Calvin Cowles Sanford, son of Amos Baker and Mary Lunn Sanford was born at County Line, Davie County, North Carolina, October 15th, 1843. He was educated at Farmington and Olin, North Carolina. He enlisted as a private in Company F 42nd North Carolina Infantry (of which Wiley Clement was Captain) March 18, 1862. He was made sergeant soon after enlisting and was promoted to lieutenant and served until the close of the War. He returned home where desolation and poverty had spread its pall over the South. Taking stock he had as his possessions; one-third interest in a mule, one-ninth interest in a wagon, one fifty-cent piece and a knightly spirit unbounded, unbroken and unconquerable. He disposed of his share in the mule to care for his mother's doctor bill. True greatness not only shines on the battlefield but also at home; adversity's fire consumes only dross, never the gold.

He taught school for two years at Farmington. He served as sheriff of Davie County for eight years and never carried any firearms in the discharge of his official duty. He was married January 11, 1872, to Miss Mary Denny Brown. To this union were born six sons and two daughters. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. R. T. Faucette, of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Mrs. J. J. Larew, of Mocksville, N. C., and five sons; T. F. Sanford, of Chattanooga, Tenn., R. B., H. A., J. C. and E. C. Sanford, of Mocksville, N. C.

He entered the mercantile business in Mocksville, which has grown constantly for sixty years. He had a kind heart; faith in God and man.

One associate in business with him daily for fifty-four years never knew him to lose his temper, say a bad word or do a little thing. He was reverent, the Church and the Sabbath were sacred to him. He was kind; he did not give the cup or cold water for he had more to give for the Lord prospered him, "I will bless thee and thou shalt be a blessing," was not only said to Abram of old, but to all men, and realized in the life of C. C. Sanford. On his broad shoulders rested the burdens of his fellow-men, of widows and orphans. His interest in school revealed his estimate of the child and its future. Children, "Behold the man," the challenge of his life and character call to you to enter this noble heritage.

On March 6th as the sun sank and the shadows began wrapping the earth for slumber he fell asleep. "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright for the end of that man is peace."

His body lay in state at the Presbyterian Church with an honor guard from among the sorrowing employees of the C. C. Sanford Sons Company. Every store, office and mill in the city was closed as the funeral was conducted by his pastor, Rev. E. P. Bradley, assisted by Rev. E. M. Avett, of the Methodist Church, and the body laid to rest in old Joppa Cemetery by the side of his wife and oldest son.

Mocksville, N. C.

MRS. JOHNSON COOLEY

Whereas God has seen fit to call to himself our oldest member, Mrs. Fannie Johnson Cooley, and one of our youngest co-workers, Miss Caro McNeill, be it resolved:

First, That in the death of these our Church and Auxiliary have lost two faithful members.

Second, That while we feel the loss, we bow in humble submission to the will of God, who knoweth best, and doeth all things well.

Third, That we extend to their families our sincere sympathy, and commend them to Christ, who alone can give comfort to the sorrowing.

Fourth, That we file a copy of these resolutions on our minutes.

Wagram, N. C.

Miss Fodie McKay,
Miss Kate McDuffy,
Mrs. W. G. Buie, Sr., Committee.

JOHN McDOWELL

Resolutions of Respect adopted by the session of Steele Creek Church, March 10, 1929.

On February 16, 1929, it was the will of our Heavenly Father to remove from this mortal life to that life beyond, a member of our session, whom we delighted to honor, namely, John McDowell. Mr. McDowell was born and reared within the bounds of Steele Creek Presbyterian Church, and in early life connected himself with the Church. His life was exemplary as a Church member even from boyhood, being the son of one of our honored elders. On January 18, 1890, Mr. McDowell was ordained and installed ruling elder of our Church, in which position he early gave promise of much usefulness. Not only was he prominent in Church matters, but he was also an honored citizen of the community, ever alert to the best interests of both Church and community. Mr. McDowell was elected clerk of our session very soon after the death of his distinguished great uncle, Capt. A. G. Neel, who departed this life on the 25th day of February, 1898, and served in such position faithfully until his death.

In his passing, we the remaining members of our session, realize that we have sustained the loss of a man devoted to the cause, not only of our individual Church, but to the Church as a whole. He was ever alert to the interests of the coming of the Kingdom in the hearts and lives of men.

Therefore, be it resolved,

First, That we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well, realizing that what is our loss is his gain, and may we ever keep in mind that "All things work together for good to them that love God."

Second, That a page of our sessional records be devoted to the memory of our faithful brother, embodying these resolutions, and further that copies be sent to his widow and children, and that copies be sent to our Church papers.

I. B. Faies,
C. F. Brown,
R. C. Freeman,
Committee.

Charlotte, N. C.

DR. GEORGE J. RAMSEY

In the death of Doctor Ramsey, both the Church as a whole and especially the session are sensible of a great loss. Desiring to record our esteem, and affection, and our profound sorrow, we do hereby adopt the following memorial:

George Junkin Ramsey was born on June 28th, 1857, in Rockbridge County, Virginia, and departed this life in Raleigh, N. C., on December 9, 1928. He was the only son of Rev. James B. Ramsey, D.D., and Sabra Shepard Tracy Ramsey. His father was a most scholarly minister and a leader of our Church in his day, and his mother was of one of the old families of our country. Thus well born, he was a child of the covenant and a son of the manse.

Graduating from Hampden-Sidney College with the degree of Bachelor of Arts, he took a post-graduate course at the University of Virginia, from which he received the degree of Master of Arts. Later the Southwestern Presbyterian University bestowed upon him the degree of Doctor of Laws. Endowed by nature with unusual mental ability, and educated in our best schools, and his life spent in reading and study, Doctor Ramsey attained a culture, a scholarship, and a breadth of vision above the average. His life was almost wholly given to the cause of education. In educational circles he was well known and influential. As professor or president he served Ogden College, Ky., Silliman Institute, La., Center College, Ky., and Peace Institute, N. C.

Being a member of the Church from his boyhood, and an officer in it, he loved the Church of Christ, and served it faithfully. With an unwavering faith and an unaffected piety he endured to the end as a loyal follower of the Lord Jesus. But in his later years there was a ripening and a mellowing manifest to all and beautiful to behold; with an ever deepening gratitude for the Lord's goodness, an increasing delight in and appreciation of prayer, a childlike humility, love of the brethren, faith in and love of the word of God, regular and punctual in attendance upon the services of the sanctuary,—he grew in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

Installed an elder in this Church fifteen years ago, he was soon thereafter made clerk of the session, in which office he continued until death. Widely experienced in secretarial duties and well-versed in Church procedure, he was a most efficient clerk. The minutes of our session, so beautifully kept, were always our pride, when submitted for review by the Presbytery. And in every capacity or duty, he served his Church willingly and well.

Lamenting our loss, but reverently bowing to the Father's will in his removal from earthly labors, we direct this memorial to be recorded in our minute book, published in the Presbyterian Standard, and a copy forwarded to the family of our deceased brother.

W. McC. White,
W. C. Pressly,
Jas. R. Young,

Committee.

Raleigh, N. C.

DIED

Watson—Mrs. Lucy Mathews Watson died March 30, 1929, leaving her husband and two small children, a member of Unity Presbyterian Church, the first member of any Church to be buried there, the first to die of our dormitory pupils of Blue Ridge Academy.

The Hollow, Va. Newton Smith.

Childress—Mrs. Mary Etta Gill Childress, born October 25, 1890, died April 16, 1929. Was married to W. O. Childress December, 1907. To this Union were born seven children all of whom, her husband and one brother survive her. From the Friends Church she united with the Blue Ridge Presbyterian Church, and was a faithful and valuable member.

The Hollow, Va. Newton Smith.

Wash Away the Impurities

Cleanliness is more vital internally than externally. Frequent flushing of the alimentary canal is essential to continued health. In fact a cleansed and regulated system will usually resist disease and avoid many of the serious troubles.

Glenn Springs water is recognized as a very effective means of purifying the system, eliminating stored up poisons and encouraging the natural function of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bladder. It acts as a mild regulator; accelerates the secretions and excretions of the body; by dilution it aids digestion and absorption. In general, it forms the natural basis and stimulation for functional efficiency.

Its liberal content and natural combination of Potassium, Sodium, Lithium, Calcium and Strontium Salts, together with other effective minerals, renders it particularly effective. It is successfully used in the treatment of chronic constipation, biliousness, auto-intoxication and other intestinal toxemias.

It is excellent for use in cases of obesity, acid dyspepsia, kidney disorders (including Bright's disease), bladder troubles resulting from excessive acidity and intestinal putrefaction.

Rheumatism, gouty diathesis and other diseases of metabolism, such as exzema, rickets, anemia, etc., respond to Glenn Springs water.

It is found indirectly helpful in the treatment of Pellegra; for suppressed menstruation, and in conjunction with quinine it has long been used as a very efficient treatment for malaria.

For the sake of your health drink Glenn Spring water freely. It is palatable, pure, sparkling, and by many considered very delightful.

Order two five gallon carboys today, by express, and later allow us to ship at regular intervals, to reach you as the original supply is depleted. Regular use in necessary to secure best results.

Send no money. Start on the road to health. Fill out the coupon below and drink the water freely. That is all that is necessary. We will invoice you at $3.50 for 10 gallons. You agree to return the containers when empty.

COUPON

Glenn Springs Corporation,
12 White Terrace,
Glenn Springs, S. C.

You may ship ten gallons now and each 30 days thereafter until ordered to stop.

Name.....
Address.....

This order is subject to cancellation at any time.

The Glenn Springs Hotel, open June 1st, invites you.

FOR RENT

For the months of June and July, furnished cottage at Montreat. Eight rooms and 2 baths. Modern and comfortable. Well located. Address P. O. Box 355, Rock Hill, South Carolina.

NISBET LODGE, MONTREAT, NORTH CAROLINA

On same road and two short blocks from Auditorium opens for the season May 15th.

POSITION WANTED

Lady stenographer-typist, graduate Commercial Department North Carolina College for Women. Address, "R. B. G.," Box 115, N. C. W., Greensboro, N. C.

STORY

RIVER JORDAN WILL PRODUCE ELECTRICITY FOR HOLY LAND

Several Dams Will be Thrown Across Stream at Various Levels

Tiberias, Palestine.—On the river Jordan, half an hour's journey south of the Sea of Galilee, steady progress is being made in the construction of a great hydroelectric power station which will usher in a new economic era for the Holy Land.

Under the supervising genius of a former Russian revolutionary leader, Pinhas Rutenberg, head of the Odessa police during the Kerensky regime, the storied stream of Bible times is to be made to produce 300,000 horsepower of energy for new Palestine's farms, homes and factories.

Palestine has no coal of its own, at all events as far as can be judged from superficial geological investigations. Nor can it boast of petroleum deposits worth exploding.

Its economically exploitable reserves of energy are concentrated in its water resources. Whoever has the control of these resources can monopolize the driving force of industry and agriculture, and can influence decisively the development of the country from an economic point of view. Rutenberg is in that position. Backed by the Zionists organization, he secured the concession for the sole exploitation of these resources and for the supply of electricity for the whole of Palestine, with the exception of Jerusalem, the government having reserved to itself control of the prices for electric current over and above a certain minimum, and a share in the profits.

The scheme which Rutenberg is trying to realize, is to use the differences of level to be found along the course of the Jordan from the Lake of Merom to the Dead Sea, starting with the stretch between the Sea of Galilee and Djsir. Along this stretch of about 10 miles there is a drop of 150 feet. A little later, in Djsir, in the Rutenberg domain proper, down in a rock hollow, the river comes into view again.

Across the Yarmuk, which coming from an easterly direction here flows into the Jordan, the scaffolding of a dam 25 feet high may be seen. This dam, now almost completed, is to force up the waters of the river into a reservoir formed by the giant hilly character of the region.

Opposite, across the Jordan, a second dam is being built. This, when completed, is also to force back the waters of the Jordan and to collect them in a reservoir. The picturesque valley bed will then be drained, the Jordan diverted for a short distance from its natural course, and conducted through a canal already partly dug, into the Yarmuk reservoir.

From here, a main canal has already been dug under the Halifa-Damascus railway line, and after the rainy season will be lined with concrete. This canal is then to conduct the waters of the two rivers over the top of the cliff into a mill race. The foundations of the latter are already laid and the first layer of concrete put down. Gradually machinery from England is arriving. To begin with, three water turbines of 8,000 horsepower each are to be installed.

Industry and agriculture in Palestine are at present both suffering under the exceptionally high price of electric current and impatiently await the moment when the Jordan will supply them with cheap motive power. The work is to be completed by the end of 1929. Rutenberg assumes that the 24,000 horsepower will readily find consumers and that before long he will be able to start building the second power station near Abadije, which is to generate the same amount of energy.

Rutenberg's schemes go beyond the provision of electric power. He has elaborated a project for the utilization of all the water resources of Palestine, for the exploitation of which he has secured the concession. If his plans succeed despite certain obstacles still to be overcome, it may safely be assumed that a new era will in very truth ere long dawn for the Holy Land.

PARKS AND PARKING

An ever more serious traffic problem is the necessity for "parking" automobiles and other vehicles within a reasonable distance of centers of business. The word "parking," used in this sense, has a rather interesting history.

Parking goes back to the time when a park was not a public reservation, but a restricted and inclosed district for the pleasure of the few. The king, for example, had his royal park. Such a park was stocked with game, and, if privately controlled, it was held under royal grant.

The park differed from the chase or the forest by being inclosed. A chase was a franchise for hunting in certain territory, or for keeping game on specified land. A forest was a woodland belonging to the king; it had rules and regulations peculiar to it.

According to Webster's New International Dictionary, the early dialectical "parrock" was a form of the word park. Parrock, the inclosure near racing stables for exercising the horses, is related to park and to parrock. From this sense of an inclosure, park came into military use to designate the space for animals, wagons, and other military equipment. References could be made to "a park of wagons," etc. From this the term was extended to apply to any place where vehicles of any kind are arranged in a definite, prescribed order or in a certain allotted area.

DREAM OF A GIANT TELESCOPE REALIZED

Astronomers who watch the skies have long yearned for a new and larger telescope — a super-instrument to surpass telescopes now in use. The International Education Board of the California Institute of Technology has offered to pay the cost of a huge reflecting telescope which will have a mirror with a diameter twice that of any now in existence. The cost of such a telescope may approach two million dollars.

Telescopes are chiefly of two kinds, known as refracting or reflecting. The refracting telescope has an object glass or objective (which is a lens); this object glass forms an image of a distant object (as a star). This image is formed inside the long tube of the telescope, similar to the manner in which an image is formed by a camera lens on the negative at the back of the camera box. This image in the telescope is then viewed through an eyepiece, which contains a magnifying lens. In the reflecting telescope the light is collected by a mirror and reflected through a magnifying eyepiece. The proposed new telescope will belong to the latter class.

The word telescope, according to Webster's New International Dictionary, comes from a Greek word meaning "viewing afar," a word which self comes from two Greek words meaning "a watcher far off." Other combinations in English meaning distance—as telegraphing at a distance; television at a distance; telephone, speaking at a distance; etc.

Put your life where it counts most, so that you may give account to the Master.

"Pride goeth before a fall, can feel yourself slipping a moment before the tragedy.

Christ in our lives helps our hardness of heart and our softness of will.

Call upon God and he will answer especially if you have answered his call to follow him.

Old Folk's Best Friend

That's what many call it puts vim and vigor in your stomachs; rich, red blood; old veins; sound flesh and bones. Drink with each meal.

Shivar Al

Pure Digestive Aromatics Shivar Mineral Water & C.

Nothing like it for assisting your digestive organs to convert your food into rich blood and sound flesh.

SPECIAL EXCURSION FARES
via
SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM
Friday, May 10, 1919
From
CHARLOTTE, N. C.
To

Atlanta, Ga. -----
Birmingham, Ala. -----
Chattanooga, Tenn. -----

Limit Atlanta four days, Birmingham and Chattanooga six days.

Tickets good on all regular trains except Christmas Limited.

Round-trip fares on other Southern Railway trains.

For detail information and reservations call on nearest Southern Railway Agents.

R. H. GRAHAM
Division Passenger Agent
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

MEN

who are willing to work will find opportunity for independence and success in our fast growing nation. Write us for particulars.

DIXIE MEDICINE
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

NO-LANG

FOR BOILS, CARBUNCLES, OLD SORES AND ILLS

ALDWIN COLLEGE

Courses lead to B. A. and S. Music, art, spoken English, education. Gymnasium and modern equipment. In Shenandoah Valley. Founded 1852. Staunton, Virginia.

DRIFT ---- PLAN

drifting along? made plans for the future? think you should? want to be successful in business!

WOMAN'S BUSINESS COLLEGE

1010 WEST COLUMBIA, S. C.

the South from CHATTANOOGA
Dynamo of Dixie

... or organization seek-
... efficiently and econom-
... the South will find
... Chattanooga offers outstand-... advantages as a site for an
... warehouse or factory.

... concerns handling 1,500
... products, which make
... changes only after close
... of every factor, have
... "The Dynamo of Dixie"
... southern base.

... constantly reveals Chatta-
... strategic geographical posi-
... every heart of the South.

... of total U. S. population
... 24 hours by rail. Nine
... provide exceptional pas-
... freight service. Sixty-
... passenger trains a day. One
... and eighty package cars

... fine railroads facili-
... Tennessee River, many
... motor highways and im-
... ways—not only the
... all America is within
... of Chattanooga!

... conditions are excellent in ... . Climate is superb the ... . Severe storms are un-
... . Shopping, recreation and
... facilities are on a par
... metropolitan centers. Scenic
... stic environment unsur-
... is country.

... Chattanooga Community As-
... or handsome illustrated
... "Scenic, Historic and In-... Chattanooga." FREE.

Chattanooga
Dynamo of Dixie

DO YOU REMEMBER?

When all school pupils walked to school?

When tapers, made of newspapers by the housewife, were used instead of matches?

When tobacco users carefully destroyed the revenue stamps on packages which contained cigars, cigarets and chewing tobacco?

When one saraparilla soda or a strawberry milkshake a week was the average boy's soft drink allowance?

When the sportiest thing a young fellow could do was to hire a buggy and take his girl to ride up and down the streets of the town?

When college students wore beaver hats and took them off to their professors?

When the only women's organizations were the missionary society, the King's Daughters and the Woman's Christian Temperance union?

When people had dessert and chicken only for Sunday dinner, but country ham at almost every breakfast?

When young women were shocked by the "concert" just after the regular circus performance?

When a funeral invitation written on a card and framed in black ribbon was carried from house to house by a negro boy or man?

When one person's washing for a week cost a quarter?

When everybody along the line knew and familiarly addressed the train conductor and when he would allow his friends to ride free or on credit?

When in almost every house there was a framed picture of Lee, Davis, Hampton, or Jackson?

When the poetry of Mrs. Hemans, the works of Josephus, and Peter Parley's histories were still widely read?

When it was considered a sin for children to play on Sunday?

When people wishing to dig wells used a divining rod cut from a peach tree to locate water?

When old ladies carried turkey-tails to church?

When quinine was administered without capsules, but with a bit of bacon "to take out the taste?"

When everybody blacked his or her own shoes every Sunday morning?

When pajamas were known merely as clothes worn by the heathen?

When molasses was eaten at breakfast, dinner and supper?

When children had to go to Sunday school, to both Sunday morning and night services, and to prayer meeting every week?

When a college graduate was considered a person of intellectual attainment?

Well, if you remember all these, you weren't born yesterday.

Be Ready

When your Children Cry for It

Baby is likely to wake you any night with that sharp cry which means just one thing—colic! Be ready. Keep a bottle of Fletcher's Castoria in the house. A few drops of this pure vegetable, pleasant-tasting preparation comforts a colicky, fretful or feverish baby in a jiffy. In a few moments your anxiety is over and baby's sleeping soundly again. And you've only done what your doctor would advise. He'll tell you Fletcher's Castoria doesn't contain any harmful drug—that it's safe for the youngest infant and effective for children of all ages in cases of constipation, colic, gas, diarrhea and those upsets when you don't know just what is the matter. Avoid imitations. Genuine Castoria bears the Fletcher signature.

PUZZLE ANSWERS

B	A	S	E	B	A	L	L
A		A	R	T		I
C		R	O	O	M	S
K	E	E	N		N	E	T
W	A	N		P	E	T	E
A	T	T	A	R		N
R	E	R	E			E
D	I	R	E	C	T	E	D

Enigma—Royal, Few, Ms. May Flowers.
Word Square—Tree, Real, Eats, Elsa
Fractional Month—J-ewell, AN-kle, U-rn, AR-gue, Y-ellow.—January.

IT PAYS TO STUDY

Dear Standard:
I am a little girl eight years old. I am in the third grade in school. I have averaged over 90 on my studies every month and my aunt Hannah Johnston, who is nursing in Texas sends me a dollar every month for studying so good. My teacher is Cousin Alice Clark, we all just love her. My music teacher is Miss Annie Sue Thomasson. She is so sweet. I had to play in recital at the school house Friday night.

Hazy A. Johnston.

Clarkton, N. C.

A SURPRISE LETTER

Dear Standard,
I am a little girl ten years old, I go to school at Oak Ridge. My teacher is Miss Alma Browning. I like her fine. I go to Church every Sunday I can. My pastor is Rev. J. D. Deans.
I hope that Mr. W.B. is on a visit as I want to surprise my aunt.

Your friend,
Mary Lee Alexander,

Mooreville, N. C.

QUICK WAY TO END LIVER TROUBLES
Free Proof!

Nothing else known to medical science acts so quickly and surely—and yet so gently—as Dodson's Levertone, to regulate balky liver and bowels; to purge the system of the poisonous waste which makes people headachy, bilious, weak; with coated tongue, bad breath, no appetite or energy. Thousands say they have tried everthing and never found its equal. You can prove its merit for yourself. Just write Sterling Products, Wheeling, W. Va., for a FREE sample bottle. Do it today.

The leaders in the World War are falling fast. But it is to be remembered that, contrary to the general fallacy as to middle-aged men being worthless, nearly all of the leaders were on what is supposed to be easy descent to the grave. The struggle and hardships may have been too much for these old marshals and generalissimos, but they manage to fall well beyond even the prophet's line.

HEIGHT

"When I was young I felt so small
And frightened, for the world was tall.
And even grasses seemed to me
A forest of immensity
Until I learned that I could grow,
A glance would leave them far below.
Spanning a tree's height with my eye,
Suddenly I soared as high.
And fixing on a star I grew,
I pushed my head against the blue!
Still, like a singing lark, I find Rapture to leave the grass behind.
And sometimes standing in a crowd
My lips are cool against a cloud."

Scribners.

No man is "dead broke" who has five senses. Think!

Bees do not make honey and sting at the same time. Think!

If come folks knew what was in their hearts, they would be afraid of themselves. Think!

You need the church, and the church needs you; to fill your place, it will take the two. Think!

It would be interesting to know how many automobiles are in use in the United States to one baby buggy. Think.

It is as edifying to hear people speak "in unknown tongues" as to hear some soloists sing in a language that nobody can understand. Think!

Figures that would show the number of paupers made to one millionaire in the United States would be interesting to the average family trying to make an honest living. Think!

—Robert L. Selle.

These four things concur that make a perfect feast. A good time, eternity; a good place, heaven; a good company, the saints; good cheer, glory. God himself is the feast-maker; he is landlord of the world, and fillet every living thing with goodness!—Thomas Adams.

FOR RENT

House at Montreat, N. C., now through summer, $125.00. 592 Merrimon Ave., Asheville, N. C.

FOR SALE

At Montreat, N. C., comfortable, substantial eight-room house conveniently located on large lot, commodious garage, fruit trees and flowers. Expansive mountain views. Will sell either furnished or unfurnished. Terms if desired.

THOS. H. WEBB
Concord, North Carolina

NEVER wait to see if a headache will "wear off." Why suffer when there's Bayer Aspirin? The millions of men and women who use it in increasing quantities every year prove that it does relieve such pain. The medical profession pronounces it without effect on the heart, so use it as often as it can spare you any pain. Every druggist always has genuine Bayer Aspirin for the prompt relief of a headache, colds, neuralgia, lumbago, etc. Familiarize yourself with the proven directions in every package.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

Mexican Heat Powder

Immediately relieves Prickly Heat, Nettle Rash, Diaper Rash, Tired, Sore and Blistered Feet. Sunburn, all Skin Irritations. At your Druggists

PHYSICAL AND NERVOUS FORCE

You can overcome that spring time "tired" feeling and build up buoyant health and energy with

Yerke's Palatable Extract Cod Liver Oil

At All Leading Druggists
YERKES CHEMICAL CO., Winston-Salem, N. C.

THE PERRY PICTURES

ONE CENT SIZE
3x3 1/4. For 50 or more.
TWO CENT SIZE
5 1/2 x 8. For 25 or more.
Send 50 cents for 25 on The Life of Christ, or 25 Art Subjects or 25 for Children, 5 1/2 x 8. Or 50 for Children, 3 x 3 1/2.

LET your children make companions of world's most beautiful pictures. Culture, happiness and beauty will be added to their lives.

Use them in the Sunday School
Send 15 cents for Catalogue of 1600 Illustrations
The Perry Pictures Box 313, Malden, Mass

PLAY SAFE!

Are you gambling with nature's most terrible destroyer of property—Lightning? Is your family or your property at its mercy, unprotected? Safety is so simple and easy, no man can afford to risk this terrific gamble. Read this amazing new book, telling just what lightning is and how to prevent it. Written by national authorities of the famous Kretzer System. Free on request. It may save you an enormous loss THIS YEAR. Be safe. Write for your copy now.

FREE BOOK ABOUT LIGHTNING

St. Louis Lightning Rod Co.,
Trudeau & DeKalb Sts., Box D,
St. Louis, Mo.

King College for Men

Bristol, Tennessee

Stonewall Jackson College

FOR WOMEN

Abingdon, Va., Box A

Jointly Controlled by Montgomery Presbytery

Affiliated Colleges of the Synod of Appalachia.

King College offers four year courses leading to Degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Sciences — a small Christian College — Faculty of eleven Christian gentlemen of thorough training and practical experience. Expenses reasonable.

Stonewall Jackson College. Accredited Junior College for young women, in heart of healthful Virginia mountains. Two years high school, two years college. Music, art, home economics, secretarial course, physical room with bath. All outdoor sports. Tennis. Nine hole golf course on fifty-two acre campus. Homelike life. Write for catalogue.

10,000

Miles over land and sea. You'll delight in the exhilaration of this care-free voyage. The exotic glamour of the tropics. Gay Havana. The Panama Canal. Then, on to California and the golden West! 34 days of glorious travel for $400. Yellowstone Park side trip $70 extra.

Also

A tour to Europe; visiting England, Belgium, Holland, Germany, Switzerland, Italy, and France. A trip of broad cultural value. An experience never to be forgotten. 52 days for $590, all expenses. For information regarding travel anywhere write Desk R.

DANIEL RAVENEL CO.
Steamship and Tourist Agents
Charleston, S. C.

SHIP'S BARNACLES AND GEESE: A CURIOUS NATURAL HISTORY LEGEND

Everyone knows that a ship's bottom accumulates barnacles until the speed of the vessel becomes so retarded by the marine growths that it is necessary for it to go ashore or into dry dock long enough to have the bottom scrapped clean. Experiments are constantly being conducted to cut down this enormous loss of time, and one of these days the barnacle will have to find other surfaces than ships on which to live out its tiny existence.

Wharves and rocks along the seashore also become covered with barnacles. Many of the creatures have sharp shells and will cut the fingers or bare feet, if brushed against or walked on, causing painful lacerations.

These barnacles are crustaceans or a kind of shellfish. In the larval state—which corresponds to the youth of the organism—they are free-swimming. But as they reach maturity they attach themselves to a solid surface, where they become fixed and live by feeding from water which a special apparatus forces constantly through their oral cavity. Tons of barnacles on the bottoms of ships mean an annual loss to American shipping of something like a hundred million dollars!

The Barnicle Goose

An interesting fact about barnacles is that their life cycle was not always understood. Simple folk saw this mushroom-like growth on rotting logs in the sea, or along the shore, and they thought it must change into something larger. The bernicle goose was a bird which these people never saw in the young state—the nests and eggs were wholly unknown to them. So, by a curious association of ideas, it was decided that the bernicle goose evolved in some fantastic fashion from these barnacles!

Indeed, the words barnacle and bernicle goose meant at one time the same thing. As Webster's New International Dictionary shows, the earliest meaning of barnacle was "bernicle goose."

Thus the lowly shellfish received its name from a goose. It was not until many years later that it was learned how the bernicle goose breeds in the far north, and how the barnacle, in its young state, lives a free-swimming existence. The legend of the bernicle goose evolving from the crustacean, as a matter of fact, dates back to the twelfth century, while the biological data on the barnacle are hardly a hundred years old.

THE AWAKENING FAITH OF A MOHAVE CHIEF

Honore Willsie Morrow, a writer and author of note, tells in the January American how she, seeking to satisfy that longing that sometimes comes to those who labor long, and miss the best life thereby, betook herself to the desert near Death Valley, and made a camp all alone near a Mohave Indian village; and how after days of loneliness in the ever blowing sand, she was attracted one night by the death dance of the tribe, as the only son of Chief Kemah died and all the tribe gathered to beseech the Great Spirit to take Iretaba! Iretaba! Iretaba! Great Spirit, Iretaba! Unable to sleep she betook herself to the camp, standing without, she saw the body borne from the tent, swung in a blanket on poles and carried to the firey cradle dug in the sand on the river bank, wood piled on it and fire applied, while the women danced and cried, Iretaba! Iretaba! until the fire went out, the body turned to ashes; at which time there came a cave-in in the banks of the maddening Colorado river, taking ashes that were soon to be thrown upon its bosom; then all was quiet again, and she stolt back to her place. Later she picked up the diary of Padre Garces some one had left with her, and found it was a record of his journey and work with the ancient Mohaves, with compass points and road descriptions so clear that she decided in her desperation to undertake, a lone woman, to follow Garces' route; and with a burro that had taken up her camp for a pack horse she set out, enduring all kinds of hardships, ending long before she had retraced Garces' steps, with her bargaining with Kemah and a neighbor chief, Obob, to take her to the Navajo country in their own primitive way of travel. That night she found herself by a camp fire with Kemah, one of his wives, Oche, Obob and his wife Molly, when Oche said: "It is strange that Kemah and Obob should both have to burn their sons in such a short time."
"It is best," murmured Kemah. "No," grunted Obob fiercely.

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE

DECATUR, GA.

Strict entrance requirements, but few failures after admission. So expensive, but cheap in comparison with advantages offered. No loafers expected, but also none without capacity to enjoy almost unlimited good. For details as to admission, scholarship aid, etc address

PRESIDENT J. R. McCAIN
Box 5

Man bets on himself

A good bet for others

MANY a man has failed to land the job he went after, just because he looked seedy. The Boss looked him over and probably figured that a man who'd let himself slump would let his job slide, too.

"That experience brought me up short," the wise ones declare afterwards. "That very day I started on a whole new scheme of living. Say, you'd never have known me for the same man six months later. I'm betting on myself now, all right. So is the outfit I'm working for.

"There are thousands of people in this condition. Half-hearted. Down on their luck. And don't quite know why. Yet, the answer is so simple. A slowed-up, sluggish system—an excess of poisons in the body.

"Regular treatments with Nujol start things functioning again as they should. Nujol not only keeps an excess of body poisons from forming (we all have them), but aids in their removal."

Start now to take Nujol regularly. Keep it up for the next three months.

At the end of that time we'd like to bet your stock has gone up. That you're worth more people you work for—and to yourself. Nujol can't possibly upset you. It contains absolutely no medicine. Nujol was perfected by Nujol Laboratories, 26 Broadway, New York. Sold in sealed bottles only. Get a bottle today.

Quicker Death to Roaches

It is easier and quicker to kill roaches with Flit because Flit has a greater amount of insect-killing ingredients, although harmless to humans. Spray cracks and corners. The more powerful Flit quickly drives roaches into the open. Spray them direct. They run and hide but die quickly.

"The yellow can with the black band"

© 1929 Stanco Inc.

ERSKINE COLLEGE

Founded 1839

A college of Liberal Arts offering a standard four year course leading to Bachelor of Arts Degree.

A Christian College devoted to the training of young men and young women for the larger responsibilities of life.

Reasonable costs, healthful surroundings, congenial environment. A grade Recognition.

Next session opens September 12.

For Catalogue address

R. C. GRIER, President or R. L. ROBINSON, Vice-President at DUE WEST, S. C.

Direct From Mill To You

PATTERNS in new styles at Mill Prices. Consumer selling you 1/4 to 1/3.

Prints
Bedspreads
Pillow Tubing
Wide Sheetting
Marquisettes
Draperies, etc.

Samples

List on cut cloth and pay prompt shipment satisfaction

Save 1/4 to 1/3

LAN MILL STORE
A. Greenville, S. C.

geniality

ty and student body, sentiment in class fraternalities, ath- and throughout cam- small but select fam- accord at

terian College
GREEN PRES. Clinton, S.C.

DR. CALDWELL
EARNED IN 47
YEARS PRACTICE

watched the results of for 47 years, and believed how careful people are of diet and exercise, constipation from time to time. Of ce, then, is how to treat nes. Dr. Caldwell always getting as close to nature nee his remedy for consti- as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup mild vegetable compound. rm the system and is not Syrup Pepsin is pleasant- youngsters love it.

ill did not approve of es and purges. He did not were good for anybody's practice of 47 years he reason for their use when will empty the bowels just a day go by without a ent. Do not sit and hope, the nearest druggist and get gerous bottles of Dr. Cald- up Pepsin, or write "Syrup BB, Monticello, Illinois, a bottle.

"What good for Injun have son," demanded Kemah. "Big sheriff at Washington, he Injun's chief now. Great Spirit takes sons away."

"If Great Spirit knows, why does he send in first place?" I asked.

"Great Spirit won't change way of world, way of men and women, just for Injuns! He say let Injun learn. Poor fool!" Kemah's tragic eyes were in the fire.

"When Iretaba live you no talk so," said Obob sardonically.

"Injuns never learn," muttered Kemah. "Great Spirit heap sorry about that," said Obob still sardonic. Kemah's return was serious, "Yes, he's heap sorry."

I leaned forward to catch the old Mohave's eye. "Kemah, how do you know he's sorry?"

"Because," replied Kemah seriously, "Great Spirit in me, in Obob, in Oche, in Molly. We all sorry. He is in us, so he must be sorry, too. Must be."

"I gasped. This old Indian had come further than I. What was this he had just given me? I looked at him eagerly, but he turned away as if regretting he said even that much. I arose from the fire and strode into the desert to meet it. Not till I was out of sight and sound of the camp did I halt to face the low hanging stars."

"Once again I forced my brain to cross the barriers in colossal effort to catch up with Kemah's thought. What he meant was that the essential me, which is a part of the universal cause, suffered and was sorry for the agony of every living creature. There was no separating my soul from the universal soul. Whatever my brain recorded as being felt by the essential me was being felt by that of which I am an intergal part."

"He is in us so he must be sorry. Must be." "It was not more chemistry. It could be called Providence."

Such an unprecedented increase in the visibility of my spiritual world, such a lifting of barriers, was all but shattering to my mental machinery. I stood I know not how long, struggling to take in its implications. Filled with my purpose, I returned to the camp fire.

"Kemah," I said, "I am not going up into the Navajo country with you. I'm starting back to Needles tomorrow if you will trust me far a week's grub."

"How come?" asked the old Mohave. "I eyed him thoughtfully. Would he understand? Certainly he had given me enough that night to make him understand the state of mind that brought me to the desert. I told him how I had felt about Iretaba's burning, and described Padre Garces to him, and when I had finished the account I said further: It seemed to me that if I came into the desert and lived as the padre lived, I might get to look at death the way he did; not afraid of it; sure that it is good for our spirit."

"All Injuns believe," said Kemah simply, "that birds, stones, coyotes and stars are all his brothers. Great Spirit use same sand to make them all. Why you all time worry is because you stay so far away from your brothers. You come back to desert, live like Injuns live, then you believe like Injuns believe and you not worry."

"I took him in and went on with my entrada, ending with Kemah's contribution of the evening. He gave me one long, not unkindly look." How long you going to live near Mohave village?"

"But don't you see, Kemah, you and the rest have given me strength to go back to the city where I belong, where I must be?"

"Big fool," grunted Kemah. "Any desert in New York?"

"I'll take my desert back with me, was my answer. I can be brother to the same stars in New York as you are here, Kemah. Kemah shook his head. I was not sure I had made him understand."

Looking back on the experience, I see it as my most tremendous spiritual adventure, the adventure that stilled the desperations of my mind.—Christian Advocate.

ORIENT FLOUR
Its Whiteness Denotes Its Purity
MOUNTAIN CITY MILL CO., CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

Largest and MOST MODERN PLANT in the Carolinas

LARGEST USERS OF WINNSBORO GRANITE IN THE CAROLINAS
Charlotte Marble & Granite Works
R. E. SCOGGINS Proprietor CHARLOTTE, N. C. W. 7th St. and Southern Railway
OLDEST LARGEST BEST Phone 281

North Carolina State College of Agriculture and Engineering
E. C. BROOKS, LL.D., President

AGRICULTURE ENGINEERING
TEXTILES SCIENCES AND BUSINESS EDUCATION
The summer school opens June 10. The Regular session opens September 13. Applications should be made early.
W. L. MAYER, Director of Registration
For Information, Write
Raleigh North Carolina

BELK'S
NEW FURNITURE DEPT.

We have opened to the people of the Carolinas a most modern Furniture Department on our fourth floor, featuring a wide assortment of fine furniture for the home as well as newest novelty furniture.

On this same floor is located our Picture and mirror rooms, also china-ware, glass-ware and toys.

A visit to this floor will be both pleasurable and profitable.

Belk Brothers Co.
Charlotte, N. C.

Newberry College Summer School
Newberry, S. C.
JUNE 10 — JULY 19, 1929

TEACHERS: Courses approved by state departments of education for renewing and raising certificates.
COLLEGE STUDENTS: Courses for making up back work or for additional college credit.
HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS: Courses for college entrance.

and courses, strong faculty, comfortable dormitories, excellent table fare, congenial atmosphere, personal attention to the individual student.

living expenses, including tuition, for the six weeks, $45.00.
For Catalog address JAMES C. KINARD, Director

WHEN WRITING OUR ADVERTISERS PLEASE MENTION THIS PUBLICATION

THE RIGHT WAY TO TRAVEL
 is by train. The safest. Most comfortable. Most reliable. Costs less. Inquire of Ticket Agents regarding greatly reduced fares for short trips.
SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Church and Sunday School Furniture
 Send For Special Catalogue
THE SOUTHERN DESK COMPANY
 Hickory, N. C.

LITTLE FOLKS For their frequent bumps, burns, bruises, cuts and skin troubles. :: ::
 — use —
GRAY'S OINTMENT
 At all drug stores. For free sample write W. F. Gray & Co., 724 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Nervous Women Praise Capudine
 Delicately poised women who suffer from high nerve strain and nervous pains, such as periodic pains, headache and pains in the back and sides are high in their praise of Capudine because it quickly soothes the tense nerves and relieves the pain.
 Being liquid, Capudine acts almost instantly,—does not upset the stomach. Sold by druggists in 30c and 60c sizes. (adv.)

YOUR CHURCH deserves a beautiful exterior in harmony with its spirit of culture and worship. Let us suggest appropriate shrubbery.
THE HOWARD-HICKORY CO., Hickory, N. C.
 Local Representatives Wanted, especially to sell fruit trees.
 Landscape Gardeners and Nurserymen

Piles and other Rectal diseases cured without pain or surgery. No hospital detention. Write to Dr. W. R. Register, 63 No. Broad Street, Atlanta, Georgia, for free book. Hundreds of cured patients.

Stop HEADACHE with STANBACK
 10¢ & 25¢

6 6 6
 is a Prescription for Colds, Grippe, Flu, Dengue, Bilious Fever and Malaria.
 It is the most speedy remedy known.

WEAK EYES are strengthened and relieved by Dickey's old reliable eye water. In use over half a century. Relieves sore eyes from gnats and dust. Doesn't hurt. In red folding box at all good stores or by mail 25c.
 Dickey Drug Co. Bristol, Virginia

When answering advertisements mention this paper. Thus you will aid us in securing more advertising patronage

S P A R K L E S

Could Have Been Worse
 "Hello, Olaf, where you ban so long?"
 "I ban got married."
 "That's good."
 "Not so good. my wife got two children."
 "That's bad."
 "Not so bad, she got $10,000.00"
 "That's good."
 "Not so good, she wouldn't give me money."
 "That's bad."
 "Not so bad, she built a house."
 "That's good."
 "Not so good, the house burn down."
 "That's bad."
 "Not so bad, my wife burn up in the house."—Ex.

Singing by Installments
 A professional singer was in an automobile accident the other day. A news paper, after recording the accident, added: "We are happy to state that she was able to appear the following evening in four pieces."—Ex.

The Sunday School superintendent was greeted with a disconcerting shout of laughter. Why? Because he opened the church school with : Sing hymn number 184, ring Hemlock 3!"—Ex.

Alice—"Would you marry for money, Edith?"
 Edith—"Well I don't know about it. I just have a hankering hope, however, that Cupid shoots me with a Pierce-Arrow."
 —Selected.

Not Just Right
 A little girl attending an Episcopal Church for the first time, was amazed to see all kneel suddenly. She asked her mother what they were going to do. Her mother replied, "Hush, they're going to say their prayers."
 "What, with all their clothes on?"—
 B-C-A News.

Insurance Agent: "So you want all your office furnishings insured against theft?"
 Manager: "Yes, but you needn't include the clock. Everybody watches that."
 Brooklyn Eagle.

"Petticoat rule," about which we used to hear so much, is now more appropriately referred to as "Invisible Government."—Everybody's Weekly.

The best reducing exercise consists in moving the head from left to right and back again when asked to have some more.—The Baptist.

Personally we crave luxury, but we have never seen a $5,000 funeral that we wanted.—Dallas News.

There doesn't seem to be much trouble meeting expenses—one meets them everywhere.—Wall Street Journal.

He was blown up and they couldn't find any trace of him. When his wife called, the foreman said quietly: "He's gone, mum."
 "Gone?" she said. "For good?"
 "Well, in that direction," said the foreman.—Judge.

A venerable Scot purchased a little radio set, and a few days later his friends asked him how he liked it.

"Well, it's aw right to listen to," he replied, "but those bulbs arc nae sae gud to read by."—The Locomotive Engineers Journal.

A parasite is one who goes through a revolving door on another's push.

Chicora College for Women
 The Presbyterian College of South Carolina
 Standard College Courses Large, Strong Faculty
 Beautiful Grounds Ideal Surroundings
 Healthful Climate Moderate Rates
 For Catalog and Information, Address
S. C. Byrd, D.D., LL.D., President, Columbia, S. C.

FORTY-SIX YEARS CONTINUOUS SERVICE WITHOUT A LOSS ON ANY LOAN
 We offer you a safe, tax-free investment for your regular weekly or monthly savings and your lump sum. Write for particulars.
ASSETS OVER $8,800,000.00
The Mutual Building and Loan Association
 Established 1881 CHARLOTTE

If In Doubt, Take B. & L. Shares
 You will earn the highest interest rate on your savings consistent with perfect safety, and pay no tax on dividends. Shares cost twenty-five cents per week, usually mature in 333 weeks. Net you 6 1-2 per cent maturity.
Series Open in January, April, July and October
Mechanics Perpetual Building & Loan Association
 Established 1883 Charlotte
 18 E. Fourth St.

THE WINTHROP DESK, $75
 The Governor Winthrop desk has come down to us from the very earliest beginning of America. It is the one shown here every detail has been copied minutely. It is made in Grand Rapids which is an assurance of its fine quality. Others, varying in size from $70 to $145.
W. T. McCoy & Co
 Home Furnishers
 423-425 SOUTH TRYON STREET
 CHARLOTTE, N. C.

For the Future
 Are you making ready share in the opportunity which increasing prosperity will bring?
A Reserve Fund Banked Will Help
Charlotte National Bank
 Resources Over $5,000,000.00
 "National Bank Safety For Savings"

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

A Religious Newspaper for the Family

Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.

BRIDGES, D.D., Editor-in-Chief
WELLS, D.D., Co-Editor
JASPER WILLIS, Contributing Editor

ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1858

M. F. ELLIS, Vice-President
REV. J. G. GARTH, Treasurer and News Editor
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
BY PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY

CHARLOTTE, N. C., MAY 15, 1928

No. 20

Sixty-Ninth General Assembly in Session at Montreat, May 16-23

Annual Meeting Opens in Anderson Auditorium— to Preach the Sermon, Communion Service Followed—Election of Moderators and Clerks at 2:30

The sixty-ninth General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of the United States will convene in Montreat, N. C., in the Anderson Auditorium, at 11 a. m., May 16. The opening sermon will be preached by Dr. Harris E. Kirk, Franklin Street Presbyterian Church, Baltimore, Md., retiring moderator of the Assembly. Immediately after the annual communion will be held. A new moderator will be elected at 2:30 p. m., on the opening day.

Dr. Anderson, president of the Montreat Association, Montreat, N. C., chairman of the committee that has been organized for entertainment of the members in the new Assembly Inn. Dr. S. Wilson is pastor of the church where the Assembly will hold its sessions. Dr. J. D. Leslie is Stated Clerk of the Assembly, and Rev. E. C. Scott, of Dallas, Texas, is moderator.

At the opening of the Assembly the report of the Assembly's Work, will be read, and recommendations covering the work of all the Assembly's committees. The report of this committee on the relocation and the executive committees and agencies, and a central treasury will be of great interest. The committee is opposed to centralization. It will be made to the Assembly by the report of the committee on foreign missions, home education and ministerial education, country work, stewardship, men's work and women's work. In addition, there will be reports from permanent committees on protestant relief, Bible cause, and other matters. Trustees of the Assembly, the Presbyterian Foundation, the Training School, and the Montreat Association will report. Committees to be heard from include the Correspondence Course for ministers, Relations with other Presbyteries, Directory for Worship, and Survey of Forms, Divorce, and Survey of the Church. (Continued on Page Two)

College To Continue

at Batesville Will Not be Combined With Other Schools

The special meeting of the Synod of the South held at the First Presbyterian Church, Little Rock, on April 23, Synod has adopted a proposal of a merger of Arkansas College, Batesville, with any other college and resolved to push the expansion of the College until the dollar goal was fully realized. The Synod will end the offer of $100,000 to the Batesville Chamber of Commerce. Batesville and the Synod will proceed at once to raise $75,000 for immediate needs and the expansion of the college program. Arkansas College has received such strong support from the Synod and its friends are expected to receive more than thirty young men and women, one of the largest classes in the history of the institution. Prospective student body for next year is expected to be 100.

Rev. Harris E. Kirk, D.D., LL.D.

Doctor Kirk is retiring moderator of the last General Assembly, at Atlanta, in May, 1928. His opening sermon will be found on Page 4 of this issue of the Presbyterian Standard.

Doctor Kirk is pastor of Franklin Street Church, Baltimore, Md., where he has been stationed since the fall of 1901. He came there from Florence, Ala. His first charge was the Cottage Church, Nashville, Tenn., where he went immediately after finishing his course in theology at Southwestern, then located at Clarksville, Tenn.

Doctor Kirk is the recipient of many honors, having received honorary degrees from several institutions. He has been called to some of the most prominent pulpits in America and England, but has elected to stay at Franklin Street, which was for so long the pastorate of the late Dr. William U. Murkland.

Doctor Kirk has delivered many series of addresses on foundations in colleges and seminaries, noteworthy among them being the Sprunt Series of 1915, which was published by Union Seminary, Richmond, Va., where the addresses were delivered under the title, "The Religion of Power."

Faculty Chosen For Junior College

N. C. Synod's New Institution for Men at Maxton Has Selected Teachers

The election of the faculty for the new Presbyterian Junior College, North Carolina Synod's new institution for men at Maxton, N. C., has been completed. At a recent meeting in Maxton of the executive committee of the Board of Trustees, a complete list of teachers was elected and all have accepted.

The faculty as elected will be comprised of men, all of whom are of the highest type, having been selected after much consideration in an effort to secure (Continued on Page Two)

Fundamentalists Convention Changed

12th Annual Convention is Changed From Indianapolis, to First Baptist Church, Minneapolis, May 26-June 2

Dr. W. B. Riley sends the following notice:

Let all Fundamentalists take note that the Twelfth Annual Convention of the World's Christian Fundamentalists Association will not meet in Indianapolis as announced, but in the First Baptist Church, Minneapolis, instead. This change is due to the cancelling of a contract on the part of the receiver for the Cadle Tabernacle, Indianapolis; the receiver having been offered $1000 more for the week than we were to pay.

When that action was taken, it was too late to change the time of the meeting, so it was decided to change the location. The First Baptist Church, Minneapolis, is a great building, with seating capacity for 2640 people, and with chairs 3000 can be accommodated. It is located at the very heart of Minneapolis itself, inside the 11th Street loop. It has every conceivable convenience for a convention. Jackson Hall, its Sunday School and social building, has 53 rooms, ranging in capacity from 20 to 1000 each.

The First Baptist Church, Minneapolis, is in the midst of hotels and boarding houses. Rooms can be secured at the pleasure of each individual, and from as low as 50c a night to as high as one wants.

The program at Minneapolis will be a great one, covering questions of fundamentalism, evangelism, missionary work, education, literature, etc.

Speakers who will deliver a series will be:

Dr. Mark A. Matthews, First Presbyterian Church, Seattle, Washington.

Dr. Leander Keyser, Hamma Divinity School, Springfield, Ohio.

Prof. J. Gresham Machen, of Princeton Theological Seminary, Princeton, N. J.

Rev. Paul Rood, of Turlock, California.

Rev. Harry Rimmer, of Los Angeles, California.

Dr. John Turnbull, of New York.

Dr. W. B. Riley, of Minneapolis.

(Continued on Page Two)

Agnes Scott Commencement

Baccalaureate Sermon Will be Delivered by Dr. H. H. Sweets

The 40th Commencement exercises of Agnes Scott, at Decatur, Ga., will be held May 24-28. The Board of Trustees will meet on May 24, and the principal topic for consideration will be the Campaign for $1,500,000 which is in progress for the College.

On May 25 the College brings back its Alumnae for a luncheon, and the Glee Club gives a recital in the evening.

The Baccalaureate Sermon will be preached in the College auditorium on May 26 by Rev. Henry H. Sweet, D.D., Executive Secretary of Christian Education and Ministerial Relief, Louisville, Ky.

Monday, May 27 is Class Reunion Day when various generations of former students return to hold fellowship. In the evening, Blackfrairs, the dramatic club, presents a play, and the annual "book burning" takes place.

The commencement exercises proper come on Tuesday morning, and the address to the Senior Class will be given by Mr. Charles S. McCain, President of National Park Bank, New York City.

There are 97 members of the Senior Class.

Commencement At A. T. S.

Dr. Hardie's Sermon, Dr. Richardson's Address, and Pageant, Main Features of Closing Exercises

The Commencement exercises of the General Assembly's Training School, Richmond, Virginia, began on Saturday evening, May 4, with an impressive pageant given by the Senior Class, entitled "Take Flame, O Torch of Truth." This annual pageant has come to be one of the most interesting and most largely attended exercises connected with the A. T. S. Commencement.

On Sunday evening, Dr. James F. Hardie, of Charlotte, N. C., preached the Commencement sermon, which was an exposition of the first part of the second chapter of First Thessalonians, and was exceedingly appropriate.

On Monday evening the graduating address was made by Dr. Donald W. Richardson. It was a unique and suggestive address on "Eyes." Workers in the Kingdom need eyes to see the world and the people about them and to see opportunities for service. The diplomas were delivered to the thirty-seven graduates by Dr. Walter L. Lingle, President of the Training School. He made the very interesting statement that all the members of the graduating class but two had accepted work, and that these two had been offered positions but had not yet accepted.

The annual Alumni luncheon was held on Tuesday and was more largely attended than on any previous year. It is estimated that a thousand students have attended the Assembly's Training School. They are now living and working in thirty different states of the homeland and in ten foreign countries.

The meeting of the Board was held on Tuesday afternoon. The President's report to the Board contained a number of interesting items. Among them was the fact that Dr. M. R. Turnbull has been back in his classroom all year, teaching with his old-time enthusiasm and power. Another was that Dr. E. B. Paisley entered upon his work as full-time professor of Religious Education last December and that he has already made a large place for himself in the hearts of the students and of the faculty. With his coming the curriculum was re-organized under the three general heads of English Bible, Religious Education, and Missions. The President's report also called attention to some of the handsome things (Continued on Page Two)

Mrs. Morrow Donates To Birthday Gift

Mrs. W. C. Winsborough, Secretary of the Woman's Auxiliary wires the Standard the following interesting and challenging news:

The wife of our Ambassador to Mexico, Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, has been especially interested in our mission schools in Mexico, and has made a gift to our birthday fund of 500 pesos to be added to the sum the Auxiliaries will send to Mexico soon for the buildings for the Girls' Schools at Chilpancingo and Zitacuaro. Dr. Wm. A. Ross, our missionary to Mexico, writes as follows: "We thank the women for the splendid work they are doing for the birthday gift for Mexico and we are sure it will be a large one. We are hoping it will be the largest yet given." This gift is certainly a challenge to the women of the Church to match Mrs. Morrow's generosity and fulfill the hopes of our faithful missionaries.

Y. P. Conference of Fayetteville Presbytery

The Young People's Conference of Fayetteville Presbytery is to be held at Flora Macdonald College, Red Springs, N. C.

Red Springs offers a central location, railway facilities and a net work of North Carolina highways, hence access is assured.

Flora Macdonald College offers comfortable rooms, beds, water, lights assembly rooms, a spacious dining hall and excellent kitchen.

Facilities for recreation and sport are excellent: a large campus, tennis courts, swimming pool, bowling alley, gymnasium and ball field.

The date is June 20-27.

Who may attend? All boys and girls from 12-24 inclusive, from the Presbyterian Churches of Fayetteville Presbytery.

Mark those dates on your calendar and make your plans now to attend.

For information address Rev. F. C. Symonds, First Presbyterian Church, Fayetteville, N. C.

MISSISSIPPI Y. P. CONFERENCES

The Department of Religious Education of the Synod of Mississippi will conduct two conferences at Belhaven College, Jackson, Miss. The Fifth Annual Intermediate Conference for Boys will be at Belzoni as a camp at Four Mile Lake, seven miles from town.

The camp will be well guided and supervised by the leaders of the ministry and workers in the Churches. Full schedules of Bible study, Church work, personal problems, inspiring addresses, as well as complete arrangements for recreation.

The date for the Boys' Camp will be June 4-11, and boys 11 to 15 are invited. The leaders are R. L. Landis, Revs. G. T. Gillespie and W. A. Hall, assisted by Capt. J. W. Kennedy, Revs. J. V. Cobb, J. C. Stewart, and J. R. Tackett, Messrs. Knox McEachern and G. W. Bufkin.

The folder makes the following announcement about the Boys' Conference:

We have long desired to have boys of this group meet by a lake side where water and boats are plentiful, and fishing and swimming good.

Through kindness of Mr. J. M. Powell and of the men of Belzoni, we have this privilege this year.

They are kindly lending us a club house, boats and cots on "Four Mile Lake," seven miles from Belzoni.

We believe you will have a splendid time and will be benefitted spiritually, intellectually and physically. We have secured a splendid group of leaders for this conference or encampment. Price for encampment just the same as for other conferences.

The girls' section of the conference will take place at Belhaven College, June 7-14, ages 11-15. The special leaders for the girls will be Misses Lella McDaniel, Elizabeth Landis, Miss Irene Hudson, worker with girls for the Louisville Committee of Christian Education, Miss Lucile Dubose, of the Nashville Foreign Mission Committee, Misses Christine McPheeters, Annie Louise Hall, Carol Landis and Jennie F. Armistead of Jackson, Miss. The program will follow the usual branches of study and inspirational addresses. Pageants, screen pictures, story hours, and other interesting events will also be presented.

The Young People's section of the conference will be held June 14-21.

The following leaders and their subjects are announced:

The Psalms—Rev. R. S. Woodson, Starkville.

Hebrews—Rev. J. V. Currie, Fayette.

John—Rev. I. D. Holt, Corinth.

Principles of Presbyterianism—Rev. J. B. Green, D.D.

Leaders Daily Vacation Bible Schools (advanced girls)—Mrs. J. V. Currie.

Training in Devotion (a study of Prayer and Worship)—Rev. J. V. Cobb.

Church Ordinance—Coming to the Communion—Rev. J. P. Marion, D.D., Greenwood.

History of Presbyterian Church—Rev. W. H. McIntosh, D.D., Hattiesburg.

Methods for Leaders in Local Church—Mr. Jameson C. Jones, Corinth, Miss.

Hand-work applied to Daily Vacation Bible Schools (same as b section, second period)—Mrs. J. V. Currie.

Conference Period—R. L. Landis.

Recreational Activities—Rev. J. V. Cobb, Rev. J. R. Tackett, Prof. Knox McEachern, Miss Elise McCallum.

Vespers—Rev. R. S. Woodson, Starkville.

Popular Addresses—Rev. R. W. Hardy, Okolona.

For room at either of the Conferences at Belhaven make your application early to Miss Jennie F. Armistead, Belhaven College, by use of the application blanks which are sent in advance to all churches. If you fail to secure one, write Miss Carol M. Landis, Sec., Box 48, Jackson, Miss.

Note the fact that no one is authorized to enroll a delegate without endorsement of pastor, superintendent of Sunday School, or president of Woman's Auxiliary. Do not ask that we vary from this regulation.

Room, board, light, water, use of boats on lake, swimming pool—$10.00. Less than full time, $2.50 per day, provided room for part time is found possible. Single meals, 50 cents; for your visitors, meals 50 cents.

A small expense is necessary for books, note books, etc., Laundry will be handled for you at prevailing prices in the city.

Board is payable on opening date, or date of entry. Please do not send any fee before you come.

Conference Committee—Rev. G. T. Gillespie, D.D., Rev. W. A. Hall, R. L. Landis, Conference Director.

GEORGIA PLANS Y. P. CONFERENCE

The Tenth Annual Young People's Conferences will be held by Agnes Scott College at Decatur, Ga., under the auspices of Synod's Committee and the Auxiliary, June 11-19. The Synodical Young People's League will meet in connection with the conference. The following invitation is extended to the societies of Georgia churches:

Come to Agnes Scott and help us enjoy the finest conference Georgia has ever known. For nine years we have been learning how to have this tenth and best conference of our League.

The best event of the morning is the meeting of the Young People's League. Tom Johnston will be presiding and young people from all parts of Georgia will take part. Come and see what other young people are doing and hear of plans for the future.

In the afternoon Mr. McArthur will have charge of swimming, tennis, baseball, track meet, in fact, every sort of interesting and enjoyable recreation. Come and have a good time.

In the evening—vespers by the young people under the direction of Dr. Frank Morgan—and the inspiration service when Doctor Morgan will speak. Come and be drawn closer to God, receive a new vision of Him and His plan for your life.

Come and hear Bible taught by Doctor and Miss Rivers; Missions by Doctor Blakely, Doctor McCain, Mrs. Askew Fulton and Mrs. Cockerham; Personal Evangelism, Mr. Woodson; Young People's Work, Doctor MacFerrin; Presbyterianism, Doctor Robinson; Sunday School Work, Miss Vinson, and Stewardship, Miss Mary Amend.

CONTINUATIONS FROM PAGE ONE

THE SIXTY-NINTH GENERAL ASSEMBLY IN SESSION AT MONTREAT

of Fields occupied by both Presbyterian Church U. S. and Presbyterian Church U. S. A.

This is the second visit of the Assembly to Montreat, the first being in 1923. Every convenience has been arranged for the help of the Assembly in its work and for its entertainment. The great hotel, Assembly Inn, will be social headquarters for the commissioners. Besides the usual accommodations, there will be telegraph operators to send and receive messages, and the facilities for delivering the proceedings of the Assembly to the daily press will be adequate to inform a waiting public. The Associated Press will have a staff at hand to give world-wide communication of important events and decisions, and several papers will have special correspondents.

The General Assembly will meet at Montreat for the first time since the resort became a definite possession of the whole church, with trustees appointed by the Assembly for the control of the property and all the policies of the community and the conferences held there each summer, as well as the schools, camp and other activities which run through the year.

Many commissioners will doubtless be surprised to learn that Montreat is an incorporated town, and has an all-the-year population of some 2000. The village has its public school, its church, stores, post office, and several other public service utilities, as light plants, waterworks, sewage system, public garages, and so on.

The local church at Montreat is noted for its liberality. It is well guided by one of our best ministers, Rev. Willis S. Wilson, D.D., who not only ably instructs his people, but leads them in forward movements. The woman's work of this Church is signally faithful and efficient. The Church has a deep love for the whole place, with a ready hand to help in the enterprise which means so much to the denomination.

It might well be said that the social fabric of Montreat is one of the finest texture, and furnishes an auxiliary to the moral and religious aims of the Montreat idea, altogether satisfactory and irrefragable. If Montreat ever becomes what its friends hope, the heart of the Southern Church, its present citizenry will be no obstacle to this fond desire.

FACULTY CHOSEN FOR JUNIOR COLLEGE

the best men as to educational fitness, good moral character, attitude toward the Bible, men who are positive Christians. Every man selected is experienced in his field—all are men of experience as teachers. The names of the faculty members are as follows:

R. G. Matheson, Jr., A.B. Davidson, M.A. University of South Carolina, dean and head department of English. He is a son of Rev. R. G. Matheson of Fayetteville Presbytery.

Charles R. Hunter, A.B. Davidson, M.A. University of North Carolina, head of department of History. Mr. Hunter is a nephew of Rev. C. M. Richards, D.D., teacher of Bible at Davidson.

Edwin L. Key, B.S. N. C. State College, M.A. Peabody College, head of department of Mathematics.

Dozier R. Drinkard, B.S. and M.A. Columbia University, New York, Department of Science.

H. Wilson Young, A.B., M.A. Colorado University, Department of Languages, Louisiana.

R. A. McLeod, A.B. Davidson College, B.D. Union Theological Seminary, Acting President and Head Bible Department.

Mrs. Ola McWhite was elected matron of the college.

President McLeod will move to Maxton in a short time. He will occupy the president's home and take active charge in opening the college.

The college will open in September and it appears there will be a large number enrolled. President McLeod says that "judging from the large number of inquiries, together with registrations already entered it appears that the college will open with a large and satisfactory enrollment."

J. P. Wiggins of the executive committee says that all requirements for an accredited junior college are being complied with and the institution most positively will be an accredited junior college. This college will cover the last two years of high school, 10th and 11th grades, and the first two years of college work.

FUNDAMENTALIST CONVENTION CHANGED

Not less than 20 or 30 other speakers will deliver individual addresses. The inimitable Robert Harkness will be at the piano, and Prof. Theo. Bergman at the organ, and either Homer Roddeheaver or Harry Clarke or both in charge of the big choirs.

Minneapolis is but ten miles from St. Paul, where the Presbyterian General Assembly is being held. Those attending one of these conventions may want to attend the other. There are special rates to The Presbyterian General Assembly, good beyond the close of the W. C. F. A. Convention. Owing to the shortness of time, we advise these rates be used by those who expect to look in on the General Assembly.

For information concerning rooms, write Rev. Robt. Moyer, 20 Sou. 11th Street.

Contributions to the Convention, send to S. E. Robb, 20 Sou. 11th Street.

For information regarding the program write Dr. W. B. Riley, 20 Sou. 11th St., Minneapolis, Minn.

DEVOTION

"FEAR NOT, I HAVE THE KEYS OF DEATH"

Egbert W. Smith

Of all the truths that star
And cheer our hearts with light,

With wealth of comfort
Oh, tell me if the mate is kno
To these best words, the Sa
"Fear not, the keys of death"

For us He entered death's do
To end o'er us his gloomy rei

At price of suffering sore,
With Him death grappled all
For back He came, death's
And, torn from his dread gri
The keys of death He bore

What joy to know life's oute
At no command of Chance or

Swings wide to you and me
Impassable it still must stand, Securely locked, until His ha
In love puts in the key

To Him our tearful eyes we
As for loved voices hushed w
"Too soon," we cry, "their breath."

With instant sympathy divine
He answers us, "Dear child of
Not so; I have the keys c

And when we face that final
That valley dim, two worlds

With shuddering, fainting
'Twill flood the vale with he ray

Our trembling hands in His While sweet and clear we hea
"Fear not, I have the keys
Nashville, Tenn.

TRIUMPHANT DEATH

"Some of you remember he old elder Gao. He has been mainstays of the church in T pu for years, and was the ho gelist. His health has been for years, so I was glad to h still here. They told us thou was sick in bed and woul never be up again. So after Sunday, Mrs. Talbot and I ca their court to see if we migh him. The pastor of the chu son, and he asked us in. Th was very weak, but very ple us. When we went in we gav salutation, 'Is it peace with answered promptly, 'Aye, wh peace is there to a believer
Then he went on to say tha
he had a desire to depart a Christ, 'which,' he said, 'is better, But,' he hastened to mean to say I want to tell I want to die. That is as He follow his will.' When he be his voice was very faint, but to gather strength as he spe fearful the heathen are even death and of how perfectly at peace he was. We stayed minutes, for he was not stro to talk longer, but when I h day that he had died in the r so glad we had seen him and joyous testimony."

Miss Jes

Tsing Kiangpu, China.

COMMENCEMENT AT

that were said about the Train
by a member of the State Bo cation in Virginia and by I Thompson in the survey whic for the Assembly's Executive of Christian Education.

The several members of
will be busy during the summ mer conferences and in preac Jean J. Dupuy of the Departm lish Bible was granted a year absence which she will spen sister and friends in Korea.
doubt be used in that far-aw teaching the Bible in her deep way. Satisfactory arrangem made for teaching her clas Training School until she retu

BYTERIAN STANDARD

FOUNDED 1858

Organ of the Synod of N. C. for 70 Years

at the Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as Second Class Matter.

Terms—The subscription price of the Standard is $1.00 per year, payable in advance. To ministers the price is $1.50 per year. To ministers' wives the price is $2.50 per year.

The mailing label shows the month and year to which subscription is paid. Payment in advance is required.

Subscriptions may be made by money order, check, or registered letter, or sent currency by mail.

Obituary Notices—No charge is made for notices of 100 words or less, but for all over fifty words the charge is 10¢ per word.

Rates—Sent on application.

Addresses—Kindly send us both old and new addresses previous to the desired change.

Changes are made only upon the written request of the subscriber and settlement in full must be made at the same time.

Editorial and Business Communications Should be

Addressed to

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

Box 800

Charlotte, N. C.

EDITORIALVALUABLE PREMIUM

Church papers the need of subscribers is a common complaint, and many are the instances offered to get the goods.

One thing is one thing and sometimes it is that is offered.

Custom has gradually grown among the editors of certain papers to hold back in the payment of their dues, knowing by experience that the paper in time, in order to get money, is forced to offer a premium. Papers of ministers and Bibles, or some attractive in the border of Mexico they have a habit of expecting with each purchase a candy or a cake. This no doubt is the premium-giving in order to stimulate proud of our Protestant faith, yet sometimes as we mention, we find a Protestantism an inconvenience when compared with our Romanish contemporaries.

Which strange to say, is a Romish premium-giving in order to stimulate subscribers. Like its Protestant contemporary it is seeking new readers by means of a premium.

Let us Prottestant contemporaries it does not offer such commonplace premiums as calendars, but it strikes out on a new way of promises by offering for every subscriber a "Pardon Crucifix."

According to a circular accompanying this premium promises 300 indulgences for each day on which he wears it on his person.

He will repeat the Lord's Prayer while kneeling at the cross, he will be granted an indulgence for seven years.

Instead of such promises we confess that our premiums seem small and unimportant.

One might be tempted to try this crucifix, but the Protestant conscience which stands against the use of our using a "Pardon Crucifix."

One is confident that our subscribers would not accept this "Pardon Crucifix," especially if they are behind in their payments.

One would like to give a clean moral bill of health for every subscriber, almost as long as they have been

One could then read the paper without any stain on the conscience which must make life miserable when they picture the privations of the life of the poor, when bills haunt him day and

One would like to see the difference between our premium and that of the "Truth." This, with all other reasons, is why we shall not try the premium.

Our Church paper, needy as it may be, is not to obtain goods under false pretenses.

FOUNDATIONS BE DESTROYED?

A question, put by the Psalmist, is coupled with another "What Can the righteous do?" In the present time, it is a question that is pertinent to the people of God—the men and workmen who are seeking to build up the Church of God "upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner-stone." In the Sermon on the Mount our Lord taught how important it is for a building to have sure foundations.

The house built upon the sand fell in time of wind and storm, while the house built upon a rock stood the stress of storm, because its foundation was strong.

The Church of God has Jesus Christ for its foundation, and it has therefore stood all these years, despite the attacks upon it.

In these recent years the attacks have come from those within as well as from those without, and it is this fact that gives serious concern to those of us who love the Church.

We believe that Jesus Christ is the corner-stone of the Church, because the Bible teaches us that such is the fact.

We read it in the types, and sacrifices of the worship, as well as in the prophets, so that if you throw doubt upon the records of the past you throw doubt upon the credentials of our Lord.

When His birth is questioned, and views held that He was the Son of man, but not the Son of God, you undermine the Church of God, which is built upon this blessed fact, and my Saviour, no longer being divine, because a mere man, and we are without hope.

Then the system of Christianity, being without foundation, must fall into ruins, and with the fall of Christianity, civilization must also fall.

As the psalmist says, "What can the righteous do?"

One shudders as he tries to picture the effect upon this world when Christianity disappears.

Looking back over the centuries of the past, we see the world sunk in savage ignorance.

The only power that has lifted men from what they were then into what they are now, is the religion of Jesus Christ—yet men are ready to undermine that religion and take from us all hope.

Our theology may be antiquated, and we may be far behind modern progress. We still cling to the old truths taught us in our childhood and impressed upon by example and precept in our older years.

These truths have given peace to thousands who have passed into glory.

Our Church was founded upon them, and we do not propose to give them up at the demand of any half-baked Scientists.

The Church of God is safe and the gates of hell cannot prevail against her.

Suppose all the claims of modern philosophy are true, in what way would the world be benefited?

Is there anything in the modern creed that will light up the valley of the shadow of death, through which all must go?

Years ago, as a young man we worked in the slums of Baltimore. We sat by the bedside of a soiled woman of the underworld, wasted by tuberculosis, a mere shadow of what she had once been. The question with her was not the discoveries of Science, or the theories of the higher critics.

She was not seeking an example, but one who could stand in her place, and wash her guilty soul.

When we read of that place where pain would cease and sickness be cured, she hung upon every word, and each day she called for the same passage of the Word of God.

The soul, when sin-sick, calls for the great Physician who must be the Son of God and also the Son of man, with the power of one and the tender sympathy of the other who was touched with the feeling of our infirmities.

This hope is the foundation of our life and the secret of our hope hereafter.

Let those who would lead the Church into strange beliefs calmly measure what the effect will be.

As the Latins would say, "Cui bono?"

BEWARE OF SWEEPING GENERALIZATIONS

All students of logic will tell you that nothing is more common than to argue the whole from one of its parts, or in other words because a certain statement is true of some, it must be true of all.

This is a danger to be guarded against in judging the doctrinal character of any Church.

Because there are certain Presbyteries in the Northern Church that admit men out of sympathy with our views in doctrine, we must not conclude that the whole Church is honey-combed with error.

We admit that when such admissions become too numerous they do furnish grounds for suspicion.

Now and then we read of some action that arouses our fears that error is growing.

Some time ago 97 young Presbyterian ministers sent a petition to the Commission of Fifteen who direct the work of the Northern Church, asking that there be given to the Church a looser subscription to the Constitution of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A.

An analysis of these petitioners shows that only three of the ninety-seven were Princeton men, and that one of them had spent only a part of his time at that Seminary.

Upon its face it would seem from this report that the Seminaries of the Northern Church are turning out ministers who are not fully in accord with the Westminster Standards.

When reading in the light of this analysis of the petition it would seem that old Princeton is not among those who are bowing the knee to the Baal of Modernism.

What is true of Princeton is no doubt true of the rank and file of the ministry.

There are hundreds of ministers who still hold to the old truths and who have no desire to lower the terms of subscription to the Constitution of the Church.

On the other hand, we very much fear that our own ministry would, upon examination, show here and there a broader construction of our Standards than we would think permissible.

THE RESIGNATION OF MRS. WINSBOROUGH

Those of us who know what her work has been are cast down over the resignation of this devoted worker in our Church.

Seventeen years ago, comparatively unknown, she realized the latent power in the consecrated women of our Church, and she therefore proposed to utilize it.

Like all new work it had its unknown problems, but she solved them in a manner that impressed the Church and made us all thankful that she had come into the Kingdom for such a time as this.

As we look back and glance over the growing contributions, reaching into every quarter, and accumulating to a point that fills us with wonder. We are lost in admiration.

Whether we agree with her plans or not, we are forced to confess that in her the Church has a worker of whom any Church would be proud.

We extend to her our sincere sympathy in her illness, and pray that she soon may be restored to health.

What she has done in seventeen years would undermine the strongest constitution.

If there be any comfort in the thought, she may well assure herself that as a worker she has been one among a thousand.

Her work will ever stand as a monument "more enduring than brass", and through coming years the women of our Church will point with pride to what she has done.

THE PRESBYTERIAN MIND

Moderator's Sermon, The General Assembly,
Montreat, N. C., May 16, 1929

Harris Elliott Kirk, D.D., LL.D.

"We Have the Mind of Christ"—I Cor. 2:16

This bold declaration was made by the Apostle whom Presbyterians delight to honor. The believing mind is the sole judge of spiritual truth. It will not accept worldly opinion as a final register of religious reality. If we believe that our institutions are in accord with the spirit of our Divine Master, we must be loyal to them in spite of the enmity of the world.

With such a conception as a background, I invite you to consider with me the Presbyterian mind. We are going to inquire into the nature and validity of our type of religion. It is a timely theme, since denominational religion is everywhere spoken against. It is hazardous to claim that a denominational type can ever be in harmony with the mind of Christ. It is not to be done lightly or unadvisedly. Organized religion is extremely unpopular at the present time, especially in its denominational form. If we are to resist popular trends we must have reasons which not only sustain our confidence, but also enable us in some measure at least to justify our position before mankind.

At first hostility to the type seems justified. It can be said that so long as the type persists, the church will fail to present a united front to its enemies. Such divisions are certainly out of harmony with modern trends toward unification. Others will suggest that what unites us is far more important than what divides us. Besides, if we could unite all the churches we could reduce the cost of administration, and present a solid front to the present generation that would go far to persuade it that the Church is a spiritual reality. Why then should not immediate steps be taken to rid ourselves of these traditional encumbrances, and unite the Church in one great communion? Such a point of view is worthy of serious consideration. It is often inspired by the desire to more fully express the mind of Christ. When one reflects, however, the problem is not so simple as it seems.

Church Unity a Part of a Greater Problem

It is easy to contemplate the Divine ideal from afar; it is proper to desire it as a culmination of all our efforts, but we must face the formidable fact that the ideal can be realized only within the limits of our mortal existence. The problem of Church unity is part of the greater problem of the perfection of human nature, and that of necessity is a very slow process.

"We have this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excellency of the power may be of God, and not of us," said the great Apostle to the Gentiles. This means that the divine aspect of the movement is displayed on the background of human limitation. Man's imperfections only admit a partial realization of the Divine ideal. This principal is manifest in the history of the Church in the form of denominational religion. To illustrate this conception I should like to use two contrasts: one between the near and the far, the other between the nest and the arena.

Few men in any age can discern the perfect round; most of us must be content with the broken arcs. The mass of people find their way to the whole only through loyalty to the part. Nehemiah understood this in rebuilding the walls of Jerusalem, when instead of presenting the ideal aspect of the enterprise, he gave every man something to do over against his own house. This is the contrast between the near and the far, the influence of the lower upon the higher loyalties of life. The family is the school in which man develops social loyalty, the state the school for the cultivation of love of country.

You cannot develop social loyalty through indifference to family obligation, nor can national patriotism be developed through contempt for the state. The reason is that the lower loyalty defines duty for us, but does not confine it. The whole is greater than the part, but loyalty to the part—to those interests which first touch us where we live—is the only way to reach the whole. God is greater than man, yet we are plainly told that unless we can love man whom we have seen, we cannot love God whom we have not seen. Loyalty to what is immediately in front of us, leads to loyalty to what at first appears remote; to fill the bounded is to become aware of obligations to the unbounded, in which it lives. From this principle denominational loyalty develops.

It is quite impossible to understand the conception of a universal church, until one has fulfilled his obligation to the community in which he first becomes aware of duty to God. The evils usually associated with the type, are not inherent in the organism, but come from its abuse. To limit patriotism to the state is sectionalism; to confine interest to a denomination is sectarianism; but only in so far as we are faithful to the part nearest our interests, can we pass beyond its limits to comprehend the conception of the church universal.

Another influence comes from the contrast between two impulses: one to go forth to meet the world, the other to retreat from the world. One is the passion for the arena; the wish to develop character amid the pressures of life; the other the passion for the nest; a retreat into something that will shelter the mind and safeguard the spirit from the rude assaults of the world. One desires to live dangerously, the other to live safely. One is the progressive impulses, incited by the ambition to advance; the other the conservative impulse inspired by a loss of nerve; and both have had a powerful influence on religious life from the beginning of the Christian era.

The Types of the Church in Early Times

In apostolic times there was a Jewish-Christian and a Gentile-Christian church: one clinging close to Palestine and ancient Hebrew tradition; the other under the leadership of Paul going boldly out to meet the world. The Palestinian type loved the nest, the Pauline type sought the arena. It was a great moment in history when the Apostles turned their backs on the attractions of the sheltered life, and went forth to preach the gospel to the Gentile world. They had a story to tell which they believed would change the fate of mankind, and accompany their purpose because they were fully in sympathy with the will of their Divine Master. They were men of the message—preachers and teachers—afire with prophetic fervor, and derived their authority from the great commission. They deliberately sought to live dangerously; accepted hardships as a matter of course, and carried the movement to the heart of the civilized world, because they convinced their generation that they were heralds of a message of transforming power.

But after the Apostolic age a change came over the church. Amid cooling enthusiasms, increasing worldly opposition, and divided counsels, the people began to turn to the idea of a shelter. This impulse to retire from the world gave rise to asceticism and monasticism, and was due to a distinct loss of nerve. The movement was a withdrawal from intimate contacts with life, towards the protection of an ecclesiastical institution. Priestly ministries and ritual performances were more appealing to this temperament, than prophetic leadership and living thought. The men of the message—exponents of the of the evangelical spirit—were superseded for the most part by men of the institution. The great words, "Go ye into all the world," were changed to "Come ye into the church." A tired, tempted, disenchanted people found shelter within its hospitable walls. This is what a modern writer calls "second religiousness," the impulse to decline the struggle with life in favor of a form of protection afforded by a theological symbol, or an ecclesiastical institution. This impulse beyond doubt arises from a failure of nerve. It draws man back towards safety, rather than impelling him on to live dangerously. The struggle between the prophetic and priestly spirit finally led to the triumph of the latter, which reached its climax in the great ecclesiastical establishment of the middle ages.

No one can read the New Testament without realizing that this later development was not contemplated by Christ or the Apostles. There was a movement long before there was a literature or an institution. That which created the church was the living word preached by the bold missionaries whose steadfast spirit carried the gospel to the centre of Roman civilization. The loss of nerve which development the ecclesiastical institutions of the middle ages was a definite departure from the norm, and the reformation was an intelligent rejection of this type in favor of that found in the New Testament.

The Reformation Creates a New Cleavage

The ruling principle of the reformation opposed itself to the priestly type of church. It saw the world as an arena in which faith and life should develop in intimate contact with the experience of mankind. It was sublimely prophetic, a reaffirmation of the evangelical position, and it is to this type of religion the Presbyterian Church belongs. For Calvin's conception was broader than Luther's; for while Luther limited his protest to Jewish admixtures in the old church, and made justification by faith his ruling theological principle, Calvin struck directly at the pagan admixtures, and made Divine sovereignty his ruling principle. The strength of this tremendous conception is written in the history of the modern world.

It is proper, however, to observe that certain differences appear in the Protestant bodies which trace their origin to the reformation. Some followed the ecclesiastical tradition, emphasizing the idea of the Church, ritual, priestly ministries, and gradations of clergy. The chief fear of this branch is schism in the visible body of Christ. Others followed the evangelical tradition, relying on preaching and teaching. Rejecting the priestly character of the ministry, this branch was less concerned with divisions in the visible body of Christ than with false teaching. Certain minor differences appeared within the evangelical body; some stressing teaching in association with peculiar notions of the sacraments; while others associated the message with distinctive methods of evangelisation. The Presbyterian family concentrated interest on the broad historical meaning of the evangelical tradition, and being, as Calvin advised, much given to prophesying, developed a thoughtful, practical way of looking at religion.

The Genius of Presbyterianism is Individualism

Presbyterianism is the religion of the examined life. Those branches of the evangelical family that stress teaching in relation to sacraments or methods tend towards religious collectivism; while the trend of Presbyterianism is towards individualism. As a rule, Presbyterians are fairly well convinced that they know where they stand; that is why they are not usually influenced by mass movements or popular uprising. You will often find them in a crowd, but they are never there because it is a crowd. They have an extreme distaste for personally conducted parties; they are rather too fond, I fear, of going on pilgrimage alone. We must recognize very clearly that our besetting danger is self-contained individualism. If our Lord felt it necessary to say to the collectivist, "a city set upon a hill cannot be hid," He also reminded the individualist, "neither do men light a candle and put it under a bushel."

This tendency, however, is checked by our form of government. Presbyterianism is government by Presbyterians. In adopting this type we are in the true line of Apostolic succession. We believe in the parity of the ministry, and in the equality of ministers and laymen in the conduct of the church's business. Such an intimate association has always been an effectual check upon the eccentricities of either class. Our organized life functions through courts of various grades until we come to the General Assembly. This is not only the supreme court of the Church, but it is the symbol of an ideal spiritual unity. We are neither a collection of individualists, nor a loose federation of congregations, but an Assembly of the Lord's people. It is within the communion of this Assembly that we develop the greater loyalties which unite us to the Church universal; type of government safeguards individual rights, giving the greatest liberty for personal development, uniting its constituent members to the whole Christ. I do solemnly believe that loyalty to our type can never develop a spirit of sect for a sense of the existence of a universal whole in the vitality of the part. The more there enter into the ideal significance of an Assembly of the Lord's people, the more conscious will we be of belonging to a universal communion of the Many of the most enlightened movements of our time that are seeking closer relations among nations are using varieties of the Presbyterian government to express this greater conception.

It is of the utmost importance, in a time of so much confusion about organized religion, there is such violent hostility manifested in denominational type, that we should appreciate the aspect of our form of government in order that the Assembly of the Lord's people should become the which we learn the larger loyalties to universe Christ, of which the Assembly is the symbol. Such considerations develop convictions—needed than now—that the Church is something from a section or a nation; that it derives its life not from changing human opinion, but from the intelligence of the Divine Spirit. Loyalty to our own conception so far from shutting us up in a scheme of things, should lead us into the richness of a universal family of a common Father each when looking out upon denominational so far from being frightened by the prospect, with the Psalmist: "I am a companion of all fear thee, of them that keep thy precepts." I believe that we have the courage to follow the general type of religion. By temperament and training we belong to the order of the prophets rather than of the priests. Our spirit is directed towards the open world and away from the nest. It thrives not in ecclesiastical shelters, but in the open road of dangerous conditions. It is better to be overbold than overcautious; grow best by living dangerously, by taking frank acceptance of this principle will enable us to have a just estimate of certain conceptions, at present cising the minds of thoughtful people.

The Strong Desire for Unity

There is abroad a very strong desire for closer relations among the churches, with which thinking people should sympathize. The Christ is broader than man's mind; we should be ready to follow it, no matter where. But sympathy with this most commendable cannot take the place of thoughtful examination of ways and means.

It is strongly held in some quarters the normal way to realize the unity of the Christ is through a single type organization of the Church, it is affirmed, present to the united body under one type of government directed by one order of ministry, it cannot be the mind of Christ. I do not sympathize with this view, simply because there is no evidence in the New Testament to show that Christ contented himself with this kind of a Church. If the conception were so important, it is passing strange that so little was written of it by those who first were eyewitnesses of the things we believed among us. The Apostolic Church was conscious of spiritual oneness that a single organization does not seem to have suggested as essential for its realization. If my early Church history is true, the notion that a single type organization was the only way to express unity was a development of post-Apostolic times. It was the product of a loss of nerve. The outward unity is usually associated with the priestly type, and its ideal is an ecclesiastical institution. It is quite impossible for Presbyterians to sympathize with this view, because we believe in the fact. Besides it is out of step with our genius. For weal or woe, we believe in the prophetic rather than the priestly type of church, and we must work out our own salvation within the limits of our traditions. We would perish in a sectarian environment; we would grow to ecclesiastical shelter. We have made our own church cannot return to the nest; we must develop in the arena of the open world; and there will be a clash of opinions and the pressure of evil, earthly mission.

Errors of Priestly Type of Organization

The priestly idea of unity has at least two errors: being religious; the same cannot be said, but a more recent conception, which desires unity in the interest of expediency, under the leadership of an ecclesiastical bureaucracy. It is necessary to repeat the arguments offered in support of this view, for they are quite familiar. My objection to the notion is that it has two fatal defects: it is using religion for a non-religious purpose; of the most dangerous tendencies for the Church. The desire to unite the Church in order to coerce the state, or for shaping programs, or social policies, however worthy they be in themselves, is surely a strange one for all who believe that the Kingdom of God is at hand. It is a dubious plea indeed to religion on the ground that it is good business or that it gives a sanction to law and order. In the second place, this conception changes the nature of Christianity from a religion of invitation to a religion of demands. The Church of Christ is not to be such mission. Its business exemplified, in the ministry of its Divine Master, is to do things and not do things to them. Its commission is to invite, not to coerce. Its ministers are not religious philosophers, or directors of reform, but ambassadors of the Lord Jesus Christ.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPT.

Rev. W. A. Gamble, Pinetops, N. C.

EDITOR'S LOOKOUT

Institute at Fort Smith, Ark.

What is said to be the greatest meeting in the history of the Western District of the Arkansas Christian Endeavor Union was held Wednesday, April 24, in the First Presbyterian Church (U.S.), Fort Smith. W. Roy Breg, Southern Secretary for the International Society of Christian Endeavor, was the principal leader. After a luncheon with a group of City Union leaders, he spoke to 150 high school seniors in Fort Smith. Then he addressed the student body in the Van Buren High School.

At four o'clock a Junior Rally was held in the Church auditorium of First Presbyterian Church. Miss Mamie Gene Cole, former All-South Junior Field Secretary and now Director of Religious Education in First Presbyterian Church, Fort Smith, presided at this service. At 5:00 o'clock Mr. Breg conducted a conference for Intermediates.

At 6:15 Rev. R. B. Cotton, pastor of the Sulphur Springs Presbyterian Church, led a pre-prayer service for Society and district officers. At 6:30 about 100 Endeavorers from all over the district met in the social hall of the Church for a banquet. Kendall Casey of First Christian Church, Fort Smith, was toast master, and John Holt of the Christian Church led the pep singing which added much to the jollification.

At 7:30 six simultaneous conferences on various phases of the work were held, and at 8:00 the evening session convened in the church auditorium. Miss Hazel Garrett, district president, presided. Dr. Wallace R. Bacon, pastor of the First Christian Church, led the music. Then Mr. Breg conducted an open forum on Christian Endeavor methods.

After this Lawrence Hobson, president of the Intermediate Society of First Presbyterian Church, led the devotional. After a special musical number from the Van Buren Presbyterian Church, Breg gave his address.

After the offering, the officers for the new year were installed and the convention closed with the beloved "Mizpah Circle." Fully 150 young people, their leaders and friends, stood in that circle. Anyone who looked into their eager, yet serious, faces realized that they were resolved to go back to their tasks better, finer, for having spent that evening under the banner of the movement that has for its motto, "For Christ and the Church."

Every pastor of a Christian Endeavor Church in Fort Smith and Van Buren, Rev. Elbert Hefner of the Presbyterian U. S. A., Fort Smith, Rev. W. B. Miller, of the U. S. A. Church of Van Buren, Dr. W. R. Bacon of the Christian Church, Fort Smith, Rev. R. B. Cotton, of Sulphur Springs Presbyterian Church, Fort Smith, and Frank Anderson of the entertaining Church, as well as Rev. H. L. Bevel, of the Charleston Presbyterian U. S., were present. Their co-operation was the secret of the success.

The new officers of the district are:
Miss Hazel Garrett, Fort Smith, President.
Lawrence Hobson, Fort Smith, Vice-President.
Johnnie Belle Umbarger, Fort Smith, Secretary.
Ruth Bevil, Charleston, Treasurer.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPIC

C. G. A.

Sunday, May 26—New Light Bearers.—Deut. 34:9, 1:1-9, Matt. 5:13-16.

Moses, My Servant, Is Dead

"Moses, my servant, is dead. Now, therefore, arise." "The King is dead—Long live the King!" "The old year is gone—Happy New Year!" High school days, perhaps, are finished—college days are ahead. Yesterday is gone; always there is today. We do not allow ourselves to linger on the thought of yesterday's failures. There is a good chance of making today a success. Nothing daunts Youth when Youth has had a whole night's rest and a good breakfast.

The year's at the spring
And day's at the morn;
Morning's at seven;
The hill-side's dew-pearled;
The lark's on the wing;
The snail's on the thorn:
God's in his heaven—
All's right with the world!

home. What interpretation then shall best guide him on his way? Upon what will such a spirit nourish itself? Will it not be the conception of God which shall afford man a reasonable experience of religious reality in the deepest emotions of the soul? I am convinced that the type of teaching best designed to restore the thoughtful man's confidence in the living God, is to be found in the fundamental principles of the reformed faith; and since Presbyterianism is the most thorough expression of these principles, I feel we should do all we can to preserve our type of faith in these perplexing times.

I do not claim that this is suited to the majority of men. It is and probably shall ever remain the faith of a minority; but it has happened once, and will happen again, that from this minority have come the pathfinders of all the rest. The destiny of men is in the hands of their leaders; and the reformed faith has ever been the faith of directing intelligencies, whether in the councils of the nations, or in the gatherings of the Church.

Now, Therefore, Arise

Work without preparation? We could not, even if we would. "Practice makes perfect" the old adage goes. Perhaps we may not all be able to go to college, but that does not mean that we can not be educated. Each and every one of us has a niche to fill. Every day should help us to better perform the duties entrusted to us. "Not failure, but low aim, is crime."

Now, therefore, arise—"the elevator to success is not running, you will have to use the stairs." Our church has supplied numerous colleges for boys and girls, and there are also ways to obtain financial aid during college days. Those of limited means have the same chance in the class room that the wealthier ones have. A Christian education is one of the most democratizing forces in our world. It helps to wipe out racial differences and social prejudices. It will keep us from getting sluggish and self-satisfied. Of course, a college education is not a fool-proof receipt for success, but it will help mightily in teaching us to find ourselves.

Cross Over This Jordan

Beyond the Alps, lies Italy. Beyond the Jordan, the Promised Land. Barriers are tests. If the barrier discourages us so much that we do not try to overcome it, we are not worthy of the joy that comes to those who conquer barriers. We have to class ourselves as quitters. We put ourselves in the class with the one-talent man to whom his Lord said, "Thou wicked and slothful servant." No one can make quitters of us. We do that for ourselves. "There hath no temptation taken you but such as man can bear: but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation make also the way to escape, that ye may be able to endure it."

Be Strong and of Good Courage

"Be not affrighted, neither be thou dismayed: for Jehovah thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest." At the beginning of the journey, at the end of the journey, and all along the way. "I am Alpha and Omega—the first and the last, the beginning and the ending; and I am also everything between. When the world began I was there, and when it ends I shall be present, and everywhere between you will find me, for I am the Eternal Contemporary, the companion and helper of all good men in every age and clime. I am at births and deaths, but I am with men all their days as well. I am Alpha, always beginning, but what I begin I also finish, for I am Omega, too." (Excerpt from an article by R. H. Brown, in Methodist Recorder.)

New Light Bearers

"Moses, my servant, is dead. Now therefore, arise, cross over this Jordan." Man is immortal until his work is done—those who have gone before have shown us the way. "Let no man despise thy youth; but be thou an example to them that believe, in the word, in manner of life, in love, in faith, in purity."

JUNIOR C. E. TOPIC HELPS

Miss Hattie Mae Covington

Daily Verses

- May 20—School in the home, Deut. 6:3-9.
- May 21—Paul's school, Acts 19:8-10.
- May 22—The Bible taught, Acts 8:30-35.
- May 23—Open-air school, Acts 16:14-15.
- May 24—Telling about Jesus, John 4:29.
- May 25—Sowing the Word, Matt. 13:1-9.

May 26—Topic: A "Stay-at-Home Journey" to a Mission School—Ps. 119:1-8.

Piano Prelude.

Call to Worship:

The earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord as the waters cover the sea.

The kingdom of the world shall become the kingdom of our Lord and of His Christ.

Response:

- Eternal are Thy mercies, Lord;
- Eternal truth attends Thy word;
- Thy praise shall sound from shore to shore
- Till suns shall rise and set no more.

(Tune: "Old Hundred.")

Scripture Lesson, Ps. 119:1-8.

Prayer.

Hymn: "Light Up The World for Jesus."

Offertory Service.

Let us not be weary in well doing, for in due season we shall reap if we faint not.

Offertory Music.

Response.

- Bless Thou the gifts our hands have brought,
- Bless Thou the work our hearts have planned;
- Ours is the faith, the will, the thought;
- The rest, O God, is in Thy hand.

Special music: "Loyal Juniors" (Junior Carols).

The Leader's Talk.

Talks by the Juniors.

Playlet: "As Others See Us." by Anita B. Ferris, from "Missionary Program Material."

Hymn: "We've a Story to Tell to the Nation."

Poem: "What would you do?"

Superintendent's message.

Hymn: "Bring Then In."

Benediction.

A Mission School in Kentucky—The Stuart Robinson School

Dr. E. O. Guerrant began the Stuart Robinson School at Blackey, Kentucky, and it is now the largest Home Mission School in the Southern Presbytery Church. Last year it had over four hundred students; these include the kindergarteners up through the high school. The campus has sixteen acres; all of this is not level, but rather rolling. All of the buildings are brick except the Superintendent's cottage and the dining room and kitchen.

The school is in the midst of a coal-mining section and most of the children come from the mining camp. The Bible is taught in every grade; many verses, often entire chapters, are memorized. There are senior, junior and intermediate christian endeavor societies in the Stuart Robinson School.

(Continued on page 9)

Rev. Ernest Trice Thompson, D.D.

Lesson for May, 26

GOD'S LAW IN THE HEART

Jer. 31:1-40; John 1:17; Heb. 8:7-13. Print Jer. 31:29-34; Jn. 1:17

We recall that Jeremiah began to prophesy in Judah during the reign of Josiah, and that he continued his ministry during the reigns of Jehoahaz, Jehoiakim, Jehoiachin, and Zedekiah, the last forty years of Judah's national existence. In the early part of the reign of Jehoiakim, a weak and ineffective king, Jeremiah took his stand in the temple and warned the people that the temple itself was no guarantee that the nation would withstand the assaults of Babylon—this being the great world power that was beginning to extend its sway over the whole of the Eastern world. He told them on the other hand that the national corruption made the doom of the nation inevitable. The time would come when the temple would be destroyed, and the people of Judah would follow their brethren in Israel into captivity. Jeremiah's predictions were fulfilled. A portion of the nation was carried into captivity during the reign of Jehoiakim, a second portion during the reign of Jehoiachin, then during the reign of Zedekiah there occurred the last terrible siege. Jerusalem was captured, the walls of the city were razed, the temple was destroyed, the people, all but a pitiful remnant, were carried away into a foreign land. To most of the Jews it seemed not only that their national existence was finally and forever ended, but that the Kingdom of God was also at an end, for they identified the Kingdom with the Nation just as we identify it with the Church. Just as the destruction of the Church would lead many of us to despair of the working out of God's purpose in the world, so the destruction of the nation affected the Jews of Jeremiah's day. Under these circumstances Jeremiah wrote the great prophecy that is recorded for us in Jer. 30-31. The two chapters are a unit, and in spite of the fact that our lesson is confined to Jer. 31, we will have to study them together.

Read Jer. 30:1-11. What is the main thought of this passage? Read Jer. 30:12-17. What is the main thought of this passage? Is it an advance on the previous passage? Read 30:18-24. What is the main thought here? Does it add anything to the two passages above? Read 31:1-26. What is the central thought here? What does it add to the passages above? Read 31:27-40. What do you understand by vs. 28-29? What are the characteristics of the New Covenant described in vs. 31-34? What does God mean when He says, I will put my law in their inward parts? What is the purpose of the two pictures in vs. 35-40. Read Lk. 22:20 (for "testament" read "covenant" as it is translated in the R. V.). Is there any connection between the words of Jesus and the words of Jeremiah. Read Hebrews 8:7-13. What point does the writer of this book make about the New Covenant?

In these two chapters as a whole Jeremiah undismayed by Judah's present adversities writes of the Future Glory of God's People. There are five elements in the picture that we will have to look at briefly, before we are prepared to understand fully the really important passage that is before us.

I. The Return of Judah to the Promised Land 30:1-11

The key verse of this section is vs. 3. In spite of the black disaster that has come upon the nation Jeremiah is convinced that God's purpose will still be carried out, that His promises will still be fulfilled. Perhaps he thinks of those two initial visions: the vision of the boiling caldron, presaging disaster coming from the North; the vision of the almond twig, emphasizing the fact that God is awake, even when it seems that His activity has ceased. So he brings God's word to the people: "Lo, the days come, saith Jehovah, that I will turn again the captivity of my people Israel and Judah, saith Jehovah; and I will cause them to return to the land that I gave to their fathers, and they shall possess it." Jeremiah does not mean, however, that Judah's path will be a rosy one. He tells them that difficult days are ahead. In vs. 5 God quotes the terror stricken words of His people as further disasters seem to be coming upon them. But He brings them a message of encouragement: "Fear thou not, O Jacob my servant, saith Jehovah; neither be dismayed." The nations that oppress them shall be destroyed; but Judah, though she suffer for her sins, will survive. We know that that promise has been fulfilled, but only a man of great faith could have believed it in Jeremiah's day. Do we have the same trust in God, when things are dark?

II. The Restoration of Her Moral and Spiritual Health—30:12-17

The key verse here is vs. 17. Judah had fallen because of her sins. She had brought her punishment upon herself. After all it would not be enough simply to bring the people back to the land which they loved. They needed to be healed, to be restored to full moral and spiritual health. Jeremiah realizes that that, too, is a part of God's plan for His people. He emphasizes the fact that it is God who will heal. Outside of Him there is no hope. As the margin of the RV translates it: "There is none to plead thy cause; for thy wound thou hast no medicines nor plaster. All thy lovers (the pagan deities whom they had courted, the human allies on whom they had depended) have forgotten thee; they seek thee not." But here as so often man's extremity is God's opportunity. It is just because Judah has no other hope that God comes to her aid: "I will restore health (literally 'new flesh') unto thee, and I will heal thee of thy wounds, saith Jehovah." Perhaps Jesus had these words in mind when he said: "They that are whole had no need of a physician, but they that are sick: I came not to call the righteous, but sinners." Mk. 2:17. Can God give us moral and spiritual health until we look to Him for help?

III. Re-establishment of Her National Life. 30:18-24

The key verses are 18-19. Jeremiah tells the people that God will not only enable them to return to their homes, and restore their moral and spiritual health, but that He will also re-establish their national life: "The city shall be builded upon its own hill, and the palace or mansion shall be inhabited after its own manner. And out of them shall proceed thanksgiving and the voice of them that make merry." Jeremiah is sometimes spoken of as "the weeping prophet." We saw in our first lesson on Jeremiah that this is a misnomer. No man ever met more bitter disappointments than Jeremiah, but it did not embitter him. Nor did he have a gloomy view of life. His God was a God that rejoiced in the merry-making of His people. He looked forward to the time when God would re-establish the city and when there would go up to heaven thanksgiving and the voice of them that make merry. Cf. also in this connection 31:4 and 13. But in Jeremiah's city of the future the pleasures of the people would not come between them and God. "Ye shall be my people, and I will be your God." Does this prophecy of Jeremiah also set before us one of the ideals of religion? Should Christianity encourage merry-making? Can Christians remain satisfied when portions of our population are starved for lack of legitimate pleasures? Has Christianity done its duty when it takes its stand again pleasures that in the end bring sorrow and disillusionment? Is Christianity a gloomy religion? Some people think so. Have they any justification?

IV. Reunion of the Twelve Tribes—31:1-26

The key verse here is 31:1, read with great emphasis on the "all." "At that time, saith Jehovah, will I be the God of all the families of Isreal, and they shall be my people." We remember of course that there were twelve sons of Jacob, and twelve tribes of Isreal that settled in the Promised Land. The kingdom was united under Kings Saul, David and Solomon. But seeds of division had existed from the first, jealousy between Ephraim the leading tribe of the North, and Judah the dominant tribe of the South. Dissatisfaction had grown apace during the reign of Solomon, and under the reign of his son, Rehoboam, the empire split into two smaller kingdoms, Isreal (sometimes called Ephraim) and Judah. The two nations had existed side by side for several hundred years, sometimes at peace, but most often at war with one another. Finally Isreal was carried captive in 722 B. C. Jeremiah is writing 150 years later, just after Judah had met a similar fate. Jeremiah feels that at last under the grace of God the old breach will be healed, and the people of God united. God will be the God of all the families of Isreal, and they shall be His (united) people. The first 22 verses of this chapter celebrate the return of Isreal (the northern nation) and their union with their estranged brethren. Jeremiah goes into raptures at the very thought, and his pen dances with his words. So long a time had passed that it might seem as though God had forgotten this section of His people. But it is not so, said Jeremiah: "Jehovah appeared of old unto me, saying, Yea I have loved thee with an everlasting love: therefore with loving kindness have I drawn thee. . . . Hear the word of Jehovah, O ye nations, and declare it in the isles afar off; and say, He that scattered Isreal will gather him and keep him as a shepherd doth his flock." And in verse 20 we have a beautiful picture of God longing after his wandering people as a Father would long after his prodigal son. We think sometimes of God casting His people off in anger, but Jeremiah tells us (and Hosea agrees) that it is the people who have first wandered away from God, and that it breaks His heart to see them go, and that He is always ready to receive them is only they will turn unto Him. But there must be some response on man's part, so Jeremiah exhorts Isreal: "Set thee up way-marks, make thee guide posts; set thy heart toward the highway, even the way by which thou wentest; turn again, O virgin of Isreal, turn again. . . ." In verse 23 Jeremiah turns to Judah. Judah and Isreal will dwell together in the land. "Upon this I awakened," writes Jeremiah, "and beheld; and my sleep was sweet unto me." Jeremiah dreams of the reunion of the people of God; it was a beautiful dream, as he himself confesses. It was realized in part, but only in part, because after all it was only a very small portion of Isreal that was united again to the Southern Kingdom. But we wonder here again if there is not set before us God's ideal for His people. We remember Jesus' prayer "that they may all be one—that the world may believe that thou didst send me." Jn. 17:21. We recall the exhortation of Paul. Give "diligence to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace. There is one body and one Spirit, even as also ye were called in one hope of your calling; one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all, who is over all, and through all, and in all." Eph. 4:3-6. Can we be satisfied any less than Jeremiah, or Paul, or our Master Himself until all the people of God are in some sense really one?

V. Renewal of Her Covenant Relations—31:27-40

1. This means first material prosperity, verses 27-28. The people who serve God shall prosper. This does not mean that the prosperity of the individual shall depend upon the piety of the individual. That is not in accordance with God's word or with experience. Nevertheless the people who serve God, other things being equal will advance materially.

2. It means individual responsibility. "This passage attacks a doctrine which based as it was on the primitive idea of the solidarity of the tribe or nation, was widely prevalent. If any member of the body corporate sinned his relatives were involved in his guilt and if his offense were against the tribe law or custom they were liable to punishment; if the offense were against another tribe or one of its members the whole body might be involved in a blood feud." As a matter of fact God in the Old Testament dealt largely with the nation; when individuals in the nation sinned, it was the nation that suffered. Doubtless there were some in Jeremiah's day who felt that they were suffering unjustly for the sins of their fathers, their fathers had eaten sour grapes, as the and the children's teeth were set on edge. No it is the law of life that children suffer for their fathers, and it will always be so; b announces that under the new covenant r God will make with his people religion will of individual relations with God—and so fa concerned each individual will bear his ow responsibility and none other.

3. This leads Jeremiah to speak of the Ne 31-34. A Covenant is an agreement or a c between man and man, or between God and New Covenant of which Jeremiah speaks with the Old Covenant which God had made at Sinai. The offer of that Covenant is rec 19:5-6. After God brought the children of Egypt he had said to them through Mose obey my voice and keep my covenant the mine own possession from among all peo the earth is mine; and ye shall be unto me priests and a holy nation." The people ha terms which God had offered, and it was t which lay at the basis of God's dealings with People throughout the Old Testament peri "Old Testament" means nothing more n "Old Covenant." But the Old Covenant ha fundamental requirements were recorded Commandments which He had delivered t before the Covenant was sealed (Ex. 20:1 Israel's inveterate disobedience had relea from His obligation. The old Sinaitic coven saw now annulled by the dissolution of Isr existence. But God gave Jeremiah to see days to come He would enter into a new c His people, a new kind of covenant, a c would provide against the failure that had predecessor and have permanent validity. Covenant would have three important char:

1. The Law written upon men's hearts. U Covenant the law had been written upon ta there had been a multitude of precepts w always demand the allegiance of the indivi Under the New Covenant the law would code, rather than an external one; it wou on the people's hearts. As Doctor Wells s in the heart has back of it to enforce it on emotions, convictions and will. A law th external imposed on one from without, divine or human, or only by custom, me partial." Jeremiah predicts that under the N men will do God's will naturally and s because it is their own will; it will become part of their personality, the law of their Doctor Peake says: "The inner life emoti tectual alike will be in full harmony w will." "To a baby or a young child the l negatives, a series of 'don'ts' which he do stand, and which he obeys from compulsion sary for the child's good, but as soon as wise parent will write the law in the child a matter of fact every real parent does try child with a set of principles which shall own principles, and which shall guide the chi specific problems through life. Jeremiah s is God's ideal for His children, an ideal realized under the New Covenant.

2. A Universal Knowledge of God. God time, "I will be their God and they shall b That had been the relationship which the had been designed to establish, but God's been thwarted by Isreal's disobedience. U Covenant it would be realized: "And they more every man his neighbor and every m saying, Know Jehovah, for they shall all k the least of them unto the greatest of them it is the personal first hand knowledge of C miah emphasizes. A great many people k by hearsay, they only know what other pe them; they have no independent knowledg no personal communion with God, no insight into His character or purpose or will. that under the New Covenant the time w every man will have a personal first hand God. Knowledge of God to Jeremiah se especially a knowledge of God's character, a ing of His will. Cf. 22:15-16; 9:24.

3. The Forgiveness of Sins. This to Jerem mental. "I will put my law upon their . . . they shall all know me . . . for their iniquity, and their sin will I remem Sin has been the great thing that has separ man. There can be no real covenant rela God and man, unless there is forgiveness somehow sin as a barrier is overcome. T nant said Jeremiah will be based on the sins.

We cannot read these words of Jeremiah in memory to that upper chamber where bread with his disciples and said: This c covenant in my blood. Lk. 22:20. Undoubted to the words of Jeremiah. In him, as the Hebrews expressly points out (8:713), the is established as Jeremiah had foretold.

Jeremiah describes the goal of the N How far has that goal been realized?

Do Christians find in God the forgiveness Do you? Read I John 1:9.

Do Christians have a personal knowledg insight into His purpose and will? Do gaining or losing in general religious ed can we advance the process? Just what when we teach men to know God? Is it about God? Or is it as Jeremia seemed knowledge of God's character that expr one's own personal conduct?

Do we know of any Christians of whom that the law is written in their heart, w situation instinctively in accordance with ciples? Is it true of us? How can we

How can parents, teachers train their instinctively as Christians? If this is the how should the Church (the minister in teacher in the church school, the adult the Y. P. s organization, the women's or men's organizations, etc.) seek to realize this is the ideal should we seek to make legislation? Should we remain satisfied with would the church attempt to lay down def every moral problem? Does this mean that is free to follow his own conscience? that his conscience is always right?

THOMPSON'S SUNDAY SCHOOL ARTICLE

An Appreciation

You will please find my check for six ment of subscription as per your state- also herewith enclosed. I regret hav- long in making payment, and I thank indulgence. I appreciate the value of highly, and especially Dr. E. T. Thomp- of the Sunday School lessons. At the the present calendar year I debated in ether or not to buy Peloubet's Notes y School Lessons, but I finally decided d Dr. Thompson's treatment of the les- et's Notes. So instead of getting Pel- I am taking the Standard. However, the Standard is good, cover to cover, kles" in the last page. They are a fine who have blue Mondays."

Rev. W. M. S., D.D.

REVIEW OF A BATCH OF NEW BOOKS

David H. Scanlon

nd Social Problems—Lingle. Timely.
—Lunn. Fair.
of a Parson—Sheppard, Scintillating.
nd Prayers in a World of Science —
ent.
an and German University—Thwing,
—Newton, Velvet.
ound of the Bible—Booth, Liberal.
World with a Dictaphone—Lunn, Poor.
s of Jesus—Butterick, Suggestive.
in Sodom—Kyle, Mild.
earch of God—Mather, Challenging.
We Get Our Bible—Robinson, Illumi-

Round Table—Jones, Readable. stles—Moffatt, Unique.
a Matter Most—Brown, Best.
C.

Men-of-the-Church

an Church in the United States

PURCELL, D.D., Executive Secretary
HENRY GRADY BUILDING
ATLANTA, GEORGIA

L. FAIRLY, D.D., Wilmington, N. C.,
Charge of Men-of-the-Church Department

CHURCH NIGHT PLAN WHICH WORKS

John L. Fairley

ing plan for a Church-Night Program at by St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, C., and is still in use in that church. The plan was outlined at a conference of rimen of Men's Work and the Field of the Department of Men's Work liked ell that they asked unanimously that d in the Men-of-the-Church column in ppers.

The Church

ew is a church of over five hundred resi- be. It is located on the extreme edge eration, making it somewhat difficult for of its various organizations to get to- etings. It also has many of the char- of the down-town church. The church has eazations: The Elders, Deacons, Church of-the-Church, Women's Auxiliary and op's League. Each of these organiza- te exception of the Elders and Deacons, ties of meetings. The Council, or Ex- mtee Meeting; the Group, Circle, Class tal Meeting; and the General Meeting mbers. The General Meeting is educa- pirational. The Group Meeting plans ection of the program for the month, and cil Meeting plans the program for the elders and Deacons, of course, perform ties.

The Problem

we three phases to the problem which rch, three things which we feel face re) First, there was the problem of too etis. Every night in the week and al- y ternoon there was a gathering at the leaders of the church were willing to tie to its work, but they felt, and rightly ys not right to be required to give so ny plan could be worked out whereby w could be done with less demand. on problem was the problem of attend- ery worker, not every very good worker, is gifted with so much of the sacrificial spirit, consequently many of the meetings would be very poorly attended.

The third problem was the problem of the Mid-Week Prayer Service. The attendance at this service was far short of what it should have been. The old type of service with songs, prayers and a sermonette failed to make its appeal to a large number of the church membership. It was felt that a new direction must be given to this mid-week meeting.

The Plan

With this purpose in mind the leaders of the church worked out together the following Church-Night Plan. The leaders were representatives from each organization and adult class in the church.

The plan is built around the mid-week prayer service. Each Wednesday evening is divided into three periods—6:30-7:45, 7:45-8:15, 8:15-9:00. The first period is a combined supper period and business session. The business may be taken up even before the meal has been finished, and this gives a longer period of time. The second period is always the prayer service, except on the fourth Wednesday evening. The third period begins after prayer meeting and adjourns at will. The groups meet as follows

- First Wednesday:
- 6:30-7:45—Senior-Young People Class Meetings.
- 7:45-7:15—Prayer Service.
- 8:15-9:00—Adult Class Meetings.
- Second Wednesday:
- 6:30-7:45—Council Meeting of Men-of-the-Church.
- Council Meeting of Church School.
- 7:45-8:15—Prayer Service.
- 8:15-9:00—Meetings of Elders and Deacons.
- Third Wednesday:
- 6:30-7:45—Workers' Conference.
- 7:45-8:15—Prayer Service.
- 8:15-9:00—Departmental Conferences.
- Fourth Wednesday:
- 6:30-8:30 — Men-of-the-Church Meeting. Group meetings held immediately after the General Meetings.
- 7:45-8:30—Woman's Bible Class.
- No mid-week Prayer Service.

You will note the absence of the Council Meeting of the Senior-Young People's League and the General Meeting of the League. The League only meets on Sunday evening at the regular young people's hour, and the Council meets on the first Sunday evening just before the League Meeting.

In the original plan the Woman's Auxiliary had a place, but it felt that since the women of the church could attend meetings more easily in the afternoon, that it would be better for them to continue under the old plan rather than fall in line with the new.

Carrying Out the Plan

The plan requires a supper meeting. Without this it would be impossible to carry out this type of plan. This will raise more questions and objections than perhaps any other part of it. The main questions are, Who serves the suppers? and, How much do they cost? The answers to these questions would, of course, vary in different churches.

In St. Andrew's the suppers are served by the following groups: On the first Wednesday night a committee interested in young people voluntarily accepted the responsibility for that supper. For the Council Meeting the Secretary of Social activity of the Woman's Auxiliary has charge. On the third Wednesday evening the different departments of the Church School prepare the supper for the Workers' Conference. And for the Men-of-the-Church supper, two adult women's classes alternate. In this way no one group is over-worked. It would be possible, of course, for the various circles of the Auxiliary to take these suppers in rotation.

The cost of the suppers vary with the size of the group to be served, and with the seasons of the year. Twenty cents per plate is the maximum cost limit. Some times they run one or two cents per plate over, and sometimes under. A very good supper was served the Men-of-the-Church recently at the small cost of fifteen cents per plate. This supper included—Beef hash with drop dumplings, hominy with gravy, hot rolls and butter, strawberries and tea-cakes, and coffee. The cost of Church-night suppers is placed in the budget and is borne by the whole church.

The attendance at the meetings is the responsibility of the leaders of the organizations. The President or Secretary is supposed to get in touch with each member of the group which is to meet and urge him to be presented at the meeting. I might add that this program is discontinued for three months during the summer. The groups still meet, of course, but not according to the Church-night Plan. Any system grows monotonous if continued too long without change.

The Success of the Plan

The only way to measure the success of the plan is by judging as to whether it meets the problems for which it was originated. We feel in St. Andrew's that it met the problems better than any other plan which we have ever tried. The membership of the church feel that Wednesday night is Church Night, and usually save that night for the church. There have been many suggestions made for improving the plan, but no one who is directly interested in any of the organizations has suggested giving it up.

The attendance at the various meetings has been unusually good. The attendance at the Council Meetings is rarely under 90 per cent, and sometimes there is 100 per cent. The attendance at the Workers' Conference runs over 90 per cent at nearly every meeting. About 35 per cent of the men attend the Men-of-the-Church meeting. This seems low, but is a rather high average if we compare the attendance in the various churches of the Assembly. The attendance of the Young People will run from 60 to 75 per cent. We feel that this is better than we could secure by any other method.

The plan has also increased the attendance at the Mid-week Prayer Service. It is true that not all who come to the church come in time for Prayer Meeting, or stay through for Prayer Meeting, but a large percentage of those who come, stay. This has given us a splendid group for the mid-week Prayer Service, averaging perhaps 50 per cent more than attended before we began the plan.

The best testimony to the success of the plan is the fact that the Church continues it year after year. Appropriations have just been made for the coming year, and we look forward to another successful year with its help.

HOW AMENDMENTS TO REPORTS OF STANDING COMMITTEES ARE MADE IN THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

This statement is printed to show how amendments are made in the transaction of business in the General Assembly.

A motion to amend a report is made by some commissioner. If after debating the amendment it is adopted, the mover is requested to place a written copy of his amendment in the hands of the Chairman. If it is placed in the hands of the Stated Clerk he places it in the hands of the Chairman of the Committee.

Standing Rule No. 9 reads: "The Chairman of each Committee shall also, after Assembly shall have acted on the report presented by him, incorporate therein at the proper place each amendment made by the Assembly to the report." The responsibility for incorporating amendments in a report is upon the Chairman of the Committee and not upon the Stated Clerk.

The Stated Clerk always requests that the copy of the report used by the Chairman shall be made to incorporate all amendments and that it be signed by the Chairman. This report is the copy used in printing the Minutes. The Stated Clerk has no authority to change the meaning." See Standing Rule No. 12 (4). He has no authority to put in amendments that are omitted by the Chairman.

The Stated Clerk gives very close attention to this matter but there are so many other matters to attend to that he cannot check up on all amendments made to reports, especially as amendments go into the hands of the Chairmen. He must depend upon the Chairman of the Committee for these changes in his report.

This is published to show why a certain amendment to a report in the 1928 Minutes was not printed. As Stated Clerk I have no copy of this amendment which was placed in the hands of the Chairman by me and I had no authority to put it in the report even if I had a copy of it.

J. D. Leslie, Stated Clerk.

DR. SWEETS AND HIS ANNUITY PLAN AGAIN

Rev. R. W. Jopling

Dr. Sweets in the Presbyterian Standard of May 1st, for about the nth time declares that I grievously misinterpret his annuity plan. Why does he not take up his annuity plan paragraph by paragraph and prove that I have misinterpreted it? All I ask is that you get a copy of his plan as originally sent out and read my criticisms with his plan before you. Then if you think I have misinterpreted it, I have nothing more to say. At any rate some of the ablest and most prominent men in our church have written me agreeing with me absolutely and commending me for my stand. I have said before and I say now that the provision of the plan, paragraph 1, which makes the size of the previous salary and the length of the previous service the determining factors in fixing a man's annuity without regard to his need, is un-Scriptural and wrong; that the provision in paragraph 8 of the plan which reduces the annuity a man shall receive if his strength fails before he serves for 35 years without regard to his need, is un-Scriptural and wrong; that the provision of the plan in paragraph 20, which cuts a man off from the benefits of the plan if the church of which he is pastor defaults in its payments to the plan without regard to his need, is unscriptural and wrong.

Now a word about those strong statements of mine: Remember not one of them is personal, all are not against him but against his annuity plan, that they were in private letters, and that the strongest of them were written in later letters in the effort to shock him out of his smug complacency that his plan was a counsel of perfection, after milder measures had failed. I hoped he would revise his plan so that no one would ever know that I had criticised it. Probably the strongest expression I used is this: "Such a course (i. e. the adoption of his plan by the church) is monstrous and in my judgment the church that will do this thing has apostatized from Jesus Christ." What is apostasy? The Standard Dictionary says it is, "A total departure from one's faith or religion. . . . desertion of faith or principles in general." What do the Scriptures give us as the ground and measure of the aid we should render to the distressed? Their need and that alone. Has not the annuity plan deliberately and totally turned away from the need as the basis of aid to our aged and infirm ministers and substituted in its place the length of the previous service and the size of the previous salary? It has. That seemed to me then and seems to me now apostasy from Jesus Christ, and in so far as the scope of this plan is concerned total apostasy. I stand by my guns.

Dr. Sweets will not charge me with wilful misrep- (Continue on page 14)

CHURCH NEWS

EVANGELISTIC APPOINTMENTS—MECKLENBURG PRESBYTERY

On the nomination of the Committee on Evangelism, Mecklenburg Presbytery has made the following assignments for meetings during the year:

Peachland, Rev. J. W. Stork; Polkton, Rev. J. M. Walker; Pageland, Rev. W. H. Johnston; Beulah, Rev. W. T. Smith; Salem, Rev. A. A. Walker; Bethlehem, Dr. C. W. Sommerville; Unionville, Rev. R. L. Patrick; Midland, Rev. A. S. Anderson; Marks Creek, Rev. A. F. Doty; Marston, Rev. J. W. Stork; McLean Memorial, Rev. W. T. Smith; Rourks Chapel, Rev. W. T. Smith; Six Mile Creek, Rev. A. A. Walker; Star, Rev. A. A. Walker; Turner, Rev. E. A. Dillard; Lee Park, Dr. I. E. Wallace; Banks, Rev. E. B. Lyerly; Oakboro, Rev. W. T. Smith; Locust, Rev. R. J. McIlwaine; Stanfield, Rev. W. T. Smith; Robertdel, Rev. C. E. White; Cameronian, Dr. W. B. McIlwaine; Brainard, Rev. A. A. Walker; Midway, Rev. J. B. Reily; Williams Memorial, Rev. A. A. Walker.

By action of Presbytery the initiative for all these meetings rests with the churches where the meetings are to be held. These busy pastors who have indicated their willingness to hold meetings under the direction of the committee will wait until the churches write them regarding the meetings; and it is desirable that the churches communicate with these men at early an date, as they might conclude that you do not want them, and make other arrangements. Write to them now.

A. A. Walker,
Chairman Committee on Evangelism.

DR. J. H. LUMPKIN IN FATAL ACCIDENT

We have received the following notice from Rev. T. B. Roddy, of Memphis, Tenn.:

I am writing to report the death of Rev. J. H. Lumpkin, D.D., Memphis, Tenn., and will mention some of the things about him that have come from the press and that I know personally.

Dr. Lumpkin, who was a great lover of horses recently secured a fine colt. On May 2nd he started out for a ride and near his home the horse became frightened, and before Dr. Lumpkin could jump to safety the terror-stricken animal reared and fell backward crushing his rider beneath him. He was taken to the hospital but it was discovered that the injuries were fatal. His hip and pelvic bones were broken and there were other internal injuries which caused his death on May 6th.

Dr. Lumpkin was born near Rome, Ga., May 3, 1859, on his father's plantation. He received his college education at Davidson, graduating with a B.A. Degree in 1883. He then studied two years at Columbia Theological Seminary and one year at Princeton. He was licensed as a minister in 1887.

The first church which he served as pastor was Richburg, S. C. He then went to Senatobia, Miss. He came to the Third Presbyterian Church, Memphis, now Chelsea Avenue, in 1891 and has been a member of the Memphis Presbytery ever since. He served as Secretary of Christian Education in the Presbytery until 1915. He was stated clerk and treasurer of the Presbytery for 30 years and stated clerk of the Synod of Tennessee.

He married Miss Amelia Finnie in 1895 and spent that year doing graduate work in Scotland. Mrs. Lumpkin died a few years ago.

Dr. Lumpkin was first a devout follower of Jesus Christ, and then he was a faithful member of the Presbyterian Church. He held most joyfully to the Calvinistic system of theology and was a great parliamentarian. Our hearts are grieved at his going, but heaven is all the richer with this humble, loving believer and servant who has been called higher "to the general assembly and Church of the first born."

THE REV. ARTHUR GRAY JONES, D.D., L.L.D.

The Rev. Dr. Arthur Gray Jones, since 1921 Professor of Systematic and Pastoral Theology in the Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary, died on Wednesday morning, May 1, 1929, at 4:30 o'clock, in San Antonio, Texas, after a long illness from heart trouble. The funeral services were held on the following day, under the auspices of the Seminary, whose entire faculty and student body attended, going over to San Antonio, eighty-five miles distant, in autos. The service was held in the First Presbyterian Church, of which he had been pastor, presided over by Rev. Dr. C. T. Caldwell, of Waco, the President of the Seminary Board, who delivered a most tender and impressive address, following one equally able and tender by Dr. Thos. W. Currie, President of the Seminary, and other parts of the service were rendered by Rev. Drs. B. P. Hill, pastor of the church, George Summey, Dr. Jones successor in the seminary, and Brooks I. Dickey. The Seminary professors and Austin pastors, and a number of well known ministers and church leaders of San Antonio, Dallas, and elsewhere, were the honorary pall-bearers, while in the great congregation paying tribute to Dr. Jones were scores of ministers from many parts of Texas, besides the student body of the seminary.

Dr. Jones had for many years been one of the most eminent and outstanding of Texas ministers, one of its foremost preachers and leaders. He was born in Memphis, Tenn., December 10, 1868, graduated at Arkansas College in 1888, at Union Seminary, Richmond, Va., in 1890, was ordained in 1890, by the Presbytery of Arkansas and installed as pastor of the Batesville Church, serving at the same time as a professor in Arkansas College, his Alma Mater. In 1895 he became a pastor of the great First Church of San Antonio, now the largest in our connection, there he continued, in a wonderfully able and constructive work, for 26 years. He then undertook the work in the Austin Seminary, on whose Board of Trustees and in the presidency of that Board he had served from the beginning of its history. His professorship was the crown of his useful life. Something over a year ago his health failed, but his great heart kept him close to the institution of his love, and while he resigned his active work last year, he was made Professor Emeritus of Theology, and was continued as active Professor of Pastoral Theology in the hope that he might be able, as he ardently longed to do, to give something of a special service to the students. He served the church as one of its its Committee on Revision of Church Law, was a delegate to the World's Alliance of Presbyterian and Reformed Church in 1916, and was five times a commissioner to the General Assembly. He received the degree of Doctor of Divinity from both Daniel Baker and Austin College, in 1903, and the degree of Doctor of Laws from Austin College in 1925 and from Arkansas College in 1922.

Dr. Jones was first married to Irma Jeanette Long, a daughter of the late Dr. Isaac J. Long, of Arkansas College. A son, Arthur, died in early manhood. He was later married to Anne McDugald Hicks, of San Antonio. She and an only sister, Mrs. M. H. Long, of Little Rock, survive him.

MRS. GEORGE F. ROBERTSON VERY ILL

Mrs. George F. Robertson, wife of Rev. George F. Robertson, of Mt. Holly, N. C., is very ill at the Presbyterian Hospital, Charlotte, N. C. All friends of Mrs. Robertson and her distinguished husband will regret to learn of her illness and will pray and hope for her speedy recovery.

Dr. Robertson is at leisure to supply for brethren who need help in times of temporary absence from their pulpits. Call or write him at Mt. Holly, N. C.

NORTH CAROLINA

Salisbury, First—Dr. James I. Vance, of Nashville, Tenn., opened his meeting in our Church May 13th, speaking each night during the week at 8 o'clock. Morning services were at 10 o'clock beginning Tuesday morning, May 14th. Dr. Vance will speak twice on Sunday, the 19th, at 11 and 8.

Mt. Gilead—Owing to the loss of old records both of the local church and Orange Presbytery by which it was organized, the date of organization could not be found when the new church was built two years ago, hence the delay in laying the cornerstone.

An old manual of Fayetteville Presbytery has been found giving date 1795, which the session has accepted as authentic, and arranged for the formal placing of the cornerstone Sunday, June 9 at 11 a. m., with appropriate exercises.

Rev. W. H. Frazer, D.D., moderator of Mecklenburg Presbytery will preach the sermon and Rev. Lacy L. Little, D.D., moderator of the Synod of North Carolina and former pastor will lay the stone.

Steele Creek—The Teacher Training School was held this year from May 5-10. The first session was held Sunday afternoon at 3:30; the other services through the week were held each evening at 8 o'clock. Mr. Claude T. Carr, Religious Director for the Synod of North Carolina was with us again teaching this year the unit, "The Pupil," by Dr. Luther A. Weigle. A special effort was made to see which department of the school would have the largest representation. It was a fine school.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Mayesville—Some weeks since the men of the churches of Concord and Salem (B. R.) met and decided to organize. J. M. Plowden is president; E. W. Dabbs, Jr., secretary; E. V. Harris, treasurer.

Last week the council met and decided to put on a public meeting at Concord Church May 10, at 8 p. m.

E. W. Dabbs is chairman of the Foreign Mission Department and has selected J. M. Plowden, Hugh Witherspoon, and McBride Dabbs to tell of the life and work of Missionary Morrison in the Congo.

Under the new pastorate of Rev. G. W. Irby these two churches have taken on new life. The Woman's Auxiliary of Salem has recently kalsomined and renovated the church, and the congregation is putting in a lighting plant.

APPALACHIA

Farner, Tenn.—The Lynn Bachman Memorial School began its commencement exercises on Sunday, April 14, with the baccalaureate sermon preached by the Rev. N. W. Kuykendall, pastor of the Mars Hill Presbyterian Church at Athens, Tenn. These commencement exercises will culminate with the class exercises on Friday evening, April 19. The Rev. S. M. Glasgow, D.D., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Knoxville, Tenn., will deliver the class address. This year's graduating class is composed of six members, two of whom are boys.

The Presbytery of Knoxville will convene at Farner Church at 11:00 a. m., Tuesday, April 30. The opening sermon will be preached by the retiring moderator in the local church. The remaining sessions will be held in the new chapel of the Bachman Memorial School and Home. This chapel is a gift to the Presbytery of Knoxville in memory of Mrs. Mary

Bouton by her children and grandchildren, Tuesday, May 1, at 11 a. m. the dedicatory this chapel will be conducted by Presby

Members of the Presbytery will be during their stay at Farner in the dormitory Lynn Bachman Memorial School and the Waverly Bachman Memorial Home. Home Mission Committee has been called the school and home on Friday evening, 7:30 o'clock. The community, workers, children look forward with pleasure to of entertaining the Presbytery of Knox attendance is anticipated.

ALABAMA

Mobile—Government Street Church—A communion service in April the pastor announced names of 25 persons received during quarter. Our reports recently sent to Presbytery of Mobile showed a total members 88 persons having been received during the quarter. The total gifts amounted to $54,074.

Presbytery of Tuscaloosa met in Oxford April 9. Present, 13 ministers and 16 opening sermon was preached by Rev. J. H. Wardlaw, retiring moderator, from John 20:20. Wardlaw was elected moderator. A special session was set aside the opening evening for a special program. Rev. R. E. Fulton was received clerk and Rev. R. L. Benn permanent clerk for three years. Judge S. F. Hobbs addressed the Assembly, explaining the Ministers' Annuity which Presbytery thanked him. The plan to raise the Fund was approved. Presbytery pointed a committee on Presbytery's Work the work of Home Missions, Stewardship, Young People's Work, Men's Work, Christian Education and Ministerial Relief. Resolutions to the Assembly were adopted. The Assembly to take steps to reduce the number of theological seminaries. The other resolutions to lay on the Presbyteries the duty of seeking out suitable young men and women and directing them to Stillman training, that the number of ministers among them that people may be increased. The plan was made for the Presbyterial session: Rev. C. E. Green, principal, and McDougall, alternate; subject, "The Christ." Rev. J. D. McPhail was appointed to discuss on the State of Religion meeting. Boligee was selected for the next session. R. E. F.

FLORIDA

Jacksonville—Alford Memorial—The last Sundays of March were great days for the Alford Memorial. The second Sunday was devoted to the Sunday School and Church. Twelve accepting Christ. Sixty-nine signed name cards and four transfer cards.

The last Sunday was a record breaking service. The largest in the history of the church and many occupied the balcony. Received by letter and by statement and confession.

The Presbytery of Athens met at Athens April 16, 1929. There were present 16 ruling elders. Rev. T. D. Johnston was moderator.

Mr. L. B. Gibbs of the Cornelia church, Samuel A. Cartledge of Athens Central, and others of the Senior class of Columbia Seminary were present.

Rev. H. R. Foster was received from the Presbytery of Birmingham, and arrangements for his installation at Commerce and Hebron.

Rev. P. D. Miller was released from Rabun County to become Educational Director of the Home Missions.

A spirit of optimism was manifested in all of our churches are supplied. We have spent more money on our Home Missions than in any previous year.

Next meeting at Mt. Vernon. S. J. Cartledge

LOUISIANA

Clinton—Silliman College celebrated its 75th Day Festival on Saturday, May 4. The celebration and dramatic art departments original pageant depending upon pantomime and dances and costumes, for its 75th anniversary. The cast included about twenty-five in addition to the May Queen and her attendants. Mary Lou Douglass, Ethel, La., was Miss Lelia Haynes, Clinton, La., maid of honor. Estelle Clark, Cuero, Tex., senior maid of honor. Gayden, Gurley, La., junior maid of honor. Silliman is an annual event of long standing and its attractiveness was never more in evidence than this year. The beautiful campus and stately buildings of this 76 year old Presbyterian college led to the staging of the beautiful outdoor pageant. Visitors were present from far and near and their generous in their praises of the May Queen. L. E. F.

MISSOURI

The Presbyteria of Upper Missouri met at Eastminister Church, April 16, 17, Kansas. The Rev. J. Layton Mauze, D.D., was moderator.

and Rev. H. T. Guthrie was elected temporary pastor. There were 18 ministers present and 16 ruling elders. Received the Rev. A. H. Seargent from the city of Paris. Received the Rev. J. D. Campbell to the Presbyterian West Lexington. Rev. J. Layton Mauze, preached the Presbyterian sermon on the subject "Drifting." The next meeting will be held in Lawson, Mo., on April 17, 1929.

Johnston Robertson, S. C.

Presbytery of St. Louis met in Troy, Mo., on April 29. There were present 12 ministers and 27 elders. Officers, Rev. L. A. Van Patten, moderator; Rev. D. C. Young, clerk.

On L. Daughtery, a member of Central Presbytery, was received under the care of the Presbyterian candidate for the Gospel ministry.

That the executive committee keep their records each year for the accrediting of all churches by the hands of the local treasurers on or before March 31.

Overtures—The amendment to the Book of Church Order was declined (at the fall meeting) by the Synod. The Synod assented to the union of the United Presbyterian Church, provided a workable plan be submitted. (This also was declined at the fall meeting.)

The Annuity Fund was placed on the agenda for the fall meeting, and a committee was appointed to investigate and report on the feasibility of the plan.

For the fall meeting was not selected.

Walter M. Langtry, S. C.

OKLAHOMA

Oklahoma—The First Church of this city privileged to hear Dr. S. L. Morris, its secretary of Home Missions, preach Sunday. We were very happy to have Dr. Morris and the entire congregation enjoyed his sermon. We feel that his visit has been a blessing in more than one way and hope that we will see him again when our Church is finished. Progressing rapidly on the Church and we expect to occupy it by June the first. This will be a blessing for we will move out of the court house to a house of God. The people are more active every day and the work is growing in all directions, especially the women's auxiliary. They are looking forward to the Durant Presbyterian Church which meets at Holdenville April 23rd. That is only ten miles from here and the auxiliary will attend in a body. Durant Presbyterian will on the 16th and our Church was represented by Rev. E. G. Beckman, our pastor, and Rev. Miller. Our Church extended an invitation to the Durant Presbyterian to meet with us this fall and it was accepted. New members are being added to the Church and the future seems brighter every day.

Irving Place, Tulsa—The prospects for our new church are brighter than ever before. We have our manse for Church and Manse, besides several lots of both money and material. We are now in our present place of worship and hope to have a temporary building, if not a permanent building on our lots. A children's home has been completed near us and in another place we expect to have them worshipping with us. A great work to be done in Irving Place and the prayers of all.

C. N. Medlin, Pastor.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Church of Washington—This Church is glad to welcome to its pulpit Rev. Dr. W. W. Baltimore, who preached for us twice on Sunday in the absence of our pastor, Rev. Dr. Taylor, who was at Annapolis that day, and the midshipmen of the Naval Academy. We invited to attend Church Sunday morning at the chapel, where Dr. Taylor preached to a number of these young men, or else in some of their own selection. At night he preached at the Memorial Hall, under the auspices of the "Association," an organization of their own, from the Y. M. C. A. The attendance at the luncheon.

A. H.

Church of Washington—Wednesday night, a large congregation gathered in the lecture hall for Dr. Marion Hull, a noted Bible teacher. His subject was the 23rd Psalm, on which he preached with great animation, giving us some entirely new insights gathered from his own study of the Bible. On Sunday morning, April 7, six young people (most being nearly 15) were received on profession and one of them was baptized. This continued to flow from the S. S. into the Church, as a result of the teaching received there and the result of the communion class. During 1928-29, eighty-six were received.

On April 11, the annual congregational meeting was held to hear the reports to Presbytery. Contributions received, $2,637. Home Missions (As-1921; Presbytery's, 1026; Synod' 1646) $4193. Education and Ministerial Relief, $715. Or-1921, $657.

The congregation then elected two elders and six deacons as follows in the Bulletin of April 21: "As follows: W. L. Fulton and Professor Addison Hogue.

As deacons, Mr. William Alexander, Dr. Harold B. Hertford, Mr. O. Leland Hunt; Mr. J. E. Reid, Mr. Parker S. Rodeheaver, and Mr. A. C. Rose."

Yesterday morning a little girl was presented by her parents for baptism.

The pastor, Rev. Dr. Jas. H. Taylor, is giving a series of lectures at the prayer service Thursday evenings on the Reformation Period. A. H.

VIRGINIA

The Presbytery of Winchester met in Winchester, Va., on Tuesday, April 23, 1929. There were present 26 ministers and 27 elders.

Officers—Rev. H. W. Shannon, moderator; Rev. J. M. Carr, reading clerk. The Rev. J. W. Wither-spoon was elected permanent recording clerk.

Received—Rev. Jonathan Edwards, from West Hanover Presbytery, pastor-elect of the Woodstock Church, to be installed May 5.

Licensed—Mr. H. M. Crim, pastor-elect of the Strasburg Church, to be ordained and installed May 19; Mr. J. Beaty Smith, pastor-elect of the Gorman-ia and Blaine Churches, to be ordained and installed at a time fixed by the commission.

Pastoral Relations Dissolved—The relations of Rev. T. K. Mowbray, with the Ivanhoe and Wardensville Churches. Mr. Mowbray resigned on account of his health, and was granted leave to labor outside the bounds of Presbytery.

Overture—Opposing organic union with the United Presbyterian Church until there is a fuller understanding and agreement on matters of administration and policy.

Presbyterial Sermon—This meeting, by Rev. S. R. Diehl, on "The Mission of the Church;" next meeting, by Rev. G. G. Sydnor, on "The Security of the Believer."

Home and Foreign Missions—A popular meeting was held in the interest of both causes, with an address by Rev. Z. E. Lewis, formerly of Mexico.

Union Theological Seminary—Celebrating the centennial of the Winchester Presbytery Scholarship in the Seminary, addresses were made by Rev. W. C. Campbell, D.D., of Roanoke Va., and Rev. B. R. Lacy, D.D., President of the Seminary.

Dr. Henry Sweets—Presbytery, by a rising vote, adopted a resolution in appreciation of the long and faithful and efficient service of Dr. Sweets as Secretary of Christian Education and Ministerial Relief.

Next Meeting—Piedmont, W. Va., September 24, 1929, at 8 P. M.

J. A. McM., Stated Clerk.

TEXAS

The Presbytery of Brownwood met in San Angelo, Texas, April 16, 1929, and the opening sermon was by Rev. Malcom Black. There were present nine ministers and eleven ruling elders.

Officers—Jack McGregor, moderator; Rev. Guy Davis, temporary clerk.

At an adjourned meeting, Rev. R. M. Hammock was received from the Presbytery of Ouachita. At a called meeting, the pastoral relation between Rev. N. P. Wilkinson and the Comanche Church was dissolved and he was dismissed to the Presbytery of Western Texas. At the fall meeting, Presbytery gave its advice and consent to the proposed amendment as to the Permanent Judicial Commission.

Presbytery favors the contemplated union with the U. P. Church if careful and prayerful consideration shows it is for the best and a great desire for it is manifested in both Churches.

Rev. J. O. Reavis, D.D., made an address on Foreign Missions. Sessional reports show an active support of every department of Church work and a considerable net increase in the Church membership of the Presbytery. Presbytery has three candidates for the ministry.

The Presbyterial sermon was by Rev. B. B. Hestor on the "Personality of the Holy Spirit."

San Angelo is a great and growing city and its growing Church increased the pastor's salary from $3,600 to $4,500.

Next stated meeting at Ballinger, Texas, 8 p. m., September 17, 1929.

Malcom Black, S. C.

WEST VIRGINIA

Charleston—On April 21st, Rev. C. R. Garrison, Superintendent Home Missions, Kanawha Presbytery, organized a Sunday school at Nitro, W. Va. A good hall was secured for the work, chairs and piano bought and a beautiful pulpit was donated by the Morgan Lumber Co., of Charleston, W. Va. The enrollment of the Sunday school numbers 25 with every prospect of doubling that in the near future.

Mr. L. A. Hammel was elected superintendent, Mr. T. S. Sutler, assistant superintendent, Miss Louise Hart, secretary and treasurer. Miss Margery Melton, pianist, and Miss Halcyon Melton, violinist. Mr. L. A. Edwards, teacher of adult class, Miss Hart, young people, Mrs. Mack Clark, juniors, Mrs. Nancy McKinney, superintendent primary department, Mrs. L. A. Hammel, beginners.

Preaching services will be held every Sunday morning and evening. Announcement was made last Sunday that the ladies would meet on May 2nd at the home of Mrs. L. A. Hammel to organize a woman's auxiliary.

The Home Missions Committee has secured the services of Mr. Payne Brown, a student of Union Seminary, Richmond, Va., to preach at Nitro throughout the summer months. Mr. Brown will begin his work at Nitro on May 26th.

C. R. Garrison,

Supt., H. M. Kanawha Presbytery.

St. Albans—The First Church enjoyed a gracious season of revival recently under the preaching of Rev. McKendree R. Long, of Statesville, N. C., assisted by his song leader, Mr. J. Frank Harbin, and his advance agent, Mr. Powell J. Charlton. Prior to the coming of the evangelist, under the leadership of Mr. Charlton, the town was organized into zones, eight in all, and prayer meetings were held in each of these each evening for a week before the meetings began. These were continued until the last day of the meetings, and to this great volume of fervent prayer can be attributed the signal blessings received. Mr. Long was with us from February 24th to March 13th. Great crowds heard his message; Christians were revived and encouraged to give themselves to personal work for the unsaved; fifty-one were received into the membership of this church alone, of whom forty-six came by confession of faith, besides those who united with other Churches; and two more mission Sunday schools are being organized largely as a result of the meetings. To God, who heard and answered our prayers, we give all the glory.

J. E. Cousar, Pastor.

KENTUCKY

The Presbytery of Ebenezer met in Augusta, Ky., on April 9. There were eight ministers and eight elders present. Ruling Elder Robt. Meter of the Parish Church was elected moderator. Rev. T. D. Brandenburg was elected temporary clerk. Presbytery received Rev. T. Duke Williams from the Presbytery of Louisville. The sermon was preached by Rev. A. O. Price, of Catlettsburg. Mr. Frank D. Van Winkle, 221 W. Third St., Cincinnati, Ohio, ruling elder in the Madison Avenue Church, Covington, was elected Central Treasurer of Benevolences to succeed Mr. Chas. H. Doermann, who died in January. Presbytery endorsed the Ministers Annuity Fund in principle, and will take up the question for full discussion at the Fall meeting.

The amendment to the Book of Church Order was adopted at the Fall Meeting but not reported.

The manse of the Clintonville Church, which was dissolved some years ago, was sold and the money given to the Anchorage Orphanage. The sum was $1,550.75.

Rev. J. V. Logan, D.D., was re-elected chairman of Presbytery's Committee on Home Missions. Mr. Garrett Jefferson of Paris was retained as Secretary of Stewardship.

Presbytery took the following action concerning the Hopewell Church. "The Hopewell Church was ordered to appear before Presbytery at its Fall Meeting to show cause why its name should not be dropped from the roll of Presbytery for insubordination to the authority of Presbytery in retaining J. Archer Gray as pastor."

At the evening session of Presbytery on Wednesday, Rev. T. Duke Williams was installed as pastor of the Augusta Church by the commission appointed by Presbytery. Rev. J. W. Clotfelter, presided and preached, Rev. Benj. Andres delivered the charge to the pastor, and Rev. J. V. Logan to the people. Fall Meeting of Presbytery will be held at the Sharon Church.

Rev. Benjamin Andres, S. C.

Bevier Church, Muhlenburg Presbytery—Dr. A. H. Atkins, pastor of this Church, conducted a two weeks meeting here recently which was a means of doing much good. While there was only one addition to the Church, there were many who reconsecrated themselves to the service of God.

The young people seemed especially interested in the meeting. During the last two Sundays the Sabbath School has very much improved. The membership of the Church has doubled during the last year. The Church is in a very prosperous condition. The attendance at the weekly prayer meeting has increased very much. The pastor of the church and many others are very much encouraged.

Bowling Green—The First Church, of which Rev. Geo. W. Cheek is pastor, has just closed one of its best Church years in many years. The financial situation was much better, and the Church has experienced a healthy net growth in membership, and every organization is wideawake. A church loyalty campaign was launched by the pastor for the month of March, having as its ultimate aim a revival of interest among Church members and personal Evangelism. This special program culminated on Easter Sunday, at which time 27 new members were received into the Church, five letter, 22 on confession of faith, with ten baptisms.

The Department of Stewardship in the Men's Club, under the leadership of Mr. E. P. Harris, Chairman of the Board of Deacons, sponsored the March Stewardship Program. At the regular March meeting of the men, who invited their wives as guests at lunch, the young people put on a play, depicting most of the problems encountered in the usual Every Member Canvass. More than 100 were present, and the best educational program on Stewardship known to this church was witnessed. Correspondent.

YOUNG PEOPLE

(Continued from page 5)

What Would You Do?

Now, if you should visit a Japanese home, Where there isn't a sofa or chair, And the hostess should say, "Take a seat, sir, I pray," Now, where would you sit? Tell me, where? And should they persuade you to stay there and dine, Where knives, forks, and spoons are unknown, Do you think you could eat with chop-sticks of wood? And how might you pick up a bone? And then, should they take you a Japanese drive In a neat little "rickshaw" of blue, And you found, in Japan, that your horse was a man, Now what do you think you would do?

Entrance to Montreat

By Rev. J. G. Garth

IN the center of a cove made by Black Mountains, and the Blue Ridge, ranges of the Appalachian chain, lies Montreat, the summer assembly of the Presbyterian Church of the United States. The lofty Seven Sisters tower over the valley where the settlement is located, while they also serve as vestibule attendants for the higher peaks of Grey Beard, Pinnacle and Mt. Mitchell, which are reached by trails and hardsurfaced roads leading from the lower valleys. As the mountains are round about Jerusalem, so these mighty elevations surround the lovely lake, and the buildings and grounds of Montreat, making it a retreat indeed, whose quiet coves and wooded slopes invite the soul and body to rest and refreshment in God's hallowed recesses.

HISTORY OF MONTREAT

Here many years ago, in 1897, an organized religious association began to make this hidden cove a rendezvous for wearied workers. The songs of Zion echoed among the Seven Sisters, and prayer and conference about Christian life and service brought hundreds to the place from all over America. As the popularity of Montreat, a contraction, of course for Mountain Retreat, began to spread, and the possibilities of such conferences for religious life and work opened before the enthusiastic attendants, the interest of John S. Huyler, of New York, the late capitalist and candy maker, was enlisted in the support of a place where moral and religious forces might work out unmolested a community of people who loved the Lord and his cause, and who would resist the encroachments of public evils that affect cities and villages.

At last in 1905, Dr. J. B. Howerton, of Charlotte, N. C., got an option from Mr. Huyler for $50,000, and it was proposed to establish a permanent religious and educational institution. By the assiduous efforts of Doctor Howerton and his friends, Montreat was secured for the Presbyterian Church.

The Association formed to promote this enterprise had a varying history of struggle and success. The first great step was the meeting of Mr. Huyler's generous offer to cancel all obligations if the church and its friends would raise the $25,000 necessary to put the institution on its feet. Sometimes it seemed the cause was lost, and then hope would revive. At last in 1911, Rev. R. C. Anderson, D.D., offered to be a committee of one to raise the amount and clear the debt.

Doctor Anderson's offer was accepted, and through his perseverance the debt which now was $49,000, was lifted and Montreat began its new phase, in which it has reached its present prosperity. As one looks at the beauty of the landscape and the vista of the mountains, and then at the stalwart structures of Montreat, it is well to let the mind drift back through the trying years that have marked the development of the scheme. It is the result of faith, prayer, effort and vision, and too much cannot be said of the part played by the present president and his sympathetic and generous helpmeet, Mrs. Anderson.

Anderson Auditorium

MONTREAT

Hostess To T

Montreat, North

TOPOGRAPHY OF MONTREAT

Montreat is located in the heart of the Blue Ridge Mountains of Western North Carolina, a section known as "The Land of the Sky," famed for its beauty of scenery and health of climate, eighteen miles south of Mount Mitchell, the top of Eastern America, fourteen miles east of the famous Biltmore Estate, eighteen miles east of Asheville, two miles from Black Mountain station on the Southern Railway and in the center of the population of the Southern Presbyterian Church. Its grounds, six miles in length and three miles wide, embrace about four thousand acres of virgin forest, the entire watershed of the various streams forming the headwaters of the south fork of the Swannanoa River. The Blue Ridge and Black Mountains unite and form a vast cove of rare and varied beauty, the ridge tops, in circular form, adorned with towering mountain peaks, making the boundary of the Montreat grounds. The great forest abounds in a countless variety of trees, shrubbery, flowers, song birds, crystal streams and water falls; all of which combine to make Montreat one of the most picturesque and beautiful places in America.

The altitude varies from 2,400 feet at the entrance gate to 5,600 at the top of Greybeard Mountain. The average temperature the year around is 55 degrees, the three summer months average 70 degrees, which altitude and temperature, with the dense foliage of the vast forest, afford as fresh and pure air as man ever breathed, and as pure and delicious water as nature ever gave. The late Rev. E. O. Guerrant, D.D., used to say: "God has done everything He could to make the place delightful and healthful."

A striking analogy between the site of Montreat and that of ancient Jerusalem, was drawn by the late beloved president of Union Seminary, W. W. Moore, who had a home at Montreat. He said:

"In some respects Montreat reminds us of ancient Jerusalem. To begin with, Jerusalem is in the mountains, and Montreat is in the mountains. Jerusalem is 2,600 feet above the level of the sea; the elevation of Montreat is exactly the same. Jerusalem is on the watershed of Palestine, being situated on the top of the mountain range which constitutes the backbone of the country, so that the waters to the East of it flow into the Mediterranean. So Montreat stands on the great watershed of Eastern America; the waters to the East of Brushy flowing into the Atlantic, the waters to the West flowing into the Gulf of Mexico.

"It is nearly in the geographical center of the Southern Presbyterian Church and is easily reached by rail from every part of our territory. The Presbyterians were the first to establish such a religious resort in this region, and being the first they secured the choicest and largest site, some 4,500 acres, covered with primeval woods and threaded by crystal streams, a vast green cove stretching five or six miles from the entrance gate to the crest of the Blue Ridge. With such a site in this 'Land of the Sky,' pronounced by the United States Government to be the most salubrious region of Eastern America, and with this delicious tonic climate, Montreat would have been one of the most desirable health resorts in the land, apart altogether from the educational and religious advantages which it offers."

God has graciously put into the hands of the Southern Presbyterian Church this wonderful place and has providentially led His people here for their assemblies as He led His people to ancient Jerusalem.

PHYSICAL DEVELOPMENT

Montreat is a municipality having its own laws and government, with over two hundred and seventy-five private homes, built on lots conveyed to individuals subject to the rules and regulations. It has its own water, sewer, light and telephone system. It has ten miles of gravel road, one frame hotel, a cafeteria and a large modern, fireproof stone hotel almost completed. It has a store of general merchandise, a meat market, a drug store, a post office, public garages, a book store, a community building, which is used for public school purposes, library and community meetings. It has about a dozen boarding houses, Chapman Home for Ministers, the North Carolina Home for Ministers, the William Brearley Home for Ministers of South Carolina, Geneva Hall, the General Assembly's Home for foreign and home missionaries and other church workers, the L. Richardson Building for the Foreign Mission Committee, a building for the use of the Assembly's Committee of Publication, Home Missions and Christian Education, Camp Campbell for the First Presbyterian Church of

Above is a view
In the left center,
being used for the Assembly of 1929
water sports as w
The lake is form
of Greenville, S. C.
Committee Buildi meetings. There view of the lake
lake, is not show

The picture prese derful panorama and loftier height
the giant of the glass would show hardsurfaced roa

BEAUTIFUL al Assembly

6-23, 1929

Fireplace in Assembly Inn

Asheville, the Winsborough Building for women, the Anderson Auditorium, the Men's Club Building, the Girl's Club Building, the Boys' Club Building and a handsome stone gateway and lodge. It also has a playground for children, an athletic field, tennis courts, volley and basketball grounds, a beautiful lake for boating, swimming and water sports and many trails through the mountains for hiking.

There is no private financial interest in any of the public utilities, buildings or grounds. All of these are controlled by the Church and solely in interest of the Church.

Montreat enjoys all the conveniences and comforts of a modern town, plus the many special advantages, conveniences and attractions afforded by the conferences, summer school, Camp Montreat and otherwise.

ASSEMBLY INN

Among the developments of Montreat, perhaps the outstanding construction has been Assembly Inn, the magnificent stone hotel, built of rubble stone, steel and concrete, which stands on the western shore of the lake. An editorial by Col. Wade H. Harris, of the Charlotte Observer, of Charlotte, N. C., gives a good description of the building:

"The structure is located high on the mountain side, overlooking the lake, auditorium, memorial buildings, homes and institutions of Montreat to the east, a gem in stone work and of architectural lines of remarkable beauty. People journey to Europe to see structures and settings of much less imposing characteristics. The hotel is entirely composed of stone, steel and plate glass. There is not enough wood about it from which a toothpick might be carved and in design and finish there is no match for it in America.

The enterprise is neither individual nor corporate, it is associational and can be exploited as a great state denominational enterprise. It was conceived several years ago by Dr. R. C. Anderson, who has persisted in his notion that it should be progressively developed as money in hand provided, so it is opened to the institutional uses free from debt. Another notion of Doctor Anderson's was that it should stand for native labor. With the exception of the slate flooring, donated by Tennessee and laid in mosaic pattern, all the material for the building was provided by surrounding mountains.

It is the character of this material that makes this hotel unique in architectural finish. The outer walls are rounded stone, but it is the interior that develops the surprise. On the mountain side a quarry of white stone of flint-like hardness and profusely set with mica was developed and this material was used in the decorative effect of the interior, the central piece being a mantel of noble proportions. This, with the walls and pillars seem set in broken marble, glittering with the many angled beams from the mica flakes, the effect at night with electric lights turned on being of an entrancing kind. The mica studded stone gives the interior an effect of striking brilliancy, this being heightened by the large spread of surface in the spacious lobby and dining hall. One has somewhat of a feeling of being in an enchanted bower. It is a safe proposition that people dispersing

Since complete information about these conferences may be obtained by writing for a folder covering all these meetings, with dates, leaders, events, and all necessary information we will not attempt to supply these facts here, except to list the conventions and conferences of this summer. This folder may be obtained by writing Mountain Retreat Association, Montreat, N. C.

Six meetings are scheduled, seven if you count the C. E. Convention, which is to take place the Young People's Conference. This convention will be held at Montreat, June 26 to 29. The first denominational conference will be in the charge of Doctor Sweets and his committee on Ministerial Education and Relief, at which time leaders of our schools and colleges will assemble for discussion of problems of education both in church schools and others. This conference meets July 3-7. Next comes the Woman's Auxiliary Training School, July 10-19. The presidents of the Auxiliary will hold a meeting on July 10. Credit classes will be taught by Mrs. S. H. Askew, Mrs. Shawhan, and others.

The Montreat Leadership Training School which attracts leaders in all departments of church work will continue from July 19 to August 2, and classes will be taught by experts in all line. Dr. E. B. Paisley will be dean of the school. During this school conferences will be held by the Young People's Advisory Council and the Christian Workers' Association.

The General Missions Conference will last from Sunday, August 4, till Wednesday, August 14. Dr. W. M. Anderson, of Dallas, Texas, will teach Bible classes at this conference, and talks will be made by Home and Foreign Missionaries.

The Men's Conference will extend for six days, August 15-20, and Doctors Speer and Weir of the U. S. A. Presbyterian Church will be the leading speakers. The Bible conferences, August 18-25, will end the season, and Dr. Geo. W. Truett, of Dallas, Tex., who captured the Montreat audiences last year will be the leading speaker.

We are glad to quote the words of Doctor Truett about Montreat. This distinguished pastor of the First Baptist Church, at Dallas, and president of the Southern Baptist Convention says:

"You have here in this Montreat Assembly, one of the most inspiring and challenging enterprises of its kind to be found in all the world. Your location is ideal, and you are manifestly releasing spiritual influences here, which under God's gracious blessing, are going forth to bless the South, the Nation, and even the whole earth. In all my visits, through the years, to various Summer Assemblies, I have seen nothing anywhere to excel what you have here at Montreat.

"Gifts made for the furtherance of such enterprises are, in my judgment, among the most telling and far reaching gifts that one can make. In such a gathering as this, untold lives are informed and inspired and enlisted for the highest and best living.

"The glory of life is to link it with great and worthy causes. Where gifts are made to a cause like this, the givers are partners in all the blessings that flow forth from the enterprise. Remember the last sentence that was penned by the immortal D. L. Moody: 'If God be your partner, make your plans large.'"

Capman home. Inn, which is of the General the scene of and driveways, ham's family, es Assembly's rms above for eding a restful e east of the

from the hotel the coming season will spread its fame to all parts of the country.

What adds to the credit of the whole affair is the fact that the hotel, from foundation to finish, was constructed by native labor and the skill manifested in setting the stone work is eloquent tribute to the talent of the people of the mountains called in by Doctor Anderson to fulfill the contract. The hotel is given the name Assembly Inn and it constitutes North Carolina's newest and most imposing show place."

MONTREAT SUMMER CONFERENCES

Of course the secret of Montreat's place in the love and attachment of the Southern Presbyterians is the two months of summer conferences held here, and which draw men, women and children from all sections of the Church, to learn and draw inspiration for Christian life and service.

Rowing on Lake Susan

WOMANS AUXILIARY

The Woman's Auxiliary, Presbyterian Church, U. S.
278-277 Field Bldg., Saint, Louis, Missouri.

SYNODICAL PRESIDENTS OF THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

- Alabama—Mrs. J. F. Hooper, 610 Mabry St., Selma, Ala.
- Appalachia—Mrs. F. B. Kegley, Wytheville, Va.
- Arkansas—Mrs. Walter Wilson, Arkadelphia, Ark.
- Florida—Mrs. W. G. Thompson, Jr., 3215 Obispo St., Palma Ceia Park, Tampa, Fla.
- Georgia—Mrs. E. G. Abbott, 1315 Eberhart Ave., Columbus, Ga.
- Kentucky—Mrs. H. P. Cooper, Lebanon, Ky.
- Louisiana—Mrs. Charles L. Bodin, Box 79, M. R. A., Lake Charles, Louisiana.
- Mississippi—Mrs. J. S. Hicks, Holly Springs, Miss.
- Missouri—Mrs. Walter Craven, 223 Frances St., Excelsior Springs, Mo.
- North Carolina—Mrs. G. V. Patterson, Gastonia, N. C.
- Oklahoma—Mrs. L. Fountain, care O. P. C., Durant, Okla.
- South Carolina—Mrs. W. O. Brownlee, Due West, S. C.
- Tennessee—Mrs. Ross Woods, R. D. No. 4, Lewisburg, Tenn.
- Texas—Mrs. J. W. Culver, Texas Military Academy, San Antonio, Texas.
- Virginia—Mrs. C. R. Vaughan, 319 Mountain Ave., Roanoke, Va.
- West Virginia—Mrs. J. McD. Lacy, Elkins, W. Va.

MRS. WINSBOROUGH'S RETIREMENT

The Committee on Woman's Work is sure that the women of the Auxiliary will be interested in the following resolution offered by a Committee of which Rev. W. R. Dobyns, D.D., was the Chairman and adopted by the Committee on Assembly's Work at its recent meeting in Nashville:

"Upon the occasion of the retirement of Mrs. W. C. Winsborough as Secretary of the Department of Woman's Work the Committee on Assembly's Work record their sincere regret that she is to retire from this place of importance and influence.

"To Mrs. Winsborough pre-eminently is due the credit for organizing and perfecting the most effective piece of work perhaps, ever accomplished by any denomination—the devotion of the women to the Lord's work in organized capacity.

"It has been her inspiring leadership, her far-reaching vision, and her indefatigable toil that have roused to enthusiastic service the excellent women of the Church.

"In announcing her retirement to the General Assembly we recommend the adoption of this resolution as expressing the hearty appreciation of the whole Church of her ability, devotion, and self-sacrificing service in the cause of our Lord Jesus Christ, and we assure her of the earnest prayers of the Church that she may be allowed a long time of enjoyment in observing the increasing results of the plans she has so wisely inaugurated."

We know that we have the very sincere regret of not only the women but the whole Church that the leader who so wonderfully guided the Woman's Auxiliary throughout the 17 years of its existence can no longer lead forward the forces she so efficiently organized.

We who have been so fortunate as to have been closely associated with Mrs. Winsborough in the work, realize as perhaps no others can, save only her family and intimate friends how literally she has worn herself out in untiring service to the women of the Church. Her thought was for our welfare, her prayers in our behalf unceasing, and her efforts in the planning and furthering of the work continuous.

We feel sure that she was brought into the Kingdom for such a time as this in the Woman's work of our beloved Church and we thank God that He gave us such a leader just when our need was greatest, and gave her the strength and wisdom and guidance for the wonderful things that have been accomplished under her leadership.

We claim for her the prayers of the women of the Auxiliary that she may be completely restored to health, and that she may be given many more years of joyful though not such strenuous service for the Master.

We know that the women of the Auxiliary will rejoice in the election of Miss Janie W. McGaughey as she has already become well known to them and won their admiring confidence through the series of helpful Bible studies she has arranged for the use of the Auxiliaries, since she came to us several years ago as head of the Department of Spiritual Life.

We very earnestly bespeak for her a cordial welcome to her new position and a loyal and enthusiastic co-operation in the plans she may make for our future progress. We also ask that throughout the Auxiliary very definite prayer may be made that strength, and guidance may be given her in the new work she has undertaken.

- The Committee on Woman's Work,
- Mrs. John Bratton, Chairman.
- Mrs. R. M. Pegram.
- Mrs. H. Harbinson.
- Miss Agnes Davidson.
- Mrs. R. H. Dunlap.

MEXICAN WOMEN START BIRTHDAY FUND IN TEX-MEX PRESBYTERIAL

From the Tex-Mex Presbyterian meeting at San Benito, Texas, comes this record of their interest in the Birthday objectives for the Auxiliary this year. "Our Mexican women gave $43.00 to the Birthday offering. Of course the local Auxiliaries will each give to the cause, but we each year send this offering to start the Birthday gift. We had a fine meeting and though we are so far south had a full meeting. Two delegates came from Austin, over 400 miles away. We hope that the Birthday gift will be the best ever."

They Have Set the Pace! Are We Following?

FOR HEALTH EDUCATION IN THE HOMES

Morelia, Mexico.

Dear Friends:

It was said when our hospital was first opened the people were afraid of hospitals for they had a reputation of receiving people and not returning them alive. It was also stated that screening the building would keep patients from entering. Screens are new in Morelia but badly needed. With open irrigation for the gardens and fields and standing water all of the time, mosquitos can be numbered by the million. Eighty per cent of the population have malaria. Flies are myriad. The average Mexican does not mind having his food and meat black with flies, and is ignorant of the diseases they cause.

Mosquitos bother him no more than the innumerable fleas that infest the land. When the doctor protested that one patient should have mosquito nets to protect his sick child from further infection, he said not to worry, that he would bring in the goat and tie him to the bed post!

Many are the visits here in the city to be made, and some of them in places that make the heart sick. Living in homes, many of them worse than the huts of the natives in Africa, they are crowded into quarters damp and dark, and here little rickety babies live with all of God's outdoors shut away from them. A woman came to the hospital with her baby which had whooping cough. She received the first treatment and did not come again. At last she returned to say that the baby was dead. She had lost about ten children. Many women will tell you that they have lost fifteen, perhaps twenty children. They may have one, two or three living. They are so terribly ignorant in the care of the little ones. I saw a woman with a few months old child who was sick and suffering and whose only food was corn cakes. Another child of two months was eating a banana.

A child came in yesterday with small pox, his mother ignorant or careless of the danger of the infection it carried. Besides receiving ministrations to afflicted bodies, such patients receive a clearer idea of the plan of salvation, and a new vision of Jesus, the Light of the World.

Sincerely,
Coralie L. Coppedge.

REPORT OF AUXILIARY BIRTHDAY GIFTS

For the Emily Estes Snedecor Training School for Nurses

The erection of the Nurses Training School at Stillman Institute has begun. Much of the labor will be done by students.

The building will be ninety feet long, thirty feet wide, two stories high and constructed of brick and stone. There will be offices, operating room, twenty beds for patients, and every convenience that a modern hospital needs.

The building will cost $30,000. All over the actual cost will be invested for a support fund. Already $10,000 has been placed at interest by the Home Mission Committee for this fund.

The Woman's Synodical of Alabama has voted to give $1,000 of the Blessing Box fund to help furnish rooms.

Ever since the Birthday has been established, among the first gifts sent in has been "Joe's Birthday Gift." This gift of love is worthy of special mention. Twenty years ago an ardent young leader in a missionary society was called into her Lord's presence. The next Christmas a little group of her friends who had been in the habit of meeting to exchange inexpensive gifts, put the volume of these into a check to be sent to the dear one's mother, to be given to whatever cause she chose. Twenty times have these checks been sent, the mother alternating them with Home and Foreign Missions. Since the establishing of the Birthday Gift, this has been the channel chosen.

The amount given to Stillman Institute was not so large as the Birthday Gift of the previous year, but more Auxiliaries contributed.

The Synodicals of Appalachia, Missouri, Tennessee West Virginia have sent gifts from every Auxiliary.

In other Synodicals, Presbyterials sending gifts from each Auxiliary are: North Alabama, Tuscaloosa, Pine Bluff, Ouachita, Florida, St. John's, Cherokee, Southwest Georgia, Muhlenburg, Ebenezer, Mississippi, Winston-Salem, Bethel, Congaree, Potomac, Lexington, Winchester, Brazos, Brownwood, Central Texas, Eastern Texas, Dallas, Forth Worth, Tex-Mex., and Western Texas.

Statement follows:

BIRTHDAY STATEMENT

Alabama
Birmingham	$ 530.08
East Alabama	358.15
Mobile	294.32
North Alabama	534.97
Tuscaloosa	621.06
	$2,338.58
Appalachia
Abingdom	$ 629.06
Asheville	565.21
Holston	606.21
Knoxville	842.62
	$2,643.10
Arkansas
Arkansas	$ 469.55
Ouachita	503.90
Pine Bluff	278.80
Washburn	101.95
	$1,354.20
Florida
Florida	$ 285.59
St. Johns	1,394.94
Suwannee	676.80
	$2,357.33

Georgia
Athens	$ 30
Atlanta	1,03
Augusta	30
Cherokee	25
Macon	24
Savannah	37
Southwest	17

Kentucky
Ebenezer	$ 29
Guerrant	6
Louisville	45
Muhlenburg	27
Transylvania	32
West Lexington	36

Louisiana
Louisiana	$ 28
New Orleans	48
Red River	40

Mississippi
Central Miss.	$ 65
East Miss.	30
Meridian	34
Mississippi	26
North Miss.	38

Missouri
Lafayette	$ 29
Missouri	37
Potosi	15
St. Louis	46
Upper Mo.	32

North Carolina
Albemarle	$ 32
Concord	93
Fayetteville	94
Granville	30
King's Mtn.	46
Mecklenburg	1,61
Orange	80
Wilmington	40
Winston-Salem	53

Oklahoma
Durant	$ 11
Indian
Mangum	16

South Carolina
Bethel	$ 64
Charleston	27
Congaree	31
Enoree	56
Harmony	38
Pee Dee	39
Piedmont	34
South Carolina	34

Tennessee
Columbia	$ 24
Memphis	1,01
Nashville	67

Texas
Brazos	$ 63
Brownwood	19
Central Texas	56
Dallas	63
Eastern Texas	25
El Paso	27
Fort Worth	45
Paris	31
Tex.-Mex.	1
Western Texas	1,17

Virginia
East Hanover	$1.06
Lexington	1.24
Montgomery	1.25
Norfolk	57
Potomac	89
Roanoke	43
West Hanover	45
Winchester	75

West Virginia
Bluestone	$ 21
Greenbrier	46
Kanawha	46

Total -----
Snedecor Memorial and Colored Confer Individual Gifts -----
Expense: printing, postage, etc. -----
Sent to Mr. A. N. Sharp -----
Each Synodical Treasurer has O. K.'d th ment for her Synodical which means no agreement with Auxiliary office but also a her Presbyterial Treasurers.
Mrs. D. A. McMillan
Fulton, Missouri, April 1, 1929.

ORY

BALANCE SHEET

al balance sheet of the Ford Company has been filed with the Commissioner of Corporations. The profit and loss statement for the year ending December 31, 1927, showed a net profit of $42,786,000. The net profit for December 31, 1928, showed a further reduction in the net profit of $72,221,000. Thus these reports for two years would indicate that adaptation of the Ford plant for production of the new Model A has up to the first of the present year cost the Ford Company not less than $115,000,000. There is probably no business concern in the world outside the Ford Company which could take a loss of $115,000,000 in two years and yet go on as though nothing unpleasant had happened. It is the only business concern in the world which could take a jolt like that and still spin on down the shining road singing tra-la-la-la. Ford has been described as a business wizard, but even the shrewdest of men is sometimes caught napping. The necessity for a new type car should have been anticipated sooner and provision made for its production without almost totally stalling the entire Ford business. The transition period in the Ford concern gave competitors an unparalleled opportunity, an opportunity which they utilized to the utmost. Ford has lost a practical monopoly in the low priced field of cars. The competition he now faces is the keenest, the most alert and powerful ever faced by any modern business man. The bones of myriad defunct "lizzies" rattle in their tombs with ghoully glee. The millions they piled up are being dissipated by the flapper cars which succeeded them.—The United Presbyterian.

side the door he was met by Guy Witherspoon, a student who had been waiting to have a word with him. Ralph, left behind in the room, lifted his shoulders which had sunk forward under the doctor's well meant but discouraging words and set his jaw more firmly. "If I don't get my lessons before coming to class, I always get them in the class from the recitations," he assured himself as had many times that semester. A poor argument, however, to advance to Doctor Shepard—or to any one of the faculty for that matter.

But no time for vain musing had Ralph; he had exactly thirty seconds to make his next class. Up the stairway he hurried and gained his seat just as the bell rang. Mathematics, thank fortune he had managed to find time to work every problem; Neglected his modern history for them, in fact. Well, with so little time for study, something had to be slighted every day, worse luck. But cheer up, no chance of getting jumped on in this class anyhow.

After class, however, he did get jumped on in a way. Not by Professor Baker, but by Guy Witherspoon. "Say, old sport," he began, "I heard what Doc Shepard handed out to you, and I think it's a double distilled shame the way these wise boys talk. Shepard, for instance, never had to earn a cent in his life. Overendowed with brains in the first place, he had his schooling fed to him with a silver spoon. He hasn't the faintest conception what it means working an hour for one measly boarding house meal. Washing the dishes. Gee, Ralph, you're a double dyed what-you-may-call-it to do it when you could get tutoring at a dollar an hour. Two hours a day would see you through, earning your room as you do tending the furnace. And I could get it for you, too. As I've told you a dozen times you'd make a whacking good tutor."

"Me!" laughed. "Catch a professor recommending me. I just manage to pull through by the skin of my teeth in everything but mathematics every semester. Marks count every time, and I'm not on

(Continued on page 16)

ASSIFERN A Select School Preparing Girls for Leading Colleges

the Land of the Sky

Small classes, individual attention. Piano, voice, violin, harmony, art, home economics. Handsome new brick gymnasium. Physical culture, horseback riding, golf, outings at Camp Greystone. For catalog, address SEPH R. SEVIER, D.D., President, Box S, HENDERSONVILLE, N. C.

THE ENTRANCE OF THY WORD

Dr. A. F. Ragatz, Secretary of the Western Agency of the American Bible Society, contributes this incident of his work to the Bible Society Record:

Going to the hotel in a small town, the colporteur was greeted by the man at the desk with, "You surely timed your get-away when you were here last fall! You weren't gone an hour when a woman came demanding her money back for a Bible you had sold her."

For several days the colporteur sought in vain to find the woman who had been dissatisfied; then, calling at a home and announcing his mission, the woman said to him:

"Yes, I remember you well. You called at our home last fall, and I bought a Bible of you—and, if you had not left town so soon, I'd have made you take it back."

"Why did you want to return it?" he asked.

"I didn't want to give it back," said the woman; "but my husband objected to my keeping it, and told me to take it back and get my money."

"What did he say when you had to keep it?"

"Well, I can't tell you all he said; but he was pretty mad about it."

"Shall I take the Bible back now?" asked the colporteur.

"Oh! no!" came the instant reply. "You see, when my husband found that you were gone and saw the Bible around the house, he finally said, 'Since we have the book, we might as well read it.' And, do you know, he was so interested in it that he could hardly wait until he got home nights to read it. In less than a month I noticed that he was changing; he stopped swearing and became more contented in his work. Then one Sunday morning he suggested that we go to Church—and we've been going ever since."

"And, now," concluded the woman, with a grand sweep of her arm, "look at my home. I've never had so many things before; my husband has not only kept his job, but has had his wages raised. He has stopped drinking, stopped swearing, is contented and happy, and our home seems like heaven to me."

BY HOOK OR BY CROOK

Allan Burdock

"Yes, without a doubt, Ralph, I think it would be far better, far more sensible for you to drop college this year and spend all your time on some outside work. Then next year, free from money worries, you would be able to give full attention to your studies and make a record for yourself. A recitation such as yours today is unnecessary and inexcusable. A boy of your intelligence ought to see that—without having it brought to your attention." With these words, spoken in a tone of finality, Professor Shepard, alert, capable and efficient, began clearing the top of his desk of stray books and papers.

The boy before him, a tall overgrown youth of 19, hesitated, then plunged in desperately: "I see how it may seem the wiser course to you, sir, but the way I'm fixed, I just can't do it. I've got to get through in four years. So I'll have to earn my way through as I go along. My recitation today—oh, I know it seemed outrageous to you, but it couldn't be helped."

"Don't misunderstand me," put in the professor kindly, unlocking the wardrobe behind his desk and lifting out his coat and hat, "What I am trying to tell you is this—that you appear to me to be wasting your time when your outside work leaves you insufficient time for proper study. But if you think differently, I have nothing further to say."

Buttoning his natty overcoat trimly about him and setting his hat at an eminently correct angle on his head, Dr. Shepard smiled pleasantly at Ralph and swung out of the classroom. Just out-

The Bible and the American Bible Society

ED in 1816 "to encourage circulation of the Holy Scriptures without note or comment," the American Bible Society has in 113 years of its history translated over 205 millions of the Scriptures in the various languages and throughout the world.

A decade was required by a committee of scholars pictured above to complete a careful translation of the New Testament into Chinese.

The Bible has been translated into 169 languages and parts of it into 684 more. During 1929 translations of the four Gospels for the first time will be published in Kuskokwim and Hopi, and of the Psalms in Bolivian Quechua.

Translations and revisions are occurring in the following languages: Cheyenne, Navaho, Cakchiquel, Aymara, Shilluk, Benga, Turkish, and Siamese.

The American Bible Society publishes Bibles, Testaments, and Portions in a variety of styles and bindings. The leather bound Bibles in Chinese illustrations are indicative of the service rendered in publishing Bibles in other languages.

"Ford is ready to die" writes one of the great host of helpers who distribute the Scriptures for the American Bible Society in many lands. This colporteur knows a dozen languages and in the distribution of the Scriptures in forty tongues has driven this old car 150,000 miles.

During 1928 more than eleven million volumes of Scripture were distributed by the American Bible Society.

Seventy-five thousand volumes of the Scriptures in Braille and other systems have been issued to the blind since 1835.

Contributions to this essential missionary agency should be sent to

AMERICAN BIBLE SOCIETY

100 NASSAU ST. NEW YORK CITY

The Glade Valley Dormitories Will Be Opened For Summer Boarders

June 15th — Special Rates for Families and Groups
AMPLE SPACE FOR CONFERENCES AND CONVENTIONS
Five Acre Campus—Running Water—Electric Lights DELIGHTFUL CLIMATE—WONDERFUL SCENERY
Rates on Application

G. L. Parks Glade Valley, North Carolina

SITUATION WANTED

To travel as companion to one who may need services of a nurse. References exchanged. Address "Nurse," care Box 498, Wilmington, N. C.

Cecil's Business Colleges

Let us train you for business.—Secretaries, Accountants, Bookkeepers, Stenographers, Stenotypists find ready employment. Keep cool and go to school in the glorious mountains of Carolina. Resident school or home study course. Address

CECIL'S BUSINESS COLLEGES Asheville, N. C., or Spartanburg, S. C.

YOUR SUCCESS

depends upon the thoroughness with which you prepare yourself for a prosperous business career. We can help you. Write for our handsome catalogue "B."

ROANOKE NATIONAL BUSINESS COLLEGE Roanoke, Va.

UNIVERSITY of NORTH CAROLINA Summer School 1919

First Term: June 13-July 23
Second Term: July 24-August 30
The University of North Carolina Summer School is operated by a standard grade institution that is an honored member of the Association of American Universities.

College of Liberal Arts—School of Education—School of Commerce—School of Applied Science—School of Public Welfare—Graduate School.

It is a summer school of distinction for progressive teachers.

It provides the best of instruction and wholesome entertainment of an educational character.

In the first term, 1928, there were 1752 students in attendance. In the second term there were 905.

Unusual opportunities for graduate students. There were 412 graduate students in attendance last summer.

For further information, address N. W. WALKER, Director Chapel Hill, N. C.

COMMUNION CUPS

Glasses $1.00
Dozen Tray and 36 glasses $6.50 up. Best quality Collection and Bread Plates at low prices. Send for TRIAL OUTFIT. Write for free Catalog. THOMAS COMMUNION CO., Box 310, Lima, Ohio

DR. SWEETS AND HIS ANNUITY PLAN

(Continued from page 7)

resentation, but says I am "wholly confused." This I leave to my thoughtful readers. For one thing, Dr. Sweets says his plan is a preventative of need while the old endowment plan of Ministerial Relief is at best a poor remedy, when a moment's thought will show any one that both plans provide for laying up funds during a man's active years ready at hand to aid him when he needs it in age. In this particular there is no difference between the two plans. Moreover he now at last is forced to confess that his beloved plan is not such a preventative of need as he had represented it to be, since he has to call back the old endowment plan of Ministerial Relief to minister to cases say from the case of David and his men (I Sam. 30:25f) that no discrimination should be made against those of our ministers whose strength fails by the way before they serve for 35 years, and behold he comes back and says the principle does not hold, because David's men were going to war and our men are going to preach the gospel! He has said one of the strong points of his annuity plan is that no "individuals or communities" will sit in judgment over the needs of an aged minister, etc. Now he admits that there will be need over and above all his plan will do, that the Ministerial Relief plan will be called into action to take care of them, and he knows that somebody must sit in judgment over these cases before they can be intelligently ministered to. He says that the plan adopted by our Executive Committee of Foreign Missions in fixing the salaries of our missionaries, is all right for fixing salaries, but it does not fit in case of annuities, and again I am "much confused," etc. Let me say that I have a communication from the office of the Executive Committee of Foreign Missions in Nashville in which they state that they have adopted the very plan I advocate in fixing the pensions of our aged and infirm missionaries, namely, they take into account the cost of living, the number of dependents, the income from other sources and fix the pension. If the missionary has an income adequate to his needs from other sources, he gets no pension. They guarantee each missionary in age a pension sufficient to enable him to live in comfort. Dr. Sweets says his annuity plan is in harmony with the Bible "as a whole and in every part," and as proof of his position he cites two passages from the Bible. 1. The command to be "diligent in business." In this case there is no such command in the Bible. In Prov. 22:29 the statement is made, "Seest thou a man diligent in business, he shall stand before kings," which means be diligent in business and you will be successful and men in high places will respect you. Certainly that is a far cry to the case in hand. The other reference is to Paul where he says, "on the first day of the week, etc., and claims that does not forbid laying up on the first day of the month! I have never said anything about days or months for laying up. It is the method of disbursement of the funds after they are laid up, that I have criticized, and as long as the provision is in the plan to disburse the funds in proportion to previous salary rather than on the basis of need, I am going to oppose it. He has published in all our papers (e. g. see the Christian Observer of April 24, page 9, column 2) these words, "The church cannot make of itself a general eleemosynary institution. It cannot care for all of the poor, even in the ranks of the ministry." Now in the Presbyterian Standard of May 1, page 11, column 2, paragraph 2, in answer to my question: "Is it your purpose, in framing the annuity plan, to make adequate provision for the real needs of all our aged and infirm ministers?" he answers, "We believe this is the only plan that will accomplish that much needed thing." It seems to me, Brethren, that it comes with a poor grace from a man who has taken the various positions cited above and others like them, to accuse anybody of confusion in thought.

Well, he has come my way to this effect, in his last utterance he says he proposes to provide for the real needs of all our aged and infirm ministers, while two weeks ago he said the church could not do it. Now, what have we got? Well, if I am not again "wholly confused," we have this:

1. The offerings for Ministerial Relief, Education, etc., are to continue to be asked of the churches for some time to come, no definite date set for their discontinuance. The request is for 13 and 1-2 per cent of the offerings for all the Assembly causes, amounting this year to $405,000, see Minutes, page 119. Add to this $3,000,000 to be raised to begin with. Add to this 10 per cent of salaries paid our ministers from year to year. The salaries last year amounted to $3,485,004, ten per cent of this is $348,500. This will mean that right away we are asked to raise an extra $3,000,000. Then for a period of years we are to give $889,500 to this one cause. Will the churches stand for it? What will the other Benevolent causes have to say? Is it needed? It seems to me that this sum could be materially reduced and yet do nobody any harm by cutting out those annuities Dr. Sweets' plan provides for men who do not need them. We always have a considerable number of ministers who have inherited ample means to supply all their needs: others have saved sufficient to provide for their needs and others have sufficient income to provide for their needs in large part. Most of these men receive large salaries, and by Dr. Sweets' plan will receive the larger annuities? Now, why carry coal to Newcastle? Why tax the church to pay a man an annuity when he does not need one? Or why tax the church to pay a man a larger annuity than he needs? By Dr. Sweets' plan it is entirely possible that the church will be taxed to pay an annuity for years to a man who is a millionaire! Why not cut these out and minister to every man according to his need?

Well again: What have we got? Instead of one we have two plans for taking care of our aged and infirm ministers: 1. Dr. Sweets' annuity plan, and, 2. The endowment fund for Ministerial Relief.

And how will they work? Let us see: First, Dr. Sweets takes his annuity plan and covers the church distributing annuities to the aged and infirm in proportion to previous salary and length of previous service. When he gets around it transpires that he has paid annuities to many who needed none; to others he has paid annuities which are less than they need—wonderful to say this marvel does not work so well as a preventative of need after all—to others (whose churches defaulted in the payments) he pays nothing, and they are in need, dire need. Now what? Dr. Sweets has to go to the scrap heap to which he had incontinently consigned the old Ministerial Relief plan, fish it up, dust it off, take it and mop up after his grand annuity plan, assessing need here and there and ministering to it out of the funds of the endowment for Ministerial Relief!

Now, Brethren, in all good conscience, Why two plans, when one will do? Why not take the money which comes as interest from the endowment of Ministerial Relief and the money which is provided by the annuity plan, place it all in one common treasury, and from that treasury minister to every man as he has need? And why not arrive at the need of each man, on the principles adopted by our Executive Committee of Foreign Missions both in fixing the salaries and the pensions of our missionaries, namely, by making a careful estimate of the cost of living, the number of dependents, the income from other sources, and fixing the salary and the pension accordingly? We have no wiser committee than that of Foreign Missions. It guarantees to every foreign missionary a comfortable living in strength and in age and infirmity, but nothing more. If a man does not need a pension, he is not paid one.

Lancaster, S. C.

PERPLEXITIES IN THE ANNUITY PLAN

J. P. Robertson, D.D.

It is impressive that in advocating the proposed plan for guaranteeing annuities for aged or retired ministers and their widows that the language of positive assurance is accomplished by admissions of previous failure. The pamphlet on the Ministers' Annuity Fund in referring to previous "pensions schemes" says, "The larger number of failures of such schemes bears sad and convincing proof of folly." The plan as therein outlined is hard as a slippery eel to hold in the mind because when we read one part and are about to deduce a discouraging conclusion it is offset by a statement in some other part. It says "the service pension is to be calculated" in this way: "One-seventieth of the average annual salary multiplied by the number of years in which the full ten per cent has been paid." In many cases where the salary is small or the number of years preceding disability have been few this "one-seventieth" would be distressingly small. So in other places we are told that such as do not conform to the plan will nevertheless be aided out of the three-million-dollar fund, and the annuity in no case will be less than six hundred dollars. This would be comforting if we could be sure the noble promoters of the plan could carry it into effect. We have been working on an endowment fund for twenty-five years, but the average aid that can now be granted is about four hundred dollars. It would seem that the annuity plan would retard the enlargement of this endowment because the larger or rich churches burdened with the payment of the extra ten per cent of the annual salary will not be able to do so much for it as heretofore. In fact may we not expect many to say that is all they can do? Moreover will not the yearly contributions toward immediate relief for our helpless ministers be diminished by the drive for endowments both for general relief and for the annuity funds? Is there not grave danger that our ability to render aid at the present will be sadly curtailed by the strenuous efforts to raise these endowments, whose effect is expected to be the removal of all such burdens from posterity? And, if the plan is an eventual success, will our ministers in large churches be saved from the much dreaded fate of being "objects of charity?" If their congregations stint themselves, say for the thirty-five years, to lay up an annuity for their old age, will it be any the less "charity" because a long time has elapsed? On the contrary is it not best to boldly say, "The laborer is worthy of his hire" so much that he deserves a support after he is laid aside? The long period of time occupied in laying up this annuity fund may cause ministers of large churches to forget the "Charity" aspect, but it will come with added emphasis upon those who must be supported out of a common fund provided for ministerial paupers. In saving the one class from seeming humiliation, the plan doubles it for the others. In these remarks I hope I will not seem a fainter but as honestly presenting the difficulties appear to me. "More light" should be an earner at this time. But until light comes, to enlarge the endowment fund, which is to be supplemented in its income by the annual contributions from churches and individuals will seem to me to be one another in apostolic times, they had found out of which they were aided "as ever need."

Memphis, Tenn.

INDIVIDUAL COMMUNION

Men seem constitutionally opposed to change in life of the church for which we ought to be grateful. It is the introduction of the individual cups at the Lord's Table. Of course we do not mean that the individual cups were used at the first Lord's Supper. Most likely a change was passed from one disciple to another to be credited. It is almost certain also that the disciples drank of the cup reclining at the table. That was the common custom of the time. So we partake of the elements now in a posture, just as we eat at our own tables.

So if there be good and reasonable reasons for we depart from the use of a common cup to individual cups, there seems to be no objection so doing. If we are permitted to use glasses instead of fermented wine (both being the vine) in order to screen some one from the wine, may we not use the individual cup them that fear the possibility of disease in the old-fashioned common cup? Nothing is gained by using the individual cup, and something

Daniel J.

DeFuniak Springs, Fla.

The Master would not have any one losing is always a sure condition of gain. Multitudes have given away goods and gotten anything better, or back again. But never did lovingly give away of this world's work for others in order to honor Christ, without receiving a return "in this time." The weight of influence which once were predominant in possession of the pagan and unchristian the earth are now in the coffers and care, bearing the Christian name. It pays in consistent, consecrated, outgoing child of it pays still more in character and peace of science.—Ex.

God gives joy to those who give.

Praying every day keeps doubt away.

The only control for temper is self-control.

Is your upper story a garret for rubbish observatory?

The way of love is the quickest, safest, and flying way.

COMPARATIVE STATEMENT

Foreign Mission Receipts

Receipts Applicable to Regular Appropriation		April	1929
Churches	-----		$37,974.19
Sunday Schools	-----		1,503.95
Sunday Schools Objective	-----		563.25
Societies	-----		6,521.55
Societies Objective	-----		219.49
Individuals	-----		1,431.24
			$48,213.67
Legacies	-----		8.76
Total	-----		$48,222.43
Cost Year 1928-29	-----		$1
Initial Appropriation 1929-30	-----		1
Deficit March 31, 1929	-----		$174,659.02
Less gifts for same	-----		35.00

Nashville, Tenn.
April 30, 1929

Edwin F.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION AND MINISTERIAL RELIEF

Comparative Statement of Receipts For April, 1929.

	1928-29	1929-29	Increase
Churches	$6,569.55	$6,488.79
Sabbath Schools	1,169.14	539.47
Societies	922.63	915.77
Individuals	339.00	445.20	$ 106.20
TOTAL LIVING DONORS	$9,000.32	$8,389.23	$ 106.20
Net Decrease	-----
410 Urban Building, Louisville, Ky.

John Stites, Treas.

CHILDREN

S' MAY DAY SURPRISE

Emily S. Windsor

was closed for several days rs were being made on the
 A group of eighth grade girls on Grace Alden's porch dis-unexpected holidays.
 ve a picnic, girls," suggested
 "Over in Beech Grove."
 t have a May Day party?"
 Dora Nelson.
 n't the first of May! It's the of the month," objected Lida.
 nkes no difference. Often the field and rainy on the first, and at celebrate it. It's so lovely now and there are lots of flow-on," returned Dora.
 ter girls fell in with Dora's ould be lovely to have a May Lida at last agreed with

"shall we have it?" she asked.
 o grounds," answered Dora

onians agreed that that was lace for such a celebration.
 em had much ground around
 n. Dora lived a short distance
 e village. There were extenand a beautiful garden about your mother let us have it girl asked.

 ose, she will. She will enjoy ave a good time."

ration decided on, they began the details of it. Of course, all dress in white, and they r a lot of flowers, and they songs. Fortunately they did song about going Maying.

ea book that tells about things different days," Dora said as eparated to go home to dinner.
 up about some things to do ay."

upper table that evening, she mly about the proposed May eation. Her parents agreed a nice thing to have.
 ner Fred made fun of the idea.
 ys want to do something that ess up in," he laughed.

take the trouble to read, my ted his father, "you will know and boys, too, dress up in ebrations."

o dressed up on Hallowe'en," mother, "with false faces?"
 fished. He remembered what he her boys had worn on Halve could have a Maypole with nging down from it like I went on Dora.

nd not to be out of town the week, I'd try to fix up one said her father kindly. "I ea of keeping up those old-il, we can do a lot of things Maypole, but it would be nice e, of course. I'm glad we have oses in bloom."

hat are you going to do with ys?" asked his father.

one of the boys and I are going port in the lot back of the house, old lumber piled there."

all right, but put 'on old clothes

t, no dressing up for me to I—" Fred flushed and stam-mbering again Hallow Eve.
 laughed.

ct day Dora had a busy time chums and talking over the what they would do at their

They decided to invite a the girls of their class to n it, and to tell their different t if they wished, they could there would be seats on the hem to sit and watch the cele-

we could have it today," Dora ve can't get ready, and tomor-ter will be away, and, of course, n to be there. We'll have it the

Be sure you all have your ses ready."

ile Fred and several of his s were busy in the back lot fort. After working a few sat down to rest.

the boys said something about ay celebration the girls were ave.

razy over it," said Bob Wells.
 s Dora," returned Fred. "She's ag in a book a lot about May y're going to be dressed in

A LITTLE BIRD

(To be colored with paints or crayons.

Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color.)

Brown-haired Sally has found a little bird and is showing it to YELLOW-haired Billy.

Sally wears a light GREEN hat and her sweater is light GREEN with OR-ANGE (use RED and YELLOW mixed-color bands outlined in BLACK.
 The collar and cuffs are BLACK. The skirt is BLACK. Her beads are OR-ANGE color. The bird is GRAY (use

BLACK lightly) with a PINK (use RED lightly) breast. His beak is YELLOW.

"He is a young Robin," says Sally to Billy.

Billy wears a BROWN sweater trimmed with RED bands with little YEL-LOW figures knitted in them. The stripes with the diamonds between are RED and the diamonds are YELLOW.

His collar and cuffs are YELLOW, too. His trousers are BROWN.

Billy carries a GREEN book under his arm. His tie is RED.

The sky is light BLUE and the blossoms behind are PINK with tiny GREEN leaves. Both children have PINK cheeks and RED lips. Sally has BLUE eyes.

Paint the border of this picture OR-ANGE color and the lettering GREEN.

white, and have flowers on their heads, and dance around and sing songs. Huh! I bet we have more fun building this fort."

"But in the books they always have a Maypole," said Joe Long. "And they are not going to have one."

"No, of course, girls can't put up a Maypole," Bob returned.

"Well, it seems too bad that they can't have one when a Maypole is part of a May Day celebration," said Joe.

"I think so, too," agreed Bob.

After dinner the boys worked again at their fort. Fred had been thinking of what his father had said that if he were home he would fix up a pole for them. He couldn't get it out of his mind. So when they were resting awhile from their building, he told his companions an idea that had come to him. When he was through they laughed and said, "Let's do it."

After breakfast on the morning of the celebration, Mrs. Nelson sent Dora on an errand on the other side of the village. "You party does not begin until 2.
 I'll get the flowers ready for you, and you will have plenty of time for the other things you want to do. Don't hurry," she said.

Dora felt cross at being sent on an errand. She was kept a good while at the place she went, so it was almost two hours before she was on her way home.
 She was in a hurry to get into the house and begin to dress for the afternoon. She was almost across the front lawn before she saw something that made her stop and gaze in wonder. Was she dreaming?

There in the middle of the back lawn was a Maypole, not a very tall one, but very pretty, with streamers of colored muslin hanging down from it. And nearby was her brother and several other boys.

"Why, how-when—" she began. She was almost too surprised to speak.

The boys laughed. "We thought it was too bad not to have a Maypole, and Fred asked us to help him fix it," explained Joe.

"We fixed it in the barn, and set it up when your mother sent you on the errand."

"Oh, how lovely! How nice of you all! Now won't you come this afternoon and bring any other boys you like?"

"Oh, yes, we'll come. Sure we will!"

Fred grinned. "And we'll wear white waists, and a bunch of flowers."

That evening after a most joyful afternoon, Dora said to her brother, "It was dear of you to think of the Maypole."
 "Huh! it wasn't anything." — The Leader.

PUZZLE CORNER

- Horizontal
 1—Delighted 6—Black oily substance
 7—Printer's measure
 (Pl.)
 8—Negative
 9—Exists
 10—Possesses
 12—Past
 13—Hates

- Vertical
 1—Transformed
 2—Consumed
 3—Boisterous agitation
 4—Missis (abbr.)
 5—Spring flower
 (pl.) 10—Head covering 11—Call of distress

Double Acrostic

First and last letters read downward name two seasons of the year.
 1. Occupies a seat.

- A South American country.
- To wander.
- A newspaper paragraph.
- Pleasant and attractive.
- Wheel with teeth.

State Chops

- Use the last 3 letters of "to part"
 for the rest of a 7-letter State.
- Use the last 3 letters of a signal light for the first of a 11-letter State.
- Use the last 3 letters of "pertaining to the voice" for the first of a 10-letter State.
- Use the last 3 letters of a lake in New York State for the first of a 5-letter State.
- Use the last 3 letters of the outer part of a tree for the first of an 8-
 letter State.
- Use the last 3 letters of an upset for the first of an 8-letter State.

Puzzle Answers on Page 17.

LOVES HER TEACHER

Dear Standard:
 I am a little girl seven years old and in high first. I love my teacher. I go to the first Presbyterian Church to Sunday School. Miss izard is my teacher. I love her too. Grandmother takes the Standard. I read the letters and color the pictures.

Your little friend,
 Elizabeth Woodward.
 Columbia, S. C.

W. B. OUT FOR MAY DAY

Dear Standard:
 This is my first letter to you. I am a boy nine years old. I am in the fifth grade. I have been going to Sunday School every Sunday for five years.
 I have four sisters and three brothers.
 I have enjoyed the pretty pictures in the Standard. I hope Mr. Wastebasket is out on his vacation so that he will not get my letter.

Your friend,
 Vass, N. C. Eubert McLeod.

FOR RENT

For the months of June and July, furnished cottage at Montreat. Eight rooms and 2 baths. Modern and comfortable. Well located. Address P. O. Box 355, Rock Hill, South Carolina.

NISBET LODGE, MONTREAT, NORTH CAROLINA

On same road and two short blocks from Auditorium opens for the season May 15th.

POSITION WANTED

Lady stenographer-typist, graduate Commercial Department North Carolina College for Women. Address, "R. B. G.," Box 115, N. C. C. W., Greensboro, N. C.

BY HOOK OR CROOK

(Continued from page 13)
the accredited list of tutors. You know that."
"That for the accredited list," derided Guy, snapping his fingers. "Easy come, easy go; it's the diggers like you who get to know the most and can explain things to others. In review work you always shine; all the faculty know that."
"Possibly. But it only makes them hot because I don't shine in my dailies."
"But if I get you some tutoring—"
"No, thanks; I'll stick to my dishwashing and furnace tending, where I belong. Now I've got to tear into modern history till I'm due at Connery's. Maybe I can soothe 'Doc' Shepard down a bit tomorrow with a bang up classy recitation. Must be exasperating to see a great fellow like me get up and flunk abominably as I did today."

COME TO DRAUGHON'S

We are better equipped than ever to train young women and men for better positions. Over 40 years experience is behind us. Our school is better than ever. All the commercial branches taught. Write us at once for catalog.

DRAUGHON'S BUSINESS COLLEGE
Knoxville Tennessee

Guy, shaking his head from side to side in unconscious imitation of the movies, watched Ralph tear away down the street toward his rooming house. A clever fellow like that wearing himself out from sheer stubbornness and pride!

"What's the big idea? Shaking your head like a blooming mandarin, on a street corner? Head loose or what?"

Grinning sheepishly, Guy turned to greet the speaker, Burton White, a lad of his own age. "No," he grunted, "my head isn't loose, but there's a head loose somewhere when a boy like Ralph Berry is being literally hounded out of the U. What do you think Shepard told him just now? He said—" And with many amplifications and exclamations of disapproval he detailed the conversation of the morning.

"The worst thing about it is that you can't blame Shepard really," commented the newcomer. "That was a pretty stiff 'I don't know' Ralph handed out this morning. From a fellow every one knows could do better, too. If he wasn't so all fired proud. Poor and proud, the very dickens of a combination. Tutor! Of course he could tutor—if he only thought so. And dingbast it, I'm going to make him do it! You know my cousin Spunk, a bright kid, but too young really to start college. His mother, however, is set on his going. Well, he's had three tutors so far this semester, every one of em high up on the accredited list, too. Burkley, the last one, positively refuses to boost him any longer. Fact is, Burkley hasn't the faintest idea how to teach, never really had to study things, just soaked e'm up like a sponge. Takes a student who's had to work hard for what he's got to know how to teach. Like Ralph, for instance. And by crackety, Ralph's going to take the job. By hook or crook, I'm going to make him."

"Some hook and some crook it'll take, believe me," came discouragingly from Guy. "The rock of Gibraltar's a mere teeterboard compared with Ralph. When he's once made up his mind all the king's horses and all the king's men—"

"Watch me single-handed turn the trick," interposed Burton. "Or rather with Spunk's help," he corrected. "Let's see—where can I stage my triumph and when? I know—outside Connery's hash house this evening 8 o'clock or a little after when Ralph at last tears himself away from his precious pots and pans and slides homeward. Stoking a half dozen furnaces or so on the way before he can tune in on his cramming. A gay life and a merry one. But ring out the old, ring in the new. If you want to see some sport be on hand at 8 sharp in front of Connery's. But keep in the shade; don't break in on Spunk and me; we're going to do our little act alone."

"One night show," threw back Guy. "Burton White starring; I'll be there. But," he added deprecatingly, "you'll be a wiz if you succeed."

And honestly Guy thought it impossible for Burton to succeed. Nevertheless he was on hand at a little before 8 at the assigned place. Taking up his position near a clump of bushes well outside the circle of light cast by the street lamp, he kept his eyes on Burton and Spunk who were standing directly in front of the gate leading into Connery's grounds, the very gate through which Ralph would have to pass.

Five minutes passed. Ten, then the flare of an opening door, and Ralph came down the steps of the boarding house. Immediately the two boys in front of the gate were electrified into action.

"I tell you what," cried Burton. "You're a dumb-bell, Spunk nothing else. I've told you so a dozen times. Tutor you! Not for any money. Not with a ten foot pole. And now Burkley's given you up. I don't believe you'll find another fellow foolish enough to try."

"Aw—go on, Burt," tormented Spunk. "Mother's promised to take me to Europe this summer if I get through."

"Get through! Haw, haw, you're dream-

LANDER COLLEGE

Greenwood, South Carolina
In the heart of the old South and its culture. Ideal surroundings. Delightful Piedmont climate free from fogs of high or low altitude. Remarkable health record. Tennis, Archery, Hockey, etc. Beautiful campus, seventy-five acres. Modern conveniences. New furniture. Full A. grade. Standard courses, A. B. and B. Mus. degrees. Fifty-eight years of high service. Strong Faculty. Trains many teachers. Graduates in high demand. Enthusiastic students, devoted faith. Fine homo-life, reverent faith, spiritual atmosphere. Rates low. Largest attendance in history. Early enrollment necessary. Write for catalogue. R. H. BENNETT, President.

Old Folk's Best Friend

That's what many call it puts vim and vigor in stomachs; rich, red blood old veins; sound flesh and bones. Drink with ease.

Shivar A

Pure Digestive Aromatics Shivar Mineral Water & Nothing like it for a your digestive organs vert your food into rich and sound flesh.

QUEENS COLLEGE

A High Grade Institution Education of Women CHARLOTTE, N. C.

"The College With the Plus" Thorough in its instruction in its Christian influence Aim: The development of womanhood prepared for service.

Curriculum: Embraces every opportunity and demands high life; CHRISTIAN FOR CHRISTIAN SERVICE

Climatic conditions unexcelled Social and Religious privileges the attractiveness of the town.

Rates exceedingly reasonable For Catalogue Write

THE PRESIDENT Box 300, Charlotte

EUROPE Holy

Educational Tours $275.00 up June 84 Day

PERSONALLY CONDUCTED Write today for illustrated THE WICKER TOUR Richmond : : Virginia

The NORTH CAROLINA COLLEGE for Women

An A-1 grade college maintaining the State of North Carolina education of its young women Liberal courses leading to usual degrees in Arts, Science and Music.

Equipment modern, including furnished dormitories, libraries, literary society hall grounds, etc.

Fall term begins in September Spring term in February Summer term in June.

For catalog and other information JULIUS I. FOUST, President GREENSBORO, N. C.

FOR DIAMONDS, WATCHES AND SILVERWARE

Write to JAMES ALLEN AND SONS Jewelers since 1828 285 King St. Charleston Catalog on request

WHEN WRITING OUR ADVERTISERS PLEASE MENTION THIS PUBLICATION

If you KNEW it would

RESTORE HEALTH

would you

If you knew of a routine, a method of treatment that positively would restore the regularity of your habits; that would improve your digestion; renew your health beyond question, would you hesitate?

Much of your health depends upon the regular functioning of the organs of assimilation, digestion and elimination. Troubles resulting from an infraction of the rules of nature; disruption of nature's schedule, can best be remedied by a process of treatment that will eliminate impurities, reinvigorate the organs and in time steadily train them back into their accustomed regularity of habits.

Physicians Think

Physicians frequently prescribe the drinking of quantities of water, not only because they know it is a non-drastring aid to some troubles and mildly regulative in effect, but also because every tissue and organ of the body possesses high water content, and a decrease in water content is accompanied by a decrease in functional efficiency.

Water is the basis of all secretions and excretions of the body. Waste products of the body must be in solution to be expelled. Digestion and absorption are carried out more efficiently in dilution of water, and ingested food in more economically utilized when water is taken in abundance.

Hence the foundation of efficiency of Glenn Springs mineral water.

Used for Centuries

There is shown in the analysis of Glenn Springs water a well rounded, helpful combination of salts that renders it an effective method of restoring functional efficiency. In its analysis will be found a natural solution of:

Potassium Salts to furnish neutralization of free acids, promotion of oxidation; an increase of saliva, and to serve as a diuretic.

Sodium Salts to excite active secretion in stomach and intestines and thus materially aid in bilious disorders, gouty affections, chronic constipation, obesity and diabetes mellitus, and to neutralize acidity.

Lithium Salts for the same general purpose and additionally to aid in gout and rheumatic affections and bladder troubles caused from excessive acidity.

Calcium Salts to aid body metabolism; to serve as an astringent and sedative locally; and to act internally as an absorbent and antacid.

Strontium Salts for its anti-purulent and antiseptic effect.

- The Sulphates for its mild laxative properties.
- The Calcium Carbonate for its use in hyperacidity of stomach, and intestinal diseases.
- The Magnesium Carbonate on account of its mildly laxative and antacid effect.
- The Ammonium Carbonate for its stimulation of gastric secretion and assistance to the digestion.

Helpful for These Troubles

Glenn Springs water has been found by physicians to be helpful in cases of chronic constipation; biliousness; auto-intoxication, and other intestinal toxemias; obesity; acid dyspepsia; kidney disorders (including Bright's disease); bladder troubles resulting from excessive acidity; intestinal putrefaction; rheumatism and gouty diathesis, and other diseases of metabolism such as eczema, rickets, anemia, etc.. It has been found indirectly helpful in the treatment of pellagra, for suppressed menstruations and in conjunction with quinine a very efficient treatment for malaria. It has been in general use for such purposes for over a century.

We would suggest that there is no better method of regaining your health and regularity of habits than by keeping a supply on hand for every day use.

It will be expressed you if desired in two 5 gallon carboys regularly each month, that you may use it steadily and most effectively in your own home or office.

Give your system a chance. Allow nature to take its course under favorable conditions. Renew your health with the delightful, helpful Glenn Springs mineral water. It is pure, delightfully easy to drink and sparkling.

Glenn Springs Corporation 13 Montgomery Plaza Glenn Springs, S. C.

You may ship me two carboys of Glenn Springs water with invoice for $3.50 for 10 gallons now and each month thereafter till further notified.

Name _____ Address _____

This order is subject to cancellation at any time.

The Glenn Springs Hotel opens June 1st and invites you.

RECENT AND TIMELY BOOKS

Our Own Issues

in China—By Donald adson, D.D.

was prepared by spere for the purpose of Southern Presbyand clear statement of the Church in that of problems and un-opportunities. Prices:
Cloth, $1.00.

erian Church: Its Organization and Influ-John J. Rice, D.D.

facts condensed, well attractively stated, average member of may be better inform-e interested in his rices: Paper, 40c;

h While—By Robert
in, D.D.

of brief, pointed,
essages will be a real st of material for ag short articles for basic material for good reading. Price,

ymnology—By Mrs. ams.

just from the pen of usician and teacher
to any home library.
aper, 60c; De Luxe
top, $1.50.

of Christianity—By
ris, D.D., presents Revelation unit, the most methymmetrical of all the tings. Price, paper, 1.25.

The Land of Happiness—By P.
H. Pleune, D.D.

Bright, short, gripping talks to children in the home. A Sunday-school teacher or parents will find many uses for this book. Price, $1.00.

The Precious Faith—By Judge J.
P. Hobson

Most of the writing on religious subjects is done by ministers. But here are six articles written by a keen, brilliant lawyer, who in addition to his outstanding legal ability, is a devout Christian. Price: paper, 50c;
cloth, $1.00.

Presbyterians: Their History and Beliefs—By W. L. Lingle, D.D.

A fine, comprehensive study of our Church from the days of the Apostles to the present, including the recent developments. Ideal for home reading, or for study classes in the Auxiliary or Christian Endeavor. Price: paper, 50c; cloth, $1.00.

OUR HYMN BOOKS

Worship and Conduct Songs for Beginners and Primaries. Price
$1.00.

Junior Hymns and Songs. Price
65c.

Premier Hymns. Price: Full cloth, 50c each; $40.00 per 100.
Limp cloth, 30c each; $25.00 per 100.

The Presbyterian Hymnal. Prices
Music Edition—Buckram, $1.25 each; Morocco, $3.50 each.
Words Edition—cloth, 50c;
Morocco, $1.50.

Order from

PSYBERIAN COMMITTEE OF PUBLICATION
Richmond, Va., or Texarkana, Ark.-Texas

HIGH POINT COLLEGE

A Coeducational Christian College in Piedmont Carolina EDUCATIONAL CHRISTIAN COLLEGE IN PIEDMONT CAROLINA ngs, modern and convenient. Strong faculty. Ten courses leading to nd B. S. Degrees; grouped about such major subjects as English, His-Latin, Mathematics, etc. All graduates from accredited high schools the freshman class without examination. For catalog and further in-rite to Dr. R. M. Andrews, President, High Point, N. C.

VACATION TRIPS

Rail and Motor
Tours

In the Southern Appalachian
Mountains

In especially arranged rail and motor tours, the Southern Railway provides a new vacation recreation, combining rail
and motor transportation for the individual and for parties, into the mountain
sections of Virginia, North Carolina,
Eastern Tennessee and North Georgia.

These tours will take you adventuring
by rail and motor into regions of scenic beauty and historic interest. Each trip begins and ends with a railway journey,
in which you enjoy the speed and comfort of rail travel. The motor trips are over established State highways.

For booklets, information and rates,
call on Ticket Agents,

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

ing. The only way a dumb-bell like you can yet through college is to slip in the front door and sneak out the back.
Let go my coat, do you hear. I ask you once, I ask you twice. There—take that and quit bothering me."

What in the name of common sense!
From his hidden position, Guy actually saw Burton's fist shoot out and Spunk keel backwards with a thud on the ground. Surprised out of himself, he took a step forward.

"Hsst," Burton seized him and pulled him back into the dense shadow. "Watch Ralph," he hissed.

And together, holding their breath, they did watch Ralph. Already he was bending over the fallen boy, chafing his hands, rubbing snow on his forehead.

"Ouch! What you doing?" Spunk struggled to a sitting position. "Gee, now I remember—Burt socked me. Got what was coming to me, allright, I guess.
Teasing the life out of him to tutor me.
All right, I'm through; I'll start home in the morning."

"Don't talk foolishness," remonstrated
Ralph. "Somebody'll be glad to teach you.
Get up and let me brush you off."

"Glad to teach me! Nothing doing;
everybody runs when they see me coming.
Look what my own cousin did! And you you wouldn't yourself, I know you would not."

"Me! I'm not accredited; I couldn't."
"I knew it," growled Spunk shaking Ralph off impatiently. "When it comes right down to it no one will, I know.
Back home for mine."

"Nonsense! If you can't get any one else, I will."

"Done!" so suddenly Spunk's hand came down on Ralph's that the boy jumped, "No one else will, that's a cinch;
so the job's yours. Two hours a day, you'll have to give up dish slinging."

A moment only Ralph's stubbornness held, then the bargain was made.

"But," objected Guy when he and Burton had made their way out of earshot, and Burt was crowing over his success,
"you sure did give yourself a mean character; Ralph thinks that was a real blow
you handed Spunk."

"Naturally; that's what did the business. And if my reputation got a black eye, it'll heal—in time. From now on I'm going to be a model cousin to Spunk —at least when Ralph's around. May even apologize, who knows—that is, if I can keep my face straight."

It May Be Urgent

When your Children Cry
for It

Castoria is a comfort when Baby is fretful. No sooner taken than the little one is at ease. If restless, a few drops soon bring contentment.
No harm done, for Castoria is a baby remedy, meant for babies. Perfectly safe to give the youngest infant;
you have the doctors' word for that!
It is a vegetable product and you could use it every day. But it's in an emergency that Castoria means most. Some night when constipation must be relieved—or colic pains—or other suffering, Never be without it;
some mothers keep an extra bottle, unopened, to make sure there will always be Castoria in the house. It is effective for older children, too;
read the book that comes with it.

PUZZLE ANSWERS

C	H	A	R	M	E	D
H	T	A	R	A
A	E	M	S	I
N	O	P	I	S
G	H	A	S	I
E	A	G	O	E
D	E	T	E	S	T	S

DOUBLE ACROSTIC

- S—it—S
- P—er—U
- R—oa—M
- I—te—M
- N—ic—E
- G—ea—R

STATE CHOPS—1. Se-VER, VER-MONT. 2. Bea-CON, CONNECTI-CUT. 3. Vo-CAL, CALIFORNIA. 4.
One-IDA, IDAHO. 5. B-ARK, ARK-ANSAS. 6. Sp-ILL, ILLINOIS.

DOCTORS quite approve the quick comfort of Bayer Aspirin. These perfectly harmless tablets ease an aching head without penalty. Their increasing use year after year is proof that they do help and can't harm. Take them for any ache; to avoid the pain peculiar to women; many have found them marvelous at such times. The proven directions with every package of Bayer Aspirin tell how to treat colds, sore throat, neuralgia, neuritis, etc. All druggists.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture
of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

Mexican Heat Powder

Immediately relieves Prickly Heat, Nettle Rash, Diaper Rash, Tired, Sore and Blistered Feet. Sunburn, all Skin Irritations. At your Druggists

PHYSICAL AND NERVOUS FORCE

You can overcome that spring time "tired" feeling and build up buoyant health and energy with

Yerke's Palatable Extract God Liver Oil

At All Leading Druggists
YERKES CHEMICAL CO., Winston-Salem, N. C.

THE PERRY PICTURES

ONE CENT SIZE
3x3 1/2. For 50 or more.
TWO CENT SIZE
5 1/2x8. For 25 or more.
Send 50 cents for 25 on
The Life of Christ or 25
Art Subjects or 25 for Children, 5 1/2 x 8. Or 50 for Children, 3 x 3 1/2.

LET your children make companions of world's most beautiful pictures. Culture, happiness and beauty will be added to their lives.

Use them in the Sunday School
Send 15 cents for Catalogue of 1800 Illustrations
The Perry Pictures Box 313, Malden, Mass

PLAY SAFE!

Are you gambling with nature's most terrible destroyer of property—Lightning? Is your family or your property at its mercy, unprotected? Safety is so simple and easy, no man can afford to risk this terrific gamble. Read this amazing new book, telling just what lightning is and how to prevent it. Written by national authorities of the famous Kretzer System. Free on request. It may save you an enormous loss THIS YEAR. Be safe. Write for your copy now.

St. Louis Lightning Rod Co.,
Trudeau & DeKalb Sts., Box D,
St. Louis, Mo.

FREE BOOK ABOUT LIGHTNING

King College for Men

Bristol, Tennessee

Stonewall Jackson College

FOR WOMEN

Abingdon, Va., Box A

Jointly Controlled by Montgomery Presbytery

Affiliated Colleges of the Synod of Appalachia.

King College offers four year courses leading to Degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Sciences — a small Christian College — Faculty of eleven Christian gentlemen of thorough training and practical experience. Expenses reasonable.

Stonewall Jackson College. Accredited Junior College for young women, in heart of healthful Virginia mountains. Two years high school, two years college. Music, art, home economics, secretarial course, physical room with bath. All outdoor sports. Tennis. Nine hole golf course on fifty-two acre campus. Homelike life. Write for catalogue.

10,000

Miles over land and sea. You'll delight in the exhilaration of this care-free voyage. The exotic glamour of the tropics. Gay Havana. The Panama Canal. Then, on to California and the golden West! 34 days of glorious travel for $400. Yellowstone Park side trip $70 extra.

Also

A tour to Europe; visiting England, Belgium, Holland, Germany, Switzerland, Italy, and France. A trip of broad cultural value. An experience never to be forgotten. 52 days for $590, all expenses. For information regarding travel anywhere write Desk R.

DANIEL RAVENEL CO.
Steamship and Tourist Agents
Charleston, S. C.

THE HISTORY OF SOAP

If you faced exile on an uninhabited island and were allowed to take one thing, what would you select? This question was asked recently of a group of several hundred students, and the most common answer was "Soap." Probably most of us would have made the same reply. Soap is such a common substance and in such general use among civilized mankind today that it is hard to realize that after all it is comparatively a new thing.

In ancient history one reads of the luxurious baths of the Greeks and Romans. They had no soap, however, in those days. The ancients cleansed their bodies by first anointing them with oil, and then rubbing on ashes. Soap making was learned by the Romans, from the barbarians whom they subjugated. In Gaul they found the natives using a cleansing substance made by boiling tallow and wool ashes in water. This soap-making process the Gauls learned from the Phoenicians. The art was quickly adopted by the Romans, who named their product soap, meaning tallow.

From that comes our word "soap." One of the most interesting discoveries made in the uncovering of the ruins of Pompeii was that of an old soap factory, eighteen hundred years old.

Soap did not make its appearance in England until late in the fourteenth century. Then it was classed as a super-luxury and taxed accordingly. Not until 1853 was this tax removed. The reason for this long period of taxation lay in the fact that alkalis were difficult and expensive to obtain; but in 1790 it was discovered that common ashes was a cheap source of alkali, and that soap could therefore be manufactured more cheaply. This discovery brought to a sudden end the "luxuriousness" of soap.

Our colonial grandmothers for the most part made their soaps in the home. A few small soap factories sprang up in New England, however, and some of the early American pioneers who had to wrest their living from a forest encumbered land found an agreeable source of income in burning the felled trees and selling the ashes.

Soap making is carried on all sorts of scales, from the small amount that the rural woman of today sometimes makes during the hog killing season, to the factories in which the kettles or vats each hold from ten to twelve carloads of soap.

The first floating soap was made by the Chinese. To make a floating soap, air must be blown into the preparation while it is still in a pasty condition.

Soap factories in the United States manufacture more than two billion pounds annually. This makes our annual soap consumption a little under twenty pounds per person. In England the annual consumption exceeds twenty-one pounds per person.—Frances Mary Hughes in Front Rank.

NAMES OF EVERGREEN TREES

An evergreen is a tree which stays green all winter; that is to say, the leaves do not fall in autumn, as do the leaves of deciduous trees. Many evergreens are conifers 'cone-bearing trees', but not all conifers are evergreens. The birch is a conifer but it not an evergreen.

Spruce is a familiar evergreen. It was so named because it was first known as a native of Prussia—French "Prusse," and Middle English "Pruse" or "Spruce." Spruce is an old name for Prussia. Fir is an old word, long in the language, always used for the tree; pine is Latin also the name of the tree which it designates today. The hemlock has also been long in the language.

There are evergreens which are not trees. Almost all tropical plants, botanically speaking, are evergreens. The holly is an interesting northern evergreen, much used for decoration purposes at Christmas.

The rhododendron is an evergreen shrub. Its name, according to Webster's New International Dictionary, comes from Greek words meaning literally "rose tree." It was so named because of its large flowers.

Other evergreens of the north include certain varieties of the cedar, ivy, laurel, etc. The words are all "old"—that is, they have been in the language for centuries, often nearly in the forms we know today as the names of these plants or similar plants.

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE

DECATUR, GA.

Strict entrance requirements, but few failures after admission. Expensive, but cheap in comparison with advantages offered. No capitation, but also none without capacity to enjoy almost unlimited. For details as to admission, scholarship aid, etc address

PRESIDENT J. R. McCAIN
Box 5

ERSKINE COLLEGE

Founded 1839

A college of Liberal Arts offering a standard four year course leading to Bachelor of Arts Degree.

A Christian College devoted to the training of young women for the larger responsibilities of life.

Reasonable costs, healthful surroundings, congenial environment. A grade Recognition.

Next session opens September 12.

For Catalogue address

R. C. GRIER, President or R. L. ROBINSON, Vice-President
DUE WEST, S. C.

SUMMER SCHOOL

JUNE 10 TO JULY 19, 1929

N. C. State College of Agriculture and Engineering College and Certificate Credit Courses in Agriculture, Botany, Economics, Education, Engineering, English, Geography, History, Modern Language, Physical Education, Physics, Physiology, Sociology, Zoology.

Faculty made up of leaders in their respective fields. College Credit for both Bachelor's and Master's degrees. ALL COURSES OPEN TO MEN and WOMEN.

For catalogue and other information, write
T. E. Browne, Director
State College Station, Va

DANVILLE MILITARY ACADEMY
Danville, Va

Owned and controlled by the State of Virginia.

Fully accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

The aim is Christian character and citizenship. Charges $600 per session. School opens September 1st.

Ask for Catalogue

COL. W. M. KEENE, President

PEACE INSTITUTE

Raleigh, North Carolina

OWNED by the Presbyterians of North Carolina

COURSES OFFERED: (1) College courses for first and second year work; (2) Preparatory courses; (3) Special courses in Home Economics and Commercial subjects.

WORK ACCEPTED BY: (1) The North Carolina State Department of Education; (2) All colleges and universities in North Carolina and by many colleges without this state.

SPECIAL FEATURES: (1) Individual attention to students; (2) Limited number of students; (3) Intimate home surroundings; (4) highly trained faculty; (5) Wholesome religious atmosphere; (6) Modern equipment.

Register Now for Fall Session of 1929-1930

For catalogue, book of views and other literature, write
William C. Pressly, President, Peace Institute, Raleigh, N. C.

Greensboro College

A Standard College for Women. Member of Association of American Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Southern States. The only chartered college for women in the state. Chartered by the State of North Carolina. Confers the Degree of A. B. in the literary department and B.M. in the music department.

In addition to the regular classical course, special attention is given to departments of Home Economics, Art, including Industrial and Commercial Art, Spoken English and Dramatic Art, Education, Sunday School Training, Piano Pedagogy, and to the complete School of Music.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION, APPLY TO
SAMUEL B. TURRENTINE, President, GREENSBORO, N. C.

MEREDITH COLLEGE

For YOUNG WOMEN

STANDARD COURSES IN ARTS AND SCIENCES, INCLUDING IN ART, IN HOME ECONOMICS

Confers the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Music. Development on a high plateau on the western boundary of North Carolina.

Room reservations are now being made for session 1929-30. For catalogue or further information write

CHAS. E. BREWER, President
Raleigh, N. C.

Sunday, May 19

- Atlanta, Ga.—WSB—1,000 Watts
 9:30 A. M., C. T. — Agoga Sunday School Class, Morgan Blake, teacher.
 10:55 A. M., C. T.—First Presbyterian Church.
 5:00 P. M., C. T.—Vesper Service from First Methodist Church.
- Hot Springs, Ark.—KTHS—5,000 Watts C. T.
 11:00 a. m.—St. Luke's Episcopal Church.
 6:00 p. m.—Old Familiar Hymns, Organ Recital.
- Washington, D. C.—WJSV—10,000 Watts—E. T.
 Washington, D. C.—WJSV.
 11:00 a. m. and 8:30 p. m.
 7:30 p. m.—Ladies Choir of Fairfax, Va.
 8:30 p. m.—Sermonette.
 8:45 p. m.—Sacred Song Trio.
- Gainesville, Fla.—WRUF—5,000 Watts—E. T.
 2:00 p. m.—Y. M. C. A. Service.
- Louisville, Ky.—WHAS—5,000 Watts—E. T.
 9:57 a. m.—Broadway Baptist Church.
- Shreveport, La.—KWKH—20,000 Watts—C. T.
 7:45 p. m.—First Baptist Church.
 9:00 p. m.—Question and Answer hour
- Charlotte, N. C.—WBT—5,000 Watts—E. T.
 11:00 a. m.—First Baptist Church.
 5:30 p. m.—Vesper Hour Quartet.
 7:30 p. m.—First Baptist Church.
- Raleigh, N. C.—WPTF—5,000 Watts—E. T.
 11:00 a. m.—Church Services.
 1:00 p. m.—Sacred Concert.
 7:30 p. m.—Evening Worship.
- Cincinnati, Ohio.—WLW—50,000 Watts—C. T.
 9:30 a. m.—Church School.
 10:00 a. m.—Presbyterian Church of the Covenant.
 3:00 p. m.—Organ Recital.
 5:00 p. m.—Vesper Service from Concordia Lutheran Church.
- Oklahoma City, Okla.—KFJF—5,000 Watts—C. T.
 10:00 a. m.—Men's Tabernacle Bible Class.
 11:00 a. m.—First Baptist Church Services.
 3:00 p. m.—Sacred Concert.
 7:30 p. m.—First Baptist Church Service.
- 9:30 p. m.—Independent Bible Lectures.
- Richmond, Va.—WRVA—5,000 Watts—E. T.
 11:00 a. m.—Second Presbyterian Church.
 7:30 p. m.—St. Mark's Episcopal Church.
- Fort Worth, Tex.—WBAP—5,000 Watts—C. T.
 4:00 p. m.—Hymn Hour.
 5:00 p. m.—Studio Vesper Services.
 7:30 p. m.—First Presbyterian Church.
- San Antonio, Tex.—WOAI—5,000 Watts—C. T.
 11:00 a. m.—First Presbyterian Church.
 Greensboro, N. C.—WNRC—E. T.
 11:15 a. m.—First Presbyterian.
 8:00 p. m.—First or Church of the Covenant.
- Atlanta, Georgia—WSB—C. T.
 11:00 a. m.—First Presbyterian. Also Saturday, 6:00 p. m.—Dr. Hull's Bible Class.
- Philadelphia—KMBC—E. T.
 4:30 p. m.—Tenth Presbyterian.
- Jacksonville, Fla.—WJAX—E. T.
 11:00 a. m.—Church Services.
 8:00 p. m.—Church Services.
- Nashville, Tenn.—WSM—C. T.
 11:00 a. m. and 8:00 p. m.—First Presbyterian.
- Knoxville, Tenn.—WNOX—C. T.
 7:30 p. m. Saturday—Dr. Glasgow's S. S. Lesson.

FOR SALE

At Montreat, N. C., comfortable, substantial eight-room house conveniently located on large lot, commodious garage, fruit trees and flowers. Expansive mountain views. Will sell either furnished or unfurnished. Terms if desired.

THOS. H. WEBB
 Concord, North Carolina

ORIENT FLOUR

Its Whiteness Denotes Its Purity
 MOUNTAIN CITY MILL CO., CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

Flies die faster

—when you spray clean-smelling Flit with the handy Flit sprayer! Mosquitoes drop just as fast. More people use Flit because it contains a greater amount of insect-killing ingredients. Harmless to humans, and its vapor does not stain.

"The yellow can with the black band"

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF. © 1929 Stanco Inc.

FURMAN UNIVERSITY

Greenville, S. C.

RICHARD FURMAN HALL

In the healthful, beautiful Piedmont Section of S. C. Strong Christian faculty. Emphasis on moral and spiritual values of life. Beautiful campus, commodious well equipped buildings. Courses leading to A. B., B. S., and LL. B. degrees. Vigorous and successful law school. 12 Weeks Summer School. Championship Athletics, Glee Club, Debating etc.
 For catalogue and other data write
 W. J. MCGLOTHLIN, Pres.

BELK'S
 NEW FURNITURE DEPT.

We have opened to the people of the Carolinas a most modern Furniture Department on our fourth floor, featuring a wide assortment of fine furniture for the home as well as newest novelty furniture.

On this same floor is located our Picture and mirror rooms, also china-ware, glass-ware and toys.

A visit to this floor will be both pleasurable and profitable.

Belk Brothers Co.
 Charlotte, N. C.

Direct From Mill To You

TERNS in new at Mill Prices. Consumer selling 1/4 to 1/3.

Prints, Towels, Towel Tubing, Wide Sheeting, Paperies, etc.

Save 1/4 to 1/3

AN MILL STORE
 Greenville, S. C.

PERSONAL ATTENTION

Individual student classes—conducive atmosphere—more instruction at

Presbyterian College
 Clinton, S. C.

DR. CALDWELL WAS RIGHT

Creeping sickness has not left Medical since he placed on laxative prescription he practice.

constipation, biliousness, depression, indigestion, and other indispositions means of simple vegetable and roots. These are of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup combination of senna and pepsin.

the remedy for constipation for the child and for you. get results in a mild way using Dr. Caldwell's why take chances with last several months, and It is pleasant to the action, and free from people find it ideal. have the generous bottles, Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Moiss, for free trial bottles courses lead to B. A. and Music, art, spoken English, Education. Gymnasium and Modern equipment. In Shenandoah Valley. Founded Staunton, Virginia.

ADWIN COLLEGE

LANCET

POIS, CARBUNCLES AND ULCERS

THE RIGHT WAY TO TRAVEL
 is by train. The safest. Most comfortable. Most reliable. Costs less. Inquire of Ticket Agents regarding greatly reduced fares for short trips.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Church and Sunday School Furniture

Send For Special Catalogue
THE SOUTHERN DESK COMPANY
 Hickory, N. C.

BOILS Relieve the pain and draw them quickly to a head
 — with —
GRAY'S OINTMENT
 At all drug stores. For free sample write
 W. F. Gray & Co., 724 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Nervous Women Praise Capudine

Delicately poised women who suffer from high nerve strain and nervous pains, such as periodic pains, headache and pains in the back and sides are high in their praise of Capudine because it quickly soothes the tense nerves and relieves the pain.

Being liquid, Capudine acts almost instantly,—does not upset the stomach. Sold by druggists in 30c and 60c sizes. (adv.)

YOUR CHURCH deserves a beautiful exterior in harmony with its spirit of culture and worship. Let us suggest appropriate shrubbery.

THE HOWARD-HICKORY CO., Hickory, N. C.
 Local Representatives Wanted, especially to sell fruit trees.
 Landscape Gardeners and Nurserymen

Piles and other Rectal diseases cured without pain or surgery. No hospital detention. Write to Dr. W. R. Register, 63 No. Broad Street, Atlanta, Georgia, for free book. Hundreds of cured patients.

Take STANBACK to Relieve PAIN

6 6 6
 is a Prescription for
Colds, Grippe, Flu, Dengue, Bilious Fever and Malaria.
 It is the most speedy remedy known.

RED EYES Dickey's old reliable eye water cools and heals red eyes. Strengthens weak eyes—relieves sore eyes, helps tired eyes. Relieves sore eyes from gnats and dust. In genuine red folding box at stores or by mail 25c. Over 50 years old.

DICKEY DRUG COMPANY, Bristol, Virginia

When answering advertisements mention this paper. Thus you will aid us in securing more advertising patronage

S P A R K L E S

His Progress
 An old Southern planter met one of his former negroes whom he had not seen for a long time. "Well, well!" said the planter. "What are you doing now, Uncle Amos?"
 "I's preachin' of de gospel."
 "What! You preaching?"
 "Yassah, marster, I'se a-preachin'."
 "Well, well! do you use notes?"
 "Nossuh. At de fust I use notes, but now I demands de cash."—New Success.

To Be Sure
 Prosperity creates more fools than adversity.
 Hubby—"I can't raise $100—that's all there is to it. I received a notice this morning from my bank about being overdrawn."
 Wifey—"Well, can't you try some other bank? They can't all be overdrawn."

Time Enough
 "What time do we get to New York, George?"
 Porter—"We is due there at 1:15, unless you has set your watch by Eastern time, which would make it 2:15, then, of co'se, if you is goin' by daylight savings time, it would be 3:15, unless we is an hour an' fifty minutes late—which we is."

One or 'Tother
 Young Wife: "I'm afraid, dear, my pie is not at all it should be. I think I must have left something out."
 Husband (with a grimace, after sampling it): "There's nothing you could leave out that would make it taste like that. It must be something you put in."
 —Boston Transcript.

Mother's Girl
 A newly-appointed head of a department was dictating to an up-to-date stenographer. He was a bit puzzled as to the exact wording, so he asked her, "Do you retire a loan?"
 "No," she answered, "I sleep with mama."

Why Teachers Get Married
 Question: "What are glaciers?"
 Answer: "Guys that fix windows when they are broken."
 Question: "What is a peninsula?"
 Answer: "A bird that lives on icebergs."
 Question: "What is a volcano?"
 Answer: "A mountain with a hole in the top. If you look down you can see the creator smoking."
 Question: "Why does a dog hang out its tongue when running?"
 Answer: "To balance its tail."
 Question: "What is steel wool?"
 Answer: "The fleece of a hydraulic ram."
 Question: "What are the Christian nations?"
 Answer: "Those that use cuss words."
 Question: "What is etiquette?"
 Answer: "Saying 'No thank you' when you mean 'gimme'."—Bookanwrap.

Not Allowed
 Among the residents of Roothan lived Robinson, a man with thirteen children who decided to take his wife and family to London.
 They arrived at the terminus and started to make a tour of the West End. Robinson led them hither and thither, pointing out all the landmarks as he went. Suddenly, however, their progress was arrested. A policeman laid a detaining hand on Robinson's arm.
 "I want your name and address, my good man," he said.
 "What for?" asked Robinson. "What have I done?"
 "I dunno," replied the man in blue, "but we can't have this crowd following you about."—London Answers.

A Good Dig
 Surrounded by members of the corporation, the mayor stepped forward to open the new golf course. He took a mighty swipe with a niblick, which he buried in the earth a foot behind the ball, smashing the club-head.
 Then, in solemn tones, he said: "Gentlemen, I declare these links well and truly opened."

Everything Figured On
 Father: "Before I consent to the marriage I must know your income."
 Suitor: "Five hundred pounds in all."
 "Then with the 500 pounds I allow my daughter you will have?"
 "Oh, I have reckoned that in."—Pearson's.

Chicora College for Women
 The Presbyterian College of South Carolina

Standard College Courses Large, Strong Faculty
 Beautiful Grounds Ideal Surroundings
 Healthful Climate Moderate Rates

For Catalog and Information, Address
S. C. Byrd, D.D., LL.D., President, Columbia, S. C.

FORTY-SIX YEARS CONTINUOUS SERVICE WITHOUT A LOSS ON ANY LOAN

We offer you a safe, tax-free investment for your regular weekly or monthly savings and your lump sum. Write for particulars.

ASSETS OVER $8,800,000.00

The Mutual Building and Loan Association
 Established 1881 CHARLOTTE

If In Doubt, Take B. & L. Shares

You will earn the highest interest rate on your savings consistent with perfect safety, and pay no tax on earnings. Shares cost twenty-five cents per week, usually mature in 333 weeks. Net you 6 1-2 per cent maturity.

Series Open in January, April, July and October

Mechanics Perpetual Building & Loan Association
 Established 1883
 18 E. Fourth St. Charlotte

THE WINTHROP DESK, $75

The Governor Winthrop desk has come down to us from the very earliest beginning of America. In the one shown here every detail has been copied minutely. It is made in Grand Rapids which is an assurance of its fine quality. Others, varying in size from $70 to $145.

W.T. McCOY & Co.
 Home Furnishers
 423-425 SOUTH TRYON STREET
 CHARLOTTE, N. C.

For the Future

Are you making ready to share in the opportunities which increasing prosperity will bring?

A Reserve Fund Banked Will Help

Charlotte National Bank
 Resources Over $5,000,000.00

"National Bank Safety For Savings"

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

Religious Newspaper for the Family

Reprinted by the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.

RIDGES, D.D., Editor-in-Chief
ELLS, D.D., Co-Editor
ASPER WILLIS, Contributing Editor

ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858

M. F. ELLIS, Vice-President
G. GARTH, Treasurer and News Editor
EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY

CHARLOTTE, N. C., MAY 22, 1929

No. 21

GENERAL ASSEMBLY AT MONTREAT— KIRK PREACHES OPENING SERMON

Elected by Acclamation—in History of Assembly

Thursday Morning
To live to see the Presbyterians united in one great organic spirit, one in doctrine, one in the spirit of the Reformation, Dr. Harris E. Kirk, retiring Moderator of the General Assembly at Montreat, May 16, 1929, preached the opening sermon.

Commissioners out of the city are registered at Assembly hotels and boarding houses at Montreat. In addition there are many visitors, some of the wives bringing their wives to the Assembly Inn, the new hotel at Montreat, which was just opened to the public through the season of guests who come to the assemblies and conferences.

Anderson, the president of the Montreat Association, welcomed the visitors assuring them of a reception in these grounds to the church.

At the opening session of the assembly was conducted by Mr. Adams. Mr. and Mrs. Adams were throughout North Carolina. Adams led a vested choir of citizens of Montreat and the Montreat Normal, the school which uses the Assembly buildings during the year. The service was conducted by Dr. Dobyens, of Birmingham, and I. Dobbs, of El Campo, the retiring Moderator, subject, "The Presbyterians as a text, I Cor. 2:16, up to his declaration that he hoped to see the Presbyterians all united in one or as he described what he called the genius of the Presbyterian. This he said was the priestly or sacramental which sought a shelter in an arena. "The spirit of man loves to live dangerously," Dr. Kirk said. "He is a prophet rather than a seer, and seeks the midst of things rather than the cloister."

described the political and reform of religion which he said would make of the church and make of the state or society. He expressed the conviction that Presbyterians are if they would make connections with other of their own type.

Afternoon and Night
The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, at Montreat today the Assembly by unanimous vote Dr. Dobyens, of Birmingham, to preside over the body which will extend until next Thursday. The pastor of the South Presbyterian Church in Birminghams is popular over the assembly as a conference leader.

At the Assembly for Dr. Kirk has been duplicated in the year 1895, when Dr. C. R. Williams, of Louisville, was unanimously elected with no other nomination. Dr. Palmer was thus elected at the Assembly in Augusta, Ga. These three instances are of such elections.

Dr. W. R. Dobyens

Elected Moderator by unanimous vote. This is the third time such a vote has been made in the history of the General Assembly—the last being in 1895

Dr. E. T. Thompson, of Charleston, W. Va., chairman of the committee of Assembly's Work, better known as the committee of forty-four, made his report and declared the committee was opposed to consolidation of executive committees, but gave way for A. S. Johnson, of Richmond, to explain the reasons for the minority report which favors consolidation. This report will be acted on later by the Assembly.

It was also reported that Rev. P. D. Miller, of South Carolina, had been elected to the office of educational secretary of Home Missions with headquarters at Atlanta, and that Mrs. W. C. Winsborough, secretary of Woman's Work had resigned, and the committee recommended a pension for the time being of $2,000 per annum for Mrs. Winsborough. The committee nominated Miss Janie McGauchey, of St. Louis, as her successor.

In connection with the report of the committee of Assembly's Work, the various heads of the church agencies spoke. Among them Dr. E. W. Smith, of Nashville, Tenn., of the Foreign Mission Committee, made an impassioned appeal for his cause in which he said the Church dropped down $477,000 in gifts from living donors last year, and total gifts were $98,000 short of the budget costs. He urged the church to make more sacrificial giving. Fifty missionaries had been dropped from the rolls last year because the church had withheld the necessary funds.

Dr. S. L. Morris, of Atlanta, also deplored a falling short of funds for Home Missions. There had been a shortage of $100,000 a year for five years, and a corresponding lessening of the enterprises and workers.

Dr. H. H. Sweets, of Louisville, Ky., secretary of Christian Education and Ministerial Relief said the debt of his committee had been decreased about $28,000, with larger receipts than the year before. Dr. Sweets announced that George Huggins, of Philadelphia, a noted actuary, would be present at the Assembly to discuss the Ministers' Annuity Fund which will be presented to this meeting. Mr. Huggins has assisted other denominations in working out their pension funds.

Converse Announces Large Gift

Girls' College Will Modernize its Main Building to be Named for First President

Gift by Mrs. S. Clay Williams, of Winston-Salem, of $30,000 to modernize the main building of Converse College was announced Tuesday afternoon at the annual luncheon of the alumnae association of the institution. The work is to be done this summer.

On suggestion of Mrs. Williams, who is president of the association, it was voted to request the board of directors to change the names of the building to Wilson building, in honor of the first president of the institution, Benjamin F. Wilson. Mrs. Williams, who was Miss Lu Telle Sherrill, of the class of 1905, was given a rising vote of thanks.

Her name was not mentioned in the announcement of the gift, but was made public afterwards.

Mrs. Williams paid tribute to Dr. Wilson and suggested the building name change. On motion of Mrs. C. C. Kirby, of Spartanburg, it was decided to ask the trustees to make the change.

Naming of the student activities building, erection of which is proposed, for Dr. Robert Paine Pell, president of the institution, was also favored. A motion to this effect was made by Mrs. Julia Peterkin, South Carolina novelist, who recently received the Pulitzer award for the best novel of 1928.

A scholarship as a memorial to Betty Clyde, of Sherman, Texas, was announced from the class of 1926, of which Miss Clyde, who was killed in an airplane accident last winter, was a member. Miss Lucy Bailey, of Clinton, president of the 1929 class, announced that the class had pledged $2,500 to the endowment fund, and another gift of $500 was announced.

All of these executive agencies will present their causes in popular meetings before the Assembly closes.

Dr. J. D. Leslie, the Stated Clerk of the Assembly gave some statistics of the year just closing. There are 2,368 ministers on roll, serving 3,581 churches. There have been added to the Church on profession of faith 20,177, while the whole number of members in the churches now is 453,940, which is a gain of 9,283 over last year's report. The Sunday School numbers 407,970.

Friday Morning

Over one-half of the Presbyteries of the Southern Presbyterian denomination have voted in favor of union with the United Presbyterian Church, announced Dr. S. L. Morris, of Atlanta, chairman of the Committee on Closer Relation to the Assembly at its meeting this morning. Dr. Morris has tabulated the replies of the 93 Presbyteries and reported that 50 had voted approval, while only 11 had declined. Thirty-two had not been heard from. "In like manner," said Dr. Morris, "in the United Presbyterian Church, 36 Presbyteries had voted to unite while only 11 of the 57 had disapproved."

"The Associate Reformed Synod now in session in Memphis will probably appoint a committee on union at this meeting, which they declined to do last year," Dr. Morris reported. In signing the report eight of the Southern Committee gave their endorsement, with only R. A. Dunn, of Charlotte, refusing to sign, but his signature was withheld chiefly because he was unable to meet with the committee. Mr. Dunn will be at the Assembly next week to speak for himself.

The location of the library and vaults of the Historical Foundation at

Henderson To Have New Building

Congregation Hopes to Occupy by December 1 to Cost $60,000

The Henderson, N. C., Dispatch publishes the following news in the issue of May 11:

Bids for the construction of the new Presbyterian Church here have been awarded. The cost of the structure is estimated at about $60,000. December 1 has been agreed upon as the time for the completion of the building.

The contract for the construction was awarded to John W. Hudson, of Tarboro, and the plumbing and heating contract was awarded to the Dermott Heating Company, of Durham. Both firms were said by the committee to be well known contractors. The Hudson Company recently completed the annex to the Sir Walter Hotel at Raleigh.

Seven bids, accompanied by certified checks or bonds in the sum of $1,000, were received for the construction of the building and three firms made bids for the plumbing and heating. The bids for the church ranged in price from $38,750 to $49,247, while those for the plumbing and heating were from $5,280 to $5,690. An oil-burning furnace was specified in the latter contract.

It is understood that construction will begin as soon as the present church can be moved from its site where the new church is to be erected. J. W. Beck was appointed by the building committee to take charge of the removal of the present structure. It was reported that he is offering to give it to anyone who would remove without undue delay.

J. C. Cooper, a member of the committee, said that the organ would be taken down and stored and that if enough funds were available, it would be enlarged and electrified for use in the new building. The present church bell will be saved and installed in the tower of the church.

The Board of County Commissioners has granted permission to the Presbyterian congregation to use the court house during the time that they are without a place of worship. As stated in the Dispatch a few days ago, the walls and wood work of the Court House are being re-painted and renewed.

Mayor I. B. Watkins, chairman of the building committee, stated that the building committee expected to use the present church furniture in the new building and that the new furniture might not be purchased until the church is entirely paid for.

Although the committee's estimate was that the new church would cost in the neighborhood of $60,000, some of its members are inclined to believe because of the bids which they regarded as favorable, the building can be erected at a smaller cost, including plumbing, heating, furniture and equipment.

Montreat at Assembly Inn was brought to the attention of the commissioners. Dr. S. H. Chester, of Montreat informed the Assembly that in fireproof vaults furnished by the great hotel here four rooms are assigned to the housing of a library of records worth $30,000, brought from many points, and deposited for safe keeping and facilities for study and reference are afforded, and over 100 applications were made for copies of records the past year. This collection is said to be one of the rarest in this country or in the world. The curator is Dr. S. M. Tenney, who is assisted by Mrs. Tenney. Among the files of religious newspapers pers deposited with the Historical Foundation is a complete file of an old religious periodical published many years ago in Fayetteville, The Watchman of the South.

(Continued on Page Two)

CONTINUATIONS FROM PAGE ONE

GENERAL ASSEMBLY MEETS AT MONTREAT—DR. KIRK PREACHES OPENING SERMON

Rev. A. D. P. Gilmour, D.D., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Wilmington, offered a report to the Assembly as chairman of an ad interim committee appointed to prepare forms of worship for the use of the ministers and churches. Dr. Gilmour submitted the Directory which was re-submitted to the committee last year, and reported the only changes made were those in phraseology. The committee recommended that the Assembly adopt the book of optional forms for marriages, funeral occasions, etc., which is now being issued by the Presbyterian Church in the North. This was done as an act of economy and comity, the book to receive the imprint of the Southern Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Walter L. Lingle, of the Assembly's Training School and a member of the Synod of North Carolina reported as president of the school located at Richmond that 118 students were in training last year, some men and mostly women preparing for lay service in the churches. The institution now has property worth $700,000, with a debt of nearly $70,000. Its great need is $100,000 endowment for the three chairs of Bible, Education and Missions.

One of the outstanding reports of the Assembly was that made by Dr. R. C. Anderson, on Montreat, in which he showed the value and usefulness of this great enterprise here which now belongs to the General Assembly. A great tract of 4,000 acres of land, wonderful stone structures and other constructions and utilities worth over $1,000,000 lie here for the service of the Church. Over 20,000 persons attended the conferences last summer hearing speakers of world-wide reputation. A school, the Normal, with 120 girls in a Junior College, is at work through the year.

"The finest monument of the energies and vision of Montreat," declared Dr. Anderson, "is Assembly Inn, worth over $250,000 built of native stone, by native labor, and until now built on a cash basis, with only $8,400 contributed by the churches as church funds. The rest has come from the devoted women ($15,000) and individuals who have faith and love for this great institution."

"We have gone as far as we can," said Dr. Anderson. "We owe $100,000 due in October, with $30,000 in sight. What shall we do? Make the charges of the hotel pay for it? Or shall the church now come to the aid of Montreat and place her where she can give these first class accommodations, not on the basis charged by the tourists hotels, but ask only the moderate bills we have always asked, so that anyone may enjoy these opportunities regardless of financial income."

Dr. Anderson was liberally applauded for the manifest enterprise and sacrifice which he has been compelled to show in managing this great institution.

Last night, three gavels were presented to Moderator Dobyms. One of these was by J. W. McCain, of Waxhaw, which was made from a hickory tree standing near the birthplace of Andrew Jackson, and from a walnut tree, used by the British to attempt the hanging of Hugh McCain, revolutionary patriot, who was rescued by his friends.

Dr. R. C. Long, of Atlanta, reported as secretary of stewardship that the every member canvass in March had gone $187,913 over that of a year ago. Twenty-three Presbyteries had exceeded their records, among them being Mecklenburg, Albemarle, Winston-Salem, in North Carolina, and two in South Carolina, that of Congaree and South Carolina, and one colored Presbytery made up of colored ministers of both the Carolinas.

Miss Janie McGaughey, reported for Mrs. W. C. Winsborough, secretary of Woman's Work, that the women of the Church had raised $1,610,218 last year. There are 160,000 women in the circles of the Auxiliaries. The women gave money to erect a colored nurses home at Tuscaloosa, Ala. Miss McGaughey presented words of appreciation from Mrs. Winsborough, who is retiring from office.

Dr. E. T. Thompson, of the Assembly's Work Committee, announced that Dr. J. L. Fairley would be nominated executive secretary of Religious Education, vice R. E. Magill, who would be nominated business manager of the Business Department.

Friday Afternoon and Night

At hotel Alba Friday night the alumni of Union Seminary attending the Assembly, with their ladies and friends, met at a banquet table. Dr. W. L. Lingle presided and presented Dr. Arthur Y. Beatty, of Richmond, who spoke on the financial needs of the seminary.

Tuesday the Assembly was addressed by several visitors. Rev. W. A. Hamilton, of Edinburgh, Scotland, secretary of the World's Alliance of Presbyterian and Reformed Churches which seeks to promote fraternal relation between Presbyterian bodies all over the world. This organization he announced would have a great conference June 19 in Boston, to which about 36 representatives of the Assembly will go.

Dr. G. W. Brown, of New York, secretary of the American Bible Society, told the Assembly that this society distributed over 11 million Bibles last year in 182 languages.

Dr. C. L. Godell, of New York, a secretary of the Federal Council presented the need of the denominations of Protestantism for federal co-operation, and especially emphasized the great need of stressing evangelism among the churches. Dr. Goodell conducted the devotional service this morning, and urged the Assembly to unite in the observance of the 100th anniversary of the first day of Pentecost.

Rev. P. Boses, pastor, of Rome, Italy, brought fraternal greetings from the Waldensian Church of that land.

Friday's session of the Assembly was devoted to the interests of Religious Education as expressed in the Sunday School and was under the auspices of the committee which is located in Richmond, and of which R. E. Magill has been for many year the secretary. Dr. E. E. Smith, of Owensboro, Ky., presided.

The address of the evening was made by Rev. C. L. King, D.D., of Grace Covenant Church, Richmond. His theme was Evangelism Through Religious Education. Dr. King declared that personal evangelism was the method Jesus Christ used in establishing Christianity when he was here on earth, and that he gave to the Church that method to use in all ages, and he expects us to use that method today. If we do not use the method of personal evangelism and teach our children to use it in our Sunday Schools the Church will perish from the world. This is our only chance.

Saturday Morning

Prolonged applause greeted Dr. S. L. Morris, of Atlanta, chairman of the committee on Closer Relations with other churches as he made his speech today at the General Assembly now in session here. Dr. Morris is in favor of union with the United Presbyterian Church, which has been approved by a majority of the 93 Presbyteries of the Southern Presbyterian Church. The clapping of hands indicated that the Assembly is in favor of the union though the vote has not yet been taken.

Dr. Morris outlined his arguments in a facetious manner, yet in a convincing style. He said that the unity of doctrine and spirit of the two denominations made union possible, and that such a step would go far to heal breaches now in Protestantism. He recalled the position of Luther at Marburg, Germany, 400 years ago as the cause of these breaches. He called attention to the recent union of Presbyterian churches in Scotland as a fine example of present tendencies. Dr. Morris pleaded for the nation-wide testimony this union would give. He answered argument against the adoption of the report which affect foreign mission work, the attitude to women's church activities, and the mixed race question.

Dr. Morris was speaking to the motion made by Rev. E. T. Thompson, D.D., of Richmond, Va., proposing that the Assembly approve the basis of union outlined in the report and send it down to the Presbyteries recommending its adoption. The basis of union accepts the confession of faith, catechisms, and the confessional statement of the U. P.'s, the use of hymns and psalms, safeguarding of property rights, amalgamation of agencies, and agreement of representation in courts of the church.

Protests to the hasty action of the Assembly were made by Dr. W. M. McPheeters, of Columbia Seminary, Rev. H. R. McFadyen, of Nashville, Mr. J. S. Boyd, and Mr. A. W. Orr, of Kansas City. The latter two want union with the Northern Presbyterian Church, rather than with the U. P.

The question was put on the docket until 2:30 Monday.

Dr. J. I. Vance, who is now holding a series of meetings in Salisbury, presented the cause of Protestant Relief in Europe. While the Southern Presbyterians only gave $8,662 to this cause last year this was more than given by other churches. They will be asked for $20,000 this year to help Protestant churches impoverished by the late war.

Dr. J. R. Voris, of New York, representing the Near East Relief congratulated the Assembly on its liberality to this cause, and reported that the 20,000 orphans being supported and educated by these funds are reaching an age of self-support, and plans for the continuation of the work of the Relief Fund will be continued for several years, in industrial, and religious education. Golden Rule Sunday will be perpetuated.

An address on the office and work of the elders of the Church was made by Judge W. L. Frierson, of Chattanooga, in which he appealed to the laymen present to measure up to the privileges of their office.

Dr. H. E. Kirk, the retiring Moderator, preached at the First Church, Asheville, at 11 a. m., and Dr. W. L. Lingle, of Richmond, at the same church in the evening. Dr. E. L. Siler, of Maxton, and Dr. W. B. McIlwaine, of Charlotte, preached at churches in Black Mountain.

Sunday afternoon Dr. Samuel Zwemer, of Cairo, Egypt, world known missionary to the Mohammedans, spoke. The Moderator, Dr. W. R. Dobyms preached to the Assembly at 11, according to custom. The Assembly presented to Dr. Dobyms the gavel given to the Assembly in memory of Samuel Lapsley, revered first missionary to the Congo. This was in honor of Dr. Dobyms' 68th birthday and 40th anniversary of his ordination which are just celebrated.

In the report of R. E. Magill, executive secretary of Religious Education, Mr. Magill who may retire from office at this meeting after 26 years of service, several striking facts were brought out. Mr. Magill has managed the book and publishing business of the Church for this term of years and has seen the business grow from a struggling concern to $650,000 a year business, and never borrowed money. The Sunday School publications have quadrupled and now have circulation of nearly 18,000,000. The property has multiplied over eight times in value, and the business not only supports its 42 employees, but makes large contributions to the cause of Sunday School work.

Saturday Night

It is rumored here tonight that in response to the protests made at the meeting this morning the Committee of Bills and Overtures, of which Dr. H. E. Kirk is chairman, that this committee will recommend that the Assembly open overtures for closer relation with the Northern Presbyterian Church, the Associated Reformed Church, as well as the United Presbyterian which is now in due process of negotiation. Other denominations of the Presbyterian type may even be added. While it is outside the rules for a committee to divulge its own findings, Dr. Kirk will not either affirm or deny these rumors.

The meeting tonight was in the interest of Foreign Missions, and presided over by Dr. W. B. McIlwaine, of Charlotte. Four speakers were heard, Dr. W. H. Hudson, of China, Dr. C. C. Knight, of Brazil; Dr. R. D. Bedinger, of the Congo, Africa; and Mr. E. D. Grant, of Nashville, Tenn., who is educational secretary of the Foreign Mission Committee.

Sunday Morning

"From the statistical reports presented to the General Assembly for several years, and the practical church in the fields, the Southern Presbyterian Church is more institutions and drives for they are in the main job w ed to do, and that is to souls," declared Dr. W. R. Moderator of the Presby eral Assembly, now in sess

Dr. Dobyms, as Moderator the 11 o'clock sermon as is of the Assembly. He an was not going to preach a General Assembly serm preach to the gathering a are concerned with other Dobyms used for his them "Work," and stressed the of every Christian being a individuals, and try to brin confession of Christ and b

Dr. Dobyms used the ap his example, and declar sought by all means to Such a spirit ought to an Christian. Instead order tions fill our time and hearts. Do you know you cried the Moderator. Hav viction and a knowledge

Are you out after souls? everywhere. Dr. Dobyms instance that came to his the train coming out of the Assembly, when a you an opportunity to lead a m who picked up her l which had dropped in the

"I have received more o than my share from the A crowning one being this the chair of the Moderato their will be forgotten," Dobyms, "if, when I get to will be someone there at gate waiting for me to tel been the agent that br there."

At 3 p. m. today the wor missionary to the Moham Samuel M. Zwemer, of C spoke at the Anderson at the situation in the East. according to Dr. Zwemer, up of the Islamic solida forces of civilization are on the agelong customs a the Mohammedan religio of life. While this is espe Turkey, it is also visible Moslems of Africa.

At 4 p. m. Dr. Henry of Richmond, Va., Direct try Church Work led a p ing in the interest of his The girls of the Montr School under his direction Miss Bessie Dobbs preser ant, entitled "Along the the King," which made a young people to stay on go to rural communities their lives to Christian lead

Rev. S. J. Venable, of and Dr. W. McC. White, of sented the benefits to be c aggressive rural church country and the city.

Dr. McLaughlin has t the theological seminaries about three dozen young the ministry to make i work their initial effort.

Among the visitors to t are Rev. Dwight M. C Charlottesville, Va., and p Presbyterian Church the pastor of the Church by th Road, at Greensboro, N. C Maphis, head of the Ed partment in the University They are here to insist on bly accepting the invitati lottesville to meet there it crowning event in the George W. Petric, pas years and now pastor eme

DAVIDSON ALUMNI O COMMENCEME

Several Classes to hold re Y Secretary Elec

Fifteen classes will have the next Davidson College ment, and alumni officials the midst of preparations hundreds of Davidson alun flock to the campus durin day period of commenc 2-5. The majority will alumni day, June 4, and l tainment is being arrange with particular emphasis o con.

The classes of 1879, 1904 return for their 50th, 25th re-unions, respectively, (Continued on page

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

FOUNDED 1858

an of the Synod of N. C. for 70 Years

Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as Second Class Matter.

Terms—The subscription price of the Standard is payable in advance. To ministers the price is $2.50 per year. To ministers' wives the price is $2.50 per year.

The mailing label shows the month and year to which the subscription is paid. Payment in advance is required.

Orders may be made by money order, check, or registered letter, payable by mail.

Obituary Notices—No charge is made for notices of less than one hundred words, but for all over fifty words the charge is $1.00 per word.

Advertisements—Sent on application.

Changes—Kindly send us both old and new addresses with the desired change.

Subscriptions are made only upon the written request of the subscriber. Settlement in full must be made at the same time.

Advertising and Business Communications Should be

Addressed to
PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD
Box 863
Charlotte, N. C.

EDITORIAL

NOTES AT THE MONTREAT ASSEMBLY

to wish to follow the proceedings of the General Assembly, now in session at the beautiful Conference grounds of Montreat, in every detail, will have to read the accounts of our valued Colleague, Dr. G. H. Garth, who is supplying the daily most accurate accounts of what is going on.

It will be a kind of Mosaic work, consisting of the proceedings at times and persons at others, interspersed with sage counsel for future dangers to the Church, and some time furnishing valuable historical material for some future historian who will picture the condition of the Church in the past.

Dr. E. Kirk, the last Moderator opened the Assembly with a sermon which we all enjoyed.

Who have not read it should do so, for he has sustained his reputation of being one of the great preachers of this age.

The election of a Moderator is always the high point of the first day.

Generally an occasion for the magnification of a man's virtues and the ignoring of his faults when the speaker gives free reins to his imagination, without being confined to facts.

William Huck, of Atlanta, nominated Dr. Doby, of Birmingham, Ala., and Dr. Phillips, of Columbia, S. C., second in nomination, and then to the surprise of all Dr. Doby was elected by acclamation, an honor never given in our Assembly.

Dr. Doby deserved honor, a recognition of his Lord, and faithful work all his life. Outside of his own family he has brought more pleasure than to the writer, and he is loved by all as a brother true and true.

Early in the morning Dr. Goodell, Secretary of the Assembly, was heard in connection with the business of the Council.

Leaders doubtless suspect we have an admirer of this piece of ecclesiastical machinery.

Who admired it in the abstract, as emblematic of the spiritual unity of the Church, but in the concrete however we have always been disappointed by its various departures from the ideal of our own Church, it was called to neutralize our own testimony to the truth of the Church.

The inspiration of Dr. Goodell's stirring address at the Assembly started out under auspicious circumstances, each member present listening and praying for the inducement of power that would enable them to plan great things and accomplish them for their Lord and Master. Dr. Goodell, as if forestalling any criticism of the auditorium, gave very interesting directions how the voice must be raised and how high the head must be lifted. At the close, the stated Clerk informed the Assembly that in reading communications, he would address the Central Column, thus showing that the seed sown by the honored president of Montreat had already begun to bear fruit.

The Secretaries had the floor during the afternoon.

Dr. E. W. Smith addressed the Assembly in the interest of the Foreign Missions work.

From the money point of view the future was very gloomy, but from the view of members added on the field it was very bright.

The year's receipts for physical equipment were $50,571.56, making the total receipts from all sources $1,171,451.48.

The deficit (on April 1, 1928) with which the year began was $131,898.40. But this deficit was reduced by $9,634.30 from living donors designated to deficit reduction, and also by $45,564.85 mainly representing gain in adjusting Mission Accounts and Exchange, these two amounts reducing the previous deficit to $76,699.25. This amount added to this year's deficit of $97,959.77 makes the total deficit on April 1, 1929, $174,659.02, an increase of $42,760.62 over the total deficit of the previous April 1.

Dr. S. L. Morris, the Executive Secretary of Home Missions presented his report, which also showed a decrease in receipts.

The total Home Mission receipts were $588,008.29 including the special Auxiliary Birthday Gift of $41,500 for the Estes Snedecor Memorial Training School for Negro Nurses, which is $9,580 less than the total received in 1928, which included the Special Flood Relief Fund of $29,994.

There was a decrease of $14,450.99 in budget receipts from churches, societies, Sunday Schools and individuals; a decrease of $1,761.92 from legacies and income from investments; a decrease of $4,872.70 in current gifts for special objects. The total received from these sources was $546,508.29, which is $21,085.60 less than was received from the same sources last year.

In five years not only has there been no enlargement of the work, but during this period the number of workers aided has been reduced from 802 to 663, and the number of mission enterprises supported has been reduced from 894 to 722.

When we consider the demands of our boundless field and the fact that Home Mission work lies at the foundation of our hopes of progress along every line we must confess that the outlook is not bright, but we can say with Carey that the outlook is as bright as the promises of God, which we are sure are brilliant with hope.

Dr. H. H. Sweets presented his report on Christian Education, where the debt has been decreased from $52,000 to $26,000.

At every Assembly there is always a gavel-presentation period, which affords an opportunity to dip into history, geography and genealogy.

Dr. Kirk, at the request of the donors, Rev. T. McKee and Vernon Anderson, presented a gavel sent from Africa, in memory of Rev. Samuel Lapsley, first missionary to that land.

J. W. McCain, of Waxhaw, N. C., presented a gavel made of walnut and hickory wood.

The walnut wood was from a tree upon which an ancestor of his was swung up several times by the Tories in the Revolutionary War.

The hickory, in memory of Old Hickory, whose birthplace, South Carolina's claim to the contrary, notwithstanding, was near the same section.

Rev. R. C. Long, Secretary of Stewardship, made an address on the importance of his work, which address showed great talent in alliteration, but lack of space prevents its publication.

Dr. Purcell addressed the Assembly on Men's Work of which he is the Secretary.

Miss Janie W. McGaughey was elected for a term of three years to succeed Mrs. Winsborough, who was forced to resign by reason of her health, much to the regret of the entire Church.

This work is now 17 years old, and the following is the record of the faithful women of the Church:

1. An organization more than 140,000, marching shoulder to shoulder and keeping perfect step in every division of the work of the Church. A more consecrated and loyal army of women never followed the white flag of our Leader and King. Last year 58,256 women studied God's Word in 4,317 groups; 64,370 women were members of Prayer groups for daily intercession; 89,963 women studied Missions in 4,670 groups.

2. During the past seven years the women have, by especial gifts, erected schools for girls in Japan, Korea, Brazil; for Mexican girls in Texas and Indian girls in Oklahoma; a Nurses' Training School for negro girls and a home for the President of the Assembly's Training School. These have cost $324,382.

3. The gifts to all the Causes of the Church this year amount to $1,610,218.

In her seventeen years of life, the Auxiliary, according to the Minutes of the Assembly, has given $3,419,437 to Foreign Missions; $995,144 to Assembly's Home Missions; $638,764 to C. E. and M. R. and equally generous gifts to other departments of the work of the Church.

The Auxiliary's total gifts to the Church in the past seventeen years are $16,628,700.

On Friday morning Dr. Chester set forth the Value of the Historical Foundation, now under the devoted oversight of Rev. S. M. Tenney. He called attention to the great value of this collection, and to its importance to those engaged in historical research.

Dr. Tenney has placed the Church under great obligations by reason of his labors along this line.

During his address some one called out, "speak louder," as his voice is not strong. Dr. Chester facetiously remarked that he once spent an amount of hard-earned cash in elocution lessons.

In time, however, the teacher gave him back one-half of what he had paid him, saying that his conscience would not allow him to keep his money, as he was unable to teach him anything of the art of speaking.

The last Assembly asked Presbyteries to make an assessment for this worthy cause, but some of them declined to make the assessment.

The present Assembly is asked to give $45,000 to this cause, in order that it may do efficient work.

We hope that the Assembly will grant this request, as already its value to students is being realized.

Dr. Tenney was then given the privilege of the floor, and he spoke of his work and its value to the Church.

An effort is being made to persuade the Presbyteries of the Church to deposit their records in the fire-proof vaults so generously provided by the Montreat Association.

Dr. S. L. Morris, Chairman of the Committee on Union with the United Presbyterian Church made a partial report, preliminary to a full discussion of the question later in the proceedings of the Assembly.

It seems from the report of this committee for union with the Cumberland Presbyterian Church was flatly declined, with the explicit statement that they would unite with no other Church under any circumstances.

It would seem that they remember the sad results of their union with the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A.

As Lord Chesterfield is said to have replied when someone asked him to go fox-hunting with him, "No, I thank you. I have been."

It seems from the report of this Committee that they have already agreed upon a name, "The United Presbyterian Church of the United States."

Dr. Gilmour, Chairman of the Committee on the Directory for Worship reported that they were still at work, and that they found some difficulty in choosing optional forms.

They have certain tentative forms under consideration.

They may conclude to use the optional forms of the Presbyterian Church of the United States of America.

They are more inclined to this action, because the Northern Church has adopted, for their training school books, prepared by our men, Dr. Moore and Dr. Mack.

Dr. Lingle reported great progress of the Training School for Lay-Workers.

(Continued on page 11)

 CONTRIBUTED

WHERE IS THE SOUTHERN PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH GOING IN YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK?

W. Arnett Gamble, Jr.

Has the Southern Presbyterian Church, as a whole, been giving proper consideration to the question of where it is going, or being led, in its young people's work? Present conditions indicate that it has not.

There are three groups of opinion as to what the Church should do, officially and authoritatively, in its promotion of work for the young people. One group support the idea of organized departments of the Church school, meeting Sunday morning as part of the "Church school," then meeting Sunday night at the time ordinarily used by young people's societies.

Another group supports the idea of continuing the plan of young people's societies as distinct organizations but making those societies strictly denominational, severing relations with the interdenominational organization in which our young people have been participating for some years, and calling the societies "Presbyterian Young People's Leagues."

The third group support the idea of maintaining the Christian Endeavor society as a definite form of young people's society organization. At the present time this group is considerably in the majority with respect to the number of Churches having that form of work and the number of members enrolled, but this idea seems to have come into disfavor with a number of those to whom the Assembly has entrusted the promotion of its young people's work. The advocates of organized Church school departments and the advocates of the "Presbyterian Young People's League," though these ideas are antagonistic to each other, seem to be making common cause against Christian Endeavor.

The purpose of this article is not to deal particularly with the idea of Church school departments. The writer was told several years ago that "Christian Endeavor's day is passing; it is being superseded by the organized Sunday school class." He didn't believe it twelve years ago and doesn't believe it now. If some Churches want to try a similar experiment today, the organized departments, the right is not contested. However, we have always felt that the plea for eliminating a young people's society as a separate organization because the young people were part of the Sunday school (or "church school") would require, if carried to its logical conclusion, that the Men-of-the-Church and the Woman's Auxiliary be eliminated because the men and the women are part of the Sunday school. These adult organization, and their Assembly committees, would resist any such plan, but the organizations for the young people are in adult hands and the experimenters go on with their experiments.

Shall We Keep Our Connection With Christian Endeavor?

This article has as its primary purpose the shedding of light on the question of whether our denomination shall continue its definite connection with the Christian Endeavor movement that has brought so much of happiness and profit and world vision to our young people, or sever this connection and establish by Assembly edict a denominational organization.

It might be noted in passing that even the establishment of such a form of young people's society would not satisfy those who advocate the elimination of all young people's societies as such and the promotion of the organized department idea, but it would encourage them in their efforts to run the machinery on a blue-print. As one put it: "My first choice is the organized Church school department. It seems we are not ready for that yet, so my second choice is a strictly denominational young people's society. That seems not possible just now, so we will just have to do what we can by working with Christian Endeavor." The problem would not be solved by eliminating C. E. in favor of the Young People's League as the form of young people's society.

The writer of this article volunteered for the ministry at a C. E. convention, but is not otherwise obligated to the movement, and his support of C. E. is support given as a pastor who believes it the best form of young people's society for our young people. This article is not intended to be one dealing in personalities, and where groups or individuals are referred to it is only because such seemed necessary to presentation of the facts set forth.

Though not as widely known as should have been the case, there has been for several years a definite and vigorous and persistent effort to wean our denomination from C. E. One of the leaders of our Church, close to the inner workings, said recently that he knew of nothing more than an attempt to add denominational features to the C. E. work. Discussion disclosed to him trends of which he had not previously been aware. His first idea is probably shared by many in our Church, and it is hoped that this article will bring them fuller information.

Are Advocates of Christian Endeavor Loyal?

Matters have come to such a pass that the advocates of Christian Endeavor are considered by some as lacking in denominational loyalty. The writer was asked by a prominent minister, "Would you be hurt if our Church cut off from Christian Endeavor?" Prompted by the belief that C. E. is the best organization for our young people, the reply was in the affirmative. "Then," said the questioner, "you are an outsider." The writer has been told in conversation, and has on file letters that tell the same thing, that certain men high in the councils of our denomination have incurred the disfavor and criticism of certain of our young people's leaders because of expressed support of Christian Endeavor.

The opponents of C. E. are trying to bury it before it is dead. We are told that the movement has done a fine work but has served its day. Recently, a Presbyterian Auxiliary Secretary of Young People Work said to an Endeavorer, "How much longer are you folks going to hold on to Christian Endeavor?" An organization that exalts Christ and Christ's Church and Christian service and Christian fellowship as the C. E. movement does, need have little fear of dying. God is in the C. E. movement and it can be looked to to continue to bless the world for years to come. Whether or not it shall continue to serve the young people of our denomination is, of course, for our Assembly to say. But let us not be led to part company with it until we have determined we have something better.

Three-Fold Opposition to Christian Endeavor

The opposition to C. E. has been promoted through three channels. Granting to its opponents the motive of seeking what is best for our denomination, one still has the privilege of holding that their efforts have issued along the avenue of opposing C. E.

One channel of opposition to C. E. has been through the instruction given some of our seminary students and lay workers. This statement is substantiated by stenographic class notes (now on file) and by information given the writer, in conversation and by letter (letters still on file), regarding the efforts of lay workers (some of the efforts successful) to abolish C. E. in the Churches they serve, and in some cases of the return of C. E. after these workers left.

A second channel of opposition has been through Secretaries of Young People's Work and other workers of the Woman's Auxiliary. The source of this attitude it is not possible to state, but the attitude is present and vigorous in its expression. At the suggestion that more C. E. be taught in the young peoples' conferences where some ninety per cent of the delegates came from C. E. societies, a synodical worker broke into tears, crying, "We must reclaim our young people." Reclaim them from what? From an organization that stands "For Christ and the Church?" A Presbyterian Auxiliary secretary told the women at the Auxiliary meeting that if their Churches had C. E. as the form of young people's society, the local Auxiliary could not take credit for promoting a young people's society. A local Church Auxiliary secretary of young people's work told one of the Endeavor girls that the girl was a traitor to go from a C. E. society to the Synodical young people's conference.

The third channel of opposition is through the activities of some of the resident workers and some of the field workers and associates of the Presbyterian Committee of Publication. A leading minister of our Church wrote a short time ago, "I do not feel that a large part of the Church realizes what is being done at Richmond." A Southern Presbyterian elder who was interested in C. E., was asked by a Synodical Director of Religious Education (supported at least partly by the Richmond office) what the elder thought of his suggestion as to the plan for young people's work in that Synod. The elder replied, "That is just exactly the plan I would try out if I wanted to kill Christian Endeavor." The writer testifies that the Religious Education Director in question is not the only such officer opposing C. E.

Young People's Leagues

Following the Assembly of 1925 at Lexington the committee published a leaflet quoting the action of the Assembly: "We encourage the organization of Young People's Leagues or Associations in the Synods and Presbyteries of the Church." The leaflet stated that the "Young People's League" is not a new type of organization for a local Church, not a new type of organization at all. "It is simply a grouping of all the young people's organizations of the Southern Presbyterian Church in a certain territory, etc." This is the conception of the "League" that is current throughout a good part of the "laity" of the Church.

No such limitation has been observed, however. Growing bolder, the committee published at the beginning of this calendar year, "Reprinted from 'Onward,'" a "Constitution of the Presbyterian Young People's League: 1. For Churches with Organized Departments, 2. For Churches with Unorganized Departments." Thus we see how the denominational society idea has been promoted from the Synods down to the local Churches. What is the authority for the recently published Constitution? In view of this step, can it be said that the effort is only to parallel C. E. and not to supersede it?

Topics for Young People's Meetings

Beginning with 1927 the committee published, "In response to an insistent demand from the Church (where some ninety per cent of the societies were C. E.) that our denominational causes be promoted," a set of denominational topics for the young people's weekly meetings, and these have been published each year since. Parallel lists of these topics and the C. E. topics disclose some startling information.

In 1927 twenty-four of the 52 denominational topics were the same as the C. E., and one other had the same theme as the C. E. topic for the same week. Twenty-seven topics were different from the C. E., and of these ten bore on denominational subjects, the other 17 having no more denominational value than the corresponding C. E. topics they replaced.

In 1928, two of the 53 denominational topics were the same as the C. E. and five had the same theme. Forty-six of the topics were different, and just ten of these bore on denominational matters. The theme of the C. E. topic for March 4, "What Is It in Jesus that Attracts Young People," was covered by the denominational topic a week earlier, "The Challenge of Christ to the Youth of the World." The C. E. topic for April 8, "Why We Believe in Immortality," was paraphrased, with same Scripture references, to "Lessons from the Resurrection," in the Presbyterian list. There were other cases of paraphrasing the C. E. topics (January 29, July 22, November 25). The C. E. topic for August 5, "Personal Conviction versus Following the Crowd," was shown in Presbyterian list for August 26, three weeks later. The

C. E. topic for December 16 was shown in Presbyterian list for one week earlier.

In 1929, fourteen of the 52 topics are the same as the C. E., 13 are the paraphrases of the C. E., and ten others have the same theme. Fifteen different from the C. E., and only one of these is definitely denominational. Phases of our mentioned in parenthesis after a number of these are the same as the C. E. topics as that differ. Why could the causes not be identified in connection with the regular lists?

The C. E. topic for January 6, "Forces Making the World Better," is delayed in the Presbyterian list until December 1st. Does it fit any better than in the preceding January? The C. E. topic for January 10, "Jesus Teaching Us to Serve," is identical (with the same Scriptures) in the Presbyterian list with the denominational topic of February 24, two weeks later, "Service." If the topic or theme is "use it in Presbyterian C. E. societies at the time of the C. E. schedule?"

These facts about our denominational schedule suggest the question, "Are the Presbyterians loyal to denominational loyalty on the part of the young people, do they promote it better than the other denominations, or do they simply cut our Presbyterian E. E. from C. E. literature and thus aid in the promoting of them from C. E.? The last of these is the one that impresses itself most forcefully on the mind of one of our leading ministers whose letter is on file.

Progress of Opposition to Christian Endeavor

These efforts exerted against C. E. in our denomination have succeeded to some extent, and succeeded in that the friends of C. E. have not exerted their full strength. A proposal is now being openly made, through the sub-committee of the Young People's Auxiliary, that our Church definitely sever relations with C. E. It is likely that the matter will come before the Assembly in May. The opinion that C. E. is still a valuable organization for our young people, and if its supporters will exert themselves can be held in check.

Denominational loyalty is, of course, much more than a mere slogan. Some of our people are captivated by the idea of denominational loyalty and ability by strictly denominational society. They say, "We are Methodists and Baptists and others can be just as good as we are." Why not the Presbyterians? We can set up a denominational society perhaps better than they. They modeled a perhaps we can set up an even better model of our ability and wisdom and loyalty in using a model of our own, but in using the C. E. model. There are certain almost inevitable weaknesses in a national society, such as narrowness of vision, and a tendency to foster such a society. It is said that with a denominational organization we can then affiliate officially with other denominational societies. The writer has had some such efforts and found the leaders of such organizations taking a position of aloofness. We already have at hand a worldwide fellowship.

Objections to Christian Endeavor

What are the objections to C. E. that are so suitable to our Church? We hear it said by some that Presbyterian Endeavorers are not able to support denominational work. The Assembly's Stewardship Commission has worked out plans whereby the Presbyterian Service Program can be promoted by the young people's organizations. The South Carolina C. E. is promoting denominational work through the Service Program, and other C. E. unions are promoting denominational activity.

We hear the pledge objected to. The book states that the pledge is "a standard of action which we promise to try to realize, made 'Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ, and doing whatsoever He would have me do.'" They are to be kept "unless hindering the work of the Master." The pledge requires no more than that we person covenants in joining the Church. Those who take it in the earnest and devout spirit that is intended are immeasurably strengthened, and who do not take it at all.

We hear that our young people are not contributing money to Boston. Some years ago the Endowment Commission elsewhere were asked to help in the quarters building in Boston, as a distribution of work with young people around the world. Part of C. E. funds come from the sale of supplies, a plan also used by our Church. The office has contributed to the Dixie extension almost from its beginning, and Southern young people have reaped more than they present the Boston office is contributing thousands of dollars a year to the Southern work, and endeavors being asked to share the expense.

We hear criticism of topics and plans in our denomination. The plans are only suggestions. The topics are only suggestions. Have we chosen better lists in our three-year plan? Our Sunday schools use International School Lessons; why, then, object to our using topics prepared by an interdenominational committee? Some denominational societies use "C. E. topics" for their meetings.

We hear that some C. E. leaders are not satisfied with the writer hasn't approved of everything he has said. Speakers say, but in sleeping with them, eating and drinking before and behind them in meetings, they have heard Christ or His Word spoken of in a new way. The same cannot be said of speakers heard at conventions of other interdenominational organizations with which our young people are connected. The leaders of our Church said a few

C. E. President, "Dan Poling is a hum-ment Christian." A Southern Presbyterian privilege of attending a prayer service in ce, told the writer that the spirit of the secretaries was one of devout love for an Southern Presbyterians afford not to t is probably the only interdenominational movement that is keeping true? Ought sport?

citizenship activities criticized. Each in control of its young people here, as work. Our Church is a member of the of Churches, whose citizenship efforts ergetic as those of the C. E. movement.
 s also a citizen, and whether Endeavors
 r young people must meet the responsisian citizenship. "A Saloonless Nation a slogan flown to the breeze on C. E.
 o of us is not glad that the slogan bee reality, and who of us wants our young y other ideal for our nation's practice?
 eavor is not dead. It is not detrimental religious life of our young people, nor to onal loyalty and usefulness. It has been of a well-oiled propoganda in our Church.
 nda to be successful would be a loss to a which we would not recover until the today come into power in the councils tion and restore it. To remain connected ent means that we have access to the and expert plans and literature we ope to duplicate even at a cost that the scarcely undertake, why tear down a ly to try out something that is a mere n't it time the Assembly insisted that of young people's work" include no t to eliminate what the Assembly has of a promotional committee on young parate from the present Executive Com-of that work, has been suggested to still thought by a number to be highly cessary. We have such for the men and why not for the young people, tomorrow's

FALL, DIVIDED WE STAND

J. M. Plowden

aul couldn't agree with Peter the first than I can agree with the present one.
 eter was to be blamed. What Peter said his represents my body." Luther said,

 ." And so it stands today.

g if union will ever be possible between nations, or even different branches of ation.

s evidently cherish the idea that the have to come to them eventually. They hat will never dawn.

h that I would like to unite with is the ed Presbyterian. I would even be willthe Psalms if I could get rid of the Hymns" and the Sunday School jazz into our latest hymn book like the nd which a good A. R. P. could never ing on the Lord's day.

P.'s won't have us, and I can't blame re going too fast for them in neglect of ease of ritual, just as certain other g too fast for us.

g if the Good Lord who made us and ions ever intended such a thing as the njection of all the units in His kingdom.
 atsoever comes to pass, yet along with rains the means thereto. That's Presby-I understand it, but the means to ear to be lacking, and the chief means e the ability of humans to think alike gait.

ished modernist has proposed union e essential things. Let us unite on these questions like election and the mode of dividual conscience.

write him that I was ready to unite basis, but before I could do so he was n the road denying the virgin birth, nement, the possibility of miracles, the on of our Lord, and practically every-lways regarded as essential.

at secular newspapers announced the rch union was in the air. That's where
 n. Will it ever come down to earth?
 e day, brother, "forget it."

C.

BOOKS

The Scenes—By S. H. Chester

Dr. S. H. Chester, under the above title, every minister of the Southern Presby-o wishes to understand the work of its relation to the great cause of For-scinating that I could not put it down very word of it. It discloses the two ics of the Author, namely, his states-or the Foreign Missionary Work, and sweet, Christian spirit.

o the volume can but stimulate our inter-which Doctor Chester has devoted his Neal L. Anderson.

Men-of-the-Church

Presbyterian Church in the United States

REV. J. E. PURCELL, D.D. Executive Secretary
 HENRY GRADY BUILDING
 ATLANTA, GEORGIA

REV. JOHN L. FAIRLY, D.D., Wilmington, N. C.,
 Editor in Charge of Men-of-the-Church Department

IS THE SOUTHERN PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH MEETING ITS HOME MISSION OBLIGATION?

E. B. Paisley

Squarely to face this question demands first a clear conception of home missions; next, an attempt to state the measure of the responsibility which rests upon the Southern Presbyterian Church for doing this work; and, then a survey of the facts to seek to ascertain whether or not the obligation is being met.

What is Home Missions?

Home Missions in the broadest sense of the word is everything that is done to extend the Gospel in the homeland. But to give it this comprehensive interpretation is to rob the term of all practical value or significant meaning. The term "missions" carries with it the idea of something done for someone outside the blessings possessed by the one engaged in the missionary enterprise, and must retain the implication of a service rendered from a motive other than consideration of external reward.
 At the heart of Christian missions is Christ; and in the heart of Christ is sacrifice, even as He said: "The Son of man came not to be ministered unto but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many." Missions then is the sharing of the Gospel at a cost with those who have it not. Home Missions delimits the sphere of that sharing as ones own country. For us it is within the bounds of our Southern Presbyterian Church.

Each of us will have our own interpretation of "the Gospel," but for any church it will be the faith which that church holds as its own possession by the grace of God. Home Missions then for any particular denomination will be the sharing of its faith and consequent privileges with all men who have them not within the borders of one's own country and that too at a cost to the sharers and certainly without consideration of a "value received" in the transaction as the fundamental motive.

Two Types of Home Mission Work

In our Church this term has been applied without distinction to two different types of work. First from the standpoint of history and of emphasis it has meant the establishment and maintenance of Churches of our denomination in those communities in which Southern Presbyterians are too few, too weak or too indifferent to provide an adequate Church life. This type is best described by the term "Presbyterian Extension." Home Missions has also meant the extension of the Gospel among peoples who are spiritually destitute and who, because of racial, social or economic conditions are not easily assimilated into the life of the Church.

In an article appearing in the Missionary Review of The World last March Rev. J. S. Stowell states that the Home Mission enterprise needs to be relieved "of the longstanding and increasingly unfortunate obsession that Home Missions is a matter of one particular fortunate race doing something for a group of other less fortunate races, or of people born in some favored spot ministering to others who have chanced to be born at other places."
 In contrast to this he holds that "The program of Home Missions is concerned primarily with the Church as a community institution; with the organization of Churches in communities where they do not exist; with the providing of adequate and trained leadership in communities which for one reason or another are not able to provide such facilities and such leadership for themselves; and with the increasing of the efficiency of Churches with programs now inadequate to meet the needs of their respective communities."

One can readily sympathize with Mr. Stowell's desire to destroy any pharisaical spirit in mission work and can agree with him as to the importance of the Churches realization of a unity which transcends all social and racial distinctions; but there still seems to be need for both types of Home Mission work. There are favored races and favored classes and favored spots, and the work of sharing the Gospel with those who are less favored more readily conforms to the fundamental conception of missions than does that work which is chiefly concerned with denominational extension. Nor need this be done in any "better than thou" spirit. Effort which has as its aim denominational extension may be also truly missionary, for there is in it a genuine sharing of privileges and the work is done at a cost to these supporting
 it. But its true missionary nature is frequently adulterated by the undue stress upon the reward obtained in "building up the denomination," "getting new resources for benevolences" and the like. When one reads the plea for Home Mission support based upon the contrast of Foreign Missions as a liability with Home Missions as an asset, one responds to the passionate cry of a true home missionary who recently said: "I wish I would never again hear the question, 'Does Home Missions pay?' What has that got to do with preaching the Gospel of Jesus Christ to my people who are in need of it?"

The Extent of Our Obligation

Having accepted both of these types of work as bona fide Home Mission endeavors the next question is: "What is the basis for measuring the extent of the obligation of the Southern Presbyterian Church in this work?"

There are at least three important considerations in determining this obligation. First we are faced, with the actual need for the work in the Southern States. Definite figures are always hard to secure, and only a most exhaustive and carefully taken religious census could give these pertinent statistics. The most recent figures issued by the United States Census bureau give the population of the States in which our Church is located as 37,000,000;
 and the total church membership as not over 16,000,000.
 These figures tell in themselves a story which would be all the more illuminating and challenging if the actual conditions in each of our Synods could be known. There is a tremendous amount to be done.

Adapting to our Southland an article which appeared in the Missionary Review of the World for July, 1928,
 we may say:

"Over one-half of the people in the South today are not linked to Christ through His Church. Many of these are children under no religious instruction. These constitute a challenge to evangelism." "Many residential areas are yet without the ministry of Christian pastors or churches, in rural districts in older states, congested city areas, and thinly populated portions of New States.
 These constitute a challenge to occupy the field."

"Eleven million negroes are in need of a better prepared Christian leadership. These constitute a challenge to Christian race relations."

"Seven hundred and fifty thousand Mexicans are in our territory, most of whom are still ignorant of the power and meaning of the Gospel. These constitute a challenge to true Christian neighborliness."

"Many hundreds of over-churched communities where overlapping involves waste of workers, money and effort constitutes a challenge to Christian co-operation and unity."

"Two hundred and sixty-four Southern Presbyterian Churches of more than fifty members each without pastors constitute a challenge to more sacrificial service in different fields, or the elimination of unnecessary organizations."

"The rapid growth in industry in the South and the consequent increase of industrial communities constitute a challenge to the faithful application of the principles of Christ in all the relations of life."

The second consideration in determining our Home Mission obligation is that it rests not solely upon the need in the field, but upon our Church's ability to meet that need. Certainly we are not doing our task to the limit of our ability. Our membership numbered 438,818 in 1920, and 444,657 in 1928 making a total increase for five years of 5,839 or a net growth of about one and three-tenths per cent for five years, or about one-fourth of one per cent growth each year for that period. In stark reality it means that for the past five years it has taken 400 of our members, officers and preachers, to make a net increase per annum of one member. This is startling and is almost unbelievable. But there are stronger things than this connected with these figures, for during these five years we have actually added to the Church 109,354 by examination, and 112,436 by letter, or a total of 221,780 persons, and yet we have a net gain of only 5,839 members for this period. Of course some are dying.
 Of course, many are removing their letters from country to city churches. There was a sudden loss of 22,556 in 1927 due largely to the purging of our rolls. But when all allowance has been made for these and other natural losses by removals and transfers to other sections of the United States, the fact still remains that we are not holding what we gain. Are we yearly weeding our "dead timber" in the interest of a more effective Church? Or are we simply at a standstill having a "name to live" but really dead? These solemn questions, the answer to which should give us genuine concern. Whatever may be the answer surely we can rest in no complacency as to the faithfulness with which we are meeting our Home Mission obligation.

The third consideration lies in the fact that the obligation of our Church is not and cannot be considered apart from other denominations that are preaching essentially the same Gospel which we believe and proclaim. It would be an easy matter to work out the mathematical ratio of our responsibility by taking the number of Southern Presbyterians as the numerator, and the total number of Protestants as the denominator. It is interesting to note that we are but 1-30 of the total Protestant population, and but 1-80 of the entire population of Southern States. But the simple process by which this is found cannot give us our Home Mission responsibility. Our relative ability to do the work and the need of a community in the light of the endeavors of other denominations can alone answer the question. And it can be said with no fear of contradiction that until we take every step possible to avoid wasteful duplication of effort in competition with other Christians we are not meeting our Home Mission obligation. And this negative attitude of avoidance of competition is not sufficient, for until we do everything possible to reach a co-operative endeavor with them whereby the task may be done, we are likewise failing in our Home Mission obligation. No other factors militate so ceaselessly and so fatally against effective Home Missions as do our denominational divisions, and the resulting competitive programs. The best of our young men and young women will not volunteer for such a disgraceful scramble for denominational supremacy. One of the most consecrated and successful of our home missionaries said last year in a public address.
 "If anything is ever able to drive me from my Home Mission field it will be this competition between Churches who profess a common Lord. Believe me there is no Christianity in it."

(Continued Next Week.)

The Woman's Auxiliary, Presbyterian Church, U. S.
270-277 Field Bldg., Saint, Louis, Missouri.

SYNODICAL PRESIDENTS OF THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

Alabama—Mrs. J. F. Hooper, 610 Mabry St., Selma, Ala.
Appalachia—Mrs. F. B. Kegley, Wytheville, Va.
Arkansas—Mrs. Walter Wilson, Arkadelphia, Ark.
Florida—Mrs. W. G. Thompson, Jr., 3215 Obispo St., Palma
Ceia Park, Tampa, Fla.
Georgia—Mrs. E. G. Aboott, 1315 Eberhart Ave., Columbus, Ga.
Kentucky—Mrs. H. P. Cooper, Lebanon, Ky.
Louisiana—Mrs. Charles L. Bodin, Box 79, M. R. A., Lake
Charles, Louisiana.
Mississippi—Mrs. J. S. Hicks, Holly Springs, Miss.
Missouri—Mrs. Walter Craven, 223 Frances St., Excelsior Springs, Mo.
North Carolina—Mrs. G. V. Patterson, Gastonia, N. C.
Oklahoma—Mrs. L. Fountain, care O. P. C., Durant, Okla.
South Carolina—Mrs. W. O. Brownlee, Due West, S. C.
Tennessee—Mrs. Ross Woods, R. D. No. 4, Lewisburg, Tenn.
Texas—Mrs. J. W. Culver, Texas Military Academy, San Antonio, Texas.
Virginia—Mrs. C. R. Vaughan, 319 Mountain Ave., Roanoke, Va.
West Virginia—Mrs. J. McD. Lacy, Elkins, W. Va.

ELENA, TEACHER AT THE CHILPANCINGO SCHOOL

Alice E. McClelland

Elena was born in Coarepec de Moreles, an agricultural village near Zitacuaro in a Christian home. Her parents and some of her relatives had become Evangelicals and a Church had been established in the village before Elena was born. There in the modest building, the family attended church. Her father was a teacher and afterwards became a minister.

Elena attended school first in her home village, then in Zitacuaro and later at the San Angel Normal. It was there that I knew her. She made a fine record, the best in her class and so we asked that she come to teach in the Wallace Institute in Chilpancingo which was just then being opened.

In classroom instruction Elena soon made a name for herself on account of the intelligent way in which she made use of the ideas which she had learned about teaching in the Normal. Parents and teachers and officials from other schools learned of her work and praised it. The State Director of Schools offered her work as principle of schools in Acapulco. She showed unusual ability in managing the older boys and girls although she was teaching the primaries. She became especially helpful in all matters concerning the girl's personal problems and parents visiting the school found her a helpful ally in arranging difficulties.

For some time the Chilpancingo school was closed because of a misunderstanding of law on the part of the authorities and during that time Elena had splendid experiences in acting as "directora" of a boarding home for girls in Texla who were attending the State Normal School there. She also taught classes in the Normal School itself and has refused an attractive offer to remain there, that she might come back to the Chilpancingo school. For a year she made frequent trips back to Tex-la, helping the girls with their problems.

She is the material of which educators are made and she is the main hope of the school on the teaching side, but her physical strength is slim and her energy outruns her strength. Pray that her slight body may be strengthened for the task. Her mind and spirit are mighty.

PRESBYTERIAN HOSPITAL, CHARLOTTE, N. C.

The Presbyterian Hospital Auxiliary met at the hospital Wednesday afternoon, May 8, with the president, Miss Harriet Orr, presiding and about seventy members present.

Dr. J. F. Hardie, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, brought a cordial message of congratulation upon the achievements of the Auxiliary, which has assisted so materially in the successful development of the hospital. He expressed the hope and belief that the greatest day of the hospital is yet to come, and paid a high tribute to the efficiency of the superintendent and business manager of the hospital, Mr. C. C. Beam. Doctor Hardie spoke of the opportunity presented through hospitals to ministers for winning the souls of those who when in health have been indifferent to spiritual matters, but who when afflicted are in a receptive mood. He closed his talk with the words of the beautiful benediction given by God to Moses for the blessing of the children of Israel.

Greetings to the new members of the Auxiliary in the opening church year were extended by Mr. C. C. Beam, hospital manager, and by Miss Mary Belle May, superintendent of nurses.

During the business session committees for the new church year were announced with chairmen as follows:
Flower, Mrs. R. B. Cochran; Linen, Miss Jennie Beatty; Grounds, Mrs. W. E. Holt; Upkeep, Mrs. L. J. Crouch; Magazine, Mrs. I. R. Vance; Nurses, Mrs. C. W. Tillett; Sewing, Mrs. C. V. Cashion; Men's Ward, Mrs.
J. E. Loven; Women's Ward, Mrs. Annie McCombs; County, Mrs. J. M. Renfrow; Publicity, Mrs. Chesley Watkins.

Many bundles of cloth, cut out to be made into hospital garments, were taken by the ladies of the Auxiliary to be distributed among the members of the circles in the churches of the city and county.

Thanks were expressed by Mr. Beam for the many beautiful flowers which have been sent recently to the patients in the hospital by Auxiliary members.

The Auxiliary hopes and plans as its special contribution for this year to supply the hospital with aluminum hot plates. Some means of keeping the meals hot while they are being served to the patients is the only feature lacking in the attractiveness of the meals that are furnished in the hospital. Seventy of these hot plates are needed and they can be secured by Mr. Beam at wholesale rates at a cost of ten dollars per plate. Any who wish to have a part in providing the hospital with these plates may send their contributions to Mr. C. C. Beam, Presbyterian Hospital, Charlotte, N. C.

Mrs. Chesley Watkins, Pres. Chm'n.

FOREIGN MISSION POSTER CONTEST WINNERS

Edward D. Grant

At its meeting in Nashville on April 11, the Executive Committee of Foreign Missions passed judgment upon the 362 Foreign Mission posters sent in to the Educational Department in response to the Foreign Mission Poster Contest open to Women's Auxiliaries and Young People's Societies this spring, and named the winners of the prizes.

It will be recalled that, in connection with Mission Study Classes and Church Schools of Missions studying the very popular mission study book, "The Desire of All Nations" by Dr. Egbert W. Smith, during January and February, the Executive Committee of Foreign Missions instituted for the first time in the history of our Church a Foreign Mission Poster Contest. This created much missionary enthusiasm in the churches and stirred many to poster making who never before tried anything of this sort. Every poster, to qualify in the Contest, had actually to be used in a Church School of Missions or in a Foreign Mission Study Class. These posters could be made either by individuals or could be the combined work of several. Many churches had local Elimination Contests of their own. All together 362 missionary posters were sent to the Foreign Mission Committee in Nashville. All of them showed real thought, and many evidenced marked ability on the part of the makers.
Certainly they must have been very effective in arousing missionary interest in the churches which made them.

The Executive Committee of Foreign Missions appointed a sub-committee to judge the posters and to make the awards. In the Woman's Auxiliary group the awards were made as follows:

First Place, $50.00 to Mrs. J. Brookes Smith, Raleigh Court Presbyterian Church, Roanoke, Va.

Second Place, $30.00 to Mrs. H. D. Brown and Mrs.
H. L. Morton, Quaker Memorial Presbyterian Church, Lynchburg, Va.

Third Place, $15.00 to Mrs. T. H. MacPherson, Rocky Mount, N. C.

In the Young People's Group the awards were made as follows:

First place, $50.00 to Miss Elizabeth Johnston, First Presbyterian Church, Knoxville, Tenn.

Second Place, $30.00 to Miss Margaret Hartman, Tabernacle Presbyterian Church, Springfield Mo.

Third Place, $15.00 to Miss Lena Covington, First Presbyterian Church, Wadesboro, N. C.

In addition to the above the following were given honorable mention:

Women's Group

Mrs. L. B. Dougherty, Liberty, Missonri; Mrs. J. G.
Stowers, Missionary Ridge Presbyterian Church, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Mrs. D. L. Latta and Mrs. C. S. Hollister, First Presbyterian Church, New Bern, N. C.; Mrs.
Howard, Central Presbyterian Church, Washington, D.
C.; Mrs. W. R. Salmon, First Presbyterian Church,
Stamps, Arkansas; Miss Frances Fletcher and Mrs.
Barton Lilliston, Makemie Presbyterian Church, Accommac, Va.; Miss Lily Loyd, Roanoke, Va.; Miss Nancy
S. Hoag, Second Presbyterian Church, Petersburg, Va.;
Leo Schillinger, Gordon Street Presbyterian Church,
Atlanta, Ga.; Mrs. A. B. Douglas, First Presbyterian Church, Rocky Mount, N. C.; Mrs. R. A. Jackson, Presbyterian Church, Clover, S. C.; Miss Mildred D.
Goeth, Portland Avenue Presbyterian Church, Louisville, Kentucky; Mrs. E. C. Nelson, Helena, Ark.; Mrs. Cleveland Smith, Evergreen Presbyterian Church, Memphis, Tenn.; Miss Maybelle Reynolds Lemmon and Miss Alice
Catherine Reynolds, Highland Park Presbyterian Church,
Dallas, Texas; Mrs. J. O. Varnedoe, Valdosta, Ga.;
Mrs. W. K. Goodrich, Tabernacle Presbyterian Church, Springfield, Mo.; Mrs. Leslie E. Sutton, First Presbyterian Church, Anniston, Ala.; Mrs. R. L. Steele, Birmingham, Ala.; Mrs. A. J. Lamb, Birmingham, Ala.;
Mrs. R. H. Heath, Moore Memorial Presbyterian Church
Atlanta, Ga.; Mrs. R. L. Fountain, First Presbyterian Church, Ennis, Texas; Mrs. John B. King, Central Presbyterian Church, Washington, D. C.; Miss Elise
Fleming, Westminster Presbyterian Church, Lynchburg, Va.; Wells Awsumb and Mrs. W. W. Deupree, Idlewild Presbyterian Church, Memphis, Tenn.; Miss Mina Barnett, Atlanta, Ga.

Young People's Group

Miss Martha Cook, Gordon Street Presbyterian Church, Atlanta, Ga.; Miss Elizabeth Keisling, Missionary Ridge Presbyterian Church, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Miss Julia Minnis McIver, (Two Posters), Missionary Ridge Presbyterian Church, Chattanooga, Tennessee; Miss Leone Bowers, First Presbyterian Church, Decatur, Ga.; Miss Mabel C. Burruss Grace Covenant Presbyterian Church, Richmond, Va.; Miss Mary E. Caples, (Two Posters), Second Presbyterian Church, Richmond, Va.; Miss Margaret Darwin, Laurel, Mississippi; Miss Margaret McIver, Missionary Ridge Presbyterian Church, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Miss Sarah Stribling, Seneca, S. C.

AUXILIARY FORT HILL PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, CLEMSON COLLEGE, S. C.

The regular May meeting of the Fort Hill Church Auxiliary was held on the afternoon of May 6, with Mrs. R. N. Brackett as Hostess. The newly elected president, Mrs. A. G. Shanklin, presided over the meeting. The May meeting constitutes the annual Birthday meeting of the Auxiliary, and at this meeting the regular birthday offering was made for the two schools to which the Church donates this year. Twenty-four members responded to roll call, and a generous contribution was received.

The other newly elected officers of the Auxiliary for the year 1928-29 are as follows: Vice-Pre-

J. E. Hunter; Treasurer, Miss Marguer
Secretary, Mrs. O. R. Doyle; Secretary Life, Mrs. S. J. L. Crouch; Secretary of sions, Mrs. L. H. Cook; Secretary of Ass Missions, Mrs. M. E. Bradley; Secretar and Presbyterian Home Missions, Mrs. J
Secretary of Christian Education and Mi lief, Mrs. J. H. McHugh; Secretary Su and Young People's Work, Mrs. S. J. L. retary of Literature, Mrs. D. H. Henry; Social Activities, Mrs. Winslow Sloan; Sec tarian Social Service and Pastor's Aid, Mrs.
Secretary Orphan Work, Mrs. P. B. Hol
Historian, Mrs. L. J. Goodman.

The April meeting of the Business W was held with Mrs. S. W. Evans as hoste dent, Mrs. B. B. Burley, presided. Followi meeting a short social hour was enjoyed,
the hostess served delicious refreshments.

M. S. B. Church Co.

PEE DEE (S. C.) PRESBYTERIA

Pee Dee Presbyterial Auxiliary held it annual session in the Presbyterian Churc
S. C., March 28 and 29. Mrs. D. H. M
Florence, presided. Registration of offic and visitors showed the largest attendance

Notable speakers were Rev. C. N. Cald
Miss Sue B. Haley, of the Home Missio
Miss Cornelia D. Engle, of the Christian Ministerial Relief Department, Mrs. D.
Synodical President, and Mrs. S. G. Sto Historian. Mrs. Earl Brown of Dillon, S. the Bible Study both days in a very able way. The Pageant, "Our Neighbor's Ne the Marion Auxiliary was impressive and
The whole program was full of inspiration a

CONCORD PRESBYTERIA

Twenty-Third Annual Meeti

The twenty-third annual meeting of C terial was held Wednesday and Thursday
25, in the First Presbyterian Church, of H
The meeting was called to order and it presided over by Mrs. Edgar Yoder, who session a most successful term of office.

The fortieth Psalm was read in conce
offered by the President.

The delegates and guests were made we John R. Hay, who spoke in behalf of the hostess auxiliary. Welcomes and greetin denominations were brought by representa various churches of the City. Response to was made by Mrs. N. A. Archibald, of Reports of officers and of the vari featured the opening session Wednesday evening session was well attended, and present enjoyed the address of Mr. C.

Lavras, Brazil, as well as that of Mr. Ed spoke in behalf of the work at Banner E. of the evening service the Birthday Pag by members of the Young People's dep Hickory Church.

The Morning Watch, Thursday at 9 o ducted by the honorary President of C terial, Mrs. John Reid, of New York, wh an inspiration and blessing to all who we hear her.

Mrs. G. V. Patterson, Synodical Pres the assembly, stressing particularly the the Spiritual life of the individual member, and Bible study, and closing with an ear deeper consecration and more Spirit-fill

Others who brought most helpful mess
J. E. Flow, who presented Home Missi Presbytery; Rev. Edgar Woods, Chairm work in Concord Presbytery; and Rev. J Carr and Miss Claudia Frazer, who spo
"Our Young People's League."

Mrs. Grace K. Ramsay, newly-elected Mitchell College, presented the needs of asked the prayers and interest of the work at Mitchell.

An impressive Memorial Service wa
Mrs. E. F. Reid, with musical number Grotte.

The following new officers were in
G. V. Patterson:

President, Mrs. Frank B. Gwin, Salis
Development of Spiritual Life, Mrs. Edg ory; Secretary Synod and Presbyterial
Mrs. J. R. Campbell, Newton; Secretar
cation and Ministerial Relief, Mrs. Z.
Mooreville; Secretary Y. P. Work and Extension, Miss Ola Warner, Hickory;
tict No. 1, Mrs. Jamie Reid, Old Fort; C
No. 4, Mrs. Walter Goodman, Kannapoli

Reports of delegates were most satis
cularly encouraging was the evidence of Spiritual. An increase in members, ac over last year was noted. One Gold Little Joe's, at Barium Springs, 11 Sil
Blue Seal Auxiliaries. Four hundred Family Altars, and 625 Tithers were re classes, with a membership of 1270 Bands with a membership of 1229; 929
tions and 1,112 Church papers.

Mrs. John Reid, and Mrs. E. F. Re tributes of appreciation and love for th dent, Mrs. Edgar Yoder, whose loyalty the Cause of Christ has been manifest and deed throughout the four years sl
leader.

The meeting was brought to a close w tion Service, led by Mrs. W. R. Gray, of
(Continued on page 11)

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPT.

EDITOR'S LOOKOUT

With our plan of securing a correspondent we have appointed Miss Julia Parker, St., Macon, Ga., to send us news from that city. She is a member of the Vineville Presbyterian Church, and is Publicity and Publications superintendent of the Georgia C. E. Union.

She has just made public the new aims and objectives of the Georgia C. E. Union. The junior, intermediate and senior respectively which reaches the largest percentage of the membership will be awarded a loving cup at the annual convention. These goals are as follows:

1. The society which is a member of the Georgia C. E. Union adopt and promote the "Christ in the World" program as recommended by the Society of Christian Endeavor.

2. The society secure at least five subscriptions to the Endeavor World and also promote their own young people's paper.

3. The society observe Dixie Endeavor Day and observe it at the Dixie office, 11 Ferger Bldg., Tenn.

4. The society conduct at least one mission study during the year. Also one Expert or Progress class.

5. The society should have at least 50 per cent of the membership enrolled as Comrades of the Quiet Hour.

6. The society strive to organize at least one young people's society during the year.

7. The society put forth every effort to increase its membership at least 25 per cent during the year.

8. The society register and have at least one or more delegates in the state convention.

9. The society make an offering and co-operate in the national mission board of their church.

10. The society hold regular weekly meetings and committee meetings during the year.

11. The society make an annual report to the state convention as requested.

12. The society co-operate with their city union, and promote their young people's conference program.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPIC

2—Character, a Growth, Not a Gift.—C. G. A.

The Gift of Growth

Today is "Character, a Growth, not a Gift." It is too numerous to count. Indeed, Paul may be said to have said to the Corinthians, "What didst thou not receive? Now, if thou dost thou glory, as if thou hadst?" Our characters are growths; we receive them, but we have a great deal to do with them. We never stop growing in some way. We never stop growing physically, but mentally we never stop growing if we are at all. Life means growth. Our characters keep growing. There is never a chance for them to "rest" and stand still. They always reach upward—but we never

Character and Reputation

Look up the word "character" in the dictionary and find that it originally meant a mark carved on metal as a sign of ownership—a stamp. From that it has come to mean something that distinguishes one from all the rest of the world. Each of us has a character, and the character makes for each of us. Your character is what God knows your reputation is what your fellow-beings know. Your reputation may change quickly, but your character changes very slowly. "What people say" may change your reputation but not affect your real character. Only one guards one's reputation by one's man and woman, dear, my lord,

The jewel of their souls,
My purse steals trash, 'tis something—
This, this, and has been slave to thousands;
Which from me my good name
Which not enriches him
And makes my poor indeed."
Character cannot be handled by the outside world.

Vill-Power and Character

Character must have as a part of it a strong control over impulses. A will doing things as well as a check against wrong sort. It is just as hard to do something you want to do as it is to keep from doing what you want to do. Your will is your power or not a deed is to be done. Willfulness is a strong will. Willingness is a cheerful, un-our stamp, or your character, depends whether it is wilful or willing.

Cumstances and Character

Character is a product of environment but not necessarily of circumstance. That is, men have to adapt to their surroundings, but they do not have to let their misfortunes. "Where there is a will there is a way." Take Helen Keller for example. At the age of seven she was left blind and deaf by sickness. Let her affliction overwhelm her. She "heard" with her fingers. Abraham Lincoln let his environment conquer his ambition. Circumstances alter cases, but we can rise above them. "Forgetting the things which are behind and reaching forward to the things that are ahead, pressing on toward the goal unto the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

"Four at Dinner"

It chanced upon a winter's night, safe sheltered from the weather,
The board was spread for only one, yet four men dined together;
There sat the man I meant to be, in glory spurred and booted,
And close beside him to the right, the man I am reputed.
The man I think myself to be, a seat was occupying Hard by the man I really am, who to hold his own was trying.
And though beneath one roof we met
None called his fellow brother—
No sign of recognition passed—
They knew not one another.

(From an Old Scrapbook.)

PLAY TIME

Published by Travel and Recreation Department International Society of C. E.

A Backward Party

This social has no end of variations, may be used for any season, and with groups of any size. It is particularly good as an April Fool Party. The following suggestions are given to help start the social leader in thinking out his plan for his own group.

Advertising.—Three or four weeks ahead, announce a "Drawcab Party" by posters, and by any other means available to the society. Talk up the "Drawcab Party" telling no details until every one's interest is thoroughly aroused. Then make the posters in Chinese fashion, or make them read backwards, beginning in the lower right hand corner. If invitations are sent out, they may be written backwards and then mimeographed or hectographed, so that the recipients will have to look at them in a mirror to read them. Or else, they may be written as suggested for making the posters. If desired, everyone may be requested to wear some article of clothing backwards. Hair may be combed backwards, or at least in a fashion opposite to the ordinary method.

Decorations.—If you usually have decorations, have none. If you do not ordinarily have them, have some, but have them in the most unusual fashion. Decorate the things that are never decorated. Use things for decoration that one would never think of using at any other party. The leader of the games should plan a most unusual backwards outfit for himself. He can add to the humor, by purposely getting "things twisted" when he talks, just getting "everything backwards tonight."

Reception.—If there is a backdoor to the home or church where the social is to be held, post a notice or have some one at the front door to inform the guests they will be received at the back door. There, some one greets them by bidding them good-bye, telling them how glad she is they came and that she hopes they have had "a poor time" or something else unusual. She then has them walk in backwards, up some steps if possible.

Getting Started.—If the group is not the age which will go home immediately afterwards, refreshments may be served on entering. (See Refreshments at the close.) Immediately after refreshments, have the group sing, "Good-night Ladies." If you do not serve refreshments to start it off, sing this song anyway, then give each one a piece of paper on which he is to write his name, spelling it backwards. This is then pinned on his back. During the fifteen minutes while the guests are arriving, most of them will have much fun trying to look at all their friends' backs and letting others see theirs. If every one knows each other well, give them prominent historians' names spelled backwards instead. When most of them have arrived, or after refreshments, give all another piece of paper and a pencil. For ten minutes have the guests to try to copy down the names of the others by finding the names on the back of each other. All are on their honor to write down only names as they see them on the backs of others. No one is to stand against a wall or post. Be sure to give prize, honorable mention, or a score to the winner.

BOBITY Bob-Bob or Thumpety Thump-Thump.—If this game is known before by either name, reverse the name of it calling it Bob-Bob Bobity, or Thump-Thump, Thumpity. To play it, the guests stand in a circle, and have an "it" in the center. Everyone learns the name of his neighbor to the right and left. The person who is "it" runs very quickly to someone and says either set of words, according to way designated by leader. He must say, "Right, B.B.B.," or "Left, B.B.B." If the person addressed does not answer with the name of the neighbor so designated before he finishes his "bob-bob" or "thump-thump" he exchanges places with "it" and runs quickly to someone else. The game is fun when not played vigorously, and causes peals of laughter when played vigorously in a backwards manner. There should be an "it" for every ten or fifteen people. If the guests are all acquainted before hand, have them say their neighbors' names backwards. "Neler, Nohj, Dref," make more fun.

Guessing Back.—To allow them time to rest now, the leader should have taken several players out of the room without being noticed by the others. These all dress in each other's coats or suits, and one at a time stand in a doorway that opens into the main room. The door is opened for a minute, and all look at his back. They may write the name down on paper, or it may be best to call them out, seeing who can guess the quickest. The people could also stand behind a sheet, throwing their silhouetted backs on the sheet for the players to guess.

Circle Games.—Well-known favorites of childhood such as "Drop the handkerchief," "Flying Dutchman," "Slipper Slap," "Three Deep," and "Swat Tag," may be interspersed with lots of fun by having the players stand with backs to the center, and allowing the runners to run around on the inside.

Relay Games.—Everyone is familiar with many of these games. Have two or three, but reverse every one in some way. If you have the players carrying something in a knife or spoon to a goal and returning to give their spoon to next player, have them carry it walking backwards. Let them run backwards back to the players. Having the players in lines, and passing clothespins or something similar over their shoulders to those behind may also be used as a relay. Just be certain not to do anything the way you have done it at any preceding party.

Track Games.—Shot-put is interesting if the players are given inflated bags to throw over their shoulders, to see who is the best thrower. A discus throw and javelin may be made using a paper plate and similar substitutes. Backward races may be held with much fun. Even high jumps and broad jumps are possible.

Going to Jerusalem or Musical Chair.—Either of these games is ever so much fun if the players have to march backwards, in addition to having to watch for a chair when the music stops.

Counting Backwards.—Each group will select a contestant, or the leader will select one, and give to the first somewhat less than a hundred peanuts or beans. The rest of the players all listen while he begins counting them, counting from a hundred toward one. Each contestant takes his turn at it, and is timed. The one or two taking the most time, (and they must not make mistakes), will have to pay a forfeit.

Reading Backwards.—Let some one who has practiced an article, or poem beforehand, read an unfamiliar short story to the group, beginning with the last word and reading towards the first word. When he is finished, see who can tell the story. Sometimes the guests like a second trial at a second story.

Spelling Backwards.—The groups may be divided into two groups, and an old-fashioned spell-down held, in which all words are spelled backwards. Anyone who misses the first time is out. Give easy words at first, and gradually harder ones, but never ones that they might be troubled with in spelling in the right order.

Writing Backwards.—If the crowd is not too large, they will enjoy the fun of writing backwards. Tell each one to write a short poem or perhaps a paragraph about some one in the room, or to give the description of someone's back. They must form the letters backwards. When finished, these are passed on to others, and the people getting them read them aloud by holding them in front of a mirror.

Forfeits.—The Chinese Get-Up is very appropriate for two. They must sit with backs to each other, and arms locked, try to get up. The last one up has to pay another forfeit. He may be told to recite some Mother-Goose Rhyme backwards, and it is fun to listen to him try. But he may have fun, too, if he will turn his back to the audience and recite the poem in its normal order.

Warning.—Be careful not to have too many of the same kind of games, or too many of the same kind in succession. Active games should always be interspersed between the quieter games. Always stop a game while everyone is still thoroughly enjoying it.

Refreshments.—Old-fashioned refreshments may be served in some old-fashioned way if the thought has been stressed at all during the evening. Or the refreshments may be served in backward order. Pass cookies to everyone first, and then follow with salad, or jello, sandwiches, or drink. Let everyone eat with the wrong hand. One group ate ice-cream with a knife, holding it in the left hand. Insist on everyone's joining in the fun.

Closing.—"Backward, turn backward, O Time in Your flight," or other songs of similar theme may be sung. The guests should leave by the front door and be welcomed as if they had just arrived.

A REQUEST OF SYNOD

On page 44 of the minutes of the Synod of North Carolina held at Maxton last October there is printed the following: That Synod request all churches within its bounds to take an offering for the Home (the Home for Religious Workers at Montreat) on the last Sunday in May or as near that as practicable, endeavoring to make the offering equal to one-fourth of one per cent of their benevolent pledge.

I am reminding the pastors and churches of this request lest it be overlooked in the pressure of many other matters.

The Trustees have gone to quite some expense in remodeling the entrance to the Home for its better protection against the weather, and at the same time have added to its capacity quite materially. Later a storm injured the little cottage that was formerly used as a kitchen and we were at the necessity of an outlay for repairs on it. Because of these facts we are more in need of your help than usual. We hope that some funds may be sent specified for these necessary repairs. Funds coming from the offering requested by Synod unless so designated will, however, not be so used, but will be used to provide entertainment for some of our workers whom the whole Synod would, we are sure, delight to have as guests in its Home for the period of a Conference at Montreat.

Will not each church, or some individual in each church, send in the small amount necessary to entertain one of these workers for the ten days of a conference. A church or an individual providing the amount necessary ($12.50), may, if it desired indicate the worker who is to be invited to the Home provided that one be named who is truly a worker eligible for entertainment there.

Please send your offerings and suggestions of names for entertainment to W. H. Belk, Treasurer, Charlotte, N. C. C. M. Richards, Chr. Trustees.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Rev. Ernest Trice Thompson, D.D.

Lesson for June 2

LATER EXPERIENCES OF JEREMIAH

Jeremiah 20:1-6; 37:1-38:28; 43:1-7. Print Jer. 38:4-13.

For several weeks now we have referred to Jeremiah as "the healthiest, strongest, bravest, grandest man of Old Testament history." Perhaps this week we will be able to decide whether or not this judgment is correct. We recall that Jeremiah began his ministry during the reign of Josiah. Though naturally of a shrinking and sensitive disposition when he was a mere youth he undertook to set himself against the popular tendencies of the day because he felt it was God's will for his life. He was an ardent supporter of Josiah's Reformation. He preached it in the streets of Jerusalem, and through all the cities of Judah. The people of his own home town, the members of his own family, bitterly opposed his work (probably because it threatened their financial interests) and actually attempted to slay him. But when he went to God in prayer he was told that his troubles had just begun. (11:1-12:6.) A few years later Josiah was killed at the battle of Megiddo, and the Reformation came to a sudden end. Jehoahaz, his son, reigned for only three months, and was deposed by Pharaoh-Necho, king of Egypt. Jehoiaikim, his brother, was placed on the throne by the king of Egypt, but was soon forced to acknowledge the suzerainty of the King of Babylon. Jehoiaikim was a cruel and unprincipled ruler, and opposed to the policies of Jeremiah. The religious leaders and a majority of the people followed the lead of their king. In the beginning of his reign Jeremiah delivered his great discourse on the Temple, foretelling its ultimate destruction if the people did not carry their religion into the social and the political and the industrial life of the nation. The people, led by the prophets and the priests, threatened to mob the prophet; the princes, however, insisted on an orderly trial and later acquitted him (Chapter 26). The representatives of public opinion (in our day it would have been the newspapers) continued to clamor for his death, but Jeremiah was protected by a few powerful friends at court. Sometime later he again denounced the sins of the people, and foretold the inevitable consequences thereof. As a result he was arrested by Pashhur, the chief of the Temple police, cruelly beaten, and placed in the stocks. The precise form of this instrument of torture is not known; but certainly the prisoner's legs, probably his arms, and perhaps his neck were firmly secured and immovably held. It was not only a humiliating punishment, but very painful on account of the cramped and unnatural position into which the body was forced. Pashhur's purpose was to break the prophet's spirit and to discredit him in the eyes of the people. But when Jeremiah was released on the next day he renewed his prophecy of doom, and told Pashhur that men would come to mark in his demeanor the overwhelming dread that haunted both him and them, the shadow of approaching doom, and would name him Magor-missabib (i. e. Terror-on-every-side) from this dominant emotion. (19:1-20:6.) After this the prophet was forbidden to come into the temple at all. But nothing daunted Jeremiah gathered his prophecies together into written form and had them read in the temple on a feast day by Baruch, his friend and amanuensis. The roll was carried to the king who thrust it into the fire. Jeremiah and Baruch were forced to flee for their lives (Chapter 36). But later Jeremiah returned and stood before the king and denounced his sins to his face (Chapter 22). In the closing years of his reign Jehoiaikim rebelled against authority of Babylon. This act was opposed by Jeremiah, who saw very truly that the only hope of Judah's safety in submission to him into whose hand God had given the keeping of the nations. Nebuchadnezzar quickly dispatched an army against Jerusalem, but before the army could arrive Jehoiaikim had died.

Jehoiachin reaped the penalty of his father's folly. The city was besieged, and Jehoiachin was forced to surrender. All the best people were carried away captive. Among these was a disciple of Jeremiah, who later in exile was to carry on Jeremiah's work, a young man named Ezekiel.

Jehoiachin was succeeded on the throne by Zedekiah his son. Zedekiah was a weak king, friendly to Jeremiah, constantly seeking his counsel, but only a puppet in the hands of his princes, who would gladly have occasioned the prophet's death. Jeremiah counselled continued submission to Babylon, but the princes after some delay, formed an alliance with Egypt, and despite their solemn pledges refused to continue the Babylonian tribute. The Babylonian armies marched at once into Palestine, and began to close in upon the city. Under these circumstances there occurred the events which form the basis of our present lesson.

Read 21:1-14 and 34:1-7. These two passages do not form a part of the lesson assigned, but are necessary to get the connection. Read now more carefully chapters 37 and 38. What request did Zedekiah make of Jeremiah in 37? What was the military situation at the time? What answer did Jeremiah return? Was this a patriotic answer? Was it a wise one? Why was Jeremiah arrested? Under what circumstances? Did Jeremiah really mean to fall away to the Chaldeans (i. e. Babylonians)? Was Irijah justified in suspecting that he was falling away to the enemy? What does the interview between Jeremiah and Zedekiah indicate respecting the character of the two men? Why did the princes wish to punish the prophet? Were they justified? What did the answer of the king to the princes indicate as to the character of Zedekiah? Give the story of Jeremiah's confinement in the dungeon and the rescue. Who was Ebed-Melech? How was he rewarded? Cf 39:15-18. What traits of character in Zedekiah and Jeremiah were manifested in their secret interview?

I. Jeremiah's First Message to Zedekiah—21:1-14

1. The Military Situation. It seems from verses 2 and 4 that the Chaldeans were closing in upon the city, but the Jews were not yet driven within the walls.

2. Zedekiah's inquiry. Under these circumstances Zedekiah sent Pashhur and Zephaniah to Jeremiah asking him to inquire of God as to the outcome of the siege. "Peradventure," he said, "God will deal with us according to all His wondrous works that he may go up from us." In speaking of God's wondrous works Zedekiah was thinking no doubt of the miraculous deliverance of Jerusalem in the days of Hezekiah. He wanted to know if God would save them once again by a miracle.

3. Jeremiah's answer. Jeremiah's answer was in three parts. First, he addressed himself to the king (3-7). He told him that there was no hope for the city. The city would be taken, the people destroyed. Then he addressed himself to the people (8-10). He told them that they could save themselves only in one way, by deserting to the enemy. Think of the world war. If Jeremiah had delivered a message of that sort at that time he would have been shot as a traitor. Was he justified in speaking as he did? George Adam Smith says: "In that situation and under the convictions which held him, the prophet could not have spoken differently. He knew and soundly knew, not only that the city was doomed and that her rulers who persisted in defending her were senseless, if gallant, fanatics, but also that they had forfeited their technical legitimacy. To talk today of duty, civil or military, to such a perjured government does not even deserve to be called constitutional pedantry, for it has not a splinter of constitutionalism to support it. Zedekiah held his vassel throne only by his oath to his suzerain Babylon, and when he broke that oath his legitimacy crumbled. Of right, Divine or human there was none in a government so forsworn and self-disentitled, besides being so insane, as that of the feeble king, and his frantic masters, the princes. For Jeremiah the only divine right was Nebuchadnezzar's. But to the conviction that Zedekiah and the princes were not the lawful lords of Judah, we must add the pity of the prophet as he foresaw men and women and children of his people done to useless death by the cruel illusions of their illegitimate governors. Calvin is right when after a careful reservation of the duties of private citizens to their government at war he pronounces that Jeremiah could not have brought better advice to the civilians and soldiers of Jerusalem. And it is no paradox to say that the prophet's sincerity in giving such advice is sealed by his heroic refusal to accept it for himself, and his resolution to share to the end what sufferings the obstinacy of her lords was to bring to the city. Neither be it observed did he bribe his fellow-citizens to desert to the enemy by any rich promise. He plainly told them that this would leave a man with nothing but his bare life." Jeremiah addressed himself in the last place to the house of the king, the princes, who were the real rulers of the land. He reminded them that it was their misgovernment, their greed, that was responsible for the present situation, and called on them to reform their methods—otherwise everything would be lost.

II. Jeremiah's Second Message to Zedekiah—34:1-7

It seems that the army of Babylon had now overrun all Judah, except Jerusalem, and the two fortresses, Lachish, a strongly fortified city in the foothills, 35 miles southwest of Jerusalem, and Azekah, probably 15 miles southwest of Jerusalem. Zedekiah this time had sought no message from Jeremiah; nevertheless the prophet sent him word that the city would be burned, he himself would be taken captive, but allowed to die a peaceful death.

III. Jeremiah's Third Message to Zedekiah—37:1-10

1. The military situation. Judah had rebelled against Babylon relying on the promises of Egypt to protect them. The promised help had started on its way at last. Sennacherib marching to meet the armies of his greatest rival for world dominion was forced to abandon the siege of Jerusalem.

2. Zedekiah's request. To Zedekiah the situation seemed more hopeful. He sent Jehucal and Zephaniah to the prophet requesting him to pray to Jehovah, inquiring at the same time whether or not He had determined to deliver the city. Cf verses 3 and 7.

3. The prophet's response. Jeremiah replied that the people's renewed hope was vain. The Egyptians would be defeated. The Babylonians would return, and burn the city, even if they had only cripples to depend upon. We might note here the exactness of Jeremiah's predictions. Forty years before Babylon came into power he predicted judgment from the north; for 18 years at least he had declared that Judah would be carried captive by Babylon. He foretold the siege of the city. Now that the siege is lifted his assurance is not shaken. He foretells the uselessness of Egyptian interference, and the re-establishment and ultimate success of the siege.

IV. The Imprisonment of Jeremiah—37:11-15

In Chapter 34 we read of an incident which may throw some light on Jeremiah's arrest. While the city was besieged by the Chaldeans and the help of every man was needed the princes had freed all the slaves in the city, and sworn a solemn oath that their freedom would be respected. But when the siege was lifted, the princes repented of their bargain, and thrust the freedmen back into bondage. Jeremiah had protested bitterly, and as a result brought new obloquy upon himself.

Now that the besieging armies were withdrawn the citizens of Jerusalem were free to come and go through its walls. Jeremiah had some property in Benjamin, and one day along with other citizens he attempted to pass out through the gate of Benjamin on the north side of the city. Irijah the officer on duty at the time promptly placed him under arrest, charging that he was attempting to desert to the enemy. Probably he was acting on the instructions of his superiors. There was no evidence at all that Jeremiah really intended to desert, and he indignantly denied the charge. Nevertheless the charge was at least plausible, for Jeremiah had not concealed his convictions regarding the ultimate fate he had openly suggested that desertion was the road to safety, and the probability is that at this time accepted his advice (38:19, cf 4; decision as to Jeremiah's fate rested with these princes it must be remembered were Jehoiaikim's reign who had been favorable since these had for the most part been taken but upstarts who had no experience of government and short sighted patriots, so inferior to their predecessors that Jeremiah contrasted the latter as evil figs with good figs. They disliked him for his pro-Babylonian attitude, but been further embittered against him by his denunciation of the treatment they had accorded Hebrew slaves. Naturally therefore they were guilty, and consigned their prisoner to a dungeon (verse 16) in the house of Jonathan where he would have died in due course (vs 17) the princes had their way.

V. Jeremiah's Fourth Message to Zedekiah

Jeremiah remained in the dungeon for some time as he had predicted the siege was the last Zedekiah sent for him secretly. He still respected his office. He was however, afraid to release him, or to be seen because of the princes. But he wished to know if there was any further message from Jehovah. No prophet's courage. As Doctor Bennet says: "days he had endured squalor, confinement, starvation. His body must have been enfeebled, spirit depressed. Weak and contemptible as Zedekiah yet he was the prophet's only earthly protector, malice of his enemies. He intended to utilize his view for an appeal for release from his present confinement. Thus he had every motive for conciliating the king. He asked him for a word from Jehovah. He was alone with Zedekiah and was not nerved to refuse by any opportunity of making public the truth, and yet he was faithful alike to the poor helpless king: thou shalt be delivered out of the hand of the King of Babylon." Jeremiah and the king recognized this, yet he did not set him free. But he so far braved the resentment of the princes as to bring him from the dungeon and confine him in the court of the guard. He cared for his maintenance, providing him a caldron of bread. The round cake here indicated was only bread was getting scarcer and scarcer and it kept him alive.

VI. Jeremiah in the Dungeon—38:1-6

The princes, however, were not prepared to let Jeremiah escape. They came to the king in a body and the prophet with weakening the hands of the king by predicting the fall of the city and by desertion. They demanded that they be allowed to deliver the prophet, and with the help of a few men drew him safely out. Ebed-melech's thought to spare the prophet all needless pain in the provision of rags to save him from being cut by the ropes and then by his letting the rags down to him so that he might not have to grope for them. The princes seem not to have interfered with him again. Probably the end was already very near. The king granted his petition not to be taken to the house of Jonathan.

VII. Jeremiah's Final Appeal to the King—39:1-4

For the last time Zedekiah sent for Jeremiah for his advice. Jeremiah told him plainly that he should save his own life and save the city only by submitting himself to the Babylonians. The king demurred that the Jews who had already deserted to Egypt would be allowed to put him to shame. Jeremiah assured him, and warned him that it was his own fault. But it was all in vain. The king went back to the prophet to his bonds.

VIII. The End of Jeremiah's Ministry—39:5-7

The siege dragged on with terrible suffering to the Jews. Finally a breach was made in the wall. Zedekiah was captured, his sons were slaughtered, his eyes, he himself was blinded, and carried into Babylon; the city was razed to the ground, and the inhabitants, who were not slain were taken into captivity.

Jeremiah and a few of the people, however, were allowed to remain behind. It was at this time that Jeremiah wrote his great prophecy on the scroll (30-31). Finally the new Governor, a warrior, was murdered by a renegade Jew, a terrified people, disregarding the protest of Jeremiah, carrying with them the unwilling prophet (Chapters 40-43). We lose sight of him then as he went vainly to the end against the sins of the people (44). According to an old tradition he was choked to death by an infuriated mob. And likely was the end of the timid and shrinking man to whom God had said: "I have made you a fortified city and an iron pillar and a wall against the whole land, against the kings thereof, against the princes thereof, against the priests thereof, and against the people of the land. And they shall fight against thee: but they shall not prevail against thee, for I am with thee, saith Jehovah, to deliver thee." (31:7)

(Continued on page 11)

LDREN

HOUSE-WARMING

It sounded like a snake's suggest such things!"
 s stood in the center of like two statues.
 one of them. "I'm sure
 , don't they?" said the kind of a lonesome place.
 er if there were snakes
 's warn the others."
 out of the lodge and hur-e naked woods to the road green sedan, called by its ss Rudolf.
 er," exclaimed one of the think this'll be a good
 The shack has a snake in ster of the boys, sprang and with her tumbled var-nd parcels.
 s it? Where is it? What is it?"
 't see it," admitted Jim, boys. "But as soon as we re in the fire place, we a hissing and we thought you and Mommer to keep ld get rid of it."
 probably isn't a poison-t in Herb, the other hibernating in the lodge
 uilt the fire that woke it hiss," said Jim.
 ool around with snakes," mother from the inside ie finishes her bottle I'll ou boys."
 t, Mommer," said Jim in ut tone of voice. "You'd ve should start to kill it."
 Mrs. Clemson, as she was le outside of the family,
 ing her children develop ce. She was glad when d signs of becoming real she said, "there are copd here."
 know one if I saw it," taken special notice of
 "I'll do it unless it's necessary," ng himself a club from a at broom, Helen?" Jim ght to go along and show
 are," she said.
 't have to, kid," replied
 We know you're brave."
 ut back to the shack and lean of dead leaves, rubwebs. All of it went into ad as the flames leapt high, same ominous hiss that d before. Herb's small, gened on his club and his ngely big, but he did not place near the hearth.
 with a mouth and lungs
 noise," whispered Jim.
 from a dead noise. It's mumbled his brother.
 as owned by the county ce of many scattered far ce wooded tract of public playground for the citi-city nearby. The Clemowed" the place for their
 as here," said Herb.
 reply but with a flourish
 nt a little more trash into The result was simply rest of the family in the
 the road heard a scream.
 en," said Mrs. Clemson, ootsie. I'd better go at d out of the car and in nsisting of knickers and gan running through the l gone only a few steps a footsteps behind her and ying "Mommer, wait!"
 sa whirled around.
 Helen?" she demanded.
 g to keep Tootsie."
 nd Helen, "but you—you um or anything and I e bread-knife." And she e of the twelve-inch knife th's hand and hurried back oing in Relentless.
 n looked quite war-like up the woods with the knife hand. But when she reach-

DO YOU LIKE BUTTER

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color.)

"Do you like butter?" asked YEL-LOW-haired Susie May. She held a Y E L L O W butter-cup towards BROWN-haired Teddy.
 "Try me and see if I do!" said Teddy, kneeling on the GREEN grassy slope. Susie May chose a big YEL-LOW buttercup from the hatful she had beside her and held it under Ted-dy's chin to see if he liked butter.

Susie May wore a dress with PINK (use RED lightly) flowers printed all over it. The flowers had GREEN leaves. Susie May's hat was BROWN, so were her slippers.
 Teddy wore a White sailor blouse with dark BLUE collar braid. His trousers were dark BLUE, also, but his tie and the stripe on his arm were RED.

"Won't some of those YELLOW dandelions in the grass do to tell if I like butter, too?" asked Teddy.
 "Oh, yes indeed!" replied Susie May.
 "Do you want one?"
 The sky was a light BLUE and both children had PINK cheeks and RED lips.
 The border of this picture can be colored YELLOW and the lettering GREEN.

ed the lodge she was too late to be of any help.
 Things had moved as swiftly as a movie reel spun off double fast. Jim was nearest the hearth where he flourished his broom sweeping some dry leaves into the fire.
 Up leapt the flames and at the same instant something sprang down from the chimney and out straight at Jim. The boy ducked and the thing leapt upon his back.
 He felt claws rip his skin, he heard a frightened scream and a banging noise.
 He had fallen to his knees, but the thing was off his back now and he jumped to his feet, gripping his broom and whirling about.
 Herb was crouched by the door, his eyes staring up at the rafters. Jim looked up and from the shadows, saw two large gleaming eyes glaring down at him. Then came a low growl and a hiss, vicious and threatening.
 "I—I can't get the door open," sobbed Herb. "It's stuck. You shut it when you were sweeping."
 The creature on the rafters seemed to resent this speech. It stretched its neck down in their direction and uttered another growl.
 "Don't move, Jim," whispered Herb.
 "It's going to spring."
 "Aw, shucks," said Jim in a loud voice,
 "it's only an old cat. Think I'm afraid."
 "G-g-rooo! Hiss-ss!" came from the rafters and the creature drew its slink-ing form forward.
 "Shut up, you!" shouted Jim.
 This was more to reassure his younger brother, for his eyes told him that the animal was no common cat. It was an enormous wild-cat. His bleeding back told him something of what those huge paws were capable. In order to reach the door, he would be obliged to pass directly under the beast. This he scarcely cared to do. So he went with big careless strides to the window. It was nailed shut. He broke the glass with his broom and tore out the strips of wood between the panes.

"Come on now, Herb, old feller," he shouted. "Make it snappy."
 This looked rather cowardly, as Herb had to pass under the cat to reach the window, but Jim figured swiftly that if the door were really jammed, he would not be able to break it down in an instant
 as he had done with the window.
 Herb ran towards his brother, and just as he passed under the wild-cat, it jumped for him. But Jim was waiting with his broom and swung at the beast.
 It was like a volley, only the ball happened to be large and dangerous.
 When Herb knew what was happening, he swerved from the window and rushed to the other side of the room.
 This left a clear path to the broken window and the wild-cat swooped up and through it like a bird in full flight and in an instant it was gone.
 A moment later they heard a hammering at the door and a breathless voice calling: "Herb! Jim!"
 The boys agreed to try not to scare their mother green, then they got the door open. Mrs. Clemson was scared literally green when she saw her son's back, but like good sports they settled down in the shack and referred to these adventures as their "house-warming."

Hydra-Headed Words
 I am a spice of 4 letters, change my head 5 times and find—
 To step.
 A filmy fabric.
 A contest.
 A fish.
 Part of your head.
Word Square
 My first is a month
 My second is a poisonous tree
 My third is a narrow road
 My fourth is a river in Belgium

1	2	3		4	5
6				7	C
		8	9	10
			11
12	13
14				15	16
17

PUZZLE CORNER

Literary Fun
 Upon the shelf some books you see
 In order neat arrayed,
 But move them all to left or right
 And find the author's name displayed.
 All's Well That Ends Well
 Hamlet
 The Merchant of Venice
 As You Like It
 Romeo and Juliet
 The Taming of the Shrew
 The Tempest
 Othello
 King Lear
 A comedy of Errors
 Twelfth Night

Horizontal
 1—Chief city of State
 6—Consumed
 7—That is (Latin-abbr.)
 8—Dwell
 11—Tin container
 12—Trample
 14—Preposition
 15—Anger
 17—Cowboy lasso (pl.)
Vertical
 1—Official building of congress
 2—Near
 3—Calm
 4—Assist
 5—Blood-suck- ing worm (pl.)
 9—Bleat of a sheep
 10—Country of Asia
 13—Royal Field Artillery (abbr.)
 16—Right (abbr.)

CHURCH NEWS

COLUMBIA THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Thirty Seniors will complete their work at Columbia Seminary and will receive their degrees and certificates at the Commencement Exercises, May 22.

The entire class has been placed in permanent fields. They are located as follows:

R. L. Alexander, Pastor, Brevard, N. C.; M. S. Avery, Pastor, Candler, N. C.; H. H. Bryan, Associate Pastor, Marietta, Ga.; J. W. Bryson, Pastor, Cedar Grove, La.; L. P. Burney, Pastor, Sugaw Creek, Charlotte, N. C.; L. W. Carleton, Pastor, Florala, Ala.; W. C. Cooper, Pastor, Oakboro, N. C.; J. M. Garrison, Associate Pastor, Columbus, Mo.; L. B. Gibbs, Pastor, Tiger, Ga.; V. A. Gordon, Pastor, Scottsboro, Ala.; C. J. Harris, Pastor, Lebanon-Salem Group, S. C.; S. T. Harvin, Pastor, Williston, S. C.; H. K. Holland, Pastor, Conyers, Ga.; W. B. Hooker, Pastor, Maiden, Miss.; D. A. Hyde, Pastor, Menlo, Ga.; H. C. Keller, Pastor, Greenville, Ga.; J. S. McFall, Pastor, Morven, N. C.; W. L. McLeod, Pastor, Marks, Miss.; C. F. Monk, Pastor, Long Beach, Miss.; J. L. Plexico, Pastor, Acworth, Ga.; M. B. Prince, Pastor, Polkton, N. C.; K. C. Seawright, Pastor, Phillips, Miss.; J. P. Simmons, Pastor, Pica-yune, Miss.; A. M. Simpson, Pastor, Society Hill, S. C.; J. D. Simpson, Pastor, Crestview, Fla.; W. C. Sistar, Pastor, Log Cabin Church, Macon, Ga.; C. L. Smith, Pastor, Inman Park Presbyterian Church, Atlanta, Ga.; T. A. Smith, Pastor, Reform, Ala.; T. F. Wallace, Pastor, St. Matthews, S. C.; S. A. Cartledge, Young Peoples' Worker, Central Presbyterian Church, Atlanta.

R. T. Gillespie, President.

NORTH CAROLINA

Concord Presbytery met in adjourned session in the First Church, Statesville, May 13, 1929. Present 16 ministers and 5 ruling elders.

The pastoral relation between Rev. E. D. Brown and the Bethany Church was dissolved. Mr. Brown takes pastoral charge of the group composed of Third Creek, Fifth Creek and Eliwood.

Rev. K. L. McIver tendered his resignation as pastor of the Poplar Tent Church. The relation was dissolved, to take effect June 1, 1929.

Presbytery went on record as opposing union with the United Presbyterian Church and asks that there be no further agitation of the matter by the Assembly.

Rev. Paolo Bosio, of the Waldensian Church in Italy, was present and made an interesting talk about the work of his church in Italy.

E. D. Brown, Stated Clerk.

The Mebane Church sent up to Presbytery one, if not the best reports that has ever been sent by this Church. The accomplishments of the women during the past year are almost beyond expression, while the work of the men and young people surpass the expectation of all. Our church paid out for all causes far more than it has ever paid out in its past history. We take no credit to ourselves but give God the glory who guided us in the work we undertook.

On May 5, our Sunday School observed Children's Day at which time we had a beautiful and impressive program rendered by the young people of our Sunday School, the offering went to foreign missions. On the night of May 15, the ladies of our church observed the birthday of the Auxiliary, putting on the pageant, "Hands Across the Rio Grande," by the Business Women's Circle. The free-will offering amounted to more than fifty dollars.

We are proud of the past year's work and already have begun the new year with a determination to accomplish more than we did the past year. The secret of the whole matter is, God is our leader, and team-work on the part of both pastor and people.

Daniel B. Green, Pastor.

Presbyterian Orphans' Home, Barium Springs—Commencement exercises at Barium Springs will be held May 31 through June 3. Friday evening, May 31, the grammar grades will give a program in the new school building. This will be in connection with the music department. Sunday morning, June 2, at eleven o'clock, Rev. Jas. F. Hardie, D.D., pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Charlotte, will preach the baccalaureate sermon. Sunday evening at 8 o'clock Rev. Chas. P. Coble, pastor of the Presbyterian Church at High Point will preach the sermon before the young people's societies of the Home. Class day exercises will be held Monday morning, Monday evening, June 3, at 8 o'clock final graduating exercises will be held at which time Rev. Edgar G. Gammon, D.D., pastor of Myers Park Presbyterian Church, will deliver the graduating address. All of these exercises will be in the new school building. The public is cordially invited to attend these exercises.

First Vanguard, Raleigh—May the 12, "Mother's Day," will long be remembered by the people of the First Vanguard Church. At the morning hour a combined service of Sunday School and Church Services were held.

The special Children's Day program was given by members of the Sunday School. Immediately following this a special Mothers Day program was presented, "The Ideal Mother." This program was presented by the pastor, Rev. C. J. Hollandworth and a number of members composing a family, to a large and appreciative audience. A large group of mothers were present at this service.

At the evening hour the pastor, received six new members, four by letter and two on profession of faith.

This Church has just completed a three week's course in Teacher Young, "The Life of Christ," taught by the pastor. Much interest was manifested in this study and it is hoped that much good has been accomplished.

Davidson—Recommendations will be made at the fall meeting of the Synod of North Carolina that a new church be constructed at Davidson College, according to Rev. C. E. Raynal, D.D., of Statesville, who headed a committee from the Synod which met at Davidson recently to investigate the need. All students of the Institution assembled at the church at 12:30, to definitely demonstrate to the visiting committeemen the necessity for a new building.

The committee spent an hour or two at Davidson, going over the present plant and equipment, and had already reached a decision to make this recommendation to the Synod of North Carolina before the students assembled. The gathering of the student body served to accentuate their purpose, and in his talk to the Davidson students Doctor Raynal assured them that urgent recommendations would be presented.

Serving on the committee from the Synod with Doctor Raynal are Rev. D. Clay Lilly, D.D., of Winston-Salem; Rev. Albert Sydney Johnson, D.D., of Charlotte; C. M. Norfleet, of Winston-Salem; R. A. Dunn, of Charlotte, and Chas. M. Cannon, Concord. Ernest Milton.

Wilmington—The Presbyterians in Morehead City and Beaufort have recently enjoyed a series of Evangelistic services conducted in the Presbyterian Chapel located on Rendell and 24th Street in Morehead. The preaching was done by Rev. E. E. Gillespie, D.D., of Greensboro, and he was assisted by Rev. R. C. Clontz of Wilmington and Rev. J. R. Phipps, who has been supplying the Chapel from time to time. The singing was in charge of Mr. Andrew Burr, who is associated with Mr. Clontz in evangelistic work in Wilmington Presbytery.

Doctor Gillespie is one of the outstanding ministers of the Synod of North Carolina and his sermons were of high order and very helpful to those who heard him. He is of the old school and applied the Gospel to the needs of his hearers. The services were well attended from the beginning and people were turned away from the night services. The pastors of the other churches co-operated with those in charge of the services and almost every night from two to three of the local pastors were in the congregation. You seldom find a more cordial group of ministers than those in Morehead and Beaufort.

The meeting came to a close on Sunday, May 5, and a Commission of Wilmington Presbytery met and organized a Presbyterian Church with 42 charter members. The church was named First Presbyterian Church of Morehead City.

This church is to serve both Beaufort and Morehead City for the present and the six officers elected were taken from the two towns. The following were elected to office. Ruling Elders, Prof. H. L. Joslyn, Dr. Sam W. Thompson, Dr. Frank S. Hyde, of Beaufort. Deacons, Mr. George Webb, Mr. T. D. Lewis and Mr. J. S. Gutsell, Beaufort. The Church is to be congratulated on having such a fine group of men to be office bearers in the Church.

A formal call has been extended by the congregation to Rev. Frank S. Johnston who graduates from Union Theological Seminary this week. Reverend Johnston has accepted the call and will begin his pastorate June 1. In the meantime services will be held by visiting ministers of the Presbytery. This church will be grouped with the Wildwood five miles from Morehead which has been the only Presbyterian Church in all of Carteret County. Presbyterians living in Beaufort desiring to connect with this Church will please see Dr. F. S. Hyde and those in Morehead Professor Joslyn or Doctor Thompson. Plans are being made to erect a ten or fifteen thousand dollar church building in the near future. This Church will be located in the New Development and will be about one and one-half miles from any other Church.

R. S. Clontz.

Burlington—The thirteen Protestant Churches of this city held simultaneous evangelistic meetings the last two weeks in March. All uniting in a union service each day at 10:00 a. m. A fine spirit of unity prevailed throughout the meeting. During the first week a number of visiting brethren did the preaching in the First Church. On Sunday, March 24, Rev. J. R. McGregor, of Lexington, N. C., came and preached each evening until the close of the series of services, March 31. Mr. McGregor is a gifted young preacher and fulfills all the conditions of a pastor-evangelist. In addition to his being an able and instructive preacher he is also a most effective personal worker.

There were fourteen additions to the Church as a result of the meeting and many of the members renewed their vows.

W. R. Potter, Pastor.

Bluff—The Christian Endeavorers of the Bluff Presbyterian Church, of Wade, were hosts to a number of students, Misses Gertrude Crandall, Lucile Morton, Katherine Alford and Mary Eunice Wells of Flora Macdonald College, who presented a Model Christian Endeavor Program. The subject was, "Music in the Heart."

The program was inspiring and most helpful.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Spartanburg First Church—An inspiring service, and an offering of $1,018.00, marked the observance of Mission Day in this Church at the hour of morning worship on May 5. Young people of the Sunday School impressively presented the program prepared by the Educational Department of the Executive Committee of Foreign Missions. Representatives of the classes in turn brought forward the class offerings, and as each amount was announced the assembled school and watched with eager interest a silently mounting total. Several vision study, and happy self-denial on the part of the pupils prepared the way for this high Sunday School year.

ARKANSAS

Little Rock, Second—May 12 ten were received—six by letter and four on profession of faith. The pastor has gone to Greensboro, N. C., for several weeks with relatives.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Central Church of Washington—Sunday, May 12, saw the ordination and installation of elders (only one of whom, however, had to be ordained) and the six deacons elected Thursday night. Each of the two elders was given the right of fellowship by each of the other elders present. Each of the two deacons was given the right of fellowship by each of the other deacons present. "We give you the right hand of fellowship. Take part in this office with us." Each of the two was greeted in the same manner by the congregation in that service.

GEORGIA

Augusta—The Greene Street Church was held on Sunday, May 12. In celebration of its centennial a special program was arranged for the day May 5, and continuing through May 12.

Sunday, May 5, was "Home Coming Day." The invitation was extended to all who have been members of the church during the past years to come to the evening services of this day. Both sermons were by Geo. E. Guille, a former pastor.

Monday, May 6, "A Day of Memories and Reflections." At the evening service the history of the church was recounted. Mr. W. P. Egbert, the senior pastor, gave the narrative of the church's beginning and progress through fifty years. Mrs. Rose I. Guille told the interesting story of the organized women. This service was followed by an informal dinner.

From Tuesday to Friday, May 7-10, it was the privilege to have present for this anniversary were former beloved ministers of the church, the Rev. E. Guille, who was pastor from April, 1885, to the exercise of his great gift, teaching, has been in demand all over America. Mr. Guille's four evenings of appropriate truth to the church and tomorrow.

Sunday, May 12, was a "Day of Reconciliation" was observed at 11:00 a. m., and evening.

The church was organized May 8, 1879. "The Second Presbyterian Church" until the present building in 1906, when the name was changed to "The Greene Street Presbyterian Church."

In the fall of 1885, the manse was erected which was $6,375, exclusive of the lot. Of $5,108 was contributed by the Ladies Aid Society whose splendid benevolence and industry has made a monument. It has been the home of the church for forty-four years.

The ministers of the church were: Rev. R. Goetchius, May, 1879-October, 1885; Rev. J. K. Smith, July, 1886-January, 1892; Rev. J. K. Smith, 1892-June, 1895; Rev. B. M. Shive, May, 1895-1897; Rev. G. G. Sydnor, April, 1898-August, 1900; H. W. Burwell, April, 1902-September, 1905; E. Guille, April, 1905-April, 1912; Rev. M. Ferrin, December, 1912.

Three of these are deceased: Doctor Lawry, and Shive.

TEXAS

Central Texas Presbytery met in adjourned session at Austin, Texas, with the First Southern Church, May 2, 1929, 2:00 p. m.

The pastoral relation between Rev. E. M. Munroe and the First Presbyterian Church, Taylor, Texas, was dissolved. Rev. E. M. Munroe was dismissed to the Brazos and he might accept a call from the Second Presbyterian Church, Houston.

Rev. R. L. Nicholson was installed pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Marlow, Texas, on April 28, 1929. Arrangements were made to install Rev. I. M. W. Minter, pastor of the Trinity Church, Waco, May 8:00 p. m.

Licentiate Raymond A. Partlow was installed pastor of the First Presbyterian Church at Happy, Texas.

Rev. Malcom L. Purcell was elected to fill the vacancy on the Committee on Religious Education in the absence of Rev. E. M. Munroe.

The name of Rev. H. G. Kenney was dropped from the roll of ministers of the Presbytery of Central Texas because he notified the Presbytery, May 5, 1929, had been set as the date for his resignation from the ministry of another Church.

Mrs. John Minter, a member of the First Presbyterian Church, Austin, Texas, and W. R. Minter, D.D., the pastor of that church, received under the care of the Presbytery the date for the ministry.

With expressions of appreciation for the work of the pastor and the Church, the Presbytery met with the First Presbyterian Church, Waco, Texas, September 17, 1929, 7:30 p. m. Stonewall J. McMillan.

VIRGINIA

Richmond—At a congregational meeting the morning service, May 12, Rev. Graham of the Rivermont Presbyterian Church, Lytle ly called to the pastorate of the Westminster Church, Richmond.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

(Continued from page 6)
WHAT IS YOUR HONORABLE AGE?
 I'm an old-fashioned Oriental, we Auxiliary women, and And what is your honorable age?" Last year my age was thirty years and a few months. It was $42,230 which was given to the Emily or Training School, by the number of men, 140,000 and you will find that, giving each year, we are only thirty years old. Are we not!

Are we hoping for a sudden acquisition of many at age; for that venerable dignity and mellow goes with many summers! The missionaries are praying and hoping, waiting eagerly which will come after the Montreat Auxiliary School. Can you picture some dark-eyed beauty asking Miss Beaty or Miss McClelland, "How do you find out how old the dear ladies of the Church across the Rio Grande are?" You are having, or will have your Birthday realize their joy at the prospect of better opportunity and greater service through the schools at Zitacuaro and Chilpancingo. The Birthday Gift will bring. You can feel, of joy which your years have brought you, your offering of gratitude to God for our gifts promptly that the news that goes across the border in July may be as complete as any may bring great joy,—and if your celebration you wish to grow even older in service then a few more years tumbling happily away are "better late than never." "Dear ladies," is the admonition of Miss that you are getting a great bargain. Two for the price of one. "That is a double present and joy. Two joys come to you, one from each of our joys go from you to others, to the missionaries at both schools and through the field. Quadrupled joy for every year! To be as old as Methuselah!

FAYETTEVILLE PRESBYTERIAL

The Auxiliary of Fayetteville Presbytery met on April 9-10. This was the fortieth annual anniversary was celebrated with appropriate Tuesday evening. Mrs. Lauchlin McRobertson, presiding. The called meeting for the Presbyterial "Union," under the leadership of Elizabeth A. McRae, amid great disapproval of many brethren, was reviewed by Robertson, of Raleigh, N. C. The next two organizing work was related by Mrs. D. P. Red Springs, twenty-three years of growth. Miss Kate Fairley, of Wilmington, and in years of achievement was read by Mrs. of Sardis for Mrs. Z. A. Gibson, detained by an auto accident, all of which were present meeting in Fayetteville forty years ago. Girls dressed in white came in singing "birthdays" and bringing a beautiful cake decorated with pink roses and forty candles from Demont's, D. C., the gift of Mrs. Geo. A. Avenger, the hostess Auxiliary. After the conclusion of an informal reception was held giving opportunity to "taste the cake."

Welcome was extended by Mrs. M. J. McRobertson, N. Page, Honorary President, responded to the Presbyterial. The theme of the program was "Religious Education, and Rev. E. D. Paisley, of Danville, Va., delivered the address on this subject. Mr. H. Stuart, D.D. of Flora Macdonald College, delivered the address on "The Christian College; Miss Kinney, Life Work Secretary of the Executive Council on Christian Education and Ministerial Work on her phase of this work.

Dr. T. Thompson, D.D., of Richmond, Va., delivered the address on "Bible lessons on the book of Amos applying to our times and especially to the women of our country." Mr. Johnston, of Barium brought a new message from the Orphan's Home and School; Mrs. E. B. Johnston, on methods in Mission Study; Mrs. G. V. Johnston, medical President, made a very spiritually interesting address; Mrs. W. L. Wilson, Synodical Vice-President, explained the new Auxiliary Standard. A report of the Literature of the Department of Woman's Work was presented by Mrs. J. H. Suttinfield. The Chorus Club of Flora McDonald College sang two anthems and Mrs. Eugene Morgan of Lakeside sang a solo.

Reports of District Chairman and Auxiliaries were encouraging in that they showed the largest increase in the development of Spiritual Life on record. There was a decrease of $1,051 in the financial report due, probably, to general financial depression and crop failure, this being the most rural Presbytery in the Assembly.

There were six Ex-Presidents of the Presbyterial present. Others in attendance were—Officers, Synodical, 2; Presbyterial, 6; Secretaries of Causes, 10; District Chairmen, 7; delegates, 81; alternates, 6; out of town visitors, 195; members of Laurinburg Auxiliary attending, 120; total, 427.

Officers for the year are Honorary President, Mrs. R. N. Page; President, Mrs. W. M. Fairley; Vice-President, Mrs. J. R. Page; Corresponding-Secretary, Mrs. J. A. McGoogan; Recording Secretary, Mrs. G. B. Rowland; Treasurer Miss Mary McLaughlin; Historian, Mrs. L. McDonald. Secretaries of Causes are Spiritual Life, Mrs. Mrs. W. H. Sutherland; Foreign Missions, Miss Flora McQueen; Assembly's Home Missions, Mrs. G. H. West; S. & P. Mome Missions, Miss Sallie Thrower; Christian Education and Ministerial Relief, Mrs. A. S. Cromartie; Sunday School Extension and Young People's Work, Miss Kate Sutton; Literature, Mrs. Carl S. Matthews; Christian Social Service, Mrs. J. A. Jones; White Cross Work, Mrs. Lacy C. Buie; Orphanage, Mrs. L. A. McLaurin; Elise High School, Miss Sara Williams. District Chairmen are No. 1, Mrs. J. W. Thornton, No. II, Mrs. David McNeil; No. III, Mrs. Geo. L. Grantham; No. IV, Mrs. A. J. McKelway; No. V, Mrs. Geo. W. Hanna; No. VI, Mrs. J. D. Wimberly; No. VII, C. A. Prevost, Jr.; No. VIII, Mrs. Charles Ross.

The hospitality of the Laurinburg Church can not be excelled, the entertainment being delightful from beginning to end. The decorations were beautiful both in the Church and in the Sunday School building where most bountiful luncheons were served each day under the supervision of Mrs. A. M. Fairley.

Mrs. J. A. McGoogan, Corresponding Sec'y. The Presbyterial will meet next year with the Highland Church of Fayetteville, N. C.

(A report of this meeting was clipped from the Laurinburg Exchange and printed several weeks ago. We repeat this as a fuller account.—Ed.)

HERE IS A TASK

To be honest, to be kind, to earn a little, and to spend a little less, to make upon the whole a family happier for his presence, to renounce when that shall be necessary and not to embittered, to keep a few friends, but these without capitulation; above all, on the same condition, to keep friends with himself: here is a task for all a man has of fortitude and delicacy.—R. L. Stevenson.

EDITORIAL

(Continued from page 3)

This School's growth has been phenomenal. Dr. Anderson read the report of the Mountain Retreat Association, and at the same time gave the story of its growth from the one-time Montreat with its scanty advantages to its present equipment in buildings and other city luxuries and conveniences.

He regretted that it had to close with a debt on the new hotel, though he had hoped to do otherwise. The Church has only given $3,000 and from all other sources only $19,000 has been received. With regard to the cost of the new hotel he said, "We estimated at the beginning that the building and furnishings would cost $250,000; but up to date we have spent $206,747.74 and we believe the building can be finished for about $43,252.26 more, making a total cost of $250,000.00."

They must raise $70,000, and they have in cash and subscriptions $30,000.

Among the visiting brethren from other bodies, we had the pleasure of having a brand new visitor from the "Land o'cakes and heather," Dr. Hamilton, who represented the Presbyterian Alliance.

This is his first visit to America, and his Scotch soul was thrilled by the great distance of this country, its abundant prosperity and its lavish way of living.

He said that his daughter wrote an essay on America in her school work, in which she said, "In America they put criminals to death by elocution." He assured us that he would not try elocution on us.

The Scotch lassie came dangerously near the truth, even if not exact, because we ourselves have been dangerously near "the article of death" when undergoing the tortures of the elocutionist.

Here the speaker turned to the Moderator and said, "If I am not striking oil, do not let me go on boring."

The Moderator told him that he could see that his audience was largely Scotch extraction by their awakened interest when the Stated Clerk informed them that their expense checks were being prepared and would be ready for them very soon.

Dr. G. W. Brown, representing the American Bible Society, then spoke in behalf of that cause. He told a story of a soldier coming to him when he was in France, asking him for a copy of the 91st Psalm, because his mother had told him, when starting for the war, that this Psalm would be a great comfort to him in time of danger.

Dr. Goodell, representing the Federal Council, then followed.

Dr. Lingle introduced him by telling a story of Polk Miller, who was such a wonderful performer on the banjo that a negro who heard him in a burst of enthusiasm said, "Boss, I wish that you were a nigger."

Dr. Goodell's address was a plea for the Council, which was made in a most skillful manner, the main idea being that the great need of the Church was peace and good will among its constituent members.

"Heaven is described as having 12 gates," said he, "and when we reach heaven it will not matter by which gate we enter."

His description of the work of the Council was remarkable for what it omitted.

We do not object to the Council because of its binding the Church together in the bonds of spiritual unity, but because of the acts that are contrary to our expressed principles, the relation of the Church to the State.

We do not criticize the good it does, but only the evil, and we do not wish to be particeps criminis in its interference with political matters.

He made as strong a speech in defense of the Council as could be made, but he did not remove our objection to its political meddling and the loose doctrinal principles of some of its leaders.

If Dr. Goodell were a fair representative of the Council, all of us would welcome a connection with it as being a means of grace to us all.

Rev. Paslo Boses, a representative of the Waldensian Church made an earnest plea for that great people. He thanked us for what we had done for the Waldensians in Burke County of this state, and also reminded us that since the Pope had come to an agreement with the Italian government their situation had become more difficult. The atmosphere has become more Catholic than ever and having learned by experience what the Romish Church will do, they feel the need of Protestant support and sympathy.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

(Continued from page 8)

1:18-19. It may be that he lost his life, but it is certain that he delivered his soul. We believe Ballantine is right. Jeremiah was "the healthiest, strongest, bravest, grandest man of Old Testament history."

But there are a number of questions that come to us. Was Jeremiah a patriot? What is patriotism? Does a Christian owe supreme allegiance to his country or to his God? When is there a conflict? Was the man right who said: "My country, may she always be right, but right or wrong my country?" If not how should it be amended? Is it the duty of the individual to subordinate his conscientious convictions to the demands of the state when unanimity is needed in face of a common public danger? Suppose our country should enter upon a war unjustly should it have the support of Christian citizens? What should they do about it? If a man refuses to support a war because of conscientious convictions how should he be treated? In times of war all governments make use of propoganda, which is often misleading and false. We can never know the true causes of any war. Should the Church as a Church ever support any war as for example it supported the last war? In times of war what should be the attitude of the Church? Was Jeremiah right when he put duty before life. Which should we put first. What international policies would Jeremiah stand for at the present time?

DAVIDSON ALUMNI

(Continued from page 2)

groups are arranging to visit the campus. These are 1880, 1881, 1882, and 1883; 1899, 1900, 1901, and 1902, and 1918, 1919, 1920, and 1921. Many alumni of other classes will return, and an invitation will be extended to the entire constituency.

M. C. O'Neal has been re-elected and has accepted an invitation to return as executive secretary of the Y. M. C. A. at Davidson College for next year, according to an announcement made public here today. Mr. O'Neal was graduated from Davidson last June, and was chosen to succeed J. M. Appleby in the capacity of "Y" secretary. He has acceptably continued the work, and the Y. M. C. A. board asked him to return. Mr. O'Neal is originally from Montgomery, Ala.

A prayer for motorists: "Teach us to drive through life without skidding into other peoples business. Preserve our brake lining, that we may stop before we go too far. Help us to hear the knocks in our own motors and close our ears to the clashing of other peoples gears. Keep alcohol in our radiators and out of our stomachs. Absolve us from the mania of trying to pass the other automobile on a narrow road. Open our eyes to the traffic signs, and keep our feet on the brakes."—Harry McCreary.

An excuse is worse and more terrible than a lie; for an excuse is a lie guarded.—Pope.

MONTREAT COTTAGE FOR RENT

Tree Top cottage, near lake and auditorium, completely furnished to accommodate family of six or eight. Price $150 for entire season. Rev. J. H. Gruver, Black Mountain, N. C.

The Collegiate School for Girls
 On Historic Monument Avenue
 RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.
 Day and boarding school under the management of
 The Presbyterian League of Richmond, Virginia
 College Preparatory and General Courses
 Credited by the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges
 Fifteenth Session opens September 19, 1929
 MISS VAN GREENLEAF
 Head of the School

K S T O N E — A MILITARY SCHOOL FOR BOYS Faithful Section of Virginia. College Preparatory and Business Administrative home influences prevail, and individual needs of each boy closely watched.
 and fireproof buildings. All manly sports, Christian influences and surroundstrated catalog write to
 Col. E. S. Ligon, President
 Box R
 Virginia

STORY

KATHERINE LEE BATES

The recent death in her seventieth year of this distinguished woman leaves a large vacancy in the field of American letters. For many years she was professor of English literature in Wellesley College and she wrote as well as taught literature. While she published many volumes, most of them of poetry much of which is of a high order, yet she achieved only one masterpiece which will long live, America the Beautiful, now found in many of our hymnbooks. It has

Graduates Get Jobs!

Graduates of this school get jobs. The recognized standards of Draughon's cause many business firms to regularly employ our graduates. You take a business training because you want to earn. Our graduates earn. Don't delay another day. Write now!

DRAUGHON'S BUSINESS COLLEGE
1218 SUMTER ST. COLUMBIA, S. C.

long been the choice of many of our best judges that more than any other poem it should be made our national anthem. This honor is supposed to fall to the Star Spangled Banner, but many object to this choice. Its poetry is not of a high order, and what good poem would ever start with "Oh! Say, can you see"? The sentiment is not proper, for it is a war song celebrating a victory over an enemy, and as that enemy was England it is not well that we should be singing of victory over our motherland. And its music is almost impossible to sing as it plunges up and down and through the whole musical scale in jumps too far and wild to follow. But America the Beautiful sings of America in terms of peace and plenty and beauty and brotherhood, and it is splendid in imagery and distinguished in diction and musical in rhythm and its patriotic sentiments are high and fine and noble, running up to God himself. It is sung to a familiar tune easy to sing that almost sings itself, in which the music is wedded to words that blend into harmony. There has been some movement to get this hymn adopted as our national anthem, but there seems to be no way in which this can be officially done. Familiar as the words are, we cannot read them too often and we here give them space:

America the Beautiful

O beautiful for spacious skies,
For amber waves of grain,
For purple mountain majesties
Above the fruitful plain!
America! America!
God shed his grace on thee
And crown thy good with brotherhood
From sea to shining sea!

O beautiful for Pilgrim feet,
Whose stern, impassioned stress,
A thoroughfare for freedom beat
Across the wilderness!
America! America!
God mend thine every flaw,
Confirm thy soul in self-control,
Thy liberty in law!

NISBET LODGE, MONTREAT, NORTH CAROLINA

On same road and two short blocks from Auditorium opens for the season May 15th.

O beautiful for heroes proved
In liberating strife,
Who more than self their country
And mercy more than life;
America! America!
May God thy gold refine Till all success be nobleness
And every gain divine!

O beautiful for patriot dream
That sees beyond the years
Thine alabaster cities gleam Undimmed by human tears!
America! America!
God shed his grace on these
And crown with good thy brood
From sea to shining sea!
—Presbyterian

EXCHANGING A RAIN INHERITANCE

May Whitcomb

Marion stood, a disconsolate creature, her nose pressed to a window pane, watching a steady splash of the rain in pools. "Oh, Mama," she said, "I don't rain, I can't play. I can't do anything. Why does it have to rain?"

Mother, busy with Baby, gazed sympathetically and said, "I don't know, either, dear, but perhaps it will be over before long."

Somewhat comforted by her sympathy and understanding, Marion watched and waited for the rain to stop, but it kept on and on. No one was suggested other than the usual "play with your toys," which she refused, and by nap time Mother and Marion were both irritable at the situation.

"And I can't blame her," said Aunt Nell that afternoon. "Rainy days always make me miserable and blue and Marion inherited it."

"Well," said Aunt Nell, wisely, "Marion's intelligence gained from rearing a large family, but you might be able to help her. Come such a handicap—and it is a handicap if she grows up feeling that every rainy day must be a gloomy, dreary day. I used to try and plan something little unusual for rainy days when my children were small. Sometime a few special toys for such days would have had little surprises for them. I'll start Marion off with a box."

Mother was dubious, but agreed to a trial, and a few days later she received a large parcel. Remotely, she remembered that the outer wrappings disclosed a box tied, and pasted across the top with a rainbow label marked, "Do not open until it rains."

During the two sunny days that followed the mysterious package remained unopened, and for the first time Marion could remember she was happy on the morning of the rain. At last she could open the package.

After breakfast the box was opened, disclosing four packages—four of which bore rainbow labels. Marion took the top one and Mother read the note which said:

"After breakfast open me. I'll keep you busy, just you wait. Inside Marion found a ship's

"A wise man built his house upon a rock--- and the rains descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew and it fell not; for it was founded upon a rock."

Like rock house foundations, the essential quality of rock for monuments is durability. Other important qualities are beauty, legibility of inscriptions and adaptability to design. Granite is the only stone that fills these requirements, and many granites do not possess all these qualities.

Winnsboro Granite

"The Silk of the Trade"

is a true granite, as pure a granite as is known. It possesses all of the above essential qualities for the ideal memorial, and it contains less deleterious ingredients—iron, lime, water—than other granites. It is, therefore, the most durable.

Be sure that "Winnsboro Granite" is specified in your contract for monuments. Like other high quality materials, there are many inferior substitutes, which resemble this granite on first appearance, but do not possess its lasting qualities and permanent beauty.

Have your monument dealer furnish you with a personal guarantee from the quarries that the monument your purchase is cut in genuine Winnsboro Granite.

The certificate of the quarries is signed by B. H. Heyward, Treas., and General Manager, whose signature insures genuine Winnsboro Granite. A facsimile of this signature is reproduced below.

Write for free descriptive literature.

Winnsboro Granite Corporation

Rion, South Carolina

B. H. Heyward

Treas. & Gen. Mgr.

King College for

Bristol, Tennessee

Stonewall Jackson College

FOR WOMEN

Abingdon, Va., Box 1

Jointly Controlled by Montreat
Presbytery

Affiliated Colleges of the Southern Appalachia.

King College offers four years leading to Degrees of Bachelor and Bachelor of Sciences — Christian College — Faculty of Christian gentlemen of thorough training and practical experience. Fees reasonable.

Stonewall Jackson College is a credit Junior College for women, in heart of healthful mountains. Two years high school, two years college. Music, economics, secretarial course, room with bath. All outdoor sports. Tennis. Nine hole golf course two acre campus. Homelike. Write for catalogue.

SHINE HAIR RESTORER

be sold in the new style bottle Always best for the hair. Not restores the color, promotes prevents dandruff. 500 at druggists, or sent prepaid by us. THE CO., Richmond, Va.

YOUR SUCCESS

on the thoroughness with prepare yourself for a prosperous career. We can help for our handsome cata-

NATIONAL BUSINESS COLLEGE

Roanoke, Va. TION WANTED s companion to one who services of a nurse. Ref- changed. Address "Nurse," 8, Wilmington, N. C.

Folk's Friend

what many call it for vim and vigor into old s; rich, red blood into s; sound flesh on old Drink with each meal.

War Ale

igestive Aromatics With Mineral Water & Ginger like it for assisting estive organs to con r food into rich blood ad flesh.

pend Your Vacation at Glade Valley

orty rooms, running water, electric lights, five acre s in the heart of the Blue Ridge. Quiet and restful. iful scenery. Rates $10 per week. Special rates for es.

C. W. ERVIN, Manager

eny County

Glade Valley, N. C.

VACATION TRIPS

Rail and Motor Tours

In the Southern Appalachian Mountains

In especially arranged rail and motor tours, the Southern Railway provides a new vacation recreation, combining rail and motor transportation for the individual and for parties, into the mountain sections of Virginia, North Carolina, Eastern Tennessee and North Georgia.

These tours will take you adventuring by rail and motor into regions of scenic beauty and historic interest. Each trip begins and ends with a railway journey, in which you enjoy the speed and comfort of rail travel. The motor trips are over established State highways.

For booklets, information and rates, call on Ticket Agents,

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

pair of scissors, many pages of bright magazine pictures and a large square of muslin to spread on the floor or table to catch the scraps.

Marion wanted to open the other packages at once, but Mother explained that the note on each one told just when it was to be opened—one at eleven o'clock, another after lunch, and the fourth after nap time. Their contents—a picture book, bright-colored beads and strings and a soap bubble outfit—kept the child busy and she was glad to help Mother by amusing the baby with her strings of beads.

Thoroughly convinced of the value of the plan, Mother told Marion at tea time that they would put the new toys back in the box and keep them for rainy days. The next rainy day Marion found a red balloon in the rainy day box. Another day Mother made tiny sandwiches for her doll's tea party. Magazines with pretty pictures were saved for it and a scrap book started—and gradually rainy days were looked forward to as a cozy play time rather than "days when you can't do anything."—Reformed Church Messenger.

MARY BALDWIN COLLEGE

For women. Courses lead to B. A. and B. S. degrees. Music, art, spoken English, physical education. Gymnasium and field athletics. Modern equipment. In beautiful Shenandoah Valley. Founded 1842. Catalog. Staunton, Virginia.

Cecil's Business Colleges

Let us train you for business.—Secretaries, Accountants, Bookkeepers, Stenographers, Stenotypists find ready employment. Keep cool and go to school in the glorious mountains of Carolina. Resident school or home study course. Address

CECIL'S BUSINESS COLLEGES Asheville, N. C., or Spartanburg, S. C.

THROUGH THE DARK WOODS

"C-O-U-R-A-G-E-O-U-S — Grandma, how is this word pronounced?" Little Sarah Moore—seated in front of the blazing wood fire—lifted a pair of questioning blue eyes from the old "Blue-back Speller" on her knee.

"Courageous." Grandmother Jackson—gray-haired, slender and spry—paused for an instant before placing a heavy iron lid upon the glowing logs.

"But what does it mean, Grandma?"

"It means: being brave — risking one's life to save that of another person — telling the truth when a lie would be easier." Grandmother's voice was calm as usual, as her gentle brown eyes—which needed no glasses although she was past seventy—rested lovingly upon the plump eager face.

"Thank you! I'll remember that"—and the little girl of ten bent her blonde head over the old spelling book once more, while Grandmother continued her preparations for supper. It was nearly five o'clock of a grey December afternoon many years ago, and already the shadows of evening were deepening in the great forest which surrounded the strongly built log house.

Lifting a shovelful of red-hot coals, Grandmother spread them upon the hearth, set a three-legged pan with a long handle over them, and rubbed it carefully with a piece of fat bacon, leaving it to fry out while she mixed up the batter for cornbread. Having sifted the meal, soda and salt into a wooden bowl, she added buttermilk, stirred it well and poured the batter into the hot pan. Then with heavy iron hooks the lid was lifted and set in place and a few coals spread on top.

Opening the tall corner cupboard, Grandmother took out two blue bowls, put into each a pewter spoon and placed them upon the unpainted table with its white cloth of homespun. Then she skimmed the milk into a tall cream-jar which stood in the chimney corner and poured the skim milk into an earthen-ware pitcher.

Soon the cornbread was golden brown—and supper was ready. A simple meal it was, but delicious. Sarah crumbled the hot bread into her bowl of milk and ate with relish. For these were pioneer days and people were content with plain food.

After supper Sarah carried out a piece of bread and a chunk of cold meat—a left-over from the dinner bean pot—to Joe the black shepherd dog. Then she washed the dishes while Grandmother hurried to the stable to milk Beauty the white and yellow spotted cow. Father and Mother Moore had started early that morning to the village twenty miles away; they would not return until the following afternoon.

Grandmother Jackson—who was a valiant little soul—was not in the least dismayed at the prospect of a night alone in the big house with only Sarah for company. Many years before when a girl of eighteen, she had accompanied her young husband all the way from Pennsylvania to Carolina by ox-cart—and through Indian country. More than once she had heard the blood-curdling warwhoop of savages, the howl of wolves, the panther's horrid screech outside her frontier cabin.

SURE STARTER FOR LAZY LIVER Free Proof!

Ordinary laxatives, oils, salts, etc., may clean you out. But when that's done, you're bad off as before. What you need; what every bilious, half-sick, headachy, person needs is something to start the liver and bowels; regulate them; make them act normally. That's what Dodson's Levertone does. That's why people who try it for constipation, biliousness, etc., will never use anything else. Make us prove it. Send for FREE bottle. Address: Sterling Products, Wheeling, W. Va.

DODSON'S Levertone TASTES GOOD - ACTS QUICK

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless. Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

Fletcher's CASTORIA

WHEN damp days, sudden changes in weather, or exposure to a draft makes joints ache, there is always quick relief in Bayer Aspirin. It makes short work of headaches or any little pain. Just as effective in the more serious suffering from neuralgia, neuritis, rheumatism or lumbago. No ache or pain is ever too deep-seated for Bayer Aspirin to relieve, and it does not affect the heart. All druggists, with proven directions for various uses which many people have found invaluable in the relief of pain.

BAYER ASPIRIN Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

Harness Lightning

This book will amaze you. You can make lightning as harmless as a summer breeze. You can end its terrible menace to your property. This booklet gives the real truth in plain, common-sense language. Written by experts of the world-famous Kretzer System, who have protected thousands of buildings throughout the country. Recommended by your insurance company. Protect yourself and your property. Be safe. Send for your Free copy today.

FREE

St. Louis Lightning Rod Co.
Trudeau & DeKalb Sts.,
Box D, St. Louis, Mo.

FOR RENT

For the months of June and July, furnished cottage at Montreat. Eight rooms and 2 baths. Modern and comfortable. Well located. Address P. O. Box 355, Rock Hill, South Carolina.

Wash Away the Impurities

Cleanliness is more vital internally than externally. Frequent flushing of the alimentary canal is essential to continued health. In fact a cleansed and regulated system will usually resist disease and avoid many of the serious troubles.

Glenn Springs water is recognized as a very effective means of purifying the system, eliminating stored up poisons and encouraging the natural function of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bladder. It acts as a mild regulator; accelerates the secretions and excretions of the body; by dilution it aids digestion and absorption. In general, it forms the natural basis and stimulation for functional efficiency.

Its liberal content and natural combination of Potassium, Sodium, Lithium, Calcium and Strontium Salts, together with other effective minerals, renders it particularly effective. It is successfully used in the treatment of chronic constipation, biliousness, auto-intoxication and other intestinal toxemias.

It is excellent for use in cases of obesity, acid dyspepsia, kidney disorders (including Bright's disease), bladder troubles resulting from excessive acidity and intestinal putrefaction.

Rheumatism, gouty diathesis and other diseases of metabolism, such as exzema, rickets, anemia, etc., respond to Glenn Springs water.

It is found indirectly helpful in the treatment of Pellegria; for suppressed menstruation, and in conjunction with quinine it has long been used as a very efficient treatment for malaria.

For the sake of your health drink Glenn Spring water freely. It is palatable, pure, sparkling, and by many considered very delightful.

Order two five gallon carboys today, by express, and later allow us to ship at regular intervals, to reach you as the original supply is depleted. Regular use in necessary to secure best results.

Send no money. Start on the road to health. Fill out the coupon below and drink the water freely. That is all that is necessary. We will invoice you at $3.50 for 10 gallons. You agree to return the containers when empty.

COUPON

Glenn Springs Corporation,
12 White Terrace,
Glenn Springs, S. C.

You may ship ten gallons now and each 30 days thereafter until ordered to stop.

Name _____

Address _____

This order is subject to cancellation at any time.

The Glenn Springs Hotel, open June 1st, invites you.

Why should she be afraid now when the few remaining Indians were far away, and the only wild animals left in the forest were bears and wild cats—harmless, if left alone.

By the time the dishes were washed and put away and the milk strained into the big stone crock, it was dark. Sarah stepped to the door and called: "Come Joe! Come here at once!" The big black dog left off his furious scratching at the base of a dead stump and came bounding across the clearing. Sarah patted his head as he sprang into the room—and shutting the heavy door, dropped the stout bar into its place. Meantime Grandmother, who had lighted the tallow candle and set it upon a low table, picked up her knitting—a gaily striped stocking for Sarah—while the little girl sat down with slate, pencil and arithmetic to do her sums.

An hour later when the sums had been finished, Grandmother rolled up her knitting, stuck the needles through the ball of yarn and laid it upon the high fire-board. Then from some hidden store she brought out two large red apples.

Sarah's eyes had begun to droop by the time the last bite had disappeared; and reaching for the leather-bound Bible, Grandmother read aloud the ninety-first Psalm.

"Come, dear—it's bed-time."
"I'm so sleepy"—yawned Sarah, as Grandmother unbuttoned the blue linsley dress. Then rousing herself slightly she inquired:

"Don't you feel a bit afraid, Grandma, with nobody here but us two?"
"Certainly not, child! Why should I be? The good Lord has taken care of me for seventy-three years. He will continue to do so—never fear!" Grandmother was firm.

Kneeling for a moment at the little lady's knee, Sarah murmured her evening prayer; then climbed into the big four-poster bed—and was soon fast asleep. It seemed only a moment later—actually three hours had passed—when dimly she heard a voice calling, "Sarah! Sarah!—then louder, "Sarah!"

"Ma'am"—Sarah sat up in bed rubbing her eyes.

"Light the candle quick, child! But don't stumble as I did. I've broken my leg"—Grandmother was sitting on the floor.

Very much alarmed Sarah hastened to obey, then ran back and with some difficulty assisted the injured woman into bed. "Joe whined to be let out and I stumbled over a chair in the

PUZZLE ANSWERS

LITERARY FUN
SHAKESPEARE
HYDRA-HEADED WORDS
Mace, Pace, Lace, Race, Dace Face
WORD SQUARE
J U L Y
U P A S
L A N E
Y S E R

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA Summer School 1919

First Term: June 13-July 23
Second Term: July 24-August 30
The University of North Carolina Summer School is operated by a standard grade institution that is an honored member of the Association of American Universities.

College of Liberal Arts—School of Education—School of Commerce—School of Applied Science—School of Public Welfare—Graduate School.

It is a summer school of distinction for progressive teachers.

It provides the best of instruction and wholesome entertainment of an educational character.

In the first term, 1928, there were 1752 students in attendance. In the second term there were 905.

Unusual opportunities for graduate students. There were 412 graduate students in attendance last summer.

For further information, address

N. W. WALKER, Director
Chapel Hill, N. C.

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE DECATUR, GA.

Strict entrance requirements, but few failures after admission. So expensive, but cheap in comparison with advantages offered. No loafers accepted, but also none without capacity to enjoy almost unlimited good food.

For details as to admission, scholarship aid, etc address
PRESIDENT J. R. McCAIN
Box S

ERSKINE COLLEGE Founded 1839

A college of Liberal Arts offering a standard four year course leading to Bachelor of Arts Degree.

A Christian College devoted to the training of young men and young women for the larger responsibilities of life.

Reasonable costs, healthful surroundings, congenial environment. A grade Recognition.

Next session opens September 12.

For Catalogue address

R. C. GRIER, President or R. L. ROBINSON, Vice-President and DUE WEST, S. C.

Here's one granddaughter who takes advice from elders

Schoolgirl learns simple health measure

WITH all the talk there is nowadays about the independence of the sub-deb generation, your reporter got a great kick out of hearing a grandmother describe how her granddaughter was following a good old tried and true method of improving her general health.

"My granddaughter, Margaret," says Mrs. Zell of 6231 Catherine Street, Philadelphia, "read about Nujol, was interested in it, so sent for a sample." It seems she has been taking a tablespoon of Nujol once a day since and expects to continue this treatment. Already she has found an improvement in her general health, her system functioning normally where other remedies had failed.

That's one of the best things about Nujol. It is just as harmless for young girls, or babies even, as it is for adults. For Nujol contains no medicines or drugs. It can't upset you because it works so effectively, regularly, in a normal fashion. Nujol was perfected by the Laboratories, 2 Park Avenue, New York City. It can be bought where for about the price of a good movie. Get a bottle of Nujol today and try it, without delay. In sealed packages.

Starting right

DAVIDSON COLLEGE

Extract from letter of April 16, 1928:

"I am much gratified at the work done there so far by my two sons and wish to send them back next fall.

"In this connection, I desire to express my high opinion of the College, not only from past observation but now from a more direct and personal knowledge with it by reason of the attendance of my boys there during this year with the enlarged facilities at hand I trust there lies ahead an even field of usefulness."

Davidson meets the expectation of both parents and students.
For catalog address

F. W. Hengeveld, Registrar,
Room 113, Chambers Building,
Davidson, N. C.

SUMMER SCHOOL JUNE 10-JULY 19

NORTH CAROLINA STATE COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND ENGINEERING

E. C. BROOKS, LL.D., President

AGRICULTURE ENGINEERING
TEXTILES SCIENCES AND BUSINESS EDUCATION

The Summer school opens June 10. The Regular session opens September 13. Applications should be made early.

For information, write

W. L. MAYER, Director of Registration

Raleigh

North

Direct From Mill To You

PATTERNS in new styles at Mill Prices. No-consumer selling you 1/4 to 1/3.

Prints
Bedspreads
Pillow Tubing
Wide Sheetting
Marquisettes
Draperies. etc.

Samples

Price List on request cut cloth and pay prompt shipment satisfaction

Save 1/4 to 1/3

WHEAT MILL STORE
in A. Greenville, S. C.

dark," she explained, falling back with a moan of pain.

"Whatever shall we do?" Sarah was on the verge of tears.

"Don't cry, Honey! There is nothing you can do but go for Mr. Brown and his wife. The bone should be set at once. Will you go, dear, with Joe for company?"

In the dim candlelight Grandmother's face looked white and drawn.

For an instant Sarah hesitated: Mr. Brown lived three miles away and the road was only a bridle path through dense woods. Without doubt wild animals were abroad at this time of night.

"Courageous!—the risking of one's life for that of another," the words seemed fairly to leap into the child's memory. Suppose Grandmother should die! Instantly the small shoulders squared, the small chin came up resolutely:

"Of course, I'll go—just as fast as I can!" She ran for her hood and shawl.

"If only there were some other way!" moaned Grandmother.

"Don't you worry a bit!" — Sarah kissed her tenderly. Joe won't let anything harm me—and I'll carry a big pine torch."

Hurriedly selecting several rich pine splinters from the pile of kindling, Sarah plunged them into the red-hot coals and blew them into a blaze. Then opening the door she called softly, "Don't worry, Grandma, we'll be back directly." As she paused outside to latch it, Joe rose from the step and wagged his bushy tail. Sarah grasped his leather collar firmly and holding aloft her torch hurried into the dark forest.

She realized that the big dog would fight till death for her if need be; but the forest with its strange noises was a place of unknown terrors. The hoot of an owl, the crashing of some large animal through the bushes, a gruff "woof, woof" from a nearby thicket, were sounds which caused her heart to stand still in terror.

Half the distance had been traversed, when away to the north there sounded a fierce wild scream — the shriek of the wildcat. Instantly Joe gave a deep growl and bared his teeth while the stiff bristles along his spine stood erect.

"Hush, Joe! Be quiet!" Sarah's hand tightened on the dog's collar and her heart uttered a silent little prayer. Presently it came again, but fainter—and the violent beating of her heart grew calmer.

Twenty minutes later the big mastiff which guarded Mr. Brown's premises burst into a volley of violent-barking—a welcome sound to the frightened child.

"Come Tige! Good old fellow!" called Sarah. The barking ceased instantly, and wagging his tail the old dog ran forward to greet his friends. Mr. Brown was holding open the door when she reached the steps:

"What's happened, child? Where's your father that you should be sent out at this time of night?"

"Father and Mother are away from home—and Grandmother has broken her leg. She wants you to come at once to set the bone!"—Sarah burst into tears.

"There, there! We'll take care of Grandma!" The big man patted Sarah's shoulder with awkward tenderness. "Hurry and dress, Julia! I'll saddle the horses." Mrs. Brown, a plump, black-eyed little woman, talked cheerfully to Sarah while she hurriedly dressed. She was ready to go when her husband led the horses to the door. He helped her to mount Molly, swung Sara to old Tom's back, climbed into the saddle in front—and they were off.

The clock struck one as the little group entered the Moore home. Grandmother Jackson's pale face lighted up with relief and in spite of pain she smiled a welcome. Later when the injured limb had been set and bound up with splints, Grandmother drew Sarah's cheek to her own and whispered: "My brave little girl!"

"I wasn't brave a bit, Grandma. I was scared 'most to death—specially when the wildcat hollered! But I'm glad I went!"—Sarah's voice trembled. "You're a heroine, darling!"—motherly Mrs. Brown who had no children of her own drew the child close. "Go to bed now and sleep as long as you wish—Jim and I will stay 'till morning."

And wearily Sarah climbed into the big four-poster once more. — Edna Hendricks, in The Presbyterian.

ORIENT FLOUR

Its Whiteness Denotes Its Purity

MOUNTAIN CITY MILL CO., CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

Good-bye, Flies and Mosquitoes!

Unless you're a Flit user, you have no idea how soon you can rid your home of every fly and mosquito. Flit kills quicker, and is easier to use, in the handy Flit sprayer. Spray into cracks and crannies to kill roaches, bed bugs, ants. Flit vapor does not stain. Try the quicker Flit method today!

FLIT

© 1929 Stanco Inc.

"The yellow can with the black band"

Newberry College Summer School

Newberry, S. C.

JUNE 10 — JULY 19, 1929

For TEACHERS: Courses approved by state departments of education for renewing and raising certificates.

For COLLEGE STUDENTS: Courses for making up back work or for additional college credit.

For HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS: Courses for college entrance. Standard courses, strong faculty, comfortable dormitories, excellent table fare, congenial atmosphere, personal attention to the individual student.

Total living expenses, including tuition, for the six weeks, $45.00.
For Catalog address JAMES C. KINARD, Director

BELK'S

NEW FURNITURE DEPT.

We have opened to the people of the Carolinas a most modern Furniture Department on our fourth floor, featuring a wide assortment of fine furniture for the home as well as newest novelty furniture.

On this same floor is located our Picture and mirror rooms, also china-ware, glass-ware and toys.

A visit to this floor will be both pleasurable and profitable.

Belk Brothers Co.

Charlotte, N. C.

DRIPPED BETTER

Attention to the enrollment need in class room, laboratory, gymnasium, athletic field, enabling better work conditions at

Presbyterian College
Clinton, S. C.

DR. CALDWELL
PRACTICED IN 47
YEARS PRACTICE

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of his practice for 47 years, and believed that the more careful people are of their diet and exercise, constipation will disappear from time to time. Of course, then, is how to treat constipation. Dr. Caldwell always believed in getting as close to nature as possible. Hence his remedy for constipation is as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup of Pepsin, a mild vegetable compound. It cleans the system and is not harmful. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting. Youngsters love it.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of cathartics and purges. He did not believe they were good for anybody's system. His practice of 47 years has shown the reason for their use when the bowels will empty the bowels just as a day go by without a cathartic. Do not sit and hope, but get the nearest druggist and get a generous bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, or write "Syrup Pepsin, D. B. B., Monticello, Illinois, in a bottle."

DR. LANCE

DR. LANCE TREATS
PILES, CARBUNCLES ABSCESS AND ULCERS

THE RIGHT WAY TO TRAVEL

is by train. The safest. Most comfortable. Most reliable. Costs less. Inquire of Ticket Agents regarding greatly reduced fares for short trips.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Church and Sunday School Furniture

Send For Special Catalogue THE SOUTHERN DESK COMPANY Hickory, N. C.

BURNS Ease the Pain Heal the Sore Stop Infection

with GRAY'S OINTMENT For Burns, Cuts and Sores At all drug stores. For free sample write W. F. Gray & Co., 721 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Nervous Women Praise Capudine

Delicately poised women who suffer from high nerve strain and nervous pains, such as periodic pains, headache and pains in the back and sides are high in their praise of Capudine because it quickly soothes the tense nerves and relieves the pain.

Being liquid, Capudine acts almost instantly,—does not upset the stomach. Sold by druggists in 30c and 60c sizes. (adv.)

YOUR CHURCH deserves a beautiful exterior in harmony with its spirit of culture and worship.

Let us suggest appropriate shrubbery. THE HOWARD-HICKORY CO., Hickory, N. C. Local Representatives Wanted, especially to sell fruit trees. Landscape Gardeners and Nurserymen

Piles and other Rectal diseases cured without pain or surgery. No hospital detention. Write to Dr. W. R. Register, 63 No. Broad Street, Atlanta, Georgia, for free book. Hundreds of cured patients.

Stop HEADACHE with STANBACK 10¢ & 25¢

6 6 6

is a Prescription for Colds, Grippe, Flu, Dengue, Bilious Fever and Malaria. It is the most speedy remedy known.

Sore Eyes Dickey's old reliable eye water cools and relieves a sore eye. Brightens and clears a dull, tired eye. Genuine in red folding box. Does not hurt or burn. At all good stores or by mail 25c. DICKEY DRUG COMPANY, Bristol, Virginia

PHYSICAL AND NERVOUS FORCE

You can overcome that spring time "tired" feeling and build up buoyant health and energy with Yerke's Palatable Extract Cod Liver Oil At All Leading Druggists YERKES CHEMICAL CO., Winston-Salem, N. C.

SPARKLES

His Guide-Book

"I must look in the book to see where I'll go on my vacation." "You mean the summer-resort directory?" "No, my bank-book."—Ex.

Architectural Prof.—"What are the three principal Greek orders?" One Who Knows—"Roas' Beef Apple Pie, Cup o' Coffee."—Ex.

A Drop Too Much

"He was considered the most expert parachute jumper in the country," remarked one of the friends standing beside the open coffin. "Yes," said the other, "he was good till the last drop."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

"I refused this poem six weeks ago," said the editor. "Why do you again submit it?"

"I thought perhaps your taste had improved by this time," replied the poet with a gleam of satisfaction in his eyes.—Yankee Humor.

A cheeky person asked a minister, who was gifted at repartee: "Can you tell me the way to heaven?"

"Certainly," replied the minister, "turn to the right and keep going straight."—The Christian, Port Athens, Texas.

The Modern Way

Romiet—"So we shall elope at midnight."

Julio—"Yes, darling."

Romiet—"And you will have your suit case all ready when I sneak up to the door?"

Julio—"Sure. Mother is packing it for me now."—The Pathfinder.

A negro woman walked into an insurance office and asked whether they dealt in fire insurance.

"We do," a clerk replied. "What do you want insured?"

"Mah husband."

"Then you don't want fire insurance," smiled the clerk, as he reached for another application form. "What you want is a life insurance policy."

"No. Ah don't," exclaimed the woman.

"Ah want fire insurance. Mah husband's been fired fo' times in de las' two weeks."—Ex.

Sacrificial Offering

Alpha: "What was the denomination of that bill you loaned me?"

Theta: "Episcopalian, I guess, it keeps lent."—Flamingo.

Angry Customer: "These eggs aren't fresh."

Indignant grocer: "Not fresh? Why, the boy brought them from the country this morning."

Customer: "What country?"—Washington Cougar's Paw.

"Aren't you nearly ready, dear?"

"I wish you wouldn't keep asking that question, Clarence. I've been telling you for the last hour that I'll be ready in a minute."—Presbyterian Advance.

Higher Grade

Old Gentleman: "So you are going to school now, are you, Bobby?"

Bobby (aged six): "Yes, sir."

"Spell kitten for me."

"Oh, I'm farther advanced than that. Try me on cat."

"Well, who's been waiting the longest?" asked the dentist cheerfully as he opened the door of his office.

"I think I have," said the tailor, presenting his bill. "I delivered that suit you're wearing three years ago."

Mexican Heat Powder

Immediately relieves Prickly Heat, Nettle Rash, Diaper Rash, Tired, Sore and Blistered Feet. Sunburn, all Skin Irritations. At your Druggists

Chicora College for Women The Presbyterian College of South Caro

Standard College Courses Beautiful Grounds Healthful Climate Large, Strong Faculty Ideal Surroundings Moderate Rates

For Catalog and Information, Address

S. C. Byrd, D.D., LL.D., President, Columbia,

FORTY-SIX YEARS CONTINUOUS SERVICE WITHOUT A LOSS ON ANY LOAN

We offer you a safe, tax-free investment for your regular weekly or monthly savings and your lump sum. Write for particulars.

ASSETS OVER $8,800,000.00

The Mutual Building and Loan Association

Established 1881

CHARLOTTE

If In Doubt, Take B. & L. Shares

You will earn the highest interest rate on your savings consistent with perfect safety, and pay no tax on dividends. Shares cost twenty-five cents per week, usually mature in 333 weeks. Net you 6 1-2 per cent maturity.

Series Open in January, April, July and October

Mechanics Perpetual Building & Loan Association

Established 1883

18 E. Fourth St.

Charlotte

THE WINTHROP DESK, $75

The Governor Winthrop desk has come down to us from the very earliest beginning of America. The one shown here every detail has been copied minutely. It is made in Grand Rapids which is an assurance of its fine quality. Others, varying in size from $70 to $145.

W.T. McCoy & Co Home Furnishers

423-425 SOUTH TRYON STREET CHARLOTTE, N. C.

"National Bank Safety For Savings"

For the Future

Are you making ready to share in the opportunity which increasing prosperity will bring?

A Reserve Fund Banked Will Help

Charlotte National Bank

Resources Over $5,000,000.00

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

A Religious Newspaper for the Family

Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.

BRIDGES, D.D., Editor-in-Chief
WELLS, D.D., Co-Editor
JASPER WILLIS, Contributing Editor

ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858

M. F. ELLIS, Vice-President
REV. J. G. GARTH, Treasurer and News Editor
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
BY PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING CO.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., MAY 29, 1929

General Assembly at Montreat

(Continued from last week)
J. G. Garth

Sunday, May 19

Zwemer, of Cairo, Egypt, at the afternoon meeting. Zwemer has been a missionary to Mohammedans for 38 years. He has seen the breaking up of the East. "Mohammedanism is making its last stand in skyscrapers in Chicago, London and New York," said Dr. Zwemer. The Koran in other languages is killing it. The movies, the auto, and the airplane are making the world of Islam can not stand the know that the son of Abdulhamid, the last sultan of Turkey, was shot on the streets of Vienna. "Why did he wait to attract a few penitents before waiting hat? This run-down of a once proud monarch of the dying religion of women are in revolt and the veil. The young men are in a state of intellectual unrest. The Bible is no longer a best seller in Arabia, Persia, and India. Medical missions are breaking the hearts of the Mussel-er read to the audience a resolution recently adopted at the session of the Presbyterian General Assembly at Atlantic City, which pleads for the Presbyterian Churches of the foreign mission ap- plication. The resolution reads: "In his providence has the Reformed Churches hold- ing the Presbyterian system for over 150 years in their foreign program to occupy the hearts of Islam; and where- as the faith and order of the churches are peculiarly fitted to win hearts to the allegiance of the world, therefore, we call on all our churches to strengthen their present work among the Moslems and to join in a common advance movement, along union lines."

er is a member of the General Assembly, but works under the United Pres- byterian Board.

Lyons addressed the As- sembly on Sunday evening.

Monday Morning

McPheeters, of Columbia, S. C., moved a resolution on the report of the Com- mittee on the Overtures, Dr. H. W. Watson, when the committee of the Presbytery of Arkansas, of Rev. Hay Watson Smith, of the First Church, Little Rock, Ark., orthodox was called in by the Presbytery of Augusta, Ga., to substitute was that the General Assembly order the Pres- bytery of Arkansas to call Dr. Smith to this views touching evolution as my painful duty to the committee of Bills and Resolutions," said Dr. McPheeters, "we are to live up to the reputation of our retiring moderator, who assigned us, to live and work. We must see that our Pres- bytery order our ministers to be faithful and true to the Con- fession of the Word of God."

of Dr. McPheeters were Rev. James Thomas, of S. C., and Dr. W. T. Rowland, of Ark. The Assembly ordered Dr. McPheeters' substitute by a majority.

(Continued on page 11)

Flora Macdonald Has 33rd Commencement

Dr. Erickson Preaches Sermon and President Gaines, of Wake Forest, Makes Address

The 33rd annual commencement of Flora Macdonald College formally opened on Sunday morning with the presentation of the baccalaureate sermon by Rev. S. M. Erickson, D.D., missionary of Takamatsu, Japan.

Following the organ prelude by Dean Alfred H. Strick, the commencement procession made up of college chorus, senior class headed by their mascot, "Sandy" McLeod, in cap and gown, faculty, undergraduates and alumnae moved into the chapel singing "For All the Saints."

Rev. George W. Hanna, of Red Springs made the invocation. Dr. C. G. Vardell, president, read the scripture lesson. Miss Louise Mandeville sang "Hear My Cry," by Melligan and the college chorus of thirty voices rendered Gaul's "Great and Marvelous" from the "Holy City."

Dr. Erickson's subject was, "Followers of God."

Commencement began at ten Wednesday morning. The procession made up of the college chorus, faculty, student body and seniors marched into the auditorium singing "For All the Saints." The invocation was made by Dr. S. M. Erickson, Japan. Musical numbers were given by Misses Lucille Davis and Misses Marian Burgess of the graduating class.

The address was made by Dr. Francis Pendleton Gaines, president of Wake Forest College. Dr. Gaines took as his subject "The Distinctions of the Collegiate Experience."

"The colleges," said Dr. Gaines, "merge the personal into the mass to the forgetfulness of self for the thing that education brings to the welfare of humanity."

"The radio and correspondence courses help the individual but to surrender college life in behalf of cafeteria learning is to give up the perfecting of fine competence of mind and character."

(Continued on Page Two)

Union Seminary Holds Commencement

Twenty-Six Ministers Are Graduated—Two Ordained Men Finish Doctor of Divinity Course and Receive Degrees—Four Fellowships Are Awarded

At the commencement exercises of Union Theological Seminary, which were held on Wednesday, May 18th, 26 young men received the degree of Bachelor of Divinity, representing three years' work in this Seminary, following graduation with degrees from some standard college. Davidson College was represented by 8 men; Hampden-Sydney College by 6; Arkansas College by 3; the Presbyterian College of South Carolina and Southwestern each by 2, and twelve other colleges by 1 each. Five young men received a diploma without the degree of B. D., having pursued the same course of study but not having had so extensive preliminary training. The degree of Master of Theology was awarded to 3 men who have pursued one year of post graduate work in the Seminary during this session. It is possible that many of our church members do not realize that the Seminary graduates pursue seven, eight, or sometimes nine years at college and seminary after they have completed

(Continued on Page Two)

Mary Baldwin Chooses New President

Prof. L. W. Jarman, Vice-President of Queens College, Charlotte, to be Head of Woman's College at Staunton

Dr. A. M. Frazer, president of Mary Baldwin College at Staunton, Va., has resigned, and Prof. L. Wilson Jarman, vice-president of Queens College, at Charlotte, N. C., has been elected to the office.

Dr. Fraser has been president of Mary Baldwin since it was founded ten years ago, filling this office as well as serving as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. Under the new system adopted by the Mary Baldwin board, the duties of the presidency will no longer be combined with those of the pastorate. Dr. Fraser continues as pastor of the first church, which he has served for more than 30 years.

Prof. L. Wilson Jarman came to Queens College in the fall of 1927 as vice-president. Before coming here he served at Chicora College, Columbia, S. C., as professor of mathematics and his educational experience previous to that time had included service with schools in Georgia, including the North Avenue Presbyterian School at Atlanta and the Nacoochee School at Santee in the mountains of Georgia.

The newly elected president of Mary Baldwin is a graduate of Emory University, Atlanta, and holds a master of arts degree.

The following was published in the (Continued on Page Two)

Louisville Seminary Closes Year

Dr. Kirk Makes Address, Dr. Stevenson Preaches Sermon—18 Graduates Receive Degrees—Dr. Athearn to Deliver Duncan Lectures

Commencement exercises of the Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky., were held from May 5th through May 7th. On Sunday afternoon, May 5th, a communion service for the faculty, students and their friends was held in the Harbison Memorial Chapel, Rev. Andrew W. Blackwood, D.D., presiding. Dr. Blackwood was assisted by four of the graduating students. On Sunday evening the baccalaureate sermon was preached in the Second Presbyterian Church by Rev. W. P. Stevenson, D.D., college pastor at Maryville College, Maryville, Tenn. Dr. Stevenson spoke on "Some Characteristics of Christ as a Model Preacher," stressing Christ as a zealot, Christ as an orator and Christ as an optimist.

The annual meeting of the Board of Directors was held on Tuesday morning, May 7th. At this meeting Rev. Robt. S. Sanders, of Memphis, Tenn., and Rev. Chas. E. Diehl, D.D., of Memphis, Tenn., were elected as directors at large by the U. S. members of the board. At noon the alumni luncheon was held in the Mary R. Belknap Refectory. Mr. Thos. Talbot was the toastmaster and Rev. E. E. Gabbard, D.D., the principal speaker. The luncheon was followed by the regular alumni business meeting at which time Rev. Chas. A. Ray was elected president of the alumni association, and Rev. R. R. Murphy was re-elected secretary.

The final exercises were held on Tuesday evening, May 7th, in the Second Presbyterian Church. Rev. Harris E. Kirk, D.D., Moderator of the General Assembly, Presbyterian Church, U. S., delivered the commencement address. His theme was "The (Continued on Page Two)

North Carolina Synod At Montreat

Called Session to Adjust Deed of Colored School at North Wilkesboro

The Synod of North Carolina met in Montreat Tuesday, May 21, to attend to special call with reference to the transfer of the property of the North Wilkesboro Academeical and Industrial Institute, a colored school which discontinued operations about 25 years ago, and the property was turned over to the Committee of Home Missions at Atlanta. There is a flaw in the title which it was desired to correct.

Rev. W. McC. White, D.D., of Raleigh, presided over the body and Rev. W. M. Fairly, D.D., of Raeford, acted as clerk. The following resolution was passed at the request of Rev. R. A. Brown, D.D., of Atlanta, General Superintendent of colored work in the Southern Church:

Resolved that the following board of Directors be appointed for the North Wilkesboro Academeical and Industrial Institute: Revs. A. R. Shaw, A. A. Walker, J. G. Garth, B. F. Yandell, C. R. Nisbet, M. E. Peabody, W. B. McIlwaine, S. B. McLean, W. C. Underwood, and ruling elders R. A. Dunn, N. C. White, and C. M. Strong, all of Charlotte.

Resolved, that the said Board of Directors of North Wilkesboro Academeical and Industrial Institute be requested to execute a quit claim deed to the property of said institute to the Executive Committee of Assembly's Home Missions for the furtherance of the kingdom of God among the colored people in the bounds of General Assembly.

The above property is occupied by a colored minister, Rev. J. S. Morrow, who acts as caretaker for the same.

Agnes Scott College Receives Great Offer

General Education Board Offers $500,000 if Friends Raise $1,000,000

Agnes Scott College, Decatur, Ga., received a telegram on May 23rd from President Trevor Arnett of the General Education Board of New York announcing an offer of $500,000 from his Board if friends of the College will raise $1,000,000, thus providing a total of $1,500,000 for Agnes Scott development.

President J. R. McCain, who received the telegram for the College, issued the following statement:

"This remarkable grant is the culmination of negotiations of at least a year between the College and the Board, in the course of which Agnes Scott has made a very full showing of its development program and of its growth and service during recent years. Officials of the Board have repeatedly visited Agnes Scott and have scrutinized in great detail all phases of its work. They have been impressed with the strategic location of the institution, the type of its faculty and students, the work of the alumnae, the remarkable recognition it has attained, and its efficient and economical business administration.

"This is the fourth time the General Education has made offers to Agnes Scott. The first was in 1909 when $100,000 was promised on condition that friends of the institution raise $250,000 more. Again in 1919 there was an appropriation of $175,000 if $325,000 additional should be pledged. The third offer was for $100,000 conditioned on the raising of $150,000 by college friends.

"In each case, friends of Agnes Scott (Continued on Page Two)

N. C. State Library Comp.

CONTINUATIONS FROM PAGE ONE

FLORA MACDONALD HAS 33RD COMMENCEMENT

A unique feature of the commencement exercises was the presentation of an old portrait of Dr. Charles Graves Vardell, president of Flora Macdonald College since its inception.

In presenting Mrs. A. F. McGuire (formerly Margaret Morgan), of Laurinburg, first graduate of Flora Macdonald College, class of 1899, who unveiled the portrait, Mrs. Sara Gray McCormick, president of the association said "This tribute is offered by the alumnae as a small part of their love and affection for their esteemed president, whose tenacity of purpose, understanding of humankind and leadership made possible Flora Macdonald College."

In fitting words Mrs. McGuire told of the wonderful work that had been done by Dr. Vardell; of his sagacity of mind and heart, his leadership; of his foresight as to the future needs of this section of the state; of his strength of character in hewing to the Divine mind and lastly in that indefinable something that has tied to this institution against almost unsurmountable difficulties.

Rev. Carl Craig, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Laurinburg, in behalf of the Board of Trustees accepted the painting, which is to be hung in the college auditorium.

Amid scenes made dear by years of tender association Flora Macdonald graduates come back to their college home to renew old friendships, to live again the happy hours of days gone by, and to pay tribute to Flora Macdonald, their alma mater.

A luncheon was served at the home of Mrs. E. L. Cox Tuesday at one o'clock. The spirit of their alma mater was manifested in every song, every toast and every expression that these returning students had to offer.

The class of 1929 were the guests of the association, and re-union classes '01, '05, '09, '13, '17, '21, and '25 were well represented including many other alumnae.

The annual business meeting of the association was held immediately after the luncheon and the following new officers were elected: Miss Louise Mandeville, Red Springs was elected president to succeed the retiring president, Mrs. Sara Gray McCormick. Miss Emma Brown Grantham, first vice-president; Miss, Alice McConnell second vice-president. Miss Mary Lou Beard, recording secretary, and Miss Brown Morrison, treasurer.

UNION SEMINARY HOLDS COMMENCEMENT

the regulation high school course.

The church of Asia participated in two of our highest honors this year in the bestowal of the degree of Doctor of Divinity on two men who have taken an advanced course leading to this degree, in one case requiring nine years and in the other five years. The length of this course is conditioned on the amount of time each student can spare from his regular daily vocation. One of the new Doctors of Divinity is Rev. Hyek Namkung, the professor of New Testament Literature and Exegesis in the Presbyterian Theological Seminary of Korea. He spent the session of 1924-25 in residence here; the other, Rev. Locke White, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Montgomery, West Va., was in residence the first half of session 1928-29. Mr. White is well known as the former pastor of the church at Blacksburg, Va., the seat of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and better known to our church at large as one of our missionaries in China until his station was closed by the Chinese Revolution.

Announcement was made that there will be three Moses D. Hoge Fellows in residence at the seminary next session:

John A. Redhead, Jr., A.B., B.D., Columbus, Miss., regular appointee for the session.

William V. Gardner, A.B., B.D., Tupelo, Miss., appointee for last year, whose residence was deferred to allow him to accept appointment to the Jarvie Commonwealth Fellowship, which permitted him to spend the current year in the Holy Land.

Dunbar Hunt Ogden, Jr., A.B., B.D.,

Mobile, Ala., appointee for 1927, whose restoration to health makes it possible for him to fulfill his appointment now.

Four other Fellowships were awarded at this commencement:

The Thomas Cary Johnson Fellowship to Albert Jacob Kissling, B.A., B.D., St. Louis, Mo.

The Charles D. Larus Fellowship to Aaron Hayden Holingsworth, Jr., A. B., B.D., Atlanta, Ga.

The Walter W. Moore Fellowship to Davidson Rolston Bitzer, A.B., B.D., Th.M., Holly Springs, Miss.

The Salem Fellowship to Bernard Ashby McIlhany, B.A., B.D., Bluefield, West Va.

The incumbents of the Johnson and Larus Fellowships will pursue their fellowships next year "in residence." The incumbent of the Moore Fellowship will teach in the department of the Old Testament next session, and will take his Fellowship work "in absentia" one-half this summer and one-half next summer. The incumbent of the Salem Fellowship will study next year in Edinburgh.

The president announced the receipt of additions to the Permanent Funds of the institution aggregating $140,000.00. The outstanding items were the completion of the endowment of the Robert Critz Chair of Christian Education; the completion of the endowment of the John Q. Dickinson Chair of Church History, and $20,000.00 for the General Endowment Fund.

MARY BALDWIN CHOOSES NEW PRESIDENT

Staunton Evening Leader concerning Professor Jarman:

He has been visiting in Staunton at the invitation of the trustees. When informed of his election, he appeared before the board and announced that he would accept the place. The trustees are delighted at their success in getting him and feel that he will be a distinct acquisition to the educational, social, and religious life of the community.

The election at this time of a president, who will be able to give his full time to the work of the college, is in keeping with the steady growth and development of the college.

"The sound financial basis on which Mary Baldwin has always rested," the trustees point out, "is being broadened and strengthened through the constantly increasing support of the Synod of Virginia and the loyal alumnae and friends. Now recognized and accredited as a standard college by the Department of Education of the state of Virginia, and, through comity, by similar departments in a number of other states.

In a letter received today from the State Board of Education by Dr. Marianna P. Higgins, dean, it is stated that beginning with the session of 1929-30, Mary Baldwin College will be recognized as a standard four-year college.

Miss Higgins is being congratulated for maintaining the high standards at Mary Baldwin and securing full recognition for the strong work which has been offered for many years at this distinguished school and college.

LOUISVILLE SEMINARY CLOSES YEAR

Life of Thoughtful Stillness." Rev. Andrew K. Rule, Ph.D., professor of Church History in the Seminary, delivered the faculty address to the graduating class. Presentation of Fellowships and other awards was made by President John M. Vander Meulen as follows: to Edwin Kelsey Regen, A. B. of Tennessee, the Edward P. Humphrey Fellowship for general scholarship, and the H. Stacy Smith Fellowship in Homiletics. This is the first year that the H. Stacy Smith Fellowship has been awarded. To Donald H. G. Stewart, B.A., of Alabama, was awarded the Henry E. Dosker Fellowship of Church History, while Edgar E. Houghton, B.S., Alabama, won the Fielding Lewis Walker Fellowship in Theology. This is the first time this fellowship has been awarded. The Edward L. Warren prize for the best progress in Homiletics during his seminary course was awarded to Adrian Jacobus Van Wyk, of South Africa.

The degree of Master of Theology was conferred upon the following students: Albert Evans Barnado, A.B., B.D., South Carolina; Elmer Timothy Boyer, B.D., Korea; Hewitt Francis Cunningham, A.B., B.D., Indiana;

Robert Franklin Davidson, A.B. (Davidson); B.A. (Oxford), South Carolina; George H. Hurt, A.B., B.D., Brazil; Robert Clark Patterson, B.A., Georgia; Roy Hunter Short, A.B., B.D., Kentucky; Albert Crossley Wildman, B. S. B.D., North Carolina; Charles Edward Ziegler, A.M., S.T.B., Ohio.

The degree of Bachelor of Divinity was conferred on: Charles Edward Allen, B.S., Ohio; Edgar Elmer Houghton, B.S., Alabama; Robert Clark Patterson, B.A., Georgia; Edwin Kelsey Regen, A.B., Tennessee; William Thomas Skinner, A.B., Michigan; Donald H. G. Stewart, B.A., Alabama; William Thomas Stewart, A.B., Kentucky; Frederick Homer Tegler, B.S., Missouri; Harold Gordon Wise, A.B., Tennessee.

Diplomas were awarded to the following: Will Amis, Kentucky; Wm. Taylor Clarke, Kentucky; Wilbur J. Coleman, B.S., Tennessee; Andrew an Hurd Keathley, A.B., Texas; Joseph Earl Knight, A.B., Tennessee; Perlie Yambert Perry, North Carolina; Hershel Ray Sigler, Indiana; Adrian Jacobus Van Wyk, South Africa; Claud Douglas Wardlaw, Arkansas.

President Vander Meulen reported gifts to the seminary during the past year as follows: Completion of the Fielding Lewis Walker Fellowship in Theology, by Mr. H. A. Walker, one of the Directors of the seminary; the John D. Wakefield Scholarship, by Mrs. John D. Wakefield in memory of her husband; $1,000 from Mr. Wm. L. Hoge to constitute the Peyton H. Hoge Alcove in Homiletics in the library, the Brainard Lemon Department of Biblical Archaeology and the gifts of the new site by Rev. Chas. H. Pratt, D.D., Mr. R. S. Reynolds, Mr. C. K. Reynolds and Mr. A. D. Reynolds, to be known as the Reynolds-Pratt campus.

At the request of the Board of Directors, Dr. Vander Meulen has agreed to continue as president of the seminary for another year or until his successor is elected. Rev. Lewis J. Sherrill, D.D., Professor of Religious Education and Young People's Work was made assistant dean. Rev. Thornton Whaling, D.D., LL.D., Litt. D., at his own request was retired as professor of Theology. A committee of the board was appointed to provide for the teaching of Theology temporarily. It is also announced that the lecturer for next year on the William G. Duncan Lectureship in Religious Education is Professor Walter Scott Athearn, Dean of Boston University's School of Religious Education and Social Service.

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE RECEIVES GREAT OFFER

all over the South have come to the aid of the College and have enabled it to meet in full and on time the requirements of the General Education Board. It is no small task to raise a $1,000,000 under present conditions, but the Trustees of Agnes Scott believe that there are too many good friends of higher education of young women in the South, and especially in the Presbyterian Church, to let this unparalleled opportunity go unmet."

The distribution of the $1,500,000 fund will be as follows:

Recitation Building, $300,000; Steam Plant and Laundry, $125,000; Memorial Chapel for Former President F. H. Gaines, $125,000; Day Student Club House, $25,000; Dormitory and Dining Room, $100,000; Auditorium and Fine Arts Building, $100,000; Land and Improvements, $135,000; Building additions, $30,000; Permanent Equipment, $25,000; Paving, Sewers, Steam Lines, $35,000; Endowment and Scholarships, $500,000; Total, $1,500,000.

The General Education Board was founded by John D. Rockefeller in 1902. Since that time it has appropriated about $177,000,000, nearly half of which has gone to institutions providing education of collegiate rank. Medical schools and institutions for colored people have also been large beneficiaries. Most of the money has been given to distinctly Christian institutions, and no limitations of a hampering nature have been imposed. The Board has been given its principal as well as income in recent years, and its resources have been reduced to approximately $40,000,000, only the income of which is likely to be used in the future.

On account of this reduction in its assets, the Board has announced the policy of discontinuing gifts to col-

DEVOTION

DO WE FORGIVE

Forgiveness is a miracle. people really forgive. Do you joy of the miracle in our lives? Have we tasted the blessing of giving some one who has wronged us? Andrew Murray once wrote: "Lord Jesus! . . . me to forgive and to love, let the Lord teach us this his teaching in our lives? realized that unless the forgiveness" is a part of our for is not forgiveness at all. travesty on forgiveness is sion, so often heard, "I have but I can never forget." T says this can never forgive are ready to forget we are to forgive, and we have n "Be ye kind one to another, hearted, forgiving one another as God for Christ's sake has you" (Eph. 4:32). That is t for the only forgiveness we name—the kind of forgiveness us for Christ's sake. perfect and unending love his forgiveness. Our love—love of God himself in our others—must be part of c ness of others, even of c Therefore such forgiveness miracle, for it is utterly human power. But it is God. When through su faith we live "the life that we love those whom we we forgive all our enemies School Times.

The Word abideth. Th it—but it lived on, while torn away from the shrines Shekinah had forsaken, a rusalem itself was destroyed Greek derided it—but its philosophy effete and his ruins. The Romans threw flames—but it rose from its swooped down upon the The reasoner cast it into, but it came out without fire. The formalist faste around it to poison it, l them off and felt no harm cast it overboard in a tempest phistry and sarcasm—but lantly upon the crest of th ters. And it is living st the loudest swelling of t has been speaking all the speaking now.—Selected.

leges, and very few new been made since 1922, money being used for redeveloping new enterprises in connection with some city. The gift to Agnes Scott is a distinct departure from the gram, and on that account for its size it is a recognized distinctive place and we Scott in the educational

Agnes Scott was founded ago as Decatur Female S of grammar school rank. generosity of Col. Geo. was given a permanent bpus in 1892, and the name Agnes Scott Institute in Scott's mother. It was that it became a college give degrees, so that i youngest of the standard of the country; but it has ly and has gained great p

It was the first college in Georgia to attain n the Southern Association. It is also affiliated with t of American Universities. Association of Universit. American Council of E Association of American it is one of less than a for women in the world ter of Phi Beta Kappa, or society.

Agnes Scott has drawn every state in the Union foreign countries. For every white synod of the Presbyterian Church rresented annually, any Scott Alumnae are working every mission field abroad. The assistant General Education Board make possible a far greater than has ever before be

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

FOUNDED 1858

Organ of the Synod of N. C. for 70 Years

The Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as Second Class Matter.

Terms—The subscription price of the Standard is payable in advance. To ministers the price is $2.50 per year. To ministers' wives the price is $2.50 per year.

The mailing label shows the month and year to which the subscription is paid. Payment in advance is required.

It may be made by money order, check, or registered letter, and sent by mail.

Obituary Notices—No charge is made for notices of less than 100 words, but for all over fifty words the charge is $1.00 per word.

Rates—Sent on application.

Addresses—Kindly send us both old and new addresses previous to the desired change.

Subscriptions are made only upon the written request of the subscriber and settlement in full must be made at the same time.

Editorial and Business Communications Should be Addressed to PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD
Box 869
Charlotte, N. C.

EDITORIAL

THE MONTREAT ASSEMBLY

Editorial Correspondence (Conclusion)

The editorial letter on the Montreat Assembly closed with the proceedings of Friday morning.

Friday morning Dr. Jas. I. Vance spoke of the Protestant Relief in Europe upon which we have already reported.

Not only in Europe during the World War has he made several trips since.

How dry a subject may be, Dr. Vance gave interest and color to it, though we inferred that we have reached the end of the matter regarding the needs of these brethren of interest.

We have bravely borne misfortunes, and we need of help, and we are proud of our own Church in what has been done.

Representatives from these churches report that our Church, in proportion to numbers, has done more than any other. True, we must give the credit to the dramatic preacher of the first Church of the South.

Our Church has always had a peculiar interest in Greece, as that Church, in a certain sense, is the child of our Church.

Money contributed by us to Protestant Relief in Europe, Greece received $500, a sum when viewed through American eyes, but we must remember that this was a small contribution.

Our gifts are distributed over many channels to relieve the real wants of these people.

In view of the poverty of these Protestants and the meagre salaries upon which they live, we wonder at the endurance of the men, and also at the fact that we in this favored land are not more grateful to our heavenly Father for the abundance in which we live.

Protestant Relief is another cause that has in the breasts of the people a love in common with their usual custom at the Montreat Assembly this Committee invited about a luncheon at the Assembly Inn, and reports were made about the progress of the work.

It was announced that this work would soon be completed, it will leave behind a wonderful record accomplished and aid given in the name of our Lord which will impress the people more than our sermons or loud professions.

Friday morning Dr. S. L. Morris, Chairman of the Committee to consider union with the United Presbyterians occupied the greater part of the morning in giving reasons for the union and in answering objections.

As already indicated in editorials our opposition to this proposed union, so that we spoke he didn't have a sympathetic conscious of being a man of strong opinion, though we strive to give a fair hearing to any man who holds views contrary

We do not know another man who could make a better showing for a cause that has so little to recommend itself to a Southern man; yet we listened to his address with a sense of admiration for the man who could make the "worse appear the better reason."

When he finished, while we had to admire his masterly argument, we still held that it was a dangerous experiment to try to unite such discordant elements.

He would have made a capital stump speaker if, instead of the ministry, he had turned his attention to a political life.

At times he was quite dramatic, and in more than one impassioned appeal, he came near seasoning his speech with "sob stuff."

The continued hand clapping showed very plainly that he had his audience with him.

How many of his tears over a divided Church were crocodile tears, we know not.

It may be that he was emulating the Psalmist who "wept when he remembered Zion."

It may be that in these comments we are envious of any man who can bring tears to the surface whenever he wishes, however dry the subject. It is a rare gift, and no doubt it won him many votes when the show-down came.

His was the only speech on that subject, on Saturday, but on Monday the real test came, but as the letter writer says, "more anon."

On Saturday night the cause of the schools was presented, on which occasion Mr. R. E. Magill told the story of his connection with this important work, which has been a wonderful success.

It was like a romance, leaving the shoe business and entering a business on its last legs, he finally made it "the goose that lays the golden eggs."

It was as interesting a story as any we have ever heard. He paid a warm tribute to Dr. A. L. Phillips, who did a great work in that department.

Dr. King, of Richmond, delivered a special address on Evangelism in Religious Education.

On Tuesday Dr. Dobyns, the Moderator, preached to a large audience on the duty of Personal Evangelism, and in the evening Dr. Lyons, of Atlanta, delivered an able address on Stewardship.

On Monday, the Assembly entered upon the home-stretch, refreshed in body and in spirit.

Dr. Kirk, Chairman of the Bills and Overtures Committee, presented his report.

The Presbytery of Birmingham asked the Assembly to give to congregations the privilege of electing elders and deacons for a term of years.

A warm debate was provoked by this request.

This is a perennial overture which seems to meet the same fate, but which, like Banquo's ghost will not down.

Dr. Hemphill and Dr. Vander Mulen spoke in favor of the majority report which was adverse to the request.

Dr. P. H. Plenne and Rev. J. E. Wallace supported the minority report.

The latter is a man of action when speaking whatever he may be when at home.

In his physical exercises with his arms, he knocked a part of the acousticon from the desk, just above this scribe's head, with such suddenness that he, the scribe, imagined that the speaker was really bringing down the house by his eloquence—when in reality—he was only bringing down a part of it. Fortunately he did not play Samson's part in full.

Our head seemed to exercise a certain attraction for flying objects, as the Moderator in his use of the gavel, pounded the desk so vigorously that one end of the gavel flew from the handle and slightly grazed the head of the writer.

The result of this discussion was to sustain the majority report and to refuse the overture.

The overture to lesson the number of theological seminaries was refused, on the ground that such action belonged to the Synods and not to the Assembly.

Another overture was lost, that of allowing one installation to be sufficient for a pastor over a group of churches.

An overture came from the Presbytery of Augusta, asking the Assembly "to take some action in view of a pamphlet entitled "Some Facts About Evolution," by Rev. Hay Watson Smith, D.D., said pamphlet assailing the truthfulness of the Bible, the intelligence of the ministers who hold views at variance with the author, and the fairness and wisdom of the papers of our Church which exclude such articles as this one from the pen of the author of this and other pamphlets sent out by him."

This question in another shape came before the General Assembly several years ago, but it was smothered by a plea that its discussion would harm the Church and interfere with the work by creating divisions.

We felt at the time and predicted that it would come up again—but for the time being the peace at any price policy prevailed.

This time however there was one man present who valued soundness of doctrine above peace and who vigorously urged action.

This man was Dr. Wm. M. McPheeters, who began his speech by saying only a sense of duty impelled him to speak, painful as the effort was.

"We pride ourselves upon being a witnessing Church," said he, "yet for years we have been dumb in the presence of this evil."

He expressed admiration for the ability and courage of Dr. Hay Watson Smith, but the question is, "Is he in harmony with our Standards?"

The following action was taken:

"This Assembly enjoins upon the Presbytery of Arkansas its duty to investigate the rumors that are abroad as to the soundness in the faith of Rev. Hay Watson Smith, D.D."

The vote, as far as we could hear, was practically unanimous, there being only one negative vote. At this point the Assembly passed into a discussion of Union with the United Presbyterian Church which was left as unfinished business on Saturday at the conclusion of Dr. Morris' address.

This matter was finally taken up, and before it was disposed of the union was extended to the Associate Reformed Church and union with the U. S. A. Church as our final stopping place.

This much of the union question was fixed by the following action:

The Assembly gives its approval to the Basis of Union with the United Presbyterian Church, submitted by the Committee, and hereby recommends its adoption and sends it down to the Presbyteries for their advice and consent to the same.

Dr. McPheeters tried to postpone action on this matter by moving as a substitute that a committee be appointed to gather facts and report next year. This was lost by a vote, 83 to 175.

The question of our remaining in the Federal Council, which annually comes up, was another question of debate.

Dr. Kirk was for the majority report that we remain in the Council, while Dr. McPheeters argued for our withdrawal. He made the following points:

1. The Alliance is against the Constitution of our Church. Our Book gives methods of uniting with other bodies, which has never been observed.

2. Many oppose it because of the men who are leaders in it, such as Dr. Cadman, Dr. Shaler Matthews and its present president, Bishop McConnell. President Wilson made protest against secret treaties, yet the acts of this Council are secret. We never know what they are going to do.

We must bear testimony for the truth. It is the great object of the Church.

Dr. Kirk made these points:

1. Their work is experimental and we must be patient.

2. This is the best method to get combined action of the Churches.

3. We profess to be willing to work with any Church, yet we refuse to do the same thing in this Council.

4. We must not be silent in the face of wrong. We must stay in and bear witness.

The Home Mission meeting had five speakers, representing the work among the Indians, among the mountaineers, the colored work, and among the Mexican in Texas.

These addresses were of a high order, but there was one that should appeal to the Southern white. It was made by Rev. A. V. Greene, of Central Alabama Presbytery, a coal-black negro. In speaking of the economic crisis facing the negro race he said that once there were certain occupations

(Continued on Page Seven)

CONTRIBUTED

DR. MOSS'S "UNIQUE MAN OF NAZARETH"

Rev. H. B. Searight

There appeared in a March number of The Standard a sermon on "The Uniqueness of Jesus" by the popular pastor of our Church at Chapel Hill containing many such strange and unsound statements as to call for some comment and protest.

The contents of this article occasioned no surprise to the well-informed; yet it cannot but be a source of pain and misgiving to many good people in the Synod that such low and defective views of the person and work of our Divine Redeemer should be proclaimed at this center of culture and influence in the state.

We shall not undertake any exhaustive criticism of this Christmas sermon; but content ourselves with pointing out a few respects in which it departs radically from the creed of our Church and from the common faith of Evangelical Christendom.

Is the Virgin Birth Not Unique?

Doctor Moss belittles the doctrine of Jesus' Virgin birth; and, if not actually denying it, he at least dismisses it as unimportant. Apparently he sees nothing of value in this scriptural account of the unique origin of our Lord's Divine-human person, by which He was "conceived by the Holy Ghost and born of the Virgin Mary," thus becoming "God manifest in the flesh."

He sees nothing unique in this wonderful creative process by which the Son of God became man, "and so was, and continues to be, God and Man in two distinct natures and one Person forever."

Doctor Moss says, "Similar origins have been claimed for other men." I have read like incorrect and unverifiable affirmations from the noted Dr. Fosdick and other Modernists. But I challenge them to produce anything like the Virgin Birth of Christ in all the records of religious literature. The late Dr. James Orr in his great work on The Virgin Birth of Christ demonstrates its absolute uniqueness. The so-called pagan parallels are not really such.

Heroes and demi-gods abound in Greek and Hindu mythology; but they are the offspring of carnal intercourse between the gods and mortals; and not instances of Virgin Birth. Jupiter was guilty of numerous such liaisons; and Hercules and Perseus were among his sons; but neither were Virgin-born.

Doctor Moss nowhere affirms the sinlessness of Jesus; and it is difficult to see how he logically can, if he rejects the Virgin Birth of Jesus.

A Strange Attitude Toward Miracles

Doctor Moss's attitude toward the miracles of the New Testament is a very strange one for a minister occupying a Presbyterian pulpit. Apparently he puts them in the same class as the tricks and juggleries of a Hindu fakir.

It is true that Jesus refused to work miracles merely to gratify profane curiosity and properly so. But He used His Divine power freely to relieve human sickness and distress; and there is no record of His ever refusing miraculous cure to a sufferer who applied to Him in a spirit of faith and humility.

Nor did He hesitate to appeal to His miracles, or "works," as evidence of His Divine origin and mission,—and when Doctor Moss says, "He makes no such claim," he is guilty of either gross error or amazing ignorance. In His reply to the disciples of John the Baptist, Jesus certainly cited His miracles as proof that He was the Christ of God (Matt. 11:16, and Luke 7:19-23), and on numerous other occasions He refers to His supernatural works as evidence of His heavenly character and commission which men should accept. "If I do not the works of my Father, believe me not. But if I do, though ye believe not me, believe the works; that ye may know and believe that the Father is in Me, and I in Him," John 10:37, 38). (See also John 15: 24.)

Is Christ Merely a Perfect Human?

Doctor Moss speaks of Jesus as "the complete human," and seems to find His uniqueness in His full and perfect humanity. He is the ideal good man. No true Christian questions, or denies, our Lord's beautiful humanity. But is this all? Is He unique in no other sense?

Doctor Moss is rather unhappy in illustrating this aspect of Christ's uniqueness. Just as in art Raphael has a name that is above every name; and in baseball Ty Cobb enjoys a name above every other; so in the high art of living the name of Jesus stands supreme.

So it comes to this—just as Raphael is unique in the world of art, and Ty Cobb in athletics (and we might add Jack Dempsey in pugilism, and Charlie Chaplin in light comedy, etc.), so Jesus has a name above every name in the realm of religion. What a descent from the high views of the Person of Christ held by the Apostles, and fathers of the Church and Confessors in all ages! Either repudiating or passing over those great and vital points wherein our Redeemer's real uniqueness is to be found, such as His Incarnation and Virgin Birth, His mighty works, such as no other man ever wrought, His perfect Union of Deity and Humanity in one Person, His Atoning Death and glorious Resurrection, Pastor Moss locates Jesus uniqueness solely in His complete humanity.

Is Christ Not a Redeemer?

Again, our minister at Chapel Hill appears to have no conception, nor appreciation, of Christianity as a Religion of Redemption, or Salvation from sin. To him Jesus is a teacher or philosopher, and apparently no more.

Concerning Christ's saving work Doctor Moss makes this astounding statement: "In calling Him the Savior of the world we mean that by His profound insight, for which He forfeited His life, He enabled civilization to go forward. He founded and administered a school and was thus a friend of culture." He merely helped forward civilization and made a contribution to culture! "He forfeited His life." There is no hint of intimation here that He offered Himself as a sacrifice or propitiation for the sins of the world; and not a word about the forgiveness of sins nor the renewing grace of the Holy Spirit. Socinianism at its worst never defined Jesus' saving work in lower or more inadequate and unworthy terms.

Toward the conclusion of this discourse, Doctor Moss makes such a serious misstatement of truth as taught by Jesus that it can not go unchallenged. Says he, "According to Jesus men are born to go right as the sparks to fly upward, and, given encouragement, they will, God helping them, work out their own salvation."

We demand the proof-texts for this astonishing statement. It involves an utter denial of natural depravity and moral inability. All that the sinner needs is encouragement, give him a little push in the right direction and he will make the goal.

Evidently Doctor Moss thinks that modern man has been born so well—this ascending, evolving homo sapiens—that he does not need to be born again.

But such was not the teaching of Jesus. He said to a moralist, an aristocrat, and a Doctor of the Law, "Ye must be born again, for that which is born of the flesh is flesh," etc. He came to seek and to save the lost, not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance. And this applies to all alike, whether publicans and harlots, or Ph.D.'s, D.D.'s, or LL.D.'s, in our colleges and universities.

It is not pleasant to criticize the views of another minister. But truth, particularly the saving truth of the Gospel, is superior to all other considerations; and error and false doctrine should not go unchallenged even though proclaimed by an angel from Heaven.

A careful perusal of this article leaves two impressions:

1. Doctor Moss apparently has no appreciation of Christianity as a Religion of Redemption from sin and perdition.

2. His mind is pervaded and his outlook perverted by a naturalistic and pantheistic philosophy. He is of a metaphysical mind, and at times his thought is vague and elusive. But this vitiating worldview is continually cropping out; as when he represents Jesus as implying that "what He was actually, His disciples were potentially."

Again, he says, "Jesus declared that the human and divine are a unit."

Finally, he interprets the Christmas message as meaning that every infant in its mother's arms is a young messiah—Jesus is Divine, but so are we. If so, it is hard to see what is left of the uniqueness of Jesus.

Washington, N. C.

WHAT IS IT TO BE A CHRISTIAN?

Acts 11:26

H. F. Beaty

It is unfortunate that many words have lost their original meaning. We use many others without understanding what they really mean. Are you a Christian? What do you understand by the word, Christian? If I were to sum up all the answers that all of you would give, would the sum total be what the Bible teaches as the full meaning of the term? Probably not if you have the prevalent idea of what the word includes.

It is necessary to study this text and the incidents connected with it, in order to see why it was first applied to the believers in Antioch. Was it given as a term of reproach? I doubt it, for there is no evidence of persecution here. There must have been some reason why the name was first given them, something in their lives and actions must have been the cause. In studying the meaning of the word it is necessary to note some who do not qualify to be named Christians.

Not a Mere Believer in God

Mohammedans, Mormons, Christian Scientists, and in fact all "isms" profess to believe in God.

Not Even One That Accepts All the Facts of the Bible as True

The Samaritans accepted part; the Jews the Old Testament; yes, even the devils "believe and tremble." The Pharisees believed and knew by heart the Old Testament. The rich young ruler lacked ONE essential part. Catholics put Mary in the place of God and Christ.

Not a Mere Believer in Jesus

Many profess to believe in Jesus but try to lower Him to be only a man, superior to us in attainment, but like us in every respect. It is to be feared that Modernists and Higher Critics and others belong to this class. Note that I do not say that they have a true faith in God and Jesus: they have a faith of the head, based on their preconceived ideas of the kind of god they want. They believe that God is a god, and Jesus is a man. All the above are UNSAVED.

Not Mere Followers, Church Members

Many turned back when the way became difficult, John 6:60. Even Judas the Apostle turned away.

Not Even True Believers

The thief on the cross, the Samaritan woman, the Philippian jailor, Cornelius, etc., were saved but not Christians. None of the 70 who were sent out, none of the women who ministered unto Jesus, not even the Apostles could be called Christians. James gives us a most practical teaching of the life of a believer, Peter preached a wonderful sermon on the Day of Pentecost, went down to Samaria, and to the house of Cornelius, John was the "Beloved disciple," Mary and Martha lived very close to their Lord, Nathaniel was "without guile," Stephen died a martyr, the Syrophenician woman had great faith, yet none of them were called Christians, for none deserved the title in full. The widow that gave the mite, and Zacchaeus perhaps, lacked something. In the Old Testament, were many of high and virtuous lives: Abraham left home and loved ones, was called the "friend of God," gave up his son to die at God's command, Moses gave up riches and suffer reproach with the people of God, Isaac in His holiness in the temple, Enoch walked with God, Deborah saved her people, Esther braved death for her people, the Shunamite was called "great," none of them reached the position of deserv title. All of these had a vision of God as their ledge of their nation, but not the God of all peoples. Like Jonah, they were not ready Gospel to all nations. The Jewish officials ledge of the Apostles that "they had been y but they did not recognize a Christ-likeness. tried to mob Paul for Christlikeness. Acts 13: had to be forced into the house of Cornelius acted wrongly toward the Gentiles. Gal. 2:11

What then is it to be Christian? It is to like. And the chief characteristic of Christ is the Gospel to all nations without distinction who do not deserve it, who do not want to reject the message and reject and persecute ger. It is the willingness and purpose to give service that the unconverted of every nation given the knowledge of Salvation through Jesus. You may possess many others of the parts make up Christianity, but lacking this, failing Christ in this point, debars you from the full title of Christian.

Who was first called "Christian? Was it Jesus, or some of the members of the church? They were not Apostles, nor had the word of companionship with Jesus. It is not better nor holier than others; not more than Job, not more faithful than Abraham beloved than John, not more zealous than they were called "Christians" instead of the Gospel they heard was the same and even in part the same. The distinctive feature spirit of their lives. The Greeks were not narrow and sectarian; they were more thoughtful than other people.

They believed in the brotherhood of man, interested in the salvation of the Great Mt. 28:18-20. But when the Greeks received under the leadership of Barnabas, (Son of Acts 4: 36) and Paul who had received the to the Gentiles (Acts 9:15-16, 26-29; 22:17 natural for them to develop and become believers and ready to accept God's full Program. Mt. 28:18-20.

Paul loved his own people unto the extent 9:1-3. 10:1) yet loved the Gentiles to the being willing to die if necessary to give them The people of Antioch recognized their Jew (do we?) from whom they had received and sent them aid in need. Acts 11:29. Also nized their debt to the Gentiles, and became give them the Gospel. As they saw the spirit of Asia Minor, they prayed most earnestly for the salvation of these people, and God made them own prayers. That they had prayed most evident from their willingness to suffer the best preachers for the work. As the Holy Spirit them thus far, they were willing to send Paul without hesitation, though they knew that would suffer hardship. There is no evidence ever regretting the step. When asked a real sacrificing actions that led up to and culminated in supreme sacrifice, they evidently replied: "I am willing to follow Christ who gave His Best to the world might be saved. We are trying to do the Great Commission so as to be like Him." to be Christlike became so manifest that some of them "Christ-likers," Christians. The Methodist has its name from the "methodical" way of the Lord's work.

Are you a Christian in the fullest meaning? You may be saved, but unless you are in the spirit, you are not Christ-like, hence not a Christian.

You may have been led into church membership by false motives, by fear of hell, or by gain. You may support the local church with motives. You may support Home Missions with patriotic motive.

But only Christlikeness will be powerful. lead you constantly to Give and Go that the preached among all nations. He commands us to be in obedience and as moved by His Spirit.

If you possess the greatest feature of Christianity, you will most likely have many of the other things that go to make up Genuine Christianity.

Am I a Christian? Is my church Christlike at home and extending to the utmost bounds of the earth? "Lord, teach me, as thy disciple; and I will be like thee, and into the perfect stature of Christianity!"

Perry, Fla.

RECEIPTS FOR ASSEMBLY'S MISSIONS

The following table gives a comparative receipts of the Assembly's Home Missions for 1929:

Churches	$17,446.64	$16,076.37	$1,370.27
Sunday Schools	290.85	195.28	95.57
Auxiliaries	681.40	828.01	146.61
Y.P. & C.E. Soc.	180.50
Individuals	2,230.55	373.15	1,857.40

Total Receipts—$20,829.94 $17,472.81 $3,357.13
Designated Funds— 3,460.90

$24,290.84

Amount apportioned by the General Assembly for Assembly's Home Missions, 1929-30
Total receipts for April—

A. N. Sharp,

WOMANS AUXILIARY

The Department of Woman's Work, Presbyterian Church, U. S.
270-277 Field Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

SYNODICAL PRESIDENTS OF THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

Alabama—Mrs. J. F. Hooper, 610 Mabry St., Selma, Ala.
 Appalachia—Mrs. F. B. Kegley, Wytheville, Va.
 Arkansas—Mrs. Walter Wilson, Arkadelphia, Ark.
 Florida—Mrs. W. G. Thompson, Jr., 3215 Obispo St., Palma
 Ceia Park, Tampa, Fla.
 Georgia—Mrs. E. G. Aboott, 1315 Eberhart Ave., Columbus, Ga.
 Kentucky—Mrs. H. P. Cooper, Lebanon, Ky.
 Louisiana—Mrs. Charles L. Bodin, Box 79, M. R. A., Lake
 Charles, Louisiana.
 Mississippi—Mrs. J. S. Hicks, Holly Springs, Miss.
 Missouri—Mrs. Walter Craven, 223 Frances St., Excelsior Springs, Mo.
 North Carolina—Mrs. G. V. Patterson, Gastonia, N. C.
 Oklahoma—Mrs. Wilbur Garvin, 611 Euclid, Lawton, Oklahoma.
 South Carolina—Mrs. Parker Connor, Edisto Island, South Carolina.
 Tennessee—Mrs. J. F. Forsythe, Bethel Springs, Tenn.
 Texas—Mrs. J. W. Culver, Texas Military Academy, San Antonio, Texas.
 Virginia—Mrs. C. R. Vaughan, 319 Mountain Ave., Roanoke, Va.
 West Virginia—Mrs. J. McD. Lacy, Elkins, W. Va.

THE CIRCLE PLAN IN AFRICA Egbert W. Smith

The circle plan seems to be circling the world. I know it will rejoice the hearts of Mrs. Winsborough and all the other leaders and members of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Southern Presbyterian Church to read the following paragraph from a letter written by Mrs. J. H. Longenecker from Luebo in our Congo Mission: "We are very grateful for God's blessing upon our women's work during recent months. The Circle Plan along the lines of our Auxiliary at home is reaching greater numbers of women and we trust deepening them spiritually as well. In the small circles in the village many who would not have the courage to rise and lead in prayer in the larger gathering gain confidence. We ladies as we go about from circle to circle in the various sections of the village also have an opportunity of becoming personally acquainted with some whose faces would be lost to us in the large gathering only. You may recall that Luebo village is composed of about forty villages from as many tribes."

NEW AND OLD TREASURERS

Now that the birthday parties are over and the birthday gifts in your hands, are you wondering just how to go about sending in the dollars to the total fund, and what the first lap of that gift is, before it reaches the schools at Zitacuaro and Chilpancingo?

All birthday dollars should follow this course:

The local treasurer sends the birthday gift of her Auxiliary to the Presbyterial Treasurer. If she does not know the name and address of the Presbyterial Treasurer she obtains it from her Presbyterial recording secretary or president.

The Presbyterial president sends the offerings of the Presbyterial to her Synodical treasurer.

The Synodical treasurer forwards the gifts on their course to Mrs. D. A. McMillan, 300 West Seventh Street, Fulton, Mo., who is the general treasurer of the Department of Woman's Work and who will forward it to the Treasurer of the Executive Committee of Foreign Missions. She will publish in the Church papers the amount received from each Synodical treasurer. The lists of gifts by Presbyterials will also be published.

Please forward these gifts promptly.

PRAYER PACKAGES

The quarterly prayer packages are now ready for distribution. They contain poems, prayer verses, devotional, "How to Begin a Christian Life," by Torrey; "How Spurgeon Found Christ," and others. Order this package today, price ten cents, from The Department of Woman's Work, 270-277 Field Building, Saint Louis, Missouri.

ATLANTA PRESBYTERIAL

Mrs. E. M. Copeland

On April 11-12 the Atlanta Presbyterial met at McDonough in its twenty-second session with 379 registered delegates, while the hostess group brought the number up to about 500.

Mrs. J. A. Craig conducted the sessions in her most gracious manner and the program was replete with many interesting and outstanding features.

The reports of officers, cause secretaries and group chairmen showed progress along many lines, with much room for greater accomplishments on all lines, but "we are laborers together with God" and "can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth us."

Rev. S. L. Bowles brought a stirring appeal from our beloved Thornwell Orphanage and we trust that our Church will be faithful in her ministry to these little ones.

Mrs. J. K. Coit presented the needs of Rabun Gap-Nacoochee, stating that the friends of old Rabun Gap had agreed to erect and equip the buildings of the joint schools if the Presbyterian Church of Georgia would support the work. They have fulfilled their pledge but we have fallen short of ours by $3,000, which must be raised by June 1st. Can we in honor fail to meet this challenge and do our sacred duty?

Rev. Hunter Blakely of Columbia Seminary gave a most uplifting address from Isa. 54:2-3, which was followed by the sacrament of the Lord's supper.

Miss Margaret Engle of Agnes Scott presented a most interesting and instructive "Character Study from Acts," using Lydia and Dorcas as examples.

Rev. Geo. C. Bellingrath brought an inspiring message on Young People's Work and the hope to hasten the perfection of the organization to meet the needs and gain the interest of all our young people.

In absence of Mrs. E. G. Abbott (because of illness) Mrs. Audley Morton brought the Synodical message.

In the evening the impressive birthday pageant was presented by the local Auxiliary, followed by address from Miss Elizabeth Edwards of Mutoto, Africa. We felt that we had made a real visit to Africa and could almost see our White Cross bandages in use.

Dr. William Huck, superintendent of Presbyterial's Home Missions, brought an encouraging message showing the marvelous progress and growth of that work, but there is need for more adequate support of the work.

The following officers and cause secretaries were elected:

President, Mrs. J. A. Craig, Atlanta; secretary, Mrs. W. R. Armstrong, Atlanta; secretary foreign missions, Mrs. W. A. Ozmer, Decatur; secretary C. E. and M. R., Mrs. C. C. Walker, Conyers; secretary S. and P. Home Missions, Mrs. E. M. Copeland, McDonough; secretary literature, Mrs. H. C. Dean, Atlanta; Secretary Spiritual Life, Mrs. Wade H. Boggs, Atlanta.

These officers were installed in a most impressive ceremony by Rev. I. T. Hawk, Presbyterial's chairman on Woman's Work.

The Committee on Resolutions were most effusive in their expressions of appreciation for the cordial greetings and gracious hospitality of the hostess group, number four, who were so delighted to entertain the Presbyterial Auxiliary.

EAST HANOVER PRESBYTERIAL From a Personal Letter

A copy of the program of "The Forty-Second Annual Meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of East Hanover Presbyterial" held at Second Church, Petersburg, on May 8, 9, 10, is enclosed. This will give you the bare outlines of the conference, and my sketch will furnish a few details, with special attention to the "high-lights" of the open sessions.

As you have been to Second Church, I shan't have to remind you either of the historic setting of the conference, or the dignity and Churchly beauty of the old edifice. I am sure you have heard that it was built before the Civil War; that its grounds became a thickly populated cemetery during the siege of Petersburg, when Blandford Cemetery was within easy range of the enemy; that, during those stirring times a morning service was interrupted by the entrance of a shell into its wall, which still bears the scar of that encounter. So much for the place of the conference.

Most of the officers and delegates to the conference arrived in our city on the afternoon of May 8th, and a meeting of the executive committee was held at the Church that evening.

Registration for the open session began at 9:30 next morning, May 9th. You may imagine our dismay, on awaking to find a day dismal beyond belief, with gray sheets of rain descending from grayer clouds. Evidently the women of East Hanover do not mind bad weather, for at 9:30, when our gracious president, Mrs. M. B. Porter, called the meeting to order, there was a splendid convention hymn, "Faith of Our Fathers," there was sufficient volume in those stirring notes from so many voices to send ecstatic shivers down my spine. Rev. D. T. Caldwell of the hostess Church, gave the opening prayer and devotional, while Mrs. Sterling Bragg, president of crowd in attendance, and when we arose to sing our the hostess Auxiliary, in a short address, made the delegates and visitors heartily welcome. Friday was a gorgeous day. Complete registration for two days showed 333 present, representing 44 Churches.

You would have taken keen interest and delight in the many fine reports read by officers of the Presbyterial, cause secretaries, district presidents, and local Auxiliary presidents—all were heard from and most of the reports were very encouraging. I am so proud to belong, even in a small way, to such a splendidly organized body of women, and to feel with them the thrill of that spirit of love to Christ and of desire to serve Him that animates the whole.

You know our General Auxiliary motto for this year is: "Walk in Love, as Christ Also Hath Loved Us" (Eph. 5:2), and surely such a meeting together with difficulties and rich experiences shared, with better understanding evidenced in its sympathetic fellowship, gives us the inspiration and patience needed for such a walk. Miss Natalie Lancaster of the Assembly's Training School, our secretary for the Development of Spiritual Life, gave us a fine exposition of this text as a devotional address Friday morning, bringing out the thoughts that, to be like Christ, our love should be untiring, enduring, and unselfish.

The missionary addresses were very worth-while. Have you ever heard Mrs. Cockerham of Blackey, Kentucky? Such a wholesome, hearty, happy woman she is, and of the work begun in the mountains many years ago by her message showed just those qualities, as she told us of the beloved Dr. Guerrant. Charming interesting, her talk punctuated with flashes of real humor, she held her audience to the close. I feel many of us will have more sympathy, from now on, with mountain missions, after hearing Mrs. Cockerham. Dr. Wm. C. Buchanan of Japan, the Foreign Mission representative, gave us, on Friday, a most instructive talk on "Education in Japan," stressing the importance of keeping up evangelistic work there at this time.

You know what an enjoyable event our Annual Auxiliary Birthday Party is. I only wish that all who will attend one might have heard Dr. E. B. Paisley's marvelous talk on Mexico, and the great opportunity we all have to contribute, in this birthday offering, toward the upbuilding of womanhood, freedom, education, and true religion. Dr. Paisley has recently been appointed Professor of Religious Education at the Assembly's Training School, and is a gifted speaker.

A message from the Training School was brought us by Dr. W. L. Lingle, introduced by Mrs. Porter, "as the best-loved man in the Southern Presbyterian Church."

I have little doubt that God's use of his people has been a great factor in the fine work done by us in its fifteen years of service. More than 600 students, Dr. Lingle said, have been graduated from school, and they are now working in ten districts.

Our summer conferences were ably presided over by Synodical President and our most distinguished Mrs. C. R. Vaughan of Roanoke, whom I visited to see again, gave us an interesting glimpse of things in store for us this summer at Massanetta. She also brought us greeting cards, six sister Presbyterials, whose meetings she presided over this spring. The Christian Colored Conference at Petersburg, was presented by two of whom are ardent workers for the betterment of colored women—Mrs. T. A. Carey, who became Secretary for Development of Spiritual Life, and Carrie Lee Campbell.

Reading Miss Campbell's name makes me think, "literature," doesn't it? She is a "born" literature if there ever was one, though transferred for next year to another branch of the Assembly's Home Missions. "Miss Carrie" is affectionately called in the Presbyterial, with the fine literature room provided at Petersburg for the display of her treasures, and the arrangement given by Miss Mamie D. Lingle, secretary of that Church, and her helpers. It was a fine display—maps of mission lands, pamphlets of devotion, and phase of life, books of devotion among which stood out the copies of our study book by Dr. D. W. Richardson, very their scarlet, black and gold covers, the author guaranteeing the contents excellent.

My abysmal ignorance of "things parliamentary" without attempting to explain them, for my importance lay in the fact of their presentation by a much-loved delegate, Mrs. L. W. Curtis, who was Presbyterial President for several years, and for her gracious services to the women of East Hanover. Mrs. Curtis becomes our new Secretary of the Presbyterial.

You must be wondering whether or not we had an hour. We did, and need I say more than Margaret T. Russell, extension teacher for the Training School, was our speaker twice each week. Russell took topics connected with the life of Paul, as bearing helpfully upon the book of Acts, a study in the Auxiliaries, "The Acts." Here the four themes, "Paul, the Man," Paul, "Paul, the Author," "The Friends of Paul," to strengthen the esteem in which the women of East Hanover have long held her, as a profound teacher of the Scriptures, and a Bible teacher of great and remarkable power. Mrs. Russell will be one of the credit classes at Massanetta this summer.

One fine feature of this Presbyterial I must mention is that all the women of the hostess Church were present at all sessions, instead of a few being present, and many being in the kitchen, as is the case. A Church of a sister denomination, Trinity Church, arranged to furnish the luncheon cars being provided by Second Church to carry to and from each Church. This method of handling a difficult situation was much commended, and luncheon, the women of Trinity Church were a rising vote of thanks by the women of the Presbyterial.

This Presbyterial marked the close of the work under our new president, Mrs. M. B. Porter, filled this difficult position with great dignity and efficiency. She has had able assistance in the office. The vice-president, Mrs. Charles F. Coit, elected for another term; recording secretary, John B. Brooke (also re-elected); corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. M. Vincent; treasurer, Mrs. N. N. Nolbing, Jr. (of whom it has been said, "She even money talks sound interesting").

The installation of new officers, cause secretaries, and district presidents was held by Dr. W. L. Lingle, our new chairman on Woman's Work, at East Hanover Presbyterial. His inspiring talk on "Love, the One Motive for Service" (21 ch.), made a fitting close to a meeting throughout by great earnestness, deep spirit, and evident zeal for the Master's service. I am sure we sang the closing stanzas of our convocation and received the benediction, many of us resolved to endeavor, by His grace, to "Walk in Love, as Christ Also Hath Loved Us."

With much love, and hoping to have you at your Presbyterial in your new home-state,
Yours in His service,
Grace Braxton

THE CHURCH CALENDAR OF PRAYER

The Church Calendar of Prayer for 1929 has been exhausted. The Presbyterial Committee of Prayer says that on account of the type being torn up by printers, a resetting of it for a small edition is the cost prohibitive. We are, therefore, substituting the Foreign Mission Calendar entitled: "Our Week," price 15 cents. The use of this Prayer Calendar will count on the Standard where it calls for the Calendar of Prayer.

Order from the Foreign Mission office, Nashville, Tenn. The Department of Woman's Work, 270-277 Field Building, Saint Louis, Missouri.

GROUP CONFERENCES

A package of literature for Group Conferences has been carefully selected, containing free and for sale. This very helpful literature may be secured for thirty-five cents to The Department of Woman's Work, 270-277 Field Building, Saint Louis, Missouri.

SAVANNAH PRESBYTERIAL

Second annual meeting of Savannah Presbytery was called to order by the president, Jimmock, Wednesday evening, April 3, in the Central Church, Savannah, Ga.

Dr. A. L. Patterson, conducted the devotional. A. H. Waite, Jr., president of the hostess cordially welcomed the visitors and a prayer was made by Miss Laura Fraser of al music, Rev. George Bellinrath, Director of Education for the Synod, made a presentation which he stressed the need of developing among the young people.

which was next vividly brought to us in a picture by Rev. T. W. Simpson, Mr. Geo. Neal Anderson.

morning following a beautiful devotional, A. L. Patterson, the business of the day including reports of officers and secretaries vocal solo by Mrs. Clyde Redmond was in response to a request, Mrs. Bernice Vipson on Home Missions at Mannington and J. K. Coit told of the work at Rabun. Rev. A. M. Martin closed the session with the Book of Acts.

delicious luncheon served amid a bower of beautiful Rose Garden Tea Room, Presbytery and the afternoon session was opened with the Lord's Supper. Reports from the men were then heard followed by reports of Auxiliaries according to the Standard. The methods was led by Mrs. W. Osmond ing hour some young people of Hull Medals the 1929 pageant picturing the need of the boys where our birthday gift will go this beautiful solo was sung by Mrs. H. B. Harden. Miss Elizabeth Edwards gave a very prayer on her work in Africa.

ing the devotional was led by Mrs. P. N. the "Value of a Christian Home." Then the standing committees. In the absence of Abbott, Mrs. M. M. McFerrin of Augusta, message from the Synodical and Mrs. H. B. sang for us. Dr. Patterson installed the after which Rev. A. M. Martin brought the from Acts.

erved at the Rose Garden Tea Room and special hour was enjoyed.

session was opened with an impressive by Mrs. W. Osmond White. After reading minutes and reports of special committees, business was taken up. Our president, Mrs. Mock, brought us a farewell message and was closed with "Blest Be the Tie" and standpoint, the meeting was delightful and the memory of the cordial hospitality of the Hull Memorial and the beauties of Savannah with us always.

AN GIRLS NEEDED FOR SERVING THE SICK

In the Hospitals

Sanatoria La Luz (The Light).
Morelia, Michoacan, Mexico.

ive me for sending you another letter birthday offering, but we are so happy we cannot write or think about anything sure that if you could see our hospital most of the time this year you would we need to educate more girls to come and so you would be happy over the gift ote my last letter, another graduate of school, a sweet Christian girl, has reported. We need several more girls, especially our new annex, which we expect to months.

is atmosphere of this hospital, we feel most of our patients, and they have with the message of cheer and consolation not been able to take care of half of who have come to us. Very few of the the surrounding villages and country out getting a clearer view of our crucifixion Christ and a better knowledge of the tion. On this account, as well as our in the physical ailments of all who apply e, it gives one a pang to turn needy and wracked bodies away from the opposite relief and spiritual consolation.

each one of you is praying for the for the two schools, and for our hostesses in Mexico.

our prayers. With love.

Very sincerely,
Patty Southerland.

EDITORIAL

Continued from Page Three)

men, such as drivers of garbage wagons digging ditches in cities, but now white these positions, and the negro was gradually being pushed out. He pleaded for help. It was a speech couched in good English, showing the influence of the Stillman Institute.

Dunn gave the report of the Presbyterian Assembly that they always wish of the legator.

warm debate over the apparent proposal of E. Magill to a subordinate position upon the Board of Publication. He had a number of the result that he was placed in charge

YOUNG PEOPLES DEPT.

YOUNG PEOPLES TOPIC

Sunday, June 9—"Thinking Things Through With Christ.—Matt. 17:1-8; Luke 14:28-30; Acts 20:17-30.

C. G. A.

God's Plan

God has a plan for every one's life. We were not placed in the world in a hap-hazard fashion. We are here for a purpose. God does not hide His plan from us—His plan is not a mystery that cannot be solved. It is a practical plan that He is ready and willing to reveal. He knows how and where He can best use us, for He is the Master and we are the bond-servants. The bond-servant does not dictate to his Lord what is best, but with all humility bows before Him and asks what is his task. Our Master is not a cruel slave-driver, nor is he a Sphinx. He does not send us on fruitless missions, nor does He smile scornfully at our attempts to discover His purpose. He has a plan—a plan filled with love and happiness. He does not show us the whole plan at once, but He gives it to us each day all through the day.

Prayerful Planning

Nothing is well done without thought. If we do not plan thoughtfully, we become irresponsible drifters on whom no one can depend. Of course, it is hard to think and plan, and our minds are the laziest machines that we possess. It is so much easier to just let things slide than it is to steer a straight course. All of us have to fight to keep our minds working. It is work and hard work. But we do not have to work alone because the Lord Jesus is our co-worker, and He will work with us and teach us. That is when prayer enters our planning. He will never give us too hard a task for our strength, for He knows the amount of our strength better than we ourselves know.

Planning and Investing

An investment means a deliberate choice. No one invests a sum of money without careful planning and investigation. Money is invested where the largest returns are expected. Is life cheaper than money? Money is coined work, and work is a part of life—so that when we invest money we invest a part of life. But only a part. A person's real worth is not what one has but what one is. If we would only plan to invest our lives with the earnestness with which we invest our money, there would be very few drifters. "I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, to present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable to God, which is your spiritual service."

Counting the Cost

How much is it worth? "Which of you desiring to build a tower, doth not first sit down and count the cost, whether he have wherewith to complete it? Lest haply, when he had laid a foundation, and is not able to finish, all that behold begin to mock him, saying, This man began to build and was not able to finish." Jesus knew that it costs to live a life that was worth while. He knew that a life of service was a life of sacrifice, too. Everything costs life and time—we can use them or abuse them. The fuller life is ours if we really desire it with all our heart. "I am come that they may have life and may have it abundantly."

Mistakes

Of course we make mistakes because we are only human beings. A person that has never made a mistake has never done anything worthing either. But we must not brood over our mistakes. We must let our mistakes teach us. Take a lesson for what a lesson is worth. But let us not make the mistake of spending life selfishly—because in so doing we lose it—both capital and interest. Think—Pray—Act—and mistakes will take care of themselves.

Obedience

I said: "Let me walk in the fields."
He said: "No, walk in the town."
I said: "There are no flowers there."
He said: "No flowers, but a crown."

I pleaded for time to be given.
He said: "Is it hard to decide?
It will not seem so hard in heaven
To have followed the steps of your Guide."

George Macdonald.

as the Executive Secretary and Business Manager, and Dr. J. L. Fairley as Secretary of Religious Education, the salary of each being the same, and their rank co-ordinate. This disposal, in our opinion, was a wise one, as Mr. Magill is a business man, without a superior, while the educational work needs a man with a knowledge of theology, lest our young people have unsound literature placed in their hands.

More than once in the past some one in some of our publications has admitted views contrary to our standards, not purposely but through ignorance, with the result that past Assemblies have been asked to warn the Committee to exercise more caution in the truths taught and the books put on sale. The final vote on the question of two co-ordinate executives was 134 to 118.

This was an Assembly deeply affected with the Reunion virus, and as a final step, it was resolved to appoint a committee to confer with and take active steps for organic union with all Presbyterian bodies. This was passed by an overwhelming vote, 125 to 19.

Let the advocate of union remember that "it is a long way to Tipperary," and that there are several steps yet to be taken before union becomes a certainty.

Future Assemblies may have in their personnel more men who "know Joseph," and remember what we owe to him.

JUNIOR C. E. TOPIC HELPS

Miss Hattie Mae Covington

Topic for June 2, 1929—"Kind Words, Kind Deeds"—Mark 1:40-42 (Consecration meeting).

Suggestions for Taking Part

1. Some one tell the story of "The Good Samaritan."
2. Bible Hunt: Eph. 4:32; Ps. 36:7; Jer. 2:2; Ps. 63:3; Ps. 36:10; Ps. 117:2; Tit. 3:4; Col. 3:12; II Pet. 1:7; I Thes. 4:9; Rom. 12:10; Acts 28:2.
3. Poems:

Little Kindness

A little word in kindness spoken
A motion or a tear,
Will often heal a heart that's broken,
And make a friend sincere

Kindness

One never knows
How far a word of kindness goes;
One never sees
How far a smile of friendship flees,
Down, through the years,
The deed forgotten reappears.

One kindly word
The souls of many here has stirred,
Man goes his way
And tells with every passing day,
Until life's end:
"Once unto me he played the friend."

We cannot say
What lips are praising us today.
We cannot tell
Whose prayers ask God to guard us well,
But kindness lives
Beyond the memory of him who gives.

Edgar A. Guest.

Do Good to Others

A little golden sunbeam came stealing in one day,
And as I sat and watched it, I seemed to hear it say:
Go forth, do good to others, be gentle, kind and true;
Remember your Creator, who loves and cares for you.

I stood beside a brooklet that murmured soft and clear,
And while I paused to listen, these words I seemed to hear
Go forth, do good to others, be gentle, kind and true;
Remember your Creator, who loves and cares for you.

The merry birds were singing among the waving trees,
And thus they sweetly caroled amid the playful breeze:
Go forth, do good to others, be gentle, kind and true;
Remember your Creator, who loves and cares for you.

O precious, precious teaching of sunbeam, brook and bird;
I will never forget their lessons, but treasure every word;
Go forth, do good to others, be gentle, kind and true;
Remember your Creator, who loves and care for you.

4. Hymns:

"Help Somebody Today;" "Kind Words Can Never Die;" "Somebody Did a Golden Deed."

Topic for June 9, 1929—"A Junior Christian Endeavor Fan"—Matt. 21:15-17.

Program Suggestions

1. Blackboard Talk:
Abide, John 15:4.
Jesus, John 14:6.
Understanding, Prov. 2:2.
Needs, Phil 4:19.
I, Isa. 41:10.
Obey, Eph. 6:1.
Righteousness, Prov. 14:34.
Christian, Acts 11:26.
Endureth, Jas. 1:12.
Faith, Heb. 11:1 and 6.
Ask, Jas. 1:5.
Now, I Cor. 13:13.

Draw a large fan on the blackboard showing twelve folds. On each fold write one letter of the topic and as the above references are read write the topic of the reference on the stay or fold. The references are given out in a sharp-shooting method. Then each child that reads is asked to give the word that is the topic of the verse or a characteristic that a Junior Christian Endeavor Fan should have. The Junior has a key to finding the topic as he has the first letter to his word on the blackboard before him.

2. Talks:

1. Definition of Fan.
 - a. Kinds of fans.
 1. Baseball, football, etc.
 2. Movie fan and party fan.
- II. Comparisons.
 - a. Between Junior C. E. fan and baseball fan.
 - b. Between Junior C. E. fan and movie fan.
- III. Characteristics of Junior Christian Endeavor Fan.
 - a. Should he do nothing else but think of Junior Endeavor work?
 - b. Should he take part in other things—social affairs outside of church?
 - c. How may he become a leader among his friends?
 - d. What is the best way to make friends for Christian Endeavor?
 - e. What should a Junior Christian Endeavorer's motto be?
 - f. General discussion of mottoes.
- IV. "How may we become Junior Christian Endeavor Fans."

Based on II Tim. 2:15 and I Tim. 4:12.
3. Hymns: "In The Garden," "I Would Be True," "In My Heart There Rings a Melody."
4. Invitations. Cut the invitations in the shape of fans.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Rev. Ernest Trice Thompson, D.D.

Lesson for June 9th

THE STORY OF THE RECHABITES

(Temperance Lesson)

Jeremiah 35:1-19, Print vs. 5:11

For more than a month now we have been studying the life and the message of the prophet Jeremiah. Last week we traced the general course of his heroic ministry from the beginning to the end. This week we go back to a single incident in his life, an incident which interests us chiefly because of its bearing on one of our greatest national problems, that of Prohibition. It happened during the reign of Jehoiakim. Jeremiah had been prophesying for about 20 years.

Read Jeremiah 35. To whose house was Jeremiah directed to go? Who were the Rechabites? Where was he to bring them? What was he to offer them? Did he do this? Did the Rechabites drink wine? Why not? How did they explain their presence in Jerusalem? How does Jeremiah apply this object lesson in obedience? What is emphasized in the contrast between 'their father' and 'me' in verse 16? What was the message of Jeremiah from God to the Rechabites?

I. Jeremiah's Object Lesson—1-11

Dr. Amos R. Wells calls our attention to the fact that "like all who appeal forcibly to the people, Jeremiah often used parables and object lessons; his preaching was marvelously picturesque. On one occasion for example he bought a bottle, and went with the elders of the people to the valley of Hinnom, where the refuse of the city was burnt. At the climax of his sermon on that occasion he shattered the bottle into bits and said: "Even so will I break this people and this city as one breaketh a potter's vessel, that can not be made whole again." 19:11. On another occasion he went up to the temple wearing a wooden yoke on his neck; as the people turned to look he told them that in a few years they would be wearing again the yoke of Babylon which they had attempted to throw off. Chap. 28. Jeremiah illustrated the sermon which we are to study today by his dramatic dealings with a picturesque people called the Rechabites.

The Rechabites were not Jews. They were descendants of a people called the Kenites, a clan or family of the Midianites. Moses had come in contact with this people after he had fled from Egypt into the wilderness. He had married the daughter of Jethro, 'the priest of Midian,' who was a Kenite. Later when he led the children of Israel out of Egypt toward the promised Land, Hobab, the son of Jethro, the brother-in-law of Moses, accompanied him, to aid them with his knowledge of the desert. Cf. Num. 10:29, Judges 1:16; 4:11. After the conquest of Canaan, the family of Hobab and other Kenites who had accompanied him settled in Judah, south of Arad, and were still there in the time of Saul and David. Jael the woman who killed Sisera by driving a tent peg through his forehead was one of these Kenites, though she dwelt in the northern part of the land. Rechab was another of the famous Kenites. He was the ancestor or founder of the family or order in Israel known as the Rechabites. The most notable member of this family was Jehonadab (2K10:15-23), or Jonadab, as he is called in Jeremiah 35. Jehonadab was a zealous Jehovah worshipper and took part with Jehu in the extirpation of Baal worship and the house of Ahab, that had introduced and supported the worship of Baal in Israel. He set for his descendants a vow of asceticism: that they should drink no wine, nor plant fields or vineyards, nor build nor live in houses throughout their generations. As Doctor Mack says: "That must have been a singular feature in Palestinian life: the simple nomadic life of this family from generation to generation in the midst of settled agriculture, they were nomads. They learned the art of a marked people, something as the gypsies have been in our own day, at least until they took to the automobile. But the Rechabites took this vow upon themselves for religious reasons. When the Israelites, and with them the Kenites, came into Palestine, they knew nothing of agriculture, they were nomads. They learned the art of agriculture from the Canaanites. As Doctor Peake points out "this included not merely the right mode of cultivating the land, but also the right mode of winning the favor of the supernatural powers who could grant or withhold their blessing on his toil. Each district had its Baal, and success in agriculture was dependent on the favor of these local Baalim. The Hebrews combined the worship of the Baalim with that of Jehovah, without feeling that they were thereby compromising their duty of sole allegiance to their national God. Jehovah and the Baalim did not stand for them on the same plane, any more than many monotheists' (e. g. Roman Catholics) would feel that God and the saints were on the same moral plane, though both might be objects of worship. There was, however, a radical distinction between Jehovah and the Baalim, in that the cult of the latter was associated with revolting licentiousness. Moreover owing to the fact that the term 'baal' meant 'lord' or 'owner,' it could be, and was used quite innocently of Jehovah Himself. As time went on the Hebrews began to think of Jehovah as the Lord of the land and the giver of fertility. These two factors combined to contaminate with the foul rites of Baalism the worship of Jehovah Himself. At last a definite protest was made by Jonadab the son of Rechab. He strictly forbade his descendants to abandon the nomad life. They were not to build houses, but to dwell in tents; they were to sow no seed, and to plant no vineyard, and they were not even to drink wine." The main reason for these restrictions was a religious one. Jonadab would not have his descendants adopt a manner of life that so easily contaminated the pure worship of Jehovah, to which the Kenites along with the Israelites had dedicated themselves. In Jeremiah's day more than two centuries had passed since Jonadab had laid his commands on his family, and during this period they had been faithfully observed. The invasion of the country, however, by the Chaldeans and the Syrians (their allies) had driven them temporarily out of the country into the city. It was the presence of this unique and picturesque people in the streets of Jerusalem that gave Jeremiah his cue and his opportunity.

The prophet went to the leaders of the clan (house here means family, it does not refer to the place of their abode, for the Rechabites true to their vows still lived in tents) and brought them and their followers to the temple. There were many chambers in the Temple, some used as storerooms, some as official residences, some for gatherings, especially no doubt for sacrificial feasts. Some of these were very spacious, and it was into one of these larger rooms, open to the public, that Jeremiah led the Rechabites, followed we can be sure by a large crowd of interested spectators. The purpose of course in bringing them to the temple was that the whole incident might be made more prominent, and be more widely known. There in the presence of all the people Jeremiah had bowls of wine brought (large vessels from which the drinking cups were filled) and cups. Then he invited them to drink. The Rechabites promptly refused, uttering that noble reply: "We will drink no wine; for Jonadab the son of Rechab, our father, commanded us saying, 'Ye shall drink no wine, neither ye, nor your sons, forever; neither shall ye build house, nor sow seed, nor plant vineyard, nor have any; but all your days ye shall dwell in tents; that ye may live many days in the land wherein ye sojourn. And we have obeyed the voice of Jonadab the son of Rechab, our father in all that he charged us, to drink no wine all our days.'"

As Doctor Snowden remarks: "The sincerity and firmness and loyalty to their ancestral faith and customs which mark this refusal must elicit our unreserved admiration. In the midst of all the solicitations and pressure of evil in the city life in which they were temporarily immersed they would not in the least degree relax their simple and severe customs, and they nobly kept themselves unspotted. They were in the city, and yet they were not of it. They were not afraid of being considered old-fashioned and out of date by reason of their primitive manners, and they were not ashamed to appeal to the authority of "our father." They were loyal to their own ancestral faith and life and were ready to stand for it against the world."

That was exactly the response on which Jeremiah had counted, and it gave him the text which he proceeded to expound.

II. The Application—In Jeremiah's Day—12-19

He spoke to the crowd which had gathered in the name of Jehovah and in the first person as if Jehovah were speaking: "See how obedient are the Rechabites to the commands of their remote ancestor Jonadab; but I, your God, have spoken to you, earnestly as a man rising up early for a pressing task. Yes, and I have sent you all my servants the prophets, rising up early and sending them, bidding you through them to reform your wicked ways and cease from your idolatries, and promising them that if you would obey you should dwell here in safety; but you have not even listened to me, still less obeyed me. So now I will bring on Judah and Jerusalem all the evil that I have warned them would come to them from their disobedience; but as for the Rechabites, Jonadab the son of Rechab shall not want a man to stand before me for ever." This as Doctor Wells points out was the high reward of service; for standing before a king means the holding of high office involving immediate attendance on the monarch. Obedience involves promotion and honor as disobedience means disgrace and ruin.

III. The Application—In Our Day

1. We need the moral stamina of the Rechabites. They had been brought into a new environment. Pressure was brought to bear upon them to conform to the custom of the people around about them. No one likes to be looked upon as peculiar or odd. Yet they stood firm to their own convictions. "In this attitude," says Doctor Snowden (Snowden's Sunday Schools Lessons), "they afford a worthy example for us. We are somewhat in their condition as we are solicited to yield to many temptations that are even more dangerous than theirs. It is well for us to be true to the teaching and example of our fathers. It is true that we must have and obey our own convictions of truth and duty; but we should consider that wisdom did not begin with us and that our fathers trod many paths which are safe for our feet. To disown this accumulated wisdom in any field of life, most of all in the field of moral and spiritual truth, would be folly and fatality. It is not a sign of unmanly dependence and weakness to be loyal to the instruction and example of our fathers; neither is it a sign of independence and smartness to disregard and trample upon their ways; rather to disown them is rashness and folly and to follow their steps is safe guidance and strength. We have the same power as the Rechabites to take a stand against evil and quit ourselves like men. In our personal customs and companionships, in business and in society we can refuse to share in any practise, habit or custom that we believe to be wrong or attended with danger. However, subtle and strong the solicitations and pressure that are put upon us we can put our conscience and will against them, and beat them back and trample them under our feet. Brave men have resisted these things unto blood; great souls have stood up against them like oaks against storms. What others have done, we can do. power to win this victory. God will help us thing. There are many commands and pron Bible bidding us to fight this good fight and this victory." In what ways is social pressure bear upon men, women, and young people to form to the customs of the crowd as over moral teachings of the past? How far should sure be resisted? How can it be resisted? S people do what the crowd does, if failure to loss of popularity? Think about the act temptations that you face, or that your class of what it costs not to conform, of what conform.

2. We need men today who will say with bites, we will drink no wine. The Rechabites own reason for refusing to drink of the fruit. What reasons have we for taking such a sta

(1) The effect of moderate drinking. In 19 ish Medical Research Council appointed an investigation Committee which reported at things: "That without signs of intoxication nary or in the legal sense of the term the individual attitude of mind suffer temporary an effect of the drug; and those in contact w son so affected have for the time being to d altered individual, whose mind lacks tem normal factor of judgment and conspicuous its self-control. There is hardly any need to here the obvious fact, that the directions alterations tend to take commonly are like to with serious consequences for the due disch onsibilities in all walks of practical life. avoidance of accidents, tactful handling of col subordinates, observance of discipline, punctu icence in matters of confidence are all obviou ized." John R. Ewers in a recent article ask want your son or daughter to drink? Unless fool, you do not? Why are you opposed to ing? You want them to hold possession of al they have all the time? Whisky and gasol mix? More than half the motor wrecks are liquor. Your daughters' inhibitions are lower Do you want the engineer of your locomotiv Roosevelt used to go up to the engine dri run and thank him for a safe ride. Often, I pullman berth, I think of the steady, dependa the throttle, whose alert mind, whose clear intelligent hand protect us. Long before Pro Pennsylvania railroad strictly forbade drinki trainmen. Do you want drunken employees? I the truth about Prohibition you must be awa business men had more to do with it than group. They were tired of bothering with inc dangerous employers who were the worse Mondays in the mills in the old days were fr business men put a stop to drinking." Sen recently recently pointed out that in additio age-old reasons why liquor should be absol bited, "the modern industrial world with its e delicate machinery, with its demand for st fitness, asks that it be banished." In our m zation, even moderate drinking is dangerous t munity as well as to the individual.

2. The danger of excessive drinking. Al habit forming drug. Perhaps the majority c drink in moderation, but there are many men who can not stop there. We all know lives th ruined, careers that have been blasted by exce ing. Men who are drunk are not responsible. crimes, our worst accidents are committed by the influence of drink. No man can afford risk of fixing upon himself this dangerous t

3. The effect of our drinking upon others conclude that it is not wrong for us to drink tion, and that we can drink in moderation. B is a social habit, and many learn to drink, a to drink for social reasons; many who beg for this reason, or because of the example of ents or friends are not able to stop with mod ing. It is perfectly true that we can not gi practise which may be carried to excess, but such a dangerous drug, it is the parent of so that most Christians have decided that for the sake, if for no other reason, they will drink no

4. Our respect for law. From the Presi thoughtful Americans are alarmed over the w lawlessness in the United States. Let us reme Christian Century points out that back of t ness stands the corrupted public officers. B corrupted public officers stands the illicit l dicate. Back of the illicit liquor syndicate booze runner. Back of the booze runner stand legger. Back of the bootlegger stands the c buys the stuff. We need a new birth of conscie subject, and a new birth of courage on the pa whose consciences are sensitive but timid. I conceivable social situation in this country i gentleman needs to drink. There is no conceiv situation in which a gentleman needs to re letting it be known that he disapproves of liquor so long as its use necessarily involves t agement of law breakers. That does not m citizen has not the right to argue and woi repeal" of the law if in his judgment—misgui think—it is an unwise or an unjust law. It that those whose patronage makes illicit liq profitable, those who excuse, encourage, an nullification of the law, those who indiscrim little and ridicule the efforts to enforce the who cannot describe conscientious prohibition e officers by any other terms than 'snake' and those who treat as martyrs the criminals who just penalty of their contempt for the law— all of them, are enemies within the gates."

LDREN

TOOK TEDDY?

Story by Grace B. Allen)
 o excited over what she largest hen's nest that dly wait to tell Marvin, dying arithmetic in the soon as she saw him she ere's $10 in the barn for s saving money for a se he jumped. "Where?

 ipped his book. You're egged Mary. She led arn and the biggest nest Marvin's collie, lay with zzy puppies.

beautiful; worth $10 all d Marvin, and patted
 , when she barked so an sell every one for $2
 little yellow and white heir wobbly legs were so took the finest puppy
 t on an auto cushion.
 Mr. Jones. This for the thus disposed of four.
 saw the fifth he dropped the nest. Oh, he was t; good for nothing. I

the trembling puppy to ere she held it lovingly.
 hurt its feelings?" she angrily asked her brother's mother treated you were weak and sickly?
 ked until she made you
 hamed of you, Marvin too badly disappointed

 Friday he took away the and returned with a dollars. Mary saw him
 ipped the runt in the duck an as fast as she could.
 p she caught the puppy.
 ut with her new dress shivering puppy in her

ught you to be kind to m," declared Mary very as she walked away. She puppy already, loved to ter about, loved to teach en he grew older he was

He tore her overshoe
 d forgotten to put away,
 and chased the chickens.
 hen he was a year old,
 m when she and Marvin cows. The runt, whom ed Teddy, barked at But-er tail, and drove her so t Marvin was furious.

"drowned him," muttered
 he's good for anything,

kled her whole forehead,
 e could not think of any-e faltered, "He's good to Marvin had flung himself whispered to Teddy, ght, dear. I know it, but show them. Let's go get ful of eggs."

to the barn. None. They chard. Not an egg. They cowed. Mary opened ere's a little new calf. Oh,

She stooped to smooth bly thing, when she heard ellow. It sounded as aw-earing of the circus lion.
 ig and black, with fiery Mary with its horns and down. Everything went Mary opened her eyes and her leg doubled right up.
 ot walk. Was her leg other roar made her look s coming with her head
 y saw her awful hoofs,
 with shining brass tips.

he screamed. And just aught Buttercup's tail and he had done in the pas-cup whirled to fight the the door Teddy ran, with er him. Mary could hear and Buttercup bellowing,
 e grew fainter and fainter.
 herself up by holding to Her leg was broken, but herself to the door and r leg hanging limply until had heard, came running.
 he world, sis?" cried Mar-
 d faintly as she fell over

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color.)

"When Susie May got a hundred on her report card!" said BROWN-haired Teddy. "Why, after school was out, she just flew home!"

Susie May had YELLOW curls and was dressed in a PINK (use RED lightly) frock with a hat to match. Her socks were PINK—also but her slippers were BLACK.

Susie May lived in a PINK house with a BROWN roof and GRAY (use BLACK lightly) chimney. The shutters on her house were GREEN and there was a very tall dark GREEN tree beside the house.

Teddy wore a white sailor blouse

with BLUE collar and cuffs. His trousers were darker BLUE and had White buttons. Teddy's tie and cap were RED.

Susie May ran up the long BROWN path leading to the front of her house and Teddy followed her until they came to the path to his house. Teddy's house had a GREEN Dutch roof with RED roofed windows along the side. The house was White with GREEN shutters. The chimney on Teddy's house was RED, too.

Susie May carried her RED speller under her arm and her report card held out before her. Oh, my, she was happy!

Teddy has a GREEN leafed cherry tree with bright RED fruit on it growing near his house. The tree has a GRAY trunk.

The lawns are GREEN and there are two bushes by the pathway. The bushes have light GREEN leaves and light BLUE cluster blossoms. The little flowers at the side of Susie May's house are RED and YELLOW. The sky is light BLUE.

Both children have PINK cheeks.

The border of this picture can be colored YELLOW and the lettering RED.

against Marvin.

"Teddy was just showing you," she smiled again as she closed her eyes.

Everyone wanted to buy the runt when they heard Mary's story. Marvin shook his head. "I'll keep him myself if I never get a wheel," he stoutly declared. "Maybe dad will furnish the rest rather than to have him go out of the family."

Of course daddy did.—Western Christian Advocate.

PUZZLE CORNER
 Junior Cross-Word Puzzle

Horizontal

- 1—Wild flower (pl.)
- 4—Small bed
- 7—A wager
- 9—Famous soldier
- 10—Skill
- 11—Exist
- 12—Middle Atlantic State (abbr.)
- 14—Rich green color

Vertical

- 1—Affirm
- 2—Musical note
- 3—Fixed
- 5—Over (contr.)
- 6—Golf term
- 7—Naughty
- 8—Before
- 13—Conjunction

Puzzle Answers on Page 16

YES—THEY'RE RAISING YOUNG YOUNG CIGARS!

Dear Standard:

This is my first letter to you. I go to the Eureka Presbyterian Church. I go to Sandhill Farm Life School. I am in the intermediate class in Sunday School. Mrs. D. G. Blue is my Sunday School teacher. I am in the seventh grade in school for next term. Miss Mary Anne Black will be my

Numerical Subtractions

- 1—Subtract 5 from to exist, and leave to recline.
2. Subtract 10 from an adage and leave to cripple.
3. Subtract 1000 from a city in Italy and leave fish eggs.
4. Subtract 50 from slim, and leave vision.
5. Subtract 100 from reality and leave obese.
6. Subtract 5 from to divide and leave healthy.

Insect Diagonals

Beginning with the first letter of the first word, proceed diagonally downward to the last letter of the last word and find an insect.

- 1 A tree.
- 2 A New England city
- 3 A medical man.
- 4 A summer month.
- 5 Commendation.
- 6 A floor covering.
- 7 A fish.
- 8 A season.
- 9 A weekday.
- 10 Young girl.
- 11 Rim.
- 12 A metal.

teacher for next term. Our school was out May 3rd and I was very glad because I was promoted to the seventh grade. I hope Mr. W. B. has gone with Mrs. W. B. to set out tobacco when my letter comes in, because I want it published.

Your friend,
 Margaret E. McLeod.
 Vass, N. C.

BLUE BIRDS IN THE SPRING

Dear Standard:

I am a girl nine years old. I go to Sunday School every Sunday. I go to school at Union Ridge and my teacher is Miss Aldridge. I have one sister and three brothers. I am in the fourth grade. We have a blue bird; it has built her nest in the pear tree. The mother blue bird has some babies. We do not bother the blue bird. It seems to want to stay with us.

Your friend,
 Doris Garrison.
 Union Ridge, N. C.

PAINTS THE PICTURES

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl seven years old. I am in the second grade. I go to Sunday School every Sunday. My Sunday School teacher's name is Mrs. J. M. Blue. I enjoy painting the pretty pictures in the Standard. I hope Mr. Wastebasket has gone out on a vacation when my letter arrives.

Your friend,
 Mary Janie McLeod.
 Vass, N. C.

CHURCH NEWS

UNION SEMINARY GRADUATES AND THEIR LOCATIONS

Below will be found the names of the members of the members of the graduating class of this year and their permanent locations:

Wade Hampton Allison, Jr., Spray, N. C.; Meade Randolph Atkinson, Hillsboro, W. Va.; William Hammond Bowman, Wytheville, Va.; John W. Bracey, Wachapreague, Va.; Joseph Fitzhugh Clark, Williamsville, Va.; Harry M. Crim, Strasburg, Va.; Harold J. Dudley, Lynchburg, Va.; Paul Cousley Edgar, Mena, Ark.; Charles Franklin Hoffman, Lexington, Va.; Andrew Emerson Johnson, Monterey, Va.; Frank Smith Johnston, Morehead City, N. C.; W. Ted Jones, Milton, W. Va.; Laurence Forman Kinney, Rural Retreat, Va.; Emmett Burns McGukin, Norfolk, Va.; George Watts Mauze, Kinston, N. C.; William Edward Moreau, Weir, Miss.; Robert Dixon Nolen, Petersburg, Va.; George Frazier Patterson, Atlanta, Ga.; Frank Leslie Shannon, Enfield, N. C.; Archie Campbell Smith, Charleston, W. Va.; John Beaty Smith, Gorman, W. Va.; Roy Edward Watts, Emporia, Va.; Clarence I. Calcote, Ackerman, Miss.; Charles Creed Fulton, Pearisburg, Va.; Orin Conyers Landrum, Hazelwood, W. Va.; Marion Graham Lyerly, Wilson, N. C.; Zachary Taylor Piehoff, Williamston, N. C.

ALABAMA

Huntsville, First Church—At the communion of the Lord's Supper on the first Sunday of April the pastor, Neill G. Stevens, announced the names of nine members who have been received during the past quarter. Dr. S. M. Erickson, missionary representative of this Church to Japan, was a visitor during the meeting of the Presbyterial of North Alabama and gave several helpful and inspiring addresses.

SNEDECOR MEMORIAL SYNOD

Central Alabama Presbytery met in Sylvan Street Church, Selma Ala., April 11, 1929. Present nine ministers and three ruling elders.

The opening sermon was preached by Rev. M. U. Williams. Rev. J. H. Hanson was elected moderator and Rev. H. Vernon Green, temporary clerk. Dr. R. A. Brown addressed Presbytery on Christian Education. Rev. A. F. Fogartie addressed Presbytery. Judge Hobbs by special request addressed Presbytery on the Annuity Fund.

We had a helpful address by Rev. A. L. Edmiston on the work in Africa. Rev. J. R. Mallard will serve the work in Mobile for the next twelve months.

Commissioners to the Assembly: Prin., Rev. H. Vernon Green, Thomasville, Ga.; Elder, Robt. Norris, Selma, Ala.

Presbytery will meet in Fulton Chapel in October. There will be an adjourned meeting in Tuscaloosa in May during Synod. The Women's Presbyterial also meet in Selma. They had a very fine meeting. On Friday night they rendered an excellent program. Mrs. Snedecor, Mrs. Hooper, Mrs. Edmiston, and Miss McCay spoke.

Presbytery adjourned Sunday night. We had a fine meeting.

FLORIDA

Florida Presbytery—At a called meeting of the Presbytery, held in the First Presbyterian Church of Pensacola, the pastoral relation between the McIlwain Memorial Church of Pensacola and Rev. E. S. Campbell was dissolved and Mr. Campbell was dismissed to the Presbytery of Knoxville, on March 25, 1929. Daniel J. Currie, Stated Clerk.

DeFuniak Springs Church—The reports sent up to Presbytery by the DeFuniak Springs Church will show that 36 new members have been added during the year, that the present membership of 426 is about double what it was when the present pastorate began thirteen and a half years ago, and that the congregation has raised for all purposes during the year the sum more than $11,000.00.

The church still maintains five afternoon Sunday Schools, has a wide-awake Ladies' Auxiliary, a Presbyterian Brotherhood, and three branches of Christian Endeavor.

The Session has very kindly lengthened the time of the pastor's vacation so that he may visit England, Ireland, and during the summer. He is booked to sail from New York on the S. S. Caronia, June 21. D. J. C.

KENTUCKY

Crescent Hill, Louisville—During the past two years this church has shown a net growth of 25 per cent and reports to Presbytery a total membership of 484. The total gifts to benevolences, including special campaign funds and congregational missions, were $9,925.00; to current expenses, $11,822.00; to miscellaneous, $128.00; a total of $22,135.00, which shows a slight increase over last year. The church has just concluded the best Every Member Canvass in its history. The budget for benevolences, including $1,100.00 for congregational missions and $400.00 for sessional benevolences in addition to our apportionment, was over-subscribed by $300.00. The budget to current expenses was subscribed in full and provision made for retiring an accumulated debt. The total subscriptions show an increase of over $3,000.00, or 20 per cent.

During the year this Church's mission on Clifton Heights, which has been so devotedly conducted under the direction of elder O. R. Mann, was separately organized as the Caroline Hunter Memorial Church with a membership of 50 or more. Rev. W. S. Thorington is the pastor.

The Church's Boy Scout Troop directed by deacon John L. Scott made an unusually fine record for the year winning many honors and credits.

The Sunday School also had a fine year under Supt. T. C. Gaines, contribution about $900.00 to benevolences. At the beginning of the new year our Senior and Young People's Departments and Christian Endeavors are being co-ordinated as one organization. The same plans are being worked out by the Intermediate Department, all of which are under the direction of Miss Jeanne E. LaLance, young peoples' worker and director.

The Woman's Auxiliary also had a good report for the year.

Murray—On Sunday evening, April 28, we closed an eight days' meeting in the Courthouse, in which we were ably assisted by Doctor Goff of Hopkinsville, from Tuesday afternoon to Thursday afternoon.

A small nucleus was secured looking to the organization of a Presbyterian Church in this city.

Murray is a beautiful place, having a population of about five thousand, and is the seat of Murray State College. This is a growing institution and in its various departments, almost twelve hundred.

We addressed the school body one morning, and Mrs. Wade entertained them with choruses in Chinese. Two of the instructor nine pupils are Presbyterians. Muhlenburg, hopes soon, by co-operation with the Gene Committee, to erect a Presbyterian church lot just across the street opposite the Col-

Murray is beautifully situated, and supports farming section, and there is not a Southern Church within 50 miles of this place. We are convinced that so good a town as this is a Presbyterian Church, and surely we could not find a suitable place to locate one.

Fulton, Ky.

Fulton—We have bought a good brick building a fine auditorium, and well equipped school room. It is a great bargain. By the way from the Manse and Church Erection Fund has been paid for. We had a meeting of our church cleaned out the house, but it is standing and waiting for pews, pulpit, musical instruments, roof needs a coat of paint. Splendid oak capacity of 250 can be secured for $500, and for $75, but we haven't the money. It would be for Presbyterianism in this section, to be a blessing to this Church soon.

MISSISSIPPI

Tupelo—Commencing the fourth Sunday the pastor of this Church, Rev. J. A. Christie, the Church Year with a series of nine sermons with events in our Savior's life from the Entry to the Ascension. The interest in the Church grew steadily and culminated in the public worship on the thirty-first, nineteen of the number by the Session that day. We have many thanks to our courage us as we enter upon the work for the year, and one of them, which is worthy of mention interest being shown by the members of the School. This has resulted in a steady growth of school and the breaking of all former attendance records. Our congregation is co-operating in a city-wide effort under the leadership of Gypsy and is busy getting ready for the preaching of the first nineteen days in May.

The Presbytery of Central Mississippi regular spring meeting in the Presbyterian Pickens on April 9, 1929. Rev. J. W. Groves, moderator. There were thirty ministers and ruling elders present. Rev. J. F. Naylor from the Presbytery of Red River; also Rev. Fadden. He becomes pastor of the Learning churches which he had formerly been pastored. Fadden accepts call to the Churches at Indian and Hollandale. Rev. W. H. McAttee was elected North Mississippi Presbytery, and becomes pastor of Shaw and Benoit Churches. An overflowed Assembly touching the Recall of Mississippi adopted. The Presbyterial Sermon was Rev. R. E. Hough, Subject, "The Message of Rev. F. L. McFadden was chosen to preach Presbyterial Sermon on the Inspiration of the next stated meeting will be held at the University of South Carolina. E. W. F.

FASSIFERN A Select School Preparing Girls for Leading Colleges

In the Land of the Sky Small classes, individual attention. Piano, voice, violin, harmony, art, home economics. Handsome new brick gymnasium. Physical culture, horseback riding, golf, outings at Camp Greystone. For catalog, address

JOSEPH R. SEVIER, D.D., President, Box S, HENDERSONVILLE, N. C.

LYNCHBURG COLLEGE SENIOR COLLEGE FOR MEN AND WOMEN

Membership in Southern Association of Colleges

Rates Reasonable—For Catalog and full information write to

J. T. T. HUNDLEY, President

Lynchburg, Virginia

PEACE INSTITUTE Raleigh, North Carolina

OWNED by the Presbyterians of North Carolina

COURSES OFFERED: (1) College courses for first and second year work; (2) Preparatory courses; (3) Special courses in Art, Music, Home Economics and Commercial subjects.

WORK ACCEPTED BY: (1) The North Carolina State Department of Education; (2) All colleges and universities in North Carolina and by many colleges without this state.

SPECIAL FEATURES: (1) Individual attention to students; (2) Limited number of students; (3) Intimate home surroundings; (4) highly trained faculty; (5) Wholesome religious atmosphere. (6) Modern equipment.

Register Now for Fall Session of 1929-1930

For catalogue, book of views and other literature, write to William C. Pressly, President, Peace Institute, Raleigh, N. C.

Northern Presbyterians In St. Paul

The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A. met in St. Paul, Minn., on last Thursday, and elected Dr. Cleland B. McAfee, of the Chicago Seminary, Moderator. He is regarded as a liberal, and defeated Dr. Robert Dick Wilson, of Princeton Seminary, a wellknown conservative. The Assembly has appointed committees on closer relations with the Southern Presbyterian Church and other Presbyterian bodies. It also has a committee on closer relations with the Methodists, Brethren, Protestant Episcopal, and others.

The Assembly has sent down to its 242 Presbyteries a change in the book of Church Order which would permit the election of women as elders, deacons and evangelists.

The control of Princeton Seminary was up before the Assembly. This is the crux of the controversy between the conservative and liberal wings. The victory appeared to be with the liberals, though at this writing the matter is undecided.

FOR RENT

House, eight rooms, Montreat. Three room cabin near Chimney Rock.

R. L. CARPENTER
Rutherfordton, N. C.

FOR RENT

in Montreat, furnished immediately back of Auditorium close to auditorium.

W. A. MURRAY
Black Mountain, N. C.

University of South Columbia, S. C.

DR. D. M. DOUGLAS, President

Examinations for award of scholarships in the University entrance will be held at Court House Friday, July 9 a. m. Applicants must be of age.

Scholarships are vacant in the following counties: Abbeville, Barnwell, Beaufort, Charleston, Dorchester, Hampton, Lexington, McCormick, Saluda, Sumter, Union, W. York.

Applicants for scholarships write to the Committee on Scholarships for application to be returned by July 10th. Scholarships worth $100, plus term fees. Next session will be held on September 18, 1929.

SUMMER SCHOOL

June 18 to July 26,

Faculty of 53 offering many courses for teachers, supervisors and principals. Many graduate Degrees conferred at end of term. Full information upon application to Director of Summer School.

General Assembly
Montreat

(from Page One)
... on Bills and Over-
... Assembly to enjoin its ... emphasize the duty of law
... view of the widespread
... w, which the Assembly

... refused to change the
... ch and voted down the
... in office of the elders
... the local churches. Rev.
... of Oxford, Miss., con-
... change, declaring that
... n for the old law was
... the women in a congre-
... rnk, chairman of the
... the change would vio-
... y and spirituality of the
... rn it into a convention.

... in the Women's Work
... to the activities of the
... working in auxiliaries,
... that in the period of
... ng the incumbency of
... as borough as secretary,
... ted over $16,000,000 for
... rk, in their regular of-
... rthday specials. The
... ved the resignation of
... ough, who has with-
... nt of health, and unan-
... Miss Janie McGaughey
... r. The Assembly stood
... n accepting this report
... prayer by the Modera-
... , who also made fitting
... occasion of Mrs. Wins-
... ement, and Miss Mc-
... nce into office.

... was addressed by Rev.
... representative of the
... of Canada, which three
... oined the Presbyterian,
... Congregational denom-
... ination, excepting a
... Presbyterians.

Monday Afternoon

... y's fraternal delegate,
... of Greensboro, returned
... of the Associate Re-
... meeting in Memphis
... at he had delivered the
... the Assembly to the
... cordially received and
... Rev. J. H. Pressly, of ... coming to reciprocate
... o the Assembly. Mr.
... ported that a commit-
... been appointed by the
... with a similar commit-
... ssembly. This commit-
... Revs. T. H. McDill, of
... C., Oliver Johnson, of
... C., J. P. Pressly, of Due
... dge J. H. Marion, of
... Mr. Moffatt, of Atoka,

... e, Va., was chosen as
... next Assembly, the vote
... that city against Mon-

... gins, noted actuary of
... outlined the Annuity
... vered objections to it.
... t the Congregationalist,
... Baptists, the Northern
... and the Disciples have
... tion a pension plan for
... as the one proposed for
... Presbyterians. The op-
... Northern Presbyterian
... tten a satisfactory two-
... n increase in salaries re-
... of a lowering of them,
... e has also increased.

... y today declined to op-
... f organic union with all
... rches proposed by the
... scopal Church on the
... was unwise at this time.

Monday Night

... day was devoted to the ... Christian Education and
... ef, the chief topic be-
... s' Annuity Fund, which
... mended by five pre-
... es. The whole evening
... the evident concentra-
... mently on the subject in
... I. Sweets made an ad-
... he set forth his labors
... inisterial education and
... rd of the committee
... y John Stites, president
... ve Trust Company, who
... reasurer of this cause
... s. Mr. Stites took the ... press his personal esti-
... ments which was highly

... atshaw, of the National
... Y. M. C. A., with head-
... York, of which coun-
... is a member for our
... ted the relation of the
... the Church. He also spoke of his appreciation of the cooperation of Dr. Sweets.

The Assembly then launched into the discussion of the Annuity Fund. The opponents of the measure spoke at length, chief of whom were Dr. C. R.
Stribbling, and Rev. Morton Hanna, both of the Synod of Virginia, and Rev. H. F. Beaty, of the Synod of Florida. Dr. Lynn R. Walker, of the Synod of North Carolina made a strong speech in its favor.

When the Assembly voted for the Annuity Fund by a large majority, and the meeting was dismissed, Dr.
Sweets received an ovation on the successful culmination of his hopes and efforts. The committee will begin at once to hold regional conferences to obtain the support of the 80 per cent of the ministers and churches necessary to the inauguration of the plan.

Tuesday Morning

R. E. Magill, for 25 years secretary of Religious Education and Publication work, for the General Assembly with the great publication building located in Richmond, Va., was re-elected executive secretary, after a stubborn contest on the floor of the General Assembly for a change which would have made Dr. J. L. Fairley, of Wilmington, the incumbent of the office and Mr.
Magill, the treasurer and business manager. In other words, Mr. Magill's office in Richmond has been divided with two secretaries. Dr. Fairley was chosen co-ordinate secretary of Religious Education. The Assembly voted 124 to 118 on the measure.

Dr. S. L. Morris, Atlanta, the veteran secretary of Home Missions was re-elected for one year, with the expectation that he be made secretary emeritus then with suitable salary. Dr.
Homer McMillan was chosen executive secretary of Home Missions. Dr.
Egbert W. Smith, was re-elected as secretary of Foreign Missions for three years; Dr. R. C. Long as secretary of Stewardship, and Dr. J. E.
Purcell, secretary of Men's Work for the same period.

An ad interim committee to study the whole Home Mission question in the Church was appointed to consist of 16 members, one from each Synod.

The consolidation of all the agencies in one city and a central treasurer,
all in one building was rejected.

The overture to hold in abeyance the Committee of Forty-Four until the Presbyteries should endorse such a plan of work was rejected. Dr. E. T.
Thompson, of Charleston, W. Va., was re-elected chairman of this committee for another year.

Tuesday Afternoon and Night

This afternoon, Dr. Daniel Poling, president of International Christian Endeavor addressed the Assembly. Dr.
Poling is a Presbyterian minister, the pastor of Marble Collegiate Church in New York. He is popular as a radio speaker and is on the air every Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Dr. Poling pointed out the challenge young life makes to our generation. He urged the Assembly not to ignore its youth, but to fully sympathize with them, or as he stated it, take a square look at the young people, take a look with the young people, and declared that Christian Endeavor was the best way of working out this problem.

The Assembly refused to establish a separate young people's organization, but urged the use of the present methods of young people's work. The Assembly has repeatedly endorsed Christian Endeavor.

The outstanding question this afternoon was union with the United Presbyterians. Dr. W. M. McPheeters led the opposition to this union. Dr. Mc-Pheeters marshalled his arguments in a scholarly and convincing manner.

He declared the union would destroy our testimony, that Dr. Morris' report does not give us the light we need for this step. He feared the prominent position of women in the United Presbyterian Church would bring problems to us. Their view of social relations with the colored race would be difficult to adopt. Dr. McPheeters begged the Assembly to take more time and send the matter down to the Presbyteries.

Dr. Morris had already made the main speech for the union, which we have reported. The vote was 175 to 83 against deferring the question. The vote for union was slightly greater, some yielding to the apparent will of the majority.

Dr. J. H. Pressly, of Statesville, N.
C., was received as a fraternal delegate of the Associate Reformed Presbyterian Synod. He announced that five had been appointed to confer with our committee on closer relations. The former committee with Dr.

Morris as chairman was continued to confer with the A. R. P. Synod and The United Presbyterian Assembly which meets at Allegheny, Pa., June 6.
Tuesday night was devoted to Home Missions with Dr. Homer McMillan presiding. Speeches were delivered by several ministers from various sections of the Assembly.

Wednesday Morning

The General Assembly closed this morning after passing, 125 to 19, a motion to appoint a committee of nine with the Moderator, Dr. W. R.
Dobyns, of Birmingham, as chairman, to confer with similar committees from other Presbyterian bodies, and to take active steps toward organic union with them.

The step was stubbornly opposed by a minority led by Dr. W. M. Mc-Pheeters, of Columbia Seminary. Dr.
McPheeters first proposed that the whole matter be put in the hands of the 16 Synods who were to appoint the committee. This was voted down 98 to 41. When Dr. McPheeters moved the negative of the resolution, it was also defeated overwhelmingly. And when at last the Assembly reached the affirmative as offered by the committee on overtures, led by Dr. H. E.
Kirk, of Baltimore, the chairman, the enthusiasm of the Assembly leaped to tremendous bounds with the vote as recorded above, 125 to 19.

The desire was expressed by Dr.
Kirk and also by Judge W. L. Frierson, of Chattanooga, that the move toward union should lead us at last to a division of the churches of America into three or four provincial, or regional, assemblies, with a grand assembly meeting once in five years.

The report of the committee on Foreign Relations also found rugged resistance, which was again led by Dr.

McPheeters. The committee by its chairman, Rev. William Huck, of Atlanta, recommended the denial of the overtures of the Presbyteries of Knoxville, in Tennessee and West Hanover, in Virginia, which demanded the Assembly should break with the Federal Council. Dr. McPheeters, in leading the opposition to the committee's report, declared this Assembly should refuse to continue its official connection with the Federal Council because such connection was contrary to the constitution of the Church, that a majority of our churches are opposed to our connection with the council, that the leaders of the council, particularly Bishop McConnell, the president, Dr.
Parkes Cadman, the former president,
and Dr. Shaler Matthews, Chicago, were unsound, denied the deity of Jesus Christ, and the inspiration and authority of scripture. Dr. McPheeters criticized the council for its activities in political matters and because of its secret councils.

Dr. Kirk acted as leader of the right.
He said he had no great enthusiasm for the council, but that he regarded it as the best exponent for supporting the Church in its responsibility for the moral welfare of the country. It certainly was the only force we have for united effort to overcome the immoveable inertia of the people. Through the council the church could voice its protests against industrial wrongs and against immoral forces that invade young life. It gave us the opportunity "to live dangerously."

The final vote in favor of continuing with the Federal Council was 137 to 31.

On motion of Rev. D. N. Yarbro, of Chatham, Va., the Assembly resolved to meet on the fourth Thursday of May next year, and on that day every year. The Assembly adjourned to meet May 22, 1930, at Charlottesville, Virginia.

FURMAN UNIVERSITY

Greenville, S. C.

RICHARD FURMAN HALL

In the healthful, beautiful
Piedmont Section of S. C.
Strong Christian faculty. Emphasis on moral and spiritual values of life. Beautiful campus, commodious well equipped buildings. Courses leading to A. B., B. S., and LL. B.
degrees. Vigorous and successful law school. 12 Weeks
Summer School. Championship
Athletics, Glee Club, Debating etc.
For catalogue and other data write
W. J. McGLOTHLIN, Pres.

BLUE RIDGE SCHOOL FOR BOYS

Hendersonville, N. C.

A select, accredited preparatory school of high standards, resultful methods and of sound principles and ideals. Ideally located in healthful climate conducive to study.
Stress laid upon teaching correct methods of study. Junior department.
J. R. SANDIFER, Headmaster, Hendersonville, N. C.

BETTER MUSIC IN THE HOME

WORSHIP AND CONDUCT SONGS for Beginners and Primaries.
By Elizabeth McE. Shields.

Written and compiled with a view to giving to children right ideas of God and a correct interpretation of their relationship to other people. There are 113 songs and a number of selections for children in the home or church school.
The author sees the need of the godly home in which the mother sings a child's religion with her child. Price, special art binding, $1.00.

JUNIOR HYMNS AND SONGS. By Elizabeth McE. Shields.

One hundred and eighteen hymns, songs and instrumental selections for the juniors. A number of carefully chosen old hymns, and quite a few new ones written especially for this book. Price, cloth only, 50 cents.

PREMIER HYMNS

Contains many of the best of the old hymns, and a large number of new ones. Ideal for use in the home and at family prayers. Prices: Full cloth, 50c each; $40.00 per 100. Limp cloth, 30c each; $25.00 per 100.

THE PRESBYTERIAN HYMNAL

The official hymnal of our Church. A collection of beautiful and worshipful hymns, chosen for their literary or musical value. Over 500 hymns, completely classified and indexed. Prices: Music Edition—Buckram, $1.25; Morocco, $3.50; Words Edition—Cloth, 50c; Morocco, $1.50.

Order from

PRESBYTERIAN COMMITTEE OF PUBLICATION
Richmond, Va.

STORY

RAINBOW, THE RUG-WEAVER

Laura Shoemaker

She sat on the bench in front of the great rug frame, putting the strands of bright colored yarns in and out of the warp, knotting them and cutting off the ends with a short, sharp knife. Dziadzan (which is the Armenian word for rainbow) was only eleven years old, but she had learned to work skillfully with her nimble fingers, so that she did her work faster and better than the three older girls at the same bench. Sometimes when the head worker came along to inspect the work she gave Rainbow special praise.

But somehow this afternoon even that praise did not make the work easier. How Rainbow's back ached as she sat there on that hard bench! And her arms! Why should girls her age have to sit there all day tying knots until it seemed impossible to go on? Why couldn't they work part of the day and have some time for rest? It did not seem right that they should be shut away all day from the sunshine. How she would like to run away from it all! If only she could find her father and mother and they could be together again in the old home!

For Rainbow had not always been in the rug factory. Two years before it was all so different. The memory of those days was so pleasant that she loved to think of them. She was with her father and mother and the brothers and sisters then. Her father had been educated in the college at Harpoot, and later had become the physician in this city of Elgin, four days' journey from Harpoot. He was determined that his children, too, should have an education, the best he could give them. Rainbow's oldest sister had been sent to Harpoot, and Rainbow was in the mission school in Elgin with many other Armenian girls of her own age.

But one day in 1915, it all came to an end. In the morning she went to the market-place with her father. What crowds were there! Soldiers were in the streets. They seemed to be driving the people into groups, and she saw some of their own neighbors being rudely jostled along with the others. She never knew quite what happened, but in the confusion her father was seized roughly by the arm and ordered to stand with one of these groups of men. How sad he looked as he told her to hurry home to her mother! She obeyed, but as she ran home she turned once and saw her kind-faced father marching away with the others, the soldiers on guard. With tears streaming down her face she ran home to tell her mother. But the house was open. A broken furniture and lay on the floor. Her children were gone. The doorway almost to cry. What could it mean?

It was then that Fatima, a woman who lived near by, came into her home. It was as if Rainbow had been thankful for its protection. Many a Turk those days felt that the officials were too cruel to them and so did what he could. Armenian neighbors. Rainbow could be a help to her. She was a healthy girl with her fingers. She the rug factory which of this Turkish family,

Memories of these days in Rainbow's mind this afternoon worked away at the rug. She not keep her mind on the times her knife dropped from her limp hand for the day's end.

Then she heard a voice that brought back pleasant memories, as if she were in the door one of the teachers from the girls' school who had often been in the days before her father were sent away.

Rainbow jumped up. She ran to the American teacher. Clinging to her, she began to cry. The teacher patted her around Rainbow and led her. They crossed the street and went to the house and sat down in the porch for a long talk. How good it was for Rainbow to tell her troubles to a friend! And what a comfort the missionary was!

"I know there are days when you wonder if you will ever see me again," she said. Rainbow came closer to her. "I know, Rainbow, I can learn a lesson from your life. At first you tie in the knots the long uneven ends. Then you think pretty about the work and the ends are combined, and the result is your pattern. Then the hands go along, with her iron cutting down the knots and cutting off the ugly ends, and there you have a pretty pattern, just what you need. Rainbow, God is a pattern maker. He has a pattern for each thing. The times when we are things are hard are like the ends of yarn, but behind the times there is the bright day all the unhappy times away and you will see the pattern. Will you try to think of a pattern and the bright days are sure to come? And do not forget the unhappy days Rainbow promised, and the day.

Rainbow's promise made her a true rug-weaver. She was truly, for she kept to her life pattern as she wove the rug. Every time the needle cut from her work she thought of what the tea was about the unhappiness of

EUROPE

Educational Tours
$275.00 up

Holy Land

June 18 to Sept. 10
84 Days $850.00

PERSONALLY CONDUCTED
Write today for Illustrated Booklets
THE WICKER TOURS
Richmond : : Virginia

COME TO DRAUGHON'S

We are better equipped than ever to train young women and men for better positions. Over 40 years experience is behind us. Our school is better than ever. All the commercial branches taught. Write us at once for catalog.

DRAUGHON'S BUSINESS COLLEGE
Knoxville Tennessee

7-Piece Jade Green Ice-Tea Set 3 COUPONS and 59c

Luzianne Guarantee

If after using the entire contents of a can of Luzianne (according to directions) you are not satisfied in every respect, your grocer will refund the money you paid for it.

When the hot days arrive, we know of nothing that brings more comfort and enjoyment than good ice tea or ice coffee.

For that reason Luzianne has arranged to furnish to all customers desiring it, a complete 7-piece Ice Tea Set at wholesale cost.

You can see by the picture above what a good-looking set it is; jade green in color and of corded art glass. It would cost at least $2.25 if you purchased it from a retail store, but the Luzianne way it will cost you only 59c.

You can obtain this set from your grocer—or by mail. Clip the coupon below NOW and get your set at once.

Luzianne has become the world's largest selling New Orleans coffee because of its superior flavor and bouquet.

Luzianne may be purchased in 3-lb pails or in 1-lb tins. It is never sold in paper packages as its delicious flavor would be lost if it were allowed to be exposed in this way.

You will prefer Luzianne Coffee if you try it. Read our Guarantee.

Luzianne Coffee 100% Good

Illustration of Luzianne Dripper

LUZIANNE DRIPPER

for

3 Luzianne Coupons and 69c

The best and most delicious way to make coffee is by dripping and filtering the coffee.

Knowing this we have made arrangements to furnish our customers with a combination dripper and filter at a very low price.

The Luzianne Dripper and Filter is endorsed by Doctors, Cooking Schools and famous Universities.

The filter takes the tannin out of the coffee but leaves all the flavor in.

It is not only the most healthful way to make coffee, but it makes the coffee more delicious.

In each pail of Luzianne there are three coupons. Send them to us with 69c and we will send you postpaid a Luzianne Dripper and Filter

Wm. S. Ray & Co. Inc.

640 Magazine Street

New Orleans, La.

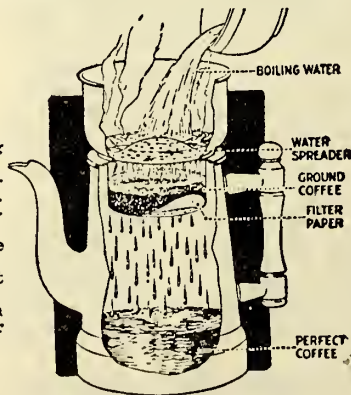

Illustration showing how Dripper fits in your coffee pot

MAIL THIS COUPON

Mark X alongside the premium you want.

Ice Tea Set.....

Luzianne Dripper.....

To obtain one of the beautiful Ice Tea Sets or one of the wonderful Luzianne Drippers SEE YOUR GROCER. If he cannot supply you send the coupons and 59 cents for the Ice Tea Set or the coupons and 69 cents for the Luzianne Dripper, direct to us. We will send you the premium without further cost to you.

Name.....

Address.....

City.....

Nearest Grocer.....

QUEENS COLLEGE

A High Grade Institute of Education of Women
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

"The College With the Thorough in its instruction in its Christian influence. Aim: The development of womanhood prepared for service."

Curriculum: Embraces of preparation for modern opportunities and demands of life; CHRISTIANITY FOR CHRISTIAN SERVICE.

Climatic conditions unexcelled. Social and Religious privileges the attractiveness of the institution.

Rates exceedingly reasonable. For Catalogue Write to

THE PRESIDENT
Box 300, Charlotte, N. C.

OTTAGE FOR RENT

ge, near lake and au-
tely furnished to ac-
nily of six or eight.
ntire season. Rev. J. H.
Mountain, N. C.

TANDARDS

oupled with exception-for college social life ivities afford our stu-
nded business educaour 74-page catalogue

NATIONAL BUSINESS COLLEGE
NOKE, VA.

ON WANTED

ompanion to one who ices of a nurse. Ref-
ged. Address "Nurse," Wilmington, N. C.

Folk's Friend

t many call it for
and vigor into old rich, red blood into sound flesh on old
nk with each meal.

ar Ale

ative Aromatics With eral Water & Ginger

ke it for assisting ive organs to con-
ood into rich blood
flesh.

end Your Vacation at Glade Valley

ty rooms, running water, electric lights, five acre in the heart of the Blue Ridge. Quiet and restful. al scenery. Rates $10 per week. Special rates for

C. W. ERVIN, Manager

ay County

Glade Valley, N. C.

VACATION TRIPS

Rail and Motor
Tours

In the Southern Appalachian Mountains

In especially arranged rail and motor tours, the Southern Railway provides a
new vacation recreation, combining rail
and motor transportation for the individual and for parties, into the mountain
sections of Virginia, North Carolina,
Eastern Tennessee and North Georgia.

These tours will take you adventuring
by rail and motor into regions of scenic beauty and historic interest. Each trip
begins and ends with a railway journey,
in which you enjoy the speed and comfort of rail travel. The motor trips are over established State highways.

For booklets, information and rates,
call on Ticket Agents.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

hone-er nder uthern chian ains
e now ou to it

of her life some day just as the uneven ends were cut from the rug. So she worked busily and waited for the fulfillment of her new hope.

But there came times when the hope faded. One night she went home from the day's work so tired that she did not want to move—not even to get her simple supper of boiled grain and goat's milk. And so she sat supperless in the doorway, thinking of the promise made to her teacher that afternoon months ago when they sat in this same place.

"Rainbow, are you out there," called Fatima. Rainbow did not answer. In a few minutes Fatima called to her,
"Rainbow, get up and come in her and help me with the supper. I'll begin to think that you are lazy if you sit there like that when there is work to be done."

Rainbow looked at the woman and said, "Please, let me stay here. I am too tired to do another thing."

Fatima came out to the door, but when she saw Rainbow's face she went back into the house.

Then Rainbow heard Fatima and Ahmet talking in low tones. She heard Ahmet saying, "I heard today that there is a doctor in town. I do not know where he came from, but you ought to take her to him."

Rainbow jumped up. "I am not sick," she said to herself. "I do not need a doctor." So she hurried in to help with the supper. But she was scarcely inside the door when she fell over; her knees refused to hold her up.

It was Ahmet who took her to the doctor. They had to wait a long time before Rainbow's turn came. When they went in the doctor was putting away some instruments. He turned.

"Rainbow!" he cried, and in a minute he had his little girl close to him.
"Why, Rainbow, they told me that you had been sent into the desert."

Rainbow laughed and cried as she nestled close in her father's arms and told her story, then listened to his. It seemed that her father had been so useful as a doctor that he had not been killed but had instead been allowed more and more freedom. At last he had been set free to work in his own city where there were many wounded soldiers, hundreds of sick people and no doctor. He had hunted everywhere for his family, but everywhere he was told the same thing—that they had gone into the desert. And now here was Rainbow. Her father drew her closer.

"Overworked and underfed," he said sadly. "But we'll change all that won't we, my Rainbow?"

Rainbow smiled. "Father," she said,
"the good times were a long time coming, but they are here now, aren't they? The American teacher said they would surely come."—The Baptist.

RHODESIAN ROPSI

Ropsi was servant to Major Bunning on his farm in Southern Rhodesia.
Lambi was cook, Ropsi was a happy boy; he was very keen. He knew that the great Lambi who kept him in such good order and who was king of the kitchen was going to be trained as teacher. Had not Lambi told him in a moment of confidence that the Salvation Army was putting eight pounds towards his college course if he, Lambi, got together another eight? And the necessary sum of money was very nearly complete.

"I want to be cook when Lambi gone, please, sir," Ropsi said, with his heart beating madly with nervousness, to his master one morning.

"But you're only a piccaninny," good temperedly replied Major Bunning, looking at the eager-faced lad. "How can one so young as you cook?"

"Please, sir, I have watched Lambi all the time. Only Lambi never let me
try. He think I spoil things. Me no!"

"Well, we'll see," said Major Bunning, and Ropsi went away feeling far from sure. He ran out into the sunshine down to the encampment of huts where the servants and the farm workers lived, and he thought to himself anxiously, "Only plan is to get Lambi away for a bit and show them what I can do."

So Ropsi considered and thought.
And about dinner time that evening, when the joint was in the oven, he said to Lambi, the tall, sharp-faced youth, when even then was muttering to himself in the English he was so crazy to learn:

"I have present for Lambi. 'Tis in

King College for Men

Bristol, Tennessee

Stonewall Jackson College

FOR WOMEN

Abingdon, Va., Box A

Jointly Controlled by Montgomery
Presbytery

Affiliated Colleges of the Synod of Appalachia.

King College offers four year courses
leading to Degrees of Bachelor of Arts
and Bachelor of Sciences — a small
Christian College — Faculty of eleven
Christian gentlemen of thorough training and practical experience. Expenses reasonable.

Stonewall Jackson College. Accredited Junior College for young women, in heart of healthful Virginia mountains. Two years high school, two years college. Music, art, home economics, secretarial course, physical room with bath. All outdoor sports.
Tennis. Nine hole golf course on fifty-two acre campus. Homelike life.
Write for catalogue.

Always Safe

When your Children Cry
for It

Here's relief and comfort for crying, fretful, feverish babies or children that you don't need to urge or command them to take. They love the delicious taste of Fletcher's Castoria. Your doctor will tell you it's absolutely safe, so you can give it as freely and as often as needed to keep your children happy and well. A few drops is all it takes to quiet fretful, feverish, colicky babies; relieve their biliousness, gas on stomach, constipation, etc.; soothe them to sleep in a jiffy. For like disorders in older children, you simply use a little larger dose of the same reliable Fletcher's Castoria. Don't use grown-folks' medicine; with babies or children, specialists say. Ninety per cent.
of them recommend Fletcher's Castoria; and thirty years of steadily increasing popularity proves they're right. To protect you from imitations, the Fletcher signature is on every bottle of genuine Fletcher's Castoria.

MOST people depend on Bayer Aspirin to make short work of headaches, but did you know it's just as effective in the worse pains from neuralgia or neuritis? Rheumatic pains, too. Don't suffer when Bayer Aspirin can bring complete comfort without delay, and without harm; it does not affect the heart.
In every package of genuine Bayer Aspirin are proven directions with which everyone should be familiar, for they can spare much less suffering.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

FOR DIAMONDS, WATCHES AND SILVERWARE

Write to
JAMES ALLEN AND CO.
Jewelers since 1855
285 King St. Charleston, S. C.
Catalog on request

The NORTH CAROLINA COLLEGE for WOMEN

An A-1 grade college maintained by the State of North Carolina for the education of its young women.

Liberal courses leading to the usual degrees in Arts, Science and Music.

Equipment modern, including furnished dormitories, library, laboratories, literary society halls, athletic grounds, etc.

Fall term begins in September. Spring term in February, Summer term in June.

For catalog and other information, address
JULIUS I. FOUST, President
GREENSBORO, N. C.

~the truth about Lightning

Amazing facts about nature's most terrible destroyer of life and property. Tells the danger spots during storms; how to protect your property against lightning; and scores of other valuable facts everyone should know. Compiled by the famous Kretzer System experts, who have coped with lightning successfully for many years. Every careful man protects his family and property. Why not be SAFE? A copy of this unusual book will be sent you free on request. Supply limited. Write today.

ST. LOUIS LIGHTNING ROD CO.
Trudeau & DeKalb Sts., Box D, St. Louis, Mo.

FOR RENT

For the months of June and July, furnished cottage at Montreat. Eight rooms and 2 baths. Modern and comfortable. Well located. Address P. O. Box 355, Rock Hill, South Carolina.

my hut. Four beautiful screw nails."

Lambi's eyes brightened. The Rhodensian native loves what we might call "junk," and many hoard it in their huts.

"You go see; I watch him," said Ropsi, nodding towards the oven.

And Lambi went. Only to find that another boy had claimed the set of screws which Ropsi had discovered, bent and useless, thrown down near a fence. Lambi stayed to have an argument over it, the clock struck one, and it was Ropsi who served the lunch, dished up, and finished with some frosted cherries. His mistress praised it, smiling. Lambi came racing in just when the meal was over, the screws safe in his linen coat pocket. Ropsi said nothing.

"Shall we try him?" said Major Bunning to Mrs. Bunning a little later. "He's only sixteen."

"I'm afraid he would muddle everything. It's true he did the pudding very nicely. But it would be a risk. We must get an older man."

Ropsi overheard. He searched about him for another plan. He was determined to be king of the kitchen; he so loved the idea of being cook that he could not give it up. He was sure he could make an omelette; he had learned how to do it from the cookery book. And that very evening, it was rumored, a wagon would come up from the station, twenty miles off, bearing quantities of wire fencing that Major Bunning had ordered from England. Lambi had never seen wire fencing; he loved anything new. If only it came at supper time!

Ropsi, full of hope, reconnoitered from the verandah, and just at seven the wagon came into sight through the blue, misty evening.

"See, Lambi! Here comes the wonderful wire-fencing that the master has bought. They say it is marvelous; it unfolds, it unwinds round a great reel. Do you go and see, and I will look after the cooking."

"Master may be late; he may go and receive it," said tall Lambi, who had actually got the frying-pan in his hand.

"He may," said Ropsi, hoping that Major Bunning was still in his evening bath.

"For a moment only, then," said Lambi, and ran out of the kitchen. Ropsi stood there wondering what to do. Would anything go wrong; would his master and mistress really go out to see the fencing, or could he serve supper immediately?

He decided in his agitation that he would make an omelette and serve it.

He had studied this carefully. Ropsi was very exact, and in four minutes a delicious dish stood on the table, and he caught Major and Mrs. Bunning in the very act of passing through the hall to go out.

"Oh, please, sir, have supper first!

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE
DECATUR, GA.

Strict entrance requirements, but few failures after admission. S. expensive, but cheap in comparison with advantages offered. No lo pected, but also none without capacity to enjoy almost unlimited go For details as to admission, scholarship aid, etc address

PRESIDENT J. R. McCAIN
Box S

ERSKINE COLLEGE

Founded 1839

A college of Liberal Arts offering a standard four year co ing to Bachelor of Arts Degree.

A Christian College devoted to the training of young young women for the larger responsibilities of life.

Reasonable costs, healthful surroundings; congenial env A grade Recognition.

Next session opens September 12.

For Catalogue address
R. C. GRIER, President or R. L. ROBINSON, Vice-President
DUE WEST, S. C.

DAVIDSON COLLEGE

Extract from letter of April 16, 1929:

"I am much gratified at the work done there so far by my two so wish to send them back next fall.

"In this connection, I desire to express my high opinion of the Colle only from past observation but now from a more direct and personal with it by reason of the attendance of my boys there during this year with the enlarged facilities at hand I trust there lies ahead an even field of usefulness."

Davidson meets the expectation of both parents and students.
For catalog address

F. W. Hengeveld, Registrar,
Room 113, Chambers Building,
Davidson, N. C.

SUMMER SCHOOL JUNE 10-JULY 19

Greensboro College

A Standard College for Women. Member of Association of C and Secondary Schools of the Southern States. The old chartered college for women in the state. Chartered 18

Confers the Degree of A. B. in the literary depart- ment and B.M. in the music department.

In addition to the regular classical course, special attention is called departments of Home Economics, Art, including Industrial and Con Art, Spoken English and Dramatic Art, Education, Sunday School Training, Piano Pedagogy, and to the complete School of Music.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION, APPLY TO
SAMUEL B. TURRENTINE, President, GREENSBORO

MEREDITH COLLEGE

For YOUNG WOMEN

STANDARD COURSES IN ARTS AND SCIENCES, IN M IN ART, IN HOME ECONOMICS

Confers the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Music. Delig vironment on a high plateau on the western boundary of North Carolina City.

Room reservations are now being made for session 1929-30.
For catalogue or further information write

CHAS. E. BREWER, President
Raleigh, N. C.

HIGH POINT COLLEGE

A Coeducational Christian College in Piedmont Carolina
A COEDUCATIONAL CHRISTIAN COLLEGE IN PIEDMONT CARO
New buildings, modern and convenient. Strong faculty. Ten courses le the A. B. and B. S. Degrees; grouped about such major subjects as Engl tory, Greek, Latin, Mathematics, etc. All graduates from accredited high admitted to the freshman class without examination. For catalog and fu formation write to Dr. R. M. Andrews, President, High Point, N. C.

KILLS—Flies—Mosquitoes—Bedbugs—Roaches—Moths—Ants—Fleas
Waterbugs—Crickets and many other insects

Write for educational booklet, McCormick & Co., Baltimore, Md.

Bee Brand INSECT POWDER or Liquid Spray

If your dealer cannot furnish, we will supply direct by Parcel Post at regular prices

Liquid—50c, 75c and $1.25. Gun—30c
Powder—10c, 25c, 50c and $1.00
Gun—25c

DANVILLE MILITARY
Danville, Virg

Owned and controlled of Virginia.
Fully accredited by agencies.

The aim is Christian acter and citizenship. Charges $600 per sessi School opens Septemb Ask for Cata

COL. W. M. KEMI

Direct From Mill To You

TERNS in new s at Mill Prices.
consumer selling
u 1/4 to 1/3.

Prints
Bedspreads
Pillow Tubing
Wide Sheeting
Marquisettes
Draperies, etc.

amples

List on cut cloth and pay pt ship-faction

Save 1/4 to 1/3

IAN MILL STORE
A, Greenville, S. C.

Ropsi has made you an omelette."
The boy's radiant face, the sight of the smoking, creamy omelette on its silver dish, decided the kind-hearted master and mistress.
"How delightful, Ropsi! Lambi never will allow us to have omelette; of course, we must eat it at once."
Ten minutes later: "Ropsi, it's delicious." Then, as he grinned with joy: "This settles it. You must be our cook."
And so Ropsi became the proud, efficient, most contented cook of the Bunnings. Mrs. Bunning told me the story herself. You can find the moral yourself. As for Lambi, he is doing very well at college, and has got up already to Standard Two in English.

A Texas paper comments as follows: "The preacher has a great time. If his hair is gray, he is too old. If he is a young man, he hasn't had experience. If he has ten children, he has too many; if he has none, he isn't setting a good example. If his wife sings in the choir, she is presuming; if she doesn't, she isn't interested in her husband's work. If a preacher reads from notes, he is a bore; if he speaks extemporaneously, he isn't deep enough. If he stays at home in his study, he doesn't mix enough with the people; if he is seen around the streets, he ought to be at home getting up a good sermon. If he calls on some poor family, he is playing to the grandstand; if he calls at the home of the wealthy, he is an aristocrat. Whatever he does, someone could have told him how to do better."—The Churchman.

HERE IS A TASK

To be honest, to be kind, to earn a little, and to spend a little less, to make upon the whole a family happier for his presence, to renounce when that shall be necessary and not to be embittered, to keep a few friends, but these without capitulation; above all, on the same condition, to keep friends with himself: here is a task for all a man has of fortitude and delicacy. — R. L. Stevenson.

The petty cares, the minute anxieties, the infinite littles which go to make up the sum of human experience, like the invisible granules of powder, give the last and highest polish to a character.—Wm. Matthews.

NISBET LODGE, MONTREAT, NORTH CAROLINA

On same road and two short blocks from Auditorium opens for the season May 15th.

CLEMSON COLLEGE SCHOLARSHIP EXAMINATION

Competitive examinations for the award of vacant scholarships in Clemson College will be held on Friday, July 12, 1929, beginning at 9 a. m. by each County Superintendent of Education. These scholarships will be open to young men sixteen years of age or over, who desire to pursue courses in Agriculture or Textiles. Scholarships are awarded by the State Board of Education on the recommendation of the State Board of Public Welfare.

These examinations include English, Algebra, Geometry, and History and are based on the State High School curriculum. Applicants for Agricultural Scholarships are also examined on Agriculture.

Persons interested should write the Registrar for information and application blanks before the time of the examinations. Successful applicants must meet fully the requirements for admission.

Each scholarship is worth $100.00 and free tuition, which is $40.00 additional. Scholarships are open only to residents of South Carolina.

For further information write—

THE REGISTRAR

Clemson College, S. C.

ORIENT FLOUR
Its Whiteness Denotes Its Purity
MOUNTAIN CITY MILL CO., CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

Good-bye, Flies and Mosquitoes!

Unless you're a Flit user, you have no idea how soon you can rid your home of every fly and mosquito. Flit kills quicker, and is easier to use, in the handy Flit sprayer. Spray into cracks and crannies to kill roaches, bed bugs, ants. Flit vapor does not stain. Try the quicker Flit method today!

FLIT

© 1929 Stanco Inc.

but Large

enrollment but com-equipment and service,
eals and tremendous
e for good.

Presbyterian College
Clinton, S. C.

LANCE

LS, CARBUNCLES
ES AND ULCERS

DR. CALDWELL
AGED IN 47 YEARS PRACTICE

watched the results of r 47 years, and believed how careful people are of et and exercise, constipa-from time to time. Of e, then, is how to treat es. Dr. Caldwell always getting as close to nature ce his remedy for consti-as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup
ild vegetable compound.
en the system and is not Syrup Pepsin is pleasantangsters love it.

l did not approve of and purges. He did not ere good for anybody's practice of 47 years he y reason for their use when ill empty the bowels just ta day go by without a nt. Do not sit and hope, nearest druggist and get erous bottles of Dr. Cald-pepsin, or write "Syrup

BB, Monticello, Illinois,
ittle.

The Collegiate School for Girls
On Historic Monument Avenue
RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

A day and boarding school under the management of
The Presbyterian League of Richmond, Virginia
College Preparatory and General Courses
Accredited by the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges
Fifteenth Session opens September 19, 1929
MISS VAN GREENLEAF
Head of the School

BELK'S
NEW FURNITURE DEPT.

We have opened to the people of the Carolinas a most modern Furniture Department on our fourth floor, featuring a wide assortment of fine furniture for the home as well as newest novelty furniture.

On this same floor is located our Picture and mirror rooms, also china-ware, glass-ware and toys.

A visit to this floor will be both pleasurable and profitable.

Belk Brothers Co.
Charlotte, N. C.

THE RIGHT WAY TO TRAVEL
 is by train. The safest. Most comfortable. Most reliable. Costs less. Inquire of Ticket Agents regarding greatly reduced fares for short trips.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Church and Sunday School Furniture

Send For Special Catalogue
THE SOUTHERN DESK COMPANY
 Hickory, N. C.

LITTLE FOLKS For their frequent bumps, burns, bruises, cuts and skin troubles. :: ::
 — use —

GRAY'S OINTMENT

At all drug stores. For free sample write
 W. F. Gray & Co., 724 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Nervous Women Praise Capudine

Delicately poised women who suffer from high nerve strain and nervous pains, such as periodic pains, headache and pains in the back and sides are high in their praise of Capudine because it quickly soothes the tense nerves and relieves the pain.

Being liquid, Capudine acts almost instantly,—does not upset the stomach. Sold by druggists in 30c and 60c sizes. (adv.)

YOUR CHURCH deserves a beautiful exterior in harmony with its spirit of culture and worship. Let us suggest appropriate shrubbery.

THE HOWARD-HICKORY CO., Hickory, N. C.
 Local Representatives Wanted, especially to sell fruit trees.
 Landscape Gardeners and Nurserymen

Piles and other Rectal diseases cured without pain or surgery. No hospital detention. Write to Dr. W. R. Register, 63 No. Broad Street, Atlanta, Georgia, for free book. Hundreds of cured patients.

Stop HEADACHE with STANBACK

10¢ & 25¢

6 6 6

is a Prescription for
Colds, Grippe, Flu, Dengue, Bilious Fever and Malaria.

It is the most speedy remedy known.

WEAK EYES are strengthened and relieved by Dickey's old reliable eye water. In use over half a century. Relieves sore eyes from gnats and dust. Doesn't hurt. In red folding box at all good stores or by mail 25c.

Dickey Drug Co. Bristol, Virginia

PHYSICAL AND NERVOUS FORCE

You can overcome that spring time "tired" feeling and build up buoyant health and energy with

Yerke's Palatable Extract Cod Liver Oil

At All Leading Druggists
YERKES CHEMICAL CO., Winston-Salem, N. C.

S P A R K L E S

Schoolmaster — "How it is you've written only ten lines on milk when the others have done pages?"
 Pupil—"I wrote mine on condensed milk, sir."—Passing Show.

Chesterton says, "It is considerably cheaper to sit in a meadow and see motors go by than to sit in a motor and see meadows go by."

The men need not be frightened, remarks Lady Astor. We do not ask for superiority; we have always had that. We only want equality.

"Doesn't he ever take advice?" "Occasionally, when nobody is looking."—New Haven Register.

"Unlucky ! Say, if I was starving to death and there was a shower of soup I'd be standing there with a fork in my hand."—Oregon Orange Owl.

Customer—"I don't like these pictures. They don't do me justice."
 Photographer — "Justice? Lady, what you want is mercy."—Judge.

The following is an authentic question and answer from an examination, not far away, in English literature:
 "Who was Dr. Samuel Johnson?"
 "He was the translator of Virgil's Adenoid." — "The Nomad," Boston Transcript.

"So your new job makes you independent?"
 "Surely, I get here any time I want before eight, and leave just when I please after five."—Christian Science Monitor.

A Hint for Preachers
 Mother—"Now, Willie, we are going to have the minister here to dinner, and you must not leave the table until the minister is through eating."
 Willie—"Well, the minister eats faster than he preaches, doesn't he, mom?"
 —New Bedford (Mass.) Evening Standard.

Bank President—"But why do you want to work in a bank?"
 Boy—"I believe there's money in it."
 —Ex.

It's mother's fault my pocket is so small:
 Wif two frogs there, a turtle won't go in at all.—Youth's Companion.

Stude—"And poor Harry was killed by a revolving crane."
 Englishman—"My word! what fierce birds you have in America."—Ex.

PUZZLE ANSWERS

SUBTRACTIONS—1. Live-Lie. 2. Maxim-Main. 3. Rome-Roe. 4. Slight-Sight. 5. Fact-Fat. 6. Halve-Hale.

INSECT DIAGONALS

1
 L-inden
 B-O-ston
 Do-C-tor
 Aug-U-st
 Prai-S-e
 Carpe-T

2
 S-almon
 S-P-ring
 Fr-I-day
 Mai-D-en
 Bord-E-r
 Silve-R

Mexican Heat Powder

Immediately relieves Prickly Heat, Nettle Rash, Diaper Rash, Tired, Sore and Blistered Feet. Sunburn, all Skin Irritations. At your Druggists

Chicora College for Women
 The Presbyterian College of South Carolina

Standard College Courses Large, Strong Faculty
 Beautiful Grounds Ideal Surroundings
 Healthful Climate Moderate Rates

For Catalog and Information, Address

S. C. Byrd, D.D., LL.D., President, Columbia,

FORTY-SIX YEARS CONTINUOUS SERVICE WITHOUT A LOSS ON ANY LOAN

We offer you a safe, tax-free investment for your regular weekly or monthly savings and your lump sum. Write for particulars.

ASSETS OVER $8,800,000.00

The Mutual Building and Loan Association

Established 1881 CHARLOTTE

If In Doubt, Take B. & L. Shares

You will earn the highest interest rate on your savings consistent with perfect safety, and pay no tax on savings. Shares cost twenty-five cents per week, usually mature in 333 weeks. Net you 6 1-2 per cent maturity.

Series Open in January, April, July and October

Mechanics Perpetual Building & Loan Association

Established 1853

18 E. Fourth St. Charlotte

THE WINTHROP DESK, $75

The Governor Winthrop desk has come down to us from the very earliest beginning of America. In the one shown here every detail has been copied minutely. It is made in Grand Rapids which is an assurance of its fine quality. Others, varying in size from $70 to $145.

W.T. McCoy & Co.
 Home Furnishers
 423-425 SOUTH TRYON STREET
 CHARLOTTE, N. C.

For the Future

Are you making ready share in the opportunity which increasing prosperity will bring?

A Reserve Fund Banked Will Help

Charlotte National Bank
 Resources Over $5,000,000.00

"National Bank Safety For Savings"

C. E. Convention At Montreat

The North Carolina Christian Endeavor Convention will meet at Montreat this year. The convention will start Wednesday, June 26th, and will last through Saturday, June 29th. This year the Endeavorers have the privilege of using the entire Assembly grounds of the Southern Presbyterian Church at Montreat. The Alba Hotel will be the headquarters of the delegates. The rates will be $2.25 without bath and $2.75 with bath, meals included, two in a room.

The Endeavorers of North Carolina will enjoy a great convention with a fine instructive program. They will have special periods for recreation and free use of the entire grounds. This includes a large lake for bathing and boating; tennis and volley ball courts, etc. The endeavorers will have the privilege of staying over Sunday if desired.

Reduced railroad rates of approximately one-half fare will be available for tickets purchased, and used on June 24 or 25. The tickets will be good for 20 days return.

Registrations must be made in advance. Seniors $1.00, others 50c. Send cards and fees to Miss Gladys Routh, Box 1027, Greensboro, N. C.

For further in formation about the convention, write Mr. Roy P. Barber, Greensboro, N. C.

The Stewart Family And Union Seminary

Among the loyal and valued friends of Union Seminary, also good neighbors of the seminary for many years, have been the members of the Stewart family, the Rev. J. Calvin Stuart, D.D., and his sisters, Mrs. M. W. Gilliam and Mrs. J. J. Jamieson. Before his death some years ago Dr. Stewart presented to the Seminary a large and handsome bookcase filled with useful and popular literature. This excellent collection of books was placed in the Social room of Richmond Hall for the ready access of students to it. Mrs. Gilliam, who died recently, directed that a large part of her valuable and well selected library, covering a wide range of subjects, be also given to the seminary. All of these, with the exception of some theological books placed in the library of the seminary, have been placed with Dr. Stewart's gift in the Social room. With the books were also given the containing book-cases. This doubled gift has put within easy reach of the students a rich and helpful library of history, encyclopaedia, general literature and good fiction. Mrs. Jamieson gave valuable assistance in having Mrs. Gilliam's wishes carried into immediate effect.

Mrs. Gilliam, in her will, also devised to the seminary the sum of ten thousand dollars for general endowment purposes, which will be known as the Gilliam Endowment Fund.

Far above even the rich value of these gifts the Seminary cherishes the generous friendship of these beloved neighbors, whose loving thought of it will be held in grateful memory.

CONTINUATIONS FROM PAGE ONE

MECKLENBURG Y. P. CONFERENCE

Program and Speakers

A fine program has been arranged, and in addition to the recreations of the lake and the woods, religious exercises will be conducted during the day and evening, and studies will be led by outstanding leaders of the Presbytery. The whole program and the management of the conference is in the charge of Rev. E. A. Dillard, pastor of Tenth Avenue Presbyterian Church, who is chairman of the sub-committee of Young People's Work in the Presbytery. A Bible hour will be under the leadership of Rev. W. B. McIlwaine, D.D., pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church. Rev. W. B. S. Chandler, of the First Presbyterian Church, Monroe, will teach a class on history of the Church. George M. Chenot, Religious Work Director in Tenth Avenue Church will have charge of music in the conference, and will give instruction in sacred music and choir methods. Mr. Chenot is himself an accomplished singer and musician. Inspirational addresses will be given by Rev. Edgar G. Gammon, pastor of the Myers Park Presbyterian Church. Dr. Gammon is much in demand for such addresses at conferences.

Claude T. Carr, North Carolina Synod's Director of Religious Education, will also have a class in Sunday School work.

Guidance of the Conference

The whole conference will be under the control of Rev. E. A. Dillard, and all fees should be sent to him in order to register for the conference. His address is 306 Crescent Avenue, Charlotte. Cards may be obtained from pastors of local churches in the Presbytery, and they should be used in making reservations.

Mrs. R. W. Mitchell, of Charlotte, will be head chaperone of the girls who are members of the conference, and she will be assisted by Mrs. E. A. Dillard, wife of the manager of the conference, and by Miss Mary Howard Turlington, who is church secretary and pastor's assistant in Myers Park Presbyterian Church.

PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE CLOSES 48TH YEAR

naugh of Columbia for the library; $400 from Mrs. P. A. Emanuel of Aiken for the student loan fund; the handsome Springs swimming pool, given by Leroy Springs; $26,000 from citizens of Clinton toward liquidation of the college debt, with prospects that the amount raised will total $50,000; a ministerial scholarship by the C. N. Alexander Bible class of the Clover Presbyterian Church; $4,845 from the will of Dr. L. D. Mason of Brooklyn for the "Fannie Witherspoon Mason Memorial," which is a ministerial scholarship fund (Mrs. Mason was a South Carolinian, being before marriage Miss Fannie Witherspoon of York); and last, but not least by any means, the president's home, which was given by John H. Young of Clinton as the "George W. Young Memorial." This handsome residence faces the campus, and is now occupied by the president and his family.

The benediction was by the Rev. G. G. Mayes, of Winnsboro.

After the exercises, a delightful dinner was served at the college dining hall under the capable direction of Mrs. Hunter. A number of visitors enjoyed this hospitality.

QUEENS ENDS SESSION OF 1929

erary society meetings featuring the day.

The outstanding event was the luncheon, held in the college dining-room, and attended by over 200 friends and alumnae of the institution. Announcement of new officers of the alumnae association was made as follows: honorary president, Miss Lily Long; honorary vice-president, Mrs. John R. Murphy; president, Mrs. L. E. Brown; vice-president, Mrs. Lee Rutzler; secretary, Miss Mary Foreman; corresponding secretary, Miss Ophelia Hartt; recording secretary; Miss Clarie Yates, and treasurer, Miss Fay Ross Dwelle.

In making annual report to the alumnae of the college at the luncheon, Dr. W. H. Frazer, president of the institution, said that only $59,650.04 remains to be raised in the college's $400,000 endowment campaign and expressed the belief that this will be secured before time for school opening next fall. He praised most highly Mrs. C. C. Hook, member of the board of trustees of the college and chairman of the endowment campaign, who with the aid of her co-workers raised $49,535.50 during the 1929 campaign.

Mrs. Hook was presented with a gift from the association as a token of the appreciation felt by members of the organization for the work she has done.

Announcement was made at the luncheon of resolutions which had been passed in the business meeting held prior to this event. These provided for life memberships in the association upon payment of $25.00 and urged that advantage be taken of the opportunity for present service which these memberships offer. Mrs. C. C. Hook was presented with life membership by the college.

Mrs. Brown announced the following chairmen of committees for the coming year's work: Mrs. C. C. Hook, endowment; Mrs. J. F. Flowers, publicity; Mrs. J. C. Crowell, telephoning; Mrs. W. H. Belk, hospitality; and Mrs. Lee Rutzler, program.

The luncheon was attended by a large number of honor guests among whom were the 55 members of the senior class who had been received into membership in the association at the business meeting.

On Saturday night the literary societies of the college held a joint meeting and reception in Burwell hall.

The baccalaureate sermon was delivered by Rev. Gilbert Combs, pastor of Myers Park Methodist Church.

Monday was class day. Exhibits of fine and practical arts were held in the afternoon. Class day exercises were held at 4:30. The annual concert of the music department was held at 8 o'clock.

MONTREAT LEADERSHIP TRAINING SCHOOL

upwards and leaders of young people's groups will find the school this year of special value.

The addresses on Sunday and at the evening hours will be of interest to the general public as well as profitable for the students of the school. Among the speakers we list Dr. Donald W. Richardson, Dr. Lawrence Wharton, Dr. J. R. Cunningham, Dr. John L. Fairley, Rev. Kenneth Foreman, Rev. P. D. Miller, and Dr. John Powell. A visiting speaker will be Dr. G. Walter Fiske, of Oberlin University. Dr. Fiske is the author of two textbooks on Adolescent Psychology, and his recent book, "The Changing Family," is a classic on the problems of the modern home. Dr. Fiske will be heard on Sunday night, July 21st, and again on Monday night.

The afternoon hours will be reserved for rest and special recreational programs and hikes will be arranged by the Directors of Young People's Work.

The railroads will sell tickets on July 17 at one fare plus $1.00. The usual summer rate reduced fares will be offered on all other dates. The hotels will have low rates for this conference, and the boarding houses will also offer special rates.

There will be registration fee for this Conference, but students and visitors will pay the usual fees at the Montreat Gate, which fees go to the Association for the benefit of the annual programs.

SPLENDID BUILDING DEDICATED AT SAVANNAH

plete $150,000, and has been named in honor of the Rev. I. S. K. Axon, D.D., pastor of this Church from 1858 to 1891.

The main auditorium of the school perpetuates in its name the generosity of the late Miss Mary Telfair.

The K. B. A. classroom, called in memory of Doctors Henry Kollock, Daniel Baker, I. S. K. Axon, and Neal L. Anderson, the last being the present pastor of the Church, and the Beginners' auditorium and classroom is named for Mrs. Anderson. Other large auditoriums and classrooms bear the names of various donors. The Ladies' parlor perpetuates in its location, trim, mantle and furnishings the historic association with President Woodrow Wilson for it was here on this spot that he was married to Miss Ellen Louise Axon on June 24, 1885.

The building has an open-air court on the third floor where many services will be held in the summer season. It is also unique in the fact that all the departmental auditoriums have at least two, and some of them three, outside exposures. It provides recreational facilities in the large dining hall, recreational room, Boy Scout room, a large room for the Knights of the Mystic 7, and Men's Club room with showers and lockers.

The Church issued for this important occasion a booklet giving the history and activities of the school.

Founded so long ago, one of its prized treasures is a life-sized portrait of Robert Raikes, which the founder of organized Sunday School work in the world presented to this school.

The school was reorganized in 1815 under the superintendency of Lowell Mason, and the small brick building on the corner of Bull and Hull in 1833, was perhaps the first building separate from a church ever erected for Sunday School work.

Distinguished Service

This school has been graciously used of God for service not only in Savannah and vicinity, but throughout the world.

Miss Mary W. Howard (Goulding) at whose home Mason composed the music for Greenland's Icy Mount teacher in the school in Leighton Wilson (Miss Bayard), first woman missionary to Africa, was in the school. Rev. James our first missionary to Africa, cured through the effort of the day School Aid Society Rankin, missionary to Africa, was a pupil in our School in died while in the mission. This school has had the erection of ten Sunday Schools by this congregation in China, and also in the mission of Nellie Rankin Memorial School, Korea, by the ministry of this Church.

The following ministers were trained in the School: Rev. Daniel Iverson Winter (died during course), Rev. J. R. Pot Davis, and Rev. Arthur Randolph K. Axson, D. D., a student of the pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Charlotte, Milton Daniels (Miss Rankin Missionary Worker in Sautee, Ga.), and Miss Maryman, Synodical Missionary. All were all pupils of this school.

This school has been and support of a number of schools:

1826, First African Baptist School, Savannah (permanently); Negro Sunday School, organized under the auspices of Independent Presbyterian Church, manned by workers from the School.

Anderson Street Sunday School, Savannah, 1868-1926.

Parker Mission, Reynolds Sts., Savannah, 1913-1917.

Eastern Heights Chapel, Montgomery Sunday School, ham County.

West Savannah Sunday School, Ten Sunday Schools in China, erected through the aid of Sunday School and Church.

The Anderson Street Sunday School, developed into the Anderson Church, now the Holy Trinity Church; another school, the founding of which continued its work until it was absorbed by the Eastern Heights Chapel, which is a fruit of the Anderson Street Sunday School.

Eastern Heights Chapel, Sunday School, and West Savannah are in vigorous active service.

DR. WHALING RETIRES FROM ACTIVE SERVICE

by the report of the pension next year.

He is greatly beloved by the students who unanimously he might remain in his position.

Dr. Whaling will like to teach or of a church, and will wish to preach as occasion.

He has been most careful, both at Columbia and to complete his lecture by writing a textbook which it is hoped he may diplomas of Bachelors of Arts for young men and certificates for courses but without diplomas. In most of the latter class it was for necessary academic degree. He formed a fine body of students of promise to the credit of his seminary. He were M. H. Applewhite, Texas Presbyterian, who was in Texas; John Knox Boyd, Presbyterian, to Paint Point, Texas; Horace C. Casey, of Artery, to Holtenville, Oklahoma; Gallagher, of Dallas, Comanche, Texas; Ray low, of Central Texas; Happy, Texas; Eldred, Western Texas Presbyterian Church, Louisiana; Tucker, of Fort Worth, Monday and Rule, Texas.

AUSTIN SEMINARY

(Continued on page 3)

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD
 FOUNDED 1858
 Organ of the Synod of N. C. for 70 Years

the Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as Second Class Matter.

Terms—The subscription price of the Standard is payable in advance. To ministers the price is $2.50 per year. To ministers' wives the price is $2.50 per year.

The mailing label shows the month and year to which the subscription is paid. Payment in advance is required.

Subscriptions may be made by money order, check, or registered letter, and currency by mail.

Obituary Notices—No charge is made for notices of less than 100 words, but for all over fifty words the charge is 10¢ per word.

Advertisements—Sent on application.

Changes of Address—Kindly send us both old and new addresses and the date of the desired change.

Changes of Name—Changes are made only upon the written request of the subscriber and settlement in full must be made at the same time.

Advertising Rates and Business Communications Should be Addressed to PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD
 Box 869
 Charlotte, N. C.

EDITORIAL

FRIENDS AT THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

At the smoke of battle has cleared the thunder of the captains, and the waves have been silenced, we can yield our pleasures of memories.

The smiling of the personnel of the Assembly from every quarter of our country, long since passed from memory, to the past as if by magic.

Years ago, next April, a large class at the Seminary, in Virginia, disbanded, to do the work for which they had spent years in training.

At that time, their paths have seldom crossed.

Time has sifted its frost upon their heads, and the ring has vanished from their steps, but the flame of youthful affection still burns in their hearts.

Some of that class came together at this time as a looker-on, the other as a participant in the proceedings, and the constituent member of that august assembly.

The appearance of the scribe the less said but the other two deserve special mention.

Dr. Walton, D.D., of Florida, was present those Seminary days, time has not marked on his face, without making any improvement. Feeding upon the fruits of Florida has developed his body to the proportions, and perhaps they have developed his brain, as such is said to be of fish diet.

We are glad to see no enlargement of the proportionate with that of the body. His face is glad to say is as large as one of the members.

One member was Rev. Joshua Phipps, a missionary to Greece.

It is pathetic to see his longing to hear the old class from whom he had been so long.

The class, seventeen in number, there are seven even left, and of these seven only one is active work, while five are infirm.

Some have joined the General Assembly and the first born in heaven.

The remaining seven will be called when there will be a Class Reunion.

MASSANETTA SPRINGS CONFERENCES

The prospectus of this Summer Conference is a most tempting bill of fare to any man who is interested in the matter.

The historic setting, giving views of interest in its vicinity, such as the birthplaces of Lincoln's ancestors, the site of Jackson, at Lexington, and the site of the celebrated Ashby fell.

The Conference has two weeks of the service of such men as Dr. William Evans, Dr. Stone, and others.

Both of the Massanetta Conferences has been remarkable and we acknowledge with thanks several invitations to be the guest of the Association.

IMPROVEMENTS AT MONTREAT

The Hotel and Auditorium were a revelation to those of the Commissioners who had never been to Montreat.

The hotel of course won instinted praise, and we predict that through it Montreat will receive an advertisement from Dan to Beer-sheba.

One would expect praise from the Commissioners who were accustomed to country-town hotels, but not from those who were from the cities that prided themselves upon their elegant hotels, yet they were with one accord in placing it among the most elegant in the hotel line.

The Auditorium did not fare so well, though, those of us who remember what it was, can see that by degrees it is being evolved into a fine auditorium. Its main defect has been its poor acoustic qualities; but each year Dr. Anderson has managed to improve them.

In time he will have no cause to be ashamed of it, though we do not wish to imply that he does not regard it as "a thing of beauty, and joy forever."

One of the attractions of Montreat that impressed all favorably was the School for Girls under the oversight of Mr. Woodard and Dr. Anderson.

Beginning in an humble way, not many years ago, it has grown to be a school whose influence is spreading in many directions.

The growth of this school has been due to several conditions.

In the first place the girls come from homes where dollars are scarce, and the young are taught the value of money.

Then the surroundings at Montreat are favorable, such as the absence of all distractions, the fine water, the pure air and, in a certain sense, its isolation, so that a girl has to study in self-defense.

The early adjournment showed that Montreat is an ideal place for meeting. The hotel expenses which are paid by the Assembly amount to over $600 daily, so an early adjournment means money saved.

Then there is a great advantage to have men from every section coming into close touch with each, thus doing away with any feeling that they belonged to different churches in different sections.

This close touch brings about unity of effort in Church work that must redound to the good of the Church.

We hope that these advantages will in time so impress the Church that Dr. Anderson's dream that Montreat will be selected as the regular meeting place of the Assembly will be realized.

ECHOES FROM THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

A study of the overtures sent up from the Presbyteries is always interesting.

These overtures give a true picture of what the Church is thinking, and into what strange paths the Presbyterian mind will some times wander.

Some of these proposals are wise and some otherwise, yet taken as a whole they illustrate the idiosyncrasies of the Presbyterian mind.

There were, however, as is generally the case, overtures founded upon common sense, though refused, not because they had no merit, but because the Church has no money to spend except upon what is necessary.

For example, one Synod overtured the Assembly as follows: "recognizing that our Church papers are rendering the causes of our Church signal service; that their financial support is not equal to their cost of production, nor commensurate with the services rendered; that the Church should not expect private individuals to carry this load; that their failure would be a calamity to the Church; the Synod therefore, respectfully overtures the Assembly to sit at Montreat, to take under serious consideration the service and support of these voluntary agencies of the Church."

We have no idea who proposed this action.

Whoever he was, we commend his heart and head—his heart, because it shows that his heart was in the right place, and beats in sympathy with the down-trodden; his head, because he did not argue from ignorance, as many do, but recognized the great value the papers are to the work of the Church and how crippled every Church enterprise would be if they were discontinued.

Of course we did not expect any other response than a refusal, but it heartens the editors of our Church papers to know that there are some hearts who feel another's woes, and would gladly see them lightened.

There was another overture, this time from a Presbytery asking that the Assembly direct the Moderator to visit various parts of the Church in the interval between the meetings of the Assembly.

This no doubt was suggested by the same custom that obtains in the Northern Assembly.

The refusal of this overture was wise, as its enactment would have imposed an unnecessary burden upon the Moderator with no corresponding benefit to the Church.

As a rule our Moderators are able men, especially our dear friend Dobyons, but looking over the long line of exModerators, one is not impressed by the fact that when they died, wisdom died with them.

After a man has stood the grind of the Moderator's Chair in the Assembly he deserves a long rest.

The reply to this overture was evidently penned by a man who had been there. The reply was that an ex-Moderator had no executive power, but his influence is due to his high position.

Having thus defined his powers, he throws a wrench into the machinery by this proviso that the inviting Church pay his expenses. He no doubt reasoned that this "rider" would "throw a damper over the meeting."

Those who wish to pursue this subject further would do well to get a copy of the Blue Book, where they are in full.

PRESBYTERIANISM AND LIBERTY

Students of history have often called attention to the tendency of Presbyterianism to foster the spirit of liberty in man that has ever been the glory of the human race.

James Anthony Froude, in his famous essay on Calvinism, emphasizes the connection between Calvinism and the love of liberty, and clearly shows that the love of liberty in all ages has been engendered by the principles of Calvinism.

In the Revolution the Presbyterians of Mecklenburg sounded the call to independence, and wherever they were found in that long conflict, they were always among the strongest supporters of American liberties.

In the darkest hour of that memorable struggle, General Washington is said to have planned to retreat to the Valley of Virginia and to make his last stand among the Scotch-Irish Presbyterians of Augusta County.

Measured by the numbers engaged and the issues at stake, the recent World's War dwarfs all previous wars of history, and here also we find that the Presbyterians lived up to their past records.

Glancing over the prominent actors of that period, we find such staunch Presbyterians as President Wilson, Vice-President Marshall, and Secretary of State Lansing, and in Europe there were such men as Mr. Balfour, of England; Sir Douglas Haig, of the British troops in France; General Joffre, of the French army, and our own General Pershing, of our forces in France.

Of course other denominations had their representatives, and we are not calling attention to these facts in any spirit of denominational pride; but the fact remains that in every struggle in history to bring liberty to any people, the Presbyterians have always measured up to the demand made upon them, and when studied we find that there is in Presbyterianism a cause preceding this invariable effect.

That such should be the case is not an accident. It is based upon the law of cause and effect, and the cause is found in their belief

(Continued on Page Seven)

FOLLOWERS OF GOD

Baccalaureate Sermon at Flora Macdonald College

Dr. S. M. Erickson

Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth.—Ecc. 12:1.

Young ladies, the various services of this week have been on your hearts for a number of years. Now you are about to enter into the pleasure of the realization of your hopes. These days form, as it were, a mile-stone on your journey of life. In the days to come you will look back to this experience and think of it with reverent joy.

Soon the farewells will be over, and your ship will be under way. Somewhat subdued and sad, you'll be at the bow looking forward over life's deep blue. Perhaps it is well that we are not prophets nor seers, and so cannot peer very far into the future. You'll find that often the ship meets its greatest difficulties just as it leaves port, for near land the waves are very choppy. So it will be after you leave this college. Some of your greatest joys and some of your greatest trials may come before this year is over. The period of adjusting yourselves to new conditions is often a very trying one.

You go out into a world which is engaged in a life and death struggle. A real conflict is on. The old age seems to be dying, and the new is in its birth-pangs. All is in flux. The scholar will tell you there is no peace in the intellectual world. Educational conditions are in the greatest chaos. New discoveries are made in psychology, only to be discarded. The history of philosophy is the story of change. Heisenberg's Law of Uncertainties in physics may even do away with the Law of Cause and Effect. Scientists seem to think that nothing is certain. Morality, to some, seems to be on shifting sands. Doubt and license seem to have over-ruled faith and virtue. We call it the "hard-boiled age." Is it the age that Paul speaks of in the first chapter of Romans?

Need of Fixed Standards

John R. Mott says, "It is the most dangerous time in which to live." Temptations assail from every angle. The materialism of the world has an awful pull. Even bankers and leaders of Big Business note the trend and issue warning. Today, perhaps more than any time in the past, it is essential that we lay hold of and grip the great certainties of life. If you can do this, then it is a most glorious age in which to live. If I can, in a little way, help you to change this adjective "dangerous" into "glorious," then my task today is a most happy one.

When a lad I worked during vacation with a large lumber company which operated on the southern shore of Lake Superior. We had a tugboat to carry us to the city sixty miles away. I would often be with the captain in the cabin. Sometimes he would say, "Take the wheel. Steer by yonder star, and you'll make port." And then he would leave me alone at the helm. Young ladies, as you take over the helm to steer your own ships, permit me to fix the star for your guidance,—a star that will take you to port. Listen: "Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth."

Chesterton says, "The whole world needs a fixed spiritual standard." I agree with him. In the text we have it. These words of wisdom were spoken by a man during the sunset of his life. They are full of instruction, and contain the basis for a true program of a useful life.

Perhaps many of you have already spun out some philosophy of life. All must do so at some time, or drift hopelessly to ruin. In the olden days, Gautama, otherwise known as the Buddha, was thirty years old when he first realized the seriousness of life. It came about in a strange way. He had been brought up in the lap of luxury, spared all the bitter things of life. One day he went out from the palace grounds with an escort. He saw a man who was sick. "What is this?" he asked. The escort replied, "This man is ill. You, too, may some day become ill." A cloud came over the young man's face. A little further on they met an old man, bent and weak. "What is this?" he asked. "This is an old man. You, too, may some day become old and gray." The cloud deepened. They followed the road until they came to a funeral. Many were weeping. "What is this?" again he asked. "This man has died. You, too, some day must die, for it is the way of all flesh," responded the escort. These new experiences unsettled the young prince. He left wife and child to seek peace of mind. He wandered among the scholars of India, but peace was elusive, and he missed it. Then he gave himself to meditation. After long years he threw over all the gods of India with their superstitions, and, enlightened, exclaimed, "All power is from within. We are slaves of Karma,—slaves of the deeds of our ancestors." This became the program of his life. It did not lead him to great activity. A philosophy of this kind does not meet the needs of today. It did not meet the needs of India.

Pleasure Not the Goal

The Epicurean said by his actions, "Let us eat, drink, and be merry. Pleasure, only pleasure, is the great goal of life." This program does not satisfy a group of young women trained at Flora Macdonald College. Surely there must be something more than pleasure for you in the future. Some modern people live only for self, bound up in their own petty interests of seeking fame and gaining wealth. That was the trouble with the rich young ruler, and Jesus said, "One thing thou lackest." That was the philosophy of the rich man who tore down his barns and built greater, and God said, "thou fool!" A manner of life and a philosophy of living which leaves so much weariness and worry, which causes so much greed and fear, must somehow be wrong.

Among all the confusing philosophies, where shall we turn? Solomon warns us, "Remember thy Creator." There is great wisdom in this warning. It reminds us that we are created beings, and thus fixes our relation to God and man. This is an idea which the present world is struggling with. It wants to forget it. It wants to crowd God out. It wants to make a new god. This is one of the great dangers of evolution, but the more science analyzes the miracles of the universe, the less do they appear accidental. The noblest priests of science are now standing before a veiled altar, saying, "Behind the curtain of mystery there is Something beyond our examining!" I feel sure that when men investigate long enough, and think deep enough, they will come back to "In the beginning God created." I think that religious leaders now have a right to assert themselves and to furnish the scientists their angle of truth.

Man's Kinship With God

Yes; man is the noblest work of God's creation. God gave man a soul, which sometimes seems to me to be a part of God Himself, for it is so like Him. Here we can get some clue as to God's design back of His creation of man. There is a relationship between God and man's soul. Is it not one of fellowship? God created man for Himself. He placed a great value on this fellowship. Jesus said, "What should it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" The soul's value is in its relationship to God, its maker. It seems that it is possible to lose the soul,—that is, to lose touch with God. This, to Christ, is man's greatest danger. A lost soul, a soul out of place, is earth's greatest tragedy. All your learning and success will mean very little when the soul drifts away from God. Heaven and earth are concerned about this fellowship. Christ left His throne in glory to re-establish this fellowship. The greatest task that can occupy the attention of man is to keep in touch with God.

We may learn that this is not a selfish aim, for Jesus tells how this is done. (John 12:24.)

"Verily, verily, I say unto you, except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone, but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit. He that loveth his life shall lose it, and he that hateth his life in this world shall keep it unto life eternal." Our great objective, then, is to maintain a real fellowship with God, according to the specifications laid down by Jesus. This is eternal life.

Seeking Divine Fellowship

How can we do this? The chief end of man is to glorify God and to enjoy Him forever. That is what Livingstone meant in a practical way when he said, "I will place no value on anything I have or may possess except in relation to the Kingdom of God." That is what a doctor in Columbus, Georgia, meant when he told me the other day, "I cannot talk for Jesus, but long ago I consecrated all my work and earnings to His cause." Horace Bushnell said, "I fell into the habit of talking with God on every occasion. I talk myself to sleep at night, and open the morning talking with Him." It means a constant consciousness of the abiding presence of God. As a saint of old expressed it, "the practise of the presence of God." Jesus said, "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God." It means that in all things our hearts first turn instinctively to God. It is a constant attitude of heart and mind. It is a personal fellowship with God through Christ. Remember,—without the least break,—remember thy Creator.

Blessings of God's Presence

Now what grows out of this fellowship with God? What difference does it make to the follower? You will reach your fullest development through faith in God. Your personality finds its fullest expression, and personality is what this present age seems to lack. You come into a full stature for body and mind and soul; all respond to the presence of God. A sweet sense of certainty enters the heart. You can say with Paul, "I know." There are certain things that only those who have fellowship with God can know. A tranquility which the changing world cannot destroy fills your being. It casts out fear and creates peace. God is the refuge of the soul. You will not be moved by the noise and tumult of the day.

Out of this calm flows a boldness. History tells of many men who have had this holy boldness. Think of John Knox, who caused kings and queens to tremble. Recall Martin Luther, who feared not popes nor armies. Cromwell's soldiers feared God, but were not concerned with the doings of men. Oh, how the world needs this boldness today! Men of this courage are not afraid of danger, for they know that God loves to make Himself known in times of great testings. Paul, in trouble and shipwreck wrote (Act 27:23), "There stood by me this night the angel of God." Sir Ernest Shackleton, of South Pole fame, said, "But I should like to acknowledge that down amid the snow and ice we were often conscious of the guidance and protection of One more than human. And if we acknowledged this to each other in those days of hardship and peril, it is only fitting that we should do so now that He has brought us safely home again." God cares. "We cannot drift beyond His love and care." Faith in God helps a man to venture boldly.

Faith Frees Womanhood

Faith in God sets a woman free. We are living in an age of standardization. Americans think that they have freedom, but we are slaves of mass psychology, slaves of imitation. More so, perhaps, than other peoples of the world. The British are much more individualistic than we are. We have the chain-store mind, and get most of our ideas from the broadcasting agencies. The fear of God in the heart of a man sets him free to think. God allows a man's individuality to develop. The world denies this right, by its many laws and restrictions. Freedom leads to great actions. Slaves do not think great thoughts, nor do great deeds.

God will guide you into a useful life. You all have an ambition to contribute something to the world in which you live. You want to find your place and fill it honestly. You wish to add something to the moral and spiritual treasures of the world. Not one of you would care to be a social parasite. You all want to live a worthwhile life. This fellowship with God will help you.

In God you may complete your life. Christ said, "It is finished," a completed life,—nothing still undone. A tombstone in a distant graveyard erected to young man bears this inscription, "An unfinished life tragedy these words reveal! Those out of when the sun begins to set, 'Oh, for another so with the follower of God. He knows that are ordered by a loving Father.

Remember thy Creator, for this will lead of the eternity beyond the grave. Your soul for eternity. Grasp this idea, and your present bigger and fuller of meaning. So many are bles today because they do not live in the eternity. Remember your Creator now, and t enjoy Him forever,—abiding joy, eternal joy

Young ladies, do you wish to make the be of your life? Remember now thy Creator.

Do you wish to leave the world the rich call comes? Remember now thy Creator.

Do you wish to be joint heirs with Chr joy? Remember now thy Creator. "Be ye lowers of God."

LATE VALUABLE GIFTS TO HISTORICAL FOUNDATION

We take much pleasure in announcing gifts to the historical foundation:

1. By Miss Nannie MacGilvary, Fayette "The Watchman of the South," two large bound volumes. This paper was edited by S. Plumer, D.D., LL.D., while pastor in Virginia, for eight years. It became "The Watchman Observer," in 1845, and in 1856 became Presbyterian." Miss MacGilvary is of the gave to the Church the great foreign mission Daniel MacGilvary. It may not be amiss to sat that the Historical Foundation has t Bible brought to this country by the ancestor MacGilvary, which the writer found sever in a trash heap.

2. By Rev. W. S. Campbell, D.D., Edite Virginia, the files of "The Presbyterian o from 1909 to 1927; the volumes of 1923-192 fully bound. The Presbyterian of the Sout successor to "The Central Presbyterian," Southwestern Presbyterian." The files of t have had for seven or more years.

3. By Rev. D. M. Sweets, D.D., Editor, b of the "Christian Observer" from 1861 to 1 bound volumes for 1924 to 1928, also "W America," volumes 8, 10, 12, 13.

4. By Mrs. George Hudson, Montreat, Missionary Review of the World, 1892 a bound volumes. The Union Seminary Ma 1900, ten volumes. These volumes are w are given in the name of that devoted man patient sufferer, Rev. George Hudson, who years a missionary of our Church in China

Next to official records the files of curre are the very best sources for the study of a Church and its activities. We have, there getting files of all Church papers, howeve theological reviews in which the Presbyte formed Church have been interested. We of about two hundred and thirty of these, sixty of which are perfect, while many of t very nearly perfect. These cover all the p from 1800 to 1928, one hundred and twent every section of the United States, and are i languages. There are to be found the letter of such pioneers as Cyrus Kingsbury, Cy Gideon Blackburn, Samuel Doak, T. S. Wil don Jackson, et al, of those who "through kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained out of weakness were made strong, wax fight . . . were tortured not accepting deliv whom the world was not worthy."

5. From Mrs. Franklin McNeill, Raleigh have received for Deposit the Diary of Mr Elliot, 1837-82, which is filed with rich de tation, and in which are many historical i to students.

6. From Mrs. D. B. Cobb, Mobile, Ala the Rev. William Horton Thompson, a la of books, and a deposit of manuscripts, Fast sermons and papers of Rev. Calvin Ingalls H. Thompson, which have associations w the early part of the last century, and of period. Doctor Thompson served valiantly Tennessee, Mississippi, and Alabama.

7. Through the influence of Rev. E. P. V LL.D., of Cincinnati, from Mrs. R. E. Ha Haute, Indiana, a number of rare books, c Bibles. Doctor Whallon has been a friend for several years. He was a pioneer in In had a very remarkable career in the educ Mrs. Hawley's husband and his father, al ley's father were pioneers in Indiana, and d ficial service.

8. From the children of the late Rev. S D.D., of the A.R.P. Church, and from Millen, Guntown, Mississippi, of the sa large box of splendid volumes, among w extremely valuable Scottish works. Doct a great collector of materials of the A.R.P at one time had a collection of national r mented Dr. B. B. Warfield in his history of the Westminster Standards refers to this

There have been a number of other gifts ably the importations by the Curator and l very early Irish periodicals, rare B and histories, a number of early Puritan first editions of the writings of the member minster Assembly.

For all the above we are truly grateful, new Church year dedicating ourselves a through all these things we may serve kingdom is our heart's desire and prayer

We urge our people from every section to call on us when we may serve them w Montreat, N. C. S. M. Ten

Men of the Church

Men of the Church in the United States

PURCELL, D.D., Executive Secretary
HENRY GRADY BUILDING
ATLANTA, GEORGIA

L. FAIRLY, D.D., Wilmington, N. C., in charge of Men-of-the-Church Department

PROGRAM FOR JULY

Men Doing in the Religious Education Program of the Local Church?

Leader's Talk

Discussion meeting. Explain this to the men. Use the typewritten copies of the following questions (under "to the Speakers"). Announce the program of each group of questions will be by a two-minute speaker and will then be followed by the hope that all present will speak and to the questions.

Explain this to the men. Use the typewritten copies of the following questions (under "to the Speakers"). Announce the program of each group of questions will be by a two-minute speaker and will then be followed by the hope that all present will speak and to the questions.

Explain this to the men. Use the typewritten copies of the following questions (under "to the Speakers"). Announce the program of each group of questions will be by a two-minute speaker and will then be followed by the hope that all present will speak and to the questions.

Explain this to the men. Use the typewritten copies of the following questions (under "to the Speakers"). Announce the program of each group of questions will be by a two-minute speaker and will then be followed by the hope that all present will speak and to the questions.

Explain this to the men. Use the typewritten copies of the following questions (under "to the Speakers"). Announce the program of each group of questions will be by a two-minute speaker and will then be followed by the hope that all present will speak and to the questions.

Explain this to the men. Use the typewritten copies of the following questions (under "to the Speakers"). Announce the program of each group of questions will be by a two-minute speaker and will then be followed by the hope that all present will speak and to the questions.

Explain this to the men. Use the typewritten copies of the following questions (under "to the Speakers"). Announce the program of each group of questions will be by a two-minute speaker and will then be followed by the hope that all present will speak and to the questions.

Explain this to the men. Use the typewritten copies of the following questions (under "to the Speakers"). Announce the program of each group of questions will be by a two-minute speaker and will then be followed by the hope that all present will speak and to the questions.

Explain this to the men. Use the typewritten copies of the following questions (under "to the Speakers"). Announce the program of each group of questions will be by a two-minute speaker and will then be followed by the hope that all present will speak and to the questions.

Explain this to the men. Use the typewritten copies of the following questions (under "to the Speakers"). Announce the program of each group of questions will be by a two-minute speaker and will then be followed by the hope that all present will speak and to the questions.

Explain this to the men. Use the typewritten copies of the following questions (under "to the Speakers"). Announce the program of each group of questions will be by a two-minute speaker and will then be followed by the hope that all present will speak and to the questions.

Explain this to the men. Use the typewritten copies of the following questions (under "to the Speakers"). Announce the program of each group of questions will be by a two-minute speaker and will then be followed by the hope that all present will speak and to the questions.

Third Speaker

What Part of the Work is Being Done by Women? Count the number of women who are teaching boys' classes in your Sunday school? What proportion of the whole is this? Doubtless they are doing a splendid piece of service and the Sunday school could ill afford to dispense with their services. Yet certain questions are surely raised. Would it not be much better, all things being equal, if men would teach and lead those classes of boys?

Can a woman really answer a great many questions which a teen age boy wishes to ask? The experience through which he is passing has never been the experience of a woman. Now, this is not to disparage the splendid work of women. I do not know what our churches would do without them. There are a host of problems which even a boy has which they can help to solve even better than a man. Yet there are certain things in his inner life which only a man can sympathize with and understand. There is a direction in life work which a man can give. Is it right to deprive these boys of this guiding just because men are unwilling to tackle so hard a job?

Do we find here the reason why young men lose interest in Sunday school? The heroes of boys are nearly always men—are always men. A hero is the man we imitate and wish to follow. Suppose there are no heroes teaching in the Sunday school, are boys likely to wish to follow it?

Suppose only women studied law, or medicine, or engineering; would many boys be tempted to choose these professions as life vocations?

Drive home the need for more men to teach.

Fourth Speaker

Is the Teaching Program of Our Church Schools big enough to Challenge Men?

To help you in discussing this topic, we are listing below some of the questions which during the past year the Bible study for adolescents has been planned to answer.

By what shall youth gauge their conduct towards each other? Who is their neighbor individually, nationally?

What is youth's obligations towards law and those in authority?

What constitutes family loyalty? Constancy?

Does national and religious freedom license selfishness? Or challenge to self-control?

Has or has not every individual a right to live his own life?

Is there any future life?

Has the Church any present-day value?

Think through this list of questions. Consider what it would mean to the manhood of our Church to answer them correctly. Is it not worth any man's time to aid youth to come to the right decision in regard to them? Does not the very future of our country depend on the your attitude toward these questions? Would you not have a man-sized task if you taught these things to one group of boys?

Fifth Speaker

How Will Failure to Accept Full Responsibility in the Active Church Program of Religious Education for Youth React on the Men-of-the-Church?

Will it, is it, making flabby Christians and talking Christians rather than strong Christians and doing Christians? The weakest point in most Churches is willing, capable leadership. Many who can, will not; and many who will, cannot. Great leaders appear at great crises, but they were prepared long before the crisis came. The Men-of-the-Church must be able to put its hand on leaders with training if it carries out its great program. This does not mean that it will not be a great means of training, either, for it will. The Men-of-the-Church not only has the duty of training, however, but it has a work to do. This requires leaders with some training. The organization will never have this unless it goes back into the Sunday School and begins to prepare its leaders in boyhood.

INTELLECTUALISM RUNS AMUCK

The modern, practically minded individual is in hard straits. He believes in industry, conservation and progress. His philosophy of life has been based upon certain, as he believes, well established and fundamental principles. Among these are (1) the sanctity of law; (2) the sacredness of human life; (3) the rights of property; and (4) the indissoluble union of husband and wife.

The practical individual discovers that these old landmarks are being removed, and no reasonable substitutes are being furnished. He is as one adrift in a stormy sea, deprived of chart and compass and enveloped in a blinding fog. Under such conditions arguments are empty and philosophy is vain. His cry: Disperse the fogs! Theological and metaphysical disputations only serve to make confusion more confounded. A fog dispeller is the need of the hour.

Students of criminology have no retaining fee to restore the old landmarks, but with shafts of wit and the breath of humor they are dispelling the fogs of super-intellectualism. These students reveal a shift in the habitat of crime. According to their research, crime in former years was largely confined to the so-called "criminal classes." Such were social outcasts, the Apaches of Paris, the thugs and bums, the gamblers and dissolute and disreputable of the slums of London, New York, Chicago and large city life, derelicts in the social oceans. Police information bureaus contained the names, the crimes, the photos and finger marks of the entire fraternity. Today these dregs of society have been joined in their criminality by reinforcements from the extreme upper crust of social intelligentsia, and the great industrious, toiling, progressive middle class of society are besmeared with mud and bewildered by fogs of uncertainty. The low-down, bum criminal takes his cue from the socially high-up criminal. No poor, ignorant rum-runner on the Texas border runs himself. Somewhere a keen high-brow higher-up plans and directs the play and

WOMANS AUXILIARY

The Department of Woman's Work, Presbyterian Church, U. S.
270-277 Field Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

SYNODICAL PRESIDENTS OF THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

Alabama—Mrs. J. F. Hooper, 610 Mabry St., Selma, Ala.
Appalachia—Mrs. F. B. Kegley, Wytheville, Va.
Arkansas—Mrs. Walter Wilson, Arkadelphia, Ark.
Florida—Mrs. W. G. Thompson, Jr., 3215 Obispo St., Palma Ceia Park, Tampa, Fla.
Georgia—Mrs. E. G. Abbott, 1315 Eberhart Ave., Columbus, Ga.
Kentucky—Mrs. H. P. Cooper, Lebanon, Ky.
Louisiana—Mrs. Charles L. Bodin, Box 79, M. R. A., Lake Charles, Louisiana.
Mississippi—Mrs. J. S. Hicks, Holly Springs, Miss.
Missouri—Mrs. Walter Craven, 223 Frances St., Excelsior Springs, Mo.
North Carolina—Mrs. G. V. Patterson, Gastonia, N. C.
Oklahoma—Mrs. Wilbur Garvin, 611 Euclid, Lawton, Oklahoma.
South Carolina—Mrs. Parker Connor, Edisto Island, South Carolina.
Tennessee—Mrs. J. E. Forsythe, Bethel Springs, Tenn.
Texas—Mrs. J. W. Culver, Texas Military Academy, San Antonio, Texas.
Virginia—Mrs. C. R. Vaughan, 319 Mountain Ave., Roanoke, Va.
West Virginia—Mrs. J. McD. Lacy, Elkins, W. Va.

MONTREAT TRAINING SCHOOL Auxiliary Leaders, Take Notice!

The Presbyterian President's Conference begins at 9 A. M. on July 10.

The Auxiliary Training School will begin on Wednesday evening, July 10, at which time classes will be enrolled.

You cannot afford to miss your conference training. If your reservations for hotel or boarding place have not been made, write to Mr. A. R. Bauman, Montreat, N. C., and he will be glad to arrange matters for you.

Special railway rates will be available for this conference. There will be placed on sale on July 9 and 10 a special twenty-day ticket to Black Mountain, N. C., and return at one fare plus $1.00 for the round trip. These tickets must be validated at Montreat before return.

Watch for more detailed information concerning speakers, credit courses and annual conference features. This information will be issued soon.

Auxiliary leaders, the conference is planned especially for you. Be sure to come.

Department of Woman's Work, 270-277 Field Building, St. Louis, Mo.

AUXILIARY BIRTHDAY PAGEANT

The First Church, Monroe, N. C., on Wednesday evening resembled a Mexican flower garden with lovely spring flowers and evergreens, together with a large cactus hanging with beautiful pink clusters. At this time a most impressive birthday pageant, "Our Neighbor's Need," was given by the Sarah-Walkup circle. Rev. W. B. S. Chandler conducted the devotional, taking for his theme the 44th chapter of John—Jesus and the Samaritan Woman—which was in keeping with the pageant that followed.

To the strains of "Ave Maria," rendered from the pipe organ by Mrs. W. A. Lane, Mrs. W. B. S. Chandler, the Virgin, dressed in pure white entered slowly and mounted a white throne. Next came Mrs. J. D. McArthur, the Mexican Woman, pleading to the virgin Mary to know where her people had failed in their faith, and what did they lack.

(Continued on page 12)

claims the lion's share in the "rake-off." The poor devil who is directed in the dirty work may go to the pen; the higher-up brains of the combination remains a member of polite society. This unholy alliance between the "low-down" and the "high-up," with its defiance of law, its confiscation of property, its holding human life at a pin's fee, and its companionate wedlock, has beclouded the vision of the world, and threatens Christian civilization.

The conclusions suggested by criminologists are after this fashion. Criminals of good standing in business and social circles are, consciously or unconsciously, disciples of a school of intellectualism represented by Schopenhauer, Freud, Einstein, Crooks, and Lodge. These men belong to a class of intellectual giants. There is naught of the criminal in their lives. But their interpreters, imitators, and propagandists belong to a different class. These intellectual giants spend their lives on the borders of the infinite in physical space and time. Their researches have necessitated the invention of new units of measurement. For them the revered units of the foot and the second, the meter and the gram, are utterly inadequate. They employ as a unit of measurement the "light-year." (Pardon the reminder that the velocity of light is reliably stated to be 186,000 miles per second. The "light-year" is therefore 186,000 miles x 60 x 365 or 97,688,600,000 miles, and this ungraspable number is only a unit of measurement. The diameter of the milky way is 10,000 light years.) The ordinary human intellect staggers on the brink of madness in its effort to grasp the incomprehensible. Little wonder that it has been said there are not twelve men on earth able to grasp the formula of Einstein. Or that Einstein himself affirms that "there are only a handful of people who will take the trouble to follow the argument."

A psychological backfire is set up. All old standards are discarded. Old-fashioned geometry and old-fashioned law is obsolete. Man is free from all law; is a law unto himself. Hence—the intelligentsia in the ranks of modern criminal life, babbling "Mother Goose" platitudes, socially "high-ups" linking themselves with the contemptible "low-downs" who fear neither God nor man, and defy and break laws that restrain and institutions that exalt.—Tex.-Mex. Reflector.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Rev. Ernest Trice Thompson, D.D.

Lesson for June 16

JUDAH TAKEN CAPTIVE

II Kings 25:1-21. Print vs. 1-12

In 931 B. C. the magnificent empire of David and Solomon was torn in twain. The northern tribes followed the leadership of Jeroboam and set up the kingdom of Israel; the southern tribes remained loyal to Rehoboam, and maintained the kingdom of Judah. Two hundred and thirteen years later Israel was carried into captivity by the Assyrians; Judah, however, continued to exist for another 131 years. Finally in 586 B. C. Jerusalem was destroyed by the Babylonians, and the southern kingdom also came to a sudden end. It is this last event that we are to study at the present time.

It will help us to understand what took place if we keep in mind something of the political situation. The two dominant world powers were Egypt, in the Nile Valley, and Babylon in the Euphrates Valley. Judah was a tiny, almost insignificant country comparatively, but important because it guarded the bridge that led from Asia into Africa, from the civilization of the Euphrates into the civilization of the Nile. The decisive battle between Egypt and Babylon for the mastery of the world was fought at Carchemish in 605. The Babylonians led by Nebuchadnezzar were victorious in this great and important battle. Egypt retained her independence, but Judah and all the surrounding nations were forced to accept the suzerainty of Babylon and to pay her annual tribute. After a few years, however, Jehoiakim, the king of Judah, disregarding the counsel of Jeremiah, rebelled against Nebuchadnezzar, presumably by withholding the tribute. Death alone saved him from the vengeance of the great Babylonian king. His rebellion was expiated by the captivity of his son, Jehoiachin, and the queen mother after a three month's reign. The flower of the nation was taken to Babylon with them, and Jehoiakim's brother, Mattaniah, was placed on the throne, his name being changed to Zedekiah. Eight years later, 589 B. C., Pharaoh Hophra succeeded Psammetichus as King of Egypt, and persuaded Zedekiah and his princes once again to throw off the yoke of Babylon. Zedekiah's action appears in all the worse light in that he not only owed his throne to Nebuchadnezzar, but he had solemnly sworn fealty to him. For the breach of his oath he was sternly denounced by Ezekiel (Ezek. 17:11-19). Jeremiah also warned him of the consequences of his action. In 588 the Babylonians laid siege to the city. Our lesson begins at this point.

Read 2 Kings 25:1-21. How long did the siege last? What was the situation in the city at the last? How was the city finally taken? What happened to Zedekiah? What was the fate of Jerusalem? What was the fate of the inhabitants of the city? What disposition did the conquerors make of the furniture of the temple? What example did Nebuchadnezzar make of the leading men of the city? How does war in Nebuchadnezzar's day compare with war in our day?

I. War in Nebuchadnezzar's Time—II Kings 25:1-21

1. The Capture of the City, 25:1-7. Nebuchadnezzar went about his task in very thorough fashion. His forces at first spread themselves all over the countryside, capturing the lesser cities, and laying siege to the stronger fortresses in the south, Lachish and Azekah (Jer. 34:7). The Egyptian allies of Zedekiah proceeded to march against the later division of the Babylonians, and Nebuchadnezzar temporarily raised the siege of Jerusalem in order to meet them with his combined armies. The Egyptians weakly marched back home again, probably without a battle, leaving their allies to face Nebuchadnezzar alone. Then the siege of Jerusalem began in earnest.

Ezekiel 21:22 gives us a fuller description of the means that Nebuchadnezzar employed. He tells us that the Babylonians built forts, and cast up mounds, and set battering rams against the gates. The forts of wood or stone protected the attackers as they pressed the siege closer and closer. They may have been movable towers, from the tops of which arrows could be shot against the Jewish soldiers on the wall, or combustibles and stones hurled into the doomed city. The mounds were artificial hills, great piles of earth which brought the enemy archers on a level with the tops of the city walls. From the summits of these mounds balls of fire could be thrown into the city. The battering rams were heavy beams which companies of strong runners crashed against the gates of the city to break them in. Jerusalem, however, was very strongly fortified. It was protected by a wall, very tall and tremendously thick, and by a deep valley which surrounded it, except on the north. Its defences were so strong that it was able to hold out for more than a year and a half against the whole force of the mightiest world power of the time. As time went on, however, the defenders were weakened by the growing scarcity of food, and its resultant evils. Jeremiah's lamentations written probably soon after the capture of Jerusalem is a terribly vivid account in exalted poetry of the horrors of this siege, and of the famine and resulting pestilence which compelled the Jews to surrender. Further particulars may be gleaned from the prophecies of Jeremiah and Ezekiel and the history of Josephus. "The complexions of the men grew black with famine (Lam. 4:8; 5:10); their skin was shrunk and parched (Lam. 4:8); the rich and noble women searched the dunghills for scraps of offal (Lam. 4:5); the children perished for want, or were even devoured by their parents (Lam. 2:20; 4:3, 4, 10; Ezek. 5:10); water was scarce, as well as food, and was sold at a price (Lam. 5:4); a third part of the inhabitants died of the famine and the plague which grew out of it (Ezek. 5:12)."

Speaker's Bible. Day after day then, and month after month, "for a year and a half the Babylonians held the wretched, starving, dying city in their grasp, ever tightening grip and squeezing the life out of its gasping body. Their battering rams ever kept pounding against the walls and gates and every day the final awful doom drew nearer."

At least a breach was made through a gate or wall, whereupon the iron-faced, stony-hearted host that had so long been the terror of the Jews poured into their holy and beautiful city. According to Josephus it was midnight. We can imagine perhaps the terrible carnage that ensued. As the enemy rushed into the city from the north, the garrison fled to the south, down through the deep valley which cut into Jerusalem from the southeast, dividing the city into an eastern and western section, and requiring the construction of two parallel walls. As the Chaldeans surrounded the city the Jews probably slipped between two posts under the cover of darkness. Once safely through the lines they seem to have scattered in all directions. The King, Zedekiah, made for the Jordan (plain A. V., Arabah R. V.), thinking pursuit to be more difficult in the mountainous region on the east of the river. But he was overtaken in the plains of Jericho before the river was reached.

The royal captive was carried before Nebuchadnezzar at Riblah, a town in the north of Palestine, about halfway between Damascus and Mount Lebanon. It was a strategic point between north and south Syria, and as Nebuchadnezzar was laying siege to Tyre and Jerusalem at the same time, he had made his headquarters at this place, midway between the two. The king was tried and convicted as a rebel, who had broken his oath of allegiance. His sons were brought forth, and slain before his eyes. Zedekiah was only 32 years old at the time, so that his children could not have reached maturity. They were slain partly in order that they might not become centers of revolt in the future. To slay them before the father's eyes was to break down all hope of any rightful successor taking his throne. The narrative in Jeremiah adds that Nebuchadnezzar slew all the nobles of Judah. Not only was the royal family destroyed, but the men of power and influence were all extinguished. Then Zedekiah's eyes were put out. This was a common punishment in the East, and was inflicted ordinarily by means of a red hot iron rod. He was then bound in fetters, two thick iron rings united by one long link, and carried to Babylon. Jeremiah tells us (52:11) that he was kept in prison there till the day of his death.

2. The Destruction of the City, 25:8-12. After the capture of Jerusalem Nebuchadnezzar waited almost a month before he decided what to do with the famous city, the holy city of the Jews. At last he decided to destroy it, doubtless thinking it unwise to leave as a rallying place for the disaffected a city in so strong a natural position, which had proved its strength by holding out against him for a year and a half.

He entrusted the task to Nebuzaradan, the captain of the guard, one of his most favored officers. Nebuzaradan began by burning the temple, a great and splendid edifice, one of the wonders of the ancient world. Next he burned the king's house. "This building was also erected by Solomon, and was of great magnificence, occupying in the building of it thirteen years, while the temple occupied only seven years. It was next to the temple on the temple hill. It contained the "House of the Forest of Lebanon," measuring 150 feet in length and 75 feet in width, with four rows of great cedar pillars; it was an armoury and treasure house. It contained a splendid reception hall, and a gorgeous throne room in which was a wonderful ivory throne overlaid with gold. There were elegant living rooms, courts with flowers and fountains, and the palace of Pharaoh's daughter." He also burned the great houses, that is the homes of the aristocracy; probably also many of the homes of the common people perished in the conflagration. Then he set his army to demolishing the walls. We remember that in those days there was no high power explosives, a city without walls was little better than a country village.

Then came the question of dealing with the inhabitants of the city. Four classes are mentioned. First those who during the siege deserted to the Babylonians; there seem to have been quite a number. Second, the people who remained in the city, the civilians. Third, the residue of the multitude, that is the remnants of the army. Fourth, the poorest of the land, peasants and laborers and serfs. The first three classes were transported into the country round about Babylon; the last class was left in Palestine to till the ground, and to raise crops to pay off the taxes that Nebuchadnezzar would impose. The poor were allowed to remain because "it was inconvenient to deport persons who had little or nothing. In the Assyrian sculptures we see the captives who are carried off, generally accompanied by their own baggage animals, and taking with them a certain amount of their own household stuff. Pauper immigrants would not have been of any advantage to a country."

3. The Looting of the Temple, 25:13-17. We can be quite sure that before Jerusalem was destroyed it was looted of its chief treasures. The house of the king, and the homes of the aristocracy would yield up many things of value to the enemy. The writer of 2 Kings was not interested in this loss, however, so much as he was the spoliation of the temple. As Doctor Wells writes in Peloubet's Select Notes: "The ruin of the temple is the part of the description that would carry special grief to the hearts of the readers of 2 Kings. The account here is not so full as that in Jeremiah 52:17-23, but special mention is made of the two great brass (bronze) pillars set up in the porch of the temple. They were named Jachin (He shall establish) and Boaz (In it is strength) and signified the permanence and power of Jehovah and his temple. They were richly decorated and were famous works of art made for Solomon by Hiram, the Tyrian artificer. These pillars were more than 40 ft. high, and so could not be carried off entire, but were broken into sections.

"Then there were the bases, or stands for the lavers which were elaborately ornamented with figures of lions, oxen and cherubim. Also there was the laver, 15 ft. across, which stood originally of twelve brass oxen. All of these the king up and carted off as scrap metal, to be arms and implements, destroying them as they went. In addition the conquerors possessed the numerous utensils of the sanctuary, employed with the immense number of sacrifices offered there daily." Everything was taken to the conquerors could use.

4. The Execution of the Nation's Leaders. "Signal punishment was dealt out to those regarded as ringleaders or as representing the late rebellion. Seraiah, the chief priest, the second priest, and the three chiefs of the Levites, the three temple gates, were brought to Riblah, and executed. In addition the conquerors possessed the numerous utensils of the sanctuary, employed with the immense number of sacrifices offered there daily." Everything was taken to the conquerors could use.

II. War in Our Own Time

1. Its Nature. We have studied with detail one war as it was waged in the 6th century B. C. It might be profitable to compare that war with war as it is carried on now in the 20th century. Wherein does it differ? Wherein is the same?

The weapons, both of defence and of offence, have changed. Cities no longer rely on mounds for protection, and the invaders of a country make use of mounds, and forts (of the kind that were used in the 6th century B. C.) are no longer used. We have gun powder, explosive shells, fired by guns from great distances, dropped from the air, and sent through the air by aeroplanes, and submarines, and have several varieties of poison gases, and are considering the judicious use of them in the next war. It is not only that the weapons have changed their form. They have become more powerful. A few bombs would have completely destroyed Jerusalem. There are a great many more modern wars than there were in any ancient time. There is continually inventing weapons that will change the age and destruction more widely.

The weapons have changed, but war is still the same. It still means the loss of property, the loss of the accumulated wealth of a nation. The men who bear the brunt of it are mutilated, death in its most horrible form is the lot of many. Then in addition to the men who are killed in the line of duty there are numberless others who are maimed, as among the ancient Babylonians. We see many of the atrocities credited to Germany in the last war were spread for their propagation. Atrocities are always committed on both sides. When the blood lust is aroused, men are killed, women are raped, and so it will always be. There is war. The women and children are killed, just as in Jerusalem. The allies sought to starve not a single nation into surrender, and it was suffered most from the lack of nourishment. It takes a toll of lives, and also of property. France, of Belgium. Five out of ten of our own government expects to spend the year 1930 will go for wars, past, present, and future. A war that snuffed out the national life of Judah, 2500 years ago. A few years ago that had taken up the sword perished by the sword. It has continued to drain the life blood of the world. Last war threatened to destroy our Western civilization. Many think that another great war is inevitable. And yet most people still think that there is something glorious, something romantic about war. What is it that gives war its glamour and its appeal?

2. The Prevention of War. The war of the 6th century B. C. could have been avoided. If Zedekiah had followed Jeremiah's advice it would have been avoided. Would it be avoided today? Get it out of your mind that the Bible teaches that there will be wars. It teaches no such thing. Lucia Ames Mead writes in her book "The Prevention of War": "The wars between nations can and ought to be prevented. It has become futile for the nations to fight for the national advantage, whatever may be the result. Wars and revolts and revolutions within nations are not due to human nature which is unchangeable since the days of Plato. Our environments change, but human instincts remain the same. War is due to the failure of the highest units of human organization to adopt the methods which have worked successfully for the smaller units of city, state, and provinces with this statement or not?"

All the nations of the world have signed the following covenant: "The nations of the world solemnly declare in the names of all peoples that they condemn recourse to war by any nation or combination of nations as a means of settling international controversies, and that they condemn the use of force by any nation or combination of nations as a means of settling international controversies. The high contracting parties agree that any future agreement or settlement of all disputes or of any dispute of whatever origin they may arise among them, shall never be based on the use of force. What value does it have if it certainly will not prevent wars unless they are written in the hearts of the people of the world?"

Our General Assembly meeting just closed adopted the following resolution: "The position of our church is that the function of the church is purely spiritual. We believe that this is the only way of war as well as in times of peace. We should never again bless a war, or be instrument in the promotion of war. We commune in the leadership in establishing law war. We believe that the Church as spiritual mission should write the principles on the hearts of its peoples, and we urge all those who teach or preach in the church in the U. S." Do you think that right in adopting this resolution? Why?

 try out the duty which it entails?
 advocates of peace oppose the R.O.T.C.
 and colleges, especially in church schools.
 ing or not? Does it or does it not create our future intellectual leaders the feeling natural and inevitable? Should America catch the navy of England or not? Should world Court?

RECORD IN MISSIONS

E. W. Smith, D.D.
 below is a part of Doctor Smith's address is report to the Assembly at Montreal.

still need missionaries? The question is Southern States every third person is an member. In China there is less than one. "So big is the field that if we could use Christian workers available and add missionaries available, they will form small band which can touch only a little vast field waiting for Christian cultivation? A Chinese Christian leader said months ago.

Chinese Church want more missionaries?
 ing and pleading for them, for mission-humble and holy and loving lives the the life and spirit of Jesus Christ. Listen to, the greatest of all the Chinese leaders, of the General Assembly of the Church China. Hear his appeal to us. "Christianity says, "who can introduce men and Jesus are needed in China now more Our people are rubbing their eyes, they tip-toe, and with outstretched hands are trying to see Jesus."

Church's Record Last Year

st-piercing sight of a mighty nation with its begging us to give them the knowledge now to our own Church, and what do we see a falling off in Foreign Mission gifts this year of $477,000. We see our Foreign Mission during this last year giving only a small help to our overworked missionaries, of our candidates that we cannot send without cutting down the cost of last year's regular $209,000, the smallest cost figure in five years. The receipts of our Committee for the last year are short even of that reduced amount

Whose Fault Is It?

of the Foreign Mission Committee and not. The Committee has handled the matter well, and the Foreign Mission office pastors and people, before Sunday schools, and Men's Organizations, their duty obligations.

the poverty of our people? We are the poorest is or ever has been, and of that wealth Christians have their full share. Floods and the flue and the failure of banks and have had their effect of course, but certainly enough to give far more than an average cents a week per member, which was our Foreign Mission gift for last year. Look at our motor cars, our conveniences, our luxuries,—are they not proofs to God and to men that we might have done and could have done had more of the spirit of our blessed

Spirit an Essential of Christlikeness is us, as my final word, to the root of the matter. What is the one supreme aim of this Assembly? What is the one supreme aim of the church and every true Christian?

 to ourselves, and to bring others to be,
 whom He did foreknow He also did conform to the image of His Son."
 We have it. To be co-workers with God to Christlikeness, is our supreme function. But, if our people fail to see that the mission is essential of Christlikeness. And too many pastors and elders acquiesce in that tragic fighting it both publicly and from house to house. The Christ our people are taught to conform to, to a lamentable extent not the real Christ, the full-orbed Christ of the Bible, but a mutilated Christ, a mis-shapen and diminished Christ, a little, selfish Christ. Proof of this is, and the result of it is, thousands of our people think of Foreign Mission as Christianity plus, something added to the Christian religion, a post-graduate course, to be taken by religious enthusiasts, never realizing the ABC of Christianity, the very essence of church members, church officers, ministers who may not only preach in His name, but who stand at the devil's elbow and do many wonderful works.

 They are like Him, we shall never have the blessed Lord, so long as we absorb ourselves in our narrow circle and turn a deaf ear to the world, so long as we are among those who pronounce as "blind, seeing only what is before them as the very opposite of such a spirit.
 We see Him before the first Christmas and look at the manger. We see Him there amid the Father's House, the center of heaven's life and joy. But He is not content. We see Him listening; listening to what. To the praises of heaven? No. He is listening to the cry of our little far away foreign planet in its sin and misery and want. And His great heart responded to our need. And the first ship that ever bore a missionary away from the love and light of home to a foreign shore, sailed from the port of heaven, and it bore our Lord Jesus Christ, going forth to reach the unreached.

We see Him again, with the multitudes pressing on Him and beseeching Him to stay with them. But He says, "No." Why? Because compulsion is on Him to go, the compulsion of the unreached. "I must preach the Kingdom of God to other cities also."

We see Him again, standing with His little flock of disciples. His love enfolds them. But we see Him looking beyond them, with His great heart in His eyes, and we hear Him saying, "Other sheep I have which are not of this fold; them also I must bring." Let us thank God for that world-heart of our Lord; for every Christian in this house was among those "other sheep," of whom He was thinking and for whom He was longing.

We see Him again, surrounded by His Jewish disciples who are eagerly asking, "Lord, wilt Thou at this time restore again the Kingdom to Israel?" Had that spirit prevailed Christianity would never have gotten outside of Palestine, and you and I would be heathen today.
 But He rebukes their narrowness and He charges them that the Kingdom they must win for Him is bounded not by the limits of Israel but by the rim of the world.

And when the hour comes for Him to go, and the ascension cloud is waiting for Him, what is still the uppermost thought in His heart? At that final moment what is He thinking of? He is thinking of the unreached, and the last words that fall from His lips are these,
 "unto the uttermost part of the earth."

This it is to be Christlike, and this is what our Lord means when to His Church and to every disciple he says, "Follow Me."

OBJECTIONS TO THE ANNUITY PLAN

H. F. Beaty

May I call attention to some serious defects and wrongs in the Annuity Plan, without charging that it is intentional on the part of the Committee? I believe that the majority have accepted it without a careful examination, thinking that it is a kind of Insurance, that pays back according to what each one pays in. But it is wrong for the church to demand that an underpaid minister care for himself in old age out of the miserably small salary that is not sufficient for his needs now.
 Note also that he will not receive the "minimum" of $600 from the ministerial relief for prior service unless
 (1) he enters the Annuity Plan the first year, (2) pays in full during each fiscal year the full amount, (3) his church enters the first year, (4) his church pays in full each year, (5) he renders at least ten years of service.

Why Distribute According to Former Salary?

(1) "When one has pitched his living on a certain scale it is exceedingly difficult to lower." (2) "The large church will give a large annual payment toward the pension of its own pastor, when it would not give if others are to share equally with its pastor." Are these the only excuses for injustice? Will the rich churches not enter the plan unless their ministers receive the "Lion's share?"
 Has our church reached such a condition that those who have the wealth are determined to pay large salaries to their pastors and to provide abundantly for them in old age, while they are reducing their benevolent budget resulting in the starving of the mission workers now and in old age? No, I cannot believe that our well paid ministers and the big churches are guilty of this. (Read I.
 Sam. 2:29; Eli's sin and its penalty). The argument that "the benefits in old age should not be equal any more than that the salaries should be equal" involves the plan in a serious difficulty. (Background Sketched 9 and 16.) . . . "The sin and folly of sending . . . into difficult fields of labor and denying them . . ." "The one inglorious mark of our Church's history has been the failure to provide for the men in small, hard mission fields . . ."
 Yet this plan not only perpetuates these wrongs when funds can be secured to alleviate the wronged ministers, but like the Pharisees (Mt. 23:4) "adds to the burdens and does not lift a finger to help the underpaid worker!"

(1) When the salary is less than $1200 he has to pay a greater per cent. (2) The majority of these churches either cannot or will not pay the seven and one-half per cent, thus "penalizing" the pastor to lose all or pay all.
 In the case of a salary of $800, the $120 required by the fund is 15 per cent of the salary. (3) The full amount must be paid during the fiscal year or be rejected. Doctor Sweets states that "almost every day" ministers write him that they have had to surrender their insurance policies after borrowing to pay living expenses, and that "a hundred within two years" have asked for other work to make a living salary. This indicates that 500 or 600 of our ministers are in such circumstances that they cannot spare the amount necessary to join the plan.
 And if the churches are not concerned enough to keep their pastors fed now, they certainly will not care if he starves when he has moved on, which too often they are planning and plotting now.

It is wrong to introduce "finances" into every phase of the minister's life, and worse to brand as "paupers" those who do the self-sacrificing work in our mission fields. Without this work there can be little growth in any church. Why should those who do this necessary and difficult work be less cared for than those who come later and reap the rewards and enjoy the comforts of good salaries?

Other Remunerations. Many ministers could not live on the salary that they receive but for the gifts of food, etc., they constantly receive. In order not to be discriminated against in old age he, must send in to the fund two and one-half per cent, and have his church send seven and one-half of the value of every ham, chicken, bag of potatoes, etc., and also count in the value of the good dinners he eats among them, for all comes into his meager support!

There are other objections to the Plan, among them being (1) the discrimination against the widow because of the length of time she has been married, (2) the effect this plan will have on the Home and Foreign Mission funds, (3) the great power exercised by the administrators of the Fund, and (4) the necessity at the age of 65 to quit all work or not receive any help.

Suggestions

1. Eliminate all "time limits" except for those coming from other denominations. 2. Receive from those who wish to send it, the two and one-half per cent so as to care for themselves better in old age. 3. Administer all other funds so as to give a maximum to the totally disabled, and contributing to make up this maximum to those who are able to help support themselves. The church is not responsible for the difference in living costs, nor for the higher standard some ministers may adopt, but she is responsible for administering God's Funds justly to those in need.

(This article is published at special request.—Editor.)

A MEMORIAL CHAPEL TO JEFFERSON DAVIS

To the Editor:

Having been a life long admirer of the famous Christian statesman, Jefferson Davis and believing him to be, as indeed a majority of Americans do, one of the outstanding men of our country, I am deeply interested in any movement to perpetuate his memory through an appropriate and suitable memorial.

The fact that I have not seen or read in the papers or periodicals any mention of any attempt having been made to start a movement toward the erection of a Jefferson Davis Memorial Chapel, prompts me to write to ask if such a memorial has not been considered and if not, your idea as to the practicability of it. I note such a memorial has been erected in memory of other famous statesmen and it occurs to me that no more fitting tribute could be paid by the American people to one of its most famous statesmen, than a Jefferson Davis Memorial Chapel erected at one of the leading colleges or universities in the South.

Sincerely appreciating your consideration, I am,
 Yours very truly,
 W. Earl Hopper.

Long Branch, N. J.

(A $200,000 auditorium and armory has just been erected in Charlotte, N. C., and is proposed that the edifice be dedicated to Jefferson Davis. The 39th Confederate Re-union has just been held in this new building. The opening event was the commemoration of Davis' birthday.—Editor.)

THEY ARE WAITING ON YOU

Where is your treasure?

Christ said to lay up your treasures in Heaven and someone has also said the best way to lay up your treasures in Heaven is to lay them up in someone who is going there.

Amid the hills of the Cumberland Mountains in old Kentucky are hundreds of splendid, bright boys and girls eager for an education, willing to work for it. Stuart Robinson stands ready to give them this opportunity and at the same time cast around them those Christian influences that shall lead them to Christ and send them out to win others for Him.

Just one thing is lacking—the money to supply provisions for children during the nine months they are in school. This is your opportunity. A large number of the fifty-four who joined our church during the past year work as scholarship students who might have been lost to the Kingdom but for the help of you or someone else. Will you invest some of your means in these splendid youth of the mountains and thus lay up in Heaven treasures for all eternity?

One hundred and twenty-five dollars will pay board, room, light, heat, tuition, all expenses for one pupil for next year. Any amount, large or small will help swell the fund of $3500.00 which we are attempting to raise toward this end. Shall be glad to have you make check to Stuart Robinson School and send to Blackey, Ky.

LITERATURE FOR THE NAVY

Eleven ships of the United States Navy recently spent two weeks in the New York Harbor and on the Hudson.
 Representatives of the American Tract Society took this occasion as an opportunity to distribute Christian Literature where it would be much appreciated and do a vast amount of good. Booklets and Tracts to the number of 90,000 were given to the 11,250 men of the Navy.

EDITORIAL

(Continued from Page Three)

of God's sovereignty and man's election.

That man should be the object of the electing love of the infinite God from all eternity lifts man to a height far above all created beings, and gives to man a sense of personal worth that makes it impossible for him long to submit to any King or Kaiser.

This conception of man's dignity and worth is what made the Ironsides of Cromwell irresistible; what made Stonewall Jackson the great man that he was; and what makes men, even to-day pay homage to the spirit of Puritanism.

Man compared with God is as the dust in the balance, but compared with other men he is the equal of any.

CHURCH NEWS

DR. LINGLE ELECTED PRESIDENT OF DAVIDSON COLLEGE

Dr. Walter L. Lingle, President of Assembly's Training School, Richmond, Va., and President of Board of Trustees of Davidson College, was elected President of Davidson College on Tuesday, June 4, and Dr. W. J. Martin was elected president emeritus, with salary.

Dr. Lingle has not decided but will defer his decision until he returns to Richmond and presents the matter to the Board of Trustees of the Training School.

COLUMBIA-ON-LAKE GEORGE

July-August, 1929—Fifth Season

What Williamstown is for statecraft, what Woods' Hole is for science, what Peterborough is for music, literature and art, Columbia-on-Lake George bids fair to become among Christian leaders.

Dr. White brings together each summer presidents of colleges, universities and seminaries, and professors in the departments of church history, psychology, philosophy, Bible, theology, religious education, and other related departments. Attendance is by invitation. The groups, averaging ten to twenty-five members, meet for ten days each.

The general subject of the conference is "The Functioning of the Group, with special reference to the more efficient functioning of the Christian Church." Special study will be given during the coming season to a consecutive group study of the Reformation Period. Professor Hermelink of Marburg writes:

"By a new understanding of the Reformation and its fundamental Protestant principles, and by a reaching out on the other hand to divergent forms of Christianity as shown in the great conference of Stockholm and Lausanne, the theologians of Germany will acquire a new understanding of their own distinctive position and of the tasks that await them in the future."

Two hundred and forty leaders during the past four years have gathered together round the conference table and are today cordial endorsers of Columbiana. The plan is that there shall be the freest and fullest conference. Dr. White was led to establish these conferences by the discriminating suggestion: "We must rediscover, as Wesley did, the function of the group." He believes that the way to deal with the differences that separate Christian workers is by face to face conference, carried on in a spirit of confidence and good will.

Columbiana—the word commemorating Columbia and his work on the island of Iona—is the name of a fine estate located just north of Silver Bay, Lake George, New York. The property was acquired several years ago by The Biblical Seminary in New York, of which Dr. Wilbert W. White is President.

CORRECTIONS IN SABBATH SCHOOL REPORT

In the May 8, 1929, issue of the Standard there were published certain "Extracts from the Sixty-eighth Annual Report of the Executive Committee of Publication and School Work," as presented to the Committee by the Executive Secretary. Certain changes were, however, made by order of the Committee before the report was approved for submission to the General Assembly. A copy of the complete report in its final form may be had free upon request to the Committee at Box No. 1176, Richmond, Virginia.—J. W. F.

PERSONAL

The many friends of Mrs. Winsborough will be happy to know that she is improving day by day in health and is growing stronger as the time passes. Her address is 917 Kirby Place, Shreveport, Louisiana.

NORTH CAROLINA

Henderson—The work of demolishing the old church building in order to make way for the new one is now well under way. All of the woodwork has been removed and the brick walls are being rapidly torn down. It is expected that the ground will be cleared and that the excavating preparatory to laying the foundations of the new church will begin early in June.

During the time that the congregation is without a place of worship services are being held in the Court House. On yesterday there was a good attendance at both Sunday School and church services.

The mid-week prayer services are being held with the Methodist Protestants in their church building, and a friendly rivalry has sprung up as to which congregation will have the largest attendance.

On last Wednesday there were 27 Methodist Protestants and 30 Presbyterians, and each pastor is hoping that his people will be in the majority this week. Rev. R. A. Hunter and Rev. W. C. Cumming the pastors of the two churches, are taking turns conducting these services.

Greensboro—The Church of the Covenant celebrated its 23rd anniversary on May 12, 1929. Dr. Ernest Trice Thompson of Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, preached at both services on that day. He greatly delighted very large congregations with his messages. In the morning he preached on "The Progressive Revelation of God"—"I will be that I will be." In the evening he discussed "Unanswered Prayer." This was a great day with the Church. There were 51 additions to the membership by letter and by profession. This makes 59 who have united with the Church since the beginning of the new Church year. During the Church year 1927-28 this Church led the Synod of North Carolina in the number of additions by profession of faith, and was sixth in the Assembly.

The Church has a splendid force of workers: J. A. Redhead, Jr., who graduated from Union Theological Seminary this year, is pastor's assistant for the summer; Miss Janet MacDonald is Church hostess; and Mrs. Grace Horton Williams is secretary. R. Murphy Williams is the first and only pastor that the Church has had.

Roanoke Rapids—The following report of the year's work was read to the congregation. Work was begun in June, and regular preaching services and prayer meetings have been held. The attendance at the Sunday services has almost doubled. The Sunday School has been reorganized and regular worship programs, conducted by the pupils, have been carried on every Sunday. The total membership of the Sunday School has increased by over fifty per cent. This splendid report of the Sunday School has been due to the work of the supervision of Mr. E. B. Manning and Mrs. Bradley. Last summer a Vacation Bible School was conducted for two weeks. The attendance was not very large but plans this year are being made to take care of at least a hundred or more. Two ladies from the Assembly's Training School are to be here to help with the school. Five boys and girls were taken to the Intermediate camp at Massanetta and others went to the Young People's camp at Raleigh, the pastor and his wife teaching at both camps. In the fall a Young People's Society was started with a membership of fourteen which has grown to an enrollment of sixty with an average attendance of forty. The Young People have been very active and loyal. The men have been organized into "The Men of the Church" and we have had some splendid programs. The Men's Bible class has grown and tripled itself through their work and the work of the teacher, A. L. Clark. Last Sunday the attendance was 28. The average attendance at the monthly programs of the "Men of the Church" has been 26. Our Woman's Auxiliary has been very active under the splendid leadership of its president, Mrs. F. L. Nash, and was second only to the Auxiliary of the West Durham Church in Granville Presbyterian. The total budget of the church for the past year was $3,800 and for the coming year this was raised to $4,100.00. The deacons conducted the every member canvass and the budget was over-subscribed. The building committee appointed to provide a manse purchased an ideal cottage adjacent to the Church and put it in good condition for the total sum of $6,000.00. This has been financed through the Building and Loan Association. A home Visitation Evangelistic campaign was conducted in co-operation with three other churches of this community and our men and women went on a week's work of active personal evangelism. Thirty-six have already come into the membership of the Church through this work and there will be ten or more in the next few Sundays. During the year 23 have been added to the Church by letter and 27 by confession of faith, making a total of 50. This splendid report has been made possible only through the loyalty and work of the whole church. There has been a fine spirit of co-operation and unity, and we face the coming year with faith that the good work will be added too.

S. H. Bradley, Pastor.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Fort Hill Church—Under the auspices of the four churches located at Clemson College, plans are on foot for a second Daily Vacation Bible School early in June. The school during the summer of 1928 was a marked success, and it is hoped that such a school will grow to be a permanent attraction during the summers. The pastors of the four churches are in accord with the organization of such a school, and at meetings held during the past week plans were formulated for the one during June. No definite dates have as yet been fixed.

The family of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McHugh are receiving the sympathy of their friends in their recent bereavement by the death of their eldest son, Lieutenant James Beaty McHugh. Lieutenant McHugh was an outstanding pilot in the aviation service, located at Nicaragua for more than a year. He was killed in an airplane accident on April 13th in Nicaragua. His body was brought to the United States and laid to rest in Arlington National Cemetery on May 2nd. In addition to his parents and one brother, Lieutenant McHugh is survived by his wife and one little daughter. Lieutenant McHugh was a member of the Fort Hill Presbyterian Church, and was an outstanding young man in character, service and devotion to duty. Just before his death he had been recommended by the air service for decoration for skill and bravery.

With the close of May, which marks also the close of the regular college session, Fort Hill Church will be closed during June, July and August, except for the weekly Sunday School services. As usual, the church will unite with the other churches in the community during the summer months for church services. At these services the four local ministers have regular terms for preaching, in this way each one receiving more than a month's vacation.

M. S. B., Church Correspondent.

VIRGINIA

Petersburg—The second Church had the pleasure of a visit from two of its members on the Foreign Field, Rev. A. Hoyt Miller, who sailed from New York Thursday to resume their labors in Mutoto. At day evening prayer service, Mr. Miller joyfully and joyfully of the reasons which led to his return to Africa. A reception followed. Mr. Miller was presented with a sizable contribution toward the cost of the automobile which has been so sorely needed in his work.

On May 10th Dr. Conant of the Moody Institute faculty will begin a ten days series of studies here. The Second Church has been blessed in past years by the ministries of Dr. Guille of the Moody Institute, and the congregation is looking forward, hopefully, to a fresh manifestation of the Spirit in the result of Dr. Conant's coming.

The Church has just completed the Member Canvass in its history in which both for expense and benevolence, was a record. Late in March the accumulated debt of the past three years were wiped out by the officers of the Church.

Under the vigorous and wise leadership of D. T. Caldwell, the Church is making gains not only in numbers and in efficient service, but in the deeper things of the spirit.

Charlottesville—The "Daily Progress" has formally installed as active pastor of the Presbyterian Church. The installation service was a charge of a commission of the West Virginia Synod. Rev. W. Kyle Smith presided at the questions to the pastor and the congregation.

The sermon for the occasion was by Rev. W. Taliaferro Thompson, professor of education in the Union Theological Seminary. Dr. George L. Petrie, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, delivered the charge to the pastor. The charge to the congregation was by Dr. Maurice Allen, professor of philosophy at Hampden Sydney College.

Staunton—Lexington Presbytery, with a disapproving vote, disapproved of union with the Presbyterian Church and expressed the hope that such a union would be discouraged.

Richmond, Ginter Park Presbyterian—The annual report of this Church shows that 1928 persons were received into the membership during the past year. The membership today, is five hundred and fifty-one.

The total contributions during the year were $41,866.53. Of this sum, $22,380.22 went to the General Assembly, $14,486.31 for local church expenses, and $5,000.00 was used to complete the church lot.

This congregation has heartily enjoyed the visit of Rev. A. J. Kliggerman, Director of the Neighborhood House of Baltimore, Md., in his work among the Jews, in that city.

OKLAHOMA

Weatherford—We have just finished a meeting in the First Presbyterian Church. A. Rolle, superintendent of Home Missions, evangelism in the Synod, preached at a Bible hour at 10 A. M., for which the preaching was sound and strong, and talks extremely good. Dr. Rolle was very much pleased by his addresses to school civic clubs. The difficulty of holding the many activities that are always going on there can scarcely be found a place there are not two engagements calling for the attendance of the people. Our people at these meetings and we feel sure are more concentrated service. There are more will come into the Church soon.

The Weatherford Church is doing well that is already bearing fruit. Dr. J. A. one of our elders is supplying the pulpit a month at Erick, 100 miles west of Weatherford. Dr. McLaughlin has also been the help of the Weatherford pastor, of getting organized at Arapaho, 18 miles northwest of Weatherford. We conduct services at Arapaho where we have purchased a church and have been doing some work in the county southeast of Weatherford. This county has a Sunday School with an enrollment of 100. If we can carry on this work we will either organize a Church or enroll quite a number in the Weatherford Church from there. There are over two and a half million people in Oklahoma and all the churches combined have a membership of less than 400,000. Less than 1% of the inhabitants of Oklahoma have any connection whatever. This is a state of very much wealth. The monetary income in 1928 amounted to one and one-half billion from oil $508,000,000, manufacture $500,000,000, farm products $500,000,000. Here is a great missionary endeavor. The county is the greatest opportunity. The Home Missions are far too small in comparison to demand. The Atlanta Committee spend for per annum through Mangum Presbytery comprises about one-third of the state's income.

We would like to make special mention of the work done by Rev. Plummer Smith, on his missionary work from Africa. Mr. Smith has been weeks visiting all the churches in Man of the churches in Durant and Indian He has done intensive work, which will later interest in Foreign Missions, and of great help in Home Mission Evangelism of the special features of Mr. Smith's in the public schools. He has spoken school children and college students at Mr. Smith says the offerings made his traveling expenses. We extend Messrs. Smith and Grant for this good C. F. H.

KENTUCKY

Commencement is always a gratifying loose ends of the year's activities are our workers find much joy in seeing ordinary times the fruits of their faithful commencement exercises were unthis year. On Friday, May 3, the children of the grades, under the direction Marie Strouse, Ola Dysart and Katie B. and Mrs. Marguerite Ripley, presented "Land of Spring," beautiful in itself and presented. This was followed by a one-act "Saves the Day," most creditably the Junior High School, directed by a Spratt. Saturday was given to an good work done by the Domestic of Miss Della Kirk; a delicious supper the Junior Class to the Seniors, visit- and faculty; and the Music Recital, a boys' chorus. Morning, Rev. George Belk, of Versailles, sermon to the graduates on "Success," practical, helpful message to all. At the after a devotional talk by Mr. Belk, the was partaken of by a good crowd of friends. A drama contest on Monday eight stude- for a gold medal offered by Dr. of Jackson. After a close contest the prizes to Landern Childers, of is, our only boy from outside the state. bert was voted a close second. A high that to a surprising extent lacked the rich flavor, was the "Winning of Joy," a large crowd on Monday evening. Miss on was in charge of this.

as Commencement Day, and after a ess by Dr. Chas. J. Turck, president of ge, honors were awarded, certificates nine graduates of the Junior High diplomas to eight graduates of the high following prizes were awarded: to Opal highest grade made in the high school gold piece, given by Mr. June Jett, of $15 in cash, given by Mr. and Mrs. of St. Louis; to Elsie Short for the t grade, $10 also given by Mr. and Mrs. ony Brewer and Scott Risner, of the School, similar prizes were awarded given by Miss Bertha Sidwell, of Los May Hensley, for showing the greatest improvement, a five-dollar gold piece, as Alice Porter, of Louisville. For the oh alf-scholarships for next year, val- ere given the two students voted by the all-around students in the High School nior High, respectively. These were Mr. J. D. McKibben, of Augusta, Ky., na C. Kimball, of Springfield, Ky., and y Scott Brewer and Lee Minnix. A e was the announcement of a full schol- ed by "Unknown Friends," to the stu- the best record in the Department of scholarship, worth $100, was won by are of the Commencement Day was the of diplomas and Bibles, donated by the erver, and the Committee of Publica- students who had perfectly recited the chism. A prize of $5.00 for the best ed by Mr. Robt. S. Crowe, our prin- Scott Brewer, while the second prize given Ruth McQuinn, and Grace Rob- by the judge to be equally worthy.

TEXAS

Nine persons have recently been re- membership of the First Presbyterian rkana, Texas. The ladies of the Auxil- church recently celebrated their annual y with a pageant. There was a good e offering was for two Mexican girls' pastor, Dr. Fred Zollicoffer Browne, returned from Dallas, Texas, where he Commencement Address to the class the Evangelical Theological College of e subject "Lifting Up a Standard." e commencement exercises the honorary ctor of Divinity (D.D.) was conferred b the College.

tery of Fort Worth met in the Broad- in Fort Worth, Texas, April 16th pped with sermon by the Moderator Rev. nham.

we 21 ministers and 21 elders present. Riviere, D.D., of Cleburne, was elected ad Rev. B. W. Baker, of Itasca, tempor-

A Cockerell, of Graham Church, was re- de the care of the Presbytery as a can- nistry.

F Applewhite and Mr. Chas. A. Tucker eological Seminary were licensed and th will take up the work in Home Mis- s the close of the Seminary, Mr. Apple- Rcoee and Spur, and Mr. Tucker at Rule da

The doctrinal sermon on "Inspiration of the Scrip- tures" was preached by Rev. Alexander Gray of Itasca.

Austin, First Southern Church—Five additional elders and eight deacons have recently been elected and inducted into their respective offices. The elders are O. D. Parker, Paschal Buford, J. H. Nelson, A. M. Woolsey, and P. H. Dougherty. The deacons, F. A. Griffith, Andrew Gribble, W. H. Kendal, Joe C. Matthews, Ernest Von Rosenburg, Wm. Warrick, Roy West, and E. C. Wood.

Rev. W. R. Minter, pastor, preached the week be- fore Easter on Jesus, as follows: The Teacher, The Healer, The Atoner, The King, The Comforter, The Risen One, and The Coming One.

On April 7th, the seventh Annual Memorial Ser- vice was held in first half of the Morning Service Hour, and the Lord's Supper was observed during the second half of this hour. This memorial service, held on the first Sunday of each April has proven to be one of the tenderest and most impressive ser- vices of the year.

WEST VIRGINIA

Charleston—Rev. Frank C. Brown, D.D., of Bream Memorial Church, started on Sunday, April 7, his tenth year as pastor of this Church. In the nine years Dr. Brown has served the Church he has received 1,656 into membership. Of this number 1,283 have been by profession. The fourth annual Vol- unteer Day held Sunday, March 24, was very suc- cessful. The Church year ending March 31 closed another banner period. The report to Kanawha Presbytery shows 122 new members added on exam- ination and fifty-five on certificate—a total of 177 additions for the year. The sum of $24,694.21 was contributed to benevolent causes, and $24,585.94 to current expenses and salaries, totaling $49,280.15 for all purposes during the Church year. Bream Sun- day School is the largest of any denomination in the state of West Virginia. The Church member- ship is the largest in the Synod.

H. S. Jarrett.

Charleston — From May the 1st through the 12th the congregation of Cabin Creek Church had the pleasure of hearing the Rev. C. R. Garrison, super- intendent of Home Missions for Kanawha Presby- tery. The sermons were excellent. The attendance was very good, averaging about twice the number of members of the Church. On the last Sunday four adults were received into the communion of the Church, two by reinstatement of their faith and two by confession of their faith. This Church is a mis- sion of the First Church Charleston.—J. B. M.

The Rev. Frank S. Jones resigned the pastorate of the Clothier Church during the spring meeting of Kanawha Presbytery. His resignation was accepted to take effect April 30th. The Rev. G. C. Bowman has been called to the Clothier Church, and will begin his work there June 1st. For the last year Mr. Bowman has been supplying the Kenova Church. J. B. M.

Piedmont—Ten new members were received into this Church recently by the pastor, Rev. R. Frederick Brown. Fifty new members have been received dur- ing the last seven months, forty-seven came on pro- fession of faith and three by letter. This Church is experiencing rapid growth under the leadership of the pastor who is an evangelist as well as a pastor. His methods are sane and unique, enlisting the whole Church in evangelism. Every department of the Church is well organized and a splendid spirit of optimism prevails.—Cor.

Mullens—Our Church has just closed the greatest year in its history. All departments of the Church are in a healthy condition, and there have been fifty-two additions to the Church during the year, forty of these coming on confession of faith. Our two mission Sunday Schools are doing a good work, with an enrollment of 150. We are grateful to our Heavenly Father for His blessing, and we look forward to the coming year as a wonderful opportunity for service.—G. C. C.

Bluefield—On Easter the Westminster Church closed a most interesting meeting under the leader- ship of Rev. Wade C. Smith, and his "Little Jetts." Prior to his coming prayer meetings among both the men and the women were held. Mr. Smith be- gan his meeting on Volunteer Day. His first sermon on "Tithing" was the greatest message of this kind ever heard by many in this Church. The result of this sermon alone almost justified his coming. A tithe's league known as "The 'Prove Me Now' Club" has been started. Mr. Smith's ministry among us opened a new vista in the service of personal evan- gelism among us. His "Come and See" conference is to be continued in the Mid-Week Prayer Meeting. The messages of the man, as he wove into them his "Little Jetts" challenged a deep interest, especially with the young people. During his stay here he ad- dressed Concord College at Athens, West Va., and a neighborhood Grammar School and the City High School. On Easter a large delegation of the Knight Templars attended the morning service. At that time twenty-four persons were received into the Church, sixteen coming from the Sunday School, and the Communion Class. The annual report for the past year is as follows: Upon confession—26; by letter 28, whole number of communicants 448, adult baptisms 9, infant 10, Sunday School enrollment 376, total to benevolences $5,173, current expense $5,828, building expense $16,402, miscellaneous $316, a total of $31,719. Westminster sent her commissioners to Bluestone Presbytery this year, which met April 15th at Mullens. She left the Synod of Vir- ginia with all obligations to the yearly financial budget met.—C. G. Gunn.

Kanawha Presbytery convened in the Kanawha- Salines Church, Malden, W. Va., at 3:00 P. M., April 16, 1929, and adjourned the afternoon of the 17th. It was delightfully entertained in the dining room of the Church, as well as in the homes of the mem- bers.

Officers: The Rev. J. E. Cousar, Jr., was elected moderator and the Rev. C. H. Pritchard, permanent clerk.

Attendance: Four ministers out of 27 were absent, and 16 churches out of 32 were not represented by ruling elders, making an attendance of 39.

Heard: The Presbytery heard sermons by the Rev. A. M. Stout, at the request of the retiring moderator, Dr. F. J. Brooke, Jr., by Dr. J. Blanton Belk and on the evening after adjournment by Dr. F. C. Brown at the installation of the new pastor of this Church, the Rev. Wilson W. Moore, and addresses by Dr. J. Leslie French, Dr. F. H. Barron on education, the Rev. Wm. H. Ritchie, field worker of the Scripture Gift Mission, and Mr. J. A. Naff, field worker of the Men-of-the-Church, of the Assembly's Commit- tee at Atlanta.

Received: Dr. J. Blanton Belk from St. John's Presbytery, who has since been installed pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Huntington, W. Va., and the Rev. A. M. Stout from the Church of the Brethren who is working in the Presbytery's Home Mission Field around Man, W. Va.

Overture: The Presbytery sent an overture to the Assembly at Montreat favoring union with the United Presbyterian Church.

Annuity Fund: This plan was referred to an In- terim Committee to report at the fall meeting, of which Dr. W. T. Palmer is chairman.

Fall Meeting: Presbytery adjourned to meet in the Huntington First Church, Tuesday, September 24th, at 11:00 A. M. J. Blair Morton, S. C.

The Presbytery of Bluestone held its stated spring meeting in the First Presbyterian Church, Mullens, W. Va., April 15, 16, 1929.

Sixteen ministers and eleven ruling elders were present.

Rev. H. H. Orr, of Richmond, was elected moder- ator, and Rev. B. B. Breitenhirt, of Gilbert, tempor- ary clerk.

In accordance with the action of the Synod of Virginia last fall, the five Presbyterian U. S. Churches in Mercer Co., viz.: First and Westminster churches of Bluefield, and churches in Princeton, Bramwell, and Matoaka, were enrolled in Bluestone Presbytery. The addition of these churches greatly strengthens this presbytery which has a densely populated Home Mission territory in the coal fields of southeastern West Virginia.

The pastors of these churches, viz.: Rev. S. W. Moore, D.D., Rev. C. G. Gunn, and Rev. C. H. Phipps were received from Montgomery Presbytery. Rev. Locke White was also received from Mont- gomery Presbytery and a commission appointed to install him as pastor of the Montgomery Church in Bluestone Presbytery.

Licentiate William E. Moreau who finishes at Union Theological Seminary this spring was dis- missed to Central Mississippi Presbytery where he goes to take up the work of the ministry.

Action endorsing the Ministers' Annuity Plan put forward by the Executive Committee of Christian Education and Ministerial Relief was taken by Pres- bytery.

Favorable action on union with the United Pres- byterian Church was also taken.

The stated fall meeting is to be held in the First Presbyterian Church, Williamson, W. Va.

W. C. Neel, Stated Clerk.

Huntington—Rev. J. Blanton Belk, D.D., and fam- ily arrived on April 11th. Dr. Belk recently accepted a second unanimous call to the pastorate of this Church made vacant last summer by the resignation of Dr. J. Layton Mauze.

A reception committee was at the manse to meet Dr. Belk and family, who had driven through from Orlando, Florida, by auto. The spacious home on Tenth Ave., completely renovated, had all furniture placed, and a steaming evening dinner all prepared. Everything that could possibly be done to make these new friends feel at home had been done. Dr. Belk has begun his ministry here under the most promising conditions. Miss Mary Vic Boyle, secre- tary to Dr. Belk, accompanied him to Huntington.

On last Sunday, April 21st, a commission of Kana- wha Presbytery installed Dr. Belk as pastor. Rev. Dr. Ernest Thompson, of Charleston, officiated, as- sisted by Dr. Bosch, associate pastor of our Church. Rev. Dr. Andrew W. Blackwood, of Louisville The- ological Seminary, preached the installation sermon.

The Piedmont Presbyterian Church revival, which was conducted by the pastor, Rev. R. Frederick Brown, during the last two weeks, was brought to a successful close Easter Sunday night with a forceful message from the preacher on the theme, "The Power of Calvary." Throughout the services the pastor emphasized the place and importance of personal work in evangelism. He has had considerable expe- rience in this type of evangelism and he insists that he has never known this method to fail. Under his sane and enthusiastic leadership the religious con- sciousness of the Church was awakened and twenty- five teams of personal workers have been engaged in personal work during the past two weeks.

(Continued on page 12)

OBITUARIES

IN MEMORIAM

JOHN SINCLAIR MUNCE

On the 23rd day of February, 1929, John Sinclair Munce, President of the Board of Trustees of Union Theological Seminary, Virginia, died at his home in Richmond, Va., after a brief illness.

Mr. Munce was born in Ireland August 8, 1860, and came of that Scotch-Irish stock which has contributed so largely to the strength of Presbyterianism in America. He came to the United States in 1884 and became a resident of Richmond in 1885. He immediately connected himself with the Second Presbyterian Church of this city and was elected to the eldership in 1898.

Mr. Munce was first connected with the Seminary when he was made a member of the Building Committee at the time of the removal of the institution to Richmond. From 1901-1907 he served as Treasurer. In 1908 he was elected a member of the Board and succeeded Judge George L. Christian as Chairman of the Executive Committee in 1924.

In the death of Mr. Munce the Seminary has suffered a great loss. The strongest testimonial of the esteem in which he was held as well as the value of his services to this institution will be found in the simple statement of those who knew him best and were associated with him longest in this particular service. One of the oldest members of the Board says of Him:

"He gave of his time, money and influence to the Seminary. In the Executive Committee he was wise in judgment, helpful in suggestions, and meant much to the Board and the Seminary by his fine handling of all matters. Dr. Moore leaned on him, as did all of us."

Another says: "No institution, religious or secular, has ever had a more loyal and devoted officer than Mr. Munce. He has proved himself in the twenty-five years of service he has given to Union Theological Seminary. As to his beautiful life and character another member of our committee expressed the feeling many of us have, that his passing away was just translation into that brighter and more beautiful life."

The present President of the Seminary found in his wise council, his responsiveness, his sympathy and encouragement an unfailing help and support. The Secretary and Treasurer bears testimony that in the business affairs of the Seminary the services of Mr. Munce were invaluable and that he gave the same care to the affairs of this institution that he gave to his own business.

Mr. Munce lived an intensely busy and useful life. His interests were many and the sphere of his activities was wide; but among all those specific things which engaged his attention and enlisted his interest Union Seminary stood first.

The foregoing memorial was adopted by the Board of Trustees of Union Theological Seminary on May 7, 1929.

William R. Miller, Secretary.

JOHN SINCLAIR MUNCE 1860-1929

John Sinclair Munce was born in Donegal County, Ireland, August 8, 1860. His father was David Munce, a civil engineer of marked ability. His mother was Mary Lockhart Munce, of whom her son said that he counted the strongest influence for good in his life to have been that of his early home, presided over by "a godly mother, refined and cultured, gentle and loving in heart and disposition, who trained her sons to fear God and love their fellowmen, and was herself loved by all who knew her."

His first business engagement was with the firm of J. and T. Sinclair, of Belfast, Ireland, when he was but thirteen years old, but he went on with regular study in evening classes until he was nineteen. This habit of evening study, along lines which interested him, he continued throughout his life.

For eleven years, 1873-1884, he remained with J. and T. Sinclair. In 1884, acting on the advice of Mr. Thomas Sinclair, he came to America to take a position with Kingan and Company. After a year spent in Indiana, in 1885, he came to Virginia to open up the business of that company throughout the southeastern states.

On arriving in Richmond, Mr. Munce presented letters of personal introduction to Rev. Moses D. Hodge, D.D., who gave to him a friendship exceptional in its intimacy to a man so much younger, and rich in its influence for good.

The associations of his early home, the example of the men who formed his standards in commercial life, and the steadfast purpose of Mr. Munce himself tended to make him a public spirited man of business, deeply interested in all that concerns honorable and efficient civic life and methods, as well as the church life and public morality of the city of his adoption. While steadily engaged in organizing and developing new business, and experiencing the pressure of engagements involved in successful work of that kind, he never hesitated to take time from his own concerns for such services to the Church and the community as he felt he might be able efficiently to render.

Mr. Munce's work as a practical sociologist in the interest of employees resulted in the starting in 1894 of a movement for the adoption of a general half-holiday in Richmond; as a director of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce and an assistant in the organization of its Traffic Bureau; as a member for several years of the Board of Trustees of the University College of Medicine of Richmond; as one of the organizers, at the General Assembly at Atlanta in 1900, of the Ministers' Relief Fund of the Presbyterian Church of the United States; as an active proponent of the interests of the Y. M. C. A.; as a member of our Committee of Publication and of the Executive Committee of the Pan Presbyterian Council, and, for twenty years an active member of the Board of Trustees of Washington and Lee University—can only be mentioned here, but his record in each bristles with usefulness. He rendered exceptional service to Union Theological Seminary—its Treasurer from 1901 to 1907, and as a member of its Board of Trustees, of which he was President from 1921 to 1929. He displayed an intelligent interest in and a supervision of the affairs of the institution, the permanent and increasing value of which cannot be easily exaggerated.

On April 17, 1888, Mr. Munce married Miss Lelia Gilliam, daughter of George W. Gilliam, a prominent tobacco manufacturer of Richmond. They had four sons, three of whom are living. Mrs. Munce died in the year 1915, and in June, 1923, Mr. Munce was married to Miss Ella E. Dunford, who survives him.

He died at his home in Richmond, after a brief illness, on February 23, 1929.

Such is a meagre record of a life well lived towards God and man—a life not only full but overflowing with well-directed effort—a life in which self was minimized and the Kingdom of God and His righteousness were sought first. Verily may we sing of such a life:

"Servant of God, well done—

Rest from thy loved employ."

By us who were intimately associated with him, his loss is keenly felt, as the passing of a striking personality like his must always be felt. His disposition was a uniform and a peculiarly happy one—sweet, without affectation, cordial, cheerful, even optimistic—necessarily an inspiration to those who were honored and stimulated by his leadership.

And now he rests from his labors, but his works will assuredly follow him. Activities like his must have an ever-broadening effectiveness, the limits of which will be disclosed only in eternity. We are saddened at our own loss but we rejoice in the record and results of a notable life and thank God that so much of it was spent in His service and in the superintendence and care of the interests of this institution.

Resolved, that this minute be spread upon our records and that a copy be sent to the widow and each of the sons of Mr. Munce, as an expression of our affectionate sympathy.

The foregoing memorial was adopted by the Executive Committee of Union Theological Seminary on May 6, 1929.

William R. Miller, Secretary.

MRS. N. A. LINDSAY

Whereas, God in His allwise providence has called from among us our beloved friend and member, Mrs. N. A. Lindsay, be it resolved by the Woman's Auxiliary of Galatia Presbyterian Church: That we bow in humble submission to God's will in all things.

A Friend.

Hope Mills, N. C.

REV. LEWIS BOYD TATE

E. W. Smith

The home-going of this veteran and beloved missionary carries a pang to a wide circle of friends in this country and Korea. It takes our minds back to the beginning of our Church's greatly blest missionary work in Korea, since Mr. Tate was the first to apply for missionary service in that country, and formed one of the seven that sailed in 1892 to start our Korean Mission.

It was my great privilege some years ago to be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Tate at Chunju, and to travel horseback, with Mr. Tate as my companion, on visits to outstations in his field. He was a delightful companion, and his interesting and illuminating narratives of his pioneer missionary experience I shall never forget.

To his friend and fellow missionary, Rev. Dr. Luther McCutchan, we are indebted for the following sketch of the life and labors of this noble servant of God:

"On February 9, 1929, while on a lecture tour in Southern Florida, Lewis Boyd Tate, pioneer Southern Presbyterian missionary to Korea, faithful friend, loyal servant of the Lord Jesus Christ, answered the summons of his Lord with these simple words, 'I will soon be home.' Conscious as he was of his Master's call, eager to enter into the glory 'which eye hath not seen nor ear heard nor hath it entered into the heart of man to conceive,' this simple utterance as he lay dying in a fisherman's boat is very expressive of the hope of this dear brother.

"I will soon be home.' During his long fruitful service as a missionary in Korea Mr. Tate spent year by year the greater part of his time away from home. Yet he loved his home as dearly as any man I ever knew. While curbing any undue hastiness, he ever turned his face eagerly homeward, when the duties of a particular country trip were completed.

"His home was not only a place of rest, comfort, and gladness to himself, but he shared that gladness with his friends. As a host Mr. Tate was happy and entertaining, and his home was a restful, wholesome haven for his many friends—missionary, Korean, and Japanese.

"I will soon be home.' He is thinking of the dear Saviour whom he served in the buoyancy of youth, fellowshiped within the fulness of mature Christian manhood, and rejoiced in the eventide of a long useful life.

"Lewis Boyd Tate was born in Calloway County, Missouri, September 28, 1862, was educated at Westminster College, Fulton, Missouri, and took his theological course at McCormick Seminary, 1891 he applied to the Executive Commission Missions for work in Korea. He was one to apply. The Executive Committee but he continued to urge the claims of his until in September of 1892 he and six others were sent to open work for our Church in that land. He labored here for 33 years until impaired by his retirement in 1925, and he made his home at Frostproof, Florida. During his term of service in Korea he did much village to village work, founded 67 meeting places and churches, and baptized hundreds of converts.

"Mr. Tate was a wise, sympathetic person. He had personal magnetism, and a fine mind with a generous supply of what we call 'horse sense.' He loved to introduce his men individually, to bring to bear upon them the claims which God has on men, especially redemption. He had a fine eye, a firm character, a warm heart. He won many to Christ.

"Mr. Tate was a member of the Bible Commission in Korea from its first organization. He was also the representative on the Severance League Board at Seoul, and on the Presbyterian Seminary Board at Pyeng Yang, Korea. A man of the latter at the time of his retirement gave much time and careful thought to his work and the Board of the Seminary.

"It was his privilege during a long service to sit with the Committee of missionaries in the work of drawing up the Constitution of the Korean Presbyterian Church. In the work of Church Government and Law.

"Mr. Tate believed thoroughly the adage that 'no play makes Jack a dull boy.' He was a life a baseball fan, a tennis lover, an enthusiast, and an ardent fisherman. By practical sports he kept his body fit and his spirit maintained a wholesome, sane outlook. He got contacts with certain groups of people, some of us fail to reach.

"Mr. Tate had spoken four times on Key West on mission work in Korea, then had gone to Key West where he spoke the night to a large and enthusiastic audience.

The pastor of Key West writes: "Those of us who listened to the helpful message of this honored servant of Christ, Rev. L. B. Tate in the Presbyterian Church at Key West, thought that we were listening to a message of this honored servant of Christ. His head was white and hoary, the voice was strong, vigorous man, and we all felt that in the presence of a strong, keen person."

The short time that he was in Key West was sufficient to win for the deceased a large number of friends. He impressed all with his pure, absolute devotion to the cause of Jesus Christ.

"On Tuesday morning out in the open bosom of the placid waters, surrounded by the beauties of nature and engaged in his favorite sport, he answered the call of the Divine Master's voice, 'I shall soon be home.' How fitting a conclusion to a life spent in close touch with nature's God! How peacefully this life's flight back to Him who created it and deemed it and who sanctified it! How fitting a house of clay is laid down until the Lord reunites with the sanctified soul, to enter into inheritance eternal in the heavens!

"Four years ago on the eve of Mr. Tate's departure from Korea the Governor of North Carolina gave a banquet in honor of the man who gave himself unreservedly for the welfare of his people. A few days later this Presbyterian missionary was escorted 200 miles with Mr. Tate to Frostproof, Florida, to sail forever from Korea; respect and appreciation were passed in the Church Court and by Mission. But his prayer and of public speaking in behalf of his cause so near his heart continued. Today we have lost one of her best friends. May the Lord send someone who will come quickly to carry on which this His faithful servant with his unselfish labor was used to begin.

"Know ye not that there is a prince who shall fall in this day in Israel? The Korea the large circle of friends both native and foreign, as well as the entire Southern Presbyterian Church bemoan the death of this valiant soldier of the cross and we extend sincere love and sympathy to Mr. Tate and Miss Mattie Tate in their affliction. Assure them of our prayers in their behalf.

J. H. LUMPKIN, D.D.

The Presbyterian Ministers' Association of Tennessee, would record their deep love and appreciation of Rev. J. H. Lumpkin, who has recently been called to "a brighter home." He was gentle in manner, courteous in speech, but fixed and loyal to his convictions. He was a man of the line, letting the chips fall where they may, but they never fell roughly. It was always suaviter in modo, fortiter in re. His mind was analytic, profound, enriched by mature and wide learning. He was a master in debate, drew his opponent closer to him—a rare preparation for eternity—were among his last words they came with the attitude of one ready to lay down his crown "at the feet of the Lamb," saying to us; to thy name give glory." He was a man of that never having "sowed wild oats" but he had attained to the mental tenet of Calvinism as a living conviction that "by the grace of God I am what I am." For many a day we shall miss his pleasant counsel and his good fellowship.

Memphis, Tenn., adopted May 13, 1929.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

God in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to remove from our midst the soul of our departed brother, Be it resolved:

1. In the death of Miss Mary Lee Seawell, wife of the late Mr. Jonesboro Presbyterian Church, the Womans' Auxiliary have lost a most valued member.

2. That while her place in the Church and in the home has been made vacant by the call to the life beyond, yet we feel that it is better to dwell in the life beyond than to dwell in the life here, and out among us here, than to sorrow over her passing, for her life was a life of selfless and loving deeds, carrying courage and cheer.

3. That her life was an example of piety and devotion upon church duties, especially upon the Sabbath, devotion to family and to the community.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the session of the church to be made a part of its record, that a copy be sent to the family, and a copy to the Presbyterian Standard for publication.

our sympathy in the home-going of our beloved brother and fellow officer, therefore, be it resolved:

1. That without questioning, we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who knoweth the end from the beginning, and who doeth all things according to the counsel of His own will and for His own glory.

2. That we shall miss the presence and help of our brother, but we will remember his service for his Master and his loyalty to the church which he loved and in the history of which he was always interested.

3. That we commend the sorrowing loved ones to the comfort and tender care of Him who hath said, "What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt know hereafter."

4. That we present a copy of these resolutions to the session of the church to be made a part of its record, that a copy be sent to the family, and a copy to the Presbyterian Standard for publication.

Wallace, N. C.

By the Deacons of Rockfish Church.

WARD C. BLANCHARD

Whereas it has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from our midst, in his young manhood, our beloved brother and fellow elder, Mr. Ward C. Blanchard, who was an active, faithful and consecrated elder in Rockfish Church, therefore, be it resolved by the session:

1. That in the death of Ward Blanchard, the Church has lost a loyal and consistent member and elder, the community a useful, highly esteemed and honored citizen; the wife and children a beloved companion and devoted father.

2. That we feel deeply the loss we have sustained in the death of this godly man, whose life was a constant testimony to the truth and power of the Christian faith, and we bear loving tribute to his fidelity to duty, and to his zeal and untiring interest in the Master's service both as an officer in the Church and as a teacher in the Sabbath School.

3. That we extend to the stricken family our deepest sympathy while commending them to the tender care and faithful keeping of that God whom the absent one loved, trusted, and served. May they think of him as waiting yonder for their coming.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon our minutes, a copy sent to the family, and a copy to the Presbyterian Standard for publication.

Wallace, N. C.

By the Deacons of Rockfish Church.

IN MEMORIAM
W. S. LEROY

The session of the First Presbyterian Church of Goldsboro, North Carolina, has suffered a keen and continuing loss in the passing of W. S. LeRoy. He had been a member of our body since the 10th day of July, 1921. He always served with devotion and fidelity, responding to every call made upon his time, his energy or his purse. He had a fine spirit of fellowship and helpful co-operation.

Brother LeRoy was in the prime of his splendid manhood when the call to life beyond came to him on January 8, 1929. He was in the 49th year of his age. His life presents the view of a broken shaft, but one that is beautifully carved and proportionate to where the break occurs. He was a well-balanced Christian gentleman.

His comrades here miss his fine companionship and friendly association. He was cordial and sincere and made friends easily. He was kindly disposed and sympathetic in his nature and his walk and his talk among men revealed his high conception of the truth of the brotherhood of man under the Fatherhood of God.

Brother LeRoy took life seriously and lived it earnestly. He had an unusual devotion to duty, both in secular and in church affairs. He gave himself unstintingly to the work of his employment, to the service of his community and to the advancement of the causes of his church. He was dependable, and rejoiced to do what he could to promote worthwhile things.

While we grieve at his going, we have an abiding faith that he would not have us grieve, that he now works in a more perfect clime and enjoys a fuller and more glorious existence, that he lives in the presence of the Saviour from Whom he has received the triumphant welcome, "Come, thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joys of thy Lord."

In the death of W. S. LeRoy our church has lost a consecrated member, one whose example is an inspiration and a benediction. His family has lost a husband and father whose tenderness and devotion were crowning virtues in a typical Christian home. The state has lost a loyal citizen who was useful, up-standing and deeply concerned for the public welfare.

Goldsboro, N. C.

Session of First Presbyterian Church.

GOD'S GREAT GRACE TO GAIN

Isaiah 1:18 is one of the great, outstanding passages of the Bible and it presents a unique situation—God the holy One against whom all have sinned condescending to reason with the sinner, promising perfect cleansing from his sins, scarlet or crimson though they may be.

In Genesis 4:11 we have a similar passage though not so understood by perhaps the best majority of Bible students. In this verse God is reasoning with Cain the sinner, telling him how he may get rid of his sins. In Isaiah 1:18 the end is proclaimed. In Genesis 4:11 the means of attaining that end is given. Many use this verse as a means of terrifying the sinner as to the awful results of sin. All right, if the verse did not teach exactly the reverse. God is dealing with a sinner present about to add murder to his sins of disobedience, jealousy, hatred, and no doubt contemplated murder, sins already rankling in his heart, trying to get him to avail himself of a present remedy. Notice the verse and its setting.

According to the record, there were only four people in Adam's family, himself, his wife, and two sons, Cain and Abel. Abel was a shepherd and Cain a farmer. Cain offered to God of the fruits of the earth. Abel offered of the firstlings of the flock. To this God had respect, but did not respect Cain's offering. Taking the whole trend of Scripture into account and the promise given to animal sacrifice Adam must have been under divine tutelage, and Abel was obedient to this instruction in the offering of a lamb.

Seeing his offering was rejected Cain's countenance fell. Anger and disappointment showed themselves and God noticed it, and said, "Cain, why art thou wroth and why is thy countenance fallen? If thou doest well, shalt thou not be accepted? and if thou doest not well (quoting as given in this version) sin lieth at the door. And unto thee shall be his desire and thou shall rule over him." Gen. 4:11. Note, this was a present condition—lieth at the door. Then the sentence, or verse is not good English. It can not be parsed as it stands. The pronouns his and him have no antecedents. The passage was given to the principal of a large grammar school who worked at it awhile and said that it could not be diagrammed. In the next place, one word has not been properly translated, and the solution of the problem is in the correct rendering of the word "sin." But we'll approach that from the beginning of the verse with such slight paraphrasing as will help to clear the situation. Imagine God as saying, "Cain, if you had done well as your brother, you would be accepted, but since you have not done well, there is yet a remedy for you in the sin-offering which lieth at the door, a lamb just like the one Abel offered, and unto thee is his desire—what you will, he submits to—and you shall rule over him, offer him for sacrifice if you will." Now you have an antecedent for the pronouns, and, in the suggestion of the sin-offering, an illustration of God's great love for a lost sinner.

The word rendered sin here is from a word which also means a sin-offering. Literally it means a killing—any sort of killing, murder, manslaughter, etc. But there are several usages of the word which show that it has also a sacrificial meaning. In Gen. 22:10 when Abraham put forth his hand to "slay" his son, for slay we have the same word as the one under discussion. So we may read, "Abraham stretched forth his hand to kill a sacrificial killing." So in Exodus 12:6 and other places, when ordered to "kill" the passover this word does service. Here, too, is a sacrificial killing, and it is what would have taken place if Cain had acted on God's suggestion—there would have been the killing of a sacrificial killing. There was the lamb at the tent door. It awaited its master's will for he had complete domination over this lamb.

No, God was not warning Cain of the awful dangers of future sins but in love and mercy proposing the remedy for present sins. It is just like God to do just that. What did Cain care about the lions and tigers and hyenas of future sins? He had a grave problem on hand that he had to deal with. God was trying to help him with his problem and offered the only perfect solution.

The man who listens to God's reasoning will have the joy of seeing the scarlet and crimson of his sins pale into the whiteness of snow. An Cain would have seen his jealousy and hatred and stubbornness give way to the grace that would lift the cloud from his face and the burdens from his heart and that would bring him with his brother Abel into the same accepted and delightful relationship that Abel enjoyed when God smiled upon his acceptable offering. God was not uttering a warning but giving a gracious invitation.

Mount Holly, N. C.

George F. Robertson.

BIBLES IN COLORS

"Except in expensive editions I hardly ever see a Bible which is made outwardly attractive. Why is it necessary that almost always black should be regarded as suitable for a volume which contains good tidings? To the man who already has learned to love his Bible this will seem an absurdly small matter, but I am sure that unattractive and inartistic binding and type are discouraging to many." Such was the recent complaint registered by the Bishop of Southwark, the Rev. Cyril Garbett, a feeling which has also been made vocal by pastors on this side of the Atlantic.

In reply to these demands for beauty and color in the binding of Scripture the American Bible Society announces the availability in English of its attractive and colorful "Penny Portion" edition of the New Testament in eleven volumes. These one-cent booklets, of which the Society distributes annually millions of copies, may be secured in either blue, cream, green, or brown with a bright cover design in three colors. In addition to the New Testament the Book of Proverbs may also be obtained in this unusual binding.

The Society would further announce that for several years the home office in New York City has been publishing morocco Bibles bound in purple, red, maroon, brown, green and even in white. A white leather Bible, an illustration of which accompanies this article, is suitable for brides who may carry it during the wedding ceremony in addition to the usual bridal bouquet.

American Bible Society
WHITE BIBLE

CHARLES HENRY RIVENBARK

near Wallace, N. C., May 6, 1929, Mr. Charles Henry Rivenbark passed from his earthly life to the home beyond, in the eighty-fourth year of his age. He spent his entire life in the home of his birth and for twenty-four years in the home of his father through the same section, but having reached the age limit, he retired from the service of his father and, in a measure, reaped the fruits of his faithfulness in his younger days.

Mr. Rivenbark was married twice. His first wife was Bostic, who preceded him to the life beyond. To this union there were born of whom three sons are now living; and Vaden Rivenbark, of Hopewell, Va., and Charles Rivenbark, of Wallace, N. C. The second wife was Miss Callie Dixon who proved a helpful and who gently, tenderly, ministered to his wants in his declining years. He is left behind to mourn his going.

Mr. Rivenbark was united with Rockfish Church on profession of his faith in the ministry of Rev. Duncan Black. At his death he had been a member of the church for nearly fifty years, and a deacon in the church for nearly ten years. As he grew older his interest in the church and Sabbath School seemed to be evident not only from his conversation but from the eagerness and regularity with which he attended these services. In his latter years he was afflicted and at times suffered greatly, but health permitted his place was seldom vacant. He took special interest in the church, of which he was for a time superintendent. It was evident that the end came to him, not in surprise, for in his hours of suffering he was calm and seemed to anticipate the change and seemed to anticipate the change and seemed to anticipate the change. His hope was indicated by his beautiful hymn:

"Friend we have in Jesus,
Sins and griefs to bear,
It is my privilege to carry
My burden to God in prayer."

CHARLES HENRY RIVENBARK

On the morning of March 6, 1929, Mr. Charles Henry Rivenbark, one of the oldest members, and for many years a deacon in Rockfish Church, was called to the life beyond. His life was a life of scenes and labors of earth to his glory in the life beyond. We, the board of deacons, desire to express our sympathy to his usefulness and to extend to his family our sympathy in the passing of our beloved and fellow officer, therefore, be it resolved:

1. That we cannot understand all the doings of God, but we humbly bow to the will of Him who calls us to work together for good to them who are called with full assurance that He makes no mistake.

2. That we feel the loss of our brother, we appreciate his loyalty to, and his service to the Church and the Sabbath School, both of which were proven by his regular attendance upon the same, and that often when he was feeble in body we commend the bereaved ones to the tender mercy of that Saviour whom they trusted and worshipped, and of whom they thought and sing in the language of the hymn:

"Friend we have in Jesus,
Sins and griefs to bear,
It is my privilege to carry
My burden to God in prayer."

3. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the session of the church to be made a part of the church record, a copy to the family, and a copy to the Presbyterian Standard for publication.

By the Deacons of Rockfish Church.

LUTHER B. CARR

On the morning of March 6, 1929, Mr. Luther B. Carr, for forty-two years a deacon in Rockfish Church, heard the call to the life beyond, after a protracted illness, and is everlastingly rewarded. We, the board of deacons, desire to express to his family our sympathy and for the congregation,

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

(Continued from page 5)

Then came Mrs. Baxter Benton, representing the Woman's Auxiliary, telling the Mexican woman that we too honor the Virgin Mary, but as a woman, and where they were failing was their not praying to the true God. As they knelt in prayer a prayer was sung softly by Mrs. W. H. Morrison and Mrs. W. A. Henderson, after which a birthday offering was taken by Ruth Chandler and Mary Douglas Eubanks dressed as Mexican girls. The offering goes this year to build two schools for girls in Mexico. Mr. Chandler closed the pageant with a beautiful prayer for the schools in Mexico.

ANOTHER PAGEANT

One of the most delightful social events and successful financial ventures undertaken recently by the Woman's Auxiliary of the Farmville, N. C., Presbyterian Church, was the dinner and pageant given on Wednesday evening celebrating the birthday of the Auxiliary. The dinner, to which were invited all the members of the congregation, was served in the Rotary dining room at seven o'clock, the menu consisting of Brunswick stew and the usual accessories. The tables were tastefully decorated with bowls of spring flowers and lighted tapers in silver holders. At eight o'clock, the guests were invited to the auditorium on the second floor where the beautiful and impressive pageant "Hands Across the Rio Grande," was splendidly given. The cast of characters was as follows: Mrs. Ross—Mrs. J. M. Hobgood, Miss Beatty—Miss Mae Joyner, Miss McClellan—Mrs. Ethel Denton, Juan—Billy Morton, Mexican girls, Mesdames Chas. Baucom, John Stancill, Frank Dupree, Jr., G. R. Smith, W. G. Sheppard, Plato Monk, Misses Mamie Ruth Smith and Frances Joyner. The choir furnished appropriate music during the pageant. After the offering, which amounted to $23.00, was taken, a huge birthday pound cake, snowy white and gleaming with yellow candles was cut and served with fruit punch.

WOMEN MUST WIN AS WOMEN

Last week while she was in Columbia with the Chautauqua Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, former governor of Wyoming, made a short talk to a group of women with whom she was lunching as their special guest of honor.

One thing she said on that occasion is well worth passing on to women in general. This woman, who has undeniably achieved as high a position in American life as any woman of her generation in this country, said in effect, to other women:

"Do not deny your womanhood!"

"I have never," she said, "wanted to be a boy, never wished that I was a man, I am proud to be a woman, and both proud and thankful to be an American woman."

In these words, or rather in her feeling of pride and satisfaction in her sex, it seems to us, lies one of the causes of her rise to a place of unusual power and responsibility.

All through the ages, the dim ages for women, they have cried out:

"Oh, how I wish I were a boy!" or again: "Oh, to be a man!" and by this intensity of longing to be men have made the lot of women all the harder. For there grew up the deep inferiority complex from which many women still suffer. They couldn't do this; they would never be able to do that. Oh, a woman never could learn that; a woman must do only this and so. The big work in the world was for men. Men were the strong, the brave, the creative. Women were weak, stupid, helpless.

It was and still is this ingrained feeling that their sex hampers them that is keeping women in general back. Many have, and daily many others are, breaking through it, laughing at it, going ahead and doing whatever work they want.

It is this tacit admission of inferiority on their part that has so long kept women from her rightful position in the matter of wages. There will never be equal pay for equal work by men and women so long as men claim, and women do not dispute, that even where hours are equal, production and quality are equal, there is some indefinable touch about a man's work that makes it worth more.

Not by denying her sex, not by trying to be masculine, will women move forward. Not by admitting that her sex is an obstacle to her and a man's sex a boost to him can she achieve equal recognition of her work. Rather by developing to the full her powers as a woman and as a human being, will she reach her highest development.

Mrs. Ross, by her devotion to what we call womanly duties, by the use of her natural feminine charm, by the training and full employment of the mind, which is the gift of a human being and not of a man or a woman, has pointed the way upward and onward to other American woman.—Columbia State.

CENTRAL TEXAS PRESBYTERIAL

The twenty-fifth annual meeting of Central Texas Presbyterial was held in the First Presbyterian Church of Cameron, April 3-5. The meeting was well attended, with over one hundred representatives present, and the president, Mrs. J. M. Dyer, of Corsicana, occupied the chair.

The Devotional Services conducted by Miss Virginia Williams, of Austin, were very inspiring and helpful. The reports of officers and Auxiliaries were very encouraging and the spirit of unity and co-operation was uplifting. Miss Mary Louise Woodson, Director of Religious Education for Central Texas Presbyterial, told of her effort, and asked for aid in the Vacation Church School work, which was readily granted. Mr. J. E. Watts, President of the Home and School, for Orphans, at Itasca, told of the successful work done there, and asked to be remembered. The Assembly's Training School was brought to notice by Miss Marshall, of Corsicana, and the birthday offering by Mrs. M. Hannal, of Waco. The playlet: "Mrs. Ima Rusher vs. Central Texas Presbyterial," by Mrs. Geo. Begg, Austin, setting forth the plans, purposes, and accomplishments of the Presbyterial for the past twenty-five years, was at once amusing, enjoyable and impressive, reflecting much credit upon the author.

When the meeting adjourned the first afternoon, the visitors were carried in cars to the Country Club, where an enjoyable program was given by the young people under the direction of Mrs. Graham Gillis, after which a plate supper was served. Delightful music was rendered at each meeting by the choir, and friends of the hostess church.

The following officers were elected and installed:

President, Mrs. Geo. Begg, Austin; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. J. M. Sedgewick, Austin; Secretary of Spiritual Development, Mrs. W. S. Red, Austin; Secretary of Foreign Missions, Mrs. M. B. Conoly, Taylor; Secretary of Literature, Mrs. M. P. Dikeman, Temple; Secretary of Christian Education, Mrs. W. H. Mathews, Marlin; Secretary of S. P. & C. Missions, Miss Porter Rice, Corsicana.

At the close of the meeting, the retiring president was presented with a beautiful basket of flowers as an expression of the love and appreciation of her whole-hearted service. The next meeting will be in Taylor.

Mrs. J. M. Sedgewick, Corresponding Secretary.

MEETING OF ASHEVILLE PRESBYTERIAL APRIL 24, 25, 26

The meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of Asheville Presbyterial was held in Franklin, N. C. The sessions were well attended and the members enthusiastic for the work of the Auxiliaries. The reports showed the Auxiliaries to be up and doing for the work of the Master. The Presbyterial convened on the afternoon of the 24th at which time a communion service was held by Rev. J. A. Flanagan, of Franklin.

The evening meeting was devoted to the schools and colleges. Rev. J. H. Gruver, Superintendent, presented the Mountain Orphanage. Maxwell School was presented by the Superintendent, Mr. Watkins and a group of Maxwell boys. Montreat Normal School was presented by Prof. S. L. Woodward and Stonewall Jackson College by Mrs. W. B. Guerrant.

Thursday morning the reports of the Cause Secretaries were heard. The report of the Synodical was given by Mrs. S. W. Black of Bryson City. The Montreat Training School for Auxiliary Leaders was presented by Mrs. Preston Thomas of Asheville. During the sessions the Bible Hour was conducted beautifully and efficiently by Mrs. C. E. Dorsey, of Montreat.

Thursday afternoon session was distinguished by an interesting and helpful address by Mrs. F. B. Kegleg, President Appalachia Synodical, and a discussion of methods.

Thursday evening's session included a pageant on the Mexican Schools a talk on Montreat by Mrs. R. C. Anderson and a talk on China by Miss Moffat.

Friday morning the new officers were installed. Mrs. R. C. Anderson, who has been Presbyterial President for more than five years was elected Honorary President in recognition of her faithful stewardship. After disposing of the remaining business the Presbyterial adjourned to meet in Weaverville. Mrs. Jere Cooke, of Asheville, is the incoming President and Mrs. C. E. Dorsey, of Montreat, Vice-President.

The ladies of the Franklin Auxiliary were ideal hostesses and one of the high spots of the Presbyterial was the ride out to Maxwell School where a delightful feast was spread for all to enjoy. The delegates and visitors voted Franklin a delightful place in which to meet.

CHURCH NEWS

(Continued from page 9)

The results of the revival have been very gratifying. During the service Easter Sunday morning thirty-four members were received into the fellowship of the Church. This makes a total of forty members received by the pastor during the seven months he has been pastor here. There are many other applications for Church membership and they will be received in the near future. It has been said by many people that this was the greatest evangelistic service the Church has ever had. One person who has been in the Church a number of years said that she had never seen a service in the Church that was so wonderfully inspiring as the service Easter Sunday morning when thirty-four people lined up—reaching from one side of the Church to the other—to be received into the Church.

The music for the services was both appropriate and inspiring. The senior choir was conducted by Mr. C. B. Hardegen and the Sunbeam Chorus—composed of the children—was under the direction of Miss Rose McCombs, Mrs. Paul McCoy, Miss Isabelle Stanley and Miss Elsie Stump.

Members of the congregation have expressed themselves in highest terms concerning the results of the revival and also concerning the sane and able way the pastor conducted the revival. Every service was deeply spiritual and without sensationalism. The Church is in splendid spiritual condition and it faces the new Church year with promising prospects.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S D

YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOP

Sunday, June 16—The Price We Pa ship—Matt. 20:20-28; Luke 9:57-62; G

C. G. A.

Introduction

In day dreams each of us sees himself whom honor is due. We dream of being from the crowd to accomplish the hard t dream of being one of the crowd that is g and homage. There is nothing especially a dream as that. We enjoy being it. I attitudes are most noticeable because learned to accept leadership gracefully. I to be the "boss" and give the orders. T study the price of being a leader—the cho thing costs something, and it is up to decide whether we shall pay the price.

Obedience and Leadership

Before we can learn to give orders, w take orders and obey them. This is one of tials of being a good leader. Stanley Jone that young people go out as missionaries that they are going to be leaders, but th only a by-product of serving. We cannot be leaders, but trained to be servers. Lead low. Before we can learn to lead we must we must learn to obey. "Whosoever w among you shall shall be your minister; would be first among you shall be your

Sacrifice and Leadership

"And I will most gladly spend and be souls." The real leader will give himself leads. Selfish souls cannot be leaders bec instead of attract. To achieve leadership time, thought, money, and strength for ot study the needs of the group we lead and to lift our group up. The leader represents the world judges the group by the leader. there is always a battle to see which will the strongest wins out. But among men—Christians—physical strength may count v important thing is the willingness with w gives himself to others.

Humility and Leadership

We do not usually think of humility : leadership, do we? We grant that the on humble, but we usually think of the leader humility. The incident told in Matthew ? the necessity for humility. James and John themselves. They went so far as to ask t request the places of honor for them. But J that the really great ones were the ser service was done in love.

Humility does not come to us without e of the hardest lessons that the leader has cause it is so easy to brag about being t to put the blame of a failure on some one e is a joy, but it is also a responsibility. Th not conscious of his leadership because he in the welfare of the group.

To Whom Much is Given

Each of us has some gift. Our gifts differ our ability, so Paul tells us. Some of us w the power to direct a group, but the mo "second fiddle." But without the second orchestra would sound very flat. Let us s Kreisler has to say of his gifts to illustrate been saying about the attitude of the leade

"I was born with music in my system. I scores instinctively before I knew my AB gift of Providence. I did not acquire it. So deserve thanks for the music.

"Music is too sacred to be sold. And t prices the musical celebrities charge toda crime against society.

"I never look upon the money I earn a is public money. It is only a fund entruste for proper disbursement.

"I am constantly endeavoring to reduce the minimum. I feel morally guilty in orde meal, for it deprives some one else of a sli some child, perhaps, of a bottle of milk. My feels exactly the same way about these th You know what I eat; you know what I these years of my so-called success in music built a home for ourselves. Between it and the homeless in the world."

TENNESSEE

Columbia—The First Presbyterian Chu impressive and unusual service on the la March. After speaking of the importance an of the Sabbath School, the pastor, Rev. J. F. the newly elected officers and teachers in al to present themselves before the pulpit. Re of their privileges and the dignity of the charged them, and asked them to acknowl ingness to serve the Master in their respect.

On Easter Sunday, the Lord's Supper was a large congregation. One young man was letter and six young people from the Sunday public profession of their faith in Christ.

Since the last communion service seven h Church, by letter and seven on profession.

OPTIONAL

ING THE CHURCH
ns Why We Support Our Church

provides the place, leadership for the worship of h is the protector of our property being more valuable safer and virtues less in Christian institutions exist. of worship and work is a od every day in the year, all that is good, a call to y.
h is the conservator of the past, the creator of ideals t, and the torchbearer of progress.
is the great mother of child- ing them by baptism, edu- in her homes and schools. for service, preparing them ation; and, should they wan- the way, the Church is ever m in forgiving and restora sends a steady stream of men and women into every , making our schools religious, promoting civic reforms, carrying Christian ethics into economics, thus helping on the answer to her prayer, "Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done, as in heaven, so on earth."

The Church, through its ministers and members, is continually carrying on a ministry of consolation to the aged, the sick, the sorrowful, the tempted, the lonely, and the troubled—a service that never can be tabulated in reports nor paid for in gold—without which life for multitudes would be empty of meaning and hopelessly forlorn.

The Church proclaims the everlasting gospel of Christ's redeeming love and ever seeks to evangelize the neighborhood and the world.

See how intolerant religion is. She starts with what men have declared to be impossible. She refuses to bring down her standards. She insists that men must come up to her. No man is thoroughly religious, she declares, unless he does that which it seems so hard to do, unless he goes through this world untainted, as the sunbeam goes through the mist. Religion refuses to be degraded into a mere means for fulfilling the purposes of man's selfishness. She proclaims absolute standards, and will not lower them. She will not say to any man, weak and compromising with the world, "Well, your case is a hard one, and for you I waive a part of my demands. For you religion shall mean not to do this sin or that sin. These other sins, in consideration of your feebleness and temptations, I give you leave to do." Before every man, in the very thickest of the world's contagions, she stands and says with her unwavering voice, "Come out. Be separate. Keep yourself unspotted from the world."—Phillips Brooks.

ONE-DAY RELIGION ANALYZED
Francis C. Ellis, D.D.

It was the next Sabbath after Easter. The day was balmy and springlike. The Jones family has finished breakfast and all were making ready to go to church. Mr. Jones put on his hat and coat and went to get the car out of the garage.

As he walked through the yard, the glory of God's world came to him anew. The grass was springing up in all its green freshness. A little crocus lifted its head and seemed to ask: "What do you think of me?" A robin in a nearby tree was filling the air with song. Mr. Jones lifted his eyes for a moment and thanked God for making a thing so glorious as the springtime.

Suddenly he heard his neighbor's door open, and out stepped Mr. Jackson. The latter was in his shirt sleeves and had just arisen. As he observed Mr. Jones in the yard, he drawled a sleepy "Good morning."

"Are you going to church today?" said Mr. Jones.

"No, I guess not. I went on Easter, and that's about my limit."

"Why, I thought you were a member of the church," said Mr. Jones.

"Yes," his neighbor replied, "I've been a member of the church for a good many years."

Mr. Jones made no reply, but he did some real thinking as he took out his car, assembled his family, and started down the street toward the church. When he arrived and went inside, he observed that it was about one-half the congregation which completely filled the church on Easter morning. As he took his place in the pew, this thought was in his mind: We must have a good many "Jacksons" on our church roll!

This simple story might describe a situation which obtains today in every church. There are thousands upon thousands of church members who go to church only on Easter and Christmas. A record kept by one church for a single month indicated that fifty-six per cent of the membership was not present at a single service during that time. On any Sabbath out of the four, no more than thirty-six per cent of the members confronts the church today, and we are informed the problem is nationwide.

At once one is led to ask some questions of the member who goes to church but once a year. What if he went to his work but once a year? What if he came home to the family but once a year? If he were a student, what if he went to his school but once a year? What if he tried to exist on but one meal a year?

Ridiculous, one hears the reply! Yet no more so than the man who thinks his religious chores can all be done up on one day in the year. If religion is good for a particular day of the year, it is good for every day of the year. If our souls need nourishing at all, surely they need regular and constant times for feeding. If it is necessary to keep the batteries in our cars well filled, what of the spiritual battery we call the soul? If it shall continue to give out the power we need to live life at its best, we must keep it well filled with the things that worship brings to it. There is something stimulating about worship, praying, singing and listening together in the house of God.

Yes, we know all the excuses men make as to why they do not attend church regularly. We are prepared to admit that some are ill and cannot come. Some have to work seven days in the week, and are kept away. Others have little children, too small to bring. Yet, when all the reasons are in, the fact remains that fully fifty per cent of the folks could come if they would. Probably the real reason they do not come is that they have simply lost sight of the value of religion in life. It does not occupy a compelling place in their thought. What we need is a revival of the belief that religion is after all the foundation of all great living. As we build our lives upon the gospel of Jesus, we establish a firm foundation for the individual and social life. We learn also to build the superstructure.

Thousands of men, women and children went to the altar at Eastertime and took the vows of the church. They pledged their allegiance and their loyalty to Christ. Today there is a firm resolve in their hearts to be true to Him through all the days to come. They have taken their stand at the side of Almighty God, and have proclaimed to the world that they are not ashamed of the gospel of their Lord. Our hearts were cheered as we saw them. We beheld the kingdom coming with new glory.

What kind of members will they prove to be as the days come and go? Will they be like "Mr. Jones," upon whose shoulders the work of the church falls, but in whose heart is an unbounded joy that comes from service? Or will they become at length like "Mr. Jackson," who shares but little in the work of the kingdom, finally loses the vision, forgets the vow, and allows his heart to become cold? Our hope is that the tribe of "Jones" may be enlarged by all those who went to the altar at Eastertide.—From The Congregationalist.

Crystalized Memories

"Man is of few days. He cometh forth as a flower, and is cut down; he fleeth also as a shadow, and continueth not."

SUCH quotations constantly remind us of the short duration of life. But the memories of our loved ones who have passed on will continue to live in our hearts.

The monuments we select to maintain these memories, should be cut from a stone which will properly carry to many generations to come the messages entrusted to them. This means stone of durability, beauty, contrast and strength. Granite is the only stone which meets such requirements and many granites fail.

Winnsboro Granite
"The Silk of the Trade"

stands preeminently the most lasting, the most beautiful, and inscriptions on it the most legible.

Be sure that "Winnsboro Granite" is specified in your contract for monuments. Like other high quality materials, there are many inferior substitutes, which resemble this granite on first appearance, but do not possess its lasting qualities and permanent beauty, because they contain more deleterious elements, such as water, lime and iron. These elements tend to disintegration and discoloration.

Have your monument dealer furnish you with a personal guarantee from the quarries that the monument you purchase is cut in genuine Winnsboro Granite.

The certificate of the quarries is signed by B. H. Heyward, Treas., and General Manager, whose signature insures genuine Winnsboro Granite. A facsimile of this signature is reproduced below. Write for free descriptive literature.

Winnsboro Granite Corporation, Rion, S. C.

B. H. Heyward Treas. & Gen. Mgr.

CHILDREN

EDDIE TAKES THE THROTTLE

Eddie's my chum, and some times I don't know what to think about him. He just stands there and doesn't do anything, leaving everything for me to do. Like the day we wanted to ride in the cab of the steam engine down at the railroad station. There we were, watching the smoke coming out of the stack and listening to the steam as it escaped from the valves. And we would have been there yet, if I hadn't asked the engineer to give us a ride.

I asked him nice and he would have done it, I guess, if it wasn't for the rules.

"Nope," he said. "I'm sorry, boys. I understand how you feel, but it's against the company's orders to let anybody ride with me in the cab."

Eddie looked glum and so did I, but I just didn't stand there, like he did. I went over to the news stand, acting like I was going to buy a paper, but I was only trying to show the engineer that I didn't feel so badly about his refusing us. When I got back to where Eddie was standing, there was another man there, acting pretty excited. He had a bundle of letters in his hand.

"Here's a bunch of special deliveries for Mr. Heywood," he was saying to the engineer. "And I believe they are the reports he has been waiting for. He left an hour ago for the lookout station, and he won't be back for two days. Somebody has got to take these letters to him at once."

"I can take them as far as Copicut," replied the engineer. "But the lookout station, as you know, is up on top of the hill, and I couldn't exactly leave my train to deliver letters, no matter how important they were."

"That is true," agreed the man. "I guess the only way is to take them myself. I'll ride in the cab with you."

"Say, mister," said Eddie, as the engineer moved over to make room for his passenger. "Do you mind if I say something?"

"No," replied the engineer. "What is it?"

"How is it you can't let us ride in the cab and you can him?"

"That's a fair question, and I'll give you a fair answer. This man is Mr. Marston, the local agent for the railroad, and the rules about you don't apply to him."

"What's all this about?" asked the agent, looking at us for the first time.

"Two boys who want to take a ride in the cab."

"It's against the rules."

"That's what I've told them. Well, it's time to be going."

He looked down at the track and began to ring the bell. The train would have moved out and left us standing there, I guess, if I hadn't jumped forward and said: "How about next time, Mr. Engineer?" Not that my remark meant anything but the sound of my voice made Mr. Marston turn around again, and as he turned around, he must have had a wonderful idea, because he said:

"Wait a minute. Why can't I let these boys take my place? They want a cab ride, anyway, and when they get off at Copicut, they can take the letters up the hill to Mr. Heywood."

"That's a good idea," agreed the engineer; and Mr. Marston could tell by the way we climbed aboard that engine that it was all right with us! Eddie didn't say a word! It was all up to me to talk with Mr. Marston, and get the description of Mr. Heywood so that we wouldn't give the letters to the wrong man. But I noticed when we pulled out of the station, Eddie was watching the engineer pretty closely, to see how he worked the levers.

It was up to me, too, to start asking questions, or the engineer would have thought we were dumb, just sitting there watching the scenery go by. So I got interested in valves and levers and began to ask pretty keen questions. The engineer answered them all, and I nodded my head whether I understood or not. But Eddie just sat there. He listened all right, but you could tell by the way his eyes were open that a lot of it went away over his head.

Pretty soon the engineer turned to me and said:

"Let's have a look at the return addresses on those letters. Seems to

SUSIE MAY WINS

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color.)

BROWN-haired Teddy and YELLOW-haired Susie May are racing on their brand new roller skates and Susie May wins! They are having the race on the GRAY (use BLACK lightly) pavement in front of Susie May's BROWN roofed house. The house is GRAY with GREEN shutters and light YELLOW curtains hang in the windows.

Teddy wears a light BROWN suit and his tie is RED and YELLOW and his belt is BLACK.

Susie May wears a PURPLE dress (a very light PURPLE) with YELLOW diamonds for trimming. The bow of ribbon at her collar is BLACK. Her socks match the color scheme of her dress and her shoes are BROWN like Teddy's.

The grass is GREEN and there are a row of PINK (use RED lightly) cosmos, with YELLOW centers and GREEN leaves growing by the BROWN stone base of house.

The tree has very dark leaves and GRAY branches is BLUE and the children's cheeks and RED lips. skates can be colored BROWN straps and wheels.

Paint the border of PURPLE and the lettering—Susie May's winning color. May wins today!

me all of them aren't from the same party."

He turned away from the cab window, and as he took the letters he said to Eddie:

"You keep your eyes open, and if you see anything on the track, close the throttle and put on the air brakes."

Then he winked at me.

Eddie didn't see the wink, so he climbed up into the engineer's place and stuck his head out of the cab-window as if he was a veteran and this was his home stretch of track. He even put his hand on the throttle, and that madame smile.

Three minutes later, while the engineer was still looking at the return addresses, Eddie ducked his head in suddenly, threw all his weight on the throttle, closed it completely, and then ripped down the lever that put on the air emergency brakes.

"There's an auto—on the track!" he gasped.

"The throttle!" shouted the engineer.

"I did," replied Eddie. "And the brakes are on!"

We could hear them screeching and hissing as we tore down the track toward the stalled automobile. They slowed us up, though, quicker than you could imagine, and we came to a dead stop so suddenly that all of us were thrown against the control board of the engine. None of us could tell whether there had been a crash or not. I was afraid to look, but the engineer put his head out of the window, took a swift look and then pulled it back into the cab again.

"Thank goodness we came to a stop in time," he said. "For there is a woman at the wheel, and she has fainted."

We got out, and while Eddie ran to get a cup of water at a farmhouse, I helped some men who had come running up to push the car off the tracks. The men helped to bring the woman back to consciousness and then one of them said he knew her and would drive her safely back to her house. He said that she was the only one for miles around who still used the old road, which accounted for her being on a crossing that was usually deserted. She must have got stuck in the middle of the track, then lost her nerve when she saw the train coming.

"Well," said the engineer. "Lucky, that's all. Let's get on. Remember, we still have those letters to deliver to Mr. Heywood."

We got up into the cab again, me looking as if we were real engineers so as to impress the crowd, but Eddie just standing there like a boy looking the engine over for the first time. That got me a little peeved. I was just going to say something to him about looking a little more like a railroad man, when the engineer spoke to him first:

"Go ahead," he said. "See what you can do."

"You mean—start her up?"

"Sure! You stopped her, didn't you?"

So Eddie took off the brakes and opened the throttle.

"Ring the bell," instructed the engineer.

So Eddie rang the bell—and off we went, with him at the cab-window, looking—well, if I had been there instead of him, it would have looked great!

"Say," I said to the engineer, when we got going pretty fast again. "What's the idea of letting him do something and me standing here doing nothing. I'd like to have a chance once in a while."

The engineer looked at me and then looked at Eddie, who was still at the throttle. He must have seen the difference between us—I mean Eddie is so quiet and I'm so active: because when he turned around to me again, he said:

"Grab that shovel."

I grabbed it, and maybe work! Being the engineer, motive may be all right, but you. Do you think those letters have ever reached Mr. Heywood if I hadn't been there coal on that fire?

JUNIOR CROSS-WORD

1		2	3	4
		6
7	8
9					10
12					13
			14 15 16

- | | |
|-------------------------------|-----------------|
| Horizontal | Vertical |
| 1—Boy's sport | 1—Fires |
| 6—A month | open |
| 7—Din | 2—To c |
| 9—Doom | blow |
| 10—Hinder | 3—Com |
| 12—Anger | 4—Inter |
| 13—Luminous circle around sun | Good |
| 14—Locks | 5—Sprin |
| 15—Pronoun | 8—Rowi |
| 16—Land bordering the ocean | Impl |
| | 10—Bass |
| | 11—A lof |
| | mout |
| | 13—Old h |
| | has |
| | 14—Pron |

Four-Letter Word Sq

I fly high in the wind
I am a memorandum
I work in unison with my
I am a girl's name

Puzzle Answers on Pa

STORY

THE DAUGHTER OF A HERO

Myra Grant and Ellen King hurried along the country road toward home, for it looked as though another storm were coming.

"I really wouldn't mind getting caught in it," laughed Ellen, "but mother worries if any of us get wet. I can't see why, but she does, and so, if you have caught your breath, Myra, perhaps we had better run again."

The girls ran, Ellen gaily, Myra with grim determination, for Myra was afraid of the black clouds and all that they portended. It had taken every bit of will power she possessed to start for school that morning after last night's storm. It seemed to Myra that she had always been afraid; afraid of not only thunder and lightning, wind and rain, but of strange noises and dark corners, big dogs and many other things.

When she was a very little girl she would creep trembling into her mother's arms and mother would hold her tight and tell her nothing would hurt her. Then hand in hand they would investigate the fearful thing, and though she never found anything to justify them, yet upon another similar occasion the fears would return.

Some of them returned even now when she was a great girl of twelve years and a student at the junior high school. She never spoke of being afraid now, for she was ashamed.

To her classmates she seemed a shy, studious girl, caring for nothing but her books. None of them suspected that, though she occasionally went on hikes, she did not enjoy them for fear of snakes and other creeping things. But she longed for companionship.

"I can't run another step," gasped Ellen, sinking down upon the grass by the road side. "Do look; I believe the storm is going around!"

Myra looked nervously about. "Perhaps we had better go on," she said.

"Oh, sit down and rest," laughed Ellen. "We are only a short distance from your house now. Isn't Turtle Creek high!"

Turtle Creek, which flowed along the roadside, and which was normally a pleasant little stream, was now a rushing, raging torrent.

"Father says it is more than three feet higher since the rains," said Myra nervously.

Ellen laughed. "You look at that poor harmless creek as if you were afraid of it."

Myra forced a laugh, for she would not have Ellen suspect that the dark, deep waters, the branches of trees, and other evidences of recent storms that were floating swiftly on and on were to her, most terrifying.

As the girls rested, the threatening clouds receded into the horizon and the sun appeared. Myra wondered how long she could keep from her friends the fact that she was a coward. Oh, they must never know, never! She the daughter of a man who had received the Congressional medal for having single-handedly captured a machine-gun from the enemy during the Great War! She the daughter of the little mother who had bidden her soldier husband godspeed and had supported herself, little daughter, and baby son on the farm during his absence.

Friends said she too deserved a medal for her cheerfulness, her unceasing toil, her leadership in the patriotic organizations of the community.

Jimmy, her eight-year-old brother, was so very different from herself, Myra felt. He attended the country school and always went across the fields, even though cattle were pastured there.

Jimmy wasn't afraid of anything, Myra mused. He loved big dogs, he caught garter-snakes in his hands. He loved to wade in the shallow places of Turtle Creek, and he was learning to swim. Father would caution Jimmy about taking out the little boat alone, but Myra knew that both father and mother were very proud of Jimmy's fearlessness.

"His father's son," friends called him, although Jimmy looked like mother. She herself resembled her father in looks, but only in looks, the girl thought sadly.

"Why so quiet?" inquired Ellen. Then, without waiting for an answer, she went on: "Let's learn to swim this summer. Most of the town girls can."

MONEY IN OLD LETTERS

Look in the old trunk and send me all the old envelopes up to 1876. Do not remove the stamps. Will pay the highest prices.

GEORGE HAKES

290 Broadway New York

"We haven't as much time to spare as town girls have," evaded Myra. "I am planning to help mother a good deal with the flowers this summer, and I want to learn to sew."

"You are a queer girl, Myra," stated Ellen, tossing a pebble into the creek. "You could be the most popular girl in our class if you only would. You are pretty. You are," she repeated, seeing Myra's shy flush. "Maybe I shouldn't tell it, but some of the class want you for president because you are a good student, never quarrel, and are generous and brave."

"Brave!" exclaimed Myra.

"Of course, brave," asserted Ellen. "You can't help but be, for you are like your father. Perhaps you haven't had a chance to prove it yet, but my father says you quiet, retiring people can usually be counted on to do heroic things. No brag or bluster, not doing anything reckless or foolish, but when occasion arises you do heroic things."

"Let's go on," replied Myra, jumping up. "I am getting hungry."

When they reached Myra's home, Ellen's was a quarter of a mile farther on, they found Jimmy waiting for them at the gate.

"Father and mother and Mr. and Mrs. King have driven to Rockford and won't be back until after supper," he said. "They stopped at school to tell me. Ellen is to stay here until they get back. Say, Myra, can't we three have a picnic supper?"

"Oh, let's," cried Ellen.

"We might build a fire in the camp-stove in the wood-lot, and cook ham and eggs," suggested Myra.

"Oh, I mean a real picnic," scoffed Jimmy. "Let's go to Treasure Island!" He pointed to the tops of some willows and a rock which showed above the dark, swirling waters of the creek which bordered the lawn on the south.

"Treasure Island!" gasped Ellen. "Why, Jimmy Grant, look at Treasure Island!"

Jimmy grinned. "I am looking," he said. "Wouldn't it be fun to go across in the boat and sit on that rock and eat?"

"It would be awful," replied Ellen. "Come on into the house," said Myra quietly. "Jimmy is being silly."

Though Jimmy had suggested Treasurer Island as a joke, the possibilities of the place grew in his mind. It would be fun to sit on the rock with the water rushing beneath them.

When Turtle Creek was its placid, normal self, Treasure Island was a favorite haunt of Jimmy's. At one place the water was shallow so that it could be reached by wading across to it. It was a tiny island, narrow and not very long, with a clump of willows on one end and a huge rock in the center.

They called it Treasure Island, for years ago Myra could sometimes be coaxed to wade across to look for a toy or some other treasure father would hide there for her. Now, occasionally Jimmy could persuade the family to have supper there, and though he preferred to wade across at the certain shallow place, the others would row there in the old-flat-bottom boat, approaching the island from the south, where the water was deep.

Jimmy went to where the boat was fastened. The little pier was submerged, but he managed to climb into the boat. For a while he was content to sit in the gently rocking boat, but sitting on the rock of the little island appealed to him more and more. He put the oars in the oarlocks and cut the rope.

The girls hurried about putting things into a basket. Ellen made sandwiches while Myra got plates, paper napkins, ham and eggs, cookies and pickles, and other things the well-stocked pantry afforded.

"Jimmy could be picking up chips for the fire," remarked Myra. "I'll tell him," replied Ellen, going to the door, but though she called again and again Jimmy did not come.

When they heard a faint cry both girls ran out. Jimmy wasn't anywhere in sight. Then they heard, "Myra, help!"

"Myra, help!" came again an agonized wail.

Then they saw him; across the deep, swift water of the creek they saw the little figure clinging to the rock on Treasure Island. The boat was floating swiftly down the stream.

"Oh, Myra," came the pitiful wail, "Oh, Myra, come and get me! I'm afraid!"

Myra could neither move nor speak. Ellen sank to the ground covering her face with her hands. "Myra, he'll drown," she moaned. "Oh, what shall we do?"

Myra did not take her eyes from the

MONTREAT COTTAGE FOR RENT

Four- and five-room furnished apartments near auditorium.

Mamie McElwee
Statesville, N. C.

ATLANTA CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

The Foremost School of Music in the South

Fall session begins Monday, September 2, 1929

Summer session in June and July

Apply for Catalog C GEO. F. LINDNER, Director Atlanta, Georgia

Opportunity knocks more than once at everyone's door

No age limit on success if you keep fit

PEOPLE used to think that if you hadn't made your mark by the time you were 40, you never would. "That's all bunk," people say today. There's many a man who'll tell you he was past 50 when he made his first big success. Their experience runs something like this.

"I'd been going through life, always just missing out on everything. Worked like a dog, too. But never seemed to get anywhere.

"It was a doctor who put me wise to myself. Told me not to blame it on luck. That the trouble was with me—right inside myself. He recommended Nujol. I took it for three months. Never missed a day. And, say, I began to feel like a younger brother myself. Decided there was life in the old dog yet. When my big chance came, I was all ready, waiting to grab it. And I did."

Nujol keeps your body functioning just as Nature meant it to, under all conditions. Contains no drugs or medicines. Just a pure substance that works normally and naturally. It not only keeps an excess of body poisons from forming (we all have them) but aids in their removal. These poisons slow you up mentally and physically, dull your whole outlook on life, make you half-hearted.

Buy a bottle of Nujol today. Perfected by the Nujol Laboratories, 2 Park Ave., New York. In sealed packages only. Your druggist carries it.

ALLIE SCHOOL for BOYS

Originally located on Missionary In view of renowned Look-out Mountain.

ing school in the South. Preparation for College Technical Schools.

Small classes. Individual Instruction. Strong Faculty. Christian Training. Military Drill. Honor System.

Complete modern equipment. Concrete swimming pool. Gymnasium. 40 Acre Campus. Lake. Rate $800.

ession—July and August Camp Features

Illustrated catalog to Headmaster, Box P Oga Tennessee

FOR RENT

at, furnished cottage. y back of Alba Hotel. ditorium.

A. MURRAY
Mountain, N. C.

FOR RENT

ht rooms, Montreat. n cabin near Chimney

L. CARPENTER
erfordton, N. C.

of South Carolina

Columbia, S. C.

DOUGLAS, PRESIDENT

ons for award of vacant in the University and for l be held at the County Friday, July 12, 1929, at plicants must be 16 years

ps are vacant in the folties: Abbeville, Bamberg, eaufort, Charleston, Clarhester, Hampton, Horry, McCormick, Marlboro, ter, Union, Williamsburg, for scholarships should e Committee on Normal for application blanks, to by July 10th. Scholar-$100, plus tuition and ext session will open Sep-29.

WINTER SCHOOL

18 to July 26, 1929

53 offering more than 100 teachers, superintendents s. Many graduate courses. ferred at end of summer information upon applica-tor of Summer School.

SLUGGISH? HERE'S RELIEF See Proof!

sick, bilious, feverish men ure quickly relieved of all s caused by sluggish liver. One or two pleasant, harm-pure vegetable Dodson's ll do the work better than ions know how it cleanses, system; tones liver and es them act normally. If experienced its marvelous send a FREE bottle. Just Products, Wheeling, W. Va.

WHEELER'S

GOOD - ACTS QUICK

white-faced boy clinging to the rock. Again came the gasping cry for help: "Myra, I'm going to fall; I'm afraid! Help me!"

"Hold on tight, Jimmy!" Myra found it was herself that was speaking. "Get up, Ellen," she continued, prodding the crouching form of her friend with her foot. "Run and tell Mr. Shults to come with his boat. Get up and stop crying. Run!"

She reached down and pulled Ellen to her feet. "Hold on tight, Jimmy," she called again. "Ellen has gone for Mr. Shults."

How many times she repeated these words Myra could never afterward remember. Then came the despairing wail, "I can't hold on any more, I'm slipping!"

"Hold on tight, daddy's brave boy. I won't let you fall. See, I'm coming."

And she went. She forced her feet to step into the swift, terrible water. She gritted her teeth, she clenched her hands and went. The shallow fording place was right in line from the pier to the rock, and, though normally it was but a few inches deep at this place, the water came up to her waist, then to her shoulders. It swirled about her, it dizzied her so that she had to stop and close her eyes for a moment, but it was for a moment only.

It really was only a short distance to the rock, but it seemed to Myra that she could never get there. The limb of a tree floating down struck her arm and she almost lost her footing, but she went on and at last stood beside the rock with him.

"You can't fall now, Jimmy, boy," she said, her teeth chattering. "Your feet aren't in the dark water any more, and soon Mr. Shults will come. Hold on tight for a little longer, that's a brave boy."

Then came a man's shout, a girl's hysterical scream, the welcome splashing of oars. Strong hands lifted Jimmy into the boat, and then Myra herself was pulled in. Then she quietly fainted.

"There's my girl," said a voice. "She is coming to, fine," another. "A regular chip off the old block, Grant. It certainly took nerve to wade out into that creek; you say she can't swim? Why I am a strong swimmer and I wouldn't care about venturing out there."

Myra opened her eyes. She was in her own bed. Mrs. King was holding smelling-salts under her nose. Father and mother and others were there, but she was too tired to speak. Mother's hand was smoothing her hair. She clasped the hand in her own and went to sleep.

She was petted and praised in the days that followed. Jimmy was her adoring slave. She was elected president of her class. In the local weekly there was a column about the rescue. The villagers would stop her on the streets to tell her she was a fit daughter of a hero father. But Myra wasn't happy.

She sat pale and silent on the porch-step one evening. Her father sat down beside her.

"What is troubling you, daughter?" he asked gently.

For a moment Myra hesitated; then she spoke.

"Oh father," she whispered. "I'm not brave. I was terribly frightened when I went out after Jimmy. I wish I were brave like you, father, but I'm not."

Her father put an arm around her. "Little girl, the world tells us the highest type of bravery is to be afraid and still go on. You will find too, that by facing your fears you conquer them. This I know, dear.

"Our country has seen fit to honor me, but at that time I was desperately afraid. It was my duty, so I did it. You are my own little daughter, you see. It took courage to tell me too, didn't it?"

And Myra was content.—Jesse M. Lathrop in Western Recorder.

TEDDY'S CHERRY PIE

It certainly was a delicious pie, and the best of it was that Teddy himself had helped to make it. Every cherry that went into it had been stoned by his chubby little fingers; and, when the top crust had been carefully laid in place, his mother had allowed him to crimp the edges with a fork before putting it in the big hot oven.

For the next half-hour Teddy hovered round, waiting for the moment when mother would pronounce the pie "done"; and, when it did come out of the oven, with its flaky crust baked to a golden brown, and delightful little crimson trickling of juice escaping from the tiny holes pricked in the top, Teddy thought there had never been another so tempting.

"I hope there will be enough to go round," he said, somewhat anxiously. "It seems as though it isn't as big as when you put it in the oven."

His mother laughed as she placed it on the shelf to cool, and told him that she thought his appetite had grown, and that there was no danger of his not getting as much as was good for him.

Teddy walked slowly out on the veranda, and sat down on the top step. Somehow, he didn't feel like going very far away from that pie. He wondered if his cousin Dorothy, who was coming to dinner with him, was fond of cherry pie. Perhaps as she was just getting over the measles, she ought not to have a very big piece. He wondered, too, if it would be polite for him to have two pieces, and he thought that perhaps he would rather have the extra piece and not be quite so polite. Hark! What was that noise? Supposing the cat should get into the larder? He thought he had better go and see.

Now, what do you suppose made him open and shut the door so softly, and tiptoe across the kitchen floor in such a quiet way?

It seemed strange, because Teddy was was rather a noisy little boy, and his way through the house was usually marked by a series of bangs and thumps. Perhaps he wanted to surprise pussy. Do you suppose that was the reason? But no pussy was there, and the pie was safe where his mother had left it. It certainly was a delightful pie. How well he had crimped the crust—almost as well as mother. But no, stop! there was a place where the edges were not quite together. Of course, mother would like to have the pie look well, with other people at dinner; so he tried to press them closed. But they would not meet. Perhaps there were too many cherries in it! What should he do?

Ah, Teddy! Didn't something whisper to you that the thing to do was to hurry right out of that larder, quick? But suddenly a chubby hand reached out and a small finger disappeared into the pie, and when it came out two rosy cherries came with it and were popped into a little mouth themselves. One, two, went in before Teddy those edges would meet hastily pinched them together and away, with rather a pat at his heart.

This was soon forgotten the excitement of the aunt and his cousin, and dinner was half through to think of what he had done.

When the pie was brought somehow thought it didn't seem so tempting. There was feeling at his heart again he jumped. What was his mother say to Aunt Liz could hardly believe his he had distinctly heard it dy had a finger in this pie one was looking at him and oh, how dreadful it was!

Teddy's face grew scolding down from his chair one could speak, he was room and up the stairs to where he hid his hot face pillow, wishing he might take it out again.

How had she found out er know everything? At it right before Aunt Liz othy! He felt that he could them in the face again.

When his mother came him, she found a very little boy, who, however, her the whole story, and suppose his mother did laughed and laughed at couldn't help it—and then that it was his own little science that had put such into her words, and that meant that he had helped the pie. And then, of course gave him, as mothers always little boys are really sorry, always remembers now, hears those words again, ended of nothing a bad deed a boy.—The Messenger children.

THE PARABLES OF THE SAGE

The Parable of the Mole Plural

I am satisfied that Moses any Sugar-cured Ham that smoked in a Kaintucky with Smoke from Corn-cob-ork-bark, and that he can traveled in that fair Statutum when the early frosted the Spare-ribs and the sage. And that is where advantage over Moses.

Now it came to pass that to certain friends of mine in the fair city that is called and I said, I have a desire certain county in Rural and it is some little distance.

And they said, That disbeth very little unto our Ca

So we went thither, and at noon. And the place Miles beyond the Railroad, get Mail every day when the passable and sometimes once a week when Water i we found the City Hotel Court House Square. And us down.

And I spake unto the woman who waited upon and I said, Art thou also

And she said, I sho am d also de Chamber-maid; w suppose they pay a gal like an Hotel like dis ef she do ing?

And I said, I doubt not Corn Pone and Hot Biscuit

PUZZLE ANSWERS

BEHEADING ACROSTIC: L-ore, O-pen, W-hen, E-S-ill.

FLOWER: FOUR-LETTER WORD: K I T E, I T E M, T E A M, E M M A

B	A	S	E	B	A	L
O	M	A	Y
N	O	I	S	E
F	A	T	E	B	A
I	R	E	H	A	L
R	H	A	S	P
E	I	T	S
S	E	A	S	H	O	R

Guilford COLLEGE

Member of Southern Association. National recognition. Courses for A.B. and B.S. degrees, including Business and Finance, Home Economics and Music. Wholesome religious atmosphere. Up-to-date Educational program and student activities. A century old, Quaker institution. Address The President, Guilford College, N. C.

YOU ARE INVITED

TO ENJOY the delightful climate, excellent cuisine, Turkish baths, and health-giving Glenn Springs Mineral Water at the remodeled Glenn Springs Hotel.

Renew your health at this delightful old well-known Spring, and enjoy the company of a large number of pleasing friends who will greet you.

Remodeled hotel offers excellent rooms, modern conveniences, pleasing table. Quiet, peace and rest at Glenn Springs, coupled with the cleansing, regulative, tonic effect of sparkling Glenn Springs water, will restore your health in a short stay. Rates $21.00 per week and up, American plan.

Open June 1st to September 1st

GLENN SPRINGS HOTEL

GLENN SPRINGS, S. C.

TTAGE FOR RENT

near lake and au-
tely furnished to ac-
y of six or eight.
ire season. Rev. J. H.
ountain, N. C.

h Furniture

THE HIGHEST QUALITY
EASONABLE PRICES
Write for Catalogue
& WEIS MFG. CO.
ACKSON, TENNESSEE

ON WANTED

panion to one who es of a nurse. Ref-
ed. Address "Nurse," ilmington, N. C.

Folk's Friend

many call it for
and vigor into old ch, red blood into ound flesh on old k with each meal.

ar Ale

ve Aromatics With ral Water & Ginger
e it for assisting ve organs to con-
od into rich blood
flesh.

nd Your Vacation at Glade Valley

y rooms, running water, electric lights, five acre n the heart of the Blue Ridge. Quiet and restful. scenery. Rates $10 per week. Special rates for

C. W. ERVIN, Manager

y County Glade Valley, N. C.

VACATION TRIPS

Rail and Motor
Tours

In the Southern Appalachian Mountains

In especially arranged rail and motor tours, the Southern Railway provides a
new vacation recreation, combining rail
and motor transportation for the individual and for parties, into the mountain
sections of Virginia, North Carolina,
Eastern Tennessee and North Georgia.

These tours will take you adventuring
by rail and motor into regions of scenic beauty and historic interest. Each trip
begins and ends with a railway journey,
in which you enjoy the speed and comfort of rail travel. The motor trips are over established State highways.

For booklets, information and rates,
call on Ticket Agents.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

And she said, Dey am right now dis minute in de oven.

And I looked at a Vessel containing a Brown Liquid, and I said, Were Those Molasses made here?

And she said, Yessah, dey sho was,
sah. Dey wasn't made nowah else but jes right here. And de Cane was growed in dis Valley, and de Juice was squshed out and biled on a farm right in de aidge of dis City.

And I inquired, saying, Was the boiling of Those Molasses accomplished in the Dark of the Moon?

And she said, Dem Molasses was sho biled in the dahk of de Moon.

And I said, I hope thou hast a Good Supply.

And as she went out after the Hot Biscuits, my friend smiled at my Grammar.

And I said, My friends, I do not disregard Grammar. I never say Them Molasses, which would be ungrammatical, though that is the common form. But if thou wouldst enjoy Good Sorghum Molasses, thou must eat them in the Plural. If thou wilt attend a Boiling of the Sap in the Dark of the Moon, where they know by the Popping of the Bubbles when it is time to Remove the Pan, and thou hast

MARY BALDWIN COLLEGE

For women. Courses lead to B. A. and
B. S. degrees. Music, art, spoken English, physical education. Gymnasium and field athletics. Modern equipment. In beautiful Shenandoah Valley. Founded 1842. Catalog. Staunton, Virginia.

Cecil's
Business Colleges

Let us train you for business.—Secretaries, Accountants, Bookkeepers, Steno-graphers, Stenotypists find ready employment. Keep cool and go to school in the glorious mountains of Carolina. Resident school or home study course. Address

CECIL'S BUSINESS COLLEGES
Asheville, N. C., or Spartanburg, S. C.

thine Paddle Ready, having whittled it out of a Cedar Branch, thy soul may delight itself in Sweetness.

And about that time the Hot Biscuits began to arrive, and we attacked them.

Molasses that is sold in the Store is Singular, and should be so spoken of.

And my friends said, Thou art right.
But whatever the Grammars may say,
New Sorghum Molasses, grown and made in this Cumberland Valley, should be eaten and spoken of in the Plural.

And I said, These Molasses have also another name in this region; it is Long Sweetening.

HANDICAPS AS INSPIRATIONS

"Whatever impedes a man, if it does not actually stop him, aids his progress. Whatever hits a man helps him unless it hits him hard enough to break him or kill him. Cuts and bruises may bleed, but they build," said the great inventor, Hudson Maxim.

We think of the above in connection with a statement about the purpose of handicaps, which statement is as follows: "Handicaps were designed, not as the pitiful excuses of the indolent, but as the magnificent inspirations of the brave."

KEYS TO SUCCESS

Success is another one of those things everyone is wanting. Here are a few ideas:

"You must keep on absorbing new ideas as well as new air."

"When a fellow has half knowledge of a subject he finds that it's the other half that would really come in handy"

"The successful worker is one who can do what he ought to do when he ought to do it whether he wants to do it or not."

"Know what you are after before you start out for it."

"All men cannot be the best, but every man can be his best."

"Make yourself necessary to the world and it will give you bread."

"Enthusiasm breakfasts on obstacles, lunches on objections, dines on competitors and rests in the peaceful slumber of their scattered tail feathers."

HERE IS A TASK

To be honest, to be kind, to earn a little, and to spend a little less, to make upon the whole a family happier for his presence, to renounce when that shall be necessary and not to be embittered, to keep a few friends, but these without capitulation; above all, on the same condition, to keep friends with himself: here is a task for all a man has of fortitude and delicacy. —
R. L. Stevenson.

Giving money to the Lord is just as much an act of sacred service as of fering a prayer, or singing a hymn of sacred praise, or teaching in a mission school, or coming to a sacramental table. In the Bible the consecration of our substance is not made merely incidental, it is put in the forefront of our religious duties.—T. L. Cuyler.

King College for Men

Bristol, Tennessee

Stonewall Jackson College

FOR WOMEN

Abingdon, Va., Box A

Jointly Controlled by Montgomery
Presbytery

Affiliated Colleges of the Synod of Appalachia.

King College offers four year courses
leading to Degrees of Bachelor of Arts
and Bachelor of Sciences — a small
Christian College — Faculty of eleven
Christian gentlemen of thorough training and practical experience. Expenses reasonable.

Stonewall Jackson College. Accredited Junior College for young women, in heart of healthful Virginia
mountains. Two years high school,
two years college. Music, art, home economics, secretarial course, physical
room with bath. All outdoor sports.
Tennis. Nine hole golf course on fifty-
two acre campus. Homelike life.
Write for catalogue.

Be Ready

When your Children Cry
for It

Baby is likely to wake you any night with that sharp cry which means just one thing—colic! Be ready. Keep a bottle of Fletcher's Castoria in the house. A few drops of this pure vegetable, pleasant-tasting preparation comforts a colicky, fretful or feverish baby in a jiffy. In a few moments your anxiety is over and baby's sleeping soundly again.
And you've only done what your doctor would advise. He'll tell you Fletcher's Castoria doesn't contain any harmful drug—that it's safe for the youngest infant and effective for children of all ages in cases of constipation, colic, gas, diarrhea and those upsets when you don't know just what is the matter. Avoid imitations. Genuine Castoria bears the Fletcher signature.

IT'S folly to suffer long from neu-ritis, neuralgia, or headaches when relief is swift and sure, with Bayer Aspirin. For 28 years the medical profession has recommended it. It does not affect the heart. Take it for colds, rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago. Gargle it for a sore throat or tonsilitis. Proven directions for its many uses, in every package.
All drug stores have genuine Bayer Aspirin which is readily identified by the name on the box and the Bayer cross on every tablet.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture
of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

Graduates Get Jobs!

Graduates of this school get jobs. The recognized standards of Draughon's cause many business firms to regularly employ our graduates. You take a business training because you want to earn. Our graduates earn. Don't delay another day. Write now!

DRAUGHON'S BUSINESS COLLEGE
1218 SUMTER ST. COLUMBIA, S. C.

PLAY SAFE!

Are you gambling with nature's most terrible destroyer of property—Lightning? Is your family or your property at its mercy, unprotected? Safety is so simple and easy, no man can afford to risk this terrific gamble. Read this amazing new book, telling just what lightning is and how to prevent it. Written by national authorities of the famous Kretzer System. Free on request. It may save you an enormous loss THIS YEAR. Be safe. Write for your copy now.

FREE BOOK ABOUT LIGHTNING

St. Louis Lightning Rod Co.,
Trudeau & DeKalb Sts., Box D,
St. Louis, Mo.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
REMOVES DANDRUFF
STOPS HAIR FALLING

Has been used with success for more than 40 years

RESTORES COLOR AND BEAUTY TO GRAY AND FADED HAIR

60¢ & $1.00 at all druggists

HISCOX CHEMICAL WORKS
PATCHOGUE, N. Y.

When washing hair always use Floreston Sham-oo

XANTHINE HAIR RESTORER

Will hereafter be sold in the new style bottle and package. Always best for the hair. Not a dye, but restores the color, promotes growth and prevents dandruff.

Price $1.00 at druggists, or sent prepaid by us.

XANTHINE CO., Richmond, Va.

STANDARD FOR 50 YEARS

WINTERSMITH'S CHILL TONIC

For over 50 years it has been the household remedy for all forms of

It is a Reliable, General Invigorating Tonic.

Malaria Chills and Fever Dengue

DARLINGTON SCHOOL

ROME GEORGIA

An Accredited Preparatory School for Boys.

Small student body. One resident teacher to every ten boarding students. Supervised study. Bible taught.

Physical training every day for every boy.

All men teachers, graduates of A-class colleges. Home atmosphere. Thorough college preparation. Only boys of good moral character desired. Non-military. Charter forbids operating school for financial gain.

HONOR SYSTEM

"Unselfishly Dedicated to Young Manhood"

C. R. WILCOX, M. A., President

Address all inquiries to

E. L. WRIGHT, M. A., Headmaster, or

S. H. ASKEW, M. A., Associate Headmaster

AUSTIN SEMINARY HOLDS FINALS

(Continued from page 2)

Yeargan, of Mecklenburg Presbytery, to Anson, Texas; James William Cochran, of Brownwood Presbytery, to Steetman, Texas; and W. Harold Owen, of Arkansas Presbytery, to Wapanucka, Okla.

During the week following the close of the Seminary's session, a "Ministers' Conference" was held, the invited guests, entertained by the Seminary, being ministers of Dallas, Fort Worth, and El Paso Presbyteries. Devotional hours were observed each morning, the professors of the Seminary gave four hours of lectures each morning, and each evening professors of the Texas University, hard by, delivered timely lectures. All who attended united in expressing their appreciation and sense of the value of the work done. Dr. Currie's lectures were all along the line of the Church's duty in evangelism, and the illustrations in Church history of the Church's development in the periods in which she devoted herself to evangelism compared with the periods in which doctrine and administration were to the fore, not an evangelism without a solid foundation of doctrine or without wise and scriptural administration, but based upon them and seeking to give to the world a true preaching of the gospel as the power of God unto salvation. Dr. Gribble devoted himself to a series of word studies in the Old Testament, with the application of them to a faithful and intelligent exegesis. Dr. Joeckel's line was an unfolding of the gospel as found in Isaiah, a careful and vivid analysis of the entire book. Dr. Summey's course was a bird's-eye view of the systematic theology, illustrated by a series of charts showing the relations of doctrine to doctrine, in a theocentric theology. Dr. Wharey, finely equipped by his recent year's study in Bedford, in the British Museum, and elsewhere, and having for his thesaurus his own fine book on John Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress recently published by the Oxford Press, a monumental work, made Bunyan's life and work vivid and informing. Dr. Arrowood, like Dr. Wharey, of the University, showed the bearings of "the new psychology" on the minister's life and work and thought, while he expounded some of the theories now so clamant and yet so utterly unsettled amongst themselves. Rev. E. M. Munroe, recently of Taylor, now the pastor of the Second Church of Houston, and Ruling Elder Coulter, of Dallas, lectured on the Texas campaign of Evangelism and the results of Personal Evangelism.

Lodging in the seminary buildings and taking their meals in the Seminary dining-hall, the members enjoyed a rich and practical fellowship which was a notable feature of their gathering.

The "Best Friend of Charleston," first locomotive built in the United States for actual service, which attracted such wide attention while being moved over the lines of the Southern Railway System in South Carolina last fall, and which has been on display in the Union Station in Washington, D. C., during the winter, will start on another tour, leaving Spencer, N. C., June 3rd and ending at Atlanta July 28th, during which various lines of the Southern in North Carolina, Virginia, Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia will be covered.

Built at the West Point Foundry in New York City in 1830 for the South Carolina Canal and Railroad, now the Charleston Division of the Southern Railway, and brought to Charleston by ship, the original "BEST FRIEND" made its first schedule trip on December 25, 1830. It rendered good service until June 17, 1831, when it was destroyed by the explosion of its boiler. This pioneer locomotive and its train have been reproduced by the Southern and it is running under its own steam over the South.

The schedule for the early part of the present tour will be as follows: June 3, Spencer to Greensboro; June 4th, Greensboro to Raleigh; 7th and 8th Raleigh to Greensboro, stopping at intermediate points; 10th, Winston-Salem; 11th, Danville; 12th Danville to Randolph; 13th Randolph to Jeterville; 14th Jeterville to Richmond; 15th on display at Richmond throughout the day.

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE

DECATUR, GA.

Strict entrance requirements, but few failures after admission. Expensive, but cheap in comparison with advantages offered. No excepted, but also none without capacity to enjoy almost unlimited For details as to admission, scholarship aid, etc address

PRESIDENT J. R. McCAIN
Box S

HIGH POINT COLLEGE

A Coeducational Christian College in Piedmont Carolina
A COEDUCATIONAL CHRISTIAN COLLEGE IN PIEDMONT C
New buildings, modern and convenient. Strong faculty. Ten courses the A. B. and B. S. Degrees; grouped about such major subjects as tory, Greek, Latin, Mathematics, etc. All graduates from accredited, admitted to the freshman class without examination. For catalog and information write to Dr. R. M. Andrews, President, High Point, N. C.

BLACKSTONE — A MILITARY SCHOOL

Located in Healthful Section of Virginia. College Preparatory and Business Courses. Best home influences prevail, and individual needs of each boy. Modern, new and fireproof buildings. All manly sports, Christian influences. For illustrated catalog write to

Col. E. S. Ligon, President
Box R

Blackstone

Largest and MOST MODERN PLANT in the LARGEST USERS OF WINNSBORO GRANITE IN THE CA

Charlotte Marble & Granite W

R. E. SCOGGINS Proprietor CHARLOTTE, N. C. W. 7th St. and S OLDEST LARGEST BEST Ph

Alumni Chapel, One of Seven Fine Brick Buildings on 120 Acre Campus

The Baylor School

A BOY'S OPPORTUNITY

Sound Scholarship and a Happy School on the most beautiful campus in the South. An accredited preparatory school for manly Christian Influence. High Scholastic Standards. Unusual Equipment. Golf, Tennis, Swimming, Gymnasium, 3 Athletic Fields, etc.

For Catalogue, Address
ALEXANDER GUERRY, Headmaster
THE BAYLOR SCHOOL, Cherokee CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

SALEM COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

Known nationally for 156 years' unbroken record in higher education. "Salem" life emphasizes Christian standards without denominational ties. Fifty-six acre campus of forest and meadow. Swimming, riding, sports. Our endowment pays 12 1-2 per cent. of each student's exp. deducting the annual charge to $655.00.

Accredited member Southern Association. A-Class. A. B., B. S. and B. Music degrees with wide elective privileges. Write for catalogue "A" to Pres. Howard E. Rondthaler, Winston-Salem, N. C.

BETTER MUSIC IN THE H

WORSHIP AND CONDUCT SONGS for Beginners and By Elizabeth McE. Shields.

Written and compiled with a view to giving to children right and a correct interpretation of their relationship to other people. songs and a number of selections for children in the home or The author sees the need of the godly home in which the mother religion with her child. Price, special art binding, $1.00.

JUNIOR HYMNS AND SONGS. By Elizabeth McE. S

One hundred and eighteen hymns, songs and instrumental selections for juniors. A number of carefully chosen old hymns, and quite a few new ones. Price, cloth only, 50 cents.

PREMIER HYMNS

Contains many of the best of the old hymns, and a large number of new ones. Ideal for use in the home and at family prayers. Prices: each; $40.00 per 100. Limp cloth, 30c each; $25.00 per 100.

THE PRESBYTERIAN HYMNAL

The official hymnal of our Church. A collection of beautiful hymns, chosen for their literary or musical value. Over 500 hymns classified and indexed. Prices: Music Edition—Buckram, $1.25; Words Edition—Cloth, 50c; Morocco, $1.50.

Order from

PRESBYTERIAN COMMITTEE OF PUBLICATION
Richmond, Va.

PAUL'S HITHERTO UNPUBLISHED LETTER

The Pentecostal Herald has credit for this discovery. Here is the letter:

"Dear Sir and Brother: Doubtless you will recall the invitation you extended to me to come over into Macedonia and help the people of that section. You will pardon me for saying that I am somewhat surprised that you should expect a man of my standing in the church seriously to consider a call on such meager information.

"There are a number of things I should like to learn before giving my decision, and I would appreciate your dropping me a line, addressing me at Troas.

"First of all, I should like to know if Macedonia is a circuit or a station. This is important, as I have been told that once a man begins on a circuit it is well nigh impossible to secure employment in station work. If Macedonia embraces more than one preaching place, I may as well tell you frankly that I cannot think of accepting the call.

"There is another item that was overlooked in your brief and somewhat sudden invitation. No mention was made of the salary I was to receive. While it is true that I am not preaching for money, there are certain things that need to be taken into account. I have been through a long and expensive course of training; in fact, I may state with reasonable pride, that I am a Sanhedrin man—the only one in the ministry today.

"The day is past when you may expect a man to rush into a new field without some idea of the support he is to receive. I have worked myself up to a good position in the Asiatic field and to take a drop and lose my grade would be serious. Nor could I afford to swap 'dollar for dollar' as the saying is among us apostles.

"Kindly get the good Macedonia brethren together and see what you can do in the way of support. You have told me nothing about Macedonia beyond the implication that the place needs help. What are social advantages? Is the church well organized?

"I recently had a fine offer to return to Damascus at an increase of salary, and am told that I made a very favorable impression on the church at Jerusalem. If it will help me with the board at Macedonia, you might mention these facts, and also some of the brethren in Judea have been heard to say that if I kept on, in a few years I might have anything in the gift of the church. For recommendations write to the Rev. Simon Peter, D.D., at Jerusalem. I will say that I am a first class mixer and especially strong on argumentative preaching. If I accept the call, I must stipulate for two month's vacation and the privilege of taking an occasional lecture tour.

"My lecture on 'Over the Wall in a Basket' is worth two drachma of any man's money.

Sincerely yours,
Paul."

CLEMSON COLLEGE

SCHOLARSHIP EXAMINATION

Competitive examinations for the award of vacant scholarships in Clemson College will be held on Friday, July 12, 1929, beginning at 9 a. m. by each County Superintendent of Education. These scholarships will be open to young men sixteen years of age or over, who desire to pursue courses in Agriculture or Textiles. Scholarships are awarded by the State Board of Education on the recommendation of the State Board of Public Welfare.

These examinations include English, Algebra, Geometry, and History and are based on the State High School curriculum. Applicants for Agricultural Scholarships are also examined on Agriculture.

Persons interested should write the Registrar for information and application blanks before the time of the examinations. Successful applicants must meet fully the requirements for admission.

Each scholarship is worth $100.00 and free tuition, which is $40.00 additional. Scholarships are open only to residents of South Carolina.

For further information write—

THE REGISTRAR

Clemson College, S. C.

ORIENT FLOUR
Its Whiteness Denotes Its Purity
MOUNTAIN CITY MILL CO., CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

Mosquitoes Die Quicker!

At last a quicker way to kill bothersome dangerous mosquitoes. Flit! More people use it because it kills quicker. The handy Flit sprayer floats a fine vapor freely in the air, which is harmless to humans and stainless to finest fabrics.

"The yellow can with the black band"

FLIT

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF. © 1929, Stanco, Inc.

NORTH CAROLINA STATE COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND ENGINEERING

E. C. BROOKS, LL.D., President

AGRICULTURE ENGINEERING
TEXTILES SCIENCES AND BUSINESS EDUCATION

The Summer school opens June 10. The Regular session opens September 13. Applications should be made early.

For Information, write

W. L. MAYER, Director of Registration

Raleigh

North Carolina

BELK'S
NEW FURNITURE DEPT.

We have opened to the people of the Carolinas a most modern Furniture Department on our fourth floor, featuring a wide assortment of fine furniture for the home as well as newest novelty furniture.

On this same floor is located our Picture and mirror rooms, also china-ware, glass-ware and toys.

A visit to this floor will be both pleasurable and profitable.

Belk Brothers Co.
Charlotte, N. C.

Direct From Mill To You

BERNS in new at Mill Prices. Consumer selling 1/4 to 1/3.

Prints, Spreads, Flow Tubing, Side Sheeting, Marquisettes, Paperies, etc.

Save 1/4 to 1/3

AN MILL STORE
Greenville, S. C.

Men are Made

eter is molded, will strengthened, intellectual, physical man, and Christian counsel of instruction.

Merian College
Clinton, S. C.

LANCE
S, CARBUNCLES AND ULCERS

DR. CALDWELL WAS RIGHT

treating sickness has not Dr. Caldwell left Medical, nor since he placed on laxative prescription he practice.

constipation, biliousness, depression, indigestion, and other indispositions of simple vegetable and roots. These are of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup combination of senna and psyllium, with pepsin.

the remedy for constipation for the child and for you. In get results in a mild way by using Dr. Caldwell's why take chances with last several months, and It is pleasant to the action, and free from early people find it ideal. have the generous bottles, up Pepsin," Dept. BB, Moins, for free trial bottle.

NG OUR-ADVERTISERS
TION THIS PUBLICATION

THE RIGHT WAY TO TRAVEL
 is by train. The safest. Most comfortable. Most reliable. Costs less. Inquire of Ticket Agents regarding greatly reduced fares for short trips.
SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Church and Sunday School Furniture
 Send For Special Catalogue
THE SOUTHERN DESK COMPANY
 Hickory, N. C.

CUTS Scratches, burns and other skin abrasions with children, easily become infected. ::
 Safeguard with
GRAY'S OINTMENT
 At all drug stores. For free sample write
 W. F. Gray & Co., 724 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Nervous Women Praise Capudine
 Delicately poised women who suffer from high nerve strain and nervous pains, such as periodic pains, headache and pains in the back and sides are high in their praise of Capudine because it quickly soothes the tense nerves and relieves the pain.
 Being liquid, Capudine acts almost instantly,—does not upset the stomach. Sold by druggists in 30c and 60c sizes. (adv.)

YOUR CHURCH deserves a beautiful exterior in harmony with its spirit of culture and worship. Let us suggest appropriate shrubbery.
THE HOWARD-HICKORY CO., Hickory, N. C.
 Local Representatives Wanted, especially to sell fruit trees.
 Landscape Gardeners and Nurserymen

Piles and other Rectal diseases cured without pain or surgery. No hospital detention. Write to Dr. W. R. Register, 63 No. Broad Street, Atlanta, Georgia, for free book. Hundreds of cured patients.

Take STANBACK to Relieve PAIN
6 6 6
 is a Prescription for
Colds, Grippe, Flu, Dengue, Bilious Fever and Malaria.
 It is the most speedy remedy known.

WEAK EYES are strengthened and relieved by Dickey's old reliable eye water. In use over half a century. Relieves sore eyes from gnats and dust. Doesn't hurt. In red folding box at all good stores or by mail 25c.
 Dickey Drug Co. Bristol, Virginia

PHYSICAL AND NERVOUS FORCE
 You can overcome that spring time "tired" feeling and build up buoyant health and energy with Yerke's Palatable Extract Cod Liver Oil
 At All Leading Druggists
YERKES CHEMICAL CO., Winston-Salem, N. C.

S P A R K L E S

Drawing a Hair Line

Two men were becoming abusive in the course of a political quarrel.
 "I think," cried one of them, "there's just one thing that saves you from being a bare-faced liar."
 "What's that?"
 "Your whiskers."—Pearson's Weekly. Singular—

"We have the safest railway in the world where I come from. A collision on our line is impossible."
 "Impossible! How do you make that out?"
 "Why, we've only got one train."—Bradford Pioneer.

Good Old-Timer

Everytime someone starts talking about the Republican victory in North Carolina, we are reminded of the story that went the rounds when North Carolina University played Harvard several years ago:
 "Boys," pleaded the Carolina coach just before his team trotted on the field, "you have got to get in there and fight for old North Carolina—and don't forget that every man on that Harvard team is a Republican."—Detroit News.

Judge for Yourself

"How is that housewife with her installments? Conscientious?"
 "Well, I've known her to let the radio man have the grocer's money."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Nuff's Enough

"I hear Simpson and his wife have been doing a good deal of scrapping since their baby arrived."
 "Yes, he says he is a floor walker all day and he thinks she ought to be it at night."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Think This Over

Woman's talk, like the little brook, goes on for ever; but the little brook gets somewhere in the end.—London Calling.

Announcement

"I have some bad news for you," said the young wife tremulously.
 "Shoot!" growled the brute, never emerging from the sporting section of the newspaper.
 "N—no," she replied thoughtfully. "I had considered that, but I decided not to. I'm just going to divorce you."

Try This Alibi

One dark and stormy night Uncle Eli Podger's baby was taken sick with the colic and his wife Jerusha hustled him off to town in his old Ford to get 15 cents worth of ipecac.
 Twenty eventful years passed. The baby got over the colic and at the age of 19 had married a traveling man from Pittsburgh. Aunt Jerusha in all those 20 years had never lost faith in her husband. He would return some day and be able to explain it all, she told everyone.
 Finally that day came. Eli breezed in in the same old Ford, got out and handed the bottle of ipecac to his wife.
 "What kept you so long?" she asked, in her usual calm manner.
 Eli replied: "I was lookin' for parkin' space."—Pathfinder.

She: "I hear the Scotchmen are trying to put an end to all the jokes about them."
 He: "And why?"
 She: "Every one of them is at a Scotchman's expense."

COMMUNION CUPS
 Glasses $1.00
 Dozen Tray and 36 glasses $6.50 up. Best quality Collection and Bread Plates at low prices. Send for TRIAL OUTFIT. Write for free Catalog.
THOMAS COMMUNION CO., Box 310, Lima, Ohio

Mexican Heat Powder
 Immediately relieves Prickly Heat, Nettle Rash, Diaper Rash, Tired, Sore and Blistered Feet. Sunburn, all Skin Irritations. At your Druggists

Chicora College for Women
 The Presbyterian College of South Carolina
 Standard College Courses Large, Strong Faculty
 Beautiful Grounds Ideal Surroundings
 Healthful Climate Moderate Rates
 For Catalog and Information, Address
S. C. Byrd, D.D., LL.D., President, Columbia

FORTY-SIX YEARS CONTINUOUS SERVICE WITHOUT A LOSS ON ANY LOAN
 We offer you a safe, tax-free investment for your regular weekly or monthly savings and your lump sum. Write for particulars.
ASSETS OVER $8,800,000.00
The Mutual Building and Loan Association
 Established 1881 CHARLOTTE

If In Doubt, Take B. & L. Shares
 You will earn the highest interest rate on your savings consistent with perfect safety, and pay no tax on your earnings. Shares cost twenty-five cents per week usually mature in 333 weeks. Net you 6 1-2 per cent maturity.
 Series Open in January, April, July and October
Mechanics Perpetual Building & Loan Association
 Established 1883
 18 E. Fourth St. Charlotte

THE WINTHROP DESK, $75
 The Governor Winthrop desk has come down to us from the very earliest beginning of America. The one shown here every detail has been copied minutely. It is made in Grand Rapids which is assurance of its fine quality. Others, varying in size from $70 to $145.
W.T. McCOY & Co
 Home Furnishers
 423-425 SOUTH TRYON STREET
 CHARLOTTE, N. C.

For the Future
 Are you making ready share in the opportunity which increasing prosperity will bring?
A Reserve Fund Banker Will Help
Charlotte National Bank
 Resources Over $5,000,000.00

"National Bank Safety For Savings"

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

Religious Newspaper for the Family

Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U. S.

W. F. ELLIS, Editor-in-Chief
S. D. D., Co-Editor
R. WILLIS, Contributing Editor

ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1857

M. F. ELLIS, Vice-President
REV. J. G. GARTH, Treasurer and News Editor
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
BY PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY

CHARLOTTE, N. C., JUNE 12, 1925

No. 24

Presbyterians Se Union

Pittsburgh Refuses to Propose to the Presbyteries

Press dispatches received Presbyterian General Assembly met in its Seventh Session in the North Church, May 29 to June 4, devoted to its 57 presbytery recommendation to unite Northern Presbyterians on a basis proposed by the two denominations. The Moderator was appointed by the Assembly. This committee is announced as follows:

Eleven of the 36 presbyteries had voted against the union. The status of the union is unclear, until the United Presbyterian papers report the result of the assembly. This will be our next issue.

Receives Permanent Addition

Abandoned Schools Girls' College—Mrs.

Morrison is Made Trustee

has received by resolution of trustees of the Leckenburg at an adjourned meeting May 31, the property of the Normal and Industrial Institute, which is to be discontinued at the spring session. The obligations have been estimated as worth about $14,000, which will be paid by the payment of Queens College Dr. W. H. Frazer, Moderator of its action. The amount raised will be about also recommended that the Stanley Hall high school near Stanfield, be allocated. There are 45 acres of land and buildings. The property would realize $3,000 or more. Mrs. Morrison was elected a trustee of Queens College to fill the vacancy of Thomas M. Glasgow. Morrison has accepted the graduate of Columbia University, Ga., was examined by the Presbytery. He prepared as exegesis of scripture, and sermon, besides offering a dissertation on Davidson college and the Presbytery being satisfied with the report of Mr. Burney, of the Sugaw Creek Church, which he accepted. He was appointed to ordain at Sugaw Creek Sunday. The commission includes Mr. R. Bridges, D.D., who will preside and deliver a charge to the congregation. Elder of Sugaw Creek Church, with Mr. Binson as his alternate. He was received as candidate, Murray Boyce Church, near Waxhaw, Wilson Throver, of the college of Forest City, N. C. (Continued on Page Two)

Moderator Appoints Committee on Union

An Interim Body to Confer With Similar Bodies of Various Presbyterian Churches

The Moderator of the General Assembly, Rev. William R. Dobyns, D.D., of Highland Church, Birmingham, has appointed the committee of nine who will confer with similar committees from the Northern Presbyterian Church, the Reformed Church, and various other Presbyterian denominations to find a basis of union with these organizations. The Moderator was appointed by the Assembly. This committee is announced as follows:

Rev. Wm. R. Dobyns, D.D., Chairman, 2033 Highland Ave., Rev. Henry H. Sweets, D.D., Rev. Harris E. Kirk, D.D., Rev. Robt. F. Campbell, D.D., Rev. Richard O. Flinn, D.D., Rev. Chas. H. H. Branch, D.D., Rev. Thomas S. Clyde, D.D., Rev. Eugene F. Abbott, D.D., Rev. James I. Vance, D.D.

This committee is not to supersede the committee of Union with the United Presbyterians and the Associate Reformed Presbyterians, which reported to the last Assembly, of which Dr. S. L. Morris is chairman. This committee is to continue the negotiations which have already gotten under way.

Davidson Chooses Dr. Lingle As Head

President of Training School May Re- sign to Become President of Dav- idson—Commencement Audiences Hear Drs. Stevenson, Hill, and Tigert

Dr. Walter S. Lingle, president of Assembly Training School, Richmond, Va., was elected president of Davidson College at the semi-annual meeting of the board of trustees of the college June 4. He succeeds Dr. W. J. Martin, who retires at once.

At the same time the board elected Doctor Martin president emeritus for life.

Doctor Lingle said that his acceptance of the new post depended on the wishes of the board of trustees of the Assembly Training School. He presided at the meeting of the board of trustees, of which he has been president for many years.

Dr. J. Ross Stevenson, president of Princeton Theological Seminary at Princeton, N. J., opened the 93rd commencement of Davidson Sunday morning, June 2, preaching the baccalaureate to a packed congregation. Doctor Stevenson said, among other things, that miracles are everyday occurrences, that spiritual values have been the greatest power in the development of man and history, and that when the scientists of the world turn their laboratories over to the study of God and prayer, the world will see more advancement in one generation than in the past four.

Doctor Stevenson's theme was the power of the human personality to conquer and rule in every realm, moral as well as physical. He contrasted human failure with the triumph of Christ, pointing to the latter as a solution to man's problem of complete dominion. "Christ is portrayed as the representative man, the revelation of what man was intended to be, of what he has failed to be, and of what he may become. He was made like unto us and was in all points tempted, but He made a success of life in that He achieved what God requires of man, for Christ maintained a constant sovereignty over the forces of human nature." Jesus achieved dominion through the perfection of his manhood, and not thru

(Continued on page 2)

Northern Presbyterians Meet in St. Paul

The U. S. A. Assembly Makes De- cisions of Tremendous Import

The Northern Presbyterians met in St. Paul, Minn., Dr. Hugh K. Walker, of Los Angeles, retiring moderator preached on the need of another Pentecost today. Dr. Cleland B. McAfee, professor of Systematic Theology, of Presbyterian Seminary, Chicago, was elected moderator over Dr. Robert Dick Wilson, of Princeton, 572 to 332. The meeting extended from May 23 to May 29.

The unification of the four boards of the Church, Foreign Missions National (Home) Missions, Education, and Pensions, was proposed. These boards all closed the year without debt.

The Assembly adopted by rising vote the recommendation for Union with the United Presbyterian and the Reformed Presbyterian Churches. It unanimously approved negotiations for union with other Presbyterian bodies, and with the Methodists, North and South, and with the Episcopalians.

The Assembly celebrated the 200th anniversary of the adoption of the Westminster Confession by American Presbyterians.

Princeton Seminary and its control was the acme of interest in the Assembly. The majority report was adopted and Princeton was placed in the hands of 33 trustees and the board of 33 directors was ousted. Dr. Francis L. Patton was made trustee for life.

The report on Ministers' Pensions showed the progress of the new plan in which ministers and churches share in payments. It was said that the response to the plan has been phenomenal and that ministers and churches are entering the plan every day.

The assembly sent down to the Presbyteries overtures removing all restrictions from women members of the churches, which would make them officers and preachers.

Dr. Arthur J. Brown retired as secretary of foreign missions, after 34 years of service.

The Assembly will meet in Cincinnati next year.

Gideons Hold Dedication Service

Charlotte Camp Presents Bibles to Selwyn Hotel

On Sunday afternoon, June 2, the Charlotte Camp of the Gideons, the organization of the Christian traveling men, held a dedication service at the Selwyn Hotel, of Charlotte, N. C., in which a number of local ministers took part, in connection with representatives of the organization.

Mr. D. G. McCulloch presided as president of the local chapter. An address was made by J. L. Farrabee, local secretary of the order on the subject "Who are the Gideons?" Mr. Farrabee described the work of this order which besides committing itself to personal work in trying to lead men and women to a confession of Christ, supplies Bibles to the rooms of hotels for the use of the guests.

The principal speech was made by Dr. Albert Sidney Johnson, of the First Presbyterian Church, in which he showed how the Bible helps to solve many personal problems, extricates persons from business, social and personal troubles, as well as prepares them for the hour of death.

Ben. W. Mathes, chaplain of the local Gideons, made the presentation of Bibles to the Selwyn Hotel, which were graciously received by the hotel manager who expressed his appreciation, and testified to the value he had found in having these books in the rooms of the hotel.

Dr. Dobyns Honored In Birmingham

Assembly's Moderator Given Dinner by Admirers and Brethren

The Presbytery of Birmingham and the Presbyterian Laymen's League of Birmingham honored the newly elected Moderator of the General Assembly and pastor of the South Highland Presbyterian Church, Dr. William Ray Dobyns, at a dinner at the Handley Memorial Presbyterian Church, Tuesday evening, June 4. After a brief organ recital by Mr. John Z. Hinds, the guests were conducted to the new social hall of the church where the dinner was served by the ladies of the entertaining church. The tables were arranged in quadrangular shape with small tables through the center for the speakers, special guests and their wives. The floral decorations were artistic and beautiful. With few exceptions, all of the ministers of the Presbytery were present and all of the churches were represented by the members, making the total about 175.

Mr. J. K. Brockman, the president of the Laymen's League and a ruling elder in the South Highland Presbyterian Church, presided. The special speakers were Dr. Henry H. Sweets, of Louisville, Ky., and Dr. Clay Lilly, of Winston-Salem, N. C. Greetings were brought from the Moderator of the Cumberland Presbyterian General Assembly, Rev. H. C. Walton; from the the U. S. A. General Assembly by former vice Moderator Dr. J. M. Broady; from the Presbyterial Auxiliary, Mrs. G. H. Stephenson; from the Foreign Missionaries by Miss Margaret H. Hopper of Korea. The Moderator, Doctor Dobyns, was enthusiastically congratulated upon being elevated to the exalted position by the General Assembly. The high regard and affection in which he is held were pronounced in beautiful and impressive words by all. An unusual growth throughout the entire church in spirituality and devotion is expected under his leadership. The response of Doctor Dobyns was modest and appreciative. Each of the ministers present gave a word of testimony concerning the value of their friendship with Doctor Dobyns and of his service to the Kingdom of Christ.

Vocal selections were rendered by Mrs. W. R. Smith, and Mrs. A. A. Higgins. Mrs. W. R. Dobyns was present and her influence and share in this pre-eminent honor were not overlooked.

Lees-McRae Ends Successful Session

Mountain School at Banner Elk to Add Junior College

On May 27, the commencement exercises of Lees-McRae were held at Banner Elk, N. C., and diplomas were awarded to the largest class ever graduated from the institution, consisting of twenty-two young men and women.

The closing of the school began Saturday night with the class day exercises, which reviewed the history of the past few years and looked into the future, seeing even brighter days for Lees-McRae.

On Sunday morning the baccalaureate sermon was preached by Dr. T. P. Johnston, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church at Kingsport, Tenn. His message strongly appealed to the congregation and proved a real inspiration to the graduating class.

The alumnae banquet on Monday evening was the best in the history of the school. The beautiful decorations, the large number of former graduates, and the spirit of fellowship all combined to make it an occasion long to be remembered. The toast mistress, Miss Margaret (Continued on Page Two)

Commencement At Batesville

Arkansas College at Batesville closed its fifty-seventh year on June 4 with exercises of the most interesting nature, which began on June 2. A note of sadness prevailed the commencement season because of the recent death of former Governor T. C. McRae, President of the Board of Trustees.

The sermon was preached on June 2 by Rev. Stuart R. Oglesby, D.D., of Hot Springs, whose theme was "More than Conquerors"; Doctor Oglesby also spoke at the Vesper Service for the Christian Endeavor Society that afternoon. Rev. J. P. Snipes of Earle, Arkansas, preached the annual sermon to the Religious Organizations, using as his text, "Where Dwellest Thou."

On Monday morning one of the most brilliant recitals in the history of the college was given by the students of the special departments. Monday afternoon the public exercises of the Class of 1929 were held. Alexander Whyte Whitaker, Jr., of Memphis, was president of the class. Other speakers were Ethel Robertson of Helena, salutatorian; John L. Abernathy, Jr., Purcell, Oklahoma, Historian; Nelle Frances Robinson, Dardanelle, Prophetess; John B. Benish, Batesville, valedictorian. The class numbered 35 candidates for the A.B. degree and six diplomas in the special departments were awarded, making the largest class in the history of the college.

The address to the class was delivered on June 4 by State Superintendent J. P. Womack, of Little Rock. The honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon Rev. Marion Alpheus Boggs, of Blytheville, Rev. William Fenna Rogers, of Warren and Rev. Frank Pearson Anderson of Fort Smith.

The Trustees met on June 3 with a representative attendance, transacting much routine business. Since the recent meeting of the Synod of Arkansas, which authorized the college to continue its expansion program and to that end underwrote the budget for the ensuing year, a fine air of hope and optimism has prevailed among the college and its friends. Dr. S. R. Oglesby of Hot Springs, was elected President of the Board to succeed Governor McRae and has entered upon his duties with vigor and enthusiasm. Raising of funds in the city of Batesville and plans for the similar movement out in the State are progressing in a satisfactory way.

The class of 1930 promises to be of equal size with the class of 1929. Reservations of students for the Freshman class are more than usual at this season of the year. The faculty will show very few changes and will be greatly strengthened by the return of Professors John B. Daffin of the Chair of Chemistry, and John Quincy Wolf, Jr., of the Chair of English, who have been away on leave for a year.

Palmer College Closes

Commencement at Palmer College at De Funiak Springs, Fla., was marked this year with success in every department. There were more graduates than in the preceding years and the programs of music and other events were of an excellent character.

Rev. John A. Abbott, D.D., of DeLand, delivered the baccalaureate sermon and Rev. E. N. Caldwell, D.D., of Tallahassee, delivered the address to the graduating class. Miss Margaret Read, of Milton, Florida, was valedictorian for the college class, and Miss Marjorie Abernethy of DeFuniak Springs, was valedictorian for the Academy class. Mr. Starluis Rigell of Panama City, won the medal for oratory, Miss Frances Taylor of Tallahassee won the medal for advanced music, Miss Mary Elizabeth Flournoy the one for elementary music, Miss Lois Munroe of Takamatsu, Japan, for general excellence and Mr. Kemper Jennings of DeFuniak Springs, won the boy's medal for general excellence, and Mr. Michael Bowers of Crestview, the cup for athletics, and Miss Margaret Read won the Bible medal.

Each member of the college graduating class is presented a Bible and each member of the academy graduating class is given a "Fishers of Men" Testament. These are given by the college and each copy is marked with the name of the owner, the class, and the year.

The academy graduating class gave as its class play, "The Rivals," and it was well staged and well presented, the proceeds were presented to the college for the purpose of buying a class gift. The college class presented a flag pole and pennant to the college during its class day exercises, appropriate speeches being made for its presentation and acceptance.

During June, Dr. and Mrs. Love are taking Mrs. Jack Ashmore, Miss Flora Douglas McLean, Miss Sara Deese, and Mr. Graham Campbell, all students or former students of Palmer, on a trip through Florida in the interest of Palmer. They are to give programs of music and talks on Palmer in the churches in the effort to introduce Palmer to the Presbyterians throughout the state and to secure an enlarged enrollment of students for next year.

Doctor Love had just received the degree of Doctor of Divinity from Davidson College.

Evangelical Congress at Havana

From June 20-30, a Conference will be held in Havana, Cuba, of all the Evangelical Christian elements dedicated to the betterment of the moral and spiritual conditions of the nations comprised in the area of the Caribbean Sea, Central America and Mexico. In addition, attention will be given to the Latin interests of the Spanish-speaking sections in the United States. This Havana Congress is a logical sequence of the Panama Congress in 1916 and that in Montevideo in 1926.

Glade Valley Closes Successful Session

The Glade Valley High School closed the nineteenth session on April 29 with nineteen graduating.

The opening program was a Music Recital on Saturday night, April 27, by the music pupils. On the following Sunday the baccalaureate sermon was delivered by Rev. J. M. Clark, Statesville, N. C. And the Christian Endeavor Address on Sunday night was delivered by Rev. Geo. W. Lee, Winston-Salem, N. C.

The graduating exercises were held on Monday morning and at this time nineteen graduates received Bibles and diplomas. The Bibles for the graduates were donated by Circle No. 7, Woman's Auxiliary, First Presbyterian Church, Winston-Salem, N. C., and delivered by Rev. G. W. Lee. The diplomas were delivered by Mr. McBride Holt, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, Graham, N. C. Rev. D. Clay Lilly, pastor of Reynolds Presbyterian Church spoke to the graduates on the subject, "What an Institution Offers," and Rev. Joe H. Carter, pastor of Taylorsville First Presbyterian Church gave a short address on the subject of Service.

In the afternoon the Recitation and Declamation contests were held followed by a ball game Glade Valley vs. Sparta.

The commencement exercises were concluded on Monday night by the Senior Play, "Two Days to Marry" presented by seven members of the senior class. All the exercises were well attended and on Monday night we were not able to seat the visitors.

The following pupils received medals and awards: those receiving gold medals were Hazel Bare for Memory work in Bible, prize donated by Rev. W. C. Brown, Barium Springs, N. C.; Robt. Preston Taylor, Scholarship; Alma Forrest, Music; Mabel Billings, Recitation; and Thomas Springs, Jr., Declamation; Blanche Crouse received the fountain pen given by B. and T. Drug Co., Sparta, Sparta, N. C., for the best English work; Grace Crouse won the prize for the best progress in sewing; McNeil Petrea and Thomas Springs won the $5.00 cash prize offered by Rev. Geo. W. Lee for neatest kept room in boys' dormitory; and Mary Wooten and Hazel won a similar prize offered by the school for neatest room in girl's dormitory. The recitation medal was donated by Mr. R. C. Bernau, Greensboro, N. C., the Music medal from Louise Ervin Memorial Fund, sewing prize from Miss Margaret Dowdle Domestic Art teacher and other prizes from the school.

The following pupils made the honor roll for the last quarter with an average of 95 or above: Robert Preston Taylor, Howard Lyon, Thomas Springs, Jr., and Blanche Crouse.

CONTINUATIONS FROM PAGE ONE

QUEENS RECEIVES ENDOWMENT ADDITION

Rev. W. H. Goodman of Kannapolis and Rev. G. F. Robertson of Mount Holly, were present at the meeting as visitors. A special prayer was offered for Mrs. Robertson, who is very ill in a Charlotte hospital.

Rev. W. H. Frazer, D.D., president of Queens College, acted as moderator, and Rev. Dr. Huneycutt, of Walkersville, was temporary clerk. Mecklenburg Presbytery will hold an adjourned meeting September 9 at the First Presbyterian Church in Charlotte.

Commissions reported the installations of Rev. A. T. Taylor, at Marston, McLean's Memorial, Mark's Creek and Rourk's Chapel, and Rev. J. B. Reily at Roberdell, Cameronian, Brainard and Midway.

DAVIDSON CHOOSES DR. LINGLE AS HEAD

the exercise of His divine powers as the Son of God. "Man's realization of this dominion is to take place in individual lives when each one shares in Christ's triumph over sin and death, and all the baffling forces to which we are constantly exposed."

Dr. W. E. Hill, of Second Church, Richmond, preached the annual sermon before the Y. M. C. A. on Sunday night.

The features of the commencement on Monday were the class day exercises of the graduates in late afternoon, and a program by the literary societies in the auditorium of Chambers building.

The first event was a reception given in honor of the graduates by little Billy Wood, class mascot, at 4 o'clock, followed by the class day exercises. Included in the program was a formal presentation of the mascot by the president, the reading of the class poem, and addresses by the class salutatorian, class orator, and class valedictorian.

At 8 o'clock Monday night the Eumenean and Philanthropic literary societies held a joint session. A feature which has generally been held at this time but which is omitted this year was the senior oratorical contest. Literary society diplomas were awarded, and medals presented to the junior and freshman-sophomore orator. Debating emblems were given all eight members of the varsity debating team.

The board of trustees decided to make physical training compulsory for four years instead of two as at present. Training is to be in co-ordination and competition with the work of the reserve officers training corps.

Dr. C. K. Brown, associate professor of economics, was raised to a full professorship and Prof. H. E. Fulcher was raised from assistant professor in physics to be an associate. All associate professors received salary increases.

COMMENCEMENT AT LEES-McRAE

Tufts, presented a program of real interest to all. Mrs. Rosa Jones, the alumnae president, welcomed the graduating class into the association. The graduating exercises Monday night brought to a close the commencement season. The literary address was ably delivered by Rev. J. P. Proffit pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Maxwellton, W. Va., and a former student of Lees-McRae.

Mr. Edgar Tufts, president of the school, awarded medals and prizes to students who had merited special recognition. A large number of Bibles and Testaments were awarded for the recitation of the catechisms. Every Lees-McRae graduate is required to recite the catechisms. Mr. L. K. Pritchett, the principal of the school read the honor roll for the year.

Plans for a greater Grace Hospital were announced by Dr. W. C. Tate, physician in charge.

The graduating class presented as its class gift a check to be used in erecting a fountain on the campus in memory of Rev. Edgar Tufts, the founder of the school, hospital and orphanage.

After the awarding of the diplomas to the graduates, the president, Mr. Tufts, announced the extension of the educational program of Lees-McRae to include Junior College work next September. This announcement was enthusiastically received by the student body and friends of the school. The work which Lees-McRae

DEVOTIONAL

DOWN WITH PIGEONHOLES

My pigeonholes are tempt
an awful lot
Of letters that are answ
that are not,
Of circulars and pamph
pads, and twine,
Of little memoranda, it
line,
Of postage stamps and cards and books and
Of paper cutters, founta clips, and things like But letters, always letter
very old,—
Why, what a lot of rubb holes will hold!

My pigeonholes receive never make a sign,
For they are very court
eon holes of mine.
I'll cram them nigh to be
will not protest;
They always find a sleep
one other guest.
So handy when I'm busy
all away,
And leave them there to the judgment day.
But when that day, o'c
something must be f
Ah, then the angel's trum uncertain sound.

In frantic haste I pull t
the empty chairs,
The table and the wind
these old affairs.
My spirit sinks as task o
long ago
Stares at me from the de this overflow.
I find the single thing I gaze aghast
As all my hideous negli
me from the past;
My conscience has its t is short, so then
I snatch the shameful
crowd it back again.

Some day when I'm here
else to do,
Those grim accusing pig
ing to go through.
The letters I will answer
all away,
The memo, I'll examine
I'll pay,
And all the miscellaneous
to clean out,
And thus defeat my pige
them all to rout.
For I have quite decided are sin,
And the only useful pige with nothing in.
Amos R. Wells,

TIME WITH

Time for pleasure—time
Time for reading and for Many things not written
Maybe too there's time
Service for your Lord ar
But—just stay and think
How much time is spent

But, you say, my work i
True, and Jesus loves it
But e'en years like this
And your Lord you migh
Oh! you need dear one Need in Him to find yo Need His guidance all th

Time for business—time
Time for almost anything
Yet so little time with J
Yes, so little time with J
This is why your feet of
As you tread the rugged
If you spent more time
In His strength you'd ga

College will do is disti pose will be to train th and girls in the art of liv environment, thus carryi
of the Edgar Tufts Mem
"In the mountains; of
for the mountains."

The year just closed ha one for Lees-McRae and next fall is bright.

Pinnacle Inn, the sun
ated in the dormitories will open June 26 for Inn offers to all who m place to spend a restfu modern conveniences, fir beautiful surroundings a
According to the officia
Banner Elk is the cool state.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD
 FOUNDED 1858
 of the Synod of N. C. for 70 Years

Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as Second Class Matter.

The subscription price of the Standard is payable in advance. To ministers the price is $2.50 per year. To ministers' wives the price is $2.50 per year.

The mailing label shows the month and year to which the subscription is paid. Payment in advance is required.

Subscriptions may be made by money order, check, or registered letter, or by postal note.

Quarterly Notices—No charge is made for notices less than 100 words, but for all over fifty words the charge is 10 cents.

Send on application.

Kindly send us both old and new addresses to the desired change.

Changes of address made only upon the written request of the subscriber. Payment in full must be made at the same time.

Business Communications Should be Addressed to PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD
 Box 869
 Charlotte, N. C.

EDITORIAL

OPINION ON THE UP-GRADE

Prohibition has been a failure dependent upon the personal views of the people. The question is not whether it is as good as he who will not see" is better as in all other questions. The laws are enough, but their enforcement has been half-hearted or openly antagonistic. The poor white man soon felt the rich man, able to employ skillful lawyers, would generally escape. The pathetic jury lightened the penalty to such an extent that the trial became a mockery. Those who were in earnest enforcement that the buyer also be guilty of the transaction, upon which the receiver is as guilty as the seller. It is reported that Congress has put more law, and henceforth the man who also share punishment with the lawbreaker should be, and we hope that the law should be. What is known as the "Jones law" is a very terror to the ranks of the lawbreaker. It will take out of the hands of the lawbreaker the privilege of assessing a fine, as to excite ridicule. The law is reported, raised the price of the lawbreaker figures as to make its purpose, which will no doubt restrict the lawbreaker who have means. The law is a disheartening fact in connection with the increased penalty. Skillful lawyers, with sympathy with the law, have formed a system to assist those convicted by the law with a penalty. Nothing connected with the law that reflects less credit upon the law than that men, whose training has been in the law, should use their skill in the law of the land and in encourage them with impunity. The law is the foundation of our government. You destroy that respect, you undermine the foundations of our civilization. The government can more successfully withstand attack from without, but when the law is broken, it will soon fall.

STANT PASTORS I HAVE KNOWN

The Church grows in numbers, there is the question of an assistant pastor when that a crisis arises in that both pastor and people hesitate to step as neither one knows where to go. It is that the pastor must be relieved of his burden. It is always a limit to human endurance. It is not that a faithful pastor has a burden, but that he should ask for help. Each week he has to expound the Word to each man his meat in due season.

In order to keep up with the work of the Church at large, his own Church as a part of a great whole, must be kept in touch with the work at home and in foreign lands, and for that purpose he must give them facts, and in order that they may be stirred up to keep step in this march of progress, he must let them know what the Churches in our land are doing. Then there are the sick to visit, strangers to bring into the fold, and to be made to feel that they are a part of a great whole.

When, however, worn out by these incessant and exacting labors, he considers the question of an assistant, he at once faces the drawbacks as well as the benefits.

It is possible that his assistant may prove a more acceptable preacher than he, in which case, as has been proven in more than one instance, his own hold on his people is weakened, with the result that he has to leave.

If the contrary be true, and the assistant proves a poor preacher, the people become discontented, and wander off to other churches when he does preach.

Then the cost means that either the cause or his own salary must suffer.

Viewing the question from the point of view of the assistant, the drawbacks are equally as serious.

He feels that he is playing second fiddle to the pastor, and as such he is merely tolerated.

He finds none of that true affection that lightens many a pastor's burdens. He is merely a necessary nuisance.

We have seen and known many assistants. We have known more than one to push out the pastor and take his place, and we have known even a greater number to become so discouraged in the beginning of their ministry that they were failures the remaining years of their ministry.

We do, however, know one who, in every respect, is a model assistant. Between him and the pastor, there can be no rivalry, and no matter how poor a preacher he may be the people never hold the pastor accountable.

Every week he will visit the people who will receive him, expounding to them the Word of God, explaining the various causes of benevolence, and picturing to them the home work of the Church.

He entertains the "Shut-ins" and cheers the sick, and he does all this independent of the weather.

He does all this work in a quiet, unobtrusive way at a small cost to each family visited—only $3.00 per annum in advance.

To introduce this model assistant we want agents in every congregation.

DISSATISFACTION WITH THE FEDERAL COUNCIL

Every year since we can remember, there have been overtures from Presbyteries in widely separated sections urging our withdrawal from the Federal Council, but only in rare instances has any attention been paid to them.

One would suppose that these regular defeats would tend to discourage further efforts.

They continue each year with a persistency that plainly indicates that it is not a mere matter of opinion, but that conscience has been at work.

If it be true that these objections are founded upon conscientious principles, then the Assembly would do well to remember that when any question becomes a matter of conscience it can never be kept down.

There are men who pride themselves upon their toleration of evil as if it were a virtue of which they should be proud, when in fact it is a sign that their moral sense has been blunted.

We wonder at every Assembly, when the character of this Council is shown, that these supporters do not hear the solemn warning of Paul when he said, "What fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness?"

At the Montreat Assembly there were two overtures asking that we sever all connection with the Council.

The Presbytery of Knoxville brought a severe indictment against the Council. Among other charges it had the following: "Making the training of children, especially along the lines of sex education, a normal part of the program of religious education."

"Initiating the Church and Drama Associations, in order to procure the fuller co-operation of Roman Catholic and Jewish leaders, in bringing to the notice of Church people the most worth-while productions of the stage."

"It has elected such so-called Modernists as Shailer Matthews, S. Parkes Cadman and Bishop McConnell to its presidency."

The Presbytery of West Hanover urged the Assembly to discontinue connection with the Federal Council of Churches.

Dr. Wm. McPheeters, whose age and ability certainly entitle him to a thoughtful hearing gave strong reasons for our withdrawal, yet the members voted to remain in the Council.

The United Presbyterians with whom we voted to unite seem as indifferent to such merger as we are.

Argyle Presbytery overtured Assembly to withdraw, but the only step was to cut down to one-half its annual financial contributions.

Dr. W. M. Nichols, of Brooklyn, said that the admitted modernism of Drs. Cadman and Fosdick "seem to represent the spirit of the Federal Council of Churches. We had better have no Protestantism at all than that brand."

DAVIDSON'S NEW PRESIDENT

It is yet too soon to assume that Dr. Walter Lingle, who has been elected president by the trustees of Davidson College, as his acceptance is not yet assured, is to be the next president.

We venture, however, to say that they could have selected no man better fitted for the office.

Dr. Lingle possesses the qualities necessary to a college president, in an eminent degree. He is, in the first place, a man of wide scholarship, well known through the Church, and then he is a lover of his fellowmen, especially the young men.

He is also a man of great personal magnetism, gifted with a keen sense of humor, a quality very essential in dealing with young students whose ideas of fun sometimes perplex a sober-minded man.

If he should accept, we predict a most successful administration.

Under Dr. Martin, the retiring president, the college has had a remarkable growth, and we can wish for Dr. Lingle no greater success than that he may equal the career of his predecessor.

THE COMMITTEE ON UNION

Moderator Dobyns, in obedience to the actions of the General Assembly that a special committee be appointed to negotiate organic union with all churches of the Presbyterian faith, named the following:

- Rev. W. R. Dobyns, D.D., Alabama, appointed by the Assembly.
- Rev. H. H. Sweets, D.D., Kentucky.
- Rev. Harris E. Kirk, D.D., Maryland.
- Rev. R. F. Campbell, D.D., North Carolina.
- Rev. R. O. Flynn, D.D., Georgia.
- Rev. C. H. H. Branch, D.D., Florida.
- Rev. Thos. S. Clyde, D.D., Texas.
- Rev. Eugene Abbott, D.D., Missouri.
- Rev. J. I. Vance, D.D., Tennessee.

This Committee was appointed to confer with and take action looking to organic union with all churches of the Presbyterian faith.

It was passed by a large majority, the vote being 125 to 19.

This Committee will confer with similar committees from the Church, U. S. A.; The Reformed Church, and various other Presbyterian denominations to find a basis of union with these organizations.

It is not to supersede the Committee of Union with the United Presbyterians and the Associate Reformed Presbyterians which reported to the last Assembly, of which Dr. S. L. Morris is chairman.

This Committee is to continue negotiations already under way.

We have been asked to express an opinion of this Committee.

As far as we know the sentiments of these appointees, no one of them has ever been an active opponent of organic union, nor have they as a whole ever advocated it.

We might pick out one or more who have

(Continued on Page Seven)

THE PALIMPSEST

Commencement Address at Clinton, S. C.

J. Lyles Glenn, of Chester, addressed the graduating class of the Presbyterian College of South Carolina, taking as his subject "The Palimpsest." He looked upon the state and the nation as a scroll on which each generation must write its record. He cited things that must be read and kept alive; but reminded that there is also the responsibility of bringing to bear knowledge and wisdom upon the needs of the future.

"I am prone to reflect," he said, that I was graduated from a South Carolina College, very similar to your college here, just 17 years ago, and must admit that I am almost a generation further along than the graduates whom we honor today. This will remind us that in the swift passage of time the history of our state and national life is being written very rapidly.

"In the Middle Ages, when parchment was a rare and precious thing, and men, eager to set down their thoughts in writing or to copy out once more the thoughts of admired masters of wisdom, were tripped in their eagerness by want of the due materials, they were wont to take an old manuscript and to prepare a clean sheet by erasing the old characters—not so drastically, however, but the old script could still be discerned by a seeing eye through the new penmanship, and the old words still shine, however dimly, through the cloud of new words by which they have been obscured. To such a manuscript scholars have given the name of palimpsest.

"Ruminating thought, which detects sermons in stones, may in this year of our Lord discover a palimpsest in the unrolled map of Europe. Graved and scored with characters through all recorded time, it is being graved and scored once more, by a pen of iron and with ink of blood, in characters that seem today indelible. History, after all, has its rhythm and its recurrence. Where the graving ran deepest in the days of old the profoundest score may still be seen today. The valleys and the water-ways where our forefathers joined battle witness now, in their eternal sightlessness, the locked struggle of the children. There are some channels cut by nature through which the fretting tide of human action seems destined to run for evermore. From the beginning of time invaders have crossed the desert of Sinai to batter at the gates of Egypt.

Each Generation a Scroll

"So, we are inclined today to think of our fair state and nation as a scroll on which each generation must write its record. You as a class of college graduates cannot escape responsibility for the record which will be written in the next 40 years. We might quote statistics compiled by numerous agencies to show that the college graduates of each generation have determined more largely than any other group of people that general trend of their times. Indeed, you will be writing this record from this very day. I am forcibly reminded of the way responsibility is trust upon younger shoulders by thinking that one day last winter I walked into a meeting of the South Carolina general assembly, and saw 12 members whom I had had under me as students—and I still count myself a young man!

"I make bold to suggest to you that as in the case of the palimpsest of the Middle Ages, some of the finer writings and truths were contained in the older messages, which were all but obscured by the multiplicity of words superimposed, so, in writing the new message we find that in doing so we should preserve the best of the past. It is authentically related that one of Euripides' plays was almost completely obscured by a wine-merchant, who used the parchment on which a monk had copied the play by keeping of his accounts.

Is Chivalry Passing?

"To bring this point directly home to us, let us ask ourselves the question, whether or not the fine chivalry of ante-bellum days has not been greatly obliterated by somewhat changed manners of today? So, let me suggest to the class of 1929 that in taking your part in writing the history of the next few decades that you feel and decide for yourselves that the preservation of that which is best out of the past will be one of your first duties. That this will be done on the practical side of life gives us little concern; for the American people have shown a remarkable genius in applying the knowledge of the world to the satisfaction of human need and the betterment of the physical conditions of the race. Our achievements in the world of science are undoubted proof of this faculty. The principles of geometry and physics, while known to the human race for generations, seem to have been almost gone until they were applied as if by magic under the American genius for organization and construction. Historians tell us that the Chinese knew almost as much about these subjects 4,000 years ago as the world at large did at the beginning of the 19th century. We have, however, to inquire whether or not we have not, in our rapid strides in a material way, failed to preserve and apply principles equally as old and equally as well understood to our moral and spiritual life. In some strange way it seems that each generation, in the conduct of its moral, intellectual and spiritual life, must learn through the hard school of experience the practical wisdom set forth in the Proverbs of Solomon. How often do we hear a man 60 years of age comment that he wished that he could live his life with the wisdom that he had gained from the hard school of experience! Or again, it happens every day that full-grown men are suddenly exclaiming, "My father used to tell me that, and I now see that the old man was right!"

"Why is it that a young mind will take a principle of physics or chemistry, and with the courage of youth apply it in such a way as to give us some great discovery which will change the physical aspect of the world, and at the same time the same mind will refuse to grasp and put into practice one of the general principles of wisdom for the conduct of human life which have been written in the plainest of language and illustrated by thousands of examples?"

Here Judge Glenn suggested the reading of the Old Testament and Plutarch's Lives. He praised the practical mind of the British teachers who insist upon the study of biography, and the wisdom of the Greeks in writing and reading of Aesop's Fables.

What Are Records?

"You may inquire then," he continued, "what are the records which must be read and kept alive by the on-coming generation represented by this class? We outline these briefly:

"Traditions for chivalry and patriotism.

"Strong adherence to the fundamentals of religion.

"Better understanding and appreciation of the history of our nation.

"But in the writing of your record there is not only the writing of your problem of keeping alive the best that is behind us, but of bringing to bear your knowledge and wisdom upon the needs of the future. We can claim no great wisdom or divine insight in prophesying the nature of these problems, but from the signs of the times, from the opinion of our wisest men, and from common sense study of the present, it seems to us that among many other phases of life which will command your attention are the following:

"Continuation of educational opportunities, both as a matter of quantity and quality.

"More active participation on the part of all citizens in every phase of governmental activity. (He paused to discuss fully the administration of justice.)

"Sufficient knowledge of actual conditions to think correctly.

"This thinking," he said, "must also be applied to legislative and executive branches of the government." (Here the speaker referred to the recurrence of suggestions that cabinet officers should be allowed to appear in person on the floor of the national congress.)

World War

"As one who saw a great deal of many phases of the World War," he said, "let me suggest that it has taught us some lessons which would be of advantage to the oncoming generation. We are just getting far enough from the war to see these matters with some clarity.

"That the physical triumph of the allies was after all a great victory for liberality, liberal governments, and a great blow to some dangerous doctrines. To lose this advantage obtained at such great price would be the height of folly.

"That the actuating motive of the millions who fought was more clearly understood by them, and more accurately expressed in the high terms voiced by Wilson than the busy world of today seems willing to admit. (Here he told of French, British and American soldiers, and their casual remarks.)

"A sympathetic understanding of what I have sometimes called the Spirit of 1917 makes two strong appeals to the intelligent citizens of today and tomorrow. In the first place, it assumes the aspect of duty to the participants in the war, particularly to the dead. In the second place, it comes clearly before us as a God-given opportunity to take advantage of a situation conducive to better international relations, and therefore to the establishment of world peace.

"The prophets of old spoke of the day when 'The mountain of Jehovah's house shall be established on the top of the mountains and it shall be exalted above the hills—and nation shall not lift up sword against nation neither shall they learn war any more.'

"If we, the privileged citizens of a privileged country and time, by reason of a lack of idealism or intelligent understanding of the opportunity before us do not work to this end, have we not failed to take advantage of the God-given opportunity? Records of heroism and loyalty and devotion to duty have been written on the unfolded parchment of the world. The very battlefields on which the World War was fought were already scarred by former contests in which equal bravery and devotion had been shown. Is the World War simply another record of the same heroism and valor, but at the same time of suffering and anguish which will lead to no better results? Will the world go on writing these records of destruction and death, and eternally prove truant to the idealism and sacrifice of the men who fight?

"If the intelligent citizen of tomorrow does not remedy this, we have but another message written on the palimpsest, and are still just as far, or maybe further, from the day when 'They shall beat their swords into ploughshares and spears into pruning hooks. But they shall sit, every man under his vine and his fig tree, and none shall make them afraid: for the mouth of the Lord of hosts hath spoken it.'

"The defeat of the League of Nations was but a temporary setback. The time is still ripe for definite achievements along this line. The leadership towards this achievement will come from the graduates of a cultured, liberal college where Christian ideals are taught, and inspiration is drawn from the Bible itself—from such a college as produced Woodrow Wilson!"—Report taken from Columbia State.

Men-of-the-Ch

Presbyterian Church in the Un

REV. J. E. PURCELL, D.D., Executive
HENRY GRADY BUILDING
ATLANTA, GEORGIA

REV. JOHN L. FAIRLY, D.D., William Editor in Charge of Men-of-the-Church

SOME RESULTS OF THE YEAR

1. Promotion

Approximately 471 churches have had the contacts of the Secretary and I. This not include letters or literature include visitation and definite instruction small groups.

12,500 men and pastors have been conferences and meetings held by the Field Workers during the year. This include scores of addresses made by pastors not connected with this Department membership of the churches in the year would run to about 40,000 men.

Since beginning our large promotion campaign on September 1, 1927, we have in the various Schools and Conferences in which either or Field Workers were leaders, whose male membership runs to 7. This includes part of the report which year.

Four Summer Conferences held in the Church lasting from two to three reaching 475 men and pastors for interest in Men's Work.

Four periods of training and discussion Theological Seminaries of our Church to 90 Seniors.

Twenty-five presentations of Men's Conferences during the meeting of Provincial Synods. In all of these there were 1,500 men and pastors.

Fifteen Training Schools of from two to three in local churches. Attendance around pastors.

2. Office

The writing and publication of literature mailing out upon the order of the church approximately 75,000 pieces.

393 churches wrote asking for special about the Plan and Program of the Church.

The publication and part sale of 7,000 Monthly Programs and Service Suggestion programs have to do directly with the Church.

Contacts kept through the office connected with the promotion of the work in the local Church.

The entire list of men whose name during the year is well above the 2,000.

The names of Presidents and leaders furnished to our Executive Committee requested them for mailing and distribution.

Letters containing information about the work sent to these men from Every organization received information about helping the officers with the Every Member Canvass.

An article in the Church Papers on Men's Work. This included a large amount about the Executive and Promotion of our Church.

This column also carried definite work in the local churches by the past

Correspondence touching organizational local churches running into the hundreds during the year.

Co-operation with all of our Extension Agencies in the issuing of the for the year 1929-30.

Help of the Educational Department Committee has been secured.

Help of scores of pastors and men assembly in getting suggestions about organizations in local churches.

3. Synod's Committees

Every reasonable effort has been working committees in our Synods. We now have a group of excellent Church men are co-operating with us to the and show their desire to promote the

We have endeavored to meet with Committees of Synods this year. We to help them plan definitely for their one of them at this time has definitely of promotion. This is the first time accomplished this result.

These Chairmen under our direction on April 3rd and 4th in Atlanta thoroughly discussed a plan for promoting Presbyteries and local churches.

4. Presbyteries' Committees

Through the Synods' Chairmen we have to secure the right kind of committee byterics. We believe that this is being have co-operated with these Presbyteries and given them help wherever it was number of them have called on us for for addresses.

We have mailed to these men literature suggestions about their reports to Presbyteries.

5. Local Churches

urly to make any report on organiza-
ear. We have received quite a num-al reports, but these reports do not ch by any means.
which are sent in through the Stated
stery will not reach us for some time of Report Blanks sent in to us last al 388 organizations. In round num-ed reports from 400 organizations. It onths to get these reports.

izations listed above as being under e know that many of them have a rt of the plan and program of the rch. They, however, are hesitant to be Men-of-the-Church Organizathem are some form of Clubs. Pracnem plan to go into the Men-of-the-

ed as having the plan and program
e-the-Church, all are not 100 per cent are undoubtedly improving year by

of interested Chairmen of the Synod's Men's Work, we believe that within three years, we will be able to make etter statistical report.

is which we have received show that re developing men in prayer life, in elism, in Church attendance, in the ible, in Stewardship, in the conduct various kinds, in knowledge of the urch and in other ways developing also show that wherever the Mens set up and properly directed, a very e in interest in the entire work of own by the men.

the Committee on Assembly's Work nding Committee at the meeting of large number of reports from various es. These are ready for the inspecwho is interested in this work.

WHY OF "MEN OF THE CHURCH"

g copied from "The Item," Beckley, expresses in a clear-cut way its con-Men-of-the-Church Organization.
st read of the organization of the urch that is being set up in this questions may have arisen in your e will try to anticipate and answer.
estion that might come to you is—rposes of the men's organizations? The all the men of the congregation in ce and Fellowship. It is obvious that l in our congregation. We need to ther better and to work together.

o an incident occurred in another might occur in ours any time. A cerfter the service, turned to some one ot know and said, "I am glad to see e always glad to welcome strangers."
e replied, "Don't call me a stranger, member of this Church for fifteen need to know one another. We may nds but we need many more.

e among them the study of the Bible, ory, standards, agencies and aims of ur faith is based on God's revealed
e call the Bible. If we, as Christians, e upon Christ, is it not reasonable should acquaint ourselves intimately which tells of the life and work of may say, "Church membership has h to me." If it has not, it may be not used the means of studying God's en and vitalize their own lives, and ir Church membership.

te and enlist them in witnessing for e really finds complete satisfaction in il they do something towards leading rt. This is a difficult task and a hard ge, but it is one which brings much a satisfaction. Christ said, "I am the ly Father is the Husbandman. Every that beareth not fruit, He taketh it ery branch that beareth fruit, He ut it may bear more fruit."

fficient? It is in other places, it can be here.
ny meetings and services to attend; our o complex that we are wary of "getting organization. It will not be a time waster, is designed to accomplish the greatest least amount of time consumed. But its s not upon the organization, but upon the ery man will have a job—if every es his, it will be efficient. It will be business like manner.
ective? The answer depends upon You.
il it last? Until a better one is installed.
ill we meet? Monthly.
nbers of "The Men-of-the-Church?" All s of the Church.

ot built in a day." We can hardly hope about the Men-of-the-Church in the Beck-
i. Church will be up to the ideal in every
t. beginning, but if every man and boy in v be interested, open to conviction, show their presence, pray for the organization to lead and follo wHis leading in all things, will see the Beckley Presbyterian Church its progress, and a beacon light to h, because of the consecrated activities
e-the-Church.

WHAT ABOUT ASSEMBLY'S HOME MISSIONS?

Homer McMillan, Secretary

In the Church calendar June has been assigned to Assembly's Home Missions. During these weeks churches that have not taken an Every Member Canvass or made adequate provision for Assembly's Home Missions are given an opportunity to make a worth while offering to this fundamental and far-reaching cause.

The regular Home Mission income for the year ending March 31 was $21,027 less than for the preceding year. The applications for aid approximated one million dollars, while the amount available for meeting these requests was only $521,022.

In order to maintain appropriations to the Presbyteries and Missions without further injuring the work, no provision could be made for the payment of the Committee's indebtedness, and no appropriation for new churches could be made.

During the past five years because of a decrease in the Home Mission income there has been a decrease of 165 in the number of churches and missions aided, and a decrease of 160 in the number of workers employed.

When this decrease in the work of Assembly's Home Missions is considered in the light of the other fact that Home Mission churches as a class show a larger percentage of gain upon profession, how long can the Southern Presbyterian Church survive these losses and continue to lead the denominations in productive Evangelism?

A leaflet entitled "The Vanguard of the Church" giving some facts concerning the work of the Assembly's Executive Committee will be sent to every Church and society desiring it for distribution.

June 30 is Home Mission Day in the Sunday Schools, and the Executive Committee is exceedingly anxious that this day be observed in every Sunday School in the Assembly, and that an opportunity be given for an offering for this cause. A suitable program has been prepared and will be sent to every School upon request.

Every year the Home Mission task becomes larger in its scope and more insistent in its demands. Will the Church see the need and respond to the call for enlargement, or must coming generations point to the Home Mission failures of our day as we now point to the Home Mission failures of those that preceded us?

Atlanta, Ga.

COMPARATIVE STATEMENT FOREIGN MISSION RECEIPTS

Receipts applicable to Regular appropriations:

	May,
	1929	1928
Churches	$ 32,529.38	$ 29,809.22
Sunday Schools	674.65	1,114.95
Sunday Schools Objective	4,324.39	5,483.98
Societies	4,075.99	5,240.50
Societies Objective	101.20	80.70
Individuals	4,324.18	1,767.63
Legacies	46,629.79	43,497.04
	43.10	73.98
Total	$ 46,672.89	$ 43,571.02
To months April 1, 1929, to May 31, 1929, inclusive:
Churches	$ 70,503.57	$ 74,899.65
Sunday Schools	2,178.60	3,067.93
Sunday School Objective	4,887.64	6,017.45
Societies	11,197.54	11,047.86
Societies Objective	320.69	442.76
Individuals	5,755.42	7,316.80
Legacies	94,843.46	102,792.45
	51.86	73.98
Total	$ 94,895.32	$ 102,866.43
Cost of Year 1928-29		1,209,205.39
Initial Appropriation 1929-30	1,235,068.96
Deficit March 31,
1929	$174,659.02
Less gifts for same	79.44	174,579.58
		$1,409,648.54

EDWIN F. WILLIS, Treasurer.

Nashville, Tennessee, May 31, 1929.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION AND MINISTERIAL RELIEF

Comparative Statement of Receipts

April 1, 1929—May 31, 1929

	1928-29	1929-30	Increase	Decrease
Churches	$12,571.05	$13,202.29	$ 631.24	$-----
Sab. Schools	1,440.94	1,108.11	-----	332.83
Societies	1,823.01	1,605.09	-----	217.92
Individuals	737.00	1,615.45	878.45	-----
Miscellaneous	277.58	-----	-----	277.58
Living Donors	$16,849.58	$17,530.94	$1,509.69	$828.33
Net Increase	$681.36.

JOHN STITES, Treasurer.

410 Urban Building, Louisville, Ky.

RECEIPTS FOR ASSEMBLY'S HOME MISSIONS

The following table gives a comparative statement of Receipts of the ASSEMBLY'S HOME MISSIONS

CHALLENGE OF THE MILL VILLAGE

Rev. Chas. E. Sullivan, D.D.

There can probably be no greater challenge to the Presbyterian Church, along the line of Home Missions, than that of the mill village and its thousands of people who constitute the mill workers. Both the Baptists and Methodists are at work in every one of these villages, but with their combined efforts are not reaching more than one-third of the population, and both these denominations are exceedingly anxious for the Presbyterians to join their forces in a common warfare against the "Powers of Darkness." We find in each of these towns, first, a class of educated and cultured people extremely interested, for the most part, in the spiritual uplift of the mill town; and second, a class of mill operatives willing to cooperate in this great cause; but a third class, which constitute the majority are very indifferent, and in many cases lawless, and rank in morals with the slum life of our great cities where vice and immorality predominate.

It has been charged against the Presbyterian Church that she is not qualified to do this class of work to reach people of this character, but the Church has demonstrated, in many instances, that this criticism is not founded on fact, for she has established and is maintaining a number of churches and Sunday Schools in the mill villages. For instance, at Laurens, S. C., are two organized churches, as at Whitmire, Ware Shoals, Calhoun Falls, and other places, all of which are doing a fine work. We will not admit that any Church can excel the Presbyterian in evangelistic work, and none can equal her in a constructive work.

We believe, after a careful study of conditions surrounding the home life of the mill villages, that the most effective, and probably the most economical way of establishing permanent work among them is by securing the services of consecrated, common sense women who would undertake welfare work. They should be women such as are being developed at our Assembly's Training Schools at Richmond, Va., women who are sound in the faith and capable of instructing them in the great principles of the Plan of Salvation. There are many teachers being turned out from Bible Schools which are under no denominational control and might be termed "Free Lances," who have an eye on this work and are establishing themselves in this work. These might be classed as the Socialists of religion, answerable to no ecclesiastical authority.

The Mill Village people are our own people, bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh, people who have moved from the farms in order to make a living and educate their children. We find them as a whole responsive, and their liberality in financial support of the Church is much in excess of the Rural Churches. There are problems connected with this work which render it in a measure a hard work. One of the hardest to master is to bring about a feeling of fellowship between the mill people and the people of the town. Even two churches of the same denomination, one in the town, the other in the mill village, have little or no fellowship with each other. Probably the only place where this wall or partition has been broken down is at Whitmire. Here it was done by the Presbyterians, who accomplished it by sending their automobiles into the mill village to bring the children to Sunday School, which naturally brought their parents to attend the worship of the Church. The fault is not altogether with the mill people, but much of it may be attributed to the indifference of the town church. What is most needed for a successful work in the field is a set of workers with understanding hearts and a clear vision of the needs of these people, who are not different from the rest of the world in their great need of a deep conviction of sin and a knowledge of Christ as a personal Savior. It is a self-evident fact that if we had more churches in our home field we would have a greater revenue for the support of our Foreign Mission Work, and the Foreign Mission Committee would not be involved in financial difficulties as it is now and has been for some time. I do not know a field that would yield quicker financial results than the development of the mill village churches. Surely the command of our Lord, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature," comprehends these people. He set the example when He preached to all classes, when the "multitudes followed Him," and "the common people heard Him gladly."
Columbia, S. C.

for April and May, 1929:

	1929	1928	Increase	Decrease
Churches	$31,750.52	$29,028.84	$2,721.68	$-----
Sunday Schools	395.44	344.92	50.52	-----
Auxiliaries	1,425.41	1,939.86	-----	514.45
Y. P. & C. E.	210.38	-----	210.38	-----
Individuals	2,310.40	484.65	1,825.75	-----
Total Receipts
From
Living Donors	$36,092.15	$31,798.27	$4,868.33	$514.45
Designated Funds	5,477.30
	$42,569.45
Amount apportioned by the General Assembly for the work of the Assembly's Home Mission Committee, 1929-30			$840,000.00
Total Receipts for April and May			42,569.45

$797,430.55

Signed,
A. N. SHARP, Treasurer.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPT.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPIC

Sunday, June 23—Jesus Teaching Us Self-Control
Micah 6:8, I Peter 2:11-20

C. G. A.

Introduction

To get an idea of how big a thing self-control is, let us suppose that we have no self-control. We may suppose this in two ways. First, we may imagine ourselves with a definite capacity both mentally and physically without a chance for over-rating or under-rating that capacity. If such a thing were so, in learning or in eating and drinking when we had reached our capacity we would be automatically shut off. There would be no choice in the matter. One's capacity would be the stopping place—just as a quart bottle will hold only a quart, so we may imagine our capacities limited. What a mechanical, fatalistic world it would be! Again, we may imagine our capacities to be just as they are but without self-control. In that case, we would be on the level with the animals—going to excesses, quarreling, fighting, and so on. Now we see that self-control is what makes life worth living. Without it we would be like limited vessels or like animals.

Self-Control and Anger

Self-control is not limited to controlling our physical and mental appetites, but we can also become masters of our emotions. Anger is an emotion we have all experienced. The most of us call it temper. Temper is the ease with which we get angry. When we get very angry we do and say things that we would not ordinarily think of and so we say that we are not "ourselves." "Self" has gone off control. We become animals in human forms.

Is it wrong, then, to get angry? No, not any more wrong than it is to get hungry. What is wrong is letting the anger be master instead of Self. And Self can learn to be master only by depending on the Master of Self—Jesus.

War and Self-Control

Perhaps you have never seen a Chinese street fight. It is a very different affair from an American street fight. Bishop McConnell said that at one time he witnessed a Chinese street fight. He and some American friends were going down a street in one of the cities of China when they heard a commotion and saw a large crowd on one of the corners. Two men were shouting at each other at the top of their lungs. Each of them had a group of men behind him telling him what to say when he could think of nothing to shout to the opponent. Bishop McConnell asked one of his friends what matter was, and the friend informed him that they were fighting. "Then why don't they strike?" asked the Bishop. "Oh," said the other, "that would be an acknowledgement of defeat. The first one that strikes admits that he hasn't any more ideas." Wars start in just such a way. The leaders of nations run out of ideas, lose control and strike. They resort to blind anger as master. They choose to be animals rather than men.

Jesus Teaching Us Self-Control

How many times Jesus taught us self-control when he was here! You remember the time when James and John wanted to call fire from heaven to consume their opponents, and the time, too, when this same James and John forbade one, who did not follow Jesus as they did, to cast out demons. You remember, too, the time when the Samaritan woman refused him a drink of water and his gentle reply. And the time he was before Pilate—his quiet dignity and absolute control over himself. So many times he had to rebuke us, and so many times he showed us by his example that it never pays to lose control.

This same Jesus is ready to teach us and help us to control ourselves.

O Master, let me walk with thee
In closer, dearer company,
Teach me thy secret, help me bear
The strain of toil, the fret of care.

PLAYTIME

Issued by the Travel and Recreation Department of the International Society of Christian Endeavor

Carroll M. Wright, Supt.
41 Mt. Vernon St., Boston, Mass.

(Permission to reproduce any Playtime material is hereby given, cheerfully, provided credit be given to the Recreation Department of the International Society of Christian Endeavor.)

A Treasure Hunt

Choose a Saturday afternoon for one of the finest "Hikes" you have ever enjoyed. Select a good place for a fire, wiener roast, marshmallow toast, etc., but make no announcement of the place selected. Keep that a deep, dark secret.

Advertise Treasure Hunt.—The buried stores and others will afford a wealth of stimulus to your imagination in the making of posters, invitations, etc. Advertise the Treasure Hunt to start from your church, the home of a member, or some other well known place. Do not advertise the route or the final stop. Be sure to give time the hunt will begin.

Advance Preparations.—Your committee will have a bit of work in preparation, but you will feel well repaid by the enthusiasm of your members. First, go carefully over the course from your meeting place to the place for the fire. Make notes of places where you may leave notes giving directions. Use good judgment in not picking them too close or too far apart. Pick places that are rather well known to your group or which may be found fairly easily from your notes. Then write notes of instruments, making portions of the instruments in code. A simple code may be made in the hunt:

Make copies of this code to be handed to each team as follows:

A	B	C	J	K	L
D	E	F	M	N	O
G	H	I	P	Q	R
No. 1			No. 2
	S	T	U
	V	W	X
	Y	Z
No. 3

Letters will then be formed like this:

1	2	3	2	3	1	2
---	---	---	---	---	---	---

which, decoded, would be the following letters—A, K, U, N, W, G, and R.

As an example, the name of our bulletin, Playtime, in code would be:

2	2	1	3	3	1	2	1
---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---

Your notes, then, would be something like this: Go to Deacon Jones' barn and look under a stone right in front of the door. Fold and put this note exactly where you found it. Another, go to the next to the last tombstone in the southeast corner of the Smithville cemetery. Beside the foot-stone, under a stone will be another note. Fold and put this note exactly where you found it. And thus, with parts of the notes in code, you would direct your teams from place to place until the final note would direct them to the meeting place.

Inside, in Case of Rain.—Thus far, all preparations have been for an outdoor party. It would be wise to arrange for the use of your Church, an old barn close by or some other place in case of bad weather. In advance, make two sets of notes, the second for your inside place. Then you may have your hunt despite weather conditions. Inside notes might be GO to the left corner of this room and look near second window. Fold and replace this note exactly where you found it. There, a note might read, Go to the middle room on second floor and look under the hay cutter. Fold and place this note exactly where you found it. And so, until the final place. These notes should all be hidden in advance. Copies of the code should be made and enclosed in sealed envelopes. Arrange for your fire wood and other things you will want there. Be sure to have some games that all may play and enjoy. Rather than take the space here, any good book of games, or back numbers of Playtime will afford ample material. Arrange for two time keepers, one at the starting place and one to be at the final place of meeting. Be sure their watches are correct.

The Start—Now you are ready for the fun. Remember, though, that the success of your afternoon depends on your advance preparations. If you have a large group, put several on each team. If your group is smaller, two persons would make a team. Give each team a sealed envelope containing the code. Number your teams from one up. Caution all to be sure to fold and replace all notes exactly where they found them. Start team number one by telling them where to go to find the first note. About five minutes later, or a little less, start team number two the same way, then team number three in another five minutes or so and so on until all teams are on the hunt. Have your timekeeper record the number and time each team left. Then, the timekeeper at the finish will record the number and time of arrival of each team. It is not the first team in that wins the hunt, but the team that finished in the least time. If you must have the hunt indoors, start in exactly the same manner except that, in addition to the envelope containing the code, each team would be given a candle and two matches. Inside, the girls are not allowed to talk but may make signs. Make the intervals between leaving time much shorter than for outdoors. When ready to start your teams, turn out all lights except one lone candle on a table or stand.

The Finish and the Fire—Have games to keep those early arrivals busy and enlarge your group as other teams come in. Prizes may be awarded the winning team if desired, though this is not at all necessary. The mystery, the lure of the hunt will be ample reward. Continue games for a reasonable time, then finish with your stunts, songs, hot dogs and marshmallows.

NUMBER THREE OUR BIRTHDAY PRESENTS FOR JUNE

While we always favor the use of themes and complete programs carefully worked out, yet, occasionally it might be well to vary even this year, we are giving some of our "birthday" You may use them for a "hodge-podge" party may select some of the games to work in of your own.

From James I. Hart, London, England—

Place some small article in a parcel and a piece of string. Wrap this in another tie it. Keep on wrapping separate parcels inside the other, until the article which started has eight or ten separate wrappings your players into a circle. Have some piano and while the music continues, pass from one to another. When the music person holding the package starts to opening off the string and beginning to unwrap. Whether this unwrapping has been complete begin to pass the package again as soon as starts. Continue this until someone opens wrapping and receives the reward—a piece or a small toy. Tell the players at the that the person who finally opens the parcel receive the contents as a reward.

From Idaho C. E. Union—Kick Baseball

This played like indoor baseball except ball is used and there is no pitcher. The ball on the ground at home plate and is kicked. No batter is allowed to touch anyway except to kick it. Foul lines are as for indoor baseball. If the batters are and kick the ball too far away, make a run must be kicked with left foot. Score as usual. From Margretta Ralston, East Orange, N. J.—A Spider Web.

Divide your company into teams of two according to the number present. Meet in for the start of the web. Give each team a piece of colored string with instructions follow this to the end where they will finish. Of course, your cords must be arranged in Twist them in and out various rooms, the difficult places and then have them all end. Of course, your group does not know cords lead to the same prize and great surprise when they reach the end.

From Virnamay Hoop, St. Louis, Miss.—

"There are smiles." There are rules that make us scrappy. There are rules that make us mad; There are rules that tell us to be careful. And a few we think are very bad. There are rules that warn us of our danger. There are rules that help us in our struggle. But the rules they give us for our conduct. Are the rules we must not shirk.

From Harry W. Githens, Quincy, Illinois—

pearian Goulash, a stunt. Announcer—"A quartet of Shakespearean arrived in our midst this evening and will be ranged for them to entertain us for a brief time."

"Two men and two women enter garb in humorous Shakespearean fashion. The men have trousers rolled up like knickerbockers, socks and garters showing. Capes or scarves are worn around the shoulders, and bright ribbon ties at the throat. One wears a soft felt hat with large plume and the other a derby hat with a feather at one side. The women have flowing robes with capes, shawls and large hats."

First Man—Friends, Romans, Countrymen, lend me your ears.

First Woman—'Tis already the Twelfth of the Tempest rages.

Second Man—Oh, woe the day we butted Caesar.

Second Woman—I would it had been Cleopatra.

First Man—(Sadly) I feel Love's Labor Lost.

First Woman—You make Much Ado About Nothing.

Second Man—'Tis more like a Midsummer Dream.

Second Woman—No, 'tis more like a Winter's Tale.

First Man—(Sadly) I fear I shall never see Merry Wives of Windsor.

First Woman—(Weeping) Nor I, the Merchant of Venice.

Second Man—(Boldly) I long for the Macbeth that I may accomplish the Tantrum.

Second Woman—To be, or not to be, that is the question. Whether it is nobler to appear dead, or to take arms against the Second.

First Man—As You Like It.

First Woman—Romeo!

First Man—(Embracing her) Juliet!

Second Woman—My Hamlet!

Second Man—(Embracing her) My Ophelia!

All—(Bowing) All's Well That Ends Well.

From Irene Beatty, Duluth, Minnesota—

"Sensical" Party.

Decorations—Decorate the room with paper and vertising the Five Senses.

Invitations—Cut out small cards shape figure 5 about 4 inches in length and about 1/2 inch in width and on this write the invitations. The way is to make a figure 5, block style, with ink, then run them off on a hectograph (or a typewriter if you have one) and cut. Invite your members and a good time to test their hearing (ear) sense, feeling (hand) smelling (nose) and tasting (tongue).

Poster—Make a large five on the same paper as the invitations only draw the five senses writing them out.

Program—Mixing game until all arrive in a circle with one as IT inside the circle. A card is tossed across the circle, handed to the

The Department of Woman's Work, Presbyterian Church, U. S.
270-277 Field Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

SYNOCDICAL PRESIDENTS OF THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

Alabama—Mrs. J. F. Hooper, 610 Mabry St., Selma, Ala.
Appalachia—Mrs. F. B. Kegley, Wytheville, Va.
Arkansas—Mrs. Walter Wilson, Arkadelphia, Ark.
Florida—Mrs. W. G. Thompson, Jr., 3215 Obispo St., Palma Ceia Park, Tampa, Fla.
Georgia—Mrs. E. G. Aboott, 1315 Eberhart Ave., Columbus, Ga.
Kentucky—Mrs. H. P. Cooper, Lebanon, Ky.
Louisiana—Mrs. Charles L. Bodin, Box 79, M. R. A., Lake Charles, Louisiana.
Mississippi—Mrs. J. S. Hicks, Holly Springs, Miss.
Missouri—Mrs. Walter Craven, 223 Frances St., Excelsior Springs, Mo.
North Carolina—Mrs. G. V. Patterson, Gastonia, N. C.
Oklahoma—Mrs. Wilbur Garvin, 611 Euclid, Lawton, Oklahoma.
South Carolina—Mrs. Parker Connor, Edisto Island, South Carolina.
Tennessee—Mrs. J. F. Forsythe, Bethel Springs, Tenn.
Texas—Mrs. J. W. Culver, Texas Military Academy, San Antonio, Texas.
Virginia—Mrs. C. R. Vaughan, 319 Mountain Ave., Roanoke, Va.
West Virginia—Mrs. J. McD. Lacy, Elkins, W. Va.

OUR NEW SECRETARY OF WOMAN'S WORK (An Open Letter to the Woman's Auxiliary)

Dear Friends:

When God's work needs a leader—He always has one ready for the place. If we yield ourselves to His guidance through earnest prayer, and exercise the judgment with which He has endowed us, the worker and the task will find each other. This has been pre-eminently shown to be true in the difficult task which has recently faced the Committee on Woman's Work, as they sought to find the woman God had prepared to succeed to the office of Secretary of Woman's Work.

Since last September, when the outgoing Secretary's resignation was received by the Committee on Woman's Work, the Committee members and she have prayed daily for guidance to find the right woman for this important position. There can be no doubt that these prayers have been definitely answered.

Two years ago Miss Janie McGaughey was chosen for the important place of Secretary of Spiritual Life of the Auxiliary, not only because of her very fine qualifications for that important work, but also with the hope that she might be the one fitted to succeed to the important office she now holds. Two years' experience in the work have demonstrated the wisdom of the choice.

Miss McGaughey has the background of Christian home training, an education of highest class in a Church school, Agnes Scott College, where she recently received a Phi Beta Kappa Key. She received her training as a Bible teacher at Biblical Seminary, New York. Thus her fine natural gifts have had the highest training. Add to these a pleasing personality, a consecrated spirit and a supply of good common sense and we have an ideal combination for the office she has just accepted. Given time to learn the many ramifications of the Auxiliary work she will serve the Auxiliary and Church with the same unflinching success which has attended her labors as teacher, Director of Young People's Work in a city Church and as Secretary of Spiritual Life for the Auxiliary.

May I bespeak for our new Secretary the same fine loyalty and hearty co-operation which you have so fully given your outgoing Secretary and which has made these long years of service a delight and a joy unspeakable. I know she will receive no less.

In closing a personal word to the Auxiliary members may be permitted. We have worked and studied and prayed and fellowshiped together these many years. Each member of the Auxiliary seems a personal friend, well known and beloved. My appreciation of the allegiance and affection you have given me is beyond words to express.

It is not physically possible for me to answer all the messages I am receiving and inquiries coming to the office appended to business letters, such as I long to do so. May I thank you all for them here and now and assure you that each one is most deeply appreciated and treasured.

It will be a real joy to work as a private in the Auxiliary ranks when strength permits and perhaps God willing, I may after awhile see many of you again. The future is in His loving hands who doeth all things well.

The Auxiliary will continue steadily on its forward march. Its foundations are firmly laid. He will continue to guide and direct it to even greater usefulness during the years to come under new leadership.

With profound gratitude to God for the privilege of the past year's labor and with unwavering faith in the future of our beloved Auxiliary, I am

Faithfully yours,

Hallie P. Winsborough.

Shreveport, La.

CHARLESTON PRESBYTERIAL

Charleston, S. C., Presbyterial Auxiliary held its twenty-third annual meeting in the Second Church, Charleston, on Tuesday and Wednesday, March 26-27, 1929. The President, Mrs. J. B. Morrison, Jr., called the meeting to order at 10:30 on Tuesday morning. After a solo by Mrs. Byrnes, Mrs. W. H. Walker of the First Church led the devotional. Greetings were extended by Mrs. Fred Patton, and responded to by Mrs. Henry Lightsey of Crockettville. After the roll call and introduction of visitors by the President, Mrs. Parker Connor, Synodical President, gave a talk on "Auxiliary Activities," Mrs. S. G. Stoney, Synodical Historian, spoke on Church History. Rev. John McSween, President of the Presbyterian College, Clinton, S. C., spoke of the need of Christian colleges. Mrs. T. S. Legare reported the Colored Work on the Islands, of which she is Chairman. After the appointment of committees, and a brief talk on the Literature Table by Mrs. Brantley Harvey, Secretary of Literature, the session closed with prayer by Rev. Alexander Sprunt, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

In the afternoon Miss Amey Allan explained the "Standard of Woman's Auxiliary." Mrs. George Sheffer, Field Worker of Religious Education, Synod of S. C., spoke on Religious Education. Miss Atha Bowman of the Committee on Religious Education, Richmond, gave a talk on Parent-Teacher Relationship. Reports of the District Chairmen were heard, and a collection for the Assembly Inn, Montreat, was taken. The session closed with prayer by Mrs. Connor.

The evening session was presided over by Dr. J. W. Hickman, pastor of the Second Church. After the Doxology, Dr. Sprunt led in prayer. A pageant, "The Desire of All Nations," was given by the young people of the Second Church. Rev. C. N. Caldwell gave an interesting talk on China, speaking especially of the loyalty of the Chinese Christians under persecution and martyrdom. The service closed with the benediction by Dr. Hickman.

The session of Wednesday morning opened with a hymn, and prayer by Mrs. Arthur Johnston. Mrs. G. T. Pace led the devotional. Reports of Cause Secretaries were read and accepted, and new officers elected. Miss Sue Haley, of the Assembly's Home Mission Committee, Atlanta, gave a talk on Assembly's Home Missions, and Mrs. Armstrong, retired missionary from Brazil, led in prayer. A pageant presenting our Birthday Gift was given by Miss Laura Saville, Mrs. Sloan and Mrs. Lockwood. Rev. G. A. Nickles, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church, led in prayer for Mexico. The new officers were installed by Dr. Hickman, and the meeting closed with the Doxology and prayer by Dr. Hickman. The total attendance was 152. The invitation of the Beaufort Church to meet with them next year was accepted.

J. L. G.

BIRTHDAY PARTY AT REX

The Ladies' Missionary Society of Rex, N. C., Presbyterian Church was organized May 17, 1913, with 8 members and one honorary member, Miss Margaret McGeachy, of St. Paul's. July 26, six more names were added to the roll making a total of fourteen.

The society pledged one-half of its monthly offerings to Home Missions and the other half to Foreign Missions. The officers for 1913-1914 were: President, Miss Laura Shaw; Vice-President, Miss Katie Shaw; Secretary and Treasurer, Miss Isabell McDonald; Secretary of Literature, Mrs. J. S. Johnson. That first year, the total to all causes was $39.35.

May 23, 1914, the name of the society was changed to Woman's Auxiliary, with sixteen members enrolled. This was the beginning of our work. Now we have secretaries for all the causes; divide our gifts according to the percentage set for us; try to follow all the plans laid out for the auxiliaries to have during the year; have three circles to take care of our twenty-eight members; and last year gave to all causes $157.

On May 25, of this year, we had our Birthday party for the two schools in Mexico, which, as you see, was also the anniversary of the organization (almost to the day) of our local auxiliary. Our president, Mrs. J. J. Shaw, opened the meeting with devotional and business, and then turned the program over to the Foreign Mission Secretary, Mrs. J. S. Johnson, who announced the subject, "Mexico," and told of why we should be interested in this country, our near neighbor and where our auxiliary has a small share in the Students' Home at Toluca.

After singing one verse of "Saved by Grace," Mrs. P. F. Bristow led in prayer. Miss Downie Little read the testimony of the Samaritan woman in John 4:1-10, 39-42.

Hymn—"Tell Me the Old, Old Story." Mrs. R. F. Little read an interesting letter from Miss Beaty telling of the schools in Mexico and how rejoiced the people are that more girls can be taught so that they will be lights in the world when we give them our Birthday offering.

Mrs. J. J. Shaw read of the seeds that had been planted in Mexico, and are now bearing good fruit in the lives of many.

Roll call by circles and offering for the girls' schools in Mexico which amounted to $8.10.

Mrs. I. J. Williams read a sketch of a Christian home, in a village near Zitacuaro, showing how worthwhile it is to give the girls the advantage of a Christian education.

Mrs. Maxwell read an account of a visit made by Rev. Asuncion Blanco to the Students' Home in the beautiful city of Toluca, and of the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Wray who founded the home and care for the boys and girls who attend the public schools.

The last reading was "Queen Jean of Toluca;" and as Mrs. J. N. McIver read this lovely poem, we could almost see little Jean Wray, the winsome daughter of our missionaries, in her shimmering blue dress standing there as Queen of the Mexican fiesta.

Hymn: "The Son of God Goes Forth to War." Dismissed with prayer by Mrs. J. S. Johnson, then followed a social hour on the church lawn in charge of Mrs. J. S. McNeill and Mrs. J. W. Jones who had delicious cake and ice cold lemonade in readiness for all.

The Birthday cake, decorated with seventeen candles, was cut and served by Miss Laura Shaw, the first president of our Auxiliary, who gave, in her own original way, the history of the beginning of the folks wish, only the one who is IT from getting the bag if possible. If IT getting the bag he changes places with I threw it.

(Continued on page 11)

Q a table is placed 20 objects and the three minutes to look at them and then removed or covered and the guests have n all of the objects they can remember

Each person is given five beans. Di- o groups. Place a milk bottle on the chair. Each person in turn must kneel with arms resting on the top of the e how many beans he can drop in the e a score-keeper and the side dropping number of beans has to clean up.)

g a sheet in the doorway. Someone bet makes different noises as turning an bbing sand paper, switching a light off ppening a knife, slapping someone on e. The guests are to write what is being e each noise.

A large ball (basketball or volleyball) ide into a relay and each side kicks the d forth while the players stand on one e time. If the ball touches anyone he nyone steps on both feet he is out. The mains longest on the floor wins.

Form a line and march one by one into where each is given a "smell" of some- nion, vanilla, perfume, peppermint, vine- p the line marching in circular forma- o the lighted room where the players opportunity to write the name of the smelled. Continue into the darkened another article is held for the players n back into the lighted room so they e name of this article. Continue this h until several articles have been smelled e of them written.

ing—Form a circle and while someone march pass the broom from person to whenever the music stops, whoever has n his hands is out of the circle. Keep ly one is left.

ut a lot of different articles in bags, one h bag, and tie the tops. Have the guests s and then write what is in each bag. bags.

his should be refreshments which may ttered hot rolls, fruit salad and cocoa. refreshments, have a short song service either prayer or the regular benediction. out in the Bean Game must stay and r the social.

day material next time. Contest for June—Our contest this time he best picture of outdoor sports. We fine award for the best sport picture Send original snaps which have been May 1. Snaps must be received in the e 30.

EDITORIAL

(Continued from Page Three)

dered advocates of union with the hurch.

ority of them have been considered mbatants," ready to accept it, if it e.

that some aggressive non-unionist ppointed.

ever was scarcely to be expected, verwhelmingly a Union Assembly, erator could not by his action in the e any course that would negative wishes of the Assembly.

remember that whatever action they as to run the gauntlet of the Pres- id then it can only be obligatory s a three-fourths majority—and has rmed by a succeeding Assembly. something yet to be done, besides g.

an in a city, who one morning stopped to aper from a wizened, shrieking newsboy n, found the boy following him every day with a wistful face, brushing the spots thes, calling a car for him, etc. "Do you he asked at last. The wretched little Arab p; but you called me 'my chile' one day. o something for you, sir. I thought before obody's child." Christian men and women o feel, when they subscribe to organized it they have done their duty to the great eless, friendless waifs around them. A s, a kind word, may do much towards neglected little one who feels he is "no- o," teaching him, as no money can do, that hildren of one Father. When Christ would o the poor outcast he did not send him e came close and touched him.

joy to those who give.

very day keeps doubt away.

ontrol for temper is self-control.

: Many sure promises in God's Word.

pper story a garret for rubbish or an ob-

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Rev. Ernest Trice Thompson, D.D.

Lesson for June 23rd

A PSALM OF PRAISE

Psalm 103:1-22; Print vs. 1-13

We have been following this quarter the history of Judah during the last hundred years and more of its national existence. Last week we saw how Jerusalem was destroyed by the Babylonians, and its inhabitants carried into captivity. We study this week one of the psalms. According to the inscription printed in our Bibles it is a psalm of David. We need to remember, however, that the inscriptions are no real part of the Bible, and are often inaccurate. Almost all modern scholars are convinced that the psalm under consideration was written much later than David, after the destruction of Jerusalem, more than fifty years later, after the exiles had returned from their captivity, and Jerusalem was again inhabited. God had forgiven and restored His people; sorrow had been transformed into joy; thanksgiving was in order.

As Doctor Kirkpatrick says: "The psalm is one of singular beauty. Its tenderness, its trustfulness, its hopefulness, anticipate the spirit of the New Testament. It does not contain one jarring note, and it furnishes fit language of thanksgiving for the greater blessings of a more marvellous redemption than that of Israel from Babylon."

This is one of the passages in the Bible that we need to meditate upon. Read it slowly, pondering each statement, considering it in its application to your own life.

The psalm seems to fall into five approximately equal stanzas. We may divide it then as follow:

I. The Call to Praise: For Personal Blessings—1-5

We have first the call to praise. The psalmist realizes his own need of blessing God. "Bless the Lord, O my soul," he cries. Soul is simply an expression for the psalmist's own self or personality. "And all that is within me, bless his holy name;" all that is within me, not as opposed to outward or mere lip service, but as expressing the desire to enlist every thought, faculty, power and capacity; the heart with all its affections, the will, the conscience, and the reason, in a word the whole spiritual being, all in man that is best and highest, in the same heavenly service. God's name is used throughout the Scriptures to indicate the revealed character of God. The psalmist then realizes that the holiness of God's character needs to be praised by all the powers and faculties of his being.

At the same time he realizes the danger, or the temptation that besets him and not only him but all others of God's children; the persistent tendency to accept God's gifts as a matter of course, to forget our personal obligation to Him. And so he continues: "Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits." Doctor Snowden remarks here: "The good things of our life are often so abundant and constant that we lose our sense of their presence and value, and we come to accept and use them as a matter of course without ever giving a thought to the hand that bestows them upon us to the appreciation of their own worth. We use them as unconsciously as we use the air we breathe and the sunlight in which we walk. But if we were deprived of air and light, we would suddenly appreciate them and find that they are our very life. Some things we should forget, our own mistakes and also our successes, and especially should we forget the faults of others, but the benefits of God we should not forget. We should live and move and have our being in Him, bathed in His presence. This does not mean that we should always and constantly have it in mind, for this would be a fixed idea or obsession that might become insanity, but we should be subconsciously aware of Him and at times turn our conscious thought to Him. The psalmist calls upon his soul and all that is within him to forget not Jehovah's benefits. He stirs up the deeps of his soul, he arouses all his memories and associated ideas to bring these benefits flocking into his soul."

The Psalmist then not only calls upon his soul to praise the Lord, but he also dwells upon some of the great blessings which he has enjoyed in his own personal life. As Doctor Spurgeon very beautifully puts it: "He selects a few of the choicest pearls from the casket of divine love, threads them on the string of memory, and hangs them about the neck of gratitude."

The first of the divine benefits for which he is grateful is the forgiveness of his sins: "Bless the Lord, O My soul, and forget not all his benefits: who forgiveth all thine iniquities." As Doctor Perowne says: This is "the first and greatest of all the divine benefits to the soul burdened with a sense of guilt and defilement; therefore, also that which calls first for acknowledgement." The Psalmist thanks God not simply that He has forgiven some few of his transgressions, but that He has forgiven all of his iniquities. Today we accept the divine forgiveness so much as a matter of course that we are apt to overlook how important it is to our peace. If we were not certain of forgiveness how anxious we should be. As a matter of fact our gratitude should be even greater than that of the psalmist. We know as he did not know what it has cost God, the death of His only begotten Son.

The second of the divine benefits which the Psalmist calls to mind is the healing of his diseases. The word need not be limited to bodily sickness, but may include all the ailments, bodily, mental, and spiritual to which man is heir. God is the great physician who can and does make men whole. How does he do this? Doctor Snowden says: "God works through human means and what are all our wonderful advances in the science of medicine and health but the working of God in this field? Does he not lead men into a knowledge of this art and create all the curative elements that make our medicines? Is not the hospital an annex of the church as a means of carrying out the gospel of redemption from all sickness of the body as well as of the soul? Did Jesus preach and practise only a fractional gospel of the soul and leave the body untouched in its disease and misery? Not so, God is the great Physician and the healing of the seamless dress of His Son is still by our beds of pain. Jesus walks up and down the earth, and lays his healing hand on our bodily ills, and all our wonderful discoveries and arts by which we are conquering disease and banishing some diseases from our world and lengthening life and greatly increasing its health and happiness are but the presence and work of God healing all our diseases." But though this is true, it is also true as Snowden points out that faith is an immense fact even in our bodily condition, and generally and sometimes decisively enters into our healing. All of the means which God has provided are blessed, and sometimes they are effective only, when we look in faith to the God who in the last analysis heals all our diseases.

God forgives all our iniquities, he heals all our diseases, he also redeems our lives from destruction. It may be that the Psalmist had particularly in mind the deliverance of the Jews from Babylon. God had redeemed the people from certain annihilation, and in that redemption he had shared. Yet to us certainly, and to him perhaps, it has a wider significance than that. We all come sooner or later to the grave; our physical life comes to an abrupt end; but faith in God assures us that our real life continues. He redeems our life from destruction.

The blessings which the psalmist has mentioned so far are in a sense negative. They all have to do with great deliverances, deliverance from evil, deliverance from sin, disease, and death. For his fourth blessing he turns to a more positive good. God crowns us with loving kindness and tender mercies. He delivers us from all evil, but He crowns his goodness to us by bestowing on us the many evidences of His love. It a general expression which the Psalmist uses. He does not count His many blessings one by one. It would be impossible to do so, for God is the giver of every good and perfect gift. Many of these gifts are enjoyed by us all; many are peculiar to each one of us as individuals.

For his fifth and final blessing the psalmist is forced to resort to another general expression: who satisfieth thy desire (A. V. mouth) with good things so that thy youth is renewed like the eagle's. The Psalmist is convinced that God has provided for the proper satisfaction of all our rightful desires. Spurgeon says, "Many a worldling is satiated, but not one is satisfied. God satisfies the very soul of man, his noblest part, his ornament and glory; and of consequence he satisfies his mouth, however hungry and craving it might otherwise be." He satisfies not with rich things, not many things, not everything for which we ask, but good things. The result is that those who trust in God shall be strong and bouyant as the eagle; they have an inner source of strength that seems to renew their youth.

II. For God's Gracious Dealing With His People—6-10

So far the Psalmist has praised God for the blessings which he has enjoyed as an individual. In the second stanza he passes from his own experience to that of the Church at large. God's mercy to the individual is only a part of that vast circle of mercy with embraces all the people of God: Jehovah executeth righteous acts and judgments for all that are oppressed. That truth has been illustrated again in the deliverance of Judah from the Babylonians.

But the Psalmist's thought takes a wider range. He remembers the prayer of Moses. In Ex. 33:13 he offered this petition: If I have found favor in thy sight show me now thy ways, that I may know thee. In Ex. 34:6 we find God's answer to that prayer: "He passed by before him and proclaimed, Jehovah, Jehovah, a God merciful and gracious, slow to anger and abundant in loving kindness." All of his subsequent dealings with Israel, the psalmist says in effect, have been in accordance with that revelation: He made known his ways unto Moses, His doings unto the children of Israel. It is true as Moses discovered, Jehovah is merciful and gracious, slow to anger and abundant in loving kindness. In all of his dealing with men he has shown his patience and sympathy. Over and over again he has given man still another chance.

True, He has often times given vent to His anger against sin. There are some people today who think that because God is love He will never punish sin, but that is not the Biblical idea. He is indeed slow to anger, yet the time comes when He must as it were bring a suit against His people and convict them of their sin. But He will not stay angry always, or as the psalmist puts it, He will not always chide, neither will he keep his anger for ever. It is true that He might find constant cause for striving with us, for we have always something which is contrary to his holy mind. But whenever we turn to Him in penitence He is always ready to forgive. In spite of the punishments therefore which He has sent upon his people, the psalmist is quick to acknowledge: He hath not dealt with us after our sins, nor rewarded us after our iniquities.

III. For the Greatness and Tenderness of God's Forgiving Love—11-14

The Psalmist's mention of God's gracious dealings with His people has led him to speak of His forgiving love. In this stanza he tries to express the infiniteness of that love: For as the heavens are high above the earth, so great is his loving kindness toward them that fear him. How high are the heavens above the earth? It bankrupts our imagination. It can never be measured. Neither is there any measure or limit to the love of God. Once more the psalmist tries to illustrate the mercy of God: As far as the east is from the west, so far hath he removed our transgressions from us. How far is the east from the west? We could travel around the world in time as far as we wished, and east would and west would still be west. The distance so far has God removed our sins from us.

A third time the psalmist tries to picture God. It is one of the finest pictures in the Bible: Like as a Father pitieth his children, pitieth them that fear him. "We know how our human fatherhood, caring for us in our patient with us, and providing for all our human fatherhood at its fairest and best is reflection of the divine Fatherhood, a drop finite fatherly love of God. This is our dear undergirds the universe with the assurance friendly toward us, this is our trust and infinite love of God is based on a perfect of our natures: He knoweth our frame, He that we are dust.

IV. For the Everlastingness of His Mercy

In this stanza the transitoriness of man with the everlastingness of God's Mercy. Man's grass that flourishes for a moment and is then withered to which the psalmist refers is the sirocco, blowing over the desert of Arabia in which when it comes to Palestine is dry and withers up the vegetation. Man vanishes. On the other hand God is eternal; never fails. Man may pass from the stage another generation take his place, but God exercises the same mercy toward all the generations of men. Children are the inheritors vouchsafed to the fathers. All those promises those who keep his covenant and remember mandments to do them.

Before leaving this section we should note that the promises are to those who fear God. They are very significantly, this thought is repeated in 11, 13, 17. In the Old Testament we are exhorted to "fear God." But the word is used in a different sense from that in which we use fear of God which the Old Testament with reverence issuing in obedience.

V. The Universal Call to Praise

The Psalmist began with an individual blessing God for his mercies to him as this leads him to speak of God's mercies to the whole universe to join in his song. Jehovah his God: He has established his throne in his kingdom ruleth over all. Therefore the whole universe should recognize His sovereignty His praise.

He calls on the angels, the heavenly beings most capable of praising the heavenly king full of might who are the messengers of God on all the heavenly host to bless the Lord. Angels and ministers may be meant the innumerable of celestial beings of lower rank, the celestial hierarchy spoken of in verse 2 (Heb. 1:14), or perhaps the host of heaven which are closely connected with angels in the Old Testament (Job 38:7), and all the powers of the universe to serve Jehovah's purpose (Ps. 104:1). There in verse 22 all creation is called to praise the heavenly chorus. And finally in the Psalmist returns to the point from which creation's universal hymn of praise he will sing in his part, however humble: Praise the Lord.

Reflections on the Psalm

The psalm that we have studied contains a petition. It is solely and absolutely a psalm of thanksgiving played a large part in the Old Testament saints, and also of Jesus and His Church. What part should it play in ours? Is it a complete thanksgiving or praise complete? Why should we thank God? Have you ever tried to write down all the benefits? What are the things for which we are most thankful? What blessings of God are inclined to forget? Can we really be thankful for loss and sorrow? Can we be thankful for joy? Which of the many blessings that the Bible mentions means the most to us? Does the psalm mean more to the Christian than it did to the man who originated it? What has Christ added to its meaning? What reasons for gratitude to God has our Lord added to the present time? What special reasons for gratitude have we at the present time?

BOOKS

McNair Lectures for 1928—The directress of the University of North Carolina Press announces that the McNair lectures of 1928 will be issued in a volume. Quite a number of distinguished authors in the past and the lecturer this year is of the Louisville Presbyterian Seminary will be "The Rights of Science." The amount of desire to read these lectures printed form and they will soon be issued.

The fundamental principle of the lecture is that natural science has a right to deal with its own methods and principles a history, sociology, religion or theology to insist on solving the problem of science. The author deals with all these fields of testimony of his auditors is to be believed and truly represents the truth involved.

Dr. Whaling has had unusual preparation having studied science not only in the field of our country but filled the chair of the Department of Science in one of our seminaries.

It is believed that the true scientist and theologian will find in these lectures a method of approach. The public awaits the publishing of this book with interest according to University authorities.

LDREN

BDDY FOX SQUIRREL OST HIS FUR

vely Lady's house Buddy and his mother lived in hackberry trees. There ll sway and would not alher squirrel to come near nest in the top of their winter one in the e, and they were especially t their feeding box on the k by her window the Loved yellow ears of corn and nuts already cracked, and kept a small pan of water squirrels to drink. Buddy the box and liked to sit g out black walnut meats arp little teeth. But Budscolded him and told him ng too fat. Then she would way and chase him up and s of trees, leaping from oranch until poor Buddy or breath.

r and all winter his mothim: "No well-behaved ever eat so much as you ad to hunt food for yourou might appreciate what Besides your teeth are getbecause you don't open your shame on you for making rself!"

a pig of myself!" thought or! A squirrel can't turn nd why should I open nuts t have to?"

o paid no attention to his rice and went on eating all ck walnuts that he wanted grew fatter and fatter and lazier; and whenever the y forgot to crack the nuts to open them for himself, teeth did hurt! They had ng.

y in early spring Buddy eling achy and tired. He up to a nearby branch as e on other mornings, but s and back were stiff and ove. He could only creep y swinging in the morning sun. He was hungry, too, ry far down to the feeding y move caused new pains. reddish brown coat was as it should be, either. All e feeling lasted, and the e was no better, nor the e morning he noticed that ut his nose and eyes was and when he looked more aw that all over his little s getting thinner and thinonly his bushy tail was left. "I" wailed Buddy Fox "I know what's happening! into a pig. I'm turning ing don't have any fur, and I mine, and pretty soon my gone too. O-o-o-o-o I'm a pig!"

terrible thought in mind ed off to find his mother r comfort. But when he hat was happening, she : "Silly child, of course urning into a pig. You're squirrel who is sick be too much rich nuts and his mother."

answered poor Buddy, "you making a pig of myself." mother laughed. "I said e you were acting as pigs to eat all you could and as good for you," she told if you have learned your will follow my advice, you again and grow a fine new that Buddy did follow his ice. He stopped eating so nuts and ate more berries ons, and before very long autiful new fur coat. And Lady enjoys watching him as much as she once ening the nuts that made him y Anne Rogers, in Youth's

THE FIRST PICNIC

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color.)

The first picnic YELLOW-haired Teddy had this year was quite an occasion for they had a little guest at their feast. It was Mr. Grey-Back the squirrel. He was a cute GRAY (use BLACK lightly) squirrel with a white stomach.

They had the picnic on the GREEN lawn which was dotted here and there with bright YELLOW dandelions. The BROWN branches of a large oak tree spread a canopy of dark GREEN leaves over-head.

Susie May wore a PINK frock (use RED lightly) trimmed with white lace and her socks and slippers were PINK, too.

Teddy wore a YELLOW suit with RED collar and cuffs. His tie was BLACK.

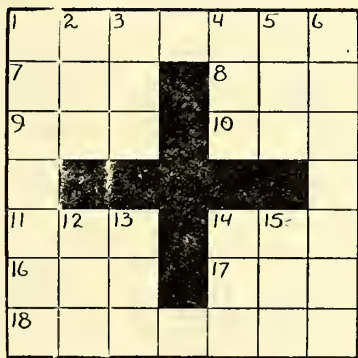

Susie May's Mother gave them some BLUE paper plates and also fixed them some sandwiches. She gave them an orange (it was ORANGE color which can be had by mixing RED and YELLOW) and an apple (which was

RED) and a peach was light GREEN with PINK cheeks) and a YELLOW pear. Susie May tucked some GREEN leaves about the fruit when she arranged them on a plate. There was a tall GREEN thermos bottle, too, with a silver top (use GRAY for Silver.)

The sky was bright BLUE and both children had PINK cheeks and RED lips. Mr. Grey-Back had a BROWN nut.

The border of this picture can be colored RED and the lettering YELLOW.

Junior Cross-Word Puzzle

Horizontal

- 1—Hauled
- 7—Rodent
- 8—Used in rowing
- 9—Unit
- 10—Pacific Coast State (abbr.)
- 11—To pet
- 14—Barrier in a stream
- 16—Before
- 17—Anger
- 18—Emptied

Vertical

- 1—Fell
- 2—Moved swiftly
- 3—Consumed
- 4—Baby's word
- 5—Part of head
- 6—Imagined
- 12—Arrived (abbr.)
- 13—Beverage
- 14—Noise
- 15—Part of verb "to be"

RECEIVED A TESTAMENT

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl six years old. My school was out May 29th and I was promoted to the second grade. I go to Sunday School at the First Presbyterian Church of Concord. Dr. J. C. Rowan is pastor. Miss Mary Fisher is my teacher. I love to go to Sunday School. I have recited the Child's Catechism, and received a Testament. I will soon start to learn the Shorter Catechism. I must not make my letter any longer for fear it will land in the wastebasket.

Your little friend,
Louise Brumley.

Concord, N. C.

SICK A LONG TIME

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl eight years old. I go to Sunday School every Sunday I can. My teacher is Mrs. R. V. Wells. I like her very much. I have two sisters and a little brother, who is eight months old.

I was sick last winter. I had to stay in the hospital five weeks. I had to be there for Thanksgiving and Christmas. Everybody was so good to me.

Your friend,
Ellen Zolar Southerland.
Kenansville, N. C.

SCHOOL HAS CLOSED

Dear Standard:

I am a little boy ten years old. I go to Sunday School every Sunday I can. My Sunday School teacher is Mrs. F. Powell. Our school closed Friday, May 3. My school teacher was Miss Geraldine Moore, of Scotland Neck. Next year I will be in the fifth grade. This is my second letter to you. Please publish it, for I want to surprise my mother and father.

Your friend,
Luther McKinnon.

Clinton, N. C.

A CHINESE FOLK TALE

There is a bird in the southern part of China which is often heard but very seldom seen. It is shaped like our brown thrush, but is a little larger. Its color is jet-black, and it has but one loud clear double note sounding like "K-o-o-o." The Chinese tell this story of the bird:

Many, many years ago two beautiful young girls went walking, one moonlight night. Hand in hand they wandered towards the hills to see the blossoms of the strawberry tree which open their petals only at night. This strawberry tree is a curious thing. It is a small evergreen with white flowers and fruit that is somewhat like our strawberry in shape and color. As the two girls were walking along together, chatting and singing, a great tiger suddenly sprang between them, and catching Ah Ko in his powerful jaws he carried her away into the depths of the forest.

Poor Ah Saw was so frightened that for a few moments she stood rooted to the spot in silence. Then she looked wildly around for Ah Ko. She ran into the forest calling as she ran: "Ah Ko, Ah Ko, my sister, where are you? A Ko-Ko-o-o-o!"

And she is still darting about the woods in the form of a little bird, calling continually as she flies: "Ah Ko-Ko-o-o-o!"

Fun For Little Folks

A few of the pictures which are printed in the Standard weekly on this page are being published in loose-leaf pamphlet form. Each pamphlet contains twelve different pictures to be colored by the little folks with crayon or paints.

These pamphlets will be ideal for use in Daily Vacation Schools, Sunday Schools and the nursery of the home. The little folks will enjoy coloring the pictures and it will furnish a fine medium for the teacher or mother to instruct their children in the art of drawing and the value of color.

PRICES
(Cash with Order)

100 Books	-----	$7.00
50 Books	-----	4.00
25 Books	-----	2.25
10 Books	-----	1.10
5 Books	-----	.60
1 Book	-----	.15

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

PUZZLE CORNER

Acrostic

blind yet handles fates binds some mighty States proud though shunned by has passed beyond our ken a month of the year.

Answers on Page 14

CHURCH NEWS

UNITED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH ON CLOSER RELATIONS

S. L. Morris

On our front page we have a story of the action of the United Presbyterian Assembly as reported by the Associated Press. This later report comes from Dr. Morris, which corrects the front page.—Ed.

The Associated Press dispatches unwittingly conveyed a wrong impression of the action of the United Presbyterian Church as to Closer Relations with the Presbyterian Church, U. S. Their Assembly did not reject the question of union, but on the contrary approved the Basis submitted by the Ad Interim Committee and expressed a desire for union if it could be effected without loss to either Church, and authorized the Joint Committee to prosecute the work more vigorously.

The following is the full and official action of their Assembly:

Recommendations by Committee on Closer Relations

We have considered with care the reports of our Presbyteries, and have noted with deep interest the action of the Southern Presbyterian Assembly in overturning the amended Basis of Union to the constituent Presbyteries for adoption.

We recommend:

1. That this Assembly express its appreciation of the cordial and fraternal spirit manifest in the recent overturning action of the Southern Assembly.

2. That the General Assembly record its conviction that union with the Southern Presbyterian Church is desirable, provided the union be a real union without the loss of any considerable minority in either denomination.

3. That the Assembly express its approval of the amended Basis of Union as reported by the Joint Committee.

4. Since the Presbyterial reports do not indicate that the time is quite ripe for the submission in formal overtures of the question of organic union, we recommend that Assembly's Committee on Closer Relations be authorized to prosecute its work more vigorously, in order that, the Lord willing, the way may be prepared for a true and happy union of our two denominations through the development of mutual acquaintance and brotherly love.

5. That the whole Church be requested to continue in earnest prayer that the will of God in this matter of Church Union may be most clearly known and His purpose therein be fully accomplished.

Respectfully submitted,
Committee on Closer Relations,
Robert M. Karr, Chairman.

PERSONAL

Rev. William H. Matthews, D.D., General Secretary of the American Tract Society, was present at the Chapel Service at West Point, Sunday, June 2, and made the fifty-sixth annual distribution of Bible to the graduating class in the name of the American Tract Society. Bibles are also given annually to the Freshman Class for their study in English. The Society has been enabled to render this service through a fund provided by a friend of long standing.

The Central Church, Atlanta, has engaged Mr. S. J. Cartledge, a graduate of Columbia Seminary, to act as pastor's assistant. This church is still without a pastor since the resignation of Dr. W. E. Davis. Dr. Melton Clark is supplying the church for the present.

Mr. Leland H. Edmunds has accepted the position of assistant to Dr. R. F. Campbell, of Ashville, N. C., after having spent a year in graduate work in Princeton Seminary.

NORTH CAROLINA

Charlotte—Mulberry Church has recently passed through a gracious period of revival. On April 28 we opened our new church plant, which when paid for will represent an investment of over $30,000. The new building has a splendid auditorium, ample for our congregations. The educational building at the rear, is adequate for the Sunday School, and other departments of the church's work. Dr. W. H. Frazer preached the sermon on the opening evening, commending the people for their loyal and faithful work. This service also began a series of meetings which continued through the next Sunday. The preacher for this series was Dr. C. R. Nisbet, of Caldwell Memorial Church, and by his earnest, sincere and enthusiastic preaching he greatly endeared himself to the people of this church. Six members of the Sunday School were received into the church on profession of faith in Christ. The whole church and the pastor, Rev. J. C. Grier, feel much encouraged by these sermons and services, and feel that a new era of usefulness for the congregation has opened, especially as the city is growing out toward them, offering new developments and opportunities.

Charlotte—Mr. L. P. Burney, a graduate of Columbia Seminary last month was ordained and installed pastor of Sugaw Creek Church on June 2. The service was in charge of Rev. J. G. Garth, who acted as supply for this church since September, 1927. He was assisted by Rev. J. R. Bridges, D.D., Rev. C. C. Beam, and Rev. W. H. Frazer, D.D. Mr. C. H. Caldwell, an elder in Sugaw Creek was also a member of the commission.

Rev. W. W. Akers was installed pastor at West Avenue on June 9, in the afternoon. Dr. A. S. Johnson was chairman of the commission and was assisted by Drs. C. W. Summerville and W. H. Frazer.

Presbyterian Orphans' Home, Barium Springs—The commencement exercises of the Presbyterian Orphans' Home were the most interesting ever held in the history of the Institution.

Beginning with the exercises by the Kindergarten, Music and Grade Departments on Friday evening, May 31, and culminating with the graduating exercises on Monday evening, June 3, our own family, a number of our former pupils and a host of visitors and friends were entertainingly and instructively occupied during these exercises.

The program on Friday evening was so interspersed with musical numbers, recitations and drills, that it seemed only a few moments until this full evening's program was completed.

On Sunday morning at eleven o'clock, we were privileged to have for our baccalaureate preacher, Rev. James Hardie, D. D., pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Charlotte, North Carolina, who preached a wonderfully inspiring sermon from the text: "Paul, an Apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God," Col. 1:1.

On Sunday evening the sermon to the Young People was delivered by Rev. C. P. Coble, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, High Point, from the text: "Behold this dreamer cometh," Genesis 37:19.

On Monday morning, June the third at 10:30, the Class Day Exercises were held by the Class of 1929, and depicted the newspaper office with the members of the Graduating Class holding the positions of members of the newspaper staff.

On Monday evening, June 3, the commencement address was delivered by Rev. E. G. Gammon, D.D., of Myers Park Presbyterian Church, Charlotte. Doctor Gammon delivered an able address setting forth the necessary qualifications and age for leadership. Following this address the diplomas were presented to the nine members of the graduating class. Bibles were presented by Rev. W. C. Brown to each of these, and the medals and prizes distributed to the winners.

T. L. O'Kelley, School Superintendent.

Fayetteville First—Dr. S. M. Erickson, of Takamatsu, Japan, Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Buchanan, of Gifu, Japan, and Dr. Warren H. Stewart, formerly of China and now teaching the Bible at Flora Macdonald College, have been the recent missionary guests of this Church of which Rev. F. C. Symonds is pastor.

Virginia Smith, Secretary.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Pee Dee Presbytery will meet in adjourned session in Society Hill, S. C., on June 30, at 3:30 p. m.

A. H. McArn, S. C.

Myrtle Beach—Recently there was conducted in this church a series of revival services. The preaching was done by the pastor, Rev. C. D. Brearley. The service of song was led by Mrs. Keller, of St. Matthews, S. C. God was good to us and blessed us even beyond our expectations. There were twelve additions to the church during the meeting. This church was organized only a few months ago with nineteen members. We praise God for his goodness.

Clover—On Sunday, June 2, Clover Presbyterians had the privilege of hearing two visiting ministers. In the morning, Rev. H. L. Laws, of Alexander City, Alabama, brought an inspiring message. Mr. Laws is a cousin of the pastor, Rev. W. S. Patterson.

At the evening service Rev. John McEachern, missionary from Korea, brought an unusually interesting message concerning the work in that field.

The Christian Endeavor societies have re-organized their work, and now have three societies: Junior, Intermediate and Senior. Their leaders are Miss Claude Smith, Miss Christine Smith, and Mr. W. W. Inman.

Stanhope Love, Correspondent.

Enoree Presbytery has received Rev. Charles S. Evans from Harmony Presbytery and he has been installed, by Commissions of Presbytery pastor of Glenn Springs, Pacolet, Fairforest and Mount Calvary Churches.

GEORGIA

Agnes Scott Commencement—The 40th commencement exercises were characterized by general rejoicing over the fine offer of the General Education Board which was announced on commencement day. This proposal is to give $500,000 if Agnes Scott will raise an additional $1,000,000. Plans are being formulated for fulfilling this important condition.

The baccalaureate sermon was preached by Rev. Henry H. Sweets, D.D., LL.D., the beloved Secretary of Christian Education and Ministerial Relief. He spoke on "The Unseen Helper," basing his remarks on I Corinthians 13:14. It was a most appropriate and stimulating message.

The address to the Senior Class was given by Mr. Arthur W. McCain, Vice-President of National Park Bank, New York City, on "Women in Business." It showed the rapid progress of women in business affairs from telephone operators or stenographers only to great executives and administrators, and outlined some principles upon which the great transformation may be safely made.

The B.A. degree was conferred on 95 young women, representing about 20 states or foreign countries.

The following graduated "With High Honor": Elizabeth Hatchett, Glasgow, Ky.; Genevieve Knight, Safety Harbor, Fla.; Eleanor Lee Norris, Greenville, S. C. The following took degrees "With Honor": Pearl Hastings, Atlanta; Geraldine LeMay, Atlanta; Mary Nelson Logan, Tokushima, Japan; Julia McLendon, Atlanta.

The Quenelle Harrold Fellowship for graduate work was awarded to Miss Miriam Preston, of the Class of 1927, Korea, who will study English at Yale University. The Collegiate Scholarship went to Miss Helen Decatur, Ga.

The following special awards were made: Scholarship, Miss Virginia Gray, Union; Voice Scholarship, Miss Kathleen Bowen, Dacula; Spoken English Scholarship, Miss Marion V. Lanta; Laura Candler Medal, Miss Elise Gibbons, N. C.; Morley Medal, Miss Laura Robinson, Ga.; Rich Prize for best Freshman work, Miss Thompson, Atlanta.

A very unique award was begun this year in the Class of 1922. It is to be known as the Hopkins Award, in honor of Miss Nannette Hopkins, who is completing her 40th year as Dean of the Institution. She is to be awarded to the member of the Senior Class who nearly meets the ideals of the College. It was awarded this year to Miss Helen Brown, Stamps, Ark.

ALABAMA

Mobile Presbytery met in the Government Building, Mobile, Ala., at 1:30 p. m., June 4, 1929, in obedience to the following call:

The constitutional requirements having been met, we hereby call Mobile Presbytery to meet in the Government Building, Mobile, Ala., at 1:30 p. m., June 4, 1929, to

1. Receive the petition of the Presbytery of Alabama, for the organization of a church and action whatever in connection with this petition.
2. Transfer Mr. Lynn W. Carleton as a candidate to East Alabama Presbytery, if the way be clear.
3. Act upon the application of young men received as candidates for the ministry.

S. M. Erickson, Moderator.

Presbytery was called to order by Rev. J. E. D.D., last moderator present, and opened with prayer. The petition of eleven persons residing in Fulton, Ala., asking to be organized into a church was received and the request granted. Vail was granted evangelistic authority to organize, with the privilege of engaging preachers to assist him at discretion.

Mr. Lynn W. Carleton, candidate for the ministry, was dismissed to East Alabama Presbytery, at his own request. There being no further business, Presbytery adjourned with prayer.

Jas. W. Marshall, Secretary.

TENNESSEE

Presbytery of Memphis met in adjourned session May 27, 1929. The meeting was well attended. Rev. J. H. Lumpkin, D.D., was presented by B. Curry, followed by remarks of appreciation from the members present. Doctor Lumpkin is a member of this Presbytery for nearly forty years and has been its Stated Clerk for thirty-two years.

Rev. J. J. Hill, D.D., Superintendent and Moderator of the Home Mission Work of the Presbytery, Stated Clerk and Treasurer of Presbytery, unexpired term.

A committee consisting of Rev. R. L. Johnson, Rev. P. W. Wilson and Rev. J. J. Hill, D.D., was appointed to make a special study of the facts of the proposed union between our church and the Presbyterian Church in North America, and to report in The Messenger for the benefit of our members.

The commission to install Dr. R. S. Sande Buntyn Church reported that duty discharged. Brownsville Church presented a call for services of candidate Taylor Clarke who had been ordained from the Louisville Theological Seminary. Clarke was examined for licensure and his call was accepted for ordination, and a commission to ordain and install him in the Brownsville Church on June 9 at 7:30 p. m. The commission consisted of Rev. R. J. Hunter, Jr., Dr. A. B. Curry, Dr. S. W. Worth, with Drs. J. J. Hill and R. L. Jetton as either of the ministers, and ruling elders, J. W. Row and T. J. Gray, Jr.

The Stated Fall Meeting of Presbytery will be held in the Grace Covenant Church, of Memphis, Tenn., on October 15, 1929, at 7:30 p. m.

J. J. Hill

Chattanooga First Church—Rev. James D.D., who has recently accepted a call to the pastorate of the Central Presbyterian Church in Knoxville, Tenn., arrived April 2 with his family. Doctor Foy, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church for the last six years. This is his second pastorate. He is a native of North Carolina, a graduate of Davidson College and Union Seminary, Richmond, Va. A reception was given Doctor and Mrs. Foy in the Ladies Parlor of the church, Friday afternoon, April 5. About 500 members of the congregation and many friends were present to meet them.

Our people have already fallen in love with him and we are expecting to do great things under his leadership. Fifty-two new members were received into the church last Sunday, and the church is in a season of revival.

Our men's club which has always supported the Missionary has recently had assigned to them L. Jackson, who is sailing for Africa, April 15. Mr. Jackson has recently visited our city and we are praying that he may do a great work for the Lord in the Belgian Congo.

Central Church—It is the custom in to stress evangelism from January 1 to the efforts brought good results this year. March 31 it was announced that forty-nine into the fellowship of the Church from Cor.

News—Ten new members, five on probation upon certificate were welcomed by the Doctor Wellford, pastor, at the April service. One adult was baptized. Reports to reveal increased contributions both to expense it causes despite the building project of the E. T. W.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Church of Washington—Friday night, May Commencement" (i. e. the close) of Dr. e Class for his young people, completing of their course of study. The enrollment been over one hundred. The course for embraces I. Presbyterian Church His- trine. II. The Old Testament. III. The ent: Life of Christ. IV. The New Testa- cts and Epistles. V. Church History from the Present Time. The next Sunday Dr. hed the baccalaureate sermon for Mary ege, Staunton, Va.

en's Bible Class his place was supplied lee Branch, of Atlanta, and the pulpit both times by Rev. Dr. William Cum- more.

Monthly communion Sunday, June 2, two e Sunday School were received on pro- th, and one of them was baptized. Five added by letter. A. H.

LOUISIANA

tery of Louisiana met in Lake Charles, at 7:30 p. m.

There were eleven ministers and nine ruling elders present.

Rev. W. F. Creson was elected moderator, and Rev. Paul Freeland temporary clerk.

Rev. J. E. Purcell, Rev. J. M. Blain, and Rev. R. C. Long were visiting speakers.

Rev. Miles Phillips was dismissed to the Presbytery of Los Angeles, U. S. A.

Rev. C. A. Pharr was dismissed to the Presbytery of Central Mississippi to become pastor of the Belzoni Church. This leaves the important Church of Oakdale vacant.

An overture asking for a full time Director of Young People's Work was sent to the Assembly.

MISSISSIPPI

Presbytery of Mississippi met in Magnolia April 16, 1929 and was opened with a sermon by Rev. J. M. Williams, last moderator present. Text: Luke 24:34. Moderator: Rev. Thos. B. Grafton; Clerk: Rev. Chas. G. Bruce.

The sacrament of the Lord's supper was administered Wednesday by Dr. C. W. Grafton, now in the 57th year of his pastorate at Union Church, Jefferson County.

His son, Rev. Thomas B. Grafton, had landed in Seattle the previous week.

Presbytery gave him a cordial greeting. Wednesday night he delivered a thrilling address on his work and experience in China.

The chairman is arranging an itinerary for him to visit all the churches in the district.

Presbytery sent up a request to Synod to appoint a commission to investigate and recommend plans for desirable consolidation of our five schools, Synodical College at Holly Springs, Chickasaw at Pontotoc, French Camp, Belhaven at Jackson and Chamberlain-Hunt at Port Gibson.

By rising vote thanks were extended to pastor and people and friends of other denominations for their cordial hospitality.

Magnolia and the work are prospering under their zealous activities.

S. C. Caldwell, S. C.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

(Continued from page 7)

our work as outlined above; and called the roll of the first eight members who were all present except two who had married and moved away.

Thus ended a pleasant and we trust a profitable afternoon service.

Mrs. J. S. Johnson, Secretary of Foreign Missions.

EFFICIENCY CONFERENCE

Wilmington Presbyterial

The Efficiency Conference, of District No. 6 Wil- mington Presbyterial, met in Graves Memorial Pres- byterian Church, May 31, 1929, Mrs. N. B. Boney, Chairman, presiding.

Mrs. C. W. Petty led devotional and Scripture les- son was from Matt. 21:28, "Son, go work today in my vineyard." Greeting was extended in behalf of the local Auxiliary by Mrs. J. L. Hubbard, in a most happy manner. Response was given by Mrs. J. A. Gavin, of Kenansville, N. C.

Duties and Responsibilities of the Auxiliary President were given by Mrs. William Baker, in a most impressive manner. Duties and Responsibilities of Circle Chairman and work of Cause Secretaries were then taken up. Mrs. Charles L. Sloan, of Calypso, N. C., gave Duties of Circle Chairman, and gave some very definite duties of this important office. Mrs. W. P. M. Currie, of Wallace, N. C., gave the work for Secretary of Spiritual Life and her talk was indeed inspiring. The duties of Secretary of Spiritual Life enlarge after hearing Mrs. Currie. Mrs. W. C. Steele, of Mount Olive, N. C., then gave the duties of C. E. and M. R. Mrs. Steele, her- self feeling this the most important cause, made us all feel as she did. Mrs. Bannerman then reminded the ladies of the special for this year: Flora Macdonald College, $250.00, Peace Institute, $250.00, Assembly's Training School, $110.00, for memorial to our beloved honorary president, Mrs. Jackson Johnson.

Mrs. C. B. Barrus, of Clinton, N. C., next gave the duties of Secretary of Foreign Missions. Her outline of duties of this secretary was given in a very definite way. All regretted that Mrs. Beatty could not be with us but Mrs. Barrus gave it convincingly. Mrs. J. W. Farrow, of Warsaw, N. C., gave the duties of Secretaries of As- sembly's Home Missions. Mrs. Farrow was enthusiastic in her outline of duties of this chairman. She urged that every lady study and pray for Assembly's Home Missions in November. Mrs. A. H. Herring, of Clinton, N. C., gave in a well informed way the duties of S. P. C. Home Missions, and recommended that these Secretaries confer with their pastor and Mr. Clontz.

Mrs. Bannerman, our Presbyterial President, in the absence of Mrs. W. L. Wilson, gave the Standard of Woman's Auxiliary, and combined this with her "Open Discussion on Methods in the Local Auxiliary." Mrs. Bannerman would have us keep this in mind: "That the local Auxiliary was a distinct link in the chain of Synod- ical and Assembly's work." She also said that the secret of team work for harmony is prayer, and recommended that the Executive Committee be a prayer band. An open discussion was then gone into from different Auxiliaries giving ideas as to method of conducting Executive Committee. Mrs. Cumming gave splendid practical ideas for Bible study and maintaining the family altar. Mrs. Bannerman highly recommended church papers and Pres- byterian Survey, also Stewardship be part of our worship.

Roll call found fifty-five ladies present. Mrs. H. L. Stevens, Sr., of Warsaw, N. C., made the closing prayer. Mrs. J. L. Hubbard made announcement of lunch to be served at the manse. Conference re-convened after lunch, after a delightful social hour and lunch. Hymn No. 255 was sung and prayer by Miss Winifred Faison, of Faison, N. C. Mrs. Baker, of Mount Olive, then gave a demon- stration on Parliamentary Law. A number of ladies were in the cast and all enjoyed this demonstration of what our work was before we adopted the circle plan and much better work was being done under the new plan.

The conference then enjoyed a solo by Miss Florence Bizzell while the offering was being taken, which amount- ed to $3.87. Mrs. Baker then presented her literature. Mrs. Z. A. Gibson stressed the importance of appointing a local historian. Mrs. Newton Robinson urged the local auxiliaries to send their young people to Davidson and White Lake Conferences. Mrs. Sam Cromartie, of Eliza- betown, gave a most interesting talk on orphanage work. Mrs. Cromartie is filling the unexpired term of Mrs. Pretlow.

Mount Olive invited the Conference for next year. Mrs. Boney, Crairman, made fitting remarks, thanking the hostess Auxiliary for their hospitality.

Mrs. Newton Robinson made the closing prayer. Mrs. F. B. Johnson, Secretary.

The Comfort
The Counsel
The Challenge

Of the Sacred Scriptures, together with all the marvelous messages from the Book of Books, are being constantly broadcast through ef- forts of the American Bible Society.

Last year over eleven million issues of Bibles, Testaments, and Portions were published and dis- tributed throughout the world in one hundred and sixty-six different languages. You will want to know more about this missionary agency. Write for booklet "The What, Where and Why of the American Bible Society"

AMERICAN BIBLE SOCIETY
Bible House, Astor Place, N.Y.

SIFERN A Select School Preparing Girls for Leading Colleges

Small classes, individual attention. Piano, voice, harmony, art, home economics. Handsome new brick gymnasium. Physi- culture, horseback riding, golf, outings at Camp Greystone. For catalog, PH R. SEVIER, D.D., President, Box S, HENDERSONVILLE, N. C.

HBURG COLLEGE SENIOR COLLEGE FOR MEN AND WOMEN

Membership in Southern Association of Colleges

Reasonable—For Catalog and full information write to NDLEY, President Lynchburg, Virginia

ACE INSTITUTE
Raleigh, North Carolina

OWNED by the Presbyterians of North Carolina

COURSES OFFERED: (1) College courses for first and second year work; (2) Preparatory courses; (3) Special courses in Art, Music, Home Economics and Commercial subjects.

ACCEPTED BY: (1) The North Carolina State Department of Education; (2) All colleges and universities in North Carolina. Accepted by many colleges without this state.

FEATURES: (1) Individual attention to students; (2) Limited number of students; (3) Intimate home surroundings; (4) Highly trained faculty; (5) Wholesome religious atmosphere. Modern equipment.

Register Now for Fall Session of 1929-1930

For catalogue, book of views and other literature, write to William C. Pressly, President, Peace Institute, Raleigh, N. C.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST PYTHON

A missionary from Africa told this story recently: "While away on a Con- ference a python about ten or eleven feet long entered our chicken house at night and swallowed four chickens and a duck. In the morning Mr. Deland killed it and it was given to some of the people of the Lulua tribe who are here for medical treatment. They feasted upon both villian and victims. I suppose that snake meat would sell by the foot, if any are interested. We can kill the snakes and the tate can quell rebellions, but Satan has been entrenched in the hearts of these people for centuries, and the real war is 'Against principalities and powers, against the rulers of darkness in this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places.' This war can only be won by the Blood of the Lamb. It is Satan that still blinds their eyes, and whose coils hold the poor benighted peo- ple in a death-grip that constitutes our real problem."

There you have a picture of a python, the greatest and most powerful in the world, whose habitat is not confined to Africa, who roams at will over the face of our loved Southland, ensnaring our best and brightest in his insidious coils and taking captive the holy ambitions and high ideals of our pew holders, dim- ming their vision of world needs and devalizing their Stewardship of World Missions.

"UP IN THE AIR"

PINNACLE INN

COOLEST—By official weather report Banner Elk is cool- est town in North Carolina.

HIGHEST—The Appalachian Mountains have no higher fireproof hotel.

RESTFUL—All modern conveniences, excellent table fare, and beauty of surroundings offer unusual advantages for a QUIET RESTFUL VACATION.

For rates and illustrated folder address
Manager,
Pinnacle Inn,
Banner Elk, N. C.

University of South Carolina

Columbia, S. C.

DR. D. M. DOUGLAS, PRESIDENT

Examinations for award of vacant scholarships in the University and for entrance will be held at the County Court House Friday, July 12, 1929, at 9 a. m. Applicants must be 16 years of age.

Scholarships are vacant in the following counties: Abbeville, Bamberg, Barnwell, Beaufort, Charleston, Clarendon, Dorchester, Hampton, Horry, Lexington, McCormick, Marlboro, Saluda, Sumter, Union, Williamsburg, York.

Applicants for scholarships should write to the Committee on Normal Scholarships for application blanks, to be returned by July 10th. Scholarships worth $100, plus tuition and term fees. Next session will open September 18, 1929.

SUMMER SCHOOL

June 18 to July 26, 1929

Faculty of 53 offering more than 100 courses for teachers, superintendents and principals. Many graduate courses. Degrees conferred at end of summer term. Full information upon application to Director of Summer School.

FOR RENT

House, eight rooms, Montreat. Three room cabin near Chimney Rock.

H. L. CARPENTER
Rutherfordton, N. C.

NERVOUS DISEASES

Drug and alcoholic addictions successfully treated at Spring Garden Sanitarium, 2911 Spring Garden Street, Greensboro, N. C. Write us for full information. Correspondence Confidential.

HIGH STANDARDS

of scholarship coupled with exceptional opportunities for college social life and athletic activities afford our students a well-rounded business education. Write for our 74-page catalogue "A".

ROANOKE NATIONAL BUSINESS COLLEGE
ROANOKE, VA.

STORY

TRUE DOG STORY FROM WASHINGTON, D. C.

Frances Margaret Fox

It is never safe for a mother to brag about her good children. Nor is it safe for one of the good children to brag about the perfect behavior of her pets.

Now it happens that there is a girl who lives in the city of Washington, not far from the White House, who is too big to play with dolls. She is really a big little girl, with a pet dog she treats like a favorite doll that has become a person. It will not do to tell who the girl is, nor the name of her dog, because the girl's family would rather not have the names in print. Perhaps the dog would feel the same way about it, because he, too, has a certain amount of pride.

Anyway, the girl often bragged about her dog. She taught him the best of dog manners. He ate daintily, stepped softly, spoke politely, and shook hands with guests.

It is true that the dog had always behaved as a good dog should. He never barked at the wrong time, nor growled, nor ran away from home. He always came when he was called and never chased cats. When he went riding in the automobile, he sat with his nose in the air and never even answered strange dogs when they dared him to step down and out and fight with them.

It is no wonder that the girl bragged about her dog, even if it is not a safe thing to do. One day she told two other girls who had come calling that she believed she could take that dog just anywhere and he would behave himself and make no trouble for any one.

One of the girls laughed and said, "Let's dress him up and take him out shopping!"

COME TO DRAUGHON'S

We are better equipped than ever to train young women and men for better positions. Over 40 years experience is behind us. Our school is better than ever. All the commercial branches taught. Write us at once for catalog.

DRAUGHON'S BUSINESS COLLEGE
Knoxville Tennessee

"And," said another girl, "he must not be carried, either. He must walk on his own feet."

So the girls made a beautiful red coat for the little dog and buttoned it on. He wagged his tail and seemed to like the coat. Then, if you please, they made him a muslin bonnet, and trimmed it, strings and all, with lace. It was the kind of frilly bonnet that babies wear in the summer time. When the bonnet was finished the girl who had bragged about him put it on and tied it in a hard bow-knot under his chin.

"He doesn't look exactly sweet," she admitted, "but he does look good-natured and funny."

"And different," added another girl. Then the three laughed and laughed. But the little dog didn't mind how much they laughed at him. He wagged his tail and almost smiled, he was so happy.

"Now we'll go shopping," said his mistress.

So at last the three walked down F Street in the city of Washington with the dog at their heels. Nearly every one who met them smiled. The girls walked on with their heads in the air, and talked in an off-hand fashion about anything and everything except dogs. They walked into big stores and out of stores, buying something here and there, and having a gay good time every minute. Of course they were thinking about their pet constantly, and were laughing inside of themselves, but they kept their faces perfectly straight and pretended to be deaf when they heard shoppers talking about their funny-looking little dog.

Mothers had trouble that day, to get their children to walk past a dog dressed in a red coat and a white muslin bonnet. The children pulled back and pulled back when their mothers took them by the hand to drag them away.

Two or three times that his hind feet and waved at children. He really wags his hands.

At last, in the biggest store in the city, the dog graced himself and his mistress.

A big dog walked up to the little dog. He was playing fun of the coat and first the little dog made a noise. Then the big dog spoke and he said that time was for the little dog would stand. The big dog must have said something in dog language, because he turned suddenly and started to fight.

The big dog ran and ran after him. The mistress ran aside to let the fighters fight. The two flew, snarling and growling.

The girls didn't know the dog's mistress loved when neither she nor her dog could find him she almost cried.

"The only thing to do is to go at last, after they had searched for the dog, "to do is to stay where we left us. If he is alive back to the same place."

So for more than an hour he waited. And the dog was enough, he came back. His body was gone and his body with mud and stains from His bonnet was hanging still tied on by strings to snowy white, but were not. One eye was swelled shut. The girls, he picked up his tail and wagged it, and good eye!

"Oh, my poor little dog, the girl who loved him.

She picked him up and home, bathed his wounds to bed.

But from that day to this the dog has never told what said that made him so angry, fight, nor how nor when ended. However, that time he ever had a chance. And from that day to this the girl who loves him has bragged about his good behavior. Formed Church Messenger.

NO LOOSE ENDS

Louise was spending a great-aunt Hilda, who wags her rug. "You work a little, auntie," she said. "Not quite. I'm doing something most interesting. I don't like to leave any loose ends."

The words puzzled Louise, but watching the brisk work of her hands she saw them clear. Aunt Hilda had cut the rug she just cut from. At each end there was work about three inches long. Hilda made these ends even by knotting the warp fringe six strands. When this was done she rolled the rug and laid it away.

"Suppose you brush up on your ends, then we'll go in the other direction," she said.

Louise likes to sweep, but she likes to mend.

Guilford COLLEGE

Member of Southern Association. National recognition. Courses for A.B. and B.S. degrees, including Business and Finance, Home Economics and Music. Wholesome religious atmosphere. Up-to-date Educational program and student activities. A century old, Quaker institution. Address The President, Guilford College, N. C.

YOU ARE INVITED

TO ENJOY the delightful climate, excellent cuisine, Turkish baths, and health-giving Glenn Springs Mineral Water at the remodeled Glenn Springs Hotel.

Renew your health at this delightful old well-known Spring, and enjoy the company of a large number of pleasing friends who will greet you.

Remodeled hotel offers excellent rooms, modern conveniences, pleasing table. Quiet, peace and rest at Glenn Springs, coupled with the cleansing, regulative, tonic effect of sparkling Glenn Springs water, will restore your health in a short stay. Rates $21.00 per week and up, American plan.

Open June 1st to September 1st

GLENN SPRINGS HOTEL

GLENN SPRINGS, S. C.

QUEENS COLLEGE

A High Grade Institute of Education of Women
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

"The College With the Finest Instruction" in its Christian influence. Aim: The development of womanhood prepared for service.

Curriculum: Embraces the best of preparation for modern life; CHRISTIAN EDUCATION FOR CHRISTIAN SERVICE.

Climatic conditions unexcelled. Social and Religious privileges of the attractiveness of the location.

Rates exceedingly reasonable. For Catalogue Write to

THE PRESIDENT
Box 300, Charlotte, N. C.

COTTAGE FOR RENT
 Cottage, near lake and completely furnished to accommodate family of six or eight. Entire season. Rev. J. H. Mountain, N. C.

FOR RINGS, WATCHES SILVERWARE

Write to WALLEN AND CO.
 Dealers since 1855
 Charleston, S. C.
 Catalog on request

Folk's
 Friend

What many call it for m and vigor into old
 rich, red blood into
 sound flesh on old
 drink with each meal.

War Ale

festive Aromatics With Mineral Water & Ginger
 like it for assisting
 stive organs to con-
 food into rich blood
 flesh.

she does not remember to put her broom and dustpan away! This time she did, because she knew just how auntie herself would have done. "I didn't leave any loose ends," she told herself proudly as she went to sit beside Aunt Hilda who had taken her mending baskets now. That made Louise recall that she, too, had stockings to darn.

"It's good for me to visit Aunt Hilda," she thought, for she is wise enough to see that she has a habit of leaving many things unfinished. What trouble both she and brother Carl have because of the things they "leave at loose ends." Much of their work and even their play has to be done over because of being left like that scarf the kitten raveled so easily. Aunt Hilda knows better than to make herself so much extra work. Everything she does counts, because it is finished right.

Fretful hours, shame and danger still come from leaving things unfinished. Girls and boys are wise to train themselves to better ways. The difference will show quickly and will also be a help to them their whole lives long. —Mary S. Stover, in The Luthern.

In a Scottish valley, beside a little brook, where there was no kindly soil, a Highlander once planted a tree. Of course it wilted and drooped. But suddenly, to the surprise of everyone, it took a new start in life, and bore rich fruit. What was the source of its new life? That was the query put by

Cecil's Business Colleges

Let us train you for business.—Secretaries, Accountants, Bookkeepers, Stenographers, Stenotypists find ready employment. Keep cool and go to school in the glorious mountains of Carolina. Resident school or home study course. Address

CECIL'S BUSINESS COLLEGES
 Asheville, N. C., or Spartanburg, S. C.

ATLANTA CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

The Foremost School of Music in the South
 Fall session begins Monday, September 2, 1929
 Summer session in June and July
 Catalog C GEO. F. LINDNER, Director Atlanta, Georgia

SALEM COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

own nationally for 156 years' unbroken record in higher education. Life emphasizes Christian standards without denominational differences. Fifty-six acre campus of forest and meadow. Swimming, riding and all. Our endowment pays 12-1-2 per cent. of each student's expenses, reducing the annual charge to $655.00.
 Accredited member Southern Association. A-Class.
 A. B., B. S. and B. Music degrees with wide elective privileges.
 or catalogue "A" to Pres. Howard E. Rondthaler, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Summer VACATION TRIPS

Rail and Motor
 Tours

In the Southern Appalachian Mountains

In especially arranged rail and motor tours, the Southern Railway provides a new vacation recreation, combining rail and motor transportation for the individual and for parties, into the mountain sections of Virginia, North Carolina, Eastern Tennessee and North Georgia.

These tours will take you adventuring by rail and motor into regions of scenic beauty and historic interest. Each trip begins and ends with a railway journey, in which you enjoy the speed and comfort of rail travel. The motor trips are over established State highways.

For booklets, information and rates, call on Ticket Agents,

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

all who knew it. An examination revealed the secret. With a marvelous vegetable instinct it sent out a shoot which ran along and over a narrow sheep bridge and rooted itself in the rich loam on the other side of the brook. From this rich loam it drew its new life. Even so, the Resurrection of Jesus Christ bridges the River of Death that flows between earth and heaven.—David Gregg.

God is love! Of no attributes save this of love is there in the Scriptures such intense and vehement expression, to signify that this is the sublime, paramount, crowning fact of the Godhead—as though this were his whole nature, and all other qualities were absorbed and swallowed up in this perfection. . . The bond of love engirdles the universe. It is the oneness of Creator and created, so that, as Christ said to his disciples, "Ye shall know that I am in my Father, and ye in me, and I in you." . . . How can we ever do with our hands, or speak with our lips, or conceive in our hearts anything that is dishonoring or defiant or displeasing to that Being of perfect love?—Horace Mann.

MEDITERRANEAN FRUIT FLY

(From a Radio Talk at Raleigh, N. C.)

Dr. R. W. Leiby, State Entomologist of North Carolina

You have heard of the European Corn Borer, the Japanese Beetle, the Mexican Beetle and the Cotton Boll Weevil, and all of them have proven to be quite serious and destructive pests to crops. Yet the destruction caused by all of these put together would not equal that of the Mediterranean Fruit Fly, in my opinion, if this newly introduced pest now in Florida, were to invade the southeastern states and California.

On April 6, an entomologist at Gainesville, Florida, was preparing a grapefruit for the table. He found a couple of maggots in one that had slightly decayed. This was unusual, and I dare say few of you have ever observed an insect of any kind within a grapefruit. He immediately suspected the Fruit fly. The maggots that he found were rushed to insect specialists at Washington and determined as the Mediterranean Fruit fly. The same day citrus growers made complaint of an unusual drop of their grapefruit in their groves. This drop was due to the Fruit fly. As many as 80 per cent of the grapefruit in an orchard were found wormy. Now, nine counties of vegetable growing and citrus growing Florida find themselves completely shut off from a market,—being quarantined so that they are not only prevented from selling their products but are required to pull up their vegetables, uproot their fig trees, and destroy all wild fruits and plants in which the fruit fly might develop. And there are more than 50 different kinds of such host plants and their fruits that the fly can breed in.

The losses have been enormous. They will be even greater, if the fruit fly is not eradicated—that is—completely wiped out of Florida. This is a gigantic task, but progress is being made. Entire islands will have to be denuded of every vestige

King College for Men
 Bristol, Tennessee

Stonewall Jackson College
 FOR WOMEN

Abingdon, Va., Box A

Jointly Controlled by Montgomery
 Presbytery

Affiliated Colleges of the Synod of Appalachia.

King College offers four year courses leading to Degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Sciences—a small Christian College—Faculty of eleven Christian gentlemen of thorough training and practical experience. Expenses reasonable.

Stonewall Jackson College. Accredited Junior College for young women, in heart of healthful Virginia mountains. Two years high school, two years college. Music, art, home economics, secretarial course, physical room with bath. All outdoor sports. Tennis. Nine hole golf course on fifty-two acre campus. Homelike life.
 Write for catalogue.

MARY BALDWIN COLLEGE
 For women. Courses lead to B. A. and B. S. degrees. Music, art, spoken English, physical education. Gymnasium and field athletics. Modern equipment. In beautiful Shenandoah Valley. Founded 1842. Catalog. Staunton, Virginia.

MONEY IN OLD LETTERS

Look in the old trunk and send me all the old envelopes up to 1876. Do not remove the stamps. Will pay the highest prices.

GEORGE HAKES
 290 Broadway New York

FOR RENT

in Montreat, furnished cottage, immediately back of Alba Hotel, close to auditorium.

W. A. MURRAY
 Black Mountain, N. C.

After Six Thousand Years

AFTER sixty centuries the contents of the underground tombs of ancient Egypt remain today in as perfect preservation as on the day they were sealed. No moisture has ever penetrated their silent chambers. Without moisture there can be no decay.

Now Science has made possible, at a cost within the means of the average family, an individual housing for the casket, proof against moisture, secure from the ravages of time, safe from desecrating hands. It is the

GALION
 CRYPTORIUM

THE UNDER-GROUND MAUSOLEUM

Owing to the non-corrosive and impervious nature of its Armo Iron walls and to its scientific construction the Cryptorium gives to its contents the same kind of protection that Nature gave to the tombs of the Pharaohs. It is guaranteed to do this.

The Cryptorium, sealed hermetically or on the "diving bell" principle, is unrivaled in dignity and beauty. Pearl gray, lavender, copper, Antique Gold or Baronet Bronze.

The funeral director in your vicinity will show you the Galion Cryptorium and explain its unique advantages.

THE GALION METALLIC VAULT CO.
 Dept. J-8, Galion, Ohio

GALION
 CRYPTORIUM

THE UNDER-GROUND MAUSOLEUM

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless, Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

Fletcher's CASTORIA

Harness Lightning

This book will amaze you. You can make lightning as harmless as a summer breeze. You can end its terrible menace to your property. This booklet gives the real truth in plain, common-sense language. Written by experts of the world-famous Kretzer System, who have protected thousands of buildings throughout the country. Recommended by your insurance company. Protect yourself and your property. Be safe. Send for your Free copy today.

St. Louis Lightning Rod Co.
Trudeau & DeKalb Sts.,
Box D, St. Louis, Mo.

FISHBURNE MILITARY SCHOOL

Aim—"Not the largest, but the best"

IN EVERY class each boy recites every day. Contacts with schoolmates from all over the country. Graduates enter all colleges. Certificate privileges. Mild year 'round climate. Easily reached. Full athletic program supervised by experienced men. Modern equipment. Swimming pool. Col. M. H. Huggins, Box 11, Waynesboro, Virginia.

Member Ass'n of Military Colleges and Schools of U. S.

ECZEMA

Psoriasis :: Itch

RU-BON will remove every spot Ring Worm, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Poison Ivy, Crotch Itch, Hives, Burns, Galds or Scalds, Itching sore feet. There is no substitute for RU-BON sold by all McKesson Robbins Chain Wholesale Drug Stores. Ask your druggist.

The Bristol-Nelson School

For mentally defective children. Open throughout the year—limited to 25 pupils. Girls of all ages. No boys over 12 years of age. Scientific training. Ideal home life. Large lawns and playgrounds—5 assistants. Prices range from $900 to $1,800 per year. For illustrated catalog—Address MRS. CORA BRISTOL-NELSON Murfreesboro, Tenn.

of foliage, and this will probably be done by army official using poison gasses.

At a conference held in Washington two weeks ago, at which time four and one quarter million dollars were secured from Congress to eradicate the fly, I heard senators and congressmen from Florida declare that it appeared as though Florida's economic status was doomed, unless the fruit fly were stamped out. It is a fact, that its spread over the south, which would be only a matter of a couple of years, would likely mean the end of all horticultural industry, especially of all fruits and many vegetables. This has been the case in other countries where the fly now abounds. For example, the peach industry of the Bermuda Islands was wiped out by the fly, the Hawaiian Islands can ship no fruits and vegetables into this country except green pineapples because of a rigid quarantine that the United States maintains against the fly. But I have said enough to have you understand, I believe, that this pest is the most serious that man ever had to contend with.

The fly has been in Florida, perhaps six months, perhaps 18 months, certainly no longer. It is certain that infested vegetables, grapefruit and oranges have come into the southern states and into North Carolina during the winter and spring. And this is especially true of bulk grapefruit and oranges—the kind that are moved by auto truck and in bulk car lots, for these kinds are often second grade stock, and, therefore, more likely to be infested than the boxed fruits.

Entomologists know that the fly maggots leave the slightly decayed fruits, that they infested, when they are fully grown, then fully grown flies they work their way out of the soil and fly around to search for other fruits in which to lay their eggs.

The flies can live 50 days without laying any eggs. They will lay from one to 30 in a grapefruit or in a peach that is about to ripen, or a plum, a pear in grapes, figs or a pepper, a tomato, or in a bean pod. The eggs produce tiny maggots and these feed in the fruit or vegetable and cause it to decay.

The flies are prolific and can lay as many as 600 eggs. If the weather were favorable they could raise 18 broods or generations in a year.

IMMORTALITY

By Joseph Jefferson

(These quaint lines were first published in The New York Tribune. Mr. E. C. Benedict gave the following interesting bit of history concerning them: "One day when Mr. Jefferson and Grover Cleveland were taking luncheon on board the Oneida, in Buzzard's Bay, the conversation drifted to the subject of a future life. Mr. Jefferson expressed himself as very grateful for having had more than his share of the joys of this life, and as being prepared to meet at any moment the common fate of all. He said that he had lately been 'scribbling some doggerel on the subject,' and he recited his lines to us. I asked him for a copy of them, which he said he did not possess, but that he would send me one. This, upon being again reminded of his promise, he finally did, with his signature attached.)

Two caterpillars crawling on a leaf,
By some strange accident in contact came;
Their conversation, passing all belief,
Was the same argument, the very same,
That has been "proed and conned" from man to man,
Yea, ever since this wondrous world began;
The ugly creatures,
Deaf, dumb and blind,
Devoid of features
That adorn mankind.
Were vain enough, in dull and wordy

PUZZLE ANSWERS

ACROSTIC

J-ustice, U-nion, L-ucifer, Y-esterday
JULY

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE DECATUR, GA.

Strict entrance requirements, but few failures after admission. So expensive, but cheap in comparison with advantages offered. No loan expected, but also none without capacity to enjoy almost unlimited good. For details as to admission, scholarship aid, etc address
PRESIDENT J. R. McCAIN
Box 5

MEREDITH COLLEGE

For YOUNG WOMEN

STANDARD COURSES IN ARTS AND SCIENCES, IN MUSIC, IN ART, IN HOME ECONOMICS

Confers the degrees of Bachelor of Arts, and Bachelor of Music. Delightful environment on a high plateau on the western boundary of North Carolina City. Room reservations are now being made for session 1929-30. For catalogue or further information write
CHAS. E. BREWER, President
Raleigh, N. C.

Visiting Cards and Stationery FREE

For a limited time we will give with each $3.00 per year subscription to Presbyterian Standard 100 high grade visiting cards FREE.

SAMPLES OF TYPE

- Miss Evelyn Smith
- Mrs. J. B. [unclear]
- REV. JOSEPH BLOEGH
- Mr. Henry C. Moore

Specify type wanted by number

With each $6.00 paid on subscription we will give 100 sheets paper and 50 envelopes to match with your name and address printed thereon.

SAMPLES OF TYPE

- REV. M. HARVEY JONES
Charlotte, N. C.
- DR. S. T. HAINES, D. D.
Richmond, Va.
- Mrs. Jackson Helms
WACO, TEX.

Specify type wanted by number

Stationery can be printed in either blue or black. We will use black unless otherwise specified.

Check or Money Order must be sent direct to this office to receive this offer of cards or stationery.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING CO.
P. O. Box 869
Charlotte, N. C.

McCALLIE School for Boys
Historically located on Missionary Ridge, the view of renowned Lookout Mountain. An outstanding school in South. Thorough preparation for College and Technical Schools. Small classes. Individual instruction. Strong Physical Training. Military Drill. Honor System. Christian Training. Complete modern equipment. Concrete Swimming Pool. Gymnasium. 40 Acre Campus. Lake. Rate $1000 per year. Summer Session, July and August, with Camp fee. Write for illustrated catalog. The Headmaster, Box P Chattanooga, Tennessee

Direct From Mill To You

ATTERNS in new ls at Mill Prices.
consumer selling
ou 1/4 to 1/3.

Prints
Bedsreads
Pillow Tubing
Wide Sheeting
Marquissettes
Draperies. etc.

amples

List on cut cloth
and pay nt ship-satisfaction

Save
46 1/3

HAN MILL STORE
A. Greenville, S. C.

Spirit

tion, determination to t odds; the noted charof all P. C. Athletic like manner permeates
college.

terian College
Clinton, S. C.

EN PRES

No Lance

Scientific Preparation
BUNCLER, BONE FELONS,
and OLD SORES. Price 50c
CE CHEMICAL CO
Brookland, S. C.

DR. CALDWELL WAS RIGHT

treating sickness has not
Dr. Caldwell left Medical
5, nor since he placed on e laxative prescription he e practice.

constipation, biliousness,
tal depression, indigestion,
and other indispositions
eans of simple vegetable s and roots. These are
of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup
mbination of senna and
bs, with pepsin.

the remedy for constipa-
for the child and for you.
an get results in a mild
by using Dr. Caldwell's
why take chances with

last several months, and
t. It is pleasant to the n action, and free from erly people find it ideal.
have the generous bottles,
rup Pepsin," Dept. BB,
nois, for free trial bottle

ING OUR ADVERTISERS
TION THIS PUBLICATION

strife
To speculate upon a future life.
The first was optimistic, full of hope;
The second, quite dyspeptic, seemed to mope.

Said number one, "I'm sure of our salvation."

Said number two, "I'm sure of our damnation;

Our ugly forms alone would seal our fates

And bar our entrance through the golden gates;

Suppose that death should take us unaware,

How could we climb the golden stairs?
If maidens shun us as they pass us by,
Would angels bid us welcome in the sky?

I wonder what great crimes we have committed,

That leave us so forlorn and so unpityed?

Perhaps we've been ungrateful, unforgiving;

'Tis plain to me that life's not worth the living."

"Come, come, cheer up," the jovial worm replied,

"Let's take a look upon the other side!
Suppose we cannot fly like moths or millers,

Are we to blame for being caterpillars?
With that same God that doomed us
to crawl the earth,

A prey to every bird that's given birth, Forgive our captor as he eats and sings,

And damn poor us because we have not wings?

If we can't skim the air like owl or bat,

A worm can turn 'for a' that'."

They argued through the summer;
autumn nigh,

The ugly things composed themselves
to die;

And so to make their funerals quite
complete,

Each wrapped him in his little winding-sheet;

The tangled web encompassed them
full soon,

Each for his coffin made him a cocoon.
All through the winter's chilling blast
they lay

Dead to the world, aye, dead as human clay.

Lo, spring comes forth with all her warmth and love;

She brings sweet justice from the realms above;

She breaks the chrysalis, she resur-
rects the dead;

Two butterflies ascend, encircling her
head,

And so this emblem shall forever be
A sign of immortality.

CLEMSON COLLEGE

SCHOLARSHIP EXAMINATION

Competitive examinations for the award of vacant scholarships in Clemson College will be held on Friday, July 12, 1929, beginning at 9 a. m. by each County Superintendent of Education. These scholarships will be open to young men sixteen years of age or over, who desire to pursue courses in Agriculture or Textiles.
Scholarships are awarded by the State Board of Education on the recommendation of the State Board of Public Welfare.

These examinations include English, Algebra, Geometry, and History and are based on the State High School curriculum. Applicants for Agricultural Scholarships are also examined on Agriculture.

Persons interested should write the Registrar for information and application blanks before the time of the examinations. Successful applicants must meet fully the requirements for admission.

Each scholarship is worth $100.00
and free tuition, which is $40.00 additional. Scholarships are open only to residents of South Carolina.

For further information write—

THE REGISTRAR

Clemson College, S. C.

ORIENT FLOUR

Its Whiteness Denotes Its Purity

MOUNTAIN CITY MILL CO., CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

Banish Mosquitoes Easier! Quicker!

Flit is the new, easier, quicker way to rid your rooms of mosquitoes—for comfort and health.
The handy Flit sprayer floats a vapor that does not fall in drops, from which no mosquitoes escape!
All die—or money back. More for your money in the quart size.

"The yellow can with the black band"

FLIT

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

© 1929 Stanco Inc.

FURMAN UNIVERSITY

Greenville, S. C.

RICHARD FURMAN HALL

In the healthful, beautiful
Piedmont Section of S. C.
Strong Christian faculty. Emphasis on moral and spiritual values of life. Beautiful campus, commodious well equipped buildings. Courses leading to A. B., B. S., and LL. B.
degrees. Vigorous and successful law school. 12 Weeks
Summer School. Championship
Athletics, Glee Club, Debating etc.

For catalogue and other data write
W. J. MCGLOTHLIN, Pres.

BELK'S

NEW FURNITURE DEPT.

We have opened to the people of the Carolinas a most modern Furniture Department on our fourth floor, featuring a wide assortment of fine furniture for the home as well as newest novelty furniture.

On this same floor is located our Picture and mirror rooms, also chinaware, glass-ware and toys.

A visit to this floor will be both pleasurable and profitable.

Belk Brothers Co.
Charlotte, N. C.

THE RIGHT WAY TO TRAVEL

is by train. The safest. Most comfortable. Most reliable. Costs less. Inquire of Ticket Agents regarding greatly reduced fares for short trips.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Church and Sunday School Furniture

Send For Special Catalogue THE SOUTHERN DESK COMPANY Hickory, N. C.

BOILS Relieve the pain and draw them quickly to a head with GRAY'S OINTMENT At all drug stores. For free sample write W. F. Gray & Co., 724 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Nervous Women Praise Capudine

Delicately poised women who suffer from high nerve strain and nervous pains, such as periodic pains, headache and pains in the back and sides are high in their praise of Capudine because it quickly soothes the tense nerves and relieves the pain. Being liquid, Capudine acts almost instantly,—does not upset the stomach. Sold by druggists in 30c and 60c sizes. (adv.)

YOUR CHURCH deserves a beautiful exterior in harmony with its spirit of culture and worship. Let us suggest appropriate shrubbery. THE HOWARD-HICKORY CO., Hickory, N. C. Local Representatives Wanted, especially to sell fruit trees. Landscape Gardeners and Nurserymen

Piles and other Rectal diseases cured without pain or surgery. No hospital detention. Write to Dr. W. R. Register, 63 No. Broad Street, Atlanta, Georgia, for free book. Hundreds of cured patients.

Take STANBACK to Relieve PAIN

6 6 6 is a Prescription for Colds, Grippe, Flu, Dengue, Bilious Fever and Malaria. It is the most speedy remedy known.

RED EYES Dickey's old reliable eye water cools and heals red eyes. Strengthens weak eyes—relieves sore eyes, helps tired eyes. Relieves sore eyes from gnats and dust. In genuine red folding box at stores or by mail 25c. Over 50 years old. DICKEY DRUG COMPANY, Bristol, Virginia

HOT WEATHER retards digestion and reduces vitality. Keep yourself in perfect condition with YERKE'S COD LIVER OIL Extract At All Leading Druggists

SPARKLES

The Reason

"Farm products cost more than they used to." "Yes," replied the farmer. "When a farmer is supposed to know the botanical name of what he's raisin' an' the entomological name of the insect that eats it, an' the pharmaceutical name of the chemical that kills it, somebody's got to pay." Wall Street Journal.

An exchange says a wagon maker who had been dumb for years picked up a hub and spoke. Yes, and a blind carpenter on the same day reached out for a plane and saw; a deaf sheep ranchman went out with his dog and herd; a noseless fisherman caught a barrel of herring and smelt; a forty-ton elephant inserted his trunk into a grate and flue.—Granite Service.

She—"My brother's out in the Sudan." He—"Then let's take the roadster!" —Life.

Three Woulds

I would I were beneath a tree; A-sleeping in the shade; With all the bills I've got to pay, Paid!

I would I were beside the sea, Or sailing in a boat, With all the things I've got to write, Wrote!

I would I were on yonder hill, A-baking in the sun; With all the work I've got to do, Done! —Selected.

"That is a skyscraper," announced the guide. Old Lady—"Oh, my! I'd love see it work."—The Churchman.

It's the little things that bother us—you can sit on a mountain, but not on a tack!—Panther.

Daughter—"Oh, papa, what is your birthstone?" Father of Twelve—"My dear, I'm not sure, but I think it is a grindstone."—The Watchman-Examiner.

Teacher—"What do they call the instrument the French use for beheading people?" Bobby—"The Gillette, I think." —Life.

The NORTH CAROLINA COLLEGE for WOMEN

An A-1 grade college maintained by the State of North Carolina for the education of its young women. Liberal courses leading to the usual degrees in Arts, Science and Music. Equipment modern, including furnished dormitories, library, laboratories, literary society halls, athletic grounds, etc. Fall term begins in September, Spring term in February, Summer term in June. For catalog and other information, address JULIUS I. FOUST, President GREENSBORO, N. C.

Mexican Heat Powder

Immediately relieves Prickly Heat, Nettle Rash, Diaper Rash, Tired, Sore and Blistered Feet. Sunburn, all Skin Irritations. At your Druggists

Chicora College for Women The Presbyterian College of South Carol

Standard College Courses Beautiful Grounds Healthful Climate Large, Strong Faculty Ideal Surroundings Moderate Rates

For Catalog and Information, Address

S. C. Byrd, D.D., LL.D., President, Columbia,

FORTY-SIX YEARS CONTINUOUS SERVICE WITHOUT A LOSS ON ANY LOAN

We offer you a safe, tax-free investment for your regular weekly or monthly savings and your lump sum. Write for particulars.

ASSETS OVER $8,800,000.00

The Mutual Building and Loan Association

Established 1881

CHARLOTTE

If In Doubt, Take B. & L. Shares

You will earn the highest interest rate on your savings consistent with perfect safety, and pay no tax on your savings. Shares cost twenty-five cents per week, usually mature in 333 weeks. Net you 6 1-2 per cent maturity.

Series Open in January, April, July and October

Mechanics Perpetual Building & Loan Association

Established 1883

18 E. Fourth St.

Charlotte

THE WINTHROP DESK, $75

The Governor Winthrop desk has come down to us from the very earliest beginning of America. In the one shown here every detail has been copied minutely. It is made in Grand Rapids which is an assurance of its fine quality. Others, varying in size from $70 to $145.

W.T. McCOY & Co Home Furnishers

423-425 SOUTH TRYON STREET CHARLOTTE, N. C.

"National Bank Safety For Savings"

For the Future

Are you making ready share in the opportunity which increasing prosperity will bring?

A Reserve Fund Banker Will Help

Charlotte National Bank

Resources Over $5,000,000.00

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

Religious Newspaper for the Family

Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.

DUGES, D.D., Editor-in-Chief
ELLIS, D.D., Co-Editor
SPER WILLIS, Contributing Editor

ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858

M. F. ELLIS, Vice-President
GARTH, Treasurer and News Editor
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
BY PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY

CHARLOTTE, N. C., JUNE 26, 1929

No. 23

Aims Bramwell Booth

Salvation Army Dies in England

Bramwell Booth died at Hadfield, England, on June 16th. Gen.
Booth was sick for six months.
He was 75 years of age, and had been in the Salvation Army for many years. He was the successor to his father, William Booth, the founder of the Salvation Army.

Booth was succeeded by General Huggins last spring, when he was incapacitated. Gen. Huggins is now paying tribute to Bramwell Booth was a great man. His life may be linked with his country as the builder of the Army.

His leadership embraced the world, but his home brought the Army an unbroken international pages made by the organ. He was its head for the most optimistic of his life. His name will be written on the pages of the history of the world for his life and his work will be expressed by his work over the world."

A Bible School Enters New Era

S. C. Capital to Give Bachelor of Religious Education

With next fall, the Bible College at Columbia, S. C., enters a new era in the history of the college. Its name is to be changed to Bible College, with the authority of the legislature to confer the Bachelor of Arts in Religion.
There will be a four-year course, with the first two years devoted to the study of the Bible, and the last two years devoted to the study of theology, history, philosophy, and other subjects. The college is now one of the best in the South.

Leading to the degree of Bachelor of Religious Education is given in theological studies. The college is now one of the best in the South. The college is now one of the best in the South.
The college is now one of the best in the South.

I HAVE PAID Subscriptions

To thank those who have so promptly to our good many have paid subscriptions in full. We method of thanking all and we are hoping will follow their examples this card of thanks to you?

University of Virginia To Conduct Institute

Round Table Discussion on Country Church to be Led by Dr. McLaughlin

From August 4 to August 17 the University of Virginia will conduct an institute, the general subject of which will be, the Task of the Country Church. The conference will bring together many leaders of the nation and the states of Virginia and North Caroline, most of whom will be pastors of country churches. The whole institute will be under the leadership of Dr. H.
W. McLaughlin, Director of the Country Church Department of the Southern Presbyterian Church. The following is an outline of the program and the various speakers who will take part.

Open Forum—Tuesday, Aug. 13:
"Does the United Church Solve the Country Church Problem?" Affirmative, Dr. W. R. King, Secretary of Home Missions Council; negative, Dr.
J. W. Jent, President Southwestern Baptist College.

Evening Addresses—Thursday, Aug.
8: "Twenty-one Years of Rural Church Development." Dr. Warren H. Wilson, Superintendent of the Department of Church and Country Life, Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States. "Relations of the Church and Press," Hon. Rev.
James I. Finney, Editor the Nashville
Tennessean.

Round Tables—Tuesday, August 6:
1. How to Discover the Rural Com-
(Continued on Page Two)

Flora Macdonald Fund Presented in Pinehurst

Ex-Governor McLean, Dr. McQueen, and Campaign Director Make Addresses

The Pilot, of Aberdeen, N. C., one of our exchanges publishes the following account of a dinner at the well-known resort at Pinehurst, N. C.:

At Pinehurst last Friday evening,
the Board of Trustees of Flora Macdonald College served dinner to as many people of the community as could attend, thus opening a campaign for funds to endow the college. After dinner the meeting was addressed by Dr. Angus McQueen of Dunn, who told why an Educational institution cannot be self-supporting and just what the immediate needs of this particular school are. Dr. McQueen stressed the importance of educating the hearts of our young people as well as the minds and emphasized the splendid work of Flora Macdonald College is doing along this line. A very enjoyable feature of the occasion was several musical selections by Miss Louise Manderville, voice instructor of the college.
She was accompanied by Miss Mary
McEachen of the piano department.

Ex-Governor Angus Wilton McLean, chairman of the Board of Trustees of Flora Macdonald made an address at the Community House on Sunday morning along the same line, "Christian Education" being his subject.
While here, Mr. McLean was the guest of the Rev. and Mrs. Murdock Mc-Leod.

The Rev. Herman Jones, director of the campaign for Flora McDonald College, made a very interesting and instructive talk to the Pinehurst Brotherhood at their meeting Sunday morning. Fifty-four members were present at this meeting and, in addition, several visitors. This is a splendid showing for the class. Sixty odd men assembled for Bible study in a place the size of Pinehurst is impressive.

Commencement at Southwestern

Memphis College Graduates Largest Class—Alumnus Makes Address and Dr. Lilly Preaches—Time Limit for Gift of $100,000 is Extended

The largest class in all the history of Southwestern, sixty-four in number, was graduated June 11th, in the fourth commencement held in Memphis and the fifty-fourth of the institution.

The commencement address was delivered by an alumnus of Southwestern, the Rev. J. Valdemar Moldenhawer, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of New York City. The sermon before the Southwestern Christian Union was delivered Sunday evening June 9th, by the Rev. D. Clay Lilly, D.D., of Reynolda, N. C. The baccalaureate sermon was preached the morning of the same day by President Diehl, as is the custom at Southwestern.

In the Alumni Day exercises on Monday, June 10th, special place was given to the class of 1887.

The honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon the Rev.
Joseph Allen Christian, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Tupelo,
Miss., the Rev. Donald Cameron Mac-
Guire, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Montgomery, Ala., and the Rev. George Hunter Norwood, pastor of the Burgett Memorial Presbyterian Church, Bay Minette, Ala.

The degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon William L. Frierson,
'87, attorney, Chattanooga, Tenn., Clyde B. Furst, of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Learning, New York City, and Thomas K.
Riddick, attorney, Memphis, Tenn.

President Charles E. Diehl announced that the alumnus of Southwestern who had offered one hundred thousand dollars toward the debt on the college had generously extended the time for raising the three hundred
(Continued on Page Two)

Hampden-Sydney Commencement

Dr. Machen Preaches Baccalaureate Sermon—Honorary Degrees Conferred

Hampden-Sydney College closed its one hundred and fifty-third session on Wednesday, June 12th. On Sunday morning, the 9th, the Rev. J. Gresham Machen, of Princeton Theological Seminary, preached the baccalaureate sermon. Dr. Machen's message was just what you would expect from the powerful theologian and deeply spiritual Christian that he is. Monday was given over to a meeting of the Board of Trustees, and Tuesday was taken up with a meeting of the Alumni Association and a buffet supper tendered by the ladies of the faculty to the members of the senior class, their parents, and visiting alumni. At this supper there were present more than two hundred and fifty guests. Tuesday evening the annual celebration of the Literary Societies took place, followed by the presentation of society medals, the debate council award, Alexander medal, and the Halsey debate trophy.

Wednesday morning at ten o'clock the graduating exercises proper were held, presided over by Dr. J. D. Eggleston. The Hon. Louis S. Epes, class of 1900, delivered the address to the graduating class, the largest in the history of the college.

The first honor graduate is Richard H. Henneman, Buckingham Co., Va.; second honor graduate, Robert W.
Harwell, Petersburg, Va.; and third
(Continued on page 2)

Country Church Conference Is Held

Seven Denominations Gather to Discuss Problems in Rural Religious Work

Dr. Henry W. McLaughlin, of Richmond, Director of Country Church
Work of the Southern Presbyterian Church, reports the following conference:

On June 13th at the Parish House,
St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Richmond, Va., there was a meeting of the representatives of seven denominations.

The purpose of this meeting was to hear the report of the Findings Committee of the Virginia Rural Church Survey, to discuss it and to formulate some plans by which the results of the Survey may be used for the advancement of country church work.

The Southern Presbyterian Church was represented by Rev. L. W. Curtis, D.D., Rev. T. K. Currie, Rev. J. S.
Duckwall, and elder W. A. Plecker,
M.D., East Hanover Presbytery; Rev.
S. J. Venable, Rev. Vernon L. Fisher,
Norfolk; Rev. W. J. Garrison, D.D.,
West Hanover; elder J. R. Hutchison,
Montgomery; and Rev. H. W. Mc-Laughlin, D.D., Lexington. The other denominations had about the same number of representatives.

The survey was made under the direction of Dr. W. E. Garrett, professor of Rural Sociology at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and was conducted by Mr. C. H. Hamilton and others. It reveals many facts that should be helpful in the extension of country church work. The report of the Findings Committee was made by its chairman, Dr. Roliv Harlan, a representative of the Baptist Church and professor in Richmond University. The country church development is more satisfactory in Virginia than in any other state. The report of the Findings Committee, in part, is as follows: "The rural church in Virginia is by no means the decadent institution it is sometimes pictured to be in other states. According to the best available figures, 42 per cent of the white Virginia rural population were church members in 1926 as compared to 37 per cent in 1916! Rural church groups —white and Negro—have increased in average size from 100 in 1906, to 120 in 1926; rural ministers are better trained; equipment is improving; programs of young peoples' work are being enlarged, and so on.

"The church, however, is not adapting itself as rapidly as it should to the many far-reaching changes in country life now taking place. In consequence, many features of the rural church situation are unsatisfactory and call for concerted attention and action.

"The percentage of white population enrolled as church members is 15.5 smaller in the country than in the cities, while only 34.2 per cent of the rural population are reported as Sunday School members as compared to 37.4 in the cities. Among the negroes, the situation is reversed: 18.2 per cent greater proportion of rural negroes are on church rolls than urban, and 7 per cent more in Sunday School.

"The church and its affiliated groups are not reaching its entire constituency. Social stratification in many places seriously handicaps the churches' work. Under-privileged groups like unskilled laborers, and tenants are not reached in anything like the same degree as land owners and professional workers. Lawless neighborhood groups, with little interest in the church, appear to be on the increase. The church problem of the mountain people is being poorly met."

(Continued on Page Two)

COMMENCEMENT AT DAVIS AND ELKINS

Davis and Elkins College at Elkins, W. Va., celebrated its Twenty-fifth Anniversary at the final exercises of commencement, Wednesday, June 5. The commencement address was made by Senator Royal S. Copeland, of New York, who was introduced by Senator M. M. Neely, of West Virginia. About 800 people heard these excellent addresses.

There were 44 certificates and diplomas given.

On account of the Anniversary, the Trustees conferred five Honorary degrees. Those so honored were: the Rev. Fred W. Gray, Pastor Presbyterian Church, Cass, W. Va., the Rev. William T. McKee, Pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Chester, W. Va., the Rev. John Müyskens, Pastor First Presbyterian Church, Wheeling, W. Va., the Rev. W. W. Pharr, Pastor First Presbyterian Church, Mt. Hope, W. Va., and the Rev. John S. Alfriend, Rector St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Weston, W. Va.

A large number of out of town guests were present, including the Rev. John A. Shaw, of Follansbee, W. Va., Moderator of the Synod of West Virginia, U. S. A.

Jas. E. Allen, Pres.

KINGS MOUNTAIN YOUNG PEOPLE TO HAVE CONFERENCE

Kings Mountain Presbytery will put on a three-day conference at the First Presbyterian Church, Gastonia, under the auspices of the Young People's committee.

Beginning Friday, June 28, with a banquet at 7:00 p. m., addresses will be made by Rev. William Currie of Belmont, and Dr. J. H. Henderlite of Gastonia. On Saturday morning, Rev. J. H. Dulin will conduct devotionals and reports will be made giving echoes of the Davidson conference which has just closed. Mrs. J. Dale Stentz, director of religious education of Main Street M. E. Church, Gastonia, will make an address on the conference motto, "Making Life Count." This address will be followed by lunch in the church dining room.

At 2:45 following a song service, Rev. D. S. Chalabie of Charlotte, will speak. The delegates will then be taken to Armstrong Park for a picnic at which supper will be served, the crowd returning to the church for an evening address. On Sunday the conference will attend Sunday school and listen to a sermon by Doctor Henderlite. At 3 p. m. the conference will close with a song service and an address by Rev. Edgar A. Woods, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Salisbury. Mr. Woods was the popular leader of the vespers at the Davidson conference.

JOHN R. MOTT APPEALS FOR CHINA SUFFERERS

The famine situation in China, with which he became familiar during his recent visit to that country, is becoming increasingly desperate, according to John R. Mott, former General Secretary of the International Committee, Y. M. C. A., who returned from the Orient on June 12, landing at San Francisco.

Mr. Mott's views with regard to the need for immediate action if the lives of many of the famine victims are to be saved are embodied in a cablegram, the text of which has been made public at the National Headquarters of China Famine Relief, U. S. A., 205 East 42nd Street, New York City.

He says: "The American Advisory Committee to China Famine Relief, and the China International Famine Relief Commission are deeply concerned over a possible failure of the American Famine Relief drive. The situation is increasingly desperate. Possible military campaigns will complicate but not prevent relief to the extent of the $4,000,000 fund requested. Provincial governments and private Chinese agencies are making strenuous efforts but these are hopelessly insufficient. There will be no spring crops in most of the affected areas, while fall crops have been sparsely sown and are not assured. Certainly they will be inadequate.

"The relief administration of American funds by the Advisory Committee is sound. In order to set up an adequate transportation plan from the railroads via river and cart in time for effective distribution of relief supplies in the most affected area, early assurances of success for the $4,000,000 drive is essential.

"The famine from natural causes alone is far more extensive than it was in 1921."

At the headquarters of China Famine Relief it was announced that organization is "carrying-on" in its effort to secure the $4,000,000 needed to save the lives of those who, the American Minister to China agrees, are in relievable areas, and that in the meantime the American Red Cross has sent a special mission of investigation to China, headed by Colonel Bicknell, which will make an exhaustive study of famine conditions and render its report, probably during the Fall.

Contributions to the American relief fund are being received by James A. Thomas, Treasurer, China Famine Relief, 205 East 42nd Street, New York City, and are being sent to the famine zone with all possible dispatch.

STATESVILLE PLANS FUND FOR MITCHELL

The Chamber of Commerce of Statesville, N. C., has appointed a committee to co-operate with a similar committee of the First Presbyterian Church of that city to raise funds for immediate repairs needed at Mitchell College which is located in Statesville, and is an institution belonging to Concord Presbytery. The committee which presented the project to the Chamber of Commerce added that while this fund for immediate use is to prepare the college for opening in the Fall, it will also form a part of a larger expansion of the school equipment which it is hoped will be undertaken in a year or two. Mitchell is preparing for a fine opening in September and with a strong faculty, under the leadership of Mrs. W. B. Ramsay, as president, is offering a complete Junior College course, with the added advantage of Bible and religious instruction, combined with the atmosphere of a Christian school, with high ideals and definite purposes for Christian service.

LEADERSHIP TRAINING SCHOOL

Uniting in one brief period physical rest, mental stimulus, and spiritual refreshment is a rare privilege, but such an experience is offered at the Montreat Leadership Training School, July 19 to August 2.

The School is divided into six day study periods and popular Bible studies, and inspirational addresses each evening are provided for those who do not wish to take full credit courses.

The following popular speakers will be heard: Dr. Charles L. King, of Richmond, will open the School Friday night, July 19 with an address, "Evangelism through Religious Education." He will also speak at 11:00 a. m. Sunday, July 21. Dr. G. Walter Fisks, of Oberlin, Ohio, a noted teacher and author, will speak Sunday night, July 21, on the theme, "The Religious Task of the Family." He will also be heard Monday evening, July 22, on the subject, "What is Happening in the American Family?" Other evening speakers will be Dr. Lawrence Wharton, of Austin, Texas; Rev. Kenneth J. Foreman of Davidson College; Dr. W. Taliaferro Thompson, of Richmond; Dr. Donald W. Richardson, of Union Seminary; Dr. L. J. Sherrill, of Louisville Seminary; and Dr. John D. Fairley, the newly elected Secretary of the Department of Religious Education. On Sunday, July 28, the address at 11 a. m. will be by Dr. J. H. Cunningham, of Bristol, and at 8 p. m. by Dr. Andrew Blackwood, of Louisville. Doctor Blackwood will also be heard each morning at 10 o'clock in a popular Bible lecture.

The faculty is the strongest ever used at Montreat, and the Dean, Dr. Edward B. Paisley, has arranged a course of study that offers students an exceptional opportunity to fit themselves for better service.

An entirely new course is offered in "Practice Teaching," where the students will carry a class of children through the regular study hour of a Sunday School. This will be done under the supervision of the faculty members, and will be a full credit course. A graduate course will also be offered by Doctor Paisley on the Principles of Religious Education.

There is no limit as to number of students a church may send.

Special rates are offered by the railroads, and attractive prices are quoted by the hotels and boarding houses.

For full programs write the Leadership Training Division, Box 1176, Richmond, Virginia.

CONTINUATIONS FROM PAGE ONE

UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA TO CONDUCT INSTITUTE

community and its Problems, Dr. Herman N. Morse, Director of Surveys, Home Missions Council; Prof. C. H. Hamilton, Asst. Prof. Rural Sociology, Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station.

Thursday, Aug. 8: 2. The Functions of the Country Church. (a) Worship, (b) Preaching, (c) Religious Education, (d) Social Service, Dr. J. W. Perry, Exec. Secy. Home Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South; Rev. C. M. Hanna, Pastor New Providence Church, Rockbridge Co., Va.

Saturday, August 10: 3. The Country Church and the Ministry of Healing: Dr. W. S. Rankin, Director Hospital and Orphan Sections, Duke Endowment; Dr. J. C. Rowan, Pastor First Presbyterian Church, Concord, N. C.

Tuesday, August 13: 4. The Rural Minister: Dr. F. D. Goodwin, Rector, St. John's Episcopal Church, Warsaw, Va.; Dr. J. C. Siler, Pastor Tinkling Spring Church, Fishersville, Va.

Thursday, August 15: 5. The Recreational Life of Country Young People: Dr. Edwin V. O'Hara, Director of Rural Life Bureau, National Catholic Welfare Conference; Dr. J. M. Walker, Pastor, Steele Creek Church, Charlotte, N. C.

Saturday, August 17: 6. The Future of the Country Church: Dr. Rolvix Harlan, Prof. of Sociology, University of Richmond; Dr. G. A. Wilson, Jr., Pastor Royal Oak Presbyterian Church, Marion, Va.

COMMENCEMENT AT SOUTHWESTERN

thousand upon which his offer was conditioner. The date originally fixed was the eighteenth of the present month (June).

The college has the largest property holdings—a million and a half in worth—and the largest endowment fund that it has ever had. But it is carrying a debt of six hundred thousand which should be paid off. For when it is paid off there is good prospect of a rapid increase in its endowment.

The total enrollment for the year has been 486.

HAMPDEN-SYDNEY COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT

honor graduate, Edward Lewis Lacy, Memphis, Tenn. The first honor man of the sophomore class is R. M. Wilson, Chase City, Va., and the first honor man of the freshman class is W. Edwin Hemphill, Petersburg, Va.; while H. C. Bradshaw, of Rice, Va., is the first honor student in the junior class. The Gammon cup and the Algernon Sydney Sullivan medallion went to Charles Edward Turley, Madison, W. Va. J. Clyde Mohler, Rockbridge Baths, Va., and E. H. McLaughlin, Maxwelton, W. Va., were the winners of the ministerial prize scholarships.

The following honorary degrees were conferred: Doctor of Literature on Cornelius Jacob Heatwole, editor of Virginia Journal of Education; Doctor of Science on George Harrison Hous-ton, of Kentucky and New York. The degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred on Rev. Jno. A. MacLean, Richmond, Va., Rev. A. G. Link, of North Carolina; Rev. C. W. Maxwell, South Boston, Va.; and Rev. Wm. Chinn, of Warrenton, Va.

A COUNTRY CHURCH CONFERENCE IN RICHMOND

Dr. Harlan paused to say: "It ought to be a grief to us that there is any considerable portion of the poor people who are being neglected by the church. Out of the tillage of the poor will come the harvest of the future."

"A much larger percentage of mothers than fathers are church members.

"The Sunday schools are poorly supported by both mothers and fathers. "The churches have created a vast amount of reverent and real spiritual-ity and altruism, but little social-mind-fulness. We seem to be just entering that stage of church consciousness and implied activities.

"There is a marked absence of definite experimental projects and only a few ministers are leading their churches in a complete community program. The idea is widely prevalent that the sole method of church recruiting and

DEVOTION

FOURTEEN MISTAKES

1. To set up our own standards and wrong and judge people as God has set the standard.
2. To measure the enjoyment by our own.
3. To expect uniformity of this world.
4. To look for judgment in youth.
5. To endeavor to mold all alike.
6. To look for perfection in actions.
7. To worry ourselves and what cannot be remedied.
8. To refuse to yield in matters.
9. To refuse to help, so far our power, all that which we
10. To refuse to make all the mistakes of others.
11. To consider everything which we cannot perform.
12. To believe only what our minds can grasp.
13. To expect to be able to do everything.
14. To live for time alone; moment may launch us into "Behold, now is the acceptable time. Prepare to meet thy God."

O, the wasted hours of life drifted by;

O, the good we might have lost without a sigh!

Souls that we might once have known, a single word;

Thoughts conceived, but never expressed, perished unheard.

Take this proverb to thine heart: hold it fast

The mill will never grind what that has passed.

A MAN IS POOR

If he is without friends.

If he has low ideals.

If he has a guilty conscience.

If he has lost his self-respect.

If his morals are questioned.

If he has lost his grip upon life.

If he is selfish, uncharitable.

If he has forfeited his head.

If his mind and soul have been neglected.

If he has traded away his money.

If he has a disagreeable countenance that makes enemies or repels his friends.

If making money has become his object and the cultivation of his spiritual life has been neglected.

If worldliness has caused a lack of fellowship with Christ.

If love of money has harmed the love of Christ and His stir him to do his best for others.

If all his investments are laid up on earth and he has neglected his treasures in heaven.—Quoted in of influencing the coming revival meeting. Only 30

white ministers were relatively supporting county

Only 29 out of 1,000 as a club work; 20 out of 1,000

marketing enterprises; 2,000 health and sanitary

Yet the church is directly affected by the success of all these agencies.

"Case studies of situations minister actively supported leadership in various development activities church work as a whole rather than injured.

"While a good percentage of rural ministers show a lack of education, a very small percentage of them are well educated, and their libraries decided lack of literature."

Other meetings to be held in Virginia this summer for promoting country church connection with the Association, June 19-21, Wytheville is held under the auspices of the Virginia Council of Religious Education, the Institute of Rural Education, August 2, Blacksburg, Virginia, the Institute of Public Affairs, University of Virginia.

city, there will be a meeting conducted for two weeks of the Country Church.

"country church movement nominations and from the United States and Canada will be heard at the next meeting."

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

FOUNDED 1858

Journal of the Synod of N. C. for 70 Years

Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as Second Class Matter.

Subscription price of the Standard is payable in advance. To ministers the price is $2.50 per year. To ministers' wives the price is $2.50 per year.

The mailing label shows the month and year to which the subscription is paid. Payment in advance is required.

Subscriptions may be made by money order, check, or registered letter, and currency by mail.

Contributory Notices—No charge is made for notices less than 100 words, but for all over fifty words the charge is 5 cents per word.

Advertisements—Sent on application.

Changes of address—Kindly send us both old and new addresses with the date of the desired change.

Removals—Changes are made only upon the written request of the subscriber. The settlement in full must be made at the same time.

Advertising and Business Communications Should be

Addressed to

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

Box 869

Charlotte, N. C.

EDITORIAL

CONFERENCES OPENS AT MONTREAT

Conference season is now on at Montreat, North Carolina State Christian Convention begins June 26 and closes July 10-18. Then comes the Education Conference, followed by the Auxiliary Training School July 10-18. We have already published the outlines of the programs of both. We are printing this week the program of the Leadership Training School, August 2. In many ways this is the most important conference that occurs in the year. It offers to our great body of school teachers courses for instruction and addresses for inspiration for the work they have assumed in the leading of the church. It may solve many of the problems for Sunday School Superintendents and management of schools. It offers answers to questions which arise in the lives of many varieties for pastors, work directors and church secretaries.

Next are the Missions Conference, August 15-20, and the Men's Work, August 15-20, and the Bible Conference, August 18-25. We will have full reports of the meetings in our next issue, with editorial comments on them. Watch the Standard for the news.

J. G. G.

EASY TERMS OF DISCIPLESHIP

Easy-loving age, and the main effort is to find the easiest way of doing things. We look back to our childhood and to the days when our parents were able to keep us in the steam furnace, the ready water supply and all the conveniences of modern housekeeping.

Money-saving devices have even entered the domain of religion. The modern evangelist has reduced the profession of Christ to a matter of signing cards and raising hands in public confession, with the soul agonizing under conviction and the thought that it would excite wonder.

Terms of discipleship, as laid down by Jesus, were not so. He presented to men a yoke and a burden, but promised that the yoke would be easy and the burden light. He who came to Him.

He offered easy terms, but insisted that he who followed Him must deny himself and take up his cross.

At times instead of repelling men, the hardships of the past attracted them, for the heroic call to service.

Who called upon men to follow a man of iron and devotion to Christ, even at the cost of his own life, the Jesuit moved across Europe and founded one of the greatest movements in the history of the world.

What most costs the most, so the hardships of a religion are not one of its incentives. In all ages there have been those who have sought the rewards of religion without paying the price, and these men are always ready to follow any leader who promises the reward without the required price—with the result that the spiritual tone of religion is lowered.

One of these new leaders recently in urging young men to enter the ministry tries to smooth down the sharp points of religion, as set forth by Christ.

He writes as follows:

"A misconception of the ministry is that clergymen are constantly forced to submit to galling restrictions and foolish privations. They must, so the story goes, abstain from the innocent pleasures and recreations which other men enjoy. What are the actual facts? Granted there may have been a time in the stilted Victorian era when it was considered poor form for a minister to play cards, go to the theater, or be seen at a dance; granted there are some belated churches to-day which still try to enforce those old prohibitions: as far as the progressive churches of America are concerned, those traditions are now dead, buried, and forgotten. Consider the actual situation you find in these progressive churches. One after another they have included a stage and theatrical equipment in their new parish house. One after another they have realized that young people have always danced and always will dance."

We would say to young men contemplating entering the ministry that the ministry of which this brother is a member is not the ministry that will pass muster when judged by the requirements laid down by Paul in his letter to Timothy.

The man who enters it with the idea that it requires no self-denial will soon find that it does require self-denial, and that there are many so-called pleasures that he must avoid if he wishes to have the stamp of approval put upon his work by the Head of the Church.

He will find that men may quiet their conscience by calling Churches that insist upon the Scriptural Standard for a Church, "belated Churches," but in the eyes of the world they are the Churches that more nearly conform to the Standard of Him who gave His life for the Church and who by His own life, set an example of what a Christian ought to be.

We are constantly reminded that we, of this section, are behind the times, we have not kept up with other sections, and that we still believe the old truths.

We must plead guilty to the indictment that we are behind the times, and our prayer is that we may always be in that class.

If a minister in this section, whatever his denomination, be found at a card party or in a theatre he loses caste, in the estimation of people, whether Church members or not.

Therefore instead of turning the easy side of the ministry to the young man deciding his calling in life, we would emphasize its hard side, and assure him that the ministry is a profession that sets a man apart from his fellow men, that places him under certain social restrictions, that must interfere with his personal freedom.

We hold with Paul when he describes himself as "Paul, a slave of Jesus Christ," and we give to the word "slave" the full meaning of "doulos," a bond slave, whose owner had over him the power of life or death.

The minister of all men should say, "I am not my own. I have been bought with a price."

CHRISTIANITY "IN ARTICULO MORTIS"

For ages the world has been predicting the failure of Christianity. These predictions received a new impetus during the World War.

Men were called upon to see a world drenched with blood by Christian nations fighting, and it was openly proclaimed that the Prince of Peace had become the Prince of War, and that Christianity was a failure.

During the War the "post-mortems" were numerous, and since then, the number of doctors about the dissecting table has not grown less.

Of course there have been, as there are now, a great diversity of views, because in this case, as in many others, doctors do not always agree.

In some cases the views are more impressive than those expressing them, in other cases the doctor is far more impressive than his views.

Among the more impressive ones is ex-President Eliot, of Harvard University, who has lived long and learned much, so that he comes to the task with a reputation world-wide in its scope.

He has gravely announced that the world needs a new conception of God, that this need is due to the fact that the Churches have substituted for God something that is not God, such as the Virgin Mary, the Saints, and even Jesus Christ.

Now we know that the world has long suffered because the Virgin Mary and sundry Saints have been exalted beyond what the Scriptures authorize, and we are not surprised that the world has gotten out of joint.

We are unwilling, however, to trace the ravages of the great war to this exaltation of the Virgin and the Saints. Because one followed the other, it does not prove that one is the cause of the other. There may be other reasons for this, besides the fact that it has appeared at the time when the Virgin and Saints were objects of worship rather than our Lord.

When, however, we consider the charge that Christ has been substituted for God, we stand on Scriptural grounds. This, in the eyes of the New England Unitarians, is a heresy that should bring evil to the world.

In answer to the charge that this generation has brought evil upon itself by substitution of Christ for God, we reply that we stand upon Scriptural grounds in this substitution. "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father," said Christ.

To Dr. Eliot and his school of belief Christ is only a mere man, but to us who believe in his divinity, He is the great need of the world; and the present condition of the world is due to the fact that men refuse to acknowledge Him as God.

Christianity needs no "post-mortem," because it is by no means dead. It is still the power of God unto salvation as it was when Paul was not ashamed to bring it into conflict with the hoary heathenism of Rome.

If we seek the cause of this reign of the devil, we shall find it in those who confess Christ with their lips yet deny Him with their lives.

The visible Church of Christ may need an inquest, but let our judges be some who confess the divinity of Christ, and not Dr. Eliot and his Unitarian followers.

BIBLE TEACHING AT QUEENS COLLEGE

We have often heard the president of Queens College appear to violate the apostle's principle stated in I Corinthians 13 where Paul says that "love vaunteth not herself, is not puffed up," when he got to describing the Bible course at that institution of learning for young ladies. We have feared lest the uninformed and uninitiated might doubt his assertions, and lay them to super zeal. But there have recently come into our hands some sets of questions given in examination at the college and intended for the members of classes in Bible, Religious Education, Ethics and Christian Evidences.

As we scrutinized these questions, we were impressed with their dignity, their incisiveness, their grasp of the subject in hand, their liberal recognition of modern scientific views, their comparison of these views with orthodox positions, but above all with their reverent acceptance of the fundamental teachings of Christianity.

While we surveyed these lists, we observed to ourselves that a student would need quite a bit of erudition to answer them properly, and that when she answered them, her own heart must certainly reciprocate the confident faith that resided in her professor, and which was radiating toward her in his yearning that she learn not only the facts about Christ and his inspired word, but might experience the warmth of His divine love and power in her own heart.

In other words, we were extremely gratified with these examination questions as a demonstration of the course in Religious Education at Queens, and we will now unreservedly join the president in his self-congratulations that he has Charles William Sommerville as the head of this department.

J. G. G.

CHURCH UNION AND CHURCH UNITY

Rev. J. Keir Frazer, D.D.

There is no doubt that the trend of thought today is away from the old individualism, and in the direction of fellowship and co-operation. It is not strange, therefore, if many Christians are becoming dissatisfied with the spectacle of the broken body and are catching a vision of a united Church. The gains of unity are too clear to require any extended notice. For example there are tremendous social problems facing us, and in the presence of these problems unless the Christian Churches are going to stand together there is very little chance of getting the principles of the Christian religion practically accepted in the world. Indeed there is a danger that ecclesiastical organizations may be left high and dry by the present onrush of social activity. Movements appropriating the Christian teaching and with much of the Christian spirit are springing up outside of the Church. Where these are not hostile to the Church they are indifferent. In view of all this the cry for a closer union of the Churches is timely, and there is great responsibility resting upon those who do anything that is calculated to perpetuate unnecessary division.

But what kind of union do we need to meet the demands of our age? This is the question we must try to answer.

There are two possible conceptions of Church union which, for want of better words, we may call organic and federal. According to the first conception the Church is pictured as a great unified organism. There is one single Church of which all Christians are members. There are divisions in this Church, it may be, but they are such organic divisions as are found in an army.

According to the second conception the united church is a great complex federated body. The distinction between the Churches remains, but instead of competition there is co-operation in all matters that concern the building up of the kingdom of Christ. There is a union of forces, a federal organism. That we must look for a union of the Christian Churches along these lines rather than on a unity of organization. I feel convinced. We are never going to agree on uniformity of organization. All history is a protest against such an idea. There was a time when the Church was united in an external organization. But it was a dreary time. It was a unity only in form, for beneath the surface there were confused divisions.

And then if we could obtain this mechanical unity of organization, the question remains would it be worth while? There might be some gains, but we would lose in other directions. There is at present a wholesome rivalry among the churches. Is there any question, for instance, that the progress of one branch of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America has reacted for good upon the other branches of that Church? Cannot the different Churches, belonging as they do to different families, with different traditions, accomplish more for the bringing in of the Kingdom of God along their own lines and according to their own methods and temperament?

Instead of organic union why not have a federation of churches the same as we have a federation of states? Organic union, even if it were possible, is not desirable for the reason that it destroys individuality and produces that uniformity which can be realized only in death. Federal union, on the other hand, leaves room for diversity, and diversity means life and power. Sects are the product of intellectual differences. They will continue to exist as long as men differ which will probably be forever. But there is no reason why these sects should not come together in the service of humanity—why, in other words, there should not be a federation of Churches for the bringing of the Kingdom of God the same as there is a federation of states for the government of the world? The glory of our Presbyterianism is that its unity is rooted in diversity. Spiritual unity and organic union are very different things, and it is only ecclesiasticism that wants to make all Christians wear the same uniforms. Church federation is a possible achievement; organic union, on the other hand, is a mechanical movement. More than that, it is a reactionary movement. The Church of the Middle Ages cherished this hope, and the verdict of history is an open page which one may read for himself. If the tremendous prestige of Christian Rome at a time when the authority of religion was the supreme authority and the dominant force in the lives of men was unable to compel church uniformity, there is little hope today for any organization that may be aspiring to regain the position she once held.

No, looked at historically, the idea of a united Church is an obsolete and exploded theory. It belongs to the Middle Ages when uniformity was worshipped as a God. The thing to remember today is not the reactionary call for "uniformity" but rather this—that increasing democracy and education, instead of producing uniformity, are more likely to produce a greater variety of thought and belief.

For an outsider to offer advice to the Southern Church on the question facing it at the present time in relation to organic union with other branches of the Presbyterian Church would be an impertinence. But in view of the principles mentioned in this article, and also in view of the tragic results of the recent union in Canada, the writer feels like saying to his Southern friends that it may be the part of wisdom to "make haste slowly." As the territory occupied by the Presbyterian Church of the U. S., and that occupied by the U. P. Church are geographically different, and as both Churches are working along their own lines without friction or overlapping, it might be well to learn things as they are until there is a clear call for closer union. Do not make "Union" an obsession simply because it is "in the air." Already you

Men-of-the-Church

Presbyterian Church in the United States

REV. J. E. PURCELL, D.D., Executive Secretary
HENRY GRADY BUILDING
ATLANTA, GEORGIA

REV. JOHN L. FAIRLY, D.D., Wilmington, N. C., Editor in Charge of Men-of-the-Church Department

SUMMER CONFERENCES

Massanetta Springs, Virginia

August 1-4

This conference will be put on under the auspices of the Men's Committee of the Synod of Virginia, and will be held simultaneously with the School of Music. Mr. F. L. Temple, of Roanoke, Virginia, is Chairman of the Men's Committee of the Synod of Virginia and is putting forth an unusual effort to secure a large delegation. Mr. J. A. Naff, field worker for the Department of Men's Work, will aid in making the conference a success.

The conference will open on Thursday evening, August 1st, at seven p. m., and will close on Sunday evening, August 4th. The program will consist of inspirational addresses by both prominent ministers of our church and laymen. There will also be a period each day devoted to the practical work of the Men-of-the-Church organization.

One of the principal speakers will be Rev. William M. Anderson, D.D., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Dallas, Texas. A leader in the men's work says of Doctor Anderson: "Doctor Anderson recently spoke in Atlanta on the Men-of-the-Church and it was conceded by those who heard him that it was the best address they had ever heard on the subject. He is deeply spiritual, and in addition, is vital in his presentation of his subject. This is interspersed with a very delightful sense of humor which always adds to the power of his message."

Another speaker will be Rev. H. W. Dubose, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Spartanburg, S. C. Doctor Dubose is well known at Massanetta Springs, and has been on the platform many times before. He is spiritually minded and the things of the Kingdom have first place in his messages.

Representatives of the Men's organizations in the Synod of Virginia which are doing effective work will speak and give demonstrations of the work done in their respective churches. This work will be directed by Mr. F. L. Temple, Chairman of the Men's Work Committee in Synod of Virginia, Mr. J. A. Naff, Field Worker of Department of Men's Work, Mr. M. M. Edgar, Chairman of Men's Work Committee, Lexington Presbytery. A demonstration of a Monthly Program will be given by the Men of the First Presbyterian Church, Portsmouth, Virginia.

Montreat, North Carolina

August 15-20

The conference which is to be held at Montreat, N. C., August 15-20 is under the Department of Men's Work of the General Assembly. The Conference last year was pronounced by many to be the most far-reaching conference on organization which has been held up to the present time. Plans this year will follow the plans of last year which were so successful. Each day there will be a practical demonstration of the work of the organization. It is only by this approach that the organization can become a reality to the men who must go back to the local church and put it on.

Rev. William F. Weir, D.D., Senior Secretary of Men's Work, Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., will be the leading speaker. Dr. Weir was at Massanetta Springs last year and made a profound impression. His eight addresses were declared to be one of the strongest series of addresses ever delivered in our church. The subjects of Doctor Weir's addresses will be:

Whither the Church; A Church for Men; The Ministries of the Church; Why Men Believe in the Church; Religious Movements among Men; Responsibility of Men for the Program of the Church; Men's Christian Fellowship; Men's Organizations and Their Activities; Jesus and His Way with Men; Christ's Victorious Church.

This conference will be held simultaneously with the Bible Conference. Rev. Robert E. Speer, D.D., will be one of the speakers at this conference so that the men will have the wonderful opportunity of hearing this world known speaker. Doctor Speer will speak on Sunday and Monday of the Conference.

A second speaker will be Rev. George W. Truett, D.D., the great Baptist minister of Dallas, Texas. Doctor Truett spoke at Montreat last summer and made a profound impression upon one of the largest congregations which ever assembled in the auditorium. Doctor Truett's name is known far beyond his own southland and beyond his own denomination. He will speak on Friday.

A third speaker will be Rev. John M. Vander Meulen. He will speak on Tuesday. Doctor Vander Meulen is too well known in our church to need introduction. All three of these speakers will bring messages eminently worth while and inspiring to the men. For them alone the Conference would be well worth while.

have the "Unity of the Spirit," keep it "in the bonds of peace." This at least is how it looks to an interested outsider.

Renfrew, Canada.

SUGGESTIONS FOR AUGUST

To the President—August is not an easy month to keep up enthusiasm unless you have a very open country. There it is likely to be you. Remember, however, that the lower the temperature this month, the harder it will be to bring the normal next month. Keep alive as best you can of the organization. If this is your best chance done that you can. More depends on the president than you think. As you go on to the organization.

To the Council—This meeting should be held ten days before the General Meeting. Close with prayer. The program, both educational and spiritual, is under the direction of the Chairman of the VII. Christian Social Service. Something new worked out which will drive the message home to the men. He might also plan an out-of-the-ordinary kind. If the Sunday School has a picnic get behind it and make it a success. The men at these picnics, and it would do the same with the boys.

The proper Chairman will arrange for a program of tithing and prayer life of the men, definitely and for the out-post mission work. Don't let this meeting with earnest prayer, and close with prayer. The secretary should keep the minutes neatly and neatly. The tasks assigned to the men be typewritten and definite.

To the Leader—This is the only program which will be responsible this year. It is not a program, and yet it is a vital program. There is no excuse for offensive war and always on the offensive. But war will never cease until war is inspired in the hearts of Christians. It is an opportunity to strike one blow again. Best material will appear in the church papers. Books are suggested at the end of this program.

To the Speakers—This program will be a matter of study and thought. It may be new subject to most of the men, but it will strike a responsive chord in their hearts. Make one man hate war you will have done your work. To talk peace does not mean patriotism, but patriotism of the very highest is glorious to die for one's country, but not to make a man die for one's country, but not to great deal. It is much better to live for it, and to cross to the men.

To the Group Leaders—Line up the men for the program for the month. It is not always men in the social activities; but after they really have a good time. It by far the best make them know each other. The program is under the direction of the Chairman of the Christian Social Service. Make it your aim to get the men lined up before the month ends.

OUR BOYS

Are you interested in boys? Here are some suggestions from "Men's Work News" which you can use.

1. Provide teachers for Boy's Bible Clubs.
2. Provide a Director of Boys' Work in each church or presbytery.
3. Provide Bibles for boys, meeting the minimum School requirements.
4. Provide competent leaders for boys' work, such as Pioneer, Tuxis, Scout, etc.
5. Serve as informed and interested co-workers promoting Boys' Work.
6. Send boys to summer camps, Church of the Boy Scout, etc.
7. Send older boys to summer conferences.
8. Enable boys to join local Y. M. C. A.
9. Arrange personal interviews, Big Brother, etc.
10. Provide recreational facilities for boys, floor, tennis court, athletic equipment, such as baseball, etc.
11. Conduct summer camps properly supervised.
12. Build cabin for boy's use.
13. Entertain boys at Father and Son, or other church occasions, luncheon at hotel, etc.
14. Provide prizes for approved lines of boys.
15. Encourage college and seminary students to assume some financial responsibility for a student.

PROHIBITION AND THE YOUNG LAND

Are You Aware of the Propaganda Parents Take Notice!

As a mother of three children, let me say to you and from the depths of a tender, loving heart, children are precious to us, and whether we are a line or not we are allowing vice and destruction to draw our paths in such a manner it will soon draw back in horror and exclaim. It is our duty to the future of these treasures today. For may be said, "all the forces of the Satan are at work," yet lethargy is the role we are playing if perchance one judges by results of a fifteen years old! What have you done to help men and women? You have been measuring the question strictly alone. Why so called church people remain silent on this question. The anti-prohibitionist is quick to point out a few church papers have lined up with the prohibitionists because they are afraid to offend the men a sympathy with this law. Tell it not in profess when we take upon our lips the ership in the great Household of God? only parasites clinging heavily to the live ers and doers as we pretend? It is now a s as Christians to see that the Volstead d, for Congress has made it a law. And r now to fold their hands and let it, as hers, go by the board. But shall we do this he terrible onslaught which whiskey and ers is bringing to us and our precious boys ou know, as I, the horrible things going ly and hourly, even in private homes, you our eyes and pray, "Lord have mercy!" rself if it is a neglected cause.

man can tell you many reasons why the ndment is a failure but as a public spirited ell you I am ashamed to know—not think e influence given to whiskey by my sex. his day forget the mighty impetus a wink wine in a private parlor gives to one who wards the law, finds comfort in the acts of Do we ask why woman has toppled from h, which man has, since the stone age, held ng light to the acts and thoughts of man? an see and without any magnifying glasses, e youth of today minus any leading light he defeat of the Volstead law will mean nfluence has faded from off the face of n America.

e do about it, you ask? We can pray if rayer. s never been a law of our country so as the Volstead law and the whiskey in- the only ones to be accused. A well or- of propaganda is at work day and night. to get every young man and woman on ll as they claim it can be handled more ng generation can just be made sympa- and the methods used are most demoral- are encouraged to take young girls out , then offer her a swig from their hip er it is done by even the best women of ay object at first—even claim she is in- a she will be persuaded it is all right. She ell her virtue, when under slight influ- t takes her to his den of vice. It is grow- nd bounds. What are you doing to save ? Are you guarding your own influence ave you talked to your child so that she et the world with her armor on ready for nd?

men—women—and every woman—it is high eeing the terrible influence being brought roy American Womanhood! chers sit quietly and let it go on until too passing and the teen age is the most pre- rable.

and Let This Terrible Vice Depart!
Janette Peyton.

THE NEW MISSION FIELD IN FLORIDA PRESBYTERY

Like many other Home Mission Presbyteries this Presbytery's apportionment from the General Assembly Committee in Atlanta has been steadily reduced. At one time our appropriation was $2,300. Then it was reduced to $1,800, and later it was further reduced to $1,500.

But with reduced appropriations the Presbytery determined at its last Fall meeting to take a long step in advance by placing an Evangelist in five adjacent counties in West Florida.

These counties are Wakulla, Franklin, Liberty, Gulf and Calhoun with a population of more than 27,000. This population is largely white people.

And as far as Presbyterianism is concerned it is almost destitute. In Gulf County with a population of 500, there are six members of our Church; in Liberty County with a population of 5,000, there are fourteen members; in Calhoun County with a population of 11,000, there are seven members; in Franklin County with a population of 5,000, so far as I know, there are nine members of our Church; in Wakulla County with a population of 6,000, there are no Presbyterians known to the writer.

In other words in a population of more than 27,000 we have three small churches with less than forty members.

Heretofore these Missionary Counties have been largely inaccessible, but that day is past. Now, State and County Highways penetrate the whole country and connect every important town and county seat; and at least three railways from the main line from Pensacola to Jacksonville serve this territory.

Having placed these facts before the readers of the Presbyterian Standard I seek an immediate correspondence with a strong man who would esteem it a real privilege to preach the Gospel and plant churches in all this large and promising territory.

Several million of dollars are being spent, at present, in making roads and building bridges in this part of our State.

The support for a good man will be entirely adequate. For further particulars, address Rev. Wm. E. McIlwain, Chairman of H. M. Pensacola, Fla.

AN APPRECIATION

David G. Wylie, D.D., LL.D., New York

I had the pleasure of attending the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church U. S., at Montreat, N. C., and it was, indeed, a remarkable Assembly of able and consecrated men.

As at Atlanta, I was again impressed with the thoroughness of the Stated Clerk, Dr. Leslie, who had all matters so arranged that the business of the Assembly was conducted with fine dispatch. The Moderator presided with dignity and fairness. I was deeply interested in the action of the Assembly looking toward union with the United Presbyterian Church, closer association with the Associate Reformed Synod, and closer co-operation and union with Presbyterian bodies. The discussions of Home Missions, Foreign Missions, Ministers' Annuities, Montreat Association, were illuminating.

As President of the Lord's Day Alliance of the United States I was heartily gratified with the action of the Assembly which commended the work of the Alliance, nominated Dr. R. F. Campbell for membership in the Board of Managers, and appointed a committee. We simply must not let the enemy steal away the weekly day of rest and worship, which is a benediction to a weary world.

The members of the Assembly were a fine group of able, earnest, Christian gentlemen, who treated strangers with true Southern courtesy. I was delighted to meet many old friends, among them Drs. Morris, A. S. Johnson, McPheeters, Hemphill, Sprunt, Smith, Vance, MacMillan, together with Dr. Sweets, Editor of the Christian Observer, and his honored brother. I regret that space does not permit me to mention many others. Montreat is a delightful spot and the new hotel is a model of architecture and a marvel of beauty. Great credit is to be given to Dr. Anderson.

I earnestly trust, and devoutly pray, that the Presbyterian Church of the Southland may have a prosperous year and that the blessing of God will rest upon the Assembly to meet at Charlottesville, Virginia, in May, 1930.

THE CHURCH AND WAR

The Presbyterian assembly, in session at Montreat last month, adopted the following:

The historic position of our Church is that the function of the Church is purely spiritual. We believe this principle should apply in time of war as well as in time of peace, and that the Church should never again bless a war or be used as an instrument in the production of war.

Just how well the Presbyterians would succeed in living up to their resolve if the country were to become involved in war in this generation, is a matter of speculation. The notion is that it would either be forgotten, or it would be said that an emergency had arisen that was not contemplated when the resolution was adopted, hence things would go on as usual. But without reference to their being able to live up to their resolution, it must be admitted that the fact of the adoption of a resolution like that by a prominent Church body is a distinct advance. Of course the churches are for peace, in theory, that is. Their teaching is based on that of the Prince of Peace. But heretofore, for all time, it has been the practice of the Church on each side of warring against nations to bless their own side and draft God to work on their side. How familiar we all are with it. Pulpits are often turned into recruiting stations and all who refuse to get excited about the war may not only be denounced as enemy sympathizers but as enemies of God Almighty. In fact the Church has, as a general proposition, more responsibility for promoting war than any other agency. Not so much that it didn't oppose the war, but that it made itself an agency for its promotion.

The idea of the Montreat assembly resolution does not mean that the influence of the Church should be exercised against war under all circumstances. That would be taking on too large a contract and one that would be inadvisable. But the idea is that the Church as a Church should stand hands off. The pastor might get outside and whoop up the recruits without enlisting himself, but the purpose of the Montreat utterance would be that he should keep himself and his activities severely outside his sphere as a pastor—if he could. At least attempt would be made to prevent the Church officially blessing a war or allowing its agencies to be used to promote it.

That is a distinct advance, whatever comes of it.—Statesville (N. C.) Landmark.

A DYING MEMBER

A story is told of a certain pastor who mourned over a backslider in his congregation, once a regular attendant at the prayer service, who for months had not been seen in the "upper room." Unable to stand it longer, at the close of one of the meetings in which the voice, formerly accustomed to lead in prayers, was sorely missed, the minister went straight to the man's home and found him sitting before the open fire. The absentee, somewhat startled by the intrusion, hastily placed another chair for his visitor and then waited for the expected words of rebuke. Had the rebuke been spoken, no one knows what the reply might have been, or what mistaken, yet lasting anger, might have been kindled. But not a word did the minister say. Taking his seat before the fire he silently took the tongs and lifting a glowing coal from the midst of its fellows, laid it by itself on the hearthstone. Remaining painfully silent, he watched the blaze die out. Then the truant opened his mouth to say: "You needn't say a single word, sir; I'll be there next Wednesday night."—John W. Inzer.

By appreciation we make excellence in others our own property.—Sel.

The family pew is the strength of the Church Assembly.—Fullerton.

Choose rather to punish your appetites than to be punished by them.—Maxim.

STATISTICAL SUMMARY OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH IN THE UNITED STATES FOR THE LAST FIVE YEARS

	1925	1926	1927	1928	1929
Members	17	17	17	17	17
Worshipers	90	91	91	90	92
Worshiping congregations	2,195	2,235	2,280	2,342	2,384
Worshiping churches	3,591	3,601	3,591	3,596	3,581
Worshiping societies	47	33	31	38	38
Worshiping homes	583	586	611	586	579
Worshiping schools	75	56	52	84	64
Worshiping kindergartens	86	83	66	81	77
Worshiping day camps	295	302	318	314	281
Worshiping missions	227	252	268	244	205
Worshiping Sunday schools	74	50	45	39	24
Worshiping Bible classes	36	35	39	39	41
Worshiping from other denominations	5	1	2	1	--
Worshiping dismissed to other denominations	--	1	2	--	--
Worshiping received from other denominations	31	16	25	33	19
Worshiping dismissed to other denominations	10	17	11	14	13
Worshiping deceased	38	38	37	23	33
Worshiping total	15,089	15,323	15,715	15,730	15,877
Worshiping families	16,184	16,521	17,146	17,390	17,579
Worshiping missions	24,200	21,948	21,024	19,647	20,177
Worshiping conferences	22,667	22,486	23,000	21,862	20,563
Worshiping participants	457,093	462,177	439,621	444,657	453,999
Worshiping received	15,532	11,255	10,582	10,010	9,881
Worshiping deceased	7,247	6,962	6,660	6,616	6,774
Worshiping School enrollment	411,653	417,569	430,285	431,065	437,094

CONTRIBUTIONS

	1925	1926	1927	1928	1929
Home Missions	$ 1,248,066	$ 1,411,058	$ 1,333,780	$ 1,663,068	$ 1,111,246
Foreign Missions	576,829	542,144	571,182	597,588	588,008
Education and Min. Relief	1,036,721	1,082,141	1,076,197	1,065,922	1,087,300
Training School for Lay Workers	347,889	343,776	332,888	325,114	371,648
Home Missions Institutions	--	--	23,597	25,283	23,223
Education	1,198,765	1,168,488	997,735	884,930	692,832
Relief	91,039	98,168	102,089	100,740	79,593
Other	24,201	28,349	22,173	20,737	19,575
Interest	397,263	385,421	437,902	403,628	388,549
Gifts	3,132,061	3,343,458	3,380,277	3,485,004	3,593,062
Expenses, etc.	6,261,279	6,394,346	3,489,593	3,496,017	3,378,309
Balance	--	--	2,955,495	3,325,167	2,735,893
Net	621,059	519,086	483,373	433,275	415,918
Total	$14,935,170	$15,216,435	$15,206,281	$15,826,473	$14,485,156

for Assembly's Training School prior to 1927 have been embraced under another cause. for Building Expense prior to 1927 have been included in Congregational Expenses. y's Home Missions received $29,994 special emergency Flood Relief Fund which is included in figure for 1928.

figures are not in every case the same as appear in the preceding tables, but are partly derived from Committees' Financial Reports.

capita gifts for the past year were as follows, based upon the whole number of members:

Gifts	$10.53
Expenses	21.30

capita for all causes $31.91

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPT.

Rev. W. A. Gamble, Pinetops, N. C.

EDITOR'S LOOKOUT

The West District of the Arkansas Christian Endeavor Union held a rally in the Presbyterian Church in Charleston, Ark., on Tuesday, June 3, with 126 young people and their leaders from eight Churches present.

An Intermediate Conference was conducted at 5:00 by Miss Viola Rockett, former State President. This was followed by an open forum in charge of Miss Mamie Gene Cole, director of Religious Education in the Fort Smith First Presbyterian Church. The afternoon program was closed with a pep session.

After the picnic-supper and an hour's intermission the evening service was held. Miss Hazel Garrett, District President, presided, Ruth Bevil, daughter of Rev. H. M. Bevil, pastor of the Charleston Church led the devotional service. Kathleen Mehl, of the Fort Smith First Presbyterian Church, who is District Quiet Hour Superintendent, spoke on "The Importance of the Quiet Hour."

The address of the evening was given by Miss Edna Browning, new Director of Religious Education in the First Christian Church, Fort Smith. Miss Browning is a former Secretary of the Georgia Christian Endeavor Union. She spoke on "The Crusade with Christ." One quotation which she gave was unusually thought-provoking. She said, "A writer in answer to a thank-you note which she sent him wrote, 'Do you know what responsibility is? Is it our response to God's ability.'" The rally closed with a Mizpah Circle.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPIC

C. G. A.

Sunday, July 7—Christian Builders of Our Nation.— Deut. 8:1-14; Heb. 11:23-27; 32-34, Heb. 12:1, 2.

Leader's Introduction

We have just celebrated what we call the birthday of our nation. We have sung patriotic songs, and watched parades, and looked wonderingly at fire-works, curiously and marvelously made. Picnics and gala festivities are in order on such occasions, and few of us let the day pass without thrilling because we are Americans. America would be a poor nation if her citizens did not thrill at being a part of her. Every nation must have that in order to live. But why are we proud of America? Is it because America is a wealthy nation? Is it because she has so many industries? Both of these may contribute to our pride, but let us go back to the beginning of America and see if we have anything to be proud of in the first builders of our nation.

The Pilgrims and the Puritans

America is a very young nation compared with the other nations of the world. Only a little over three hundred years ago the Pilgrims landed on the coast of New England—the first exiles to America for conscience's sake. We like to think that the ones who laid the foundation for America came here so that they might worship God as they pleased. The history of the Pilgrims and the Puritans quite overshadows the history of the industrial colonies which were founded earlier. We do not trace the history of America from those settlers who were sent but from those who came to America for liberty's sake. Just as the Pilgrims and the Puritans were striving to find the true way to worship God, so let us set as our goal the Kingdom of God and the true way to worship Him.

American Heroes

We read of numerous American heroes in our history books. The heroes of revolutionary times, like George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Patrick Henry, and Benjamin Franklin, and heroes of civil war times, like Lee and Jackson, and Lincoln and Grant. We remember heroes of war times more vividly than heroes of peace times, just as we remember doctors more vividly when we are sick than we do when we are well. Humanity is sick during war times and looks to its leaders, as doctors, to cure it. But we have more heroes of peace than we have of war heroes. We may not study about them in books, we may not know that they exist, but they are here just the same. Every one who stands for an uplifting ideal is a hero and a Christian builder of our nation.

Woodrow Wilson once said, "I would rather be defeated in a cause that will ultimately triumph than triumph in a cause that will ultimately fail."

"Praise we the peaceful men of skill
Who builded homes of beauty.
And, rich in art, made richer still
The brotherhood of duty."

Patriotism

What is patriotism? Of course, it is loving one's country. But loving one's country doesn't mean bragging about it. We enjoy sounding our own trumpet and bidding the world to look at our great wealth and power, just as a peacock enjoys strutting before the less elegant barnyard fowls. But let us take care and remember that true happiness comes to a nation, as to an individual, not through self-seeking but through right-doing. One danger in patriotism, its deadly enemy, is self-glorification. This does not make a nation great. It belittles it. Patriotism is love of the national good that the nation may serve the world.

America and the World War

Our patriotism has often concerned itself with the rest of the world. The Monroe Doctrine is one policy of which we are proud; and it, after all, is an unselfish bit of patriotism that secured for Latin America the right to grow in its own way without outside interference. We waged war for the Chinese during the Boxer uprising, for the Spanish subject people in 1898, and for the rights of all nations in 1918. Since then we have slumped into a selfish attitude and are inclined to let the rest of the world take care of itself. The America of the last ten years has not been a nation with a Christian policy. We are proud of those times when we were a Christian nation. Now that we are a selfish pagan nation, our patriotism should remind us of our love for all the world in 1918, and cause us to do our part that we may again hear the call, "Go ye into all the world!" But let us add "and preach the gospel (not America) to every creature."

PRESBYTERIAL REPORTS—1928-29
Synod of North Carolina

Albemarle

We feel that this has been the high peak year in Albemarle.

The September Conference was held in Wilson with a strong program, "Crusading With Christ" was our theme. Classes were conducted on Evangelism, World Peace, Christian Citizenship, Young People's Methods and the Honor Roll. Time was given for each delegate to take three of these classes. We had with us the President, Archie Williford.

The December meeting held in Washington was a missionary conference, stressing "Blue Ridge Academy" and "China." This was a time of fellowship just among ourselves. Reports were given on the local work which surprised the grown-ups.

The Spring meeting had for its theme "Personal Stewardship." The afternoon program was presented by young people. A campfire vesper service was held with Rev. T. R. Harnsberger as speaker. The closing thought at the night session was given by Rev. E. C. Lynch, of Wilson.

These three conferences were our guide posts. The loyal support and work not only of the young people, but the grown-ups have won for Albemarle the Honor Roll for the third year. We are proud of this but still prouder of the stand our young people were making for Christ in this church.

We are holding our first Presbytery conference at W. C. I., Washington, N. C., July 8-13.

Our membership is 190.

Total gifts, $178.28.

We got program material from the C. E. World, Program builder, Presbyterian Standard, and the Onward. Our local church work includes Sunday School, Prayer Meeting, and church ushers. Our outside church work is as follows: County home, jail, Christmas baskets, singing carols, services for shut-ins, sending flowers to hospitals, trays to sick, food and clothes to the needy, flowers and magazines are sent to county and mill people.

Georgia Johnson,
President.
Margaret Barnes,
Secretary and Treasurer.

Wilmington

The Wilmington Presbytery is organized into forty-one P. Y. P. L.'s, and four Christian Endeavors, with a total membership of one thousand and six.

We have been very fortunate in having a president who was an earnest worker and able to carry on the work to much advantage.

One of the many important works of our Council is the preparing of the activity cards on the program outline for the entire Presbytery. These activity cards are planned every three months and in such a way to include Worship, Instruction, Re-creation, and Service. Worship is to teach the young people to pray, instruction to study; recreation to play, and service to serve. We have the cards returned and in this way keep up with the work that is being done in the Presbytery.

Last year, June 25, 1928, we had a conference at White Lake. Councilors and delegates made up a total of 100, this number being all that could be accommodated. We had studies in Methods, Home Missions, Study of our Church, and Bible. These studies were taught by some of our select church workers.

We are going to have a like conference again this month, June 25, 1929. We haven't room to make it any larger, therefore, we are going to strive to make it better.

Last September we held six rallies. These rallies proved very successful in spite of bad weather conditions. Reports were given of the conferences and plans were made for future work.

On April 27, 1929, we held our fifth annual meeting. Stewardship was the theme for the meeting, and we intend to stress stewardship in our coming year's work. At this meeting we had some of the ablest leaders of the church. These were Dr. R. C. Long, of the Stewardship Committee, Doctor Worth from China, and Miss Margaret McQueen. Our young people are given a greater part of all our annual meetings, such as devotionals, model council meetings, recreation, etc. This meeting was the best ever held by the Wilmington Presbytery. We have doubled our membership for the Honor Roll, paid $20.00 on the Barium gift fund, and will complete our part of the Mamie McElwee Scholarship Fund before leaving the Davidson conference.

Norman Lewis, Vice-Pres.

Orange

At the beginning of the church year, April 1, 1928, the Y. P. L. of Orange Presbytery determined that they would put the young people's work in the Presbytery on the Honor Roll by March 31, 1929. They set their goal, and by faithful work had the joy of seeing that ambition realized. Not for a selfish motive in doing it did they pray but that the Master's work might be glorified and extended.

The work went beyond the 90 per cent rating of two-thirds of the active organizations. Several societies reached 100 per cent, a number between 90 per cent and 100 per cent the majority 90 per cent. The total rating is 92.6 per cent. The report is condensed under the principal heads of the Honor Roll of Worship, Instruction,

Recreation, and Service, and the following phasized.

Under worship we have 29 Prayer Banc rollment of 385, and a rating of 100 per cent prayer by practically every organization. of churches report its young people attendance services and daily Bible reading.

In our report under Instruction, we find 1,000 young people enrolled in study classes the Bible, Home and Foreign Missions Church doctrine, and courses in Leadership. We secured the attendance at our Young Conference and rallies of 500 boys and girls. In the presentation of programs much advanced work was shown in development, prayed, studied and worked, but through a department we have done some playing. 200 socials reported. Many of them preceded recreational programs.

Through service, the activities in the church have been many and varied both inside and church. We find young people assisting during 1928 in 28 D. V. B Schools conducted ment of 2,447 boys and girls; teaching in 8 having charge of music at night services books, conducting services at County Home and other things too numerous to mention. $1,275 has been contributed to various causes. P. L. presented the presbytery with a number of Training text-books for use in Leadership classes.

W. E. Anderson

Mecklenburg

Mecklenburg Presbytery has 24 Christian societies, two Young People's Leagues, 11 services, five organized classes and departments.

The benevolent gifts are $784.01. The Mecklenburg Scholarship contribution was $12.00, and Fund was $31.00.

Among the outstanding services rendered church are included decorating the church song books and rug for church, mowing acting as janitors and aiding with building. Services rendered outside the local church are in homes, presenting programs in giving special services, raising money for of missionary, and furnishing church bulletins.

Charlie I.

MEETING OF REPRESENTATIVE CHURCH COLLEGES

Delegates from Peace Institute, Flora McDonald College and Queen's met June 13 in the Hall to organize the Student Christian Association. Following officers were elected: President, J. C. Necker, of Peace; Vice-President, Mary J. Anderson, of Mitchell College; Secretary-Treasurer, Ray, of Queens; Corresponding Secretary, of Flora McDonald. The association meeting while the Presbyteries meet, and to solve problems of college life in relation to the Kingdom on the Campus.

INTERNATIONAL CHRISTIAN CONVENTION

Kansas City, July 3-8, 1929 Provisional Program

Youth Features

Kansas City is to be in every sense of the word an operative Youth convention. Christian youth churches are uniting to make it a success. of the Epworth League and other denominations, Sunday School groups, and other organizations are invited to register and participate on a basis as members of Christian Endeavor Societies on the main convention program will young men and young women from leading universities.

A special "high school convention" will be in junction with the main convention with addresses of particular interest to high school people.

An oratorical contest on the great theme, "The Sidelight with Christ,—World Peace, Christianity and Evangelism,—will be open to young people of every school age. Each contestant must have a preliminary contest in his own state.

Picked teams from intermediate societies and from a number of states, including Indian groups, will compete in a Bible contest."

In order to encourage the attendance of young people from all parts of the country, the City convention committee has offered a room and lodging in carefully selected private homes for a hundred or more young people. The young people receive this free entertainment must be recommended by the pastor of the church or some other official Secretary of the International Christian Endeavor Society, Boston, Mass. Cards of introduction issued by the General Secretary's office. It is hoped to place these delegates from all over the world in Kansas City.

Young people will preside at important sessions of the Resolutions Committee, and will be in the forefront in all convention activities.

Who Should Attend

All Christian young people and all leaders of young people, regardless of organization, are invited to register for and attend the International Christian Endeavor Convention.

All should come who need the inspiration and encouragement of Christian youth, or who seek to glorify Christ in service.

Directors of Religious Education, Sunday school officers, missionary society leaders, boys and girls, as well as young people's societies will find practical help at Kansas City. Within three hundred miles of Kansas City send not delegates but whole delegations. Delegates should register. The registration fee of $1.00 is to be paid to the official badge, souvenir program and to all convention sessions. Registration tickets for information should be mailed to the General Secretary, 41 Mt. Vernon St., Kansas City. Make checks and money orders payable to the International Society of Christian Endeavor.

Music

Music singing will be in charge of Homer Percy S. Foster, two of America's greatest voices. They will be assisted by a chorus of voices now being recruited and trained under the direction of Prof. John R. Jones. Mr. Rodeheaver will also lead conferences on "How to Lead Singing" and "Plan-ship Program."

Marion Talley will be the guest of the Monday evening, July 8, although her name has not yet been received.

Visual Education

Each of the denominations having Christian societies has been invited to set up an educational and missionary activities. There will also be provided for state Christian societies desiring it.

Educational exhibits will include material on Vocations, Missionary Education, Graded Labor, Community Service, College Christian Stewardship, Recreation, and other im-

Comprehensive literature exhibit will display the work of all publishers in the entire field of Chris-

Important place on the program. Societies will demonstrate carefully selected mind-pageants.

prohibition moving picture, "Deliverance," and prohibition. Several denominations are sending moving pictures on home and foreign mis-

Evangelism

To win young people for Christ will be the feature of the convention program.

Frederick A. Wallis, General Secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association, will bring a great evangesession the whole convention will be devoted to the discussion of the question, "How to Win Others For Christ?"

Before the main convention an outstanding feature will be a study period in the new Christian book, "Acquainting Youth with Christ."

Day, open-air evangelistic services will be held in every section of Kansas City. These meetings will be in charge of state delegations. It is hoped of the convention, hundreds of young people will be won for Christ and thousands trained and equipped for evangelistic services in their own churches.

Devotional Emphasis

Devotion in prayer and personal devotion is an important feature of International Christian Conventions. Kansas City will be no exception.

Morning quiet hour services will be held under the leadership of Dr. William H. C. S. pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, N. J. On Sunday morning a mammoth praise service will be held on the great square of the city facing the famous Liberty of each session a brief covenant period will be held by a praise service led by one of the speakers.

Services under the direction of the state leaders will be held each evening in the various hotel head-

Facing World Problems

Themes of World Peace, Christian Citizenship, Christian Fellowship, Church Relationships and the Missionary Enterprise will receive adequate attention, both in discussion and in platform addresses. Young people will be urged to face these issues squarely.

The Missionary Enterprise

A new vision of the scope and importance of the missionary enterprise through a challenging in-ter-pretation of the message of the Jerusalem Conference to come to Kansas City and through the efforts of churches throughout America is the purpose of the Kansas City Conven-

Interest in a comprehensive program of education, both in the young people's societies throughout the church, increased giving to the program of the denominations, service missions and a new vision on the part of the possibilities of life investment, are the Crusade with Christ as it will be in Kansas City.

Outstanding Speakers

One hundred men and women leaders in civic and social activities of America and foreign will serve on the program of the International Endeavor Convention to be held July 3 to 8, 1929.

Openness to the public, the Program Committee to announce speakers until definitely accepted, it may be said that at least international prominence are seriously invited to speak at Kansas City and their acceptances are hoped for if affairs of state and certain other circumstances make this possible. Even without these two outstanding speakers, the Kansas City program promises to be stronger than that of any previous International Convention.

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, known from coast to coast, and admired and loved by young people everywhere, will deliver one of the main convention addresses. James Kelly of Glasgow, General Secretary of the World's Sunday School Association for Europe and India, and President of the European Christian Endeavor Union, will bring a challenging message. W. A. MacTaggart of Toronto, an outstanding leader for Christian youth in the Dominion, will bring an inspiring address. Fred Ramsey, General Secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association, will deliver a stirring evangelistic message. Dr. A. E. Cory of North Carolina, former missionary to China, and one of America's foremost religious statesmen, will bring the missionary challenge to the convention. Hon. Frederick A. Wallis of New York City, formerly United States Commissioner of Immigration, and one of the country's most successful Christian business men, will speak to the convention on "How to Succeed." Senator W. E. Borah has consented to speak in a great citizenship demonstration on July Fourth.

It is hoped that Mrs. Francis E. Clark, beloved by Christian Endeavorers around the world, will come to Kansas City. Mrs. Clark will speak on the opening night of the convention and on several other occasions.

The Parade of Youth

On Thursday afternoon, July fourth, will be held the great Crusade of the convention. It is estimated that not less than twenty thousand Christian young people of Kansas City and from all parts of America will join in this demonstration.

Expenses to Delegates

Because "Kansas City 1929" is to be pre-eminently a youth convention, every effort has been made to keep expenses at a minimum. Satisfactory hotel accommodations can be secured for as low as $1.00 per night.

Railroad rates will be exceptionally favorable. Not only will the convention rate of a fare and one-half for the round trip be in effect from all points in the United States, but from many points even lower rates will be available. Full announcement of these special excursion rates will be made as soon as definite assurances are received from the railroads.

For those who wish to come by automobile, full information is available about routes, parking, etc. An abundance of camping facilities are available in and about Kansas City and information will be gladly sent on request.

Vacation Tours

Under the auspices of the International Society of Christian Endeavor and several of the larger state unions attractive vacation tours have been planned to follow the convention. All of these tours will be personally conducted. They are offered at a minimum cost.

To the Shepherd of the Hills Country. A delightful fellowship vacation in the heart of the Ozarks at a total cost of less than $25.

The Grand Canyon and the Pacific Coast with side trip to Alaska if desired.

Scenic Colorado. Colorado and Yellowstone National Park.

New York, Washington and Boston.

Attractive literature on any or all of these vacation trips may be secured free from the Travel Department, 41 Mt. Vernon St., Boston, Mass.

BOOKS

"Behind the Scenes." Dr. Chester's new book, should be in every Southern Presbyterian home, and should be read by every Southern Presbyterian, as the stirring story by himself of one of the best loved leaders of our church; and by every friend of Foreign Missions as a record of pioneering days in the movement by a church that has become one of the foremost missionary churches of the world.

The book is fascinating in its style. You cannot lay it down, once you have started. My wife declined to be interrupted for anything until she had turned the last page. You can see the "old war horse" plowing his way on every page.

Dr. Chester's personality speaks in every line he has written. The charm of the book is the human element that has been likewise the irresistible charm of the man in his forty years of missionary soldiering.

How this work has grown during these years of poverty, struggle, trial, and sacrifice! It amazes one who does not know. It is a romance of adventure and achievement.

Dr. Chester began his work as Secretary in 1893. The Executive Committee was moved to Nashville in 1889. In 1888 the total receipts of the Committee for Foreign Missions were $96,054, and we had 66 missionaries in the field. Last year our receipts were $1,663,067, and we have 434 missionaries in the field.

Where can you match it? The growth has been little short of miraculous. But even this is surpassed by the success with which God has crowned the labors of our missionaries in the fields.

Let China, the most difficult field, furnish an illustration.

In 1890, at the second Missionary Conference in China, the total number of China Protestant Christians was 37,287. Today it is over 400,000.

The people who are disposed to be critics of the work would do well to exchange their hammer for a horn.

In all this, Dr. Chester has had a share. He does not brag about it in his book. In fact, he seems so taken up with some of the difficulties he encountered that he

The Department of Woman's Work, Presbyterian Church, U. S. 270-277 Field Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

SYNODICAL PRESIDENTS OF THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

- Alabama—Mrs. J. F. Hooper, 610 Mabry St., Selma, Ala.
- Appalachia—Mrs. F. B. Kegley, Wytheville, Va.
- Arkansas—Mrs. Walter Wilson, Arkadelphia, Ark.
- Florida—Mrs. W. G. Thompson, Jr., 3215 Obispo St., Palma Ceia Park, Tampa, Fla.
- Georgia—Mrs. E. G. Abott, 1315 Eberhart Ave., Columbus, Ga.
- Kentucky—Mrs. H. P. Cooper, Lebanon, Ky.
- Louisiana—Mrs. Charles L. Bodin, Box 79, M. R. A., Lake Charles, Louisiana.
- Mississippi—Mrs. J. S. Hicks, Holly Springs, Miss.
- Missouri—Mrs. Walter Craven, 223 Frances St., Excelsior Springs, Mo.
- North Carolina—Mrs. G. V. Patterson, Gastonia, N. C.
- Oklahoma—Mrs. Wilbur Garvin, 611 Euclid, Lawton, Oklahoma.
- South Carolina—Mrs. Parker Connor, Edisto Island, South Carolina.
- Tennessee—Mrs. J. F. Forsythe, Bethel Springs, Tenn.
- Texas—Mrs. J. W. Culver, Texas Military Academy, San Antonio, Texas.
- Virginia—Mrs. C. R. Vaughan, 319 Mountain Ave., Roanoke, Va.
- West Virginia—Mrs. J. McD. Lacy, Elkins, W. Va.

WILL YOU BE THERE?—MONTREAT, N. C.

Presbyterial Presidents' Conference—9:00 A. M., Wednesday, July 10

Seventeenth Annual Meeting Montreat Training School for Auxiliary Leaders—July 10-18, 1929

Program Committee—Mrs. John Bratton, Chairman; Miss Janie W. McGaughey, Dean of the School; Mrs. J. W. Culver, Chairman of W. A. C.

Program Features

- Morning:
- 8:40-9:00, Meditation—Miss Janie W. McGaughey.
- 9:00-9:50, Class Room Period.
- 10:00-10:50, Class Room Period.
- 11:00-11:50, Bible Hour—Studies in Romans—Mrs. E. L. Russell, (Popular Credit Bible Class).
- 11:50-12:05, Song and Announcements.
- 12:05-12:30, Open Period.

Afternoon:
Rest and Study Period.
Special meetings as arranged.
(State and Executive Committee meetings—Friday, July 12).

7:00, Vesper Services—Home and Foreign Missionaries will speak.

7:45, Song Service led by Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. White.

8:00, Evening Service.

Wednesday—Enrollment of Classes, Opening Message by Dr. D. Clay Lilly.

Thursday—Annual Meeting and Reception.

Friday—Foreign Mission Night—Dr. Darby Fulton.

Saturday—Pageant.

Monday—Home Mission Night—Rev. P. D. Miller.

Tuesday—Message from the Moderator—Dr. Wm. Ray Dobyns.

Wednesday—Closing Message—Dr. D. Clay Lilly.

Sunday Services—11:00 a. m.—Dr. Henry Sweets; 8:00 p. m.—Dr. Joseph R. Sevier.

The Faculty of Training School

- Mrs. S. H. Askew, Normal Bible (A and B).
- Mrs. Jesse B. Hearin, Missionary Education (C).
- Mrs. J. W. Culver, Woman's Auxiliary (A).
- Rev. Geo. Belk, Church History and Doctrine; Personal Evangelism.
- Mr. Edward D. Grant, Normal Missionary Education (A and B).
- Mrs. J. F. Hooper, Auxiliary Methods (B).
- Mrs. R. M. Pegram, Normal Woman's Auxiliary and Methods (A and B).
- Mrs. C. S. Shawhan, Parliamentary Law (A) (B).
- Mrs. Crosby Adams, Hymnology.
- Miss Eva Cavers, Missionary Methods for Children.
- Dr. D. Clay Lilly, World Peace.

PLAN NOW TO BE WITH US

For accommodations address Mr. A. R. Bauman, Montreat, N. C.

GREENVILLE BIRTHDAY PARTY

In commemoration of the seventeenth anniversary of the Woman's Auxiliary, the local Auxiliary of the Greenville Presbyterian Church entertained its members and friends at a Birthday Party on Monday evening, May 20th. A devotional period was held by the pastor, Rev. W. S. Harden, following which "Our Neighbor's Need" in the form of a pageant was attractively presented. Those taking part in the play were Mrs. Shelby Beard as The Virgin Mary, Miss Georgia Johnson, Mexican Womanhood and Mrs. Chas. Horne as The Women's Auxiliary. A delightful social hour followed, during which a lovely birthday cake was cut and served with iced punch. A splendid offering for the Mexican schools was made. On the next Sunday night, the pageant was repeated in the Church before a large congregation.

Mrs. J. M. Hobgood, Correspondent, Greenville, N. C. Albemarle Presbyterial.

gives the glory side of the campaign but a passing glance. There are others, however, who do not forget, and who pray that the last years, quiet though they be in the beautiful groves of Montreat, may still be shot through with the accent of a life that has fought a good fight.

James I. Vance.

Nashville, Tenn.

LDREN

AIR TRAIN

pulled his watch out of his pocket at the time. It was dark in the morning. There was no way he could get to Long Beach for the glider races and the airplane. But how can you fly when you are not an aviator? At his watch back into his pocket away from the air-traffic. As he did so, a young boy in the hangar close by, dressed in an aviator's uniform, with the wings up over his helmet. In a flash he had a telegram.

"An aviator isn't all that it's cracked up to be," he said to Jack. "Send a telegram! How do they get 'Silver Wing' down to Long Beach before two o'clock this afternoon?"

"I replied Jack. 'Fly her like she was an airplane. But it's not a glider, and gliders don't have an engine.'"

"I haven't," answered Jack. "I proposed to go without engines and I've flown them, a little bit about them."

"Mr. Wilson, aren't you?" asked the aviator. "I've heard about you. You're down at the Rodeo?"

"Same fix as you are," answered Jack. "I haven't any way to get down in time for the races."

"Down there, all right," answered the aviator. "If it was an aeroplane, it would be a glider! It's impossible to fly a glider?" queried Jack.

"I looked at him in surprise. 'Glider?'

"I'm sitting on the rear of a small boat which is hitched to a big one."

"I never thought of it. Have you thought of it?"

"I don't see any other way," answered the aviator was silent.

"I have a new idea that had been in the young boy. At length he said 'I'll tow 'Silver Wing' in my aeroplane, as you suggest. I want you to ride in the tow behind her steady. Will you do that at all times for an adventure and eager at the present Long Beach, jumped at answered.

"I'll get the glider out of the hangar while you are getting the tow line and a helmet, I'll fix it so they were ready for the race. A crowd of curious spectators gathered to see this unusual sight in the air. Some of them were shouting saying that it could not be done and that there was sure to be a crash. Most of them were interested.

"I called Rod, leaning out so that he could look back over his shoulder in the pilot's seat of the glider. He gave the cheerful answer. 'Let's give a sign to the ground and twirl the propeller with a flag that all airports have. Then, as the plane slowly descended the field, he worked the controls.

"I began to realize that I was in the air, life would be comfortable. As the plane descended the field trying to get down to lift itself and its tow line, the Silver Wing hung on behind to the rear of an auto-glider and lunging so much that Jack's skill to keep it from crashing at length the plane left the glider after it, and that was the worst of the flight.

"I had been ninety minutes in the air along at one hundred miles an hour, Jack began to wonder what would happen to him if the rain tried to make a landing. He thought of it, the more he thought that the result would be the Silver Wing. A glider with a 'soft' landing, and this was hooked to the tail and powerful plane. It came down at the earth below

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color.)

BROWN-haired Teddy and YELLOW-haired Susie May are playing in Susie May's RED sand box. The sand is light YELLOW. There is a big RED and YELLOW striped canopy over the sand box.

"Let me put this RED banner on your BLUE house, Teddy!" says Susie May.

"And I must set this RED chimney on it, too!" says Teddy, holding the chimney in his hand. Teddy wears a BLUE sun-suit with a RED band about the waist and RED piping about the legs, arm-holes and neck. His shoes are YELLOW.

Susie May wears a light PURPLE dress bound with ORANGE-color (use RED and YELLOW mixed) tape about the sleeves and neck. Her slippers are BLACK.

The sky is light BLUE and the grass is GREEN, so are the little shutters on the house. The banner has a YELLOW staff and ball at the top. The top of the house is GRAY (use BLACK lightly).

Both children have PINK (use RED lightly) cheeks and RED lips. Teddy's arms and legs are a trifle PINK, too.

You can color the border of this picture dark BLUE and the lettering ORANGE color.

him. Long Beach was directly beneath the two flyers, and the people already crowding the air port were gazing up in wonder at the sight of the first air train that they had ever seen. Some of them knew enough about airplanes to wonder how they were going to land, but most of them thought only of the novelty. Suddenly all of them were startled to see the glider suddenly fall away from the leading plane and drop nose first through the air.

What had happened!

None of the spectators knew—but Jack Wilson knew what had happened, and so did aviator Rod Kennedy.

The tow line had broken!

It had rubbed against the frame of the aeroplane and worn itself away, and as a result, Jack Wilson was seven thousand feet high in a glider, with a heavy rope hanging down from its nose to throw it completely off balance!

"Jump! Jump!" yelled Rod from his seat in the motored plane. But his advice never reached the ears of the boy who now alone in the Silver Wing. He was too busy trying to put the glider on an even keel, so that he could coast it safely to earth, in spite of the rope. He did not consider jumping, even though he knew that the parachute would save him. He knew too much about gliders and too proud of his ability to handle them to give up so easily.

Therefore he remained in his seat, and carefully moved the controls until he was out of the nose dive and steady. He could feel the pull of the rope, and knew that he would have to allow for it in landing. He could see Kennedy quite close to the ground and about to make a safe descent, so he knew that the leading plane had not suffered from the mishap. Encouraged by this, he worked his controls with a calm, steady hand, and soon joined the aviator at the free end of the Long Beach airport.

As he jumped out of the glider, he was met by Mr. Rawson, the owner of the Silver Wing.

"My boy!" he said. "That was the best landing I have ever seen. I want you to race the Silver Wing in the flights this afternoon. Think you can do it?"

"Yes, sir," answered Jack. "I do."

And he did. Mr. Rawson, who was delighted to see how Jack handled the Silver Wing in the forced landing, was more than delighted when his new pilot won the glider race and brought back the first prize. At the end of the day Mr. Rawson asked the young boy to go with him to the airplane factory. When they arrived, Rod Kennedy was there also.

"Now, whose idea was it to tow the Silver Wing down to Long Beach?" asked Mr. Rawson.

"It was his idea," said Rod, nodding his head toward Jack.

"Well," said the airplane builder. "It is an idea that is worth a lot of money. We have been wondering for years how to land mail at a city without stopping the mail plane. This towing scheme solves the problem. In the future, not only mail but also passengers will drop off at any point by simply releasing a glider from the rest of the 'train.' Now, Jack, are you interested in being an aviator?"

"Yes, sir."

"Very well. I am going to send you away to get your training as a flyer, and when you come back—well, by that time, we'll have our first rail 'air train' ready to take the air, and somebody has got to be the engineer!"

JUNIOR CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

- | | |
|------------------------------|----------------------------|
| Vertical | Horizontal |
| 1—Baby's bed | 1—Dress |
| 2—Rowing implement | 5—Moved swiftly |
| 3—Stumpy branch | 6—Homeless street wanderer |
| 4—Selected | 8—Product of certain trees |
| 7—Insect | 10—Present |
| 9—Beverage | 12—Falseness |
| 11—Exclamation of impatience | 13—Jarred |

Fractional Month

Add together—
 2-5 of a sumptuous repast
 3-8 of a Belgian city
 1-7 of one of the United States
 2-3 of a grain
 and find the name of a month.

Fun For Little Folks

A few of the pictures which are printed in the Standard weekly on this page are being published in loose-leaf pamphlet form. Each pamphlet contains twelve different pictures to be colored by the little folks with crayon or paints.

These pamphlets will be ideal for use in Daily Vacation Schools, Sunday Schools and the nursery of the home. The little folks will enjoy coloring the pictures and it will furnish a fine medium for the teacher or mother to instruct their children in the art of drawing and the value of color.

PRICES (Cash with Order)

100 Books	-----	$7.00
50 Books	-----	4.00
25 Books	-----	2.25
10 Books	-----	1.10
5 Books	-----	.60
1 Book	-----	.15

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD CHARLOTTE, N. C.

God's word. His preaching to us was by simplicity, earnestness and faithful-We feel that the church has been much efforts among us.

Laggatt, of Salisbury, N. C., directed which added much to the services. June 16 was a most delightful day in venue Presbyterian Church, Charlotte. F Newell, who recently returned from a m by the Men's Bible Class of Haw- odist Church, was with us in our eve- and gave a very entertaining account of he Bible points visited, stating many in- ts which establish the records in the these places. All pronounced it the best yer heard on Palestine. A nearly packed d with almost breathless silence for an ning worship the pastor, Rev. W. W. but the names of four received by letter profession by the session that morning. of a young married couple received that given the rite of baptism and was en- tized non-communicating member. The in welcoming these members arose and e the tie that binds our hearts in Chris- osed with a prayer by the pastor for g upon this union and Christian fel-

First—On June 3rd fifty-three counsel- ing people of the First Presbyterian for their annual camp-conference at Nine days were spent in an intermingled gious and athletic. director, all of whom e be the best camp and camp program ple ever had.

F. C. Symonds.

Presbyterian Church, Lowell, R. 1—During May this church had the pleasure of isiting ministers who brought inspiring v. F. M. Kincaid, of Endora, Ark., and mpbell, of Pratt City, Ala.

ning of June the 4th the Gaston County deavor held its usual quarterly meet- ingful new Presbyterian Church at Mt. ing the meeting a banquet was held in m of the church.

at 8 o'clock the meeting was called to ss transacted, new officers elected and r which the Senior Christian Endeavor h having won the loving cup in February necessitated their putting on a model deavor program. The subject of it was ght of the World." Each one who en- program is due commendation for the ick they acquitted themselves.

cup was again awarded this society for ey have sent two delegates to Davidson 's Conference which meets in June.

Woman's Auxiliary gave the Auxiliary ry. A pageant was given by members ary. A generous contribution was made bls in Mexico, after which refreshments and a social hour was enjoyed.

ary is studying the book of Luke and ere present at the June meeting had a hearing Miss Alletta Plank, a Bible endersonville, N. C., give a fine exposi- th chapter.

There is a marked increase in attendance at Sun- day School over last year and renewed interest shown in all activities of the church. One very inter- esting feature in this work, is the number of visitors seen from time to time at the services.

Durham, Fuller Memorial Church—Sunday, June 9, 1929, was a happy time for the congregation of the Fuller Memorial Church, when the building erected in 1924, was formally dedicated to the service and wor- ship of God. Rev. David H. Scanlon, D.D, pastor of the First Church, Durham, preached the sermon and assisted the pastor, Rev. Ralph S. Carson, in the dedi- catory service. The splendid choir of the First Church furnished the music for the occasion.

This is another marked step forward in a work that had its inception more than thirty-six years ago when Mr. Thomas B. Fuller and Mr. W. H. Hanks, two consecrated members of the First Church, started an afternoon Sunday School in the eastern part of the city. Their labors were fruitful, and on September 26, 1909 the Edgemont Church was organized with 75 members, and the Rev. Carl Barth was installed as the first pastor. The second pastor was the Rev. K. L. McIver. In 1921 the third and present pastor took up the work. Immediate steps were taken looking to a new building, for which Mr. Fuller had set aside a fund of $14,000. The interest from this with contribu- tions by the congregation and from friends brought the total to $24,000 in 1924, when the building was erected at a cost of $31,000 with all equipment, Leav- ing a debt of $7,000. Mr. Fuller died in 1923. As a tribute to him the name of the church was changed from Edgemont to Fuller memorial. With the aid of the First Church and other interested friends, par- ticularly Mr. Jno. F. Wily and the three sisters of Mr. Fuller, Mrs. Kennedy, Mrs. Long, and Mrs. Huske, the final payment on the debt was made in April, 1929, after four and a half years.

Since the organization in 1909, 535 members have been received into the church. Of this number 232 have been received during the present pastorate with a total of $63,500 contributed for all purposes. The membership is now 193, with four elders and seven deacons. The future is bright with promise and pastor and people are facing it confidently, believing that the blessing of God will continue to rest upon their labors; for in the face of what seemed to be over- whelming odds the pastor has led his people forward to this successful conclusion, and we would give all the praise to God.

Ralph S. Carson, Pastor.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Ebenezer—On Sunday, June 9, 1929, Messrs. Chas. L. Torrence, Thomas W. Jackson, and Erwin Caroth- ers were ordained and installed as ruling elders of this church.

Bethel Presbytery—The minutes of Bethel Presby- tery have been printed since 1852, but for some reason they were not filed in the archives of the Pres- bytery. The written minutes are complete. The Pres- bytery is seeking to complete its file of the printed minutes. Many ruling elders formerly kept their minutes and some of these have been relegated to attics. Persons having any of the minutes of Bethel Presbytery prior to 1900, will confer a great favor on the Presbytery by sending them to the Stated Clerk, Rev. John C. Bailey, Rock Hill, S. C.

Greenville—The next stated meeting of Enoree Presbytery will be held in Union First Church at Union, S. C., on October 1st at 11 a m.

Chester, Purity Church—The pastor will be away all this week through next Sunday at Clio, S. C., hold- ing a meeting at the Presbyterian Church there.

ALABAMA

Tuscaloosa Presbytery met in special session in Selma, Ala., on June 21. The pastoral relation between Rev. C. E. Green and the Marion Church was dis- solved missed to the Presbytery of Genessee, U. S. A. R. E. Fulton, S. C.

FLORIDA

Gainesville—On evening recently in the Presbyte- rian Church here the prayer meeting group was mark- ed off by the minister into four groups of even num- ber. There happened to be nineteen for each group, with three over for the last one. These groups were named for the four Gospel writers: Matthew, Mark, Luke, John.

These groups were told by the minister to accrue to themselves numbers by inviting new members, old and new, to read the four Gospel stories during the ensuing four weeks. That is, the first week all who would read Matthew, whether or not he belonged to some other group; the second week all were to read Mark, the third Luke, and the fourth John. By this method some of the members of each group would read all four books.

It was announced that all who read all four of the Gospel stories during the period would be entitled to vote at the last meeting on their favorite hymns.

On each Wednesday evening after the service, re- ports were made. The number of original members, the number of new members, and the number of chapters read were reported and tabulated—the re- port being made by the "Captain" of each group ap- pointed for the purpose, and compiled by a young man who kept the record for the entire period.

The spirit of rivalry—just enough to "Give spice to the cake"—entered into the contest—if such it can be called—though there was not enough to overbalance the good resulting from the reading. One lady whose time, she confessed, was not fully occupied read the book of Matthew five times during the week assigned for that book; and she would have done likewise with the other three had not something come to give more occupation to her hours. The entire period was mark- ed by greater interest in the prayer meetings.

The study of the life of each author was made by the minister the subject of the succeeding meetings: first, "Matthew the Publican," second, "The Lion of St. Mark," third, "Luke the Beloved Physician," fourth, "John the Beloved Disciple"—themes which the minister, in a more or less informal way, made most interesting.

At the end of the period the final report showed: Members who read the entire four books, 37. Entire number of chapters read, 5,238.

Average attendance of reporting members, 102. This special arrangement proved one of profit, and certainly tended to deepen appreciation of the lives of the authors of the Life of Christ.

SIFERN A Select School Preparing Girls for the Land of the Sky Leading Colleges

Small classes, individual attention. Piano, voice, harmony, art, home economics. Handsome new brick gymnasium. Physi- culture, horseback riding, golf, outings at Camp Greystone. For catalog, ss PH R. SEVIER, D.D., President, Box S, HENDERSONVILLE, N. C.

LYNCHBURG COLLEGE SENIOR COLLEGE FOR MEN AND WOMEN

Membership in Southern Association of Colleges Reasonable—For Catalog and full information write to WINDLEY, President Lynchburg, Virginia

PEACE INSTITUTE Raleigh, North Carolina

OWNED by the Presbyterians of North Carolina

COURSES OFFERED: (1) College courses for first and second year work; (2) Preparatory courses; (3) Special courses in Art, Music, Home Economics and Commercial subjects.

ACCEPTED BY: (1) The North Carolina State Department of Education; (2) All colleges and universities in North Carolina. Admitted by many colleges without this state.

FEATURES: (1) Individual attention to students; (2) Limited number of students; (3) Intimate home surroundings; (4) Highly trained faculty; (5) Wholesome religious atmosphere. (6) Modern equipment.

Register Now for Fall Session of 1929-1930 For catalogue, book of views and other literature, write to William C. Pressly, President, Peace Institute, Raleigh, N. C.

"THE GREAT DIFFERENCE"

Rev. R. P. Richardson, of our Taichow Station, China, in a recent letter recounts several interesting conversations he had with Chinese people whom he met here and there. Here is a paragraph from one of his letters:

"One more conversation. This time a Chinese mechanic delivered himself thus, 'I am not a Christian, but I have been to Church a number of times and at Wusih I have seen something of the work of your Gospel. Our priests are always wanting something, trying to get something, but you people are always trying to give people something. This is a great differ- ence between our religion and yours.'"

MAKING MEN— Not Money

Our aim is to develop the character through the constant teaching of Chris- tian principles; to develop the body through healthful out-door sports; to de- velop the intellect through thorough, in- dividual instruction. We offer a four- square education for your boy at a sur- prisingly reasonable cost. For catalogue write Col. A. H. Camden, President.

HARGRAVE MILITARY ACADEMY CHATHAM, VA.

"UP IN THE AIR"

PINNACLE INN

COOLEST—By official weather report Banner Elk is cool- est town in North Carolina.

HIGHEST—The Appalachian Mountains have no higher fireproof hotel.

RESTFUL—All modern conveniences, excellent table fare, and beauty of surroundings offer unusual advantages for a QUIET RESTFUL VACATION.

For rates and illustrated folder address Manager,

Pinnacle Inn, Banner Elk, N. C.

STORY

WALKING DISTANCE

When young James McDonald finished his seminary course and was ready to preach, there were several tempting courses open to him. For he was a lovable and a brainy fellow, and any church, so his friends thought, would be proud to see him in its pulpit. Therefore, it was a shock to all except those who knew him most intimately, when he chose a remote and isolated mountain community for new parish.

"They are my own people," he said, with his winning smile which used all of his wide mouth and most of his bony face. "They're Scotsmen, many of them, just gone crooked and gone down, for lack of someone to show them the old way of the Lord, away off there in their glens."

To his friends he would add, thoughtfully deliberate, "That life appeals to me. It's the same kind of country my Master was brought up in. I'm curious to know how a fellow would fare who should try his best to live as He did. Physical surroundings should help. I'm not asking for greatness; only to walk alongside of Him." And he put his long legs in motion, and set his rugged face toward the hills, with a bulging knapsack on his back, and a battered trunk to follow by freight.

In that far-off valley to which he went, he settled himself in two rooms above a blacksmith's shop at the village crossroads. And looking about at the goods-box furniture he had made, and looking out to the complete exquisiteness of the view hung within the window-frames on his walls, he shook his head at himself disapprovingly. "Too much, too much!" he muttered, and muttered it again each time he made himself a cup of coffee on his spirit-lamp or took down a book from his rough shelf. "He probably didn't have coffee; must have had very few books."

But in that far-off valley, he soon cut out his work, and that gave him immense satisfaction. "Same as His!" For the young people, that is, the "young-uns," including the least of these, became his particular charge.

The children of every age, including the child-hearted, flocked to him. For he knew how to laugh, and how to play. And he was gifted in the hands. Though his gaunt face had the broad serene forehead of the steady thinker, his hands were the supple square but padded in the palm, long-fingered workmen of a master craftsman. They seemed to claim a brain of their own, so quick they were, for instance, to catch a baby who stumbled running after the olders, so tender to support the elbow of grannies wearily hobbling, so clever at handling a bat or whittling a ship, so mighty for swinging an axe against the great trees. All these things he did, because he loved to do them and they kept him fit, and because they brought him into the company of the young and the young-hearted of his flock.

"The newly-made," he would say, "are the hope of this parish. I can't do much for the older folk, but bury them. I'm very glad to do that." For the older folk had a shell on like a mud-turtle's, hides like alligators or rhinoceroses, whichever is the firmer, spines like porcupines, in short—burying was by far the best treatment for them. As much as the children loved him, so much, or nearly as much, did the older folk frown upon him. They were suspicious of a parson who beat no dust out of the moth-eaten pulpit cushion, no pages out of the great ancient Bible which rested upon it; and who read from that same old Bible in a gentle voice of enjoyment, as one takes a long drink of cool water on a hot day. Also, they were jealous of their old-time rights, as certain pernicious-complexioned practices were named among them, which had not been disturbed, by law or gospel, for years.

"What you want," said James one day to Duncan Campbell, a surely so-considered pillar of the so-called church, "is an exhorter, to shout aloud on Sunday, and attend strictly to his own business the rest of the week. Well, I'm willing to let out a few hoots and a holler or so, when I can remember to. But I want to tell you now, I'm doing that latter thing, attending to my business and His, and shall continue in the same." And Duncan Campbell actually smiled, for James had hit another nail on the head.

"You've got a minister, that's all," added James McDonald quietly, "trying to walk alongside of Him, Whose I am and Whom I serve. And if you bring anything to church in your pocket next Sabbath, more dangerous than the dir-r-ty nickel you put into the collection basket, I'll tell Him about it, standing up there in the pulpit. We need a new church," he finished casually, but still crisply businesslike. And Duncan the businessman gave him a half-admiring glance. Possibly he smelled heather on the old hills of home, and possibly the smoke of future battles. But he offered no assistance, scarcely the sound of a reply, as he flapped the reins over his two great black horses.

The church in which James preached looked like a dilapidated goods-box, surrounded by the fresh green corn-fields and shaded by its luxuriant protecting chestnut trees,—a lodge in a garden of cucumbers, thought James, would have been kept in better repair. And, "We must have a church," he said so often that his henchmen, the young people, took it up as a slogan. They began to save for it, along with their minister.

Now, to eke out his almost invisible salary as a mission pastor, McDonald had a carpenter shop of his own beside the smithy, in a lean-to which he and the children cleaned out with enthusiastic thoroughness. At the bottom of the dirt was a forty-year-old hoop-skirt, brought to the valley as a bride, and which figured in many a dramatic costume scene thereafter.

"Carpentering's food and drink to me," he told his young helpers. "Same trade as His. I just work along side of Him." Here he made not only plain and solid furniture for those who would pay his modest prices, but when he could purchase the time for it from his exacting conscience, he loved best to toil over the exquisite carving he had learned to do, oak and maple chests and settles and such, of old-world patterns. And here to the shop the children came, to watch and help and even learn, to laugh and joke with the best laughter and joker in their acquaintance.

"You're like Jesus," said Mary Campbell, of the blue-bell eyes and the wild-rose cheeks, she who kept her father's bare cabin neat and taught in the barer district school up the hollow. And McDonald perked his head round to look at her with shining eyes. "Preacher and carpenter. And—" she frowned thoughtfully, and brought it out, "blesser. And I know you could cure folks better than ol' Doc Diggs." For she had seen his long fingers handle bandages and cleanse wounds. "I think," Mary's eyes looked to the hills and her face reflected their sunset glow, "I almost think you could make a dead person live." James smiled at that, and made a specially fine shaving curl for a waiting applicant.

"Well, no, Mary. Only the Lord can—that, and will. 'Because I live, ye shall live also.' That's what He says." And that peculiar look and turn of the head which were scarcely peculiar any more to the children accompanied his words.

ORIENT FLOUR

Its Whiteness Denotes Its Purity

MOUNTAIN CITY MILL CO., CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

BLACKSTONE — A MILITARY SCHOOL FOR BOYS

Located in Healthful Section of Virginia. College Preparatory and Business Administrative Courses. Best home influences prevail, and individual needs of each boy closely watched. Modern, new and fireproof buildings. All manly sports, Christian influences and surroundings. For illustrated catalog write to

Col. E. S. Ligon, President
Box R

Blackstone

Virginia

The Baylor School

A BOY'S OPPORTUNITY

Sound Scholarship and a Happy School Life on the most beautiful campus in the South.

An accredited preparatory school for manly boys.
Christian Influence. High Scholastic Standards.
Unusual Equipment. Golf, Tennis, Swimming, Boating, Gymnasium, 3 Athletic Fields, etc.

For Catalogue, Address
ALEXANDER GUERRY, Headmaster.
THE BAYLOR SCHOOL, Cherokee Trail
CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

Alumni Chapel, One of Seven Fine Brick Buildings on 120 Acre Campus

FURMAN UNIVERSITY

Greenville, S. C.

RICHARD FURMAN HALL

In the healthful, beautiful Piedmont Section of S. C. Strong Christian faculty. Emphasis on moral and spiritual values of life. Beautiful campus, commodious well equipped buildings. Courses leading to A. B., B. S., and LL. B. degrees. Vigorous and successful law school. 12 Weeks Summer School. Championship Athletics, Glee Club, Debating etc.

For catalogue and other data write
W. J. McGLATHLIN, Pres.

LEES-McRAE COLLEGE

"In the mountains; of the mountains; for the mountains."

A UNIQUE JUNIOR COLLEGE offering courses in Home Economics, Business Administration, Nurses' Training, Animal Husbandry, and leading to literary degrees.

FIREPROOF DORMITORIES and all modern conveniences.

INVIGORATING MOUNTAIN ALTITUDE, with excellent hospital and medical facilities, safeguards health of student body.

PRICE UNUSUALLY LOW to be consistent with high type of instruction offered.

Write for catalogue and application form.

Address

LEES-McRAE COLLEGE
Banner Elk, North Carolina

McCALLIE

Historically located Ridge. In view of out Mount

An outstanding school in Thorough preparation and Technical School

Small individual
Strong Christian
Military or System
Complete equipment
crete swimming pool
40 Acres Lake

Summer Session—July
With Camp Features

Write for illustrated catalogue

The Headmaster, McCallie Chattanooga

FOR RENT
House, eight rooms,
Three room cabin near
Rock.
H. L. CARPENTER
Rutherfordton, Va.

Guilford COLLEGE

Member of Southern Association
al recognition. Courses for degrees, including Business,
Home Economics and Music.
religious atmosphere. Up-to-tional program and student-
century old, Quaker institution.
The President, Guilford College

ONE 3x3 1/2. Price
TWO 5 1/2 x 8. Price
Send 50 cents
The Life, Art Subjects,
Children, for Children

LET your children make the world's most beautiful picture, happiness and beauty to their lives.

Use them in the Sunday School.
Send 15 cents for Catalogue of
The Perry Pictures Board

QUEENS COLLEGE

A High Grade Institution
Education of Women
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

"The College With the Plan" Thorough in its instruction in its Christian influence Aim: The development of womanhood prepared for serving.

Curriculum: Embraces every of preparation for meeting opportunities and demands ern life: CHRISTIAN FOR CHRISTIAN SERVICE

Climatic conditions unexcelled Social and Religious privilege the attractiveness of the tion.

Rates exceedingly reasonable
For Catalogue Write
THE PRESIDENT
Box 300, Charlotte

HIGH STAND
of scholarship coupled with al opportunities for college and athletic activities affords
dents a well-rounded business. Write for our 74-page
"A".
ROANOKE NATIONAL COLLEGE
ROANOKE, VA.

COTTAGE FOR RENT

tage, near lake and aupletely furnished to ac-omily of six or eight.
entire season. Rev. J. H.
Mountain, N. C.

SAFE!

Are you gambling with nature's most terrible destroyer of property—Lightning? Is your family or your property at its mercy, unprotected? Safety is so simple and easy, no man can afford to risk this terrific gamble.
Read this amazing new book, tell us just what lightning is and how to prevent it. Written by national authorities of the famous Kretzer system. Free on request. It may save you an enormous loss THIS YEAR. Be safe. Write for your copy now.

Louis Lightning Rod Co.,
1000 Olive St., St. Louis, Mo.

Folk's
Friend

What many call it for its strength and vigor into old flesh, rich, red blood into faded, sound flesh on old flesh with each meal.

War Ale

Positive Aromatics With Mineral Water & Ginger

like it for assisting stomach organs to convert food into rich blood
and flesh.

It was as if he saw the young Galileean carpenter just there working on the opposite side of the bench, and James were including Him in the conversation, by deferring to His opinions that way. Even when he laughed with them, He would turn his head with a far more tender smile, sharing a good joke with the other young man who liked young things. None of the older people knew about this.
Though Duncan Campbell, one day from his driver's seat, had grumbled at him,
curiously,

"What is it ye're always a-seekin' fer?"
And James had told him, in a quiet but buoyant voice,

"I'm looking to see human accomplishment reach up and touch the divine ideal.
Man, what a sight 't would be!"

Mary Campbell grieved sore over the coldness of her father and the others toward the young man who longed to help them up the heavenly road; but she was frail woman to them, with no opinion nor force, nor right which they were bound to recognize; their stubborn opinions, their force which could on occasion become violence, and their right to lawless living set them on a plane far above such inconsiderable creatures as made the following of Parson McDonald.
And Mary, for whom her father spoke his only soft words, tended his three-room house and her own three-months' school, and came into mystic relations of friendship with James McDonald and the other Young Man, who was the fairest among ten thousand and James's friend; while the party of the opposition grew by what it fed on.

There was a great mill newly established in the lower end of the valley, and a highway; and the world was knocking at the doors of the hitherto isolated cabins on the hillsides, with hope of gain, and the cheaper elegances of city life, with high wages for low accomplishment and high wants for low tastes. And disagreements began between employers and employed, between those who had and those who had not, those who wanted to work and those who wanted only to talk. Duncan Campbell hauled for the mill lumber from the great woods and supplies from the city stores. And piling up his money and clutching it with both hands, he came to scorn the young parson who lived like that other young man sometimes carelessly called the peasant of Galilee, "as poor yet making many rich," as if that all-important commodity were really no concern of theirs. James fed and clothed himself decently, even enjoyed a sufficient fire, come winter, in shop or study alternately. For the rest, "We must have a church!" he would shout with the children, as they went on working. During the long bitter winter, work in the shop hummed, with a background of laughter, and mercy to the weak, and with loving kindness growing up in the children's hearts like gardens under the snow. And work in the mill hummed, at intervals between strikes, with a background of discontent and oppression, and hate growing in men's hearts, hate of their own way of life, which they knew not how to better, and hate of the parson's, which they could not understand. No more can a stone understand the spear of grass that shoots up joyfully into the sunshine at its side.

One day in early spring, when the willows were green lace garlanding the creekside, Mary pondering the increasing difficulty of his life came into the carpenter shop bringing a treasure in her hands. It was a flower-pot, and in it a tall slender flower stalk crowned with three long buds.

"It's a lily," she said, "the whitest, delicest, fragrantest kind. It will bloom for Easter. And will light up the shop for you."

"A Madonna lily," said James gravely, for he knew the names of flowers. And as he thanked her, he looked from the closed buds to Mary's face and back, to the lily again, making secret comparison to his great satisfaction. Mary glanced about.

"Oh, how beautiful!" She was standing by the bench gazing down at a great oak beam the minister was carving.

"That's the door-frame for the new church." It was a lovely thing, a carving of a grape-vine, with graceful wandering stem, and beautifully raised leaves and bunches of grapes. "It means our Master, the true vine, of course, and us, the branches." And they sat down to talk over the beauties of the new church and forget the ugliness of men's minds. And the children trickled in, and listened with open mouths. The church was to have a gathering porch and strong white columns in front of it, a spire to lift a slender finger upward and a bell to lift a clear call across the valley, and tall windows like golden trees, and arches like meeting trees above. And a pulpit to be carved in his very best style. And what pattern should he use? They told him, Mary's lily, with the three buds which would soon be three lovely flowers. And James

Expert Kodak Finishing

Developing and printing by experts. Most beautiful work guaranteed. Developing and printing 6 exposure rolls as follows: Size
1 5/8x2 1/2, 40c; 2 1/4x3 1/4, 40c; 2 1/2x4 1/4, 46c;
3 1/4x5 1/2, 52c; Film packs, 12 exposures,
2 1/4x3 1/4, developing and printing, 85c. Other sizes in proportion. Quick delivery.
LIGON'S DRUG STORE : Spartanburg, S. C.

STOMACH-ULCER SUFFERERS

Many thousands of sufferers,
even severe cases of years'
standing, after taking Udgda Treatment, report amazing recovery. Stops pain, vomiting, and other discomforts AT ONCE. No diet! COSTS NOTHING unless you are more than SATISFIED! Valuable booklet on all stomach troubles sent FREE, also wonderful letters of praise from former sufferers and $1,000.00 Reward Offer. UGDA MEDICINE CO., 31 Dakota Bldg., St. Paul, Minn.

MARY BALDWIN COLLEGE

For women. Courses lead to B. A. and
B. S. degrees. Music, art, spoken English, physical education. Gymnasium and field athletics. Modern equipment. In beautiful Shenandoah Valley. Founded 1842. Catalog. Staunton, Virginia.

Wash Away
the Impurities

Cleanliness is more vital internally than externally. Frequent flushing of the alimentary canal is essential to continued health. In fact a cleansed and regulated system will usually resist disease and avoid many of the serious troubles.

Glenn Springs water is recognized as a very effective means of purifying the system, eliminating stored up poisons and encouraging the natural function of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bladder. It acts as a mild regulator; accelerates the secretions and ex-cretions of the body; by dilution it aids digestion and absorption. In general, it forms the natural basis and stimulation for functional efficiency.

Its liberal content and natural combination of Potassium, Sodium, Lithium, Calcium and Strontium Salts, together with other effective minerals, renders it particularly effective. It is successfully used in the treatment of chronic constipation, biliousness, auto-intoxication and other intestinal toxemias.

It is excellent for use in cases of obesity, acid dyspepsia, kidney disorders (including Bright's disease), bladder troubles resulting from excessive acidity and intestinal putrefac-
tion.

Rheumatism, gouty diathesis and other diseases of metabolism, such as eczema, rickets, anemia, etc., respond to Glenn Springs water.

It is found indirectly helpful in the treatment of Pellegra; for suppressed menstruation, and in conjunction with quinine it has long been used as a very efficient treatment for malaria.

For the sake of your health drink Glenn Spring water freely. It is palatable, pure, sparkling, and by many considered very delightful.

Order two five gallon carboys today,
by express, and later allow us to ship at regular intervals, to reach you as the original supply is depleted. Regular use in necessary to secure best results.

Send no money. Start on the road to health. Fill out the coupon below and drink the water freely. That is all that is necessary. We will invoice you at $3.50 for 10 gallons. You agree to return the containers when empty.

COUPON

Glenn Springs Corporation,
12 White Terrace,
Glenn Springs, S. C.
You may ship ten gallons now and each 30 days thereafter until ordered to stop.
Name _____
Address _____
This order is subject to cancellation at any time.

The Glenn Springs Hotel, open June 1st, invites you.

Cecil's
Business Colleges

Let us train you for business.—Secretaries, Accountants, Bookkeepers, Steno-graphers, Stenotypists find ready employment. Keep cool and go to school in the glorious mountains of Carolina. Resident school or home study course. Address

CECIL'S BUSINESS COLLEGES
Asheville, N. C., or Spartanburg, S. C.

ATLANTA CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

The Foremost School of Music in the South
Fall session begins Monday, September 2, 1929
Summer session in June and July
Catalog C GEO. F. LINDNER, Director Atlanta, Georgia

SALEM COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

Known nationally for 156 years' unbroken record in higher education.
Life emphasizes Christian standards without denominational differences. Sixty-six acre campus of forest and meadow. Swimming, riding and all sports. Our endowment pays 12-1-2 per cent. of each student's expenses, reducing the annual charge to $655.00.
Accredited member Southern Association. A-Class.
A. B., B. S. and B. Music degrees with wide elective privileges.
For catalogue "A" to Pres. Howard E. Rondthaler, Winston-Salem, N. C.

VACATION TRIPS

Rail and Motor
Tours

In the Southern Appalachian Mountains

In especially arranged rail and motor tours, the Southern Railway provides a
new vacation recreation, combining rail
and motor transportation for the individual and for parties, into the mountain
sections of Virginia, North Carolina,
Eastern Tennessee and North Georgia.

These tours will take you adventuring
by rail and motor into regions of scenic beauty and historic interest. Each trip
begins and ends with a railway journey,
in which you enjoy the speed and comfort of rail travel. The motor trips are over established State highways.

For booklets, information and rates,
call on Ticket Agents.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Boone-beer finder southern achian ntains
we now
you to visit

King College for Men

Bristol, Tennessee

Stonewall Jackson College

FOR WOMEN

Abingdon, Va., Box A

Jointly Controlled by Montgomery
Presbytery

Affiliated Colleges of the Synod of Appalachia.

King College offers four year courses
leading to Degrees of Bachelor of Arts
and Bachelor of Sciences — a small
Christian College — Faculty of eleven
Christian gentlemen of thorough training and practical experience. Expenses reasonable.

Stonewall Jackson College. Accredited Junior College for young women, in heart of healthful Virginia
mountains. Two years high school,
two years college. Music, art, home economics, secretarial course, physical
room with bath. All outdoor sports.
Tennis. Nine hole golf course on fifty-
two acre campus. Homelike life.
Write for catalogue.

It May Be Urgent

When your Children Cry for It

Castoria is a comfort when Baby is fretful. No sooner taken than the little one is at ease. If restless, a few drops soon bring contentment. No harm done, for Castoria is a baby remedy, meant for babies. Perfectly safe to give the youngest infant; you have the doctors' word for that! It is a vegetable product and you could use it every day. But it's in an emergency that Castoria means most. Some night when constipation must be relieved—or colic pains—or other suffering. Never be without it; some mothers keep an extra bottle, unopened, to make sure there will always be Castoria in the house. It is effective for older children, too; read the book that comes with it.

FOR DIAMONDS, WATCHES AND SILVERWARE

Write to
JAMES ALLEN AND CO.
Jewelers since 1855
285 King St. Charleston, S. C.
Catalog on request

NERVOUS DISEASES
Drug and alcoholic addictions successfully treated at Spring Garden Sanitarium, 2911 Spring Garden Street, Greensboro, N. C. Write us for full information. Correspondence Confidential.

The Bristol-Nelson School

For mentally defective children. Open throughout the year—limited to 25 pupils. Girls of all ages. No boys over 12 years of age. Scientific training. Ideal home life. Large lawns and playgrounds—5 assistants. Prices range from $900 to $1,800 per year. For illustrated catalog—Address MRS. CORA BRISTOL-NELSON, Murfreesboro, Tenn.

FISHBURNE MILITARY SCHOOL

Aim—"Not the largest, but the best"

IN EVERY class each boy recites every day. Contacts with schoolmates from all over the country. Graduates enter all colleges. Certificate privileges. Mild year 'round climate. Easily reached. Full athletic program supervised by experienced men. Modern equipment. Swimming pool. Col. M. H. Huggins, Box 11, Waynesboro, Virginia. Member Ass'n of Military Colleges and Schools of U. S.

turned his head a little and smiled that secret smile, as if his young friend had walked in from day's work at Nazareth, and remarked,

"Consider the lilies, Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one—" James laughed aloud at this good joke, and replied,

"I should say not! Old Solomon, with his pomps and his silks and jewels, and wives!" And he glanced at his witty friend, and laughed again. And the children thought it only a little queer. Educated people were to be allowed excursions into worlds as yet unexplored by the lesser following.

James was set on building the church, come hell or high water, and whether he ate thrice a day or forgot it. For God needed it, and so did he, as when it was done, and not before, he could build his own house, for himself and the girl he wanted in it; and he told no one who that was.

But he worked like three men, and begged the people to help. And some did. Though the most gave him black looks, and sooty-sounding answers. For he was against those who did evil in the valley, and not at all afraid of them. It is more convenient to the wicked if those who oppose them are either fearful or purchasable; rather a pity, some of the more silent and powerful among them thought, this a waste of real man-power. Oh, they could break him, of course, and would in good time; but it would have served their cause better to win him. For McDonald was astride the valley, misguided fellow! an imagined colossus in conflict with the mill owners who ground dollars out of the mill and spent them without reck or wisdom; in conflict with the selfish workers, who stirred the others continually to strikes and fights and lowered production.

"Bottles and barrels still plentiful, I see," James McDonald joked in his quiet voice with that broad grin, as he went into the place of chief resort on pay-day. Gambling was the thing there, every day, but especially on Saturday. "But I can guess how many of each." His dark eyes swept the gathering—twelve men. "An even dozen!" he proclaimed. "Lay 'em down!" And the sport being appreciated, twelve guns and twelve hip-flasks came down on the dirty table with appropriate thumps. James, with a sudden movement, turned the table over.

"Oh, I say! Too bad! But I'll pay for more." For a high-smelling river flowed among broken glass, and the guns were hastily snatched out of it with angry mutterings. James sat calmly down and ordered ginger pop for the crowd and talked about the new church. "And, believe it or not," Duncan Campbell told Mary afterwards, "he fetched a laugh out o' all of 'em, an' a promise o' work or lumber out o' three-fourths. Fair magic, I call it."

"White magic," agreed Mary softly. And the new church was begun. But James McDonald did not fool himself. He knew his wares were unwanted by the majority and that the leaders of the opposition were already taking steps to get rid of him. But he worked on, winning over some whose sense of fair-play and admiration for heroism were strong enough to push through the enveloping crust of materialism, leading his young ones like a good shepherd, living what he preached, and almost starving himself to keep the building going. A beautiful knoll was cleared at the edge of the village, overlooking all its little homes, lumber was hauled, stones were laid for the foundation, and the skeleton of the walls went up, with the frames to hold the windows which were to be like golden trees. A rough floor was laid on the beams for the wheel-barrows to run over. Then one day, James called a halt, and took the children to the woods on a picnic.

His heart was sore troubled. For there was a big strike on at the mill. And both sides accused him, and cursed him, and said all manner of evil against him, falsely, for he had not the slightest part in it. "They say" is a worthless reporter, getting few things exactly right, yet never getting discharged. But now one of the devil's own unions was in operation. An idle drunken employee and a miserly, embittered owner had gotten together for once in their lives and were leading an angry party, bent on doing him harm. Mary Campbell beckoned him into a mossy glenn to tell him, white-faced, her father's message. He must go away, today, secretly. The "bottles and barrels" would be too much for him, they meant business.

"Why, Mary, girl, I'll not run away. He didn't. In His time, you know, it was the same, bitter enemies joined forces against Him. The servant is not greater than his Lord."

"But, James, if—"

"If me, no if's, dear." And looking at her steadily, "Wouldn't you dote on seeing my coat-tail vanishing down the pike like a whipped dog's?" And he laughed.

The picnic day was also pay-day and James's flock were better away, as he knew. But at day's end, as they returned, dirty and tired but still chattering, they found themselves entering a hostile atmosphere. James felt it first, and became gravely silent as he strode at the head of his flock. No one was in sight along the roads.

"What is that noise?" they began to ask. They turned a bend, and came in sight of the new church. The noise grew, shouting, a hideous sort of laughter with poison in it. A crowd was gathered on the floor of the skeleton building, a crowd which jeered and cursed and reeled, a most unlovely sight for those sightless windows. On the rough floor they had set up a soap-box and on it a tipsy orator, held by others almost as tipsy. It appeared to be an old-time raffle they were having. Duncan Campbell stood across the road, glowering. And the object they were taking chances on was the old pulpit Bible from the box-like church. Very funny antics these were, for all who could appreciate them. And in the middle of the fun, James McDonald and his following came round the bend of the road.

A few of them saw the quick turn of his head, and his eyes that blazed into the air beside him, and the tense gesture of his hand which said, "See! Just as they did that time, you—" As he gazed into the air, his look grew more fiercely burning. For a voice came ve him, "My house shall be ea of prayer, and ye have mad

James McDonald was grasp an unseen hand, an command, to swing about, in a mighty determination. I to Duncan Campbell, wh scowling, undecided, on the crowd, and caught someth hand. It was the wagoner's whip. Whirling it above, dashed straight for the me came short and sharp, like der, and his eyes furnished. And he drove the reve heat of his anger and the of that long whip till they before him like leaves in a rang out, but he paid no at ing them down the road wi a trained sheep-dog till th away from the desecrated he returned amid a scatter drunken shots, handed the y bell, picked up the big Bible away home.

He had been "curious to fellow would fare who sh best to live as He did," and exaltation of his anger and of depression that followe gained a part of that covet

In the night, Mary knelt beside her bed, and sobbed in the bright moonlight floor. That was a Saturday he remembered for anguish. day would be the Easter I they were to have gathered floor of the new church, preached under the sky his new life. Now death stalk Mary knew. And James k membered his words of t "Whether it be by life or b

Someone was calling her urgently by the shoulder. S looked up into her father's queer, stern and white, but as if he, too, were holding. There was no hope, but haste, in his words.

"Wake up, Mary, They They've got him, I tell gone to lynch him! Pray, nothing can save him no. I'll bring you word when— was up, and away.

"Pray, yes. But I'll pra And she dashed out of the d for the edge of the village, church was going up. On the spot another strange seen staged. A quieter one now. fewer, less drunken, but the

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE DECATUR, GA.

Strict entrance requirements, but few failures after admission. Se expensive, but cheap in comparison with advantages offered. No loa pected, but also none without capacity to enjoy almost unlimited goo For details as to admission, scholarship aid, etc address
PRESIDENT J. R. McCAIN
Box S

MEREDITH COLLEGE

For YOUNG WOMEN

STANDARD COURSES IN ARTS AND SCIENCES, IN M IN ART, IN HOME ECONOMICS

Confers the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Music. Delir vironment on a high plateau on the western boundary of North Carolina City. Room reservations are now being made for session 1929-30. For catalogue or further information write

CHAS. E. BREWER, President
Raleigh, N. C.

MITCHELL COLLEGE. AN ACCREDITED JUNIOR COLLEGE FOR WOMEN.

Small clas faculty, Christian training; special courses in pipe organ, voice, piano, ho ics, and commercial subjects. Rates reasonable. For catalogue address:
MRS. W. B. RAMSAY, President State

1854

WOFFORD COLLEGE Spartanburg, S. C.

A Christian College for the Higher Education of young Men. Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts Degrees. Pre-Medical, gincering, Pre-Law Courses. Courses in Education and Rel Long and honorable history of education service. Strong Facul Library. Well equipped Laboratories. Ample dormitory facilit untary R. O. T. C. Unit. Athletic grounds. All forms of inter- athletics. Next session begins for new students Tuesday, Septe for other students Wednesday, September 17. Write for 1929 cat

HENRY M. SNYDER, President

PUZZLE ANSWERS

INSECT SQUARE WORDS

1	GNAT	2	WORM
	NAPE		OBOE
	APES		ROLL
	TEST		ROLL
	TEST		MELT

FRACTIONAL MONTH — FE-ast, BRU-ssels, A-labama, RY-e.
F E B R U A R Y

Direct From Mill To You

TERNS in new
at Mill Prices.
consumer selling
1 1/4 to 1/3.

Prints
Bedspreads
Pillow Tuhing
Wide Sheeting
Marquissettes
Draperies, etc.

amples

List on cut cloth
and pay opt shlpfraction

Save
1/4 to 1/3

IAN MILL STORE
A. Greenville, S. C.

Christian CATION

Christian gentle-der Christian in-
in Christian at-—an ideal training
boy.

terian
College
Clinton, S. C.

Lance

ntific Preparation UNCLES, BONE FELONS,
and OLD SORES. Price 50c

RE CHEMICAL CO
Brookland, S. C.

DR. CALDWELL WAS RIGHT

treating sickness has not
Dr. Caldwell left Medical
5, nor since he placed on e laxative prescription he s practice.

constipation, biliousness,
tal depression, indigestion,
and other indispositions
eans of simple vegetable os and roots. These are
of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup
mbination of senna and
bs, with pepsin.

the remedy for constipa-
for the child and for you.
an get results in a mild
by using Dr. Caldwell's
why take chances with

l last several months, and
t. It is pleasant to the in action, and free from erly people find it ideal.
have the generous bottles,
rup Pepsin," Dept. BB,
inois, for free trial bottls

ING OUR ADVERTISERS
TION THIS PUBLICATION

a deadliness of determination. They would make an end this time. The streets were deserted, doors fast closed, as if the inhabitants were not asleep but dead. "This is the hour of the powers of darkness." The girl shuddered, as some distinctly-heard voice whispered it in her ear. And now she stood rooted with horror to a spot across the road, while that thing which was a mass of men united in one purpose moved like a steam roller to its goal. They had erected something upon the rough floor, something that looked like an inverted L. As the moon traced its details for her, she recognized it. It was half of the door-frame for the new church, carved with the lovely semblance of a grapevine, with trailing stem and beautiful raised leaves and fruit. They had brought it from his shop, and set it up on the floor of his church, for—what? Then someone threw a rope over the thrust-out arm of it, and Mary knew. And they set the soap-box of the afternoon's fun beneath it.

As she stood and looked with great unbelieving eyes, she saw them lead a young man forward towards the box. He head was bare and the wind pushed a lock of hair from his broad white forehead, and fluttered the sleeves of his white shirt. And she saw him turn his head a little and smile a little, though not to anyone seen there, and she thought she saw the words his lips were forming. "The servant is not greater than his Lord," marching forward, head up, to offer his body. Perhaps the Galilean, Who came unto His own with his hands full of gifts, to die, had also made His own cross, in His shop, who can say? He stepped upon the box. Mary was not sure but there were two young men standing there together awaiting the end. Hands reached for the rope.

And then Mary came to life. From stone she was changed to fire. Like a flame she swept across the road, burned her way through that solid mass of great bodies. Not knowing how she had done it, she was there, beside those silent executioners, just below the figure with a noose around his neck. But as she reached up to catch James McDonald's cold hand and speak to him, someone, with a mighty blow of a huge foot, kicked the box out from under him.

"Father! Come to me!" she screamed once; and stooping she threw her arms around James McDonald's knees, and raised him, raised him and held him there, his long, limp body fallen against her shoulder. The rope hung slack. She shook trembling, like a slender sapling borne down by a fallen oak, but not broken. She knew nothing but to clasp her burden tight, and brace her tender strength against the awful strain.

She did not ask herself why no one hindered her, nor snatched her burden from her, nor why all those others were moving away from her. She only prayed desperately in her heart, and gasped with her failing breath, "Father, come to me!"

But Duncan Campbell was coming, was already there. There was no hesitation now in his pounding feet, no uncertain sound in his shout to those fast-closed doors.

"Come up, come up to the help of the Lord, you cow-ar-rds!" he roared like a sea gale, "Come up to the help of the Lord against the mighty!" And the closed doors opened, and the street was full of running figures. The children, too, tumbled sleepily out, as the army of rescue marched upon the scene with incredible speed.

Those executioners, terrified as the Assyrians of old by the mysterious force which had risen up against them, by the courage of a slender girl, and the towering rage of a strong man awakened to righteousness, by that silent army of vengeance pouring up the street, sought only to get away, to take themselves into secret places where their sins would not find them out. Not a shot was fired, no weapon was drawn. They scattered to the four winds, as the jokers of the afternoon had fled.

Duncan Campbell ran to the spot where Mary stood alone, supporting James McDonald's limp body, almost spent now with the strain, breathing great gasping breaths while drops of perspiration ran down her white cheeks and mixed with her tears. With quick fingers Campbell threw off the rope noose. Claspng the still body in his mighty arm he eased it to the floor, while now the tears ran down his weathered cheeks unchecked.

"He's gone! They've killed him! And a' thought he'd save us!" He kept repeating it over and over, and Mary groped in her dim mind for other words like them heard somewhere, "We trusted that it had been He who should redeem—" No matter. Mary on the floor buried her face in her hands. She looked up once to see with dull eyes her father and other men carrying the long body home, and then she slipped away to wander in the woods the rest of the night.

When the dawn came, Mary sat beside her mother's grave in the little burying ground, whispering to her about this agony of desolation she had never known before.

Today, he was to have told them again of the new life opening for those who follow the Prince of Life. "But they killed the Prince of Life," she sobbed, and bowed her head on the tender green of the old grave. Someone was coming across the grass and the stone. She lifted her head. There was a spade in his hand. She covered her eyes again, weeping desolately.

"Oh where will you bury him?" she sobbed, looking pleadingly up through her tears at the man with the spade.

"Mary!" he said. "Mary!" She thought this was very gracious, and comforting, that she too should have a vision of the Risen One on an early morning in the garden. She shrank a little, wonderingly, and blinked away her tears. But the voice was James's voice, and the strong hands that lifted her from the ground were James McDonald's hands. She could not take this in, of course; she was mixed, piteously groping about in her thoughts.

"Your father is looking for you, to tell you, Mary," he whispered, "I was scarcely hurt. You were in time, Mary, girl," he put his long fingers to his throat. The girl clung to him trembling violently. "And while I waited to see you," he continued softly, smoothly, holding her close, "I thought I would plant my lily." And she saw that he had brought it, and that its three buds had opened into three pure and exquisite blooms.

"I am the resurrection and the life," Mary heard distinctly as she watched the minister planting his lily beside the old grave. "He that believeth in Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live, and he that liveth and believeth in Me, shall never die. Believest thou this?" And she turned her head a little, and nodded contentedly, as James rose and the three of them set out, walking alongside in newness of life from among the graves into the dewy world of awakening spring and morning.

Susan E. Hall.

WOMEN, Here is unusual

opportunity to earn money in pleasant convenient way and perhaps help some friend or acquaintance who may have artificial teeth and plates. All dentists urge daily cleaning of these plates and false teeth, but a special paste and brush are necessary. Our preparations were originated by dentists specializing in prophylatic teeth and gum dentistry. Write today for generous FREE Trial Packages of TOOTH PASTE and Artificial Plate Cleaner, also Tooth Brush bargains, all selling at wonderful economy prices. Some women may wish to represent us. DEPYRO LABORATORIES, 27 Free St., Portland, Maine.

COLLEGE AND HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES THE BIG PAY ENVELOPE

Can be yours by a little effort on your part. Success comes to those who can earn success. We can help you and will take pleasure in doing so. We have helped thousands. Write us today.

DRAUGHON'S BUSINESS COLLEGE
Knoxville Tennessee

BELK'S
NEW FURNITURE DEPT.

We have opened to the people of the Carolinas a most modern Furniture Department on our fourth floor, featuring a wide assortment of fine furniture for the home as well as newest novelty furniture.

On this same floor is located our Picture and mirror rooms, also china-ware, glass-ware and toys.

A visit to this floor will be both pleasurable and profitable.

Belk Brothers Co.
Charlotte, N. C.

CLEMSON COLLEGE

SCHOLARSHIP EXAMINATION

Competitive examinations for the award of vacant scholarships in Clemson College will be held on Friday, July 12, 1929, beginning at 9 a. m. by each County Superintendent of Education. These scholarships will be open to young men sixteen years of age or over, who desire to pursue courses in Agriculture or Textiles. Scholarships are awarded by the State Board of Education on the recommendation of the State Board of Public Welfare.

These examinations include English, Algebra, Geometry, and History and are based on the State High School curriculum. Applicants for Agricultural Scholarships are also examined on Agriculture.

Persons interested should write the Registrar for information and application blanks before the time of the examinations. Successful applicants must meet fully the requirements for admission.

Each scholarship is worth $100.00 and free tuition, which is $40.00 additional. Scholarships are open only to residents of South Carolina.

For further information write—

THE REGISTRAR

Clemson College, S. C.

THE RIGHT WAY TO TRAVEL
 is by train. The safest. Most comfortable. Most reliable. Costs less. Inquire of Ticket Agents regarding greatly reduced fares for short trips.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Church and Sunday School Furniture

Send For Special Catalogue
THE SOUTHERN DESK COMPANY
 Hickory, N. C.

LITTLE FOLKS For their frequent bumps, burns, bruises, cuts and skin troubles. ::
 — use — ::

GRAY'S OINTMENT

At all drug stores. For free sample write
 W. F. Gray & Co., 724 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Nervous Women Praise Capudine

Delicately poised women who suffer from high nerve strain and nervous pains, such as periodic pains, headache and pains in the back and sides are high in their praise of Capudine because it quickly soothes the tense nerves and relieves the pain.

Being liquid, Capudine acts almost instantly,—does not upset the stomach. Sold by druggists in 30c and 60c sizes. (adv.)

YOUR CHURCH deserves a beautiful exterior in harmony with its spirit of culture and worship. Let us suggest appropriate shrubbery.

THE HOWARD-HICKORY CO., Hickory, N. C.
 Local Representatives Wanted, especially to sell fruit trees.
 Landscape Gardeners and Nurserymen

Piles and other Rectal diseases cured without pain or surgery. No hospital detention. Write to Dr. W. R. Register, 63 No. Broad Street, Atlanta, Georgia, for free book. Hundreds of cured patients.

Take STANBACK to Relieve PAIN

6 6 6
 is a Prescription for
Colds, Grippe, Flu, Dengue, Bilious Fever and Malaria.
 It is the most speedy remedy known.

Sore Eyes Dickey's old reliable eye water cools and relieves a sore eye. Brightens and clears a dull, tired eye. Genuine in red folding box. Does not hurt or burn. At all good stores or by mail 25c.
DICKEY DRUG COMPANY, Bristol, Virginia

HOT WEATHER retards digestion and reduces vitality. Keep yourself in perfect condition with YERKE'S COD LIVER OIL
 Extract
 At All Leading Druggists

S P A R K L E S

Just Wanted to Know

"Poppo," inquired little Ikey, "vat is Onkel Cohen pulling those fedders from de chicken for, huh?"
 "Vel, Ikey my poy," explained Moe, "I suppose it he is getting down from de chicken for a pillow."
 "But vy did he get up there, fadder?"
 "Get up where?"
 "Vel, you said he was getting down didn't you?"
 "No, no, I said he was getting down off the chicken, not—Ikey, if you don't quit esking foolish questions, you're going to bed."

No Worse Than Usual

Aunt Agatha was slowly recovering from a nasty attack of flu, and she was very upset to have well-meaning, but tactless visitors tell her how ill she still looked.

Her nephew, a sympathetic little lad, was doing his best to comfort her in spite of all this.

"Don't let 'em make you feel sorry, auntie," he said, "I don't think you look a single bit worse than you usually do."

Examination Gems

Epidermis is what keeps your skin on.

The Torrid Zone is caused by the friction of the equator which runs round the earth in the middle.

Longitude and latitude are imaginary lines on the earth which show which way you are going.

The days are shorter in winter because cold contracts.

A Mr. Newton invented gravity with the aid of an apple.

Condolences

A small boy was told that he must write a nice note of sympathy to his grandmother upon the death of his grandmother. The following — much blotted and sprawling—arrived:

"Dear Grandma: What a pity about poor Grampy! Please send me some more stamps. My bicycle is broken. There's a new boy at school who's got six toes. With love, Roger."—Boston Transcript.

Should Study Law

The pupils of a third-grade class had to make sentences in English.

Teacher: "Charlie, did you write these sentences yourself?"
 Charley: "Yes, ma'am."
 Teacher: "This looks just like your sister's writing."
 Charley: "Oh, I used her pencil when I was getting them."

Remarkable Restraint at That

Judge (sternly): "What excuse have you for having murdered this man?"
 Culprit (sternly): "Your honor, I have a can-opener wife and this health crank comes along and advises me to always get up from the table hungry?"
 Cincinnati Enquirer.

Wanted to Know

Traveling Man: "Is this a fast train, Mr. Conductor?"
 Conductor (with injured air): "Of course it is."
 Traveling Man: "I thought so. Would you mind getting off and see what it's fast to?"—Bajjer's Weekly.

Another Subject

A lad attending an Eastern college wrote to his father asking him to increase his allowance, as he was taking up another subject. The father, complying with the request, inquired the name of the subject. The reply was golf.

Mexican Heat Powder

Immediately relieves Prickly Heat, Nettle Rash, Diaper Rash, Tired, Sore and Blistered Feet. Sunburn, all Skin Irritations. At your Druggists

When answering advertisements mention this paper. Thus you will aid us in securing more advertising patronage.

Chicora College for Women
The Presbyterian College of South Carolina

Standard College Courses Large, Strong Faculty
 Beautiful Grounds Ideal Surroundings
 Healthful Climate Moderate Rates

For Catalog and Information, Address
S. C. Byrd, D.D., LL.D., President, Columbia, S. C.

FORTY-SIX YEARS CONTINUOUS SERVICE WITHOUT A LOSS ON ANY LOAN

We offer you a safe, tax-free investment for your regular weekly or monthly savings and your lump sum. Write for particulars.

ASSETS OVER $8,800,000.00

The Mutual Building and Loan Association
 Established 1881 CHARLOTTE

If In Doubt, Take B. & L. Shares

You will earn the highest interest rate on your savings consistent with perfect safety, and pay no tax on dividends. Shares cost twenty-five cents per week, usually mature in 333 weeks. Net you 6 1-2 per cent maturity.

Series Open in January, April, July and October

Mechanics Perpetual Building & Loan Association
 Established 1883
 18 E. Fourth St. Charlotte

THE WINTHROP DESK, $75

The Governor Winthrop desk has come down to us from the very earliest beginning of America. The one shown here every detail has been copied minutely. It is made in Grand Rapids which is assurance of its fine quality. Others, varying in size from $70 to $145.

W.T. McCOY & Co
Home Furnishers
 423-425 SOUTH TRYON STREET
 CHARLOTTE, N. C.

For the Future

Are you making ready share in the opportunity which increasing prosperity will bring?

A Reserve Fund Banker Will Help

"National Bank Safety For Savings"

Charlotte National Bank
 Resources Over $5,000,000.00

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

Religious Newspaper for the Family

Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.

W. F. ELLIS, Editor-in-Chief
L. S. D. D., Co-Editor
W. F. WILLIS, Contributing Editor

ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858

M. F. ELLIS, Vice-President
REV. J. G. GARTH, Treasurer and News Editor
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
BY PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY

CHARLOTTE, N. C. JANUARY 1, 1929

No. 27

Commencement

Commencement Closes 56th Year

Annual commencement of the year began on Thursday morning, May 23, by the Intermediate exercises of the High School, and the exercises of the High School were held in the afternoon, May 24. The exercises were made by Mr. Jule B. Williams, Secretary of the North Carolina Association. Mr. Williams' theme of his address was "Push the Kingdom of God Well in Order, smite the Evil." Exercises were followed by the announcement of the year.

The commencement play, "The Falcon," was presented Saturday, May 25, to a large and attentive audience. The laureate sermon was by the First Presbyterian Church, on Sunday morning, May 26, by Dr. Harry Whitmore, pastor of the church of the Covenant, N. C.

The text was "I have set the watchmen on the wall, day and night." Dr. Whitmore's graduating class that is entering a life larger in privilege and opportunity, and larger in the conception of success, the acquiring of things of honor; a second coming of a fuller life, the character. Mastery of the price in and even failure; and in what one is doing, that God has placed the stamp of the divine, and the Father—these things commended to the graduating class as necessary of their mission of the fuller, larger services were held in the chapel on Sunday morning, May 26, at 10 o'clock. Mrs. W. B. Williams, president of the Alumnae Association, presided and conducted the exercises. Mrs. Z. P. Mettler, for the occasion, addressed the importance of independent thinking and day exercises were held in the great oaks of the east on Monday evening. Those appearing came up, with the high standards set for those who attend this concert.

A business meeting of the association was held on Tuesday, May 27, at the James Dinwiddie Hotel. B. B. Murphy presided. He welcomed the alumnae to the commencement of the class of 1929 into the association by Mabel Monroe respondent.

An important action taken by the association was the adoption of the resolution, offered by Mrs. Williams: "Resolved: That the Association go on recommending other plans, the plan for raising our endowment, that a committee of five be appointed, to constitute a quorum, be the president of the association, to make a study of this and report on Page Two)

Christian Endeavor at Montreat, N. C.

Thirty-First Annual Convention North Carolina C. E. Union Meets June 26-29

With a registration that passed the one hundred and fifty mark, and attendance at its sessions that exceeded that figure, the thirty-first annual convention of the North Carolina Christian Endeavor Union was staged at Montreat June 26-29. The spiritual atmosphere of the convention was perhaps its outstanding mark of distinction, the devotional spirit increasing with the succeeding sessions and culminating Saturday night with the closing address by Dr. H. H. Sweets and the Crusader's Covenant Hour conducted by Southern States Secretary W. Roy Breg.

The convention was opened Wednesday afternoon, June 26, with a preparatory prayer service conducted by Rev. W. Arnett Gamble. The song leadership for this service, and for most of the convention sessions, was well taken care of by Rev. Gene Wilson of the Ora Street Church, Asheville, with Miss Cornelia Archer, Montreat, as accompanist. Mr. Crosby Adams also gave valuable assistance with this phase of the work.

Following a welcome to Montreat by Dr. R. C. Anderson, Dr. Willis S. Wilson, pastor of the Montreat Church, and Donald Wilson, president of the Montreat C. E. Society, Southern States Secretary W. Roy Breg delivered the Wednesday night message. He spoke of the accomplishments of Christian Endeavor and its present usefulness, and outlined the work that the Crusade with Christ campaign is designed to do for the churches and for the individual Endeavorers.

The mornings were given largely to simultaneous conferences on methods. The Better Prayer Meetings conferences were led by Mr. Breg; those on C. E. Publicity by Rev. W. A. Gamble; (Continued on Page Two)

Rockefeller Foundation Makes Annual Report

Fifteen Years Show Tremendous Total of Benefactions of $144,189,400

The Rockefeller Foundation, with headquarters in New York has published its report for activities during the year 1928, which shows remarkable record of the use of funds assigned by John D. Rockefeller to scientific, and racial advancement. We clip from an exchange a summary of the report:

A review of the foundation's activities reveals the fact that $21,690,738 was disbursed during the past year to further the advancement of medical science, and that 15 foreign countries shared with the United States the benefits of this colossal program of philanthropy. China alone received the sum of $12,000,000 as an endowment for the New China Medical Board, while 18 hospitals in 14 other foreign countries were the recipients of lesser endowments, and 15 training schools for nurses, representing no less than 10 nations, were granted aid of one sort or another. Activities which fell in the emergency class included the foundation's timely aid in combatting an outbreak of yellow fever in Brazil, and its generous contributions to the health organizations of seven states hard hit by the Mississippi flood.

Over a period of 15 years the Rockefeller foundation has disbursed the breath-taking total of $144,189,400 in the promotion of such worthy enterprises.—The Leader.

Baptists Cancel Convention Speech

Protests to Bishop McConnell as Next Year's Speaker Cause Withdrawal of Invitation

At the national convention of the Northern Baptists a few weeks ago in Denver, Colo., Bishop Francis J. McConnell, president of the Federal Council of the Churches of America, was chosen as the guest speaker at next year's convention. However, nineteen ministers, members of the convention, filed a protest to the choice of Bishop McConnell on the ground of his modernism. These ministers were nearly all from Colorado, and many of them held pastorates in the state while Bishop McConnell was a minister there. The convention acquiesced to the protest.

The ministers filing the protest based their disagreement on the opinion that in his recent book, "The Christ-like God," published two years ago, Bishop McConnell expressed beliefs of a modernistic character. The language of the protest was as follows:

"We cannot help feeling that the recognition by the Northern Baptist convention of one who is widely known as holding these views (expressed on page 15 of 'The Christ-like God') would seem plainly to give approval to this position and erroneously represent what we find to be the unmistakable and unequivocal declarations of God's Word as properly held by the great Baptist denomination."

Dr. Avery Shaw, president of Denison University, Granville, Ohio, was selected as guest speaker in the place of the bishop.

Colored Academy Property Transferred

Mission School, Defunct Now 25 Years, Given to Assembly's Home Missions Committee

The property of the North Wilkesboro Academical and Industrial Institute, a school for colored people located at North Wilkesboro, N. C., was deeded to the Assembly's Home Mission Committee, at Atlanta, to be used in the interest of work among colored people. This school which had a short career has been inoperative for about 25 years, and in 1910, the property was transferred by the Board of Directors to the Trustees of the General Assembly, who in turn delivered the deed to the buildings and land to the Home Mission Committee for the purpose mentioned.

On account of the fact that the deed did not contain the imprint of the corporate seal of the institution and the name of the corporation was incorrectly inserted in the deed, the paper was regarded as vitiated. For this reason, the property could not be sold. Rev. R. A. Brown, superintendent of Colored Work under the guidance of the Assembly's Home Mission Committee, requested the Synod of North Carolina to give a quit-claim deed, and the Presbyterian Foundation and Trustees of the General Assembly agreed to do the same, in support of the warranty deed given in 1910.

At a meeting of Synod May 21, at Montreat, called for the purpose, a special board of directors was appointed, of which Dr. A. R. Shaw was the convener. The board was instructed to give the quit-claim deed as requested. Dr. Shaw called the board together on June 26, in the Commercial Bank, Charlotte, N. C. The board elected Dr. Shaw president, and Rev. S. B. McLean secretary and treasurer. A quorum was present, all the members (Continued on Page Two)

Winona Lake Bible Conference

Northern Presbyterian Summer Assembly Announces Dates—Aug. 16 Through Aug. 25

The Winona Lake Bible Conference of Winona Lake, Indiana, is now well-known as the largest enterprise of this kind in our country, if not in the world. The reputation is well deserved. Here gather the greatest throngs and here come the greatest preachers and Bible teachers the world affords. The conference is full of blessing to people in general. It is especially helpful to ministers.

Among the special features for this year are the following: Dr. Frank H. Ballard. One of the most conspicuous characters in the British Empire today. Claimed by many to be her greatest preacher, now minister of the famous Highbury Church at Bristol in England. Author of "In the Form of a Servant," "Christian Agnosticism" and many other volumes. He will speak to ministers only and several times to the general audience.

Sergeant Alvin C. York. "The Greatest Civilian Soldier of the World," says General Pershing. He will tell the thrilling story of his capture single-handed of one hundred and thirty-two Germans and thirty-five machine guns. Out of this came his wonderful work for his own mountain people. He will tell us all about it in two wonderful addresses on the last two days of the conference.

Dr. William H. Leach, Editor of "Church Management," will give four special lectures to ministers. His subjects are (1) The Minister as an Executive. (2) Church Publicity. (3) Church Finances. (4) Special Program Planning.

Home Coming Day, Thursday, August 22. One of the really great days of the conference. All loyal and true Winonians will surely make an effort to be with us on this day. Friends of the "old days," friends from everywhere. (Continued on Page Two)

Mary Baldwin Closes Year

Drs. Taylor and Sizoo Speakers—New President, L. W. Jarman, Begins Duties July 1—College Now Recognized as A Grade

The commencement at Mary Baldwin College, at Staunton, Va., opened as usual with concerts, recitals, and art exhibits, which take the place in their several departments that examinations do in the literary courses. It is safe to say that the display of talent and training on these occasions was as fine as any the institution has ever put forth. The alumnae banquet was held on Friday evening, May 24th. There was the largest attendance of alumnae in the history of Mary Baldwin and the occasion was greatly enjoyed by all. Mrs. Margaret Kable Russell of Staunton is president of the Alumnae Association. She has devoted a great deal of her time and rare ability to the development of the organization. The trustees have liberally supported her efforts and to a large extent, have furnished the means for her work. The association has developed in consequence of this, very largely in numbers but especially in school spirit and the purpose to carry the college forward.

In a brief speech by Mr. King, who for 39 years has been Business Manager and is greatly loved by all former students, the discontinuance of the preparatory department was mentioned. This could not fail to be of interest. (Continued on page 2)

SPEAKERS AT MASSANETTA

Among the special features at the Bible Conference at Massanetta Springs, four miles east of Harrisonburg, Va., August 12-25, will be an address by Sergeant Alvin C. York, famous World War Hero; the Students' League of Many Nations, representatives from seventeen countries will give thrilling stories of their conversion; special lectures to ministers by Dr. Wm. Evans, Dr. John Timothy Stone, Dr. Wm. Hiram Foulkes and Dr. George L. Robinson; and Practical Subjects presented by eminent experts. For example, World Missions will be discussed by Dr. Robert E. Speer, of New York; Explorations and Discoveries in Bible Lands, by Dr. George L. Robinson, of Chicago; The Boy Scout Movement, by Dr. Ray O. Wyland, of New York, Worshipful Music, by Dr. Hubert McNeill Poteat, of Wake Forest College; and the Summer School, by Dr. A. L. Latham, of Chester, Pa.

Other speakers at the Bible Conference are Dr. P. W. Philpott, of Chicago; Dr. J. Alfred Kays, London, England; Rev. Gypsy Smith, Jr.; Dr. S. L. Joekel, Dr. W. H. T. Squires, Dr. Wm. M. Robertson, Vancouver, B. C., and Mr. Homer Hammtreee.

The management believes this is one of the strongest Bible Conference programs ever put on at Massanetta Springs and is an unusual feast for ministers and Christian workers.

CONTINUATIONS FROM PAGE ONE

AN ACCOUNT OF PEACE COMMENCEMENT

to formulate plans which will be announced through the school bulletin." Mrs. Daniels was appointed chairman of the committee, and the other members are to be appointed. Since the plan has been proposed, a few friends and alumnae have already indicated their intentions of taking out policies amounting to $10,000, with Peace as the beneficiary. This method of raising an endowment fund has been adopted by other colleges with marked success, and the alumnae feel optimistic over the success of this plan of adding to our much needed endowment fund.

Mrs. William Bailey Jones was elected president of the association to succeed Mrs. Murphy, the retiring president, who automatically becomes the first vice-president. The other officers of the association are: second vice-president, Mrs. Robert Wyatt; third vice-president, Miss Sophia Busbee; treasurer, Mrs. John Andrews; secretary, Mrs. Margaret M. Kenney.

The alumnae luncheon, which followed the business meeting, was characterized by the usual enthusiasm which our alumnae evince upon their return to Peace. A copy of the "Lotus" was presented by Alice McLean, Editor-in-Chief, to Mrs. Robert Wyatt, to whom the annual is dedicated this year, in recognition of her outstanding work for the school. A clever pageant, written and presented by Harriet Brown, class of '25, depicted the high positions which Peace girls have taken in the activities of the Church and State.

The two classes who held reunions this year were the class of 1919 and the class of 1924.

The graduating exercises, held on Tuesday evening, May 28, concluded the commencement program. To the accompaniment of the organ processional, played by Mr. Brawley, the 30 graduates were conducted by the chief marshal to their places.

The invocation was pronounced by Rev. J. T. Mangum, of Lexington, N. C.

Mrs. Josephus Daniels, the first woman to become a member of the Board of Trustees of Peace, and the first woman who ever made a commencement address at Peace, introduced Mrs. B. Frank Mebane, the commencement speaker, as one of the illustrious daughters—if not the most illustrious—of Peace.

Mrs. Mebane's address, sprightly with native wit, was most modern in spirit. She declared that every woman of today needs an occupation, and that whatever her intentions may be, should be trained to earn her living at some work in accord with her natural gifts. Every woman should choose a profession or a vocation and prepare herself to follow it as a matter of safety, self-confidence, and self-assurance, that result from self-dependence. Mrs. Mebane stressed the importance of hard work as a corollary of natural ability, and expanded upon the opportunities now open to women who have ability and energy. In describing woman's "new day," she went back to that pioneer of the modern woman, George Sand, who had to write under a masculine nom de plume in order to gain recognition, and reviewed the enlargement of woman's opportunity up to the present, giving many illustrations of women who have made, and who are making, outstanding successes in the arts, sciences, business, politics, salesmanship, and even in aviation. The last part of Mrs. Mebane's address was devoted to the importance of travel as a means of broadening one's contacts, but she also stressed here the fact that the traveller fails to appreciate what he sees unless he has made the preparation for the travel by real study.

Mrs. Mebane's address was unique, in that it was probably the first one ever delivered in a girl's school in Raleigh that dealt wholly with women "at work."

Following the address, Dr. W. C. Pressly delivered the diplomas and announced the honors. The graduates who received Standard College Diplomas were: Ida Withers Currie, Clarkton, N. C.; Mary Rebecca Kirkland, Durham, N. C.; Lacy McAden, Raleigh, N. C.; Jean Scott McIver, Sanford, N. C.; Anne B. Thacker, Raleigh, N. C.

After the announcing of the honors, Dr. Pressly announced the gift of $1,500 for the endowment fund, made by Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Tennille, of Winston-Salem, as a memorial to their daughter, Hallie Tennille, who died last October, while a student at Peace.

Dr. White, president of the Board of Trustees, presented the Bibles to the members of the graduating class.

NORTH WILKESBORO ACADEMY PROPERTY TRANSFERRED

being members of Mecklenburg Presbytery, for the convenience of a meeting.

Rev. R. A. Brown, superintendent of Colored Work stated the desire of the Assembly's Home Mission Committee for the quit-claim deed, and explained that the object of the committee was to sell the school property over at Wilkesboro and use the proceeds to build two churches in that section, one at Wilkesboro and one at Danbury, near by, both to be used by colored congregations. The balance of the funds is to be used in the support of Stillman Institute, located at Tuscaloosa, Ala., where colored men and women are trained for church service in the ministry, and other forms of church work, such as nursing for the women, teaching, etc., It is hoped the sale of the land and buildings will amount to around $15,000.

The board adopted a resolution that the president and secretary be appointed to sign a quit-claim deed for the property, it being understood, from Mr. R. A. Dunn, president of the Foundation, that the trustees of the Assembly will sign with them, relinquishing all rights to the property in the behalf of the Committee of Home Missions. It was also agreed that Mr. H. N. Pharr, an attorney of Charlotte, and legal representative of the Foundation should examine the papers handled in the transaction.

Mr. Brown reported that Rev. J. S. Morrow, a colored minister on the roll of Winston-Salem Presbytery, who has been occupying the house connected with the school, as caretaker, had died recently.

MARY BALDWIN CLOSING YEAR

interest to all students of A. F. S. and M. B. S. However, loyalty to the old is more and more showing itself in advancing the College movement. The alumnae are, and more and more will be, a power for the establishment of a great Christian college for women, bearing the name of Mary Baldwin.

On Sunday, May 26th, Dr. J. H. Taylor of Central Presbyterian Church, Washington City, preached the commencement sermon for the college and the seminary. It need not be remarked that the sermon was powerful, and the one at the evening service by the same minister was equally so.

The Seminary commencement was held on Tuesday, the 28th, at which certificates of proficiency, diplomas, prizes, and medals were awarded. The address to the graduates was delivered by the Rev. J. J. Gravatt, Jr., Rector of Trinity Episcopal Church in Staunton. Mr. Gravatt is loved by all who know him and delivered a gracious and helpful address.

The commencement of the college was held on Wednesday the 29th. Fourteen graduates received their diplomas with the A.B. degree. The interesting information was current throughout the commencement that the ranks of this graduating class had been depleted by marriages of the members of the class.

The college was fortunate also in securing as the commencement speaker, the Rev. J. R. Sizoo, pastor of the New York Ave. Presbyterian Church, in Washington City. His address was one of rare eloquence and literary polish.

The State Board of Education of Virginia has now formally recognized Mary Baldwin College as a full four-year Standard College and its graduates receive the same certificates granted to the graduates of other standard colleges. The bachelors degree is also recognized for graduate work at the University of Virginia.

The new president, Prof. L. Wilson Jarman, will enter upon his duties July 1st. The ability displayed by Prof. Jarman in his work in other women's colleges, and his extraordinary popularity in the places where he has lived, give every promise of a vigorous and happy administration.

Dr. Marianna P. Higgins continues to be Dean of the College. In that position she has handled the questions of transition to the college status with great ability and success, and has earned the gratitude of the Synod of Virginia and all friends of the college.

WINONA LAKE BIBLE CONFERENCE

Speakers: Conrad, Masee, Bieber and the Mission Boys.

The League of Many Nations: Sunday afternoon, August 18. A spectacular demonstration of the power of God in the lives of young men and women. Natives from many nations, dressed in native costumes, will tell the story of their conversion. This afternoon's wonderful program is arranged for by the Practical Bible Training School of Bible Park, N. Y., of which Dr. John A. Davis is the president.

Other speakers throughout the ten days are Robert Watson, of the First Presbyterian Church, Boston; Dr. A. Z. Conrad, Park Street Church, Boston (Congregational), Prof. A. T. Robertson, of Louisville, (Southern Baptist Theological Seminary), Max Reich, Christian Jew, noted scholar and preacher, Jacob Pelzt, Dr. J. C. Masee, evangelist, recently from Tremont Temple, Boston, Robert G. Lee, great preacher from the Southland (First Baptist Church, Memphis, Tenn.), Dr. William Crowe, of St. Louis, (Southern Presbyterian), Dr. Herbert W. Bieber, noted Bible teacher from Bala Cynwyd Presbyterian Church, Peter McFarlane, five of the morning devotional hours, The Mission Boys under the leadership of H. E. Eberhardt, of Indianapolis, and Scoville, Newlin, M. B. Williams and Oliver E. Williams among the evangelists.

The Gideons are coming. During the last three days the Gideons are to hold a special convention and among the speakers arranged for the Bible conference are Mr. Samuel R. Boggs of Philadelphia, and Mr. Will R. Green, of Toronto, both former Presidents of this great organization.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR AT MONTREAT, N. C.

those on Principles of Leadership by Rev. Stanley B. Vandersall of the International Society headquarters; those on Society Finances by Miss Gladys Routh, State Treasurer; those on Socials and Recreation by Rev. J. G. Bruner of the Advent Moravian Episcopal Church, Winston-Salem; those on Junior Work by Miss Hattie Mae Covington, State Junior Superintendent and writer of the Junior helps for the Presbyterian Standard.

Preceding the conference each morning was a Bible hour, conducted by Rev. H. W. DuBose, D.D., of the First Presbyterian Church, Spartanburg, S. C. In a simple and attractive way Dr. DuBose brought practical and heart-warming messages that added no little to the devotional spirit of the convention.

Vesper services and one hour services were conducted by Rev. C. N. Moore, Glenwood Presbyterian Church, Greensboro; Rev. Milo S. the Asheboro Street Friends Church, Greensboro; and others.

In an address delivered last night, Mr. Vandersall of the International Society outlined the accomplishments of the C. E. M. have made it in the past in the present day a religion of immense value to the world of Christ. These accomplishments are: (1) The great convention of thousands of young people pressing the churches and with the value of the youth the very organization itself outlining work for each member of a local society for committees for defining linking all these together; whole; (3) the special has put forward for you attain to, presented in such as the Campaign for Mission and Efficiency Campaign; Friends of Christ Campaign; the present time the Christ Campaign; (4) the work encouraged by the (5) the interdenominational fellowship promoting every organization of C. E. by its ideals; (6) the factian Endeavor became, a worldwide movement—various countries of the particularly encouraging time; and (7) the urged for the individual ament being given to the orer to find Christ, attack Christ, and develop in Christ.

Rev. Roy I. Farmer, Methodist Protestant Church Point, and a former president of the Ohio State C. E. Union, inspiring address Friday night addresses were broadcast Saturday night by Sweets of the Southern Church, known and loved deavorers of many denominations in addition to his own.

An interesting feature of the convention was the introductory visitors. Mrs. A. D. McClellan, Dr. A. D. McClellan, first State President, was Wednesday night. The first was held in Dr. McClure Andrews Presbyterian Church, Wilmington, and Dr. McClure first president, thirty-one Mr. R. E. Magill, Executive of the Religious Education of the Southern Presbyterian extended greetings following the convention to the convention minded the young people nomination that in their they were operating under approval of their General with the co-operation of Education Committee, and success in their work. Miss Elwee, Conference Secretary North Carolina Synod was introduced and later one of the judges for the oratorical contest.

In the oratorical contest went to Miss Frances Methodist Protestant society. It is expected that the lady will represent North the Intermediate oratorical International Convention a July 3-8.

Officers elected for the were as follows: President, Koonce, High Point; Vice President, Everett Bierman, Charlotte; Treasurer, Miss Gladys F. boro; Senior Supt., Miss Mooreville; Intermediate Lillian G. Roberts, So. Junior Supt., Miss Hattie ton, Wadesboro; Publicity Supt., Brooks lotte; Missionary and Supt., Miss Vera Temple Mount; Quiet Hour at Recruit Supt., Otto Mixe Past President, Stokes Greensboro.

Plans for energetic pro state and district work during year were launched made for district convention the summer and fall months.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

FOUNDED 1858

Journal of the Synod of N. C. for 70 Years

Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as Second Class Matter.

Subscription price of the Standard is payable in advance. To ministers the price is $2.50 per year. To ministers' wives the price is $2.50 per year.

Subscription label shows the month and year to which payment is paid. Payment in advance is required.

Subscriptions may be made by money order, check, or registered mail.

Special Notices—No charge is made for notices less than 100 words, but for all over fifty words the charge is 1 cent per word.

—Sent on application.

—Kindly send us both old and new addresses as to the desired change.

—Orders are made only upon the written request of the subscriber. Settlement in full must be made at the same time.

Advertising and Business Communications Should be

Addressed to
PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD
Box 869
Charlotte, N. C.

EDITORIAL

TREAT ON THE EVE OF CONFERENCE PERIOD

... between Montreat "before and after" is striking.

... visitors one is a "lotus eater"—the other, by, and the sound of the crowd while the dreary sound of the busy notes of the woodthrush lull.

... men are busy getting the hotels in the sound of the hammer is heard.

... are fragrant with the rhododendron shrubs, and the pure white flowers softly with the vivid green.

... hotels and boarding houses there are feverish activity, because only a few miles between the present and the past.

... will be changed, and where lazy inactivity, all will be feverish rush, filling the months with conferences and

... hotel is ready for the visitors, and the noise is loud in its praise.

... men at Montreat at its birth, and the development all through the past century, with difficulty, persuade ourselves that what we see is not a dream.

... tent, with sweltering atmosphere, in an auditorium, and hard and cruel efforts to keep the audience awake. They were good enough in their way—Montreat was ordinary and by no means

... have an auditorium that would receive upon any city, with benches that, however comfortable, are certainly uncomfortable.

... have two large hotels, one fitted with all the conveniences, such as we have in the North, and the other fitted with equipment that of any in the land.

... are seems to give satisfaction, and they come to the best in the land.

... many have declined to come, because they could not get the comforts to which they are accustomed, or because they were not in religious conferences.

... can find every comfort, and they are brought away from the Conferences in the same manner.

... been another idea abroad that has come from Montreat. They imagine that if they attend the Conferences, you will be among the faithful.

... heard more than one minister exclaiming upon coming, upon the ground that he would rest in his vacation and that he would not rest if he continued the same line of work. He even thought through his vacation that he would be further from the facts in

... been a regular visitor to Montreat in the winter, missing only one season, and we have been an absentee from the Conferences only as it has been as far as we know, we are "in regular standing" with the saints. When we please and we remain at home when we please, and no man has ever interfered with us, or said, What doest thou?

We find the chief attraction in the mingling with old friends and making new ones.

In this way we keep in touch with the Church in every quarter.

Instead then of getting a disconnected view of the work of the Church, we find that the Church work through its secretaries comes to us, and enables us to know, first hand, what the Church is doing.

We have not touched upon the climate, which is one of its chief attractions.

In the past we have had rainy summers, but they are the exceptions.

The ordinary summer gives us cool nights, and also cool days when in the shade.

The mid-day, like all mountain climate, is hot, but only when you are in the sun.

While the entire country has been sweltering through a heat wave, we have been sleeping under a blanket and breathing the pure mountain air.

Come to Montreat, even if you have to sell your garment in order to do so.

MARY BALDWIN COLLEGE

This College, which was founded in 1842, has educated scores of fine women and left its impress upon every generation since that day.

It is now a college, and is under the presidency of L. Wilson Jarman, former vice-president of Queens College, of this city.

Dr. A. M. Fraser has been president for some time past, but has relinquished the honor as his own charge made the labor too great for one man.

We have received a collection of views of the College and gladly call the attention of students to the fine advantages offered there.

We have rarely seen a finer piece of work than this booklet of views—in strict keeping with the work of this School.

LO, THE POOR NEGRO

All of us can recall the tears shed over the wrongs inflicted upon the Indians, and they were, by no means, "idle tears."

It is now the time to shed tears over the wrongs of the poor negroes who have gone from home to a far country.

No one who has followed his course since he migrated to the land of his friends can deny that his lot has been a hard one.

He has no doubt reached the end of the rainbow, but the bag of gold was conspicuous by its absence, and he has in more than one instance been betrayed in the house of his friends.

We still find that the idea of our treatment of the negro in the South is yet colored by Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's picture in "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

We must confess to a genuine love for the negro, though we lose patience with his love of pleasure, his improvidence as to the future, his loudness in dress and voice, and his lack of independence.

He is associated in our mind with a care-free and happy childhood. As a boy we played with him and lorded it over him, and together we roamed the woods after game and whipped the streams for fish.

During the dark days of the Civil War when Richmond was beleaguered and food was scarce, it was a faithful black cook that managed to save a piece of bread for the young folks, and it was this same black angel in disguise, when the enemy entered Richmond and no food was to be had, except the rations issued by the Union forces to the negro population, who drew her rations and then divided them with the whites of the household.

Once for the space of two years we never saw a black face; we can recall our pleasure when we met an "old uncle" from the South, on the streets of a California city.

Behind this softness of heart for the real negro, we have always pictured the ideal negro, so touchingly described by Nelson Page, but, like many other fantasies of the imagination, the picture has never been realized.

"Like the borealis race

That flit ere you can point their place,
Or like the rainbow's lovely form
Evanishing amidst the storm."

That the negro has suffered grievous wrongs at the hands of the lower order of whites in the South, we are ready to admit, and we have more than once in these columns protested the fact, demanding equal justice in the courts of our land.

On the other hand we have always contended that the better class of whites were his best friends, because they understood him and are always ready to help those that are worthy.

A few years ago the negro exodus north began. We foresaw then the trouble in store for him, both by reason of labor prejudices and the rigorous winters.

Many of them are coming back, broken in health and spirit, and in certain sections they have found that the mob-spirit is not strictly a Southern product, and that it differs from the spirit of the South in being less discriminating.

If anything it is more savage, though we confess with shame that at times among us we see a display that equals any of the horrors of the Inquisition.

Let it be said to our credit that the Southern mob when it breaks loose, deals with the negro as an individual, while the Northern mob deals with him as a race.

One punishes brutally because he thinks that crime has been committed, and he has become impatient of the law's delay, while the Northern mob sees only the black face, and it deals death to every wearer of it, whether man, woman, or child.

If the case were not so sad, it would be amusing to witness the effects of the Northern press to save the face of the North.

One of their papers that has always thanked the Lord that their people were not as savage as the benighted people of the South, now contends that the people who mobbed the negro in Lincoln's own State were foreigners who had recently come to America.

This same paper said that the time had come to make clear that the North does not purpose to imitate the example of the South in putting the negro under "industrial disabilities and handicaps."

It is news to us of the South that the negro encounters "industrial disabilities and handicaps" in the South.

A noted negro educator complains in his book that a white "mechanic in the North refuses often to work with a negro on the same building."

Here in this city we daily see negro masons and white masons laying brick side by side.

We still plead that the negro be given equal justice with the whites, whenever he is arraigned.

When we reach that point in our treatment of him, the race problem will be nearly solved, and the negro's future assured.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR CONVENTIONS

The North Carolina State Convention of the Christian Endeavor Union closed Saturday night at Montreat, after a four-day session. The attendance was smaller than usual, though 150 of the leaders of young people of several denominations made a sizable gathering. We report the address of Secretary Stanley Vandersall, outlining the principles of Christian Endeavor, and the striking factors which have made it the outstanding exponent of the young people's movement for two generations.

The great emphasis being laid on young people's work from a denominational standpoint in our church is creating a problem which someday must be solved, whether we shall have our own organization or continue to be a unit of the Christian Endeavor as now interdenominationally organized. The debt of gratitude our present force of young leaders owes to Christian Endeavor and the power the world-wide organization has in leadership and inspiration are now keeping the lines taut for C. E. as of old. Every Assembly for many years has refused to sever the relations and endorsed Christian Endeavor. Sometime, somewhere, somehow, a solution will be presented. God grant it may be for the honor of Christ.

This week at Kansas City the World Christian Endeavor Convention meets, July 3-8. We are printing in this issue Dr. Poling's opening address.

J. G. G.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPT.

EDITOR'S LOOKOUT

A. Gamble, Pinetops, N. C.

sions of their thirty-first annual state t held at Montreat, the North Carolina ed the following song as their convention harmonizes with the Crusade campaign ducted among the young people of many The tune is that of "The Fight Is On." ritten by Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Dodd, of ated to the Ohio C. E. Union, but permis- is freely granted. Sing it in your society ion with your promotion of the Crusade

"Crusade With Christ"

call is ringing clear, both far and near, all, its message speaks today, true is needed, we depend on you.

do, points the way.
Chorus:
Christ for youth, Endeavorers, and the knights of old;
Flying, with zeal undying, fixed and courage bold.
Of Peace, our knightly leader is standard in your hand, before us, er us,
outh in every land.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPIC

July 14—The Christian Sunday — The Nation. References: Exodus 20:8-11; Acts 20:7.

C. G. A.

Leader's Introduction

the Sabbath day to keep it holy. Six days and do all thy work: but the seventh day of the Lord thy God: in it thou shalt not thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy thy maidservant, nor thy cattle, nor thy within thy gates: For in six days the en and earth, the sea, and all that in them e seventh day: wherefore the Lord blessed and hallowed it.

going to study a few of the reasons for Sabbath." We may find that God is not a and that we keep His day holy, but a ther and knows what is best for us. Jesus Sabbath was made for man not man for l we shall first look to Him and see how y.

Jesus and the Sabbath

the Jewish idea of the sabbath we should e a bit of reading of Jewish history. It for us to know here that the Jews had precepts about how the Sabbath should e the Sabbath a burden to the people t. Jesus told them that the Sabbath was not man for the Sabbath, which means e rest that the Sabbath affords and not anything particularly holy about the day the rest and the time for worship. God rest—but He does not demand of us to at us that God is a Father who is really r welfare and not the stern God that the ed Him as being. Jesus himself often h Sabbath, but he is the author of the th. "And he entered, as his custom was, ue on the sabbath day." We may learn the best place to go to worship is into

Nation and the Sabbath of the French Empire, the decimal system ecame the standard. Money was coined ystem, cloth was measured by the decimal d was weighed by the decimal system. but the weeks were measured by tenths, at a ten-day week would be the standard, f rest would come every ten days instead But the plan did not work. God knew ould work better than the French did. ur minds require the rest, and our souls ship that the Sabbath gives. No nation out the Sabbath, or a day to take the nation needs the Sabbath because the Sabbath—because the home is the unit e Sabbath is the Home Day when we e rest of our family is very entertaining e—when we learn to know each other

Presidents and the Sabbath

Washington

ps may have an opportunity of attend- ip, as well as to take some rest after the ey have gone through, the General, in them from fatigue duty on Sundays, ex- yards, or on special occasions, until fur-

, Commander-in-Chief of the Army and d enjoins the orderly observance of the officers and men in the military and naval portance for man and beast of the pre- est, the sacred rights of Christian soldiers ecoming deference to the best sentiment eople and a due regard for the Divine

Will, demand that Sunday labor in the army and navy be reduced to the measure of strict necessity. The discipline and character of the national forces should not suffer, nor the cause they defend be imperiled, by the profanation of the day or name of the Most High.

Roosevelt

There are enough holidays for most of us. Sunday differs from other holidays in the fact that there are fifty-two of them every year. Therefore, on Sundays go to Church.

Yes, I know all the excuses. I know that one can worship the Creator in a grove of trees, or by a running brook, or in a man's own house just as well as in a church. But I also know as a matter of cold fact the average man does not thus worship or thus dedicate himself! If he stays away from the church he does not spend his time in good works or in lofty meditation.

Benjamin Harrison

After referring to the orders of Washington and Lincoln in terms of praise President Harrison said: "The truth so concisely stated cannot be too faithfully regarded, and the pressure to ignore it far less now than in the midst of war. To recall the kindly and considerate spirit of the orders issued by these great men in the most trying times of our history, and to promote contentment and efficiency, the President directs that Sunday morning inspection will be merely of the dress and general appearance, without arms; and the more complete inspection under arms, with all men present, will take place on Saturday."

Woodrow Wilson

The President, Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy, following the reverent example of his predecessors, desires and enjoins the orderly observance of the Sabbath by the officers and men in the military and naval service of the United States.

Coolidge

I profoundly believe in the Sabbath and have always recognized its sacred importance. I, therefore, appreciate the work your organization is doing for the preservation of the Christian Sabbath and the weekly rest day, and, with you, I feel that we should give attention not only to the physical aspects, but also to the moral and spiritual phases of the Holy day.

CONCORD'S ECHOES

Concord Presbytery will have three one-day Echo Meetings of the Davidson. They are to be held as follows: Tuesday, July 9, at Quaker Meadows Church, near Morganton; Wednesday, July 10, at Unity Church, Woodleaf; Thursday, July 11, at Second Presbyterian Church, Concord. Besides the echoes, each program contains many other treats. The hours are from 10:30 a. m. to 4:00 p. m. A vesper service will be the closing feature. Every young person in the Presbytery is urged to attend the nearest conference. Be sure to bring your lunch.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S MEETING

The Young People's Conference of Norfolk Presbytery was held at Virginia Beach, Va., June 19-25, 1929.

Virginia Beach, Virginia, is the ideal setting for a Young People's Conference. Here we realize every way we might turn the wonderful power and beauty of God's out of doors. The great wide and deep Atlantic Ocean, which calls to our minds the deep love and mercy of our Heavenly Father, which cannot be measured. We find inspiration even in the tiny grain of sand on the beach, which under the powerful microscope looks like a tiny diamond. We are very fortunate in having very good headquarters at the Waverly Hotel, which is owned by Mr. B. G. Porter, treasurer of the First Presbyterian Church of Virginia Beach. The beautiful new building of the First Presbyterian Church, enhances the Conference, as it is possible for all of the classes to be held in this building, which is a benediction to all those who enter its door.

The Virginia Beach Conference was started on a very high scale and the spiritual tone has gradually ascended each year. The leaders feel that the spiritual tone of the Fifth Annual Conference leaves seemingly little improvement to be hoped for along that line.

The Young People of Norfolk Presbytery have been privileged to have such splendid leaders and teachers to present to them the wonderful key note "Jesus Only." This has been the Conference Motto and every part of the program of the Conference has centered around this wonderful thought.

Rev. James J. Murray, of Lexington, Va., who is Chairman of the Committee of Religious Education for the Synod of Virginia, taught the Bible Class for the Third Year students. Doctor Murray very ably presented Dr. R. A. Torrey's book, "The Bible and its Christ." Rev. Z. V. Roberson, pastor of the Raleigh Court Presbyterian Church of Roanoke, Va., taught "Stewardship" for the Third year Class. Rev. T. K. Currie, of Richmond, Va., who is Director of Religious Education for the Synod of Virginia presented The Principles of Teaching in the Post-Graduate Leadership Training Class.

Miss Cornelia D. Engle, field worker from the Committee of Christian Education and Ministerial Relief of Louisville, Ky., taught the class in Vocational Guidance to the 3rd year class. Miss Engle used Harold I. Donnelly's Book, "What Shall I Do With My Life?" Miss Engle also taught the Bible for the first year students.

Miss Anna D. Elmore, director of Young People's Actives for Norfolk Presbytery, presented Young People's work. Miss Elmore presented to her class the Presbyterian Progressive Program, taking up at the same time the problems in each local Church, represented in her class. This course was most helpful to the students as it enables Miss Elmore to know each problem of the local churches, in order that she might better aid each league. On Sunday afternoon, the members of Miss Elmore's class presented a model Young People's program using the Presbyterian Progressive Program. Each of the five committees was presented at this time.

We were particularly fortunate in having Rev. O. V. Armstrong, D.D., of our Hsuechowfu Mission Station in China. Doctor Armstrong at the present time is residing in Mission Court. Doctor Armstrong is in charge of the Sanford Memorial Boys' High School, Hsuechowfu, China, and Mrs. Armstrong assists Doctor Armstrong in the work at the boy's School and has charge of the handwork in the Mary Stevens Memorial Girls' School at Hsuechowfu. Doctor and Mrs. Armstrong have been in China for twenty years and are at the present time on their furlough and are hoping soon to return to their Station.

Doctor Armstrong is very optimistic about the Christian work in China and feels that even though China is at the present time in a very unsettled condition, will soon quiet down. That the Church will have an even greater opportunity in the future, in ministering to young China, who is calling for the Western customs of civilization. Doctor Armstrong is presenting "The Church in China" a realistic book written by Rev. Donald W. Richardson, D.D., who at the present time is holding the Chair of Christian Missions in the Union Theological Seminary at Richmond, Va.

Rev. Sydney J. Venable of Suffolk, who is chairman of the Home Missions Committee taught the course on Evangelism, around which all the other classes of the Conference were centered. Mr. Venable used Elmer Archibald Leslie's book, "Acquainting Youth with Christ." Rev. F. W. A. Bosch, of Huntington, W. Va., taught Bible to the 2nd year Conference Students.

Mr. R. A. Graybill, of Richmond, Va., taught Daily Vacation Bible School which is very helpful at this time, as many of our Churches are holding these schools.

Mr. R. A. Graybill was in charge of the singing and Recreational period which played a very important part in the well rounded program of this year's Conference.

The Conference Committee consisted of Rev. T. H. Dimmock, Chairman, Dr. W. W. Grover, Director, and Rev. F. H. Scattergood, D. D. the Conference pastor.

Mrs. W. W. Grover and Rev. R. A. Graybill were Chief Clan Councillors.

The Conference was divided into six Clans, four girls' Clans and two boys' Clans. The Clans and leaders were as follows: Mac Millan Clan, Miss Hazel Stephenson, of the Lafayette Church, whose Clan won the banner having an average of 100 per cent. McLaughlin Clan, Miss Miriam Conway of Second Church, Norfolk. MacDonald Clan, Miss Estelle Cake, of Lynnhaven, Va. McGukin Clan, Carlyle Duffey and the MacKnight Clan, Brittain Lukens. These Clans were named for four ministers of Norfolk Presbytery who have Scotch names—Rev. Jason L. MacMillan, D.D., of First Church, Norfolk, Rev. D. N. McLaughlin, D.D., Second Church, Norfolk, and Rev. J. M. MacKnight of Eastern Shore, Rev. E. B. McGukin of the Lafayette Church, and also Mrs. W. P. McDowell and Mr. S. A. MacDonald who are members of the Religious Education Committee.

The Devotionals which were held each morning at eight-thirty o'clock were led by members of each Clan. The Clans and themes were as follows: "The Heart," by Mary Lee Cox of the MacMillan Clan; "Faith" by Stanley Johnson of the McKnight Clan; "The Price we pay for Leadership" by Frances Rose of the McDowell Clan. "Jesus Only" by members of the MacDonald Clan; "Character Building" by Miss Mary Ellen Hawkins of the McLaughlin Clan; "The Vision and the Task" by Ashburn Gardner of the McGukin Clan. The Devotionals are very helpful in starting out the day, and were enjoyed by the Young People, because they felt that it was their part of the program.

The Conference hour was one of the most important and enjoyed hours of this Conference. This period came at the completion of classes each day, just before dinner. This was known as the Young People's hour. The officers of the League presided at this time as follows: Carlyle Duffey, of Cradock, president, Ruth Paul of First Church, Norfolk, First Vice-president, Virginia Hallett of Holmes Church, Second Vice-president, Marion Delk of First Church, Newport News, Secretary. All business was taken up at this period and the Conference Hymn, "Light up the World for Jesus," was sung and different Clan Songs. The Church Papers were presented by the Leaders of the Clans in form of a "Skit," which was enjoyed by the members of the Conference and at the same time made them realize the value of the Church Papers.

James MacMillan of the First Church, Norfolk, was chosen as Historian for this Conference and read his history at the last open Conference. At the last open Conference period the following officers of the League were elected to serve during the year and next year's Conference: Miss Ruth Paul of First Church, Norfolk, Hampton Barnett of Cradock, First Vice-president, Virginia Stevens, of First Church Newport News, and Earle Bennette of Knox Church, Norfolk.

The recreational period was held at three o'clock in the afternoon just after "quiet hour." The Conference was divided into two big Clans the "Highlanders" and the "Lowlanders" for the games and track meet. The "Highlanders" defeated the "Lowlanders" in baseball six to four and also won the highest score in the track meet, their score being thirty-six to thirty which was won by the young people, which was made perfectly safe by the presence of two life Savers who guarded the beach during the time for bathing. A "Morning Dip" was also enjoyed by many of the young people.

Everyone looked forward to the Vespers which were held on the porch of the Waverly and were led by Dr. James J. Murray of Lexington, Va. Doctor Murray left with the young people much food for thought in the themes he presented each night and brought out the fact time after time the opportunity of service for Young People in our Master's Service. Doctor Murray presented the following themes: "Jesus Our Example of Prayer," "The Contagion of Character," "The Vision," "The Upward Look," "The Downward Reach."

(Continued on Page Nine)

Men-of-the-Church

Presbyterian Church in the United States

REV. J. E. PURCELL, D.D., Executive Secretary
HENRY GRADY BUILDING
ATLANTA, GEORGIA

REV. JOHN L. FAIRLY, D.D., Wilmington, N. C.,
Editor in Charge of Men-of-the-Church Department

PEACE TO THE ENDS OF THE EARTH

(No effort was made to put this material in the form of talks. Use it, add to it, and speak.)

Leader's Introduction

No other subject has been so much discussed in this modern world as this subject of peace. No other subject needs so much discussion. Men are beginning to realize that the hatreds which inspire war are just as far from the ideal of Jesus as anything in our world today. "This question of peace is fundamental," writes one of the ministers of our church. "In the eyes of Jesus there is not nearly so much defence for war as for slavery, or the liquor traffic, or prostitution." The new and terrible possibilities latent in the next war are causing all thoughtful men to pause. A two hour war which will leave two vast nations utterly destroyed was described in a recent magazine. Property destruction in war itself and the terrible debt which follows war is almost as appalling to some minds as the destruction of life. These things are causing this subject to be discussed as it has never been discussed in the history of the world.

God's Ideal—Universal Peace

The statement of Jesus that men would hear of wars and rumors of wars is used to prove that war is a thing we will always have with us. This is not God's ideal. More than once in words of exceeding beauty the prophet tells us of that ideal which they saw down the ages.

Isaiah 2:4. These were words which Isaiah, the son of Amos, saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem. He was speaking in the reign of Uzziah, but his eyes were directed to those last days when God's promises to His chosen people would be fulfilled in all richness. Jerusalem would be the center to which the converted nations would flock together. This would be those ideal days toward which all Israel had been straining their eyes for centuries. And what do we find? Jehovah is the judge between the nations and is the arbitrator among many people. There is no need for the implements of war any longer, and men are converting them into something useful. They are beating their swords into plow shares and their spears into pruning hooks. In the East a short sword resembled a plow share and the conversion was easy. So also was it easy to make a pruning hook out of a spear. Not only will the implements of war be gone, but men will not know how to use them. (Read the verse carefully and add illustration.)

Isaiah 9:6. Doctor McLaren says on this passage, "The darker the cloud, the brighter is the rainbow. This prophecy has for its historical background the calamitous reign of the weak and wicked Ahab, during which the heart of the nation was bowed, like a forest before the blast, by the dread of foreign invasion and conquest. The prophet predicts a day of gloom and anguish, and then, out of the midst of his threatenings, bursts this glorious vision, sudden as sunrise. With consummate poetic art, the consequences of Messiah's rule are set forth before He Himself is brought into view." (McLaren, Bk of Isaiah, p. 48.) "The whole series of names culminates in the Prince of Peace, which he is by virtue of the characteristics expressed in the foregoing names. The names pines to the heart of Christ's work. For the individual He brings peace with God, peace in the else discordant inner nature, peace amid storms of calamity—the peace of submission, or fellowship with God, of self-control, of received forgiveness and sanctifying. For nations and civic communities He brings peace which will one day hush the tumult of war, and burn chariots and all warlike implements in the fire. The vision carries, because Christ's followers have not been true to their Master's mission, but it comes, though its march is slow. We can hasten its arrival." (McLaren, Bk. of Isaiah, p. 54.)

Matthew 5:9. These two verses give the attitude of Jesus toward the great question of peace. Doctor Horne says, "In an age when breaking the peace was the usual way for a nation to secure what it wanted, Jesus pronounced blessing on the peace-makers, who should be known in the Kingdom as the children of God. It is probable that the first intent of this beatitude concerned peace-making between individuals." "Jesus gave a set of rules, forbidding this, as though he had said, 'You shall go to war under the following circumstances.' His contribution is the spirit of love as shaping human conduct. Love of one's brother is the counterpart of hatred of whatsoever oppresses one's brother. Use your Christian conscience and do as you must is perhaps the final answer to the question. This is the liberty wherewith Christ hath set us free from religious legalism." (Modern Problems as Jesus Saw Them, pp. 9-11.)

Zechariah 9:10. The prophet has been talking about the political condition of his own time. Then he makes a sudden transition to the coming of the Messiah, a very different character. The entry of Jesus into Jerusalem at His first coming is a pledge of the full accomplishment of this prophecy. The heart of this new era to which the prophet is looking is peace. "He shall speak peace unto the nations." The word "speak" has more force than our use of it. It means to command in an authoritative manner. When the Christ comes and His kingdom is established he will speak unto the nations.

So we see that war with all of its hatreds and jealousies has no place in Christ's conception of the world. His ideal is universal peace. There are wars and rumors of wars, but they are all vastly contrary to the spirit and principles of one who, when struck on one cheek, turned the other also; and when forced to go one mile, went another, also.

The Causes of War

The causes of war among nations are much the same as the causes of strife among individuals. First, we might list that consuming desire to add field to field; to triumph over a business competitor. Nations are as guilty as individuals. A recent writer, Dr. Kirby Page, illustrates this in Africa. In 1875 only a very small fraction of the total area of Africa was controlled by European powers. In 1922 Great Britain had 3,700,000 square miles; France 4,000,000; Germany and Belgium 900,000 square miles each, Portugal and Italy around 700,000 square miles each. The same story is true of Asia. The desire for colonies, of course, was the desire for more markets and a more plentiful supply of raw material. These figures may be found in detail in the Encyclopedia Britannica, vol. I, p. 531.

Will Irwin in "The Next War" says, "The financial imperialism which brought on the Great War had three commercial objects—trade, raw materials, export of capital. The struggle for trade—for profitable foreign markets—is, in the opinion of many economists, the least dangerous of the three. For while it is a cause of friction, it has also a pacific tendency. When two nations begin to trade with each other, there follow personal acquaintance and a community of interest. We saw that at the beginning of the Great War, when many Americans in the exporting business sincerely took sides either with Germany or England because they had with Germans or Englishmen business relations and personal acquaintance. The most dangerous factor in national trade is tariffs. But they can be so drawn as to take unfair advantage, to work injustice against some given nation. The tariff is no longer purely a domestic question. We must draw our schedules no longer with an eye solely on immediate national prosperity; we must consider them also in the light of good and just international relations."

A second cause was the vastly increased armaments of the various nations. They created a warlike spirit among the nations of the world. If a man has a weapon on his hip, if he happens to be that kind, it will give him a braggadocio spirit. At the first sign of trouble, which without doubt this spirit caused, he will use it. The nations of the world in 1913 were armed to the teeth.

Dr. Kirby Page quoted from "French Public Finance," a pamphlet written by Harvey E. Fish, and issued by the Banker's Trust Company, 1922, "The Banker's Trust Company of New York City has recently issued an elaborate analysis of the war expenditures of the various countries. This report points out that "during the four decades which elapsed between the Franco-Prussian war and the great war, the nations of Europe expended forty and a half billion dollars, gold, upon their military and naval establishments—and average of ten billion dollars a decade, a billion a year." The following table is taken from this book:

	Total Armed Peace.
1. France	$8,568,000
2. Great Britain	8,401,000
3. Russia	7,581,000
4. Germany	7,434,000
5. Italy	3,010,000
6. Austria-Hungary	2,774,000

The same author quotes the militaristic spirit which prevailed in the political leaders of that period. "In a famous address at Manchester in 1912, Lord Roberts, a former Commander-in-Chief of the British Army, warned his hearers that 'Germany strikes when Germany's hour has struck. . . . And, gentlemen, it is an excellent policy. It is, or should be, the policy of every nation prepared to play a great part in history (cheers). . . . For how was this Empire of Britain founded? War founded this Empire—war and conquest!' (p. 35.) "France likewise expected war and prepared in every possible way. On May 8, 1914, the Belgian Minister in Paris, in a confidential communication to the Belgian Minister of Foreign Affairs said: 'There is no doubt that the French nation has become more chauvinist and self-assured during these last few months. There are men, well informed and thoroughly versed in affairs, who two years ago expressed lively fears at the bare mention of possible difficulties arising between France and Germany. These same persons have now changed their tone, are proclaiming the certainty of victory, lay great stress on the improvements in the French Army (which is true enough), and declare themselves sure of being able at least to hold the German Army in check long enough to allow Russia to mobilize, concentrate her forces and hurl herself upon her neighbor on her Western frontier.' (p. 40-41.)

"The St. Petersburg correspondent of the London Times, on September 10, 1913, stated: 'By general consent the Russian Army has never been in better condition. It is well clothed, well fed, and while the evidence as to the state of its artillery is inconclusive, its musketry training has been greatly improved.' (p. 43.)

(To be concluded next week.)

THE STEWARDSHIP HONOR ROLL

Roswell C. Long, D.D.

The Stewardship Department, with the beginning of the new Church Year announced the establishment of an honor roll of churches in our Assembly that send to the agencies each month one-twelfth of the church's accepted budget for benevolences. The last Assembly, meeting at Montreat, adopted a schedule of special days and seasons and set aside four pay-up days for use by all churches, June 30, September 29, December 29 and March 30. But why should a church wait for a "pay-up" day? Why not adopt the suggestion of "Pay-up, Stay-up and Step-up" as announced by the Stewardship Department and pay each month your church's proportionate share of its accepted budget?

It is just as Christian to keep the work of the local church going as it is to keep the mission and extension work of the agencies going, but it is no more less Christian when it is done at the ex- balanced vision of world salvation on the part of those who sit in the pews. There is such a thing as integrity on the part of churches, a failure to maintain the integrity of a balanced budget, accepted by the people. If we expect the churches to pay up promptly their pledges of expense and benevolence budget, then the budget must be just as fair to the "cause" outside the local church as to the current obligations within the local church. Let us keep our church budgets formed of the fact that the executive agencies must pay thousands of dollars in interest on borrowed money, while they wait for the local churches to send in what they have subscribed. Join the

ELISE ACADEMY

The Story of Elise High School and Good it is Doing

Juliana R. Busbee

For twelve summers we have noticed on the embankment at Hemp, a clump of heavenly blue flowers. In spite of the incongruous surroundings, they overcome for existence, the poor soil. A clump of chicory is one of the most beautiful I have ever seen. I doubt if Hemp knows of this beautiful spectacle. So often we are unaware of it in our midst, unless it is pointed out to us. We dug up a nice bunch and transplanted it in our garden. It blooms with many other blue and beautiful flowers. It has never seemed as lovely to me here, as it does on that brilliant orange clay. It reigns unrivalled, as gorgeous and delicate as it is supposed to be on a June day.

At Hemp there is another plant, bluer, and as rare in quality as is the blue chicory. It is elected to live in the upper corner of Moore's school, several years, before we knew of the work of the school, and what the school represented. It is unobtrusive. When I began to question the school, all I could find out was that it was a national school, teaching Christian education. That, and frankly was not much interested in it. Time to time we heard of this girl and that she had been graduated from Elise, and whose accomplishments astonished us. One day I made a call at the dormitory at the school and as I was talking to the girls, you see we are in what is locally called Moore, at the upper end." There in this locality for what Elise calls "Christian education" and what the world terms "Settlement" seem to be one and the same.

When I first went into the Elise reception thing happened to me—the air of simplicity—ment—or something, that is revealing to a son. I began to imagine myself a little girl late home, where a bed, a table, three or four chairs, perhaps a cook stove were my concept of a home. I would see in it, if it were my first view of a strange unheard of world. It all gave me a sympathy for the little girl and boy, and love for the teachers who were so unostentatious in our own countryside. Right away my heart was drawn to it—who started this thing—who the instigator—why "Elise"—where did it come from—where are you going from here and other relevant and irrelevant questions years ago. My respect and admiration has grown. May I tell you what I have for inquiries? May I tell you? Please be interested in just money interest, for as potential what Elise needs is the interest and uncaring of our own people. To me the school is a rare thing.

I wish I could pass on my emotion of it. I read this. There is never a suggestion of "from-me-to-you" attitude. If you could I have done for the boys and girls of this country would share my enthusiasm. I wish I could tell you frank and tell the confidences I have had of the Alumni, but that would not be in the spirit of the school, so I must leave that to your imaginings. Here is an outline of a quarter of a century with lack of funds, meagre equipment, fire insurance of every known variety. Also a school to survive that puts to shame the efforts of the railroad embankment.

Started by Mr. Lenning

It seems that a Mr. Lenning was a civil engineer who built the railroad at Hemp. He must have had great sympathy with people, and a marked interest in the people of our community—from the world by bad roads and poverty, and chance at the opportunities of life. Mr. Lenning suffered a great loss in the death of his daughter, and in her memory, bought and gave to the school, where he considered was dire need. There came into being the Elise Academy, "Christian Education." W. G. Carter, one of the most men of this section, had a growing family, and there was no school to which he could send his children. There was only a two months' school and the children were not the kind to whom, even for two months, Carter cared to send his children. Mr. Carter appealed to Fayetteville Presbyterian for their help in establishing a school on the Embankment. Mr. Lenning had given.

A Mr. Arrowood, a Presbyterian minister in the county, taught the school and organized an outgrowth of the school. The little brick school is there now is a beautiful and dignified place of worship.

Our county makes arrangements for the education of Moore County students for six months of the

CHURCH NEWS

WELCOME TO THE CO-ORDINATE SECRETARY OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION AND PUBLICATION

R. E. Magill, Executive Secretary

The Montreat Assembly created the office of Co-ordinate Secretary of Religious Education and Publication, and elected Rev. John L. Fairly, D.D., of Wilmington, N. C., to this position. It is a pleasure to announce his acceptance, and to say he will enter upon his new duties on July 15, 1929.

Dr. Fairly is equipped for the varied duties of this work by experience gained in several fruitful pastorates, and by special studies in the field of Religious Education. He comes of an old North State Scotch family which has furnished our Church with some faithful and efficient workers, both lay and clerical. He took his A.B. degree at Davidson, and after a brief experience as a teacher, entered Union Theological Seminary where he received the degree of B.D. in 1914. He was licensed and ordained in his home Presbytery, and became associate pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Fayetteville, N. C., where he served from 1914 to 1918. He was called to the Mount Carmel Church in the Valley of Virginia, where he served from 1918 to 1923. While serving this fine old church he did special work at Union Theological Seminary, and received the degree of Doctor of Divinity in 1922. In taking this course he majored in Religious Education under Dr. W. T. Thompson, an authority in this field.

In 1924 Dr. Fairly accepted a call to St. Andrew's Church in Wilmington, N. C., where he served with great acceptance until called by the Assembly to serve the whole Church.

In all his pastorates he has been greatly blessed in his efforts to enlist the interest and co-operation of the young people in the program and activities of their own Assembly. He is in great demand as a teacher and leader at Young People's Denominational Conferences and in Leadership Training Schools. He was also successful in enlisting the interest of the men of his congregations in the program of the Church, and out of a very busy life he found or made time to prepare the year book and other program material for the Assembly's organization, "The Men of the Church."

Dr. Fairly will have the cordial support and co-operation of the head of every department and division of the Committee, as well as the large corps of field workers. As he enters upon his new duties he should have the prayers and co-operation of all our people in carrying forward the splendid program of our Church for reaching and training the youth of the land for wholesome living and fruitful Christian service.

NORTH CAROLINA WORKERS HOME AT MONTREAT

Mrs. Olin White will have charge of the North Carolina Religious Workers' Home at Montreat during the conference season. Write her for rates and reservations.

Until June 30th her address is Davidson, N. C.; after June 30th she may be addressed at Montreat, N. C. C. M. Richards, Chairman.

MR. DABBS VISITS WASHINGTON

We have an account of a recent trip made by Mr. E. V. Dabbs, of Mayesville, S. C. His objective was the Tariff Congress, then in session. Mr. Dabbs mentions various objects of interest, and we are giving below his impressions of the beautiful Church of the Pilgrims, which is a monument to the industry and the answer to the prayers of its faithful pastor, Rev. A. R. Bird. Mr. Dabbs was conducted by his friend, Brainard Wilson. His account of his visit to the church follows:

"About 5 o'clock we went to Brainard's home and after dinner he took me for an extensive ride over parts of Washington I had never seen before. The most important place which I visited was The Church of the Pilgrims which Rev. A. R. Bird has just completed. It is a wonderful structure built of Alabama limestone with a seating capacity of 750. The manse is attached to the rear end of the church and is three stories in height. On the left of the church facing out to the street are very extensive Sunday school rooms or various sizes. One room was a finely built bowling alley, for the special use of the working girls who attend this church. Under the auditorium is a big dining room which seats about 400 with recesses on each side to hold the tables and chairs when the room is used for men's and boys' gymnasium. Back of the dining-room is a well appointed kitchen with gas range, cup-boards for dishes, sinks with drainage boards, hot and cold water on tap, and everything that would make it easy and convenient to prepare meals.

The organ of the church, a beautiful Singer pipe organ, costing $20,000, was the gift of Mrs. Cameron Morrison, of Charlotte, N. C. The tower has been built for chimes which have not yet been given, awaiting the moving of the hearts of some wealthy people. The whole plant cost $400,000, which has been given by Presbyterians throughout the South. For many years the members of this church worshipped in a frame structure 25 by 40 feet which they built themselves. They are still at work putting in various fixtures that are needed to complete the usefulness of the building. The building is located on 21st and P streets, is the only church building in a hundred blocks where the pews are absolutely free. It is right by the side of Rock Creek which flows in a deep gorge back of the church, and the land church property is owned by the government in the scheme for beautifying Washington, a roadway built around the church out into some street to the north of the Bird was delighted to see me and I met two of their young people. While I was talking to me Mrs. Wilson was being seen. Mrs. Bird who said that Dr. Bird was kind with this tremendous work. Mrs. Bird is the widow of the late Dr. W. W. Moore of Union Theological Seminary. The location of this church is about three miles from the White House in a residential section which has several churches located there. Dr. Bird is very anxious for the presence especially those who hold jobs for whom this church was largely that every dollar that has been sent there wisely used and we have a church there where most fastidious will be pleased. After church I was taken by the Wilsons, for some parts of Washington that were new to me and on back streets with handsome old churches.

Washington is a most beautiful city that you see only the capitol, the library, the museum, the White House, Lincoln's monument, various departmental buildings have no equal and it will have to be seen to be appreciated.

PERSONAL

Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Clark, of Statesville in the Washington Sanitarium, in Tallahassee, Washington, D. C.

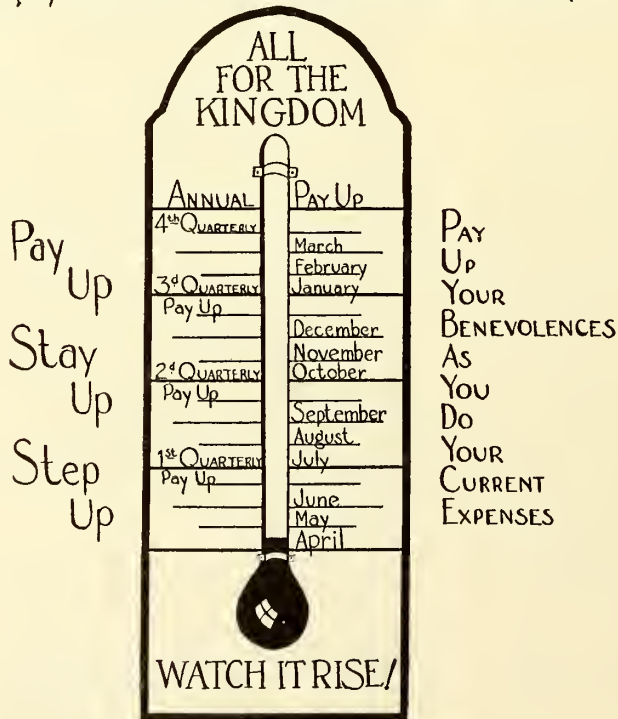

Mrs. Clark has entered that sanitarium for special treatment, and both of them will remain there probably two or three weeks.

Rev. E. A. Dillard, of Tenth Avenue, Charlotte, N. C. and Rev. W. B. S. Chandler, of Monroe, N. C. occupied the pulpits last Sunday.

Rev. Robert Adams, of Bristol, Tenn., is preaching for the Philadelphia Church, a Presbyterian, North Carolina. His address is N. C., R. 3.

Rev. J. G. Garth, news editor of the Presbyterian Standard, has been supplying at Central Presbyterian Church, Mecklenburg Presbytery, N. C., during the absence of the pastor, Rev. R. W. Culbertson. Mr. Garth returned to his charge much refreshed after a visit to Carthage, N. C. He will preach next Sunday at Steele Creek and Pleasant Hill.

STEWARDSHIP THERMOMETER OF HONOR ROLL CHURCHES who pay each month onetwelfth of Benevolent Quota

Is your church on the Stewardship Honor Roll? If your treasurer of benevolences is accustomed to send each month one-twelfth of your church's accepted budget for benevolences please notify the Assembly's Stewardship Department.

The last Assembly, in adopting its schedule of special days and seasons set aside four pay-up days—one for each quarter. Why wait to the end of the quarter? Join the Honor Roll now. Save the executive committees thousands of dollars in interest on money borrowed while they wait for your church to pay up.

Next Sunday is the first Sunday in the new quarter. Let each church member pay his pledge weekly, so that treasurers may remit monthly.

THE STEWARDSHIP DEPARTMENT
305 Henry Grady Building
ATLANTA, GA.

DEVOTIONAL

IF A MAN DIE, SHALL HE LIVE AGAIN?

A man whose early life was spent in California tells of a child who lived in the Southwestern part of our country where there are so many great gulches like the Canyon of the Colorado. This child had a nurse who was very fearful lest some time when her eyes were off her, the child should wander away, and going too near the edge of the canyon, would fall over and be lost. So she told the child that she must keep away from the canyon; that the canyon was full of hobgoblins, and if she went near the edge of it they would catch her and eat her up. The child often looked at the canyon, but always with feelings of terror. At last an older brother who had been away at college came home. He had his little sister out walking with him one day. As they came near the edge of the ravine he suggested that they go down the path into it. The child drew back in terror. She warned her brother of the danger of it. She told him about the hobgoblins, and the cruelties they would inflict on any one who came into their power, and she begged him not to go. Her brother laughed at her fears, but she stood her ground. Then pointing into the ravine he said to her, "Do you see that little hill on the other side of the gulley?" She said she did. Then he said, "If I go down there and stand on that hill, and come back safe and sound, will you go down with me?" That was a fair test and the child said "Yes." Down into the ravine the brother went. He was out of sight for a moment, and the little girl's heart was in her mouth. Then as she watched, he appeared again, and mounted the hill, and as he stood there he gaily waved his handkerchief, and she waved her hand in return. Then he started back; was out of sight again for a brief while, and then he reappeared at the top of the path down which he had gone. When she found there was no sign of harm on him she put her hand in his and went down without fear.

So we are not shut up to the hints of nature for One has gone down into the ravine of death. He came back alive and showed Himself to His friends, and we know there is a future.

A Bishop tells the story of a child and his daughter. There was a time when she was going to bed and her father's custom had been to tuck that girl in bed at the end of every time of the night he would always go in softly and kiss her. And so she would partly awaken, and say, "daddy," and he would say, "sweetheart." And so it came that one night that she should be under the shadow of the bed and he tucked her in; and she put her arms around his neck and drew him down and he put his arms around her and said, "My daughter"; and she said, "Daddy."

So God in the last night of our life is to come down and tuck us in. Our eyelids droop, and our voices are low; we can hear no sound; so be there. He will plant the cross on our cheek and we shall be in the Valley of the Shadow of Death. Him, journeying toward sunrise. The morning comes.—Chester

When Pompey entered Jerusalem about 64 B.C. he determined to see the recesses of the Temple, the sacred veil and entered the Holy of Holies, and saw nothing but the invisible Jehovah was at the door. Many persons pass through the sacred places where God does not see him. If only they were like Moses, they would see the fire and hear his divine voice.—Ex.

A recently published cartoon shows a man in his shirt-sleeves picking up gold. Behind him could be seen were bags of gold he had picked up. Just in front of him was a centipede. He was with the sweat pouring from his brow working as hard as he could gathering up his riches, but the centipede was getting nearer and nearer the gold.

A true picture of many hands and mind and strength gathering gold—on the way to the grave. This lesson is obvious.—Waiting.

NORTH CAROLINA

tery of Orange will meet in adjourned Westminster Church, Greensboro, N. C., at 2 p. m. Members of Orange Presbytery office.
Charles P. Coble, . CS.
N. C.

two weeks' meeting was held in Fountain Church, closing the fourth Sunday pastor, Rev. H. M. Wilson, did the J. H. Smith, of Stem, N. C., led the ed the pastor in calling on the people prayer meetings. Prayer meetings were noon, except Sunday, in the homes for d were well attended. Prayer meetings in the town hall each morning during of the meeting for the men. The church this meeting was better attended than ey have ever had. As a visible result e additions to the church. We attribute cess of the meeting to the prayer meet- to the splendid assistance rendered by om we would commend to churches de- in a series of meetings.

erians at Fountain have a splendid with ample Sunday School rooms and ple whom it is a pleasure to serve.
e 23rd marked the closing of a two Vacation Bible School at William and apel. Ebenezer Baptist Church united school. The total enrollment was 65, ge daily attendance was 55. On Friday as taken to Falls Park, Rock Mount, icnic, which was a very delightful oc- Sunday afternoon, June 23rd a splendid rrendered by the young people who had hool at William and Mary Hart Chapel. o weeks the young people learned a ripture, and all who heard their com- gram felt that the school had been well

H. M. Wilson.

For two weeks, in May, the vacation was conducted for the primaries and vere about sixty students. Miss Claudia ng now with Concord Presbytery, had of the school, and was assisted by sev- al girls and ladies. All of these workers lves not only ready but efficient. And e seen in the summing up on the clos- h was a happy occasion.
hich was held, in June, a community ing school. Five denominations were both the staff and the student body, credits were issued. A great deal of nifest, and the desire heartily ex- ther school.

The Mecklenburg Young People's echo meeting at Myers Park Church, Monday, July 1. Reports of Davidson re given. The day was spent in meet- ration led by Mr. Cartier, city recreation fine attendance of the young people conferences, and the delegates attend- splendid time and a profitable meeting. T. Carr, Director of Religious Educa- e the Honor Roll by which societies may ble mention for work done during the y which the Presbytery may be placed on tlet as worthy of distinction. Tom Hill, ung people, discussed Young People's Sydney Alverson, who is secretary of s Work for Mecklenburg Presbyterial rk on Resounding Echoes. Mr. George rator of Religious Education in Tenth h, led the music of the conference. halabie delivered the inspirational ad- 'clock. After lunch provided by the ongregation in an abundant style, and h Hut near the church, vesper services b by several ministers, Revs. J. F. Nisbet, and W. W. Akers, all taking um will also be followed in two other eces, at Albemarle, July 2, and Rocking-

g Presbyterian officers were elected at onference for the ensuing year: Miss e president; Everett Escott, vice-presi- yn McNeely, secretary and treasurer. t summer months the Presbyterian, d Baptist churches will have union t, Elizabeth section of the city.
city will gather July 3 at the new au- nass meeting in the interest of law and W. Bailey, of Raleigh, will make the r meetings will merge into this union

g Young People's Camp is to be on at ke near Elizabethtown, N. C., July 8 to 12.

d an adjourned meeting of Fayetteville y, July 1, 1929, the pastoral relations be- v. D. McD. Monroe and the Vass, Lake- on Churches were dissolved. Mr. Mon- is on request, was granted a letter of dis- Genbrier Presbytery. He is returning to er arge in that Presbytery. The commis- sta Rev. W. S. Golden pastor of the Car- d Preka churches reported this duty per- on the 16th.

terian Orphans' Home, Barium Springs —On Sunday in June, the pulpit at Little Joe's

Church was filled by Rev. J. F. Menius, pastor of Lillington Presbyterian Church. Mr. Menius' message was from the 91st Psalm, the second verse, "I will say of the Lord, He is my refuge and my fortress: my God; in him will I trust." Special reference to "my God." Mr. Menius is a good friend of the Home and a special friend of our pastor. We were delighted to have him with us. He brought with him his little son and daughter who brought us a message in instrumental music. We are looking forward to their next visit with much pleasure.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Chester—Rev. J. W. Anderson, of Atlanta, supplied the pulpit last Sunday in the absence of Dr. Mann at a revival series at Clio, S. C.

ALABAMA

Wylam—After years of consecrated effort under the leadership of Rev. John Milner, Rev. Joseph McNeill, Rev. M. B. Dendy, and others, our Church is at last self-supporting.

The present pastor, Rev. A. C. Summers, was recently married. The bride, formerly Miss Ruth Crawford, of Birmingham, is the first lady-of-the-mantle this church has had in its 32 years' history.

Hadden—A series of evangelistic services was held in this church from June 24 to June 27 inclusive. The preaching was done by Rev. A. V. Fogartie, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Selma, Ala. Bad weather and muddy roads prevented the attendance of many visitors but the members were faithful to come through the meeting. The whole church has been greatly benefitted by Mr. Fogartie's clear, forceful, pleasing and scriptural sermons. The communion of the Lord's supper was observed at the last morning service of the meeting. This historic church has recently been put in good repair with a metal roof, two coats of white paint on the outside and on the inside, new carpets and the furniture repainted. It is in a condition now to serve the community for many years.
P. H. Biddle, Pastor.

ARKANSAS

Norman—This church and community were greatly profited by a Daily Vacation Bible School conducted recently by Miss Aleta Miller, of Morrilton. Miss Miller is well qualified for the work, to which she has given herself and remarkable results were seen at the close of the school.

FLORIDA

Miami, Westminster Church—Commencement exercises for the Daily Vacation Bible School were held Sunday evening, June 30, with the pastor, Rev. P. W. Dubose, presiding. Each of the three departments did splendid work in Bible study, music and craft. The school was directed by Mrs. Reeves Bowen, a graduate of the Assembly's Training School. Mrs. S. O. O'Bryan conducted the Primary department, and Mrs. E. C. Way, the Beginners. Music was under the direction of Mrs. R. H. Wilkinson, and Mrs. C. J. Joiner taught the sewing classes. Boy Scouts directed the craft work. The Primary department made gay scrapbooks for a mission hospital in Korea, where the offering will also be sent.

VIRGINIA

Buena Vista—Dr. and Mrs. J. Ernest Thacker, of Norfolk, Va., conducted a meeting in the Presbyterian Church here June 2nd-16th. Mr. W. Furman Betts of Raleigh, N. C., was the song leader Both church and Sunday School auditoriums were filled to overflowing at some of the services. The power of Dr. Thacker's preaching and Mrs. Thacker's lectures was felt, not only by the Presbyterian Church, but by the entire community. About sixty persons were added to the churches, and there will probably be many others as a result of the meeting. There were nearly five hundred re-consecrations.
Irby D. Terrell, Pastor.

Massanetta Springs—The Camp for Intermediate Boys and Girls at Massanetta Springs, four miles east of Harrisonburg, Va., opens on July 1st. There have already been about 300 registrations. It is confidentially expected that there will be at least 400 enrolled when the camp opens. There were 370 in attendance last year. Registrations are coming in from all over Virginia, parts of West Virginia and North Carolina.

Col. Jos. H. Cudlipp, who is at the head of the Young People's Division in the State Sunday School Work of Maryland, will again have charge of the camp. He is a peerless leader, is wonderfully magnetic and has the happy faculty of managing boys and girls as he pleases. Associated with him will be Mrs. Cudlipp, who is also a wonderful teacher and a great leader, and a faculty of 16 teachers and tribe leaders.

Mothers and teachers of Intermediates are urged to bring their boys and girls to the camp. Colonel Cudlipp will teach a class on Intermediate Methods and Materials for the adults.

The camp is one of the most enthusiastic gatherings of the entire season at Massanetta Springs. The results in character building are simply wonderful. Last summer 229 decided to "keep the tryst" throughout the year, and 223 promised to try to win one for Christ during the year. It is urged that registrations be sent in at the earliest possible moment. Detailed information may be secured by writing Wm. E. Hudson, Staunton, Va.

Prospects for the Conferences at Massanetta Springs are very bright. Among the attractions during the Bible Conference will be Dr. Robert E. Speer, of New York, Dr. John Timothy Stone, of Chicago, Dr. Wm. Evans, of Los Angeles, Rev. Gypsy Smith, Jr., the flaming evangelist of the South, Dr. P. W. Philpott, pastor of the Moody Memorial Church, Chicago, Dr. George L. Robinson, noted Bible scholar and archaeologist, and many other outstanding speakers and teachers.

The late Dr. R. A. Torrey, noted Bible teacher, in speaking of Massanetta Springs said: "You have a program stronger and better planned than that of almost any conference of which I know."

The remaining Conferences at Massanetta Springs, together with dates, are as follows:

- Methodist Young People's Conference, July 8-14.
- Presbyterian Y. P. Conference, July 16-22.
- Presbyterian Synodical, July 23-25.
- Auxiliary Training School, July 25-August 1.
- Leadership Training School, July 25-August 1.
- School of Music, July 28-August 4.
- Men's Conference, August 1-4.
- Lutheran Church Workers' Conference, Aug. 5-11.
- Bible Conference, August 12-25.

YOUNG PEOPLE

(Continued from page 5)

After a dull day of everything that it takes to make a Young People's Conference complete it was a pleasure to go to the Church at eight o'clock to the Inspirational Service, which were led by Rev. F. W. A. Bosch, of Huntington, W. Va. All during the day our hearts and minds were being prepared for the wonderful message which was to be given us at the night services. Mr. Bosch will never be forgotten by the members of the Fifth Annual Young People's Conference for the most impressive chalk talks he gave each night. Mr. Bosch used a very large easel on which, night after night he painted the most beautiful pictures to illustrate his points, ever bearing in mind the theme "Jesus Only." Each night he prepared our hearts for the climax, the consecration meeting on the last night. Words cannot express the wonderful way in which Mr. Bosch treated his themes, and we, who heard his talks have been extremely fortunate and feel very incapable of describing his lectures.

The first night of the Conference he introduced the key note, "Jesus Only," which was latter adopted as our Conference Motto. "Ye are the light of the World" was next presented by Mr. Bosch. "God's Word," "Ye must be born again," "Building a Life" and the last night which was the most impressive of them all "Jesus the I AM" which was, of course, the consecration Service.

Eight of our young people received diplomas and four degrees were conferred upon members of the Conference in the Order of Virginia Bach.

We have been well entertained during the Conference. Rev. R. A. Graybill is a very clever imitator, as well as a talented singer and is quite fond of mimicking everything from musical instruments to dog fights.

One night after the Inspirational Meeting the members of the Conference were invited to see a demonstration, by Captain Barnes and his crew, of the Coast Guard Station at Virginia Beach, in sending the life line to a ship in distress. Young Tom Currie, the son of T. K. Currie, had a very thrilling ride in the breeches-buoy. After this demonstration Rev. R. A. Graybill sang "Throw out the Life Line."

The members of the Conference were also given a reception at the Church the first night of the Conference, in order that the young people might get acquainted with the Faculty.

On the last night of the Conference we were entertained on the beach by the members of the Virginia Beach Church to a marshmallow and a "Weenie Roast."

The fellowship has been splendid among the sixty-nine delegates who have attended this Conference. The fellowship with the members of the faculty and the students has been exceptional. You might ask any young person who attended the Virginia Beach Conference what is the "Bonehead Club" and they will tell you.

Probably the most impressive service during the Conference was the Sunrise service at 4:45 on the morning before the delegates returned to their homes. The sun rose, only as it does at Virginia Beach. The setting was glorious. The rising sun was as a benediction to all those who witnessed it. I do not believe there was a single person, who witnessed this wonderful display of our Father's handiwork, but who would feel very strongly the urge to be of greater Service in Christ's Kingdom. Rev. R. A. Graybill of Richmond, led this service, and his theme was "Launch out and let down." Mr. Graybill left this thought in the minds of the young people, "By God's grace, Launch out, let go and let God."

The Virginia Beach Conference has been a success and the young people have received the inspiration to go back to their home churches and be of greater service.

The old crusaders used to chant this prayer as they surged forward toward the holy sepulchre:

"Lord of the starlight,
Lord of the sunlight,
Lord of the seasons,
Teach us to know
How best to love thee,
How best to serve thee
In summer's flowers
And winter's snow."

—Selected.

The way of love is the quickest, safest, most satisfying way.

The worst sin of all is to refuse Him who sinned not at all.

PULLING OUT OF THE ROUGH PLACE

(Continued from page 7)

then lifted until he got the wheels on to a corduroy of branches or a hastily improvised pavement of stones. When he had lifted and made his pathway he was able to drive out.

The main point is he had to lay down a solid foundation and lift rather than pull or push.

The explorer in his experience has given us a parable of Mission work. The lives of men and the moral standards of nations are all changing by the lifting power of a great spiritual truth and not by the pull of a great ideal or the push of a driving passion.

This is peculiarly true of Korea where today we find both plans at work in an attempt to get this old nation out of the mire of financial stagnation, the swamp of intellectual torpidity and the bottomless sump of moral decay.

A dozen lines have been passed and the bank is lined with lusty pullers while brawny pushers make the car of state groan and quiver.

Education, modern enlightenment, western financial schemes, co-operative companies, political economists, teachers of various varieties of off colored philosophy, business competition, marriage—every variety of science, these and a dozen other would be helpers have all set themselves to the laudable task of saving this people.

Yet the sad fact remains, that though the country is about to be dismembered by the enthusiasm of these self-appointed saviors, as a whole Korean society is sinking deeper and deeper every day in the mud of coarse and lustful sins and becoming more completely swamped in a morass of utter hopelessness.

The weakness of the pull and push method lies in the fact that there is little native strength of character to which they can taster their tackle. As soon as pressure is exerted that particular spot that was thought to be naturally strong pulls out because of some hidden defect and the people sink back to where they were or worse.

Or even if under sufficient pressure the whole plane of society is temporarily lifted, as soon as the artificial stimulus is weakened or removed, back goes the car to the old level or goes farther down the slippery hill of moral progress.

To illustrate: ten or fifteen years ago it was believed that education would completely renovate Korean character and put the necessary iron in her soul, but the end of a decade finds this plan has not only not strengthened character but seems to have released new possibilities for evil in the young until the moral decline of the young people has kept step with or out paced their intellectual advance.

We who have come up out of a similar mud hole are liable to harshly criticize others who are still caught in its vicious grip. We who have but recently put on clean and decent garments find it easy to draw aside our robes and wrinkle our nose in disgust whenever we come near those whose garments still reek with the filth of sin controlled lives.

We Americans must not forget that all the decent, the good, the solid traits of our character have come to us as the result of our Christian religion. Certainly the history of our savage ancestry gives us no occasion to hold ourselves better by nature than any other non-Christian people, and he who is an honest thinker must by the fact of his debt to Christianity be an ardent supporter of foreign missions.

The above has not been written in disparagement of the Koreans for no one can live among them without loving them and acknowledging their many admirable qualities. But unless he explains their many weaknesses of character on the ground of moral disability he will find the Koreans about the most baffling mystery among the races of men. How else can such great traits of life and conduct, such calm repose of manner, such intellectual ability exist along side such weakness, instability and lack of moral strength, were it not for the fact that centuries of surface religion, unblushing corruption in high places and a scheme of government that capitalized deceit and made the lie an economic necessity, have completely rotted away the foundation of character.

Today this nation is making a gallant attempt to come back and is putting forth prodigious efforts, but like the auto wheels spinning in the mud to all outward appearance she is only sinking deeper and deeper in the slough which is the accumulated mud of centuries of bad government and bad living.

What does the future hold for this land? It is alarming to hear the pessimistic forebodings of the native leaders who sense their nation's weaknesses but see no way to overcome them. The pull and the push method still have many advocates and young Korea, especially, expects to climb to financial and national safety via the strong rope of some outside nation.

We missionaries, however, go back to Roy Chapman Andrews' idea for we believe the only hope for this land lies in the lifting method and before we can put the moral jack under Korean character we must first build into their lives a spiritual bedrock foundation.

All of us, hope, of course, that there is a better financial day dawning for this land. We want the people to emerge from the shadow of ignorance and the bondage of debt. Yet we are willing to leave these things to the future for we frankly admit that these material matters are not our immediate concern.

A life must have a foundation as well as a skyscraper and both depend for permanence upon how well this foundation has been laid. This being true we can do this country no greater service than to build Christ into the lives of the people.

There are those who feel that we should give more attention to the material needs of the Koreans, some even make this the main work of the missionary. But I repeat, unless there is something strong in a character to tie to there is no way to lift it from the outside.

What Korea desperately needs is a moral foundation upon which it can build a new life. Can there any other foundation be laid apart from Christ? This and nothing else is our task.

If we missionaries can build strength into Korean life then we have built in hope and power, but after all our work is wholly one of foundation building. This is never spectacular. A thousand people will watch a steeple jack jolt the ball on a spire and never give a glance to the men down in the ground laying the foundation stones.

It would seem that the home church is rather disappointed in us missionaries because we work so much in stone and lime rather than on the the upperstories which are so much more noticeable. Some think our work finished, others believe we have worked on the foundation long enough and should get into the superstructure. Again I repeat, this nation must be lifted, not pulled or pushed and the only power under heaven that can lift it, is the moral jack of God's Word set firmly on the bedrock—Christ Jesus.

There is only one way to hasten the task and that is to increase the laborers and better the tools. So long as the Church is wedded to the policy of depleting the ranks of the missionaries in Korea or rather not replacing those we lose, and compels us to work each year in an elastic financial circle, just so long will this task be prolonged and every day a nation is miring down deeper in sin and despair.

The success of this method has been marked and there are today all over Korea strong men and women who will match up with Christian characters in any land who have been lifted out of their old lives by the power of Christ's Gospel. So far as I have been able to learn there is not a great transformed life in this whole land that has been reached by any other method save that of preaching Christ Jesus. We are getting fine results by the lifting method for after all it is Christ who lifts them and we are but workmen clearing out the debris so that he can have access to the heart of Korea. But there are so many of these moral wrecks and as yet the workmen are desperately few. Would that the Church at home would become committed to this plan and give us the men and tools to put into operation on a much larger scale.

One nation bogged up on the road of life slows up the advance of every other nation. Korea will not move until Christ has been built under and into her life. This is the job of us missionaries but we succeed just in proportion as we are supported by a loyal, praying, giving Home Church.

L. T. Newland.

Kwang-ju Korea.

OBITUARIES

RESOLUTIONS OF LOVE AND RESPECT

Mrs. Jennie Kyle Hill

Whereas God in His infinite love and wisdom has seen fit to take unto Himself our much beloved Sunday School teacher, we, the members of the Jennie K. Hill Bible Class, do rejoice in sweet submission to His will: therefore, be it resolved:

First: That in the home-going of Mrs. Jennie Kyle Hill, our class has sustained a deep and heartfelt loss; Second: That while her place with us can never be filled and we shall greatly miss the presence and help of our dear leader whose life was and ever will be an inspiration to us, we choose rather to dwell on the good and useful works she daily performed, while she walked in and out among us here, than to sorrow and mourn for her passing on, into that higher and fuller life, for indeed her life was filled with unselfish and loving deeds carrying courage, hope and cheer to all within her reach;

Third: That her life was an example of piety and faithful attendance upon every phase of the church work which was so dear to her heart especially our class which she taught so many years. Even in her last conscious moments she talked of going to Sunday School and sent her contribution and good will;

Fourth: That our heart goes out in deepest love and sympathy to her beloved children in their loss, and still we can but remind them of the blessing to have been reared by such a mother;

Fifth: That a copy of these resolutions be sent to each of her children, to The Evening Telegram, The Christian Observer, and the Presbyterian Standard, and recorded in the minutes of our class.

"Blessed are the dead which died in the Lord." Rev. 14:13.

(Signed): Members of the Jennie K. Hill Bible Class, Rocky Mount, N. C.

B. T. PRICE

Resolutions of Respect to the memory of B. T. Price adopted by the Session of Steele Creek Church, June 23, 1929.

Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from our midst our beloved brother and fellow-elder, B. T. Price, who for more than forty years was a faithful and consecrated elder and teacher in our church, Therefore, Be it resolved,

First, That in his death this church has sustained the loss of a friend, whose fellowship it was an inspiration and a pleasure to enjoy, that we bear testimony to his many virtues, to his glowing faith, and beautiful Christian life.

Second, That we also bear tribute to his fidelity to every trust and his zeal and consecration in the Master's service, both as elder and as a teacher in the Sabbath School, his interest in the welfare of his fellowman, and the godly example he has left to all.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be entered on our sessional records, that a copy be sent and that a copy be published in the Presbyterian Standard.

Respectfully submitted,

T. B. Spratt,

R. C. Freeman,

J. M. Walker,

Charlotte, N. C.

MRS. S. L. JOHNSON

MRS. M. B. ARNOLD

On July 28, 1928, Mrs. Sallie Lindsay of F. P. Johnson, aged 74 years was called early Home.

On March 20, 1929, Mrs. Maggie Bethel of the late Wm. Arnold, aged 75 years, died.

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Lillington Church would pay tribute to the memory of her co-workers:

1. That in the deaths of Mrs. Arnold and Mrs. Bethel the Auxiliary feels a sense of loss which cannot be described.

2. That through the quiet Christian life, and the effects of the Christian religion.

3. That we thank God for the examples and influence of these beautiful lives.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Presbyterian Standard, to The Harnett County News, to the family and a copy be spread on our

E. A. Atkins,

Mamie Brown,

Lena Marsh,

Lillington, N. C.

MRS. MARGARET SHAW BURNEY

No greater heritage can come to any memory of a sweet gentle mother, whose full of living faith, such was the bequest Shaw Burney to her children.

Mrs. Burney died at her home in Elkton early morning hours of May 31, 1929.

At the age of 18 she was married to the late W. Burney. To this union ten children were born, of whom five died in infancy and two others, Burney and daughter, Mrs. Catherine Burney, a few years past. The six surviving are Mrs. Burney, of Chadbourne, J. J. Burney, of W. James Burney of Elkton, and Mrs. James Flora Anderson and Miss Carey Burney, of thirteen grand children and ten great grandchildren.

Mrs. Burney, her husband and all of her children were charter members of Elkton Presbyterian Church. At the time of her death she was nearly 80 years of age and the oldest person in the community. She was the oldest member of the church to which her deep devotion, she and her husband have been faithful to its existence.

She was truly a great woman in her character, her exalted stand for Christian loyalty and devotion to Christ, and the kindness of heart, her hospitality and her strong affection for her family and friends.

Her home was always the preachers' haven of rest for her wide circle of relatives. Since this splendid Christian woman has gone among us and brought us face to face with death before which we can only say:

"Not now, but in the coming years,

It may be in the better land

We'll read the meaning of our tears,

And then, sometime, we'll understand.

Funeral services were conducted at the home of her pastor, Rev. J. E. L. Winecoff, by Rev. R. C. Klontz, of Wilmington and beautiful tributes paid to this good woman by those whom she had been so closely associated with.

Beautiful and impressive music was rendered by Joe Storm of Clarkton and Mr. J. C. C. deronville. The pall-bearers were the late deceased while the flower girls were the granddaughters. The large number of magnificent floral tributes and the mute testimony of the love and esteem of those who have departed were held.

Chadbourne, N. C.

DEATHS

Bigham—Banks Bigham was born March 16, 1929. He was a member of Mulberry Church, a young man of great heart, loved at home and liked by all. He died at Charlotte, N. C.

McMillan—Mrs. Margaret McMillan, of N. C. After a brief illness she was taken to her unselfish service, and the sweetness of her life, she held a place in the hearts of her loved ones which will be hard to fill. None knew her but to name her but to praise.

Floyd—Alva Brown Floyd, 39, Fairview, after an illness of several months he was called to rest June 14. A devoted wife and son, Jimmie, and other relatives and friends mourn their loss. He was ever patient and hopeful in spite of much suffering.

Moss—After an extended period of illness, Russell Aubrey Moss, of near Saxe, Va., died June 3, 1929. He was about sixty-nine years of age and a member of Hermon Presbyterian Church. His Christian spirit was exemplified in his life. "I am dead which die in the Lord." W. F. F. L.

How To Get

HEALTH

And How To Keep It

If the reading of this article teaches you only this one lesson about your own body it may be worth more than millions of dollars to you; for of what use is money without health, or after you are dead?

The lesson is this:—"Keep your system pure and you will have health and strength to gain and enjoy happiness, success and length of years."

But you may ask:—

How Can I Keep My System Pure?

That is not a hard question to answer, for physiology plainly teaches you that your liver, which is larger than all of the other glands of the body combined, is the special work of purifying your blood and thereby your entire system and of keeping it pure and healthy.

How Does the Liver Purify?

Physicians tell us that the liver has several functions, one of which is to manufacture a greenish-yellow, bitter fluid called bile, which, between meals, is stored up in the gall-bladder, but after each meal is poured out into the intestines. The bile is purgative and antiseptic or prophylactic. In health it is your bile that makes your bowels act regularly and freely every day,—it is Nature's purgative. It is your bile that keeps your bowels pure, sweet, clean and free from fermentation (gas) putrefaction and decay. Remember that germs do not thrive where there is fresh bile and there can therefore be no fermentation to cause gas, nor putrefaction or decay to produce poisons or toxins. Also, as bile is Nature's purgative, there can be no constipation if the bile is flowing naturally and freely from the gall-bladder into the bowels after each meal.

But when the bile becomes stagnant and stops flowing freely, your bowels stop acting regularly and the contents become a stagnant breeding bed for the germs of fermentation (gas) decay and disease. These poisons, (called toxins) are gradually absorbed into your blood and circulate all over your body, poisoning, irritating or inflaming your brain and nerves, your muscles and joints, your heart, lungs, skin, kidneys, bladder, spleen and every vital organ of your body, including your liver, stomach and bowels. Your doctor calls this "intestinal toxæmia."

Functions of Gall-Bladder

In 24 hours your liver secretes about 2 to 30 ounces (5 to 6 teacupfuls) of bile, which flows through millions of minute canals, or ducts, uniting to make a large tube which empties into the gall-bladder, as creeks and rivulets unit to form a river that flows into a lake. Your gall-bladder is a hollow muscle that serves the double purpose of a reservoir and a pump. Its functions are similar to those of the urinary bladder. About two hours after eating, when the food is passing from the stomach into the intestines, your gall-bladder should begin its peristaltic contractions, thus pumping the bile into the small intestine where it is mixed with your food. (Bile is also a very important digestive fluid, aiding in the digestion and absorption of fats and oils. But that is too long a story to relate here.)

Nature's Danger Signals

When your car gets out of fix you can tell it. It is the same way with your bile. Nature gives you warning—not by words, but by signals or symptoms. Your doctor recognizes these danger signals and you should also know them and instantly heed them. It may save you much pain, serious illness and perhaps big repair bills.

When the bile becomes stagnant in your gall-bladder and is dammed back into your liver instead of flowing freely into your bowels you, sooner or later, begin to feel some of the following symptoms:—Your breath may become unpleasant, your tongue coated, a bad taste in your mouth, your food (and tobacco) lose their natural flavor, your food does not agree with you; you may have heartburn, gas, or fluttering around the heart, dizziness or blind spell; you may be troubled with belching or frequent passages of gas from the bowels: the gas "balloons" your bowels and presses so hard on the kidneys that it gives you pain, soreness, stiffness in the small of your back over your kidneys, making you think you have kidney trouble; at night the gas in your bowels presses upon your bladder making you get up frequently, thus breaking into your sleep. In the morning you are tired instead of refreshed. Gradually your health is injured. Your complexion becomes sallow, muddy or yellow—your skin may be disfigured with liver spots or pimples; dark rings may appear under your eyes, you may become sleepless, restless and irritable or blue and melancholic. You may have frequent colds or dull headache; your bowels stop their free, full and natural action; you have constipation, gas putrefaction and self-poisoning or "intestinal toxæmia," as the doctors call it. High blood pressure, with headache and swooning spells, may result from continued neglect.

How to Make the Bile Flow

But when the bile stops flowing freely, how can we start it up again? The answer is: Take Calotabs at bedtime and drink water freely the next day. This formula represents the best thought and experience of the best physicians in every civilized country in the world. No other purgative will do. If you take oils, salts, cascara, or the many other simple-laxative syrups, powders and candy laxatives, you are merely wasting valuable time. They only make you feel better for a day or two. They do not remove the cause, for they do not promote the expulsion of the bile which is Nature's only purgative and intestinal antiseptic. When you take Calotabs you know that you have taken a real doctor's medicine. It cleans you out thoroughly. Every inch of your twenty-five foot canal, including your stomach, small intestines and large intestines, is thoroughly cleared and washed clean and pure and your bile is flowing freely. Next morning your system feels purified and refreshed and you are feeling fine, with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you please and go about your work;—there is no danger, for Calotabs are perfectly safe and create no habit, except the habit of healthy bowel actions.

What Are Calotabs—How Do They Act?

Calotabs are sugar-coated tablets, containing the minimum effective dose of a thoroughly purified and refined calomel combined with assistants and correctives. The calomel facilitates the expulsion of the bile from the gall-bladder into the intestines and also serves as a mild intestinal antiseptic and diuretic. Every physician knows that no other medicine can take its place; there is no such thing as a substitute for calomel. The assistants act like salts, washing the calomel out of the system and preventing its accumulation and any possibility of danger. The correctives settle the stomach and bowels, preventing nausea, sickening and griping effects. Calotabs, (and water) therefore, give you the combined effects of calomel and salts without the nausea, griping and disagreeable taste.

The medicine chest of every home should be supplied with Calotabs, one of the most important of all family medicines. It is needed in many cases of sickness, and, if used occasionally, as needed, may assist Nature to correct conditions which, if neglected may lead to serious illness.

Avoid disappointment by refusing imitations and substitutes. Your druggist can supply you with genuine Calotabs if you insist. For your protection, Calotabs are marketed in original packages only, bearing the copyrighted trademark. Family package, containing full directions, only 35 cents.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

The Department of Woman's Work, Presbyterian Church, U. S.
270-277 Field Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

SYNODICAL PRESIDENTS OF THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

Alabama—Mrs. J. F. Hooper, 610 Mabry St., Selma, Ala.
Appalachia—Mrs. F. B. Kegley, Wytheville, Va.
Arkansas—Mrs. Walter Wilson, Arkadelphia, Ark.
Florida—Mrs. W. G. Thompson, Jr., 3215 Ohispo St., Palma
Ceia Park, Tampa, Fla.
Georgia—Mrs. E. G. Aboott, 1315 Eberhart Ave., Columbus, Ga.
Kentucky—Mrs. H. P. Cooper, Lebanon, Ky.
Louisiana—Mrs. Charles L. Bodin, Box 79, M. R. A., Lake
Charles, Louisiana.
Mississippi—Mrs. J. S. Hicks, Holly Springs, Miss.
Missouri—Mrs. Walter Craven, 223 Frances St., Excelsior Springs, Mo.
North Carolina—Mrs. G. V. Patterson, Gastonia, N. C.
Oklahoma—Mrs. Wilbur Garvin, 611 Euclid, Lawton, Oklahoma.
South Carolina—Mrs. Parker Connor, Edisto Island, South Carolina.
Tennessee—Mrs. J. F. Forsythe, Bethel Springs, Tenn.
Texas—Mrs. J. W. Culver, Texas Military Academy, San Antonio, Texas.
Virginia—Mrs. C. R. Vaughan, 319 Mountain Ave., Roanoke, Va.
West Virginia—Mrs. J. McD. Lacy, Elkins, W. Va.

WOMAN'S WORK AT MONTREAT ASSEMBLY

Action of General Assembly of 1929 Touching the Department of Woman's Work

The Committee on Woman's Work would report that there came into our hands the seventeenth annual report of the Department of Woman's Work, portions of the report on the Committee on the Assembly's Work, and an overture from the Presbytery of Macon, touching the time of reports being made by local Auxiliaries.

At the invitation of your committee Miss Janie McGaughey, the new Secretary of Woman's Work, and Mrs. John Bratton, Chairman of the sub-committee on Woman's Work, of the Committee on Woman's Work, of the Committee on the Work of the Assembly, conferred with and gave to your committee valuable information relative to the Department of Woman's Work.

We would respectfully report as follows:

We are deeply grateful to God for His blessing upon this Department of our Church's life and service. The story of the seventeen years of Woman's Work in our Church, since the organization of the Woman's Auxiliary, is a story of continuous growth and enlarging vision and service.

We note with pleasure the fact that the Department of Woman's Work is ever alive to increasing its service to the Church, and that the interest of this Department is as broad as the work and the needs of the whole Church. The Year Book of Programs, published by the Department of Woman's Work, contains a program on every cause of the Church, paralleling the months in which these subjects are before the Church by order of the General Assembly. The very best material available for carrying out these programs is sent each month to the subscribers, and through this service they are enabled to have fresh and up-to-date material.

We heartily commend the plan of studying Stewardship in connection with the Mission Study classes. When hearts are stirred by missionary vision, the message of Stewardship shows the way for definite personal service.

We would call the Assembly's attention to the marked service of the Literature Department. Last year one million, five hundred and thirty-nine thousand, one hundred and twelve pieces of literature were sent out on request. Please note the words "on request." In addition to these leaflets, prepared to help officers and leaders in their work, other literature and report blanks were sent out, making the total circulation of the Literature Department almost two million. The receipts from this department amounted to seventeen thousand, nine hundred and eighty-five dollars; a distinct increase over last year.

We rejoice in the emphasis that is placed upon the development of spiritual life. The Literature Department sends out more leaflets on the subjects of Prayer, Bible Study, Tithing, Family Altars, and Stewardship, than concerning any other department of the work. It is evident from the requests that come to the office for this literature, that the great interest of the women of our Church is in spiritual growth. Many of our churches feel the power that comes from answered prayer, because of the many prayer groups encouraged by our Department of Women's Work.

Possibly the most important and unique pioneer work which has been done by the Department of Woman's Work has been the establishment of the conferences for colored women. Beginning with a gathering of colored women in 1916 at Tuscaloosa, Ala., meeting for a week of study of better ways of living, these conferences have steadily grown in favor until last summer thirteen of these conferences were held by as many Synodicals, and 567 colored women delegates were in attendance. The inspiration of these conferences is far-reaching. In connection with this work, the Birthday Offering of the Department of Women's Work last year was given to establish a nurses' training school at Tuscaloosa, Ala. The women of our Church are ministering to the physical as well as the spiritual needs of the colored people of the South.

We note with interest the Training Schools held, one at Montreat, and nine Synodical. The success of these schools has been phenomenal. In connection with this a plan has been developed to bring training and inspiration, not only to those who are able to attend Training Schools, but to numbers in different communities who are not able to attend the Montreat or Synodical Schools. Group conferences are held where representative women of a small group of churches are brought together for conference, instruction and inspiration. During the last year 323 of these Group Conferences were held and all attest their value.

The Department of Woman's Work is engaged in many labors of love and service, outside of the scope of regular church activities. Outfitting of missionary children for home-coming on furlough is one of these services. Only those of us who have loved ones on the foreign field know the real meaning of this thoughtful service. Our women, also, through their White Cross work, aid our missionary doctors and nurses. Each of our foreign hospitals has been "adopted" by a Presbyterial or a Synodical, and White Cross supplies are sent to them as their need is indicated by the medical staff.

It is with deep sorrow that we note that Mrs. W. C. Winsborough, the beloved Secretary of Woman's Work, has been forced to retire from active service because of ill health. Mrs. Winsborough's service to the Church has been remarkable. Under the leadership and guidance of the Holy Spirit our Woman's Work has grown through the seventeen years that Mrs. Winsborough has served as Secretary. In 1912 our women had no compact organization touching the life, the work and the needs of the whole Church. Since the establishing of the Department of Woman's Work, the work has grown, until last year over 140,000 women were united in definite service. During the past seven years, through their Birthday Gifts, the women have erected schools for girls, in Japan, Korea, and Brazil. In Texas they have erected a building for Mexican girls, and in Oklahoma they endowed a chair of Bible in Oklahoma Presbyterian College for Girls. Last year, as mentioned, they gave funds for the erection of a Nurses' Training School for Negro girls; and last but not least, by a Birthday Gift they erected a home for the President of the Assembly's Training School. These gifts have totaled $324,382. In the seventeen years of organized life the Auxiliary has given $3,419,437 to Foreign Missions; $995,144 to Assembly's Home Missions; $638,764 to Christian Education and Ministerial Relief, and other generous gifts to other departments of work of the Church. The Auxiliary's total gifts in the past seventeen years are $16,628,700.

We believe that the Committee on the Assembly's Work was right when it said:

"To Mrs. Winsborough, pre-eminently, is due the credit for organizing and perfecting the most effective piece of work perhaps ever accomplished by any denomination—the devotion of the women to the Lord's work in organized capacity. It has been her leadership, her far-reaching vision, and her indefatigable toil that have aroused to enthusiastic service the excellent women of the Church." In the retirement of Mrs. Winsborough our Church has lost a Christ-like leader in a great field of work.

In view of our loss it is with pleasure we note the election of Miss Janie W. McGaughey, as Secretary of the Department of Woman's Work. Miss McGaughey comes as no untried novice. She has served our Church for some years in varied capacities, and brings to the office of Secretary, life and gifts consecrated to the Savior and proved in His service.

We would make the following recommendations:

1. That the Assembly express the hearty appreciation of the whole Church of Mrs. Winsborough's ability, devotion, and self-sacrificing service in the cause of our Lord, Jesus Christ. We assure her of the earnest prayers of the Church that she may be allowed a long time of enjoyment in observing the increasing results of the plans she has so wisely inaugurated.
2. That the Assembly approve the election of Miss Janie W. McGaughey as Secretary of the Department of Woman's Work.
3. That the Assembly hereby authorize for this promotional agency the sum of $30,000 for the current year, to be provided by the Executive Committee as formerly in their proper proportions.
4. That the Assembly approve the Birthday Offering of the Department of Woman's Work and its plan of conduct.
5. That the Assembly answer overture No. 62 from Macon Presbytery in the negative.
6. That the Assembly bring the question of the overture from Macon Presbytery to the attention of the Secretary of the Department of Woman's Work, and authorize her to work out this problem in connection with the Committee of the Woman's Work and the Woman's Advisory Committee.
7. That upon the adoption of this report we hear from the Moderator of the General Assembly in appreciation of Mrs. Winsborough's work, and that he lead us in prayer for God's blessing upon her.

Warner H. DuBose, Chairman.

SOUTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE FOR COLORED WOMEN

The Sixth Annual Christian Conference for Colored Women was held at Benedict College, Columbia, June 6-13, under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Synod of South Carolina.

One hundred and sixteen delegates were registered from various parts of the state. Among these were 54 Baptists, 29 Methodists, 29 Presbyterians, 2 Episcopalians.

Each morning at 7:30 prayers were held in each of the four clan groups. After breakfast the entire body assembled in chapel for song service at 8:45. From 9 to 10 o'clock daily the Bible hour was conducted by Miss Mabel Briggs, Bible teacher for the Extension Department of the Columbia Bible School. These messages were of great spiritual benefit.

During the second period Miss Laura Blackburn, nurse with the South Carolina Bureau of Hygiene and Public Health Nursing, gave a most del-instructive course in nursing.

After a brief recess Mrs. George W. Shor of Religious Education in the Synodical Sunday School Methods and Daily Vacation School Work, which will be most helpful gates in their work at home.

An address was given every morning, speakers being, Miss Will Lou Gray, Superintendent of the Adult School of South Carolina, and Mrs. Rowsmith, President of the South Carolina Parent-Teacher Association.

A period of open conference closed the session.

In the afternoon classes in handicrafts enthusiastically entered into by the delegates, returned back to their homes many useful articles, made by them at this time.

Mrs. J. P. Elliott, President of Congregational, and of Columbia, taught a class in Pa-
Law, which, with its model demonstration pleasure and benefit to all members. This followed by play-ground games under the able of Miss Adele Minahan, Supervisor of the Playground Department. At 7:15 vesper at which time a deeply spiritual message. This was followed by the evening service. speakers were: Dr. C. B. Antidel, President of dict College; Rev. S. K. Phillips, pastor of senal Hill Presbyterian Church, Columbia. Sylvia Allen, President of the S. C. Men Association; the other evenings being given pictures in charge of Mrs. D. McL. McD. tive Secretary of the South Carolina Association; recreation and testimonials gates as to what this and past conference meant to them; and upon the last evening exercises were held, certificates and diplomas delivered by Mrs. Connor, Synodical Twelve received the three-year-course diploma.

Prof. Adair conducted the singing and Sunday School on Sunday morning, and Watson, colored evangelist of the Baptist preached the morning sermon.

The Christian spirit of the women, shown out the conference, was most gratifying.

A most delightful feature of the week was the beautiful singing of spirituals, which was enjoyed by the visitors.

The conference was under the able leadership of Mrs. W. O. Brownlee, now of Guerrant, by Mrs. J. I. Copeland, of Clinton, President of Carolina Presbyterial, and Mrs. Parker E. Edisto Island, Synodical President.

Plans are already being formulated for the conference. The co-operation of all is desired.

NORTH CAROLINA AND MISSION

Friends of North Carolina Synodical:

The committee appointed by North Carolina to build a unit at Mission Court, Richmond, has let the contract for the building. The approximate cost is $31,000. There will be approximately seven rooms each. It will be constructed and will be two stories high. The rooms are being built so as to give a home for missionaries who come home on furlough and have a home to go to. It also gives them opportunity for study either at Union Assembly's Training School. The building is to be finished by the last of August and four families anxiously waiting to occupy the rooms as soon as they are finished.

Mrs. Cameron Morrison, chairman of the unit has only received a little over $10,000 of this unit and she is in need of funds for the payments. I am hoping there may be interested people who will be glad to contribute either by a small or large contribution.

The rooms will have to be furnished at an expense of $200 or more. Linens, china and a bed are needed. I am sure there are many who will be able and glad to contribute. Perhaps there are enough people who would like to furnish a room in memory of some friend, or a missionary. I do not know a better plan than this.

The unit is going to be most comfortable in every respect and ideally and beautifully. A real haven of rest for our tired missionaries come back to us after years of hard work.

If you would like to have a part in the furnishing of this unit, please send your contribution as soon as you can to Mrs. Cameron Morrison, N. C., and mark it either for the Mission Fund.

I assure you your gift will be gratefully received and acknowledged.

Yours in His service,

(Mrs. G. V.) Annie Pa

President North Carolina

Gastonia, N. C., June 26, 1929.

Have you ever been in a chemist's shop and seen him take a small quantity of black powder, evaporate the liquid, put the powder in a glass dish, fire it, distill it again, evaporate it again, and then produce a few grains of the pink-colored substance taken out of the dish? So does God with you and me. He takes the black which is like a little black dust with which we are covered, and hopes in it, passes it through a filter, and pours it from vessel to vessel with a skillful hand, till at last we become the white. —John Watson.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Ernest Trice Thompson, D.D.

Lesson for July 14

EZEKIEL TEACHES PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY

Ezek. 18:1-32; 33:1-20

last week Ezekiel's call to the prophetic experiences that reveal to us how he responded in times of danger and in times of popularity and in times of adversity. We have for our present study two passages with the question of one's personal responsibility for his neighbors' souls, and then for the first message was delivered to the man on the river Chebar in the sixth year of the activities, one year before the final destruction. As the people considered their own situation, and faced the imminent destruction about which all their hopes were gathered and heartened and confused. As Doctor David-son in the Cambridge Bible: "The strokes that after another upon the state might be the state was considered as a moral person-ified all through her history; but the strokes were deserved by the general mass fell weight on many who had not been part-ners that brought them down. The captives under Jehoiachin (i. e. the captives to whom the address was made) were more righteous than those who inherited the mountains of Israel; and in the dark days of Manasseh even the subject of Zedekiah might think themselves such reflections made the people feel themselves as by a kind of fate in the deeds of their fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the cup is set on edge." This proverb might ex-plain feelings as it came from many different sources might be uttered by some in self-exculpation, in a self-righteous tone; or it might be the perplexed condition of mind, which found the cup dark, and went so far as to arraign the cup; or finally it might express the feeling of a hopeless fate inherited from the past—a fate crushed out individual life and paralysed effort after righteousness, and delivered over to the inactivity of despair."

The situation among the exiles that called for this prophecy recorded for us in Ezek. 18:1-32. The facts in mind take up your study of the message down in a single sentence the theme of the paragraphs, verses 1-4, 5-9, 10-13, 14-18, 19-32. Put in a single sentence the theme of the chapter. What are the special points of interest in the prophet's description of a righteous man? For a description of a good Christian? Compare Ezekiel's gospel (30-31) with Jesus' message was written after the fall of Jeru-salem. They were completely prostrated by such mis-fortune had no hope for the future. Only the direct. He knew that the Lord had not made of Israel. The old era was closed, but a new era was to open, and a new Israel about to arise. What we study in Chapter 33 is part of a message which shows us how the prophet faced his situation and sought to lift the people out of their despair. This in mind read Ezek. 33:1-20. What is the attitude as revealed in verses 18-20? Write down the paragraph themes, verses 1-6, 7-10, 11-14, 15-18, 19-20. Write down the theme of the whole chapter. What are the points of special interest in this much duplication of material in these two chapters will treat them together, following in gen-eral as it is developed in Ezek. 33:1-20.

Man's Responsibility for His Neighbor's Soul—33:1-9

is practically identical with the one that we study in 1:16-21. At the beginning of his ministry, it was impressed upon the prophet that he was to be a watchman over God's people. Jerusalem had fallen, and Ezekiel faced the period of his ministry, the opportunity to do constructive work of the nation that he accepted in reforming the nation's religious life, the fact that he had been impressed upon him, the fact that he had been made responsible for his neighbor's soul. To bring this message to him God speaks of: "The responsibility of a Watchman, 33:1-6. When the people were in danger of being attacked they placed a watchman upon the walls. The watchman approached it was his duty to warn the people by sounding the trumpet. The signal gave the people in their fields outside the city gates an opportunity to seek protection within the city walls; it gave them an opportunity to close its gates and defend themselves. If the watchman failed to give the signal, he was responsible for the fate of the city; if he sounded the trumpet, and men outside the walls or in the fields failed to take heed they alone were responsible for their fate. The responsibility of the Prophet, 33:7-19. In like manner what befell them."

The prophet, addressed here as usual in this message, is a watchman over the spiritual life of the people. He is one "who sees further into the future than other men, and discerns the course of things which is to them invisible. His business is to warn, therefore, is clear. His business is to warn in trumpet tones the doom that hangs over every man who persists in his wickedness, to re-echo the divine sentence which he alone may have heard: "O wicked man, thou shalt die." If he fails to warn men of their coming doom the responsibility for their death lies upon his own head, and an accounting shall be demanded at his hands.

In studying this part of the prophet's message we are not concerned so much about Ezekiel's responsibility for his neighbor's fate as we are in our own. Do these words apply only to the Old Testament prophet or do they also apply to the Christian? In other words are Christians today responsible in part for the eternal welfare of their neighbor's souls?

We will probably agree that such a responsibility does rest upon ministers, teachers and parents. Can ministers and teachers fulfill this responsibility by speaking generally from the pulpit or in the class room, or is it necessary for them in discharging this obligation to deal with the individual as an individual? How far can parents transfer their responsibility to the Church?

Does this responsibility for the souls of men rest only upon ministers and teachers and parents, or also upon other members of the Church. Does it rest upon all members of the Church, or only upon those who have special gifts for doing such work? In considering this question recall that Jesus makes no distinction between ministers and laymen. The Presbyterian and Reformed Churches make no distinction except that ministers are set aside to serve their brethren.

If there is an obligation resting upon others besides the minister how can this obligation be carried out? Can it be fulfilled by attending the church and contributing to its evangelistic activities, i. e. by giving money that others may give their lives? Or must every Christian also be ready to do what is called personal work? Should ordinary Christians speak to strangers about their spiritual welfare? Should we speak to those with whom we have a slight, or casual acquaintance, those whom we meet in the routine of life, or with whom we have associations in business or in school? Should we speak to our friends?

If we have an individual responsibility for engaging in personal work, how should we go about it? Where should we begin? What is the best way to approach people?

II. The Christian's Responsibility for His Own Soul 18:1-32; 33:10-20

Ezekiel was quick to recognize his own obligation to warn the people of their spiritual danger; but he recognized at the same time that the ultimate responsibility rests upon the individual himself. He emphasized this in both of the messages now under consideration. Taking them together we note that he makes two points:

1. A Man's Standing before God is not Determined by His Ancestry, but by His Own Personal Attitude toward God, 18:1-20. The first or negative proposition in this thesis is not so important for us as it was for the Jews. They believed in the solidarity of the race. They believed that the children suffered for the sins of their fathers: not only that the children were involved in the consequences of their fathers' sins, but also that they inherited their fathers' standing before God. After the exile the feeling grew, leading many of the exiles to question the goodness of God, and others to settle down in hopeless despair. They put their philosophy in a popular proverb: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge."

Ezekiel begins by denying this popular proverb. The children do not suffer for the sins of their fathers. He does not mean, of course, that the children are not involved in the consequence of their fathers' sins, but he does deny emphatically that the sin of the father involves the death of the son or affects his standing in the sight of God. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father so also the soul of the son is mine; the soul that sinneth it shall die. In the Hebrew 'it' is emphatic: The soul that sinneth it shall die. Here is the theme of the chapter. Each soul bears its own personal responsibility. To drive the point home he gives an example of three generations. The grandfather (verse 5-9) is righteous, and escapes death. His son (10-13) is unrighteous and as a penalty dies. The grandson (14-17) takes this as a warning, is righteous and lives. Then in verses 19-20 the prophet repeats the great theme of his discourse: The soul that sinneth it shall die; the son shall not bear the iniquity of the father, neither shall the father bear the iniquity of the son.

'Soul' as used here by Ezekiel means 'person' or 'self,'—the whole man, and not any special part of him. When he says that the soul that sinneth it shall die, and conversely that he that is just shall live, he is not thinking merely of physical life and death. To live means to enter into the glories of the kingdom; to die means to be excluded from these glories.

Ezekiel's description of a righteous man (5-9) has a special interest of its own, but is a little off our main theme. To eat upon the mountains means to participate in the immortal heathen religions. The R. V. translates verse 8 more accurately than the A. V., "he that hath not given forth upon interest, neither hath taken increase." The civilization of Ezekiel's day was very different from our own; in his day the taking of interest meant only the oppression of the poor; in our day it is a convenience both to him who borrows and him who lends. But though some of our standards have changed since Ezekiel's days the portrait as a whole still stands: the righteous man is one who is loyal to God, who is absolutely just in his relations to his fellowmen, and is in addition generous and considerate to those who are in need.

2. A Man's Standing before God is not Determined by His Own Past, but by His Present Attitude toward God, 33:10-20; 18:21-37. Ezekiel here carries the argument one step further. Each individual is responsible for his own soul, but what if a man departs from his righteousness, or if a sinner repents of his sin? If a man has sinned has he sealed his doom? if he is recognized as a righteous man, a member of the Church in good standing, is his future safe? There was a need for Ezekiel to discuss this point. The Jews were simply overwhelmed by the calamity that had come to them. It seemed the end of every-thing. They had come to regard their calamities as due to their sins and as evidence of them. They had come around to the prophet's view of their history, for they saw his predictions fulfilled. But the new view came with crushing weight upon them. "Our transgressions and our sins are upon us," they thought, "and we pine away in them; how then can we live?"

To meet this situation Ezekiel reminds them first that God's desire is that all men shall live, 33:11. Cf. 18:23. Cf. also J3:16 and 1 Tim. 2:4. He argues second and more at length that a man's destiny is not determined by his past 33:12-24; 18:24-30. If a righteous man cease to live righteously he shall die; if a sinful man repents of his sins and turns from them he shall live. In other words "not an arithmetical calculation balancing the good and evil deeds of life will determine a man's destiny but the actual religious condition of the man, as evidenced by his conduct at the time of judgment." The people accuse God of acting capriciously, verse 17. Ezekiel denies this: men may act capriciously, but God acts in accordance with eternal principles. He judges each man after his ways. The argument is accompanied by an invitation. In 33:11 he exhorts the people: Turn ye, turn ye from your evil ways; for why will ye die, O house of Israel? In Chapter 18:31-32 the invitation is elaborated. Ezekiel pours his very heart into his plea: Cast away from you all your transgressions, wherein ye have transgressed; and make you a new heart and a new spirit: for why will ye die, O house of Israel? For I have no pleasure in the death of him that dieth, saith the Lord Jehovah: wherefore turn yourselves and live.

Ezekiel's first negative proposition in regard to the individual's responsibility for his own soul, i. e. the proposition that a man's standing before God is not determined by his ancestry does not have the same value for us that it had for Israel. There are probably no men who think that they are doomed because of their fathers' sins. There may be some who are lulled into a sense of false security because of their parents' religion. There are, however, two practical considerations here for the Church. The first is the suggestion that the task of the Church is never done. We must win each generation anew to a personal allegiance to Jesus Christ. The righteousness of the parents does not guarantee the righteousness of the children; the religion of the parents does not guarantee the religion of the children. Parents have the chief responsibility here; but the church also recognizes its responsibility. How can both better discharge their task? The second consideration is the fact that no man is kept out of the Kingdom because of his father's attitude. The church is tempted sometimes to limit its services to the children of Christian parents. Is your Church doing what it should to reach the children of the non-church?

Ezekiel's second negative proposition is that a man's standing before God is not determined by his own part. Is there a general recognition of this fact? Is there a temptation for a Christian to think himself too secure because he is a member of the church, or because he has lived a more or less righteous life in the past? Why do so many Christians fall into grievous sin, live lives notoriously selfish and corrupt? Does profession of one's faith in Christ, membership in the church save a man if he sins, and fails to repent of his sin? Or to turn to the other side of the question are there any men today weighed down by the sins of their past, by habits which they cannot break? There are such men. They could use of themselves almost the very language of Ezek. 33:11. Are such men beyond hope? Is our Gospel, Ezekiel's Gospel, sufficient to have such men? How can we reach them?

Ezekiel is interested in pointing out that a man's standing before God is not determined by his ancestry or by his own past. But he is more concerned to emphasize the positive proposition that every man is directly responsible before God for his own soul here and now: The soul that sinneth it shall die. I have no pleasure in the death of him that dieth, wherefore turn yourselves and live. Readers of this paper will agree with that proposition. But many men today do not. They are blind to the ravages of sin in this life, they do not realize that sin brings eternal death—if it is allowed to run its full course. Why is this? How can we bring home to them a sense of their responsibility? Modern Science teaches us that many moral defects can be traced back to physical defects. Many criminals need to be treated by a doctor. Recognizing that this is true can a man free himself of the responsibility for his acts? How far can a man be explained by his heredity or by his environment? Is Ezekiel's teaching on personal responsibility an appropriate one for our present day?

If we are really Christians, we must expect severe tests. A soldier in the East Indies, a stalwart man, who had been a prize fighter, was a terror to his regiment. He was converted and the lion became a lamb. Two months afterward in the mess room some of those who had been afraid of him before began to ridicule him. One of them threw a basin of hot soup over him. The whole company gazed in breathless silence expecting that the offender would be murdered. But after he had torn over his waistcoat and wiped his scalded breast, he turned around and said, "This is what I expected when I became a Christian." —Exchange.

"Four things a man must learn to do
If he would make his record true:
To think without confusion clearly;
To love his fellowmen sincerely;
To act from honest motives purely;
To trust in God and heaven securely."

—Henry Van Dyke.

When the Macedonian cries, "Help!" be a Paul on the spot.

CHILDREN

A FOURTH OF JULY STORY

"Mother, may I go to the State House and help grandfather?" asked the boy.

"Yes, indeed, son, if thy grandfather needs thee."

"Indeed, I do, daughter; my old legs grow weary trotting about these days, and each day the meetings are longer while our wise men are discussing our rights to liberty."

"Dost thou think they will sign the letter to the king today, grandfather?" ask the boy eagerly.

"That no man can tell. Truly 'tis a bold thing to do; but the king hath brought it upon himself, and the time has come for us to declare our independence."

"Then it may happen today. Oh, I am so glad to go with thee, grandfather, and I will help thee all I can!"

And the old sexton and his grandson took their way over to the state House.

"The City of Brotherly Love" was usually very quiet and peaceful, but today all was confusion and noise as the people swarmed down the streets talking about the important paper. "Will they sign it today?" "Do they dare?" "It is very wrong." "No, neighbor, thou art wrong. It is a just deed."

Although the hour was early, crowds were pressing close about the doors of the State House, and the old sexton and his grandson had difficulty in reaching the hall. The large room was opened and aired. The young lad and his grandfather dusted the chairs and set things to rights on the table. As the grandfather brought fresh ink and sharpened the quill pens he said solemnly: "These tools will be used today in the freeing of a country."

Then the delegates filed into the great hall, and as they took their places the grandfather led the boy aside and pointed out the various members of Congress:

"That man who has just seated himself in the tall chair behind the table is John Hancock, the president of Congress; and the young man standing near him is Thomas Jefferson. He was the one chosen to draft the paper, and then he read it to his committee — John Adams, who is sitting over there; Roger Sherman, Robert Livingston, and our own Benjamin Franklin. This committee approved of the paper, as presented by Jefferson, and with a few changes, they submitted it to Congress, and day after day they have spent discussing it; but mark my word, lad, this day, July 4, 1776, will end our weary waiting.

"Now, I will tell thee our plan: When the paper is signed they wish the news spread to all the waiting people outside; so I will climb to the bell tower, ready to ring the great bell. Thou must wait below here in the hall, and when they tell thee it is signed, thee must run with all good speed and give me the signal to ring the bell. Come, lad, to the bell tower, and I will show thee where I will stand."

The boy followed his grandfather to the bell tower and there he gazed at the bell hanging high overhead. "I can see words on the side of it, grandfather," said the boy. "Dost thou know what it says?"

"Yes, child, verily, the words are these: "Proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto the inhabitants thereof."

"Oh!" said the boy, his eyes shining with enthusiasm. "And that is what the great bell will do when I give thee the signal. It is truly a liberty bell, is it not, grandfather?"

"Yes, lad; but now run to thy post; the signal may come at any moment."

All day long they waited while the eager and impatient crowd surged through the street; and all day long the earnest men discussed the important question and answered the roll-call of the separate states. At last they made it a unanimous vote, and one after another came to the desk and signed his name.

John Hancock, president of the Congress, was the first to sign. He dipped his pen far down into the ink and wrote his name in large, black letters; and as he did so he said: "There, John Bull can read my name without spectacles. Now, let him double the price on my head, for this is my defiance." Then he turned about, and, looking at the other members of Congress, said: "We must be unanimous; there must

WHERE IS SUSIE MAE

(To be colored with paints or crayons.

Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color.)

"Where is Susie Mae?" cries BROWN-haired Teddy, searching for YELLOW-haired Susie May.

Of course, you can see Susie May peeping from behind the big GRAY (use BLACK lightly) trunk of the maple tree. There are two YELLOW buttercups at the foot of the tree in the GREEN grass.

Susie May has a PINK (use RED lightly) ribbon about her head and a PINK sash, too. Her frock is light YELLOW, with white collar and cuffs.

Teddy wears a YELLOW blouse with white collar and cuffs and dark RED trousers with white buttons. His tie is RED also. His socks can be colored YELLOW.

The garden summer house is made of rustic wood. It is BROWN with a RED brick floor and ball at the Paint the leaves of the GREEN and the sky BLUE.

Both children have PINK RED lips.

The border of this picture colored RED and GREEN.

Teddy and Susie May are fun playing "hide and seek" in Park.

be no pulling different ways—we must all hang together."

"Yes," said Franklin, his eyes twinkling with humor. "We must all hang together or most assuredly we shall all hang separately."

Finally the Declaration of Independence was signed, and one of the members went to the door and whispered to the little lad who had waited so patiently outside in the hall. The boy fairly bounded up the staircase and, as he ran, he called loudly to the old man waiting above:

"Ring, ring, grandfather, ring! Ring out for liberty!"

The old man grasped the bell-rope, and soon the iron tongue was striking the great bell and its deep tones were pealing out upon the air. Surely it did "proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof;" and truly now it was a liberty bell. — The Sunbeam.

PUZZLE CORNER

Cryptic Presidents

They all aimed for progress, and progress to this day, Is the goal for everyone, so start on your way.

1. Dppmjehf
2. Mjopdmo
3. Nbejtpo
4. Xjmtpo
5. Hbsgjfime
6. Ubzmps
7. Xbtijohupo
8. Spptfwfmu

Nut Initial

The initials of the following three-letter words name a nut.

1. A vegetable
2. A fish
3. An animal
4. Noah's boat
5. Fresh

Junior Cross-Word Puzzle

Horizontal

- 1—Being in the water
- 4—Liquid measure (pl.-abbr.)
- 6—Teach
- 7—Pronoun
- 8—Leafless organ of a plant

Vertical

- 1—To be helpful to
- 2—Plotted
- 3—High Army officer
- 4—Place
- 5—To pronounce in words

Puzzle Answers on Page 18

RICH IN GRANDMOTHERS

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl nearly six years old. I haven't any brothers or sisters. I go to Sunday School to the Presbyterian Church here in Laurinburg. My teacher's names are Mrs. Dave Shaw and Miss Margaret Leach; I like them fine. I have two grandmothers living here. One's name is Mrs. R. A. Russ, the other Mrs. Theresa McIntyre.

I like for mother to read the letters in the Standard for me. I hope we have the pleasure of seeing my letters too.

Your little friend,

Mary Elizabeth McIntyre.

Laurinburg, N. C.

YES—WITH BRIDESM EVERYTHING

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl eleven years old. I am now attending the Daily Bible School which my father and mother are teaching. I have two brothers and two sisters. Their names are Steve and Sarah Tilda. I love to write letters and color the pictures in your magazine. I hope Mr. Erwin has gone for his June work. I can't bother this letter. I hope other girls that take the Standard would write me.

Your little friend,

Margaret

Erwin, N. C.

Fun For Little

A few of the pictures printed in the Standard are being published in pamphlet form. Each pamphlet contains twelve different pictures colored by the little folks or paints.

These pamphlets will be used in Daily Vacation Schools and the nursery. The little folks will enjoy the pictures and it will furnish a medium for the teacher to instruct their children in drawing and the value of art.

PRICES

(Cash with Order)

- 100 Books
- 50 Books
- 25 Books
- 10 Books
- 5 Books
- 1 Book

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

O R Y

THE OLD BLOCK

McCarty Duckwall Springs, W. Va.

wreak his long cherished revenge. His devotion to his patients led the brave young Doctor to disregard prudence, and remain too long at his post for safety. Miss Mary Gilkeson, his trained nurse, had loyally remained to assist him.

Li Hi, the heathen Witch Doctor, gathered a dozen of his ignorant and superstitious followers, and greatly inflamed them against all foreigners, especially against the Doctor and his Nurse. When Chinese soldiers entered the town, Li Hi and his band of inhuman yellow fiends invaded the hospital. The Doctor and his Nurse made a brave effort to protect their helpless patients. They succeeded in doing so, owing to Li's eagerness to wreak his spite upon the Doctor himself.

Perceiving that fact, the young Doctor let the Nurse understand that their proper course was to retreat from the hospital; and thus to draw their enemies away from the hospital; and thus to draw their enemies away from their patients. With loud shrieks of disappointed rage, Li and his followers pursued them. Not very far from the hospital was the place where the Doctor planned to make his fight for Miss Gilkeson, and for his own life.

One against thirteen seemed a hopeless fight against odds, too many to withstand. But the young Doctor's manhood was the sort that is too brave to be cowed. He possessed the vigor of a healthy young mountaineer, and a trained college athlete. He had a mind well equipped for meeting life's varied and numerous emergencies. From his versatile father, he had learned many useful things; including many tricks of a ventriloquist.

Putting Miss Gilkeson behind the protection of a projection building, he turned and faced his pursuers. Waving them back with both his hands, he commanded them to halt. Shocked by his brave actions, and perceiving the meaning of his gestures, the surprised heathens tumbled over each other, in their efforts to get themselves stopped. But Li quickly recovered his balance and rushed at his valiant foe. The Doctor put his left foot forward, just behind Li's front foot, and clenched his right hand fist under Li's chin, with all the force of 160 pounds of his vigorous young manhood; rising up on his toes. The back of Li's head hit the ground; the softness of which saved him from a broken skull. The next instant, the Doctor found himself vainly struggling in the arms of a powerful Chinaman. His fate seemed sealed.

But then it was that Miss Gilkeson got herself into the fray. From a pile of broken furniture that looting soldiers had pitched into the street, she had secured a sufficient weapon for her purpose. With it, she landed a scientific blow on the back of the big Chinaman's head, just at the base of his brain. His arms instantly released the Doctor, and he staggered and fell to the ground. As another Chinaman rushed at the Doctor, he tackled the heathen in an expert manner and laid him on his back with a broken rib.

Then Miss Gilkeson handed him her weapon, with which the Doctor broke the skulls of two more of their fiendish assailants. But two others got Miss Gilkeson in their strong arms, apparently helpless. She was not so helpless, however, as they must have supposed. In spite of her arms being held, she managed to get her right hand into her dress pocket, and to get out her hospital scissors. With them, she was able to reach the throat of one of her inhuman assailants. But another foe still held her in his powerful arms. But her arm was now more free; and in an instant, her scissors had deprived him of one of his eyes; and he was shrieking with pain. Just then, Li rose to his feet, and got behind the Doctor, as foes in front had his attention, caught his right arm, and twisted it to helplessness.

Then a curious looking helper got into the fight. It was a poor little disfigured and crippled Chinese girl; one of the victims of Li Hi's cruel practices. She had found in Doctor Campbell and Miss Gilkeson friends, whose loving kindness had won from her gratitude more strong than her love of life, or fear of death. Mi Ma, or "Our May," as Miss Gilkeson had lovingly renamed her, had come to cherish their hospital as her home. In spite of her afflicted and crippled condition, she had made herself wonderfully useful. To one poor heathen patient after another, she had seemed a veritable Angel of Love and Mercy, as she made known to them the sweet story of salvation, that had filled her own heart with songs of exalted joy.

As the Doctor and Miss Gilkeson left the hospital, pursued by their foes, May fully realized their awful danger. With an earnest prayer for help, she hastened to their relief. Getting a pistol, that the Doctor had fortunately brought from America, she called Jack, their pet dog, and started in pursuit of the pursuers. Owing to her crippled condition, her progress was very slow, but her determination enabled her to get herself into the unequal fight, just in the nick of time to turn the tide, of battle. At her command, Jack fastened his sharp teeth in one of Li's legs, thereby releasing the helpless Doctor from his worst and most dangerous enemy. That gave the heroic girl time to get close enough to make the pistol effective in her unpracticed hand. One shot released the Doctor from the grasp of another assailant. A second shot disabled one of Miss Gilkeson's assailants, and released her from another. May handed the pistol to her.

Unable to use his twisted arm, the Doctor took his cue from Jack, and began to use the tricks of a ventriloquist that his father had found so effective. As Li was fighting Jack in front of him, the Doctor made another dog seem to bark behind him. That gave Jack another chance to fasten his teeth in his other leg. As two of the inhuman fiends were about to wreak fearful vengeance upon poor little crippled May, they heard two tom cats fighting on their backs. Miss Gilkeson fired the pistol, but missed her foes. As Li got loose from Jack's teeth, another dog barked behind him, and a tom cat fight got started on his shoulders. Then Li took to his heels, followed by all of his tribe that could run.

As Miss Gilkeson gathered Our May into her arms, their emotions were too strong to express in words. Followed by their faithful dog, they and the Doctor, started back to the hospital. They were soon met by an excited group of their loyal Chinese friends, coming to their aid. In the hospital, they found a large number more, who had rushed there, just as soon as the invading Chinese soldiers had aroused their apprehensions for them. After Miss Gilkeson and a native helper had gotten the Doctor's twisted arm into proper place and bandaged, a general consultation was held. Their native friends took into their own hands the business of providing for the safety of the Doctor and Miss Gilkeson. They knew that Li's fury would certainly be greatly aroused by his defeat; and that he would secure a larger force of followers, to help him wreak his vengeance upon them. Some of them took charge of Miss Gilkeson, and others of the Memorial Breastplate

"And thou shalt make the breastplate of judgment with cunning work. . . . And thou shalt set it in settings of stones, even four rows of stones: the first row shall be a sardius, a topaz and a carbuncle: this shall be the first row. And the second row shall be an emerald, a sapphire, and a diamond. And the third row a ligure, an agate and an amethyst. And the fourth row a beryl, an onyx, and a jasper. . . ."

EXODUS Ch. 28: Vs. 15-20.

Aaron, the high priest, was commanded to wear the breastplate with the names of the twelve tribes of the children of Israel on the twelve precious stones before the Lord for a Memorial.

Quite remarkably these precious gems and others are found in minute crystals in the superb modern Memorial stone

Winnsboro Granite

"The Silk of the Trade"

On the surface of this granite, which is a composite of these and other actual precious crystals, is highly polished, all the scintillating beauty and color of these minute jewels become visible.

Be sure that "Winnsboro Granite" is specified in your contract for monuments. Like other high quality materials, there are many inferior substitutes, which resemble this granite on first appearance, but do not possess its lasting qualities and permanent beauty, because they contain more deleterious elements, such as water, lime and iron. These elements tend to disintegration and discoloration.

Let your monument dealer furnish you with a personal guarantee from the quarries that the monument you purchase is cut in genuine Winnsboro Granite.

The certificate of the quarries is signed by B. H. Heyward, President, and General Manager, whose signature insures genuine Winnsboro Granite. A facsimile of this signature is reproduced below.

Write for free descriptive literature.

Winnsboro Granite Corporation, Rion, S. C.

B. H. Heyward Treas. & Gen. Mgr.

the Doctor. Under the Doctor's directions, the hospital and its patients were placed in charge of the more experienced and best qualified native helpers.

After a service of prayer that none of them could ever forget, the Doctor and Miss Gilkeson bade a loving and tearful farewell to their patients and friends. As they separated, in the darkness of the night, at the hospital door, they grasped each other's hands with the parting words, "God be with thee till we meet again." Her native protectors soon had Miss Gilkeson in a comfortable place of concealment, a few miles from the city. There they transformed her into a Chinese woman, by giving her the dress of a native, and staining her face and ams. The Doctor's friends led him some ten miles, in another direction. There he was provided with shelter, food and rest. His arm had given him some pain, but was not seriously injured. The use of it was fully restored in a few days.

Miss Gilkeson mingled freely with her native friends, learning much of the trend of events. Her disguise and knowledge of the Chinese language enabled her to even venture to visit the hospital. There she was greatly shocked to learn that Li Hi had been there, seeking the Doctor. He was too cunning to harm any of the patients, much as he wanted to do so. By pretending his good will for them, he tried to learn from them where to find the Doctor. His cunning was rewarded by his getting the aid of a treacherous native hospital helper whom the Doctor had punished for his petty stealing. The rascal learned the hiding place of the Doctor, and revealed it to Li Hi, for a small reward.

It took Li several days to mature his plans and secure a large force of native helpers. Then he hastened with them, after dark, to secure the Doctor. But faithful little May had been on the alert at the hospital, and had discovered the treachery and learned Li's plans. By another loyal native girl, more active than herself, she hastened to send Miss Gilkeson full information thereof. Guided by a native woman, Miss Gilkeson immediately carried the news to the Doctor. By his insisting, she was still required to keep the pistol. By that time, faithful native friends had brought the news that Li and a large force were only a few miles distant. Guided by a native of that locality, the Doctor hastened to seek a place of safety. They soon came to a large stream, which they had hoped to cross before their enemies overtook them. But they were too late for that. By the Doctor's urging, his Guide had safely concealed himself, before Li and his yelling savages came in sight of them. Throwing his coat on the ground, the Doctor dived into the stream, and swam for the opposite bank. Under ordinary conditions, he could have easily reached it. But his injured arm had lost some of its strength. And he was not yet recovered from the effects of the fearful strain to which he had so recently been subjected.

There was a strong current in the middle of the stream, that carried him with it for some distance. By exerting his strength to the very utmost, he managed to keep towards the opposite bank, and to finally cross the current that was carrying him. But that left him entirely exhausted. For a few moments, he managed to keep his head above the water; and then he sank beneath it. Under the water, he struggled to his feet. When he stood upon his feet, he was much surprised to discover that his head was above the water. His surprise grew to amazement, when he perceived that he was in darkness, for reasons that he could not understand. In his exhausted condition, he staggered along, finding himself getting more above the water, but still in utter darkness. As his tired arms dropped to his side, one of his hands felt something in his pocket. It was his hospital flashlight that he used to inspect the wounds of some of his patients. Its light soon revealed his situation to him, and explained what had kept him so greatly wondering. He was wading up a small stream, in the entrance of a cavern. It flowed out of the cavern into the much larger stream than he had just swum across.

Li and his followers had stood and watched the Doctor in his vain struggles against the river's strong current; and had seen him sink beneath its deep waters. When he failed to come to the surface again, they watched until they were absolutely certain that he was drowned. Shouting their savage glee over their gratified hatred and malice, they returned to their homes.

As soon as the Doctor got far enough into the cavern, he got out of the water, and threw himself down on the ground to rest. When a little recovered from his utter exhaustion, he removed his clothes and wrung them as dry as he could. Then he gradually exercised himself into comfortable condition; which took some time. His clothes being very light, he soon succeeded in getting them dry enough to wear again. After sleeping for unknown hours, he awakened, feeling greatly refreshed, but very hungry. He greatly enjoyed a huge drink of water, from the stream that had so wonderfully delivered him from certain death.

Then he gave attention to his situation and urgent needs. After a season of delightful worship, seeking guidance and help from his God, to whom he poured out his heart in sincere praise and thanksgiving, for his wonderful deliverances, one after another. After very careful consideration, he decided to seek another outlet from the cavern, rather than try to return through the two streams that he came. The dangers of getting lost, and of exhausting his flashlight, were very great. But he decided to risk them, trusting in God. He wandered under ground for what seemed miles. He had to keep his flashlight darkened as much as possible so as to perceive the light from any entrance that he might find. He was getting fearfully hungry, and very uneasy about his small chances for securing any food. But he pressed forward, praying for help and guidance.

A sudden noise gave him a severe shock, although it was not very loud. His imagination was greatly excited; but he had no idea what the noise could possibly be. After considerable hesitation, he decided to seek the cause and location of it. That proved his deliverance for birds had made the noise, and their nests were in the cavern, near the entrance he was seeking. Their eggs were the most enjoyable meal that he had ever eaten. After looking carefully outside of the welcome entrance to the cavern, he went back inside, and slept soundly until the next morning.

Returning hunger enabled him to enjoy a breakfast on bird's eggs, almost as much as he had enjoyed his supper on them. Food and rest had restored his strength and revived his spirits. So he was prepared to face all the dangers and perplexities of his most remarkable situation, with the courage and intelligence of a West Virginia mountaineer, sprung from Presbyterian Scotch ancestors. His first move was to try to discover where he was located. His investigations, outside of the cavern, soon led him to berries and wild fruits, that assured him of an abundance of most enjoyable food. That removed his most urgent cause for apprehension.

Then he realized that the cavern supplied shelter and protection of great value and large importance. That warned him against the danger of straying so far as to lose the way back to its entrance. A careful and attentive walk of several miles led him to sounds and signs of some running stream. Eagerly pressing forward, he soon found himself standing on the bank of the very same stream that he had so recently crossed. But he was manifestly now on the same bank from which he had dived into it, to escape his

McCALLIE

Historically located Ridge. In view of out Mountain

An outstanding school in Thorough preparation
and Technical School

Small individual
Strom
Christian Military or System Complete equipment
crete pool.
40 Acres
Lake.

Summer Session—July
With Camp Features

Write for illustrated

The Headmaster, Chattanooga

FOR RENT
House, eight rooms,
Three room cabin near Rock.

H. L. CARPENT
Rutherfordton, N.C.

Guilford COLLEGE

Member of Southern Association
al recognition. Courses for degrees, including Business,
Home Economics and Music.
religious atmosphere. Up-to-
tional program and student
century old, Quaker institution
The President, Guilford College

THE ONE
3x3 1/2. P
TWO
5 1/2 x 8. P
Send 50
The Life
Art Subjects
Children,
for Child

LET your children make world's most beautiful picture, happiness and beauty
to their lives.

Use them in the Sunday
Send 15 cents for Catalogue of
The Perry Pictures Book

MARY BALDWIN

For women. Courses lead to B. S. degrees. Music, art, lish, physical education. Gy field athletics. Modern eq beautiful Shenandoah Valley 1842. Catalog. Staunton, Va.

Expert Kodak

Developing and printing by beautiful work guaranteed. I printing 6 exposure rolls as 1.5-8x2 1/2, 40c; 2 1/4 x 3 1/4, 40c;
3 1/4 x 5 1/2, 52c; Film packs,
2 1/4 x 3 1/4, developing and print sizes in proportion. Quick deli
LIGON'S DRUG STORE: Spa

FOR SALE

Summer Home

"Hockey Pokey," Old

Most attractive cottage, e tion, fine view, six room
pletely and comfortably
Nearly two acres of clea proved forest in lot. Abun bery, wild flower and vege Lights, water and teleph
ient to Asheville, Mon Mountain and other popu interest. If interested add

401 W. Bessemer
Greensboro, N.C.

When answering adve mention this paper. Th aid us in securing mo
ing patronage

ORIENT FLOUR

Its Whiteness Denotes Its Purity

MOUNTAIN CITY MILL CO., CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

BLACKSTONE — A MILITARY SCHOOL FOR BOYS

Located in Healthful Section of Virginia. College Preparatory and Business Administrative Courses. Best home influences prevail, and individual needs of each boy closely watched. Modern, new and fireproof buildings. All manly sports, Christian influences and surroundings. For illustrated catalog write to

Col. E. S. Ligon, President
Box R

Blackstone

Virginia

Easier way to Kill Flies!

"The yellow can with the black band"

Banish dirty dangerous flies from your home quicker! Just a few moments with the handy Flit sprayer and every fly and mosquito dies. More people use Flit because it has greater killing power, though harmless to humans. Guaranteed to kill or money back.

FLIT

© 1929 Stanco Inc.

LEES-McRAE COLLEGE

"In the mountains; of the mountains; for the mountains."

A UNIQUE JUNIOR COLLEGE offering courses in Home Economics, Business Administration, Nurses' Training, Animal Husbandry, and leading to literary degrees.

FIREPROOF DORMITORIES and all modern conveniences.

INVIGORATING MOUNTAIN ALTITUDE, with excellent hospital and medical facilities, safeguards health of student body.

PRICE UNUSUALLY LOW to be consistent with high type of instruction offered.

Write for catalogue and application form.

Address

LEES-McRAE COLLEGE
Banner Elk, North Carolina

COTTAGE FOR RENT
 Cottage, near lake and au-
 completely furnished to ac-
 family of six or eight.
 entire season. Rev. J. H.
 Mountain, N. C.

DRIFT --- PLAN

...ing along?
 ...ide plans for the future?
 ...ink you should?
 ...ant to be successful in bus-

BUSINESS COLLEGE
 ST. COLUMBIA, S. C.

AT MONTREAT —

Cottage, with garage, sit-road about half-way
 late and the Auditorium. large porch. Large bath ing water. Windows and
 rd. Price for season $250,

Box 869, Charlotte, N. C.

Folk's Friend

...at many call it for
 ...n and vigor into old
 ...rich, red blood into
 ...sound flesh on old
 ...rink with each meal.

War Ale

...estive Aromatics With
 ...neral Water & Ginger
 ...like it for assisting
 ...estive organs to con-
 ...food into rich blood
 ...flesh.

blood thirsty pursuers. He was absolutely certain that he had crossed, and had entered the cavern on the opposite side. How then had he gotten back to this side? His mind seemed in a daze, until it suddenly dawned upon him, that the cavern was partly under the bed of the stream, and partly under both sides of it. And that he had been crossing under the stream, when he was successfully seeking the dry land entrance to the cavern. Now he knew where he was, and about how far he was from his friends, and in what direction.

After walking briskly a few miles, he saw several Chinamen coming towards him. He hastily concealed himself in some convenient bushes. But he soon discovered that one of them was a well known and trusted friend, much to his relief and pleasure. Stepping out from the bushes, he greeted him with glad cordiality. To his utter astonishment, the Chinaman gazed at him in great surprise, then turned and fled, followed by all his companions. Greatly wondering why they were so terribly frightened at the sight of him, the Doctor resumed his journey in a rapid walk, for several hours.

Then some Chinese women suddenly met him, coming around a bend in the road. He got the surprise of his life,

A man is that large irrational creature who is always looking for home atmosphere in a hotel and hotel service around the house.—Detroit News.

He was a real philosopher who burst forth with the exclamation recorded by life. It was said in his presence: "Why, the Blanks have no radio, no talking machine, no piano-player, and no motor car." "Gee," exclaimed the philosopher, "they must have money."

when one of them extended her hand to him, asking him, in English, if he had if he had seen anything of Doctor Campbell's ghost. It was Miss Gilkeson, whose first disguise had been so skillfully changed that he failed to recognize her, even when she first spoke to him. All his friends had been grieved over the reports of his sad death, that Li and his followers had been proudly circulating. They were fully confirmed by his returning guide, who had, from his place of concealment, also seen him sink beneath the current. It was in great excitement and amaze-

When answering advertisements mention this paper. Thus you will aid us in securing more advertising patronage.

ERSKINE COLLEGE
 Founded 1839

A college of Liberal Arts offering a standard four-year course leading to Bachelor of Arts Degree.

A Christian College devoted to the training of young men and young women for the larger responsibilities of life.

Reasonable costs, healthful surroundings, congenial environment, a grade Recognition.

Next session opens September 12.
 For Catalogue address
 R. C. GRIER, President or R. L. ROBINSON, Vice-President and Dean
 DUE WEST, S. C.

ATLANTA CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC
 The Foremost School of Music in the South
 Fall session begins Monday, September 2, 1929
 Summer session in June and July
 Catalog C GEO. F. LINDNER, Director Atlanta, Georgia

SALEM COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

Known nationally for 156 years' unbroken record in higher education. Life emphasizes Christian standards without denominational differences. Sixty-six acre campus of forest and meadow. Swimming, riding and all. Our endowment pays 12 1-2 per cent. of each student's expenses, reducing the annual charge to $655.00.

Accredited member Southern Association. A-Class.
 A. B., B. S. and B. Music degrees with wide elective privileges.
 For catalogue "A" to Pres. Howard E. Rondthaler, Winston-Salem, N. C.

VACATION TRIPS
 Rail and Motor
 Tours

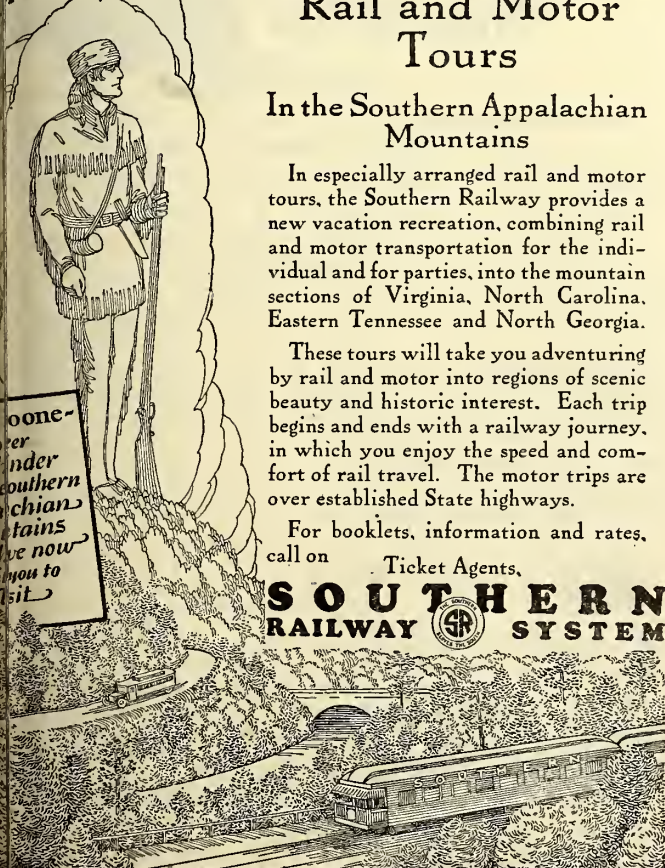

In the Southern Appalachian Mountains

In especially arranged rail and motor tours, the Southern Railway provides a new vacation recreation, combining rail and motor transportation for the individual and for parties, into the mountain sections of Virginia, North Carolina, Eastern Tennessee and North Georgia.

These tours will take you adventuring by rail and motor into regions of scenic beauty and historic interest. Each trip begins and ends with a railway journey, in which you enjoy the speed and comfort of rail travel. The motor trips are over established State highways.

For booklets, information and rates, call on Ticket Agents.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

If you KNEW it would

RESTORE HEALTH

would you

?

If you knew of a routine, a method of treatment that positively would restore the regularity of your habits; that would improve your digestion; renew your health beyond question, would you hesitate?

Much of your health depends upon the regular functioning of the organs of assimilation, digestion and elimination. Troubles resulting from an infraction of the rules of nature; disruption of nature's schedule, can best be remedied by a process of treatment that will eliminate impurities, reinvigorate the organs and in time steadily train them back into their accustomed regularity of habits.

Physicians Think

Physicians frequently prescribe the drinking of quantities of water, not only because they know it is a non-drastring aid to some troubles and mildly regulative in effect, but also because every tissue and organ of the body possesses high water content, and a decrease in water content is accompanied by a decrease in functional efficiency.

Water is the basis of all secretions and excretions of the body. Waste products of the body must be in solution to be expelled. Digestion and absorption are carried out more efficiently in dilution of water, and ingested food in more economically utilized when water is taken in abundance.

Hence the foundation of efficiency of Glenn Springs mineral water.

Used for Centuries

There is shown in the analysis of Glenn Springs water a well rounded, helpful combination of salts that renders it an effective method of restoring functional efficiency. In its analysis will be found a natural solution of:

Potassium Salts to furnish neutralization of free acids, promotion of oxidation; an increase of saliva, and to serve as a diuretic.

Sodium Salts to excite active secretion in stomach and intestines and thus materially aid in bilious disorders, gouty affections, chronic constipation, obesity and diabetes mellitus, and to neutralize acidity.

Lithium Salts for the same general purpose and additionally to aid in gout and rheumatic affections and bladder troubles caused from excessive acidity.

Calcium Salts to aid body metabolism; to serve as an astringent and sedative locally; and to act internally as an absorbent and antacid.

Strontium Salts for its anti-pu-trescent and antiseptic effect.

The Sulphates for its mild laxative properties.
 The Calcium Carbonate for its use in hyperacidity of stomach, and intestinal diseases.
 The Magnesium Carbonate on account of its mildly laxative and antacid effect.
 The Ammonium Carbonate for its stimulation of gastric secretion and assistance to the digestion.

Helpful for These Troubles

Glenn Springs water has been found by physicians to be helpful in cases of chronic constipation; biliousness; auto-intoxication, and other intestinal toxemias; obesity; acid dyspepsia; kidney disorders (including Bright's disease); bladder troubles resulting from excessive acidity; intestinal putrefaction; rheumatism and gouty diathesis, and other diseases of metabolism such as eczema, rickets, anemia, etc., It has been found indirectly helpful in the treatment of pellagra, for suppressed menstruations and in conjunction with quinine a very efficient treatment for malaria. It has been in general use for such purposes for over a century.

We would suggest that there is no better method of regaining your health and regularity of habits than by keeping a supply on hand for every day use.

It will be expressed you if desired in two 5 gallon carboys regularly each month, that you may use it steadily and most effectively in your own home or office.

Give your system a chance. Allow nature to take its course under favorable conditions. Renew your health with the delightful, helpful Glenn Springs mineral water. It is pure, delightfully easy to drink and sparkling.

Glenn Springs Corporation
 13 Montgomery Plaza
 Glenn Springs, S. C.

You may ship me two carboys of Glenn Springs water with invoice for $3.50 for 10 gallons now and each month thereafter till further notified.

Name _____
 Address _____

This order is subject to cancellation at any time.

The Glenn Springs Hotel opens June 1st and invites you.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
REMOVES DANDRUFF
STOPS HAIR FALLING

Has been used with success for more than 40 years

RESTORES COLOR AND BEAUTY TO GRAY AND FADED HAIR

60¢ & $1.00 at all druggists

HISCOX CHEMICAL WORKS
 PATCHOGUE, N. Y.

When washing hair always use Floreston Sham, too

COMMUNION CUPS

Glasses $1.00
 Dozen. Tray and 36 glasses $6.50 up. Best quality Collection and Bread Plates at low prices. Send for TRIAL OUTFIT. Write for free Catalog.

THOMAS COMMUNION CO., Box 310, Lima, Ohio

Church Furniture

WORK OF THE HIGHEST QUALITY AT REASONABLE PRICES

Write for Catalogue

BUDE & WEIS MFG. CO.
 JACKSON, TENNESSEE

DARLINGTON SCHOOL

ROME GEORGIA

An Accredited Preparatory School for Boys.

Small student body. One resident teacher to every ten boarding students. Supervised study. Bible taught. Physical training every day for every boy.

All men teachers, graduates of A-class colleges. Home atmosphere. Thorough college preparation. Only boys of good moral character desired. Non-military. Charter forbids operating school for financial gain.

HONOR SYSTEM
 "Unselfishly Dedicated to Young Manhood"

C. R. WILCOX, M. A., President
 Address all inquiries to
 E. L. WRIGHT, M. A., Headmaster, or
 S. H. ASKEW, M. A., Associate Headmaster

A REAL STIMULANT FOR TORPID LIVER

Free Proof!

Millions know the quick relief for biliousness, dizziness, bad breath, etc., which only Dodson's Levertone brings. This marvelous discovery does more than any laxative you've known. It's a real stimulant for balky liver and bowels. It regulates these organs, makes them vigorous, normal, active. You don't have to keep dosing yourself. We'll send a FREE bottle to prove it. Just write Sterling Products, Wheeling, W. Va.

DODSON'S Levertone

TASTES GOOD - ACTS QUICK

STANDARD FOR 50 YEARS

WINTERSMITH'S CHILL TONIC

For over 50 years it has been the household remedy for all forms of

Malaria Chills and Fever Dengue

It is a Reliable, General Invigorating Tonic.

ment that they listened to his recital of the strange manner in which his God had provided for his escape from his cruel foes.

The next day, the Doctor and Miss Gilkeson both visited the hospital. But they did not go there together, as that would have revealed who she was. She was there when he arrived. Li was there also. He had come expressly to find her, but did not recognize her in her disguise. When the Doctor entered the room, Li gazed at him in utter amazement. Then, in abject fear, he turned and fled from the place. Miss Gilkeson and the Doctor laughed over his absurd flight, until tears streamed down their faces.

The Doctor was rejoiced to learn that his patients had suffered no harm during his absence. All the inmates gave him a glad welcome. Those he left in charge had proved faithful to their trust, and competent managers of the hospital affairs and patients. When soldiers entered the hospital, their fidelity, wisdom and tact were tested at the risk of their lives. They were especially endangered by the presence and malice of Li Hi. The Doctor and Miss Gilkeson were profoundly impressed by their reports of God's faithful care of them, under such trying circumstances. It was a strange experience to realize that their own absence was again necessary for the safety of the hospital inmates, owing to Li Hi's known cunning and malice. Sad, of course, was their parting, after such testing of mutual love and fidelity, there was not lacking the thrill of a superhuman joy. The next day, the Doctor and Miss Gilkeson went some ten miles, back to his hospital's native friends. There they rested until another day. Then they departed, feeling assured that Li would soon discover that the Doctor was a live man, not a ghost. Their only hope of escaping Li's vengeance was to reach the place of protection provided by American officials and soldiers. Their faithful native guides, exchanging with each, kept them provided with food. And they watched out for enemies, both in advance and rear. After three days of brisk walking, they were overtaken by Chinese friends. They had come in great haste, many miles, to warn them that Li Hi and about fifty followers were in pursuit of them. That forced them to travel both night and day; only resting when utter exhaustion forced them to do so. For three days and nights they exerted themselves to keep ahead of their inhuman pursuers. Miss Gilkeson then began to show the effects of the terrible strain to which she had been subjected. The Doctor himself was still fully capable of much more exertion. But he was greatly shocked to perceive that she must be allowed to stop and rest. He was beginning to feel that they were in almost hopeless peril. Just then he heard the sound of a horn, far in front of them. "Mary, we are saved," he fairly shouted. "That is Donald Campbell. He and I are sons of two brothers, and were boys together, roaming our West Virginia hills. He is blowing the compact that we swore to each other then. I could never mistake that tune and horn; even if I heard them in the storm's loud thunder, or the battle crash of war.

"Depend on me, and you will find me true, When you call for me, I will come to you.

The Campbells are coming to save you. The Campbells are coming to save you. "Fire that pistol, Mary, so Donald will know that I am answering him. Fire twice, then another two, then another shot to make it sure and true."

PUZZLE ANSWERS

Cryptic Presidents

Use the letter in the alphabet just ahead of the one used here.

1. Coolidge. 2. Lincoln. 3. Madison. 4. Wilson. 5. Garfield. 6. Taylor. 7. Washington. 8. Roosevelt.

Nut Initial

P-ea
 E-el
 C-at A-rk
 N-ew
 Pecan

When Donald Campbell learned of the war in China, he perceived the danger that his cousin was in. And he lost no time in going to his relief. For he knew that John would never desert his post of duty. With the intelligence of his Scottish race, he had made due preparation to attach himself to the United States Marines in China. He secured full authority to make all needed use of them for his cousin's rescue. As he came in sight, he was followed by a Lieutenant of Marines, at the head of his men. And "Old Gory" was flying the stars and stripes in the winds of China, proclaiming to all that Uncle Sam defends and cares for them that are his every hill and dale.

As Donald approached the Yankee Doodle, and Dixie, and Mary answered him by other of the cousin's youthful "Can old acquaintance be forgotten? When we love them, Can not?"

Then Donald played the tune, and the Marines, and Miss Gilkeson, all sang "Depend on me, and you will. When you call for me, I'll come to you.

The Campbells are coming! The Campbells are coming!

QUEENS COLLEGE

"The College With the PLUS SIGN"

Sound literary training plus Christian influence. Faculty members characterized by thorough scholarship, and unquestionable Christian character.

RATES EXCEEDINGLY REASONABLE.

Ask for catalogue—enroll now—College opens Sept. 11.

WILLIAM H. FRAZER, D.D., Litt.D., President,
 Box 300, Charlotte, N. C.

Largest and MOST MODERN PLANT in the Carolinas

LARGEST USERS OF WINNSBORO GRANITE IN THE CAROLINAS

Charlotte Marble & Granite Works

R. E. SCOGGINS Proprietor CHARLOTTE, N. C. W. 7th St. and South City
OLDEST LARGEST BEST Phone

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE
 DECATUR, GA.

Strict entrance requirements, but few failures after admission. So expensive, but cheap in comparison with advantages offered. No load expected, but also none without capacity to enjoy almost unlimited good.

For details as to admission, scholarship aid, etc address
 PRESIDENT J. R. MCCAIN
 Box 5

MEREDITH COLLEGE

For YOUNG WOMEN

STANDARD COURSES IN ARTS AND SCIENCES, IN MUSIC, IN ART, IN HOME ECONOMICS

Confers the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Music. Delightful environment on a high plateau on the western boundary of North Carolina City.

Room reservations are now being made for session 1929-30. For catalogue or further information write
 CHAS. E. BREWER, President
 Raleigh, N. C.

MITCHELL COLLEGE.

AN ACCREDITED JUNIOR COLLEGE FOR WOMEN. Small class faculty, Christian training; special courses in pipe organ, voice, piano, horticulture, and commercial subjects. Rates reasonable. For catalogue address:
 MRS. W. B. RAMSAY, President

1854 WOFFORD COLLEGE
 Spartanburg, S. C.

A Christian College for the Higher Education of young Men. Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts Degrees. Pre-Medical, Engineering, Pre-Law Courses. Courses in Education and Religion.

Long and honorable history of education service. Strong Faculty Library. Well equipped Laboratories. Ample dormitory facilities. Unitary R. O. T. C. Unit. Athletic grounds. All forms of inter-collegiate athletics. Next session begins for new students Tuesday, September 17. For other students Wednesday, September 17. Write for 1929 catalogue.

HENRY M. SNYDER, President

Sunday, July 7, 1929

- Atlanta, Ga.—WSB—1,000 Watts
 9:30 A. M., C. T. — Agoga Sunday School Class, Morgan Blake, teacher. Atlanta, Georgia—WSB—C. T.
 11:00 a. m.—First Presbyterian. Also Saturday, 6:00 p. m.—Dr. Hull's Bible Class.
 5:00 P. M., C. T.—Vesper Service from First Methodist Church.
Hot Springs, Ark.—KTHS—5,000 Watts
 C. T.
 11:00 a. m.—St. Luke's Episcopal Church.
 6:00 p. m.—Old Familiar Hymns, Organ Recital.
Washington, D. C.—WJSV—10,000 Watts—E. T.
 Washington, D. C.—WJSV.
 11:00 a. m. and 8:30 p. m.
 7:30 p. m.—Ladies Choir of Fairfax, Va.
 8:30 p. m.—Sermonette.
 8:45 p. m.—Sacred Song Trio.
Gainesville, Fla.—WRUF—5,000 Watts
 —E. T.
 2:00 p. m.—Y. M. C. A. Service.
Louisville, Ky.—WHAS—5,000 Watts—E. T.
 9:57 a. m.—Broadway Baptist Church. Shreveport, La.—KWKH—20,000 Watts—C. T.
Atlantic City, N. J.—WPG
 (Eastern Daylight Time)
 10:30 P. M.—Community Recital at St. James Episcopal Church.
 5:15 P. M.—Religious Services.
 7:00 P. M.—Special Sunday Concert.
 9:10 P. M.—Sunday Evening Operative Concert.
 9:10 P. M.—Sunday Eveningsubhi for Schnectady, N. Y.—GWY
 (Eastern Daylight Time)
 10:30 A. M.—State Street Presbyterian Church.
 7:45 p. m.—First Baptist Church.
 9:00 p. m.—Question and Answer hour
Charlotte, N. C.—WBT—5,000 Watts—E. T.
 11:00 a. m.—First Baptist Church.
 5:30 p. m.—Vesper Hour Quartet.
 7:30 p. m.—First Baptist Church.
Raleigh, N. C.—WPTF—5,000 Watts—E. T.
 11:00 a. m.—Church Services.
 1:00 p. m.—Sacred Concert.
 7:30 p. m.—Evening Worship.
Cincinnati, Ohio—WLW—50,000 Watts—C. T.
 9:30 a. m.—Church School.
 10:00 a. m.—Presbyterian Church of the Covenant.
 3:00 p. m.—Organ Recital.
 5:00 p. m.—Vesper Service from Concordia Lutheran Church.
Oklahoma City, Okla.—KFJF—5,000 Watts—C. T.
 10:00 a. m.—Men's Tabernacle Bible Class.
 11:00 a. m.—First Baptist Church Services.
 3:00 p. m.—Sacred Concert.
 7:30 p. m.—First Baptist Church Service.
 9:30 p. m.—Independent Bible Lectures.
Richmond, Va.—WRVA—5,000 Watts—E. T.
 11:00 a. m.—Second Presbyterian Church.
 7:30 p. m.—St. Mark's Episcopal Church.
Fort Worth, Tex.—WBAP—5,000 Watts—C. T.
 4:00 p. m.—Hymn Hour.
 5:00 p. m.—Studio Vesper Services.
 7:30 p. m.—First Presbyterian Church.
San Antonio, Tex.—WOAI—5,000 Watts—C. T.
 11:00 a. m.—First Presbyterian Church.
Greensboro, N. C.—WNRC—E. T.
 11:15 a. m.—First Presbyterian.
 8:00 p. m.—First or Church of the Covenant.
Philadelphia—KMBC—E. T.
 4:30 p. m.—Tenth Presbyterian.
Jacksonville, Fla.—WJAX—E. T.
 11:00 a. m.—Church Services.
 8:00 p. m.—Church Services.
Nashville, Tenn.—WSM—C. T.
 11:00 a. m. and 8:00 p. m.—First Presbyterian.
Knoxville, Tenn.—WNOX—C. T.
 7:30 p. m. Saturday—Dr. Glasgow's S. S. Lesson.
National Broadcasting Chain
 2:00 P. M.—"Friendly Hour" conducted by Dr. J. Stanley Durkee, subject: "Work Pays Dividends."
 3:00 P. M.—"Sunday Forum," Dr. Sockman.
 4:30 P. M.—"Twilight Reveries," address by Dr. Charles L. Goddell, subject: "The Abundant Life."

AN INDIAN TALE

Many years ago there lived in India a worthy state official who wished to do something to benefit the poor people of the land. Realizing that money could perhaps do more for his people than anything else, he announced that he would give away the weight of his own elephant in silver money. This news caused great rejoicings among the natives until someone raised the question: "But how much does the elephant weigh?" Ah, no one had thought of that. The elephant's weight was unknown and to determine it was next to impossible. How could anyone find out what the elephant really weighed? There was no machine in all India large enough to weigh the huge elephant. All the wise men of the land gathered together and labored in vain to construct a machine big enough and strong enough to weigh the elephant.

One day a Hindu prince passing through the country heard of the country heard of the promise of silver to the poor and needy, and the impossibility to determine the amount of silver to be involved in the transaction. "Ah, I will help these poor people to obtain the money that has been promised to them," he said to himself, and he announced that he knew a way to weigh the elephant. For the purpose he had a special bridge built and over this he had the elephant led into a flat bottomed boat. The weight of the elephant caused the boat to settle itself deeper into the water and the prince had marked upon the side of the boat the height to which the water rose after the elephant had weighted down the boat. The massive beast was then taken back over the bridge to the shore and the prince set his servants to work weighing stones and loading them into the boat until the boat had sunk to the same line which the water marked when the elephant had been on board. The total weight of these stones was of course the same as the weight of the elephant.

When the populace which had been interestedly watching the experiment saw that the true weight of the elephant had been determined by the prince a shout of joy arose. The prince was hailed as the wisest man of his time and thus in Indian legend his reputation still holds."

MAKING MEN—
Not Money

Our aim is to develop the character through the constant teaching of Christian principles; to develop the body through healthful out-door sports; to develop the intellect through thorough, individual instruction. We offer a four-square education for your boy at a surprisingly reasonable cost. For catalogue write Col. A. H. Camden, President.

H A R G R A V E
MILITARY ACADEMY
CHATHAM, V. A.

King College for Men
Bristol, Tennessee

Stonewall Jackson College
FOR WOMEN

Abingdon, Va., Box A

Jointly Controlled by Montgomery
Presbytery

Affiliated Colleges of the Synod of Appalachia.

King College offers four year courses leading to Degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Sciences — a small Christian College — Faculty of eleven Christian gentlemen of thorough training and practical experience. Expenses reasonable.

Stonewall Jackson College. Accredited Junior College for young women, in heart of healthful Virginia mountains. Two years high school, two years college. Music, art, home economics, secretarial course, physical room with bath. All outdoor sports. Tennis. Nine hole golf course on fifty-two acre campus. Homelike life. Write for catalogue.

WOMEN, Here is unusual

opportunity to earn money in pleasant convenient way and perhaps help some friend or acquaintance who may have artificial teeth and plates. All dentists urge daily cleaning of these plates and brush are necessary. Our preparations were originated by dentists specializing in prophylactic teeth and gum dentistry. Write today for generous FREE Trial Packages of TOOTH PASTE and Artificial Plate Cleaner, also Tooth Brush bargains, all selling at wonderful economy prices. Some women may wish to represent us. DEPYRO LABORATORIES, 27 Free St., Portland, Maine.

BELK'S
NEW FURNITURE DEPT.

We have opened to the people of the Carolinas a most modern Furniture Department on our fourth floor, featuring a wide assortment of fine furniture for the home as well as newest novelty furniture.

On this same floor is located our Picture and mirror rooms, also china-ware, glass-ware and toys.

A visit to this floor will be both pleasurable and profitable.

Belk Brothers Co.
Charlotte, N. C.

Direct From Mill To You

PTERNS in new s at Mill Prices. consumer selling 1/4 to 1/2.

Prints
Bedspreads
Pillow Tubing
Wide Sheeting
Marquisettes
Draperies, etc.

amples

List on Cut cloth and pay ship-faction

Save 1/4 to 1/2

GIAN MILL STORE
A. Greenville, S. C.

izenship

es of manhood, moral, physical, spiritual, taught by lead- and practiced in all complete campus life at

terian College
Clinton, S. C.

Lance

ntifile Preparation BUNCLES, BONE FELONS,
and OLD SORES. Price 50c
NE CHEMICAL CO
Brookland, S. C.

CKS SAY CALDWELL WAS RIGHT

treating sickness has not
Dr. Caldwell left Medical 15, nor since he placed on laxative prescription he practice.
constipation, biliousness,
ctal depression, indigestion,
and other indispositions
eans of simple vegetable es and roots. These are
of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup
mbination of senna and
bs, with pepsin.
le remedy for constipa-
te for the child and for you.
an get results in a mild
va by using Dr. Caldwell's
why take chances with
last several months, and
e. It is pleasant to the en action, and free from erly people find it ideal.
or have the generous bottles,
"Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB,
nois, for free trial bottle

URING OUR ADVERTISERS
ECTION THIS PUBLICATION

THE RIGHT WAY TO TRAVEL
 is by train. The safest. Most comfortable. Most reliable. Costs less. Inquire of Ticket Agents regarding greatly reduced fares for short trips.
SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Church and Sunday School Furniture
 Send For Special Catalogue
THE SOUTHERN DESK COMPANY
 Hickory, N. C.

CUTS Scratches, burns and other skin abrasions with children, easily become infected. ::
 Safeguard with
GRAY'S OINTMENT
 At all drug stores. For free sample write W. F. Gray & Co., 724 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Nervous Women Praise Capudine

Delicately poised women who suffer from high nerve strain and nervous pains, such as periodic pains, headache and pains in the back and sides are high in their praise of Capudine because it quickly soothes the tense nerves and relieves the pain.
 Being liquid, Capudine acts almost instantly,—does not upset the stomach. Sold by druggists in 30c and 60c sizes. (adv.)

YOUR CHURCH deserves a beautiful exterior in harmony with its spirit of culture and worship. Let us suggest appropriate shrubbery.
THE HOWARD-HICKORY CO., Hickory, N. C.
 Local Representatives Wanted, especially to sell fruit trees.
 Landscape Gardeners and Nurserymen

Piles and other Rectal diseases cured without pain or surgery. No hospital detention. Write to Dr. W. R. Register, 63 No. Broad Street, Atlanta, Georgia, for free book. Hundreds of cured patients.

Take STANBACK to Relieve PAIN

6 6 6
 is a Prescription for
Colds, Grippe, Flu, Dengue, Bilious Fever and Malaria.
 It is the most speedy remedy known.

WEAK EYES are strengthened and relieved by Dickey's old reliable eye water. In use over half a century. Relieves sore eyes from gnats and dust. Doesn't hurt. In red folding box at all good stores or by mail 25c.
 Dickey Drug Co. Bristol, Virginia

HOT WEATHER retards digestion and reduces vitality. Keep yourself in perfect condition with YERKE'S COD LIVER OIL
 Extract
 At All Leading Druggists

S P A R K L E S

"Since I bought a car I don't have to walk to the bank to make my deposits."
 "You drive there, eh?"
 "No, I don't make any."—Life.

Socrates: "What do you think of mud as a beautifier?"
 Professor Peavy: "Well, it hasn't done much for the turtle."—Hy-Pure Herald.

An optimistic young man, getting a job as a dishwasher in a restaurant, said, "Well, here's where I start in to clean up a million."—Newton Kansan.

To be successful in business you have to pay more attention to kicks than to compliments.—Los Angeles Times.

From the Edinburgh University publication, The Student:

"The heights by great men reached and kept
 Were not attained by sudden flight
 But they, while their companions danced,
 Were sleeping soundly through the night"

Trifling Deposit

She: "There's Madge Bahr. I understand she bought that dress by installments."

He: "I suppose that's the first installment she's wearing."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

"You are working too hard," said the doctor.

"I know it," sighed the patient, "but it is the only way I can keep up the easy payments."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Small boy: "What is college bred, pop?"

Pop (with son in college): "They make college bred, my boy, from the flour of youth and the dough of old age."—West Point Pointer.

Motorist: "I clearly had the right of way when this man ran into me, and yet you say I was to blame."

Local Constable: "You certainly were."

Motorist: "Why?"
 Local Constable: "Because his brother is mayor, his father is chief of police, and I am engaged to his sister."—People's Journal (Dundee).

"Name the world's greatest composer," said the musical instructor.

"Chloroform," promptly replied the young man who had studied medicine.
 —Selected.

"Are you really a bank examiner, Mr. Tompkins?" asked the hostess.

"Yes, Madam, I happen to be."

"Then I hope you will have time to examine baby's bank. No matter how much we shake it, nothing will come out of it!"—Lethbridge Herald.

Mexican Heat Powder

Immediately relieves Prickly Heat, Nettle Rash, Diaper Rash, Tired, Sore and Blistered Feet. Sunburn, all Skin Irritations. At your Druggists

When answering advertisements mention this paper. Thus you will aid us in securing more advertising patronage.

Chicora College for Women
The Presbyterian College of South Carolina
 Standard College Courses Large, Strong Faculty
 Beautiful Grounds Ideal Surroundings
 Healthful Climate Moderate Rates
 For Catalog and Information, Address
S. C. Byrd, D.D., LL.D., President, Columbia

FORTY-SIX YEARS CONTINUOUS SERVICE WITHOUT A LOSS ON ANY LOAN
 We offer you a safe, tax-free investment for your regular weekly or monthly savings and your lump sum. Write for particulars.
ASSETS OVER $8,800,000.00
The Mutual Building and Loan Association
 Established 1881 CHARLOTTE

If In Doubt, Take B. & L. Shares
 You will earn the highest interest rate on your savings consistent with perfect safety, and pay no tax on dividends. Shares cost twenty-five cents per week, usually mature in 333 weeks. Net you 6 1-2 per cent maturity.
 Series Open in January, April, July and October
Mechanics Perpetual Building & Loan Association
 Established 1883
 18 E. Fourth St. Charlotte

THE WINTHROP DESK, $75
 The Governor Winthrop desk has come down to us from the very earliest beginning of America. The one shown here every detail has been copied minutely. It is made in Grand Rapids which is an assurance of its fine quality. Others, varying in size from $70 to $145.
W. T. McCoy & Co.
Home Furnishers
 423-425 SOUTH TRYON STREET
 CHARLOTTE, N. C.

For the Future
 Are you making ready share in the opportunity which increasing prosperity will bring?
A Reserve Fund Banker Will Help
Charlotte National Bank
 Resources Over $5,000,000.00

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

Religious Newspaper for the Family

Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.

W. L. GATES, D.D., Editor-in-Chief
W. L. GATES, D.D., Co-Editor
W. L. GATES, D.D., Contributing Editor

ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858

M. F. ELLIS, Vice-President
J. G. GARTH, Treasurer and News Editor
EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY

CHARLOTTE, N. C., JULY 10, 1929

No. 28

Single Accepts College of Davidson

Training School to Become College for Men in
North Carolina

Walter L. Lingle, of Richmond, Va., in the Assembly's Training School, has accepted the presidency of Davidson College, the largest Presbyterian college in the South, subject to the action of the board of trustees of which he is a member.

Walter L. Lingle, of Richmond, Va., in the Assembly's Training School, has accepted the presidency of Davidson College, the largest Presbyterian college in the South, subject to the action of the board of trustees of which he is a member.

Walter L. Lingle, of Richmond, Va., in the Assembly's Training School, has accepted the presidency of Davidson College, the largest Presbyterian college in the South, subject to the action of the board of trustees of which he is a member.

Walter L. Lingle, of Richmond, Va., in the Assembly's Training School, has accepted the presidency of Davidson College, the largest Presbyterian college in the South, subject to the action of the board of trustees of which he is a member.

Walter L. Lingle, of Richmond, Va., in the Assembly's Training School, has accepted the presidency of Davidson College, the largest Presbyterian college in the South, subject to the action of the board of trustees of which he is a member.

Walter L. Lingle, of Richmond, Va., in the Assembly's Training School, has accepted the presidency of Davidson College, the largest Presbyterian college in the South, subject to the action of the board of trustees of which he is a member.

Walter L. Lingle, of Richmond, Va., in the Assembly's Training School, has accepted the presidency of Davidson College, the largest Presbyterian college in the South, subject to the action of the board of trustees of which he is a member.

Walter L. Lingle, of Richmond, Va., in the Assembly's Training School, has accepted the presidency of Davidson College, the largest Presbyterian college in the South, subject to the action of the board of trustees of which he is a member.

Walter L. Lingle, of Richmond, Va., in the Assembly's Training School, has accepted the presidency of Davidson College, the largest Presbyterian college in the South, subject to the action of the board of trustees of which he is a member.

International Christian Endeavor Convention

Thirty-Second Meeting is Held at Kansas City, Mo., July 3-8

The International Christian Endeavor Convention met in Kansas City, Mo., July 3-8. The Associated Press reports about 10,000 delegates assembled from 16 nations of the world. The gathering was opened with an address by Dr. Daniel A. Poling, of New York, the president, who succeeded Dr. Francis E. Clark, the first president and founder, who started the movement in Portland, Maine, in 1881. We published this address last week.

The Christian Endeavor movement has spread to all the world, and is now represented in 80 different nations, with about 4,000,000 members in the local societies. Mr. E. P. Gates, the General Secretary of the International Society, in his address which we print in this issue says that 4,562 additional societies have been organized since the last convention. He reported that there are about 1,400 unions representing several hundred societies, which are officered by 14,000 young people.

The International Christian Endeavor Union has been the recipient of two outstanding endowments, one by Charles Craigie and wife which supports the parent organization in large measure, and one by the J. C. Penny Foundation devoted to Vocational Guidance, with Stanley Vandersal, of Boston, as promoting secretary.

In the Southern Presbyterian Church, the Christian Endeavor is a vital and thriving type of young people's organization. There are nearly 2,200 C. E. societies, with less than 300 of other names. There are about 35,000 members of young people's societies in our Church.

On July 4 there was an Independence Day Parade in which 20,000 young people took part, many of them wearing costumes portraying various eras of church history.

The following message from President Hoover was read to the convention:

"Please convey to the members of the International Christian Endeavor Convention my cordial greetings and my deep appreciation of its co-operation."
(Continued on Page Two)

Bishop McConnell and The Baptist Convention

President of Federal Council Makes Address at Convention, Though Not the Key-Note

In our issue of last week we stated that the invitation to the President of the Federal Council, Bishop McConnell, was withdrawn by the Northern Baptist Convention at Denver at the request of 19 Protestants who objected to his recent book "The Christlike God." Our information however was not complete as we have found from several sources. The invitation to make the keynote speech as a visitor to the convention was indeed withdrawn, and was made by President Avery Shaw, of Denison University, Ohio, who is said to have made a brilliant address. Bishop McConnell, however, did speak later, and his address was received with much enthusiasm by the convention. The bishop was on his way to the convention when the telegram was placed in his hands changing the place of his address on the program.

Bishop McConnell responded to the embarrassing situation in a fine way, relieving both himself and his hosts of the strain created by his magnanimous spirit.

Quadrennial Meeting of Presbyterian Alliance

Boston Host to Thirteenth General Council—Next Meeting in Belfast in 1933

J. M. Wells, D.D.

The Council meets this year in Boston. Just why we did not know until it was whispered that it would have met in Canada; but the feelings between the United Church of Canada and the Presbyterian Church in Canada were so bitter that it could not be held there, and as a compromise it was held in the nearest available city, which was Boston. And so it has come to that part of our country where Presbyterianism is weakest and least able to care for and impress itself upon the visitors from Europe.

The meetings are held in the First Presbyterian Church. This Church is not strong; its building is inadequate, and it is at present without a pastor. This is all that need be said. You can visualize for yourself the situation. I will add, however, that the people, in their way, are very kind.

The Council began on Wednesday, June 19th. First, separate meetings of the Eastern and Western Sections were held. At these meetings, besides other business, the members of the Business Committee were nominated.

In view of the fact that the Council is a purely advisory body, this committee is of great importance. It is the buffer that saves the Council from all too severe shocks. It arranges the order of business, considers all resolutions and communications, and decides what recommendation to make concerning some, and can decline even to submit to the Council.

In the evening a reception of welcome was held. There were addresses of welcome by Mr. Alba B. Johnson, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works for the Western Section to the men of the Eastern Section over seas; by Governor Frank G. Allen (a splendid Christian man we learn) for the State of Massachusetts to the Alliance; and by Dr. Robert Watson (who has just resigned the pastorate of the First Church) for the churches of Boston.

These addresses were all good. A most fitting response was made by Dr. R. J. Drummond, vice-president of the Alliance, in behalf of the Council.

After these addresses refreshments were served.

On Thursday the real business of the Council was entered upon.

The president's address from President Ch. Merle de Aubigne, D.D., of Paris was a notable pronouncement worthy of both the great man and the great office. In a masterly way he sketched the tendencies that are moving in these latter years, especially on the continent of Europe. He reminded us of the great mass movement toward the Church of the Czech Brethren and away from Rome. He warned us of the increased power and wealth of the Papacy through its recent agreements with Italy. He called our attention to the great revival of Calvinism in those countries of Europe where it has seemed dead. And he sounded a note of optimism because of the revival of life and spiritual power that is coming to the Reformed Churches in Europe.

That night the Council sermon was preached by Dr. Malcolm James McLeod, of New York, of the Reformed Church in America. We hear that it was a good sermon; but we did not hear a good sermon, for we sat more than half-way back, and nobody could hear in that part of the church. His sermon was on "the Gospel of God."
(Continued on page 2)

Protestant Finances Show Marked Changes

Institute of Social and Religious Research Report Reveals That Expenditures Climb, While Benevolences Drop, Since Church "Drives"

An exhaustive study of Protestant Church finances in the United States, especially in relation to benevolent giving, is just published by the Institute of Social and Religious Research under the title Trends in Protestant Giving. The author is Charles H. Fahs, one of the compilers of the "World Missionary Atlas" and now in charge of the Missionary Research Library.

Partial and tentative results of this inquiry were presented at the Foreign Missions Conference at Detroit last January. The complete investigation as now published reveals that the total picture is somewhat less gloomy than was painted in the presentation at Detroit, when the figures then available seemed to tell a story of continually mounting congregational expenses side by side with dwindling contributions for total benevolences and especially for foreign missions.

The story as told in the completed report shows that while, for the eleven major denominations most intensively studied, there has been a steady decline in benevolent giving since the peak year of 1920, representing the culmination of several denominational "drives," nevertheless, as compared with the year before the World War, 1913, benevolent giving has shown a marked increase both in actual amount and in relation to the cost of living. During the same period congregational expenditures have risen steadily and reached their highest point in the latest year considered by the study, 1927. The ratio of per capita giving for total benevolences and per capita giving for congregational expenditures, which was 21 to 79 in 1913, had shifted in favor of benevolences by 1920 until it stood at 35 to 65, since which year the decline in benevolent giving and the upward climb of congregational expenditures have combined almost to restore the ratio of 1913.

The results of a study of receipts for
(Continued on Page Two)

Foreign Mission Conference Near Old Haystack

Meeting of the Committee of the International Missionary Council, Williamstown, Mass., July 11-21

Near the old "Haystack Monument" where in 1806 Samuel Mills held the prayer meeting which since has come to be known as the forerunner of the American Foreign Missionary Movement, there will gather July 11-21 over 40 missionary administrators and Christian nationals from all parts of the world, for a ten-day conference on the work of the International Missionary Council.

The committee, as constituted at Jerusalem in the spring of 1928, consists of representatives of 23 national missionary organizations and Christian Councils. The total membership of the committee is 37. For the first time, Indian, Chinese and African nationals, representing the National Councils of their lands, will enjoy the same official status and privileges as will representatives of the national interdenominational missionary organizations of the West.

Dr. John R. Mott, Chairman of the
(Continued on Page Two)

CONTINUATIONS FROM PAGE ONE

DR. LINGLE ACCEPTS PRESIDENCY OF DAVIDSON

Training School and feel that it has large possibilities. It is pioneer work and constructive work. At the same time I love Davidson College. She is my Alma Mater. The call there opens large opportunities for service.

A verse from the Psalms has been with me much during these weeks: "Wait on the Lord, be of good courage, and he shall strengthen thine heart. Wait, I say, on the Lord." As I have waited, seeking light and guidance, a conviction has settled down upon my heart that I ought to accept the call to Davidson. I trust that this is the guidance of the Spirit. Having this conviction I am writing to you, as president of the Board, to tender my resignation as president of the Assembly's Training School, to take effect as soon as practicable, and not later than the first of September. At the same time I want to pledge anew my love and loyalty to the Training School as long as I live.

For something like a dozen years I have given my best to the Training School. The Board and friends have shown a wonderful spirit of co-operation. The institution has been richly blessed and has made remarkable progress. I have a feeling that a new man can come in now with new ideas and new visions and lead the Training School to larger things, while I go and give myself to another task. John Wesley said that the worker may die, but the Lord's work goes on. So I feel that a worker may leave this or that position and move to some other part of the vineyard, but the Lord's work goes on. I feel that the General Assembly's Training School has large possibilities for the future, if the whole church will continue to stand behind it.

Let me thank you and all the members of the Board for all your kindnesses, and for your fine spirit of co-operation. I trust that the love and the prayers of the friends of the Training School may follow me, as I go to my new work.

With high esteem, I am
Very faithfully yours,
Walter L. Lingle.

Dr. Lingle's Record

Dr. Lingle was born in Rowan County, 15 miles from Davidson, on October 3, 1868. He received his A. B. and M. A. degrees from Davidson College in 1892, and graduated from Union Theological Seminary in 1896. Davidson conferred upon him the doctor of divinity degree in 1906, and Southwestern Presbyterian University bestowed upon him the degree of LL.D., in 1920. He has done post-graduate work at the University of Chicago.

After he was ordained to the Presbyterian ministry in 1896, he was for a time an instructor at Union Theological Seminary. Following pastorates in Dalton, Ga., Rock Hill, S. C., and Atlanta, Ga., he returned to Union Seminary in 1911 as McCormick professor of Hebrew and Sunday School work. In 1914 he was made professor of church history and missions at the Seminary, where he remained until 1924 when he was chosen to his post as president of the Training School.

Dr. Lingle was editor of the Union Seminary Review for ten years. He was moderator of the North Carolina Presbyterian Synod in 1915, and in 1920 was elected moderator of the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church. For a number of years he managed the conference at Montreat. Dr. Lingle has been intimately connected with the life of Davidson, serving as member and chairman of the board of trustees for 24 years.

Recent honors which came to him were election as chairman of the executive committee of the Council of Churches in America, and last spring he delivered the annual Sprunt Lectures at Union Theological Seminary. He is a contributor to many church publications and a lecturer of note. Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic fraternity, and Omicron Delta Kappa, honorary leadership fraternity, have chosen him for membership.

The following is from the President-Emeritus of Davidson College, Dr. W. J. Martin:

The New President

Dr. Walter L. Lingle has accepted the call of the Board of Trustees of Davidson College to become the 12th president of the institution.

Dr. Lingle's qualifications are so well known that it is needless to enumerate them. For many years he has been a member and the president of the Board of Trustees and knows the college as few men outside of the faculty do.

The workers change but the college goes on. I hope the friends of Davidson will rally to the New President and support him finely. Let all by prayer and service continue to push the interests of Davidson under the new head and make her a greater and greater factor in the building of the Kingdom of God on earth.

The writer now lays down what has hitherto been his life work; dissatisfied with results, yet deeply grateful for the many kind and generous messages which have come to him in these last few weeks.

While he will no longer be actively connected with Davidson College and will no longer live at Davidson, his heart will be in the institution, his prayers will be in her behalf, and his services, wherever possible, will be gladly given to her interest.

Wm. J. Martin,
President-Emeritus.

INTERNATIONAL CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR CONVENTION

tive spirit in working toward the furtherance of obedience to law and of world peace. For the one is vital to the perpetuation of our free institutions of government and the other is vital to the happiness and prosperity of all mankind."

The convention instructed Dr. Poling to convey to the President the sentiments of the convention, and to include in it a pledge made by the members of the convention to support the President and to abstain from alcoholic drinks.

Dr. Poling sent the following statement:

"The delegates in attendance on the thirty-second International Christian Endeavor Convention received your message with appreciation and enthusiasm. They send you the assurance of their affectionate regard and pledge their loyalty in the following words:

"With President Hoover, I believe that prohibition is an experiment in purpose, and that it was enacted for the protection of the American home and with him I wish it to succeed.

"To support the president and the constitution, to strengthen public health and morals, and to advance my own well-being and the well-being of others, I pledge myself to abstain from all alcoholic liquor as a beverage and to give my utmost endeavor for the enforcement and complete success of prohibition.

"I accept the pact of peace as a covenant of personal and national honor. I pledge myself to abide by its principle and to work for its complete fulfillment."

QUADRENNIAL MEETING OF PRESBYTERIAN ALLIANCE

Friday was Foreign Mission day. There were reports from the Eastern Section by Dr. J. W. Drummond, and from the Western Section by Dr. T. H. MacKenzie, of New York; but the work of the Business Committee prevented the writer's hearing these.

Rev. Robert Laws, M.D., and D.D., from Livingstonia in Africa, 84 years old, tall, massive and much like Dr. Paton, brought us a great message. The afternoon was given to executive business.

The business committee labored trying to smooth out the strife of the two Canadian Churches, and at least kept it off the floor.

Behold what a blessing Church union is, when it tears a great Presbyterian Church into two fragments, and brings bitterness that will last for fifty years.

Unless both Churches are heartily ready for union; to urge union on a Church is a heartless thing.

But the crowning message of the day came from Dr. R. E. Speer. He spoke on the "Message of the Jerusalem Council." With clearness, color, and deep spiritual unction, he spoke of that message, and gave to the writer new insight into the real meaning of both the gathering and message.

Saturday was Home Mission day. The reports were good. An address by Rev. J. H. S. Burleigh, of Scotland, was brilliant but without spiritual power. Work in the committee room and outside prevented my hearing the other addresses.

In the afternoon the Council was tendered an automobile ride around historic Boston, that was of great interest. We were allowed to rest that evening.

On Sunday at 11 a. m. the writer heard Dr. Ivor Robertson, of Bristol, England, in the Old South Congregational Church. It was a great sermon on "Loyalty to Christ."

At 3 p. m. we had the Council Communion. The message was by Bishop L. Ravasz, of Hungary (a Presbyterian Bishop). What we could hear of it, showed it to be a sweet and helpful Gospel message.

The impressions of the writer as to the nature of the Council will be given in my next article.

PROTESTANT FINANCES SHOW MARKED CHANGES

foreign missions for fifteen Protestant denominations are summed up as follows: "A study of total receipts for foreign missions from all sources for fifteen Protestant denominations for the period 1901-1927 shows a growth in such receipts from $5,300,100, in 1901 to $29,833,727, in 1921, and with a total for 1927 for these fifteen bodies of $27,179,594. If these fifteen denominations can be classed as three groups—the first a group of three church bodies having more than two million members each; the second a group of four bodies having more than one million but less than two million each; and the third a group of eight bodies having more than 100,000 but less than a million each—it is found that the greatest fluctuations in receipts are in relation to the size of the denominations, the drop in total receipts from the peak points to 1927 of the three groups being respectively, 33, 9 and 2 per cent."

The fifteen denominations intensively studied were the following: Christian Church; Congregational Churches; Disciples; Methodist Episcopal Church, South; Northern Baptist Convention; Presbyterian Church in the U. S.; Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A.; Protestant Episcopal Church; Reformed Church in America; Reformed Church in the United States; Southern Baptist Convention; United Brethren; United Lutheran; United Presbyterian Church.

The study was undertaken by the Institute of Social and Religious Research at the request of the Foreign Missions Conference of North America, and is the first study ever made that shows figures of foreign missionary giving for the various Protestant denominations on a comparable basis. It was designed, the report says, expressly to answer such questions as:

"Have church expenditures, whether for local expenses or for benevolences, kept pace in recent years with the increased cost of living?"

"As local church expenses have mounted has the increase been at the expense of benevolences?"

"Has there been any marked change in the percentage of the total gifts which went for foreign missions?"

FOREIGN MISSION CONFERENCE NEAR OLD HAYSTACK

International Missionary Council, will preside. His report of his recent tour of India, Siam, Straits Settlements, China, Korea, and Japan will be one of the important items on the agenda. Dr. J. H. Oldham, who recently toured Africa as a member of the special committee appointed by His Majesty's Government to study native affairs and who is Senior Secretary of the International Missionary Council, will have an influential voice in all discussions especially those on future missionary activity in Africa. Mr. Wm. Paton, the other English Secretary of the Council, has visited Egypt, India, Iraq, Syria and Turkey during the last year and brings his own observations and recommendations from these areas. Dr. A. L. Warnshuis, the American Secretary, will report on a number of developments since the Jerusalem World Missionary gathering which concern the future activities of the Council.

The principal object with which the Williamstown Committee meeting is being held is necessarily the reviewing of the plans and decisions formed at Jerusalem, and in the light of the experience gathered since April 1928, the reformulation of those plans as definite projects of the Council.

THE INTERMEDIATE CONFERENCE

Synod of South Carolina

For eight years the Synod of South Carolina has provided a conference for her young people, but pre-summer nothing of this kind has been done for the boys an Intermediate age. This is which more conversions at any other time in life, age in which many drift Sunday School and Church these possibilities and need determined to make a special win and hold its boys Christ and the Church. For an Intermediate Conference, a very definite help toward was decided to hold such a conference at Clinton, S. C., from July 15-19.

The beautiful campus comfortable dormitories of Presbyterian College afforded ideal surroundings, and the splendid gymnasium afforded opportunity for a suitable program.

The Intermediates were their chance and through the attention of the churches exceeded the expectations of a total of 165.

Col. J. H. Cudlipp, of the head of the Y. P.'s of the State Sunday School workland was elected to direct the conference, and an able faculty Mrs. J. H. Cudlipp, Mr. A. Bryan, Rev. and Mrs. S. Rev. Marshall Denny, J. Sheffer and Miss Corne were chosen as teachers from the Y. P.'s Conference chosen as counsellors, Copeland, Ruth Cathcart, Studie Ware for the girls, Brown, Conyers Horton, and Arthur McQueen for the boys. These counsellors provided Y. P.'s Conferences have them by the splendid co-efficient work which they

Under the able leadership of Mrs. Cudlipp the conference was organized into four divisions and through these the spirit was used in promoting the many activities of the conference.

Classes were provided for all ages, Old Testament, Missionary Heroes, and for the 12 year boys a Life of Christ, The Faithful and Winners of the World, group and personal Stewardship and Training for Life for those under 15.

The conference was a success by the students were privileged to have a leadership which the Intermediates today possess and sent them a new vision of service determination to be true. From many directions the coming from homes and the great benefit which the boys received. Already Intermediates are saving their money for the 1930 conference at Montreat and are looking toward renewed success.

KING COLLEGE AND STONEMAN JACKSON COMMUNION

King College with fitting heard Dr. F. T. McFadden, Va., in a strong practical sermon. The graduating class was Donald W. Richardson of the University, Richmond, Va. King College had a splendid year and since the year there are not medals to go around and were given so that a man will be decorated.

Stoneman Jackson's sermon was preached by H. DuBose, pastor of the Johnson City, and was a most impressive one. The Y. W. C. A. was made a part of the providential work of J. R. Cunningham, Dr. T. Roanoke, was the class maintained his reputation as an orator. While the number was thirteen there was a lucky about the closing atmosphere of co-operation of the faculty and the conduct of the students this a delightful and beneficial work.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

FOUNDED 1858

Journal of the Synod of N. C. for 70 Years

Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as Second Class Matter.

Terms—The subscription price of the Standard is payable in advance. To ministers the price is $2.50 per year. To ministers' wives the price is $2.50 per year.

A mailing label shows the month and year to which subscription is paid. Payment in advance is required.

Subscriptions may be made by money order, check, or registered letter and currency by mail.

Advertising Notices—No charge is made for notices less than 100 words, but for all over fifty words the charge is $1.00 per word.

—Sent on application.

—Kindly send us both old and new addresses and names to the desired change.

—Changes made only upon the written request of the subscriber and settlement in full must be made at the same time.

Advertising and Business Communications Should be

Addressed to

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

Box 869

Charlotte, N. C.

EDITORIAL

LE AS A SHOOTING STAR

hoped that Dr. Walter L. Lingle, elected by Concord Presbytery to act as president of Davidson College, is eminently fitted for it, but to the time of life if he is ever in his life calling, he had better be it. The Southern Presbyterian has been promoting him for over a half year, catapulting him from a position to another, until he a shooting star" as he is arrested in career and summarily thrust into ore. In our opinion, he has about a max, or perhaps, we had better elion, as the point is called where romet comes nearest to the sun. expect him to decline toward the ont and vanish. Indeed, we are he most useful era of his most ident of Davidson College offers e finest opportunity our denomina- While it is admitted that "stars her stars in glory," and our sem- men's and women's colleges, our sips, and committees, etc., etc., are etc. and "womanned" with a dis- and talented personnel, yet allow at Davidson offers a chance at a up of cosmopolitan leaders not ny assemblage in our Church. Of s a matter of potentiality, which problems in higher mathematics. om as I conceive it at Davidson is modern education to the rising such a way as not to discredit the o give the student a scientific r to weigh the facts, yet not be e effect by the marvelous revelations of moral and religious principles. he refuse, ostrich-like, to ob- ects of new thought on old state- same truth.

esent of Davidson must be no st darkening knowledge lest he be modernism. Neither must he be an Glenn Frank urges, revelling in ion of old idols of thought and expect the president of Davidson e the standards of religious educa- ble, the Church, the Sabbath, the one, Jesus Christ the Son of God ator of men.

to our figure of the comet in its th our distinguished friend now, us career, in the place of closest the Mighty one, we pray that the hat that comes from the Face of is may fall upon him in such rad- power that they will make of him a which will throw out these spiritual e Church and the world in the abundance and with the widest bless- J. G. G.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR CONFER- ENCE AT MONTREAT

the State Convention of the North Union which takes the place of the people's Conference. This is the first time this exchange has been made, and if we judge from the comments of those present, the experiment will not again be tried.

We did not return from Charlotte till it had met and finished its work, but we hear that the attendance was not large, nor were the meetings very enthusiastic.

Perhaps a psychological reason can be found for this lack of attendance.

The Christian Endeavor Society spreads over too much space for any one to feel a proprietary interest in it, while the Young People's Conference is a native product, home grown, a Presbyterian enterprise—undiluted by any outside ingredient.

When they gather they are more united than when they come from distant points.

At this meeting Mr. Stokes S. Rawlins, of Greensboro, N. C., the president of the Christian Endeavor Union, presided. Rev. W. Arnett Gamble, of Pinetops, N. C., who contributes regularly to the Standard, delivered the opening address.

Dr. H. W. DuBose, of Spartanburg, S. C., spoke each morning. Dr. H. H. Sweets made the closing address on Saturday.

Prof. J. P. Moore, superintendent of the Mebane Public Schools had charge of the recreation activities, which consisted in part of hiking and swimming.

CONFERENCE ON CHRISTIAN EDUCATION AT MONTREAT

This, the first regular Conference of the season's course, opened on Tuesday evening, July 2, with the usual exercises.

Dr. W. S. Wilson pastor of the Montreat Church offered prayer.

Mr. Robt. J. White, of Noblesville, Indiana, who, with his wife, will have charge of the music this season, as they did last year, much to the gratification of the visitors.

Dr. R. C. Anderson gave a cordial welcome to the conference, and Dr. Sweets outlined the program for the week.

Dr. J. B. Green, of Columbia Seminary made an address on Christian Education.

Dr. Green had charge of the Bible hour during the Conference.

He is a pleasant speaker, and his address was a strong discussion of Christian Education. He deals in clear-cut analysis, without any superfluous words.

He conducted Bible readings Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, using as his text I Corinthians 15:3, 4. Taking these passages as a definition of the Gospel, he discussed the charge of the Modern Critics that Paul originated our type of Christianity, and that he presented another Gospel than that of Christ.

The critics contend that the real Christ is not presented in the four gospels, but the Christ as imagined by man. In order to settle the question we must compare the Christ of Paul with the real Christ as pictured in the Gospels and predicted by the prophets.

If the Christ of the Gospels is not the real Christ, then we have no Christ and the world is lost.

We must therefore examine the Christ as described by Paul and the Christ of the Gospel writers.

The Christ of Paul is one who died for our sins, and the question then is, Do the Gospels picture a Christ dying for man's sins? Did Christ in his discourses predict his own death?

Paul pictures Him as dying for our sins, and the question is this, Did he have any authority to teach such as doctrine from anything Christ said?

In John 3:14 we read, "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of Man be lifted up." Matt. 16:21; Mark 9:31; Luke 24:7. In John 3:14 note the force of "Must."

This is "Must" of necessity—hence He taught that his death was necessary. But why was it necessary? See John 12:24, "Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone." Without his death his work would have been in vain—nothing could come from it.

John 10:11. Good Shepherd giveth his life for the sheep. He clearly taught that He would die for men.

When we compare this doctrine with that taught in the Old Testament, we find that all the Scriptures of the Old Testament hinged upon the death of the lamb and the substitution for the man offering it.

In the New Testament we find John the Baptist preaching the truth that this Christ was the Lamb that was to take away man's sins.

It follows then that Jesus considered his death necessary to the success of his mission.

Sometimes it is said that the importance of his death is magnified, that he did not lay such emphasis upon his death as did the apostles.

It is contended that he merely set an example, to show the malignity of sin.

We must remember the space given to his death in the Gospels, out of all proportion to that given to other events in his life. His resurrection is always joined with his death. The grain of wheat dies to live—it dies in order to come up.

Another question is, where did Jesus get his Gospel? He nowhere makes claim for originality for it.

The historic beginning is in the Old Testament, and therefore whether taught by Jesus or proclaimed by Paul, it is essentially the same.

If this be true, then we ought to find this Gospel in the prophets.

Peter teaches that the prophets knew the Gospel that he preached when he says (I Pet. 1:10, 11) Of which salvation the prophets have enquired and searched diligently, who prophesied of the grace that should come unto you. Compare also Luke 24:26.

Note that his sufferings and his glory go together.

We regret that we are unable to do justice to Dr. Green's strong and forcible discussion. We have merely given a most imperfect outline.

We not only enjoyed the lectures from a literary point of view, but doctrinally they were to us as a shadow of a great rock in a weary land.

There have been times in the past when our soul has been vexed by indirect assaults upon the system of doctrine to which all Presbyterian ministers subscribe.

Dr. Green's trumpet had no uncertain sound, and in these days of loose doctrine and deadened consciences, it is refreshing to find a man who can discuss the doctrines of our Church without wavering.

We congratulate Columbia Seminary upon his possession.

DAVIDSON'S PRESIDENT-EMERITUS

We are printing today Dr. Wm. J. Martin's cordial welcome of the new president of Davidson College and his own valedictory, as he leaves the office he has held now for 17 years.

Dr. Martin is resigning because of recent illness, and he feels it unwise to spend the energy needed to reach the ideal he set as head of this great institution. He very appropriately calls his incumbency of the president's chair his "Life Work."

Dr. Martin has filled this office with great success, and he may look back upon his administration as adding renown both to both the college and his own name. He has gathered around him a group of men who have solved the difficult problem of loyalty both to religion and modern education. He has always held the esteem of the Church, and has no less claim now. As former professor of chemistry, following his distinguished father, Dr. Martin was acknowledged a leader in the Church, one of the South's most talented laymen. Soon after his election as president of Davidson, the Kansas City Assembly, in 1914, made him Moderator. He has done outstanding work as one of the creators of our present system of church finance and stewardship. His ability as a speaker has given him many opportunities of addressing large gatherings. He should have many precious memories as a presbyter in Concord Presbytery.

We bid him Godspeed. May health return in full measure. May many years of usefulness be accorded. May the riches of grace in Christ Jesus be given him and all his loved ones.

J. G. G.

THE WORK OF EVANGELISM

Rev. W. K. Johnston, D.D.

An address at the Women's Presbyterian, Midland, Tex., "Do the work of an Evangelist," II Tim. 4:5.

These are brief Anglo Saxon words. But they are most dynamic and meaningful in their far reaching application to every age of the Church. They are the words of Paul to Timothy on the essentials of a growing and successful ministry intrusted with the Gospel. In these six brief words, we have the secret of a growing life, in the ministry, a Growing Church and Empire for Christ. The explanation why some Churches never die out, the whole secret of Empire for Christ is here, "Do the work of an Evangelist." The speaker of these words, is Paul, one who has been an Evangelist all of his saved life, and knows what the work of an Evangelist is. The man who could say, "I magnify the whole counsel of God," the man who stirred the Church yonder at Jerusalem, with this challenge of his labors, in and about Ephesus, "Whereas you had nothing in all these parts, now all Asia saluteth you." The explanation of open doors, and all these parts in Asia, won to Christ, is this, the most intensive, personal house to house, community to community, from Church to Church and from town to town Evangelism. The secret of that first hundred years of marvellous growth and spread of the Apostolic Church is this, Evangelism, doing the work of an Evangelist.

Meaning of "Evangelism"

This word Evangelism, is a most illuminating and inspiring word. Church papers and religious literature are full of this word. But there is a vast difference between paper, or printed Evangelism, and active Evangelism. Some most active in print, may seldom be about this real work of Christians. Evangelism means Good News, Glad Tidings of Salvation offered to all, through faith in our risen Christ. The Evangelist is a man with a message, or the carrier of the good news. The message is the Evangel, and the Messenger is the Evangelist, and the Gospel of good news, is the evangel. The disciples were the early Evangelists of New Testament times, and the teaching of Jesus was their evangel or message. The great Commission is their Evangel. They are the carriers. Evangelists, in a true sense, are Christians going out with the great Commission. Heralds of glad tidings of good news. Indeed, the whole of New Testament Evangelism may be written in three words, "Go, tell others." Telling about Jesus, making known to the uttermost parts of the earth, the aim and purpose of His coming, and of His death yonder on Calvary.

"He died that we might be forgiven,
He died to make us good,
That we might go at last to heaven
Saved by His precious blood."

There was a time, we are told, when the temple doors were shut, the lamps put out and the fire extinguished on the altar at Jerusalem. Failure and trouble came. Evangelism is the fire of God on the Church altar, never to go out. Evangelism is putting over through the Church and God's saved people, the great Commission, "Go ye into all the world." Evangelism means soul-winning or personal work in the interest of the Lost. Evangelism is God's method of distributing Gospel Grace, Evangelism is telling God and the world, 'I am my Brother's keeper.' I am living 'as one who watches for Souls.' I am 'grieved for the affliction of Joseph.' I am 'moved with compassion for the multitudes.' Evangelism is the heart throb of the New Testament Church. Evangelism is the pulse beat of that first century of Gospel preaching. When the preachers saw none, but Jesus only. When they are determined to know nothing but Christ and Him crucified. When the note went out from a fiery Paul, 'God forbid that I should glory, save in the Cross of Jesus Christ.' Evangelism is the whole secret of a spreading Church, and an Empire for Christ in this world. Evangelism is the explanation of our Christian age, and civilization, as we enjoy it. Evangelism explains where we are, and what we are, as a Christian nation or country. Oh, what debt the world owes to her great Evangelists, these men like Paul and Timothy and others, through the centuries of sin and darkness and persecution, who have been about this work. They are the steps up which the Church has climbed to nobler levels. How much today, still depends upon an Evangelist, an evangelistic Church, both as respects the future of the Church, and the world about it, and, as respects the glory of God made known through His Church. The one objective in all preaching and teaching and Church organization is this, evangelism, doing the work of an Evangelist."

God pity a so called Church of Jesus Christ, more interested or concerned about something else than about this specific charge or commission to Timothy, "Watch thou in all things, endure afflictions, and, do the work of an Evangelist." No Presbyterian Churches of our Assembly who have been about this work are on the list of a 100 or more Churches, which report no additions to the Church last year. No Churches going about this work, have closed doors, as they say, on account of local conditions or circumstances. No Churches busy about this work are indifferent or refusing to line up with our Every Member Canvas or stewardship program, as a channel or carrier of the great Commission through our own country, and to the uttermost parts of the earth. There is no surer sign of a dying Church than the evasion, neglect or suppression of this apostolic note, "Do the work of an Evangelist." I say again, God pity those Churches and those preachers, not burdened with the sense of sin and winning this lost world to Christ, but who are dissipating their energies and their years, and their God-given opportunities and going to the judgment bar of God, as they, who must give an account, for cumbering the soil, and instead of the fruits of souls won, have nothing but leaves, those whom this charge to Timothy has not yet reached. "And do the work of an Evangelist."

In reflecting upon these most meaningful and dynamic words, I would have you note:

The Work of An Evangelist

What is the work of an Evangelist? First of all, I would have you note that it is a work, calling into play energy of body, mind and heart. The word work, used here by Paul, implies out-put, exertion, effort, waste and wear. Not necessarily, "rip and tear." A work calling into play the noblest aspirations and ambitions, plans, purposes, visions, initiative, personality and force of life. Yes, it is a work. As Doctor Andrews says, "God's opportunity through human instrumentality." We still have this treasure in earthen vessels. There are still, vessels of wood, hay and stubble, and vessels of gold and silver. What is this work?

It is the work of living the Christian life after such fashion as to influence and attract others to Christ. So living that men shall take knowledge of us, that we too, have been with Christ Jesus. Eloquent living is often more far-reaching than eloquent preaching. The world is starving for eloquence of heart and life expressed toward those living round about us. It is the work of preaching, teaching, giving, going, sending and praying with a manifest feeling and concern about the lost. They may be members of our homes, or families, our neighbors or friends, next door to us. How tragic, if they are reading in us no heartfelt sympathy or concern about their spiritual state. This is the work of soul-winning or personal work for Christ and the lost all about us. Again, it is the work of organizing and setting up the Church, with its program or methods of procedure, in out of the way, or new places. It is enlisting members, ordaining officers and pastors. Sunday School and young people's workers, stewardship program, and lining up the Church after such a fashion that it can function, and not have to die for the lack of proper organization, as some Churches do. Evangelism is the work of re-inforcing the Church and its institutions already set up, taking care of all the interests and causes of our Church. Evangelism is the whole Church heading up with all of its agencies and departments, and functioning in the one business of a New Testament Church,—that is, Evangelism. As Paul writes, "That may be made known by the Church, in its capacity, in its preaching capacity, in its teaching capacity, in its praying capacity, in its giving capacity, in its serving capacity and in its suffering capacity, the manifold wisdom of God." Bible and Church history are beautiful and fragrant with the lives of those who have been about this work. They are the morning stars of this better age of the organized Church. Who are to do this work of an Evangelist? The Assembly's Evangelists alone? Pastors alone? The elders of the Church? Deacons? May it be committed to a class or group of personal workers and dismissed with this? No. It is the work of the whole Church. The work of every saved man and woman. "Blessed, that I may be a blessing." Saved that I may help to save others. Where do this work? "Begin at Jerusalem." "A man who provides not for his own house hath denied the faith." I am stressing today, the needs of our Presbytery for a great revival on soul winning throughout all of our Churches. I would call your attention to our fields. The work we have in hand. Open doors now challenging the Presbytery, our handicap for needs of church buildings, means and workers. The work is so great and there are so few to do it. But it is not impossible for us to do better and more, in the way of soul-winning when we catch the clarion tones of this Apostolic call, to rise up in every community and Church and "Do the work of an evangelist." Space forbids stressing here, as we should, the importance of this work, the difficulties accompanying or attending this work, or the best methods of going about this work. Also, the needs of an Evangelistic leadership in all our Churches, the need of training and education in the work of soul winning in our Churches, the need of seasons of prayer for this kind of work at home and in the services of the church, the need of a great church-wide revival in the interest of the lost. For revival is, and has ever been, God's method of gathering up and preparing his people for their best service for Him, God's method of building up his Church numerically, and making the Empire for Christ.

Incentives to Evangelism

What noble incentives we have, to arise, bestir ourselves, and go about this neglected and wasting field of God's great work for His people?

We have the example of Jesus. He was a mighty and tireless worker. "Wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business." "He came to seek and save that which was lost." He is ever about this work, ever seeking out the lost. We have the example of Paul. "My heart's desire and prayer to God for Israel is, that they might be saved." We have before us, the inspiring example of all those who have been seed sowers and the builders of Churches in every age of waiting and passing opportunity. We have the example of other persistent and aggressive denominations growing and expanding in the work all about us, through their program of personal and public evangelism, looking after and taking care of the sheep. Outside, inviting and taking care of the sheep in their inviting denominational folds. More, we have to inspire us, the wasting harvest. "Say not, there are yet four months until the harvest, but labourers are few, pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest that he will send forth labourers into His harvest."

We have as an incentive, the reward. The crown that awaits those who are going about these fields white unto the harvest and bringing home the sheaves, ripe and golden. The reward is something more than our own hearts kept warm and right with God. Something more than more Churches and more Church members to help in a larger work. Something more than a growing and prosperous church, as over against a Church closing up, and going to seed, for the lack of this kind of work. Something more than a membership equal to our Home

Men-of-the-Church

Presbyterian Church in the United States

REV. J. E. PURCELL, D.D., Executive
HENRY GRADY BUILDING
ATLANTA, GEORGIA

REV. JOHN L. FAIRLY, D.D., Wilmington
Editor in Charge of Men-of-the-Church D

PEACE TO THE ENDS OF THE EARTH

(Continued from last week)

The third reason of war has been secret among the nations. A member of the House has written: "The destinies of the people mercy of the Cabinet and of individual Ministers. Foreign policy is formed without the wishes of the people. The people are silent into account. They have to abide by decisions framing of which they have had absolutely no say. In the most important branch of its action—the control and direction of foreign Government of this country is no more than the Government of the Tsar or the German Government under the old regime. This is (p. 48). These treaties, causing fear and decides, hurried up armaments and prevented thought before war was declared.

A fourth cause of war has been a lack of understanding. The better we know people we are to misunderstand their motives as likely we are to come to agreement. Men have been separated by language and custom and literary leaders have developed an intense nationalistic spirit. Loyalty to one's noble feeling, but loyalty must not be developing misunderstanding with neighboring is needed is a knowledge that all men are us, with the same problems, the same losses, the same aims.

The following poem entitled "German Joseph Lee, which appeared first in "The Spectator" illustrate what is meant by understanding

"When first I saw you in the curious Like some platoon of soldier ghosts in My mad impulse was all to smite and
To spit upon you—tread you 'neath my
But when I saw how each sad soul di
My gaze with no sign of defiant frow
How from tired eyes looked spirits br
How each face showed the pale flag of
And doubt, despair, and disillusionme
And how were grievous wounds on m
And on your garb red-faced was othe
And how you stooped as men whose st spent,
I knew that we had suffered each as e
And could have grasped your hand
"My brother!"—(Horne, p. 1)

STEPS TOWARD UNIVERSAL PEACE

Peace until quite recently was merely the condition which prevailed in the intervals. It was a purely negative condition. Ever reduced the tendencies existing in his tin orderly expression, addressed himself to war as the positive part of international and dealt only with peace as its negative. Every name of his historic treatise, "De pacis" (1625) shows the subordination of main subject of war. In our own time peace a higher status. Here are some steps.

The Hague Conference

The Hague Conference was the first effort ever made to secure the peace of general convention. It was due to the young tsar, Nicolas II. He proposed that be an international conference for the purpose the efforts of all states which were "sought to make the great idea of universal peace the elements of trouble and discord." The was held in 1899 with twenty-six powers the second in 1907 with forty-four powers the whole world. These conferences proven law in the place of the unwritten or nations guided themselves. They also court of arbitration. The third conference was held in 1917. The reason why it was stated.

and Foreign Mission task, and stewardships. The reward for the winners of human estimate, in terms of things and Angels, we are told rejoice in Heaven brought home to God. Solomon writes, "souls is wise," James says, "Let him know converteth the sinner from the error of save a soul from death, and shall hide sin." Daniel going out one evening, and the heavens, jeweled with the moon and "And they that turn many to righteousness the stars, forever and ever."

The Lord lay upon us today, more than felt before, this work of the people and to us the open vision of our Presbytery, and vest, of the need of reapers. And let us separate ourselves to this heaven appointed that next year shall be the greatest a year in soul winning, of all our years white unto the harvest.

Lubbock, Texas.

rences bore fruit, however. They were the Permanent Court of International Council of the League called twelve international lawyers to meet at the Hague in 1920. Discussion the court as now constituted was any encyclopedia.)

of the success of the Court and its value affect international discussions of dispute too much space. Its existence is manifestly recognized as a means of escape from those leadlocks which have seemed insoluble be-party felt willing to humiliate itself by its position.

League of Nations

products of the war, there is only one of fit—the League of Nations. Crippled as start by the failure of one of the largest shareholders to take the capital stock assigned to him, it has, nevertheless, gone business. It is not a perfect organization; it and sometimes shows weakness; but these it shares with the governments of which. Its existence has been justified again and in fact, made itself indispensable, certainly European area and that of its dependencies, the world. It is the only barrier that stands nation and the tide that is ready to engulf hope of the world.

is the leader of the forces that are draw- together, directing them and creating es a common table where nations may their desires and their grievances. It has act to which they have agreed to bring their l. It is an agency of publicity on which ns may call to enlist the aid of the public world against attempted oppression. With- ge we could hardly have had Locarno and that they mean and may mean for the pe. Without the League the present move- nification of industry and for the destruc- rief barriers built by a frenzied nationalism ever have hoped for success. Gerould in ry, January, 1927. (No effort was made League. See good encyclopedia.)

Locarno

25) is a fact of European significance. It e from the nightmare of warlike complica- f the danger points of the continent. It system of objective legal procedure and gement for high handed militarism and rpretation of treaties. It paved the way o-operation in the League of Nations. Security Pact pledges the contracting ge to observe existing frontiers, as estab- reaty of Versailles, and the demilitariza- aineland. Germany, France and Belgium r that they will not attack each other, in- r's country, or go to war against each e certain exceptions. Any disagreements ed to League of Nations.

adership of the American Secretary of . Kellogg, the United States entered upon t extensive efforts thus far undertaken o possibilities of war. The American Secre- cked up by the President, The Chairman tee on Foreign Relations of the Senate, e spread public opinion, offered to the world a treaty designed to do away with its detailed description. See encyclopedia nformation. Two articles are as follows: he High Contracting Parties solemnly name of their respective people that they rse to war for the solution of interna- sies, and renounce it as an instrument of in their relations with one another. he High Contracting Parties agree that r solution of all disputes or conflicts ture or of whatever origin they may be, e among them, shall never be sought ac means.

What Can We Do About It?

Page points out in his book, "War: Its re," the abolishment of war must start ual. "All social reforms have started with ls. In the beginning, a few men and wo- and agitate. There has been no other ing giant social evils. Individual action eate, but it is the only foundation of social efore, every person who desires the rvar should begin with himself. What is rd war? Am I willing to renounce all o sanction or participate in any future e make a public declaration of such a decis- ways may I arouse my friends and per- take similar action? These are questions sideration." (p. 192-3.)

ood, pastor of the famous City Temple of s, "Nobody knows when the day may come aith and attitude will be put to a crucial r myself where I shall be if that test fa you will know I am a moral coward. I here I am as a Christian minister, with Never under any circumstances can the men be in accord with the spirit of itation from a minister of our own church. on of this world are founded on principles very essentials of Christ, and this matter n outstanding illustration of this solemn ten of our church, under the guidance set themselves to study the real follow- ur dependence upon force and fear, our l snobbery, our recognition of casts and t from brotherhood will all pass away. nd, so long as we think of war as essen- ways we look down upon other races of the human kind, so long as we are influenced by the lord- ships of birth and wealth and the consequent insistence upon positions of superiority and inferiority, we will make no actual progress toward the coming of the kingdom. As things are now, we are like a man who preaches sobriety to his sons but brings them up in a saloon. I would to God that men would help our church to see what I mean by assertions like the foregoing."

Then surely the churches and their ministers have a message on this subject. I quote again, "It certainly seems to me that Christian men everywhere ought to be brought face to face with the fact that now as never before it is up to us as to whether war shall be actually banished from the face of the earth. I heard C. C. Morrison speak the other night. The man who introduced him spoke about 'The international miracle which we call the Kellogg Treaty.' It is almost beyond belief that the nations of the earth should actually come to the positions they are now officially taking. I wonder if anything more momentous has occurred since Pentecost. It all depends on the attitude of Christian churches and Christian individuals. If we sneer at the pact and oppose disarmament as an absurdity, then Kellogg's trip to Paris was a waste of time and the paper of the treaty would better have been used for wadding in our rifles. If we can see that Jesus was not a dreaming fool, and that the men who knelt with meek and seraphic faces in the Coliseum were worthy leaders toward a better day, then the infinite waste and the immeasurable hatreds and passions of war will be no more. If we cannot get some such vision, then the Prince of Peace must wait still on a generation that can. Personally I blush with shame when I realize that we have waited so long. We claim to be followers of the Prince of Peace, but in this case we are going to have to trail ignominiously after the kings of earth. The politicians have spoken while we preachers were silent."

There are surely some questions which we should consider. Should we have it in church colleges? Is it right to make it compulsory? How should Armistice Day be celebrated?

Here is another very wise suggestion: "Another important step in the direction of the permanent abolition of war is an adequate program of religious education. War will not finally be regarded as sin until this idea has been implanted in the minds of children and young people. It is all-important, therefore, that war and international questions be given adequate treatment in the literature and program of religious education of the various churches." (p. 200.)

Conclusion

There is undoubtedly much room for discussion in this theme, but there will be few to dissent from the fact that war is the most terrible curse which this world has ever seen, and that all men who love the Jesus way of living would endeavor with all the power at their command to destroy utterly its causes. We can never do this until we create a sentiment against it in the hearts of men everywhere. It is still a noble thing to die for one's country, but somewhere in the causes which led to the necessity for such a death is something which is to be utterly condemned.

NORTH CAROLINA COMPENSATION ACT AFFECTS CHURCH EMPLOYEES

(From Statesville Landmark)

The workmen's compensation act is covering more territory than was expected, as has been remarked. The latest decision is that churches employing as many as five persons are within the provisions of the act. This gets the larger town churches. The pastor, janitor, organist and a couple of choristers will bring the congregation within the act and make it necessary to provide liability insurance. Choir singers employed for part time count same as full time employees. The churches with only five employees may remove themselves from the provisions of the act, according to the statute, but they take a chance at that. If a church employee is injured in the line of duty and brings action for damages, institutions not within the provisions of the act may not plead contributory negligence, assuming risk, etc., as they might otherwise do. It may be said that action for damages against a church is unknown. That may be because it has not been generally known that such an action can be maintained. The enactment of the workmen's compensation act will suggest employers' liability not hitherto in mind.

Under the ruling of the attorney general church organizations employing as many as five persons are on the same basis as any industrial establishment. The preacher or any of the church employees injured in the line of duty would be entitled to the compensation provided in the act. Furthermore if health was impaired on account of lack of ventilation, or too much ventilation—lack of proper working conditions—compensation would be due if the commission appointed to administer the act so found. It may seem out of the common, classing a church organization as an industry. But the employees of a church, it must be admitted, are entitled to the same benefits as other employees. Seeing that with us church employees are not highly paid, that is an additional reason why they should have compensation for injuries sustained in line of duty.

DR. GAMMON'S SUCCESSOR

Egbert W. Smith

When our gifted and beloved Dr. Samuel R. Gammon, founder and for so many years head of our schools in Lavras, Brazil, passed to his reward, the feeling was no doubt general throughout our Church, "Who can take his place?" But the right man to succeed him was trained and ready. Another illustration it is that while God buries the worker, He carries on the work. Our whole Church will read with interest the following paragraphs from a letter from Mrs. Samuel R. Gammon, describing the new President of our Lavras Schools, and showing also how the Kingdom is spreading in the town of Lavras. Writes Mrs. Gammon:

"God has richly blessed the school in providing such an able successor, Mr. Knight, who has been working in the school for nineteen years, and is fully equipped to take up the leadership, and to develop the plans that have been in formation during all these years. I cannot say too much about the splendid way in which he is directing the school, making it a success materially and intellectually, and always keeping in first place the spiritual influences which give life and meaning to the work. I believe we are entering upon a new era of success and usefulness; the seed-sowing has been done, and I believe and pray that the harvest will be a bountiful one.

"There has been an unusual amount of interest this year in spiritual things, on the part of our students, and many of them have expressed their determination to follow Christ. Now that the session's work is almost concluded, they will soon go to their homes, and it will be a time of testing for many of them. Some will encounter fierce opposition, others will confront a deadlier condition—chilling indifference.

"Lavras has been growing rapidly in the last few years and the opening of a new railroad has greatly increased the commercial life of the city. A large cotton factory is a comparatively new industry, and is the center of a newly settled section of the city. One of our older students has been conducting a Sunday School in a private home in that section, and its success justified the erection of a chapel on the principal street of the district. It has just been completed, and was dedicated about two weeks ago. The building is substantial and attractive, and is pointed to with pride by the residents of the neighborhood, who feel that it is theirs. The attendance is almost three times what it was when services were held in a home. It is splendid to think that there are now two churches in Lavras, both of them filled to overflowing every Sunday."

THE PSALM OF TIME

Bruce S. Wright, D.D.

Psalm 90 is the Psalm of Time. It is a noble utterance—majestic, yet simplicity itself. There is nothing like it anywhere else, and only a few utterances that can compare with it. Time is a strange thing—as elusive as the wind, as fragile as bubbles blown in the air, yet as real and solid as the ground under our feet.

First, we find here the source of time: Lord, thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations. . . . From everlasting to everlasting, thou art God. Time does not affect God, for He is the author of time. A man who is fabulously rich does not need to worry about money. God is fabulously rich in time. From everlasting to everlasting. I can not comprehend it. I do not need to. Enough to say, as I want to say, as William Lloyd says:

"My times are in thy hand,
My God, I wish them there;
My life, my friends, my soul, I leave Entirely to thy care."

In the second place, this great psalm tells us about God's great clock of time. We love the town clock. There is a clear note of international peace in the fact that all countries take their time from the world's clock in Greenwich. But back of all these is God's clock. Listen to it tick!

Tick, tick—a thousand years!

Tick, tick—a thousand years!

"For a thousand years in thy sight are but as yesterday, when it is past, or as a watch in the night."

Tick, tick, tick—hurry, hurry, hurry, is man's little clock of doubt and uncertainty.

Tick, tick, tick, tick!

is God's great clock of calm and confidence. Try each day to regulate your life by God's great clock.

This psalm also tells us of the revelations of time. Here is the revelation of the frailty of human flesh. We are like the grass. . . . All human flesh is frail. It is natural to see frailty in every one else but not in oneself.

And here is the revelation of the unconceivableness of sin: "Thou hast set our iniquities before thee, our secret sins in the light of thy countenance." Of all the delusions of time this takes the prize, the delusion that sin can be kept a secret from the world. There is another revelation. God knows our human frailty, our tendency to sin, therefore, He reveals to us his great mercy: "O satisfy us early with thy mercy." Absolute justice and infinite mercy are revealed in the Psalm of Time.

The fifth helpful suggestion in the great Psalm of Time is time's noblest ambition: "So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto" . . . Unto riches? So some are saying. Unto pleasure? Many another puts that word in. Unto thrills? Unto gluttony? How dare we mar the sacred Word with even the remotest thought of such an ambition! Unto wisdom. Apply our hearts. As we apply ourselves to our task, to anything we have to do, anything we love to do, so let us apply our hearts unto wisdom!

And now, at last, the crown of time: "Let the beauty of the Lord our God be upon us; and establish thou the work of our hands upon us; yea, the work of our hands, establish thou it." This, our great Psalm of Time, begins with time and ends with time; begins with permanence and ends with permanence; begins with God and ends with God; begins with confidence and ends with confidence, the confidence that our short human day is secure in the eternal day of the everlasting God.—Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.

YOUTH IN AN AIRPLANE AGE

(Address of Edward P. Gates, General Secretary International Society of Christian Endeavor. Delivered at the International Christian Endeavor Convention, Kansas City.)

Young people are better today than ever before, and they have to be, because it is harder to be good today than it was a generation ago. Thirty years ago father gave son a bicycle as a graduation present. Now the magazines are advertising "Give that boy of yours an airplane when he graduates." It takes more moral stamina to live in an airplane age than in a bicycle age.

There is, therefore, more need today than ever before for the character building service which movements such as Christian Endeavor can render to young people. And there is reason for rejoicing that the experience of the past two years gives the lie to those misguided observers in the halls of Congress and elsewhere who have recently been proclaiming that the present generation of youth is hopelessly bad and that young people in general are chiefly interested in pocket flasks and petting parties.

This convention itself is evidence. While not the largest gathering in Christian Endeavor history, the out-of-the-city attendance is larger in proportion to the Christian Endeavor population within a five hundred mile radius than at any previous convention. Our conventions do not specialize on entertainment features. Young people have come to Kansas City by thousands not for recreation and entertainment, but to talk and study together about ways of doing better work in their own communities and churches.

Prosperity of Christian Youth Movement

The prosperity of the Christian Endeavor movement and of other Christian organizations for young people is evident. There are more Christian Endeavor societies in more churches in more nations of the world today than ever before. Christian Endeavor is distinctly a Christian movement. It believes in the acceptance of Jesus Christ as a personal Saviour. It emphasizes the importance of outspoken Christian testimony, practical Christian service, and unwavering loyalty to the church. It upholds high ideals of Christian living for young people. It is an encouraging fact that millions of young people in all countries of the world continue to respond to this kind of a challenge.

A third ground for encouragement is the increasing spirit of co-operation among all Christian youth groups. While their elders are talking church union, Christian young people everywhere are practising it. Nationally, the Crusade with Christ proposed by President Poling at the International Christian Endeavor Convention in Cleveland two years ago has enlisted the co-operation of practically every Christian youth group in North America and many organizations in foreign lands. The Crusade has focused the attention of millions of young people upon the great question of World Peace, Christian Citizenship, and Evangelism, and inevitably, in thousands of communities, it has brought the young people of the different churches closer together than ever before in united effort for things worth while.

C. E. Manifests Union Spirit

This convention is a striking evidence of this growing feeling of Christian fellowship. Members of denominational young people's societies, Boy Scouts, Y. M. C. A., and Y. W. C. A., and every other Christian agency in Kansas City, have worked together to make this meeting possible.

Christian Endeavor rejoices in the success of all of these agencies. There is today no competition in the field of young people's work. Denominational and interdenominational leaders are working together as never before to do unitedly those things which need to be done.

This growing tendency toward co-operation is manifesting itself within the Christian Endeavor organization in an increased number of union or federated societies in smaller communities. In hundreds of communities where the churches have not found it possible to unite, the young people have gotten together in one Christian Endeavor society and are working out in practical way the problems of Christian fellowship.

A vital contribution to this spirit of fellowship is being made by the Christian Endeavor Union organization. There are now approximately fourteen hundred city, county, and district Christian Endeavor unions, each including from four or five to three hundred Christian Endeavor societies. These unions are officered by more than fourteen thousand young people. They give to the societies in the individual churches the inspiration of fellowship with young people of other denominations and churches, the opportunity to share in co-operative community enterprises, and practical help in doing the work of the local organization.

Interest of Youth in Vocational Guidance

A fourth reason for faith in youth is the evidence that these young people are eager to make their lives count in some kind of worth-while service. Two years ago, through the generosity of the J. C. Penney Foundation, the International Society of Christian Endeavor was enabled to create a Department of Christian Vocations. To this department have come literally thousands of requests from young people for advice in the choice of a life work, information about educational opportunities, and kindred subjects. Among the best attended meetings at conventions and conferences have been those relating to this matter of vocations. The demands for help have far exceeded the present resources of the department. Under the direction of Superintendent Vandersall, a national organization is being developed of trained volunteers which will some day make it possible to give personal Christian counsel to all young people desiring it.

A fifth reason for encouragement is the fact that young people are putting religion into their play as well as into their work. Present-day young people are interested in clean recreation. They are hungry for wholesome fun and worth-while good times. If young people go to the bad now and then it is often because we fail to give them a chance to go to the good.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPT.

W. A. Gamble, Pinetops, N. C.

EDITOR'S LOOKOUT

The June meeting of the Fort Smith-Van Buren Christian Endeavor Union was held in the Van Buren Presbyterian Church. It took the form of a miniature International Christian Endeavor Convention. It began with yells and songs led by Miss Mamie Gene Cole. Lawrence Hobson, President of the Intermediate Society in the First Presbyterian Church, Fort Smith, as "Dr. Daniel A. Poling" called the convention to order. Eleanor Bailey

The establishment three years ago by the International Society of a Department of Recreation met with an instant response. The monthly recreation service of the department is now being reprinted by nearly a score of church papers and is distributed through state and city union bulletins to probably several thousand societies. No service offered by the International Society has met with a more enthusiastic welcome.

The events of these two years have further proved that young people are interested in world problems. They believe in prohibition and want to have a part in encouraging observance of law. Christian Endeavor can point with pride to its citizenship activities and to its activities in behalf of world peace and international friendship.

Progress of Christian Endeavor

As a matter of record and as causes for rejoicing there should be listed here the following additional forward steps of the International Society during the past two years.

The acceptance of the generous gift of the Christian Endeavor World from its former owners and its continued publication as the official organ of the movement under the editorial direction of Rev. R. P. Anderson.

The creation of the office of Mid-west Secretary and the election of Mr. Harold Singer to this important position. Mr. Singer's service to the seventeen states in his territory has been of inestimable value.

The change in the organization of our southern work, which has made this field directly a department of the International Society. W. Roy Breg, in his first year of service as Southern Secretary has made gratifying progress in emphasizing co-operation with denominational leaders and strengthening state and union organizations.

The fruitful campaign for Christian Endeavor in Hawaii conducted by our splendid Pacific Coast Secretary, Paul C. Brown, and made financially possible by that great friend of Christian Endeavor, Mr. Theodore Richards.

The extension of the influence of Doctor Poling's Radio Youth Conferences which have reached literally millions of young people throughout the country.

The campaign for Prohibition and Christian Citizenship in which President Poling, Extension Secretary Sherwood and Citizenship Superintendent Landrith have rendered and are rendering such conspicuously efficient service.

The pre-Easter evangelistic emphasis in both 1928 and 1929 through which hundreds of societies were enlisted in efforts for personal soul-winning.

The development of a program for World Peace, including the organization of study classes in racial and international problems, the creation of International Correspondence Clubs and the preparation of material for world friendship activities and discussions and debates on international questions.

The regular activities of the International Society have been continued. During the two years, 4,562 new Christian Endeavor societies have been reported, most of them organized with material supplied free of charge by our offices. There have been enrolled 10,623 Comrades of the Quiet Hour and 1,772 members of the Tenth Legion. Thousands of personal letters have been written in response to requests for help from the field. Our introduction service continues to bring young people moving from one community to another in touch with friendly churches in the towns to which they go. Not less than two-thirds of the time of the officers of the International Society is spent in field service in conventions, institutes, conferences and local church meetings. The International Society seeks to exercise no authority over any Christian Endeavorer or society, but it is seeking to serve to the best of its ability.

Needs of Christian Endeavor

For the future three needs are particularly apparent: 1. More young people. If the activities of Christian Endeavor are good for four million young people, they should be good for many more. Not for the sake of adding more members, but for the sake of sharing its blessings, every Christian Endeavor society should seek to serve the largest possible number of young people in its community.

2. More adult sympathy. Young people need more confidence and less criticism. They are not saints. They are normal human beings facing everyday problems. They would be helped immeasurably if in every church there could be enlisted a group of those adults who have formerly served in the young people's society to give them encouragement, counsel and support.

3. More financial support from adults for Christian youth movements. This need applies not only to Christian Endeavor but to other youth organizations as well. If the unlimited possibilities of Christian youth are to be released for the betterment of the world, money must come, not from young people, but from consecrated men and women of means. We give thanks for those who by their gifts have already manifested their faith in present-day young people. For a comparatively few dollars invested now, this world could be literally turned upside down for Jesus Christ.

from First Christian Church was then introduced by the world famous song leader, Homer Rodeheaver. The song service "Our ever smiling—General E. P. Gates" was presented. He in turn introduced the main speakers of the convention. When "C. E. ton, Publication Manager of the International Society of Christian Endeavor" was introduced, he called attention to "the charge of Mr. Evans, Manager of our work" and "the best loved paper in the world, 'The Christian Endeavor World.'" This impersonation of Wheeler, an Intermediate of First Presbyterian Church, Fort Smith, was exceedingly well done.

Following the introduction Mr. E. F. Leavelle, student pastor of Washburn Presbytery for the year, as "Dr. William Hiram Foulkes" led the service. He used one of the studies from Dr. Leavelle's book, "Youth Ways to Life."

After this Miss Nannie Ruth Hunt from the People's Society of First Presbyterian Church, Fort Smith, was introduced as "Miss Marion" and sang two numbers.

The President's message was a part of Dr. Leavelle's "Crusade with Christ" address which was given in Cleveland two years ago. The speaker was awarded a medal this year for declamation.

After this session a parade was staged. Everybody had regalia and everybody wore the "convention" badge. After the parade a recreation institute was held by "Carroll Wright," who was impersonating a minister, sponsor of the Van Buren Presbytery People.

It was a happy evening and did much to encourage young people in the coming International Convention to be held in Kansas City, July 3-8.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPIC

Sunday, July 21—Every-Day Citizenship: Psalm 1; Psalm 15; Romans 13:2, 3

C. G. A.

Citizens at Home

Today our topic for discussion is "Everyday Citizenship." We have studied about Christian Citizenship, and about the Christian Sunday being of our Nation. Today we are going to consider and think of ourselves as Christians building our Nation not only on Sunday but on every day. Let us begin our discussion with where our citizenship really begins—at home. Perhaps you hadn't thought of it before, but you are a citizen of the home before you are a citizen of the town, or of the community, or of the nation. At home is where we get our first taste of citizenship. Of course, the laws are not written there, but the laws may not be cut and dried, but the principles of citizenship are learned there. Home is the best citizen's training school. We learn there to regard others, and we learn to value neighbors as ourselves. We learn to love kindness, justice, and fair play. No citizen can be of service to his town, state, or nation.

The Citizen and Law

President Hoover has said, "The problem of law enforcement is not alone a function of business and industry. If law can be upheld only by enforcement, then our scheme of government is at fault. Every citizen has a personal duty in it—the duty to do his own actions, to so weigh the effect of his actions that his conduct shall be a positive force in the community with respect to law." Now, probably you have heard that there are so many laws that one cannot remember them—no more rights. But it has been said that private rights must yield to public rights. A foolish person believes that 'personal liberty' has existed in civilized society." Remember that law is the mark of a citizen. Without law there is anarchy. "Let every soul be in subjection to the powers, * * * for rulers are not a terror to good work, but to the evil." Laws are made to protect the weak, they were not made to irritate us, and we should see that they protect not only us, but our neighbors. No real citizen can be selfish in such a matter.

The Citizen Training New Citizens

Those of us who were born here in America should realize the position of those who have recently come to America from other nations where the custom is to be citizens. They have to learn to be citizens—different from those of us who are citizens. Whether or not, they imitate us; and they may not understand our language but they can understand our actions. If we break the law and try to get away with it, we can expect the same from them.

If we are to teach new citizens aright, we must first know what is right ourselves. Ignorance is costly. We should know how the city is governed and the officials. The policeman should not be a "bugaboo" to scare little children into mischief. If we as Americans try to frighten the policeman, what can we expect? We should know what the policeman does and what the policeman should do. As Christian citizens, we must help to give power to help these new Americans to understand the law.

The Citizen and Voting

What about the citizen and voting? Is it a privilege? The most of us here are not even though we have not yet voted. Voting is by some as a privilege which they may take just as it suits them. The real citizen is not a privilege—but it becomes more than a privilege. It is a duty. If good citizens do not vote, we know that the bad ones will take the whole of our government. We must learn to vote for what we are doing when we vote. Strife will become very strong in politics. It is easy to become corrupt. It is up to Christian citizens what they should be and to demand fair for all. Citizens must be builders every thing has a great deal to do with the way

Every-Day Citizens

Who shall sojourn in thy tabernacle?
All dwell in thy holy hill?"
Walk uprightly, and worketh righteousness
aseth truth in his heart."
at his best is a Christian citizen. And the oreth them that fear Jehovah." If we are s every day—the rest will follow without oth Jehovah require of thee, but to do love kindness, and to walk humbly with

SPORTS FROM PRESBYTERIES

Synod of North Carolina

Kings Mountain—1928-29

After a long and arduous ascent the mounttaches his lofty summit, his goal; so Kings bytery has reached its summit, the Honor t stopped climbing; but it is seeking higher or next year being every society on the his year our aims were to make the Honor omplete the quota of a Mamie McElwee
th of which were attained.

of work has been done; and societies have nterest in all activities of the Presbyteries local churches, especially by contributions ses, helping weaker societies, assisting and lly Vacation Bible Schools, helping build nuses and churches.

classes were conducted. All in a different were made especially attractive by pagars, posters, and other handwork.

Following the Davidson Conference three ere held in Belmont, Lincolnton, and Lake ll were unlike in many ways, they were the delegates to Davidson made the talks the devotionals. At the Belmont Echoes ld in conjunction with the regular meet-Gaston County Christian Endeavor Union a sted by the young people on the subject ons in China' was a special feature of the this Donald W. Richardson made an enress on the conditions in China at that olnton meeting was featured by a inspiray Rev. W. M. Currie of Belmont, while group heard Mr. Claude T. Carr give a talk on the Honor Roll.

Our plans include a three-day conference
the First Presbyterian Church from June gans from the Presbytery are not limited ertain in Gastonia homes. The program ivities in recreation, instruction, and worrence will open with a fellowship banquet
om. Unusually splendid speakers have been o good instructors and helpers. Out-door anned, including a picnic at a large city nce will close Sunday afternoon, June 30, sation service conducted by Rev. Edgar Sisbury.

Mary John Howe, Secretary.

Winston-Salem—1928-29

This year which ended March 31, 1929, the Young People's League had three Honor Glade Valley, 100 per cent, Mocksville, d Winston-Salem, 90 per cent.

Five prayer bands with an enrollment of and fourteen study classes with three contributions amounted to $337.50. This intingent Fees, the Mamie McElwee Scholand Foreign Missions.

ambition to see the Winston-Salem Presbynor Roll. Although this ambition was not el that progress has been made through ivities of our League work, and we earn-pray for the continued success of the work an inspiration to many of us.

Edith Claire Leake, Sec.-Treas.

Fayetteville—1928-29

the organization in our Presbytery might perfect we have divided our area into five rnan appointed Vice-President to represent Committee Chairmen have been appointed k of the Presbytery. Our young people have our goals and plans by letters which have ery society.

Presbytery completed its quota of the lee Scholarship Fund. Members of our pecial services at Convict Camps, County anatoriums.

Outstanding accomplishment of the year was nt of an annual P. Y. P. L. conference he at Flora Macdonald College, June 11-21, red and eleven delegates attended this con-wh courses in Bible, Methods, Missions and o Church were given. Pastors from our lucted these courses. The conference which d the 20-27 of 1929 will have such outstanding Dr. E. T. Thompson, Dr. J. M. Waggett, Miss on. We will also have two recreational directing of our conference last year the Annual Y. P. L. was held at Flora Macdonald College right attendance an record. The plan is to be this year.

Fred V. Peag, Pres.

Granville—1928-29

Presbytery the number of young people's number 38 with a total membership of in these organizations total $902.00.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

The Department of Woman's Work, Presbyterian Church, U. S.
270-277 Field Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

SYNODICAL PRESIDENTS OF THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

Alabama—Mrs. J. F. Hooper, 610 Mabry St., Selma, Ala.
Appalachia—Mrs. F. B. Kegley, Wytheville, Va.
Arkansas—Mrs. Walter Wilson, Arkadelphia, Ark.
Florida—Mrs. W. G. Thompson, Jr., 3215 Obispo St., Palma
Ceia Park, Tampa, Fla.
Georgia—Mrs. E. G. Abott, 1315 Eberhart Ave., Columbus, Ga.
Kentucky—Mrs. H. P. Cooper, Lebanon, Ky.
Louisiana—Mrs. Charles L. Bodin, Box 79, M. R. A., Lake
Charles, Louisiana.
Mississippi—Mrs. J. S. Hicks, Holly Springs, Miss.
Missouri—Mrs. Walter Craven, 223 Frances St., Excelsior Springs, Mo.
North Carolina—Mrs. G. V. Patterson, Gastonia, N. C.
Oklahoma—Mrs. Wilbur Garvin, 611 Euclid, Lawton, Oklahoma.
South Carolina—Mrs. Parker Connor, Edisto Island, South Carolina.
Tennessee—Mrs. J. F. Forsythe, Bethel Springs, Tenn.
Texas—Mrs. J. W. Culver, Texas Military Academy, San Antonio, Texas.
Virginia—Mrs. C. R. Vaughan, 319 Mountain Ave., Roanoke, Va.
West Virginia—Mrs. J. McD. Lacy, Elkins, W. Va.

THE MONTREAT TRAINING SCHOOL FOR AUXILIARY LEADERS—JULY 10-18

Throughout the week of July 10-18, the Training School for Auxiliary Leaders will be in progress at Montreat. The opening feature of the school is the Presbyterial President's Conference on July 10, at which time Presbyterial Presidents from all over the Assembly will gather to discuss together the problems relating to their work.

One of the distinct advantages of the Montreat Training School is the opportunity of study in normal classes of Bible, Missionary Education, or Woman's Auxiliary and Methods. This year the Normal Bible is to be taught by Mrs. S. H. Askew; the Normal Missionary Education by Mr. E. D. Grant; and the Normal Woman's

As regards activities there are five prayer bands with a membership of 138, twenty-three tithers, nine study classes with a membership of 481. The subjects studied in these classes were a foreign mission study classes with a membership of 481. The subjects studied in these classes were a foreign mission study book entitled Desire of All Nations, Camp Fire (a study of Africa) Christ and the Country People, and Laws and Doctrines of the Presbyterian Church.

The sources of material in young people's societies used are Program Builder, C. E. World, Church Papers, International Journal of Religious Education, weekly topics of Y. P. L., Junior Life and Stacey's Worship Program.

The young people have rendered the following services to the local churches; conducted prayer and church services, helped with singing, given programs, helped in daily vacation Bible schools, taught in Sunday Schools, visited sick, help in numerous activities.

The young people have rendered other services outside the local church such as Christmas and Thanksgiving gifts, helped in needy families, organized Sunday School classes, organized C. E. Societies, sent gifts to lepers, put on recreational programs, have written letters to missionaries, sent school books to missionaries, have given programs before colored churches, and have conducted village prayer meetings.

Granville Presbytery is the youngest and smallest Presbytery in the State. We have made a very progressive move this year in our work. We have fourteen societies that would be on the honor roll but they are deficient in two or three points. We feel sure that we will be able to put these societies on the honor roll in the coming year. During the past year we held two echo conferences. The first was held in Raleigh with about forty members attending. The other echo conference was held in Henderson with about thirty-five attending. Granville also held a week's conference at old Company Mill, about ten miles from Raleigh. There was a regular program carried out with an attendance of about eighty-nine.

Charlie Thrift, Acting Pres.

Concord—1928-29

Concord Presbytery has 15 Christian Endeavor Societies, eight P. Y. P. L. organizations, 12 Girls' Circles, one Conventer Miriam League, three classes organized into clubs, with a total membership of 1,047.

The benevolent gifts amounted to $1,952.88. $24.00 was contributed to the Mamie McElwee Scholarship Fund and $19.50 was contributed to the Barium College Fund.
We have 17 prayer bands and 47 tithers.

Concord Presbytery has 29 study classes with a membership of 277. The books studied are as follows: Christ and the Country People, Desire of All Nations, Stewardship in the Life of Youth, Presbyterianism, The People and Their Beliefs.

Among the services rendered to the local church are included: teaching in Sunday School, assisting with music, giving special services, sending flowers to widows at Christmas, assisting the work of the Daily Vacation Bible School, furnishing curtains for church windows, giving pageants, paying for delegates to Davidson Conference, singing in choir, printing church bulletins, contributing toward church remodeling, purchasing communion service and assisting in school rally.

Two echo conferences were held during the year. One at Hickory, N. C., and the other at Thyatira Church. The most that can be said of them is that they were miniature Davidson Conferences, with equal quality if of less volume.

Concord's chief aim for the coming year is to make all societies Honor Roll societies.

Grace I. Eller, Acting Sec.

Zeb Vance Long, Pres.

Auxiliary and Methods by Mrs. R. M. Pegram. These classes meet for two hours each day, and those taking these subjects are prepared to go out as teachers of that subject in their own communities.

Other courses offered this year are: Bible (a one-hour course) taught by Mrs. Battle Malone; Personal Evangelism by Rev. George Belk; Missionary Education (a one-hour course) by Mrs. Jesse Hearin; Auxiliary Methods by Mrs. J. W. Culver and Mrs. J. F. Hooper; Parliamentary Law by Mrs. C. S. Shawhan; Hymnology by Mrs. Crosby Adams; Church History and Doctrines by Rev. George Belk; and Missionary Methods for Children by Miss Eva Cavers. Due to the fact that Dr. D. Clay Lilly has found it impossible to come to Montreat as he had planned, the class in world peace, which was to have been taught, will not be offered this year.

Among those who will bring the inspirational messages are many of the outstanding leaders of the Church: Dr.
Henry Sweets, Dr. Jos. R. Sevier, Dr. Warner H. Du-Bose, Chairman of Assembly's Standing Committee on Woman's Work, Dr. Darby Fulton, and Mr. P. D. Miller. Miss Anna A. Milligan, Educational Secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the United Presbyterian Church, will give an address on the evening of July 16.
The closing message on Personal Evangelism will be given by Rev. George Belk.

The Vesper Service speakers include Mrs. Adolf Makovshy, Mrs. Patsy Bratton Turner, Miss Bess Blakeney, Mrs. E. E. Lane, of Brazil, Miss Nina Farmer, and Miss Julia Lake Skinner. Miss Sammy Hogue, the new Director of Spiritual Life in the Department of Woman's Work, will give two messages, presenting the interdenominational foreign mission text book: "From Jerusalem to Jerusalem."

The Platform Bible hour is to be taught this year by Mrs. E. L. Russell, who will give a popular credit Bible class, teaching the book of Romans, the book to be studied next year by the Auxiliaries. Opportunity will be given in this class for any who desire to receive credit in Bible to do so by meeting certain daily requirements. All will be welcome in this class, however, whether they desire to take for credit or not.

The Morning Watch Services and the Meditation period are essence phases of each day's program for they will help to prepare for the hours of instruction, and inspiration. The music, under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. J. White will also add much to the worshipful spirit of these days at Montreat.

Nor will the social features be lacking, since each day will be marked by happy social fellowship as the Auxiliary leaders from various parts of the South meet together on this mountain top. Following the annual meeting to be held on the evening of July 11, there will be a reception, when all present will have the opportunity of meeting the leaders of the conference and their fellow workers. The pageant to be given on Saturday evening during the Training School will be greatly enjoyed by all. It is being given under the direction of Mrs. F. W.
Havercamp. Opportunity will be given for smaller groups to meet together for get-acquainted times. In fact the entire week will be a combination of work and play, of instruction and inspiration, of Auxiliary training and Christian fellowship.

BREAKING YOUR PASTOR'S HEART

Into our office came one day one of our ablest and most faithful pastors. He was near the breaking point.
In answer to our friendly inquiry, he said: "I feel that my people are not giving me a fair and square deal.
They come out in great numbers on Sunday morning.
They congratulate me on my sermon and congratulate one another on the manifest progress of the church.
Then comes Sunday evening and though I have prepared myself with the utmost thoroughness they leave me severely alone, and my church is almost empty.
The people do not live far off but right around the church doors. They allow me to wear myself out preaching to empty benches, while they read, chat, listen to the radio and entertain at supper parties.
This is enough to break the heart of a man." We advise him to go back to his work and to cheer up, because his problem was the problem of many other faithful ministers. This matter should have consideration. If the members of a church are too indolent to attend a second service on Sunday, why should they not formally decide to give up that second service?
Is it fair to the pastor to make him preach to empty benches?—Watchman Examiner.

THE SPIRIT OF UNSELFISHNESS

If you crave your soul's welfare and long to get nearer to the Lord Jesus, do kindness wherever you can. Give of your time, your sympathy, your prayers, your patience, your forgiveness, your good temper.
The last three often call for as much unselfishness as anything in the world.

Help all who need your assistance; surrender your desires, if by so doing you can add to the happiness of another.

Whether people fail to notice your sacrifices or accept them as a matter of course is of no vital importance.

Christ Jesus regards them as personal offerings from you to Him. That is enough.

THE BOOK OF BOOKS

Within this ample volume lies
The mystery of mysteries.
Happiest they of human race
To whom their God has given grace
To read, to fear, to hope, to pray,
To lift the latch, to force the way;
But better had they ne'er been born
That read to doubt or read to scorn.
—Sir Walter Scott.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Rev. Ernest Trice Thompson, D.D.

Lesson for July 21

EZEKIEL'S VISION OF HOPE

Ezekiel 47:1-12. Print vs. 1-9

Ezekiel as we have seen was one of the most influential of all the Hebrew prophets. He ministered to the Jewish exiles in the land of Babylon, during those years when the national life of the Jews collapsed, and those religious ideals became accepted which were to govern the future development of the Chosen People. Doctor Smith says: "He emphasizes while he bridges the break between the older Israelitism of the past and the Judaism of the future. The conception of religion which he predicted for the later generation of his countrymen was actually theirs. All that was noble among the later Jews was the gift of Ezekiel, handed down by him as a legacy from the earlier ages, and transformed by him so as to persist under the changed circumstances; and all that was evil in the Pharisaism that rejected Paul's Gospel and slew the Lord of glory rose from a misunderstanding of the truths which it was given Ezekiel to expound."

When we look at Ezekiel's ministry more closely we see that it was divided into two parts. The first was that which took place before the final destruction of Jerusalem. For six years the prophet sought to prepare the people for the inevitable blow, and to show them that it was the necessary working out of the Providence of God. The first 24 chapters of his book belong to this earlier period of his ministry. The theme of the whole section is "The Destruction of Jerusalem."

After Jerusalem fell Ezekiel began the great constructive work of his ministry. The people at first were despondent; they had lost all hope in their destiny; they felt that God had done with His people forever. Ezekiel, however, succeeded in filling them with new hope, and inspiring them with new ideals. In the first 24 chapters he had dealt with the destruction of Jerusalem; in the last 24 chapters he dwells upon "The Construction of the New Jerusalem." The Jews instead of being crushed by the exile were finally filled with a new religious zeal and a purer religious faith. They understood more clearly God's purpose for them in the world.

This second part of the book (25-48) is divided into three sections. The first section (25-32) foretells the destruction of Israel's enemies—i. e. the enemies of the kingdom. The second section (33-39) deals with the restoration of Israel. Ezekiel speaks not only of the active physical restoration of the people to the land of Canaan, but also of their spiritual restoration. In one wonderful chapter, he speaks of their future ruler, the good shepherd, a chapter on which later Jesus must have often dwelt. The third section (40-48) pictures for us the Ideal Theocracy, or the final condition of the Redeemed People. Doctor Skinner, writing in the Expositor's Bible, says of this section: "We have now reached the last and in every way the most important section of the Book of Ezekiel. The nine concluding chapters record what was evidently the crowning experience of the prophet's life. His ministry began with a vision of God; it culminates in a vision of the people of God, or rather of God in the midst of the people, reconciled to them, ruling over them, and imparting the blessings and glories of the final dispensation. Into that vision are thrown the ideals which had been gradually matured through 20 years of strenuous action and intense meditation. It is also the part of Ezekiel's work which most directly influenced the subsequent development of religion in Israel."

In this section we have a picture, 1st, of the new temple which Ezekiel sees rising on the ruins of Solomon's temple (40-42), 2nd, of the new temple service suited to the new conditions (43-46), and 3rd, of the newly consecrated land in which God's people are to dwell (47-48). "All of this is presented in the form of a vision, the prophet being transported 'in the visions of God' (Ezek. 40:2) from Babylonia to Palestine, and conducted through a series of visions by a man who shone as burnished brass, and who bore in his hand a line of flax and a measuring reed.

This supernatural being had been conducting Ezekiel through the temple in order to show him its varied ministries, and now, that task being completed, he ushers him to the door of the house of God, the sanctuary with its two divisions, the Holy Place, and the Most Holy Place."

Our lesson begins at this point. Read for yourself, and picture as you read 47:1-12. Where did the stream of his vision start? Why there? In what direction did it flow? Where did it empty? How did the prophet measure its depth? What did its deepening signify? What was on the banks of the river, What was there peculiar about the trees? Cf. Ps. 1:3; Jer. 17:8; Rev. 22:2. What is the significance of this part of the picture? What effect did the river have on the sea? What was the significance of this? What is the significance of verse 11? Going back over the passage we note:

I. The Deepening River—47:1-5

Ezekiel's supernatural guide had shown him the temple which represented God's presence in the midst of His redeemed people, and had explained to him the varied ministrations of the temple. He brings him back now to the door of the temple in order that he may see symbolically something of the Temple's influence on the land in which the people are to dwell. It will help us to understand the prophet's account if we remember that the temple faced the east, looking toward the rising sun.

Ezekiel was standing in the porch entrance, looking out also toward the east. Directly in front of him was the altar of burnt offering, where sacrifices were offered for the sins of the people, and beyond that in the distance the Mount of Olives. As he looked he was startled to see a stream of water trickling out on his right from under the southern end of the porch. If the stream had come from the center of the porch its progress would have been blocked by the great altar of burnt sacrifice directly in front. So it flowed out from the south-eastern corner, on toward the east, passing the altar of burnt offering on the right or southern side.

Naturally Ezekiel would have followed the stream through the Eastern gate, but that gate was closed except on the Sabbath (43:4; 44:2; 46:1). Therefore, the prophet was led by his guide out through the north gate, and so around to the outer Eastern gate, where he beheld the stream emerging into the open on the right or southern end of the gate, flowing on still toward the east.

The first thing that the prophet noticed about the stream after it left the temple court was the remarkable way in which it increased. His guide has come to him from the beginning with a measuring line in his hand (40:3). He measured now a distance down the stream of a thousand cubits. The cubit used was probably the Babylonian unit, which was about 20.67 inches. A thousand cubits, therefore, was about one-third of a mile. Here the guide had Ezekiel enter the water, and the prophet discovered that it came to his ankles. They went another third of a mile, and Ezekiel found now that the water came to his knees. A mile from its source the water had risen to his loins. Another third of a mile and it was over his head, a river through which one would have to swim.

This increase in the river's depth was of course miraculous. Earthly rivers do not thus broaden and deepen as they flow, except by accession of tributaries, and no tributaries are mentioned here.

Thus far Ezekiel's attention had been drawn to the size of the river; now he began to note what it accomplished.

II. The Healing River—47:6-12

His guide turned to him and said: Son of Man, hast thou seen this? And he took him to the banks of the river. Then Ezekiel noticed that its banks were covered with trees. In verse 12 the trees are described at greater length. They were fruit trees, bearing fruit not once a year but twelve times a year, every month; the fruit was for food; while the leaves of the trees, which never failed the whole year round, had medicinal value; they were for healing. We might note here that John, who drew so much of his Revelation from Ezekiel is especially his debtor here for the picture of the river of the New Jerusalem. Rev. 22:1-2. As Doctor Wells points out: "In both visions the living waters issue from the throne of God, but the New Testament adds the vital words, 'And the Lamb.' In both visions the trees bear fruit unceasingly, but in the New Testament the variety of the fruit is disclosed. In both visions the healing virtue of the fruit is set forth, but in the New Testament is the missionary addition, into which the Old Testament had not yet risen, that this healing is not merely for the Jews but for all nations."

But the guide called Ezekiel's attention to a still more remarkable effect of the water's flow. It continued eastward into the desert (A. V.), Arabah (R. V.), a name given to that great depression in the earth's surface now occupied by the Sea of Galilee, the river Jordan, and the Dead Sea, emptying finally into the Dead Sea itself, the northern most point of which was 16 miles east of Jerusalem. In the Old Testament this sea is called the Salt Sea. It is so salty that bathers cannot sink in it. One hundred pounds of ocean water contains 6 pounds of salt; but 100 pounds of Dead Sea water contains from 20 to 27.8 pounds of salt. It is so salty that nothing can live in it. The salt comes from the strata of salt rocks which surround the sea. Not only is the sea itself dead, but the whole region round about is dead; there is little or no sign of life. Now the remarkable thing which Ezekiel noticed was this that the stream which flowed out of the temple poured into the Dead Sea and healed or sweetened its waters. The result was that every sort of living creature, the reference here is to smaller animals, particularly the smaller aquatic creatures, came to life and swarmed in the waters of the Dead Sea; and there was a great multitude of fish. Its uninviting shores became the scenes of a busy and thriving industry; fishermen plied their craft from Engedi in the south of En-eglaim in the north; and the food supply of the country was materially increased. But, says Ezekiel, the miry places thereof, and the marshes thereof shall not be healed; they shall be given up to salt. The point here is that the one good feature of the Dead Sea, the production of salt, is not to be lost. Salt is a most important commodity. The salt marshes of the Dead Sea region were most valuable. The waters would be healed, fruit trees would thrive, but the marshes around the Dead Sea would be left for digging salt.

III. The River of God's Grace

What is the meaning of this peculiar vision which came to Ezekiel almost at the close of his prophetic work? It will help us to understand it perhaps if we note that it was based upon certain geographical facts that were well known to the people of Ezekiel's day. One thing that we note is this: there actually was a fountain connected with the temple hill, the waters of which fell into the valley east of the city and made their way toward the sea. The flow, however, was too scanty to have any appreciable effect on the fertility of the region through which they passed. The other thing is this: Further to the southeast of Jerusalem between it and the Dead Sea, stretched the great wilderness of Judah, the most desolate and inhospitable tract in the whole country. Of the Dead Sea region itself we have just spoken. The great prophets often looked forward to the time when this barren tract would be redeemed, and the desert made by God's grace to blossom like a rose. Ezekiel in his vision sees the little stream flowing from the temple hill, from the temple itself, deepen miraculously river, transform the whole country side that it flows.

Most probably, however, he is thinking actual river, a miraculous river, actually from under the temple, but rather of the grace, the water of life which shall flow in the house in the days to come. Even before Ezekiel's flowing waters of the Temple Hill had been a symbol of the silent and unobtrusive influence of Divine presence in Israel. See Is. 8:6; Joel 14:8. And so Ezekiel develops in grander as a picture of the life-giving influences that flow out upon the world from the throne of God in particular are called to our mind as was Ezekiel's vision:

1. The water of life will flow out of the temple of God in ever increasing measure. The river which Ezekiel saw was a deepening river.

(1) Has that promise been fulfilled to the world? It has, in richer measure than Ezekiel foresaw. The temple that he described will never be built, but more wonderful things have been done. John tells us: "The Word became flesh, and tabernacled among us, and we beheld his glory, as of the only begotten from the Father, and truth." He offered all men the water of life. If a man drinks he will never thirst again. The waters of life have flowed out of the ages that life giving stream has flowed out and broader channels. In Ezekiel's vision the stream of life giving water which he saw first in Jerusalem, then in Judea and Samaria, and throughout the whole Roman Empire, and on till about 1100 A. D. it had penetrated the whole of the continent of Europe, the ocean to North America, and South America, in streams broadening more rapidly than ever, and China and Japan and India and the islands of the Sea. The stream that Ezekiel saw deepened and deepened without the co-operation of man.

(2) It is a promise which applies to every individual? We think it is. Alexander M. Peloubet's Notes says: "From beneath the threshold comes the water of life; and wherever it flows in any heart—or in any community—God will be heard the tinkling of its ripples, and fertility will come from the stream. The water of life, like the dwelling of God in the incarnation of his own dear Son, is deepening of the fountain that it may pour into the world. So if we desire to have the blessings of life, we must comply with the conditions. Let God dwell in our hearts, and make them the dwelling of His life, and then from beneath the threshold of our hearts will pour out according to Christ's own promise of living water which will be first for our souls and be blessed by, and then will refresh others. . . . So we come to a very sharp question. A mile from the source the river is only a stream. How many miles from the source of our first blessing do we stand? How many of us instead of having that could not be passed over, waters to stand in a pool and all but stagnant feeble trickle, or shallower than it was at first?" Why is it that many of us the waters of divine grace do not flow? Our Christian life continues?

2. The Water of Life which flows out of the temple will transform the whole environment. The river which Ezekiel saw was a healing river which transformed the people's physical environment. It sweetened the harsh places. It sweetened the harsh places. It meant to say that the influences which flow out of God as He dwells in the midst of His people will redeem man's physical environment. Was it accomplished?

What has been accomplished in the world? Snowden mentions the freedom of the slave, the abolition of polygamy, the elevation of womanhood, the marriage tie, the brotherhood of man, the Christian home, the Christian school, the Christian state. Christianity in the world has saved and transformed the lives of millions. It has also elevated and purified the social life of the world. A beginning at least in transforming man's environment.

Has its task been accomplished? No one would think that it had. What then are the regions of our national life which still need to be transformed by the spirit of Jesus? Does the stream of life which flows out of the temple turned into our city slums, our mill villages, our trial regions where children 16 and under to labor for ten hours and more a day, and allowed to labor through the night? Does the stream of life which flows out of the temple turned into the homes of tenants on our streets, whose children in spite of laws on the statute books are growing up ignorant and uneducated as

Can a man be a good Christian and not be a good citizen? Can he take the cleansing spirit of Jesus into his industrial and social life of our nation? Is the life of the church done when it preaches the word, or does it have some more direct responsibility in the healing stream into the unredeemed social life? Would it be proper for a church to say the Woman's Auxiliary, to tackle the evils of its environment? To be interested in health, the recreation, the living conditions of its community? What specific evils of our community need to feel the transforming influence of Christ? Is there anything that the organs of your community can do about it?

CHILDREN

MARJORY'S WAY

"Give it to me, Bob," screamed Mary, snatching which Bob held teasingly. "I'll tell mother how she'll feel!"

"Have it now or wait till later?" inquired Bob, making her sit on top of the wardrobe.

"Now! You've got to give it to me!" Mary made another snatch at Bob, but he was gone, and the laughter reached them. Mary Marjory, who was gazing at the picture so utterly out of reach, smiled down at them both and said: "I am quite happy to be here. Don't worry."

"I'll take her down after she's not care!"

"Care! You came to spend time with me, and Bob spoils our fun. I'll just pay him back!"

"Mary. What good would it do to make it come into the picture? We'll play Genevieve and the Lady with the Golden Hair. She is enchanted and has to stay in the tower till a prince comes to rescue her from the wicked fairy who lives there."

"He'll play with us while we're moving it," laughed Mary. "I'll tell you how we'll work it to get her down."

"I have to go about it very carefully. The fairy will enchant her if she's not any rate, the walls of the tower are made of glass, and we must be as safe and as beautiful as she is. He might have put her key in the door, and then we wouldn't even see her lovely face as sweet as ever."

"I'll put up a ladder and scale down the tower," said Mary. "I'll be the spirit of the game. I'll tell you how I could bring the step-ladder down."

"I'll make a rope ladder and let her climb down," proposed Marjory. "I'll show you this plan. She found some rope with a good deal of trouble, and she made a doll's ladder and hung it up to Genevieve. After she got up, it caught on her stiffly and hung there."

"I'll live we really could get her down," cried Marjory joyfully. "I'll try carefully, Mary, and I'll try to catch her. See, I'll try to bring her down."

"I'll succeed. Mary pulled the ladder down, and it tipped and fell over her head down to her wide-spread skirt, and it was somewhat ruffled."

"Bob remembered what he had done to rescue her from the Golden Locks, he became very sorry, at which Genevieve became the worse for her imprisonment in the high tower. He consulted with the other children and decided to try the way of making up to her and leaving her two happy children."

"I'll be the best," owned Marjory. "I'll be lots nicer than quarreling with her."

"I'll be the best," owned Marjory. "I'll be lots nicer than quarreling with her."

"I'll be the best," owned Marjory. "I'll be lots nicer than quarreling with her."

"I'll be the best," owned Marjory. "I'll be lots nicer than quarreling with her."

"I'll be the best," owned Marjory. "I'll be lots nicer than quarreling with her."

ITALIAN FOLK TALE

"I'll be the best," owned Marjory. "I'll be lots nicer than quarreling with her."

"I'll be the best," owned Marjory. "I'll be lots nicer than quarreling with her."

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color.)

"Give the pass-word!" commands BROWN-haired Teddy of YELLOW-haired Susie May.

Teddy is standing with one foot on the top of his sand fort. He has a RED and BLUE handkerchief tied to a YELLOW stick for a flag. Teddy has GREEN trousers to his bathing suit and the shirt is white. Susie May wears an ORANGE (use RED and YELLOW mixed) colored bathing suit trimmed with a GREEN band about the skirt and a white goose with YELLOW feet and bill. Susie May's pail is RED and BLUE.

The sand is light YELLOW and the ocean is BLUE-GREEN with big white combers in it. The sky is BLUE with white clouds and a white sea gull in it. Teddy's spade is YELLOW with a RED handle.

Both children are a nice TAN (use RED and BROWN mixed) with RED lips and PINK (use RED lightly) cheeks.

The border of this picture can be colored RED and the lettering YELLOW.

"My sons," he said, "if it is adventure you wish, you need not go far to seek it. In our own orchard there lies buried a pot of gold. If you would find it you must dig for it. Yes, dig for it." In vain did the eager sons beg their old father to tell them in what part of the orchard the gold was buried. The old man merely shook his head, and would say no more. When their father died the sons were anxious to begin their search for the pot of gold. They held a council and decided that since they did not know where to begin their search, they would begin in a line at one end of the orchard and dig until one of them should find the treasure.

So they began to dig. They dug and they dug until the soil from one end of the orchard to the other had been turned up. They dug around the tree roots and between them. There was no spot of ground that had not been turned under the spade. But their search was unrewarded. No pot of gold was found. If it had ever been there, someone must have stolen it, or more likely, they agreed, the old man had been wandering in his mind. The next season the olive trees in the orchard bore more fruit than they had ever given. The fine cultivating they had from the digging produced so much fruit and of such a fine quality that when it was taken to the market and sold it yielded the brothers a whole pot of gold.

"A pot of gold! Suddenly the three sons understood what their wise father had meant when he said: 'There is gold hidden in the orchard; dig for it.'"

Word Square

When I am here you know that it is really Summer-time.
I am the common two-toed sloth of Brazil.
I am a narrow road.
My name is that a river that runs through central China.

Behæding Acrostic

The behæded letters arranged in order from the name of a "hot time."

Behæd a narrow piece and leave a journey.

Behæd to employ and leave compass point (abbr.)

Behæd a forward moving procession and leave a bow like curved structure.

Behæd a maternal ancestor and leave something else.

Behæd a happening and leave an opening.

Behæd unusual and leave part of verb "to be."

JUNIOR CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

Horizontal

- 1—A vegetable
- 7—Arizona (abbr.)
- 8—Ocean
- 9—Snare
- 10—Pronoun
- 11—Miscellaneous child
- 14—Turkish name
- 16—Organ of hearing
- 17—Look
- 18—More abrupt

Vertical

- 1—Sweets
- 2—Exist
- 3—A small quantity
- 4—A tree
- 5—Turn to the right
- 6—Sooner
- 12—Be tangled
- 13—Prefix. Before
- 14—A serpent
- 15—Confederate general

Puzzle Answers on Page 14

Oh, Dolly, look—a great big bee!
I wonder why he's come?
Perhaps he's only lost his way.
My, my, but can't he hum?

I think he is the very one Mama has talked about
As gathering honey all the day
And flying in and out.

But here inside there's not a flow'r
With honey he can get,
Tho', dolly, it is only that He's looking for I bet.

Suppose he wants to know if I Like honey? Mister Bee,
Next time you come just bring a jar
Of it and you will see.

Fun For Little Folks

A few of the pictures which are printed in the Standard weekly on this page are being published in loose-leaf pamphlet form. Each pamphlet contains twelve different pictures to be colored by the little folks with crayon or paints.

These pamphlets will be ideal for use in Daily Vacation Schools, Sunday Schools and the nursery of the home. The little folks will enjoy coloring the pictures and it will furnish a fine medium for the teacher or mother to instruct their children in the art of drawing and the value of color.

PRICES (Cash with Order)

100 Books	-----	$7.00
50 Books	-----	4.00
25 Books	-----	2.25
10 Books	-----	1.10
5 Books	-----	.60
1 Book	-----	.15

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

CHURCH NEWS

HOW SHALL WE ANSWER THESE LETTERS?

Cary R. Blain, Superintendent

(Reprinted literally)

The Highland Ins.,
Guarent, Ky.

Dear Sirs:

I am a girl of 11 years old and will complete the 8th Grade and am an orphan. My father has been dead about 7 years and I have got to know where to go and get an education if you will let me come to your school free I sure will be glad to come let me know.

Yours truly,

My dear Friends:

It looks like my dad would pay part of my way this year but he wont. He thinks that I but stay at home and go to school about half the time.

My dad don't care any thing for me. And I want to go to school.

If I had the money to pay part of my way I would. So if you can give me work to do you will be very much appreciated. So look this matter over.

Yours Truly,

Vicco, Ky., June 24, 1929

The Highland School:

I am writing you in regard of getting two of my sisters in your school. Please let me know what terms I can get them in on. They want to work their way. There is a large family of us and our parents are not able to support us and pay our way in school. The schools here are not good its out in the country and we live about two miles from the school. Please see what you can do for me. The two girls are in the 4th and 8th grade.

Sincerely,

Father is very bitterly disappointed, but says he may be able next year to get him in. They are very poor and wanted so much for him to keep in school.

It hurts to say "No" to those boys and girls. A work scholarship of $100 will enable us to take one of those children. A half of that amount will help. What must we tell them?

Guerrant, Kentucky.

NORTH CAROLINA

Albemarle Presbytery put on a local conference under the auspices of the Committees of Young People's Work in the Presbytery and Presbyterian. The conference committee consisted of Rev. W. A. Gamble, H. H. McLean, Rev. M. W. Doggett, Mrs. Jeannette Grainger, Miss Georgie Johnson, Miss Eleanor Shelton, all of this Presbytery. The conference lasted from July 8 to 13, and was held in Washington Collegiate Institute, Washington, N. C., with full program of Bible Study and other topics usual to such conferences.

We hope to have a full story of the conference next week.

The speakers for the evening addresses were to be Dr. M. O. Fletcher, president of the college where the meeting is being held, Rev. W. C. Cumming, of Henderson, N. C., who will speak on China where he was a missionary, Rev. E. E. Gillespie, D.D., superintendent of Home Missions of N. C. Synod, and Rev. W. S. Harden, pastor of Greenville, N. C., who will conduct a consecration service.

Vespers were led by Rev. C. M. Brown, of Elizabeth City, N. C.

Long Creek Church, in Gaston County, of which Rev. Coyte Hunter is pastor, is planning an all day home-coming service for the fourth Sabbath in July, with dinner on the grounds.

This is one of the oldest churches in Kings Mountain Presbytery, having been organized in about 1776.

To all former members and their descendants and all other friends who have worshipped at this old historic church, the pastor and members extend a hearty welcome to come back and join in worship with them on this day.

The six living former pastors, Revs. R. J. McIlwaine, J. R. Millard, J. M. Forbis, S. S. Oliver, J. E. Berryhill and G. C. Bowman have been invited and it is hoped they may all be present.

Albemarle Presbytery meets in adjourned session Thursday, July 18, 10:00 a. m., in the Greenville Church. Several matters of importance are to be acted on. Rev. T. L. Harrisberger, pastor at Tarboro, requests to return to China; three candidates are to be licensed and ordained after examination, to take up work in Wilson County, Kinston and Williamston.

W. S. Harden, Stated Clerk.

APPALACHIA

Asheville Presbytery—From May 5 to 15 meetings were held at Whiteoak under the charge of the pastor Rev. Dunbar Ogden, Jr. The sermons were preached by Rev. H. B. Dendy, new superintendent of Home Missions of this Presbytery. Mr. J. M. Allardyce, of San Antonio, Tex., also assisted in preparation for the meetings by personal visitation with the pastor the week before the series. The community was greatly revived by these services.

Rev. Fritz Rauschenburg, former Home Mission Superintendent of Asheville Presbytery, has accepted the position of chaplain to the Georgia Military Academy, and Rev. H. B. Denby, of Weaverville, has been elected as his successor. Mr. Denby, will continue pastor at Weaverville, giving several days each week to the mission work.

Rev. R. P. Smith will continue to be Superintendent Emeritus. Mr. Denby is also treasurer of Home Missions and funds should be sent to him at Weaverville.

Rev. Dunbar Ogden is leaving the work at Hepco, N. C., this month. He will accompany his father and a party of friends on a sightseeing trip abroad this summer. Next fall he will enter Union Theological Seminary to take advantage of the Hoge scholarship, awarded him at his graduation for excellency in his studies while a student there.

Rev. W. H. Dendy has accepted a call to Courtland, Ala. Mr. Dendy was married in June to Miss Eunice Patton of Laurens, S. C., daughter of Rev. E. D. Patton of that place. After their honeymoon they will go to Courtland to make their home.

Brevard Presbyterian Church is welcoming their new pastor, Mr. Alexander, and his bride. Mr. Alexander is a member of this year's graduating class from Columbia Theological Seminary. Mrs. Alexander was formerly Miss Elizabeth Murchison, daughter of Dr. Hugh R. Murchison, professor of Bible at the University of South Carolina. We wish for this young couple many years of happiness and joy in their service in the Master's work.

Rev. Orie C. Landrum and family have come to make their home in Hazelwood and Hepco Churches. Mr. and Mrs. Landrum are both graduates of the Los Angeles Bible School. In addition to this, Mr. Landrum has had two years of study at Union Theological Seminary. We welcome the Landrums to our midst and wish them God-speed in their work.

Arrangements have been made between Rev. R. S. Eskridge and the Bethel Church, whereby he will act as stated supply.

Rev. J. H. Gruver, superintendent of the Mountain Orphanage, supplied the Weaverville Presbyterian pulpit during the pastor's absence while conducting a ten-day meeting at Hepco. He brought four of our Orphanage girls with him to sing.

Dr. R. D. Bedinger is at home from Africa. On his return trip he made a visit to the Holy Land. We are all glad to welcome Doctor Bedinger and many of our Churches will look forward with pleasure to having him visit them and tell of his work in Africa.

The manse at Dillingham is now equipped with a water system, thanks to the help of the Builders League and the good people of Dillingham.

Weaver's, Tenn.—Rev. Dan Graham assisted by Charles Shoeman, singer, conducted a meeting of deep interest here the week preceding May 24. There were 98 professions of faith, and 36 joined the church, others going to other denominations.

Royal Oaks, Marion, Va.—Abingdon Presbytery met in adjourned session. The pastoral relation between Revs. John Martin and Rich Valley, and F. G. Hartman and Drapers Valley were dissolved.

Rev. D. B. Walthall was received and order taken for his installation as pastor of the Glade Spring Church the first Sunday in July. Candidates Laurence Kinney and Hammond Bowman were received and licensed as probationers for the gospel ministry. Mr. Kinney goes to Rural Retreat and Mr. Bowman to Wytheville. These young men stood splendid examinations and gave hopeful promise of a very fruitful ministry among us.

ALABAMA

Foley—The revival services of the Foley Presbyterian Church closed with Sunday evening service.

Doctor Carpenter, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church of Mobile, delivered inspirational sermons each morning and evening throughout the past week to a good attendance. Pastors and members from other Foley Churches were present at each service but the outstanding co-operative spirit presented itself on Sunday evening when the other Churches in Foley with their pastors came in a body, which showed the Christian love and fellowship and good will toward each other which was deeply appreciated by the local pastor, Rev. A. R. Cates, and members of Foley Presbyterian Church. At the evening session Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Mueller and son, Lincoln, were admitted to Foley Church by letter drawn from Swift Presbyterian Church of Miflin. Mrs. Lauder of Swift Church sang a touching solo.

Doctor Carpenter is to be commended on his excellent sermons, which came directly from the heart of this godly man. The visiting pastors, Mr. Kitchens of the M. E. Church, Mr. Gash of the Baptist Church, Mr. P. U. Green, district superintendent of the M. E. Church, and Mr. Gilbert of the Salvation Army, all rendered their service in gracious prayers. Members of the various Churches also joined in the choir singing, which always is a help in the services.

Mr. Cates and his people appreciate all who helped make these services a success and trust these meetings have greatly benefitted the ones who availed themselves of the opportunity of attending them and hearing Doctor Carpenter's sermons. Also the Swift Presbyterian Church of Miflin is to be commended for their splendid attendance throughout the week.

KENTUCKY

Bevier—The Presbytery of Muhlenburg, at a called meeting on June 24, dissolved the pastoral relational of the Rev. A. H. Atkins, D.D., and the Churches at Bevier and Nonnel, and dismissed him to the Presbytery of Pee Dee. This action was at his request. Doctor Atkins has been serving the four Churches of Bevier, Nonnell, Nelson and Mt. Zion, in the coal mining district of Muhlenburg Presbytery, where he has done a good work, doubling the membership of Bevier Church, and adding Sabbath school rooms to its building.

E. E. Smith, Stated Clerk.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Central Church of Washington—Rev. I. Shaw, of Baltimore, gave us two more good June 23, as our pastor, Rev. Jas. H. Taylor Boston, as a delegate to the Pan-Presbyterial Yesterday, June 30, Rev. Dr. R. C. Gillie, of land, preached for us, morning and night, of the Council, to which he also had been a delegate a previous pastorate in London he had as one. Mr. Jas. Van Allen Shields, a former member Church, which yesterday welcomed Dr. Gillie, visit. The D. V. B. S. is in full swing, attendance.

GEORGIA

Moultrie—The First Church close the s cation Bible School on June 28. Only two were held this summer, yet the enrollment of three departments held last year. The attendance was forty. At the Commencement thirty-five boys and girls were presented cates for faithful attendance and creditable

The Church Secretary, Miss Katie Lee, dean of the school and superintendent of department. Mrs. E. R. Ulsh was the officie superintendent.

One advantage for the school this year was truck which was sent by Mr. Majors, a de church, to carry the boys and girls who lived from the church into their respective neighborhood noon.

Decatur—The Woman's Fourth Summer School of the Georgia Synodical, held its annual on the Campus of Columbia Theological Seminary May 31st and continuing through June is the first time that any one of the Synodical tions has held such a meeting at Columbia S marks the beginning of what we hope will service to the church, through the use of o the various organizations of the church.

The School was not so largely attended as hoped. About forty were entertained in the Most of these remained for the entire session. ninety registered delegates, in addition to dropped in for occasional meetings.

The Auxiliary of the Decatur Church was cordial and helpful to the visitors. This Auxiliary nished cars to meet the visitors in Atlanta street cars in Decatur. On the opening night comed the visitors with a reception in the pe Seminary, at which delightful refreshments. The Decatur Auxiliary also arranged an at to Stone Mountain, and other points of interest visitors greatly enjoyed.

At the close of the School, those present mously to make Columbia Seminary the perni in gplace of their Summer Conference, and tive committee is already working on plans School next year more attractive, and to be if possible, representatives from all of the throughout the Synod.

TENNESSEE

Knoxville—The members of the First I Church are rejoicing in the newly formed fel their assistant pastor, Rev. William H. A York, South Carolina, graduate of Union S Master in Theology of Princeton Seminary On Friday, June 28, Mr. McCorkle was Knoxville Presbytery as evangelist in K vicinity. Mr. McCorkle and Miss Martha graduate of the Training School, May, 1929, in marriage at the home of the bride in Lexi Carolina, on Saturday, July 6. Mrs. Martha McCorkle is to be Director of Religious the Church here. They return to Knoxville.

Mrs. Charles E. Wait, Jr., who has been / tor of Religious Education in our Church months of delightful fellowship, relinquish June 30.

The pastor and Church and the great gr life were refreshed and renewed during the 3-10 by a visit from our former Director Education, Miss Lucile DuBose, now in the of Education in our Foreign Mission's Com

A strong Summer Bible School had its impressive Commencement exercises in this Prayer Meeting hour on Wednesday, June Corkle conducted the School. In the place handwork special Bible exercises and memor successfully used.

The pastor of this Church, Doctor Glas returned from the Young People's Conferen son, North Carolina, and the same group of Texas, the Conference being held at Ke Columbia—A Daily Vacation Bible Sch for two weeks in June in the First Presbyt School rooms.

Frierson Memorial joined us and children from every Protestant denomination in the c Miss Bess McKinstry, a graduate of Training School, was in charge, being as pastor, Rev. J. F. Ligon, Mrs. Ligon and a volunteer workers.

The work accomplished was most satisf church feels it has made a real contributio dren of Columbia.

At its close the pastor and seven deleg First Church went to Ovoca for the Young ference there, our clan winning, for the season, the much coveted "cup."

TEXAS

MARRIED

First Church—Dr. W. I. Carroll, minister. Vacation Bible School of two weeks duration with appropriate exercises Friday night, June 14, large congregation.

Wentz-Hawkins—At the home of the bride at Norwood, N. C., March 30, 1929, Minnie C. Hawkins and Forrest A. Wentz were married by Rev. J. W. Stork.

Rich-Jenkins—At the Methodist Church, Georgetown, Ky., May 23rd, 5:00 o'clock p. m. by Rev. Henry P. Van Dusen, of Union Theological Seminary, New York City, Rev. G. Barrett Rich, 3rd, and Miss Ruth Jenkins, both of Georgetown, Kentucky.

Jacobs-Patterson—At the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Joe Eliot, Birmingham, Ala., by Dr. W. H. Hopper, on June 4, 1929, Mr. Carl T. Jacobs, of Shelby, Miss., and Miss Nannette Patterson, of Birmingham, Ala.

Summers-Crawford—At the Handley Memorial Presbyterian Church, by Rev. W. H. Hopper, pastor, on June 3, 1929, Rev. Augustus C. Summer, pastor of the Wylam Presbyterian Church and Miss Una Ruth Crawford, of Birmingham, Ala.

Thompson-Cockie—In the pastor's study of the Handley Memorial Presbyterian Church, by Rev. W. H. Hopper, on May 17, 1929, Mr. Walter Thompson and Miss Margaret Cockie, both of Birmingham, Ala.

Hoffman-Baum—At the manse of the Presbyterian Church, Romney, W. Va., on May 31, 1929, by Rev. Charles R. Bailey, Mr. John Richard Hoffman, of Akron, Ohio, and Miss Margaret Evelyn Baum, of Berlin, Pa.

Martin-Masters—In the manse of the Presbyterian Church, Romney, W. Va., by the Pastor, Rev. Charles R. Bailey, on June 2, Mr. Seba James Martin, of Romney, W. Va., and Miss Marguerite Mabel Masters, of Littleton, W. Va.

McMurray-Harlan—Rev. Louis Armistead McMurray, of Luebo, Congo Belge, and Miss Jean Frances Harlan, of Berkeley County, W. Va., were married in Falling Waters Church, near Hedgesville, W. Va., on May 15, 1929, by Rev. Jos. A. McMurray, D.D., father of the groom.

Anderson-Branham—Mr. Arnold W. Anderson, of Martinsburg, W. Va., and Miss Margaret Ewell Branham, of Berkeley County, W. Va., were married at the home of the bride's parents, near Hedgesville, W. Va., on June 5, 1929, by Rev. Jos. A. McMurray, D.D.

King-McLean—At the home of the officiating minister, Rev. J. Lee McLean, Fairmont, N. C., May 21, 1929, Mr. Leslie A. King and Miss Nettie McLean, both of St. Pauls, North Carolina.

Hoffman-Russell—Married June 8, 1929, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Trussell, at Kerneysville, W. Va., by Rev. Charles Ghiselin and Rev. J. W. Witherspoon, Miss Mary Margaret Trussell to Mr. Ewers J. Hoffman, of Martinsburg, W. Va.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION AND MINISTERIAL RELIEF

Comparative Statement of Receipts

April 1, 1929-June 30, 1929

	1928-29	1929-30	Increase	Decrease
Churches	$17,989.40	$19,806.87	$1,817.47
Sabbath Schools	1,750.49	1,607.32		$ 143.17
Societies	3,565.28	2,568.83		996.45
Individuals	1,254.28	1,986.99	732.71
Miscellaneous	370.20			370.20

Total Living Donors	$24,929.65	$25,970.01	$2,550.18	$1,509.82
Net Increase			$1,040.36

John Stites, Treasurer.

RECEIPTS FOR ASSEMBLY HOME MISSIONS

The following table gives a comparative statement of receipts of the Assembly's Home Missions for three months, April 1, 1929 to June 30, 1929:

	1929	1928	Increase	Decrease
Churches	$50,293.44	$50,717.08		$ 423.64
Sunday School	480.69	344.92	135.77
Auxiliary	2,782.97	3,383.04		600.07
Y. P. & C. E.	293.23		293.23
Individuals	2,533.94	718.15	1,815.79

Total Receipts from Living Donors	$56,384.27	$55,163.19	$2,244.70	$1,023.71
-----------------------------------	-------------	-------------	------------	------------

Designated Fund, $7,171.90; Total $63,556.17. Amount apportioned by the General Assembly for Assembly's Home Missions, 1929-30—$840,000.00
Total Receipts for three months, to June 30, 1929 ----- 63,556.17

$776,443.83

A. N. Sharp, Treasurer.

COMPARATIVE STATEMENT—FOREIGN MISSION RECEIPTS

Receipts Applicable to Regular Appropriations:

Churches	$ 33,965.41	$ 32,688.59
Sunday Schools	975.41	1,493.44
Sunday School Objective	3,789.26	4,541.35
Societies	6,075.59	5,103.86
Societies Objective	137.50	105.24
Individuals	5,373.90	2,698.10

Legacies	$ 50,317.07	$ 46,630.58
	10.44

Total ----- $ 50,327.51 $ 46,630.58

Three Months April 1, 1929, to June 30, 1929, inclusive:
Churches	$104,468.98	$107,588.24
Sunday Schools	3,154.01	4,561.37
Sunday Schools Objective	8,676.90	10,558.80
Societies	17,273.13	16,151.72
Societies Objective	458.19	458.00
Individuals	11,129.32	10,014.90

Legacies	$145,160.53	$149,423.03
	62.30	73.98

Total ----- $145,222.83 $149,497.01

Cost Year 1928-29		$1,209,205.39
Initial Appropriation 1929-30	$1,235,068.96
Deficit 3-31-'29	$174,659.02
Less gifts for same	1,079.44
	173,579.58

$1,408,648.54

Edwin F. Willis, Treasurer.

Nashville, Tenn., June 30, 1929.

SACRIFICIAL SERVING SUPPLIES SUFFICIENTLY

What has this week done for you and me? Have we lived for ourselves; have we become more of the earth, earthly? Or have we shared our stewardship? How much of our time have we offered at Jesus' feet to lay there the burdens of our messengers on the firing line, and thus to share with them their responsibilities and their problems—and their recompense of a peace that passeth understanding, the joy of abandoned, heart-yielded service! How much of our substance have we denied ourselves to share in this privilege of selfless service?

VIRGINIA

Presbytery of Lexington met at the call of the Moderator.

Clark was received from the Presbytery and Mr. A. E. Johnson from the Presbytery. These young men were carefully examined by the Presbytery for Licensure and Ordination.

preached on "What is Truth?" and Mr. Johnson on "Christian Determination." Both sermons were well received and the Presbytery gave its hearty approval.

These young men come highly recommended and are expected to be useful and successful in the fields of ministry.

The Presbytery also appointed a Commission to install Rev. A. E. Johnson at Pisgah and to install Mr. Johnson on the same day at Monterey.

A meeting of the Presbytery at Bridgewater to receive Rev. D. L. Beard of the Church of Canada and to install him as pastor of the church on July 21.

A meeting of the Presbytery will be held at the Church on September 24 at 11 a. m.

Visiting Cards and Stationery

FREE

For a limited time we will give with each $3.00 paid on subscription to Presbyterian Standard 100 high grade printed visiting cards FREE.

SAMPLES OF TYPE

1. Miss Evelyn Smith
2. Mrs. J. B. Well
3. REV. JOSEPH BLOEGH
4. Mr. Henry C. Moore

Specify type wanted by number

With each $6.00 paid on subscription we will give 100 sheets paper and 50 envelopes to match with your name and address printed thereon.

Size of paper 6 1/4 x 7 inches. Good grade bond paper. Envelopes one half size of paper.

SAMPLES OF TYPE

5. REV. M. HARVEY JONES
Charlotte, N. C.
6. S. T. HAINES, D. D.
Richmond, Va.
7. Mrs. Jackson Helms
WACO, TEX.

Specify type wanted by number

If you prefer some other type, send us a sample and we will duplicate as near as possible.

Stationery can be printed in either blue or black ink. We will use black unless otherwise specified.

Check or Money Order must be sent direct to this office to receive this offer of cards or stationery.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING CO.

P. O. Box 869

Charlotte, N. C.

STORY

LESS DRINKING AMONG CONGRESSMEN

"Since the passage of the Eighteenth Amendment, there has been a quite considerable decline in the drinking of alcoholic beverages among Senators and Representatives," in the opinion of William Hard, well-known Washington political correspondent. Writing in the Christian Herald on the subject of "Washington's Waning Wets," Mr. Hard draws the conclusion that a steady decrease in the wetness of officialdom at Washington has been evident.

In Mr. Hard's judgment, the number of legislative members who "drink wet and vote dry" is grossly exaggerated. He states, "It may be, of course, that a large number of practicing dries, unknown to this writer, have taken to violent drinking since the Eighteenth Amendment became the law of the land. Instances certainly exist of fiery-spirited gentlemen who drink intoxicating liquids precisely because the Constitution now forbids the traffic in them. Such gentlemen, however, are of a small, though vigorous, social set of natural-born protesters and revolters; and that there has been any notable defection from the ranks of the practicing dries to the ranks of the practicing wets in official Washington during the last ten years, is in fact a preposterous supposition and is by nobody alleged or claimed. The change that has happened, in gross, has been not from the dry column to the wet but from the wet to the dry.

That this change has been of considerable size is this writer's firm belief. Intoxication on the floor of the Senate and of the House is the theme of almost innumerable Washington anecdotes. This writer observes that these anecdotes bear more and more the color of the antique past. They are replenished by few contemporary contributions. Many of the most heroic legislative drinkers of this writer's first years in Washington have departed from the political scene. Their successors, occupying their seats, are, on the whole, either quite unable or quite unwilling to equal the alcoholic records which, in a sense, they politically inherit.

Nine years ago a distinguished Federal legislator, justly eminent for intellect, and much mentioned for a Presidential nomination, sat down in a large wastebasket in a corridor of the Capitol, under the inebriated impression that it was his seat in his legislative hall, and reposed on the small of his back in the basket with his feet and his head projecting from its rim till rescued by his clerk. This incident, like all such incidents, was both scandal and jest. The difference is that then the jest predominated, and now it would be the scandal. There has been no outright and complete revolution in this matter; but there has been, most distinctly and emphatically, a shift of emphasis, and the shift has been clearly away from a light-hearted acceptance of intoxication and toward a heavy-handed reprehension of it.

Mr. Hand attributes the change in sentiment to a combination of factors of modern conditions in industry and life and the influence of the Eighteenth Amendment. He asks, "is this change due to the Eighteenth Amendment? Is it due to developments which, for instance, require the politician to be as sober on the radio at ten o'clock in the evening as at his desk at ten o'clock in the morning? Is it due—in other words—to a quickening of conscience toward the law or to a quickening of the pace of our mechanical modernistic life?"

The genuine reply to such interrogatories is that the artificial law of the Eighteenth Amendment and the natural law of scientific discovery and progress, producing increasingly intense and protracted demands for steadiness of nerve and for coolness of brain among civilized man, seem, in some degree, to be working in the same direction. The dry light of the intellect and the dry law of the Constitution are—co-operative colleagues.

From the standpoint of personal practice, in administrative and legislative Washington both, the loss is decisively to the wets and the gain is decisively to the dries.

Nevertheless, some of the "new dries" who are dry out of a sense of obedience to the law and not out of a sense of approval of it, will work harder for a modification of the law than some of the "old wets" who habitually violate the law, and who therefore suffer little or no personal inconvenience from it.

The practical conclusion is clear. The dries of the country have no reason to relax in any degree their efforts on behalf of the Eighteenth Amendment as an accepted political agency of their cause.

COLLEGE AND HIGH GRADUATE THE BIG PAY ENVOY

Can be yours by a little effort. Success comes to those who can. We can help you and will be doing so. We have helped thousands today.
DRAUGHON'S BUSINESS Knoxville.

NERVOUS DIS

Drug and alcoholic addiction treated at Spring Garden S. Spring Garden Street, Greenville. Write us for full information. ence Confidential.

The Bristol-Nelson

For mentally defective children throughout the year—limited. Girls of all ages. No boys over age. Scientific training. Large lawns and playground. Prices range from $900 to $1,800. Illustrated catalog—Address MRS. CORA BRISTOL-Murfreesboro, Tenn.

HIGH STAND

of scholarship coupled with all opportunities for college and athletic activities affords a well-rounded education. Write for our 74-page "A".

ROANOKE NATIONAL COLLEGE ROANOKE, VA

QUEENS COLLEGE

A High Grade Institution Education of Women CHARLOTTE, N. C.

"The College With the Purpose"

Thorough in its instruction in its Christian influence. Aim: The development of womanhood prepared for service.

Curriculum: Embraces every opportunity and demand of modern life; CHRISTIAN SERVICE FOR CHRISTIAN SERVICE.

Climatic conditions unexcelled. Social and Religious privileges the attractiveness of the institution.

Rates exceedingly reasonable.

For Catalogue Write

THE PRESIDENT

Box 300, Charlotte

GRADUATE OF ASSISTANT TRAINING SCHOOL

available for service in church, or community. Address Miss M. Presbyterian Station

Guilford COLLEGE

Member of Southern Association for recognition. Courses for degrees, including Business, Home Economics and Music. Religious atmosphere. Up-to-date program and student body. century old, Quaker institution. The President, Guilford College

MARY BALDWIN COLLEGE

For women. Courses leading to B. S. degrees. Music, art, physical education. G. field athletics. Modern equipment. beautiful Shenandoah Valley. 1842. Catalog. Staunton, Va.

Expert Kodak

Developing and printing by beautiful work guaranteed. printing 6 exposure rolls a 1.5-8x2 1/2, 40c; 2 1/4x3 1/4, 40c 3 1/4x5 1/2, 52c; Film packs, 2 1/4x3 1/4, developing and printing sizes in proportion. Quick development. LIGON'S DRUG STORE: Sp

WHEN WRITING OUR PLEASE MENTION THIS

PEACE INSTITUTE

Raleigh, North Carolina

OWNED by the Presbyterians of North Carolina

COURSES OFFERED: (1) College courses for first and second year work; (2) Preparatory courses; (3) Special courses in Art, Music, Home Economics and Commercial subjects.

WORK ACCEPTED BY: (1) The North Carolina State Department of Education; (2) All colleges and universities in North Carolina and by many colleges without this state.

SPECIAL FEATURES: (1) Individual attention to students; (2) Limited number of students; (3) Intimate home surroundings; (4) highly trained faculty; (5) Wholesome religious atmosphere. (6) Modern equipment.

Register Now for Fall Session of 1929-1930

For catalogue, book of views and other literature, write to William C. Pressly, President, Peace Institute, Raleigh, N. C.

ORIENT FLOUR

Its Whiteness Denotes Its Purity

MOUNTAIN CITY MILL CO., CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

BLACKSTONE — A MILITARY SCHOOL FOR BOYS

Located in Healthful Section of Virginia. College Preparatory and Business Administrative Courses. Best home influences prevail, and individual needs of each boy closely watched. Modern, new and fireproof buildings. All manly sports, Christian influences and surroundings. For illustrated catalog write to

Col. E. S. Ligon, President
Box R

Blackstone

Virginia

FASSIFERN A Select School Preparing Girls for In the Land of the Sky Leading Colleges

Small classes, individual attention. Piano, voice, violin, harmony, art, home economics. Handsome new brick gymnasium. Physical culture, horseback riding, golf, outings at Camp Greystone. For catalog, address

JOSEPH R. SEVIER, D.D., President, Box S, HENDERSONVILLE, N. C.

LYNCHBURG COLLEGE SENIOR COLLEGE FOR MEN AND WOMEN

Membership in Southern Association of Colleges

Rates Reasonable—For Catalog and full information write to

J. T. T. HUNDLEY, President

Lynchburg, Virginia

LEES-McRAE COLLEGE

"In the mountains; of the mountains; for the mountains."

A UNIQUE JUNIOR COLLEGE offering courses in Home Economics, Business Administration, Nurses' Training, Animal Husbandry, and leading to literary degrees.

FIREPROOF DORMITORIES and all modern conveniences.

INVIGORATING MOUNTAIN ALTITUDE, with excellent hospital and medical facilities, safeguards health of student body.

PRICE UNUSUALLY LOW to be consistent with high type of instruction offered.

Write for catalogue and application form.

Address

LEES-McRAE COLLEGE
Banner Elk, North Carolina

COTTAGE FOR RENT
 Cottage, near lake and au-
 completely furnished to ac-
 family of six or eight.
 entire season. Rev. J. H.
 k Mountain, N. C.

FOR RINGS, WATCHES SILVERWARE

Write to
ALLEN AND CO.
 Jewelers since 1855
 St. Charleston, S. C.
 Catalog on request

Folk's
 Friend

What many call it for im and vigor into old rich, red blood into
 sound flesh on old
 Drink with each meal.

War Ale

Digestive Aromatics With Mineral Water & Ginger
 like it for assisting digestive organs to con-
 food into rich blood
 and flesh.

Pacific has been using it in locomotives for five years. They have just opened a surface mine near Forsyth. The vein is 27 feet thick and covers 700 square miles. But I am not trying to sell grazing land nor coal mines.

"Yes, I can see why men stay out here for profits, but why do you stay for mission work?" retorted my friend.

"What keeps any man in mission work in any land?" I asked. "It is hard work. It calls for more initiative and energy than any other phase of church work. The outstanding feature that makes it attractive is the people you meet. You never know whether you are meeting a count or a crook until you have discovered him.

"As a student I came to Montana for summer work. It was my privilege to make the G-P ranch one of my stopping places. This particular ranch runs sheep. The outfit has about 18,000 acres under lease and deed and runs from three to five bands. They have a large crew in the summer who prepare the hay for winter feeding. Some of the men are 'floaters,' while others stay on year after year. They make their homes in the clutter of bunk houses.

"One old chap I observed was not a floater, neither did he seem to have a band of sheep. He was of medium height, probably sixty years young, bald as the proverbial old billiard ball, and spoke with a broad Scotch accent. His hands seemed to have a peculiar shape but were not deformed. Otherwise he would pass as an average sheep-herder. But I never saw him with a band of sheep. I wondered what 'Old Ross' did for a living.

"One day I broached the question to the mistress of the ranch. Mrs. Law was a matron with two grown sons. Young giants they were, standing more than six feet two, and handsomely proportioned. Mrs. Law was born near Boston. Throughout the years of hard ranch life in a log cabin she had maintained the culture of her girlhood environment. She is a beautiful Chris-

ATLANTA CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

The Foremost School of Music in the South
 Fall session begins Monday, September 2, 1929
 Summer session in June and July
 Catalog C GEO. F. LINDNER, Director Atlanta, Georgia

SALEM COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

Known nationally for 156 years' unbroken record in higher education. Life emphasizes Christian standards without denominational differences. Fifty-six acre campus of forest and meadow. Swimming, riding and all sports. Our endowment pays 12 1-2 per cent. of each student's expenses, reducing the annual charge to $655.00.
 Accredited member Southern Association. A-Class.
 A. B., B. S. and B. Music degrees with wide elective privileges.
 For catalogue "A" to Pres. Howard E. Rondthaler, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Summer VACATION TRIPS

Rail and Motor
 Tours

In the Southern Appalachian Mountains

In especially arranged rail and motor tours, the Southern Railway provides a new vacation recreation, combining rail and motor transportation for the individual and for parties, into the mountain sections of Virginia, North Carolina, Eastern Tennessee and North Georgia.

These tours will take you adventuring by rail and motor into regions of scenic beauty and historic interest. Each trip begins and ends with a railway journey, in which you enjoy the speed and comfort of rail travel. The motor trips are over established State highways.

For booklets, information and rates, call on Ticket Agents.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Boone
 near find the southern Appalachian Mountains
 we now invite you to Visit

MEREDITH COLLEGE

For YOUNG WOMEN

STANDARD COURSES IN ARTS AND SCIENCES, IN MUSIC, IN ART, IN HOME ECONOMICS

Confers the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Music. Delightful environment on a high plateau on the western boundary of North Carolina's Capital City.

Room reservations are now being made for session 1929-30.
 For catalogue or further information write
CHAS. E. BREWER, President
 Raleigh, N. C.

"UP IN THE AIR"

PINNACLE INN

COOLEST—By official weather report Banner Elk is coolest town in North Carolina.

HIGHEST—The Appalachian Mountains have no higher fireproof hotel.

RESTFUL—All modern conveniences, excellent table fare, and beauty of surroundings offer unusual advantages for a QUIET RESTFUL VACATION.

For rates and illustrated folder address
 Manager,

Pinnacle Inn,
 Banner Elk, N. C.

NORTH CAROLINA STATE COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND ENGINEERING

E. C. BROOKS, LL.D., President

AGRICULTURE ENGINEERING
 TEXTILES SCIENCES AND BUSINESS EDUCATION

The Summer school opens June 10. The Regular session opens September 13. Applications should be made early.

For Information, write
W. L. MAYER, Director of Registration
 Raleigh North Carolina

FURMAN UNIVERSITY

Greenville, S. C.

RICHARD FURMAN HALL

In the healthful, beautiful Piedmont Section of S. C. Strong Christian faculty. Emphasis on moral and spiritual values of life. Beautiful campus, commodious well equipped buildings. Courses leading to A. B., B. S., and LL. B. degrees. Vigorous and successful law school. 12 Weeks Summer School. Championship Athletics, Glee Club, Debating etc.

For catalogue and other data write
W. J. McGLATHLIN, Pres.

McCALLIE School for Boys

Historically located on Missionary Ridge. In view of renowned Lookout Mountain.
 An outstanding school in South. Thorough preparation for College and Technical Schools.
 Small classes. Individual Instruction. Strong Faculty.
 Military Drill. Honor System. Christian Training.
 Complete modern equipment. Concrete Swimming Pool.
 Gymnasium. 40 Acre Campus. Lake. Rate $800.
 Summer Session, July and August, with Camp features.
 Write for illustrated catalog. The Headmaster, Box P Chattanooga, Tennessee

tian character. She made no direct reply to my query and I felt as if I had touched on a sacred memory from out the past.

"A few weeks later I was calling at the ranch. We were seated in the commodious living room. 'Old Ross' was mentioned again and this is the story Mrs. Law told me:

"'Old Ross' had been tending a band of twenty-six hundred sheep out on the flat. An old nor-wester came up, full of snow and with a cold wave. No houses or buildings of any kind was near; no buttes or coulees for protection; night was falling; they were caught. The camptender started from the ranch to carry aid, but he was forced to turn back. Searching parties were organized but were helpless against so violent a storm. 'Old Ross' and his band were miles away.

"Meanwhile, the herder and his faithful dog had rounded up the band and prevented a stampede. When sheep get cold they huddle together. So large a band, all pushing toward the middle, became a solid mass of wool and mutton. In a storm the wind blows the snow in around the en-massed sheep and make a drift that smothers them. To prevent this, it is necessary for the herder to go around and around the outside of the band, catching the sheep one by one by the wool and throwing them apart from the bunch. Before they can recover and return the wind blows the snow from around them. Thus 'Old Ross,' out on the flat, fought the storm, going round and round the band 'pulling the sheep' to save their lives. He fought hour after hour a seemingly losing fight without rest, food or drink.

"Next day help arrived. 'Old Ross' dropped of exhaustion. But the band was saved.

"It was weeks before 'Old Ross' recovered. It was found that in 'pulling the sheep' over so long a period he had worn the flesh from the ends of all his fingers down beyond the first joint. It was necessary to have the bones removed that far. 'Old Ross' had given his fingers for the life of the sheep. And," added Mrs. Law, "so long as this ranch is running 'Old Ross' will have a home and friends."

"Yes," I exclaimed, "isn't there a verse that says, 'I am the good shepherd. The good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep?'"

"Now," said I to my friend, "Mrs. Law, the boys and 'Old Ross' are three reasons why I, for one, have stayed on the mission field."—The Congregationalist.

THE TELEPHONE GIRL

(Note: Gladys Gibson, a telephone operator in the Cleveland Clinic where the terrible disaster took place on a recent day in May, was seated at the telephone exchange board when she noticed the deadly fumes come floating toward her. She refused to leave her post of duty till she had sent quick

RANDOLPH - MACON School for Girls

An accredited school, upholding the highest standards of Christian womanhood. Every facility to promote mental growth, health, and character. For descriptive literature write John C. Simpson, Principal. DANVILLE, VA.

WANTED

Position as Young People's Worker. Graduate of Assembly's Training School—Years of experience.

Care Smith—Station A Charleston, W. Va.

FISHBURNE MILITARY SCHOOL

Aim—"Not the largest, but the best"

IN EVERY class each boy recites every day. Contacts with schoolmates from all over the country. Graduates enter all colleges. Certificate privileges. Mild year 'round climate. Easily reached. Full athletic program supervised by experienced men. Modern equipment. Swimming pool. Col. M. H. Hudgins, Bozons, Waynesboro, Virginia. Member Ass'n of Military Colleges and Schools of U. S.

alarms to every office, clinic room, and to firemen and police. She served until she fainted in the fumes and had to be carried out. As she was dying a priest said as he looked upon her face, "Greater love hath no man than this."

At the telephone board she was serving,
When the stifling fumes rolled in;
But her fingers flew fast and unswerving,
With the soul of a hero to win.

She might have escaped for her pleasure,
But she was not thinking of self,
And she gave her life in full measure,
Not caring for fame or pelf.

She released the swift voices of lightning,
And flashed the alarms everywhere,
As the poisonous flames were brightening,
And their fiery teeth bit the air.
And serve in the whispering quiet,
Some serve where the cylinders drone,
And others, by Heaven's fiat,
Where miseries make their moan.

She stayed at the station of duty,
Till the fiery fumes smote her down,
But made her immortal with beauty,
And garnished her soul with a crown.

When history writes of our fame,
No one shall be written higher Than our Gladys's Gibson's name—
With the golden pens of fire.
—Charles Coke Woods, in The California Christian Advocate.

N E W S

GEORGIA Y. P. CONFERENCE

The tenth annual conference of the Young People's League of the Synod of Georgia was in session at Agnes Scott College, Decatur, Georgia, from June 11 to 19. About two hundred young people and leaders of young people were present.

A feature of the conference was the inspiring addresses delivered each evening by the conference pastor, Rev. F. Crossley Morgan, D.D., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Augusta, Georgia. Dr. Morgan spoke on the general theme, Life in Christ. In addition to speaking at the evening inspirational meetings, Dr. Morgan had charge of morning prayers and of the afternoon vesper services. Vespers was an informal service in which the young people took a prominent part.

Another important feature of the conference was the League hour conducted by young people under the direction of their state officers and committee chairmen. The theme for this hour throughout the conference was, Making Christ's Kingdom Come. Mrs. W. A. Turner, of Newnan, Ga., Auxiliary Secretary of Young People's Work for the Georgia Synodical, was chief advisor to the young people in arranging their program for this hour. On the last day of the conference the league hour was under the direction of the Secretary of Stewardship. During this hour an interesting pageant "The yes-but-ers" was presented by the members of the conference class in Stewardship under the supervision of the teacher of the class, Miss Mary E. Amend, of the Assembly's Stewardship office.

PUZZLE ANSWERS

WORD SQUARE

J U L Y
U N A U
L A N E
Y U E N

BEHEADING ACROSTIC—S-trip, U-se, M-arch, M-other, E-vent, R-are

AN ANIMAL HUNT—Ermine, Cougar, Monkey, Weasel, Jaguar, Donkey, Ferret.

On Sunday afternoon a birthday party—our tenth birthday was a pleasant feature of the day. During the course of the party echoes from each of the ten conferences were given. On Sunday evening at the young people's hour, a missionary pageant was presented by a group of young people. Both of these features were under the direction of Mrs. Audley Morton, of Athens, Ga.

INTERMEDIATE CAMP— MASSANETTA SPRINGS, VA.

One of the largest Intermediate Camps for Boys and Girls held in the United States, under religious auspices, began at Massanetta Springs, four miles east of Harrisonburg, on Monday night. There were 426 boys and girls registered from four States—Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and North Carolina.

This conference is the first of a series of eight held at Massanetta Springs under the auspices of the Synod of Virginia.

Col. Jos. H. Cudlipp, director of the Interdenominational Young People's Work in the States of Maryland and Delaware, has charge of the camp. Associated with him is a faculty of sixteen teachers and leaders.

The morning hours are given over to classes in Missionary Heroes, the Four-Fold Life, Evangelism, Stewardship, Vocational Guidance, etc. In the afternoon the boys and girls engage in swimming, tennis, baseball, volley ball and all kinds of sports. Seven p. m. is the Vesper Hour for a religious program rendered by the young people, and at eight there is a "Nite's Doings" around the camp fire.

The Massanetta Springs Management takes the credit for having started the first camp of this type in the Southland, and modestly rejoices in the fact that it has now reached the high level in attendance of 426. It is one of the liveliest and most enthusiastic of the series of great conferences.

The Bible Conference, which is the climax of the series, opens on August 12. Among the celebrities who will speak will be Dr. Wm. Evans, Los Angeles; Dr. John Timothy Stone, Chicago; Dr. Geo. L. Robinson, Chicago; Sergeant Alvin C. York, World War Hero; Dr. Robert E. Speer, New York; Dr. P. W. Philpott, Chicago; Dr. Wm. Hiram Foulkes, Newark; Rev. Gypsy Smith, and Rev. J. Alfred Kaye, of London, England. Mr. Homer Hammontree, one of the greatest soloists and song leaders in this country, will have charge of the music. It is expected that there will be attendance of forty thousand people at these various conferences.

The names and dates of the conferences are as follows:

- Methodist Y. P. Conference, July 8-14.
- Presby. Y. P. Conference, July 16-22.
- Auxiliary Training School, July 25-Aug. 1.
- Leadership Training School, July 25-Aug. 1.
- School of Music, July 28-Aug. 4.
- Men's Conference, Aug. 1-4.

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE DECATUR, GA.

Strict entrance requirements, but few failures after admission. Expensive, but cheap in comparison with advantages offered. No limit expected, but also none without capacity to enjoy almost unlimited gifts. For details as to admission, scholarship aid, etc address

PRESIDENT J. R. McCAIN
Box 5

MITCHELL COLLEGE.

AN ACCREDITED JUNIOR COLLEGE FOR WOMEN. Small classes.

faculty, Christian training; special courses in pipe organ, voice, piano, mechanics, and commercial subjects. Rates reasonable. For catalogue address: MRS. W. B. RAMSAY, President

1854

WOFFORD COLLEGE Spartanburg, S. C.

A Christian College for the Higher Education of young Men Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts Degrees. Pre-Medical Engineering, Pre-Law Courses. Courses in Education and Religion. Long and honorable history of education service. Strong Faculty Library. Well equipped Laboratories. Ample dormitory facilities. Unitary R. O. T. C. Unit. Athletic grounds. All forms of intercollegiate athletics. Next session begins for new students Tuesday, September 17. Write for other students Wednesday, September 17. Write for 1929 catalogue

HENRY M. SNYDER, President

Lutheran Church Workence, Aug. 5-11. Bible Conference, August

COLUMBIA THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

The recent commencement of Columbia Theological Seminary marked by two distinct events. The inauguration of Prof. Blakely, Th., D., in the Testament Literature department brings to our faculty a young man who has already established an enviable record as a leader of men. Among the ministers of our church, one who is more thorough to teach in this department than any other, graduating from Erskine College, Blakely studied theology where he majored in the New Testament, under the strong and Dr. Machen. Princeton, he covered the department of New Testament in the Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Louisville, then spent a graduate study at Edinburgh which he became pastor of the Reformed Presbyterian Church in Louisville. While serving the degree of Doctor of Theology under Dr. A. T. Robertson, of the Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Louisville.

Dr. Blakely transferred to the Presbyterian Church and became pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Ky., where he served for several years. Upon his election to the position of Professor of Old Testament at the Columbia Seminary, Dr. Blakely spent a year abroad and studied for a year in Germany, England and France, while abroad, spending much of his time traveling and studying in various lands. For the past year he has taught with marked success.

At the time of his inauguration Dr. Blakely delivered a forceful address on the New Testament Christian, being published in the July issue of the Seminary Bulletin. Dr. Blakely was delivered the address as President of the Board of Directors of the Seminary, T. Brantley, LL.D.

The second outstanding feature of the graduation of a class of thirty, which is the largest class in the history of the Seminary. The members of this large class have been located in various parts of the country as follows: Alabama, 3; Georgia, 9; Louisiana, 1; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 5.

NATION-WIDE RADIO ON RELIGIOUS SUBJECTS

The summer radio program sponsored by the Federal Council of Churches and the Great Lakes Federation of Churches, 44 different stations from the Pacific and from the Gulf, is now in full operation. The speakers every Sunday are: Ralph W. Sockman, M.

Direct From Mill To You

PATTERNS in new styles at Mill Prices. Consumer selling you 1/4 to 1/3.

Prints
Bedsreads
Pillow Tubing
Wide Sheeting
Marquisettes
Draperies. etc.

Save 1/4 to 1/3

WILSON MILL STORE
101 N. Greenville, S. C.

Madison Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, New York; Dr. J. Stanley Durkee, Pastor of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn; and Dr. Charles L. Goodell, Executive Secretary of the Commission on Evangelism of the Federal Council. During the winter season the speakers over the various groups of stations were Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, who is the Radio Minister of the Federal Council; Dr. Daniel A. Poling, President of the International Society of Christian Endeavor; and Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, Pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist Church, New York. The summer program will be conducted during June, July, August, and September.

The broadcasting of religion in this manner has been made possible through the courtesy of the National Broadcasting Company, which gives its facilities to the Federal Council of Churches and the Greater New York Federation of Churches without cost. If this service were to be paid for at the regular commercial rates, the minimum charge would be $800,000 per year. However, to organize and conduct the program, which includes musical features of the highest order, consisting of excerpts from the oratorios and sacred cantatas, as well as gospel music of the simplest character, rendered by some of the best known artists in the country, seven executive and supporting groups composed of public-spirited laymen raise the annual budget for administration and program.

The week-day features of this national religious broadcasting are the daily morning worship and the Thursday evening hymn sing. At the morning service about three hundred preachers are used during the year. In general, it should be observed that the brand of religion preached from these various hook-ups is entirely free from sectarian and denominationalism.

On Sundays "The Friendly Hour," featuring Dr. Durkee, is broadcast over WJZ from three to four p. m. daylight saving time; "The National Sunday Forum," featuring Dr. Sockman, over WEAJ from four to five-thirty p. m.; and "The Twilight Reveries," featuring Dr. Goodell, over WJZ from five-thirty to six-thirty p. m.

Each of these programs has a separate and distinct appeal. The extent of this remarkable ministry indicates that the churches are taking advantage of a great opportunity to serve millions of persons who otherwise might not be reached through the regular services of the Church.

THE LONELY GIRL IN THE CITY

In answer to the question "What would you do if you were lonesome," a reader of an Atlanta paper writes: "If a girl will only visit the Y. W. C. A. when she comes to a city and then jump into it with a real desire to be friendly as well as to make friends, the odds are that she won't be lonesome long. Tell her to find out about all the recreational and educational advantages there. Tell her to sign up these clubs meet for supper at six, for one of the social clubs. Some of these clubs meet for supper at six, have a social hour and then go to their classes for another hour. It is possible to get recreational advantages at a very reasonable price and this naturally appeals to the girls who want to be economical and yet at the same time make friends."

The week-end and vacation camp of the "Y" is warmly recommended as a sure way to make friends, by the young girl correspondent. There are 1,141 associations in the United States. Of these, 409 are in cities and towns and equipped with swimming pools, cafeterias and gymnasiums. In addition to the 591,574 members the transient public use the facilities in large numbers. Most of the associations maintain nearby camps.

SUMMER CONFERENCES

We Have Published Dates and Speakers for the Montreat Conferences

Other conferences during July, and their directors are as follows: Price's Falls, Davis, Okla., July 23-August 2, Rev. Chris. Matheson, Shawnee, Okla.; Smyrna, Ga., July 15-20, Rev. Wm. Huck, Atlanta, Ga.; Rabun-Gap, Nacoochee Institute, Rabun-Gap, Ga., July 1-4, Rev. J. McD. Richards, Clarkesville, Ga.; Stuart Robinson

School, Blackey, July 9-16, Rev. H. N. Cook, Hazard, Ky.

At the Massanetta Springs Conference Encampment, Harrisonburg, Va., the following conferences will be held during July: Camp for Intermediate Boys and Girls, July 1-7, Col J. H. Cudlipp; Virginia Young People's Conference, July 16-22, Rev. T. K. Currie, Richmond, Va.; Virginia Synodical, July 23-25, Mrs. C. R. Vaughan; Training School for Auxiliary Workers, July 25-August 1, and a School of Music, July 8-August 4.

CONSECRATING THE NEW MONEY TO CHRIST

The issuance of the new paper money by the United States Government on July 10 is to be made the occasion for a fresh emphasis on Christian Stewardship in a great number of churches. The proposal originated in the World Service Commission of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which is suggesting a special stewardship program in all its congregations. The plan is also being taken up in other communions, through a suggestion made by the Federal Council of Churches, and it is expected that, with various modifications, it will be widely used.

The central idea is that each church member be invited to symbolize the dedication of this new money to the Christian cause by giving the first new bill which he receives to help spread the message of Christ through the missionary movement. A complete announcement of the plan will be made in local churches on July 7 or July 14, the Sunday immediately preceding or following the issuance of the new currency. It is also planned that on September 8, the first Sunday after the summer vacation, the local church arrange a service of dedication of the money thus contributed. The new money given in this way, it is urged, is to be in addition to all the regular missionary gifts.

The whole plan is meant to stand as a concrete and vivid symbol of the principle of the Christian's stewardship of his possessions, and the order of service for the dedicatory feature is being built around this central purpose.

Further information may be secured from the Federal Council of Churches, 105 E. 22nd St., New York.

MAKING MEN— Not Money

Our aim is to develop the character through the constant teaching of Christian principles; to develop the body through healthful out-door sports; to develop the intellect through thorough, individual instruction. We offer a four-square education for your boy at a surprisingly reasonable cost. For catalogue write Col. A. H. Camden, President.

H A R G R A V E MILITARY ACADEMY CHATHAM, VA.

King College for Men
Bristol, Tennessee

Stonewall Jackson College

FOR WOMEN

Abingdon, Va., Box A

Jointly Controlled by Montgomery Presbytery

Affiliated Colleges of the Synod of Appalachia.

King College offers four year courses leading to Degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Sciences — a small Christian College — Faculty of eleven Christian gentlemen of thorough training and practical experience. Expenses reasonable.

Stonewall Jackson College. Accredited Junior College for young women, in heart of healthful Virginia mountains. Two years high school, two years college. Music, art, home economics, secretarial course, physical room with bath. All outdoor sports. Tennis. Nine hole golf course on fifty-two acre campus. Homelike life.

Write for catalogue.

GIRLS, Make your Teeth Gleam

sparkling white and clean with eminent Dentists' Tooth Paste. Write today for generous Trial Package FREE, with illustrated Catalogue finest quality Tooth Brushes and Dentifrice in combination packages, also Kiddies' Kits, at strictly Economy Prices. You may have friends who would like to earn money selling these packages in spare hours. We guarantee all goods to satisfy or money refunded. Write now, DEPYRO LABORATORIES, 27 Free St., Portland, Maine.

Ingenuity

Quality and student body, religious sentiment in class military fraternities, athletic and throughout campus. A small but select fame-hungry accord at

Presbyterian College
Clinton, S.C.

No Laxance

Scientific Preparation
S. ARBUNCLES, BONE FELONS,
G. S. and OLD SORES. Price 50c
W. C. CHEMICAL CO.
Brookland, S. C.

DR. CALDWELL WAS RIGHT

...treating sickness has not... Dr. Caldwell left Medical... 75, nor since he placed on... the laxative prescription he... his practice.
...constipation, biliousness, mental depression, indigestion, and other indispositions... means of simple vegetable... and roots. These are... of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup... combination of senna and... with pepsin.
...the remedy for constipation... for the child and for you... can get results in a mild... by using Dr. Caldwell's... why take chances with ...all last several months, and... It is pleasant to the... in action, and free from... Herby people find it ideal... os have the generous bottles...rup Pepsin." Dept. BB,

...inois, for free trial bottles

...RING OUR ADVERTISERS
...TION THIS PUBLICATION

"Belk's Vacation Luggage --- Best By Test"

Vacation Luggage

SELECT YOUR VACATION LUGGAGE AT BELK'S AND SPEND THE DIFFERENCE ON A VACATION TRIP

The Three Essentials of Belk Luggage

BEST STYLE — BEST QUALITY — LOWER PRICES

HAND BAGS TOUROBES
HAT BOXES WEEK-END CASES

OVER-NIGHT BAGS SUIT CASES GLAD STONES TRUNKS

Luggage Department—Third Floor

Belk Brothers Co.

Charlotte, N. C.

"HOME OF BETTER LUGGAGE"

THE RIGHT WAY TO TRAVEL
 is by train. The safest. Most comfortable. Most reliable. Costs less. Inquire of Ticket Agents regarding greatly reduced fares for short trips.
SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Church and Sunday School Furniture
 Send For Special Catalogue
THE SOUTHERN DESK COMPANY
 Hickory, N. C.

BOILS Relieve the pain and draw them quickly to a head
 — with —
GRAY'S OINTMENT
 At all drug stores. For free sample write
 W. F. Gray & Co., 724 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Nervous Women Praise Capudine
 Delicately poised women who suffer from high nerve strain and nervous pains, such as periodic pains, headache and pains in the back and sides are high in their praise of Capudine because it quickly soothes the tense nerves and relieves the pain.
 Being liquid, Capudine acts almost instantly,—does not upset the stomach. Sold by druggists in 30c and 60c sizes. (adv.)

YOUR CHURCH deserves a beautiful exterior in harmony with its spirit of culture and worship. Let us suggest appropriate shrubbery.
THE HOWARD-HICKORY CO., Hickory, N. C.
 Local Representatives Wanted, especially to sell fruit trees.
 Landscape Gardeners and Nurserymen

Piles and other Rectal diseases cured without pain or surgery. No hospital detention. Write to Dr. W. R. Register, 63 No. Broad Street, Atlanta, Georgia, for free book. Hundreds of cured patients.

Take STANBACK to Relieve PAIN

6 6 6
 is a Prescription for
Colds, Grippe, Flu, Dengue, Bilious Fever and Malaria.
 It is the most speedy remedy known.

WEAK EYES are strengthened and relieved by Dickey's old reliable eye water. In use over half a century. Relieves sore eyes from gnats and dust. Doesn't hurt. In red folding box at all good stores or by mail 25c.
 Dickey Drug Co. Bristol, Virginia

HOT WEATHER retards digestion and reduces vitality. Keep yourself in perfect condition with YERKE'S COD LIVER OIL.
 Extract
 At All Leading Druggists

S P A R K L E S

One on the County
 "When old Toppel died he left all he possessed to the county orphanage."
 "That was kind of him. How much did he leave?"
 "Several children."—Nagel's Lustige Welt, Berlin.

Mistress: "You must exercise a little will power with him, Nurse."
 Nurse: "I do try to, Mum; but you don't know his won't power."—London Mail.

Much merriment was created last week-end by a sign in front of one of the Toronto churches in Parkdale which read: "Subject of Sunday evening's sermon, 'Do you know what hell is?'" and underneath it in smaller letters, "Come and hear our new organist."—Toronto Daily Star.

All the Details
 The following interrogation of a new arrival in this country was overheard at Ellis Island:

"Next," "Who, me?" "Born" "Yes, sir." "Where?" "Russia." "What part?" "All of me." "Why did you leave Russia?" "I couldn't bring it with me." "Where were your forefathers born?" "I only got one father." "Your business?" "Rotten." "Where is Washington?" "He's dead." "I mean the capital of the United States?" "They loaned it all to Europe." "Now, do you promise to support the Constitution?" "Me?" How can I? I've got a wife and six kids to support."—Ex.

Surely Not
 The salesman had just completed a half hour talk about a new washing machine when the old lady pointed to a small piece of pipe projecting from the tub. "What's that?" she inquired.

The salesman explained that the purpose of the pipe was to drain off the water.
 "Oh," she exclaimed "then it really doesn't wash with electricity!"—Ex.

Nay, Nay, Pauline
 Whenever Mrs. Peter McSquatty goes on a shopping tour, she prevails upon P. M. to accompany her to carry the parcels. Having nothing to do while she was making some purchases, he dropped a penny in one of the fortune telling machines. He was peering at it when she came up.
 "H'm," she said, "So you are going to have a beautiful wife, are you? Not while I'm alive!"—Ex.

At Last—A Shoe That Fits
 Jane: "Of course, I want them comfortable, but at the same time good looking and attractive."
 Shoe Clerk: "Yes, madam, I understand—large inside and small outside."
 —Northern Purple Parrot.

A Good Samaritan
 Wife: "There's a burglar at the silver and another in the pantry eating my pies. Call for help!"
 Hubby (at window): "Police! Doctor!"—ConMuTopics.

Mexican Heat Powder
 Immediately relieves Prickly Heat, Nettle Rash, Diaper Rash, Tired, Sore and Blistered Feet. Sunburn, all Skin Irritations. At your Druggists

When answering advertisements mention this paper. Thus you will aid us in securing more advertising patronage.

Chicora College for Women
The Presbyterian College of South Carolina
 Standard College Courses Large, Strong Faculty
 Beautiful Grounds Ideal Surroundings
 Healthful Climate Moderate Rates
 For Catalog and Information, Address
S. C. Byrd, D.D., LL.D., President, Columbia,

FORTY-SIX YEARS CONTINUOUS SERVICE WITHOUT A LOSS ON ANY LOAN
 We offer you a safe, tax-free investment for your regular weekly or monthly savings and your lump sum.
 Write for particulars.
ASSETS OVER $8,800,000.00
The Mutual Building and Loan Association
 Established 1881 CHARLOTTE

If In Doubt, Take B. & L. Shares
 You will earn the highest interest rate on your savings consistent with perfect safety, and pay no tax on savings. Shares cost twenty-five cents per week, usually mature in 333 weeks. Net you 6 1-2 per cent maturity.
Series Open in January, April, July and October
Mechanics Perpetual Building & Loan Association
 Established 1883
 18 E. Fourth St. Charlotte

THE WINTHROP DESK, $75
 The Governor Winthrop desk has come down to us from the very earliest beginning of America. In the one shown here every detail has been copied minutely. It is made in Grand Rapids which is an assurance of its fine quality. Others, varying in size from $70 to $145.
W.T. McCOY & Co.
Home Furnishers
 423-425 SOUTH TRYON STREET
 CHARLOTTE, N. C.

For the Future
 Are you making ready to share in the opportunities which increasing prosperity will bring?
A Reserve Fund Banked Here Will Help
Charlotte National Bank
 Resources Over $5,000,000.00

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

A Religious Newspaper for the Family

Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.

RIDGES, D.D., Editor-in-Chief
WELLS, D.D., Co-Editor
JASPER WILLIS, Contributing Editor

ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858

REV. F. ELLIS, Vice-President
GARTH, Treasurer and Editor
WEDNESDAY AT STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY

CHARLOTTE, N. C., JULY 17, 1929

No. 29

Woman's Work Committee Meets

30 Budget Publicity Made 13 to be Montreat Day
for Assembly Inn

ing of the Committee on the Work held at Montreat, and 3, 1929, was pervaded by spirit of prayer, and was over to the discussion of and Missions, and of the phases of the work of the rather than of the mechanics en of the forty-four memesent.

of every member of the was gladdened by the telegram from Mrs. W. C. u., Secretary Emeritus of tent of Woman's Work: report, La., July 2, 1929.

Thompson,
Alba Hotel,
C.

ress to the Committee on Work my profound appreciation upon my resolutions upon my re-apted by them at their also the many kind ex-interest and affection from mbers of the Committee.
ga answered prayer and my rth is returning in full ish for your Committee a blessed meeting.
s. W. C. Winsborough.

Fairly, the newly elected ntued on Page Two)

Board Stands Bishop Cannon

at unaluska Expressed Full cein Leader Assailed Be-o Late Business Transactions

of Temperance and So-the Methodist Episcopal oh, with headquarters at on D. C., sends the following eath in which we gladly give

Editor:
nth, there has been given bility in the daily press to concerning the personal ractions of Bishop James r, President of the Board of econd Social Service of the piscopal Church, South.
it has sometimes been em-bits display in prominent with large headlines. In view fact I am sending to you a the communication, including n ten by the Board of Tem-and Social Service at its aniont Lake Junaluska, N. C., ad ask that the action be ull in such position as to ttention of the reading
hic read the previous state-ed concerning this same d assure that you recognize d reasonableness of this

Sincerely,
Gene L. Crawford, Secy, Board of Temperance and al Service, Methodist Episco-Church, South.
(Continued on page 2)

Change in Membership of Ad Interim Committee

Mr. J. E. Allen is Substituted for Dr. H. H. Sweets, of Kentucky

The Moderator of the General Assembly, Rev. W. R. Dobyns, D.D., has made a change in the name of one member of the Ad Interim Committee on Union with all Presbyterian Churches in the United States, substituting the name of Mr. James E. Allen, Davis, W. Va., for Rev. Henry H. Sweets, D.D. This was done at the request of Dr. Sweets. This information was received by the Stated Clerk too late to make the change in the minutes, so at the request of the Moderator, I am publishing this notice of the change in the church papers.

J. D. Leslie, Stated Clerk.

Dr. Morgan in New York

Noted Bible Teacher Leads Series—Invited to Live in the Metropolis

Rev. Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, English preacher and Bible lecturer, who is now a member of the Presbytery of Los Angeles, California, preached a course of five sermons on the evenings beginning Monday, June 25, and concluding Friday, June 28, in the Collegiate Reformed Church of St. Nicholas, on the Four Gospels. The first night was introductory, "The Source of Information," and each of the successive evenings was devoted to one of the four Gospels. Four of the five evenings, and the first was one of the hottest nights of the season, the great edifice was filled. The night the attendance was not so large, it rained. Dr. Morgan gave New York Bible lovers a taste of the preaching of the old-fashioned "unsearchable riches," and there was no uncertain sound throughout. Dr. Morgan, for a generation considered "the greatest living preacher," does not lose with the years any of his oratorical ability and his ability in putting his own personality into what he is developing from the "Book of books."

At the last service, Dr. Morgan was invited by almost one thousand uplifted hands to spend the rest of his days preaching in the Metropolis. The "vote" was put by William G. Figueroa, general secretary of the Evangelistic Committee of New York City, under the auspices of which Dr. Morgan spoke. It is hoped that this desire can be realized. Dr. Morgan has written sixty-eight religious books, he has crossed the ocean forty-nine times on preaching missions, and he has read the Bible through so often that he himself has lost count of the number of times.

Beginning Sabbath evening, June 30, Dr. Morgan began a three weeks' preaching mission in the "Big Tent," at Sterling Street and Washington and Lefferts Avenue, Brooklyn. The first week he will give a series of lectures on "The Man of Nazareth."

The fact that so many heard Dr. Morgan each evening in Manhattan would seem to prove that there are hundreds hungry for the Word.—The Presbyterian.

South Carolina Young People's Conference

Annual Meeting at Presbyterian College at Clinton With Attendance of 339

The South Carolina Young People's Conference came to a close Tuesday noon, June 15th. There were 299 registered delegates. The registration was closed one week before the conference opened and notices were sent to every church in the Synod that the limit of accommodations had been reached. There were eighteen councillors, six notebook assistants and sixteen members of the faculty, making a total attendance of 339. There is no record of how many were turned away for lack of space. Thirty-seven young people having completed the three-year course were awarded the conference diplomas. The largest delegation from a single church was that from Spartanburg, First, twenty-three. The largest Presbyterian delegation was that from Congaree, fifty-four. There were eight decisions for all time life service.

The conference reached its high water mark on Sunday. Dr. B. R. Lacy preached the conference sermon. At five o'clock there was a service led by the Life Work Recruits. In connection with this there was a testimony meeting at which scores gave their personal testimony to what the conference had brought to them, and as to their purpose to renew their allegiance to Christ, and reconsecrate themselves to Him. At the evening service, Mr. McSween brought the message and at its
(Continued on Page Two)

Mrs. Morrison Gives Organ to Davidson

Instrument to Grace Chambers Building in Honor of Well-Known Philanthropist—Grand Piano Also Gift of Same Benefactor

We have received the news of the construction of a Skinner Organ in the new Chambers Building which has just been completed at Davidson College, N. C. The information comes from Dr. William J. Martin, president emeritus, who expresses for the institution the appreciation felt by the college authorities and the entire Church, especially the Synods supporting this College for men:

"The fine Skinner Organ, which is now being built in the auditorium of the new Chambers Building, is the gift of our generous friend, Mrs. Cameron Morrison, of Charlotte, N. C. Mrs. Morrison has increased her gift to $25,000, which pays for the organ, all its accessories in the building and provides a Concert Grand Duo-Art Steinway piano, thus completing the instrumental musical equipment of the auditorium. These splendid instruments serve one of the handsomest auditoriums in southern colleges—a room with perfect acoustic properties. We are all deeply grateful to our friend and benefactress who has provided so generously for a hitherto existing deficiency in the college life. Personally, I look upon this as an important part of the spiritual equipment of Davidson. The organ will be known as "The Sara E. Morrison Organ." May God bless her greatly for her goodness to us."

Training School Will Elect President

Dr. McFaden Calls Meeting of Board to Choose Successor of Dr. Lingle

The Board of Trustees of the Assembly's Training School for Lay Workers is hereby called to meet in the Library Room of the Presbyterian Committee of Publication, No. 6-8 N. 6th St., Richmond, Va., on Friday, July 19th at 3 p. m. to act on the resignation of Dr. W. L. Lingle as President and to transact any business that may be necessary in connection with the work of the school.

F. T. McFaden, President.
Robert M. Friend, Secretary.
Winchester, Va.

Woman's Meeting At Montreat

1,200 Delegates Attend—Next Year's Birthday Offering to be Winsborough Foundation for Christian Education and Ministerial Relief

The week now closing has been a great one at Montreat, marked as it has been by the opening days of the Montreat Training School for Auxiliary Leaders, in other words a school for the training of leaders for the Woman's Work of the Southern Presbyterian Church. On the official opening of the school last Wednesday night, more than 1,200 women were in attendance, and great crowds have each day at eleven o'clock been present at the Bible hour conducted by Mrs. E. L. Russell of Mobile, Ala.

Thursday night was one of the most colorful and interesting of the nights of the week, this being the occasion of a review and pre-review of the whole organized work of the Southern Presbyterian Church. Mrs. J. W. Culver, of San Antonio, Texas, presided and introduced and presented the members of the Woman's Advisory Committee, made up of representatives of the sixteen Synods covered by the Southern Presbyterian Church. Addresses were delivered by Mrs. John Bratton, of Virginia, Mrs. R. M. Pegram, of Kentucky, and Miss Janie W. McGaughey, of St. Louis, Mo., the new Secretary of the Woman's Work of the Church. Mrs. D. A. McMillan, of Fulton, Mo., as general treasurer of the work, presented her annual report, showing nearly $39,000 already collected for what is known as the "Birthday Offering" of the women. She mentioned among special gifts, that of $250 contributed by Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, wife of our Ambassador to Mexico, this contribution being made to the Presbyterian educational work carried on in that country. It was announced that the Birthday Offering for 1929-1930 will go to the Committee of Christian Education and Ministerial Relief, at Louisville, Ky., and will be especially designated as the "Winsborough Foundation" in honor of Mrs. H. P. Winsborough, who was for 17 years Superintendent of Woman's Work of the Southern Presbyterian Church, and who was recently compelled to retire on account of ill health. Announcement was also made that more than seventeen millions of dollars had been contributed to the benev-

(Continued on Page Two)

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

FOUNDED 1858

Organ of the Synod of N. C. for 70 Years

The Post Office at Charlotte N. C., as Second Class Matter

Terms—The subscription price of the Standard is payable in advance. To ministers the price is $2.50 per year. To ministers' wives the price is $2.50 per year. The mailing label shows the month and year to which the subscription is paid. Payment in advance is required.

Subscriptions may be made by money order, check, or registered letter, and sent currency by mail.

Obituary Notices—No charge is made for notices of less than one column, but for all over fifty words the charge is $1.00. Sent on application.

Changes—Kindly send us both old and new addresses previous to the desired change.

Advertisements are made only upon the written request of the advertiser. The settlement in full must be made at the same time.

Advertising and Business Communications Should be

Addressed to
PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD
Box 869
Charlotte, N. C.

EDITORIAL

WOMEN AT MONTREAT

Montreat always has a "glad hand" for the women. Well she might, for women have the strongest supporters.

They are always here, more or less, but at their regular Conference, they are in excess of the "Less."

Each day and from Maryland to Virginia have come, full of zeal and energy, to show men how to accomplish the things set up waters they were held back at when once released they have made the way every obstacle to progress. They made a record for efficiency and results that throws into the shade all that has been done.

Montreat prevented us from seeing but one day's presence has shown us enough under a new head, since the retirement of Mrs. Winsborough, she still alive with enthusiasm and determined to maintain their high standard of work. Representatives to this Conference have no doubt their presence is not a stay of the good voter they work early and prayer-meeting before breakfast followed by class work till noon.

At the receptions and conferences. They heard the Bible hour, led by Mrs. Winsborough, of the Extension Department of the General Assembly's Training School.

They heard the first three chapters of the Book of Acts as fine as any we heard in our country.

It is like that of all women is not only in public speaking, and, like that of the speakers in this immense auditorium, they can be heard beyond the first few rows, but what we did hear, convinced us that she is a born teacher. The matter of the Book of Acts compared with many Bible teachers heard on this platform, was far above average, and if her class failed to get the idea of the first three chapters it was not the fault of this teacher. The hour seems to be the most popular season, and we are confident that every person will know the good Book and take them wise unto salvation.

We are confident that the pastors of our churches will reap the benefit of these Conference and growing efficiency of their women is another proof of the truth that Dr. Tenney has been preaching, that the entire debt to Montreat by reason of the work it does in training the membership, the female, in Church work, and for this the Churches give to Montreat, is a charity dole, but a "quid pro quo."

HISTORICAL FOUNDATION

Our readers have read, from time to time, references to the Historical Foundation, and whether any of them has more than a vague idea of what it really is. They are glad to see the moving spirit is Rev. Dr. S. M. Tenney, formerly of the Synod of Texas, and that for years it has been the ruling passion of his life, to collect data about the Church. But beyond that fact, we doubt whether their knowledge extends. That the real object of this article is to introduce Dr. Tenney and his great work to the Church at large and to these especially who have a weakness for the antique.

He has on file the minutes of Synods and Presbyteries of very early date.

The oldest Synod in the United States whose printed minutes he has, is the Synod of Philadelphia, 1717.

The next oldest Synod is that of Virginia. He is confident of securing that, though as yet it has not come. He is also expecting to have the minutes of the Synod of North Carolina.

We do not mean recent minutes, but those of the first meeting of these Synods.

He has the manuscripts of the majority of the first meetings of the Southern Synods, only two being missing.

When one comes to consider the Presbyteries, the list is long and interesting.

The four oldest Presbyteries in the South that he has, are the Presbytery of Hanover, 1755; of Orange, 1770, this is expected daily; the Presbytery of South Carolina, 1784; the Presbytery of Abingdon, 1785.

He has also those of the Associate Presbyterian, which originated in Scotland in 1733; of the Covenanters, 1743; of the Reformed Presbyterians in the United States, 1782.

These old minutes can be duplicated nowhere else, and will prove invaluable to future historians, or to present historians who are engaged in research work.

In a locked room, apart from the main office there are show-cases in which are valuable historical curios—such as:

A snuff-box made of the wood of John Knox's pulpit; a key six inches long with which the old Dorchester Church was locked, the date of which was 1696; a pewter communion service, used before the Revolution; a communion table and ten chairs, used by old Salem Church in South Carolina before the Civil War, where negroes and whites communed together as often the custom in the country churches.

His supply of old books is a rare one, which we do not believe can be duplicated anywhere in this country.

For example, he has a copy of the sermons of Josiah Smith of Dorchester, South Carolina, 1717.

There is only one other copy known, and that is to be found in the Harvard Library.

Among the rare publications, we find the "Bay Psalm Book," published in 1640; a journal of James Hall, "Mississippi Territory," 1802, the only known copy.

The book costing more than any he has is Hewett's History of South Carolina, 1779.

Then there is a copy of Isaac Watts' Hymn Book. There is not another copy in the United States. It is valued at $700.

We have merely touched the surface of this wonderful collection, which will be valued more and more as the years rush by.

We were curious to know where he secured the means for these valuable books.

Reluctantly he confessed that he tithed his income and used it for this purpose.

The General Assembly also has begun to contribute toward this cause.

We have written this hasty sketch of the Historical Foundation, in order to whet the appetite of our readers and enlighten them concerning this great treasure trove of the past.

When you come to Montreat, be sure to visit this collection.

Dr. Tenney will be rejoiced to see you, and if you have as hard a time as we had in escaping from his outpour of information, you must not blame the writer, and if you get as much pleasure as we did, you may thank both of us.

"FESTINALENTE"

This is an old warning, given by the Latins: "Make haste slowly." There is a world of wisdom in it, and few have ever suffered by heeding its warning, while many have suffered irreparable injury, by rushing ahead, without due thought of the possible consequences.

We of this day are too subject to waves of emotion. A woman faints in a factory, and then, unless their attention is attracted elsewhere, others will follow the example and one woman after another will drop to the floor.

We have seen this same spirit in mobs. A quiet group of order-loving men are in a moment transformed into an unruly mob, destroying property and at times human life.

There can be no explanation of this state except that a wave of emotion has swept over them, and one man acts as another man does, with the result that "judgment flees to brutish beasts and men lose their reason."

Some such wave must have swept over our recent General Assembly, else how can we explain the sudden change of opinion on the question of union with the Church of the North?

It has been several years since the question of union has been mooted—and then it was defeated by a heavy vote.

Up to the time of our last meeting the only question of union was that with the United Presbyterian Church.

There seemed to be very little interest in the subject, judging from expressions in the Church papers.

When it came up before our Assembly it swept over the Assembly like an epidemic, with the result that they were willing to unite with every one, with the probability that we shall finally be found weeping, because there are no more bodies with which to unite.

Not only were they intent upon uniting, but bitterly opposed to any separation from bodies with which they were united.

Reasoning seemed to have no influence with them.

In vain they were reminded that our Church was founded upon certain fixed principles, and that, by our alliance with the Federal Council, we had become "particeps criminis" with the Council in its open intermeddling with the affairs of State.

No impression was made upon them, though the Assembly had recently received a copy of the letter, addressed to the Northern Assembly in 1861, in which our separation was explained. It was written by Dr. J. H. Thornwell.

In this letter he stressed one point that has the same force to-day that it had then.

This point was, "We are persuaded, that if we remain together our harmony is likely to be disturbed by the introduction of our political differences into our Church Courts."

This section and that of the North are still divided along the same political lines, so what then justified a remaining apart justifies it now.

We can enjoy spiritual unity by each Church serving its own people; but if we come together, it means internal dissension and the widening of the breach.

Not only should we consider our political difference of views, but the position of woman should also be considered.

The Northern Assembly has sent down to its Presbyteries an overture, giving to women every office in the Church now held only by men, such as the office of the ruling elder.

Judging from the editorial expressions of the papers of that Church, it seems a foregone conclusion that such a change will be adopted by the Presbyteries.

If this be true, then there will be a change in our Book of Church Order, if we are to conform to the position of the Northern Church, and in our Church Courts there will be female preachers.

Some one has suggested that these innovations have crept in because of late years there have been admitted into our ministry men from other denominations, who were not trained along the old lines.

We express no opinion on such a question as we do not know whether the number of such additions to our ministry is enough to bring about this change.

We do know however that the young men of our Church are too prone to accept new things because they are new, and they crave a change.

We mourn this change, but we do not despair.

We have faith in the sober, second thought of our ministry. The reaction will come, and also remember that the Lord owns the Church and that He is more zealous for its purity than we are, and He will protect His own.

THE MINISTERS' ANNUITY FUND

A Comparison with Business Corporation Welfare Ideals

R. B. Woodworth, M.A., D.Sc.

The Church is not a business corporation and yet its financial relations to its hired servants are governed by the rules and regulations of good business. A business corporation is not an eleemosynary institution and yet the moral obligations which underlie its welfare work and the treatment of its hired servants are those inculcated by the Head of the Church.

The high commission of the minister does not place him outside the social order. As regards financial compensation for his labour, in the social order and under the law, he is still a hired servant, on a plane alike with the President of the United States, the mechanic and the housemaid. To no man that works does the social order deny a fair compensation for services rendered, nor grudge a competent maintenance, so long as he may live, even though long beyond the period of active endeavor, out of the surplus wealth his work has helped to create, accumulate or protect.

There are, therefore, analogies between the minister and the corporation hired servant worthy of consideration.

Adequate Compensation

1. Adequate Compensation. The hired servant of the corporation starts from a low place, the place of the unknown, untried, unskilled, inexperienced, at a compensation more or less standardized for the class of service and determined by the cost to maintain life on the scale of the class and by the general usefulness of the hired servant to any similar corporation and not by his special usefulness to that particular corporation. When he remains in that class, the corporation endeavors to adjust the compensation to his increased skill and experience and to any increase in the cost of living or the standard of the class, to the end that the compensation shall at all times cover the necessities of its servant and that he shall be contented therewith.

The corporation realizes that most men remain in their own class, contented to hew to the line of least resistance, but condemns no particular man so to do. It does not wish him to remain in the low place. Its best asset is a trained, experienced, alert corps of hired servants; its future lies in men, not in machines; it needs foremen, superintendents, presidents that have come up from the ranks and, therefore, most efficient. It, therefore, notes the proficient, sets before him chances for advancement, encourages him to think, rewards evidences of unusual skill or fore-thought, aims to develop the best in every one of its servants and to search out natural aptitudes and particular fitness for specialized service. It opens doors of opportunity for larger usefulness and, therefore, greater compensation. Whether or not he shall enter these remains with him to determine.

Commensurate Compensation

2. Commensurate Compensation. The hired servant grows, sacrifices leisure to fit himself for larger responsibilities, becomes more abundant in labors, he perfects new machinery, develops new processes, finds new uses for old products, improves methods. He no longer needs to seek employment; employment seeks him. He becomes known outside his own corporation, other corporations seek his services. He who was but one of a thousand mill hands becomes foreman, superintendent, president; he who was but a small cog in a big machine becomes a prime mover. The corporation which made him is now the corporation he has helped to make, is dominated by a personality developed on his own initiative through the use of the materials it placed within his reach.

As his services become more valuable, the corporation increases his financial compensation in recognition of his abilities, experience, added responsibilities, adds extra compensation out of profits directly due to betterments he has effectuated, extends his vacations, gives him trips abroad, to promote his health, experience and usefulness. The farther he advances the less relation does his compensation bear to actual living expenses and the longer becomes the margin for the accumulation of an independent fortune. The measure of his compensation is now the proven value of his service to that particular corporation.

Honorific Compensation

3. Honorific Compensation. The hired servant becomes old. The corporation eases the burden on his shoulder, lightens his tasks, reduces his hours of labor, at last retires him from active service, but continues to carry him on its payroll at a compensation calculated, when his reduced necessities are taken into consideration, to enable him to spend the remainder of his years in comfort on a scale of living to which, in his later years, he had become accustomed.

The corporation does not do this as a matter of charity. Its board of directors cannot, under the law, appropriate to gratuitous benefactions funds which belong to the stockholders. It does it in pursuance of a definite plan authorized by the stockholders under which the corporation recognizes its moral obligation to honor faithful hired service, and under which each and every hired servant has a right to old-age compensation.

The compensation is not based on the hired servant's needs. The corporation does not inquire into a man's financial circumstances, does not ask if he has accumulated a fortune and, therefore, does not need the annual honorarium, does not look to see if he dwells in a mean house and barely makes both ends meet. It assumes its officers will be in touch with all cases of actual need and will care for them in their regular welfare work out of funds otherwise currently provided; also that whatever may have been the working conditions of any particular hired servant his regular compensation should amply cover all reasonable living costs.

Honorific compensation is based on service; its design is to secure contented service from early youth to advanced age, to bind the hired servant to the corporation forever with the assurance that in his old age the corporation will not forget nor forsake. Its postulate is that each man in the service of the corporation is entitled to be honored by the corporation in proportion, not to his needs but, to the length of his service and the value of that service to the corporation.

The only tangible compensation a corporation can make is monetary. Its officers may show a man esteem and affection; the corporation pays cash for service and expects service for its cash. Cash is the only measure it has for service, consequently, when it comes to fix the amount of honorific compensation it shall pay any hired servant, it can only consider the length of his service and the amount it paid for that service. When it does that for any one man and applies the same measure to every other man it is just to all. It cannot be generous to whom it will. The total amount it can appropriate to old-age pensions is dependent upon its resources. Whatever the total may be, the distribution of that total to each man in direct proportion to the value of his services, as determined by length of service and rate of pay, is a matter of mathematics and common justice. If the amount any man receives is insufficient for his needs, help must come from some other source within or without the corporation but not as a matter of equal right.

The funds for honorific compensation—pensions paid superannuated and infirm employers, as one railroad corporation puts it—constitute a charge against revenues and are, as a rule, set aside out of funds which otherwise would be distributed to the stockholders as dividends and the beneficiary makes no direct contribution thereto. His right to share in them is due to the fact that over a period of years the surplus wealth of the corporation has been accumulated from the fruits of his labor.

Where a pension fund is built up, in part, by contributions from employees, the design of the corporation is the encouragement of thrift and the increase of the employee's interest in the welfare work of the corporation. If the employee refuses to participate, the corporation is automatically absolved from further obligation to him after retirement from active service, as a matter of legal right. Anything he may then receive from the corporation is by grace and not by debt.

While a corporation may operate many mills or works or shops and the hired servant render all his service to one particular mill, or may work at many mills, the solidarity of the corporation is seen in the fact that the pension fund is a general fund and distributed to employees regardless of the mills at which they work. This is broad, impartial justice. The abundance of one becomes a supply for the lack of another and thus there is equality.

Recapitulation

4. Recapitulation. Mill and office officials fix adequate compensation in accord with local conditions; general officers fix commensurate compensation in accord with position and responsibility; the stockholders, board of directors and expert mathematicians fix honorific compensation in accord with the record the man has actually made for himself in the entire period of his own active service.

Application

5. Application. The sons of this world are for their own generation wiser than the sons of the light. The business corporations have found by experience that fair, considerate treatment of their servants from the cradle to the grave is a high moral obligation conducive to their own highest business welfare. The observance of that obligation pays dividends to stockholders. What the corporation does for its servants, the Lord Jesus Christ has Himself ordained His Church should do for its ministers. He has not laid many positive commands on His Church; this one is direct and emphatic and reiterated by an inspired Apostle; back of it lies infinite wisdom.

The whole plan of the Church for all its hired servants is to see that their compensation shall at all times be adequate for comfortable maintenance with due regards to local conditions, that as they grow in experience, usefulness and responsibility their compensation shall be commensurate thereto and that when laid aside by Divine Providence they shall be honored with competent and comfortable maintenance as of just obligation for service and not of grace.

It is the duty of all congregations to see that the minister's compensation is adequate (of most congregations and all executive agencies and church institutions to see that compensation of all their servants is commensurate) and of all church courts to insist thereupon. (But the minister may serve several congregations, and the executive secretary the whole church; honorific compensation, therefore, is the obligation of the whole Church and of each and every congregation in the Church). Through the Ministers' Annuity Fund, administered by

Men-of-the-Church

Presbyterian Church in the United States

REV. J. E. PURCELL, D.D., Executive Secretary
HENRY GRADY BUILDING
ATLANTA, GEORGIA

REV. JOHN L. FAIRLY, D.D., Wilmington, N.C.
Editor in Charge of Men-of-the-Church Department

GROUP MEETING, MEN-OF-LEXINGTON PRESBYTERY

The Committee on Men's Work of the Lexington Presbytery is promoting the work in the Presbytery through group meetings. The first of these meetings was held at the Augusta Stone Church, Fort Defiance, Ga., of April 21. Thirteen churches sent delegates, ranked first in the number present and State second. In all one hundred and ninety-two were present.

Mr. M. M. Edgar, Chairman of Presbytery, presided. A quartet from the Augusta Academy gave several selections. The speakers were Mr. F. L. Temple, of Roanoke, Chairman of Synod's Committee, and Rev. W. C. Jarman, of the Hebron Church.

After a brief devotional by the pastor, received from the churches represented. Mr. Temple conducted this part of the program. These reports to be one of the most interesting features of the meeting. The men are busily at work backing up the organization, doing personal work, conducting Sunday Schools, and supplying vacant churches.

Following these reports Mr. Temple spoke of the organization side of the work. Rev. W. C. Jarman brought the meeting to a close with a stirring prayer, "Men Whose Hearts Have Been Touched."

This meeting demonstrated that the work of the Men-of-the-Church is making progress in the Presbytery. None of the churches have organizations are satisfied with the progress they have made. All seem to be anxious for that will help them in their work. Two churches had just organized after the Assembly's Plan of Organization. Three churches came seeking information as to organization. The Committee on Men's Work for men is making a solid growth.

PROGRAM OF THE MEN-OF-HIGHLAND-PARK PRESBYTERIAN-CHURCH

Dallas, Texas

The "Men-of-the-Church" will conduct business and evening services at the Sunset Presbyterian Church in Oak Cliff this Sunday. Group Number 1, Mr. George M. Field, leader, is in charge of the morning worship, and Group Number 8, Mr. H. J. Marshall, leader, is in charge of the evening worship. That God may richly bless these men in their work.

Group Number 3, with Mr. Wylie B. Sims, leader, is in charge of the morning services. Group Number 4, with Mr. J. D. Fowler, leader, furnish ushers for our church services during the month of May.

Group Number 7, with Mr. H. F. Culver, leader, have charge of the mid-week prayer services on the 15th.

Group Number 2, Mr. Claud L. Austin, leader, is in charge of the morning services. Group Number 10, Mr. Paul McCarroll, leader, is assisting the pastor in calling upon the new members.

The May meeting of the Men-of-the-Church will be held May 14th, will be in charge of Group Number 6, Mr. B. F. Akridge, leader.

The evening service on Sunday, June 2nd, will be in the direction of Group Number 11, Mr. C. E. B. B. B.

(The following Program of the Men-of-the-Church of Highland Park Presbyterian Church, Dallas, Texas, of interest as it gives the time schedule.)

Men-of-the-Church

The Men-of-the-Church will meet next week on the 11th.

6:00-7:00—Super. The women of Circle 10 will serve.

the whole Church, the solidarity of the Church is completely realized, the abundance of some becomes a supply for the lack of others, and the beneficiary there is the certitude of the most abundant. The ministrations of this common service are a chorus of thanksgiving to God.

The success of the Ministers' Annuity Fund is upon the realization by each congregation and parcel of a great corporation. It shows the benefits of incorporation and of right should be an obligation, particularly to those to whom the Church owes its very existence and its growth.

Does the Church intend to allow business to set the pace in the treatment of the aged and infirm servants?

Burlington, W. Va.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Rev. Ernest Trice Thompson, D.D.

Lesson for July 28th

THE STORY OF DANIEL

Daniel 1:1-21; 2:13-24; 4:19; 7:28; 8:15-18;
9:20-23; 10:1-19; 12:9.

Our lessons for the last three weeks have been taken from the Book of Ezekiel. We begin this week to study a few selected lessons from the life of Daniel, one of the great contemporaries of Ezekiel. These stories that come to us from the life of Daniel are very familiar to us all; but if we are willing to make the effort we will find that they contain much that is of fresh interest and suggest much that is of contemporary significance.

Read the first two chapters of the book then, with the same attention that you would employ if the chapters were absolutely new. Do not be satisfied until you have made at least some discoveries of your own, new facts, or old facts that come to you with new significance. Think through the story in answer to the following question: Who was Daniel? What kind of a youth was he? Don't merely quote the language of 1:3-4, but put it in the kind of language that we would use today. In what land does the story take place? How did Daniel come to be there? Under what circumstances did he purpose in his heart that he would not defile himself? Why did he form this purpose? How did he manage to carry it into effect? What were the results? Under what circumstances did he first have an opportunity to serve King Nebuchadnezzar? What was the King's dream? What was Daniel's interpretation? What was Daniel's reward? What part did Daniel play later in the affairs of the Empire (glance through the book of Daniel and note especially 5:29; 6:1-3, 28).

I. The Early Life of Daniel

Daniel was born in Judah, in the reign of the good King Josiah, who did so much to overthrow the idolatry which had seized upon his country, and to establish the pure religion of Jehovah. The influence of this reformation remained with Daniel all his life. Jeremiah was then beginning his noble work and young Daniel may have come under his inspiring instruction. Israel the northern kingdom had been carried into captivity by the Assyrians more than a hundred years before. Now the power of Assyria was broken, and Babylon and Egypt were contending for the mastery of the world.

When Daniel was about 11 years old, Pharaoh-Necho, King of Egypt, led his army northward through the territories of Judah to meet the Babylonians at Carchemish. Josiah very foolishly tried to intercept him, and was killed by the Egyptians in the plains of Megiddo. The Reformation which he had sponsored came to a sudden end. Jehoahaz, the son of Josiah reigned for three months and was then deposed and carried captive into Egypt. Jehoiakim, the second son of Josiah, reigned for the next eleven years. He was forced to recognize the suzerainty of the Babylonians who had defeated the Egyptians and made themselves the masters of the eastern world. It was not long however before Jehoiakim disregarded the warning of Jeremiah, sought an alliance with Egypt and rebelled against his master. In the third year of his reign Nebuchadnezzar, the most powerful monarch who ever sat on the throne of Babylon, marched against Jerusalem and captured the city. A great many of the sacred vessels that were used in the temple were taken to Babylon and placed in the temple of Marduk. Jehoiakim himself and many representatives of the more prominent families of the

FIELD WORK OF MR. J. A. NAFF

Since leaving Atlanta on April 5, I have met and discussed Men's Work with groups of men in two churches in North Carolina, two in Virginia, three in West Virginia, and some twenty in Kentucky. In four of these touches, from ten to thirty of the churches in four Presbyteries were represented. This has actually amounted to direct contact with pastors and men in more than seventy-five churches in nine Presbyteries in four of the great Synods of the Church, 500 men altogether. My visits to practically every place I have been throughout the trip, have most convincingly demonstrated two things: First, that very few of the pastors or men have ever made any study of the General Assembly's plans for organization of "The-Men-of-the-Church"; and second, that when I have explained them, these same pastors and men seem surprised at their practical workability, and are for them with remarkably few exceptions. These two results of my contacts have forced upon me the conviction that the development of the men of our churches in their interest and activities in the work of the church and the Kingdom, are awaiting a more vigorous prosecution of this educational work on our part. It really seems to me that we face a crying demand for its continuance and enlargement if that were possible.

city were carried into captivity. Jehoiakim later was allowed to return and resume his throne, but his fellow-captives remained in Babylon, at that time one of the most magnificent cities of ancient times. Among these captives was Daniel, at that time a boy about 14 years old, the scion of a noble family, it may be a member of the royal house itself, an outstanding lad, both in regard to his physical appearance and his mental attainments. (We infer that Daniel was about 14 years old at this time because of the following facts: "Plato speaking of the Persians says: 'After twice seven years have passed those whom they call royal instructors receive the boys to educate.' Add three years during which we know that Daniel and his friends were under training, and this would bring him to the age of 17. But according to Xenophon, 17 years was the age at which adults entered upon the king's service." This age therefore brings the Bible facts into accordance with what we know from outside sources to have been the custom among the Persians. The last verse of the first chapter informs us moreover that he continued even unto the first year of King Cyrus; and his latest vision is dated in the third year of Cyrus. If he was about 14 at the time of the captivity he would have reached at that time the venerable age of 84, which is about what we should expect.)

II. The Testing of Daniel—1:1-7

Nebuchadnezzar seems to have had a custom somewhat similar to that followed until comparatively recent times by the Turks. Dr. Kitto, writing about 1850 tells us that "the time is still within living memory when the pages of the seraglio, the officers of the court, as well as the greater part of the high functionaries of state and governors of the provinces, were originally boys of Christian parentage, who had been taken captive in war, or bought or stolen in times of peace. The finest and most capable of these were sent to the palaces, and placed under the charge of the chief of the white eunuchs. These lads were brought up in the religion of their masters, and in a school within the palace they received such complete instruction in Turkish learning and science as it was the lot of few others to obtain. Their education being completed, those who had shown most capacity were employed about the person of the sovereign and the rest were assigned to the various offices of the extensive establishments to which they belonged. In due time these able or successful youths got advanced to high court offices, which gave them immediate access to the royal person, an advantage which soon paved the way to their going out on military commands or to take the government of provinces." We suppose that one advantage of this system was that the Emperor had about him men who had no family ambitions, no loyalty to any one besides himself.

In accordance it may be with a custom of this sort Nebuchadnezzar ordered Ashpenaz, the master of the eunuchs, to have educated for the king's service certain youths of the Jewish captives belonging to the royal family and to the nobility. These youths, youths of promise, of fine physical appearance and exceptional mental ability, were to be trained in a special royal seminary in the learning and in the tongue of the Chaldeans. The last phrase does not mean simply that they were to be taught the Chaldean language. The term 'Chaldean' was used to denote the learned class among the Babylonians, i. e. the priests, a large part of whose functions consisted in the study and practice of magic, divination and astrology. "The learning of the Chaldeans. What a huge subject is implied by this. The complicated system of Babylonian theology, the whole system of divination, astronomy, and what was most closely connected with it, astrology—all these and more were the subjects of Daniel's study. And let us not imagine that the greater part of these subjects were entirely science falsely so called. Far from it. A high civilization like that of Babylon, which already possessed the elements of the telescope, and a knowledge of the calculations of eclipses, even though it taught some of the principles of science very erroneously, yet was far from possessing nothing but what was contemptible. It must have been the theology of Babylon which most severely tried the religious feelings of Daniel; for what a contrast it must have been for a young man who had been educated in a simple childlike faith in one God and Father of all to be brought into contact with Babylonian polytheism."

Daniel could study the religion of Babylon however and still hold to the faith of his fathers. The first real test of his attitude came in regard to the special food that was sent down from the king's table. The food was rich no doubt, the wine had its danger then as now, but there were other considerations besides those of hygiene. According to the Jewish law only certain animals were accounted clean, and even these had to be slain in such a manner as to leave no blood in the flesh before they could be eaten. Besides it was a custom among the heathen to bring a portion of that which was eaten and drunk by them as an obligation to the gods, and sometimes they also used for food animals that had already been offered at the altar of their gods. To partake of meat and wine

(Continued on page 8)

Recreational Program. Reading by Miss quartette arranged by Mr. Joe J. Murray, Colonel Eugene DeBogory on "Hunting in Educational Program. Group 5, Mr. B. F. irman, will have charge of the program on William McCutcheon Morrison. ance at the former Men-of-the-Church proven very good, and the women have served als. The meeting Tuesday will be the next to be held before the summer vacation, and urged to attend.

OF-SAVANNAH-PRESBYTERY

Waycross, Georgia

tell you very briefly of a wonderful meeting Men-of-Savannah-Presbytery held on April Waycross, Georgia, under the auspices of the Committee of Savannah Presbytery.

We sent a personal letter to every pastor every inviting and urging them to be our messengers at our meeting; then we sent a letter to each District Chairman of the various groups of the Men-of-the-Presbytery, charging with the responsibility, jointly with the Executive Committee, of seeing that each church was fully men to attend the meeting. Then we sent a personal letter to the Chairman of each organization of the Men-of-the-Church, or the leader of each organization in each church announcing and outlining, and requesting that they see that their church had a personal knowledge of and earnestly requested to attend—with the trip the only expense they would be put to transportation to and from Waycross, as each church had very generously provided all rooms and meals while in their midst. Two weeks later we wrote each pastor another urging them to see that announcement be made an opportunity, of the meeting and urging to come—and better still, to lead a caravan to Waycross. And as we went over the called on numbers of "key" men personally invited to them, and trying to make it much was going to depend on their attitude of their men looked to them for leadership. One morning it commenced raining and continued long, and all highways leading into Waycross were muddy and slippery and heavy in the extreme, and the inclement weather, we had an attendance of eighty men and pastors, and we had a fine adopted as our slogan for the coming year, "Possessions," (Obadiah 17), it being our purpose to possess the waste places in our use of a small group of our Men's Work our Presbytery that if the men will not church, the church will go to them, and we tentatively to co-operate with the Men's Work and plan the formation of a group of men in each District of our Presbytery, here and there to certain strategic centers more shall country churches may join in a meeting—perhaps some Sunday when a rally may be held for the group churches at the morning, and then in the afternoon conference for the men of that group of men, consisting with all talks, speeches, etc., and a conference to a round table open forum where each individual may state their own individual problems, nature of the work concerns, etc., and then for the combined wisdom, endeavor to evolve or suggest the solution of their individual problems.

an experience in dealing with the men in country churches, that they are willing to do constructive work done among themselves, but do not know how to go about setting up any kind of organization or plan of procedure, or just to do the things to be done to lead the men to usefulness and service.

ing is the program which was carried out: 1. Call to order. Open with prayer.

2. Song Service, direction W. S. MacFeeley,

3. Purpose of meeting and appointment of committee.

4. "Men of the Church" by Rev. Marshall Thomasville.

5. "Getting acquainted."

6. Recess for supper interspersed with music by W. S. MacFeeley and others, and old negro dialect stories and ukulele selections by Dorchester.

7. Communion Service.

8. "Our Definite Task" by a layman.

9. "A Practical Demonstration of What" by Walter H. Way of Savannah.

10. Forum and general discussion, led by J. Savannah and B. D. Brantley of Black-

11. elected for the ensuing year were:

12. Field Ford, President, Valdosta, Ga.; Mr. Mac Feeley, 2201 Barnard Street, Savannah. C. L. Koegel, Secretary and Treasurer, Valdosta, Ga.; M. R. Baker.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPT.

EDITOR'S LOOKOUT

W. A. Gamble, Pinetops, N. C.

Albemarle Presbytery Y. P. Conference

Attended by twenty-two delegates, and guided by a dozen adult teachers and counsellors, the first young people's conference of Albemarle Presbytery was held at Washington Collegiate Institute, Washington, N. C., July 8-13. The sentiment expressed at the close of the conference was unanimous that this should be the first of an annual series of such gatherings.

One of the largest factors in the success of the conference was the fine spirit of co-operation shown by Dr. M. O. Fletcher, president of the Institute, and his family and associates. The Methodists leaders of a Methodist school "did everything they could, and a little bit more," as the resolutions committee expressed it, to add to the comfort and pleasure of the conference members.

The faculty and counsellors constituted another strong reason for the success upon which every one commented. Rev. N. N. Fleming, former member of Albemarle Presbytery, taught the Senior Bible course, using the Book of Acts. Miss Ellen Wilson, of the Assembly's Christian Education Committee, had the junior Bible work and did a fine piece of work in giving an approach to the scriptures. Miss Wilson also conducted the last vesper service. Rev. H. M. Wilson, pastor of the Leggetts-Fountain field, taught the Stewardship class, using Rev. R. P. Anderson's "The Way to the Best." Rev. H. B. Searight, D.D., former moderator of North Carolina Synod, taught Church History and Doctrine, for which many years of study fitted him. Miss Lucy Crisp, member of the staff of the Raleigh News and Observer, taught the course in Young People's Methods. This was a "new" course, worked out just for this conference, and Miss Crisp made a fine impression.

Mrs. Jeannette Grainger, Presbyterial Auxiliary Secretary of Young People's Work, was head counsellor for girls, and Rev. M. W. Doggett head counsellor for boys. Rev. and Mrs. M. B. Lyerly, newcomers to the Presbytery and Mrs. C. M. Brown, were also counsellors. Miss Annie Martin, graduate nurse, took good care of the few aches and accidents. Rev. C. M. Brown, pastor at Elizabeth City, conducted the vespers, his talks on "Knowing God" being quite in line with the conference theme, "God's Workmen," and the Scripture text, "Laborers together with God."

The night addresses were excellent in every way. President Fletcher of W. C. I. spoke Monday night on "The Pathway to Success," putting up "signboards" that must be read and heeded by all who will travel that pathway. On Tuesday night, Rev. W. C. Cumming, formerly a China missionary and now stationed at Henderson, N. C., gave an address setting forth Christ's teaching concerning the brotherhood of all God's children. Rev. E. E. Gillespie, D.D. Synod's Executive Secretary, presented a fine message Wednesday night, showing from the book of Ecclesiastes the vanity of any life except the one seeking to do God's will, and outlining avenues of service. The Thursday night speaker was Mrs. Anna Baker Fenner, First Vice-president of Albemarle Presbyterial Auxiliary, who outlined in an interesting way some of the work being done by the Auxiliary.

Rev. W. S. Harden, of Greenville, had the closing night service, urging the young people to say "I will" to God when he calls for their lives. Something like half the delegates gave evidence of their willingness to answer God in this way.

The conference schedule called for three classes each morning, and a short assembly period for the handling of matters pertaining to the work of the young people's organization in the presbytery. The afternoons were given to recreation, the principal attraction being swimming. President Fletcher and his wife were hosts one afternoon at a swimming party and fish fry, and a boat trip to a bathing resort was enjoyed on one of the afternoons.

Nineteen young people received three credits each toward the diploma given by the Richmond office, and additional credit courses will be given next year if the presbytery grants the unanimous request of the conference membership that this meeting be made an annual affair.

The conference chairman was Rev. W. A. Gamble, Presbytery's Chairman of the Young People's Work committee.

PRESBYTERIAN Y. P. LEAGUE—SYNOD OF NORTH CAROLINA

Honor Roll

The Presbyteries in which two-thirds of the Societies reach 90 per cent on the following points will have their names enrolled on a Bronze Tablet.

I. Worship—30%

A—Prayer—One or more prayer bands (a group or groups meeting regularly), five per cent.

B—Twenty-five per cent of members leading in prayer, five per cent.

C—Fifty per cent of members reading Bible daily, ten per cent.

D—Ninety per cent of members attending preaching services, ten per cent.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPIC

Sunday, July 28—"The Church and the Nation—
Matt. 1:31-33; Luke 4:18, 19.

C. G. A.

The Church and the Nation

We read in the newspapers that our nation is commercial, and that everything has its price with a dollar mark in front of it. We read that our age is hard-boiled, and a rough-neck age, when the people read the biography of every murderer and bandit they can dig up. Youth is condemned as the worst of the offenders—and Youth flares back with the complaint that it is not understood. The tender-hearted observers weep over our plight, and the hard-hearted are inwardly glad, but silent. Poor world, we say—poor world!

But there! We have looked at the poor side of it—the side that gets into the newspapers, but which is, after all, a small side—small in more than one sense of the word. It takes a small person to see only the small side. We do know that our age is economical enough to do away with institutions that have proved themselves unworthy or unsatisfactory. We do not uphold organizations just because our parents were in favor of them. Any imposition leads to open revolt. But with this spirit of revolution in the air, and with all the commercial and economical standards that have been set—the Church stands. There must be a reason for its position. Let us consider a few of the reasons.

II. Instruction—30%

A—Fifty per cent of the members enrolled in at least one special study course, ten per cent.

B—Programs planned regularly at least one week in advance, five per cent.

C—Programs developed through study and research work, showing originality in presentation (article or topics told or discussed, not read, by twenty-five per cent of members), five per cent.

D—At least one program during the year on Presbyterial Schools and Colleges, five per cent.

E—Church represented at Presbyterial Young People's Conferences or rallies, five per cent.

III. Recreation—10%

A—One or more programs on the place and value of recreation and amusements, five per cent.

B—Two or more parties or social meetings each year, five per cent.

IV. Service—30%

A—Local Church Work, ten per cent. Definite service rendered, as ministering to the sick, teaching in Sunday schools, aiding weak societies, etc.

B—Presbyterial Young People's League Specials. College Gift Fund for Barium, five per cent. Mail to Presbyterial Secretary. Mamie McElwee Scholarship, five per cent. Mail to P. Y. P. L. Sec. in Presby.

C—Assembly Specials: Support of Medical Work in our China Field, five per cent.

Send amount Edwin F. Willis, Treas., Box 330, Nashville, Tenn., Blue Ridge Academy, The Hollow, Va., three per cent.

Mail to A. N. Sharp, 101 Marietta St., Atlanta, Ga. Support of Young People's Division (Offering on Young People's Day), two per cent.

Mail to R. E. Magill, Box 1176, Richmond, Va.

The Church and Ideals

Nations must have ideals just as individuals have ideals. The ideals of the nation are the ideals of the leaders of the nation. And the ideals of the nation that elect the leaders, effect the ideals of the nation. Each of us contributes to the ideals of the nation. The Church stands for the highest of ideals—the ideals of love, and those of us who know the value of love help being affected by its standards. Ideals in their effects. "The kingdom of heaven is like a grain of mustard seed, which a man took, hid in his field, which indeed is less than all seed that is sown, it is greater than the herbs of the field, a tree, so that the birds of the heaven come to roost in the branches thereof."

The Church and Liberty

What is liberty? The dictionary says it is freedom. Are we free? Robert Quillen says that the nation is endowed with certain inalienable rights, and he must keep fighting for. But with all our freedom we are not free. Real freedom is of the mind and the soul. We are free when we can rise above petty, trivial things and take the joy from our lives. One great principle of freedom is freedom of faith and conscience. We never have more spiritual slavery. The Church stands for truth, and truth brings liberty. "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." May we really be a "land of liberty," and may our people live in the truth.

A Churchless Community

There are a lot of people who think that it is a good thing to get away from churches. They think the organized church is artificial in its response to the needs of the community. If the organized church were taken away, only the church but the institutions which are left would be church supports. Where would a community be? The hospitals, orphanages, homes for the aged, the physically disabled, schools and colleges, as well as the general culture of the community would be sacrificed. If the Church were to be taken away, what would be left which would satisfy just as greatly would be substituted—and that something else has been found by the general public. A few individuals along without a church, but the community needs the church for what it is, and for the service Christ performs in a community. "The kind of service Christ performs in a community depends upon the character of the church community." (Doctor Jefferson.)

The New Crusade

We have all read of the crusades of the Middle Ages—the crusades to deliver the holy land from the Turks. We know that the zeal of those people was great. We, too, in this age may have the zeal to deliver the holy land, but to make it a land of peace and justice. And the zeal required for such an undertaking is great, too. We must fight against discouragement and let us not become disheartened as some crusaders did, and turn back or turn aside. The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor: He hath sent me to proclaim release to the captives and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, to proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord.

WEAR WHITE IN THE GARDEN

Wear white in the garden, dear,
I love to see you standing there
Amid the swaying blossoms fair, There're roses round you, white and
And honeysuckles overhead.
And with the iris at your feet
White garments make the scene
Wear white in the garden.

Wear white in the market, dear,
Amid the hurry of the throng
'Twill move as softly as a song.
Upon the bent and near of sight
'Twill gleam a glowing spot of light,
And from the drab and murky day
'Twill drive some sinister thought
Wear white in the market.

Wear white in the battle, dear,
There'll ne'er be found so sure a shield
Upon the hard fought battle field.
No other balms so gently steal
In gapping wounds to quickly heal
White garments all, from foot to head
And on your breast a cross of red,
Wear white in the battle.

Wear white in the kingdom, dear,
'And they shall walk with Me in white
Said One long vanished out of sight
And Whom, though we have never seen
We love, and keep our garments clean
White only makes His heart to smile
White only's worthy of the King,
Wear white in the kingdom.

C. M. Ca

Pratt City, Ala.

CHURCHES OF DISTINCTION

McLaughlin, Country Church Director

There was published a list of twenty-three churches of distinction. It was composed of counties or groups, in each synod, receiving the number of persons on profession of faith during the year ending March 31, 1928. No church was included with less than 17 persons by examination. There were other churches or pastoral groups in the South, North Carolina and Virginia with 17 or more persons by profession of faith listed.

We are listing all the country churches or churches received as many as 17 persons on profession of faith during the year ending March 31, 1929. Twenty of these churches received 17 or more persons of faith last year. About 30 of the ministers are listed this year have had the Country Churches either at the Seminaries or in the summer. For three years the Country Church has been laying emphasis upon the necessary year-round evangelistic program in the cities. This year we find that there are 79 churches of distinction, only 61 last year.

It is noted that receiving persons on profession of faith was the whole business of the church, but on investigation has been discovered that a soul-winning program is being actively active in its whole program.

Country Churches, Church, Pastor or Supply, Number of Persons on Profession of Faith, respectively.

Alabama, Wood's Group, Rev. H. L.

Alabama, Westminster Group, Rev. W. H. L.

Alabama, Salem Group, Rev. C. A.

Abingdon, Webb Group, Rev. S. K. Dodson,

Abingdon, Draper's Valley, Rev. F. G.

Abingdon, Jewel Ridge Group, Rev. R. T. L.

Abingdon, Rich Valley Group, Rev. John

Asheville, Covenanters' Group, Rev. W.

Asheville, Weaverville Group, Rev. H. B.

Asheville, Oak Forest Group, -----, 17.

Holston, New Bethel Group, Rev. Dan

Holston, Cold Spring Group, Rev. J. Ir-

Knoxville, Farner, Rev. C. L. Sentelle, 35.

Holston, Banner Elk, Rev. T. H. Spence,

Holston, Harris Memorial Group, Rev.

Duachita, Norman Group, Rev. John T.

Florida, Euchee Valley Group, Rev. G. T.

Atlanta, Oak Grove Group, Rev. B. R. Ander-

Savannah, Dorchester Group, Rev. J. F. Mer-

Warrent, Blackey, Rev. H. L. Cockerham,

Louisville, Buechel, Rev. W. K. Waters, 29.

New Orleans, Centerville Group, Rev.

New Orleans, Amite Group, Rev. W. H.

Red River, Rocky Mt. Group, Rev. R. A.

East Mississippi, New Prospect Group,

Meridian, Bethel Group, Rev. R. M. Dick-

Fayette, School of the Ozarks, -----, 23.

St. Louis, Boeuff, Rev. J. G. Kirschner, 26.

Upper Mo., Moscow Group, Rev. I. F. Swal-

Virginia, Concord, Gilwood Group, Rev. T. H.

Virginia, Concord, Little Joe's Group, Rev. W.

Virginia, Concord, Unity Group, Rev. N. E.

Virginia, Concord, Thyatira Group, Rev. J. E.

Virginia, Concord, Center Group, Rev. J. Ken-

Virginia, Fayetteville, Center Group, Rev. J. T.

Virginia, Fayetteville, Sardis Group, Rev. D.

WOMANS AUXILIARY

The Department of Woman's Work, Presbyterian Church, U. S. 270-277 Field Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

SYNOCDAL PRESIDENTS OF THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

- Alabama—Mrs. J. F. Hooper, 610 Mabry St., Selma, Ala.
- Appalachia—Mrs. F. B. Kegley, Wytheville, Va.
- Arkansas—Mrs. Walter Wilson, Arkadelphia, Ark.
- Florida—Mrs. W. G. Thompson, Jr., 3215 Obispo St., Palma Ceia Park, Tampa, Fla.
- Georgia—Mrs. E. G. Aboott, 1315 Eberhart Ave., Columbus, Ga.
- Kentucky—Mrs. H. P. Cooper, Lebanon, Ky.
- Louisiana—Mrs. Charles L. Bodin, Box 79, M. R. A., Lake Charles, Louisiana.
- Mississippi—Mrs. J. S. Hicks, Holly Springs, Miss.
- Missouri—Mrs. Walter Craven, 223 Frances St., Excelsior Springs, Mo.
- North Carolina—Mrs. G. V. Patterson, Gastonia, N. C.
- Oklahoma—Mrs. Wilbur Garvin, 611 Euclid, Lawton, Oklahoma.
- South Carolina—Mrs. Parker Connor, Edisto Island, South Carolina.
- Tennessee—Mrs. J. F. Forsythe, Bethel Springs, Tenn.
- Texas—Mrs. J. W. Culver, Texas Military Academy, San Antonio, Texas.
- Virginia—Mrs. C. R. Vaughan, 319 Mountain Ave., Roanoke, Va.
- West Virginia—Mrs. J. McD. Lacy, Elkins, W. Va.

WINSTON-SALEM PRESBYTERIAL

A Belated Report of the Meeting at North Wilkesboro, N. C., from the Local Weekly

A large number of delegates and a host of visitors attended the fifth annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Winston-Salem Presbyterial which was held in the local Presbyterian Church, Thursday and Friday. Delegates were here from the nine counties—namely, Wilkes, Ashe, Alleghany, Surry, Stokes, Yadkin, Davidson, Davie and Forsyth—which compose the Presbyterial. The local Auxiliary, of which Mrs. J. B. McCoy is president, was hostess to the church people.

The meeting got under way Thursday afternoon and continued in session until Friday night. Mrs. E. P. Gray, president of the Presbyterial, presided.

Features of the meeting here were the reports of committees, interesting lectures by a number of prominent church leaders, the election of officers and the selection of Mocksville and Cooleemee, Davie county, as the meeting place next year. The two Davie county churches will be joint hostesses to the Woman's Auxiliary, it was decided.

The visitors and delegates were especially delighted with the reception and splendid hospitality shown by the North Wilkesboro Presbyterians. A large number were guests during the entire meeting, while many attended only a single session.

The invocation was spoken by Rev. C. W. Robinson, venerable pastor of the local church, words of greeting were given by the hostess auxiliary president, Mrs. McCoy; response was made by Mrs. T. C. Bowie, of Jefferson, and then followed reports of the various committees and secretaries of causes.

"Stewardship" was the theme of the entire meeting, most of the speakers devoting their time to this thought. This was the subject of an interesting discussion by Rev.

North Carolina, Fayetteville, Wildwood Group, Rev. Dixon McDonald,* 21.

North Carolina, Fayetteville, Bluff Group, Rev. R. H. Poole,* 21.

North Carolina, Grancille, Oakland Group, Rev. Chester Alexander, 32.

North Carolina, Granville, Mt. Pleasant Group, Rev. R. K. Davenport, 24.

North Carolina, Granville, Spring Hill Group, Rev. C. L. Landrum, 30.

North Carolina, Mecklenburg, Huntersville, Rev. J. W. Grier, 52.

North Carolina, Granville, Sharon, Rev. C. H. Little, 17.

North Carolina, Mecklenburg, Paw Creek Group, Rev. C. H. Rowan,* 27.

North Carolina, Mecklenburg, Hopewell, Rev. C. W. Sommerville, D.D.,* 36.

North Carolina, Mecklenburg, Mt. Gilead Group, Rev. J. W. Stork,* 17.

North Carolina, Mecklenburg, Steele Creek, Rev. J. M. Walker,* 17.

North Carolina, Orange, White Hill, Rev. L. T. Edgerton,* 30.

North Carolina, Orange, Glenwood, Rev. C. N. Morrison, 24.

North Carolina, Wilmington, Burgaw Group, Rev. P. L. Clark, 19.

North Carolina, Winston-Salem, Ebenezer Group, Rev. John W. Luke, 19.

North Carolina, Winston-Salem, Dan River Group, Rev. John D. Smith, 24.

North Carolina, Winston-Salem, Lansing Group, Rev. R. H. Stone, 23.

Oklahoma Indian, Old Good-land Group, Rev. R. M. Firebaugh, 50.

South Carolina, Bethel, Beth Shiloh Group, Rev. H. D. Corbett, 29.

South Carolina, Bethel, Bethel Group, Rev. A. H. Key, 27.

South Carolina, Piedmont, Roberts Group, Rev. J. A. Clotgelter,* 17.

J. R. McGregor, of Lexington, who talked of "Stewardship In Our Presbytery."

At the evening session Mrs. C. M. Norfleet, a former president, conducted the devotional service. Then followed reports by secretaries, Miss Ellen Robinson and Mrs. C. M. Norfleet.

Outstanding at this session was a lecture on the "Stewardship of Money," by Dr. J. H. Henderlite, of Gastonia. It was highly inspirational and helpful to the large number present.

One of the features of the entire two days was the "Bible Hour" conducted by Mrs. J. S. Poindexter, of Chattanooga, Tenn. Mrs. Poindexter had charge of three hours during the several sessions, and her method of instruction, her pointed illustrations and learned talks were unusually interesting and helpful to the church women.

Friday morning after reports, Mrs. R. T. Faucette, of Chattanooga, Tenn., lectured on "Our Standard." As were many others of the lectures, her speech was very inspirational.

Reports were made at this session by the following: Miss Lillian Fleming, Presbyterial and Synodical Missions; Mrs. R. D. Grier, secretary orphanage work; Mrs. Irving Graham, secretary Glade Valley; Mrs. R. H. Stone, chairman Woman's work of Winston-Salem Presbytery.

At noon Friday, the local auxiliary was hostess to about 150 delegates and visitors at a luncheon given at the hut. A delightful dinner had been prepared and a splendid hour was enjoyed.

Two lectures were the features of the Friday afternoon session, these being "The King's Highway" by Miss Sue Haley, of Atlanta, Ga., and "Mustard Seed Development" by Miss Myrtle Williamson. Mrs. Poindexter had charge of the Bible hour.

Reports of conferences were as follows: Mrs. J. B. Johnston and Mrs. J. F. McNeely, synodical auxiliary; Mrs. J. D. Spinks, group conferences.

Standing committees reports: Mrs. J. B. Johnston, finance; Mrs. J. R. Finley, organization; Mrs. J. E. McNeely, place of meeting; Mrs. James Adderton, nominating.

The installation of officers for the next two years took place at the Friday night session, this being in charge of Rev. C. W. Robinson. A lecture, "Brazil," by C. C. Knight, or Lavras, Brazil, and the presentation of "Our Neighbor's Need," a pageant by the hostess auxiliary, brought one of the most successful meetings in the history of the Presbyterial to a close.

Officers of the Presbyterial are: Mrs. E. P. Gray, president; Mrs. Paul Raper, vice-president; Mrs. J. W. Hamner, treasurer; Mrs. J. P. Price, recording secretary; Mrs. E. G. Finley, secretary Assembly's Home Mission; Mrs. M. W. Norfleet, secretary Synodical and Presbyterial Home Mission; Mrs. R. H. Stone, secretary Young People Work; Mrs. Irving Graham, secretary Glade Valley; Mrs. R. D. Grier, secretary Orphanage Work; Miss Louise Wyne, secretary Christian Social Service; Mrs. T. B. Bailey, historian.

South Carolina, Bethel, Bethesda Group, Rev. W. G. Somerville, 20.

South Carolina, Congaree, Rowan Group, Rev. B. H. Franklin, 23.

Texas, Western Texas, Community Group, Rev. J. L. Davis, 20.

Virginia, East Hanover, Brunswick Group, Rev. M. B. Heizer, 17.

Virginia, East Hanover, Bethany Group, Rev. Abner Robertson, 19.

Virginia, East Hanover, Fairfield, Student Harold Dudley, 22.

Virginia, Lexington, New Providence, Rev. C. Morton Hanna,* 19.

Virginia Lexington, Ruddle Group, Rev. Leslie H. Patterson,* 27.

Virginia, Lexington, Timber Ridge, Rev. T. Henry Patterson, 23.

Virginia, Lexington, Bethel, Rev. H. S. Turner, D.D., 23.

Virginia, Lexington, Williamsville Group, Student Barclay Walthall, 20.

Virginia, Montgomery, Jacksonville Group, Rev. R. Gamble,* 33.

Virginia, Montgomery, Piedmont Group, Rev. Roy Smith, 40.

Virginia, Potomac, Mitchell Group, Rev. Thos. W. Hooper, D.D., 17.

Virginia, Potomac, Catocin Group, -----, 18.

Virginia, Roanoke, Douglas Group, Rev. T. W. Devane,* 22.

Rev. Roanoke, Spring Garden Group, Rev. D. N. Yarbrow,* 17.

Virginia, West Hanover, South Plains Group, Rev. R. M. Carr, 27.

Virginia, Winchester, Berryville Group, Rev. J. M. Carr, 18.

Virginia, Winchester, Duckwall Group, Rev. Geo. H. Rector, 27.

*Ministers who received 17 or more on profession of faith last year.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

(Continued from page 5)

that had been used in this connection was regarded as an act of worship. For Daniel no doubt it was a question of principle, but more than that religion and nationality were at stake. Yet it was dangerous to refuse. It would mean no doubt the end of any hope of advancement in the Babylonian empire. If the refusal to carry out the royal instructions would have endangered the life of the chief of the eunuchs, much more would it have put his life in jeopardy. It is hard too for a young lad to be 'different' from his fellows. Thus the great temptation was presented to Daniel, off at college, away from the restraining influence of home and church, to conform to the customs of a heathen land.

III. Daniel's Purpose—1:8-14

Risking the scorn of his companions, and the wrath of his masters, Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with the king's dainties (R. V.), nor with the wine which he drank. It would be far better to live on simple food than to feast on the dainties sent from the king; he had the good sense to see that if he were to rise in the kingdom it must be with a clear head and a pure heart and that wine is the deadly enemy of both; in any case he would be true to the national ideals of Israel, and above all true to Israel's God. But note this: "Daniel was not arrogant and self-assertive in his fidelity. There was no parade of conscientiousness. 'He requested of the prince of the eunuchs that he might not defile himself.' He was very modest and courteous in taking his stand. Most men who are unbending in their loyalty to God and to His Word spoil it all by their Pharisaical parade of their fidelity to conscience. How seldom it is that a spotless puritanism and a sweet reasonableness go hand in hand." The prince of the eunuchs however did not dare to grant his request. Daniel gathered nonetheless that he did not view his request unfavorably, though he declined the responsibility of acceding to it himself. He applied therefore to the subordinate officer who had the immediate charge of himself and his companions, and induced him to try them temporarily on a vegetable (pulse) diet, with water to drink instead of wine. The test was to extend over a period of ten days, and if at the end of that time favorable results were not apparent the procedure would be changed.

IV. The Results of Daniel's Purpose—1:15—2:1-49

When the ten days were ended it was seen that the countenances of Daniel and his three friends were fairer and they were fatter in flesh than all the youths that did eat of the king's dainties. We are not told that this result was due to a miracle of any sort. Most likely it was the natural result of a temperate diet. Daniel had won his point. The final test came at the end of the three years of special training. The graduates of the royal academy were brought before the King. The four Jewish youths were found to be distinguished beyond all the others in wisdom and knowledge, Daniel being skilled particularly in the interpretation of visions and dreams. Therefore 'stood they before the King,' i. e. they became his personal attendants. "As this gave free access to his presence it involved a position not only of high honor but of great influence. And their superiority stood the test of time. Whenever the king consulted them on matters which required wisdom and understanding he found them not only better, but 'ten times better' than all the magicians and astrologers that were in all his realm."

One illustration of Daniel's skill, the next step in his rise to power in the Babylonian Empire, is given in chapter 2. To understand this story we need to remember that in the eastern world, "dreams were believed to be portents, significant as conveying the will of the gods, and therefore not to be disregarded. The practice of employing astrologers and diviners whose business was the interpretation of dreams and other omens, prevailed throughout antiquity, and was still in vogue until recent years in the courts of Oriental princes." Now it so happened that Nebuchadnezzar dreamed a dream that greatly perplexed and troubled him. The next morning he sent at once for the men who had been trained to interpret dreams and to give auguries, the magicians, the astrologers, the sorcerers, and the Chaldeans (used here as a technical term for magician or sorcerer). They stood ready to interpret the dream, but unfortunately the king had forgotten what he dreamed. He demanded that his wise men recall the dream, and then interpret it, promising them great rewards if they succeeded, threatening them with ignominious death if they failed. This seems manifestly unfair, but probably Nebuchadnezzar reasoned that if the diviners really had the power to interpret dreams, they ought to be able to discover the dream itself. "Of course the diviners were helpless. Their profession gave these wise men great cleverness in finding meanings for dreams that could be recalled, as with modern fortune tellers. But beyond this they could not go. Their only recourse was to put off the matter till it should be forgotten, or some method devised to satisfy the king. But the mood of Nebuchadnezzar was peremptory and the edict went forth for their execution." Fortunately however Daniel stood on good terms with the captain of the guard, and through him secured a personal interview with the king. He succeeded in gaining from him some time for an attempt to solve the mystery. He then sought the help of his three friends, and they all unitedly prayed to God for light as the only means of saving their own lives, as well as the lives of the other wise men. Their petitions were heard; the king's dream was made known to Daniel and in overflowing gratitude he poured out his soul to God in a great prayer of thanksgiving. He then went to Arioch, the captain of the guard, and informed him that the decree of death was unnecessary, and that he was ready to make known the royal secret. Arioch took him at once to the king. Nebuchadnezzar asked him if he could indeed reveal the mystery. Daniel replied that the thing asked was beyond the power of any man, even the most gifted diviner, but there was a God who unlike the impotent deities of Babylon was able actually to reveal the deepest secrets; and from him had come the answer to the king's word. He then disclosed the dream and gave the interpretation. Nebuchadnezzar's kingdom, represented by the head of gold, would be followed by three others, the Median, the Persian, the Macedonian or Greek. Then finally Jehovah, the God of the Jews would establish his own kingdom, represented by the stone, the rule of his people in the earth, which would supersede and destroy all these world empires and endure forever.

Nebuchadnezzar acknowledged that Daniel was right in the disclosure of the dream, and accepted his interpretation. He then confessed that his God was supreme among the gods, and promoted Daniel to the double position of viceroy of the provinces and master of the royal astrologers. This was only the beginning of Daniel's eminent services to the state. As we read in 1:21 he continued even unto the first year of King Cyrus. Dr. Pusey remarks: "Simple words, but what a volume of tried faithfulness is unrolled by them. Amid all the intrigues indigenous at all times in dynasties of Oriental despotism, amid all the envy toward a foreign captive in high office as a king's councilor, amid all the troubles incidental to the insanity of the king and the murder of two of his successors, in the whole critical period for his people, Daniel continued. He was at least 84 years old at the time of his death. He had occupied high positions of state under Nebuchadnezzar, Belshazzar, Darius and Cyrus. And in spite of the numerous temptations to which his position exposed him he had remained true to the faith of his fathers.

The Lesson Applied

1. Daniel's Testing. Daniel was placed in such peculiar circumstances that it might have seemed excusable for him to have defiled himself, indeed it appeared almost inevitable. In what ways does the temptation to defile oneself come to us today? To our young people? (Teachers discuss definite problems in this connection), e. g. Is petting such a temptation? Is drinking such a temptation? In what way does it come to more mature Christians? Is the Christian who goes into politics tempted to defile himself? How? What about the Christian in business? The Christian doctor, or lawyer? What about the woman who takes part in the social activities of her community? Consider in this connection the wise words of the mother of Charles and John Wesley: "Whatever weakens your reason, impairs the tenderness of your conscience, obscures your sense of God, or takes off the relish of spiritual things, in short, whatever increases the strength and authority of your body over your mind, that thing is sin to you, however innocent it may be in itself?" Is that true? What habits of your own would fall under that category?

2. Daniel's purpose. In spite of the difficult situation in which Daniel found himself he purposed in his heart not to defile himself. "In him we have an example of steadfast fidelity to the dictates of conscience, no matter what the consequences might be; of perfect self control and unflinching courage." How far should one conform his habits to the customs of others? What should be a man's attitude toward the definite temptations considered above, the temptations to pet, to drink, to compromise in one's political or business or professional or social life, to lower one's ideals to meet the ideals of the world? What difference would it make in our life if we formed a purpose like that of Daniel for our own life? The Men's Club of the First Presbyterian Church of Nashville, Tenn, numbering 760 members, has launched a campaign for a Law Observance Pledge which has attracted considerable attention throughout the country. The "Manufacturers Record" of Baltimore, Md., under date of May 16th comments with enthusiastic favor on the plan adopted by the club. The pledge is as follows: "I promise my God, my country, and my own soul that I will neither purchase nor procure liquor in violation of law." Are you willing to sign that pledge?

3. Daniel's Success. There seems to be a clear connection in Daniel's case between his purpose in 1:8, his bodily vigor in 1:16, and his successful career which is alluded to in 1:17-21. How does a purpose not to defile oneself contribute to a man's success in life today? Does total abstinence add to one's physical and mental and spiritual efficiency? Should we not pose not to defile himself even if it seems bearing on his future?

IMPRESSIONS OF A NEW MISSION

Rev. Vernon A. Crawford

As I begin to write on this subject I have Japan as a new missionary slightly less than. In these few weeks I have had the opportunity to visit several of the larger cities, among them Nagoya, and Tokio, and also the privilege of short trips through country districts to some towns and fishing villages. So my impressions and the Japanese are many and varied.

My first impression, which still holds, is that Japan is so much like what I had expected. The first bit of Japan which came into view proached the Flowery Kingdom was a Japanese boat, miles out at sea. As I noticed its sails its graceful, tapering prow I thought with a just like the pictures I've seen! Later President McKinley steamed into the harbor, a sunny morning gave us an unusual view of the clouds that hid its base. And again Isn't that beautiful! It's just like the picture for Mount Fuji is carved or painted on so many of these objects which one sees in America.

Many other things, seen then and later, have this first impression. For instance, I had seen a land where the new and the old exist side by side. As the S. S. McKinley anchored till the Inspectors should come on board and examined with interest Japanese seamen sloping ponderous freight barges across the bay; and when I watched I was startled by the noise of a Japanese plane which swooped down out of the sky past us within a few feet of our boat. As the McKinley docked we saw on and near the pier a taxi—Ford, Chevrolet, Buick and others these the vehicles which no tourist will leave without having ridden in, the rikishas, or rickshaws, called in Japan, the kurumas.

I think my next impression of Japan was formed at the multitudes of children I saw everywhere. Playing in the streets, very brightly typical Japanese costumes, they darted about like brilliant butterflies. At first it seemed almost everywhere saw carried a baby strapped to her back, and to behold, not a few of the men, especially the women were similarly bedecked! Never have I seen so many children as there appear to be in Japan. A thought inevitably forces itself on one: How many multitudes be reached for Christ, with Christian workers so comparatively few among a multiplying millions! Would that the Emperor be soundly, joyously converted to Christ, such an event Christ might be inescapably the attention of the Emperor's myriad subjects not pray for his conversion and that he might have courage to publish it abroad?

Another impression, closely linked with that by the multitudes of children, is one of the schools of Japan. Everywhere one sees schools, modern schools, even in villages where the buildings are generally of wood; but cent re-inforced concrete structures in the increasingly so elsewhere. Her many school buildings, where the explanation of the Japanses is that the population is so densely packed that the percentage of the population said by many to surpass that of the United States. Before coming to Japan I had heard who says have not—that Japan, as well as being Cherry Blossoms, was like China a land of flowers. It is certainly true that I have passed places where there is a sense of smell would have been a surprise? But in the main, despite the methods used and numbers of open drains, I have been surprised at the comparative absence of the odor which I had been warned were so prevalent.

Traffic in Japan both presses upon and irritates. In the cities they have their traffic "cops" pedestrians and vehicles with more or less order. Indeed, at one street intersection I saw traffic all directing the average traffic of the day roads, in villages and smaller towns, traffic is to "run wild." I marvel that many, especially in the cities, are not killed every day. Yet very seldom injured. Of course, since this is the Oriental side of the street to drive on is the left side, the right, as at home. But really, either side will do, if one can find room enough to maneuver. Automobiles are quite numerous here, but the most popular vehicle is the bicycle. Not a day goes by that I do not see a bicycle. They are to be seen. Carts are occasionally drawn quite frequently by men or women. A funny and amusing vehicle is the baby carriage pushed by men or women, but seldom with the child. Most generally they are used for bundles; yet once or twice I have seen them used for children.

I have been learning, too, how reasonable it is not to insist on the customs Americans are so fond of. The Japanese doors, for instance, slide on rollers, and ours swing on hinges. Their way of saving space; ours wastes it. We wear leather shoes of various types, often cramping and deforming the feet. The Japanese wear usually—though leather shoes are increasingly worn—wooden shoes of various types which allow the feet to develop naturally. We learn on our feet when we enter the house, often the best efforts to prevent it, tracking in dirt. Japanese remove their shoes upon entering a room, and as a result their homes are the more comfortable. We wonder why the Japanese wear such styles of dress in general appearance like kimonos of various colors.

(Continued on page 11)

LDREN

BOYS GO CANOEING

...some trip!
 ...tell you about it, because
 ...go canoeing yourself, you
 ...hat to expect. Walt Mc-
 ...h me, and about half-way
 ...er, just before the water
 ...the bow of the canoe in-
 ...e said:
 ...an say that I've been a
 ...is trip."
 ...he hadn't! There were a
 ...Walt didn't like and when
 ...e them them he said so.
 ...oesn't make a fellow a

...ne canoe filled with water
 ...tting on the bottom with
 ...ning by us, I thought sure
 ...to say something mean,
 ...even grumble.
 ...admitted that it was his

...ve to make camp right
 ...d. "All our things are wet
 ...ome of them are lost."
 ...ged our canoe ashore and
 ...r the night, Walter said:
 ...ing our temper about it,
 ...our food is gone, so I'll
 ...rocks and fish while my
 ...ying. You cut some wood
 ...ig fire."

...e the sun went down we
 ...ry and comfortable again,
 ...d three big fish ready to
 ...elt fine while in the pan
 ...ready for them. But just
 ...wn to eat them a man got
 ...boat and came over to

...s," he said; "but you are
 ...roperty and I'll have to ask
 ...your camp to some other

...we can't stay here until
 ...eried Walt.

...was the reply. "I wish I
 ...boys, but those are or-
 ...st obey them."

...we stay until we've had
 ...ou hurry. Say—what are
 ...yway?"

...hat kind of fish?"
 ...ow," said Walt. "I caught
 ...iver."

...are what we call mess-
 ...are not good to eat.
 ...ke you sick for weeks."
 ...ly glad we found that
 ...alt, lifting up the frying
 ...ng the fish away. "Well,
 ...y; let's load our canoe
 ...is private land."

...started to look for an-
 ...g site the sun had gone
 ...g heavy clouds coming
 ...made the twilight short-
 ...than usual.

...er done any night canoe-
 ...ange rivers before" re-
 ...I wonder if there are
 ...his stretch."

...ow," I said. "I only know
 ...ry."

...ense in losing your tem-
 ...t.

...ng my temper and I be-
 ...so; but before I was
 ...d a sharp ripping sound
 ...the bottom of our canoe,
 ...right away that we had
 ...framework of an old eel

...ng!" I cried.

...a leak, sure enough," was
 ...ppose you bail out while
 ...nk we can keep the out-
 ...we find a place to camp.
 ...a tough night; but no
 ...g mad."

...h him and began to bail
 ...The leak wasn't very big
 ...ough to keep me busy.
 ...ave kept the bottom of
 ...y dry if the rain hadn't

...was only a drizzle, then
 ...larger and finally they

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color.)

Here is BROWN-haired Teddy and YELLOW-haired Susie May riding on the YELLOW new moon. They are having a wonderful time up in the dark BLUE night sky. Teddy is pointing down at the GRAY (use BLACK lightly) slate roof of his house. You can see the tall RED chimney, too and the PINK (use RED lightly) peaked side with a GREEN shuttered window. The tree tops in the back are GREEN and there is a large YELLOW star near the trees.

Teddy wears a PINK nightie and Susie May wears a White one but she has little RED slippers on her feet.

"Oh, what fun to see things from the sky!" says Susie May.

But, of course, the picture is a "let's pretend" one and Teddy and Susie May often go on trips that way. There is a YELLOW light in the window and the curtains have PINK ruffles.

Susie May and Teddy have PINK cheeks and RED lips.

The border of this picture can be colored PURPLE and the lettering can be GREEN.

were coming down in sheets. I knew that we'd sink pretty soon if we didn't make for shore, so I shouted to Walt to turn in toward the bank and get under the trees, where the water wouldn't pour in the canoe quite so rapidly. But Walt couldn't carry out my suggestion even if he wanted to; for at that moment, we entered one of the dangerous "rifts," of which this river has many, and sped into the swift white water with an almost sickening speed.

"Watch out for rocks, Walt!" I shouted, bailing furiously at the same time. "Gee—they are as sharp as knives in these rifts, and if we ever hit one we're finished!"

I knew there was nothing, but when a fellow is cold, hungry and wet and dashing in the rain through rapids in a leaky canoe, he gets excited quicker than he should.

Somehow we got below the rift without hitting any of the rocks, but instead we hit worse. We grounded on a mud flat and stuck so firmly that we couldn't work ourselves loose, no matter how hard we tried. Of course, hitting a rock would have torn a hole in the bottom of the canoe big enough to fall through, but we would have had the hard pebbly bottom to walk ashore on instead of the soft, oozy mud.

"This gets my goat," I said, as I climbed over the side of the canoe and sank into the mire up to my thighs.

"Well, you could sit in the canoe all night, if you wanted to," said Walt. "But there wouldn't be any sense in that. No use growling, either."

"Well, I wasn't growling, and I began to tell him so, but just then he saw a light on the shore.

"Let's make for it," he suggested. "It's a house and maybe the people who live there will let us stay all night."

We struggled ashore and walked toward the house, getting colder and hungrier every minute. We couldn't get any wetter. Just as we got inside the front gate a large dog came around the corner of the house and ran at us, barking fiercely.

"Run for the barn," cried Walt; and we did, the dog chasing us. We got up the ladder to the loft just in time to escape being bitten.

"That was a narrow one!" I said, breathing hard. "I forgot all about there being a dog! Now they'll think we are burglars!"

"No sense in getting—"

But Walt did not finish his statement because a man came into the barn with a shot gun.

"Whoever you are up in that hay loft, come down at once, or you'll be sorry."

"We'll come down, mister," Walt told him; and we did.

"Why, you are only two boys!" he exclaimed, in surprise. "What are you doing around here at this time of the night?"

We told him our story and followed him into the house.

"Mary," he called out to somebody who was in the kitchen. "Make some ham and eggs for two hungry boys and bring in some dry clothes."

At the word clothes, both of us looked down at our cheap cotton trousers and shirts. Mine had shrunk so much that the cuffs of my pants were half-way up to my knees and the collar of my shirt was almost choking me.

Walt's clothes were the same way.

I tore my neck front open and began to laugh. Walt said: "This is terrible. Gee—I can stand lots of things, but look at my new trousers and shirt! Wait until I get get back home and tell something to that fellow who sold them to me! Imagine clothes shrinking like this? Gee—what a life!"

"Dear me, boy," said the lady, coming out of the kitchen. "You really shouldn't be so ill-natured!"

After all we had been through, that remark made me smile. I turned to Walt and said:

"Sure, Walt. What's the sense in being grouchy?"

And he agreed with me and laughed.

Puzzles on page 14

Fun For Little Folks

A few of the pictures which are printed in the Standard weekly on this page are being published in loose-leaf pamphlet form. Each pamphlet contains twelve different pictures to be colored by the little folks with crayon or paints.

These pamphlets will be ideal for use in Daily Vacation Schools, Sunday Schools and the nursery of the home. The little folks will enjoy coloring the pictures and it will furnish a fine medium for the teacher or mother to instruct their children in the art of drawing and the value of color.

PRICES
(Cash with Order)

100 Books	-----	$7.00
50 Books	-----	4.00
25 Books	-----	2.25
10 Books	-----	1.10
5 Books	-----	.60
1 Book	-----	.15

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

CHURCH NEWS

DR. B. E. WALLACE DEAD

Rev. B. E. Wallace, D.D., pastor of Moore Memorial Church, Nashville, Ten., died suddenly of heart failure in Nashville on June 12. Simple funeral services were conducted in Memorial Church by Dr. James I. Vance on June 14, and the remains were taken for interment to Huntington, West Virginia, the former home of Mrs. Wallace.

Doctor Wallace, before coming to Nashville, had held pastorates in Wilmington, N. C., Paris, Texas, and elsewhere. His pastorate in Nashville had lasted seven years and under his ministry the church prospered greatly.

He was brought up in the congregation of the famous Soddy Church near Chattanooga which has given such a large number of ministers to the Church, most of them bearing the name of Wallace and being kinsmen. Doctor Wallace was widely respected in Nashville and greatly beloved by the members of the Church he served. He died in the prime of vigor and service.

He had the qualities of a genial and magnetic personality that bound friends to him by strong and enduring ties.

The week following his death a memorial service was held in the church at which representatives from other churches and communions testified to his power and influence as a faithful Gospel preacher, and to the high esteem in which he was held by the people of Nashville.

In addition to brothers and sisters, Doctor Wallace is survived by his widow and one son, Raymond Wallace, who resides in Nashville.

One of the Nashville papers published the following editorial:

Dr. B. E. Wallace

Death, even when we have some warning of its approach, comes as a shock to family and friends. It is the more difficult to be reconciled to its visit when there is no premonition of its approach. The sudden passing away of Dr. B. E. Wallace, pastor of Moore Memorial Presbyterian Church, will be a severe loss to his denomination, to the city of Nashville and to hundreds who knew and loved the man. He had been a minister of his church for thirty years and had labored with tireless zeal for the advancement of Christian faith and ideals. He was entirely consecrated to the cause which he served. He never had any other ambition than to preach the gospel of Jesus Christ. Truly he spoke the truth in love, for his was a gospel of love.

Possessing a most attractive personality, endowed with marked intellectual gifts and a tireless worker, Doctor Wallace had made notable contributions to his Church during his long ministry. His genial manner, his readiness always to render a service, the tender and sympathetic interest which he manifested toward all who were troubled, made him one of the most beloved ministers in Nashville. Under his leadership the Moore Memorial Church prospered greatly. He inspired and directed the organization of every department of the Church. He was a good preacher and his members testified their appreciation and understanding of him by the manner in which they always responded to every call or suggestion that he made.

While Doctor Wallace was above all things a minister of Christ, he was never indifferent to his obligation as a citizen. He was active in civic club and community enterprises. He served his church in its business organization with the same fidelity and ability that marked his career as pastor. While a man of strong convictions he was tolerant of the opinions of others. He accorded to those who disagreed with him the same sincerity which he had. He believed in a religion of love and of joy. It never entered his head that there was anything in the gospel which he proclaimed that required one to take a doleful view of life. He made good his professions by the deeds that he did. Men like Doctor Wallace not only exert a powerful influence in life but their memories will continue to be a source of inspiration to those whom they have touched after the spirit has left the flesh.

MRS. GEORGE F. ROBERTSON

Mrs. Mattie Lynn Robertson, wife of the Rev. George F. Robertson, of Mt. Holly, N. C., passed away after a long and painful illness at her home, on July 11. She had spent eight weeks in the Presbyterian Hospital, but had returned home when the end came. She was buried at Steel Creek cemetery where with her husband she had served this famous old country church, and had won for herself as well as for her husband the devotion and admiration of a wide circle. And this she repeated in the various charges where her honored husband accepted service.

Later we will have a longer obituary notice. We extend to the bereaved husband and his children, nearly all now grown and married, the deepest sympathy, and point them to the consolations their loved one has so often offered to grieving souls.

NORTH CAROLINA

Buffalo, Greensboro—This Church recently put on its first Summer Bible School, which ran two weeks, June 17-28. The curriculum used was the all-Bible course, as sponsored by the Summer Bible School Association, of Chester, Penn. Before starting, some doubted that an all-Bible school, with no handcraft or other special appeal could be made interesting enough to hold the children. But that it can be done was abundantly proven. Interest, and enthusiasm even, were very marked from the first day, and continued to the last. We not only held all the pupils we started with, but also added new ones, even in the second week.

The awards for work done, crosses, stars, crescents, etc., with name and grade of each pupil, were placed on a framed board about 3x8 feet, neatly lettered in colors, in the vestibule of the church, where all could see it. This proved a great stimulus to interest and an incentive to harder work. Every one pronounces our school a decided success. It was indeed gratifying to see how much memorizing of the Bible, catechisms, Bible history, geography, etc., the pupils accomplished in the two weeks. We would recommend this all-Bible curriculum most heartily. It magnifies the Bible in the eyes of the pupil and brings him to see that it is not only the most important book in the world, but also the most interesting, because the Bible itself, and the Saviour it portrays, are exalted and held before the pupil every day of the school and even every hour, in various ways. This course originated with Dr. A. L. Lathem, pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Chester, Penn., 17 year ago, and he and his church are still "headquarters" of the Association, though the course is now used all over the United States, and in churches of almost all denominations.

A. P. Dickson, Pastor.

Trinity Avenue, Durham—June 16th the pastor, Rev. Geo. L. Cooper reviewed the progress of the work for the past five years before a large congregation. The progress was indeed gratifying. Seven were received into the church on this date, four by letter and three on profession.

The Hickory Church has just had a very happy experience. This is the first year that a Daily Vacation Bible School has been held in this church. From June 19-through June 29, the regular teaching force of the Sunday School under the leadership of Mr. J. L. Henderson, Supt., and Mrs. George E. Bisaner, Director, Miss Rosa Lee Dixon, Jun. Supt., Miss Fannie Dixon, Supt. Primary, and Mrs. George W. Hall, Supt. Beginners, conducted a splendid school. Miss Rachel Henderson, of Mooresville, N. C., a recent graduate of the Assembly's Training School, rendered valuable assistance by meeting the teachers before the school was set up, and helping with plans for it.

Beginning with June 24, evangelistic services were conducted concurrently with the school. Rev. W. R. Pritchett, of Olanta, S. C., assisted the pastor in these services. He addressed the school each morning at the regular worship period. Mr. Pritchett went to Olanta from the church at Indiantown, S. C., where he did a monumental work. When he left that old country church which is located nineteen miles from town, every department of its life was in a thriving condition. He is a strong preacher, a splendid organizer, a faithful pastor, and a most winsome and manly Christian. He very greatly endeared himself to the Hickory people during his brief stay amongst them.

A very interesting feature of the services was the singing of Mr. J. B. Short of Granite Falls, who is a member of the Hickory Church. He directed the singing most acceptably.

Presbyterian Orphans' Home, Barium Springs—Communion of the Lord's Supper was observed at Little Joe's Church the first Sunday in July. The service was in charge of our beloved pastor, Rev. W. C. Brown. At this service seven of our young people were received into the church. Mr. Jos. B. Johnston and his four boys spent a few days in Montreat last week, where Mr. Johnston attended the educational conference.

Glade Valley High School—Supt. E. B. Eldridge has just returned from Montreat where he attended the educational conference. He reports a very interesting meeting.

Glade Valley has a real live C. E. Society this summer. Last Sunday night the school auditorium was full with one hundred and sixty-six present.

Mrs. Ellen Parks has charge of the Summer boarding departments and visitors are expected from five or six states.

Fayetteville, First Church—A most successful Daily Vacation School was recently held in this church and was conducted entirely by the advanced members of the Senior Young People.

Kings Mountain—Our Vacation Bible School was a decided success. Our pastor, Dr. I. S. McElroy, had the enthusiastic co-operation of an excellent corps of teachers and helpers. The school was continued for two weeks of six days each and three hours each day, making thirty-six hours. There were about ninety children in three departments. Their interest increased from the first day to the last hour. They did good work and stood the "tests" on the final day to the credit of themselves and their teachers. The V. B. S. is a worth while institution.

Harmony—Rev. F. A. Barnes, of Micaville, N. C., has accepted calls from a group of churches on Concord Presbytery consisting of Harmony, Bethany, Tabor and Shiloh, and he is expected to arrive in his new field this week. Mr. Barnes has been located in seven this Presbytery, and when he gets away, the desire to call him back to this Presbytery. excellent wife are devoted workers and glad to welcome them to Harmony, where the their homes.

The Pinehurst Church is to have a beautiful soon. The congregation has worshipped in the city House since the organization of the Church ago. The new plant is commodious and most particular. It is of the lovely colonial type, of Harry Barton, the architect, and when cost upwards of ($100,000.00) one hundred dollars and will be one of the finest church sections of the state.

Some facts released by the Building Committee, Sledge, General Chairman, show the rapidity of this unique work in this unique village. The church was organized just nine years ago as a Mission of Fayetteville Presbytery and was under the leadership of W. L. Wilson for two or three years as stated then it was served by Rev. G. W. Hanna as pastor for a few months. In 1925, when the church was years old, with the aid of Mr. Leonard T. Mission Boards of Fayetteville Presbytery and of North Carolina, a full time pastor was called.

On May 31, 1925, Rev. Murdoch McLeod was called and installed as the first pastor of the little church. At the end of the first year the congregation numbered 100. In 1926, the church was organized to assume the responsibilities of a self-sustaining church, thus relieving the Mission Boards of their financial obligations. According to the figures recently published during this four year period the church budget increased from about $1,000 to nearly $6,000; a new church was purchased; lots valued at $7,000 donated to the church, nearly $60,000 raised for the new church building; increase in the church school enrollment from about 50 to over 200.

Being the only organized Protestant church in the village, it has become a "Community Church" in the sense of the word, having on its roll representatives of ten different denominations. It has proved to be the Presbytery's best Home Mission investment. The present facilities for carrying on the work are long outgrown and with the erection of the new church work on which will start probably in September, the possibilities for the immediate future seem to be very bright. This vigorous young church in this rapidly growing community.

Blowing Rock—Unusual interest in all departments of the work of the church is being manifested in Blowing Rock. In the spring a meeting was held at the home of Walter K. Keys resulting in ten additions to the church. The Sunday School has set a high average for the year, and an active Christian Endeavor has been organized. The church has been remodelled, and made most inviting and attractive. A memorial window will be placed in the front of the church to honor Rev. Edgar Tufts, pastor of the church for a quarter of a century. The calendar of services for the summer includes some outstanding ministers of the church. Rev. Vance will preach the last Sunday of July, the second and third Sundays of August. The services of August will be Orphanage Day, and on that day, the Communion of the Lord's Supper will be served. All summer visitors to Blowing Rock are cordially invited to make this their church spiritual rendezvous. The doors of the church are open to all. The Grey Church on the Mountain Top—are new.

Roan Valley—High up on the side of the Mountain in Mitchell County, N. C., is the little cove known as Roan Valley. In this community seventy-five and one hundred people live. A revival meeting was held in the little schoolhouse here by K. Keys as a result of which a petition was sent to the Presbytery signed by twenty-five persons for the organization of a Presbyterian Church. A community workers has been built by them and an attractive church is being planned for the future.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Brewington Church—Home-Coming—A delightful meeting was held at the Church, situated some ten miles from Manti,

The usual congregation on the Sabbath day is about thirty persons but on this occasion it was about ten fold. Members of other Churches were invited to visit to their Mother Church, reviewing the work of former years and renewing their acquaintance with the loving ties, that endear them forever.

In some of families there were three generations present.

There were four pastors present, Rev. W. H. Ford, the present pastor, presided, Rev. W. H. Ford, pastor from 1886-1894, spoke upon the occasion of his pastorate, Rev. W. H. Mills, D.D., him as pastor, preached a very interesting text, "Blessed are they that sow beside the water, that shall send forth the seed of the ox and the ass, and shall sow to farmers. Rev. R. L. Grier preached

W. H. Mills spoke briefly, again. Messages from Elder R. B. Talton, of Florence was read in Brewington and from Mr. [unclear], likewise a son of this Church, but in Greenville, S. C., were appreciated, all lengthen the old cords that bind their hearts and assuring the present members of love and interest in the old church, the their fathers.

At noon were devoted to a renewal of social ties and partaking of an enjoyable served on the grounds, under the friendly trees.

As on wings and the hour came when good wishes were spoken reluctantly and their faces homeward. Hoping to meet again.

ALABAMA

First Church—Commencement exercises of Vacation Bible School were held Friday 5th. The large audience present expressed of the inspiring program and the splendid had been done during the past two weeks direction of Miss Esther Knudson, a the Assembly's Training School.

Those were enrolled in the school. Mrs. M. A. Mrs. F. C. Clapp conducted the Beginners Mrs. J. L. Scott, wife of the pastor, and Cade taught the primary department. Miss Miss Margaret Jean Brown had charge s. Others who assisted were: Mrs. A. B. Nan Thomas and Miss Florence Thomas. and girls enjoyed the school, and the church have been greatly benefitted.

First Church—At the communion of the on the first Sunday in July, Rev. Neill G. presented the names of six members received at quarter. Rev. V. A. Anderson, a mission- from Africa, delivered a helpful address in the Congo at the morning worship and g hour spoke in the Central Presbyterian

ARKANSAS

A two weeks' revival meeting was re- cted in the East Second Avenue Pres- ch by Rev. E. L. Wilson, the synodical of the state of Arkansas, and Rev. J. B. l director. Splendid results were achieved sessions were made during the meeting. e were featured by chorus singing of a d with a membership of more than one ren who responded enthusiastically to p of Dr. Wilson and Mr. Green. The preceded by a religious census of the and members of many denominations her to make the revival the best that d in this church for many years.

MISSIONS OF A NEW MISSIONARY

(Continued from page 8)
Explanation is simple. They use very little for heating purposes, and their clothes very comfortable but also very warm. I do intimate that I think the Japanese way of always, or even half of the time, as good mental way; I only aim to show that the just as good reasons to them for doing ay, as we have for doing things our way. pression not to be escaped is the economic which the Japanese exist. When one has untry women and men drawing carts like shing a wooden plow in the fields; when old women in the city cleaning off theilding in process of being wrecked; when he small fishing or freight boats which are s of many families; and when one knows rs of city buses receive less than eighty rican money for their day's work; when these and many similar conditions which one needs no further knowledge to appre- omic battle which the majority of the ce have to wage to live. Additional evi- struggle is seen in the care with which the e worked. Hill sides that an American edisdain to bother with are here carefully ultivated. So thrifty are the farmers in ir land that I have seen plots of ground e than five square yards terraced and using evidence of this economic pressure t when young boys buy the caps for their rs, which all must wear, very often they several sizes too large for them, with the growing up to fit the cap as the years ne idea is frequently, though not as com- id with regard to their school uniform.

ing to note that the Government appears al the best possible use of Japan's natural e great potential water power is being rapid- h the result that electricity for lighting is available almost everywhere. I was partic- red, too, with the reforestation program. ri mountain sides I have noticed that where a been cut, little trees had been carefully forest the cut-over area. Would that our own country were as careful of her natural resources!

In passing I cannot refrain from mentioning the tremendous recuperative power of the Japanese seem to possess. It has been less than six years since Yokohama and a considerable portion of Tokyo were destroyed by the earthquake and the ensuing fires. Today, while the scars of that catastrophe are still much in evidence especially in Yokohama, much has been rebuilt and today in these two cities a tremendous building program is everywhere visible. Moreover, the buildings under construction are of the best modern types, chiefly of reinforced concrete. Even allowing for the help which came from sympathizing nations, the capacity of the Japanese to suffer and come back again is marvellous!

However, despite the above mentioned struggle to obtain a living which is here the lot of multitudes I have been amazed at the scarcity of beggars. They are conspicuous by their absence. On the streets of Tokyo thus far I have seen only two. Many of the pilgrims who travel from place to place visiting the many shrines and temples are beggars, or certainly beg while on their pilgrimage, but on the whole Japan is one Oriental country which seems to be free from beggars and begging. Whether their absence is due to the care which members of the same family are reputed to take of one another when in distress, or whether those who would have to beg to live, choose to increase the already large number of suicides, I know not. Whatever the reason, Japan is to be congratulated that so few of her people seek a livelihood by preying on the sympathy of others.

Another surprise I have had has been caused by the large number of radio sets which are in use here. Their number can be partially estimated from the many aeri- als which are to be seen. I have been wondering if the Japanese as a people have not been hungry for music and the joy it gives. Such Japanese music as I have heard has been to me pathetic. The people impress me as being sober and sorrowful, rather than happy and joyous. And I am inclined to think that with the coming of the radio many are seeking the charms of music thus available to brighten drab lives.

And what a nation of readers these people are! Magazine and book stores are extremely numerous; and even on the tram we daily see men and women seated reading not only newspapers, but just as often magazines and books. As we go to and from our school we see them, very often, standing in a crowded car, clutching an over- head strap with one hand, while with the other they hold a magazine or book, intently reading, apparently oblivious to all that happens about them.

As a new missionary two other things have impressed me tremendously. One is the vast number of Buddhist temples and Shinto shrines which are to be seen every- where. What percentage of the population are faithful Buddhists or Shintoists I do not know, but there seem to be sufficient shrines and temples to care for the entire population. Yet how barren must their religion be! And how displeasing to God! As I write I am thinking of the scenes I saw near Tokushima, and these scenes are typical. Great idols, representing gods of Thunder and Light- ning, disfigured with spitball prayers, that is, wads of moistened paper which had been flung against the idols; the idea being, so I have been told, if the wad sticks to the idol when thrown against it the petitioner's prayer is granted; but if not, the prayer is refused. Another scene—women passing before numerous miniature shrines lining a mountain path, bowing, muttering a prayer and throwing their offering of a few grains of rice into the boxes placed at each shrine for such gifts, which are later collected by the priests. Some may tone down such scenes and call what they represent by various names—but to me there seems but one word which rightly describes these and similar scenes: idolatry, that sin against which God has been thundering through the ages, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me. Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, . . . Thou shalt not bow down thyself to them, nor serve them: for I the Lord thy God am a jealous God, . . ." And I long for the time to come when, speaking this new language, I can be used to point men to the true God through the living Christ.

In conclusion, I cannot but be cheered when I reflect upon what Christianity has accomplished in the brief period of approximately seventy years during which the Gospel has been preached in Japan. Even though as yet there are only a few hundred thousand Christians, and even though there are millions who have never yet heard a Christian sermon or seen a Christian tract, the gospel of Christ has made such progress that, in the Diet, which corresponds to our Congress, there is a considerable number of Christians, influencing national legislation and international relationships; here and there are strong Christian churches, many of which are united into an independent Japanese Church; and some of the largest colleges and universities in Japan are outstandingly Christian. Even in the earliest period of Christianity three hundred years passed before the Roman Empire capitulated before the Gospel. Here the gospel of Christ has made marvellous progress in one fifth of that time. And one new missionary at least is encouraged to press on, confident in the belief that another of the kingdoms of this world is becoming a part of the kingdom "of our Lord and of his Christ."

Visiting Cards and Stationery FREE

For a limited time we will give with each $3.00 paid on subscription to Presbyterian Standard 100 high grade printed visiting cards FREE.

SAMPLES OF TYPE

1. Miss Evelyn Smith
2. Mrs. J. B. Well
3. REV. JOSEPH BLOEGH
4. Mr. Henry C. Moore

Specify type wanted by number

With each $6.00 paid on subscription we will give 100 sheets paper and 50 envelopes to match with your name and address printed thereon.

Size of paper 6 1/4 x 7 inches. Good grade bond paper Envelopes one half size of paper.

SAMPLES OF TYPE

5. REV. M. HARVEY JONES
Charlotte, N. C.
6. S. T. HAINES, D. D.
Richmond, Va.
7. Mrs. Jackson Helms
WACO, TEX.

Specify type wanted by number

If your prefer some other type, send us a sample and we will duplicate as near as possible.

Stationery can be printed in either blue or black ink. We will use black unless otherwise specified.

Check or Money Order must be sent direct to this office to receive this offer of cards or stationery.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING CO.

P. O. Box 869

Charlotte, N. C.

COTTAGE FOR RENT
Cottage, near lake and au-
tely furnished to ac-
family of six or eight.
entire season. Rev. J. H.
Mountain, N. C.

FOR ANDS, WATCHES SILVERWARE

Write to
ALLEN AND CO.
sellers since 1855
t. Charleston, S. C.
log on request

Folk's Friend

hat many call it for m and vigor into old
rich, red blood into
sound flesh on old
rink with each meal.

Ar Ale

estive Aromatics With
neral Water & Ginger
like it for assisting
stive organs to con-
food into rich blood
flesh.

ANTA CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

The Foremost School of Music in the South
Fall session begins Monday, September 2, 1929
Summer session in June and July atalog C GEO. F. LINDNER, Director Atlanta, Georgia

SALEM COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

own nationally for 156 years' unbroken record in higher education.
life emphasizes Christian standards without denominational differ-ty-six acre campus of forest and meadow. Swimming, riding and all Our endowment pays 12 1-2 per cent. of each student's expenses, rethe annual charge to $655.00.
Accredited member Southern Association. A-Class.
A. B., B. S. and B. Music degrees with wide elective privileges.
or catalogue "A" to Pres. Howard E. Rondthaler, Winston-Salem, N. C.

VACATION TRIPS

Rail and Motor Tours

In the Southern Appalachian Mountains

In especially arranged rail and motor
tours, the Southern Railway provides a
new vacation recreation, combining rail
and motor transportation for the individual and for parties, into the mountain
sections of Virginia, North Carolina,
Eastern Tennessee and North Georgia.

These tours will take you adventuring
by rail and motor into regions of scenic beauty and historic interest. Each trip
begins and ends with a railway journey,
in which you enjoy the speed and comfort of rail travel. The motor trips are over established State highways.

For booklets, information and rates,
call on Ticket Agents.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

cance and aims of the war.

Dr. Smith was born at Greensboro, N. C., in 1859. He reaches the official retirement age this July, but was asked by the trustees of Washington and Lee University to continue in office as president until January 1, 1930.

Since coming to Washington and Lee in 1912 to take administrative charge of the institution, Doctor Smith has lived in General Robert E. Lee's former home on the campus—where the Southern chieftain died while president of the college in October, 1870.

"The money I won as prize for this balloon device," President Smith smiled, "went toward buying the first automobile I ever owned—and I was a college president, not a college student when I bought it!"—Laurinburg Exchange.

MY DREAM MOTHER

By the late Bishop Wm. A. Quayle, in Western Christian Advocate

My mother is not a memory. She is a dream. Before I knew her she had slipped away to her home with God. This is not to think she has been without pervading influence in my life.

She is a perfume very precious.

Coveting is not well spoken of in the commandments, but there is no inhibition on coveting a mother. The heart wants a mother so. Without her there is such an unmeasured lack. I have in Christian spirit coveted mothers unnumbered times. I suppose God will forgive a lonely boy for so doing, and a lonely man. All these years, whenever my eyes have seen a mother caressing her son, my heart has wanted her. May I be forgiven if I need it.

Mothers are so beautiful, and there are not enough to go around.

As a wee lad I, who had been told that my mother was out above the clouds and sun and back of all the stars, learned to love the blue sky and the clouds driven by the winds lying on my back looking whither my mother had gone. My mother taught me the beauty of sky and cloud. I did not then know that Jesus had a cloud take him into its hiding. A lonesome, little, motherless boy wanting his mother who had left him, but had not forgotten him, had his tutelage in love of nature by one "enski'd and sainted." Thus she has ever beckoned. I have seen her hand waving me upward all these golden years.

This poem written years ago by me had the drift of tears across its windowpanes, and is put here for as much as it holds in its tear-wet hands her sea story and her mountain story.

MOTHER

Before I knew her she had trod
Across the rare celestial blue,
To make her dwelling-place with God,
Amidst the morning and the dew.

A fair, sweet face, my father said,
A witchery, of woman worth.
A golden glory crowned her head;
Her heart was eager for my birth.

Her eyes were solemn, wonder-lit,
With dreamful love, a steady look
That gazed straight on and up, and fit
For faith and sunrise and the Book.

A woman far removed, at death,
Across wide seas, from native land;
And at life's eventide a breath
From mountain heights her spirit fanned.

Besides the sea her girlhood dwelt,
Where sea-sands spread and sea-cliffs clomb;
And on the cliffs the heather smelt,
And sea-wrecks fed the fires at home.

Her dimming eyes dwelt on the hills,
Which climbed to snowy heights sublime.

A mountain peace her spirit fills,
The hours she drifts from shores of time.

She looked my father in the face,
With look he dreamed on till he died.

And said she loved him, and that grace
Would set her with the glorified.

She looked at me, her early born,
With skies of love in her sweet eyes—

"I wait for him in the far morn,
The timeless morn of Paradise."

Her hands fell, wandering, on my face
Like a beatitude; and awed,

She gently prayed a moment's space—
And so stepped out to dwell with God.

Nor know I yet my mother's look;
Nor have I felt my mother's kiss;
But shall some daytime cross the brook,
And press her mother lips in bliss.

The brook is death; beyond lies life;
Its holy meadows sown to stars.

There mother dwells, where nothing dies,
Nor aught the age-long glory mars.

She loveth still her little lad;
Nor is she aught in love remiss;
But will some happy day be glad
To give to him his morning kiss.

M^cCALLIE SCHOOL for BOYS

Historically located on Missionary Ridge. In view of renowned Look-out Mountain.

An outstanding school in the South.
Thorough preparation for College and Technical Schools.

Small classes. Individual Instruction. Strong Faculty. Christian Training. Military Drill. Honor System.

Complete modern equipment. Concrete swimming pool. Gymnasium. 40 Acre Campus. Lake. Rate $800.

Summer Session—July and August
With Camp Features

Write for illustrated catalog to

The Headmaster, Box P
Chattanooga Tennessee

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE DECATUR, GA.

Strict entrance requirements, but few failures after admission. Somewhat expensive, but cheap in comparison with advantages offered. No loafers expected, but also none without capacity to enjoy almost unlimited good times. For details as to admission, scholarship aid, etc address

PRESIDENT J. R. McCAIN
Box 5

MITCHELL COLLEGE. AN ACCREDITED STANDARD JUNIOR COLLEGE FOR YOUNG WOMEN.

Small classes, strong faculty, Christian training; special courses in pipe organ, voice, piano, home economics, and commercial subjects. Rates reasonable. For catalogue address:

MRS. W. B. RAMSAY, President Statesville, N. C.

1854 WOFFORD COLLEGE 1929 Spartanburg, S. C.

A Christian College for the Higher Education of young Men. Offering Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts Degrees. Pre-Medical, Pre-Engineering, Pre-Law Courses. Courses in Education and Religion.

Long and honorable history of education service. Strong Faculty. Large Library. Well equipped Laboratories. Ample dormitory facilities. Voluntary R. O. T. C. Unit. Athletic grounds. All forms of inter-collegiate athletics. Next session begins for new students Tuesday, September 10; for other students Wednesday, September 17. Write for 1929 catalogue to

HENRY M. SNYDER, President

MEREDITH COLLEGE

For YOUNG WOMEN

STANDARD COURSES IN ARTS AND SCIENCES, IN MUSIC,
IN ART, IN HOME ECONOMICS

Confers the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Music. Delightful environment on a high plateau on the western boundary of North Carolina's Capital City.

Room reservations are now being made for session 1929-30.
For catalogue or further information write

CHAS. E. BREWER, President
Raleigh, N. C.

It May Be Urgent

When your Children Cry for It

Castoria is a comfort when Baby is fretful. No sooner taken than the little one is at ease. If restless, a few drops soon bring contentment. No harm done, for Castoria is a baby remedy, meant for babies. Perfectly safe to give the youngest infant; you have the doctors' word for that! It is a vegetable product and you could use it every day. But it's in an emergency that Castoria means most. Some night when constipation must be relieved—or colic pains—or other suffering. Never be without it; some mothers keep an extra bottle, unopened, to make sure there will always be Castoria in the house. It is effective for older children, too; read the book that comes with it.

WANTED

Position as Young People's Worker. Graduate of Assembly's Training School—Years of experience.

Care Smith—Station A
Charleston, W. Va.

NISBET LODGE
Montreat, on Lookout Road, 300 yards from Auditorium on same street, offers excellent fare and comfortable rooms. Special rates to parties.

HARRIS FRESH WATER SYSTEMS

Private water supply systems for suburban and farm homes, schools, hotels, churches, clubs, filling stations, industrial plants. Fresh cool water under pressure. No frozen pumps or tanks. No greasy machinery about the well. Automatic electric or engine drive. Durable, dependable and economically operated. Thousands in use for years. Write for literature.
HARRIS PUMP MFG. CO. Greenville, S. C.

MAKING MEN—Not Money

Our aim is to develop the character through the constant teaching of Christian principles; to develop the body through healthful out-door sports; to develop the intellect through thorough, individual instruction. We offer a four-square education for your boy at a surprisingly reasonable cost. For catalogue write Col. A. H. Camden, President.

HARGRAVE MILITARY ACADEMY
CHATHAM, VA.

THE TWO HOUR WAR

Stuart Chase in New Republic, Condensed by Readers Digest

On August 13, 1928, the "Northern Power" opened its attack on London. Seventy-five airplanes, each carrying 500 pounds of "bombs," swooped down upon the city from the northeast. They were met by an equal number of defense planes, by batteries of anti-aircraft guns, by an extensive balloon system—by every known defense against an air attack. But within less than 30 minutes after crossing the coast-line, the defense planes had been eluded, the attack had centered directly over London, "bombs" had been dropped on predetermined targets, and the attacking force was wheeling back into the north without a casualty.

Every specific objective was bombed. Fifty thousand pounds of theoretical explosives were dropped through 16,000 feet, with the accuracy of gun fire. Had these 22 tons of bombs been filled with diphenyl chlorarsine, half of the population of London, men, women and children, would have been wiped out.

Mimic Warfare

This whole drama, to be sure, was mimic warfare, but it was carried out with great care, and the results I have cited were the sober conclusions of army judges. All known methods of defense were helpless before 75 pilots. Not a single attacking plane was downed. Imagine what might be done with 500 planes—a force that every one of the leading nations can readily mobilize. France, for instance, is now in a position to bring 4,000 planes into action at the call of the radio.

Poison Gas

There are at least two varieties of poison gas against which no mask is any protection. Cacodyl isocyanide is in the possession of all the great nations, a gas so frightful that military men admit to reporters that they do not see how they could bring themselves to use it. Government purchasing agents can also take their choice of bombs filled with deadly plague or bacilli, or with anthrax for the extermination of milk cows and horses. Meanwhile the "radium atomite," just discovered, is a more powerful explosive than T. N. T.; and with a newly invented metal compound "a 400-horsepower airplane motor can be built so light that a man can easily pick it up."

Possibilities

Say that war is declared. In Bremen or Calais a thousand men climb into the cockpits of their aircraft, an hour or two of flying, veering, dropping and dodging, as the radium atomite of the defense planes rises, a casual as the radium atomite of the craft guns tries vainly to one muffled roar after another, bombs are dropped per se so, to all intents and purposes, civilization founded by the Conqueror, which gave B

SUMMER VACATION TRIPS

Now is the Time to Plan Your Vacation

The Southern Railway System Offers Very Low Round Trip Fares to Mountain and Seashore Resorts

New York, N. Y.	$32.63	Atlantic City	$30.00
Chicago, Ill.	45.98	Detroit, Mich.	40.00
Cleveland, Ohio	41.85	Toledo, Ohio	40.00

Round trip tickets on sale each Saturday during July August—Limit for return trip 30 days.

Atlantic City, N. J. $23.30

Dates of sale via PRR from Washington July 16th, 30th, August 13th, 27th and September 10th via B & O from Washington July 24th, August 7th, 21st, September 4th and 18th. Final limit 18 days from date of sale.

Niagara Falls, N. Y. $33.15

Dates of sale via PRR from Washington July 24th, August 7th, 21st, September 4th, 18th and October 2nd via B & O from Washington July 18th, August 1st, 15th, 29th, September 12th and 26th. Final limit 18 days from date of sale.

Week-End Fares

Norfolk, Va.	$15.00	Old Point Comfort ...	$10.00
Morehead City, N. C. ...	13.15	Black Mountain, N. C. ...	10.00
Asheville, N. C.	6.30	Hendersonville, N. C. ...	10.00
Waynesville, N. C. ...	7.50	Brunswick, Ga. (St. Simons Island)	10.00
Virginia Beach, Va. ...	15.60

Tickets on sale each Friday and Saturday, final limit 18 days following Tuesday.

Rail and Motor Tours

Asheville, N. C., one-way motor coach the other way $7.30.

Johnson City, Tenn., one-way motor coach the other way $12.05.

Bristol, Tenn., one-way motor coach the other way rail $10.00.

Round Trip Summer Excursion Fares to Mountain and Seashore on sale daily.

Watch Newspapers for Dates of Popular Excursion Service — Pullman Sleeping Cars — Dining Service — Convenient Schedules
Ask Ticket Agents

SOUTHERN RAILWAY CITY TICKET OFFICE
308 West Trade Street
Telephone Hemlock 20

PUZZLE CORNER

Letter Additions

1. Add a letter to pale and find to need.
2. Add a letter to a kitchen utensil and find to gasp.
3. Add a letter to a noise and find to have a meal.
4. Add a letter to an iron rod and find the cry of an animal.
5. Add a letter to a sheltered inlet and find to overspread.
6. Add a letter to part of a ship and find lean.

Enigma

I am composed of 12 letters.
My 8-7-1-6-3-12 is a beginner.
My 2-10-11 is purpose.
My 5-4-9 is to make an edging with linen thread.
My whole is a season enjoyed by all.

Junior Cross-Word Puzzle

- | | |
|-------------------------|--------------------|
| Horizontal | Vertical |
| 1—A game | 1—Lodger |
| 7—Upon | 2—Article |
| 8—Old spelling of "ado" | 3—Bleat of a sheep |
| 9—Grassy field | 4—Snake |
| 10—Neat | 5—Card game |
| 13—Girls' name | 6—Reduced in value |
| 14—Pronoun | 9—A tree |
| 15—The bobolink | 11—Beverage |
| | 12—Tablet |
| | 14—Title (abbr). |

GLADE VALLEY HIGH SCHOOL

A Christian Schools for boys and girls
Standard High School Courses with Specials, Bible, Music
Domestic Art and Science
State Accredited Experienced Faculty
Careful Oversight of Students
Board, Room and Tuition only $138.00 for year.

Address E. B. ELDRIDGE, Supt., GLADE VALLEY, ALLEGHAN YCOUNTY

PERSONAL MENTION

Individual student small classes—con-atmosphere—more instruction at

Presbyterian
College
Clinton, S.C.

No Lance
Scientific Preparation
BRUNCELES, BONE FELONS,
and OLD SORES. Price 50c
CE CHEMICAL CO.
Brookland, S. C.

Quite approve the comfort of Bayer Aspi-
perfectly harmless tab-aching head without their increasing use year
proof that they do help firm. Take them for any bid the pain peculiar to ny have found them at such times. The ations with every packer Aspirin tell how to sore throat, neuralgia,
All druggists.

ASPIRIN

Trade mark of Bayer Manufacture
Saliicylicacidester of Salicylicacid

College for Men
Bristol, Tennessee

Jackson College
FOR WOMEN

London, Va., Box A Controlled by Montgomery
Presbytery

Colleges of the Synod of

offers four year courses
Degrees of Bachelor of Arts
of Sciences — a small College — Faculty of eleven men of thorough training and experience. Expenable.

Jackson College. Ac-
Junior College for young heart of healthful Virginia
two years high school,
College. Music, art, home
secretarial course, physical
ath. All outdoor sports.
in golf course on fifty-campus. Homelike life.
Catalogue.

ton, and Watt to the world, comes, in something like half a hour, to a close. Finished and done, London, Liverpool, Manchester, Bristol—each now vanishes from the list of habitable places on the planet. Not even a rat, not even an ant, not even a roach, can survive; every living thing has ceased to breath by virtue of diphenyl chloroarsine.

The Airplane's Part

The airplane, in effect, has reduced all other war weapons — battleships, fortresses, tanks—to so much scrap iron. The only thing it cannot be sure of harming is a submarine with a hundred feet of ocean over it. Yet a good submarine costs about $500,000; it requires a crew of 30 men; its speed does not exceed 20 miles an hour submerged, and it is not a very straight shooter at best. A good airplane may be had for $5,000, its crew is one, it can travel at 200 miles an hour, and it can drop a bomb with remarkable accuracy.

In short, it hardly pays to discuss any mechanism of warfare except the airplane. It is more deadly than any other weapon, all factors considered, and it is cheap. It can be built in a few days, and its cost, relatively speaking, is a trifle. Its primacy comes, as I see it, from the fact that it can operate in three dimensions, where all other weapons are limited to one or two. A submarine can operate in three dimensions, but only by slow and cumbersome wallows, nor can it find much of a belligerent nature to operate upon, except sharks.

Airplanes for Defense

For a three-dimensional offense there is only the sorriest kind of defense, as the attack on London showed. Some genius has suggested that piano wire be suspended from balloons to trap an air offense. He should receive a prize from a comic weekly. And these bristling pictures of anti-aircraft guns in the Sunday supplements, together with accounts of their range and accuracy, are an insult to the intelligence. The only way to keep airplane out of a metropolitan area is to have enough anti-aircraft guns to fill 400 cubic miles practically solid with steel splinters and T. N. T. This would involve, first, a fantastic number of guns, and second, grave discomfort for, if not the positive slaughter of, the metropolitan population, who could not move on the streets without umbrellas of heavy steel.

Military strategy, however, has an answer for the three-dimensional attack. The best defense is an attack. And so, the instant the thousand plans leave Hamburg for the cities of England, 1,500 planes leave London for the cities of Germany. Their ways may cross, but owing to the slipperiness of space and the haste of each squadron to be on its way, the casualties will be few, and the end of two civilizations, instead of one, not long delayed. As such things go, another ten minutes at the outside.

Next War Will be Short

There is at least one good thing to be said about the next war: it will not keep us long on edge. We shall not have to worry about finding the money for Liberty Bonds, or wonder whether George is going to get his commission. The whole business will be over in a couple of hours. With lungs full of diphenyl chloroarsine, we shall not

PUZZLE ANSWERS

VACATION TIME

ENIGMA—Novice, Aim, Tat
LETTER ADDITIONS — 1. Wan-
Want. 2. Pan-Pant. 3. Din-Dine. 4. Bar-
Bark. 5. Cove-Cover. 6. Spar-Spare.

B	A	S	E	B	A	L	L
O	N		A	D	O	O
A		M	E	A	D	O	W
R		A		E			E
D	A	P	P	E	R		R
E	L	L	A		M	E
R	E	E	D	B	I	R	D

need to worry about anything ever again. Personally, though it may be contrary to the code of the sportsman, I know when I am beaten. And against a three-dimensional war-machine, I have no confidence of anything except that the unique association of electrons which comprises myself is about to form new and interesting chemical combinations.

The persons capable of imagining a general holocaust in advance are so few, and of such slight influence, that the world will not realize what it now faces until it has faced it, in a fait accompli. Then, and not until then, realization will come—possibly, as the extras one incredible horror after another, it will come very fast. In a few days, perhaps after the two belligerents have been laid to rest, the neutral world will be in a sufficient state of shock to see that this sort of thing must stop forever.

The surviving West, together with the East, will then banish the machine from war—which means, of course, the banishment of war. Or so the conclusion hangs, neatly balanced between the hope and the belief, within the mind.

DEVOTIONAL

FATHERHOOD

Fatherhood is God-likeness. Every father ought to be like God to his children, as God likens himself to a father, in love and tenderness. Children feel this when they see God-likeness in their parents, or when they fail to see it. This truth is beautifully illustrated in the following incident given by a Philadelphia reader:

Children are looking to their parents for example. They very soon learn to know the true worth of kind words, of sympathy, and of nobleness of character. The following compliment was paid by a little girl, five years of age, to her father, and is the best reward I ever knew a parent to receive from the lips of a child. This man is always kind-hearted, sympathetic, and gentle with his three little children. A few days since, his wife was absent from home, and the children were left in charge of an aunt. The little girl above referred to came to her, and said, "Aunty, I think my papa is a very good man, and, if he wasn't human, I would think he was God." How many parents would be entitled to such a compliment from their children?

LET'S SUPPOSE

Suppose the membership of your church was limited to one hundred people. Would you be "in" or "out?"

Suppose you had to "run" for church membership as a candidate runs for political office. Would you win or lose?

Suppose this membership were good for one year only, and that re-election depended upon the good you had done in the church during that time. Would you be re-elected or not?

Suppose there was a long list of those waiting to get in. Would you not be more alive to your duties as a Christian?

Suppose you were called on to explain just why your church should keep your name on the roll. Have you a record of helpful service to offer in your own defense?

Suppose every member of the church did as much for the church as you are doing. Would more seats be needed, or would the doors be shut and nailed?

A candidate for office makes certain promises and takes certain definite stands on the question of the hour so that people may know what to expect of him. After election he cannot repudiate these promises to the people; he must carry them out. The people must be pleased.

Yet, once in a while you run across a church member who seems to think that his Christian experience ends the minute he get his name on the church roll. He thinks that he is on the high road to Heaven merely because he has joined the church. All he has to do from then on is to go to the services when he feels like it, put in his dime when he does go, and send the children to Sunday school. If he was of as little value to his employer as he is to his church, he would be dismissed in a week.

Joining the church does not justify your sitting back and taking it easy. It's time to buckle down to work, to put your shoulder to the wheel and push.

The petty cares, the minute anxieties, the infinite littles which go to make up the sum of human experience, like the invisible granules of powder, give the last and highest polish to a character.—Wm. Matthews.

An excuse is worse and more terrible than a lie; for an excuse is a lie guarded.—Pope.

Belk's 33rd Anniver- sary July Clearance Sale

IS NOW ON

DRASTIC REDUCTIONS IN ALL DEPARTMENTS

A Once a Year Event that
You Cannot Afford to Miss

Belk Brothers Co.
Charlotte, N. C.

THE RIGHT WAY TO TRAVEL

is by train. The safest. Most comfortable. Most reliable. Costs less. Inquire of Ticket Agents regarding greatly reduced fares for short trips.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Church and Sunday School Furniture

Send for Special Catalogue THE SOUTHERN DESK COMPANY Hickory, N. C.

BURNS Ease the Pain Heal the Sore Stop Infection

with GRAY'S OINTMENT For Burns, Cuts and Sores At all drug stores. For free sample write W. F. Gray & Co., 724 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Nervous Women Praise Capudine

Delicately poised women who suffer from high nerve strain and nervous pains, such as periodic pains, headache and pains in the back and sides are high in their praise of Capudine because it quickly soothes the tense nerves and relieves the pain.

Being liquid, Capudine acts almost instantly,—does not upset the stomach. Sold by druggists in 30c and 60c sizes. (adv.)

YOUR CHURCH deserves a beautiful exterior in harmony with its spirit of culture and worship.

Let us suggest appropriate shrubbery. THE HOWARD-HICKORY CO., Hickory, N. C. Local Representatives Wanted, especially to sell fruit trees. Landscape Gardeners and Nurserymen

Piles and other Rectal diseases cured without pain or surgery. No hospital detention. Write to Dr. W. R. Register, 63 No. Broad Street, Atlanta, Georgia, for free book. Hundreds of cured patients.

Take STANBACK to Relieve PAIN

6 6 6

is a Prescription for Colds, Grippe, Flu, Dengue, Bilious Fever and Malaria. It is the most speedy remedy known.

WEAK EYES are strengthened and relieved by Dickey's old reliable eye water. In use over half a century. Relieves sore eyes from gnats and dust. Doesn't hurt. In red folding box at all good stores or by mail 25c. Dickey Drug Co. Bristol, Virginia

OVER-RUNS AND MILL ENDS SAVE ONE-THIRD ON CLOTH DIRECT FROM LOOM TO YOU Cotton Flannels, Pillow Tubings, Sheetings, Crinkled Cloth for Bedspreads, Pajama Checks, Chambrays, Tinted Dimities, Ginghams, Art Silk Striped Madras for men's and boys' Shirts. Write for free samples and prices. MONAGHAN MILL STORE, Dept. A., Greenville S. C. "Textile Center of the South"

SPARKLES

Placard for bridegroom: Under New Management.—Life.

Judge: "Don't you think you and your husband could live together without fighting?"

Mrs. O'Reilly: "No, your Honor, not happily."—Pathfinder.

The largest crowd in the world gathered recently in Mexico City when the Mexican Daughters of the Revolution held a convention.—Life.

"When I was your age I thought nothing of a ten-mile walk." "Well, I don't think much of it, either."—London Calling.

Members of a tribe in the Kalhari desert are said to bury their sick people alive, and we'll bet that is one place where people don't go around all the time complaining about being sick. — Albany Knickerbocker Press.

They May Discover New Ones

Tip from the Telephone News: People spend the time you make them wait in summing up your faults, so don't be late.

Philosophy

"You are quite a philosopher, Sam," said Mr. Pickwick.

"It runs in the family, I b'lieve, sir," replied Mr. Weller. "My father's wery much in that line, now. If my mother-in-law blows him up, he whistles. She flies in a passion, and breaks his pipe; he steps out and gets another. Then she screams wery loud, and falls into 'sterics: and he smokes wery comfortably 'till she comes to again. That's philosophy, sir, ain't it?" — Charles Dickens.

Seeing It for First Time

Strolling along the quays of New York Harbor, an Irishman came across the wooden barricade around the enclosure where emigrants suspected of suffering from contagious diseases are isolated.

"Phwat's this boarding for?" he inquired of a bystander.

"Oh," was the reply, "that's to keep out fever and things like that, you know."

"Indade!" said Pat, "oi've often heard of the Board of Health, but, bejabbers, it's the first time oi've seen it!" —Ex.

Out of Pain

Mrs. Hellefinder was attending her first football game. "Oh, isn't it awful," she cried. "Why, they will kill that poor boy underneath."

"Don't be silly, mother!" exclaimed her daughter. "He doesn't mind it—he's unconscious by this time."—The Pathfinder.

Sure Enough

"Now," said the Sunday School teacher, "why is a certain part of the Church called the altar?"

"Because," said the bright boy, "it's the place where women change their names."—Ex.

Mexican Heat Powder

Immediately relieves Prickly Heat, Nettle Rash, Diaper Rash, Tired, Sore and Blistered Feet. Sunburn, all Skin Irritations. At your Druggists

When answering advertisements mention this paper. Thus you will aid us in securing more advertising patronage.

Chicora College for Women

The Presbyterian College of South Carolina

Standard College Courses Large, Strong Faculty Beautiful Grounds Ideal Surroundings Healthful Climate Moderate Rates

For Catalog and Information, Address

S. C. Byrd, D.D., LL.D., President, Columbia, S. C.

FORTY-SIX YEARS CONTINUOUS SERVICE WITHOUT A LOSS ON ANY LOAN

We offer you a safe, tax-free investment for your regular weekly or monthly savings and your lump sum. Write for particulars.

ASSETS OVER $8,800,000.00

The Mutual Building and Loan Association

Established 1881

CHARLOTTE

If In Doubt, Take B. & L. Shares

You will earn the highest interest rate on your savings consistent with perfect safety, and pay no tax on your earnings. Shares cost twenty-five cents per week, usually mature in 333 weeks. Net you 6 1/2-2 per cent maturity.

Series Open in January, April, July and October

Mechanics Perpetual Building & Loan Association

Established 1883

18 E. Fourth St.

Charlotte

THE WINTHROP DESK, $75

The Governor Winthrop desk has come down to us from the very earliest beginning of America. The one shown here every detail has been copied minutely. It is made in Grand Rapids which is an assurance of its fine quality. Others, varying in size from $70 to $145.

W.T. McCOY & Co. Home Furnishers

423-425 SOUTH TRYON STREET CHARLOTTE, N. C.

"National Bank Safety For Savings"

A Reserve Fund Bank Will Help

Charlotte National Bank

Resources Over $5,000,000.00

For the Future

Are you making ready to share in the opportunities which increasing prosperity will bring?

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

A Religious Newspaper for the Family

Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.

RIDGES, D.D., Editor-in-Chief
WELLS, D.D., Co-Editor
JASPER WILLIS, Contributing Editor

ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858

M. F. ELLIS, Vice-President
REV. J. G. GARTH, Treasurer and News Editor
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
BY PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY

CHARLOTTE, N. C., JULY 24, 1929

No. 30

Presbyterian Speakers At Northfield

Morgan and Buttrick, Scotchmen on Program

Over the programs of the denominational religious conference in the United States this summer, to note the prominent names to our ministers of the Church. Four have been in the leadership of the Northfield Conference of Christian Workers, founded by the great Moody, to be held at East Northfield, Mass., from August 3 to 19. Dr. R. Erdman, D.D., former Moderator of the General Assembly, of the Presbyterian Board of Christian Workers, and a professor at the Theological Seminary, will be at the first meetings of the conference. Rev. George A. Buttrick, minister of the Madison Avenue Church, New York City, is in the summer at Northfield to take the platform part of the August 3 to 19. John Baillie of Knox College, Canada, was ordained into the ministry in 1920, a short time after his arrival from Scotland, and is to conduct special meetings. Another newcomer is the Rev. Wilhelmus B. Speer, assistant to Doctor Erdman of the Presbyterian Church of New Jersey.

Other feature speakers at the conference this summer will be Campbell Morgan, D.D., who with the great Dwight L. Moody is one of the most outstanding names of the present age. Speakers who will appear at the General Conference, well attended this summer by both ministers and laymen, are Rev. James Moffatt, D.D., of Glasgow, Scotland; Dr. J. C. Scherer, D.D., Lutheran Church of the Holy Trinity, New York; Dr. W. W. Wicks, D.D., Wandswick, England; Robert Laws, M.D., of the Livingstonia Mission, Africa; Dr. W. Robertson, D.D., Southern Baptist Seminary, Louisville; Dr. W. M. MacInnis, D.Litt., of Middlebury College; and Dr. J. Trotter, evangelist.

Also, the Rev. Homer Hambley, who has charge of the singing program. Afternoons will be given to athletics and recreation, including swimming, croquet, hikes, and the beautiful Franklin Hills. For full program address the Summer Conferences, Northfield, Mass.

Church Honors Pastor

The beautiful Sunday School building, erected by the Independent Presbyterian Church, Savannah, a life work of Dr. Neal L. Anderson, of the Church, was unveiled on Wednesday, July 14.

The building was presented by the Kappa Chapter, founded by Doctor Anderson, and dedicated by the Class in honor of the past and future pastors of the Church: Dr. J. K. Klock, 1806-1820, Dr. Daniel K. Klock, 1821, Dr. I. S. K. Axson,

Massanetta Springs Bible Conference

Among the great speakers at the Bible Conference at Massanetta Springs, August 12-25, will be Dr. P. W. Philpott, Pastor of the Moody Memorial Church, Chicago. The story of Doctor Philpott's life is a gospel miracle in itself. He first became a member of the Salvation Army and arose to the rank of brigadier.

"Thirty years ago he opened a gospel hall in Hamilton, Ontario—a faith venture for him and his wife and growing family, for their only source of support was the free will offerings of those who attended the services. The work grew with the passing years until finally a brick tabernacle was erected seating about 1600, and soon thereafter a theatre seating more than 3000 was regularly taken for the Sunday evening services. Long before Moody Church called Doctor Philpott he was recognized as one of Canada's foremost preachers. He was in demand throughout America as a conference speaker and twice was urged to accept nomination to Parliament,—a temptation from which he unhesitatingly turned away.

"Doctor Philpott has been wonderfully used in evangelistic campaigns. Some one has said, 'His sermons used of God to move a city to repentance are simple, scriptural and intensely practical.'"

Another speaker of prominence during the Bible Conference will be Dr. Wm. M. Robertson, Baptist clergyman of Vancouver, British Columbia. Dr. Philip E. Howard, President of the Sunday School Times, say of him: "In elevation of searching directness and the ability of language, in spiritual content and in unfolding Scripture, I should say he would rank with Dr. Robert E. Speer and others."

In addition to these speakers Dr. Robert E. Speer, New York; Dr. Geo. L. Robinson, Chicago, Sergeant Alvin C. World War hero; Dr. John Timothy Stone, Chicago; Dr. Wm. Evans, Los Angeles, Dr. Wm. Hiram Foulkes, Newark; Dr. J. Alfred Kaye, London, England; Rev. Gypsy Smith, Jr., flaming evangelist of the South; Dr. W. H. T. Squires, Norfolk, Va.; Dr. Hubert McNeill Poteat, Wake Forest, N. C.; Dr. Ray O. Wyland, New York; and Dr. A. L. Latham, Chester, Pa.

The Students League of Many Nations will speak August 14. Doctor Biederwolf, in speaking of their appearance at Winona Lake, says: "Few attractions at Winona have been the equal of this one. It is heart-stirring and in itself worth the trip to Winona. Don't miss this tremendous spectacle and religious demonstration."

There will be a special course of lectures to ministers and Christian workers by Dr. Wm. Evans, Dr. John Timothy Stone, Dr. Wm. Hiram Foulkes and Dr. George L. Robinson.

The detailed program giving the day and hour each speaker will appear on the program, may be obtained by writing to Wm. E. Hudson, Program Manager, Massanetta Springs Station, Harrisonburg, Va.

1857-1891, Dr. Neal L. Anderson, 1917-.

Addresses of appreciation of the services of Doctor Anderson, particularly of his relation to the development of the Church's interest in religious education, as illustrated in the splendid new Sunday School building, were delivered by Dr.

(Continued on Page Two)

Educational Conference At Montreat

College Men Gather to Study Problems—Wide List of Subjects

The Advisory Committee on Education and the Presbyterian Education Association of the South met in annual joint session at Montreat, July 3-5. Seventy-five educators enrolled for the discussions. Their wide and searching range is indicated by the list of topics in addition to which many subjects were brought up in Group Conferences which were given more time than heretofore.

The able "Survey" of our educational situation prepared last year by Dr. B. Warren Brown, was found to have had excellent results in many quarters, but our Church has not yet awakened to the true situation. Steps were planned for a wider discussion of its findings in our Synods.

Among other matters, the following were of importance: The Budget Committee presented a well-based warning against increasing the expenses or work of our schools and especially against undertaking new burdens or the founding of new schools without the surest provision for their maintenance.

A Committee was appointed to prepare a booklet on the importance of Christian Education—a timely act as there seems evidence of decline in our sense of its vital relation to the spread of the Gospel.

We are urged as a whole church to study the situation of our Presbyterian boys and girls in non-church institutions. The situation has been much misrepresented and needs careful study of the facts and of our corresponding duty. It is no small task to which we are directed.

The remarkable work of our Orphanages when their meager support is considered is one of the outstanding triumphs of consecrated lives in our present day. No more interesting subject was discussed than their problems.

The spiritual product of our whole educational system received careful and sincere discussion. That all our efforts should bend to this great task was gladly recognized. The church has a right to expect that her sons and daughters shall leave our doors, more firmly grounded in their faith, both in head and heart; better capable of Christian leadership; and more willing to undertake its tasks; and that this may be the fruit of our labors is our earnest prayer.

Public addresses on the Pension Plan, by Dr. H. B. Master, Secretary of that work in the Church, U. S. A., on "Freedom and Authority" by President Turch of Center College. On the "Outstanding Words of Christ" by Dr. L. R. Irwin of Williamsburg, Virginia, and sermons by President Diehl of Southwestern and Rev. J. H. Powell, of the Executive Committee, added great power to the Conference.

Our educators and all connected with our schools as Trustees or patrons will find these informal but wide-ranging discussions of the greatest value in their work—broadening outlook, widening experience, unifying effort, laying plans for success.

D. S. Gage, Secretary.

By request we give below the topics debated at the Educational conference.

1. What has been effected by the "Survey of our Educational Work and Responsibility" in each Synod?

Federal Council Investigates Movies

To assist the churches in America and abroad to secure suitable motion pictures for their own programs, and to maintain a general information service, as well as to further a thorough study of the relation of motion pictures to the public welfare, a Commission on Motion Pictures has been appointed by the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, of which the Hon. William C. Redfield, former Secretary of Commerce, is the Chairman.

According to an announcement released by the Commission, it will "seek to eliminate misrepresentations and to secure the incorporation of the best of the life of the various countries, and to further the use of films which strengthen international understanding and goodwill." The Department of Research and Education of the Federal Council has been requested by the Motion Picture Commission to make a study in this field, with particular reference to the moral and social effects of plays and pictures on children, youth and adults.

To co-operate with the Research Department, a special Committee has been appointed to make an investigation of the pictures shown in foreign lands, with a view to securing reliable information concerning the source, subject matter, and character of the films. Special attention will be given to missionary films which are to be used in the churches of the United States, and plans are to be perfected whereby the churches may obtain films dealing with mission work in the United States and in foreign lands.

The Executive Committee of the Commission on Motion Pictures consists of the following: Rev. Charles K. Gilbert, Chairman; Hon. William C. Redfield, Harry S. Myers, Rev. Charles S. Macfarland, Miss Margaret Applegarth, Professor Harrison S. Elliott, Rev. Henry Leiper, Stanley High, Mrs. Fred S. Bennett, Henry D. Walbridge, and Rev. George Reid Andrews. There are also about fifty members representing the various denominations.

2. How conserve the value of the Survey?
3. Should there be further consolidation of our educational institutions?
4. Do we need more colleges? Schools? Orphans' Homes? Workers at state and independent institutions of higher education?
5. Is the educational load of the Church too great for the ability or the willingness of our people?
6. How does this load compare in each group of institutions with other churches?
7. Why are our debts so large—amounting in March, 1929, to $3,421,250 recorded? Are the students paying a proper proportion of the operating expenses?
8. Are we making proper use of budgetary procedure and of properly entering on records all actual and potential financial obligations?
9. Are we giving definite facts to the Church that will enable the business men and women to know just where we stand?
10. Are our accounting systems as efficient and revealing as they should be?
11. Is it wise for the Synod to issue bonds to meet debts?
12. How secure further unity and cooperation in the educational work of the Synod?

(Continued on Page Two)

MECKLENBURG YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONFERENCE

Under the leadership of Rev. E. A. Dillard, of Charlotte, pastor of Tenth Avenue Church, 101 young people of Mecklenburg Presbytery, mostly from Charlotte, spent five days at White Lake, near Elizabethtown. The group arrived at Marshburn Beach Hotel on Monday, July 5, at six o'clock and had supper, and remained until Friday noon, July 12. The weather was fine and all report an excellent time as well as a profitable one.

The mornings were devoted to Bible study, church history, music, and an open conference on young people's methods of work. Dr. W. B. McIlwaine, of Westminster Presbyterian Church, Charlotte, taught the young people the essentials of Christian belief, necessary to joining the church. Rev. W. B. S. Chandler, of Monroe, gave a course in early church history, George Chenot, assistant of Tenth Avenue, taught a class in conducting church music, and related the history of hymns.

The evenings were devoted to addresses. Mr. Dillard gave two on "The Call to Service" and the "Ministry of the Risen Christ." Dr. McIlwaine spoke on "Jacob's Experience at Bethel," while Prof. E. A. Beatty, of Davidson College faculty, talked on "Real Faith."

The afternoons were devoted to recreation, swimming, ball games, stunts. A play was given under the direction of Miss Mary Howard Turlington, pastor's assistant at Myers Park Presbyterian Church, of Charlotte, and Miss Olivia Curlee, who is president of the Young People's League of Mecklenburg Presbytery. The young people were divided into groups which served as units for all meetings and activities. Tom Hill, summertime director of Young People's Work, of Second Church Charlotte, led the sports. The conduct of the young people was perfect, showing the fine teamwork and spirit of co-operation. They keynote of the conference was "The Reality of God in Spiritual Things."

FACULTY AT AUSTIN IN VACATION

The professors of the Seminary, after spending the first week of their vacation in holding a Ministers' Conference, a kind of Summer School of Theology, in the Seminary, have scattered for their summer's work. Half a dozen baccalaureate sermons made their first service, in Lubbock, Temple, Somerville, and elsewhere. Doctor Currie, the president, will take part in summer conference in Clinton, La., Hendersonville, N. C., Des Moines, Ia., and Kerrville, Texas.

Doctor Joekel, after holding evangelistic meetings in Brenham, Somerville, Clarendon, and elsewhere, will deliver lectures at Massanetta, Va., and Kerrville, Texas, will preach at Montreat, and then, as for several years past, supply the pulpit of the First Church, Atlanta.

Doctor Gribble will hold evangelistic meetings at Roscoe, Streetman and elsewhere, and will then take part in the conferences of Arkansas Synod and at Kerrville, Texas.

Doctor Summy will supply the Cameron and Lubbock Churches and his old charge in New Orleans, and the Prytania Street Church, New Orleans, for eleven weeks of the summer, and will give a week's lectures in the Ministers' Conference of Texas Synod at Kerrville.

Mr. Williamson, of the Mexican Department of the Seminary will be in regular charge of the Victoria Church, vacant since the death of the lamented Doctor Hudson. All the students of the Seminary except two or three first year men, are engaged to fill home mission and other vacant fields.

Dr. D. A. Penick, instructor in New Testament Greek, is to make a journey north, in a fine new auto presented to him lately by a company of students whom he has trained in tennis.

Doctors Wharton and Sims, other instructors, are expected to be in their usual active work during the summer, except that Doctor Sims will make a visit to Mexico, his former field of work.

HENDERSONVILLE ANNUAL BIBLE CONFERENCE

The annual Bible Conference sponsored by the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, will this year be held at Hendersonville, N. C., from Sunday, July 28, through Sunday, August 11. For the fifteen days of intensive Bible study a group of eminent and capable speakers will be on hand. Among those announced are: Dr. John Thomas of London, rated as one of the most eloquent Welsh preachers of this generation; Mr. H. A. Ironside, popular Bible teacher of Oakland, Calif.; Mr. A. H. Stewart, a Canadian Bible scholar much in demand, and Rev. J. F. Harrison, of the Moody Extension field staff, who is building an enviable reputation as a young people's worker and Bible teacher of unique power. The conference, under the direction of Mr. W. Earl Robinson, who will also direct the music, will hold its sessions in the auditorium of the high school building.

Y. P. ADVISORY COUNCIL TO MEET

The Advisory Council on Young People's Work will hold its regular annual meeting at Montreat, July 30, 31, and August 1. The first session will be held Tuesday evening, July 30, at 7:30 in the Foreign Mission Building. This council is composed of one member from each of the Synods and the Synodicals in the Assembly, and a representative from each of the Executive Committees. Besides these regular members the Council is usually attended by those who are at Montreat at the time that are interested in Young People's Work. The sessions of the Council are open to all. Rev. G. Hunter Norwood, D.D., Bay Minette, Ala., is chairman of the Council.

The sessions of the Council this year will be of unusual interest because of the fact that Rev. Jno. L. Fairly was elected by the last General Assembly as Director of Religious Education. He will attend this meeting of the Council to hear the discussions and offer suggestions. During the year nine committees have been at work on different phases of Young People's work and will bring in their reports for consideration and discussion.

CONTINUATIONS FROM PAGE ONE

EDUCATIONAL CONFERENCE AT MONTREAT

13. What kind of advertising pays?

14. How can we secure more adequate endowment for our institutions? Are the local communities meeting their financial responsibilities?

15. How will broadly circulated articles like that of Mr. Julius Rosenwald's in "Atlantic Monthly" of May, 1929, affect the securing of endowments? Could his idea be safely adopted?

16. How should we regard the standards of the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Southern States?

17. How do our institutions now rank as to libraries and laboratories and endowment?

18. Is the present proportion of the askings in the budget equitable and wise? As regards other causes? As regards the various classes of institutions?

19. Is Christian Education through our own institutions of vital importance to the Church? How cause the Church to appreciate the fact?

20. How make the Church more Christian educationally minded?

21. Whose is the responsibility for looking ahead and planning for the future in the field of education?

22. What should be presented to the Synods this year as a sane, hopeful program for education?

23. What is the present trend in attendance at our institutions and of Presbyterian students in other schools?

24. How make the atmosphere in our institutions more thoroughly Christian?

25. Are we getting the product the Church has a right to expect from its investments in education?

26. How can (1) the classroom be used to deepen the Christian life of the student? (2) The chapel? (3) Young People's organizations? (4) The local church? (5) Voluntary student activities? (6) Recreational activities?

27. Are we over-stressing athletics?

28. Are institutions and local churches co-operating as fully and helpfully as the Church has a right to expect?

29. What help should the local church expect from the institutions?

30. How co-ordinate the Church's teaching function with work of the institutions?

31. Is the whole curriculum presented on the basis of a Christian philosophy of life?

32. What forms of expressional religious activity obtain among our faculty members?

33. What opportunities, outside of classroom, definitely provide for developing personal acquaintance and helpful relationship between faculty and students?

34. Is there "laboratory work" in local church, settlement or deputations that will help train students for work in the church to which they go?

35. Is student self-government standing the tests of today?

36. Do we need faculty vocational counselor? How may this be procured?

37. How use the Student Secretaries of the Executive Committee of Christian Education?

38. How discover and develop Christian leaders?

39. Where shall we look for teachers of the Bible and Christian Philosophy?

40. How throw greater safeguards around the financial assistance granted immature students?

41. What educational background is needed today for the minister? The teacher? The religious work director? The pastor's assistant?

42. Should our Theological Seminaries give more post-graduate work and higher degrees?

43. How can we help in the study of present religious conditions at Christian institutions now being made by the Council of Church Boards of Education?

44. Can we ascertain fuller information as to occupations entered by students after attending our orphans' homes, schools and colleges—what is our product?

45. What larger provision can be made for professional improvements of faculty members?

46. How far should our Church go in providing for orphans of other denominations?

47. What can we do for the mentally deficient children?

48. How far should we encourage the placing of orphan children in homes rather than in institutions?

49. Should each institution have a "case worker"?

50. What is the Church doing for its students at State and Independent institutions of higher education?

51. Who should provide for financial support of work among our Presbyterian students at tax-supported institutions?

52. How develop the work at the state colleges and universities? Along what lines?

53. How secure properly prepared student pastors and secretaries for these fields?

54. What provision should be made for the retirement of the teachers and officers of our institutions?

55. Should the teachers and officers in our educational institutions be included in the Ministers' Annuity Fund January 1, 1931?

410 Urban Building, 122 South Fourth Avenue, Louisville, Kentucky.

SAVANNAH CHURCH HONORS PASTOR

John E. White, Pastor of the First Baptist Church, Savannah, and President of the Protestant Pastor's Association, and D. G. Bickers, one of the Editors of the Savannah Morning News, and teacher of the K. B. A. Class.

The ceremonies were in charge of W. Osmond White, President of the K. B. A. Class, and the picture was unveiled by two of its charter members, Horace P. Millar, and John W. Simpson.

DEVOTION

FEATURING THE DEVO

"It is all very well to talk the line between the sacred a but wearing our Sunday cl day comes at last to wearing day clothes on Sunday."

These are wise words. It is that all life should be sacred, to make all life sacred is to life intensively sacred. We preacher quoted as saying the Lord's Supper was sacred, it sacred than any other meal, tude does not impart sanct meal; it rather denies sanct meal. It does not level up, it The only way that every m made sacred is by attaching s tity to the sacrament.

It is great to "pray witho to be always in a prayerful m who forsakes his season of s tion will find the constant functory and finally vanish. sacred but he who forgets t day to keep it holy—not to spectable merely but to devo cultivation of the spiritual li the light of piety fading fro Failing to reverence peculiar he will gradually come to rev no day.

God has ordained special refreshing and replenishing t These periods must be observ or else piety suffers decline. I very religious to talk about life equally devotional. But it divinely-established order of life is uplifted when some life set apart—Wesleyan Christia Atlanta.

HOW I ASCERTAIN THE GOD

George Muller

Surrender your own will.

1. I seek at the beginning heart into such a state that i of its own in regard to a Nine-tenths of the trouble is just here. Nine-tenths of ties are overcome when our ready to do the Lord's will. may be. When one is truly it is usually but a little way ledge of what His will is.

Do not depend on feelings.

2. Having done this, I do result to feeling or simple If I do so, I make myself li delusions.

Seek the Spirit's will th Word.

3. I seek the will of the S through, or in connection wi of God.

The Spirit and the Word bined. If I look to the Spirit out the Word I lay myself c delusions also. If the Holy us at all, He will do it acc Scriptures and never contr.

Note providential circumsta

4. Next I take into account circumstances. These often cate God's will in connecti Word and Spirit.

5. I ask God in prayer t will to me aright.

Pray.

Wait.

6. Thus, through prayer study of the Word, and refle to a deliberate judgment acc best of my ability and know my mind is thus at peace, t so after two or three more proceed accordingly.

In trivial matters, and in involving most important is found this method always e

"We have hard problems wrote Booker T. Washing negro educator, to his own instead of despairing in the difficulties we should, as a God that we have a proble dangers in a pathway strewn Said he, "It is only by meet fully facing hard, stubborn problems that races, like in the highest degree, made

Our spiritual visibility is rise about the low-hanging certainty into the clear ai God.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

FOUNDED 1858

of the Synod of N. C. for 70 Years

Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as Second Class Matter.

The subscription price of the Standard is payable in advance. To ministers the price is $2.50 per year. To ministers' wives the price is $2.50 per year.

Mailing label shows the month and year to which payment is paid. Payment in advance is required.

Subscriptions may be made by money order, check, or registered letter, and currency by mail.

Quarterly Notices—No charge is made for notices less than 100 words, but for all over fifty words the charge is 10 cents per word.

Sent on application.

Kindly send us both old and new addresses to the desired change.

Changes of address made only upon the written request of the subscriber. Payment in full must be made at the same time.

Business Communications Should be

Addressed to
PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD
Box 869
Charlotte, N. C.

EDITORIAL

VOICE AT MONTREAT

Evening, July 16th, a new voice at Montreat, a strictly feminine one from Miss Anna A. Milligan, secretary of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church.

The Auditorium was nearly full of people and there a stray man, looking out of water.

It was a feminine audience, with a few men. The ladies had spent over a week at work, and were enjoying a well-deserved rest. All ages were represented and all attention to what was said.

There is an elderly lady with a strong, most determined air, and she says facts and figures to prove that in the past women had been discriminated against. She established her claim, as she rests her case going back to ancient times down to the present.

She spoke of woman's triumphant march through the ages, till she was crowned with glory. Her day, his heart could but beat with that pride in woman's achievement that he was sure that each man felt.

She condemned the unjust laws of the past that placed a burden on woman, he almost envied her present in their ability to claim equality with the sex.

She mentioned the painted women in heathen lands, the account of the women of India, who were ashamed of their sex, and who had to apologize that they were painted. How that extent were connected with the past.

There is a forcible speaker, impressive and clear in her arguments. She belongs to the Church Militant, and she knows what we no doubt do.

They attended these meetings as regiments generally do, because in the large Auditorium they cannot hear the women speaking, or their weak voices are lost in their work from what we do not hesitate to praise them for their methods, their knowledge of procedure and their dispatch of business. We think of what they have done, of their organization, not many years ago, and of our admiration of their results.

At all, we were impressed by the reliance in all their proceedings, and their reliance upon divine help in all that they worked, their pride in their work, and their self-confidence in all their meetings, we did not wonder that in such a short time become a mighty force in the work of the Church.

SUNDAY AT MONTREAT

That part of the Montreat season devoted to Woman's Work always is a busy one, and the women fill every hour of their allotted time, and in that respect they set a good example to the men, who are prone to allow recreation to figure too largely in the attendance.

On Sunday they put in a busy day, and the great auditorium was crowded almost to its capacity, which is saying much for the attendance.

Besides the women delegates, crowds came from nearby cities, with the result that the hotels, boarding houses and Geneva Hall were full.

There was a large attendance from Charlotte, as it is a pleasant ride of about 145 miles.

Dr. Henry Sweets occupied the pulpit at the morning hour, using as the basis of his sermon that figure of speech in I Corinthians, 12th chapter, in which the Church of Christ is compared to the human body, each part depending upon the other.

He gradually led up to the duty of the Church to care for her aged ministers.

It was a powerful sermon, the effect of which will be seen when the Woman's Auxiliary makes its birthday offering, which will be for the benefit of the aged ministers.

Dr. Sweets has had this cause on his heart and mind for years, and he has done wonders already along this line.

As yet the Church has not fully understood the Annuity Plan, and nearly all of the arguments against it have been based upon a misunderstanding. We predict for it success, and feel sure that in coming years old preachers will rise up and called him blessed.

One argument in its favor which has recently been suggested to us, is that, in the event it is adopted by the Churches, it will enable old preachers who have passed the "dead line" to get pastorates, instead of being turned off and it will make Churches to consider the merits of the man, instead of his age, in deciding upon a call.

At present, without being a law, it is "a gentleman's agreement" in many Churches, when a vacancy occurs, to call no man who is over 40 years of age, lest he become by reason of age a burden upon the Church.

All that is provided for by the Annuity Plan. When a pastor has reached a certain age, he can retire without any feeling of humiliation.

Another large audience greeted Dr. Joseph Sevier, who was the preacher for the evening service.

It was the first time we have heard Dr. Sevier, though we have known him for some time.

We shall long remember the sermon as well as the man.

His text was I Corinthians 12:31, "Covet earnestly the best gifts."

His voice is strong and his enunciation clear. His illustration illustrates which is something we cannot always say.

We can understand his hold on the many girls that attend "Greystone Camp."

They insist that no other man can preach as he can, which means that these choice young girls from our best homes are brought under an influence that will shapen their lives and count in eternity.

His is a great work and we envy him his opportunity.

About 18 years ago we spent five sessions teaching the Bible to two classes of young women, one hour a day, and now we are constantly reminded of the good done, as the young women are now mothers and their appreciation of the work done makes one feel that his life has counted for something.

On Monday evening the women put on a Home Mission meeting.

Last week they had a Foreign Mission meeting, and then, in order to be fair, they decided to devote one evening to the companion cause, that of Home Missions.

The feature of the evening was the address of Rev. P. D. Miller, Educational Secretary of Home Missions.

This was Mr. Miller's first appearance before a Montreat audience.

Of course it is yet too early to measure the fitness of a man for his job, when you have only seen him once, but, unless we are much mistaken, he will prove a popular speaker. He has humor, which, with spiritual fervor, will always gain him a sympathetic hearing. He paid a well-deserved tribute to Coit and the lamented Tufts, holding them up as men with a divine passion that transformed fields and made men and women of the mountain people.

SOME THOUGHTS ON DR. KIRK'S SERMON

Now when there is so much said of the principles and ideas that best conduce to the education of youth, it may not be amiss to ask the young men and women of our church to read and digest the sermon of Dr. Harris E. Kirk, the retiring moderator of the Assembly of 1929. If they are able to follow his line of thought with its energy, its epigrammatic utterances, its radiant suggestiveness, we shall know that they have made strides in the realm of logic and are nearing the portals of the great fraternity of thinkers, among whom some of the worthiest are Presbyterians. The very statement in the opening paragraph that "the believing mind is the sole judge of spiritual truth," will, when apprehended, serve to explain to them the crudities of the unbelieving mind when it ventures to sit in judgment upon spiritual truth.

Strongly to be recommended is Dr. Kirk's treatment of church unity, one of the vital problems of the day, a problem the solution of which must be achieved with comprehension of human limitations and with the clear perception that the view of only the shining arc and not of the full-orbed splendor of God's evident plan, may serve to develop through love for our own organization, not a less but a greater degree of love for the Church Universal, to which—through tumult and convulsion—God is undoubtedly leading his manifold flock.

In the multiplied charges of "narrowness," (poor overworked word!) of the Presbyterian Church, it is most desirable that young men and women should study, perhaps with some surprise, the strength and elasticity of our creed, so deeply imbedded in the unchangeableness of God that they need not fear the upheaval of things that pass away; that they should grasp the historic contrast of the prophetic and the priestly types of ecclesiasticism; and more than all, that they should recognize the impulse inherent in the genius of Presbyterianism to hurl itself away from the nest of security and material comfort into the arena of ardent action and to wing its way into realms, unexplored perhaps by the fathers, but opening into luminous vistas, revealed by the Searcher of the deep things of God.

To be unafraid of living though does not mean laxity or haziness; it means an assurance of the eternal verities of the Church so profound that, like a star wheeling joyously through the remotest bounds of its orbit, it has no fear of transcending the limits fixed by the decrees of God.

The youth truly educated under the influence of the Spirit of God, who dares to live adventurously, loyally, even "dangerously," as did Paul, will, in the coming years, be found standing on the bulwarks of our great denomination with the banner of Christ in his hand and the thrill of leadership in his voice.

Worthily to sound a note of that spirit of prophecy, characteristic of Presbyterianism, is a noble aim for mind and soul, for the attainment of that goal marks the development of sensitiveness and strength that enables one to voice in his own individuality, to comprehend through his own vision, the teaching of the Spirit like the stirring of the night winds on aeolian chords.

The following of Dr. Kirk's trend of reason, of inspiration and of expansive vision would be a most desirable activity for young and old. It is to be hoped that our young men and women will follow this trend from the introduction through the symbolic convulsion, tumult, upheaval of the storm in the Pyrenees, which, according to the mountaineer, "always comes just before dawn."

M. J. W.

CONTRIBUTED

A CONFERENCE ON CHURCH UNION

The discussion of Church Union has been receiving much attention in press and church courts. Last month a private conference was conducted by the Christian Herald, of New York. We are printing in the article below an account of this conference and its findings, thinking it will help our readers to study the question in the larger phase which is presented by the report.—Ed.

One of the most significant and enlightening documents on the subject of Church Unity ever drawn up in this country was the outstanding result of the First Annual Christian Herald Institute of Religion at Buck Hill Falls, Pennsylvania, June 10-13. The document, which gives a thorough survey of the obstacles in the way of unity and an analysis of how these can be overcome, also recommends that the next meeting of the Institute, to be held next summer, be devoted to a further study of the problem of unity. Stanley High, editor of Christian Herald, and in charge of the Institute, stated that in all probability the recommendation of the 1929 Institute would be carried out.

More than one hundred leading laymen and clergymen attended this year's gathering, which is in the field of religion what the Williamstown Institute is to politics. The document resulting from the meeting was in the form of a report of the Findings Committee of the Institute, and was passed by the entire body at its final session. Dr. William Adams Brown, of Union Theological Seminary, and the minister who married Miss Ann Morrow and Colonel Charles Lindberg, was chairman of the Findings Committee. He presented the report of the group. The report represents, in effect, a summary of the facts brought out at the Institute.

Prominent laymen and clergymen figured at all sessions of the Institute. Mr. Fred W. Ramsey, Cleveland business man who succeeded John R. Mott as executive secretary of the Y. M. C. A. presided. Among the prominent speakers were Dean Luther D. Weigle, of Yale Divinity School; District Attorney Charles H. Tuttle, of New York; Dr. S. Parkes Cadman; Bishop James Cannon, J. Frank Horne, President of the Merchants Refrigerating Association; Ralph W. Gwinn, vice-president of the Penney Gwinn Corporation; and Mrs. Ella Boole, president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

In outlining a program leading toward union, the Institute recommended in its report of the findings committee that the Buck Hill Falls meeting be the first of a series of conferences on the subject of union, that efforts be made to unite the various denominational societies of young people, and that other journals, both religious and secular, co-operate with the Christian Herald in giving publicity to this program.

The complete document is quoted in full as follows:

Report of the Findings Committee The Occasion for the Conference

During the past four years, three great International Conferences have been held on the subject of Christian unity. That of Stockholm in 1925 dealt with questions of life and work. That of Lausanne in 1927 dealt with questions of life and work. That of Jerusalem in 1928 dealt with the missionary responsibility of the Church.

In these Conferences the reasons for unity were considered, its possibilities explored, many misunderstandings and obstacles removed, and a clear conviction was won by representative Christians of many countries and of many branches of the Church that the time has come for some signal step forward. What can be done by conference alone has been sufficiently canvassed; the time has come for action.

Such action to be effective requires not only the consent of the leaders, but the hearty co-operation and support of the Church membership as a whole; but we face the fact that for lack of adequate educational methods the gains made in these central conferences have not yet been shared with the great body of the churches, and, therefore, the resolute will to unity, which is essential to success is not yet present on a nation-wide scale.

This fact is responsible for the calling of the present conference. Unlike the official gatherings already referred to, it is a meeting of individuals called together by a leading interdenominational journal for the purpose, not so much of suggesting new methods of approach to the task which confronts us as of mobilizing the resources which will make possible its accomplishment.

While the Conference has concerned itself primarily with the problem of unity in the United States, we have had ever in mind the fact that the movement in this country is but part of a world-wide movement, the influence of which is being felt on all the Continents. We rejoice in the notable progress that has been made in the cause of unity in the creation of the United Church of Canada, the approaching union of the Presbyterian Churches of Scotland and the Methodist groups of Great Britain, as well as in the movements for unity in the new churches on the mission fields. The goal will not be reached until the Church shall visibly body forth the unity for which the Master prayed.

The Reasons for Unity

The reasons for a United Church have been so often stated that it is difficult to add anything to what is already recognized by all thoughtful Christians. Whether we consider the need of the world for a forceful and united witness to the great moral and religious verities of our Christian faith, or the need of our children and young people for an intelligent and effective Christian education, or the wastefulness of our present ecclesiastical organization with its needless duplication of machinery and its unchristian rivalry and competition; whether we consider the countryside with its many struggling and competing churches or the cities with its teeming population, multitudes of them wholly out of touch with the work and life of the Church, the need of consolidation and unity stares us in the face. How can a church so divided preach unity and brotherhood to a divided world?

Even more compelling are the internal motives to unity. We believe with St. Paul that the Church is the body of Christ. We remember the words of our Lord Jesus when he said, "This do in remembrance of me." We long for the day when Christians of every name and creed shall sit down together at the table of the Lord and the church again present to the world to which it is sent as witness, the spectacle of a united body.

Our conference has brought before us in impressive ways the appalling waste of resources, both material and spiritual, involved in our present system of church administration. The fact that many of our ministers are imperfectly trained, inadequately paid, exposed to heart breaking and unnecessary competition while vast sums of money are wasted in unnecessary duplication, excessive plant and uneconomical administration, while the children go untaught, ill-taught and the congregations are imperfectly served—these are matters with which the laymen in the Church should seriously concern themselves and in which the ministry will heartily welcome their help.

This is the more necessary because our young people entering life under conditions wholly different from their parents cannot understand the reasons which make such a situation possible and will only be reached by a church which deals with present living issues in a practical modern way.

Only if we face seriously these practical problems in the country, in the nation and in the Church shall we be able to overcome the most serious of all the foes of unity, viz., the self-satisfied spirit which is content with things as they are and stubbornly resists all change.

It is clear that in our approach to the task before us we must distinguish clearly between the problem of unity as it presents itself to those who are separated by sincere difficulties are practical and personal. It is futile to seek organic unity with Christians of the first type until we have done what is practicable to secure unity between Christians of the second type.

Progress Made Toward Unity

We rejoice in the steps that have already been taken in the direct of church co-operation and unity. Heartening progress has already been made in the federation of hitherto separated churches, in the local community, in the state, and in the nation. Many congregations which have hitherto been worshipping in separate buildings have been united in community churches. Useful steps have been taken, and are still being taken, in co-ordinating and simplifying our ecclesiastical machinery and in great central bodies like the Foreign Missions Conference, the Council of Women for Home Missions, the Home Missions Council, the Council of Church Boards of Education, the International Council of Religious Education, Federation of Women's boards, Federated Council of Women's Foreign Missions and the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America—the Church possesses agencies through which it is functioning effectively in matters of common interest.

But useful and necessary as are all these steps, we are convinced that they are not enough. Our existing methods are too cumbersome. The authority granted to the central bodies is too limited to make possible effective action on the scale that is now imperatively demanded. With all recognition of the great values for which the denominations have stood, values without which the whole Church would be appreciably poor, we feel that the time has come when the differences between the denominations are no longer such as should keep us apart. Some of these differences have been outgrown. In other cases the distinctive points of view have been accepted by other bodies. No denomination today has a monopoly of the truth for which it originally came into being. We hold, therefore, that some form of union is necessary today, in order to secure a more efficient Church and release for more constructive purposes the resources now frequently wasted as a result of there being too many weak, impoverished, ill-equipped churches, with inadequately trained leadership.

This does not mean that organic union on a world-wide scale is immediately practicable. The difficulties in the way are too great and the sincere differences of conviction too deep-seated to make the advocacy of any complete plan practicable, but it does mean that whatever steps we now take should be regarded not as the measure of final attainment but only as steps toward a goal which will unfold as we proceed.

We record with gratitude the fact that in the discussion at Lausanne it was definitely recognized that whatever form unity may ultimately take, it must be such as to make room for a wide measure of variety and conserve the values for which each of the great permanent types of Christians stand. The unity we seek, far from being inconsistent with liberty must conserve it as its most priceless possession.

Some Obstacles to be Overcome

The obstacles which must be overcome if the goal is to be reached are of four main kinds:

1. Differences of conviction as to the nature of the Church.
2. The inherent difficulty of changing methods which have become familiar and through which values are being reached.
3. The difficulty which arises from vested interests.
4. The social, racial, and psychological barriers.
5. The provincial spirit which takes pride in local success and lacks imagination to realize the larger issues.

Ways of Approach

Two lines of progress seem immediately apparent, both of which important steps are already being taken.

1. The reunion of separated bodies of related national families.
2. The strengthening of existing co-operative bodies to the point where instead of being, as at present, consultative bodies, they become administrative bodies doing for all the churches the things that can be done together.

We are glad to record the fact that some unions have already been consummated in A notable example is that of the United Lutheran and others are under contemplation.

In the matter of practical co-operation a notable progress is being made. We need only work now being done by the Federal Council of Churches, state and city councils, Federation of Women for Foreign Missions, Home Missions Council, Council of Women for Home Missions, the Council of Religious Education and other agencies which are carrying on effective co-operative work in various fields. But this is only the beginning. What if in each of the larger centers of our country a manding enterprise of interdenominational character could be carried on, not by an individual but in the name of the Church as a whole?

If union is necessary in the home field necessary is it in the foreign field where we have the new churches which are arising in the world. We earnestly commend to the churches which support the different boards that they put no obstacle in the way of a more united Church in these lands, but on the other hand their boards through the Foreign Missions Councils to co-operate in every possible way in the desired consummation.

So far as the larger questions of principle are concerned which grow out of differences in the church, we recommend the continuation of the points which now divide us. But in the future we urge with all the force which is at our command that there be the largest possible co-operation in practical matters which do not involve the Church, to the end that our witness to the world be as impressive and united as possible. Such progress in federations or councils has been definitely achieved by the highest authorities both of the Anglican and Orthodox Churches, and there seems no reason why it should not be made immediately effective in our States.

Specific Suggestions

Pending the complete working out of a program, we have the following specific suggestions:

- (a) We recognize the contribution of the United Church movement in making to the Christian Unity, but we call attention to the fact that this movement establishing and maintaining connection with the missionary, benevolent, and other enterprises of the church as a whole. As this end we note with satisfaction the relationship established between the community churches of the Federal Council and Home Missions Council.
- (b) That in order to hasten the improvement in the weaker communities and to strengthen the strong state federations or Home Missions Councils which relate the resources of the churches to those that are weaker.
- (c) That we encourage new experimentation between different denominations or if successful, may afterwards be repeated on a larger scale.
- (d) That a study be made of the possibility of the business services of the various denominational bodies in the interest of greater efficiency.
- (e) That in this coming year a preliminary study be made of the possibility of bringing about a closer relationship between the various Young People's Societies toward the establishment of a United Young People's Movement.
- (f) We commend the co-operative work done in the field of religious education, but it should be greatly extended and that it should be to all ages and groups. We suggest to the Council of Religious Education the preparation of courses dealing with Church unity.
- (g) We believe that a great service may be done by our existing religious journals by enlarging their readers and of other journals.
- (h) We recommend that as an aid in carrying out the plan of unity, which is our greatest present task, publicity be given to the gains which will result from the consolidation of our at present divided resources.
- (i) We rejoice in the growing interest of our students in the movement for unity, and ies that this movement be adequately studied arics and that provision be made through urses on a wide scale for informing the min-ave already been graduated as to what is this field.

w of the fact that 1930 marks the closing Nineteenth Centenary of the public ministry well as the Nineteenth Centenary of Pente-nment to the appropriate denominational and tional agencies the propriety of making programs for conference, study, and prayer
rch unity.

Suggested Program for the Institute

est the next Institute shall undertake an he various proposed forms of unity with ce to their practical bearing upon the present Church.

hat the impetus gained in this Institute may e recommend further that it be but the first conferences dealing with the subject of specific difficulties shall be considered, and and co-operation be sought of these who osition to help to overcome these difficulties.
nd that special effort be made to include resent those who are now opposed to the a united church. Such conferences it is minate in a national conference not unlike holm and at Lausanne in which a definite e mapped out in which the churches of the e invited to co-operate.

mmend as a further contribution to this next Institute consider the possible ways
g under more unified auspices of the exist-e agencies among the denominations.

mmend that next year there be invited to tstitute the representatives of the Federal mission on Structure and Function, the bers of the Stockholm and Lausanne Committees and representatives of the American the Jerusalem Conference.

me the co-operation of the Christian Her-blicity to the program of the Institute and far as possible the co-operation of other religious and secular.

t we have said we have been deeply con-tever we do in the way of improving adchinery will be futile if it does not spring and passionate conviction of the import-e which we seek to promote. The church
God exists for the purpose of helping men erywhere to realize the presence of God acts for individual and for social life. We for the churches to which we belong and as a whole such a revival of this living esence of God as shall make it a fact to ay and shall help the church to realize its ility as the body of Christ the agency
His spirit is conveyed to the spirits of

BEHIND THE SCENES"

imate and friendly story of the organizaistration of the foreign missionary work erian Church in the United States, from at the birth of our denomination in 1861
e cause including features of both home issions, down to the present day. The S. H. Chester, now secretary emeritus of ndence of our Executive Committee of
ns. His continuous service since 1893 as a secretary, though under varying designahim to speak with knowledge and author-ter traces the gradual formulation of a foreign missionary policy, as situations

d in this country were faced and solved.
r in promoting a true perspective, and as handles with diplomacy, knowledge, and ed skein of history that led to important ee actors of the past, giants and some of who had a part in causing or in deterds of procedure throughout the years.

Scenes," therefore, has to do with pioner permitted a glimpse into the heart of of other devoted executives in this departurch's activities. As we come to a better of their high motives in difficult crises, ll more justly appraise the generous con-h one of them in the great adventure of on of the world. Doctor Chester presents t charity and good will, and withal a defwhimsical humor, certain situations that d even epochal, but that must have been easant to those participating.

ailing candor and strict adherence to his-Doctor Chester includes in his book the omen who contributed officially, through Committee of Foreign Missions, to the e foundations for the ultimate structure ed woman's work of our Church. He aps do few others, the difficulties encounfoundations; and the misunderstandings, aking, endured by the women who in of God were associated in the earlier our women's and young people's mission-one of those mentioned, this courteous or Chester, and the honor of inclusion eeply appreciated. I am sure that I may e of us who are left, to the great privi-
s in participating in this pioneer service,

Rev. Ernest Trice Thompson, D.D.

Lesson for August 4

BELSHAZZAR'S FEAST (Temperance Lesson)

Daniel 5:1-31

We began to study last week the story of Daniel. We saw that he was carried captive into Babylonia when he was about 14 years old; that he and other noble Jewish youths were educated at the King's expense in the Royal Academy, in order that they might be trained in the wisdom of the 'Chaldeans' and serve the King; that Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with the King's dainties, but would be true to the God of his fathers. We saw further that when the period of training was over Daniel was found to exceed all the other graduates of the school in skill and ability; that he entered the King's service and proved himself to be 'ten times better' than all the magicians and astrologers and enchanters that were in the realm; that after he had disclosed and interpreted Nebuchadnezzar's forgotten dream he was made ruler of the province of Babylon, and head of the college of Wise Men.

We gather that Daniel retained his high position during the whole of the long brilliant reign of Nebuchadnezzar. Finally after a reign of 43 years that powerful monarch died (561 B.C.). With him the glory of Babylon began to fail. No successor of his upon the throne attained any note. His immediate successor was his son Evil-Merodach (Cf. 2 Kings 25:27ff). One of his first acts was to set the captive Jehoiachin at liberty and to assign him the position which captives of his station in life were accustomed to hold at the conqueror's court. Perhaps it was Daniel who influenced Evil-Merodach to perform this act of kindness toward the royal prisoner. After a 'lawless and dissolute reign' of two years, however, Evil-Merodach was assassinated by his brother-in-law, Neriglissar, who then seized the throne. After reigning four years he was succeeded by his youthful son, Labaschi-marduk, who on account of the evil qualities which he displayed, was after nine months beaten to death by his friends. The conspirators then placed one of their own number Nabonaid on the throne, better known to us as Nabonidus. Nabonidus was the last king of Babylon. He was still on the throne when the city was taken by Cyrus in 538 B. C.

Who then was Belshazzar, who according to the Bible account was king in Babylon? Critics for a time thought that the Biblical account was incorrect. It finally appeared however from archaeological discoveries in the plans of Babylon that Nabonidus had a son named Belshazzar, who was indeed the crown prince. It was still objected that the Bible improperly speaks of him as king. More recent discoveries, however, have shown that royal dignity was in fact conferred upon Belshazzar. According to one inscription "He (Nabonidus) intrusted a camp to his eldest, his first born son; the troops of the land he sent with him. He freed his hand; he intrusted the kingship to him." "That is," says Doctor Montgomery in the I. C. C., "in the early part of Nabonidus' reign, in his third year, his son was invested with royal dignity, which in view of the active position he held throughout the subsequent years, must have continued throughout his life. That is, the Bible story is correct as to the rank of kingship given to Belshazzar."

It was during the joint reign then of Nabonidus and Belshazzar that the kingdom of Babylon came to an end. The kingdom had been weakened internally by the frequent conspiracies and factions within the city. At the same time a new power was rising on the Eastern horizon. Before Nabonidus came to the throne a formidable insurrection had already broken out in the East of Babylonia which finally resulted in the supremacy of Persia as the dominant power of the world. Nabonidus was a quiet, unwarlike king and was totally unable to cope with this new power dominated by Cyrus, one of the most powerful personages of the ancient world. He seems to have entrusted the leadership of his armies largely to the leadership of Belshazzar. Year by year, however, Cyrus advanced upon the city, until finally in the 17th year of Nabonidus' reign Babylon fell without a struggle into the hands of the conqueror. Nabonidus was absent at the time with his armies in the field. Belshazzar in command withdrew with his army into the temple Esag-lia, a great fortress within the city of Babylon. Cyrus' general, Gubaru, the governor of Gutium, who had led and also to the unfailing understanding and co-operation of Doctor Chester in all phases of the work.

The story ends appropriately with the confident assurance of that day, far off or near we do not know, when "The kingdom of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord and of His Christ, and He shall reign forever and ever."

Will you not order the book from our Nashville Committee, to which Doctor Chester has given his work as a labor of love? Read it; and arrange for its use as a textbook next winter in our young people's and women's organizations.

Barbara E. Lambdin, Washington, D. C.

his troops into the city began immediately the siege of the fortress. Several weeks went by. The fortress was still holding out. Then there took place the stirring incidents that we have for our present lesson.

Read now chapter 5:1-31. Visualize the story as you read it. Read it through again and again until you picture the whole story in your mind's eye.

I. The Hand Writing on the Wall—5:1-12

Belshazzar the king, we read made a great feast to a thousand of his lords. It was a most inopportune time for a revel. The city of Babylon had been entered by the armies of Cyrus. They were now pressing savagely about the walls of the fortress in which Belshazzar and his lords had taken refuge. The defenders needed to be on their guard, and to have their wits about them. To give an oriental feast which ended always in a drunken debauch, and stole away the senses of men, was foolhardy to say the least. It seems a tremendous banquet to us, a thousand lords, but there is nothing surprising in the number of guests. Eastern monarchs were accustomed to do things in a magnificent style. One of the Persian emperors fed 15,000 men daily from his tables. To a brilliant international wedding festival Alexander the Great invited 10,000 guests.

Ordinarily the oriental monarch dined in a separate hall, his magnates in another. But on festal occasions he dined sitting at a separate table opposite his guests. So here, Belshazzar drank wine before the thousand, we can imagine from what we know of Persian banqueting halls on a raised dais at the end of the banqueting hall.

Doctor Driver brings out the real force of verse two. "When Belshazzar began to feel the influence of the wine," he commanded to bring the golden and silver vessels which Nebuchadnezzar his father [used here loosely for predecessor on the throne] had taken out of the temple which was in Jerusalem. Under the circumstances this was an act of wanton and defiant impiety. The vessels of gold and silver from the temple in Jerusalem were the only tangible remains of Israel's ancient worship, and were, therefore, uniquely sacred to the Jewish mind. Cf. Is. 52:11; Ezra. 1:7ff. As Doctor Driver points out, the king must have lost his sense of decency to commit what is to the Oriental view a sacrilege even with the holy things of another religion. Ordinarily women were not allowed at such feasts. But in this case they were all there, the king and his wives and his concubines, i. e. not only his actual consorts but also the inferior class of harem women. Together as the drunken debauch proceeded they drank out of the sacred vessels of the temple. To make it worse, as they drank they praised the gods of gold and silver, of brass, of iron, of wood and of stone; i. e. they offered the customary libations, and sang appropriate snatches of song, jocular and ribald, in celebration of the gods of wine and joy.

Dr. Wm. M. Taylor describes graphically the sudden interruption. "Fast flew the hours and boisterous was the mirth. Merrily the laughter went round and the cup was passed from hand to hand. Who cares though the Mede be at the gates and all around the walls? Are there not two years provisions within the city? Let fear be laughed to scorn, or drowned in the flowing bowl. On with the revelry; let it know no pause till the morning light. But ah! what means the sudden lull in the noisy revel—that break in the madness of mirth? Each eye runs along the hall, and in a moment all are fixed upon the king. Wildly he looks, with fixed and steady glare, upon the wall before him, his eyeballs almost starting from their sockets. Big beadlike drops of perspiration stand upon his forehead; a deathly paleness sits upon his countenance; the uplifted goblet falls from his palsied hands and his knees smite one upon another. 'The king! The king! what aileth him' is now the cry. But he gives no verbal answer. He simply points, with a new shudder of agony to the spot on which his gaze is fixed; and as they look there with him they too see the fingers of a hand tracing solemnly and slowly mysterious characters upon the wall." Quoted from Peloubet's Select Notes.

From what we know of Persian banquet halls the royal table was set on a dais and against a wall, and that quarter of the hall was lit with a great candelabrum, the light of which was reflected on the plastered wall behind the royal seat. It was here, reclining, and not sitting, that the king saw not the arm, but just the fingers of a mysterious hand, moving and writing. Verse 6 reads literally 'the king's brightness was changed in him,' i. e. he grew pale with fear. 'His thoughts troubled him' is too weak; rather 'his thoughts alarmed him.' 'His joints were loosened' is the Biblical way of saying that he trembled violently and could not stand steady.

Then at last the king found his voice. He cried aloud, literally, 'with might,' to bring in the enchanters, the Chaldeans (i. e. wise men) and the soothsayers. They came but he could be sure without waste of time. Why was Daniel not among them? That is a little surprising at first. But Daniel was now an old man, at least 80 years old, perhaps it took him a little longer than the others to arrive on the scene, or perhaps he was on the retired list, or perhaps he had fallen out of favor with the weak successors of the great Nebuchadnezzar. As soon as the wise men appeared Belshazzar appealed to them to read the writing, offering a great reward to the one who succeeded. He should be clothed in purple, the royal color; he should wear a chain of gold about his neck—among oriental monarchs this was a great compliment or mark of distinction; he should become the third ruler in the

(Continued on page 8)

THORNWELL ORPHANAGE

It has recently been our privilege to visit Thornwell Orphanage. The most famous of all the Southern Presbyterian Orphanages. The place that Dr. W. P. Jacobs brought to the attention of the entire nation. The place that has a large part in the history of our church, and whose very name brings up hallowed memories. This Institution has, for a long time, been the leader of all the Southern Presbyterian Orphanages.

On our former visit there and on the visit of the President and his members of staff from Thornwell, we have always been content to take a second place and we did this without any feeling of inferiority but rather a pride that we stand second to this grand old institution. That we could stand next in line as regards size, with the hope that we could approach her in ideals and in achievements.

On this particular visit we were introduced on one occasion as being from Barium Springs, the place that now leads the Southern Presbyterian Orphanages in size, having taken that place in front of Thornwell Orphanage.

On first thought this introduction would seem to cause us to be filled with a feeling of sadness rather than that of exultation that we heard this introduction.

Barium Springs has not outstripped Thornwell, even in numbers. Barium Springs, in fact, has slumped in this line during the last twelve months. In April, 1927, there were 377 children on the roll at Barium Springs. At the present writing there are 346. A few years ago, Thornwell had close to 390 children. She now has enrolled 317, and we stand as the largest orphanage, not because we have passed her, but because we have retrenched a little bit slower than she has.

When we study the reason back of this retrenchment, then we are saddened. Thornwell is still the delightful place that it has always been. Its buildings show a beauty and a sturdiness that stand for character and comfort, and gives one a feeling of confidence that here the Lord's work is not taken lightly.

The class of work being done in material things as well as spiritual things, that are given the students is on the same high level that has characterized this institution for years.

Applications for admissions, if anything, continue to flow in larger volume than ever before, but still we see a reduction of about eighty children in the number enrolled. Why? The answer is decreased revenue. The same thing that is making those who have the control of Barium Springs, face a situation not unlike that of Thornwell.

It makes them face the question whether they shall lower their standards and do a less worthy job, or whether they shall curtail and do a smaller job? This question must be answered one way or the other or disaster will be inevitable.

It isn't so much that people are giving less to the Orphanage cause, but it seems that they are giving less to their representative orphanages. Small enterprises, both denominational and non-denominational, seem to be springing up all over the country, and they seem to be pretty well financed until they commence to reach a stage where their work is recognized, and should be getting on a firm foundation, when they begin to be left high and dry and the contributions that should support it, swing over to some newer and possibly more primitive enterprise. Thornwell Orphanage is equipped to do a splendid work. It has behind it more than a half century of splendid achievement and experience, and yet, for lack of support that is adequate, it is having to curtail its usefulness; and what is said of Thornwell can be said of Barium Springs.

Barium Springs is a younger institution, having just passed its thirty-eighth birthday. Its buildings, while substantial, do not in every case have the beauty that graces those of her older sister's, Thornwell, and Barium has a long successful history of its own and the example of Thornwell, a most devoted and efficient staff and the most delightful collection of children to be found anywhere.

Is the fact that these two Institutions have to curtail and to close up part of their capacity due to lack of money being contributed for Orphanage work? Cast about in your own minds, and see if you can remember any occasion when you have contributed to a more or less sporadic attempt at Orphanage work that has since dwindled away or is now dwindling away when your own recognized institution is suffering for just that help. Think this over and then go into "Executive Session" with yourself.

Barium Springs, N. C.

J. B. Johnston.

BOOKS

Sweden Hails "Prince Harry"—A Prince is a Prince in Sweden. When Harry A. Franck, "The Prince of Vagabonds," arrived in Stockholm he found his hotel draped with Swedish and American flags. Polite inquiry revealed the fact that this had been done in honor of the visiting "American nobleman!"

"FlowerDown" London Best-Seller—Ann Knox's first novel, "Flowerdown," published here by Century last Fall, is now holding down second place on the English best-seller lists, according to the London Observer. Her second novel, "Vallejo Kitty," a story of San Francisco in the grand old days, will be published in August.

WOMANS AUXILIARY

The Department of Woman's Work, Presbyterian Church, U. S.
270-277 Field Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

SYNODICAL PRESIDENTS OF THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

Alabama—Mrs. J. F. Hooper, 610 Mabry St., Selma, Ala.
Appalachia—Mrs. F. B. Kegley, Wytheville, Va.
Arkansas—Mrs. Walter Wilson, Arkadelphia, Ark.
Florida—Mrs. W. G. Thompson, Jr., 3215 Obispo St., Palma Ceia Park, Tampa, Fla.
Georgia—Mrs. E. G. Abbott, 1315 Eberhart Ave., Columbus, Ga.
Kentucky—Mrs. H. P. Cooper, Lebanon, Ky.
Louisiana—Mrs. Charles L. Bodin, Box 79, M. R. A., Lake Charles, La.
Mississippi—Mrs. J. S. Hicks, Holly Springs, Miss.
Missouri—Mrs. Walter Craven, 223 Frances St., Excelsior Springs, Mo.
North Carolina—Mrs. G. V. Patterson, Gastonia, N. C.
Oklahoma—Mrs. Wilbur Garvin, 611 Euclid, Lawton, Oklahoma.
South Carolina—Mrs. Parker Connor, Edisto Island, S. C.
Tennessee—Mrs. J. F. Forsythe, Bethel Springs, Tenn.
Texas—Mrs. J. W. Culver, Texas Military Academy, San Antonio, Texas.
Virginia—Mrs. C. R. Vaughan, 319 Mountain Ave., Roanoke, Va.
West Virginia—Mrs. J. McD. Lacy, Elkins, W. Va.

A LETTER FROM KOREA

Dear Friends:

It is about two weeks now since my big boy, LeRoy, Jr., left for America. This sending of my child to America was surely hard for no matter what happens to him or how much he might need me I cannot go to him for four years, at which time our furlough will be due. I know now something of the heartache of the parents of those of us who are missionaries when they faced the sending of their children to far away lands.

I know that if someone had undertaken to help me with a piece of work and were to seem aggrieved and downcast because some part of that were very difficult then I would wish that they had never attempted to help me. Now just so I think that Jesus would feel if I could not at this time be brave and cheerful. Nothing on earth except foreign missionary work would ever make me consent to such a separation from a child of mine. But I can and I will do it for Jesus and for the unsaved souls of this land.

I still marvel at the wonderful peace and calm which the Lord has put into this heart of mine and at the way He has supplied me with grace and courage for this parting with my boy. I am impressed anew with the fact that He does not ask us to do anything for Him without giving us the strength necessary for the task if we ask Him for it.

A trained nurse in Seoul, who had her training in a very large American hospital, commented to another nurse that she thought the lack of suffering and the quick recovery from my operation different from anything she had ever seen in a post operative case. I feel that it is explained by the fact that there were hundreds of earnest Christians praying for me and I am most thankful for it. I am much benefited by that operation and I hope by fall to be fit for any kind of work.

Those weeks of enforced rest were good for me but my work has piled up at such an alarming rate that I find myself wishing that there were twenty-four working hours in each day. The children have outgrown all their clothes, my daughter must have some special dresses as she graduates from high school in a few weeks, and I must soon be ready for the housing of six or more guests for about ten days as the annual mission meeting is to be held here in Kwangju; so do you wonder that I find my days full?

Mr. Newland comes in from the country trips and stays one day during which time I put fresh supplies of food and clothing in his load and he is off again, so I see little of him these days. When he returned from a trip last week I told him that a young man from a large village about twenty miles from here had been in to ask him to that village to tell them more about the Saviour as some had heard and had a desire to become Christians. To my surprise Mr. Newland said that while he was in the country he had also had a delegation from another village come and ask that he come and explain the way of salvation to them. Oh, it is a privilege to work for the Master here in Korea.

Every time I look at the great bunch of unanswered letters I cannot help worrying for I know it is physically impossible to do the work which I must do in the next few weeks and write letters too. Last night I was telling one of my fellow missionaries how hopeless I felt about my unanswered correspondence and she said that my friends would understand if I explained, and would be willing to accept a letter through Nashville. So if you will forgive my not sending a separate letter to each of you but let me have a copy of this sent to you from Nashville it will help me so much when I surely do need help. Please accept this as an answer to your letter and write to me again when you can find the time.

We are all rejoicing over a letter from the Executive Committee in which they say they will send out missionaries to take the place of those who through death or ill health have had to lay down the work and whose work has had to be put over on to already over-burdened missionaries. To hear that we are to soon have a trained nurse here in Kwangju is indeed good news. Do pray that the opened for a number of these workers this fall.

And please won't you pray for an one who lives in Kobe, Japan. I met him as ing through there three years ago and spoke to him about accepting Christ. He in the Orient since 1869 and has not n live and yet he is not prepared to go. and I have prayed during these years you to pray with me for this old man Connor. He has changed much in his makes me feel that the Spirit must be old man's heart.

Letters from you friends at home tell are praying for us and our work make backed up by those prayers nothing Working together let's do great things in this land!

Sincerely yours,

Sarah Andrews

Received at Nashville, Tenn., June 11
Address: Mrs. L. T. Newland, Kwangju
Postage: Letters five cents, postcards

DR. R. P. SMITH TO BE HO

Women of Asheville Presbyterian Plan perintendent Emeritus of Home M
Presbytery

At the recent meeting of the Women Asheville Presbytery, a movement was for celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary sufficient to endow a scholarship treat Normal School at Montreat, N. C. as the R. P. Smith Memorial Scholarship honoring a man known and beloved to Synod of Appalachia because of his love for others.

For more than thirty years Dr. Smith identified with the Home Mission work Presbytery, and during all this time he tensely interested in providing a Christ for worthy boys and girls.

It is hoped that a sum may be raised large to endow a perpetual scholarship each year some deserving girl from Asheville may be enabled to have the benefit of the training offered by the Montreat

The following plan has been devised: Blessing boxes will be furnished all have a part in this love-gift, which is voluntary, and it is hoped that every member of Asheville Presbytery, and any others who have a part, may take one of these into it any amount—no set sum is asked.

The request is made that every gift be by a prayer for God's blessing upon the scholarship thus endowed.

The Blessing Boxes are to be opened meetings of the local auxiliaries next money is to be sent to the Presbytery Mrs. C. A. Thomas, Box 598, Asheville to be presented at a special service Smith, in April 1930, when Asheville Presbytery be celebrating its silver anniversary.

Blessing boxes may be secured upon any member of the committee having charge.

Mrs. C. E. Dorsey, Montreat
Mrs. W. A. Ward, 19 Soco St.
Mrs. J. G. McGraw, Black Mt.
Mrs. J. W. S. Davis, Andrew
Mrs. W. W. Garmany, Hen
Miss Grace Bowles, Waynes
Mrs. C. L. Glasner, Candler.

KEEPING OPEN HEA

My home is not so great;
But open heart I keep.
The sorrows come to me,
That they may sleep.

The little bread I have
I share, and gladly pray
Tomorrow may give more,
To give away.

Yes, in the dark sometimes
The childish fear will haunt
How long, how long, before
I die of want?

But all the bread I have,
I share, and ever say,
Tomorrow shall bring more
To give away.

The British

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPT.

EDITOR'S LOOKOUT

V. A. Gamble, Pinetops, N. C.

mediate Christian Endeavor Society of First Church, Fort Smith, Ark., has had two interesting meetings lately.

Charles Wheeler led a "Live Wire Meeting" upon entering the room. A very mysterious poster was on the blackboard which concenter word, "Phdtsehm."

announced that a prize would be given the who discovered the meaning of the new prize, a copy of Hoffman's "Christ in the won by Eugene Trimble. The word was ng the first letter of each number on the ture of the program was the election of ive Wire." Bill Mapes, Jr., who was at- oung People's Conference at Petit Jean, sly elected.

r, the society gave a debate on "Resolved, r Meeting Committee Does More to Make Society than the Social Committee." The e was upheld by Lawrence Hobson and le, the negative by Charles Wheeler and r. The negative side was declared winner vo to one. The Scout Master, a father, and posed the committee of three judges.

ture of the program was the presentation edge to the society "Live Wire."

a closed with a consecration meeting.

Patterson is sponsor for the society.

RESOLUTIONS COMMITTEE AT MARLE PRESBYTERY'S FIRST YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONFERENCE

Washington, N. C., July 8-13, 1929

ng people of Albemarle Presbytery, having d of our first presbyterial young people's ire to express our sincere gratitude and e who have helped make the conference the ve it has been:

H. McLean, who originated the idea and ference to Washington.

nnette Grainger and Rev. W. A. Gamble, d upon whose shoulders the responsibilities

D. Fletcher, president of Washington Col- e, Mrs. Fletcher, and their helpers, who possible, and a little more, to make our rd of Trustees of Washington Collegiate so kindly let us enjoy the use of the W. C.

sellors and Faculty, who through their fel- andly guidance have added to our pleasure

nie Martin, graduate nurse, whose white iet efficiency gave us a feeling of perfect

W. Doggett and Mrs. M. G. Lyerly, who, of the recreation, entertained us with games ities of interest.

peakers and leaders, whose inspiring mes- never forget.

. Sweets, Executive Secretary of Christian sending to us Miss Ellen G. Wilson to le teaching.

pp, who was so kind as to take us on his wn the beautiful Pamlico river, even if it at by no means least, to "Aunt Betty," service and singing delighted us all.

Clara Winston, Chairman, Resolutions Committee.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPIC

g. 4—"God's Love and Care"—Matt. 2; Psalm 8; Psalm 29; Psalm 93

Leader

of August is the last of vacation months, take their recreation period during this take any at all. The topics for discussion ggest the vacation idea, and are meant to the thought of God while we are free to e, and are not cumbered with duties such e usual program for everyday life.

e will go to the country where they may e fields and woods. Others may go to the behold new phases of God's creation. The claim many in camps and conferences. ve go, let us use the opportunity to reflect his works. His care and love are suggested today.

ations and Their Temptations

ught to take a vacation during the sum- e. Vacations are intended to give us a rest ymary toil and thought. As young people we like a lot of movement and change of scene, and by taking a vacation we get these changes. We see new people, hear new topics, do different things from what we are accustomed, come on different ideas, and life takes on phases we perhaps never suspected.

All these things are good enough, but they bring their temptations. One temptation is to neglect our Bibles. We may put them in our traveling bags, and never look at them. We sometimes forget to pray, and one special opportunity vacations bring is that of meditation on holy things, and getting a good look at ourselves, to see who we are, what we do, and what we should do and be. Many people on vacation neglect the church, but if there is a church near us we should visit it. We not only have a chance to worship God, but we get a new viewpoint of religion from strangers.

Let us not misuse our vacations, but make them count in our spiritual growth.

The Bible Teaches God's Love and Care

As we read our Bibles in vacation, we might read those parts that particularly teach about God's love and care. As we observe new features of nature and life, we may reflect on the illustrations they afford of how God shows his love and how he takes care of his creatures. Our next topic is "Seeing God in Nature," so we may then consider the subject more closely of how God is shown by the study of nature. We might use the first of our vacation meditations to reflect on the general subject of God's love and care. And especially we think of how God has cared for us each one.

Our Birth and Rearing Shows God's Care

Suppose I am on my vacation, on the road to where I shall spend by rest period. Would it not be a good thing to think of what God has done for me? Look at my home, the family in which I was born, my parents and the many things they transferred to me from their own lives, the example they have set for me, the sacrifices they have made in my behalf, the good things they have given me which I have enjoyed, the joys of the family circle, the friendships of father and mother, brothers and sisters, the opportunities that have come to me for service and help in my home. Many things like these might occupy my thoughts as I travel on my way to have a good time. Perhaps the money I am spending was given me by those that love me and want me to have a good and profitable vacation.

Our Education Shows God's Care

We may be in high school or college, and are looking forward to returning to our books in September. While we were busy in school with problems in mathematics, with language lessons, and with science studies, we did not have time to reflect on what these things were contributing to our lives. But now, as we are not crowded with study and preparation for daily classes, let us run over the things we learned. Do we see how they fit into our lives and characters? All the thoughts in our books are good for us. They have expanded our minds, and trained us for use. We shall be all the readier for work and achievement when we come to our serious duties in life. Let us think of how God has arranged our education and given us opportunities of mental growth.

God's Providence Over Us

Another thing we may think of is how God has watched over us and brought us to this time of life. You can recall the serious illness you had, some contagious child's disease, maybe an epidemic in which many children were afflicted, some died, some were crippled for life, but you got well, and are now rejoicing in good health, with strong bodies, fine appetites, ready to enjoy everything. Perhaps you were preserved in an accident, or God has brought prosperity to your parents, you have had many things to give you pleasure. Let us take this vacation period to think of all God has done for us, and be thankful.

Making Our Vacation Worth While

We may make our vacations worthwhile by giving time for reflection on the things that count. God wants us to be happy, but he knows, as we do, that we cannot be negligent and sinful away from home and then try to act different when we get back. What we do will doubtless get back home, too, and we do not want to be ashamed of our record in vacation.

Let us determine then that we will have a good time, but not at the expense of our good ideals and good habits, and have to regret things we wish we had not done.

AUTHORSHIP OF ISAIAH

According to Jewish tradition Isaiah perished by the hands of wicked men in being sawn asunder. Other men have "sawn him asunder" in a different way. We mean the so-called "Higher Critics," who are destructive critics. Did Isaiah really write this Book? Are there not evidences that more than one man is the author? These and other questions have been raised and answered by these men who boast of superior scholarship, and seem to think they have more knowledge in these matters than the Lord Jesus Christ had when He was dwelling here on the earth.

For nearly 2,500 years there seems to be no record of any one who suggested that Isaiah did not write the whole of the book which bears his name. The destructive criticism of the book began about 1780 when the genuineness of Chapter 1 was attacked. And now these critics have invented a Deutero-Isaiah, that is a second Isaiah, who should have written the second part which comprises chapters XL-LXVI. And now another set of

"scholars" have discovered that there was a third, or Trito-Isaiah, who wrote chapters LV-LXVI.

What does all this mean? And why do they say that Isaiah could not have written certain passages, because it was beyond his horizon, or that he could not have mentioned Cyrus by name over 150 years before he was born? Is it not the product of that subtle infidelity which would get rid of the supernatural altogether? Evidently that is at the bottom of it all. To admit that Daniel wrote the book of Daniel, and that Isaiah wrote the whole of the book of Isaiah at the time when the first verse of the book says he wrote it, would be to admit the supernatural, and hence the invention of the critics to explain it all away.

In his treatment of the Sunday School lesson for Sunday, June 30th, we regret to note that Dr. Ernest Trice Thompson leaves the impression that he agrees with the so-called "Higher Critics." We do not mean to say that he does agree with them, nor do we mean to hint that Doctor Thompson is a Modernist, but we do regret that the trend of the times, even with many ministers, is toward that Modernism which denies the infallibility of the Bible, and so we regret that Doctor Thompson did not take his position plainly on the side of those who believe that the quotations by Jesus Christ and the apostles in the New Testament from Isaiah, and the first verse of the first chapter, are sufficient evidence that there was only one Isaiah who wrote the book bearing his name.

In the Presbyterian Standard of June 19, treating the lesson for June 30, Doctor Thompson gives as his fifth heading: "The Second Isaiah: A Prophet Who Comforted His People." And a little farther down he says: "The second Isaiah began his ministry with words of comfort, Is. 40:1-11."

And we also noticed in the treatment of the lesson for June 23, the 103rd Psalm, which is found in the Standard of June 12, Doctor Thompson seems to agree with modern scholars who wish to put this Psalm at a later date than that of the time of David. At least that is the impression which his comments made upon us. The part we refer to is this: "According to the inscription printed in our Bibles it is a psalm of David. We need to remember, however, that the inscriptions are no real part of the Bible, and are often inaccurate. Almost all modern scholars are convinced that the psalm under consideration was written much later than David, etc."

Let us be careful that we do not even seem to sanction the conclusions of the destructive critics when there is no necessity for doing so.

Linden, N. C.

June 28.

D. M. Clark.

THE REAL MAN

A real man never talks about what the world owes him, the happiness he deserves and the chances he ought by right to have, and all that.

A real man is just as honest in the dark in his own room as he is in public.

A real man does not want pulls and favors. He wants work and honest wages.

A real man does not want something for nothing, so the get-rich-quick people can not use him.

A real man does a little more than he promises.

A real man is loyal to his friends and guards their reputation as his own.

A real man minds his own business. He does not judge other persons beyond sure knowledge, not presuming to "search hearts."

A real man has excuses for others, never for himself. He is patient and charitable to others; to himself he is strict.

A real man does not hunt danger, but never dodges it when he ought to meet it.

A real man is glad to live and not afraid to die.—Exchange.

BOOKS

Colonel Powell Exploring Canada—Colonel E. Alexander Powell, the intrepid world traveler whose book on India and Nepal, "The Last Home of Mystery," was published by Century this Spring, is now on his way through Canada gathering material for a new book to be published early next year. "After a fortnight on the salmon streams of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia," he writes his publishers, "we head west, reaching Calgary in time for the annual Stampede, which, I am told, is one of the most colorful gatherings on the continent. Then to Banff for the big Indian pow-wow, to Lake Louise, Vancouver, Sitka, and down the Yukon to Dawson City, returning via Prince Rupert, the Canadian National and by airplane to Hudson's Bay."

New Novel of Backstage Life—Vera Caspary's novel of the circus, vaudeville and musical comedy stage, "Ladies and Gents," will be published by Century in August. Miss Caspary's first novel, "The White Girl," was one of the most praised novels of last season.

O'Dare May Speak from Pulpit—Dr. Christian F. Reisner, pastor of the famous Broadway Tabernacle in New York City, has invited Kain O'Dare, the literary jaibird who wrote, "Philosophy of the Dusk," Century, recently, to occupy his pulpit as guest preacher on some Sunday morning. The publishers are still uncertain whether or nor O'Dare will accept this unusual invitation.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

(Continued from page 5)

kingdom, Nabonidus first, Belshazzar second, he third. But even with this incentive the wise men could not read the writing nor make known to him the interpretation.

This probably does not mean that the wisemen could not read the inscription, but only that they could get no meaning out of it. Literally it signified as the enchanters were probably able to make out, three weights, the first being repeated for emphasis; thus: "A Mina, A Mina, A Shekel, A Half-Mina." The wise men could make nothing at all of such an inscription. They had to admit that they were baffled. The king naturally was more distressed than ever.

Then it was that the queen having heard of the disturbance came into the banquet hall. We must understand that this was not the reigning queen, the wife of Belshazzar, or even of his father, Nabonidus; she was rather the queen mother. In oriental courts the queen mother had a great deal of influence in the court, much more than the wife of the monarch, and could take many more liberties. Doctor Driver thinks that the queen here spoken of was the widow of Nebuchadnezzar. She sweeps into the room, addresses the king with the usual salutation, O King, live forever, and reminds him that during the times of Nebuchadnezzar there was a man of pre-eminent ability, whom Nebuchadnezzar made master of all the magicians, enchanters, Chaldeans and soothsayers in the kingdom. "Let this man be called," she said, "and he will show the interpretation." The King acted promptly on this wise suggestion, and Daniel was brought before the King.

II. Daniel's Interpretation of the Mysterious Writing 5:13-3

Daniel was meeting Belshazzar for the first time. The king graciously repeated to him the reports that had come to him of his skill, giving the credit it may be noted to the gods of Babylon, and not to Jehovah, the God of Israel. Then he repeated the magnificent offer that he had made to the wise men—the purple robe, the chain of gold, the third place in the kingdom.

Daniel proudly rejected the proffered honors. He declared that he would read the writing, but that he would do so quite irrespectively of any promise made to him by the heathen king. Let thy gifts be to thyself, i. e. keep your gifts,—that was a most unusual refusal in the orient, or anywhere else for that matter. As Doctor Wells writes: "Nebuchadnezzar was a prince whose character commanded respect; from him Daniel could and did receive 'rewards'; Belshazzar was not. Daniel, therefore, declined his offer with the protest of one grown gray in the service of his adopted country against the pride and sacrilege that he was compelled to witness. There is more of respectful than of indignant pity in the words of his protest."

If it took character to refuse the gifts of the king, it certainly took courage to rebuke the powerful monarch in the presence of his lords. Yet that is exactly what Daniel proceeded to do; his words are a conclusive indictment of the royal frivolity and sacrilege. It is balanced in two parts: (1) 17ff, Thou, O King—the Highest God, gave thy father the kingdom and greatness and glory, etc., describing how Nebuchadnezzar reached the acme of glory only to be degraded because of his pride down into the depths. The reference is to the temporary insanity of Nebuchadnezzar which is described in Chap. 4:28f. He actually seems to have considered himself a wild beast. And (2) 22ff And Thou his son didst not humble thy heart, although thou knewest all this. Doctor Montgomery says there is no finer example of the preacher's diction in the Bible than this stern and inexorable condemnation. Cf. Nathan's indictment of his royal master, 1 Sam. 12. In this case unlike that of David or Nebuchadnezzar neither pardon nor respite is offered to the light-minded monarch, for he had known. Thou knewest all this, and yet hast lifted up thyself against the Lord of Heaven. And then followed the interpretation of the writing. It will help us to understand the mystery better if we keep in mind the fact that in the Semitic languages the vowels were omitted, and words could have more than one meaning. We might note also that the 'u' Upharsin (25) simply means 'and,' and that Pharsin is the plural of Peres (28) Mina, the weight, is nearly the same as the Aramaic word for 'numbered.' To Daniel's quick mind, it suggested the interpretation: God hath numbered thy kingdom and brought it to an end. Tekel, the Aramaic word for shekel, is almost exactly the same as the word for weighed. It suggested the interpretation: Thou are weighed in the balances and found wanting. Pharsin, half minas, or peres, a half mina points allusively to a double interpretation: 'Thy kingdom is divided (peris) and given to the Medes and Persians (Aramaic paras). Belshazzar proceeded to give Daniel the promised reward. Perhaps Daniel thought it useless to protest. For that night Belshazzar the Chaldean king was slain. And Darius the Mede received the kingdom being about threescore and two years old. This sudden night attack is in accordance with the 'Annalistic Tablet' of Cyrus found by Mr. Pinches in 1879. After describing the taking of Babylon as narrated. In the introduction the tablet describes the taking of the great fortress as follows: "On the 11th day of Marcheshvan, during the night, Gugaru made an assault and slew the king's son." Herodotus and Xenophon also tell us how Cyrus diverted the Euphrates into a great basin, on a night when he heard that there was a festival in Babylon in which all the Babylonians drank and reveled and then entered the city by the dry channel. Because of the revelry the attack was completely successful. According to Cyrus' own story the city was not taken in exactly this way, but perhaps the later historians were a little confused and mixed the taking of the city and that of the fortress. Granting this confusion there is a wonderful agreement with the Biblical account. It is a little more difficult to place Darius the Mede. The Persian King was Cyrus. The general who entered the city, who later took the fortress and was subsequently made Governor of the province was Gubaru. Perhaps Gubaru and Darius the Mede were one and the same individual, though no information that has come to us yet from the archaeologists justify us in making this assumption.

The Lesson Applied

Two things strike us. First the folly of drink. Belshazzar is a splendid illustration of just how foolish men can be for the sake of or under the influence of drink. With his kingdom at stake, at a time when a man needed the control of all of his faculties, Belshazzar and his lords drank their own ruin. Belshazzar at the beginning of the feast did not intend to commit an act of sacrilege and impiety. He sent for the vessels of the Lord when he had begun to come under the influence of the wine. Is it foolhardy for men to drink today? Just a few days ago, as this is written, the papers indicate that one of the country's leading aviators crashed in a disastrous wreck because he went up into the air drunk. Should aviators drink? What about motorists? What about doctors who are sometimes suddenly called upon to perform delicate operations? What about the rest of us? Is it safe to drink? Do men and women today go farther under the influence of drink than they would if they were in their sober senses? Do boys hold their moral standards as high when they have alcohol in their systems? What about girls? Are drunken fathers as careful about their actions as those same fathers sober? Is it ever safe to drink?

Second, the inevitability of the judgment. "These three fatal words," says A. Maclaren, "carry in them the summing up of all divine judgment, and will be rung in the ears of all who bring it on themselves. Belshazzar is a type of every godless world power and of every such individual life. 'Numbered'—for God allows to each his definite time and when its sum is complete, down falls the knife and cuts the threads. 'Weighed,'—for after death the judgment—Divided, for the godless life will be torn away from its possessions—Belshazzar saw the handwriting on the same night in which it was carried out in act; we see it long before, and we can read it. But some of us are mad enough to sit unconcerned at the table, and go on with the orgy, though the legible letters are gleaming plain on the wall." But the warning is good not only for the godless. The days of all of us are numbered. We are all being weighed in the balances. We shall all be separated from our earthly treasures. Do the divine scales and the human scales weigh the same? Whereon do they differ?

Men-of-the-Church

Presbyterian Church in the United States

REV. J. E. PURCELL, D.D., Executive Secretary
HENRY GRADY BUILDING
ATLANTA, GEORGIA

REV. JOHN L. FAIRLY, D.D., Wilmington, N. C., Editor in Charge of Men-of-the-Church Department

THE WORK GOES FORWARD

First Church, Dallas, Texas

The new officers and group leaders had their first meeting last Monday night. We had a total attendance of 53, 8 officers, 29 group leaders, and 16 members of the church. The meeting was called for the purpose of instructing the officers and group leaders in their duties. Doctor Anderson and Mr. L. A. Coulter each gave a very instructive talk.

Our attendance would have been considerably larger but it began raining about 6:10 p. m., and I never saw it rain any harder. Fourteen men were forced to stay in their cars that were parked near the church until the rain let up. Under the circumstances, we were very well pleased with the attendance and Doctor Anderson felt that it was one of the most enthusiastic meetings that we have ever had.

It is our intention to have another meeting of the same kind next month.

Each vice-president has been furnished with a list of the men in each of the eight groups under his supervision, and each group leader has been furnished a list of the men in his group, with a 3x5 card showing the name, business address, home address, home telephone number, and business number of each member of his group. The group leaders are supposed to turn in the 3x5 cards after they have made a personal call on the members of their groups. We believe this plan will make it possible for the Department of Men's Work to have a personal contact with each and every man in the Church.

Next fall we hope to have a Council Meeting as well as a regular meeting each month.

Personal Testimonials

We have been most happy to have had Mr. Naff with us and the work among our men has been greatly advanced by his labors. I suppose that he reports to you the number of points touched. I am sure that his work has borne fruit for I have already had four requests for information about Presbytery's Home Mission the men endeavor to work out their program.

In looking back over the year just closed, I feel that a deal has been accomplished in Louisville Presbytery. We also realize that it has been entirely due to the efforts put forth by the Committee on Men's Work. We have made the engagements for you, the information we so greatly needed was given to us by you, Mr. Temple and Mr. Naff. We are looking forward to Mr. Naff's return in the fall and he will be able to touch those points in our Presbytery that were not touched on his last visit. Kentucky.

It has been interesting to hear the frank statements from both pastors and men in regard to their views of the Men-of-the-Church plans and methods. We have lost their appeal when the Assembly has been explained. What they had considered in their particular fields appear wanting as a full appeal of the Assembly plans with the Men-of-the-Church Program, linked with the whole man's work in the local church, is seen and understood. They are easily and believe in it. Some of the preachers say, "This is just what we have been needing." (Continued on page 11)

"I have been lazy about it, but I now realize what it will mean in the development of our men's work, but what it may also mean through their influence in the building of Presbyterianism in the Synod of Louisiana. I am now ready to undertake it in real earnest."

"You have told us exactly what we need. We are ripe for it, and we have leaders who can carry it across. . . . Your visit has opened the way and it will bring in a new day in Kentucky, and Louisville Presbytery."

SYNOD OF LOUISIANA

The Synod of Louisiana comprises three Presbyteries: Red River Presbytery, which embraces the northern half of the State; Louisiana Presbytery, which embraces the southern half of the state west of the Mississippi; and the Synod of the Gulf, which embraces all of the parishes from New Orleans.

Red River Presbytery, so far as I have been able to ascertain, has been the pioneer in Men's Work in Louisiana. This Presbytery was the first to organize the "Men-of-the-Church" in Louisiana Presbyteries to organize the "Men-of-the-Church" and to sue this organization as a part of promoting Men's Work in the Presbytery.

In personal contacts with Rev. B. C. B. Nelson, past President of The-Men-of-the-Church, I have gained a general impression that this Organization is a going concern; that it has been in organizing the local units which we call the Church; that it has made effective use of promotion work; that it holds every year a convention which formerly met simultaneously with the Synod, which now has grown so large that it holds a meeting from the Presbytery.

As to the number of local church units organized by this Presbyterial organization, of these units whether or not they are ready for the church, etc., I have no definite knowledge. The Men-of-the-Church, Minden, La., this unit has done very effective work.

The newly elected Executive of the Men-of-the-Church, Judge Harmon S. Drew, was brought through the Men-of-the-Church of Louisiana.

One of the original purposes of the Men-of-the-Church of Red River Presbytery was to put the power of the church behind the Home Mission of the Presbytery.

At the October, 1927, meeting of Louisiana Presbytery I called attention to the fact that there was a lamentable ignorance on the part of the laymen of the Church's progress. I assumed that the group of preachers that they are usually conspicuous by their absence have no means of knowing anything about the program, and when they do attend meetings of the Synod, they usually find the meetings technical and dull. For this reason I told the laymen usually found some excuse to suggest that Presbytery might do well to have a program of interest to the laymen to be connected with the next Spring meeting of Louisiana Presbytery.

The ministers responded wholeheartedly to the suggestion. A program was prepared and a meeting was called to meet in connection with the meeting of Presbytery. This meeting was attended by 102 men, an inspiring program was rendered and the Men-of-the-Church organized on the spot one year ago.

During the year the Presbyterial organization was instrumental in getting local units organized in the following churches: Alexandria, Plains, Burden, Deridder, Welsh.

Local units had already been organized in Church Baton Rouge, in Lake Charles, in the LaFayette Church.

Efforts have been made to get local units in the Pastorate of Rev. J. F. Eddins. H. (Continued on page 11)

LDREN

IA'S GARDEN

little girl who until she old had lived in a beau- the suburbs. Flowers and er delight. Nothing made an to go into the gar- mother and admire and etty blooms. Then when e years old her father's made living in the city e Grant family had left den with all its beauti- fond memories and had n a great big apartment heart of a crowded busy e was no room nor time At first Alicia had been all the new sights. De- s; elevated trains; sub- auto busses, and crowds urrying to and fro gave ook at and think about; ewness of the city wore and herself missing the e garden.

noticed that the little ng pale and thought that not agree with her, but d: "I know what ails the e same myself when I ter. She's homesick for ave to see what I can ing a garden for her." s no room for a garden l Mrs. Grant. "Why we yard to hang the wash. s are dried in a drying-think," said Mr. Grant. st be found to bring the o Alicia's cheeks."

g Mr. Grant came home ysterious long package

t three guesses," he said, e girl.

ut her father shook his ore guess."

he package, but its box- ve her no clue. "I give o Mr. Grant took off the paper and showed Alicia ow box filled with green s a garden for you," he ound is already for you and little plants. When e Annie go out for a st keep your eyes open oms which you might window garden. This e for your very own. it, water, see that it is a weeds and choose the hall grow in it. Do you ?"

I'm so happy. Of course, ve the prettiest garden Oh, I just want to buy d begin planting them." s eyes fairly shone with and her cheeks were itement. Her very own dinner the talk centered en and Alicia's plans for edtime came Alicia was eable and peevish about ed. Her mother thought s was not the first time l traits of sullenness in ghter, and she told her ing her for the night n had been bought for ad that its blooms were e people who were happy. ing only of her own e garden dropped off ne her surprise to hear e floor and on opening in the half light a brown ing on the post of her any preamble the little "You have a garden." Alicia, forgetting to be n she remembered her d realized that this lit- friendly and knew all neglecting it." it only this very eve-

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color.)

Yellow-haired Susie May is sitting on her RED swing holding to one of the BROWN ropes. "Oh, oh! Save my dolly!" she cries to BROWN-haired Teddy. Teddy is trying to catch BLACK-haired Patty, but unless he is very quick I fear she will land on her head!

Susie May wears a light PURPLE frock with a bow in the back of the color. Her slippers are light PURPLE, too, but her socks are YELLOW.

Patty wears a RED dotted dress and the bows on the end of her braids are RED, too, as are her slippers. Her socks and collar are YELLOW.

Teddy wears a sailor suit with BLUE collar, cuffs and pants. The buttons are white and the tie is RED. Teddy wears YELLOW shoes and his socks are white with BLUE tops.

The apple tree has GREEN leaves and RED apples and a big GRAY (use BLACK lightly) trunk. The ground beneath the swing is BROWN, but there is GREEN grass with YELLOW flowers on the side.

The garage is PINK (use RED lightly) with a GRAY roof and GREEN and white door and windows. The brush near the garage is GREEN with BROWN limbs. You can see a bit of BLUE sky near the bush.

Susie May, Teddy and Patty all have PINK cheeks and RED mouths. Patty was not hurt by her little tumble I am sure.

Paint the border of this picture PURPLE and the lettering a bright YELLOW.

ning,' declared Alicia, indignantly. "I haven't begun to work on it yet."

"The garden I mean," said the little fellow, "You have had for five years." "Nonsense," cried Alicia impatiently and forgetting to be polite. "I'm only a little past five years old now."

"Just so," said the visitor. "This garden has been yours ever since you were born." Alicia began to listen attentively. "It is the garden in your heart. No, don't interrupt," as he saw the little girl open her mouth to answer. "Let me tell you about it, for very evidently you have never heard of this one of your most precious possessions. In your heart is a garden, which you and only you must tend to. God prepared this garden on the day of your birth, but its development is in your hands. You can say whether roses of rare beauty shall bloom in the garden of your heart, or whether weeds shall crowd out the more precious blossoms."

"But how," cried Alicia bewildered. "I-I-I don't understand."

"Kind thoughts and kind words are the seeds. They blossom into flowers of goodness and beauty. Sullen ways, disobedience, disagreeableness, these are the weeds that crowd goodness and beauty from your heart. Their growth leaves tell-tale lines upon your face, for in your face can people read the story of the development of the garden in your heart. Flowers of obedience, happiness, cheerfulness and kindness reflect themselves in smiles upon your lips and roses in your cheeks. Watch your garden carefully. Beware of weeds. Tend carefully the precious blossoms."

"But tell me—" began Alicia, but the little elf had vanished. Instead Nurse Annie stood beside the post on which he had been sitting, inviting her little charge into the warm bath which she had drawn. Alicia was about to pout and be a little disagreeable at having to get up, but suddenly she remembered her dream—and with a smile she jumped out of bed and kissed Nurse Annie "good morning."

"I do declare, it's the garden that has made her a happier child," said the nurse to herself, thinking of the window box.

Of course, the window box did give Alicia much to think about and something to be happy over. Excursions to green houses outside the city to search for small plants, and trips to florists on the edge of the country to buy seeds gave life a new interest, but with it all Alicia hugged the memory of her strange dream very close to her heart. Perhaps it were true that she had a garden in her heart. Every time she found herself being unpleasant she remembered the weeds that might choke the life out of the beautiful flowers and being sweet and good very soon became a habit with her. Shining eyes, smiling lips and rosy cheeks brought a glow of happiness to her parents who noted the change in her with delight.

"It's the garden," declared Mr. Grant, discussing the child with his wife one evening. "She has been a different child ever since a bit of green country came into the apartment. Of course, her trips out into the country have helped bring color into her cheeks too. I knew she missed the flowers."

"Perhaps," assented Mrs. Grant. "It seems as if her very soul were flowering with the window box. I think," added Mrs. Grant, who like most mothers had a deep kinship with fairies. "That maybe there is a garden of happiness in our little girl's heart."

Puzzles on page 14

Fun For Little Folks

A few of the pictures which are printed in the Standard weekly on this page are being published in loose-leaf pamphlet form. Each pamphlet contains twelve different pictures to be colored by the little folks with crayon or paints.

These pamphlets will be ideal for use in Daily Vacation Schools, Sunday Schools and the nursery of the home. The little folks will enjoy coloring the pictures and it will furnish a fine medium for the teacher or mother to instruct their children in the art of drawing and the value of color.

PRICES (Cash with Order)

100 Books	-----	$7.00
50 Books	-----	4.00
25 Books	-----	2.25
10 Books	-----	1.10
5 Books	-----	.60
1 Book	-----	.15

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD CHARLOTTE, N. C.

CHURCH NEWS

ANNUAL STATEMENT OF DR. COBB'S WORK

Summary of Activities of J. Walter Cobb, Superintendent-Evangelist of Congaree Presbytery

From July 7, 1928, to July 7, 1929

Miles Traveled	6,146
Parishes visited	124
Prospective Parishes visited	19
Personal visits	423
Services attended	268
Sermons preached	192
Other addresses	36
Hearers	7,865
Sessions attended	31
Presbyteries attended	5
Synods attended	1
Committee meetings attended	3
Evangelistic campaigns directed	1
Stewardship campaigns directed	1
Protracted meetings conducted	8
Public confessions	80
Reconsecrations	112
Accessions: By letter, 38, on confession 43, Total	81
Baptisms: Administered 12, witnessed 12, total Supplies secured	24
Congregational meetings	5
Every-Member canvasses conducted	1
Communion services conducted	3
Funds collected:
For local Home Missions	$462.05
For other causes	186.72
Total	$648.77

Mr. Cobb expects to leave Congaree Presbytery as Superintendent-Evangelist August 1st to become Evangelist of Lafayette Presbytery, Missouri. Correspondent.

NORTH AVENUE MISSION GOSPEL HALL

The North Avenue Church in Atlanta runs a Gospel Hall during the week nights, and as the editor's interest was aroused at seeing the announcements in the church calendar which regularly reach this office, he wrote to know the nature of the work done in this hall. The pastor, Dr. Richard Orme Flinn, replies to the inquiry as follows:

Our Gospel Hall was begun in one of the rooms of a Sunday School Hut that opens on Courtland Street in September of last year and has been conducted continuously since then every night save Sunday when, of course, we meet in the Church auditorium. Recently we have moved from this building to one of the rooms in our Church building opening on North Avenue, the meetings being continued as before with the change that on Wednesday I am always the leader unless absent from the city.

On the other nights since the start the Officers and members of our Church have been our leaders. Certain of our organized classes have sponsored the meetings on various nights so there is always a nucleus of our own members besides those from the outside who may attend. Our hope when starting was that people would come to this hall who would not be in the habit of attending regular services. The neighborhood has been visited and invitations extended but without any large success of the class which we had expected to reach. We have had, however, some very gratifying conversions from among those whom otherwise we probably never would have reached.

Through the Gospel Hall we have come into touch with a great deal of need which the church has been very glad to be able to meet and through it we have acquired some very valuable members who were attracted to our Church through attendance upon these meetings. The greatest contribution, however, has been the intercessory prayers of the faithful attendants. The whole spiritual atmosphere of our Church has been changed for the better and although the revival for which we still are longing and praying has not come to the extent we want we hope it may please God to grant one as we are conscious that He is wonderfully answering our prayers.

Mr. Joe Percente, the converted prize-fighter, was not one of our own members but a gentleman whose acquaintance we made through the mission and who spoke most acceptably to our Christian Endeavor Societies and at two of our mission meetings. It was through the mission likewise that we came in touch with Mr. Harry Rimmer who afterward conducted a series of meetings for us and whose ministry was greatly hoped.

I am writing in haste but hope that this brief outline covers the points that you desire.

Richard Orme Flinn.

MRS. C. R. NISBET IS DEAD

Mrs. Ola Jones Nisbet, wife of Rev. Charles R. Nisbet, D.D., of Caldwell Memorial Church, Charlotte, N. C., died on July 19, at her home at the manse after a lingering illness. The funeral was conducted from the church

by Rev. J. F. Hardie, D.D., pastor of the Second Church, assisted by other ministers. Mrs. Nisbet is survived by her husband and one daughter, and one son, both grown, and three grandchildren, children of Mrs. S. C. Marty, of Kansas City.

Mrs. Nisbet has been a great help to her husband in the work of the church, and besides her duties as mother and housekeeper, she has found time to become a proficient student and recognized authority on Robert Browning. As a memorial of her, the Kansas City Browning Society with over 500 members, which she organized, contributes $300 each year to the Browning Social Settlement, of London, and to the Italian Institute and Chapel in Kansas City. They also keep up a Browning garden there in her memory. A similar garden has been dedicated in Charlotte, N. C.

Mrs. Nisbet's interest and knowledge of the great poet culminated in a book now on the press, containing a dramatization of "Pippa Passes." She has also published several other volumes, among them an autobiography and a life of her husband. She was in constant demand for lectures on Browning.

We extend to the bereaved husband and family our deepest sympathy.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S ACTIVITIES AT MONTREAT

J. Gray McAllister

One of the most interesting phases of the work at Montreat is that being carried on for the hundreds of young people who gather here each season. These young people have a large place in the life of Montreat as shown not only by the provision made for them in the official programs of the several Conferences, but also by the equipment and facilities provided for all manner of recreation and sports. Some years ago the Mountain Retreat Association, under the auspices of which the whole of Montreat is carried forward, donated two splendid sites and with the help of friends erected two splendidly equipped club buildings, one for the girls and one for boys, at a total cost of $15,000. These buildings have become the center of the large recreational life of the young people here. A most varied and enjoyable program of hiking, swimming, football, basketball, tennis, and indoor parties is going forward with a swing, something being provided to interest every group: Juniors, Intermediates, Seniors and Collegiates.

Professor J. P. Moore, Superintendent of the Public Schools of Mebane, N. C., a lover of young people and a most successful worker with them, is the General Director of the activities of the young people at Montreat for the entire season. Professor Moore, after his graduation at Davidson College and the University of North Carolina, saw service overseas. Associated with him in the work here at Montreat are: Miss Mary Cunningham of Decatur, Ga., who is Hostess at the Girl's Club; Miss Daisy Southerland of Mobile, Ala., and Mr. Al. T. Hickin, of Upper Montclair, N. J., each an experienced worker with young people.

Last Monday night the Collegiates (made up of those ready for College, in College, recently graduated and others from 18 years of age and up) held a most interesting meeting in the Men's Building and the following officers were elected: President, Ed. Robinson of Tarboro, N. C.; Vice-president, Olive Lewis, New Orleans, La.; Secretary-Treasurer, Elizabeth Monroe, of Japan. The Collegiates are scheduled to meet in the Men's Building every Monday night at 7:30 with an interesting special program for each meeting.

The Senior Girl's Group has elected the following officers: President, Virginia Anderson, Charlotte, N. C.; Vice-president, Christine White, Rock Hill, S. C.; Secretary-Treasurer, Louise McAllister, of Richmond, Va.

The Senior Boy's Group has elected the following officers: President, Douglas Glasgow, Charlotte, N. C.; Vice-President, James Patton, Black Mountain, N. C.; and Secretary-Treasurer, Robert Woods, of Chester, S. C. These lists of officers show how widely Montreat draws from all sections of the South.

The annual tennis tournament begins on Wednesday, July 24, and extends through the following Saturday. A large number of the young people are entering for it.

For a number of years the Montreat Girls' Camp has ranked as one of the attractive features of the Montreat season. Professor and Mrs. S. L. Woodward have been in charge of the Camp and have been assisted in the operation of it by a number of most efficient counsellors. The Camp is having a most successful summer, with campers enrolled from many parts of the country. On Thursday night, July 18th, the Camp presented a Japanese Operetta under the direction of Miss Pauline Root, of Sherman, Texas. This was given in the Anderson Auditorium before a fine audience.

LEADERSHIP TRAINING SCHOOL

The Montreat Leadership Training School began its sessions July 19th and will continue to Friday noon, August 2nd. Dr. Edward B. Paisley, the Dean of the school, reached Montreat yesterday. He is professor of Religious Education in the General Assembly's Training School, Richmond, Va., going to that work from the secretaryship of education in the Home Missions field in Atlanta some months ago. A number of fine courses will be offered by a large and unusually capable faculty. The school will be divided into two periods: July 19-26 and July 27-August 2, each giving six working days. The Bible hour will be morning, beginning next Monday, by Dr. A. Blackwood, professor of English Bible in byterian Theological Seminary in Louisville, formerly pastor of the First Presbyterian Columbia, S. C. Dr. Blackwood, always a favorite Montreat audience, will also teach a special class, on the Gospel of Mark for the leader people, each day at 12 o'clock. A successful outstanding in the field of religious education heard at the evening hour. Mr. R. E. Maguire, Secretary of the Committee of Public Religious Education, under whose auspices is conducted, spends every summer here, and returned Saturday afternoon from a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Assembly's School, Richmond, Va., called to a resignation of Dr. Walter L. Lingle as president of that school to accept the presidency of Davidson College. Dr. Lingle was for a dozen years of the program committee and platform at Montreat.

The outstanding event for Saturday 20th was the girls' play, "The Arrival of Japan;" the members of the cast are: James Japan; Jean and Clisby DuBose, of Chittenden, Mississipi; Olive Lewis, of New Orleans; Lis Roddey, of Rock Hill, S. C.; Ed Robinsboro, N. C., and Grace Friend, of Peter Miss Mary Cunningham, of Decatur, Ga. Marion White, of Mebane, N. C., are directors of the play, the proceeds of which will go to the improvements on the girls' building.

Dr. Charles L. King, pastor of the Grace Presbyterian Church, of Richmond, Va., opening address and preached on Sunday. Dr. G. Walter Fiske, of Oberlin, Ohio, preached on Monday night.

HUNTER HOOD REUNION

The annual gathering of the members of the Hunter and Hood families will take place at the State Reform Church, Mecklenburg County, Friday, August 2, beginning at 10 a. m. Attendees are asked to bring baskets to contribute to a dinner which will be spread on the grounds of the church.

A number of events will take place for the entertainment of the crowd. There will be an address by W. P. Grier, the principal of the Gas School. There will be singing and other music, and a baseball game will be staged for the amusement.

NORTH CAROLINA

Mooresville—At our quarterly communion we received two members and baptized three. Since then we have had a very successful church school. The attendance was over 100 and excellent work was done. The pastor on his vacation next week. The most of the time will be spent at his old home in West Virginia.

Charlotte, Second Church—Miss Harris, for young people, has recovered from her illness and is ready for work again. She is now attending the Leadership Training School.

Miss Terry, secretary for women, who was on vacation visiting points of interest in Virginia and vicinity is again at her desk.

St. Paul's Church—This church held its Vacation Bible School, July 1-12. The pastor was principal of the school and home talent show was given for teachers. The school was a decided success in every way. The attendance was 100. Eighty-five were enrolled and there was a daily attendance of seventy-four. Fortificates for perfect attendance and favors were given. On Friday night commences for the school were held, at which program was rendered by the children and work was exhibited. A large number of the congregation was present at these exercises and were well pleased with the work done. We believe the church and community very much benefited by this school.

Landis Chapel—This is a promising new church located six miles north of Marion. It is presided over by the pastor of the Marion Church. The Sunday School is maintained through the year. In a meeting recently held at this point, the pastor of the Clinchfield group of churches assisted the pastor of the Marion Church in his days' meeting. Brother Robinson presided.

MEREDITH COLLEGE

For YOUNG WOMEN

STANDARD COURSES IN ARTS AND SCIENCES, IN MUSIC, IN ART, IN HOME ECONOMICS

Confers the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Music. Delightful environment on a high plateau on the western boundary of North Carolina's Capital City.

Room reservations are now being made for session 1929-30. For catalogue or further information write

CHAS. E. BREWER, President
Raleigh, N. C.

SUMMER VACATION TRIPS

Now is the Time to Plan Your Vacation. The Southern Railway System Offers Very Low Round Trip Fares to Mountain and Seashore Resorts

New York, N. Y.	$32.63	Atlantic City	$30.86
Chicago, Ill.	45.98	Detroit, Mich.	45.00
Cleveland, Ohio	41.85	Toledo, Ohio	41.90

Round trip tickets on sale each Saturday during July and August—Limit for return trip 30 days.

Atlantic City, N. J. $23.30

Dates of sale via PRR from Washington July 16th, 30th, August 13th, 27th and September 10th via B & O from Washington July 24th, August 7th, 21st, September 4th and 18th. Final limit 18 days from date of sale.

Niagara Falls, N. Y. $33.15

Dates of sale via PRR from Washington July 24th August 7th, 21st, September 4th, 18th and October 2nd via B & O from Washington July 18th, August 1st, 15th, 29th, September 12th and 26th. Final limit 18 days from date of sale.

Week-End Fares

Norfolk, Va.	$15.00	Old Point Comfort ...	$15.10
Morehead City, N. C. ...	13.15	Black Mountain, N. C. ...	5.60
Asheville, N. C.	6.30	Hendersonville, N. C. ...	5.35
Waynesville, N. C. ...	7.50	Brunswick, Ga. (St. Simons
Virginia Beach, Va. ...	15.60	Island)	15.00

Tickets on sale each Friday and Saturday, final limit midnight following Tuesday.

Rail and Motor Tours

Asheville, N. C., one-way motor coach the other rail $7.30.

Johnson City, Tenn., one-way motor coach the other rail $12.05.

Bristol, Tenn., one-way motor coach the other rail $13.75.

Round Trip Summer Excursion Fares to Mountain and Seashore on sale daily.

Watch Newspapers for Dates of Popular Excursions
Excellent Service — Pullman Sleeping Cars — Dining Car Service — Convenient Schedules
Ask Ticket Agents

SOUTHERN RAILWAY CITY TICKET OFFICE
308 West Trade Street
Telephone Hemlock 20

ORIENT FLOUR

Its Whiteness Denotes Its Purity

MOUNTAIN CITY MILL CO., CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

QUEENS COLLEGE

"The College With the PLUS SIGN"

Sound literary training plus Christian influence. Faculty members characterized by thorough scholarship, and unquestionable Christian character.

RATES EXCEEDINGLY REASONABLE.

Ask for catalogue—enroll now—College opens Sept. 11.

WILLIAM H. FRAZER, D.D., Litt.D., President,
Box 300, Charlotte, N. C.

FASSIFERN

A Select School Preparing Girls for
In the Land of the Sky — Leading Colleges —

Small classes, individual attention. Piano, voice, violin, harmony, art, home economics. Handsome new brick gymnasium. Physical culture, horseback riding, golf, outings at Camp Greystone. For catalog, address

JOSEPH R. SEVIER, D.D., President, Box S, HENDERSONVILLE, N. C.

STORY

RADIUM IN THE WORLD

Within a week's time the British have oversubscribed a national radium fund which is being set aside to purchase sufficient radium for the country's present and future needs in fighting cancer and other diseases. King George was treated with radium in his recent illness and this newly raised fund is part of a national thank offering for his recovery. There will probably be about $1,500,000 available for the purchase.

Of all the so-called precious metals, radium is by far the scarcest and most costly, though it is not used for ornamental purposes. Its use is largely medicinal, particularly in combating cancer, although it is also employed industrially in painting luminous watch dials and similar objects.

Every important hospital has its tiny supply of radium and a careful supervision is maintained over the particles. Usually, because of its highly destructive radio-activity, the radium is kept in platinum needles about the size of an ordinary sewing needle, or in glass tubes.

While radium is of the greatest curative value in the treatment of disease, it is so powerful that if handled injudiciously one gram could kill a man within an hour of exposure. The radiations break down cells of healthy as well as diseased tissue, and even affect the bones, so that great care is exercised in the handling of pure radium. The tubes of radium for medical use contain generally from one to a hundred milligrams only.

Demand is Great

Since there are only between 250 and 350 grams, or from one-half to three-quarters of a pound, of radium in the entire world today, the demand far exceeds the supply, as radium treatment for cancer alone has grown to large proportions. However, radium is a long lived substance, losing about half its volume in 2,500 years, so there is no immediate danger from deterioration of the present amount, small as it is.

The largest supply in any one institution in the world is at Memorial Hospital in New York, where there are eight grams. The private hospital of Dr. Howard A. Kelly, in Baltimore, who was himself a pioneer in the radium field, is the possessor of five grams of the precious element.

Mme. Curie, the discoverer of radium, has two grams in her laboratory in Paris—the original gram which she and her husband isolated and a gram which was given to her by American women for experimental purposes.

Worth $70,000 a Gram

Radium is produced in several countries, through the Belgian government enjoys a virtual monopoly, handling, as it does, ninety per cent. of the world's supply. Prior to the working of the mines in upper Katanga, Belgian Congo, most of the radium came from the famous mine in Bohemia, from Portugal and from Colorado. The mines in Colorado are so low in content that they are now practically shut down.

The pitchblende ore of the Congo, from which pure radium is extracted, is considered very rich if it yields as much as fifty milligrams per ton of ore. Other governments have made outlays similar to that of Great Britain.

Various institutions have acquired radium for their own use by collecting funds for that purpose. Thus the University of Pennsylvania set aside $72,000 for the purchase of a gram for the university hospital.

The value of radium is dependent upon radioactivity, which is carefully measured by delicate instruments. The current price in the medical profession is $70,000 a gram.

Husband (to wife driving a nail): "However do you expect to drive a nail in the wall with a clothes-brush? For goodness sake, use your head, dear."—Exchange.

Mrs. Gaswell, while you were in Venice did you see the Bridge of Sighs?"

"Oh, yes, I saw what they called that, but, my land, I've seen bridges ten times its size without ever going out of Pennsylvania!"—Ex.

HARRIS FRESH WATER SYSTEMS

Private water supply systems and farm homes, schools, hotels, clubs, filling stations, industries. Fresh cool water under pressure pumps or tanks. No greasy material. Automatic electric or manual. Durable, dependable and economical. Thousands in use for years. Literature. HARRIS PUMP MFG. CO. Greenville, S. C.

MAKING MONEY

Not

Our aim is to develop the intellect through the constant teaching of principles; to develop the intellect through the individual instruction. We offer square education for your boys at a surprisingly reasonable cost. For literature write Col. A. H. Camden, Jacksonville, Fla.

HARRIS GRAHAM MILITARY ACADEMY
CHATHAM, VA.

DARLINGTON SCHOOL

ROME GEORGIA

An Accredited Preparing School for Boys

Small student body. One teacher to every ten boarders. Supervised study. Bible instruction.

Physical training every day for every boy.

All men teachers, graduates of class colleges. Home atmosphere. Thorough college preparation. Boys of good moral character. Non-military. Charter forbidden school for financial gain.

HONOR SYSTEM

"Unselfishly Dedicated to Young Men"

C. R. WILCOX, M. A., President

Address all inquiries to

E. L. WRIGHT, M. A., Headmaster

S. H. ASKEW, M. A., Associate Headmaster

RANDOLPH-MACDONALD School for Girls

Member of Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools

Situated amid beautiful and healthful surroundings, this accredited school offers to students a thorough, modern system of instruction, appointments, congenial atmosphere, wholesome out-door sports, and a sphere of culture and refinement. Students make rapid progress in these happy surroundings. For literature write John C. Simpson, Danville, Virginia.

DANVILLE, VIRGINIA

STANDARD FOR 50 YEARS

WINTERSMITH'S CHILL TONIC

For over 50 years it has been the household remedy for all forms of Chills.

It is a Reliable, General Invigorating Tonic.

MARY BALDWIN COLLEGE

For women. Courses lead to B. S. degrees. Music, art, physical education. Gymnasium, field athletics. Modern equipment. Beautiful Shenandoah Valley. 1842. Catalog. Staunton, Virginia.

Expert Kodak Flash

Developing and printing by expert hands. Beautiful work guaranteed. I develop and print 6 exposure rolls as follows: 1.5-8x2 1/2, 40c; 2.4x3 1/4, 40c; 3.4x5 1/2, 52c; Film packs, 2.4x3 1/4, developing and printing, sizes in proportion. Quick delivery. LIGON'S DRUG STORE: Spotsylvania, Va.

RIENDSHIP'S REWARD

Ward Skeen

umber of years, Joe Andrews d, "Ring," played together on s farm in Indiana. They went ogether, Ring, accompanying e morning, then faithfully ide the schoolhouse until his ld appear again. They brought s, hunted through the woods n the stream near their home. l help, when Joe carried in y taking a stick in his mouth g it in the house. Then, too, ld go and meet the rural mail ng the mail to the house ome member of the family the Andrews family, and oe, thought a great deal of as the boy grew up to man-

od Folk's st Friend

what many call it for vim and vigor into old hs; rich, red blood into ns; sound flesh on old e. Drink with each meal.

iviar Ale

Digestive Aromatics With r Mineral Water & Ginger

g like it for assisting igestive organs to con- our food into rich blood und flesh.

hood his interest in life and its work gradually drew him away from his animal friend. He still cared for the dog, but had less time to devote to his friend.

The spring that Joe was eighteen his parents decided to move to North Dakota, as they felt sure more opportunities existed in the newer State.

"I don't think it would be a good idea to take Ring along; he is so old and feeble that the long ride in the freight car would kill him." Mr Andrews spoke from the comfort of a large rocking chair, sitting before the fireplace in the evening after a hard day's work packing things in preparation for the coming move.

The dog moved slightly in his sleep and growled from the depths of a rug placed near the mantel for his special use.

"Brother Ben thinks about as much of him as we do and only today offered to give him a home as long as he lives. That seems to me the best way. It will take about two weeks in the freight car; then it will be a lot colder out there in the winter time. Ring has been a faithful friend to us and I hate to leave him, but it seems the best thing to do," continued the farmer as he glanced over the paper at his wife.

Joe stopped reading closed the book with a snap, and exploded. "No! I don't think it would be the best. Just because he has grown old and feeble in the services of our family, because he can no longer see our faces, but must depend upon failing hearing to distinguish our voices and bark his greetings, must we leave him behind like a piece of rubbish? Of course, I know that Uncle Ben would give him as good a home, and as tender care as we can, but Uncle Ben and his family could never take our place in Ring's heart. I do not want to rob him of any pleasure he might get in the last few months of his life by leaving him behind. If he can't go, I won't go."

"Yes, we understand how you feel, Joe; but I think it is best for poor, old Ring to save him the hardships of a long trip. We will have to give him up in a short time, anyway, and this will only be bringing the parting somewhat sooner than otherwise," soothed Mrs. Andrews.

"Don't forget the time he trapped the chicken thieves in the chicken house and kept them prisoners there until you could go out and capture them. Or the time he held the bull at bay and saved you a serious injury, Dad. And the time he pulled me out of the water when I fell in while I was fishing." Joe spoke heatedly in defense of his dog.

"It is not that we think less of him than before, but we are trying to make his last days as comfortable as possible," argued Joe's father.

"Well, I heard Uncle Ben say the other day that he was going to hire an extra man this summer, so I can work for him as long as Ring lives and then come out to Dakota on the money I earn." The youth sat down beside his dog and fondled him tenderly.

This scene touched Mrs. Andrews deeply. Wiping a tear away with her apron, she turned to his husband.

"We had better take the poor, old fellow along, come what will. He, no doubt, will be much happier with us than away from us."

"Looking at it the way I did, I thought it was best. But if two vote against one, that means a majority, and a majority is supposed to rule in a well-regulated family," replied Mr. Andrews, turning to the market page.

The following week was a very busy one for the Andrews family. At last everything that they felt they would use in the new home was loaded in what was called an emigrant car. Several horses were in one end of the car, with some

ANTA CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

The Foremost School of Music in the South

Fall session begins Monday, September 2, 1929

Summer session in June and July

Catalog C GEO. F. LINDNER, Director Atlanta, Georgia

SALEM COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

Known nationally for 156 years' unbroken record in higher education. "Salem" life emphasizes Christian standards without denominational differences. Fifty-six acre campus of forest and meadow. Swimming, riding and all sports. Our endowment pays 12 1-2 per cent. of each student's expenses, reducing the annual charge to $655.00.

Accredited member Southern Association. A-Class. A. B., B. S. and B. Music degrees with wide elective privileges. Write for catalogue "A" to Pres. Howard E. Rondthaler, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Summer VACATION TRIPS

Rail and Motor Tours

In the Southern Appalachian Mountains

In especially arranged rail and motor tours, the Southern Railway provides a new vacation recreation, combining rail and motor transportation for the individual and for parties, into the mountain sections of Virginia, North Carolina, Eastern Tennessee and North Georgia.

These tours will take you adventuring by rail and motor into regions of scenic beauty and historic interest. Each trip begins and ends with a railway journey, in which you enjoy the speed and comfort of rail travel. The motor trips are over established State highways.

For booklets, information and rates, call on Ticket Agents,

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

el Boone-ioneer thfinder ese southern alachian mountains hich we now vite you to Visit

GLADE VALLEY HIGH SCHOOL
A Christian Schools for boys and girls
Standard High School Courses with Specials, Bible, Music, Domestic Art and Science
State Accredited Experienced Faculty
Careful Oversight of Students
Board, Room and Tuition only $138.00 for year.
Address E. B. ELDRIDGE, Supt., GLADE VALLEY, N. C. ALLEGHANY COUNTY

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE
DECATUR, GA.
Strict entrance requirements, but few failures after admission. Somewhat expensive, but cheap in comparison with advantages offered. No loafers expected, but also none without capacity to enjoy almost unlimited good times. For details as to admission, scholarship aid, etc address
PRESIDENT J. R. McCAIN
Box 5

MITCHELL COLLEGE. AN ACCREDITED STANDARD JUNIOR COLLEGE FOR YOUNG WOMEN. Small classes, strong faculty, Christian training; special courses in pipe organ, voice, piano, home economics, and commercial subjects. Rates reasonable. For catalogue address:
MRS. W. B. RAMSAY, President Statesville, N. C.

McCALLIE School for Boys
Historically located on Missionary Ridge. In view of renowned Lookout Mountain. An outstanding school in South. Thorough preparation for College and Technical Schools. Small classes. Individual Instruction. Strong Faculty. Military Drill. Honor System. Christian Training. Complete modern equipment. Concrete Swimming Pool. Gymnasium. 40 Acre Campus. Lake. Rate $800. Summer Session, July and August, with Camp features. Write for illustrated catalog. The Headmaster, Box P Chattanooga, Tennessee

It May Be Urgent

When your Children Cry for It

Castoria is a comfort when Baby is fretful. No sooner taken than the little one is at ease. If restless, a few drops soon bring contentment. No harm done, for Castoria is a baby remedy, meant for babies. Perfectly safe to give the youngest infant; you have the doctors' word for that! It is a vegetable product and you could use it every day. But it's in an emergency that Castoria means most. Some night when constipation must be relieved—or colic pains—or other suffering. Never be without it; some mothers keep an extra bottle, unopened, to make sure there will always be Castoria in the house. It is effective for older children, too; read the book that comes with it.

WANTED

Position as Young People's Worker. Graduate of Assembly's Training School—Years of experience.

Care Smith—Station A
Charleston, W. Va.

NISBET LODGE
Montreat, on Lookout Road, 300 yards from Auditorium on same street, offers excellent fare and comfortable rooms. Special rates to parties.

HARRIS FRESH WATER SYSTEMS

Private water supply systems for suburban and farm homes, schools, hotels, churches, clubs, filling stations, industrial plants. Fresh cool water under pressure. No frozen pumps or tanks. No greasy machinery about the well. Automatic electric or engine drive. Durable, dependable and economically operated. Thousands in use for years. Write for literature.
HARRIS PUMP MFG. CO. Greenville, S. C.

GIRLS, Make your Teeth Gleam
sparkling white and clean with eminent Dentists' Tooth Paste. Write today for generous Trial Package FREE, with illustrated Catalogue finest quality Tooth Brushes and Dentifrice in combination packages, also Kiddies' Kits, at strictly Economy Prices. You may have friends who would like to earn money selling these packages in spare hours. We guarantee all goods to satisfy or money refunded. Write now, DEPYRO LABORATORIES, 27 Free St., Portland, Maine.

FISHBURNE MILITARY SCHOOL

Aim—"Not the largest, but the best"

IN EVERY class each boy recites every day. Contacts with schoolmates from all over the country. Graduates enter all colleges. Certificate privileges. Mild year round climate. Easily reached. Full athletic program supervised by experienced men. Modern equipment. Swimming pool. Col. M. H. Hudgins, Bozons, Waynesboro, Virginia.
Member Ass'n of Military Colleges and Schools of U. S.

And so, much against her protest, he left the barrel. The loss of a barrel of sorghum was a big setback to Phil, tho he still hoped to scrape together money enough to make out, in spite of the fact he had given up hope of winning the scholarship. Several other students were a little ahead of him in grades, though grades were not to be the only consideration in making the selection.

However, when school ended that spring, Phil, much to his surprise, was called to Professor Barton's office and told he had been awarded the scholarship.

"Phil," Professor Barton said, in making the presentation, "I was much at sea to whom to select for the scholarship. High grades are important, but they are not everything. The fact that you always got to school on time, notwithstanding the fact that you lived a long way from school, and had your chores to do, was a great consideration. But, Phil, the way you acted in regard to that barrel of sorghum was the big factor. The fact that you were fair enough to give me another barrel of sorghum showed me that you have a very broad view of your responsibilities." Then the professor handed him a check. "However," he went on, "I couldn't think of permitting you to give me that barrel, for I was at fault in using the old barrel with the hoops half off. I did want a barrel of sorghum, however, and here is the check to pay for it."

Phil was dumbfounded. At first he refused to take the check. The Professor insisted, however, and he finally took it. "You know, Phil," he went on, "the world is full of men ready to make a fight for every cent coming to them, but who are blind to their own responsibility to others. According to cold logic, and according to law, I suppose you were responsible, though I was at fault for having molasses put in such a barrel. But the fact that you saw your own fault in the matter convinces me that you will be an honor to the school when you get out in the world."

Never was Phil so dazed in his life. The scholarship, as well as the check, was like a gift from the sky, and he was the happiest boy in town.—The Uplift.

science of trees and plants
My third is underneath
My fourth is a time for freedom
My fifth is the present
My sixth is a means
My seventh is in Germany

WHAT SALLY SAVED

Genevieve B. Kingman

It was oh-so-nice to be home again. Sally had enjoyed every minute of her visit with her three cousins, but mother and daddy were so 'specially precious.

Sally sat at the supper table and talked and talked, and mother had to say, "Please eat, Sally. Save some to the tell-about it talk until later."

So Sally ate three bites of johnny-cake and then began to giggle.

"You see, mumsey, Mary, Bobby and Susanne are all older than I am, and sometimes I did not know what they were talking about. They laughed at me about the horse."

"What horse, Sally? Eat some more apple-sauce, dear."

"Yes, mother. Bobby asked me what sort of a hobby I rode, and I said that I did not know how to ride horseback yet, but that I hoped to begin next spring. Then they all tried to explain at once that Mary's hobby was blue-printed flowers and grasses, and then scrap-booking them; and Bobby's hobby was collecting all kinds of old bird's nests, and making notes about the ones the mothers are sitting on; and Susanne's hobby is collecting shells, and she has more than two hundred different kinds all sitting on cotton batting, and I want to hobby something very, very much, but I don't know what."

Daddy spoke up very clearly and distinctly.

"Sally, dear, you had bet your hobby to eat more, and the table."

"When I was a little girl," "I use to collect paper-lace candy boxes."

"When I was a little boy," "I used to collect beetles, an pers, and caterpillars and wor coons, and I had boxes w punched in them on our bac "Aunt Margaret collects said mother.

"Grandmother Abbott is c samplers," added daddy.

"Bugs, and stones, and st glasses do not seem to intere said with decision. "I want so is clean and instructivating."

"Oh Sally, darling. Do t You are so tired you hardly to talk."

"Perhaps you will have an dream," chuckled daddy, as he a 'specially home-again-hug.

Nothing was said about breakfast.

Sally saw the postman com later and ran out to the fro get the mail.

"Quite a bunch for your fo announced Mr. Eames. "I no was one with a Chinese sta envelope, and say, there's on U. S. Lindberg Air Mail st are pretty lucky this morning."

Sally the whole bunch of mai cheerfully whistling up the st

Sally sat right down on th and began looking at the er Chinese stamp; which one? Th it, with that cunning little Cl and laundry-check marks in corners. This must be the Li he mentioned, with the Spirit c flying from New York to Pa it. And Sally had thought

SOME FACTS WORTH KNOWING ABOUT THE HISTORY OF DAVIDSON COLLEGE

1. Davidson College is ninety-four years old—has a history and background of unusual achievement.
2. It was founded by the Presbyterian Church for the "great and leading of educating young men of hopeful piety and talents for the gospel in and for extending the means of education more generally among all cla the community." It is owned and controlled by the Presbyterian Church.
3. Of the twelve presidents, nine have been ministers of the gospel, and elders in the Presbyterian Church. All full professors of the Faculty ha active members of the Presbyterian Church.
4. The College has trained practically one thousand Presbyterian ministe possibly three times as many elders, deacons, and Sunday School Super dents.
5. Approximately sixty-five hundred young men have been students in t lege; thirty-five hundred of these are living at the present time. A you entering Davidson College can claim association with a distinguished g leaders in Church and State.
6. Every student entering Davidson College takes a two-year course in t Bible. The authorities at Davidson College believe that religion and d ment of character are of first importance in the life of any man. W Wilson said "Education bears its best fruit when associated with religio broadest and most liberal education that can be provided for a stu physical, mental and spiritual development. Davidson undertakes to g students this kind of full and complete education.
7. For a number of years an average of approximately one hundred mem the student body have been candidates for the ministry, and practically student is a member of some Christian Church and of the College Y. M.

The above facts give only a limited idea of the close relation between D. College and the Presbyterian Church and of the service the College has r the Church.

This is the first of a series of four advertisements on "Some Facts Worth Knowing About Davidson College." Next week some facts with reference to the COURSE OF STUDY will be given; the following week some facts about the STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS and activities, and, following that, some facts about the FINANCES of Davidson.

For further information see catalog or write:

DAVIDSON COLLEGE ROOM 110, CHAMBERS DAVIDSON, N.

PUZZLE CORNER

- | | |
|-------------------------|----------------------------|
| Horizontal | Vertical |
| 1—School study | 1—Consider |
| 6—Thoroughfare | 2—To depart from the right |
| 7—To plait | 3—Huge snake |
| 8—Opera (abbr.) | 4—To invade suddenly |
| 10—Doctor (abbr.) | 5—Direct, as a letter |
| 11—Pertaining to a city | 9—Plunder |
| 14—By | 12—Obstruct |
| 15—Despots | 13—Constellation |

Patriotic Poetical Cryptogram

Progress is the goal today,
In this word is the clue,
Just remember what I say,
And see what you can do.

What Sir Walter Scott said about Patriotism.

"Csfbuift uifsf b nbo xjui tpvm tp efbe,
Xip ofwfs up ijntfmg ibt tbje,
Uijt jt nz pxo, n z obujwf mboe.

Diamond

```

*
* *
* * *
* * * *
* * * * *
* * * *
* * *
*

```

My first is in Holland
My next is the abbreviation for the

FURMAN UNIVERSITY

Greenville, S. C.

RICHARD FURMAN HALL

In the healthful, beautiful Piedmont Section of S. C. Strong Christian faculty. Emphasis on moral and spiritual values of life. Beautiful campus, commodious well equipped buildings. Courses leading to A. B., B. S., and LL. J. degrees. Vigorous and successful law school. 12 Week Summer School, Champions Athletics, Glee Club, Debating etc.

For catalogue and other data write
W. J. McGLATHLIN, Pres

HIPPED BETTER

ion to the enrollment
ced in class room, labmnasium, athletic field
enabling better work 1 conditions at terian

College
GREEN PRES. Clinton, S.C.

No Lance
Scientific Preparation
BUNCLER, BONE FELONS,
and OLD SORES. Price 50c
ACE CHEMICAL CO
Brookland, S. C.

quite approve the
comfort of Bayer Aspi-
perfectly harmless tab-
aching head without their increasing use year
proof that they do help him. Take them for any and the pain peculiar to may have found them
at such times. The relations with every pack-Aspirin tell how to
sore throat, neuralgia,
All druggists.

ASPIRIN

The mark of Bayer Manufacture acetic acid ester of Salicylic acid

College for Men
Bristol, Tennessee

Jackson College
FOR WOMEN

tion, Va., Box A Controlled by Montgomery
Presbytery

Colleges of the Synod of

offers four year courses
Degrees of Bachelor of Arts
of Sciences — a small College — Faculty of eleven
men of thorough training and practical experience. Expen-sible

Jackson College. Ac-
Junior College for young heart of healthful Virginia
Two years high school,
College. Music, art, home
secretarial course, physical education. All outdoor sports.
Fineable golf course on fifty-acres. Homelike life.
Catalogue.

always had a pink George Washington,
or a green somebody else on them.

"Here's the mail, Mother," she called as she put the letters on the lowboy in the hall. "Please be most particularly careful of all those envelopes. I have just made a discovery. I'm going over to Grandmother Abbott's a minute."

Down the street she raced. Grandmother was delighted to see her, of course, and wanted to hear about the visit, but Sally had but one thought in her mind.

"Yes, I had a lovely time. Grandmother, you must have had lots of letters from Uncle Ralph when he went to Africa.
Where are they now? Where are the envelopes? May I see the stamps?" Sally hopped around on both feet, while grandmother went to her desk and took out two bundles of letters, and then watched Sally with smiling eyes, as she eagerly examined letter after letter.

"My, grandmother! they do not have one stamp for the whole of Africa. Uncle Ralph must have gone to lots of different places, and each place has a different stamp. Here is an Arab on a running camel, and it says Sudan, and here are some African men paddling a queer boat, and I cannot read what it says, and here's a tiger stalking in jungle grass, and see this dear little elephant under a tree, and who's that king there? It says Gambia.
Where's Gambia?"

"Sally, dear," laughed grandmother, "I have been hoping you would want those stamps, and I have been saving them just for you. I will help you get them off the envelopes. You will have to use your father, and an atlas to answer all your questions."

On the way home a visit was made to Aunt Margaret, and letters from all her friends who were traveling in Europe were examined.

By the time daddy came home to supper that evening, Sally had discovered so many new and interesting things about stamps that she began to do all the talking at supper again.

"Hold on," said daddy, "if you will just give me a chance to make a few intelligent and important remarks, I will give you a liberal and appropriate reward tomorrow when I get home."

She let mother say three sentences, and daddy two.

So the next night, when she sat down to supper, she found a package at her place, which contained a stamp-album just the right size for a little girl who was beginning to save stamps. Inside it said,
"To Sally from Daddy, because she found a clean and instructivating hobby."—The Leader.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

A ragged little boy with a bundle under his arm wandered one hot summer day through the poorest section of one of the big cities towards the railroad station.
Weary and footsore from his long hot walk, he mounted the steps of the station and was almost at the top when a big man turning sharply into the staircase bumped into him and almost knocked him down. The boy recovered his bal-

PUZZLE ANSWERS

PATRIOTIC POETICAL
CRYPTOGRAM

"Breathes there a man with soul so dead,

Who never to himself has said,
This is my own, my native land?"

—Lay of the Last Minstrel.

By Sir Walter Scott.

DIAMOND

H

B O T

B E L O W

H O L I D A Y

T O D A Y

W A Y

Y

A	L	G	E	B	R	A
C			R	O	A	D
C	B	R	A	I	D
O	P			D	R
U	R	B	A	N	E
N	E	A	R		S
T	Y	R	A	N	T	S

ance, but dropped the bundle and the man, full of apology for his awkwardness helped him gather together the few poor garments that scattered over the steps.

"Where are you bound for, sonny?"
asked the man.

"Paradise, sir," answered the urchin.

Now this answer was startling to say the least, and Mr. Brown looked his surprise.

"Honest, sir," persisted the boy. "Just come over to the train and see. There's a bunch of us fellows going this week.
It's a farm, sir. Paradise they call it and it sure is."

His curiosity aroused, Mr. Brown followed the lad's suggestion and escorted him to the train. There beside the gate were forty little boys—all more or less ragged, but all grinning happily and waiting their turn to be inspected and tagged by the kindly young doctor who had to pass upon the fitness of each prospect before he might pass through the gate. Mr.
Browning stood quietly by watching the proceedings. The boys were a happy, noisy crowd, but not unruly.

"Where are they going?" he asked one of the workers when the noise had abated.

"To Paradise," was the answer, "but really, sir, in more ways than one. These poor boys and many like them are sent by a Vacation Week Society to a place called Paradise Farms. The boys go there for two weeks—all expenses paid—and they are given real food, good supervision, taught good habits and started on the road to good health. Of course, we have thousands of applicants and every case is investigated before the boys are told to report at the station. Only really worthy cases are sent. Do you know, sir, some of these kids have never seen grass growing? They come from tenements where five and six people live in one room which they call 'home.' Paradise is a good name for the farm. It is Paradise for those kids. Really, two weeks is too short for them. But our funds are terribly limited, and we're doing the best we can do with what we have." The social worker had warmed up to his subject.

He told Mr. Brown about similar camps that were run for poor little girls. Their camp clothes were provided for them.
Good wholesome food was given them.
They were taught to swim, to stretch and grow in the sunshine, to live and to find God.

Mr. Brown was impressed. He had known, of course, that such work was being done but he had never come into such close contact with it before. "How much does it cost to send and keep a fellow at such a camp?" he asked.

"Our organization estimates that seven dollars a week will pay all expenses including transportation and the councilor's salary for one child. Not much, is it, measured beside the good that it does?"
No, it is not much. Mr. Brown pulled his check book from his pocket. "Here, I'm glad I bumped into that kid, this morning.
Sometime, I'd like to visit Paradise, myself."

SMILES

A smile is but a simple gift,
Yet none so poor but may
With just a pleasant, kindly smile
Brighten a dreary day.
If you can teach your lips this art
Where'er you chance to go,
You'll soon find that your life will be Happier for doing so.
—Helen M. Richardson, in The Sunbeam.

YOUR SUCCESS

depends upon the thoroughness with which you prepare yourself for a prosperous business career. We can help you. Write for our handsome catalogue "B."

ROANOKE NATIONAL BUSINESS COLLEGE
Roanoke, Va.

HOT WEATHER

retards digestion and reduces vitality. Keep yourself in perfect condition with

YERKE'S COD LIVER OIL

At All Leading Druggists

NERVOUS DISEASES

Drug and alcoholic addictions successfully treated at Spring Garden Sanitarium, 2911
Spring Garden Street, Greensboro, N. C.
Write us for full information. Correspondence Confidential.

The Bristol-Nelson School

For mentally defective children. Open throughout the year—limited to 25 pupils.
Girls of all ages. No boys over 12 years of age. Scientific training. Ideal home life.
Large lawns and playgrounds—5 assistants.
Prices range from $900 to $1,800 per year. For illustrated catalog—Address
MRS. CORA BRISTOL-NELSON
Murfreesboro, Tenn.

Belk's 33rd Anniver- sary July Clearance Sale

IS NOW ON

DRASTIC REDUCTIONS IN ALL DEPARTMENTS

A Once a Year Event that
You Cannot Afford to Miss

Belk Brothers Co.
Charlotte, N. C.

THE RIGHT WAY TO TRAVEL
 is by train. The safest. Most comfortable. Most reliable. Costs less. Inquire of Ticket Agents regarding greatly reduced fares for short trips.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Church and Sunday School Furniture
 Send For Special Catalogue
THE SOUTHERN DESK COMPANY
 Hickory, N. C.

LITTLE FOLKS For their frequent bumps, burns, bruises, cuts and skin troubles. ::
 — use —
GRAY'S OINTMENT
 At all drug stores. For free sample write
 W. F. Gray & Co., 724 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Nervous Women Praise Capudine
 Delicately poised women who suffer from high nerve strain and nervous pains, such as periodic pains, headache and pains in the back and sides are high in their praise of Capudine because it quickly soothes the tense nerves and relieves the pain.
 Being liquid, Capudine acts almost instantly,—does not upset the stomach. Sold by druggists in 30c and 60c sizes. (adv.)

YOUR CHURCH deserves a beautiful exterior in harmony with its spirit of culture and worship. Let us suggest appropriate shrubbery.
THE HOWARD-HICKORY CO., Hickory, N. C.
 Local Representatives Wanted, especially to sell fruit trees.
 Landscape Gardeners and Nurserymen

Piles and other Rectal diseases cured without pain or surgery. No hospital detention. Write to Dr. W. R. Register, 63 No. Broad Street, Atlanta, Georgia, for free book. Hundreds of cured patients.

Take STANBACK
 to Relieve PAIN

6 6 6
 is a Prescription for
Colds, Grippe, Flu, Dengue, Bilious Fever and Malaria.
 It is the most speedy remedy known.

WEAK EYES are strengthened and relieved by Dickey's old reliable eye water. In use over half a century. Relieves sore eyes from gnats and dust. Doesn't hurt. In red folding box at all good stores or by mail 25c.
 Dickey Drug Co. Bristol, Virginia

OVER-RUNS AND MILL ENDS
SAVE ONE-THIRD ON CLOTH DIRECT FROM LOOM TO YOU
 Cotton Flannels, Pillow Tubings, Sheetings, Crinkled Cloth for Bedspreads, Pajama Checks, Chambrays, Tinted Dimities Gingham, Art Silk Striped Madras for men's and boys' Shirts. Write for free samples and prices.
McAGHAN MILL STORE, Dept. A., Greenville S. C.
 "Textile Center of the South"

S P A R K L E S

I Been Wantin' a Wife
 I been wantin' a wife, but she's gotta be Mighty powerful pretty to see.
 She's gotta be happy, with allus a smile,
 And maybe a little tear once in a while.

She's gotta be there with a kiss and a hug,
 And the gift o' making' her man feel snug.

She can scold me as if I was only her son,
 And muss up my hair when the dishes is done.

She's gotta have brains and a clean, noble heart,
 And she's gotta keep saying' I'm just plenty smart.

But no matter what else, she's sure gotta be
 A livin' example of loyalty.

She can't look at, nor think of, nor love other men,
 She's gotta be mine, only mine—but then

I been lookin' fer that kind o' gal, until I'm just turned eighty-five, and a bachelor still.
 —Shadows.

He: "Aren't you wild about bathing beauties?"
 Ha: "I don't know. I never bathed one.—Carnegie Puppet.

The collective type of girl is the stereotype.—Brown Bull.

Complaining Wife: "What have I got to look forward to—except tomorrow's magazine serial?—Missouri Outlaw.

First Pirate: "Where is our vaunted leader?"
 Second Deck Swabber: "What is he wanted for?" — Pennsylvania Punch Bowl.

Passenger (to engineer during electrical storm): "Aren't you scared?"
 Engineer: "Not at all, Madam, I am not a conductor.—Drexlerd.

Not Popular
 "Why did you leave your post with Hummell & Co.?"
 "They did something I did not like."
 "What was that?"
 "They dismissed me."—Dorfbarbier (Berlin).

One on the Cop
 Cop on Shore: "I'm going to arrest you when you come out of there."
 Man in Water: "Ha! Ha! I'm not coming out. I'm committing suicide."—Yellow Jacket.

A Tested Recipe
 "Do you know how to make a peach cordial?"
 "Certainly. Send her some chocolates."

Why Not?
 Jimmie giggled when the teacher read the story of the man who swam across the Tiber three times before breakfast.

"You do not doubt that a trained swimmer could do that, do you?"
 "No, sir," answered Jimmie, "but I wonder why he did not make it four and get back to the side where his clothes were!"

Mexican Heat Powder
 Immediately relieves Prickly Heat, Nettle Rash, Diaper Rash, Tired, Sore and Blistered Feet. Sunburn, all Skin Irritations. At your Druggists

Chicora College for Women
The Presbyterian College of South Carolina
 Standard College Courses Large, Strong Faculty
 Beautiful Grounds Ideal Surroundings
 Healthful Climate Moderate Rates
 For Catalog and Information, Address
S. C. Byrd, D.D., LL.D., President, Columbia

FORTY-SIX YEARS CONTINUOUS SERVICE WITHOUT A LOSS ON ANY LOAN
 We offer you a safe, tax-free investment for your regular weekly or monthly savings and your lump sum.
 Write for particulars.
ASSETS OVER $8,800,000.00
The Mutual Building and Loan Association
 Established 1881 CHARLOTTE

If In Doubt, Take B. & L. Shares
 You will earn the highest interest rate on your savings consistent with perfect safety, and pay no tax on dividends. Shares cost twenty-five cents per week and usually mature in 333 weeks. Net you 6 1-2 per cent maturity.
 Series Open in January, April, July and October
Mechanics Perpetual Building & Loan Association
 Established 1883
 18 E. Fourth St. Charlotte

THE WINTHROP DESK, $75
 The Governor Winthrop desk has come down to us from the very earliest beginning of America. The one shown here every detail has been copied minutely. It is made in Grand Rapids which is an assurance of its fine quality. Others, varying in size from $70 to $145.
W.T. McCOY & Co.
Home Furnishers
 423-425 SOUTH TRYON STREET
 CHARLOTTE, N. C.

For the Future
 Are you making ready to share in the opportunity which increasing prosperity will bring?
A Reserve Fund Banker Will Help
Charlotte National Bank
Resources Over $5,000,000.00

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

Religious Newspaper for the Family

Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.

GES, D.D., Editor-in-Chief
S, D.D., Co-Editor
PER WILLIS, Contributing Editor

ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858

M. F. ELLIS, Vice-President
REV. J. G. GARTH, Treasurer and News Editor
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
BY PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY

CHARLOTTE, N. C., JULY 31, 1929

No. 31

Training Attracts Deep Interest

School Teachers and Will Close Aug. 2

21st, was a great day audiences of more than
ning and 1,500 at night,
akers of the day. Dr.
pastor of the Grace
byterian Church, Rich-largest Presbyterian Old Dominion, was the morning hour. He spoke of: "The Way." He to the fact that this ation applied in the days to the Christian btedly came from the
by our Lord: "I am
uth and the life." Dr.
ping his subject said
indicated the way to liation, to peace, and o indicated that Christ
y to God, and that this the part of the Chris-counted for the wide
ry zeal of the early h and also explained of the Christian Church
e being tolerant of a ions, but intolerant of d its founder to be the
The speaker stressed nt the fact that "The
of life and life abound-

r Fiske, Professor of ation in Oberlin Col-
the speaker Sunday
t being "The Religious mily," he prefaced his ng attention to things
family in the present
y the menace of easy orce. He spoke of the ea leads all countries in ratio of marriage and pan which up to very d this doubtful distinc-
age in every seven in g in divorce.

ho has lectured and
ely on the subject of e a personal investigaago of 22,000 families
ntries in fifteen states
e found as a result of n that, whereas the even, the ratio of marorce among Christian e divorce to 117 mar-
the speaker to stress
portance of the Chris-
the homes of our land.
ng and helpful way he
to the various ways of religion in the home.
cheduled to speak on
"What is happening family."

ight July 22nd, Dr. Ankwood, of Louisville
inary, who is leading through this two ce on "The Parables of as his first subject the ower, a large audience
Dr. Blackwood called fact that the emphasis is rather on the soil
ver. He then sketched ent kinds of hearers
he parable: (1) The

Dr. Lingle Resigns at Training School

Board Appoints Committee for Successor—Dr. Bucholz Acting as President

The Board of Trustees of the General Assembly's Training School for Lay Workers met in Richmond recently and with much regret accepted the resignation of Dr. W. L. Lingle as the President, to take effect the first day of September. A committee was appointed to draft a suitable resolution of appreciation of Dr. Lingle's services to be presented to him later.

The Executive Committee of the Board was empowered to make all necessary arrangements for the coming year in the way of teaching of Dr. Lingle's courses and to have charge of any matters in connection with the management of the School until a President is elected.

Already arrangements are being made for additional teaching force that will give the students a fine opportunity for work and preparation. Students who are thinking of entering the school next year need not hold back, as in all probability the best course yet offered will be given this coming session.

It is hoped soon to have an Acting President who will have charge until a President is elected.

A committee consisting of Dr. W. E. Hill, Chairman, Richmond, Va., was appointed to look over the field and recommend to the Board at a meeting to be held later the name or names of men from whom to elect a President.

In the meantime Dr. O. E. Bucholz, of the Faculty, is looking after the detail work of the School, and prospects for an excellent year are encouraging.

F. T. McFaden,
President of the Board.
Robert M. Friend,
Secretary of the Board.

Dr. Lynch Resigns As Peace Secretary

Eminent Editor and Antagonist of War Will Devote Remaining Days to Private Efforts for His Objectives

Rev. Frederick Lynch, D.D., who is well known because of his interest in international questions and the problem of world peace and who has written extensively on co-operation and Christian unity, has resigned his position as Educational Secretary of The Church Peace Union, and as a member of the Board of Trustees.

Dr. Lynch will devote his time and energies to writing, speaking and preaching in behalf of these questions that have been so much a part of his life for the last thirty years. The resignation takes effect August 1st.

wayside hearer, the indifferent person who has contact with the Word but no reception of it; (2) The rocky hearer, or the superficial man who is constantly seeking something new; (3) The thorn-infested hearer, or the worldly person burdened by riches,
(Continued on Page Two)

First Church, Roanoke, Enters New Building

Impressive Services Mark Closing of Old Structure—Pastor Emeritus
Recounts History of Work

With appropriate exercises, on June 23, the First Church, Roanoke, Va., entered its new building, which is located in South Roanoke, and equipped for the aggressive program which this church has put on under the leadership of Dr. T. K. Young.

While the church is entering its new edifice with high hopes and an enlarged program, the surrender of the old church with its memories brought a struggle of emotion to many hearts particularly the older members of the church who have been connected with the church from early days.

The last sermon in the old church was preached by Rev. W. C. Campbell, D.D., the pastor emeritus who had been identified with the church for 48 years. He recalled how he was pastor of Big Lick Church, the rendezvous of Indians and wild animals in colonial times, because of the salt lick there. Dr. Campbell has seen Roanoke gather around the settlement of Big Lick, and grow until it has become the third city of Virginia.

The sermon of Dr. Campbell was printed in full in the Roanoke Times. We quote from it some historical allusions, and part of Dr. Campbell's conclusion:

"For more than a half century this spot on which we now gather, has witnessed the gathering, Sabbath after Sabbath, of men and women who assembled here for worship. How much these old walls might tell us of sermons preached, souls saved, lives consecrated, prayers offered and vows made.

It is more than three quarters of a century since the little frame church was built in the Old Lick, and came down to us consecrated by the ministry of Powers, White, Smith, Jones, Le Fevre and John Dinwiddie. Forty-three more years have passed since the wood of the first building was exchanged for brick, and this building in which we gather today was erected.

This season crowds my memory with incidents that marked major events in my life. Fifty-six years since I entered as a student into Hampden-Sidney College, graduating three years later from that institution. Fifty-three years have passed since I entered Union Theological Seminary, graduating three years later in 1879. Fifty years since, on May 23, 1879 I stood in the pulpit of the little Presbyterian Church in Harpers Ferry and preached my first sermon as a minister in charge of a church. Forty-eight years since July 3, 1881, I preached my first sermon as pastor of this congregation. For nearly fifty years I have been pastor and pastor emeritus of this Church. In those earlier days Roanoke was a country village with some seven hundred population. Great oaks bowered this church. Now, a great city, third in population in the State of Virginia, pulsating with modern life stretches itself far over spaces occupied by cultivated fields, and woodlands where mighty forest trees shadowed the land.

Within these forty-eight years many things have happened to this church. The little congregation has multiplied

Unspeakable Suffering In China

Appeals for Help for Millions Dying of Starvation and Disease in the Orient

Stressing the appalling plight of China's starving millions and voicing an appeal for immediate help, the Rev. Stephen C. Peabody, of the American Mission Board in Shensi Province, China, has sent a vivid picture of famine conditions to Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, National Chairman of China Famine Relief, U. S. A., with headquarters at 205 E. 42nd St., New York City.

Mr. Peabody says in part:
"There has been no rain to speak of for over a year. There are no railroads, mule and camel transportation is growing increasingly difficult because of the difficulty in securing fodder. In many regions all of the animals have been killed for food. Winter plantings of grain are withering without even heading out. Whole families are committing suicide, due to their utter helplessness. Others roam as refugees, vainly hoping that any other little place will be better than the place where they are. Little daughters are being sold.

"During the coming months this can only get worse. I was in the Near East Relief at Samsoun, Turkey, for a year, and there was nothing there of greater suffering or intensity even during the worst periods. Here the arcas affected are vastly greater and the numbers of people in this extreme condition many times more numerous. We need help, and we need it speedily!

"I look into the hunger-pinched faces of these people; little children dressed in only an abbreviated shirt that shrunk in the wash it never got till it is little more than a collar, innocent sufferers and awfully appealing little tikes; mothers with tragedy and love of their little brood cut deeply into their faces; men, mere skeletons of their former selves, patiently and painfully nursing their withering crops on hillsides that no American farmer would bother to cultivate. No rain, and still no rain. They look at me and stretch out their hands to me.

"We've got to go through with this thing and go through with it in a large Christian way. Do help us!"

Contributions for the relief of the famine sufferers are being received and forwarded to China with all possible dispatch by James A. Thomas, Treasurer, China Famine Relief, 205 E. 42nd St., New York City.

itself seven fold. Birth control has never been a part of the policy of the First Presbyterian Church. The membership of these churches has multiplied nearly fifty times. Within these forty-eight years the First Church has built and helped to build eleven other church buildings. Its Sunday Schools have grown from nothing to between two and three thousand young people and others. Its contributions from six hundred and sixty-seven dollars to nearly one hundred thousand dollars annually from itself and children. Today it is the second largest Presbyterian Church in the Synod of Virginia.

I want to say just a few words about this change in our place of worship,
(Continued on Page Two)

Young People's Conference Massanetta Springs

The Young People's Conference held under the auspices of the Committee on Religious Education in the Synod of Virginia closed Monday night at Massanetta Springs. There were approximately 550 enrolled from Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

There have been 1300 young people on the Massanetta Springs grounds this summer for a period of a week. There were 427 Intermediates from the Synod of Virginia, and about 350 young people from the Baltimore Conference of the Methodist Church.

The Presbyterian Young People's Conference was pronounced a wonderful success. It was unusually well organized. There was a real Massanetta spirit throughout the conference. The organization began to function at the very beginning, securing results immediately. There was a dignity and Christian spirit which prevailed throughout the conference. The speakers and teachers were very able ones. There were approximately 45 speakers, teachers and clan leaders.

Among those on the program were Dr. James H. Taylor, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, Washington, D. C., who led the devotional services, consisting of a series of addresses on the Book of James. The evening inspirational addresses were delivered by Rev. Dwight M. Chalmers, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Charlottesville, Va. He struck a very high spiritual note and made a deep impression. In a peerless way Rev. Robert W. Miles, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, Lynchburg, Va., led the open conference and the vesper service. His expert advice had a great deal to do with making the conference a success. The singing was led by Rev. C. L. Nisbet, Norton, Va., and the recreational program was under the direction of Rev. D. V. Blayne, Boys' Work Secretary, Y. M. C. A., Richmond, Va.

Rev. T. K. Currie, Director of Religious Education in the Synod of Virginia, had charge of the Conference and deserves the highest commendation for the way in which he prepared the program.

The days' program consisted of regular textbook classes in the morning, sports and recreation of all kinds in the afternoon and inspirational addresses at night.

One of the interesting features was the conferring of the degrees of "The Order of Massanetta" upon thirty-five young men and women who did excep-

CONTINUATIONS FROM PAGE ONE

LEADERSHIP TRAINING SCHOOL ATTRACTS DEEP INTEREST

pleasures and cares of this life and brings no fruit to perfection; and finally (4) the good hearer, or the productive Christian who accepts the Word, understands it, holds it fast and brings forth fruit with patience.

The speaker said that the great task of the Church should be, by God's grace, to lead the indifferent and the superficial and the worldly hearers to be productive Christians, useful in building up the Kingdom. Dr. Blackwood is to speak each morning at 10:10, taking up the Parables of Matthew this week and the Parables of Luke the week following.

One of the interesting events of last week was the song and dramatic recital by Mr. Edward Brigham of New York on Wednesday evening. Mr. Brigham is a singer, dramatic reader and pianist of wide reputation both in the United States and Canada. The Aeolian Choir of Asheville, under the direction of Mr. Crosby Adams, of

College Church Planned at Raleigh

Structure to Cost $250,000 to be Built for Worship at A. and E.

A committee of leading Presbyterians of the state, with former Governor A. W. McLean of Lumberton as chairman, has formulated plans for the erection of a $250,000 church in West Raleigh near North Carolina State College.

It is planned to erect only one unit of the edifice, the others to be added, on the church lot on Hillsboro street, opposite Patterson hall, a campus building. The building project will not be undertaken until funds for it are in hand.

Church work among students of State college is considered a most important phase of religious activity, the committee has resolved. The church, which now holds its services in Pullen hall on the campus, expects to have a membership of 500, including 350 students, according to the Rev. J. R. Walker, the pastor.

No professional canvassers will be employed to raise the needed funds, the committee has ruled. The present objective is erection of the Sunday School unit as soon as the money is in sight.

tionally fine work in their home churches.

The Auxiliary Training School, held under the auspices of the Virginia Synodical, opens on July 25th and is held simultaneously with the Leadership Training School, and almost simultaneously with the School of Music. A very large attendance is expected.

The Men's Conference, held under the auspices of the Synod's Committee on Men's Work, will be held the first four days in August.

The Bible Conference, held August 12-25, presents an unusually able program. Some have thought it is the best program of its kind ever put on at Massanetta Springs. In addition to the speakers already announced, Sergeant Alvin C. York, World War hero, and representatives of the Students' League of Many Nations (seventeen nationalities) will tell the stories of their conversion on August 14th. Those who have heard them say it is marvelous. The detailed program of the Bible Conference has just been printed and may be secured by writing to the manager of the Massanetta Springs Conferences, Massanetta Springs Station, Harrisonburg, Virginia.

Montreat, was the attraction for Saturday night.

FIRST CHURCH, ROANOKE, ENTERS NEW BUILDING

which we are about to make. You are going to a beautiful church, worthy of our city and of this congregation. It will stand to future generations a beautiful monument, reared to the greater glory of God. It is now one of the outstanding features of our city. It is beautiful for situation, beneath the shadow of Mill Mountain, that stands like an ancient acropolis, and in this lovely valley, it should be an everlasting joy.

This new church is built of stone and mortar and timber and iron and stained glass, as the expression of the highest art of the artists who planned it. But, my dear friends, a church to meet the needs of human kind and to do God's work is more than stone and cement and stained glass, and beautiful proportions. I love to see a beautiful church, I believe God should have the very best we can give Him. But it is men and women who in the service they render God and humanity, make a church what it should be."

Massanetta Starts on Second Semester

The Massanetta Springs Conferences are starting on the second lap of the series and will concern itself with adults from now on. The great Auxiliary Training School opens on July 25th and 250 women from the States of Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and District of Columbia are expected.

The School of Music, held under the leadership of the faculty of the John Finley Williamson Choir School, Dayton, Ohio, is held almost simultaneously, July 29-August 4. These musical artists have won international reputation. On a recent trip abroad they sang before the crown heads and took Europe by storm. They present the beautiful, worshipful type of music which all ministers and Christian workers love. A choir of 100 picked voices from the historic Valley of Virginia will be trained to sing at Massanetta Springs on Thursday, August 1. This will be a gala night at Massanetta Springs.

Among the outstanding leaders who will speak and teach at the Auxiliary Training School will be Miss Janie W. McGaughey, recently elected superintendent of Woman's Auxiliary of the Southern Presbyterian Church. She has been highly honored, having been elected to the highest honor within the gift of the women of the Southern Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Walter L. Lingle, former President of the Assembly's Training School, Richmond, Va., and recently elected President of Davidson College, will deliver a series of lectures on the Social Teachings of Jesus, based on the Sermon on the Mount.

Other prominent speakers are Dr. James O. Reavis, Field Secretary of the Executive Committee of Foreign Missions; Dr. Henry H. Sweets, Executive Secretary of the Committee of Christian Education and Ministerial Relief; Dr. J. W. Skinner, Ex-Moderator of the General Assembly, and others.

The Auxiliary Training School, combined with the Leadership Training School and the School of Music will be unusually interesting, constructive and helpful to those who attend.

Two of the principal speakers at the Men's Conference, August 1-4, will be Dr. Wm. M. Anderson, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Dallas, Texas, and Dr. H. W. DuBose, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Spartanburg, S. C. A large number of men of the Synod of Virginia and surrounding states are expected to attend.

The grand climax of the conferences at Massanetta Springs is the Bible Conference, August 12-25. Some of the greatest speakers and religious leaders on the Continent are on the program. It is challenging. Any man or woman will be fortunate to attend it. Among the speakers of national reputation are the following:

Dr. John Timothy Stone, Ex-Moderator of the General Assembly, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian Church, Chicago, Ill.

Dr. George L. Robinson, finished scholar, popular speaker and archaeologist of national fame, Chicago, Ill.

Dr. Wm. Evans, known over the whole United States as one of the greatest Bible teachers, Los Angeles, Calif.

Sergeant Alvin C. York, World War hero, according to General Pershing, "The greatest civilian soldier of the World War."

Dr. Robert E. Speer, Foreign Mission Secretary of the Northern Presbyterian Church, well known on two continents, a man of unusual piety and a commanding speaker on religious themes.

Dr. P. W. Philpott, pastor of the Moody Memorial Church, Chicago, twice nominated to Parliament in Canada, a great evangelist.

Rev. J. Alfred Kaye, a finished and attractive speaker, London, England.

Rev. Gypsy Smith, Jr., cultured

Mid-Summer at

J. Grey McAllister

The Montreat season is and a wonderful season it be, with the largest July seen in the auditorium. The Committee on the Work was one of the yet held by that imports our Church. At the same time from all over the Conference on Christian and Ministerial Relief meeting, co-ordinate with Presbyterian Educational of the South. Before they had finished their work, Advisory Committee of ment of Woman's Work sessions, reviewing Work of our Church du year and planning for the Then came the greatest Conference in the history of with more than a thousand attendance and a fine program carried forward. This closing as these lines are ten and the women are all parts of the South. women in the cottages attended most of these without registration. Up the official registration representing all the S Church. The figures are Alabama sent 32; Appalachians 15, Florida 45, Georgia 16, Louisiana 19, Missouri 20, North Carolina 2, South Carolina 24, Texas 8, Virginia 48, 16, miscellaneous 15.

The closing night of was most interesting, the ing divided into two parts was the presentation to Retreat Association of a Jewish Tabernacle, made Manning of St. Louis, Missouri, sending one-twelfth the of the tabernacle, both in all the articles of furniture of the tabernacle and up on large platform in front of the pulpit in Auditorium and explaining its structure and furnishings. Walter Craven of Excelsior, Mo.; a number of the (Continued on page speaker, a flaming evangelist.

Dr. Wm. Hiram Foulk, large church at Newark the outstanding leaders of the Presbyterian Church, President of the International Endeavor.

Rev. Wm. M. Roberson, clergyman of Vancouver, B. C., who has deeply sages.

Representatives of the Students' League of Many countries), will tell the conversion.

Mr. Homer Hamrick, Rapids, Mich., one of the evangelistic singers in lead the singing.

Rev. Sam L. Joekel, English Bible in Austinological Seminary.

Dr. Ray O. Wyland, of the Department of Education, Boy Scouts of America,

Dr. Hubert McNeill, Forest College, an church music.

Dr. A. L. Lathem, Chatham, N. C., author of a unique plan Bible Schools.

Dr. W. H. T. Squires, Presbyterian Church, New York, Friends of Massanetta Springs, stating that there is no Conference program program on continent of North America.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

FOUNDED 1858

of the Synod of N. C. for 70 Years

Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as Second Class Matter

—The subscription price of the Standard is payable in advance. To ministers the price is $2.50 per year. To ministers' wives the price is $2.50 per year.

—Mailing label shows the month and year to which subscription is paid. Payment in advance is required.

—Orders may be made by money order, check, or registered mail. Payment by mail.

—Change of Address—No charge is made for notices of change of address, but for all over fifty words the charge is made.

—Sent on application.

—Kindly send us both old and new addresses as to the desired change.

—All notices made only upon the written request of the subscriber. Settlement in full must be made at the same time.

—All Business Communications Should be

Addressed to

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

Box 869

Charlotte, N. C.

EDITORIAL

SUNDAY AT MONTREAT (A Belated Article)

Sunday of the season of 1929, at Montreat, was opened with two sermons. One by Dr. Chas. E. Diehl, of the University at Memphis, and Dr. J. H. Bell, Ph.D., Student Secretary of the Synod. I. Sweets, Secretary of Christian Education, was the subject was "The Kingdom Within and Without." His subject with the state-ment are two Kingdoms." One internal and one external, he developed his text with a freshness and originality in his treatment that secured him close attention, and raised the question in the minds of his hearers: "Do not more preachers leave the Church by the method of treatment, and arouse the people to hearing by a simple treatment of the parable to old and young, and fasten the message upon the minds of hearers."

He knew a seminary student who had received the treatment "of everything—its cause and result," no matter what the method, who secures a hearing in these days of a man who is fresh, original and inspiring service Dr. Powell discussed the "Kingdom of God," from the text of Paul at Corinth: "In Him we live, and move, and have our being."

It is a new man in our work, but it is a man that he won his Ph.D. degree by his attainments.

Attention required close attention in the oration, the argument, a style suited to the occasion, speaking men rather than the average man, and in his thinking rarely goes beyond the surface.

His sermons closed the Conference on Education. It is reported to have been a very successful Conference, the attending large and representative.

Do not know any branch of our work more developed than the work of the workers.

Bringing together of the heads of the schools and colleges of the Church for considering the problems of education productive of much good, shown in the solutions of these problems, and bringing the workers themselves into contact with the body.

Most of these Conferences, educational in character, better condition than ever before in our history.

Today evening, which is generally given to entertainments of a lighter nature, the schools had the floor.

The school was represented by students in the address and the merits of the school were discussed.

He gave a striking picture of our work, its extent and its variety. The picture was limited, because the schools were not represented, the picture limited to those in attendance at the conference.

MONTREAT LEADERSHIP TRAINING SCHOOL

The general idea of Montreat, outside of those who have attended the Conferences, is that it is a summer resort where those seeking rest may spend a summer in comparative comfort—a place where the tired workers can find rest and return to work in the fall full of energy.

While this is true in part it is not all the truth of Montreat, because it is a place where training is given and influence exerted on those who come that bear fruit in the general work of the Church.

Dr. Anderson in his appeals for aid has rung the changes on Montreat's value to the Church, but many have not credited his claims, thinking that he was picturing an imaginary Montreat in order to get money for its enlargement.

We recently commented on the Auxiliary Training School in which the women were trained in the solution of church problems.

Immediately following that School was the Leadership Training School, where students have had practice in teaching in addition to classroom work. Some twenty different units were offered, and courses of special value to leaders of young people were a notable feature.

All this means real work, the full value of which will be seen in coming days when these pupils become teachers.

As if to emphasize the importance of this feature, the time devoted to this work has been doubled, as compared with former years—this work, it is true does not attract the ministers of the Church, as the inspirational addresses of such men as Morgan and Evans, and others, but it does attract the class upon which the Church has to depend for her workers in the Sabbath School and vacation Schools.

That the Bible has not been lost sight of is evidenced by giving to Dr. Blackwood of the Louisville Seminary two weeks instead of one week, as heretofore. Dr. Blackwood is a great favorite to Montreat, so that his Bible lectures draw the largest crowds of any.

He has just closed the first series in which he has dealt with the parable of the New Testament.

We have seldom heard more inspiring lectures than he has given. We regret that absence at our office in Charlotte lost us two days; but the lecture on Friday on the "Judgment Parable," in Matthew 25, will long linger in our memory, as being on fire with evangelistic fervor and common sense.

THE STANDARD NOT WAVERING

In the conduct of the editorial columns, it has been our rule to be sure that we are right, and then go ahead, undisturbed by differing views.

There are times, however, when we do explain, though the explanation may not add much to the matter in question.

A few weeks ago, we had two editorials in the same issue, one, "The Women at Montreat," and the other "Festina Lente," (make haste slowly). On one we gave our expressions of what the Woman's Conference was doing, dwelling especially upon the Bible hour, as conducted Mrs. E. L. Russell of the Extension Department of the General Assembly's Training School. In the other, we appealed for caution in the conduct of Church Union negotiations, especially in view of the fact that union with the Northern Church might mean women preaching in our pulpits.

A valued friend whose opinion we ordinarily esteem highly calls attention to what he thinks is a conflict between the two editorials, intimating that in one we endorse the preaching of women, and in the other we use the preaching of women as possible result of union with the Northern Church.

Our friend seems to think that we are inconsistent in our views, and that the women will conclude that we have come over to them, "horse, foot and dragoons."

Our reply to this "Non Sequitur" is that when a man opposes women preaching in our pulpits, because it is unscriptural, it does not follow that he cannot praise a woman who teaches the Bible to a gathering of women, with here and there a stray man wandering in.

It is some times said that women lack the logical faculty, but we doubt whether they are even as illogical as our friend is in this instance.

Unless we make this distinction between the public and private preaching of women, we must recall our women workers in the missions, at home and abroad, and debar them from the Sabbath Schools, and even from solo-singing in our churches.

We rather pride ourselves upon our conservatism, and we stand straight when measured by the doctrinal rule, but we do not propose to stand so straight as to fall backward.

Our reply then to the charge of inconsistency is to assure our readers that the Standard is still blue, and is doing business at the same old stand, to mix metaphors a wee bit.

PRESBYTERIAN THEORY—PRESBYTERIAN PRACTICE

All of us know that theory is one thing, and practice is often another.

In fact there can be no practice without theory. Psychologists tell us that before any act there must be a theory of how we are to perform it.

The aimless shuffle of the abnormal child is due to the lack of any theory where he will plant his next step.

On the other hand we also know that it is much easier to form a theory than it is put it into practice.

We find this strikingly true in Church work. The theory of Presbyterianism is that each Church is a part of the whole, and that whatever advances a part adds that much to the whole, and that the welfare of the weakest church is the welfare of the strongest.

If we lived up to this theory Presbyterianism would be extended everywhere.

Unfortunately our practice does not coincide with our theory.

Each Church looks upon its own things and not the things of others.

The condition of the weaker Church seldom gives the stronger Church much concern.

Sometimes we do see a stronger Church trying to live up to this theory by sending out colonies and supporting them till they are financially able to stand alone. Such cases however are so rare that they are conspicuous, and men wonder that such is the case.

The history of our Churches in the large cities is about the same.

Each Church looks out for self, and pays little if any attention to the weaker groups.

The ideal Church in any large city is the Church that selects a strategic point, plants there a colony of its members, supplements the salary of the preacher till the Church grows strong enough to go alone.

And in such cases there ought to be selected a preacher that can compare with the best, otherwise the colony will languish because well-to-do people will not attend a small Church.

When we study Presbyterianism in any large city we generally find one or two large Churches, together with a few others weak and without influence.

In any city when new people come, they, as a rule drift to the larger Churches, unless they are drawn to the weaker Churches by reason of personal acquaintance.

There are several reasons for this partiality.

In the first place they are attracted by numbers. All men prefer to be in the majority, forgetting that majorities are not always right.

Then being new to the place, going where most of the people go will enlarge their acquaintance, and give them that social standing that will add to their pleasure.

The financial reason also operates.

In a small Church there are more demands upon the members, or rather the demand is for a larger sum proportionately than is the case in the larger Church.

Sir Thomas More's Utopia has never yet been realized in the affairs of the world, but if Presbyterianism ever practices its theory, it will be reached in Church affairs, and the dawn of the millennium will have arrived.

THE DUTIES OF THE ELDERSHIP

Hon. W. L. Frierson

(Address delivered before the General Assembly at Montreat, N. C., May 18, 1929.)

It is sometimes a distinct advantage to a speaker not to be too well known to his audience. And that advantage is mine today. In the presence of those familiar with my record of thirty years as an elder, I could not say what I intend to say without some degree of embarrassment. But, fortunately for me, the shortcomings of that record are unknown to you, and it is possible for me to state my conception of what an elder ought to be without the disturbing consciousness that you will be contrasting what I say with what I have done.

The duties of the eldership may be classified as those devolving upon an elder as a member of the session, which he shares with others, and those resting upon him as an individual, responsibility for which he must bear alone.

Church Compared to a Corporation

As Presbyterian churches are organized, the session corresponds to the board of directors of a corporation in the sense that it is the governing or ruling body of the church. The pastor himself is, in many things, subject to its control, just as the president of a corporation is subject to the control of his board of directors. It has the authority to determine all matters affecting the welfare of the local church, but its acts are subject to review by the higher church courts, just as the acts of a board of directors are subject to review by the civil courts.

Corporate directors and elders are alike clothed with actual authority and charged with active duties—directors by the law of the land and elders by the law of God. Directors are trustees for the stockholders. Elders are trustees for the cause of Christ. And both must account for the manner in which they discharge their trust. An elder can no more meet the requirements of his office by merely attending meetings of the session and voting for whatever the pastor proposes than can a director by attending meetings of the board and blindly approving whatever the president does. Neither can he be a figure-head without being a derelict.

When a corporation suffers a loss through the neglect by a director of a duty which the law imposes on him, the courts will require the unfaithful director to make good the loss. And so when a church suffers through an elder's neglect of duty, the unfaithful elder must account to his God for the loss. There are, however, two significant differences. The director is judged by a human and fallible court and may hope, though guilty, to escape the penalty he deserves. But the elder must submit to the unerring judgment of an all-seeing and omniscient Judge. And again, the things for which a director is responsible are material and affect only this life, and it is possible to restore the losses. But the things for which an elder is responsible affect the life eternal, and the losses are beyond any human power to restore.

I approach, therefore, a discussion of the eldership with the rather overpowering thought that it is not too much to say that those of us who are elders have taken upon ourselves graver, more far-reaching and more vitally important duties and responsibilities than come to us in all our secular relations.

In the deliberations of the session the elder must strive to promote peace and harmony and Christian fellowship in the congregation; keep a watchful oversight over all church activities; and insist that the simple Gospel of Jesus Christ be preached from the pulpit. But his duties, by no means, end with what he may do or say in meetings of the session.

The Parity of Elders

Under our form of church government, the ruling elder is given a place only a little below that of the pastor or teaching elder. In all church courts he has an equal voice with the minister. Collectively, as the session, he has greater authority than the pastor.

There are a few things, like administering the sacraments, which only an ordained minister is permitted to do. But with this exception, there is no duty resting on a pastor which may not, at some time, become the duty of an elder. Equally with the pastor, he should have on his heart and in his prayers the good of the church. He should be prepared to give Christian comfort to the sick and sorrowing and, as opportunity offers, to point the way to Christ. He is not called to preach but, in the absence of a pastor or other available minister, he must, if the regular services of the church are not to be neglected, lead prayer meetings and even, on occasion, occupy the pulpit on the Sabbath and thus become almost a preacher. The chief difference, in fact, between a pastor and an elder is that the pastor's religious work is his regular vocation and his means of livelihood, while the elder, for the support of himself and his family, must engage in some gainful occupation.

The minister, is properly supported by his congregation, is not burdened with the exactions of business. Thus, free from the distracting cares of a secular vocation, he can give his whole time and energy to the duties of the pastorate. And, by the same token, he must be the spiritual leader and bear the heavier responsibility for the life of the church.

Elders Must Support the Church

On the other hand, the elder must, through some secular occupation, acquire the means to provide for his family and contribute to the support of his pastor and the church. Subject only to the condition that he adheres to the purpose to make a proper use of the means with which God blesses his efforts, it is just as much his duty to be diligent in business as it is the duty of the minister to prepare the best sermons of which he is capable.

Indeed, it may be said that proper application to secular business is itself a religious duty. Material success provides the means with which laymen may give substantial support to religious undertakings. The freedom from worldly cares, so necessary to the pastor, is possible only when laymen provide him with a support. Great missionary and benevolent undertakings cannot be effectively carried on without large sums of money.

The extent to which a layman can have a part in these undertakings, by supplying funds, is necessarily measured by the degree of his success in business. The elder who uses all honorable means to gain wealth is, just as truly as the minister, serving God with the time and energy he puts in his business, if only he recognizes that he holds as trustee and for the service of God both his time and what he has, and if he remembers that service to God includes service to mankind. Provided we do not permit our secular interests to crowd God out of our hearts, I hold that the honest effort to achieve material success and diligent application to business are Christian duties. Whether it ought to be so or not, it is a fact that eminence in business or profession carries with it a prestige which gives added weight to one's influence in all the relations of life, and increases his power for good.

Elders Must Engage in Church Work

The necessity, therefore, of giving much of his time and thought to secular pursuits is the elder's excuse for not being as continuously engaged in strictly religious activities as the minister. And it is a perfectly valid excuse for a fair division of time and energy. But, because it is a valid excuse, it is a source of danger to our spiritual life. The excuse is easily overworked. The duty to be diligent in business does not justify withholding all our time from purely religious duties. The difficulty with us human beings is to maintain a proper proportion.

Success in business breeds the desire for greater success. And this, in turn makes heavier demands on our time. The danger is that, with increasing prosperity, our willingness both to give and to serve may not keep pace with our increasing ability, and that pride in our achievements may drive out of our hearts any proper spirit of humility.

Conscious of the spiritual dangers that thus lurk in an active business life, we should strive to keep in mind that, next to the minister, the elder stands as the accredited representative of our branch of the church. By us, almost if not quite as much as by the minister, the world judges of the effect which our religion has on the lives of men. Our acceptance of the eldership, whether we so will or not, carries with it an invitation to the world to regard our lives as examples of Christian living.

Faith and Character Essential to An Elder

If, therefore, an elder would even measurably meet the requirements of his high office, his first consideration must be his own faith and character and life. We who are elders are human, and perfection cannot rightly be expected of us. But, in that measure in which we exemplify or fail to exemplify the teachings of Christ, we advance or discredit the great cause we profess to love. What then is to be expected of us? In a word, I think, the answer is, a firm and abiding faith reflected in our lives. I put faith first because if it is genuine, its effect is certain to be seen in the character of our lives.

Mere profession of faith is not enough. The faith that counts is actual and real. We cannot hope to convince others of the truth of that in which we do not ourselves believe. There is a quality of the human mind that enables people to detect any note of insincerity, however, covered up by eloquence or loud profession. There is something about real earnestness which is always lacking in any form of pretended earnestness. The elder who is not sure of his own belief, may be sure that he will be found out—that those who know him will brand his faith as counterfeit and his professions as pharisaical. And his influence for good will be gone. What then are the things which reflect faith or a lack of faith?

Is our faith to be judged by the regularity of our attendance upon religious services? Undoubtedly this is one of the things which will enter into the judgment which others will place upon our professions of faith. The organized church, with its regular hours for public worship, is the center from which all religious activities radiate. The world rightly says that, if our religion is real, attendance at these hours will be a joy and not a mere duty. It follows that the elder who willfully absents himself from the regular services of his church, or who is derelict in taking a proper part in such services, at least, brings his faith under suspicion.

But regular participation in public worship and the observance of religious rites is not enough. Those who were most scrupulous in these respects were the ones to whom Christ applied His strongest words of condemnation. An elder may be in his seat whenever the church doors are open; may attend every meeting of the session; may be ready and eloquent in prayer; may talk religion in season and out of season, and yet be a stumbling block to those seeking the light, and a reproach to his church. Men are judged not so much by what they say as by what they do. Professed religion is judged by what it has on human lives—by what it leads men to do and to refrain from doing. And so we are judged by what we do. Religion will inevitably be judged, not so much by the observance of irreligious ceremonies, or by what we do and say on Sunday, as by the character of our lives.

We are taught that we are saved by faith and good works, but also that if our faith is genuine, it is evidenced by good works. The world has little regard for religion which does not make men and women more useful. Our religion, exemplified by Christ, teaches honesty, fair dealing, generosity for others, charity, a forgiving spirit, and a willingness to help. And these are some of the things which the world has the right to expect to find in our lives. If, as is undoubtedly true, our religious faith or its reflection in our secular lives, if the world is to regard us elders as Christian examples, it is that, in our lives, there can be seen the possible of the spirit of Christ.

The man who, though always in his place on Sunday, is known to resort to dishonest business can have no Christian influence. He whose word cannot be relied on will find that his professed loyalty is regarded as a mockery. But honesty and integrity are not, by any means, all of Christian character. There may be neither dishonest nor untruthful and yet a thoroughly un-Christian.

If a man, though honest and truthful, is greedy for gain makes him hard and oppressive upon his rights regardless of the suffering on others; if he takes advantage of the need of the unfortunate to drive hard bargains; if he is stingy with the wages he pays; if he is ruthless in collecting his dues; if he is deaf ear to the needs of the poor; if he is harsh and unsympathetic in his judgments of others; if he is vindictive and spiteful; if his private life is dissipated and unclean, he is an un-Christian, no matter how honest and how professedly Christian, he is, in the eyes of the world, an un-Christian. I think in the eyes of God Himself, worse than an un-Christian, who makes no pretensions to religious belief, but who, in the extent that we permit these un-Christian things to enter into our lives, we dishonor the office of elder.

Fully conscious of my own many shortcomings, I am emboldened by the fact that you do not know me. I have attempted to give you my conception of what an elder ought to be. We who have assumed the responsibilities of that office ought to see ourselves as accredited servants of God, charged with the spiritual oversight of a portion of His people. We should be diligent in business, that diligence inspired by a sincere desire to acquire the means to do greater service to the church. Business cares must not so engross us that we neglect our strictly religious duties. Our achievements in business may be, must not rob us of the feeling that we are doing upon God. Our faith in the saving power of Christ must be unwavering, and, with God's help, our lives must be an example of that faith.

May God help us to be more faithful.
Chattanooga, Tenn.

"STILL THEY HELD ON"

Egbert W. Smith

Thrilling reports continue coming to us of the courage and heroism of the Chinese Christians who have held on through the great upheaval. Dr. L. S. Morgan got back to the hospital at Haichow, his September. In a letter to his fellowmissionary Bissett, now in Richmond, Virginia, Doctor something of the trials and vicissitudes of the hospital and its staff during the preceding months. He says—

"It is a story almost beyond words, and thrilling through and through, and again and again to keep back the tears as I listen to the stories of our hospital people; how fierce the pressure of the war, how they give up the whole thing and turn against it, how they are looted and how they are filled up with hostile communist soldiers; how they were gotten out, our people say, by the direction of the Holy Spirit through our hospital manager. He went to the right military officer who was more unusual, able to, order the soldiers they held on like grim death while the battle raged right around the hospital, with the bullets flying into the rooms where they were working; how day and night for weeks together to care for the wounded soldiers who filled the hospital, to be laid out in the court yards, because the rooms were full; how the money gave out, how the food gave out, sickness among the staff—yet they held on. Threatened by the soldiers they cared for, pressure strong from even a certain class of so-called Christians who throw the hospital overboard, allow it to be destroyed—still they held on.

"So the story goes, and now when I read it still holding on. 'We knew you would come back. We only wanted to hold things together until you could return the hospital to you intact.' You can stand to some extent my feelings when I think of the hospital and all that belongs to be ab-

Men-of-the-Church

Presbyterian Church in the United States

E. PURCELL, D.D., Executive Secretary
HENRY GRADY BUILDING
ATLANTA, GEORGIA

W. L. FAIRLY, D.D., Wilmington, N. C.,
Charge of Men-of-the-Church Department

SYNOD OF OKLAHOMA

