are still doing business at the old stand, so that in a few days he is himself again.

He came at the close of the Conference on Men's Work, which is reported to have been highly inspiring.

The women have set the pace, and the men are determined to keep step with them. At present the odds are in favor of the women by reason of several facts.

In the first place women are more consecrated than men, taken as a class. Then they had already the nucleus of an organization in the shape of Ladies' Aid and Missionary Societies, while the men are beginning something entirely new to men as a class.

The men, however, are put on their metal, and are determined to do great things for the Lord.

The Stewardship Conference was not very largely attended. Some think that the people are growing weary of conferences; others that the summer below has not been hot enough to drive people to the mountains, while we believe that the subject itself is unpopular.

Human nature is essentially selfish, and it does not enjoy too much stress being laid upon rendering an account of one's stewardship.

The next conference, beginning July 12th, is that of "The Woman's Summer School of Missions." It is reported that eight hundred have been registered.

This is the age when woman is in the saddle, and they intend to show the men that they propose to keep ahead. The crowds are increasing daily. Between now and the 27th of August the top notch in attendance will be reached.

Montreat is improving in every way, each year. The grounds are lovely, the fare at the hotel is as good as one would wish, the nights are cool and sleep-producing, and the visitors have leisure enough to stop and talk.

There are many such resorts opening up in the various Synods, but there is but one Montreat, whether we consider its beauty, its health-giving properties or its cool nights. If you are seeking health, come to Montreat. If you wish to touch the real life of the Church this is your Mecca.

Those of us who belong to the first families of Montreat, and by first families we mean the first comers, can see more clearly than the present visitors the great improvement in all that concerns the comfort and convenience of the visitors.

We can recall the old tent, which served as an Assembly hall, which was pitched first near the church, and, the next year, behind the Alba hotel. Then came the unsightly auditorium with its luxurious benches and roof that was a sounding board whenever a heavy rain came down.

Today there is one of the largest and most beautiful auditoriums to be found anywhere in the South, built of rounded stones gathered from the mountain sides, which is the wonder of all who see it.

For years the children problem was a serious one. Parents brought their children with them, but there was nothing for them to do. Now, through the generosity of Mr. Henry Belk, of Charlotte, there is a playground equipped with modern play-machinery, such as our fathers never dreamed of.

Here you find all the improvements of modern times that tend to make playing easy, and keep the young amused.

The grounds around both hotels are now neatly kept, while bright flowers light up the landscape.

But the march of improvement has not stopped.

At present they are building a cement bridge across the creek, to be followed by another further up the stream.

Then after the season closes the old dam will be replaced by a cement one. And instead of the bridge over the dam there will be one of cement. These cement improvements have been made possible through the generosity of the family of the late C. E. Graham.

The estimated cost of these improvements is $30,000, but Dr. Anderson who is a past-master in economical improvements, hopes to have the work done for $10,000 less than that amount.

Each day, in every way, Montreat is growing better and better.

It is beginning to attract notice as a winter resort, owing to its dry and salubrious climate, and the protection which the surrounding mountains give from the cold blasts of winter. Visitors come from the North to spend the winter.

Another great change in the Montreat of old days is the fact that the Montreat hotel, instead of being closed up during the winter, is now used as a normal school. This building is admirably adapted to this purpose, being equipped with water, lighting and heating facilities.

In the chapel and committee rooms connected with the auditorium the class work is done. Here at a small cost worthy girls from the country around receive an education that will fit them for a higher life than they could otherwise get.

Thus we see that Montreat is proving a blessing to the Church along every line.

"BY THEIR FRUITS YE SHALL KNOW THEM"

All who study the sayings of our Lord must be impressed by their practical sense. At times He sounds depths that no one can fully fathom; but generally what He says is such that the common people hear Him gladly, which is always a proof that whosoever talks in such a way as to gain a hearing among the multitude talks sense.

Among the sayings of Jesus none is more practical than when He says that a tree is known by its fruits. This is not only practical and true, but when applied to any work of man, it is apt to bring confusion upon him.

We read and hear a great deal about the laxity of family life, and we also read many attempts to defend the young and to assert that the boys and girls of this generation are no worse than those of the past.

If we apply this test to the family life of many of our communities, we will find that the fruit is bad.

Recently a judge in Pittsburg stated that in one year there were brought before him upon serious charges from 4,000 to 5,000 children, while he knew that churches in that city had dealt with from 3,000 to 4,000 children who were not arrested.

Then a judge in California added his testimony. He says that in the last two years delinquency among girls has increased 25 per cent. When the girls of a land begin to go astray, there is something seriously wrong with their home training. The student of family life among us can see that a great change has taken place.

This judge seems to have studied this question, and he says that the cause of this decadence is the frivolity of the mothers and the kind of life lived by the young women. There is no parental control. In fact there seems to be no family life. The apartment has taken the place of the home, and the family altar has been relegated to the garret.

What we need especially is a revival of church attendance and practical religious instruction.

Let us study this testimony from men who are accustomed to deal with sin in every shape. When such men are shocked and call upon us to guard our homes, it is surely time to pause and ask ourselves whither we are going.

This testimony from men who deal with the

THE BOY OF GALILEE

There was a Boy walked once in Galilee,
A child whose grace and sweetness were from God,
The steep and rugged paths he daily trod
And walked the yellow sands along the sea.
And every little child is happier now
Because of him, the Boy of Galilee.

There was a Toiler once in Galilee,
A patient Worker at a lowly trade;
Around his feet the little children played,
And tossed the curly shavings up with glee.
Now every sordid task is glorified
Because of Him who toiled in Galilee.

The waves still lap the shores of Galilee,
And laborers plod from dawn till day is done;
He plies no more his task till setting sun,
No longer treads the sands along the sea;
But in the world's great heart he lives today,
Jesus, our Lord, the Christ of Galilee.

—Mary R. Merriman.

young in courts, should make us think and resolve to get the family life back to the same high plane of the past.

We know nothing more encouraging to that end than the movement that seems growing in earnestness, to establish a family altar in every home.

Then let parents be more careful of their daughters' companion, and let them realize that the joy ride at night has ruined more lives than any other pleasure.

THE WISDOM OF THIS WORLD

Paul, when he went to Corinth, had to encounter not only the unbridled licentiousness of the most cosmopolitan city of the age, but what was equally difficult, the pride of intellect that marked the Greek above any people.

The simple Gospel was brought face to face with the wisdom of the world, for which the Greeks prided themselves.

We can easily imagine the sneers of the Greeks when they compared the foolishness of preaching with the wisdom of the schools, and we can imagine the contemptuous way in which they claimed the brains of that age.

In reading the sermons and addresses of the modernists of our day we find a parallel case. According to these wise men no man who holds antiquated views of man's creation, or the inspiration of the Bible has any claims to intellectual ability. This is notably true in their references to Mr. Bryan. He is credited with having half-baked theories, of being a mere politician, who is meddling with subjects that only the highbrows of the intellectual world have any business discussing.

When we read the discussions, we are reminded of Paul's question, "Hath not God made foolish the wisdom of this world?"

All of us have met humble souls, illiterate it may be, when judged from a worldly point of view, who had a deeper insight into the meaning of Scripture than many a teacher in our Seminaries. "The things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God."

Mr. Bryan may not be able to read the testimony of the rocks and fossils, but he can read with deep spiritual insight the testimony of God's Word where it says that God made man in His own image, and no amount of learned cannonading will be able to drive him from his belief that this testimony of the Bible is to be taken literally. It may be that we who hold to the old truths of Genesis are fools, yet this same word which we seek to honor would remind these wise men that God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise. They might also remember that pride goeth before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall.

Devotional

WINSOME CHRISTIANITY

An old book bears this title. It is the kind of Christianity the world needs. Carlyle describes such an one when he said, "She was the rainbow to many a poor dripping day." The faces of such persons are always lighted with cheerfulness. Their coming is always welcome. A humble tombstone in an eastern cemetery bears an inscription of four words, "She Was Always Pleasant." Visitors linger longer at that grave than by the lofty monuments that surround it. A poor woman came to Henry Drummond and asked him to come and pray with her dying husband. "My husband is dead, sir. He is no able to speak 'you, and is no able to hear you; but I would like to hae a breath o' you about him afore he dees." When Stopford Brooke was writing the biography of Frederick W. Robertson he went down to Brighton to gather information. He found an old bookseller who had known him well. "Do you remember anything interesting about him?" he asked. The old man took him into a little room back of his store and pointed to a portrait of Robertson on the wall, and said, "Whenever I am tempted to do anything mean, I run in here and look at that picture, and the pure face recalls me to my better self."

An immensely popular girl, when asked why everyone loved her, modestly replied, "If such is the case, it must be the result of a few simple rules that I try to follow." It might help us to know them:

- (1) "I will give more to others than I spend on myself.
- (2) "I will do all I can for those at home before I go out for pleasure.
- (3) "I will make some neglected girl happy and introduce her to some pleasant gentleman at every party.
- (4) "I will draw other people out without trying to shine myself.
- (5) "I will always act in such a way that I would not be ashamed to pray at that moment."

The Apostle has put it thus: "Be ye all likeminded, loving like brethren, tender hearted, humbleminded, not rendering evil for evil and reviling for reviling, but contrarywise, blessing." "Be tenderly affectionate one to another, in honor preferring one another."

It is not enough to do a bare deed of kindness, or speak certain articulate sounds. Words and deeds must be lighted up with winning smiles. There is as much in the manner of giving, as in that which is given. Even conventional politeness is better than rudeness. It is like an air-cushion—nothing in it but air, but it eases the jolts wonderfully. But it is possible to be more than conventionally polite. If the heart is right toward our fellow men, our conduct will be right. A loving heart, a watchful eye and a ready hand make a winsome personality.

Life is marred by little infelicities and made beautiful by little kindnesses. War, pestilence and famine combined have not caused so much suffering as the sharp tongue and the nagging disposition. Intellectual brilliancy counts for nothing in comparison with gentleness. The most winsome Christian the world has ever seen was described thus: "The bruised reed He will not break nor quench the smoking flax."—United Presbyterian.

Love is the crowning grace of humanity, the holiest right of the soul, the golden link which binds us to duty and truth, the redeeming principle that chiefly reconciles the heart to life, and is prophetic of eternal good.—Petraeh.

A MODERN "WESTMINSTER CONFESSION"

By Rev. C. G. Gunn

There are certain great moments in the history of a church, which, left unrecorded, go down into oblivion and are known only to a chosen few; but given publicity, the church at large becomes the beneficiary. And so, we pause to jot down this record written the day following this particular instant, which occurred June 10, 1923, at the Westminster Presbyterian Church, the Assembly church of 1921, of St. Louis, Mo. The occasion scents more of the days of the Reformation, or of the heroic days when in England our "Westminster Confession" was written, than of today.

On the 27th day of May, a certain young Baptist minister, the religious educational director of a prominent Baptist church in the West-end section of St. Louis, arose to defend the subject of Modernism. His sermon was entitled "The Faith of a Modernist." In this sermon, he claimed belief in "the fact of evolution," discredited the virgin birth of Christ, and said that many pulpits are used as "cowards' castles" by men afraid to speak out what they believe. A St. Louis newspaper published the sermon, of which this is a brief resume: "The modernist believes in the fact of evolution. The method may be questioned, but the fact remains that man and the universe have evolved from the simplest conditions. The God of the modernist is not the Carpenter-God of ancient theology who builds a universe like a man builds a house. He builds through progressive change and adaptation. Evolution is his method. He works in accord with the proven facts of science, and is never at rest in any moment of time or in any inch of space. The modernist's Bible is a compilation of 66 books, written at different times, by different men, to meet different circumstances. Some of these books are historical and some are poetic. All of the Old Testament stories prior to the story of Abraham are legend, and should be so considered. The modernist's Bible is not a single mandate handed down miraculously by God, but it is the outgrowth of a long period of religious thought. God is not limited, therefore, to one book, but reveals himself in many books and in many other ways. The legend of the fall of Adam has long since passed away in the light of the findings of science. All the redemptive schemes rooted in that fiction, therefore, become unreal and needless. Man hasn't fallen from God, but is continually growing toward God. Man bears the image of God because man is the only creature capable of love, thought and forgiveness. All talk about the need of a propitiation to appease the wrath of God is an insult to God. The modernist looks upon Jesus as having attained absolute God likeness. He was not born of a virgin, but with the same nature that man has. His divinity was different in degree, but not in kind, from other men. To call Jesus the only Son of God would be to limit God. It would also remove the value of Jesus, with His example of a sinless life and a self-sacrificing ideal, for one would naturally expect a God to be like that. Jesus has more meaning for us when stripped of the man-made systems of theology, that have grown up around his noble character."

The following Sunday, Rev. William Crowe, D.D., pastor of Westminster Church, read to the congregation this young man's sermon in full, and following this he also read a list of 16 questions which he had sent to the young minister to obtain, if possible, proofs for his statements. On Sunday, June 10th, one week later, Dr. Crowe announced to his congregation that he had received a reply to his letter and questionnaire, but that not one of his questions had been answered.

Immediately following this recital, Dr. Crowe launched into his sermon for the morning, which was from the text, "I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ," (Romans 1:16). With certain of the evangelical pulpits of St. Louis sounding an uncertain note concerning the old Gospel, the message of Westminster Church left no room for any doubts relative to its stand. Today, under the splendid ministry of Dr. Crowe, she stands true to the fine traditions which she held for the 32 years under the ministry of her beloved pastor and preacher, Dr. John F. Cannon.

It was a great defense in the spirit of the one who wrote in days of old to the early church torn by doubts and questions, "I am set for the defense of the Gospel." And yet, God had planned more than the preacher for this hour. As the congregation stood to sing the last hymn, one of the elders walked to the pulpit and gave the minister a notice, calling a congregational meeting "to consider a matter which has been of interest to the congregation." At the conclusion of the hymn, Mr. J. Clark Streett mounted the pulpit. The congregation sat tense. Everybody was wide-eyed and expectant. In a few well chosen words, expressing the love and devotion of Westminster Church for its pastor; their appreciation of his fight for the fundamentals; and the added assurance that the report of the week previous, that their pastor had been approached with a proposition to go elsewhere, had not stampeded his church to this action which had been brooding for several weeks, he announced to Dr. Crowe that he had been given a two months' vacation; and in order that the church might go with him in the attendance upon the dedication of the little memorial church being built by the Southern Presbyterians at Compiegne, France, he presented him with a check for $1,500.00. The minister was non-plussed. And in that breathless moment Mr. Streett added, "I would suggest we close this meeting by repeating the Apostle's Creed."

Contributed

Mr. Streett left the platform. The congregation stood gripped in deep emotion. Many were in tears, including men and women. The pastor was simply too full of surprise and emotion to speak. All he could do was to summon a visiting minister to come forward and lead the congregation in the creed. There they stood, a great congregation comprised of representatives from many of the larger colleges and universities in the United States, men of large business and professional influence, women who stand high socially in the great city—as a great body of splendid men and women, and boys and girls, standing upon their feet to bear testimony to their faith, repeating as one the great declaration, "I believe in God the Father Almighty, Maker of Heaven and earth: And in Jesus Christ His only Son our Lord; who was conceived by the Holy Ghost; born of the Virgin Mary; suffered under Pontius Pilate; was crucified, dead, and buried; the third day He arose again from the dead, He ascended into heaven; and sitteth on the right hand of God the Father Almighty; from thence He shall come to judge the quick and the dead. I believe in the Holy Ghost; the holy Catholic Church; the Communion of Saints; the forgiveness of sins; the resurrection of the body; and the life everlasting. Amen."

It was a never-to-be-forgotten moment. Their creed never meant so much. It was like men and women of the early Christian Church, who for their faith stood in the presence of kings and emperors and bearing testimony, and if need be, with their life blood. Then, out of old Westminster that great assembly marched, not to die but to live, for such a Saviour.

"Faith of our Fathers, living still,

In spite of dungeons, fire and sword,

Oh how our hearts beat high with joy,

Whene'er we hear that glorious word!

Faith of our Fathers, holy faith,

We will be true to thee till death."

DAILY VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL LEADERS, ATTENTION!

By Rev. Gilbert Glass, D.D., General Superintendent

The educational department of the Presbyterian Committee of Publication is prepared to furnish all information and materials for Daily Vacation Bible Schools, and we wish to have a complete record of such schools as are held this summer.

The Standard for Presbyterian Daily Vacation Bible Schools is as follows:

1. The school shall cover a period of at least 20 teaching days.

2. Daily programs shall be at least two and a half hours in length, and shall include worship, memory drill, Bible lesson, hand-work and supervised play.

3. School shall be properly graded in worship, instruction, and all activities according to the departmental plan as follows:

Beginners (Kindergarten), 4 and 5; Primary, 6, 7, 8; Juniors, 9, 10, 11; Intermediate, 12, 13, 14. (When there is no Intermediate Department, 12-year-olds may be included with Juniors).

4. Programs and materials furnished or approved by the Educational Department of the Publication Committee shall be used.

5. The school shall be under church auspices or under direction of a board on which the church has representation.

6. A complete report shall be made to the Educational Department of the Publication Committee, Box 1176, Richmond, Va.

Whether or not your school is strictly according to standard, we want your record for file in our office as a basis for helpful service in the future. Please send for record blanks if you are having a Daily Vacation Bible School this summer.

To self be true, to others just,
In God above be all your trust;
Let heart and hand, your powers all,
Respond to duty's regal call;
Let love your very life enshrine,
And evermore that light will shine.

QUIET TALKS ON THE SIMPLE ESSENTIALS

By S. D. Gordon

No. 3—The Book of God

There is something tangible about a book. You handle it. You know it by the feel. It's in plain print, black on white, words you know the meaning of without stopping to think into them. If it's a thoughtful worthy book you read and muse. And you are changed, maybe imperceptibly, but really quite radically.

Now, there is one outstanding book. It stands quite by itself. In its claim for itself, its power among men, its history, the place commonly given it, its distinctive quality of inspiration, even in the enemies it has made, it stands quite alone.

It is the old Book of God. It is the one book to which by common consent that little word "the" belongs, the Book. It was inspired. It is inspired. That simply means the breath of God was in it, and is. His Spirit was in the men who wrote, guiding, controlling, inspiring, a supernatural touch through the human natural medium.

It is a book like any other, paper, print, stitching, plain words. Its contents must be got through reading and thinking, like any other book. It is unlike every other book in this, there's a living Presence in it.

It reaches into your thoughts. It searches the innermost recesses of your spirit. It touches deftly, unmistakably, your motives and purposes. It lays bare to your eye the inner hidden things.

And there's a distinct touch of life to it. It quickens brain and thought and the part of you that chooses. There's rugged strength now in your decision that breaks habit, and shapes new ones.

It's a mother of books. It contains the oldest authentic history. All the roots of modern jurisprudence run down into the Mosaic code. Political economy and moral philosophy find their basic principles here. Its laws of sanitation, of hygiene, of diet, and of business ethics, originating here, are accepted standards.

It is not a scientific book. Yet its statements never conflict with the latest findings of science. Its ideals of life, personal, national and racial, can be found nowhere else except as inspired by its pages. Its literature, its love stories, its biographies, are unapproached. It contains the key to the intricate tangle in which the world finds itself today, the one key, the master key.

There's a fine modesty in its pages, and yet the most stupendous claims for itself. It claims to be a revelation from God Himself. It tells what reason cannot reason out. True reasoning and this revelation are fellows, working together to reach full knowledge. It reveals the past, otherwise unknown, and God's purposes, and plans for the future, that otherwise could not be known.

It's a singularly honest book. It tells with frank bluntness the glaring moral failings of the men God used. He had to use some one. He got the best there was. He sternly rebuked them, and plainly points out their moral breaks.

This book is the moral standard of life. And morals are the throbbing heart-beat of life. There must be a standard, or all life goes askew. A yard-stick for cloth, a foot-rule for timber, a sixteen-ounce bit of metal for sugar, truthfulness in speech, honesty in trade, a recognized propriety in cultured circles, a Gray's anatomy for physicians, a Blackstone for lawyers, and God's Book for strong winsome life and rest of heart.

The scholarship of the nations, and of the ages, has been devoted to the task of giving us this Book in our mother tongue, as to no other task. Its utter dependability from the scholarly standpoint is beyond question. The variations of translations in various versions have to do with incidentals, important incidentals, but never with vital things.

The modern English and American Revisions have the advantage of the most recently found manuscripts, the latest scholarship, and the paragraphed printing. But one can rest content that the old common version is the most remarkable bit of translation ever done. In it we have the very Word of God, in plain English, a sufficient guide for daily life.

And it is not a big book. Familiarity with its pages by daily touch makes that clear. A daily habit, a settled method of thinking of it as one book, and reading it from opening page or, as a story, ignoring for the time being, chapter and verse, gives a fascination to its pages. And the poetical books and prophetic will fit into the story-part as drawers into a well-made bureau, as will Paul's letters and the others, into Dr. Luke's story of The Acts.

The practical key to this Book is simply this, reading it habitually, quietly, with mind alert, simply reading it, giving one's self up to it for a bit of time daily, and yielding the consent of one's life to its teachings and spirit. The famous artist kept the bright colored stones always in sight to tone up his sense of colors. The sailor keeps his eye constantly on compass and chart.

That's the thing here. Reading it habitually tones up the moral sense, clears the vision, steadies the feet, poises the judgment, stiffens the will, gentles the spirit, comforts the heart, quiets the nerves, and sets the day's work to music.

But, in sharpest contrast with all other books, it makes you face a personal decision. There's no personal appeal in Napoleon or Cromwell. No decision presses in. But here the Man of the Book looks into your face. He calls you to choose. And you do, this way or that. You are never again the man you were.

NO. 4—THE BEGINNING OF MAN

THE GOTEMBA CONFERENCE

By Rev. A. P. Hassell

It has been the wish and prayer for years, of those especially interested in the advance of Christ's Kingdom in Japan, that there might be a greater manifestation, on the part of the Christian constituency, of a church consciousness. Those who have cherished this wish have recently been given cause for encouragement. In commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of the Church of Christ in Japan—the Japan Presbyterian Church—for the first time in its history a real summer conference was held at Gotemba, near Mt. Fugi, from May 21st to the 25th.

The plan originated with, and was carried out by, the Church; and the budget of yen 7,000, except 1,000 provided by the four missions of the Northern and Southern Presbyterian Churches and German and Dutch Reformed Churches, was provided by the Japanese. The conference body was composed of about 260 Japanese ministers, and about 30 missionaries representing the four missions which have been instrumental in establishing and developing the Church.

The conference gave evidence of the fact that the Church has reached the stage of full manhood, that it is self-sustaining and self-propagating. It has reached the stage arrived at only a few decades ago in America when summer conferences first came into prominence in the Church—that is, in its outward organization.

One cause for gratification was that there was no indication on the part of those in attendance, of any doubt regarding the inspiration of the Scriptures or regarding any other doctrine which our branch of the Church considers of vital importance. With the exception of four addresses made by representatives of the four missions, the entire program was carried out by the Japanese brethren. The following were some of the outstanding subjects: "Some Tendencies of the Present-Day Pulpit;" "Some Doctrines Calling for Greater Emphasis in Our Preaching;" the speaker said, among other things, that more emphasis should be laid upon the holiness and the wrath of God, which attributes have been overlooked in emphasizing His love. Other subjects were, "The Relation of Prayer to Our Public and Private Life;" "The Danger of Derailment on the Part of the Church."

One of the most noteworthy advances that the Church is making, and which was especially pleasing to some of the delegates who are able to recall the efforts along the same lines as recently as a decade ago, was that of hymn singing. This remarkable progress is due partly, no doubt, to the frequent opportunities afforded the Japanese within the past five years, of hearing many of the world's best artists, resulting in an increased ability to appreciate good music. The progress along this line is really wonderful. The male choir delighted the audience at almost every service.

In the midst of serious discussions there were frequent moments of humor. Following a discussion of the old Japanese custom of showing respect at funerals by bowing before the casket, one of the delegates, with no intention of being funny, remarked that he was at a loss to know what change to suggest unless the Japanese adopted the Western custom on such occasions of shaking hands and kissing! This innocent remark caused a roar of laughter and someone shouted, "I'm in for that!"

The following are some of the utterances which found a place in my notebook: "The motto of the pulpit should be, 'We preach Christ and Him crucified.'" This is the thought around which our message should center, and this message is not a narrow one." "The lack of doctrinal preaching accounts for the existence of so many sects." "The greatest danger of the present-day pulpit is expressed in one word—'doubt.'" "The missionary who simply converts the heathen and does not provide spiritual nourishment and training reminds me of the duck, which lays the egg but does not hatch it. Missionaries should concentrate their efforts upon fewer but carefully selected points in order that the results of their work may be abiding." In speaking of the persecutions met with in some quarters, one of the delegates told of a Christian family that were not allowed a burying place for the ashes of a deceased member and hence were obliged to keep them in the home.

One member of the conference advocated earnestly the adoption of the Christian calendar instead of the Japanese one, which begins a new era with the accession to the throne of every new emperor. This preacher wishes to date his letters from the birth of Christ. As a matter of fact this practice is fast gaining headway, especially among the Christians.

The address on "The Cultivation of the Devotional Spirit" opened with the quotation of a criticism by a holiness brother that the Church of Christ in Japan is a "fine organization but has no fire." Before the speaker finished the audience was fully convinced that there was at least one preacher in this "fine organization" who had no lack of that article. He gave evidence of a remarkable acquaintance with English devotional literature, especially biography. Emphasizing first the necessity of imitating the apostles in preaching the crucified, risen, glorified, and coming Saviour, he quoted a number of men who have attained to power and usefulness by so doing, for example, Andrew Murray, who said, "The Holy Spirit descends from the glorified Christ;" George Whitfield, who said that always before preaching he knelt and asked for power to uplift the crucified Christ before the eyes of his audience. The speaker referred to the profound impression made upon John Wesley by the saying of Thomas A Kempis that unless we consecrate our all to God, reserving nothing for ourselves, we cannot be pleasing to Him.

The emphasis laid upon work for the young was another feature of the conference for which we were all thankful. The heathen religions make no appeal whatever to children, and the Church growing up in this atmosphere has been slow in arriving at the idea that its future progress depends upon whether or not the rising generation have the Gospel taught and preached to them. It was therefore very gratifying to hear some of the speakers urge the Church to go to work more earnestly to win these little ones.

One of the missionary speakers who has been on the field more than 30 years told the conference that if he could begin his career again he would devote his time to children. A pastor told of the use made by Francis Xavier of children in getting his message to the people. One of the young ministers told of a child in his church whose Sunday School teacher had presented the story of the Cross so earnestly that the child hastened home and begged her-heathen father to come to Sunday School and hear the story. The children of this same church were organized into a prayer band in preparation for Mr. Kanamori's meeting there. Some of them prayed with tears for the conversion of the town. It is not surprising that there were 154 decisions. In the audience was a child eight years old who first took her card home to ask of her grandmother permission to sign it. The old woman tried to persuade her that a child has no sins to be forgiven, whereupon the child went into an adjoining room and prayed. Then returning to the old woman's side she said, "Why, Grandmother, I have prayed and I have thought of lots of sins that I have committed, and Jesus will forgive all of them." The card was signed.

As we sat through the sessions of this conference day by day we were more than once constrained to thank God for the bold faith and the broad vision of those who had planned it and had made it possible for so many missionaries and pastors from the farthest bounds of the empire, including the Hokkaido, Korea, and Formosa, to meet together to receive and give inspiration for the common task that has been committed to them. May this, the beginning of church conferences, prove a forerunner of truly great things during the coming years.

Tokushima, Japan.

THE PIQUE OF PRAISE

Napoleon said he made good soldiers by telling them that they were good soldiers. Everybody likes to live up to his reputation. The surest way to help a man disappoint his baser self is by crediting him with a good self; by capitalizing him, so to speak, as hope sees him. In a way we feel morally committed to strike twelve if someone sets our hands at noon. Even our pitiful shifts at make-believe confess a deep hunger for the approval of others. Give a dog a bad name and you have killed his enterprise to be a good dog. Expect good out of folks. I used to wonder at Christ's persistent expressions of faith in His friends. I did not understand how He could rate Peter, and Thomas so high. Now I know. He was playing for the great stakes of the soul. He visualized men as His love required of them. He knew that one of the surest ways of redeeming them was by making them ashamed to fall below His dream for them. Hence He gauged them at their highest and treated them as scions of the royal line.—George Clarke Peck.

"Break with the follies of the past;
Master your weakness at last;
Stiffen your muscles, watch and pray;
Stoutly begin a year today!"

THE CALL OF THE CHILDREN

By John Jordan Douglass

"Where art thou going?" to one I said,
Whose eyes were sweet and sad.
And He touched the crown on His bleeding head.
"I have heard the cry of a starving lad."

"Art Thou going there again, dear Lord?"
I asked in a startled voice.
"Aye, famine has followed the dripping sword;
I have no other choice."

Then I said, "Dear Lord, may I not go
Where the starving children cry;
Where hope is faint and life is low;
And the helpless thousands die?"

"I am going back to the East," He cried
With a sad light in His eyes;
"I am going back. I am crucified
By the starving children's cries!"

"I am going back to the dying East,
Where the curse of war has been.
I am going back, though I was released
From the Cross of the sins of men."

"I am going back at love's commands,
Where once I lived and died;"
And I saw the print of the nails in His hands,
And the sign of the spear in His side.

And I cried, "O Lord thou shalt not go
To suffer it all again;
My wealth, my life, my all shall know
The pangs of the people's pain."

I cannot see Thee die once more;
Thy brow with thorns oppressed;
Their deep affliction wounds me sore;
A thorn is in my breast!

And I will go with gifts of gold,
With frankincense and myrrh;
As in the long-gone days of old
Brought each fond worshipper

To lay in tribute at thy feet
With wisdom's silent praise.
The gifts to childhood, pure and sweet,
With heaven in its gaze.

For what says sordid gold to me
Compared to those faint cries?
I seem to stand on Calvary
And look into Thine eyes.

For Thou did'st die that men might live,
To make the whole world free;
They shall not die while I can give;
My love shall bridge the sea!

I cannot look Thee in thy face,
And keep earth's paltry things;
Thou who hast made me rich in grace,
O Christ the King of kings.

Who took within Thy bosom warm
The little ones long ago,
To shield and keep them safe from harm.
I go, O Lord, I go.
Wadesboro, N. C.

DANGEROUS MEN

The worst influence in the world is not the bold blasphemer who is everlastingly shouting his defiance into the face of God. People generally are too decent to enjoy open and defiant blasphemy. The man who is doing the most harm is he who derides goodness and laughs at righteousness, and claims great credit because he is not deceived by religious hypocrisy. Just now it is popular to boldly trample upon all the sweet and holy characteristics of the race and to deny their existence. Even the philosophers of paganism believed in justice, and honor, and truth, and love, but these youthful, modern pretenders of learning, like clowns in a circus, run up and down in their mottled rig, laughing at everything that experience has taught us is holy.—Ex.

Every Christian conquest has its beginning in some place of secret prayer.

Revivals in which the revivalist is the chief thing are of small account,

MIRACLES ANCIENT AND MODERN

"Who touched me?" said Jesus. The woman had suffered for 12 years. Pressing through the throng she stood tremblingly before Him and heard the words of life: "Thine infirmity is healed."

I stood on the narrow quay at Smyrna, on the spot where another throng had stood but a few days before, between the devils of lust and the deep sea. I stood where women had stood, thousands of them, crushed in the suffocating human jam; women pinioned and standing for four days, many of them approaching their zero hour. And like the Lady of the Lamp, there also were Dr. Mabel Elliot, and Dr. Esther Lovejoy, Miss Mills and Miss Morley, fighting their way in and out of the congestion, saving a child here, a woman there.

"Who touched me?" A dozen women were reaching out their arms in appeal toward each relief worker, women with "infirmities" for whom another such hour meant death. Stand back! Let them through with their sick. Help carry the fainting ones to the rough planks of the improvised hospital on the sea-wall, where at least a curtain of blankets can screen them from the smoke and heat of the burning city and the cruel eyes of the Turkish soldiers.

The healing touch—the sisterly ministry—the miracle of life. The mothers and their babes sleep.

From Nazareth to Cana I passed, and on down the winding way from the "hill country" to blue Galilee. It was not the spick-and-span Zionist town of Tiberius that interested me, nor the "Simon Peter fish" mine host proudly set before us in the all too modern hotel. I wanted to wander alone down the pebbly shores of Genesaret; to gaze out over those dear waters; to feast my eyes upon the white sails of the fisher-boats, the bare hills of Gadara and the misty mountains of Moab beyond. I wanted to walk on and on until a bend in the lake brought me to the grassy slopes that softly carpet the site of ancient Capernaum. The goats and I had it all to ourselves for an hour.

Alone? How can one be alone in Capernaum? I am not a stranger here—a hundred familiar faces are all about me. A net is breaking yonder, with excited men waist-deep in water. A boat, overloaded with leaping fishes is being drawn to the shore. And the women are there, too; I can name most of them.

Beyond that crowd at the water's edge a little ship is gently rocking to the little waves that come laughing in from the open lake to spray the feet of the "multitude." A strange pulpit, that little ship—but these simple fishermen are listening to a sermon that will overthrow kingdoms.

And now they follow Him, up through the narrow streets of the city, crowding about to catch every word. Who is this man in flowing robes that hurries to meet Him? "Master, my daughter is very ill. Speak the word, I beseech you, that she may live."

"Be of good cheer. She only sleeps. I will come."

Who does not love the story of Jairus? Who has not found comfort in those strange words, "Talitha cumi." A miracle? Yes. But have miracles passed with the passing of Capernaum?

It is a pleasant day's ride by automobile down the Jordan Valley to Jericho; and another, winding in and out the "hairpin curves," up the Jericho Road to the City of David.

One day the surgeon in charge of our hospital at Jerusalem invited me to be present at an operation. He had found a Syrian girl about 14 years of age hobbling about on crutches. She had never walked. The good physician took compassion on her. Shall we let those familiar words stand without quotation marks?

One of the Near East Relief Camels

When she was under the ether I saw that a congenital deformity in both limbs had crippled her for life—or so it doubtless seemed to all who knew her. Then the merciful knife of the skilled surgeon touched the contracting ligaments. In sure but powerful hands the bones were forced into their natural places, the deformed feet reduced to their normal shape. Stout bandages, plaster casts, the bewildered awakening, and the long days in hospital waiting for "Nature to do the rest."

Then came the morning when the deep Syrian eyes opened and looked up into the smiling eyes of the good physician. I did not hear him say, "Talitha cumi," yet his words were no less certain, no less comforting to the parents who stood beside the little white cot. For "her feet and ankle bones received their strength" and she went "walking and leaping and praising God" through the streets of the Holy City.

* * * *

"And Paul saw as in a vision a man from Macedonia standing and crying, 'Come over and help us.'" Perhaps Paul knew little of pragmatic philosophy, but he was wont to act upon his heavenly visions. Macedonia was helped.

Learning to be a carpenter in the Near East Relief shop

How little conditions in the East have changed in two thousand years! Last November I sailed into the Dardanelles with a cargo of flour and clothing given by the generous people of Australia—the first of many shipments which have followed. As we dropped anchor opposite the Golden Horn, the director of Near East Relief came over the side with a sheaf of dispatches in his hand. After the greetings and a general statement as to the appalling conditions and the measures taken to relieve them, he said, "Do you remember St. Paul's vision and the cry from Macedonia? You are no saint and probably do not resemble Paul in the least—except possibly in stature—but here is a repetition of the message he received; moreover it came in the same way—by wireless." And he handed me a radiogram. It was indeed the same cry. From Dedeagatch at the mouth of the Maritza River in Western Thrace—ancient Macedonia—it had come as of old on the wings of the air: "Ten thousand people driven from Eastern Thrace are here, starving to death. They have been overlooked in the food distribution. Some are dead, many are dying. Can you send flour?" The old appeal—come over and help us.

"I cannot help them," said the director. "We have stripped our warehouses and taken from our orphans to provide for the Smyrna sufferers. Have you brought anything that can be used in this emergency?"

"Yes," I replied, "Our Australian friends have builded better than they knew. Under the deck upon which you stand four thousand bags of flour are stored away, given for the express purpose of meeting some Macedonian cry."

Time was precious; moments meant lives. Within a few hours the flour had been transferred to a Macedonian steamer and was on its merciful way. It passed tragic Gallipoli, where many brave Anzacs—lads from Australia and New Zealand—laid down their young lives gloriously, face to the foe. And now the unhappy victims of this same foe are to be fed with bread from their homeland, as if to complete the work for which they died. Anzac bread!

Did you ever see a starving person? Can you imagine ten thousand of them? All night long our bakers worked feverishly and by daylight we had ten thousand crusty loaves ready. Then we lined up for the distribution. I have seen a good many bread lines but never one like this. Some could walk, others came on crutches, on stretchers, on hands and knees, but we fed them—fed them every one, because the days of miracles have not passed: not the miracle of God's grace in the human heart; not the miracle of the spirit of Jesus in the affairs of men.

If some find it difficult to accept the miracles of the healing touch, the voice of command, the vision beatific, I can lead them where, daily, they may see wonders as great; where in the midst of flaunting wickedness and triumphant selfishness they shall witness the miracle of doing justly, loving mercy and walking humbly with God.

"Greater works than I do, ye shall do, because I go to the Father, leaving you to finish the task of the Good Samaritan—the redemption of the world through love."

I do not ask to be exempt from sorrows, for that is the recompense of saints; but I ask not to be left to natural sorrows without the consolations of thy Spirit.

The summer palace of the ex-Kaiser on the island of Corfu, turned over to the Near East Relief, now houses 3,000 Armenian orphans.

Near East Relief Boy Scouts

Woman's Auxiliary

Conducted by Mrs. J. M. McIver, Gulf, N. C.

Camden First—Charles Hadden Nabers, pastor. Work in the Woman's Auxiliary is not slowing down during the summer months. Under the direction of Mrs. S. C. Leake, the president. The Mexican Fiesta, was given in the church basement, and an offering of $30 was raised for the Mexican Girls' School.

In order that the ladies of the church with small children may be able to attend service and Auxiliary meetings, the girls of Circle No. 4, Miss Susie Newton, chairman, maintain a nursery at the church on Sunday mornings and Monday afternoons.

On the fourth Monday afternoon of each month, the ladies of the church are studying the book of Job, under the leadership of Mr. Nabers.

The Woman's Advisory Committee of the Woman's Auxiliary held its annual meeting in the Winsborough Building, Montreat, N. C., July 4-12, with the full membership in attendance as follows:

Mrs. W. C. Winsborough, Superintendent; Mrs. C. S. Kinkead, Synodical President of Tennessee, Chairman; Mrs. R. F. Dunlap, Synodical President of West Virginia, Recording Secretary; Mrs. D. A. McMillan, Treasurer, and the following Synodical Presidents: Mrs. W. E. Hinds, Alabama; Mrs. W. K. Armstrong, Appalachia; Mrs. E. S. Scott, Arkansas; Mrs. H. A. Love, Florida; Mrs. W. A. Turner, Georgia; Mrs. H. L. Cockerham, Kentucky; Mrs. William Steen, Louisiana; Mrs. D. G. McLaurin, Mississippi; Mrs. L. L. Manning, Missouri; Mrs. R. W. Calhoun, Oklahoma; Mrs. E. F. Reid, North Carolina; Mrs. Andrew Bramlett, South Carolina; Mrs. J. L. Brock, Texas; Mrs. John Bratton, Virginia.

At the opening session after a devotional by Mrs. Kinkead, a memorial service to the late chairman of the W. A. C., Mrs. F. Louise Mayes, was conducted by Mrs. Andrew Bramlett.

After the hearing of officers reports, the committee was addressed by Dr. Homer McMillan, of the Executive Committee of Assembly's Home Missions and Dr. Egbert W. Smith, Executive Secretary of Foreign Missions. Both stressed the causes which they represent and gratefully acknowledge the splendid co-operation of the women of the church and the recognition accorded both home and foreign missions through the mission study classes.

At the next session routine business was continued with reports of officers and committees. Dr. Walter Lingle presented the cause of the Assembly's Training School, urging for the school its full apportionment of the Assembly's budget.

Mrs. Archibald Davis, Presbyterian representative on the Committee on Inter-Racial Relations, discussed the causes of the present negro migration and the responsibilities of Christian people regarding them.

Dr. R. C. Anderson made an appeal for support of the Montreat Normal School.

Dr. M. E. Melvin, Secretary Assembly's Stewardship Committee asked that the Woman's Auxiliary use its influence to promote the Progressive Program and stressed the organization of classes in Stewardship for young people.

Dr. R. E. Magill, Executive Secretary of Y. P. and S. S. Extension, spoke of the great development in church activities in the last ten years through the splendid service of the Woman's Auxiliary. Through their efforts in Survey Week, the subscription list is over 10,000. He talked enthusiastically of the great awakening in Young People's Work.

The meeting closed Wednesday, July 11th, with a general conference with Presbyterian Presidents.

The following officers were elected: Mrs. C. S. Kinkead, chairman; Mrs. Andrew Bramlett, vice-chairman; Mrs. W. A. Turner, recording secretary. M. B.

Mexican Dishes—"I am sending my sister these receipts for use in her Mission Study Class and Circle. It has just occurred to me that you might like to have a copy for your column. A great many do not know what refreshments to have for their "Mexican Fiesta," although some suggestions are given. If this had occurred to me sooner I would have sent it in before now so that the ladies could have had it before so many fiestas had been staged. Do as you please about using it. I feel that it is very poorly compiled and does not do justice to the excellent Mexican cooks. In preparing practically all of their dishes it takes so much time and labor although the vegetables do not. We have cultivated such a taste for them that we hardly ever have American cooked vegetables.

Lois Faires Williamson."

(Many thanks to Mrs. Williamson for her thought of our column. Even if we have had our fiesta, many of us will want to try these receipts.—Ed.)

DRINKS—Chocolate: A good imitation is to make as we do, then add a few drops of vanilla and a sprinkle of cinnamon. Beat with egg beater until very frothy and serve at once.

Coffee: About 1-4 cup of strong coffee and 3-4 cup of hot milk.

Lemonade: Should be colored; if red call it "Jamaica," (pronounce the J as H.)

CAKES—Any kind of plain cookies, ginger snaps, coffee cakes, sweet rolls or pastry made into fancy shapes, plaiting is the most popular. The cookies and cakes may be sprinkled with sugar, but not iced.

CANDY—Penoche: Cook together 1 pound of very brown sugar and one cup of milk until syrup makes a firm ball in cold water. Remove from stove, add 1 pound of chopped nuts, 1 teaspoon of vanilla, and beat until it creams. Pour in greased pans and cut in squares.

FRUITS—Oranges, bananas, lemons, limes, pineapples, grapes, peaches, grapefruit, figs and guavas, are all Mexican fruits. There are also many others that we not have at home. The dessert of a Mexican dinner usually consists of a fruit. Watermelon is also popular.

MEAT—"Chilli Con Carne" (imitation): Cut 1 pound of plain steak into small squares and fry in skillet with small amount of grease until well browned. Remove meat from pan, put about 1 tablespoon of fat in skillet, when hot add 1 medium sized chopped onion, when light brown add the meat, 3 average sized chopped tomatoes, 1 tablespoon rice, chopped green chili (if in can use about half the can), salt to taste. Cook until done on slow fire.

VEGETABLES—"Sopa De Aroz" (Rice Stew): Put 1 tablespoon lard in skillet or stew pan, when hot add 1 cup raw rice and stir until light brown; add 1 onion chopped fine, water to half fill the pan, 2 tomatoes chopped (canned if desired), 1 chopped green pepper (or canned pimento, or dash of cayenne), salt to taste. Cover and cook slowly until rice is tender. More water may be added if necessary. Rice should be in separate grains. Sugar peas, green corn or lima beans may also be added at the time the tomatoes are put in.

"Frijoles" (J pronounced as H) or Kidney Beans: Cook 2 cups of beans in water until tender. An earthen vessel is best, granite next best. Put 1 tablespoon fat in skillet; when hot add one onion chopped fine, when light brown add part of the beans. Mash beans to thicken the water, then add the remainder of beans and the water in which they were cooked, and salt and let cook for a few minutes. Catsup or Chili Sauce may be added at the table to improve the flavor if desired.

Stringed Beans, Turnip Greens, Spinach: Cook beans in clear salted water until tender. Drain off water. Put 1 tablespoon of lard in skillet or stew pan, add 1 onion and tomato chopped (also a taste of green or red pepper if desired), when lard is hot. Cook about one minute, then add the beans and salt to taste. Cook for about 5 minutes. A sliced hard boiled egg may be used on top as a garnish. This is a recipe for 4 or 5 persons.

Cook turnip greens and spinach in same manner.

SOUP—Make a clear soup from beef bone. Add cabbage, onion, carrots, tomatoes, green peas, turnip, salt and pepper. Serve soup clear, and the vegetables with meat course.

Use corn bread for dinner, also plain white bread. Sweet rolls are popular for supper.

The delicious dishes for which the Mexicans are famous, such as tamales, enchiladas, mole, etc., cannot be made with much success at home. The above receipts are a few suggestions for your home use of your "Mexican Fiesta."

Kings Mountain Presbyterian Officers—President, Mrs. S. A. Robinson, Gastonia, N. C.; first vice-president, Mrs. R. S. Abernethy, Lincolnton, N. C.; second vice-president, Miss Corinne Puett, Dallas, N. C.; secretary Miss Mary Ragan, Gastonia; treasurer, Mrs. R. C. Long, Gastonia; secretary of Spiritual Life, Mrs. R. L. Ryburn, Shelby; secretary of Foreign Missions, Mrs. W. O. Watkins, Rutherfordton; secretary of A. H. M., Mrs. O. G. Falls, Kings Mountain; secretary of S. P. C. H. M., Mrs. D. E. McConnell, Gastonia; secretary of C. E. and M. R., Mrs. R. C. Dixon, Belmont; secretary of Y. P. and S. S., Miss Melva Gullick, Belmont; secretary of Literature, Miss Maude Mullen, Lincolnton; secretary of Orphanage Work, Mrs. S. P. Stowe, Belmont; historian, Mrs. J. W. Saine, Lincolnton.

Am sorry an account of the meeting of Kings Mountain Presbyterian never reached you. We indeed enjoyed a feast of good things spiritual and physical.

Splendid messages were given us by Mr. J. B. Johnston, Rev. R. A. Lapsley, Jr., Mr. Edgar Tufts, Jr., Mrs. J. B. Spillman, Miss Margaret Rankin, Mrs. N. B. Willis, Mrs. Sloop, and Rev. Hoyt Miller.

The Bible lessons and the various reports by our own members were all excellent. Never again will items like this appear in our by-laws: "The meetings of our society will open with prayer when our pastor is present" (quoted from the minutes of 20 years ago of one of our new flourishing Auxiliaries.)

The hospitality of the Olney folks was the finest possible so that altogether the meeting is well worth remembering.

First Church, Camden, Ark.—One of the various helpful outlets for Auxiliary zeal is announced in the "Calendar" of this church:

"Circle No. 4 of the Auxiliary will maintain a nursery at the church every Sunday morning and every Monday afternoon. All mothers can feel perfectly safe in bringing their babies and having them looked after during the preaching services and during the Auxiliary meetings."

The Antioch, N. C. Woman's Auxiliary, Mrs. M. H. McPhaul, president, observed the Mexican Fiesta at the church on Thursday afternoon, July 12th. The exercises were opened with "America" in which all joined heartily, followed by devotional led by the president, a violin solo by Miss Brown, and a pageant by members of the girls' circle, consisting of Misses Ruria Biggs, Grace Goodman, Christine, Jessie, Elizabeth, and Dorothy McPhaul, Martilia and Margaret Hodgin, Laura Ella Brown and Flora Conoly.

The needs of the Mexican girls in Texas for a Christian school were impressively set forth, and an offering of $20 was taken, which will no doubt be increased by those who could not attend after the exercises were over, the congregation adjourned to the church grove, where a delicious luncheon supper including fried chicken, sandwiches, cake, lemonade and iced tea was served.

By One Present.

"The Road of the Loving Heart," by Mildred Welch—That is what they called it, the simple, Samoan islanders, who built the road for their friend, Robert Louis Stevenson, "a name that brings us, as it were, a breeze blowing off the shores of youth."

The road was cut through the brush with much labor and toil that the beloved story-teller might come and go unhindered between his house in the woods and the beach.

And along that road there came at sunset all his "friendly helpers in a foreign isle," to join with him and his family in the simple evening worship that bound all hearts together beneath the peace of his roof.

Fame, honor, wealth, and the love of unnumbered hearts followed him. He, at least, could say that life had given him what he asked: "That he might awake each day with morning face and morning heart, eager to labor, eager to be happy if happiness should be his portion and if the day were marked for sorrow, strong to endure it."

The day came at last when the Samoan chiefs carried him out by the Road of the Loving Heart to the crest of the hill that looks ever to the restless sea, and the storm-swept reefs, and there they laid him to rest, and on the stone they graved his own sunny-hearted words:

"Glad did I live and gladly die

And I laid me down with a will.

Home is the sailor home from sea,
And the hunter, home from the hill."

The Road of the Loving Heart—how good it is that it was granted to one man at least, to go home that way.

Do we ever think of a class of men whom we send to their Father's House by the Road of the Sorrowful Way?

Men, who though lacking the special genius of Robert Louis Stevenson, lack nothing of his courage, his patience, his sunny-hearted sacrifices.

For fame, wealth, honor, they have long years in destitute home mission fields, long watches by the bed of the sick, the side of the dying, long rides in heat of summer and storm of winter. Have you ever seen them—that thinning line of old ministers, their shoulders stooped, their hair white, their eyes dimmed, their faces marred with others' sorrows?

One of them went home not long ago by the Sorrowful Way. When he died, many articles were written about him, and his praises were sounded far and wide. While he lived, he was in abject poverty and sometimes in humiliating need.

"I am sorry," he wrote, when he acknowledged the receipt of a pittance from the Relief Fund, "to have caused so much trouble, and ere another collection comes around I will be where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest."

Soon after the old minister entered in "where beyond these voices there is peace."

The days slip by and our old ministers are going home. We choose the path they tread. Is it a Sorrowful Way, or do they enter that land where none shall say: "I am old," by the Road of the Loving Heart?

A friend writes: 'Let's send all the old preachers home by the Road of the Loving Heart.'

Your Opportunity—How It Can Be Met

1. You can help by giving a subscription to be paid in annual installments, if desired.

2. You can make a gift on the annuity plan, and receive interest on the same throughout life, or designate some dependent, or friend, or some beloved pastor as the annuitant. When you no longer need it, the interest will go toward the care of the retired ministers of your Church.

3. You can erect a memorial to some loved one whom you would commemorate. The name of such relative or friend will be kept in perpetual remembrance on the records, and the proceeds used for the benefit of the retired ministers. Such a monument would be more beautiful and enduring than a marble or granite shaft.

4. You can remember the veterans in your will, by bequeathing money or real estate. In several churches large incomes are received through such bequests. Have not the veterans of our Church a host of friends who will thus remember them?

For further information address Rev. Henry H. Sweets, Secretary 410 Urban Building, Louisville, Kentucky.

BELIEF IN GOD

Belief is a mighty word. It seems to some of us such an abstraction. It does not appear to have any personality in it. And yet God says that it is belief in Jesus which is the irresistible power that overcomes the world. Many a man is a weakling today in the church, because he has no overwhelming and dominating faith in Jesus Christ as the Son of God. No mere belief in Jesus as a man, however perfect, can give the Christian the power to overcome "this present, evil world."—Ex.

The individual who is popular with himself is usually unpopular with other folks.

Have you ever noticed that when a person knows enough to talk well he talks very little.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT

(Conducted under the auspices of Synod's Committee of Sunday Schools and Young People's Work, in the interest of Sunday Schools and Young People's Societies)

W. ARNETT GAMBLE, JR., Editor

ADDRESS ALL COMMUNICATIONS TO THE DEPARTMENT EDITOR DAVIDSON, N. C

EDITOR'S LOOKOUT

The Editor was sorry to learn that his comments on one thing and another were too late last week in reaching the printers. The only real calamity, however, which our readers suffered, was that we did not get to them the notice of echo meetings scheduled for Concord Presbytery, for which it is now too late to give a forecast. We hope soon to give our readers a view of these meetings as seen in backward look.

We are sure that the report last week on the South Carolina Young People's Conference proved interesting reading. The story of the conference indicates that it was one that was carefully planned and systematically executed. The twenty decisions for full-time service for Christ are an indication of a deep spirit of devotion. The corps of strong leaders and the 236 fine young people of South Carolina evidently had a great season of worthwhile fellowship together. We hope soon to carry news of echo meetings of the South Carolina Conference.

We are happy to have a number of reports of echo meetings held in the Synod of North Carolina since the Davidson Conference. For once in our editorial life in this department, it is necessary to ask our correspondents to be patient and await their turn. We would warn our friends, however, that we would not have them slumber over the matter of sending us news. If the young people can show the Standard management that the space hitherto allotted to their department, is insufficient, we can perhaps persuade the management to give us more space. Send in all the news you think will help and interest other young people in their society or Sunday School work. We will find a place for it. Come to see us often; you will always be welcome!

Sunday School

By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.

JULY 22, 1923

JOHN THE APOSTLE

Luke 9:49; John 19:25-27; I John 4:7, 8.

GOLDEN TEXT—"God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him."—I John 4:16.

SCRIPTURE LESSON

Lu. 9:49 And John answered and said, Master, we saw one casting out devils in thy name; and we forbade him, because he followeth not with us.

50 And Jesus said unto him, Forbid him not: for he that is not against us, is for us.

51 And it came to pass, when the time was come that he should be received up, he steadfastly set his face to go to Jerusalem, 52 And sent messengers before his face: and they went, and entered into a village of the Samaritans, to make ready for him.

53 And they did not receive him, because his face was as, though he would go to Jerusalem.

54 And when his disciples, James and John, saw this, they said, Lord, wilt thou that we command fire to come down from heaven, and consume them, even as Elias did?

55 But he turned, and rebuked them, and said, Ye know not what manner of spirit ye are of.

56 For the Son of man is not come to destroy men's lives, but to save them. And they went to another village.

Jno. 19:25 Now there stood by the cross of Jesus his mother, and his mother's sister, Mary the wife of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalene.

26 When Jesus therefore saw his mother, and the disciple standing by whom he loved, he saith unto his mother, Woman behold thy son!

27 Then saith he to the disciple, Behold thy mother! And from that hour that disciple took her unto his own home.

I John 4:7 Behold, let us love one another; for love is of God, and every one that loveth, is born of God, and knoweth God.

8 He that loveth not, knoweth not God; for God is love.

SHORTER CATECHISM

Q. 46. What is required in the first commandment?

A. The first commandment requireth us to know and acknowledge God to be the only true God, and our God, and to worship and glorify him accordingly.

John was the youngest of our Saviour's apostles and was most intimate with Him. He reclined on His breast at supper and was asked to inquire "Who should betray Him?" He was pre-eminently "The apostle of love" and was the most faithful of them all. He was present when Jesus raised the dead, in Gethsemane, and at the Transfiguration. He alone stood by Christ at His trial and during the agonies of the cross, of all the apostles. To him, during the crucifixion, rather than to members of her own family, did Jesus commit the care of His mother. Though John was loving, he did not lack force of character. Jesus called him and his brother James, "Boanerges" or "Sons of Thunder." Attending to the lesson we consider, Supporting or Opposing Christ; The Samaritans Do Not Receive Christ; Jesus Committing His Mother to John; Christian Love.

I. Supporting or Opposing Christ

A position of neutrality in regard to Jesus is impossible. He Himself says, "He that is not with me is against me, and he that gathereth not with me scattereth abroad." But some are on Christ's side and cast out demons and make disciples for Him that do not belong to our branch of the church, nor are in our company, nor wear our uniform. Neither do they have our symbols, nor walk in our ways or use our methods. We are sometimes disposed to deny their Christianity and to check their work. That was precisely the case with James and John. They said to the Lord, "We saw one casting out demons in thy name, and we forbid him because he followed not us." Jesus reproved their mistaken zeal and said, "Forbid him not, for no man can cast out demons in my name and can lightly speak evil of me." Christ's claims forbid neutrality and every one is for or against Him, and every one's influence tells for or against His cause. But some may serve Him in different ways from ourselves, and if manifestly doing good, we should bid them Godspeed.

II. The Samaritans Did Not Receive Christ

He was going to Jerusalem and they would not entertain Him in a certain village. He had sent His disciples to arrange for His sojourn. But they did not encourage them. On a former occasion some of the Samaritans at the town of Sychar had received Jesus and received great benefits from Him. But these were blind to His Divine nature and the blessings He could bestow. These Samaritans would not receive Christ because they differed from Him as to religious matters. He was going up to Jerusalem to worship and for other purposes. They did not desire to go to Jerusalem and thought they could worship just as well in their own country. Many do not receive Jesus now because they differ with Him and are blind to His claims and benefits. James and John were indignant that the Samaritans should refuse the Lord shelter and should drive Him from them, and asked if "They should call down fire from heaven and consume them." The Saviour rebukes their intemperate zeal, and says, "Ye know not what manner of Spirit ye are of." "The Son of Man is come not to destroy men's lives but to save them."

III. Jesus Commits His Mother to John's Care

There is no more tender evidence of Jesus' love for His mother and John than this act. His mother Mary, her sister Mary, the wife of Cleophas and Mary Magdalene stood by the cross. Amid the agonies of a sacrificial death Jesus remembers His mother's temporal welfare and says to her concerning John, "Woman, behold thy son." Turning His glance on John, He says, "Son, behold thy mother." John accepts the sacred charge and we are told "Took her to her own home." He doubtless discharged the obligations assumed with the utmost fidelity and it will be to him a source of joy for eternity. The relation established between John and Mary that day will last forever.

IV. Christian Love

The subject presented in this part of our lesson is this grace. It is affirmed that "God is Love." It is the only grace employed to represent God. It is an essential element of His character. It underlies all other attributes. Even the righteousness, which punishes the obstinately wicked is upheld by love for the righteous. Love of pity, love of beneficence, and love of delight find their highest manifestation in Jehovah. God is not only love, but the source of love in His creatures. "Love is of God." "We love Him because He first loved us." As "God is Light" and the Fountain of Light to the universe, so "God is love" and the impartor of love to saints. "He that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God and God in Him." The atmosphere of Gospel piety is an atmosphere of love to God and man. He that has no love has no religion. If we dwell in love God's holy loving Spirit dwells in us.

Christian Endeavor

By Rev. J. G. Garth, Chairman of Synod's Committee of Sabbath Schools and Young People's Work.

The following article has been written at my request by Mrs. J. G. Garth who has compiled the facts from our Assembly's latest reports.—J. G. G.

INDUSTRIAL MISSIONS

M., July 23—Industry in Eden: Gen. 2:4-17.

T., July 24—The law of labor: Exod. 20:9-11.

W., July 25—Providing jobs: Matt. 20:1-15.

T., July 26—Teaching independence: Eph. 4:28.

F., July 27—Teaching honesty: I Thess. 4:11-12.

S., July 28—The curse of idleness: I Tim. 5:13.

Sun., July 29—Topic: Industrial Missions at Home and Abroad. II Thess. 3:6-13.

The first work of a missionary is to bear the Light to those who sit in darkness—carrying the Gospel story to those who know it not. In other words, it is the very work of Christ himself, who came to redeem us from the curse of sin and death. Since Christ came preaching, teaching and healing, our work is likewise to preach, teach and heal. Therefore we have built churches and schools in all of the seven countries where our missions abroad are located, and hospitals in all but Japan and Brazil, native doctors are available.

The Need for Industrial Schools

While we recognize the need of preaching, teaching and healing, some may not understand the need of industrial schools, which is our subject of study today. Upon entering a mission field, we are at once face to face with sin, ignorance, poverty, filth and idleness on the part of the natives.

"Not only is education of mind necessary, but there must also be education of hand. Among heathen peoples there has always been an aversion to work."

Now God has wrought all the wonderful works of creation through Jesus Christ, his son. Christ himself worked with his own hands in the carpenter's shop. Paul labored, working with his own hands, and so in the establishment of Industrial and Agricultural schools we teach the dignity of labor and a new conception of life is created. In these schools, the natives are taught there is nothing belittling in manual labor. They are trained in trades and social works of civilization. They are aided in self-support, by means of interesting hand and brain in useful work they are made receptive to spiritual instruction.

Our Work in Brazil

Our largest agricultural work is in Lavras, Brazil. While Brazil is a great and a rich country in resources, it has been slow in development, and has been literally the country of the man with the hoe.

Practical farming with modern machinery is taught in the Lavras Agricultural College. Here they have 600 acres of land, an establishment for breeding pure-bred hogs and cattle, a creamery where good butter is made, a sugar factory which makes the sugar used by the school and a surplus for sale. The farm is a means of self-help to many young men wishing an education that would otherwise be unobtainable.

Our Work in Africa

We also have an agricultural work in the Congo under the supervision of Mr. Hillhouse, a consecrated layman from Georgia, who went to Africa at his own expense. Two hundred and fifty acres of land for an experiment station was donated by Monsieur Renkin, of Brussels, who also assisted in stocking and equipping the farm. The government furnished seeds and plants and now pineapples, sugar-cane, peanuts, South Carolina yams, and a large variety of fruits and vegetables are raised in great quantities on this farm, making the lives of the missionaries pleasant and affording a means of self-help and education to many of the natives.

Besides this agricultural school in Africa there is also an industrial school at Leubo, where the boys are taught carpentry and brick making,—so that they can erect their own school buildings. They are also taught tailoring and shoe making. So the next time Methodist bishops visit Africa the natives instead of being "robed in sunshine and clad in climate," will be walking around in proper European clothing.

Our Work in China and Korea

We have besides the above mentioned industrial and agricultural schools a self-help department in the Hanchow Christian College, China. The Carrie McMillan Home and School, in Kochi, Japan, for girls, the Kwanju Girls' Industrial School in Korea, where lace-making is the main industry and means of support.

Mrs. Swinchart was the promoter of this school and industry. The girls by their patience, and perseverance have proved themselves capable of the finest and most exacting work. Every girl who leaves this school carries with her the knowledge of a craft by which she can earn a decent living. In all of these schools Christianity is taught and instilled into the lives and characters of the students and the large majority of them become exemplary Christians who go forth to bless and help those with whom they come in contact.

Industrial Missions in Texas

While praying for these institutions in foreign fields, let us not forget the similar schools in our home field.

We call special attention to the Tex.-Mex. Industrial Institute at Kingsville, Texas, established in 1912. From a small beginning this has grown in a marvelous way, and is solving the educational and industrial problem for a large population of Mexicans in southern Texas. With a well-defined schedule the students spend half-time in school and about four hours daily in some remunerative work. Each student has a systematic study of the Bible as in other branches. Farming, dairy work, carpentry, and printing are some of the trades taught in this school. For further information regarding the Tex.-Mex. Institute, industrial schools for the Indians in Oklahoma and other industrial and educational schools in our Southland, write to Miss Nancy White, 1522 Hurt Building, Atlanta, Ga.

Industrial Missions in North Carolina

Let us call attention to the Albemarle Normal and Industrial Institute, Albemarle, N. C., the Lees-McRae Institute or Woodrow Wilson College, at Banner Elk, and the work of Crossnore, under the leadership of Dr. and Mrs. Sloop, as some of the worthy objects of our prayers and interest in our own State.

ECHO CONFERENCES HELD IN WILMINGTON PRESBYTERY AT SOUTH RIVER CHURCH AT GARLAND

By Miss Elizabeth Cromartie

The first of the series of young people's echo conferences of Wilmington Presbytery met at South River Church, Garland, N. C., June 26th.

Mr. J. M. Harvey, Sunday School missionary in Wilmington Presbytery, was present and led in the opening song service at 11 o'clock. Rev. Chester Alexander conducted the devotional exercises. Miss Isabella Cromartie welcomed the delegates and was responded to by Miss Caroline Robinson. Mrs. J. M. Harvey, secretary of Young People's Work of Wilmington Presbyterial, told of the work done by the young people of the Presbytery during the past year. Mrs. Harvey brought with her the silver loving cup won by Wilmington Presbytery in the Merit Cup Contest. In response to their stirring address the young people decided to work hard and keep the cup another year.

Short talks were given by Mrs. Hugh Walker of Currie Church and Miss Theresa MacDuffie of Caswell Church, on "Winning for Christ," and "Training for the Service of Christ." The main address of the morning was by Rev. A. D. P. Gilmour, D.D., of the First Church of Wilmington, on "The Call of the Christ."

Another good song service and a devotional hour led by Rev. C. B. Heller, opened the afternoon meeting. At this time reports were given of the Davidson conference. The delegates to that meeting who gave reports were: Miss Bessie Mae Smith, Atkinson; David Cromartie, Garland; Miss Grace MacLeod, Elizabethtown; and Miss Katherine Clark, Elizabethtown. An educational address on Presbyterianism by Dr. Gilmour, reports from the organizations represented, and a conference period, closed a very successful echo meeting.

MECKLENBURG YOUNG PEOPLE'S RALLIES

By Miss Annie Parks Moore

Do Davidson conference "echoes" ring clear? They did in Mecklenburg at the three Young People's Rallies held June 26-28 at Hopewell, Pleasant Hill, (Continued on page 10)

Church News

PACKAGES FOR AFRICA

I will be glad to take any packages, up to 12 pounds, sent to Martin, Ga., by any one, for any missionary of our Congo Mission, sent by September the first.
A. Hoyt Miller.

SHALL WE CHANGE OUR CHURCH YEAR AND THE TIME OF OUR EVERY MEMBER CANVASS?

The Assembly's Stewardship Committee at its recent meeting unanimously adopted a resolution recommending to the next Assembly that steps be taken to change the time of the Every Member Canvass from March to November and also to make the church year conform to the calendar year (that is,—and December 31st). This would not affect the time of meeting of the Assembly. This resolution was passed after full discussion and with the unanimous approval of the Secretaries of Stewardship of the 14 Synods represented.

Due notice is given at this early date, to the effect that this recommendation will be before the next Assembly. There is not the slightest desire on the part of the Stewardship Committee to rush this through the Assembly. It will not be pressed if there appears to be a decided sentiment against it.

It would be very helpful therefore if we might have some discussion of this important matter at the meeting of our Presbyteries this fall. Our committee is not seeking to "manufacture" a sentiment for this, but really feels that it is reflecting a sentiment throughout the Church. Overtures to the Assembly for or against would be in order. By all means let us think it through; hear all the objections; and consider all the proposed advantages. We are hoping that there will be a response to this that will provoke a discussion in the church papers.

The General Assembly's Stewardship Committee,

By M. E. Melvin, General Secretary.

THE MISS WATKINS MEMORIAL

Some time ago the Standard carried a statement signed by Mrs. Latta Johnston, of Charlotte, relative to a proposed memorial to Miss Mildred Watkins, this memorial to be a contribution to the Boys' High School in Kashing, China.

Mrs. Johnston advises that there was a widespread response to this appeal, and while in some cases the contribution was small from a monetary point of view, in no case did it fail to show the love and interest that Miss Watkins' friends and former pupils had for her and her life-work.

Mrs. Johnston has kindly given us for publication Dr. Egbert Smith's acknowledgement of the receipt of the money contributed for this fund:

Mrs. Latta C. Johnston,
609 North Tryon Street,
Charlotte, North Carolina.

My dear Mrs. Johnston:

Your good letter of July 5th, enclosing check for $1,598.50, $884.80 being from the First Church of Charlotte and $707.73 from the the Second Church of Charlotte and friends of Miss Watkins, has just been received. Checks of this size always excite the greatest hilarity in this neck of the woods.

Permit me to express to you and to all these generous givers our committee's profound appreciation of this gift and of the purpose for which it has been made. Our committee will see to it that the wishes of the givers are carried out to the letter, and I shall write a personal letter to Rev. Lowry Davis, a warm personal friend, making very plain to him what this money is to be used for.

I am sure that the friends of Miss Watkins could not select a more needed and fruitful object of contribution than the erection of another building for our Boys' High School in Kashing, China.

With warm personal regards and all good wishes,
I am
EWS:M
Sincerely your friend,
Egbert W. Smith.

RESOLUTIONS REGARDING DR. CHESTER AND WILLIAMS

At the last meeting of the Executive Committee of Foreign Missions of the Southern Presbyterian Church, the following paper was adopted by the committee by a unanimous and rising vote.

In view of the action taken by the Montreat Assembly in retiring Rev. S. H. Chester, D.D., and Rev. H. F. Williams, D.D., from active to advisory secretaryships, the Executive Committee would record its warm esteem and high personal regard for these brethren, as well as its grateful appreciation of the invaluable service they have rendered the cause of Foreign Missions during long years of zealous and untiring labors.

Both of them have loved the cause they have served with single-hearted devotion. The missionary fire has burned in their souls, and their enthusiasm has been contagious.

Dr. Chester became secretary in 1893, and has thus been in the service of the church as its Foreign Missionary Secretary for thirty years. He has had no little to do with the wonderful expansion of the work, seeing the income of the committee increase from $120,141 to $1,214,383, and the number of missionaries from 130 to 479.

It has fallen to his lot to handle some of the most delicate and difficult problems that have arisen, the last being the question of orthodoxy on the mission field, and he has done this difficult work with rare tact and discretion. He is regarded not only by his own church, but by the leaders of other churches, as a missionary statesman, and his views have commanded attention and respect in those councils where the foremost missionary leaders of the world have met to confer and plan for the extension of the Kingdom.

Dr. Williams entered the work in 1902, and has been with the committee for 21 years. He has rendered a large service in the field at home, promoting and conducting missionary conferences, stimulating and enlisting our young people, directing the itineraries of missionaries at home on furlough, developing the department of lantern slide lectures to a high degree of efficiency, and in many other ways educating the church at home in the principles and methods of world missions.

Both of these brethren have visited the mission fields and returned to challenge the Church with the story of needs and opportunities, and summon God's people to renewed consecration and courage in carrying the Gospel to a needy world.

It is in no formal way that we pay our tribute of grateful praise to these two veterans of the greatest of all wars. Long may they be spared to aid with their counsel the cause to which they long since gave themselves.

NORTH CAROLINA

West Avenue Church, Gastonia, of which Rev. R. C. Long is pastor, is beginning this week to build an addition to their church to house the growing men's class and to provide a social room for the Christian Endeavor societies and the Boy Scouts. The Intermediate C. E. Society took the banner at the annual young people's rally for making the best report of any young people's society in the Presbytery. The Boy Scouts of Troop 4, the pastor as scoutmaster, returned recently from their annual camping trip this year in Western North Carolina and including a trip through the Groves estate and the Grove Park Inn, near Asheville. This church is engaging during the summer months in a series of union services with the West End Methodist Church located nearby,—a series that is proving most interesting and helpful.

Salisbury, Second—Rev. Eugene Alexander, pastor. Beginning on May 31st, and going through June 10th, Rev. Leonard Gill, Synodical evangelist, assisted the pastor in a series of services that were well attended and helpful to this congregation. Mr. Gill preaches with great power, impressing his audiences by his earnestness and fearlessness in rebuking sin in all its forms among all classes of people. As a result of these services 21 were added to the membership of this church and a number went to other churches. A most impressive scene was witnessed on Sunday morning when a father and mother made a profession of faith, the father with his two-year-old boy being baptized by the pastor.

Since that time five have been added to the church by letter, making a total of 39 received into this church since the beginning of the pastorate of Mr. Alexander on March 1st.

During the revival services the music was conducted by Mr. Floyd Alexander, of Charlotte, who has been director of the voice department at the Greensboro College for Women for the past year, and who is now teaching voice at Chautauqua, New York. It was a treat to this congregation to hear this highly trained baritone voice at each service, and to be directed in song by him. Cor.

Kings Mountain—Our summer communion was largely attended and greatly enjoyed. The communion service proper was preceded by the public reception and baptism of a promising young man, and the ordination and installation of three recently elected ruling elders by the simple, solemn and impressive ritual of the Presbyterian Church. It was an occasion that will be long remembered with gratitude and praise for the goodness of God to this church. Since Dr. McElroy accepted our call three months ago his health has been greatly improved, 29 members have been received; three additional elders (J. C. Mason, George Cansler and C. E. Neisler, Jr.), have been added to the session, and our congregations fill the house twice each Sabbath and half that number attend the Wednesday evening service. The Sabbath School has broken all previous records for attendance with a men's organized Bible class of 60 members. The Woman's Auxiliary and the Christian Endeavor Society are receiving a full share of the divine blessings. A fine troop of boy scouts and also, some say, a finer troop of girl scouts has been organized. They are full of enthusiasm for scouting during the week and equally enthusiastic for the Sabbath School on Sunday. These things made our last communion a particularly delightful occasion. We are especially thankful for the improved and improving health of our pastor.

The Home Mission and Evangelistic work is moving forward in Concord Presbytery. The Presbytery became the possessor of an evangelistic tent about two years ago, but not till this summer has the special advantage of this particular kind of equipment seemed to have been appreciated. The tent is in almost constant use by pastors who want to promote evangelism in their fields. The Home Mission work is progressing. In addition to the work of the superintendent, the Home Missions Committee, at a recent meeting, appointed a special committee to arrange for an exchange of pulpits by all pastors for the purpose of presenting the Home Missions cause of the Presbytery in every church between now and the Fall meeting of Presbytery.

At this time of the year the superintendent and evangelist has a considerable part of his time occupied in the conduct of evangelistic meetings. Immediately before him are evangelistic engagements which will occupy his time up to the middle or latter part of September with the exception of a few days at Montreat the first half of August. The Home Mission pay roll in Concord Presbytery for the month of June, just past consisted of 21 workers, and amounted to nearly $1,000. The Home Mission Bulletin, which embarked on its mission with the present ecclesiastical year, is proving very helpful in our work.

J. M. Clark,
Superintendent and Evangelist, Concord Presbytery.

Barium Springs—As usual the children at Barium are having their vacations; and each week some come back and others go out—it is such a treat to get home for a visit.

At our Spring communion 19 joined the church. We graduated six from the high school this year. It came as a shock when Mr. Hyde offered his resignation; he has been with us four years and has won our affection and admiration as a man and a teacher. It will be hard to secure his equal; I have never seen his superior as a trainer of children. I hear the children regretting his departure on every side.

His departure is being followed by many others; and by some promotions. Miss Adams, who has served so long as matron of the large girls' at Howard cottage, has been promoted to lady principal, and is to occupy the superintendent's house. And I am informed that Mrs. Holton, who has taught the seventh grade, is to be head of the school.

Mrs. Matheson, the excellent matron of Rumble Hall, Mrs. Harrison, and Miss Lackey who so well managed the kitchen, and Mrs. Harris, who did such good work in the laundry are all gone. And Miss Chambers who made such little gentlemen of the Syonds' boys has resigned. Our farmer, Mr. Lackey, has out-done himself this year, he has thrashed the banner crop of wheat and oats, a thousand bushels of wheat and six hundred of oats.

The new boys cottage and the baby cottage are almost ready for the roof to be put on. So we are having a summer of changes.

H. M. Parker.

Report of Committee on Regrouping of Churches of Fayetteville Presbytery, adopted at the Adjourned Meeting, June 26, 1923—Your committee recommends:

I. That the following groups of churches be formed:

1. Benson, Alaska, Roseneath, Four Oaks and Wildwood, with mission points in the adjacent territory.

2. Selma, Fairview, Community and Progressive, with mission points in the field.

3. White Oak, Kenly, Mizpah, Spring Hill, Oak Grove and Centre Ridge.

4. Mt. Pisgah, Leaflet, Broadway and Barbecue.

5. Fairmont (with pastor located at this point) and Iona.

6. That Hillside be supplied by the pastor of Ashpole Church.

7. Philadelphus, Pembroke and Mt. Tabor.

8. Jonesboro, St. Andrews, Salem and Pine Grove.

9. Buffalo, White Hill, Pocket and Euphonia.

10. Cumnock, Horseshoe and Gulf, with mission points in the adjoining territory.

II. That the Home Mission committee supplement the salary of the Cumnock, Horseshoe and Gulf churches to such an extent as to make the total salary $2,000 and manse.

III. That the Presbytery allow the Rock Branch and Cameron Hill churches to call a pastor-teacher, and that he be allowed to teach the school at Rock Branch.

Respectfully submitted,

A. R. McQueen, Chairman,

C. M. Gibbs, Secretary of Committee.

Attest: E. L. Siler, S. C.

Statesville—A great meeting—one of the greatest revivals in the history of the community closed on the night of July 8th, when Dr. Wm. Black, general evangelist of the Synod of North Carolina preached the final sermon of the week's series. It is gratifying to estimate the results of a revival in members, and equally gratifying to note that its permanent effects are highly evident after the figures are counted. The total number of conversions reached the high mark of 125 for the week's meeting. On one night the number of reconsecrations from the mixed congregation attending was conservatively estimated at 900,—there being present a congregation of 1,500 people. On this night the veteran evangelist himself remarked that never before had he seen such a response to the invitation. Dr. Black came in the spirit of I Corinthians 2:2, and has powerfully impressed the community with the necessity for a closer walk with Christ and greater evangelistic zeal. The preacher was assisted by his splendid Gospel singers, Messrs. Burr and Long, whose appealing songs, and ability to lead singing en masse was most noteworthy.

Equally memorable were the quiet talks given by Dr. Black daily to a number of people who gathered to hear him after dinner was over. His charm and complete absorption in his Master's work powerfully influence all who hear him. There is nothing so magnetic in a Christian's life, as consecration. Dr. Black's preaching is "not with enticing words of men's wisdom, but in demonstration of the spirit and power," and his table talks illustrates the proverb, "the lips of the wise disperse knowledge." Some 60 people have been added to this church as a result of the revival, many others going to the sister churches.

Intestible indeed is the life which seeks not the honor of man, but the honor which cometh from God only and which makes salvation the central theme of preaching and the fear of the Lord the central theme of conversation. Such is the life of Dr. Black. May his apostolic labors be appreciated by all privileged to enjoy his powerful preaching and tender personal ministry. His spiritual children in this state and others are now legion. May God spare his faithful servant to many more years of fruitful toil!

Mc. K. Robbins Long, Pastor.

Work in the Pitt County Field—We have been with the good people of the Greenville Church for about three months now, and have had almost all that it is possible for one to do. Besides the work in the town of Greenville, we have four mission Sabbath Schools which are maintained by the church in the surrounding county, and each Sunday afternoon teams from the city school go out to act as teachers and superintendents at these places.

We came here on the first of April and were received with many expressions of thoughtfulness and love, from the complete renovation of the manse, the filling of the pantry with good things to eat, the preparing of ground for planting, and filling the wood house with wood and coal; and many other things that could be mentioned.

Shortly after we came, a religious census was taken which showed that there were fully 60 persons not identified with the church who expressed a preference for ours, and we have succeeded in getting 17 of these in the church so far; six of these being professions of faith, the rest by letter. Included in these are ten new families. The city Sunday School has increased very substantially, and the summer attendance is keeping up better than it has ever done in the summer. The adult classes are unusually well attended.

Recently, three additional deacons and two additional elders were elected, and will be installed at a later date.

The East Carolina Teacher's College, located here, and which is now holding its summer session, attended by over 400 young ladies, is enlarging its capacity to double its present size, and soon will have 800 instead of 400 studying for teachers. $1,500,000 is to be spent on new buildings as rapidly as they can be built. We have a class in the S. S. especially for the students, and it ranges from 30 to 40 now.

Greenville is rapidly growing, and the prospect for the church is unusually good. What we need now is a new church building, and already the Auxiliary has a neat sum on deposit for this purpose. We hope and are praying that we may begin this building in the fall or winter.

Another great need of this field is a man to look after the county work. We have organized one new Sunday School and are ready to organize another as soon as we can get a man to do it. One of these schools is to have an evangelistic meeting in October, and the pastor has pledged himself to hold it if he cannot get outside help. The total enrollment in the four schools will be about 400.

We thank God for what He is doing for us, and we are praying Him to send us a man soon for this great work in the county.

A view of the opportunity will be seen when we say that over half of the population, over 10 years of age are not professing Christians.

W. S. Hardin.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Simpsonville—Rev. Messrs. R. C. Morrison and J. K. Roberts, installed Rev. D. C. Stogner as pastor of this church on the night of Sunday, July 8th. This church decided at the morning service to begin to erect a church building at once.

Mr. Stogner is making good progress in his work in the Lickville, Fulton and Simpsonville churches.

Charleston, Second Church—The quarterly communion was observed in this church on Sunday, July 1st, at which time the pastor, Rev. J. W. Hickman, announced the names of 33 accessions to the membership of the church since the last communion on April 1st. This makes a total of 155 accessions to the church since the coming of the present pastor, Rev. J. W. Hickman, in 20 months.

During the summer months this church is observing its usual custom and holding its Sunday evening service out of doors.

Greenville—The Home Missions Committee of Enoree Presbytery met last Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Second Presbyterian Church. The meeting was well attended and decided interest was shown in the progressive work being now carried on by the committee. Interesting reports on the work were made by Rev. J. F. Mattheson, chairman; Rev. W. A. Hafner, treasurer; and Rev. J. K. Roberts, superintendent.

It was decided to request Presbytery to make larger appropriation to this cause in order that the committee may conserve and enlarge upon the aggressive program in progress and take advantage of new opportunities just now opening up for us.

By rising vote the committee expressed its appreciation for the hospitality of the Second Church through its genial pastor, Dr. E. P. Davis, and for the delicious luncheon served by Mrs. D. W. Cochran's circle. The committee adjourned to meet in Spartanburg the first of October in third quarterly session.

The First Church, Spartanburg, Rev. Dr. H. W. DuBosc, pastor, is enlisting in a big movement for local development. It owns at present a beautiful and valuable property near the center of the city on its principal business street, but the plant is proving utterly inadequate to the rapidly growing congregation and work. Besides, the steady extension of business, especially on this street, is fast encroaching on the church property, which is already in demand for commercial uses. In view of this condition of affairs some months ago the officers of the church appointed a committee to look carefully into the whole situation and recommend appropriate action. This committee reported several weeks ago recommending that the church sell its present property and erect adequate buildings on a large residence lot on the same street a little further out in the chief residence section of the city, an option on which had been secured. This proposition was first submitted to the men of the church assembled at a banquet; and having received their enthusiastic approval, it was later adopted by an official meeting of the congregation, which authorized its execution. A committee has now been appointed to carry it out, but of course a year or more will be required for its completion.

Kingstree-Williamsburg Church—We have recently had the great pleasure and high privilege of having Rev. Daniel Iverson, of Tarboro, N. C., with us for seven days. He came not unknown to us as he had been with us on like mission two years ago. The cottage prayer meetings had helped us to prepare ourselves for the worship and work. Mr. Iverson preached twice daily. In the evening the church was filled with people yearning for the Gospel. They were not disappointed, for Mr. Iverson preached the old-time, plain, simple Gospel of sin, salvation from sin through and only through the blood of God's Son, Jesus Christ, the Saviour.

Scores of church members reconsecrated their lives. Six persons were admitted to membership of the Presbyterian Church on profession of their faith in the Lord Jesus—and there was also admissions to the other churches. Possibly the sweetest, the most impressive and the most inspiring part of the services was after the Sunday morning service when 12 young people came forward without any urging and gave their hand to Mr. Iverson signifying by so doing that they would do anything that God wanted them to do. Five of these were members of the Methodist Church, one a member from the First Baptist Church of Sumter, S. C., and seven were members of the Presbyterian Church. Fathers, mothers, friends and ministers rejoiced together thanking God for His presence and blessing. To Him be all the praise and honor and glory.

John W. Davis, Pastor

Greer—Friday, July 6th, will be a day long remembered by this church. From ten in the morning till four in the afternoon the Young People's Rally of Enoree Presbytery was in session. The devotional exercises were conducted by the pastor, Rev. A. G. Wardlaw, D.D.

The theme of the program was a "New Vision," considered under four heads.—First—Worship, Leader, Miss Louise Logon, Spartanburg, followed by an address on "What Christ Teaches About Worship," by Rev. A. R. Batchelor.—Second—"Instruction," Leader, Rev. J. K. Roberts, after certain phases of What We Think About Training had been presented Mr. Roberts followed it with an address on Christ's Training for Service,—an able address was made by Dr. T. W. Sloan, on "The Value of Christian Education."

A genuine old-fashioned picnic dinner was served on the church grounds.

The devotional exercises in the afternoon were conducted by Rev. J. G. Walker.

The third head of the program was,—Inspiration, lead by Rev. C. K. Douglas. Eight echo addresses were made under this topic by delegates to the Clinton and Montreat conferences.

The fourth division of the program, Service,—was lead by Mr. Thomas Swendenburg, followed by an address, Christ—A True Picture of Service, Dr. H. W. Dubose.

Mr. Howard, of the First Church, Greenville, was the song leader. The meeting was a decided success, the attendance being over 300, and the spirit deeply devotional. The rally was held under the auspices of the Enoree Auxiliary Presbyterial, directed by Miss Virginia Taylor, secretary of Young People's Work.

At 4:30 o'clock Enoree Presbytery met and dissolved the pastoral relation existing between Rev. J. S. Davis and the Monaghan Presbyterian Church, giving Mr. Davis permission to labor beyond the bounds of the Presbytery; placed call of Clifton Church in the hands of Rev. W. G. Nevelle; and the call of Simpsonville Church in the hands of Rev. D. C. Stogner, and arranged for the installation of both of them.

Promptly at five o'clock the Superintendents' Conference met and continued in session until 9:30 p. m. This conference was arranged for and conducted by Rev. J. K. Roberts, superintendent of Sunday School Work, and Rev. J. G. Walker, chairman of Presbytery's Committee of Sunday School Work.

From 5 to 7 o'clock an open conference was held on the "Superintendents' Program, The Workers' Conference, Teacher-Training, and Outpost Sunday School Work." The discussions were practical and aroused deep interest. The conference period closed with an earnest appeal to the superintendents to help the committee make a success of the program or plan for the plan, that is, the holding of three County Conferences, and conducting A Standard Training School in Greenville, in November.

A delicious luncheon was served by the ladies of and Sugar Creek. Those giving "echoes" brought messages, not of superficiality, but of reality, and from the heart. The splendid attendance at each of the meetings was sufficient proof that those unable to go to the conference at Davidson are also interested and anxious for a greater spiritual growth.

(Continued on page 12)

YOUNG PEOPLE

(Continued from page 8)

The rallies echoed Davidson's motto, "Four-fold Character Growth," in which stress was put upon Physical, Mental, Social and Spiritual Growth. The meetings began at four o'clock in the afternoon, with a devotional service, followed by the delegates' reports. Delicious picnic supper was served on the grounds, and a social hour of fun and recreation was enjoyed afterwards in each case.

Stirring evening addresses were delivered, at Hopewell, by Dr. G. F. Bell; at Pleasant Hill, by Rev. J. G. Garth; and at Sugar Creek, by Dr. Albert Sidney Johnson.

These conferences were indeed a success. The eyes of many were opened to see greater visions, and they have expressed their determination to aim for and strive toward the highest goal.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONFERENCE IN WILMINGTON DISTRICT OF WILMINGTON PRESBYTERY

By Miss Emma L. Caig

The fifth annual Young People's Conference of the Wilmington District of Wilmington Presbytery was held at the First Presbyterian Church of Wilmington on June twenty-eighth. It was opened with a song service, led by Mr. James McCoy, and devotional exercises conducted by Rev. Mr. Morton, assistant pastor of the First Church. The address of welcome was given by Monroe Gilmour and the response was given by Miss Sarah Johnson, of Winnabow.

Mrs. J. M. Harvey, secretary of Young People's Work of Wilmington Presbytery gave a report showing that last year there were 977 members and this year there are 1,080 members. A depressing fact was that the gifts of this year had decreased, but an encouraging fact was that there were 13 Home Mission study classes and 14 Foreign Mission study classes held. Mrs. Harvey showed the silver loving cup which Wilmington Presbytery won the past year.

"The Three-Fold Aim of our Church" was given by three young people, "Winning for Christ," by Miss Virginia McIntyre; "Developing in the Likeness of Christ," by John McNair, and "The Training for the Service of Christ," by Robert Grady. After this Mr. Albert Brown, of the First Church choir favored with a solo.

Dr. Gilmour, pastor of the First Church, addressed the delegates, his text being John 11:28, "The Master is here and calleth for thee." After this wonderful and inspiring address, lunch was served to the delegates.

The afternoon session was opened by another beautiful song service, lead by James McKoy, after which the devotional exercises were led by Rev. D. F. Caldwell, of Immanuel Church, of Wilmington.

Echoes were then given of the Young People's Conference at Davidson College, which was held June 12-19. Miss Anna Love first told about Miss Julia Lake Skinner's conferences on methods of work in the young people's society. Miss Zell Williams explained the morning watch, these meetings having been led by some member of the faculty each morning at Davidson. Miss Fanny Crambo next told about the daily conference period on methods that had been used in the different societies. The general subject of these periods had been Physical, Mental, Social, and Spiritual Growth. Next, Frank Jarman told about the Sunday School work and the night meetings. Rivers Lawther told about Field Day and Stunt Day. Miss Ada Humphrey told about Home Missions. Will Harlee Bordeaux told about the personal conferences and vesper services.

Rev. J. Porter Smith, of Brazil, told of the great need of giving the people in that country the Bible, which is now a closed book to them, with the Catholic priests holding the key.

The echo conference was closed with reports from the following churches and organizations: Church of the Covenant; First Presbyterian Church, Junior Christian Endeavor, Intermediate Christian Endeavor, Senior Endeavor, Young People's Intermediate Christian Endeavor, Girls' Auxiliary; Delgado; Winnabow, Young People's Auxiliary; Southport; Brunswick Chapel; Bethany; St. Andrews, Young Peoples Society; Immanuel, Young People's Society; Winter Park, "All for Service" Sunday School Class, Junior Christian Endeavor; and Pearsall Memorial, Junior Auxiliary, Girls' Auxiliary.

E d u c a t i o n a l

Queens College—The Scotland-Robeson County alumnae association of Queens College was organized on Tuesday, July 10th at the home of Miss Betsy MacNeill, in Laurinburg, with Dr. W. H. Frazer as the guest of the alumnae. Miss Agnes Lynn Buchanan, of the music faculty, welcomed the alumnae and greetings were extended by Miss Aletha Bracey, president of the student government association of Queens College. Dr. Frazer addressed the alumnae and outlined the plans for a greater Queens and urged that alumnae associations be everywhere organized in order to be of definite service in the carrying out of these plans. Officers elected are: Miss Margaret Wilkinson, president; Mrs. W. Deb McEachern, vice-president; Miss Betsy MacNeill, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Morrison McLaurin, chairman program committee. The association starts off with a membership of 20, including the following alumnae: Misses Nancy and Grace Monroe, Sallie May McLaurin, Sara McArthur, Maggie Muse, Laura Chandler, Margie McLeod, Aletha Bracey, Sue Snypes, Jane McKay, Betsy MacNeill, Margaret Wilkinson, Everette McEachin; Mesdames Morrison McLaurin, Angus Blue, W. De B. McEachin, Peter McIntosh, Pense, Miss Agnes Lynn Buchanan.

Construction of the new Domestic Science Practice house will begin in a few days. The building will be erected on Radcliffe Avenue in direct line with the residence of President Frazer, will be two stories of veneered tapestry brick, red tile roof and with the architecture in keeping with the other buildings on the college campus. The practice house will contain a reception room, dining room, breakfast room, laundry and model kitchen with bed rooms and bath rooms on first and second floors. The cost of the new building will be approximately $17,000 and its erection is in line with the policy of extension recently authorized by the board of trustees. The department of household economics at Queens is standard with the exception of a practice house and this new building will bring the department up to the requirements laid down by the State Department of Education. The committee in charge of the plans is composed of J. Arthur Henderson, chairman, Capt. Wm. Anderson and C. A. Dixon.

Davidson—President Martin received a check for $1,000 from A. B. Andrews, of Raleigh, with accompanying explanation as to the purpose for which it was sent, i. e., the placing of a "Masonic Loan Fund" at Davidson along with similar funds placed at a number of other denominational colleges, matching funds that a year ago were placed at four State institutions of learning.

The letter explains that the fund is to be loaned to deserving students, unable to finance themselves and is to be handled like any other college loan fund,—no preference or favoritism whatever to be shown to any applicant because of any Masonic connection. The loans are to be made to seniors, in order that the money may do the greatest good and be used by the greater number.

The joint Masonic committee met July 2, 1923, at Raleigh, when were present:

Dr. Hubert M. Poteat, Wake Forest, N. C., Grand Master, representing Grand Lodge Ancient Free and Accepted Masons.

Mr. Raymond C. Dunn, Enfield, N. C., Grand High Priest, representing Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons.

Dr. W. C. Mudgett, Southern Pines, N. C., Grand Commander, representing Grand Commandery of Knights Templar.

Mr. John J. Phoenix, Greensboro, N. C., Mr. A. B. Andrews, Raleigh, N. C.

At this meeting it was voted to establish this $1,000 loan fund at seven (out of nine) Grade A denominational colleges, selecting those that in 1920-21 had an enrollment in their college department exceeding 225 and also one in a Grade B denominational college for women, which that year had a college enrollment in excess of 225.

It is needless to say that Davidson appreciates to the full the recognition of standing accorded in the sending of this loan fund here and will find a ready and beneficent use for it, taking care to place the money where it will count for the most in furthering the ends of the philanthropic order whose representatives have voted this help to deserving students in need of such funds in completing the college course.

Flora Macdonald College—The joint Masonic committee on education for North Carolina has sent a check for $1,000 to President Vardell of Flora Macdonald College—this sum to be placed as a Masonic loan fund with the principal and interest to be loaned to deserving students with the preference given to seniors. The gift is without restrictions of any kind and will enable the institution to give assistance to many worthy young women. Other institutions receiving similar gifts are Trinity, Wake Forest, Davidson, Greensboro College for Women, Meredith and Salem.

News of the Week

President and Mrs. Harding celebrated July 8th, one of the most memorable of their 32 wedding anniversaries, by arriving in Alaska, the first chief executive and first lady of the land ever to visit the great northern territory.

Governor Austin Peay, of Tennessee, and a party of 15, including Mrs. Peay and the governor's son, are on a tour through portions of North Carolina as the guests of Frank Page, chairman of the North Carolina highway commission, inspecting the good roads and road building system of the State.

Italy joins neither with England nor France in her attitude relative to the Ruhr, it is semi-officially stated. Italy remains faithful to the memorandum which Premier Mussolini presented when he attended the London conference. This was based on unification of the problems of reparations and inter-allied debts and other conditions which have been adhered to throughout.

The United States, due to the "notable progress" made by its domestic dye and organic chemistry industry, is independent of the rest of the world, with respect to needs for dyes for the first time in history, according to the annual dye census for 1922.

The anthracite mine workers of Pennsylvania refused to enter into immediate understanding with the coal operators that the production of coal shall continue uninterruptedly after August 31st, in the event that a new contract shall not have been negotiated by that time, with the understanding that the agreement, subsequently arrived at shall be retroactive to September 1st.

Definite designations of roads to comprise the federal-aid highway system have been made in 34 states by the department of agriculture. Those roads and estimates in the 14 states where the roads have not yet been approved aggregate 187,406 miles, connecting nearly every city in the country having a population of 5,000 or more. Indications are that more than 90 per cent of the nation's population will live within 10 miles of a federal-aid highway. In some states it will be as high as 98 per cent, according to department officials, and in none will it drop below 65 per cent.

Lake Erie yielded the body of Lieutenant L. J. Roth, pilot of the ill-fated U. S. Navy balloon A6698. Strapped to the basket of the balloon and clad only in his underwear around which had been tied a life preserver.

The body of former United States Supreme Court Justice William R. Day, who died at Macinac Island, July 6th, was taken to Canton, Ohio, William L. Day, of Cleveland, Ohio, a son, accompanied the body.

Action of the French chamber of deputies in voting ratification of the four-power Pacific treaty, coupled with the favorable vote last week on the naval pact, caused great gratification in official circles, although some regret was evidenced at the forecast that the three other Washington treaties would not be put through at once.

Presidents Harding and Obregon will meet within the near future on the Mexican boundary line to pledge themselves to work for lasting friendship between the two nations.

This meeting will take place between Nogales, Sonora and Nogales, Arizona. The date has not been fixed.

A postoffice department report today said that the Charlotte, N. C. postoffice receipts increased from $40,130.97 in June, 1922, to $51,482.53 in June, 1923. That is an increase of 28.29 per cent, larger than any other city mentioned except Boise, Idaho, and Springfield, Ill.

The American liner Leviathan completed her first trans-Atlantic voyage as a passenger ship under the American flag when she arrived at Southampton, England, July 10th, at 10 o'clock. Her speed averaged 23.65 knots an hour. The mayor of Southampton boarded her and was received by Albert D. Lasker, former chairman of the United States shipping board.

CHILDREN

RECEIVED TESTAMENT

Dear Standard:
I am a little girl eight years old and have finished the second grade in school. I have recited the Child's Catechism and received my Testament. I go to Sunday School every Sunday. I have three brothers and two sisters and a little niece, Sarah Louise. Please print this as I want to surprise my father and mother.

Your little friend,
Lois McLelland.

Loray, N. C.

FIFTH GRADE

Dear Standard:
I am a little girl nine years old. I go to school. I am in the fifth grade when school starts again. I have three sisters and one brother. I must close. I want to surprise my mother and father.

Your friend,
Daisy M. Davenport.

IN THE COUNTRY

Dear Standard:
Please make room in your corner for a eleven-year-old stranger. My home is at Charlotte, but I am spending the summer with my aunt in the country. She is my Sunday School teacher. I recited the Child's Catechism last week and received a nice Testament. Please publish by letter, as it is my first one.

Your friend,
Mary McDermott Lee.
Laurinburg, N. C., R. 2.

WHEAT CUTTING TIME

Dear Standard:
I like to read the letters in the Standard, and will write one too. I am nearly eight years old and am in the second grade at school. I go to Sunday School nearly every Sunday at Back Creek: Mrs. R. N. Johnston is my teacher and I like her very much. Dr. E. D. Brown is our pastor and we all love him dearly. I live on a farm in Rowan County and love to drive the horses. Last week when daddy was cutting wheat I drove the horses to the reaper, and when night came I was tired and hungry, for I had been riding one of the horses all day. I am going to help finish cutting wheat today. Hoping to see my letter in the Standard, I am,

Your little friend,
Samuel Sloop.

Mt. Ulla, N. C.

HAS A BLACK HEN

Dear Standard:
Last May was my birthday. I was eight years old. I go to Sunday School; my teacher's name is Mrs. Whitlock. I go to school; I am in the third grade. I have four sisters and one brother. I have a black hen; my black hen hatched yesterday. Please print my letter because I want to surprise my Uncle Joe.

Your little friend,
Marian Allen Starnes.
Ridgeway, S. C.

SHARLIE'S BIRTHDAY

Sharlie's real name was Charlotte, and she was named for her grandmother, on whose birthday she was born. Every year since she could remember, she had had a birthday party in the afternoon, and then she and grandma had had a joint birthday supper, attended by the whole family, big and little. But this year—O dear! dear!—Sharlie had the mumps, and a party was out of the question.

So Sharlie was up in grandma's room, and grandma was doing her best to cheer the little girl up. She had let her look over boxes and rummage bureau drawers, and at last Sharlie had come to the daguerreotypes. She opened a case that held a picture of a little girl in a plaid dress—a little girl with pink cheeks and smooth straight hair.

"Was this you, grandma?" she asked. Grandma looked and nodded. "When I was just about your age," she said.

"It looks a little like me, doesn't it?" asked Sharlie. "Only your dress is so funny—and your hair! Have you got any of your little-girl dresses, grandma?"

Grandma shook her head. "I'm sorry to say, no," she said. "But upstairs in the attic I have a dress that I wore when I was a young woman—way back in Civil War times."

"My!" breathed Sharlie. "I'd like to see it."

"It's too late to go up attic today," replied grandma, "but I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll wear the dress to your—our—birthday supper, and if you aren't well enough to go downstairs, we'll have the supper up here in my room."

This sounded very pleasant, and the little girl almost forgot her troubles.

Sharlie told mother of grandma's plan, and mother was delighted with it. Sharlie guessed that mother had some secret about the birthday supper, because she went around, after that, with a mysterious air, and disappeared now and then, behind locked doors, and when questioned would only say, "Wait and see."

When the birthday came—hers and grandma's—Sharlie was much better, but it was quite decided to have supper in grandma's room, for Sharlie had had a written invitation on a square, folded paper, addressed to "Miss Charlotte Whitney," in which it said:

Mrs. Charlotte Whitney

requests the pleasure of Miss Charlotte Whitney's company in Mrs. Whitney's room,

Thursday the 9th,

from four to seven P. M.

"When 4:00 o'clock came, mother said: "Come, Sharlie, it's time to dress for the tea-party."

"O-o-oh!" exclaimed the little girl, when she went into her room. For there, laid out on the bed, was the very dress—at least it looked so—that grandma had worn in the daguerreotype. Of course it wasn't really, but mother had duplicated the plaid as nearly as possible, and had made it exactly like the picture. Green-and-white check it was, short-sleeved, puff-waisted, with a wide, round neck. Some heavy cotton lace edged the frilled sleeves, but the neck had only a corded "piping" of white. Pantalettes there were, too, to go with the dress—white, stiffly starched, and with a scalloped edge. White stockings and "ankle-ties" completed the costume.

Before Sharlie slipped into the pretty, quaint dress, mother parted her hair in the middle and brushed it down very flat and smooth on either side. Sharlie's hair was short, like the little pictured Charlotte's, but somehow it didn't want to stay down as neatly and primly.

When she was all dressed, Sharlie sat down in front of the mirror, her hands lying loosely in her lap to show her new ring, and her feet crossed.

"I look just like the picture," she said, blissfully.

Then she crossed the hall to grandma's room and tapped at the door. When the door opened, it was grandma who was the more surprised, for she hadn't known anything more about Sharlie's dress than Sharlie herself. But Sharlie was surprised, too, for grandma looked so different from her usual self—grandma in a tight, plain-waisted, flowing-sleeved, full-skirted silk of a very large green-and-brown plaid, with a hoop-skirt underneath to make it stand out stiffly; with a wide lace collar fastened with a big cameo brooch; with her hair parted smoothly, but drawn under a sort of cap or net at the back.

They both talked at once, and turned each other round and round to show their dresses. Grandma said she was not quite sure which one was herself, but as they both were Charlotte, it didn't really matter.

They played all sorts of old-fashioned games—"Tick-tack-two" and "Consequences" and "I love my love" all through the alphabet—at least grandma did, but Sharlie had to give up because she couldn't spell very well yet.

And for supper they had chicken and quince preserves, just as folks do in stories, and cinnamon buns and caraway cookies, and big pink and white peppermints, because grandma used to, when she was little.

After supper all the rest of the family came upstairs to see the two Charlottes. Father said that the very next day he would take their pictures.

When Sharlie went to bed that night, she said to mother, "It's the nicest birthday I ever had—better than a party."—Nellie F. Brown, in Zion's Herald.

HOW HOPPY-THE-TOAD CHANGES HIS CLOTHES

Louise R. Guyol, in Our Dumb Animals

"Quick! Quick! Come quickly!" Pat, tiptoeing from the rose-bed, called in a loud whisper and beckoned to his brothers and his sister.

Nat flew across the lawn, followed by Bill and Lil.

"Sh-sh-sh," Pat warned as the children drew near and he led them, again on tiptoe, toward the rose-bed, and signed to them to kneel at its edge.

It was a cloudy day, soft and gray, but not raining. The low branches of a big rosebush made a shadow of darker gray and in that shadow sat a fat, old toad.

Across his shoulders was a spot of very bright green, but all around his forelegs was what looked like a heavy gray material, all wrinkled up.

"How funny—" Nat started to whisper, but Pat put a finger on his lips and signed to him to watch Hoppy-the-Toad.

Hoppy put his right foot in his mouth and he tugged and he pulled and he pulled and he tugged and off came all of the wrinkled old gray material that was around his right foreleg. Then he put his foot in his mouth and he tugged and he pulled and he pulled and he tugged, and off came all the wrinkled old gray material that was around his left foreleg.

And there was Hoppy, all dressed up in a brand-new suit of clothes.

Now what do you suppose Hoppy-the-Toad did with his old clothes? He didn't leave them lying around so that his poor, tired mother would come along, by-and-by, and have to say, "O, I am so tired of picking up after that child." But there was no closet under the rose bush, nor any nice little tacks on the garden wall, nor even a little clothes-hamper where he could throw his cast-off coat and trousers.

So, what do you s'pose he did? He ate 'em up!

Yes, sir. That's what the toad always does. And Nat and Pat and Bill and Lil, who live in the Happy House and play in the Gay Garden that surrounds it, saw him do it. And so can you, on any nice, coolish, grayish day, just before it rains, or early any evening, when the sun goes down.

"Isn't he beautiful?" whispered Pat.

All the other children nodded, and Hoppy-the-Toad admired himself, first over his left shoulder and then over his right. He, too, thought himself quite beautiful in his nice new coat and trousers, and so he winked his heavy eyes at the four nice children and this is what he seemed to say to them:

"Now! I'd best get busy and work for you nice children, who never hurt me, nor any of my kin-folks. And so I'll help you in your garden, because if I didn't help you, you know, you would never have any vegetables nor flowers, nor plants of any kind."

And away he hopped, to work for Pat and Nat, and Bill and Lil, because they were so good to him.

Hoppy will help you, too, if you will let him, and this is the way that he will do it:

There are a great many insects that are not good for gardens. They eat our young, green leaves; they cut our baby plants down at the base; they lay eggs by the hundreds in the buds before they come to flower. And these eggs hatch out and the young grub that comes from the eggs eats his way from the inside to the outside of our vegetables and our fruit and our rose blossoms.

You may work in your garden till your back seems broken and your hands are blistered, and you can't catch all these insects.

Hoppy-the-Toad can. That's his business. . . .

So, boys and girls, remember this: If you want a garden this summer, no matter how hard you work, nor how hard the hired man works, all that work will be of little value without the help of these little four-legged hired men, Hoppy-the-Toad, and all his kind.

TO A FAIRY

Fairy won't you show yourself,
Which are you, a nymph or elf?

Tip-toe softly out some night
With a lantern moon for light.

I'll be waiting—watching too
For the smallest glimpse of you.

Is it true as I've been told
That your hair is spun of gold?

That your voice is sweet and thin
Like a bird or violin?

What is it you like to eat?
Wear your wings upon your feet?

Whisper to me ere you go
All the magic things you know.

Why you always have to be
Hidden from a friend like me,

If you don't catch cold because
Your costume is made of gauze;

Tell me if you dine on dew
Served in acorn cups to you—

Then I'll tell you every rule
That I have to learn in school,

And how very glad you'll be
You are you instead of me.

—Anne Blackwell Payne

COOKEY JAR BALLAD

By Marion Taylor

This is a song of a mixing bowl,
With butter and eggs and milk
And flour and sugar and spice and things,
All beaten as smooth as silk!

Stir in more flour, and knead on a board,
Then roll with a rolling pin,
And cut with a cutter to lay out smooth
On a nicely buttered tin.

That is the part that children do
With hands washed clean as snow,
There are dogs and chickens and horses and cows,
Some men and a bear or so.

Into the oven they go to brown
And they bake till they're crisp as can be,
And when they come out there is a big jar full
Of nice fresh cookies for tea.

—Ex.

Marriages and Deaths

DEATHS

MRS. AUGUSTUS T. COOPER

Mrs. Mary Jeannette Cooper was born October 2, 1873, in what is now Lee County, S. C. Under the training of her godly parents, George and Hannah Fraser McCutchen, she grew up to love the Lord's work even as a child. Early in life she united with Mount Zion Church of Harmony Presbytery, a church that for over 100 years has been a stronghold of the Presbyterian faith.

In 1891 she was graduated from the Sumter Institute, a school noted in its day for its thorough work and its Christian character. In 1895 she was married to Augustus Thomas Cooper, who for years was a deacon and the treasurer of Mount Zion Church, respected and loved by the whole community. She was closely associated with him in his secular and religious work till his death in 1910. After his death she continued to live in the old home and to carry on his work as a planter, a business in which she manifested unusual ability and sound judgment.

As a neighbor and friend she was quick to respond to calls for help and sympathy from any one in distress. Many are those who will never forget her cordial and thoughtful deeds of kindness and who will rise up and call her blessed.

Raised as she was she held the old views of the Bible as the absolute Word of God; her conviction along this line growing stronger as time after time she found it no mean support on which to rely. Such an attitude to the Word of God made her naturally devoted to the church as the supreme agency for preaching the Gospel.

She was always bright and cheerful though for some time she had not been strong, and while she was under hospital treatment the end came unexpectedly on January 15, 1923. Her body was laid to rest the next day by the side of that of her husband in the old church cemetery that holds the ashes of her loved ones.

this Presbytery, and enters upon his work under the most favorable conditions. N. L. A.

CHURCH NEWS

(Continued from page 9)

the First Presbyterian Church which was highly appreciated by the conference.

A popular meeting on Sunday School Work was held in the evening beginning at eight o'clock with an address by Rev. J. K. Roberts, superintendent of Sunday School work, on "Teen Age" Problems. This was followed by an inspirational address on, "The Call—Your Answer," by Hon. I. A. Phifer, of Spartanburg.

APPALACHIA

Pineola, N. C.—Last Sunday was a red letter day for this mission church. There was added to the church eight or ten members, all of them except two the heads of families.

Dr. G. F. Robertson, D.D., of Bristol, Tenn., did the preaching. He preached the old-time Gospel, the kind the pastor desired and the people received with grateful hearts. I don't know of any other man that would have pleased both better than Dr. Robertson; it certainly was wonderful and it had its desired effect. He only came to stay 10 or 12 days but the pastor interceded with his congregation and he was permitted to stay two weeks. For the help and the kindness we certainly appreciate. We hope they will see their way clear to lend him to us again. He preaches the kind of sermons these mountain people need.

Rev. D. Mc. Lacy, of Washington, will begin a meeting at Linville the 16th of July. And from there will go to Newland, we are expecting great things from Mr. Lacy at both places. The people are praying for a great revival.

D. B. McLaughlin, Pastor.

ALABAMA

Alabama Avenue, Selma—This church in conjunction with the First Church, have just closed two very successful Daily Vacation Bible Study Schools, one in the Alabama Avenue Church, and the other in the Ames Mill village, several blocks away, where the First Church has been running a successful Sunday School for about a year under the leadership of J. Percy Day. There were enrolled about 150 children, and the school lasted four weeks. During this time 40 solid hours of scriptural, ethical, and missionary teaching, was given by efficient and consecrated teachers. It is believed that these hours were just as instructive and helpful as the same number of hours given by the Sunday School during the year. Any church can thus almost double its power and influence over the lives of its children during the year through the D. V. B. S. The pastor, Rev. Geo. W. Cheek, is spending the month of July in White Bible School, of New York.

ARKANSAS

The Young People's Conference of the Ozark Assembly, held under the direction of the Synod and Synodical of Arkansas, was a success in every sense of the word. During the second week in June when this conference was held in Hardy at the Wahpeton Inn, 128 delegates were registered from over 30 different Presbyterian centers in the State. The delegates came from the four Presbyteries of the Synod in about the proper numerical proportion.

Bible study was given the girls by Mrs. H. H. Street, of Lonoke and the boys by Dr. R. E. Fry, of Pine Bluff. Mrs. Street's course was on the Gospel of John, and Dr. Fry's theme was on The Living of Life.

At the second hour of the morning text book classes were taught in Home Missions by Dr. R. L. Jetton, of Jonesboro; Christian Endeavor by Rev. J. E. Wallace, of Pine Bluff; Sunday School Methods by Mrs. G. W. Sheffer, of Little Rock; and Presbyterianism by Rev. C. H. Nabers, of Camden.

The conference period in charge of Rev. M. A. Boggs, of Dermott, was largely in the hands of the delegates themselves. Mr. Joel Spragins, of Hope was elected president of the conference and Miss Miriam Anderson, of Pine Bluff, was elected secretary.

Vesper services were held on the steps of the Inn at sunset by Rev. James V. Johnson, of El Paso, Texas, formerly the conference chairman in Arkansas.

Evening lectures during the conference and sermons were delivered by leaders named above, and by Mr. James H. Wray, from the Mexican mission. At the close of Mr. Wray's address on Mexico, Dr. Buford, the owner of the conference grounds offered to donate a thousand dollars worth of hospital equipment to a hospital in Mexico, provided means were provided for making the equipment usable down there. On the following day the conference itself raised in cash and pledges $100 for this purpose, which amount has been forwarded to the Foreign Mission Committee.

Music was in charge of Mrs. G. B. Voate, of Little Rock, pianist, and Rev. C. A. Harper, of Clarendon, song leader.

The social life of the conference was in charge of Mrs. Sheffer, and the athletics under the direction of Prof. M. S. Smith, Jr, of Forest City. The swimming in beautiful Spring River below the conference grounds was increasingly popular.

On Sunday evening the consecration service was conducted by Rev. J. V. Johnson. Four of the young people made profession of faith in Christ, and there were 15 new full-time life service volunteers.

Visitors and leaders at Hardy who have attended many conferences at other places declare that they never saw a finer body of young people anywhere, and never saw a more splendid spirit of co-operation and consecration. Already the churches throughout the state are feeling the uplift of the conference work.

Chas. Hadden Nabers.

FLORIDA

Datona Beach—There is perhaps nothing to be more deplored than a community without adequate church privileges. Dr. T. Peyton Walton found at Datona Beach only one church, in the entire city. Immediately he began the organization of a Presbyterian church, which was accomplished on the fifth of June. First a desirable lot in a good neighborhood was purchased. The earnestness and enthusiasm of this small group of people proclaim a fine outlook for further advancement.

Miami—Among the cities of phenomenal growth and prosperity is Miami. Next in line must be the Church to keep abreast of the times. It is its privilege and duty to grasp these opportunities. In this instance they have not been sufficiently pushed. Whole districts are built and settled without a church of any denomination. There is abundant material with which to work. The Westminster Church though organized but two years, has doubled its membership. Dr. John Harris is the pastor.

L. L.

Key West—Dr. T. Peyton Walton found the general situation at Key West most discouraging. The church had almost dissolved. Only eight members remained. He preached a most inspiring sermon to a fine congregation on June 17th. He sought at once to revive the interest and re-establish the church on a firm basis. He asked those who desired definite results to remain. Twenty-three stood and pledged themselves to support a church, and to unite as soon as a minister could be secured. The encouraging response he followed up with personally seeing every one that could be relied upon to enroll as members. In all, 38 signified their willingness whenever a minister was secured. It is merely a matter of sufficient time until the church activities are again in good working order. This is but one of the many communities visited by Dr. Walton. The territory of St. Johns Presbytery is developing so rapidly, it is difficult for him to accept the calls from churches to visit them, and to keep even with the work which is so replete with satisfactory results.

GEORGIA

Independent Presbyterian Church, Savannah, Ga.—At an adjourned meeting of the Presbytery of Savannah, held in Independent Presbyterian Church on June 8th, licentiate Malcolm R. Williamson was received from Bethel Presbytery of South Carolina.

Mr. Williamson has accepted the position of assistant pastor and executive secretary of young people's work of the Independent Presbyterian Church, and the session of this church formally tendered to the Presbytery his services for a portion of his time as evangelist under the direction of the Presbyterial Committee of Home Missions. This offer was accepted by the Presbytery, and after examination and the preaching of the sermon, he was ordained to the full work of the Gospel ministry as an evangelist at the evening session of Presbytery, held in the auditorium of the Independent Presbyterian Church. The ordination sermon was preached by Rev. Leigh R. Scott, of Valdosta, and the charge to Mr. Williamson was delivered by Rev. A. L. Patterson, D.D.

Mr. Williamson has made a splendid impression upon the church he is serving, and the brethren of

MISSISSIPPI

Holly Springs—The most successful Young People's Conference in the history of the Synod of Mississippi was conducted at Mississippi Synodical College, June 5th to 12th.

The opening address was delivered by Hon. Fredrick Sullens, editor of the Daily News, Jackson, Miss. Mr. Sullens is a layman devoting much time to religious inspiration to the young people assembled. The Bible period was conducted by Dr. Melton Clark, Bible teacher in Columbia Theological Seminary delivering a series of addresses on principles of Presbyterianism and Life Enlistment. Dr. Henry Sweets, Executive Secretary of Christian Education and Ministerial Relief presented the cause of Christian Education and Life Service. The conference period was directed by Miss Anna Branch Binford, superintendent of the Secondary Division with Committee of Publication, Richmond, Va. Miss Nancy F. White, of Atlanta, Ga., taught Home Missions. Rev. John Wood, of Canton, Miss., taught church organization and causes. Rev. J. Walter Cobb, of Blytheville, Ark., conducted the vesper services. Miss Maud Mabry, of Kosciusko, Miss., directed the music.

A part of the program that added to the general enjoyment of the whole program was the recreational feature directed by Mrs. S. H. McBride, of French Camp, Mississippi. Dr. R. F. Cooper, president of the college assisted by Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Settle and Mrs. Wellon, of Holly Springs managed the boarding department. Rev. J. E. McJunkin, pastor of Presbyterian Church served as host of the conference. Those attending the conference were entertained by the church with an automobile tour of the historic hills that surround Holly Springs.

Several of the young people in attendance pledged to follow God's plan for life, under the leadership of Christ, wherever it takes, cost what it may." One young man became a volunteer for the ministry.

The young people present from North Mississippi Presbytery organized a Presbyterian League a federation of all young people of the various organizations in Presbyterian Churches. A similar federation had existed in East Mississippi Presbytery during the past year. These leagues are placed under the direction of the courts of the Presbyterian Church and are to afford the Church the means of supporting a definite church program.

The young people went away from the conference after a week of helpful study, association and general enjoyment asking that another conference be conducted next year at the same place.

WEST VIRGINIA

Caldwell—This is one of the outposts of the Old Stone Church, of Lewisburg, W. Va. Early in June, Rev. J. E. Flow, D.D., Presbyterian evangelist for Greenbrier Presbytery, came to us for an evangelistic meeting. He preached the Gospel with increasing effect for ten days. As a result of this meeting there were 26 professions of faith and five reconsecrations. Fourteen of these united with the Presbyterian Church. Steps are now being taken to erect a church building, as heretofore we have been compelled to use a school house.

PERSONAL

The address of Dr. R. M. Wilson will be Montreat, N. C., until August 12th, after which date it will be Kwangju, Korea.

Until October 1st Rev. Thornton Whaling's address will be 1221 Ocean Ave., Ocean City, N. J., where he and Mrs. Whaling are spending the summer. On July 15th Dr. Whaling will occupy the pulpit of the Olivet Presbyterian Church, Atlantic City.

Possibly the newest organ of any Presbyterian Church in the Assembly is the "Ashe Presbyterian," which made its initial appearance with the June number. This neat and attractive sheet is serving in an official way the "Association of Elders and Deacons of the Presbyterian Churches of Ashe County." It carries stories of pioneer Presbyterian work in this county and news items that show how this work has grown. Ashe County now has four Presbyterian Churches which are served by one pastor, Rev. R. H. Stone, and during the summer by an assistant, Mr. D. R. Freeman, a student at Union Seminary. These young ministers, the elders and deacons of the four churches as well as the individual members are doing a fine work and "The Ashe Presbyterian" tells about the work and the needs in interesting style.

WANTED—Teachers—English Department High School, also grades. Leading Mountain Mission School.

E. V. TADLOCK
Blackey, Ky.

ART GLASS
for Churches and Residences
Memorial Windows
Catalog and Special Designs
free on request
F. J. COOLEDGE & SONS
ATLANTA, Ga.

THE NORTH CAROLINA COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

An A-1 grade college maintained by the State of North Carolina for the education of its young women.

Liberal courses leading to the usual degrees in Arts, Science and Music. Equipment modern, including furnished dormitories, library, laboratories, literary society halls, athletic grounds, etc.

Fall term begins in September, Spring term in February, Summer term in June.

For catalog and other information, address.

JULIUS I. FOUST, President
Greensboro, N. C.

GOOD POSITIONS

Paying fine salaries can be had for ambitious young men and women who complete our commercial and stenographic courses.

Our aim this season is to enroll a very large number of such students who can be trained for high and responsible positions.

Won't you be one to enroll? A postal address to us will bring you our catalog. Write for it.

DRAUGHONS BUSINESS COLLEGE
Knoxville, Tenn.

Story and Incident

KEEPING HOUSE IN COLONIAL DAYS

The charming tales of the past which have given most of us our ideas of the life of our great-great-grandmothers often make us feel rather envious of their happy homes and hearty friendships and freedom for social visiting and entertaining. As a matter of fact, the drudgery and strain of a colonial woman's life can scarcely be realized today. In homes where everything was hand-made and hand-done, where there were many children, and where the dangers and illnesses of a new country were constantly to be met, domestic life was indeed a business in itself. Even in the South, where there were plenty of slaves, the colonial women had to superintend the feeding, clothing, health, and discipline of numerous Negro children in addition to caring for their own families.

There are women in these days who have been known to complain about running a vacuum cleaner over their rug-covered hardwood floors. In those days floors were polished and sanded and the colonial housewife had to "do" them on her knees. It may seem like hard work to do a washing today with the help of a washing machine and an electric iron, but what about doing sheets, tablecloths, and other linen for a large household all by hand?

To add to the joys of wash day or cleaning day came the inevitable cooking of meals, and, according to all accounts, our forefathers did not suffer from poor appetites. Of course, some supplies were apt to be at hand—if on previous days the family had raised, slaughtered, and cured plenty of meat, ground plenty of home-grown grain into flour, and dried and preserved plenty of fruit—but there was still the cooking.

First, the fire must be kindled by flint and steel or by borrowing a few coals from a neighbor. No housewife let her fire go out if she could help it—building a fire was too laborious. Then over the great open fireplace a menu such as this might be prepared—though perhaps not on wash day: "Ducks, hams, chickens, beef, pig, tarts, creams, custards, jellies, fowls, trifles, floating islands," et cetera.

"To be a housewife in colonial days," continues Carl Holliday, in his book called "Woman's Life in Colonial Days," "evidently required the strength of Hercules, the skill of Tubal Cain, and the patience of Job. . . . Over those great fireplaces of colonial times many a wife presented herself as a burnt offering to her lord and master, the goodman of the house. The pots and kettles that ornamented the kitchen walls were implements for prehistoric giants rather than for frail women. . . . The colonists boasted of the number of generations a kettle would outlast; but perhaps the generations were too short—thanks to the size of the kettle."

Then of course the family must be clothed. "For nearly two centuries the greater part of the preparation of material for clothing was done by the family; the spinning, the weaving, the dyeing, the making of thread, these and many similar domestic activities preceded the fashioning of a garment. When we remember that the sewing machine was unknown we may comprehend to some extent the immense amount of labor performed by women and girls of those early days."

It is so easy to visit the grocer or the druggist nowadays that the modern woman can scarcely imagine making her own candles and soap and ointments and sirups and medicines. Yet in her spare moments the colonial woman could hold a knitting or a paring bee and give her numerous children religious as well as domestic instruction. Also, we are told, "companies great enough to give the modern housewife nervous prostration were often entertained at dinners."

No wonder that so many of those efficient colonial housewives died when they were in their twenties or thirties, leaving their husbands to outlive one or two or even three succeeding wives. The marvel is that so many faced their tremendous

CENTRAL BUREAU of PUBLICITY

FOR

Presbyterian Schools and Colleges

Departments of

Newspaper-Church Paper Publicity

Alumnae Organization

General Publicity

For particulars address R. H. RICE, Director

Box 869, Charlotte, N. C.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION Emphasized Through PUBLICITY

Montreat Normal School

Accredited High School and Normal Courses. Household Economics and two years of college work in addition. Best advantages at least cost. Ideal location and surroundings. A limited number of rooms yet available. Apply promptly if you wish to enter.

Montreat Normal School

Montreat : : North Carolina

1839

ERSKINE COLLEGE

1923

A College With a History

A College With a Future

This institution, under control of the Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church, has always stood for Scholarship, Culture and Character. It is situated in the healthy Piedmont section of South Carolina, in a quiet village of 800 people. Able Faculty, Standard Courses, Religious, Literary and Athletic Activities, combine to develop the highest type of well-rounded manhood.

Costs moderate as is consistent with first-class service and high-grade instruction. Next session opens September 19th, 1923. For catalog and information, write to

R. C. GRIER, President

DUE WEST, S. C.

Largest and Most Modern Plant in the Carolinas

Charlotte Marble & Granite Works

R. E. SCOGGINS, Proprietor CHARLOTTE, N. C. W. 7th St. and Southern Railway

Oldest Largest Best

Phone 281

WESTERN NORTH CAROLINA

"The Land of the Sky"

MICHIGAN

WISCONSIN

MINNESOTA

COLORADO

UTAH

CALIFORNIA

CANADA

NEW ENGLAND

and

SEASHORE RESORTS

Greatly Reduced

SUMMER FARES

Now in Effect

via

Southern Railway

System

From CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Send for Free Booklet

Convenient Schedules

Attractive Service

Inquire

R. H. GRABAM, D. P. A.,

Charlotte, N. C.

A CAPITAL IDEA

Speaking of the Standard Piano Club, here is a letter from one of our Club members, which is a fair sample of the letters we are receiving every day. She writes:

"I think it a capital idea. I know we would not have had our piano if we had waited to have gotten the whole amount. I find no fault with the Club plan and as for the Club piano we are just delighted with it. All our friends say they would like to have one just like it. It is just a beauty, and we value it more than anything else in the house."

Let us send you your copy of the beautiful Club catalog today. Address Ludden & Bates, Standard Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. (adv)

FOR GIFTS OF Watches, Jewelry or Silverware
Write
JAMES ALLAN & CO.
THE JEWELERS
185 King St. Charleston, S. C.
67 years in business selling the best goods at the most reasonable prices
Memorandum packages sent upon receipt of satisfactory references
We prepay charges on all purchases

FISHBURNE MILITARY SCHOOL Waynesboro Virginia
44th year. In Blue Ridge Mountains. 1300 ft. altitude. Four hours from Washington. Prepares for universities and business life. Small classes and individual attention secured through faculty of one teacher for every ten cadets. New $250,000 fire-proof buildings. Swimming pool and all athletics. Rate $600. Annual Spring Encampment. For catalog write

Maj. Morgan H. Hudgins
Principal
R. O. T. C.
under U. S.
War Dept.

The McCallie School
A non-sectarian school founded for Christian education, never more needed than today. Here your boy will have the right sort of associates and will be under the influence of men chosen for their Christian character as well as for their teaching ability. Bible classes most popular in the school. Thorough preparation for college and for United States Military and Naval Academies. Small classes, personal attention for each boy. Military training of the best sort. Daily drill under graduates of Army training camps familiarizes boys with essentials of military discipline. All athletics. One of the best athletic fields in the South. Gymnasium and new concrete swimming pool.
Headmasters:
S. J. McCallie, M.A., and J. P. McCallie, M.A., Ph.D.
For catalogue, address
The McCallie School
Mission Ridge Chattanooga, Tenn.

NORFOLK SOUTHERN RAILROAD COMPANY
Passenger Schedules
Effective January 28, 1923
Charlotte, N. C.
Daily Except Sunday as Shown
Lv. 7:30 A. M.
Raleigh and intermediate points. Connection for Belhaven, Norfolk, and intermediate points.
For tickets, Pullman reservations and information address or apply to
J. K. POWELL, D. T. A.
P. A. JENKINS, C. T. A.

problems with courage, if at times with heartsinkings, and out of privation and hardship and chaos made for their families such homes of comfort and quiet and order and simplicity as, in this hustling, bustling century, seem worthy of envy.—W. D. Stephens, in Forward.

BELIEVE IN YOURSELF

To believe in yourself is a necessary element in attaining success in any undertaking; especially is it so in the matter of employment. To believe in yourself does not mean to unreasonably overrate your capability, but only to know it, and to believe in your own power to apply it to the limit—for there is a limit to capability and the one who through overestimation of his power or qualifications, attempts anything beyond that limit without special preparation, is almost sure to meet with failure.

The one who knows the kind of work he wants to do, and uses his brains in picking out a post which he has reason to believe he can fill and may be the starting point of success for him, has indeed a great advantage over one who is undecided or indifferent, in that he is more apt to go right after that one thing when he sees an opportunity than if his ambitions were divided or indifferent.

A true story is told of how a man successful in New York public life and business won his first standing in the line of success. As a boy, he went to answer the advertisement of a position which was exactly what he wanted and felt himself capable to fill satisfactorily. When he reached the address given, a hundred boys were already in line. He took one look at them; then rushed off to the nearest telegraph office and sent to the head of the concern that had advertised a vacancy, the following telegram:

"The boy you want is at the end of the line."

Signing his name, he rushed back to take his place in the line.

His message reached the office just about the same time he did, and the man who received it was so impressed with

Medical College of Virginia
(State Institution—Established 1838)
Dentistry
Medicine—Pharmacy—Nursing
Well-equipped laboratories under supervision of full-time teachers. Abundance of clinical material in the Memorial, St. Philip and Dooley Hospitals, owned and controlled by the College.
For Catalogue, Address
J. R. McCAULEY, Sec'y-Treas.
1140 E. Clay St. Richmond, Va.

COLUMBIA THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
Columbia, S. C.
The Seminary of the Synods of South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Florida
FACULTY
JOHN MILLER WELLS, A.M., Ph.D., D.D., LL.D.
President of the Seminary
Professor of Practical Theology
WILLIAM M. McPHEETERS, D.D., LL.D.
Professor of Old Testament Literature and Exegesis
HENRY ALEXANDER WHITE, A.M., Ph.D., D.D., LL.D.
Professor of New Testament Literature and Exegesis
RICHARD C. REED, D.D., LL.D.
Professor of Ecclesiastical History and Church Polity
MELTON CLARK, A.B., D.D.
Professor of the English Bible and Religious Education
EDGAR D. KERR, A.B., B.D., D.D.
Professor of Hebrew and Cognate Languages
JAMES BENJAMIN GREEN, A.B., D.D.
Professor of Didactic and Polemic Theology
HUGH R. MURCHISON, A.B., B.D.
Instructor in Missions
The next session will begin Wednesday, September 19, 1923. For information write to Rev. Hugh R. Murchinson, Executive Secretary, Columbia, S. C.

BINGHAM MILITARY SCHOOL
ASHEVILLE, N. C.—"The Land of the Sky"
Has stood the tests of 130 years. Buildings one-story brick—for safety, sanitation and service. Each pupil carefully studied. Small classes allow individual attention. Ideal school life, of the simpler type, directed by men of ability and experience. R. O. T. C. Unit under U. S. Army officer. All forms of athletics.
COL. R. BINGHAM, Supt. Emeritus. :: COL. S. R. McKEE, Supt.

THE LOUISVILLE PRESBYTERIAN THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
BRILLIANT FACULTY MODERN CURRICULUM
Sited in the heart of the institutional section of a great metropolis, with all the added advantages of these associated institutions
Write for particulars to JOHN M. VANDER MEULEN, President
109 East Broadway, Louisville, Ky.

STOP! LOOK! LISTEN!
There is danger ahead if you are not saving part of what you earn. The world is a hard place for those without money. There is no friend like "ready money" when sickness, or old age comes.
Be fair to yourself and family by taking Building and Loan shares. Shares cost twenty-five cents per week and usually mature in 333 weeks. Net you 6 1/4 per cent at maturity.
NEW SERIES OPENS MARCH FIRST
MECHANICS PERPETUAL BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION
J. H. Wearn, President. 207 N. Tryon St. CHARLOTTE, N. C. E. J. CAFFREY, Sec'y & Treas.

Flora Macdonald College
Red Springs, North Carolina
Where the Spirit of SERVICE and LOYALTY Abounds
3,000 Alumnae engaged in 60 Occupations
10 Graduates "On the Firing Line"
Courses leading to A.B., B.S., B.M. Degrees
Catalog on Request Address the Registrar

SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY
Announces
REDUCED ROUND-TRIP RATES
to
Wrightsville Beach, N. C.,
and Other Resorts
From to Week-end
Charlotte, N. C. -----Wrightsville Beach, N. C. $ 8.60
Lincolnton, N. C. -----Wrightsville Beach, N. C. 9.95
Shelby, N. C. -----Wrightsville Beach, N. C. 10.90
Rutherfordton, N. C. -----Wrightsville Beach, N. C. 12.05
Tickets on sale Fridays and Saturdays of each week, May 18th to September 2, 1923. Limited to reach original starting point Tuesday following date of sale.
Season tickets Charlotte, N. C., to Wrightsville Beach, N. C. and return $11.30, sold any day May 15th to September 30th, with final limit to October 31, 1923.
For sleeping car reservation or other information apply to ticket agent or address,
E. W. LONG
Division Passenger Agent
Charlotte, N. C.

WANTED—Christian Cook for leading Mountain Mission School. Attractive proposition for widow with children.

E. V. TADLOCK
Blackey, Ky.

the boy's evident ambition, his initiative and ingenuity and belief in himself that he sent for him at once and gave him the place.

We are frequently told that the field of certain workers—whatever they may be seeking—is overcrowded. This may be true; but there is always room somewhere for the one who knows and does his work well, and is not afraid of doing a little more than he is paid for. The one who works with this spirit, and believes in himself, will win out in spite of heavy odds.—J. P. H., in Boy Life.

BEAUTY DOCTORS

It is a laudable ambition to seek to be beautiful, but it can never be achieved by the beauty doctors usually summoned to the task. There are however few beauty doctors worth mentioning. One is health. This beauty doctor puts roses in the cheeks, stars in the eyes, and vivacity in every movement and expression. Another is a mind in which shines a heaven-imparted joy. Into the face comes a light from the soul. A third beauty doctor is unselfish service. Here the soul acquires knowledge, breadth, compassion and nobility. This loving contact with life gives the face the needed seriousness, dignity and gentleness of expression. And then there is the spirit of contentment. When one is walking with the perfect Master in the perfect road into the eyes comes the glory of the peace that passeth knowledge. Then all of us seeing such an one, and blessed even in seeing her pass by, shall whisper to ourselves or to one another, "How wondrously beautiful she is!" Jesus Christ is the great beautifier. And the beauty He gives will never fade.—Ex.

If a wren can cling
To a spray a-swing
In the mad May wind,
And sing, and sing,
As if he'd burst for joy,
Why can not I contented lie,
In His quiet arms,
Unmoved by life's annoy?

College of
WILLIAM AND MARY

For Men and Women

Supported by the State of Virginia for the benefit of all the people.

Regular DEGREE COURSE and SPECIAL COURSES in Teacher Training, Pre-Medicine, Pre-Engineering, Home Economics, Law, Business Administration, etc.

Healthful location; students under splendid moral influence; four churches, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A. Sunday Schools, etc.

For particulars address:

COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY

Williamsburg, Virginia

H. L. Bridges J. A. C. Chandler
Registrar President

EXPERT KODAK FINISHING

Developing and printing by experts. Most beautiful work guaranteed at all times. Satisfaction or no charge. Developing 6 exposure rolls 10 cents, 10 and 12 exposure rolls 15 cents, film packs 20 cents per pack. Printing 1 1/2 by 2 1/2, 3 cents; 2 1/4 by 3 1/4, 4 cents; 2 1/2 by 4 1/2, 5 cents; 3 1/4 by 5 1/2, 6 cents. Quick delivery. Send one film to test our service.

LIGONS DRUG STORE
Spartanburg, S. C.

MARY BALDWIN COLLEGE AND MARY BALDWIN SEMINARY

Established in 1842

For Young Ladies Staunton, Va. Term begins Septembr 6th. In Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. Unsurpassed climate, modern equipment. Students from 33 States. Courses: Collegiate, 4 years, A.B. Degree; Preparatory, 4 years. Music, Art, Expression, Domestic Science. Athletics—Gymnasium and Field. Catalogue.

School Desks,
Opera Chairs,
Folding Chairs
Kindergarten Chairs,
Church Pews,
School Supplies,
Blackboards
Southern Desk Co., Hickory, N. C.

NORTH CAROLINA STATE COLLEGE
OF
AGRICULTURE AND ENGINEERING
STATE COLLEGE STATION RALEIGH, N. C.

Technical Education at State College prepares its graduates for personal success and for leadership in industrial progress. The college offers

FOUR YEAR COURSES IN:

Agriculture—including General Agriculture and Specialized Courses in Farm Crops, Agricultural Engineering, Animal Husbandry and Dairying, Biology, Horticulture, Poultry Science, Soils, Veterinary Medicine, Vocational Education.
Chemistry, Agricultural Chemistry, Textile Chemistry and Dyeing.
Civil Engineering, Architecture and Highway Engineering.
Electrical Engineering.
Mechanical Engineering.
Textile—Textile Engineering, Textile Manufacturing, Textile Chemistry and Dyeing.
Agricultural Economics, Business Administration, Rural Life.
General Science, Physics, Biology.

TWO YEAR COURSES IN:

Agriculture, Mechanic Arts, Textile Manufacturing.
One Year Course in Auto Mechanics.
Winter Course in Agriculture for Farmers.

Summer Session for Teachers, for College Entrance and for College Credit.

Excellent equipment in all departments.

Session 1923-1924 begins September 4.

Entrance requirements for Freshman Class, 15 units—English, 3; History, 2; Mathematics, 2½; Science, 1; Elective, 6½.

For catalog, illustrated circulars, and entrance blanks, write E. B. OWEN, Registrar.

PEACE INSTITUTE

RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

For Young Women

Established 1857

College Courses. Preparatory Courses for Standard College Requirements. Diplomas in Piano, Voice, Art, Expression and Home Economics. Commercial-Secretarial Course. Teacher Training Course. Specialists in all departments.

LULA B. WYNNE HALL, HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

MARY OWEN GRAHAM, President

Queens College, Charlotte, N. C.

A High Grade Institution for the Education of Young Women

Christian Ideals constantly held before the Students; Christian Characters in the chair of each Department; Five Teachers with M. A. Degree; Two Teachers with Ph.D. Degree; Christian Atmosphere permeating the Student Body.

Location, the very best: Myers Park, Charlotte. Equipment rapidly reaching standard requirements. Curriculum equal to that of any institution in the State. Expenses very moderate indeed, considering advantages offered and work done.

Our Motto: "Christian Women for Christian Homes." Send us your daughter, support us in our administration and instruction, and we will return a thoroughly developed and fully refined Christian woman.

For catalogue and other information, write

WILLIAM H. FRAZER, President

Box 300

Charlotte, N. C.

ELISE HIGH SCHOOL

PURPOSE: To prepare boys and girls for standard colleges under Christian influences, and to supply trained Christian leaders.

A Presbyterian High School

With a reputation for thorough work; healthy location; comfortable quarters; strong faculty—all college graduates and experienced teachers; individual attention to students; four year course in Bible. Rates $156.50 the year. For catalogue and information, address

JOHN D. McLEOD :: HEMP, N. C.

—A GOOD PLACE FOR YOUR BOY—
An efficient, strict, military school of high standards and excellent reputation, operated under wholesome Christian influences.
CARLISLE SCHOOL
A well equipped school. Large, efficient faculty; excellent, modern buildings; ample dormitories, infirmary, gymnasium, library. Two excellent preparatory courses. Total expenses for year including tuition and board, $362.50. For literature and application blank, address
W. C. DUNCAN, Headmaster, Bamberg, S. C.

Aberdeen & Rockfish Railroad
BETWEEN ABERDEEN AND FAYETTEVILLE

EAST BOUND			DISTANCE FROM ABERDEEN	STATIONS	DISTANCE FROM FAYETTEVILLE	WEST BOUND
Pass.	Local Freight	Pass.				Pass.	Local Freight	Pass.
DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY				DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY
NO. 14	NO. 22	NO. 38				NO. 41	NO. 21	NO. 15
f 7:00 pm	f 7:30 am	f 9:00 am	0	l.v. Aberdeen Ar.	45	s 6:50 pm	f 3:50 pm	f 8:30 am
f 7:19 pm	s 8:15 am	f 9:16 am	5	l. Ashley Heights	40	f 6:35 pm	f 3:20 pm	f 8:12 am
s 7:28 pm	s 8:36 am	s 9:26 am	9	Sanitorium	36	f 6:26 pm	f 3:05 pm	s 8:02 am
f 7:34 pm	f 8:39 am	f 9:30 am	10	Montrose	35	f 6:22 pm	f 3:00 pm	f 7:58 am
f 7:46 pm	f 8:51 am	f 9:38 am	13	Timberland	32	f 6:13 pm	f 2:45 pm	f 7:48 am
s 8:00 pm	f 9:55 am	f 9:53 am	19	Raeford	26	s 6:00 pm	s 2:25 pm
	s 10:13 am	f 10:08 am	24	Dundarrach	21	f 5:45 pm	f 1:25 pm
	f 10:21 am	f 10:15 am	26	Arabia	19	f 5:39 pm	f 1:15 pm
	s 10:40 am	s 10:29 am	30	Rockfish	15	s 5:25 pm	s 12:55 pm
	f 10:43 am	f 10:31 am	31	Hope Hills Jct.	14	f 5:22 pm	f 12:50 pm
	f 10:53 am	f 10:40 am	34	Fenix	11	f 5:13 pm	f 12:38 pm
	s 11:00 am	s 10:46 am	36	Clifton	9	s 5:08 pm	f 12:33 pm
	f 11:12 am	f 10:56 am	40	Skibo	5	f 5:00 pm	f 12:18 pm
	f 11:19 am	f 11:02 am	42	Owens	3	f 4:55 pm	f 12:11 pm
	11:30 am	11:15 am	45	Ar. Fayetteville Lv.	0	s 4:45 pm	f 12 noon

East and North bound trains have right of track over West and South bound trains of the same class.
All trains stop on flag at Lake field.

Stonewall Jackson College
ABINGDON VIRGINIA

A JUNIOR COLLEGE FOR YOUNG WOMEN

LOCATION: In the fine old town of Abingdon, on a beautiful fifty-acre campus, commanding a magnificent view of the mountains.

BUILDINGS: Modern new dormitories, accommodating 175 students, every room with bath and plenty of sunshine. New $90,000 Dormitory just completed. Administration Building costing $150,000, in course of construction.

COURSES: Standard Literary, leading to A. B. diploma; preparatory for College entrance. Special courses in Music, Art, Expression, Home Economics and Business.

STANDARDS: A school emphasizing Christian Culture and Character. A home life amid beautiful surroundings is the ideal of Stonewall Jackson. Under control of the Presbyterian Church.

For Literature, address FRED W. ALEXANDER, President

Mitchell College

(JUNIOR)

(Founded 1856 by Concord Presbytery)

Two years of standard, accredited college work—courses leading to Baccalaureate degrees—Excellent department of Music—Certificate courses in Home Economics and Secretarial.

MITCHELL ACADEMY

An accredited High School, with standard and flexible courses

Bible teaching emphasized throughout.

Teacher Training courses for secular and Sunday Schools.

Catalog on application.

W. F. Hollingsworth, Pres.
Statesville, N. C.

BOILS

Old Sores, Cuts and Burns have been healed since 1820 with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 724 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Why Take Laxatives?

Discovery by Science Has Replaced Them.

Pills and salts give temporary relief from constipation only at the expense of permanent injury, says an eminent authority.

Science has found a newer, better way—a means as simple as Nature itself.

In perfect health a natural lubricant keeps the food waste soft and moving. But when constipation exists this natural lubricant is not sufficient. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

As Nujol is not a medicine or laxative, it cannot gripe and, like pure water, it is harmless and pleasant.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals. Get a bottle from your druggist today. (adv.)

BELK BROS. CO.

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

We call your attention to our HOME FURNISHING DEPARTMENT

Just Received One Car Load of

Genuine Japanese Grass Rugs

All colors---browns, blues, greens. Borders to match colorings

18 x 36 Inches	$.29
27 x 54 Inches	.69
36 x 72 Inches	.98
4 1/2 x 7 Feet	1.69
6 x 9 Feet	2.95
8 x 10 Feet	3.98
9 x 12 Feet	4.75

Let us estimate on your Shades, Floor Coverings, and Draperies.

Will send a man to see you.

Gold Seal Congoleum by the yard or the Rug

We appreciate your patronage and guarantee every article we sell. Any business entrusted to us will have our prompt attention.

WE SOLICIT MAIL ORDERS

Belk Bros. Co., Charlotte, N. C.

Sparkles

Thoughtful

"I came in to borrow yer new hat, Mrs. Mulligan."

"I was goin' to wear it meself, Mrs. O'Brien."

"Shure, ye wouldn't be wearin' it out when it looks to much loike rain, would ye?"—Boston Transcript.

His P. A. Supports Him

"I understand that your son got his B.A. and his M.A."

"Yes, but it is still his P.A. that supports him."—Judge.

"And has he learned to talk yet?"

"My, yes! We're teaching him to keep quiet now."—Life.

King Tutankhamen at least cannot complain that his coming-out party was neglected by the papers.—New York Tribune.

Random Shots

I shot an arrow into the air, it fell in the distance, I knew not where, till a neighbor said that it killed his calf, and I had to pay him six and a half ($6.50). I bought some poison to slay some rats, and a neighbor swore that it killed his cats; and, rather than argue across the fence, I paid him four dollars and fifty cents ($4.50). One night I set sailing a toy balloon, and hoped it would soar till it reached the moon; but the candle fell out on a farmer's straw, and he said I must settle or go to law. And that is the way with the random shot; it never hits in the proper spot; and the joke you spring, that you think so smart, may leave a wound in some fellow's heart.—Emporia Gazette.

In Springtime

I sometimes dry the fish a line,
But can't deny
These little overtures of mine
Get no reply. —Selected.

TYPEWRITERS

New and Rebuilt
For Sale, Rent or Exchange

S. H. WILEY

Salisbury, N. C.

No matter where you live you can get six per cent on your money. Free from taxes, risk and worry. Amounts received from $50 to $5,000. Write for free literature.

SECURITY SAVINGS AND LOAN CO.
Assets $1,011,288.30
F. W. DIXON, President - Birmingham, Ala.

The STIEFF TONE

Is famous with three generations of music lovers. It has never been duplicated. It is the expression of a passion for perfection that has actuated three generations of piano makers.

Chas. M. Stieff, Inc.,
Charlotte, N. C.
Please send catalogue and prices of Pianos.
Name _____
Address _____

CHAS. M. STIEFF, Inc.
Charlotte, N. C.

STIEFF PETIT GRAND
The smallest Grand Piano made that embodies all the essential qualities of the Concert Grand.

THE PREACHER

teacher, elder or deacon who spends all or gives it away is a dangerous leader in any community. Get rid of him and employ a practical man, righteous, but without, honest to his wife and children.

THE MUTUAL BUILDING AND LOAN

is the best savings institution in this country. You can carry shares no matter where you live, but you're not doing it, yet you've got to die just as the day laborer. Who's to take care of your wife and little ones for whom you and you alone are responsible?

THINK IT OVER, BROTHER

The July series is just starting. Get in today.

JNO. R. PHARR,
President

E. L. KEESLER,
Secretary-Treasurer
Charlotte, N. C.

Opportunity Never Seeks

The man or woman without money. That is why you should save and steadily build up an account in a strong bank where the money will be ready for you when the right opportunity comes along. Your account will be welcome here.

"National Bank Safety for Savings"

Charlotte National Bank
Resources Over $5,000,000.00

This Attractive 5-Piece Mahogany Windsor Breakfast Room Suit

$78.00

Suit consists of gate-leg table 38x56 inches at $40.00 and four Windsor chairs at $9.50 each. Can be had separately or in suits. Ivory suits from $32.50 up.

Think of McCoys when you want good furniture at a moderate price.

W. T. McCOY & CO.

211 South Tryon St.

Charlotte, N. C.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

A Religious Newspaper for the Family  Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U. S.

Rev. J. R. Bridges, D.D., Charlotte, N. C., Editor

Rev. R. C. Reed, D.D., Columbia, S. C., Editor

Vol. LXIV CHARLOTTE, N. C., JULY 25, 1923 No. 30

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $3.00 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE
REV. W. L. BOGGS, Circulation Manager

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
BY PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY,
A. M. GRAY, Treasurer.

ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858.

Entered at the Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as second class matter

A Religious Newspaper for the Family, Devoted to the Interest of Christ's Kingdom as Represented by the Southern Presbyterian Church.

Address all communications, and make all checks payable, to the company, and not to individuals.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The label on the paper gives the date to which subscription is paid.

When change of address is desired, give the old and new address. When the date of the label is behind the date of this issue of the paper the label is a reminder that the subscription price is past due. When the date of the label is in advance of the date of this issue it is a receipt for the last subscription paid.

In accordance with the wishes of our patrons, the paper is discontinued only upon the written request of the subscriber. Arrearages must be settled in full at the same time, at the rate of three dollars a year.

No charge is made for the insertion of marriage and obituary notices of fifty words or less. For all over fifty words remit at the rate of one cent a word. Correspondents are requested to give the post office address of married couples when marriage notices are sent.

News items should be in our hands by Monday morning in order to insure their publication in the current issue.

CHANGE OF ADVERTISEMENTS

Advertisers who want their advertisements changed or want to insert new advertisements will please bring their copy to this office by Saturday. It is impossible for us to insert new advertisements or make changes for the current week at a later date.

Advertising rates furnished on application. The size and character of this paper indicate the size and character of its constituency. For reputable advertising there is no better medium for North and South Carolina and the most prosperous section of the South.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

EDITORIAL—

The Office of Presbyter 1

The Boldness of Liberalism 1

Growing Old 2

CONTRIBUTED—

"The Learned and Fashionable Substitute for the Story of Creation"—By Rev. J. F. Lawrence, D.D. 3, 4

Quiet Talks on the Simple Essentials—By S. D. Gordon 4

The Annual Meeting of the Christian Workers' Association of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. 5

Facts for Earnest Thought—By Rev. W. H. Miley, D.D. 5

The Story of Peace Institute—By James R. Young 5

DEPARTMENTS—

Devotional 2

Woman's Auxiliary 6

Sunday School—By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D. 7

Christian Endeavor—By Rev. J. G. Garth 7

Church News 8, 9, 10

News of the Week 10

Children 11

Marriages and Deaths 12

Advertisements, Etc. 12, 16

TREASURERS OF BENEVOLENT CAUSES

- Foreign Missions—Edwin F. Willis, 154 Fifth Ave., N. Nashville, Tenn.
- Home Missions, General Assembly's—A. N. Sharpe, 1522 Hurt Building, Atlanta, Ga.
- General Assembly's Training School—Geo. W. Call, Richmond, Va., Union Bank.
- Bible Cause—Gilbert Darlington, Bible House, N. Y.
- Christian Education and Ministerial Relief—John Stites, Fifth and Market Sts., Louisville, Ky.
- Publication and Sabbath School Work—R. E. Magill, 618 N. Sixth St., Richmond, Va.
- The General Assembly's Equipment Fund—T. R. Preston, Treasurer, Chattanooga, Tenn.

EDITORIAL

THE OFFICE OF PRESBYTER

We find two, and only two, permanent officers in the Apostolic Church, Presbyter, or Elders, and Deacons. An account of the creation of the office of Deacon is given in the sixth chapter of Acts, and their qualifications are given by Paul in the third chapter of his first epistle to Timothy.

We have no account of the creation of the office of Presbyter. It is a plausible conjecture that it was brought over from the Jewish Synagogue. The first Elders of whom mention is made belonged to the Church in Jerusalem, and are mentioned in Acts 11:30. The Church at Jerusalem was the first Church organized by the Apostles; and it appears that Elders were a part of its original constitution. Paul and Barnabas appointed Elders in all the Churches which they organized on their first missionary campaign. Paul instructs Titus to appoint Elders in all the Churches of Crete. From these and other Scriptures, we gather that the office of Elder was deemed an essential office from the first in the Christian Church.

The chief functions of the office are teaching and ruling, but the office is one.

1. The same titles are applied to all. In the 20th chapter of Acts, those who in verse 17 are called Elders are in verse 28 called Bishops. In the Apostle's instructions to Titus about ordaining elders in the churches of Crete, he uses both titles, Bishop and Elder, as applying to the same persons. One other title, that of Pastor, is common to all. This title is from the Greek word which means shepherd.

2. The same duties are enjoined upon all. In his farewell address to the Ephesian Elders, Acts 20:28, the Apostle bids them "feed the Church of God." The word, poimainein, translated feed, is defined by Wescott and Hart in their edition of the Greek Testament, "to keep sheep, to feed, to rule, to govern." "To feed," says Dr. J. A. Alexander, "is a very inadequate translation of the Greek word, which means to act as a shepherd, and includes not only feeding, but protection, regulation, and the whole care of a shepherd for his flock." The Apostle Peter in his first Epistle, 5:2, uses the same word, exhorting the Elders to act the part of shepherds to the flock. The whole care of the Church, all its spiritual interests, were devolved on the Elders without distinction. The duties were common to them as an official body.

3. The same qualifications were prescribed for all. We have these qualifications set forth by the Apostle Paul in two of his Epistles, I Timothy 3:1-7; Titus 1:5-9. Either the same qualifications are prescribed for all, or no qualifications are prescribed for some. It is unquestionable that the Apostle prescribes the same qualifications for all the Elders whom Titus was to ordain in the Cretan churches.

4. It was permitted the Elders to distribute the work among themselves according to their differing gifts and professions. Hence some devoted themselves chiefly to ruling, to administrative duties, while others labored in word and doctrine. But this division of labor implied no distinction in office. To quote again from Dr. J. A. Alexander: "All the powers of the ministry collectively are comprehended in the metaphor of acting as a shepherd to the flock of Christ." It follows that no one bearing the relation of shepherd to the flock could excuse himself from ministering to all the needs of the flock, for there was no one to share the duties with him.

5. There was no permanent officer in the Apostolic Church higher than the Presbyter. There was no officer between him and the Apostle. This is evident because we have no account of the creation of any such office; no account of the ordination of any one to such an office; no account of the labors of any who occupied such an office. Furthermore, there was no room for such an office. All the needs of the Church are covered by the two—the Deacons to look after the temporalities, and the Elders to look after the spiritualities. The flock needs no one above the shepherd to look after its wants. And, as already noted, both the Apostles, Paul and Peter, charge all Elders to act the part of the shepherd toward the flock. The title Pastor is the Latin for Shepherd. It has ever been the theory of our Church that all Elders are Pastors. Pastor is derived from the verb pasco, to feed. Would we not think it strange if we found one claiming to be the shepherd of a flock of sheep, and who yet refused to feed the sheep on the ground that feeding the sheep was no part of his duty.

6. No higher office than that of Presbyter had permanent place in the Church until sometime after the death of the Apostles. Then when the higher office of Bishop, as distinct from Presbyter, arose, the Bishop did not claim as the differentiating feature of his higher office the exclusive right to preach and administer the sacraments, but the right to govern, and especially the exclusive right to ordain. It was still the functioning of the Presbyter to preach and to administer the sacraments, and this function has never been denied to the office.

7. That to preach and administer the sacraments as well as to rule is the official prerogative of all who hold the office of Presbyter is the view entertained by many, if not all, of our most learned ecclesiasts. For example, Calvin says: "All those to whom the office of teaching was assigned were denominated Presbyters. To guard against dissensions, the general consequences of equality, the Presbyters in each city chose one of their own number, whom they distinguished by the title of Bishop. Every city, therefore, had its college of Presbyters, who were pastors and teachers. For they all executed the duties of teaching, exhorting and correcting among the people, as Paul enjoins Bishops to do. Bishops and Presbyters were equally required to employ themselves in the dispensation of the word and sacraments," Fus, Vol. IV, Book IV. The same views were held by Joseph Adison Alexander, J. B. Lightfoot, Thomas Witherow, Phillips Schaff, and with some modifications by Dr. Thornwell.

The conclusion to which we are driving is, not that all Elders should always preach and administer the sacraments, but that no flock that has a shepherd, whether called a teaching, or a ruling Elder, should be deprived of any of the ordinances which Christ has ordained for the nourishment of his people.

THE BOLDNESS OF LIBERALISM

There are times when a man must cry aloud, even when others urge silence, and when the fear of heresy trial unnerves the strongest.

Some will ridicule our fears, and some will say, "Still harping on my daughter;" but however that may be, this paper will continue to warn the Church that there is abroad an epidemic of heresy, not only in Churches where it has shown itself at intervals in the past, but also it is incipient in our own ranks—and with the least encouragement it will break into open rebellion. For some time it has been reported that Modernism was rife in the Southern Methodist Church, that stronghold of an evangelistic gospel in former years. This charge was brought by its own men and at least one of its church papers.

These reports we were disposed to discount largely, attributing them to some petty quarrels by reason of undesirable appointments. The evidence, however, has been accumulating.

Last week at Lake Junaluska, the place of meeting of their summer conference in the State, Dr. S. G. Bland, of Toronto, Canada, in an address before the Sunday School leadership school of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, made the following statement:

"That the early history of Israel prior to Abraham was not founded on historical fact but upon helpful myths expressive of the effort of an honest people to explain the beginning of things is the opinion of the majority of Biblical scholars in Great Britain and America. He added that it also is believed that the Ten Commandments did not proceed from Moses but came into existence before his time, but stated that all these questions have no bearing on Christ or Christianity but are only "intellectual satisfaction."

It is very gratifying to us who have long depended on this great Church for support in the fight for orthodoxy, to learn that Bishop James Cannon, of the Methodist Church, South, expressed a different opinion from that advanced by Dr. Bland, regarding the authorship of the early books of the Bible.

The mere fact, however, that such a known Liberal, as Dr. Bland, should have been invited to speak to Southern Methodists, engaged in the teaching of the young would seem to indicate that the Famous Camel has succeeded in getting his head into the tent.

We hope that it will not be the same old experience with vice, "first endured, then pitied and then embraced."

The question, however, may be raised, "Are we in any position to be casting stones?" From our knowledge of conditions in at least two different Synods, we emphatically answer, yes.

One man ridicules the idea that the Scriptures are inerrant, while another does not believe in a salvation that depends upon a "bucketful of blood."

We can only mention that increasing class of "theistic evolutionists," whatever that phrase may mean.

The most discouraging feature of the case is the fact that if one raises the alarm, as was done in our last Assembly, the would-be leaders hush up the cry, and for the sake of peace, let the dangerous disease spread.

One longs for the men of iron who led the Church in the past, the Dabneys, Pecks, Palmers and McPheeters, who conferred not with flesh and blood, but drove straight ahead, hewing to the lines, letting the chips fall as they would.

What giants they seem when compared with these jelly fish leaders who fear strife above their God.

Let us listen to stern old Jeremiah: "They have healed also the hurt of the daughters of my people slightly, saying, Peace, peace; where there is no peace."

GROWING OLD

Let it be plainly understood that the above title has no personal application, either to the editor or to any of his readers. It is suggested by a recent article sent in by a valuable contributor who attempts to define the feelings of one who finds himself caught in the rush of time and is carried down the stream, volens, nolens.

The Scriptures dwell much upon old age, sometimes with respect for what comes with it, and sometimes, using it as a warning.

The limit set by Scripture is three score and ten, and then it truthfully states that if you get beyond the limit, you will not be in a condition to boast of it, because you will find that these extra years' strength is nothing else than labor and sorrow, and that they will soon pass away. Notwithstanding this warning those of us who are fortunate enough to pass over the line take special pride in our longevity.

There are three periods in our lives in respect to age. We want to be thought older than we are. Then we wish to be thought younger than we are, especially if we belong to the gentle sex, and then comes a time when we seek to impress length of days upon the attention of all we meet.

In connection with growing old, there are three facts:

First, it is certain. Just as by thinking you cannot add one cubit to your stature, so by thinking you cannot hold back old time when he advances with the seasons.

Men can do much in holding in check some of the laws of nature, but no one can hold back the years as they creep upon him.

Then, in the second place, with advancing age also comes decay, both in body and mind.

Aches and pains creep over the body, and weakness takes the place of strength. We also find that in many there is a disintegration of the mind. The faculties cease to function accurately, and some of them cease altogether.

Of course there are many notable exceptions. Among these exceptions we find ex-President Eliot, Clemenceau, and Depew. In these men age seems to quicken the faculties.

Dr. Osler is charged with the theory that we should chloroform all men after a certain age, on the ground that their usefulness is ended.

Thus far this theory, we are glad to say, has not been generally accepted.

The third and comfortig fact is that our race is living longer.

Either we are living more sensibly than our fathers did, or else science is adding its help in showing men how to live. Whatever be the cause, statistics show that the age limit has been extended. More live to an advanced age now than ever before in man's history.

Octogenarians are no longer objects of curiosity. It has become quite common to read of the death of men and women at the age of 90 years, and some pass even the century mark.

To show the advance in man's life on earth, let us consider these figures:

In the 16th century the average age of man was 21.1. In the 17th century it had advanced to 25.7. In the next century, it was 33.6, while in the 19th century it reached 40.

There are certain sections of our land where man reaches an average age of 44 years. One of the sad features of old age is the tendency of certain dispositions to fall into a condition of spiritual despondency.

Some of the saintliest men have yielded to this proneness, and though they had behind them a life of devotion to Christ and His Church, they imagined that they were lost.

One of the loveliest Christian characters we have ever known became possessed, in his old age with the idea that he was lost. It was pathetic to witness his grief and consequent depression.

In vain his friends tried to convince him that he was mistaken. Nothing could shake off the depression.

Finally his son-in-law said, "Well, Dr. if you go to hell, as you say, what do you propose to do when you get there?"

The old man thought awhile, and then replied, "I shall organize a prayer meeting at once." "But," said the son-in-law, "do you think that a man who is anxious to organize a prayer meeting in hell, is apt to get there?" Instantly the face of the old saint lighted up, and he said, "That is true. I ought to have seen that before."

Instead then of bewailing increasing years and growing infirmities, let us look to the promises of God, and heed the injunction of the Psalmist, "Number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom."

"NO PEACE"

I have traveled a good deal, but I never found a happy backslider in my life. I never knew a man who was really born of God that ever could find the world satisfy him afterward. Do you think the prodigal son was satisfied in that foreign country? Ask the prodigals today if they are truly happy. You know they are not. "There is no peace, saith my God, to the wicked."—Moody.

Devotional

SHUT THE GATE

By Stuart Nye Hutchinson, D.D.

F. W. Boreham has an essay in one of his books entitled "Please Shut this Gate." In it he tells of Mr. Lloyd George and a friend going out to play golf together. As they were walking in the country, they passed through a gate, beyond which some cattle were grazing. The man who accompanied Mr. George was so interested in the conversation that he neglected to shut the gate. The statesman noticed it, went back and carefully closed it, and they resumed their walk. After a few moments of silence, Mr. Lloyd George said, "Do you recall old Dr. So and So? When he was dying they asked him if there was any message he would like to leave to those who were left behind. "Only this," said the old doctor, "as I have passed through life I have tried to close all the gates behind me."

They knew what he meant. He had known a friend who, in his early life, had been accustomed to take all his troubles to bed with him. He would lie in the darkness fretting and worrying about his mistakes—sometimes all the night, tossing from one side of the bed to the other. As time went on the habit grew on him, till it all but destroyed his health.

One night matters came to a crisis. He could not sleep. He arose and looked out of the window into the stillness outside. What a contrast it was to the tumult that raged within. How still the room was Nature had wrapped him round with peace and calm and yet he was permitting the worries of life to break his rest. Why had he locked the safe so carefully if he was to bring his money troubles home to disturb his rest? Why had he left the office if its cares must go with him everywhere? Then and there he knelt down and asked God to forgive him and since then, he said, "I have shut the gates behind me."

This, in the phraseology of Boreham, is one of the periods of life with which we must contend. We make choice in life, make it prayerfully and after long and careful consideration. And then when it has been made, instead of closing the gates behind us and regarding the incident as closed, we go back in thought and weave romance about the wonderful blessings that would have been ours had we only made some other choice in life.

We look back over the vista of years to the mistakes we have made, and who of us has not made them, and we brood and brood, and the peace of life is gone. But we cannot go back and there is no use of looking back. Let us close the gate softly and leave it so, and go on to the task that awaits us.

"Let bygones be bygones," one of Macdonald's characters says to another. "Deed no," is the reply; "whats the use of bygones but from them to learn how to meet the bycomes?"

He is right. The past can teach us how to meet the future with a more courageous heart. When we have caught that message let us shut the gate and bar it and look not back.

LO, I AM WITH YOU ALWAYS

They drift away. Ah, God, they drift for ever.
I watch the stream sweep onward to the sea,
Like some old battered buoy upon a roaring river,
Round whom the tide-waifs hang—then drift to sea.

I watch them drift—the old familiar faces,
Who fished and rode with me, by stream and wold,
Till ghosts, not men, fill old beloved places,
And, ah! the land is rank with church yard mold.

I watch them drift—the youthful aspirations,
Shores, landmark, beacons, drift alike.
* * * * *
Yet overhead the boundless arch of heaven
Still fades to night, still blazes into day.
* * * * *
Ah, God! My God! Thou wilt not drift away!

—Chas. Kingsley.

"THE LEARNED AND FASHIONABLE SUBSTITUTE FOR THE STORY OF CREATION"

By Rev. J. F. Lawson, D.D.

We venture to say there is no subject on which writers in these days become so easily eloquent as "the universal acceptance of the theory of evolution," and yet there is no subject which gives a louder call for discrimination and cautious statement. It is desirable, therefore, in order to set the consideration of the subject in its proper light, that as far as possible we remove some misconception from our minds.

For instance, it should be remembered that all is not science which may choose to pass under that title. The natural sciences are man's interpretation of Nature, or God's works; theology is man's interpretation of revelation, or God's word; natural science and theology, therefore, may be mistaken, and have been mistaken. Rash and unfounded theories, both in science and theology, have been advanced and afterwards withdrawn; but God's works and God's words, Nature and Revelation are always in perfect accord, when properly understood.

Again, it should be borne in mind that extensive scholarship is by no means the exclusive prerogative or possession of scientists. "Scholarship" is too broad a term to be monopolized by any man or set of men because, forsooth, they have specialized in some particular subject.

Nor can we afford to depend altogether on what is called the "drift of scholarship," the "consensus of scholarly opinion" is not, never has been, nor ever can be final absolute proof of the truth or untruth of any proposition. Few folk do their own thinking; most of us let some other man do our thinking for us, and we adopt his conclusions. "Everybody's doing it" is ample reason for most of us for adopting any given line of conduct; "everybody's thinking it" draws most minds in its train; consequently the "consensus of opinion" is never final proof that anything is true or that it is false.

But the defender of the Bible has his lesson of caution and humility to learn, as well as the scientist. For illustration, let him beware lest he claim for the Bible more than it claims for itself. He has no right to claim for the Bible a sort of anticipative text-book on natural science. The Bible is not a text-book on science, for it is not a scientific book, though its statements on scientific topics will be found to be scientifically true when properly interpreted. As one has said, "the Bible was not intended to teach us how the heavens go, but how to go to heaven."

Nor must we ever forget the care, the extreme caution with which the Bible speaks of methods, of how God did this or that. It will be remembered that it merely says, "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth;" how he did it, the Bible doesn't tell us.

The Word "Evolution"

Then, too, we must remember constantly that the word "evolution" is a perfectly good word. It is derived, as we are told, from the Latin "evolvere," which means literally "to unroll." So that in a perfectly legitimate and inoffensive sense the word may be used, and is used, to describe any process of growth or development. The growth of the plant from the seed; the unfolding of the flower from the bud; the development of the animal from conception to old age—these processes may all be described as an "evolution." In this sense the chicken is an evolution from the egg. Thus it will be seen that for all lovers of truth the word evolution expresses a great fundamental fact both in the realm of the vegetable and the animal kingdom.

Not only so; but the Bible teaches such a form of evolution, the orderly, progressive development of God's plan in Nature and Revelation, just as His word says it was done; for, according to that word, the world was not "made in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye;" we are told that "in the beginning God created the heaven and the earth; and the earth was without form and void;" and then, after this brief, comprehensive statement, the record moves on in steady, stately progression, through one, two, three, four, five, six distinct periods of time, till finally God sees his finished work, and "behold it was very good." The Bible teaches this evolution, and we believe in this evolution, in the sense of progressive development—"first the blade, then the ear, after that the full corn in the ear;" even the kingdom of heaven is likened to "mustard seed which a man took, cast into the ground, and it grew, waxed a great tree," etc. The word "evolution," therefore, need not frighten the Christian man, for we have no objection to it if it is understood to mean, as it does mean, the fulfillment of God's plan in Nature, in the individual growth, the structure, function and variation of the species. But such evolution as this has very little in common with "the present popular theory of evolution."

Contributed

Some Famous Definitions

Now in order that we may grasp, in a general way, this theory, let us notice a few definitions by leading scientists, and others who are qualified to speak. Dr. Lyman Abbott tells us that "evolution is a doctrine that this life of man, this moral, ethical, spiritual nature has been developed by natural processes;" that one "may, with Haeckel, believe in spontaneous generation, or with Tyndall disbelieve in it, and in either case be a perfectly good evolutionist." Mr. Spencer's definition of evolution will help but few of us; says he, "evolution is a change from indefinite, incoherent homogeneity, to a definite, coherent heterogeneity, through continuous differentiations and integrations." For the benefit of us laymen, Professor Tait elucidates this definition of Mr. Spencer; he says, "evolution is a change from a nohowish, untalkaboutable all-alikeness to a somehowish and in general talkaboutable not-all-alikeness by a continuous something-elsefication and sticktogetheration!" Mr. Tyndall's statement of the scope of the theory is as follows: "Strip it naked and you stand face to face with the notion that not only the ignoble forms of life, not only the more noble forms of the horse and the lion, not even the exquisite mechanism of the human body alone—but the human mind, the emotions, intellect and will, with all their phenomena, were in the original fiery cloud." And Mr. Darwin himself said, "man is descended from a hairy quadruped furnished with a tail and pointed ears." Further, while Dr. Abbott assures us that it is "no attempt to explain the nature or origin of life," Prof. A. S. Packard, as quoted in the New International says, "life came into being on the planet in the most natural way; it arose by the action of physico-chemical laws through what we call spontaneous generation, the first bit of living protoplasm being ready at hand." What then is the theory? It undertakes to account for the origin of the universe; for the present order of things; for the origin of life; for the nature of life, vegetable, animal and human life... it doesn't hesitate for a moment to apply itself to the explanation of the Bible, the Christ of God, the Christian religion, Civilization; it undertakes even to reconstruct Bible history, and by this process to eliminate from the record all that is supernatural; in its radical and most consistent form it is out and out atheistic.

Popular Science Monthly, the March issue, tells us that "all life on the planet, even human life, originated (mark well the expression) from a tiny, slimy speck resembling transparent jelly found in pools of water along the shores of the primeval seas, over a billion years ago." And the writer of this leading article in this popular monthly assures his readers, with all the positiveness of absolute, scientific knowledge, that this tiny, slimy speck became the parent of every living thing on the planet, and was in fact the first ancestor of man. Prof. E. D. Cope, as quoted at great length by Professor Fairhurst of the Kentucky University, says "evolution is the teaching that creation has been by energies and forces intrinsic with in the evolving matter, and without the interference of agencies which are external to it." Professor Cope holds this theory of evolution, not only as touching inorganic nature, but organic nature as well, and without any hesitation whatever, he makes out a genealogy for the human race on the basis of this theory; for, according to Professor Cope, as quoted by Professor Fairhurst, man began on the planet as a protozoan, developed into a jellyfish in due time, then into a wriggling squirming worm, then a fish, next an amphibian, a reptile, a crocodile, an opossum and finally after millions and millions of years, man "evolved" into the noble gorilla, or developed into the stately anthropoid ape. Having thus given us a fairly clear idea as to what the theory is, we are next assured that the theory is "universally accepted" by all scientists worthy the name.

Some Who "Thought Otherwise"

If that is true where shall we place such men as Professors Shaler and Dwight of Harvard University? Such men as Drs. Joseph Henry of the Smithsonian Institute, Washington, N. C., and Etheridge of the British Museum, London, one of England's most famous scientific experts in fossilology, who said, "in all this great museum there is not a particle of evidence of the transmutation of the species." And where shall we place such men as Beale of King College, London, and Fleishmann of Erlangen University, Germany, and Professors Dana, Dawson, Gray, Lord Kelvin, Maury, Pasteur, Romanes and last, but by no means the least, Virchow of Berlin, the highest German authority in physiology and the foremost chemist on the globe in his time? But, objects some one, since these are all dead men, their testimony is not to be taken alongside that of living scientists. Can that be true? Is science then so ephemeral a thing that a few fleeting years, the short span of human life will suffice to overthrow its mightiest pronouncements? No one can deny the authority with which these men spoke on scientific matters only a few short years ago; and yet their words, we are told, have no weight now. We must face then the question which naturally arises—"how can we possibly know but that a like fate awaits the great scientists of our own day?" At best, but a few short years more and J. Arthur Thompson, Osborn, Keith, Scott and Conklin will "fall on sleep," as their fathers have done; will their testimony then be null and void?

It is interesting, however, to know that just as the last generation had its scientists who rejected the evolutionary theory, so there are scientists of our own day—geologists, pathologists, embryologists, etc., who feel that time, with its disclosures, has only sufficed to give added weight to the testimony of the great anti-evolutionists whose names have been quoted. There is Prof. Alfred Fairhurst, of the department of natural science in Kentucky University, who passed away only last year; Prof. George McCready Price author of "Fundamentals of Geology," "Back to the Bible," "Outlines of Modern Science," "God's Two Books," "The New Geology;" then there is Dr. Newton Evans, of Loma Linda, Cal., president of the Medical College at that place, a man of national reputation as a pathologist, and whose name will be found in "Who's Who," also in "American Men of Science;" Dr. Howard A. Kelly of Johns Hopkins University, and one of the foremost surgeons in all this country; Prof. Alfred Shyrock, of the department of embryology in Loma Linda College, an institution ranking with Leland Stanford University and the University of California, and one of the three "A" class medical schools on the Pacific coast; Dr. George Thomason, a cousin to ex-President Wilson, a man with a long list of English degrees after his name; Dr. George K. Abbott, of St. Helena, Cal., whose name also appears in "Who's Who," a noted surgeon of the great and wealthy Pacific coast; Dr. W. B. Holden of Portland, Ore., another of the great men of the nation. These men, who are living scientists, and who are high enough in their professions to have their name in "Who's Who," and to be listed among the "American men of science," all reject the present popular theory of evolution; and this is only the beginning of a long list of names which might be continued indefinitely, of men whose mental acumen cannot be successfully questioned, and who reject the theory.

It is strange, is it not, how many false statements are made today, which no one takes the trouble to challenge; for instance, we hear it said over and over again that the "first chapters of Genesis are neither history nor science." While as a matter of fact, as to the first part of this statement, that is that "it is not history," no less a student of history, statecraft, science and the word of God, than the great Gladstone said, "we have here a solitary and striking example of the detailed exposition of physical facts;" again, "this recital cannot be due to the imagination of a poet." "The method here pursued is that of historical recital; the person who composed it seems to believe, and to intend others to believe that he is dealing with matters of fact; if it is a serious conveyance of truth, it can only be a communication from the Most High * * * and carries stamped upon it the proof of a divine revelation." And again says Mr. Gladstone, "we have here a primordial history of the planet which we inhabit, and of the celestial system to which it belongs." As to the latter part of the statement—that it is not science—George McCready Price, the famous geologist, says, that recent geological discoveries, of which the rank and file have not yet learned, give added proof to the fact that the Genesis account is, after all, "more accurate than the world's science." Another fact which we must not forget is that there are scientists, "tall men, sun-crowned, who rise above the mists and fog in public duty and in private thinking," who are reverent students of God's Works, who are trying to "think God's thoughts after Him."

The Layman's View of Theory

Now, bearing all these facts in mind, let us take a look at this popular theory of evolution, just as thinking laymen. By "laymen" we mean those of us who must depend on the scientists—biologists, palaeontologists, geologists, embryologists, etc.—to ferret out facts for us; by "thinking laymen" we mean that, having these facts, we must reserve the right to draw our own conclusions from them. There's a vast difference between speculating as to what might be, and proving what must be; we therefore reserve the right to draw our own conclusions from facts which may be submitted by scientists; and we find that the longer we look at the theory the graver seem the difficulties in the way of its acceptance.

Our first difficulty is, it is not proven. The most that has ever been claimed for it is expressed in the word "hypothesis," which, as we are told, is "something not proven, but assumed." Evolution to this good hour is an unproven hypothesis; we can well afford to boldly affirm this, and challenge the evolutionists to prove the contrary. In fact, as already stated, it is admitted by its staunchest advocates that it is a theory which "cannot be proven."

Our second difficulty is, the Babel of conflicting statements as to the "raison d'être" of the whole theory. Popular magazines, articles in the daily papers, even picture films, are constantly affirming the theory as explaining "how all life on the planet originated;" while others say "evolution makes no attempt whatever to explain the origin of life;" that such an attempt is not even remotely dreamed of. Again, some admitting that the theory cannot explain the origin of life on the globe, insist that it is a perfectly reasonable explanation of all the forms in which life manifests itself, while Professor Shaler of Harvard, said "it is not yet established that a single species, of the two million now known to be on the earth, has been established by the operation of natural laws;" while Bateson, in his address in Toronto last year, says, "it is impossible for scientists any longer to agree with Darwin's theory of the origin of species." As this great scientist sees it, there is not only one missing link, but links are missing all down the line—the gulf between inorganic and organic nature, between the vegetable and animal world, between the animal and the human, yawns as hopelessly as ever.

"Pithesanthropus Erectus"

Our third difficulty is, the transparent falsity of the claim constantly made that the "weapons of science are weapons of precision," accurate, minute, exact. A case in point: In 1891 a certain Dutchman, Dr. Von Eugene DuBois, discovered two teeth, the crown of a skull and a thigh bone about 45 feet below the surface of the earth. Now it came to pass, about three years after this wonderful discovery on the isle of Java, that a convention of famous zoologists met in Holland. Among the many interesting things there for them to examine and study were these bones. Of these famous European scientific experts who focused the united power of their mentality on this osseous array, ten of them said they were bones of an ape, seven said they were the bones of a man, while the remaining seven (less than one-third) were inclined to believe they were the bones of the "missing link" connecting man and the ape. Taking the supposition of this less than one-third of the investigators, science has supplied the 234 missing members (that is, assuming that the number of bones in the skeleton of the missing link is "the number of a man") and with consummate skill and vivid imagination has clothed this skeleton with pseudoflesh, as with a garment, and giving him (?) a local habitation and a name, has photographed and gravely introduced him (?) to a gullible public as "Pitheanthropus-erectus, the famous man of Java, the great ancestor of the human race." In this striking example of the "precision" of scientific weapons the "thinking layman" finds much food for thought.

Our fourth difficulty is, its tendency and practical workings are such as to confuse the real issues of life. For it isn't so much a question as to whence we came, and what we were a billion years ago, as it is whither we are bound, and what is our part and lot in life.

Really, "advanced thinkers," forward-looking folk, are not concerned so much about the past, vainly peering into the milleniums gone as they are about the present, the future and about what will take place tomorrow, and what is their part in the program for the world's betterment.

Is Against Faith

Our fifth difficulty is, it is against faith, opposed to the very genius of Christianity, in that it PRETENDS to accept nothing save on the testimony of the five physical senses; and yet, as a matter of fact, it taxes human credulity far beyond anything in God's word. The nebula hypothesis by which we are told the earth was brought into existence is a "rib story" far beyond that of the creation of woman; we can certainly as readily accept the Bible account of a man who lived nearly a thousand years, as we can the story of the evolutionist when he tells us that weeds once grew to be as tall as pine trees, that reptiles as big as elephants, with wings like birds flew through the air, that monsters 800 feet long, with teeth like cross-cut saws, walked up and down the earth. The story of Noah and the flood is no more difficult of belief than the story the geologists tell us, that quite recently water covered the whole of England and Scotland; that Central Europe and Asia were depressed fully 2,000 feet; that practically the entire habitable earth was submerged in water. The remarkable thing about it is that when the Bible tells us these things, and tells us about them thousands of years before the geologists found them out, we quibble at the Bible account, and swallow the story of the geologists. The story of the destruction of the cities of the plain by fire and brimstone is no more marvelous than what took place a few years ago, when a similar occurrence destroyed every human life in St. Pierre, on the Isle of Martinique. Isn't it strange that as soon as men find out how God works (as they found out in the latter instance), that very moment they are ready to do away with God? That the very moment they discover one of God's laws, that very moment they are ready to substitute the law for the law-giver? It is not so great a tax on the human mind to believe that the entire human race, with the single exception of one family of eight souls, was destroyed by the flood as that of all the anthropoid apes that ever lived on the earth at any given time, only one single anthropoid ape family survived, because only one was fit to survive, and that from this single ape family have sprung all the races of men on the earth. I submit the first story is far more reasonable than the other. And I venture further to believe that there isn't a story in the book of Genesis, or the entire Bible, the belief in which calls forth such colossal credulity as one needs every hour in the day to swallow the wild imaginings of some evolutionists.

"Turns God Out of Doors"

Our sixth difficulty is, the tendency of the theory is to turn God out of doors, rule the Scriptures out of court, and brutalize man. Is such a statement too broad? Let us see: It is said that when La Place submitted his philosophy to Napoleon for criticism the latter examined it, handed it back with this simple comment, "Sir, I find no place in your system for God;" whereupon we are told La Place replied, "Ah, sir, that's the glory of my system, it doesn't require any God." While the statement is made in the Encyclopedia Britannica that as a result of the theory of evolution, Haeckel was led to deny the immortality of the soul, the freedom of the Will and the existence of a personal God. "As far as I am concerned," wrote Darwin to a friend in his old age, "I do not believe any revelation has ever been given." As to its brutalizing men, Germany has given a demonstration to the world.

Our seventh difficulty is, it makes Christ an impossibility. We challenge any man who gets "aboard such a train of thought" to have the logical consistency, the courage to ride it to the end. And what is the logical terminus, the conclusion of the whole matter? What is the life principle, the heart and core of the present popular theory of evolution, what is the "learned and fashionable substitute for the story of creation?" Here it is: "everything by the automatic, uninterrupted operation of natural laws;" there must be no interruption, no thrusting in of a divine hand—"the divine creation of life," says a University of Chicago professor, "is a pure humbug. Do we overstate it? Let us see: says Haeckel, "Evolution is the non-miraculous origin and progress of the universe." And so we pause to ask, where, in the midst of such a scheme, shall we place the Christ of God? Obviously, we shall have to place him in the same category with all other men, as simply one of the products of the chemical reactions, the organic combinations which have been going on since the remote period of the primordial germ.

And now a word in closing to any Christian who may happen to read this; a word which will matter not at all to those who are not Christians, but which ought to give pause certainly to all who are. Does it seem to you that a theory which originated in the brain of an avowed atheist, and which from its inception until the present day has drawn the same class to it, as the magnet draws the needle, is apt to be a right line of thinking? Is it safe to follow the lead of a brain so far out of kilter that it fails to grasp the first fundamental postulate of all rational thinking, "In the beginning, God?"

Little Rock, Ark.

QUIET TALKS ON THE SIMPLE ESSENTIALS

By Mr. S. D. Gordon

Bijou Theatre, Boardwalk, Atlantic City, N. J.
Auspices Atlantic City Council of Churches

No. 4—The Beginning of Man

Man is of a princely brood and breed. He is not mere dust and dirt of earth. He's more. He's kin to God.

The story of how man got his start on the earth, and the old Book of God, these two, are tied up together tight. The Book has a story about man's start. It is told clearly, simply and positively. It is put in a leading place, at the very beginning. It dignifies man in a peculiar way.

There's another very different story being told today. It really lowers the dignity of man. It is being told so loudly and dogmatically that people are coming to think, unthinkingly that it is the only story. Everybody worth while believes it, we are told.

Yet—yet, it is striking, that there are distinct groups of the ablest thinkers among scholars and scientists who don't accept it, but say some very strong things against it, with a quiet settled positiveness.

What is this strange modern story about man's start? In a word it is this, that man evolved by a series of steps, up from the very lowest forms of matter, up through an ascending scale, getting higher and higher till finally he got up to where he is now. Some put a supernatural creative touch of God at various stages. Some leave God clean out.

Even though weak links in the chain of evidence are frankly admitted, indeed sometimes the distinct absence of links, yet there is a peculiar insistence on the main teaching, quite ignoring the fact that the weak links, the absence of links, completely neutralizes the whole teaching.

It seems as though the process must have stopped, however. New man ought to be continually evolving up from the lower stages. It seems queer that they all come another way. And the other way fits into the Book's story. Rather striking that!

The two teachings are directly opposite. That's clear. The question involves not the present teaching of science on the matter merely, but the status of the Book, whose story is so radically different.

The Book's story is that man was created essentially as we know him today, by the direct act of God. On the lower levels of life, in this creation story, there are distinct forms or kinds. The striking thing to mark is that these never cross. Each kind reproduces after its own kind. It is never after another kind. This is specifically stated nine times. There is no crossing from one kind to another. There are unbridged chasms at certain points.

Then, at the climax, God by direct act formed man as a distinct creation. God breathed his own breath of life into man, making him still another kind, distinct from the other lower kind, God's own kind. That's the story.

Of course, the principle of evolution, or growth by development, is everywhere, but always within certain fixed limits. There's growth from early immature forms, up and up, until full maturity of that particular sort of life is reached. This is in all nature, and in all life. But there's never a crossing over from one form or kind to another.

The attempt at this is always punished by death, death by sterility. The power to reproduce life is lost, irretrievably lost. It's a well established fact of science that crossing species results in sterility. It is the very thing that stops life, truly a dead stop.

The familiar illustration is the mule. The arbitrary crossing by man of the horse and the ass, produces

The mule, a peculiarly strong and peculiarly stubborn animal, and, be it noted, always sterile.

At its core the question is a scientific one. It's a matter of biology, the science of life. And the striking thing to mark carefully is that there is a distinct group of scientists, of highest scholarly rank, in each of the nations of Christendom, who say plainly in print that scientifically this teaching of evolution is childish, wholly unscientific. The biologists among them say it is a biological absurdity, a biological impossibility.

Some of these have pointed out how the simple creation story of Genesis fits in with the latest findings of science. But the other teaching persists, like a dense fog, settled down, obscuring and quite ignoring, simply ignoring, proven facts.

In the earlier days the teaching was put forward as a "hypothesis," that is, a supposition, nothing more. It's a strange perversity that now it is taught as an established fact, even with scientific facts against it.

On the other side, the things peculiarly distinctive in man tally with the Book story. Man is not only superior to all lower creation, but radically different, not in degree, but in kind. There are four distinctive things in man—the mind, the understanding and reasoning powers; language, the power of expressing thoughts in a reasoned-out intelligent way; conscience, the moral sense; and moral choice, the power to discern moral differences and to decide.

There is absolutely nothing in lower life out of which these could have evolved. Out of nothing nothing comes. These four things are found nowhere else, except, ah! yes, except in—God!

Indeed, these are the distinctive God traits. Here is the link upwards. Man reveals unmistakably the direct creative touch of God upon him in these traits. His make-up tallies with the Book. And this characteristic of the Book. It and man fit together.

And so a man has in his own very self the fact that the Book is reliable. It is indeed the Book of God, dependable at every turn.

No.5—The God-Man

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS' ASSOCIATION OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, U. S.

The Christian Workers' Association of the Southern Presbyterian Church held its annual meeting at Montreat, N. C., June 25th, during the Young People's Conference. This organization is composed of salaried women employed as Pastor's Assistants, Secretaries of Religious Education, Directors of Young People's Work, Sunday School Workers and Bible Teachers in Secondary Schools and Colleges.

Miss Nancy White, of the Executive Committee of Home Missions, Atlanta, Ga., the president, presided. After the opening prayer, the roll call and the reading of the minutes, the first business attended to was the discussion of those eligible for membership; whether the membership should be limited or not to salaried women workers as named above. It was decided that the active membership remain as stated in the constitution, but that workers, other than those composing the organization, be admitted as associate members.

Two new members were enrolled—Miss Clarabel Williams, assistant to the pastor, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Wilmington, N. C.; Miss Ellen Bowen, assistant to the pastor in the Presbyterian Church, Tazewell, Va.

The following new officers were elected: Miss Aline McKenzie, assistant to pastor, First Presbyterian Church, Durham, N. C., president; Miss Kate DuBose, assistant to pastor, First Presbyterian Church, Winston-Salem, N. C., secretary and treasurer.

After a general discussion of the nature of programs to be presented, and a definite time for the discussion of the various problems confronting members, the following recommendations were made:

To the Board of Managers of the Young People's Conference at Montreat, N. C.:

1. We, the Christian Workers' Association, recommend that the program for the Young People's Conference at Montreat include a parallel program or conference for leaders of young people, and that the same be well advertised throughout the Church.

2. We recommend, or request, that a definite time be announced on the program of the Young People's Conference at Montreat and that the same be given publicity on the printed programs and announcements issued by the Board of Managers of the Young People's Conference.

To our Committee on Young People's Work and the Editors of our Church Papers:

We recommend that the Young People's Work be given more space in our Church papers; that this department be so enlarged that it will furnish more material for the young people's organizations, and also include a section for leaders of young people.

FACTS FOR EARNEST THOUGHT

By Rev. W. H. Miley, D.D.

In looking over the Minutes of the Assembly for 1923, we find much to encourage, and some things that call for earnest thought, and prayerful labors.

While the records show a gradual increase in the total number of communicants, they also indicate that since 1921 there has been a gradual decrease in the number added both on examination and certificate.

And at the same time there has been an increase of over 4,600 in the number of non-resident members.

This ought not so to be. Our working force being greater and our equipment better there should be, at least, a corresponding increase in the visible results.

Whatever explanation we may try to find, the facts remain, and call for earnest prayer, and effort to remedy the situation.

A study of the following brief summary should give us food for thought:

	Added on Examination	Members to Convert	Churches not reporting a Convert	Percent of Churches not reporting a convert	Non-resident members
The Assm.---	23731	18	1363	39	56803
Alabama ----	888	25	123	58	2900
Appalachia --	1755	12	160	35	3187
Arkansas ----	755	17	40	36	1705
Florida ----	944	15	42	34	1737
Georgia ----	1564	19	101	41	4645
Kentucky ----	1019	20	68	42	2534
Louisiana ----	776	16	35	32	1592
Mississippi --	1099	20	118	44	3399
Missouri ----	952	19	59	40	2256
North Car. --	3589	19	194	38	8624
Oklahoma ---	378	12	36	55	611
Sned. Mem. --	165	11	12	25	357
South Car. ---	1813	20	96	33	3864
Tennessee ---	912	23	51	36	3620
Texas ----	2796	15	170	43	5151
Virginia ----	3117	20	125	30	8438
W. Virginia -	1200	12	33	34	2181
Synod of South Carolina by Presbyteries:
Bethel -----	365	20	12	26	771
Charleston ---	115	21	11	39	271
Congaree ----	162	22	11	35	283
Enoree -----	336	18	8	20	653
Harmony ---	149	25	8	25	396
Pee Dee -----	226	18	12	32	415
Piedmont ---	249	14	15	43	446
South Car. ---	211	23	19	44	629
Total -----	1813		96		3864

Shall we not make special effort to have every church a productive, and conservative force?—adding to our numbers, and checking the tremendous leak through the large list of non-resident members?

What the furnace is to the rooms above, ministers, officers and teachers should be to the churches. Let our own hearts be kindled, and they will give warmth to others.

What the light plant is to the town, the church should be to the community—giving to it all needed light, and pointing to Him, who is the Light of life.

What the dynamo is to the machinery, the Holy Spirit is to plans and methods. Earnest, concerted action, relying on Him for guidance and power, will accomplish the work given to us. Let us labor and pray for larger results for the current year.

Charlotte, N. C.

THE WEST VIRGINIA CAMPAIGN

By Rev. Henry H. Sweets, D.D., Secretary

No campaign conducted by the Executive Committee of Christian Education of the Presbyterian Church encountered more difficulties and experienced more interruptions than the one in West Virginia. In the face of problems and difficulties that seemed to present insuperable barriers, Rev. Herman Jones, has continued as director of the work until a wonderful victory is being achieved. Mr. Jones, has continued as director of the work until a wonderful victory is being achieved. Mr. Jones has had associated with him a number of consecrated, self-denying men and women. The three Presbyteries of the U. S. Presbyterian Church, Greenbrier, Kanawha, and Tygarts Valley have subscribed $853,270; the three U. S. A. Presbyteries, Grafton, Parkersburg and Wheeling have up to date subscribed $194,470. The beneficiaries of this campaign are Davis and Elkins College, $500,000; Lewisburg Seminary, $300,000; Davis Stuart Orphanage, $100,000; Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va., $50,000; West Virginia Synodical School, $40,000; Assembly's Training School, $10,000; Patty C. Stockdale Memorial School, $50,000; Religious Work of West Virginia University, $50,000, making a total of $1,100,000. In order to meet the expenses of the campaign, cover possible shrinkage and to provide for the minimum needs of these institutions as outlined above, at least, $150,000 more should be secured. Work is now being pushed in the three U. S. A. Presbyteries where it is earnestly hoped that this goal may be achieved.

THE STORY OF PEACE INSTITUTE

By James R. Young

Many are interested in Peace Institute and its work. Its splendid record for years in the education of young women has given to this and other States the fine class of women know as "Peace Girls."

The institution has a unique record and history that will prove of interest to many throughout the State. It was founded in 1857 and received its name from William Peace, an elder in the First Presbyterian Church, of Raleigh, and a bachelor. He was the principal mover in founding the institution and gave $10,000—one-third of the funds necessary to build it—and the land on which it is still located.

The school was incorporated October 1, 1858 as "Peace Institute of Raleigh." The following extract from its charter shows the object and spirit of its founders.

"Female Seminary will have for its object the thorough education of young ladies, not only in the substantial branches of knowledge but also in those which are elegant and ornamental

"It is intended to be under the exclusive charge of those who will inculcate that system of Religion which is set forth in the Confession of Faith of the Presbyterian Church

"Said School to be Presbyterian in its influences and course of Education."

The following men and women from over nearly all of the State signed as incorporators, viz.:

William Peace, Jos. M. Atkinson, Fab J. Haywood, McQueen Williams, Matthew Shaw, Neill McKay, T. G. Wall, T. D. Johnson, Jacob Doll, W. L. Stamps, M. McGhee, N. M. Lewis, Wm. Bingham, A. A. McDonald, W. H. Smith, Wm. Burdock, J. H. Cardwell, Robt. Galloway, H. D. Turner, Elijah Hinton, Joel Williams, D. D. McBride, Jas. McKethan, Jas. B. Hodges, Isabella Elliott, Jno. D. Williams, H. C. Robinson, Jos. Utley, W. McIntyre, H. L. Myrover, J. N. Colville, Arch McLean, W. N. Whitted, Jno. McKinnon, Jno. McDonald, Duncan Sinclair, G. H. Wilder, A. M. Gorman, W. W. Holden, A. B. Davidson, S. E. Pharr, H. B. Cunningham, Edward R. Harris, W. S. Harris, Samuel C. Harris, Giles Mebane, S. R. Fowle, W. B. Carter, N. M. Roane, E. P. Jones, S. A. Stanfield, Samuel Watkins, T. W. Lewis, Drury Lacy, Thos. B. Neil, P. H. Dalton, Rufus Barringer, Mary C. Galloway, Jas. M. Scales, Jesse H. Lindsay, G. and S. P. Hinton, Ed. Sanderson, Mrs. Mary Smith, J. C. Smith, Alex R. Smith, Jno. C. Williams, Jno. Elliott, D. McDiarmid, C. C. Wright, W. B. Wright, J. M. Rose, W. McL. McKay, W. L. Miller, M. A. Fuller, Ellen P. Owen, David Murphy, Margaret McNair, Arch Cameron, Abram Venable, P. Babcock, Mrs. I. J. Davis, J. B. Watt, S. P. Alexander, A. Sinclair, Daniel Coleman, V. C. Barringer, W. W. Pharr, Salisbury Presbyterian Church.

These were among the most prominent men and women in our Church and State at that time, as their children, grandchildren and other descendants have been and are today in the affairs of our Church and State.

After the vicissitudes of the war in which the institution largely shared, the school was reincorporated in 1877 with the following incorporators, nearly all of whom were from Raleigh, viz.:

R. S. Pullen, Jno. D. Williams, Jno. B. Burwell, W. H. Crow, W. H. and R. S. Tucker, W. N. H. Smith, Eugene Grisso, Julius Lewis, E. Burke Haywood, Rufus Barringer, Geo. Allen, Isaac Oetinger, Alfred Williams, A. Bauman, W. C. and A. B. Stronach, D. E. Everett, Geo. Howard, E. R. Stamps, W. S. Primrose, B. F. Moore.

This charter was amended on October 28, 1909, after the property had been bought by a committee of the First Presbyterian Church of Raleigh in 1907, and the stock increased from $30,000 to $100,000.

In December, 1911, "Peace Institute, Incorporated," was chartered with capital stock and all of the stock of Peace Institute of Raleigh was transferred to it. Peace Institute, Incorporated, is controlled by trustees appointed by the Synod of North Carolina, its Presbyteries and the First Church, of Raleigh, N. C.

The fine educational work now being conducted at the institution has been carried on without interruption since 1872.

Raleigh, N. C., July 16, 1923.

Woman's Auxiliary

Conducted by Mrs. J. M. McIver, Gulf, N. C.

North Avenue Church, Atlanta, Ga.—From the last Bulletin of this church we take the following items of interest to women:

"The Ladies' Prayer Circle will meet Monday afternoon at 4:30 in the Church House. All the ladies of the Church are cordially invited to attend.

"Nehemiah prayed, and thus prepared for whatever might be the issue of that eventful day, the young cup-bearer rose from his knees, drew a long breath, and went to his work. Well for us if we go to ours, whether it be a day of crises or of commonplace, in like fashion! Then we shall have like defense and like calmness of heart."

"Thanks.—A few weeks ago the ladies of North Avenue sent a box of clothes, etc., to our school at Nacoochee—just one of many boxes they have sent. Very little time and expense were necessary to get this box off but the following letter shows the real good and pleasure its contents have given to so many:

"Thank you so much for the splendid large box which reached us in due time. We were specially glad for that splendid Dictionary which will, of course, go in our School Library, and we thank you too for the other things which the box contained.

"As I look over my list and see the silk waists, the black and white dresses, the blue crepe de chine dress, the many fancy articles, hats and summer underwear, etc., etc., I feel that I want to send you a great big THANK YOU for all the many nice and useful things. I often wish I could tell the different ones who contribute to these boxes just where the different things do go and how nice some of our folks look as they come out in their various costumes that I know have come out of these boxes, but you know what an impossible thing it would be to do. I often feel very selfish because I keep so much of the pleasure that comes to me—I would like so much to pass it on to the friends who are making it possible.

"North Avenue always does the big, generous thing by Nacoochee and we certainly love you.

"Cordially yours,

"Rebecca Galloway Coit."

Charlotte, N. C.—Fellowship Club of the First Church, Host.—One of the most notably pleasant social affairs which the First Church has known in years, was the picnic supper given by the members of the Men's Fellowship Club Tuesday evening on the grounds of historic old Sharon Church, complimentary to the Woman's Auxiliary, and other women of the church.

The ladies of Sharon community furnished the supper which fully sustained the reputation that the ladies have for their suppers and picnic dinners. A number of stunts followed the supper, leaders of which were, Miss Lelia Graham Marsh, Dr. Frazer, and Mr. Tom Glasgow. The return to town was made about 9 o'clock.

(We had intended having a notice in the Auxiliary column of this "History of Wilmington Presbyterian Auxiliary," but this letter of Mr. Hall's which he kindly allows us to publish, leaves nothing to be said as to its merits.

After a careful reading of the history we can only add that we heartily endorse all that Mr. Hall has said of it. It is a valuable compendium of information, attractively arranged and charminly written. We feel that Mrs. Brown by this labor of love has made every woman in the Presbyterian her debtor.—Ed.)

History of Wilmington Presbyterian Auxiliary—(From Mr. B. F. Hall, Ruling Elder of the First Presbyterian Church, Wilmington, N. C.)

Mrs. J. A. Brown,

Chadbourn, N. C.

Dear Mrs. Brown:

In your history of the Wilmington Presbyterian Auxiliary, you have accomplished the impossible in making very attractive the dry statistics and records of a working organization, however good that organization may be in its purpose and activities.

Such papers, after a casual glance, are usually laid aside. That, however, will hardly be the case with this history amongst those who appreciate pleasant reading and faithful work. The literary style of the work is good enough to place you amongst "The Writers" of attractive books. It gives evidence of very careful and painstaking labor in the gathering of facts and statistics of the organization, which will make it a valuable reference book in any library of North Carolina Presbyterians, and I hope it will find a place in many of them.

I am grateful to you for the preservation of some of my wife's records of the organization, and especially of her two addresses of 1890 and 1900. In fact, the history is in itself a fine tribute to her character and faithful work.

I would not charge you with being a special pleader for your sex, but, whether you intended it or not, you have certainly made out a good case for women all the way from the time of Christ to the present day, even making a valuable witness of Paul, the objector. In doing this, possibly you had in mind the words of the good Methodist minister who remarked in the course of his sermon, "There's where me and Paul differ." However, you have done even better in making Paul a witness for your pleadings in behalf of women.

With thanks and many congratulations to you on your good work, I am

Yours respectfully,

B. F. Hall.

Recife, E. de Pernambuco, Brazil.

A Letter from Brazil—My dear friends: Do you remember the picture of the Agnes Erskine College that came out in The Survey some months ago? If you could see another picture of the building now, you would see a great improvement. The small wing to the left has been repaired, and made into a kitchen. In front of it has been made another wing, longer than the other one, and two stories. On the lower floor is the dining-room, the upper, when finished, will be dormitory rooms. We are so thankful for our new dining-room, in it we have plenty of room, light and air. The wing is not finished, but I feel sure that some day, when it is right for us to have it, the way will be opened up for us to go on with this work. In this country they do not make pressed bricks, no building is left with the bricks uncovered, they are plastered over, both inside and outside. This outside plastering we have not had done, and in the dormitory above the dividing walls have not been put up, nor the floor laid, though unfinished as it is, we are so crowded that I had to put three girls there to sleep. We have enrolled 171 pupils this year, 36 of them as boarders.

We have six girls in the class that graduates in November, all but one come from Protestant homes. One of the most interesting girls in the class comes from far up in the interior. When she first came, five years ago, her father paid a small sum for her, but finally he said it was impossible for him to pay anything more. His daughter was such a fine intelligent girl I could not consent for her to leave, so I decided to try her at helping Miss Kilgore with the college bookkeeping. It was quite a success, so she has remained and been able in that way to partly pay her expenses. Next year she expects to go back to her home and open a school. Another one of this class for years has done some teaching in the lower classes, and helped me with the small boarders to help pay her expense. Another is the daughter of one of our native ministers, who is very poor in money, but rich in his eleven children. She is supported here by a friend in the States.

O LITTLE MOTHER OF MINE

Sometimes in the hush of the evening hour,
When the shadows creep from the west,
I think of the twilight songs you sang
And the boy you lulled to rest—
The wee little boy with the tousled head
That long, long ago was thine.
I wonder if sometimes you long for that boy,
O little mother of mine!

And now he has come to a man's estate,
Grown stalwart in body and strong,
And you'd hardly know that he was the lad
Whom you lulled with your slumber song.
The years have altered the form and the life,
But his heart is unchanged by time,
And still he is only thy boy as of old,
O little mother of mine!

—Walter H. Brown.

The one who is not a Protestant, I believe, is a Catholic only in name, she is such a fine girl, and has such high sentiments of honor. Year before last I had noticed that she always went home very late in the afternoon after the close of school, but only near the end of the year I enquired the reason, and I learned that she could not afford to buy her books, and was staying after school to copy her lessons from the books of some of the boarders, then studying them after she would go home. I was ashamed of myself that I had not known this before, and made up my mind that it would not happen again. So since then I have given her some light work in the school, and paid her a small amount so she would have the money to buy her books.

I hope soon to send to The Survey a picture of our building with the new wing, also one of the dining-room for you to see.

Thanking you for your sympathy and interest, I am

Yours sincerely,

Margaret Douglas.

Nashville, Tenn., July, 1923.

Any letter with two cents postage addressed to Miss Margaret Douglas, Recife, E. de Pernambuco, Brazil, will reach her in due course of mail.

Korea Topics in Brief—Thirty years ago pioneer missionaries planted lombardy poplars, maples and willows and every year the birds are increasing.

Rev. Y. G. Choi, of Kwangju, is in Siberia, where he has charge of the mission work among the Koreans who have gone to that country.

In most places, teachers are not allowed to conduct their Sunday School classes if they fail to attend the mid-week study class.

Miss Margaret Hopper, sister of Rev. Joseph Hopper of Mokpo, arrived from the United States in April, as a member of our mission.

Rev. L. T. Newland, of Kwangju, reports that he has baptised as many Christians the current year as during any three years previously.

In a year and a half the number of believers at Tamyang has grown from three to fifty, with two flourishing schools of 70 boys and 30 girls.

Thousands of Koreans have given up smoking as a protest against a recent order from Japanese official, allowing only those possessing a license to raise tobacco.

Police officials offered one sen (1-2 cents) for "each two parent flies" delivered during April. In the months of May and June a box of matches is given for each match box full of flies received at Police Headquarters.

In our Mission alone during the last 20 years at least 50,000 Koreans have studied the Bible under good teachers for more than 10 days in a year. These have come several times to the classes and are now remarkably well versed in the Scriptures.

"IF"

(For a minister's wife; with apologies to Mr. Rudyard Kipling)

By Caroline Fitzgeorge, in N. Y. Advocate

If you can keep your head when all about you
Are telling you just what you ought to do;
Just how you ought to dress, and where to buy it,
And how you should wear black instead of blue;
If you are always found at all the meetings,
No matter when they're held or even where;
If you can play the organ, lead the singing,
Address the mothers' meetings, lead in prayer;

If you can keep your husband always cheerful
When he comes home from calling, all worn out
From visiting the sick, conducting funerals,
Or helping with his counsel those who doubt;
If you can keep from him the little bickerings
That surely would distress him if he knew;
If you can make him feel on Monday morning
That he has preached two sermons strong and true;

If you can keep sweet all the Ladies' Aiders,
Make them think your requests are always just;
Have the parsonage always ready for inspection,
Showing nowhere the slightest trace of dust;
Can keep the dinner table always ready
For any one who might chance to pass it by;
And live as though your salary were a big one,
When all the while the prices climb sky-high;

If you can keep the children "pure and spotless"
When others all around are running wild;
When other children quarrel and lose their temper,
Present yours always "gentle, meek and mild;"
If you can do all this and keep on smiling
Until your eyes grow dim, your hair turn gray—
Why, cheer up, friend, I'll say you are a model,
I'll say you'll make a preacher's wife some day.

A Family Altar in Every Home—This is one of the goals set forth by the Presbyterian Progressive Program. It is one that means more to the church and to the on-coming generation than perhaps any other objective that is named. With it, the other objectives will be reached, without it, the reaching of all objectives becomes harder. Fellowship with God is always a source of power. When we study the lives of the men and women of the world who have been used of God, we find that they have always cultivated the prayer life. Moses lived with God in the mountain until the glory of His presence was reflected in the shining face of the great law-giver. Daniel stayed his soul on God and won in the midst of the most insidious temptations. The men and women who have done the most for God have talked the most with God. If our children ever learn to pray, they must be taught to pray. The family altar is the place where they are to learn it. It is the safeguard of your child's life. A boy is not going out of a home where the faith and love of a father has committed him into the keeping of the God of the Covenant to lead a life of sin and shame. It is the bond of a happy family. Around those hours spent in united family prayer will linger the sweetest memories of the home life. That boy will never forget the prayers that have been offered for him there. It is the best shock absorber for the sorrows that are coming to us on the road of life. They are surely coming, but when they do come, the hours of fellowship with God will have prepared our souls for meeting them.

"You say you are too busy this morning,
In the maelstrom of family cares,
And husband must rush to the office,
So there isn't a moment for prayers.

"The children are sent to the school-room
And the grind of the day then begins,
With no word from God's Book to remember,
Nor the echo of strengthening hymns.

"What wonder the burdens are heavy,
And the hours seem irksomely long!
What wonder that rash words are spoken,
And that life seems discordant and wrong!

"Pause for a little each morning,
And again at the close of the day,
To talk with the Master Who loves you—
Remember, He taught us to PRAY."

Joseph Parker, of London, commenting on the thirty-fifth of Isaiah, said, "Sorrow and sighing shall flee away." Take up an old dictionary, he said, and once in a while you will come across a word marked "obsolete." The time is coming, he said, when these two words, "sorrow" and "sighing," shall be obsolete. Sorrow and sighing shall flee away, to be no more. Thank God for the outlook!

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT

(Conducted under the auspices of Synod's Committee of Sunday Schools and Young People's Work, in the interest of Sunday Schools and Young People's Societies)

W. ARNETT GAMBLE, JR., Editor

ADDRESS ALL COMMUNICATIONS TO THE DEPARTMENT EDITOR DAVIDSON, N. C

EDITOR'S LOOKOUT

We had the pleasure the past week of dropping in at Montreat and reveling in its rare beauties. And what a wonderful opportunity to observe some of the things God has given us to enjoy! Though we are spending the summer in the mountains, the visit to Montreat was a step still higher in the scale of beauty and enthrallment. Those who frequent the spot do not need to have its charm told to them, for they feel it, but we wish that all our friends could have a taste of the beauty and life there. Nature and human nature combine to give one a feeling of uplift that is well worth while. Go up, young people, and get closer to nature and nature's God.

We found that the young people who are spending the summer, or part of it, at Montreat, are organizing a Christian Endeavor Society. The organization is not yet altogether completed but we hope to have a complete report on it later. Any young person who spends as much as three weeks there may become a member of the society, and of course any who wish may attend the meetings. Any young people who go to Montreat for any time at all should attend the meetings of this society.

One of the finest reports that has come to us lately is that sent from the Raeford Presbyterian Intermediate Endeavor Society. One wonders how one set of young people can accomplish so much work. And yet we have it from them in black and white. The news from their society makes inspiring reading. It is fine that your young people are so busy about the Master's work. News of what one set of young people are doing spurs others on to worth while accomplishment. We wish them Godspeed in their fine work!

Sunday School

By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.

JULY 29, 1923

MATTHEW THE PUBLICAN
Matthew 9:9-13; Luke 5:27, 28

GOLDEN TEXT—"I came not to call the righteous, but sinners."—Luke 5:32.

SCRIPTURE LESSON

Matt. 9:9 And as Jesus passed forth from thence, he saw a man, named Matthew, sitting at the receipt of custom: and he saith unto him, Follow me. And he arose, and followed him. 10 And it came to pass, as Jesus sat at meat in the house, behold, many publicans and sinners came and sat down with him and his disciples.

11 And when the Pharisees saw it, they said unto his disciples, Why eateth your Master with publicans and sinners? 12 But when Jesus heard that, he said unto them, They that be whole need not a physician, but they that are sick.

13 But go ye and learn what that meaneth, I will have mercy, and not sacrifice: for I am not come to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance.

1 * * * * *
Lu. 5:27 And after these things he went forth, and saw a publican Levi, sitting at the receipt of custom: and he said unto him, Follow me. 28 And he left all, rose up, and followed him.

SHORTER CATECHISM

Q. 47. What is forbidden in the first commandment?
A. The first commandment forbiddeth the denying, or not worshipping and glorifying the true God as God, and our God, and the giving the worship and glory to any other, which is due to him alone.

Matthew was a publican or tax-gatherer for the Roman government. Capernaum was on the sea of Galilee, in which much traffic was carried on, and he "sat at the seat of custom," or collected tolls. His business was lawful as the government had to be supported, but was unpopular among the Jews, because it represented subjection to a foreign power and because the publicans were often dishonest men of bad character. Nothing is recorded to the reproach of Matthew, whose original name was Levi. His business was legitimate and lucrative and might be honestly conducted. He was a man of capacity, and so diligent in his employment that he does not seem to have attended Jesus' preaching. He must have been a Jew, too well acquainted with the prophecies of the Old Testament scriptures, for otherwise he would not have been competent to write His Gospel, proving Jesus to be Messiah, by fulfilled prophecies. Examining the lesson we attend to Matthew's Call; His Feast; The Pharisees Criticism of Jesus; Why Christ Sought Publicans and Sinners.

I. Matthew's Call

He did not seek Christ, but the Lord sought him as He did Zacchaeus of Jericho. Jesus saw that he was diligent in his secular work and knew that when converted he would be equally faithful in his religious labors. In like manner, He saw that Saul, energetic as a mistaken Zealot, in persecuting Christians would be when rendered a disciple, in like manner diligent in multiplying Jesus' followers. Matthew's call from the Lord was brief and positive. He says, "Follow Me." He directs Him to leave his present employment, possessions and worldly prospects, to attend on His ministry and to become qualified for His service. Matthew had to make some worldly sacrifices and to part with some things deemed valuable. So does every man that becomes a Christian. But what He gains far exceeds his losses. Matthew has decision of character and so had Moses and Ruth, and all must have who follow Jesus. Matthew's decision was wise and prompt. "He left all and followed Him. So did James and John, the sons of Zebedee." They left their boats and nets, fathers and business and followed Jesus to be made "fishers of men." Did they ever regret the choice made?

II. Matthew's Feast

When He accepted Christ he made a great feast. This was not to display his means, or merely to express his joy at his change of life. Nor was it simply to honor the new Master whom he had made the ruler of his life. He desired to benefit at this feast, his fellowmen and associates in business. He invites as his guests many other publicans and sinners that they may be brought in contact with Christ and share His blessings and salvation. Surely this is a natural and laudable purpose for a pious man who has just attained a Christian hope. Should not every man who becomes a disciple of Jesus feel an interest in his fellowmen's religious welfare and especially in those of like occupation? Should he not make vigorous and faithful efforts to bring them to Christ or Christ to them that they may share like precious faith.

III. The Pharisees Criticism of Christ

They come to His disciples saying, "why does your Master eat with Publicans and sinners?" They did this, not only at Matthew's feast, but on many other occasions. When Jesus went to Zacchaeus' house, they said, "This man has gone to be guest of a man that is a sinner." The charge they constantly brought against Him was, "This man receiveth sinners and eateth with them." Thank God the charge is true and properly understood, it constitutes Christ's highest glory. If Jesus did not receive sinners and enter into intimate relations with them, who could be saved? The Pharisees inferred from Christ's seeking the society of sinners that He shared their principles, enjoyed their company, and was a bad man.

IV. Why Christ Sought Publicans and Sinners

He was good and sought them for their own welfare. He says "They that be whole need not a physician, but they that are sick." "I came not to call the righteous but sinners to repentance." He sought Zacchaeus, the Publican to bring salvation to his house, to reform his character, to assure him of pardon, and to render him a righteous man. He addressed the dying penitent thief on the cross not to approve his sinful deeds, but assure him of mercy, to recreate his nature, to comfort his heart and impart to him the cessation of ills and the hope of glory immediately after death. The human physician goes to the suffering patient not because he is like him or desires to partake of his diseases, but because he is sound and endeavors to heal him of his maladies, and to give him health and vigor. For such purposes Jesus sought and seeks sinners now.

Christian Endeavor

By Rev. J. G. Garth, Chairman of Synod's Committee of Sabbath Schools and Young People's Work.

A NATURE PSALM

M., July 30—God in nature: Rom. 1:16-23.
T., July 31—A lesson from flowers: Matt. 6:28-34.
W., Aug. 1—The grass's message: I Pet. 1:24, 25.
T., Aug. 2—The dumb ox: Isa. 1:2-9.
F., Aug. 3—The roar of the sea: Luke 8:22-25.
S., Aug. 4—Night and ignorance: Rom. 13:11-14.

Sun. Aug. 5—Topic: Lessons from the Psalms. 8. A Nature Psalm. Ps. 104:1-35. (Outdoor consecration meeting.)

In this psalm which deals with nature we are clearly taught that nature is the creature of God, that it is perfect in beauty and use, and absolutely subject to God's almighty rule. The psalm shows that God made nature with all its different forms, sustains nature in all its works, and particularly watches over all the creatures of nature that can feel, such as animals and men, by which watchful care we mean God's providence. The catechism teaches us about God's works of creation and providence. God's work of creation is His making all things of nothing, by the word of His power, in the space of six days, and all very good. God's works of providence are His holy, wise, and powerful preserving and governing all his creatures and all their actions.

Since we are God's creatures, and can think, feel, and love, we can look at nature and learn its great lesson. We reach through nature up to nature's God. The psalm says, Bless the Lord, O my soul. We must stir our souls to the praise of God, by thinking about God and His wonderful works. We are by nature sinful, and are inclined to forget God, and to receive His providence without thanking Him, or realizing the value of His blessings.

God's Creation of All Nature

Psalm 19 tells us about God's making the stars and the sun. Psalm 104 devotes its praise to God for making and preserving the earth. It compares God to a great king, whose royal robes are the light, and the heavens are the draperies of his palace. His chambers, or upper rooms, are in the high atmosphere where the rain dwells. God has a royal chariot, that is, the clouds, and the storm and tempest are his steed. He has a great throng of attendants, the angels, who mingle with the lightning flashes and the thunderbolts.

The psalmist then tells us that God made the rock foundations of the earth and covered them with the mighty deep, the ocean. He made the earth, with its mountains and valleys, and commanded the sea not to cover them. God covered the earth with trees and vines, and fields of grain, and put the springs in the hills to water the valleys, and refresh plants. He made the cattle, the wild beasts and the birds, and caused the herb and the grass to grow for their food. He made men, and filled the world with good things for them to eat and drink.

God's Government of All Nature

God not only made all things, but He controls them. He made His laws, and all His creatures must obey those laws. Obedience of law bring happiness to all who obey; but disobedience will bring its punishment on every wrong act. God rules in all the forces of nature. Heat, cold, light, electricity, chemical action, gravitation, every force of nature does exactly what God bids it do, and always acts the same way. The beasts and birds and creeping things never disobey God; they always act according to their nature.

God's Providence over His Creatures

God takes care of every creature He has made. He has made a food that suits each one, and placed it near for them to get it. He made the night for rest and sleep, and the day for work and play. God watches over them all and protects them. Jesus told us how He cares for the little sparrow, and how he clothes the lily of the field. God has to take care also of the big whales in the ocean. If God did not supply all their needs, and protect them, and all things, everything would perish.

Man's Duty to God

God cares for men too, but He has given man intelligence, and made him a sort of under ruler of the lower creatures, and God expects man to use his mind to learn nature's laws, so that he may obey them carefully. He also gave man a conscience, to know right from wrong, lest he sin against God. So while man is God's creature as well as other animals are, he owes God a duty to praise Him, and study His works. One sad thing about man is that he is a sinner, and disobeys God, which the beasts and birds do not do. God threatens to consume sinners by His wrath, because they know the right and will not do it. So the psalmist calls upon his soul, his rational and moral nature, to bless God and praise His name for all His wonderful works to the children of men, and to refuse to sin against God who has been so good and thoughtful for human happiness and welfare. Let us do the same thing, and urge our souls to think upon God's greatness, and goodness. And let us remember that God will forgive our sins, if we come and ask him to forgive them for Jesus' sake.

ORANGE PRESBYTERY YOUNG PEOPLE HOLD RALLIES AT HIGH POINT AND DURHAM

By Miss Rachel Beall

During the first week of July the young people in Orange Presbytery held two interesting rallies, at High Point and Durham. These meetings were arranged primarily as echo meetings of the Presbyterian Young People's Conference held at Davidson College in June.

The High Point meeting, held July 5th, was attended not only by the local young people but by two auto loads from Winston and several auto loads from Greensboro and other neighboring towns. Miss Ruth Miller of Greensboro prepared the program and Miss Alma Headen of High Point arranged for lunch and music and handled the publicity work.

Rev. C. H. Patterson, of Staunton, Va., addressed the meeting. He is a forceful speaker and all who heard him were inspired to more loyal and faithful service to Jesus, their Lord and Master. Mr. Patterson was enthusiastic over missions, as he was born in China and lived there until he was 14, and is leaving in August with his bride for the land of his birth.

Reports were given on the Davidson conference. Those reporting were: Physical Life, James Neal, Reidsville; Social Life, Miriam Anderson, Winston; Spiritual Life, Carmel Ferguson, Greensboro. Miss Effie Gillis also gave a report on the Young People's Conference at Montreat. Three life-work recruits spoke on "Why I Am a Life-Work Recruit." These talks were beautifully presented and made a great impression upon the hundred or more present. In an open discussion period a number of new methods were suggested.

The Durham rally on July 6th was held in the Blacknall Memorial Church, and Rev. Mr. Patterson was again the chief speaker. He urged that as many as possible should prepare themselves thoroughly for foreign mission work and then go to China. Just before his address the story of the ten virgins was attractively presented through the medium of a pageant. Following the address Mrs. J. R. Barry sang "How Long Must We Wait?" and altogether the impression was very effective.

After lunch, when the delegates were guests of the Erwin Auditorium in its cafeteria, reports were given from the Davidson and Montreat conferences. Those telling of the Davidson meeting were: Miss Annie Mae Causey, Miss Elizabeth Hansel, and J. J. Fenton. The reports showed that Durham had one of the largest delegations at the conference, that contributions were doubled over the past year, and that Orange Presbytery won first place in athletic honors. Lawrence Beall and B. U. Brooks, Jr., reported on the Young People's Conference at Montreat.

The work is hustling along in Orange Presbytery and the young people are taking a great deal of interest.

Manchester, N. C.—The Young People's Society of the Church of the Covenant, Manchester, N. C., gave the "Mexican Fiesta" at the church. Program was carried out fully, and every one seemed delighted. A free will offering of $15.65 was taken up and sent to help with Mexican School for Girls in Texas. Mrs. Murchison Fairley is leader of the Y. P. Society, which has 25 members and was organized three months ago. Mrs. Fairley took 15 of the boys and girls to Linden to Y. P. Rally. All came home much interested in all the work that other young people are doing.

He who is engaged in a good work has his mind occupied with the things which go to make up a good life.

After all, there is not so much difference between wisdom and common sense.

Church News

THE MONTREAT SUNDAY SCHOOL CONFERENCE, AUGUST 1-8, 1923

By Gilbert Glass, General Superintendent

There has been some confusion about the opening date of the Montreat Sunday School Conference. The original dates as stated in the Montreat program leaflet were August 2-8. We have arranged, however, to have the opening meeting for organization, assignment to classes, etc., on the evening of August 1st, so that classes can begin on the morning of August 2d. This will be a great advantage to those who are taking the important textbook courses and the educational lectures by Dr. Weigle.

We were able to make this arrangement because of the kindness and courtesy of Dr. Henry H. Sweets whose conferences will close, according to the new arrangement, at noon on August 1st. We greatly appreciate this courtesy on the part of Dr. Sweets.

All pastors, superintendents and Sunday School workers should make a special effort to have their churches represented at this important conference. Please do not delay to make your hotel reservations with the Montreat management. Fine accommodations can be secured at cottages and boarding houses if hotel space is all taken.

There will be no conference fee apart from the cost of the Montreat gate ticket; and registration for classes can be made after arrival at Montreat.

Conference programs have been sent to all pastors and superintendents, and additional copies will be sent on request.

We cannot urge you too strongly to come to this conference and to bring as many of your workers as possible. Do not delay to make your reservations. Certificates for reduced railroad tickets can be secured from Montreat, or the Presbyterian Committee of Publication, Box 1176, Richmond, Va.

A CORRECTION

On page 37 of the minutes of the General Assembly there is this minute concerning the adoption of the report of Standing Committee of Foreign Missions: "Recommendations 18, 19, 20 were adopted by a rising vote and the Assembly was led in prayer by Rev. W. C. Alexander, D.D."

When this report was adopted number 18 referred to the re-election of Rev. Egbert W. Smith, D.D., as Executive Secretary for three years, and numbers 19 and 20 referred to the retirement of Rev. S. H. Chester, D.D. and Rev. H. F. Williams, D.D. This was a correct minute at that time.

Owing to certain changes made in the report by the Assembly it was found necessary to make a second copy of the report. The report was re-numbered to correspond to the changes made by the Assembly. This threw the numbering in the minute out of harmony with the numbering the report.

Number 18 of the minutes should now be number 17 and so on. I regret very much that I did not catch this change and make the minute to correspond. I gladly make his statement in justice to the brethren concerned.

J. D. Leslie, S. C.

BARIUM SPRINGS NEWS

The official detour highway number 10 between Statesville and Salisbury, goes right through Barium Springs, and this means that scores of our friends bound for Montreat or other parts of the mountains drive right up to our door almost before they know it. Quite a number are thus seeing the orphanage for the first time and many are stopping to pay us a short visit, we are glad to say.

All those who are seeing the place for the first time or after a lapse of years express their amazement at the immensity of the plant and the tremendous scope of the work.

While quite a number of the children and matrons are now on vacation there are still enough of us left to make a sizable crowd, and when anything like a picnic causes us to swarm so to speak it looks like a very big crowd.

Speaking of picnics two big days stand out in the weeks' events, the first being Wednesday the 18th when one of the Echo meetings of the Davidson Young People's Conference was held here. While not so many were present as they had planned for, still this meeting was an inspiration to young and old alike. When we see these younger people preparing themselves for leadership and conducting a meeting of this kind, it makes us older heads stop and take stock of ourselves. Maybe we waste most too much time worrying about how God is going to get along with His work after we are gone. If we could spend a little more time in one of these conferences and see how abundantly God is raising up others for His work, maybe we could then give of ourselves more freely to the work in hand for the comparatively few years until we surrender to the younger leadership that we can see all around us.

Between the afternoon and night exercises picnic dinner was had on the campus, after which the Synod boys entertained the crowd with a football game. The game ended 10 to 5 but that doesn't even indicate the line plunges, end runs, and fine tackling that made the game sparkle. We started to say shoe-string tackling, but this team was barefooted, the age limit being 11 years. Only one substitution was necessary in the whole game. One back after a fierce tackle lost both suspender buttons and had to retire from the game.

All the farm, truck farm, and dairy bunch, together with the kitchen girls enjoyed the State farm picnic Thursday, two prizes being won by our crowd, the prettiest girl and the freckliest boy, they were equally proud.

Commencing the fourth of July we sent out 5,000 circular letters direct to a list of our friends for money to wipe out the present $20,000 that we are running behind in our support fund. Up to date we have received about 200 replies with a total of $2,600. We try to thank each donor separately but take this means to thank them all through the columns of this paper and to urge on those who have not responded to not lightly turn down this appeal.

During the summer months we try to get our house in order for the coming year, and to this end endeavor to get all necessary operations done in the summer. We have had 19 tonsil operations already, with at least an equal number still to be worked on. Our good friends at the hospital in Statesville do this work free for us, otherwise it would be an almost impossible burden.

Our faculty for the coming year will have several names that will be remembered by lovers of the home as having labored most successfully in former years. Miss Kate McGoogin and Miss Templeton being two well-known names.

Any one that has raised a family can appreciate to some extent the disappointments and failures we must encounter in dealing with a large number of children as we have here. How our best plans at times seem to go wrong, our earnest endeavor to go for naught. But for the fact that it is most certainly God's work and cherished by Him we might at times grow discouraged. At these times though something always happens, and one of these things recently was a letter from one of the boys that used to be here. A bad boy when he was here who after several turbulent years, was encouraged to leave and go to work. This letter shows this young man to be a real worth while citizen and true Christian and now holding a position of responsibility. For his ability to hold this position he gives Barium credit entirely and for his character today he declares the influence while here on him is responsible. What is the use of being discouraged when things like that are happening all the time?

NORTH CAROLINA

Charlotte—In the absence of the pastor, Rev. J. F. Ligon, who with his family is away on vacation, the pulpit of the Tenth Avenue Church was filled last Sabbath at both services by Rev. E. F. Griffith of the A. R. Presbyterian Church.

Westend—This church has had a very helpful and delightful meeting. The evangelistic point was not stressed as we had a good meeting last autumn with 20 additions. For the purpose in view the meeting was a great success. A large number of God's people in the community renewed their covenant of service and consecration. The congregations were fine, and Dr. Henderlite who did the preaching made a deep impression on the minds and hearts of the people of this section by his clear and impressive presentation of the Gospel message. R. G. M.

Selma—Rev. Leonard Gill came to us on the 28th of June and preached for us for ten days. He preached the good old Gospel in great power and quite an interest was manifested throughout the meeting. On Thursday we had to move out of our own church in order to accommodate the crowds.

Our good Baptist brethren kindly accorded us the use of their building. So we moved to the Baptist church and all the churches in town fell right into the spirit of the meeting. This was one of the lasting benefits of the meeting. Everybody was helped by the series and there were 13 professions of faith and five additions to the Presbyterian Church. An offering was taken for Synod's Home Missions and this totaled $75.

Pinetops—On June 14th Rev. Leonard Gill, Synod's evangelist came to us and began a meeting, which lasted for ten days. He preached the Gospel with great vigor. Mr. Gill denounces sin in all its forms, and declared the damnation of the soul by sin, and holds up to them, as their only hope of deliverance, the Saviour who died on the cross. We feel like such fearless preaching of the old, old gospel will continue to bear fruit. There were seven united with our church on profession of faith and baptized. The church gave $100 to Synod's Home Missions.

On July 1st, a congregational meeting was held for the purpose of electing officers. There were added to our eldership three, deacons added five. The number of elders now being five, and the number of deacons seven. God be praised.

Community Church—Rev. L. Smith preached for us for a week beginning the latter part of May. He preached with convincing power. The meeting was held in a very busy time for the farmers. Many made real sacrifices in order to attend the services. While there were no professions during the meeting, the people were greatly blessed. As a result of the meeting the next Sunday there were three additions to the church by profession. One old man 79 years old who had never attended our services until the meeting was in the number. He is greatly rejoiced now that he is in the fold. One of the splendid evidences was the fact that as soon as he found the Lord he went out and brought his son and during Mr. Gill's meeting he too joyously accepted the Saviour.

July 25, 1923

This little church has just passed its first year and now it has reached a membership of thirty.

Winston Salem, First Church—This church has purchased the old high school lot adjoining its property for $50,000. The purpose of the purchase is to provide room for a new Sunday School building which will be erected in the near future. The present building is totally inadequate to meet the needs of the growing school. This additional ground gives the church a frontage of 175 feet on Cherry Street running through 200 feet to Marshall, the most magnificent site in the city.

A committee representing the Session, the Woman's Auxiliary and some of the classes of the Sunday School is preparing to establish and conduct five mission schools at suitable points in the city. In this movement the church has the active co-operation of Rev. George W. Lee and his congregation of the North Winston Church. One of these schools was organized Sunday, July 15th with 47 in attendance. A thorough canvass of this neighborhood is meeting with splendid success which it is hoped will lead to the establishing of another Presbyterian Church.

On July 9th Mrs. Warren H. Stuart and Rev. James E. Bear and Mrs. Bear were guests of the Woman's Auxiliary. This church has assumed part of the support of Mr. Bear who will shortly leave for his work in China. The expenses of Mrs. Stuart who went to the foreign field from this church are borne by the J. M. Rogers' Bible class. Near the close of the hour appropriate gifts were made to these missionaries as a token of the love and esteem in which they are held.

Through the generous kindness of some of his officers Dr. John S. Foster will spend his vacation touring the West with the Thomas Educational Tours. Twenty-eight days will be spent in the trip which will carry the party through the Canadian Rockies, California, Colorado, Pike's Peak, Yellowstone Park and other points of interest.

North Carolina Synodical Home Missions—Three quarters of the Synod's year are done and the Executive Committee met in Charlotte on July 12th to hear the report of the superintendent and to go over the work.

The reports of this quarter show the Synod's committee is aiding in the support of 76: 66 ministers, 10 lay workers, eight of them trained women chiefly in mill villages.

This is the largest number that has ever been on our force at one time in the history of the work.

Their work has been in 241 places in North Carolina, 150 of these organized churches.

The evangelists of the Synod have held 11 series of evangelistic services in the quarter, namely: Rev. William Black, D.D., Norman, Mt. Carmel, Sparta, Piedmont, West Avenue Charlotte; Rev. Leonard Gill, Tryon, Washington, Mt. Olive, Concord Second, Salisbury Second, Pinetops.

In the work of the whole 76 in this quarter, 262 were added to the Presbyterian Church on profession of faith. Three Sunday Schools were organized.

In the three quarters since Synod these workers report 1,013 added on profession of faith in their work.

In the quarter yet before Synod we are praying and hoping for the total to be brought to 1,500 at least, as the summer is the most fruitful season of ingathering in the work.

Now for the finances:

The total receipts from all sources from Synod to July 10th, including $990.25 from the Church and Manse Erection League, $40,038.51.

For the same period last year total receipts were $33,111.42; showing an increase in the three quarters of 21 per cent, $6,927.09.

This is a good increase for which we thank God and His people.

The total amount expended for the quarter to June 30th, including $4,503 for churches and manses, and $500 for the Sunday School and Young People's Committee of the Synod, $46,373.02.

For the same period last year the total expenditures were $37,498.49; showing an increase in these three quarters of 24 per cent, $8,874.58.

Shall we not thank God for the privilege of enlarging the work this much?

We want to know however just where we stand. The difference between receipts and expenditures for the three quarters as above show a shortage of $6,334.51. Our outlay will be full $5,000 a month for the remaining three months to Synod. Our receipts in these three months last year were just the rise of $15,000. Will God and His people send enough more in these three months this year to cover the shortage for the nine months past? Our confidence in Him and in His people is unshaken.

Pinehurst—In the selection of Rev. C. B. Craig, pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Laurinburg, N. C., to come to Pinehurst, N. C., for the week of June 24th to conduct a series of services each day at the large and beautiful community house, Rev. W. L. Wilson, pastor of the local church, made a wise choice.

This meeting was a success from the first service. Large crowds attended, especially the open air gatherings. The music was inspirational and was led by Mr. Bruce Cameron, a Presbyterian elder of more than local fame in musical circles, assisted by Mr. Craig, who also has a splendid tenor voice with leading qualities which he uses with great effect. One of the most appropriate features of the musical program was the selection of the hymns, which was done by Mr. Craig himself, selected for their appropriateness to the subjects of his Bible messages, and were all of the type of songs which was an expression of the Soldiers of the Cross in the battle for God and the right. His sermons were very fine in subject matter, full of thought and appropriate. They were in the main a call to the Church, calling men and women as well as girls and boys to come to the help of the Lord against the mighty, and he stressed the witness of the Holy Spirit in the lives of professing Christians, and the reading of God's word as the means of knowing the will of God.

His appeals to the church for those who had taken the vows to be true to God, being faithful had marked influence which was particularly appropriate at this time, as the Home Mission Board of the Presbyterian Church of North Carolina, especially the Fayetteville Presbytery with the local members of this denomination are trying to perfect plans whereby they may establish a strong church at Pinehurst with a minister serving full time, which will mean much to the religious sentiment of this community.

Not only did Mr. Craig appeal to the church members, but he won the young people and children who came to these services, and his beautiful as well as interesting and deeply spiritual sermons to the young people as his very life seemed to say to them "Follow me as I followed Christ" left a lasting influence. And the one thing that seemed to appeal to saint and sinner in this godly young man was the wholesome normal, manly life he not only seemed to live among men, but the fact that he made following Jesus the natural, most to be desired of all things.

Quite a number have joined the church as a result of these meetings and more will join. The Sunday School has received quite an impetus. One young lady is contemplating going to Moody Bible School to study for Christian service, and a Christian Endeavor Society has been organized with 26 members, and on all sides one hears talk of a new Presbyterian Church at no distant date.

Mrs. R. Pyron.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Pee Dee Presbytery—The constitutional requirements having been met, I hereby call a meeting of Pee Dee Presbytery to be held in the Presbyterian Church of Cheraw, S. C., July 30, 1923, at 11:30 a. m., to consider and act upon the request of John Alexander Caligan to be received under care of Presbytery as a candidate for the ministry and to transact any other business connected with the same.

M. J. McInnis, Moderator.

Bethel Church—A protracted meeting of a week was held at Old Bethel Church six and one half miles east of Clover, S. C., beginning July 13th, at 11 o'clock, and continuing until Thursday, July 19th at eight p. m. At the first service and throughout the meeting the people gave good heed to the plain, practical, and forceful preaching of the Gospel. No one, it seems, could listen to this earnest preacher of the Gospel without receiving benefit. We are sure God's people were refreshed and four souls were added to the church by profession of their faith. We trust that there may be others who will identify themselves with the people of God as a result of this meeting. At the last there was an offering taken to show our appreciation of the faithful labor of this servant of God and $57 was contributed. We trust that this is only the beginning of a great revival of pure and undefiled religion in this church.

Elder.

APPALACHIA

Canton, N. C.—Recently Rev. Thurston B. Price, a general evangelist of the Methodist Church, South, conducted a three weeks' union evangelistic campaign in the town of Canton. Mr. Julian P. Moorman, of Bristol, Tenn., was the song leader, and directed a great choir of 100 or more voices. All the churches of the town, consisting of two Methodist churches, the Baptist, the Presbyterian, and the Episcopal church, united in the big meeting which was conducted under a tremendous tent erected for the purpose. The pastors of the town had been planning for and preparing for this meeting for six months. For two weeks prior to the meeting cottage prayer meetings were held in the homes of the town. The spirit of unity and co-operation on the part of the pastors and churches was exemplary.

Rev. Mr. Price preached the old story of the Gospel in power and the demonstration of the Spirit. He is plain and out-spoken in his manner, but always speaks in the spirit of love and sympathy for the sinner. A large portion of the messages were directed to the church members, and were effective in putting new life into the churches. On one night when all the Sunday Schools of the various churches attended in a body and occupied reserved seats, there were 174 people who confessed Christ and reconsecrated themselves to His service, 117 of these never having confessed Christ before. There were all told not less than 250 professions of faith in Jesus Christ. Many joined the different churches. And many church members reconsecrated themselves to the Lord. The first Sunday after the meeting the Presbyterian Church, of which Rev. W. M. Sikes, D.D., is the pastor, received eight new members on profession and one by letter. Several others are expected to join later. We feel that the meeting has done great things for our town, for which we are truly thankful.

Brother Price's methods are sane and Scriptural. There was no high pressure or undue excitement. The meetings were conducted along sensible and wise lines. We can heartily recommend Brother Price and his work as an evangelist.

ALABAMA

Birmingham—Rev. Chas. E. Diehl, D.D., president of Southwestern Presbyterian University, Clarksville, Tenn., supplied the pulpit of the First Presbyterian Church on July 15th and July 22d. Dr. Diehl made many friends in Birmingham during the campaign for Christian Education. He is always welcomed to the pulpit of First Church.

Selma—The pulpit of the First Church is being supplied during the summer by Rev. S. W. McGill, D.D., of the Presbyterian Theological Seminary of Kentucky, Rev. Thos. S. Clyce, D.D., president of Austin College, and Rev. Harry M. Moffet, D.D., of Birmingham.

Presbyterians of Selma are looking forward with great pleasure to the coming of the new pastor of First Church, Rev. E. H. Gammon, D.D., who is to arrive September 1st.

Tuscaloosa—The worship at the First Church on Sabbath evening, the 8th of July, was in the nature of a farewell to and consecration of Miss Marie Fraker, a fine young woman of the church, who was leaving for mountain mission work. After an appropriate sermon the pastor, Dr. Chas. M. Boyd, called the elders of the congregation to the front. Miss Fraker also came to the pulpit and while she stood surrounded by the members of the church session a beautiful prayer consecrating her to her chosen work was offered by the pastor.

FLORIDA

Dunedin—Sunday morning at the Presbyterian Church in Dunedin, Dr. W. B. Y. Wilkie began his ministry for his 25 years of service in that place. Not long ago, Dr. Wilkie was a business visitor in Clearwater and to all appearances he looked well and strong enough to minister to his beloved flock for 25 more years.

KENTUCKY

An adjourned meeting of the Presbytery of Louisville was held July 16, 1923. The pastoral relation between Rev. E. H. Carleton and the Big Spring and Bloomfield churches was dissolved that he may accept a call to the 76 th Street Presbyterian Church of Birmingham, Ala. The pastoral relation between Rev. R. B. Smith and the Carrollton and LeGrange churches was dissolved and he was dismissed to the Presbytery of Paducah. Mr. Smith will serve these churches as stated supply till he sails for Brazil as a missionary in October.

Mr. John B. Lindenberger, a member of the Bardstown Road Presbyterian Church was received under the care of the Presbytery as a candidate for the ministry.

W. H. Hopper, S. C.

Louisville—The Men's Club of the First Presbyterian Church held a social meeting in the Church parlors on Tuesday evening, July 17th. There was a large attendance on the part of the men of the church and dinner was served by a committee of ladies. Mr. Max Milligan, president of the Men's Club, presided. The social side of the meeting was directed by Mr. J. C. Norton who introduced some very novel stunts for entertaining the men and for developing a spirit of good fellowship. The address of the evening was delivered by Rev. S. W. McGill, D.D., of the Presbyterian Seminary of Kentucky on the subject of "A Layman's Religion."

The Men's Club of First Church is well organized and planning some aggressive work.

TENNESSEE

Memphis—During the absence of the pastor, Rev. Wm. P. Neilson, on his vacation, the pulpit of Idlewild Presbyterian Church is being supplied by Rev. S. W. McGill, D.D., of the Presbyterian Theological Seminary of Kentucky. In spite of the warm weather and the many absences from the city, Idlewild is enjoying splendid congregations both morning and night.

West Side Church, Nashville—This little Church, handicapped for a number of years in its growth and developments by a poor location and inadequate facilities, has in the past three months had a remarkable awakening. Twenty or more members have been received; as many more are in immediate prospect; two additional officers have been elected and installed; Mr. Walter H. Clark, to the eldership and Mr. Lawrence A. Bauman to the diaconate. The congregation has definitely decided to move out on West End Avenue about four or five blocks from its present location on 28th Avenue and build a modern church equipment. Three committees are working on the promotion of these plans, holding a weekly meeting after the Wednesday evening prayer service. This move has the enthusiastic approval of the pastors of the other Nashville Presbyterian churches and Dr. James I. Vance, of the First Church is heading up a movement to put behind this effort the concerted sympathy and assistance of the Presbyterians of the city. The church has set as its goal for the summer months the increase of its membership to 200 and it is confidently believed that this goal will be attained. The new location is one of commanding importance and gives to West End the promise of an exceedingly rapid development as it lies well within the gateway of Nashville's choicest and most rapidly developing residence section.

Cor.

Educational

Hampden-Sidney College—Rev. E. G. Gammon, D.D., for five years pastor of the college church, has resigned to accept a call to Selma, Alabama. Dr. Gammon carries with him the love and confidence of the entire congregation and student body. He has done a most fruitful and lasting service at Hampden-Sidney.

Prof. Herman Bell, of Clarke County, Va., who for the past few years has been doing special work at Johns Hopkins University, will have charge of the work in the department of Romance Languages during the coming session. He comes highly commended not only as an instructor but also for his Christian character.

One of the most constructive steps taken by the college in recent years is the appointment of Prof. Macon Reed as the registrar of the college. Prof. Reed is highly equipped for this position both by disposition and training, and he will render to the college a fine constructive service. Every sign points to an over-flow attendance of students next session. At this date more than twice as many new men have applied for admission as at this time last year. Letters coming into the office from parents show that they are anxious for their sons to be in a college where they will be surrounded by the most wholesome Christian influences. If a young man is safe in any college he is safe at Hampden-Sidney.

Presbyterian College of South Carolina—The president has just received notice from the General Education Board that they will continue their contribution of $5,000 a year to the college for the purpose of increasing professor's salaries.

Plans are now being completed for enlarging the dining hall and kitchen, which is absolutely necessary in order to take care of the increased number of students. This work will be pushed as rapidly as possible so as to be completed when college opens in September.

Commencement at Nacoochee—A magnificent highway is being constructed from Gainesville to and through the Nacoochee valley. This will open up that wonderful country and its people and products to the outside world. This highway will be a swifter and a safer route than the present railway. The writer tried both ways and he knows.

A year of successful work in Nacoochee Institute was brought to an appropriate close by a series of entertaining and instructive exercises. Friday night the pupils of the music department gave a delightful entertainment that reflected great credit upon their accomplished and painstaking instructor. Saturday night was Home Night. The "Progress of Civilization in America" was dramatized. We were made to love our homeland more. As the "Story of Nacoochee" was unfolded in action there was a hearty consecration on the part of each and all to her history and principles.

Sunday was a high day. The Bible school was at its best. The commencement sermon was preached by the beloved and efficient pastor of the Newman Church, Rev. J. E. Hannah. His clear and ringing message on "Faith" will linger in the hearts of young and old and will bear fruit throughout their lives. The Bible Department had the evening hour. The program was presented by the "grand-children"—the children of former pupils—as well as by other students. The Bible charts were accurately and artistically executed.

Monday morning was the Primaries' time. And a happy time they had with their songs and recitations and play. That night members of the High School set forth a rousing and rollicking play which bespake their hopes for college days. It was full of merriment, of movement, of high moral, and mutual sympathy. This play and the literary exercises of Tuesday morning were a high commendation of the estimable principal who had trained them. These exercises consisted of declamations and readings and a debate.

The writer had the honor and the happiness of looking into their honest eyes and down into the sincere hearts of the large class of graduates and speaking a message to their responsive wills. Out of those North Georgia mountains Nacoochee Institute is mining what is richer than pure gold. Superintendent J. K. Coit and his noble assistants desire our prayers and deserve our fullest support in every other way. Rev. J. W. Stokes.
College Park Ga.

Centre College Commencement—The one hundredth annual commencement of Centre College was an occasion of unusual interest. The feature of the commencement was the inauguration of Dr. R. Ames Montgomery as president of the college. Dr. Montgomery has taken hold of his new work splendidly and Centre is already showing the results of his fine leadership. Another feature of the commencement was the presence of two members of the graduating class of 50 years ago. These men were accorded special honor.

The baccalaureate sermon was preached by Rev. W. L. McEwen, D.D., of Pittsburgh, Pa. The address to the graduating class was delivered by Rev. O. P. Barnhill, D.D., of New York City, a member of the class of 1900. Twenty-six young men received the degree of A.B. One young man received the degree of M.A.

The degree of LL.D. was awarded to Lieutenant Colonel Hume, of Kentucky. Rev. John Rice, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Danville, and Rev. S. Waters McGill, of Louisville, received the degree of Doctor of Divinity. The commencement closed with a carnival in which the students and citizens of Danville participated.

Elise High School—It is with deep regret that the friends of Christian Education have voted the closing of several of our Presbyterian High Schools. In this connection, the recent action of Fayetteville Presbytery is interesting, for, after carefully considering the increasing number of State High Schools with all the advantages they offer, Fayetteville Presbytery decided that the need still exists for Elise High School, and has taken steps to establish Elise firmly.

Fayetteville Presbytery goes on record as believing in the need for a Christian High School in which the Bible is taught; in which all the teachers are consecrated, Christian men and women, as well as college graduates; in which History and Science are taught from Christian viewpoint; in which individual attention is given to each student, and, while the importance of thorough study is not minimized, the importance of character-building is emphasized; in which students are interested in the activities of our Church through the Christian Endeavor Society, the Sunday School Mission Study Classes, daily prayer meetings in the dormitories, and addressed by missionaries, ministers, and others prominent in the work of the kingdom.

In taking this action, Fayetteville Presbytery was also influenced by the remarkable results of the work of Elise High School. Fifteen ministers of the gospel are graduates of Elise. Next year will see two Elise graduates in Union Seminary; two preparing for the ministry at Davidson College; and three candidates in school at Elise. Elise also claims two Sunday School missionaries. Mr. White McNeill, who gave his life for his country in France; and Miss Roberta Bain, who is doing such fine work in Johnson and Harnett Counties. Last year's Y. M. C. A. Secretary at Davidson, Mr. Ormond Currie, is another Elise boy, but space would fail to tell of the fine records in many fields made by those who were students at Elise.

Elise had students last year from every Presbytery in the Synod of North Carolina. Some students are young men, who have been unable to secure an education earlier, and appreciate the special advantages offered here; some are from sections, which the State High Schools do not reach; many are sent here for the Christian influence. Four years, standard, high school work is given and the A grade colleges have placed Elise on their approved list of High Schools. A music course is given under a competent teacher. The homes of the pastor and the principal are always open to the students, and they are ready to counsel and advise.

Elise has accomplished great things, though handicapped by poor equipment, but now Fayetteville Presbytery has authorized the building of a new dormitory for the girls, and the remodeling of the present girls' dormitory for the boys. The new dormitory will be a modern building, capacity 50 girls, and will be ready this fall. Another new building on the campus will be a church, which will be a great factor in the religious life of the school. A feature that will especially interest the boys is the new athletic field which has been secured, and the return of Prof. S. D. Story, who proved such a good coach last year.

Some scholarships are available for those who need help (apply to Prof. J. D. McLeod, Hemp, N. C.); but so many apply for help who must be refused. Aiding these worthy students to secure an education should interest those who are searching for an investment, "where neither moth nor rust can corrupt and where thieves break not through to steal."
Mrs. W. L. Wilson.

Hemp, N. C.

News of the Week

From Stockholm, Sweden, comes the news of the opening session of the third congress of the Baptist World Alliance, in session there this week. Baptists from 36 nations answered the roll call.

Barrett and Company, New York, reputed to be the world's largest cotton factors, have announced themselves as unable to meet their million dollar obligations.

Wage increases of from one to three cents an hour for shop crafts employes of the Southern railway have been authorized as the result of conferences in Washington.

From Mexico City, July 20th, comes the news that General Francisco Villa, one time noted bandit leader, and his chief of staff, Colonel Miguel Trillo and three members of Villa's escort were assassinated in an ambush on the outskirts of Parral, in the state of Chihuahua.

About a half dozen men comprised the band of assassins. They fired upon Villa and his men from a house they were passing and are reported to have made their escape from the scene.

William H. Anderson, superintendent of the anti-saloon league of New York, on July 20th, was indicted on several counts and the grand jury which returned the indictment recommended legislative investigation of the league since Mr. Anderson took its helm in 1914.

Three indictments—two charging grand larceny in the first degree and one forgery in the third degree—were handed down today.

Mr. Anderson plead not guilty and issued the following statement:

"I shall bear as a medal of honor and a service badge my indictment for political purposes by the most corrupt and powerful wet political organization in the world as part of the Tammy conspiracy to put the nullification governor of New York state in the White House in defiance of the conscience and character of the nation."

The European situation does not grow brighter. In reply to England's suggestion, Premier Poincare stated recently that France stands unalterably for the complete execution of the Treaty of Versailles and the full payment by Germany of 132,000,000 gold marks, the sum fixed at the London conference. France, he added, opposes the appointment of an international finance commission to reconsider Germany's debt and supplant the reparations commission.

No more concessions will be made by France, was the gist of his address.

The recent decision of Federal Judge George Bourquin, at Helena, Mont., holding unconstitutional that portion of the Volstead act limiting the amount of alcoholic liquor that may be prescribed is "absolutely correct" and will have the endorsement of the American medical profession, according to a statement made by Dr. William Allen Pusey, president of the American Medical Association.

A suggestion that negroes show a spirit of magnanimity and yield to the white people of Alabama in the controversy over the negro veteran hospital at Tuskegee Institute was put forth in a statement by Wallace A. Battle, president and founder of Okolona Industrial School, of Okolona, Miss, who is himself a negro.

The Turkish delegation to the Near East Peace Conference announce that it has accepted the proposal of the Allies to reopen joint meetings of the experts in an attempt to agree upon satisfactory formulas concerning the questions yet in dispute which had been holding up the conference, notably those concerning concession in Turkey. The Allies made this proposal in an effort to break the deadlock.

Exodus of farm-labor continues, according to the southeastern fortnightly crop report July 1 to July 15, made public by the United States department of agriculture. North Carolina, the report added, reports a net gain in some counties at the expense of states further south.

A legislative program calling for adjusted compensation for world war veterans and affecting their rehabilitation, hospital care and insurance will be pressed upon Congress when it convenes in December by the Disabled American Veterans of the World War.

Grain exports from American ports last week amounted to 3,613,000 bushels compared with 4,627,000 bushels the week before.

E-Secretary of War, in his appeal for the League of Nations, told the women in Cleveland, Ohio, that Europe is now more nearly ready for war than it was in 1914.

Asserting that insurance companies have confiscated millions of dollars because of lapsed payments by policy holders, Representative Thomas, democrat of Oklahoma, announced he would introduce a bill in the next Congress, seeking to guarantee to the public "the full benefits under all insurance policy contracts."

The money held by the companies, Mr. Thomas said, consists of funds which "rightfully belong to the estate of unfortunate persons who permitted their policies to lapse after making a sufficient number of annual premium payments to give their policies a paid up or extended insurance value."

The opening gun of an intensive and systematic campaign against adult illiteracy in York County was fired at York, S. C., at a stirring educational rally, which was featured by inspiring addresses by J. Rion McKissick, editor of The Greenville Piedmont; J. H. Hope, state superintendent of education; Miss Wil Lou Gray, state supervisor of adult schools; Miss Kate Wofford, Laurens County superintendent of education, and others.

CHILDREN

A LONG TIME READER

My Dear Standard:
I have been reading your paper for a long time. This is my first letter to you. I am a little girl eleven years of age. I am in the sixth grade at school. I have three brothers, one sister. All of you girls and boys write to me. I will answer any letters. I guess I had better close for I am afraid of Mr. Waste Basket. Please print my letter as I want to surprise my mother and father.

Your unknown friend,
Luda Hough.
Matthews, N. C., R. 19

NEW KIND OF ROSE

Dear Standard:
I am a little girl seven years old. A catbird built a nest in our rosebush. I want to ask you a question. How many sons had Jacob?

Your new friend,
Sarah Perrin Spencer.
Rock Hill, S. C.

HOW MANY JAMESES?

Dear Standard:
My father has been taking your good paper for a long time. I always enjoy reading the "children's page." I go to Sunday School every Sunday I can. My teacher is Mrs. Kirby. I like her fine, because she always explains the lessons so well to us. Please don't let Mr. Waste Basket get my letter, because I want to surprise all my friends. I will close by asking a question: How many Jameses are there in the Bible?

Your friend,
Irene Edgerton.
Kenly, N. C.

SOLDIER'S DAUGHTER, ATTENTION

Dear Standard:
I've been wanting to write your for a long time, so here I come. I hope my letter will be enjoyed as much as I enjoy the letters in the Standard. I am visiting out in Aunt Jane's country, near Mebane, N. C., but am going to my home in Durham soon. I love to visit my Aunt Jane and go fishing, especially with my brother, George, but he isn't out here now, so I haven't been this time. I hope the soldier's daughter will write about her trip to Europe.

Your little friend,
Andy Oldham.

OUR YOUNGEST CORRESPONDENT

Dear Standard:
This is my first letter to you. I am a little boy one year old. I am too small to write but my aunt is writing for me. I live at Hamlet, right close to my grandmother and grandfather. My aunt lives across town from us. I love to go to her house and play with her kitten. Please publish this as I want to surprise my grandmothers and grandfathers.

Your unknown friend,
Clay McRae.
Hamlet, N. C., R. 1.

"CHIEF"

Dear Standard:
I am a little girl thirteen years old. I go to school at Spring Hill. I was promoted to the seventh grade. My teacher was Miss Eunice Gibson and I liked her just fine. I have two sisters living at Hamlet, N. C. I visit them every summer. I have a pet puppy; his name is "Chief." I will close for fear of the waste basket.

Your friend,
Mary Alice Boyle,
Wagram, N. C., Rt. 1.

A LADY IN DISTRESS

"A wrong to right—brave deeds to do. Forward, my comrades." Throwing back his khaki shoulders, Gerald White led the "Ten Modern Knights" down the road to town. Five of these gallant knights were girls, but they had scorned the name of knightesses, as suggested by Gerald, and insisted upon being called knights like the rest—knights of chivalry. Of course in the pageant at school they had taken the parts of fair damsels, but in real life they much preferred to do the rescuing than to be rescued.

Clad in khaki hiking costumes, the knights tramped blithely along, expecting any moment to be called into action. The world was full of trouble; weren't the front pages of the papers full of it? They'd surely come on some of it somewhere if they looked hard enough. Little Belden, the youngest of the knights, carried a bright brass trumpet, the one he had used in the pageant. "We may need it," he had said artlessly when the others laughed at him. "Never you mind," whispered Grace, the youngest of the girls, "I brought my make-up box along, too; we may need to disguise ourselves or something." Eyes bright with eagerness, the two youngest knights could scarcely wait for something to happen.

"Supposing we don't find any one to help," cried Betsy, one of the older girls, looking disconsolately at the cheerful bungalows they were passing. Not a distressed face in any of the prettily curtained windows. Not a single forlorn damsel sat weeping on any of the carefully swept doorsills. Why, the very children seemed discouragingly happy, riding about on their kiddie cars and velocipedes or shooting this way and that on roller skates. Even the day was bright and sunny.

"Did you ever glimpse anything so absolutely peaceful in all your life!" exclaimed Doris, Gerald's twin sister.

But what was that? Ten pairs of startled ears drank in the sounds thirstily. Wails, piercing wails! They were in luck after all.

"A wrong to right—brave deeds to do." Quickly rounding a corner, the thrilled knights discovered the source of the distressful sounds—a pretty stucco cottage half covered with vines. Scream after scream, each one more agonized than the last, pealed from it. A mother whipping her child—a step-mother maybe! Could they interfere? Uncertainty dwelt on every face. A fearful cry! Surely the child was being murdered. A wild stampede up the front steps; Gerald's hand on the bell.

Almost instantly the cries ceased. A sound of approaching steps, and a worried faced lady appeared in the doorway. At sight of her khaki filled porch, she drew back in amazement.

"Madam," spoke up Gerald, "we hear cries, distressing cries. We feared some one needed assistance."

The lady smiled a little grimly. "Some one certainly does need assistance; step this way."

Up the curving staircase with its turkey red carpet tramped the gallant ten after the lady. Into a sunny room with latticed windows she led them. There in a little white bed crouched a tiny boy.

"Now," remarked the lady coolly, "if two or three of you will hold his hands and four or five, his legs, and one or two, his nose, I may be able to give Johnny his medicine." Picking up a bottle of dark colored liquid, and a spoon, she stood waiting.

What an adventure for ten brave knights! So disarmingly different from what they had anticipated. But, after a paralyzed pause, they did it.

Like a swarm of khaki-colored locusts they settled around the thoroughly astonished Johnny. Just his tightly closed mouth left uncovered. Popped it open to get breath. In slipped the medicine. The deed was done.

"Drop in every two hours," implored the lady as they were leaving. "I certainly need your help."

"Well-I-I—" Gerald twiddled his cap, then glanced up and detected the twinkle in the lady's eye. "Sorry," he said grinning, "but we're bound for the city this afternoon."

The city and real adventure. On marched the eager knights. Before long they were in the crowded streets. Among all these people surely, surely — They gazed curiously into the passing faces; what tragedy might lie behind them? At the great buildings they stared with awe; what might not be happening within them? Doris' glance swept the windows high against the sky; some kidnapped child or disconsolate maiden might be imprisoned behind one.

"Look out!" Gerald grasped her arm, just saving her from a speeding auto. "Better look alike," he admonished severely, "or you'll be a dead one before you do even one brave deed. Then how'll you feel?"

Nothing happened. Despairing of any adventure, the girls began inspecting the dainty summer dresses in the store windows, the boys paused longingly in front of radio displays, motor cycles and the latest models of racing cars. Grace and Belden stopped automatically in front of every candy store. Feet glued to pavement, mouths watering, they could hardly be dragged away. Hunter Betts even suggested that they all go to the movies. "Last Performance of Alice in Wonderland," the big electric sign of the Alhambra invited them in. The object of their expedition was in grave danger of being forgotten. It was Doris who finally brought them to time. "I've found her, I've found her," she cried gathering the knights about her.

"Found whom?"

"A lady in distress! Come on, come on," urged Doris. "I saw her crying—through the glass door of a store, her head in her arms and everything."

"Perhaps its something we can't help," Betsy put in cautiously.

"Perhaps it isn't," declared Doris; "I'm going to find out anyhow. You wait for me here."

Doris' courage lasted until she got inside the little store, then dwindled away. The lady she had seen weeping had disappeared. A young girl came forward. "Can I show you a dress or a coat? We have some beautiful organdies." Lifting a dainty white organdy trimmed with tiny pink rosebuds from its hanger, she held it for Doris to inspect.

"It's lovely, just beautiful, but—"

"Something more serviceable perhaps; this blue middy suit now."

"Oh, please," cried Doris, "I didn't come to buy; I hoped I could be of assistance."

"I'm sorry," said the girl. "We won't need more help for a long time, I'm afraid; and you're pretty young anyhow. We've just opened this store, my aunt and I, and everything's gone wrong. We had expected to get a good start during the special children's week at the Alhambra next door. You know they're playing 'Alice in Wonderland,' today's their last performance. And we've hardly sold anything. First the stock didn't come; until yesterday we had scarcely a light dress to show. Even now the wax figures haven't come for the window, and oh dear, we'd planned such a pretty group; bought a swing and all. I—" here the girl's voice broke—"I'm afraid we'll lose all the money we've put in."

"No you won't—no, you won't. Wait a minute." Before the bewildered salesgirl could say a word, Doris disappeared in the street. Scarcely had the door swung together before it was opened again, and the gallant ten were on the job. Such a hurrying and scurrying, such a dobbing on of red paint before the long mirror in the back of the store. "We've got to, if we're to look like wax figures," insisted Doris. "Wasn't it lucky I brought the make-up kit we used in the tableaux?" crowed little Grace. "And isn't this dress a darling?"

Doris herself flew to the ticket window of the Alhambra. "How long before you run the Upp and Cumming ad on the screen? In ten minutes just before the comedy? Would the management allow—" Doris' eager accents brought the "management" himself to the little window. Doris' persuasive tongue inveigled an amused "yes" from beneath the "management's" bristling moustache. Doris' excited feet whirled her back into Upp and Cumming's store next door.

"We can," she announced; "we can. But we've got to hurry."

Inside the theater, the film of "Alice in Wonderland" came to an end. They started to run the ads. Listlessly the audience watched. Suddenly a trumpet blast sounded. At the same moment Upp and Cumming's advertisement was thrown on the screen.

"Grand Opening Next Door," the sign read, "Upp and Cumming's, outfitters for children. The latest and prettiest frocks, the nobbiest, neatest suits, all at remarkably low prices. Come and see for yourself."

Below this ad paraded a procession of children, led by Belden with his brass horn. The spotlight played in turn on a write organdy trimmed with ravishing pink rosebuds, a blue middy suit, a delightful pink tissue gingham, an adorable blue sweater worn over an accordinian pleated white silk skirt, a peach-blossom satin party frock, five boys' suits ranging in material from linen to velvet. Turning to show every view of the clothes each child posed in the brilliant light. Then, standing in a straight row, they recited in concert these words:

"For dainty frocks or natty suits, Just try the shop next door. It's Upp and Cumming, Upp and Cumming,

The children's wonder store."

Twenty minutes later, after the comedy had been run, the crowds pushed out. Again they heard the trumpet. Little Belden in a white linen suit stood in front of the children's store. The display window no longer lacked figures. A group of stylishly dressed boys and girls posed in graceful attitudes about a seated figure in a swing made a charming tableau. The store began to fill. Mrs. Cumming, aided by her niece, capably waited on the customers. Joyfully she displayed the garments she had chosen with such care. Sale after sale was made. And every sale would bring others, she felt sure, for the goods were right and so were the prices. It meant success surely; and only a short while ago—oh, these blessed children had come like veritable angels from heaven, turning failure into success! As the store grew more crowded one after another of the "dummies" in the window came to life and helped with customers.

"How can I ever thank you enough," exclaimed the lady at the close of a very busy day. "Don't try, it was fun," cried the children.—Lois Larson, in The Continent.

Marriages and Deaths

MARRIED

Woods-Taylor—In Shanghai, China, April 6, 1923, by Rev. S. I. Woodbridge, Mrs. Grace W. Taylor, of Atlantic City, N. J., and Rev. Dr. Henry M. Woods, of our Southern Presbyterian Mission to China.

DEATHS

MRS. ELIZABETH VICKERS TROY

On the 6th of June, 1923, after an illness of less than 24 hours, Mrs. Elizabeth Troy, wife of the late Mr. A. A. Troy, passed from an earthly pilgrimage of almost 67 years to be with Him who had prepared a mansion for her in His Father's house.

The sudden passing of this life so full of cheerfulness, gentleness, meekness, and love, was a shock and sorrow not only to her eight children and relatives, but to the entire community and many friends elsewhere. None knew her but to love. She died as she had lived, trusting Him who had made her, to receive her in death unto Himself.

Mrs. Troy was a charter member of the Presbyterian Church of Bolton, and a member of the Woman's Auxiliary of this Church. Therefore, we, members of this Church and Auxiliary, desire to place on record the following resolutions:

First. That we humbly submit to the will of Him who doeth all things well.

Second. That the community has lost a woman whose influence was always for good; the home has lost a devoted mother; the Church and Auxiliary a loyal member.

Third. That we express to the bereaved family our profound sympathy, and WANTED—Teachers—English Department High School, also grades. Leading Mountain Mission School.

E. V. TADLOCK
Blackey, Ky.

"A LOVELY PIANO"

You ought to see the letters we are receiving from the enthusiastic members of the Standard Piano Club. Here is a sample from a Music Teacher: "The lovely piano came yesterday. Am just delighted with it; so are my musical friends. The tone is so full and sweet, and the case is lovely."

Another member of the Club, a gentleman from Florida, writes: "The piano is simply a marvel of beauty and tone, as also action. We are all delighted with it."

Write for your copy of the beautifully illustrated Club catalog. Address Ludden & Bates, Standard Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. (adv)

RANDOLPH-MACON INSTITUTE, Danville, Virginia, for Girls. College preparatory and special course for those not wishing to go to college. Vocal and Instrumental Music, Art and Expression. Attractive home life. Gymnasium. Branch of the Randolph-Macon System. Rates $500. Catalogue. Address Chas. G. Evans, A. M., Principal, Box C, Danville, Virginia.

JAMES M. McMICHAEL
Church Architect
Charlotte, N. C.

THE McCALLIE SCHOOL

Founded for Christian education, never more needed than today. Prepares boys for leading colleges and Government Academies. High academic standing. Small classes, individual attention. Military training. All athletics. Fine athletic field, and new concrete swimming pool.

Headmasters
S. J. McCallie, M. A., and
J. P. McCallie, M. A., Ph.D.
For catalog address The McCallie School,
Mission Ridge Chattanooga, Tenn.

commend them to the love of Him who does not leave His own comfortless.

Fourth. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family; to the Presbyterian Standard; and that they be entered upon the Minutes of the Auxiliary.

Mrs. J. K. Fleming.
Mrs. J. F. Stanley.
Mrs. T. J. Edwards.

REV. J. D. A. BROWN

Rev. James Douglas Alexander Brown was born in Robeson County, N. C., November 19, 1837, and died at Aberdeen, N. C. (Moore County), July 18, 1923. He was the son of Rev. Joseph Brown and Eliza (Graham) Brown. At the time of his birth his father was pastor of the Ashpole Church near the present town of Rowland, N. C. While he was less than a year old his father moved with him to South Carolina and became pastor of the Hopewell Church, located not a great distance from the present city of Florence, S. C.

Brother Brown grew to manhood in the old Hopewell community, and graduated with A.B. degree from Oglethorpe University, Ga., in 1859, and from Columbia Theological Seminary in 1862. He was licensed in 1862, and ordained in 1865 by Harmony Presbytery. He supplied Marion Court House, and Little Pee Dee in South Carolina from 1862 to 1865, and then served the Church at Florence, S. C., as pastor from 1865 to 1870. Brother Brown was pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Orangeburg from 1870 to 1874, then stated supply at Washington, Ga., for almost seven years, after which he became pastor of Eutaw and New Hope, Ala. After leaving this field he became stated supply in 1905 of Bethesda, at Aberdeen, N. C., and Jackson Springs, N. C. In 1911, he gave up these churches, but continued several years to supply several small churches in the surrounding country. For several years before his death, failing health kept him from engaging in any regular work.

Brother Brown was twice married, first to Miss Girardeau, sister of Dr. J. L. Girardeau, and after her death to Miss Hutson, also, deceased. Two children born to him died in infancy. He left no near relatives.

Brother Brown was a thorough student, and was unusually gifted as a preacher. He came of a generation that placed great emphasis on the sermon. His sermons, even his prayer meeting talks, were carefully constructed, and written out in full with a beautiful round hand, with every "I" dotted and every "T" crossed.

Brother Brown had gone to Montreat for his usual vacation. Feeling that his strength was failing he took the train for Aberdeen, N. C., just about a week after he got there. He arrived at Aberdeen and was carried to Mr. A. A. McKeithen's residence where he had made his home during the last few years. In this home he was tenderly cared for and everything possible was done for his comfort, but he passed away in less than 36 hours and was buried in Bethesda cemetery. He had reached a ripe old age and was ready to go.

V. R. Gaston.

TRY IT

It takes very little to hearten a man. A hand on the shoulder, a nod of approval, a smile, may put new life into some discouraged soul. These little things may appear very trivial. It may be thought that the man who is affected by them may be very weak. All the same, try them!

You will put heart and strength into yourself by putting them into somebody else. You will not be apt, after making a test, to depreciate them.—Dr. George Summey.

To increase in riches is to increase in temptation to indolence and self-idolatry, to external trust and vain-confidence, to misanthropy, monopoly, and oppression. The only preventive or cure is the cultivation of a noble purpose, so noble, indeed, as to throw into contempt everything that is merely temporal and earthly.—Joseph Parker.

Unfortunately, the people who drive a car for exercise fail to exercise discretion while they are at it.—Ex.

Story and Incident

THE GIRL WHO DOESN'T DANCE

Edith Brown Kirkwood, in The Continent

This is a dancing age. Almost every one from baby Jane to Grandmother Ann dances. Everything from a plain walk, set to music, to the stately minuet recalled from the past social era, is called a dance! The phonograph has made dancing in the home as possible as the orchestra has made it in the hall. The melodious old love song which held the popular favor of

CENTRAL BUREAU of PUBLICITY

FOR

Presbyterian Schools and Colleges

Departments of

Newspaper-Church Paper Publicity

Alumnae Organization

General Publicity

For particulars address R. H. RICE, Director
Box 869, Charlotte, N. C.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION Emphasized Through PUBLICITY

Agnes Scott College

Decatur, Ga.

(In the Suburbs of Atlanta)

A strong College with full educational recognition. Since 1907 a member of the Association of Colleges and Preparatory Schools for the Southern States. On the approved list of the Association of American Universities. Graduates eligible to membership in American Association of University Women.

The great purpose of the College is to develop Christian leaders. Preference given to young women dedicating their lives to Christ.

Many more applications received each year than can be accepted. The regular list closed June 15th. "Honor Group" of spaces kept open all summer for girls of unusual promise, preparation, and earnestness.

J. R. McCain :: President

FLORA MACDONALD COLLEGE

Is Training Students to

DO THINGS --and-- THEY DO THEM

THREE THOUSAND OF THESE FLORA MACDONALD WOMEN ARE SERVING THEIR COUNTRY

AS

- Accompanist
- Assistant Chief Clerk
- Assistant Principal
- Banker
- Bank Teller
- Bank Cashier
- Bank Clerk
- Billing Clerk
- Bookkeeper
- Cashier Insurance Co.
- Clerk Department Store
- Community Worker
- County Supt. Schools
- Concert Manager
- Comptometer Operator
- County Demonstrator
- Computer
- Costume Designer
- Civil Service Employe
- Director Phys. Training
- Dietitian
- Draftsman
- Deputy Supt. Public Instruction
- Insurance Agent
- Librarian
- Lawyer
- Multigraph Operator

To The Prospective Student

We will welcome YOU

into the great body of

YOUNG WOMEN

who are fitting themselves at

Flora Macdonald College

to

DO THINGS

THE FLORA MACDONALD GIRL

Is taught that service is the supreme purpose of education, and that the responsibilities of life can be assumed properly only by men and women of Christian character.

Address THE REGISTRAR for
The Catalog
"Life at F. M. C."
"On The Firing Line"

- Missionary
- Mother
- Milliner
- Matron Private School
- Medical Drawing Expert
- Merchant
- Manager Cafeteria
- Principal High School
- Post Office Clerk
- Pharmacist
- Proof Reader
- Physician's Assistant
- Private Secretary
- Postmaster
- Principal Primary School
- Real Estate Agent
- Stenographer
- Superintendent Hospital
- Surgical Nurse
- Supt. State Institution
- State Red Cross Repr.
- Secretary Girls' Work
- Supt. Opportunity School
- Sales Manager
- Teacher
- Trained Nurse
- Telegraph Editor
- Welfare Worker

FLORA MACDONALD COLLEGE

RED SPRINGS : : : : : NORTH CAROLINA

our mothers' and grandmothers' day—tuneless and a bit sad, perhaps—has given place to the lilt, swinging air of now which sets toes a-tingling. There isn't just "music in the air" nowadays—there is dance music in the air!

And yet there are still a few remaining who do not dance. There even is to be found, now and then, girls who do not dance! What of them in the social scheme?

On the face of things the position of a girl who does not dance looks pretty difficult. It always is difficult to be the odd member of a social circle. Never is it more difficult than in that period when one is young and gay and happy and yearns for the friendships made and the pleasures enjoyed by "the crowd" in common. One likes to be included in all of the fun at that age and it is a perfectly normal desire. The girl who disclaims it is not quite honest with herself. She need not be ashamed of it. But when one doesn't dance in a dancing era and, more than that, when one has been reared to believe, sincerely, that sin hovers back of the dance—well, just how is one to satisfy the desire to be with one's young mates in all things and yet meet the demands of one's conscientious training! It is not an easy situation to face, is it?

Attractiveness Surmounts the Difficulties

There is a little old line which reads "laugh and the world laughs with you." It has been repeated until it has become commonplace but it is quite as true today as when it was written, for there is something about an honestly merry heart and a kindly personality which, when coupled with sincere friendship and clean intellect, just surmounts all difficulties. If the girl who does not dance will endeavor to make herself so cleanly attractive in her friendships and her mentality that she is going to be missed by her friends, even at the dances, she is not going to lose much! Can't be done? Oh, yes, it can. Even today. Try it. No doubt it will be hard but that's part of the game in this merry old world of ours, to take a definite position (if one believes one is right) and laugh as it is held against the difficulties! It is when one is young and attractive and wanted that it is most possible!

I recall a girl who sat at home on the evening of the big watch night dance—the annual New Year's eve party. She danced but she had been ill, and the doctors forbade her participation in frolics until she was stronger. She saw her friends go off to the fun; she helped her chum-sister get ready for the evening, she felt lonely. That was natural. And then there came a ring at the front door and she opened it to find one of her best young men friends on the porch. They were not lovers but they were friendly pals.

Said he: "May I come in?"
"But," she exclaimed, "why aren't you at the dance?"
"Oh," answered he who was one of the most enthusiastic dancers in the town, "I didn't feel as if I cared to dance this evening. I'd rather sit down for a quiet talk with some one who can talk. I knew you couldn't be there tonight and I thought I'd come up for the evening if you don't mind."

They were both young and they were both merry yet that evening with the old year slipping out and the new one coming in they sat and talked, as seriously as young people ever should—talked of hopes and plans for the future, of present joys and discouragements, of a heap of things that made them forget the dance and sent into their history an unforgettable evening of real pleasure. It was not all serious. They were too laughter-loving for that. But it has been remembered longer than the dances!

THE LOUISVILLE PRESBYTERIAN THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
BRILLIANT FACULTY MODERN CURRICULUM
Situated in the heart of the institutional section of a great metropolis, with all the added advantages of these associated institutions
Write for particulars to JOHN M. VANDER MEULEN, President
109 East Broadway, Louisville, Ky.

STOP! LOOK! LISTEN!

There is danger ahead if you are not saving part of what you earn. The world is a hard place for those without money. There is no friend like "ready money" when sickness, or old age comes.

Be fair to yourself and family by taking Building and Loan shares. Shares cost twenty-five cents per week and usually mature in 333 weeks. Net you 6 1/4 per cent at maturity.

NEW SERIES OPENS MARCH FIRST

MECHANICS PERPETUAL BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION

J. H. Wearn, President. 207 N. Tryon St. CHARLOTTE, N. C. E. J. CAFFREY, Sec'y & Treas.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Announces

Popular Excursion

to

Washington, D. C., July 27, 1923

Round Trip Fare From Charlotte

$10.00

Tickets Good Three Days

Schedule Special Train and Round Trip Fares

Leave	Schedule	Round Trip Fare
Charlotte -----	9:05 P. M.	$10.00
Concord -----	9:40 P. M.	9.50
Kannapolis -----	9:50 P. M.	9.50
Landis -----	9:55 P. M.	9.50
China Grove -----	10:00 P. M.	9.50
Salisbury -----	10:25 P. M.	9.00

Arrive Washington 8:50 a. m., July 28th.
Round trip tickets on sale all Southern Railways stations North Carolina east of Raleigh.
Pullman cars and day coaches.

Big League Baseball Games

Washington American vs. Detroit Tigers, July 28, 29, and 30. See Ty Cobb, Walter Johnson, Harry Heilmann and other great stars in action.
Tickets good returning on all regular trains (except No. 37) up to and including train No. 33 leaving Washington, D. C., 9:35 p. m. July 30, 1923.
Special train returning will leave Washington 9:35 p. m. July 30. This train will have sleeping cars for Greensboro, Winston-Salem, Salisbury, Charlotte, Asheville and all intermediate points, also day coaches.
Let us make your reservations returning.
Make your sleeping car reservations early.
For detailed information apply to ticket agent or address,

R. H. GRAHAM
Division Passenger Agent
Charlotte, N. C.

Flora Macdonald College

Red Springs, North Carolina

Where the Spirit of SERVICE and LOYALTY Abounds

3,000 Alumnae engaged in 60 Occupations
10 Graduates "On the Firing Line"

Courses leading to A. B., B. S., B. M. Degrees

Catalog on Request Address the Registrar

SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY

Announces

REDUCED ROUND-TRIP RATES

to

Wrightsville Beach, N. C.,

and Other Resorts

From	to	Week-end
Charlotte, N. C. -----	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	$ 8.60
Lincolnton, N. C. -----	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	9.95
Shelby, N. C. -----	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	10.90
Rutherfordton, N. C. -----	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	12.05

Tickets on sale Fridays and Saturdays of each week, May 18th to September 2, 1923. Limited to reach original starting point Tuesday following date of sale.

Season tickets Charlotte, N. C., to Wrightsville Beach, N. C. and return $11.30, sold any day May 15th to September 30th, with final limit to October 31, 1923.

For sleeping car reservation or other information apply to ticket agent or address,

E. W. LONG
Division Passenger Agent
Charlotte, N. C.

When I refer to laughing I do not mean the eternal grin or the cultivation of the effort always to be funny. These are the most tiresome qualities in the world. I mean the kindly point of view and the merry heart!

To be sure not every one is gifted with the keen intellect that makes for wit but every one can be entertaining if it is the ambition to do so. There are books and

NORFOLK SOUTHERN RAILROAD COMPANY

Passenger Schedules

Effective January 28, 1923

Charlotte, N. C.

Daily Except Sunday as Shown Lv. 7:30 A. M.

Raleigh and intermediate points. Connection for Belhaven, Norfolk, and intermediate points.

For tickets, Pullman reservations and information address or apply to

J. K. POWELL, D. T. A.
P. A. JENKINS, C. T. A.

MARY BALDWIN COLLEGE AND MARY BALDWIN SEMINARY

Established in 1842
For Young Ladies Staunton, Va.
Term begins September 6th. In Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. Unsurpassed climate, modern equipment. Students from 33 States. Courses: Collegiate, 4 years, A.B. Degree; Preparatory, 4 years. Music, Art, Expression, Domestic Science. Athletics—Gymnasium and Field. Catalogue.

- School Desks,
- Opera Chairs,
- Folding Chairs
- Kindergarten Chairs,
- Church Pews,
- School Supplies,
- Blackboards

Southern Desk Co., Hickory, N. C.

COLUMBIA THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Columbia, S. C.

The Seminary of the Synods of South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Florida

FACULTY

- JOHN MILLER WELLS, A.M., Ph.D., D.D., LL.D.
President of the Seminary
Professor of Practical Theology
- WILLIAM M. MCPHEETERS, D.D., LL.D.
Professor of Old Testament Literature and Exegesis
- HENRY ALEXANDER WHITE, A.M., Ph.D., D.D., LL.D.
Professor of New Testament Literature and Exegesis
- RICHARD C. REED, D.D., LL.D.
Professor of Ecclesiastical History and Church Polity
- MELTON CLARK, A.B., D.D.
Professor of the English Bible and Religious Education
- EDGAR D. KERR, A.B., B.D., D.D.
Professor of Hebrew and Cognate Languages
- JAMES BENJAMIN GREEN, A.B., D.D.
Professor of Didactic and Polemic Theology
- HUGH R. MURCHISON, A.B., B.D.
Instructor in Missions

The next session will begin Wednesday, September 19, 1923. For information write to Rev. Hugh R. Murchinson, Executive Secretary, Columbia, S. C.

articles to be read and talked about and there is music to be played and sung and there are football and baseball to be discussed intelligently.

Books and articles? Are boys interested in books and articles? I'd like to come back with a boy's phrase: "You bet they are!" They are greater readers than most girls realize. Not love stories and problem novels. They don't care a rap whether Gopher Prairie exists but they have to be pretty old before they lose interest in a lively tale of adventure or something of stirring scientific interest. The girl who can read and talk about or listen to their kind of story is a good pal who finds herself with friends who seek her out.

Music to be played and sung? It seems to us who now are among the "olders" that the young folks of today have lost much in getting away from the circle around the piano. Boys like music. They like the friendship and companionship of a girl who can play when they want the fun of an evening of music.

Where Is the Girl Who Can Play the Piano?

"My," said a dancing age, lively boy, disgustedly, the other evening, "it certainly is fierce trying to find some one who can play the piano—really play, you know. Now there's Phil—he plays the banjo and Bill has a xylophone and Peter and I have violins and we just die to get together often for an evening of music but there isn't a fellow or girl who is worth shucks at the piano. Not one in the whole crowd! Where do all the music lessons go?"

Now, if the girl who doesn't dance made an effort to play the piano!—! Growing boys like music shared with their fellows. It is an interest they retain through their young manhood if there is some friend to keep it alive. Just mother and sister cannot do it but the girl friends can and it is worth while.

And to be able to discuss clean sports with an air of intelligence! Need anything more be said about that?

None of these things need give a girl an air of mannishness. Good tales of adventure, stirring scientific subjects, cheerful music clean sports will send the best of intellectual breezes blowing through her own mind. It will do her no harm to mix them in with the subjects to which her girlhood naturally turn. They will keep her away from the trivial personalities which are the bane of girlhood, even at its best—give her something bigger than the petty jealousies and bickerings that often are permitted to clutter up her young mind.

And the girl who does not dance can be the most wholesome of outdoor companions. She can skate and ski and toboggan or swim and hike and play tennis. If she does these things and keeps that "merry heart" and kindly spirit which are among the most precious possessions, she may miss the dances but she will not be without company no matter what the season!

WANTED—Christian Cook for leading Mountain Mission School. Attractive proposition for widow with children.

E. V. TADLOCK
Blackey, Ky.

EXPERT KODAK FINISHING

Developing and printing by experts. Most beautiful work guaranteed at all times. Satisfaction or no charge. Developing 6 exposure rolls 10 cents, 10 and 12 exposure rolls 15 cents, film packs 20 cents per pack. Printing 1-5-8 by 2 1-2, 3 cents; 2 1-4 by 3 1-4, 4 cents; 2 1-2 by 4 1-2, 5 cents; 3 1-4 by 5 1-2, 6 cents. Quick delivery. Send one film to test our service.

LIGONS DRUG STORE
Spartanburg, S. C.

Tennessee Military Institute

A school where orderliness, respect for government, and the desire to make good replace recklessness and the "don't care" attitude; where every boy is put on his mettle to measure himself by established school standards. Good name of school rests on thorough academic work, efficient military training and physical development, and the spirit of T. M. I., which inspires boys to their best achievement. Sound government through sensible restraints and incentives to good conduct. Health record unsurpassed. R. O. T. C. Modern buildings and equipment, laboratories, gymnasium, swimming pool, cinder track. All athletics. Charges moderate. For Catalog address

COL. C. R. ENDSLEY, Supt., Box R

SWEETWATER :: :: TENNESSEE

Queens College, Charlotte, N. C.

A High Grade Institution for the Education of Young Women

Christian Ideals constantly held before the Students; Christian Characters in the chair of each Department; Five Teachers with M. A. Degree; Two Teachers with Ph.D. Degree; Christian Atmosphere permeating the Student Body.

Location, the very best: Myers Park, Charlotte. Equipment rapidly reaching standard requirements. Curriculum equal to that of any institution in the State. Expenses very moderate indeed, considering advantages offered and work done.

Our Motto: "Christian Women for Christian Homes." Send us your daughter, support us in our administration and instruction, and we will return a thoroughly developed and fully refined Christian woman.

For catalogue and other information, write

WILLIAM H. FRAZER, President
Box 300
Charlotte, N. C.

UNION THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Richmond, Virginia

Oldest and Largest Seminary in the Southern Church.

Equipment Unequaled

Faculty Unsurpassed

Conservative in Doctrine. Progressive in Methods.

One hundred and twelfth session will open September 26, 1923

ELISE HIGH SCHOOL

PURPOSE: To prepare boys and girls for standard colleges under Christian influences, and to supply trained Christian leaders.

A Presbyterian High School

With a reputation for thorough work; healthy location; comfortable quarters; strong faculty—all college graduates and experienced teachers; individual attention to students; four year course in Bible. Rates $156.50 the year. For catalogue and information, address

JOHN D. McLEOD :: HEMP, N. C.

Aberdeen & Rockfish Railroad

BETWEEN ABERDEEN AND FAYETTEVILLE

EAST BOUND			DISTANCE FROM ABERDEEN	STATIONS	DISTANCE FROM FAYETTEVILLE	WEST BOUND
Pass.	Local Freight	Pass.				Pass.	Local Freight	Pass.
DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY				DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY
NO. 14	NO. 22	NO. 38				NO. 41	NO. 21	NO. 15
7:00 pm	7:30 am	9:00 am	0	Lv. Aberdeen Ar.	45	6:50 pm	3:50 pm	8:30 am
f 7:19 pm	s 8:15 am	f 9:16 am	5	Ashley Heights	49	f 6:35 pm	f 3:20 pm	f 8:12 am
s 7:28 pm	f 8:36 am	s 9:26 am	9	Sanitorium	36	f 6:26 pm	s 3:05 pm	s 8:02 am
f 7:34 pm	f 8:39 am	f 9:30 am	10	Montrose	35	f 6:22 pm	f 3:00 pm	f 7:58 am
f 7:46 pm	f 8:51 am	f 9:38 am	13	Timberland	32	f 6:13 pm	f 2:45 pm	f 7:48 am
8:00 pm	s 9:55 am	s 9:53 am	19	Raeferd	26	s 6:00 pm	s 2:25 pm	7:30 am
	s 10:13 am	f 10:08 am	24	Dundarrach	21	f 5:45 pm	s 1:25 pm
	f 10:21 am	f 10:15 am	26	Arabia	19	f 5:39 pm	f 1:15 pm
	s 10:40 am	s 10:29 am	30	Rockfish	15	s 5:25 pm	s 12:55 pm
	f 10:43 am	f 10:31 am	31	Hope Hills Jct.	14	5:22 pm	f 12:50 pm
	f 10:53 am	f 10:40 am	34	Henix	11	f 5:13 pm	f 12:38 pm
	s 11:00 am	s 10:46 am	36	Clifton	9	s 5:08 pm	s 12:33 pm
	f 11:12 am	f 10:56 am	40	Skibo	5	f 5:00 pm	f 12:18 pm
	f 11:19 am	f 11:02 am	42	Owens	3	f 4:55 pm	f 12:11 pm
	s 11:30 am	s 11:15 am	45	Ar. Fayetteville Lv.	0	s 4:45 pm	s 12 noon

East and North bound trains have right of track over West and South bound trains of the same class. All trains stop on flag at Lake field.

Montreat Normal School

Accredited High School and Normal Courses. Household Economics and two years of college work in addition. Best advantages at least cost. Ideal location and surroundings. A limited number of rooms yet available. Apply promptly if you wish to enter.

Montreat Normal School

Montreat : : North Carolina

Mitchell College

(JUNIOR)

(Founded 1856 by Concord Presbytery)

Two years of standard, accredited college work—courses leading to Baccalaureate degrees—Excellent department of Music—Certificate courses in Home Economics and Secretarial.

MITCHELL ACADEMY

An accredited High School, with standard and flexible courses

Bible teaching emphasized throughout.

Teacher Training courses for secular and Sunday Schools.

Catalog on application.

W. F. Hollingsworth, Pres.

Statesville, N. C.

Sparkles

Once there was a Good Day—a Perfectly good day, warm but not too warm, bright and snappy and glorious. It took a walk to receive men's praises and bask in their gratitude, and this is what it overheard: Casper Rinehart: "Dear me; we need rain." Mary Jones: "How monotonous this weather is!" Samuel Sprague: "Getting horribly dusty." Morton Grant: "It's so windy today I can't burn my leaves." Granny Simmons: "Heigh-ho! The weather today gives me the spring fever." The Good Day went back home discouraged. "What's the use?" it said, "of being a Perfectly Good Day, if this is all that I get for it?" So the next day it rained.—Christian Endeavor World.

Housewife—"I'll not give you anything. Do you know who I am?"

Tramp—"No, mum."

Housewife—"Well, I'm a policeman's wife, and if my husband were here he would take you, and quickly, too."

Tramp—"I believe yer, mum. Your husband 'ud take anybody."—Ex.

It was little Muriel's first time in church, and she was somewhat awed by the solemnity of the occasion. "Mamma," she whispered during a brief pause in the service, "does the minister live here, or does he come down from heaven every Sunday?"—Ex.

Not Apropos

Employer—"Why did you take down that 'DO IT NOW' sign hanging over your desk?"

Clerk—"I couldn't stand the way the bill collectors looked at it when I told them to call again tomorrow."—London Mail.

Interstate Amenities

If Oklahoma don't keep her bank robbers out of Arkansas she soon will have no bank robbers.—Russellville Courier.

TYPEWRITERS

New and Rebuilt
For Sale, Rent or Exchange

S. H. WILEY
Salisbury, N. C.

On your money. It is worth it—why not get it? 6% is 100% more than 3%, and 50% more than 4%. 16 years of Safety and Service.

SECURITY SAVINGS AND LOAN CO.
Assets $1,239,951.22
F. W. DIXON, President - Birmingham, Ala

The STIEFF TONE

Is famous with three generations of music lovers. It has never been duplicated. It is the expression of a passion for perfection that has actuated three generations of piano makers.

Chas. M. Stieff, Inc.,
Charlotte, N. C.
Please send catalogue and prices of Pianos.
Name _____
Address _____

CHAS. M. STIEFF, Inc.
Charlotte, N. C.

STIEFF PETIT GRAND
The smallest Grand Piano made that embodies all the essential qualities of the Concert Grand.

SORES

BOILS, CUTS and BURNS have been healed since 1820 with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 724 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Bad Breath

Is Usually Due to Constipation

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe. Try it today.

Nujol

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

A LUBRICANT—NOT A LAXATIVE

BELK BROS. CO.

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

We call your attention to our HOME FURNISHING DEPARTMENT

Just Received One Car Load of

Genuine Japanese Grass Rugs

All colors---browns, blues, greens. Borders to match colorings

18 x 36 Inches	-----	$.29
27 x 54 Inches	-----	.69
36 x 72 Inches	-----	.98
4 1/2 x 7 Feet	-----	1.69
6 x 9 Feet	-----	2.95
8 x 10 Feet	-----	3.98
9 x 12 Feet	-----	4.75

Let us estimate on your Shades, Floor Coverings, and Draperies.

Will send a man to see you. Gold Seal Congoleum by the yard or the Rug

We appreciate your patronage and guarantee every article we sell. Any business entrusted to us will have our prompt attention.

WE SOLICIT MAIL ORDERS

Belk Bros. Co., Charlotte, N. C.

We make Window Shades any size. Send us your measurements and we do the rest.

We carry a big line of Luggage. All kinds—See us on Trunks, Suit Cases, Hand Bags.

THE PREACHER

teacher, elder or deacon who spends all or gives it away is a dangerous leader in any community. Get rid of him and employ a practical man, righteous, but withal, honest to his wife and children.

THE MUTUAL BUILDING AND LOAN

is the best savings institution in this country. You can carry shares no matter where you live, but you're not doing it, yet you've got to die just as the day laborer. Who's to take care of your wife and little ones for whom you and you alone are responsible?

THINK IT OVER, BROTHER

The July series is just starting. Get in today.

JNO. R. PHARR,
President

E. L. KEESLER,
Secretary-Treasurer
Charlotte, N. C.

Opportunity Never Seeks

The man or woman without money. That is why you should save and steadily build up an account in a strong bank where the money will be ready for you when the right opportunity comes along.

Your account will be welcome here.

"National Bank Safety for Savings"

Charlotte National Bank

Resources Over $5,000,000.00

Dainty Design, Beautifully Finished and Substantially Constructed

This suite in two-tone ivory, or ivory tinted in blue, is the most popular furniture at popular prices we have shown for years for the young lady's room or the guest room.

A treat in bed-room furniture awaits you here.

W. T. McCOY & CO.

211 South Tryon St.

Charlotte, N. C.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

A Religious Newspaper for the Family

Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.

Ev. J. R. Bridges, D.D., Charlotte, N. C., Editor

Rev. R. C. Reed, D.D., Columbia, S. C., Editor

Vol. LXIV

CHARLOTTE, N. C., AUGUST 1, 1923

No. 31

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $3.00 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE
REV. W. L. BOGGS, Circulation Manager

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.,
BY PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY,
A. M. GRAY, Treasurer.

ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858.

Entered at the Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as second class matter

Religious Newspaper for the Family, Devoted to the Interest of Christ's Kingdom as Represented by the Southern Presbyterian Church.

Address all communications, and make all checks payable, to the company, and not to individuals.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The label on the paper gives the date to which subscription paid.

When change of address is desired, give the old and new address. When the date of the label is behind the date of this issue of the paper the label is a reminder that the subscription price is past due. When the date of the label is in advance of the date of this issue it is a receipt for the last subscription paid.

In accordance with the wishes of our patrons, the paper is discontinued only upon the written request of the subscriber. Arrearages must be settled in full at the same time, at the rate of three dollars a year.

No charge is made for the insertion of marriage and obituary notices of fifty words or less. For all over fifty words remit at the rate of one cent a word. Correspondents are requested to give the post office address of married couples when marriage notices are sent.

News items should be in our hands by Monday morning in order to insure their publication in the current issue.

CHANGE OF ADVERTISEMENTS

Advertisers who want their advertisements changed or want to insert new advertisements will please bring their copy to this office by Saturday. It is impossible for us to insert new advertisements or make changes for the current week at a later date.

Advertising rates furnished on application. The size and character of this paper indicate the size and character of its constituency. For reputable advertising there is no better medium for North and South Carolina and the most prosperous section of the South.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

EDITORIAL—
Woman Speaking	1
Sunday at Montreat—(Editorial Correspondence)	2
CONTRIBUTED—
Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick—By Rev. W. W. Moore, D.D.	3
"Grow Old Along With Me"—By Addison ..	3
The White Fields of Japan	3
Quiet Talks on the Simple Essentials—By S. D. Gordon	4
Young People's Conference—West Virginia Christian Education and Ministerial Relief—By Rev. H. H. Sweets, D.D.	4
A Criticism of the Critics—By E. C. Bailey	5
A New Use for a Butter-Box—By Patty M. Logan	5
A Memorial to Dr. Frank Hall Wright	5
"Except They Be Sent"—By Rev. A. H. Atkins	5
DEPARTMENTS—
Devotional	2
Woman's Auxiliary	6
Sunday School—By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.	7
Christian Endeavor—By Rev. J. G. Garth	7
Church News	8, 9, 10
News of the Week	10
Children	11
Marriages and Deaths	12
Advertisements, Etc.	12, 16

TREASURERS OF BENEVOLENT CAUSES

- Foreign Missions—Edwin F. Willis, 154 Fifth Ave., N. Nashville, Tenn.
- Home Missions, General Assembly's—A. N. Sharpe, 1522 Hurt Building, Atlanta, Ga.
- General Assembly's Training School—Geo. W. Call, Richmond, Va., Union Bank.
- Bible Cause—Gilbert Darlington, Bible House, N. Y.
- Christian Education and Ministerial Relief—John Stites, Fifth and Market Sts., Louisville, Ky.
- Publication and Sabbath School Work—R. E. Magill, 618 N. Sixth St., Richmond, Va.
- The General Assembly's Equipment Fund—T. R. Preston, Treasurer, Chattanooga, Tenn.

EDITORIAL

WOMAN SPEAKING

The General Assembly is pre-eminently The Church. In a sense it is the whole church assembled in the service of its Great Head, the Lord Jesus.

Now Saint Paul writing to the Corinthians says, "Let your women keep silence in the churches: for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but they are commanded to be under obedience, as also saith the law. . . . It is a shame for women to speak in the church."

Yet the Church gathered together in our recent Assembly, did invite a woman, a noble, honored, and beloved woman to address them, which she did gracefully and to their edification.

But the question arises in the minds of many, was not this interesting incident in the proceedings of our General Assembly, a distinct violation of the instructions of an inspired Apostle? If not, how can it be made consistent with the teachings of the sacred Scripture? Inquirer.

The above inquiry was accompanied with the request that the chairman of the Committee on Bills and Overtures answer it. Our very great esteem for the venerable brother who sends this inquiry constrains us to say something by way of answer. But really the obligation to answer this inquiry rests elsewhere. The aforesaid chairman voted against permitting the innovation. He heard but one other negative vote. It devolves on those who gave permission for a woman to address the Assembly to reconcile such permission with the teachings of St. Paul.

However, we will venture to say one or two things. One thing is that so far as we recall the only reason assigned for the course pursued was a sentimental reason. Every one esteems most highly the gifted woman who heads the woman's work of our Church. Every one delights to honor her. Not only so, but the men of the Church warmly appreciate the splendid work which all the women are doing under the wise leadership of her who heads the work. They feel that in honoring her they are paying a tribute to all the women, and testifying their gratitude for what the women are doing. Is there any one who wears male attire who does not share this sentiment of appreciation for the women? It is a most worthy sentiment. Who does not prize the opportunity of giving such expression to it as will be heartening and gratifying to the women? We have the example of Paul himself who cherished a deep and tender regard for those "women who labored with him in the gospel." He was not slow in giving expression to this regard.

It is our opinion, merely our opinion, that the General Assembly, without even thinking to take counsel of the Apostle Paul, deemed the occasion a suitable one, and the manner an appropriate one, to honor the noble leader of our woman's work, and through her to honor all the women who are helpers with her in the service of our common Lord. Of course, if they thought of Paul, they did not mean to show him any discourtesy. We are sure that the members of the last Assembly, without exception, would be willing to attest their unqualified and unabated loyalty to Paul as the accredited ambassador of our King and as the faithful proclaimer of the will of our King. They did not consciously and intentionally overstep the boundary marked off by the great Apostle. We have no members in our church courts who have outgrown Paul, and who know better than he what the mind of the Lord is. Doubtless we have evolutionists, but not of that type who believe that is was a purely natural process that lifted Paul above his remote anthropoid ancestors, and that the same natural process, in the course of nineteen centuries, has lifted them above Paul.

It is not for us to explain the mental operations of our brethren. But we may say that a common way to avoid the force of Paul's teachings about women is to say that those teachings were altogether appropriate for his time and country. The sentiments and customs of that oriental country were very different from what they are with us. The women were kept in seclusion and were accustomed to render an abject obedience to their fathers and husbands. If in such circumstances Christian women were permitted any large measure of ability, their conduct would outrage public sentiment, and bring reproach on Christianity. Moreover, Corinth was a notoriously wicked city, deeply sunk in sensuality. There was, indeed, no conscience touching the matter of sexual morality. What we deem flagrant wickedness, they did not recognize as wickedness at all. In this state of society, when women professed Christianity and came into the church, the first thing was to teach them modesty. Anything approaching brazenness, or even boldness, must be sternly repressed. Such teachings as Paul's were eminently wholesome for women who had been reared with such lax views, who had come into the church from a degraded heathenism. But what a contrast to our women, cultivated and refined, enriched with all the graces of the Spirit, Christians by inheritance, Christians from childhood, their characters nourished, moulded, and beautified by all the sweet and gracious influences of our Christian civilization. Why put them under the same severe restrictions that were enjoined upon women just reclaimed from gross Paganism? In all other spheres of life, in the home, in the social circle, in the school, in commercial and political life, women have an immeasurably larger range of liberty than the women of the orient had in Paul's day. The sentiment of our day demands this larger liberty. Shall we remove the barriers in every other direction, and still keep them closely hedged around in the sphere of religion?

Such is the line of reasoning by which many convince themselves that Paul was laying down restrictions that were well enough for those to whom he was writing, but are no longer needed in our day. They are not denying that Paul was speaking by inspiration of the Spirit, but they are limiting his lessons to other times. He was not writing for all time, and for all conditions of society.

There is some plausibility in this view of the case. It is certainly a convenient method of interpretation. One can escape from disagreeable instructions by simply saying that they were not meant for him. Are the restrictions of divine authority? "O yes," he says, "I recognize God's voice, but He is speaking to the other fellow." To say the least of it, there is a dangerous elasticity about such a canon of interpretation.

Then unfortunately for this interpretation, the Apostle lays down the same restrictions in his first epistle to Timothy, when he is not writing to any particular church, or about any particular class of women. Furthermore he argues the point, not from the circumstances of that age or country, but from the relation which God established between the man and the woman when He created them; and from the further fact that Eve was first in the transgression.

We shall not undertake any further answer to our respected inquirer. As already said, we are under no obligation to justify the act of the General Assembly. If those who are responsible for its action wish to confer a favor on those who, like our venerable brother, are perplexed in their minds, the columns of the Standard are open to them.

MONTREAT (Editorial Correspondence)

If a stranger had been asked, last week, whether there were many people at Montreat, he would have fallen short of the number by many hundreds. He would have seen a few people strolling around the lake, and a few languid ladies about the hotels, with, here and there, a member of the male persuasion wandering like a lost soul in paradise, this being predicated upon the supposition that lost souls sometimes stray about in the other world. When, however, Sunday comes, he has to revise all estimates. They come from the nooks and coves of the mountains, from the cottages and boarding houses, till the vast auditorium is nearly filled.

Each week has the same experience, and yet each week the wonder grows whence so many come.

Sunday was a charming day—clear and cool, the atmosphere thoroughly washed by the showers of the preceding day and night.

The preachers for the occasion were fit to accompany the day. In the morning Dr. John M. Wells, president of our theological seminary at Columbia, S. C., and at one time the beloved pastor of the First Church, Wilmington, N. C., preached on the deity of Christ. It was a sermon equal to any of the many fine ones we have heard at Montreat, since it came into existence.

The frame work was a solidly linked chain of logic, welded together by burning earnestness and illustrated from Scripture and from human experience.

In these days of vacillating, temporizing believers, some of whom are afraid of their shadows, it is refreshing to hear such a strong blast of orthodoxy. It is especially refreshing to know that such a man is at the head of one of our seminaries, and that the young men going out from under his influence will have upon them the stamp of conservative orthodoxy.

At the evening hour an audience almost as large as that of the morning, despite the lowering clouds, gathered to hear Dr. A. G. Jones, professor of theology in our theological seminary at Austin, Tex. Dr. Jones was for many years pastor of our church at San Antonio, Tex., which he found a small and struggling flock, some 25 years ago, but which he left a large and influential flock when he was placed at the head of theology in our seminary at Austin.

Dr. Jones preached along somewhat the same lines as did Dr. Wells. He took his text from Ephesians and Hebrews: "That ye henceforth be no more children, tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the slight of men, and cunning craftiness." "Jesus Christ the same yesterday, and today, and forever."

This sermon was a fit companion to that of the morning. It stamped Dr. Jones as a deep thinker and a master of strong logic.

It is worthy of note that he and Dr. Wells are both connected with our theological seminaries, and both are sounding no uncertain note. Here and there in our Church we hear words of caution that we must soft-pedal in these times of spiritual anarchy, lest we stir up strife and bring on the bitterness of heresy trials. Men whisper their views and belittle the danger and insist that others exaggerate the evils, forgetting that false security is always a greater danger than open hostility.

Here are two men, occupying the watch-towers of Zion, who insist that there is danger ahead, and, as true watchmen upon the walls of Zion, they warn us of danger.

On Monday evening we heard Dr. Hemphill make a popular address on the work of the theological seminary.

During the week, devoted to the seminaries of our Church, the program proposes to have classes in Church History, Theology, and the Social Teachings of Jesus, conducted for one hour each day, by the following professors: Dr. R. C. Reed, Dr. Green, and Dr. Lingle.

Then in the evening there will be a popular address by one of the seminary faculty.

A popular lecture on the theological seminary may seem to many what the Latins would call a "Lucus a non lucendo," which in popular language means a contradiction in terms, because popularity and theological seminaries are supposed to be antagonistic.

Nothing proves more thoroughly the versatile talents of Dr. Hemphill than the fact that he moistened this dry subject in such a skillful way as to delight his audience. He reminded his hearers that cemetery and seminary were often confounded in speech and sometimes, we fear, almost in thought, but that the two words are different. Cemetery comes from a Greek word that means a sleeping place, while seminary is from a Latin word meaning a seed plot. One is a place where men sleep, while a seminary is where seed are planted and cultivated.

Throughout his discussion of such a dry topic, he mixed it with humorous allusions that kept his audience in a constant grin. It takes genius of a very high order to keep a popular audience awake when discussing such a subject. Dr. Hemphill proved that he possesses such a gift.

On Tuesday morning we heard Dr. Gray McAllister, of the Louisville Seminary, during the Bible hour. Business had hitherto prevented us. He evidently takes no stock in the new theories about inspiration, but is sound to the core. He wisely distinguished between the importance of different parts of the Bible, but insisted that every part was inspired. He not only took issue with the higher critics as to the authorship of the Pentateuch, but he proved conclusively that Moses was the author. His discussion of the testimony given by excavations, was most enlightening. Rarely have we enjoyed an hour more. The well-rounded sentences, the clear enunciation, the crisp style, together with the keen thrusts, were a continual delight.

As one listens to these different representatives of our four seminaries and compares them with leaders in other churches, we thank God, and feel that our ministry is blessed in being thus guarded against the errors of these troublous times.

The Bible hour, for the week, has been conducted by Doctor McAllister, of the Louisville Theological Seminary. He devoted the week to the books of Genesis and Exodus, discussing the various theories of creation, but stressing that held by the Church in all ages, and also traced the wanderings of the Israelites. When he concluded these five lectures we are confident that his hearers had a clearer idea of this part of the Bible than ever before.

In these days of doubts and speculations, when men in prominent position seem to fear to express an opinion, it is refreshing to hear an expounder of the Bible ring true.

These Bible lectures, always a feature of the Montreat program, are invaluable as a means of instructing the people of the Church in Bible knowledge.

We must commend the committee for confining their choice to men of sound views and orthodox faith, though it is the fashion now-a-days, by those whose Rhetoric is more captivating than their theology, to say that Christianity is not a dogma, but a life. We insist that dogma must be right as well as the life—united they stand, and divided they fall.

Not only are these Bible lectures valuable, but this year they have introduced another innovation. This season there has been a Seminary Conference. Representatives of the four theological seminaries have gathered here and, for nearly a week, have conferred about their work, and in the evenings have lectured to the people.

They have also conducted three classes, one on Theology, Dr. J. B. Green, leader; one on Church History, Dr. R. C. Reed, leader; one on the Social Teachings of Jesus, Dr. W. L. Lingle, leader.

These classes have been largely attended, and the people from all sections of our Church have been edified.

We were able to attend only one lecture by Dr. Reed. He discussed the history of the Southern Presbyterian Church. His room was so crowded that some were unable to enter. He traced our history from its beginning to the present time, and fully explained why we remained independent.

We do not know how general is the teaching of such a subject in all our seminaries, but in examining candidates we are yet to find one who can clearly explain why we separated.

The crowded room and the close attention proved how eager our people are to know the reason for their separate existence.

We only heard the conclusion of Dr. Green's first lecture, and therefore we are unable to pass judgment. Those, however, who did hear him are enthusiastic in his favor.

Of course there was a natural curiosity to hear and see this new star in the theological firmament. One great advantage from this conference of the

(Continued on page 5)

Devotional

THE CROSS

"Is it not strange, the darkest hour
That ever dawned on sinful earth
Should touch the heart with softer power
For comfort, than an angel's mirth?
That to the Cross the mourner's eye should turn Sooner than where the stars of Christmas burn?"

Is it not a unique fact that the chief symbol of Christianity should be an instrument of torture and death upon which, in ancient times, criminals paid the penalty of their misdeeds? But Jesus Christ transformed the cross into a thing of glory, making it to shine with heavenly beauty, and to typify all that is noblest and most sacred in life. It is the sign by which the greatest victories of the past have been won and by which the supreme triumphs of the future shall be gained.

What does the cross teach us? What is the meaning of that tremendous tragedy? The message of the cross is surely one of heroism. It reveals a young man suffering shame and death under conditions that no son of our race ever had faced or ever will face again. But he who sees nothing more in the death of Christ than the heroic has hardly begun to fathom its true meaning.

Calvary is a synonym for purity. He who died there had a stainless soul. All succeeding generations have voiced the declaration of the Roman governor, "I find no fault in this man," and the solemn words of the Roman captain, "Truly this was a righteous man." But we have traveled only a little way along the path of truth if that is all that the cross suggests to us.

The message of the cross is the evangel of divine sacrifice. "Christ died for us," is the plain statement of Scripture, and upon that confession of faith we build our dearest hopes. Into the depths of this mystery we may not fully enter, but we believe that in Golgotha's tragedy, God entered sacrificially into human life. All that we are and hope to be we owe to "Him who loved us and gave Himself for us."

If any one should ask for a theory of the Atonement, let this be offered: "Jesus died for me, and not for me only but for all sinners." All the big, ponderous volumes on theology do not carry us any farther than that.

How can any one turn away from the cross and count the sacrifice of Christ as a thing to be neglected and despised? He who does so is subjecting his soul to fearful peril. It is an awful thing to trample under foot the blood of the Son of God.

What a wonderful thing it is to live in the faith of the crucified Christ! We trust Him, we love Him, we have staked everything upon His Word to us and we shall hold His hand in the hour when the shadows are upon the river and none but He can see the farther shore.—United Presbyterian.

AT THE PLACE OF THE SEA

Have you come to the Red Sea place in your life,

Where, in spite of all you can do,
There is no way out, there is no way back?
There is no other way but—through?

Then wait on the Lord with a trust serene
Till the night of your fear is gone;
He will send the wind, He will heap the floods,
When He says to your soul, "Go on."

And His hand will lead you through—clear through—

Ere the watery walls roll down,
No foe can reach you, no wave can touch,
No mightiest sea can drown;
The tossing billows may rear their crests,
Their foam at your feet may break,
But over their bed you shall walk dry-shod
In the path that your Lord will make.

In the morning watch, 'neath the lifted cloud,
You shall see but the Lord alone,
When He leads you on from the place of the sea

To a land that you have not known;
And your fears shall pass as your foes have passed,
You shall be no more afraid;
You shall sing His praise in a better place,
A place that His hand has made.

—British Weekly.

MRS. CYRUS H. McCORMICK

By Rev. W. W. Moore, D.D.
President of Union Theological Seminary

We record with profound sorrow the death of this "elect lady," revered and loved by all who knew her. She passed away on July 5th after a brief illness, at her home at Lake Forest, Ill. She was 88 years of age, and for many years had been hampered by defective hearing, but she was a person with whom one could not easily associate the idea of old age. Her spirit was so eager and brave, her mind so quick and clear, her interest in current events so keen, her knowledge of business so exact and extensive, her sympathies so wide, and her Christian activities so numerous and varied that she suggested to one's mind the verve and élan of youth rather than the slackening energies of age.

She was not only a great Christian and a large-hearted philanthropist, "a helper of many," as the apostle said of Phoebe of Corinth, but also a greatly beloved personal friend. Like the apostle himself she had a genius for friendship. In addition to a vast circle of acquaintances, who admired and esteemed her for the force and charm of her personality, she had an extraordinary number of intimate friends, who loved her devotedly and who rejoiced whenever they could render her any service.

For my own part, I have never been able to express with any approach to adequacy my admiration and affection for her. When the three General Assemblies, Southern, Northern and United Presbyterian, met in Atlanta in 1913, and the alumni of McCormick Seminary held their reunion banquet, they did me the singular honor of requesting me to respond to the toast "Mrs. McCormick." The request gratified me deeply but it embarrassed me, too, because I knew that anything I could say about her would fall short of what should be said. In my difficulty I turned to the Scriptures, citing to the assembled ministers the description of the Model Woman in the last chapter of Proverbs. Recalling what it says of her domestic virtues, her business capacity, her open-handed charity, her kindness of heart, her wisdom of speech, her qualities as wife and mother, the tribute of her husband—"many daughters have done virtuously, but thou excellest them all," and the piety which crowned all her other excellencies—"a woman that feareth the Lord, she shall be praised," I pointed out that here we had the one adequate description of the gracious and lovely lady whom we all honored and revered. With that cue I tried to say something of her graces of person and spirit, of her Christian faith and life, and of what her influence and benevolence had meant to McCormick Seminary and the world. But it all seemed inadequate, as do the words I am writing now. I had the same feeling in 1909, when in an extended address at Chicago on the Life and Work of Cyrus H. McCormick at the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of his birth, I pointed out that no treatment of my subject would be complete and no understanding of some of his greatest achievements would be possible without some reference to the gifted and gracious helpmeet who had brightened and blessed his life for 26 years and who since his death had continued to abound in all good works. Although I spoke with some reserve at the time, as Mrs. McCormick was in my audience, she told me afterwards that this was the only part of my address that she did not approve. How sincere she was in this modest disclaimer was shown later. When the volume containing all the addresses of the occasion was published—my tribute to her was omitted; the proof sheets had passed through her hands and she had deleted all the statements I had made about her.

But my words were not flattery. They were sober statements of fact. Not to speak of my estimate of her character, take the matter of her relation to the great business created by her husband. Mr. Herbert N. Casson, writing in that same year, 1909, said with truth: "She has been for 50 years and is today one of the factors in our industrial development. Her exact memory and keen grasp of the complex details of her husband's business made her practically an unofficial manager."

It is perhaps not generally known that the immense McCormick factory in Chicago owes its existence to Mrs. McCormick. When the great fire that swept Chicago in 1871 wiped out his two million dollar plant, Mr. McCormick thought of retiring. He still had an ample fortune and he was 62 years of age. His managers advised him not to rebuild because of the excessive cost of new machinery. "As soon as the fiery cyclone had passed he and his wife drove to the wrecked factory. Several hundred of the workmen gathered about the carriage, and the chief engineer, acting as spokesman, said, 'Well, Mr. McCormick, shall we start the small engine and make repairs, or shall we start the big engine and make machines?' Mr. McCormick turned to his wife and said, 'Which shall it be?' It was a breathless moment for the workmen. "Build again at once," said Mrs. McCormick. "I do not want our boy to grow up in idleness." "Start the big engine," said McCormick. The men threw their hats in the air and cheered. They sprang at the smoking debris and began to rebuild before the cinders were cold. Such was the second birth of the vast factory which in its 60 years has created fully five million harvesters, and is now so magically automatic that with 6,000 workmen it can make one-third of all the grain gathering machinery of the world."

Contributed

Certainly, too, there was no exaggeration in what was said about her generosity to all manner of deserving enterprises for the physical and moral betterment of the world. The people of the South and of Virginia in particular admired her illustrious husband for his genius and character—a great Christian and a great benefactor of mankind—and they remember gratefully the timely and generous help he gave to two of our institutions at the time when they were staggering under the calamities of the sixties, Washington and Lee University and Union Theological Seminary. Had it not been for his endowment in 1866 of the professorship in Union Seminary which bears his name this institution could not have done the wonderful work it has been doing for the last 50 years in the training of so large a proportion of our ministers and missionaries. Our people generally are well acquainted with the facts in regard to Mr. McCormick's munificence. Perhaps they are not so well informed as to Mrs. McCormick's no less notable generosity. She did not like to have her benefactions advertised. But she has more than doubled the endowment originally given by her husband for the establishment of the McCormick Professorship. Not only so, she has made various other gifts to the institution, the latest being a subscription of ten thousand dollars last year. So that our people have occasion to remember her with the same gratitude and affection which they feel for her husband.

Her manner of giving, while generous, was always conscientious and careful. She satisfied herself by thorough investigation that the cause appealing to her was deserving, that the organization was doing really valuable work, and that it was being conducted in a business-like way. She could not endure slipshod methods. She once showed me a letter from a good man whom I knew well and who had written to her for help for an institution with which he was connected, and she remarked as she handed it to me that it was such a slovenly letter she had felt like turning down the request at once, but that she was not certain as to her duty and wanted additional information. Happily I was able to give to her a very good account of the institution in question, and she did help it, but I believe she would have helped it more if the president of it had written her a neat, clean cut, business-like letter. Her own letters were models of conciseness and clarity, whether dictated and typed or written with her own hand.

It is not my purpose to attempt any enumeration of her benevolences. Many of them were unknown to the public. Many of them were unknown to anybody. Her gifts to educational institutions alone must have run into the millions. My purpose in referring to this phase of her work in this informal article is to remind the readers of this paper of her interest in and affection for the people of her husband's native state, and especially of her abounding generosity to our Seminary. On this campus and in these halls her memory will be gratefully cherished throughout the future.

But even had she not been entrusted with large wealth, even had she not made these numerous and generous gifts, even had she been a person of small means, the nobility and beauty of her character and the fineness of her personality would have given her a secure place in the affections of all who knew her. She was a precious gift of God to our time.

"GROW OLD ALONG WITH ME"

How does a man feel on his 71st birthday? "Haud inexpertus loquor."

Physically, all right! The years are creeping on, but they brush nerves, muscles, and skin and hair with such gentle touch that one is scarce aware of their passing! The bow yet abides in strength.

Mentally, happy and content! The gallery of memory is hung full of beautiful pictures; the world about is flooded with sunshine; and the outlook to the skies is clear.

Socially, pensive, yet grateful! Many a place is vacant where once stood a frined or a dear kinsman—and "we sigh for the touch of a vanished hand and the sound of a voice that is still!" Yet many dear ones still walk with me, and by their love and companionship suggest to me how sweet shall be the tryst at last of the pure in heart in the many mansions.

Morally, less swayed by passion, more settled in habits of action and thought. Fiercely the gales of temptation have beat upon my bark at times. Often the frail vessel seemed near to foundering, but the pilot was aboard. Glory be to His name! He brought me safely on the way. Now the waters are quieter, and the winds blow less fiercely, as my bark approaches the harbor!

Spiritually, hopeful and confident! My soul rests not in religious forms and ceremonies, nor in personal boasting of moral excellence, but I fix my gaze upon the cross of Calvary and upon the Son of God there dying for my sins, and there I rest! "until the day dawn, and the shadows flee away!"

Personally (thus I sum it all up!) for God and His cause! His Word is truth: I accept it in the face of all devils and unbelievers! His Gospel is efficient: I know it in experience, I see it as it prevails! His grace is victorious: calling all, saving all who come!

Thus I sum up the experiences of a man on his 71st birthday! The morning of life was bright with the promise of the coming day; the noontide was flooded with the heat and glare and fierceness of the sun shining in his strength; the evening is quieter and more beautiful, and the outlook is to the stars and to the golden sunset! All is well! All is well!

Addison.

THE WHITE FIELDS OF JAPAN

It does not need a prophet to predict the most happy and successful year in mission study for the Southern Presbyterian people, with Mrs. Erickson's new book, "The White Fields of Japan."

Being a denominational book it is like "a letter from home" and will be popular with every member of the family circles. Almost every one who opens the book sees the face of a dear one, or reads of the work of a sister, or a child or a cousin. Precious memories will be awakened in every ardent Southern Presbyterian heart.

It is a pleasure to carry about such a book and to place it upon one's library table. It is attractive to look at. Fuji graces the cover and at first glance one would know it to be a book dealing with Japan even before reading the title, so artistically done in near-Japanese print. The paper is good, the print is good. The illustrations are excellent and lead one right into the life-work of the harvesters of those white fields in the most fascinating country of the world.

Mrs. Erickson has covered the great subject from the very earliest missionary endeavor in the sixteenth century to the latest plans and achievements of the Southern Presbyterians in a remarkably small compass. She has boiled down volumes into less than 180 pages. She has crammed the pages full of the most fascinating stories, thrilling adventures, inspiring devotion, and earnest appeals, very seldom permitting herself to revel in details, but giving just enough to whet the appetite for more, much more.

She has endeared herself to all leaders by supplying a pronouncing vocabulary of Japanese names, a most complete list of questions bearing upon the chapters, tables of statistics, names of all the missionaries, and a short bibliography that will prove to be the inspiration instead of the despair of busy study class members.

One of the charming things about the book is to find beautiful little poems, written by the author herself, scattered here and there throughout the book. They are real messages, carrying an appeal for Christ and His cause that grip one's heart.

One would think this poet-author, who is also a busy missionary wife and mother, has almost accomplished the impossible by making this book a reality, but she has gone even further and has put a pageant at the disposal of all who use the book. Dramatics are so popular these days. Some church people can seldom be persuaded to listen to a missionary message unless it be presented in some dramatic way; so Mrs. Erickson has prepared one that can be given by any earnest group in any church. It is full of valuable information and does not necessitate professional skill. It should surely find a place in the program of every congregation this year.

But no appreciation of this book would be complete without mention of the dedication. The author seems to have taken all into the secret chamber of her heart, revealing the sacred influence leading to her life dedication to Christ and His dear lost ones in Japan, when she dedicates this charming book of hers

"To My Mother

In memory of the Sunday afternoons of long ago."

The careful reading and the thoughtful study of this book cannot help being a great blessing to individual lives and the denomination as a whole.

Anna A. Milligan,
Educational Secretary, Foreign Mission Board,
United Presbyterian Church.

Mary found Jesus when she turned her back upon the tomb.

QUIET TALKS ON THE SIMPLE ESSENTIALS

By Mr. S. D. Gordon

No. 5—The God-Man

The blacksmith was right. Ignorant, blasphemous, he railed on the man trying to sell him a Bible. The man defiantly left a copy behind as he slipped out. The blacksmith began reading. Caught, surprised, startled, he sprang up crying, "There's a man in the book."

Yes, there is a Man in the Book. That's the outstanding thing. Look at Him. Born in obscure poverty, cradled among cattle, His home in an unsavory village, among people intensely clannish, He had no touch with schools, never traveled far, had no book, except one, and wrote none, left no organization, and died a death of peculiar shame. Yet within three days after, He was seen alive, and within three centuries he changed the calendar of imperial Rome.

It is fascinating in these older leaves to get fleeting glimpses of an Unusual Man. He talks with childless Abraham under the blue, and used the twinkling stars to number Abraham's unborn heirs. He wrestled one dark night with crafty Jacob, and gives the strange soft touch which bends that rugged chieftain's will. He meets intrepid Joshua at Canaan's gateway, calmly gives orders, and is obeyed.

He talks with cautious Gideon and the nation's long captivity becomes overwhelming victory. Strong Samson's father is overawed to find the Man talking with him strangely no mere man. The Jewish statesman administering the world's empire of the Euphrates is dazed by a Man of Fire in a blinding blaze of light.

At first it is simply a man, in outer appearance, in tone of voice, in garb, in the interest shown. Then, quietly, unmistakably, comes indescribable overpowering evidence that He is not simply a man.

And there is something more that runs along with these fleeting glimpses. There is an Unusual Man Coming. These glimpses merely illustrate the meaning of that. That same childless exile of Ur is told that through his unborn son will come a man who will bless the race.

Sightless old Israel, on the Nile, sees a Man coming to lead the race. The foremost racial lawyer speaks of a Man coming to do for all what he does for the Hebrews. The royal poet sings sweetly of a Man coming to rule, and do it right, and be as a benediction to the earth, fragrant of the dew of the new morning.

Then—then, The Man is here. He is born in a way unknown before, and unrepeated since. He grows up in the simple Nazareth home. Thirty out of thirty-three years, ten-elevenths of His life, is spent in a whitewashed stone cottage and a carpenter shop.

Nazareth means a commonplace life, in its outer circumstance, lived truly for God. Look a moment: rising in the morning, the kindling, milking the cow likely, hanging the kettle over the fire maybe, down the street with a cheery "Good morning" to His fellow-craftsmen.

Then the carpenter shop, amid the odor of the pine shavings, hammering nails, gouging with a chisel, pushing a saw, polishing off the leg of a table for a crusty customer. Back at night, stretching weary muscles, the evening meal, talking over with the mother of the home the small, big, home problems, rent-day maybe, making both ends meet.

And then off sharing sleeping space on a pallet in a corner with a brother. And that not for a year, thirty of them. The Father's plan for the God-Man's life down here meant just that, living, simply living a truly human life, common place in its outer round.

Then there was the smaller part, measured in years. Feeding men's hunger, healing the maimed and lamed and diseased, robbing the grave of its victims, comforting sore hearts, talking over personal problems in the doorway, teaching by the roadside.

Is it any wonder the Galilean hills rang with praise of this Man, faces brightened at the mention of Him, homes echoed glad songs, little children came a-running, strong men and women came and listened and went with a peace within.

Then the opposition. Of course. The enmities aroused, the selfish ambitions blocked, old prejudices rudely jolted, cherished plans threatened. And then the climax. Ten times the leaders tried to do Him to death, and are held off with an unseen power they can't understand and can't resist. Then He allowed them to take Him, and do their worst.

And He did it, He said, for us. There was some terrible need that it be done, that dying. So He died. And when the tomb had quite done its work, He quietly let Himself up, up toward His true centre of gravity. No tombs for Him when that one had done its work.

Truly He was the God-Man, and is, as human as though only human and nothing more; as really God as though only God and nothing else. Jesus was the Face of God looking into men's faces. He was the Voice of God talking into men's ears. He was God Himself in human shoes, hand-pegged, and in human clothes, homespun, hand-stitched.

NO. 6—THE HUMAN GOD

Y. P. CONFERENCE—WEST VIRGINIA

The third annual Young People's Conference of the Synod of West Virginia was held at the Greenbrier Military School, in Lewisburg, June 13-21. One hundred and eighty-two boys and girls were registered and 32 leaders helped to make this in many ways the best conference yet held in this progressive Synod.

The slogan of the conference was "Be a Graduate," and of the 26 second-year students present in 1922, 18 returned to complete their work and form the first graduating class from a young people's conference in our General Assembly. The course of study offered is as follows:

First Year: The Life of Christ; The Creed of Presbyterians; Foreign Missions. Parliament.

Second Year: The Bible and You; Ancient Church History; Home Missions. Parliament.

Third Year: Book Study of the Bible; Modern Church History; Stewardship. Leadership.

You will see that this represents real work and that it means something to receive a diploma. The grade required for certificates (first and second year) or diploma, is an average of at least 75 per cent. The executive committee whose planning and untiring zeal made possible this splendid conference is composed of Mrs. R. F. Dunlap, president of West Virginia Synodical Auxiliary; Rev. T. P. Allen, secretary of Stewardship for the Synod; Rev. B. F. Sperow, conference director; Rev. Jno. I. Armstrong, D.D., president of Lewisburg Seminary, and representatives from each Presbytery, as follows: Miss Charlotte Persinger, Kanawha; Mrs. R. S. Johnson, Greenbrier; Rev. W. C. Williams, Tygart's Valley. This is a sub-committee of Synod's Committee on Sunday School and Young People's Work.

One of the most striking things about this conference was the large part of the program in charge of the young people themselves, and the fine way in which they "put across" the things for which they were responsible. The athletic and social features were in charge of Mr. Carl Anderson, of Huntington, and Miss Marion Burnside, of Point Pleasant. These young people provided many different forms of entertainment and there were no lonesome folks in the whole group, judging by the way in which each one entered into the games, contests, etc. The conference music was led by Miss Edith Ross, of Huntington, and Miss Leta McLelland, of Charleston, and was thoroughly enjoyed by all. Miss Lucile Harmon, president of the graduating class, arranged the program for the morning devotions, having different delegations in charge each day. Many fine messages were given by these boys and girls to their fellow students.

Perhaps the best time of all was the conference Sunday. As we watched that long line of almost 200 delegates marching through the quiet streets of the town on a beautiful June morning, to the Old Stone Church, built so many years ago by the first settlers, "to the Glory of God," we felt that the future of this great state would be safe in the hands of such young people as these, who will so soon be among the leaders in every walk of life. The beccalaureate sermon, by special request of the class, was preached by Rev. J. I. Armstrong, D.D., who has had so large a share in the building up of this conference. The class advisor, Mrs. R. F. Dunlap, and Miss Nancy F. White, Rev. B. F. Sperow, Rev. H. H. Orr, and Rev. W. C. Williams, all of whom have been with the class during the three years, marched with the graduates and wore their class colors. The sermon was a most helpful one on "Partnership With Jesus in Christian Service." The Scripture, repeated in full from memory, was the 21st chapter of John's Gospel. The closing message to the class from the heart of the speaker was as follows:

I have heard glad youthful voices
Sing God's praise in other meetings,
Where the hush of great life choices
Followed hard on happy greetings;
But today I stand before you
And I feel a new elation,
For I know that West Virginia
Is the first in graduation
Of her youth in summer conference.
And to you is due the honor,
For your pluck and for your patience,
And your steadfast grip of purpose,
Which have proved the stuff you're made of.
But I am not thinking only
Of the ranking of our State, or
Of the sturdy youth that grace her
Verdant hills and vales; today my Mind is lifted unto Jesus,
Lord of Life and Prince of Peace. I Know full well He sorrows over
Death and strife so common in our Own fair State, and elsewhere, too, till
'Tis no wonder multitudes grow
Sick with longing for His presence
In the world again. But He has No voice now but ours to speak His Words of cheer to weary men and Women waiting long to hear. No
Feet has He but ours to walk the Stony pathways seeking dearly

Loved ones lost in body and in Soul. No hands has He but ours to Break the bread of life to hungry
Multitudes who sometimes stretch out
Eager hands to take, are sometimes
Too weak to take, too blind to see.
Our hands must lift the drooping head
And press to parched lips the cup
Of water cold, in His dear name.
Little children wait in vain for
His strong arms to hold them safe while
Blessings soft and sweet are spoken,
Till in His name we take them and Bless them. Nor may we hope in these Humble ways to render service
To Him and His, till our own hearts
Are His. Then voice and feet and hands
And arms we'll gladly use for Him.
And so just now I'm thinking that
Our State may well be proud and sing
Because we dedicate to Christ
Today the powers that are yours.
I wish for you who graduate
His presence all through life. I hope
And trust each one will prove so true
To Him and faithful that a host
Of His dear brothers will arise and Bless your names, and He Himself will Praise you in paradise above.
And I pray for all who hear me,
On this day so full of promise,
That you every one may be full
Partners of the Saviour while you
Live and work on earth, and then Go home to Heaven where in life
And work unending you will spend
Eternity. With hand outstretched
I pledge you one and all, in faith,
And love, and service, till He come.

It was not possible for the writer to be present throughout the entire time because of the conflicting dates of the Montreat Young People's Conference, but during our brief stay we saw enough to feel assured that each day would get better and better, and that many a young life would be brought into closer touch with the Master through the earnest messages of those who had charge of this conference.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION AND MINISTERIAL RELIEF

By Rev. Henry H. Sweets, D.D., Secretary

The receipts at the office of the Executive Committee of Christian Education and Ministerial Relief, 410 Urban Building, Louisville, Ky., for the period from April 1 to June 30, 1923, for the general work of the committee from living donors, including churches, Sunday schools, societies and individuals, amount to $27,887. This is an increase of $5,931 over the amounts received for the corresponding period last year.

The receipts from living donors for the Endowment Fund were $994, being a decrease of $2,596 from last year.

On June 13th the executive committee met and reorganized with Rev. R. T. Gillespie, D.D., chairman, and Mr. Brainard Lemon, vice-chairman. At this same meeting, by direction of the General Assembly, three women were selected as members of the executive committee—Miss Alice L. Eastwood, for three years; Mrs. J. Gault Fulton, for two years, and Mrs. R. M. Pegram, for one year.

The tenth annual meeting of the Presbyterian Educational Association of the South will be held at Montreat, N. C., July 25-27. The presidents, principals, members of faculty and boards of trustees of all of our educational institutions are eligible to membership in this association.

The general conference on Christian Education and Ministerial Relief will be held at Montreat in the Auditorium, July 29-August 1. Among the speakers, who will present various parts of the work of the committee, are Dr. Charles R. Erdman, Dr. Arthur G. Jones, Dr. J. B. Green, Dr. L. Ross Lynn, and Dr. George F. Robertson.

Attractive programs are being suggested by the executive committee for a "Going-Away-to-College" meeting in the early fall. The students of the church are its richest asset. Increasingly the church is coming to a sense of its responsibility for its youth in schools and colleges.

The General Assembly has authorized the executive committee to allocate $25,000 this year to challenge Presbyterian churches at the seats of the state and independent institutions of higher learning and the Synods to a more careful oversight of the Presbyterian students in these institutions. A careful study reveals that in all these institutions one out of every six or seven or eight students comes from a Presbyterian home.

We are fully persuaded the church, Sunday schools, societies, in view of the larger responsibilities of the executive committee, will increase their offerings and give themselves more earnestly to prayer for this important part of our church's work.

Louisville, Ky.

A CRITICISM OF THE CRITICS

Dear Mr. Editor:

Strange to say, Governor McLeod, of South Carolina, has been criticised for calling upon the people of the State to pray concerning the boll weevil, etc. Criticised for doing what hundreds of governors and a majority of the Presidents of the United States have been doing, without censure, for a hundred years. Of course infidels have criticised them, and it is natural to suppose they would, and it is natural that they will; but the source from which this criticism comes, at present, only indicates how far we are drifting from our moorings: for this country was founded and cradled in prayer. And of the 28 Presidents of the United States 26 of them have been known to be men of prayer and the other two did not deny God's existence: for if they had they had never been in the Presidential chair. One of the criticisms to which I refer was evidently written by a brassy sceptic. Indeed it must have required some nerve to have assailed a governor ruling a Christian commonwealth. The other happened to be a Unitarian minister, if what I have read is true, but we will not quote the blasphemy of the latter, for Ingersoll could not beat it! And only a few days ago I was talking with a man who knew "Robert," and he said, "That man to my certain knowledge blasted the life of his own family by his scepticism." These gentlemen seem to have forgotten that Governor McLeod was not making a demand of the people, but only suggesting what he thought would prove a blessing. He had a right to his opinion; so have these critics, but what was to be gained by the latter, except some notoriety of which one might be ashamed; for what has infidelity done in the way of building up a country? Let France and Germany answer—though not all of them are by any means infidels; but, as a rule, they are a gang of pessimists. They have forgotten that Governor McLeod did not call upon them to pray, but he called upon the people of God. Nobody expects them to pray! We are at a loss to know what they had to do with it. If that class of men who believe in prayer had proven themselves to be menaces to progress, then the criticism was just. I was in Trinity Church, New York, a few days ago (Trinity occupies ground in the very heart of the business world) and the keeper of that church (an intelligent white man) said to me, "Here is the place where 'men,' the leading men of the world, come three times each day in the week and kneel in prayer—for they had services three times each day—though each man went not to every service. And what did they pray for? For their souls? Well, if God answers prayer for a soul, which lives forever, will He not answer prayer for the physical man, too? From Genesis to Revelation this is asserted in hundreds of passages. I was in Baltimore a few days before going to Trinity Church. Dr. Kelly (known the world over) advised me to carry out his suggestions and to invoke God's daily blessings upon the physical man, adding, "Grace will do much to improve your health." As I walked into the store of John Wannamaker, in Philadelphia, I was looking upon a monument to answered prayer. Of course infidels are sometimes rich, but have you ever kept up, for three generations, with a wicked-rich? It is pathetic to do so! It is fortunate for South Carolina that we were not dependent upon Unitarianism for the evangelization of the State; for if we had, our State would be in a deplorable condition—there being only one church, of which I know, in the State of South Carolina, consisting of a comparatively small number. And yet this so-called minister criticises a Christian governor for doing a thing which, admitting it was useless, certainly could no harm. Either he did not know his Bible or did not believe the book from which he selected texts. Whatever may be the opinions of individuals (and they have a legal right to it) the overwhelming majority of our State are thankful that we have a praying governor—the only kind that should rule a commonwealth.

E. C. Bailey.

Accomac, Va.

A NEW USE FOR A BUTTER BOX

By Patty M. Logan

The other day we took a little five-pound butter box and got the carpenter to plane it off nicely, and bore a hole in the back. We hung it on a nail at the front door, under the opening of the mail box full of tracts and gospels. On a piece of paper pasted below we wrote, "Please take a book. The small ones are one sen, the larger ones are five sen. Drop your money into the mail box above." That day 78 people bought books. In the month of May 108 gospels, 188 copies of Mr. Kanamori's "The Way to Faith," and 33 copies of Mr. Kagawa's books were sold, and quite a number of tracts.

It is interesting to hear the remarks at the doorstep as people pause to look at the books. "These foreigners think that everybody is honest like they are."

Some days the books are stolen, but we can only pray for the thief, and trust them again. Some child must have taken some, for they were returned the next morning and put on top of the box. A note was dropped in one day saying that his heart was sad, that he did not yet know the Lord Jesus, but he felt that his heart was being captured by Him. I have since heard that a sister is praying for the salvation of this man.

It is only a little thing, but with the Lord's blessing great results may come.

Tokushima, Japan.

A MEMORIAL TO DR. FRANK HALL WRIGHT

About the time of the completion of Graham-Jackson Hall, which contains the chapel of Oklahoma Presbyterian College for Girls, Durant, Okla., Dr. Frank Hall Wright passed to his eternal reward. Dr. Wright preached in every State of the Union, and in Canada. Through his Gospel appeals and his wonderful gift of song, he was the means of leading thousands of souls to Christ. Friends of his have suggested that some memorial be erected to his memory. Remembering his love of music, they further suggested that nothing could be more fitting than a memorial organ in the chapel of a school that he loved, situated near the place of his birth, and patronized by many of his own people.

The following letter from Dr. W. M. Anderson, Sr., of Dallas, Tex., shows how at least one friend and admirer of Dr. Wright feels towards this proposal:

"It is quite fitting and proper that the Presbyterian College for Girls at Durant, Okla., should build a pipe organ in memory of Rev. Dr. Frank Hall Wright. He very much loved this institution and was greatly rejoiced at its foundation. It occupied a tender place in his heart, and was constantly in his thought. His father, Rev. Allen Wright, was a Presbyterian minister for a number of years, and a man of great influence in that part of the West. He gave to the State of Oklahoma its name.

"Dr. Wright was born about 30 miles from Durant, where the college is located. He was a gifted and trained musician—the best Gospel singer it was my privilege to hear. He preached and sang all over this nation and frequently was called to come back again wherever he had held meetings before. I have seen the audience in the First Presbyterian Church, my church, half be in tears when he sang.

"He frequently visited the college and for a long time supported a scholarship. His widow and sister, Mrs. Edwin Ludlow, are in hearty accord with this suggestion and have made liberal donations towards this organ.

"We are sure that many who see of this memorial all over the United States will want to have a part in this just tribute."

Wm. M. Anderson,

Dallas, Tex. Senior Pastor First Pres. Ch.

Those who desire to have a part in rendering this tribute to a great and good man, are requested to send their offerings (checks or pledges) to W. B. Morrison, President Oklahoma Presbyterian College for Girls, Durant, Oklahoma.

"EXCEPT THEY BE SENT"

By Rev. A. H. Atkins

We are told that 32 of our choicest young men and women have offered to go as missionaries to the foreign field. While we are exceedingly glad to be told this, we are very sorry to learn that there is no money in the treasury of the Church with which to send them. Dr. Nelson Bell, one of our missionaries to the foreign field, urges God's people to pray Him to provide means with which to send them. We could not do anything better than to offer this prayer. Nothing is too hard for Him to do. "Behold, the Lord's hand is not shortened, that it can not save; neither his ear heavy, that it can not hear." "And all things whatsoever ye ask in prayer believing ye shall receive." But though God is willing and able to answer prayer, He will not do so unless we are willing to comply with certain conditions. We would be safe in saying that most, if not all, of these conditions could be summed up in the following passages of Scripture: "If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you." "And whatsoever ye ask, we receive of Him, because we keep His commandments and do those things that are pleasing in His sight."

This is one thing that we must do then that there may be money in the treasury of the Church with which to send choice young men and women to the foreign field as missionaries. We must pray with clean hands and pure hearts.

Another thing that we must do in order that the foreign field as well as the home field may be provided with necessary funds is to pay God the tithe. Notice these figures. The income of the Southern Presbyterians during the year 1922 was $560,000,000. The tithe of this is $56,000,000. Contributions during the year, $11,743,725.

Tithe past due, $44,256,275. The question may well be asked, How much of this amount do you still owe God?

Nothing does the Word of God teach more plainly than that the tithe is a debt that we owe God. It was paid by God's people both under the Patriarchal and Mosaic dispensations. It was endorsed both by the Saviour and the Apostles. It could not have passed away with the Patriarchal and Mosaic dispensation, for it was paid long before then. History tells us that heathen nations paid tithes to their gods and that the tithe was in force as far back as the flood. Our Saviour expressed His disapproval of the views that were held concerning laws, but instead of expressing His disapproval of the tithe He commended it. Had the Word of God taught that it had been abrogated He would have made it plain.

The tithe is a moral precept. As much so as the fourth commandment. If so, it is as truly our duty to pay it as it is our duty to observe God's day as a day of rest and worship.

Another thing that we must do in order to have funds with which to send our choicest young men and women as missionaries to the foreign field is to strengthen our base of supply.

The home field is to the foreign field what a base of supply is to an army. What can an army accomplish without a base of supply? The men and women who are now laboring in the foreign field and the money with which they have been supported came from the home field. If the Church at home is allowed to languish, where will we get missionaries for the foreign field and money with which to support them?

The reason we have so few candidates for the Gospel ministry and so many vacant churches and why so many of our churches at home are perishing is because we are neglecting our base of supply. It may be that the reason why God has not given us money with which to send out these choice men and women is that we may see the mistake that we are making. The writer would not have a smaller number of missionaries sent to the foreign field, nor a cent less given to foreign missions. He would like to see just the opposite done. But this can not be done unless we care for our base of supply—the Church at home.

While reading "The Task That Challenges," I noticed that thousands of country churches are perishing for want of attention. The figures that I saw surprised me. The Home Mission Board of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., created a Country Life Department which conducted numerous surveys. The following statistics are furnished by the survey of three counties in Missouri: "In these three counties are 180 Protestant church buildings, 159 of which are used occasionally, while 21 have been totally abandoned. The investigation shows that 23 per cent of the population is in Protestant membership, about five per cent in the Catholic membership; while at least 71 per cent belongs to no church whatever.

"In 1890 five counties of New York State were exhaustively studied. Many Protestant churches were seen falling into decay or abandoned long since to bats and brick-bats. In one village the investigation found two disused Protestant churches, an active Catholic church, and 14 saloons all within the distance of a quarter of a mile. In one town they found a Presbyterian church used as a barn, a Baptist church abandoned, and two Methodist churches almost extinct, and a Baptist seminary used as a Catholic church; while on the Erie Canal for miles were found scattered hamlets containing altogether a considerable population with no religious services of any kind from one year end to another."

EDITORIAL.

(Continued from page 2)

seminary faculties is that our people from every quarter of the church, have come into touch with them, and know that they are men of piety and learning, to whom Presbyteries can safely entrust their candidates.

Next week, we are to have a Conference on Christian Education and Ministerial Relief, under the direction of Dr. Henry Sweets.

During the week, just closed, much preliminary work has been done. The heads of nearly every school, both high schools and colleges, connected with the Church, have gathered here, and for several days have conferred on every matter connected with their work.

Thus, each season, Montreat is proving its value to the Church, in unifying the plans of work, and creating a harmony of effort among our workers.

Unless one stands here at the center of all activities and watches the effects of these efforts, he can have no adequate idea of what its means to the Church as a whole. Then each year these activities will be extended, and the influence of this place will be more remotely felt. Already it has gone beyond the most sanguine hopes of its promoters, and in coming years it will be even greater.

Woman's Auxiliary

Conducted by Mrs. J. M. McIver, Gulf, N. C.

An Open Letter to the Moderator of the General Assembly.—Dear Dr. Sprunt: The 16 Synodical presidents and the Auxiliary officers, assembled in the annual meeting of the Woman's Advisory Committee, wish to express to you and to the commissioners of the General Assembly of Montreat their sincere appreciation of the recognition bestowed upon the Woman's Work of the Church by your action in placing women members upon the four Executive Committees.

We recall that more than half of our 400 foreign missionaries and still a larger percentage of our home missionaries are women, and that their work is for women and children; that 85 per cent of the Sunday School teachers and a large number of the instructors in our Church schools are women; also that a considerable number of widows and children are under the care of the Ministerial Relief Department of our Church.

In view of these facts, we feel that informed and consecrated women will be of real value to the committees which supervise and direct the activities of these workers, and disburse the benevolent funds of the Church, a large part of which is contributed by the women members.

We rejoice in this new opportunity for service and earnestly pray for wisdom and divine guidance for the women chosen to fill these important places and for all the members of our Executive Committees.

(Signed):

Mrs. Chas. S. Kinkead, Chairman.

Mrs. R. F. Dunlap, Secretary.

Presenting the Report—A Playlet.—(Mrs. W. M. Baker, of Mt. Olive, writes us concerning the following play. We think it might be of help to other young people in presenting this subject.—Ed.)

"This playlet was written and presented at our church by the young lady from our Auxiliary attending Montreat Y. P. conference. It is a perfectly wonderful way of presenting a report, and I would like to see it in the Standard, that others may get the same god out of it that our Auxiliary did.

"Miss Helen Pope wrote it, and others attending might be interested to present it in some way or other."

Scene 1—Aunt Sara and Helen enter the sitting-room.

Aunt Sara—Isn't this a lovely day and Lake Junaluska a lovely place to spend such a day? I know it must be hot down there in Mt. Olive, and, Helen, I had just thought, this is the afternoon for the Woman's Auxiliary to meet.

Helen—This is a wonderful place and a wonderful climate, but, anyhow, at home they don't have to worry over getting someone to wash their clothes. It isn't any joke trying to live out of a suitcase and a handbag and try to look clean, especially when it's hot. Aunt Sara, do you know where I can get a washwoman?

Aunt Sara—No, Helen, I don't. You see, we just came last week, so I don't know many people up here, now. But why not try to do them yourself? We have running water and an electric iron, so it won't be hard.

Helen—Well, I guess I will. I'll go get them. (Walks to side of room.)

(A knock at the door. Telegraph boy enters and hands telegram to Aunt Sara.)

Aunt Sara—Helen, here's a telegram for you. You read while I sign for you.

Helen (jumping up excitedly)—I always have wanted to go and now I can. Isn't it wonderful? Oh—I must pack up.

Aunt Sara—Go where—Tell me about it.

Helen reads telegram:
"Am sending money to Montreat, Alba Hotel. Go at once to attend Y. P. conference, June 10th to 28th, so you can enroll in classes from first day, finish visit later; letter and package from mother will follow; letter with money leaves on night train."
Mrs. W. M. Baker.

That means that the Woman's Auxiliary is sending me. And just think! Uncle Walter is going to Blue Ridge today to attend the Y. M. C. A. conference, and I can go with him. Oh, I must get ready.

Aunt Sara—It is wonderful. Let's go see your Uncle. I know that he will be glad to take you over to Montreat. Let's ask him. (Exeunt.)

Scene 2—Lobby of Alba Hotel, Montreat.

Helen enters.
Helen—Isn't this lovely. The Alba Hotel, at last. Little did I think last week this time that I would ever come here. (Going to desk.) Is it possible to get a room here during the Y. P. conference?

Clerk—Have you registered?

Helen—No.

Clerk—You register with that lady sitting right over there.

Helen walks over to the lady. I wish to register for the Y. P. conference. I did not know that I was coming until this morning, so have made no arrangements.

Lady—What is your name?

Helen—Helen Pope.

Lady—What church? Town?

Helen—Presbyterian. It must be First, 'cause it's the only one there. Mt. Olive, North Carolina.

Lady—Pay your registration fee of $3.00 and show this card to the clerk.

Clerk—Your room is No. 36. It's the only one left. (Helen signs the register, then looks over it.) Here are people from all over the world—Japan, Brazil, Arkansas, Texas, and I don't know a soul. What will I do?

Katherine Goodman (entering)—Helen Pope, of all people! I am so glad to see you. What are you doing here?

Helen—And, I'm glad to see you. I was getting lonesome as I'm the only delegate from my church. I came on over here after the "Y" conference at Blue Ridge. It surely looks good to see an old F. M. C. girl. How do you like teaching.

Katherine—I'd lots rather go to school at Flora Macdonald than teach. Do you know the schedule here? No? Then I'll tell you. From 8 to 9 a. m. is study hour. At 9 Dr. Thompson leads the morning worship which is followed by the text-book courses. You can take either of these that you wish. Then Dr. Turnbull lectures on Genesis, after which you go to your class meeting. Do you know which class you are in?

Katherine—You are in Macduff's, with Mrs. Bunch, of Raleigh, as counsellor. Come on, and I'll introduce you to her.

(Exeunt.)

Scene 3—Helen and Katherine walking toward auditorium—another girl follows them.

Helen—This is one of the most beautiful places I've ever seen. This auditorium is wonderful. How much did it cost?

Katherine—Fifty-five thousand dollars. And the seats are hand-made. Didn't your church help buy them. We paid for two at $2.80 each.

Helen—I don't remember it, if we did. But I don't believe that I'd like to live here. I haven't seen more than twenty houses. I don't see how they have a good time.

Katherine—You just wait until you've tramped around a little bit. There are three hundred cottages here, and last year, 10,000 Presbyterians alone passed through the toll gate. But, hush, it's time for Dr. Thompson to begin. Here he comes now.

Dr. Thompson enters.

For these morning talks have chosen for my topic "Friendship." I will read John 15:11-17. One likes a person (1) for what he is, (2) for what he does for you, (3) for what you can do for him. It has been said that trust is the first requisite for friendship, but that faith is needed to continue it. Faith is necessary for perfect trust and confidence. What a person is determines whether he can be trusted or not. We love Christ for what He is. In Jesus we find truth, courage and holiness. Men want true goodness in a friend, not cant and hypocrisy.

TO AN OLD LADY

Your work is nearly done,
But mine has just begun,
Dear soul to whom I used to tell my dreams—
So long ago, and yet—how near it seems.
I see you sitting in your room tonight,
Alone with shadows and your thoughts of God.
Old things you love surround you there,
Your well-read books, your clock, your favorite chair.

Outside the hills are wrapped in silver light
And spring has changed old pathways you have trod.
And yet you'll never see these things again,
Although I know your faded eyes can see
Far, far beyond a lonely, shadowy glen.
Gold portals opening on Eternity.

—Violet A. Story, in The Christian Herald.

Jesus Christ is known as one righteous and brave, the Lamb without blemish, holy and sinless. He is the greatest of all friends.

Selfishness is a separating force, and has no place in friendship. The unselfish person is the one who is loved.

It is wonderful to include all in a general love, but a friend is one who has a peculiar place of his own in our hearts in whom we confide things which we could not tell others. He is cared for more, and in return, loves more. Thus Jesus loved His disciples and John, especially. He is a real friend.

A real friend is one who knows all your faults and loves you just the same, if not more. The exhaustless depth and power of Jesus Christ demand our love. One can't love a shallow person whose mind can be as easily read as a printed page, as much as one who has a depth in which there are more surprises each day. What of Jesus? His depths have never been touched. Everyday in Him we see new beauties, new virtues, and the richer His love becomes and the greater His friendship. Some will not accept His love because they cannot see Him.

You love one for what he does for you. It is wonderful to have a friend, of whose interest and love you are sure. The wisdom and power of God are minor considerations when compared with His love. If we understand Jesus' love, how much more easily can we understand the love of God which led Him to provide a way of salvation.

If a friend believes in one, one will try to live up to the standard set before him. A friend sets an ideal by what he is, himself.

Christ is the great friend who has set a standard before us. It is one of such depth and height that it challenges the best that is in us. Christ has proven His friendship on Calvary's cross. The greatest commandment ever given, was given by Christ to His Disciples that "You love one another as I have loved you."

Katherine—Isn't he grand. Just hearing him makes me want to be a better friend to all that I can.

Helen—Where are we going now?

Katherine—To our clan meetings. You know where yours meets don't you?

(Girl sitting behind)—Clan meeting? What is that?

Helen—All those who live on certain halls in the hotel meet together in a group called "clan." The leader is called the "counsellor." A "clan chief" is elected and also any other officers needed. The "clan chief" has charge of all the business of the clan. She it is who hands in the grade made by the clan. In these meetings the counsellor puts the challenge of the Church before the Y. P. In this way there is more open discussion than there would be in the open forum. More girls would take part. The clan has its own color to be worn, its special seats in both auditorium and diningroom puts on stunts and in whole, acts as a unit. In this way the girls are brought together and become friends. Then we have a brother clan who roots for us at the games and whose seats in the auditorium are near ours. Here comes Mrs. Bunch our counsellor.

Helen—It's nearly lunch time, but let's learn these yells. You know Frazier boys play the Campbell this afternoon. We must yell.

"Hush, little Campbells, don't you cry,

The water-man's coming by and by.

Here's one for Dr. Sweets:

Roses are red

Violets are blue,

Sugar is sweet

Frazier is sweet

And Sweets is, too.

(Exeunt.)

Scene 4—Hike to Greybeard on top.

Helen—I'm so hot and tired. Let's eat!

Katherine—I am too, but first I want to see that wonderful beard. I don't see it. It must be under these rocks.

Kate—But let's eat! I've fallen off till I've almost gotten thin in these mountains. Hiking is a wonderful reducer. I'm going to advertise it. But I'm always hungry. I'll eat that sandwich.

Helen—I'm so thirsty, I don't see why—

Kate—They didn't pipe a water-spicket up here. Pass me all the extra pickles.

Katherine—Come on let's go. Kate you've eaten your lunch and mine too. Come on.

Kate—Don't hurry me! I can't go fast down these mountains. I ain't no sliding-board.

(Exeunt, fussing over what Kate is eating.)

Solo—Follow the Gleam.

Chorus.

(All coming in marking time, hands on shoulders.)

It's dear Montreat

It's dear Montreat

The pride of every clansman here,

Come on you other clans (gesture of invitation)

Join in with our clan

It's dear old Montreat,

Now we cheer, Rah-rah

Now is the time, clans

To make our real plans

No matter what is in the way—

For there is naught to fear

When MacDuffs are here

So, hail to dear old Montreat, hail.

(Tune of West.)

THE UNGRATEFUL GUEST

A story is told, that long years ago, when two kingdoms were engaged in a bitter war, a shipwrecked soldier was cast upon the shore of his enemies' land. There he was found, nearly starved, by a family that belonged to the opposing kingdom; but instead of putting him to death they received him kindly into their home, giving him food, shelter, and clothes, and caring for him until he was able to return to his own land. This soldier, who had been so kindly treated, professed to be very thankful for the kindness they had shown him, and promised that if his king should become the ruler over the part of the country on which he had been cast, he would ask him to reward those who had treated him so generously. Instead of fulfilling his promise, he represented to that king that they had treated him cruelly, and asked the king to confiscate their property and give it to him because of the service which he had rendered in his king's army. At first the king was disposed to listen to his words, and gave orders that matters should be as the soldier requested. Afterward the king discovered the perfidy of the one who professed great loyalty, and he was so enraged at the soldier's conduct that he gave orders to his executioners to brand upon the forehead of the ingrate the words: "The Ungrateful Guest." So long as the man lived the scars upon his forehead told of the baseness and treachery of which he had been guilty.

Do we not often deserve to have such a brand fixed upon our foreheads? God has dealt very mercifully with us, forgiving our sins, and giving us many blessings to which he had no right or title. He expects of us that we shall honor Him in return by using our minds and bodies and all that we have for His glory and in accordance with His holy will. But how often we act as though we have all as ours to use for our selfish and sinful purposes. Instead of our lives being a continual thank-offering to God for His goodness and loving kindness, how often we are like the ingrate who returns evil for good, and injury for every kindness and benefit received.—Ex.

Pure living, true thinking, right acting and accurate stating, are good foundations for a noble character.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT

(Conducted under the auspices of Synod's Committee of Sunday Schools and Young People's Work, in the interest of Sunday Schools and Young People's Societies)

W. ARNETT GAMBLE, JR., Editor

ADDRESS ALL COMMUNICATIONS TO THE DEPARTMENT EDITOR DAVIDSON, N. C

EDITOR'S LOOKOUT

The date of this issue is about as near the "middle of the summer" as the average person would care to calculate. Many of us have had our summer trips already, and others will be going this month or early next month; and some who unfortunately haven't the opportunity for vacation are looking along the latter part of the warm road through the months of summer work. The fall months will be upon us in a short time and the revival of school and church and other activities will begin.

We wonder how many of our Christian Endeavor or other young people's societies are really planning for an aggressive work in the fall. We urged some time ago that the societies continue their meetings and work through the summer. Those who are doing this will be already on the track in the fall and more nearly ready to start the fall work energetically. But both the societies that have been keeping at work and those who haven't should be giving much thought and prayer to what they will do in September, October, and the following months.

What will be the qualifications you look for in your officers and committee chairmen? Just how will you conduct your executive committee meetings and other committee meetings? What work will be given the committees to do? Will you have the same old kind of meeting, or really launch out on some interesting and helpful ones? Will you adopt and work the Presbyterian Efficiency Chart and the Christian Endeavor Efficiency Chart, and work toward definite ends, or just rock along with no real definite plans?

We would urge that the leaders of the societies get together and plan out definite work, and for a study course in methods. The "Expert Endeavor" text-book is fine for this, and other good literature on methods can be secured. The intelligent and well-directed work is the kind that counts. Let your society work be that kind!

Sunday School

By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.

AUGUST 5, 1923

MARY MAGDALENE

Lesson: Luke 8:1-3; Matthew 27:55, 56; John 19:25; 20:1-18
Printed Text: Luke 8:1-3; John 19:25; 20:11-18

GOLDEN TEXT—"Our soul waiteth for the LORD; he is our help and our shield."—Psalm 33:20.

SCRIPTURE LESSON

Lu. 8:1 And it came to pass afterward, that he went throughout every city and village, preaching and shewing the glad tidings of the kingdom of God: and the twelve were with him;

2 And certain women, which had been healed of evil spirits and infirmities, Mary called Magdalene, out of whom went seven devils.

3 And Joanna the wife of Chuza, Herod's steward, and Susanna, and many others, which ministered unto him of their substance.

John 19:25 Now there stood by the cross of Jesus his mother, and his mother's sister, Mary the wife of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalene.

Ch. 20:11 But Mary stood without at the sepulchre weeping: and as she wept, she stooped down, and looked into the sepulchre.

12 And seeth two angels in white sitting, the one at the head and the other at the feet, where the body of Jesus had lain.

13 And they say unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? She saith unto them, Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him.

14 And when she had thus said, she turned herself back, and saw Jesus standing, and knew not that it was Jesus.

15 Jesus saith unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? whom seekest thou? She, supposing him to be the gardener, saith unto him, Sir, if thou have borne him hence, tell me where thou hast laid him, and I will take him away.

16 Jesus saith unto her, Mary. She turned herself, and saith unto him, Rabboni; which is to say, Master.

17 Jesus saith unto her, Touch me not; for I am not yet ascended to my Father: but go to my brethren, and say unto them, I ascend unto my Father, and your Father; and to my God, and your God.

18 Mary Magdalene came and told the disciples that she had seen the Lord, and that he had spoken these things unto her.

SHORTER CATECHISM

Q. 48. What are we especially taught by these words "before me" in the first commandment?

A. These words, "before me," in the first commandment, teach us that God, who seeth all things, taketh notice of, and is much displeased with, the sin of having any other god.

Mary Magdalene, or Mary of Magdala, was an unfortunate afflicted woman, saved by Christ. Some have identified her with the sinner woman that sought Christ in the house of Simon the Pharisee. This woman was known as a person of immoral character and was so pronounced by Simon. But the Scriptures do not describe Mary of Magdala as a woman of notorious bad character, but as a victim of evil spirits, subject to their power and distressed by their influences. There were many demoniacs at the time of Jesus public ministry. This may have been permitted that Christ might show his power over the world of darkness. There may be demoniacs now, though we are not assured of it, as at the time mentioned. Utterances and deeds now attributed to disease, may be due to the influence of evil spirits. We will attend to Mary Magdalene, a Demoniac Meeting Jesus; Mary's Gratitude and Love; Mary at the Cross; Mary at the Sepulchre.

I. Mary Magdalene, a Demoniac Meeting Jesus

The first time she is mentioned as meeting the Lord she is said to be possessed of Demons. It was a critical time in her history and decisive of her character and fate. If Christ exerts His power in her behalf she is rescued and saved. It is an important crisis in the life of every human being when he first meets Jesus. He only can deliver him from the power of Satan and his demons. At what place and under what conditions Mary Magdalene first met Jesus is not recorded. Whether she applied for healing or Christ volunteered to give her relief, we do not know. But demons could not dominate their victims in Christ's presence. As in the case of the demoniac of Gadara, when He commanded they must obey even though, "their name was legion, because they were many." Mary was possessed of seven demons and Jesus cast them out. She experienced a great deliverance from demoniac power and her soul was saved from sin. When Jesus undertakes to save He does complete work.

II. Mary's Gratitude and Love

She realized that she had secured a great salvation, bestowed by Jesus. She was therefore grateful, and rendered Him supreme love. So does every one who is convinced that he owes his salvation to Christ, and that it is supremely precious. Mary showed her gratitude and love by attending upon Christ's teachings. She is repeatedly mentioned as among those who frequented our Saviour's public ministry. He gives little evidence of being grateful for benefits or of love for the the Lord who is seldom found in the sanctuary of worship, attending to Gospel tidings. Mary proved her gratitude and affection for Jesus, by aiding Him with her means. She is expressly named among those women "who ministered unto the Lord of their substance." They have little or no gratitude and love for Jesus, who spend their money chiefly on self or worldly objects and give little or nothing to the Lord's cause. Not only by attending to Christ's teachings and gifts of substance, but by self-sacrificing deeds did Mary of Magdala manifest her gratitude and love for her Lord.

III. Mary at the Cross

She is expressly mentioned as one of the three Mary's that stood by the cross. There were present at the cross, Mary, the mother of our Lord, her sister, Mary, the wife of Cleopas, and Mary Magdalene. These with the apostle John, were the only disciples that remained with the Lord to the last expiring breath. It was no small trial for a timid and delicate woman amid a rude soldiery and a brutal rabble to witness to the end the agonies of the crucifixion. Especially when the crucified one was Immanuel, from whom they had received signal blessings and on whom they depended for salvation. But the love of Mary and her companions at the cross was stronger than their fears and shrinking timidity. They stood by their gracious Master till the human spirit departed.

She was among the first to reach it on the morning of the resurrection. She and her companions came not to greet a living Lord, but to embalm the body of a departed Saviour. She looked into the sepulchre and saw two angels who told her that "the Lord was risen." Asked "Why weepest thou?" She replies "Because they have taken away my Lord and I know not where they have laid Him." The Lord approaches her from behind and she does not recognize Him. "Supposing Him to be the gardener," she says, "Sir, if thou hast borne Him hence tell me where thou hast laid Him, and I will take Him away." Then Jesus speaking in His familiar tone, says, "Mary." She gladly responds, "Rabbi," Master, and grasps His feet. He says, "I am not yet ascended to my Father." It was not the time to manifest personal affection. Duty presses. There are sad hearts to be comforted. He commands, "Go, tell my brethren I am risen." Mary obeys, though the apostles did not believe. To the loving Mary Magdalene Jesus first appears on the morning of his resurrection.

There is little danger of one who puts his trust in God being guilty of premeditated sin.

Good humor often wins when good sense fails.

Christian Endeavor

By Rev. J. G. Garth, Chairman of Synod's Committee of Sabbath Schools and Young People's Work.

ABOLISHING POVERTY

M., Aug. 6—Temporary help: Job. 29:11-25.

T., Aug. 7—Provide work: Matt. 20:1-7.

W., Aug. 8—Honest wages: Jer. 22:13.

T., Aug. 9—Curb greed: Deut. 24:14.

F., Aug. 10—Aid for the disabled: II Sam. 9:1-13.

S., Aug. 11—Brotherliness: Lev. 19:9, 10.

Sun., Aug. 12—Topic: What Can Be Done Toward Abolishing Poverty? Luke 16:19-30.

This story of the Rich Man and Lazarus was one of the most interesting parables Jesus told. It gives us a glimpse of how this life is linked up with the other world, and shows that our eternal home is going to be either heaven or hell, and that depends on our faith as shown by our works, which it will be. The rich man, or Dives, as the preachers call him because that word means a rich man in Latin. Dives wasn't a terrible sinner, a drunkard, or murderer, or some other evil character, but he just loved himself. Because he had plenty of money, he could have anything he wanted and he indulged his wishes to the limit. He thought money could do anything, or as Mr. Dombey says, in Dombey and Son, the story by Charles Dickens, "Money is power." But money isn't power. It won't buy happiness, and it won't buy eternal life. We must not trust too much in money. It may land us where it landed Dives.

Lazarus was a poor man. He was a beggar, had absolutely nothing. He had to get his support from other people, because he was too sick and unhealthy to work. The people got tired of helping him, so they laid him at the gate of Dives, thinking his servants would throw the beggar some food. And he did get enough to eat from the scraps from the rich man's table. But while Lazarus was poor in wealth, he was rich in faith in God. He knew somehow his life would turn out all right and he trusted God till he died. Lazarus went to heaven, while Dives went to hell.

Is it a Disgrace to Be Poor?

It is not a disgrace to be poor if you are afflicted by the providence of God, or if you spend your time and money helping other people. Poverty is no disgrace, though it is mighty uncomfortable not to have what you need. Jesus had no home, not even a place to lay his head. He was rich, but for our sakes He became poor, and He spent all his time and strength helping other folks, and working out the gospel for our salvation. Lots of people today could be rich if they would work for themselves. But instead of that they use their time, money, strength and talents trying to serve God by serving their fellowmen. Think of our missionaries at home and on the foreign fields, the workers in the slums of the cities, all of them are giving themselves for others.

How to Abolish Our Own Poverty

Poverty may be a disgrace, if it comes because of our sinful waste of money, time and strength. Read Proverbs 24:27-34. If we sleep when we ought to be working, or idle away our time, or waste our money and strength on folly and sin, and become poor because of the way we live, eating expensive foods, going to shows too much, racing around the country in automobiles, tearing up our cars, burning up gasoline uselessly, then our poverty is a disgrace and a sin, and we ought to repent of it and confess it to God, and quit being so foolish.

The way to abolish our own poverty is to live right, be frugal and saving in our expenditures, put money away in the bank to draw interest, and don't spend it on needless things, or in following rich folks and their ways, and trying to be like them. We ought to educate our minds and train our hands and eyes, remembering that we can make more money if we have more education. And when our money begins to gather, let us be careful not to do as Dives did and trust in riches more than we love God. We may land where he did.

How to Abolish Other People's Poverty

Jesus loved to help the poor, and He tells us to do the same. There are many poor people in the world, and we ought to help them. It helps everybody for a poor man to become able to help himself. We must try to drive away ignorance by encouraging education of the mind and hand. We should urge the poor to be saving, and put away their earnings. We should make good laws that improve the living conditions of the poor, protect them from dangerous machinery in factories and mines, prohibit the undue labor of men, women and children, by shortening hours so they can have recreation and time for improving their minds, give fair wages that will be just and equal to the demands on the workers. We should enforce prohibition of liquor, which robs more people than any other one thing, and compel manufacturers of foods to make them pure. Then we should give of our money to help the sick and helpless, who cannot work, and try to give every man, woman and child a share of the good things of life. It was Jesus who said, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." We may not abolish all poverty, because we cannot abolish all sin, the real cause of poverty; but we can do our part, and that is all Jesus demands of you and me.

NORTH CAROLINA YOUNG PEOPLE URGED TO CONTRIBUTE TO TWO GOOD CAUSES

The Presbyterian young people of North Carolina gathered in conference at Davidson, in June, recommended that the young people of the Synod contribute again this year to the College Fund for Barium Springs and to the Sunday School Missionary Fund. Contributing to these causes is again made one of the points in the Merit Cup contest, though of course the contributing is in itself sufficiently challenging to interest the young people even without any offer of reward. The giving will of course be done as a Christian service, and the causes are quite worth-while.

Mr. Edward Fraley, a 1923 graduate of Barium Home, has been offered the Barium scholarship by the young people of the Synod, and will enter Davidson College this fall.

A recent letter from Dr. Gilbert Glass speaks the appreciation of the authorities in Richmond for the assistance given by the North Carolina young people. Dr. Glass gave this testimony as to the work of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey: "Mr. and Mrs. Harvey are doing first-class work, and we count them among our very best field workers." Those who know these two friends in Wilmington Presbytery will subscribe heartily to this sentiment.

The following list shows the contributions to these two causes last year:

	S. S. Miss. Fund.	College Fund for Barium	Total
Albemarle -----
Concord -----	$29.75	$33.13	$ 62.88
Fayetteville -----	69.50	56.00	125.50
Kings Mountain ---	32.00	30.00	62.00
Mecklenburg -----	45.00	30.00	75.00
Orange -----	52.66	39.50	92.16
Wilmington -----	60.00	47.50	107.50
1923 Con. Offering--	22.00	22.00	44.00
	$310.91	$258.13	$569.04

NORTH CAROLINA MERIT CUP CONTEST CONTINUED FOR COMING YEAR

At the 1923 Young People's Conference at Davidson the Merit Cup was awarded to Wilmington Presbytery. Concord held second place and Kings Mountain third. It has been customary for the best society in the winning Presbytery to hold the cup during the year following the conference at which it is awarded. However, there are five societies in Wilmington Presbytery that have reached the Standard of Efficiency, so these five societies will hold the cup for two months each. At the present time the cup is being held by the Calypso Society.

A Merit Cup will be awarded at the 1924 conference at Davidson. The points in the contest will be same as for the previous year, and are as follows:

25% for a 10% increase in membership.

25% for a Home Mission Study Class or two-thirds of members reading the text-book.

25% for a Foreign Mission Study Class or two-thirds of members reading the text-book.

25% for contributions to Barium Springs College Fund and Sunday School Missionary Fund.

The society and Presbytery which carry off the cup at the next conference will know that they have been in a real contest. The winner will have to start working soon and keep at it throughout the whole year. Some real work will have to be done to win.

Church News

THE FOREIGN MISSIONS CONFERENCE AT MONTREAT

The Woman's Summer School of Missions has just closed its session at Montreat, having had an unusually fine program and a record attendance of over 800. We are looking forward with much interest to our Foreign Missions Conference, to open on August 13th, and close on Sunday night, August 19th. The conference program will consist almost entirely of messages from our missionaries, of whom we are hoping to have about 50 in attendance. It is our earnest desire that these missionary messages should reach as many as possible of the men of our Church, and especially of our ministers, in order that it may be passed on by them to as many as possible of our 400,000 members who cannot come to Montreat.

The conference committee sends out this reminder of the date of the conference in the hope that many of those who have been thinking of a visit to Montreat during the summer will time their visit so as to include the date of the conference. To many who may read this notice and who may not be able to come we send the urgent request that they will remember the conference in their prayers, that it may be made the means of deepening and intensifying the interest of our people in this work throughout the entire Church.

S. H. Chester, Chairman.

BIBLE CONFERENCE—MASSANETTA SPRINGS

The Training School for Church and Sunday School Workers now in session at Massanetta Springs has had a registration of 76 students and an occasional attendance of 150 to 300 people. The popular addresses are being made by Dr. H. E. Tralle, of New York City. He has made good in a big way. The delegates have not only been greatly helped by his lectures, but have been pleased and inspired by them.

Dr. W. H. T. Squires has had the Bible hour and his addresses have been characterized as masterpieces of Exegesis.

The faculty has been an unusually fine one. The pupils are greatly pleased with the fine instruction they are getting. It is expected that at least 75 will receive credits at the graduation exercises on the night of July 30th.

Rev. S. K. Emurian, the soloist and song leader, has delighted the people in his service of song.

The Woman's Summer School of Missions will open at Massanetta Springs Wednesday night, August 1st and continue through August 7th. A splendid faculty has been secured. The speakers, including Dr. Frank Gilliam, Miss Annie A. V. Wilson, Dr. J. O. Reavis, Dr. Homer McMillan, Dr. J. L. Mauze and others, are a guarantee of a most helpful and inspiring conference. One of the members of the faculty, Mrs. E. L. Russell, has been recommended as a woman of unusual gifts as teacher of the Word of God.

The Men's Conference is to be held under the auspices of the Men's Committee of the Assembly. The dates fixed are August 9-15.

The Bible Conference is attracting attention far and wide. Dr. Campbell Morgan, Dr. Wm. Evans, Dr. A. C. Dixon, Mr. George W. Trotter, Dr. John C. Acheson are among the speakers. Mr. Homer Ham-montree, Grand Rapids, Mich., will lead the singing.

BARIUM SPRINGS

We wonder how long our old chapel Bible has been in use, how many who as children have heard the scriptures read from it that are now men and women doing their part of the world's work and being better people on account of that same old Bible. Well, that old Book has just been read to pieces, the backs had come apart and such places as the 23d Psalm and the gospel of John, why, the leaves were worn clear through. Hearing of the condition of this old Book Mr. J. A. Brady, of Statesville, presented the home with a beautiful Bible just ideal for chapel use, and we have now put the old Bible in the memorial room.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnston spent two days at Montreat this week attending the educational conference. They report the most pleasant part of their trip as being the opportunity of seeing and talking with our three girls who are working there this summer. We are delighted that so many of our seniors are making such favorable impressions wherever they are placed in places of responsibility, but do miss their faces from the campus. The three at Montreat are Judith Bowman, Madeline Hunt and Vanilla Bolden. Gertrude Caudill is helping nurse an invalid in Concord. Geneva Perry, Irene McDade, and Martha Boyce are making most acceptable substitute matrons.

Miss Catherine Crawford, one of the teachers of about seven years ago, spent two days of her vacation with us.

Our Sunday School superintendent, Mr. Grier, is taking a tenting trip through the mountains with a bunch of the larger boys, we do not believe it will be necessary for any more fishing parties to tour their territory again this summer.

The highway through Barium is at last complete and we hope for several reasons that cars will slow down to something like 20 miles per hour, we want travelers to take a good look at this place and then we want all the children to check in every night with no arms or legs missing. We all have to cross that highway many times a day.

Only one month till school commences; but that's football time too!

NORTH CAROLINA

Shelby—Rev. W. A. Murray and family are spending August at Montreat.

Brittain, Union Mills and Duncan's Creek Churches are being served very acceptably this summer by Mr. R. T. Baker, a student of Columbia Seminary.

Rutherfordton—Westminster School will be re-opened at an early date. Prof. T. L. O'Kelley, of Danielsville, Ga., has been elected principal and will move to Westminster August 1st. Prof. O'Kelley comes highly recommended as a teacher and Christian gentleman. His address is Rutherfordton, N. C., R. F. D.

Grover—Our church has just had a gracious revival. The pastor, Rev. W. A. Murray did the preaching. The morning messages were devoted to the Person and Works of the Holy Spirit and were especially helpful to Christians. Beginning with the first night the church was crowded and the congregations were large all through the week. There were several professions of faith in Christ, and the entire community was helpful.

Charlotte, Second Church—During the absence of the pastor, Dr. McGeachy, the pulpit of this church will be filled by the following ministers:

August 5th—Rev. J. Porter Smith, of our Brazil Mission.

August 12th—Dr. Harris H. Gregg, of Philadelphia.

August 19th—Dr. Dunbar H. Ogden, of Mobile, Ala.

August 26th—Dr. J. Leighton Mauze, of Hunting-ton, W. Va.

Nutbush Church, Townsville—Rev. R. A. Lapsley, Jr., pastor of the First Church, Columbia, S. C., assisted Rev. M. C. Bowling, pastor of the Nutbush Church, in an eight day meeting beginning July 10th.

In spite of the extreme hot weather, Mr. Lapsley preached to large congregations twice a day. He preaches the Gospel of our fathers with great power in an attractive manner without the least hint of modernism.

Four united with the Presbyterian Church on the last night of the meeting on profession of faith and others are expected to follow soon. Others will join churches of other denominations.

Nutbush is one of the oldest Presbyterian churches in North Carolina. From Dr. D. I. Craig's book, "Development of the Presbyterian Church in North Carolina" we read "The first Presbyterian Church court (higher than church session) ever held in North Carolina, so far as I am able to ascertain, was that of Hanover Presbytery, which convened at 'Lower Hico' church, in Person county, afterwards called 'Barnetts,' on October 2, 1765. This meeting was held for the purpose of ordaining and installing Rev. James Cresswell as pastor of this church, together with Grassy Creek and Nutbush churches."

Davidson—The town and Community has been enjoying for the past ten days great spiritual privileges and many have experienced rich and gracious blessings to their souls in the services that have been held in the union tent meeting. For the first week, Rev. Dr. C. M. Richards, of the Presbyterian Church, and Rev. R. L. Foster, of the Methodist Church did the preaching.

But as fine as was the preaching of these pastors, a new face in the pulpit and a new voice calling people to repentance and to the higher life is always a wise provision for such meetings if the right man can be found. There is no difference of opinion among the people here as to their good fortune and the gracious providence that made it possible for the committee in charge to secure the services of Rev. Dr. J. E. Abernethy, of Trinity Church, Charlotte. All this week (and to continue through Sunday the 20th) Dr. Abernethy has been speaking with great earnestness, power, and acceptability to large numbers. The people hear with close attention and profound and absorbing interest. He has many of the gifts of the orator in the strictest sense. He has had a very wide and richly varied experience in preaching to men from the mountain cove to the sea shore and from the country side to the populous city and for rich and poor, learned and ignorant it is clear that he has had a message that gripped the conscience and impelled to a new life. Rev. J. O. Erwin, of Rutherfordton, has led in singing most acceptably and with fine effect.

Rowland Church—July 1st marked the first anniversary of Rev. L. A. McLaurin's pastorate, also the first anniversary of our work with a pastor for his full time; and we cannot review the year without a feeling of gratitude. There are many evidences of progress in our church which may be traced to Mr. McLaurin's earnest consecration and devotion to his work. In the short time they have been with us, Mr. McLaurin and his family have endeared themselves to our people, and under his leadership there have been more additions to the church than in any year since 1911, when four more were added than this year.

The Sunday School has done better work, due largely to re-organization into departments and to the regular meetings of officers and teachers.

The Christian Endeavor has made progress, especially in the organization of a Junior C. E. We now have 17 Senior and Junior experts, whereas a year ago we had only one.

We have recently had a series of evangelistic services for the children of the town, conducted by the pastor. The meetings were well attended and nineteen children made a profession of faith in Christ.

Eight of these have joined the Presbyterian Church, six here and two at Midway.

Our total contributions also show an increase over any previous year. We are grateful for the blessings of the past year and are encouraged to expect greater things in the future. C. D. S.

Littleton—The different churches of Littleton, comprising six denominations, got together for a union evangelistic meeting to be held in the co-operative tobacco warehouse from July 1st through the 15th. Rev. Ernest Thacker, General Assembly's evangelist consented to give us this much time of his vacation. There were 21 prayer, preaching and praise services held in the town prior to the coming of Dr. Thacker. The Spirit seemed to be with us from the start. In the providence of God everything worked out smoothly and harmoniously.

Dr. Thacker preached the simple Gospel of Jesus Christ with the unction and power of the Holy Spirit. Mr. T. B. Roddy, his choir leader also made a splendid impression for his vital spirituality that revealed itself in his songs and daily life and conversation.

Mrs. May Dixon Thacker addressed the women and girls the last afternoon upon the subject "The Human Touch." The building was taxed to its capacity. This powerful and appealing address was a landmark that will not soon be forgotten.

There were 1,067 reconsecrations; 46 expressed desire to join the churches of the community by letter and 142 made profession of faith in Jesus Christ.

Over $1,000 were subscribed for expenses of the meeting and as free-will offering for Dr. Thacker.

There is a new atmosphere, moral and spiritual, in the community since the meeting.

In answer to prayer God sent both physical and spiritual showers upon us, upon our famishing land and our thirsty souls. "Whatsoever ye (ye people of God united together in prayer) shall ask in my name that will I do that the Father may be glorified in the Son." J. M. Fillard.

Cornelius—The Presbyterian congregation, Rev. R. C. Clontz, pastor, signalized Sunday evening the beginning of their work of building a brick building on the site where until lately the frame structure has stood, by what in popular language is termed a "ground-breaking." The exercises were of rather elaborate character and occupied about an hour in their presentation.

J. S. Sossaman, familiarly known as "Uncle Johnie," who has been possibly the most active agent in carrying on the work of this church since its organization in 1907, lifted the first spade of dirt in excavating for the foundation, representing as he did the Sabbath School. The pastor, representing the congregation at large, lifted the second. Then each of the building committee, composed of W. L. Puckette, J. I. Proctor, Clyde Howard, A. J. McConnell, C. A. Howard, Mrs. J. I. Proctor, president of the Woman's Auxiliary, Miss Mary McConnell, president of the Christian Endeavor Society; E. C. Sherrill, for the Methodists and Rev. James Brown, representing the Baptists, continued the excavating. W. E. Potts, the contractor, completed this part of the program with a like contribution.

Appropriate talks were made by Rev. Dr. M. E. Sentelle, of Davidson, Rev. J. W. Bradley, pastor of Mt. Zion Methodist Church, and Rev. James Brown, pastor of the Baptist Church.

With the material practically all on the grounds there is reason for expecting that the building can be completed and made ready for use sometime in October.

It is interesting to note that this church though one of the smaller churches in Mecklenburg Presbytery, was one of two last year to pay its apportionment to every cause of the General Assembly, being one of the 19 in the entire Synod of North Carolina to do this.

Fayetteville Presbytery met in adjourned session in the First Church, Fayetteville, Tuesday, July 24, 1923, at 1 o'clock p. m., with an attendance of 12 ministers and three ruling elders.

Rev. W. C. Brown, the last moderator present acted as moderator.

At his own request, the churches concurring, the pastoral relation between Rev. Chas. R. Bailey and the churches of Lakeside and Church in the Pines was dissolved, effective August 13, 1923, and he was granted a letter of dismission to Winchester Presbytery, in order that he may accept a call to Romney, West Virginia.

A communication from the Assembly's Stewardship Committee, regarding a change in our church year and the time for the every member canvass, was read and referred to the Permanent Committee on Stewardship.

The request of Bethesda church for permission to change terms of call for its pastor, Rev. V. R. Gaston, was placed on the docket for consideration at the Fall meeting.

The following recommendations presented by the Home Mission Committee, were considered seriatim and adopted:

1. That $1,000 be appropriated from Home Mission Funds for pastor's support at Pinehurst Church, for one year, for all time pastor, beginning when the pastor shall be secured and he shall begin his work there. This appropriation to be made with the understanding that if funds can be raised from other sources, the Home Mission Committee fund is to be relieved accordingly. And it is further understood that if possible the Synod's Home Mission Committee shall, at request of Presbytery, share equally in this appropriation, giving $500 of the amount.

2. That Raeford Tabernacle be sold, and the proceeds be devoted to the erection of a church building at Wildwood.

3. That $500 be appropriated from the Elliott

Legacy Fund to aid in the erection of a church building at Wildwood.

It was ordered that when we adjourn, we do so to meet at Maxton, Tuesday, September 4, 1923, at 3 o'clock p. m.

It was ordered that the matter of providing a home for our superintendent of Home Missions be placed on the docket for consideration at the Fall meeting, and a special committee, consisting of Rev. Messrs. G. P. Kirkpatrick and S. K. Phillips, with ruling elders Chas. Rankin and Edwin Morgan, was appointed to bring in a report.

The Stated Clerk was instructed to purchase a revised edition of Alexander's Digest for the Presbytery.

Adjourned to meet at Maxton, September 4th, at 3 o'clock p. m. E. L. Siler, S. C.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Chester—During the absence of the pastor, Dr. Shepperson, on vacation, the pulpit committee is glad to announce that they have secured Rev. R. A. Lapsley, Jr., pastor First Church, Columbia, to preach for us the second Sunday in August, the 12th, and Rev. D. N. McLaughlin, D.D., for the last Sunday, the 26th.

Charleston, Community Church—Rev. W. J. Huneycutt, of Stanfield, N. C., delivered his first sermon Sunday as pastor of the Community Presbyterian Church, on Sans Souci Street, near Rutledge, a large attendance being present to welcome him. Rev. Mr. Huneycutt preached at the morning and evening services. In his address in the morning he expressed his pleasure at being in Charleston as pastor of the Community Presbyterian Church, stating that he believed there was a good opportunity ahead to build the church up.

Rev. Mr. Huneycutt is an able speaker. A native of Stanfield, N. C. He was pastor of a church at Great Falls before coming to Charleston.—Charleston Evening Post.

Pageland—It was my privilege to spend a week in this quiet little town. It has two Methodist churches, one Baptist church and a Presbyterian, last but not least in order. I was requested to speak at their union prayer meeting services on Wednesday, on Abraham's fellowship with God. On Sabbath morning I was requested to conduct sacramental service at Methodist Church. A season of refreshing from the presence of the Lord. I could see Methodist and Presbyterians at same table. I did not see this in Glasgow, Scotland; but I have no doubt by this time John Knox and John Wesley have joined hands. The Holy Spirit by his indwelling presence has given everlasting forgiveness and makes us partakers of His divine nature. What more does a poor sinner want. James Russell.

Chester, Rev. Flounroy Shepperson, D.D., pastor—From the calendar of this church we take the following items:

The program for the County Sunday School Convention has been published and the convention is to be held at the Pleasant Grove Presbyterian Church with dinner on the ground. The convention begins at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. If you want a pleasant day and a good picnic, drive out to the Grove with a picnic basket.

The pastor this evening exchanges pulpits with Rev. W. G. Moore, the Baptist pastor, and will be a pleasant exchange for both people and preachers. It will be a fine thing for all the people to come and hear Mr. Moore tonight, and give him a cordial and responsive hearing.

The prayer meeting is going good and those who are not privileged to attend are missing one of the best services we have in this church. Let every one join the prayer meeting crowd next Wednesday.

General Workers' Conference, Synod of South Carolina, Clinton, S. C., August 7th to 12th.

Opening address, 8 p. m.—Dr. W. D. Melton, Evening addresses—Dr. W. R. Dobyns.

Bible Hour—Dr. J. M. Wells.

Sunday School Methods—Rev. Wade Smith, Mrs. T. H. Dick, Mr. A. M. Aiken.

Auxiliary Methods—Mrs. Andrew Bramlett, chairman.

Laymen Methods—Mr. W. R. Crook, chairman.

The Church's Task—Dr. Howard E. Rondthaler, Rev. Ray Riddle, Dr. D. M. Douglas.

Lecture Period—Dr. J. B. Green.

Conference Sermon (Sunday morning)—Dr. W. R. Dobyns.

Sunday afternoon address—Mr. P. T. Shanks.

Platform manager—Dr. Flounroy Shepperson.

Song Leader—Rev. J. B. Belk.

Pianist—Miss Virginia Taylor.

Registrar—Mr. D. W. A. Neville, Clinton, S. C.

Board, $10. Registration, $2. Laurens and Alumni Halls reserved for married couples. Pastors, Sunday School Superintendents, Auxiliary Presidents are requested to work to have their churches represented. For your comfort and to avoid confusion on the opening day please send in registration at once.

J. P. Marion, Conference Chairman.

APPALACHIA

Plumtree—Rev. J. McD. Lacy was with us for a two weeks' meeting and Mr. M. J. McInnis, of Lamar, S. C., came to help with the singing. We had a splendid meeting, every boy in the Plumtree School, who was not already a Christian, made a profession. We feel that all of the homes in this little community were benefited by these services and all the churches in the community were made stronger.

Mr. Lacy and Mr. McInnis stayed in the dormitory with us and endeared themselves very much to our boys, as well as to the people of the village.

Cor.

The Lewiscot Presbyterian League, Big Stone Gap, Va.—The regular meeting of the workers and the board of directors was held at the Norton Presbyterian Church, Norton, Va., on Monday afternoon, July 16th. The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. I. S. Anderson, D.D., of Mt. Carmel Church, Rose Hill, Va. The meeting was called to order by Mr. H. E. Hyatt, vice-president of the league, who presided in the absence of the president, Mr. J. T. H. McCue, of Bristol, Va. The reports from the workers showed good progress in the mission work during the past quarter. The report of the standing committees revealed the fact that the members of the various committees are becoming more and more interested in the work of the league, and that they realize the great importance of the work which this organization has undertaken. Arrangements were made to provide for the publication of the Lewiscot Bulletin, the official organ of the league, on the first of each month. Plans were discussed to further the work of establishing the home and school on the Lewiscot farm for homeless and neglected children of this section. A delicious dinner was served to those present by the ladies of the Norton Church at six o'clock. The annual meeting of the members of the league will be held at Big Stone Gap, Va., on Monday, October 15th, next, at which time officers and directors for 1924 will be elected. All members are urged to attend this meeting. Address W. S. Miller, treasurer, Big Stone Gap, Va. (Signed) H. A. Alexander, Secretary.

Stonega, Va.

ALABAMA

Mobile, Government Street Church—At the communion service, July 8th, 25 persons were received into the membership of this church. On July 13th, very interesting exercises were held in connection with the closing of the Daily Vacation Bible School, which this year has been attended by 193 children. On July 23d, Dr. Ogden left on vacation. While away he will meet engagements in a number of places, going first to Monteagle, Tenn., to preach Sunday, July 29th and, the following week, to deliver a series of lectures on Changing Conditions in the Near East. During his absence, Rev. H. V. Lofquist, the assistant pastor, will have charge of all the services in this church.

ARKANSAS

Monticello—The first Daily Vacation Bible School which this church has conducted, was held for four weeks during the latter part of June and the first of July. Otis L. Graham, of Clarendon, junior in Arkansas College, who is assisting the pastor during the summer months, was principal of the school, and was assisted in his work by ten faithful volunteer teachers.

The children were enthusiastic in their interest and work. During the school, 11 memorized and recited perfectly the Westminster Shorter Catechism, and seven memorized and recited perfectly the introduction to the Shorter Catechism. Besides this many passages of Scripture and many hymns were memorized. Story-telling, verse-finding, Bible story dramatization, music and singing, Bible problems and contests, made up other features of the schools work. On the Sunday evening following the close, commencement exercises were held at the hour of service, in which a varied program representing the kind of work done, was presented and the children who had completed the catechism work were given Bibles and certificates.

GEORGIA

Atlanta, North Avenue Church—In the absence of Dr. Flinn, who is taking his vacation, we will have the pleasure of having with us Sunday morning and evening, Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, president of Oglethorpe University.

Dr. Jacobs needs no introduction to the North Avenue congregation, and he comes Sunday by special request. His morning subject is, "Going Somewhere."—Calendar.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Washington, Central Church—During the month of August, Rev. Edward Mack, D.D., of Union Theological Seminary, will preach in this church August 5th and 12th; and Rev. Thornton Whaling, D.D., of the Presbyterian Theological Seminary of Kentucky, will preach August 19th and 26th. The pastor, Dr. James H. Taylor, will be absent on his vacation, but was unable to accept the invitation to preach at the Carr's Lane Church in Birmingham, England, and in one of the Presbyterian Churches in London.

PERSONAL

Rev. W. J. Huneycutt has accepted a call to the Community Presbyterian Church, of Charleston, and may now be addressed at 419 Tracy St., Charleston, S. C.

The Central Church, St. Louis, Mo., has extended a hearty call to Rev. A. S. Johnson, Charlotte, N. C., to its pastorate. Dr. Johnson is the popular and earnest pastor of the First Church, Charlotte, where he has for several years done a splendid work. Dr. Johnson has not announced his decision as yet.

Dr. G. F. Bell, pastor of Caldwell Memorial Church, Charlotte, and Mrs. Bell, will have the sympathy of the Church in the death of their seven-year-old daughter, Barbara, which occurred Saturday, July 29th, at their home. The little girl was the victim of spinal meningitis.

News of the Week

The time has arrived when the agricultural interests of the country have got to decide whether they shall be a peasant class whose wage shall be determined by the organized markets of the world, or a prosperous class, independent and free through the domination of their own markets, United States Senator E. D. Smith, of South Carolina, said in an address before a big crowd of tobacco co-operative association farmers at Guilford Battleground.

A total of $94, 772 was distributed by the state highway department to the various counties of North Carolina as their shares of the motor vehicle license fund for the second quarter of the year, April 1st through June 30th.

The total amount sent out is 80 per cent of the collections, the law providing that the remaining 20 per cent go to the state highway department for maintenance.

"I charge against the jail system of this state and of every other state of the union that it is a school of crime, that it protects nothing, and that it costs at a tremendous rate." This indictment was brought by Judge James Hoge Ricks, judge of the juvenile court of Richmond, Va., speaking at the special institutes of public welfare.

The department of commerce announces that according to preliminary figures compiled by the bureau of census, there were 37,374,876 cotton spinning spindles in place in the United States on June 30, 1923, of which 34,843,421 were operated at some time during the month, compared with 35,390,137 for May, 35,515,791 for April, 35,500,518 for March, 35,307,707 for February, 25,240,853 for January, 1923, 32,499,324 for August, 1922, and 31,882,542 for June, 1922.

Not one crossing accident on the 1,232 miles of track of the Southern Railway in North Carolina was reported during the period between July 1, 1923, the date the "Stop, Look, Listen" law applicable to drivers of automobiles went into effect, and July 20th, according to a statement from W. M. Cowhig, general superintendent of transportation for the Southern Railway system, lines east.

A plan for the merging of the general conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church, North, and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, separated since 1845, was adopted by the joint commission on unification. The plan will now go to the general and annual conferences of the church for ratification.

The committee appointed by the North Carolina Fisheries commission to select a location for a state hatchery in eastern Carolina completed the inspection of a score of sites in Cumberland county. A decision will be announced about the 1st of September, after sites have been inspected near Raleigh, Kinston, Rockingham, Smithfield, and other cities, according to statements made by members of the committee.

The House of Lords passed, without amendment, the third reading of Lady Astor's bill prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors to any person under 18 years of age. The measure which has already passed the commons, now becomes law, provided the assent of the crown is given.

The treaty of Lausanne, restoring peace in the Near East, now bears the signature of Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, Greece, Rumania, and Turkey.

July 24th was observed as a public holiday in honor of the signing of the peace treaty at Lausanne. Streets were gaily beflagged and shops were closed. A salute of 101 guns was fired on the announcement of the signing of the treaty and ships in the harbor blew their whistles for half an hour. There were torchlight processions, illuminations, and general rejoicings.

Immediate recall of Governor General Leonard Wood was demanded in a resolution unanimously adopted at a joint meeting of both houses of the legislature in Manila, July 23d. The resolution was addressed to President Harding.

The debate between Governor Morrison and Corporation Commissioner Maxwell still goes on.

Governor Morrison charges "that if the revenue bill of 1921 failed to levy the necessary revenue upon the people of the state to meet the appropriations and expenses for the two calendar years ending December 21, 1922, Mr. A. J. Maxwell is more responsible for that fact than any other man connected with the legislation." The governor's statement was issued in reply to Corporation Commissioner Maxwell's observations on the recent audit of state finances, which was instituted when he (Mr. Maxwell) charged a deficit of $5,000,000 existed in current revenues as of December 31, 1922.

Mr. Maxwell contends that the blame does not lie in the revenue act of 1921, which Mr. Maxwell admits he wrote, but on excessive appropriations of the 1921 general assembly, which were the result of Governor Morrison's driving power, he contends. He further insists the state has now shifted from a cash to an accrual basis of financing, terming the accrual basis as nothing more nor less than a credit system which would spend money before it came to the state as revenue rather than running the state's business on money in hand. He added that this was not the most serious consideration, however, claiming that the state was spending far in excess of its income—cash or accrued—for living expenses.

The Leviathan on July 23d completed her maiden voyage under the American flag. More than 7,500 persons were on the Hudson river pier where the giant "Sea Palace" docketed. The running time from Southampton to New York was five days, 12 hours and 11 minutes, with an average speed of 23.09 knots an hour. Her speed from Nantucket to Ambrose light was 25.07 knots an hour.

Dan Brinkley, "Little Dan" Brinkley, as he was known 35 years ago to distinguish him from his father, was arrested in Claremont, seven miles from Newton, N. C., by Deputy Sheriff H. C. Hicks, on the charge of escaping from the state penitentiary 32 years ago. He was convicted in Catawba court in 1888 of robbing the dwelling house of an old man named Smith and sentenced to 10 years in the penitentiary. Three years later he escaped and had entirely dropped out of sight.

July 23d Rotary leaders gathered from every section in Chicago, for a four-day caucus on the platform and program of the new administration, installed recently at the St. Louis convention. President Guy Gundaker, Philadelphia, devoted most of the initial session to an outline of the new year's international program to the board of directors and district governors from some 40 provinces.

CHURCH NEWS

FLORIDA

Crescent City—A reorganization of the Southfield Bible Conference Association was effected recently when the following board of trustees was elected: Rev. Lewis S. Chafer, president; Mr. Duncan B. Curry, vice-president; Mr. Thos. J. Jones, treasurer, and Rev. Rollin T. Chater, secretary. Mr. Wm. L. Kimball was also elected a trustee. The deaths of Dr. C. I. Socfield and Mr. Wm. Morton had left but three members of the former board. The venerable hymn writer, George C. Stebbins, had been treasurer since the organization of the conference, 20 years ago, but owing to advanced age desired to be relieved. All the members of the new board are identified with southern churches. Mr. Curry is an elder of the Riverside Presbyterian Church of Jacksonville. Mr. Jones is an elder of the Scofield Memorial Church, of Dallas, and Mr. Kimball, an attorney-at-law, is an elder of the Bradentown, Fla., Presbyterian Church. This organization is incorporated under the laws of Florida and carries an endowment sufficient to provide the best Bible teachers of the United States and Canada for its annual winter sessions. All inquiries should be addressed to the secretary, Rev. Rollin T. Chafer, Crescent City, Fla.

GEORGIA

Young People's Rally, Augusta Presbytery—The Young People's League of Augusta Presbytery held its annual rally in the Greensboro Church, Tuesday, July 1, 1923. Large delegations from none of the most active societies were present. Interesting reports from the different societies showed that splendid work had been done, and many were looking forward to greater achievements during the coming year.

Rev. T. D. Johnston, pastor, who together with Mrs. W. R. Ashe, of Augusta had made every effort to make this a most successful meeting, was fully repaid by the enthusiasm shown and the wonderful work accomplished by the young people of the Presbytery.

A very interesting program was rendered, being arranged by Mrs. W. R. Ashe. Miss Emily Cloud, Vice-President presided in the absence of the President who was sick.

The following officers were elected for the year and installed by Rev. M. M. MacFerrin.

President, Mrs. S. G. Carpenter, of Milledgeville, Ga.; Vice-President, Mr. Walter Lynch, Augusta, Ga.; Secretary, Miss Emily Hall, Milledgeville, Ga.; Secretary of Foreign Missions, Miss Harriet Colbert, Penfield, Ga.; Secretary of Home Missions, Miss Dorothy Wright, Woodstock, Ga.; Secretary of Causes, Miss Emily Cloud, Lexington, Ga.; Secretary-Treasurer, Miss Katherine Cornwell, Greensboro, Ga.

Text: Eccle. 9:10, "Whatsoever thy hands find to do, do it with thy might."

Slogan: "For Christ and the Church."

Song: "Make me a Channel of Blessing."

After a happy day spent we parted to meet in Milledgeville next summer, the date to be fixed later.

Appropriate resolutions were passed, thanking the hostess church for its kind and generous hospitality. A dinner served by the Ladies' Auxiliary being especially enjoyed.

TENNESSEE

First Church, Rosemark, D. C. Young, pastor—A meeting was held in the above Church Friday, July 20th in the interest of better Sabbath observance. It was composed of four ministers and 26 official representatives of 12 church in the northern section of Shelby county, Tennessee, and three representatives of the Woman's Federation of Christian Workers of 11 churches. Out of this meeting grew a permanent organization of men for the purpose of creating public sentiment and taking persuasive steps for bettering the conditions on the Sabbath day. This section is affected by Sunday business and public amusements and recreations of all kinds as swimming pools, play grounds, etc. The following paper was read, approved and adopted unanimously and I enclose only the resolutions as the preamble is very lengthy.

Be it resolved:

1. That we as ministers preach more frequently on Sabbath observance and educate our people as to their Christian duty.

2. That ministers, church officers and all other Christians be urged to give God's people and the outside world the high encouragement of their consistent, blameless and Godly example in these matters by refraining from all unnecessary business and all forms of amusements and recreations or lending their encouragement unto such upon the Sabbath day.

3. That we bear our testimony and render our protest against all forms of Sabbath desecration; unnecessary travel, selling of icecream, cold drinks, sandwiches, gasoline, etc., all forms of amusements and recreations as baseball, picture shows, swimming, joy riding, hunting, fishing, etc.

4. That we request in the name of God, the good of humanity and the communities in which we live, all persons engaged in Sunday business and places of amusements and recreations to co-operate with us in trying to make the Sabbath a Christian Sabbath by closing their respective places of business, amusements and recreations.

5. That we heartily endorse such movements as Community Bible Classes.

6. That we organize a permanent men's organization. (Which was done).

7. That copies of these resolutions be sent to each of the churches interested in the movement, to papers, and that a copy be delivered by a committee to the parties engaged in Sunday business and places of amusements and recreations.

Respectfully submitted,

Committee on Sabbath Observance, Rev. D. C. Young, chairman; Rev. H. W. Brooks, Mr. W. R. McCalla, and Mr. L. H. Person.

Mass meetings will be held in various places by this organization in the interest of better Sabbath observance. Other churches are coming into the organization. This paper was also endorsed and support pledged by the Masonic Lodge No. 576, of Shelby County, Tennessee.

WEST VIRGINIA

The Presbytery of Winchester will hold its next stated meeting at Gerrardstown, W. Va., on Tuesday, September 4, 1923, at 8 o'clock, p. m.

Jos. A. McMurray, S. C.

The Laymen's Association of Greenbrier Presbytery will hold its annual convention in the Spring Creek Church of Renick, W. Va., on August 14-15, 1923. An interesting program is in store and a full attendance is anticipated.

The Presbytery of Greenbrier will meet in the Liberty Church, Greenbank W. Va., on September 4, 1923 at 3 p. m. Representatives of Presbytery will take the morning train from Ronceverte, W. Va., on the Greenbrier division for Cass.

The Synod of West Virginia will meet in the Presbyterian Church at Richwood, W. Va., on September 25, at 8 p. m.

J. E. Flow, S. C.

Presbytery of Greenbrier, Synod of West Virginia.

TEXAS

Dallas—Rev. Lewis Sperry Chafer was received into Dallas Presbytery July 5th, his membership being transferred from Orange Presbytery. Mr. Chafer was recently elected general secretary of the Central American Mission with offices in the Central Bank Building, Dallas. At the same time he also accepted a call to the pastorate of the Scofield Memorial Church (Independent) with the understanding that he may carry on his nation-wide ministry for several months each year. He also assumes the editorship of the Central American Bulletin which was published formerly as a news bulletin mainly of the field. The new editor purposes to widen the scope of this magazine and include expository matter designed to build up the spiritual life of readers at the home base as well as maintaining a department of news from the Central American and other mission fields. Mr. Chafer will supply the pulpit of the First Presbyterian Church of Seattle, Wash., in August during the absence of the pastor, Dr. Mark Mathews.

We do not know how cheap and how fruitful the seeds of happiness are, or we would scatter them oftener.

CHILDREN

A LITTLE KITTEN

Dear Standard:
I am a little boy eight years old and in the fourth grade and go to the Godwin High School. My teacher's name was Miss Virginia Rhodes; I like her fine. I have a little kitten named Sammy, and also my brother has one named Peter. They are always running rabbits or rats. I saw one of them running a rat. I hope to see this in print, I want to surprise my father.
Sincerely,
Gordon Williams.

VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL

Dear Standard:
I am a little girl seven years' old. I go to Sunday School every Sunday. I will soon be ready to recite the Child's Catechism; then I am going to start on the Shorter Catechism. Our Vacation Bible School started the 2nd of July. Miss Laura Howell is our teacher. We are enjoying it very much. I will close for fear of the waste basket.
Your unknown friend,
Kathleen Hardie.
Vineland, N. C.

NEARLY THROUGH CATECHISM

Dear Standard:
I am a little girl 11 years old. I go to Sunday School every Sunday. My teacher's name is Mrs. Sanderson; I like her fine. We are nearly through the Child's Catechism and I am going to recite the Child's Catechism before long. This is my first letter to you. I am not going to write such a long letter this time; hoping to see my letter in print; so I will close for fear of the waste basket.
Your unknown friend,
Thelma Hughes.
Vineland, N. C.

LIKES HER TEACHER

Dear Standard:
I am a little girl ten years old; I love to read your letters in the Standard. I go to Sunday School every Sunday I can. My Sunday School teacher is Miss Jessie McPhaul. I like her fine. I am in the fourth grade. I will close in fear of the waste basket.
Your friend,
Edna Earl Biggs.
Red Springs, N. C., R. No. 1.

FINISHED THE MEASLES

Dear Standard:
I am 10 years old and in the fifth grade. My Sunday School teacher is Mrs. McCown, and I like her very much. I have just finished the measles and I sure am glad. Please print my letter.
Your friend,
Minnie Smoot.
Darlington, S. C.

BEAUTIFUL OAKS

Dear Standard:
I am a girl 11 years old and I am in the seventh grade at school. Our school's name is St. John's. Our town is noted for its beautiful Darlington oaks. I have just had the measles and I am glad I had a light case of them. I have recited the Child's Catechism. Please print my letter as I want to surprise my people.
Your unknown friend,
Annie Louise Smoot.
Darlington, S. C.
P. S.—I like to read the stories and letters.

It is easier to get a good reputation than to lose a bad one.

BETTY'S BARGAIN

"Every time I want to go anywhere I have to play with Ned," said Betty, putting her little brother in his go-cart rather crossly. "The other girls can go to pick flowers this morning, but I must amuse a tiresome baby all the time."
"It would be very nice not to have a little brother," said mother, thoughtfully. "You could go where you pleased all the time, and a few little chores would not count."
"Wouldn't it?" said Betty, with a smile. "Just think of the good times Nell and Grace have. I wouldn't have to leave my new story-book so often and hunt play-things for Ned if he belonged to some one else."

"I'll buy him if he is for sale," said Mrs. Turner, who was coming up the walk. "How much do you ask for him?"
"A dollar," said Betty. And to her great surprise the visitor took out a fat purse and gave her a big silver piece.
"Run along with the girls and spend your money as you please," said Ned's new mamma, as she took the baby out of the go-cart. "I think I have made a good bargain."
"I'll get some oranges and candy and popcorn," thought Betty as she hurried after her friends. "They are not going very fast, and I can catch up after I get the things. They'll be surprised, I guess, to see what I bring to the picnic."

The man at the store gave her a small basket; and, when she went away with it filled with good things, she had only half her money left. "I'll save this much to buy the little cart for Neddie," she said to herself as she ran down the street. "He wants it so bad."

"Where did you get all these nice things?" asked the girls when they spread their dinners on the big rock in the woods.
"Mrs. Turner gave me a dollar," said Betty, "and I spent half of it."

"Gave you a whole dollar? What for?"
"I—I sold the baby," stammered Betty, getting red in the face.
"Sold Neddie for a dollar? My mamma would have given you ten times that much if she had known you wanted to get rid of him. What did you want the dollar for?"

"I wanted to buy Neddie a cart and—"
"But you can't get him a cart when he doesn't belong to you," said Grace. "I always thought you ought to be the best girl in the world because you had such a dear baby to play with, and here you sold him for a dollar."
"Do you think—" began Nell, but Betty was running home as fast as she could go. The goodies were left on the big rock, and all she cared for was to buy back the dear little brother.

"If you'll only sell him back to me," she gasped, "I'll earn a dollar to pay you. I don't know what made me so wicked."
"Well, if you are sure you want him, I suppose I'll have to give him back," said Mrs. Turner, with a smile. "He is a little darling, and I am not surprised to have you come after him."

"Mrs. Turner said I made a good bargain, but I think it was very bad, mamma," said Betty. "I hope Neddie will never find out how near he came to being Ned Turner instead of Ned Brown.—Hilda Richmond.

They were discussing the North American Indian in a rural school, when the teacher asked if any one could tell what the leaders of the tribes were called.
"Chiefs," answered one bright little girl.
"Correct. Now, can any of you tell me what the women were called?"
There was silence for some time, and then a small boy frantically waved his hand for recognition.
"Well, Frankie?" said the teacher.
"Mis-chiefs," he announced proudly.—Exchange.

LINDA'S HAT

With a determined gesture Linda at last put the hat down. "I'm not going to touch it again. It's perfectly foolish to expect that a hat will look as if it cost twenty-five dollars when the materials only cost five. I'll just wear it as it is and make the best of it. At least, it is fresh and new and a lovely color. I'll wear it downtown this afternoon and get the worst over at once."
Half an hour later, Linda was ready. With her dainty green gown and green-and-violet hat, she looked like a bit of springtime, but in front of the mirror she saw only the hat.
"I do believe it's halfway pretty," she said. "I'll soon know whether it's a success or not; the first three people I meet will decide its standing."

She was really more in earnest than she meant to be over her test, otherwise her heart would not have sunk as it did when the first person she met turned out to be Miss Willie Beech—queer, friendly, little Miss Willie, with her terrible frizette and her loving eyes.

Miss Willie greeted her with an exclamation of delight. "How pretty you look, child! That's a new hat! Isn't it sweet? Did you make it yourself? I had one almost identically like it once. I'll tell you a secret! When you get tired of wearing it that way, you can turn it around and wear it hind side before."

"Thank you, Miss Willie," Linda replied. But, inwardly, her heart sank with dismay. Did her hat look like Miss Willie's things?

Mrs. Ware was the next acquaintance she met. Mrs. Ware was always frank. "That's a new hat you've got on, isn't it?" she remarked. "It looks to me as if it would fade in two wearings."

Linda's sense of humor carried her through the ordeal. "One more chance, my dear," she told herself.

The third chance tarried provokingly. And then, of all people in the world, it presented itself in the person of Miss Jennie Creel. And Miss Creel's comment was, "Whatever possessed you to wear a hat with violets?"

"At least," Linda said, as Miss Creel turned away, "I've had the worst." Suddenly a light came into her eyes, and her head went up. "I don't care! It was the best I could do, and I'm going to act as if it cost twenty-five dollars, anyhow!"

And then, round the corner came Beatrix Axen, exquisite in everything that money could buy. At sight of Linda, she gave a cry of delight. "Linda Mead, what a lovely hat! Where did you get it? I want one exactly like it—in rose color."

"The question is," Linda said to herself, with dancing eyes, five minutes later, "was it really my hat or just my air?"—Ex.

OUR PLAY ROOM

It's strange that what is taken
Inside our play room door
Is sure to turn to something
It never was before.

My grandma's shawl, like any Old-fashioned shawl, of course,
Becomes a tent for gypsies,
And every chair a horse.

The bed and crib are wagons
In which we children race,
Or else they're puffing steamboats
From some queer foreign place.

And when we go a-fishing
Our pole is papa's cane,
And all the floor is water—
Till we get home again.
—Anna C. Ayer, in The Congregationalist

HER MALADY

It's been the awful longest while
My mother's been away!
You see, my grandma's pretty sick,
And don't get well so very quick;
'Course mother has to stay.

Aunt Nan is kind, but she don't make
The rightest kind of curls,
Or know just how to button me;
She isn't used to it, you see—
She has no little girls.

And father, well, he doesn't know
Just how I go to bed.
He gets things all hindside before,
And hangs my clothes up by the door,
Away above my head.

Now, mother always puts them 'cross
My little willow chair;
'N' I have a car'mel and a drink—
That's pretty comf'ble, I think—
And then she braids my hair.

But father sometimes he forgets
To wash my hands and face,
And he can't never 'member where
He stopped in telling 'bout the bear;
He just forgets the place.

There's some things father does, I like,
When I have said my prayers;
He tells me stories in the dark;
They're full of whist! and hist! and hark!
And lovely creepy scares.

But then when I have snuggled down,
All comf'rbly in bed,
I wish that mother would come in,
And cuddle me, and then begin
To sing, and smoothe my head.

Of course Aunt Nan and father do
Their best—I know they've tried;
And everybody's very kind—
I try my hardest not to mind,
But something aches inside.

I don't believe it's homesickness
That makes my eyelids prick;
I wish I knew what 'tis I've got—
Course, home is here—but mother's not!
I b'lieve I'm mothersick! Ex...

CONVERSATION

Said the brown fur seal to the little
Eskimo,
Where the gray gulls wheel to the blue ice floe,

"While it's fine up here in the long, bright
day,
In the sea, my dear, is the place to play!
For the mermaids sing in their golden caves,

Where the starfish cling and the seaweed waves,
And the narwhal grim through the darkness glides,

And the sea trout swim with their rainbow sides;
And you have to look out for the great big whales
When they roll about or wag their tails!"

"But isn't it co-o-old?" asked the little Eskimo.
"Why, no," said the seal, "I shouldn't say so!"
—Arthur Guiterman, in The Youth's Companion.

The Consolation Prize

Mr. Simpson—"Little Bess, will you marry me when you grow up?"
Little Bess—"No, you're too old; but I'll name my new cat after you."—Ex.

At twenty he thinks he can save the world; at thirty he begins to wish he could save part of his salary.—Oil City Derrick.

The world has too many cranks and not enough self-starters.—Columbia (S. C.)
Record.

Marriages and Deaths

MARRIED

Harris-Gudger — At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Cannon, Greenville, S. C., July 25, 1923, by Rev. E. P. Davis, Mr. Allen Howell Harris, of Concord, N. C., and Miss Lavelle Gudger, of Mooresville, N. C.

DEATHS

MRS. MAMIE LITTLE SMITH

As day dawned on the morning of Friday, June 22, 1923, the spirit of Mrs. Mamie Little Smith passed to the land of Eternal Life.

So gently did the Angel of Death enter, that those who have watched so lovingly and patiently for many months, scarcely knew.

Mrs. Smith was born on November 2, 1862, at Paetolus, N. C. She was the daughter of W. W. and Harriet May Little. She was married on December 9, 1888, to Mr. R. W. Smith, of Farmville. Until their recent coming to this town, they had spent their married life at the old Smith homestead, five miles from town. Their children, who with Mr. Smith, survive her, are: Chester, of Fountain, N. C.; Robert, Farmville, N. C.; Durward and Heber, of Oak City, N. C., and Mattie, Mamie Ruth, Julius and Lillian, all from Farmville. Also surviving her are two brothers, George and Alonzo Little, of Paetolus, and a sister, Mrs. Sam Harris, of Terraceia, N. C. One little daughter, Alma, died in infancy.

Mrs. Smith joined the Methodist church at an early age and remained in that church until 1912, when she with Mr. Smith and children joined the Presbyterian Church at Kings X-Roads. Since moving to Farmville in 1919 they have been members of the local Presbyterian Church. She was an earnest worker in the Ladies' Auxiliary of that church and, while she was unable to take an active part in the work for the past year, her unflinching sympathy for and interest in the work was ever an inspiration to the others.

As we looked on her glorified face that last day, as beautiful in Death as her life had been, the thought came time after time, that surely she had approached her grave "As one who wraps the drapery of his couch about him, and lies down to pleasant dreams." It must be that God had put into her arms that Babe—that one which He, knowing her love for little ones, had taken years ago to give back to a loving mother for always, as she entered her Heavenly Home.

To say that she will be missed expresses too mildly the great void which her going has made in the hearts of all who knew her. The wonderful, cheerful and constant care she has received from her husband and children speaks louder than anything else could, what she meant to them. It was not just because she was the natural mother in the home, but the mother who was never heard to raise her voice in anger, who was never too busy, too tired or too sick to listen to the call of all who needed her. Truly one of God's gentlewomen has gone home.

She was laid to rest just as the sun was setting Friday afternoon, Rev. C. A. Lawrence, her pastor, voicing the sentiments of the host of loved ones and friends, as he paid her the highest tribute we have ever heard.

The sympathy of the entire county is with the husband, and with those who, next May, will for the first time, wear a white flower for the mother who is waiting for them all over there.

Mrs. J. M. Flobgood.

BETSY ROSS' FIVE-POINTED STAR

June has its quota of important birth-days, no doubt, though we've never looked up to see how many eminent people claim the month as their own. But aside from people, it has two important anniversaries—the birth of the flag and the coming of summer. Flag day is the 14th and summer officially begins the 21st, though the weather usually seems like summer many days, and even weeks, before that time.

The story of how the first American flag was made is familiar to most boys and girls who have studied American history, but this first-hand information of it is very interesting. Until a year or so ago a granddaughter of Betsy Ross' lived in Philadelphia. She was interviewed by Agnes L. Taylor, and her report of the visit is published in the June St. Nicholas. Mrs. Wigert (the granddaughter) said: "I do not remember that she ever told us in one straight story all that is printed as the history of the flag. Sometimes she would tell about one incident, and sometimes another. We children used to say, 'Tell us about General Washington'; and then she would tell us about the times she had seen him—how he looked, how he was dressed, and how elegant was his coach of state when he was President.

"But the story she liked best to tell was about the first flag, though, as she told it, the flag itself was not the important thing. The main point of this story was that she had shown General Washington how to make a five-pointed star. Her husband's uncle, Colonel Ross, was one of the committee appointed by the Continental Congress to provide a flag. Knowing her skill in needlework, he brought the committee to her house. General Washington had made a sketch of a flag on which the stars were six-pointed. Grandmother said that five-pointed stars looked better; he agreed, but objected that five-pointed stars were hard to cut out and would take more time. In a moment, Grandmother folded a scrap of paper, and, after one clip with her scissors, opened out a five-pointed star. That settled the shape of the stars on our flag.

"When Grandmother told that story she chuckled over it, for she still enjoyed thinking that she, a simple upholstress, could teach the great general anything."

MOTHER

Mother is a little girl who trod my path before me

Just a bigger, wiser little girl who ran ahead—

Bigger, wiser, stronger girl who always watches o'er me.

One who knows the pitfalls in the rugged road I tread.

Mother is a playmate who will always treat me kindly—

Playmate who will yield me what true happiness demands.

She will never let my feet stray into brambles blindly—

Mother's just a bigger little girl who understands.

Mother is an older little playmate who'll befriend me—

Yesteryear she traveled in the path that's mine today.

Never need I fear a foe from which she might defend me—

Faithful little pal who ran ahead and learned the way!

—Strickland Gillilan, in Good House-keeping.

Few ministers of the Gospel fall from grace. That's why we see the splash and the big headlines when they do. "If a dog bites a man, that isn't news. But if a man bites a dog, that's news."

The world would be better and brighter if people were taught the duty of being happy as well as the happiness of doing their duty. To be happy ourselves is a most effectual contribution to the happiness of others.—Sir John Lubbock.

WANTED—Position in private family as governess. Can also teach music. Address B-16, General Delivery, Henderson, N. C.

1839

ERSKINE COLLEGE

1923

A College With a History

A College With a Future

This institution, under control of the Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church, has always stood for Scholarship, Culture and Character. It is situated in the healthy Piedmont section of South Carolina, in a quiet village of 800 people. Able Faculty, Standard Courses, Religious, Literary and Athletic Activities, combine to develop the highest type of well-rounded manhood.

Costs moderate as is consistent with first-class service and high-grade instruction. Next session opens September 19th, 1923. For catalog and information, write to

R. C. GRIER, President

::

DUE WEST, S. C.

LET YOUR BOY START RIGHT

Under Christian influences, military training, careful supervision and thorough academic instruction at

CARLISLE SCHOOL

A well-known preparatory school of high standards. Excellent dormitories, class rooms, gymnasium, infirmary, library and general equipment. Two academic courses offered. Total fee for year, $362.50. For literature, address W. C. DUNCAN, Headmaster, Bamberg, South Carolina.

NORTH CAROLINA STATE COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND ENGINEERING

STATE COLLEGE STATION RALEIGH, N. C.

Technical Education at State College prepares its graduates for personal success and for leadership in industrial progress. The college offers

FOUR YEAR COURSES IN:

Agriculture—including General Agriculture and Specialized Courses in Farm Crops, Agricultural Engineering, Animal Husbandry and Dairying, Biology, Horticulture, Poultry Science, Soils, Veterinary Medicine, Vocational Education.

Chemistry, Agricultural Chemistry, Textile Chemistry and Dyeing.

Civil Engineering, Architecture and Highway Engineering.

Electrical Engineering.

Mechanical Engineering.

Textile—Textile Engineering, Textile Manufacturing, Textile Chemistry and Dyeing.

Agricultural Economics, Business Administration, Rural Life.

General Science, Physics, Biology.

TWO YEAR COURSES IN:

Agriculture, Mechanic Arts, Textile Manufacturing.

One Year Course in Auto Mechanics.

Winter Course in Agriculture for Farmers.

Summer Session for Teachers, for College Entrance and for College Credit.

Excellent equipment in all departments.

Session 1923-1924 begins September 4.

Entrance requirements for Freshman Class, 15 units—English, 3; History, 2; Mathematics, 2½; Science, 1; Elective, 6½.

For catalog, illustrated circulars, and entrance blanks, write E. B. OWEN, Registrar.

CENTRAL BUREAU of PUBLICITY

FOR

Presbyterian Schools and Colleges

Departments of

Newspaper-Church Paper Publicity

Alumnae Organization

General Publicity

For particulars address R. H. RICE, Director
Box 869, Charlotte, N. C.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION Emphasized Through PUBLICITY

FLORA MACDONALD COLLEGE

Is Training Students to

DO THINGS --and-- THEY DO THEM

THREE THOUSAND OF THESE FLORA MACDONALD WOMEN ARE SERVING THEIR COUNTRY

AS

- Accompanist
- Assistant Chief Clerk
- Assistant Principal
- Banker
- Bank Teller
- Bank Cashier
- Bank Clerk
- Billing Clerk
- Bookkeeper
- Cashier Insurance Co.
- Clerk Department Store
- Community Worker
- County Supt. Schools
- Concert Manager
- Comptometer Operator
- County Demonstrator
- Computer
- Costume Designer
- Civil Service Employee
- Director Phys. Training
- Dietitian
- Draftsman
- Deputy Supt. Public Instruction
- Insurance Agent
- Librarian
- Lawyer
- Multigraph Operator

To The Prospective Student

We will welcome YOU

into the great body of

YOUNG WOMEN

who are fitting themselves at

Flora Macdonald College

to

DO THINGS

THE FLORA MACDONALD GIRL

Is taught that service is the supreme purpose of education, and that the responsibilities of life can be assumed properly only by men and women of Christian character.

Address THE REGISTRAR for
The Catalog
"Life at F. M. C."
"On The Firing Line"

- Missionary
- Mother
- Milliner
- Matron Private School
- Medical Drawing Expert
- Merchant
- Manager Cafeteria
- Principal High School
- Post Office Clerk
- Pharmacist
- Proof Reader
- Physician's Assistant
- Private Secretary
- Postmaster
- Principal Primary School
- Real Estate Agent
- Stenographer
- Superintendent Hospital
- Surgical Nurse
- Supt. State Institution
- State Red Cross Repr.
- Secretary Girls' Work
- Supt. Opportunity School
- Sales Manager
- Teacher
- Trained Nurse
- Telegraph Editor
- Welfare Worker

FLORA MACDONALD COLLEGE

RED SPRINGS : : : : : NORTH CAROLINA

Some people do most of their praying just before they go to bed. The tone of their praying shows that their outstanding conception of God is that of a convenient watchman.

THE NORTH CAROLINA COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

An A-1 grade college maintained by the State of North Carolina for the education of its young women. Liberal courses leading to the usual degrees in Arts, Science and Music. Equipment modern, including furnished dormitories, library, laboratories, literary society halls, athletic grounds, etc. Fall term begins in September, Spring term in February, Summer term in June. For catalog and other information, address. JULIUS I. FOUST, President Greensboro, N. C.

FOR GIFTS OF Watches, Jewelry or Silverware
Write JAMES ALLAN & CO. THE JEWELERS
185 King St. Charleston, S. C.
67 years in business selling the best goods at the most reasonable prices
Memorandum packages sent upon receipt of satisfactory references
We prepay charges on all purchases

World's Best Roofing at Factory Prices

"Reo" Chastor Metal Shingles, V-Crimp, Corrugated, Standing Seam, Painted or Galvanized Roofings, Sidings, Wallboard, Paints, etc., direct to you at Rock-Bottom Factory Prices. Positively greatest offer ever made.

Edwards "Reo" Metal Shingles cost less; outlast three ordinary roofs. No painting or repairs. Guaranteed rot, fire, rust, lightning proof. Send for samples and free roofing book.

Edwards Ready Made Buildings Send for the Edwards Catalog of "Superior" Ready-Made Buildings, showing a complete line of houses, bungalows, barns, wood garages, poultry houses, etc., all at money-saving factory prices. These buildings are not merely "ready-cut" but actually ready built, and represent a wonderful money-saving.

Be Sure to State Which Books You Want - Roofing and Free Samples; Ready-Made Buildings; or Metal Garages. Postal or letter brings one or more of them FREE.

Free Roofing Book Get our wonderfully low prices and free samples. We sell direct to you and save you all in-between roofing profits. Ask for Book No. 2373

LOW PRICED GARAGES Lowest prices on Ready-Made Fire-Proof Steel Garages. Set up any place. Send postal for Garage Book showing styles. THE EDWARDS MFG. CO., 2323-2373 Pike St. Cincinnati, O.

FREE Samples & Roofing Book

Story and Incident

STORY OF A GREAT SINGER

When Parepa was in London, she was everywhere the people's idol. The great opera-houses in all our cities and towns were thronged. Her young, rich tones are remembered with an enthusiasm like that which greeted her when she sang.

Her company played in London during the Easter holidays, years ago, and I, as an old friend, claimed some of her leisure hours. We were friends in Italy, and Easter Sunday was to be spent with me.

At eleven in the morning she sang at one of the large churches. I waited for her, and at last we two were alone in my snug little room. At noon the sky was overcast and gray. Down came the snow, whitening the streets and roofs. The wind swept icy breaths from the water, as it came up the river and rushed past the city spires and over the tall buildings, whirling around us the snow and storm. We had hurried home, shut and fastened our blinds, drawn close the curtains, and piled coal higher on the glowing grate. We had taken off our wraps and now sat close to the cheery fire for a whole afternoon's blessed enjoyment.

Parepa said: "Mary, this is perfect rest! We shall be quite alone for four hours."

"Yes; four long hours!" I replied. "Nobody knows where you are! If the whole company died, they couldn't let you know!"

The snow turned into sleet; a great chill fell over the whole city. We looked out of our windows, peeping through the shutters and pitying the people as they rushed past.

A sharp rap on the door. John thrust in a note.

"My dear friend, can you come? Annie has gone. She said you would be sure to come to her funeral. She spoke of you to the last. She will be buried at four."

I laid the poor little, blotted note into Parepa's hand. How it stormed! We looked into each other's faces helplessly. I said: "Dear, I must go, but you sit by the fire and rest. I'll be at home in two hours. And poor Annie has gone."

"Tell me about it, Mary, for I am going with you," she answered.

She threw on her heavy cloak, wound her long, white woolen scarf closely about her throat, drew on her woolen gloves, and we set out together in the storm.

Annie's mother was a dressmaker, and sewed for me and my friends.

She was left a widow with her one little girl after her husband was drowned off the coast, and out of the blinding pain and loss and anguish had grown a sort of idolatry for the delicate, beautiful child, whose brown eyes looked like the young husband's.

GOOD POSITIONS

Paying fine salaries can be had for ambitious young men and women who complete our commercial and stenographic courses. Our aim this season is to enroll a very large number of such students who can be trained for high and responsible positions. Won't you be one to enroll? A postal address to us will bring you our catalog. Write for it. DRAUGHONS BUSINESS COLLEGE Knoxville, Tenn.

THE LOUISVILLE PRESBYTERIAN THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
BRILLIANT FACULTY MODERN CURRICULUM

Situated in the heart of the institutional section of a great metropolis, with all the added advantages of these associated institutions
Write for particulars to JOHN M. VANDER MEULEN, President
109 East Broadway, Louisville, Ky.

If In Doubt, Take B. & L. Shares

You will earn the highest interest rate on your savings consistent with perfect safety, and pay no tax on savings.

Shares cost twenty-five cents per week, and usually mature in 333 weeks. Net you 6 1-4 per cent at maturity.

SERIES OPEN IN JANUARY, APRIL, JULY AND OCTOBER

Mechanics Perpetual Building & Loan Association

225 N. Tryon St

Established 1883

Charlotte, N. C.

Flora Macdonald College

Red Springs, North Carolina

Where the Spirit of SERVICE and LOYALTY Abounds

3,000 Alumnae engaged in 60 Occupations

10 Graduates "On the Firing Line"

Courses leading to A.B., B.S., B.M. Degrees

Catalog on Request

Address the Registrar

SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY

Announces

REDUCED ROUND-TRIP RATES

to

Wrightsville Beach, N. C.,

and Other Resorts

From	to	Week-end
Charlotte, N. C.	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	$ 8.60
Lincolnton, N. C.	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	9.95
Shelby, N. C.	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	10.90
Rutherfordton, N. C.	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	12.05

Tickets on sale Fridays and Saturdays of each week, May 18th to September 2, 1923. Limited to reach original starting point Tuesday following date of sale.

Season tickets Charlotte, N. C., to Wrightsville Beach, N. C. and return $11.30, sold any day May 15th to September 30th, with final limit to October 31, 1923.

For sleeping car reservation or other information apply to ticket agent or address,

E. W. LONG
Division Passenger Agent
Charlotte, N. C.

Largest and Most Modern Plant in the Carolinas

Charlotte Marble & Granite Works

R. E. SCOGGINS, Proprietor CHARLOTTE, N. C. W. 7th St. and Southern Railway
Oldest Largest Best Phone 281

For 15 years this mother had loved and worked for Annie, her whole being going out to bless her one child.

EXPERT KODAK FINISHING

Developing and printing by experts. Most beautiful work guaranteed at all times. Satisfaction or no charge. Developing 6 exposure rolls 10 cents, 10 and 12 exposure rolls 15 cents, film packs 20 cents per pack. Printing 1 5/8 by 2 1/2, 3 cents; 2 1/4 by 3 1/4, 4 cents; 2 1/2 by 4 1/2, 5 cents; 3 1/4 by 5 1/2, 6 cents. Quick delivery. Send one film to test our service.

LIGONS DRUG STORE
Spartanburg, S. C.

NORFOLK SOUTHERN RAILROAD COMPANY

Passenger Schedules

Effective January 28, 1923

Charlotte, N. C.

Daily Except Sunday as Shown
Lv. 7:30 A. M.

Raleigh and intermediate points. Connection for Belhaven, Norfolk, and intermediate points.

For tickets, Pullman reservations and information address or apply to

J. K. POWELL, D. T. A.
P. A. JENKINS, C. T. A.

MARY BALDWIN COLLEGE AND MARY BALDWIN SEMINARY

Established in 1842

For Young Ladies Staunton, Va. Term begins Septembr 6th. In Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. Unsurpassed climate, modern equipment. Students from 33 States. Courses: Collegiate, 4 years, A.B. Degree; Preparatory, 4 years. Music, Art, Expression, Domestic Science. Athletics—Gymnasium and Field. Catalogue.

- School Desks,
- Opera Chairs,
- Folding Chairs
- Kindergarten Chairs,
- Church Pews,
- School Supplies,
- Blackboards

Southern Desk Co., Hickory, N. C.

COLUMBIA THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Columbia, S. C.

The Seminary of the Synods of South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Florida

FACULTY

JOHN MILLER WELLS, A.M., Ph.D., D.D., LL.D.

President of the Seminary

Professor of Practical Theology

WILLIAM M. McPHEETERS, D.D., LL.D.

Professor of Old Testament Literature and Exegesis

HENRY ALEXANDER WHITE, A.M., Ph.D., D.D., LL.D.

Professor of New Testament Literature and Exegesis

RICHARD C. REED, D.D., LL.D.

Professor of Ecclesiastical History and Church Polity

MELTON CLARK, A.B., D.D.

Professor of the English Bible and Religious Education

EDGAR D. KERR, A.B., B.D., D.D.

Professor of Hebrew and Cognate Languages

JAMES BENJAMIN GREEN, A.B., D.D.

Professor of Didactic and Polemic Theology

HUGH R. MURCHISON, A.B., B.D.

Instructor in Missions

The next session will begin Wednesday, September 19, 1923. For information write to Rev. Hugh R. Murchison, Executive Secretary, Columbia, S. C.

I had thought it all over as I took the Easter lilies from my window shelf. I knew there would be no other flowers in their wretched room. How endless was the way to that East End house! At last we reached the place. In the street stood the hearse known only to the poor.

We climbed flight after flight of narrow, dark stairs to the small upper rooms. In the middle of the floor stood a stained coffin, lined with stiff, rattling cambric and cheap gauze, resting on uncovered trestles of wood.

We each took the mother's hand and stood a moment with her, silent.

A hush fell over the small room. I whispered to the mother and asked: "Why did you wait so long to send for me? All this would have been different."

"I can't remember why I didn't send," she said, her hand to her head, and added, "I seemed to die, too, and forget, till they brought a coffin. Then I knew it all."

The undertaker came and bustled about. The funeral service was over.

Without a word Parepa rose and walked to the head of the coffin. She threw her cloak back from her shoulders, and laid her hand on the cold forehead, and, with illumined eyes, sang the melody:

"Angels ever bright and fair,
Take, oh, take me to thy care."

Her magnificent voice rose and fell in all its richness and power and pity and beauty. She looked above the dingy room and the tired faces of the men and women, the hard hands and the struggling hearts. She threw back her head and sang till the choirs of paradise must have paused to listen to the music of that day.

She passed her hand caressingly over the girl's soft, dark hair, sang on—and on—"Take—oh, take her to thy care."

The mother's face grew rapt and white. I held her hands and watched her eyes. Suddenly she threw my hands off and knelt close to the wooden trestles. She prayed that God would bless the angel singing for Annie. A patient smile settled about her lips, and the light came back into her poor, dulled eyes. I led her back to her seat as the last notes of Parepa's voice rose triumphant over all earthly pain and sorrow. And I thought that no queen ever went to her grave with a greater ceremony than this young daughter of poverty and toil.

The following week thousands listened to Parepa's matchless voice. Applause rose to the skies, and Parepa's own face was gloriously swept with emotion. I joined in the enthusiasm, but above the glitter and shimmering of jewels and dress, and the heavy odor of flowers, the sea of smiling faces and the murmur of voices, I could behold by the dim light of a tenement window the singer's uplifted face, the wondering countenances of the poor onlookers, and the mother's wide, startled, tearful eyes. I could hear, above the sleet on the roof and the storm outside, Parepa's voice singing up to heaven, "Take, oh, take her to thy care."

—Methodist Recorder.

BUILDING FOR THE FUTURE

Founded for Christian education, never more needed than today. Here your boy will be in an atmosphere of Christian principles and fair play that will call out his best. He will have the right sort of associates and be under the influence of men chosen for their work because of their character as well as for their teaching ability. Bible classes at McCallie most popular in the school. Prepares for all leading colleges and scientific schools and for the United States Naval and Military Academies. Small classes, individual attention. Boys prepared directly for the colleges of their choice.

Situated in the heart of the famous battlefield of Missionary Ridge, military training at McCallie takes on real significance. Daily military drill without over-emphasis on military affairs. All athletics. One of the best athletic fields in the South and ideal swimming pool.

Headmasters:

S. J. McCALLIE, M.A. and J. P. McCALLIE, M.A., Ph.D.

For catalog, address THE McCALLIE SCHOOL, Mission Ridge, Chattanooga, Tennessee

The McCallie School

Queens College, Charlotte, N. C.

A High Grade Institution for the Education of Young Women

Christian Ideals constantly held before the Students; Christian Characters in the chair of each Department; Five Teachers with M. A. Degree; Two Teachers with Ph.D. Degree; Christian Atmosphere permeating the Student Body.

Location, the very best: Myers Park, Charlotte. Equipment rapidly reaching standard requirements. Curriculum equal to that of any institution in the State. Expenses very moderate indeed, considering advantages offered and work done.

Our Motto: "Christian Women for Christian Homes." Send us your daughter, support us in our administration and instruction, and we will return a thoroughly developed and fully refined Christian woman.

For catalogue and other information, write

WILLIAM H. FRAZER, President
Box 300
Charlotte, N. C.

ELISE HIGH SCHOOL

PURPOSE: To prepare boys and girls for standard colleges under Christian influences, and to supply trained Christian leaders.

A Presbyterian High School

With a reputation for thorough work; healthy location; comfortable quarters; strong faculty—all college graduates and experienced teachers; individual attention to students; four-year course in Bible. Rates $156.50 the year. For catalogue and information, address

JOHN D. McLEOD :: HEMP, N. C.

Aberdeen & Rockfish Railroad

BETWEEN ABERDEEN AND FAYETTEVILLE

EAST BOUND			DISTANCE FROM ABERDEEN	STATIONS	DISTANCE FROM FAYETTEVILLE	WEST BOUND
Pass.	Local Freight	Pass.				Pass.	Local Freight	Pass.
DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY				DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY
NO. 14	NO. 22	NO. 38				NO. 41	NO. 21	NO. 15
7:00 pm	7:30 am	9:00 am	0	Lv. Aberdeen	45	6:50 pm	3:50 pm	8:30 am
f 7:19 pm	s 8:15 am	f 9:16 am	5	Ashley Heights	40	f 6:35 pm	s 3:20 pm	f 8:12 am
s 7:28 pm	f 8:36 am	s 9:26 am	9	Sanitorium	36	f 6:26 pm	s 3:05 pm	f 8:02 am
f 7:34 pm	f 8:39 am	f 9:30 am	10	Montrose	35	f 6:22 pm	f 3:00 pm	f 7:58 am
f 7:46 pm	f 8:51 am	f 9:38 am	13	Timberland	32	f 6:13 pm	f 2:45 pm	f 7:48 am
8:00 pm	s 9:55 am	s 9:53 am	19	Raeford	26	s 6:00 pm	s 2:25 pm	7:30 am
			24	Dundarrach	21	f 5:45 pm	s 1:25 pm
			26	Arabia	19	f 5:39 pm	f 1:15 pm
			30	Rockfish	15	s 5:25 pm	f 12:55 pm
			31	Hope Hills Jct.	14	f 5:22 pm	f 12:50 pm
			34	Fenix	11	f 5:13 pm	f 12:38 pm
			36	Clifton	9	s 5:08 pm	f 12:33 pm
			40	Skibo	5	f 5:00 pm	f 12:18 pm
			42	Owens	3	f 4:55 pm	f 12:11 pm
			45	Ar. Fayetteville Lv.	0	s 4:45 pm	s 12 noon

East and North bound trains have right of track over West and South bound trains of the same class. All trains stop on flag at Lake field.

Montreat Normal School

Accredited High School and Normal Courses. Household Economics and two years of college work in addition. Best advantages at least cost. Ideal location and surroundings. A limited number of rooms yet available. Apply promptly if you wish to enter.

Montreat Normal School

Montreat : : North Carolina

College of
WILLIAM AND MARY
For Men and Women

Supported by the State of Virginia for the benefit of all the people.

Regular DEGREE COURSE and SPECIAL COURSES in Teacher Training, Pre-Medicine, Pre-Engineering, Home Economics, Law, Business Administration, etc.

Healthful location; students under splendid moral influence; four churches, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A. Sunday Schools, etc.

For particulars address:

COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY

Williamsburg, Virginia

H. L. Bridges Registrar J. A. C. Chandler President

BOILS Old Sores, Cuts and Burns have been healed since 1820 with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 724 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Facial Blemishes

Sallow, muddy, roughened or blotched complexions are usually due to constipation. When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication. Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe. Try it today,

Nujol

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
A LUBRICANT—NOT A LAXATIVE

Sparkles

His Financial Standing

Three small boys were earnestly discussing the ability of their respective fathers.

The son of a song writer said, "My father can come home in the evening, and sit down after supper, and write a song and take it in town the next morning, and sell it for twenty-five dollars."

"But my dad," eagerly spoke up the young heir of a short-story writer, "can write a story in an evening, and take it in town the next morning and sell it for fifty dollars."

The preacher's son was a bit nonplussed until he had an inspiration. "My father," he announced, triumphantly, "gets up in the pulpit and talks half an hour, and then it takes twelve men to carry the money up to him!"—Er.

A Clash of Wits

While Horace Mann, the famous educator, was sitting in his study one day an insane man rushed into the room and challenged him to fight.

"My dear fellow," replied Mr. Mann, "it would give me great pleasure to accommodate you, but I can't do it, the odds are so unfair. I am a Mann by name and a man by nature—that's two against one."

"Oh, come ahead!" the insane man answered. "I am a man and a man beside myself. Let us four have a fight."—Boston Transcript.

"Pat, what makes your nose so red?"

"Sure," replied Pat, "it's the reflection of me soul."

"The reflection of your soul? What do you mean?" asked the inquisitive one.

"Sure, it's the reflection of me soul," retorted Pat. "It's glowin' wid pleasure at me ability to 'tend to me own business."—The American Boy.

Your friends come in without knocking; your enemies knock without coming in—San Francisco Chronicle.

TYPEWRITERS

New and Rebuilt
For Sale, Rent or Exchange

S. H. WILEY
Salisbury, N. C.

On your money. It is worth it —why not get it? 6% is 100% more than 3%, and 50% more than 4%. 16 years of Safety and Service.

SECURITY SAVINGS AND LOAN CO.
Assets $1,239,951.22
F. W. DIXON, President - Birmingham, Ala.

The STIEFF TONE

Is famous with three generations of music lovers. It has never been duplicated. It is the expression of a passion for perfection that has actuated three generations of piano makers.

Chas. M. Stieff, Inc.,
Charlotte, N. C.
Please send catalogue and prices of Pianos.
Name _____
Address _____

CHAS. M. STIEFF, Inc.
Charlotte, N. C.

STIEFF PETIT GRAND
The smallest Grand Piano made that embodies all the essential qualities of the Concert Grand.

THE PREACHER

teacher, elder or deacon who spends all or gives it away is a dangerous leader in any community. Get rid of him and employ a practical man, righteous, but withal, honest to his wife and children.

THE MUTUAL BUILDING AND LOAN

is the best savings institution in this country. You can carry shares no matter where you live, but you're not doing it, yet you've got to die just as the day laborer. Who's to take care of your wife and little ones for whom you and you alone are responsible?

THINK IT OVER, BROTHER

The July series is just starting. Get in today.

JNO. R. PHARR,
President

E. L. KEESLER,
Secretary-Treasurer
Charlotte, N. C.

Opportunity Never Seeks

"National Bank Safety for Savings"

The man or woman without money. That is why you should save and steadily build up an account in a strong bank where the money will be ready for you when the right opportunity comes along. Your account will be welcome here.

Charlotte National Bank
Resources Over $5,000,000.00

BELK BROS. CO.

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

We call your attention to our HOME FURNISHING DEPARTMENT

Just Received One Car Load of

Genuine Japanese Grass Rugs

All colors---browns, blues, greens. Borders to match colorings

18 x 36 Inches	-----	$.29
27 x 54 Inches	-----	.69
36 x 72 Inches	-----	.98
4 1/2 x 7 Feet	-----	1.69
6 x 9 Feet	-----	2.95
8 x 10 Feet	-----	3.98
9 x 12 Feet	-----	4.75

Let us estimate on your Shades, Floor Coverings, and Draperies.

Will send a man to see you.

Gold Seal Congoleum by the yard or the Rug

We appreciate your patronage and guarantee every article we sell Any business entrusted to us will have our prompt attention.

WE SOLICIT MAIL ORDERS

Belk Bros. Co., Charlotte, N. C.

We make Window Shades any size. Send us your measurements and we do the rest.

We carry a big line of Luggage. All kinds—See us on Trunks, Suit Cases, Hand Bags.

August 2nd, 3rd and 4th Are Charlotte Merchants' August Clearance Sale Days

During this sale we will sell all summer furniture at a discount of 20 per cent, including white maple and rustic hickory porch chairs and rockers; "Leonard," "White Mountain" and "Progress All-Steel" refrigerators; porch shades and plain (unupholstered) fiber furniture.

Don't fail to share in this saving on the highest grade summer furnishings.

W. T. McCOY & CO.

211 South Tryon St.

Charlotte, N. C.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

A Religious Newspaper for the Family

Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.

Rev. J. R. Bridges, D.D., Charlotte, N. C., Editor

Rev. R. C. Reed, D.D., Columbia, S. C., Editor

Vol. LXIV

CHARLOTTE, N. C., AUGUST 8, 1925

No. 32

Mid-Summer Edition

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $3.00 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE
REV. W. L. BOGGS, Circulation Manager

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
BY PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY,
A. M. GRAY, Treasurer.

ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858.

Entered at the Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as second class matter

A Religious Newspaper for the Family, Devoted to the Interest of Christ's Kingdom as Represented by the Southern Presbyterian Church.

Address all communications, and make all checks payable, to the company, and not to individuals.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The label on the paper gives the date to which subscription is paid.

When change of address is desired, give the old and new address. When the date of the label is behind the date of this issue of the paper the label is a reminder that the subscription price is past due. When the date of the label is in advance of the date of this issue it is a receipt for the last subscription paid.

In accordance with the wishes of our patrons, the paper is discontinued only upon the written request of the subscriber. Arrearages must be settled in full at the same time, at the rate of three dollars a year.

No charge is made for the insertion of marriage and obituary notices of fifty words or less. For all over fifty words remit at the rate of one cent a word. Correspondents are requested to give the post office address of married couples when marriage notices are sent.

News items should be in our hands by Monday morning in order to insure their publication in the current issue.

CHANGE OF ADVERTISEMENTS

Advertisers who want their advertisements changed or want to insert new advertisements will please bring their copy to this office by Saturday. It is impossible for us to insert new advertisements or make changes for the current week at a later date.

Advertising rates furnished on application. The size and character of this paper indicate the size and character of its constituency. For reputable advertising there is no better medium for North and South Carolina and the most prosperous section of the South.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

EDITORIAL—
Vacation Time	1
Human Nature the Same in Every Age	1
The Brighter Side of China's Condition	2
The Ignorance of the Bible	2
Presbyterians—Wise and Otherwise	2
CONTRIBUTED—
Summertime Religion—By J. Keir Fraser	3
The Gasoline Chariot—By Rev. M. F. Daniels	3
The Equipment Fund—Is the Church Shouldering Its Responsibility?—By Rev. W. M. Clark	4
The Moral Law—By Eugene C. Caldwell	4
Quiet Talks on the Simple Essentials—By S. D. Gordon	4
Scenes in the Mountains of North Carolina	5
DEPARTMENTS—
Devotional	2
Woman's Auxiliary	6
Sunday School—By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.	7
Christian Endeavor—By Rev. J. G. Garth	7
Church News	8, 9, 10
News of the Week	10
Children	11
Marriages and Deaths	12
Advertisements, Etc.	12, 16

TREASURERS OF BENEVOLENT CAUSES

- Foreign Missions—Edwin F. Willis, 154 Fifth Ave., N. Nashville, Tenn.
- Home Missions, General Assembly's—A. N. Sharpe, 1522 Hurt Building, Atlanta, Ga.
- General Assembly's Training School—Geo. W. Call, Richmond, Va., Union Bank.
- Bible Cause—Gilbert Darlington, Bible House, N. Y.
- Christian Education and Ministerial Relief—John Stites, Fifth and Market Sts., Louisville, Ky.
- Publication and Sabbath School Work—R. E. Magill, 618 N. Sixth St., Richmond, Va.
- The General Assembly's Equipment Fund—T. R. Preston, Treasurer, Chattanooga, Tenn.

EDITORIAL

VACATION TIME

He need not be an old man who can recall the time when the term vacation was for the most part used for the time between the closing of school in the summer and its opening in the fall. Vacations touched only the life of the young, but the older folks worked year in and year out, without one thought that it was anything more than what came to all. The business man's life was a daily walk to his office, a daily repetition of barter and sale. The housekeeper also went her dreary round of catering to the wants of the household. The farmer knew no change from seed-time to harvest. He rose with the lark, plowed his fields till evening, and then sank into a dreamless sleep.

The preacher prepared his three discourses each week, went the rounds of his parish, buried the dead and consoled the sorrowing, with nothing to change the channel of his thoughts, or break the monotony of his life. From year to year he saw the same faces, and discussed the same subjects, or else did his best to bring about peace between contending factions.

Within recent years a great change has been brought about. Imperceptibly it has entered every department of life. In some, especially in the churches, it has encountered opposition, but in the end it has prevailed, and now, each year, we find men and women of all classes, accepting the vacation period as a part of their yearly experience.

The farmer has found that he will live longer if he will mingle among men and change the habits of a long line of ancestors.

Then the housekeeper has found that she is better fitted to cope with her problems after she has mingled with others, and found something with which to divert her mind.

The business man, not only has found that he himself is a better business man after he has changed his habits, and has exchanged views with other business men, but he has also found that his employees, after a short vacation, do far better work than when they were kept at work without change.

The sessions of our churches also have found out the benefits of a minister's vacation, so that now in every call there is a "gentleman's agreement" that the one called shall have at least one month's rest.

Of course these vacations vary, not only in the mode of spending them, but also in the place where they are spent.

Many go to the fashionable summer resort, where they meet others of their kind, the only change in their life being that of place.

Others go to some quiet country home, where they emphatically rest both body and mind, but find nothing in the way of mental stimulus.

Of recent years the religious conferences have been growing in favor. Montreat in the South has been the pioneer, as far as we know. In other Synods of our Church their number is increasing. These conferences have every advantage over the other summer resorts, though such advantages do not appeal alike to all.

In the first place you meet at them the very best people. For example, at Montreat you came into touch with the cream of the Southern Church, not all the cream remember, but more of it than you can find elsewhere.

The four great agencies of our work are always represented, which together with the leading men from every Synod, enable you to know what the Church is doing, far better than they can learn, even from such an able journal as the Standard.

In addition to this great advantage, which makes now what our Church is doing, and which in turn is necessary to intelligent giving, there is that mingled together of members of a common church and the resulting knowledge of each other which makes us realize in a practical way what is meant by the communion of saints.

Then above all other advantages there is that spiritual awakening which comes to men when they spend days in spiritual communion and in the study of God's Word.

It is at such places that friendships are formed that will extend into that life beyond.

While the attendance at such resorts is increasing every year, it is a matter of regret that any one should miss these advantages.

Life at best is short enough, and our lives, like ships that pass in the night, merely touch each other. How much more would each life count in its influence if it could only catch the fire from some other life.

Now that vacations have become a fixed habit in our lives, let us seek to make them a means of grace and a help to our Church.

Let us remember the words of the apostle: "See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise, redeeming the time, because the days are evil."

HUMAN NATURE THE SAME IN EVERY AGE

The doctrine of evolution has been sufficiently discussed, with the result that we know less about it than ever before, and its discussion has begun to pall upon all.

Whether man's physical being was evolved from some lower order, we do not propose to affirm or deny—though we may have decided opinions.

As for his spiritual nature we are ready to affirm, and to defend our affirmation, that he has by nature the same proneness to sin that Adam had after he fell.

However much the physical part of him has advanced through countless ages, the spiritual part, aside from grace, is the same as in the beginning.

Mankind today is no better and no worse than when the race began its new career after the fall. One has only to study the past history of our race to be convinced of this truth. Though we realize this, yet when proof is presented in the excavated monuments we are always conscious of surprise that such is the case.

Paul said to the Lycaonians who would have worshipped him and Barnabas, "We also are men of like passions with you." The same old Adam is in all of us, and the sins and weaknesses of the present are found in the past.

Dr. McAllister, in his lectures on Genesis, when giving some of the inscriptions on the monuments and private letters on the buried tablets, gave this extract from "The Teaching of the Governor Ptah-hotep" of the Fifth Dynasty of Egypt, and written about 1,500 years before the times of Moses:

"If thou art become great after thou hast been humble, and if thou hast amassed riches after poverty, and hast become the first in thy town; if thou art known for thy wealth and art become a great lord, let not thy heart become proud because of thy riches, for it is God who has given them to thee, Despise not another who is as thou wast; treat him as thy equal.

"If thou be wise, furnish thy house well; woo thy wife and do not quarrel with her; nourish her, deck her out, for fine dress is her greatest delight.

"Perfume her, make her glad as long as thou livest. She is a blessing which her possessor should treat as becomes his own standing. Be not unkind to her."

Here we learn that women, 1,500 years before the time of Moses, were fond of a well furnished house, and loved to be courted even after the honeymoon, and that fine dress was her greatest delight.

When, after all these years, we find that men and women of this day, in their weakness, have made no advance over the Egyptians of that early period, we lose faith in any progressive evolution, such as the exponents of that theory are so fond of claiming.

We are all "by nature the children of wrath, even as others."

THE BRIGHTER SIDE OF CHINA'S CONDITION

Those who have been studying world conditions naturally are depressed by the chaos of national life, wherever you look. The aftermath of the war seems greater in its ruinous effect than war itself. Kingdoms and empires have vanished in a night, and with them has gone that baseless idea that a king can do no wrong, and by this banishment the world has been helped and the dignity of the common man has been enhanced.

The business of the world, the traffic whereby man has to live, has been thrown into inextricable confusion, so that the balance between supply and demand has been destroyed.

Among the many countries cited to prove this general debauch of all things, China stands pre-eminent.

The government seems helpless, while bandits roam the country, levying upon whom they will.

In the midst of this general turmoil and national ruin it is refreshing to see some signs of improvement, especially along religious lines.

The general idea among men of the world as to the results of missionary efforts is that they are making no impression upon the life of that nation, hardened by the paganism of centuries. Travelers especially help to spread this opinion, and help to add to the contempt of men for the humble missionary.

It seems, however, that Feng Yuhsiang, one of their most famous generals, is a professed Christian who lets his light shine wherever he goes. He has asked Rev. Lin Fang, a Chinese Christian minister, to conduct a prayer meeting in his home for high officials. He has also asked Dr. Lin and Rev. G. L. Davis to conduct an evangelistic campaign for five days, in his camp, among his soldiers. He has also asked 14 university students, some of them students in theology, to assist in this meeting.

The only hope of this sin-sick world is to get it back to Christ. Such is the opinion of men everywhere.

When such a movement begins in the army in China, among those high in rank, it is only a question of time when the whole country will show its effect.

If we in this country continue to go after strange gods in theology, it may be that in the far future, China may have to come to our rescue.

THE IGNORANCE OF THE BIBLE

One of the strongest arguments for the use of the Bible in our public schools is the deplorable ignorance of its contents among all classes. We do not refer to ignorance of its moral lessons, though that is enough to make us tremble for the future of our race. We rather refer to the general ignorance of its contents.

A rather amusing story was told about some Turkish officials who refused to admit a shipment of Bibles, sent to Constantinople by the American Bible Society, on the ground that they were revolutionary documents, that would in some way stir up rebellion. In proof of their fears they pointed to the Epistle to the Galatians, Galatia at that time being a province of Turkey. We may smile at this ignorance, yet it was more excusable than that recently displayed by the custom officials in New York, according to the following taken from an exchange:

"A Jewish society of New York recently imported from Germany two cases of 'The Law,' copies of the Pentateuch, in English and Yiddish, in parallel columns. The custom house inspectors refused to admit them free of duty, as they do the Bible. Five inspectors examined the books, but did not recognize them as belonging to the Scriptures. They finally agreed that if a copy of the Bible with the American Bible Society imprint upon it were brought to them and they found that 'The Law' was a part of it, they would let the shipment in without paying duty."

PRESBYTERIANS—WISE AND OTHER-WISE

Some good soul once described Presbyterians as God's foolish people, and, from our observation, they have always lived up to their reputation. In nothing is their lack of wisdom shown more clearly than in the way they spread their beliefs. Judged by this test, of course, one finds exceptions.

The one, not true to type, regards the Church as a whole and in his efforts to advance the interests of that church, he forgets himself and his own peculiar interests. If new people come to town, he does not regard them as good prospects for his own church, but rather as prospects for the church at large, and the question with him is not whether he can secure them to increase his own rule and at the same time, his church's treasury, but whether they, by reason of their location, belong to his church or to that of his fellow preacher.

The other wise Presbyterian cares little for the general cause—Presbyterianism with him is bounded by the walls of his own church, and when he hears of the arrival of a new family, he swoops down upon them with only one idea in mind, to add their names to his roll. We have known them to take a new family from under the very eaves of another church, being able to do so, because his church was richer and more fashionable, owing to the fact that men and their wives, when they reach a new city, are anxious to get into the best society, and they consider the church the best road to take.

It is evident that in far-away El Paso the wise type abound, as our readers will learn that out in that extreme portion of our field, they believe that the best way to multiply is to divide. The mother church, under the leadership of that clear-headed and broad-minded Presbyterian, Dr. W. M. Fairley, has sent out colony after colony with the result that the city will soon be blanketed with Presbyterian churches.

When we came to Charlotte 23 years ago, this selfish policy had prevailed for years, and in consequence there were only three churches. Then they began to plan for growth by colonizing, and soon we find the number increasing till now we number 11. If we study the situation, however, we find much to deplore. The various churches, with the exception of Wilmore, have strategic positions, and Wilmore will soon seek a better position. The great drawback is the lack of moral and financial support. The stronger churches should, for the sake of the common cause, come to the support of the others. They should pledge a certain yearly contribution to the reduction of the debt under which these churches are laboring, and above all else they should try to persuade their members living in any neighborhood to unite with the church nearest to them.

When Dr. Fairley was telling the General Assembly his method of colonizing in El Paso, we were struck with one remark. He was urging all of his members, living beyond a certain street, to join the new organization. One prominent man, who was rich, said, "You do not mean for me to go?" "Yes," said Fairley, "I want you as the ring leader."

I fear, however, that we are expecting too much. However, when the millennium is ushered in, the wise Presbyterians will predominate.

A BOOK WORTH READING

In these days one can say with the Preacher, "Of making books there is no end," yet even notwithstanding this fact, it will pay one to read this little book by Rev. J. F. Lawson, D.D., of Little Rock, Ark., the pastor of Central Presbyterian Church.

Its title is "The Learned and Fashionable Substitute for the Story of Creation."

He only requires 17 pages to set forth his views. The reader will agree with us that he has done his work well. He discusses the theory of evolution, not from a scientific point of view, but as a common-sense man talking with common-sense people. He presents four difficulties that stand in the way of any general acceptance of the evolution theory.

The first difficulty is that it is not proven; the second is that there is a Babel of conflicting statements as to the "raison d'etre" of the whole theory. The third difficulty he finds in the transparent falsity of the claim that the "weapons of science are the weapons of precision," accurate, minute, exact. The fourth difficulty is that its tendency and practical workings are such as to confuse the real issues of life.

Devotional

VACATION

One of the helpful lessons in the study of the Gospel of Mark and a sweet picture of our Lord is in Christ's invitation to His disciples to have a vacation with Him. He was mindful of their weariness and expressed His sympathy and thoughtfulness in the words, "Come ye yourselves apart and rest awhile."

The twelve had gone out at Christ's command into the villages to preach repentance and to heal. Returning they gathered about their leader to report, "telling Him all things whatsoever they had done, and whatsoever they had taught." The compassionate Jesus, seeing that they were weary and worn with their journeys and work, said to them, "Come ye yourselves apart and rest awhile," and together they crossed the lake in a boat.

Jesus invited them for a vacation with Him! How much good that day must have done those men. While their quiet was interrupted by the multitude who followed, and Christ was engaged in teaching, nevertheless they were brought closer to their Lord and learned to know Him as they had not before. And then it was that they saw Him perform the miracle of the loaves and fishes when five thousand were fed, and heard His discourse on the Bread of Life.

Are we being brought closer to Christ during our vacation season? Our best Friend, ever mindful of our needs, knows a vacation, a change and rest from the daily round of work, is needed by His disciples from time to time. But a worthwhile vacation will not be spent apart from Christ. On the other hand the best vacation will draw us close to Him, and we will return with renewed zeal and enthusiasm for work in His cause and Kingdom.

Let us who have that privilege make the most of our vacations, then take up the work of Christ in Central Church with renewed consecration in the fall.—Bulletin Central Church, Atlanta, Ga.

SUMMERTIME RELIGION

Whence comes it that we have one brand of religion for cool weather and another for hot? Whence comes it that we have one brand of religion for home and another for abroad? Whence comes it that we have one brand of religion for work days and another for holidays? Whence comes it that on our vacations we discontinue those spiritual exercises that strengthen our souls, and release many of the moral restraints that we have imposed on our conduct? Shall we charge it up to the Devil? or shall we blame our own selfish, sinful natures? Surely these things are not of God.

"Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven."—Matt. 5:16.—Calendar of Westminster Church, Charlotte, N. C.

All green and fair the summer lies
Full budded from the buds of spring,
With tender blue of wistful skies,
And winds which softly sing.

—Susan Coolidge.

GOD'S HEALING

There's healing by the waters,
There's healing in the trees,
There's healing with the blossoms,
There's healing in the breeze.
There's healing on the mountain,
There's healing in the light,
There's healing 'neath the hemlock,
There's healing in the night.
There's healing in the city,
There's healing where 'tis still,
There's healing on the ocean,
There's healing by the rill.
There's healing in the desert,
There's healing in the rain,
There's healing by the fountain,
And in the rustling grain.
There's healing all about us,
In the sunshine and in storm,
God heals His weary children,
When they of strength are shorn
Thank God for all His healings—
For the flutter of the trees—
Thank God for all His healings—
His winds, His flowers, His seas.

—Wm. C. Allen, in United Presbyterian

SUMMERTIME RELIGION

By J. Keir Fraser

There are at least four elements, it seems to me, which ought to enter into our summer-time religion.

I. The first of these is the element of Recreation, the meaning of which is written in the word itself. Recreation is that which recreates us, gives us a clearer mind and a sounder body. It is rather a strange fact that few of us realize that a man needs constantly to be re-created. And yet this is so. Re-creation is a divine law. And the divine method of re-creation is Rest—to put our work behind us for a little, to escape from our anxieties, to get out of hearing of the never-ending demands which are made upon our time and energies. It is in this way that we are to be re-created and kept fitted for the duties of life.

Recreation is a Christian duty and ought to be regarded as a part of our religion. Taking a holiday is not a selfish act; on the contrary it is based on unselfishness. When the minister, or the school teacher, or the merchant, takes a vacation it is not merely for his own sake that he does it—it is not primarily for his own sake—it is for the sake of the church, the school, the business, all of which need a man at his best.

There is a man who is working day after day for the sake of a family or a community or a cause. He refuses to obey the divine law which calls for re-creation, and at length goes beyond the limits of his natural strength and breaks down physically. What is the result? The work which ought to be done stops, and even before it stops it is done very inefficiently. If we are to do our work as it ought to be done we must recognize the value of rest, a reservation of our strength for future uses, a wise intermingling of pleasure and play with the earnest occupations of life. This is the primary meaning of the fourth commandment. God knew that His children would be tempted to take life too seriously, to work too hard and too long; so He said to them: "Don't do it. Don't let school keep all the week. Bring the element of recreation into your life. Establish holidays—days that shall be holy to God and man, and in which you shall be freely and blessedly idle."

So if our summer recreation is to be a real recreation, God must enter into it. We must have it in His name and in the interests of the work which He has given us to do. In this way it will become a part of our religion, and we shall not be ashamed of it, nor make apologies for it, but shall rejoice in it as the children of our Father in heaven.

II. A second element that ought to enter into our summer-time religion is A Proper Appreciation of the Outdoor World of Nature. We must not forget that this beautiful world in which our summer days are spent in God's world, and that it speaks of God's love and wisdom and power. "The heavens declare His glory, and the firmament showeth His handiwork." How many of us consciously realize this when on a summer holiday? I have heard it said of Tanler, the famous preacher and mystic of the fourteenth century, that when he went walking in his garden he used to pull his cap down over his eyes so that his meditations might not be disturbed by seeing the violets. What a pity it is that people will insist on looking on the natural as opposed to the spiritual, the earthly as opposed to the heavenly when in reality they are one. How such a conception impoverishes life. Was not Wordsworth nearer the truth when he said:

"Nature, never did betray
The heart that loved her; 'tis her privilege,
Through all the years of this our life, to lead
From joy to joy: for she can so inform
The mind that is within us, so impress
With quietness and beauty, and so feed
With lofty thoughts, that neither evil tongues,
Rash judgments, nor the sneers of selfish men,
Nor greetings where no kindness is, nor all
The dreary intercourse of daily life,
Shall e'er prevail against us, or disturb
Our cheerful faith, that all which we behold
Is full of blessings."

It is true that God may be seen everywhere, but it seems to me that the world of nature is God's world in a more real sense than the world of buildings and of books in which our winter days are spent. And to see this world aright is to see God; to delight in it is to delight in God; to enter into it with sympathy and appreciation is to enter into the realized presence of God. To look out across the lake at the procession of hills, to watch the moving clouds by day and the moving stars by night, to walk beside the water, to sail over it, to plunge under it, to sit under the shadows of the great trees by the side of the cooling stream, and then to think that all this is given us by God—to do this is to grow in grace and in the knowledge and love of God. So during this beautiful summer season let us enjoy ourselves in our Father's house. Let us read the Bible of the hills and the skies, and remember that it was written by God's hand. Let us listen to the anthem of the waters and the fields: "O! all ye works of the Lord, bless ye the Lord! Praise Him and magnify Him forever!"

Contributed

III. A third element that ought to enter into our summer-time religion is Meditation.

Why is it that most people today are so superficial? It is because they do not have time for quiet thinking. Ours is a busy age. Never in the world's history was it so busy. The crying evil of the day is the rush and fever of life. The realm of the silence is a foreign world to most of us. And yet without this the sources of the spiritual life must inevitably dry up.

Now the summer season is our opportunity for meeting this need. It gives us time for meditation and reading and thinking and communion with God. What an immense gain it would be to us religiously, for example, if a part of our summer were to be devoted to the reading of history. Is it not rather significant that so much of the Bible is given up to books of history? Have you ever thought to ask yourself what this means? Why, it means that through history we come to a knowledge of God. History is simply a record of God's dealings with His people of past ages, and so the study of history prepares us to see God in our contemporary annals, in the events which are recorded in our daily newspapers. To read it aright is to be made aware of the presence of God in all the facts of human life. It is to be awakened to a consciousness of the divine in our own age and our own community.

Or take the reading of poetry. The poet is a seer. He penetrates the veil that separates the visible from the invisible, and to read him aright is to be carried into a new world—a spiritual world, a world of invisible presences. The summer season brings with it the opportunity for this privilege—the privilege of calm, reflective thought without which our higher spiritual natures will in time atrophy.

IV. There is a fourth element which must enter into our summer-time religion, viz., a respect for The Ordinances of the Church.

Of course all that I have already said has a bearing on the development of the religious life because religion has to do with all life, but I have reference now to the religious life as it is related to the services and the institutions of the church. I do not think that any Christian will need to be told that he ought to go to church any more than a lover of paintings will need to be told that he ought to visit art galleries. But there are possibly some Christian people who need to be reminded that church-going in the summer while living at their country home is even more of a duty than in the winter when living in the city. I speak from personal observation when I say that incalculable harm may be done to the cause of righteousness in country communities by carelessness on the part of city people in attending church. In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred the country minister is a faithful man who is laboring at great self-sacrifice for the good of his people, and the city visitors have it in their power either to help or hinder him. Their very presence at the service encourages both him and the congregation. Apart from the good which they themselves will receive, they ought to go from a sense of social politeness, of good manners, and of decent interest in the welfare of their neighbors.

And I would like to say that these remarks about church-going are applicable even where the church is not one of our own denomination. It is natural that one should prefer the services of the church that he has been brought up in; it is both natural and right. But remember this: we may be very zealous Presbyterians, but we are very poor Christians if we are so dependent on our forms of worship that we can not get along without them. Churchmanship is a very good thing in its place, but Christianity is a better thing—it is the essential thing. And above all religious denominations is that Universal Church over which no Pope or Bishop or General Assembly rules, and which no society is old enough or wide enough to contain. As Presbyterians we will go to a Presbyterian church if we can find one, but as Christians we will go anywhere, under any roof, into any service—wherever we can find God worshipped, and Jesus Christ the Son of God loved and followed.

There is just one religious society which I would warn my readers to avoid, and that is what some one has called "The Ancient Order of Pharisees." The Presbyterian who stays at home on Sunday morning because there is no other church in the village but the Methodist, and the Methodist who stays at home because there is no other church but the Baptist, will very soon find themselves members in good and regular standing of the "Ancient Order of Pharisees."

Such then are four elements that enter into a summer-time religion. Let us try to remember them these coming days, and at the close of the summer may we all come back better men and women, better Christians, stronger to do the work that God has given us to do. And may it not be ours to have to say, "The harvest is passed, the summer is ended, and I am not saved." But may we rather say, "Holy, Holy, Holy Lord God Almighty; heaven and earth are full of Thy glory!"

Galt, Canada.

THE GASOLINE CHARIOT

A Midsummer Talk on Its Uses and Abuses

By Rev. M. F. Daniels

How to own and operate an automobile and successfully resist the tug of the poor house would be a subject of almost universal interest, but I have been requested to write on the auto as a help or hindrance, or its use and abuse.

This is the auto age. Roger Babson recently referred to this as "a generation on wheels." Being on wheels we are naturally impelled more rapidly toward our goal. The auto has revolutionized industry. It has almost obliterated space. It has dragged the country hard by the city and paved the nations with pleasures and perils. As an agency for good the real worth of a car is scarcely estimated or appreciated; as an instrument of sin it may work havoc and damnation. Bootleggers are taking grave personal risks to transport and peddle body-wrecking and soul-destroying poison. Is it unreasonable to expect a Christian to transport and peddle a body-preserving and soul-saving Gospel? On the Jericho highways of life there are numbers of victims neglected and without hope, who should be taken from the places of danger and death to havens of shelter and safety. The Good Samaritan of old was forced to walk while the unfortunate one rode his beast; today, both may ride. Love can generate, with a self-starter, thousands of ways of putting a car to good use. There is an urgent need for Christians to dedicate their cars to the glory of God. To whom much is given, much is required. Ability and privilege involve responsibility. A few suggestions:

House-bound souls could be taken to the places of worship. Neglected children, there are thousands, in destitute sections, could be gathered up and carried to the Sunday Schools. Cars could be loaned to auto-less ministers on certain days or hours; this would lighten and make his pastoral work more far-reaching. Special delegations, singers, speakers, teachers and ministers could be taken to small and struggling churches. In a word, a church or Christian individual, could minister to a larger area with less effort, if there was first the willing heart.

The car becomes a menace and a curse if used selfishly. If it is the occasion for temptations to neglect one's soul for carnal pleasure it were better on the junk heap. The Sunday tourist, ecclesiastical hobo, is a disgrace to civilization. Many these days have ears to hear only the trees and streams, seeking communion with nature, while the tree of life is ignored and the God of nature and grace despised. Put irreverence at the wheel and you'll eat the dust of the godless. Put reverence at the wheel and you'll park by the sanctuary. Those who neglect the house of God for pleasure and business trips are riding for a spiritual blow-out. The way of a transgressor is hard even if he does ride on pneumatic tires. Jonah was a maritime traveler who was headed wrong and ran first into a storm and then a whale. On land, as well as at sea, if you are heading wrong there is a storm brewing and a whale of trouble waiting to devour you.

Some people have about as much right with a car as a baby has with a box of carpet tacks. It is to their hurt and undoing. You may be wealthy enough to own several chariots of steel, and wear diamond tires on your wheels, but if you neglect the spiritual filling stations you are scheduled for a protracted pause. The permit gives you the right to drive your bus in this and other states, but it is not a license to drive recklessly in a state of sin and spiritual poverty. Dedicate your car to God, use it for His glory and you'll not need shock absorbers hereafter.

One car goes right and another wrong,
By the selfsame fuel that burns;
It's the driver's heart and not the cart
That determines the way it turns.

Like the ways of a man are the ways of a car
As they speed on the highway dark,
It isn't its make but the way you take
That will decide just where you'll park.

If the driver's wrong the car can't go right,
Whether he rides by night or by day;
And the road to the wrong is all down hill
But the road to right a grand highway.

The make of the car and its cost may be great,
But its make and its cost can't compare
With a human soul that has missed his goal
And plunged into the place of despair.

Charlotte, N. C.

THE EQUIPMENT FUND—IS THE CHURCH SHOULDERING ITS RESPONSIBILITY

By Rev. W. M. Clark

The following suggestions are frankly from the standpoint of a foreign missionary who sees the tremendous need of the Equipment Fund and also feels that the Home Church is not yet attacking the problem of meeting the need in a manner worthy of its traditions or in a way to give promise of success. What is said here is an attempt to suggest certain defects apparent in the present plan with the hope that the next Assembly may be constrained to put the whole movement upon a better basis. The actual results of the past year can only be termed a "Fiasco," so far as cash in hand for foreign mission work is concerned. The Korea Mission, two years ago presented to the Church the urgent and immediate need for an equipment fund of one-half million dollars. In a recent letter the treasurer of the Korea Mission reports credits to this fund of three thousand five hundred dollars!

A study of the thirteenth annual report of the General Assembly's Stewardship Committee brings out certain facts as to the present plan, viz:

(1) It is distinctly stated that dependence is placed upon a cash offering in December and upon the presentation of the needs of the fund by field men visiting individuals in such churches as were open to a presentation of this kind. (See page 16 of the report). It is further stated in the report that "It is not the purpose of our committee to put on a general canvass in a congregation for Equipment Funds, as this is provided for in the cash offering on the first Sunday in December, but to ask for permission to present the needs of equipment to such as are financially able to take part in this effort without subtracting from their support to the annual budget." The writer was also informed while attending the General Assembly at Montreat that the idea was to make as little noise as possible and get the money largely from outstanding men of means.

Now taking these facts as a text may the writer make a few observations as to some defects that appear to him to be apparent?

1. In the first place, the plan is wrong from a psychological standpoint in that it tends to give the impression that the really permanent and vital needs of the Church's benevolent budget are cared for in the Every Member Canvass and the special Sunday in December, designated by the Assembly for this cash offering is used only because this is something that, while important, is of a more or less transient and less vital character than the items in the regular budget of the church. Now this impression is widespread yet it is only partially in accordance with the facts. So long as the Church carries on the work of Foreign Missions so long will it need to provide yearly for the equipment of the work that is being done and while it is true that when once an item like the building of a hospital or of a residence for a certain missionary is taken care of that particular item may be allowed to drop out of the appeal yet experience has taught us that where a work is successful there are constantly arising new and unforeseen needs for equipment of various kinds so that only those who are novices will entertain the thought that when once these five million dollars are raised (if ever) there will come no more calls from the Home and Foreign Mission fields for equipment money. There will always be need for large sums of money each year for the further equipment of the work of the growing church at home and abroad.

2. The plan is defective practically. It does not work. It is true the Stewardship Committee, though exceedingly modest in its claims, feels encouraged. The report says: "The best that can be said is that it is a start, but we believe the signs for cumulative interest on the part of the church at large are hopeful." And again: "The field men found themselves working in an atmosphere of total ignorance" (italics mine) "about the Equipment Fund until the publicity for it culminated about December 6th. Their progress was therefore slow."

Counted in results the effort may fairly be said to have failed so far as actually raising any considerable amount of money is concerned during the past year.

3. The plan is defective morally. It seeks to find the men in some few churches who are "financially able" to do more than they are doing through the regular budget. The attempt is made to reach outstanding men of means for larger sums rather than to seek to put the burden on all the rank and file of the church. If it be granted that the burden and the responsibility is fundamentally a burden of the whole church—then the plan insofar as it fails to lay the burden on all is to that extent morally defective.

We have seen and still see in certain Synods campaigns for education successfully carried to completion and very large sums of money raised? How was this done? By combing each congregation with a fine-tooth comb and we saw no hesitation upon the part of the leaders in placing the responsibility upon the rank and file of the church members. If there were mistakes in method; if things were done that savored more of the world and its methods than of Christ, then those things should be corrected, but is it not a strange thing that some of the same leaders who, using the principle of the "Every Member Canvass" with such tremendous effect in the educational campaigns, should repudiate (for whatever cause) the very methods that were formerly deemed necessary to success, when their energies are directed toward a still greater task—the raising of five million dollars, not by one Synod but by the united Church! This change of method was a mistake. As to the "outstanding men of means" two things may be said: (1) While it is their duty to give more ("in proportion as God hath prospered them") it is no more their duty to give toward equipment than toward the salary of missionaries and no more their duty to give to either than it is for the poorer brother with only a small amount at his disposal. Both are responsible to God for their stewardship. (2) These "outstanding men of means" have become such largely through their ability to hold on to the said "means" and they also seem to feel that they are being asked to give more than their share and are constantly looking for ways to make the rank and file give their share so that we often find the most liberal men are not the richest. All of us must be trained to give more.

In closing permit the writer to make a few suggestions which, if adopted, he feels will be constructive and helpful.

(1) The responsibility for the present failure to raise any adequate sums for this urgent need rests largely with the rank and file of pastors over our church. If each pastor will inform himself and then lead his people the situation can be saved. The writer is under the impression that not the Stewardship Committee, but the General Assembly, and more than the Assembly—all the pastors who have failed to realize their great responsibility in the matter are to blame. If this be true, the correction lies with not only an adequate leadership, but a united effort on the part of all pastors and sessions.

(2) Whatever methods are used let the responsibility be put on the consciences of every member, young and old, men and women.

(3) Specifically, in churches where the budget system is used and the "Every Member Canvass" relied upon, let a reasonable amount (how about $1.25 per capita yearly for 10 years?) be put in the budget and then raised and paid in. This should be done in all churches. Surely there is no excuse for not doing it in large and well organized churches. There are many of our larger churches that furnish the pastor with certain tools. These tools may include some of the following: (1) A home; (2) A study at the church together with its maintenance; (3) Stenographer; (4) Director of Religious Education; (5) An auto and its upkeep; (6) An assistant. Why should not such a church determine to see to it that the one—or it may be six—missionaries supported by it on the home and foreign field should likewise be equipped with all that is needed to do effective work? A number of churches have taken this attitude and a great deal is being done by certain churches toward this end, but this ought to be the rule rather than the rare exception, and the spirit of this principle, if applied to all our churches, small as well as large, would soon solve the problems of the raising an adequate fund yearly.

It need scarcely be added that nothing that has been said is intended to reflect upon any individual or any committee of the Assembly. The responsibility to raise the five million dollars belongs to every member of the Southern Presbyterian Church. Let us unite in an adequate effort to do this great and worthy task, but if we are to do it, we need to make considerable "noise" and to put the responsibility where it rightly belongs—on the shoulders of every man, woman and child in the entire Church.

"THE MORAL LAW"

By Eugene C. Caldwell

"The Moral Law or The Foursquare"—by Rev. A. F. Cunningham, D.D., 3406 Tom Green Street, Austin, Tex. Price, one copy, 25 cents; three copies, 50 cents; seven copies, 1.00. Copies can be had of the author.

Dr. Cunningham has held important pastorates in Texas, at Belton, Temple, and San Angelo. He is known throughout the state as one of the strongest preachers in the Synod of Texas. He is now the Synodical Evangelist of the Synod of Texas. We wish that this powerful discourse on the Moral Law could be read by all our people. We trust it will have a wide circulation. It is a masterly appeal, based on God's Word, for law and order.

We quote from the preface: "The following address on the Moral Law has been delivered in many places in the great state of Texas. Many requests have come to us to have it printed in permanent form. We, therefore, send it forth with the hope that in this day of universal lawlessness, and of world chaos and confusion, it will help men and nations to get back to a realization of their dependence on God, and of their moral responsibility to one another."

Richmond, Va.

QUIET TALKS ON THE SIMPLE ESSENTIALS

By Mr. S. D. Gordon, Bijou Theatre, Boardwalk, Atlantic City, N. J., July-August, 1923. Auspices Atlantic City Council of Churches

No. 6—The Human God

Men hunger for the human touch in—God. It's in us humans to want to know by the feel.

We crave the human touch, from cradle to grave. No fingers hold so tight as baby fingers. Children cling to mother and father and each other. The hand-clasp, lip touching lip, the light caress, the tightening hold of the hand as life ebbs out—the hunger for the human touch is in our blood.

That's why Jesus came, for that human touch, to get it, and to give it. The hunger itself is a bit of God.

Man is like God when he is truly human. That word "human" has two meanings. The hurt meaning has become the common meaning, the weakness, the selfishness, the narrowness in man. Originally, truly, it means the distinctive traits in which man is different from the lower creation, and is like God.

God is like man, the true human, in the power to reason things out, the twin power of speech, the moral sense, and, its twin, moral choice, and, most, rarest in—love. That word "love" tells most what God is. Love is a human thing. We know it. That's God's most distinctive trait.

The difference between God and man is in the limitations found in man. God knows no limit in power or knowledge or love. Its a radical difference in degree, not kind. Though too great for words or mental grasp.

Now, Jesus was God showing us these two things. He made plain what the true fine human is. And he made as plain what the real God is. Do you want to see the true human? Look at Jesus. All there is of the human is in Him.

Do you want to know the real God? Look at Jesus. When you are looking at Him you are seeing the Father. All there is of God, within the true human limitation, is in Him.

Jesus shared all our human experiences. He earned bread and bed by sweat and toil. He knew family ties, friendships' sweets, sorrows' pain, indignation over wrong. He loved deeply, sympathized tenderly, and wept real tears.

He was tempted as we are. Many a time His brow was knit and moist, and His hand clenched, as He felt temptation and fought it. And He overcame temptation precisely as every man can and may, by the use of His will, His choosing, and the use of His knees. Neither without the other.

Except—yes, there is an outstanding exception. One experience He never had. That which grows out of wrong choice. But—but, that's not a human experience. It's lower down. He was more truly human in this that He refused to make wrong choice.

Jesus is peculiarly the racial Man, our Fellow. All sorts are drawn to Him, little children, the aged, ruggedly strong men, fine-fibered woman, virile, eager youth, student, scholar, unlettered, both sexes, all social sorts—all alike gladly confess His pull upon their hearts.

And He alone was the Son of God in the same distinctive sense. The Father was as drawn to Jesus as we men are. There was the fullest understanding and oneness of purpose, appreciation and love, between Jesus and the Father as between Jesus and man.

Here is the Book's own story of how it happened that Jesus came. God and man used to live together in a garden. It was a wondrous garden, full of trees and birds, and all growing things good to see and to eat. They were fellows together, walking, working, together day by day.

They used to meet in the twilight for a friendly talk, sometimes without words, as only real friends can do.

One twilight God came to the usual trysting-place for the touch with His friend. But the man wasn't there. God was there. God didn't go away. God has never gone away.

But the man went away. Then he went further away. Then he lost the way back. Then he didn't want to come back. And away from God he got into bad shape. His will grew strangely stubborn. He got strange ideas about God not loving him.

All this was very hard on God. He sent messengers after the man. They were all treated badly. Then God said, "What shall I do? For the sake of my own breaking heart I must do something."

And this is what He did. One day He hid away the God part of Him, and came in among us as one of our—
(Continued on page 12)

Montreat—A Beauty Spot in Our Southern Mountains

MONTREAT IS CALLING!

Montreat is calling! Don't you hear
 The echoes ringing sweet and clear
 Like silver bell at evening?
 She calls through mountains grand and tall,
 Through feathery mists that rise and fall
 In pearls of dewy freshness.

* * * * *
 She calls through text-books, spoken word,
 Through lesson learned and sermon heard
 And fervent prayers ascending.

* * * * *
 She calls—and yet it is not she Alone who calls us thus—but He.
 To whom we owe allegiance.
 Montreat is calling. Don't you hear?
 And won't you heed that call this year,
 By going to the Conference.
 —Missionary Survey.

SONG OF GRATITUDE

“And the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped.”
 —Isiah 35:5..

A while ago
 The wind-tossed autumn leaves were sere;
 Unpitied snow
 Fell on a world remote and drear;
 A while ago
 Loved voices low I could not hear.

Today!
 Today faint murmurings in the breeze
 Fear-thoughts ally;
 Enchanting bird-notes, singing trees,
 Dear voices gay—
 Today I may thank God for these.

AMERICA THE BEAUTIFUL

O beautiful for spacious skies,
 For amber waves of grain,
 For purple mountain majesties
 Above the fruited plain!
 America! America!
 God shed His grace on thee,
 And crown thy good with brotherhood
 From sea to shining sea!

O beautiful for pilgrim feet,
 Whose stern, impassioned stress
 A thoroughfare for freedom beat
 Across the wilderness!
 America! America!
 God mend thine every flaw,
 Confirm thy soul in self-control,
 Thy liberty in law!

O beautiful for heroes proved
 In liberating strife,
 Who more than self their country loved,
 And mercy more than life!
 America! America!
 May God thy gold refine,
 Till all success be nobleness,
 And every gain divine!

O beautiful for patriot dream
 That sees beyond the years
 Thine alabaster cities gleam
 Undimmed by human tears!
 America! America!
 God shed His grace on thee
 And crown thy good with brotherhood
 From sea to shining sea!

“Where the pools are still and deep—Where the Great trout lie asleep”

Moonlight on Lake Junaluska

“The Laugh of the Mountains”

Woman's Auxiliary

Conducted by Mrs. J. M. McIver, Gulf, N. C.

Second Church, Charlotte, N. C.—The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary will be held at 4 o'clock in the club room Monday. This meeting will last one hour and ten minutes and no longer. It will be an echo meeting. There will be an informal reception after the program for Mrs. J. Porter Smith and Mrs. Alva Hardie, our guests from Brazil.

Steele Creek—The contest in the circles of the Ladies' Auxiliary for the highest per cent of attendance at the July meetings was a close one. Below is given the standing of the circles:

Circle	Per cent
Laura Stowe	88
Mary Stevens	83
Frances Douglas	80
Louisa Watt	70
Lois Faires Williamson	66
Susanna Baker	55

The Jane Wilson Circle failed to meet. The other circles all report fine meetings. At the meeting of the Laura Stowe Circle, Mrs. Edith Craig, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., made a talk on "Indians in Florida," and Mrs. Winchester gave a reading, "The Dying Indian Girl." The Frances Douglas Circle met with Mrs. Black, in her new home, and enjoyed a social hour after the meeting. They had three visitors present. The Louisa Watt Circle also had three visitors present. The members had a Bible study on Prayer, and heard an interesting talk by Mrs. Craig on Indians as she knows them in Florida. The meeting was followed by a social hour. The Lois Faires Williamson Circle had four visitors present, and had a most interesting talk by Mrs. Murray Pegram. The Susanna Baker Circle had one visitor present. This circle began a course of six Bible studies on Christian Stewardship. The Auxiliary has four circles which are prayer bands.

Tenth Annual Session of the Woman's Summer School of Missions, Montreat, N. C., July 12-19, 1923—In the minds of Southern Presbyterian women for months two dates upon their calendar stood heavily underscored—July 12-19. Eagerly had they awaited the sound of the bugle that would call together the great clans to which they belonged. And when the hills, the plains, the cities, the towns, the hamlets reverberated with that sound, the Pied Piper of Hamelin in his Halcyon days never drew such a following.

It is, we confess, rather an unusual thing to have our Pullman conductor announce our denomination as we present our ticket, but when he was asked how he could tell we were a Presbyterian, we found that Montreat is a dead give-away. The Presbyterian clans had gathered 800 strong, and on the morning of July 12th, those eager expectant women were in their seats in that auditorium. It was a thrilling moment when Mrs. W. C. Winsborough, beloved leader of the women of the Southern Presbyterian Church, lifted her gavel, and the Tenth Annual Session of the Summer School of Missions was on.

Mrs. W. S. A. Castles, of Memphis, Tenn., gave a series of devotionals on the "Comes of Jesus." So appealing, so insistent have been the various invitations of Jesus that they are forever indelibly impressed upon the hearts of her hearers.

Two mission study books, home and foreign, were studied. Mrs. R. M. Pegram, of Louisville, Ky., formerly one of our home missionaries who has specialized in Young People's Work and in Mission Study, presented "The Child and America's Future." Very skillfully did she handle this most vital and interesting subject. She stressed very emphatically the fact that the hope of America lies in her boys and girls. Certainly after her splendid presentation each morning, were we persuaded that Herbert Hoover had spoken truly when he said "The race moves forward on the feet of little children—and it depends upon the Christian forces of America whether the trend be upward or downward."

One of the most helpful addresses enjoyed was that of Mrs. H. L. Cockerham, president of Kentucky Synodical, on "The Building of the Auxiliary." Her demonstration, with its three-story structure erected before her audience, so clarified and visualized the various steps of relationship between the local Auxiliary and the Presbyterial and the Synodical up to the Advisory Committee, that never again will there be confusion on that subject in the minds of those present.

The Methods Classes that followed each day presented different phases of the Auxiliary work with some clever and interesting demonstrations, Miss Nancy F. White, editor of the Home Mission department of the Missionary Survey, giving that of a Girls' Circle, and Miss Julia Lake Skinner director of Girls' Work at Montreat, that of a Business Woman's Circle. Mrs. Andrew Bramlett, president of South Carolina Synodical and vice-chairman of the Woman's Advisory Committee gave helpful suggestions for a Home Circle.

Miss Hilda S. White, recording secretary of the Synodical of Virginia, gave a very convincing talk on the necessity of getting up the Annual Reports accurately and on time, explaining away the average president's fear and dread of them.

The last Methods talk was made by Mrs. W. C. Winsborough on the way we are working with other denominations.

The normal study classes using the "White Fields of Japan" were conducted by Miss Anna Milligan, educational secretary of the General Board of Foreign Missions, United Presbyterian Church. Miss Milligan is a remarkable teacher, most charming in personality, and in a prayerful spiritual way she showed what Christianity had meant to Japan.

The Bible Hour each morning was conducted by that great teacher of the Word, Miss Grace Saxe. She was welcomed most enthusiastically, for as Bible teacher in the Billy Sunday meetings all over the United States, she had made many friends, numbers of whom were in the Montreat gathering. So wonderfully does she present the Great Book that her audience lives again with the children of Israel, with John, with Paul. In her striking way, she brings home to them the truths old, yet ever new. They learn "The New is in the Old contained; the Old is in the New explained." Many women caught a fresh vision of types and of symbols they had never before known.

A short address given by Mrs. R. B. Willis on Christian Education was most inspiring. Mrs. Willis is field secretary for the Executive Committee of Christian Education. An example of that work was found in Miss Tephia Folsom, a Chotaw Indian princess of Oklahoma Presbyterian College, who gave a delightful talk on her alma mater, the work it is doing for Indian girls and its desire for the prayers of the Church and for more funds to increase its usefulness.

The Parliamentary Law classes, taught by Mrs. C. S. Shawhan, president of Mobile Presbyterial, a chance at the Pinata with a heavy stick. Needless to say, there were many fouls, but at last one stroked landed, then a grand scramble, and the picturesque Mexican Pinata was a thing of memory.

Mrs. J. L. Brock, president of Texas Synodical Auxiliary, with her intense love for the Mexican people on American soil, gave a fine address on the Mexican woman, closing with a wonderful appeal that inspired every woman present to a love for her Mexican neighbors and a greater zeal to aid them. She said in part:

"The two million Mexicans on American soil today are an immediate responsibility. Christ who knows no color line is asking the same question of the Church as He did of His disciple 'Lovest thou Me?' If we answer 'Yea, Lord, thou knowest,' He will point to these people so rich in ancestry, made poor by environment; so rich in ideals, made poor by oppression; rich in capabilities, poor by opportunities and command us: 'Feed my lambs.'"

Perhaps no more dramatic moment held the rap attention of that great throng than when Mrs. D. A. McMillan, beloved and efficient treasurer of the Auxiliary, was called to the platform for a report on the Mexican school fund. Almost every churel throughout our Assembly has held gay Mexican Fiestas for the celebration of the giving of their share in this work. When the treasurer reported cash in hand for the school $21,500 with money still pouring in from various Presbyterials, how the great auditorium rang with joy and song of praise.

Dr. Homer McMillan was called to the platform. Very proud and happy was his bearing, for he is known unto all that his "Unfinished Tasks" played no small part in this undertaking. When the treasurer in feeling words presented him with this check he wiped his glasses as if his eyes had played him false, then admitted he did not know there was so much money in all the world!

Mrs. Brock through whom Texas had given her challenge, was called to center of stage. No one who heard will ever forget her words of gratitude for the interest in the great field of Texas, which had builded a bond of union between the East and the great Empire of the West.

"You," she said, "have made the dreams of Mexican girls come true, but best of all, you have answered the prayer of Mexican mothers."

Saturday night closed with the beautiful pageant "The Healing Light," written by our beloved missionary, Mrs. H. L. Ross, of Zitacuero and skillfully directed by Miss Julia Lake Skinner. The costumes so oriental and picturesque, were made in Mexico and the girls and boys who took part made a rich contribution to the closing of this wonderful day.

Sunday was a day long to be remembered. Dr. Egbert Smith delivered an inspiring, instructive sermon on "The Paul We Forget."

For the evening service we listened to an address "The Church and the Hour," by Dr. Homer McMillan. All hearts were stirred by this message.

Mrs. Winsborough spoke to us on her "Visit to Aztec Land." So happily, humorously and vividly did she present her travels that we became her companions, wandering through temples old, through flower-land. We gazed with her upon want and woe, our hearts saddened as we realized that our own commercial relations with Mexico were no reasons for pride. The great need of our world there is buildings in which our missionaries could do more efficient work. We have some of the finest missionaries in the Mexican field, but the poorest equipment. She informed us that December is there would be a call for funds for equipment for all our missionary work, and asked if our memories would hold until that date.

It was very gratifying to have with us one of our colored women who spoke to us on "Helping My Race to Better Living." Mrs. Sarah Gray is employed by the Charleston, S. C., Presbyterial. She has charge of community work on three islands helping the negroes to better living physically, intellectually, spiritually. She stressed the need of another worker.

The address on Tuesday evening on "Our Interracial Work" by Mrs. Henry Lane Schmelz, chairman of the woman's section of inter-racial work in Virginia, was one of the outstanding features of the entire program. The plan of establishing inter-racial committees working for greater harmony between the white and black races in the community gained dignity and force in its presentation by so gracious a type of Southern woman.

Mrs. W. A. Turner, Jr., president of the Synodical of Georgia, showed the practical ways in which the material and spiritual needs of these colored people are being met by the women of the Church in the conferences for colored women which are being held in seven of our Synodicals.

A stirring address on our difficult fight against the evil forms of Romanism was very forcefully given on Wednesday evening by Rev. J. Porter Smith, one of our missionaries to Brazil whose furrough is five years overdue because of the work being great and the laborers few in that vast field.

The closing address of the conference was a picture of the purity and beauty of Mary, Mother of God, as she joyfully accepts God's plan for her life. This was painted by Rev. John Wells, D.D., president of the Columbia Theological Seminary in his sermon "Woman's Debt to Christ."

The special musical numbers for the School of Missions were under the direction of Mrs. A. R. Bauman, assisted by Miss Park, of Anniston, Ala. and several young women who so generously contributed their voices and were greatly appreciated by all. The chorus singing was led by Mr. C. G. Vardell, of Flora Macdonald College, with Miss Janie Buchanan of Gifu, Japan, at the piano.

(Continued on page 10)

The Ticket Agent

Like any merchant in a store
Who sells things by the pound or score,

He deals with scarce perfunctory glance
Small pass-keys to the world's Romance.

He takes dull money, turns and hands
The roadways to far distant lands.

Bright shining rail and fenceless sea
Are partners to his wizardry.

He calls off names as if they were Just names to cause no heart to stir.

For listening you'll hear him say
" . . . and then to Aden and Bombay . . ."

Or . . . 'Frisco first and then to Nome,
Across the Rocky Mountains—Home . . ."

And never catch of voice to tell
He knows the lure or feels the spell.

Like any salesman in a store,
He sell but tickets—nothing more.

And casual as any clerk
He deals in dreams, and calls it—work
—Edward Leamy, in Harper's Magazine.

were largely attended, and greater efficiency in presiding must certainly be the result of this very important study.

One of the most enjoyable meetings was the open session of the annual meeting of the Woman's Advisory Committee with Mrs. Charles S. Kinkead, of Nashville, president of Tennessee Synodical, presiding. Sixteen Synodical presidents told of the work in their various territories. Our hearts were thrilled with the wonderful things accomplished through the blessing of God.

On Friday, Dr. D. Clay Lilly delivered a stirring sermon, "Women at the Helm." So impressed were the women by this message that an immediate request was made for the printing of it in our church papers.

Saturday was a gala day. The morning spent in recreation was followed by the beautiful afternoon reception on the porch of the Winsborough building, where the long receiving line, composed of officers, welcomed every one most cordially. Beautifully gowned women with their gracious patrician bearing, faces alight with love for each other and for their common bond of Christian fellowship, made a scene not to be forgotten soon.

On that evening came many delights. Miss Elsie Lee, of Mexico, wishing to contribute to this occasion, had sent a Mexican Pinata, which is a large clay jar filled with candy and decorated with gay poinsettias, with long festoons and streamers of green and red. Gathered early on the green hillside were scores of children ready for what they called the "candy bust." Each one blindfolded had

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT

(Conducted under the auspices of Synod's Committee of Sunday Schools and Young People's Work, in the interest of Sunday Schools and Young People's Societies)

W. ARNETT GAMBLE, JR., Editor

ADDRESS ALL COMMUNICATIONS TO THE DEPARTMENT EDITOR DAVIDSON, N. C

EDITOR'S LOOKOUT

The Presbyterian young people of North Carolina will feel proud as they get the detailed news of the fine showing made by the C. E. forces of their state at the International Convention of Christian Endeavor, held in Des Moines, in July. Three honors were won: first prizes in the contest for subscriptions to the C. E. World, the contest for subscriptions to the Junior C. E. World, and the contest for the most efficient Junior society in Dixie, Florida winning first prize in the contest for the best Senior society.

Mr. Paul Rawlins, of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, of Greensboro, is president of the State C. E. Union, and Mrs. W. H. Howell, of the Wilmington First Church, is the State Junior Superintendent. We would like to congratulate both of them, and particularly Mrs. Howell, for the North Carolina Juniors have won quite a distinction. Mrs. Howell is doing a splendid work in promoting the work among the boys and girls. We would like to pass along the request we receive from her time and again, that we pray for those who are working with the Juniors, pray for trained leaders to direct the work with these potential leaders of the church of the future.

Recently we have mailed out some two hundred and fifty letters to various ones whose names have been furnished us, urging them to send us news for our department. There are two hundred and fifty others, and more, to whom we would like to get this message, and the request for suggestions for improving our department. Let us know what you are doing. Suggest some way to improve our department and get into the race for a free three months' subscription to the Standard. The contest closes this week. Sit down, take your pen, or typewriter, in hand, and write us some of your information and thoughts. You can help us and we need and want your help!

II. Mary Honors Jesus

With equal joy to her sister's she welcomes Him to her home. But while Martha receives Him as an honored guest whose physical needs must be amply provided for, Mary honors Him as a Divine Redeemer who came to save man from sin and for glory and whose plans and purposes must be known as far as possible. She knows that as Immanuel He will not be long in this world, and she avails herself of this opportunity to hear about His redemption and to cheer Him in His self-sacrificing work. She did not sit at His feet in vain. She seems to have learned more about the necessity and certainty of Christ's death as well as the truth of His resurrection than the apostles themselves, and hence we are told in advance of His death "She anointed His body for burial." By attending to His spiritual teachings and redeeming work, Mary honored her Lord more than in caring for His physical needs.

III. Jesus' Reproof and Commendation

The Lord gently reproves Martha as to her anxious care about an elaborate entertainment and her desire to have Mary to leave her position as a learner at His feet and to assist in household labors. He says, "Martha, Martha, thou art careful and troubled about many things, but one thing is needful." He commends in emphatic terms Mary's conduct. He says, "Mary hath chosen that good part that shall not be taken from her." He says that Mary in attending to His words while He was with them, and in caring for the spiritual and eternal chiefly had chosen a good part that shall not be taken from her." Christianity as to its teachings and blessings has supreme excellence and is an abiding possession.

IV. Mary's Anointing of Christ

It has sometimes been identified with the anointing described by Luke in the house of Simon the Pharisee. But they differ in many points. One was by a sinner, a woman of notorious, vicious character. The other was by Mary of Bethany, a well known, devout disciple. One was in a city, and in the house of Simon the Pharisee. The other was in the village of Bethany in the home of Simon the leper. The sinner woman anointed the feet only, Mary the head and feet. Mary used an alabaster box or vase of very precious ointment, costing, some say, more than $50. Some, led by Judas, called this use of the ointment a waste and said its proceeds might have been given to the poor. Jesus said, "The poor have ye always with you, but me ye have not always." He commends in cordial terms Mary's service. He says, "Let her alone; she has wrought a good work on me." He adds, "Wherever this Gospel is preached in the whole world there shall this that she hath done be spoken of for a memorial of her."

Christian Endeavor

By Rev. J. G. Garth, Chairman of Synod's Committee of Sabbath Schools and Young People's Work.

GETTING ON IN LIFE

- M., Aug. 13—By Industry: Prov. 28:19-22.
- T., Aug. 14—By Integrity: Jer. 7:5-7.
- W., Aug. 15—By Honesty: Ps. 15:1-5.
- T., Aug. 16—By Religion: I Kings 3:6-15.
- F., Aug. 17—First Things First: Matt. 6:33.
- S., Aug. 18—By Generosity: Luke 6:37, 38.

Sun., Aug. 19—Topic: How to Get On In Life. Deut. 8:1-18.

How do you reckon success? What help toward success is there in the Golden Rule?

What do people do with success when they get it?

To young people this is a very important question, How to get on in life. It is important to all, of course, but older people have already had some experience, and have found out many things, have made numbers of mistakes, and have tried new turns, while to young folks, the whole problem of life is still unsolved. It looks very forbidding to most of them. The writer remembers well when he was a boy, or about his middle teens, wondering how he was ever going to face the world alone, earn a living, maybe take care of some other folks. When you have a good home and good parents who look out for you, who see that you have no wants and no cares, the problem of getting on in life looks very large. It is a rather serious matter to face the world alone. But it must be done, as sure as you become grown, and often before that. If you are a Christian, the question of getting on in life has another angle, as to how Jesus wants you to get on. He is sure to have a very definite plan for your life, and you certainly want to do His will, or you are no Christian.

Have We a Definite Purpose In Life

God has a plan for your life, and it is better than any plan you can think of. Try to find it out. God was leading the children of Israel to the Promised Land, their own land, but they had never seen it. God has a promised land for you, a life purpose He wants you to carry out. Educate yourself, train your gifts of body and mind, and gradually God's plan will become plain to you. It usually is the thing you can do best, whether it be with your hands, your head, your voice, or your feet. Find that thing as soon as you can.

Persevere in the Purpose Chosen

Learn to look forward with joy toward your chosen purpose; bend all your efforts to attain it; keep it in mind at all times, and stick to it through thick and thin. Don't be wishy-washy, always changing. Keep right on to your purpose. Don't be afraid of hard work to train yourself for your duty in life. You will have difficulties, but meet them with courage and resolution. Accept them as just part of the game. Hard things simply train us for harder ones still. Don't complain; it will spoil your fun, and other folks won't sympathize with you. They will blame you for being a coward. If you don't succeed at first, try again, and again.

Expect God's Blessing

Moses points out to the Israelites how many blessings God had given them as they went on to Canaan. And God blesses us today as we try to do our bit in life. Ask Him for guidance, protection, support, and comfort. He will answer you, as He did the Israelites long ago, and as He has blest His children ever since. Rely on the Lord, trust Him absolutely, and He will not fail you.

Don't Forget God's Worship

Moses was afraid the Israelites would forget to worship God. Let us be grateful to Him for His mercies, and let the world know of our thankfulness by joining in His worship, defending His name and cause, and supporting His Church with our tithes and offerings. We know not how many unseen dangers His goodness has shielded us from, what sickness He has healed us of. Let us fill our hearts and His house with our praises, and help advance His cause. Be grateful unto God.

Remember the Golden Rule

As we try to get on in life let us think of others. Their welfare and good will are just as important to our welfare as our own condition. The Christian must live on a high plane of unselfishness and kindness. We should live for the glory of Christ, and do all in His name. We must treat everybody fairly, be righteous in all our dealings, be true in our words and promises, be respectful of people's names and feelings, be courteous and polite, be cheerful and happy in our manner. Folks love to deal with happy boys and girls. A merry countenance is as

Sunday School

By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.

AUGUST 12, 1923

MARY AND MARTHA

Lesson: Luke 10:38-42; John 11:1-22:8; Mark 14:3-9
Printed Text: Luke 10:38-42; Mark 14:3-9

GOLDEN TEXT—"Mary hath chosen that good part, which shall not be taken away from her."—Luke 10:42.

SCRIPTURE LESSON

Luke 10:38 Now it came to pass, as they went, that he entered into a certain village; and a certain woman named Martha, received him into her house.

39 And she had a sister called Mary, which also sat at Jesus' feet, and heard his word.

40 But Martha was cumbered about much serving, and came to him and said, Lord, dost thou not care that my sister hath left me to serve alone? bid her therefore that she help me.

41 And Jesus answered and said unto her, Martha, Martha, thou art careful and troubled about many things:

42 But one thing is needful: and Mary hath chosen that good part, which shall not be taken away from her.

Mark 14:3 And being in Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper, as he sat at meat, there came a woman having an alabaster box of ointment of spikenard, very precious; and she brake the box, and poured it on his head.

4 And there were some that had indignation within themselves, and said, Why was this waste of ointment made?

5 For it might have bene sold for more than three hundred pence, and have been given to the poor. And they murmured against her.

6 And Jesus said, Let her alone; why trouble ye her? she hath wrought a good work on me.

7 For ye have the poor with you always, and whensoever ye will ye may do them good: but me ye have not always.

8 She hath done what she could: she is come aforehand to anoint my body to the burying.

9 Verily I say unto you, Wheresoever this gospel shall be preached throughout the whole world, this also that she hath done shall be spoken of for a memorial of her.

SHORTER CATECHISM

Q. 49. Which is the second commandment?
A. The second commandment is, "Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of anything that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth. Thou shalt not bow down thyself to the minor serve them; for I the Lord thy God as a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me, and showing mercy unto thousands of them that love me and keep my commandments."

Martha and Mary, the sisters of Bethany, furnish two types of womanhood. The active practical in worldly affairs, and the contemplative and spiritual as to religious interests. Martha was the housekeeper—hospitable, active, practical and efficient, in all pertaining to her business. She would be good authority as to cooking book, the preparation of viands, and all the details of domestic life. She was pious, too, a believer in Jesus, and in the doctrines of revealed religion. Her conversation with Christ proves this. But she did not give the same attention and prominence to Gospel piety that characterized Mary. Mary attended to material things at the proper time, as the anointing of her Lord showed. But she deemed "wisdom" or "Gospel piety" the principal thing. Therefore instead of occupying herself in preparing for the Lord a rich repast, she improved His visit by learning about His kingdom and salvation. "She sat at His feet and heard His words." We will attend to Martha's Reception of Christ; Mary Honors Jesus; The Master's Reproof and Commendation; Mary's Anointing of Her Lord.

I. Martha's Reception of Christ

She received Him hospitably and cordially as a guest she delighted to honor. She would omit nothing that would minister to His physical comfort and enjoyment. Her reputation as a housekeeper was at stake and she would not have it suffer. She probably would gratify herself as well as minister to her guest's wants if her meal was extensive and varied and handsomely served. Mary ought to participate in this service, hence she says to Jesus, "Carest thou not that my sister has left me to serve alone; bid her therefore that she help me." She did not understand that Mary was serving in a higher capacity than herself. The spiritual is more important and abiding than the material.

good as medicine. Let us keep the golden rule, and do unto others just as we would have them to do to us.

With resolution, perseverance, faith in God, a grateful worship of His name, a cheerful, kind and righteous bearing toward all men, we shall be bound to get on in life. We may not be rich, or famous, but we shall be happy and useful, which means much more than money or renown. It will give us power over men, which will fill our own hearts with a sense of blessing, as well as produce big results in the lives of others. It will mean success and influence, and that is getting on in life.

NEWS FROM THE FRONT

The Intermediate C. E. of Raeford, N. C., Presbyterian Church has 54 members. In April all members who had not joined the year before joined the Quiet Hour, making 100 per cent. The society averaged $1.35 per member in gifts to missions in the past year. Some of the girls sang on Sunday afternoons for invalids. A foreign mission study class was held, in which 25 members took part. "Sunrise in Aztec Land" was used. A home mission study class with 30 members was held. On the pastor's birthday the society gave him subscriptions to the Christian Endeavor World and the Dixie Endeavorer. The society was appointed by the church to collect old clothes for Near East Relief. A committee of 12 was appointed and the town was divided into districts, the Presbyterians in these districts being visited to secure old clothes. A conservative estimate on the value of the clothes collected was $600.00. On Christian Endeavor Day the Intermediates asked the pastor to preach a C. E. sermon. The rating on the Four-Square Chart is 90 per cent, on the Denominational Chart 76 per cent, on the Efficiency Chart 230 per cent.

Miss Ora Dell Henderson, of Little Rock, S. C., gives us the following report: "Our society, Junior C. E., is doing a fine thing. It has pledged a budget for C. E. work, which we are raising. It takes the Junior C. E. World, from which we make our programs. The name of our society is the Carolina Junior C. E. Society, of Carolina Church."

Hurrah for the little folks of Little Rock!

Mrs. J. L. Barkley, of Woodleaf, N. C., tells us the following about the Senior C. E. Society there: "Miss Helen Bailey, who sails as a missionary this fall, is going to make an address for us next Sunday. We made a ten-dollar pledge at the District Convention and we have paid it. We have organized an Intermediate society, which seems to be doing good work. The superintendents of the Intermediate society are studying the Intermediate Manual."

The West Avenue Presbyterian C. E. Society of Charlotte, N. C., has registered its entire membership for the State Convention to be held in Greensboro in the fall. This is the first and, so far, the only society to make this record in registrations. Quite a number of those who are registered will attend. This society is conducting the mid-week prayer meeting this week in the absence of the pastor, and plans are under way for holding one open-air meeting and one meeting in a hospital during August.

North Carolina Christian Endeavorers during the past year won three signal victories in the friendly contests that help to keep up interest in the young people's work. They won first prize among the state unions for subscriptions to the C. E. World, first prize in the contest for subscriptions to the Junior C. E. World, and the banner for the most efficient Junior department among the states in Dixie.

The banner presented by the United Society of C. E. in the Junior World contest is a beautiful one, made by Chinese Christian Endeavorers and presented by them to the United Society as a token of their love and of their appreciation for what Christianity has done for them. The banner could not be bought, probably, for $75.00. The hand work on it is exquisite. The background is of dark blue satin, with white flowers embroidered on it. In the center is a large ring outlined in gold and in the center of this ring is the C. E. monogram and then the Chinese characters for "Mizpah."

The different awards were made at the International Convention of C. E., held at Des Moines, in July. The Endeavorers from the South rose to their feet and sang "Dixie" when the banners were presented.

KIND WORDS

How often, when our lives seem twisted, broken,
And we are groping in a darkened room,
Some half remembered words, soft spoken, tender,
Will come and pierce the heavy clouds of gloom.

For all the loving words and kindness shown us,
Though often half forgotten, lie in wait
To cheer us in some lonely hours of sorrow
Like steadfast soldiers waiting at the gate.

—Kansas City Star.

Church News

THE CUTS USED IN THIS ISSUE

Our Southern states are filled with lovely and enchanting spots where the scenery compares favorably with that found anywhere in the world. And the interesting feature of all this is that these beauty spots, thanks to the ubiquitous automobile and the splendid railway systems with which our country is favored, are in easy reach of practically everybody.

The views that we are showing in our "Midsummer" or "Vacation" number of the Standard are all in the mountains of North Carolina and represent but a delightful sample of what is to be seen and enjoyed by the summer traveller. These particular cuts were furnished us by the Southern Railway, one of the splendid carriers for this section of the country. We take this public way of thanking them for this courtesy.

BARIUM NEWS

During the past week we have had two very welcome visitors, the first being Miss Adams, one of the matrons from our sister orphans' home in South Carolina. We were delighted to have her with us and hope that some of us can in turn visit Thornwell.

Our other most welcome visitor was Miss Anis Barnette, who for so many years was bookkeeper and lots of other things at the home. We have missed her very much since she has left to spend some time at her home and hope some day in the near future to see her back at Barium.

Our smaller boys are looking rather doleful since the first on account of the Gilmour family, of Wilmington, going to their Black Mountain home and sending for their small pony which they so kindly loaned to us for the past eight months. Then too right on top of the pony's departure Old Sue, our faithful old horse that hauls the laundry, and everything else almost, over the campus, met with an accident that broke her leg. This of course meant her death and the little red wagon is now being pulled around by a rusty old mule.

The roof is being put on the Jenny Gilmer cottage and we hope both it and the baby cottage will be covered within ten days. From the way applications have been coming in lately our people must think both these buildings were completed.

We are looking forward with a great deal of pleasure to hearing Rev. Harper Brady a missionary to Japan, and former citizen of Statesville, speak in Little Joe's Church Sunday night.

The melancholy days have come when the office force commence to take their holidays, when letters cannot be found, and everything goes wrong. All of which just means that Miss Nettie Willis the stenographer starts on her vacation Monday.

THE ASSEMBLY'S STEWARDSHIP COMMITTEE LOSES REV. T. E. SIMPSON, ASSISTANT SECRETARY AND SECURES REV. R. C. LONG

The only thing that marred the meeting of the Stewardship Committee at its annual meeting in Montreat in July was the resignation of Rev. T. E. Simpson. He has been in bad health for some months, and against his better judgment remained at his post until the physicians advised him to quit work for at least a year. With sincere regret he resigned and the committee with very deep appreciation of his past service reluctantly accepted his resignation. He has done a splendid work all of which the Church has not known about. The committee loses therefore a good man whose place is difficult to fill on account of the varied talents needed to fill it. Mr. Simpson will reside for the present at Society Hill, S. C.

The promotion of the Progressive Program for 12 months of the year; the growing demand to introduce a study of Stewardship among the young people of the Church; the conduct of the publicity department set up by the Assembly together with the annual effort for the Equipment Fund makes a task entirely too heavy for any one man to carry. Therefore an assistant or associate to the general secretary is absolutely necessary. One man could spend all of his time in the field, visiting the church courts, the conferences, woman's auxiliary meetings, holding group meetings and then never get around. The general secretary, as far as possible will give much of his time to this field work.

To take the place of Mr. Simpson the committee has unanimously elected Rev. R. C. Long, pastor of the West Avenue Presbyterian Church, of Gastonia, N. C. Mr. Long graduated from Davidson in 1913; the University of Virginia (M.A.) in 1914; Union Seminary in 1917. During the World War he served as private, first lieutenant, and chaplain and holds at present a commission as chaplain in the O. R. C. He was pastor at Richmond, W. Va., and from there went to his present field. His church has grown from about 75 to more than 250. He has done especially fine work among young people, and has showed a remarkable grasp of the Progressive Program in getting it to work in his own church. He will devote his time hereafter to the effort to get Stewardship and our whole program before our young people; will have charge of the publicity department and will assist the general secretary wherever needed. Mr. Long accepts this call subject to the action of his Presbytery. The committee feels that it is fortunate in securing him to fill the place so well filled by Mr. Simpson.

M. E. Melvin, General Secretary,
Chattanooga, Tenn.

CONFERENCE AT MASSANETTA SPRINGS

The Woman's School of Missions at Massanetta Springs has registered over 100 delegates and has attendance from day to day of from 200 to 600. The addresses of Doctors Reavis, McMillan, Mauze, Lingle and Mrs. Russell made deep and profound impressions. Men's conference August 9th through 15th opens with address by Dr. Wm. Evans, Chrystal Brown will lead the singing. Bible conference August 17th through 20th opens with address by Dr. Campbell Morgan; Homer Hammontree leads singing. Synod of Virginia meets at Massanetta August 28th. All delegates should make reservations at hotel immediately, applying to J. R. Lupton, Harrisonburg, Va. Wm. E. Hudson.

NORTH CAROLINA

Charlotte—Rev. A. A. Walker, campaign manager of Queens College, is supplying the pulpit of Tenth Avenue Church during the vacation of the pastor, Rev. J. F. Ligon.

Charlotte—The pulpit of the Second Church was filled on last Sabbath morning by Rev. J. Porter Smith, of Brazil. He preached a fine sermon. This church is having no evening service during August when the pastor is away on vacation.

Banks Church—A meeting just closed resulted in a revival, a number of accessions. This meeting was a union meeting conducted by Rev. Mr. Houck of the Methodist Church and Rev. W. S. Hamiter, pastor of Banks. The services alternated between the Methodist and Presbyterian churches. The spirit of unity and fellowship was beautifully illustrated. Behold how good and pleasant for brethren to dwell together in unity.

Dallas—The first Sunday in July Rev. C. G. Brown was installed pastor of Dallas Church, Kings Mountain Presbytery. The commission consisted of Rev. J. H. Henderlite, D.D., who propounded the constitutional questions and preached the sermon. Rev. J. J. Harrell charged the pastor and Rev. J. T. Dendy charged the people. The pastor and his wife have been most cordially received and have entered upon their work with confidence of success. They have been remembered by the people in a substantial way, not only once, but practically every day, some token of kindness and good-will has been shown them.

On the fourth Sunday in July the pastor announced that six had been received by letter.

The session granted the pastor a month's vacation, and he left on the 23d of July to spend three weeks in western North Carolina.

Six-Mile Creek—One of the events of the week which will interest many is the "Home-Coming" at Six-Mile Creek Church, August 9th.

The invitation is extended by the pastor, Rev. W. S. Hamiter, and elders, P. Spratt, John A. Kell, Charles Harris, Ernest Haney, and deacons Luther Haney and William Yarborough.

Program—10:30 a. m.—Address of Welcome, Rev. W. S. Hamiter.

10:45 a. m.—"Men of this Community in the War of the Revolution," address by Prof. R. N. Nisbet, of Waxhaw, N. C.

11:30 a. m.—"Men of this Community in the War Between the States," address by Col. W. H. Stewart, of Columbia, S. C.

Dinner.
2:30 p. m.—"The Scotch People and Characteristics," address by T. M. Glasgow, of Charlotte, N. C.
3:00 p. m.—"Six-Mile Church," address by Rev. R. J. McIlwaine.

Steele Creek—During a recent prolonged drought when the country was suffering for rain the Steele Creek congregation met and held a prayer meeting for rain. Later they held another meeting—thanksgiving for answered prayer. The church bulletin has the following note on these two meetings:

"The prayer meeting for rain and the thanksgiving service were both well attended, and were real seasons of grace. The attendance at both services compared most favorably with the attendance at the regular morning services. The interest manifested and the willingness of every one to take part were visible signs that the children still had the faith of their fathers. It would have done any one good to be present and to see this demonstration of old-fashioned religion. Services of such whole-hearted worship and true humility are rare occasions even in this congregation."

Mooreville—"Home Coming Day" was celebrated Tuesday at Centre Presbyterian Church, three miles southwest of Mooreville, when a large assemblage of present-day members and descendants of former members of the congregation gathered.

For 150 years this old church has been a meeting place for generations and its influence has been scattered far and wide by those who in the days of their youth heard beneath its roof the exhortations of its faithful ministers.

A splendid program had been arranged for the day, Reid R. Morrison being chairman of the program committee. The exercises opened with a song by the congregation. An invocation was delivered by Rev. R. W. Culbertson. Rev. W. E. West, present pastor of the church, spoke the words of welcome, which were responded to by Samuel E. McNeely, of Cleveland, a former son of the church, whose father was a ruling elder there for many years.

Dr. Shelby Frontis, of Mooresville, whose grandfather, Rev. Stephen Frontis, was once pastor of Centre Church, made the address. Dr. Frontis' theme was the "Golden Rule," and its application.

This was followed by songs rendered by the children of the church.

An interesting event was the baptizing of two children, John Robert and Eloise Whitford, son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. McNeely.

Miss Kathleen Culbertson, of Charlotte, favored the occasion with several selections.

Rev. R. W. Culbertson, a former pastor, made the closing address, the benediction being pronounced by the pastor, Rev. W. E. West, after the singing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

Rockfish—This church has been richly blessed recently by a meeting conducted by Rev. J. J. Murray, from July 9th through the 15th. The Sunday School of which Mr. A. C. Hall, one of our newly elected elders, is superintendent did a splendid work of preparation leading up to the meeting. The weather was favorable and the people seemed ready to come and eager to hear. Consequently, the attendance was good at the first service on Monday morning, and by the middle of the week chairs had to be used in the aisles. We used during the meeting, a splendid piano just purchased by the congregation and the people entered into the song service with a fine spirit of co-operation and helpfulness. Mr. Murray preached the Word with great ease and simplicity and yet with such power that many church members were led to reconsecrate themselves to a more real Christian service. Besides, there were six additions to the membership of this church, four on profession of faith and two on certificate, and two gave their names for membership in the Wallace Presbyterian Church. The contribution to Presbyterian Home Missions was the largest made by any church in the Presbytery, during any meeting held by Mr. Murray within the three years that he has been superintendent of that cause.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Community—Rev. W. J. Huneycutt, of Stanfield, N. C., has accepted a call to Community Church, Charleston, S. C., and will give his full time to this work. We feel that we are very fortunate in securing such a man as Rev. Mr. Huneycutt for this work.
Nettie B. Crouch.

Liberty—This church has been very happy in having one of its own sons in the person of Rev. W. H. Boggs, of the Arsenal Hill Church, Columbia, for a series of services. Mr. Boggs came on the fourth Sunday of July and remained through the fifth Sunday conducting two services each day. The attendance was good at all the services, and the people listened to his messages with marked attention. Four were received into the church on profession of faith and two by transfer from other churches.
Pastor.

Great Falls—From a population of a few hundred in 1913 Great Falls, S. C. has grown in ten years to a little city of 4,000, with an additional 2,000 to be added during the next year with the opening of a new silk mill. The Presbyterians here have been without a church building since a fire destroyed their church in 1922, but plans are on foot for the erection of a new church with modern equipment for departmental Sabbath School work to accommodate an enrollment of 300 pupils. It is hoped to have this building completed before the new year. Rev. Geo. B. Thompson opened his pastorate here on the first Sabbath in June, and was most graciously received by the congregation which expressed its good wishes in various ways, including a generous pounding, a purse, and a greeting reception by the Ladies' Auxiliary. On the last Sabbath in June the first real Presbyterian Sabbath School was organized in Great Falls. Until recently the different denominations of the town have united in a union Sabbath School. Miss O'Neal, the assistant to the pastor, is doing fine with the Junior and Senior Christian Endeavor Societies. She is also carrying on a daily song and story telling hour for the younger children. It is hoped to develop this into a real vacation Bible school next year. Since the coming of the new pastor seven have been added to the church. With such prospects for new things in equipment, with the zeal and willingness being manifested by the members, and with the wonderful opportunities for aggressive work in this wide-awake town, great things should be accomplished for this church in the Master's cause.
G. B. I.

ALABAMA

Birmingham—The pulpit of First Presbyterian Church was acceptably supplied for part of July by Rev. Charles E. Diehl, D.D., president of Southwestern University.

Montgomery—The Presbyterians of Alabama are rejoicing over the progress reported by the Synodical Educational Committee at a called meeting of Synod. An old debt of Synod in connection with Isbell College, Talladega has been fully cared for. Funds have been provided for Anniston College for Boys so that the new headmaster, Col. W. P. Fishburne may go ahead with his work. The orphanage has been provided with a substantial sum for improvements. The payments on subscriptions has also provided some funds for Columbia Seminary and Southwestern College which were participants in the educational campaign.

Tuscaloosa—The First Church is now free of debt. On Sunday, July 22d the bonds to the amount of $57,000 which were against the building were burned. This congregation now has a church property, including the manse, which is as commodious and handsome as is to be found in the Assembly. During the past four months there have been about fifty additions to the membership. Dr. and Mrs. Chas. M. Boyd expect to spend the last three weeks of August at Montreat. They will be accompanied by Mrs. James Spence, who has contributed so largely to the church building fund, her contributions amounting to nearly $100,000.

APPALACHIA

Dillingham, N. C.—We have just closed a splendid Daily Vacation Bible School at The Covenanter's Church, Dillingham, N. C. Those taking part in the instruction were, Rev. H. B. Dendy, pastor; Mr. Alex. McF. Mitchell, student from Union Theological Seminary, who is laboring in North Buncombe for the summer; Mrs. C. G. Blankenship, of the Weaverville Church; and Miss Bertha Abernathy, of Covenanter's Church.

We had an enrollment of 45 with an average attendance of about 30. We were only able to run the school for two weeks this summer but we are hoping that this is only a beginning. We hope to have about four or six weeks of the school next year. The people have expressed the desire for the longer period next time. About half of these who attended were adults. Mrs. Blankenship taught this class and gave a very interesting and instructive course. We had preaching services each night during this time. Mr. Dendy and Mr. Mitchell had charge of these services. Much interest was manifested here. There were 12 professions of faith in Christ as well as much renewed interest on the part of numbers of church members.
Cor.

Weaverville, N. C.—God has wonderfully blessed the Weaverville Church. This, the youngest church of Asheville Presbytery, was organized in September, 1921. From that time to June, 1922, preaching services were held regularly each Sunday afternoon by members of the Home Mission Committee. In June, 1922 Rev. and Mrs. H. B. Dendy came to labor with us. At that time the membership was only 11. Since then we have received 18 by letter and 11 on profession. With the aid of the Home Mission Committee a manse has been built at a cost of $3,500. A frame church building has been put up and paid for at a cost of about $600. Our own people did this with practically no outside help. The ladies Auxiliary has purchased, and more than half paid for, a piano.

On July 15th the church dedication service was held. After a brief talk by the pastor, Dr. R. P. Smith was asked to take charge of the service. He gave a very interesting and instructive message on "The Visible Church." After this Dr. Smith offered the prayer of dedication.

At this same service, the pastor and his wife presented their young son James Stuart Dendy for baptism which was administered by Dr. Smith. Then Mr. Dendy baptized Elsie Hartfield, a young daughter of one of our ruling elders. In addition to this two of the boys of our church, children of the covenant, presented themselves for membership and were received into the church upon profession of their faith in Jesus Christ as their personal Saviour. All in all it was a day of dedication. We are very grateful to God for the many ways in which He has so richly blessed us.
Cor.

FLORIDA

Echoes from the S. S. Y. P. Conference, Florida Presbytery—The second Sunday School and Young People's Conference of Florida Presbytery was held at Palmer College, June 12-19. It was a success from beginning to end and although a small conference the spirit and co-operation of all delegates was manifested from the very beginning. It is expected that this conference will be repeated here next year.

The conference committee was composed of Rev. T. C. Delaney of Chipley, chairman, Judge A. G. Campbell, Rev. W. E. McIlwain, of DeFuniak, and Judge T. F. West, of Tallahassee as members.

The faculty was of high standard. Rev. A. E. Spencer, director of Sunday School Work, Suwanee Presbytery was superintendent of the conference and won many friends by his geniality both in class room and on the athletic field. Mr. Spencer used as his text book: "The Teacher."

Rev. H. A. Love, co-pastor, Presbyterian Church of Quincy, conducted the class in "The School," and his pupils received a thorough course in the organization of a Sunday School.

One of the most popular classes was led by Mrs. W. C. Edmonston of the Executive Committee of Publication and Sunday School Work, of Richmond, Va. The class used the text book on "The Pupil."

The Life of Christ was taught by Rev. D. J. Currie, pastor of the local Presbyterian Church. The popularity of this course was evident by the large number in class.

Mrs. Kate McSweeney Smith, of Chipley was the leader for the course in "Story Telling." This included lessons on story telling, beginners and Primary units, selection and telling of stories, together with practice work in class.

The course in Christian Endeavor was led by Mr. Carl J. Matthews, field secretary, of the Florida Christian Endeavor Union and Miss Lillie Mae McDonald, president Pensacola district C. E. Union.

"The Child and America's Future" a home mission course by Miss Nancy F. White, was led by Miss Wilhelmina Whitted, former president of Florida Presbyterial Auxiliary, of Chipley, Fla.

Miss Mary McKinnon, principal elementary department of Palmer College, led an interesting course in "The White Fields of Japan."

Every morning at 7 o'clock the morning watch was observed. The conference was happy in the selection of Rev. Geo. Mason, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Milton as leader of this hour and also as song leader.

The conference period was at 11:30. This was presided over by the conference president and each morning there was an inspiration address by one of the visiting ministers.

Each evening a Bible lecture was given—among the speakers were Rev. J. W. Jackson, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Tallahassee; Rev. J. K. Roberts, of South Carolina, Mr. C. J. Matthews, of Jacksonville, and Rev. Geo. Mason, of Milton.

The afternoon was given over to recreation, such as swimming, tennis and auto riding.

At the first conference, conference officers were elected. They were, president, Miss Phoebe Quarterman, Tallahassee, vice-president, Miss Louise Quarterman, Quincy; and Mr. Eugene Richardson, of DeFuniak, secretary. Five groups were organized and each group chose as their names the names of some of our missionaries, they were: Hunnicutt, Mrs. Kate Smith, counsellor; Stuart, Miss Lucile Tervin, counsellor; Greenfell, Miss Lillie Mae McDonald; counsellor; Moffatt, Miss Wilhelmina Whitted, counsellor; and the boy's group: Livingston, Mr. Wm. T. Baker, counsellor. The competition between all groups was very keen. The point system was used. The Hunnicutt group with Mrs. Kate Smith as counsellor won this event with a score of 99 2-3 for the entire conference.

The members of the faculty conducted special programs in their respective departments in the local Presbyterian Sunday School Sunday morning, while the visiting ministers filled the various pulpits of our city. In the afternoon delegations from the conference, with the regular force of teachers went out to the five afternoon Sunday Schools conducted by the local Presbyterian Church.

The local Christian Endeavor Society held a very inspiring and interesting prayer meeting at the church Sunday evening, at which some of the delegates spoke. The Christian Endeavor choir rendered efficient service and their two special numbers were especially enjoyed. Prominent delegates congratulated the DeFuniak Church on its splendid Christian Endeavor.

Conference leaders filled all the local pulpits Sunday night, Mr. J. K. Roberts giving a splendid Bible lecture at the Presbyterian Church.

Monday night the commencement was held in McIlwain auditorium. Certificates were awarded to those who successfully passed the prescribed course of study, after which Rev. J. K. Roberts gave an interesting Bible lecture.

At the close of the evening representatives of each church represented spoke of what they had gotten out of the conference, after this the conference organized for next year and elected the following officers: President, James Hayden, Tallahassee; vice-president, Miss Flora Douglass McLean, DeFuniak; secretary, Miss Phoebe Quarterman, Tallahassee; treasurer, Miss Jewell Godwin, Bonifay; chairman of publicity, Miss Genevieve McSweeney, DeFuniak. It was also decided to name the officers as a "Flying Squadron" to advertise the conference for next year. Each delegate present promised also to be a committee of one to go home and advertisc what a good time they had had, both spiritually and socially.

GEORGIA

Waycross, First Church—Rev. Julian S. Sibley, D.D., has just completed the fourth year of his pastorate of this church. During this time the church has made progress along all lines. Two hundred and thirty-six members have been received into the church, all the result of personal effort, no special services having been held. The total membership has increased from an enrollment of between 350 to 400 to a membership of 546. This church has the honor of being the largest Church, in point of membership, in the Savannah Presbytery. It stands ninth in membership in the Synod of Georgia.

A most desirable lot has been purchased at a cost of $8,500 upon which a new church edifice is to be erected. About $20,000 has been paid in and subscribed towards the erection of the new church building. The contributions have increased nearly 450 per cent during these four years. A Men's Club, and a Boy Scout troupe have been formed. The pastor's salary has been increased $600. The First Church is one of the strong churches of this city of 20,000 inhabitants. The Ladies' Auxiliary led, in the total amount of contributions, in the Savannah Presbyterial during the past fiscal year.

Columbus—The First Church, of which Rev. T. M. McConnell is pastor, is enjoying the greatest period of usefulness in its long history. At present, this church has three fine mission Sabbath Schools, two for the whites, and one for the negroes. The attendance at these schools has been very gratifying to those engaged in the work. The church is also supplying two pastors, Rev. A. G. Harris and Mr. T. B. Hay, for two mission churches, one in Alabama, and one in the suburbs of Columbus.

Dr. McConnell, with his wonderful power as preacher, has the God-given gift of endearing himself to everyone. Since his coming here the church has shown new life. We no longer hear the statement that our church is cold or asleep but instead everyone notices the renewed interest on the part of the people. Our congregations are larger than they have ever been and the mid-week prayer services are attended in large numbers. Dr. McConnell is now enjoying his vacation in his beloved North

(Continued on page 12)

News of the Week

The news item of national concern and that overshadows all others is that of the death of Warren Gammaliel Harding, President of the United States.

On Thursday afternoon at his headquarters in San Francisco, Calif., he died very suddenly from what was pronounced an apoplectic stroke. Mr. Harding, returning from an extended western and Alaskan trip, was stricken in San Francisco with pneumonia. However, he was convalescing from this when stricken with apoplexy. Mrs. Harding was with him at the time.

The body of the deceased President is at this writing being borne across the continent to the capital where it will lie in state and then be carried to Marion, Ohio, where on Friday, the 10th, it will be interred.

Friday, August 10th, has been set aside by President Coolidge as a national day of mourning for the deceased President.

Calvin Coolidge, former Vice-President of the United States, was sworn in as President of the United States on August 3d by his own father, at his country home in Vermont, where Mr. Coolidge and family were visiting when the news of the death of Mr. Harding was received.

Sunday always seems fatal to automobilists. On July 29th 25 persons were killed, in the following states: Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, New York, North Carolina. In each instance it was due to carelessness in crossing the railway tracks.

On July 30th cloudbursts and a series of terrific thunderstorms, sweeping the counties of western Maryland, caused the Patapsco river to overflow its banks, sweeping bridges and buildings before it, driving hundreds of families from their homes and causing damage that will run into millions of dollars. As far as is known no lives were lost.

A detailed analysis of reports on cotton conditions, gathered under an average date of July 23d, reveals the fact that the crop has held its own well, and some important gains have been made. Estimates of more than 1,600 trustworthy correspondents of The Journal of Commerce place percentage condition at 70.4 per cent, an average of 1.2 points over June and comparing with 74.1 per cent a year ago, and a 10-year average of 74.9 per cent.

C. G. Smith, president of the Union Storage and Warehouse Company, of Charlotte, in a letter to Frank A. Hampton, charges the railroads with being unfair to North Carolina, and asserts that the interstate commerce commission is a sort of useless government body.

The American and Turkish experts reached an agreement July 28th, whereby the United States receives the most-favored-nation treatment concerning the freedom of the straits for merchantmen and warships. The United States, without signing the straits convention, will receive all privileges.

Although the commercial industries of the state pay more taxes than the farming and labor classes combined, the state has departments of agriculture and labor, but has never seen fit to establish a department of commerce, Governor Cameron Morrison told the North Carolina Commercial secretaries, in convention.

Addressing a joint session of the state legislature, Senator Oscar W. Underwood, of Alabama, declared he would accept the candidacy for democratic nomination to the presidency if the people of Alabama desired it. His address was in response to a resolution of endorsement adopted by the assembly.

Royal assent was given to Lady Astor's liquor bill, thus formally placing it up on the statute books. The bill, which prohibits the sale of intoxicating liquors to any person under 18 years of age, was passed by the house of lords last Tuesday.

Two Southern senators, Messrs. Robinson, of Arkansas, and McKellar, of Tennessee, discussed the predicaments of the farmers, before leaving for Europe. Mr. Robinson said it might be wise to extend the life of the war finance corporation and enlarge its powers. Mr. McKellar outlined a policy for the agricultural interests. The views are interesting to the South, especially as Senator Robinson is to be the leader of the democrats in the senate.

Declaring he intended to obtain first-hand information regarding conditions in Europe, so that his "constituents would have nothing on me," Senator Robert M. LaFollette sailed on the George Washington with four other senators who are to attend the Inter-Allied parliamentary union at Geneva.

In the city-county election, held in Charlotte, N. C., to decide upon the question whether to have a joint building, was decided in the negative. It was carried in the city, but the county went overwhelmingly against it.

According to the detailed report of the auditors, made public for inspection, as outlined by the Raleigh correspondent of the Charlotte Observer, there is a deficit of $477,191, which the legislative committee reported, figured on accrual basis, and which without the $710,000 school notes, leaves a surplus of $232,905.

Three former war officials have been indicted by the United States grand jury, together with the officers of the United States Harness Company. They are charged with conspiracy to defraud in connection with the sale of war surplus harness.

"THE TIME TO TRY CHRISTIANITY"

By Rev. Wm. E. Hutchison

A daily paper recently contained the news item that the International Conference on Christian Citizenship had sent an address to virtually every nation of the world, urging that "the time had come to try Christianity as the only hope" of preventing another more horrible world war and the probable extinction of civilization.

At first thought this seems like a noble effort likely to accomplish much good. It is indeed the registration of the wish of a large and influential body of philanthropic workers, for the coming of peace and good will among men. It is true furthermore that the only hope for such a consummation lies in the worldwide sway of the spirit and teachings of Jesus. It is true, as stated in the address, that wherever Christianity has been fairly tried it has not failed; it is also true, as therein implied, that it has never been tried on a worldwide scale.

On further reflection, however, the proceeding appeared as wise as the sending of Henry Ford's Peace Ship to Europe to stop the war; and it will have exactly as much influence in preventing the dreaded world-wreck. For Christianity cannot be fairly tried in such ways. It must be used according to directions. The new remedy, insulin, which promises so much in the cure of diabetes, is not for sale at the drug stores to be taken by any one like a patent medicine. It is only to be used with the utmost care under the personal direction of medical experts. It must be administered in a particular and definite way. It is so with Christianity. The ethics and social teachings of Jesus will have little effect except in a Christian world, that is, in a world of Christian individuals. Christ's social program was not, like His address, proclaimed to the world, but to those who were already His disciples. It will operate successfully only among those who have been born again, men who have, each for himself, accepted Christ as their Saviour and as their Lord.

Except in a world of Christian men the teachings of Jesus will not be carried out; for if presented as a social program proposed by a mere man, even though he were the best and wisest of men, they will at once raise debate and meet with opposition. Such a program will be universally accepted only when backed by resistless authority. Except in such a world of regenerated individuals these teachings cannot be carried out; for without the fundamental change of regeneration men are helpless against the pull of their selfish human natures and the unseen forces of evil. This has been proved anew for us by the world war and its results. Men are able to do God's will only by the constant assistance of his Holy Spirit; and that Spirit is given only to those who have been saved by the death of His Son.

Moreover if men are disposed to approve and accept Jesus' program, why will they not also pay attention to his prediction of increasing wars and distress as this world order draws to its end?

The only sensible thing to do is to follow out Jesus' own orders and go on preaching the old-time gospel in the old-time way, offering to every man salvation from the guilt and power of sin through His blood. Only in a world of redeemed men and women can we be safe against wars.

Richmond, Va.

PASS IT ALONG

By Rev. S. F. Terry

As an illustration of how good may be propagated from a small seed I will state that some months ago I made a little present to two or three of my Christian friends—a little book called "God's Minute," containing a short prayer for every day. Such a book is a help to devotion to some people. The result of my making these presents is that I have been requested to order about 20 copies of that book. Those who received the book in the first instance pronounced it to be excellent, and wanted copies to give to their friends. Perhaps some reader of these lines may wish to investigate that little book, and use it for themselves, or for others. It can be bought of the Presbyterian Committee of Publication, at Richmond, Va., or Texarkana, Ark.-Tex., price, 60 cents, Crockett, Tex.

IS EVOLUTION AN ASSURED SCIENTIFIC FACT?

"We are animals, and we ascended from the lower animals. Whether we like the fact or not, it is a fact."—(Dr. Lyman Abbott, in The Outlook, January, 1897, page 242).

Now that would seem to settle the matter authoritatively—"ipse dixit." And yet Du Bois-Reymond, the great German Scientist who passed away a little more than two decades ago, found "seven impassable chasms" in the way of the establishment of the evolutionary hypothesis; and the Great Virchow has dubbed the advanced evolutionists "The Bubble Companies."

Of Professor Drummond, "the silver-tongued lecturer and charming litterateur," on whose say-so multitudes today are resting their doubts of the Bible and their beliefs in the "ascent of man," of Drummond the scientists say his science is bad, and the theologians say his theology is rotten.

It may be well to remember that the only way in which the evolutionary hypothesis (in distinction from the accepted doctrine of development) has ever been shown to be true has been by first assuming it, then second, proving it by itself. For of scientific basis it can have none, in its application to the development of the animal kingdom, until two things are established: (1) Spontaneous generation; (2) Transmutation of species. The first of these (spontaneous generation) was undeniably demonstrated to be false by Huxley, Tyndall and Pasteur; the second (transmutation of species) has not a single fact, in the universe, in its favor—nothing beyond morphological changes having ever been shown.

"MARY THE MOTHER OF JESUS"

By R. E. Henderlite

I notice in the "Earnest Worker," on the lesson, "Mary the Mother of Jesus," a statement which I want to criticize. The author says that Jesus may have changed His mind.

He had just told Joseph and His mother that He must be about His Father's business, and then went down and was subject unto them; the inference being that He could not be about His Father's business and be subject to them at the same time.

I make two criticisms:

(1) That Jesus, being the Son of God, could not change His mind.

(2) That when He went down with them to Nazareth and was subject to them, He was just as much about His Father's business as when He disputed with His elders in the temple.

Rougemont, N. C.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

(Continued from page 6)

The vespers will long remain in our memories. Each evening one of our own missionaries gave us a message from one of our various fields. Korea was represented by Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Coit and Dr. and Mrs. R. M. Wilson, Mexico by Mrs. Z. E. Lewis, China by Rev. Lewis Lancaster, Brazil by Dr. and Mrs. Alva Hardie, the former being moderator of the General Assembly there. The pathos of the condition of the Christians of the Near East was told at one vesper service by Rev. John Yonan, of Persia.

The presence of these missionaries and all the others then in Montreat, with their families, on the platform of the auditorium was a most inspiring feature of the last day's program. Every field was represented except Africa. The fact that many of these special servants of God were in ill health from overwork, brought a feeling of shame and regret that the Church did not have more such messengers, mingled with one of pride that the ones she did have were so fine.

It was with saddened hearts and lingering regret that we came to the end of our week. Happy friendships had been made, bonds of love strengthened, and adieus but not goodbyes were regretfully said. And so endeth the Tenth Annual Session of the Woman's Summer School of Missions. Endeth did I say? Nay! Thank God never shall end the influence there set in motion. We pray that we may never lose the vision we have there received of duty, of opportunity, of privilege. O women of the Southern Presbyterian Church, go to Montreat if you would find inspiration, beauty of nature and God's own people!

Nancy Murray Mann.

CHILDREN

A WEEK IN THE COUNTRY

Dear Standard:

Here I come again to tell you I am still enjoying the letters in the Standard, and I want mine printed to surprise my mother and daddy. I have two brothers, Allen and Marvin. Marvin is a dear baby brother only eighteen months old. I'm nine years old. I'll be in the fourth grade next term. I go to Sunday School and Church. I am spending this week in the country with Grandma and Grandpa Garrison. I will close.

Margaret Meban.

Burlington, N. C.

HEARD "BILLIE" IN COLUMBIA

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl ten years old and will be in the sixth grade next year. I sure do enjoy reading the stories and letters in the Standard. Mr. Sunday sure is a good evangelist. He has been in Columbia a while. I am a member of the Richland Presbyterian Church. We have a new church now. I have five sisters and brothers. Their names are Sara, Elizabeth, Wilhelmina, Virginia, and Kathleen. I will close for fear of the wastebasket.

Your unkonwn friend,
Margaret Hood.

Eastover, S. C.

WANTS THE "TRAVELS IN EUROPE"

Dear Standard:

I am a girl 13 years old, and was in the 7th grade last term. My teacher was Miss Carrie Love and I like her fine.

I go to Sunday School at Bethesda Church. My teacher was Mrs. J. P. Moore, but she moved to North Carolina, and I don't know who will take her place. I liked her fine and hated to see her go.

Our pastor is Rev. F. H. Wardlaw and we like him.

I am looking forward to Eleanor Williams' story in your paper of her travels in Europe.

Please don't let my letter reach the wastebasket, as I want to surpris my friends.

Your new friend,
Laura Russell.

Guthriesville, S. C.

MAMMA HELPED

Dear Standard:

I am a little boy six years old. I am in the first grade. Miss Bertie Bryan was my teacher, I liked her fine. I have a goat, and four little brothers to help me play with him. We have a wagon and haul stove-wood for mamma with him. Hope my letter will escape the wastebasket, as this is my first letter and mamma had to help me with it.

Clarence Price.

McDonald, N. C.

IN QUARENTINE

Dear Standard:

I am a little boy nine years old. I love to read the stories and little letters in the Standard. Iona is our church. Mrs. Andrews is my Sunday School teacher. I like her very much, but am shut in now with measles. I am not very sick but miss my little friends that haven't had measles, that have to stay away.

Please print my letter as I want to surprise my daddy.

Your friend,
Alton Price.

McDonald, N. C.

BERT'S WILDCAT

"O Bert," cried Polly, "father says we're all going to the mountains for the month of August!"

That was good news to Bert, but he only said, "Huh! That's fine!"

The family arrived at the small mountain hotel early one evening, and the next day the brother and sister were all ready to explore the neighborhood. They made friends with Ben, an old man of all work on the premises, and asked him all sorts of questions about the big woods near the hotel.

"Yes," drawled old Ben, "thar's a few animals wandering round on the mountains; foxes and wildcats and now and then a bear."

Polly glanced over her shoulder at the dark forest, but Bert, who noticed her look, laughed.

"Hol!" he said. "Bears always run away, Poll. And as for wildcats, they're no bigger than ordinary good-sized cats. You can tell them by their stubby tails. I'd just as soon walk right to one and stroke it."

Polly shook her curly head doubtfully, and Ben remarked that he should call a wildcat a "savage critter."

A few days after that Bert and his sister set out for a ramble up the side of Whiteface, the nearest mountain. After an hour or two of pleasant climbing they halted to eat the sandwiches they had brought with them. Afterward they stretched themselves out on the moss to rest awhile.

After they had been silent and still for a long time, Bert said drowsily, "This is the jolliest place I ever saw."

Just as he spoke there was a slight sound like the crackling of a twig in the thicket just behind them. Bert sat up. "What was that?" he said.

They listened, and presently they heard the sound again. That time it was a little nearer. "Do you suppose it's a bear or anything?" asked Bert in a low tone.

"It might be a wildcat," Polly suggested rather shakily. "You said bears always run away."

At that moment they both caught sight of two bright eyes shining in the shadows of the firs. "Look!" Bert said in a loud whisper. "It is a wildcat, I do believe. What shall we do?"

"Perhaps we'd better sit perfectly still," Polly whispered back.

Nearer and nearer came the eyes. The two watchers—sitting like statues, but rather shaky statues—could now see plainly the animal's gray fur and erect, pointed ears.

The creature advanced softly, step by step, until it was only a rod away.

"I can hear it growling," Bert said in a low whisper.

Polly listened a moment. "No," she said softly, "that doesn't sound like growling. It's more—why, it's more like purring."

As the big cat came slowly nearer they could hear it purring loudly. Suddenly Polly had an idea. She reached out one trembling hand, snatched up a fragment of beef from a left-over sandwich and tossed it toward the strange visitor.

The animal halted and sniffed at the meat, then, crouching, began to cat it.

"I declare," said Polly in a bolder tone, "it acts just like a common cat!"

When the cat had finished the morsel it came still closer, purring more affably than ever, and accepting another piece of beef. That finished, it walked over to the shrinking pair and began to rub against Polly's kneec.

The little girl drew back at first; then all at once she cried, "Look, Bert, it has a long tail just like any common cat. It is a common cat!"

She put out a hesitating little hand and stroked the silky fur.

A little later two rather shamefaced travelers came stealing back to the hotel. They might have kept their adventure a secret, but the cat followed close at their heels and would not leave them.

As they walked into the back yard old Ben saw them. "Hey," he said, "where did you find Big Tom? In the woods, I suppose; he's a regular tramp. Didn't see any wildcats, did you?"

Then somehow the whole story came out. Old Ben was good enough not to laugh very hard, but he could not help giving Bert a little thrust. "When you saw the critter staring through the bushes did you walk right up to it and stroke it, son?"

Bert was honest. "No, sir-e-e, I didn't," he said. "Wildcats are easier to talk about, I guess, than they are to meet."—Willis Boyd Allen, in The Youth Companion.

THE SURPRISINGEST SURPRISE

Robert was making the long journey alone because his cousins had begged him not to wait for the family, but to come at once, so he would be there for the camping out fishing party the boys were to have the last of the week. It would be an all-day ride, but he did not have to change cars, and would have no trouble.

For some time he was so interested in looking out of the window he did not ever think of being alone; but after a while it clouded up, and rain streaked the glass so he could not see plainly, and he began to wish he knew some one in the car. He looked at the games he was taking to the cousins, but he could not play them alone; and at last, just to be doing something, he went to counting the people in the car.

Turning to look behind him, he discovered a little girl all alone huddled in the last seat at the far end. She was so little he though her folks must have just gone into another car, and watched to see if any one came to her. But no one did.

And presently he saw that the little girl was crying. She did not make a sound, but the big tears kept slipping down her round, pink cheeks, and she wiped them off with a quick little motion as if afraid some one would notice.

The conductor came by and spoke to her in a very kind way, but she shook her head with her face to the window. Robert thought she must be very shy, and felt sorry for her; he was shy himself, and didn't know about speaking to her, but the seats around her were empty, he could sit closer, it might be company for her.

He gathered up his small belongings and went down the car; the little girl looked up startled when he stopped by her seat, so he slid into the one in front of her; she still kept her face to the window and he could see the tears still slipping down her cheeks.

At last he got courage to speak to her, and stammered. "D-did your folks go off into another car and leave you alone?"

She bounced around at that, look-ink almost angry. Then she laughed—really laughed with the tears on her cheeks!—and mimicked him: "D-did your folks go off into another car and leave you alone?"

"Of course not. I'm nine, and I'm going alone to visit my cousins," Robert said stoutly.

"I'm seven, and I'm going alone to visit my cousins, too," the little girl said; "I'm 'spressed, scc!" she showed a card fastened to her clothing. "But it's the longest way—I d-don't li-like going alone," she suddenly put her head down and sobbed, and as suddenly looked up and laughed again.

"You're like the weather outside, showery and shiny together," Robert said, laughing.

"Papa calls me Showery-shiny sometimes, but my name's Margy," the little girl smiled brightly.

"My name's Robert. And now we're acquainted I'm going to sit with you, and let's eat our lunch together."

"B-but I haven't any lunch. I was to eat in the dining car, only I—I didn't want to g-go in there with s-so many strangers. But I—I'm not hungry."

"I've got a plenty for both if we don't eat too much." Robert wasn't quite sure there would be plenty, traveling made a fellow so hungry!

Somebody laughed out, and there was the conductor in the door. "I'm glad you made friends with Miss Margy, and I'll see that you have dinner in plenty for both of you," he said.

The porter fixed a small table in front of them, and when the fine dinner was ready, hungry Margy squealed delightedly, and Robert could hardly wait for manners.

The afternoon passed quickly with games and picture books, and neither thought to tell their last names, where they lived, or where they were going.

But at last the train stopped at a large town, and a man came through the car, looking about sharply.

"Uncle Arthur! Uncle Arthur!" Margy cried, starting up.

"Uncle Arthur! Uncle Arthur!" Robert echoed, starting up too.

"He's my Uncle Arthur!" Margy exclaimed.

"He's my Uncle Arthur!" Robert insisted.

"I am Uncle Arthur to both of you, and you are cousins. Didn't you know that?" Uncle Arthur laughed.

"Oh! oh!" they cried together. They could hardly believe it; they lived a long ways apart, and had never seen each other before.

"Well, I'm glad we're cousins," Margy said.

"And I'm glad we're cousins, too, but it's the surprisingest surprise!" Robert exclaimed.—Louise Jackson Strong, in Sunday School Times.

ON THE TRAIN

Last summer when we went to Maine, We traveled overnight by train. At evening when my prayers were said,

The porter came to make my bed. He drew the curtains all around And shut me in all safe and sound, So I alone could snugly lie. And watch the stars go sliding by. What fun it was! and as I lay The moon came up as bright as day, So I could clearly see at last The country as we hurried past— The cows asleep upon the hill, The little houses dark and still, A lighted town, a bridge, a brook, Like pictures printed in a book. But what seems puzzling to my mind, We never left the moon behind— It shone above as clear as day, And stayed right with us all the way!

—Ex.

No man has a right to do as he pleases unless he pleases to do right.

CHURCH NEWS

(Continued from page 9)

Carolina home and during his absence the pulpit is filled by his able associate, Rev. A. G. Harris. Truly Presbyterianism is awake in our grand old church and we give God the praise for the blessings which we are receiving. Our Sabbath School building, when completed, will be larger than the present church edifice. Mr. McKay, our superintendent has every one at work and when this is the case we can easily guess the result. Cor.

KENTUCKY

Louisville—The faculty and friends of the Louisville Theological Seminary are pleased to know that Rev. S. W. McGill has declined the call to become Assembly's secretary of Men's Werk and will remain with the seminary in the department of Church Efficiency.

MISSOURI

St. Joseph, First—Rev. Bunyan McLeod, D.D., has been called to the pastorate of the First Presbyterian Church, of Lexington, Ky. Dr. McLeod has the call under consideration.

TENNESSEE

Memphis—During the absence of the pastor, Rev. C. H. Williamson, D.D., on his summer vacation, the First Presbyterian Church will undergo extensive repairs. This historic church has a splendid equipment and a strategic location.

Memphis—Rev. Wm. P. Nilson, D.D., pastor of Idlewild Church has returned from his vacation and is again in his pulpit. Idlewild church has made a very favorable arrangement with Southwestern College to secure stone for the new church from the quarry which was purchased by the college. When completed it is expected that Idlewild Church will be one of the most modern and attractive churches in the Assembly.

Memphis—The concrete slab for the first floor of the B. M. Palmer Memorial Building at Southwestern is already in place. The stone work is being set and building is progressing rapidly. The Palmer Memorial Building is to cost $250,000 and will be the central administration building. Three dormitories must be erected at a cost of $60,000 each. The dining hall at a cost of $75,000. The Science Building to cost $200,000. These buildings offer most attractive opportunities for useful and permanent memorials.

TEXAS

El Paso, Eastminster Church—We are glad to report the organization of Eastminster Presbyterian Church at 1208 Crockett Street, on last Sunday evening, with 37 charter members. The following to were dismissed from Westminster: Mr. and Mrs. T. R. McClintock, Marion and Dorothy McClintock, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Clark, Mrs. Irene Disman, Beverly Disman, Mrs. M. M. Lee, and Mr. Drurey. Four were dismissed from Manhattan: Mr. and Mrs. Hardeman, Mrs. James, and Miss Louise James. Eleven came from other Presbyterian churches, and 12 came in by statement and profession. It may be of interest to note that Westminster was organized just 20 years ago in August, with 17 members. This new organization has the advantage over the beginning of Westminster in that they have a building, and four good lots, and a pastor whose salary is provided for a year. The Southern Presbyterian Church now has in El Paso four church organizations, and buildings; four pastors; about 650 members, and over $100,000 in property. Mr. H. A. Wren, and Mr. W. N. Hardeman were elected elders in Eastminster. They had 58 in Sunday School last Sunday. We are sure that this new church will have the hearty support of Westminster. We are paying from our benevolent budget $200 on the pastor's salary, and will with the help of El Paso Presbytery take care of the note of $2,600, the balances due on their property. Manhattan is paying $100 on the pastor's salary, while the Mexican church is lending them pews and an organ. The next thing we ought to do is to build some manses for our pastors. Mr. Fernandez is the only pastor that has a manse. This will be a great aid to our churches in providing pastors for the future. If we did not have "rich" pastors now, I do not know what we would do.

VIRGINIA

Newport News—There were 23 additions to the First Church at the July communion, 13 on profession and ten by letter. Dr. Wellford leaves August 1st for his annual vacation and the pulpit will be supplied in his absence by Rev. Drs. Campbell and Lang, of Pittsburg, Pa. E. T. W.

The Synod of Virginia will meet at Massanetta Springs, near Harrisonburg, Va., on Tuesday, August 28, 1923, at 8 o'clock, p. m.

The new plan of entertainment will be in effect at this meeting, and to provide the necessary money for the transportation and entertainment of its members, the Synod has laid a tax of seven cents per resident member upon all of its churches, and due notice has been mailed to every church.

The success of the plan will depend to a considerable extent upon the full participation of the larger churches. At this writing there are 28 churches of more than 300 members each which have not paid their apportionments. These churches can save the Synod embarrassment, and secure for the new plan a fair trial, by sending in their apportionments now. Joseph A. McMurray, S. C. and Treas. Hedgesfield, W. Va.

East Hanover Presbytery held an adjourned meeting on July 27th in Richmond, and dissolved the pastoral relation between Rev. A. W. Hoeny and the Overbrook Church of Richmond. Mr. Hoeny was given permission to labor outside the bounds of the Presbytery, until the Fall meeting of Presbytery. Rev. H. A. Lewis was appointed to preach at the church and declare the pulpit vacant. Rev. J. Y. Fair, Rev. J. M. Alexander and ruling elder S. B. Love were appointed a committee to advise with and assist the church in securing another pastor.

A petition signed by 46 persons was presented asking for the organization of a church at Centralia in Chesterfield county. The following commission was appointed to visit the field, and if the way be clear to organize a church there: Rev. J. M. Alexander, Rev. H. J. Williams, Rev. Dr. E. B. McCluer, Rev. Dr. J. Y. Fair, Rev. Hugh Fitzpatrick, and ruling elders W. B. Strother, T. O. Williams, R. W. Roberts.

Arrangements were made to borrow the money needed to aid in building the new church at Colonial Heights.

Massanetta Springs Conferences—The Young People's Conference held at Massanetta Springs, July 16-22 was attended by about 700 young people. The actual number of registrations was 545.

Eighty-five young people came forward at the closing service and dedicated their lives to whole-time Christian service. There were already 40 on the platform who had previously made this decision. The whole audience was deeply moved by this demonstration.

The Massanetta Springs grounds with its beautiful lawn and oak trees never looked so attractive. The grove around the auditorium was well covered with tents from the various churches of the Synod.

The Standard Training School for Church and Sunday School Workers opened July 24th. Dr. H. E. Tralle and a fine faculty of teachers, including Dr. W. H. T. Squires, Miss Elizabeth McE. Shields, Mrs. H. E. Tralle, Miss Anna Branch Binford, Rev. Walter Getty, Dr. J. L. Fairly, Mr. E. R. Michaux, and Rev. S. K. Emurian, soloist and musical director, are on the program.

The Woman's School of Missions will open August 1st and continue for seven days. The faculty consists of Rev. J. O. Reavis, D.D., Mrs. E. L. Russell, Mrs. Chas. S. Shawhan, Miss Hilda White, Mrs. John Bratton, Mrs. D. K. Walthall, Mr. C. R. Warthen, Mr. Chrystal Brown, soloist and musical director. In addition to the above faculty the following speakers are expected: Mr. Frank Gilliam, Miss Annie R. V. Wilson, Dr. Homer McMillan, Dr. W. F. Williams, Dr. J. L. Mauze and Dr. W. L. Lingle.

Bible Conference—The leading speakers at the Bible conference at Massanetta Springs August 17-26 are as follows: Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, Dr. Wm. Evans, Dr. A. C. Dixon, Dr. J. C. Acheson, Mr. Geo. W. Trotter, Mr. Homer Hammtree, one of the leading singers and choir leaders in the United States, will have charge of the singing.

The Synod of Virginia meets at Massanetta Springs on August 28-30.

QUIET TALKS

(Continued from page 4)

selves. And we called his earth name Jesus. He was a real man. He lived our life.

Then one day He got down, in, under the load of our stubbornness, our selfishness to get rid of it. And the load was so heavy it broke his heart. And the blood came. And he used the blood to clean us up, and break our hearts, and bend our wills and draw us back. And He is doing it.

A little girl in bed screamed out when the storm broke. The mother, coming quickly, said, "Didn't I tell you, dear, not to be afraid? God is watching; you won't get hurt." "Yes, mother," the child said in a shaky voice, "but when it thunders like that I want somebody with skin on."

May I, with utmost reverence, use the child's child talk? Jesus was God coming with skin on. He came that we might know God by the human feel.

No. 7—The Bad Break

Marriages and Deaths

MARRIED

Wilson-Thomas — In Greenville, S. C., August 2, 1923, by Rev. E. P. Davis, Mr. James Wilson, of Greensboro, N. C., and Miss Rachel Thomas, of Greenville.

DEATHS

Cooke—Joseph Cook died July 19, 1923 at his home near Wade, N. C., having attained the ripe age of 98 years. He was a faithful officer and member of the Bluff Presbyterian Church, where for 40 years he served in the capacity of deacon. He is survived by a number of children and grandchildren and great-grandchildren. As a soldier in the Civil War and as a stalwart and law-abiding citizen he served his country faithfully. He will be missed in his community and church.

MRS. HENRY SAIN

Mary Abigail Alexander, born October 6, 1833, in Mecklenburg County, North Carolina. With her parents moved to Fayette County, Tenn., in 1842 in the ninth year of her age. She was married to Henry Sain May 26, 1868. Moved to Marshall County, Miss., in 1859. They then came to Monroe County, Ark., in 1878 and settled on the place near Holly Grove where she lived till her death, July 23, 1923.

She was the mother of five children, two of whom still live. At her bedside were two sons, 18 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren. She was reared in the faith of the Presbyterian

MOREHEAD CITY, N. C.

The ideal North Carolina Coast resort, offering unusual attractions and accommodations for visitors. Atlantic Hotel has been remodelled and with other hotels offer excellent accommodations. Unsurpassed surf bathing at Bogue Sound.

Convenient schedule via Norfolk Southern trains and close connecting lines.

Special Sunday, Week-end and Summer excursion fares. Sunday train leaves Morehead City 5:30 p. m.

For information, rates and schedules, apply any ticket agent or write

J. F. DALTON
General Passenger Agent
Norfolk, Va.

Church and held to its teachings with loyal fidelity to the end of her long life. She was buried from the Holly Grove Church, where she held her membership since March, 1883, over 40 years.

James H. Morrison, Pastor.

SORES BOILS, CUTS and BURNS have been healed since 1820 with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 724 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

CENTRAL BUREAU of PUBLICITY

FOR

Presbyterian Schools and Colleges

Departments of

Newspaper-Church Paper Publicity

Alumnae Organization

General Publicity

For particulars address R. H. RICE, Director
Box 869, Charlotte, N. C.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION Emphasized Through PUBLICITY

Story and Incident

A SUMMER GIRL

A flutter of pink muslin, a gleam of coating pink ribbons, of a summer at wreathed with roses, and a charming, earnest girl face looking out from under it, and all the piazza people at the great hotel said: "That's Rosamund Ellis."

Every one in the house soon knew by the cordial greetings extended by old friends and the admiring glances of those who met her for the first time, that to Rosamund Ellis fairly belonged the fame of belle of the Mountain House.

The fashionable hotel crowned a height in the center of a New England village, lately found out and occupied as a summer resort by city people. At the head of the company was a cultured, highly intellectual man, whose fame as orator and writer has gone the world over. With him came a college professor or two, a poet and a novelist, each attracting a little coterie, and all exulting in the rare beauty and healthfulness of the hills. The denizens of the town, whose ancestors had transformed the wilderness into a habitable place, were, in the main, intelligent, God-fearing farmers, in whose eyes the pretty white church, with its slender spire pointing heavenward from the village green, represented the true meaning of all life, material as well as spiritual.

The new city-comers, however, secretly despised the plain little church and its plain service, and often used the words "narrow" and "bigoted" in speaking of its worshipers. And quite naturally the village people who were outside the church, and especially those whose gains were increased in the service of the new-comers—all those whom the church longed to win to Christ—were dazzled by the glitter of the gay city people, and readily adopted their sentiments.

Rosamund Ellis, while at college her pure nature yielded to religious influences, and she had given her heart and soul loyally and earnestly to the service of her Saviour. Sabbath was to her a day to be joyously given to spiritual things.

So it happened that when she came down to breakfast the first Sabbath morning after her arrival, looking as fair as a spring blossom in her fresh, white gown, and with her face shining with the joy of early Sabbath morning thoughts, the chatter of the hotel company jarred painfully on her heart.

"We are off for a horseback ride to Whitecap," said a jolly young fellow, "with dinner at the new Mountain House, and a ride home by moonlight. What do you think of that?"

The young men and maidens clustered around her, laughing and planning. Some of them knew her ideas about Sabbath-keeping, and looked on with eager curiosity to see what she would do.

"But what about the morning service, if we all go horseback riding?" she said.

A volley of answers, just such as she expected, met her little venture. "It was too warm to go to church; the pastor didn't know how to preach the choir didn't know how to sing; it was vacation time; let church-going have a rest with other duties of the year."

But Rosamund quietly held her way. "When I was in the mountains last year," she said, "I heard some one say to the old pastor of the town, 'What a fine thing for your church and the place to have this brilliant company of men and women come here for the summer; it gives new life to the old town, and must be a great incentive to the young people.'

"I shall never forget the old man's answer:

"'Better; a thousand times better, if the brilliant men and women had never seen our little town. They openly despise the worship of God's house, and all that goes with it. They draw away from its services the boys and men who must caddy for them and drive them about on their Sabbath excursions; they profane every Lord's day all through the summer, and the fact that they are cultured intelligent and highly esteemed in the world outside, adds terrible weight to their bad example. The Lord's day was a quiet, sacred, happy time until they came. Now all the preaching of the year can not wipe away the effect of their evil deeds. The church feels the influence most keenly. And when, at the close of the season, all the gay guests unite in an entertainment for our benefit, they think they are doing an act of charity. Far greater charity,' said the old man, 'if they would remain away; or, better, if they would show at least outward respect to the day. How can they answer to their God for the long summer violations of his command to reverence the Sabbath?'"

"Now," said Rosamund, still lightly, "if any of you feel like adding to the burdens of that old man, I am not one of you. Every Sabbath this summer I shall go to church morning and evening, God willing, and not once shall I go riding or take part in an excursion of any sort. It is the Lord's day, not ours, you know; and I truly believe," she added, softly, "that we can make Sabbaths among these hills beautiful memories for all our lives."

The little company gradually dissolved away from Rosamund's side and formed in groups on the piazza, in the parlors and in quiet corners, to talk over the situation. In a half hour the horses were brought gaily up to the front door, and a party, much smaller than the original one galloped away over the plain. A few quietly walked across the green to the little church, and the old pastor noted their coming and wondered what had brought them.

By degrees Rosamund won the day. She talked to the fishing young men so effectually that they gave up Sabbath sport, and the small boys who usually attended them on their excursions had a chance to go to Sabbath School. She interviewed all sorts of Sabbath-breaking people and won many to her way of thinking. She added her fresh, well-trained voice to the choir and sang solos to attract

Renew Your Health At Nature's Fountain

Without the Expense and Loss of Time Necessary for a Visit to the Spring

THE CRISIS

There comes a time in the life of practically every man and woman when their digestive or eliminative organs, or both, fail to respond to drugs prepared by human skill. In fact drugs seem to do them about as much harm as good for their systems rebel against all drugs. These are the cases which physicians call "stubborn" and "chronic" for the reason that they persist in spite of drug treatment. We do not refer to incurable diseases such as cancer and consumption, but to that larger class of functional disorders which we meet every day, where the organs of digestion and elimination are impaired.

For this class of cases our best physicians and our big city specialists send their wealthy patients to the mineral springs where, in the great majority of cases they are permanently restored or decidedly benefited. But what about the poor man who has not the money or the busy man or woman who cannot spare the time to spend several weeks or possibly months at a health resort? Shall circumstances deny them the restoration to health which Nature has provided? Read our answer in the coupon at the bottom of this page.

We have the utmost confidence in the Shivar Mineral Spring Water for it has made us thousands of friends in all parts of America and even in foreign countries, whose faces we have never seen. Yet we count them our friends for the Shivar Spring Water has bound them to us by lasting gratitude.

We ask you to read their letters, a few samples of which we publish below for your benefit, and if you find among them any encouragement as to your own health do not hesitate to accept our offer which has no limits or conditions except those shown on the coupon.

INDIGESTION

I was suffering with indigestion, stomach and liver disorders and all its train of horrifying phenomena for several months. I had lived on milk, soft eggs, shredded wheat, a very insufficient diet for an active working man, and, of course, from disease and starvation was in a very low state of nervous vitality and general debility. I ordered ten gallons of your Mineral Water which I used continuously, reordering when necessary, and in four months gained twenty-nine pounds, was strong and perfectly well, and have worked practically every day since. It acts as a general renovator of the system. I prescribe it in my practice, and it has in every instance had the desired effects. It is essential to use this water in as large quantities as possible, for its properties are so happily blended and in such proportion that they will not disturb the most delicate system. It is purely Nature's remedy. A. L. A., M. D.

I feel it my duty to suffering humanity to make public announcement of the benefits I have derived from Shivar Spring Water. I have been a sufferer for the past twenty-five years from indigestion and dyspepsia. After one week's trial of Shivar Water I commenced to improve, and after drinking it for four weeks I gained fifteen pounds. I feel better and stronger than I have in twenty-five years. I strongly recommend this Water to any one with stomach trouble of any character. I am writing this voluntarily and trust it will fall in the hands of many who are so unfortunate as to be afflicted with indigestion and nervous dyspepsia. C. V. T.

DYSPEPSIA

For many years I suffered with stomach trouble as a direct result of asthma. I consulted the very best specialist in this country, and spent quite a large sum of money in my endeavor to get relief. However, I had about come to the conclusion that my case was hopeless, but by accident I happened to get hold of one of your booklets, and decided to try Shivar Spring Water. After drinking the water for about three weeks I was entirely relieved, and since that time have suffered but little inconvenience from my trouble. I cheerfully recommend the use of your Water to any one that may be suffering from stomach trouble. O. T. S.

It is a great pleasure to tell you that your Water has been a great benefit, I may say a great blessing, to me. My wife says it has helped me more than anything else I ever tried. I have been, for thirty years, a sufferer from stomach trouble. REV. E. H. B.

RHEUMATISM

I have tested your Spring Water in several cases of rheumatism, chronic indigestion, kidney and bladder troubles, and in nervous and sick headaches, and find that it has acted nicely in each case. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the liver, kidneys and bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter. C. A. C., M. D.

I suffered with indigestion and kidney trouble, and a year ago was stricken with acute articular rheumatism; was helpless for months, and since using your Spring Water I am walking without any crutch and improving daily. Indigestion much relieved. I wish I could write Shivar Spring Water in the sky so that the world could become acquainted with it. MRS. J. K.

RENAL AND CYSTIC

I suffered for eight years with kidney trouble and inflammation of the bladder to the extent that I would have to get up during the night some five or six times. After using this water only a few days, I am entirely relieved and suffer no more effect of the trouble whatever. J. P. D.

My wife has had a bad kidney trouble for several years. She has been using the water only about three weeks and it has already made her a new woman. Her color is much improved, her appetite is all that she could wish for, her digestion seems to be perfect. We give Shivar Spring credit for it all. T. G. S.

Fill Out This Coupon and Mail It Today:

Shivar Springs,
Box 3T, Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen: I enclose your offer and enclose herewith three dollars ($3.00) for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Spring Water. I agree to give it a fair trial in accordance with the instructions which you will send, and if I report no benefit therefrom you agree to refund the price of the water in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns, which I agree to return within thirty days.

Name

P. O.

Express Office

Please write distinctly.

the music-lover. She induced a city musician to preside at the little organ. She made friends with the old pastor and his wife, and warmed their hearts by her earnestness and Christian sympathy.

And when the Lord of the vineyard cometh and reckoneth in that village, then, but not till then, will be known all that Rosamund, the prettiest summer girl in the mountains, wrought for His kingdom.—Selected.

IN GOD'S OUT-OF-DOORS

Every man should have a holiday, that is, every man who does earnest and faithful work during the working period of the year. And if a man has earned his right in this way, he can hardly be judged guilty of selfishness if he does not allow his sympathy for others to prevent his really enjoying and profiting from the holidays that he can have.

We need holidays, partly because we require some mental and nervous and bodily rest and refreshment, but chiefly because we need to get away from our ordinary selves and our ordinary occupations for a little time. Too close and too long application to any one regular series of familiar tasks not only has a tendency to become wearing, but it often very seriously impairs our perspective. We look too closely and too exclusively at the things we are doing every day, and in spite of ourselves other things lose their true relation and importance. Who that has come home from a real holiday has not felt in a startlingly realistic way that he was looking at the old life and ways and duties with new-seeing eyes, understanding and appreciating it in a fresh and stimulating way?

The kind of holiday that will best and most effectively take us out of our ordinary and more humdrum selves, and into the bigger, fresher, and more stimulating world, will, in a general way, be the best holiday for us. New scenes, new interests, new occupations, new companionships—these would all seem to be more or less helpful or even necessary. And the main thing required of them is that they be new, though at the same time they ought to be measurably wholesome and congenial. And what man has not found that even in going away for a holiday with his own family he has actually spent that holiday with new people, so great was the change that fresh scenes and fresh occupations had made?

Experience has proved that to make much use of the great world of out-of-doors is one of the best ways of realizing a helpful and refreshing holiday. How often in our holidays have we recovered some lost joy in out-of-doors scenes and things and experiences that has been something like a real new birth. Such a holiday has sometimes taken us back to boyhood days, with their fresh and hopeful and stimulating outlook, and the experience has had an abiding and wonderfully freshening effect. God's great world is very interesting and beautiful and full of fascination, and all of us should appreciate and know it vastly more than we do, and anything that will bring us into closer relationships will make ultimately for increased happiness and satisfaction and usefulness.

There is one man for whom we feel sorry almost above all others, and that is for the man to whom that great world of out-of-doors has little real attraction. The man who finds no joy in birds and flowers and trees and sunsets and soft breezes is a man to be pitied indeed. And if one can train himself into an appreciation of these things, and we believe he can, surely he should not for any reason fail to do so.

By all means let us have our holiday this year if we can. That much is our religious duty. We owe it to ourselves and to the work we are trying to do. But wherever we go or whatever we do in realizing that holiday, let us not fail to make one of its experiences a getting into fresh, stimulating, life-giving touch with the great world of nature, for that is one of the great divine ways of bringing healing and vigor to both the souls and bodies of the sons of men. (From an editorial in The Christian Guardian.)

YOUR COMPLEXION IMPROVES BY WALKS

The reason English women have better skins than American women is that they never miss their daily walk. It isn't just the dampness of English air, though ten minutes rapid walk in a steady downpour will work a miracle with your complexion—it makes the blood circulate with vigor, and the cleansed, damp air is like a mask straight from heaven. But it isn't just the dampness, it's the regularity. She walks every day. Perhaps that's one reason she likes her tea so much, and we feel very sure it's the reason she can talk without self-consciousness about the immortality of the soul, while the American talks either as if she had a reporter at her elbow or as if it were a joke but she'd be game and be the "goat." The English-woman knows the value of outdoors and exercise. She finds poise and health there.—From the Delineator.

The dignified business man tripped on the platform of the "L" and a roll fell from the paper bag he had cuddled up under his newspaper.

It rolled along into the car as only a hard-baked roll can roll. The man assumed an air of unconcern, but passengers smiled and followed the course of the roll with sporting interest. It rolled to the feet of three girls in the corner and as the business man unfolded his newspaper, he heard a giggle and scented mischief.

There was a whispered consultation among the three maidens and then one approached with the roll. "I think this is yours, sir," she said. But the dignified man was ready for her. "Thank you," he replied, "but I beg as a favor that you will retain it as a tribute to your honesty."—Ex.

A cynic is a man who tries to hide his sores behind his sneers.

The skeeter is a bird of prey,
Which flies around at night.
About three eighths of it is beak,
And five eighths appetite.
And fifteen eighths or so is buzz,
And nineteen eighths is bite.
—Judge.

UNION THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
Richmond, Virginia

Oldest and Largest Seminary in the Southern Church.

Equipment Unequaled

Faculty Unsurpassed

Conservative in Doctrine, Progressive in Methods.

One hundred and twelfth session will open September 26, 1923

A COLLEGE THAT DEVELOPS

Morals and Christian Character

As Well as Mind and Body

An A grade college, co-educational, of highest standards and scholarship.

GUILFORD COLLEGE

Thorough instruction, excellent equipment, under Christian environment. Courses leading to A.B., and B.S. Degrees. Excellent Musical training and Home Economics. Able faculty. Fine athletic record. 10 modern buildings. Large campus. Healthful climate. Rates reasonable. Six miles west of Greensboro. For literature and other information, write—

THE PRESIDENT, GUILFORD COLLEGE, N. C.

If In Doubt, Take B. & L. Shares

You will earn the highest interest rate on your savings consistent with perfect safety, and pay no tax on savings.

Shares cost twenty-five cents per week, and usually mature in 333 weeks. Net you 6 1/4 per cent at maturity.

SERIES OPEN IN JANUARY, APRIL, JULY AND OCTOBER

Mechanics Perpetual Building & Loan Association

225 N. Tryon St

Established 1883

Charlotte, N. C.

SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY

Announces

REDUCED ROUND-TRIP RATES

to

Wrightsville Beach, N. C.,

and Other Resorts

From	to	Week-end
Charlotte, N. C.	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	$ 8.60
Lincolnton, N. C.	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	9.95
Shelby, N. C.	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	10.90
Rutherfordton, N. C.	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	12.05

Tickets on sale Fridays and Saturdays of each week, May 18th to September 2, 1923. Limited to reach original starting point Tuesday following date of sale.

Season tickets Charlotte, N. C., to Wrightsville Beach, N. C. and return $11.30, sold any day May 15th to September 30th, with final limit to October 31, 1923.

For sleeping car reservation or other information apply to ticket agent or address,

E. W. LONG
Division Passenger Agent
Charlotte, N. C.

RANDOLPH-MACON INSTITUTE, Danville, Virginia, for Girls. College preparatory and special course for those not wishing to go to college. Vocal and Instrumental Music, Art and Expression. Attractive home life. Gymnasium. Branch of the Randolph-Macon System. Rates $500. Catalogue. Address Chas. G. Evans, A. M., Principal, Box C, Danville, Virginia.

WANTED—Position in private family as governess. Can also teach music. Address B-16, General Delivery, Henderson, N. C.

JAMES M. McMICHAEL
Church Architect
Charlotte, N. C.

Tennessee Military Institute

A school where orderliness, respect for government, and the desire to make good replace recklessness and the "don't care" attitude; where every boy is put on his mettle to measure himself by established school standards. Good name of school rests on thorough academic work, efficient military training and physical development, and the spirit of T. M. I., which inspires boys to their best achievement. Sound government through sensible restraints and incentives to good conduct. Health record unsurpassed. R. O. T. C. Modern buildings and equipment, laboratories, gymnasium, swimming pool, cinder track. All athletics. Charges moderate. For Catalog address

COL. C. R. ENDSLEY, Supt., Box R

SWEETWATER :: :: TENNESSEE

It is better to turn back than go astray.

THE McCALLIE SCHOOL

Founded for Christian education, never needed than today. Prepares boys for college and Government Academies. High academic standing. Small classes, individual attention. Military training. All athletics. Fine athletic field, and new concrete swimming pool.

Headmasters
J. McCallie, M. A., and
J. P. McCallie, M. A., Ph.D.
For catalog address, The McCallie School
Mission Ridge Chattanooga, Tenn.

NORFOLK SOUTHERN RAILROAD COMPANY

Passenger Schedules
Effective January 28, 1923
Charlotte, N. C.
Daily Except Sunday as Shown
Lv. 7:30 A. M.

Through and intermediate points.
Connection for Belhaven, Norfolk, and intermediate points.
For tickets, Pullman reservations and information address or apply
to

J. K. POWELL, D. T. A.
P. A. JENKINS, C. T. A.

MARY BALDWIN COLLEGE AND MARY BALDWIN SEMINARY

Established in 1842
For Young Ladies Staunton, Va.
Term begins Septembr 6th. In Shenandoah valley of Virginia. Unsurpassed climate, modern equipment. Students from 33 States.
Courses: Collegiate, 4 years, A.B. Degree;
Preparatory, 4 years. Music, Art, Expression, Domestic Science. Athletics—Gymnasium and Field. Catalogue.

School Desks,
Opera Chairs,
Folding Chairs,
Kindergarten Chairs,
Church Pews,
School Supplies,
Blackboards

Southern Desk Co., Hickory, N. C.

COLUMBIA THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Columbia, S. C.
The Seminary of the Synods of South
Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Florida

FACULTY
JOHN MILLER WELLS, A.M., Ph.D.,
D.D., LL.D.

President of the Seminary
Professor of Practical Theology
WILLIAM M. McPHEETERS, D.D.,
LL.D.

Professor of Old Testament Literature and Exegesis
HENRY ALEXANDER WHITE, A.M.,
Ph.D., D.D., LL.D.

Professor of New Testament Literature
and Exegesis
RICHARD C. REED, D.D., LL.D.

Professor of Ecclesiastical History and Church Polity
MELTON CLARK, A.B., D.D.

Professor of the English Bible and Religious Education
EDGAR D. KERR, A.B., B.D., D.D.

Professor of Hebrew and Cognate
Languages
JAMES BENJAMIN GREEN, A.B.,
D.D.

Professor of Didactic and Polemic
Theology
HUGH R. MURCHISON, A.B., B.D.

Instructor in Missions
The next session will begin Wednesday,
September 19, 1923. For information write to Rev. Hugh R. Murchinson, Executive Secretary, Columbia, S. C.

DE SHUCKIN' O' DE CORN

My brothers and my sisters,
On dis sunny Sabbath morn,
Ize in min' ter do some preachin'
'Bout de Shuckin' o' de Corn,
An' Ize gwine ter mek it p'inted,
An Ize gwine ter say it plain—
Dyar's er monst'us mess o' shuckin',
But er mighty little grain.

Y'all knows de corn-stalk speakers
Whar jes' spring up out de groun',
How dey shakes dey top-knot tassels
Whar-some-never crowds is foun'.
Well, if y'all will tek an' shuck 'em,
In de barn-house o' de brain—
Dyar's er monst'us mess o' shuckin',
But er mighty little grain.

Y'all buys de Sunday papers
Fer ter git de gwines-on;
How the rustle o' dat fodder
Meks you 'spec' ter git some corn.
Well, on time de leaves is open,
An' you gathers up yo' gain—
Dyar's er monst'us mess o' shuckin',
But er mighty little grain.

Y'all goes down ter de vote house
Whar dey brings de folks ter law,
An' you heahs er lot o' lawyers
Kcep er holl'rin' at de law,
An' ef den you call de doctors
Dey gwine projec' wid yo' pain—
Dyar's er monst'us mess o' shuckin',
But er mighty little grain.

Now Ize name' de main 'lustrations,
An' you knows Ize name' 'em true,
But befo' I ends dis 'pistle
Ize er-p'intin' it at you;
So, er standin' hyer, I axes:
"Is de sunshine an' de rain
Jes' er-makin' you all shuckin'
Or er-pilin' up you' grain?"

My brothers and my sisters,
Jes' ez sho' ez you is born,
Right behin' yo' backs, folks 'shuck
you
All de same ez shuckin' corn,
An' ef you is little nubbins,
Den you' growin's all in vain;
Folks ain' gwine count yo' shuckin's;
Deys er-gwine ter count you' grain.
—Benjamin B. Valentine, in "Olc Marster and Other Verse."

One On the Weather

Six kinds of wcaether:
January Freezes!
February Wheezes!
March Breezes!
April Sneezes!
May Eases!
Junc Pleases!

THE LOUISVILLE PRESBYTERIAN THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
BRILLIANT FACULTY MODERN CURRICULUM
Sited in the heart of the institutional section of a great metropolis, with all the added advantages of these associated institutions
Write for particulars to JOHN M. VANDER MEULEN, President
109 East Broadway, Louisville, Ky.

Flora Macdonald College

Red Springs, North Carolina

Where the Spirit of SERVICE and LOYALTY Abounds

3,000 Alumnae engaged in 60 Occupations

10 Graduates "On the Firing Line"

Courses leading to A. B., B. S., B. M. Degrees

Catalog on Request Address the Registrar

Queens College, Charlotte, N. C.

A High Grade Institution for the Education of Young Women

Christian Ideals constantly held before the Students; Christian Characters in the chair of each Department; Five Teachers with M. A.
Degree; Two Teachers with Ph.D. Degree; Christian Atmosphere permeating the Student Body.

Location, the very best: Myers Park, Charlotte. Equipment rapidly reaching standard requirements. Curriculum equal to that of any institution in the State. Expenses very moderate indeed, considering advantages offered and work done.

Our Motto: "Christian Women for Christian Homes." Send us your daughter, support us in our administration and instruction, and we will return a thoroughly developed and fully refined Christian woman.

For catalogue and other information, write
WILLIAM H. FRAZER, President
Box 300
Charlotte, N. C.

ELISE HIGH SCHOOL

PURPOSE: To prepare boys and girls for standard colleges under Christian influences, and to supply trained Christian leaders.

A Presbyterian High School

With a reputation for thorough work; healthy location; comfortable quarters; strong faculty—all college graduates and experienced teachers; individual attention to students; four year course in Bible.
Rates $156.50 the year. For catalogue and information, address

JOHN D. McLEOD :: HEMP, N. C.

Aberdeen & Rockfish Railroad
BETWEEN ABERDEEN AND FAYETTEVILLE

EAST BOUND			DISTANCE FROM ABERDEEN	STATIONS	DISTANCE FROM FAYETTEVILLE	WEST BOUND
Pass.	Local Freight	Pass.				Pass.	Local Freight	Pass.
DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY				DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY
NO. 14	NO. 22	NO. 38				NO. 41	NO. 21	NO. 15
7:00 pm	7:30 am	9:00 am	0	Lv. Aberdeen	45	6:50 pm	3:50 pm	8:30 am
f 7:19 pm	s 8:15 am	f 9:16 am	5	Ashley Heights	49	f 6:35 pm	f 3:20 pm	f 8:12 am
s 7:28 pm	f 8:36 am	s 9:26 am	9	Sanitorium	36	f 6:26 pm	f 3:05 pm	f 8:02 am
f 7:34 pm	f 8:39 am	f 9:30 am	10	Montrose	35	f 6:22 pm	f 3:00 pm	f 7:58 am
f 7:46 pm	f 8:51 am	f 9:38 am	13	Timberland	32	f 6:13 pm	f 2:45 pm	f 7:48 am
8:00 pm	s 9:55 am	s 9:53 am	19	Rae ford	26	s 6:00 pm	s 2:25 pm	7:30 am
	s 10:13 am	f 10:08 am	24	Dundarrach	21	f 5:45 pm	s 1:25 pm
	f 10:21 am	f 10:15 am	26	Arabia	19	f 5:39 pm	f 1:15 pm
	s 10:40 am	s 10:29 am	30	Rockfish	15	s 5:25 pm	s 12:55 pm
	f 10:43 am	f 10:31 am	31	Hope Hills Jct.	14	f 5:22 pm	f 12:50 pm
	f 10:53 am	f 10:40 am	34	Fenix	11	f 5:13 pm	f 12:38 pm
	s 11:00 am	s 10:46 am	36	Clifton	9	s 5:08 pm	s 12:33 pm
	f 11:12 am	f 10:56 am	40	Skibo	5	f 5:00 pm	f 12:18 pm
	f 11:19 am	f 11:02 am	42	Owens	3	f 4:55 pm	f 12:11 pm
	11:30 am	s 11:15 am	45	Ar. Fayetteville Lv.	0	s 4:45 pm	12 noon

East and North bound trains have right of track over West and South bound trains of the same class.
All trains stop on flag at Lake field.

Montreat Normal School

Accredited High School and Normal
Courses. Household Economics and two years of college work in addition. Best advantages at least cost. Ideal location and surroundings. A limited number of rooms yet available. Apply promptly if you wish to enter.

Montreat Normal School

Montreat : : North Carolina

YOU ARE INVITED

To write for your copy of the handsomely illustrated catalogue of the Standard Piano Club. It will show how you can club your order with those of 99 other subscribers and thereby secure the lowest possible price on a high-grade piano or player-piano, without incurring any obligation expect for your own instrument. You will be surprised and delighted with the big saving in price and especially with the superior tone, action, design, finish and construction of the instruments. Old Club Members unanimously indorse the plan and express their warm appreciation of the service rendered by the Club. We have printed hundreds of their letters in a booklet, a copy of which will be sent you with the catalogue. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Standard Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

It is well in all the trials of life to hope for the best, but to be prepared for the worst.

Piles are usually due to straining when constipated.

Nujol being a lubricant keeps the food waste soft and therefore prevents straining. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it not only soothes the suffering of piles but relieves the irritation, brings comfort and helps to remove them.

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe. Try it today.

Nujol
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
A LUBRICANT—NOT A LAXATIVE

Sparkles

Those Editors

An amateur authoress who had submitted a story to a magazine, after waiting several weeks without hearing from the editor concerning it, finally sent him a note requesting an early decision, as she stated she had other irons in the fire.

Shortly after came the editor's reply: "Dear Madam: I have read your story, and I should advise you to put it with the other irons."—Exchange, East and West.

"John, what on earth induced you to buy a house in this forsaken district?"

"One of the best men in the business."—Hamilton Royal Gaboon.

Visitor—"Who is that raving maniac waving the Turkish flag?"

Sanatorium Attendant—"That is a very sad case. The poor chap is a map publisher who had just finished revising the map of Europe when this new war broke out."—New York Sun.

Free Gratis, for Nothing

"Why have Scotsmen a sense of humor?"

"Because it's a gift."—London Post.

The Alibi

The new maid called her mistress agitatedly. "I jes' wanted yo'all t' know," she said, jointing to a statuette of Venus, "befoe' I stahts hyar, I didn't knock de arms of'n dis hyar monument. Hit was dataway when I come in!"—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Teacher—"When was the revival of learning?"

Pupil—"Just before exams."—Phreno Cosmian.

Customs Inspector—"What have you to declare?"

Returning Passenger—"I declare that I am glad to get back."—Judge.

TYPEWRITERS

New and Rebuilt
For Sale, Rent or Exchange

S. H. WILEY

Salisbury, N. C.

On your money. It is worth it—why not get it? 6% is 100% more than 3%, and 50% more than 4%. 16 years of Safety and Service.

SECURITY SAVINGS AND LOAN CO.
Assets $1,239,951.22
F. W. DIXON, President - Birmingham, Ala.

The STIEFF TONE

Is famous with three generations of music lovers. It has never been duplicated. It is the expression of a passion for perfection that has actuated three generations of piano makers.

Chas. M. Stieff, Inc.,
Charlotte, N. C.
Please send catalogue and prices of Pianos.
Name _____
Address _____

CHAS. M. STIEFF, Inc.
Charlotte, N. C.

STIEFF PETIT GRAND
The smallest Grand Piano made that embodies all the essential qualities of the Concert Grand.

THE PREACHER

teacher, elder or deacon who spends all or gives it away is a dangerous leader in any community. Get rid of him and employ a practical man, righteous, but withal, honest to his wife and children.

THE MUTUAL BUILDING AND LOAN

is the best savings institution in this country. You can carry shares no matter where you live, but you're not doing it, yet you've got to die just as the day laborer. Who's to take care of your wife and little ones for whom you and you alone are responsible?

THINK IT OVER, BROTHER

The July series is just starting. Get in today.

JNO. R. PHARR,
President

E. L. KEESLER,
Secretary-Treasurer
Charlotte, N. C.

Opportunity Never Seeks

The man or woman without money. That is why you should save and steadily build up an account in a strong bank where the money will be ready for you when the right opportunity comes along. Your account will be welcome here.

"National Bank Safety for Savings"

Charlotte National Bank
Resources Over $5,000,000.00

BELK BROS. CO.

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

We call your attention to our HOME FURNISHING DEPARTMENT

Just Received One Car Load of

Genuine Japanese Grass Rugs

All colors---browns, blues, greens. Borders to match colorings

18 x 36 Inches	-----	$.29
27 x 54 Inches	-----	.69
36 x 72 Inches	-----	.98
4 1/2 x 7 Feet	-----	1.69
6 x 9 Feet	-----	2.95
8 x 10 Feet	-----	3.98
9 x 12 Feet	-----	4.75

Let us estimate on your Shades, Floor Coverings, and Draperies.

Will send a man to see you.
Gold Seal Congoleum
by the yard or the Rug

We make Window Shades any size. Send us your measurements and we do the rest.

We carry a big line of Luggage. All kinds—See us on Trunks, Suit Cases, Hand Bags.

We appreciate your patronage and guarantee every article we sell. Any business entrusted to us will have our prompt attention.

WE SOLICIT MAIL ORDERS

Belk Bros. Co., Charlotte, N. C.

W. T. McCoy & Co. announce the arrival of their first shipments of the advanced styles and designs in the new Fall Living Room, Hall and Dining Room Furniture. The new Fall goods are not only strikingly handsome, but are very moderate in price. A visit to this store will please you.

W. T. McCOY & CO.

211 South Tryon St.

Charlotte, N. C.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

A Religious Newspaper for the Family

Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.

Rev. J. R. Bridges, D.D., Charlotte, N. C., Editor

Rev. R. C. Reed, D.D., Columbia, S. C., Editor

Vol. LXIV

CHARLOTTE, N. C., AUGUST 15, 1923

No. 33

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $3.00 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE
REV. W. L. BOGGS, Circulation Manager

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
BY PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY,
A. M. GRAY, Treasurer.

ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858.

Entered at the Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as second class matter

A Religious Newspaper for the Family, Devoted to the Interest of Christ's Kingdom as Represented by the Southern Presbyterian Church.

Address all communications, and make all checks payable, to the company, and not to individuals.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The label on the paper gives the date to which subscription is paid.

When change of address is desired, give the old and new address. When the date of the label is behind the date of this issue of the paper the label is a reminder that the subscription price is past due. When the date of the label is in advance of the date of this issue it is a receipt for the last subscription paid.

In accordance with the wishes of our patrons, the paper is discontinued only upon the written request of the subscriber. Arrearages must be settled in full at the same time, at the rate of three dollars a year. No charge is made for the insertion of marriage and obituary notices of fifty words or less. For all over fifty words remit at the rate of one cent a word. Correspondents are requested to give the post office address of married couples when marriage notices are sent.

News items should be in our hands by Monday morning in order to insure their publication in the current issue.

CHANGE OF ADVERTISEMENTS

Advertisers who want their advertisements changed or want to insert new advertisements will please bring their copy to this office by Saturday. It is impossible for us to insert new advertisements or make changes for the current week at a later date.

Advertising rates furnished on application. The size and character of this paper indicate the size and character of its constituency. For reputable advertising there is no better medium for North and South Carolina and the most prosperous section of the South.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

EDITORIAL—

Women on Executive Committees ----- 1
 "The Kinloch Memorial Home" ----- 1
 The Davidson Campaign ----- 2
 The Bequest to Thornwell Orphanage ---- 2
 Root and Fruit ----- 2
 The Death of Rev. James Power Smith, D.D. 2

CONTRIBUTED—

Florida—Its Development Materially and Religiously—By Rev. John G. Anderson... 3
 Preparation of Candidates for the Ministry Quiet Talks on the Simple Essentials—By S. D. Gordon ----- 3
 Miss Jitchi Dende, the New Missionary at Takamatsu, Japan—By Rev. J. W. Moore, D.D. ----- 4
 Our Financial Plans—By O. M. Anderson... 4
 Confronting Young Men With the Living Christ by John R. Mott—By Mrs. Richard B. Willis ----- 4
 An Unfortunate and Faulty Translation—By Rev. A. W. Pitzer ----- 5
 Ministerial Over-Busy-Ness—By Rev. G. Johnstone Jeffrey, D.D. ----- 5
 S. S. Rally Day, October 7th—By Gilbert Glass, D.D. ----- 5
 The Tabernacle—By Rev. Paul L. Berman -- 10
 What Next?—By Rev. Robt. Adams, D.D. --- 12

DEPARTMENTS—

Devotional ----- 2
 Woman's Auxiliary ----- 6
 Sunday School—By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D. --- 7
 Christian Endeavor—By Rev. J. G. Garth --- 7
 Church News ----- 8, 9, 10
 News of the Week ----- 10
 Children ----- 11
 Marriages and Deaths ----- 12
 Advertisements, Etc. ----- 12, 16

TREASURERS OF BENEVOLENT CAUSES

Foreign Missions—Edwin F. Willis, 154 Fifth Ave., N. Nashville, Tenn.
 Home Missions, General Assembly's—A. N. Sharpe, 1522 Hurt Building, Atlanta, Ga.
 General Assembly's Training School—Geo. W. Call, Richmond, Va., Union Bank.
 Bible Cause—Gilbert Darlington, Bible House, N. Y.
 Christian Education and Ministerial Relief—John Stites, Fifth and Market Sts., Louisville, Ky.
 Publication and Sabbath School Work—R. E. Magill, 618 N. Sixth St., Richmond, Va.
 The General Assembly's Equipment Fund—T. R. Preston, Treasurer, Chattanooga, Tenn.

EDITORIAL

WOMEN ON EXECUTIVE COMMITTEES

The last Assembly directed all its Executive Committees to add women to its membership. We have a strong conviction that in doing this, the Assembly ordered its Executive Committees to violate a fundamental law of our Church. What is an executive committee? The old undivided Church defined a Commission as an Executive Committee. In Baird's Digest, page 233. This definition has been reproduced in our Book of Church Order: "Commissions differ from ordinary committees in this, that while the Committee is appointed simply to examine, consider, and report, the Commission is authorized to deliberate upon and consider the business referred to it, subject, however, to the review of the Court appointing it." In saying that "Commissions differ from ordinary Committees" it is plainly implied that the Commission is an extraordinary Committee. But we have no extraordinary Committees except Executive Committees. Moreover the functions assigned to the commission are precisely those performed by an Executive Committee, "to deliberate upon and conclude the business referred to it." It may be further noted that our Book of Church Order in paragraph 95 is manifestly identifying Executive Committees with Commissions when it says "the General Assembly shall have power to commit the various interests pertaining to the general work of Evangelization to one or more commissions." This is just what the Assembly does, commits "the various interests pertaining to the general work of Evangelization to one or more commissions," but we call these Commissions Executive Committees.

The question now arises, what is the relation of a Commission to the Court appointing it? Is the Commission a body created by the Court to whom it delegates its own powers? Or is it merely the hand or arm of the Court through which it is exercising its undelimited powers? Dr. Thornwell contended most earnestly that no Court of the Church could delegate its powers. Its powers being derived from Christ could not be transferred, but must be exercised exclusively by the Court. When it appointed a commission it simply created an agency through which the court itself continued to act. While we do not follow Thornwell blindly, we give great weight to his views in matters of Church polity, for the reason that he gave more earnest and persistent study to the fundamental principles of Church administration than any of our illustrious leaders. Touching the matter in hand, we think he was certainly right to this extent that no Court of the Church would have a right to create a Commission consisting of those who were not eligible to membership in the Court. In other words, no Court of the Church has a right to do the work committed to it through any other than officers of the Church. We were amazed at the statement adopted by the last Assembly as an answer to the protest entered by certain brethren to the appointment of women on its Executive Committees. The statement was to the effect that the Assembly might appoint anybody on its Executive Committees. If this be true then the Assembly might constitute its Executive Committees exclusively of private members of the Church. It might constitute them exclusively of women. It has no principle to guide it. Should it ever seem expedient to some progressive Assembly it might elect a woman as Executive Secretary of Foreign Missions. Why not? If she is eligible to membership, she is eligible to all the rights and prerogatives of any other member.

Why should our churches elect officers, if our Church Courts may devolve the administrative work of the Church on the private members? It has ever been considered a distinguishing virtue of Presbyterian polity that it selects its saintliest and wisest men and ordains them to office, requiring of them at the same time subscription to the doctrinal standards of the Church. The object is to put the administration of the affairs of the Kingdom of Christ in the safest and most efficient hands. Manifestly this object is defeated if the courts may pass over the heads of the officers of the Church, and entrust its most important interests to the care of private members.

Note what our Executive Committee of Foreign Missions is charged with: "The Executive Committee, in virtue of the authority conferred upon it by the General Assembly, directs and superintends the Foreign Missionary work in all its departments. The Committee shall appoint missionaries, designate their field of labor, and determine their particular employment." If these are not Episcopal functions, then our eyes are indeed holden. If women may discharge these functions, then Paul was a back number when he said: "I suffer not a woman to exercise dominion over a man."

What should our Executive Committees do in the way of carrying out the command of the last Assembly? They should appoint women as advisory members of the committees. They should not permit them to vote. The Assembly cannot make law by its ipsi dixit. If it wishes its women to exercise official functions, it should take the proper steps to amend its law, and open to them the door into the eldership. Of course, it cannot amend the Scriptures, but if it is going to ignore them, it might do this according to the formal prescriptions of its Book of Church Order.

"THE KINLOCH MEMORIAL HOME"

This beautiful charity is a memorial to a beloved mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Caldwell Kinloch. It has been deeded to the Presbyterian Home Society, of Charleston, S. C.

It's purpose is to provide a place of rest for a short period to Presbyterian women and children, or a permanent home to those who need one. Part of the Home is for Presbyterian missionaries, and families on a furlough who need a permanent resting place.

No one suffering from any infectious disease will be eligible, and anyone received must have a certificate to that effect from a doctor.

Summerville, South Carolina, where this home is located is in the midst of a forest of "longleaf" pines, about 20 miles from Charleston, with cement roadway. It has a most healthful climate, its sunny, pine-scented air soft and balmy possessing a tonic quality; it is a noted winter resort, a number of northern tourists visit the "Pine Forest Inn" (a modern hotel) ever year.

Camellias bloom in the gardens all winter; in the early spring the Wisteria climbs to the tops of the tallest pines, Azalias, Yellow Jasmine, Lillies, and wild Honey Suckle make the air fragrant and the country colorful.

The summer nights are cool and many Charlestonians spend their summers in Summerville.

It is convenient to Charleston trains running daily.

It has telegraph and telephone connections, the town is lighted by electricity.

THE DAVIDSON CAMPAIGN

Whatever concerns Davidson College is a matter of deep interest, not only to this immediate section, but to the entire Synod.

The sum of six hundred thousand dollars is a large amount, and it is bound to take time and labor to collect it.

Mr. Malcolm Lockhart who has been conducting the campaign in this Synod has reason to be proud of what he has done, and the Presbyterians of North Carolina also have reason to be proud of their record in contributing to educational work.

For years our schools, both for males and females have been canvassing the various sections of the Synod.

Since 1900, when the present building of the old Presbyterian College for Women was planned, the Presbyterians of Charlotte have been canvassed intermittently.

One canvass was scarcely concluded, before another one was begun, owing to the pressing needs of the school.

Then when it was made Queens College and moved to its present magnificent site, another appeal was made.

To all of these appeals a liberal response was made, but, like the horseleech's daughters, the cry was ever, Give, give.

We rejoice to learn that the Davidson Campaign is now past the half-million dollar mark, and is now on the last hundred thousand dollars.

Over one-half of the Counties in the Synod have raised their quotas, and it is now hoped that individual Presbyterians in other Counties will respond when called upon.

The manager hopes that by October 1st the campaign in this Synod will be successfully completed.

Of course the last lap in the journey is the hardest, but if we know the Presbyterianism of this State, it is not going to fail.

THE BEQUEST TO THORNWELL ORPHANAGE

There is no charity that appeals to men with a strength that controls the pocket-book more than the asylums for the orphans.

In this State we have two large orphanages, that at Barium Springs, and that at Thomasville, the latter under the control of our Baptist brethren.

There is the one at Oxford, supported by the Masons, all of which are doing excellent work, and each of which from time to time, has been handsomely remembered in wills.

The Thornwell Orphanage at Clinton, S. C., that imperishable monument to Dr. Jacobs, is one of the largest in our Church, and for years it has done most excellent work. Under the leadership of Dr. Ross Lynn, it is now expanding its work.

Mrs. Nettie Fowle McCormick, the widow of Cyrus H. McCormick, inventor of the reaper, in her will recently left Thornwell Orphanage the handsome sum of $50,000.

We rejoice with Dr. Lynn, and almost envy him the joy that he will have in this great help in his blessed work.

Mrs. McCormick, besides generous gifts to other institutions, such as an unpaid balance of $20,000 of a $100,000 gift to Princeton University; $100,000 and $150,000 to the International Committee Young Men's Christian Association for pensions and foreign work respectively; $10,000 to Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va.; $3,500 to Allahabad Agricultural Institute (India); and $7,500 to the Stanley McCormick School, Burnsville, N. C.

In 1831 Cyrus McCormick, of Rockbridge County, Va., invented the first reaping machine, and in 1847 he removed to Chicago and established there the works now known as the McCormick Harvesting Machine Company.

The donations to education by this Christian elder have been many, especially along the line of ministerial education. The McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago, and Union Theological Seminary of Virginia have been the principal beneficiaries, though other institutions such as orphanages, as in this instance, have been also sharers of these benefactions.

ROOT AND FRUIT

At present a patient public is hearing many sermons on Religious Toleration.

It is evidently feared that the defenders of sound doctrine in these days of rebellion against old doctrines, may, in their zeal for the truth, substitute doctrine for deeds in the Christian life. The pastor of one of our large churches recently preached a most readable sermon on this subject, and so pleased was his session that they, following the example of the Presbyterian Church to which Dr. Fosdick is preaching, have undertaken to send out this sermon in pamphlet form. We have rarely read a more charming piece of sermonic literature.

It is true that alliterative sentences and brilliant assertions take the place of logic, but that makes little difference with the average hearer.

Among the many catchy sentences there is one that assures us that our Lord said "Ye shall know them by their fruits." He never said that the believers are to be known by their roots.

On the surface that seems plain and true, and we can imagine how the average hearer was impressed by this truism.

However bright it may sound, and however pleasing to the ear, when tested by hard experience, it will break down.

Our dear brother should follow our example, and buy a peach orchard, only to find when the time of fruitage drew near, that condition of the root had an important bearing upon the fruit, both in quantity and quality. The borers infested the roots and the fruit was ruined.

Today an impecunious editor mourns the loss of the cash invested, as the trees finally died, because no attention was paid to the roots in time to remedy the evil.

When he sees doctrines of the evangelical faith being denied one after another, he remembers his experience with the peach borer, and therefore has no patience with the pleas that we must let error alone, lest some root of bitterness spring up among us.

THE DEATH OF REV. JAMES POWER SMITH, D.D.

This dear friend and gallant soldier of Christ, whether in the ministry or in the tented field, after a long and useful life of 86 years, has gone to his well-earned rest.

He was born in Athens, Ohio, July 4, 1837. He was a graduate of Jefferson College, and of Union Theological Seminary, Virginia, of the class of 58-59. He was licensed by West Hanover Presbytery December 29, 1863 and on October 13, 1866 he was ordained by Montgomery Presbytery. He was pastor at Roanoke, Va., 1866-69, and at Fredericksburg, Va., 1869-92.

He was the editor of the "Central Presbyterian" for many years, and for 50 years he was the Stated Clerk of the Synod of Virginia. His war record was a fine one. He was on Stonewall Jackson's staff, and was with him at his death, and was exposed to the same fire that struck him down. He contributed many readable articles on the War between the States, and delighted to mingle among the old soldiers at the various "Soldiers' Homes."

We have known and loved him for many years, yet we rejoice that "after life's fitful fever he sleeps well."

VICTORY OVER FOES WITHIN

Have you gained the victory over the foes within you? There is jealousy. Would you overcome that? If you are jealous of any one, do him some good turn. There is a fable told of an eagle which was jealous of another that could out-fly him. He saw a sportsman one day, and said to him, "I wish you would bring down that eagle." The sportsman replied that he would if he only had some feathers to put into his arrow. So the eagle pulled one out of his wing. The arrow was shot, but did not quite reach the rival eagle; it was flying too high. The envious eagle kept pulling out more feathers until he lost so many that he couldn't fly, and then the sportsman turned around and killed him. My friend, if you are jealous, the only man you can hurt is yourself.—D. L. Moody.

Devotional

CAN NATURES BE CHANGED?

Can a man's nature every really be changed? Can we get a totally different nature from that with which we were born? Human science and reasoning say no. In the animal world, it is hopeless to attempt to turn a hog into a sheep. As a Bible teacher has said, "You may wash it and train it all you please, but you will find it growing bristles instead of wool." Yet changes which are impossible God delights to work! When our Lord Jesus said, "With men this is impossible; but with God all things are possible," he was answering the astonished question of His disciples, "Who then can be saved?" The Bible teacher quoted has given the answer to our question: "The only way I know to turn a hog into a sheep is to have it born again." Exactly that second birth, that new birth, is what God accomplishes when those who "were by nature children of wrath" turn to Christ as Saviour. Then it is that "God, who giveth life to the dead, and calleth the things that are not as though they were," works the miracle of changing those who were "hogs" into "sheep," making them "partakers of the divine nature." And these born-again sheep are then eternally in the keeping of a shepherd who says "I am the Good Shepherd: the Good Shepherd layeth down his life for the sheep."—S. S. Times.

MODERNISM

The Modernists are fond of telling us that modernism is the result of intellectual progress, "The ripe fruit of present-day thinking." The Unitarians, however, say it is just what they "have been teaching all along." The Jewish writers say that it is their "ancient philosophy reshaped." The Jewish Chronicle says that its teachings are "a reaction to Judaism," and that "the place for its exponents is in the synagogue."—United Presbyterian.

There are pillows wet by sobs; there are noble hearts broken in the silence whence comes no cry of protest; there are gentle, sensitive natures sacred and warped; there are old-time friends separated and walking their lonely ways with hope dead and memory but a pang; there are cruel misunderstandings that make all life look dark—these are but a few of the sorrows that come from the crimes of the tongue.—William George Jordan.

THE MAN TO THE PROTOPLASM

O prehistoric jelly-fish, beside primeval sea,
O slithery, slimy, tiny speck, you're not the sire of me!

Too bad to scorn relationship; but this is why
I must,—
For you were merely a damp spot, and I was made of dust.

Of mold of flower and forest, and powder of giant rocks,
Of star-dust sifted down through space, from ancient planet-shocks,
Of bone-dust and brain-dust, from earth and air and sea,
Yes—even protozoan-dust, in the body that is me!

The Potter took a handful, and formed it wondrously,
With beauty YOU could never dream—nor your posterity!

And when He'd shaped that lump of clay, O small amoeba wet!
He breathed in me the breath of life. And I am breathing yet.

He hailed me with the word of life,—“Rise up, thou grain of dust!”
I sprang erect,—“Ah, Father! God! I will not fear, but trust!”

Though, marvelous! this shape of clay is brother to the clod,
The hand that made me is divine; my being,
very God.

When I, at last, shall see His face, if dust return to dust,
What care I? But you, jelly-fish, I scorn you,
as I must!
—S. H.

FLORIDA—ITS DEVELOPMENT, MATERIALLY AND RELIGIOUSLY

(This address was delivered at the last meeting of St. John's Presbytery, by Rev. John G. Anderson, and its publication was requested by the Presbytery).

Very little is known of the wonderful development of Florida along all lines. It is the purpose of this article to bring to the attention of the Church some of the wonderful facts in connection with the life of this great State.

Geographically

According to one survey, it is the Texas of the East Mississippi country, being the largest state east of the Mississippi River. It is 500 miles from north to south and 400 miles from east to west. It is as big as all New England, containing thirty-five million acres, and, like gravity, it attracts in direct proportion to the mass.

Development

The increase in population of the state from 1910 to 1920, according to the National Census, was 36 per cent. This was just twice as fast as the average of the country at large and the highest percentage of increase of any state in the union. Tourists and visitors, from multimillionaires to "tin-canners," number more than a million a year. It is fast becoming the playground of the country. The building program runs between 75 and 100 millions a year. Manufacturing products run between 15 and 20 millions a year. Land values have increased 130 per cent in 10 years, and the crop values 121 per cent in six years. In the same length of time, live stock values increased 150 per cent. Bank deposits have run up 205 per cent in five years.

Florida First

Florida stands first among the states of the union in the diversity of food products, in the value per acre of farm products, although not more than one acre in twenty is in cultivation. It stands first also in the number of growing days, in the production of phosphate, naval stores, fuller's earth, fishing industries, muck soils, coast line, and recently has surpassed California in the production of citrus fruits, and the development in this last line is growing with greater rapidity than ever before in the history of the state. It has surpassed all of the Southern States in road building. There is no state in the union that offers such rich rewards for industry as Florida, and immigrants, from all over the land, are flocking to it. These are not the scum of Europe and Asia, but to a great extent are our own people, speaking our own language, familiar with our institutions, in sympathy with our civilization and know much of our religious ideals and customs. During the next decade, we can safely count upon a 50 per cent increase in our population. This is a conservative estimate and, when realized, would give us by 1930 five hundred thousand additional people for the churches to care for. Of this number, at least 50,000 would almost certainly look to the Presbyterian Church for their religious life and activities.

Florida has been called the "Trucker's Opportunity, Tourists' Land of Promise, Fisherman's Galilee, Film Maker's Dream, Farmer's Three Chances a Year, Lumberman's Last Stand, Dairyman's Flowing Bowl, Home Seeker's Goal, Sportsman's and Yachtsman's Paradise, Manufacturer's Future, and Citizen's Cornucopia."

And in these is no mention of Florida's chief product, the citrus industry. After a recent visit, Roger Babson, the world's greatest statistician and economist, said that Florida was destined to be the greatest productive state in the United States.

Religion

As roseate as all this is, it has not kept pace with the work of our church in Florida.

The Synod of Florida

The Synod of Florida has grown in church membership during the decade 1912-1922, from 6,958 to 13,138. Her membership now surpasses the Synods of Arkansas, Louisiana and Oklahoma. In Sunday School membership, during that time, Florida has grown from 5,805 to 12,629, surpassing the Synods mentioned above. There were added to the church in the Synod of Florida during 1922 one profession of faith and by letter 1,989. Ten years ago, the numbers added were 778. In numbers added to the church during 1922, Florida surpassed the Synods of Missouri, Oklahoma, Tennessee and West Virginia.

Young People's Societies

There are 1,755 members in the Young People's Societies in the Synod. This exceeds those in the Synods of Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, Oklahoma, and Tennessee. The contributions of these Young People's Societies, which is $3,341, exceeds those of Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, Oklahoma, Tennessee and West Virginia.

Women's Societies

The total membership of Women's Societies is 3,777, exceeding the membership of Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Mississippi, and West Virginia. The contributions from these societies was 39,196, surpassing the Synods of Kentucky, Louisiana, and Oklahoma.

Contributed

Benevolences

Ten years ago, the Synod contributed $25,486 to benevolences. Last year it gave $105,844, which is an increase of 315 per cent. Total contributions of the Synod have grown in the last 10 years from $113,082 to $407,008, putting the Synod ahead of the Synods of Arkansas, Louisiana, and Oklahoma.

Presbytery of St. Johns

As inspiring as is the record of the Synod of Florida, that of the Presbytery of St. Johns is far better. In membership, St. Johns Presbytery in 1912, with 2,311, stood 61st on the roll. In 1922, with a membership of 5,586, it stood 27th, having passed by 34 Presbyteries. In 1912, with a Sunday School membership of 2,217, it stood 46th on the list. Ten years later, with a membership of 5,306, it stood 22nd on the list, having passed by 24 Presbyteries and tied with Nashville Presbytery. In 1912, St. Johns contributed $8,970 to benevolences, standing 54th on the list. Ten years later, it gave $48,816, making it stand 32nd on the list, passing by 22 Presbyteries. The total contributions of St. Johns Presbytery for 1912 were $46,062, standing 36th. Ten years later, it contributed $205,554, making it 16th on the list, passing by 20 Presbyteries. In total contributions in 1922, St. Johns Presbytery exceeded every Presbytery in the Synods of Arkansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri and South Carolina; every Presbytery in Georgia, except Atlanta; in Tennessee, except Memphis; in Texas, except Dallas; in West Virginia, except Kanawha; in Appalachia, except Abingdon; and in Alabama, except North Alabama. St. Johns Presbytery contributed to all causes last year nearly three times as much as the entire Synod of Oklahoma. The per capita contributions of the Presbytery were $36.75, which were exceeded in the General Assembly only by those of the Presbytery of Wilmington. There were added in the Presbytery by examination and by letter 979, in which very important matter, it stands eighth on the list of the Presbyteries.

St. Johns and the General Assembly

The growth in membership in St. Johns Presbytery in 10 years was 140 per cent; in the General Assembly, it was 41 per cent. The growth in Sunday School enrollment in St. Johns Presbytery was 140 per cent. In the General Assembly, it was 60 per cent. The growth in benevolences in St. Johns Presbytery in 10 years was 440 per cent; in the General Assembly, it was 150 per cent. The total growth in the gifts in St. Johns Presbytery in 10 years was 345 per cent; in the General Assembly, it was 175 per cent. If the General Assembly had kept pace with St. Johns Presbytery, our membership at last report would have been 702,826, instead of 411,854; our Sunday School enrollment would have been 589,190, instead of 396,850; the benevolence would have been $6,676,390, instead of $3,428,882; the total contributions would have been $18,516,410, instead of $11,743,725.

The Object of These Statements and These Comparisons

The object of these statements and these comparisons is not to boast but to call attention to Florida as a field for mission work. There will be, in the next 10 years, as we have stated above, an increase of perhaps a half million people, and the Church in Florida is absolutely incapable of caring for this condition without outside aid. Conservatively we will have twice the opportunity that we have had in the past 10, and we have given the record of the past 10 to show what returns may be expected from the investment of church funds in mission work in Florida. We challenge that any Synod can show anything like returns for the investment of Home Mission money in the past.

We feel assured that we can promise, with God's blessing, twice the results for the next 10 years that we have secured in the past 10. If there is another Synod that can do better, let that Synod have the money. If not, why not Florida?

PREPARATION OF CANDIDATES FOR THE MINISTRY

The following paper, calling the attention of our Church courts to certain weaknesses in our present system of preparing Candidates for the Ministry for their great task, was adopted by the Presbyterian Educational Association of the South, at Montreat, July 26th.

Mention has been made in an article of earlier date on that meeting, that the colleges and seminaries are earnestly on their side of the task—the best curricula of studies—but this paper calls attention to the side of control of the task by our courts—to whose careful attention it is earnestly commended:

The Educational Association of Schools and Colleges of the Southern Presbyterian Church at its meeting at

Montreat in July, 1923, at which were also present professors from all our theological seminaries, took the following action:

This association would respectfully and earnestly urge upon the Committees of Christian Education and Ministerial Relief in our Presbyteries a more careful, constant, and sympathetic supervision of Candidates for the Ministry, and especially in the following respects:

1. To insist on the candidate's pursuing and completing the full college and seminary courses.

2. To require of a candidate a letter at least every quarter to the chairman of the committee giving a report of his work and progress in study.

3. To consider the propriety of adopting the principle that a candidate who marries without consent of the Presbyterial committee before completing his college and seminary courses will ordinarily not be recommended for aid to the Assembly's Executive Committee and that exceptions be allowed for only unusual and imperative reasons.

D. S. Gage, Secretary.

QUIET TALKS ON THE SIMPLE ESSENTIALS

By Mr. S. D. Gordon, Bijou Theatre, Boardwalk, Atlantic City, N. J., July-August, 1923. Auspices Atlantic City Council of Churches

No. 7—The Bad Break

There's a Break everywhere you look, a bad break. It is in nature. The geologist finds it in the earth's crust, and the astronomer in the upper blue. The biologist finds it in animal life.

The chemist constantly guards against the death element in the gases. The orchardist fights it by spraying. The farmer must overcome it to get a crop, and the stock-breeder vigorous young. The weather expert never knows when and where a sudden wild storm may bring destruction and death.

That break is in human life, too. Here it's a moral break. The banker and merchant think of it as they engage clerks, and plan surety bonds against somebody's failure to keep faith. The thoughtful parent and the wise teacher guard against it for the young people. We are all increasingly on our guard in a crowd. Even the mother is conscious of a something serious to be reckoned with in the will of her growing babe.

There's a break lurking everywhere. The break in nature grows out of the break in man. For man is the underlord of creation. He affects it. The two intertwine.

Away back that break began with God. Man was made free. He was like God in being free to think and act as he chose. There was the chance of a break. He could choose right, or wrong. He chose. He made a bad choice. That was the beginning of the break.

Do you remember the old garden story? The garden was full of fruit trees. Man was to eat freely of all he chose. Then God said, "The real things are the heart things. Let us keep in touch, real heart touch. It depends on you, your choosing to have it so."

"So, we'll call this tree here the tree of choice. I ask you not to eat of it, simply because I want you to stay in touch with me by choosing to. You may eat of it, of course, if you choose to."

"But, please, I ask you not to. I want your love because you choose to love, to stay in touch, and this tree is your opportunity." There was the chance for the break, in the man's power to choose as he pleased. And there the break came.

Mark keenly, that the break began with the man. It is what he did that made the break. There was no break on God's part, except the break in His heart as He saw the man break away. The old friendship was broken. It was broken by the man.

And we've all caught the break habit. It's contagious. It's easy to break. It's hard to break away from the break habit. Yet—yet, there is never an actual break with God except as each man makes it.

It's not a matter of that first man's break, even though he started the down-grade. It's each man's own break or not-break that matters. That, only that, but all of that. Every man stands on his own feet.

The old-fashioned word is sin. A new word sharpens the meaning. The break of sin is not merely a misfortune. It's not a thing to be cured by the surgeon's knife, nor the psychologist's formula. Else things could be fixed up by providing surgeons and psychologists enough.

It isn't merely a personal twist this way or that, more or less accidental, or incidental. No, at the core, sin is in the choosing power. It's a preferring one's own way to God's. The root of that break is in the will.

There never has been any break on God's part toward man. That should be under-cored black. His only break is with man's break. For the thing itself, that breaking choice, that was bad. That hurt man.

A hell of suffering was packed in that. For man's sake that must be fought. The snake in man's bosom must be caught and slain lest it sting the man's life clean out.

God's feeling toward man has never changed, not by as much as half the batting of your eye-lid. But he hates the break bitterly. That's why The Man came to let know how God feels both about us, and about the break.

That's why the extreme thing of dying was done, to break our hearts with the love of it, and rid us of the results of the break, and to put a new power into us.

So the break is mended up by our new choice. And a new tree of choice will grow in our garden. And he and we will meet in heart touch again under the Tree of Choice, which will become a tree of life, never-ending fruitful fragrant life.

What a princely man is that has such power of choice. What a princely power that choosing power is that can break the plan of God. And—and, can make us friends again with such a God.

What a love it is in that Man's heart, and the Father's, to go to such extremes to mend that break. What a break, a bad break, that was that the Man did such an extreme thing to fix up.

An old Western stage-driver cried out in his delirium, "I'm on the down-grade. And I can't reach the brakes." Things seemed at their worst to him. That bad Break really puts things at their worst.

No. 8—Falling Up? Or Down.

MISS JITCHI DENDO, THE NEW MISSIONARY AT TAKAMATSU, JAPAN

By Rev. J. W. Moore, D.D.

I wonder if you will not be somewhat interested in the accomplishments of this newest addition to our missionary force. No, you will not find her name in any list of Japan missionaries. She is one of the quiet, unobtrusive kind of workers that simply "hits the grit" and says very little about it; though she must be pardoned for doing a little puffing and blowing occasionally. Strange to say, she was never appointed to the foreign field by our Executive Committee, and she arrived in Japan with no guarantees that her salary and traveling expenses would be paid. She is here as the result of some very efficient work by certain young ladies of Bluefield, West Virginia; and the entire personnel of Takamatsu Station would welcome an opportunity of expressing its sincere thanks to each of these young ladies in person.

You are thinking that she has a very strange name for a missionary; but it is a name that means much to a "purely evangelistic" station like ours—Jitchi Dendo is the Japanese for "practical evangelism." Certainly we could have no greater material aid in our task of evangelizing this thickly populated province of Kagawa than this unassuming but dependable Ford.

She never hesitates in her course, no matter how rough or how muddy the road may be—the only evidence she gives of any emotion at all is a slightly louder purring sound as she digs right on to the next school to be visited or the next place where a meeting is to be held. There seems to be no limit to her capacity for work and her good nature. She thinks nothing of carrying five co-workers with her, and even goes about with a folding baby organ strapped on one side. Thus far she has cost the Mission nothing for "medical bills;" the process of adjustment to the trying climatic conditions of Japan has not affected her health in the least. Rev. C. D. Fulton and I found her in Tokyo last February; and as he was the younger and more skilled, he brought her all the way to Takamatsu, for it was very important that no inexperienced hand should spoil her usefulness at the beginning. She made the trip over high mountains and almost impassable roads without a single accident, though in passing under an overhanging tree-top that looked like a few harmless leaves, she did cut a small breathing-space in her bonnet. This is her only accident thus far, although she has been twice misled into getting into a shallow ditch, coming out both times with no bad humor and no reproaches for those who were responsible for her ill luck.

No one knows better than a missionary what it means to reach the absolute limit of physical weariness, and then to keep on working; but Miss Jitchi Dendo seems to be absolutely tireless, absolutely incapable of being even the least bit weary. No matter what demands are laid upon her, she invariably responds with cheerful enthusiasm, and never thinks of protesting. In fact, when we ask her if she is ready to start out on another evangelistic trip, she says, "Yes! Yes! Yes! Yes!" so rapidly and eagerly no one could doubt her willingness to go. She has already traveled nearly three thousand miles, spreading the Good News through the length and breadth of this province, and increasing by many fold the efficiency of the missionaries of this station. In many a mountain village she is a familiar figure; and when she comes in sight, children and old people flock around, calling to each other, "Here comes the missionary again!" Curiosity if nothing else will hold them rooted to the spot, while the missionaries rejoice to find so large an audience ready to hear the Gospel message. A bicycle would not gather a quarter the crowd! Sometimes we fill up the car with a dozen or so delighted youngsters, who emit wild howls of joy while we give them a short ride in this wonderful "jidsha."

Long live Miss Jitchi Dendo, and may her usefulness increase many hundred fold!

Takamatsu, Japan.

OUR FINANCIAL PLANS

By O. M. Anderson, Secretary Stewardship, Lexington Presbytery

The recent recommendations of the Assembly's Stewardship Committee and the query as to the advisability of changing the church year and the time for the Every Member Canvass are very interesting and timely. The church would do well to fall in heartily with all these suggestions, unless it be the idea of changing the church year.

It would be a great advance and improvement for the Assembly's Stewardship Committee to be a budget making committee for the whole church. If the Presbyteries and Synods would co-operate through their respective stewardship committees and furnish to the Assembly's Stewardship Committee such information as estimates of Presbyterial and Synodical needs, etc., an intelligent budget which would not be a guess would be formed. Much of the criticism of our church's financial methods would be disarmed.

It is clearly advantageous for the meetings of Synod to precede that of the fall Presbyteries so that financial matters may be handed down for the consideration of the Presbyteries. Finances might well occupy a large place in the program of the Presbyteries. Re-adjustments of congregational apportionments might well be considered. Conditions sometimes arise which make changes in a congregation's apportionments proper. Sometimes budget making committees very unintentionally make apportionments which are unfair. The churches should have a chance at the fall Presbyteries to be heard from along these lines.

Would it not be a wise thing for an interval of one month to elapse between Synod's meeting and that of the Presbyteries so that the following things might be accomplished? The Synod's Stewardship Committee immediately upon the adjournment of Synod should send down to the Presbytery's Stewardship Committee the Presbyterial apportionment and that committee could at once meet and make the apportionments to the churches and send them to the churches for consideration. At the meeting of the Presbytery such churches as might desire an adjustment could be heard from and the merits of their cases considered. Then the Presbytery could intelligently know how much of the apportionment assigned it to accept. When an apportionment is assigned a Presbytery and a part of it is lopped off the procedure is usually a mere guess. The above suggested plan would put the thing on a more certain basis and eliminate largely the element of guessing. A careful study of the budget of "the whole church" would be most profitable. A half day or even a whole day given over to the consideration of the needs of the Kingdom and methods of financing the same would be well spent.

To change the time of the Every Member Canvass from the season of rain and mud to that of dry cold weather with hard roads would be to do one of the wisest things possible in connection with securing the finances of the Kingdom. From November 15th to December 15th is about the best time of the year possible for the Every Member Canvass. Most any time of the year will suit the cities and towns, but the country has a peculiar situation. The mud and rain and the Every Member Canvass do not go well together. It is not impossible that many churches may refuse to enter upon the Every Member Canvass because of the difficult season set apart for it. If the canvass be made in the fall of the year it should be distinctly understood that the pledges would go into effect on April 1st following. Envelopes could be distributed just ahead of that date. The churches would give more and many unenlisted churches would fall in with the plan.

There is some question as to the advisability of changing the church year. In the first place, if an interval of three or four months is allowed between the canvass for finances and the opening of the new church year an adequate opportunity for ascertaining the results of the canvass would be allowed before the new year began. As it is now, we go several months into the new year before we have any adequate idea of how the church has provided the sinews of war for the year. How much better it would be to finish the financial campaign and canvass for enough ahead to allow time to gather the results and tabulate them so that it could be known at the start how much income the church could count on for the year. In the second place, it seems there would be too much of a jar and a shock attendant upon two changes, both of which are somewhat revolutionary. Let us first change the time of the Every Member Canvass and see how it works, and then after the church becomes adjusted to that change we might consider changing the church year.

In whatever is done in these matters may the Great Head of the Church guide and direct so that our decision will above all things else be for the glory of His Great Name and for the advancement of His Kingdom in the earth.

CONFRONTING YOUNG MEN WITH THE LIVING CHRIST BY JOHN R. MOTT

By Mrs. Richard B. Willis

This recent book of John R. Mott is too vital a challenge to pass unnoticed by active workers in the church. It has for its aim the increase of the spiritual vitality and fruitfulness of the Y. M. C. A. in North America by holding up the power of the living Christ and the possible achievements that may be made when working in His name. Evidently Dr. Mott regards the Y. M. C. A. as a sort of vanguard of the Church of Christ, a sort of heroic band of young pioneers, who, by their united efforts, may hew out the path in foreign lands with a stronger line of cleavage than may the men of any single denomination. His is the voice of a great herald, summoning greater numbers to more sacrificial service in the most strategic warfare of the ages.

The reading world is well aware of the energy of style and the clarity of thought, the surging enthusiasm of Dr. Mott as speaker and writer. Doubtless the book has already been reviewed by those whose business it is to perform such duty. The purpose of the present writer is to present some thoughts on his attitude to vital doctrines in view of the possible adoption of the book as one to be read by our young men and women. It is to be noted that Dr. Mott does not ignore the power of sin. He does not do so many of the new thought leaders, tell young men to go forward with a sweet smile and an engaging personality, looking to Christ as an example, and expecting to behold the world tumbling at their feet. Throughout he holds aloft the triumphant power of a crucified Lord as the only power that can break the shackles of sin and speak peace to a tortured soul.

It is characteristic, however, that he evidently avoids the use of doctrinal words and phrases. But we have no quarrel with him on that score if the real truth is there whatever phraseology he chooses to adopt. If he fights shy of such words as atonement and regeneration, it matters not, so long as the belief in the vital principles is there. And like many modern writers on religious subjects, he seems particularly to disapprove of the word dogma, a very well-born and appropriate word, but on which appears to arouse the ire of many writers as if there were something distinctly curish or at least canine in its essence. It may not be out of place just here to adduce one or two instances in which, from our point of view, a little more adherence to dogma would enhance the value of Dr. Mott's book.

On page 130 he refers to the beneficent and sanitary mission of the great fire of London in 1665, following the Great Plague, and avers that the testing of the spirit during the years of the world war and the widespread suffering to which men were subjected "have unmistakably served to cleanse the lives of many. Uncleanliness, sinfulness, selfishness are being burned away. They can not stand before wounds, diseases, agonies, loss, sorrow and death."

In the case of the Germans, and in some other instances these qualities did seem to stand with sturdy persistence and will always stand until swept away by the Holy Spirit of God. In the earlier pages of this book there is a notable silence on the subject of the Holy Spirit and His work, that we wondered if he had become acquainted with the Third Person of the Trinity. The overwhelming power of the Spirit of Christ is held up and magnified, it is true, but his utter lack of recognition of the Great Comforter whom the Saviour was to send and who would guide us to all truth gives us pause. But on page 171, somewhat tardily, it is true in view of the nature of the previous discussion, he urges that we "yield ourselves to the sovereign influence of the Spirit of God, for no man can say that Jesus is the Lord but by the Holy Ghost. On the authority of Christ Himself and in the light of experience, the Spirit must flood the Scripture record."

We do not wish to be guilty, however, of the triviality of haggling about phraseology when we are trying to advance the same great cause, to promote the same royal kingship. If we can be sure that the vital principles of adherence to Christ as sovereign and Saviour, to the Holy Spirit as teacher and guide and to the ultimate triumph of these principles over the colossal forces of sin, it matters little in what language these teachings are couched. Dr. Mott's wide acquaintance with many nations of the world; his belief in the blood of Christ as the remedy for the world-situation; his far-seeing vision of the potentialities of young life invested in lifting aloft the banner of the Master, and his strong analysis of the present situation and its peculiar needs constitute a genuine clarion call to the youth of today to enlist with the same impetuous ardor that bore them so grandly to France five years ago.

Some of his epigrammatic sayings are most worthy of being garnered up:

"Whenever an association lacks world-conquering power, it is because it has to some extent been conquered by the world."

"Did not Jesus Christ go to the great extreme to bring the world to God?"

"My fear is that we as workers . . . may be producing activity and organization faster than we are producing Christian faith and Christian experience. If so, do we not all recognize that that means, sooner or later, bankruptcy?"

"All literature is divided into the literature of knowledge and the literature of power" (quoting De Quincy). "Judged by the vast and accumulated evidence of the centuries as to its vitalizing energy and transforming influence in the lives of the individuals and of society, the Bible is pre-eminently the language of power."

"They (men) demand that conduct be co-ordinated with creed."

If the youth of our land could be led to heed the advice of Dr. Mott as to secret prayer, as to study of the Bible, as to the vast realm of possible activity for energetic consecration; if they could grasp the beauty of the comradeship he sets forth, the inflexible courage he advocates, the certainty of the final triumph of the Cross, a new day would dawn in our churches as well as in the Young Men's Christian Association.

AN UNFORTUNATE AND FAULTY TRANSLATION

By Rev. A. W. Pitzer

Commentators on the "Revelation" have had a hard time in handling the "Beasts," and disposing of them. The "Beasts" always in the S. S. symbolize the Enemy of God; and yet the "Beasts" of this Book are often in the presence of God in Heaven, and join the Redeemed in Worship.

The "Heading" used by the King James translators is misleading. The whole book is not "the Revelation of St. John the Divine," but the Revelation of Jesus Christ sent by an Angel to his servant John.

John was simply the human instrument through whom Christ was revealing Himself.

In this wonderful Book, Jesus Christ is revealing Himself in His person and work of Redeeming Love: in no possible sense was it a "Revelation of St. John, the Divine."

Jesus revealed Himself to John as the Alpha and the Omega, the Lord God, who is and who was and who is to come, the Almighty.

And He came near to John and laid His right hand upon him, saying, Fear not; I am the First and the Last, and the Living One; and I was dead, and behold, I am alive for evermore, and I have the keys of death and of Hades.

Then Christ reveals Himself as the King-Priest in His robes of office, walking in the midst of the seven churches of Asia Minor. He is inspecting and judging the seven churches represented by the seven candlesticks.

The seven churches of Asia Minor were and are Representative Churches, and present a complete and perfect picture of all the churches in all generations and in all lands until the Return of the King-Priest at the End of the Age.

How many churches like Ephesus have left their First Love—or like Smyrna are poor and persecuted, or like Pergamum located where Satan's Throne is, and yet holding fast to the Name of Jesus.

Or Thyatira—suffering that woman Jezebel, which calleth herself a prophetess, to teach and seduce my servants.

Or Sardis—with a name to live, but dead.

Or Philadelphia—with an open door, but little Power, yet keeping the word.

Or Laodicea—thinking herself rich and in need of nothing, and yet she is ready to be spued out of the mouth of the true and Faithful Witness.

How searching and startling are these messages of the King-Priest to all the churches through all Christian centuries in all the earth.

The picture is painted by the King-Priest, the Inspector and Judge, and it is perfect.

To which of these seven churches do you belong?

Another Revelation

A door is opened, and John sees the Redeemer and Restorer on a throne and around Him, four and twenty thrones, four and twenty elders, and four ZOA—living creatures, King James calls them "Beasts."

The Cherubic Symbol, the Man—the Lion—the Calf—the Eagle, represented the creation and symbolized Redemption through the blood of the Lamb.

The Cherubim first appears at the East of the Garden of Eden as the symbol of Redemption—a place where Jehovah Elohim was worshipped by Antidiluvian believers who looked for salvation through the coming seed of the woman who was to bruise the serpent's head.

The Cherubic Symbol was the Gospel preached to the Antidiluvian world. Here was the Shekinah presence of Jehovah, the altar of sacrifice, and the Atoning Blood.

After the flood, the Shekinah Presence of Jehovah appeared to Moses in the Burning Bush; and in the cloudy fiery Pillar in Egypt and in the Wilderness.

When the Tabernacle, as the "Dwelling Place" of Jehovah was erected and filled with the Shekinah Glory—the Cherubim are found in the most holy place, just over the Ark of the Covenant, and the Mercy Cover, and from here, Jehovah met with His people and communed with them.

After 500 years, the Tabernacle gave way to the Temple built by Solomon; and the Shekinah Presence of Jehovah, and the Cherubim reappear in the Most Holy Place.

The Prophet Ezekiel saw the Cherubic Symbol, leaving Jerusalem after its capture by the Babylonians. He also saw it with the Jews on the river Chebar, but when the new Temple was built, there was no Ark of the Covenant, no Shekinah, no Cherubim.

The next time we see the Cherubim is through the open door in Heaven—Rev. IV and V., as the "ZOA" translated in the A. S. V. as "Living Creatures." The Greek word "ZOA" is here translated properly in the A. S. V.—"Living Creatures," not "Beasts," as in King James Version. In Revelation, 5th and 6th chapters, we have revelations of Christ in the midst of His Redeemed Creation, and the Cherubim sang the new song. Revelation 5:9-10.

Thou art worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof: for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by the blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation: and hast made us unto our God kings and priests, and we shall reign on the earth.

Salem, Va.

MINISTERIAL OVER-BUSY-NESS

By Rev. G. Johnstone Jeffrey, B.D., Kilmarnock

In Scripture the Holy Spirit appears under the similitude of a dove. We have seen a dove fluttering down upon a crowded street. It is seeking a place to alight. We shall never fully realize the Power and Work of the Holy Spirit until we so arrange our week that, amid all its thronging duties, there are quiet, sheltered places where this Divine Visitant can come peacefully down upon us.

One of the glaring defects of our ministerial lives is that our days and nights are vastly overcrowded. An urgent necessity of today in our calling is a great relentless Geddes axe laid to the root of the jungle growths of many so-called ministerial duties which are playing havoc with our spiritual efficiency. It stands written in Revelation, "His servants shall serve Him, and they shall see His face."

Certainly we serve Him, earnestly, almost feverishly, but how seldom we see His face! In the winter months especially, we become enmeshed in a tangle of engagements until we have scarcely a single night to spare. On the rare occasions when we have, we sit in our studies restless, uneasy, knowing not what to make of ourselves. How seldom we have leisure to brood, to wait, to become receptive, to enjoy the wise passiveness.

And along with all our over-busy-ness goes the sinking feeling that we do not go forward. I read lately the story of the invention of the steam turbine by Sir Charles Parsons. It is interesting to know that his first experiments with what seemed a perfect engine were a great disappointment. The vessel in which the new turbines were first tried failed lamentably to reach the expected speed. The propeller spun through the water at the tremendous rate of 1,500 revolutions a minute, but the boat itself only crawled.

Experiments were then made with a model engine in a tank filled with water, having windows on both sides; it was then discovered that when the propeller turned at such an unheard-of speed a kind of cavity or vacuum was created and the energy of the screw was expended in maintaining this air-space instead of pushing the water away and thus sending the ship through the water. A remedy was found, simple and effective. The propeller blades were set at a new angle, and the destroyer shot forward at the rate of 43 miles per hour.

Which thing is a parable. With our whirling activities we seem often to create a vacuum. We do not go forward—we need a new attitude to our life and work. God may be calling us to do less and lean more. A brief absence from our duties through illness sometimes opens our eyes to the salutary fact that without our presence things can go amazingly well.

My plea is for the preservation of the still spaces in our week upon which the Spirit may descend with Power. We often sing:

"He came sweet influence to impart,
A gracious, willing Guest,
While He can find one humble heart
Wherein to rest."

"One humble heart"—may it not be that what the writer meant was a heart that was conscious that often spiritual sluices are opened when its own poor capacities ran dry? At any rate, we may cripple the inexhaustible activities of the Holy Spirit by our own hot, ceaseless energies. In his essay on Macaulay, Lord Morley, after doing justice to the historian's marvellous gifts of picturesqueness, proceeds:

"And yet when all is admitted, there is this to be said. We can picture Macaulay talking or making a speech in the House of Commons, or buried in a book, or scouring his library for references, or covering his blue foolscap with dashing periods, or accentuating his sentences and barbing his phrases, but can any one think of him as meditating, as modestly pondering or wondering, as possessed of so much as ten minutes by that spirit of inwardness which has never been wholly wanting in the King of Literature?"

It would not be difficult to adapt these words to describe the situation in which we may yet find ourselves if we are not awake to the perils of the over-busy life, and the day may come when we can picture ourselves talking, preaching, climbing stairs, planning clubs, arranging programs, rushing hither and thither on committee work, and left utterly bankrupt of that spirit of inwardness which alone can provide a shelter for the Holy Spirit of God.

The remedy lies with the individual. To my mind a vast amount of our indiscriminate visitation and our never-failing attendance at certain meetings is worse than wasted effort. I believe we could do infinitely better by our people and by ourselves if we would cultivate what, at the risk of misunderstanding, I would call the spirit of aloofness. Call it what you will, we need elbow-room. The crowd throng and press upon us, but we do not touch them. Virtue does not go out of us. We go into our pulpits of a Sabbath the most jaded man in a church full of overdriven men.

We must learn what that meaneth, "He that believeth shall not make haste"—and that often when we seem to be doing least we are doing most.—From The Record, Edinburgh, August, 1922.

SUNDAY SCHOOL RALLY DAY, OCTOBER SEVENTH

By Gilbert Glass, D.D., General Superintendent

We wish to call the attention of Sunday School and church workers to the fact that Rally Day material, consisting of Rally Day programs, Rally Day suggestions, Rally Day posters, collection envelopes and leaflets about Sunday School Extension, has been sent to Sunday School superintendents.

This material is sent out this far in advance of the Rally Day date so that Sunday School leaders may have sufficient time to prepare their programs with care and to give publicity to the Rally Day aim and theme.

There are a number of schools in which the Special Day programs are prepared by special committees, or by leaders appointed for this purpose. Frequently we have requests from those who are thus appointed for Rally Day material when the superintendent has received it and has perhaps put it aside for future reference. Please do not write for additional supplies until you have discovered whether or not supplies have been received for your school.

Rally Day is a very important occasion for the Sunday School and its work, and the support of Sunday School Extension work has grown in a remarkable way in recent years, and which challenges the Church to larger liberality because of its unparalleled evangelistic and character building work, and because of the wide field and open paths which are at the present time urgently calling for workers. We have a great opportunity for strategic conquests in needy fields, and the momentum which has been gained in the educational and evangelistic work of Sunday School Missions will be lost to some extent unless the Church takes advantage of this golden opportunity for a larger program.

The Southern Presbyterian Church expects every Sunday School to do its duty on Rally Day, October 7th. Send for additional Rally Day supplements without great delay as you need them.

O summer day beside the joyous sea!
O summer day, so wonderful and white,
So full of gladness, and so full of pain!
Forever and forever shalt thou be
To some the gravestone of a dead delight,
To some the landmark of a new domain.

—Longfellow.

Woman's Auxiliary

Conducted by Mrs. J. M. McIver, Gulf, N. C.

Concord Presbyterian will conduct three Group Conferences as follows:

- Group No. 4, at Rocky River, August 28th.
 - Group No. 3, at Cooleemee, August 29th.
 - Group No. 2, at Bethany Church, August 30th.
- At each conference these hours will obtain:
- 10:30—12:30—Morning session.
 - 12:30—1:30—Picnic lunch on lawn.
 - 1:30—3:30—Afternoon session.

Miss Edmonia Martin, of Brazil will speak at Rocky River, and Rev. J. Harper Brady, of Japan will speak at Cooleemee and Bethany. For further details of the program, which have been arranged with a view to the needs of the Auxiliary work, see your respective county papers.

Group Two comprises the following churches: Taylorsville, Stony Point, New Salem, Shiloh, Loray, Clio, Statesville First, Front Street, Elmwood, Little Joe's, Bethesda, Bethany, Tabor, Harmony, Sherrill's Ford.

Group Three: Cleveland, Third Creek, Unity, Cooleemee, Mocksville, Franklin, Salisbury First, Salisbury Second, Spencer, Fifth Creek, Thyatira, Back Creek, Prospect, Yadkinville.

Group Four: Concord First, Concord Second, McKinnon, Bayless Memorial, Westminster, Kannapolis, Shearer, Mooresville First, Mooresville Second, Poplar Tent, Patterson, Rocky River, Harrisburg, Davidson, Centre, Gilwood, Bethpage.

Each delegation is asked to bring baskets of lunch. There are no elected delegates. It is hoped each church will be represented by a large delegation. The success of these conferences depends upon the co-operation of the district membership.

Greenwood, S. C.—Program of Inter-racial Conference for Colored Women at Brewer Normal School, August 26-31, conducted by the Women's Auxiliaries of the church of Greenwood, with the co-operation and assistance of Brewer Normal School and the colored churches.

Leader—Mrs. A. D. Calhoun, member State Inter-racial Committee.

Sunday Night, August 26th—7:30—"Get Acquainted Meeting," on the lawn, in charge of Mrs. Walter H. Hilyard, Mrs. Daisy Bradley Holman, Mrs. Jessie Walker. 8:00—Song Service—Led by Mrs. Walter H. Hilyard. 8:00—Sermon—Rev. Richard Carroll, Columbia, S. C.

Daily Program—9:00-9:15—Devotional: Monday—Mrs. J. T. McLees. Tuesday—Mrs. D. N. Bourne. Wednesday—Mrs. James R. Cain. Thursday—Mrs. E. S. Moorer. Friday—Mrs. G. W. Gardner.

9:15-10:00—Home Economics—Miss Mattie Mae Fitzgerald, District Home Demonstration Agent: 10:00-10:45—Bible Hour—Mrs. Law Blake, Rock Hill, S. C., State Secretary Spiritual Resources, Presbyterian Church.

Recess—15 Minutes.

11:00-11:45—Hygiene and Nursing—Miss Elizabeth A. Woodson, County Health Nurse. Assisted by Miss Bennie Fisher, trained nurse.

Dinner.

Afternoon Program—1:30-3:30—Sewing—Mrs. Harriet Johnson, State Home Demonstration Department, assisted by Mrs. E. A. Reynolds.

3:30-3:45—Handicraft—Miss Mamie Wickliffe, former teacher, Manual Training, Winthrop College, assisted by Mrs. Daisy Bradley Holman, principal, colored public schools, Greenwood.

3:45-4:15—Playground and Recreational Sports for Women (with victrola on lawn), Mrs. Hattie Duckett, director, colored community center, Greenville, S. C., and Miss Mary Joyce, of Winthrop College.

4:15-4:30—Vesper Service—Led on Monday by Mrs. S. C. Hodges. Tuesday by Rev. F. E. Dibble. Wednesday by Bishop K. G. Finlay, Bishop upper South Carolina Diocese. Thursday by Mrs. A. W. Henderson. Friday by Rev. E. A. Fuller.

Evening Meetings—8:15—Song Service—Led by Mrs. Walter H. Hilyard, assisted by Mrs. Jessie Walker, Mrs. Daisy B. Holman.

8:30—Monday—Mrs. W. M. Rowland, ex-president Synodical of Georgia. 8:30—Tuesday—Rev. J. P. Bryant, Atlanta, Ga., chairman National Colored B. Y. P. U. Board of America. 8:30—Wednesday—Pictures shown by Prof. W. H. Hilyard, of Brewer Normal. 8:30—Thursday—Dr. C. B. Antisdell, president Benedict College, Columbia, S. C. 8:30—Friday—Religious Pageant. Arranged and presented under the direction of Prof. Walter H. Hilyard.

About one hundred of these tickets will be paid for by the Auxiliaries of the Presbyterian, Baptist, Methodist, Episcopal, Lutheran and Associated Reformed Presbyterian church of Greenwood, and will be given to as many delegates who are duly elected by the colored churches of the city, and who subscribe themselves as regular earnest students. The tickets, however, will be interchangeable if it becomes necessary.

Arrangements for such delegates may be made by writing to Mrs. Joe Wharton, Greenwood, S. C. This should be done not later than August 15th.

Charlotte, N. C.—The last meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the First Church was an out-of-doors meeting, well attended and thoroughly enjoyed. It was held at 6:30 o'clock on the beautiful lawn of the church.

It is the custom of the Auxiliary to hold a meeting of this nature annually in honor of the business women of the congregation, and planned especially for them. The following program was rendered:

Devotional, led by Mrs. James Harvey Orr.
Report from Montreal conferences—Mrs. W. M. Strong.

Charity work at the Presbyterian Hospital—Mrs. Parks M. King.

Roll call of medical missionaries—Miss Olive Brice.

Hymn—"Day Is Dying in the West."

At the conclusion of the program a picnic supper was served, Mrs. Charles P. Moody's circle acting as hostess.

The following invitation was issued to the business women:

"We know you are faithful to circles to go,
But at Auxiliary meetings we do miss you so!
Just come to our meeting out under the trees.
The place will be spacious, the hour will be late.
To suit your convenience, so we will save a plate.
Our program is short, but our fellowship is long.
Come—let's join all together to make life one sweet song."

HIS DIRTY LITTLE HANDS

His teacher said that I must scrub
His dirty little hands,
And so I always soak and rub,
Obeying her commands.

But, somehow, on the way to school,
He picks up dirt galore;
And when he's reached there, as a rule,
He should be scrubbed once more.

When he sits down to dine at night,
I'm always filled with shame,
His grubby hands are just a sight—
At luncheon, it's the same.

But, oh, I know there'll come a day
When I'll look back in vain
To little paddies soiled this way
And wish them here again.

Too soon the time will come when he
Is careful how he looks.
He won't be thinking then of me,
His daddy, or his books.

But now, his heart is ours alone,
And mother understands,
And holds them closely in her own—
His dirty little hands!
—Ann Campbell, in Detroit News.

Twelve Korean Proverbs—

1. One hand finds it hard to applaud.
2. If the lips are gone the teeth suffer cold.
3. The man with the dry throat should dig the well.
4. Even death cannot be avoided (why tremble at smaller things?)
5. Life is a season of exile, death is going home.
6. Words without feet travel a thousand li. (One li is 1-3 mile).
7. I'd like to strike the rat, but fear to break the dishes.
8. It lies in virtue, not in strength of position.
9. God defeated me, not the enemy.
10. The religion of nothingness.
11. Love of life and fear of death are natural to all men.
12. A dilemma—no going back and no going forward.

Peculiar Korean Customs:

1. Koreans burn hair and put it in the ditch in front of their homes to run the snakes away.
2. In cases of malaria the Koreans see the enlarged places on the side caused by the swelling of the spleen and think there is a turtle in the stomach. The first duty in such a case is to run the turtle out. This is done by rolling up a bunch of dry grass, lighting it and sticking it to the side. The pain is intense and a large spot is burned on the side of the stomach. Practically every Korean that has had malaria has this spot on his side.
3. The best Korean remedy for cholera is to cut the sides of the legs with a knife to let out the rats which they say are the cause of cholera.
4. Koreans speak of the ear of a needle.
5. When Koreans reach an extreme state of poverty, they eat dogs. This custom is rapidly going out of style.
6. It is considered a disgrace to whip your own children. They therefore grow up without any parental restraint.
7. It has been a custom and still is in many cases to eat copper to make the bones knit together.
8. The mother tries to look as dirty as possible on the day of the daughter's marriage.
9. Koreans dig up dead bodies at night and move them in order to placate the spirits.
10. Cow's food is cooked; horses are given hot water to drink.

Korean History in Brief:

The great Tangun appeared over 4,000 years ago. 'Twas this way: A bear and a tiger met on a mountain and wished that they might become human beings. The Creator said to them, "Eat a bunch of garlic and retire to this cave and fast for 21 days and you shall become men." They did so, but ere the time was up, the tiger, by reason of his fierceness, could no longer endure the restraint and so came forth, but the bear, with greater patience, waited the allotted time and then stepped forth a perfect woman. Whanung, son of Whanin the Creator asked his father to give him an earthly kingdom. It was granted and the spirit came on the wings of the wind to earth. It found the woman and breathed about her and she brought forth a son. In after years the wild people found him under a pakkal tree and made him their king. He ruled from 2257 B. C. to 1122 B. C.—(A legend from "The Passing of Korea" Hulbert).

A PRAYER

Lord, help us in our troubled life,
Amid the tumult and the strife,
That tries our spirits day by day,
To turn aside along the way
And talk with Thee and read Thy Word,
And let us feel Thy presence, Lord,
O, call us in life's jar and fret,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!
For often in the daily stress
Do we forget Thy faithfulness,
And fall into the tempter's snare,
That comes upon us unaware.
O, call us in the busy throng,
And help us to discern the wrong,
And courage give to do the right.
Hold us by Thy love and might,
Whenever in our weakness we
Stray, Heavenly Father, far from Thee!
Be near us in life's jar and fret,
When we forget—when we forget!

—Selected.

OF INTEREST TO ORGANISTS

All organists and church musicians will find the forthcoming convention of the National Association of Organists at Rochester, New York of intense interest. It will be held in the Eastman School of Music on August 28-31, inclusive. As in previous years the subjects of the papers touch on every phase of the profession. Among them: anthems of today, a symposium of the material available for churches large and small; the training and academic standing of organists; choral competitions; the value of the organist in the community; the organist and publicity; music and the other arts in worship; and improvisation in the church service (illustrated). Among those reading papers are Professor Hamilton C. Macdougall, of Wellesley College, Dr. Harold W. Thompson, of Albany, Herbert S. Sammond, H. Augustine Smith, of Boston University, and Dr. Healey Willan, of Toronto. The latter will also play one of the recitals. He is president of the Canadian College of Organists, which holds its convention in Toronto the following week. Many members of the association will go there from Rochester. Other recitals will be given by T. Tertius Noble, president of the association,—whose position as a composer of Church music and as organist of St. Thomas' Church, New York, has made his name so widely known,—Harold Gleason, of Rochester, Palmer Christian of the Fourth Presbyterian Church, Chicago, S. Wesley Sears, of St. James Church, Philadelphia. These will all be given in Kimbourn Hall. There will also be a festival concert of organ and orchestral music in Eastman Theatre, when music by Handel and Widor will be heard as well as that of two living Americans, Eric Delamarre, of Chicago and D. D'Antalfy. The local committee has spared no effort in making this convention noteworthy. Those desiring further particulars can obtain them by writing to W. I. Nevins, Secretary, 173 Madison Avenue, New York. The sessions are open to the general public.

A WARNING

This is to warn the public against Mr. A. M. Buerard, a blind piano tuner, who travels from place to place in the South and has recently proven in many places to be entirely untrustworthy in money matters.

He is an excellent piano tuner, but with the letters of introduction which he possesses, his habit is to borrow sums of money with the deliberate intention, it seems, of never returning it.

(Signed): R. E. Carroll.

Batesville, Ark.

CHRISTIAN ASSURANCE

Assurance is not simply faith, though faith is at the foundation. The fact is the Bible is full of promises, and they are addressed not to named individuals, but to characters. Whosoever loveth. Whosoever hopeth. Well, if I hope and trust and obey and love, the consciousness of possessing these qualities gives me the assurance of the promises which God has annexed to these graces. Then, too, there is that mysterious and royal gift, the witness together with our spirit of the Holy Spirit. These three evidences taken together give us reliable testimony upon which to trust that we have passed from death unto life, from old things into new.

No man has a right to leave the world as he found it. He must add something to it; either he must make its people better and happier; or he must make the face of the world more beautiful and fairer to look at.—The Americanization of Edward Bok.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT

(Conducted under the auspices of Synod's Committee of Sunday Schools and Young People's Work, in the interest of Sunday Schools and Young People's Societies)

W. ARNETT GAMBLE, JR., Editor

ADDRESS ALL COMMUNICATIONS TO THE DEPARTMENT EDITOR DAVIDSON, N. C

EDITOR'S LOOKOUT

We have received recently a report from the Tirzah, S. C., Senior Christian Endeavor Society which struck us very forcibly. The reports tells us that the society has "interesting planned programs" and that an effort is made "to get everybody interested, and to have a program worth going to hear." We wish that this idea of having programs "worth going to hear" could take hold upon all of our young people, by whatever name they call their society.

With the many available plans, there isn't often any good reason for a program that just "fills up the time." The societies that have good attendance are the societies that have interesting meetings. Societies that do the same old things every week cannot expect people to come to the meetings; they can visualize the meetings and save the trouble of a trip to the meeting room. With some snappy, interesting, helpful, new thing put into the meetings regularly, interest will keep up and attendance will keep up.

How is it in your society? Are you tired of the old way? Why not YOU be the one to "start something" and get your meetings out of the rut! Our Presbyterian Committee of Publication, Richmond, Va., or the Dixie Endeavorer, 5 Ferger Bldg., Chattanooga, Tenn., will be glad to send you lists of available books and booklets that will help you.

Recently we have been inviting our readers to give us suggestions for improving our department, and have offered a three-months' subscription to the Standard to the one who should give us the best suggestion, the contest closing August 9th. The subscription goes to Miss Ora Dell Henderson, correspondent for the Junior C. E. Society of Carolina Church, Little Rock, S. C. We are looking into the possibility of following out the suggestions given us, and if it can be done we will make the changes and additions suggested. We congratulate Miss Henderson, and thank her and all who are interested in the department. We will welcome at all times, suggestions for making our department better.

Sunday School

By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.

AUGUST 19, 1923

STEPHEN THE MARTYR

Lesson: Acts 6:1-8:3; 22:20
Printed Text: Acts 6:8-15; 7:54-60

GOLDEN TEXT—"Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword?"—Rom. 8:35.

SCRIPTURE LESSON

Ch. 6:8 And Stephen, full of faith and power, did great wonders and miracles among the people.

9 Then there arose certain of the synagogue, which is called the synagogue of the Libertines, and Cyrenians and Alexandrians, and of them of Cilicia and of Asia, disputing with Stephen.

10 And they were not able to resist the wisdom and the spirit by which he spake.

11 Then they suborned men, which said, We have heard him speak blasphemous words against Moses, and against God.

12 And they stirred up the people, and the elders, and the scribes, and came upon him, and caught him, and brought him to the council.

13 And set up false witnesses, which said, This man ceaseth not to speak blasphemous words against this holy place, and the law:

14 For we have heard him say, that this Jesus of Nazareth shall destroy this place, and shall change the customs which Moses delivered us.

15 And all that sat in the council, looking steadfastly on him, saw his face as it had been the face of an angel.

Ch. 7:54 When they heard these things, they were cut to the heart, and they gnashed on him with their teeth.

55 But he, being full of the Holy Ghost, looked up steadfastly into heaven, and saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing on the right hand of God.

56 And said, Behold, I see the heavens opened, and the Son of man standing on the right hand of God.

57 Then they cried out with a loud voice, and stopped their ears, and ran upon him with one accord,

58 And cast him out of the city, and stoned him: and the witnesses laid down their clothes at a young man's feet, whose name was Saul.

59 And they stoned Stephen, calling upon God, and saying, Lord Jesus, receive my spirit!

60 And he kneeled down, and cried with a loud voice, Lord, lay not this sin to their charge. And when he had said this, he fell asleep.

SHORTER CATECHISM

Q. 50. What is required in the second commandment?
A. The second commandment requireth the receiving, observing and keeping pure and entire, all such religious worship and ordinances as God hath appointed in his word.

Stephen was one of the first seven deacons chosen by the Apostolic Church. Besides performing the functions of a deacon, he was also, like Philip, an evangelist or preacher of the Gospel. He is described as a man "full of power and of the Holy Ghost." His spiritual power was due to the indwelling influence of the Divine Spirit. He manifested his power by working miracles and by advocating Gospel teachings with a force that his adversaries could neither "gainsay nor resist." He was not the first martyr who died for his faith, but he was one of the first of the organized Christian Church at Jerusalem. We will attend to The Charges Brought Against Stephen; His Defense and Charges Against the Jews; His Stoning by a Mob; His Vision and Prayer.

I. The Charges Brought Against Stephen

Disputing with opponents as to religious teachings, when they were not able to answer him, they stirred the scribes and elders against him and brought him before the council or highest court of the Jews. Here they charge him with heinous offences. They accuse him of speaking against Moses and God, and against the Divine law and the city of Jerusalem. They bring forward false witnesses to testify to these things. They do not specify how he spoke against God and Moses, nor what law of Moses he set aside. He could not assault God's moral law, for it is as immutable as His own nature. If he spoke of any law given by Moses being removed, it was "the ceremonial law" of types and shadows that was fulfilled by Christ and abolished by Him. If he affirmed that Jerusalem would be destroyed because of its people's sins, he only asserted what had been done before, what Jesus foretold and what history verified.

II. Stephen's Defense and Charges Against the Jews

His defense consisted of a review of their nation's history from "the call of Abraham to the building of Solomon's temple." He shows that the nationality had passed through many changes due to their multiplied sins and the faithfulness and sovereignty of God. Closing his review, he charges them with wonderful fidelity, with numerous and grievous transgressions. He declares, "Ye stiff-necked and uncircumcised in heart and ears, ye do always resist the Holy Ghost; as your fathers did so do ye." He charges them with having persecuted and slain their own prophets. He accuses them of being "the betrayers and the murderers of their own Christ, of whom their prophets foretold. He asserted that "they had received the law by the disposition of angels and had not kept it." They were enraged by these charges that they could not disprove and "gnashed on him with their teeth."

III. Stephen is Slain by a Mob

Maddened by his charges of crime, their rage is further increased by Stephen claiming to see "the glory of God, through the opened heavens, and Jesus standing at His right hand." Losing all self-control, the court, the witnesses and all present unite in an effort to destroy him. They drag him without the city and stone him to death. God made his face to shine as an angel's; they covered it with wounds and blood. Without any fair trial, without justice, without any calm investigation of the charges made, Stephen died a violent and cruel death, a victim of some of the fiercest and most malevolent passions of the human heart. In his case we have vividly illustrated the dangers and crimes of mob law. It is sometimes claimed that majorities are right. But numbers, moved not by reason and conscience, but dominated by evil passions, are habitually wrong and commit appalling crimes.

IV. Stephen's Vision and Prayer

Before he was drawn to his violent death he declared that he saw "the heavens opened and Jesus standing at the right hand of God." This statement maddened them because it implied that they had committed a crime in slaying Christ and that He was living and in a position to visit righteous punishment. While this vision, had they believed it, was calculated to intimidate them, it was to Stephen a source of comfort, strength and encouragement. It showed him that if he was to die it was under the eyes of the Master and with His approval. His prayer contains two petitions, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit," and "Lord, lay not this sin to their charge." He prays for himself, that his departing spirit may find the presence of Jesus and share His glory. He could have no higher destiny. He prays for his enemies, that they may be pardoned the crime they were then perpetrating. He thus imitated Christ Himself. Only a Christ-like man could pray such a prayer.

Christian Endeavor

By Rev. J. G. Garth, Chairman of Synod's Committee of Sabbath Schools and Young People's Work.

THE SCHOOL OF PRAYER

- M., Aug. 20—Lesson In Faith: Mark 11:20-24.
- T., Aug. 21—The Right Spirit: Matt. 6:9-15.
- W., Aug. 22—Learn to Take "No": II Cor. 12:6-9.
- T., Aug. 23—Learn Perseverance: Luke 18:1-8.
- F., Aug. 24—Learn From Failure: Jas. 1:5-8.
- S., Aug. 25—Learn Fellowship: Acts 12:1-17.

Sun., Aug. 26—Topic: Lessons in the School of Prayer. Matt. 18:19, 20; 21:18-22.

How does prayer call for faith?
How does prayer force us, if we are sincere, to do the will of God?

Why are answers to some prayers delayed?

The lesson today leads us into the school of prayer with its great Master, Jesus Christ, who knew both sides of prayer, the heavenly and the earthly. This was one of the most important lessons Jesus taught His disciples. Let us go with them into this school and sit at Jesus' feet and learn to pray.

The Real Value of Prayer

What real good does prayer do? Some people think it is only a sort of communion with God, to keep our souls in a religious frame of mind. But it is more than that. Prayer actually moves God to do our will, and He works to grant our wishes. It is the greatest power in the hands of man, because it puts God's power in our hands. The work of Jesus in His atonement on the cross is the basis of prayer, and God's great scheme is to bring the kingdom of Jesus into all men's hearts, and He will work with men to do this. He promises to answer prayer, and He has done it millions of times.

Perhaps we should learn that prayer is not all request. It has other parts, seven in all. These parts are Adoration, which includes homage and praise; Confession of Sin; Thanksgiving, combining both gratitude and consecration, and lastly, Supplication, embracing entreaty for pardon, petition for needs, and intercession for other people. You may make an acrostic by taking the first letters of those four words in italics, and spell ACTS, a good way to remember the parts of prayer.

The First Lessons in Prayer

The first three things to learn about prayer are humility, earnestness, and faith. To be humble in prayer teaches us to govern our wishes so that they will not be selfish. Our way may be very unwise, and besides we are such sinners we are not worthy of God's blessing. We need to find out God's will, and desire that our wills may be in unison with His.

Of course we should be deeply in earnest in our prayers. We must mean what we say, and wish it with all our hearts. And Jesus tells us we must believe that God will hear us. We certainly need not pray unless we believe a little. We ought to believe firmly in God's promise to answer.

Other Lessons Learned in the School of Prayer

Jesus teaches other lessons for prevailing prayer. We must not be petulant, or peevish; we must not pray for harmful things to ourselves or to others, for it is not our business to judge our brother or bring judgment on them from God. We must be forgiving, as Christ told Peter, after the figtree withered. We must consecrate our lives to God's service, if we are willing to accept His goodness to us. We must try to live righteous lives, for only the prayers of the righteous avail very much. We should offer all prayers in the name of Christ, which means, we ask His approval of our desires. If we feel we do not know God's will, we should ask the Holy Spirit to guide our requests, for He is the great Helper of the Christian in prayer.

The Practice of Prayer

The way to learn to pray is simply to pray, and as we keep praying we become more proficient in prayer. Paul tells us to pray about everything, to make all our requests known unto God, so business, pleasure, fears, hopes, joys, plans, everything is a fit subject for prayer, just so we fit each request to God's will. As children, we thought we could only pray kneeling beside our mother's knee. Now we know we may pray anywhere and about everything, with the thoughts of our heart as well as the words of our lips. We may thus pray without ceasing, and make praying as natural as our breathing. Christ showed His disciples how faith could master even a figtree; it certainly can meet our daily problems. We should have fellowship in prayer with others. United prayer is very powerful as Jesus told His disciples in this passage. Two or three agreeing about some blessing, may prevail, where one might fail.

Gratitude Should Accompany Prayer

As we offer God our prayers, let us not forget to thank Him for His abundant mercies to us. You can't number His blessings, but you should try to do so, and be grateful for all God does for you. It isn't polite, much less is it worshipful to receive God's favors, and neglect our thanks for them.

NEWS FROM THE FRONT

Mrs. Harry Dunlap, of Tirzah, S. C., advises that she is the Corresponding Secretary of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, and tells us this about the society and the church: "We meet every Sunday evening, with interesting planned programs, trying to get everybody interested and have a program worth going to hear. We have executive committee meetings and work on Monthly Service Program reports. We have a Junior Society; also the Alumni Council for those who are older or away at college and work. We have wide-awake socials every month or two. We take a free-will offering at every meeting and this is sent to different church causes."

THREE-IN-ONE RALLY AT LINCOLNTON HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL

By Miss Melva Gullick

The second annual three-in-one rally in Kings Mountain Presbytery was held in the First Presbyterian Church of Lincolnton, Monday afternoon, July 23d, with a splendid attendance.

The first part of the afternoon was given to the Sunday School Institute which began at 4:00 o'clock, with Rev. W. W. Akers, pastor of the Lincolnton Presbyterian Church, presiding. The song service was conducted by C. T. Carr, of Mooresville, N. C., superintendent of Sunday School and Young People's Work for the Synod of North Carolina, and the devotional led by Rev. T. G. Tate, pastor of the Olney Church, who compared the Christian life to a right angle, showing that what we receive from God must be passed on to those around us, and urging those who were there to take back to their home churches what they received from this meeting. The address of the afternoon was made by Rev. J. G. Garth, of Charlotte, who took for his topic "The Need for Men and Women of Strong Character," based upon Isaiah 22:23. By means of several striking points Mr. Garth placed before the young people their responsibility to the church and challenged them to do their part in the salvation of the lost race.

After this splendid address interesting reports were heard from the various Sunday Schools, and many helpful suggestions were received. Mr. Carr explained a standard training school and also stated that he had engagements for schools throughout the remainder of this year. This closed the afternoon session. A pleasant hour followed, during which a picnic supper was greatly enjoyed by all.

At 7:00 o'clock the quarterly C. E. Rally began, Rev. R. C. Long, presiding, with about 350 present. The devotional was conducted by Dr. Henderlite, of Gastonia, who very forcibly showed that both the object and test of a real Christian is in the bearing of fruit. A solo by Mr. Fish, of Lincolnton, was enjoyed by all. Reports from societies followed and resulting in the awarding of the banner for largest number present to Olney Intermediate society, and the one for the highest percentage went to the West Ave. Intermediates, of Gastonia. Mr. Tate then gave a splendid talk on "Methods of C. E. Work," emphasizing especially the program in society meetings and showing how these may be varied by pageants, dramatizations, debates, etc. After this an opportunity for signing pledges was given, which resulted in 52 signing as Comrades of Quiet Hour and 42 as Tenth Legionnaires. This closed the C. E. part of the meeting.

The Fourth District League meeting of Kings Mountain Presbytery immediately went into session. In the absence of the president, R. D. Hall, who was unable to attend because of illness, Rev. R. C. Long presided. The annual business meeting was held first, which resulted in the election of Mr. LeRoy Keever, of Lincolnton, president; Miss Martha Moore, of Gastonia, secretary and treasurer.

Very interesting reports on the Davidson conference were then made by Misses Rita Lowry, Helen Reinhardt, Martha Moore, and by Leonard Kendrick, John R. Falls, Ralph Glenn, Earl Cannon, John Akers, Paul Lewis, Holland McSwain, and Ben Ratchford.

An expression of hearty thanks was then given to the Lincolnton Church for their hospitality so generously accorded; to Mr. Carr, who ably led the singing, and to the committee of which Rev. R. C. Long was chairman, who had worked so faithfully on the program. An invitation to hold the next three-in-one rally at Olney was gladly accepted, after which the meeting was closed by Mr. Long.

Church News

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY'S TRAINING SCHOOL FOR LAY WORKERS, RICH- MOND, VIRGINIA

Eleven graduates and former students of the training school are sailing for the foreign field during the month of August. These will make a total of over 40 training school students in the foreign field. This is a remarkable record when we remember that the training school is only nine years old and began in a very small way.

The tenth session of the training school will open on September 10th. One hundred and fifteen students have already registered and others are in the process of registering. This indicates that the attendance for the coming year will be the largest in the history of the training school.

The new fire-proof dormitory, providing for about 115 students is nearing completion, and will be ready for occupancy in time for the opening of the session. The new dining hall is practically completed and will be ready for use by the first of September. These two new buildings will add greatly to the comfort and efficiency of the training school.

BARIUM SPRINGS NEWS

Right off the bat we want to tell everybody that Rumpel Hall is distinctly on the map. The King's daughters of Salisbury First have just taken that big second floor sitting room in hand and furnished it out and out.

We are proud to take our visiting friends into this room now and every girl and matron in Rumpel is delighted to have this fine dressed up room. Before this, this room was furnished with the old cast off dining room chairs, which had served their day down stairs.

Rev. Harper Brady spoke in little Joe's Church both Sunday night and Wednesday night, his interesting and entertaining description of his work was much enjoyed by all. Mr. Brady took supper with us Wednesday and then helped about 40 boys enjoy the swimming pool afterward.

Wheat harvest is long past, but the tonsil harvest still goes on, the following children have been operated on during the week, Bleeker Lee, Thelma Godwin, Mildred Miles, Grover Miles, Charles Sears, Bobbie Reavis, Billy McKay, and Clayton Jordan. All are getting along very nicely.

Miss Foust our most efficient third grade teacher and librarian is back on the campus, getting the new books arranged in the library, and acknowledgments made to the donors. Miss Foust by her interest in this department and her unselfish devotion to the institution is interesting many of our friends in upbuilding our library into a real valuable part of our equipment.

Last Saturday we were delighted to have visit us Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Lockhart, and three very young ladies. This man's name has become synonymous with Greater Davidson during the past few years, but this doesn't blind this excellent family to the other church institutions, for on Monday we received a substantial donation from them for some very necessary things for our baby colony.

John Craig is back on the job and his numerous jobs are again being taken care of nicely. Bob Estridge the multigraph wizard is now on his vacation, so we will have no bulletins until he returns.

The lure of the West has proven too much for Miss Willis, our stenographer, and she has left us to take up government work in New Mexico.

PERSONAL

Rev. J. T. Wade, of Menlo, Ga., will spend the last two weeks of August at Montreal, N. C.

The address of Rev. Ovid Pullen is changed from Kannapolis to Bridgewater, N. C.

The address of Rev. J. F. Brown is changed from Atlanta, Ga., to Porterdale, Ga.

Rev. H. R. McFadyen, of Cameron, Texas, is spending his vacation in North Carolina and at Montreal.

Rev. Wm. C. Cumming has changed his address from 115 Church Street, Wilmington, N. C., to Nanking Language School, Nanking, China.

From the North Carolina "Odd Fellow" we take the following concerning an old friend of our college days:

"Notwithstanding the fact that Rev. W. R. Coppedge, our Junior Past Grand Master, is probably the oldest brother who has ever served the Order as Grand Master in North Carolina, having already passed his three score years and ten, he has rendered distinguished service in that capacity. He was vigorous and faithful in the discharge of his duties as Grand Master and spent more than one-sixth of his time during the year in active field service.

"He prepared and published a pamphlet on Odd Fellowship, giving a treatise on the various degrees of the Order from the viewpoint of a Biblical scholar, which has been widely circulated and published in several of the leading Odd Fellow papers of the country. Ten thousand copies of the pamphlet have been distributed, and we believe that the good accomplished from this one feature of his administration will mean much to the future welfare of the Order in this jurisdiction.

"It was our pleasure to associate with Brother Coppedge a great deal during his term. We had learned to love him for his sterling character and congenial disposition as a high-toned Christian gentleman. We shall remember with pleasure his administration as Grand Master."

NORTH CAROLINA

Sherrill's Ford has just had a week of the preaching of Rev. R. A. White, of Mooresville. His sermons were clear, strong expositions of Scriptures well chosen for evangelistic services. The people came and listened attentively. Two were received by letter. F. A. Barnes, Supply.

Fayetteville Presbytery meets in regular Fall session at West End, N. C., Tuesday, September 25, 1923, at 8 o'clock p. m. E. L. Siler, S. C. Adjourned meeting at Maxton, Tuesday, September 4, 1923, 3 o'clock p. m. E. L. S., S. C.

Charlotte—At the Second Church last Sunday morning Dr. Harris H. Gregg, of Winnipeg, Canada, filled Dr. McGeachy's pulpit. Dr. Gregg is a well-known preacher and Bible expositor and teaches the Bible at the leading Bible conferences.

Charlotte—From the calendar of Caldwell Memorial Church we take the following notice:

"Many of our congregation will be glad to welcome again Rev. H. Namkung, of Kwang-ju, Korea, who preaches for us this morning. Mr. Namkung is being partly supported by the Men's Bible Class of this church, while doing post-graduate work at Princeton in preparation to taking a professorship in Union Theological Seminary, Kwang-ju."

Little River Church has just had a season of refreshing in the meeting recently held by Dr. D. K. Walthall, of Waynesboro, Va. The meeting lasted nine days, beginning on the 16th of July and the sermons were all scholarly and impressive, the last one especially being a masterpiece.

As a result of this meeting, 27 persons professed faith in Christ, 18 joining the Presbyterian Church with two more to follow by letter. Dr. Walthall not only is a master in the pulpit but he greatly endeared himself to our people by his pleasing personality, and his visit in our home will always be remembered with delight. R. E. Henderlite.

Parkton—We have recently built a tabernacle at Parkton, N. C., with a seating capacity of more than 2,000. This is to be called a community building and is to be used for the upbuilding of the town and community. As soon as the building was completed, we started a union revival service in it. This meeting conducted by the Ramsey Layman party, continued about five weeks. The congregations sometimes reached more than 2,000; there were about 200 professions, and about 600 reconsecrations. About $1,600 was raised for the preacher, the choir leader and pianist. V. G. Smith.

Bethany Church—The protracted meeting at Bethany Church, Concord Presbytery, occurred from July 29th to August 4th. The evangelistic preaching was done by Rev. E. M. Craig, D.D., pastor of the Hickory Church. He won the hearts of the people of the church and community by his gentleness and earnestness. The services proved to be a great blessing to the church, in rousing the members to greater earnestness and to prayer, in bringing Christians of all denominations closer together, and in the conversion of sinners. At the close of the meeting six were added to the church on confession of faith—all of them children of the covenant. Addison.

Six-Mile Church, Mecklenburg Presbytery—The Home-Coming at this old historic church on the 9th of August was a great success. A large number came from the surrounding towns of Monroe, N. C., Waxhaw, N. C., Van Wyck, S. C., Fort Mill, S. C.

We were greatly honored by the presence of Mrs. J. R. Simpson, of Monroe, N. C., who was reared in this church and has passed the four score—she occupied the pew of childhood days. These pews had doors and are now 103 years old.

The pastor, Rev. W. S. Hamiter, made address of welcome. Prof. R. N. Nisbet gave a very learned address on the founding of the Waxhaw settlement and told of her first ministers. Col. W. H. Stewart, of Columbia, S. C., made an address on the old times and customs of worship as compared with the present. After a sumptuous dinner in the grove Mr. T. W. Glasgow, of Charlotte, N. C., told us about the Scotch and their characteristics in a very humorous and edifying way. The people of this section enjoy the annual home-coming very much as it is a day for reunion of old friends and a reminder of former associations.

Lincolnton—In the presence of a gathering of people that filled both the main auditorium and the annex of the church, the congregation of the Lincolnton Presbyterian Church, on Sabbath morning, August 12, burned the last note that represented indebtedness and in beautiful and appropriate service, dedicated to God their handsome new church edifice.

The pastor, Rev. W. W. Akers, presided, graciously welcomed the visiting ministers and the worshippers from sister churches, and pronounced the invocation. Seated on the platform with the present pastor were two former pastors, Dr. W. S. Wilson, now of Atlanta, who was pastor during the period of building, and Dr. W. R. Minter, now of Austin, Texas. The presence of these beloved brethren was a most delightful feature of the happy occasion and when at the close of the service practically the entire congregation pressed forward to grasp their hands and express their joy at reunion, there was added to the occasion just the necessary tone of happy Christian fellowship.

Dr. Minter read the scripture lesson from Matthew 16:13-20. He also offered the dedicatory prayer, and in fervent, beautiful and reverent manner not only set aside to the worship of God this temple made with man's hands, but also plead that the heart and life of each individual worshipper should be dedicated as a temple to the Living God. It was a prayer surcharged with love for God and man and deeply moved his hearers.

The sermon of the morning, preached by Dr. Wilson, was based upon Peter's Great Confession, and was eminently fitting for the occasion. It was a masterly effort, scriptural, eloquent and thought-provoking.

A most interesting feature of the service was the report of the building committee as presented in concise and interesting manner by elder J. W. Mullen. He told of the struggles, discouragements and final triumph incident to building the church and in conclusion appealed to Dr. Wilson, who as pastor during the trying years of building, had rendered such untiring aid, to do the final act of applying the match to the last note that represented indebtedness. After this the building committee was pronounced adjourned by the chairman, deacon D. H. Shields, and the keys of the edifice turned over to the chairman of the board of deacons, Mr. R. F. Beal. Mr. Shields also read letters of felicitation from former officers of the church now living at a distance.

Perfect weather conditions, beautiful floral decorations and inspiring music added all that was necessary to make Dedicatory Day one of the very happiest in the annals of the Lincoln church.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Reidville—This church has just enjoyed the privilege of a week's series of meetings in which the pastor, Rev. C. O'N. Martindale, was aided by Rev. John L. Yandell, of Tryon, N. C. His messages were all good, earnest and spiritual messages calculated to reach and uplift people. His solos were sweet and timely, and his musical leadership most helpful. There were four professions of faith uniting with the Presbyterian Church, and one other decision for Christ to join another church. The need of the Spirit was felt, and His presence was manifested. C.O'N. M.

Summerton Church—Synodical evangelists, Dr. W. H. Miley and Mr. W. Furman Betts led an eight-day meeting for us the week of July 29th-August 5th. Despite hindering rains good congregations, among whom were many Methodist, Baptist, and Episcopal friends, enjoyed the hearty singing and Dr. Miley's powerful sermons.

A Bible reading campaign was put on. The final report showed 1,638 chapters read during the meeting.

Visible results among the attending churches include 14 professions of faith; 162 reconsecrations; 15 maintaining the family altar; and 15 practicing giving the tithe. There were five additions to the Presbyterian Church, with more in prospect.

We consider ourselves fortunate in having these brethren with us, for the meeting proved a blessing to the whole community.

FLORIDA

Inverness and Brooksville—Mr. J. I. Knight, a seminary student, has been acting as supply for this group during his vacation and has won the affection of the people at both places. There was great regret that he felt obliged, on account of his health, to give up his work for the remainder of the summer.

Bushnell—Rev. G. D. Moses has made a fine impression on the people of this vicinity and at Wildwood. He held a meeting of a week's duration a short time ago and several members were added to the church. On July 15th, two additional elders were installed and at a congregational meeting the same night it was decided to go right ahead with the construction of a building. The newly elected elders are Messrs. N. B. Winslow and W. T. Eddins. *

Mulberry—This church and Pierce have had the services of Mr. James F. Merrin, a student of Union Seminary, this summer and the people at both places are delighted with him. At a congregational meeting held July 29th, presided over by the superintendent of Home Missions, Rev. T. P. Walton, a desire was expressed that Rev. George Mason, of Milton, Fla., come to them as stated supply. Mr. Mason is very much loved in this section, where he served as Sunday School missionary.

GEORGIA

The Young People's Rally of Cherokee Presbytery met in Marietta, Ga., on July 3d with more than 100 present. The way the program was directed and carried out was a credit to the officers of the league and the young people taking part. Mr. I. M. Ellis was song leader. His singing with Rev. J. Edwin Hemphill's consecration message made this day one long to be remembered. Rev. A. Hoyt Miller of the Belgian Congo Mission in an inspiring address brought Africa's call very near to the young people. Rev. C. S. Evans and Mr. Ryan A. Wood with clear and forceful interpretations made our motto, "Whose I am and whom I serve" mean much to each one. Rev. L. C. Vass, evangelist of Cherokee Presbytery told how the young people might help him with his work. Echoes of the Synod's Young People's Conference held at Gainesville were interestingly given by many who had the privilege of attending that conference. Dr. J. H. Patton had charge of the installation of the newly elected officers, president, James Groves, of Marietta, vice-president, Miss Evelyn Longley, of Dalton; recording secretary, Miss Ruth Tinsley, of Cartersville; corresponding secretary, Miss Estelle Wilson, of Cedartown, and treasurer, R. A. Duke, of LaFayette. At the recess hour an elegant picnic lunch and a mingling of the delegates together added a happy fellowship to the rally. The attendance banner was won by Euharle with 23 delegates. The rally will meet next year in Cedartown on the second Tuesday of July.

The Young People's Conference of Georgia was held at Riverside Military Academy in Gainesville, from June 16-24. There was a registration of 222, and many registration fees that were received before the opening date of the conference had to be returned. The spirit and serious intent of the young people helped the leaders to make the conference the best Georgia has had. The Lord's power and blessing was manifest throughout the entire conference and the last service found the young people ready for the message of consecration which was brought by Dr. R. O. Flinn, of Atlanta. There were 115 who were lead to say, "speak, Lord, for Thy servant heareth," signifying their willingness to do just what He would have them to do. Twenty-nine of those think they know what their life should be devoted to and are entering upon preparation for that work as soon as it is possible.

The daily program of the conference was all that those who had arranged it could wish for. Dr. J. M. Wells, president of Columbia Theological Seminary had the Bible hour and with five studies in the Gospel of Luke showed five ways to study the Bible. This was so taught until inspiration was given to pursue such methods in daily devotions. Dr. J. O. Reeves, of Nashville, Tenn., and Rev. A. Hoyt Miller of the Belgian Congo Mission had the Foreign Mission Study class. Mrs. Eleanora Berry Smith taught the Home Mission Study book. Mr. S. W. Dendy, of Columbia, S. C., had the Christian Endeavor Expert Class. Dr. M. E. Melvin, of Chattanooga, Tenn., taught "The Stewardship of Life." Dr. J. Sprole Lyons, of Atlanta delivered four addresses on "Some Fundamentals of Christianity."

The vesper services were led by Rev. J. T. Coit, superintendent of Nacoochee Institute, Dr. R. O. Flinn and Mr. S. W. Dendy. Inspirational addresses were delivered by Dr. C. A. Campbell, of Atlanta, Dr. M. E. Melvin, of Chattanooga, and Dr. Homer McMillan, of Atlanta, Rev. A. Hoyt Miller of the Belgian Congo.

There were 56 young people who passed most creditably the Expert Endeavor examination. The committee felt that class in Stewardship would be most helpful and far-reaching in its results. They were particularly fortunate in securing Dr. Melvin to teach that class. The response of the young people to his lectures and the very evident result a large number saying they wanted to enter into full partnership with God was beyond their anticipations. Such could be said of the other classes. The other leaders who are known as our best leaders of young people were at their very best. Our Synod is deeply grateful to each of them and their labors will bring forth fruit many-fold in the churches which had delegates at the conference.

Col. Sandy Beaver, the president of Riverside, graciously gave us the use of his splendid plant and with his efficient corps of workers and assistants comfortably cared for the conference. We are indebted to Mr. D. W. Anderson for the use of the spacious swimming pool of the New Holland Mills.

Mrs. M. M. MacFerrin, of Augusta and Mrs. W. D. Hooper of Athens acted as "mother" and chief counsellor for the girls. Mr. F. L. Slaymaker and Rev. A. H. Miller had the leadership of the boys. The Presbyterial secretaries of young people's work of the Synodical assisted Mrs. MacFerrin.

The Synod's Conference Committee is Rev. J. Rupert McGregor, Cedartown, Ga., Dr. R. O. Flinn, Atlanta, Ga.; Dr. L. G. Henderson, Albany, Ga.; and Rev. Taylor Morton, Winder, Ga. The Synodical committee associated with the Synod's committee is Mrs. W. A. Turner, Jr., Newnan, Ga. and Mrs. Audley Morton, Athens, Ga.

Menlo, Cherokee Presbytery—The pastor and the people of Menlo were delighted to have a visit from Rev. and Mrs. Paul D. Patrick recently. Mr. Patrick was the pastor of this group of churches for four years, leaving here a little less than two years ago to take charge of the work at Effingham, S. C. While here he preached both morning and evening, from Monday evening through Sunday evening. His preaching was earnest and eminently practical, and the people heard him gladly. Much good will surely be the result of his faithful work here. Mrs. Patrick met with the children every morning, and some 30 children gave an enthusiastic hearing to her instructions. Mr. and Mrs. Patrick have much to encourage them in their field of service in South Carolina. We wish for them the best things, and trust that the Lord will prosper them in every good way.

Mrs. H. J. Garvin, a member of Menlo congregation, and first district chairman of Cherokee Presbyterial, just a little while ago called and told us of a good meeting with the women of Walnut Grove Church. Mrs. Garvin, of Summerville, Miss Louise Milam, of Cartersville, Mrs. B. W. Farrar, of Summersville, Mrs. Henry Bradford, of Berryton and Mrs. H. S. Carson, of Lyrly, held a conference with the women of Walnut Grove with a view to forming them into an Auxiliary society. They found the good women of this church ready, and gave them a very enthusiastic reception. We are glad to report that the organization was effected, and Mrs. David Mosteller was made president of the organization.

At our last regular meeting at Walnut Grove we made the young people a talk in the interest of the Christian Endeavor movement, and found a splendid band of young people ready to take up this work, and steps will be taken at once for their organization. We desire to announce that the group meeting of the first district, over which Mrs. Garvin presides, will hold its conference in the Menlo Presbyterian Church on Thursday, August 23d.

J. T. Wade.

MISSISSIPPI

South Mississippi Young People's Conference—The 11th annual Young People's Conference opened on Tuesday, July 10th, at the Mississippi Normal College, Hattiesburg, Miss., with an enrollment of about 70.

The young people of the conference followed a regular program, which was arranged by Mr. R. L. Landis, Jackson, Synodical superintendent of Sunday Schools and Young People's Work.

Rev. John A. Wood, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Canton, Miss., presented a series of splendid lectures on Church Organization and Causes. The purpose of this course was to give to the young people a better knowledge of the organization and work of our Church. Expressions from the young people themselves prove that these lectures from Mr. Wood were very helpful.

The young people were fortunate to have as Bible instructor Mrs. Margaret T. Russell, field representative of the General Assembly's Training School, Richmond, Va. Mrs. Russell through her thorough knowledge of the Bible and her forceful teaching strongly impressed upon her hearers the importance of a regular systematic study of the Bible.

Rev. R. E. Fry, D.D., of Pine Bluff, Ark., outlined the Progressive Program, stressing especially the question of Stewardship—first, the Stewardship of Personality; second, Stewardship of Possessions; third, Stewardship of the Truth. Dr. Fry showed very plainly that our one duty was to witness for Christ.

Miss Emily Peyton Jones of the Mississippi Normal College taught a very helpful course in Sunday School Methods for primary teachers. The work done in this department is credited toward a teacher training diploma.

The vesper services by Rev. W. Irving Carroll, D.D., of Marshall, Tenn., were most impressive. In these meetings Dr. Carroll presented to both the older and the young people of the Christian Workers' Summer School seven talks on "The Assurances of the Believer's Salvation."

The young people organized with Miss Verna Reese, of Centreville, Miss., as president and Sherman Powell, of Leakesville, as secretary. The conferences which were conducted each day by the young people were full of inspiration and were a great factor in the development of leadership among the young people. Each night meetings were held for the young people. The boys' orchestra from Canton, Miss., greatly contributed to the night programs. "Sunshine" Hawks gave two interesting lectures, "Sunshine and Shadows" and one on the "Passion Play at Oberrammagau." Other speakers were Mr. R. L. Landis, Rev. John A. Woods, Mrs. Margaret T. Russell, Mr. Gerald Harris, Mr. J. W. Sudduth, Mr. Ralph McRaney, Dr. J. D. Eggleston of Hampden-Sidney, Va., and Rev. Cary Johnson, D.D., of Richmond, Va.

The social activities were under the direction of Mr. Gerald Harris, of New Orleans, La., and Mrs. T. B. Roddy, of Memphis, Tenn., who made the recreation hours very enjoyable. The young people were divided into tribes—the Chickasaws, Choctaws and Cherokees. Each tribe worked on a standard of excellence. The points were determined chiefly by the attendance on daily classes, and conferences and prayer meetings, and Bible reading. This division of the conference members into tribes brought about a spirit of rivalry and enthusiasm over the work, and contributed greatly to the entertainment of all present. Each tribe had its own chief, sponsor, from among the leaders, and baseball team.

One of the most enjoyable social features of the entire conference was "Stunt Night." This is an annual affair and always provides an evening of fun and merriment for all. The program consisted of contests between the tribes for the best "stunt," yell and original song.

The final conference of the young people was held on Thursday morning, July 10th, at which time opportunity was given for pledges to life service for Christ. Three volunteered for the ministry and several for work in the home or foreign fields, and a large number of others expressed the desire to be led by Christ in whatever work He would have them do. The true spirit of Christian fellowship and service was manifested both in the work and the social activities among the young people. The spiritual value of this conference with the young people cannot be estimated.

Respectfully submitted,
Ralph McRaney,
Hattie Rose Liddell,
Jessie Bell Runge,
Findings Committee.

(Continued on page 12)

News of the Week

The funeral of former President Harding has overshadowed every other piece of news. Just a week and a day from the time that he passed away in his headquarters in San Francisco he was laid to rest in the temporary vault at Marion, Ohio. The days intervening represented the long journey across the country when at every station crowds of sorrowful and silent people gathered out of respect to the dead chief; a day in Washington, when the body lay in state and when thousands of citizens passed before the bier; and a day in Marion, when the city that loved him best gave herself up to mourning for her first citizen. The burial service was simple and unostentatious, although attended by President and Mrs. Coolidge, Pershing, members of the cabinet and other national dignitaries. The body was placed in a temporary vault awaiting the erecting of a fitting mausoleum.

The funeral hour Friday was observed in practically every hamlet, village and city throughout the United States. Business was suspended, the wheels of commerce and of traffic were halted and in memorial services everywhere a nation expressed her sense of loss at the death of their President.

Mrs. Harding's composure and endurance during these trying days have been most wonderful. The sympathy of this and other nations has gone out to her in her bereavement.

President Coolidge has taken up the burden of his new office and our government is functioning as if nothing had occurred. The new President seems peculiarly fitted to begin his new work, as for the first time, the Vice-President has been present at cabinet meetings, and therefore he comes with full knowledge of the many questions that will confront him. There seems apparent a disposition on the part of the Democrats to sympathize with him in the unexpected duties he is called upon to perform.

Staid old Charleston, usually quietly historic, a shrine to many of the South, slow and easy going, was roused to a pitch of excitement seldom ever equalled in the history of the city. And the cause of it was the municipal election, the principal contest being that between John P. Grace, incumbent, and Thomas P. Stoney, for the office of mayor.

The death certificate of President Harding was made public by the city health board and showed death to be due to cerebral apoplexy as a complication of "an acute gastro-intestinal infection." The certificate was signed by Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Stanford University, and one of the five physicians who were in attendance upon President Harding. The certificate gave the cause of death as follows: "Cerebral apoplexy, following an acute gastro-intestinal infection, including cholecystitis (inflammation of the gall bladder) and bronchial pneumonia—instantaneous contributing cause: arterial sclerosis (hardening of the arteries) of several years duration."

Government forest aid in the amount of $1,250 has been allotted to work on the Globe-Edgemont road. The county has a thousand dollar allotment, bringing the total to $2,250 to be used on this six-mile stretch of roads.

"Bob" Reynolds, accompanied by Wheeler W. Jennings, Pathe cameraman from Iowa, passed through Charlotte in a specially constructed and equipped Ford truck en route to Montreal, Canada, from which port Mr. Reynolds and Mr. Jennings will depart on an automobile trip around the world. They expect to be back in the United States early in January, 1924. They will ship from Montreal to Havre, France, and after a tour of France, England, Germany, Russia, Belgium and Switzerland, cross the Alps to the Mediterranean, and from there go to Africa and Asia, returning by way of Hangkong, China, to the United States.

An idea of the extent to which the Building and Loan Associations are being used in Charlotte may be gathered from the fact that the association which has just announced the maturity of a series of 2,243 shares ($224,300) has a total of 73,000 shares in force, its most recently opened series amounting to 2,489 shares, which will be worth $248,900 at maturity. It has outstanding loans aggregating $2,906,000 on 1,400 pieces of property, which means that approximately 1,400 families are purchasing homes through the assistance of this association.

Intense heat caused 170 prostrations among those in the Harding funeral procession from the White House to the Capitol, in the lines of spectators along the route and the crowd awaiting entrance to the rotunda to view the body. First aid stations and hospitals reporting that this number was given treatment, said none was in serious condition. The temperature registered 90 degrees on the streets during the march. The heat was particularly oppressive, due to the high humidity.

Unrest is on the increase in Germany. Food riots, strikes, disorders and agitation fostered by the communists are among the troubles with which the government of Chancellor Cuno is contending. And to make the position worse, the government's tenure of office by reason of the "no confidence" decision of the united socialists appears soon to be over. There is every indication that the government would announce its retirement at almost any moment.

THE TABERNACLE

By Rev. Paul L. Berman, Our Missionary to the Jews in Baltimore

For 40 years the Israelites lived in tents in the wilderness, just as the Zedouins do today. This wild, roving life does not conduce to progress and change. Arts and industries can never flourish when people have no settled abode.

Now there must have been something altogether exceptional in the fact that while the Israelites came out of Egypt a nation of slaves, and wandered 40 years in the wilderness, they were able to produce laws which are the wonder and the model of all civilized nations. How can this be accounted for except on our willingness to admit the truth of the constantly recurring expression, "And God spoke unto Moses."

With perfect confidence we have been assured that the tabernacle never existed. It should be remembered there is not the slightest shred of evidence in support of this wild theory.

In the making of the tabernacle God was His own architect. The fact that so many chapters (13 in Exodus) are taken up with a description of its material, shape and furniture, indicates the importance which God attached to it. Then in the Epistle to the Hebrews we have an inspired explanation of the tabernacle as pointing us to Christ's work on earth and in heaven. Christ therein is the keynote of the tabernacle. As it stood in the wilderness, and afterwards in the Holy Land, it gave the Israelites the foundation principles of their religion by means of picture and symbol, without which spiritual truths must have been beyond their mental reach.

The study of the tabernacle by Christians becomes one of absorbing interest and profit, in that these pictures and symbols explain more fully God's plan of salvation through Christ our Saviour. The study of the subject is also of great importance in throwing light on the great doctrine of the atonement, that "without shedding of blood there is no remission of sin."

What then was the tabernacle? In the Hebrew word "Obel," translated "Tabernacle," is used for every ordinary tent; but structurally it differed entirely from them, excepting in one point—it was portable. The tabernacle consisted of framework of shittim wood, probably the Acacia, which grows wild in the wilderness. This framework was composed of 48 upright boards, 15 feet long and 27 inches wide and overlaid with gold. When erected, every board had to be fixed into "sockets" of solid silver, each board resting upon two heavy silver bars. The boards therefore did not touch the ground. But while each board was self-contained, they all had to be linked together and form one solid framework on which heavy curtains and hangings could securely rest. This was done by five long bars of wood (overlaid with gold) which were run into rings attached to each board. Every board was also pierced through with a hole, thus enabling another bar of wood to run right through them. While therefore the five bars were visible, this one was invisible.

When the framework was put up it measured 45 feet by 15 feet, and it stood 15 feet in height. Over this were thrown four coverings, described fully in Exod. 26:1-14, long and wide enough to completely hide the gilt boards from the exterior. The entrance was curtained with a very beautiful veil.

The tabernacle was then divided into two unequal parts; the first, called the Holy Place, being 30 feet long. This was divided from the Holiest of all by another very beautiful curtain. The general appearance from without was plain and unattractive, within, walls and all the contents, glittered with gold.

In the Holy of Holies stood the golden ark and chest with a lid on which rested the figures of two cherubims, also of gold; this was suggestively called God's Mercy Seat. Here was enshrined the symbol of God's abiding presence with His people. The Holy Place contained three things: the golden Altar of Incense; the Table of Shewbread, both made of shittim wood and overlaid with gold, and the beautiful seven-branched Candlestick, made of solid gold.

Outside the tabernacle in the court stood the great altar of burnt offerings, and the Brazen Laver. The court itself was 150 feet by 75 feet, and was divided from the encampment of the Israelites by means of long curtains of fine linen fixed on 60 pillars with a beautiful curtain at the entrance called the gate.

Such was, in brief, the tabernacle as designed by God Himself. That He regarded it as most important may be gathered from the fact that every detail of the framework, materials, etc., is mentioned four times. First when God gave the command (Ex. 25:30); once again as the various parts were being made (Ex. 36 and 38); a third time when Moses inspected and took stock of each part (Ex. 49:33-43); and lastly when it was being put up for the first time (Ex. 40). Why this fourfold repetition? Four biographies, so to speak, of the tabernacle, just as we have four biographies of Him who tabernacled with men. Why this repetition, except to emphasize the importance which God attached to its spiritual teaching? And in very truth, every detail sparkles with Gospel light.

One can here but hurry through the more important features of the tabernacle and show what teaching they conveyed:

1. The Outer Gate, consisting of a curtain only, so easy of access, no possibility of locking or barring it. Such is our Lord, who says, "I am the door" (John 10:7).

2. The Court itself divided from the encampment, a picture of the safe retreat of the people of God:—The Sheepfold (John 10:1).

3. The Altar of Burnt Offerings. "So Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many." (Heb. 9:28).

4. The Brazen Laver—"Christ also loved His church . . . that He might sanctify and cleanse it with the washing of water by the word" (Eph. v. 25, 26; see also Psalm 51:7; Zech. 13:1; John 3:5).

5. The Tabernacle as a Whole—"The Word was made flesh and tabernacled among us" (John 1:14).

6. The Boards of shittim wood, a wild tree growing in the wilderness: "At that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenant of promise, having no hope and without God in the world." (Eph. 2:12; Col. 1:21-22).

7. The Boards Joined Together with bars and forming a compact structure. "Christ the Head, from whom the whole body fitly joined together" (Eph. 4:15, 16). Again: "So we, being many, are one body in Christ, and every one members one of another" (Rom. 12:5).

8. Silver Sockets forming the foundations for all the boards. Silver is a symbol of redemption (Ex. 30:16): "Ye were not redeemed with corruptible things as silver and gold—but with the precious blood of Christ" (1 Pet. 1:18, 19; Col. 2:17; 1 Cor. 3:11).

9. The Golden Candlestick with its perpetual light—"I am the Light of the World" (John 8:12).

10. The Table of Shewbread—"I am the Living Bread which came down from heaven" (John 6:51).

11. The Altar of Incense—A priest entered daily into the Holy Place to burn incense. He represented the people before God. "Wherefore He is able to save to the uttermost—seeing He ever liveth to make intercession for us" (Heb. 7:25; see also Romans 8:34).

12. The Curtain (or Veil). Rent in twain from the top to the bottom (Matt. 27:51). "Through whom we have access by one spirit unto the Father" (Eph. 2:18; Heb. 10:19, 20).

13. The Holiest of All. No priest could enter here, not even the high priest, except on the solemn day of atonement, when he entered to sprinkle blood on the sacred ark. "For Christ is not entered into the holy places made with hands—but into heaven itself." (Heb. 9:24).

14. The Ark and the Mercy Seat—"Seeing that we have a great High Priest that is passed into the heaven, Jesus, the Son of God" (Heb. 4:14).

15. The Temporary Character of the Tabernacle and Its Ritual—"Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah . . . and this shall be the covenant: . . . I will put my law in their inward parts" (Jer. 31:31-33). And the inspired commentator exclaims: "In that He saith, a new covenant, He hath made the first old. Now that which decayeth and waxeth old is ready to vanish away" (Heb. 8:13; see also II Cor. 5:17, and Eph. 2:15).

Wonderfully suggestive too is the thought that each common board of a wild tree found in the wilderness, had to be transformed, by being completely covered with gold before it could be used in God's service. Does not this wood growing in the wilderness represent man in his natural state, while gold represents the holiness of God? And how incongruous it seems that the board from the wilderness had to be preserved by resting on a foundation of solid silver. Moreover the silver foundations had "sockets!" holes bored into them, so that the "tenons" or arms of the wood could penetrate and be firmly fixed, not only on the silver, but into the silver. This is the best picture we have explanatory of Eph. 2.

(Continued on page 12)

CHILDREN

ENJOYED VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl 10 years of age and I have recited the Child's Catechism and am trying to recite the Shorter Catechism. We have been having a Daily Vacation Bible School and have been making scrap books and baskets. We have learned lots of songs and we enjoy singing them. We went to the County Home and sang some songs to them; after a few days we went to Wilson and visited many places of interest; have had several picnics and will have a party soon. I am enjoying it fine. May I close my letter by asking one question: Who was the father of Artaxerxes?

Your little friend,
Mollie Gardner.

Wilson, N. C.

A BABY SISTER

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl seven years old. I go to Sunday School at the First Presbyterian Church. Dr. Rowan is my pastor. Miss Mary King is my Sunday School teacher. I have recited the Child's Catechism and received my Testament, Sunday, May 13th. I go to school and will be in the third grade when my school starts in September. I have a little sister; she will be one year old the first day of August; her name is Margaret Louise. I love to play with her. As this is my first letter to you, I hope it will not reach the waste basket.

Your little friend,
Eugenia Brunley.

Concord, N. C.

DADDY CALLING

Dear Standard:

I am a little boy 10 years old. This is my first letter to you. I will be in the fifth grade next term. I have four pets. They are a pony, two rabbits, and a bird. I have a buggy and bicycle. I go to Sunday School every Sunday. My teacher is Mrs. Fred McKay. Our pastor is Mr. A. R. McQueen, of the First Presbyterian Church. I will have to close for daddy is calling me.

Your unknown friend,
Newman Alexander Townsend, Jr.

P. S.—Put this in print, for I want to surprise my grandmother.

Dunn, N. C.

A FEBRUARY FOURTEENTH CALF

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl seven years old. I love to read the letters in your paper. I have four brothers and one sister; she has just come home from Summer school. I go to school to Philadelphus. I go in a truck. We have a little calf; her name is Valentine. I am in the third grade at school. My teacher's name is Miss Gertrude Mattison. My aunt takes your paper. I go to Sunday School. My pastor is Rev. H. M. Dixon. Well, I must close for fear of the waste basket.

Your friend,
Mary Alford McNeill.

Remert, N. C.

BIRTH THE EIGHTEENTH

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl eight years old. I will soon be nine. My birthday is August the 18th, and I have two sisters; one is named Jean Cameron and the other is named Agnes Neal. Jean is real cute. We call Agnes Neal, Peggy, for nick-name. This is my second letter to you. My grandmother takes your nice paper; my grandmother gives me the papers to read. I sure do enjoy reading the letters and stories. I guess I will close for fear of the waste basket.

Your friend,

Mary Elma McFadyen.

Montrose, N. C.

GOES IN BATHING

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl seven years old. I went to Antioch High School last winter. I was promoted to the third grade for next winter. I have two brothers, and one little sister. Her name is Effie, Catharine. She is nearly three months old. I like to play with her. I have a bathing suit. I like to go in bathing. I like to read the little letters in the Standard.

Your little friend,
Ruth Watson.

Red Springs, N. C., R. 3.

OFF FOR THE BIG WOODS

Beyond the Derrydale Avenue School stretched the long, long road which led to the big woods. As soon as the first tinge of green appeared on the lawns, the children began to talk of these woods, and on May 1st they always started out to find them. They had all the fascination of mystery, for no one in the school seemed to have really seen them. But many and varied were the delightful rumors about them. To Pauline Merrilies they meant a wide stretch of beautiful trees full of fresh young leaves, and beneath them a carpet of deep blue violets, pure white trilliums, feathery maidenhair and wild phlox in a sort of glorified patchwork.

With this vision glowing in her eyes, she tripped lightly along in the front line of the eager cavalcade of children on this May day. Carrying baskets and trowels and string, shod in rubbers and overshoes and a few much envied rubber boots, they started down the long, long road still oozy with April rains. Behind them at a little distance trotted a few stragglers—first and second graders. Bribes, threats and coaxings, however, sent these trotters homeward—all except Toots, short, fat, determined, little Toots, Pauline's brother.

"Goin' to pick flowers my own self," insisted the stubborn, little fellow. "Get my rubbers and everything."

"Tie him to a tree," suggested Scott Barlow, one of the larger boys. "We can pick him up on our way back."

"Let's all run; he couldn't keep up," cried one of the others.

"Please, Tootsie, go back," begged Pauline. Maybe mama has some candy. Anyhow, sister'll get you some. Yes, tonight; and an ice cream cone, two of 'em."

"Don't want none." Toots' round, blue eyes held visions of the big woods, too. "Wants jack in the pulpits and tiger lilies and—May apples. Wants a big bunch for mama."

The rest were getting ahead. Even Lois, her best friend, reluctantly left them. Taking a firm hold of her little brother's fat hand, she started desperately to run. Valiantly Toots' short legs tried to keep up. No use; stubbing his toe, he dragged face downward in the mud. By the time Pauline's handkerchief had wiped off the worst spots the other children were far ahead.

But Pauline pushed on—she just couldn't give up. Toots, trudging beside her, lifted one clumsy, little foot after the other steadily, sturdily—but oh, so slowly. In spite of all they could do, those others got farther ahead and farther ahead. Before very long they were scarcely more than mere specks in the distance. What were they doing now? They must have come to the pussy willows. For an instant Pauline felt a tiny bit glad that she wasn't with them. She hated barbed-wire; climbing under it with even the steadiest hand holding the upper wire was a painful process to her. But of course you had to do it—even if there was a cow with horns in the field. You wouldn't dare to let any one know you were afraid.

Arriving finally at the pussy willow field, Pauline found a little bunch of the red brown stems with the fluffy gray kitties on them. Lois had left them for her.

"Pretty pussies, Toots going to pick more," cried little brother, sliding immediately down the side of the ditch, splashing through it and pulling himself up on the other side. Unmindful of the red brown cow beyond the barbed wire, he tried to climb through.

"Toots, wait!" screamed Pauline. But too late; the sharp barbs had caught in the thick collar of his reefer and held him fast.

Could she get him loose before the cow got him? That was Pauline's one thought as she leaped recklessly across the ditch to his side. "Hush," she cried, "the cow'll hear you."

The cow had heard him—was staring straight at him. Her big, brown eyes looked gentle, but her horns looked very fierce. With quivering fingers Pauline strove with the twisted points caught in the heavy cloth. Ah, they were loose! But so was Toots—on the wrong side of the fence. Deaf to her calls he was running farther into the field looking up eagerly at the bushes. The cow fortunately had returned to her nibbling.

But she must go after him. Through the dreadful barbed wire—with no friendly hand to help her. Into the arena with the cow. Oh, the cow seemed tame enough, but those horns, she didn't have them for nothing. Placing one foot carefully between two of the ugly points on the lowest wire, Pauline lifted the upper wire gingerly with her hand. Bending double, shrinking from the wire above and below, she tried to squeeze through. At that very instant the red brown cow stretched forth her neck. "Moo-mooooo," rent the air.

Even Toots was terrified. Running to a big willow tree, with surprising dexterity he clambered up its knotty trunk. As for Pauline she was hopelessly entangled in the wire. Tam, stockings, hair, the wicked little points seemed to be everywhere. She untangled one only to get balled up in another. Why had the cow made that dreadful sound? What had she done to Toots? She worked feverishly. It seemed to be an age before she was free.

"Pauly—Pauly, here I am."

Where was he? Up in a tree, Toots! The cow must have tossed him there. She must beat her to it. She easily did so; the cow not even attempting to help. She was safe in the tree; they were both safe.

Nothing for it now but to wait in the tree for the return of the others. Perhaps they wouldn't find the big woods this time, either, she thought a bit hopefully. Toots, quite content to let his weary little legs rest, snuggled close to her. His eyes were surprisingly heavy; before long he slept. The cow rambled about in search of bits of green, then settled down at the base of the very willow in which they were seated.

What a sight for the returning wanderers. They would know beyond a doubt that she was afraid of cows now. She'd never hear the last of it.

The sky beyond the slender willow branches was turning a deep red. They must come soon. She could hear them. Oh, dear! But afterwards home and supper. What a relief!

"Wake up, Toots; they're coming."

They had not found the big woods. Pauline knew that the moment she saw them. Just a few yellow buttercups, a few cowslips and some half withered wild geraniums lay limply in the baskets with the pussy willows. Tired, cold and hungry, the flower hunters had lost all faith in the big woods again. In the most unamiable of moods, they caught sight of the treed boy and girl with the cow underneath. No explanation was necessary; they knew.

"'Fraid of a cow—'fraid of a cow," laughing and hooting the big boys leaped over the ditch, quickly followed by the whole mob. "'Fraid of a cow, wow, wow, wow!"

Lois was the only one who didn't join in. "Don't you care," she cried above the rude refrain, "we'll help you down."

Poor Pauline! She would have liked to tell them to go on and leave her. But she didn't dare; Toots was all worn out. She looked at Toots; he didn't look tired. The little fellow's eyes fairly blazed.

"'Fraid of a cow, wow, wow, wow!"

* * *

"Not afraid of a cow," above the clamor Toots' voice rang out. "We's just waitin' for—for somebody." Then in a fierce whisper to his sister: "We is waitin' for somebody—for the old cow to go to sleep or somethin'. And he will, too."

Paying no attention, the boys were getting all the fun out of the situation they could. Gathering sticks, they prepared to attack the cow. "We'll save you if it takes every man of us," cried Scott; then: "Forward, march, charge."

The gallant rescuers were scrambling through the fence. Pauline's face burned. "Don't you dare rescue me," she cried. "We are waiting for somebody. And this was the only place, dry—dry enough to sit down on."

With such emphasis did she speak that even Lois believed her. No one surely would refuse help when night was falling if they really needed it. But it was queer, very queer. And they wouldn't explain. In two's and three's the children melted away up the road until only Lois was left.

"You don't want help, really? I could call them back," Lois questioned earnestly.

"I don't, really," answered Pauline firmly enough; and Lois ran to catch up with the others.

The silence settled like a cold blanket about them. "Now we've gone and done it," muttered Pauline.

"And it's getting dark," whimpered Toots. "And cold. I wish that old cow would go to sleep—stead of just chewing and chewing. Just see his old tail switch around."

"We'll just have to get down anyhow," declared Pauline. But she made no move to get down. The red gradually faded from the sky. A whistle! Who was that whistling?

Across the field ambled a thin long-legged man in a big, sunburned hat. Pulling off the sunburned straw, he stared with comical amazement at the brother and sister. Then, glancing reproachfully at the cow, he cried, "Daisy, Daisy, I am surprised."

The kindly, weather-wrinkled face of the man seemed like an angel's to Pauline. "Are you his owner?" she cried eagerly. "Oh, please, please, take him away."

"Poor young-uns. From the town, I reckon—himming Daisy. Some of these here big woods hunters, maybe? Stopped by Daisy's wicked looking horns. Well, I swan!" The farmer paused a moment, then said: "Come, step your foot down on Uncle Jim's back, and we'll see what can be done."

Half an hour later the brother and sister were riding behind Farmer Jim's fast mare. Eating doughnuts and laughing at Uncle Jim's sallies, they passed the rest of the children just as they were straggling into town. In Pauline's lap rested a huge bunch of deep blue violets, picked by the farmer's boys that day. Waving the bunch at the surprised wayfarers, Pauline cried cheerily: "Beat you home after all."—Dora Dexter, in The Continent.

"Excusit-Please"

A telephone expert says we waste 4,000,000 seconds a day saying "Hello." And we waste a hundred times that waiting for a chance to say it.—Little Rock Gazette.

CHURCH NEWS

(Continued from page 9)
MISSOURI

The Presbytery of St. Louis will meet in the Overland Church, St. Louis County, Tuesday, September 18th at 8 p. m. Sessional records should be presented for review.
Walter M. Langtry, S. C.

TEXAS

Files Valley—Evangelist A. B. Carrero, assisted by his son, Martin, opened work less than two months ago among the Mexicans near Files Valley, Texas, and on Sunday, July 15th, he organized a church there with 16 members. Others have united since. The other two churches in his field, Wichita Falls and Ladonia, are making very fine progress. The advance field is surging to the front.

Taylor—The annual camp-meeting held by the Mexican churches of the Taylor sub-field was held this year near Taylor in a beautiful pecan grove close to the San Gabriel River. It lasted over two Sundays from Saturday July 28th to Sunday night, August 5th.

Our Mexican camp-meetings are invariably peccable and characterized by a spirit of brotherly love, but this one was unusually so. There was a sunrise prayer service every day; a lecture and two sermons at least daily. There was the usual happy singing, the service by the Endeavorers, the service for the children and a day set aside for the women as "Mother's Day."

On the second Sunday there were 183 at Sunday School besides some 20 on the grounds not in the classes. The collection was nearly $11.

Besides Mr. Penn, evangelist of that sub-field, the following ministers were present: G. A. Walls, of Austin, A. B. Carrero, wife and son, of Fort Worth, E. S. Roderiguez, of Dallas. Mrs. Marroquin, our missionary at Waco, was present part of the time and rendered valuable service. Prof. Ortega, of the State Health Association, gave us a fine lecture, and exhibited some moving pictures that were interesting and instructive especially for the young people.

Some Bibles and hymn books were sold and a great number of religious tracts were distributed. The Waco church and the church at Ladonia were each represented by an elder and two families from the Rosebud Church were in attendance.

Only six members were received, but eight or nine others will unite with the church soon, perhaps others.

This is only the fourth camp-meeting held in the Taylor field. Each year an improvement is noted. In a material way, a great improvement noted, this year was that each of the three evangelists, Penn, Carrero and Scott have their automobile for their respective fields of labor. The camp-meeting next year will be held near Waco, and no effort will be spared to make it a great success.

Thanks are due the Taylor First Church and friends in the city for help rendered for the Taylor meeting.

VIRGINIA

Union Theological Seminary, Richmond—At the meeting of the General Assembly at Charleston, W. Va., last year when Dr. John I. Good described the inability of the impoverished Presbyterians of Central Europe to provide adequately for the training of their ministers and suggested that our theological schools in America might help them by bringing some of their young men to this country and giving them their professional training, the alumni of Union Seminary at their annual reunion immediately subscribed the amount needed for the traveling expenses of one such student from the land of John Huss and made arrangements for his entering the seminary this Fall. Senior Soucek, head of the Czech Church at Prague, writes the seminary that they have selected for us a very attractive young man, Mr. John Vejnar, and that he will arrive in Richmond about August 10th. He will mingle here not only with a body of the picked young men of our own country, hailing from 20 different states of the Union, but also with equally choice men from eight foreign lands. The cosmopolitan character of the student body at Union Seminary was the thing that arrested the attention of the secretaries of the Council of Church Boards of Education in New York. They expressed themselves as "immensely interested" in it and asked how we accounted for the fact that our patronage was drawn from such a vast area. We pass the question on to the reader. The students themselves say it is accounted for by the teaching power of the faculty. Last year there were 26 states and countries represented and 43 universities and colleges. The high standard insisted on at Union does not seem to repel students. It seems to attract them. Last year the seminary had 128 students, the largest attendance ever enrolled in the history of our branch of the Church.
W. R. M.

Massanetta Springs Young People's Conference—From July 16-22, at Massanetta Springs, in the beautiful Shenandoah Valley, was held the third Young People's Conference of the Synod of Virginia. This was not only one of the largest Young People's Conferences ever held in the Southern Assembly, having 545 registered delegates, but also one of the greatest events in the religious life of the Young People in the Synod, for it brought together hundreds of our choicest young people for seven days of vision, inspiration, and instruction under devout Christian leaders. It was undoubtedly the best Young People's Conference the Synod has had and its influence will be felt throughout Virginia for years to come.

The clan system was again used and there were four boys' and 13 girls' clans, each under the supervision of a leader or counsellor. The spirit of fellowship and friendly rivalry existing between the clans added much to the conference spirit. The student council and an athletic council composed of one member from each clan also brought excellent results.

Rev. W. L. Carson, of Richmond, Va., conducted the devotional services and his splendid talks on "Keeping the Soul Healthy" made a lasting impression on his hearers. The text-book and Bible classes were all instructive and helpful. "The White Fields of Japan" was taught by Dr. Warren Stuart, of Nanking, China. The Christian Endeavor by Miss Van Deventer and Mr. Frank Wilson; Auxiliary Methods by Mrs. C. R. Vaughan, and Sunday School Methods by Rev. Walter Getty, of Kentucky. A class in "Methods for Leaders of Young People's Work" was taught by Rev. T. K. Currie, of Richmond.

The inspirational services led by Dr. Venable and the vesper services on the "Out-look" conducted by Miss Nancy White, were most helpful and inspiring.

The conference hour was conducted by the Young People themselves, under the leadership of Rev. Walter Getty. On the first day a president and secretary were elected and each day a number of young people gave talks on how the true spirit of fellowship existing at Massanetta could be maintained and why they came to the conference, and what they expected to take back home. At the last meeting one member from each clan told of what the conference had meant to them. These talks were, all sincere and far-reaching.

The most inspiring meeting of the whole conference was the closing service when in addition to the 43 volunteers attending, 85 young people consecrated their lives for service wherever the Lord might lead them. "Lord, Jesus Christ, we are in tune with Thee that we might own Thy sway, that we might hear Thy call, that we might test our lives by Thine" was the Conference motto. The results of this conference for the church in our Synod and above all for the Kingdom of Christ will be enduring.
Catherine Mathews, Secretary.

Washington, D. C.

WEST VIRGINIA

Moorefield—Rev. S. O. Hall, pastor, spent, as he did last year, the month of July at the Biblical Seminary in New York City.

The session in granting him these vacations presented checks from the congregation which covered his expenses.

Lewisburg Seminary—At a meeting of the Board of Trustees of Lewisburg Seminary at Lewisburg, W. Va., on July 20th, several forward-looking changes were effected. Greenbrier College for Women now takes the place of Lewisburg Seminary, and a drive is to be inaugurated at once for college freshmen to enter this fall, who in four years will be full graduates of Greenbrier College. The splendid four-year high school course with well-equipped departments of music, art, domestic science and arts and crafts is still open to students.

The management of the college is somewhat altered. Formerly under control of Presbytery, with 12 trustees, it is now under control of Synod with the same 12 trustees, plus ten trustees appointed by Synod. The old and new trustees held a joint meeting at Greenbrier hall last Friday, and from their number selected seven as a board of directors, who will meet every two months during the year. Mr. John D. Laing, chairman of the former board, was elected to the same office in the new board. Other members are Mrs. Frank N. Mann, Judge C. W. Campbell, John G. Graham, all of Huntington; Dr. John I. Armstrong, former president of Lewisburg Seminary; F. H. Barron, of Elkins; and H. F. Hunter, of Lewisburg. Mr. E. L. Bell was retained secretary of the board of trustees and Mr. Mason Bell was continued as treasurer.

Friends of the old Lewisburg Seminary throughout the South have pledged their support to the new Greenbrier College, and rejoice in this evidence of continued growth and progress in the old institution, which starts this Fall on its one hundred and thirteenth year of service to its community and the entire Southland.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Washington, Central Church—On July 27th the closing exercises of the Daily Vacation Bible School conducted by this church for five weeks this summer were held in the Sunday School room. This is the second year that we have had this school, and the results have been most gratifying. The Bible work has included stories from the Old and New Testaments, memorizing Scripture, and a more general study of the Bible conducted by the pastor during the devotional period each day. A new feature this year was the organization of the Junior boys into a military unit, with captain and four lieutenants. The work of the teachers was thus lightened, since the officers looked after the order in class, and the lieutenants drilled those who were backward in their memory work. The Junior girls were likewise organized into a society with president, and four vice-presidents. Many hymns and songs were learned, and were well sung by the children. The handwork was most creditable, and special mention may be made of the beautiful quilt made by the little girls knitting class, to be sent to some mission. We are fortunate in having in connection with the church a large and well-equipped playground, where the younger children enjoy the sand-box, slides, see-saws, etc., while the older ones take advantage of the basketball and tennis courts. The church has a supervisor on this playground all summer, and it is a popular spot with the children of this section of the city.

The 25 and more teachers who gave their time to the work of this school did so without remuneration other than their real and lasting joy in the service itself, and in the sincere appreciation of parents and friends. The number of pupils enrolled this term was 175.

THE TABERNACLE

(Continued from page 10)

These are but a few of the points of comparison between the tabernacle and Christ. More could be given, but is there not a danger of overstepping the mark by forcing meanings into words and sentences which were never intended by God, and which can only discredit the study of this all-important subject?

WHAT NEXT?

By Rev. Robt. Adams, D.D.

Years ago, through a committee, of which I was chairman, I succeeded in keeping the Synod of Georgia from electing a "Superintendent of Home Missions." I did not like the word, and thought I saw in the office possibilities of evil. The Synod afterwards reversed its decision, and we now have superintendents galore. We seem to have reached the point where the ministry as a whole must be "superintended." I have before me a copy of a letter to "the Auxiliary Presidents" from the "office of the Superintendent," with her signature, in reference to the special offering recommended by the Assembly for the first Sunday in July.

From it I take these two paragraphs:

"Many of our ministers will overlook this offering unless their attention is called to it. I am asking you as president of the Auxiliary to see that the matter is brought to the attention of your pastor with the request that he present this great need to his congregation and take up a collection for this cause on July 1st."

"Will you not see that your church observes this first Sunday in July by making an offering for this needy and worthy cause?" The italics are mine; but they doubtless correctly express the intended emphasis.

Of course, ministers are not expected to read the proceedings of the Assembly, nor to have mind enough to attend to their duties.

I wonder if this is the first result of the Assembly's action in placing women on its executive committees. If so, what next?

Since I have mentioned that action, I am going to exercise a little of the liberty that we once had of timidly offering some criticism of it. The editor may "superintend" what I say, and throw it away, if I am too bold.

The Assembly attempted to answer the protest of Dr. Reed and others, but made a wretched failure. The Assembly is not to be blamed for its failure, however, for the protest is unanswerable.

The report of the committee, adopted by the Assembly, says, "There is nothing in the Word of God nor in the government of our Church to prevent the Assembly appointing private members, male and female, upon its executive committees."

This is entirely true, for neither the Bible nor the Book of Church Order knows anything of executive committees.

Had former Assemblies been true to our law, giving them "power to commit the various interests pertaining to the general work of evangelization to one or more commissions," this phase of the woman question would doubtless never have shown itself. Our law of commissions is perhaps the most defective that we have; but I suppose no one ever thought of a court's placing on a commission any one who is not eligible to membership in the court.

But the weakness of the attempted answer is most forcibly shown in the Assembly's declaring itself "in entire harmony with the great principles expressed in the protest," and then deliberately violating those principles because there is nothing in the letter of the Scriptures or of the law of the Church to prevent such violation.

Thus we are being taught that we may hold to principles in theory, but ignore them in practice. What next?
Pendleton, S. C.

Marriages and Deaths

MARRIED

Holden-McPherson—At the home of the bride's mother, West Sanford Township, Lee County, N. C., August 8, 1923, by Rev. E. B. Carr, pastor of the groom, Mr. Neill McA. Holder, of Broadway, N. C., and Miss Mary E. McPherson, of West Sanford Township, Lee County, N. C.

DEATHS

Adamson—James William Adamson was born August 7, 1880, in Durham, England, and died, after a brief illness, June 3, 1923, in Buenos Aires, Argentina. In 1908 he married Virginia Randolph Wardlaw, who survives him with three daughters, Mary, Jessie and Elizabeth.

"Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life."

A good deal of the world's noise is made for the purpose of stilling the inner voice.

It takes a brave man to honestly face himself.

There is no better mirror than a true friend.

In a bad cause it is better to lose than win.

Story and Incident

THE BEAUTY DOCTOR

Of course this a subject in which mere men are not interested, but the numbers of "beauty parlors" suggests that women spend a good deal of time and money on beauty doctors, and some at least are frank enough to assert that they do not always secure the desired results. A brave man has ventured recently to suggest to the dear ladies that he could tell them how to beautify themselves without money and without price. It is apparent that if they would all take his advice the beauty doctors would have to go out of business. He declares that it is not the handsome face, form or feature that always, or even usually wins out. The world's greatest women, most noted for their charm, have generally been deficient in one or more of these respects. Sometimes behind all these something must therefore be sought and secured. It is that indefinable something which we call "personality," and which reveals itself in an inimitable graciousness or winsomeness, which is the fruit of the spirit. Long ago Joseph Addison protested against some of the ladies of London who were giving all their attention to the decoration of that part of their heads which we call the outside. The intimation was that on the inside there was "nobody home." This sad state of affairs may be discovered also in places not so far distant. Even in America some are more concerned with rouge than with reality, more deeply interested in cosmetics than in the cosmos.

It may be of some value to us to examine the suggestions made by the centuresome journalist to whom we have referred. He says: "To be beautiful to men, the woman must like men; that is, she must be human. There is moderation in everything, but it can be safely said that a woman who is not pleased when a man comes around, and who does not show it in her actions, is not the sort of woman that man likes to have around. One of the most offensive qualities in a woman, and one that drives away admirers, is egotism, which, either in man or woman, is probably the most hated of all qualities. Sometimes an utterly selfish and self-centered woman may attract admiration, but as a rule she does not keep it long. Perhaps the most charming qualities in any woman is happiness. A happy woman is well liked anywhere and everywhere. People, including men, like sunshine, and do not care for gloom, particularly female gloom. Another quality in woman which has a charm for men is enthusiasm. A man likes a woman to be in favor of things, and not generally opposed to everything. If you have the critical faculty very highly developed, better make up your mind to be an old maid. By the same token, a sharp wit and bitter tongue may be very pleasing to your vanity, but men do not like it. The epigram concerning wit which says that "wit is the art of getting yourself disliked," is particularly true of women. Finally, the thing that men like in women is appreciation. Most women are born appreciators; hence universal charm."

We imagine we are hearing some fair ones say that such a diagnosis is merely an added proof of male conceit. Nevertheless, we are willing to risk our reputation on the prophecy that she who pays more attention to this wise counsel than she does to beauty doctors is likely to be most successful in winning and holding the love and admiration of mankind. And surely she will be more certain to deserve it.—Reformed Church Messenger.

THE BOY WHO DARED

Rev. Frederick Bankhardt, in Zion's Herald

Boys are boys the world around, no matter whether their skin is white or black or yellow. You might as well try to hold a tiger when he is after a goat as to keep a boy from going to see the circus parade as it goes through the street.

When the strange white face of a missionary appears in a village in the interior of China, it certainly is the whole show. Many a boy then turns out to see the "circus."

"I dare you to touch him," said Lien Hung to Li Ching. "I dare you," two or three others chimed in. Li Ching made up his mind he would show the boys that he dared to touch the white-faced foreigner. Slowly he edged up to the missionary, stopping now and then to screw up his nerves a little more. Eventually he got near enough to me. Reaching out his hand, he touched my arm—and then ran as fast as he could back to the group standing some distance away. "Good for you, Li Ching, you surely are brave!" Yes, he dared touch me and escaped without the least hurt! He was the hero of the day.

But why was he considered a hero? What danger is there in touching a white-faced missionary? I must tell you a story to answer your question.

A lady missionary had started a Sunday School for non-Christian boys and girls. After some months she had quite a number of them present every Sunday afternoon. She rejoiced over her success and thanked God for the many boys and girls she was reaching.

One Sunday afternoon as she was on her way to Sunday School she was thinking of those Chinese boys and girls whom she would soon see again. Generally she found some of them waiting for her in front of the little chapel. This day as she approached the chapel, she did not see a single boy or girl. She wondered if she was late. She looked at her watch. "Why,

MOREHEAD CITY, N. C.

The ideal North Carolina Coast resort, offering unusual attractions and accommodations for visitors. Atlantic Hotel has been remodelled and with other hotels offer excellent accommodations. Unsurpassed surf bathing at Bogue Sound.

Convenient schedule via Norfolk Southern trains and close connecting lines.

Special Sunday, Week-end and Summer excursion fares. Sunday train leaves Morehead City 5:30 p. m.

For information, rates and schedules, apply any ticket agent or write

J. F. DALTON
General Passenger Agent
Norfolk, Va.

WESTERN NORTH CAROLINA
"The Land of the Sky"
MICHIGAN WISCONSIN MINNESOTA COLORADO UTAH CALIFORNIA CANADA NEW ENGLAND
and
SEASHORE RESORTS
Greatly Reduced SUMMER FARES
Now in Effect
via
Southern Railway System
From CHARLOTTE, N. C.
Send for Free Booklet
Convenient Schedules
Attractive Service
Inquire
R. H. GRABAM, D. P. A., Charlotte, N. C.

CENTRAL BUREAU of PUBLICITY
FOR
Presbyterian Schools and Colleges
Departments of
Newspaper-Church Paper Publicity
Alumnae Organization
General Publicity
For particulars address R. H. RICE, Director
Box 869, Charlotte, N. C.
CHRISTIAN EDUCATION Emphasized Through PUBLICITY

Largest and Most Modern Plant in the Carolinas

Charlotte Marble & Granite Works
R. E. SCOGGINS, Proprietor CHARLOTTE, N. C. W. 7th St. and Southern Railway
Oldest Largest Best Phone 281

it's still fifteen minutes before time to start," she said to herself. As she got to the door and looked in, her face was blank with surprise, for the room was entirely empty! Not a single voice greeted her with the usual "Bing-ang" ("Peace be

STOPS THE WASTE IN PIANO BUYING

That is what the Standard Piano Club does, and what hundreds of letters from Club members prove it does. Better Pianos and Player-pianos for less money—that is the motto and that is the experience of everyone who has placed his order through the Club.

If you would like to see the most enthusiastic bunch of letters you ever read, write for booklet containing endorsements from Club Members. They tell of the surpassing beauty and superior quality of the instruments, of the big saving in price, of the splendid plans for easy payments, of the wise provision for the protection of the family in the event of the death of the purchaser, of the exchange privilege and of the absolute guarantee of satisfaction. These letters are written by people like yourself. We wish you to see the Club's proposition, for we know that you will be delighted with it.

Every feature is positively guaranteed by one of the oldest, largest and most reliable piano houses in America. Write today for your copy of the Club's catalogue. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Standard Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

with you"). She wondered if something was wrong with her watch, but as she looked at the chapel clock, she found it agreed with her watch. "Maybe something prevented them from coming early today," she said to herself. So patiently she waited. Two o'clock came and went, but not a boy or girl appeared. She waited until half-past two and then decided to visit the homes of those boys and girls, to find out what had happened.

Now, these children lived on sampans. Their ancestors for centuries past had lived on such boats. Yes, even pigs and chickens live on these small boats. These children were, as their ancestors, all born on these boats. When the child is still young, the mother ties a rope around him and then if he falls overboard, which happens at times, she just pulls on the rope and brings him back to safety.

In order to visit these homes the lady missionary had to engage a sampan and row from boat to boat. This she had often done before. She knew just about where the little boat of each boy and girl in her Sunday School was anchored. Their mothers always met her with a smiling face and held out their hands to help her over into the boat. Then hurriedly a cup of tea and some watermelon seeds were brought to the foreign guests, after which they had a delightful chat with her.

But how different today! As she drew near to the boat where lived one of her Sunday School scholars, she noticed how the children hurried under cover, and how the mother dropped the bamboo shutter and would not come out, even when the sweet voice of the lady missionary called. That voice had always been welcomed before. The missionary could not understand what had happened. She had the boatman row her to one boat and then another, but the same reception awaited her at each one. At last she got desperate. She had herself rowed to the home of one of her best friends, and without waiting for an invitation or an outstretched hand, she stepped over on to the little boat, lifted the bamboo shutter, and looked in. There she saw the frightened mother and her frightened children sitting close together.

"Mother, please tell me what is wrong today. Why are you all so afraid of me? You never were afraid of me before. Why did none of the boys and girls come to Sunday School today?"

The kind face and sweet voice of the missionary lady soon gave the Chinese mother courage enough to talk, "Oh, have you not heard the terrible news?" she said.

"Why, no, what do you mean?" And now that frightened mother told the missionary lady how last night a little boat came down the river with two white-faced foreigners in it. They caught two Chinese boys and carried them away. Then they took out their eyes and made medicine of them! "Of course, when we heard that, we would not let our children go to Sunday School, for fear they might be caught also."

The missionary then asked what boat the children were taken from. When told what boat she at once rowed to it, but the mother there said, "Oh, not mine, but Mrs. Li's." So she rowed to Mrs. Li's. But Mrs. Li said, "No, not mine, but Mrs. Dang's." All the afternoon the missionary rowed from boat to boat, but nowhere could she find the family whose children had been stolen. It was one of those strange stories, started by some one, which spread like wild-fire, everybody believing the tale to be true.

As a boy I used to hear the words, "If you are not good, the bogey man will catch you!" Well, in China the naughty boy will hear mother say, "If you are not good, the white man will catch you!"

But you must not think that the boys in China are cowards. Even though they hear strange stories about the white-faced foreigner, they dare to touch him, as you

LET YOUR BOY START RIGHT

Under Christian influences, military training, careful supervision and thorough academic instruction at

CARLISLE SCHOOL

A well-known preparatory school of high standards. Excellent dormitories, class rooms, gymnasium, infirmary, library and general equipment. Two academic courses offered. Total fee for year, $362.50. For literature, address W. C. DUNCAN, Headmaster, Bamberg, South Carolina.

NORTH CAROLINA STATE COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND ENGINEERING
STATE COLLEGE STATION RALEIGH, N. C.

Technical Education at State College prepares its graduates for personal success and for leadership in industrial progress. The college offers

FOUR YEAR COURSES IN:

Agriculture—Including General Agriculture and Specialized Courses in Farm Crops, Agricultural Engineering, Animal Husbandry and Dairying, Botany, Horticulture, Poultry Science, Soils, Veterinary Medicine, Vocational Education.
Chemistry, Agricultural Chemistry, Textile Chemistry and Dyeing.
Civil Engineering, Architecture and Highway Engineering.
Electrical Engineering, Mechanical Engineering.
Textile—Textile Engineering, Textile Manufacturing, Textile Chemistry and Dyeing, Agricultural Economics, Business Administration, Rural Life, General Science, Physics, Biology.

TWO YEAR COURSES IN:

Agriculture, Mechanic Arts, Textile Manufacturing.

One Year Course in Auto Mechanics.

Winter Course in Agriculture for Farmers.

Summer Session for Teachers, for College Entrance and for College Credit.

Excellent equipment in all departments.

Session 1923-1924 begins September 4.

Entrance requirements for Freshman Class, 15 units—English, 3; History, 2; Mathematics, 2½; Science, 1; Elective, 6½.

For catalog, illustrated circulars, and entrance blanks, write E. B. OWEN, Registrar.

Medical College of Virginia

(State Institution—Established 1838)

Dentistry

Medicine—Pharmacy—Nursing

Well-equipped laboratories under supervision of full-time teachers. Abundance of clinical material in the Memorial, St. Philip and Dooley Hospitals, owned and controlled by the College.

For Catalogue, Address

J. R. McCAULEY, Sec'y-Treas.

1140 E. Clay St. Richmond, Va.

FOR GIFTS OF

Watches, Jewelry or Silverware

Write

JAMES ALLAN & CO.

THE JEWELERS

185 King St. Charleston, S. C.

67 years in business selling the best goods at the most reasonable prices

Memorandum packages sent upon receipt of satisfactory references

We prepay charges on all purchases

The McCallie School

A non-sectarian school founded for Christian education, never more needed than today. Here your boy will have the right sort of associates and will be under the influence of men chosen for their Christian character as well as for their teaching ability. Bible classes most popular in the school.

Thorough preparation for college and for United States Military and Naval Academies. Small classes, personal attention for each boy.

Military training of the best sort. Daily drill under graduates of Army training camps familiarizes boys with essentials of military discipline.

All athletics. One of the best athletic fields in the South. Gymnasium and new concrete swimming pool.

Headmasters:

S. J. McCallie, M.A., and J. P. McCallie, M.A., Ph.D.

For catalogue, address

The McCallie School

Mission Ridge Chattanooga, Tenn.

If In Doubt, Take B. & L. Shares

You will earn the highest interest rate on your savings consistent with perfect safety, and pay no tax on savings.

Shares cost twenty-five cents per week, and usually mature in 333 weeks. Net you 6 1/4 per cent at maturity.

SERIES OPEN IN JANUARY, APRIL, JULY AND OCTOBER

Mechanics Perpetual Building & Loan Association

225 N. Tryon St.

Established 1883

Charlotte, N. C.

SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY

Announces

REDUCED ROUND-TRIP RATES

to

Wrightsville Beach, N. C.,

and Other Resorts

From	to	Week-end
Charlotte, N. C.	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	$ 8.60
Lincolnton, N. C.	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	9.95
Shelby, N. C.	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	10.90
Rutherfordton, N. C.	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	12.05

Tickets on sale Fridays and Saturdays of each week, May 18th to September 2, 1923. Limited to reach original starting point Tuesday following date of sale.

Season tickets Charlotte, N. C., to Wrightsville Beach, N. C. and return $11.30, sold any day May 15th to September 30th, with final limit to October 31, 1923.

For sleeping car reservation or other information apply to ticket agent or address,

E. W. LONG
Division Passenger Agent
Charlotte, N. C.

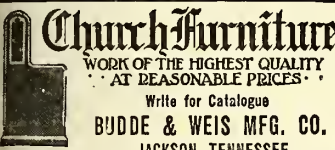

have already seen. Yes, even better than that, thousands of boys have grown to know and love the white-faced missionary.

I want to introduce you to Liao Guoh In, another boy who "dared." I came to know him a few years ago while itinerating in the interior of China. As I entered a little chapel I met the boy. "Little brother, how old are you?" "Eleven years old." "Can you read?" "A little." "How many years have you studied?" "About five years." Thus I began my conversation with the lad in that melodious Chinese language.

GOOD POSITIONS

Paying fine salaries can be had for ambitious young men and women who complete our commercial and stenographic courses. Our aim this season is to enroll a very large number of such students who can be trained for high and responsible positions. Won't you be one to enroll? A postal address to us will bring you our catalog. Write for it.

DRAUGHONS BUSINESS COLLEGE
Knoxville, Tenn.

Church Furniture
WORK OF THE HIGHEST QUALITY
AT REASONABLE PRICES
Write for Catalogue
BUDGE & WEIS MFG. CO.
JACKSON, TENNESSEE

NORFOLK SOUTHERN RAILROAD COMPANY

Passenger Schedules

Effective January 28, 1923

Charlotte, N. C.

Daily Except Sunday as Shown
Lv. 7:30 A. M.

Raleigh and intermediate points. Connection for Belhaven, Norfolk, and intermediate points.

For tickets, Pullman reservations and information address or apply to

J. K. POWELL, D. T. A.
P. A. JENKINS, C. T. A.

MARY BALDWIN COLLEGE AND MARY BALDWIN SEMINARY
Established in 1842

For Young Ladies Staunton, Va. Term begins September 6th. In Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. Unsurpassed climate, modern equipment. Students from 33 States. Courses: Collegiate, 4 years, A.B. Degree; Preparatory, 4 years. Music, Art, Expression, Domestic Science. Athletics—Gymnasium and Field. Catalogue.

School Desks,
Opera Chairs,
Folding Chairs
Kindergarten Chairs,
Church Pews,
School Supplies,
Blackboards
Southern Desk Co., Hickory, N. C.

COLUMBIA THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
Columbia, S. C.

The Seminary of the Synods of South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Florida

FACULTY

- JOHN MILLER WELLS, A.M., Ph.D., D.D., LL.D.
President of the Seminary
Professor of Practical Theology
- WILLIAM M. McPHEETERS, D.D., LL.D.
Professor of Old Testament Literature and Exegesis
- HENRY ALEXANDER WHITE, A.M., Ph.D., D.D., LL.D.
Professor of New Testament Literature and Exegesis
- RICHARD C. REED, D.D., LL.D.
Professor of Ecclesiastical History and Church Polity
- MELTON CLARK, A.B., D.D.
Professor of the English Bible and Religious Education
- EDGAR D. KERR, A.B., B.D., D.D.
Professor of Hebrew and Cognate Languages
- JAMES BENJAMIN GREEN, A.B., D.D.
Professor of Didactic and Polemic Theology
- HUGH R. MURCHISON, A.B., B.D.
Instructor in Missions

The next session will begin Wednesday, September 19, 1923. For information write to Rev. Hugh R. Murchinson, Executive Secretary, Columbia, S. C.

I soon found out that he was a bright chap. He had been taught mostly in Chinese classics. He knew very little about modern science and modern history. The longer I talked with him, the more I realized that in him was the possibility of a coming leader in China. My heart burned with a desire to get him to go to our Boys' Boarding School. I found he was anxious to go, so I asked his father. He said, "Yes, I'm willing, but you'll have to ask grandpa." "Well, what's grandpa got to do about it?" you may ask. In China, grandpa is highly respected, and as long as he is alive, his advice is asked and generally followed. So there was nothing else for the white-faced missionary to do but to go to see grandpa.

As I looked around that Chinese house I saw many idols. I soon realized that they had a powerful influence over grandpa. He worshiped them daily. When I talked to him about his little grandson's going away to school, I got a decided "No!" There were two things that caused grandpa to speak thus. In the first place, he did not want to offend the idols by sending his grandson to a Christian school, and then he did not want him to go so far away. No telling what might happen to the rat-boat while it shot down the rapids, and especially down the Ladder. He did not want his grandson, whom he dearly loved, to be drowned.

While in the house I looked into another room and saw a number of Chinese instruments hanging on the wall. "Who plays these?" I asked. "Why, little Guoh In can play every one of them!" I now wanted the boy more than ever, but I had to go away rather discouraged. Before leaving I told the Chinese pastor to try his best to get the boy to go to our school.

The next term, when school opened, I was happily surprised to see little Guoh In among the new students. He proved to be the bright student I knew he would be. He became the leader in his class.

About a year later, I again went up the Ladder in my rat-boat. My trip included a day's stop in the village where Guoh In lived. I was there only a little while when I received an invitation to a Chinese feast. It was not the invitation to the feast that made me happy (Chinese food is good if you like it, but it does not always agree with me), but because the feast came from grandpa!

The first thing I noticed on entering the house was that there were no idols to be seen. As we were sitting around the table, all eating out of the same dish, with our chopsticks, the pastor said to me: "Teacher, do you know that grandpa is the most hot-hearted (meaning most earnest) Christian me have?" "What do you mean?" I said, for only a year ago he would have nothing to do with Christianity and refused to let his grandson go to our school. He then told me that after Guoh In got to school, he wrote letters home to grandpa, telling him about the school, about the missionaries, about his studies, and at the close of his letters urged grandpa to go to the little chapel. Grandpa loved Guoh In so much that he could not refuse his request. So he went to the little chapel, and soon became a most earnest Christian.

Take notice, boys, that the white-faced missionary could not get grandpa to go to church, neither could the Chinese pastor, but the little boy got him to go! Yes, that whole family became Christians. Here was a coming leader.

Now, Guoh In was a boy who dared leave home; he dared shoot down the Ladder in a rat-boat; he dared to go where the strange, white-faced missionaries lived. What has become of him? Well, after graduating from the Boys' School he taught school for a year; then preached for another year; after that he went to another school, from which he was graduated. He is now a teacher, helping train young men who shall have a vital part in shaping new China.

An elephant once, in Brazil,
Tried hard a mosquito to kill;
But it jumped on his back
And hid in a crack,
And it's probably hiding there still.

—Ex.

A world without a Sabbath would be like a man without a smile, like a summer without flowers, and like a homestead without a garden. It is the joyous day of the whole week—H. W. Beecher.

1839 ERSKINE COLLEGE 1923

A College With a History

A College With a Future

This institution, under control of the Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church, has always stood for Scholarship, Culture and Character. It is situated in the healthy Piedmont section of South Carolina, in a quiet village of 800 people. Able Faculty, Standard Courses, Religious, Literary and Athletic Activities, combine to develop the highest type of well-rounded manhood.

Costs moderate as is consistent with first-class service and high-grade instruction. Next session opens September 19th, 1923. For catalog and information, write to

R. C. GRIER, President

DUE WEST, S. C.

Flora Macdonald College

Red Springs, North Carolina

Where the Spirit of SERVICE and LOYALTY Abounds

3,000 Alumnae engaged in 60 Occupations
10 Graduates "On the Firing Line"

Courses leading to A. B., B. S., B. M. Degrees

Catalog on Request Address the Registrar

Queens College, Charlotte, N. C.

A High Grade Institution for the Education of Young Women

Christian Ideals constantly held before the Students; Christian Characters in the chair of each Department; Five Teachers with M. A. Degree; Two Teachers with Ph.D. Degree; Christian Atmosphere permeating the Student Body.

Location, the very best; Myers Park, Charlotte. Equipment rapidly reaching standard requirements. Curriculum equal to that of any institution in the State. Expenses very moderate indeed, considering advantages offered and work done.

Our Motto: "Christian Women for Christian Homes." Send us your daughter, support us in our administration and instruction, and we will return a thoroughly developed and fully refined Christian woman.

For catalogue and other information, write

WILLIAM H. FRAZER, President
Box 300
Charlotte, N. C.

Aberdeen & Rockfish Railroad

BETWEEN ABERDEEN AND FAYETTEVILLE

EAST BOUND			DISTANCE FROM ABERDEEN	STATIONS	DISTANCE FROM FAYETTEVILLE	WEST BOUND
Pass.	Local Freight	Pass.				Pass.	Local Freight	Pass.
DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY				DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY	DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY
NO. 14	NO. 22	NO. 38				NO. 41	NO. 21	NO. 15
7:00 pm	7:30 am	9:00 am	0	Iv...Aberdeen...Ar.	45	s 6:50 pm	3:50 pm	8:30 am
f 7:19 pm	s 8:15 am	f 9:16 am	5	---Ashley Heights---	40	f 6:35 pm	f 3:20 pm	f 8:12 am
s 7:28 pm	f 8:36 am	f 9:26 am	9	---Sanitorium---	36	f 6:26 pm	s 3:05 pm	s 8:02 am
f 7:34 pm	f 8:39 am	f 9:30 am	10	---Montrose---	35	f 6:22 pm	f 3:00 pm	f 7:58 am
f 7:46 pm	f 8:51 am	f 9:38 am	13	---Timberland---	32	f 6:13 pm	f 2:45 pm	f 7:48 am
8:00 pm	s 9:55 am	s 9:53 am	19	---Raeford---	26	s 6:00 pm	s 2:25 pm	7:30 am
	s 10:13 am	f 10:08 am	24	---Dundarrach---	21	f 5:45 pm	s 1:25 pm
	f 10:21 am	f 10:15 am	26	---Arabia---	19	f 5:39 pm	f 1:15 pm
	s 10:40 am	s 10:29 am	30	---Rockfish---	15	s 5:25 pm	s 12:55 pm
	f 10:43 am	f 10:31 am	31	---Hope Hills Jct.---	14	s 5:22 pm	f 12:50 pm
	f 10:53 am	f 10:40 am	34	---Fenix---	11	f 5:13 pm	f 12:38 pm
	s 11:00 am	s 10:46 am	36	---Clifton---	9	s 5:08 pm	s 12:33 pm
	f 11:12 am	f 10:56 am	40	---Skibo---	5	f 5:00 pm	f 12:18 pm
	f 11:19 am	f 11:02 am	42	---Owena---	3	f 4:55 pm	f 12:11 pm
	11:30 am	s 11:15 am	45	Ar. Fayetteville Lv.	0	s 4:45 pm	12 noon

East and North bound trains have right of track over West and South bound trains of the same class. All trains stop on flag at Lake field.

PICNIC

Years ago some young folk went on an outing. Oh, it was so long ago that old Aunt Bettie Benton can not even remember it. In those days girls wore collars on their necks, and some ornamental jabot jamborecs, cute little tricks on the collars on the backs. The boys were awkward and nervous and mean then as now; and when a boy got near a girl he picked at the thing on her neck. They were called the pick neckers. It was first called a pic-neck, because it was a time when the boys teased the girls and picked at their necks. It was later known as picnic, and meant a time for old and young to turn their backs on the cares that beset our path and go out in God's big fields to have a good time. Is the old basket ready? Come on? But don't forget the big basket.—Ex.

BOILS Old Sores, Cuts and Burns have been healed since 1820 with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 724 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Why Take Laxatives?

Discovery by Science Has Replaced Them.

Pills and salts give temporary relief from constipation only at the expense of permanent injury, says an eminent authority.

Science has found a newer, better way—a means as simple as Nature itself.

In perfect health a natural lubricant keeps the food waste soft and moving. But when constipation exists this natural lubricant is not sufficient. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

As Nujol is not a medicine or laxative, it cannot gripe and, like pure water, it is harmless and pleasant.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals. Get a bottle from your druggist today. (adv.)

Sparkles

His Loving Wife

A charming young woman came to the window of a bank out west, and handing in a check for one hundred dollars, stated that it was a birthday present from her husband, and requested payment. The teller informed her that she must first endorse it.

"I don't quite understand," she said, with a pleading look and an air of hesitation, "just what you mean."

"Why, you see," he explained, "you must write your name on the back of the check, so that when we return the check to your husband, he will know we have paid you the money."

"Oh, yes, I understand," she replied, apparently much relieved.

After a moment she returned to the window and presented the check. Looking for the endorsement, the teller read: "Many thanks, darling boy, I've got the money all right. Your loving little wife, Dorothy."—Ex.

Thought They Were Patriarchs

A man approached a stand upon which some questionable looking fowls were offered for sale. "What will you sell them for?" he asked of a shrewd, gray-bearded farmer.

"I sell them for profits," answered that individual.

"Is that so?" answered the customer, in feigned surprise. "I'm glad to know they are prophets. I took them for patriarchs."—electd.

"What are you going to give your son for a commencement present?"

"A job."—Life.

"I shall be so miserable all the while I'm away from you!"

"If I could be sure of that, it would make me so happy."—London Mail.

Professor (in zoology lab.)—"What insect lives on the least food?"

Bright Pupil—"The moth. It eats holes."—Upper Iowa Collegian.

TYPEWRITERS

New and Rebuilt
For Sale, Rent or Exchange
S. H. WILEY
Salisbury, N. C.

On your money. It is worth it—why not get it? 6% is 100% more than 3%, and 50% more than 4%. 16 years of Safety and Service.

SECURITY SAVINGS AND LOAN CO.
Assets $1,239,951.22
F. W. DIXON, President - Birmingham, Ala

"Like an Old Violin"

The Stieff instrument has that soft, mellow tone, that lovers of music demand. For three generations this piano has delighted its users.

Chas. M. Stieff, Inc.,
Charlotte, N. C.
Please send catalogue and prices of Pianos.
Name _____
Address _____

CHAS. M. STIEFF, Inc.
Charlotte, N. C.

STIEFF PETIT GRAND
The smallest Grand Piano made that embodies all the essential qualities of the Concert Grand.

THE PREACHER

teacher, elder or deacon who spends all or gives it away is a dangerous leader in any community. Get rid of him and employ a practical man, righteous, but without, honest to his wife and children.

THE MUTUAL BUILDING AND LOAN

is the best savings institution in this country. You can carry shares no matter where you live, but you're not doing it, yet you've got to die just as the day laborer. Who's to take care of your wife and little ones for whom you and you alone are responsible?

THINK IT OVER, BROTHER

The July series is just starting. Get in today.

JNO. R. PHARR,
President

E. L. KEESLER,
Secretary-Treasurer
Charlotte, N. C.

Opportunity Never Seeks

The man or woman without money. That is why you should save and steadily build up an account in a strong bank where the money will be ready for you when the right opportunity comes along. Your account will be welcome here.

"National Bank Safety for Savings"

Charlotte National Bank
Resources Over $5,000,000.00

BELK BROS. CO.

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

We call your attention to our HOME FURNISHING DEPARTMENT

Just Received One Car Load of

Genuine Japanese Grass Rugs

All colors---browns, blues, greens. Borders to match colorings

18 x 36 Inches	-----	$.29
27 x 54 Inches	-----	.69
36 x 72 Inches	-----	.98
4 1/2 x 7 Feet	-----	1.69
6 x 9 Feet	-----	2.95
8 x 10 Feet	-----	3.98
9 x 12 Feet	-----	4.75

Let us estimate on your Shades, Floor Coverings, and Draperies.

Will send a man to see you.

Gold Seal Congoleum by the yard or the Rug

We make Window Shades any size. Send us your measurements and we do the rest.

We carry a big line of Luggage. All kinds—See us on Trunks, Suit Cases, Hand Bags.

We appreciate your patronage and guarantee every article we sell Any business entrusted to us will have our prompt attention.

WE SOLICIT MAIL ORDERS

Belk Bros. Co., Charlotte, N. C.

W. T. McCoy & Co. announce the arrival of their first shipments of the advanced styles and designs in the new Fall Living Room, Hall and Dining Room Furniture. The new Fall goods are not only strikingly handsome, but are very moderate in price. A visit to this store will please you.

W. T. McCOY & CO.

211 South Tryon St.

Charlotte, N. C.

1923

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

A Religious Newspaper for the Family

Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.

Rev. J. R. Bridges, D.D., Charlotte, N. C., Editor

Rev. R. C. Reed, D.D., Columbia, S. C., Editor

Vol. LXIV

CHARLOTTE, N. C., AUGUST 22, 1923

No. 34

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $3.00 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE
REV. W. L. BOGGS, Circulation Manager

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
BY PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY,
A. M. GRAY, Treasurer.

ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858.

Entered at the Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as second class matter

A Religious Newspaper for the Family, Devoted to the Interest of Christ's Kingdom as Represented by the Southern Presbyterian Church.

Address all communications, and make all checks payable, to the company, and not to individuals.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The label on the paper gives the date to which subscription is paid.

When change of address is desired, give the old and new address. When the date of the label is behind the date of this issue of the paper the label is a reminder that the subscription price is past due. When the date of the label is in advance of the date of this issue it is a receipt for the last subscription paid.

In accordance with the wishes of our patrons, the paper is discontinued only upon the written request of the subscriber. Arrearages must be settled in full at the same time, at the rate of three dollars a year.

No charge is made for the insertion of marriage and obituary notices of fifty words or less. For all over fifty words remit at the rate of one cent a word. Correspondents are requested to give the post office address of married couples when marriage notices are sent.

News items should be in our hands by Monday morning in order to insure their publication in the current issue.

CHANGE OF ADVERTISEMENTS

Advertisers who want their advertisements changed or want to insert new advertisements will please bring their copy to this office by Saturday. It is impossible for us to insert new advertisements or make changes for the current week at a later date.

Advertising rates furnished on application. The size and character of this paper indicate the size and character of its constituency. For reputable advertising there is no better medium for North and South Carolina and the most prosperous section of the South.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

EDITORIAL—
A New Thing at Montreat	1
Some of the Montreat Conferences	1
Testimony From the Secular Press	2
Teaching Church History at Montreat	2
CONTRIBUTED—
Home Mission Conference, Montreat, N. C.	3
The Women's Colleges of Our Church	3
Lessons in the Spirit of Giving—By Miss Annie V. Patton	3
Annual Report of the President to the Stockholders of the Mountain Retreat Association	4
Evangelistic Ministry Will Win the World—By R. E. Magill	4
Quiet Talks on the Simple Essentials—By S. D. Gordon	5
How Does Jesus Reveal God?—By Rev. C. O'N. Martindale	5
DEPARTMENTS—
Devotional	2
Woman's Auxiliary	6
Sunday School—By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.	7
Christian Endeavor—By Rev. J. G. Garth	7
Church News	8, 9, 10
News of the Week	10
Children	11
Marriages and Deaths	12
Advertisements, Etc.	12, 16

TREASURERS OF BENEVOLENT CAUSES

- Foreign Missions—Edwin F. Willis, 154 Fifth Ave., N. Nashville, Tenn.
- Home Missions, General Assembly's—A. N. Sharpe, 1522 Hurt Building, Atlanta, Ga.
- General Assembly's Training School—Geo. W. Call, Richmond, Va., Union Bank.
- Bible Cause—Gilbert Darlington, Bible House, N. Y.
- Christian Education and Ministerial Relief—John Stites, Fifth and Market Sts., Louisville, Ky.
- Publication and Sabbath School Work—R. E. Magill, 618 N. Sixth St., Richmond, Va.
- The General Assembly's Equipment Fund—T. R. Preston, Treasurer, Chattanooga, Tenn.

EDITORIAL

A NEW THING AT MONTREAT

The new thing was Seminary Week. Since the foundation of the world such a thing had never been known before—a whole week devoted to the interests of the Seminaries of the Church, and of Theological Education. If Solomon were here, he would take back what he said, and admit that there was at least one new thing under the sun. Hitherto there has been reason to think that the church at large has been trying, with a good measure of success, to live in sweet forgetfulness of its Seminaries. When it happened to give them a thought, it showed a disposition to confound Seminaries with cemeteries.

It really seems as if a new era were dawning. Here at the very heart of our Church's life, here at Jerusalem whither the tribes go up, here at the Mount of Vision where all the varied activities of the Church pass in review, here at Montreat one whole week has been given up to the consideration of the Seminaries and the work which they are doing. Is it not remarkable that so much consideration should be shown to these institutions, seeing that they are of such little consequence. All that the Seminaries do is to train preachers for the church; and all the preachers do is to win recruits for the Lord's army, and lead them on to the conquest of the world. The character of the preachers, their soundness in the faith, determines the character of the church and its soundness in the faith. As is the teaching in the Seminaries, so is the teaching of the preachers, and as is the teaching of the preachers so is the church's conception of salvation and of service. As matters now stand, without Seminaries, no preachers, and without preachers, no church. Looking at the insignificant service rendered by the Seminaries, it is amazing that they should be permitted to occupy the center of the stage for a whole week at Montreat.

All four of our Seminaries were well represented, and each had a part in the program. Every morning at 10 o'clock, Dr. McAlister, of Louisville Seminary, occupied the Bible Hour. He spoke to the delight of growing audiences each morning on some great Bible theme. At 11:00 o'clock three classes were taught in different rooms of the great auditorium. In one room, Dr. J. B. Green, of Columbia Seminary, taught a class on the subject of Christian Doctrine. In another part of the building Dr. Lingle, of Union Seminary, taught a class in the Social Teachings of the New Testament. Dr. Reed, of Columbia Seminary, taught a class in the History of Presbyterianism. All these classes were well attended, and the only complaint heard was that owing to the fact that all three classes met at the same hour, it was impossible to attend more than one class. Every evening at 8:00 o'clock there was a popular address by one of the Theological professors. On Sunday morning and evening, Dr. J. M. Wells and Dr. Arthur G. Jones; on Monday evening, Dr. C. R. Hemphill; on Tuesday evening, Dr. Edward Mack; on Wednesday evening, Dr. Currie; on Thursday evening, Dr. J. G. McAllister, and on Friday evening, Dr. W. T. Thompson.

Every afternoon, beginning at 2:30, and extending ad libitum or beyond, the Seminary professors met for conference on subjects closely connected with the work of the Seminaries. These subjects had been selected beforehand, and each conference was opened with a well prepared paper. It was the unanimous finding of those attending these conferences that they furnished the occasion for most delightful fellowship, and for the exceedingly profitable interchange of views. It is believed that much practical benefit will flow from such conferences not only to the Seminaries, but the Church at large.

The preliminary week was voted a great success. There was not a dissenting vote from any quarter. Steps were taken to hold a similar conference next year, and if possible a little later in the season, so that more of our preachers can be present to help make the occasion a yet greater success. It was proposed by one of the Seminary professors that next year we make an every member canvass, and secure the attendance of every professor connected with any of our Seminaries.

SOME OF THE MONTREAT CONFERENCES

Our stay in Montreat this season has been in snatches. Beginning the early part of July, we have been spending some time in our office and some time at Montreat. These frequent visits here failed to synchronize with the full time devoted to any one conference, so that we have never seen any of the conferences "am ovo ad malum," as Horace has it.

The Sunday School Conference we attended for several meetings, not enough to get a diploma, as some of the faithful did, but often enough to understand that times have changed since our Sunday School days, whether as scholar, teacher, or pastor.

Ordinarily we prefer the old ways to the new, especially in points of doctrine and modes of worship, but we must confess that in many respects the new methods in Sunday School work seem far better than the old, but whether the future generations will know the Bible better must be an open question till these generations occupy the stage long enough to show their knowledge. Instead of being supposed sponges absorbing knowledge, the young people took notes and were examined upon what they had acquired.

These tests, we are told, are real ones. If the ideas presented are really conveyed home and imparted to the schools there, then we have a right to expect, at least, efficiency in the future.

On the whole we think that these new methods are in keeping with the progressiveness that should mark the work of the Church in its efforts to teach.

The conference on Home Missions followed that on the Sabbath School work. We missed that also except the Sunday services connected with it. Dr. Charles A. Campbell, of Atlanta, Ga., and Dr. A. S. Johnson, of Charlotte, N. C., were the preachers for the morning and evening services. The art of giving notices is not appreciated as it should be. Our seminaries now teach the embryonic preacher how to read the hymns and the Scripture lessons and also how to dig out the meaning of the scripture text, and in that they do well, and add much to the enjoyment of the congregations. While this is true, it is also true that they pay no attention, in their teaching, to the gentle art of giving notices before the sermon. It is no exaggeration to say that the effect of many a fine sermon has been destroyed by wearing the audience out in the preliminary services.

Of course we must give out notices of church work and services during the week, though the Church Bulletin, now in general use, is supposed do away with these.

When a notice is given, let it be done in a few words, and let no long-winded man have the job.

One Sunday this season the preliminary service, including notices of several kinds, an appeal for the Normal School, a voluntary, Scripture lesson and prayer, consumed 53 minutes by the watch, leaving a scant 30 minutes for the sermon and closing hymn. In giving the notices there was a solemn pause between each word and sentence, whether for oratorical effect, or to enable the speaker to think of the next word, we could not tell. We only know that by the time the sermon began the audience was worn out, and by no means in a receptive frame of mind.

In striking contrast with this opening was that of the Home Mission Sunday. Dr. Lingle and Dr. McMillan used only 20 minutes for the purpose, so that when Dr. Campbell began, he found his audience fresh and eager.

His sermon was on the Enthronement of Christ, Psalms 24:7-10. It was a strong sermon, by an earnest Scotchman, who is as yet untouched by that itching for doctrinal notoriety, and who is so far behind the intellectual highbrows of the pulpit, as to believe in the old-fashioned Gospel and the inspiration of the Scriptures.

Dr. A. S. Johnson, in the evening, preached one of the strong sermons of this season. His theme was Discerning the Signs of the Times. He gave forth no uncertain sound as he described the dangers threatening the world and the Church. We are afraid, however, that he ran contrary to those who urge toleration, and are inclined to minimize the dangers.

In the afternoon the colored people, at their special service, were addressed by Mr. Thomas Talbert, of Kentucky, in his own charming way. Mr. Talbert is not a preacher, but what is now known, in the present ecclesiastical vernacular, as a "layman." He is also a humorist of a first-class variety. It takes, however, an audience with a sense of humor to appreciate him. Sometimes he strikes one whose hump of humor is a sunken place in the head, and then he is charged with a lack of dignity.

Whatever may be the failings of our colored brethren, a lack of the sense of humor is not one of them. They thoroughly enjoyed his sermon on "Influence," which was not simply humorous, but it was rich in earnest gospel appeals for a better life.

As we write, the Foreign Mission Conference is under way, and the days, from a sunrise prayer meeting till near 10 p. m., are full of meetings.

The Bible readings, by Dr. Thomas Currie, of the Texas Theological Seminary, are equal to any we have had at any time during the past years, which is no mean praise, because the Bible hour has always been the richest of all. He is dealing with the Pauline Epistles with the exception of that to the Romans. He is rich in thought and original in treatment.

TESTIMONY FROM THE SECULAR PRESS

When the religious press raises its voice in defence of the old faith, its testimony is always weakened in the minds of many men by the fact that it is "talking shop," and, like the shrine-makers of Ephesus, they "have their wealth by this craft."

When, however, a secular paper bears the same testimony, it comes with greater force because the editor is speaking, not because he is expected to do so, but because he speaks out of the abundance of his heart.

The editor of the Charlotte Observer stands among the first of the fraternity in expressing the courage of his convictions, whether he deals with politics or religion. Recently he had this to say with regard to the present tendency to break down the old landmarks:

"Doubting the Word of God"

It is a dangerous thing to interfere with the right of free thought and research. It is equally dangerous for scholars to attempt to break down the foundation upon which civilization and religious belief rests. We are now being told that certain books of the Old Testament are not inspired of God. Doubt is thereby being thrown upon the basis of all religion.

We have been taught to believe that the Bible is the inspired word of the All-High for the guidance of mankind. We have been cautioned to believe that this Book has passed down through the ages without change, even as much as the dotting of an I or the crossing of a T. And now we are being told that certain portions of the Old Testament were prepared by and inserted therein by scholars, and that there is no Divine inspiration behind them.

We decline to believe any such doctrine, even upon the word of a erudite doctor of divinity. If there is doubt of the authenticity of one part of the Bible a suspicion must permeate the whole. The Bible is either the Word of God or it is not. If it is not, then the whole fabric of religion crumbles at once. Without religion civilization must break down.

Here, then, is a picture of a student of divinity striking at the very cause that he has espoused. The preachers implore us to embrace the Word of God, and thereby be saved, and in the same breath one of them tells us that the foundation stone upon which the structure is erected rests upon a quicksand of doubt. If we cannot believe in the Bible, then we cannot believe in anything. To tell us to accept part of it and discard the balance will not suffice. There can be no half way measures in this thing. The Bible is either the Word of God, or it is merely a collection of pretty romances of other ages.

For our part, we would rather accept the commands of God, as written by Moses upon tablets of stone, than to accept the version of this Twentieth Century scholar. Such doctrines as this ought to be driven out of the church, or the church ought to admit it is founded upon a false hope and disband. When you take our belief in the Word of God away from us—our firm and full belief in that fundamental thing we know as the Bible—we are in that measure deprived of one hope that makes life worth living.

TEACHING CHURCH HISTORY AT MONTREAT

Those of us who have occasionally questioned the young men entering the ministry, have been impressed by their general ignorance of present-day Church History. They are generally strong on the Church Councils, and early heresies, and the rise of the papacy and the evils that gave rise to the Reformation under Luther.

When, however, we reach present-day conditions, they always seemed hopelessly at sea. Why this should be so, we have never been able to understand.

To our mind no one has any right to divide the body of Christ, unless the reasons will stand the test of God's judgment.

Have we the right to put young men in a church that has been guilty of schism, unless we can prove to him that the division was justified?

As the result of this policy our people everywhere are profoundly ignorant of our Church's reason for a separate existence, with the result that the public in general, through the secular press, is constantly holding us up as examples of sectional prejudice founded upon bitter war memories.

During the week at Montreat devoted to the Seminaries, there were classes dealing with social questions, theology and church history, in order to supplement the teachings of the pulpit.

We were able to attend only one lecture on Church History, which fortunately had for its subject "The History of the Southern Presbyterian Church." If we may judge the desire of our

INCARNATE LOVE

By Wilbur Fisk Tillett

O Love of God incarnate,
Who comest from above,
To show us God the Father
In human life of love,
God's love to earth thou bringest
That men may see in thee

How like man is the Father,
How like God man may be.

O Love of God incarnate,
Life bearer sent to men,
Who drinks at thy deep fountain
Shall never thirst again:
God's life to earth thou bringest,
And, though the thorn-path trod
Led thee to death on Calvary,
Thou wast the Son of God!

O Love of God incarnate,
Thy resurrection hour
Revealed the life eternal,
And robbed death of its power:
Enthroned on high thou reignest
That men may share with thee
Thy life, thy love, thy glory,
And live eternally.

O Love of God incarnate,
Thou everliving Word,
Through whom the Father speaketh,
In whom man's voice is heard,
In thee all love and wisdom,
Divine and human, meet;
When God through thee hath spoken,
Love's message is complete!

Nashville, Tenn. (Christian Advocate)

people to learn more about the history of their church by their attendance, it must be great. The room was crowded, and several were unable to enter.

In touching upon the causes leading to our separation in 1861, the lecturer merely stated facts, without any exhibition of bitterness, yet he let these facts speak so plain that every hearer saw that the course of those noble men was the only one that Christian men could consistently have taken. It proved that the reason once given us by one of our teachers that he did not teach these causes of separation, lest he arouse bitterness, would scarcely hold water.

Devotional

THE TOUCH OF JESUS

While so much is being said of human miracles of healing by the laying on of hands, let our minds dwell, by contrast, upon the Christ touch of the long ago:

And Jesus put forth His hand and touched him saying, I will; be thou clean, and immediately his leprosy was cleansed. Matt. 8:3.

And He touched her hand, and the fever left her: and she rose, and ministered unto them. Matt. 8:15.

For she said within herself, If I may but touch His garment, I shall be whole. Matt. 9:12.

But when the people were put forth, He went in, and took her by the hand, and the maid arose. Matt. 9:25.

Then touched He their eyes, saying, According to your faith be it unto you. Matt. 9:29.

And besought Him that they might only touch the hem of His garment; and as many as touched were made perfectly whole. Matt. 14:36.

And Jesus came and touched them, and said, Arise, and be not afraid. Matt. 17:7.

And He laid His hands on them, and departed thence. Matt. 19:15.

So Jesus had compassion on them, and touched their eyes: and immediately their eyes received sight and they followed Him. Matt. 30:34.

And Jesus moved with compassion put forth His hand and touched him, and said unto him, I will: be thou clean. Mark 1:41.

For He healed many: insomuch that they pressed upon Him for to touch Him, as many as had plagues. Mark 3:10.

For she said, If I may touch but His clothes, I shall be whole. Mark 5:28.

And He took the damsel by the hand, and said unto her, Talitha cumi; which is, being interpreted, Damsel, I say unto thee, arise. Mark 5:41.

And He took him aside from the multitude, and put His fingers in his ears, and He spit and touched his tongue. Mark 7:33.

And He put His hands again upon his eyes, and made him look up; and he was restored and saw every man clearly. Mark 8:25.

But Jesus took him by the hand, and lifted him up, and he arose. Mark 9:27.

Now when the sun was setting, all they that had any sick with divers diseases brought them unto Him: and He laid His hand on every one of them and healed them. Luke 4:40.

And He put forth His hand, and touched him, saying, I will: be thou clean. And immediately the leprosy departed from him. Luke 5:13.

And He came and touched the bier: and they that bare him stood still. And He said, Young man, I say unto thee, Arise. Luke 7:14.

And He put them all out, and took her by the hand, and called, saying, Maid, arise. Luke 8:54.

And they held their peace. And He took him and healed him, and let him go. Luke 14:4.

And when He had thus spoken, He spat on the ground, and made clay of the spittle, and He anointed the eyes of the blind man with the clay. John 9:6.

In the book of John it is the spiritual touch which is emphasized.—Julia H. Thayer, in N. Y. Advocate.

OUR BUSINESS

"We never know for what God is preparing us in His schools, for what work on earth, for what work in the hereafter. Our business is to do our work well in the present place, whatever that may be."—Lyman Abbott.

Learn to rest; not only from sin and self, but in all stress. Refuse disquiet. Sink into God. Hide in Him. Understand the attacks of evil, why they come, and how to defeat them. Souls are often bound by lack of knowledge; they need to know how to reckon themselves to be dead indeed unto sin and alive unto God, to dispel the darkness and cast off the burden.—Stearns.

HOME MISSION CONFERENCE MONTREAT, N. C. August 9-12, 1923

Variety, spice, timeliness and effectiveness marked the 923 Home Mission Conference at Montreat, which came to a close Sunday night, August 12th. The attendance was good and the quality of the program, which was arranged by Rev. Homer McMillan, D.D., Secretary of the Assembly's Home Mission Committee, was most excellent.

Broad principles of action, rather than a study of the minute details of Home Mission work, were set forth by the speakers. The vital necessity of applying Christian principles to the problems facing America today, the recognition of Jesus Christ as supreme, and the exercise on the part of His followers of the powers they possess from Him, were emphasized repeatedly. If any found the discussions dull such persons must have been in a bad way indeed. There were no stereotyped addresses, but stirring presentations of live topics in a live way.

Rev. T. W. Currie, D.D., president of Austin Theological Seminary, conducted the Bible hour. His first study, given Wednesday morning, was introductory to a view of the "prison epistles" of Paul; the other two dealt with Colossians. The church at Colossae, Dr. Currie stated, was troubled with "Modernism," and Paul, instead of writing a letter filled with complaints of prison conditions and chains, urged them to give Jesus the place of pre-eminence. If He is given this place, there is little need to worry about "philosophizing" over religion. If religion is of the right sort it will stand being thought out.

A group of Home Mission workers occupied the platform Thursday morning, with Mrs. C. S. Kinkead, chairman of the Woman's Advisory Committee of the Auxiliary, presiding. Brief addresses were made by Mrs. Hudson, of Lees-McRac School, at Banner Elk, N. C., on the work of that school; by Miss Harley, of High Coal, W. Va., upon the work in the coal fields; by Miss White, of the Jewish Mission in Baltimore, Md.; by Miss Hall, of the Highland Orphanage, Guerrant, Ky.; and by Miss Lovey, on the general work of Home Missions in Texas.

Rev. J. G. Venable, D.D., of Norfolk, Va., speaking Thursday night, urged the importance of making America Christian in fact rather than merely to claim it as such in theory. Christian principles must control in the varied relations of men—industrial, social and political. He paid special attention to the race question. There has been a decided drifting apart of the negroes from the whites, and a growing independence of action as educational advantages have equipped them with greater ability to care for themselves. Their social life revolves largely around their church affiliations. Many negro churches today have excellently trained and well-paid ministers and their services of song are frequently superior to those of the whites. Of all churches in the United States, a negro church has been chosen as an outstanding example of organization and of development in the ideals of Stewardship. We must face the race question squarely, and meet the problems it raises justly.

"No Home Mission program at Montreat would be complete without a talk from Tom Talbott," said Dr. McMillan in introducing the superintendent of Home Missions of three Kentucky Presbyteries. Mr. Talbott followed Dr. Venable, and in his own inimitable way presented the use of Home Missions, urging especially the need for prayer, particularly family prayer, if the task before the church is to be realized.

Mr. W. W. Alexander, of Atlanta, Ga., whose time is devoted to the betterment of inter-racial conditions, spoke Friday morning on "The Northern Migration of the Negro." In introducing Mr. Alexander, Dr. McMillan referred to the acute economic crisis in the South, occasioned by the movement of negroes to the North. He stated that, in one of the larger Southern cities, a ticket sold in one afternoon, for passage on one north-bound train of his line, 137 tickets to negroes. In one Southern State there are 55,000 idle plows; and cotton in some sections is rotting for lack of pickers. Mr. Alexander said the migration of the negro is but a symptom of a general condition prevailing among backward peoples throughout the world. It is a matter of small moment, comparatively, whether the servants we have grown to depend upon fail to show up for work. The same conditions of unrest are to be found in South Africa, in Russia, in India, and among other disadvantaged peoples everywhere, who have heard the prophetic words of the late President Wilson as he announced a policy of opportunity for self-expression on the part of the oppressed and submerged peoples. The speaker pleaded for the exercise of Christian grace toward the negro, pointing out the inexcusableness of lynchings and the rank injustice of any courts in dealing with negro offenders simply because of their color. He also made a plea for universal recognition of other racial groups as those for whom Christ died equally with the white.

At 11 o'clock Friday morning a memorial service in honor of the late President Harding was held. Rev. W. E. Hill, D.D., of Fayetteville, made an address appropriate to the occasion, and Congressman Stevenson, of South Carolina, followed, touching more particularly on the political history of Mr. Harding and the character he had exhibited in dealing with the problems he had faced and the heavy responsibilities of his office. Rev. C. R. Nisbet read the 90th Psalm, and Rev. R. O. Flinn offered the prayer. "Lead, Kindly Light," was sung by the quartet, and a duet, "Beyond the Smiling and the Weeping," brought the service to an impressive close.

Contributed

Mr. Frederick Sullens, of Jackson, Miss., told the story of his conversion, at the Friday evening service, stirring the emotions of all who heard him. Not only did a complete change in his personal life take place, but radical changes in the policy of the daily newspaper, of which he is owner and editor, followed. His attitude, and that of many other men, toward Christian service, also faced about as a result of their conversion under the ministry of Gypsy Smith, Jr. "Flying Squadrons" of men throughout the State now have as a slogan, "Mississippi for Christ," and their efforts bid fair to be crowned with success. Mr. Sullens made an impassioned appeal for personal surrender to Christ and personal service as a necessary corollary.

Saturday night was featured with stereopticon pictures, magnificently colored, covering many parts of the Assembly's Home Mission work in practically every state in which the Southern Presbyterian Church is found. These pictures were presented by Miss Nancy F. White, the educational secretary of the Home Mission Committee. Rev. R. A. Brown, D.D., of Tuscaloosa, Ala., and Rev. J. W. Tyler, D.D., of Winchester, Ky., spoke briefly in connection with slides illustrating the negro and the mountain work.

Rev. C. A. Campbell, D.D., of Atlanta, Ga., preached the sermon Sunday morning from the text Psalms 24:7-10, to an audience of perhaps 2,500 persons, on the subject, "The Enthronement of Christ." He urged that Christ must be enthroned in the heart of the individual, in the nation, and in the Church. At the evening hour Rev. Albert Sidney Johnson, D.D., of Charlotte, N. C., preached from the text Matthew 16:3, on "The Signs of the Times." He called attention to the appalling spiritual conditions that are now prevailing. "I would rather be a spiritual pessimist than a fool optimist," said he. Dr. Johnson paid his respects in no uncertain terms to the modernists and the evolutionists. The Gospel, however, still has efficacy to satisfy the conditions that exist and power to change them. As members of the church, we who must meet these conditions face to face need the Holy Spirit to enable us to meet them adequately; we need a vision of courage and a vision of inspiration. Regeneration is better than evolution.

Altogether, the Home Mission program this year was calculated to inspire to better living and to more hearty effort both in the exercise of personal service and in the support of the work as a whole.

THE WOMEN'S COLLEGES OF OUR CHURCH

The following paper and a resolution approving it and urging the attention of our Church to the vital and pressing situation it depicts, was unanimously adopted at the meeting of the Presbyterian Educational Association of the South, at Montreat, July 26, 1923:

To the Southern Presbyterian Educational Association, in session at Montreat, N. C., July 26, 1923.

The Woman's Colleges Section of this organization would respectfully call your attention to the following facts:

1. This association set for the colleges on its rolls the standard of the Southern Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges, and while there was not a single woman's college which had an endowment sufficient to justify the hope that it could soon qualify by meeting these standards, they nevertheless voted to have these standards applied, with the hope that the Church would help them to formulate some plans by which they might meet these requirements.

2. That six out of every seven teachers in the public school system of America today are women, and with the great importance that attaches itself to the training of our youth in grammar and high school grades it would seem that the Southern Presbyterian Church would feel the challenge of this situation to provide colleges from which her daughters could graduate with such recognition as would allow them to teach in the public schools.

4. That a large majority of the teachers in our Sabbath Schools and Mission Classes are women, and that there are numbers of women in that great army of workers of our church in the foreign field. Furthermore, that with our present program of preparation for life service in our Assembly's Training School this number will be constantly increasing and that, without an accredited college under church control from which to receive their training in the academic courses.

5. That woman is not only the strategic and determining influence in our home and in the social life of the community but that she is entering other relationships of life, exercising influences and performing services today as never before.

In the light of these facts it appears to this section of the association that the Church has overlooked one very important division of her youth, and that the time has come when she must take steps towards a very definite and specific program in behalf of the education of her women.

Furthermore we request this association to devise some plan by which the limitations may be removed from these greatly handicapped colleges for women, and by which our girls may be enabled to present their diplomas to the world with the same degree of confidence, as our boys.

Respectfully submitted,

(Signed) C. G. Vardell,

W. H. Frazer, G. T. Gillespie.

LESSONS IN THE SPIRIT OF GIVING

By Miss Annie V. Patton

I wonder if we all enjoy giving to the Lord as much as did the little boy who went with his offering to a meeting, but returned in disappointment, saying, "It was the stupidest meeting I ever went to. They didn't even take up a collection!" We endeavor to make our "Sunday Schools" (so called no matter what day of the week they meet) interesting to the boys and girls by giving them an opportunity to present their offerings to the Lord and unitedly ask Him to bless them to some of His suffering ones. This He has been pleased to do in a way that you may be interested in hearing about.

Two yen were set aside to help the famine sufferers in China. Perhaps it should be explained that a yen, though actually equal to only about half a dollar in value, seems to us quite as much in this land as a dollar does in the home land; so please just think of a yen as a dollar. One yen and a half was given as a token of sympathy to a father and mother whose young daughter had been cruelly murdered; and a like sum was spent for fruit and eggs for poor people who were ill.

We gave four yen to a woman who was ill, with no one to care for her four small children, her blind husband being ill at the same time. I am thankful to say that the mother was not ill very long, and the father is having much less pain in his eyes. They are not Christians, but they were so deeply touched by this offering from the Sunday School children that they consented to open their home at my request for a weekly meeting to bring the Good News to that neighborhood. This meeting is usually attended by all seven ages of man!

Before opening the first meeting there, I called at many of the homes near by, giving to each family a copy of a Christian newspaper, and inviting them to come to the meeting. In one little hovel I found a poor emaciated girl about fifteen years of age lying face downwards—a very sad sight. Upon inquiry I learned that about six months before she had been terribly burned, and she had been lying there ever since. Several of the Sunday School children had gathered about the door, and they joined with my helper and myself in singing several Gospel hymns, my helper explaining the meaning of each song. We all united in prayer for her, and upon leaving we gave her a paper called "The Light of Love." Through it all she seemed very listless, which is not to be wondered at. But on our second and third visits, she seemed to be watching for us and manifested some interest, which we rejoiced to see. One day I wanted to leave her something to read, but I found that I had only one leaflet, which I hesitated to give her, fearing that it might be beyond her understanding. The leaflet was entitled "Rock of Ages." Somehow I was impelled to give it to her, and I believe the Lord used that very tract to open her heart; for the whole story of the Gospel is told in it from the experience of the author of the hymn, "Rock of Ages."

Last Sunday when we took the gifts provided for her comfort by our Sunday School (to the amount of 93 sen), her mother told us that a few days before they had thought she was dying and had called the relatives in. But after a time the girl looked up and said, "I have seen some one all in white, come toward me saying, 'This child has life. Take care of it.'" The mother said that from that time she began to improve in health, and she certainly did look much better. The mother would not give us a chance to talk to the girl much; but we can only believe that the Lord is working in her heart. Will you not pray with us for her, and for all these needy people that they may come to know Jesus aright, which is Life Eternal!

Toyohashi, Japan.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT TO THE STOCKHOLDERS OF THE MOUNTAIN RETREAT ASSOCIATION AUGUST 2, 1923

The president would respectfully report for the year 1922-1923 as follows:

Conferences on every branch of the Church's activity were held in Montreat last summer and are being held this summer. This year two conferences have been conducted in addition to the conferences held heretofore, namely: the first official conference of men on men's work, and a conference conducted by our four theological seminaries, in addition to the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church which held its sixty-third session in the Anderson auditorium on May 17th. All of these conferences were well attended, greatly enjoyed and were deeply spiritual and effective in their results. Those in attendance upon the meeting of the Assembly freely expressed their delight in having the Assembly to meet in Montreat, and the following official resolution was passed by the Assembly looking towards making Montreat its permanent meeting place:

"Resolved, That it is the judgment of this Assembly, based on its experience, that Montreat offers a most desirable place for the meetings of the Assembly; and it should meet here as frequently as it can without discourtesy to churches which wish to entertain the Assembly."

During the nine school months of the year the Montreat property is being used for school purposes, the Montreat Hotel, the chapel, and committee rooms of the Anderson auditorium and the athletic grounds are used by the Montreat Normal School. The community building, near the post office, is used by the Montreat Public School.

The Montreat Normal School last year had an enrollment of 91 students representing nine states, with a faculty of nine teachers. From the above it is manifest that the scope and power of this institution is increasing with each successive year. It is being used the year round for the best of Christian service. The Church is expressing its appreciation of the great service Montreat is rendering and has placed it on the equipment budget for $200,000, though there is little hope of getting any material help from this source this year.

Some of the material developments since your last meeting are as follows: The Montreat gate and lodge has been erected at a cost of about $2,800, $2,000 of which was a special gift for this purpose by the Woman's Auxiliary as a memorial of the tenth anniversary of their first meeting in Montreat. This gate adds much to the security and beauty of the Montreat grounds.

The Men's Club buildings and furnishings, valued at $5,000, has been turned over to the management of the association.

An understanding has been reached whereby the Conkey property, consisting of six lots and three nice dwelling houses, valued at $16,000, will pass into the possession of Montreat. This property is to cost $8,000 and is to bear the name of Miss Conkey as a memorial. This is a most valuable addition in the way of enlarging accommodations for guests.

A heating plant has been installed in the chapel and six of the committee rooms of the Anderson auditorium at a cost of $1,500. These are used by the Montreat Church and Sunday School during the winter season.

A playground for the children has been installed through the generosity of Mr. W. H. Belk, of Charlotte, N. C., at a cost of $420.78.

A telegraph office in the Alba Hotel, with lines leading to Black Mountain station, has been installed at a cost of approximately $500.

A cable for telephone lines has been installed, a barber shop and three garages have been built, the old auditorium has been removed, the Alba Hotel, Conkey property, Chapman home, and stores have been painted. An A. B. Chase concert grand piano valued at $2,300 has been donated for the auditorium, and many improvements have been made on the park, the light, water and sewer systems.

Seven cottages have been erected on privately owned lots since last summer.

Mrs. C. E. Graham and her son, Mr. Allan Graham, generously proposed to build a concrete dam and steel bridge to take the place of the present wooden dam forming the lake and also to build two concrete bridges for the main roads leading across the Montreat stream.

Mrs. L. Richardson, of Greensboro, has generously proposed to erect a handsome building as a memorial to her late husband, which building is to be used by the Foreign Mission Committee as an educational center for foreign missions.

Montreat has proven itself to be a powerful factor in the upbuilding of the whole Church, it is a great university for Christian education in all branches of the Church's work. It has drawn together, unified, and co-ordinated the agencies and activities of the Church as no other institution or agency has ever done. It has been fittingly said that "Montreat is a spiritual dynamo, a commerce of religious thought, a clearing house of Christian ideals." Its power has gone to the ends of the earth and the possibilities of its future usefulness cannot be estimated. Not only has it achieved a great work in itself, but its indirect influence has been immense. Indirectly it has led to the establishment of many local conferences throughout the borders of our Church, and several Synods have been so pleased with the value of the Montreat ideal, they are establishing local institutions of a similar nature for Synodical purposes.

The Y. M. C. A., whose boys were entertained for three years in the Montreat grounds, have established for its use, Blue Ridge, a similar institution about five miles from Montreat.

The Methodists have established Junaluska, of a similar nature, at Waynesville, N. C.; the Baptists have established Ridgcrest, in this vicinity; the A. R. P. brethren have established Bon Clarken, near Hendersonville, and the Lutherans have under consideration the establishment of one to serve their purposes. Montreat, being established first of all, had the first choice of location, and has a site that is not surpassed, and we dare say is not equalled, by any similar institution in the United States. Her spacious grounds, her natural beauty, her salubrious climate, her seclusion and accessibility, constitute Montreat as an ideal place for the work she is doing and proposing to do. Montreat is yet in its infancy and has had many obstacles to overcome in its establishment, but we believe the time has come when the Assembly in a spirit of gratitude and appreciation should thoroughly furnish and equip this institution so that it can perform in a more worthy and creditable manner the splendid work it is doing.

Montreat has never asked, nor received a dollar, for the upkeep, maintenance and operation of the plant, but requests have been made only for the construction of permanent improvements, such as the erection of the auditorium, other buildings, or the installation of permanent utilities, such as water, light, sewerage and telephone lines, all of which are the permanent possessions of the Church. There is no private interest in any of the public utilities.

There are three outstanding urgent needs of the institution at present:

First: The most imperative need is more adequate accommodations for the thousands of people who are seeking the advantages of the Assembly's Conferences and the Christian fellowship and protection of Montreat. A multitude of families are turned away annually for the lack of accommodations. A new hotel and at least 25 cottages for families should be provided at the earliest possible date. These would not only provide room for a large number who are now being turned away, but they would also increase the revenues which would go a long way toward the maintenance and future development of the institution.

Second: There is an urgent need for the establishment of a teachers' fund for the Montreat Normal School, so that the plant could be utilized the year round to its full capacity for Christian service. There are furnished rooms, dining rooms, kitchens, class rooms and auditorium to accommodate 350 students. A fund should be provided immediately sufficient for the teachers needed for a school of this size.

Third: Our Church is in need of a hospital for sick and infirm ministers, professors, teachers, home and foreign missionaries and other church workers. It often occurs that these servants of the Church are compelled to spend all of their meagre earnings in the payment of doctors' and hospital bills in times of sickness in their families. A first-class hospital under church control with moderate charges would greatly relieve this situation. Montreat affords ample ground, water, lights, sewer and telephone systems, which could be furnished to the hospital free of cost. This hospital could also be used to the best advantage to meet the needs of the Montreat Normal School. The location is ideal, the climate most salubrious and health-giving and all modern conveniences can be afforded at the least possible cost. We believe the Assembly would do well to give its hearty approval to this enterprise.

Respectfully submitted,

R. C. Anderson, President.

The Board of Trustees requested that the president's report be published together with the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted.

The Trustees of the Mountain Retreat Association place on record their high appreciation of the following additions to the physical equipment of the association:

First: For the beautiful grand piano presented by Mrs. Gaither and Mrs. R. C. Anderson for use in the auditorium.

Second: For the complete and useful equipment for the children's playground presented by Mr. W. H. Belk.

Third: For the generous provision made by Mrs. C. E. Graham and Mr. Allan Graham for the erection of the concrete dam and footbridge to replace the present dam, and for two concrete bridges across the main stream to take place of the two wooden bridges now leading to the Auditorium park.

Fourth: For the generous provision for the erection of a building by Mrs. Richardson for the use of the Foreign Mission Committee of our Church.

Fifth: For an electric searchlight for use in illuminating the grounds, presented by Mr. Wilson.

CHARLES EDGAR GRAHAM

"Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful. But his delight is in the law of the Lord, and in His law doth He meditate day and night. And he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not wither, and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper."

Thus it was with Mr. Graham, his leaf withers not, and he being dead yet speaks. His name has gone throughout the earth, and his deeds of mercy and inspiration have inspired the Church at home and abroad. His beneficent works have touched every endeavor of the church, and his magnificent gifts have induced many to see that it is not by bread alone that men live, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of the Lord. He loved the Master and ministered to Him of his substance. He was as successful in dispensing money as he was in making it, and he loved to serve the Lord in both respects. His life was a life of service and it was his delight to give as God had prospered him. The widow and the orphan, the aged and worn minister of the Word, the sick and the suffering, the reclaimed and fallen, and the many brought out of darkness and heathenism, all these and many more shall rise up and call him blessed.

The Board of Directors of the Mountain Retreat Association bears in grateful memory his wise counsel, and his readiness to help in many times of need. He was a real friend to Montreat, and without him we believe Montreat might never have been—might never have been what it is today, an inspiration to the church and a blessing to many. We would honor his memory and keep it fresh in our hearts always.

His departure from us was a great loss, a loss we can never estimate; but we are fully persuaded, it was a wonderful gain to him, as he sees the King in His beauty, and knows what it means to hear Him say, "Well done, good and faithful servant; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

"The end of that man is peace."

EVANGELISTIC MINISTRY WILL WIN THE WORLD

By R. E. Magill, Secretary Publication Committee

The above headline was the caption given by the editor of a great Southern daily to a report of an address before the World Conference of Baptists in session at Stockholm in July last.

It is worthy of note that the secular press of the world and the heads of great industrial enterprises are turning with one accord to the Church as the one institution which holds the solution for the unrest and turmoil which still grips the world. With one accord the world leaders in both political and economic realms are appealing to the Christian Church to undertake a program of evangelism which shall make known to a distraught world the gospel of Christ. The speaker at the Baptist Conference, Dr. Scarborough, of Fort Worth, gave utterance to sentiments which were thought worthy of telegraphing around the world by the Associated Press, and while to readers of church journals they are worth repeating here.

The speaker said in part:

"The gospel conquest of the world depends upon an evangelistic ministry."

"Evangelism is the chief mission of the Holy Spirit, and true evangelism in the church is a preserver and conservator of all that lies at the heart of the Kingdom of God.

"God calls His people from every gospel angle to win souls. The soul-winning church is the greatest institution on earth, and every church should be fired with the spirit of evangelism. The history and development of Christ's churches during His ministry on earth and that of His apostles showed clearly that Christ meant for His churches to be soul-winning churches primarily and above everything else. This is shown, also, by the place given to soul-winning in the teaching of the Bible. From the fact that soul-winning is the chief business of Christ's churches social service has a large place in the work of the gospel but for social service to be effective it must be based on personal regeneration."

The Southern Presbyterian Church professes to be evangelistic in spirit and in a half-hearted way we carry on an evangelistic program. A review of our annual reports reveals the startling fact that about one thousand of our churches report no additions by profession and another thousand did not average ten additions on confession of faith. These amazing conditions exist in a territory where about 60 per cent of the population is not enrolled in a church of any sort and yet we profess allegiance to a Leader who commanded His followers to become "Fishers of Men."

The Church needs above everything else to be called to a season of prayer where the members will wait with agonizing earnestness, like the disciples in the upper room, for the endowment with power which will send them out with a passion for soul-winning.

It is an encouraging sign that the new organization for men at its initial meeting adopted as the first article of its program "Personal Evangelism" and asked that literature be provided at once to aid earnest laymen in preparing to do effective personal work and to help busy pastors in leading classes in the study of personal evangelism.

The Publication Committee has undertaken to meet the need as far as their responsibility extends, and announce at this time two important pieces of helpful literature. A need was discovered for a worker's Testament which should carry practical suggestions for untrained workers and a list of references which will answer objections and inquiries from the word itself.

Rev. Wade C. Smith, who has been so wonderfully used in leading individuals to undertake to do personal work, has prepared a fine list of suggestions and references which have been approved by the leaders of our men's organization and several laymen of wide experience. The suggestions will be issued at once in a leaflet entitled "Fishers of men" at five cents per copy. The references and suggestions will also be included in a series of pocket Testaments which will be published in England especially for this purpose. These editions will be ready at popular prices in the early fall.

It is planned to issue a manual of suggestions for pastors and leaders who wish to organize classes for the study of personal evangelism and this will be ready about January, 1924.

The Publication Committee will be glad to receive suggestions as to the contents of this proposed manual. The following leaflets will be available for free distribution: "Pastoral Evangelism," by Egbert W. Smith, D.D., and "Soul-Winning the Greatest Privilege in the World," by the late A. L. Phillips, D.D.

QUIET TALKS ON THE SIMPLE ESSENTIALS

By Mr. S. D. Gordon, Bijou Theatre, Boardwalk, Atlantic City, N. J., July-August, 1923. Aspicus Atlantic City Council of Churches

No. 8—Falling Up? Or Down

When Newton's apple swung loose from the tree it didn't fall up, nor out, but down. It fell to the earth.

It grew up out of the earth through the tree. It was a bit of the earth. Now, when free it went straight back, back to its mother-earth. The earth pulled the apple. The apple yielded to the pull toward the center of its gravity. We call that the law of gravitation.

But there are three laws of gravitation. Newton discovered one. There's the law of spirit gravitation. It pulls man toward his spirit center of gravity. There is always a pull up. Man's center of spirit gravity is up. That's a second law of gravity, spirit gravity. It pulls up.

There is still another, a counter law of spirit gravity. It pulls a man away from his true center of gravity. It pulls him down toward another center. It's the pull toward the thing that's wrong. Wrong has a gravity of its own. Its gravity is always down, like the physical law. That pull away is a pull down.

The gravity of wrong has its center in the Evil One. He is the opposite center of moral gravity, opposite to God. The pull-down is a distinct pull away from the God-center-of-gravity. Man is between the two pulls, up and down. The weight of his choice decides which way he thing goes.

Every man feels the God-pull inside. It's a pull up. There is an inner voice. It calls up. Everyone hears it. It's a quiet voice, but distinct and insistent. It never quits, or very, very rarely. There is a hand beckoning up. There is a light shining on the next step up. There's a gravity pulling gently strongly up. It makes the next step up easier, even when it's not easy.

And every man feels that other Evil-pull. It's a pull down. It's an outside pull. It becomes an inside pull. There is an insistent voice calling down, a hand beckoning down, a light luring down, a gravity pulling down. Sometimes coarse, sometimes cultured, it is always down. Everyone feels the two pulls within, up and down. He hears two voices. He sees two beckoning hands. Two lights catch his eye. And he decides which wins. Neither can do a thing except through his consent. There's no appeal from his decision. His say-so goes.

That pull-up is very distinct. That inner voice insistent, unceasingly says, "Do the right. Don't do the wrong. This is right; do it; do it now. Do what you ought to." And everyone hears that voice.

That pull-down says, "Do the thing you want to. Don't bother about moral distinctions. Don't be so particular. It won't matter. Do the easy thing. Do it now. Don't think into things. Now, do it now."

It's the natural thing to say "yes" to the pull-up. We belong up. That's the first pull, the real human pull. As Newton's apple, detached, went to the earth, so man unhindered falls up, up to where he came from. He grew out of God. His life centers in God. He answers the pull-up toward his true center of gravity—when unhindered.

But—but, the terrible bother is the hindrance. That pull-down has become a second nature in all of us. It gets terrific. There is a suction to it, sometimes like the ocean's undertow in a wild storm. It seems resistless. It's easy to yield. It's desperate hard not to yield.

Yet—yet, the man himself is stronger than the pull-down, even when he's weak. He's stronger in this that he can't be budged nor pulled down without his own consent. No man goes up nor down except as he chooses to.

That pull-down makes a break with the center one pulls down from. It's a gradual break. It gets tenser. By and by the strings can't stand the tension. They snap off short. That's the last stage. The common word is death. At its core death is a separation in spirit from God. We think most of the body part. That's bad. The other's far worse.

The pull-down gets to the bottom of the hill. The common word turns that into an e. That makes a hateful, hated word. But the thing is worse than the word. It may be left out of one's thinking, but it refuses to be left out as a fact. Gravity puts it in. It's gravity down, at the last lowest pull-down.

The Old Book gets the story straight. The Man of the Book came to break that pull-down. He came to start a new pull-up, and to start it strong enough to offset clean the down pull.

It was a stiff job. It took His life clean out. But He did it. He starts a new pull-up inside a man. It's a resistless pull-up, through a man's own choosing to have it so.

Victor Hugo describes a man caught inadvertently in a treacherous quicksand, at low tide, on the coast of Brittany in France. Despite his frantic efforts, the merciless pull-down persisted silently, relentlessly.

Now the man is down to the knees, the loins, the vitals. Now only the head is seen, then two glaring bloodshot eyes, then a tuft of hair. Then only the smooth, pretty quicksands. That's how gravitation works, Newton's, and the other, too. But the other is worse, and worst.

No. 9—The Knot on the End

HOW DOES JESUS REVEAL GOD?

By Rev. C. O'N. Martindale

In John 1:14 we read "The Word became flesh and dwelt among us (and we beheld His glory)". In I Tim. 3:16, "God was manifest in the flesh" in Christ. In Phil. 2:5-8 "Christ Jesus . . . who, existing in the form of God, counted not the being on an equality with God a thing to be grasped, but emptied Himself, taking the form of a servant, being made in the likeness of men, and being found in fashion as a man, He humbled Himself," etc.

Language such as this can have but one meaning, that Jesus Christ reveals, shows clearly and unmistakably, manifests God. And that is true, not in one incident only of His life among us, but in its entirety. For instance—

1. In His Incarnation (Birth, as begotten of God in the womb of the Virgin Mary) He revealed the Person and Condescension of God. "God was in Christ," the Invisible and Infinite was made Finite and Visible. He said, "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father." In Christ God visited man in his affliction.

2. In His Baptism He revealed the Requirements and Appointments, the Choice and Equipment, of God for Saviourhood. In Christ's fulfilment of all righteousness, yielding to the Divine Father's Spiritual qualifying for the service of Saviour of sinners, God was well-blessed. He saw His purposes on their way to accomplishment through Christ's self-surrender.

3. In His Temptations He revealed the Sovereignty and Adequacy of God. He showed the supremacy of God over evil. He resisted firmly and overcame fully the evil one (the Devil, Satan). He was tempted, tested, tried, in all points like as we are, yet without sin; how well He can succor us when we are tempted!

4. In His Character and Life He revealed the Righteousness and the Holiness of God, His Goodness and Sinlessness. "He hath declared Him" absolutely good and without fault. He shows us what kind of a being God is, the Holy One and Just. "He was holy, guileless, and undefiled, and separated from sinners," "going about doing good."

5. In His Preaching and Teachings He Revealed the Truth or Wisdom or Will of God for our Salvation. He both embodied and exhibited God's Truth in Himself and His own words. "I am the Truth," "the Word (Logos) of God," "the Revelation of God." He alone could say, "I am God," and speak truly and satisfyingly to the human heart. He "spake as never man spake" accordingly.

6. In His Miracles, or Wonderful Works, He revealed the Power and the Sympathy, Readiness and Ministry, of God to men. He showed He could meet every life-need, however great or deep or far-reaching. He opens blind eyes, unstops deaf ears, heals the withered arm, enables the lame to walk, drives out epilepsy, cleanses the leprosy, dismisses the fever, heals the paralytic, raises from death, drives out demons, heals those oppressed of the devil in every way, forgives sins however many, cleanses the defiled, commissions to service, fills with His Holy Spirit, confirms a budding faith by the outshining of His Majesty and Glory as on the Mount of Transfiguration. Oh how compassionate our God is in Christ. What an encouragement to betake oneself to Him!

7. In His Suffering He revealed the Love and Mediation of God. Here in the Atonement (Reconciliation) of Jesus Christ we know God loves us to the limit; it is nothing short of grave divine for sinners. On the cross Christ satisfied Divine justice by His sufferings and death in the place of sinners who deserve naught at God's hands but condemnation and banishment. In Christ's propitiation for our sins we have God intervening on our behalf, and availing. It is the privation and suffering of Christ for us that more than anything else appeals to the human heart as a demonstration of God's feeling for us in our sinfulness and misery, stooping so low to raise us up so high.

8. In His Burial in the Cave in the Garden He Revealed the Tolerance or Forbearance and Further Humbling of God. Here we see to what God in Christ yielded for us for a season, that He might break the power of death and put to naught its author, the Devil, and deliver His people from the fear of death.

9. In His Resurrection He Revealed the Relation and the Vindication of God. In raising up Christ from the dead by the Spirit of Holiness God proved Christ's Divine Sonship, and at the same time He vindicated His own righteousness, He declared our acquittal from sin (justification) in Christ.

10. In His Ascension and Session at God the Father's right hand of power Christ revealed the Authority and Privilege of God. In doing this He exercised the rights of the Son of God. No one else could or would undertake to do this. It was the prerogative of the undefiled Son of the Father, to whom had been given all authority in heaven and on earth. He can take the seat that belongs to Him as our intermedator.

11. In His Advocacy for God's Children Before the Throne of His Father in Heaven He Revealed and Reveals the Accessibility or Approachability of God. Through Christ we may draw boldly to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and find grace to help in time of need. God will be heard of Christ for us. The way is open into His very presence, a new and living way.

12. In His Baptism of Christians with His Holy Spirit He Reveals the Fullness and the Munificence of God, the Largeness and Liberality of God. By giving us His best gift, the Holy Spirit in His fullness, He shows the disposition of God to give us any gift needful, according to His will, if we want and ask for it.

13. In His Providence Over His People in the Prosecution of His Work in the World Christ Reveals the Faithfulness and Reliability of God. He never leaves nor forsakes them. He ever upholds and directs them. He both enlightens and empowers them. Every word of His can be depended upon to come to pass; He never yet has failed any that trusted and obeyed Him. He is with His own all the days, even unto the consummation of the age.

And when we have said all this we have but glimpsed Jesus as the Revealer of God to men. In personal experience with Him He is constantly showing us God in His perfection of being and operation.

In fine, the Lord Jesus Christ appeals to the intellect as the wisdom of God. He appeals to the heart as the love of God. He appeals to the will as the authority of God. He appeals to the conscience as the righteousness of God. He appeals to the vision as the image of God. He appeals to the hearing as the Word of God. He appeals to the weakness of the flesh and the willingness of the spirit as the strength of God. What more could one say, save that Jesus Satisfies God and Man. Trust Him! Obey Him! This is The Way to Know God.

In the words of W. F. Tillett, on "The Incarnation":

"O Son of God Incarnate,
O Son of Man divine,
In whom God's glory dwelleth,
In whom man's virtues shine,
God's light to earth Thou bringest
To drive sin's night away;
And, through Thy life so radiant,
Earth's darkness turns to day.
O mind of God incarnate;
O thought in flesh enshrined,
In human form Thou speakest
To men the Father's mind;
God's thought to earth Thou bringest
That men in Thee may see
What God is like, and, seeing,
Think God's thoughts after Thee.

O heart of God incarnate,
Love-bearer to mankind,
From Thee we learn what love is,
In Thee love's ways we find;
God's love to earth Thou bringest
In living deeds that prove
How sweet to serve all others,
When we all others love.

O will of God incarnate,
So human, so divine;
Free wills to us Thou givest
That we may make them Thine;
God's will to earth Thou bringest
That all who would obey
May learn from Thee their duty,
The truth, the Life, the Way."

Reidville, S. C.

PURGE AWAY OUR DROSS

"Our God is a consuming fire." Heb. 12:29.

This is not wholly an angry threat. Rather it is a revelation of God in His sanctifying grace and power. It is "Our God" who is a "consuming fire." There are things in all of us that we are not able to eliminate ourselves, and we would give any price to have consumed. It is such a privilege to have a fire on which we can lay them through our great Sin Offering and to have them burn to ashes without the camp. Beloved, have you experienced the blessedness of having God's fire burn out your inmost being? Do you know what it is to lay over everything of the flesh and self and sin on the Lamb of God as your Sin Offering, and then see him consumed with your sin outside the camp while your soul is cleansed and emancipated and you joyfully sing:

Oh, fire of God, burn on, burn on,
Till all my dross is burned away;
Oh, fire of God, burn on, burn on,
Prepare me for the testing day.

—Dr. A. B. Simpson.

Woman's Auxiliary

Conducted by Mrs. J. M. McIver, Gulf, N. C.

Loray, N. C.—The afternoon of August 8th, the Loray Circle of the Concord (I.) Auxiliary entertained the other circles at the Loray school house.

Rev. W. R. Minter, D.D., of Austin, Texas, conducted the devotional in a most interesting and helpful manner. Rev. M. R. Long and Rev. L. L. Cathey were also present.

A short business session was held. Mrs. S. L. Cathey was elected president and Mrs. L. E. Hedrich secretary-treasurer. An election had not been held at the usual time due to inclement weather. The orphanage secretary asked the ladies to can fruit and vegetables for Barium. The secretary of Young People's Work urged the mothers to let her have the children twice a month for the Junior Westminster League.

The remainder of the time was spent in a social way. This was the first social meeting since the organization of the Auxiliary more than three years ago. About sixty-five were present. Delightful punch and wafers were served.

(We have all heard the old saying that "Too much of a good thing is more than enough." But believing that there could not be too much of a good thing as the "Woman's Conference" at Montreat we are, with apologies to the editor of the Woman's page in the Presbyterian of the South giving the readers of the Standard the opportunity of reading this most illuminating article by "Mrs. G. A., of Georgia.")

After reading it we are sure never will you need to ask what Montreat is, where it is, what the Summer School of Missions is, what the spirit of the conference is, nor anything else about Montreat. (Keep this issue on file.) Nor will you need an introduction to Mrs. Winsborough. She stands before you with her "keen, clever face, softly waving white hair, eyes that you would not care to meet if you had done anything shabby. A thoroughly competent, thoroughly Christian woman."—Ed.)

Seen and Heard at Montreat—What I have to say might well be entitled "The Experiences of a Greenhorn at the Woman's Summer School of Missions." Taking it for granted that some of you are as ignorant now as I was before you sent me, I shall begin at the beginning and tell you as well as I can just what and where Montreat is.

Answering the last question first, Montreat is in North Carolina, eighteen miles east of Asheville and fifteen miles from Biltmore. It is reached by Southern Railway, running to the station of Black Mountain, two miles from our conference grounds.

What Is Montreat?—To answer this takes more time. It is the conference center of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. The property was bought from Mr. John S. Huyler, the candy man, at a price of $50,000, almost half of which he afterwards returned in gifts to the Mountain Retreat Association, which owns and manages the property for the benefit of the Church. Mr. Huyler made this low price on a property valued at $300,000 over and above all liabilities, on condition that it should ever be held and conducted as a center of religious educational work. Here, from June to September of each year, religious conferences are held, and those best acquainted with the work at Montreat say that every forward movement of our Church for the past fourteen years has had its birth at these conferences. During this time our Church has forged to the front and is leading all others in gifts per capita and in percentage of increase in membership on profession of faith.

On the Way—Go back with me now to the starting point, and we will take the Southern train for Black Mountain. Due to arrive in Asheville at eight o'clock next morning, we should have made connection there with a local train which would have put us in Black Mountain by nine, but we were more than an hour late and our train had gone. We were left to choose between waiting for the afternoon train or taking the twelve-thirty motor bus from Asheville to Black Mountain, so of course we chose the bus, and found it a very grateful change from the warm Pullman. A ride of eighteen miles over a good road and by the side of a lovely little river was delightfully refreshing. At Black Mountain we were transferred from the bus to a Ford driven by local talent with more speed than comfort, and in a very few minutes we had covered the two miles lying between the station and the white gates of Montreat. Here we were held up by two pleasant-looking young bandits who leaped from the lodgekeeper's cottage just inside the gates, and, running along the sides of the car, collected toll from each of us commensurate with the length of our stay in the grounds. My own fee, I remember, was $1.85, as I was to stay for the full length of the conference. This toll is, in effect, a registration fee, and goes toward the expenses of the conference, the upkeep of the grounds, and, I suppose, the salaries of the young students from our Presbyterian schools who act as gate-keepers.

Inside—Inside the gates lie, on one side of the road, the post office, the general store and the drug store, while on the other side is a good-looking school-house, with tennis courts and ball grounds surrounding it, where all grades from kindergarten to college are taught during the three months of summer, and where a backward child or an ambitious child may make a grade under ideal climatic conditions. And just here let me say that Montreat ought to be a paradise for mothers and children, so many things for the children to do, and nothing to hurt them, such excellent chances, apparently, for a tired mother to rest with a quiet mind.

Montreat Itself—A turn in the road, and Montreat proper lies before us. A green bowl some five or six miles from edge to edge, walled in by mountains which the geography calls Blue Ridge, but which we recognize at once as the Delectable Mountains. Everywhere are green trees and green grass, everywhere the songs of birds and the murmuring of brooks, seen and unseen. All about are winding paths, bordered by low stone walls which enclose gardens gay with ox-eye daisies, nasturtiums, zinnias and asters. Everywhere, up hill and down dale, are buildings, hundreds of them, from cheap shacks to handsome dwellings. Here is the Montreat Office, where the business of the association is carried on; there is Geneva Hall, headquarters for our four Executive Committees and their corps of workers; yonder is the South Carolina Home, and over there is the North Carolina Home. Here is the book store, there is the Girls' Club Building, and here the Men's Club Building, the two hotels, Montreat and Alba; and last, and newest and best, the Auditorium, built of cobblestones, native woods and glass, with an Assembly Hall large enough to seat 3,000 persons, and a dozen little class or committee rooms tucked away in odd corners. It was in this Assembly Hall that the meetings of the conference were held. From the Woman's Building, named in honor of Mrs. Winsborough, and nestling at the very bottom of the bowl, to the Chapman Home for Ministers perched high on the side of the highest hill, everything is lovely.

To What Was I Sent?—Now I want to ask what you sent me to—the Woman's Summer School of Missions, wasn't it? Well, I didn't go to a Woman's Summer School of Missions at all, although that is what it is called. What I really attended was the General Assembly of the Woman's Auxiliary, corresponding to the General Assembly of our Church, just as our Presbyterian corresponds to their Presbyterian and our Synodical to their Synod—a far more interesting and informing conference, in so far as the work of our Auxiliary is concerned. A Question Box was conducted during the conference, and I made so bold as to inquire through this medium why the conference bore the name it did. Mrs. Winsborough answered that it was a case of a conference outgrowing its title, and that a more fitting name was under consideration.

What Is the Woman's Summer School of Missions?—It is a conference of leaders from all over our Presbyterian territory, met to consider the needs and wishes of our Church. We were there 700 strong, representing every state from Oklahoma to Florida, and Mexico, Cuba, Africa, China and Korea. And let me tell you, we were as fine-looking a body of women as one could desire to see; few young women (gray and white hair was all the rage); no conspicuously beautiful women, but a handsome and dignified group, a gathering which made one proud to be a Presbyterian. And for length, breadth and thickness the women at this conference were equal to any similar body anywhere. And oh, the Scotch names! No one could have doubted the birthplace of the Presbyterian Church after reading the name-cards which we wore faithfully.

Mrs. Winsborough—But you say again, "Are you never going to tell us what the conference was like?" Yes, I am, right now. First, let me introduce Mrs. Winsborough, our superintendent, the moving spirit of the conference and of the whole Auxiliary, who began the sessions of each day with a short talk on the Prayer-life of the Master, very illuminating and very inspiring. A woman with a keen, clever face, surmounted by softly waving white hair, eyes that you would not care to meet if you had done anything shabby, a chin that shows why she is superintendent of the Auxiliary; well-dressed, but giving the impression that her dress had been dismissed from her mind when she left her room; a woman of keen wit, of kindly spirit, thoroughly competent, thoroughly Christian; one of the few women I have ever met who knew their business from A to Z.

The Conference—The first forty minutes after devotional exercises was given to the study of our Foreign and Home Mission Study textbooks, and I have notes on both for the benefit of our Home and Foreign Missions Secretaries, if they desire them.

After Mission Study five minutes were given to announcements and ten minutes to an intermission which all of us were glad to have, for in spite of the very comfortable seats in the Assembly Hall, for which the local auxiliaries have been paying, we were all tired and glad of a chance to rest a bit.

Then a period of enlivening, and enlightening methods; but I have a separate talk on this; and many separate lessons and demonstrations.

Dinner and Afternoon—The dinner bugle made a welcome ending to the morning sessions. From the printed program you get the idea that from one o'clock to seven-fifteen there is nothing but rest, sweet rest, but you lose that idea after the first day. The afternoons are filled with by-products of the conference, and with committee meetings where the business of the Auxiliary is carried on by those in authority. Even I, who had no business, got only two afternoons of rest, as there were so many things I wanted to see and hear.

Vespers—Vespers, the sweetest service of the day, was held at 7:15, on the broad porches of the Winsborough Building, and as you sat there in the twilight, with the murmuring of the brook and the sleepy twittering of the birds on the outside, and heard the missionaries from Africa, China, Korea or Mexico tell of their services to body and soul in the name of the Great Physician, and sang "Now the Day is Over," or "Holy, Holy, Holy," you felt that never again in your life would you even want to be a bad girl.

At night we had a man for a change, usually. This is just a partial report, but a glance at the copies of the programs which I have brought you will show other riches of thought of big souls.

Notes—In closing I will say that I have brought home notes on all the studies taken up, which are a your service as occasion may require; as well as many helpful suggestions from Mrs. Winsborough, as to the conduct of Auxiliary business. The most broadly helpful of these, made in answer to a package of questions perhaps six inches high put into the Question Box by various officers of Auxiliaries, as to the best way to conduct their work, was this: "P-R-A-Y and W-O-R-K, and use the good sense which God has given you." A short and simple recipe, and warranted to cure any auxiliary disease.

Helping Mission Schools—I want to mention also a very valuable assistance being given to our foreign schools by Mrs. Vance, wife of a Waynesboro, Va. banker, who, without profit to herself, receives and disposes of the needle-work done by the pupils in these mission schools for the benefit of the school concerned. Mrs. Vance had a booth at the Hotel Alba, where articles of interest or beauty, ranging in price from ten cents to $125, were for sale. The three articles which I bought are on this table, and I shall be glad for you to examine them at the conclusion of the meeting, and to furnish Mrs. Vance' address to any one who may desire to place an order with her.

Spirit of the Conference—I have tried to give you a bird's-eye view of the conference and its work. The thing which impressed me most I have not yet mentioned. That was the spirit of the conference. The spirit of prayer was there. Truly we were a praying band of women. The spirit of love and the spirit of service were there. When seven hundred busy women can meet in crowded dressing room and around crowded dining tables, on hotel porches and in hotel lobbies, where there were not chair enough for half, and for eight days give not one impatient look or say one impatient word, there's a reason—and that reason was that the Spirit of Christ was with us.

Easter in Jerusalem—In closing let me give you the story of an Easter celebration at the Church of the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem, and which acted as a clarion call to each representative at the conference to hasten with the torch which she had lighted at the fire of God-love and Church-love, there burning to her own home and to her own people.

Holy Fire Celebration is observed by the Greek Catholic, the Syrian Catholic and the Coptic Churches in Jerusalem. The tradition is that on Good Friday of each year a miraculous fire burst from the tomb of our Saviour, which is in the center of the famous Church of the Holy Sepulchre.

This tomb is the sacred mecca of every sect in the East, which believes in the crucifixion and resurrection of our Lord. The faithful are charged to keep a lighted taper burning in their homes the year round, and the highly favored and very zealous make the pilgrimage to Jerusalem to light their tapers at this shrine. To provide for those who cannot make the pilgrimage a group of volunteer runners is organized, and these young men strip for the race as did the athletes of Bible times. There is a keen contest between the different sects to get the first light when the fire bursts from the tomb and get away on the run to the village church of their respective sects. These runners work in relays, and in twenty-four hours practically every village in Palestine is reached, and within a week the altar fires of every church from the Nile up into the far northern sections skirting the Mediterranean are freshly lighted. Every family watches for the annual return of the torch bearers, and from the altars of their local churches they relight their family altar fires.

The missionary application is very striking as you will see, and it was thrilling indeed to see the reverence and zeal with which these devotees of the oriental churches enter into this great ceremonial. Their long and painful pilgrimages, and the universal way in which every family "keeps the home fires burning" is at once an example and an inspiration to Christians in this favored land of America.

Note—To Mrs. G. A., of Georgia, we render heart thanks for this report which will serve as a model for many delegates of 1923.—Editor.

DOWN OR UP?

In that great sermon that Bishop Dobbs preached in Ensley recently, he said this significant thing: "Men are usually down on what they are not up on." How true this is! Take, for example, our great missionary enterprises. Not infrequently we hear people who oppose an actually antagonized missionary work. Nine times out of ten, ignorance lieth at the door. And from this ignorance comes indifference, and when ignorance and indifference have conceived they bring forth infidelity. Ignorance, indifference, and infidelity are the great foes of world-wide evangelism.—Alabama Christian Advocate.

The summer, the divinest summer burns,
The skies are bright with azure and with gold;
The mavis, and the nightingale, by turns,
Amid the woods a soft enchantment hold;
The flowering woods, with glory and delight,
Their tender leaves unto the air have spread;
The wanton air, amid their alleys bright,
Doth softly fly, and a light fragrance spread.
—William Cotheby.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT

(Conducted under the auspices of Synod's Committee of Sunday Schools and Young People's Work, in the interest of Sunday Schools and Young People's Societies)

W. ARNETT GAMBLE, JR., Editor

ADDRESS ALL COMMUNICATIONS TO THE DEPARTMENT EDITOR DAVIDSON, N. C

EDITOR'S LOOKOUT

We hear from time to time that it is hard to get new plans for young people's societies, both for the meetings and for the social life. Those who are looking for new plans will find some good food for thought in the list of variations given this week in our department from the New Hope C. E. Society.

This list of work illustrates in a practical way one of the principal aims for our department. We want to help all our young people's work by telling in these columns, plans the value of which has been proved by their actual use in some of our societies.

Our young people who have tried and worked some helpful plans can, through the Young People's Department, do a good service to other young people by using the Standard as an agency for distributing these ideas.

We have been asked to give plans for different society committees, for meetings, and for socials. We give this week a plan for a social, though we do not claim credit for originating the plan. We would like to have other plans sent to us, and will run them under the name of the ones sending them in. The plans need not be absolutely original. Tell what you did or saw done, no matter if it is a combination of parts of other plans. Somebody else can probably take the plan you send, combine it with parts of others, and make a new social program.

What are you going to do for your denomination this fall? Think this over. Why not take up a study course, in missions or stewardship, or both? You and your society and church will profit, and the work of the Presbyterian Church will be advanced. Then, if you will couple some actual work and generous giving to help along some of the interests of our denomination, you will be of real value in making Presbyterianism count for something worthwhile. The time to prepare for this is NOW. Don't put it off.

Sunday School

AUGUST 26, 1923

BARNABAS THE GREAT-HEARTED

Lesson: Acts 4:36, 37; 9:26-30; 11:19-30; 12:25; 13:1-15:12, 35-41; Galatians 2:13

Printed Text: Acts 4:36, 37; 11:19-30

GOLDEN TEXT—"He was a good man, and full of the Holy Spirit and of faith."—Acts 11:24.

SCRIPTURE LESSON

Ch. 11:19 Now they which were scattered abroad upon the persecution that arose about Stephen, travelled as far as Phoenice and Cyprus, and Antioch, preaching the word to none but unto the Jews only.

20 And some of them were men of Cyprus and Cyrene, which, when they were come to Antioch, spake unto the Grecians, preaching the Lord Jesus.
21 And the hand of the Lord was with them; and a great number believed, and turned unto the Lord.
22 Then tidings of these things came unto the ears of the church which was in Jerusalem: and they sent forth Barnabas, that he should go as far as Antioch.

23 Who, when he came, and had seen the grace of God, was glad, and exhorted them all, that with purpose of heart they would cleave unto the Lord.
24 For he was a good man, and full of the Holy Ghost and of faith; and much people was added unto the Lord.
25 Then departed Barnabas to Tarsus, for to seek Saul:

26 And when he had found him, he brought him unto Antioch. And it came to pass, that a whole year they assembled themselves with the church, and taught much people. And the disciples were called Christians first in Antioch.
27 And in these days came prophets from Jerusalem unto Antioch.

28 And there stood up one of them, named Agabus, and signified by the Spirit that there should be great dearth throughout all the world: which came to pass in the days of Claudius Caesar.

29 Then the disciples, every man according to his ability, determined to send relief unto the brethren which dwelt in Judea:
30 Which also they did, and sent it to the elders by the hands of Barnabas and Saul.

SHORTER CATECHISM

Q. 51. What is forbidden in the second commandment?
A. The second commandment forbiddeth the worshipping of God by images, or any other way not appointed in his word.

By Andrew C. Zenos, in The Continent.

What John the Baptist was to Jesus the Messiah, that to the apostle Paul was Barnabas. For some generations past the world had been ripening for the gospel of salvation. Paul was destined to be the great apostle of the Gentiles, carrying the message of salvation to the ends of the earth. But before Paul could do his work it was necessary that another and more unobtrusive character should make a beginning of preaching Christ to the Gentiles.

Joseph, surnamed Barnabas, of the island of Cyprus, proved to be that man. Strict regard for accuracy, however, demands the admission that the exact time, place and manner of the presentation of the new faith to pure Gentiles is not known. What is known is that in Antioch Gentiles in considerable numbers accepted Jesus as their Saviour on the same terms as the Jews and that Barnabas was sent to take charge of the new and amazing movement.

The choice of Barnabas for this work is a clear evidence of the confidence placed in his good judgment by the leaders of the church at Jerusalem. At the same time, it shows that by early training and associations he was fitted to lead in breaking down the middle wall of partition between Jews and Gentiles and the fusion of sincere seekers after God on both sides of the wall into a new community with Jesus Christ as their Lord and Saviour.

It is to the credit of Barnabas that when he realized the magnitude and importance of the work committed to him he did not venture upon it alone but sought the aid of Saul of Tarsus, a man whose qualifications for it he evidently knew. It takes both wisdom and grace to call to one's assistance in a promising enterprise one who is likely to supersede him in the control of it because of his stronger personality and superior powers. But Barnabas did not jealously think of his prior call to leadership or of the possibility of his being supplanted by Paul. His main concern was to promote the faith of the Christ whom he had accepted. And when the order was reversed and, instead of Paul's being his assistant, as seems clear from the mention of his name first ("Barnabas and Saul"), Paul forged to the front and he found himself occupying second place ("Paul and Barnabas"), he was just as satisfied; because in either case it was the cause of Christ and not himself that he aimed to advance.

That Paul might be given pre-eminence over himself, Barnabas could not have failed to realize. For it seems that he was acquainted with the future leader of the mission to the Gentiles and knew the strength of his personality, even before either one of them had joined the Christian fold. Indeed, according to an early tradition, they had been together as pupils in the school of Gamaliel. At all events, it is certain that Barnabas, who was the first to become a Christian, introduced Paul to the Christians, dispelling their fears and suspicions of him and vouching for the genuineness of the sudden and astonishing conversion. That conversion was preceded by such a violent course of hostility to the cause of the Gospel as to justify the suspicions of the followers of Christ, and the value of Barnabas' indorsement of the new convert must not be underestimated.

Besides the sincere devotion to the great cause which led him to forget himself in promoting it, Barnabas was endowed with a winsome personality. He was a man of commanding physical appearance. At Lystra where the miracle performed by Paul led the natives to think that the Gods had appeared among them, while Paul was supposed to be Mercury, Barnabas was identified with Jupiter, evidently because his figure reminded the Lystrians of the well-proportioned and impressive statues of Jupiter which they were accustomed to see in their temples. But as contrasted with Paul he was less disposed to take the platform in public speech. It was the grace of his manner and the persuasiveness of his few words, when he did speak, rather than his oratorical or logical power that made him a good missionary and evangelist.

Another trait of Barnabas was his instinctive generosity. His very first appearance in the story of the apostolic community is linked with the act of giving his possessions to the common treasury. "Having a field, he sold it and brought the money and laid it at the apostles' feet." He made the surrender of himself in the spirit in which Jesus recommended it to the rich young ruler. But he made it voluntarily and without any specific requirement or recommendation.

Though Barnabas was willing to yield to Paul the first place in a work in which he had occupied it himself, he never became a mere echo of the greater leader. He did not grudge Paul the leadership, but he reserved for himself the right to judge independently of matters on which Paul had already expressed decided opinions. When he proposed to take his kinsman John Mark on the second missionary journey and Paul flatly declined the proposal because Mark had left them on the first trip, Barnabas held his ground; and, as Paul would not yield, he took Mark with him upon an independent journey into Cyprus. Evidently it was not out of mere good nature that he took this course, for he could not have failed to feel the pain of parting from Paul in such circumstances. It was rather his better and wiser judgment that saw in Mark the qualities which would make him useful to the church but which needed encouragement. The event justified him. For even Paul later accepted Mark as a good workman for Jesus Christ.

The portraiture of Barnabas is that of a genial, large-hearted, self-effacing, lovable man. The individual details given in a scattered way through the narrative of the Acts bear out the summary of Luke. "He was a good man, and full of the Holy Spirit and of faith."

Christian Endeavor

By Rev. J. G. Garth, Chairman of Synod's Committee of Sabbath Schools and Young People's Work.

A SINGING PSALM

M., Aug. 27—Songs in the Heart: Eph. 5:18-21.
T., Aug. 28—Song of Deliverance: Exod. 15:1-14.
W., Aug. 29—Song of Redemption: Rev. 5:8-14.
Th., Aug. 30—Songs in the Dark: Acts 16:19-25.
F., Aug. 31—Songs of Praise: Ps. 130:1-8.
S., Sept. 1—Songs That Instruct: Ps. 73:1-28.

Sun., Sept. 2—Topic: Lessons from the Psalms.
9. A Singing Psalm. Ps. 96:1-13. (Consecration meeting.)

What causes have we for praise?
What is the value of praise to the church?
What uses can we make of religious poetry?

Singing is usually a sign of happiness, and if anyone has a right to sing, a Christian has this right, and should express his joy in music. When people break forth into song, we suppose they are happy, and as we Christians have great reason to be thankful, we should express our feelings in song.

All Christians Should Sing God's Praise

It is very uncommon to see anyone who cannot sing, and every one who is a Christian ought to use the vocal powers God has given to lift our praise to God for the blessings He has given us. Young people love to sing, and they should not use only foolish sentimental love songs, or silly minstrel tunes, but give their voices to God's praise also. It is all right to have fun, but don't forget to praise God too.

Good Hymns are Instructive

A great many of our Sunday School songs are not as instructive as they ought to be, and when we sing God's praise, our words ought to teach some lesson, and declare some truth. This is one value in the use of the Psalms in church music, they are instructive. A gospel song is supposed to emphasize a single thought, while church hymns take in a wider range of truth. Young people are inclined to use only gospel songs, because of their simplicity. But we ought also to memorize the great hymns of the church and sing them too.

Singing Is An Act of Social Worship

Singing is one part of a church service in which all can engage, and yet how often people sit silent, and take no part in the service of praise. This is wrong, and we must not despise God's worship by refusing to sing, unless there is a good reason for it. Mere lack of desire is not a good reason. We must force ourselves to sing, with other worshippers. How wrong to let a choir do all the singing. When only the choir sings all the songs, it is more of a concert than the worship of God.

Songs Impress the Sinful World

Not only does singing give us a chance to worship God, but it is a testimony the church can give the world. Sinners hear the voice of song, and receive God's truth in that way. It puts the praise of God in their hearts and may result in their acceptance of Christ as their Saviour. Many a person has been converted by a song. The Psalmist bids the church to tell the heathen about God's power and love. Sin brings sadness and despair into human hearts, and singing arouses the sinner's interest in the gospel, awakens his conscience, and leads him to Christ.

Songs Express the Triumphs of the Gospel

When the church cries out in song that God will one day triumph over sin, sorrow and death, it encourages the church to go on to her duty, to bear her trials bravely, and challenge Satan and his hosts to the battle for the right. Music has a great power over soldiers. Bands play, the army sings, and every soldier is heartened for his duty. Thus also songs lift up the church, and make her feel her cause will triumph.

Songs of Hope

The end of this Psalm tells us that we are to sing because of the glorious hope of the coming of Christ. It says He is coming to judge the world, with righteousness, and the people with His truth. Nothing is more glorious than the prospect of the second coming of Jesus. He is coming back to the earth, and is going to establish His kingdom here, and drive away all sin and death, and all will be joy and gladness. Many of our songs refer to Christ's second coming, and the church should sing these songs with a loud voice, and let the sinful world know of their hope of His return.

PLAN FOR A SOCIAL

Trip to the Blarney Stone, or to Glasgow, or to Some Park

The chairs or short benches are arranged to make electric railway car or railroad coach, with an aisle down the center. The ones who are to make the "trip" are given "tickets" before the start, or buy these for a small amount if it is desired to raise money for any cause. A "conductor" passes through the car at a given time, punches or collects tickets, carries on a lot of nonsense with the passengers, keeps them from "fighting," and gives instructions as to stops, etc. A news-butcher may also be arranged for, and can sell things for fake or real money, and helps to keep the crowd in a good humor by his bright and quaint remarks. Uniforms will aid the conductor and butcher.

After a given time on the car or train, the Blarney Stone is reached. This may be at "Blarney Park." A brick or stone may be arranged on the bucket shelf of a step-ladder, and the visitors go up the ladder and lean over and kiss the stone. The ladder should be behind a curtain and only one visitor should go in at once. If the park idea is carried out, other amusements may be arranged. A fortune-teller may have up a sign "Get Your Palm Read" and put red ink on those who enter. A side trip to Cork may be had, this being a piece of cork behind a curtain.

For refreshments, the delegates should have their lunches and have a picnic lunch. If the social is indoors some bed sheets can be spread on the carpet and the food laid out on these. The return trip is similar to the one to the stone, and yells and songs should help to make it enjoyable.

NEWS FROM THE FRONT

Miss Elizabeth Kirkland, of Durham, N. C., gives us the following interesting news briefs about the New Hope Christian Endeavor Society:

The society recently held a radio meeting. A perfect imitation of a radio receiving set was rigged up by one of the boys and all who were on the program were hidden, to give the impression of messages being received from a distance.

In some of the meetings the girls sing and the boys whistle the songs. In one meeting the boys had entire charge of the program; in another the girls had charge.

One meeting was held in which the young people instead of speaking on the topic told the story of Jesus from birth to crucifixion.

In another meeting the benevolent causes of the Church were explained.

Bible drills are held occasionally.

The Christian Endeavorers, with a few invited guests, recently enjoyed a camp supper, which included a weenie and marshmallow roast.

The young people hold special prayer services for the pastor, who has been in poor health for some time.

The Junior C. E. Society of the Carolina Church, Little Rock, S. C., has 25 active members. A social is held every month. The members are learning the String of Pearls, memory work, and also the Graded Memory Work.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S ECHO CONFERENCES—CONCORD PRESBYTERY

By Miss Lena Salvageot

Concord Presbytery held three very interesting rallies at Poplar Tent, near Concord, Barium Springs, and Morganton, on July 17th, 18th and 20th.

The whole program for these rallies was planned by the young folks and rendered by them, and they made up the principal part of the audiences—about 700 out of an approximate attendance of 900.

The aim of these conferences is to bring to all the young people of our Presbytery a glimpse of what was done at the Y. P. Conference at Davidson. Certainly, all who heard the wonderful reports, made by different delegates, will agree that our goal was reached.

Seven reports were given in each group: Conference in General, Sunday School Work, Foreign Missions, Home Missions, Athletics, Young People's Work, and Social Life, at the conference.

At the first rally, Poplar Tent Church held a good crowd, not only of local people, but of delegates from other churches. The program was filled with helpful suggestions; the Question Box worked wonderfully. Interesting questions were asked and, in almost every case, brief answers suggested a solution.

Rev. R. A. White, of Mooresville, made an address on "What Constitutes a Model Young People's Society." He showed that the life of each member of the society must have Christ for its model. The lesson was driven home by the question, "How can a society in which each member has Christ for a model be other than a Model Society?"

The second rally, held at Barium, was especially interesting. Here, also, good crowds came from a distance in cars. The opportunity to visit the orphanage proved an added attraction. At this rally, also, seven reports were given.

After the picnic supper, the boys from Synod's Cottage played a fine game of football.

Delegates to the Morganton conference had the privilege of joining in the devotional with delegates to a District Auxiliary Conference. There we heard short messages from Mrs. Dullnig, of San Antonio, Tex., and Mrs. L. H. Cockerham, missionary in the Kentucky mountains. The rest of our exercises were held in the Methodist church.

After lunch, delegates from both conferences gathered for a sing.

Rev. Mr. Tron, pastor of a Waldensian Church of New York City, made a telling address on "Endeavors for Christ." The special music and the delicious picnic spreads at all the rallies deserve special mention.

"More zeal to labor" should certainly result from our conferences. Let us pray for another result: A working Young People's Society in each church in Concord Presbytery.

TO THE JUNIOR CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS

(In thanks for a lovely gift)

One, two, three, four, five,
Brown bulbs, and all alive!
And brown their bowl is, too,
With rainbows dancing through.

From morn to starry night
I watch them with delight,
Tied to their watery bed
By rootlets of white thread.

Their lengthening spears of green
Like slender tongues are seen.
Oh, many a fancy strays
About them as I gaze.

Sometimes I play they're ships,
Homing from foreign trips,
Foresee the cargo rare
Of beauty that they bear.

And now they change again
Each to a wee, brown wren.

TO EACH HIS WORK

When a teacher is employed, he is furnished a house and paid a salary, but he is not expected to go out and persuade pupils to come to the school. The people can make even a moderately good preacher popular, and can have large congregations to hear him, if they will talk him up and go after the people. Too many people spend much time criticizing the preacher, and then wonder why he does not draw large congregations. Let the preacher preach and let the people get the congregations, and the work will be well done.

Almost all the ethnic faiths are concerned with the quest of man after God. When one turns to Christianity, this is changed. It is not man seeking God, but God seeking man. It begins with God being born into our humanity through Christ, that He might find it and draw it to Himself. "I am come to seek and to save that which is lost."—Rev. Frederick Lynch.

Church News

BARIUM SPRINGS NEWS

The week has been crowded with good things. On Wednesday the Junior class of the First Presbyterian Church of Statesville came down on a picnic, then on Thursday the Williams Memorial Church of Charlotte came in full strength. This picnic party not only brought lunch enough for themselves, but fed every child in the home from Mecklenbrug Presbytery. From all reports this was done most handsomely and there were basketfuls left over even after that.

Thursday after the regular supper the children with August birthdays had a gorgeous watermelon feast, those with August birthdays from Mecklenbrug too gained several pounds in weight that fine day.

On Friday the boys of Synod had their annual dinner, the most popular on the menu being fried chicken. These boys from five to ten years old, put on this dinner themselves, raising the chickens, paying for the extras like ice cream and everything like that out of money they have earned themselves. Sometimes they have a picnic, but this year they elected to have a bang-up dinner in the dining room. The dinner this year in addition to its other features was in the nature of a farewell to this cottage's most excellent matron, Miss Sally Chambers. Miss Chambers leaves us September first and not only the 40 boys that are her special charges but all of us will regret the departure of this splendid woman.

Miss Sloan, our dining room matron for the summer, certainly has a way with her. If you should visit us at meal time and sit at any of the tables, be very careful not to spill anything on the table cloth. If you do you will get rather black looks from the children at that particular table. Now drop in for supper Saturday night and you will see the answer. You will see one table full in each end of the room eating ice cream. They kept their tables most immaculate, SEE?

Vacation time is passing rapidly and school will soon be going again. All our down-east friends will be coming down from the glorious mountains and our friends from the hills will be stepping out of the surf from our matchless beaches and all getting to their check-books and collection envelopes, and then again will flow with increased volume and more regularity, that stream that tells us whether or not we eat, WE HOPE.

PERSONAL

Rev. Charles R. Bailey has changed his address from Laurel Hill, N. C., to Romney, W. Va.

NORTH CAROLINA

Marston—A Presbyterian Church with 17 members was organized at Marston, Richmond County, August 12th.

Rehoboth—Rev. W. J. Huneycutt, pastor of Community Presbyterian Church, of Charleston, S. C., has just closed one of the most successful meetings in the history of Rehoboth Church. The crowds were large throughout the entire week. It was said by some of the older people that the congregation was the largest on one occasion ever seen at the church. The sermons were scholarly but simple and clear, so that even a child could understand. We are very grateful to God for the blessing we have received.

Townsville, Andrews Church—Rev. Leonard Gill, Synod's evangelist, held a meeting for us August 2-12. Rev. Mr. Gill denounces sin in its various forms continuously, fearlessly, and fervently. There were 27 conversions. Twelve united with St. Andrews Church on profession of faith. Two joined on statement. The majority of the others went to the Baptist Church. M. C. Bowling.

Matthews—Our pastor conducted the preparatory service on Friday night, the 10th inst., and administered the sacrament of the Lord's supper on Sunday morning following. Notwithstanding the extreme heat and the holiday season there was a large congregation, and a most interesting service.

The Bible studies which are being conducted by Mrs. Gurney, our pastor's wife, under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary, are very interesting and instructive. Women from the other churches of the village are attending these classes. Cor.

Long Creek Church—On Sunday night, July 29th, we began a meeting which continued with two services each day until the following Friday night. The pastor was assisted by Rev. A. T. Banks, of Cherryville, whose preaching was simple, plain and the old-time gospel story. Brother Banks won the hearts of all our people. There was an expression of desire for reconsecration on the part of all the members of the church, and there were six professions of faith in Christ and additions to the church membership. J. J. H.

Mount Airy—This church has just had the pleasure of having its own foreign missionary pastor for a week-end visit. For some time past, on assignment from the executive committee, all the foreign mission contributions of this church have gone to the support of Rev. and Mrs. W. Frank McElroy, of the Bibangu Station, Africa. They are home on furlough now and were able to come from their home in Austin, Texas, to visit us as they went to Montreat for the foreign missionary conference there. Splendid congregations were present at both services on Sunday and were delighted with Mr. McElroy's addresses. The congregation was very much pleased also at having the opportunity of knowing Mrs. McElroy and the two children, Frank, Jr., and Lucile.

Z. V. Robertson, Pastor.

Church in the Pines and Lakeside, Laurel Hill—These two churches are now vacant by reason of the fact that Rev. Charles R. Bailey, the former pastor has resigned to accept a call to the church at Romney, W. Va. These are two active churches and great progress has been made during the five and one-half years pastorate just closing. During this period a new brick building has been erected by the Church in the Pines and Lakeside Church has been organized. Together the two churches have a membership of some two hundred and four Sunday Schools are doing good work. Both churches are well organized and are at work. The retiring pastor leaves with the good wishes of the people and they confidently await the Great Head of the Church sending them a new pastor to lead them in the work.

Providence—The preparatory service, preceding the mid-summer communion, was held on Saturday, August 4th at 11 o'clock. The attendance was large notwithstanding the busy season.

The Lord's supper was administered on Sunday morning at 11 o'clock before a congregation that filled the church, some who had "gone out from us" returned for the communion season.

Two young men united with the church on confession of faith.

The annual congregational picnic was held on Friday, the 10th inst. The weather was delightful, the fellowship even more delightful, therefore the occasion was MOST delightful. In compliance with the President's proclamation a very impressive memorial service was conducted by the pastor for the late President Harding.

Our pastor is preaching in a number of the churches of the colored people during the summer. Many white people attend to hear the interesting and melodious singing.

Mrs. Gurney, our pastor's wife, is conducting a Bible study class under the auspices of our Woman's Auxiliary, the attendance is good and the interest excellent. Cor.

Gastonia, First Church—Rev. George R. Gillespie, assistant pastor and pastor of Armstrong Memorial Church, is returning from a tour of the Near East about September 1st. Mr. Gillespie went as a commissioner of Near East Relief, a purse of $1,000 being presented to him by the men of the First Church. He writes of a most interesting trip, covering Egypt, Palestine, many points in Asia Minor, Greece and European cities.

This church has secured the services of Mr. S. Wilkes Dendy, of Columbia, S. C., as director of religious education and young people's work of the next year, beginning September 1st. Mr. Dendy has had much successful experience in such work and is unusually well fitted for the position.

Miss Elizabeth G. Martin, who has served this church as secretary most faithfully and efficiently for the past two years, leaves about September 1st, for her home in Charleston, W. Va. She expects to finish her college work at the University of West Virginia. Her departure causes sincere and universal regret.

One of our own young ladies, Miss Helen Ragan, will take Miss Martin's place.

Not only the congregation of the First Church, but the people of the town generally, profoundly regret the departure of Rev. R. C. Long, pastor of West Avenue Church, who has accepted an important position with the Assembly's Committee of Stewardship. Mr. Long is at present in a local hospital, recuperating from a recent operation for appendicitis, but hopes to be able to go to Chattanooga early next month. He has done an exceptionally good work in Gastonia and leaves hosts of friends and admirers.

The pulpit of this church was most acceptably filled on Sunday, August 5th, by Dr. Wm. F. Junkin, of Sutsain, China. The church has recently assumed the support of another missionary, in addition to its already substantial foreign mission budget, Miss Mary B. Woods, who has sailed for China. Miss Woods is one of the third generation of this distinguished family of workers in China.

Dr. Henderlite, pastor of the First Church, has been presented with a handsome Willys-Knight Sedan by members of his congregation. He expects to spend the latter part of the month at Montreat, attending the Bible conference there.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Bethel Presbytery meets Tuesday September 18th, 4 p. m., in Olivet Church, McConnellsville, S. C.

F. H. Wardlaw, S. C.

FLORIDA

Key West—The ladies of the Auxiliary recently decided to invite their husbands to a meeting. After they got them there, they laid before them the needs of the Cuban Mission and of Mr. Boan, the licentiate in charge, who was about to go into a cigar factory to work in order to support his family. A generous monthly subscription was immediately taken for his support, so that he may devote his time to the mission and his studies.

Mulberry—Mr. James F. Merrin, a student at Union Theological Seminary, has been serving this church and Pierce, a phosphate town near by, during his vacation. He has made a fine impression at both places. Recently, Rev. A. R. Larrick, pastor of the Plant City Church, preached at Mulberry and administered the communion. Eight members were received, several of whom were baptized. It is hoped that a permanent supply for this field will be secured. The superintendent of Home Missions is corresponding with a strong man and hopes to secure him when Mr. Merrin leaves.

Daytona Beach—This is a newly organized church, not quite two months old. Mr. Chandler Stith, a candidate for the ministry under the care of St. Johns Presbytery, is serving here during the summer. He has gotten a strong hold upon the membership and the community who will be sorry when he has to go to Davidson College, which he hopes to enter this fall. Last Sunday, Rev. T. Peyton Walton, superintendent Home Missions, preached and administered the communion, the first communion for the little church. Two members were received. An excellent lot has been bought and they hope to begin building soon.

GEORGIA

Smyrna Camp Ground Conference, near Conyers—For about eighty years, with a few exceptions, there has been held a camp meeting at the Smyrna Church of Atlanta Presbytery. Last year it was decided to enlarge the scope of the meeting to include a conference on the Progressive Program but especially on young people's work. This year the camp was held July 27th to August 5th. Rev. J. Edwin Hemphill was in charge. Under his direction a full program was maintained daily. All the permanent tents were occupied the first day. As additional delegates arrived accommodations were provided in canvas tents.

Classes were maintained in Expert Endeavor by S. Wilkes Dendy, in Junior work by Miss Rebecca Brown, in Women's work and Teacher Training by Miss Maud King, in Stewardship by William Huck, and in Home Missions by J. E. Hemphill. The music was in charge of W. R. Buhler and Irving M. Ellis who also gave instruction in vocal leadership. The afternoons were occupied by the young people under the direction of Rev. S. B. Hay. There was croquet, volley ball, swinging, hiking, swimming. It was notable how promptly the play ceased at the call to worship and the same youthful energy was put forth in prayer and praise and testimony. The young folk had quite an enlivening effect upon the spirit of the campus and of the worship. They constituted the main portion of the chorus choir and acted as ushers to the congregations. Approximately 100 delegates were in attendance, mostly young people from the churches of the Presbytery, besides the regular "tent holders."

The Bible and evangelistic messages were delivered by Dr. Robert King, of Tennessee. His testimony to the Word of God as living and powerful was of great effect upon his hearers, young and old. His presentation of the gospel call was earnest and loving. Souls were saved, God's children were revived, and lives were consecrated to the Master's service. A dozen or more student volunteers were in attendance upon the conference and were among the happiest there. The closing night of the conference and camp was specially characterized by the presence and power of the Spirit of the Lord. There were nearly half a hundred who declared their purpose to devote their life to definite service in the Kingdom. Many more were moved to larger endeavor in the vineyard of the Lord.

Rev. J. W. Stokes.

TENNESSEE

Rosemark, First Church, Rev. D. C. Young, pastor. The town of Rosemark has been having for the past ten days a gracious revival and a season of refreshing. Rev. Albert Keller a native of New Zealand did the preaching. Seven children were received into the church upon profession of their faith in Christ. The Christian people of the church and community were greatly benefited by the meeting. Mr. Keller preaches the Gospel with simplicity and power. He preaches Christ and Him crucified and the Word. He is an able speaker, a strong evangelist and a great personal worker. Any church would be fortunate to have Mr. Keller hold a meeting for them. Any Presbytery or Synod would be fortunate in securing him as their evangelist. He is now open for evangelistic work and anyone desiring to get in touch with him may do so by writing him at Stanton, Tenn.

TEXAS

Lancaster Presbyterian Church—The session has granted their pastor a vacation of several weeks in order to recuperate from the flu and its effects. He will spend his vacation in North Carolina and Tenn., and may be addressed at Cleveland, N. C.

Waskom—Beginning July 2d, Dr. Hall preached morning and evening in this church for nine days, assisting Rev. J. N. Cunningham, the pastor. There were eight additions here on confession of faith and baptism, while one young man went to the M. E. Church. Several others were expected to join later on. This church was genuinely revived.

Longview—It is being demonstrated in a good many instances these days that the pastor of a church can carry on the work of his church, and at the same time do a vast deal of evangelistic work. Dr. R. M. Hall, of Longview, Texas, during the month of April conducted a meeting of two weeks' duration in his own church, preaching twice a day. As the immediate result of this meeting there were several additions to the church on profession of faith and baptism.

