Report of the Chairman, Mr. A. Gray Gilmer, City, Dr. J. A. McLaughlin attended the Conference of the Synod of Oklahoma under the leadership of the Chairman in Atlanta and reported a complete organization of the work. A Conference was held for men that has been held in the church up to the present time. The spirit of the work was of a high order. Mr. Gray Gilmer is Chairman of the Synod's Men's Work.

SYNOD OF SOUTH CAROLINA

Report of the Chairman, Mr. J. A. Naff, who presided at the meeting of Synod the report of the committee on Men's Work was followed by a splendid address from a pastor of the Synod. The effect upon Synod was favorable and the result of one hundred dollars was made for Men's Work.

The "Men-of-the-Church" in theory and in practice is steadily gaining momentum. The work is steadily gaining momentum. The work is steadily gaining momentum.

The work is steadily gaining momentum. The work is steadily gaining momentum. The work is steadily gaining momentum.

The work is steadily gaining momentum. The work is steadily gaining momentum. The work is steadily gaining momentum.

The work is steadily gaining momentum. The work is steadily gaining momentum. The work is steadily gaining momentum.

The work is steadily gaining momentum. The work is steadily gaining momentum. The work is steadily gaining momentum.

The work is steadily gaining momentum. The work is steadily gaining momentum. The work is steadily gaining momentum.

The work is steadily gaining momentum. The work is steadily gaining momentum. The work is steadily gaining momentum.

The work is steadily gaining momentum. The work is steadily gaining momentum. The work is steadily gaining momentum.

The work is steadily gaining momentum. The work is steadily gaining momentum. The work is steadily gaining momentum.

The work is steadily gaining momentum. The work is steadily gaining momentum. The work is steadily gaining momentum.

The work is steadily gaining momentum. The work is steadily gaining momentum. The work is steadily gaining momentum.

The work is steadily gaining momentum. The work is steadily gaining momentum. The work is steadily gaining momentum.

The work is steadily gaining momentum. The work is steadily gaining momentum. The work is steadily gaining momentum.

The work is steadily gaining momentum. The work is steadily gaining momentum. The work is steadily gaining momentum.

only two groups, with twenty men in each. They meet once a month together for the General Meeting, using the programs sent out from Doctor Purcell's office in Atlanta. The groups alternate in the presentation of the programs and the speakers are chosen from among the members themselves. The material published in the Church papers as well as that sent out in pamphlet form by the Executive Agencies, is very helpful.

In addition to the joint meetings monthly at the church, each group meets separately once a month in the home of one of its members, going to a different home each month, and these group meetings are more enjoyed and probably more helpful than the joint gatherings at the church. The proceedings at group meetings are about as follows: A short devotional period comes first, followed by the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, and then any unfinished or new business is taken up; next, reports are made of visits by members to sick persons, or to any others, especially to non-church members or to newcomers in the community, and sometimes a report indicates that personal work of an evangelistic nature has been done by a member, and the latter never fails to interest the men; brief, voluntary talks or testimonies about personal experiences in the Christian life are sometimes called for by the Group Leader, who presides, and are given by the members—this is well worth while; suggestions are asked for about developing and enlarging the Men's Work and discussion is invited; sometimes assignments will be made by the Leader of certain persons to be visited or seen by different members of the group, having regard to any particular contact which may exist between the members and the man to be seen by him; reporting of any poor or needy ones known to any of the men and sometimes the taking of an offering for them; a regular contribution is made for the building and loan Fund of the church upon shares previously subscribed for; in one of the groups a little "floral treasury" has been maintained for sending flowers to sick members; sometimes there is a circle of prayer, when definite petitions will be made for particular persons, and the meeting is always closed with prayer.

Following the group meeting, there is a social period when light refreshments are served. Suppers or refreshments are not served at the church meetings.

Last year, one group was known as the Younger Men's Group and the other as the Older Men's Groups but with the coming in of the new year, it was deemed best by the Executive Committee that assignments to the two groups be made without reference to age, and now men from eighteen years and above are in each group.

A great deal depends upon the Group Leader, both as to his initiative and the time he is willing to devote to the work, and these in turn depend largely upon his consecration. Responsibility and opportunity must be realized and success not expected otherwise. The President, of course, also has an important function to perform, and so has the pastor. Evangelism should be the dominant note and purpose of the organization. If entertainment and social enjoyment be the chief ends in view, the organization will fail and deservedly so.

Rev. S. B. McLean is pastor of this splendidly working group of men.

SERVICE SUGGESTIONS FOR SEPTEMBER

To the President: September is the month to start again in many churches. The attendance may have been low during the summer, and it will take some real work to build it back again. This is the month to begin. Use every legitimate form of publicity—announcements, daily papers, letters, personal invitations, group leaders—all will not be too much. You will be the source of inspiration, encouragement and strength—this will be hard but it is the price of leadership. It is a price we should be willing to pay for the Lord Jesus Christ.

To the Council: This meeting should be held seven to ten days before the General Meeting. Open and close with prayer. September is assigned to Department III, Home Missions. The Chairman of this Department has charge of the monthly program and makes out the major part of the service program. Before the council meeting he should survey the community in which the church is situated and find any good place for outpost Sunday Schools and preaching points. He should also consult with the Superintendent of Home Missions in the Presbytery, and, if there is any need which the men can meet, suggest it to them. Inspiring the men in unorganized churches is, perhaps, the best way of serving. The Chairman should work this out until it is very definite. Men are not enlisted by hazy suggestions. Many churches have a Rally Month for Sunday School. It might be a fine thing if the chairman of Department V. would have rather definite plans for building up the Bible Class and present them to the council. He should formulate these plans in co-operation with the Superintendent of the Sunday School, the Superintendent of the Adult Department, and the President and teacher of the Bible Class. The chairman of Department I. should submit plans for the Prayer Service with the pastor on Sunday evening or before some preaching service, and also suggest some book of the Bible for the men to read. The Chairman of Department III will have the appointments for the out-post prayer services ready, and Chairman of Department VII will have his plans for supper and entertainment. The Council should hear these plans and decide on what is needed and make out a definite, workable program.

To the Leader: The purpose of this program is to

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Rev. Ernest Trice Thompson, D.D.

Lesson for August 11

DANIEL AMONG THE LIONS

Daniel 6:1-28. Print vs. 10, 11, 16-23

Daniel in the Lions' den is one of the most familiar stories in the Bible. It was indelibly impressed upon our minds in childhood. We are apt to feel, therefore, that we have learned everything from the story that there is to learn. But though it appeals especially to children, it was not originally written for children, and if we will make a real endeavor to study it afresh will undoubtedly find that it has real significance and value for the present day.

We remember that Daniel descended from one of the noble families of Judah. He was carried captive as a mere lad into Babylonia, educated in the Royal Academy, and trained for the King's service as a Magician or Soothsayer. He soon proved his superiority to the other wise men of the realm, and was made by Nebuchadnezzar Governor over the province of Babylon and head over all the wise men in the King's service.

Nebuchadnezzar died in 561 B. C. after a reign of 43 years. He was succeeded by three members of his own family, the last of whom was slain after a reign of only nine months. One of the conspirators, Nabonidus, succeeded him as king, and reigned conjointly with his son, Belshazzar, for 17 years. In the 17th year of his reign, the armies of the Medes and Persians, led by Gubaru, Cyrus' general in chief, took Babylon without a struggle. Belshazzar settled down in the fortress and prepared for a long siege. Several weeks after the beginning of the siege, however, he gave a great feast to a thousand of his nobles. While they were all under the influence of the wine, Gubaru, and his soldiers forced their way into the citadel. That night Belshazzar was slain, and the kingdom passed into the hands of Darius, the Mede.

The question arises, who was Darius, the Mede? We know nothing of him in secular history. We do know very definitely that the first king of the Medo-Persian Empire was Cyrus the Great. This leads us to note that many modern scholars think that Daniel was written late, long after the events in question, in the days of Antiochus-Epiphanes, i. e. about 300 B. C., and that it is a historical romance intended to inspire the Jews in their struggle against the Syrian King rather than actual history. That, of course, would solve the problem. If the Book were written as a historical romance the lessons would remain whether or not all of the history was exactly accurate. This solution is not satisfactory, however, to conservative students of the Bible. They are inclined to identify Darius, the Mede, with Gubaru, Cyrus' general in chief, who later became governor of the province of Babylon. Perhaps he was allowed by Cyrus to assume the dignity of a king, though, of course, if he was he would recognize the overlordship of Cyrus himself. It may well be that in the days to come archaeology will vindicate the Bible's references to Darius, the Mede, just as it has so signally vindicated its references to Belshazzar (see last Sunday's discussion).

We are ready now for the study of the lesson. Read as though it were a new story Daniel 6:1-28. What did bring men in touch with the Presbytery's Home Missions and to use them as much as possible in this great work. You can find material in any Home Mission literature, but the best material you can use is that which you will get from the Superintendent of Home Missions in your Presbytery. He will be glad to help you get his work across to the men. This is a real, vital, concrete theme. Inspire your speakers with its importance and its interest. Here is mission work in action before your very eyes. Urge that the men tell their story in a simple, conversational way.

To the Speakers: This program is a practical program on the work of the Presbytery. Get clearly in your mind the field. By field we mean the number of counties, population, number of people who are out of the church, the number who are unreached. Visualize the possibilities of reaching men for Christ. Talk with your Home Mission Superintendent about plans of work in the Presbytery. Get something definite which the men can do and propose to them. This is mission work at our own doors, and if there is anything in Spiritual Work which will grip and enlist the men, this is it. It will be a great program, however, just as you fill yourself with the subject and get it across to the men.

To the Group Leaders: Get carefully just what you are to do. It should be handed to you in typewritten form. Do not stop until you have planned to the smallest detail just what your men are to do and have assigned every part. It would be a fine thing if every man could have some part in the task. Begin or close your meeting with prayer—a circle prayer if possible.

Sources of Information

Consult the Church Papers first of August, the Presbyterian Survey, Superintendent of Home Missions in your Presbytery, and Educational Secretary, Executive Committee of Home Missions, 101 Marietta Street, Atlanta, Ga.

WOMANS AUXILIARY

The Department of Woman's Work, Presbyterian Church, U. S.
270-277 Field Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

SYNODICAL PRESIDENTS OF THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

Alabama—Mrs. J. F. Hooper, 610 Mabry St., Selma, Ala.
Appalachia—Mrs. F. B. Kegley, Wytheville, Va.
Arkansas—Mhrs. Walter Wilson, Arkadelphia, Ark.
Florida—Mrs. W. G. Thompson, Jr., 3215 Obispo St., Palma
Ceia Park, Tampa, Fla.
Georgia—Mrs. E. G. Abbott, 1315 Eberhart Ave., Columbus, Ga.
Kentucky—Mrs. H. P. Cooper, Lebanon, Ky.
Louisiana—Mrs. Charles L. Bodin, Box 79, M. R. A., Lake
Charles, La.
Mississippi—Mrs. J. S. Hicks, Holly Springs, Miss.
Missouri—Mrs. Walter Craven, 223 Frances St., Excelsior Springs, Mo.
North Carolina—Mrs. G. V. Patterson, Gastonia, N. C.
Oklahoma—Mrs. Wilbur Garvin, 611 Euclid, Lawton, Oklahoma.
South Carolina—Mrs. Parker Connor, Edisto Island, S. C.
Tennessee—Mrs. J. F. Forsythe, Bethel Springs, Tenn.
Texas—Mrs. J. W. Culver, Texas Military Academy, San Antonio, Texas.
Virginia—Mrs. C. R. Vaughan, 319 Mountain Ave., Roanoke, Va.
West Virginia—Mrs. J. McD. Lacy, Elkins, W. Va.

A LETTER FROM TAICHOW

Dear Folks in the Home Land,—

Our latest alarm clock, John Randolph, (bless his heart!), went off true to form at 5:30 a. m., and his ma decided to call it a night and get busy.

We had a most interesting experience yesterday. At 4 p. m., we attended a Christian wedding in the auditorium of our boys' school. There were two hundred guests probably. The master of ceremonies, a good looking, rather pompous gentleman, of fifty summers say, who in times past has been known to beat his wife, but realizes now that these things ought not to be, arose and in a commanding voice announced, "Number one, an organ solo." A little bride of two months standing (my Chinese teacher by the way) arose, and walked over to the instrument, dressed in all her trousseau finery. Shall I describe it? The men may skip this part. Feminine new China wears a long garment these days somewhat like our old princess dress, tight fitting, rather long, and buttoned on the left side from top to bottom. The little bride's (about to perform) was made of black brocaded satin that would make your mouth water. It was sleeveless and she wore an undergarment of apricot brocaded satin whose bell shaped sleeves made the sleeves of her costume. It was most attractive. She's a minister's daughter, educated in a Christian school, and both she and her husband are good musicians. Well, she rendered an air, not rended the air, on a wheezy little reed organ about as big as a postage stamp, and it really sounded pretty. Didn't I say she was a good musician?

Again the sonorous voice, "Number two, a prayer by Brother So and So." "Number three, a hymn." "Number four, the minister, enter, sit," and he entered and sat. "Number five, the family, enter, sit"; they dittoed. "The witnesses, enter, sit." Aren't you excited? and more commandingly than ever, "The bridegroom, enter, sit," and in he did from a room just off the auditorium, very nice looking, a tailor by trade, and quite an earnest Christian. He was dressed in a foreign suit—it must be admitted—rather bluey dark blue and wearing yellow foreign shoes; a large artificial rose was pinned to his lapel. He was attended by his groomsman.

Now hold your breath. "The bride," enters, sits. They say she's fine; in fact number unsteen or so on the program was a history of the affair by one of the witnesses, the bride's pastor from Yangchow. He told how he was invited by her teachers to look for a husband for this their star pupil,—wouldn't an American miss murder him in cold blood! She's an orphan, by the way. Then he took the opportunity of giving a regular eulogy on women,—shade of Confucius! it would have done your hearts good; and he ended with an earnest appeal to the parents of the girls present to prize them, to train them, and to cut out this thing of child engagement, to wait on the Lord in prayer until he should make known the husband of His choice. "Young women, you are the mothers of the nation; let God choose your husbands." "Young men, you are the fathers of the nation; let God choose your wives." It was fine and much needed advice.

But to return to our neglected bride, "waiting at the church." Her costume was a perfect scream from our point of view but I suppose beautiful to Chinese eyes. "Oh, for the pen of a ready writer" to do it justice! To start at her feet, unbound of course as she'd been raised in a Christian school, and shod with embroidered red satin shoes; then a black silk skirt, a coat of electric blue—we'll call it that, for it certainly electrified you on sight; and to top it all a wonderful creation, a veil of bright rose cotton mosquito netting hanging to the floor, in front if you please; its not proper to see a bride's face in ye old land of China; and so it goes, the new and old all mixed into a puzzling Chinese puzzle. The veil was tufted all over her head making it about the size of an inflated basket ball, and at the rear a large bunch of large artificial pink roses. 'Twould have made you laugh if you hadn't wanted to cry so badly. My heart just yearns over these young folks struggling through such a maze of "things new and old."

The ceremony was just like ours, only in Chinese, impressive and breath taking. And then the crowning event, a vocal rendition of a wedding hymn to the tunc of "Here comes the Bride," organized—agonized should I say?—on the aforesaid organ, and sung by the following: two male nurses from the hospital singing bass; another male nurse and a fine young helper (who is superintendent of the Sunday School and general factotum of all the foreigners) sang the lead; and Mr. and Mrs. H. Kerr Taylor were enjoyed (?) on the alto and tenor. They made a special point of my singing with them; said the Lord made men's and women's voices to harmonize, and they wanted to set the example for the edification of all and sundry, particularly those of tender years and the feminine gender.

The ministers, the family, and the witnesses were seated in a semi-circle facing the audience; the bridegroom and best man, and the bride and maid of honor were seated on chairs facing each other in front of the imposing semi-circle and about six feet from each other. They never got any closer together during the whole performance. When the rings were exchanged the minister did the work, and so it went. "The bride and groom bow three times to each other," and over they went in a jack knife quarter of a daily dozen. "The bride and groom bow three times to the minister, three times to the audience," etc. etc. Good reducing exercise to say the least! The whole affair was punctuated with loud and hearty applause, as for instance on the entrance of the bride; on the conclusion of the vows; or whenever the bride's historian in his speech brought out some pleasing point: one he noted was that she was a corking good cook, (loud guffaws and much clapping of hands!). Does it all sound too queer for words to your American ears? It was queer, and very appealing, very reverent, in their way, and I can't help but believe it was well pleasing to the Master whom they serve and we. I wonder what kind of wedding it was He attended that day in Cana.

Kerr had such good luck with his last circular that I am encouraged to write this one; he received twenty-two letters in answer by the return mail. Maybe they weren't gobbled up! A hint pure and simple; our address is enclosed. Picture us sitting on the door step holding our respective breaths until the mail arrives!

I'm putting many of you on our mailing list for the first time; hope you don't mind. Some of the letters I've had to send in a round about way to reach you. If you'd send me a line giving me your correct address and whether there's a Mrs. or Mr. to add on, I'll change my list accordingly. A word of advice to the "unclaimed blessing," male or female: don't be a tight wad with your affections; say "yes" and get it over with; we like it.

We like our job of being missionaries, too, 365 days out of the year. Life as it ought to be is never so plain as when thrown against a background of life as it shouldn't be. How's this?

"Today, whatever may annoy,
The word for me is Joy,
Just simple Joy.
What e'er there be of sorrow
I'll put off till tomorrow;
And when tomorrow comes,
Why, then! 'twill be today
And Joy again!

Write to us.

Cordially yours,
Fanny Bland G. Taylor.

Address: Mrs. H. Kerr Taylor, Southern Presbyterian Mission, Taichow, Kiangsu, China. Letters five cents postage, postcards three cents.

COLORED WOMAN'S CONFERENCE

On June 14, we finished a most successful Conference for colored women at Jackson College, Jackson, Miss. We wish all could have dropped in to see this enthusiasm and interest. They were charged with the fact that they were sent there to be made more efficient in service to their race, hence should return and carry helpful messages to others at home.

A display of dresses made was arranged on the the last afternoon and you should have seen the workmanship. It resembled the exhibit of some colleges domestic art department.

Thirty-three women were registered, coming from Holly Springs to Gulfport on the north and south and Vicksburg to Meridian east and west.

Mother McBride has led the vesper services at the conference ever since they were instituted and her example of Christian living has left its impress upon them.

The Synodical President was in charge and each day was filled with instructive and inspirational lectures. The State Board of Health again co-operated in the work. Mrs. Hill of Cleveland and Mrs. McDowell of Jackson gave the talks on Sunday School work and Bible lessons. Mrs. McDowell's lessons on Acts were most interesting.

Lectures on Homes, Homes beautiful, Day Nurseries, Y. M. C. A. work among negroes, Christian Education, Our African work in the Holy Land of today were given.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI AUXILIARY

The Twentieth Annual Meeting of North Mississippi Presbyterial was held in the beautiful new church of Senatobia, Mississippi, April 29, 30, and May 1, with the local Auxiliary as hostess. The evening services were presided over by the pastor, Rev. James Green. The devotional of the first evening was led by Rev. R. A. Boyman of Woman's Work for the Presbyterial feature of this program and of the entire splendid co-operation and cordiality of the nominations of the town. Greetings were Presbyterian, Methodists, and Baptists societies their respective presidents. A special program was prepared by Miss Estelle McCormick—the artists of the town. The address of the by Miss Julia Lake Skinner, of Louisville, Ky. forcefully presented the cause of the Department of Education and Ministerial Relief.

The first morning session was opened by led by Mrs. Ivy G. Hill, after which the President, Mrs. F. C. Mattison, introduced and visitors of note present. Reports of office secretaries showed an appreciable gain in department of work, with a very material gain in gifts. The highlights of this session "Quiet Hour" by the Bible teacher, Mrs. St. oke, Ark., Conference for C. E. and M. R. by Miss Skinner, and a presentation of "Indian African Mission Field" by Mr. W. D. I. Presbyterial, a returned missionary.

"The Local Presidents' Meeting" of Tuesday was opened by an inspirational and informative by Mrs. Hicks, Synodical President. Local comparative and complimented the Presbyterial in the slogan, "Retreat? Stand Still? Advance" lighting service for high attainments was observed, followed by an interesting history by Mrs. Street held a lesson from the 2nd Chapter of The Acts, which was used as a type-lesson over the Presbyterial Birthday Special was beautifully presented by Nettie Fant Thompson through lecture and recitation. This was made more artistic and impressive by Mrs. Deadrich Smith, in a series of piano selections.

Mrs. J. Mercer Blain brought the message of the Foreign Mission Committee in a graphic and interesting work in China. This with several beautiful special music and Communion made perfect evening service.

The last meeting was a "free-for-all," which was discussed and good things passed on. A spontaneous vote of thanks and an invitation again soon was extended to her. Plans for the People's Conferences were discussed with acceptance of Miss Skinner's services offered in the Presbyterial and Synodical Conference.

Committee reports and routine business were handled with efficiency, proving the benefits of the exchange to be had through study and practice of the subject sent out from St. Louis office and by Trautman attendance.

The most enjoyable social features were the lunches served in the palatial home of one of the and the most inspirational factors was the presence of 125 delegates despite a downpour of rain.

The 1929 session closed to convene again in Cleveland.

TWO BIRTHDAY PARTIES

The Auxiliary of the Presbyterian Church, N. C., held its Birthday Party at the home of G. Connor, II, on Monday afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock. The guests were greeted by the Pastor, Frank Lea, who introduced them to the program which was composed of the Treasurer-Secretary, E. C. Lynch, wife of the pastor and Mrs. M. G. wife of the Associate Pastor. The circle of other officers received in the dining room at the home which was beautiful with sunflowers. In the dining room, the teen age girls of the church served iced tea and sandwiches. More than 100 members and friends called during the hour of the Mexican Schools amounted to 125.

Mrs. L. J. Herring,

The program given by the Woman's Auxiliary, N. C., Monday afternoon in the Church was of great interest, and was well attended. The program was in charge of Mrs. Bruce Four Mission Secretary. Rev. R. A. Lapsley, D.D., and made a splendid talk. Mrs. Woods, of China, who is a most able and interesting speaker presented the work in her chosen field in such a clear and forceful manner that her audience was delighted. At the close of Mrs. Wood's talk an offering for the two Mexican Schools to which the Auxiliary is going this year. The guests then repaired to the Community House, beautifully decorated with pinning, trailing honeysuckle where they were served ice cream and cake. After the social hour a singing was held, Mrs. J. B. Rawlings presiding. An interesting Biblical spelling match was engaged in and being presented with a lovely corsage.

Mrs. J. M. H. C.
Presbyterial Cor

ING PEOPLE'S DEPT.

EDITOR'S LOOKOUT

W. A. Gamble, Pinetops, N. C.

of the Georgia Christian Endeavor Union leaflet setting forth the Union's Aims and present convention year, the Loving Cup pledge blank for use by those who are finance the state work. The Aims and laws:

society which is a member of the Georgia and promote the "Crusade with Christ" commended by the International Society endeavor.

society secure at least five subscriptions world and also promote their denominational paper.

society make and pay a pledge to the Union.

society conduct at least one mission study e year; also one Expert or Progressive society should have at least 50 per cent of enrolled as Comrades of the Quiet Hour on.

society strive to organize at least one other e year.

society put forth every effort to increase its e at 25 per cent during the year.

society register and have at least one or elegates in the state convention.

society make an offering and co-operate tional mission board or committee of society hold regular weekly meetings and mmittee meetings during the year.

society make an annual report to the state e requested.

society co-operate with their city union, ng people's conference program.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPIC

11—"Seeing God in Nature"—Psalm 8; Gen. 1; Rom. 1:20.

Leader

uing our vacation theme of "Our Fath- st Sunday we thought about God's Love eally as they were manifested in our own y we are "To See God in Nature," and oices we may observe of divine working in nday our topic will be the practical one of st Use of Nature." Then we will close oics with considering "Outdoor Recrea-

try to find out what nature teaches us e our powers of observation and reason- m nature God's wisdom, power, love and the word nature and use it ourselves e. What do we mean by "Nature?" Our elus it refers to the qualities and powers othings as they are originally. Of living n by nature, the form, disposition, ways is and fears, in fact, every thing that is yminal. We speak of the nature of men, os, of horses, of wild animals, as lions, ys, and so on. Each one is different b- n with different qualities.

Do We Mean by Nature?

spoken of rocks, fluids, gases, and all vich have no life such as animals and So if we might analyze nature we could e the materials each thing is made of, the produces or that act upon it, such as chemical forces, the laws that are fol- ing in nature, as gravitation, cohesion, e certain things stick together, centrif- e other things fly apart.

livering all these qualities and forces of vilization advances in knowledge, science eke many things useful to man.

Universe Speaks of God

sm tells of the many heavenly objects alut God, the sun, the moon, the stars, and fined to the earth in our study of nature, iversal, and applies to the distant realms elescope which sees afar, and can observe n the stars, the spectroscopy which can h that comes from the stars of what sub- made, and the science of mathematics e space and the movements of heavenly in us much information.

all these wonderful things, we may well as he says, The heavens declare the glory firmament showeth his handiwork. Day e speech, and night unto night showeth nd cannot look at all these wonders of eaking the inquiry, Whence did all things e them and why? The Bible answers our question by saying, In the beginning God made the heaven and the earth, and gives us a particular description of how they were made, and what they were made for. God made man to be the head of the world, and subjected all things on the earth to his control. Men and earth were intended to work out the glory of God, which meant man's happiness. God made man of the dust of the ground, and gave him a spiritual being like God's own. Man alone is a moral, rational, purposeful creature, and by his powers of intellect and body he can control nature and produce in it changes at his own will.

God in Creation

Of all things in nature, man himself is the highest evidence of God in the world. Man may look into his own being and say, God is, and He is my Father in Heaven.

The Face of the Earth Tells of God

By means of travel and investigation, man has learned much about the earth on which he lives. Geography and geology, are the sciences that teach us about the face of the earth. We learn of the six continents, the great mountain ranges that lift their heads above the surface, the oceans that fill the largest part of the earth, the mighty rivers that like arteries lead the water that falls from the clouds back to the sea, only to be lifted again by evaporation and rained upon the land. Down in the depths of the sea and in the mines of the earth lie mysteries for man to solve.

As we look at all these things, if we are observant at all, we think of God and the marvelous laws and forces he has put in the earth that man may use for his happiness and growth in knowledge and power.

The Seasons Teach Us About God

We are familiar with the seasons of summer, fall, winter and spring, and as each one comes, bringing in a new beauty and a new purpose, our minds find God working in each one. We look at the sun, and it seems to travel from north to south, and back again, we watch the days grow long or short. We feel the cold, the heat, the dampness of rain, we see flowers and fruits of each season. We watch men make summer look like winter, and winter like summer by means of their scientific knowledge.

How can we avoid the conclusion that God is at work in nature and co-operates with man in using all its powers?

God's Storehouse

The earth with all its resources and materials is like a great storehouse in which God has laid away the things necessary for man's sustenance. He has made things with the quality of lasting until they can be used. He has put a coat on the grain of wheat, preserving its food value until man is ready to use it. He buried coal in the earth to wait for man to dig it up to burn. He opens channels for deep springs of water. He covers the sheep with wool, he makes the cotton plant produce fibre, he stores the air with electric current, he gives bouyancy to the air and the water that man may move over the ocean or the earth.

Let us thank God for the storehouse of the earth, and use its treasures with care and wisdom as we work with God in the preservation of all his gifts.

AUGUST AT MONTREAT

J. Gray McAllister

As these lines are written, the Montreat Leadership Training School is about to enter its second and final week with an unusually strong program, both in the curriculum offered, and in the series of speakers at the morning and evening hours. Dr. Charles L. King, of Richmond, Virginia, on "Evangelism Through Religious Education"; Dr. G. Walter Fiske, of Oberlin College, Ohio, on "The Religious Task of the Family" and "What is Happening to the American Home"; Dr. Lewis J. Sherrill, of Louisville, Kentucky, on "Religious Education and the Presbyterian Faith"; Prof. Kenneth J. Foreman of Davidson College on "Better Worship For Better Living"; Dr. W. Taliaferro Thompson, of Richmond, Virginia, on "The Value of the Pre-School Years"; Dr. J. L. Fairley, the New Co-ordinate Secretary of Religious Education and Publication of Richmond, Virginia on "Making the Most of Youth in the Local Church"; Dr. Donald W. Richardson, of Richmond, Virginia, on "The Place of Missions in Religious Education"; Dr. Lawrence H. Wharton, of Austin, Texas, on "The Church Program of Religious Education." Dr. J. R. Cunningham, of Bristol, Tenn., and Dr. Hugh S. Magill, Secretary of the International Council of Religious Education, Chicago, are presenting splendid messages on vital topics of the day, while Dr. Andrew W. Blackwood, of Louisville, Kentucky, is presenting at the Bible Hour each morning, to great audiences in the Auditorium, a most helpful series on "The Parables of Jesus." Other features of this School most worthy of mention are the devotional addresses by Dr. John H. Powell, Jr., of the Committee of Christian Education, Louisville, Ky., and the Rev. P. D. Miller, the new Educational Secretary of Home Missions of Atlanta, Ga.; the Laboratory School, conducted in connection with the teaching of the specialization courses in the Beginner, Primary and Junior sections of the Leadership Training School; the Story Hour, conducted twice a week by Miss Elizabeth Shields of Richmond, Va., and the meeting of the Young People's Advisory Council with representatives from all the Synods of our Church, the Rev. G. Hunter Norwood, of Bay Minette, Ala., the Chairman. The Leadership Training School is due to close on Friday, August 2, and the General Missions Conference will begin on Sunday morning, August 4, and will close Wednesday night, August 14.

Dr. Ernest Thompson, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Charleston, W. Va., will be the preacher both morning and night of Sunday, August 4. Dr. L. H. Wharton, pastor of the University Presbyterian Church, Austin, Texas, will conduct the Missionary hour each morning in the Foreign Mission Building. Dr. W. M. Anderson, Jr., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Dallas, Texas, and teacher of the first radio Bible Class in the United States (one that has an enrollment of 35,000) will conduct the Bible Hour throughout the General Missions Conference. At the eleven o'clock hour in the Auditorium a fine succession of speakers will be heard, among them Dr. W. B. Anderson, of Philadelphia, Mr. F. C. McMullan, of Pittsburgh, and Dr. George W. Truett, of Dallas, Texas. It is also hoped that Mr. C. Y. Cheng, Moderator of the United Church of China, will speak at some time during this conference. Each afternoon at four o'clock, from Monday until Thursday inclusive, August 5-8, Dr. G. W. Kutscher, Jr., of the Children's Clinic of Black Mountain, N. C., will give a series of lectures in the Chapel on the care of children. The Vesper Services at seven o'clock each evening at the Winsborough Building will be conducted by a series of speakers from home and foreign missionary fields, and the evening services will be given over to special addresses from other outstanding leaders.

The Men's Work Conference at Montreat will begin Thursday night, August 15th, and extend through Tuesday, August 20. Through this period there will be leaders in Men's Work at Montreat from every Synod in the Assembly. In addition to this, picked leaders from local churches will be selected and brought to this Conference for the value of their testimony. Every phase of the organization of Men's Work in the local church will be taken up. Demonstration as to the "set-up" of the Men's Work in every type of church will be put on. Special care will be given to bring out the features of the work in all types of churches. Probably the outstanding feature in this conference, however, will be the addresses of Dr. William F. Weir, Senior Secretary of Men's Work in the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A. Doctor Weir is considered by many the ablest and wisest leader in Men's Work in America. These addresses will cover the whole relation of men to their local church. Everyone who has heard him in this series say they have received a new idea of the whole matter of Men's Work. Doctor Weir will be at Montreat during the entire Conference. He is a man of lovable and attractive personality, wide experience in church work and has devoted the finest years of his mature life to the development of men. Among other speakers at this Conference will be Dr. George W. Truett, of Dallas, Texas, Dr. Robert E. Speer, of New York City and Dr. J. M. Vander Meulen, of Louisville.

The Montreat Bible Conference begins Sunday, August 18, and will run through Sunday, August 25. It will be featured by the presence of a number of outstanding Bible Teachers. Dr. Robert E. Speer of New York City, a man known and beloved throughout America and other lands of the world, will be the speaker at both services of Sunday, August 18th, and Monday, August 19th, and will also speak on Tuesday morning, August 20th. Dr. John M. Vander Meulen, President of Louisville Theological Seminary and distinguished as a pulpit orator, educator and author, will have the Bible Hour of this Conference. Dr. George W. Truett, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Dallas, Texas, and one of the outstanding preachers of the world, is another speaker in the Montreat Bible Conference. Doctor Truett was on the program of the Bible Conference at Montreat last summer and was charmed with Montreat and its people, so much that he will make headquarters at Assembly Inn, Montreat, for more than a week before the Bible Conference begins. Mrs. Truett is to be with him. Doctor Truett is to speak at the Annual Meeting with the cow boys, called the "Paisano Encampment," near Alpine, Texas from July 26th through Sunday, August 4th, and is due to reach Montreat on Friday, August 9th, and be at Montreat and nearby Assemblies for a full week following in addition to taking part in the Bible Conference a week later on. In a recent letter from him he writes: "I am looking forward eagerly to the days of fellowship with you and your noble people again in that remarkably interesting and challenging Assembly."

Among other speakers for this Bible Conference will be Dr. James I. Vance, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Nashville, Tennessee, and a man whose pulpit eloquence has ranked him as one of the outstanding speakers of America. He is down for a series of addresses and for the sermons of Sunday, August 25, which will bring the Montreat season to a close.

Montreat is having a great season. The largest audiences ever seen here in July have been gathering in the Auditorium from Sunday to Sunday and from day to day and the advance registrations indicate that August, always a busy month at this Conference center, will see great numbers coming from all parts of the South, to enjoy and take part in the rich program of which a mere sketch has just been given.

LDREN

HIGH DIVER

Kay swam out to the raft himself out of the water. "rt," he called out to his was already there. "You're dive from 'way up there,

Bliffin's Beach had three d Art Munroe was stand- n the springboard of the y to dive into the water. high," he yelled, as he hit the water evenly, his d and then his body. p my feet together?" he g Frank on the float. s a great dive!"

ext moment, both boys Then Art looked at his said: w is it that you never only from the bottom l mean from the middle o."

to," replied Frank. "Al- dldn't admit it to every-ere to make you afraid? t jumping head first into y."

s only water, but still, I get up enough courage

y did it once—" pleaded ke it after that, I'm sure

e could not understand n did not overcome his t. It wasn't because Frank the water. He was the swimmer on the beach. e because Frank was a Art knew him too well to c all the fun we could d.

ave fun lots of other answered. "Let's swim hannel buoy and back. s that next to the bathcing at a tall iron frame- ooked like a radio tower. u seen that before? It's g platform."

yving platform! You don't me that somebody dives of that tower, do you?" l at his friend's amaze-

I do."

almost a hundred feet

" laughed Art. "I was Mr. Bliffin yesterday and was only forty-five feet form to the ground."

that is pretty high. But dive into? A net?" es into water."

e water?" nk right underneath the ghed Art. youldn't find a tank deep rld Frank.

e you don't know much ing," retorted Art, good- he water in the tank is d p."

ident Frank was speech-

he jumps forty-five feet k of water only eight feet

va Art's answer. "And if then, it is time for the two dncance. Let's swim ashore ha."

tly into the water, fol- ank, whose dive was adul nor effective, for, as flundered around for a few o he could straighten him- r's favorite style of swim- was the overhand crawl. p to the tank," he said, as u from the water, "I want go. look at it."

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color.)

Here is a picture to paint. The sky is BLUE with white clouds in it and BROWN-haired Teddy and YELLOW-haired Susie May are having a splendid time flying their kites. Susie May's kite is PURPLE and YELLOW with long PURPLE and YELLOW streamers at each corner. Teddy's kite has a YELLOW moon face on it. The background for the face and mouth is RED and the tail of the kite is GREEN.

Teddy wears a BLUE and white striped blouse and BLUE trousers. His necktie is RED. His belt is BROWN.

Susie May wears a PURPLE frock with large ORANGE (use RED and YELLOW mixed) color and GREEN dots on it. It has ORANGE color about the sleeve and neck, too. Susie May has ORANGE color beads.

The house has a BROWN roof and the sides are PINK (use RED lightly) with GREEN shutters. The chimneys are RED. There are dark GREEN (use a touch of PURPLE with it) trees about the house and down the slope from the house. The grass is light GREEN (use a touch of YELLOW with it.)

Both children have PINK cheeks and Susie May has a RED mouth.

Paint the border of this picture ORANGE color and the lettering GREEN.

When the wind blows Susie May and Teddy always have lots of fun with their kites.

Directly underneath the tower the boys glanced up at the platform. It looked higher than ever. Then Frank climbed up the side of the tank and peered over the edge.

"It doesn't look deep," he reported, "but I'm going to test it anyway."

He came down, looking around for a piece of string, tied a pebble on one end of it, then lowered it down into the tank. When the pebble hit bottom, he pulled it up again and stretched out the the wet string so he could see how long it was.

"Just about eight feet," he said. "Well, all I can say is, the man who does it must be crazy!"

A crowd had begun to gather, and at exactly five minutes before two, the high diver came out of the bath house and walked toward the tower.

Frank looked and gasped.

The high diver, the person who leapt from the dizzy heights into what was scarcely more than a bathtub of water, was not a man at all! It was a girl!

Frank watched her as she gracefully climbed the ladder that had been built up the side of the tower. A band was playing and some man was telling the crowd how high and deep everything was. Then she poised for a second on the edge of the platform, waved her hand gaily at the people below, and dived.

As she dived through the air, Frank held his breath. Midway between the top and the bottom, she did a somersault. He gasped. Just above the water she did the prettiest toe touch that

Frank had ever seen and plunged out of sight in the tank. Frank's heart almost stopped beating.

"I didn't believe it was possible!" he said to Art, as they walked slowly back to the water's edge. "She came out of the tank almost as soon as she went in, and she didn't even touch bottom!"

"Of course not!" replied Art. "Nobody ever touches bottom. You have to arch your back when you get in the water and that brings you to the surface again."

Just before they went into the water again they were surprised to hear somebody say:

"Are you going out to the raft?" It was the high diver!

"Y—Yes," stammered Art.

"I wish I could go," she said, wistfully.

"Why don't you?" asked Frank, in amazement.

"I can't swim that far!" replied the girl. "You may think that's funny, but it's the truth, just the same."

"Why don't you try?" said Frank. "I'd stay near you so I could help you if you needed me."

"All right," replied the high diver.

She ran into the water and began to swim. She went very slowly and before she reached the raft she was very tired; but she got there, just the same.

"See?" said Frank, "You never know what you can do until you try!"

"C'mon," she said, after a rest. "Let's take a dive."

Frank glanced up anxiously at the third platform. His new acquaintance followed his look with her eyes.

"It isn't very high, is it?" she laughed.

"Not after seeing the tower, it isn't," he replied, making a wry face at Art. "But I'm not much of a diver."

"Oh, c'mon," she urged. "You can try it, anyway."

So for the first time in his life Frank McKay went out to the end of the top springboard and dived into the water. It wasn't a perfect dive by any means; but nevertheless he came up smiling.

"It's a great feeling," he said. "And I didn't touch bottom at all!"

His chum, Art Munroe, smiled happily. He watched Frank dive again and again. "Keep your feet together!" scolded the girl, "Hold your arms straight!"—"Don't bend your knees that way!"

Art knew that under such expert instruction, the best junior swimmer on the beach would soon become the best junior diver.

"Nope," commented Frank, when Art mentioned it to him one day. "Say the third best. I'll never be able to dive forty-five feet into eight feet of water. She comes first. And, Art, you're not such a terrible diver yourself!"

CHURCH NEWS

THE DEAF RALLY

Rev. Andrew C. Miller, Jr., the synodical deaf evangelist for this state, pulled off a big rally of the deaf of this and adjoining counties at Cleveland Springs Hotel on Sunday, July 21, 1929. Seven counties were represented, Cleveland, Rutherford, McDowell, Catawba, Caldwell, Mecklenburg and Gaston.

Mr. Miller conducted religious exercises in the morning and Mr. W. R. Hackney, of Charlotte, N. C., made some remarks. Announcement was made of the coming meeting of the deaf in the state which will be held in Wilmington some time next month. The Evangelist's wife Mrs. Carter from Charlotte recited several hymns in the sign language. About 100 were in attendance at this rally, seventy-five of whom were deaf adults. At noon the splendid dinner was spread on the grounds and this was a huge affair. It was a pleasant occasion and the Evangelist was much pleased at the interest the deaf are taking in his religious work among those who are handicapped by deafness, and who are deprived of hearing the gospel if it were not that they had a minister to preach to them, whom they could understand in the deaf language. Mr. Miller is "on the wing" every week doing religious work among the underprivileged, the deaf and is to be highly commended for his efforts along this line.

There are over twenty-five thousand deaf mutes, men, women and children in North Carolina. The N. C. School for the Deaf at Morganton, N. C., have in attendance each session 340 deaf children.

Correspondent.

PERSONAL

Rev. W. F. F. Little changes his address from Wyllesburg to Saxe, Va.

Beginning with August 1 will you please discontinue the Standard to my address. We are leaving for China to again resume our work there. I wish to thank you most kindly for your generous gift of the Standard while we were temporarily here at Tarboro. I do appreciate your kindness and have taken many occasions to recommend your paper to the families here. We have had a most valuable and rich experience here and return to China better fitted for the work than before. We have spent fifteen years in that good work. Affectionately yours,

Thos. L. Harnsberger, Tarboro, N. C.

China address: Taichow, Ku, China.

W. P. Gibbs, Bunnlevel, N. C., changes his address to Central Academy, Stuart, Virginia.

ASHE COUNTY (N. C.) ACTIVITIES

From the July number of the Ashe Presbyterian we learn of several activities which have taken place in the field in which Rev. R. H. Stone of Jefferson, N. C., is the presiding spirit.

A series of Christian Chatauquas has been held. The first one was at Low Gap, May 15 to 29.

The Bible School was taught by Rev. J. W. Luke, Misses Helen Stacy, Ruth Bowlin, Irene Richardson, and Myrtle Williamson; the tent was under the efficient management of Mr. Wayne Welch. The opening sermon was preached by Rev. O. C. Williamson, of Austin, Texas; after the first night, Synod's Evangelist, Rev. A. T. Lassiter, delivered the sermons and was in charge of the evening services; that the Lord was present to bless these services is clearly shown by the results of this Chatauqua which are given more fully under the organization of Low Gap Presbyterian Church.

From Low Gap the tent was moved to Ebenezer where the Chatauqua was held from June 2 to 16. The teachers in this Bible School were Mr. Luke, Miss Louise Vyne and Miss Williamson; Mr. DeArmond Moore acted as secretary and tent captain. The Evangelistic services for the first week were under Rev. W. C. Cansdale's direction; his consecration and personal interest did much for the work of the kingdom and the glory of God. For the second week, Dr. E. E. Gillespie returned to the scene of his initial labors and built upon the foundation he had laid more than thirty years before; as a result of the faithful preaching of these two men of God, thirteen new members were added.

The faculty for the Bible School was as follows: Rev. and Mrs. R. H. Stone, Rev. J. W. Luke, Mesdames E. C. Turner, James Cooper, Jas. Colvard and James McNeill, and Misses Mary Shaw, Irene Richardson, Mae Faw, Mabel Weaver and Myrtle Williamson and Mr. DeArmond Moore.

Rev. Walter King Key's splendid sermons made the evening services a rich blessing to all the host of people who filled the tent to overflowing. A great number of professions were made and several additions were made to each of the three church in the town; four united with the Presbyterian Church.

The Men of the Presbyterian Church in Ashe County's organization at each of the three Chatauquas by their testimony service, was a very important part. At West Jefferson, the service on Sunday was given over to Mr. Walter Nading's Evangelistic Club from Winston-Salem. Low Gap School House has been the place of meeting for a group of those interested in spiritual matters. In several meetings, the last one the Chatauqua, there were twenty in all who took their stand for Jesus Christ. It was thought best by all that we organize a church in that community and on the evening of June 22 a commission met and officially carried out the work of organization.

Presbytery was favorable to the petition consisting of nineteen members and appointed a committee consisting of Revs. R. H. Stone, Chairman, C. W. Robinson, J. W. Luke and Elders Geo. W. Farrington, D. C. Bare, N. L. Brooks and John Burgess, (the three latter were not present).

The organization was effected and elders and deacons elected, ordained and installed. The elders are Messrs. F. M. Allen and Wm. Bare. The Deacons are: Messrs. Lee Bare and Isaac Bare.

At present the members of the church recently organized, meet in the Low Gap School House. We are in great need of a church building and it is our purpose to build as soon as possible. Mr. Fields Sheets has kindly offered an acre of land adjoining the school property for building. We thank him for this splendid offer. The name chosen for the church is "Low Gap Presbyterian Church."

We made a hard fight to have Glade Valley School removed to Jefferson. Attractive offers were made and repeated and insistent pleas were made to the Board of Trustees for its re-location. But in the wisdom of the Board it is being kept at Glade Valley. We are good losers—and take this to be guidance.

The Glade Valley community is to be congratulated. They, too, have an admirable and enviable fighting spirit. It was clearly manifest that the School has been of an untold benefit to Alleghany and surrounding counties.

Glade Valley is being enlarged. A modern and commodious Administration building is being planned and a campaign for funds will be launched when the architect has drawn the plans and the Board of Trustees gives the word "Go." Glade Valley has a fine history and some good traditions. It has grown up in the woods and new scores of students are making a beaten path to its door. The school has great future and Glade Valley is to become Greater Glade Valley. A christian atmosphere dominates and a Christian Education is given.

On September the 10th the Presbytery of Winston-Salem will convene in the Lansing Presbyterian Church. The retiring moderator is Mr. C. M. Norfleet. The opening sermon will be preached by Dr. B. R. Lacy, President of Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va. On the 11th in the afternoon the church building will be formally dedicated to the glory of God. The dedication is to be an act of Presbytery. Drs. Lacy and Gillespie will make the principal addresses in the afternoon. The theme of the Presbytery will be "The Church." Dr. J. S. Foster will be asked to discuss "The Church and Evangelism." Dr. Clay Lilly will have for his subject "The Church and the Sacraments." Dr. Lacy will tell in his opening sermon of the Origin and the Growth of the Church." His second address will be "The Doctrines and Catholicity of the Presbyterian Church." Dr. Gillespie will tell of "The Church's Responsibility." Those who have been arranging for the program have asked Mr. J. B. Johnston, Supt. of the Presbyterian Orphans Home, to address the Presbytery on "The Church and Her Orphans."

The exercises of Wednesday night will be in charge of Rev. J. R. McGregor as it is the popular program for Presbytery's Home Missions. The public is most cordially invited to attend all of these exercises and nothing is being left undone to make it the most enjoyable and profitable of the meetings of Presbytery.

NEW CASH CONTRIBUTIONS TO ASSEMBLY INN, MONTREAT, N. C.

From June 18 to July 24, 1929

Woman's Aux., Park Lane Ch., Orlando, Fla.	$25.00
Plains Church, Zachary, La.	23.78
Presbyterian Church, Baker, La.	2.00
A Friend, Atlanta, Ga.	10.00
A Friend, Morganton, N. C.	10.00
A Friend, Shelby, N. C.	5.00
	<hr/>
	$75.78

Cash for Furnishing Room in Assembly Inn

Mrs. Geo. T. Brown, Winston-Salem, N. C.	$ 350.00
Charles S. Ivie, Shelbyville, Tenn.	350.00
Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Jones, Troy, Ala.	350.00
	<hr/>
	$1,050.00

Some receipts in part payment for furnishing rooms have not been listed but will be listed when the full amount of $350.00 is paid.

We thank these liberal friends most heartily for their generous co-operation and would cite their example for others to follow. The furnishings for fifty-eight rooms are yet to be paid for at $350.00 each. Who will take them as memorials to churches, church organizations, or loved ones?

To meet an urgent need, to put its unqualified approval on the wisdom of investing in Assembly Inn, and to offer special inducement to others to do so, the General Assembly in meeting last May in Montreat, donated $25,000 out of the profits of its Publication Committee for this purpose. It however, is to be paid as the Mountain Association raises from other sources a 1. The Assembly could not express its opinion wisdom and necessity of the investment terms. The Montreat management is striven Assembly Inn from a mortgage debt of there should be a liberal response to the challenge on the part of the churches friends of Montreat, else the Assembly's be mortgaged. The present indebtedness term notes and overdue bills, but these long. Sufficient funds must be had to debt to avert the necessity of a mortgage is not necessary for the Assembly to building, and it would be almost a calamity shame to the entire Church for this to every reader of this article do something the debt at once.

Send all pledges or checks to the Montreat Association, marked for Assembly
R. C. Anderson, Pr

NORTH CAROLINA

Sugaw Creek—Recently a beautiful building was placed upon the outer wall of the church, commemorating its early establishment credit is due to the Sabbath School class C. W. and Mrs. J. H. Robinson for the this marker. These fostered the movement on the research which led to the following inscription:

"Sugaw Creek Presbyterian Church
Organized about 1756
This Building Erected 1869 Being fourth house of worship of the organization."

This marker reminds one of the long service which this church has given to Hugh McAdden on his first visit to the records that he preached at James Ale Sugaw Creek, October 19, 1755, "where some pretty serious, judicious people." To be, this same year or the next came Craighead, and about this time "the people moral united in the worship of God and congregation of Sugaw Creek, which kn bounds than the distance men and w walk or ride to church, which was often fifteen miles, as a regular thing, and tw occasional meeting." Here Craighead p principles of religious and civil liberty v fruition in the Mecklenburg Declaration

The Church takes pride in its history, hope upon no heritage but that of its great Founder whose name we own and produce as did our fathers of old.

Mebane—Our first Daily Vacation Bible was held in our church the last of June maries, juniors and intermediates, the ment being 76. The school was in cha teachers and all of these workers p themselves to be very efficient and much enthusiasm was shown on the part of the work in all departments was excepti and the handwork was very attractive. ment was held on the last night of th which time an interesting program of dramatization and Bible memory work We feel that the church and community benefited by this Daily Vacation Bible School. Instead of the regular July monthly men of the church an outdoor meeting w over one hundred present. A fish fry an many kinds were enjoyed by all.

Our Auxiliary sent three delegates to the last of July. Those who attended were Corbett, Mrs. C. R. Grant and Mrs. C. They came back to us very much enthusiastic reports of the instruction th while there.

Buffalo, Lee County—The Old Mother again passed through a season of refreshment high.

On Sunday, July 14, a series of meetings the church. Rev. W. M. Currie, of Belmont twice a day for a week. He is a young usual ability and consecration. Large crowds the services and eagerly listened to the v from this zealous servant of God.

The faithful pastor is Rev. L. T. Edmusc rendered by the choir and large crowd was inspiring. As a result of the wonderful work of Mr. Currie, the church was revived the members dedicating themselves anew.

There were six additions to the church. girls were received on their profession of Christ, and two were received by letter our Heavenly Father for sending Brothers, us, and pray that he may come again.

May the good seed which he sowed, grow, and bring forth much fruit to the glory

Three Fayetteville churches and the were left $100,000 each by Dr. Franklin Maire citizen of Fayetteville and West la., who died April 25. Dr. Clark's will, bate Judge John C. Gilmore, leaves all property to his wife, Mrs. L. Yancey ovides that the income from all his e divided among his wife and three bequests are left to St. John's Episco- e First Baptist Church and the First Church. The same amount left to the expended for civic purposes, as deter- ard of aldermen. estimate of the value of the estate has t it is thought to be between one and llars.

is church enjoyed a series of splendid vices which were conducted by Rev. of Mt. Olive, N. C., from June 30 . There were two services each day, 8 p. m., and the attendance was good ing. Our people had heard Mr. Baker ew something about what to expect. t disappointed. He uses no strange peaks the Truth boldly but lovingly. co-operation in the meeting were fine. ere not only entertaining but, we be- Fourteen young persons united with profession of their faith in Christ.

Following the meeting, a Daily Vaca- pool was conducted by Misses Miriam ane Russell of our General Assembly's pl. The enrollment and average at- pils were both very good, and the thusiasm marked. Under the faithful eadership of these young ladies to- umber of helpers from our own con- children did some excellent work in epartments as was evident from the s.

th Ave.—Sunday, July 21, the follow- re elected and ordained: Elders, Mr. r. J. M. Davenport, Mr. O. D. King, Davis; deacons, Mr. Theodore Smith, ries, Mr. B. L. Phillips and Mr. B. S.

Fayetteville Presbytery — The revival a Providence Presbyterian Church, be- closing July the 10th, with night serv- Lacy, of Union Seminary, delivered this series of services. His sermons and more people turned out for the han could be accommodated. But we act, that 21 new members have been urch, and the pastor and the church, group of youth, have been refreshed e are grateful to say this about Dr. t lost his gift as an evangelist.
Dixon McDonald, Pastor.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Church—Our regular church and Sun- is going along finely now. Quarterly observed the first Sunday in July. f the church are being taken in from

AT MONTREAT

nd from page 2)
esented the different everal sections of the f Levi. The model is a has been shown in a uch centers through the w now be kept perma- eat. The whole cere- nt impressive one. Fol- entation, prayer was e Rev. R. M. Pegram of and the closing address ece—a most impressive y the Rev. George ales, Ky., on the sub- Evangelism."

rtive series of enter- een provided for the Saturday evenings of son. The first of these es of Sergeant Alvin C. r hero and peace time address, heard by a ombined in a fine way h the serious.

igham, of New York, returned missionary from China, is spending the summer at "Chapman Home." Though he is ninety years of age, his mind is alert and his interest in the program at Montreat an inspiratime to time. The various circles of the women's work are making progress, and a number of the ladies have visited Montreat this summer. The men of the Bible class are planning a visit to Montreat for some time in August. The pastor, Rev. W. S. Patterson, will spend the month of August, his vacation, at Montreat and other places in North Carolina with Mrs. Patterson.

Mr. Patterson held a five-day meeting at Ramah Church, near Clover, during the third week of July. Elder Beamguard, who was a recent visit to Thornwell Orphanage, at Clinton, told the Sunday School just what he saw and learned of Thornwell, in the course of his visit of a day at Clinton. Mr. Beamguard was wonderfully impressed with the orphanage and its management, and his hearers were also much impressed with his account of the very efficient manner in which Thornwell is managed and the great work that it is doing.

Mr. Beamguard also told the men's Bible class about his visit to Thornwell. On July 14 Mr. A. M. McGill, general superintendent of the York County Sunday School Association, addressed the men of our church, taking for his subject the Biblical character, Nehemiah. The men of the A. R. P. Church Bible class were invited to be with us and each one of the large gatherings of men was much impressed and inspired individually with the speaker's earnest presentation of the life, character and work of Nehemiah.

After relating how Nehemiah, in the face of difficulties and obstacles which might well have filled any man with despair, rebuilt the walls of Jerusalem, the speaker said: "Now, you men of Clover don't want a wall built around this town. No longer is it necessary to build walls around our towns and cities. But you do want a spiritual wall around your home. And no home is safe, in this world, without the protection of a spiritual wall.

Stanhope Love, Correspondent.

ALABAMA

The Presbytery of Tuscaloosa has recently added the names of three young men to her roll of ministers. Mr. P. L. Perry came as a candidate from Al- bamarle Presbytery and is pastor of the Centerville Church. He will also serve certain U. S. A. churches. Mr. W. J. Coleman was received as a candidate of Knoxville Presbytery. He is pastor of the Livingston Church, and will also conduct a course in Religious Education in the state Normal College located there. Dr. T. A. Smith had never been received under the care of Presbytery. He was a member of the First Presbyterian Church, of Charlotte, N. C. He studied medicine before he decided to enter the ministry and became a specialist. He has charge of the Pickens County group of churches. All of these young men stood fine examinations and were ordained by the R. E. Fulton, S. C.

Oxford—A series of evangelistic services was held in this church from July 15 through July 19 inclusive. The preaching was done by Dr. R. L. Benn, D.D., of Uniontown, Ala. The singing was in charge of the pastor, Rev. P. H. Biddle. The whole church has been greatly benefitted by Dr. Benn's forceful and scrip- tural sermons. Oxford Church was organized in 1837 and has been a great Presbyterian center all these years.

DEVOTIONAL

REVERENCE FOR AGE IN EUROPE

Reverence for old people is deeply rooted in Europe and many a heartache is caused by its absence prevalent in America. Mrs. Josephine Miller, Hungarian secretary of the International Institute in Dayton, Ohio, says this devotion is brought over in many families, whose younger generation may grow to regard it lightly here in America.

"Grandmothers in many other families of foreign nationalities whom I visit are regarded as saints. Family ties are very strong and I have witnessed many a heartache and an uneasy feeling when this reverence is ridiculed here." Illustrating the strength of family ties, Mrs. Miller, whose work takes her among families of Hungarian and other nationalities residing in Dayton said that one woman told her that her husband so wisely directs her way that it is a delight to obey. Another hard working woman told her that although they have been married over fifteen years that it gives her an extraordinary delight to gaze at her husband who is worth his weight in gold. Husbands do not like it, she said, if their wives are away from home at supper time. They say a dish tastes better if the wife sets the dish before them.

GEORGIA

Savannah—Rev. Arthur M. Martin, assistant to the pastor of the Independent Presbyterian Church, will leave for Edinburgh in September, where he will pursue a special course in Church History as a Fellow of the Louisville Theological Seminary.

Mr. Martin has been serving as pastor of the Thunderbolt Presbyterian Church, and minister in charge of the Eastern Heights Chapel, under the direction of the Independent Presbyterian Church. At the latter point, a splendid Daily Vacation Bible School has been held with a large enrollment.

Mr. Martin's work has been crowned with great success and he has won the respect and affection of all those to whom he has ministered. Special resolutions of appreciation of his services in the Presbytery of Savannah were recently adopted by the Executive Committee of Home Missions of the Presbytery. These resolutions were accompanied by the earnest request that on his return from his studies in Scotland, Mr. Martin would devote himself to work in this Presbytery. The session of the Independent Presbyterian Church joins in appreciation of the exceptionally faithful and effective service rendered by Mr. Martin.

A. G. G.

WEST VIRGINIA

Romney, W. Va.—Rev. Charles R. Bailey, pastor. Two most successful Daily Vacation Bible Schools have been held in the territory of this church. One at St. Luke, a mission point was held for two weeks with marked interest. The other was held in the main church and continued for four weeks. More than a hundred children of ages 5 to 16 were enrolled in the two schools. The territory of the church was well covered by the schools. The amount of Scripture passages memorized was remarkable. Many of the children made marked progress in the catechisms and ten children will receive prizes for the perfect recitation of the catechisms. The financial condition of the church is better than in some years and the people are growing in the grace of systematic giving. The young people are represented at the various conferences and are taking an interest in the larger work of the kingdom. The woman's Auxiliary is active and is doing a fine educational work in the church. The two Sunday Schools are well organized and are making progress.

TEXAS

Brownwood Presbytery—At a called meeting at Ballinger, Texas, July 5, licentiate Thos. Barker Galla- her was received from Dallas Presbytery, examined for ordination and a commission appointed to ordain and install him pastor of the Commanche Church at the evening service on 4th Sunday in July. Candidate John Knox Bowling was received from Dallas Presbytery and was examined and licensed. He takes charge of the Paint Rock group of Churches. A manse is now being built at Paint Rock. The addition of these young men to our ministerial force will enable our Evangelist, Guy Davis, to give attention to some important and growing home mission places where our church is not now represented. Candidate Jas. W. Cochran was transferred to Central Texas Presbytery and is now in charge of work at Streetman and Groesbeck. All these young men are graduates of Austin Theological Seminary.

"CHURCH OF GOD, ARISE!"

Egbert W. Smith

The present situation in China is a tremendous call to the Church of Christ in this country. The ancient Chinese soil, caked into granite hardness by the centuries, is now being turned up by the ploughshare of change, and is open, as it has not been for ages, for a new planting. But what shall this planting be? Says Rev. W. C. McLaughlin, writing from his great Haichow field in China:

"In Chingkow, and in Shade, and in Denshang, the three outstations which I have just visited, the outlook for the work of Christ is better than I have ever seen it before, in spite of the multi- form and bitter activities of God's enemies. It is a most dangerous time in this field because the government agencies are throwing down the idols in many of the temples and the people see they are powerless to protect themselves, let alone protect their former worshippers; so they are turning away from their idols, to what? Because they know nothing of the True God, multitudes of them are joining the ranks of the atheists. Church of God, Arise! Your hour is come! Arise and take the heathen for your inheritance! The uttermost parts of the earth, where Satan has reigned without rival for so many generations, can be made your possession, Now!

MEREDITH COLLEGE

For YOUNG WOMEN

STANDARD COURSES IN ARTS AND SCIENCES, IN MUSIC,
IN ART, IN HOME ECONOMICS

Confers the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Music. Delightful environment on a high plateau on the western boundary of North Carolina's Capital City.

Room reservations are now being made for session 1929-30. For catalogue or further information write

CHAS. E. BREWER, President
Raleigh, N. C.

SUMMER VACATION TRIPS

Now is the Time to Plan Your Vacation.
The Southern Railway System Offers
Very Low Round Trip Fares to Mountain and Seashore
Resorts

New York, N. Y.	$32.63	Atlantic City	$30.86
Chicago, Ill.	45.98	Detroit, Mich.	45.00
Cleveland, Ohio	41.85	Toledo, Ohio	41.90

Round trip tickets on sale each Saturday during July and August—Limit for return trip 30 days.

Atlantic City, N. J. $23.30

Dates of sale via PRR from Washington July 16th, 30th, August 13th, 27th and September 10th via B & O from Washington July 24th, August 7th, 21st, September 4th and 18th. Final limit 18 days from date of sale.

Niagara Falls, N. Y. $33.15

Dates of sale via PRR from Washington July 24th August 7th, 21st, September 4th, 18th and October 2nd via B & O from Washington July 18th, August 1st, 15th, 29th, September 12th and 26th. Final limit 18 days from date of sale.

Week-End Fares

Norfolk, Va.	$15.00	Old Point Comfort	$15.10
Morehead City, N. C.	13.15	Black Mountain, N. C.	5.60
Asheville, N. C.	6.30	Hendersonville, N. C.	5.35
Waynesville, N. C.	7.50	Brunswick, Ga. (St. Simons
Virginia Beach, Va.	15.60	Island)	15.00

Tickets on sale each Friday and Saturday, final limit midnight following Tuesday.

Rail and Motor Tours

Asheville, N. C., one-way motor coach the other rail $7.30.

Johnson City, Tenn., one-way motor coach the other rail $12.05.

Bristol, Tenn., one-way motor coach the other rail $13.75.

Round Trip Summer Excursion Fares to Mountain and Seashore on sale daily.

Watch Newspapers for Dates of Popular Excursions
Excellent Service — Pullman Sleeping Cars — Dining Car Service — Convenient Schedules
Ask Ticket Agents

SOUTHERN RAILWAY CITY TICKET OFFICE
308 West Trade Street
Telephone Hemlock 20

ORIENT FLOUR

Its Whiteness Denotes Its Purity

MOUNTAIN CITY MILL CO., CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

QUEENS COLLEGE

"The College With the PLUS SIGN"

Sound literary training plus Christian influence. Faculty members characterized by thorough scholarship, and unquestionable Christian character.

RATES EXCEEDINGLY REASONABLE.

Ask for catalogue—enroll now—College opens Sept. 11.

WILLIAM H. FRAZER, D.D., Litt.D., President,
Box 300, Charlotte, N. C.

STORY

RADIUM IN THE WORLD

Within a week's time the British have oversubscribed a national radium fund which is being set aside to purchase sufficient radium for the country's present and future needs in fighting cancer and other diseases. King George was treated with radium in his recent illness and this newly raised fund is part of a national thank offering for his recovery. There will probably be about $1,500,000 available for the purchase.

Of all the so-called precious metals, radium is by far the scarcest and most costly, though it is not used for ornamental purposes. Its use is largely medicinal, particularly in combating cancer, although it is also employed industrially in painting luminous watch dials and similar objects.

Every important hospital has its tiny supply of radium and a careful supervision is maintained over the particles. Usually, because of its highly destructive radio-activity, the radium is kept in platinum needles about the size of an ordinary sewing needle, or in glass tubes.

While radium is of the greatest curative value in the treatment of disease, it is so powerful that if handled injudiciously one gram could kill a man within an hour of exposure. The radiations break down cells of healthy as well as diseased tissue, and even affect the bones, so that great care is exercised in the handling of pure radium. The tubes of radium for medical use contain generally from one to a hundred milligrams only.

Demand is Great

Since there are only between 250 and 350 grams, or from one-half to three-quarters of a pound, of radium in the entire world today, the demand far exceeds the supply, as radium treatment for cancer alone has grown to large proportions. However, radium is a long lived substance, losing about half its volume in 2,500 years, so there is no immediate danger from deterioration of the present amount, small as it is.

The largest supply in any one institution in the world is at Memorial Hospital in New York, where there are eight grams. The private hospital of Dr. Howard A. Kelly, in Baltimore, who was himself a pioneer in the radium field, is the possessor of five grams of the precious element.

Mme. Curie, the discoverer of radium, has two grams in her laboratory in Paris—the original gram which she and her husband isolated and a gram which was given to her by American women for experimental purposes.

Worth $70,000 a Gram

Radium is produced in several countries, through the Belgian government enjoys a virtual monopoly, handling, as it does, ninety per cent. of the world's supply. Prior to the working of the mines in upper Katanga, Belgian Congo, most of the radium came from the famous mine in Bohemia, from Portugal and from Colorado. The mines in Colorado are so low in content that they are now practically shut down.

The pitchblende ore of the Congo, from which pure radium is extracted, is considered very rich if it yields as much as fifty milligrams per ton of ore. Other governments have made outlays similar to that of Great Britain.

Various institutions have acquired radium for their own use by collecting funds for that purpose. Thus the University of Pennsylvania set aside $72,000 for the purchase of a gram for the university hospital.

The value of radium is dependent upon radioactivity, which is carefully measured by delicate instruments. The current price in the medical profession is $70,000 a gram.

Husband (to wife driving a nail): "However do you expect to drive a nail in the wall with a clothes-brush? For goodness sake, use your head, dear."—Exchange.

Mrs. Gaswell, while you were in Venice did you see the Bridge of Sighs?"

"Oh, yes, I saw what they called that, but my land, I've seen bridges ten times its size without ever going out of Pennsylvania!"—Ex.

HARRIS FRESH SYSTEM

Private water supply system and farm homes, schools, clubs, filling stations, fresh cool water under pumps or tanks. No greasy or well. Automatic electric. Durable, dependable and economical. Thousands in use for literature.
HARRIS PUMP MFG. CO.

MAKING No

Our aim is to develop through the constant teaching principles; to develop through healthful outdoor the intellect through individual instruction. We square education for your prisingly reasonable cost write Col. A. H. Camd

HARRIS MILITARY ACADEMY
CHATHAM

DARLINGTON

ROME GEORGE
An Accredited Private School for Boys

Small student body. Teacher to every ten boys. Supervised study.

Physical training for every boy

All men teachers, graduates colleges. Hom Thorough college preparation boys of good moral character. Non-military. Charter foring school for financial

HONOR SYSTEM

"Unselfishly Dedicated to Youth"

C. R. WILCOX, M. A.

Address all inquiries to

E. L. WRIGHT, M. A., President

S. H. ASKEW, Associate Headmaster

RANDOLPH-IA School for

Member of Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools

Situated amid beautiful surroundings, this accredited offers to students a thorough system of instruction appointments, congenial wholesome out-door sports atmosphere of culture and students make rapid progress these happy surroundings. Write John C. Smith

DANVILLE, VA

WINTERS CHILL TONIC

For over 50 years it has been the household remedy for all forms of

It is a Reliable, General Invigorating Tonic.

MARY BALDWIN

For women. Courses leading to B. S. degrees. Music, English, physical education, field athletics. Modern beautiful Shenandoah 1842. Catalog. Staunton

FASSIFERN A Select School Preparing Girls for In the Land of the Sky Leading Colleges

Small classes, individual attention. Piano, voice, violin, harmony, art, home economics. Handsome new brick gymnasium. Physical culture, horseback riding, golf, outings at Camp Greystone. For catalogue address

JOSEPH R. SEVIER, D.D., President, Box S, HENDERSONVILLE, N. C.

Expert Kodak

Developing and printing beautiful work guaranteed printing 6 exposure rolls 1.5-8x2 1/2, 40c; 2 1/4x3 1/4, 3 1/4x5 1/2, 52c; Film pack 2 1/4x3 1/4, developing and printing in proportion. Quick LIGON'S DRUG STORE

SHIP'S REWARD

ard Skeen

of years, Joe Andrews Ring," played together on rm in Indiana. They went her, Ring, accompanying morning, then faithfully the schoolhouse until his ppear again. They brought unted through the woods e stream near their home. elp, when Joe carried in taking a stick in his mouth in the house. Then, too, go and meet the rural mail g the mail to the house ne member of the family

e Andrews family, and thought a great deal of the boy grew up to man-

Folk's Friend

at many call it for n and vigor into old rich, red blood into sound flesh on old rnk with each meal.

ar Ale

estive Aromatics With neral Water & Ginger

ike it for assisting stive organs to con-fused into rich blood flesh.

hood his interest in life and its work gradually drew him away from his animal friend. He still cared for the dog, but had less time to devote to his friend.

The spring that Joe was eighteen his parents decided to move to North Dakota, as they felt sure more opportunities existed in the newer State.

"I don't think it would be a good idea to take Ring along; he is so old and feeble that the long ride in the freight car would kill him." Mr Andrews spoke from the comfort of a large rocking chair, sitting before the fireplace in the evening after a hard day's work packing things in preparation for the coming move.

The dog moved slightly in his sleep and growled from the depths of a rug placed near the mantel for his special use.

"Brother Ben thinks about as much of him as we do and only today offered to give him a home as long as he lives. That seems to me the best way. It will take about two weeks in the freight car; then it will be a lot colder out there in the winter time. Ring has been a faithful friend to us and I hate to leave him, but it seems the best thing to do," continued the farmer as he glanced over the paper at his wife.

Joe stopped reading closed the book with a snap, and exploded. "No! I don't think it would be the best. Just because he has grown old and feeble in the services of our family, because he can no longer see our faces, but must depend upon failing hearing to distinguish our voices and bark his greetings, must we leave him behind like a piece of rubbish? Of course, I know that Uncle Ben would give him as good a home, and as tender care as we can, but Uncle Ben and his family could never take our place in Ring's heart. I do not want to rob him of any pleasure he might get in the last few months of his life by leaving him behind. If he can't go, I won't go."

"Yes, we understand how you feel, Joe; but I think it is best for poor, old Ring to save him the hardships of a long trip. We will have to give him up in a short time, anyway, and this will only be bringing the parting somewhat sooner than otherwise," soothed Mrs. Andrews.

"Don't forget the time he trapped the chicken thieves in the chicken house and kept them prisoners there until you could go out and capture them. Or the time he held the bull at bay and saved you a serious injury, Dad. And the time he pulled me out of the water when I fell in while I was fishing." Joe spoke heatedly in defense of his dog.

"It is not that we think less of him than before, but we are trying to make his last days as comfortable as possible," argued Joe's father.

"Well, I heard Uncle Ben say the other day that he was going to hire an extra man this summer, so I can work for him as long as Ring lives and then come out to Dakota on the money I earn." The youth sat down beside his dog and fondled him tenderly.

This scene touched Mrs. Andrews deeply. Wiping a tear away with her apron, she turned to his husband.

"We had better take the poor, old fellow along, come what will. He, no doubt, will be much happier with us than away from us."

"Looking at it the way I did, I thought it was best. But if two vote against one, that means a majority, and a majority is supposed to rule in a well-regulated family," replied Mr. Andrews, turning to the market page.

The following week was a very busy one for the Andrews family. At last everything that they felt they would use in the new home was loaded in what was called an emigrant car. Several horses were in one end of the car, with some

GLADE VALLEY HIGH SCHOOL

A Christian Schools for boys and girls

Standard High School Courses with Specials, Bible, Music,

Domestic Art and Science

State Accredited Experienced Faculty

Careful Oversight of Students

Board, Room and Tuition only $138.00 for year.

Address E. B. ELDRIDGE, Supt., GLADE VALLEY, N. C. ALLEGHANY COUNTY

ANTA CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

The Foremost School of Music in the South

Fall session begins Monday, September 2, 1929

Summer session in June and July

atalog C GEO. F. LINDNER, Director Atlanta, Georgia

SALEM COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

own nationally for 156 years' unbroken record in higher education. Life emphasizes Christian standards without denominational differences. Sixty-six acre campus of forest and meadow. Swimming, riding and all sports. Our endowment pays 12 1-2 per cent. of each student's expenses, reducing the annual charge to $655.00.

Accredited member Southern Association. A-Class. A. B., B. S. and B. Music degrees with wide elective privileges. For catalogue "A" to Pres. Howard E. Rondthaler, Winston-Salem, N. C.

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE
DECATUR, GA.

Strict entrance requirements, but few failures after admission. Somewhat expensive, but cheap in comparison with advantages offered. No loafers expected, but also none without capacity to enjoy almost unlimited good times. For details as to admission, scholarship aid, etc address

PRESIDENT J. R. McCAIN
Box 5

MITCHELL COLLEGE. AN ACCREDITED STANDARD JUNIOR COLLEGE FOR YOUNG WOMEN.

Small classes, strong faculty, Christian training; special courses in pipe organ, voice, piano, home economics, and commercial subjects. Rates reasonable. For catalogue address: MRS. W. B. RAMSAY, President Statesville, N. C.

VACATION TRIPS

Rail and Motor Tours

In the Southern Appalachian Mountains

In especially arranged rail and motor tours, the Southern Railway provides a new vacation recreation, combining rail and motor transportation for the individual and for parties, into the mountain sections of Virginia, North Carolina, Eastern Tennessee and North Georgia.

These tours will take you adventuring by rail and motor into regions of scenic beauty and historic interest. Each trip begins and ends with a railway journey, in which you enjoy the speed and comfort of rail travel. The motor trips are over established State highways.

For booklets, information and rates, call on Ticket Agents.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

McCALLIE School for Boys
Historically located on Missionary Ridge. In view of renowned Lookout Mountain. An outstanding school in South. Thorough preparation for College and Technical Schools. Small classes. Individual Instruction. Strong Faculty. Military Drill. Honor System. Christian Training. Complete modern equipment. Concrete Swimming Pool. Gymnasium. 40 Acre Campus. Lake. Rate $800. Summer Session, July and August, with Camp features. Write for illustrated catalog. The Headmaster, Box P Chattanooga, Tennessee hay and a barrel of water for the animals enroute. The rest of the car was piled high with farm implements and household goods.

Mr. Andrews went in this car along with the horses, farm implements and other goods, so that he could take care of his horses on the trip.

The car was routed to Chicago. There it was switched into a great long train of emigrant cars, all bound for the West. Twenty five and thirty years ago hundreds of families, even thousands, left their Eastern homes every spring for the Golden West.

Mrs. Andrews and Joe visited with friends and relatives for several days after Mr. Andrews left, before taking the passenger train for the West. In this way they would arrive at their destination about the same time that Mr. Andrews would get there with the car.

Always Safe

When your Children Cry for It

Here's relief and comfort for crying, fretful, feverish babies or children that you don't need to urge or command them to take. They love the delicious taste of Fletcher's Castoria. Your doctor will tell you it's absolutely safe, so you can give it as freely and as often as needed to keep your children happy and well. A few drops is all it takes to quiet fretful, feverish, colicky babies; relieve their biliousness, gas on stomach, constipation, etc.; soothe them to sleep in a jiffy. For like disorders in older children, you simply use a little larger dose of the same reliable Fletcher's Castoria. Don't use grown-folks' medicine; with babies or children, specialists say. Ninety per cent. of them recommend Fletcher's Castoria; and thirty years of steadily increasing popularity proves they're right. To protect you from imitations, the Fletcher signature is on every bottle of genuine Fletcher's Castoria.

WANTED
Position as Young People's Worker. Graduate of Assembly's Training School—Years of experience.

Care Smith—Station A
Charleston, W. Va.

NISBET LODGE
Mountreat, on Lookout Road, 300 yards from Auditorium on same street, offers excellent fare and comfortable rooms. Special rates to parties.

DON'T DRIFT.... PLAN

Are you drifting along?
Have you made plans for the future?
Don't you think you should?
Don't you want to be successful in business?
Then write us!

DRAGHORN'S BUSINESS COLLEGE
1213 SUMNER ST. COLUMBIA, S. C.

When the family had all arrived at the little Western town, a homestead was soon located some twenty miles from town, and a small, but comfortable home built. Then Mr. Andrews set about breaking up the sod. Four strong horses were hitched to a walking plow, and the rich virgin soil was turned over at the rate of about three acres a day. Mr. Andrews would plow for several days, getting a nice field broken up. Then he would hitch to the disk and cut the sod up fine, making a good seed bed. After harrowing the ground several times, it was ready for seeding. In this way Mr. Andrews had many acres in crop before the season became too late for cropping.

The change of climate seemed to improve Ring considerably, so that he could get around better. He moved rather slowly, but enough to satisfy him, for he preferred to lie and sleep the time away.

Spring was followed by one of those wonderful North Dakota summers, which, once experienced, can never be forgotten. Cool, invigorating evenings with a long twilight that called one out to sit in the yard as the King of Night sifted darkness from his giant shaker and sprinkled it over the earth.

With fall came a harvest of a good crop on the small acreage that they had out. Getting a threshing machine was a problem for the new settlers, but at last two men who owned threshing machines and who lived a number of miles away, came into the community and threshed for the homesteaders. While none of the settlers had a very large crop, the money brought them was very badly needed.

Winter came on, but the settlers were all pretty well prepared for the long, cold months. The homesteaders in that vicinity had all gone to Turtle Mountain, about fifty miles away, and gotten several wagons loads of poles to use for fuel during the winter.

One day Mr. and Mrs. Andrews set out for town, leaving Joe at home to take care of the stock, as they were to be gone several days. Mrs. Andrews found it necessary to have some dental work done, and it was more convenient to stay in town several days until this work was finished than it was to make such long trips back and forth by team.

After his parents had gone Joe spent the day hunting. In the evening he did up the chores, then read for several hours. About eleven o'clock he put on a heavy overcoat and went outside to watch the Aurora Borealis. This strange, northern light was a source of wonder and delight to Joe as well as to the other new settlers. On clear, cold nights practically the entire neighborhood would be out watching the strange display.

This night the light was particularly brilliant. All colors of the rainbow would flash across the entire north heavens from west to east, now a solid block of divergent colors, then shooting up in spirals and columns and fading slowly away; again flashing across the sky in ripples and a series of sharp points like the peaks of a mountain range; like the ocean, always presenting the same colors, but ever changing, always moving. It kept the watchers fascinated until the display faded out entirely.

Joe watched until the lights grew dim and then realized that he was quite cold. He ran to the wood pile carried a large load of wood into the house, filling the wood box, placed conveniently behind the stove. Then he built a hot fire, warmed himself thoroughly, and retired. In a few seconds he was sound asleep, for anyone out in cold weather and getting chilled will get very sleepy as soon as he gets warm.

How long he had been asleep the youth did not know, but he heard Ring barking. It seemed as though the dog were miles away. Joe wondered what might be the matter, but he felt so drowsy his eyes refused to open and soon he was sound asleep again. Once more he heard his animal friend barking. Joe wished the old scamp would keep still and let him sleep.

Suddenly Ring's cold face, and something in Joe's ear sounded like his nose and throat. The in Joe's ear sounded like exploded in the room. Joe bed his eyes wide awake he noticed the room was fire and, dashing out into the the whole wood box was ing the water pail sitting, splashed it on the fire, paing the blaze. Then he raked and brought several buckets. This put the fire out, and the doors and windows, cleared out.

Joe realized that he had fire in the stove when he it had not been for his pet he would more than perished in the fire. Eye escaped, the house would burned down. If he had a minutes later, the fire would beyond control.

"Good old Ring," muttered he knelt in homage beside "I'll not wake you up no how thankful I am, but I'll surely tell you and I will understand."

Joe retired again, but during several hours, and even terrible dreams of smoke and

The first thing he noticed was that Ring lay just as he the fire. Then the truth of Joe's mind. He hardly dared it and yet he knew that the tions and excitement of that had proved too much for Several tears rolled down cheeks as he gazed upon his pal.

Early that morning Joe awoke her husband. "I know there is something wrong because we had better hurry because have my teeth fixed later on."

Within an hour the couple their way home, pushing the

PUZZLE CORNER

Junior Cross-Word Puzzle

- | | |
|----------------------------|-------------------------------------|
| Horizontal | Vertical |
| 1—Baby dogs | 1—Bird with beautiful tail feathers |
| 6—River in Switzerland | 2—Ache |
| 7—Sour | 3—Tablet |
| 9—Southern State (abbr.) | 4—Ireland (abbr.) |
| 10—Vessel to hold liquids | 5—Four divisions of the year |
| 11—Automobile fuel (slang) | 8—Vehicle |
| 12—Conjunction | 9—Gallon (abbr.) |
| 13—A game | 11—Clotted blood |
| 14—Part of body | 13—Kitchen utensil |
| 15—Dog houses | 14—Printer's measure |

A Dozen Words Found in Friendship
1, A color. 2, A tree. 3, Part of body. 4, Part of an orange. 5, New. 6, Auger. 7, To conceal. 8, A noise. 9, To discover. 10, The finish. 11, Pinch. 12, Tear. Can you find another dozen?

Word Square
My first is a banner
My second is only one
My third is a girl's name
My fourth is to make ready.

Numerical Puzzle
4-2-8-5. A popular outdoor sport
10-6-1-7. Healthy
3-9. Refusal
The numbered letters placed in numerical order, name a famous American poet.

SOME FACTS WORTH KNOWING ABOUT THE COURSES OF STUDY AT DAVIDSON COLLEGE

1. In Modern Language 28 courses are given—10 in French, 5 in German, 5 in Spanish.
2. In Classical Languages 14 courses are given—9 in Greek and 5 in Latin.
3. In English Literature and Composition 18 courses are embraced in the curriculum, covering all American and European Literature.
4. In Bible, Philosophy and Religious Education there are 5 courses in Philosophy and 2 in Religious Education.
5. The course in History and Social Sciences embraces 12 courses in Political Science, 7 in Psychology, 1 in Sociology.
6. In the Department of Economics, Commerce and Business the categories are: 5 in Economics, 5 in Business, 4 in Law, 6 in Public Speech, 2 in Psychology of Salesmanship and 2 in Economic History.
7. In Natural Sciences, 1 in Astronomy, 4 in Pure Math, 4 in Applied Math, 9 in Biology, 8 in Chemistry, 8 in Geology and 8 in Physics.

This is second of a series of four advertisements on "Some Facts Worth Knowing About Davidson College." The first was "Some Facts Worth Knowing About the History of Davidson College;" next week will be given "Some Facts Worth Knowing About the Student Organizations and Activities," and the following week "Some Facts Worth Knowing About the Finances of Davidson College."

Good-bye, Flies and Mosquitoes!

Unless you're a Flit user, you have no idea how soon you can rid your home of every fly and mosquito. Flit kills quicker, and is easier to use, in the handy Flit sprayer. Spray into cracks and crannies to kill roaches, bed bugs, ants. Flit vapor does not stain. Try the quicker Flit method today!

Small but Large

enrollment but complete equipment and service, ideals and tremendous force for good.

Presbyterian College
Clinton, S. C.

No Lance

Scientific Preparation
SARBUUNCLES, BONE FELONS,
RIS, and OLD SORES. Price 50c
LANCE CHEMICAL CO.
New Brookland, S. C.

to suffer long from neuralgia, or headaches when stiff and sure, with Bayer for 28 years the medical has recommended it. It affect the heart. Take it rheumatism, sciatica, gargle it for a sore throat. Proven directions for uses, in every package. Pres have genuine Bayer which is readily identified name on the box and the on every tablet.

ASPIRIN

Trade mark of Bayer Manufacture
Sodium Salicylic Acid

College for Men

Easton, Tennessee

W. Jackson College

FOR WOMEN

Weldon, Va., Box A

Controlled by Montgomery
Presbytery

Colleges of the Synod of

offers four year courses
Degrees of Bachelor of Arts
of Sciences — a small College — Faculty of eleven gentlemen of thorough training. Experience. Expensive.

W. Jackson College. Accredited College for young men of healthful Virginia campus. Two years high school, college. Music, art, home secretarial course, physical education. All outdoor sports.
Hole golf course on fifty-acre campus. Homelike life.
Catalogue.

fast as possible, considering the many miles to be made. They arrived at their homestead at ten o'clock, just as Joe was finishing the morning chores. He led them in the house and showed them their faithful old Ring lying so still, and told them all about the fire and how the dog had awakened him.

Today a small plot of ground is fenced off in one corner of the yard, held sacred to the memory of a friend who never failed in time of need.—The Uplift.

MORE THAN TWO MILLION NAMED MARY IN THE UNITED STATES

2,500,000 Answer to William, But Few to Algernon

If you were to call "Mary" in a voice that could be heard from Maine to California an army of 2,000,000 women and girls would answer to that name, according to an article, "What's In a Name?" by George R. Stewart, Jr., in Children, The Magazine for Parents.

Mr. Stewart, a member of the faculty of the University of California, has just completed a survey which also shows that should the same imaginary, far-reaching voice call "William," the air of these United States would echo with 2,500,000, "Aye, aye, sirs."

But even though these good old-fashioned names are still answered to by vast majorities, Mr. Stewart predicts that in the future there will be an overwhelming crop of Anitas, Glorias and Constances to mark the popularity of movie stars in our generation. For Mr. Stewart has discovered that there are fashions in names. In 1905, Mary led the list one in fourteen. Today the Marys are gradually giving way to Elizabeth, Dorothy and Marie. In 1905 Anna, Grace, Emily, Alice, Caroline, May, Emma and Mabel were popular, but today they are decreasing in popularity.

Occasionally there is some more direct reason for these fashions in names. Take Edna for instance. With no preceding history of account it leaped into popularity about 1870, soon after the publication of "St. Elmo," whose saintly heroine was named Edna Earl. Since the war, for example, there has been a regular deluge of Jeans and Joans, drawing no doubt from the heroine of France. Dorothy has recently had a surprising career. Among hundreds of girls about 1875 I failed to find a single one of that name. About 1885 something started it going and since then it has boomed like a western town.

The author warns against using fickle names, reminding parents that "names, despite Shakespeare, are an important part of personality." When a name grows out of date, a girl can't change it and parents will regret that they have given it to her. He also advises that names rapidly rising in popularity be avoided. "Your child will grow up as one of a crowd, instead of with a distinctive name of her own," he says.

The social distinction of names has been more or less realized, but the author has put it on a statistical basis. "Bridget has come to mean a cook, because at one time most of the kitchen help was Irish. Dinah and Chloe seem to mean colored mam-mies, while Geraldine and Alfreda seem to demand a Lady in front of them. Men's names seem to show no social gradations like women's. James has long been popular for coachman or chauffeur, and every-one calls the Pullman porter 'George.' Nevertheless James and George go on being as popular in good society as anywhere else."

"Apart from fashion and social distinction, there are a few general principles to follow in naming the baby. Take into consideration the initials. Consider the suitcase of the poor girl named Alberta Susan Spear! Do not try too much for softness. Names like Lenora Malloye simply lack backbone. The more neutral the last name the wider the choice—one of the few advantages of Smith. If your last name means anything—Fish, Fry or Brewer, for instance—be careful what name you choose to go with it. Marrietta Fish is not so good.

"Men's names like men's fashions do not change in popularity as often as women's. William and John are today the most popular and were forty years ago. The only three names that have fallen from popularity are Henry, Frederick and Thomas. Their successors are Harold, Arthur and Francis."

The author has an interesting explanation of the reason why such names as Percy Algernon, Reginald and possibly Clarence, once names of glorious warriors and brave men, now suggest a little boy in ruffles and are decidedly unpopular with their bearers. The change came in the nineteenth century when the "nouveaux riches" were setting out to get social distinction along with their money." With a name, middle-class mothers tried to gain for their sons the social leap they themselves could not make. When these Percies and Reginalds began to grow up, instead of armoured knights riding plumed horses they were pale-faced and courage-lacking. People began to laugh.

One more rule. Don't call your boy by a name used for girls.—The Lutheran.

CAN YOU BELIEVE IT?

The bulletin of the Central Presbyterian Church in Atlanta prints the following: "Statistics show that five per cent of all church members do not exist; ten per cent of them cannot be found; 25 per cent never contribute a penny to the kingdom of God; 75 per cent never go to a mid-week religious service; 90 per cent do not have family altars established in their homes; 95 per cent never pretend to win a new recruit for Christ."

Getting into the social whirl often tends to make people dizzy and to cause them to lose their moral balance.

PUZZLE ANSWERS

NUMERICAL PUZZLE
Golf, Well, No LONG FELLOW

WORD SQUARE

F L A G
L O N E
A N N A
G E A R

WORDS FOUND IN FRIENDSHIP
1. Red. 2. Pine. 3. Hip. 4. Rind. 5. Fresh. 6. Ire. 7. Hide. 8. Din. 9. Find. 10. End. 11. Nip. 12. Rend.

SPECIAL EXCURSION FARES
To
WASHINGTON, D. C.
FRIDAY, AUGUST 2, 1929
Via
SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM
Round-Trip Fare From
Charlotte, N. C.
$12.00
FINAL LIMIT 5 DAYS
BIG LEAGUE BASEBALL GAMES
Detroit vs. Washington
August 3, 4, and 5
ASK TICKET AGENTS

Belk's 33rd Anniversary July Clearance Sale

IS NOW ON

DRASTIC REDUCTIONS IN ALL DEPARTMENTS

A Once a Year Event that You Cannot Afford to Miss

Belk Brothers Co.
Charlotte, N. C.

Alumni Chapel, One of Seven Fine Brick Buildings on 120 Acre Campus

The Baylor School

A BOY'S OPPORTUNITY
Sound Scholarship and a Happy School Life on the most beautiful campus in the South. An accredited preparatory school for manly boys. Christian Influence. High Scholastic Standards. Unusual Equipment. Golf, Tennis, Swimming, Boating, Gymnasium, 3 Athletic Fields, etc.
For Catalogue, Address
ALEXANDER GUERRY, Headmaster.
THE BAYLOR SCHOOL, Cherokee Trail CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

THE RIGHT WAY TO TRAVEL
 is by train. The safest. Most comfortable. Most reliable. Costs less. Inquire of Ticket Agents regarding greatly reduced fares for short trips.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Church and Sunday School Furniture

Send For Special Catalogue
THE SOUTHERN DESK COMPANY
 Hickory, N. C.

CUTS Scratches, burns and other skin abrasions with children, easily become infected. ::

Safeguard with
GRAY'S OINTMENT

At all drug stores. For free sample write
 W. F. Gray & Co., 724 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Nervous Women Praise Capudine

Delicately poised women who suffer from high nerve strain and nervous pains, such as periodic pains, headache and pains in the back and sides are high in their praise of Capudine because it quickly soothes the tense nerves and relieves the pain.

Being liquid, Capudine acts almost instantly,—does not upset the stomach. Sold by druggists in 30c and 60c sizes. (adv.)

YOUR CHURCH deserves a beautiful exterior in harmony with its spirit of culture and worship. Let us suggest appropriate shrubbery.

THE HOWARD-HICKORY CO., Hickory, N. C.
 Local Representatives Wanted, especially to sell fruit trees.
 Landscape Gardeners and Nurserymen

Take STANBACK
 to Relieve PAIN

6 6 6
 is a Prescription for Colds, Grippe, Flu, Dengue, Bilious Fever and Malaria.
 It is the most speedy remedy known.

WEAK EYES are strengthened and relieved by Dickey's old reliable eye water. In use over half a century. Relieves sore eyes from gnats and dust. Doesn't hurt. In red folding box at all good stores or by mail 25c.

Dickey Drug Co. Bristol, Virginia

OVER-RUNS AND MILL ENDS
SAVE ONE-THIRD ON CLOTH DIRECT FROM LOOM TO YOU

Cotton Flannels, Pillow Tubings, Sheetings, Crinkled Cloth for Bedspreads, Pajama Checks, Chambrays, Tinted Dimities, Gingham, Art Silk Striped Madras for men's and boys' Shirts. Write for free samples and prices.

MONAGHAN MILL STORE, Dept. A., Greenville S. C.
 "Textile Center of the South"

Mexican Heat Powder

Immediately relieves Prickly Heat, Nettle Rash, Diaper Rash, Tired, Sore and Blistered Feet. Sunburn, all Skin Irritations. At your Druggists

S P A R K L E S

Such is Fame

Several years ago Firestone, Edison, Ford and Burroughs were touring through West Virginia. A light on their car went bad, and they stopped at a little crossroad store in the Buchannon section. Mr. Ford went into the store to make the purchase.

"What kind of automobile lights do you have?" asked Ford.

"Edison," replied the merchant.

"I'll take one," said Ford. "And by the way, you may be interested to know that Mr. Edison is out in my car."

"So?" said the merchant.

When the light was put in it was found that a new tire was needed, so Ford went back into the store and asked what kind of tires the merchant had.

"Firestone," was the reply.

"By the way, you may be interested to know that Mr. Firestone is out there in my car and that I am Mr. Ford—Henry Ford."

"So?" said the merchant.

While the tire was being put on, Burroughs, with his white whiskers, leaned out of the car and said to the merchant, "Good morning, sir."

The merchant looked at him with a sarcastic grin, and said: "If you try to tell me you're Santa Claus I'll crown you with this wrench."

When Scot Meets Scot

Forty years in America had taken much of the Scotch burr from Macpherson's tongue, but none of the Scotch loyalty from his heart, and he bitterly resented an implication that the Scotch are closer than other people. Each Scotch story that he heard—saw to it that he heard them all—would send him into spasms of rage.

"The man who said 'punning is the lowest form of wit' never heard Scotch stories," he was wont to throw at his tormenters. Then Mac made his long deferred visit to his birthplace and after his return we noticed that he didn't react to Scotch stories as before, and we asked him why. "Well," said he, "do you know, I think there's a bit of truth in those stories about the old country Scotch—not the Scotch in America, mind ye—just in the old country. You see, I was walkin' about the town over there one day and my pipe went out. I went into a store and said, 'Can I get a light here?' And what do you suppose they said? 'Oh, yes, we have matches for sale!' And, do you know, I went into three places and they all said the same thing, and I had to walk two miles back to the hotel to get a light for my pipe!"

A senior at the University of Chicago has discovered that 1,015 motions are required to wash dishes. Those last fifteen motions, of course, are used for picking up the pieces.—Judge.

Dentist (to his vicar in the chair): "After your powerful sermon last Sunday on 'The Beauty of Truth,' I cannot tell a lie. Er—this will hurt."—The Passing Show.

Club Waiter: "There is a lady outside who says that her husband promised to be home early tonight." All (rising): "Excuse me, gentlemen."—Christian Register.

"I'm coming down with the flu," warned the house-wrecker's assistant, as he started descending from the roof.—Life.

The savage desert tribes of Africa pay no taxes, we read. It is difficult, therefore, to know what makes them savage.—Everybody's Weekly.

Ants, we read, can lift weights which are tremendous as compared with their own. Wasps also can raise quite good-sized lumps.—Albany Knickerbocker Press.

Chicora College for Women
The Presbyterian College of South Carolina

Standard College Courses Large, Strong Faculty
 Beautiful Grounds Ideal Surroundings
 Healthful Climate Moderate Rates

For Catalog and Information, Address
S. C. Byrd, D.D., LL.D., President, Columbia, S. C.

FORTY-SIX YEARS CONTINUOUS SERVICE WITHOUT A LOSS ON ANY LOAN

We offer you a safe, tax-free investment for your regular weekly or monthly savings and your lump sum. Write for particulars.

ASSETS OVER $8,800,000.00

The Mutual Building and Loan Association

Established 1881 CHARLOTTE

If In Doubt, Take B. & L. Shares

You will earn the highest interest rate on your savings consistent with perfect safety, and pay no tax on savings. Shares cost twenty-five cents per week, and usually mature in 333 weeks. Net you 6 1-2 per cent maturity.

Series Open in January, April, July and October

Mechanics Perpetual Building & Loan Association

Established 1883 Charlotte

18 E. Fourth St.

THE WINTHROP DESK, $75

The Governor Winthrop desk has come down to us from the very earliest beginning of America. In the one shown here every detail has been copied minutely. It is made in Grand Rapids which is an assurance of its fine quality. Others, varying in size from $70 to $145.

W.T. McCOY & Co
Home Furnishers

423-425 SOUTH TRYON STREET
 CHARLOTTE, N. C.

For the Future

Are you making ready share in the opportunity which increasing prosperity will bring?

A Reserve Fund Banked Will Help

"National Bank Safety For Savings"

Charlotte National Bank
 Resources Over $5,000,000.00

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

Religious Newspaper for the Family

Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.

W. F. ELLIS, Editor-in-Chief
J. G. GARTH, D.D., Co-Editor
W. S. SPER WILLIS, Contributing Editor

M. F. ELLIS, Vice-President
REV. J. G. GARTH, Treasurer and News Editor
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
BY PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY

CHARLOTTE, N. C., AUGUST 7, 1929

No. 32

Church Meet at Capital

Religious Press Hold Session in Washington in June

Meeting of the Editorial Religious Press was held in Washington, Washington, and 18.

Leibach, Reformed Church editor, and Walter W. Van der Veer, editor of the Federal Religious Press, were named acting secretaries of the session.

able discussion on "The Principles of Religious Journalism" by Jason Noble Pierce, of the First Congregational Church, Washington, D. C. Doctor Leiby expressed the opinion that the religious press was not sufficiently alive to the great mass of people. He expressed a deeper sense of unity and solidarity in the field of religion was also expressed. "The denominational paper is too much of a headquarters," said Doctor Leiby in his case. The speaker expressed the impression that the religious press was too often local in its interpretation of religious news and that not sufficient attention was being given to an international Christian world.

editor of The Christian expressed himself to this effect: "It is probably true that the leadership of the religious press today more largely comes from our papers. Perhaps it should be, but I doubt if it is wise to believe that the religious press is necessarily more influential than the written word—if it is written with care. It has been one of great interest to me to see the more effective crusades of the religious press."

Are We Shooting Overboard?"

are not trained in the religious thought," he said. "It is impossible to touch the plane of the religious press by the secular press. Moral and spiritual confusion is the result of the concepts to which we are very often out of touch with our readers. The writers who write for the religious press generally are 2,000 years ahead of their time. I am sometimes led to believe that many of our readers are behind the times. This is a very difficult situation, who is unable to decide what should keep in advance of the times."

tion that followed, many pointed out that reading the religious press in intellectual form is as to appeal to men of average intelligence. The language used in the news columns of the religious press must in some way be made more useful and less abstract and more concrete. The language used in the religious press was pointed to as an arm of writing that was

ach, in introducing the Should Be the Editorial Religious Press with Re-

Ninth Annual Y. P. Conference, Synod of Mississippi

The ninth annual Young People's Conference of the Synod of Mississippi convened at Belhaven College, Jackson, Miss. June 14-21. About 160 young people and leaders were in attendance.

The whole program was one of special merit. For Bible study the Conference was divided into four groups under the instruction of Rev. R. S. Woodson, Starkville, Rev. J. V. Currie, Fayetteville, Rev. I. D. Holt, Corinth, Rev. W. H. McIntosh, D.D., Hattiesburg, and Mr. J. C. Jones, Corinth.

Principles of Presbyterianism was taught by Dr. J. B. Green, Columbia Seminary, Atlanta, Ga. A course of special instruction was given by Mrs. J. V. Currie, Fayette, Miss., in Daily Vacation Bible School work to those expected to conduct or work in such schools during the year.

Training in devotion, a study of prayer and worship was conducted by R. L. Landis, Jackson, Miss. Church History was presented by Dr. W. H. McIntosh, Hattiesburg, Miss. A study of Church Ordinances—Coming to the Communion was given by Dr. J. P. Marion, Greenwood, Miss.

A very attractive feature of the conference was a class in Methods for Young People's Societies by Mr. Jameson C. Jones, Corinth, Miss. Splendid vesper services conducted daily by Rev. R. S. Woodson, Starkville. One of the outstanding features of the Conference was the inspirational hour each evening—a series of addresses by Rev. R. W. Hardy, Rienzi, Miss.

Recreational activities had a prominent part in the afternoons under the direction of Rev. J. V. Cobb, Rev. J. R. Tackett, and Miss Elise McCallum.

gard to Motion Pictures?" quoted at length from a recent report by Roger Babson expressing the conviction that the motion picture is largely responsible for the current crime wave. It was pointed out that 75 per cent of the people attending the movies were children and youth, and that the tendency of the movies to scoff at the sanctity of the home was having an unhealthy effect on the thinking processes of young people generally, resulting in a somewhat lop-sided philosophy of life and depreciation of the marital relation. Doctor Leiby contended that the movies too frequently pushed to the front the life of the underworld, with the result that youth is becoming more familiar with the language of this world than with the language of decency and honor. The monopoly called "blind and block booking" was called a menace, and the claim made that greed instead of ideals too largely controls the production of motion pictures, in spite of the solemn assurances of the "Movie Trust."

In answering the question, "What is the religious press to do with this situation," Doctor Leiby said, "We must pursue a policy of editorial vigilance. We must constructively criticize. To do this the religious press itself must be better informed on the issues involved. The blind cannot lead the blind."

After Mr. Van Kirk had explained the set-up of the Federal Council's Commission on Motion Pictures, it was voted

(Continued on Page Two)

Progress for Opening of Mitchell Satisfactory

Girls' Junior College at Statesville Will be Ready for Students Sept. 2

The local campaign for funds to repair the buildings of Mitchell College at Statesville, N. C., is succeeding and in addition to the repairs it is planned to erect a gymnasium to care for athletics in the school.

Mrs. W. B. Ramsay, the new president, and her staff are registering students, and the outlook for a good attendance is encouraging. The Statesville Daily of July 26 prints the following notice which is repeated in the Landmark:

Mitchell College will open for the fall term on Monday, September 2. Prospects are good for an unusually large enrollment at the institution this year.

Satisfactory progress is being made in the campaign to raise $10,000 for the college and the people of the community as a whole are responding generously to the call. A campaign is now being made among the alumnae to raise $3,000 for a gymnasium which is very much needed by the institution. If the money can be raised promptly it is hoped that the gymnasium will be ready for use by the time school opens in the fall.

The work of repairing the college building will begin next week, so that all necessary repairs may be complete during the month of August and the building put in readiness for the students by September 1st.

(Since this notice was published, actual work on building the gymnasium has begun, we are informed by Mrs. Ramsay.)

Bibles Placed in Korean Hotels

Chicago Gideons Donate 2,000 Copies to Inns—The Books Are Printed in Color to Identify Them

Recently there appeared in a number of church papers, an article by the American Bible Society, entitled "Bibles in Colors," which was especially interesting to some of us on this side of the world.

The British and Foreign Bible Society, in Seoul, Korea, has just completed an order for 2,000 Bibles, printed in Korean and bound in bright red with an artistic cover design, on the order of the Gideons, of Chicago, Ill.

These Bibles were thus bound, not in response to a demand for more beauty and color in the binding of the Scriptures, as was the case with the American Bible Society, but to protect against their being inadvertently or intentionally removed from the rooms of Korean hotels where they are being placed by the Gideons Organization. Newspapers have been supplied with news items telling of the placing of these Bibles, particular attention being called to the color and cover design, requesting the return of any red Bibles found out side of hotels, to such institutions.

Most Korean rooms, even in hotels, are not equipped with chairs or tables, and since it was not deemed fitting that the Holy Bible should be placed on the floor, artistic holders, which are attached to the wall have been provided for each Bible.

Occasionally a copy disappears, but the Gideons replace such losses, and like Capt. Robert Dollar, who reports an average

Fifth Annual Intermediate Conference in Mississippi

The fifth annual Intermediate Conference, Synod of Mississippi, convened at Belhaven College, Jackson, Miss., June 7-14.

It had been the plan of Committee of Religious Education to conduct the Conference in separate sections for boys and for girls—the boys to assemble at Belzoni, Miss., on a lake side. High water conditions made the plan impossible. The two sections were then merged into one. The total attendance passed one hundred and sixty.

The Conference was under the general direction of Synod's director of Religious Education. Miss Elizabeth Landis, Jackson and Miss Lella McDaniels, Rolling Fork, Miss, were co-directors for the girls' section. Captain J. W. Kennedy, President Chamberlain Hunt, Academy, Port Gibson, Miss. and Rev. J. C. Stewart, French Camp Academy, French Camp, Miss., and Rev. J. V. Cobb, Sardis, Miss, were in charge of boys.

Miss Irene Hope Hudson, Louisville, Ky., and Miss Lucile DuBose, Nashville, Tenn., taught Bible, gave missionary and devotional instruction. The singing was led by Miss Annie Louise Hall, Jackson, Miss.

The program of mornings was full of instruction. The afternoon was given to swimming, boating, games, and various forms of recreation.

Prof. Henry Hallam Tweedy Wins Hymn Society Award

Dr. Benjamin S. Winchester, president of the Hymn Society, a national organization of hymn writers and composers, announces that the society's award of $100 for the best new missionary hymn, written in the modern spirit, has been won by Prof. Henry Hallam Tweedy of the Divinity School of Yale University. His hymn, "Eternal God, Whose Power Upholds," was adjudged the best of more than one thousand hymns submitted from every state in America, from Great Britain, Canada, and from many countries of Europe and Asia.

The judges of the contest were President Winchester, Dr. Henry H. Meyer, dean-elect of Boston University School of Theology, and Dr. A. L. Warnshuis, of New York, secretary of the International Missionary Council.

The words of Prof. Tweedy's hymn, copyrighted by the Hymn Society, are in the devotional volume.

The Hymn Society now offers a prize of $100 for a new tune set to Prof. Tweedy's hymn. The tune should be mailed, not later than November 1, 1929, to Dr. Benjamin S. Winchester, 105 East 22nd St., New York City. Each tune should bear a pseudonym and the composer's name should be attached in a seal envelope.

loss of 13 Bibles on each round-the-world trip of his steamers, they are willing to supply copies of the Holy Scriptures to any who want them badly enough to steal them.

M. L. Swinehart.

An Open Letter

The Assembly's Work Committee Appeals to the Church

To All Pastors, Missionaries, Leaders, Presbyterian Church in the U. S.:

Dear Brethren:

Greetings in the name of our Lord, Jesus Christ.

Your Committee,—The Committee on the Assembly's Work—wants to share with you a great vision that came with an overwhelming sense to each member of the Committee at its recent meeting in Montreat.

It was the vision of an Evangelizing Church. A Church deeply and sincerely aflame with the purpose of winning souls, at home and abroad, for the Kingdom of Jesus Christ.

A whole morning was spent in discussion and prayer on this so vital matter. We confessed before one another and our Lord our lamentable failure and indifference to the great task of soul winning.

We coveted for ourselves, for you, and for our whole Church the great joy of entering with our Master into His all-consuming passion for souls.

We lay our hearts bare before you and ask if you will not be much in prayer with us that we may turn again to the Christ method of extending His Kingdom, when brother went after brother, and friend after friend, and brought him to Jesus.

Beginning each one with himself, will you not join us in the purpose to be more evangelistic in our preaching and teaching, more earnest and constant in our efforts to win others for Christ, more expectant of results?

To the end that each of our churches may be a soul-winning Church, will you not present to every organization of your church, men, women and young people, our great desire that this may be the greatest evangelistic and soul-winning year our beloved Church has ever known?

Let us all go together to the Throne of Grace with earnest, personal and intercessory prayer to this great end.

It is recorded in the Bible how in the days of long ago one messenger of God saluted another with the words:

"Is thine heart right, as my heart, is with thy heart?" He answered: "It is." "If it be, give me thine hand." And he gave him his hand.

If God leads you to hear and heed this plea, may we not hope to have a word from you out of your own heart?

Your fellow-workers in Christ,

Ernest Thompson, Chairman,

16 Broad Street,

Charleston, W. Va.

W. R. Dobyns, Moderator,

2033 Highland Ave.,

Birmingham, Ala.

W. M. Anderson, Jr.,

F. H. Barron,

Mrs. Andrew Bramlett,

Mrs. John Bratton,

Mrs. M. G. Buckner,

Jno. W. Caldwell,

W. L. Caldwell,

Miss Agnes Davidson,

Mrs. R. F. Dunlap,

Miss Alice Eastwood,

W. M. Everett,

J. S. Foster,

John W. Friend,

F. W. Gregg,

Mrs. H. P. Harbison,

Mrs. S. N. Harrell,

J. H. Henderlite

A. S. Johnstone,

R. F. Kimmons,

Peyton H. Hoge, Jr.,

J. P. McCallie,

C. F. Huhlein,

J. F. Lawson,

A. N. Lecraft,

Walter L. Lingle,

J. R. McCain

R. H. McCaslin,

F. T. McFaden,

Alfred D. Mason,

M. E. Melvin,

Mrs. R. M. Pegram,

H. E. Ravenel,

Wade Sheltman,

Mrs. W. Frank Smith,

John Stites,

W. T. Thompson,

Mrs. W. A. Turner,

James I. Vance,

George M. White,

George White,

William Crowe,

Jasper K. Smith.

July 29th, 1929.

EDITORS OF CHURCH PAPERS MEET AT CAPITAL

(Continued from page 1)

to appoint a committee, including the President and Secretary, to make a study of this problem and to report at the 1930 meeting.

A paper was presented on "Editorial Attitude Toward the Roman Catholic Church," by John van Schaick, Jr., editor of the Christian Leader. He stated that it was the editorial duty of our religious press, first to present the news of the Roman Catholic Church; second, to oppose the acts and policies of the Roman Catholic Church in which we are in disagreement; third, to support the acts and policies of the Roman Catholic Church in which we are in agreement; fourth, to distinguish between the transient and the permanent in the polity and organization of the Roman Church; and fifth, to consider possibilities of co-operation and friendship with the clergy and laity of that communion.

"Responsibility of the Religious Press with Regard to Church Co-operation and Unity" was opened by Charles Stelzle, publicity representative of the Federal Council of Churches. Mr. Stelzle challenged his hearers by stating that the interest in the Church as an institution is rapidly decreasing and that the amount of financial support accruing to the Church is also on the decline. The speaker further stated that the members of the various Protestant communions are in the main ignorant of the co-operative movements between and among the various evangelical bodies and that the religious press is to a considerable degree responsible for this ignorance. Mr. Stelzle expressed the opinion that the daily press is giving more vital consideration today to these larger movements within the Church than is the religious press. The consensus of opinion seemed to be that fresh efforts should be made to strike some sort of a balance between denominational and interdenominational news.

A report on "Securing Revenue from Advertising" prepared by Rolfe Cobleigh, of The Congregationalist, was next presented to the Council. The following excerpts are taken from that report.

"Build up your advertising program and policy with the service motive as the dominant motive. Convince advertisers that you are selling a great deal more than space. Advertising then becomes a co-operative effort for the mutual benefit of the advertiser and the reader.

"This means that in order to be worthy of a place in our advertising columns, the commodity or cause advertised must be worthy of our endorsement and our help. This is a constant challenge to us to be careful and conscientious in what advertising we accept. We should always keep ourselves in a position where we can recommend and support strongly and with no reservations the advertising which we publish. We have no moral right to accept any other kind of advertising.

"Your national boards and your more important societies should keep standing advertisements or cards in every issue of your journal. These should carry the legal name, official address and purposes of each organization. Experience proves that such advertising serves for reference purposes and helps to bring in individual gifts and legacies.

"The Committee recommends that the Editorial Council of the Religious Press request the Federal Council of Churches, if it can find it practicable, to undertake a simple program of syndicating news of the religious world."

Two or three of the editors spoke of the efforts they had recently made to get their respective weeklies on the budgets of local churches. Other editors made reference to the observance in their respective denominations of a "Church Paper Day." Other suggestions included the practice of the local church in giving a short-term subscription to new members, the building up of a missionary constituency by having such subscriptions paid for by interested individuals, encouraging local consistories and official boards to give every church family a short-term subscription, encouraging liberal laymen to give short-term subscriptions to various members of the congregation.

The Editorial Council closed its sessions with a luncheon at the Hotel Washington, the address of the occasion being made by L. O. Hartman, editor of Zion's Herald. Doctor Hartman stated that the primary function of the religious press was to summon the members and friends of the Christian Church to engage in a never-ending campaign for personal religion and social righteousness.

The speaker declared that there are two contrasting conceptions of Kingdom method. One he called "automatic individualism," which advocates the preaching of the simple gospel, trusting to chance that the principles of Jesus will work out automatically for the redemption of society. The other method which Doctor Hartman advocated is "creative expressionism," by which men work together with God for the upbuilding of His Kingdom on earth.

Doctor Hartman assured his colleagues that the religious press of the country has much more power than it realizes, for its deliverances are amplified far and wide. The ministerial class of subscribers alone, through the pulpits of the land, multiplies many fold the messages of Christian weeklies to hundreds of thousands of individuals who never personally see the pages of a religious journal. Among the great issues upon which the influence of the religious press in recent years has been vividly felt, Doctor Hartman mentioned world peace, the Nicaraguan question, prohibition, and cigarette advertising.

In closing, the speaker stressed especially the need of bringing out the exact facts regarding prohibition and law enforcement. By way of illustration of the distortion of news on this subject by the wet press, he cited the case of certain daily papers that, as he said, "editorialize" prohibition news, with the result that law enforcement is rendered more difficult. If this tendency to editorialize prohibition news keeps up, we shall have here in America, not simply one, but ultimately a dozen Christian dailies.

Referring to the recent attack upon the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Doctor Hartman said, "I understand that the foundations of the Board's building here in Washington are fifteen feet deep. Its spiritual foundations in the Methodist Episcopal Church are a thousand feet deep."

Fighting Sergeant To Be At Massanetta

Alvin C. York, Outstanding Hero of the World War a Conscientious Objector

Every war has its outstanding individual hero. Both General Pershing and Marshal Foch acclaimed Sergeant Alvin C. York, of Tennessee, the greatest of all heroes of the World War.

The extraordinary thing about York's story is that before going overseas he thrice claimed exemption from military service on the grounds that he was a member of a church which was opposed to war and fighting.

There can be no doubt whatever that the big, red-headed Sergeant was a conscientious objector. In the archives of the War Department in Washington, D. D., there is a little pink slip marked:

Alvin C. York, Pte.,

Pall Mall, Tenn.

Conscientious Objector.

Religious grounds.

Thus for all time the outstanding hero of the World War will go down in history as a "conscientious objector."

And now comes the Sergeant's own explanations. In his youth he was to use his own words, "Hog Wild." He gambled, cussed, smoked, boozed and got mixed up in knife and pistol fights all along the old Kentucky border. Then suddenly he abandoned this wild life completely and forever. Since 1912 he has never touched liquor, cussed, gambled or even lost his temper. When

DEVOTION

ETERNAL GOD WHO UPHOLDS

"Eternal God, whose
Both flower and flame
To whom there is no
No time, no near nor
No alien race, no foreign
No child unsought, u
O send us forth, Thy pr
To make all lands Th

"O God of love, whose
In every human breas
Whom love, and love al
In whom all hearts fir
Help us to spread Thy Till greed and hate sh
And kindness dwell in
And all the earth finc

"O God of truth, whom
And reverent souls ad
Who lightest every earr
Of every clime and st
Dispel the gloom of eri
Of ignorance and fear
Until true wisdom from Shall make life's path

"O God of beauty, oft r
In dreams of human a
In speech that flows to
In holiness of heart,
Teach us to ban all uglis
That blinds our eyes th
Till all shall know the
Of lives made fair and

"O God of righteousness
Seen in the Christ, Th
Whose life and death red
By whom Thy will w Inspire Thy heralds of
To live Thy life divin Till Christ be formed in
And every land is Thi

The tune "Materna" is a hymn above.

OPTIMISTS AND PESSIMISTS

An optimist is one who world taking complete the Church, and the identified with the worl
difficult to distinguish betwe yet insists that the King here. And he is called a recognizes that in spite of the preaching of the no country on earth w half of the inhabitants inally Christian; none ciples of the Sermon on dominant in the natio
there is more crime the
that there are more suicides, more broken infidelity, more doubt of the Word of God, a leaders of religious the denying the deity of necessity for the atone
before.

Recently a questionna 500 ministers; among 42 per cent said they di
the virgin birth, and 6 they did not believe in
as the only means of sa
Such a one is a pess
he looks at the world;
optimist, for he knows what God said, in His come to pass. He look joy and hope and ex
Jesus said, "When ye s begin to come to pass lift up your heads, for y draweth night."

Oh, no; such a one is
He is an optimist, for facts he looks for the his Lord; and in Him
tions of all the world's the correction of all of the war broke out he a farm and doing Sund

in his own little valley

(Continued on P 1)

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

FOUNDED 1858

Organ of the Synod of N. C. for 70 Years

Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as Second Class Matter

Terms—The subscription price of the Standard is payable in advance. To ministers the price is $2.00 per year. To ministers' wives the price is $2.50 per year.

The mailing label shows the month and year to which the subscription is paid. Payment in advance is required.

Subscriptions may be made by money order, check, or registered letter, and currency by mail.

Change of Address—No charge is made for notices of change of address, but for all over fifty words the charge will be made.

Advertisements—Sent on application.

Kindly send us both old and new addresses when making a change.

Orders for advertising are made only upon the written request of the advertiser. The settlement in full must be made at the same time.

Advertising and Business Communications Should be Addressed to

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

Box 869

Charlotte, N. C.

EDITORIAL

SABBATH SCHOOL WORK OF OUR CHURCH

Membership Training School in session emphasized the importance of the school work by devoting two weeks of preparation instead of one week, as in former subjects.

The classroom work which was as thorough as that of the day school at home, has been addressed by those of reputation in discussion of such subjects.

From Montreat prevented our attention all that were delivered. Of those, however, by the nature of the subjects, it is thought to cause spontaneous comment there was one that stood out by its touch of human nature and stimulation of the development of the development of the child's mind.

At the address of Dr. W. T. Thompson, Seminary, Richmond, Va.

There have been heard an address that attracted more praise than this remarkable expressions of disappointment from mothers who complained that they did not know how to develop boys of the problem that he wisely forebore to discuss.

Some years ago, said, "He that loveth his son: but he that hasteneth him betimes."

At that age has outgrown such meth-ods, whether its products are an improvement on the past, we do not propose to de-

Change was made in our Sunday School by the last Assembly, by having the preparation of one, to conduct the work. Preparation work was given to R. E. in the direction of Religious Education to Rev. J. L. Fairley.

Reference emphasized this change by referring to the Sabbath School and to work, and in order to impress its importance, it was arranged to have it present on the platform.

On this side were the Synodical workmen, and on the other side was a staff of the Sunday School Publicity twelve in number.

For a woman, as introduced arose after being greeted with a handshake was thoughtfully suggested by the dean of the school.

There were twenty-two men and women in the audience, we were informed that there were yet other precincts to be heard

They realized that to this group of men was committed the training of the youth through the literature of the Sunday School. We must have considered the question of the youth equipped for this important

According to the opinion of specialists in this line of child-study, the early years are the most important for making a lasting impression upon men and women, yet how seldom do we apply to this important matter these laws of child development?

This is especially true in our Sabbath School work, where attention to this law is most needed.

When we look back and compare the present methods with the past, we can see wonderful progress—but the question is, Has it been progress in the right direction?

We are in danger of over-organization. We are too inclined to imagine that whatever was done in the past was wrong.

Then when you gather a force of so-called experts in any line they are tempted to try new methods, either to justify their employment, or to give a return for the money spent.

We understand from good authority that one of these experts proposes to eliminate the study of the Catechism from the studies of the Sunday School, and that this opinion is concurred in by several of these experts.

The story of the Presbyterian Church has been its youth trained in the Catechism—and now these ecclesiastical iconoclasts are at work and propose to take away that which has made us great.

May the good Lord who has been our keeper in years gone by, come to our help now, and bring back that custom in the family that has made the Presbyterian Church famous for her stand for the right.

MITCHELL COLLEGE AND HER NEW PRESIDENT

With the election of Mrs. W. B. Ramsay as president, Mitchell College at Statesville, N. C., has taken on a new lease of life and activity, and plans for the opening of the school on September 2, or just about a month from now, are being fully matured. The town of Statesville takes a big pride in this old school which has always been noted for scholastic training and character-building. It has brought to the community a reputation that extends far and wide.

The alumnae of Mitchell are to be found in many states, and particularly in North Carolina and the section around Iredell County. Statesville is one of the best towns in the Old North State, and we dare say the stability of the population of that place is much due to the culture and stamina which characterize the women of the town. They are artistic, urbane, and literary, and are supporters of the church and moral institutions. In every church in Statesville will be found women, mothers, wives, and daughters, who are graduates of Mitchell College, and who have received the impress of character from the godly and cultured men and women who have constituted the faculty of this school for girls, for two generations.

The newly-elected president is fully prepared to keep up the traditions for which the school has been noted. The writer of this article was for ten years pastor of Mrs. Ramsay who has already assumed her duties as head of Mitchell. In fact it was the writer's privilege to officiate at her marriage with her noble husband, Dr. W. B. Ramsay, who was for years the staunch friend of the pastor and the leading elder of the church at Hickory, N. C., always ready for every good work. The home of Dr. and Mrs. Ramsay was ever a refuge where the pastor knew he would be understood and receive the sympathy and co-operation he craved. One of the saddest offices the writer ever performed was to stand over his friend's casket and conduct the last rites. He well recalls how then he spoke of Jachin and Boaz, the strong pillars of the old temple, and declared that one of them had fallen in that church, and begged the younger men to rise to take the place now vacant. Hickory doesn't yet seem right with Dr. Ramsay out of his place.

And Mrs. Ramsay is carrying on, inspired by the blessed memories of her husband's and her father's homes, and furnished with gifts suited to the splendid opening afforded her as head of this girls' school. She also has a record of efficient service for the church which is a worthy superstructure for the fine background providence provided for her. She has had many years of school management at Due West and Hickory. Her work as a member of the local women's organization at Hickory revealed her leadership, and fitted her for the wider sphere of Synodical president of the women of North Carolina. Her distinguished service there for several terms won recognition and membership in the Assembly's Auxiliary Committee, which framed the entire system of our women's work. She was a pioneer with Miss Mamie McElwee of Statesville in the young people's conference of North Carolina, which was the premier for the present plan in all our southern synods. We may congratulate these two excellent women that providence has again arranged for their co-operation in Christian Education, since Miss McElwee is to be dean of Mitchell College under Mrs. Ramsay's presidency.

If personality, preparation and demonstrated efficiency mean anything at all, the future of Mitchell seems assured. Let Statesville and Concord Presbytery and the Synod of North Carolina uphold her president and the fine old school has many years of usefulness before her.

J. G. G.

PLAY THE GAME FAIRLY

The expression "Be a Sport," may be slang, yet it carries a meaning that all men understand and to the credit of man be it said, the appeal is rarely in vain.

Every man feels that he must play the game fairly, if he play at all, and it has become a point of honor, even among thieves to take what comes without whimpering.

While men act thus with their fellowmen, they act otherwise with God, and nothing is more common than to hear men whining over their hard luck and over the injustice of Providence, when they should know that every man reaps what he has sown.

In a certain sense God's providence is over all, and nothing comes to pass without His will. At the same time man is a free agent, and God never interferes with that freedom.

Man is living here under natural laws, and just as our Saviour in His miracles allowed natural law to work as far as it would, and never introduced the agency of divine power as long as it could be avoided, so in our lives, He never exercises divine power when the same end can be attained by the working of natural laws.

If for example, a man takes poison by mistake, he has to pay the penalty for nature's violated law. To escape that penalty would require the miraculous intervention of the Almighty.

No one would charge God with injustice because He does not work a miracle in such cases.

On the other hand, when a mother violates every law of health in the rearing of her child, and that child pays the penalty of violating nature's laws, by dying at an early age, nothing is more common than to hear complaints of the mysterious providence that took away one so young and thereby filled the mother's heart with bitterness.

A youth begins life with little mental power, and starts in business with no adequate preparation. He is doomed to failure from the beginning, because, according to the law of nature nothing can produce nothing; yet that man believes that because he has led a godly life, God ought to work a miracle in his behalf, and make him succeed.

Play the game fairly. We can only reap what we sow. If we sow the seed of disease, we may expect to reap disease.

If you bring disease upon yourself or your children, do not whine and blame God, but take your medicine cheerfully.

CONTRIBUTED

AN ATHENIAN UP-TO-DATE CLUB

Milton Bennett Lambdin

One day in the long ago, a man by the name of "Paul, the Apostle," dropped unannounced into Athens, as the herald of a religion that only a decade or so before had sprung up in Palestine, and was, in this brief while, making a considerable stir in the international life of the times. In fact, as it was reported in some quarters, "setting the world upside down."

Following closely upon his arrival, Paul was run up against by some of the intelligentsia of the city, of "Epicureans and Stoicks"; who immediately, in an off hand supercilious appraisal, stigmatized him as a "babbler," a vagrant "picker up of seed" of an unlisted and worthless hotchpotch philosophic-religious character that had found lodgment in his addle-pated brain.

Flaring the Pretentious Title

Piqued with a curiosity, however, to sample his melange of "pick ups," they hailed him off to Areopagus, or "Mars Hill," as a ready at hand forum for a public hearing, and with the curt demand, "May we know what this new doctrine whereof thou speakest, is? For thou bringest certain strange things to our ears." To get the dramatic setting of this epochal, history-making episode clearly before your mind's eye, suppose you stop right here and read the 17th chapter of Acts, and with special emphasis upon the 21st verse, where we are told of a peculiar kink in the routine of the community life, that "all the Athenians and strangers which were there, spent their time in nothing else but to tell or to hear some new thing."

A delightful diversion, it was evidently thought, in the interchange of random bits and tid-bits of local gossip; or, possibly, also, reports and rumors from afar, that like airy thistle down were blowing around from various points of the compass at home and abroad.

To serve our present purpose for pen and page, not to be taken, of course, in a serious or technical sense, you will, I trust, permit me to dub that ancient clearing house—of the classic capital of Attica, as "An Athenian Up-to-Date Club." And also, to make this group of quid nuncs, without an undue stretch of imagination, to pose as a type of that restless, mercurial, temperamentally ill-adjusted species of our fellow mortals, ever in evidence as the revolving centuries flight their course.

Coterie of News Faddists

Solomon, the Wise, had them in view in his own day, evidently, when he threw out the caution, Prov. 24:21, "Meddle not with them that are given to change."

And whom the levelheaded Paul likewise featured, as "ever learning, and never able to come to the knowledge of the truth." II Tim. 3:7.

Volatile creatures, aimlessly flitting about from one speculative vagary to another; and endlessly taking up in successive order with any plausible doctrinaire fakir who hikes down the pike. Particularly, if he happens to hail from the misty Orient, with "the latest thing out" in occult creed and cult to thrill and fill a jaded mind and vacant life.

"Ring Out the Old! Ring in the New!"

is their jubilant key-note cry.

Regardless, apparently, of the utility or value of the thing itself—only if it slogans the talismanic word, "new."

More than likely "new" only in the ignorance of its dupes. But old as the ages in the dying and passing out religions of heathenism.

This obsession for the "new," outstretches its octopus-like tentacles in every direction, or cardinal point, in life's activities.

Whether it be in the adoption of the "latest wrinkle" in fashions, sartorial or social.

The last word in the advocacy of "new fangled theories and methods in education."

A newer slant in ethics and psychology; along with a modernized twist in the interpretation of the inspired Word of God.

Judicial procedure takes a new cast as courts of law are cluttered up with a formidable array of so-called Psycho-Analytic and Psychiatrist "experts," et al., as paid per diem mercenary allies to unscrupulous lawyers to befuddle and bemuddle Judge and jury, when just ordinary everyday common sense is needed to get at the facts involved in the law and the evidence.

The "new" born biological science has its turn at the bat with its home run hit around the bases in the evolutionized and revolutionized dictum of the origin of the race, far afield from the Garden of Eden.

A newer squint is given to literature, music, art, amusements. While the sex relationship, with its companionate marriages, birth control, the family and home life as it bears upon the rearing of children, et omni genus, are made to appear in a "new" outfit of veneer to bring them all up to the new requirement of the times.

And thus it runs.

A Favorite Device

on the part of the enthusiasts of the "new" regime, to lay out cold and stark anyone who has the temerity to call in question the wisdom and the soundness of their postulates, is to administer a solar plexus blow in the retort, "I'd be ashamed to be an ignoramus"; "You are one the side line"; "Out of step with modern progress," ad infinitum, as he pivots on his heels, and leaves you, as he thinks, in humiliation and confusion as a down and out old fogey.

This much said as to the objections and tactics of the present day replica of the ancient "Up-to-Date-Club," let us play fair with them, of course, and admit most readily and heartily, that things are not to be decried and denied, per se, simply because they are of recent origin.

To do so, would be to play the ostrich stunt, as we burrow our figurative heads in the metaphysical dead sands of the past, and obstinately refuse to look up, and look out, with open eyes and alert minds, upon the caravan pageantry of the "up to date" worthwhile passing events.

The discoveries and applications in physical science, new inventions, a new and more serviceable political economy; with forward steps in sociology that make for the betterment of human life, both for the individual and the collective community, are to be recognized and made use of.

There was something "new"—decidedly so—when Columbus laid a "new world" at the threshold of the "old world."

The Immortals of '76 drew their swords and carved in heroic valor a "new model" of nationhood as they shed their blood in the maintenance of the inherent rights of man as man to the possession of life, liberty, happiness.

It was something "new under the sun" when the President of this Republic could talk thousands of miles away through the air with the ruler of another nation. Our present day of "the new" is—

The Heir of the Ages

And with no thought nor desire on the part of anyone to turn back the dial of time to the old order of things in its ignorance, superstition, cruelty, and contracted modes of living.

While all this, and more besides, may be admitted, it becomes one to stand upon his feet, keep his head secure upon his shoulders, and not to be catapulted from his poise, by reason of the jazz racket hullabaloo, clatter and chatter of the unthinking mass—unable to discriminate between the substantial "old" and the meretricious "new" in ideas, ideals, beliefs, methods and what not.

Nor should the panoramic display of a big crowd going along with the "up to date club," standardized upon the lines of a "personally conducted sightseeing tourist party," in their hilarious quest for the "new," have the slightest weight in tipping the equipoise of his inquiry as to the respective merits and demerits of the "old" and the "new" in any matter whatever at issue.

The Divine Master punctuates that popular appeal to the unthinking mind in this verbal picture contrast of the "Two Ways." With the "few" plodding along the "narrow" way that leads to "Life." And the "many" gaily swinging down the "Broad" way that ends up in "Destruction."

But to hark back to the "Athenian Up-to-Date Club" with its clamor for the "new."

Paul came along and gave it to them. An out and out "new thing," wonderfully new, marvellously new.

A Something New Undreamed of and undiscovered in the widest ranges of the speculative inquiries and teachings to the finest intellects that the world has ever produced.

The "One living and true God," the Lord of Heaven and Earth, in place of the "the unknown god" whom they ignorantly worshipped. A God whom they should seek, reverence, and serve for the solemn reason, "that he hath appointed a day in the which He will judge the world in righteousness" by Jesus Christ, whom He had raised from the dead. A "new thing" in its answer to the question of the ages, "How shall man be just with God?"

And, what did the members of that "Up-to-Date Club" do with the message of these tremendously vital and transcendentally "new" things that dealt with the true philosophy of life in this world, and the eternal destiny of the soul in the world to come? What did they do with it?

Just as it is done with the messages of the Gospel today, and all days.

Some rejected it in open derision and mockery. Others with a suave, but insincere promise, "we will hear thee again of this matter." With the elect "few" only who "believed," as they opened their hearts in the reception of the Truth as it is in Jesus. And—as we see it staged upon "Mar's Hill," nearly two thousand years ago, is this, that "the natural man," "the man after the flesh," ancient or modern, with his unre-generated human nature dominated by "the lust of the flesh, the lusts of the eyes, and the pride of life," however voluble and apparently sincere he may claim to be in his quest for the "new" and true in religion and morals, will accept that form of it only, as it fits in with the cravings and practices of his old, sin-stained, polluted carnal nature, that is "enmity against God." Rom. 8:7. "Men of the world, who have their portion in this life." And in the eager pursuit and "the hearing and the telling" of illusory and defiling things "that perish with the using," have no thought nor heart for—

"The Conclusion of the Whole Matter,"

The New Things That the Gospel Offers

The things that are essential for our salvation. To be "born again" as "a new man, which after God, is created in righteousness and true holiness." John 3:3. Eph. 4:24, Col. 3:10,

With such a miraculous and supernatural ture, that in fact, not in mere figure, we 1 creature by the almighty and regenerating And with—in the world to come, ten thousand times 1 has entered into our hearts to conceive.

A New and Superb Destin

To be glorified with a new and mystic "the new, new song" with "the great mu man can number." To live in association etc Lord, Jesus Christ, the redeemed Saint Elect Angels.

These are the "things," of which "the 1 been told," worth "the hearing and the But, more than that, gladly, gratefully, Dionysius and Damaris like, and "others make these things our own things, in the turous realization of them in the "new Jer where "all things are made new."

Washington, D. C.

ASSEMBLY'S HOME MISSIONS

The following table gives a comparative receipts of the Assembly's Home Missions for four months—April to July 31, 1929:

	1929	1928
Churches	$73,321.98	$68,969.62
Sunday Schools	1,715.61	404.92
Auxiliaries	4,746.32	5,191.58
Y. P. & C. E. Sec.	408.87
Individuals	2,707.69	1,084.77

Total received from

Living Donors—$82,900.47 $75,650.89 $90,647.37.

Amount apportioned by the General Assembly for Assembly's Home Missions, 1929—

Total amount received four months to August 1, 1929.

A. N. Shan

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION AND MISSIONS RELIEF—COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF RECEIPTS

April 1, 1929-July 31, 1929

	1928-29	1929-30
Churches	$28,126.27	$28,379.78
Sabbath Schools	1,958.22	2,001.01
Societies	5,150.87	4,125.53
Individuals	2,394.61	3,007.79
Miscellaneous	386.85	66.27

Total Donors — $38,016.82 $37,580.38 $90,647.37.

Net decrease, $436.44.

John Stitt

COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF MISSION RECEIPTS

Receipts Applicable to Regular Appointments

	July	1929
Churches	$54,868
Sunday Schools	1,151
Sunday Schools Objective	1,246
Societies	8,944
Societies Objective	126
Individuals	4,818

Legacies — $71,157

14

Total — $126,317

Four Month, April 1, to July 31, 1929,

Churches — $159,337

Sunday Schools — 4,305

Sunday Schools Objective — 9,923

Societies — 26,217

Societies Objective — 584

Individuals — 15,947

Legacies — 76

Total — $216,394

Cost Year 1928-29 —

Initial Appropriation 1929-30 —

Deficit March 31, 1929 — $174,650

Less Gifts for Same — 1,170

Nashville, Tenn., July 31, 1929.

Edwin F. Will

THE COMMON PROBLEM

The common problem—yours, mine, etc. Is not to fancy what were fair in life. Provided it could be; but finding first. What may be, then find how to make. Up to our means—a very different thing. My business is not to remake myself. But make the absolute best of what I have.

Robert Br

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Rev. Ernest Trice Thompson, D.D.

Lesson for August 18

THE RETURN FROM CAPTIVITY

Jer. 29:10-14; Ezra 1:1-11; Psalm 126:1-6. Print
Ezra 1:1-6; Ps. 126:1-6

For some time now we have been studying Judah's fortunes during the period of the exile, especially as reflected in the lives of Ezekiel, the prophet, and Daniel, the statesman. We come now to study Judah's return from captivity. We look at it from three different angles. First, from the viewpoint of Jeremiah who predicted the event. Second, from the standpoint of the contemporary historian who describes it. Third, from the standpoint of a psalmist who looks back at it through the mist of the years. We have anticipation, description, retrospect. And looking at the event from these three views there come to us some significant conclusions regarding the divine providence.

I. The Return: As Predicted by Jeremiah Jer. 29:1-14

To under this passage we need to remember that in 597 B. C. Nebuchadnezzar carried out of Jerusalem 10,000 of its people to be exiles in Babylonia. This deportation took place during the reign of Jehoiachin, king of Judah, and was a direct result of the rebellion of his predecessor on the throne, Jehoiakim. Among the ten thousand were all of the better class of the people, the aristocracy, the leaders of the army, the wisest of the statesmen, the skilled artisans. These people somehow could not think of their own exile as permanent while Jerusalem continued to stand. And since they did not think that it was possible for God to permit the destruction of His holy city, or the downfall of the state, or the captivity of the people, they naturally anticipated a speedy return to Palestine, and were encouraged by their prophets in this cherished delusion.

The result was that they did not settle down in Babylonia; they refused to adapt themselves to the act situation; they were not building wisely for the future.

News of their attitude came to Jeremiah, the one prophet in Jerusalem who had a true understanding of the workings of God's providence. He seized the first opportunity, therefore, to despatch a letter to the captives, the opportunity being a diplomatic mission sent to Zedekiah, King of Judah, to Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon.

With these facts in mind read Jer. 29:1-14. What advice did Jeremiah give to the captives in this letter? Was it wise advice? How did it compare with the advice of the false prophets? What did he have to say about their return? On what did he base his hopes? Were there any conditions to be fulfilled on the part of the people?

Jeremiah begins his letter with a bit of advice. The exiles were not to look for an immediate return to Palestine. They were not set loose to the country in which they found themselves. Instead of that they were to look on Babylonia as their home. They were to build themselves houses, and plant gardens, and marry and beget children, and give their children in marriage.

But Jeremiah goes even farther. Naturally the hearts of the exiles would be hot with hatred for the oppressor, and if they prayed with reference to him it would be for his downfall. But Jeremiah bade them to acquire houses and gardens, to forge links which would bind them to the new land, and make its interests identical with their own. They were to pray for its peace. For after all, says Jeremiah, your peace is bound up with theirs.

Jeremiah's advice, most wise under the circumstances, was based on his insight into the Divine providence, and was followed, therefore, by a prophecy (8-14). The prophets who told them that they would return shortly to Palestine, and, therefore, not to settle down in their present environment, were wrong—they were false prophets—they did not represent Jehovah. And yet it was true that God would ultimately carry the people back to the promised land. After 70 years God would visit them, and carry out His gracious promise to them (Cf. Jer. 24:4-7), and cause them to return to the land of their fathers. We might note here by the way that the return took place fifty years after the final destruction of Jerusalem, the seventy years dates from the earlier captivities. It was, however, a round number, rather than an exact number to be literally fulfilled. Jeremiah was wise enough to see that there was no hope for an immediate return. His hope, or rather his assurance of an ultimate return, was based on his insight into the divine purpose. For I know the thoughts that I think toward you, saith Jehovah, thoughts of peace, and not of evil, to give you hope in your latter end.

However, God's purpose was to be effected with their help. He had already pointed out that they were not to sit down idly in Babylonia and wait for the divine intervention. They were to give themselves faithfully to the ordinary routine of life, build homes, plant gardens, marry wives, beget children, work for the peace of the land in which they found themselves. But there was something more: "Ye shall call upon me, and ye shall go and pray unto me, and I will hearken unto you. And ye shall seek me, and find me, when ye shall search for me with all your heart."

Fortunately, the exiles took Jeremiah's advice. They did settle down in Babylonia. The process of adjustment was neither easy nor quick, but in due time it was accomplished. Some of them, as the archaeological records show, rose to power and financial influence in their adopted land, and to their thrift and skill the great banking houses of Egibi and Murashu bear eloquent witness. More than that they sought Jehovah. And it was in Babylonia that the last remnant of the idolatry which had clung to them through all their history were finally purged away. It was more than fortunate, for in 586 Nebuchadnezzar's army again besieged Jerusalem. This time the city was completely destroyed, and all the inhabitants except a few of the poorest class were transported likewise into the land of their conquerors. But the ground had been broken by their predecessors, and the Jews prospered in their new land.

Meanwhile interesting events were taking place in the political world. Beyond the borders of the great valley of the Tigris and Euphrates there was in process of formation a new empire. A man named Cyrus, born in an obscure province known as Anshan, or Anzan, in 559 B. C., became its king, and in 550 conqueror Astyages, king of the Median Empire, and annexed to himself this domain. He was by this time the chief ruler of Asia, and in it had only two rivals: far away in Asia Minor was Croesus, King of Lydia, and near at hand was Nabonidus, king of Babylon, a weak successor of the great Nebuchadnezzar. In 546 B. C. the kingdom of Lydia fell into the hands of Cyrus, and in 538 Babylon was likewise taken, as we have seen in our previous lessons. This brings us to the second part of our present lesson.

II. The Return: As Described by a Contemporary Historian—Ezra 1:1-11

Read Ezra 1:1-11. When did the return take place? What was its occasion? Note carefully the part played by Cyrus, Jeremiah, God. What was the substance of Cyrus' decree? Who took advantage of his offer? How many? Cf. 2:64. What help was given them, and by whom?

We note first the occasion of the return, and second its nature. First, the occasion 1:1-4. We read that in the first year of his reign, that is the first year after his conquest of Babylon, Cyrus issued a royal decree which contained four specifications: (1) a declaration that Jehovah, the God of Heaven, had given into his hands all the kingdoms of the earth; (2) the claim that Jehovah had commanded him to build him a house in Jerusalem (3) permission for all of Jehovah's people who wished, to return to their land, and build this house in Jerusalem; and (4) a request that those Jews who preferred to remain in Babylonia help their brethren who wished to return with money and with goods and with beasts, in addition to the free will offering that they might make for the temple.

The news contained in this proclamation, as Professor Rogers says, must have run through the empire like wildfire, and have imparted a shock comparable only to a bolt of lightning. The devout and God-fearing people who had heard or read the promises of the prophets may well have felt that dreams had become realities and prophecies fulfillments beyond compare.

To those of us, however, who live long after it seems a little strange that Cyrus a heathen king should have issued such a proclamation in the name of Jehovah, the God of Israel. And yet it is not so strange. Cyrus was a very wise ruler, and recent cuneiform inscriptions show us that he uniformly spoke the language of the people whom he conquered. Thus when he wrote to the Babylonians he said that their God, Marduk, had called him to be king, etc. We note, too, that in more than one inscription, Cyrus is represented as restoring to their original homes or temples the local gods brought by Nabonidus to Babylon; this would involve in some cases at least a restoration of the native shrines. More than that there has recently been discovered a proclamation which Cyrus issued when he first ascended the throne of Babylon. In it he says that Merodach grants permission to all the exiles in Babylon to return to their homes with their gods, and asks them to pray for him. It thus appears that the permission which Cyrus gave to the Jews to return to their native land was only part of a wider permission granted to all the subject people in the land.

Why did Cyrus grant this permission to the people whom the Babylonians had carried captive? Two motives probably carried weight with him. First, political considerations. It was an easy and wise way in which to win the affections of the different elements of his new empire. It had been the Assyrian and Babylonian policy to deport conquered people, and to replace them by loyal subjects from other parts of the empire. It became the policy of Cyrus and his successors to encourage each subject race to retain its ancestral faith and to retain its local customs in its own home. And the Persians were more successful than previous empires in holding the loyalty of conquered peoples. Second, religious considerations. As Doctor Foakes-Jackson has said: The tone of his proclamation to his new subjects, the proclamation referred to above, is distinctly religious, and is in favor of the idea that the conqueror believed himself an appointed instrument in the hands of God. This motive would undoubtedly be increased, if some of the prophecies of the Old Testament were brought to his attention, as no doubt they were, probably by the statesman, Daniel. Cf. Is. 44:28, 45:1, 12, 13; Jer. 29:10; 25:11.

And so the writer of the book of Ezra seeing a mere secular historian would have done so stirred up the spirit of Cyrus, King of Persia, he made a proclamation, etc.

We come now to the return itself. The decree gave the Jews permission to return. It was any compulsion upon them to do so. We must remember that the Jews in Babylonia were now divided into classes. (1) There were those who had been captive in 597 B. C. They had been in Babylonia almost 70 years and all were now old. Some would be too old for the long, hard journey, and would face the struggle need to gain a foothold in the land of which they could have only shadowy memories. There were those carried away in 586, who had been in Babylonia for about 50 years. In this class had founded homes, earned a livelihood, learned the language, and were in many respects Babylonians. These were those, the largest class, who had been born in Babylonia of Jewish parents. They knew Palestine by hearsay, and if they had met with success in Palestine would hardly be eager to go into a strange land where much their fathers had loved it. The result is not surprising, that only a small part of the Jews relatively chose to take advantage of Cyrus' decree. According to the numbers given in Chapter 2, 43,360 people, 7,337 servants, 200 singers, etc. These were they, however, whom the spirit of Jehovah stirred to go up to build the house of Jehovah.

The Jews who did not go responded to the call and willingly contributed to the expenses of the expedition, and towards its equipment. Cyrus showed his favor by turning over to them the sacred vessels of the temple. They were put into the hands of the leader of the expedition. So the party started on their long journey to their ancestral home. The journey took about four months.

The sequel we will study next week. We note this. It wasn't as easy to begin the return as again in Palestine as some of the Jews had thought. The colony had some very sore trials, and again it almost succumbed. It was in such outwardly the circumstances were most discouraging. An unknown psalmist wrote the beautiful lyrics which closes our study.

III. The Return: As Viewed in Retrospect—An Unknown Psalmist

The Psalm (126) is divided into three parts. 1. Joy for past blessings, 1-3. The Psalmist looks back to the time of the return. He says when Jehovah brought us back to Zion we were like those that dream. It seemed to good to be true. But if we were really awake. Then when the Lord brought us upon us we were full of joyous laughter and other nations remarked that our God had done great things for us, and indeed, says the singer, he was writing in a period of general desolation. The Lord has done great things for us, and we are glad.

2. A Prayer for Present Needs, verse 4. This implies a background of disappointed hopes. We had come after the return, but the remembrance of our past leads to the confident prayer that Jehovah will again: Turn again our captivity, O Jehovah, as the streams in the South. The streams in the South are dry in the summer, but winter rain brings them water, and made the people rejoice. "Our God," says the Psalmist, "has been long and very patient with our fortunes hereafter be as the winter rain, and life giving."

3. Faith in the future, 5-6. The Psalmist sings a hymn with an expression of complete faith. "That they sow in tears shall reap in joy. They shall go forth and weepeth, bearing seed for sowing, and shall come again with joy, bringing his sheaves." As Professor Shelton writes in the Abinaty: "So it ever is with God's Kingdom. Our undertakings which at first seemed hopeless, begun under pressing troubles, end in achievement. It has been thought that these undertakings of the people who returned to their native land, the task of rebuilding the land, the crop rotation again when there was but little seed to keep their children from hunger; never that they might live another year they died, and while the children cried for bread they sowed in the ground that it might die and live again. The next harvest which would bring joy comes in the coming year. So the father sowed in tears, and the ground with his tears, but at harvest time again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves."

The Lesson Applied

As already indicated we have here a study of the Divine Providence. We look at it from God's side. God had a purpose for Israel from captivity was a part of that plan. Cf. Jer. 29:10. He carried it out not by a divine natural power, but through the ordinary means of nature. Cyrus was his chief agent, and yet Cyrus, in natural ways, he was not a worshipper of Jehovah. Israel, he was moved by natural human motives in all that he did. Yet it was God who in fact (Ez. 1:1), it was God who brought about the return to Zion (Ps. 126:1). Does God still direct the affairs of nations? What evidence is there of His providence in the history of America? Do the nations? What purpose would you say for America? What part would He have in the affairs of the World? Does His pro-govern the church? What is the practical belief? How does this providence display miracles? Always?

an's side. Is God's providence carried out of man? In other words, are God's purposes out the co-operation of man? What can we carry out God's purpose in our own day? makes some suggestions.

the routine of life. It is true in our day just in Jeremiah's day that if we are to carry out our purpose we must carry out faithfully the routine of life. We must build and marry. Lies. Does the man serve God who is faith-fulness? The woman who is faithful to her home? Why? Is this enough? Jeremiah did He realized that a man must keep his heart ; that as he went about the routine of life seek the Lord. If we would help forward for the world then let us do the daily work given us to do, well, but at the same time er: "Ye shall call upon me, and ye shall go to me, and I will hearken unto you. And ye and find me, when ye shall search for me heart."

challenges of life. It was a great challenge those Jews, successful in the land of their part their lives anew in Palestine. As we routine of life challenges still come to us e work of the kingdom. What are some of that come to us regarding the Kingdom What are some of the challenges that come iduals? We might note, by the way, that there are always only a relatively few that e challenge, but with those few lie the kingdom of God. Most still prefer the busi-pleasure of Babylon.

the disappointments of life. God's providence s run smoothly for us as individuals or for is a whole. Many times we are tempted to ged. How shall we meet such times? As id: rejoice in all that God has done for us ay confidently that we may have the grace our present needs, have faith in the future: show in tears shall reap in joy. He that id weepeth, bearing seed for sowing, shall again with joy, bringing his sheaves with

Men-of-the-Church

Men's Work in the United States

E. PURCELL, D.D., Executive Secretary
HENRY GRADY BUILDING
ATLANTA, GEORGIA

L. FAIRLY, D.D., Wilmington, N. C., Charge of Men-of-the-Church Department

for the September Program will be sent in August 14th—at week late.—Ed.)

THE YEAR HAS BEEN MARKED BY DEFINITE DEVELOPMENTS IN THE MEN'S WORK OF OUR CHURCH

The Synod's Committees

years of working and waiting, we have at a group of men at the head of the Synod's who have an intelligent grasp of Men's their own church and in the church at en have shown a real interest in the pro- their Synods.

these men were appointed at the meeting fall. They, therefore, have not been able to work very far in such a short time. The hat interested and active men are at the Committees.

time in the promotion of the work, these the various Synods have had meetings and planned the work. One obstacle has been these Committees had no money. This is remedied by the Synods providing some by the Department of Men's Work help- ittees to meet.

nan are now building the Committees in esbyteries of their Synods. Dozens of ve had Chairmen of the Committee on ho showed practically no interest in the his is being gradually remedied and within ar two, there ought to be throughout the Southern Presbyterian Church, not only terested and intelligent Chairmen of the mtees, but also a group of men at the head ou Presbyteries' Committees, who will be a he promotion of the work.

Small Church Organized and Working

gen a great deal of intensive thought and all church. We have been doing this for ars. This has been necessary because the as usually conceded its defeat in Men's efore, had to show by a certain number of small churches how this work could be put on in that type of church.

After this was done, we then had the problem of writing the literature on the small church. We have made what we believe to be a good beginning with this. After more than a year of study and discussion between a number of men, we issued a pamphlet called "The Small Church Organized and Working According to the Plan and Program of the Men-of-the-Church." This piece of literature was rewritten not less than three times by different men. Every effort was made to put into it something practical about the small church.

We are gratified at the reception which our ideas have received. We can point to small churches laboring under most adverse conditions which have shown the most remarkable development of their men. We believe that one of the most fruitful fields in the whole sphere of Men's Work is to be found in the small church.

Mr. J. A. Naff, who has been associated with this Department for nearly two years now, has given much of his time and thought to this development.

We are recommending that a group of churches served by one pastor be grouped in one organization. We have a number of such pastorates operating now under this plan. We are studying these for ideas for the other small churches.

3. The Proof of the Constructive Value of the Plan and Program of The Men-of-the-Church

We made during the year a very careful survey of the reports of a large number of churches using the plan and program of the Men-of-the-Church and those using some plan of their own. There are, of course, many more churches using the Men-of-the-Church than any independent plan. Our consideration of these reports certainly showed that wherever the Men-of-the-Church was given even a reasonable chance by pastor and men that its results were greater in the life of the local church, as well as in the life of the church at large. Organizations following the Men-of-the-Church showed a larger proportion of definite things done. They also showed a more constructive attitude toward the life and work of our Church.

The organizations using some plan and program of their own in a number of cases show some definite development. However, the results are usually in just one line. They lack the breadth of conception which the Men-of-the-Church gives, and they also lack in actual results per active member. Many of these churches are using some part of the plan and program of the Men-of-the-Church, but if they could grasp the essential principles and apply them in their churches, they would show a much larger development.

SYNOD OF ALABAMA

A Committee of Synod on Men's Work was not set up in Alabama Synod until November, 1928. The Men's Work Committee is now a Sub-committee of Synod's Work Committee. The Committee on Men's Work met immediately after Synod and outlined in a general way some plans for the future. The Committee met again in Montgomery and agreed on some policies. Since then we have studied the whole plan of Men's Work, especially the Assembly's plan, and are now ready to go into the Presbyteries during the months of May and June. We are having appointed at the April meetings of Presbyteries, Committees on Men's Work, through which we propose to work into the Presbyteries. With the aid of Dr. Purcell and Mr. Naff, we are planning to have several schools on Men's Work in the different Presbyteries, together with conferences with the leaders and chairmen of Committees. There have been a number of groups of the Men-of-the-Church in the larger churches of the Synod, but they have not functioned properly here-tofore, due largely to a lack of understanding as to just the kind of work the men of the church are to do as separate groups. Our first task has been to sell the Assembly's plan and program. We believe now that we are in a position to do this and we feel very hopeful of encouraging results in the near future.—D. W. Hollingsworth, Chairman Synod's Committee.
Florence, Ala.

SYNOD OF FLORIDA

A fair number of local organizations are functioning in the Synod of Florida. A number of good Presbyterian meetings have been held. The Chairman appointed at the last meeting of Synod is studying his situation and is lining up forces for the promotion of the work. Rev. E. G. Tomkinson, of High Springs, Florida, is Chairman of the Synod's Committee on Men's Work.

SYNOD OF GEORGIA

The Committee on Men's Work in the Synod of Georgia is undergoing a period of reconstruction and reorganization. The present Chairman was appointed at the last meeting of the Synod. Several months were spent in securing such information as was available as to activities of recent years, and in making a hurried survey of the field. Only within recent weeks has it been possible to secure enough information to intelligently plan for the future. On March 28th the Synod's Chairman called a meeting of the Chairmen of the Committees of the seven Presbyteries. The meeting was held in Doctor Purcell's office. Mr. J. A. Naff met with those present and rendered valuable aid in outlining the plans for the year. The main features of these plans are outlined below.

1. The re-organization of the Synod's committee so that it shall be constituted by the seven Presbyteries' Chairmen with three members at large.

2. The holding of a series of one day conferences on Men's Work in Macon, Augusta, Athens, Cherokee and Atlanta Presbyteries on the five consecutive days from September 16 to 20, 1929. These meetings to be held in the most accessible place in the Presbytery and to be promoted by the Men's Work Committee of the Presbytery with the co-operation of the Synod's Committee. It is hoped that an afternoon and evening session can be held with a supper hour between.

3. Sponsoring three or four Training Schools of three days duration in such places as they may be desired.

4. The holding of a popular meeting on Men's Work at the meeting of Synod, preferably at an evening session.

5. The securing of at least five men from each Presbytery to attend the Montreat Conference on Men's Work, August 15 to 20, 1929.

6. In financing the promotion of the Men's Work carried on under the direction of the Synod's Committee, the seven Home Mission Committees of the Presbyteries are being requested to appropriate a fund of $25.00 each and the Synod's Work Committee the same sum, making a total of $200. Such responses as have been received seem to indicate that this response will be secured from at least a majority of the Presbyteries.

Thomasville, Ga.

Marshall Woodson,
Chairman Synod's Committee,

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY

Within the last year the Synod has shown a definite interest in the development of its men. West Lexington Presbytery held a Conference with 85 to 90 men present. Two Training Schools have been held in Louisville Presbytery in the City of Louisville. The last one was in February of this year, and showed very great interest on the part of a number of churches. Mr. J. A. Naff is giving approximately three weeks of his time this spring to the development within Louisville Presbytery. The Synod has furnished some money for the promotion of the work, and definite plans are under way. Mr. Owen R. Mann, of Louisville, Ky., is Chairman of the Committee on Men's Work.

MISSIONS IN EUROPE

Prof. Thomas W. Lingle, Ph.D.

(From the United Presbyterian)

Permission was granted us by Davidson College, Davidson, N. C., to be absent during the second semester of the college year, in order that we might go on the trail of ancient history. Before sailing we communicated with Dr. W. B. Anderson in Philadelphia, secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions, with reference to seeing something of the missionaries and their work in Egypt. Southern Presbyterians, as my wife and I are, and having a personal interest in the work of missionaries in various lands, we could not think of going to Egypt without seeing something of the notable work of the United Presbyterians, and we had a desire to know more of them personally and see them at their work.

Sailing from New York late in January, our first stop and destination was Alexandria, where we arrived February 14. In brief, we spent two days in Alexandria, three in Tanta (the third city of Egypt), thirteen in Cairo, one day in Minia (the fourth city in size), six days in Assiut, and a week in Luxor, besides other stops where there were no missionaries. At these six mission centers we had the pleasure of meeting all the evangelists, teachers, and physicians in residence at the time; we enjoyed their hospitality, which was extended to us in a larger or lesser degree according to circumstances; attended religious services in Arabic; visited schools, colleges, and hospitals; made a number of talks through interpreters; while I preached several times to English-speaking audiences. The missionaries were the occasion of our being received into the homes of a number of Egyptians, both Christians and Moslems. The approach of a missionary seemed as if by magic to open the doors of Egyptian homes both to him and to his foreign friends. No more conclusive evidence could be furnished of the esteem in which these missionaries are held by native Egyptians of all classes, in city and peasant village, by Moslems and Christians, Copts and Evangelicals.

The great masses of the people of Egypt live in peasant villages, built of sundried brick made of Nile mud. Cairo and Alexandria are merely isolated incidents, so far as the masses of Egypt are concerned, and in these two cities only do any considerable number of foreigners reside. The great majority of the Egyptians live on a very low economic level, crowded at the rate of about 1500 human beings per square mile of arable land for the entire country, and perhaps an equal number of animals of various kinds. Probably a public school system involving free and compulsory attendance for all children will long be a dream merely, in spite of the statement on the subject in the national constitution. No Government in the world has ever laid on its people such a tax burden for school purposes, in proportion to the average means of the people, as would be required in Egypt in order to have free schools with compulsory attendance. Such Government schools as have been established are mostly for boys, with

(Continued on page 10)

WEST VIRGINIA

tery of Bluestone will meet in the First Jamson, W. Va., on September 16, 1929,
p. m.

Presbytery will meet in its regular fall ersons, W. Va., on September 10, 1929, at
m. The churches are expected to send up the State of Religion.

W. A. Benfield, S. C.

Presbytery—The Home Missions Community Vacation Bible Schools conducted in churches and missions under its con-

Miss Alice Ludwig, missionary at Maxine, successful Daily Vacation Bible School at total enrollment was 72. Average attend-ment every day 43. Total cost $18.66. Of-
She was assisted by one paid helper and worker.

Miss Annie L. Spencer, missionary, assistant, G. S. Bowman, Mrs. Trammel, Mrs.
Clara Bias, conducted a D. V. B. S. at this days. The Lathem system was used in a with great success. Enrollment 54.
Attendance 49.

Sharples—Miss Annie L. Spencer, missionary, conducted a D. V. B. S. at this place for one week. Enrollment 52. Average attendance 45. The modified Lathem method was used. Miss Spencer had as assistants, Rev. G. S. Bowman, Miss Howard and Miss Ziegler.

Clothier—Miss Annie L. Spencer, missionary, held a very successful D. V. B. S. at this church. She used the modified Lathem system. Enrollment 65. Average attendance 55. Miss Spencer had as assistants, Mrs. Blake, Miss Brookie Miller and Rev. G. S. Bowman.

Bell—Mr. M. O. Summers, a student of Union Seminary and Miss Nona Joyce held a D. V. B. S. here for ten days that was a great success. They used the modified Lathem system. Enrollment 55. Average attendance 40. Four of the ladies of the Bell Church assisted in the teaching.

Nitro—Miss Ruby Sprinkle director of Religious Education of the Synod of West Virginia and Mr.
Payne Brown, a student of Union Seminary with the assistance of four ladies from the St. Albans and Nitro churches conducted a very successful D. V. B. S. at this place for ten days. The enrollment was 50 and the average attendance was 45.

Buffalo—Miss Ruby Sprinkle is at present conducting a D. V. B. S. at this church. The enrollment is 80. The superintendent of Home Missions, Rev. C. R.
Garrison, visited this school last week and was much pleased with the fine work being accomplished there.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Central Church of Washington—Our pastor, Rev.
Jas. H. Taylor made five addresses at Massanetta, one on each of the five chapters of James. As he was absent Sunday, July 21, Rev. Dr. William Cumming, of Baltimore, preached for us in the morning besides giving the Men's Bible Class a most helpful talk on the first twelve verses of Ezekiel, Chap. 47. At night Rev. John A.
Bowman, of Waterford, Va., occupied the pulpit.

Tuesday night, July 23, the lecture room was packed with the "commencement" of the D. V. B. S. The way the long lines of little folks stood up and sang and recited Scripture verses was a great testimony to the fidelity and success of their teachers. Besides this head and heart work, their handiwork was displayed on three long tables, and the walls were decorated with maps they had drawn. The enrollment was over 100 (eleven of whom were from Roman Catholic families), with an average attendance of 80.

Yesterday, July 28, the communion was observed in the morning and at night, in the lecture room, the delegates to the Massanetta Conference made their reports, as is customary in this church. A. H.

OBITUARIES

REV. V. R. GASTON

Resolutions of respect to the memory of Rev. Virgil R. Gaston, adopted by the Session of Bethesda Church,
July 14, 1929.

Whereas it has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from our midst our beloved pastor, Rev. V. R. Gaston, who for the past fifteen years has broken the Bread of Life to this congregation, and has at all times proven a faithful and consecrated minister and pastor in our church, and a true and loyal neighbor and citizen.

Therefore, be it resolved:

First, that in his death this church has sustained the loss of a faithful pastor and a good shepherd, whose fellowship was an inspiration and a pleasure to enjoy—that we bear testimony to his many virtues, to his glowing faith and beautiful Christian life.

Second, that we also bear tribute to his fidelity of every trust, and his zeal and consecration in the Master's service, not only as His minister, but also as a pastor, and a leader in all good works in the interest and welfare of his fellowmen. Faithful and consecrated as he was as a minister and pastor he at all times stressed the dignity of manhood and citizenship. It might well be said of him:

"His life was gentle and his heart sincere,

And in him the elements were so mixed,

That all the world might stand up and say:

"This was a man! Taking him all in all,

We shall not see the like of him
again."

Third, that a copy of this resolution be entered on our sessional records, and a copy sent to his widow, and that a copy be published in the Presbyterian Standard.

Respectfully submitted,

Dan I. McKeithen.

Henry McCoy Blue.

J. Talbo Johnson, Committee.

Aberdeen, N. C.

MRS. DAISY DOUGLAS
HENDERSON

In memory of Mrs. Daisy Douglas Henderson, born June 27, 1875, passed from life through sleep, into life eternal in the early morning of May 18, 1929.

Prayer to her meant close communion with her Lord and from this source she obtained strength to minister to the needs of her family and friends, and all in need, especially to those in foreign lands in need of knowledge of the Saviour.

She possessed a rich vein of humor which brought cheerfulness to herself and others through many weary hours, but her heart's desire was that she might give loving, helpful service.

When she realized her failing bodily strength, her prayer for removal to the home where "His servants shall serve Him" was answered so quickly that her fellow members of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Presbyterian Church are left wondering now we shall be enabled to close up the ranks and carry on the work without her.

Respectfully submitted,

Mrs. Walter Fleming.

Mrs. E. A. Skillman.

Mrs. Carl Moore.

Warrenton, N. C.

MRS. S. D. FERRELL

On Wednesday morning, June 26, 1929, at 9:30, Mrs. Sarah Shepard Ferrell, wife of the late Samuel D. Ferrell, was called to her reward. Her husband preceded her to the grave by just one year. Deceased was 81 years old, having spent the majority of her lifetime in the community only two miles southwest of Kenansville.

The funeral services were held from the home at 4:00 o'clock on Thursday, June 27th, and interment at the family burying ground directly in front of the home. Reverend J. W. Miller, pastor of the local Presbyterian Church, assisted by Rev. N. P. Edens of the M. E. Church, conducted the services.

Mrs. Ferrell is survived by two daughters, Mesdames Clarence Quinn and Kenneth Aldridge, also one son,
Mr. Lloyd Ferrell, all of this place.

"To know her was to love her," and this was proven by the number of friends that attended the burial, also the lovely floral offerings.

Mrs. N. B. Boney.

Kenansville, N. C.

"Why didn't you tell us sooner?"

The words came sad and low;

"Oh ye, who knew the Gospel truths,

Why didn't you let us know?

The Saviour died for all the world,

He died to save from woe,

But we never heard the story;

Why didn't you let us know?

"O soul, redeemed by Jesus,

Think what your Lord hath done.

He came to earth and suffered,

And died for everyone.

He expected you to tell it

As on your way you go;

Will you not send us teachers?

Will you not let us know?

Grace P. Turnbull.

"THE CHURCH OF GOOD FRIENDS"

The Lansing Presbyterian Church

seeking another name for Presbyterian Church, a late name would be "The Good Friends." Since this taken the doors and win-ten put in and practically rior is finished. On Sep-dedication service will dition to the members of ty having a part the Rev.
Gillespie and B. R. Lacy will the principal addresses.
few more friends just

now. It will take $1,500.00 to clear this building of debt. Of this amount $500 has been pledged, and will be paid when $1,000 is gotten. This imposing edifice has cost less than $10,000. You see we make your money go a long ways. So please come to our rescue now as we have some very pressing obligations. Send remittance to Dr. E. E.
Gillespie, Treasurer, Greensboro, N. C., or to Rev. R. H. Stone, Jefferson, N. C., designating it for the Lansing Church.
Thank you! Come up and help us dedicate.—Ashe Presbyterian.

Chautauqua at Low Gap, Ashe County, N. C.

MISSIONS IN EUROPE

(Continued from page 7)

only scattering ones for girls. The best statistics available indicate that only about six Moslem women in a thousand can even read and write—a situation that gives no promise of rapid improvement, except as aided by the splendid schools for girls maintained by the United Presbyterians and their evangelical native associates in the work. Surely no finer service could be rendered than that now being done by the mission schools for the youth of Egypt, both boys and girls.

In Egypt, as in other Oriental lands, many people are afflicted with total or partial blindness. After much observation in villages, as in city streets and alleys, and seeing swarms of flies on the filthy faces of little children, we wonder that so many people can see at all. The human eye surely must be a vigorous organ to survive this plague, which has probably been most serious in this land since the day when Moses called down the plague of flies upon Egypt. Further, diseases of any kind afflict people who live on such a low economic plane. Infant mortality is appalling, while the mothers are too often dragged down with the children. The medical forces of the United Presbyterians seem to be called to the kingdom for just such an hour as this.

After all these decades of evangelistic work, a native evangelical Church has been raised up and organized into a synod; a theological school with more than 20 students in carrying on; and there are many self-supporting churches with native pastors, some of whom are now of the second generation. But the work of evangelism, especially in a 1000 villages that have never been touched by the gospel, will long demand the services of missionary evangelists. Right here comes the tragedy of the situation. The contributions of the home church have become such as to necessitate retraction and withdrawal of missionaries of large and successful experience in the work. Of several that might be mentioned I shall name only Rev. and Mrs. S. A. Work of Luxor. For 24 years they have labored in Egypt. They are masters of the difficult Arabic language, they love the people and the work, they have the gift of song, and after all these years they go at the work with the zeal and energy of youth. For years they have gone up and down the Nile in their house-boat, have gone from the boat into the villages and towns, they have lived the life of the people, and in a most devoted and efficient manner they have borne witness for the Master. The withdrawal of such workers as these from the field, with their fine spiritual qualities, their personal attainments, and their zest for the work, is nothing short of tragedy. Merely visitors as we have been, we hope and pray that a man or woman of means in the home land may rise up, and as an individual send such efficient and devoted workers back to their tasks.

We saw the Jamisons in their evangelistic work among the patients of the hospitals in Tanta, and accompanied them in some of their followup work in distant villages whence former patients had come to the hospital and had heard the gospel message. In a strictly Moslem village, where no missionary had ever been before, and where we could feel the cool and hostile atmosphere created by the coming of foreigners, we were impressed with the tact and skill by which the Jamisons won the people, changed coldness into confidence and friendship, and soon had all of us sharing the hospitality of some of these Moslem homes, partaking of refreshments in them, and having us and the men, women, children and animals, photographed together. To accomplish such a feat requires the grace of God and a good many other graces, humanly speaking.

As we continue our journey into Iraq and Persia on the trail of ancient history, we shall long have memories of the Jamisons in the hospital evangelism, of Miss Ruth M. Williamson and the charm of her presence in the Tanta kindergarten work, of Dr. C. P. Russell, Miss Anna B. Criswell, and Miss Davida M. Finney counseling and planning with their associates and colleagues in the educational work of Assiut, of Miss Ida Whiteside and other friends in their work in Luxor, of the splendid group of workers in Alexandria, Cairo, and Minia, and of all those engaged in the medical, educational, and evangelistic work in Tanta and elsewhere. We pray that the United Presbyterians in the home land may catch a vision of the zeal and devotion of their representatives in the work in Egypt, and that the great Head of the Church may bestow rich blessings upon His devoted servants who are so zealously and harmoniously laboring for the advancement of His kingdom in this ancient land where so many millions of our fellowmen are in direst need of what Christ alone can give.

Mt. Carmel, Palestine, April 4, 1929.

To know the difference of right and wrong, speaks our wisdom; to observe that difference, speaks our goodness.—Benjamin Whichcote.

So live that every thought and deed
May hold within itself the seed
Of future good and future need.—Milton.

Brother, thou hast possibility in thee for much: the possibility of writing on the eternal skies the record of a heroic life.—Carlyle.

A PREACHER WANTED

The following questionnaire was received the past week by Dr. David H. Scanlon, Minister at the First Presbyterian Church, Durham, N. C., regarding a brother minister of the Synod of North Carolina:

1. How old is he and is he married or single?
2. How many children has he and what are their ages?
3. Are any of his children unruly or uncontrollable?
4. Does his wife take active part in church work?
5. How long has he been preaching?
6. What churches has he served and where?
7. Give name of Clerk of Session or some prominent member in each church served.
8. Where was he educated? Is he a D.D.?
9. Is he orthodox?
10. Has he any oratorical ability?
11. Does he speak fluently or does he hesitate? Has he any impediment in his speech?
12. Does he read sermons or confine himself closely to his manuscript?
13. Is he a deep doctrinal, logical preacher and teacher or of the shallow popular type?
14. What is his height, weight, build? Portly or slender?
15. Has he a strong personality and is he a graceful speaker?
16. How is he socially? Does he make friends?
17. Is he a good Pastor?
18. Is he studious or of the opinion little preparation is necessary for his people?
19. Is he deeply spiritual?
20. Is he a good Sunday School man?
21. Is he level headed, cautious and tactful?
22. Any musical talent in family?
23. Is he wide awake, aggressive and progressive?
24. How long has he served present charge and what salary does he receive?
25. Are there any invalids in family?
26. Why does he desire a change?
27. Has he any deformity or physical defect?

Doctor Scanlon's reply follows:

Dear Brother:

I have answered your enclosed questionnaire as best I could, and return herewith. If I can serve you further in this matter, please feel free to call on me. I would suggest, however, that I would be in a better position to advise you as to this brother's adaptability to your needs if I had information on the following points covered by the questionnaire found below; or if you prefer, you may fill out same and enclose to the Brother in question, as it may assist him in arriving at his duty in the matter:

1. Why did your last Pastor leave?
2. Has there ever been any dissension in your church?
3. What salary do you pay, and is it paid promptly?
4. Are your members faithful in attending public worship as a whole?
5. If not, what per cent are "absent spirits"?
6. How is the mid-week prayer service patronized?
7. What per cent of your Elders and Deacons lead in prayer?
8. Is the congregation responsive to the Pastor's leadership?
9. How many tithers in your church?
10. Do the people enjoy strong sermons on stewardship and missions?
11. Are the members cautious and tactful in dealing with the Pastor?
12. What is the average height and build of the congregation?
13. Are they generally of pleasing personality?
14. Do they prefer deep doctrinal sermons, or a spiritual, helpful, livable gospel?
15. Will the people as a whole throw themselves zealously into soul-winning with the Pastor?
16. How many Pastors have you had, and the length of each pastorate?
17. Are there any chronic kickers in the Church?
18. Does the Session ever discipline members for drunkenness, gossip, dishonesty, or the neglect of such Christian duties as church attendance, forgotten family altars, etc.
19. What proportion of your church offerings go to Missions, and what do you spend on your own church?
20. Would you recommend your church as an attractive and inviting field for a Pastor?
21. Are the people willing to follow their Pastor or are they inclined to let him go alone?
22. Do the parents accompany their children to Sunday School or, do they send them?
23. Do your people have family pews in church, or do the children go home after Sunday School?
24. Do your people criticize their Pastor before their children or do they pray for him with them?
25. What constructive work has your church ever done in your community?
26. How many souls has your membership led to Christ since your church has been without a Pastor?
27. What special opportunities does your church offer for the investment of a Minister's life above that of other churches?

Yours fraternally,
David H. Scanlon.

WHY THE PENSION PLAN SHOULD BE APPROVED

Henry H. Sweets, Secretary

Three Churches in the United States are in process of establishing adequate pension plans—The United Presbyterian Church of the Disciples, and the Presbyterian Church of the United States (Southern).

While there are many minor ways in which the pension plans of Churches and Associations differ, the plan of these three, which had the light of experience of the others, are almost identical.

The following article by Dr. R. W. Burt, Secretary of the Board of Ministerial Pensions of the United Church of North America, is applicable to our own Church.

"The churches should approve the Pension Plan because they owe it to their ministers. The call to the ministry is a lifetime call service, and implies a lifetime support. But the salary of our ministers is at best a living wage for the years of active service, and is insufficient for years of disability or retirement for his dependent ones when the minister of this our own Church has had the Ministerial Annuity Funds to help provide for its disabled workers and the widows and orphans. But the present-day conditions and needs, hence the need for a Pension Fund.

It is based upon the principle that the ministerial churches he serves should unite in providing years of service for the retirement period, responsibility to provide for him when he may not rest alone upon the last church he served each one that has shared in his service in the ministry.

In the business and industrial world the principle is becoming very generally recognized and cannot be less fair in recognizing its obligations to pensions received by our ministers under the same conditions as they have earned their annual salaries.

When the Fund becomes operative our ministers will be given a new sense of independence and anxiety as to their own future and for their families. It should bring to our churches an added respect in having made an adequate provision for those who have served them. The business world has more respect for the Church, for its failure to adequately provide for its aged ministers has been to its discredit.

Young men considering the ministry as their life work will be helped in their decision by the Pension Plan. quote the statements of two leading ministers:

"No young man enters the ministry for the sake of money. It would solve many doubts in his choosing a calling if he could feel that he and his family would be provided for during the period of helplessness. In going to colleges as I do, I should like to be able to promise this in my appeal to young men to enter the Gospel ministry."—Rev. John M. Van Dine, D.D., LL.D., Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky.

"The Pension Fund is a vital need of the Church. It is an expression of gratitude for the faithful ministers of Christ; an act of justice to those who have toiled hard for small wages and a proof of confidence in the future of the Church. It will encourage young men to enter the ministry. They will accept a great cause if their old age is provided for. The Army and Navy pension their officers. Why should the Church think she can afford to neglect her ministers?"—Rev. Henry VanDyke, D.D., LL.D., Princeton, N. J.

The pensions provided by the Fund will be a relief for our ministers to retire when they are no longer able to continue in service when no longer able to do the task because of inadequate provision for retirement. The Fund will be an insurance for our churches as well as for the ministers. They will not fear calling a man somewhat advanced in years to the pastorate, he will be compelled to retain him as pastor, even though he is unequal to his duties because he has nothing to fall back upon.

The Pension Fund, when accepted by the churches and when operative, will solve once and for all the problem of the provision for our ministers when their active service ends. The 2½ per cent by the churches and the 7½ per cent by the churches will provide for future service after the Fund becomes operative and these will become increasingly adequate as the years of service under the Fund increase until the time when every man will receive an amount equal to one-half of his average salary for the years of service under the Fund, and a still larger amount if he continues in service beyond that time. The fund of $1,500,000 will supplement the pensions of those who are nearing retirement. If a minister has thirty-five years of service they can be assured the minimum pension of $600. In time Ministers can be taken out of the Missionary Budget and present beneficiaries no longer need its care; cases of need for which no pension fund exists.

EXCURSION TO NEW YORK

August 10th, 1929

via
SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Round Trip Fare From

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

$22.00

LIMIT 18 DAYS

Tickets Good Going and Returning Regular Trains

(Except Crescent Limited)

Fine Opportunity to Visit
New York at Small Expense

ASK TICKET AGENTS

Memorials of granite will finally crumble to dust, but our memories are destined to remain throughout the aeons of eternity.

Prayer is a soul-enlarging exercise, a fact which great souls have discovered.

A hymnal program in the morning, old favorites at sundown, curfew at night—the sweet, lingering, eagerly-awaited voice from the belfry that brings new prestige and influence to the Church.

Automatically Played by Hand-Recorded Reproducing Rolls

Press a button and the Chimes begin to play. Or, set the dial of a clock today and tomorrow at the desired hour a program of Chimes music fills the air! The Voice of the Church—the Memorial Sublime.

Price, $375 and up. Full details on request.
J. C. DEAGAN, Inc., 143 Deagan Building, Chicago

MARY BALDWIN COLLEGE

For women. Courses lead to B. A. and B. S. degrees. Music, art, spoken English, physical education. Gymnasium and field athletics. Modern equipment. In beautiful Shenandoah Valley. Founded 1842. Catalog. Staunton, Virginia.

Some Facts Worth Knowing About The Student Organizations And Activities of Davidson College

Students at Davidson College come from cultured and Christian homes. In the main, they have a high sense of honor, co-operation and service which is reflected in the successful operation of student organizations.

1. The most important student organization on the campus is the Student Council—the student governing body. The Council is elected by the students to enforce the regulations adopted by the students for the government of student life on the campus. The student government and the honor system at Davidson function well nigh perfectly.

2. The Court of Control—established to eliminate hazing. It supervises the control of Freshman activities and is composed of a Chairman from the Senior Class, three other members from the Senior Class, two from the Junior Class and two from the Sophomore Class.

3. The Student Body organization, composed of a President, Vice-President and Secretary.

4. Four Class organizations.

5. The Y. M. C. A., which emphasizes Christian living and touches every phase of student life in a helpful, inspiring and serviceable way. It carries on work among the boys, both white and colored, in the village and adjacent community, conducts religious services and six or eight Sunday Schools in nearby communities and sends out deputations all over the State to visit churches and other religious activities. More than 125 different men were used in this service last year. It has a whole-time paid secretary, a student president and other officers, and a cabinet of sixteen men to represent every phase of Y. M. C. A. work on the campus. It has a Board of Control to handle the business affairs. The Y. M. C. A. puts on two series of special Evangelistic meetings during the year—one in the fall and one in the spring—and for two years has carried on a Vocational Guidance Conference extending over a week.

6. Publications: The following publications are issued: "The Davidsonian," "The Chameleon," "Quips and Cranks," and the "Y Handbook," particularly for Freshmen. The business management of these publication is under the supervision of a Publications Board composed of two faculty members and three students. The annual budget is approximately $8,000. There are more than twenty men on the staff of The Davidsonian and about an equal number on Quips and Cranks.

7. Athletics: The Student Athletic Council is composed of four men elected at large, together with the captains of the various teams who, in conjunction with the Faculty Committee, the Alumni Athletic Committee and the coaches, direct the affairs of athletics. The following sports have separate organizations: Foot-ball, base-ball, basket-ball, track, tennis, wrestling and boxing and golf. Every man participates in some form of athletics. In addition to the coaches, Davidson has a whole-time Professor of Physical Education.

8. Social Organizations: There are ten National Greek Letter Fraternities, all situated on Fraternity Court, housed in attractive buildings erected for this purpose. Approximately 25 belong to the Fraternities. In addition to these the Y. M. C. A. provides social rooms with games and other amusements for all students.

9. Literary Societies: There are two Literary Societies that have been in existence continuously since the beginning of the College. In these the students get practice in speaking and debating.

10. Forensic Council—manages inter-collegiate debates and public speaking. Davidson has four debating teams.

11. The Glee Club. An active interest has developed in music in recent years on the campus. Competition for places in the Club is keen. Concerts are given, interesting trips are taken to other colleges and communities where concerts are given.

12. The Band. Davidson has a band of twenty pieces and an Orchestra. The College employs a whole-time director of music to encourage and develop musical talent among the students.

13. Red and Black Masquers. The Dramatic Club has obtained an important place on the campus in the interest of the students. Entertaining plays are given locally and in other communities.

14. Scholarship and Honor Fraternities:

- | | |
|-------------------------------------|--------------|
| Phi Beta Kappa | Scholarship |
| Omicron Delta Kappa | Leadership |
| Gamma Sigma Epsilon | Chemistry |
| Sigma Pi Sigma | Physics |
| Sigma Upsilon | Literary |
| Alpha Phi Epsilon | Forensic | | International Relations | Political |
| Scabard and Blade | Military |
| Omega Phi Alpha | Philosophy |
| Delta Pi Kappa | Journalistic | | Sigma Phi | Classical |
| Mu Beta Psi | Musical |
| Le Cercle Francais | |
| Beaver Club—Sophomore Honor Society | |

This is the third of a series of four advertisements on "Some Facts Worth Knowing About Davidson College." The first was "Some Facts Worth Knowing About the History of Davidson College," and next week will be given "Some Facts Worth Knowing About the Finances of Davidson College."

OBITUARIES

IN MEMORY OF
MRS. D. A. McGOOGAN

After a long and useful life on earth "God's finger touched her and she slept" to wake amid the glories of her heavenly home, and to be greeted by many loved ones gone before. Possessed of a strong character and forceful personality, Mrs. McGoogan was always to be found on the right side of every important question, and never failed to have the courage of her convictions. She was always identified with the work and worship of her church, and throughout her life was an honored member of the Woman's Auxiliary. During her long life of more than fourscore years she made a deep impression for good on the community in which she lived, and more especially on a large family of splendid Christian children and grandchildren, her gracious influence reaching even unto the fourth generation. She received more than ordinary devotion from her children and family, and in their good works, "She being dead yet speaketh." Their loss is also our loss, and we the Woman's Auxiliary feel deeply with and for them in their sorrow.

"Servant of Christ! Well done!
Praise be thy new employ;
And while eternal ages run,
Rest in thy Saviour's joy."

Committee,
Mrs. E. C. Murray.
Mrs. Joseph Evans.
Mrs. L. A. McGeachy.
St. Paul's, N. C.

MRS. GEORGE F. ROBERTSON

Mrs. George F. Robertson, Rev. Geo. F. Robertson, N. C., died on July 11, home, after having spent in the Presbyterian Home, lotte, N. C., during which great pain, but bore her fortitude and patience, example of Christian faith, had sought to inculcate and church by her teaching.

Mrs. Robertson was Chucky, Tenn., and was of the late J. R. Ernst and her maiden name was Ernst. She was born Ma and was therefore in her She was married to Ke Robertson October 19, 18 shared with him the blessings of a long useful pastorates and ministries were called on to undertake several states of the Southern Church. One of these was that at Steele C Mecklenburg County, N with foresight they secured the old historic cemetery her body was laid to rest time when her beloved husband also lie down at her side until Jesus comes.

Mrs. Robertson had been a Christian ever since her girlhood a gentle, sweet pious child was rather a home body, do her share of church loved her home and rejected

SUMMER VACATION TRIPS
Now is the Time to Plan Your Vacation
The Southern Railway System Offers
Very Low Round Trip Fares to Mountain and Seashore
Resorts

New York, N. Y. ----- $32.63 Atlantic City -----
Chicago, Ill. ----- 45.98 Detroit, Mich. -----
Cleveland, Ohio ----- 41.85 Toledo, Ohio -----

Round trip tickets on sale each Saturday during July August—Limit for return trip 30 days.

Atlantic City, N. J. ---- $23.30
Dates of sale via PRR from Washington July 16th, August 13th, 27th and September 10th via B & O Washington July 24th, August 7th, 21st, September 4th and 18th. Final limit 18 days from date of sale.

Niagara Falls, N. Y. ---- $33.15
Dates of sale via PRR from Washington July 24th, August 7th, 21st, September 4th, 18th and October 2nd via B & O from Washington July 18th, August 1st, 15th, 29th, September 12th and 26th. Final limit 18 days from date of sale.

Week-End Fares
Norfolk, Va. ----- $15.00 Old Point Comfort -----
Morehead City, N. C. -- 13.15 Black Mountain, N. C. --
Asheville, N. C. ----- 6.30 Hendersonville, N. C. -- Waynesville, N. C. --- 7.50 Brunswick, Ga. (St. Simons Island) ----- Virginia Beach, Va. -- 15.60

Tickets on sale each Friday and Saturday, final limit 18 days following Tuesday.

Rail and Motor Tours
Asheville, N. C., one-way motor coach the other way $7.30.
Johnson City, Tenn., one-way motor coach the other way $12.05.
Bristol, Tenn., one-way motor coach the other way $12.05.

Round Trip Summer Excursion Fares to Mountain and Seashore on sale daily.
Watch Newspapers for Dates of Popular Excursions
Excellent Service — Pullman Sleeping Cars — Dining Service — Convenient Schedules
Ask Ticket Agents

SOUTHERN RAILWAY CITY TICKET OFFICE
308 West Trade Street
Telephone Hemlock 20

nging up her four sons sters who live to honor ad to follow her godly was conducted at her

t. Holly by several min-of the family, and these red by the hundreds as ives of God's servants
uch with multitudes in ates.

MEMORIAM
ELIJAH BODDIE PERRY, JR.

awn of Saturday morn-y of May, 1929, the imf Elijah Boddie Perry, away from its earthly ones to the Home bein the Heavens," where re suffering, sorrow, or peace, and love forever-

was called away in the when he had reached of young manhood—a manhood full of promise and rich in endowments. He was the eldest of three children and the only son of Elijah Boddie Perry and Susan Sims Spurrill. He was born on March 19, 1903, became a Christian and united with the Presbyterian Church April 9, 1922.

Elijah Boddie was always modest and retiring in disposition, so those who loved him most were those who knew him best. He was innately a gentleman—refined, generous, and kindhearted. To the last hours of his life, even in his unconscious moments, he was gentle, polite, and considerate of others.

He leaves to mourn their loss his heartbroken parents, two devoted sisters, Burt Arrington and Lucy Tunstall, besides a host of friends and relatives who loved him.

His handsome, manly form was tenderly laid away on Sunday afternoon in the Littleton cemetery beneath a profusion of exquisite flowers, which bespoke the love and sympathy of his many friends. Let us not think of Elijah Boddie as dead—

"He is just away!
With a cheery smile, and a wave of the hand,
He has wandered into a unknown land."
Littleton, N. C.

ATWOOD HALL WHERRY

Resolutions adopted by Session of Uriel Church June 16, 1929.

Whereas God in His gracious providence has removed from earth to heaven our brother, Atwood Hall Wherry, who for more than forty years served as an elder in Uriel Church, Bethel Presbytery, therefore be it resolved:

That we express our gratitude to God for giving to our church and community such a man of God.

That we express to each member of the bereaved family our sympathy, and pray that God may give comfort and peace in this time of need.

That a copy of these resolutions be spread on the minutes of the session and published in the church papers.

W. G. Somerville.
R. E. Jones, Committee.
Chester, S. C.

FIGHTING SERGEANT TO BE AT MASSANETTA

(Continued from Page Two)
of a fine tenor voice he was known through the mountains as "The Singing Elder."

Came the war. The big fellow was not interested. He had tried fighting along the Kentucky border. It was not worthwhile. He applied to the local board for exemption on the grounds that he was a member in good standing of a church which was opposed on moral principles to war and fighting.
The application was refused. Armed with two affidavits, one from his pastor, Rosier Pile, he appealed against the decision. The appeal was denied.
For the third time he applied; and for the third time he was ordered to camp.
Then Pastor Pile wrote direct to President Wilson. In vain. So York went to camp. But it took months of arguing and reading from the Bible to convince him that he should go overseas and fight.

But finally he was converted to war;
and went Over There and made history.

In conclusion we might quote the wise-crack, "If as a conscientious ob-jector he whipped a whole German machine-gun battalion, what would he have done had his heart been in it?"

This is the sort of man who is coming to the Massanetta Springs Bible Conference on Thursday, August 15th to make an address. They say that York is a fine orator and that his story, as he tells it, is one of the greatest human stories in the world today.

Other outstanding speakers on the Bible Conference program, August 12-
25, are Dr. Wm. Evans, Los Angeles, Calif.; Dr. Robert E. Speer, New York; Dr. John Timothy Stone, Chicago, Ill.; Dr. P. W. Philpott, Chicago, Ill.; Dr. Geo. L. Robertson, Chicago, Ill.; Rev. Gypsy Smith, Jackson, Miss.;
Dr. Wm. Foulkes, Newark, N. J.; Rev.
J. Alfred Kaye, London, England; Rev.
Wm. M. Robertson, Vancouver, B. C.;
Dr. S. L. Joekel, Austin, Tex.; Mr.
Homer Hammontree, Chicago, Ill.; Dr.
Ray O. Wyland, New York; Dr. Hubert McNeill Poteat, Wake Forest College; Dr. A. L. Lathem, Chester, Pa.;
and Dr. W. H. T. Squires, Norfolk, Va.

WANTED

Cultured woman over thirty to live in good home and care for two small children. Write Mrs.
Helen Scanlon Wright, Durham,
North Carolina.

The eternal City

and the foundations of the wall of the city are garnished with all manner of precious stones. The first foundation was jasper; the second, sapphire; the third, a chalcedony; the fourth, an emerald;

The fifth, sardonyx; the sixth, sardius; the seventh, chrysolite; the eighth, beryl; the ninth, a topaz; the tenth, a chrysoprasus; the eleventh, a jacinth; the twelfth, an amethyst."

Revelation Ch. 21. vs. 19, 20.

John, the beloved disciple, in the above, endeavors to express in human language the most transcendent spiritual beauty and permanence of the heavenly city,—the everlasting city. He selected, singularly enough, to describe the foundations thereof, beautiful crystalline gems, every one of which appears in the minute crystals of

Winnsboro Granite
"The Silk of The Trade"

When the surface of this granite, which is a composite of these actual precious stone crystals, is highly polished, all the scintillating beauty and color of these jewels become visible.

peculiarly fitting that monuments to loved ones be erected of lasting granite, containing the very stones which the Apostle John mentions in this metaphorical description of the foundations of the walls of the everlasting city, the city of our resurrection hope.

Be sure that "Winnsboro Granite" is specified in your contract for monuments. Like other high quality materials, there are many inferior substitutes, which resemble this granite on first appearance, but do not possess lasting qualities and permanent beauty, because they contain more delicious elements, such as water, lime and iron. These elements tend to integration and discoloration.

Let your monument dealer furnish you with a personal guarantee from the quarries that the monument you purchase is cut in genuine Winnsboro granite.

A certificate of the quarries is signed by B. H. Heyward, Treas., and General Manager, whose signature insures genuine Winnsboro Granite.
A facsimile of this signature is reproduced below.

Write for free descriptive literature.

Winnsboro Granite Corporation, Rion, S. C.

B. H. Heyward Treas. & Gen. Mgr.

VIRGINIA SEASHORE EXCURSIONS

via

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Friday, August 9th, 1929

Round Trip Fare From CHARLOTTE, N. C., TO

Norfolk, Va.	$8.75
Old Point Comfort	8.75
Virginia Beach	9.25
Richmond, Va.	7.75

LIMIT 5 DAYS

Tickets Good Going and Returning Regular Trains

ASK TICKET AGENTS

CHILDREN

MYSTERY OF THE OLD HOUSE

I was the pitcher, so I twirled my arm like I've seen the big league players twirl theirs, put a drop on the ball and let it go. We were playing two-in-lickers and my best friend, Bill Fraser, was at the bat. This "drop" I had was something special, just to try and put Bill out on three strikes; but instead of fanning at the ball as I expected him to do, he cracked it square on the trademark and sent it soaring over the field toward the old house.

It hit just in front of the building and bounced through the cellar window with a sickening crash of broken glass.

Most of the fellows ran, and I don't blame them. Nobody likes to have a big ugly man with bushy eyebrows chase him through the streets; and that's the kind of a man who lived in the old house. But I didn't run, because the ball belonged to me and it was a good one. Neither did Bill. Instead we dropped down behind a rock and waited to see what would happen.

"If I wasn't so afraid of the man," Bill said, "I'd go right up to the door and ask him for the ball."

"What would you want to do that for?" I asked. "He'd make you pay for the window."

"Well, I broke it, didn't I?"

That's the kind of a fellow Bill was. I kept quiet for a minute or two, wondering if I should offer to help pay for it; and I was just going to say I would when we saw an old man hobble up to the front door of the house.

"Who's that?" I asked. "It looks like Toby Smith's grandfather, but it isn't."

"I don't know who it is. I know everybody in this part of town, but I have never seen him before."

The old man reached the house just as the dark-haired man opened the door to look for us. Even from where we were, I could see that he was mad; but when he saw the old man, he changed his expression and smiled. Instead of going upstairs, however, he led his strange visitor down in the cellar.

"There's what I can't understand about that man," observed Bill. "He's got the whole house to himself, yet he prefers to live in the cellar. He only comes to the upstairs door when he answers the doorbell. So far he hasn't let anybody in."

"Maybe he hasn't got any furniture," I suggested. "Lots of people don't like to let others know how poor they are."

"He isn't poor," replied Bill. "And how about the trucks full of furniture we saw going in there that night we were coming back from the caves?"

I didn't answer him because just then we noticed that a man was crawling along the ground toward us. He put a finger to his lips for us to keep quiet and not move. Then he laid down on the grass beside us.

"Did you see the old man?" he whispered. We nodded.

"Where did he go?"

"In the old house."

"Umm, I thought so."

The man thought deeply for a moment; then he said:

"Boys, I'm a detective. Here's my badge. Do you recognize it?"

We looked at it closely and our eyes widened and our mouths dropped open when we saw that it was a sure enough detective badge.

"I can't tell you anything now," he went on, still speaking in low tones. "But the old man who just went in that house is under suspicion. I'm supposed to find out everything he does and examine every place he goes. Will you help me? Will you do it?"

"If we can," replied Bill. "But I don't see how we can be of any use."

"Listen, you fellows have just put a baseball through that window, haven't you?"

THE BUCKET BRIGADE

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use the color indicated.)

Here goes the "bucket brigade" made up by BROWN-haired Teddy, YELLOW-haired Susie May and little YELLOW-haired Billy.

Teddy leads with his GREEN and YELLOW banded pail held high up and his YELLOW handled spade in the water. Susie May carried her RED and BLUE pail on her shoulder—the pail Billy carries is PURPLE and ORANGE (use RED and YELLOW mixed) color. Billy has his RED handled spade in his left hand. The spades are GRAY (use BLACK lightly).

Teddy wears a RED and White bathing suit. The top is White with a RED band and his trousers are RED, too, but his belt is White.

Susie May wears an ORANGE and White bathing suit. The top is White with an ORANGE color band across the front and the pants are ORANGE color with White buttons.

Billy wears a bright BLUE sun suit with White bands about the legs.

The children are having a wonderful time splashing in the cool GREEN-

BLUE (use most GREEN sand is a light YELLOW BLUE. There are a few tufts of grass in the sand.

For TAN (use RED and BLUE lightly) Teddy is the "TAN" as Billy says, and Billy is the "BLUE" as Susie May the least. All the children are wearing shoes (use RED lightly) cheery lips.

The border of this picture is colored ORANGE and GREEN.

We nodded again.

"Very well. Here is what I want you to do—go in that cellar and get your ball. Then walk up to the corner as if you were going home. I'll meet you there and then you can tell me what you saw while you were in that house. Are you willing?"

I looked at Bill and Bill looked at me.

"Want to?" he asked.

"I don't mind," I replied. "I'll go if you'll ask him for the ball after we get in there."

"All right," agreed Bill.

"Good!" said the detective. "Now let me tell you how I want you to do it. Don't ring the doorbell, but go at once to the cellar door. Knock on it once, then open it and walk in without waiting for anybody to answer you. Once you are inside, see everything you can and meet me at the corner as soon as possible."

But three short minutes later, it looked as though we would never meet the detective again; for both Bill and I were tied to the frame of some kind of a machine. Our hands, and our feet were bound tightly together with a piece of heavy rope. In front of us, fierce as a bulldog and madder than a hornet, was the old man, only we saw now that he wasn't an old man at all, but a young one in disguise.

The dark-haired man was trying to tell him something.

"I tell you, Sam, these two boys live in this neighborhood, and the best thing to do is to give them their ball and let them go."

"So you think that is all they wanted, eh?" retorted the man called Sam, fiercely. "You don't think they were sent in here by the man who followed me from the railroad station, do you? Well, that's all you know about it!"

He turned on us and demanded: "Where were you boys when I walked down the street to the house?"

"See?" he said, when we couldn't answer his question. "What I said was true. They are right on our track. If we are going to get away at all, we've got to go now. Here, hold this bag. Where's the money?"

The black-haired man pointed to a drawer and held the handbag while Sam filled it full of dollar bills. Then he turned to us and said:

"Here's wishing you boys good luck. When they come and find you, if they ever do, tell them we've left for Canada."

He opened the cellar door, then stepped backward in surprise. Standing there with a revolver in his hand was the detective! "Stick up your hands!" he said.

The man who lived in the house did as he was told; but Sam, instead of putting up his hands swung the bag of money at the detective, hitting him squarely in the face!

The detective would have fired, I think, if it hadn't been for us being directly behind the man he wanted. Sam turned quickly and ran towards the back door to make his escape; and he would have gotten away if Bill hadn't been there to hold his feet as much in front of the man as the bonds that tied him to let him. It was enough.

and fell heavily to the floor. He could get to his feet, but he had him covered again, and three other officers in the crowd cuff both him and his partner. "Good work!" said the detective. "I hope you didn't hurt him when you tripped him up."

"I hurt my arms a little," said Bill. "But it was worth it."

"That's what Uncle Sam said," replied the detective. "This so cleverly disguised when he was Mr. Samuel Waters, counterfeiter in the world. I've been looking for him since 1920, the first time we've been able to get our hands on him."

"Then that bag of money was his?" I asked.

"It isn't worth a nickel," said the detective. "Nor is this machine worth anything after we've got it with it."

Bill and I helped the detective smash the machinery to pieces. Then the policemen had brought in their automobile. After it was destroyed, Bill said to me:

"Did you find your ball?"

Gee! How does he expect me to think of a small thing like a ball when he's helping a real detective catch people who make fake money?"

STATEMENT

Pilet Life Insurance Company, Greensboro, N. C.

Statement for the year ending December 31, 1928, as Shown by Statement Filed

Table with 2 columns: Description and Amount. Includes items like Capital paid up in cash, Larger Assets December 31st of previous year, etc.

Assets

Table with 2 columns: Description and Amount. Includes Estate (less of encumbrances), Assets on Real Estate, etc.

Table with 2 columns: Description and Amount. Includes Assets not admitted, Admitted Assets.

Liabilities

Table with 2 columns: Description and Amount. Includes Disability Provision, Amounts not yet due on Supplementary Contracts, etc.

Table with 2 columns: Description and Amount. Includes Amount of all Liabilities, except Capital, Cash, Funds (surplus), etc.

DEATHS IN THE STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA DURING 1928

Table with 5 columns: Description, Number of lives, Total amount, Number of deaths, Total amount. Includes lives of citizens of said State, lives of citizens of said State during year, etc.

President, A. W. McAlister; Secretary, Arthur Watt; Treasurer, R. G. ... DAN C. BONEY, Insurance Commissioner, Raleigh, N. C.;

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA Insurance Department

Raleigh, March 12th, 1929.

DAN C. BONEY, Insurance Commissioner, do hereby certify that the true and correct abstract of the statement of the Pilet Life Insurance Company on the 31st day of December, 1928.

By hand and official seal the day and date above written. DAN C. BONEY, Insurance Commissioner.

STORY

THE RETURN OF THE ELDER BROTHER

The Most Popular Story in the Bible Retold

Annie Sills Brooks, in N. Y. Christian Advocate

"Father, may I go with thee?" Reuben untwined the arms of the little lad from around his neck and looked into his pleading eyes.

"Not today, son," he answered very gently, "the walk I must take would be too far for thy little feet. Another day when I do not go so far thou shalt go. Today I must go to the far vineyards to see if the servants have pruned the young vines, and to the farthest olive groves; thy feet would be sore and weary."

PUZZLE CORNER

Horizontal

- 1. Relates
7. An epoch
8. Consume
9. Skill
10. Arrive (abbr.)
11. A country (abbr.)
14. Monkey
16. Fish eggs
17. Flock
18. Specimens

Vertical

- 1. Harvesters
2. Mistake
3. Domestic pet
4. Beverage
5. Organ of hearing
6. Highway (pl.)
12. Another spelling of Noah
13. Precious stone
14. Whole
15. Author of "The Raven"

Square Words

- 1
-----A coin
-----A mental image
-----State of confusion
-----Comfort
2
-----A coin
-----A pitcher
-----Roman emperor
-----Horse gait

BEHEADING ACROSTIC

The letters beheaded arranged in order form the name of a month: Behead nothing and leave a unit. Behead ajar and leave an enclosure. Behead evil and leave frozen water. Behead to consume and leave near by. Behead additional and leave native metal. Behead the nerve center of the body and leave condensed moisture. Behead paradise and leave a lair. Behead a strip of film and leave a slip-prey fish.

PUZZLE ANSWERS

Square Words

- 1
Dime Idea
Mess Ease
2
Cent Ewer
Nero
Trot

"May I walk just to the roadside with thee?" begged the child.

"Yes, just to the roadside," and the little hand stole confidently into the big one, and the long legs of the man adjusted themselves to the short ones of the child.

At the roadside another farewell, a tender smile of pride on the face of the man as he turned to watch the child safely back to the house.

The smile on the man's face faded and a black scowl took its place as the child neared the house; for there in the doorway Reuben saw another figure, an old man with snow-white hair and beard, whose faded eyes gazed yearningly down the road to where it disappeared over the far horizon.

Reuben looked back no more, but strode rapidly away toward the vineyards and olive groves. His mouth was closed in a tight, hard line. Resentment filled his heart. Why must his father sit in the doorway day after day watching for an unworthy son who never would come home?

Reuben was usually a kind master, but today he was harsher than his wont. The slaves working in vineyards and groves, even the shepherds watching their sheep on the hillsides, knew that something was wrong with the young master. Why he was more resentful today than ever before Reuben could not have told; perhaps the contrast between his joy in this little lad, and the old man waiting, watching from the doorway. In his mind he went back over the years since his brother had gone.

Jabez had grown weary of the quiet monotony of home; his eager young spirit had craved adventure, new scenes, new friends, and he had taken his share of the inheritance and gone. At first travelers now and then had brought news of him, the gay life he was leading in distant cities, the gay friends with whom he mingled. Reuben had never admitted it even to himself, but now deep in his own soul he knew there had been times when he, too, would have sought adventure had he possessed the courage, but that was before the little lad came; since then his desire for far adventure had been quelled. He was the oldest son, his was the birth-right and the responsibility; never could he have had the courage to break away, but Jabez had gone.

At first Reuben had missed him; he was gay and joyous, full of life and laughter; the place had not been the same after his going; but when day by day he had watched the old man, his father, as he eagerly watched the long white road that wound over the hill, resentment had grown in his heart. He did not like to make merry with his friends when always in his father's eyes grief lurked.

For years now no word had come from Jabez. Although the father still questioned eagerly each traveler, no word came. He was not longer seen in his old haunts; perhaps he no longer lived. Why should his father cast a gloom over their lives because of an ungrateful son? Of course, he was always kind and loving, no word of his grief was ever spoken; but his eyes were eloquent with sorrow.

Reuben threw himself into his work. He inspected vineyards and olive groves, the flocks on the hillside. He did not return home for the noonday meal, ate only some fresh fruit, and went on with his work. Darkness had fallen when, weary and footsore, he turned homeward. The resentment of the morning had been crowded out of sight, and Reuben thought with joy of Rachel and the little lad waiting for his coming, and with the thought he hastened his lagging footsteps. As he came in sight of the house unwonted lights gleamed from the windows, and there was much running to and fro. Fear clutched at his heart. Could anything have happened to the little lad? Reuben ran stumblingly forward, but when he came nearer his ears caught the sound of music and dancing. What could it mean? Not sorrow surely, but many years had passed since the place had echoed to the sound of such merriment—not since Jabez went away. Could it be—no, that wasn't possible, and even if he had come back there would be no occasion for such rejoicing over the return of one who had forgotten his home, his father, and spent his substance in riotous living.

RANDOLPH-MACON
School for Girls

An accredited school, upholding the highest standards of Christian womanhood. Every facility to promote mental growth, health, and character. For descriptive literature write John C. Simpson, Principal. DANVILLE, VA.

MAKING MEN—
Not Money

Our aim is to develop the character through the constant teaching of Christian principles; to develop the body through healthful out-door sports; to develop the intellect through thorough, individual instruction. We offer a four-square education for your boy at a surprisingly reasonable cost. For catalogue write Col. A. H. Camden, President.

HARGRAVE
MILITARY ACADEMY
CHATHAM, VA.

Old Folk's
Best Friend

That's what many call it for it puts vim and vigor into old stomachs; rich, red blood into old veins; sound flesh on old bones. Drink with each meal.

Shivar Ale

Pure Digestive Aromatics With Shivar Mineral Water & Ginger

Nothing like it for assisting your digestive organs to convert your food into rich blood and sound flesh.

ATLANTA CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

The Foremost School of Music in the South
Fall session begins Monday, September 2, 1929
Summer session in June and July

Apply for Catalog C GEO. F. LINDNER, Director Atlanta, Georgia

SALEM COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

Known nationally for 156 years' unbroken record in higher education. "Salem" life emphasizes Christian standards without denominational differences. Fifty-six acre campus of forest and meadow. Swimming, riding and all sports. Our endowment pays 12 1-2 per cent. of each student's expenses, reducing the annual charge to $655.00.

Accredited member Southern Association. A-Class.
A. B., B. S. and B. Music degrees with wide elective privileges.
Write for catalogue "A" to Pres. Howard E. Rondthaler, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Summer VACATION TRIPS
Rail and Motor
Tours

In the Southern Appalachian Mountains

In especially arranged rail and motor tours, the Southern Railway provides a new vacation recreation, combining rail and motor transportation for the individual and for parties, into the mountain sections of Virginia, North Carolina, Eastern Tennessee and North Georgia.

These tours will take you adventuring by rail and motor into regions of scenic beauty and historic interest. Each trip begins and ends with a railway journey, in which you enjoy the speed and comfort of rail travel. The motor trips are over established State highways.

For booklets, information and rates, call on Ticket Agents.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Daniel Boone—pioneer Pathfinder in these southern Appalachian Mountains which we now invite you to visit

Reuben checked his steps as he saw a servant running on some hasty errand.

"What meaneth all this noise?" he asked when the servant drew nearer.

"What meaneth all this noise?" he asked when the servant drew nearer.

The servant had not seen Reuben as he came toward him in the darkness, but he knew the voice and stopped suddenly to bow himself before him.

"Oh, Master, thy brother hath come home, and thy father hath killed the fatted calf," he answered in a voice whose humility could not hide the notes of excitement.

But Reuben had already vanished into the darkness. The resentment of the morning had come out of its hiding multiplied a hundred-fold. What he should do when he reached the house he did not know, but somehow this travesty must be stopped, this heaping of honor upon a returned prodigal steeped in sin. It was unfair. He who had always stayed at home and labored without ceasing, he was forgotten; even the little lad had forgotten him. He was not waiting at the doorway as was his custom.

Reuben drew near the window and looked in. There in the seat of honor was a man clothed in the embroidered robe of his father's, the one he used for great occasions, which the old man had not worn since he, Reuben, had been married to Rachel. On his finger gleamed his father's ring. Reuben's eyes had not reached the face of the man clothed thus in regal splendor when they fell upon the face of the little lad where he stood reveling in the strange sights, the music and dancing. There was no thought of the father out in the darkness whose homecoming had heretofore always been greeted with such joy. He was forgotten. Again the thought of the morning intruded itself. What if the lad should grow up with the same longing for adventure, what if he should do as Jabez had done?

Reuben turned away from the window. If Jabez stayed, the child's mind would be filled with tales of adventure, of distant cities and people, and he would want to go. It was unfair. He should not stay. He would go out on the hillside to think it out. As he stole softly around the corner of the house he ran into a man.

"Son, son!" It was his father's voice, and the old man lifted his hand that he might place it loving on the young man's shoulder. "Thy brother hath come home."

The rays from a little lamp in the window fell upon the old man's face. Had Reuben's heart been less full of anger and resentment, he must have seen the change in it. The years seemed to have rolled from it, joy had taken the place of sorrow in the eyes, the voice was vibrant with emotion. But Reuben saw none of it. He shook the hand roughly from his shoulder and turned away without a word. "My son, my son!" Again the old man reached out his hand and closed it around Reuben's arm. "Art thou not glad that thy brother hath come home?"

Reuben did not shake off the hand; it clung too closely.

"No," he answered, and his voice was hard. "All these years I have served thee, but thou hast never given me a kid that I might make merry with my friends; but when this thy son came who devoured thy living with harlots, thou didst kill for him the fatted calf."

"But, son," answered the old man, pleadingly, "thou art always with me, and everything I have is thine; but this thy brother was lost and is found, was dead and is alive again. Is it not meet that we should rejoice and be glad?"

Reuben was silent. The anger and resentment in his heart made speech impossible. Thus they stood for some minutes in the darkness, the old man's hand lovingly, entreatingly on the young man's arm, behind them the lighted windows, the sounds of music and dancing.

"Son, son," the old man said again, and even Reuben's heart, heavy as it was with malice and hatred, for a brief moment quivered at the pleading tenderness in the old man's voice. "Dost thou remember once when thou wert keeping the sheep upon the hillside and one small, helpless lamb was lost in the storm and darkness? Thou didst wander all through the stormy night hunting for the little lamb. The next day when thou didst bring it home tenderly in thine arms thou didst call all thy friends and neighbors to rejoice and make merry with thee because the little lost lamb had been found and brought safely back to the fold. Is thy brother not of more value than a lamb?"

Still Reuben could not answer. This returned prodigal had taken all from him;

PARK HILLS
BA REMOVE STOPS HAIR Has been success for the
RESTORES BEAUTY AND FA
60¢ & $1.00
HISCOX CHAS
PATCH
When washing Florence

Guilford
COLLEGE

Member of Southern Association for recognition. Courses in degrees, including Business, Home Economics and Mathematics. Religious atmosphere. Unusually liberal program and student body. Century old, Quaker institution. The President, Guilford College.

QUEENS COLLEGE

A High Grade Institution
Education of Women
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

"The College With the Thorough in its Instruction in its Christian Aim: The development of womanhood prepared for service."

Curriculum: Embraces all opportunities and demands of modern life; CHRISTIAN FOR CHRISTIAN SERVICE.

Climatic conditions unequalled. Social and Religious privileges, the attractiveness of the location.

Rates exceedingly reasonable. For Catalogue write THE PRESIDENT, Box 300, Charlotte, N. C.

When answering advertisements mention this paper. We will aid us in securing more patronage.

Largest and MOST MODERN PLANT in the Carolinas

Charlotte Marble & Granite Works

LARGEST USERS OF WINNSBORO GRANITE IN THE CAROLINAS

R. E. SCOGGINS Proprietor CHARLOTTE, N. C. W. 7th St. and Sevier St.
OLDEST LARGEST BEST

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE
DECATUR, GA.

Strict entrance requirements, but few failures after admission. Expensive, but cheap in comparison with advantages offered. No capacity, but also none without capacity to enjoy almost unlimited opportunities. For details as to admission, scholarship aid, etc. address

PRESIDENT J. R. McCAIN
Box 5

Arch Furniture
 WORK OF THE HIGHEST QUALITY
 AT REASONABLE PRICES.
 Write for Catalogue
MUDE & WEIS MFG. CO.
 JACKSON, TENNESSEE

O'DRAUGHON'S
 equipped than ever to train
 and men for better positions.
 experience is behind us. Our than ever. All the commer-taught. Write us at once for

N'S BUSINESS COLLEGE
 Tennessee

FOR SUCCESS
 on the thoroughness with prepare yourself for a pros-career. We can help for our handsome cata-

NATIONAL BUSINESS COLLEGE
 Roanoke, Va.

US DISEASES
 cholic addictions successfully ring Garden Sanitarium, 2911
 Street, Greensboro, N. C.
 full information. Correspond-

ALLIE SCHOOL
 for BOYS
 ically located on Missionary
 p. In view of renowned Lookout Mountain.

ing school in the South.
 preparation for College Technical Schools.

Small classes. Individual Instruction.
 Strong Faculty.
 Christian Training.
 Military Drill. Honor System.

Complete modern equipment. Concrete swimming pool. Gymnasium.
 40 Acre Campus.
 Lake. Rate $800.

ession—July and August
 Camp Features

Illustrated catalog to leadmaster, Box P ga Tennessee

UNION CUPS
 and 36
 op. Best ion and Bread ices. Send for
 T. Write for free Catalog.
UNION CO., Box 310, Lima, Ohio

WEATHER
 retards digestion and reduces vitality. Keep your-condition with Extract
S COD LIVER OIL
 Leading Druggists

FOR HANDS, WATCHES SILVERWARE
 Write to SALLEN AND CO.
 ealers since 1855
 ght. Charleston, S. C.
 Catalog on request

ET LODGE
 n Lookout Road, 300 Auditorium on same ff's excellent fare and rooms. Special rates

URING OUR ADVERTISERS
 TION THIS PUBLICATION

even the little lad had forgotten to come to meet him. This stranger was not his brother; by all the laws of God and man he had forfeited all right to the claim. He had brought shame upon an old and honorable family.

The old man loosened his hold on Reuben's arm and turned slowly toward the house. Reuben, watching him, felt again the faint prick of pain in his heart. The old shoulders were once more stooped and the head bowed. Every line of the figure seemed to ask, "Have I found one son only to lose the other?"

Reuben took a step forward as though to call him back, but his eyes strayed past the window and fell upon the little lad laughing and clapping his hands with glee. Hastily he turned and ran away into the darkness until the sounds of joy could no longer be heard.

When at last the lights were all out in the house, Reuben crept near. He knew now what he would do. Out there alone in the darkness he had decided. He would ask Jabez to go away agin. He would even give him money enough for the journey. He could not stay here to fill the lad's mind with strange tales and his spirit with a restless desire to wander in far places. If Jabez refused—well, there were ways of enforcing one's request. He dreaded the thought of the father's endless watching from the doorway; but he, the first-born, had some rights in view of a lifetime of service.

Slowly Reuben crept toward the house. He knew where Jabez would sleep; in the little room next the father's, which had been his of old. Taking off his sandals outside the house, Reuben crept to the door of the little room, but there he paused. The moon shone down through the one window, and her rays fell across the figure of a man asleep upon a mat, and lit up softly the white hair and beard of the old man who crouched beside him. The moonlight made a silver halo of his white hair, and caressed one old hand which stroked tenderly the dark head of the sleeping man.

"My son, my son," he whispered over and over, "my son who was lost and is found, was dead and is alive again."

Reuben stood still in the shadows beyond the door. He was seeing another scene, when all one dreadful night he had knelt beside a little bed where a tiny figure lay still and hot. He, too, had whispered over and over, "My son, my little son, come back," and between times had implored, "Oh, Jehovah, give him back to me."

Once more Reuben stole out into the darkness to fight his battle over again.

When morning came he was far away on the hillside, but still he was not at peace. When he thought of the old man as he had seen him in the moonlight bending over the sleeping man, or of the little lad by whose bed he had watched, his heart was very tender; but when he thought of Jabez, the wanderer, the prodigal who had wasted his inheritance in sinful living and come creeping back when all was gone, anger and resentment again filled his heart.

The longing to see the little lad drew him back home, but the sun was high in the heavens before he once more stood in sight of the house. This time it was Rachel who stood in the doorway, her hands shading her eyes. When she saw Reuben she ran to meet him.

"Where is the little lad?" she asked, fear in her face and leaping out of her eyes.

"The lad?" repeated Reuben as in a daze, "the little lad! Is he not with thee?" "No, oh no," cried Rachel. "We thought surely he had gone to find thee. All night he cried for thee, wanted to know where thou wert, and this morning he begged to go to look for thee. I told him thou wouldst be coming home soon, to watch for thee, and now he is gone."

Rachel covered her face with her hands and sobbed.

"Don't cry, my Rachel," and Reuben drew her into the shelter of his arms. "He cannot have gone far. I will go at once to find him."

The servants were called and sent in every direction, but Reuben himself took

BLACKSTONE — A MILITARY SCHOOL FOR BOYS

Located in Healthful Section of Virginia. College Preparatory and Business Administrative Courses. Best home influences prevail, and individual needs of each boy closely watched. Modern, new and fireproof buildings. All manly sports, Christian influences and surroundings. For illustrated catalog write to

Blackstone Col. E. S. Ligon, President
 Box R Virginia

FURMAN UNIVERSITY

Greenville, S. C.

RICHARD FURMAN HALL

In the healthful, beautiful Piedmont Section of S. C. Strong Christian faculty. Emphasis on moral and spiritual values of life. Beautiful campus, commodious well equipped buildings. Courses leading to A. B., B. S., and LL. B. degrees. Vigorous and successful law school. 12 Weeks Summer School. Championship Athletics, Glee Club, Debating etc.
 For catalogue and other data write
W. J. McGLOTHLIN, Pres.

Visiting Cards and Stationery
FREE

For a limited time we will give with each $3.00 paid on subscription to Presbyterian Standard 100 high grade printed visiting cards FREE.

SAMPLES OF TYPE

- 1. Miss Evelyn Smith
- 2. Mrs. J. B. Well
- 3. REV. JOSEPH BLOEGH
- 4. Mr. Henry C. Moore

Specify type wanted by number

With each $6.00 paid on subscription we will give 100 sheets paper and 50 envelopes to match with your name and address printed thereon.

Size of paper 6 1/4 x 7 inches. Good grade bond paper Envelopes one half size of paper.

SAMPLES OF TYPE

- 5. REV. M. HARVEY JONES
Charlotte, N. C.
- 6. S. T. HAINES, D. D.
Richmond, Va.
- 7. Mrs. Jackson Helms
WACO, TEX

Specify type wanted by number

If your prefer some other type, send us a sample and we will duplicate as near as possible.

Stationery can be printed in either blue or black ink. We will use black unless otherwise specified.

Check or Money Order must be sent direct to this office to receive this offer of cards or stationery.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING CO.
 P. O. Box 869 Charlotte, N. C.

Mosquitoes Die Quicker!

At last a quicker way to kill bothersome dangerous mosquitoes. Flit! More people use it because it kills quicker. The handy Flit sprayer floats a fine vapor freely in the air, which is harmless to humans and stainless to finest fabrics.

"The yellow can with the black band"

FLIT

Small but Large

Small in enrollment but complete in equipment and service, great in ideals and tremendous in influence for good.

Presbyterian College
JOHN M'SWEEN PRES. Clinton, S.C.

USE No LANCE

A Scientific Preparation
For BOILS, CARBUNCLES, BONE FELONS,
ULCERS, CUTS, and OLD SORES. Price 50c
NO LANCE CHEMICAL CO.
New Brookland, S. C.

WHEN damp days, sudden changes in weather, or exposure to a draft makes joints ache, there is always quick relief in Bayer Aspirin. It makes short work of headaches or any little pain. Just as effective in the more serious suffering from neuralgia, neuritis, rheumatism or lumbago. No ache or pain is ever too deep-seated for Bayer Aspirin to relieve, and it does not affect the heart. All druggists, with proven directions for various uses which many people have found invaluable in the relief of pain.

ASPIRIN

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

King College for Men

Bristol, Tennessee

Stonewall Jackson College

FOR WOMEN

Abingdon, Va., Box A

Jointly Controlled by Montgomery Presbytery

Affiliated Colleges of the Synod of Appalachia.

King College offers four year courses leading to Degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Sciences — a small Christian College — Faculty of eleven Christian gentlemen of thorough training and practical experience. Expenses reasonable.

Stonewall Jackson College. Accredited Junior College for young women, in heart of healthful Virginia mountains. Two years high school, two years college. Music, art, home economics, secretarial course, physical room with bath. All outdoor sports. Tennis. Nine hole golf course on fifty-two acre campus. Homelike life. Write for catalogue.

the hardest way, up the steep mountain-side, where rocks and briars made the way hard, where many steep cliffs and hiding places for wild beasts made unseen dangers for little feet.

Reuben forgot he had eaten nothing since yesterday morn, forgot his anger and resentment; remembered only that the little lad, his little lad, was lost, perhaps in danger. Perhaps even now he lay bruised and bleeding at the foot of some cliff, all because he wanted his father—his father, who had been so jealous and filled with resentment because his brother who had been lost was found again that he had not gone home to the lad. Faster he urged his weary feet. It was nothing that his legs were scratched and bleeding, that his clothes were torn and stained; nothing mattered if only he might find the little lad unharmed. Again and again he called, called him by all the endearing names he was wont to use, but no laughing answer came back across the stony hillside.

At last, worn and weary, he sank down upon a stone and buried his face in his hands. Over and over he prayed the prayer of that night when he had watched beside a little bed, "O Jehovah, give him back to me."

A cry penetrated the depths of his despair; a cry of distress. Reuben arose and listened. It came again from just around the hillside at his back. On again he ran, unconscious of briars that tore and stoned that cut, forgotten his weariness and hunger. It might be the little lad in need of him, his father. His eyes searched the rock hillside. There, high above him, he saw a figure, a man's figure clutching the edge of a protruding rock with one hand while in the other arm he held securely something small.

It was a little child, it was the little lad. Slowly, steadily Reuben pulled them up until they stood together upon the ledge. The child stirred in the man's arms and opened his eyes.

"My father," he said and smiled, "I was looking for thee."

Reuben reached out his arms with a cry of joy, and the other man placed the child tenderly in them.

"My lad, my little lad," he crooned between his kisses. "I, too, was looking for thee."

Reuben raised his eyes to the stranger whose courage had given him back his son, his first-born, words of gratitude welling up in his heart. Before he had not looked on the face; his eyes had been for the child alone. He only knew someone was bravely risking his life for the little lad. Reuben with an effort tore his eyes from the child's face and across his dear burden sought the eyes of the stranger. While his arms around the child trembled, a cry broke from him.

"Jabez!"

It was Jabez; not the old laughing, carefree, impulsive Jabez, but a man who had sinned and suffered, and repented in tears and agony. Not a man whose stories of strange places and joyous adventure would tempt the boy away, but one whose deep experience in the day of temptation would be a safe anchor. This was the man he had hated, whose return he had resented, who had kept him all night from his home.

For a long minute the two looked into each other's eyes, Jabez's pleading, Reuben's remorseful, understanding.

"Jabez, my brother," Reuben spoke at last, "thou art welcome home."

"Forgive me, Reuben, I had to come back. I was more hungry for my own than for food. I would not take aught that is thine or the child's; I will work gladly for all that I need, if only I may be with my own."

"Say, no more, my brother; 'tis I that need to ask forgiveness. I had no welcome for thee, yet thou didst give me back my little lad, the joy of my life." Reuben shifted the child to one arm, and with the other around his brother, they picked their way slowly but cautiously down the rocky hillside.

Of all those watching for some sign of the return of the searchers for the child, the old eyes were the first to see two figures coming down the hillside with their arms about each other, one with the child in his free arm.

"My sons," he cried, "my sons who were lost are found again!"

ORIENT FLOUR
Its Whiteness Denotes Its Purity
MOUNTAIN CITY MILL CO., CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

MEREDITH COLLEGE

For YOUNG WOMEN

STANDARD COURSES IN ARTS AND SCIENCES, IN
IN ART, IN HOME ECONOMICS

Confers the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Music. Delightful environment on a high plateau on the western boundary of North Carolina City.

Room reservations are now being made for session 1929-30.

For catalogue or further information write

CHAS. E. BREWER, President
Raleigh, N. C.

GLADE VALLEY HIGH SCHOOL

A Christian Schools for boys and girls

Standard High School Courses with Specials, Bible, Music

Domestic Art and Science

State Accredited Experienced Faculty

Careful Oversight of Students

Board, Room and Tuition only $138.00 for year

Address E. B. ELDRIDGE, Supt., GLADE VALLEY,

ALLEGHANY COUNTY

Belk's 33rd Anniversary
sary July Clearance

Sale

IS NOW ON

DRASTIC REDUCTIONS IN ALL DEPARTMENTS

A Once a Year Event that You Cannot Afford to Miss

Belk Brothers Co.
Charlotte, N. C.

A Serious and Sacred Obligation

Presbyterians believe and teach that "the Church with its ordinances, officers, and courts, is the agency which Christ has ordained for the building up and government of His people, for the propagation of the faith, and for the evangelization of the world."

"The whole polity of the Church consists in doctrine, government, and distribution. And the ordinary and perpetual offices of the Church are Teaching Elders, or Ministers of the Word, who are commissioned to preach the Gospel and administer the sacraments; Ruling Elders, whose office is to have the government and spiritual oversight of the church, and Deacons, whose office is to receive and administer the offerings of the people." It thus appears that

The Minister Is the Indispensable Man.

"This office," declares the Book of Church Order, "is the first in the Church, both for dignity and usefulness. The person who fills it has in Scripture different titles expressive of his various duties," as Bishop, Pastor, Minister, Presbyter or Elder, Ambassador, Evangelist, Preacher, Teacher, Steward of the Mysteries of God.

Called and Called Away.

The calling of the Minister is three-fold: (1) "The calling of God by the Spirit, through the inward testimony of a good conscience, (2) the manifest approbation of God's people, and (3) the concurring judgment of a lawful court of the Church."

In order that he may give all his time and energy to the work to which he is called the Minister is called away from the so-called worldly gain. The Church says in effect, "You minister to us in spiritual things and we will provide for you the material things." "Even so," says Paul, "hath the Lord ordained that they who preach the Gospel shall live of the Gospel."

Solemn and Binding Pledges.

In every call to a Pastor is written this expressed contract:

"And that you may be free from worldly cares and avocations we hereby promise and oblige ourselves to pay you the sum of $_____ a year in regular monthly (or quarterly) payments (and a manse) during the time of your being and continuing the regular pastor of this church."

And for fear this agreement may not be sufficient or efficient, at the installation of the Pastor, the members of the church affirm this promise:

"And do you engage to continue to him while he is your Pastor that competent worldly maintenance which you have promised and to furnish him with whatever you may see needful for the honor of religion and for his comfort among you?"

Easily Forgotten or Overlooked.

The Minister is the God-appointed inspirer of every good cause. He pleads for all enterprises that are for the cause of Christ and the good of his fellowmen. He is modestly reticent when it comes to pleading for his own support. He is often negligent in pleading for fellow ministers who are in need—for fear some may think he pleads for self.

God knew the tendency to overlook, especially when by reason of infirmity or old age the Minister must retire both from the ministry and from income. And when Israel was busy with its conquests He said once and again, "Take heed to thyself that thou forsake not the Levite as long as thou livest on the land." In a masterful way, Paul the Apostle in the ninth chapter of I Corinthians shows how this responsibility has carried over into the Christian Church.

In a powerful exposition of this chapter (which may be had from this Department), Dr. Harris E. Kirk, Moderator of the General Assembly in 1928-29, says: "That the Church neglects its duty to the infirm servants is a fact; but this neglect is due less to a lack of gratitude than to a lack of information."

A Serious Situation.

Many of the ministers and missionaries of the Presbyterian Church are laboring on wholly insufficient salaries. They are not able to meet the cost of living, they have to deny necessary things and needful cultural advantages to their families, they cannot purchase books and magazines nor attend conferences that will stimulate their thought and improve their messages. Many are deeply involved in debt, and cannot "provide for their own."

On the roll of Ministerial Relief are 178 ministers and missionaries who have borne the burden of the day and the sorrow of the night, 248 widows and 48 orphans who have shared the privation of faithful servants of Christ and His Church. In these homes are many little, fatherless children under 14 years of age.

We are making larger grants from Ministerial Relief than any other Church in North America, with a single exception, and last year we were able to send an average of only $415 to each of the 466 families on the roll which must be scaled this year.

Future Plans of the Church.

For twenty-five years we have prayerfully and carefully studied this problem, which in all the Churches is serious and growing more critical every year. We look forward now with courage and hope. Each General Assembly since 1924 has appointed a ministerial pension plan, the Ministers' Annuity Fund, and this year directed all its agencies to co-operate in its establishment, and urged its ministers and churches to adopt and enter into the Fund.

Three carefully prepared leaflets on the Ministers' Annuity Fund may be had on application. Please watch this page for answers to the questions, What is the Ministers' Annuity Fund? How will it benefit the Minister and the Church? Is it safe and sound? Is it equitable and just? Is it feasible for our Church? Will it meet the needs? What safeguards will be thrown around it? And other questions.

(Ask any question and we will gladly answer.)

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH IN THE UNITED STATES,
Department of Ministerial Relief and Ministers' Annuity Fund,

Henry H. Sweets, Secretary. John Stites, Treasurer.

410 Urban Building, Louisville, Kentucky.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

Religious Newspaper for the Family

Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.

DGES, D.D., Editor-in-Chief
LLS, D.D., Co-Editor
ASPER WILLIS, Contributing Editor

ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858

M. F. ELLIS, Vice-President
REV. J. G. GARTH, Treasurer and News Editor
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
BY PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY

CHARLOTTE, N. C., AUGUST 14, 1929

No. 33

General Missions' Conference at Montreat

Moderators and Secretaries with Ordinary Visitors

Gray McAllister

August 4th, was one of the best ever spent here at Montreat. The weather was ideal and great attendance was present in the Anderson Hall. Several services of the General Assembly, pastored by Dr. Thompson, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Charlotte, Virginia, was the preaching and evening. At the close he spoke most impressively of the closing chapter of the book and dwelt upon the work of the early missionaries who were their work in the conquest of the sovereignty of God in the presence of Christ at the evening hour. Dr. McAllister on Luke 15:18, "I will praise my Father." It was an eloquent presentation of the love of God and the soul hunger that is satisfied with a return to God.

Dr. Bedinger of our Belgian congregation, who led the colored people at the service and Mrs. H. H. Munroe, of Japan, led the vespers at the building that evening. The service was listened to with the usual large audiences. Both Dr. and Mrs. Munroes are spending the week at Montreat.

Dr. Anderson, Jr., Pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Dallas, Texas, of which he was co-pastor with his father for a number of years, reached here Monday morning and gave that afternoon a series of Bible Studies throughout the General Conference, which opened Sunday, August 4th, and will close at 12 o'clock, August 14. At the beginning of the Bible Hour prayer was led by Egbert W. Smith, Executive Secretary of the Committee of Foreign Missions, Nashville, Tenn.

Dr. Anderson, Chairman of the Montreat Committee, called attention to the fact that Montreat owes a great debt to the State of Texas, not only in the fact that many of the Texas Presbyterians are at Montreat during the summer, but also because of the fact that the Texas have taken and will take part in the six Conferences of the General Assembly this season. He spoke especially of the fact that Dr. S. Clyde, President of the General Assembly at Sherman, Texas, who took part in the Conference at Montreat, with which the General Conference season began. In the General Conference which immediately followed there was a large representation from the State of Texas and the Executive Committee was represented by Mrs. J. W. Culver of Dallas, Texas. The Dean of the Montreat Training School, which closed last week, Dr. E. B. Paisley, former Moderator of the General Assembly at Richmond, Va., and the leaders in the School of the State of Texas. A number of the leaders in the School of the State of Texas. A number of the leaders in the School of the State of Texas.

Peace Getting Ready to Open

Girls' Junior College Preparing for Work at Raleigh, N. C.

Peace Institute is expecting to open its 58th session on September 12 with few faculty changes and its usual enrollment. There is still dormitory space for students who are interested in attending this fall.

The new faculty will include Miss Alice Meserve, of Raleigh, who will teach Latin; Miss Daisy Frances Smith, of Atlanta, Ga., who will be head of the History Department; Miss Myra Williams, of Antreville, S. C., who will be head of the Science Department; and Miss Isabel Jones, of Milledgeville, Ga., who will be Physical Director. There will be no faculty changes in any of the special departments.

Courses to be offered will include a two-year Teachers' Course with special attention to Child Study, Classroom Management, Methods of Teaching, Drawing, Music, and other subjects. The State of North Carolina Department of Education grants a Grammar Grade Certificate to graduates of this course.

The usual two-year college standard course will be offered with electives. Graduates of this curriculum have no difficulty in entering the junior class of any college or university in North Carolina or adjoining states. Other two-year college courses offered include electives in Home Economics as well as in Piano, Voice, and associated subjects.

A Commercial Course which can be completed in either one or two years is offered. This is very popular and includes the necessary training in office management, spelling, etc.

Students are able to take special (Continued on Page Two)

General Missions Conference now in session, among them Mr. E. D. Grant now of Nashville but formerly of Texas, who with the Rev. P. D. Miller of Atlanta is one of the presiding officers of the Conference; Dr. Lawrence H. Wharton, of Austin, Texas, who is leading the Missionary Hour each morning; Dr. W. M. Anderson, who has charge of the Bible Hour each day; Dr. J. W. Skinner, former Moderator of the General Assembly and for a number of years past the President of Tex-Mex Institute, Kingsville, Texas, on the program for an address on Monday night, August 5th, and Dr. George W. Truett, of Dallas, Texas, who reaches Montreat, from his annual cowboy meeting in West Texas, next Friday afternoon. The statement was made that there are many others besides Texans on the program, but that Texas nevertheless is making no small contribution to the work of Montreat this summer. Doctor Anderson in his response expressed his very great pleasure in being at Montreat and in finding here such ideal conditions for the Conferences that fill the Montreat season. Doctor Anderson began a series of studies in the Epistle to the Colossians and introduced this Epistle to his hearers in a most attractive and forceful fashion. This Epistle will be the basis of the Bible studies to be given in the Bible Hour each morning at ten o'clock.

One of the fine features of Montreat is the widely representative character of

School of Music and Men's Conference Closes

Massanetta Springs Enjoys Two Periods, with Large Audiences

The School of Music and the Men's Conference closed at Massanetta Springs Sunday night.

One of the interesting features of the School of Music at Massanetta Springs, four miles east of Harrisonburg, was the sacred concert by one hundred trained voices chosen from the various churches in the Synod of Virginia. Mr. G. A. Lehman, who was at the head of the School of Music at Massanetta Springs, and Mrs. LoRean Hodapp, trained these voices for this remarkable demonstration. About two thousand people from the States of Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia were present.

The audience was thrilled by the various worshipful numbers so artistically rendered. In this jazzy age, it was unusually refreshing to listen to such a high type of music, the kind that lifts one into the presence of the Lord himself. It was a practical demonstration of the ideal type of worshipful music. The various singing parts were blended together in one grand harmony, showing the skill of the trainer and director. The solos of Mrs. LoRean Hodapp stood out in an unusual way. The Male and Junior Chorus came in for their full share of praise, having sung in a beautiful and most attractive manner. It was a musical festival put on by real artists.

The School of Music was put on by six members of the Faculty of the Westminster Choir School, Dayton, Ohio. Some of the members of this Faculty recently made a tour of Europe, singing before crowned heads, taking Europe by storm.

The Men's Conference was pronounced by some as the most helpful and effective ever held at Massanetta Springs. There (Continued on Page Two) the constituency to be found upon its grounds each season. For example, two of the former Moderators of the General Assembly are spending the entire summer here: Dr. William J. Martin, of Davidson, North Carolina, and Dr. Alexander Sprunt, of Charleston, South Carolina. Other Moderators who have been here within the recent weeks are: Dr. Walter L. Lingle, of Richmond, Virginia; Dr. Charles R. Hemphill, of Louisville, Ky.; Dr. T. S. Clyde, of Sherman, Texas; Dr. J. Sprole Lyons, of Atlanta, Georgia; Dr. J. W. Skinner, of Kingsville, Texas, and Dr. R. F. Campbell, of Asheville, N. C. Dr. Harris E. Kirk, of Baltimore, the Moderator of the 1928 Assembly, was here during the Montreat Assembly in May, the Assembly of which Dr. Wm. R. Dobyns, of Birmingham, Alabama, was the Moderator. Dr. James I. Vance, Moderator of the Assembly of 1918, is to be one of the speakers in the Bible Conference here the latter part of August.

In addition to this list, a large number of Secretaries of our great causes have been present here from time to time. Of the Committee of Foreign Missions, Dr. Egbert W. Smith, the Executive Secretary, Mr. Edward D. Grant, the Educational Secretary, Dr. Darby Fulton, Field Secretary, all of Nashville, Tennessee, and Dr. S. H. Chester, Secretary Emeritus, who makes his home at Montreat. The Committee of Home Missions has been represented by Dr. S. L. Morris, Executive Secretary, Dr. Homer McMillan,

Musicians to Meet In Toronto

For the first time in the history of the National Association of Organists, the members of that organization instead of meeting at an important city in the United States for their annual convention, will journey to Toronto. There they will join with the Canadian College of Organists in celebrating its twentieth anniversary, on August 27, 28, 29, 30.

In view of the international aspect of that meeting, many notable events have been prepared. On Thursday evening the Toronto Exhibition Chorus of two thousand voices will give a special program in honor of the convention delegates. Preceding that concert the Directors of the Toronto Exhibition will give a dinner to the visiting organists.

At the new Royal York Hotel, which boasts of having the largest organ to be found in any hotel, and which will serve as Convention Headquarters, there will be demonstrations and recitals by men of note. Four American and two Canadian recitalists will join in other recitals to be held in the important churches of Toronto.

Another feature of the convention will be the playing of the organ compositions which won the cash prizes donated by the Skinner Organ Company in a competition under the auspices of the National Association of Organists during the past year. A large attendance of both American and Canadian Organists is expected for this convention. A complete program of the convention may be obtained by writing to the Association at 49 West 20th St., New York City.

General Secretary and Rev. P. D. Miller, Educational Secretary, all of Atlanta, Georgia. Representatives of the Committee of Christian Education have been Dr. Henry H. Sweets, Executive Secretary; Dr. John H. Powell, Jr., Field Secretary; Dr. H. W. McLaughlin, Director of Country Church Work, the full staff of workers among our Young People, and Miss Mildren Welch, whose work in literature has made her so widely known and who is spending the entire summer at Montreat. Mr. R. E. Magill, the Executive Secretary of the Committee of Religious Education and Publication, spends each summer here and Dr. John L. Fairley, the new co-ordinate Secretary of Religious Education yielded fine service here as speaker and teacher in the second week of the Montreat Leadership Training School. In addition to these Secretaries a number of the members of the staff of this Committee were teachers in the Montreat Leadership Training School. Miss Anne H. Rankin, Editor of the Junior Quarterly, makes her home at Montreat through the summer months.

Miss Janie W. McGaughey, Secretary of the Department of Women's Work, has been making Montreat her headquarters for most of the summer, going out from this point to fill certain very important engagements. While at Montreat she has had most valuable assistance from a fine group of workers, especially through the period of the Training School for Auxiliary Leaders.

Winona Lake National Bible Conference

Great interest is being manifested in the Annual Bible Conference which will open at Winona Lake, Indiana, Friday morning, August 16, under the direction of Dr. W. E. Biederwolf. If more powerful preachers, stronger Bible teachers and talent in general than have been engaged for this Conference by the Director, were to be found it would be hard to find out where they could be secured. Among them are: Dr. Robert Watson, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Boston, who will preach the opening sermon; Dr. Frank H. Ballard of London, England; Dr. H. J. Wicks, Bristol, England; Dr. J. C. Masee, Boston; Dr. William Crowe, and Dr. Robert G. Lee of the Southland; Dr. Robert Scott Inglis, Dr. Jacob Peltz, Dr. Max Reich, Dr. Beiber and Dr. Robertson coming as Bible Interpreters. Others announced are: Drs. M. B. Williams, Oliver E. Williams, Charles Reign Scoville, O. A. Newlin, William Leach, J. Wesley Oborn, Peter MacFarlane, "Mission Boys," and missionaries from all parts of the world.

Thursday, August 22, will be Home-Coming Day. On this anniversary of the founding of the Winona institutions a great program will be given. The principal speaker will be Rev. Billy Sunday in the afternoon at 3 o'clock. Music will be furnished by the famous Rex Arlington Symphony Orchestra. Refreshments will be served, stories of other days will be told, old timers will be present and a really dent, "Let's feed it and make it grow." wonderful day it will be.

On Saturday evening, August 24, Homer Rodeheaver with soloists and chorus will render "The Messiah."

Sergeant Alvin C. York, the great war hero, will be one of the speakers on the closing Sunday, August 25. He will tell the story of his life. Dr. J. C. Masee will preach the closing sermon in the evening. At 9:15 p. m. communion service. A large attendance is expected.

The Presbyterians will hold their rally in the chapel of the Westminster Hotel, August 21.

M. A. Martin.

PEACE GETTING READY TO OPEN

(Continued from page 1)

work in Voice, Piano, Art, and Expression whether or not they are regular students of the school. This year Peace is offering class work in Piano. The Meissner Melody Way will be the method taught, and those familiar with this realize the popularity and efficiency of such a course. Miss Lovie Jones who has been a member of the Peace Music Faculty will be in charge of this work. She has taught his work at the Sherwood Conservatory, Chicago, Ill., for several years in their summer term. The charge for this course will be $60 a year. Individual instruction in music will be given as usual.

The usual four years of high school work conforming in general to the North Carolina State requirements will be offered. The classes are small in almost all cases, and individual students receive a great deal more attention than is possible in larger classes. This year a special course in Home Economics will be offered for students in the first and second years of high school. A charge of $30 will be made for this course which will comprise both cooking and sewing. Another special course in Bible will be offered for students in the third and fourth year of high school.

The Seventh Grade work will be available again. Peace has been offering Seventh Grade work for five years, and there has been a growing appreciation of it by Raleigh patrons. Students in this grade often find the transfer

Dr. Zwemer Called To Chair at Princeton

Missionary Among Mohammedans for 30 Years Resigns to Enter New Field

Dr. Samuel M. Zwemer, for over 30 years a missionary under the United Presbyterian Church to the Mohammedan world, has accepted the invitation of Princeton Theological Seminary to occupy the chair of History of Religion and Christian Missions, and will begin his work at the seminary in the fall. Dr. Zwemer has had a successful career as a missionary among the Mohammedans in Arabia and Egypt, the later having been the last field in which he served. He has made many world tours and has spoken in behalf of Mohammedan missions in all parts of the Christian world. He has always been popular in America as a speaker because of the forceful style and illuminating manner of presentation of his theme.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC AND MEN'S CONFERENCE CLOSES

(Continued from page 1)

were probably 500 men at the various services throughout the four days. Dr. Wm. M. Anderson, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Dalas, Tex., Dr. H. W. DuBose, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Spartanburg, S. C., and Dr. T. K. Young, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Roanoke, Va., were the principal speakers. A number of prominent laymen took an active part on the program: Dr. G. H. Cartledge, of Baltimore, Md., Mr. F. L. Temple, Chairman of the Men's Work of the Synod of Virginia, Roanoke, Va., Mr. M. M. Edgar, Staunton, Va.

The Lutheran Church Workers Conference and Training School of the Synod of Virginia is now in session at Massanetta Springs, August 5-11. Among the prominent speakers are Dr. Luther A. Weigle, of Yale University, Dr. Paul Sherrer, of New York, N. Y., Dr. P. D. Brown, Columbia, S. C., and Dr. J. J. Scherer, Jr., of Richmond, Va.

The great Bible Conference opens at Massanetta Springs on August 12th and continues through August 25th. Among the attractions will be an address by Sergeant Alvin C. York, of World War fame, on August 15th; "World Missions," presented by Dr. Robert E. Speer; "Explorations and Discoveries in Bible Lands," by Dr. George L. Robinson; "The Boy Scout Movement," by Dr. Ray O. Wyland; "Worshipful Music," by Dr. Hubert McNeill Poteat; sermons and addresses by men of national reputation, for example, Dr. John Timothy Stone, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian Church, Chicago; Dr. Wm. Evans, known the world over for his famous Bible expositions; Dr. J. Alfred Kaye, pastor of the New Court Church, Tollington Park, London, England; Dr. P. W. Philpott, Pastor of the Moody Memorial Church, Chicago, who twice declined nomination to Parliament from Canada; Dr. Wm. Hiram Foulkes, Newark, N. J., Rev. Gypsy Smith, Jr., the flaming evangelist of the South, and Dr. Sam L. Joekel, professor of English Bible in the Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary. Mr. Homer Hammontree, the most outstanding evangelistic singer on the Continent, will be the soloist and song director.

from Grammar School to Junior High School difficult. Especial effort is made by the school to assist these students in getting properly adjusted in their work. Parents who are interested in having their children take this grade should register for the same at the school.

With a new library, new dormitory with complete modern appointments, new class rooms, and new equipment, Peace is in a position to provide school work in a comfortable and happy environment.

The president is in his office daily to confer with those who are interested in planning work for 1929-1930.

THE GENERAL MISSIONS' CONFERENCE AT MONTREAT

(Continued from page 1)

In order to break through the strenuous work of the Conferences two nights each week are assigned for entertainments, and an unusually fine list has marked this Montreat season. On Wednesday night of last week Mr. Edourd Albion, Founder and President of the Washington National Opera, gave a recital in the Auditorium before a most appreciative audience. An ovation was extended to Mr. Albion at the conclusion of the evening's entertainment. On Saturday night the Boys' Club of Montreat presented their annual play, and a clever one it was and vigorously applauded by the great audience present. The cast of the play is as follows:

J. Gray McAllister, Jr., Richmond, Va.

Elizabeth Gilmour, Wilmington, N. C.

Allen Wilson, Montreat, N. C.

Elizabeth Munroe, Japan.

Ethel Keesler, Greenwood, Miss.

Agnes Bitzer, Holly Springs, Miss.

Stephen White, Mebane, N. C.

Heathley Weldon, of South Carolina.

James Moore, Japan.

Albert Hicklin, Upper Sinclair, N. J.

On Wednesday evening, August 7th, Miss Irene Bewley, of Greenville, Tenn., and Boston, Mass., Dramatic Reader and Interpreter of mountain life, presented an original program, "Tales of the Tennessee Hills." In a very effective way she presented the mountaineers as seen through the movies and other mountaineers seldom seen in the movies; a fashionable home in New York City and a cabin in the Unaka Mountains; and: "Thar's Somethin' In It," with scenes in a mountain home and the County Court House, where the leading character is finally set free.

Something has been said above of the widely representative character of the mountain clientele. Parked between the Cafeteria and the Alba Hotel on a recent morning were 27 cars, six of them from North Carolina, four from Virginia, three from Georgia, three from Alabama, four from Tennessee, two from Mississippi, and one each from South Carolina, Florida, Ohio, Connecticut, and California.

Dr. Gilbert Glass of Richmond, Va., Editor and Chief of our Church publications recently spent a week in Montreat with his family.

Dr. Charles M. Richards of the Department of Bible of Davidson College, is here with his family for the summer. Governor John J. Richards (Dr. Richard's brother), of South Carolina, spends some days of each summer here.

Mr. and Mrs. Agner Demarest of Norfolk, Va., who have for years been engaged in evangelistic work, drove from their home in Norfolk last Monday, a distance of 425 miles, in order to be here through a part of the General Missions Conference. Mrs. Demarest, who is a granddaughter of General William Booth, the founder of the Salvation Army, spoke most effectively at vespers, on the porch of the Winsborough building, on Wednesday evening, August 7th, on the thought brought out in the Sermon on the Mount—"Christians as the Light of the World."

Mrs. Demarest will speak again to the women at the Bible Conference on "Mary, the Mother of Jesus."

The Ad Interim Committee on the survey of the whole Home Mission situation throughout our Church concluded its labors here on Wednesday evening, August 7th. This Committee, with Dr. Samuel M. Glasgow, of Knoxville as Chairman, included a representative from each of our Synods.

Ministers and laymen and large numbers of women are arriving for the final conferences of the Montreat season, as well as to get in some part of the General Missions Conference, which closes Wednesday night, August 14.

DEVOTION

FACTS VERSUS TH

Egbert W. Smi

On the foreign field one ly being reminded not of power to save from sin Saviour's proved ability evil spirits. Writing from China, Rev. Charles W. tells of the work of a nat who had been put in charge of Christians who slidden and appeared s dead than alive. Writes

"This man comes from try family but had had fe al advantages and was n to be a very promising an prospect. When he had t for six months however, sionary in charge went o candidates for baptism, meeting with the usual gr en or so, he had one hund people present themselves that time it has been ab twice yearly, and the preship of that church is th

"The big secret of this development has been th pastor believed in praye fore he had answers to Before long he had a gre intelligent and willing he with him in his big field. of their time was spent i sick and those who were spirits. They prayed for these people, and their answered. It is a situat similar to many in the Ne We may have all our theories that we choose healing and demon posse simple fact is that sick raised to health, and human beings were rest now to be found, clothed in their right minds, at Jesus."

ONLY A POTTER'S ES

Only a potter's vessel,
Broken and cast aside
By some impatient pott
Who cared not what b

"There lacks somewhat
In cement moisture or
To make a useful vessel."
And so it was cast awa

But ere the clay had har
The Lord came throug
And saw the vessel lying Marred on the potter's

He picked it up in sadne
The clay so mixed with
And then began to moul
With wise and loving

He pressed it, smoothed
Now yielded to His will
And a glorious vessel ma
The finest in all the ki

Only a potter's vessel
Broken by sin's abuse,
But fashioned again in be Mect for the Master's
C. M. Ca
Pratt City, Ala.

While Dr. Wm. F. Weir pal speaker on the pre Men's Work Conference 20, a number of other be heard: Dr. George Dallas, Texas, (on the pr three final conferences hert E. Speer, of New Y. Dr. John M. Vander Me ville. Then in the Bible August 18-25, the last of six conferences of the sea diences will hear not only but also Doctor Speer, Meulen, Doctor Truett a l. Vance in messages in outstanding men excel,

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

FOUNDED 1858

Organ of the Synod of N. C. for 70 Years

The Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as Second Class Matter

Terms—The subscription price of the Standard is payable in advance. To ministers the price is $2.00 per year. To ministers' wives the price is $2.50 per year.

The mailing label shows the month and year to which the subscription is paid. Payment in advance is required.

Subscriptions may be made by money order, check, or registered letter, and sent by mail.

Obituary Notices—No charge is made for notices of death, but for all over fifty words the charge is $1.00 per word.

Advertisements—Sent on application.

Changes—Kindly send us both old and new addresses to insure a change to the desired change.

Changes are made only upon the written request of the subscriber. Settlement in full must be made at the same time.

Advertising and Business Communications Should be Addressed to
PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD
 Box 869
 Charlotte, N. C.

EDITORIAL

PRAYER AT MONTREAT

Two weeks ago we dwelt upon the abuses of prayer for that reason we would change

Blackwood in his discussion of the Pharisee and Publican, default house recently, has turned our attention to some of the abuses in the prayer that it would be well to em-attention to the scolding prayer in which one takes occasion to scold Christ for various delinquencies.

It is probable that all have seen such cases and it is probable that we ourselves have sinned along this brother has been guilty of a sin which has yet become public, what a temptation to call his attention to the wrong, to talk with him, but rather by a some imaginary sinner, thereby relieving ourselves from some embarrassment.

How often have we heard a minister exhort us to prayer, while he is praying on more than one occasion when the preacher resembled the front page of the paper as the preacher kindly gave our sins of the day.

These faults could be avoided if we remember the definition of prayer, as given in the Shorter Catechism. It is the offering of our desires unto God for things which are His will, in the name of Christ, with a joyful acknowledgement of His

that our Lord commended was that of the Publican—a direct petition which was short and to the point, in contrast to several of the prayers that were heard by visiting brethren on the Bible hour at Montreat.

We were asked to offer prayer before the Bible hour, on the Bible lecture in the

some of the prayers offered were in some provoked criticism by reason of their length, and by their lack of what my brother, J. Addison Smith, used to call

“a long prayer.” He led the opening prayer at a Bible hour, not a Sunday night service, re- sulting in a week-night address.

It took eight minutes, according to one who told us. He used vain repetitions and wandered over the wide field of thought.

Not alone in our criticisms. They were made by us from several, with the request that we improve matters.

It is a solemn act, and its results are not to be imagined. It takes us into the presence of God, and brings to us His word.

Prayer offered in the spirit of intense earnestness, fully realizing the privilege of being in the presence of God, remembering that we are in the presence of one who knows all things and to whom there is no need that we should inform

Him, and moreover that you are praying to Him, and not to your audience.

Then you must remember that you are supposed to lead your audience in prayer, something you cannot do if, by the length of your prayer, you wear them out and cause them to have to fight sleep rather than follow you.

It may sound irreverent to criticize a prayer, but sometimes we have to risk the charge of irreverence, when a practice becomes so common as to cause a general protest.

It is impossible to lead a congregation in prayer, in the true sense of the word “lead,” unless you have that congregation in full sympathy with you, a condition impossible, when inwardly they are rebelling against you.

When you approach man with a request, you know beforehand what you want, and in the most direct way, you make your request known. Why not follow the same method when coming to Him?

Our Lord Himself warned us against that idea of the Pharisees who thought that they would be heard for their much speaking.

If He could criticize the prayer of the Pharisees, surely we, the mouthpiece of some human sufferers, can offer our criticism with the hope that those who thus sin may take heed and reform their ways.

DAVIDSON AND THE CHURCHES

We have carried in several issues some informing and illuminating advertisements of Davidson College, in which the publicity staff has given the public some striking facts about the College in its equipment, its organizations, and its financial ability. The claim that it is the best endowed college of our Church is no boast, but truth. The College has won a place in national esteem as an educational center and the Southern Presbyterian Church may look with great pride on this Church School. Her million dollar endowment, her plant worth a million and a half, her annual income of over $300,000 from fees and other sources give the College a high rating, well over all margins required by standardizing agencies.

Davidson's record as a recruiting station for the ministry and the forces of Church leadership cannot be surpassed by any college on earth. Annually there come streams of youth from her halls that make glad the city of our God. And with her equipment she is ready to deepen the stream, and accelerate the turbines of Church power to greater expressions of energy and achievement. Her sons love her and speak with pride of their Alma Mater and her service. They are buoyant with hope for her future.

Just now, Davidson is approaching a new era. She has a new president, she has a great new administration hall, and next month her dormitories will be filled with eager young life, which will find a college ready to invite them to invest their gifts in study and student activities which are sufficient to fill the orb of life of a four years' scholastic experience. Then, and not the least, of her assets, the Presbyteries have been putting on her board of directors some of Davidson's alumni who have made good in the business and professional world.

If I may I wish to dwell on the fact that Davidson has now on her board a number of aggressive, farseeing, hopeful men, many of them alumni of the school. A large number of these men have made names in the world, and with their names have come wealth and influence. They are proud of their Alma Mater, and they are proud of the opportunity that Davidson has. They frankly believe that their College has a right and a place in the world of education and the world of affairs, as well as being a foster mother for the Church. They want her to stand in the vanguard of progress, and not be a mere cadet among colleges. They want Davidson to teach the best and latest known to science, and sound a note in letters and economics, of which none shall be ashamed. At the same time they love the word of God and the gospel truth, and believe if Davidson has a raison d'être it is to place the Bible in the curriculum, and to encourage her sons to champion the scriptures as divine and the true light of men through Jesus Christ. Unless she shows her colors as a Christian college, she might as well resign and let the state schools do the work.

The point of this article is that Davidson's present board is ready to proceed to a much higher goal. They thank God for past leadership, but they are facing the future. They are ready to stand by the new president, Dr. W. L. Lingle, and give him a whole-souled co-operation. A new regime is opening and they believe it is going to succeed. They want the flaming youth that chafes to go to be led aright, safely, but aggressively, and feel a supreme confidence in their chosen head.

A closing word to the Church, whose creature Davidson is. Let us give these business men a chance to make the College what she should be. Let us open our pulpits to a man who can with warmth and logic be the exponent of the school in any sphere. Let us who are ministers refuse to quibble over points of order, cease to be mere Uzzahs who fear the ark will topple unless we put out our hands, but more like David, who, filled with enthusiasm, let us lead the procession into the holy city.

When we look at the plant and its endowment, the president and the faculty, the board with its far-seeing business men and its clerical members who know and love the foundations of righteousness and salvation, the homes that are sending their choicest youth for instruction, it seems as though Davidson stands as the “the heir of all the ages in the foremost ranks of time.”

J. G. G.

REV. DR. WM. M. ANDERSON, JR., AT MONTREAT

For nearly twenty years we have attended the Bible Hour at Montreat, and in that time we have heard outstanding men of our Church, some fine and some superfine, of whom some have passed to their reward, while others remain among us to this day.

In the main, they have rung true to the old Gospel, though now and then one seemed to sound a false note, the memory of which is like the “dead fly in the ointment.”

When we have gone back to our work, that false note filled us with gloomy forebodings. Whatever the forebodings in the past, or painful recollections of any false note, just now our heart is full of joy because as we listened, day by day, to Dr. Wm. M. Anderson, Jr., of Dallas, Texas, in his lectures on Colossians, we hear the word of our Lord assuring us that His Church, being built upon Him, will stand forever and that no carping criticism can weaken that foundation.

Without making any insidious comparisons between the past and present, we can truly say that we have never, in our long experience at Montreat, heard lectures that gripped our conscience or awakened us so strongly to the fact that we were not living up to our privileges, nor accepting the promises at their face value.

As far as we know this is Montreat's first experience with Doctor Anderson, but if we gauge the feelings of the audiences, it is the earnest wish that he may come again.

As we intimated in the beginning of this article, we have had lectures on the Bible, in the past, that indirectly undermined our faith in the old time interpretation of it, with the result that some were tempted to question the beliefs of the past.

Doctor Anderson's discussion of prayer was full of suggestions and comfort, and calculated to strengthen our belief in its efficiency, and also our appreciation of it as precious privilege.

He gave the four requisites for prayer as follows:

1. Submit to God, whatever the result. When you pray, keep hands off, and leave the outcome to Him.
2. Ask in His name, that is your only warrant.
3. Ask for what you want, “In every thing,” nothing too trivial.
4. Be content with His will.

He illustrated these points by his own experiences. We wish that we could reproduce this lecture. As you listen to him and hear his experience, you realize that there is power in prayer of which we seldom avail ourselves.

THE MODERN GALLIO

Charles Hadden Nabers, D.D.

"Gallio cared for none of these things." To this little sentence found in the eighteenth chapter of Acts there are several interpretations. Quite likely in the acceptance of each of them there is a helpful meaning to be had. To me, however, the outstanding attitude of this Roman deputy of Achaia was one of indifference. In that respect he has left a multitude of successors yet with us.

Indifference to Religion

In many quarters there is today a great indifference to religion. This is indicated by articles on this theme found not only in church periodicals but also in many of the magazines which ordinarily give no space to religious matters. In the British Weekly recently Prof. David Smith, D.D., was called upon to answer the question, "What are we to make of the fading out of the life of the church of today of the weekly meeting for prayer?" The very fact that such a question is asked indicates indifference on the part of many people to one of the standard modes for expressing religion. Doctor Smith's answer was as follows:

"We recall the fashion of a generation ago, when the weekly prayer meeting was largely attended, and lament that so few gather now, oblivious how meanwhile the old order has changed, yielding place to new. And this in at least two ways.

"(1) Our congregational activities have of late been largely, and indeed recklessly, multiplied. Formerly, when the stated ordinances were two diets of public worship, the Sunday School and the minister's Bible class on the Lord's Day and the midweek prayer meeting, regular and full attendance was easy; but how meagre that programme looks nowadays when every evening is occupied with several meetings, sometimes running simultaneously! What wonder none thrive? Prune the vine, and it will bear more fruit.

"(2) Especially since the war, life is far fuller and business far keener and more exacting than of old, and men need the breathing space of a quiet evening when the day's work is done. Nor is it a fair rejoinder that so many find relaxation of an evening at concerts, theatres, political meetings and dinner parties. For such men are not in the present reckoning. They have been with us always. There are not the sort that frequented prayer meetings of old. Those that count here are God-fearing men who love the Lord and are loyal to the Church; and it is well for a minister to have several such among his intimates that he may appreciate their position. I realized the situation once in talking with a friend, a 'merchant prince,' generous to every good cause. 'I used,' said he, 'to attend the prayer meeting when business was less of a rush; but now when I get home, I am dead beat, and I simply can't turn out again. And besides,' he added, 'I always like to have "the reading" with the children before they go to bed.'

In spite of all that Doctor Smith has to say, there is still much indifference that is not thus to be explained.

The Cause of Indifference

What is the cause of indifference to religions?

One cause is that a man may assume a forced indifference to religious matters because he dreads to face the consequences of his sin. Outwardly he is indifferent, inwardly he is cowardly. Like the little boy going along the dark street at night, he is whistling to keep his courage, but he knows his soul is filled with fear.

Another reason for indifference is that many people are pre-occupied with other things. Good things crowd out best things. Being busy prevents time being given for religious matters. Robert Quillen well illustrates the attitude of many people in his little story:

"There was a certain young lady who longed for a career. She lived with her parents in an apartment that she described as a "stuffy old hole," and she slept late in the morning and was bored all day. She considered her parents an affliction.

One morning she sat on the steps in front of the house and dreamed of the things she would like to do.

She wished to serve. She thought it would be wonderful to serve as a nurse at the battle front and hold some handsome young captain's head in her lap and shed tears over him, or even to be a nurse in a hospital and sit beside dashing young millionaires who had wrecked their cars. The mere thought of being so useful gave her a pleasant feeling of righteousness.

But, of course, nurses make little money, and she would need a great deal of money. She thought she would like to be a buyer for some big store and perhaps go abroad once a year to select frocks, and have all expenses paid, and get an enormous salary. And after a time the firm would take her as a partner and she would be fixed for life.

Still, few buyers are really famous, and it would be nice to be famous. She wished to stand before multitudes of smart people, and bow and smile to them and hear the music of their clapping hands.

She was tired of her dull existence. She wished to serve; to get money, to win commendation.

While she dreamed, her mother appeared at the door. "Mabel," said she, "that Smith woman upstairs is sick, and there ain't nobody to care for her baby. She says she'll pay six dollars a week to anybody that'll keep it, and your pa would be right proud to have you do something useful like that. Won't you do it, hon?"

Mabel sniffed.

"I hate squallin' brats," said she, "and six dollars ain't pin money, and I don't care what pa thinks of me, anyway."

Another reason for indifference is that at certain times in their lives men err in their under-valuation of the place of religion in daily life. Even taken at its lowest valuation, religion is all-important. A great city church advertised in a daily paper its services this way:

"What makes your property safe?

This town can't afford to hire enough policemen to guard every residence, if thieves were determined to rob.

Nor can the banks buy enough insurance policies to protect their funds if all the tellers and clerks were bent on stealing.

The sense of right—taught by the church—is the moral restraining force in every community. The church is back of every investment made in this or any other town. Think it over.

If this puts your responsibility to the church in a new light, worship with some church next Sunday."

But this is the lowest valuation to put upon religion. In a current magazine a heroine on Sunday morning looks back from the Long Island revels in which the society folks there are engaged to the religious atmosphere of her early days and realizes that character has not grown stronger or better because of the present indifference to religion. A Kentucky business man visiting in Pensacola several weeks ago said to me during an automobile ride, "We need more than anything else the contacts that can be had only at the church." He was revising his estimates as to the value of religion, and revising them upward! A prominent civic leader in the city said this week in conversation, "I have been thinking today of the men whose influence was greatest in the little town where I grew up, they were all religious men."

How to Overcome Indifference

The question of greatest importance is, how can indifference to religion be overcome in the lives of those who are modern Gallios?

It can be done first, by helping the indifferent man to realize the value of his own personality. Character is contagious. A powerful influence to bring to bear on an indifferent man is the personality of some God-filled soul. In this way we help the indifferent man to realize the value of his own personality. Above everything else Jesus exalted personality. Every man ought to realize the real value of his own personality in view of the fact that Jesus lived and Jesus died for his sake. Character in the individual is always determined by the things to which the individual gives the largest amount of time. Individuals who are indifferent to spiritual concerns are never other than little in character. Men who are indifferent to religion should face the facts of life. What are these facts? One of them is, that every man has deep in his soul the sense of a need of God.

"If God forgot the world,
Forgot for just one day—
Forgot to send the sunshine,
And change the night to day;
Forgot to make the flowers grow;
Forgot the birds and bees;
Forgot to send the sweetness
Of the south wind in the trees;
Forgot to give us friendships;
Forgot to send us rain;
Forgot to give the children play;
Forgot to soften pain;
What would happen to the world and us?
Would we still be gay?
If God should forget—
Forgot for just one day?"

Another fact is, every man has a sense of sin. And the third fact is, that the soul of man if unhindered reaches out for God. He who is honest will face the fact that Jesus lived an absolutely unique life, brought a message and did a work which challenges the loyalty and the service of every sane man. Honesty of mind demands that not only shall man face the facts of life, but that whenever a man sees truth he must act upon it. To see truth and fail to act upon it is to lose your intellectual self-respect. To know truth and fail to act upon it to the best of our ability is intellectual dishonesty, sin, moral suicide.

The Preoccupied Man

What shall we say to the man who says, "I am pre-occupied, I have no time for religion"? At least three things can be said.

The first, "You do find time for all things that you consider worth while. If you are convinced that religion is worth while you will find time for it in your life. You will arrange your schedule to include it."

A second thing to say to him is, "It doesn't take more time to be in a friendly attitude toward God and toward man than it does to be in an unfriendly attitude." The man who wastes the most time is the man in the valley of indecision. "Why do you go to chapel each morning," a freshman asked a senior in a university where chapel attendance was optional. The reply was significant, "I go because I lose so much time trying to decide every morning what to do."

"There was an old fellow who never had time
For a fresh morning look at the Volume sublime;
Who never had time for the soft hand of prayer

To smooth out the wrinkles of labor and care
Who could not find time for that service
At the altar of home, where the dear ones
And never found time for the people of God
To learn the good way the fathers had trod
But he found time to die; oh yes, he found

"This busy old fellow, too busy was he
To linger at breakfast, at dinner, or tea,
For the merry small chatter of children or
But he lived in his marriage, a bachelor
Too busy for kisses, too busy for play,
No time to be loving, no time to be gay,
No time to replenish his vanishing health,
No time to enjoy his gathering wealth,
But he found time to die; oh yes, he found

A third thing is, you really gain time by being a Christian. Every person who has any serious work to do it better when he comes to that work in a calm composure that Christ gives.

Not Feeling Like Being a Christian

What can we say to the man who says, "I do not feel like being a Christian?"

The first thing to say is, "You cannot afford to neglect your feelings alone." In realms of action men give precedence to their feelings over their judgment. In our decisions, feelings are to be considered. Judgment is also to be reckoned with. As to say to such an individual is, "All of our education has been in the attempt to enslave us as we ought to feel rather than to act as we ought. He may say, "If I act I don't feel that I am a Christian." Not necessarily, it is far better for a man to feel wrong and act right than to feel right and act wrong both.

The Self-Satisfied Man

What shall be said to the man who is self-satisfied?

At least two things are evident in the self-satisfied individual. He is taking the wrong view toward sin. No man with a true conception of sin remain satisfied until he has found in Jesus the only salvation. Not only so, but the greatest sin is neglect. "How shall we escape if we neglect salvation?" Surely one of the greatest of sins is murder or adultery or robbery, but ingratitude deliberately wounds the heart of Jesus is the greatest sin.

The time does come when the self-satisfied man, realizing his own insufficiency, cries out for help. Crises of life, self-satisfaction disappears. We reach for the all-powerful Hand. The woman in Fothingay Castle Mary Queen of Scots with her own hand this prayer in her manuscript shortly before her execution.

"O Lord, my God, my hope is placed Mine own dear Jesus, now deliver me
In hard dures,
In sad distress
I yearn for Thee.
Sighing and crying,
Kneeling before Thee,
I adore, I implore Thee, Deliver me."

Pensacola, Fla.

A WORD OF APPROVAL

Our Church papers are carrying an article by Arnett Gamble, entitled "Where is the Presbyterian Church Going in Young People?" One of the lay workers who has actually worked with our young people, I should like to express my approval of everything Mr. Gamble says in his article.

As much of my work during the last few years has been voluntary, I have been associated with four young people's societies. The weakest of these was a Presbyterian Young People's League, not necessarily because it was weak but because there was no one who could control the young people. Incidentally, rather than the type of organization, is suitable for the success or failure of a young people's society.

The finest society I have known for a Christian Endeavor Society in a Presbyterian school in the mountains. During the last year, we followed the Presbyterian Program, as outlined for us by our Synodical Commission, becoming an "honor society;" made a part of the mission work of our own Church. We followed the Christian Endeavor plan of organization, and their topics; and though many of our members were working their way through high school, we had a carefully prepared budget, to both support and Christian Endeavor causes.

Christian Endeavor is not dead and it will be for some time, unless the Southern Presbyterian Church helps to kill it. I have heard a number of times and have read a number of articles, and I consider him one of the best ministers in America. Nor have I heard of a number of conventions—a Southern Christian Endeavor leader speak slightly of

DUPLICATE LOCAL CHURCHES OF MINISTERIAL PENSIONS

by A. Huggins, Consulting Actuary

Why are we almost universally in agreement that a pension should be provided for our Protestant ministers in the event of age or disability, and a provision should be made for the widows and dependent children of those who, upon passing away, leave dependent ones.

Why do a few who seem to think that the minister should be allowed to come to age in want, so that he may have the satisfaction of ministering to his needs, and the minister himself really want to become an invalid?

Why do those who think that ministers' salaries are not adequate to enable them to make their own provision for old age or disability or death. It is perfectly true that in individual cases of ministers who, through the liberality of their congregations in the past, are able to make provision for their old age, and to protect their families in the event of their death; but these individual cases are the exception to the rule. We know that, as a group, the majority of our ministers are such that they simply cannot make provision for these contingencies. Therefore, the problem of the Church is to do so. It is the duty and the privilege of our Protestant churches to plan their affairs so that our ministers will be adequately cared for in age or disability. Many years since the only provision for disabled ministers was through relief grants. Happily, times have changed and adequate plans, that will prevent need, are being made.

The Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, in its forward step in the matter of pensions, has adopted the plan proposed for the Ministers' Pension Plan. This plan is now being presented to the churches and churches for their consideration, and that they agree to support the plan after their own operation by paying into the fund yearly, in the amount of the church, or other salary-paying organization, an amount equivalent to seven and one-half percent of the minister's salary, and he himself to pay two and one-half percent. Where the free use of a manse is not available, fifteen per cent is to be added to the amount of the rent. It becomes the duty of the church to know why they are supporting such a plan, especially as the cost is an important item in the budget of local expenses.

It is well worth the expense, for there are many advantages that will accrue to the local congregation as a result of the establishment of a sound and adequate pension system. These might be summed up as follows:

1. Churches are performing a Christian duty in providing for their aged servants, without letting them become objects of charity.

2. The church has awakened to the fact that it must provide for its aged servants, and the churches are beginning to lag behind industry where moral and social issues are involved.

3. Confidence in the minds and hearts of the men and women who do better work when they know that their old age is provided for and they are free of the anxiety and nerve-racking worry that the specter of old age hangs when it hovers in the background as the day of retirement.

4. In their prime, but approaching age, will those in the ministry who heretofore have felt impelled to turn into other pursuits so as to make at least a living for their age, rather than stay in the ministry and suffer want.

5. Men, feeling the call to the ministry, will be more likely to answer it because of having witnessed the example of an aged servant of the Church, whose old age provision had not been made—perhaps the minister's sufferer was his own father, who knows? We should not charge a young man with going into the ministry for the money he can make out of it, and like many a young man will enter the ministry just to get a living, but for lack of such pension many a young man may be deterred from entering the ministry. At least a reasonable minimum protection for the minor children, afforded through a pension plan, need not hesitate to answer the call, while not hesitating to enter a calling that requires sacrifices to themselves, are deterred by the fact that they have no right to thrust heart-breaking burdens upon their widows and minor children in the event of leaving such dependents.

6. Churches need no longer hesitate to call older men to fill their pulpits for fear that, in the event of age or disability, these men would become a care on the local church. The discrimination of the local church against the older men is the cause of much hardship and many injustices, but down at the bottom of it all, in most cases, there lies the fear above referred to, and this will be removed under an adequate pension system. It, therefore, will become easier for an older man to secure a new church when circumstances necessitate his making a change.

8th. Many a church keeps an older man in its pulpit long after his usefulness to that church has ceased and when it is a positive injury to that church to keep him, because of the fear that he will become an object of charity if they let him out. Under an adequate pension system no such situation would be necessary, because the pension would begin at the time the salary relationship ceased, and the minister's support would, therefore, continue. This would add greatly to the efficiency and progress of the local church.

9th. Many a church today makes its own provision for an aged pastor who has served faithfully and devotedly by paying him a salary as emeritus pastor, without requiring any service. This is a noble thing to do, but after all is, in many cases, a heavy financial burden for the church. Under a pension system the support of such a man would not fall on the local church, but would come from the pension system, extending over the whole church.

10th. Further, in actual operation a reserve pension system is more economical than a system where the pension roll is met currently out of the current receipts, for under the reserve pension system deposits are made each year in which service is rendered, and those deposits are increased by interest earnings, which in many cases will accrue during a long period of years. All these accumulations are on hand to provide the pension for the aged minister when he comes to retirement age. Through the operation of such a plan the interest earnings provide a very large proportion of the ultimate cost of the pensions, whereas if the pension payments are met currently we must raise not only the amount of the deposits that should have been set aside for the purpose during the past years of active service, but also the equivalent of what would have been the accumulated interest earnings.

In conclusion, it seems to be almost axiomatic that the value of a local church's participation in the support of a comprehensive pension system is not only spiritual and ethical, but a very practical and economic value.

Let us plan so that our ministers will come to age in peace and comfort—and not become objects of pity and charity.

For other information write the Secretary, 410 Urban Building, Louisville, Ky.

The Department of Woman's Work, Presbyterian Church, U. S. 270-277 Field Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

Alabama—Mrs. J. F. Hooper, 610 Mabry St., Selma, Ala.
Appalachia—Mrs. F. B. Kegley, Wytheville, Va.
Arkansas—Mrs. H. P. Cooper, Lebanon, Ky.
Florida—Mrs. W. G. Thompson, Jr., 3215 Obispo St., Palma Ceia Park, Tampa, Fla.
Georgia—Mrs. E. G. Abbott, 1315 Eberhart Ave., Columbus, Ga.
Kentucky—Mrs. H. P. Cooper, Lebanon, Ky.
Louisiana—Mrs. Charles L. Bodin, Box 79, M. R. A., Lake Charles, La.
Mississippi—Mrs. J. S. Hicks, Holly Springs, Miss.
Missouri—Mrs. Walter Craven, 223 Frances St., Excelsior Springs, Mo.
North Carolina—Mrs. G. V. Patterson, Gastonia, N. C.
Oklahoma—Mrs. Wilbur Garvin, 611 Euclid, Lawton, Oklahoma.
South Carolina—Mrs. Parker Connor, Edisto Island, S. C.
Tennessee—Mrs. J. F. Forsythe, Bethel Springs, Tenn.
Texas—Mrs. J. W. Culver, Texas Military Academy, San Antonio, Texas.
Virginia—Mrs. C. R. Vaughan, 319 Mountain Ave., Roanoke, Va.
West Virginia—Mrs. J. McD. Lacy, Elkins, W. Va.

SYNOCDICAL PRESIDENTS OF THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

COLORED WOMEN'S CONFERENCE

The Fifth Annual Conference for Colored Women, in the Synod of Florida, met at the Hungerford School, Eatonville, Florida, June 11 to 17. The meeting was conducted by Mrs. Arthur S. Harris, of Jacksonville, Synodical Chairman, assisted by Mrs. R. J. Knight.

There were present, eighteen delegates, besides a number of the young women who were attending summer school at Hungerford, and to whom Mrs. Harris extended a special invitation. Also one delegate was sent by the Auxiliary of one of the Methodist churches of Jacksonville.

The daily program began with Devotional by a delegate, and a Bible Study in the Book of Acts, led by Mrs. Wilbur Huffer, of Orlando. They selected Acts 1:8, for their Conference motto, and the song, "Something for Jesus" for their Conference hymn. By a delightful co-incidence almost every speaker who came to us, selected our Conference motto for the central theme of the talk.

Mrs. M. P. Kiser, President of St. John's Presbyterian introduced the Community Talks with an inspirational address on "Linking Home with School Life." The next day, Mrs. L. R. Andrews, Synodical Secretary of Young People's Work, talked on "Reaching the Young People." Under her skilled leading the discussion brought out the appalling task confronting these women, in their real desire to make home conditions more Christian, and more sanitary.

Mrs. Harris, taking the place of the absent member of Assembly's Home Missions Committee, presented "Home Missions in the Home Town," emphasizing the appeal to "begin in Jerusalem" their God-given task of "witnessing."

The Daily Vacation Bible School occupied one day's discussion. This was led by M. F. Stewart, one of the delegates who had just successfully concluded a school of three hundred children. She unconsciously expressed the greatest difficulty they have to meet, when she urged them "to get someone to help them, if possible, for it's a lot of work to do it by yourself."

The last meeting was devoted to a demonstration of a Woman's Auxiliary meeting and parliamentary law. How to open and close a meeting; read, discuss and adopt minutes and reports of treasurer and committees; dispose of old business, and introduce new; and how to take care of a motion after it is properly made. This was followed by a devotional program.

Mrs. K. B. Taylor, R. N. of the City Welfare Board of Orlando, spoke each day on "Parental Education." She stressed the responsibility of parents and teachers, and the terrible need for home training among the negroes. The last morning she made a strong appeal for real religion in their lives. She told of the remarkable improvement there had been in the Juvenile Court work, following a city wide Evangelistic Campaign, last fall.

The afternoons were given to rest and Domestic Art, with a program of Community Plays, by the City Director of Playgroup Work, and his aides of Orlando. In the Sewing Hour, the women made porch aprons for themselves, and a set of curtains with draperies for the newly finished Domestic Arts Building of the Hungerford School.

Again we were indebted to the speakers of the Young People's Conference at Winter Park, for our evening programs. These splendid talented young men gave of their best to these humble worshippers and our hearts burned within us as each in turn, without previous arrangement, announced his text from Acts 1:8. Mr. Raymond, Mr. McMurray, Mr. Kenneth Forman, of Davidson College, and Rev. Mercer Blaine of the China Mission Field, brought their widely differing messages, from the same wonderful passage. The meetings always closed with the healing balm of the negro spirituals, a fitting benediction in their gifts of song.

Some of the encouraging features of the Conference were the large proportion of those attending who had been to former meetings; their deep appreciation of this work for their people, and their desire to carry home with them, the help and suggestions they had received at the meetings. Their prayers, their Bible reading, and their humble wish to serve the Master, all lead us to pray God's blessing on this needy field.

ABINGDON PRESBYTERIAL

Synod of Appalachia

Bristol Central pleasantly entertained a large and enthusiastic group of women during the meeting. In addition to its reports and addresses the Presbyterial was featured by two striking and impressive pageants. Wytheville, Pulaski and Abingdon pictured the evolution of the work by the women of our church. Perhaps some felt that the portrayal was at times extreme, but not the average nor the best reveals the condition as the poorest does. Then when the splendid businesslike meeting of the present was graphically presented by contrast the great improvement was seen. Mexico kneeling before the mother of Jesus and pouring out her suffering and needs made a profound impression and then when the Woman's Auxiliary came and told of what was being done and the two knelt in prayer together a gripping climax was reached. The hostess church put on this pageant with Mrs. McEver who will be kindly remembered by many of the Conference bunch as Eleanor Stover representing the Madonna; Mrs. Harry Martin, the Mexican woman and the part of the Auxiliary was taken by Mrs. Camden.

HOLSTON PRESBYTERIAL

Synod of Appalachia

The meeting of Holston Presbyterial was good from start to finish. Good attendance, good reports, good addresses and good interest. In the unavoidable absence of Rev. Dan H. Graham, the Thursday evening meeting was opened with a devotional service and presided over by Rev. John J. Fix, of Bristol. Miss Carrie Lena Moffit made a strong informing address on China where she has been a faithful missionary for many years. Her statement of the new conditions in this long-time changeless country were exceedingly helpful and made it very clear that while the missionary will never be in the lead again still the need for the outside helper is more imperative than ever before.

A recent moralist has affirmed that the human heart is like a jug. No mortal can look into its recesses, and you can only judge of its purity by what comes out of it.—Anonymous.

How calmly may we commit ourselves to the hands of Him who bears up the world—of Him who was created, and who provides for the joy even of insects, as carefully as if He were their Father!—Richter.

CHURCH NEWS

AN APPRECIATION

You will find enclosed a money order to pay for my subscription.

Our children race to get "The Standard" each week and eagerly read its stories and jokes. Later, my husband and I enjoy its church news, its strong editorials and contributed articles, and Dr. Thompson's exposition of the Sunday School lesson. We shall practice nearly every other known economy before we give up our church paper!

May all the Christian people of our Carolinas, especially those of our own faith, rally to the Standard and make it stronger and more inspiring year by year.

ANNIVERSARY OF CHURCH AT CLARKSVILLE, GEORGIA

On Sunday, July 7, the Presbyterian Church of Clarksville, Ga., celebrated the passage of another milestone upon its pathway of service. It was the 81st anniversary of the dedication of the present church building and marked the close of the 97th year since this Church was organized. While the occasion was rendered doubly joyous by the fact that extensive repairs and improvements upon the historic edifice had just been completed. It was only appropriate that so memorable a day should be the occasion of the return of many sons and daughters who had gone out from this Church to find their places in the life of other communities, and invitations had been issued to all former members and friends to be present and to make this Sunday a time of homecoming for the Church.

Many of those who would have returned were prevented by distance or by other circumstances, but a large number made the pilgrimage to this scene of their earlier religious associations. About one hundred twenty-five members, former members, and friends were present on Sunday morning for the service which was the principal feature of the Homecoming Celebration. The church, freshly painted inside and out, with a handsome new hardwood floor and its new pews of dignified and striking design, never presented a more attractive appearance. Beautiful baskets of gladioli and ferns had been placed at intervals on and near the pulpit, and their colors against the fresh white work of the interior made the little edifice more truly than ever before a place where one might worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness.

The sermon of the morning was delivered by the pastor, Rev. James McDowell Richards, who spoke upon "The Mission of the Church," taking as his text the words of Isaiah, "O Zion, that bringest good tidings, get thee up into the high mountains; O Jerusalem, that bringest good tidings, lift up thy voice with strength; lift it up, be not afraid; say unto the cities of Judah, Behold your God." Dwelling for a few moments upon the history of the Clarksville Church and upon the joy which this occasion brought to all who loved it, the speaker passed quickly to the mission of the Church universal. This, he said, is the same as the mission which was committed to Israel in that the Church, too, must proclaim fearlessly to the world the message of God. If we are to say unto others, "Behold your God," we must first of all catch a vision of him ourselves. This we do in any full degree only as we come to know God in Jesus Christ. Again if we are to fulfill this task our lives must recommend the Gospel which we proclaim; the message of the Church must be delivered from the mountain-top of character. Finally, if the Church would hope to reach men with her message, her members must be ready to dare greatly and to sacrifice much for its sake. At the conclusion of the sermon a Communion Service was held, the pastor being assisted in this by Rev. J. R. McAlpine, venerable and beloved former pastor of the church.

Immediately after this service a bounteous and delightful dinner, prepared by the ladies of the congregation, was served under a grove of shade trees upon the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Stewart's hospitable home, immediately adjoining the church. In these beautiful surroundings an hour of social fellowship and happiness passed quickly and then the group once more re-entered the church for further exercises of worship. After prayer and the singing of hymns, an interesting and comprehensive history of the church was presented by Col. Robert McMillan who has for many years served as elder of the church and superintendent of its Sunday School. The meeting was then thrown open for remarks by present and former members. A number of these responded with interesting reminiscences of the sainted men and women of the past who had worshipped in this House of God, and with hopes for its future usefulness in the proclaiming of the Kingdom. The exercises of the day were brought to a close as the congregation stood to join in the singing of Onward Christian Soldiers, that great hymn of the united church, and to be dismissed with the benediction.

Organized by Rev. Wm. Quillin on March 10, 1832, with only seven members, the Presbyterian Church of Clarksville has never been large in numbers. Standing for many years as an outpost of Presbyterianism in this section of Georgia, however, it has always been a power for good in its community. In 1844 the church was formally reorganized by a commission of Hopewell Presbytery and in 1848 the present edifice was completed by Jarvis Van Buren, cousin of President Van Buren, who for thirty-five years served as ruling elder of this congregation. Since that year services have been held in the same white frame building, the members being summoned to worship by the notes of the same sweet-toned bell which was purchased for the new church by the Ladies' Aid Society. Five generations have worshipped here, and among those present for the Homecoming celebration was one who could remember the larger part of its long history. Miss Eliza Haddock united with the Clarksville Church on June 30, 1866 and has been a consecrated member of its congregation since that time, a period of sixty-three years. In few churches can a member be found who has for so long a time borne the burden and heat of the day in the same congregation.

The following pastors have served the church: Revs. Wm. Quillin, Stanhope W. Erwin, C. Bradshaw, Homer Hende, R. C. Ketchum, Paul C. Morton, Luther Wilson, G. T. Goetchius, Groves H. Cartledge, R. W. Milner, Z. B. Graves, John B. Morton, Mr. Washburn, L. A. Simpson (who served for nearly twenty-five years and under whose ministry probably two hundred united with the church), S. L. Wilson, R. E. Telford, H. F. Hoyt, J. R. McAlpine, J. C. Blackburn, L. B. Gibbs (stated supply), and the present pastor, James McDowell Richards, who began his labors in June, 1928.

In addition to this the Clarksville Church has been honored by the presence of many of the burning and shining lights of Southern Presbyterianism. Its pulpit has been occupied by Dr. B. M. Palmer, Moderator of the First Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church, which was held in Augusta, Ga., in 1861, Dr. Chas. W. Lane, Doctor Girardeau, Dr. Robert Irvine, the brothers D. H. and Rufus K. Proctor, Doctor Buttolph, Dr. E. M. Green, Doctor Burkehead, Dr. J. R. Wilson (President Woodrow Wilson's father), and Doctor Axson, as well as many others of almost equal fame.

The present membership of this church numbers fifty-six faithful sons and daughters. Although small in size it has been the spiritual home of many who are now serving as members or officers of other churches, and has served its Master faithfully and well during the long years since its establishment. It is the prayer of all its members, past as well as present, that in the years which are to come it may hold ever higher the torch of truth which has been committed to its hand, and that through the ministry of its pulpit as through the lives of its members many souls shall know the Lord.

FAYETTEVILLE PRESBYTERY CALLED MEETING

The constitutional requirements having been met, I hereby call a meeting of Fayetteville Presbytery to be held in the First Presbyterian Church, Fayetteville, N. C., on Tuesday, August 27, 1929, at 3:30 p. m., to transact the following business if the way be clear:

1st. To dissolve the pastoral relations between Rev. R. H. Poole and the Bluff, Godwin and McMillan Churches, and to dismiss him to the Presbytery of Wilmington.

2nd. To act on request of Rev. W. P. Gibbs for letter of dismissal to Roanoke Presbytery.

3. To hear a report by the Committee on Christian Education and Ministerial Relief, and take such action as said report may require.

Geo. W. Hanna, Moderator.

PERSONAL

Dr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Lingle, who have been absent from Davidson College on leave, and touring in Egypt and the Holy Land, have returned and expect to be at home at Davidson, N. C., in a few weeks.

NORTH CAROLINA

Cameron—Rev. M. D. McNeill has his vacation until the second Sunday in September. Then Rev. T. A. Lassiter will conduct a series of services in this church.

Iredell County—Rev. McK. R. Long began an evangelistic meeting at Harmony Sunday, August 4. The meeting will continue for at least two weeks, with services every morning and evening.

Rev. F. A. Barnes is the new pastor of this field and is being received with cordiality and co-operation.

Aberdeen—Rev. Dugald N. McLaughlin, D.D., of Norfolk, Va., who is spending his vacation with relatives in Moore County will fill the pulpit at the Presbyterian Church in Aberdeen on August 11th, and his many friends in this community who have had the pleasure of hearing him preach in the past, feel they have a treat in store for them. There will be no other preaching in town on next Sunday.—The Pilot.

Lincolnton—Rev. W. S. Wilson, D.D., of Montreat, has been called to this church, and the congregation is devoutly praying he may accept the call. Dr. Wilson was pastor of this church for several years, and had a fine work and the people rallied to him. He built the present church building which is an ornament to the city. This call to return to his old field is a compliment to his worth and ability.

Statesville—Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Ralston entertained at a most enjoyable reception, Tuesday evening, from 8 to 10 o'clock, at their home on 8th street, having as guests the members of the First Presbyterian Church. The reception was assisted in receiving by the officers of the church and their wives. The home was beautifully decorated throughout with a wealth of summer flowers. A delicious ice course was served in the dining room.

Lincolnton—At a congregational meeting of the Presbyterian Church July 28, Dr. William Wilson, pastor of the Montreat Presbyterian Church, former pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Lincolnton, was called back to his former church.

Dr. Wilson is well known in Lincolnton. His friends and admirers are numerous, and he is a member of his own denomination and of other churches of the town. He was pastor of the Presbyterian Church for a period of five years prior to the pastorate of Rev. W. W. Arrowood, which began in June, 1922.—Lincoln County News.

Shelby—Dr. Thornton Whaling, professor of the Louisville Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky., preached here August 4, filling the pulpit of the Presbyterian Church for Rev. H. N. Wilson, pastor, who is away on vacation. Dr. Whaling is one of the most prominent ministers in the South. He is chaplain general of the Sons of American Revolution, having been elected in the home of his father in Maine and this position takes him all over the world. He is also ex-president of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States. A native of Virginia, he was educated at Davidson College and was the first student ever to enter that institution.

Winston-Salem Presbytery will have its annual meeting this summer than that of any other year. There have been six young women conducting more than twenty schools. In the Bible schools there have been held more than twenty services. The Home Mission Committee of the presbytery believes that this is the best work ever done. The Winston-Salem Presbytery, Mrs. J. H. Hart, president, is supporting the worker, M. H. Hart, for Stokes and Surry counties. The Executive Committee of Religion and Publication has been generous with this work.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Bethel—Home coming day drew a crowd of people to the historic old Bethel Presbyterian Church, 11 miles northeast of York. Included in the throng were people from all parts of the contiguous counties, while many came from far points out of loyalty to the church of their fathers. The visitors were welcomed by Dr. T. M. McMillan. The response was made by Dr. Charles Adair. A detailed history of the church was given by H. G. Stanton. Four ministerial sons of the church were then introduced. These were Rev. J. H. Rowood, Virginia; Rev. Leland Flanagan, Ga.; Rev. Hamilton Johnson, Charlotte; and Haskell Dulin, Gastonia.

The sermon of the occasion was preached by W. W. Arrowood.

The singing was directed by R. L. Mecklenburg, and was a feature of the occasion. The picnic dinner was one of the most lavish and good things ever seen in York county.

APPALACHIA

Synod of Appalachia will meet in the First Presbyterian Church of Bristol, Tenn., September 8 p. m. T. P. Johnston, S. C.

The Presbytery of Holston will meet in the First Presbyterian Church of Pineola, N. C., at 8 p. m., July 27, 1929. T. P. Johnston.

Hendersonville, N. C.—This church is building a new Sunday school building to be named for the late Dr. J. S. Hunter who for many years was the superintendent of the church school. Mrs. J. S. Hunter who is a member of this church has been elected secretary of the people's work in the Synodical of Appalachia.

Glade Spring, Va.—After a few months of absence this church has called as pastor the Rev. F. W. Walthall who has been doing post-graduate work at the Union Seminary, Virginia. Mr. Walthall is a young man of great promise.

Tazewell, Va.—The church has five classes for its young people with an enrollment of 100. The average attendance of 75. They report 600 boxes for the sick and poor. Boxes were sent

...s, and a total of nearly $100 was given
...t phases of the work. Miss Ellen S.
...popular and efficient leader of these

...va.—The people throughout all of this
...incerely sympathize with the sufferers
...s pretty little valley. With thirteen dead
...ured, their school building a complete
...ction has been greatly afflicted. It is ...in the early nineties a wind storm
...which blew down a market house and
...e houses but killed no one. Then per-
...fifty years ago a violent storm struck a
...county and did a great deal of damage.
...secure in our beautiful mountain valley,
...wishes to remind us of His power and
...dependent we are upon Him, He speaks
...oice of the wind and those who have
...ar.

...District—The Convention was held in ...May 11, 12, and while not as large as some
...s have been the results were very sat-
...ed. The opening address by Dr. Cun-
...e First Presbyterian Church of Bristol, ...challenge that gripped the delegates and
...ch to think about. The more technical
...ork was done by Dr. Fix, Secretary of
...ation and Synod's work in Appalachia.
...made an ideal President and was great-
...Miss Lucas of Johnson City. The talks
...y the delegates were splendid and the
...he hostess town and church was satisf-
...tful.

ALABAMA

...South Highlands — Our pastor, Dr.
...lybns, is spending his vacation in Cali-
...much of the time being at Mt. Her-
...ta Cruz, in the region of the redwoods.
...ence his pulpit has been filled by sev-
...ministers, Drs. H. M. Moffet, of David-
...stator of the college church; Dr. J. S.
...byville, Tenn., and Dr. W. J. Caldwell,
...Miss.

...Dr. Chas. M. Boyd and Mr. Gordon A.
...and director of music respectively of ...Tuscaloosa, have recently conducted
...melle, a small country church of Sum-
...ere were seven additions. The summer
...thel II, a small country church near
...really under the care of First Church,
...concluded. Elder G. B. Davidson of ...acts as pastor there. Rev. H. E. David-
...the Cumberland Church of Coker was
...for the meeting. There were twenty
...r. W. F. Osburn, principal of Stillman
...an elder of First Church, suffered a
...on the 23rd of April in an automobile
...as suffered a gradual decline and now
...ar the end. Hon. W. B. Oliver, Repre-
...ngress from the Sixth Alabama, Dis-
...der of First Church and much in de-
...aker on platform and in pulpit, will
...the morning hours during the vacation
...Mr. Oliver is a former moderator of
...Alabama.

FLORIDA

...Alford Memorial—Our pastor, Rev.
...and his family, are spending the month
...Montreat, where they have a cottage.
...done a good work in the nine months
...re here, since coming from Mecklen-
...N. C., where he was pastor of Phila-
...second largest country church of that
...e have had 94 additions to our mem-
...e work of the church is progressing
...departments.

KENTUCKY

...Upon the return of our pastor, Rev.
...Sh, 3rd, in June, with his bride from
...trip and his vacation, the Church
...with a beautiful reception when about
...s and friends were present.

...organization, the Men of the Church,
...leted, and they are working in earnest
...tr all the causes of the Church.

...als were sent to the Young People's Con-
...ville and the benefits they received were
...e splendid reports they made on their

...personal evangelism was organized in
...the pastor during the spring months,
...of new members were added to the
...d during the summer months the con-
...ing every effort to build up the prayer
...an already increasing attendance may necessitate using the church auditorium instead of the Sunday school room.

Last year this Church held the first Daily Vacation Bible School ever organized in Georgetown, and this year all four of the Protestant churches, Baptist, Methodist, Christian and Presbyterian united in a co-operative school. The pastors under whose supervision the school was held were Rev. W. W.
Stout, Baptist minister, Dr. Iva M. Boswell, Christian minister, Rev. F. K. Struve, Methodist minister, and Rev. G. Barnett Rich, 3rd, pastor of this Church, who was also superintendent of the school. There were 160 pupils enrolled with a staff of 30 teachers. It was a standard school, teaching four subjects, Bible, Music, Handwork, and Recreation. Pupils ranged in age from six to fourteen years. At the end of two weeks the school closed with commencement exercises in the chautauqua tent, June 14th, at which time diplomas were awarded to 150 pupils, for perfect attendance and satisfactory work accomplished. The final number of the program was a play from the book of Daniel.

A large number of the Woman's Auxiliary attended the School of Missions held at Sayre College, Lexington, Ky., in June.

Mrs. Fannie T. Summers, Publicity Representative.

TENNESSEE

...Nashville Presbytery at a called meeting in the First Church of Nashville on August 5, Mr. Milton Davis McCord, of Allison, Tenn., was received under the care of Presbytery as a candidate for the ministry. Mr. McCord has a younger brother who is also a candidate for the Presbyterian ministry. Both brothers are grandsons of Rev. M. W. Millard, D.D., of Williamson County, Tenn. Dr. Millard has a son, Rev. J. M. Millard, who is a minister in North Carolina, and had also another son, Ernest, who died in his last year in Columbia Seminary, under appointment for mission work in Africa. Thus, in addition to these two sons, Dr. Millard, after 48 years of service has the joy of seeing two grandsons likewise following in his footsteps in the gospel ministry.

Presbytery also adopted resolutions of sympathy with Dr. Chas. R. Nisbet, of Charlotte, N. C., formerly a member of this Presbytery, in his recent bereavement in the loss of his wife.

W. C. Alexander, S. C.

TEXAS

...Presbytery of Paris—The Presbytery of Paris will meet in the First Presbyterian Church, Texarkana, Texas, September 17, 1929, at 7:30 p. m.

J. G. Varner, S. C.

WEST VIRGINIA

...St. Albans—The summer Bible school held in the First Church in June was the most successful and largest one in the history of the school, this year being the fourth year we have held a Bible school. This is an "All Bible" school, using the so-called "Chester Plan," first originated and used at Chester, Pa., by the Rev. A. L. Lathem, D.D., pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church. No handwork is done, except map making.

This school, so far as we have been able to find out, is the largest summer Bible school in the Synod of West Virginia and one of the largest in the whole Presbyterian Church, U. S., averaging this year 213 in attendance each day. The number enrolled was 243 pupils and 19 teachers, including the principal, with a percentage of attendance of 87.6 per cent.

At the commencement exercises 21 testaments were awarded to those reciting the Child's Catechism and diplomas were awarded to three graduates.

This school has grown more than 300 per cent in three years and we are very enthusiastic about it.

...Wylliesburg Church—The revival services begun in this church June 13 closed the 22. Notwithstanding the very busy season for the farmers, there were good congregations each night. Rev. Paul W. Hodge, of Danville, did the preaching. On Wednesday night the preacher gave a dramatized sermon on the Prodigal Son which gripped the attention of the entire audience, and sent home to the hearts of many the great truth which the parable teaches. All through the week Mr. Hodge held up to his large audience the awfulness of sin and pointed to the cross as the only way of escape from its consequences.

As a visible result of this meeting, several re-consecrated their lives to Christ, and one united with the church on profession of her faith in Christ. We feel that lasting good has been accomplished by Brother Hodges' visit to us and pray God's richest blessing upon him in his untiring effort to advance the Master's kingdom here among men.

...Portsmouth, First Church—Fourteen members have been received recently, eleven of them on profession.
The July meeting of the Auxiliary was in the interest of the young people. Reports from the Young Peo-

YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPIC

Sunday, Aug. 25—Outdoor Recreations—Mark
6:30-32; I Cor. 9:24-27

Leader

We have come now to the close of the month's studies in nature, and God's providence as seen in nature. Our topic today is Outdoor Recreation. One of the chief purposes of recreation is rest, rest for the body and the mind, rest so we may take up our duties with renewed strength and a quickened zeal. We grow tired of seeing and doing the same things all the time, and it is necessary to have some relief by resting from our daily task.

Even Jesus grew weary, and sought rest and quiet. He commands his disciples to follow him into a desert place to rest awhile. He needed to get away from the crowds and their incessant demands on his time and sympathy.
So he and the twelve went into the mountains, where they could be free from noise and bustle, and where the new scenes of nature would strike their tired eyes, and songs of birds and the sound of water falls would bring them relief from the cries and pleas of the multitudes.

Some people boast that they never take a vacation.
They may not feel that they need it, or can spare the time, but waste and weariness come to us all. It may be we cannot take a long time off, but all of us can have some form of recreation that we use all the time. Young folks will want to play, older people will like walks or rides, and even some of them may play moderate games.
It does us all good to get a rest and a change, and short frequent rests are often better than long vacations taken at longer intervals.

Let us remember that our recreation must be in line with our Christian profession, and bring no reflection on the name of Christ our Master. Let us think today of some kinds of outdoor recreation which are safe and consistent with our calling as church members.

Picnics

Everybody loves a picnic. To get out in the woods, and by the waterside, away from town and work, away from fields and machines, and mingle with the folks we know and love, does us all good. A picnic lunch spread under the trees on the grass, near a fine spring of cold water seems better than a big dinner on the dining room table.
Sandwiches, pickles, stuffed eggs, pies and cakes, iced lemonade and juicy cold watermelons. My, doesn't it make your mouth water to think of it!

Church picnics are a good thing. They bring folks together in a social way, and friends learn about each other and their happenings, and deepen their interest in each other. People who never see one another except at church, and never speak except a short exchange of greetings, find out what sort of folks their brothers and sisters in the church are. And the dinner all together makes a comradeship that welds hearts and lives in a common purpose.

Hiking

One of the best kinds of exercise is walking, and many are now taking advantage of the good roads to make up hiking parties. They dress for the trip, take light baggage, and in small parties travel for miles over the roads and over the mountains, climbing the peaks and
(Continued on page 10)

...ple's Conference at Virginia Beach were given. Including visitors, approximately a hundred attended this meeting, making it unusually large for the summer. At the July meeting of the Men's Club a report from the Young People's Conference at Virginia Beach was enthusiastically received. This meeting was in the interest of Religious Education, and the regular July program was used. Several suggestions, favorably received, promise greater efficiency in the educational program in the congregation. During the pastor's vacation in August the pulpit will be supplied by visiting ministers, and the Wednesday evening prayer services will be conducted by the men. The interior of the church building was renovated and improved in the winter and early spring. New light fixtures were installed near the middle of July. These are bronzed lanterns, designed to harmonize with the architecture of the building, and intended to reduce the light bill while furnishing more satisfactory lighting.

...The Presbytery of Winchester will meet in the Piedmont Church, Piedmont, W. Va., on Tuesday, September 24, 1929, at 8 o'clock p. m.

Jos. A. McMurray, S. C.

MISSISSIPPI

...The Presbytery of Central Mississippi will meet in the Forest Grove Church on October 8, 1929, at 7:30
p. m.

E. W. Ford, S. C.

OKLAHOMA

...The Presbytery of Mangum will meet in the First Presbyterian Church of Weatherford, Okla., September 11, at 8 o'clock p. m.

J. W. Mosely, Jr., S. C.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Rev. Ernest Trice Thompson, D.D.

Lesson for August 25

REBUILDING THE TEMPLE

Ezra 3:1-6:22; Psalm 84:1-12

Print Ezra 1:10-13; 6:14-16; Ps. 84:1-4

Jerusalem was completely destroyed by Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon, in the year 587. For 50 years it lay waste. Then in 538 Babylon was captured by Cyrus, King of Persia, and the Persians became the masters of the East. Almost immediately Cyrus issued a proclamation allowing the Jews to return to their ancestral homes. A large number of them took advantage of this offer and it was not long before the Jews had again taken root in their native land. It will help us to keep the history straight if we remember that there were three returns in all which are described for us in the Old Testament.

The first return under Zerubbabel, 537 B. C., 50 years after the destruction of Jerusalem. Ezra 1-6.

The second return under Ezra, 458 B. C., 80 years after the first return. Ezra 7-10.

The third return under Nehemiah, 445 B. C., 13 years after the second return. Book of Nehemiah.

We continue this week our study of the first of these three returns. We may outline the section as follows:

1. The return of the remnant 1:1-2:70.
2. The resumption of worship 3:1-7.
3. The rebuilding of the temple 3:8-6:22.
 - (1) First attempt—balked. 536 B. C. 3:8-4:24.
 - (3) Second attempt—completed. 528-515 B. C. 5:1-6:22.

I. The Return of the Remnant—1:1-2:70

We studied this section last week and saw how approximately 50,000 Jews, under the leadership of Zerubbabel and Jeshua, returned to Jerusalem and its environs and settled themselves upon the land.

II. The Resumption of Worship—3:1-7

Read through this section. In what month was formal worship resumed? Who were the leaders in the undertaking? What forms of worship were engaged in? What is the meaning of verse 3?

The sacred historian is more interested in telling us how the Jews resumed their worship than he is of telling us anything about their political or economic affairs. The formal opening of the national religion took place most appropriately in the seventh month, corresponding in part at least to our October. This was the most sacred month in the Jewish calendar. On the first day there occurred the Feast of Trumpets (Num. 29:1); on the tenth the Great Day of Atonement, (Num. 29:7), and on the 15th through the 22nd the Feast of Tabernacles (Num. 29:12-38).

On the first day of this month, therefore, the people assembled themselves together in Jerusalem, under the leadership of Jeshua and Zerubbabel. Jeshua was the religious leader of the people, the High Priest. He was the grand son of Seraiah, High Priest in the days of Zedekiah, blinded by Nebuchadnezzar at Riblah. Zerubbabel was the civil head, the governor of the colony. He was a grandson of Jehoiachin, who had been carried captive by Nebuchadnezzar. He was, therefore, a representative of the house of David and belonged to the royal seed.

Under their leadership then a ceremonious beginning was made toward rebuilding the altar. Great care was taken to set up the new altar on exactly the same spot where the old altar had stood (this seems to be the meaning of verse 3). They were afraid of the neighboring people, and desired in this way to secure the divine protection. On the same day they offered the sacrifices prescribed for the feast of Trumpets. They started too the daily burnt offerings, morning and evening. Two weeks later they observed the Feast of Tabernacles, and after that the other feasts in due order.

They also made preparations for the building of the temple. Before actual work could begin they must quarry new stone, and arrange for the securing of wood from the Lebanon. This was a costly and difficult procedure. The great trees must be felled, and then dragged over the crest of the Lebanon, and slid down the slopes of the mountain range; then rafted to Joppa, and dragged thence to Jerusalem. It was a big undertaking for people so poor. Nonetheless masons and carpenters were hired; the contract for the wood was let to the appropriate concerns in Tyre and Sidon.

III. The Rebuilding of the Temple—3:8-6:22

1. The First Attempt. 536 B. C. Read 3:8-4:24. In what year was work on the temple finally begun? Who were the leaders of the undertaking? What scene marked the laying of the foundation? Why did the old men weep? What offer was made by the adversaries of Judah and Benjamin? What answer was returned by Zerubbabel? Was this wise? What retaliation followed? How was the work finally stopped? How long was it stopped?

Actual work on the temple was finally begun in the second year and the second month. The work was under the oversight of the Levites, and under the general supervision of Jeshua and Zerubbabel. When at last the foundation was completed (compare our corner stone celebrations) there was held an elaborate ceremony. The singing was conducted by two great choirs, singing antiphonally. Apparently one choir sang: "O give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good," and the other responded, "For His mercy endureth forever." The people as a whole were enthusiastic. They shouted with such abandon that the noise was heard a long way off. Among the people, however, were some old men who had seen the first Temple, and as they now looked on they wept, thinking how small seemed all these preparations in comparison with the grandeur of Solomon's Temple (Cf. Haggai 2:3-9; Zech 4:10).

When news of the Jews' activities came to the surrounding peoples, they came and asked that they be allowed to participate. These people are generally known as the Samaritans. They were the descendants of the Israelites who had remained in the land from among the northern tribes and who had intermarried with the colonists brought in by the Assyrians. (Cf. 2nd Kings 17:24ff.) We read there they worshipped Jehovah and served their own gods, a very significant expression.

Jeshua and Zerubbabel and the leaders of the people curtly refused the Samaritan's offer. They seem to have spoken somewhat brusquely. No doubt they remembered, however, that both Israel and Judah had been destroyed because of the corruption of their religion, and saw the new danger that was involved in this proposal. "Probably they had good reason to doubt their sincerity. In any case the sudden alliance with semi-idolatrous neighbors would have quickly obliterated the good impressions of the captivity, with its strong reaction from idolatry, its ardent Messianic hope, and its devotion to Jehovah as the one true God. Had the offer been merely of political friendship there would have been no need to reject it. But the Jewish community existed at Jerusalem by virtue of its distinctive religious faith: it was charged with the duty of restoring the worship of Jehovah." We might note by the way that this was the beginning of that bad blood between the Jews and the Samaritans that is so evident in the Gospels, and that continues down to the present day.

As soon as the Samaritans' offer was refused, they showed themselves in their true colors, enemies of the Jews, and enemies of the Temple. They weakened the hands of the builders, i. e. discouraged them, and terrified them so that the building ceased. This opposition continued during the rest of Cyrus' reign (538-529), during the reign of Cambyses (529-522), Pseudo-Smerdis (522), and down into the reign of Darius (521-486). We might note here that section 4:6-23 does not relate to the building of the temple, but to the building of the walls. The time also is not the reign of Cyrus, or his immediate successors, but that of Xerxes (Ahasuerus) and Artaxerxes, who reigned after the temple was completed as related in the following chapters. The writer here departs from the chronological order that he might set forth the continued opposition of the Samaritans in later years. The story of the temple is resumed in 4:24. It might be well to place section 4:6-23 in parentheses. The main point is that the building ceased for 16 years.

2. The Second Attempt. 528-515 B. C. Read Chapters 5 and 6. Who was responsible for the resumption of the work? If you have time read here the book of Haggai and Zech. 1-8. What was the attitude of the Persians? When was the temple completed? In what way was the event celebrated?

The work was finally resumed because of the efforts of two prophets, Haggai and Zechariah. We must not be misled by the simple statement of 5:1-2 into thinking that it was the work of a day. As we study the prophecies of Haggai and Zechariah we discover that it was a difficult task; the two prophets hammered at their job incessantly, and finally their ringing and urgent words won the leaders, and also the people, so that the work finally began with both leaders and people in good heart.

They had hardly begun when they were interrupted by Tattenai and Shetha-bozenai and their companions. Tattenai, the Persian Governor over the whole district west of the river, was, therefore, superior to Zerubbabel. We know nothing of Shetha-bozenai. Perhaps Tattenai had been incited by the Samaritans, but at any rate he thought it his duty to ascertain definitely whether the Jews had authority for rebuilding the temple. He accepted their explanation and allowed them to continue, for the time, sent a letter to Darius asking that a search be made among the archives to learn whether any Persian decree had ever been issued giving the royal permission.

The king had a search made at Achmetha, i. e. Ecbatana, the summer residence of the Persians kings, and there was found a decree of Cyrus specifically ordering the rebuilding of the Temple in Jerusalem. Darius, thereupon, issued instructions that Tattenai aid the Jews in their work. The work went on rapidly from that time, and without further interruption. In four years the temple was completed. Services of dedication were held. One detail of the service strikes us. In 6:17 we read that 12 hegoats were offered according to the number of the tribes of Israel. In other words the remnant who had returned made solemn confession of sin in the name of the whole scattered and dispersed race. They acknowledged the essential unity of Israel alike in the consequences of sin, the possibilities of restoration, and in renewed consecration to God's service. On the 14th day of the month the feast of the passover was kept with unusual joy.

IV. The People's Love for the House of God

Read Ps. 84. Is this an appropriate psalm to study at this place? Why? Read the psalm over and over till you know it, till you can make an outline of its meaning of every phrase

We do not know when this psalm was written by whom. It seems, however, to have been written by one who was prevented somehow from worshipping in the house of God. Some scholars think during the exile, though others place it before the return. The rate it struck such a popular note that it was given a place in the hymn book of Israel. It is one of the great processional hymns, sung by the worshippers as they approached the sanctuary. A. V., or "set to the Gittih" R. V., refers to a hymn which it was sung, possibly as has been suggested by the march of the Gittite guard (II Sam. 15:7) of Korah were a certain family of musicians who were connected with the temple, and this hymn seems to be included in their collection. It is divided into two parts as is indicated by the word Selah in verse 10. This work is probably a musical notation, musical interlude at this point. We hardly think that it is an appropriate psalm for our present use. It exhibits Israel's love for the house of God, and have just seen the people set themselves soon as they returned to their native land.

The singer gives us the theme of his psalm in verses 1-2, his intense longing for the worship of God. Amiable means worthy of the beloved. Tabernacles—dwelling places—it is in the plural here because of the group of temple buildings. Soul, he refers in verse 2 refer to the emotions, the reason with the living organism of the body through act, i. e. the whole man. Note especially the last line, the living God, is the final object of desire. The temple is only the means of presence.

2. The Psalmist's great longing for the worship of God leads him to speak of the blessings of the temple continually within it. (3-4). He envies the birds who are free to build their nests in the immediate proximity of the temple. They have a happiness which he envies. They are nearer to God, so it seems to him than he is. Even the birds are happy to have shelter beneath the sacred roof; far more blessed are they who dwell there, rendering service of a thankful heart. He is speaking of actual ministers of the Temple.

3. But not only blessed are they who minister in the holy place in God's city, and near to His throne, but are they who can visit it with the caravan of pilgrims at the great national festivals. (5-8). In verse 5 the highways to Zion (so the R. V.), i. e. the highways that have their mind set on going to the Holy City, find there their strength in God. The Psalmist relates the blessings which such worship brings. The striking figure in verse 6. The valley of the weeping valley of weeping in R. V. It was a desolate and barren valley through which the pilgrims had to pass on their way to Jerusalem. It may well stand for sorrowful periods of life through which the pilgrim must pass. Faith turned this valley, all for the pilgrims, into a place of springs (6:4). Yea, says the Psalmist, the early rain comes down like a blessing (R. V.). That is, those who seek for blessing find refreshment under the most unfavorable circumstances, while God refreshes them with blessing from above, as the autumnal rains refresh the plains with grass and flowers. And instead of their toilsome journey they gain fresh strength and advance (verse 7). And as the psalmist pours out his blessings he pours out a prayer that he may share in them too.

4. In the closing verses the psalmist reveals a conviction that not only they who minister in God's house (verse 4), or they who are near to it at regular intervals (verse 5) but they who worship in it or not, are one with Him. Blessed is the man who trusteth in thee." He is a prayer for the king, a shield and protection for the people, the anointed of the Lord,—the representative of the civil government. For, says he, a day is better than a thousand, i. e. a thousand days of protection for the government than great riches (verse 8). (The verses may be interpreted differently, though obscure). And that leads the psalmist to desire would rather perform the humblest service of Him who tolerates no evil, than be an honored guest where wickedness makes its home. He is a sun and shield; He gives grace and strength; He will withhold from them that would be blessed therefore is the man that trusts in Him.

The Lesson Applied

1. The Jewish nation had been destroyed and was now being made. The one thing that the psalmist considered to be all important, and the only thing that the sacred writer considers worthy of record, is the establishment of worship and the building around which the worship centered. Were we in thus putting religion at the center of our life? What value does religion have for the individual that it had for the psalmist? What conditions need to be fulfilled if these values are to be realized?

2. We read that when the foundations of the temple were laid (Continued on page 10)

LDREN

ORING CONSPIRACY

good of a vacation 'less hing nice to do?" grumawson. "Just 'cause we're picnic Saturday, I don't an't take our lunch down
day."

"scolded Sally Brown. up our lunches, that's s, we could do it our-ll we'd need to get at nanas and something for d maybe some pickles."

nice to eat down by the small Trotsy woefully.
't like us to have a good bed, real tears squeezing
s and running down her snapped Merry. "You n over and cry a duet awlbaby. Listen to him

don't cry out loud," y, her eyes flaming an-her tears. "And that driving my grandma
She's got jumpy nerves,
s."

ves! Tucker's crying's ve the strongest person its," declared Sally. "My ays football rougher'n says if he had to live at l listen to Tucker, he'd like a giant firecracker, ldn't be a bit left big-
aw. And he'd be glad of

"waa — waa — waa!"

ry. "Makes sort of tune tune; and tomorrow's and he'll keep it up because his mother can't e lake. Oh, I just wish moved into our block!"
e gets down to the lake cherub. All the ladies him and pet him to ike telling 'em, I do, I Trotsy, then blushed
Merry stared meaningly
t eyes.

"she flared back, then ck who's coming," she

and with that everlaster her arm," breathed
ly. Then she called out er: "Well, Dolly, you ou're going to get us to e; we're feeling crosser'n le bunch of us."

would read it," said
istfully; "I've read it ready. And it's funny rlong always says when lows want anything:
u got? Add 'em up, and at get it!" And they aled Dolly enthusiastically, out in Merry Dawson, superior fashion. "If it'll work, why don't et now this minute. We ing nice to do. Now add got, and see if you can le try really?" Dolly's ed eagerly. "Let's see, got?"

ed Sally, "we've got ader than hatters 'cause
k their lunch to the lake."
g a backyard that's got o today," added Merry
d il a man takes out that nce and sods it over it olike anything anyhow."
nced Trotsy, "we hav-ng that we aren't tired

rt," announced Trotsy, nthing else—a crying
etting the whole neighbor-
All him in, too."
came most unexpect-Anne. "And oh, girls, can do."

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color).

When BROWN-haired Teddy and YELLOW-haired Susie May are in the country they play bean bag on the lawn.

Teddy wears a pair of YELLOW overalls and a RED kerchief about his neck. His blouse and shoes are BROWN.

Susie May wears a light PURPLE dress with bloomers and hair ribbon to match. Her socks are YELLOW.

The grassy slopes are GREEN (YELLOW can be mixed with the GREEN to make it lighter) and the trees are darker GREEN (mix a bit of BLUE with the YELLOW for this).

The trunk of the tree is GRAY (use BLACK lightly.)

The bean bag is PURPLE and YELLOW checked plaid.

Paint the sky BLUE and the children's cheeks PINK (use RED lightly) and their lips RED.

The border of this picture can be colored RED and the lettering GREEN.

"You do!" Astonishment dwelt on three faces.

"'Tisn't any fun, whatever 'tis," denounced Trotsy. "Not with such stupid things to add up into it."

But when Dolly Anne disclosed her plan even Trotsy grew interested. "I've added your big cousin in for a little bit, Sally, and our wheelbarrow and Ralph's and Ted's express wagons," explained Dolly. "But won't Tucker's mother be surprised, and Tucker? I go hope they'll get started early for the lake. Wouldn't it be a joke on us if they didn't go at all today?"

They did go, however, shortly after lunch. Tucker, looking as if he had never shed a tear in his life, holding fast to his mother's hand with one chubby fist and swinging his pail full of sand toys in the other.

"Look," whispered Trotsy, "see the basket she's got with their supper in it. Oh, dear, they won't know what's happened till morning; they won't come home till after dark."

"Nothing will happen if we don't get started," sang out Dolly Anne. "Come on, everybody."

Such a busy time as they did have from that minute on. The Lake Shore Express and the Wheelbarrow Special made numberless excursions to the beach and back. Sally's football cousin helped more than a little bit, and by nightfall all was in readiness. All, that is, except Tucker, who was necessary for the finishing touch, and he didn't return until after dark, just as Trotsy expected.

But next morning four little girls crouched close to the ground behind the fence that ran back of Tucker's yard; they felt sure he would be sent out to play early, because it was sweeping day. "There he comes," whispered

Merry, peeping through a knot hole.

And down the steps came Tucker in a fresh blue playsuit, putting one tiny foot down on a step, then carefully pulling the other to meet it. The girls watched him breathlessly. Toddling over to the swing which hung from the willow tree, he put one fat little knee upon it. The girls watched him anxiously. Falling from this swing, low though it was, had started many a spell of crying.

But no, one knee on the swing, Tucker paused, and his blue eyes opened wide—he had caught sight of something red and white, a big umbrella, just like those down at the beach. Sticking up straight, right in the back of his yard, too.

Fascinated, he walked toward it, and there in a boarded-in space about the umbrella was a big patch of his beloved sand. Climbing over the low boards, he plumped down upon it. With his hands full of the glistening bits, he gazed curiously up at the sky.

"Mudder, mudder," he shouted, scrambling back over the boards and running toward the house, "see our new umbrella and all the sand the sky's wained down on it."

And when his mother came out her surprise was even greater than Tucker's. "Dear, dear," she cried, "who could have done it?" Then walking over to the fence she looked around in a puzzled fashion.

But such a scurrying sound as met her ears then—four little girls trying to squeeze themselves out of sight.

"Why, Sally and Merry and Trotsy, and—Dolly Anne, what does this mean?"

"Oh," gasped Trotsy, "we—we were only just seeing how Tucker liked his new sand pile."

"But I didn't order any sand pile. I hoped to get him one before long, but they cost so much. Anyhow I wasn't sure it would work, the swing only made him worse."

"But it will," put in Sally, "see him settling down just as pretty; he'll be as happy as if the whole lake shore was tacked on to it."

"Where did the sand come from? I must pay for it anyhow."

"You can't 'cause it didn't cost a red cent," cried Trotsy. "No, ma'am, not a red. The boards came from Merry's yard, from her sand pile left over from when she was little, and it had to go somewhere's, her mother said, so Sally's cousin brought it here."

"And," put in Merry, "the umbrella was all faded, so we painted it red and white stripes. You can't close it, but it stays open fine."

"And the sand," explained Sally eagerly, "we brought it all our own selves, wagons and wagons of it."

"But we wanted to do it," finished Dolly Anne, "because we had nothing, just nothing to do."

"So that's how it was. Do you know what I think? I think I have some pretty fine neighbors. I was just about worn out dragging Tucker to the lake, and now I do believe I can get some rest. Look at him, girls; see him pat the little sand cakes into shape. He's really a dear when he isn't crying."

And when the girls looked, first thing they knew they were crowding round that little boy and exclaimed over him, worse than the ladies down at the lake did. "I declare he's the sweetest thing," Trotsy gurgled, "just too ootsy wootsy tunning for anything." And best of all she really meant it.—Myra A. Wonn, in Exchange.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

(Continued from page 8)

were laid the old men wept, the young men shouted for joy. The old men wept because they thought of the past, because they were disappointed in the small beginning. The young men rejoiced because they saw a chance to build. "They saw that the new foundation was larger than the old, and they visioned a grander temple and a nobler commonwealth." We need today men who will not be discouraged, men who will build for the future. "He is aged who lives in bygone days, with his face ever set to the irreparable past, vainly regretting its retreating memories, uninterested in the present, despondent of the future." Does the past ever handicap the present? How?

3. As stated above it was due to the influence of the heathen that the pure religion of both Israel and Judah had been contaminated, and it was the deterioration of their religion which led ultimately to the destruction of the state. It was no doubt because Zerubbabel remembered this that he refused to allow the Samaritans to have a part in the building of the Temple? Was Zerubbabel right in his refusal? Is toleration a virtue or a vice? How far should we have toleration today in the church? To what extent must Christians be separate from the world?

4. The Jews grew discouraged and ceased their building. Sixteen years passed by and they took up their work under the inspiration of Haggai and Zechariah, and through the continued support of these men the work was finished? Is the Church lagging in its work today? Your church, its various organizations? If so, wherein? And what can you and I do about it? Are the difficulties, the discouragements real, or imaginary?

YOUNG PEOPLE
(Continued from page 7)

crossing the valleys. For those who have the strength, no kind of outdoor recreation is any better than hiking.

And not only the exercise is beneficial. If you have chosen good company you will be improved spiritually and mentally. The topics of conversation may become very confidential, and the exchange of views and the relation of experiences, with often frank talks and wise counsels take up much of the time.

On the road is a fine place to learn human nature, and it makes a good test for your own religion, to see if you can be generous to the people you pass. A hiking experience broadens your information and whets your wit, as you have to meet with quick decisions the situations you face along the way. Strangers will soon decide whether you are a Christian or not.

Camping

Boys and girls dearly love to camp. They love to get a congenial group together, and go to some quiet place in the mountains, or the seashore, or just in the woods near a stream, and set up tents for a camp. Camping has many novel experiences. You don't expect to be as comfortable as you are at home. Your space is small, your beds nothing like the good sleeping quarters at home. Maybe you have just balsam bows, with a hole for the hips, or a tiny cot hardly big enough to turn on. You have to go to the creek to wash, and get the water to drink or to boil. The rain runs in under the canvas, or drives you in from the outside. But what fun it is to make the campfire and fry your fish and boil your coffee. You get smoke in your eyes, and have a hard time when the rain puts out the blaze. And then night comes on, and the shadows flicker on the tent as you pile on the wood, and talk and exchange of experiences go on. The darkness looks like it was going to fall on you as you peer away from the fire.

A camp is a fine place for real religion. Unselfishness, sympathy, helpfulness, comradeship all may be cultivated. As in hiking we should choose our companions carefully. Sometime ought to be set apart for worship at a camp, and to hear songs ring out in the woods impresses the thoughts of God and the Bible.

Touring

With the automobile one fine way to take a vacation is to tour with others over wider reaches than hiking will allow. With one or more cars a party can have a good time as they travel around from one city to another, seeing the sights and learning new things and people.

To tour in an automobile, you have to have some money, a few comforts like vacuum bottles for water or milk, lunch baskets and carriage robes, and possibly a luggage carrier on the side. A group can take a trip in a car that would cost triple the money by railroad. And there are so many interesting places to go to.

The spirit of a Christian has a fine chance of expression on a tour. Some can make the whole party feel comfortable by being agreeable and cheerful under all circumstances. Patience, thoughtfulness, unselfishness and comradeship make a big difference. A Christian can show a fine spirit and make a good impression for the Master by falling in with the crowd, showing the love of holy things, the Sabbath, the church, the feelings of others about religion, and so on.

Games and Sports

The apostle Paul uses the Greek games and contests as an illustration of the Christian life. He speaks of the race, the prize, the necessity for temperance if the runner will win, the struggle to keep his appetites under con-

Men-of-the-Church
Presbyterian Church in the United States

REV. J. E. PURCELL, D.D., Executive Secretary
HENRY GRADY BUILDING
ATLANTA, GEORGIA

REV. JOHN L. FAIRLY, D.D., Wilmington, N. C.,
Editor in Charge of Men-of-the-Church Department

(This Program is to be put on by the Department of Spiritual Life and Evangelism.)

MATERIAL FOR THE SEPTEMBER PROGRAM

Introduction

It might be wise for the leader to introduce this meeting with a word of explanation of the purpose of the talks. The program is an effort to get the men of the churches of the southland to study the field about their own doors and to plan for the development of the spiritual life of their own communities. It seems strange after two thousands years that we must insist on Christian people knowing the opportunities about them and urge them to take advantage of them for the sake of the Master whom they love, and yet such is the case. There are many untouched fields and many more fields only very inadequately touched about thousands of churches. And the followers of the Lord seem to be satisfied if they go to their own particular churches on the Sabbath. This is the pioneer work of the Kingdom—almost as much as the pioneer work of the great apostle. It will be impossible to start the work of opening up the deeper truths of the Lord until we have done this first thing. The men of our churches ought to listen carefully to the presentation of these facts and honestly ask themselves if by any chance God is leading them to do this work.

Survey of the Field

The material for this talk will have to be dug out of the community in which you live. Go to the Superintendent of Home Missions first and get him to give you all the facts of the Presbytery. It might be well to give this in the form of a map talk. More than likely the Superintendent has a map which he will let you use. Show the number of the Presbyterian churches in the territory and the space which has not been yet occupied. Do not make the mistake, however, of assuming that field is not being developed just because there are no Presbyterian churches. There may be other churches in the section which are doing a great work and the Presbyterian Church should not go into the field. Find the untouched and unworked fields and point them out to the men. The Superintendent can tell you which they are. However, do not be too general. To show a field some distance away—so far away, in fact, that the men to whom you are talking cannot touch it personally—will do more harm than good unless you show them how they may be reached. There are very few churches which do not have some untouched communities just about them. Center your attention on them and drive the feeling of responsibility home. Don't let the men see any other way out. This is their job. When we put a task of the Master directly up to one of his friends and lay it on his heart there is nearly always a response.

Dry facts will not make very much of an impression, though, unless you light it up with a consecrated imagination. There must be a glimpse of the harvest at the planting of the seed. A famous judge in a southern city bore testimony to the work among the negroes which was carried on by some students by saying that he received fewer criminals from that part of the city since the work began. Men and women are made need creatures in Christ Jesus through the power of the Word. It has been so in the past and it will be so in the future. Some dilapidated section may be made over through the work of the Spirit in the hearts of his humble, faithful followers. Souls which do not know the Lord for salvation may be led to Him and find peace of conscience. Not long ago the writer visited a mountain Sunday School. He had been away for some time and had not kept in direct touch with the work. One of the first men to greet him was a man who had been a notorious man in the days gone by. If he came drunk no one had much to say for trouble was sure to follow. Christ got hold of him and he was a new creature in Christ Jesus. That school did a splendid piece of work for the state and the community. It saved both money. It made the section a happier section and it made a man a happier man in the Lord. Was it worth it? This is the work to which God calls us. The speaker should show very clearly these possibilities. Men do not control, the importance of sacrifice of personal desires for the sake of victory.

All forms of outdoor recreation games and sports are in much favor. Boys and girls love the rivalry of contests. Rewards are sometimes offered to stimulate sports. These tests are of great value to the body and help to develop strength and skill and cultivate endurance and health.

The churches are giving more attention to these things than formerly, because it wants the young people to realize the interest it feels in a fourfold development of body, mind, and spirit and the social qualities of youth.

The spirit of fair play, of unselfish interest in other people and many Christian virtues can be cultivated in the ball ground, the racetrack, the golf green, the tennis court, the basketball court, and young Christians can set the pace for others in the best in character.

like to go into a thing which has no future, and hate into new communities of love worth while. Making over old men lost in creatures in the Master is worth while. This is by the law or the courts, but by the power of Jesus Christ. He can work through any layman who give himself devotedly to the task.

Meeting the Need

Immediately men will ask just what they mean by this. It is no doubt a general expression of willingness that the Christ would have them do, but there is a general doubt if there is anything which can be done individually. The second speaker should speak clearly and so plainly that there can be no doubt that the men cannot speak and perhaps they do not and perhaps they cannot do personal work. It is true for they have never tried. All this is a chance to use a man and his time and his possessions fully, and He will show us how to serve and what he can do.

One of the great needs is for automobile work. Many men own cars dislike to use them on Sunday afternoon. They usually have some other place to go. Nearly always there are more cars than there are automobiles. Now it does not mean that a man is unable to drive a car—a deaf and dumb man can be taught to drive a car. It takes gasoline and it takes consequence to say without a qualification that Sunday Schools can always be run if they take out teachers, but there is a greater need of the statement. Just to take your car and on Sunday afternoon is not the least of trust in the Kingdom.

Outpost Sunday Schools are very effective in the redemption of communities. Perhaps the best approach. God has said that His Word will not return unto Him void. It is the mission of the Church that Word. In the Sunday School there is a chance to carry it through Testaments and leaflets and material; through the power of the spoken word; through frank discussions of the things of the Kingdom; through the influence of a life given in sacrifice; through other way do so many opportunities to let the men of Christ present themselves as in this outpost work will surely use all of these means, especially a consecrated life, to lift men upward to the Kingdom.

Good work is being done in the evangelizing of the men. A group of men told their pastor that they would preach each evening that they would go out and get there and would work up the attendance. They do all of the personal work. Little wonder that the men did a good piece of work. Another man who organized a little prayer service which met at the different homes on a week-night. Out of this came, which were nothing more than personal work, of what God had done for the speakers and those present to accept the same Christ, a dozen came to the Lord. Much good can be done in this way. There is no pastor in the Southern Presbyterian Church, nor in any other church, who will not to help the men get started into active work. Special mention should be made of the type of work which is being done by the Business Men's Evangelical Society.

In the larger cities they have gone out and done a untold good for the work of the Master. This can be done just as readily through the organization of the Church. In fact, every group of men should have a layman's evangelistic club in its widest scope. The ideal of all religious work is to train men to carry on its own work. There are so many where workers must be secured from outside, a time, but the ideal is always to develop the community itself. This should be kept in mind by those developed even as others are won. This is better for this than the Leadership Training. Do not let the name frighten you away. There is a Leadership Training for the advanced workers and the Leadership Training for the beginner. The Bible should be taught in a simple way, ways to teach the literature of the Bible—all of these things can be made helpful to the teacher no matter how young in service in the years in the Kingdom. A good way is to have summer schools which have done so much good. Touch with your Presbyterian Director of Work, and he will suggest ways by which this can be done. If your Presbytery does not have one, write to the Synodical Director. The Department of Leadership Training will be glad to help. Write to Leadership Training, P. O. Box 1176, Richmond, Va.

These are some practical ways to meet the needs of the communities around you which are untouched. Do not believe that the need is not so much, however, the ways of doing things, as to bring the church face to face with the need, and place the responsibility. It might be well to close with a word of prayer. It takes a lot of grit and grace and gas to do this type of work. It takes much sacrifice on the part of the men. It boils itself down to this point, are we willing to ourselves to the work or not? And perhaps the question is on how much we love the Lord Jesus Christ. If we love Him enough we will go to the ends of the earth.

We are earnestly looking forward to the day when every knee shall bow to Him, and every tongue shall confess that He is Lord and King. That can be done by those who love Him are willing to express their service.

The Ministers' Annuity Fund Is serious effort to solve a critical problem

just and reasonable method of dealing with the disability or retirement of our ministers and missionaries

well thought out plan to overcome the neglect of many years

real attempt to remove forever the one inglorious mark of our Church's history plan to encourage the minister to save and help conserve his savings determination to make certain the provision for certain need of days of inactivity.

recognition of the business principle that when the Church begins to use up the energies of its servants it should begin then to make adequate provision for their days of disability

an economical plan, sound in principle and practice, worked out by competent actuaries, approved by open discussion, established by years of experience, and commended by many leading Christian business men of America serious endeavor to provide against need which in the past has been so inadequately met by appropriations from the funds of Ministerial Relief an honest effort on the part of the whole Church to fulfill a solemn, serious and binding obligation to the entire group of ministers and missionaries, who have been called away by the Church from the sources of financial gain a determination to meet the demands of justice, honor, gratitude, self-respect, expediency, social conscience, religion, obedience, love and the revealed will of the Head of the Church an approved, modern, contributory pension plan protecting the entire group of ministers and missionaries with regard to age, disability and death, making provision for the widow and minor orphans, and giving the Church the needed reserves to fulfill its obligation to all its servants for all time.

All these and other facts are more fully set forth in three carefully prepared leaflets.

Watch this page for answers to such questions as: Is it safe and sound? How will it benefit minister and Church? Is it feasible for our Church? Will it meet the need? What safeguards will be thrown around it? And others.

(Ask any question and we will gladly answer.)

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH IN THE UNITED STATES,
Department of Ministerial Relief and Ministers' Annuity Fund,

Henry H. Sweets, Secretary. John Stites, Treasurer.

410 Urban Building, Louisville, Kentucky.

STORY

"OLD SPECKLES"

James D. Burton

Down in the Tennessee Mountains is a Kentucky-bred horse of Arabian parents, known to hundreds of mountain people as "Speckles." The name of his owner is the Rev. Paul E. Doran, home missionary of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. The two names are inseparable in this territory. They were visiting mountain homes long before the advent of good roads in the highlands, and the use of the automobile.

Until he was four years old the horse was cared for by two girls who had ridden and driven him since he was two years old. When the girls left home, one to go into business and the other to school, Speckles was sold to a man who was none too kind in his disposition. One day, when the man was drinking, he started to get into his buggy, and then remembered that he wanted to light his pipe. With one foot on the step between the wheels, he started to light his pipe. The horse thinking he had gotten into the buggy started and knocked the man down. Drunk and angered at his fall, he got into the buggy, and began beating and swearing at the horse. The horse ran away and never stopped until he had torn the buggy to pieces and extricated himself from the remains. Subsequent attempts of this cruel owner to drive or ride the horse were futile. He would not let the owner hitch him to the buggy or mount him. Finally, Speckles fell into the hands of a trader.

Mr. Doran was passing by this trader's lot one day and espied Speckles. He admired him, and since he was in need of a mission horse to carry him over a large parish in the mountains, difficult task in almost inaccessible coves and ravines. The trader demurred about selling this horse to the minister, saying that he would not suit him, that he had made a bad reputation for himself and was considered dangerous. Finally, however, the man was induced to let the minister have the horse on thirty days' trial. The horse trader and the minister were neighbors, and the trader wanted to remain a friend to the minister.

The minister began talking to Speckles, and petting him. To the trader's amazement, the horse became gentle and easy to handle. That was the beginning of Speckles' missionary career. For ten years he has carried this minister on an average of more than five thousand miles a year, over all kinds of roads and through all kinds of weather. The minister trusted him as his faithful friend which he proved to be. Many dark nights, on dangerous mountain paths, this minister has dropped the reins, and told Speckles to take him home and he has always arrived safely.

And now the interesting part is Speckles' education. He was constantly talking to the horse on their long, lonesome journeys, and teaching him to understand. The horse learned the names of families in the mountains. He would go alone to these homes, when directed to do so, with many miles intervening. He developed some curious traits. No one except members of the Doran family can handle him, unless in the presence of his owner and with his owner's approval. When the minister tells him to go with a stranger everything is all right, and there is no further trouble.

The horse is never hitched, but is allowed to stand unhitched, even at the county seat of Sparta. He will not leave until his owner returns. Once the minister had an engagement to speak in a nearby town. He rode the horse a part of the way and took a bus for the remainder of the trip. Now when Speckles is at the county seat, and feels that his owner has been in town long enough, he comes up on the public square looking for him. That day the minister did not return as soon as he had expected. According to custom, Speckles had gone up on the town square in search of his owner. In trying to get out of the way of a car he ran up an alley, and in some way fastened himself on a fence. The minister returned and could not find him. Thinking for once that the horse had left him, he walked home. Speckles was not there, and did not show up the next morning. A friend in town telephoned that he had seen Speckles hitched the night before, and begging piteously to be turned loose, and that he had loosed him, thinking he would come home. When the minister came to the county seat, a distance of about five miles from his home, he found his faithful horse looking for him.

Mr. Doran's three little boys ride Speckles at pleasure. It is comical to see him stretch out his front legs and then his hind legs and bow his back for the boys to get on or off him.

On one of the long journeys into the mountains, the trail led over a huge flat rock, Speckles slipped and fell, throwing the minister violently to the ground, and stunning him by the fall. When he came to, the horse was standing over him, trembling in every muscle, presenting a pitiful sight. The horse evidently thought he had killed his owner. Ever since that experience, when reaching dangerous places on the mountain paths, he will stop, look back and groan, until the minister dismounts, slaps him on the hip, and tells him to go on and wait for him, the minister making his way or down the path as the way to find Speckles waiting the way becomes smooth.

The history of mountain Tennessee, will never without the story of the ice of "Old Speckles" Paul E. Doran. Together ministered to the sick, hungry and poverty stricken neglected and forgotten mountains. They have been angels of mercy to hundreds in the Tennessee Mountains only compensation either expected has been the breath of life. From my headquarters in Cumberland Range, I have into the heart of these mountains met "Old Speckles" and not far from the divide shed, east and west, away with profound impression great service which he rendered. Speckles, too, is "great divide" in his own shall rest forever from labors. He is now practicing at the country home of the minister of the gospel. A rigid ice has he rendered to the out-of-the-way place, responding to kind treatment being such a bad horse reported.—Our Dumb Animal

GREATER LOVE HATH

Ida Attaway Thomas

"What shall I do, doctor, anxious query of Mrs. Simpson stood with one hand on her forehead and the other hand near her lips. Jimmy could not

Some Facts Worth Knowing About The Finances of Davidson College

For twenty years or more Davidson has been operated on a budget plan and without deficit. Eleven thousand people have made contributions to the College in recent years, the largest single contribution being Davidson's five per cent equity in The Duke Endowment.

The finances are handled in four separate divisions—(1) Endowment, which, over and above the Duke money, is approximately a million dollars; (2) the Plant Funds, approximately a million and a half dollars; (3) the Student Loan Funds, approximately $20,000, and (4) the Operating Funds, which are in excess of $300,000 each year.

No Presbyterian College in the South is better equipped, or, from a business point of view, has its future better insured. Few Colleges, if any, can give more to students for the money than Davidson. With the completion of the new $600,000 educational building (no dormitory rooms), Davidson's academic equipment is modern in all departments. Spacious, well lighted laboratories are supplied with new, modern equipment. The President of a well-known college recently quoted a college expert who knows Davidson intimately, as he does many other colleges, as saying that Davidson is the best college for men in the South.

* * *

Davidson has recently run a series of four advertisements on "Some Facts Worth Knowing About Davidson College." The first was "Some Facts Worth Knowing About the History of Davidson College," the second was "Some Facts Worth Knowing about the Courses of Study at Davidson College," and the third was "Some Facts Worth Knowing About the Student Organizations and Activities of Davidson College."

SUMMER VACATION TRIPS

Now is the Time to Plan Your Vacation.

The Southern Railway System Offers

Very Low Round Trip Fares to

Mountain and Seashore

Resorts

New York, N. Y.	$32.63	Atlantic City	$30.86
Chicago, Ill.	45.98	Detroit, Mich.	45.00
Cleveland, Ohio	41.85	Toledo, Ohio	41.90

Round trip tickets on sale each Saturday during July and August—Limit for return trip 30 days.

Atlantic City, N. J. $23.30

Dates of sale via PRR from Washington July 16th, 30th, August 13th, 27th and September 10th via B & O from Washington July 24th, August 7th, 21st, September 4th and 18th. Final limit 18 days from date of sale.

Niagara Falls, N. Y. $33.15

Dates of sale via PRR from Washington July 24th August 7th, 21st, September 4th, 18th and October 2nd via B & O from Washington July 18th, August 1st, 15th, 29th, September 12th and 26th. Final limit 18 days from date of sale.

Week-End Fares

Norfolk, Va.	$15.00	Old Point Comfort ...	$15.10
Morehead City, N. C. ...	13.15	Black Mountain, N. C. ...	5.60
Asheville, N. C.	6.30	Hendersonville, N. C. ...	5.35
Waynesville, N. C. ...	7.50	Brunswick, Ga. (St. Simons
Virginia Beach, Va. ...	15.60	Island)	15.00

Tickets on sale each Friday and Saturday, final limit midnight following Tuesday.

Rail and Motor Tours

Asheville, N. C., one-way motor coach the other rail $7.30.

Johnson City, Tenn., one-way motor coach the other rail $12.05.

Bristol, Tenn., one-way motor coach the other rail $13.75.

Round Trip Summer Excursion Fares to Mountain and Seashore on sale daily.

Watch Newspapers for Dates of Popular Excursions
Excellent Service — Pullman Sleeping Cars — Dining Car Service — Convenient Schedules
Ask Ticket Agents

SOUTHERN RAILWAY CITY TICKET OFFICE
308 West Trade Street
Telephone Hemlock 20

M'CALLI

Historically located Ridge. In view of
out Mountain

An outstanding school Thorough preparation and Technical School

Small individual
Stro
Christi Militan or Syst Compl
equip crete pool
40 A.C.
Lake.

Summer Session—July
With Camp Fe

Write for illustrated

The Headmaster, Chattanooga

WINTERSM CHILL TONIC

STANDARD FOR 50 YEARS

For over 50 years it has been the household remedy for all forms of

It is a Reliable, General Invigorating Tonic.

Guilford COLLEGE

Member of Southern Association recognition. Courses in degrees, including Business, Home Economics and Music. Religious atmosphere. Up-to-date program and student body. Century old, Quaker institution. The President, Guilford College man over thirty to home and care for children. Write Mrs. on Wright, Durham,

WANTED
 na.

OLPH-MACON
ol for Girls

er of Southern on of Colleges and ndary Schools

beautiful and healthful
 this accredited institution a thorough, well-round of instruction, home-like congenial companionship,
 -door sports, and an at-ture and refinement. The rapid progress because of surroundings. For informan C. Simpson, Principal.

ILLE, VIRGINIA

Folk's Friend

at many call it for and vigor into old rich, red blood into sound flesh on old ink with each meal.

ar Ale

stive Aromatics With eral Water & Ginger

ke it for assisting ive organs to con-
 food into rich blood
 flesh.

cr's body tremble, as he pressed against her.

Dr. Moore's face brightened, he was looking at Jimmy now, with appraisement, and in the healthy pink of Jimmy's cheeks, he saw the answer to Mrs. Simpson's question.

"Come here, young man," he said,
 patronizingly, "You certainly aren't undernourished, like your sister Mary over there; no doubt you have drunk the cream, while Mary did without."

Jimmy flushed with embarrassment and kept his eyes on Mary's little white face, as the doctor's skilled hands ran over his plump body. "You are as sound as a dollar, young man, are you willing to give your blood to save your sister's life?"

Jimmy's face turned pale and there was a big lump in his throat that choked when he tried to swallow; but he managed to say, "Yes sir, I'd do anything for Mary."

"The ambulance will be here within an hour, Mrs. Simpson, please have the children ready," Dr. Moore said brusquely as he hastened away.

"Come, Jimmy, help me, we haven't much time," Mrs. Simpson called.
 "Mary will get well now, dear, isn't it wonderful that you can save her life?
 I just couldn't do without Mary. She has been my help and joy, since your dear Daddy died," her voice trailed plaintively, "Anemia—too many white corpuscles."

Jimmy scrubbed his hands furiously and dabbed the washrag on his neck and face, then he heard his mother's voice again, "I do believe Dr. Moor was right about the cream, Mary has almost sacrificed her life for you."

The washrag made queer squashy sounds, and a funny little crushing, gritty noise was between Jimmy's teeth. He couldn't talk to Mother now.

 "Blood—blood, his blood, to save Mary," over and over that word, blood.
 There was a strange thumping in his ears and his eyes stung with unshed tears. The word cream was joined now to the refrain of blood, that kept running through his head. And now he thought he understood. "Sure, he thought, "Mary's the best scout in the world, she's always given me the best of everything, and I've been a greedy pig; but I'll pay her back now, I'll give her my blood for the cream."

"Why, Jimmy, you've nearly ruined your eyes with soap!" his mother exclaimed, as she hurried him into the ambulance.

The glass tubes and instruments by Jimmy's cot were devices of torture to his smarting eyes.

A smiling nurse rolled up his sleeve and said, "It won't be long now. You're a brave little boy!"

The nurse was right, it didn't take long; but the minutes had been hours to Jimmy since they had finished.

The doctors and nurses were watching the color return to Mary's pallid cheeks, apparently indifferent to poor little Jimmy lying on the next cot weak from loss of blood and fright.
 He was trying manfully to hide his fear of the unknown; but no longer able to repress his desire to know when this awful thing, Death, that was lurking nearby, was ready for him, he summoned all of his strength and pulled on the doctor's coat.

Turning, Dr. Moore saw Jimmy trying to say something. "Mary's all right, my boy, you've saved her life," exulted
 the doctor.

"But — Doc — " Jimmy whispered,
 "When—do—I—croak?"

Dr. Moore's eyes glowed with admiration, as he realized the agony the child had endured.

"You have nothing to fear," he assured. "Why, you're a little brick. All you need is sleep and then you'll feel great."—Southern Christian Advocate.

MARY BALDWIN COLLEGE

For women. Courses lead to B. A. and B. S. degrees. Music, art, spoken English, physical education. Gymnasium and field athletics. Modern equipment. In beautiful Shenandoah Valley. Founded 1842. Catalog. Staunton, Virginia.

FISHBURNE
MILITARY SCHOOL

Aim—"Not the largest, but the best"

IN EVERY class each boy recites every day. Contacts with schoolmates from all over the country. Graduates enter all colleges. Certificate privileges. Mild year 'round climate. Easily reached. Full athletic program supervised by experienced men. Modern equipment. Swimming pool. Col. M. H. Hudgins, Boz
 D. Waynesboro, Virginia.
 Member Ass'n of Military Colleges and Schools of U. S.

DARLINGTON SCHOOL

ROME GEORGIA

An Accredited Preparatory School for Boys.

Small student body. One resident teacher to every ten boarding students. Supervised study. Bible taught.

Physical training every day for every boy.

All men teachers, graduates of A-class colleges. Home atmosphere.
 Thorough college preparation. Only boys of good moral character desired.
 Non-military. Charter forbids operating school for financial gain.

HONOR SYSTEM

"Unselfishly Dedicated to Young Manhood"

C. R. WILCOX, M. A., President

Address all inquiries to

E. L. WRIGHT, M. A., Headmaster, or

S. H. ASKEW, M. A.

Associate Headmaster

ANTA CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

The Foremost School of Music in the South

Fall session begins Monday, September 2, 1929

Summer session in June and July

atalog C GEO. F. LINDNER, Director Atlanta, Georgia

SALEM COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

wn nationally for 156 years' unbroken record in higher education.
 life emphasizes Christian standards without denominational differeny-six acre campus of forest and meadow. Swimming, riding and all Our endowment pays 12 1-2 per cent. of each student's expenses, rece annual charge to $655.00.

Accredited member Southern Association. A-Class.
 A. B., B. S. and B. Music degrees with wide elective privileges.
 catalogue "A" to Pres. Howard E. Rondthaler, Winston-Salem, N. C.

VACATION TRIPS

Rail and Motor
 Tours

In the Southern Appalachian Mountains

In especially arranged rail and motor tours, the Southern Railway provides a new vacation recreation, combining rail and motor transportation for the individual and for parties, into the mountain sections of Virginia, North Carolina, Eastern Tennessee and North Georgia.

These tours will take you adventuring by rail and motor into regions of scenic beauty and historic interest. Each trip begins and ends with a railway journey, in which you enjoy the speed and comfort of rail travel. The motor trips are over established State highways.

For booklets, information and rates,
 call on Ticket Agents.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

NORTH CAROLINA STATE COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND ENGINEERING

E. C. BROOKS, LL.D., President

AGRICULTURE ENGINEERING
 TEXTILES SCIENCES AND BUSINESS EDUCATION

The Summer school opens June 10. The Regular session opens September 13. Applications should be made early.

For Information, write

W. L. MAYER, Director of Registration

Raleigh

North Carolina

QUEENS COLLEGE

"The College With the PLUS SIGN"

Sound literary training plus Christian influence. Faculty members characterized by thorough scholarship, and unquestionable Christian character.

RATES EXCEEDINGLY REASONABLE.

Ask for catalogue—enroll now—College opens Sept. 11.

WILLIAM H. FRAZER, D.D., Litt.D., President,
 Box 300, Charlotte, N. C.

FASSIFERN A Select School Preparing Girls for
 In the Land of the Sky Leading Colleges

Small classes, individual attention. Piano, voice, violin, harmony, art, home economics. Handsome new brick gymnasium. Physical culture, horseback riding, golf, outings at Camp Greystone. For catalog, address
 JOSEPH R. SEVIER, D.D., President, Box S, HENDERSONVILLE, N. C.

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE
 DECATUR, GA.

Stric entrance requirements, but few failures after admission. Somewhat expensive, but cheap in comparison with advantages offered. No loafers expected, but also none without capacity to enjoy almost unlimited good times.
 For details as to admission, scholarship aid, etc address

PRESIDENT J. R. MCCAIN
 Box S

ENEMIES OF THE VACATIONISTS

(By C)

Every summer thousands of vacationists are disappointed in their ventures at camping out in the woods or mountain climbing because they went into the woods equipped with nothing but a rosy and romantic notion of life in these shady solitudes. After about a week of such life they are in a state of painful disillusionment and join the vacationists that take to the hotel porch palm-leaf fan for their recreation the rest of their days. This is too bad and ought not to be, and would not be if these vacationists would take a little time and care to learn how veteran vacationists do the thing. It is a science getting oneself through the woods and over the mountains in comfort. For nearly every wood and mountain side has its quota of bugs, snakes, and poison oak, or ivy, that bite every person who crowds them too closely. The only sure method to pursue is to know these enemies and their habits

How to Obtain an Ideal Memorial. Attractive Booklet FREE

A very helpful booklet which has just been published by the Winnsboro Granite Corporation, Rion, S. C., tells how you can obtain an ideal Memorial. The ideal Monument it explains must possess four essentials—beauty, durability, strength and legibility of inscription. This booklet contains many very pleasing Memorial designs and much practical information that every buyer of Monuments should have.

Readers of this publication are familiar with the sterling qualities of Winnsboro Granite, which is quarried by the above corporation, and shipped to all parts of this country. Winnsboro Granite has proven to be the finest quality Monumental material to be found in America. It is known far and wide for its beauty, permanence, strength and legibility of inscriptions cut thereon. Scientific tests show Winnsboro Granite contains less deleterious ingredients, such as lime, iron and water than any other American gray granite. This is an important factor buyers of Memorials must consider. Like all high quality materials, Winnsboro Granite is sometimes confused with the many inferior substitutes which resemble this granite on first appearance, but do not possess its lasting qualities, and permanent beauty.

Write for your FREE copy of this attractive booklet on Memorials, and see the many beautiful designs for family Monuments. It explains how you can avoid substitutes, and obtain genuine Winnsboro Granite. Address Winnsboro Granite Corporation, Rion, S. C.

Opportunity For Your Boy GIVE HIM A CHANCE

The measure of success your boy secures in life depends largely on the training he receives during the early years of his high school education. At this most critical age, every parent should consider carefully this question:

Is your boy getting out of school what he should? If not, it may not be the fault of the school. It may be that:

- 1st. Outside influences attract his attention.
 - 2nd. He is not brought face to face with the necessity which is the mother of thrift.
 - 3rd. He may need the environment conducive to study.
- This problem can be solved, and is effectively solved at Carlisle School by
- Careful attention to the individual.
 - Constant Christian influences and military discipline.
 - Supervised study.

Development of spirit and fair play through clean athletic sports. Carlisle School develops manly men. If interested write for detailed information. First term opens September 10.

CARLISLE SCHOOL
Col. Jas. F. Risher, Headmaster
Bamberg, S. C.

and avoid them, but also be acquainted with the best remedies for their bites in case of being bitten.

By far the most common of these enemies is the poison ivy, for some form of it grows in almost every part of the United States, according to Department of Agriculture. In some sections it is rare, while in others it is so common that it is impossible to spend a day in the woods and not be bitten by it. The cases of ivy-poisoning run into the thousands every year, and every case represents a vacation ruined and a multitude of regrets concerning the venture undertaken.

Ivy-poisoning is generally preventable. Two things are necessary: First, learn to know the plant, and, second, take preventive measures when there is any danger of having been exposed. The wisdom of this precaution is usually hard to impress upon the one who has never had a dose of ivy-poisoning; but once he has had to undergo the discomfort of swollen eyes or bandaged hands for a week, he is likely to admit the wisdom of it. Many people will insist that they are immune to ivy-poisoning, but authorities say it is doubtful if any one is wholly immune. The poison merely takes hold of some skins more readily than others.

When learning to know poison ivy at sight it is well to remember that the different kinds vary greatly in the shape of their leaves and the manner of their growth. It may appear as a low-growing weed, or it may be a flourishing bush three or four feet high with a light colored bark. Again, it may be a small shrub or a vine three or four feet long, throwing off aerial roots only one characteristic of poison ivy has wherever it grows, and that is the leaflets in groups of three. The central stem an inch or more long, the other two grow directly from the stem and have practically all. Whenever you see this kind of leaves, whether on a plant or a bush, give it a wide berth. It may be harmless; but it may not.

BLACKSTONE — A MILITARY SCHOOL FOR BOYS

Located in Healthful Section of Virginia. College Preparatory and Business Courses. Best home influences prevail, and individual needs of each boy considered. Modern, new and fireproof buildings. All manly sports, Christian influences. For illustrated catalog write to

Col. E. S. Ligon, President
Box R

Blackstone

PUZZLE CORNER

Criss Cross State Puzzle

- My first is in San Francisco, but not in Los Angeles.
- My next is in Philadelphia, but not in Pittsburgh.
- My third is in Boston, but not in Salem.
- My fourth is in Birmingham, but not in Montgomery.
- My fifth is in Little Rock, but not in Ozark.
- My sixth is in Hartford, but not in New Haven.
- My whole is a boy's best friend.

Rhythmic Synonyms

- 1
I am a fish, too large to hook,
On any single line,
A painful mark, as well, just look!
I mean to cry or whine.
- 2
I'm sure you eat me every day,
Once, twice, or maybe thrice,
Well or ill, I show the way,
You're trained, I'm sure you're nice.

Junior Cross-Word Puzzle

- | | |
|-----------------------------------|---|
| Horizontal | Vertical |
| 1—Agony | 1—A young frog |
| 5—Sither | 2—Part of the foot |
| 6—Gain | 3—Mountain system between Europe and Asia |
| 8—An ocean (abbr.) | 4—To make honorable |
| 11—Masculine name | 7—Musical note |
| 12—A wooden flute-like instrument | 9—College (abbr.) |
| 14—Title of respect (abbr.) | 10—A toilet article |
| 15—A hug | 13—Mistake |

PUZZLE ANSWERS

A HIDDEN SAYING
Misery Loves Company
CRISS CROSS STATE PUZZLE
FATHER
RHYTHMIC SYNONYMS

- 1 WHALE-WAIL
- 2 BREAD-GRED

Visiting Cards and Stationery FREE

For a limited time we will give with each $3.00 subscription to Presbyterian Standard 100 high grade visiting cards FREE.

SAMPLES OF TYPE

- 1. Miss Evelyn Smith
- 2. Mrs. J. B.
- 3. REV. JOSEPH BLOEGH
- 4. Mr. Henry C. Moore

Specify type wanted by number

With each $6.00 paid on subscription we will give 100 sheets paper and 50 envelopes to match with your name and address printed thereon.

Size of paper 6 1/4 x 7 inches. Good grade bond paper. Envelopes one half size of paper.

SAMPLES OF TYPE

- 5. REV. M. HARVEY JONES
Charlotte, N. C.
- 6. S. T. HAINES, D. D.
Richmond, Va.
- 7. Mrs. Jackson Helms
WACO, TEX

Specify type wanted by number

If you prefer some other type, send us a sample and we will duplicate as near as possible.

Stationery can be printed in either blue or black ink. We will use black unless otherwise specified.

Check or Money Order must be sent direct to the publisher to receive this offer of cards or stationery.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING CO.
P. O. Box 869
Charlotte, N. C.

Mosquito Die, or Money Back

Flit is the world-famous "sure thing" in killing mosquitoes, flies, roaches, bugs, ants and fleas. More people use Flit because it kills faster (than any other insect-killing ingredients), and is easier to use in the handy Flit sprayer. More for your money in the quality of Flit.

"The yellow can with the black band"

Large

enrollment but com-
equipment and service,
leals and tremendous ce for good.

terian
College
Clinton, S.C.

No Lance

Antiseptic Preparation WOUNDS, BONE FELONS, and OLD SORES. Price 50c
THE CHEMICAL CO.
Brookland, S. C.

different things may headache, but there's ing you need ever do to Bayer Aspirin is an idote for such pain.
office. Have it handy
Those subject to fre-
den headaches should Aspirin in the pocket-
have used it for head-neuralgia, etc., you've ayer Aspirin can help.
ck, complete relief to
men and women who year. And it does not heart.

ASPIRIN

Trade mark of Bayer Manufacture
Sodium Salicylate of Salicylic acid

College for Men

Clinton, Tennessee

Jackson College

FOR WOMEN

Clinton, Va., Box A

Controlled by Montgomery
Presbytery

Colleges of the Synod of

offers four year courses
degrees of Bachelor of Arts
of Sciences — a small college — Faculty of eleven men of thorough training and experience. Expen-

Jackson College. Accredited College for young people of healthful Virginia 10 years high school,
college. Music, art, home economics, stenographic, and manual courses, physical education. All outdoor sports.
A complete golf course on fifty-five acres. Homelike life.
Catalogue.

The poison of the poison ivy is an acid that gets on the skin and slowly sinks in. The best counter agent is an alkali, and authorities say that two of the best remedies are ordinary baking soda and common laundry soap, which contain uncombined alkali. So when one has been exposed, he should on reaching home wash the exposed parts with a strong solution of ordinary baking soda or common laundry soap. It should not be forgotten that the poison may have gotten on the shoes or clothes and one may be affected by handling these.

Next to plants, insects are the greatest enemies of vacationists. But there are patented remedies for keeping away flies and mosquitoes; and but for these protective remedies many woods would be uninhabitable. In many woods of the North deerflies and horseflies are especially annoying. It is a good plan never to go into an unknown woods without some such preparation. Also take along some ammonia water and use it in a diluted form on the sting or bite of such insects. This remedy is also good for bee stings and wasp stings.

But it is the fear of snakes more than all other fears that keeps most people out of the woods and tall grass. And this fear is largely unfounded, according to the actual damage done by snakes in this country. The only poisonous snakes in this country are the rattlesnakes, copperheads, moccasins, and coral snakes. The others are harmless, but are all killed "on principle."

In dealing with snake bites prevention is worth more than cure. In a rattlesnake country it is wise to wear leggings or shoes that reach to the knees, for a snake seldom if ever strikes higher than the knee of a standing man. The poison will not reach the flesh through canvas or leather. The real danger comes when picking up firewood or a shot bird or gathering flowers. Again in climbing cliffs and using the hand for support there is danger of putting your hand on him.

In case of a bite cut open the two little wounds made by the fangs and suck out the poison at once. Then cauterize the wounds with some crystal of permanganate of potash. Washing the wounds with a solution of these crystals and injecting the solution into the surrounding tissues will cauterize them effectively. When this is done the bitten part should be cut off from the rest of the circulation by bandaging. This bandage should be released for a moment every few minutes to allow the circulation to take up what poison is left.

These are pretty severe remedies to use and may deter some of the timid vacationists. It should not do so. All life is full of risks everywhere, and safety is found in knowing the danger.

VEGETABLE IMMIGRANTS

- Celery originated in Germany.
- The onion originated in Egypt.
- The citron is a native of Greece.
- Oats originated in the East.
- Rye came originally from Liberia.
- Parsley was first known in Sardinia.
- The pear and apple are from Europe.
- Spinach came from Arabia.
- The sunflower was brought from Peru.
- The mulberry tree originated in Persia.
- Walnuts and peaches came from Persia.
- The horse chestnut is a native of Thibet.
- Cucumbers came from the East Indies.
- The quince came from Crete.
- The radish is a native of China and Japan.
- Peas are of Egyptian origin.
- Horseradish is from Southern Europe.

John Hancock Satchell.

ORIENT FLOUR
Its Whiteness Denotes Its Purity
MOUNTAIN CITY MILL CO., CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

MEREDITH COLLEGE
For
YOUNG WOMEN
STANDARD COURSES IN ARTS AND SCIENCES, IN MUSIC,
IN ART, IN HOME ECONOMICS
Confers the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Music. Delightful environment on a high plateau on the western boundary of North Carolina's Capital City.
Room reservations are now being made for session 1929-30.
For catalogue or further information write
CHAS. E. BREWER, President
Raleigh, N. C.

GLADE VALLEY HIGH SCHOOL
A Christian Schools for boys and girls
Standard High School Courses with Specials, Bible, Music,
Domestic Art and Science
State Accredited Experienced Faculty
Careful Oversight of Students
Board, Room and Tuition only $138.00 for year.
Address E. B. ELDRIDGE, Supt., GLADE VALLEY, N. C.
ALLEGHANY COUNTY

BELK'S
Featuring a Final Clean-up Sale of all Summer Merchandise.
All floors co-operating in this General
Clean-up Sale.
COME TO BELK'S
"Save the Difference"
Belk Brothers Co.
Charlotte, N. C.

THE RIGHT WAY TO TRAVEL

is by train. The safest. Most comfortable. Most reliable. Costs less. Inquire of Ticket Agents regarding greatly reduced fares for short trips.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Church and Sunday School Furniture

Send For Special Catalogue THE SOUTHERN DESK COMPANY Hickory, N. C.

BURNS Ease the Pain Heal the Sore Stop Infection

with GRAY'S OINTMENT For Burns, Cuts and Sores At all drug stores. For free sample write W. F. Gray & Co., 724 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Nervous Women Praise Capudine

Delicately poised women who suffer from high nerve strain and nervous pains, such as periodic pains, headache and pains in the back and sides are high in their praise of Capudine because it quickly soothes the tense nerves and relieves the pain. Being liquid, Capudine acts almost instantly,—does not upset the stomach. Sold by druggists in 30c and 60c sizes. (adv.)

YOUR CHURCH deserves a beautiful exterior in harmony with its spirit of culture and worship. Let us suggest appropriate shrubbery. THE HOWARD-HICKORY CO., Hickory, N. C. Local Representatives Wanted, especially to sell fruit trees. Landscape Gardeners and Nurserymen

Take STANBACK to Relieve PAIN

6 6 6

is a Prescription for Colds, Grippe, Flu, Dengue, Bilious Fever and Malaria. It is the most speedy remedy known.

WEAK EYES are strengthened and relieved by Dickey's old reliable eye water. In use over half a century. Relieves sore eyes from gnats and dust. Doesn't hurt. In red folding box at all good stores or by mail 25c. Dickey Drug Co. Bristol, Virginia

OVER-RUNS AND MILL ENDS SAVE ONE-THIRD ON CLOTH DIRECT FROM LOOM TO YOU Cotton Flannels, Pillow Tubings, Sheetings, Crinkled Cloth for Bedspreads, Pajama Checks, Chambrays, Tinted Dimities, Gingham, Art Silk Striped Madras for men's and boys' Shirts. Write for free samples and prices. MONAGHAN MILL STORE, Dept. A., Greenville S. C. "Textile Center of the South"

Expert Kodak Finishing

Developing and printing by experts. Most beautiful work guaranteed. Developing and printing 6 exposure rolls as follows: Size 1 1/2-8x2 1/2, 40c; 2 1/4x3 1/4, 40c; 2 1/2x4 1/4, 46c; 3 1/4x5 1/2, 52c; Film packs, 12 exposures, 2 1/4x3 1/4, developing and printing, 85c. Other sizes in proportion. Quick delivery. LIGON'S DRUG STORE: Spartanburg, S. C.

SPARKLES

Frenzied Finance

Smith: "Are you getting a new car this year?" Jones: "Yes. That is, as soon as I've paid for the one that I had before the one I've got now."—Life.

"Is it true that she has a secret sorrow?" "Yes! Hasn't she told you about it?"—London Humorist.

Some people drive as if they were anxious to have their accident quickly and get it over with.—Milwaukee Journal.

The dismaying part of it is not what man descended from, but what he will descend to.—Corvallis Gazette-Times.

There, little grapefruit, don't you cry, 'Cause when you do, it hits my eye.

Reasons

Hundreds each morning I behold Along the highways stalking; Many are walking to reduce More are reduced to walking. —London Opinion.

Billy, six, was exasperated with the almost continuous squalling of his baby brother. "I bet I know why he came from heaven," Billy mused. "They put him out."—Ex.

Too much of the uplift in this country is confined to noses.—Eric Times.

Flaming youth sometimes cooks its own goose.—Dallas News.

Mrs. Key was visiting some friends, and she left the following note for her nearest neighbor:

"Dear Mrs. Garrison. Would you please put out a little food for the cat I have been feeding this winter? It will eat almost anything; but do not put yourself out."—The Booster.

He: "You are a little Fairy; may I hold your Palmolive?" She: "Not on your Lifebouy; your head's solid Ivory." He: "This is where I get the Colgate." She: "I woodbury that joke if I were you."—The Evangelical Crusader.

Minister: "I wish to announce that on Wednesday evening the Ladies' Aid will have a rummage sale. This is a chance for all the ladies of the congregation to get rid of anything that is not worth keeping, but is too good to be thrown away. Don't forget to bring your husbands."—Tit-Bits.

Professor Zeitlin: "I call my eight o'clock quiz the Pullman class because it has three sleepers and an observation section."

Dean Cantor: "Very good. I call my nine o'clock Virgil class the pony express."—Illinois Siren.

A monologue is a conversation between the man who went to Europe and the man who remained behind.—Juggler.

Mrs. Backpay: "Good morning, sir. Will you take a chair?"

Installment Collector: "No, thank you, ma'am. I've come to take the piano."

Mrs. Robert Katz was looking for her husband and not finding him at the village grocery, she went over to the barber-shop. The proprietor met her at the door and inquired what she wanted.

"Bob Katz here?" she asked. "No, madam, we do not," replied the barber as he closed the door.

Chicora College for Women

The Presbyterian College of South Carolina

Standard College Courses Beautiful Grounds Healthful Climate Large, Strong Faculty Ideal Surroundings Moderate Rates

For Catalog and Information, Address

S. C. Byrd, D.D., LL.D., President, Columbia, S. C.

FORTY-SIX YEARS CONTINUOUS SERVICE WITHOUT A LOSS ON ANY LOAN

We offer you a safe, tax-free investment for your regular weekly or monthly savings and your lump sum. Write for particulars.

ASSETS OVER $8,800,000.00

The Mutual Building and Loan Association

Established 1881

CHARLOTTE

If In Doubt, Take B. & L. Shares

You will earn the highest interest rate on your savings consistent with perfect safety, and pay no tax on earnings. Shares cost twenty-five cents per week, usually mature in 333 weeks. Net you 6 1-2 per cent maturity.

Series Open in January, April, July and October

Mechanics Perpetual Building & Loan Association

Established 1883

18 E. Fourth St.

Charlotte

THE WINTHROP DESK, $75

The Governor Winthrop desk has come down to us from the very earliest beginning of America. The one shown here every detail has been copied minutely. It is made in Grand Rapids which is assurance of its fine quality. Others, varying in size from $70 to $145.

W.T. McCOY & Co Home Furnishers

423-425 SOUTH TRYON STREET CHARLOTTE, N. C.

"National Bank Safety For Savings"

For the Future

Are you making ready to share in the opportunity which increasing prosperity will bring?

A Reserve Fund Banker Will Help

Charlotte National Bank

Resources Over $5,000,000.00

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

Religious Newspaper for the Family

Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.

D. G. WILSON, D.D., Editor-in-Chief
W. L. S. D. D., Co-Editor
W. L. S. D. D., Contributing Editor

ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858

M. F. ELLIS, Vice-President
REV. J. G. GARTH, Treasurer and News Editor
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
BY PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY

CHARLOTTE, N. C. JUNE 21, 1929

No. 34

Mission Work Chinese Control

Transfer Property into Hands of Chris- tians of North China

The transfer of all work and property of the North China Mission of the Board of Commissioners into Chinese control by the Rev. Dr. Wynn, Secretary of the Board. This is to give full recognition to the aspirations expressed by Christians of the North in May when they repudiated a constitution for an entirely Chinese church organization. This Board is the foreign mission of the Congregational Church in the United States. The churches of the North China Mission through their representatives have established their own ecclesiastical organization under the name of "the Promotional Chinese Congregational Church of North China." This Board is continued on Page Two)

Anniversary Of Pentecost

Evangelistic Program to Be Great Event To Be Held On Next Year

The 1900th anniversary of the birthday of the Church will be observed by the Churches of the world during the coming year. The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, through the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, which Dr. Charles L. Goodrich, Secretary, has just announced, includes a campaign of evangelism, a church-attendance drive, the establishment of a family altar in every home, of "Upper-Room" meetings to be held in churches, homes, offices and stores, and a reading of a chapter a day from the Acts of St. Luke and the Acts of the Apostles, which will begin this year on June 8, the day of Pentecost. A series of conferences will be held by the leaders in the principal denominations of the United States. Nearly all of the religious bodies in America have committed themselves to this program at their official conferences, and the Synods.

It is to make the coming year the greatest in the history of the Church in the field of Evangelism, although it is suggested that the program be carried out by the pastors themselves, rather than by professional evangelists. An interchange of their services during the periods of time. Instead of the usual Sunday, as has been the custom, the climax of the seasons' work will be recommended by the Commission on Pentecost by observing the 1900th birthday of the Church. Associated with this program is the proposed campaign of the secretaries of Evangelism in the principal denominations, as well as those specially appointed by the Synods.

Mexican Missionary Reports Developments

Havana Congress—Temperance Agitation and Renewal of Catholic Services the Big News

The big thing that has taken place during the past few months in connection with the Evangelical Work in Mexico has been the Havana Congress on Christian Work. That meeting was far-reaching in its effect, showing the place the Churches are to take in the future not only in Mexico, but also in all the other sixteen countries represented, as well as in other lands. One could not sit in that Congress for ten days and associate intimately with those present without being impressed with the fact that there are being forged vigorous nations in all of the Latin-American world, and that the Churches in those nations are wielding an influence far above their numerical numbers. These Churches have developed a strong leadership. They understand perfectly well that they are facing great problems and at the same time they know that only Christ will solve those problems.

But while this Congress was the big thing, that was not all. Many other things of interest have filled our minds, our hands and our hearts. We are always interested in anything that indicated progress in Government circles in Mexico. This time it is President Portes Gil's Temperance Campaign, and he is in earnest about it. Posters remind us constantly that such a campaign is in progress, Governors of States, daily papers and different organizations are upholding the President in this work. An anti-alcoholic League has been organized, is now publishing its own organ and has entered vigorously into a campaign of education on temperance. President Portes Gil is right when he emphasized the educational features and insists that the teaching of temperance must become a part of the curriculum in the Government schools. There had been courses on Temperance in the schools before, introduced by Dr. Andres Osuna so well known in Evangelical circles, but these are being enlarged.

The acceptance by the authorities of the Catholic Church of the explanation given by the President of the laws which have made the conflict between the Church and the State in Mexico and their consequent compliance with these laws renewed the services in the Catholic Churches by the priests. The laws have not been changed. They are very clear and the Protestant ministers have always understood them and have complied with them and for this reason have continued their services during the past three years. Not the slightest discrimination has been made in their favor. It has only been a question of complying with the law.

All Christians are interested in the distribution of the Word of God in Mexico. Students go out armed with Gospels and copies of the New Testament for distribution whenever they go to preach; but a new interest in this work was aroused when Rev. George T. B. Davis made a trip to Mexico last May and began plans for the distribution in Mexico of 250,000 New Testaments. It will be remembered that Mr. Davis has directed similar campaigns in China and Korea. He is now in England completing his plans for the campaign in Mexico, and will return a little later in the year and begin in earnest the work of distribution. This promises to be

(Continued on Page Two)

Faculty Changes At Princeton

Three Professors Leave To Be Teachers in New Seminary at Philadelphia

The Presbyterian Banner gives the following report of a meeting of the administrative committee in July:

The administrative committee of Princeton Theological Seminary met in Philadelphia on July 31 with the following members in attendance: Dr. William L. McEwan, the chairman; the Rev. William B. Pugh of Chester, Pa.; Dr. John B. Laird and Dr. Lewis S. Mudge of Philadelphia, Dr. Robert E. Speer, of New York City, Dr. William Hallock Johnson, of Lincoln University, Pa.; Paul C. Martin of Springfield, Ohio, and President J. Ross Stevenson. A meeting of the full board of the seminary will be held about September 15. Steps were taken by the administrative committee to fill all vacancies in the faculty so that at the opening of the seminary on September 24 all departments would be fully manned and courses of instruction would be offered

(Continued on Page Two)

Elise Adds Course In Folkcraft

The Busbees Will Instruct in Pottery Making

When the Elise academy at Hemp opens for the coming session on September 2, it will introduce one feature that should prove worth while. The Busbees, of the Jugtown Pottery, will have a department at the school where they will instruct the students in folkcraft work on a practical scale. Mrs. Busbee, who has always been interested in this school at Hemp, referring to the new venture the other day said, "Mr. Busbee and I had always wished that some scheme might be arranged to introduce training in the folkcraft among the people of our section, but it had not occurred seriously to us, that the academy at Hemp afforded the opening. And then the idea was presented, and quickly it became a fact. Elise is the place where we can pass on what we so earnestly desire to perpetuate. The idea came to Jacques suddenly, and now we are harnessed up with Christian education. We are arranging our plans, and are pleased with the expectation that we are to help along with this work."

The department will offer instruction in making baskets, rugs and other articles by the girls, iron ware, such as fireplace equipment, brackets, lamps, stands, etc., by the boys, probably the introduction of the weaving of the old-fashioned linsey-woolsey textiles, instruction in the art of pottery making, and with all of it the arts and training that a contact with these lines of work will suggest. The Jugtown Pottery has a name that is international in its extent, and the Busbees are people who not only know the industry of producing pottery, but the artistic feature of the industry and the poetry of the occupation. They are interested in the people among whom they have lived for several years, and in many ways they have been working to broaden the industrial and mental horizon of the Deep River region, with much success. They have excellent material to work with in the substantial type of people who have lived for generations in that quarter. When the

(Continued on Page Two)

Mission Conference Closes at Montreat

Dr. Truett Makes Several Addresses, Men's Conference began August 15, Bible Conference Opened August 18

J. Gray McAllister

The General Missions Conference at Montreat, which began on Sunday, August 4, reached its close on Wednesday night, August 14, the closing address to the Conference being delivered by Dr. Lawrence H. Wharton, pastor of the University Presbyterian Church, Austin, Texas. The speaker earnestly discussed the program, policies and administration of the missionary enterprise. It was both a devotional study and a stirring appeal to the great audience gathered in the Anderson Auditorium. The days of this General Missions Conference have been high days at Montreat, a succession of speakers from all over the Church being on the program each day.

Dr. George W. Truett, of Dallas, Tex., who delivered three addresses in the General Missions Conference on Faith, Prayer and Evangelism, continued his work by speaking Thursday and Friday mornings and again on Saturday night, August 15 to 17. He brought great messages to magnificent audiences. He held a most helpful conference with the ministers and missionaries on Wednesday afternoon, August 14.

Large numbers of ministers and laymen are at Montreat, and others have been arriving for the Mens' Conference, (August 15 to 20), and for the Bible Conference, which began Sunday morning, August 18 and extends through Sunday, August 25. The fine succession of speakers on the program will be greeted with the greatest audiences ever gathered here at Montreat. And Montreat has never looked as beautiful as it is today.

Junior College For Men Opens on September 11

N. C. Synod's Newest Institution at Maxton Expects Full Enrollment

Presbyterian Junior College, located at Maxton, N. C., will open for class work on September 11. The registrations to date indicate a widespread and enthusiastic interest in this new institution, the number having already gone well beyond the number necessary for accredited rating. Almost every section in eastern Carolina will be represented in the student body, besides representatives from three or four other states. The faculty is composed entirely of men who have both college and university degrees and it is confidently expected that the work of the school will be of a high order. All faculty members will arrive by September 1.

The entire plant is going through a complete renovation. Carpenters, plumbers, electricians and painters have gone over everything and made all needed repairs. When the cleaners have completed the final touches, the whole place will have the appearance of newness and freshness. It will be recalled that this new institution is opening in the buildings of the old Carolina College, which was formerly conducted as a girls' school. It will now be conducted as a men's junior college under the control of the Synod of school has opened it will be an interesting center for people from every where to find hand-made decorations and products of all sorts. Good roads lead to Hemp now from all directions which is worth remembering.—Aberdeen Pilot.

(Continued on Page Two)

ELISE ADDS COURSE IN FOLK CRAFT

(Continued from page 1)

FACULTY CHANGES AT PRINCETON

(Continued from page 1)
as announced in the catalogue. A communication from Dr. Robert Dick Wilson, one of the Fundamentalists leaders of the Princeton faculty, asked for his release from further service, since he had reached the retirement age. It is expected that Doctor Wilson will leave the faculty to join that of the Westminster Theological Seminary, which will be opened in Philadelphia. Only one full professor, however, will be lost to the Princeton Seminary through resignation, administrators of the seminary maintain. The Rev. Dr. J. Gresham Machen and the Rev. Dr. Oswald T. Allis, who have gone with the extreme Fundamentalists to the new seminary in protest against the formation of a single board of control at Princeton, are not full professors, it is contended, but are instructors who have received the title of assistant professor. A cablegram was received from Dr. Samuel M. Zwemer of Cairo, Egypt, accepting the call to the Chair of History of Religion and Christian Missions. "Doctor Zwemer is recognized throughout the world as one of the outstanding missionaries of the day," said Dr. J. Ross Stevenson, president of the seminary. "The presence of Doctor Zwemer among the dozen or more missionaries occupying Calvin N. Payne Mission Hall will maintain Princeton Seminary as the great center of missionary life, inspiration and service." Other vacancies to be filled are those resulting from the death of Dr. John D. Davis, late Professor of Old Testament Literature; the death of Dr. William Brenton Greene, late Professor of Apologetics and Christian Rules, and the retirement of Dr. J. Ritchie Smith as Professor of Church Homiletics to become professor of the newly established Chair of Christian Education. Selection was made of the professors to be approached to fill the vacancies, it was announced, and a subcommittee was authorized to negotiate with them.

JUNIOR COLLEGE FOR MEN OPENS SEPTEMBER 11

(Continued from page 1)
North Carolina. As such it has an absolutely open field, the nearest strictly men's college being more than a hundred miles distant.

The athletic fans in eastern Carolina will be glad to know that the college will have a sane and wholesome recreational program. An athletic field is under construction and will be ready for practice by the opening date, twenty-two new football uniforms have been purchased and a splendid coaching staff is being organized. It is expected that even this first year will see a good team in this and other college sports.

Local interest in the college is running high. This is very forcefully illustrated by a "Canning Party" put on recently by the women of the community at which time about two hundred quarts of fruits and vegetables were put up for the college pantry. A College Club has been organized and will throughout the year promote various forms of activities for the benefit of the college. While it is true that students may register up to the opening date, the college authorities very strongly suggest that those who plan to enter the institution this year and have not registered yet, attend to this at once. It requires sometime to secure high school credits and other information necessary to determine the student's proper rating.

MEXICAN MISSIONARY REPORTS DEVELOPMENTS

(Continued from page 1)
one of the most effective pieces of missionary work that has been attempted in Mexico in recent years.

The Annual Bible Institute which the Seminary promotes was held in May and proved to be a real Institute. More study was done. Sixteen certificates were given out for the completion of that many courses. The popular meetings were of a high order. One evening was given up to the work of the young people. One evening was devoted to Women's work. One was an illustrated lecture by Professor Brown, head of the school in Coyoacan, on his recent visit to England. Another was a lecture by Prof. Enrique Aguiere, Secretary of the Department of Physical Culture in the Y. M. C. A., and more recently director of Physical Culture in all of the Government Schools of the Federal District. He recently spent several months visiting the leading cities of Europe, and spoke from first hand knowledge of the Social movements there. Another feature of the Institute was Biographical Sketches of two of the leading Mexican ministers: One was a biographical sketch of Dr. Arcadio Morales, founder of the First Presbyterian Church in Mexico City, and its pastor for fifty-two years. The other was a biographical sketch of Rev. Agapito Portugal, a prominent minister of the Methodist Church. On the day the sketch of his life was given his children donated an enlarged picture of their father to the seminary. We are now making every effort in evangelical circles to conserve the history of the Church—both its leaders and its progress. The Seminary Chapel is a sort of picture gallery of those who have made this history possible. There are added year by year new pictures.

We, in our Mission circle, are happy this summer because of the return from school in the States for their vacation, of several of the Mission children: Katherine and Rufus Morrow, Hervey, Jr., and Anthony Shelby. Margaret Shelby graduated from the University of Texas and is spending a part of the summer with her grandmother in Virginia, and a part at Gray Stone Camp, Tuxedo, North Carolina, where she is one of the Councilors. Polly Coppedge, who is with her grandparents in Rosedale, Mississippi, did not return to Mexico this vacation. We almost burst with pride when we see what progress these half-grown-up "Hippocacks" are making.

GREAT MISSION WORK PUT IN CHINESE CONTROL

(Continued from page 1)
will control either through gift or loan, all property of the American Board in North China except the residences of the missionaries. The missionaries themselves will be loaned by the American Board and will be entirely responsible to the Chinese Board.

According to the Rev. Dr. C. Y. Cheng, of Shanghai, who is now in Boston, the American Board is the first missionary organization to place the entire responsibility and control of its Chinese work and property in Chinese hands. The Rev. Dr. Cheng is general secretary of the National Christian Council of China, moderator of the Church of Christ in China and a member of the International Missionary Council.

The transfer of the control of all mission activities to the Chinese is in accordance with the declared policy of the American Board for all its Missions and has been the goal for the work in North China since it was started in 1860. The formation of the new North China Board was accomplished with the counsel of the missionaries on the field, among whom was the Rev. Dr. Fairfield, who had served in North China twenty years until this spring when he was appointed a secretary for this country.

The arrangements for entire Chinese control is also said to be in accordance with the findings of the International Missionary Council at its meeting in Jerusalem last year.

The new relationship between the churches it represents in the United States is indicated in the constitution of the Chinese Board:

"This Board is directly responsible to the Congregational Churches of North China in the conduct of a missionary program for the advancement of the kingdom of God in China. However, this Board

Montreat

By J. Gray McAllister

A most interesting and helpful Conference for Ministers and Missionaries, both Home and Foreign, was held by Dr. George W. Truett in the Chapel on Wednesday afternoon August 14th, Rev. Fred Anderson of Florida presiding and a large number being in attendance.

A work that is very little known to our Southern Presbyterians was presented in one of the addresses delivered in the General Missions Conference. It is the Latin work of our Southern Church, and the presentation was made by Rev. Alfred de Barritt who is the minister of our Church in Key West, Florida. Mr. de Barritt called attention to the fact that our brethren of the U. S. A. Church have taken over our work in Cuba but we can-recognize a stewardship on behalf of the American Board in administration of property, funds and personnel granted or loaned by the American Board for the purposes for which this Promotional Board is established.

"While this Promotional Board now relies largely upon support of its work by Christians in America, it looks forward to the day and seeks to encourage an increasing support of the missionary work in China from the Congregational churches of North China."

The missionaries under their new status are to serve on a basis of complete equality with their Chinese associates. They are expected to become members of a local Chinese Church and will receive their assignments from the Chinese Board. All questions of location, transfer, furlough and resignation are to be settled by the Chinese Board in consultation with the missionary concerned. The missionaries are to receive their first appointments to China and to return after a furlough only upon invitation from the Chinese Board. Their direct allegiance while in China is to be to the Chinese churches because experience teaches "the importance of avoiding dual control."

The American missionaries who will be under the Chinese Board are 117. They comprise twenty-five ordained men, five men physicians, one woman physician, eleven other men, thirty-six wives and thirty-nine single women. The Chinese force comprises fourteen ordained men, 291 teachers and 266 evangelistic workers including eighty-seven women.

A preliminary stage to the complete transfer of the administration of the mission work to the Chinese occurred in 1914 when the Mission Council was re-organized on joint American and Chinese basis. Gradually increasing control was placed in Chinese hands until some years ago the missionaries relinquished all special prerogatives which they had in the administration of the local associations into which the churches are organized.

The administrative work of the new Chinese Board is outlined in three divisions—evangelistic, educational and medical.

The organized churches number 225, and the places where services are held 557. The communicant membership is 17,349, and the affiliated constituency 45,760. The cost of the church and evangelistic work is $110,000 annually, of which 10 per cent comes from Chinese contributions.

The educational work includes participation in Yenching University, Peking, and Shantung Christian University, Tsianan. In addition there are two theological schools, thirteen middle schools and eighty-three primary schools and kindergartens, a total of 109 schools with 6,879 under instruction. The cost of the educational work is $130,000 of which $95,000 is paid by the Chinese in tuition and fees.

Eight hospitals, nine dispensaries and two nurses' training schools comprise the established medical work which will be under the Chinese Board. Last year the in-patients numbered 3,286 and the out-patients 17,266. The cost of the medical work was $100,000, of which 40 per cent was met from fees and Chinese contributions. Ten per cent was appropriated by the American Board and 50 per cent was raised through special gifts in America.

not expect them to assume our ability in our own territory. We 00 Cubans in Florida, he said, a of them are in Key West who cally nothing has been done for to a very recent time. The Synod ida is attempting to reach the with the Gospel, but that Synod other problems to face and it sary to ask the sympathy and h people in the other Synods. but faithful group in Key We ing their utmost to meet the tion, but of course find it an task. They have a frame buildi seventy people, but this is ina the needs of the American co the officers and enlisted men of and Navy, the Cubans and the of, visitors who come to Key ually. Mr. de Barritt also cal tion to the fact that we want the young Cuban-Americans ap point of vantage is Key West i work which has been heartily by the Synod of Florida and on bly's Committee of Home Missi certainly receive our most e support.

The evangelistic note has cert struck at Montreat this season all the Conference on Assemb in annual session here early gave itself a very earnest dis this very vital subject and p resolution which has been pub cently in our Church papers.

The closing address of the School for Auxiliary leaders is ed for by Rev. George W. Belk of les, Ky., on the subject of Perso gelism and the opening add Leadership Training School in following, by Dr. Charles L. G Richmond, Virginia, was on t of Evangelism Through Relig us cation. In the General Missio ence, Mr. Fred MacMillan of stressed in a powerful way t of Soul Winning, as did Dr. G Truett in the third of his addres ed in this Conference and over again here at Montreat the pre been made that we are on the period of real evangelism in o

The Young People of More using these glorious days on ng to Grey Beard, Pinnacle and M M The Young People here have 11 ious time of it under the splen ship of Mr. J. P. Moore, of Ma C., and his most capable assist.

The General Missions Conre Montreat closed on Wednes August 14th and the Men's Ver ference began Thursday night. The day between was very su cupied. At the ten o'clock hou Dr. W. Truett, of Dallas, Texas, been speaking each morning. ce day, delivered a powerful serm subject, "Why do Christians S before a tremendous audience, H number of the benefits that on suffering, showing how the wid rished by Christians who bear ering in a Christlike way. He sk on Friday morning to another dience gathered in the Ander torium and again on Saturday 17th. This is called "Montre and certainly Montreat was t a varied and interesting pro sisting of music, addresses, an sentation of tennis trophies an for the fine work done by the Yn ple of Montreat. The tennis tro girls was awarded to Miss Br ningham of Decatur, Ga., and t boys to Mr. Eugene Du Bose

(Continued on page 1)

LOOK

At the Label on Your

If it reads August 1929 prior to that date it means your subscription is due. Subscriptions are payable in advance, and we feel sure our good readers will co-operate with us and inform us to send a bill. What do you do?

Thank you!

BYTERIAN STANDARD

FOUNDED 1858

Organ of the Synod of N. C. for 70 Years

at the Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as Second Class Matter

Terms—The subscription price of the Standard is $1.00, payable in advance. To ministers the price is $1.50. To ministers' wives the price is $2.50 per year.

For the mailing label shows the month and year to which subscription is paid. Payment in advance is required.

Subscriptions may be made by money order, check, or registered letter and send currency by mail.

Obituary Notices—No charge is made for notices of 100 words or less, but for all over fifty words the charge is $1.00 per word.

Rates—Sent on application.

Address—Kindly send us both old and new addresses previous to the desired change.

Changes are made only upon the written request of the subscriber and settlement in full must be made at the same time.

Advertising Matter and Business Communications Should be Addressed to

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

Box 869
Charlotte, N. C.

EDITORIAL

HEAD-LINE IN THE MINISTRY

It is not a fancy, but a fact, not a condition, and no matter how we argue against its absurdity it has come to stay.

Churches make it a fixed quantity that when a man has reached a certain point in life's journey, he is at once relegated to the rear, and has become "a portion of the dreadful past."

It is not so sad, it would be ridiculous to deride the efforts of the Committee to remove the pastor.

When the object in view were a horse they could tell by its teeth how old he is; but such an object is not being available, they have to matter through his friends.

The limit is not only foolish, but unwise because it makes a man suffer for what he cannot help—and neither should you decide that any man is inefficient because he has reached a certain limit.

It is not itself a misnomer. It should not be, but efficiency-limit.

Men are efficient when age has written upon head and face, while others are efficient before their beards are grown.

They can keep old age away. It creeps upon them as time rolls on.

They can no more keep back old age than we can keep back the tide when it rolls in from the ocean. For this reason we ought to make provision for it.

Efficiency however is something we can control and when we fail to control it, we suffer for our failure.

To abolish it is then for a church to condescend with old age.

By force of will can be any younger man's years indicate, yet any man can be efficient by cultivating the powers with which God has blessed him.

George Pentecost was called to Bethany when he was seventy years old. This church that had John Wanamaker as the school Superintendent and where Dr. Pentecost was pastor at one time.

The great church should call a man of Pentecost's age shows that it was far wiser than to call a younger man in this section.

When we are seeking a man who could accomplish things and had accomplished things, we should not regard to his age they should look upon him, and his great work in the past showed that they made no mistake.

James D. Hoge, of Richmond, Va., was called to the ministry when he was 80 years of age when he died.

At the time of his death, there was no man in the ministry who could draw as large a congregation whose influence reached both North and South as he did his.

The explanation is that he developed fully in the ministry God had given him, so that in his old age he never grew old.

Let us learn a lesson for the preacher.

He will never cross the "dead line," if he studies as he should or gives himself wholly to the ministry.

If a man ceases to study and fails to keep up with the methods of church work, but continues from year to year the same line as he has always followed, he thereby places himself across the fatal line, so if he is laid aside, he has only himself to blame.

Our old friend, Dr. H. G. Hill, never grew old. When he passed into glory, he was still in harness and doing as much work as any man, old or young, of his day.

When 85 years of age, he preached in the morning, rode 10 miles to preach in the afternoon, then back home to preach at night.

Judged by the age standard he had passed the dead-line, but all must confess that he was a lively corpse.

SUNDAY AT MONTREAT

Sunday, August 11th, was the day when the attendance reached its peak, and the preaching, up to this date also reached its peak.

The spacious auditorium was full to its walls, and the preacher was worthy of the congregation.

Dr. Wm. Anderson, Jr., of Dallas, Texas, who has been conducting the Bible hour for the past week, was the preacher.

His Bible teaching, as we have intimated in a former article, was equal to, if not superior to any we have had here for years. So the great congregation gathered with expectation of a great sermon.

That he fully measured up to these high expectations was the unanimous verdict of all who were fortunate to hear him.

Taking as his text Philippians 2:5, Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus, he preached a sermon that will long remain in the minds of all who heard it.

It was a wonderful sermon, such a sermon as makes a man feel that he has never preached no matter how long or how often he has tried to preach.

It was simple enough for a child's understanding, yet it had depths of thought that would win the admiration of the ablest. It was full of unction, reaching the conscience, and making the hearer long to be like Christ.

At the evening service he discussed the subject, "Why I believe the Bible," and he handled it in a wonderful way—such as any one could follow.

He announced in the opening sentence that he believed in the inerrancy of the Bible—a most refreshing statement in these days when so many ministers are engaged in undermining the foundations of the Old Book, and leaving the ordinary hearer at sea, without knowing what to believe—his chart and compass gone and he at sea drifting at the mercy of every wave of unbelief.

We give in a nutshell this simple argument, in three heads, each illustrated by pages from his own experience.

First, it claims to be God's word. Second, it has withstood all assaults upon it for ages. Third, my own experience has seen these claims justified in the conversion of the most abandoned men and women.

We wish that we could reproduce the burning earnestness of the speaker, and the tender appeals of the man.

For nearly twenty years we have been reporting the Bible hour at Montreat, and in that time we have heard men from every part of our Church. These addresses have added to our knowledge of the Bible, and we are grateful to those speakers, but as far as we can recall, they merely appealed to our head, and gave us material for work in Bible teaching.

These lectures have been different. They have been mirrors in which we have gained a view of our spiritual condition, and they have opened our eyes to the meaning of the phrase, "Joy of Salvation," and also explained why so many of us have labored in vain.

Dr. Anderson has left us, but before going, so we understand, the young people presented him with a kodak and assured him that he had meant much to them.

All of these facts ought to bind him to Montreat, and insure his return in coming seasons.

THE HANDWRITING ON THE WALL

Those of us who still hold to the old faith have long viewed with alarm the inroads of the higher criticism and the fascination it has seemed to exert upon our younger brethren who not only love new things, but who sometimes imagine that the shortest road to a reputation for learning is to cut loose from the views of their fathers.

Of course these liberal brethren make a noise out of all proportion to their numbers, and we have always discounted that fact; yet even the presence of these views have not added to our comfort when viewing the future of our Church.

We have seen many changes in our day. We have seen the pulpit lose its moral hold on men by reason of ethics and the speculation of men being substituted for the Gospel and the "Thus saith the Lord" of Holy Writ. We have seen doctrines turned down to such an extent that their best friends fail to recognize them, and inspiration has degenerated into a meaningless formula.

In view of these signs the older men look to the future of the Church with gloomy misgivings, and many of them are convinced that "the perilous times," foretold by Paul, have indeed come.

An old soldier once said in speaking of his record in the army, "I killed as many of the enemy as they did of me." So we would cheer the hearts of the timid orthodox by assuring them that they of the other School are as frightened as we are and are by no means jubilant over their outlook.

In one of their journals which out-herods Herod in its radicalism a writer sounds an alarm, and calls upon the adherents of the Critical School to line up more courageously against Orthodoxy.

The advance and great progress of the advanced views are due to the evolution hypothesis, the scholarly criticism of ancient religious books and comparative religions, all of which contributed to bring about changes in doctrine.

He thinks it only natural that a reaction should set in, as the Jesuit reaction set in and hampered the Reformation of the Sixteenth Century.

That such a reaction has already set in, he sees in the great evangelistic movement that has been sweeping over the country, as in the case of Billy Sunday and others who follow in his wake.

According to this watchman upon the walls, men have been prepared for this by the quiet yet persistent efforts of Biblical scholars to discredit evolution and higher criticism, and to put back the antique idea of an infallible Word. He laments the fact that the preaching of Billy Sunday, not only has in it no trace of the teaching of the past fifty years, but the people hang upon his words, and are led by him.

One of the most ominous signs to him is the fact that these orthodox views are supported by men in high life, such as the President and his Cabinet, with the result that the followers of progressive theology have grown timid and are afraid to use any terms except those of the old theology.

In view of these facts this faithful watchman calls upon the faithful to rally around the banner of the Progressives, else the antiquated theologians will sweep the country.

We quote his words: "If Higher Critics and Modernists have any ground for their faith, it is time they wake up from smug complacency to the fact they face the most powerful foes ever lined up against modern ideas."

Those of our brethren who are making ready to leave the old ship of Zion, as rats leave a sinking ship, we would advise to stay where they are.

If they have become frightened, the enemy has become more so.

THE UNPARDONABLE SIN

Rev. E. B. McGill

It is not the purpose of this article to decide what the unpardonable sin is, but to give different views on the subject; and the reader may elect his own views. It is assumed that all agree that there is an unpardonable sin; since we see it even in this life in the business and social world; and it is taught plainly in both the Old and New Testaments. Also we agree that any and all sins may be unpardonable if unrepented of. We can only secure forgiveness through repentance. And since Hades is full of people it is evident that their sins were not forgiven, or the lost would have been saved. Therefore all sin is dangerous.

I heard one say that suicide was the unpardonable sin. This is a great sin we agree; but I hesitate to condemn any one who commits it. We can't bring them back to learn why it was done, the victim has gone into the hands of a higher power; and whatever arrangements is made about the future will suit me. Samson among others in the Scriptures took his life, but there is surely no condemnation for that act recorded. And we would rather one would destroy himself than some other. Murder is a horrible sin, but few believe it to be the unpardonable one. I heard one of my Princeton classmates express opinion that denying the Virgin birth was the greatest sin; but few accept that view. Though it is a fundamental error to question the virgin birth.

One school teaches the following and proves it according to their view. That the unpardonable sin is naturally the greatest sin; that the greatest sin is breaking the greatest commandment; that the greatest commandment is the first one; thou shalt love the Lord with all thy heart, soul, mind, etc. Therefore, failing to love the Lord with all our power, is unpardonable. Whether we accept this or not; considerable importance is attached to it. For God is love, and the absence of love is the absence of Godliness.

Another phase of the belief is that in as much as the Old Testament had the prophets, the New Testament the Christ, and he is left behind the Holy Spirit, we must accept him; since the other dispensations no longer exist. And if we reject the Holy Spirit there is no other hope. This, of course, is also a valuable thought. But certain theological questions are involved concerning the meaning of Holy Spirit (the Greek being Holy Helper); and the old Testament concerning the coming of Christ. Many people believe that it is unbelief in general; and to say the least, unbelief is very serious; for man is guided almost entirely by what he believes.

Evangelists frequently preach that it means "not accepting Christ today; while we have an opportunity." This is a valuable thought, for so many do not have a chance later in life, as they expect to. About 75 or 80 per cent of the deaths occur while the person is unconscious, hence there is little opportunity to repent at last. The evangelists also have good authority from the scripture "Today if ye hear His voice, then harden not your hearts." (Psalm 95:73). "Because I have called and ye have not heard, I have stretched out my hand and no man regarded." (Proverbs 1:24.)

Another school, to which the writer adheres, teaches that the unpardonable sin is the exact words of Christ recorded in the Bible, Mark 3:28-30. "Verily I say unto you, all sins shall be forgiven unto the sons of men, and blasphemies wherewithsoever they shall blaspheme; but he that shall blaspheme against the Holy Ghost hath never forgiveness, but is in danger of eternal damnation. Because they said, He hath an unclean spirit." This, as we understand it, teaches that accusing God of being evil, or connected with the devil is unpardonable. And some think that in includes accusing any good of being evil, or the reverse, of praising the Devil (or any evil agency) as being good. We fear that the more we explain this, the farther we get from it. Therefore study the Bible only and not what someone says about it.

Personally my greatest fear for the non-church people, is that a disappointment will be met with at the end of this life for the following reasons: Not thinking about their own faults, but continually talking about the mistakes of others, especially abusing church members. But others' faults cannot help us, let them settle that with the Divine. Further slandering your neighbor is a very heinous sin, both in the sight of God, and of man. "Or how wilt thou say to thy neighbor, let me pull out the mote that is in thine eye," (Matt. 6:4). Regardless of whether he is a church member or not, you should be careful about criticism. Remember also that remaining out of the church does not give special privileges to sin. We some times hear the expression, "Why, I do not belong to the church, therefore it is not required of me; like it is of some who claim to be good." But God requires the same of all of us. Otherwise we would do away with the church, and there would be no sin.

Second, my fear is because of a conceit. Often when I have asked people to the House of God, they would reply, "I'm glad I am not like the hypocrites that attend church, I pay my debts, etc." and tell you how good they are already. But we are reminded of the man who thanked God that he was not like his neighbors, and was corrected by Christ Luke 18:10). We have all noticed men associate with the so called hypocrites in business, especially when they can make money; yet they will not sit in the same church with them. But Christ Himself worked in the same temple with the hypocrites. Furthermore the idea of punishing God for what man does is serious. Suppose when we stand at the Judgment seat of God (Rom. 14:10), and are asked why we did not serve God in this life, and reply as we do now, that it was because others did wrong, we can easily imagine the answer. (Numbers 32:23.)

Third, the Church is Christ's wife, the spiritual mother of God's children and we may rest assured, that He is able to and will protect her. The church was not created for, nor by man. It is God's plan, it is carried on through the agency of man: who is not perfect. Those who think that we should have a perfect membership today, would do well to remember that Christ selected only 12 and they were not 100 per cent perfect. And if He were here today those who talk so much about the church member, would not go to hear Him and his disciples, any more than the Pharisees did then. The church is not a society of saints; it is a school that teaches Christian principles. The public school is not perfect but the law requires you to patronize it; and God's law requires you to do the same in His school.

Fourth, the Bible is correct when it says that, "the love of money is the root of all evil" (1 Timothy 6:10). Ninety per cent of those who give liberally to any form of charity, attend church, (and are also the citizens that the nation depends on). And on the other hand, 90 per cent of those who do not give, do not attend church; and frequently accuse the liberal hearted, of giving for a show. (If you quote the above, please quote it correctly, and not that I said 90 per cent of church members were liberal.) We preacher are human but we point you to Christ, and ask you to follow Him. Therefore instead of quibbling over what sin cannot be forgiven and trying to commit all others, remember that one sin unrepented of may mean damnation; and the more we commit the more we have to repent of. Also remember that if anything exists a certain way: your belief about it does not change the facts. If Hell exists, and you do not believe it: that has nothing to do with its existence.

Some minds can't conceive of the unseen. But the unseen is greater than the seen.

The following passages of Scripture are or maybe quoted in connection with the unpardonable sin. Genesis 6:3; Hebrew 12:17; Psalms 110:4; Jeremiah 4:28; Luke 11:23; Revelations 16:11; 2 Kings 24:4; Exodus 23:21; Jeremiah 5:7; Lamentations 3: 42; Matthew 7:21-24; Proverbs 1: 26; Matthew 18:21-35; Mark, 8: 28; Luke 16:19-31 and others.

THE LENGTHENED SHADOW OF A GOOD MAN WITH A VISION

Josephus Daniels

"When you go to the mountains this summer," said Dr. W. S. Rankin, head of the Duke Hospital Foundation, "do not fail to visit the hospital at Banner Elk, run in connection with the Lees-McRae school there. It is doing much good by what we call the 'in' patients, but more good by the 'out' patients, numbering 7,000 within the last year, than any hospital of which I have knowledge."

Therefore, Banner Elk, in Avery county, was one of the places to see while flivvering in the Northwestern mountains. Some roads are still under construction, but the road from Blowing Rock is good, most of it very good, through Vale Crucis and the Mast settlement. The location is ideal and the stone school buildings and dormitories on an eminence make an imposing appearance. This was not our first visit, but it has been largely transformed. It began in 1894 with one plain wooden building as a small mountain Presbyterian school in a section then lacking adequate school facilities. Gradually most of the wooden buildings have been replaced by stone buildings, having dignity and solid beauty.

"Where did you get the stone-masons to erect these structures?" my wife asked Mr. Edgar Tufts, head of the school, the orphanage and the institutional work carried on here. She had found how scarce are capable stone-masons in her part of North Carolina.

"All this work was done by natives of the mountains, men who learned to build these big stone buildings by building them." And the work is well done, more beautifully than if "struck" as is much stone work by master stone-masons. In fact, so well that these structures of native stone of various colors look like they are as old and as enduring as the everlasting hills that look down upon them.

"Look at this arched or curved window in the administration building," said Mr. Tufts. "It was made by an Avery county workman."

"Where did he get his plans?" my wife asked.

Mr. Tufts smiled. "He told me that he built it from a picture he had seen of a window in Solomon's temple."

It was beautiful and well done. I call that Solomonic wisdom inherent here in what we once were inclined to call the fastnesses of the mountains. This is a new angle to the native and inherent and inalienable common sense of the mountain population. Their forbears came here a century ago and made their homes far from what we call modern conveniences, but they were of the stock of an independent and self-reliant race, and as they are enjoying better educational advantages, are showing the stuff of which they were made, "stuff" which as in every era. It was the fact of the remoteness of the institutions, and his knowledge of the good stuff of the people who live in the recesses of the mountains that caused Rev. Edgar Tufts, a Presbyterian minister of Atlanta, to come here a century ago and open his school. At that time no school, except the small public schools of a few weeks term, in this part of the State. It was only a summer day school conducted as a matter of fact under the care of the Concord Presbyterian dormitory was built in 1900. It was taught by both McRae, a home mission teacher, while he preached in the mountains and directed the work, part of his work being to secure the money for the building. The first contribution for a building was made by Mrs. S. P. Lees, of Kentucky, not large as now, but most helpful and large in terms of the school, soon to be elevated into a junior high school, named by Mr. Tufts the Lees-McRae School the first teacher and the first donor. It bears now, honor being given to pioneers in liberal education and consecration of talent to teaching, growth has been steady and along broad lines.

It was Emerson who said that an institution lengthened shadow of a man. That is largely true in the case of the school. That is largely true in the creation of Rev. Edgar Tufts. He lived his life into it, and just as he saw the coming of his dream of larger and better buildings and a death claimed him. It looked to its friends that it was a blow which would be disastrous. But Wesley said, "God takes His workers but He gives them more." Rev. Edgar Tufts had interested men in his own faith and visions. Though fortunately for the school, Edgar, had grown up imbued with his father's faith and spirit. So the mantle of Rev. Edgar Tufts fell upon the son, Edgar, and, animated by filial piety and zeal of his own, the son has carried on, and father's ideals to fruition and adding ideals now being worked out.

The first dormitory opened in 1900 with one teacher. Last session there were 204 girls in the school. When the Presbyterian school at Plum Tree, not far away, was visited by a district superintendent a temporary building was erected across Elk River and the boys received. So now this work has grown as girls, and the next big thing is to erect school buildings of native stone for the boys school. There were 100 enrolled at the last session. Fifty per cent of the boys enrolled pay their way by work. The girls do the cooking and house work, the boys carry on the farm for Mr. Tufts tells me that there are 500 acres of it improved agricultural land and nearly all of it possible for food is grown on this great farm, a thing of beauty. There are 4,000 apples trees. Other students come here by reason of scholarship provided by generous donors. In the summer the dormitories are converted into a summer resort inn and a few boys, earn enough money to send them to school the coming year. The total cost for a term, board, tuition and lodging, is $120. There are 100 enrolled from 11 States, but most of them are from the mountain sections of this and the adjacent States.

The Lees-McRae School was first opened in 1894 and gave instruction in the three R's. To-day, to the marked improvement of the public schools, the longer terms and better teachers provided by the county and State, there is no call for any other school to provide such instruction. Therefore, the work is being dropped, and this fall the first session of a college will begin. "While we will have a job and undertake thorough instruction," said Mr. Tufts, "it is not at all our idea to get away from practical education and our graduates are to go home trained in science and in such practical instruction as will make them valuable in the steady improving conditions of the whole mountain section." As a matter of fact some of the best equipped teachers and nurses and other assistants received their training at the school, animated by a desire to aid in the education of the children and their neighbors' children. "As an example of the spirit of the girls taught here," said Mr. Tufts, "Lillian Curtis, dean of women, 'one of our graduates after graduation here, went to a large educational institution where she received a fine salary as a teacher, was well liked, but the call to service here was so strong that last year she gave up her position in the large institution and returned here as a $50 a month to become dietitian of the orphanage.' Mrs. Roschella Jones. It was interesting to see the Grandfather Orphanage, half a mile or so from the school, replaced wooden buildings and the plan is being carried out for the boys to assist native boys in building still other stone buildings.

"Where do you get the money for all this?" asked Mr. Edgar Tufts.

"I do not know," he replied. "I have to devote my time to making known the work we are doing to people who have the vision and the money. The Tufts Memorial Association is controlled by a board of trustees, five of whom are appointed from the C in the Synod of North Carolina, and five olston Presbytery in the Synod of Appalachia.

 es give and individuals North and South have us. Somehow, God puts it in the hearts of nd women in the North and in the South to go ahead confident that these benefactions we let the needs and the opportunity be made

* * *

we went to Grace Hospital. As you enter the is a tablet on which you read:

GRACE HOSPITAL
 Given in Memory of
 GRACE HARTLEY STOKES
 By Her Sister
 Helen Hartley Jenkins
 A. D. 1922.

a score of mothers here with children and patients awaiting examination and treatment.
 eds are occupied by "in" patients. We talked f them. Dr. W. C. Tate (everybody hereabout kind and wonderful"), the head of the hospibut Dr. R. H. Hardin, assistant director, is diagnosis and operation, with patients wait-im. He is a native mountain man, born in s Doctor Tate, born in Knoxville. The "out" operation 16 to 18 hours a day. Miss Georgia superintendent of nurses, and Mrs. Effie C.
 , assistant superintendent, and Miss Susie cietitian, showed us over the well-arranged e X-ray machine and apparatus would do y city hospital. Everything is clean and in-were persuaded that Doctor Rankin had not enthusiastic in the high commendation he gave and invaluable work done by this hospital, only the 700 who are treated in the hospital,
 who are ministered to by the physicians here,
 y day from all parts of Avery and adjacent

The foundations are being laid for a new be constructed of native stone like the school
 ge buildings, and to have accommodations Where is the money to come from? Part ke Foundation and part from Mrs. Helen kins, of New York, who gave the original tal, and that is to be turned into a nurses' remarkable that the cost per day per patient while the average in North Carolina hospineighborhood of $3.75 or around that figure.
 ve away we shared somewhat the spirit of nherited from his father, the surgeons and re giving their lives to this good work. And a North Carolina man, blessed with wealth, is not known either here or elsewhere, who money invested here would bring him large e could see what money accomplishes here el repaid, and if others with large means with their own eyes, Mr. Tufts would have obtaining all that is needed.—News & Ob-gh, N. C.

THE CRISIS AND THE REMEDY

By Sandusky Curtis

more important question before the Southrian Church today than that of the welfare its youth. Just how the present advanced the material prosperity threatens to deflate ths held sacred, is affecting the young mind, importance to the Church in view of the fact ranks of the young the leaders of another awn. It is a question that may not be settled
 e relative good and evil within the minds in the practices of youth, is veiled by the conclusion, that the evil is broadcast to ers of America while the good, like a quiet along Life's river, seldom causing a ripple.
 ne question of the condition of young people settlement and has divided the thinkers of nd land into two parties, for and against , one thing is certain, a crisis exists. The progress of the world with its developments of endeavor presents temptations as well as to the youth of this era. In the field of zling investment propositions holding out result of possible successful ventures appeal draw them to thing material rather than are spiritual. Careers, love matches with embers, over-abundant amusement, all these ptations make necessary stability of char-risis is successfully passed.

discussion of the passage of the crisis by the s that our thought is directed toward the remedy is suggested. It is true, and none that the Church is responsible for those s Sunday School, Christian Endeavor, and ations for the young, then the hope of the ght worthy citizen lies in the Church. This the Church must train its youth in the life and in so doing touch the home, lest ristlike atmosphere on Sunday and a irrelly the week days. Such a course of training ly possible through the Church, as represmembers, being in step with God and the st.

its sordid influences the world cannot take h, or the aged, for that matter, the beauty Christ and being like Him. So, the remedy

Men-of-the-Church

Presbyterian Church in the United States

REV. J. E. PURCELL, D.D., Executive Secretary
 HENRY GRADY BUILDING
 ATLANTA, GEORGIA

REV. JOHN L. FAIRLY, D.D., Wilmington, N. C.,
 Editor in Charge of Men-of-the-Church Department

SPLENDID WORK IN DUNEDIN, FLA.

About three years ago, the men in the Bible Class of the Sunday School began to consider prayerfully and earnestly the subject of organizing all the men of the church in order to develop as far as possible any latent abilities which ought to be used for the Master. A committee was appointed, which met with the pastor and with the help of a few other men who formerly had been engaged in similar work, under the guidance of the program laid down by the Department of Men's Work of the Southern Presbyterian Church, organized the Men-of-the-Church in the First Presbyterian Church, Dunedin, Florida.

The enthusiasm ran high. We had some excellent meetings at first. Our work has been going on for three years. We still have enthusiasm for the work and men are still diligent and faithful in attendance on the work and the meetings. In the summer months, when many of our people have gone away, the Men-of-the-Church continue to have their monthly meetings, as well as the meetings of the groups.

We have the organization divided into three groups of about ten or fifteen members each. These groups meet on Sunday afternoons at the Church, the first, second and third Sundays. They meet for prayer and for the consideration of some phase of the work of the church, of its history and discussion of some book bearing on the work of the Church, and for the consideration of some portion of Scripture. The Group Leader prepares the program and selects several men to take part. These groups also select people out of the church and pray for their conversion and engage themselves to work with them in the best manner deemed possible. Here they strive to keep enthusiasm for the Master's work warm. The groups also take up the work of visiting an outlying Sunday School we have. They also work on the attendance of the Bible Class. They have also been working on the attendance at the Sunday night services. The effort is made each month by the Council to place before each group some definite work to engage in during that month. The groups have been with us the means of bringing the men closer to each other and to our Lord.

The Men-of-the-Church have had each year an Annual Visitation Day. On a certain date, set with a view to finding most people at home, they visit all the people in the community. A committee works out the details ahead, assigning to the men the portion of the community they are to visit. These men go out in groups of twos or at most threes. They pay a short visit to the people living in the district assigned to them. They have cards on which they write the names of the people visited, the number of children in the home, the church attended, or the reason why church is not attended. This has been of considerable value to the pastor in his work and to the church in general. The men are to be highly commended when they engage in such work. It helps the church and enlarges the view of the men as to the problems that confront the church. The effort is made not to go where people are already members of another church, so as to avoid any suggestion of proselyting.

As to the general effects of the work, it may be said that men have been brought to know each other and have become friends, who scarcely were acquainted before. It has, therefore, produced a better spirit among the members of the church. It has also developed the spiritual life of the men of the church by giving them the opportunity of self-expression.

It is safe to say that if the men in any church will closely follow the plans laid down by the Committee of Men's Work, if they have a pastor who is willing to hold back and let the men take the lead, helping only when asked or when the need requires, and immediately getting out of the way, if they will look to the Lord Jesus for guidance and strength, the power of the men of the church, too often lost through lack of such work, can be developed to the advancement of the work of the Master's kingdom both in their individual lives as well as in the work of the church as a whole.

PROMOTION WORK IN NORTH MISSISSIPPI PRESBYTERY

Here are some splendid testimonials from North Mississippi Presbytery as to the progress of the work:

"I think it is just a little too early to get a proper esti-

for the curing of the ills of youth is no new one, simply personal surrender to Jesus Christ, loyalty to his Church and unselfish service in His name.

Temptations of this modern age may come and go but the souls who know Jesus in the forgiveness of their sins need never fear the hip flask, corrupt business, immoral living or other evils, for He will not suffer those to drift away who honestly and sincerely try to live so as to glorify the Holy Trinity.

Norfolk, Va.

mate of the value of your work with us. I have no doubt in my own mind but that the work is going to yield large dividends. As I return to the churches visited by Mr. Naff and others reached through your schools, I find almost without exception the men thinking seriously of this matter of enlarging their sphere of operation."

"We began organized Men's Work here in March, 1927, after the pastor and several men had agreed that a more definite method should be adopted for the men to do the work of the Church. A meeting was held and the possibilities of such an organization and plans for it were outlined by the pastor. Officers were elected and the Assembly's plan was adopted. Few meetings were held at first. At the beginning of the present church year, new officers were elected and Monthly Programs have promoted interest. Meetings are held on the third Friday night of each month and the Committee's programs are used. Mr. Naff visited our church while he was in Mississippi, just prior to the School of Methods held in Clarksdale by Dr. Purcell. His contacts with the men were very pleasant from their point of view and his address was an inspiration. Our regret is that he could not have stayed for another meeting to go into the method of procedure for the Men's Work. That would have been very beneficial."

"During Mr. Naff's recent visit our men re-organized and resolved to follow the Assembly's Plan of Monthly Meetings and Programs. We will hold our Monthly Meetings either Wednesday or Sunday nights."

"I am glad to write about the progress of the Men-of-the-Church in our congregation. It was set up about five years ago and has continued along the lines laid down by the General Assembly, except that we have not used the group plan until within the last three months. We have held our monthly meetings all that time. We have sponsored also various activities in the church which needed development. The work has borne good fruit, especially in the matter of the development of adult leadership. Dr. Purcell and Mr. Naff were with us recently in a School of Methods. The attendance was good, and the interest was good, and I believe much good was done in the way of educating the men to the nature of the work and fostering a new enthusiasm for it. I would commend this school to any Church or Presbytery."

"Regret that we have no history of Men's Work in the Charleston Church. Our men's Bible Class is regarded by us as a part of the Men's Work Program. Eight of our men came into some sort of contact with either Mr. Naff or Dr. Purcell or both during their stay in our Presbytery, and were delighted with both. The pastor and these eight men have called our Bible Class into conference to consider whether to continue the Bible Class idea alone or make the advance of enlarging it to take on the fully rounded organization of the Men-of-the-Church."

SYNOD OF TEXAS

The following matters seem to be of sufficient interest and importance to be noted in the Synod of Texas.

1. The Synod of Texas at its adjourned meeting, February 5, reconstituted the Synodical Committee on Men's Work, so as to make it consist now of the Chairmen of the corresponding Committee in the several Presbyteries, together with four members at large, chosen because of their particular interest in advancing this work. We believe that this Committee is prepared to function efficiently.

2. The Committee has secured a set order at the next meeting of Synod at 3:00 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon for a period of prayer, testimony and consideration of Men's Work. It is our plan to have 15 or more testimonials from the various men as to the value of the work in their respective congregations, and a season of prayer, as well as a period for questions and discussion.

3. We have requested the Chairmen in each Presbytery to arrange for a special hour, preferably a popular meeting. Several Presbyteries have indicated their cooperation with this plan.

4. We have had several Conferences in the various Presbyteries in the interest of the Men's Work. These were largely conducted by Mr. Coulter who will report on them in detail. One was held in Corpus Christi with an attendance of 81, seven churches represented, and three new organizations were effected. One was held in Hillsboro with 33 present, six churches represented, and one new organization. In connection with four Presbyterial Conferences in Dallas Presbytery the matter was presented on the program. Much interest was evidenced, and one new organization affected. A conference in Dallas Presbytery with 157 present, representing more than a dozen churches, was a source of inspiration.

5. The Committee has written personal letters to number of Churches to encourage them and to interest them in their own organizations.

6. The Synodical Chairman visited Conferences in the Synod of Arkansas, and the Presbytery of Memphis in the interest of the work.

7. Mr. Coulter delivered three addresses at the Seminary in Austin in the interest of the work.

8. The Kerrville Conference last summer was small in attendance but good in support. Plans are made for a more effective Men's Conference for the coming summer.

9. The Committee's judgment is that the Men's Work in Texas is in position to show considerable advance in the year ahead.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPT.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPIC

Sunday, Sept. 1—Standing By Our Job—Nehemiah
3:28; Neh. 4:6; Neh. 6:1-3; Phil. 2:19-30

Leader

Our general theme for this month is Loyalty, and we are going to emphasize the importance of being loyal to the various organizations and interests that concern us. The subjects chosen are, Standing by Our Job, Standing by Our School, Standing by the Bible, Standing by the Church and Standing Together in the Church.

Our subject today is Standing by Our Job. While this refers mostly to our members who are at work, it will do us all good to consider the relation of a worker to his job.

A job is not merely a means of making money to spend on ourselves or even of making a living. We must consider that our job is the way we have of using our talents and strength, and employing our time. We must be concerned about not making a living, but making a life, and living our life in a way worth while.

Nehemiah's Job

Our scripture passages are selected from the Book of Nehemiah, and we should read the whole story. Nehemiah was a layman, not a preacher, and had a large influence in Persia, where he was cup-bearer to the king. He was a Jew, and when he heard that the walls of Jerusalem were still down, and the Jews were discouraged about rebuilding them, he went over to Jerusalem, and led the people in the great project of raising the walls of the city.

Nehemiah was a leader, and the right sort of leader. He thought the job through and found out just what needed to be done, and how to do it. He also prayed for God's help for himself and his workers. He kept right at the work and allowed nothing to interfere, pleasure, discouragement, and opposition were each and all put aside, and he kept right on till he had finished.

Nehemiah makes a good example and study in success for us all.

Working With the Organization

In this age which we call the factory and machine age, when each one does his part, and all the parts must fit in to make the whole works, it is necessary that every man be on his job, and all work together to complete the task. They say that in making Ford automobiles, every man has a single task to do, and as he works at his job, he grows more and more proficient. He can work faster, and get more accomplished by putting his time and skill to the one task. He can remember that if he doesn't do his bit, the whole works are put out. He is a member of an organization and every part of the whole must work together with every other part.

Paul spoke of this when he compares the Church to a body, whose limbs and powers must all work each in its appointed task, or there will be failure for all. The eye must see, the ear must hear, the hand must grasp, the foot must move. Let one part fail and all the others fail. So it is with our job. From the manager down through the bookkeeper, the clerk, the porter and dray man, everyone must do his job, if there is to be success.

Overcoming Difficulties

As we read Nehemiah's story nothing is more striking than the way he met discouragement and overcame opposition. He had a tremendous job, in building the walls of Jerusalem. Everything was in a pile of ruins, the Jews were discouraged, and they had enemies who hated to see the walls going up, and did all they could to prevent it.

What did Nehemiah do in facing these difficulties? Did he quit? No, he sturdily held on to his plan. He knew there was a way out and he took it. He inspired the workers to go on, and encouraged them by his own example of tireless industry. He wouldn't give up. When he couldn't go over or under, he went around.

There is always a way to succeed, but you will never reach your goal or finish your job, if you don't keep on. Don't let discouragement depress you, don't fear the people who oppose you. Difficulties and enemies will both disappear if you go bravely on and work hard.

Sharing the Profits

Every job is done for some purpose and has profits connected with it. The two great sources of wealth are materials and labor. To take raw materials and change them into useful articles is the chief object of labor. And when labor is expended on a job, there is a charge made for the product, and labor gets its share of the profits.

Every organization ought to have the full sympathy and approval of its workers. And they ought to show their love and co-operation. They should defend their job from criticism, and make the world see its importance and value. They should be loyal to their fellow-workers and help one another. They ought to share the profits with each other, and not try to get the lion's share in wages or in dividends. Everyone ought to get what he is entitled to and no more, depending on the time he spends and the character of the work he does.

The Purpose of a Job

We cannot have much enthusiasm in working at any task, unless we have a good purpose in working. We are not to work for wages only, or for some merely earthly good. All kinds of work are worthy and honorable, and we should think as we work that we are doing our part in the world's work. We are really making a life and carrying out a life purpose. We are working to glorify God with our body and our spirit which are his.

As we work we ought to try to inspire all our co-workers with the same spirit of ours and elevated purpose, and all work together for the upbuilding of mankind and the glory of God.

ANOTHER DISCUSSION OF THE TOPIC

Sunday, Sept. 1—Standing By Our Job—References:
Neh. 3:28; Neh. 4:6; Neh. 6:1-3; Phil. 2:19-30.

C. G. A.

Leader's Introduction

Tomorrow is Labor Day. It is the day when we pay our respects to the laboring man. Perhaps you would like to know something of the history of Labor Day. "It was inaugurated by the Knights of Labor, who in 1882 held a parade on the first Monday in September in New York City. Again, in 1884 the affair was repeated, and a resolution was passed to hold all parades on that day. Workingmen of all organizations then began an agitation to have the day made a legal holiday, and gradually the movement spread until now it is a legal holiday in the United States. In Europe the celebration of the first of May was begun in 1890 with a demonstration in favor of an eight-hour day. It was at that time much feared and violently opposed by the various governments and there were many clashes between the police and the workingmen. It is now usually celebrated without much trouble."—(Encyclopedia Americana).

Whether we are classed among the "laboring classes" or not, it is a good chance for us to check up on ourselves and ask ourselves what we think of our job. Do we love it or hate it? Do we give our best service? Do we waste goods? Do we waste time? Are we doing our very best?

Our Job and Ourselves

A job that is worth while has three dimensions. It satisfies the worker; it helps those around us; and it leads to a bigger force than that within human ken. That is, a job reaches inward toward ourselves, outward toward the world, and upward toward God.

The most of us here, no doubt, have as our job that of going to school to be fitted for the real job that will be ours. Going to school is not one of the easiest of jobs—in fact it is sometimes the hardest job because we have so many demands made of us. Our time is all scheduled for us so that we feel that we are just a piece of machinery—sometimes. But then, going to school is one of the most satisfying jobs too. For we learn to co-operate with our companions in games and in work at school; we learn to lead and to follow; and we learn that work well done satisfies us and pricks us on to better and bigger goals. Work and drudgery are not the same. Our work can be our greatest joy because through it we give our best to the world. "Get work, but be sure that it is greater than what you work to get."

Our Job and Others

Our job must not only satisfy ourselves, but it must also help others. One whose job satisfies only himself and is harmful to others is selfish. There may be a great deal of satisfaction to the thief in knowing that he has made a good job of stealing. And the rum-runner may live a satisfyingly exciting life. The gambler who wins is satisfied. And so on. We might name others who live selfishly satisfying but harmful lives—harmful to the world at large. We can readily see that such jobs fall short of three dimensions.

But there are numerous kinds of work that make the world a better place to live in. We can build into our own lives what we would like to see in the lives of others—but remember that reward comes from within. "In this world it is far more certain that vice will be punished than that virtue will be rewarded."—(Longfellow).

By doing our job with all the joy that we can put into it, we raise it to a higher plane. If the doctor grudgingly ministered to the sick, his profession would fall in the opinion of the world. If the minister preached just to keep people from "going to hell," we would not appreciate his advice. If the teacher taught just because he was paid to teach, we would hate going to school. To put our best into our job we must love it, for in so doing we can best serve the world.

Our Job and God

The third dimension of our job is upward toward God. If we are so busy doing things that we leave God out, our job is a sad failure. We cannot live fully without God any more than we can live fully without love. And if our job is worthy of our effort it will reveal God to us. No matter what we do—whether we work with our hands or with our minds God will reveal Himself to us through our work.

"Jehovah, who shall sojourn in thy tabernacle?
Who shall dwell in thy holy hill?
He that walketh uprightly, and worketh righteousness,

ARE WE READY FOR ORGANIC

A Plea for Light on a Vital Issue

John S. Foster, D.D.

In a recent issue of the church papers, Dr. Crowe, D.D., Chairman of the Committee of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. (Southern Presbyterian) Organic Union with the United Presbyterian Church, urges the Presbyteries to register their judgment to the approaching meeting of the General Assembly, notwithstanding the failure of the Assembly, Presbyterian Church to send the overture to the Presbyteries. Should this judgment be favorable?

The two committees decided in conference to accept the basis of union and ordered forwarded to the Presbyteries. The United Assembly could not see its way clear so to proceed more deliberately and cautiously there are phases of the question upon which more light. So simultaneous action was not the meantime the Chairman of our Committee upon the Presbyteries for immediate action of the wisdom of this policy is at once.

Dr. Crowe quotes a communication from the Presbyterian Committee explaining this delay. "The resolutions given above were all adopted by a dissenting vote. The action of the Assembly was to be distinctly favorable; but evidently the Assembly intends to proceed deliberately, may be no unwholesome reaction and no regrets. This Assembly has committed its time more definite in the matter of union with the Presbyterian Church than any other Assembly the negotiations began. The action of the Assembly the way for a more constructive work, which committee on Closer Relations is authorized to proceed with vigor."—Robt. M. Karr, Chairman of the Committee on Closer Relations.

In commenting upon this communication Dr. Crowe says:

It will be seen, however, that the situation is exactly the same in each church just at present. The loss of step between the two Assemblies is likely to be confusion in the minds of our Presbyteries what disposition to make of the overture sent to the General Assembly. In the meantime a proposition for organic union has appeared on the horizon which has caught the imagination of a part of the United Presbyterian Assembly, has affected the situation and come a contributing factor to their delay. It is also, that our Assembly has responded by appointing a committee to the proposition mentioned in their response seems entirely apart from the correspondence with the United Presbyterian Church. This is as it should be, for there is a ship between the two movements."

A candid, careful examination of the communication from Dr. Karr and the quotation from the Chairman of the Committee on Closer Relations may well cause us to pause and ask whether the Presbyteries would not be proceeding with unwise haste in favorably recording their judgment on the merits of the union prior to the next Assembly.

1. According to Dr. Karr the United Presbyterian Assembly "intends to proceed deliberately, so that there be no unwholesome reaction and no occasion for either they have not fully discovered their position on this vital matter or they have not become fully conversant with the many salient questions that have to be unified before there can be real action. And there was not a dissenting vote in the United Presbyterian Assembly against delaying action. According to Dr. Crowe the question of a general organic union caught the imagination of a part of the United Presbyterian Assembly, a contributing factor in the delay. To what extent the ministers and elders of the United Presbyterian Church are favorable to organic union with the United Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A.? Its own Assembly did not know. Would a merger of the United Presbyterian Church and the Southern Presbyterian Church immediately precipitate the question of union with the Presbyterian family? Neither the United Presbyterian nor the Southern Presbyterian Assembly weighed this question. But the United Presbyterian Assembly thought the issue of sufficient gravity to be proceeding cautiously lest there be an unwholesome reaction; without a dissenting vote it advised the face of these facts is it wise for our Presbyteries to exercise no caution, to seek no additional light?"

2. Dr. Crowe writes:

"In the meantime a proposition for a general organic union has appeared upon the horizon, which has caught the imagination of a part of the United Presbyterian Assembly, has affected the situation and has

And speaketh truth in his heart;
He that slandereth not with his tongue,
Nor doeth evil to his friend,
Nor taketh up a reproach against his neighbor,
In whose eyes a reprobate is despised,
But who honoreth them that fear Jehovah,
He that sweareth to his own hurt and doeth not,
He that putteth not out his money to interest,
Nor taketh reward against the innocent,
He that doeth these things shall never be rebuked.

factor to their delay. Let it be also said that they have responded to the appointment of a committee on the proposition mentioned above, but their response is to be entirely apart from a continuance of correspondence with the United Presbyterian Church as it should be, for there is no relation between the two movements."

It could not more clearly reveal a wider line of difference between the minds of the two churches than is drawn. Evidently a considerable number of Presbyterians favor organic union with the United Presbyterian Church as the question of a general organic union contributing factor to the delay in sending down to the Presbyteries. But there was no organic union with other branches of the family before our Assembly when it forwarded the overture to the Presbyteries. So we have the United Presbyterian Assembly with its members in a state of confusion with the thought of a general organic union. Its Committee on Closer Relations authorized "constructive work" while the question of organic union is held in abeyance, and the Southern Presbyterian Church seeking union with the United Presbyterian Church apart from other considerations. Evidently of our church with the United Presbyterian Church will bring to the fore the question of organic union with the Church in the U. S. A. If we have this issue it should be done by our church in its own situation, and not in union with the Southern Presbyterian Church. Ignorant of the mind of the United Presbyterian Church on the question of general organic union but only aware that it was sufficiently open to delay in its negotiations with us, is it wise for the Presbyteries to vote favorably on the overture to them?

Other phases of this proposed union which should lead us to act deliberately and with great caution are those which many in our church are concerned about. These have not been fully placed before our people. There is additional light. It is not enough to say that Presbyterians are a fine body of people, and that the United Presbyterian Church is an efficient and well-organized organization, actuated by the finest missionary and evangelistic passion. These things could be of equal force to other denominations of Christ with whom union is not being considered. For the Presbyteries of the Southern Presbyterian Church whether they have sufficient information to determine whether organic union with the United Presbyterian Church is desirable and practicable. It is not many in our Church that sufficient data has been presented to warrant such a conclusion, and that the question should not receive favorable action until it is fully understood. Those who hold this opinion are antagonistic to the United Presbyterian Church and are deeply concerned whether Christ's cause will be aided or hindered by such a union.

Is Union Desirable?

Churches occupy almost entirely different territories. The United Presbyterian Church has had almost no opportunity to be acquainted with the other. There is not enough contact between the two Assemblies even to knit them together. The two Churches are not in contact at any point. Each church is doing a noble work in its own section where it is known and respected. No one is furnished to show that a merger would be of any strength to either body, or that a united church would be more efficient in the work of Christ than churches working separately. Neither Home Mission work overlap in either Church.

That 60 per cent of the membership of the United Presbyterian Church is in Pennsylvania, or within 50 miles of Pittsburgh, and that 40 per cent is in the northern portion of the United States from New England to the Pacific Coast. The large membership of the United Presbyterian Church in territory where the U. S. A. Church is the majority is a union with the United Presbyterian Church. One of our problems of overlapping with the United Presbyterian Church, but on the contrary will add about 50 per cent of contact with that church with which we are earnestly striving to remove points of friction. The Presbyteries should consider very carefully the facts of the question and not be guided solely by sentimentality that the United Presbyterians are a fine body of people. The decisive question should be will either be strengthened, and will the cause of Christ in the United States be advanced by the mere welding of churches which occupy distinctive territory and where it can possibly do.

Union—Real Union—Practicable?

The question about which the Presbyteries should be given definite information before they favorably vote on the proposal concerns the practice of the United Presbyterian Church in political matters. It is the dis-honored principle of the Southern Presbyterian Church that political discussions shall not invade the domain of the Church shall not be taken to the courts of State. This has been the historical and consistent practice of the Southern Presbyterian Church from the beginning. It is the distinctive principle of the Southern Presbyterian denomination, and this principle and practice have been honored throughout the world.

The United Presbyterian Church in those respects differs from ours. In fact, it is comical that the United Presbyterian Church is the most political of the Churches of this country, and that it is the habitual practice of the courts of the United Presbyterian Church to act on questions of State. It began its existence as a church of reform, and has consistently adhered to its purpose. In 1866 and following, the United Presbyterian General Assembly passed some of the strongest memorials ever written concerning the leaders of the Southern Confederacy and the political enfranchisement of the Southern Negroes. These conclusions stand today as the thought of the United Presbyterian Church on these questions which lie at the heart of our Southern life. The Southern Presbyterian Church has just as consistently declined to handle such matters, holding strictly to the spiritual character and redemptive mission of the church, believing that the General Assembly is first and last a court of God's house.

Now, the basis of union proposed by our Committee is strangely silent on this fundamental principle. The difference of the two churches is nowhere referred to in the paper. Dr. Crowe in his recent article advising our Presbyteries to take immediate action says: "Their testimony in 1858 would not be acceptable to our people; their attitude toward the State differs from ours in a measure; but in every instance with proper sympathy and with the use of common sense, a single mind could be secured." This is to say that we are to accept the statement of the Confession of Faith on this subject, and that the exercise of common sense will bring us into real unity. Very good, but which interpretation of the article is to be the practice of the United Assemblies? Both Assemblies have been exercising what each believed to be common sense with reference to the Confession of Faith. Are we to conclude that the United Presbyterian Church has come or will come to our position? It has not said so, and we have no reason to believe, considering the seventy-five years of political deliverances, that the rank and file of the United Presbyterian Church has any notion of abandoning this practice. Has our Church surrendered or will it surrender its historic and time honored position from which it has never wavered? The General Assembly did not say so. The Committee on Union has no authority to say so. This question, vital to the peace and real unity of the United Church, for some reason was not fully presented to the General Assembly. When the future of our Church is at stake why should not the Presbyteries be clearly informed of the position and practice of the United Presbyterian Church on political matters? If we are to give up our denominational organization and our denominational testimony, and merge our Church with another communion should we not be certain that we are not sowing seed that will result in a harvest of contention and strife? In the face of such questions the United Presbyterian Assembly declined to send the overture down to the Presbyteries. It chose the wise course of proceeding "with deliberation" lest there be an unwholesome reaction. Why should there be haste on our part? Are the questions which caused them to pause not sufficient in gravity to lead us to hesitate?

Serious Unsettled Questions

The basis of union is also defective in that it is silent on all questions of property and administration policies. The report does not indicate whether we are to have Boards or Committees in the United Church. No suggestions are offered for the conduct of the world wide mission work, the conduct of educational institutions, or for holding the trust funds of the Committees and Boards. According to the basis of union which the Presbyteries are asked to adopt all questions of administration and property are to be settled after union takes place. What if it should be discovered that an agreement is not possible? What then? I am wondering if the business men of our church are willing for such an arrangement? How many would consent for their personal affairs to be handled in the manner proposed by the Committee on Union? I wonder how many of those who have made bequests to the Executive Committees to be held in trust by them would be willing for these assets to be thrown into the pot and the safe-guards devised after the union has taken place? Is it impossible to come to an agreement on these serious questions before consummating the union?

Was this phase of the question clearly before the Assembly when it voted to approve the basis of union and send it down to the Presbyteries for adoption? Have we forgotten the U.S.A.-Cumberland litigation with its bitterness and heart-aches? Have we forgotten the more recent experience of the Canadian churches? What is the necessity for haste on the part of our Presbyteries when the United Presbyterian Assembly, facing the same situation, decided without a dissenting vote to defer action for deeper and more thoughtful consideration? The time to consider matters holding such large possibilities for misunderstanding is before the union is consummated. This one item is sufficient, if every thing else were favorable, to cause the Presbyteries to pause and ask for light. It is better to go slow and be sure of the way. Faith is good, but it requires more than faith to adjust Boards and endowments and property interests. The most peaceful of families have been torn asunder by the consideration of property values.

The United Presbyterian Assembly acted wisely in declining to send the basis of union down to the Presbyteries when so many vital issues remained unsettled and in taking time to be assured that no mistakes were being made. Is not that also a wise course for our Presbyteries to pursue? What reason is there for favorable haste in our church? Let us have more light. Why should our Presbyteries be asked to vote on this matter in advance of the vote by the Presbyteries of the United Presbyter-

CHURCH NEWS

TO THE PRESBYTERY OF FLORIDA

Dear Brethren:

This is to inform you of the good progress of our Home Mission work.

Crestview and Laurel Hill

Since the meeting of Presbytery at Milton, the Presbytery has ordained and installed Rev. J. David Simpson, Pastor of the Crestview and Laurel Hill Churches. Brother Simpson has been given a most cordial reception by these churches. He is now busily engaged in preparing for protracted meetings in both of his churches. These meetings will probably be conducted by Dr. C. C. Carson, Evangelist of our General Assembly.

The Euchee Valley Group of Churches

On the third Sabbath of July Rev. A. M. Moore, of Mississippi, visited the Valley Church, and preached morning and afternoon to a crowded house. During the intermission a bountiful dinner was served in the grove nearby.

After this I met with the officers of all the Churches represented, and they unanimously agreed to invite Mr. Moore to serve their churches and subscribed $825.00 towards his support.

The Committee of Missions will add a sufficient amount to give Mr. Moore a salary of $1800.00, and $300.00 to rent a home in DeFuniak, so that he may send his children to Palmer College. Mr. Moore will serve six of our vacant churches.

The New Mission Field

Since the meeting of Presbytery at Panama City, the Committee of Missions has been making a diligent search for the right man to serve the large and destitute field consisting of the five following counties: Calhoun, Liberty, Gulf, Franklin and Wakulla. And this will inform you that the Committee of Missions have elected to fill this responsible position Rev. Jas. W. Marshall, who for eight years has been Supt. of Missions in Mobile Presbytery. Mr. Marshall has accepted, and Mobile Presbytery has been called to dismiss him to Florida Presbytery.

When these three new men are placed in our Presbytery there will scarcely be a single vacant church in the Presbytery.

But what about the funds to meet this large extra expense?

Our Treasury at present is in good condition, largely because so many fields were left vacant. Now with every field supplied the Presbytery must raise a larger sum than ever called for by the Presbytery in order to support the work and avoid a large debt. Therefore I have one request to make, and that is—that every minister and session will see to it that all benevolent funds are promptly forwarded every month to: Judge T. F. West, Treas., DeFuniak, Florida.

Your Committee of Missions is planning great things for the Kingdom of our Lord. May we not count on the hearty co-operation of every minister and church in the Presbytery.

Pensacola, Fla.

Wm. E. McIwain, Chrm.

PERSONAL

Dr. J. M. Clark, of Statesville, N. C., is in Moore county, N. C., where he is holding a week's meeting in Bensalem Presbyterian Church.

Having resigned his work as superintendent of Home Missions in Concord Presbytery, Dr. Clark proposes to devote much of his time to evangelistic work.

Rev. E. L. Siler, D.D., of Maxton, N. C., will fill the pulpit of Dr. J. H. Taylor, of Central Church, Washington, August 18 and 25. Dr. Siler will return to his charge by September 1.

GOOD NEWS FROM CHINA

Egbert W. Smith

When Miss Lois Young of Suchowfu, China, got back to her Station last fall, she found the school buildings in better shape than she had feared they would be. She was especially struck with the loyalty and courage with which her girls had carried on during her absence. She writes:

"Our graduates had been at the school all during my absence, sometimes only two or three but they never left. They watched over things all the time that the dormitory was filled with soldiers, and had been able to protect most of the things. The pianos, the laboratory equipment, the library books, the hundreds of dollars worth of thread for the industrial work had been locked in my office and they had absolutely refused to let the soldiers have the key. Many of the beds and tables were broken, but our damages were little compared to what they would have been if the girls had not watched over things.

(Continued on page 10)

ian Church—if they are to vote at all—which is as yet an unsettled question?

Winston-Salem, N. C.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Rev. Ernest Trice Thompson, D.D.

Lesson for September 1st

EZRA'S RETURN TO JERUSALEM

Ezra 7:1-8:36. Print 7:6-10; 8:21-23, 31-32

We saw last week that three different groups of Jews returned from Babylonia to the promised land. The first return took place under Zerubbabel and Jeshua in the year 537 B. C. This was the very year that Cyrus took Babylon and became the master of the Eastern world. Approximately 50,000 settlers accompanied these two leaders, built their homes about Jerusalem, re-instituted the national worship, and finally after long delay rebuilt the temple.

The second return under Ezra took place in 458 B. C., approximately 80 years after the first return, and 60 years after the completion of the temple, as narrated in Ezra 1-6. During this interval there were several important developments. First of all we note that the Davidic family, represented at the previous period by Zerubbabel, the descendant of Jehoiachin, had lost its influence; the high priest was gradually becoming the representative of the nation, a position which he continued to hold down through the days of the Gospel. In a material sense the colony had made little or no progress. There had been little increase of population. Zechariah speaks of a future very different from the present when "There shall yet old men and old women dwell in the streets of Jerusalem. And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof." The Persian taxes were felt as a very heavy weight. The rich were taking advantage of the poor. The people as a whole were growing discouraged. Spiritually too there had been a decline. The people were manifesting a tendency to abandon the services of Jehovah altogether, not as in the old days for idolatry, but in pure weariness. Marriage with the Gentiles had become prevalent, and there was a danger that the Jews would lose their national and religious distinctiveness.

That was the situation when our present study opens. We begin to read here of the revival which put new life into the dead bones. It is noteworthy that the revival came not from Jerusalem, but from Babylon. It was due primarily to three men, Ezra, Nehemiah, and Malachi, the three men with whom we will be concerned for the rest of this quarter, and who bring the history of the Old Testament to a close.

Chapters 7 and 8 (our present lesson) describe the return of Ezra to Jerusalem; chapters 9 and 10, the work of Ezra. We are concerned this week only with the actual return of Ezra; next week we will refer briefly to his work.

Read then Ezra 7-8. Who was Ezra? What was his great life purpose? What were the outstanding traits of his character? Why did he wish to return to Jerusalem? What commission did he receive from the king? What powers did he possess? Who did he take with him? What was accomplished during the encampment at the Ahava? Is it true or false piety that is recorded in 8:21-22? Why is so much space given to the weighing of the silver and gold in 8:24-34? What are the things that strike you the most forcibly about this account?

I. Ezra's Purpose—7:1-10

We first meet Ezra in the 7th year of the reign of Artaxerxes. The first ruler of the Persian empire was Cyrus, reigning from 559, or 538, if reckoned as usual from the conquest of Babylon to 529 B. C. He was succeeded by Cambyses 529-522, Pseudo-Smerdis 522, Darius I, in the sixth year of whose reign the temple was completed, 521-486; Xerxes, known in the Bible as Ahasuerus (the husband of Esther), 485-465; and then Artaxerxes 465-424. B. C.

Ezra was a priest, according to the genealogy given us, a direct descendant of Aaron. We note here by the way that the Jews after the exiles were very proud of their genealogies, and they figure at tiresome length in the post exilic book. Many of the Israelites intermarried with their heathen nations; the result was that those Jews whose descent was pure wanted the world to know that fact. They had the same pride in their ancestry as some of our daughters of the American Revolution, and as some of our daughters of the Confederacy.

More important, however, is the fact that Ezra was a scribe. The scribes were originally stenographers. Gradually, however, the position came to be more important. During the days of the monarchy the Kings' Scribe was the State Secretary or Chancellor. During the latter days of the monarchy the name began to be applied to those who were occupied in studying and copying the documents containing the sacred laws of the nation. After the captivity when prophecy had mostly ceased, the increased importance of the written law and the necessity of explaining its obligation brought the scribes into greater prominence. The scribe took the place of the prophet, and in his influence upon his countrymen eclipsed the priest. He became not only the copier of the law, but also the interpreter and the teacher of the law. After awhile the interpretation of the scribes became more important than the original laws. It was because Jesus disregarded these traditions of the fathers that he brought down upon his head the wrath of the Scribes and Pharisees. Ezra is often spoken of as the first of the Scribes. He was the typical representative and in a measure the founder of the later type of scribes. Devoted to a minute study of the law he sought to expound it to his people and to impress upon them the duty of its rigid observance. The historian says that Ezra was a ready scribe in the law of Moses. That is he was prompt and skillful in interpreting the difficulties of the law. His quickness was the dexterity of his erudition, not of his pen.

The great purpose that animated Ezra as a scribe is set forth in 7:10. He had set his heart on seeking the law of Jehovah, the written law that is as recorded in the five books of Moses; on living in strict accordance with its injunctions; and upon teaching its statutes and ordinances in Israel. To understand the importance of this ambition, and also the tremendous significance of Ezra's work we must remember that though the Books of Moses had long been in existence they were not the common property of the nation. Books were scarce in those days. The people as a whole had no real knowledge of the Mosaic Law; they had made no serious attempt to model their national life on its precepts. They depended not so much on the Book as they did on the priests who were the custodians of the Book, and upon the prophets who brought to them God's message afresh in every national crisis. Ezra, however, was determined to remedy this situation. He wanted to popularize the Bible, and to make Israel the people of the Book. He wanted them to build their national life upon its precepts.

To carry out his great plan he went to Artaxerxes, the king, and requested him to allow him to return to Jerusalem with certain powers. That brings us to

II. Ezra's Commission—7:11-28

The letter which Artaxerxes gave to Ezra is given us in this section. In it five rights or powers are granted to Ezra.

1. He is given the right to take as many of the people as may desire to go with him to Jerusalem.

2. He is given the right to investigate the moral and spiritual conditions of the people (verse 14). The standard of judgment is to be the law of Moses, which he has shown to the king.

3. Logically we should note here the last right which is given to him and described in verses 25-26. Ezra is empowered to appoint the magistrates and judges of the people. He is to appoint magistrates and judges who know the religious law as well as the civil law, the religious law as embodied in the Mosaic Law, and if they are not acquainted with its provisions they are to learn from Ezra. Moreover, these judges are to enforce the law, not only the civil law (the law of thy king), but also the religious law (the law of thy God), that is the Mosaic law regarding the Sabbath, and circumcision, and unclean meats, etc. The penalties for disobedience to either the civil law or the religious law are very severe, it may be imprisonment, or confiscation of goods, or banishment or death.

4. He is to carry certain gifts to the impoverished Jews in Palestine, the free will offering of the King and his councillors, of the kindly disposed Gentiles of Babylonia, and of their fellow Jews. Some of the money is to be expended on offerings for the temple; the rest of it is to be used as Ezra and his brethren see fit.

5. He is given authority to draw on the royal treasury for further funds as he may need them. The limit is set, however, at one hundred talents of silver, which would be about $190,000 with an actual purchasing power of above three times that amount in the present day. Those connected with the temple worship also are to be freed from all taxation. It is not possible to estimate the value of good that he was to carry with him, but it must have come to a very considerable sum.

Artaxerxes' generosity may seem a little strange to us, but we must remember that Israel occupied a very strategic position in the world of that time—it guarded the bridge between Asia and Africa, (Persia was having trouble at this time with Egypt), and it would pay the King to have a loyal people in Palestine.

III. Ezra's Return—8:1-36

The historian is very careful to give us the names of the various leaders who head up his company. But they have no real interest for us. We note in 7:7-8 that in addition to the common people there were priests and Levites and singers (for the temple service) and porters, probably a certain class of temple servants, and Nethinim, a still lower class of temple servants or slaves. The total number was about 1500. Here again we note that the great majority of Jews preferred to remain in their adopted land—just as today not many of our well to do Jews are rushing back to take part in the Zionist movement.

The rendezvous, or gathering place of the company was at Ahava, probably one of the great irrigation and drainage canals not far from the capital.

"As the main company numbered 1500, and with all those who might be called camp followers there must have been 8000 or more, a considerable space would be necessary for the camp. There they remained for three days in tents, while Ezra made a numbering and survey. He found that there were no Levites among them, and as one of his chief objects was the setting up of a liturgical form they were indispensable. He sent messenger to a place called Casiphia, which is quite unknown but must have been of far greater importance than was apparently a settlement of Levites and thence drew to join them 18 Levites of the tribe of Simeon, and 20 of another, and 220 Nethinim."

Then a fast was proclaimed as a religious offering of prayer was offered for safety and guidance. It was dangerous to travel through that country without an armed escort, but Ezra tells us that he was ashamed to do so for armed protection, because he had so much confidence in God that God cared for His own.

Then when the religious ceremonies were over, Ezra had a careful reckoning made of the money value of the vessels for the sanctuary. The total amount came out at nearly $5,000,000.

Then he and his company started on their journey. It lasted for about three and a half months, the last of April to the first of August. They covered up the Euphrates and down through the desert about 900 miles. "The journey would be very dangerous in summer, and to avoid the blistering heat it was necessary to bivouac during most of the day by night and in the early morning." But Ezra was able to carry his company safely through, because "the hand of our God was upon us."

The money was weighed out into the hands of the priests (recall that it was necessary to weigh the money so as to correctly estimate its value). Ezra was scrupulously careful about financial matters and took every precaution at both the beginning and the end to assure everyone that the tremendous sums entrusted to him had been handled with absolute honesty. The money was offered, and Ezra was ready to begin his reforms. We will see next week and the following week how he accomplished.

The Lesson Applied

Three things strike us as especially interesting.

1. Ezra's Purpose, 7:10. Ezra set his heart on seeking the law of Jehovah, and to do it, and to teach the people the ideal certainly for every teacher, every preacher, every parent, and every parent—first, to seek it, second, to do it, third, to teach it. The church is dependent upon such men and women for its very existence. We must have men and women who will seek out the law and do it, and teach it from the pulpit, and in the school, and in the home. We need more ministers. How can we bring the challenge home to more of our men? There is an increasing call for trained women. How can we lead them to form such a life as Ezra had for his life. Almost every Sunday School in the land is handicapped for the lack of teachers. How can we give ourselves faithfully to their work. Why do we have so few? How can we secure more teachers and preachers? How can we train up teachers? They are facing an almost insuperable educational task. How can parents be failing to teach the children proper homes, and religious psychology reveals what the cause is. How can we know if we think that no training outside the home can take the place of right training within the home? How are parents failing? How might they do better? How can the church train them to fulfill their responsibilities?

2. Ezra's piety. Read especially 7:16, 27-28, 21-22, 31. We note especially his reliance upon God, and secondly his reliance upon the divine Word. Over and over again there occur the words "the hand of our God was upon us." We cannot help but wonder how, whether Ezra did not rely too much upon his own providence. Was he wise in refusing to ask for an armed escort, traveling through a barren and dangerous country, with an enormous sum of money in his hands? Nehemiah was as pious in his way as Ezra, but he made the journey he took with him captives, army and horsemen. Cf. Neh. 2:9. If we trust in God, will He protect us from all harm? Or is it necessary also for us to do our part, to take due precautions? Does God fail us when misfortune occurs? What does it mean after all to trust God?

3. Ezra's ideal for the state, 7:25-26. Ezra's ideal was that the state should enforce the laws and precepts of the Bible. And that brings us face to face with one of the most difficult modern problems. How far should the state seek to embody their ideals in laws. We believe in Sabbath observance—how far should we go in enforcing Sabbath observance by law? Was it right for the state to enact a prohibition law? If not, why not? If so, as we believe, how can we justify it? Can we make the good by legislation? If we say not, does that mean we should never have legislation on moral subjects? Can we justify none of us would go that far. All of us would differ as to whether or not we should have laws against prohibition or Sabbath observance. Where do we draw the line? What are the principles involved in this incompatibility between Ezra's ideal in 7:25-26, between teaching the law of God and enforcing it by law? Can the church be satisfied when it enforces a moral ideal into the statute book? Are we fulfilling our teaching function? What moral teaching should the church emphasize today? What moral teaching should it seek?

LDREN

JIMMIE'S FRIENDS

ttton loved to wander up
e beach in the warm, sun-ching the other little chil-on the sand and have a

they would let Jimmie em, but more often they cause as likely as not he have one shoe and stock-ere would be a tear in his s, and he never dreamed y of having a bathing suit own. But in spite of it all,
a good time and was al-
with a smile for everyone.
ed letter day for him when ame Lady appeared. She down the sand making all the children, and she d Jimmie on his red, shin-
said:

e boy! I'm sure that underrils there are a great many some day you will be able f people."

med for his mind flew at other and all he wanted to ow glad he would be when a big man and could take
And how he longed to buy
g machine right now so ldn't ache so badly at the y's laundry work for the s at the shore!

ing when The Little Lame
ong the beach for a walk, have a present for her—
a tiny star fish, or a bit eaweed. And how pleased ame Lady always was!

long she was gathering
ound her and telling them ghtful stories. Sometimes y tales and stories of mered in the green waters of r by. Sometimes she told d girls who were so kindly and helpful that they grew and women much beloved.
Little Lame Lady appear-usual. She clapped her t was the signal for the ne story hour.

t scheme," she announced, you'll all like it. I'm going e story of a Prince who le and was never allowed garden walls. The King ere afraid something would eir to the throne. He had boys, and plenty of people
im, and nice things to eat, red of these and what he f all was a playmate and

"The Little Lame Lady
nd them, "you children are etter off than the little ng to tell you how a big day and blew down the oung Prince went out into d, and about the friends

d and what he saw and to him.

will not be finished this ll take at least two days relate the first of it to ou all to take your sand els and spoons and build
y—the castle, the garden,
ll around the garden, the own to the little pool where d sometimes sit and watch
h talking about. Then each go see whose work is best, story is ended, there will
of them—a shining new d two picture books. So listened to the entrancing ly, for The Little Lamc stories remarkably well.

ch discussion as to what make, but finally they all Jimmie had no sand pail but Thelma Grant who ought, one of the very children, let him use her
And when Thelma had the front of her castle
he wanted it to do, Jim-and brought some water

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color).

BROWN-haired Teddy is giving YEL-LOW-haired Susie May a ride in his RED wheelbarrow. The handle and wheel of his wheelbarrow are YEL-LOW.

Teddy wears a RED kerchief about his neck and dark BLUE overalls. His shoes are BROWN.

Susie May wears a PINK (use RED lightly) polka-dotted sun bonnet and a

PINK dress. Her slippers are PINK, too.

The walk in front of the YELLOW house with GREEN shutters is RED-BROWN (mix the two colors). The grass is light GREEN and the bushes and the roof of the house are dark GREEN.

Teddy has PINK cheeks and RED lips.

Paint the border of this picture RED and the lettering GREEN.

The climbing rose has GREEN leaves and PINK flowers.

The sky is light BLUE.

Teddy always takes Sussie May to town in his Wheelbarrow when they are visiting in the country.

The house has a small porch with a GREEN roof and BROWN steps. The door is GREEN.

in the little pail to dampen the sand so it could be moulded and windows and a door shaped in the front of it.

As Jimmie scooped up a double handful of sand, his fingers touched something hard. It was a penny. Jimmie looked at it thoughtfully a moment and then at his own part of the garden wall which he was building. Yes, he would buy a little flag over at the souvenir store!

Jimmie was off like a shot. He would put the flag on top of his wall. But when he got back, Thelma pleaded:

"Oh, let me put it on the very tiptop of my castle. It would look just lovely there!" And sure enough it did!

As the little flag waved in the breeze from the top of the castle, Thelma shook her head.

"We don't have princes and castles in this country," she said—"and so I don't think it's right to have the stars and stripes on top of the tower. Do you, Jimmie, even if it does make the castle look pretty?"

Jimmie paused. Here was a chance to get the flag back. Then he saw the questioning look in Thelma's eyes.

"Oh, that's all right," he replied grandly. "P'raps the King and Queen used different flags sometimes, or maybe the little Prince found some 'Merican friends an'
wanted to please them."

Thelma's face cleared.

"All right," she said. "I'll use the flag."

By the time The Little Lame Lady finished the story, Thelma was clearly the winner of the first prize which was a bright new silver dollar. She thanked The Little Lame Lady truly, at the same time turning the coin over and over in her small, brown hand.

"I don't believe I ought to take all of this," she said shyly, "Miss Clary (for that was The Little Lame Lady's name), because Jimmie helped me with my castle, and gave me his flag, and showed me how to dig the well so the little Prince could get a drink the day he was in the woods and was thirsty. And Jimmie brought me the branches with the little red berries on for apple trees so the Prince could find fruit when he was hungry. Oughtn't Jimmie to have half of the money?"

"I think that's just splendid of you, Thelma," Miss Clary nodded.

The Little Lame Lady's eyes were shining and her cheeks very pink.

"How many of you think Thelma is right?"

The rest of the group clapped their hands—every one of them.

"Then it shall be as Thelma says," agree Miss Clary.

"What will you do with your part of the money, Jimmie?"

Jimmie drew a pattern with his bare toes in the soft sand. Suddenly he looked up.

"I'll give to my muvver," he said, "to help buy a washin' 'chine, so her back won't ache any more. I don't need it—an' it was jus' fun to help Thelma!"

The Little Lame Lady told the people at the hotel about The Contest, and Thelma told her father and mother what she had done with half of the prize, and the other children talked about it when they went home.

And for the next couple of days Miss Clary was happy and busy talking with people and answering telephone calls. And the small boys and girls—all but Jimmie, were constantly coming to her, and their manner was very, very important.

And that's how it came about that a few days later a delivery man left a fine new washing machine at the weatherbeaten little Patton cottage, and it was marked, "To Mrs. Patton From Jimmie's Friends."

And Jimmie who didn't know what to say, turned a double somersault to show how happy he was!

PUZZLE CORNER

A Floral Wreath

The last letter of each 5-letter word forms the first letter of the next word.
First and last words are same, thus completing the wreath.

1. A flower
2. A boat
3. To annoy
4. A mistake
5. A bird
6. At no time
7. To awaken
8. Comforted
9. A flower.

JUNIOR CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

Horizontal

1. Pronoun
3. Sheep's cry
5. Three-pronged spear of Neptune
6. Paper sheet for drying ink
8. A number
9. Organ of sight

Vertical

1. But
2. Fabulous horse-like animal with one horn
3. To inhale and exhale, as air
4. Deed
6. Mouse-like bird
7. Fish eggs

CHURCH NEWS

(Continued from page 7)

"We see many marks of progress. One thing in which I am especially interested in the opening of a great number of primary schools all over the country. Many of the old temples have been cleaned up and the priests moved out and schools opened."

NORTH CAROLINA

The Presbytery of Granville will meet in the Black-nall Memorial Church in Durham, North Carolina, on the 22nd day of October, 1929, at eleven o'clock, a. m. J. S. Kennison, S.C.

Concord Presbytery will meet in regular fall session at Prospect Church (near Mooresville), September 17, at 10:30 a. m. E. D. Brown, S.C.

Lillington Group—Two meetings have been held on this field this summer, one at Cape Fear by the pastor, the other at Raven Rock by Rev. D. M. Clark, of Linden. Although it was the busy season with tobacco farmers, the meetings were well attended. There were four professions of faith at Cape Fear and two at Raven Rock. The pastor, Rev. J. F. Menius is just completing ten years as the leader of the Cape Fear people. The church is in perhaps the most active condition that it has been in during this ministry. Seven members have been added since the beginning of the church year.

ARKANSAS

Good Hope Church—The pastor has just concluded a meeting which lasted from July 30 to August 12. The attendance was splendid, the house being more than filled practically every night. Rev. J. B. Green did very efficient work in directing the singing, rendering solos and talking to the children twice a day. Eleven members were received into the Church, ten of these being on profession of faith. This number included four heads of families, three of them being men. This country church, organized two years ago, now has about sixty resident members. It is the only organized religious work in a large section of the county. John T. Barr.

ALABAMA

Mobile—On August 5th, Dr. Ogden, accompanied by his son, Dunbar, his daughter, Margaret, and six personal friends landed in New York City after an interesting tour in Europe.

During Dr. Ogden's absence the services of this Church were conducted by Rev. C. E. Mount, the assistant minister. The work of the Church is going forward successfully during these summer months; a feature of note being the large Daily Vacation Bible School which has just closed.

Mobile Presbytery—At a called meeting of Mobile Presbytery in the Government Street Church, Mobile, July 29, Rev. T. B. Anderson, Rev. T. C. Delaney, Rev. C. P. Rigler, and ruling elder, David Durant, of Uriah

Church were appointed to organize a new church at Frisco City where we have had a mission appointment for several years. Mr. Frank Haight of the Franklin Street department of the Government Street Church was received as a candidate for the ministry. He expects to enter Southwestern this fall. Rev. Chas. E. Mount was elected stated clerk and treasurer, Rev. G. H. Norwood treasurer of benevolences, and Rev. J. B. Carpenter, custodian of the Church and Manse Fund, all to serve until the stated fall meeting of Presbytery. Rev. James W. Marshall was transferred to Florida Presbytery where he goes to become field worker in five counties where, hitherto, our church has not stressed its advance work. His going leaves the position of superintendent of home missions for Mobile Presbytery vacant. Rev. D. H. Ogden, D.D., is the chairman of the home mission committee and official correspondent.

Rev. D. H. Ogden, D.D., returned to his pulpit August 11 after touring Europe with a special party of which he was the conductor. On one Sabbath in his absence Rev. Vernon A. Anderson of our mission force in the Congo was a visitor, preaching at Government Street in the morning and at Franklin Street at night.

Megargel—Rev. C. H. Rogers conducted an evangelistic meeting in the Megargel chapel in Monroe county, July 17-23. Three young ladies were received on profession of faith. Much to the regret of the large congregations which attended Mr. Rogers was called away before the time scheduled for the closing services. This was the first time that the new Margarel chapel was ever used, some of the carpenter work being done a few hours before the meeting began. All the bills have been paid except about $80, though the pews and some of the ceiling have not been completed. A movement is already under way for a petition to be presented to Mobile Presbytery for the organization of a church. Megargel is a community where, four years ago, Presbyterianism was strange indeed, while, even yet, it is looked upon by some as a heretical sect.

Rock Hill—Rev. C. P. Rigler was assisted in a series of meetings, July 29-August 2, by Rev. T. C. Delaney of Monroeville. Twelve decided to unite with our church and about ten others made profession of faith. A Bible school was conducted every afternoon with over sixty enrolled. The people seemed to be hungry for the gospel inasmuch as they filled the house to overflowing and gave the ministers a good congregation around the windows on the outside.

Three Notch Corner—The debt on the little chapel at Three Notch Corner has been paid in full, thanks to the liberality of some friends. Mr. C. R. Camp of Government Street Church has charge of the Sabbath School, going out with a party of workers on Sabbath afternoons.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Clemson College—The Fort Hill Church has been closed since the first Sunday in June, the congregation joining with the other denominations in the community, as has long been the custom, in union services during the summer months. The Rev. S. J. L. Crouch preached at these services for three Sundays in July.

The friends of Mrs. Crouch will regret to learn that she has undergone a serious operation at the Anderson County Hospital on August 7. Her condition is good and it is expected that she will soon be able to return home.

The August meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary held on the afternoon of August 4 at the Mrs. A. B. Bryan, with thirteen members. President, Mrs. A. G. Shanklin, presided. business was transacted, reports made, etc. Mrs. B. B. Burley, President of the Business Circle, resigned on account of her health, a nominating committee was asked to secure her. Mrs. J. L. Marshall, President of Piedmont, and a member of the Fort Hill Auxiliary, the Woman's Conference in session at Morrill, M. S. B., Church Co.

VIRGINIA

The Synod of Virginia will meet in the Presbyterian Church, Danville, Va., on Tuesday, 10, 1929, at 8:00 p. m.

Jos. A. McMurtry

FLORIDA

Key West—Rev. Alfred DeBarritt, of this church, has spent his vacation in visiting the leading churches of the State, consulting pastors and officers in regard to a resolution by the Synod at its last meeting. This resolution upon all of the churches to make a self-denial to aid the Key West Church in erecting a needed building, to enable it the better to do work for both Americans and Cubans.

Mr. DeBarritt met with great kindness and assurances that the gifts will be made. He visited the following churches: Tampa, Gainesville, Lakeland, Ocala, Sanford, Quincy, Macclure, and Hassee, Pensacola.

The present building of this church is a structure that can accommodate only a few people. This is not adequate to the needs of the army and navy forces stationed there a number of tourists who visit Key West.

During the pastor's absence the services were conducted by the elders, with the help of the Auxiliary.

MISSISSIPPI

Meridian—The pastor of the First Church, Dr. A. A. Little, is away for a brief vacation two Sabbaths of his absence, the pulpit filled by Rev. John Chester, First, and Rev. Vernon two young ministers from this church.

East Mississippi Presbytery met in session in Ripley August 1. Rev. Leland N. Little was dismissed to the Presbytery of Asheville on date Roy E. Watts was dismissed to the Hanover Presbytery. Presbytery adjourned during Synod at Tupelo.

Columbus—Palmer Orphanage received a gift of $1,000 from the estate of Mrs. E. H. Phillips of Atlanta, Ga. Mrs. Phillips was the mother of a good friend and one of our trustees, Mr. E. H. Phillips of Columbus, Miss. Both Mrs. Phillips and her son have been friends of this institution for a long time and we appreciate this bequest. We should go to the endowment fund, as it is advisable, and it was not so desired that this should be used for current expenses.

We call attention to the fact that our contributions for the month of May were less than $700 and will be approximately $2,000. We hate to see our contributions fall so far short during these months. Unless they can be increased during the months from now to November, our draft will be quite large.

John F. Friers

French Camp—Miss Winifred Wells of Virginia, has arrived to begin work in the Synod. She will be located in Central Mississippi, near French Camp. Miss Wells is a woman of work with zeal and enthusiasm, and we welcome her most gladly, and ask that you remember her in prayer, as she enters her new environment and new friends.

Tchula—Rev. C. O. Groves, D.D., was called to the Rev. John W. Groves, pastor, in a meeting at Tchula Church recently. Seventeen new members were added to the roll of the church, eleven on profession of faith, one by statement, and five by transfer.

Rolling Fork—Rev. F. L. McFadden, pastor of the Rolling Fork and Hollan churches, will be in the field on the first Sunday of June. A manse is being built at Rolling Fork, and the outlook for the field is most promising.

Moorhead—Mr. Reginald Lowe, a student of the Columbia Theological Seminary, is supplying the Moorhead and Isola field during the summer. He will serve a mission point between these

Davidson has recently run a series of four advertisements on "Some Facts Worth Knowing About Davidson College." The first was "Some Facts Worth Knowing About the History of Davidson College," the second was "Some Facts Worth Knowing About the Courses of Study at Davidson College," the third was "Some Facts Worth Knowing About the Student Organizations and Activities of Davidson College," and the fourth was "Some Facts Worth Knowing About the Finances of Davidson College."

Ninety per cent of the students at Davidson are influenced to come to Davidson either by some one who has formerly attended the College or by their pastor. Davidson has a few vacancies yet for the session of 1929-30. Alumni, students and friends of the College are requested to direct the attention of young men of promise to apply for admission to Davidson. Application should be made promptly if admission is desired.

Address: The Registrar, Room 113, Chambers,
Davidson College,
Davidson, N. C.

ONTREAT

Continued from page 2)
 ing of the Men's Work Con-Thursday night, August 15th impressive, a large audience
 ndance and Dr. J. E. Purcell, Mer's Work of our Church,
 e opening address of the Con-delivered by Dr. Wm. F. icago. Before his address he ideal conditions in which the here at Montreat are held.
 ke most clearly and convinc-subject: "Facing Four Fore-" He called attention to the acts are stubborn things and g of Lord Bacon "that the o do with a fact is to proceed
 e then enlarged upon the Christ, (2) of the Church, of Christ; (3) of the Presby-n, stressing here the need of al loyalty; and (4) of the through which one's work
 . In the course of his address one of the last utterances of y, when speaking before the Union of Chicago, he said
 d his work to do over again re fully identify it with the es. This was the first of a dresses being delivered this e early part of next week by un's Club of Montreat, which ost successful summer under cy of Mrs. M. F. Harringoa, Florida, held its August e Winsborough Building on ugust 15th. Among the fine oman's Club has done for s been the providing of a in the Montreat Normal

 he furnishing of a room in
 a. It has also aided most sub-work of our Young People noted to a remarkable degree ip for which Montreat is

e most delightful entertain-

STORY

THE VISION

L. E. Berry

It was a prosperous looking farm, the one owned by John Brown, good buildings and a well stocked barn; a house also very comfortably furnished with several modern conveniences and luxuries in evidence, conspicuous among the latter being a recently purchased radio.

Mr. Brown had just finished his supper as the sound of a car fell on his ear. The next minute there came a knock on the door, which his wife answered.

"Hello, Tom," he called, catching sight of the man in the doorway. "Come on in. Haven't seen you for a long time; since before harvest. Had your supper?"

"Yes, John, thanks," said the new-comer, stepping into the room. "I had it early as I wanted to make a few calls."

"Let's go into the other room," said Mr. Brown, leading the way.

"Still driving the old car, I hear," he laughed when they were seated.

"Yes, I guess you could hear it," Tom smiled back. "How do you like your sedan?"

"Pretty well. You didn't get that new car?"

"No. We couldn't manage it this year; too many mouths to feed. When you've got six children going to school, John, it runs away with the money."

"I guess so," replied his companion who had only one and she away teaching.

Tom Little looked around. "That's a fine radio you've got."

"Yes," said the other with pride.

"Must be great to sit and listen to it at night?"

"It sure is. You can get most any station with it."

The other got up and inspected it. "Must have cost quite a few dollars?"

"Two hundred and fifty, cash," vainly.

"It did, eh? Well, I guess it's all right if a fellow can afford it. I'd like to have one myself"; he sat down again. "Going to the coast this winter?" he asked.

"I don't know. We've been there the last four winters, and I wouldn't mind staying home this winter for a change. Besides the crop wasn't so good as I expected. Poor grade."

"I guess we are all in the same boat this year," said Tom. "What did you get?"

"A four. How did yours turn out?"

"Conditional five and some six. Lots

ments of the season was the Musical Tea given under auspices of the Woman's Club in the toyer of the Assembly Inn on Friday afternoon, August 9th. The silver offering was devoted to renewing the Club Scholarship in the Montreat Normal School. Mrs. Sam Robinson of Gastonia, N. C. is the new President and Mrs. K. H. Lafferty of Charlotte, N. C., is the Treasurer of the Club.

Mr. Tien Lai Huang, noted Chinese aviator and lecturer, spoke briefly to the Men's Conference, Friday, morning, Aug. 16.

like that this year. Some of our best givers are hard hit."

"Best givers?" asked Mr. Brown not comprehending.

"Yes—to the missionary and maintenance fund."

"Oh," Mr. Brown's face suddenly lost its warmth.

"And I was asked by the committee to see you. We thought you might help us out this year?"

He waited, but there was no response. He went on: "We are sure of some who always give whether times are good or bad; but there are others who haven't got their vision, and may not give as liberally as usual"; he stopped again and looked inquiringly at his host.

Avoiding his gaze the latter said heavily, "I don't believe in foreign missions; we've got enough work to do in Canada; lots of heathen here."

"But only thirty per cent goes to foreign missions; the rest is spent in Canada," Tom explained.

"Well, anyway, we've got all we can do to support the local church," he excused.

"But there are others who need the gospel."

"Let them pay for it, then, the same as we do."

"But some are too poor to pay; people who live in sparsely settled districts. Then there are settlements of non-Anglo-Saxons, and districts where people haven't found their feet, financially. This fund is also for other projects: evangelism, social service, hospitals in backward districts, benevolences, religious education, colleges for training our ministers," Tom said, waxing enthusiastic.

"How much are you giving to this?" Mr. Brown asked after a pause.

"Fifty dollars."

"Fifty dollars! Why you're crazy, man, the way you're fixed."

"Oh, there's lots worse off than us," Tom replied easily. "We get plenty to eat. We haven't got a new car, or a radio, but they'll come some day."

Mr. Brown looked at him, puzzled. "Why do you do this?"

"What?"

"This canvassing?"

"Oh, for different reasons. For instance, suppose the children out in one of those districts where there's neither church nor doctor were my children?"

"But they're not!" emphatically.

"No, but they're God's children."

There was a pause. Tom Little, seeing that even that truth left John Brown cold, rose. "Well, I must be going, John." Then wishing to give him every chance, he said, "What shall I put you down for?"

"Nothing this year. Maybe some other time," the other answered evasively.

A week later Mr. Brown received a wire: "Daughter seriously ill. Come."

It was night, but he started an hour after receiving the message, driving his car furiously over the highways and at the highest possible speed when he struck the municipal roads, wondering, when he drew near his destination, how a hospital came to be located in that district. For he knew what a struggle they had had in building the one in his town, and there were no signs of anything like the same prosperity here, although the district was fairly well settled. He was even more surprised when he came in sight of the hospital which was far ahead, in size, of the one his town boasted.

"How is my girl?" he anxiously asked the superintendent, after he had made known his identity.

"She is still living, but that is all we can say at present," he looked at Mr. Brown sympathetically. "We have done all we can. The rest must be left with God."

God. Until that moment Mr. Brown hadn't thought of God. Funny to hear this doctor speak so intimately of him.

"Can I see her?"

"No, you'd better not, today. But we thought it best to have you here—in case," the doctor replied.

"You have hopes, though?" his voice shook a little.

"Yes, she has a good chance now. Fortunately for her a hospital wasn't far away."

"She was in a serious condition?"

"Yes. Critical."

Mr. Brown looked around. "What hospital is this?" he questioned.

"This is a United Church hospital."

"A United Church hospital?" he said surprised.

"Yes."

"Why did The United Church need to build a hospital here?"

"Because if it hadn't there wouldn't have been one in all this northern district," the doctor answered.

"It built a big one," commented Mr. Brown.

"A big one was necessary. This hospital ministers to an area at least thirty miles long and forty miles wide, and surgical patients come from a much larger area," replied the superintendent.

"Where is the nearest hospital?"

"At North Battleford, fifty-two miles away."

"And they would have had to take my daughter there?"

"They would have tried to get her there," the superintendent said.

"But they couldn't have got her there in time to save her life?" asked the other, bluntly.

"No."

Mr. Brown became thoughtful. Then after a pause he asked, "How big is this hospital?"

"It has twenty-six beds and a staff of two doctors and four nurses."

"And what kind of people live in this district?"

"Ukrainian, mostly, and some Anglo-Saxons, but the latter are rapidly diminishing."

"And the people couldn't build a hospital themselves?"

"Not the way crops have been. They had a good crop in 1925, thirty to forty bushels to the acre, but every year since then the crops have been frozen. At present the people are just able to buy their farms and pay for the bare necessities of life. Then cost of maintaining a good hospital is so great that no small district in the north can maintain one without outside subsidy. I may also say that personally I think one good hospital, well equipped, is worth a lot of small ones scattered about that cannot have like equipment," the doctor explained, noting the interest the man was taking in his words.

"And the Church feels that this is part of its work, doctor?"

"Yes, Mr. Brown," replied the superintendent quietly; "for it is but fol-

(Continued on page 14)

SPECIAL EXCURSION FARES
 via
SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM
 August 24th, 1929
 Round-Trip Fare from
CHARLOTTE, N. C.
 to Cincinnati, Ohio ----- $17.50
 Louisville, Ky. ----- 16.50
LIMIT 15 DAYS
 Opportunity to visit
 Ohio, and Middle West.
TICKET AGENTS

Spend Hour
Sundays
ORTHODOX SCHOOL LITERATURE
 Application, Free
GOSPEL PRESS
 Cleveland, Ohio

FURMAN UNIVERSITY
 Greenville, S. C.

In the healthful, beautiful Piedmont Section of S. C. Strong Christian faculty. Emphasis on moral and spiritual values of life. Beautiful campus, commodious well equipped buildings. Courses leading to A. B., B. S., and LL. B. degrees. Vigorous and successful law school. 12 Weeks Summer School. Championship Athletics, Glee Club, Debating etc.
 For catalogue and other data write
W. J. McGLOTHLIN, Pres.

RICHARD FURMAN HALL

SPECIAL EXCURSION FARES
 to
FLORIDA
 Saturday, August 24th, 1929
 via
SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM
 Round-Trip Fare from
CHARLOTTE, N. C.
 to Jacksonville, Fla. ---- $15.50
 Miami, Fla. ----- 25.50
 Tampa, Fla. ----- 23.00
 Brunswick, Ga. ----- 12.50
 Havana, Cuba ----- 50.25
 Savannah, Ga. ----- 7.00
 Tickets on sale August 24th.
 Final limit, Savannah, August 31st. Brunswick and Jacksonville, Sept. 1st. Other destinations, Sept. 5th, and Havana, Cuba, Sept. 12.
Round-Trip Fares to Other Resorts in Florida.
ASK TICKET AGENTS

WANTED

Cultured woman over thirty to live in good home and care for two small children. Write Mrs. Helen Scanlon Wright, Durham, North Carolina.

MARY BALDWIN COLLEGE

For women. Courses lead to B. A. and B. S. degrees. Music, art, spoken English, physical education. Gymnasium and field athletics. Modern equipment. In beautiful Shenandoah Valley. Founded 1842. Catalog. Staunton, Virginia.

A Scientific Preparation For BOILS, CARBUNCLES, BONE FELONS, ULCERS, CUTS, and OLD SORES. Price 50c NO LANCE CHEMICAL CO. New Brookland, S. C.

Old Folk's Best Friend

That's what many call it for it puts vim and vigor into old stomachs; rich, red blood into old veins; sound flesh on old bones. Drink with each meal.

Shivar Ale

Pure Digestive Aromatics With Shivar Mineral Water & Ginger

Nothing like it for assisting your digestive organs to convert your food into rich blood and sound flesh.

CHARLES LAMB'S EXPERIENCE WITH WINE

"Out of the black depths could I be heard, I would cry out to all those who have but to set a foot in the perilous flood. Could the youth, to whom the flavor of his first wine is delicious as the opening scenes of life, or the entering upon some newly discovered paradise, look into my desolation and be made to understand what a dreary thing it is when a man shall feel himself going down a precipice with open eyes and a passive will—to see his destruction, and have no power to stop it, and yet to feel it all the way emanating from himself; to perceive all goodness emptied out of him, and yet not to be able to forget a time when it was otherwise; to bear about the piteous spectacle of his own self—ruins—could he see my fevered eye—feverish with last night's drinking, and feverishly looking for this night's repetition of the folly; could he feel the body of the death out of which I cry hourly with feebler and feebler outcry to be delivered—it were enough to make him dash the sparkling beverage to the earth, in all the pride of its mantling temptation; to make him clasp his teeth,

* * * and not undo 'em, to suffer wet damnation to run through 'em.

But is there no middle way betwixt total abstinence and the excess which kills you? For your sake, reader, and that you may never attain to my experience, with pain I must utter the dreadful truth, that there is none—none that I can find."

RAYON

A chemist pondered upon the fact that a silkworm caterpillar ate mulberry leaves and spun silk. It was a challenge to him and he felt that a chemist should be able to chew up something in a bottle or kettle and spin a thread as good as that of the caterpillar. It took a long time to realize that dream, but now we know rayon as well as we do cotton and silk and the amount made runs to hundreds of millions of pounds annually.

It really is chemically very little different from cotton, from which it can be made; but it is quite different in its appearance and some other properties. If you want to make an old cotton sheet into rayon you can do it. Soak the sheet in strong caustic soda solution, squeeze out most of the lye, tear the sheet all to pieces so that it forms crumbs. Beat up the "ripe" crumbs with carbon disulphide, a liquor of atrocious odor, poisonous and extremely inflammable, more so than gasoline. A bright orange, rather sticky mass will be all that remains of the sheet. Dissolve this in water with a little more lye in it. Adjust its thickness until it is just right; get all the tiny air bubbles out of it, also every bit of dirt. Then force through platinum plates with tiny holes in them into an acid bath. Filaments will result and these, after many other treatments, such as washing, freeing from sulphur and bleaching, will appear, after spinning, as rayon yarn. On the whole, it is easier to use the old sheets as rags and buy your rayon.

Thus is the caterpillar no longer unrivalled in the art of making lustrous fibers out of vegetable matter, although it has certain trade secrets that are still outside the range of the chemist's present achievements. It is true, no fisherman would like to use a rayon line, but his daughter finds rayon indispensable in making her wardrobe up-to-date.—R. E. Rose, in The Baptist Young People.

RANDOLPH-MANLY School for Girls

An accredited school, upholding the highest standards of Christian education. Every facility to promote mental, physical, and character. For descriptive literature write John G. Simpson, DANVILLE, VA.

FOR DIAMONDS, WATCHES AND SILVERWARE

Write to JAMES ALLEN AND SONS Jewelers since 1840 285 King St. Charleston, S. C. Catalog on request

Opportunity For You GIVE HIM A CHANCE

The measure of success you receive during the early years of school education, at a critical age, you should consider a question:

Is your boy going to school what he should be? It may not be the best school. It may be the 1st. Outside influences may attract his attention.

2nd. He is not prepared to face with the necessities of the mother of the home.

3rd. He may neglect the opportunity conducted by Carlisle School for Boys.

This problem can be solved and is effectively solved at Carlisle School for Boys.

Careful attention is given to individual development of spirit and fair play clean athletic sports.

Carlisle School develops manly character. Interested write for detailed information term opens September 10.

CARLISLE SCHOOL Col. Jas. F. Risher, Headmaster Bamberg, S. C.

ATLANTA CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

The Foremost School of Music in the South

Fall session begins Monday, September 2, 1929

Summer session in June and July

Apply for Catalog C GEO. F. LINDNER, Director Atlanta, Georgia

SALEM COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

Known nationally for 156 years' unbroken record in higher education. "Salem" life emphasizes Christian standards without denominational differences. Fifty-six acre campus of forest and meadow. Swimming, riding and all sports. Our endowment pays 12 1-2 per cent. of each student's expenses, reducing the annual charge to $655.00.

Accredited member Southern Association. A-Class.

A. B., B. S. and B. Music degrees with wide elective privileges.

Write for catalogue "A" to Pres. Howard E. Rondthaler, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Summer VACATION TRIPS

Rail and Motor Tours

In the Southern Appalachian Mountains

In especially arranged rail and motor tours, the Southern Railway provides a new vacation recreation, combining rail and motor transportation for the individual and for parties, into the mountain sections of Virginia, North Carolina, Eastern Tennessee and North Georgia.

These tours will take you adventuring by rail and motor into regions of scenic beauty and historic interest. Each trip begins and ends with a railway journey, in which you enjoy the speed and comfort of rail travel. The motor trips are over established State highways.

For booklets, information and rates, call on Ticket Agents,

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

J. A. HARTNESS, SECRETARY OF STATE

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA DEPARTMENT OF STATE

RALEIGH

May 22, 1929

The Howard-Hickory Co., Nurserymen, Landscape Gardeners, Hickory, N. C.

Gentlemen:

I take this opportunity to endorse your company as one of the best nurserymen and landscape gardeners in the country. My dealings with you in the past years have been imminently satisfactory and your shrubbery and work are of the highest order and I feel that one of the notable things in your favor is your willingness to always guarantee the life of your shrubbery as well as your work. And when I removed to Raleigh and had occasion to sell my place I had no hesitancy in saying that the plantings done by your company greatly enhanced the value of my property and thereby, I was enabled to sell the property at an advantage and satisfactory price.

Very truly yours, J.A. Hartness

JAH:F

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE DECATUR, GA.

Strict entrance requirements, but few failures after admission. Scholarship expensive, but cheap in comparison with advantages offered. No loafers expected, but also none without capacity to enjoy almost unlimited good things. For details as to admission, scholarship aid, etc address

PRESIDENT J. R. McCAIN Box 5

QUEEN'S COLLEGE
 CHARLOTTE, NORTH CAROLINA

WOMEN'S COLLEGE

Grade Institution for the Education of Women
 CHARLOTTE, N. C.

College With the Plus Sign"
 in its instruction; Strong Christian influence.
 development of Christianhood prepared for living and service.

Embraces every phase of preparation for meeting the opportunities and demands of modern life; CHRISTIAN WOMEN CHRISTIAN SERVICE.

Conditions unexcelled.
 Religious privileges add to attractiveness of the Institution.
 Reasonably.
 Catalogue Write
 THE PRESIDENT,
 Box 300, Charlotte, N. C.

UNCONSCIOUS ROBBERY

When John C. Calhoun was a student at Yale, he was a tremendous worker. Some of his fellow students ridiculed him for his intense application. He replied, "I am forced to make the most of my time, that I may acquire myself creditably when I go to Congress."

Such a statement made by an obscure college lad may have sounded presumptuous at the time; but all the world knows that ultimately the youth's prediction was fulfilled. He did, indeed, not only go to Congress but proved himself one of its outstanding leaders while he was there. Without doubt that habit of tireless industry—the determination to make the most of every minute—had much to do with the eventual realization of the young man's ambition. An eminent jurist has well said: "There is no form of petty larceny so common as that of stealing time. Seconds, minutes, hours — who does not pilfer them? Many who think themselves perfectly honest are guilty of this form of thievery every day."—Forward.

A recent bulletin of the Oxford University Press gives the following telling story:

"Of course, we can't hope always to please everybody, but we did hope we had a few books that would appeal to the so-called popular taste.

"We were sadly disillusioned, however, a short time ago, when a lady came in to choose some books as a gift to herself from a friend. She had been told to buy up to quite a considerable amount—some $60-$70. Alas, after spending several hours here on two or three days, she decided there was nothing among all our 10,000 clarendon books that pleased her; but after a great deal of deliberation, she did finally select a Bible.

"At the end of a week, however, she returned the Bible, saying rather naively: 'I'm afraid I don't want this after all, because, do you know, I find there was one in the house all the time—my husband's—leather-bound, too!'" — Living Church.

100 YEARS FROM NOW

Wouldn't it be a comforting thought to know that a century from now, or two centuries from now, the final resting place of those who are near and dear to you will be marked by the unmarred token of your thoughtfulness and loving care? The selection of a monument is the last service which you are privileged to perform for those loved ones who have been taken away. At such times, when life seems empty and dreary, and it is hard to bear your burden of grief, there is a measure of solace in knowing that all has been done that could be done. There is consolation in feeling that the visible expression of your everlasting devotion and respect is worthy of the sentiment which it represents. The monument which you erect is no mere lifeless thing of stone and mortar. It is a living symbol, bearing witness to the beauty of the life that has departed, and to memories that are undying. Carved into imperishable Winnsboro Granite, your message will stand for all the world to see throughout ages to come.

Winnsboro Granite is made up of tiny crystals of precious stones such as amethyst, ruby, emerald, sapphire, and others. These precious stone crystals were fused together by Nature hundreds of thousands of years ago under terrific heat and pressure. They are harder than tool steel, and give to polished Winnsboro Granite the splendid beauty of a profusion of sparkling gems.

A beautiful booklet has been prepared which gives a full description of this superb monumental granite. It also contains photographs of a number of artistic monuments which will serve for suggestions as to designs. Ask your monument dealer for this booklet, or if it is more convenient, write Winnsboro Granite Corporation, Rion, S. C.

A prayer for motorists: "Teach us to drive through life without skidding into other people's business. Preserve our brake lining, that we may stop before we go to far. Help us to hear the knock in our own motors and close our ears to the clashing of other people's gears. Keep alcohol in our radiators and out of our stomachs. Absolve us from the mania of trying to pass the other automobile on a narrow road. Open our eyes to the traffic signs, and keep our feet on the brakes."—Harry McCreary.

Satan is good at window-dressing and counter display, but his goods are shoddy.

Say what is true and what is pleasant. Do not say what is pleasant and not true, nor what is true and not pleasant.—Manu.

He that does good to another man, does also good to himself; not only in consequence, but in the very act of doing it; for the conscience of well-doing is ample reward.—Seneca.

Walking with God is not impossible today if we put our hand in the hand of the Master and go the way of the loving heart.

BLACKSTONE — A MILITARY SCHOOL FOR BOYS

Located in Healthful Section of Virginia. College Preparatory and Business Administrative Courses. Best home influences prevail, and individual needs of each boy closely watched. Modern, new and fireproof buildings. All manly sports, Christian influences and surroundings. For illustrated catalog write to

Blackstone Col. E. S. Ligon, President Box R Virginia

Visiting Cards and Stationery FREE

For a limited time we will give with each $3.00 paid on subscription to Presbyterian Standard 100 high grade printed visiting cards FREE.

SAMPLES OF TYPE

1. Miss Evelyn Smith
2. Mrs. J. B. Well
3. REV. JOSEPH BLOEGH
4. Mr. Henry C. Moore

Specify type wanted by number

With each $6.00 paid on subscription we will give 100 sheets paper and 50 envelopes to match with your name and address printed thereon.

Size of paper 6 1/4 x 7 inches. Good grade bond paper Envelopes one half size of paper.

SAMPLES OF TYPE

5. REV. M. HARVEY JONES
Charlotte, N. C.
6. S. T. HAINES, D. D.
Richmond, Va.
7. Mrs. Jackson Helms
WACO, TEX

Specify type wanted by number

If you prefer some other type, send us a sample and we will duplicate as near as possible.

Stationery can be printed in either blue or black ink. We will use black unless otherwise specified.

Check or Money Order must be sent direct to this office to receive this offer of cards or stationery.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING CO.
 P. O. Box 869 Charlotte, N. C.

UNION CUPS

and 36 up. Best tion and Bread
 prices. Send for
 IT. Write for free Catalog.
MUNION CO., Box 310, Lima, Ohio

DRAGHON'S

equipped than ever to train
 and men for better positions.
 experience is behind us. Our er than ever. All the commer-taught. Write us at once for

ON'S BUSINESS COLLEGE
 Tennessee

OUS DISEASES

oholic addictions successfully ring Garden Sanitarium, 2911
 n Street, Greensboro, N. C.
 full information. Correspondial.

ALLIE SCHOOL
 for BOYS

orically located on Missionary
 e. In view of renowned Lookout Mountain.

ding school in the South.
 preparation for College
 Technical Schools.

Small classes. Individual Instruction.
 Strong Faculty.
 Christian Training.
 Military Drill. Hon-
 or System.

Complete modern equipment. Concrete swimming
 pool. Gymnasium.
 40 Acre Campus.
 Lake. Rate $800.

ession—July and August
 a Camp Features

er illustrated catalog to eadmaster, Box P
 oga Tennessee

Children Cry
 for Pepper's
Peppermint Cure

STORIA

BABY REMEDY
 RECOMMENDED BY DOCTORS
 FOR COLIC, CONSTIPATION, DIARRHEA

WEATHER
 retards digestion and reduces vitality. Keep your condition with Extract
SCOD LIVER OIL
 Leading Druggists

ING OUR ADVERTISERS
 TION THIS PUBLICATION

Largest and MOST MODERN PLANT in the Carolinas

LARGEST USERS OF WINNSBORO GRANITE IN THE CAROLINAS
Charlotte Marble & Granite Works

R. E. SCOGGINS Proprietor CHARLOTTE, N. C. W. 7th St. and Southern Railway OLDEST LARGEST BEST Phone 281

THE VISION

(Continued from page 11)
lowing in the steps of the Great Physician."

"Um," the other murmured thoughtfully.

"Besides," the doctor went on, "we find that such an institution as this, ministering as it does to both soul and body, is able to exercise a great influence upon these New Canadians, and will do much towards making Christian citizens of them. Our work here has been greatly blessed already in this respect."

Mr. Brown looked at him strangely. There was something about this doctor that reminded him of Tom Little.

Presently he asked, "When can I see my daughter?"

The doctor answered kindly, "Perhaps tomorrow, if she continues to improve."

"You'll do all you can for her, doctor?" Mr. Brown said, nervously.

"We do all we can for them all, Mr. Brown," was the earnest reply.

A month later Mary Brown returned with her dad, restored to convalescence by the skill of doctor and nurse. And the next day Tom Little received a cheque through the mail for the missionary and maintenance fund that, coming from John Brown, almost took his breath away.—The New Outlook.

An old lady with an hour to spare went into a cinema without realizing that a talking film was being shown.

In two minutes she had returned to the box office.

"I'm afraid there's been a mistake," she stammered. "I thought this was a picture show, but when I got downstairs I discovered that a man with asthma was giving a lecture in German."—Tit-Bits.

PUZZLE ANSWERS

Floral Wreath—1. Daisy. 2. Yacht. 3. Tease. 4. Error. 5. Raven. 6. Never. 7. Rouse. 8. Eased. 9. Daisy.

A BOOK CLUB MEMBER

Dear Standard:

Will you let a little Methodist enter your band? Mother takes the Presbyterian Standard, and I enjoy reading your letters and stories, and painting your pictures. I am eleven years old and will be in the sixth grade next year. I attend the First Methodist Church at Siler City. Mrs. T. D. Bynum is my Sunday School teacher. She is a real good teacher and I like her real well. I belong to a little book club. There are twelve members. We each buy a book at each meeting. I take music and I like to play the piano real well. I read Margaret Gibbs letter and found that Mr. Wastebasket had gone for his "June Wedding." I hope he is on his "Honeymoon" now so he won't interfere with my letter being published.

Your little Methodist friend,

Mary Ruth Bruton. Siler City, N. C.

BIRTHDAY IN SEPTEMBER

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl eight years old and will be nine the second of September. I will be in the fifth grade next year at school. I go to Sunday School every Sunday I can. My teacher is Miss Hubbard. Well, I guess I had better stop. Please print my letter for I want to surprise my father.

Your friend, Agnes Blythe.

HONEY-MOONING!

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl twelve years old. I will be in the seventh grade next year. I have one brother, his name is Arthur, he is in the tenth grade. I go to the Presbyterian Church at Atkinson. I like to color the pictures and read the stories in your magazine. I hope Mr. Wastebasket is on his honeymoon for I want to surprise my daddy.

Your little friend, Dorothy Mae Mallard.

Atkinson, N. C.

WE HAVE THE SPACE—

Dear Standard:

I am a little boy three years old. I have three sisters, their names are Mary Douglass, Ruth Alford and Martha. I hope you have room in your paper for me to have space enough to print my letter.

Your new friend, John Bullock.

Rowland, N. C.

ORIENT FLOUR Its Whiteness Denotes Its Purity MOUNTAIN CITY MILL CO., CHATTANOOGA, TN

MEREDITH COLLEGE

For YOUNG WOMEN

STANDARD COURSES IN ARTS AND SCIENCES, IN MUSIC, IN ART, IN HOME ECONOMICS

Confers the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Music. Delightful environment on a high plateau on the western boundary of North Carolina.

Room reservations are now being made for session 1929-30. For catalogue or further information write

CHAS. E. BREWER, President Raleigh, N. C.

GLADE VALLEY HIGH SCHOOL

A Christian Schools for boys and girls

Standard High School Courses with Specials, Bible, Music

Domestic Art and Science

State Accredited Experienced Faculty

Careful Oversight of Students

Board, Room and Tuition only $138.00 for year.

Address E. B. ELDRIDGE, Supt., GLADE VALLEY, N. C.

ALLEGHANY COUNTY

BELK'S

Featuring a Final Clean-up Sale of all Summer Merchandise.

All floors co-operating in this General Clean-up Sale.

COME TO BELK'S

"Save the Difference"

Belk Brothers Co.

Charlotte, N. C.

WHEN damp days, sudden changes in weather, or exposure to a draft makes joints ache, there is always quick relief in Bayer Aspirin. It makes short work of headaches or any little pain. Just as effective in the more serious suffering from neuralgia, neuritis, rheumatism or lumbago. No ache or pain is ever too deep-seated for Bayer Aspirin to relieve, and it does not affect the heart. All druggists, with proven directions for various uses which many people have found invaluable in the relief of pain.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

King College for Men

Bristol, Tennessee

Stonewall Jackson College

FOR WOMEN

Abingdon, Va., Box A

Jointly Controlled by Montgomery Presbytery

Affiliated Colleges of the Synod of Appalachia.

King College offers four year courses leading to Degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Sciences — a small Christian College — Faculty of eleven Christian gentlemen of thorough training and practical experience. Expenses reasonable.

Stonewall Jackson College. Accredited Junior College for young women, in heart of healthful Virginia mountains. Two years high school, two years college. Music, art, home economics, secretarial course, physical room with bath. All outdoor sports. Tennis. Nine hole golf course on fifty-two acre campus. Homelike life. Write for catalogue.

The Ministers' Annuity Fund

Will Mean to the Minister or Missionary:

1. Ability to retire at age sixty-five or later with the assurance of a certain, definite income for life.

In the majority of cases, the amount to be received annually will vary from $600 up. In no case will the annuity exceed $2,000. At the outset, in some instances where the period of service has been short, the annuity will drop below $600. But in all cases—even at the beginning—where the period of service has covered thirty-five years or more, the annuity will not be less than $600.

2. Ability to retire on account of total and permanent disability before reaching sixty-five with a certain income annually.

While eventually the disability annuity will be forty per cent of the average salary during the last five years of service under the plan, the Fund reserves the right to limit the amount to $600 at the beginning of the operation of the Fund.

3. A widow's benefit equal to one-half of the minister's age retirement.

In the event of death of a member, whose marriage took place before retirement on account of age or disability, the widow's annuity benefit will be granted and will continue till re-marriage or death.

4. An annuity for each minor orphan child at the rate of $100 per year.

The widow's and minor children's annuities, in the aggregate shall not exceed the age retirement annuity which the member was receiving or to which he was entitled.

5. A "Savings Bank" arrangement, which provides that if a member withdraws from the Fund his own payments with interest will be returned to him.

6. A recognition of the group idea of the ministers and missionaries of the Church.

In addition to the numerous benefits, with the added assurance and peace of mind they will bring, it should be remembered that the Ministers' Annuity Fund is a Church-wide fellowship in which the participation of each minister and missionary and other church employee will make possible the benefits that will accrue to every other member of the group. Except in rare case no individual alone could make investments in insurance annuities, or otherwise, that in the nature of the case would bring comparable returns to those assured by this Plan.

THESE BENEFITS COST AND THE COSTS MUST BE CERTAINLY AND FULLY MET.

The Ministers' Annuity Fund is based on the contributory plan. There is nothing magical in the plan. Money cannot come out that has not first been put in or that has not been earned as interest. There are three sources from which a given annuity is created.

1. Payments of the members. Each member pays in monthly a sum equal to two and one half per cent of his salary for the month. If use of manse is provided this will add fifteen per cent to his salary, and his payment of two and one-half per cent will be made on the total.

2. Payments by the church or other employing body of an amount equal to seven and one-half per cent of the minister's or missionary's total salary. The church payments should be regarded as an item of current expense rather than as benevolent offering.

3. From the marvelous and highly productive workings of compound interest. Fifty-two per cent of the cost will be provided in this way.

THE PLAN OFFERS A CHRISTIAN, BUSINESS-LIKE SOLUTION OF A SERIOUS PROBLEM

For all servants of the Church who have served the Church prior to the inauguration of the plan (January 1, 1931), and who have had no opportunity during these years of "prior" service to make the payments that would have been required had the plan been in operation, partial provision is made in the proposed $3,000,000 accrued liability fund which is to be raised during 1931.

Experience, during the last two decades, has proven conclusively that no pension system, in a growing organization can be safely financed out of current funds nor on endowment or other static funds. Numerous plans adopted by corporations, school and eleemosynary organizations, based on endowment or fixed sums which have been set aside, have come or are now coming to grief. It is clearly recognized now that the only safe plan is the contributory plan. A number of other denominations, along with ours, have adopted this system which is pronounced scientific and entirely safe by the best actuaries and by insurance experts.

The General Assembly, after six years of consideration, has endorsed the plan, set apart the year 1930 for its establishment, directed its agencies to co-operate in its establishment, and urged all of its ministers and churches to adopt and enter into the Fund.

One of the first steps in inaugurating the fund is acceptance on the part of the ministers, missionaries and others who are eligible.

Other important steps in the process will await the action of the ministers in the matter of signifying their attention to enter the plan.

If through delay one who is eligible fails to enter before the plan goes into effect, he will, of course, lose participation in the $3,000,000 accrued liability fund for prior service which is to be raised.

Watch this page for answers to other questions.

(Ask any question and we will gladly answer.)

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH IN THE UNITED STATES.
Department of Ministerial Relief and Ministers' Annuity Fund,
 Henry H. Sweets, Secretary. John Stites, Treasurer.
 410 Urban Building, Louisville, Kentucky.

Montreat Conferences And Their Support

The Montreat Conferences which closed last Sunday, have been a great success from the first to the last. The attendance has been very large, much due to the advantages offered by Assembly Inn to those who have been heretofore unwilling to attend the conferences for lack of conveniences to which they were accustomed. While it is yet too early to know whether the expense has been fully met by the gate receipts and collections for the program, it appears that the receipts will almost cover the cost, if not entirely. The average cost of a Montreat Program from first to last is $8,000 approximately. The gate receipts and the collections are the only sources of income. These do not go to Montreat Association but to the expense of the program.

Many people are restless about paying the gate fees, who do not stop to think what these mean. Besides meeting the cost of the program they also furnish a safeguard for those who live or sojourn at Montreat. Were the gate not there, the ground would be open to invasions of all kinds, parties of undesirables bringing in drunkenness and immorality, sight seers galore who would make themselves a nuisance, traveling parties who would use the grounds as a thoroughfare, but the thirty-five cents at the gate, discourages such aggressions.

The conference program has been handled in a highly satisfactory way by Dr. J. Gray McAllister, who has been ever a courteous host, a skillful platform manager, a discreet guide of affairs and adding by his personality and gifts smoothness to the running of the entertainments.

MAXTON CANS FOR JUNIOR COLLEGE

(Continued from page 1)

expenses of this new institution as well as to provide a means of saving valuable foodstuffs which might otherwise go to waste.

All citizens in reach of Maxton who have any kind of fruits or vegetables such as corn, tomatoes, beans, butter beans, onions, peas, okra, cabbage, etc., which they are willing to contribute to the cause of Christian education, as proposed above, will please bring or send whatever they have to the college in Maxton as early as convenient.

The committee in charge will be grateful for any kind of vegetables; but inasmuch as several bushels of okra and bell peppers have already been pledged for this week, it is hoped that as much tomatoes, corn and vegetables other than okra and pepper will be contributed as possible.

Among the rest, the committee plans to put up a great quantity of soup mixture the making of which several different vegetables can be used, tomatoes especially.

It is felt the people of Maxton and surrounding towns and communities are greatly interested in the success of our infant institution in the words of Mrs. R. A. McLeod, wife of its president, "let's feed it and make it grow."

A LETTER FROM DR. THOMPSON

(Continued from page 1)

of the Assembly, you will find the following actions:

"That pastors and sessions and all organizations of the Church be urged to give Evangelism a primary place in their work.

"That Presbyteries be urged to arrange, in connection with the fall meeting, an Evangelistic Conference, with an inspiring and helpful program to deepen the Evangelistic spirit in the churches.

"That Presbyteries be asked to consider the adoption of an Evangelistic program designed to reach every church in the Presbytery with a special Evangelistic meeting."

Will you not see to it that such a season is observed for the sake of Christ and His Church?

Yours in His Service,
Ernest Thompson, Chairman.

Twelve Largest Churches

Church	Added on Confession	Mem.	Sch.	Benev. Cont.
San Antonio, 1st	130	2670	1002	$35,037
Dallas, 1st	55	2579	1561	36,634
Nashville, 1st	73	2549	1066	35,737
Charlotte, 2nd	53	2017	1286	59,235
Houston, 1st	86	1015	2085	31,139
Jacksonville, Riverside	137	1956	1629	18,810
Charles'n, Bream	122	1805	1796	20,441
Greensboro, 1st	77	1731	1244	36,350
Charleston, 1st	78	1666	1191	23,651
Huntington, 1st	50	1523	1469	19,959
Asheville, 1st	21	1472	2000	23,849
Memphis, Idlewild	39	1447	1023	27,259

The above figures were taken from the 1929 Assembly's Minutes and show the larger churches with a membership of 1,400 and over. The totals in the last column do not include "Miscellaneous Contributions." Greensboro First and Idlewild churches contributed large sums for building expenses. Although one of the smaller churches, Asheville, First, has second place in Church School membership. Riverside Church of Jacksonville stands last in contributions but first in additions on confession.—Charlotte Second Church Calendar.

WOMAN'S HOME COMPANION DISCUSSES FRUITLESS CHURCHES

(Continued from page 1)

States Steel or General Motors. Last year, he says, it collected and spent in America alone, $600,000,000, most of which was wasted on the dead churches.

Failure of the churches to show gains in membership are laid to the development of other forms of public gatherings which do away in a measure with the necessity of gathering at a community church for neighborly activities. The motion picture, the automobile, the radio, increased school activities, new subjects taught, all put a great strain upon the church. Owen D. Young, churchman as well as financier, points out that "it does no good for the church to wish that the radio and the automobile were not here. They will stay here and new and other things will come. Every new advance disintegrates the old order and only those institutions survive which can adapt themselves to new conditions. Facts are facts and we must take account of them."

The existence of the tired business man, the article adds, with his passion for golf, is another accepted factor in church diminution. But almost as important is the tired business woman. There are nearly ten million of her now; nearly a million and a half between forty-five and sixty-five; more than two hundred thousand over sixty-five. These women come from what was once the bulwark of the Sunday congregation. Now they have little time for church going on their one day off.

The Men's Christian Church League declared that it had been misled for some time by the glowing reports of growth in all churches. They discovered, however, that instead of the 1,115,000 gains for 1928, the figures heretofore have represented births into families inactively connected with the church and of persons who moved from one community to another, being enrolled again and again without being stricken from the rolls of the original church. In short, the poll proved to be entirely inaccurate and the League continuing its work, found thirty-two per cent of the churches actually sterile.

Setting about to remedy the situation, the League proposes to put its members, as individuals and as Sunday School classes, to work building up genuine, fresh membership. The plan, says Collins, has been shown practical if it can be financed, and there is no excuse for lack of money, in view of what the churches collect and spend, if dead churches are weeded out and the wasted funds concentrated upon those which are alive and thriving.

MONTREAT NIGHT AT MONTREAT

(Continued from page 1)

joyment of the conveniences of the great and beautiful hotel, which has made it possible for many more than formerly to receive the benefits of the conferences and social and religious atmosphere of Montreat. He urged all to come to the help of Montreat in this crisis.

Dr. George W. Truett, of Dallas, Texas, who has been so enthusiastically received again in his Montreat addresses this summer, also spoke. He said he had never been to as well managed a conference and to none that had a higher purpose, and or was so successful in carrying out the objectives of rest and spiritual refreshment, combined with supreme loyalty to Jesus Christ as Savior and God. He spoke in flattering terms of the management of the association, and urged his audience and the association to make use of this tremendous opportunity for service to God and humanity.

An offering was taken Saturday night and pledges, which with the collection on Sunday morning amounted to around $5,000. This will be duplicated by the Publication Committee, as ordered by the General Assembly. Other subscriptions have been received during the summer, and these will be reported in due time.

The Assembly has appointed October 13 as Montreat Sunday and the churches will be asked to join in liberating the Assembly Inn from the great debt that now rests upon it, which is around $70,000 in pressing obligations, though quite a good deal more than that is involved.

THE BIBLE CONFERENCE COMES TO A CLOSE

(Continued from page 1)

ation in the "Soliloquy of Judas Iscariot" evinced strong histrionic ability, and the audience was forced to sympathize with the unfortunate traitor, while compelled to condemn his atrocious act. Few pulpit orators will dare such a presentation.

While Dr. Vander Meulen's addresses contained great comfort and inspiration to all his hearers, perhaps his appeal was the stronger to the clerical part as his philosophical temperament led him to dwell on phases of doctrine which appeal to the preacher. He is well fitted to be a leader of our young students who seek the same high calling he has espoused. His other topics were "Motives for Seeking Christ," "Broken Bodies" and "My Wife's Religion."

Perhaps we may not be accused of invidious comparison when we say that the high spot of the conference was the address of Dr. George W. Truett on Wednesday afternoon when an audience of 2,000 assembled to hear him speak on "Paul's Reasons for Following Christ." Dr. Truett exalted Jesus Christ in unmeasured terms, and throughout his address made a most moving appeal for personal faith in Him. There were few dry eyes in the audience.

On Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Victoria Booth-Clibborn Demarest, a granddaughter of William Booth and a leader of the Salvation Army spoke to women only, and as that excluded this writer as being a mere man, he has no report of Mrs. Demarest's address, but has asked one qualified by sex and literary qualities to give us a story of the speech on "Mary the Mother of Jesus."

The authorities say that this was the best attended, the most spiritual, and best allround season Montreat has had.

"Parishes which have within them the possibilities of resurrection will live again. There will be no loss of power or momentum, no diminution of opportunity for religious work," he concludes.

DEVOTION

GREAT THINGS

God—The Greatest Lover.
So loved—The Greatest Love.
The World—The Greatest Gift.
That He gave—The Greatest Gift.
His Only Begotten Son—The Greatest Gift.
That whosoever—The Greatest Opportunity.
Believeth—The Greatest Blessing.
In Him—The Greatest Assurance.
Should not perish—The Greatest Promise.
But—The Greatest Difference.
Have—The Greatest Certainty.
Everlasting life—The Greatest Session.

CONFERENCE ON MEN AT MONTREAT

(Continued from page 1)

tives from fifteen of our states were present from the far North to the far South, though the majority came from the contiguous states around Montreat. The program that showed active interest in the subjects on the program, many part in discussions, and giving of life and work among the churches of the Assembly that has been adopted. A session revealed that every church represented had from 100 to 150 per cent in the number of workers since the men had been organized. All had increased their contributions to the church cases.

In the testimonies given from different synods revealed that Men-of-the-Church has become a potent factor in the discourses of leaders, enlarging both the vision and the vision of those active effort, and enlisting other workers of the church, the use of better methods of church support, the deepening of the lives of men, and finding a happier fellowship and a greater rest in the work of the Master.

Resolutions which were passed at the 1927 conference were reaffirmed, voicing again the desire of the men in the evangelizing of the church at large. One group at the conference passed resolutions requesting that the Commission on Men's Work call for men to be engaged in Men's Work in the local organizations and workers will do so to volunteer to other churches near them. Men-of-the-Church plan to continue, and help them to organize volunteers to give their services freely and without remuneration.

The key-note of the conference was "The Church," and in line with this central idea Dr. William Booth, Chicago, delivered a series of addresses. Dr. Weir is General Secretary of Men's Work in the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A. They were received with great interest because of their clear presentation of the problems of men at the local church, in an attractive style, well interspersed with practical illustrations. The text of the addresses was dictated by a stenographer, and published in book form, and retained for reference and study by the men.

The themes of Dr. Weir were as follows, "Facing the Facts," "Why Men's Work," "The Ministry of Men," "Responsibility of Men," "The Program of the Church for Men," "Men to the Church," "Relationships of Christian Men," "Men to the Church," "Relationships Among Men," "Men's Organizations and their Activities for Men."

YTERIAN STANDARD

FOUNDED 1858

Organ of the Synod of N. C. for 70 Years

The Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as Second Class Matter

Terms—The subscription price of the Standard is payable in advance. To ministers the price is to ministers' wives the price is $2.50 per year.

The mailing label shows the month and year to which the subscription is paid. Payment in advance is required.

It may be made by money order, check, or registered letter, and sent by mail.

Obituary Notices—No charge is made for notices of less than 100 words, but for all over fifty words the charge is $1.00 per word.

Advertisements—Sent on application.

Changes—Kindly send us both old and new addresses to insure a change to the desired change.

All notices are made only upon the written request of the advertiser, and the settlement in full must be made at the same time.

Advertising and Business Communications Should be Addressed to
PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD
 Box 869
 Charlotte, N. C.

EDITORIALPROPOSED UNION WITH THE U. P. CHURCH

At the meeting of our General Assembly, Dr. Morris, of the special committee on the question of Union with the Presbyterian Church, addressed the Assembly with such force that he won them over to the proposed Union by a large majority.

He treated the matter so skillfully that all who opposed were left in a hopeless state, and he added to his laurels, as a debater, the additional wreath that comes to a successful debater.

It is well known and loved Dr. Morris for his success, and we rejoiced in his success, but it was fatal to our own views.

Confident, however, that the "extract" of his speech would draw a picture of the other side. In our last issue we published a speech made by Dr. J. S. Foster, of the other side.

That our ministerial readers care to read that article, even though it might be thought more thought than is usually put into editorials.

In his speech "made the worse case for the other reason," with the result that he could show that he carefully considered the strong points of the other side of the question, as if he knew that "the less said, the better."

On the evening of August 7th, there is a common-sense speech from Dr. Wm. Crowe, a member of the committee to consider the aforesaid question, and concludes with these words: "The communication is given at the meeting of the General Assembly by Dr. Karr and Dr. Morris, both of whom concur in its conclusion and advise that our readers will refresh their minds by re-reading this article from Dr. Morris, and so the reply from Dr. Foster. I wish to emphasize the points made in Dr. Foster's analysis of Dr. Crowe's speech. He shows:

1. The difference in the action of the two churches. The U. P. Assembly was cautious, and the seriousness of the step to be taken did not propose to act in haste, but in leisure. They wisely decided to wait, and to weigh the temper of their own people, to weigh the advantages and disadvantages of the proposed Union.

2. On the other hand, our Assembly rushed into the question and sent down to the Presbyteries for their decision.

3. That the Presbyteries will not be swayed by their feet by this question, but will stand on every point of view. Dr. Morris, "Is it desirable?" The answer is negative, if they will remember that the territory does not overlap that of the Presbyterian Church.

4. That the Presbyterian Church seeks union with the Northern Church. If the union is consummated it will mean further friction between the Northern and Southern Churches, because the points of contact will be increased.

Again, let us consider whether such union is practicable?

One Church handles matters political, while the other Church was founded upon the principle that it was not to handle matters of State.

If we unite in spite of this our origin, we repudiate the action of those who risked their reputation and worldly advancement in order to emphasize this principle.

Again let us remember that the Committee was appointed by our General Assembly to consider the advisability of Union with the U. P. Church.

Their duty clearly was to consider the Union from every point of view.

The report should have mentioned the obstacles in the way of Union as well as the advantages; yet Dr. Morris in his masterly speech before the Montreat Assembly ignored every possible difficulty, and painted a rosy picture of the advantages.

He was addressing an Assembly of men, largely new, who knew little of the struggles of Thornwell, Palmer and Dabney, so that in their ignorance they were led astray.

They should have been informed that this proposed Union was with a Church that had always dealt with political matters, and that their views in the past were so different from those of the mass of our people, that there would be danger of friction between us.

Again, this Committee should have called attention to the fact that the proposed Union fails to safeguard property rights beyond the indefinite statement that all details can be arranged later. They had evidently forgotten the bitter experience of the Cumberland Presbyterian, when the Union between them and the Northern Church was effected, or the Union of the Canadian Church.

The U. P. brethren were wiser in their generation in that they were not so eager as our Committee seems to have been, but resolved to take time to consider the question.

Let our Presbyteries learn a lesson from them, and not rush into any Union with undue haste.

DR. ROBERT E. SPEER AT MONTREAT

If the Montreat Program Committee disappointed some in the early part of the season, they certainly applied the "arousment" towards the close.

The latter end of July and the August period have more than pleased.

Rarely has a conference been more favored than the various Conferences, now on the home stretch.

Wm. Anderson, of Dallas, Texas, and Dr. Truett, of the same place, Dr. Robert E. Speer, of New York, a combination rarely found in a summer gathering, has made this a season long to be remembered.

We have already written our impressions of the first two speakers, and now, ere the season closes, we hasten to add that of Dr. Speer, who came with a blowing of trumpets on the part of the management, and though he had this high standard to reach, did not fall below the high expectations aroused.

Anderson and Truett appealed to the heart and aroused emotions that made us all realize that we had done little of real preaching, and also that we had been blind to the glories of our inheritance through Christ.

Dr. Speer, on the other hand, while lacking the pulpit graces and emotion of the other two, made a powerful appeal to the intellect of his hearers, and proved to all who heard that we had been blind to the meaning of much of the most familiar portions of the Bible.

By sheer force of intellect he captured his audiences, and sent many a preacher away with new views of what preaching should be, and what riches of meaning can be found in the sacred text.

This is our first meeting with Dr. Speer, but we shall hereafter class him among the great preachers of America, and we shall look for better preaching on the part of our young men.

The bulletin promises during the last days of the Conferences two other great preachers, Dr. James I. Vance and Dr. John M. Vander Meulen, both ministers of our own Church, and both capable of winding up a great Conference.

We hope to hear them both, and write our impressions later.

Neither one is a stranger to us, and we have never heard a poor sermon from either.

ENTHUSIASM SCARCE

Disraeli, when Prime Minister of England, was requested by the Queen to fill the Archbishopric of Canterbury by the appointment of Dr. Tate, then Bishop of London.

Disraeli was unwilling to make this appointment, because Dr. Tate possessed certain qualities that rendered him unfit for such an important office.

Among these qualities he mentioned that Dr. Tate had "A strange fund of enthusiasm."

This seems a strange objection to any one who has work to do, and one would think that in the work of the Church it would be a quality most desirable.

It was certainly the leading trait in the character of our Lord, if we leave out of view His divine mission on earth.

We recall that soon after He came down from the Mount of Transfiguration where His three disciples caught a glimpse of His glory and were blinded by its exceeding brightness, He was reminded of His decease which He should accomplish at Jerusalem, He gave them an intimation of the shame that awaited Him.

The inspired writer thus describes it: "And it came to pass when the time was come that He should be received up, He steadfastly set His face to go to Jerusalem."

When we remember that He not only foresaw what awaited Him at the end of the road, but that He had just been reminded of His decease which was to be accomplished at Jerusalem, yet He steadfastly set His face to go to that very place. We can easily understand that, humanly speaking, it was only enthusiasm that sustained Him to the end.

When we study the work of the Church today, and see how many pastorates are crippled by the lack of this enthusiasm, we wonder that it should be objected to any man that he had a strange fund of enthusiasm.

The ministry, above all other professions, needs enthusiasm, for there are times when it requires a peculiar driving force to face the many difficulties incident to faithful work.

When one fully realizes what they are, he never wonders why some pastorates are real tragedies.

Then he wonders why young men are ready to enter such a life when they are subjected to treatment that reminds one of the martyrs of old.

Just recently we were told about the cruel manner in which a Church ridded itself of an unacceptable pastor, giving him a vacation in order to carry out plans to be free of his presence.

This, of course, is an exception, because, in the main, no men receive more courteous treatment than pastors.

Still to meet this treatment, even on spare occasions, and to keep at one's work requires enthusiasm founded upon a sense of duty to our Lord, such as no man possesses, unless his faith be grounded on the Rock of Ages.

There are two ways of regarding one's work in the ministry—one is to regard it merely as a means to an end, that is to furnish a living for wife and children, in which instance, it differs in no respect from the farm hand or the clerk in the store. Then the other is to regard it as a definite service for our Lord, a work to help to build up His kingdom and to hasten His coming.

The work to be done has a certain value, and the trials endured add to its intrinsic worth.

No matter what the trials are, he, like his Master, for the joy set before him, endures the cross, and despises the shame," being assured that he will receive the crown of life.

Would that the people of God remember that injunction, "Touch not mine anointed, and do my prophets no harm."

CONTRIBUTED

FAITH IN ACTION

Rev. C. E. Raynal

(Reported in Statesville (N. C.) Landmark)

Faith in action, faith linked with courage were the characteristics of the great men of God, those heroes of the faith recorded in the 11th chapter of Hebrews, Dr. C. E. Raynal told the congregation at the union service, at the First Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church Sunday evening. Faith in action and courage were expressed in the lives of the apostles—Peter, John and Paul, the great messenger of God, who opposed his life and preaching against the world of his day—a world whose greatest forces were Greek learning and Roman arms. These heroes of faith were men who turned the world upside down, who built the kingdom of God, who laid the foundations of the civilization we have today. Dr. Raynal set over against this a picture of the Church as it is, largely, today—little in faith, easy going. Instead of undertaking great things for God it seeks an easy path. Yet this age in which we live is not a little age, except in the church. And faith and courage ought to be shown first of all in the Church. There is something wrong when courage and faith are being expressed outside of the church, instead of inside it. What is God's plan for us? Does He want us to be a lot of tame, easy-going people? No, God set us in the world to save the world, to preach the gospel to the ends of the earth, to edify our own community. Do we want to be little in His service, or do we want to be one of these great heroes of the faith?

The 33d and 34th verses of the 11th chapter of Hebrews were the text: "Who through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises, stopped the mouths of lions, quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, out of weakness were made strong, waxed valiant in fight, turned to flight the armies of the aliens." I suppose, Dr. Raynal said, that if there is any piece of literature in all the wide world that touches all that is heroic in human nature it is this. Beginning at the beginning and coming down through all the years it records the lives of the great, those who have built the world that we live in. It gathers up out of all the history of men the lives that have contributed to the making of this world, to the building up of its system of laws, the establishment of its civilization, to victory over all the evil forces that would destroy human life. As this record unfolds and name after name in the great catalogue is given our hearts are thrilled with a sense of human greatness. How great are their works! It was a great period of the earth's history—a period when the hearts of men were equal, not to little faith, but to the doing of great things in the name of the Lord. The period in which this book (Hebrews) was written, whether by Paul or another whose name we know not, was a great period. And to this list, recorded here, names were to be added, names like Peter, James, John, Mathew, Mark, Barnabas and Paul, that great messenger of God to the Gentiles. These names were to be added now to this great catalogue.

Religion Important in New Testament Times

The first thing to which I would direct your attention tonight is the fact that this was a time in the history of the world when religion was a great thing. Not little and afraid; not a little tame faith, seeking safe roads and a safe investment. Not at ease in Zion, but great—great in faith, great in action, great in character. Take your Bible and read, take up each of these men, these heroes of faith and read the record of their lives, and you will catch some notion of the majesty of the kingdom of God and of the greatness of the church. But then, when we think of their greatness, we are tempted to put over against it the church that we know—the church, for instance, as it is largely today—little in faith, little in courage, little in hope. We read this catalogue of great men and the testimony of the record and put over against it our record and our lives. Well, as we look at the church today, we can not escape the fact that it is made up largely of those who are seeking the easy way. Instead of those old lions, not afraid of men nor devils, we have a lot of little tame rabbits. We have a generation of preachers who do the best they can, but somehow or other they are just a lot of little tame rabbits instead of prophets and apostles. Then we have a lot of little tame churches, easy-going. They have no great program of service, nothing to call for heroic action or heroic sacrifice—just a lot of little tame rabbit churches with their little, tame programs. Much of the work of the Church, when undertaking to do any thing, is to consider how far to go in doing that thing, with the idea of avoiding any complication and easing out of the situation. And you find a lot of tame people working to put the work of the church on the preachers and officers. They don't expect to be called on for anything beyond a reasonable contribution—not even much teaching in the Sunday School.

Take the Church which has been God's kingdom, its great heroes of the faith who did God's work, unafraid of the devils in hell. Set over against that picture, ourselves—preachers, church and people as they are today. Then think along certain lines that will come naturally: Here were great men who turned the world upside down, men who built the kingdom of God and laid the foundations of the civilization that we have today. When Paul set forth on his missionary journey the two greatest forces in the world were Greek learning and Roman arms. Paul set forth to oppose his life and preaching against all the power of the world—one man against the world—think of the courage and of the presumption of it. But he did not go in his own power. You know what happened. Roman power and Greek philosophy no longer mean anything, but the gospel that Paul preached is the power of God and the wisdom of God in the world today. Our civilization today is due more to the Apostle Paul than to Roman arms or Greek philosophy. It was power to turn the world upside down.

Bible Leaders Men of Courageous Faith

What were the characteristics that these men had? Faith—what kind of faith? A faith linked with courage, with action. Faith of men who were alive and serving God. Every one of these men is glorious, not merely because he trusted in God, but because his trust in God set him to doing something in this world. He was not singing while others were serving. Every one was sweating, toiling, sacrificing, working for God. Faith in action, full of courage, undertaking great things for God; instead of little faith, sitting still and keeping cool, that retires when any storm of action is to be faced. The faith of these men was the faith of God's people at work.

Is anything like that possible for us who read the catalogue of these great heroes—Enoch, Moses, David, Abraham, and the others—is any thing like that for us? A great many people say no. We are tame rabbits. We have developed to a high degree the art of getting out of doing something. How can these qualities be ours? Faith in action, courage, going forth as St. George facing the dragon, going forth as the Apostle Paul facing all the learning of the earth and the armies of Rome. It is the quality of putting the things of God first. This is not a little age in which we live, except in the church. Everywhere else men are doing marvelous things. Skyscrapers, ocean greyhounds, Zeppelins. Lindberg, Edison, Burbank. Wonderful things are being done in this earth, but in the church there are a lot of easy going people.

Appropriating Heroic Qualities

How can the great qualities of the men mentioned in this 11th chapter of Hebrews become ours? Certainly if we want them we must start out to seek them, strive to make our lives worthy of them, ask God for them, strive for them. What is God's plan for us? Does He want us to be a lot of tame, easy-going people, almost totally paralyzed when it comes to the church? I think not. No, read the record and you will know that is not God's idea. The whole record is of that adventuresomeness of spirit that ought to characterize a people. A faith and courage that ought to be shown first of all in the church. There is something wrong when the characteristics of courage and faith are being expressed outside of the church instead of inside it. God set us in this world to save the world, to preach the gospel to the ends of the earth, to make our community a decent place in which to live, to edify it, civilize it and refine it. Otherwise we are not true to God's investment of Jesus Christ, to His purpose in fashioning our lives.

And then this final thing. You remember how Paul closes the account—over in the twelfth chapter: "Wherefore seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith." That's the exhortation. My friends, I leave it with you. Do you want to be in the service of Almighty God a little, tame rabbit, or do you want to be one of these heroes of the faith? Seeing we are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses—Peter, Paul, John, looking down upon us tonight—upon us preachers and upon us people, let us, "lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith."

Men-of-the-Church

Presbyterian Church in the United States

REV. J. E. PURCELL, D.D., Executive Secretary
HENRY GRADY BUILDING
ATLANTA, GEORGIA

REV. JOHN L. FAIRLY, D.D., Wilmington, N. C.,
Editor in Charge of Men-of-the-Church Department

SYNOD OF VIRGINIA

The present Chairman of Men's Work for the Synod of Virginia was not appointed until last September, therefore, the report will only cover work done since that time.

Previous to September, 1928, Rev. T. K. Young, D.D., was Chairman and with the assistance of Mr. J. A. Naff and the present Chairman, a great deal of field work has been done in the Synod and some splendid organizations had been set up.

Immediately after my appointment, I visited as many of the fall meetings of Presbytery as possible (it being impossible to get to all, as in some instances two or three met on the same dates). It was especially gratifying to note the interest shown at West Hanover and Winchester Presbytery, where the work had never before been presented. Mr. Naff was with me in West Hanover Presbytery and we were given one hour of our day. We had several requests from pastors of churches and do some personal work. This Mr. Naff and the work has started in this in a most satisfactory way.

I was given the opening hour of first day of Presbytery, where the work was also completed but the pastors were sufficiently interested additional half hour, which was granted. Resolutions—I have been requested to conduct short courses at Martinsburg, West Virginia, and Romney, West Virginia. These requests were granted and on October 12, a conference was held in West Virginia. Through the efforts of the S. R. Deihl, we had an attendance of eighty-two churches. One notable feature of the conference was the presence of a pastor with all of his all of his elders except one (in all twenty-two churches) Charleston, West Virginia.

On March 20, seventy-eight men from twenty-two met at Romney, West Virginia, on the invitation of the pastor of the Romney Church, Rev. C. R. Young, evening of fellowship, instruction and in the number of requests for help came from the conferences.

Under the direction of the Chairman of the Synod in Norfolk Presbytery, Rev. F. M. Hawley, a conference was held in LaFayette Church, Virginia, on December 8. Sixty men from twelve churches.

Three Conferences were held in Montross, Virginia: October 18 at Blacksburg—eighty-three churches; October 19 at Lynchburg—fifty-three churches; and on November 8 at Blacksburg—ninety-seven men from twelve churches.

In these three conferences we had a total of two hundred and thirty-three men from twelve churches. We are especially grateful to the various churches in which these meetings were held for their splendid co-operation and hospitality. Dr. T. K. Young, Dr. H. S. Turner at Lynchburg, Dr. J. A. Naff at Blacksburg, and Rev. C. J. Walsh for their various programs.

We believe these conferences to be the best means of getting Men's Work into the hearts of the greatest number of pastors and men, and purpose to continue this plan throughout the year as possible.

A meeting of the Synod's Committee on Men's Work met in Roanoke on December 14, and a report was presented in the discussion of plans and methods for the work. The Chairman submitted a report on a meeting showing he had reached through the efforts of five hundred ninety-six men from seventy-two churches between September 13 and November 30. The committee agreed to sponsor Massanetta Springs, Virginia, August 1-4 and to be responsible for promoting the same.

We believe in the Assembly's Plan for Men's Work and earnestly pray for the guidance of the Synod in promoting this plan in the Synod of Virginia throughout our beloved church.

SYNOD OF WEST VIRGINIA

In the Synod of West Virginia during the past year there has been every evidence of growth of strength and force on the part of all churches to develop the force of their man-power as a spiritual and moral local church. Where there is found the organized spiritual layman with leadership, there has been decided growth in spiritual activities in that church. The Men's Work under those pastors who have discovered the value of organized men's work in their church, are taking the initiative to build upon such a desire.

Several churches are available in the Synod of West Virginia illustrating that the problem is one of evolution and use of already existing men's organizations, developing them into a one hundred percent Church Organization. Lack of leadership is one of the greatest difficulties in the work. Much is gained in the start if only one or two gifted are found in the local church.

Our definite aim for the year is: 1. To have each church make a survey of its own field in order to determine the opportunity for doing outpost work of evangelism by its men. 2. To encourage the local church to study and define the big problem of the church and present the same as their own solution by themselves. 3. To ask each church to designate a layman as special attendant upon the annual meeting of Men's Work held within his Presbytery and also the Massanetta Conference for men. 4. To have a plan of daily Bible reading under the leadership of Men's Work Committee of Synod.

SERVICE SUGGESTIONS FOR CHURCH

To the President: This is a very important time in the life of the church. In many churches it will be the first well thought out service after the summer slump. See that there is plenty of publicity and that every effort is made to get the men and to get them out. A hearty welcome to those who come will do much to bring the word of encouragement before the meeting in your organization will be very effective. Council: This meeting should be held seven to ten before the General Meeting. Open and close. Read the minutes of last meeting. Call for business—unfinished or new. Then call for the Chairmen of Departments. The Chairman of Department V, Religious Education, directs the men this month. Perhaps the greatest task is the Bible Class. If the men will throw into this project it will be the finest thing they can do for their church. The Chairman of Department V should consult with the Superintendent of the Bible School and the President of the Bible School for the program for this month. Sharing with the Chairman of Department V is the Chairman of Department II, Home Missions. The Bible School of Missions is held this month. The Chairman of this Department should write to the Chairman of Home Missions, 101 Marietta Street, Atlanta, Ga., for further information. This is one of the best ways, also, in which the Chairman of Department V should share with the Chairman of Department II. The best way of teaching Stewardship is through concrete things like Home and Foreign Missions. See that Stewardship of Home Missions is taught in the Bible School of Missions as well as the facts of Stewardship. Rev. R. C. Long, Stewardship Committee, 101 Marietta Building, Atlanta, Georgia, will help you in this. These three chairmen will furnish a program for the Council to consider. However, the Chairman should care for the outpost mission work, and the Chairman of Department V should care for the prayer services and the entertainment meeting.

Next to the home, the Sunday School is the most important teaching agency in the world. It should be fully realized, and thorough preparation should be made by the speakers before the program, in order that it may be made very much more and result in a real movement for Sunday School in our Southern Presbyterian Church. A million children and young people in the Southern Presbyterian Church are without Sunday School privileges or religious instruction. The share of this multitude is as large as we can reach.

That Sunday October 6, is Rally Day. This should be closely related to the program for the year. The two should be so handled as to awaken the men to the need and opportunity and ability for meeting it. Give out your topics.

Material: The material for this program will be prepared by the Presbyterian Committee of Publication. The church papers the first of September. Survey. Consult your pastor. Write to the Chairman of Religious Education, P. O. Box 101, Richmond, Va., for further information. Begin to talk early. Get full of it. Make the other men interested. It is one of the biggest things our church is engaged in.

Leaders: More than likely your big task will be to build up the attendance of the Bible School. Go at it with a will. Enthuse the men. Make it worth while. And talk to the men about prayer and Bible Reading. This latter is necessary if men grow in grace.

Further Information

Information and material to be used in connection with this program may be secured from the Executive of Religious Education, R. E. Magill, 1017 E. 117th Street, Richmond, Va., or from the office of the Secretary of Men's Work, J. E. Purcell, Secretary Building, Atlanta, Ga., or from the office of the Chairman of Religious Education in the early part of September.

SYNOD OF TENNESSEE

One of the most remarkable developments in Men's Work in the beginning was the churches in Memphis, especially the City of Memphis. Two fine conferences were held in Memphis and the interest was considerably above the average. We have held a Training School in the Presbytery of Nashville, and we find that this Presbytery is leading up to the larger development of Men's Work in the Synod as a whole has not developed as well as these centers have shown very definite results. J. W. Orr, of Memphis, Tenn., is Chairman of the Committee on Men's Work.

EDUCATION AND CHARACTER

Several resolutions adopted by the National Association at its Atlanta meeting last week emphasized some emphasis on character education in the home and school as the greatest force for character building. Recognition is thus given to the fact that character is the highest and truest aim of education. The fact that character is the foundation of our laws and institutions and the whole of our life. But if the N. E. A. through the introduction of courses in civics and ethics, or any sort of training in the grammar and high schools, is to solve the problem of character building and thus lay the foundation for law and the making of good citizens, it showed an excessive and unwarranted faith in the efficacy and importance of its profession, which is characteristic of all professionals.

Character is the ripe fruit of education, using the latter term in its broadest sense to include the experiences and training received in the world outside of the schoolroom, which is, if anything, even more important than that received in the schoolroom. It cannot be acquired by memorizing text books or the mere accumulation of knowledge. Socrates taught that knowledge is virtue and ignorance is vice; that if a man did wrong it was because he didn't know any better, he was ignorant. But the fact is that most of us know the better and do the worse. We are victims of habits, appetites, passions, unbalanced emotions, wrong attitudes, faulty tempers and temperaments and heaven only knows how many other shortcomings and maladjustments of the total personality. A college or university education is by no means a guaranty that its possessor is a man or woman of character. President Eliot once remarked that during all the years of his presidency of Harvard there wasn't a single major act of perfidy committed in Boston, or he may have said Massachusetts, that some Harvard graduate did not have a hand in it.

But even if Socrates were right in thinking that character could be gained through education it would require far more education than all but a handful of persons possess. Who is educated? And what is education? These are not questions for summer mental exercise. Perhaps some cold, winter day we may feel like grappling with them. But one thing is certain: getting a diploma is not the same thing as getting an education. "Many are called, but few are chosen." It would shock the American people if they but knew what a pitifully small amount of real education can be shown for the billions of dollars that have been spent in the endeavor to get it. The reason is that while the amount is large in bulk it is not nearly large enough to produce the desired result. Getting an education is a long, laborious and expensive undertaking and therefore if the amounts of effort and money, however large they may be, are insufficient to see it through they are practically wasted. Similar situations occur in war and business. Many an expensive shell has fallen short of the mark and, therefore, been useless because it was not expensive enough, and many an advertiser has wasted thousands of dollars because the amount spent, while large, was not large enough to put his advertising campaign across. Economy and efficiency require not smaller but much larger expenditures for education and meanwhile it should be remembered that he who makes too large a claim for school education renders it a distinct disservice.

THE END OF HUMAN PERFECTION

Rev. H. H. Leach

"I have seen the end of all perfection: but thy commandment is exceeding broad" (Ps. 119:96).

What does the psalmist mean when he says, "I have seen the end of all perfection?"

God the Spirit here means, I think, that the human-built character is an absolute failure when measured by what God requires. The latter part of the verse explains the first part. The connecting word "but" is not in the Hebrew and in both the A. V. and the R. V. is supplied. Without this word the verse reads: "I have seen the end of all perfection: thy commandment is exceeding broad." The writer sees into the high, heavenly and absolute requirements of God; then, seeing his own inability to attain the perfection God rightly requires of him, exclaims, "Thy commandment is so broad, broad as thine own character, reaching up into heaven, and over into eternity whither I cannot go, and requiring me to be like Thyself, permitting nothing less; and I, being sinful and weak, cannot attain unto the perfection required by Thy commandments: my perfection, I see, is ended."

This interpretation is supported by other verses in this 119th Psalm, and many other passages as well.

"The righteousness of thy testimonies is everlasting" (verse 144). "Thy righteousness is an everlasting righteousness, and thy law is the truth" (verse 142). Men may, and often do, decree wicked laws and with them what is right today may be declared wrong tomorrow. But the law of God is righteousness, and is truth, today and for ever. "Concerning thy testimonies, I have known of old that thou hast founded them for ever" (verse 152). "All thy commandments are righteousness" (verse 172). With such an insight into God's commandments as this there is no wonder he said, "Thy commandment is exceeding broad."

"Exceeding broad!" Yea, exceeding all man's abilities.

(a) As to time: "Behold thou hast made my days as an handbreadth; and mine age is as nothing before thee: verily every man at his best state is altogether vanity" (Ps. 39:5).

(b) As to purity attained: "Thy word is very pure" (verse 140). Gold may need to be refined to separate it from dross; but God's word is purity itself, reflecting the holiness of God's character and government, and requiring of me, and leading me to, purity of heart, thought and act. "Thou desirest truth in the inward parts: and in the hidden part thou wilt make me to know wisdom" (Ps. 51:6). "I know also, my God, that thou triest the heart, and hast pleasure in uprightness" (of heart) (I Ch. 29:17). "The true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth: for the Father seeketh such to worship him" (Jn. 4:23).

(c) Man's life begins as a failure: "Behold, I was shapen in iniquity; and in sin did my mother conceive me" (Ps. 51:5).

(d) Man failed in his examination by God: "The Lord looked down from heaven upon the children of men, to see if there were any that did understand, and seek God. They are all gone aside, they are all together become filthy: there is none that doeth good, no, not one" (Ps. 14:2, 3).

"I have seen the end of my perfection, for God requires me to love Him with all my heart, and the awful truth is I do not love him in the least. More than that, I am averse to God. Still worse than that, I am supremely in love with sin, and sin is what God hates with all His infinite perfections. 'Oh, wretched man that I am! Who shall deliver me from the body of this death?'"

"Not only have I failed to attain that perfection God rightly requires of me. I am blameworthy for my failure. It is a moral failure. Not only is there an immeasurable gulf between what God rightly requires of me, and that which I have attained; God blames me for falling short of that perfection. He blames me very seriously, very greatly. So much that God says I shall die for that failure, for it is sin, and "the soul that sinneth it shall die." Sin deserves the death penalty.

Die? Yes, die. That is, oh, inconceivable horrors, be cut off from the favor of God for ever and be under His wrath for ever—this is to die for my sin.

"I have seen, therefore, the end of all perfection." And how solemn, and as just as solemn, God will accept nothing short of perfection—will not, should not, cannot. What must I do? How shall I escape the stroke of justice?

"Oh, where shall rest be found,

Rest for the weary soul?"

"Behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy!" saith the Lord.

Good tidings? Yes, yes. Though thou hast failed and art under the just sentence of death, there is yet a perfection for you, and it is free; there is a righteousness for you and it is free.

What is that? Tell me of it quickly.

"God has found a way to declare his righteousness: that He might be just, and the justifier of him which believeth in Jesus." If you will put your trust in this Jesus, the Son of God, your sin and failure will all be forgiven, you will be counted as a righteous person in God's sight, purely on account of the righteousness of Jesus Christ. Then Jesus will give you his Holy Spirit, and He in turn, will give you deliverance from the guilt of sin, and from its power, and will also cleanse you from its pollution, its stain. So that, by and by, if you continue to trust and obey Jesus Christ. He will take you to be with Him and will then make you a present of a personal perfection like His own, and you will wear this for ever as your garment to fit you for His presence—even His righteousness.

"In which all-perfect, heavenly dress,
Your soul shall ever shine."

And the glory of this good news in that God's law has been perfectly honored, upheld and maintained, (1) by the perfect obedience of Jesus Christ to that law; and (2) by His once offering Himself through the eternal Spirit without blemish unto God as payment of the awful penalty of God's violated law.

Thus, "Christ is made unto us righteousness"—perfection—by the exceeding grace of God even as "the Lord God made coats of skins" for the first sinners, "and clothed them" (Gen. 3:21).

"I will greatly rejoice in the Lord, my soul shall be joyful in my God; for he hath clothed me with the garments of salvation, he hath covered me with the robe of righteousness, as a bridegroom decketh himself with ornaments, and as a bride adorneth herself with her jewels" (Is. 61:10).

Sherandoah Junction, W. Va.

THE PREACHER

He held the lantern, stooping low,
So low that none could miss the way;
And yet so high, to bring in sight
That picture fair—the world's great Light;
That gazing up—the lamp between—
The hand that held it scarce was seen.

He held the pitcher, stooping low,
To lips of little ones below;
Then raised it to the weary,
And bade him drink when sick and faint!
They drank—the pitcher thus between—
The hand that held it scarce was seen.

He blew the trumpet soft and clear,
To call the waiting soldiers near,
And then with louder note and bold,
To raze the walls of Satan's hold!
The trumpet coming thus between—
The hand that held it scarce was seen.

But when the Captain says, "Well done,
Thou good and faithful servant—come,
Lay down the pitcher and the lamp,
Lay down the trumpet—leave the camp"
The weary hands will then be seen, Clasped in those pierced ones—naught between.

—Anon.

THEN AND NOW

Egbert W. Smith

It is enough to make our home pastor's mouth water to note how magnificently great and needy are the fields in which our missionaries are privileged to labor. Their ambition is that of the Apostle Paul who said, "Yes, so have I striven to preach the gospel, not where Christ was named, lest I should build on another man's foundation." Such is our great Barretos field in our West Brazil Mission, entered and opened up by, Rev. Dr. Robert D. Daffin. Writes Doctor Daffin:

"Four years ago I found in this region two towns of over 10,000 population each and four others of about 3,000 each where there had never been made an effort to plant a church. This region that is now called Barretos field is only about two hundred and fifty miles from our first Station in South Brazil, Campinas. It is crisscrossed by railroads and automobile roads. Yet no one was trying to evangelize these towns nor the immense country districts.

"Well, God had a people in each of the towns and in each one a congregation has grown up. Just a beginning it is true but the largest churches in the world have to begin small.

"This year the Barretos field reports 57 received on profession of faith, 34 received by letter, two chapels built, and the third ready to start, 352 Sunday school scholars, and 38 teachers, and nearly two thousand dollars contributed for support of the Gospel by the converts.

"The Auxiliary in Barretos has 60 members. Many of them cannot read, and it is difficult to find officers for the circles. But they are moving on and some day some of the women we are teaching to read and write will be officers, and good ones, too."

THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN COUNCIL OF CHINA INAUGURATES FIVE YEAR REVIVAL MOVEMENT

At its Seventh Annual meeting held in Hangchow in May of this year the National Christian Council was for the first time directly representative in the main, of church bodies in China. About seventy-two percent of China's Protestants (317,000) were, of their own choice, represented therein. Among the new bodies represented were General Assembly of the Lutherans and a branch or two of the Southern Baptists, representatives of these latter being present because of action by church bodies—not missions. Missions in fact were not represented in this Council directly though about one-third of the delegates were missionaries elected mainly by their respective church bodies.

This directly representative character of the Council naturally changed somewhat the character of its membership. Heretofore its members have been mainly selected by itself and have comprised a majority of the more modern trained Chinese workers and administrators. The delegates might be roughly divided into three groups, First, administrators—perhaps about thirty percent; second, educationalist and specialists, a rather small percent and church and evangelistic workers, these latter being in the majority. Very few laymen were present in this meeting. Those present, therefore, represented the leadership of the Christian Movement as it actually is: about forty percent of them were ordained men. The proportion of modern-trained men and educationalists was smaller than heretofore and that of men of an older type of training and engaged in church work as such much larger. The presence of this latter type of leader put a new element into the Council, or rather made vocal and articulate the element which while represented in the National Conference of 1922 was not then sufficiently vocal and articulate. In short this Council meeting was able to speak for the Church as it is.

Missionaries in these national gatherings are learning the grace of listening. The major part of the speaking therein was done by Chinese. Their feeling that the Church and the Council are theirs was seen in the determination that hereafter all Council documents must go first into Chinese and be translated into whatever language is necessary afterwards. This is the proper reversal of what was for years the practice in these national gatherings.

The new constitution, adopted provisionally in this meeting, provides for a biennial meeting of which the membership will be composed of approximately sixty-five per cent directly elected by church bodies and roughly proportionate to their membership. (There are now 23 church bodies, including the Church of Christ in China and others which bring together a number of churches.) In addition, national organizations, such as the Y. M. C. A., the China Christian Educational Association, the Council on Higher Education, the medical and philanthropic work, Christian Literature Societies, the China Sunday School Union and Bible Societies, have representation not to exceed twenty per cent of the total; and with a view to securing the help of those who are about to make specific contributions and to see that all interests are represented, the Executive Committee was empowered to count members up to fifteen per cent of the total membership which is now about one-hundred and twenty-five.

The Annual Meeting was preceded by five retreat conferences, held at Mukden, Peiping, Canton, Hankow and Shanghai, and a special conference at Shanghai on Christian Literature. Doctor Mott and a number of the National Christian Council Secretaries, and more than half of the delegates had been present at one or another of these conferences.

All the regional conferences passed votes in favor of the Forward Evangelistic Movement. The Commission report defined the two fold objective of this movement as follows:

"1. The cultivation among Christians of a deeper knowledge of Christ, of a more intimate fellowship with Him, and of a more courageous following of Him in all the relationships of life.

2. The carrying out of a vigorous evangelistic program in the hope that within the next five years the number of Christians will at least be doubled."

Doctor Mott followed with a stirring speech, in which he said that large and difficult undertakings call forth "latent energies and drive one back to God." He said that he had learned "to distrust any plan that is not impossible," that we must, therefore, "gird up the loins of our minds, lay a mine of prayer, and go forward." The Council by a unanimous rising vote expressed its hearty approval of the campaign and then spent a period in prayer that its objectives might be realized.

Dr. Cheng Ching Yi is being asked to give full time to this campaign and all of the National Christian Council Secretaries and Committees are asked to organize their work around it as a central objective. Other workers are to be secured, literature prepared and translated, and a Standing Committee to be organized which shall be its inspirational center and correlating agency for the nation. It will sound a call to prayer and make every effort to enlist the whole-hearted co-operation of the churches.

The Council under the leadership of a Commission specially appointed on the subject grappled seriously with the problems of the production and distribution of Christian literature. It was voted to organize a Standing Committee to correlate the efforts of existing organizations that will have a budget sufficient to enable it to meet the need for the publication of Christian literature of wide variety. After an extended discussion the following vote was passed:

"Resolved, that the National Council place on record its conviction of the great importance and urgent need of a literature agency, under the direct control of Chinese Christian leaders, and that this organization should have complete freedom to develop its own type of service to the cause of Christian Literature in China. Such an enterprise would require hearty support from the Christian Movement in China and from Christian friends abroad; while, in order to insure success, financial provision should be made on a ten-year basis. In view of conditions in China at this hour, and the urgent demand for Christian literature, such financial assistance would have to come, for the time being, largely from abroad."

The motto of this meeting of the Council "O, Lord, revive thy church, beginning from me," was inscribed in large characters and hung over the platform of the hall where the Council met. The one hundred and thirty-eight delegates came from forty-one cities in thirteen provinces. To each delegate the five year program of evangelistic effort stands for the supreme desire and needs of the Chinese Church today.

REDEMPTION IS COMPLETE

Rev. H. H. Leach

"It is finished" (Jno. 19:30).

It is hard for the Christian to dismiss the impression that, some way or other, there is something yet more to be done or added to the redemption wrought by Christ. But there is absolutely nothing that can be or need be added to that redemption.

For, redemption, as wrought by Christ, is complete. From the cross Jesus cried out in triumph, "It is finished," and then dismissed His own spirit. In the Greek one word (teleo) is used for the whole expression, "It is finished."

The use of this strong Greek word greatly strengthens our Saviour's utterance; for its different meanings all apply here, and better enable us to see that Christ's redemption is full and finished.

(a) In Rev. 20:3, 5, 7, it is translated "fulfilled," and there denotes a certain time was ended or finished. "It is finished" means the time, the long, long expected time for redemption had come. It was, therefore, complete as to time.

(b) In Lk. 12:50, it has the sense of "realized"—"how am I straitened till it be accomplished"—realized. Also Lk. 18:31: "all things that are written by the prophets concerning the Son of man shall be accomplished"—realized. "It is finished" means, It is realized, it is fully accomplished.

(c) In Mt. 17:24, it is translated "pay." "It is finished" means "It is paid." What is paid? The full price of a full redemption.

(d) In Mt. 11:1 it is translated "made an end of." "It is finished" means "it is made an end of." What is made an end of? The believing sinners' sins, every one of them.

(e) In Lk. 2:39 it is translated "performed," (R. V., "accomplished"). It is finished" means "it is performed." What was performed? accomplished? The answer is, every requirement of God's holiness and justice.

Redemption, therefore, is complete, finished, accomplished, and that, over two thousand years ago. There is nothing, absolutely nothing that we need to do, except

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT

YOUNG PEOPLE

Sunday, Sept. 8—Standing by Our Schools: I Cor. 15:58; Phil. 3:12-14; II Tim. 2:15

C. G. A.

For the Leader

Poster suggestion: Draw a picture of a lever to raise block. Label block "community citizen"; label lever "school." Title for Schools Lifts the Community, Do you Help?

School bells are ringing again—vacation. The signal for the race toward education is out. "On your mark!—Get set! Go!" We are—and the goal is—where? "One thing I do, things which are behind, and stretching for things which are before, I press on toward the prize of the high calling of God in Christ." The school bell rings out a challenge for a challenge to race for a prize. But in order must be fit to race or we will be pushed as the school bell rings out a call to know the diligence to present thyself approved unto God, a man that needeth not to be ashamed, handling the word of truth." What does the school bell say? Are you one of the racers? Press on! Be afraid!

Loyalty to Our School

Why are we loyal to our school? Is it because the building is new or because the library is large or because others that we know about? Is it because we have a certain teacher, or because our team beat the team at Blanksville last year? No, it is something deeper than that—it is something we feel rather than see. It is the spirit of the school. The shape and size of the building have nothing to do with the spirit. We love what we love with our whole heart. The school we make it, and spirit of the school is something we can make that spirit friendly and democratic or we can make it cold and disagreeable. We can find fault, can overlook fault. One of the easiest things to do is to find fault. A very poor intellect can find fault where a great mind sees more than mere faults. If the spirit of our school is noble, we can remain loyal. We have helped to make it so.

Our School and Democracy

Whether our school is a public school or a private school, there is always a need to develop a more democratic feeling among the students. Of course it is true that "birds of a feather flock together," but what is our opinion of that? Do we try to get all the honors for our flock? Is snob is harder on the snobs than it is on the snobs because by being "snobbish" false standards are set. And false standards are not respected. The best place to learn democracy because it is to learn the value of co-operation. "It is not by counting, not his birth, country, or his color, but by learning to look for spiritual value in the main, out, cherish them." (Bracken). Being democratic, fair-minded, and we all love to be treated fairly. We apply the Golden Rule to our attitude and stand in the matter of treating fairly.

to appropriate fully to our souls its saving grace.

"Sprinkled now with blood the throne
Why beneath thy burdens groan?
On My pierced body laid,
Justice owns the ransom paid:
Bow the knee, and kiss the Son,
Come and welcome, sinner, come."

Three reasons of another kind may be suggested to prove that redemption is complete—nothing more to be done—

(a) The rending of the veil of the temple. The "veil" in the tabernacle and temple was to God, and was a symbol of Christ's body (Hb. 10:20). As God by a miracle rent the temple He proved that "the new and living way was opening up to God, was approved in the world."

(b) God's act of raising Christ from the dead. He never would have raised an imposter; neither would He have raised a man who had not finished His work.

(c) God re-seated Christ at His own right hand, the first place next to His own throne, the place of honor, power and privilege. What so complete a redemption?

Shenandoah Junction, W. Va.

FACING FOUR FOREMOST FACTS

(Address Delivered in the Anderson Auditorium, Montreat, Tuesday Night, August 1, 1929)

Dr. William F. Weir

I have taken much care to find a subject that will arrest attention, appeal to the imagination, arouse surprise and curiosity and awaken desire to learn the subject discussed. It is the responsibility of the speaker to decide on a subject and to stick to it. He should not

(Continued on page 11)

ROMANS AUXILIARY

Department of Woman's Work, Presbyterian Church, U. S.
270-277 Field Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

LOCAL PRESIDENTS OF THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

J. F. Hooper, 610 Mabry St., Selma, Ala.
Mrs. F. B. Kegley, Wytheville, Va.
Mrs. Walter Wilson, Arkadelphia, Ark.
W. G. Thompson, Jr., 3215 Obispo St., Palma
Tampa, Fla.
E. G. Abbott, 1315 Eberhart Ave., Columbus, Ga.
Mrs. H. P. Cooper, Lebanon, Ky.
Mrs. Charles L. Bodin, Box 79, M. R. A., Lake
Lena, Mo.
Mrs. J. S. Hicks, Holly Springs, Miss.
Mrs. Walter Craven, 223 Frances St., Excelsior
St. Louis, Mo.
Mrs. G. V. Patterson, Gastonia, N. C.
Mrs. Wilbur Garvin, 611 Euclid, Lawton, Oklahoma.
Mrs. Parker Connor, Edisto Island, S. C.
Mrs. J. F. Forsythe, Bethel Springs, Tenn.
Mrs. W. Culver, Texas Military Academy, San Antonio, Tex.
Mrs. C. R. Vaughan, 319 Mountain Ave., Roanoke, Va.
Mrs. J. McD. Lacy, Elkins, W. Va.

LECTURE OF MRS. DEMAREST

Mrs. M. J. Willis

Speech of Mrs. Demarest, the great granddaughter of William Booth, the founder of the Salvation Army, was delivered on the afternoon of August 15, 1929, to a large audience of women in the Anderson Auditorium at Montreat, the subject being Mary,
the Mother of Jesus. Introducing Mrs. Demarest, the speaker referred to his first meeting with her when she had thrilled with a great admirable audience. Mrs. Demarest, clad in the uniform of the Salvation Army, is attractive and reverent in speech and manner.
Her delicate features and expression, there was something suggestive of the Madonna.

The speaker wondered if those who reject the Christ who realized what that denial implies. It accordingly blasphemous falsehood, impugns the character and casts doubt on the sincerity of the evangelist Luke. We might as well reject the resurrection and of the doctrine of the resurrection.

Against the worship of Mary, we have argued in the other direction. Why should we worship the life of Mary as well as that of Peter,
the Lord, or of the others who forsook

The Spirit passed over many women more brilliant than Mary and chose this to be the mother of His Son.

The nearest divided women into two classes;
those who follow Eve and those who follow Mary.
The one of intellect and boldly questioned the will of God. She was independent of God and and as well. She was regardless of condition. The modern woman follows Eve, and her license. A devil came to Eve; an angel to Mary. Mary is depicted as possessing the qualities that produced in her a willingness to sacrifice, to be unselfish, to be wisely at last to be gloriously satisfied. Traveling through the narrative of the four gospels, the speaker traced the contacts of Mary with Christ's ministry, the grandeur of the annunciation and the fulfillment of the Magnificat, down through the life of youthful hopes and plans and the fulfillment of "these things," the speaker gave only proofs of Mary's heroic self-conquering obedience to God's will but interspersed her remarks with running comments of the present-day conditions. In all our frenzy of life, can any university of today produce a more exquisite and finished poem than the Magnificat of Jesus and all it involved to the mother who was touched upon with delicate touches. The hard journey to Bethlehem at the prayer of Simeon in the temple, the journey to Egypt and the tender experience of the "silent years" were brought vividly before the hearts. From Mary's wise silence, the speaker paid her respects to women who talk too much, ideas sifting through weak brains. During the years, Mary knew the shadow of the cross over her and her Son. Many a time too, her heart pierced by cruel words from her own people, by some of the uncomprehended dealings of herself with her, such as the question, "Who is my mother?" But faith kept her strong and sweet.

The sad story of the arrest, the betrayal,
the crucifixion, that faith kept in her belief that she was within the plan of God.
Her joy and satisfaction began when on Friday
she held against her bosom the lifeless head and poured out her love and grief. Then the breaking of the dawn after a fearful night, the ecstasy of the resurrection, the glory of the rising and growing, ever widening joy of the morning. Before her triumphant joy, she understood, but she had stood. Shall other women love Him, try to measure up to His requirement of the nearest and tenderest relation to Him, shall they do the will of his Father? An apt and solemn, left the auditorium after the speaker's address.

WHAT IS CHRISTIAN SOCIAL SERVICE?

In "The Southern Presbyterian Pulpit," a new book of sermons edited by Dr. Charles Haddon Nabers, Dr. William Crowe, of St. Louis, says: "I have heard it said that service makes the whole world of religions kin; it does not. I have heard that service is the only judgment test; it is not. There is a Christian service and service that is not Christian. 'If ye love me' determines the character of all true benevolence.
'Though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor,' I have utterly failed in life's great mission, unless my heart is moved thereto by loyalty to Christ. 'What shall I do with this hungry man?' is the question that frets the secular social economist. 'What shall I do with Christ?' is the question that should move the heart of the Christian as he looks into the face of the hungry man. . . . If my objective is merely the person in need, then my mind is not the mind of a true follower of my Lord. It is true indeed that the recipient of my gift may be helped at least for the time. But the mere needs of mankind do not develop in my soul a sustained conviction of the essential value of sacrifice. Giving merely for the relief of the poor is not the character of benevolence that is worthy of a child of God."

GIRLS' PROBLEMS

There is a very fine book just off the press that parents and workers with young people will with profit read, entitled "Girls' Problems of Today" by Mother Ruth. This book contains a number of choice letters answered by this godly woman in the Sunday School Times. The first of these letters and its answer is as follows:

Dear Mother Ruth: Being a college girl you might naturally expect me to have problems of some sort, but there is one thing in particular about which I would like advice. It is about the dance question. It is my desire to do the right thing, no matter what it may cost me.

My sister and I are very active in our church work, so we go home from college over the week-ends. The church people watch our lives very closely, and as soon as we do something some one thinks we ought not to do, we are criticized dreadfully. So it is up to us to guard our lives and actions every day.

At nearly every college function the students dance.
Perhaps I have been following the crowd too much, because I go quite a lot and have had the opportunity of attending many of these functions, and I have always danced, too. At the time I think I am getting real enjoyment out of it, but when I dance at home I feel condemned, because I think of the influence I might be having on others. Again, when I ask myself if I am honoring my Lord in doing it, surely I cannot answer, "Yes."

Perhaps God is telling me such things are wrong, yet I am trying to persuade myself to think there is no harm in them.

I realize more and more the importance of my task as a Sunday School teacher and as a professing Christian, and that somehow I ought to be different from the people of the world. Am I right?

College Girl.

Answer

My Dear College Girl:

The moment the Devil gets you to argue a point with him you may just as well settle it against him, and let him know that as for you, you "will serve Jehovah." If you are a Christian who will do as you say you want to do, "the right thing," no matter what it costs, then take your stand on the Lord's side.

Never in the world's history has the dance been so impure, so full of lust, and so much the Devil's weapon as today. It thrives and holds more tenaciously in high places, as well as in the haunts of wickedness.
If for no other reason than for its associations in low places, we should be opposing to it. Its very influence is degrading, and its companions are the wine cup, the theatre and cards.

You speak of condemnation in one place (home) and not at college. In the former you are in an atmosphere more closely allied with God, and in the latter more worldly. Does this not prove to you that you are not living true to God? If it is right in God's sight to dance, why not everywhere, anywhere, and with anybody?

It is impossible to lead the highest Christian life today without its costing something. Are you willing for the sake of a few hours of physical pleasure to separate yourself from God, and your strongest influence for Him?

Why not do as He wants you to do, and let Him have the right of way, and come out and be separate from the unclean thing (2 Cor. 6:17)? Your body is the temple for the indwelling Holy Spirit, and God is desiring to lead you away from this worldliness, and wants you for Himself in power and purity. Do not rob God of the best that is in you, but let Him use you in His work. This He cannot do unless you are entirely in His hands.

Mother Ruth.

—Memphis Presbytery Messenger.

ROMANS WITH MRS. RUSSELL

It was a privilege to belong to that noble band of Romans at the Auxiliary Training School, Massanetta, Va., 1929. Under Mrs. Russell's guidance, the class was given a deeper insight into the truths and beauties of that Epistle than was ever dreamed of before.
It was no longer a dry, doctrinal book, but a living, thrilling letter from the great Apostle to his unknown (most of them) followers in Rome. Mrs. Russell's first lesson was introductory, giving the author, date, characteristics of the Epistle, reasons for study, origin of the Church at Rome, Theme. Rome was the representative of power—Romans is the dynamics of the Gospel. After stating the theme, "Justification by Faith" (chap. 1:16, 17), the Apostle goes on to show:

1. The need of the gift of God's righteousness, and proves that all—Jews and Gentiles, privileged and underprivileged—are guilty and deserving of God's wrath (chap. 1:18-3:20).

2. The nature of the gift (chap. 3:21-4:25).

3. The results of the gift (chap. 6:8).

4. The relation of Jew to Gentile, the vindication of God's method (chap. 9-11).

5. The result (effect) of the gift in relation to others (chap. 12-15:1-13).

6. The conclusion and doxology (15:14-16).

This was Mrs. Russell's outline, and clearly, forcefully, step by step, she made vivid the Apostle's argument. The class at Massanetta was large as usual, a score signing up for "Credits," but the majority "listening in." This 1929 Roman class was unique. One member of the class, Mrs. W. J. Buchanan, Charlottesville, Va., gave a "reading" one afternoon, and recited verbatim the first twelve chapters of Romans. At the last session of the class, the efficient secretary, Miss Laura Campbell, Charlestown, W. Va., fired anew with Romans, and Mrs. Russell's presentation of it read the following original thesis:

"Amicae, Romanae, et Cives, audite me! Venimus ad pulchram Massanettam, non togatae sed cinctae humilitate, ut hanc difficillimam epistulam Pauli ad Romanos—et cetera—explorarem. Attigimus fastis, non fide, praemium. Attigimus factis, non fide, praemium. Nunc libellis refertis et mentibus fatigatis discedimus, beatae tamen quod in hoc loco fuimus Valete, amati magistril Valete, carae amicae! Vale, pulchra Massanetta! Proximo anno, omnes revertemur."

Truly Mrs. Russell's class in Romans at Massanetta was a memorable one!

Romans—we studied it,
O—how we poured over it!
Morning, noon, and midnight,
And many hours we read it:
"Never give up, Romans,"
Said 22 Credit ones!

Mary C. Stribling, Secretary,
Christian Community Service,
Virginia Synodical.

BON AQUA

The first Synodical Training School for Auxiliary Workers was held at Bon Aqua August 7-14th. This is a new endeavor to equip our leaders more adequately for the great work we are trying to do. Everyone chosen for leadership feels her utter inability and need of knowledge. This training school will help in a large way to meet that need.

The outstanding leaders on the faculty were: Mrs.
Poindexter of Chattanooga, who taught the Bible;
Mrs. Craven, from Missouri, "Methods"; Mrs. H. L.
Cockerham, a home missionary from Blackey, Ky., taught Missions, and Mrs. T. B. Roddy conducted the Vacation Bible School for children who accompany their mothers.

Bon Aqua is located near Dickson, Tenn., and was an ideal place for a delightful conference.

LORD OF THE FAR HORIZONS

Bliss Carmen

Lord of the far horizons,
Give us the eyes to see
Over the verge of the sundown
The beauty that is to be.
Give us the skill to fashion
The task of Thy command,
Eager to follow the pattern
We may not understand.

Master of ancient wisdom
And the lore lost long ago,
Inspire our foolish reason
With the faith to seek and know,
When the skein of truth is tangled,
And the lead of sense is blind,
Foster the fire to lighten
Our unilluminated mind.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Rev. Ernest Trice Thompson, D.D.

Lesson for September 8

NEHEMIAH REBUILDING THE WALL OF JERUSALEM

Neh. 2:1-7:4. Print 4:6, 15-21

As we have seen in our previous lessons the first group of Jews returned from Babylonia into Palestine in the year 537 B. C., led thither by Zerubbabel and Jeshua. They were about 50,000 in all. They began again their national worship, and finally after many hindrances and much delay rebuilt the temple.

Nonetheless the colony did not prosper. There was little or no increase of population. The majority of the people found it very difficult to make a living. The rich were taking advantage of the poor. The people as a whole were growing discouraged. They were intermarrying with the Gentiles, and were beginning to abandon the services of Jehovah, not as formerly for idolatry, but in pure weariness.

This was the situation when Ezra the scribe led a second group of colonists, about 8,000 in all, into the promised land. It was in the year 458, approximately 80 years after the previous return. Ezra as a young man had set his heart to seek the law of Jehovah, and to do it, and to teach in Israel statutes and ordinances. He came into Palestine clothed with plenary powers, determined to make the law of Moses the actual law of the land. The first abuse that came to his attention had to do with many intermarriages between the Jews and the Gentiles. When Ezra realized what the situation was he was horrified. He sat down on the ground and plucked out his hair and wept. (Ez. 9:3, 10:1). The people were conscious stricken, and under Ezra's insistence finally sent their heathen wives away. There the book of Ezra ends, and we have no further news of him or of the Jewish colony for 13 years.

We judge, however, from what we find in the Book of Nehemiah that there was a reaction against Ezra, and that he was unable to carry his reform program any further. Perhaps as time went on the people resented the way in which Ezra had induced them to break up their homes. It seems indeed that under Ezra's leadership they had begun to rebuild the walls of the city. No city in those days we must remember had any importance or any security unless it did have walls. The Samaritans, however, sent representations to Artaxerxes reminding him of the trouble that Jerusalem as a walled city had given his predecessors, and Artaxerxes commanded that the work be stopped (Ezra 4:7-23, which almost certainly belongs here). From Ezra 4:23 and Neh. 1:3 it seems that Artaxerxes' decree of prohibition was followed up by hostile action on the part of the enemies of the Jews. They swept down on the city and demolished its walls (so far as built) and destroyed its gates. The colony was in very desperate plight indeed.

This was the situation when Nehemiah appeared on the scene. He is the last great character in Old Testament history, and with him the history of the Old Testament very fitly closes. Read Neh. 1:1-7:4 just for the pure thrill of the story. How do you estimate the character of Nehemiah? We will note

I. His Preparation for the Work—1:1-2:30

Nehemiah was a wealthy and influential Jew. He was one of the cup-bearers of the King. We do not know just what sort of office this was, but it is clear enough that it was a post of dignity and near to the king. In those days when the kings, especially the Persian kings, held themselves aloof from the people, those who had the right of continual access to the king held positions not only of prestige but also of power. In this position Nehemiah would almost certainly be acquainted with Ezra's project of rebuilding the walls and with the fact of Artaxerxes having prohibited it. Naturally, therefore, when Hanani, one of his kinsmen returned from Jerusalem, Nehemiah inquired of him and his company about the real condition of the city. They told him—it was in Shushan, the winter capital of the Persian Empire, the month of December: "The remnant that are left of the captivity there in the province are in great affliction and reproach: the wall of Jerusalem also is broken down, and the gates thereof are burned with fire." When Nehemiah heard the news he was plunged into deep grief, which continued for days. He realized the critical position of the colony, and the necessity of doing something at once. Ezra's religious zeal was not enough, the history of the last thirteen years had showed that—there was need now for practical wisdom and efficiency. It is interesting to note how Nehemiah prepares himself to carry out the work which he sees must be done.

1. He fasted—a common religious exercise of that day—and then prayed unto the God of heaven 1:4-11. The prayer as recorded in 1:5-11 is almost a model prayer, and would repay careful study if we had the space. Note (1) the invocation, verse 5; (2) the confession of his own sins and the sins of his people, verses 6-7; (3) the pleading of the promise, verses 8-9; (4) the petition for God's blessing, verses 10-11. We might note here that Nehemiah is one of the most practical and efficient men that we meet in the Bible, that we meet in history, yet at the same time one of the most pious men. He relies constantly on prayer, and yet does not attempt to make prayer a substitute for thought or for action. So here he does not cast the whole burden on God. He prays rather that God will bless him as he goes about the Lord's work.

2. He made his request to the king, 2:1-8. To understand Nehemiah's trepidation, and the courage of the man, we must remember here that the Persians kings were absolute autocrats, with the power of life and death in their hands, and did not take kindly to those who appeared to cross their wills. Artaxerxes was the man who had commanded that the work on the walls be stopped. He had committed himself to that policy for the good of the state. It was dangerous for Nehemiah, himself a Jew, to ask him to reverse that policy, and no one knew it better than Nehemiah. Finally one day in April he took his courage in his hands. Hitherto he had hidden his great sorrow, for it was on of the main requirements of those who served the king that they show to him always a cheerful countenance. There was to be no sadness in the presence of the king. But this day he showed his real feelings. Fortunately the king was kindly disposed. He asked Nehemiah the cause of his sorrow. And he, with his heart beating fast, and after a quick ejaculatory prayer, made his request, that he be allowed to go to Jerusalem and rebuild the walls of the city. Artaxerxes granted him the request, and seemingly more than the request. He made him provincial governor, and sent him to Jerusalem with an armed escort.

3. He acquainted himself with the need, 2:9-16. Nehemiah realized the necessity of proceeding carefully, yet expeditiously. His very coming had put the enemies of the Jews on their guard. Three of their leaders are mentioned in this chapter. Sanballat was the leader of the Samaritan opposition. Recent discoveries indicate that he was the Governor of Samaria. In addition his daughter had married the son of the High Priest (13:28), and he had influential supporters among the Jews. Tobiah was an Ammonite who had become a worshipper of Jehovah according to the Samaritan rites. The title 'servant' probably means that he was a Persian official, perhaps the secretary of Sanballat. Geshem was a chief of one of the Arabian tribes. His co-operation with the others would seem to indicate that all the neighboring peoples were uniting against the Jews. In order that they might not suspect his real purpose Nehemiah waited for three days, and then secretly, and alone, by night went out and surveyed the broken city, and the charred gates.

4. He aroused the united interest of the people, 2:17-20. As soon as Nehemiah had formulated his plans he called together all the leaders of the people, and laid the project before them. He reminded them of the need; he invited them to co-operate with him in the work, 'let us,' he said; he appealed to their self-respect, 'that we be no more a reproach'; notice how he identifies himself with them, not that you be no longer a reproach, 'but 'we'; he encouraged them with the reminder that God's blessing was upon him, and then by telling them how the king had reversed his decision, and how they had his permission to proceed. The people were enthusiastic: "Let us rise up and build," they said. When their enemies heard of it they tried what the enemies of every good work try first. They ridiculed the work, they disparaged it, they poured cold water upon it—they misrepresented the leaders' motives. Then Nehemiah replied with one of those great sayings with which the book is crowded: The God of heaven he will prosper us: therefore, we his servants, will arise and build.

II. His Distribution of the Work—3:1-32

At first glance this chapter does not appear so interesting to the reader. But it has a greater fascination than first appears. As Chas. Foster Kent says: The plan of operation described in this chapter "illustrates the rare tact and executive ability of Nehemiah. Realizing that if the work was to be effective the entire wall must be rebuilt at once and that to accomplish this all the energies of the community must be enlisted, he threw the responsibility upon the different groups in the community, and appealed to the spirit of mutual emulation and personal interest as well as to the patriotism of the political body as a whole. To this end he divided the work into different sections (44 in all). The rebuilding of the Sheep Gate at the North of the temple area where the animals for sacrifice were led into the city he intrusted to the priests (they would take a special interest in that part of the work). The men of Jericho were held responsible for the building of the protecting tower on the North of the city. To prominent nobles and their families were assigned section of the wall (and family pride would assure that the work was well done). Certain tribes also assumed the responsibility of completing other divisions of the work. Even the more important guilds as eg. that of the goldsmiths were represented in the distribution. Many private individuals were allowed to repair the wall opposite their own house (and self interest would spur them on). In this way the wrangling lazy community was suddenly transformed into an intensely active working body. It is reported that of all the groups represented the nobles from Tekoa alone did not faithfully discharge the task laid upon them by Nehemiah." There are always some that shirk. We wonder if that was the place where the wall gave way when the city was next attacked. On the other hand some worked who were under no restraint to work, people who came in voluntarily from a distance (3:7), the aristocratic daughters of Shallum. And some, there are always some, bless the Lord, did do what was expected of them (3:5, 27). In a word responsible, and a work that was fitted to bring out the best that there was in him, yet he had all worked together for the common good. And that is the successful co-operative work, in the church of

III. His Difficulties in the Work—4:1-23

This is one of the most interesting sections of the book and one of the most valuable, it is so true to nature, and illustrates so well the kind of difficulties men who carry on great works still meet, and is such an inspiring character. We do not have space to describe it as we would like, but after all it is the story itself, and you will get the full force of it as you read it understandingly from the note briefly the kinds of difficulty that Nehemiah met and how he faced them.

1. Ridicule, 4:1-6. Nothing is harder to stand in the early stages of a work, than ridicule and derision. Sanballat and Tobiah waxed merry at the Jews. But Nehemiah prayed—his prayer shows that of his enemies had gotten under his skin a bit. The kind of prayer that Jesus would have prayed for the wall went on up, because the people had no work. Ridicule is not very effective against a spirit.

2. Danger, fear, and discouragement, 4:7-23. Having failed, the Samaritans and their allies for sterner measures. Their menace hung over the Jews. And then as always when danger looms some are discouraged, and threatened to quit (10); to maintain they were subjected to pressure from their enemies. Note how Nehemiah met the crisis. First, as always, he went to God in prayer. That is a great source of strength to any man. Then he set a watch over against the city day and night (9). Then he armed the people against himself to meet any emergency that might arise. Then he encouraged the people, and put new life into them—Remember the Lord . . . and fight. When the crisis was past work was resumed. Nehemiah kept his weapon ready at hand. At night he was not allowed to leave the city. Nehemiah divided his work into two companies, the one to work during the day who were exhausted in the work, and the other to work constantly in arms. Day nor night neither the Jews nor the Samaritans laid them aside, while the rest of the day from sunrise to darkness. Orders were also issued to the people rally to repulse the enemy at any point where the alarm was sounded by the trumpeter, so that he left the side of Nehemiah. And so the work went on.

3. Selfishness and profiteering, chapter 5. The people had given up the cultivation of their land to labor on the walls. Now they complained that their brethren were turning the situation to their own financial gain. They who were poor were laboring for the walls for nothing, they had no more money to buy themselves food. There was plenty of food in the land, but it was in the hands of the profiteers. 2nd. Some of the rich who had mortgaged their lands when they could not repay the rich were taking advantage. 3rd. Some of them had borrowed money to pay taxes, and here, too, the rich were foreclosing on the lands. Some had even been forced to sell their children into slavery. Human nature it seems is the same in all ages. We always have to reckon with the profiteers. Nehemiah met the situation promptly. He forced the profiteers with gloves off. He forced them to return the land which they had taken, and to leave off their usurious rates. Incidentally it appears that Nehemiah was not without pay, he had refused to draw his salary, but he refused to use his portion to enrich himself by speculation as he might easily have done, and was supporting a large number of Jews at his own expense.

4. Intrigue without, treachery within, 6:1-14. These are mentioned here. (1) A plot to decoy Nehemiah from the side of the walls. Evidently his enemies planned to kill him. Four times the invitation was extended to him in an open letter, which they hoped would lead to the parley. Nehemiah replied: I am doing a great work so that I cannot come down. (2) A plot to discredit Nehemiah's character. Shemiah, supposed to be a pious man, told him that he had a direct word from God that he was in immediate danger, and that he was to take refuge in the temple. It was against the law for a layman to enter the temple; to have done so would have laid him open to a charge of sacrilege and also to a charge of needless cowardice. He replied: Should such a man as I flee? And who is there that being such as I am, should go into the temple to save his life? I will not give up my method of discrediting a man's character, by either fair or by foul, is an old one, and a modern one. How the enemies of Bishop Cannon are proceeding.

IV. His Completion of the Work—6:17-19

We have the simple statement that in spite of all the above difficulties the work was completed in 52 days. That was truly a remarkable achievement. The Jews were told how Nehemiah took prompt measures to protect the city; the gates were not to be opened till the sun was well up, a system of sentry was organized; the city was put in charge of two companies which could be trusted. Then Nehemiah was ready for the second great step. The first item was—well worked the next week.

There is so much about this lesson that

(Continued on page 10)

LDREN

'S CHERRY PIE

was delicious pie, and the that Teddy himself had ce it. Every cherry that l been stoned by his chub- ; and, when the top crust illy laid in place, his moth- l him to crimp the edges efore putting it in the big half hour Teddy hovered for the moment when pronounce the pie "done;" did come out of the oven, crust baked to a golden ightful little crimson trick- capping from the tiny holes top, Teddy thought there another so tempting.

re will be enough to go , somewhat anxiously. "It h it isn't as big as when e oven."

ughed as she placed it on ol and told him that she etite had grown, and that danger of his not getting s good for him.

d slowly out on the ve- e down on the top step. idn't feel like going very pie. He wondered if his , who was coming to din- was fond of cherry pie. was just getting over the ight not have a very big dered, too, if it would be to have two pieces, and t perhaps he would rather piece and not be quite so What was that noise? Sup- should get into the larder? had better go and see.

o you suppose made him the door so softly, and e kitchen floor in such a range because Teddy was use was usually marked little boy, and his way ang and thumps. Perhaps ted to surprise pussy. Do at was the reason? But ere, and the pie was safe er had left it. It certainly l pie. How well he had rust—almost as well as stop! there was a place s were not quite together. er would like to have the ith other people at dinner ; press them closed. But meet. Perhaps there were ries in it! What should Didn't something whisper thing to do was to hurry larder, quick? But sud- hand reached out and a appeared into the pie, and t two rosy cherries came ere popped into a little as themselves. One, two, ent in before Teddy felt s would meet, and then hed them together and th rather a guilty feeling n forgotten, however, in of the arrival of his aunt and it was not till dinner n that he began to think e done.

was brought in, he some- idn't look quite so tempt- that guilty feeling at his d suddenly he jumped. e heard his mother say He could hardly believe e had distinctly heard y had a finger in this e was looking at him oh, how dreadful it was! e grew scarlet, and sliding air, before anyone could ut of the room and up bedroom where he hid he cool pillow, wishing ave to take it out again. sh found out? Did mother ? And then to tell it at Lizzie and Dorothy! could never look them (To be colored with paints or crayons.

Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color).

BROWN-haired Teddy is pouring some nice PURPLE grape-juice into YELLOW-haired Susie May's BLUE paper cup. YELLOW-haired Billy is passing his BLUE paper cup for some, too.

Teddy is giving the picnic and his Mother fixed everything for him. The paper tablecloth has a BLUE border and the plates all have BLUE edges.

There are little GREEN lettuce salads with a RED tomato on each plate and a heap of tasty BROWN-bread sandwiches. Susie May is eating one. Teddy wears a white blouse with YELLOW collar, cuffs and trousers. His necktie is RED. The thermos bottle is GREEN.

Susie May wears a lovely frock with big PINK (use RED lightly) flowers with GREEN leaves printed all over it. Her socks and slippers are PINK, too.

Billy has on a pair of ORANGE (use RED and YELLOW mixed) color overalls. His shirt is light PURPLE.

Dolly has BROWN hair and she wears a RED and white checked dress. The bow on her head is RED.

They had the picnic on the long GREEN lawn right near an apple tree. You can see some of the RED apples hanging among the bright GREEN leaves of the apple tree. There are a few RED apples in the grass.

The YELLOW barn has a RED roof and GREEN door and window. The lightning-rod has a YELLOW ball on it.

All the children have PINK cheeks and RED lips.

Paint the border of this picture ORANGE color and the lettering GREEN.

When his mother came up to find him, she found a very much ashamed little boy, who, however, bravely told her the whole story, and what do you suppose his mother did? Why, she laughed and laughed at first—she couldn't help it—and then she told him that it was his own little guilty conscience that had put such a meaning into her words, and that she had only meant that he had helped her to make the pie. And then, of course, she forgave him, as mothers always do when little boys are really sorry; but Teddy always remembers now, whenever he hears those words again, how frightened of nothing a bad deed may make a boy. —The Messenger for the Children.

SURPRISE LETTER

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl eleven years old. I go to Sunday School to the Mark's Creek Presbyterian Church. My Sunday School teacher's name is Miss Nancy B. McRae. Our pastor's name is Rev. Arthur T. Taylor. I like him fine. I will be in the seventh grade when school starts again. My school teacher's names are Miss Loyce Little and Miss Nancy B. McRae. I like them both fine. Please print my letter for I want to surprise my father and mother.

Your little friend,
Mary Elizabeth Campbell.
Hamlet, N. C.

TWELVE BEGINNINGS FOR THANKSGIVING DINNER

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl eight years old. I will be in the third grade next term.

We have twelve little turkeys. I have one little sister five years old. Please print my letter as I want to surprise my Aunt Louise.

Your friend,
Sarah Ruth Currie.

Jackson Springs, N. C.

PUZZLE CORNER

Hidden Insects

1. Next Monday Betty will be eight years old.
2. Bring Nat with you.
3. Either Andrew or Max will fetch you from the party.
4. Do you think yellow as pretty as pink?
5. Dan telephoned he will not be home for dinner.

The letters beheaded arranged in order form the name of a month.

Behead vaporized water and leave an unorganized group.

Behead a happening and leave an opening.

Behead what goeth before a fall and leave a mode of transportation.

Behead a story and leave a beverage.

Behead all of us and leave an adverb. Behead an addition and leave native metal.

Behead uncovered and leave part of the verb "to be."

Behead paradise and leave an animal's lair.

Behead to grasp and leave every one.

Junior Cross-Word Puzzle

1		2	3	4	5
		6
7	8			9
10			11
12			13
			14
15

Horizontal

- 1—Winter sport
- 6—Sport enthusiast
- 7—Listen
- 9—Pronoun
- 10—An implement for moving a boat
- 11—Extinct bird of New Zealand
- 12—Lieutenant (abbr.)
- 13—Part of body (pl.)
- 14—A vegetable
- 15—Climbing rose

Vertical

- 1—A pupil
- 2—At a distance
- 3—A sailor
- 4—Preposition
- 5—Larger
- 8—Consume
- 9—A garden tool
- 11—A repast (abbr.)
- 13—A month (abbr.)
- 14—Postmaster (abbr.)

CHURCH NEWS

REV. WM. CAMPBELL HAGAN

Rev. Wm. Campbell Hagan died at his home in Elysian Fields, Texas, on August 10, 1929, following a long illness. He was born at Christiansburg, Va., July 28, 1855, and has many friends in that state and the Carolinas who will hear with sorrow of his death.

LAST MEETING MONTREAT BOARD

The Board of Directors of the Mountain Retreat Association held their last meeting August 22, before the closing of the Conferences of this season. They received with genuine satisfaction the rendition of the Program for each of the Conferences. The commendations heard on all sides gave peculiar pleasure to the members present. The various speakers were universally acceptable to the large audiences. The spacious Auditorium was on a few occasions well nigh filled and the daily attendance was highly gratifying. The possibilities of the next season, the season of 1930, were discussed with interest.

Before the closing of this final meeting of the Board for the season of 1929, the following resolutions were read and unanimously adopted:

"The Board of Directors of the Mountain Retreat Association desire to put on record their sense of obligation to Rev. Dr. R. C. Anderson for the wonderful contribution he has made to the Church and the Kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ in the management of the affairs of the Association and the exhibition of his extraordinary business talent in the constructive work he has done to build up and strengthen this arm of the aggressive work of our Church. We have witnessed with peculiar interest and appreciation his triumph in the building of our splendid Auditorium which is so greatly admired by all; and now we further see his wisdom and skill even more conspicuously and beautifully displayed in the Assembly Inn. It is admired by every visitor and is a comfort and joy to every guest of the Hotel. There is nothing like it in all the land.

We, therefore, tender to Dr. Anderson our grateful appreciation of his labors for us and for the Church. We pray that God will spare his life and he may further execute the plans he has for a greater Montreat."

Rev. Dr. Alexander Sprunt was requested to send a copy of this action of the Board of Directors to our Church papers, with our request that it be published.

NORTH CAROLINA

Orange Presbytery—The three hundred and nineteenth stated session of Orange Presbytery will be held in the Bessemer Presbyterian Church, Greensboro, N. C., and will open September 18th, at 11 a. m. Charles P. Coble, S. C.

Winston-Salem Presbytery will meet in the Lansing Presbyterian Church Tuesday, September 10, at 7:30 p. m. E. P. Bradley, S. C.

Mt. Gilead—Upon their return from a vacation of three weeks, the pastor, Rev. J. W. Stork and family, were greeted at the manse by the members of the Auxiliary and their husbands. A sumptuous dinner was on the table and the pantry well stocked, the result of a generous pounding.

Under the pastor's plate was a three-page letter in verse entitled "Welcome Home," for each of these evidences of love and appreciation each member of the family are deeply grateful.

Morehead City and Wildwood Churches — The commission appointed by Wilmington Presbytery to ordain Mr. Frank S. Johnston, who recently graduated from the Union Theological Seminary, as pastor of Morehead City and Wildwood Presbyterian Churches, met in Morehead City on Sunday, June 30th, at 11 a. m. Rev. J. R. Phipps presided and propounded the constitutional questions. Rev. P. L. Clark preached the sermon. Rev. R. C. Clontz made the ordination prayer and delivered the charge to the pastor. Ruling Elder C. S. Clark delivered a charge to the congregation.

Other members of the commission were: Ruling Elders W. D. McCaig, Durham Grady, and Rev. F. L. Goodman.

The commission met in the Wildwood Presbyterian Church on Sunday, July 7th. Rev. R. C. Clontz presided and propounded the constitutional questions. Rev. F. L. Goodman preached the sermon, following which Rev. J. R. Phipps charged the pastor and Ruling Elder Durham Grady charged the congregation.

This is a new group in the Wilmington Presbytery, consisting of the two above churches and Rev. Mr. Johnston begins his pastorate under the most favorable circumstances.

Long Creek—Home-coming day was observed at historic old Long Creek Church, in Gaston County, on the fourth Sabbath in July.

The large congregation that filled to overflowing

the church building included people from all of the surrounding towns and from several counties in the state, while South Carolina, Florida, and Virginia were well represented.

At 11 o'clock there was a sermon followed by communion.

Rev. R. J. McIlwaine, of Monroe, a former pastor preached the sermon. He was assisted in the services by Rev. J. E. Berryhill of Union Church, also a former pastor and by Rev. Coyte Hunter, present pastor.

After a bountiful picnic dinner there was an afternoon service when the former pastors and many former members spoke of the happy years they had spent in old Long Creek, and what it had meant to them and how happy they were to be present again.

Dr. McElroy, pastor at Kings Mountain, was present in the afternoon and spoke on the influence of the country church and what it means to the church at large.

The reunion of families and friends of pastors and people made it a day of joy to all present.

One way in which this spirit of gladness was manifested, was in the hearty congregational singing of old familiar hymns.

One feature of the music that was especially enjoyed by all, was a solo at each service, by Billy Arthur of Charlotte, a nephew of the pastor.

Fifth Creek—We have just closed a fine meeting in this church in which the pastor was assisted by Rev. Walter H. Goodman, pastor of the church at Kannapolis. Our people were delighted with the preaching and personality of Mr. Goodman. Great interest was shown from the beginning, and there were three additions on confession.

Presbyterian Orphans' Home, Barium Springs—The pulpit at Little Joe's Church was filled last Sunday by Rev. H. A. Knox, who preached at both morning and night services. Mr. Knox is from Liberty, S. C., and happened to be visiting relatives here. We were delighted to have him. He is friend of our pastor, Rev. W. C. Brown and Mr. Jos. B. Johnston; he is also very much interested in the work here at Barium. We hope he will make frequent visits to the home.

Belsalem—On Sunday, August 18th, Dr. J. M. Clark, of Statesville, N. C., closed an eight days' meeting in Belsalem Church in Fayetteville Presbytery. This meeting was largely attended by the people of that congregation and community, and also by many from many distant communities. As results of the meeting there were a few conversions and additions to the church, but the greatest result was in the church itself. A goodly number of church members professed reconsecration for better service to God and their church. The church has just called a new pastor who will enter upon his work in a few days, and it is confidently believed that the revival in the church has prepared the way for the new pastor to do a successful work in that old and historic church.

Raleigh—On August 11th the First Vanguard Church organized a mission Sunday school with enrollment of 49 and 18 visitors. The school is located some three miles south of Raleigh, in the Buffalo Grove. Much interest and enthusiasm is manifested and it is hoped that a permanent work can be established.

The organization came about in this way: About three months ago the pastor, Rev. C. J. Hollingsworth was called to the home of Mr. Thomas J. Buffalo, age 73, who had been sick for quite a long time. While there he made a profession of faith and later the session went to his home and received him into the church. He was never able to attend church and died about two months after accepting Christ.

He realized that he had wasted his life, so he wanted to do something for the Lord. So it was his earnest desire that a Sunday School be organized. The school was formed after his death in an old store which he owned. The officers and teachers from the First Vanguard have charge of the Sunday School each Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. It will be known as the Buffalo Vanguard.

As soon as a suitable tent can be secured the pastor will hold an evangelistic meeting at this point.

Hopewell—When Dr. and Mrs. R. S. Burwell lived in the manse here it was their earnest wish to see a Daily Vacation Bible School at Hopewell. But the congregation occupies a territory about 10 miles each way, and transportation was too great a problem.

However, we have now had our first experience with a school, and it has been a fine success. August 4-16, were the dates, Misses Lucile Curry and Marie Brogdon were the missionaries, and ten of our ladies, led by Miss Ava Parks, were the workers.

We had said an enrollment of twenty would be counted a success. We opened with 81 and had finally 109, with an average attendance of 90. Of these 79 received certificates for attendance and work done.

A committee of elders raised the funds for expenses, $27.00, and a free-will offering of $20 was made for the Presbytery's committee.

Three hundred and eighty-four persons attended the closing exercises. Our school was of the type, no handcraft. Hopewell was well represented. The cost per pupil enrolled was less than 25 cents.

The Rev. Robt. M. Stinson, D.D., of Tennessee, son of a pastor at Hopewell, preached a week ending August 18. The attendance was excellent throughout.

Rev. Wm. Baker, another Hopewell pastor for us August 11, and pleased and blessed.

Rev. Sam Moore, D.D., a special favor expected to fill the pulpit August 25, and on the Sabbath, Miss Minnie Alexander, missionary from India, is expected to testify to her experiences there. Not long ago we heard a sermon from Rev. D. Ralph Freeman of South Carolina, our regular pulpit supply, Rev. C. W. Stinson being absent that day.

Hopewell has a nice manse with conveniences, and only needs a pastor to live in. The field is an inviting one. The Young People's Society, Women's Auxiliary, and Sunday School are active. The organized Bible class has a room recently equipped with Bible, maps, and pictures.

Hamlet—During the month's vacation of R. Walker, D.D., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Hamlet, the regular services Sunday have been under the auspices of The Men-of-the-Mountain, Richmond county, with exception of the first Sunday. On the first Sunday the congregation pledged to hear Rev. James T. Riddervold, who preached splendid sermons morning and night. On the second Sunday, the pulpit was filled by Mr. C. C. Coppedge, an elder of the Rockingham Presbytery, who is a son of the late Dr. W. W. Coppedge. He acquitted himself like a veteran and delivered an interesting and helpful message to a well filled church. On the third Sunday, Mr. J. H. McRae, of the Ellerbe Church delivered the address and the first Sunday Professor D. B. Smith, principal of the school was the speaker furnished by the Church of Richmond County. All of these services were enjoyed by a goodly number of the congregation of this church.

After spending two weeks of his vacation attending the various conferences, Rev. Lyn D.D., and his family spent the remainder of August at his ancestral home in Rogersville. It was their delight to be with Dr. Walker on Saturday, 24th, when this venerable and well loved man celebrated his ninety-eighth (98th) birthday. Walker and his family will return to Hamlet on the 1st, when he will resume his activities as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church here.

Concord Presbytery—At a called meeting at Statesville, August 20, Mr. George H. Vick, of the Concord Church was received as a candidate for membership.

Presbytery gave its approval to Dr. W. W. Stinson's resignation of the presidency of the Assembly. School and his acceptance of the presidency of the State College. E. D. B.

Caldwell Memorial Church, Charlotte—Following items are from the August 25th service at this church: We are glad to have in our morning Rev. Locke White, D.D., pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Montgomery, W. V.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

(Continued from page 8)

It is hard to know on what to concentrate for one thing the lesson certainly illustrates a great work. Nehemiah prayed, he thought carefully, planned wisely, aroused the interest of the people, organized and set to work the community, met resolutely every difficulty his work up. He himself set an example of unselfishness.

Nehemiah's work was to rebuild the walls. What is your work, the work of your community? Is it to build a new church, is it for the unsaved, is it to care for the children of your community, is it to see that the experiment through, is it to carry to an end war?

Concentrate on the work that you think is most important. Wherein can we do it better? Are we doing it sufficiently? Has there been any adequate provision for the need—do you really know, does the community know what the real problem is? Have you made adequate plans? What would you consider the most important? Has the interest of the people been aroused? How can it be aroused? Has the work been carried out such a way that everyone is given a work he can best do, the work that will be the best endeavors? How can we get that sort of work in our community work, our church work? What are the difficulties, the danger? What is the best way to overcome them? Do all the difficulties come from selfishness within exist? Have we stopped to think should the work be followed up, if the fruit are not to be lost?

Charlotte boy who is doing good work in will end the union services that have during the months of July and August by Lane Methodist, Saint John's and Cald-Churches. There has been a fine fra-in these meetings and which we believe and the brotherly feeling already existing se churches, more closely.
lay our regular order of services will be we will have to preach for us both serv-as. I. Bear, the representative of this inkingiang, Ku. China, who is in this coungh. A large congregation should be pres-
Mr. and Mrs. Bear.
glad to have a letter from Dr. Nisbet this says that his visit with his daughter at Madeline Island, Wisconsin, is doing him and he is getting anxious to be back home
again.

Tenth Avenue—We are pleased to have
S. Sibley with us today. Dr. Sibley was his church from 1914 to 1919. Dr. Sibley's the evening will be "Investigation."
at Matthews, a returned missionary from make a talk at the Auxiliary meeting,
p. m. All members of the Auxiliary are present.—From the Bulletin of August 25.

The August 25th Bulletin of the Second ied this announcement: We are glad to our minister this morning Dr. Henry ose, pastor of the First Presbyterian rtanburg, S. C., one of the large and in-rches of the Assembly. Dr. DuBose has inent part in the promotion of the De-Men's Work of our Southern Presby-h.

ALABAMA

View—The annual meeting here was held k of July, Rev. J. W. Stork, of Mt. Gilead, ucting the fifteenth consecutive revival attendance was unusually good. There dition on profession of faith, the mother amily.

APPALACHIA

nn—The First Church has recently had shing experience. At the conclusion of a s' building program, in which the entire has been thoroughly remodeled and end-ding the installation of modern heating rgan, lighting, together with the convert-ron type of Sunday school plant into a
, with room for about 900, the congrega-ppy to re-occupy their place of worship.
the time the congregation had worship-eatre and the Sunday school and other the church had been held in the Y. M.

July 21, the building was formally pree committees and accepted in behalf of tion. The day had been planned as a Rev. Dr. James I. Vance, a son of the back for the sermons. Many people reoined with the congregation in its joyful nd in the blessing to be received from ing messages of the preacher. It was a e remembered by the church.

of beautiful memorials have been estab-
ing beautiful pulpit furniture, the handing of the prayer meeting room, stained s, and others. On that day Rev. Dr. J.
um, the pastor, announced that the sons s of Mrs. Senah Hoge Reynolds would chimes as soon as they could be manus was the climax of a happy thankful July communion the pastor extended a ne to nearly a hundred members who ceived into the church during the six ongregation had been out of the church

GEORGIA

Church in Atlanta Presbytery has had eries of evangelistic services during the July. Dr. Husk, the executive secretary ytery whom we have tried to secure for was with us and preached with power ng and night. The church was packed ght for the gospel messages, the result that 18 united with the church and 14
aptized.

TENNESSEE

of Tennessee will meet, pursuant to adthe First Presbyterian Church of Co-first Tuesday in October, October 1,

W. C. Alexander, P. C.

Church, Nashville, Dr. W. C. Alexander, urch building has recently been reno-corated within and painted without so that in its setting of grass and large trees it is very beautiful. A successful Daily Vacation Bible School has recently been conducted for two weeks. Glen Leven had six representatives at the Senior Young People's Conference at Ovoca and three at the Intermediate Conference just closed. Following the mid-summer communion on July 1st with a great "home coming," the evening services have been held on the church lawn with evangelistic preaching and large congregations so that instead of a "summer slump," attendance for morning an evening has been beter than before. Rev. W. W. Shannon, of Berwick, Pa., who broke down in the midst of a successful meeting in Glen Leven in April will possibly begin another meeting with us on October 6th. We "thank God and take courage."

WEST VIRGINIA

Kanawha Presbytery—The Presbytery of Kanawha will convene, for its fall meeting, in the First Presbyterian Church, Huntington, W. Va., Tuesday, September 24, 1929, at 11:00 a. m.

All sessions are ordered by Presbytery to present their record books for examination.

J. Blair Morton, S. C.

Glennville—This church has just lately called the Rev. J. F. Baxter to become its pastor. Mr. Baxter has for eighteen years been pastor of the Point Pleasant Presbyterian Church, his pastorate with which was dissolved last June. There is one of the State's Normal Schools located at Glennville, and this Church together with the Little Kanawha Church at Sand-fork make an important group. It is hoped that Mr.
Baxter will accept this Church's call. J. B. M.

MISSISSIPPI

Synod of Mississippi will meet in Tupelo, Miss., September 17, 1929, at 7:30 p. m.

S. C. Caldwell, Stated Clerk.

Presbytery of Mississippi will meet in Natchez October 15, 1929, at 7:30 p. m. S. C. Caldwell, S. C.

Belzoni—Rev. C. A. Pharr was received by Central Mississippi Presbytery at its recent called meeting from the Louisiana Presbytery, and a committee appointed to install him as the pastor of the Belzoni Church.

Weir—Mr. William E. Moreau, a licentiate of the Bluestone Presbytery, was received by the Presbytery of Central Mississippi at its recent special meeting, and after a satisfactory examination was ordained to the full work of the Gospel ministry. He has accepted the call to the Weir group of churches, and will be installed as pastor at an early date. He will make his home in Weir.

Vaiden—Mr. W. B. Hooker, who has just completed his theological course in the Columbia Theological Seminary, after a satisfactory examination, was licensed as a probationer at the called meeting of Central Mississippi Presbytery. He has accepted the call to the Vaiden group of churches, and a commission has been appointed to ordain and install him at an early date.

Raymond-Brandon—Rev. H. N. Alexander was permitted to resign the pastorate of these churches, and was given leave of absence for a year in order to accept a scholarship received from Columbia Theological Seminary. Mr. Alexander has rendered most faithful and efficient service and it was with the greatest reluctance that the churches concurred in the request for the dissolution of the pastoral relationship. He is to take this special course of study in Princeton Theological Seminary.

Collins—Rev. T. S. Smylie, pastor of the Evergreen Presbyterian Church, Memphis, conducted a very helpful meeting at Collins recently.

VIRGINIA

Roanoke Presbytery—Rev. G. D. Moses of Hague, Va., is using this Presbytery's tent, having had the misfortune to have his tent burned recently. He spent a part of July in a hospital as a result of an auto accident, but has just closed a series of services at Clover in connection with Rev. Mr. Elliott, with excellent results. Mr. Moses is available for evangelistic meetings with or without the tent.

Mount Horeb and Grottoes—Daily Vacation Bible Schools have just closed in these churches, with gratifying results. A splendid corps of teachers was in active service at each school and a goodly number of grown folks attended quite regularly. While the children were engaged in their study and recitation periods, the grown folks listened to a course of lectures on the Gospel of John, and then engaged in a class in Church government, and afterwards discussed some outstanding missionary subjects. About forty were enrolled at Mt. Horeb and thirty at Grottoes.

Twenty or more Bibles and Testaments were awarded for Catechism recitations, and nearly a dozen hymn books and "God's Minute," for learning hymns and a required number of Bible passages.

Both children and parents were enthusiastic in calling for another D. V. B. S. next year.

These two churches have received near thirty new members this summer, most of them grown people, and nearly all on profession of faith, partly as the result of the wonderful series of W. Carey Barker, and his splendid coworkers: W. P. Martin, song leader; Alvin Cook, pianist, and Jack Runnett, general utility man. They present nothing but the pure Gospel, and they do it in a real spirit of worship, with no frills, nor foolish propositions.

KENTUCKY

Fulton—My wife and I have just returned from a month's motor trip in Iowa, going up by way of St.
Louis, and returning via Chicago. We spent the greater part of the time with relatives of my wife in Waterloo and Eldora, Iowa.

We attended the great Bible Conference, which is held annually in Cedar Falls, where Dr. G. Campbell Morgan is the leading light. While in Cedar Falls we enjoyed a visit at Iowa State Teachers' College, where Mrs.
Wade received her college training.

While in Chicago we visited Moody Bible Institute, where my wife graduated before going as a Missionary to China. This plant is now valued at between $5,000,000
and $6,000,000.

It was thrilling to look upon those wonderful buildings and to visit the many places made sacred by the life and teaching of the sainted Moody.

One night we attended a down town street service as held by Rev. Ike Bigwell, who is employed by Chicago Presbytery, and preaches every night, and has the distinction of having converts at every service.

J. T. Wade.

FACING FOUR FOREMOST FACTS

(Continued from page 6)

to go everywhere preaching the gospel. There is much preaching that is good, although too general to be powerful.

My subject is: Facing Four Foremost Facts. A fact is what is. It is what may be known to be. We do know many things as facts. Our opinion has no effect on what is a fact. There are some foremost or supreme facts.
When these are settled all matters are settled. Many people are troubled about very many things. If they would deal with a few great facts thoroughly the thousand little affairs would be cared for. There are not so many foremost facts. We shall deal with four. We need not deal with more than four and we cannot deal with fewer than four. We can readily comprehend and remember as foremost facts. We shall face these four facts. This is the only rational course as we say we shall register because we are facing four foremost facts. Lord Bacon once said
"The thing to do with a fact is to proceed upon it."

The first fact is the fact of Christ. This is the supreme fact. None really begins to live until he deals with the great fact of Christ. This is the best known fact in the world. We do not know any more certainly that George Washington and Woodrow Wilson lived than we know that Christ lived. We must act as if we don't! The situation within and without the Church is that the fact of Christ is not reckoned with as it should be.

Christians are not aware of Christ as they should be and non-Christians are scarcely aware of Him at all. There is great need for demonstration by Christians of the fact of Christ. There are three great matters here. For Christians the fact of Christ means a satisfying triumphant life. Christians are responsible for such a life. For non-Christians the fact of Christ means the loss of their sins.
They choose Christ and lose their sins or refuse Christ and keep their sins. For everyone the fact of Christ means the solution of his life problems. However, intense it is to him it was more intense in Christ.

II. The second of the four foremost facts is the fact of Christ's church. When we begin to do something about the fact of Christ it comes down to the fact of the Church.
Christ chose to accomplish his work in the world in very large measure through his Church. He announced this as His purpose and very obviously is following that purpose. The identity with Christ and the Church needs emphasis, the Church is His body in which He lives and through which He sends His power and grace to save men.

III. The third of the four foremost facts is for Presbyterian men the fact of the Presbyterian Church. That is to say, the Protestant Church is a Denominational Church and does a very large part of its work through denominational agency and organization. Loyalty to Christ and His Church means loyalty to our denominational program.
There are no more binding and sacred loyalties than our denominational loyalties.

IV. The four foremost fact is the fact of the local Church. In fact we do not get to the Church at all until we get to the local church, for almost all Christians the local church is the only field for service. Loyalty to Christ and His Church means loyalty to our local
churches.

Opportunity For Your Boy GIVE HIM A CHANCE

The measure of success your boy secures in life depends largely on the training he receives during the early years of his high school education. At this most critical age, every parent should consider carefully this question:

Is your boy getting out of school what he should? If not, it may not be the fault of the school. It may be that:

1st. Outside influences attract his attention.

2nd. He is not brought face to face with the necessity which is the mother of thrift.

3rd. He may need the environment conducive to study.

This problem can be solved, and is effectively solved at Carlisle School by

Careful attention to the individual.

Constant Christian influences and military discipline.

Supervised study.

Development of spirit and fair play through clean athletic sports.

Carlisle School develops manly men. If interested write for detailed information. First term opens September 10.

CARLISLE SCHOOL

Col. Jas. F. Risher, Headmaster
Bamberg, S. C.

MARY BALDWIN COLLEGE

For women. Courses lead to B. A. and B. S. degrees. Music, art, spoken English, physical education. Gymnasium and field athletics. Modern equipment. In beautiful Shenandoah Valley. Founded 1842. Catalog. Staunton, Virginia.

A Scientific Preparation
FOR BOILS, CARBUNCLES, BONE FELONS,
ULCERS, CUTS, and OLD SORES. Price 50c
NO LANCE CHEMICAL CO.
New Brookland, S. C.

ATLANTA CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

The Foremost School of Music in the South
Fall session begins Monday, September 2, 1929
Summer session in June and July

Apply for Catalog C GEO. F. LINDNER, Director Atlanta, Georgia

SALEM COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

Known nationally for 156 years' unbroken record in higher education. "Salem" life emphasizes Christian standards without denominational differences. Fifty-six acre campus of forest and meadow. Swimming, riding and all sports. Our endowment pays 12 1-2 per cent. of each student's expenses, reducing the annual charge to $655.00.

Accredited member Southern Association. A-Class.
A. B., B. S. and B. Music degrees with wide elective privileges.

Write for catalogue "A" to Pres. Howard E. Rondthaler, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Summer VACATION TRIPS

Rail and Motor Tours

In the Southern Appalachian Mountains

In especially arranged rail and motor tours, the Southern Railway provides a new vacation recreation, combining rail and motor transportation for the individual and for parties, into the mountain sections of Virginia, North Carolina, Eastern Tennessee and North Georgia.

These tours will take you adventuring by rail and motor into regions of scenic beauty and historic interest. Each trip begins and ends with a railway journey, in which you enjoy the speed and comfort of rail travel. The motor trips are over established State highways.

For booklets, information and rates, call on Ticket Agents,

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Daniel Boone - pioneer pathfinder
in these southern Appalachian Mountains which we now invite you to Visit

STORY

A NATIONAL SHRINE

Opening of the last link of the Shenandoah Valley highway route to the famed valley of Virginia, celebrated with notable ceremonies at Martinsville recently, means more than the mere completion of a good road where there was only a bad road before. It has for the people of this section particularly a fine historic interest, for it gives them a direct all-surfaced highway to the tomb of Lee at Lexington, Virginia.

The connecting up of other highways to the north, each and west has brought the revelation that the tomb of the great Confederate chieftain is not merely a place that holds the veneration and love of the people of the old South but that it is a shrine of national importance. One day last week was our first visit, and there were found people from all sections of the country filing through the memorial chapel and gazing with unfeigned reverence at the magnificent mable recumbent statue of Lee. The register kept there showed that up to noon nearly every state from Wyoming and Montana to Massachusetts and from Michigan to Louisiana had sent visitors there that day. There were also one or more from California. Several Koreans were among those who came to pay their respects to a great American whose Christian manhood lives on in the grateful remembrance of the people.

Everything about the chapel is redolent of history, not merely Southern history but that of a great nation that finds much to cherish in a glorious past. The museum contains relics of the Revolution as well as of the Civil War and the fine portraits in the building reflect the likenesses of men who were nation builders.

The fine traditions that surround this spot are well preserved in the town of Lexington and on the campuses of Washington and Lee and Virginia Military Institute. One feels history as well as sees and hears it everywhere around Lexington. It makes one a little better American to visit there, whether or not one makes an effort to increase patriotism. It is absorbed.

Washington, Lee, Jackson all played roles in the life of that community. The Father of His Country gave to the fine university there its first name, Washington College, through his munificent benefactions. As a Washington shrine it is therefore second only to Mt. Vernon itself. The immortal Lee completed the name of the same university, of which he was president at the time of his death. His body and that of the other Lees of this distinguished line all rest there and crypts remain for others of the present generation. At V. M. I. the great Stonewall Jackson taught and planned those military tactics that are still the marvel of students of warfare. He too was buried there and those of his line who have since passed rest near his tomb. From the same section came the geographer and explorer Matthew Maury, the engineer Phineas Stevens, the McCormicks who revolutionized agriculture by their inventions and many others who gained national or world renown. It is indeed a place for one to feel reverent. It is easy to understand why the V. M. I. cadet salutes when he passes the Lee chapel without the need of a rule to command it. And the steady stream of humanity passing in and out of Lee chapel and about the other historic shrines seems to move with a reverence and understanding that is much more of a sense of environment than of printed or spoken requests.

From Lexington to Lexington now one does not leave hard surface nor detour. Most of the highway is excellent, though there are stretches north of Roanoke not yet requisite to the demand of traffic. But steam shovels and drills have begun the work of cutting bluffs and widening fills, preparatory to widening and improving the road surface. It is almost an even 200 miles from Lexington, N. C. to Lexington, Va. Along most of the way the scenery is inviting and often majestic. A return trip can be made over good highway from Natural Bridge to Lynchburg and thence back to Lexington, or one may proceed a few miles northward from the older Lexington to Staunton and find another splendid route home through Lynchburg, with more wonderful scenery.—Lexington Dispatch.

MYSTERIES OF THE GYPSIES

Would you know a gypsy if you saw one? Most people would answer that question with a ready "yes," but they would probably be wrong, for there is no recognized definition to guide us. Those wanderers you see camped by the side of the road, dark of countenance and foreign in appearance, may be ordinary vagrants, tanned by constant exposure to the sun, their strange appearance accounted for by their unconventional dress.

When a true gypsy sees another of his race he knows him at once, but he cannot tell you how he knows. Their very name is misleading, for it is based upon a story that they came from Egypt.

We know, however, that they come from Egypt at all. They come here from the Balkans, where many to be found, and they have traced back their history that they originated in India. One has been able to say in the past that country or even the left.

The Egyptian story surrounds them with an air of mystery which has not been dispersed. Many a gullible person has believed that gypsies have supernatural powers.

DON'T DRIFT...

Are you drifting along? Have you made plans for the future? Don't you think you should have a plan? Don't you want to be successful? Then write us!

DRAUGHON'S BUSINESS SYSTEMS
1218 SUMTER ST. COLUMBIA, S. C.

HARRIS FRESH WATER SYSTEMS

Private water supply systems for homes and farm homes, schools, hotels, clubs, filling stations, industries. Fresh cool water under pressure pumps or tanks. No greasy material. Automatic electric or manual. Durable, dependable and economical. Thousands in use for years. Literature. HARRIS PUMP MFG. CO. Greenville, S. C.

WINTERSMITH'S CHILL TONIC

For over 50 years it has been the household remedy for all forms of weakness.

It is a Reliable, General Invigorating Tonic.

Guilford COLLEGE

Member of Southern Association. Courses for A. B. degrees, including Business Administration, Home Economics and Music. Religious atmosphere. Up-to-date program and student body. Century old, Quaker institution. The President, Guilford College.

FISHBURN MILITARY SCHOOL

Aim—"Not the largest, but the best"
IN EVERY class each boy receives a thorough education. Contacts with schoolmates all over the country. Graduates from all colleges. Certificate privileges. Year 'round climate. Easily reached. Athletic program supervised by experienced men. Modern equipment. Swimming pool. Col. M. H. Huddleston, Waynesboro, Virginia. Member Ass'n of Military Colleges of U. S.

RANDOLPH-MACON School for Girls

Member of Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools
Sited amid beautiful surroundings, this accredited school offers to students a thorough system of instruction, congenial appointments, congenial and wholesome out-door sports, atmosphere of culture and refinement. Students make rapid progress. These happy surroundings. For information write John C. Simpson, Danville, Virginia.

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE DECATUR, GA.

Strict entrance requirements, but few failures after admission. So expensive, but cheap in comparison with advantages offered. No loan, but also none without capacity to enjoy almost unlimited good. For details as to admission, scholarship aid, etc address PRESIDENT J. R. McCAIN Box S ed with the ability to make rses! Even the less creduus have an idea that gypsy er is more proficient at the y other seer.

 ve their own language, a eranto with a large sprinkeek, German, Indian and uages. They do not call gypsies at all, but "needies" object very strongly if a us addresses them, for the son that the name suggests ggars.—Selected.

RENCE REQUIRED

Cora S. Day

Say, listen—" ved the little car into the began talking the minute topped the motor and open-door. He could not wait ance. He had been waiting all e longest afternoon there en.

ay, but get it over quickly lease. I'm starving. We had Dad laughed, and he sprang car, slammed the door, and ing, an expectant twinkle in at did the boy want now?
 t was something he could was so eager, so excited, so he himself had been.

y, when a boy, he had plead-nothing in vain. That was t so when he had to say, me impossible scheme of ot suspect this. To him his esented authority. How ow that his father's heart ter where his boy was conthat his mother, briskly

 l with a keen sense of dis-the real backbone of parity? Never having been d her a lot in being firm

had come home at lunch excitement and news, she mly:

ve to wait and talk it over ther. If he's willing, I have s." Joe had waited anxious-ime his father came home fice the chance might be he cried breathlessly, "the tore opens next week, and a boy—a fellow who lives

 e and knows the people,
 st and a good worker. May e job, please? Just for the u know? Then I can get t."

looked at him keenly. Did ter realize what he was it would mean to be shut
 ocery store day after day ce bright, hot summer days
 d been so gloriously free ump at a stranger's bid-hurried and jostled and if he failed a jot or tittle?

between hope and fear

ALLIE SCHOOL
 for BOYS
 orically located on Missionary
 e. In view of renowned Lookout Mountain.

ding school in the South.
 preparation for College
 Technical Schools.

Small classes. Individual Instruction.
 Strong Faculty.
 Christian Training.
 Military Drill. Hon-
 or System.

Complete modern equipment. Concrete swimming
 pool. Gymnasium.
 40 Acre Campus.
 Lake. Rate $800.

ession—July and August
 Wh Camp Features

er illustrated catalog to
 eadmaster, Box P
 araga Tennessee

"They'll want references," he said.
 "Mr. Barstow, who is putting in the shelves and counters, told me about the job when I was there this morning.
 He said he would speak a good word for me if I wanted to try for it."

Dad's heart warmed. "Go ahead, Joe,
 if you really want to try it," he said.
 "You can resign when you get enough.
 How about the chores here at home—
 the grass and errands?"

"I'll do them after store hours if I get the job," Joe promised. "I'll attend to every single thing."

"I imagine you'll find that it isn't so much of a picnic as you think," his father answered, suddenly gruff, as he led the way to the house.

The afternoon had been long, but the night ahead looked endless. To Joe's astonishment, he slept straight through, and had to be called, as usual, but only once this morning, for the thought of the job took the place of all the other usual methods.

Breakfast was soon over; but he lost a good deal of time getting down to the new store and Mr. Barstow. It seemed as if mother never before had needed so many things done. She almost seemed to think up a lot of extras that had to be attended to at once.

At last he was free, and sped away to the store. Mr. Barstow looked down at him from some high shelving he was installing.

"Morning, Joe," he nodded. "Come to see about that job?"

"Yes, Mr. Barstow," Joe answered eagerly. "I talked to dad about it and he said I might try for it. I had to wait all the afternoon for him. Nearly had a fit for fear somebody might get it ahead of me. Has"—he was afraid to ask the question. Mr. Barstow drove a nail neatly and accurately; then he smiled down at Joe and shook his head.

"No, I guess not. There were several boys here yesterday afternoon, and they all wanted the job right enough.
 But Mr. Palmer, the boss, was here just a few minutes to see how I was getting on and to give me some orders.
 He did not have time to talk to any of them. But he told them all to come back this afternoon and he'd talk to them. I guess you'll have to take your chance with the rest. But, as I said, I'll speak a good word for you, Joe. Maybe that'll help a little." He squinted along the high shelf. "It's too bad you weren't in here a few minutes ago. Mr.
 Palmer dropped in, in a hurry, as usual. He's a pretty busy man. But he might have had a look at you, anyway.
 He's only been gone about—"

The carpenter stopped short. His eyes were not upon Joe. He was staring hard at a packet of papers that lay among a little pile of shavings and board ends on the floor near Joe's feet. He jumped down and picket up the bundle, which was held together by rubber bands. He looked troubled.

"Mr. Palmer's dropped his papers and gone off without missing them," he gasped. "They were the things causing the rush, too. He said he had to have them in the office at ten o'clock this morning; something to be signed by a man who is leaving for Europe today.
 Now what—"

He glanced at his watch and shook his head.

"It's half-past nine now. Too bad!
 But I guess there's nothing we can do to save the day for him. I might call up his office and let him know the papers are safe anyway."

"We can get them to him," cried
 Joe, who had not spent all this time listening to Mr. Barstow's regrets.
 "How did he go—on the train?"

"No, in his own car—a gray sedan.
 He has a country home just below here, and he goes from there to his office every day in the car," said Mr.
 Barstow.

"Then you won't have to take the papers all the way to his office," said
 Joe. That had been his first thought.
 Mr. Barstow had a secondhand business truck, but it was not capable of much speed. There should be a better way than that, with Mr. Palmer somewhere on the road in a car than probably could make better time than the traffic officers would allow. But as there was no better car, the truck must be used. It might save trouble for Mr.

 Palmer.

"I'll run across to the drug store and tell Dr. Brown what is wrong," said Joe. "He has a brother who has a drug store at York, fifteen miles up the pike.
 He can telephone his brother to stop the gray sedan and head Mr. Palmer back. We'll take the papers in your car and go to meet him, to save him time.
 I'll tell the doctor to tell his brother to warn Mr. Palmer to look out for a truck with a handkerchief flying from the radiator cap. Fix it up while I'm telling the doctor," and he was gone.

 Mr. Barstow chuckled.

"That boy has brains," said Mr. Barstow to himself. "That is not a bad idea of Joe's. We'll try it, anyway. It can't do any harm, and it may work out." Still smiling to himself, Mr. Barstow locked the store, fixed the white flag on the radiator, cranked his engine, and had everything ready by the time Joe was back and ready for the start.

"It's all right; they are going to try to head him off," Joe panted, as he climbed in. "Here, let me hang on to

BLACKSTONE — A MILITARY SCHOOL FOR BOYS

Located in Healthful Section of Virginia. College Preparatory and Business Administrative Courses. Best home influences prevail, and individual needs of each boy closely watched. Modern, new and fireproof buildings. All manly sports, Christian influences and surroundings. For illustrated catalog write to

Blackstone Col. E. S. Ligon, President
 Box R Virginia

Visiting Cards and Stationery
FREE

For a limited time we will give with each $3.00 paid on subscription to Presbyterian Standard 100 high grade printed visiting cards FREE.

SAMPLES OF TYPE

1. Miss Evelyn Smith 2. Mrs. J. B. Well
 3. REV. JOSEPH BLOEGH
 4. Mr. Henry C. Moore

Specify type wanted by number

With each $6.00 paid on subscription we will give 100 sheets paper and 50 envelopes to match with your name and address printed thereon.

Size of paper 6¼x7 inches. Good grade bond paper
 Envelopes one half size of paper.

SAMPLES OF TYPE

5. REV. M. HARVEY JONES 6. S. T. HAINES, D. D.
 Charlotte, N. C. Richmond, Va.
 7. Mrs. Jackson Helms
 WACO, TEX.

Specify type wanted by number

If your prefer some other type, send us a sample and we will duplicate as near as possible.

Stationery can be printed in either blue or black ink. We will use black unless otherwise specified.

Check or Money Order must be sent direct to this office to receive this offer of cards or stationery.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING CO.
 P. O. Box 869 Charlotte, N. C.

The Baylor School
 A BOY'S OPPORTUNITY

Sound Scholarship and a Happy School Life on the most beautiful campus in the South.

An accredited preparatory school for manly boys.
 Christian Influence. High Scholastic Standards.
 Unusual Equipment. Golf, Tennis, Swimming, Boating, Gymnasium, 3 Athletic Fields, etc.

For Catalogue, Address
 ALEXANDER GUERRY, Headmaster.
THE BAYLOR SCHOOL, Cherokee Trail
 CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

Alumni Chapel, One of Seven Fine Brick Buildings on 120 Acre Campus

QUEENS COLLEGE

"The College With the PLUS SIGN"

Sound literary training plus Christian influence. Faculty members characterized by thorough scholarship, and unquestionable Christian character.

RATES EXCEEDINGLY REASONABLE.

Ask for catalogue—enroll now—College opens Sept. 11.
 WILLIAM H. FRAZER, D.D., Litt.D., President,
 Box 300, Charlotte, N. C.

those papers. Make all the time you can without bursting anything, will you?"

"Sure thing," grinned the carpenter, starting off with a creditable show of speed. The dingy old car served his everyday needs very well, but it was not expected to perform any speed stunts like this. He sent it rattling along now at a good pace. To Joe it seemed as if the old car were crawling. He clutched Mr. Palmer's packet of papers tightly; there was no danger of their getting away from his grip. He sat on the edge of the seat and leaned forward tensely. Mr. Barstow glanced at him out of the corner of his eye.

"Taking it pretty seriously," he thought with amusement. "So far as I'm concerned, I'm not getting het up over whether we make it or not. Mr. Palmer ought to be more careful of his papers. I say but the youngster there is having the time of his life, and I believe he really does care whether Mr. Palmer gets those pesky papers in time or not. If it wasn't for them, I might have a lot more work done on that store by this time."

"I do hope he didn't get past that drug store before the doctor told them to be on the lookout," Joe said anxiously, peering ahead for the first possible glimpse of a gray sedan coming their way.

Once he cried out, "Oh, there he is!" But the next moment the gray car he had seen swept past them, filled with a party of young people. Joe sighed and settled back on the seat a few inches, for safety's sake.

Five miles—ten—twelve, and no sign of Mr. Palmer's car! Joe's eager face was getting longer and longer every minute.

"It looks as if we weren't going to catch him," commented Mr. Barstow. "I guess he was making as good time as the law allows and got past that druggist before the doctor telephoned."

"I'm afraid so," agreed Joe sadly. "We'll go on that far and make sure, though, won't we, Mr. Barstow?" he added.

"Sure we will," said Mr. Barstow decidedly. "And if we find he's beat us to it, we'll go right on into town and to his office. Guess the old bus is good for that many more miles before it falls apart."

While Mr. Barstow talked, Joe's eyes kept a sharp outlook for the gray car. Now he saw it, but not on the road coming to meet them. It was a little ahead standing at a wayside garage which the truck was approaching. Mr. Palmer was standing beside it and replacing his wallet in his pocket. Even as Joe looked, the man turned to enter the open door of his gray sedan.

Mr. Barstow, very intent on the road, did not see Mr. Palmer. He nearly turned the car off the road when Joe shouted at him excitedly.

"There he is! Stop! Don't let him get away!"

A swift glance, and the driver swerved his truck toward the garage, put on the brakes, and added his lusty voice to Joe's shrill cry as Mr. Palmer sprang into his car, slammed the door, stepped on the self-starter.

For a second it looked as if they were going to lose him. It was the garage man who sprang in front of Mr. Palmer's car and relayed to him their frantic signal. He had not supposed for a moment that the shouting concerned him. Hurried as he was, his one thought was to get to his office. Little did he dream that his haste was futile, that the packet he thought safe in his pocket was tightly clutched in the hands of the boy in the dingy truck that had ground to a stop beside his.

A minute later he knew the whole story. A hasty, fumbled search of his pockets showed the papers gone. Joe handed them over without a word and Mr. Barstow told the story of the chase.

"Huh," Mr. Palmer commented. "Once in a while a boy does use his head to some purpose. This time it means a good bit to me. Er—do you want a job, young man?"

"That's what I was after down at the store," said Joe.

"Call there again tomorrow morning at half-past eight, and we'll fix it up. Never mind references. I think these will do," he said, tapping his papers. "If you see any of those other boys tell them they needn't bother—that you've landed the job." And he was off with a nod of farewell. From the twinkle in his boyish grin that had endeared him to the view, Joe knew that he would like to work for Mr. Palmer. Leader.

ORIENT FLOUR
Its Whiteness Denotes Its Purity
MOUNTAIN CITY MILL CO., CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

MEREDITH COLLEGE
For YOUNG WOMEN
STANDARD COURSES IN ARTS AND SCIENCES, IN MUSIC, IN ART, IN HOME ECONOMICS
 Confers the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Music. Delightful environment on a high plateau on the western boundary of North Carolina's City.
 Room reservations are now being made for session 1929-30. For catalogue or further information write
CHAS. E. BREWER, President
 Raleigh, N. C.

POPULAR EXCURSION FARES
 Via
SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM
Saturday, August 31, 1929
Round-Trip Fares From CHARLOTTE, N. C.
 to
 Washington, D. C. ---$12.00
 Norfolk, Va. ----- 8.75
 Old Point Comfort --- 8.75
 Virginia Beach ----- 9.25
 Richmond, Va. ----- 7.75
LIMIT 5 DAYS
Tickets Good Going and Returning Regular Trains
ASK TICKET AGENT

AN OPORTUNITY FOR YOU . . .
 For 42 years we have made money for others. More Bibles are sold than any other book in the world. You can make money selling Bibles, Testaments, and Religious Books. Whole or spare time. Write to-day for full information.
WILMORE BOOK & BIBLE CO.
 Established over 40 years.
 443 South Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

MOST people depend on Bayer Aspirin to make short work of headaches, but did you know it's just as effective in the worse pains from neuralgia or neuritis? Rheumatic pains, too. Don't suffer when Bayer Aspirin can bring complete comfort without delay, and without harm; it does not affect the heart. In every package of genuine Bayer Aspirin are proven directions with which everyone should be familiar, for they can spare much less suffering.

ASPIRIN
 Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

PUZZLE ANSWERS

S	K	A	T	I	N	G
C	F	A	N	R
H	E	A	R	H	E
O	A	R	M	O	A
L	T	F	E	E	T
A	P	E	A	E
R	A	M	B	L	E	R

HIDDEN INSECTS — 1. Bee. 2. Gnat. 3. Worm. 4. Wasp. 5. Ant.
BEHEADING ACROSTIC
 S team
 E vent
 P ride
 T ale
 E very
 M ore
 B are E den
 R each

Flies die faster

—when you spray clean-smelling Flit with the handy Flit sprayer! Mosquitoes drop just as fast. More people use Flit because it contains a greater amount of insect-killing ingredients. Harmless to humans, and its vapor does not stain.

"The yellow can with the black band"
FLIT
 REG. U. S. PAT. OFF. © 1929 S

BELK'S

Featuring a Final Clean-up Sale of all Summer Merchandise.

All floors co-operating in this General Clean-up Sale.

COME TO BELK'S
"Save the Difference"

Belk Brothers Co.
 Charlotte, N. C.

IMPORTANCE OF BEING MIGS

Janet Trumbull

a perfect party. They all that. Every one of the as there and Martie Lee perfect hostess—she alister Anne was always so help by playing the piano times and then there was thinking of something dif- em to do to make things No party was complete Everyone seemed to do suggested.

had wished that she was the life of the party like s not of her that she was morning. She was think- herself.

ed with her arms behind d looked critically within o do something about it. go on being the quiet -the-mud I am. No one missed me one particle if at the party. Why I doubt ws I was there?" As that rred to her she sat up in ed straight ahead as if one single thing but take the games, eat ice cream l take a piece of candy was offered. I'm always going to begin right now Now this new girl that the party for is different. seemed to like me a little. study her and be a copy simply perfect. Even her ne Dunstan."

a grimace as she thought ame. Migs! They had al- er Migs though she had name as any one could d Ione Gray. She could en she had been known cept the three initials.

put a stop to that too. be Mildred from now on. be different." Then as if ction to the words she e bed covers and rose minutes' she stood before oking at her hair. Thick

FIVE BOOKLET ON MEMORIALS FREE

ful booklet on Monuments shed by Winnsboro Gran- n, Rion, S. C. It contains designs, and practical sug- nedium priced memorials, you may obtain the ideal essage the four essentials— ity, strength and legibility

Granite which is quarried orporation is without doubt ty monumental stone to be ca, and this famous gran- most readers of this pub- eauty, durability, strength, eedom from deleterious in- as lime, iron and water. quality materials, Winns- sometimes confused with or substitutes on the mar- ble this granite on first do not possess its lasting ermanent beauty.

mentioned above, contains formation, and tells how ure of getting genuine nite. Write for your copy ro Granite Corporation, the thoroughness with pare yourself for a pros- is career. We can help e or our handsome catatawny rumped hair parted at the side where a slight cowlick made it necessary.

R SUCCESS

NATIONAL BUSINESS COLLEGE Roanoke, Va.

She pushed it impatiently aside. "Old straight stringy stuff. Why didn't I have wavy hair like Martie or lovely curls like Catherine. Well I will have."

She was rolling her hair on curlers as she stood thinking of the changes she intended to make.

"I'll save my money and have a permanent curl put in this straight old hair of mine and I'll get Mums to make my new dress with a three ruffle skirt and that same fluffy collar that Catherine had and I'm going to talk more and laugh more whether I can think of anything to say or not. So there.

The ringing telephone interrupted her line of thought for a few moments. Mrs. Lee had called to ask Migs if she would go to town and the library with Catherine. Martie could not go this morning and Catherine did not know her way about alone.

"What luck that she thought of me," said Migs to her mother. "I'm just crazy about her, Mums. Want you to know her too and she is coming by for me about eleven o'clock. Oh, I do hope she is going to like me."

But her smile faded as she tried to select a dress for the day. She pushed each one aside with a negative head-shake. Every one hung so prim and straight on its hanger in the closet.

"Such prim dresses," she thought. "Why an old maid in her seventies might wear any of them. That plain blue with the white collar, plain as plain can be. It won't do."

She went over them again and stood and considered the green linen tailored suit that mother liked. "No; too tailored. I want to be fluffy like Catherine if I'm going to interest her and have her like me and it's evident she could."

Her eyes danced with pleasure at the thought that she had been chosen to go shopping with the lovely new girl.

"I must make her like me." Then not the tailored green or plain blue would do. She had only one dress that was in the least what she called fluffy. She took the rosy pink frock from its hook and looked it over. It needed to be washed and pressed but she could do it if she hurried.

Catherine was not coming for three hours. Wouldn't it be wonderful if she could get this new girl for her real chum—and she would. She would do everything she could think of to try and please her.

"Wish I'd worn this last night instead of that plain tan thing," she said as she sponged the pink dress which was almost the exact shade of the one Catherine had worn last evening.

While the iron heated she gave a shine to her pretty buckled pumps and sewed a flower at the front of her plain little felt hat.

All the time she was practicing a conversation with her new friend and imagine Catherine being present while she took part in such bright chatter as no one ever had heard Migs take part in. She was seeing a new Migs.

"Why, Migs dear, I though you had plenty of street dresses," said Mother when she came into the kitchen and found her ironing the over-damp dress dry.

"Yes Mother. That's the trouble—too many. This is the only thing I have that is the least bit dressy and I want to look my very best. I do so want her to like me and this is the sort of dresses she likes. Think of it Mums. Martie can't go with her and she chose me out of all the girls to take Martie's place and last night she seemed to like me. Came and sat by me during the contest. She is so pretty and full of fun and dresses so beautifully and just everything."

Mother's eyes looked lovingly, understandingly at Migs.

"Doesn't seem unusual to me that she should have chosen you to go to town with her," were the words that almost tripped from Mum's lips but she said nothing. She had been a girl not so very long ago and had never quite grown up enough to forget the joy of a new friendship with a much admired girl.

Migs did not notice her lack of a reply for she was telling Mums about her plans.

"I've decided Mums that I don't want my new dress tailored like the one we saw in the show window. I want it made like Catherine's. It has a three ruffle skirt and a lacy collar and cuffs and I'm going to save my allowance and get my hair curled. You should see here; it's naturally curly and well, you'll see her soon and if I don't hurry she will be here before I'm dressed.

She hurried from the kitchen with her freshly ironed garments and came down into the hall fifteen minutes later looking very different.

Her hair seemed to spring away from her head in waves and her dress billowed about her. She was ready.

And not a moment too soon for there was a patter of feet upon the porch and a moment later Catherine stood before her.

"Oh," she said. Then she looked again at Migs then at the house number. "I must have made a mistake. I was looking for Migs Gray. Does she live here? Are you her sister?"

Migs held the door open and had begun to laugh. "This is just too perfect. You didn't even know me?"

Catherine was looking embarrassed. "I hope you'll pardon me if I made a mistake. You see I met so many girls last night I suppose I could have remembered Mig's sister."

"No, for she hasn't a sister. I'm Mildred Ione Gray and the girls call me Migs but I decided I'm going to be different in the future. I'm going to be like the others you know and not such a little stick-in-the-corner. So I've begun to make the change and I hope you'll like me better—"

"But why? I liked you so much more the other way I noticed you the minute you came in and told Auntie you were the sort of girl I had been looking for. I liked everything about you and when I talked to you and found you like to read and that you liked the same sort of books I do and all that I was delighted. Auntie and Martie said every one liked you and I said I wanted to know you better right away that I was afraid you were too good to be true and tried to be like other girls."

"But I did all this for you. I was so crazy to have you keep on liking me so I tried to be like other girls."

Catherine's happy laugh rang out. "Then you really are Mildred Ione Gray and it was Migs I wanted? Please be Migs again won't you?"

Mildred Ione asked Catherine to wait a few moments and ran to her room. She was laughing too as she smoothed the wave out of her hair with a damp brush and put on her tailored blue.

She was smiling as she appeared before Catherine later ready for their walk to town. Catherine was smiling too as she said: "Please don't ever try to be anyone but Migs. I know I'm going to like you a lot and if you will be my friend it's going to be great. Mildred Ione Gray may be a very nice girl too but it's Migs that I loved first."—Leader.

LESS—MORE

Eat less—chew more.
Ride less—walk more.
Clothe less—bathe more.
Worry less—work more.
Idle less—sleep more.
Waste less—give more.
Frown less—laugh more.
Scold less—pray more.
Talk less—think more.
Preach less—practice more.
—From a Cafeteria.

Upon the Christian's path shines the light of Truth; the way of the evildoer is obscured by the shadows of error.

Christianity is exclusive; it keeps out the impure; Christianity is inclusive; it takes in all who want to be pure.

The man who is big enough to admit his mistakes avoids making the gigantic mistake of trying to appear infallible.

LYNCHBURG COLLEGE SENIOR COLLEGE FOR MEN AND WOMEN

Membership in Southern Association of Colleges

Rates Reasonable—For Catalog and full information write to

J. T. T. HUNDLEY, President

Lynchburg, Virginia

DANVILLE MILITARY INSTITUTE
Danville, Virginia

Owned and controlled by the Synod of Virginia.

Fully accredited by standardizing agencies.

The aim is Christian culture, character and citizenship.

Charges $600 per session.

School opens September 18th.

Ask for Catalog

COL. W. M. KEMPER, Supt.

PEACE INSTITUTE

Raleigh, North Carolina

OWNED by the Presbyterians of North Carolina

COURSES OFFERED: (1) College courses for first and second year work; (2) Preparatory courses; (3) Special courses in Art, Music, Home Economics and Commercial subjects.

WORK ACCEPTED BY: (1) The North Carolina State Department of Education; (2) All colleges and universities in North Carolina, and by many colleges without this state.

SPECIAL FEATURES: (1) Individual attention to students; (2) Limited number of students; (3) Intimate home surroundings; (4) highly trained faculty; (5) Wholesome religious atmosphere. (6) Modern equipment.

Register Now for Fall Session of 1929-1930

For catalogue, book of views and other literature, write to William C. Pressly, President, Peace Institute, Raleigh, N. C.

THE RIGHT WAY TO TRAVEL

is by train. The safest. Most comfortable. Most reliable. Costs less. Inquire of Ticket Agents regarding greatly reduced fares for short trips.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Church and Sunday School Furniture

Send For Special Catalogue
THE SOUTHERN DESK COMPANY

Hickory, N. C.

BOILS Relieve the pain and draw them quickly to a head

— with —

GRAY'S OINTMENT

At all drug stores. For free sample write
W. F. Gray & Co., 724 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Nervous Women Praise Capudine

Delicately poised women who suffer from high nerve strain and nervous pains, such as periodic pains, headache and pains in the back and sides are high in their praise of Capudine because it quickly soothes the tense nerves and relieves the pain.

Being liquid, Capudine acts almost instantly,—does not upset the stomach. Sold by druggists in 30c and 60c sizes. (adv.)

YOUR CHURCH deserves a beautiful exterior in harmony with its spirit of culture and worship. Let us suggest appropriate shrubbery.

THE HOWARD-HICKORY CO., Hickory, N. C.
Local Representatives Wanted, especially to sell fruit trees.
Landscape Gardeners and Nurserymen

STANBACK QUIETS NERVES

6 6 6

is a Prescription for Colds, Grippe, Flu, Dengue, Bilious Fever and Malaria.
It is the most speedy remedy known.

WEAK EYES are strengthened and relieved by Dickey's old reliable eye water. In use over half a century. Relieves sore eyes from gnats and dust. Doesn't hurt. In red folding box at all good stores or by mail 25c.

Dickey Drug Co. Bristol, Virginia

OVER-RUNS AND MILL ENDS SAVE ONE-THIRD ON CLOTH DIRECT FROM LOOM TO YOU

Cotton Flannels, Pillow Tubings, Sheetings, Crinkled Cloth for Bedspreads, Pajama Checks, Chambrays, Tinted Dimities, Gingham, Art Silk Striped Madras for men's and boys' Shirts. Write for free samples and prices.
MONAGHAN MILL STORE, Dept. A., Greenville S. C.
"Textile Center of the South"

Expert Kodak Finishing

Developing and printing by experts. Most beautiful work guaranteed. Developing and printing 6 exposure rolls as follows: Size 1 1/2x2 1/4, 40c; 2 1/4x3 1/4, 40c; 2 1/4x4 1/4, 46c; 3 1/4x5 1/4, 52c; Film packs, 12 exposures, 2 1/4x3 1/4, developing and printing, 85c. Other sizes in proportion. Quick delivery.
LIGON'S DRUG STORE : Spartanburg, S. C.

S P A R K L E S

He Took No Chances, But—

He brushed his teeth twice a day with a nationally advertised tooth-paste.

The doctor examined him twice a year.

He wore his rubbers when it rained.

He slept with the windows open.

He stuck to a diet with plenty of fresh vegetables.

He relinquished his tonsils and traded in several worn-out glands.

He golfed—but never more than 18 holes at a time.

He got at least eight hours sleep every night.

He never smoked, drank or lost his temper.

He did his daily dozen daily.

He was all set to live to be a hundred—

The funeral will be held next Wednesday. He is survived by eighteen specialists, four health institutes, six gymnasiums, and numerous manufacturers of health foods and anti-septics.

He had forgotten about trains at grade crossings.—Connecticut Industry.

He—"You should see the new altar in our Church."

She—"Lead me to it!"

—Boston Transcript.

"Why do snowflakes dance?"

"I imagine they are practicing for the snowball, sir." — West Point Pointer.

"I can do two things at once."

"Which?"

"I can read writin'."

—Colgate Banter.

"Could you give a poor fellow a bite?" asked the dust stained tramp.

"I don't bite, myself," answered the lady of the house, "but I'll call the dog."—Northwestern Purple Parrot.

"Here's some new stuff right off the boat," said the shark as he swallowed the guy that fell off the ship.—Brown Jug.

A modern girl is one who can meet the wolf at the door and come out with a fur coat.—Phi Delta Theta.

Well, It Might Be

Caller: "Look here, I want to see you about this paragraph announcing my resignation from the Chamber of Commerce."

Editor—"But it's quite true, isn't it?"

Caller: "Quite. But I should like you to explain why you've printed it under 'Public Improvements.'"—Ex.

Too Expensive

"Abe," said Mrs. Cohen, "I was looking at the nicest bedroom suite today and, would you believe it, it only cost one hundred and ninety-five dollars!"

"Vot!" exclaimed Cohen, "a hundred and ninety-five dollars for a bed-room soot. Don't buy it, I can wear my old pajamas."—Ex.

The Last Word

A certain Kansas farmer was observed by his wife to be unusually pensive. "A penny for your thoughts!" she remarked.

"I was thinking, my dear," he said, "what epitaph I should put on your tombstone."

As his spouse was in perfect health, naturally, she resented this undue thoughtfulness.

"Oh, that's easy!" she responded briskly. "Just put 'Wife of the Above.'"

It's sad to think that we shall never know what kind of cigarettes were responsible for the manly virtues of George Washington and Andrew Jackson.—Nashville Southern Lumberman.

Chicora College for Women

The Presbyterian College of South Carolina

Standard College Courses Large, Strong Faculty
Beautiful Grounds Ideal Surroundings
Healthful Climate Moderate Rates

For Catalog and Information, Address

S. C. Byrd, D.D., LL.D., President, Columbia, S. C.

FORTY-SIX YEARS CONTINUOUS SERVICE WITHOUT A LOSS ON ANY LOAN

We offer you a safe, tax-free investment for your regular weekly or monthly savings and your lump sum. Write for particulars.

ASSETS OVER $8,800,000.00

The Mutual Building and Loan Association

Established 1881

CHARLOTTE

If In Doubt, Take B. & L. Shares

You will earn the highest interest rate on your savings consistent with perfect safety, and pay no tax on your savings. Shares cost twenty-five cents per week and usually mature in 3.33 weeks. Net you 6 1/2 per cent maturity.

Series Open in January, April, July and October

Mechanics Perpetual Building & Loan Association

Established 1883

18 E. Fourth St.

Charlotte

THE WINTHROP DESK, $75

The Governor Winthrop desk has come down to us from the very earliest beginning of America. In the one shown here every detail has been copied minutely. It is made in Grand Rapids which is an assurance of its fine quality. Others, varying in size from $70 to $145.

W.T. McCOY & Co Home Furnishers

423-425 SOUTH TRYON STREET
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

For the Future

Are you making ready share in the opportunity which increasing prosperity will bring?

A Reserve Fund Banked Will Help

"National Bank Safety For Savings"

Charlotte National Bank

Resources Over $5,000,000.00

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

Religious Newspaper for the

Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.

OGES, D.D., Editor-in-Chief
LLS, D.D., Co-Editor
SPER WILLIS, Contributing Editor

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 1, 1858

M. F. ELLIS, Vice-President
REV. J. G. GARTH, Treasurer and News Editor
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
BY PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY

CHARLOTTE, N. C., SEPTEMBER 4, 1929

No. 36

Donald College Prepares for Work

Donald College to Open September 12—With Some Changes in Endowment Campaign Progressing

Donald College, Red Bank, N. C., will begin its 34th college session on September 10, 1929.

Acceptance of two members, and the faculty is returning. These positions are filled by Mrs. L. B. Johnson, who will be head of the Biological Department, and Mr. Alvin Johnson, who will be a professor of the School of Music. Both positions are recommended.

C. G. Vardell, president of the college, attended the Bible Conference at the North Carolina State Fair, N. Y. During the conference, Mrs. Mary Johnson, Dean of the college, has been traveling in Norway. Miss Annie Webb and Mr. H. Clarke, on the continent; Mr. A. H. Strick, on the coast; Mr. J. C. Glenn has been at the University of North Carolina; Miss Eucebia Shuler, Geo. M. L. Sanderson, Har-

Prepare to Open Fall Term

of Presbyterian "A" College Will Begin September 11

On September 11, the 72nd session of the college, Charlotte, N. C., will begin its registration of Freshmen and Sophomores. On the 12th upper class students will be registered, and on Friday, September 13, at 10 o'clock, the college will open the session of the work for the year, and the chapel.

Preparations are being put in order, and arrangements made for the reception of the student body and the year of real work. On the opening day everything will be in order.

There have been added to the faculty of Queens College, Charlotte, N. C., a number of practically every department of the college, including the Department of Philosophy, and the Department of Arts degree.

The college has been raised until it is in a position of standard. The endowment is within a few dollars of the goal set by the trustees. President Frazer says that this would be the first of December.

to Charlotte of several women bent upon the securing a Christian education. Simplifying Christian principles and conduct, means the social and religious life of the city, and the people of the whole extend a cordial welcome to the young women, and constitution upon its continuous service and use-

Davidson Getting Buildings Ready

School Opens September 12—Physical Equipment is Expanded

Expenditures approximating five thousand dollars have been made in minor improvements on college buildings and property by Davidson College this summer. A corps of workers have been busy for the past two months under the direction of F. D. Hobart, grounds supervisor, for the opening of the fall session on September 12th.

Relaying of heating pipes, painting and repairing buildings, grading on the grounds, laying of gas lines, installation of an underground power system, and additions to several buildings have been on the program. Included in the latter are two additional rooms on the president's home, which has been remodeled and repaired on the inside.

It is estimated by Mr. Hobart that around $6,000 has been spent in the last two years relaying the heating pipes on the campus of Davidson. During this summer the Martin Chemical Laboratory has been connected with the main system.

A two-inch gas line has been laid from the chemical building, connecting the biology and physics laboratories in the new Chambers building, and the new underground power system has practically eliminated the poles on the campus.

Repairs have been made in several rooms of the north and south barracks, constructed during the war and which are still used as housing facilities for some of the students.

A thirty-foot addition has been built to the temporary building, which has been occupied for the past several years by the physics department, but which will be taken over by the Reserve Officers' Training Corps next week. This addition enabled the R. O. T. C. to establish a 75-foot indoor rifle range.

The military department will transfer all of its equipment to the temporary building, and the lower floor of the old armory structure will be thrown into an indoor gymnasium. This building was ordered torn down last February, but the trustees rescinded this decree in order that the physical education department could have some place to carry on its work.

Ernest Milton.

Columbia Seminary Ready for Fall Work

Dr. H. W. Dubose, of Spartanburg, S. C., Will Make the Opening Address

Columbia Theological Seminary begins the session on September 5, at ten o'clock in the morning, with a welcome to the student body, followed by the formal matriculation of new students.

The outlook for the coming year is most encouraging. The registration will be the largest since the Seminary moved from Columbia to Atlanta, and those who have registered are unusually well prepared.

For the past two years it has been the custom at Columbia Seminary to

Westminster Seminary Ready to Open

New Theological Institution at Philadelphia Announces Faculty and Location

The Philadelphia Presbyterian of August 22, makes the following announcement:

The new Westminster Theological Seminary has just announced that its temporary headquarters will be at 1528 Pine Street, Philadelphia. This building has been placed at the disposal of the Seminary, rent free and tax free for the coming academic year. It is being thoroughly adapted to the Seminary's uses, and will house class rooms, an assembly room, a library, and the dining club. Rooms will be secured for the students nearby; and they will take their meals together in the headquarters building. Remodeling began last week to put the structure into the most commodious shape possible and to have all in readiness for the opening date, which has been set for September 24, 1929. The location is convenient to a number of libraries and other educational institutions, and this weighed largely in its choice.

The Committee on Faculty has announced the appointment of Dr. N. B. Stonehouse as assistant to Dr. J. Gresham Machen in the New Testament Department. Doctor Stonehouse is an alumnus of Princeton and a former Alumni Fellow in New Testament Literature. He holds the degree of Doctor of Theology from the Free University of Amsterdam. It is expected that Dr. Robert D. Wilson will be assisted in the Department of Semitic Philology and Old Testament Criticism by Rev. Allan A. MacRae, a recent graduate of Princeton Seminary, who has completed his theological study through two years of work at the University of Berlin. Dr. Oswald T. Allis will be in charge of the Department of Old Testament History and Literature.

There will be no charge made by the Seminary for room or tuition. Scholarship aid will be provided for the men who require it, so that aside from exceptional instances financial difficulties should not be a hindrance to those planning to attend.

The course is planned distinctly for college graduates, and entering students will be expected to present evidence of their graduation from an approved college and a letter of recommendation from their pastor.

In all cases it is most desirable that notice of intention to attend Westminster be sent to the Registrar, Rev. Paul Woolley, 12 South Sixth Street, Philadelphia, at the earliest possible opportunity. Gifts for the Seminary may be sent to Mr. Morgan H. Thomas, treasurer, at the same address. Among the imperative needs is an adequate library. Gifts of standard Biblical and theological works will gladly be received.

begin the session with a series of devotional and inspirational services, led by a visiting minister. This year Dr. Henry Wade DuBose, D.D., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Spartanburg, S. C., will conduct the services. It has been found that these services contribute much to the spiritual life on our campus, and they are looked forward to with eagerness by both the faculty and students.

Annual State Sunday School Convention

North Carolina Association Will Hold Meeting at Raleigh, October 2, 3, 4

The 1929 session of the Annual State Sunday School Convention, under the auspices of the North Carolina Sunday School Association, will be held in Raleigh on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, October 2, 3, 4, and all Sunday School workers and other leaders in Religious Education are most cordially enjoined to attend and share the blessings of the great program for the occasion.

The theme of the Convention will be "Bearing Witness of the Light"; and the text, "I am the Light of the World: he that followeth Me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life."—John 8:12.

The aim of the program, as indicated by the theme and text, will be to show how the Sunday School's program of religious education and evangelism, from the Cradle Roll to the Adult Class, can bear witness of Jesus as the Light of the World, lead the pupils individually to accept Him as Saviour and Guide, and bring about Christian living.

A great church leader has well said: "The united forces of evil call for the united forces of righteousness." You are invited to unite in this spiritual adventure for the sake of the childhood and youth of the State.

J. B. Ivey, State President.

L. W. Clark, Chairman
State Executive Committee.

Presbyterians, U. S. A. Over Two Million

Official Records Show Membership Largest in 141 Years—Big Increase in Contributions

For the first time in 141 years the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. has a communicant membership of more than 2,000,000 people, according to the official census made public by Dr. Lewis Seymour Mudge, Stated Clerk of the General Assembly. The exact total communicant membership is 2,004,467, a net increase of 41,629 for the church just closed. This is the largest annual net increase in the past four years.

The number of new communicants added on confession of faith was 113,995, the largest accession of new converts in the past five years. Dr. Mudge calls attention to the fact that all Presbyterian statistics relating to membership are based solely on the number of communicants in good standing, and not on the Presbyterian population or upon the number of baptized members.

The Sunday School statistics are less encouraging. The total number of Sunday School members enrolled is now 1,595,313. This is a loss of 18,700 for the year, whereas for the previous year there had been a gain of 17,498. Presbyterian Sunday Schools today have 946 fewer members than they had five years ago. Dr. Mudge points out, however, that it should be remembered, in connection with these figures, that the rolls of the Sunday Schools
(Continued on Page Two)

Jno. R. Mott Returns From World Tour

Interdenominational Missionary Leader Offers Projects for Consideration

Since the meeting of the World Student Christian Federation in India last Fall, Doctor Mott has spent eight months visiting Ceylon, India, Burma, Siam, Japan, Korea, China and the Philippines. In each country he has met with native Christian leaders to consider the next steps to be taken after the Jerusalem World Missionary Conference. "From an economic point of view the world is in a very grievous state," says Doctor Mott. "India as ever is bearing impossible economic burdens. These have never seemed so heavy and crushing as on this fourth world tour. Instead of the student centers, which have absorbed my time on previous visits, I touched on this visit numerous village communities and thus came to know first hand the appalling numbers and their dire condition. In China I had never realized the economic difficulties as I did on this trip, due to strife, widespread banditry, and more recently to famine."

Within a week after Doctor Mott's arrival in the United States he met with a score or more of American missionary leaders and suggested the following 12 projects which to his mind should be of concern to every missionary statesman:

1. That we continue the process of co-ordinating our thinking on the World Mission of Christianity as envisioned at Jerusalem with the thinking of the leading minds throughout Asia. There could be no more serious loss than for us to lose step with each other—we of the West and the leaders of the Christian forces in the East in this world mission. This will not come about as a mere matter of magic, but only as discerning church leaders familiarize themselves with what trusted missionaries and nationals are yearning over as a result of Jerusalem. If they are right and we wrong in some cases it is important that we know it.

2. That we press the advantage that has come to us with the sounding out of the Christian message at Jerusalem. This message was a work of God, a divine deliverance. It explains our unanimity, despite our differences. This message seems to have given a new sense of direction to Christian leaders in every land. We ought to multiply the number of apologetic lecturers and authors who will take this message with its tremendous implications and prepare lectures and volumes and articles that will guide thinking and further investigation in every form of world wide missions.

3. We must carry into the churches the Jerusalem ideas and ideals in religious education. Our first line emphasis should be on religious education and religious education that is highly Christian.

4. Let us render the assistance to the Christian educational program on missions in India and Japan that we have so well rendered recently in China and the Near East, not to mention other fields.

5. In the realm of relations between the younger and older churches we must press on to realize and further the ideals of Jerusalem days.

6. Everywhere I went I heard a summons to a larger evangelism. All the troubles missions and churches have been passing through in almost every great mission area may be regarded as the precursor of the greatest religious advance we have ever known. We have a great opportunity if we not only see it but seize it. In China the churches have united in an effort to double their membership in five years, this on the initiative of Dr. Cheng Ching Yi, chief executive of the National Christian Council, and also Moderator of the Christian Church in China, which includes about one-third of the Protestant Christians in China.

In Japan, Kagawa has announced the Million Souls Movement. Missionaries want him to be released and to move freely throughout Japan where today he is a flame of fire. In this summons to a larger evangelism there must be continuous, vital effort, and qualitative and intensive plans. We have got to have a larger adaptation of means to ends, especially in regard to literature prepared for special classes taking advantage of special types, like mass evangelism, social evangelism, religious retreats, and other more modern fruitful methods. God has given Cheng and Kagawa the vision, and the missionaries are getting in behind them in these plans.

7. We should help in an unhurried and thorough evaluation of the mass movements. In India ninety per cent of the present Protestant church membership are products of the mass movement. This mass movement has become so widespread that it is now influencing the castes. More than 10,000 of the upper castes have become Christians, and over 9,000 are in process of preparation. Some of the outstanding Christians and preachers of India today are converted outcasts.

8. Another important thing which we must do is to advance the solution of the Christian literature problem. The amount of available literature for the clergy and educated youth is inadequate and untimely in virtually every field. We should discover the ablest writers and secure their release for this kind of work. There is also the problem of getting literature distributed and used. We have allowed the initiative to be taken over from the Christians into the hands of the non-Christians in this matter of literature in India, China and Japan. This is alarming. I trace the cause to our divisions. There is enough brain and enough money among us to make a plan and enlist the co-operation of scholarship to meet this tremendous need. I am speaking of the great body of Christian literature that is needed. The bookstores in Japan are well stocked with non-Christian literature, and scarcely any Christian literature is in evidence. We have the leaders, but we have done nothing interdenominationally, with co-ordinate thinking and planing.

9. The next concrete thing is to augment the leadership of the Christian forces. There is a desire and need for more missionaries, expressed by nationals as well as missionaries, in every country. I do not know of a national who in a large group or a small one said that he did not want more missionaries. They said, "We must have missionaries of the highest possible preparation and qualification." It is of the greatest importance that they be those who have experienced the divine call. We must enormously augment the number of national youth who will give themselves unto death. We ought to let no second or third class men through the lines as missionaries even if we have to send much smaller numbers. The matter of their preparation has got to be studied from top to bottom. We have got to re-think this whole matter of preparation in the light of Jerusalem. I suppose it means a review of the curricula of almost every theological seminary we have.

10. Again, we must liberate a vastly greater lay force. I sensed this on the Mount of Olives. Again in Asia. We must mobilize the strongest laymen in this country, making them aware of their unique responsibility. We have to be supplemented in our world mission by laymen to whom Congressmen will listen in the matter of treaties, etc. The missionaries alone are not enough.

11. We must have some way of illustrating the conception of Jerusalem that was summed up in the word "sharing"—sharing between the East and the West, between the older and younger churches, between different nationals, individuals of various schools of thought and of various ecclesiastical backgrounds. We must share our money, our personalities, insight, experience, burdens, the deepest things of life, as well as all those things that come from revelation from the divine source.

12. It is necessary that we strengthen the hands of the National Christian Councils, near and far. There are now fourteen of these Councils in what we call the sending countries. There are fourteen in the so-called receiving countries. After Edinburgh 1910 there were only two in the world. There was no international body. Now we have our International Missionary Council which rests officially on these twenty-eight national bodies.

PRESBYTERIANS, U. S. A., OVER 2,000,000

(Continued from page 1)

are being kept with steadily increasing care, and that therefore the loss noted is probably more apparent than actual.

The widespread effort to dissolve churches having only a nominal existence and to combine churches serving practically the same constituency each year is gradually diminishing the total of individual churches, which today number 9,361, a decrease of 71 for the year. New churches organized during the year numbered 46, whereas 121 old churches were dissolved. The total number of ministers is 9,966, which is 47 fewer than the previous year.

Presbyterian churches in every state in the Union are organized into 46 synods and 295 presbyteries. The local churches are officered by 49,654 elders and 21,577 deacons.

Dr. Mudge's official annual review also shows the largest amount of money ever raised by the denomination in one year, $65,113,110, an increase of $514,580 over the previous year. Of this amount $49,450,686 was devoted to local congregational expenses, an increase of $924,907.

The total contributions to benevolences were $15,233,818, a decrease of $408,690 for the year. Miscellaneous benevolences, outside of the Presbyterian Church received a total of $3,963,208. The three major official Presbyterian Boards received an increase in donations. The contributions to these boards were as follows: National Missions, $4,404,123, a gain of $208,483; Foreign Missions, $3,806,946, a gain of $138,984; Christian Education, $26,000 a gain of $8,971.

The Board of Pensions received from the churches during the year, $423,877 for current ministerial relief, $100,859 less than the previous year. It also received $2,239,914 in payment of pledges toward the $15,000,000 endowment fund of the Laymen's Committee for the New Service Pension Plan. This fund was subscribed for on a basis of payments extending over five years. The board has received in the past three years a total of $8,264,681 toward this fund, and two more payments are still to be made on these five-year pledges.

A total of $1,097,715 was expended by self-supporting synods on benevolences within their own borders. The per capita giving of the members of the denomination in the United States for all purposes during the past year was $33.20, a decrease of 42 cents. The per capita giving to benevolences only was $7.77, a loss of 38 cents. The per capita giving to official Presbyterian Boards was $4.91, a gain of 9 cents.

Ten Largest Presbyterian Synods

New Jersey passed Ohio, and Indiana and Michigan passed Iowa, in the ranking order of the ten largest Presbyterian synods, which are as follows:

Pennsylvania first, with 372,601 members; New York second, with 265,204; New Jersey third, with 162,866; and then Ohio, with 162,318; Illinois, with 132,399; California, with 96,873; Indiana, with 68,909; Michigan, with 68,399; Iowa, with 68,244; and Missouri tenth, with 57,858.

The Ten Largest Presbyteries

In the ten largest presbyteries Los Angeles passed Philadelphia in the ranking order. The ten largest presbyteries are:

Pittsburgh, Pa., with 69,537 members; Chicago, Ill., with 49,377; and Los Angeles, Calif., with 48,853; Philadelphia, Pa., 45,725; New York City, 37,770; Brooklyn-Nassau, N. Y., 36,263; Detroit, Mich., 34,146; Philadelphia North, Pa., 33,368; Corisco, West Africa, 29,918, and Newark, N. J., with 24,304.

The figures above are taken from the Presbyterian Advance. This paper also reports 38 local churches with a membership of over 2,000. The First Church, Seattle, Wash., has 7,886. Three others have over 3,000, Los Angeles, Pasadena and Tulsa. The first Church, Seattle, had 525 accessions during the year, Superior, Wis., had 402. Twenty others had over 150 additions.

DEVOTION

PETER ON THE TRANSTION

Early one morning, Jesus
three
To a hill walk, up Tabor's Anon we reached its round
there,
Far from the gaze of me ourselves
In the immediate presence
The Master's face shone, day sun;
His garments gleamed with earth knew not.
Elijah—prophet; Moses—
These spake with Jesus, tones
Of solemn sweetness, of death.
An awful cloud appeared us all;
And from it issued forth
Divine:
"This is My Son, Belov Him."
We three fell on our afraid;
But when we looked up,
was there.
Never shall I forget that
We saw, "When with Him Mount."
Be ye disciples of the Lor
From that great hour I b will bear
My witness of the Godhea
Willi
London, England.

THE DAY AND THE

To each man is given a work for the day,
Once, and no more, he
travel the way;
And woe if he flies fro
whatever the odds,
For the task is appointed the scroll of the god

There is waiting a work
his hands can avail;
And so, if he falters, a music will fail.
He may laugh to the sky
for an hour in the
But he dare not go hence appointed is done.

To each man is given a carve for the wall—
A stone that is needed to beauty of all;
And only his soul has t
give it a grace,
And only his hands have to put it in place.

Yes, the task that is gi
man, no other can d
So the errand is waiting; i through ages for yo
And now you appear; an ones are turning the
To see what you do with in the chamber of d
—Edwin

FLORA MACDONALD FOR WORK

(Continued from page 1)
vard University; Miss L
University of Virginia. I
Morrison received her M.
Duke University in June.

Many improvements hav
in the college buildings a pus, as at all seasons of very lovely.

The campaign for endow has been in progress is b fully carried on.

The student body come eleven states—North Car
Carolina, Georgia, Florid
Mississippi, Tennessee, Ke
ginia, West Virginia, Pe and three foreign coun
Japan, Korea—and is rep
the finest type of young p

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

FOUNDED 1858

Annals of the Synod of N. C. for 70 Years

The Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as Second Class Matter

Terms—The subscription price of the Standard is payable in advance. To ministers the price is $2.50 per year. To ministers' wives the price is $2.50 per year.

The mailing label shows the month and year to which the subscription is paid. Payment in advance is required.

Orders may be made by money order, check, or registered mail. Payment in advance is required.

Obituary Notices—No charge is made for notices of less than 100 words, but for all over fifty words the charge is $1.00 per word.

Advertisements—Sent on application.

Changes—Kindly send us both old and new addresses with the desired change.

Withdrawals—Withdrawals are made only upon the written request of the subscriber. The settlement in full must be made at the same time.

Advertising and Business Communications Should be Addressed to

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

Box 869

Charlotte, N. C.

EDITORIAL

LEADERS AT MONTREAT

has shown that much of the success of a gospel meeting depends upon a good leader, but experience has also shown that a good song leader is not to be despised.

Some congregations this not such a simple matter.

One can take time to train one who is new to his ideas—but in special meetings a serious problem, and the success of the meeting depends upon the good taste of the leader.

Some known meetings to fail utterly because of the leader of song indulged in practices of singing with the ring performances in the worship of God.

Some mention the funny jokes, they would divide the congregation into parts, and then let one part to sing one verse and another to sing the other.

Some call upon the women to sing this stanza and the men that stanza—or those on the right and those on his left. Some one way of variety, that he should let those who took sugar in their coffee to sing that stanza and those who took none the other.

Some have a certain evangelist who came to sing with such a leader of music. He had a good stock of his class, and the other classes.

Some took to criticize him in this paper, saying how our friend, the evangelist, was doing it.

Some said us heartily, and gave the paper to the singer, who, however was ever afterwards cool toward us.

Some say that the Montreat has been suffering from these faults; yet there have been times when we have had such with us, as the afflicted woman in the Scriptures who received many things from many physicians.

Some say that at the last two Conferences we have been suffering from having Mr. Robert White and his wife in Noblesville, Ind., who won golden rule from every one, with the result of their reappointment for the season of the year received with joy by all.

Some say that singing at all times, whether in public or private, has always been dignified and controlled by good taste and reverence.

Some say that she is a worthy helper of her husband and together they form a team that is hard to criticize.

Some say that in the interval between this time and the next, they will be open to engagements in meetings.

Some say that we commend them to any one seeking a good leader in singing.

THERE IS NOTHING IN A NAME

Shakespeare is often quoted, because he had sounded the depth of human nature and could picture it with all its weakness, as no one has ever done.

We have him as authority that there is nothing in a name, but unfortunately our friends, the Romanists as a rule are not students of Shakespeare.

They have a custom of bestowing sacred names upon their children and their churches—a custom that always grates upon our Protestant ears.

They seem to imply that some virtue goes with the name, though experience, should, by this time, convince them that Shakespeare was right when he taught the nothingness of a name.

When, in the northwest they name one of their churches "The Sacred Heart of Jesus," they doubtless imagined that their members would be peculiarly blessed by reason of this name whom we all adore as our Redeemer and Lord.

Events following the giving of the name, however, prove that no secret power goes with it, for the secular press informs us that the two vital factions not only met in conflict, but really murdered members of the opposing gangs.

We, Protestants, revere that name too highly to use it flippantly. We regard it as a name that is above every name, and we hopefully look forward to the day, when, at the name of Jesus every knee shall bow and every tongue confess that He is Lord, to the glory of God the Father.

We believe that there is far more virtue in that name when enshrined in the hearts of believers than blazoned upon shields and banners, or bestowed upon children or churches.

The bane of Christianity in all ages has been this regard for the external.

The Pharisees asked Jesus when the Kingdom of God should come, as if its coming would be with the blare of trumpets and the waving of banners.

His answer was "The Kingdom of God cometh not with observation." "Behold, the Kingdom of God is within you."

Men still imagine that nothing can be real unless it have external form; hence this clamor for external union, a gust of sentiment that swept the Southern Assembly off its feet.

Binding together in one great organic whole the various branches of the Presbyterian Church will not necessarily insure spiritual oneness, but if the past teaches any truth it teaches that churches often realize more unity of spirit when apart than when externally united.

At present these various Presbyterian bodies, though apparently apart, are one in faith and doctrine.

They respect each other, and, with the exception of a ripple here and there, they are like a smooth and peaceful sea. If we were united, it is probable there would be bickering and strife, and the last state of the Church would be worse than the first. "The letter killeth, but the Spirit giveth life."

THE FOES OF RELIGION

Since the world began and the Church was founded, it has been a bitter fight to hold its own. The foes of the Church in all ages have been within and without, and of the two the Church has found that the inner foes do more harm than the outer ones.

Our Lord in picturing the future to his disciples, said "A man's foes shall be they of his own household," and through the thousands of years that have passed, the Church of God has found this to be true.

The Church has had reason to pray to be delivered from her friends, because they have done more to weaken confidence in the divine mission than the open assaults of her enemies.

There friends of the Church, instead of helping the cause of religion, often assume a pious attitude that is nothing more than pious ignorance. In the Church there are some minds that receive the truth with readiness, like the good ground receiving the seed, in the parable of the Sower.

Either by inheritance or by natural endowment, they incline to religion—that is, they are more teachable. There are others, however, and they are largely in the majority, who question very truth—constitutionally they are doubters.

Even after they have become Christians, they constantly struggle with doubts. It will not do to deal with two classes in the same way.

We must recognize the doubt, and then try to meet it, not by pious platitudes, but by reasoning and with facts.

Then there is another class—men with scientific minds, who, knowing that every effect must have a cause, and who seek that cause.

They study the laws of nature as the cause of every effect, because they recognize the truth that this great world is run by law.

They see law in every event, and it would be useless to say to such men that God interferes whenever He pleases, and suspends these laws, and by direct miraculous power brings events to pass.

When some zealous believers, imagining that he is thereby glorifying God's power, by making such a statement, these men are repelled, and they at once imagine that the Church is responsible for such beliefs.

Before the individual communion cup became as common, as it is to-day, there was much discussion, and many foolish statements were made by those urging that no change should be made.

When it was argued that the mutual communion cup spread disease, this argument was met by some foolish answers. A bishop in the Northwest publicly stated that the Lord would protect His own children when using the communion cup, though on the grounds of health such a cup ought not to be used.

He further stated that there had never been a case of disease contracted under such circumstances.

A high Church woman in Minnesota, in a public letter to her Church paper, a few years back, seriously argued that "the wine, being the blood of our Lord, will by its own divine power cleanse from all taint the channels appointed by Him through which we are to receive it."

In reply to this argument, a skeptical physician said, "There is nothing wrong with religion—It's the brand they hand out to us."

"Will ministers never understand that it is just such absurd teachings as the one quoted that alienate doctors and other thinking men from the Church?"

"Why is it, if the Lord will not permit disease to be transmitted through the medium of a common communion cup, that He permits the transmission of a vile disease, such as syphilis, from an immoral husband to a right-minded, God-fearing wife?"

"Why is it if He guards His own with such shepherd-like care, that He permits an innocent child to come into the world with this same vile disease?"

There are homes where every law of health is violated, yet when death claims a loved one, some pious soul with the best intentions, assures the bereaved ones that they must accept the blow as a direct dispensation of Providence.

Let us remember that the Lord often permits bereavements, but that the immediate cause is always a violation of Nature's laws by some one.

No truth is more plainly taught in Scripture than that a man reaps what he sows.

The kind of religion to grip thinking men must be the kind that does not insult their intelligence.

The religion exemplified by our Lord was always that kind, so that when the apostle preached that same religion among the cultured Greeks, it appealed to their understanding.

CONTRIBUTED

A SKETCH OF THE FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Mrs. J. A. Fore

(This paper was written in 1923 at the request of the Women's Board of the First Presbyterian Church.)

In 1765 Henry McColloh, acting as agent of Augustus Selwyn, to whom the King had granted large tracts of land, donated a tract of 360 acres to the Commissioners of Mecklenburg County, for a Court House, stocks and prison. The town of Charlotte was laid off on this land in 1768. The Commissioners of the Town set apart a lot on Trade and Church streets, in 1815, to be used for religious purposes and for a cemetery. The citizens of the town erected a comfortable building thereon, which was used by the several denominations for a number of years, the principal contributors being Presbyterians.

According to Tompkins History of Mecklenburg County, in 1921, the Charlotte members of Sugar Creek Presbyterian Church petitioned to be formed into a separate congregation and the Rev. S. C. Caldwell, pastor of Sugar Creek Church, who had been preaching in Charlotte, since 1805, sometimes under the trees and sometimes in a log house, continued to preach for the Charlotte congregation, once a month until his death in 1828. On June 8, 1827, the Rev. R. H. Morrison was installed as pastor of the congregations of Charlotte and Sugar Creek, and he served these churches until April 3, 1833, when his pastoral relation with the church of Charlotte was dissolved.

The First Building

The church building was begun in 1818 but was not completed until August, 1823—when the dedication sermon was preached by the Rev. Doctor McRee of Iredell county. When the church was finished, there remained a debt of fifteen hundred dollars, ($1500.00), and the money was borrowed from the Bank of New Bern, which had an agency in the town. The commissioners of Charlotte made a corporate note for the amount which was negotiated in said bank, on condition that the title to the property be retained by them. The debt was carried by the bank until 1832 when the charter of the bank expired and the payment became a necessity. Mr. John Irwin who desired the church for the Presbyterians, proposed to the authorities, that if they would convey the property to him, he would personally pay off the debt, which was considered a great burden on the town. A deed was accordingly made to him for the property, which he later turned over to the Trustees of the Church. The sum of six hundred and forty dollars ($640.00) was raised among the Presbyterians to re-imburse Mr. Irwin—he paying the remainder. This Church should always remember with gratitude the liberality and services of Mr. Irwin in securing this property for the Presbyterians. The newer members will be interested to know that Mr. Irwin was the father of that notably good woman, Mrs. Mary Osborne, the mother of the late Judge Frank Osborne.

Organization of the Church

The Church was organized by Rev. R. H. Morrison as a Presbyterian Church on the fourth Sunday in August, 1832, with thirty-six members and Messrs. David Parks and Nathan Carrol as ruling elders. The descendants of those thirty-six members are in strong force today in the membership of this Church, or of the other churches in this city, as will be readily recognized by the names of the Alexanders, Davidsons, Smiths, Carsons, Grahams, Wilsons, Irwins, and others. There are two members of the First Church today, whose parents were among the charter members when it was organized, viz: Miss Sarah Dougherty and Miss Mag Graham. Miss Dougherty herself joined the church in 1852, and has, therefore, been a member seventy-one years.

(Note—Miss Dougherty has died since this was written.—Ed.)

Miss Dougherty and Mrs. Margaret Springs Kelly both say, the pulpit in the old church was very high and had to be reached with stairs, and the pews had high backs and doors which were closed when the family went within. It has been impossible to find out what became of the old pulpit and pews when this first church was torn down to make room for the new church which was built in 1857, but the building was bought by Mr. Tiddy, the father of Miss Sarah Tiddy, recently deceased, and he built his home of the brick and any other good material he could use. This house is intact and is owned by Doctor Wilder who lives in it. Doctor Wilder says there is a stained glass window in the north side of the house, and also the beautiful stairway and several doors are from the old church. Miss Sue Boyd and Mrs. Kelly also corroborate these facts.

Pastors of the Church

Eight godly ministers served this old Mother Church of Charlotte from 1832 up to and through the War Between the States. The Rev. Alexander Sinclair, the last of these was pastor from 1857-1865. It was during his pastorate that the Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church which had divided itself from the Presbyterian Church of the U. S. A. in the early years of the war, met in 1864 in this church—I might say in this very building, because the church which was built in 1857 (the congregation worshipping in the Court House in the interval) was only enlarged and improved in 1894, when the last change was made, with the exception of the recent addition to the Sunday School, made possible by a gift from the late Mr. Burroughs. Dr. Joseph R. Wilson, the father of President Woodrow Wilson, was the clerk of the Assembly when it met here in 1864 according to an account of the Assembly published in an issue of the "Daily Bulletin" of Charlotte, N. C., dated May 8, 1864, which is prized as a relic in the possession of Mrs. Samuel Pelham, formerly Miss Mary Sinclair, a daughter of the Rev. Alexander Sinclair, who was pastor at that time.

Dr. A. W. Miller had the longest pastorate, serving the Church from 1865-1892. Since that date four beloved ministers have successively filled the pulpit of this Church and have passed to their reward. These were Dr. John A. Preston, Dr. J. R. Howerton, Dr. Morris Kincaid, and Dr. D. H. Rolston.

Dr. A. S. Johnson is the honored pastor of the First Presbyterian and has been since 1918.

The General Assembly Meeting

The Southern Assembly has met in this church three times, an unusual honor for so small a city, and evidently a tribute to its loyal Presbyterianism. We all recollect the recent Assembly presided over by that distinguished son of Piedmont North Carolina—Dr. Walter Lingle; but I wish to call attention to the Assembly that met here in 1897 when the Rev. Doctor Howerton had just come to Charlotte. That Assembly was noted for two reasons because it commemorated the 250th anniversary of the Westminster Assembly and also because Doctor Wilson was Stated Clerk of that Assembly just as in 1864. The history of that Charlotte Assembly with all the speeches and sermons delivered at this 250th celebration, has been published in book form and a copy is in the Carnegie Library. Dr. Walter Moore in a letter written to his niece in Charlotte, who made inquiry at the request of the writer, has this to say of that Assembly: "I think it was at the meeting of the General Assembly at Charlotte in 1897 when it celebrated the 250th anniversary of the Assembly of Westminster divines who formulated our Confession of Faith and Catechisms, that I saw the three eminent ministers mentioned, Dr. Robert Dabney, the greatest theologian our Church ever produced and for many years professor of Systematic Theology at our Seminary; Dr. Moses Hoge, who was for fifty years pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, in Richmond, and Dr. Joseph R. Wilson, father of President Woodrow Wilson. Doctor Wilson had been a Professor in Columbia Theological Seminary, Pastor of the First Church at Wilmington, N. C., Professor in the South Western Presbyterian University, and at the time I speak of, 1897, he was Stated Clerk of the General Assembly."

First Church in Charlotte

This Church antedated the beginning of all the one hundred or more churches in this city. It set up the beacon light of Christianity and Presbyterianism in the midst of this community, saying to all the world, As for us of the town of Charlotte, we will serve the Lord. It was the only church for many years and the only Presbyterian Church for a half century, but it grew and waxed abundantly, until the year 1873 it was thought advisable to form another church—the Second Presbyterian Church. Up to this time it had been called the Presbyterian Church, but with the advent of the new Church it changed automatically to the First Presbyterian Church. There is something in a name after all. Presbyterianism has grown until now there are twelve churches in our midst, all direct offshoots of these two Churches.

The First Church and Patriotism

I have wished in this paper to stress particularly the force for righteousness this Church has been in the history of this section and also how it touched the patriotic and social life of the people. During the war between the States, the Church bells all over the South were called for by the Confederate government to be melted into ordinance guns, etc. The historical department of the general body of the U. D. C. asked for information as to the churches that had given bells and for any interesting history connected therewith. The writer was designated to secure the history of the Charlotte bells, and learned from Clark's Regimental history that the church bells of this city were made into guns and cannon for Brem's Battery commanded by the father of Mr. Walter Brem. There were but few churches here at the time and all, including the Presbyterians voted to give their bells. This Church was historic in so many ways that the people of the town could not bear to sacrifice the bell that had rung for church services, wedding and funerals of the community for more than a generation. At a public meeting it was decided that the Court House bell should be taken as a substitute, and the Presbyterian bell be placed in the Court House, which stood where the Selwyn Hotel is located. During the remainder of the war and for many years after, this was the only bell in the town and was rung for the services of all the churches, for the Court and for fires. These facts were related to the writer by Mr. Jack Myers, Mr. Parks and Mrs. Margaret Kelly. Chief Orr, of the Charlotte Police told the writer that when the old Court House was torn down to make way for the Hotel, the old bell was removed and placed in the Ninth Street Graded School, which had just been completed. There it hangs today, calling the children to their school duties regularly. The Chief said his father, who had lost an arm in the war of the Sixties, was made a policeman immediately on his return, and it was his duty to ring the Court House bell for all purposes, and when it was no longer necessary, he still rang it on News Year's Eve every year, which Chief Orr still continues in memory of his father for patriotic reasons. So the old bell is in the Charlotte History—and Confederate history quest of the writer, Chief Orr with two other men went up into the tower of the Ninth Street Church weeks ago to examine the old bell. He says he is writing on it that he could discover but the hanger were hand-wrought, the clapper was its striking sides and the bell is worn to strikes, showing its great age. It would seem the old bell should be safe-guarded and prized as a relic by the City and the patriotic societies.

Daily Prayer meetings were held in this church in the early years of the war, according to an old possession—"The N. C. Whig," dated September 1851. A part of the leading editorial that day reads: "Since Monday the 9th inst., a daily prayer meeting for the prosperity of the Confederacy and the arms, has been held in the Presbyterian Church at eight o'clock in the morning. The meetings of the different denominations attend and lead alternate."

The Off Shoots of the First Church

Davidson College was established by the Rev. H. Morrison, the first pastor of this Church organization as a Presbyterian Church and has been a liberal contributor to the College and money. Doctor Morrison was also the founder of Davidson College.

The First and Second Churches were instrumental in converting the old Charlotte into the Presbyterian College for Women, Queens College; and in establishing the Hospital and the Rescue Home—both Churches making large donations to these causes every year.

Barium Springs, however, is the outgrowth of a home established in Charlotte by a few women, mostly if not altogether from this city, nearly as I can learn these were Mesdames: Mrs. Rane, C. M. Gibbon, S. M. Howell, W. W. Reading and L. L. Sanders, all of whom were their reward, but their works do live after them. (home accomplished so much good for poor girls?) that the Presbyterians took it over and the Synod of North Carolina. It became necessary to enlarge the building and have more spacious quarters. The Synod decided to move the Orphanage to Barium Springs because land could be bought there than in the City. How great trees from the Carolina Synod having its beginning right in Charlotte and at first altogether the work of those benevolent women.

The Sunday School was probably started by the note from Tompkins' History that a Sunday School Union was formed in the town during that time.

Distinguished Sons and Daughters

Some of the most distinguished men and women of the South have been members of this Church. Among them were: Gen. D. H. Hill, one of the greatest of the Confederacy, who was also an honored legislator; General Vance and his first wife; General Barre's first wife, and Mrs. Stonewall Jackson. Mrs. M. Jackson, the first Mrs. Barringer and Mrs. B. wife of Col. John Brown, were daughters of the First Church, the President and founder of the College—all of these sisters were members of the Church. The lives of Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. Brown are up in the history of the Church and the beautiful Christianity, their gentle and generous natures is like the fragrance of a lovely flower which we knew them. Edward Kidder Graham, Professor at the University of North Carolina, was reared in the Church and the great truths he learned here had a profound influence on the lives of the thousands of students at the University whom he influenced in his short life. Dr. J. H. Raleigh, former President of the A. & E. College, a son of the First Presbyterian Church. Dr. Walter Moore, President of Union Theological Seminary, one of the greatest preachers of the Presbyterian Church, a Gamaliel in wisdom as he presides over the Seminary in Richmond, always speaking of having been reared in this old church. Dr. J. H. Osborne, Judge Victor Barringer, Gen. J. H. Osborne, who was an elder for thirty-three years, and many other noted names could be found in the history of our Church.

Three missionaries have gone to the foreign field from our Church—these are Miss Mary now Mrs. L. L. Moore, the late Miss Milburn and Miss Maud Carson. Mr. Alan Craik, a member, is a missionary to Africa, sent out by the Church of Winston. Other than Dr. V. These are Revs. Edmund Brown, who died in 1865, Morrison Brown, Walter Walsh and

The Spacious Church Yard

Our beautiful churchyard, which is the pride of all visitors to Charlotte, has served this community as a gathering place for many occasions. These stand out as marking notable historical events according to the history of Gen. Joseph Graham. The grand celebration of the 20th of May was held in the "grove" of the Presbyterian Church. The people, says "The enthusiasm of the immense number of people, was beyond anything ever witnessed. The revolutionary soldiers wore satin badges marked mor Swain was present and reviewed the stand in the grove was wreathed in general Wm. Polk led the military and Mr. Judge James Osborne) read the Declaration. was delivered by Franklyn Smith, Esq., and h by General Graham the guest of honor." lux Klan of the seventies, an organization e Anglo-Saxon race in the South, held its e basement of the church, where they were the signal—a weird whistle. As many of of the Klan were members of the Church, they met at this place with the sanction of The writer was personally told this fact by or Brenizer, by the late Mr. W. E. Shaw, Wilson and Mrs. Margaret Springs Kelly. s audience will ever forget the dense crowd 2,000 that assembled in the churchyard at the Chapman-Alexander meeting, to bid an effec- ell to Dr. and Mrs. Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. r. Brown and Mr. Rock. None of us realized to be a final farewell indeed, in the case of man and Mr. Alexander, for they both passed est shortly afterward. The last great assem- people on these grounds was on the occasion ue to the 120th Regiment of the 30th Divi- sion that had broken the Hindenburg line, North and South Carolinians and Ten- re was a great outpouring of people from part of North and South Carolina. One of ing Generals of the 30th Division was pres- the Colonel of the Regiment. Tables set were loaded with every kind of delectable y the appetites of the returned soldiers. All r how the crowd had to scamper into the Sunday School to get out of the deluge of er boys themselves ducking under the tables ds full.

recent great war the First Presbyterian d over the auditorium of the Sunday School m to the soldiers at Camp Green in train- g to be sent to France. It was fitted up with chairs and tables and supplied with writ- magazines and news papers. The grounds to them and seats placed along the walks. mon sight to see them sitting in groups or green sward. Supper was furnished by the Church every Saturday night as did many tte Churches. They were also invited to nday so they need not return to camp and a full day of rest and recreation. One hun- rteen (114) young men and two young e Red Cross entered into their country's this Church and they are represented by and sixteen (116) stars on our beautiful Only one of this number, Mack DeArmon, give up his young life. Many of us feel olston none the less made the same sacri- ontracted a fatal disease while ministering al needs of the officers and men at Camp what you mean to do a week ahead, what you know you'll gain

WHAT COUNTS

All annoyances have fled;
what you dreamed and planned—opes are but a phantom band—
y's work counts.

y's work counts,
much,
n of those few painful hours;
content if there is shown product of those sacred powers guide each mind, uphold each hand, with the best at your command—
y's work counts."
Tenn. Dr. S. M. Glasgow.

GARDEN OF JERUSALEM

Eleanor Baldwin

sought the garden of the Lord,
April silvers flower and tree.
ex. for One adored es not see!)

held a desecrated tomb
en grave clothes folded by.
ren have no room
nor sky.)

Stranger standing in the light... why weepst thou?" He says.
e gleams too white y's gaze.)

He lie, if Thou hast borne Him hence?
ould take the Dead away."
uen radiance!—
day?)

He name! The wonder springs and grows same Voice which taught the Word. s eyes, and knows
ing Lord.

—California Christian Advocate.

EDITOR'S LOOKOUT

W. A. Gamble, Jr., Pinetops, N. C.

The second annual young people's conference of Macon Presbytery, Synod of Georgia, held at Houston Lake, near Macon, July 22 through July 29, was a decided success in every way.

The conference motto was "Approved of God," and the verse used was II Timothy 2:15, "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." A fine spirit prevailed during the entire conference and the young people, about forty in number, were earnest and did excellent work, and yet were ready to enjoy themselves and have a big time together.

The Macon Y. M. C. A. generously gave the conference the use of their camp cabins and dining hall and the meetings were held in the beautiful out-of-doors. Rev. C. F. Allen, secretary of young people's work for the Presbytery, was dean, and his wife camp dietitian; while assisting him were Rev. W. C. Sistar, business manager; Rev. W. M. Crofton, inspirational leader and camp pastor; Miss Margaret Hayes, Director of Religious Education and Young People's Work for the Presbytery; Miss Eloise Moye, Rev. C. J. Matthews, and Rev. F. E. Manning, counsellors. There were four classes: First year Bible (Mark), Second year Bible (Acts), Presbyterianism, and Stewardship. Beginning with the rising gong at 7:00, and morning prayer, until the lights went out at 10:00, the time was filled with a good program, including classes, study hour and league meeting in the morning, quiet hour and recreation in the afternoon (swimming, boating, baseball, volley ball, croquet and horseshoe throwing), vespers social period and inspirational address in the evening.

The young people were divided into two contesting sides, the Creeks and the Iroquois, points being given for attendance at sessions, work done, participation in activities, etc. The Creeks won. All delegates qualified, by their conference record, to join the Order of the Blue Stocking, which requires for the coming year daily prayer and Bible reading, regular attendance at Sunday School with prepared lesson, attendance at least at one church service every Sunday, and active participation in the program of the young people's society. Five young people volunteered for Christian work: Misses Frankie Harrell and Catherine Alley. Messrs, George Sargent, Marion Bradwell and Freeman Parker. Freeman Parker in September will begin his course at Presbyterian College of South Carolina in preparation for the ministry.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPIC

Sunday, September 15—Standing by the Bible.— Psalm 119:97-112

Leader

Our subject today is Standing by the Bible. We young folks have been taught to believe the Bible is God's Word, that it is the only guide to eternal life, and that it is the comfort of all in trouble and sorrow. We have learned from the Bible to know Jesus Christ, the Son of God and the example of mankind, and that there is no salvation except in His name. We are so certain the Bible is true, and that it cannot be destroyed that we have never given ourselves any concern that some enemies would like to see it forgotten. But as we grow older, we do discover that there are men and women who would take away the Bible and refuse to let it be the guide of men, women and children.

The time may come when we all must let our faith in the Bible be known, and take our stand by the Bible, as our friend and only hope of this life and the life that is to come. Let us think during this meeting of why we should stand by the Bible.

The Bible is God's Word

The Bible claims to be the word of God given by the Holy Spirit to holy men who were taught to write these sacred words as coming direct from God. We always read the Bible with reverence such as we do not read any other book. It is the guide of our worship at family prayers and at church, and as we listen to it we are told that we are listening to God's Holy Word. God is speaking to us through it.

There are many reasons why we believe the Bible is God's word. It tells us more about God than we can learn from nature or our own conscienceness. It has such high ideas of God as infinite, holy, true, all wise, all powerful, all just, all good. It reveals man as an immortal soul, with a moral nature that can make him like God in his conduct and character. It tells us about Jesus Christ, and his salvation from sin which afflicts all the sons of men.

It tells about the miraculous birth of Christ, his perfect nature, his death on the cross, resurrection from the grave, and many other wonderful things the mind of man could not dream. All these things make us believe this is God's word.

The Bible is the Guide of Life

The Psalmist who wrote the 119th Psalm says he loves the Bible because it teaches him wisdom. As he studies the law of God, or the Bible, he finds it teaches him things others do not know, it makes him wiser than his enemies, or even his teachers. In fact, as he reads and studies, he finds the Bible reveals to him knowledge the old men did not possess. The Bible is the book of wisdom.

The psalmist goes on to say that by studying God's law, he learns how to shape his conduct, so as to avoid the evil ways of the world and sin. It keeps him from making errors that would be costly and dangerous. If we will follow the example of this writer, and try to obey the precepts of God's law, we too shall escape mistakes and follies. We shall find the law of God is a lamp unto our feet and a guide to our path.

The Bible is the Bulwark of the Home

Another reason we should stand by the Bible is that it is the great home book. It is a guide to parents in bringing up their children, it is a mould for character of the young and enables them to find the path of right, truth, goodness, nobility, and happiness. One thing the Bible does is to teach the nature, constitution and purpose of the home. It says that human life can find its proper channel only when homes and families make a covenant with God, and parents and children all live together in the fear and love of God, and work for a common purpose, which is the glory of God and the honor of Jesus Christ.

The Bible is the bulwark of the home, and like a fortress protects soldiers from the enemy, so the Bible protects homes and families from evil and sin. We should do all we can to make the Bible the very center of our homes, and recognize it as the greatest defence of morals and happiness.

The Bible the Safeguard of the World

The Bible is also the safeguard of the world. Nations now depend on navies and armies to protect them from war and its havoc. But up to this time these things have never been effective in keeping peace between nations. The statesmen of the great nations are afraid of each other, and keep on building ships and arming men to fight against other nations. If they would only try to live up to the doctrines of Christ and the Bible, they could scrap their navies and send their soldiers home to live in peace. If the Golden Rule, Do unto others as you would have them do unto you, were the law of nations as it is the law of Christians, righteousness and fraternity would make a greater protection than all the cruisers, and airplanes the nations could build.

The Church is saying to the rulers now — Let us send our missionaries to convert the heathen, let us mingle with other people in the worship of Jesus Christ, let us talk about brotherhood, kindness, charity, peace, and goodwill, and you may scrap your navies and turn your swords into plowshares. The Bible is the safeguard of the world.

How May We Young People Stand by the Bible?

The young people are recognized as having a great power now. The time was when they were not considered of any force. But now the young people are asked to study the things that will help them to become important factors in the Church and even in the state. As young people then we must stand by the Bible, because it is our guide and brings us salvation from sin.

How then shall we stand by the Bible? First, let us be known as Christians who love and revere the Bible, and who have made it their standard. Second let us study it in private, in school, in church, in our society. Third, let us go to those colleges and schools which reverence the Bible. Our Christian colleges are built for this purpose, and we should carefully consider going to these colleges for our education and training.

Let us ever defend the Bible and declare our belief that it is God's word and the only hope of life and salvation in this world and the world to come.

ANOTHER PLEA FOR CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

Editor Presbyterian Standard:

There appeared in the columns of the Presbyterian Standard a few weeks ago an article by Rev. W. A. Gamble apropos to the work of our young people's societies. The article was forcefully written and it sets forth the position that many of us hold.

There are some folk in our Church who feel that the Church should foster a purely denominational organization for our young people. They claim that an interdenominational society cannot serve the best interests of the Church. These brethren are honest in their conviction and no one would think of imputing to them anything but the purest motive. On the other hand there are many who were reared in the Christian Endeavor Society and they find in it all that is necessary for the development of young minds and hearts. Many of our ministers and missionaries owe much to the influence of this society. They find Christian Endeavor adequate for all cultural purposes for the young people. Why change, they ask?

Should sentiment warrant it, the General Assembly would be justified in withdrawing from Christian Endeavor and establishing a denominational organiza- (Continued on page 12)

JESUS IN THE GHETTO

(On Thursday morning, August 8, at 11 o'clock in the Anderson Auditorium, Montreat, N. C., the Rev. H. A. Keigerman, Director of the Emmanuel Neighborhood House, Baltimore, Maryland and Editor of the "Hebrew Messenger" spoke on the subject of: "Jesus in the Ghetto.")

He went on to say "the Jew" and "the Church" are inseparable and yet how separate! The Jew and the Church—how near—and yet—how far. Of all the nations of the world the Jewish nation has lived longer among the Christian nations and yet the Jew today is the most misunderstood man. He is misunderstood socially, politically, but above all, religiously. To remove this misunderstanding (went on the speaker) is a privilege and a duty, especially in connection with the spiritual state of the Jew of today. Christian people have been accustomed to think that above all other peoples, the Jew is united religiously, but this is not so. There was a time when every Jew worshipped the only true God, the God of his Fathers. There was a time when God's voice was heard in Israel's Camp, but today there are many voices in Israel.

1. There is the voice of Orthodoxy.

This voice calls young and old to go back to the old paths, to believe in God, the Bible, but in addition to this fundamental belief young and old are called upon to also follow the teachings of the Rabbis and all of these precepts numbering in all 613. How is this voice followed? My answer is: Very few are those in these days who live up to the teachings of orthodox Rabbinical Judaism. The orthodox Jew is disappearing with the breaking of the Ghetto walls.

2. Then there is the voice of Reformed Judaism calling men and women, especially those who have taken off the yoke of Rabbinism to follow its teachings. That is, to be a Reformed Jew there is no need to believe in the Bible as the word of the living God, or the personal coming of the Messiah, or to live up to all of the teachings of the Rabbis. In other words, this voice invited the Jew to become Gentilized. Has this voice been successful? Very few are those who have left the Rabbinical Judaism have united with the reformed movement. Reformed Jews are to be found in every city of this country but they are few in numbers.

3. Then there is the voice of Zionism. This voice has attracted many of Israel's children. It has almost become a religious cult, but it is very far from religion. Most of the leaders of Zionism are non-believers. Some of them have been atheists, but it has attracted many because of the nationalistic spirit of today; also because of the idealism it carries with it. There is another voice in the Ghetto of today.

4. The voice of radicalism. I need not mention the well known fact that practically in all of our radical movements Jews take the upper end. Those who left orthodoxy because of its burdens and who could not find any satisfaction or fellowship in the reform movement have united with Zionism and Socialism and Bolshevism are to be found in many other brands of Radicalism. Then there are other voices calling and claiming many of God's ancient people. There is the voice of Christian Science to which great numbers of Jews are flocking. It is said that one hundred thousand Jews of the city of New York belong to Christian Science. Spiritualism, Theosophy and Catholicism are claiming many adherents among the Jews.

Such is the spiritual state of the Jew of today, and yet his hunger is unmistakable and very noticeable. In his wanderings he is always in search for that which would be satisfying and so it is the privilege of the Jewish Missionary to add his voice among these conglomerations of voices within Jewry of today. How is this voice heard? Our answer to this is: That never before was the message of Christ as acceptable as it is today and never before have we witnessed a movement Christward as we do in this our own day.

Only twenty-five years ago when the name of Jesus was mentioned that a Missionary was hissed, spit upon, if not stoned. But now Jews are flocking to hear the message of Christ, not only where the Jews are in the minority but even where Jews are in great numbers. Four centuries the Jewish name was never mentioned in any of the Jewish writings. At no time during the past nineteen centuries have we had a Life of Christ written by a representative Jew. Within the last eighteen years and especially since the War over a half dozen of Lives of Christ have been written by great Jewish scholars.

Only recently a well known Jewish business man of Denver, Colorado, called upon the Jewish leaders everywhere to call together a great Sanhedrin (71 men learning and piety) to spend much time in research and deliberation in the re-examining the Life and Trial of Christ. What does it all mean? It means that a Jew, having shaken off the teachings of the Rabbis and having come in contact with a civilization that permeated by the spirit of Christ finds himself restless and in his restlessness he is continually searching for the truth. Are we as followers of the Lord Jesus ready to give unto them the Bread of Life? God grant that we may not withhold from them the Christ, Israel's Own Messiah.

Men-of-the-Church

Presbyterian Church in the United States

REV. J. E. PURCELL, D.D., Executive Secretary
HENRY GRADY BUILDING
ATLANTA, GEORGIA

REV. JOHN L. FAIRLY, D.D., Wilmington, N. C.,
Editor in Charge of Men-of-the-Church Department

A NEVER-ENDING CHALLENGE

As we face the tide of indifference and skepticism that is sweeping the world as an accompaniment to the material prosperity of the present day, the wise words of Woodrow Wilson need to be blazoned again around the world: "The sum of the whole matter is this, that our civilization cannot survive materially unless it be redeemed spiritually. It can be saved only by becoming permeated with the spirit of Christ and being made free and happy by the practices which spring out of that spirit. Only thus can discontent be driven out and all the shadows lifted from the road ahead. Here is the final challenge to our churches, to our political organizations, and to our capitalists—to every one who fears God or loves his country. Shall we not all earnestly co-operate to bring in the new day?"

The conservativeness of the South held in check for a long time the spirit of irreverence and lawlessness that was so prevalent in other parts of our common country, but we have been caught in the drift of a dangerous tide, and there is a distinct lowering of the spiritual level of our churches, and a loss of the old evangelistic passion. Our state institutions are centers of infidelity and atheism, which are taught under the euphonious title of "Scientific Research," with the result that our young people come home with their reverence for sacred things shattered, and their outlook on life badly distorted.

Chief Justice Taft truly says, "The weakest spot in our civilization is the American home," and the evidences of the lack of parental instruction and home discipline are seen in the alarming increase of juvenile delinquency, and the growing contempt of youth for the conventions of good society and even for the laws of the land. We have ceased to be shocked at such statements as "The average age of girls in delinquent homes has dropped from 24 years to 16 years; that 60 per cent of our criminals are under 26 years of age; and that nearly 33 1-3 per cent of crimes of all grades are committed by youths under 21 years of age." We should also awake from the delusion that "crime waves" are the peculiar product of the great centers of population. Statistics show that the country areas are becoming increasingly lax in law observance, and the decline in country church membership goes hand in hand with the increase of lawlessness and infidelity. A survey just completed in Virginia reveals conditions that are typical of farming areas in other Southern states. In 1926 it was reported that only 52 per cent of the white population of Virginia were members of protestant churches, and as to enrollment in country churches per thousand, it is 15 percent larger in towns and cities than the open country. Only 34 per cent of the white rural population is enrolled in Sunday schools, against 37 per cent in towns and cities. The small membership, non-resident pastors, unattractive buildings, and failure contribute to the social as well as the spiritual well-being of the community, are some of the factors that account for the decline of the average country church.

With this picture in mind, we face the question, How is the Church to meet this challenge? She cannot relieve parents of their inescapable obligation to train and control their offspring, but she can be of incalculable help as she supplies courses in parental training, which provide for instructing and training children in matters vital to their physical, mental, social and spiritual well-being.

Reaching the neglected and under-privileged children which through every area in the South is another challenge to every Christian and to every local congregation. The Master's injunction when he would have adults brought in to the wedding feast was, "Go, compel them to come in." When children were to be reached and taught His message was "Suffer (or permit) them to come." The hungry, questioning soul of a child is ready to come if the way is open. Therefore, the privilege and obligation of the local church is to open the way by bringing the neglected youth into the home church Sunday school, and through establishing out-post mission schools. Our ministry here will be as large as we wish to make it. More than six million young children in the South are without the influence of Sunday school training. The fruitfulness of the work cannot be measured in statistical terms. Mr. John Wannamaker said, "Save an adult, and you save a unit; save a child, and you save a multiplication table."

Sunday School Extension is the method of our Church for reaching and teaching her share of the neglected youth of the South. Sunday, October 6, 1929, is our annual Rally Day, when we endeavor to rally all the forces of the congregation to the support of the Sunday School, and it is the occasion for making a liberal offering for giving Sunday School privileges to the neglected children and youth of our Southland. Send checks to R. E. Magill, Treasurer, P. O. Box 1176, Richmond, Va.

IN CENTRAL CHURCH, ATLANTA, GA.

The June meeting of the Men-of-the-Church was held on Tuesday evening with a total attendance of about 85.

The attendance trophy was won by a "dark" Division "B" with A. O. Davis in charge to ribbon from the self-made favorites, W. R. F. D. Bansley, Jr., who were tied for second.

Dr. Wade H. Boggs brought us a splendid message, using a striking text, "Send in Both." Both Dr. Boggs and his message were enthusiastically received by the men and we hope to have him again at some later meeting.

The Men's Conference of Presbytery was held Saturday and Sunday, July 27 and 28th at Camp Grounds.

FROM HULL MEMORIAL PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, SAVANNAH,

The Men-of-the-Church have undertaken to fill the gap left by the pastor in his absence on Sunday by mid-week prayer services, twenty-one services will secure supply pastor for the Sunday meetings. We feel that this will be a great tie-up and bring them all into closer and more intimate relationship with the church as we work together in this time of need.

MEN-OF-THE-CHURCH IN CHARLOTTESVILLE, VA.

Forty-nine men were present at the meeting last Monday evening. Reports indicate that work for May had been most effective and the program was extended through the next meeting which comes on June 16. In addition to the Men-of-the-Church, through their 21 groups, 21 delegates to the Intermediate and Young Men's Conferences held in June and July. The expense per delegate will be 12.50. Those desiring to see the enterprise are asked to see their group leader, Lyt Waddell who is in general charge.

PROGRAM GIVEN BY THE MEN-OF-THE-CHURCH, HIGHLAND PARK PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, DALLAS, TEXAS

"The Christian Home"

(This program conducted by the Men-of-the-Church with Group No. 11, C. G. King, leader, in charge. Prelude, "Leisbestraum.")

Hymn: No. 353, "I Love Thy Kingdom, Lord." Prayer, H. P. Horsley.

Special Music.

Scripture Reading, Wurttem D. Jones.

"Concerning the Father," T. P. Junkin.

"Concerning the Mother," David W. Hardy.

Offertory, "Celeste Aida."

Male Quartette, "Men of the Church of the Future."

E. C. Scott, Joe J. Murray, W. Hugh Jones, and Peter Hogg.

"The Bible's Ideal Home," T. O. Andrew.

"Home Happiness," George A. Trumbull.

Hymn: No. 320 (tune, "Wesley") "O Happy Home."

Prayer, Lewis T. Carpenter.

Postlude.

SPONSORING THE CHURCH

The men of Westminster Presbyterian Church, Texas, sponsored the regular church picnic at West Beach during July. For two or three years the picnic was advertised in the church bulletin. This year a group met at the church at 2:30 on Saturday. Each family brought its own lunch with the exception of meats and drinks. These were furnished by the church. The real program of games and recreation was held at the beach that all who went could take part. It goes without saying that they all had a good time.

"A MORE WILLING HEARING BEFORE"

Egbert W. Smith

The recent upheaval in China seems to have opened the Chinese soil for the planting of the Gospel. A most unexpected and remarkable way. K. Reaves who has just returned to his home in the city around Soochow, writes under date of August 1st:

"Even in the few weeks we have been here we have seen that there is a more willing hearing of the message than I have ever experienced before. The time of swift and startling changes in the life of China. The Government is being destroyed and temples converted into school buildings. It is the psychological preparation for a great forward movement of Gospel present."

"I have met with no traces of anti-fornication since coming back but everywhere there is a smile in return for a polite greeting. We are going into the homes wherever we go. Surely a more effectual is opened unto us and (of course) many adversaries. Pray that we may not miss this great opportunity and that we may have the privilege to make use of it to the fullest extent. By your prayers 'adversaries' will also be overcome."

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Ernest Trice Thompson, D.D.

Lesson for September 15 TEACHING THE LAW OF GOD

Nehemiah 8:1-18
Print vs. 1-3, 5, 6, 8-12

of the Old Testament closes with the Jews from captivity. As we have seen in lessons the first return was led by Zerubbabba 50 years after the destruction of Jerusalem after the first captivity; the second was 70 years later; the third return by Nehemiah still.

held an influential position at the court of Xerxes. He asked and received permission to return to Jerusalem because he was distressed at the situation. The walls of the city had been broken, and the city was in ruins. The city was defenceless, and the people were in a state of hostility toward their neighbors. The people had grown weary of their condition and were turning away from their idols to the worship of Jehovah. Ezra who had set his heart on the Law of Jehovah and to do it and to teach the people and ordinances was out of favor with the king. His mission to the city (this is a conjecture), and his influence in the affairs of the city.

Long before Nehemiah, one of the most masterful characters in the Old Testament had altered this situation. He inspired the people with such enthusiasm that in spite of obstacles and treachery within and intrigues without, they succeeded in rebuilding the city walls in 52 days. But the rebuilding of the walls was only the first step in Nehemiah's plan. He set himself in the second place to win the people's allegiance to Jehovah, and to ground them on the knowledge of God's Law. To carry out this program Nehemiah was glad to avail himself of the help of Ezra, who, with the success of his rebuilding project, had come again into popular favor. Nehemiah was the executive, a born leader of the people. He was the scholar, and this was the work which he had prepared himself to do.

Background in mind read Nehemiah 8-10. The larger section than the lesson calls for, but the chapters are a unit, and only as we read can we understand the real significance of the work, which brings the Old Testament to life and recreates the scene as you read. What was the first day? the second day? How was the Law observed? What took place on the second day? What do you think was the significance of the lesson into two parts:

The Reading of the Bible—8:1-18

The Bible. Yet we know, of course, that it was not until the New Testament was not written till the end of the first century. Not all of the Old Testament books were written at once, though many of them were in existence before they had been collected together into a Canon. The Bible in our modern sense. The Law was read as 'the book of the law of Moses which the Lord had commanded to Israel,' the Pentateuch in whole or in part.

That it was to teach this Law that Ezra came to Jerusalem, thirteen years earlier. As we have seen he succeeded in carrying out his first mission of reformation of the Jews from their heathen practices. He recorded the record stops, and we have no further record of his work till after Nehemiah's return. His activities were during the intervening years. Some suppose that he returned to Babylon in the absence of twelve years revisited Jerusalem to witness the dedication of the walls, and was requested by the people to resume his mission of teaching them the Law. Others supposed that he remained in Jerusalem all the while, teaching and preparing them gradually for this great work of his whole career. We have adopted the latter view, that after Ezra had broken up the heathen policy there was a re-action against him and his policy—the anti-reforming party came to power. With the coming of Nehemiah the reforming party came to the ascendancy, and Ezra resumed the action described here was most significant. The people saw that their national integrity was threatened; their city walls; their jealousy for their disunity; their peculiar people was rekindled. Their pride in their adoption of his policy, that the people of Israel separate from the nations and live by their religious life. His policy was that the people should be regulated by the Law. The Law in certain recognized writings, and dependent upon the traditions of the priests." The Law, had been a long time in existence. The property of the priests. It was not known to the people. Books were rare and very expensive). The whole had followed the directions of their fathers in accordance with the Law of Moses (Deuteronomy), and the exhortations of the prophets, and the words that spoke the words that they heard, than the true prophets who spoke the words that God put in their hearts. Ezra's purpose was to give the Law to the people, to free them from their dependence on both prophet (appearing less frequently now in Israel) and priest. It is only as we keep these facts in mind that we can understand the purport of the scene that follows.

It was in the seventh month (October). This month as we have seen before was the most sacred month in the Jewish Calendar. It was on the first day of the seventh month that the first group of returning exiles had resumed their national worship. So now it is on the first day of the seventh month that the people flock into Jerusalem from all the surrounding towns and gather themselves together into the broad square that was before the water gate.

Ezra himself stood on a pulpit of wood, probably a platform is meant, for with him on the 'pulpit' were thirteen other prominent religious leaders. It is often remarked that the High Priest was conspicuous by his absence. We do not know the reason for this, but it may be that he did not approve Ezra's idea—the law should be kept as the private property of the priests.

When Ezra opened the book, of course, it was a roll, not one of our modern books, all of the people stood up (in Germany today the congregation all rises while the pastor reads the Word of God). Then there was a brief prayer of thanksgiving, the people answering Amen and Amen, and lifting up their hands and they bowed themselves to the ground. Ezra then proceeded to read, and we are told that he read from early morning (Heb. from the light) until midday. But he was too wise a man simply to read, especially to read as the Bible is generally read today. We are told that the Levites caused the people to understand the law, and again that they read in the book distinctly (or as R. V. margin 'with an interpretation'), and they gave the sense so that they understood the reading. Perhaps we are to understand by this that Ezra first read a bit aloud, then offered some explanation, and the Levites then followed with an exposition and interpretation, perhaps translating some of the Hebrew words into Aramaic, which was now becoming the popular language of the people.

Doctor Adeney remarks that, "In all this the fact which comes out most prominently, accentuated by every detail of the arrangements, is the popularization of the Law. Its multiplied precepts were not only recited in the hearing of men, women and children; they were carefully expounded to the people. Hitherto it had been a matter of private study among learned men. . . . It was like the priestly ritual of heathenism. The priest of Eleusis guarded his secrets from all but those who were favored by being solemnly initiated into them. Now this unwholesome condition was to cease. The most sacred rites were to be expounded to the people."

The people were very much solemnized by the significance of the scene, and when they heard the law and realized how far short they came of its requirements they wept. Their leaders, however, told them to go away rather and make merry and rejoice, and send gifts in token of the happiness with which they received the words of the Law of their God. And so they did.

On the morrow, the second day of the month, the people gathered themselves together again, that the reading might be continued. And as they listened they found that it was provided in the Law that on the 15th day of the month through the 22nd they were to celebrate the Feast of Tabernacles (the law is found in Ex. 23:16; Levit. 23:33-43; Num. 29:12-38; Dt. 16:13-15). We have records of previous observances of this feast, by Solomon for example (II Chron. 7:8 and 8:13), and by Zerubbabel (Ezra 3:4), but evidently it had not been observed regularly, and a whole generation had grown up that did not even know of its existence. When they discovered that the time was so near, and that elaborate preparations had to be made the assembly adjourned properly to prepare themselves.

The Feast of Tabernacles then was observed from the 15th through the 22nd, and as provided in the Law the people dwelt in booths during the whole week, and offered the appropriate sacrifices. When the writer says (verse 17) that the people had not observed this feast since the days of Joshua, the son of Nun, he means perhaps, not in the same thorough fashion. Perhaps never before had the entire nation actually lived for a week in booths. One unique feature about this celebration was that through the whole week the reading of God's Law continued, every day of the seven. It was a precursor of our Bible Conferences held each year at Montreat and Massanetta and Kerrville. But Ezra felt and we feel as we read, that the whole process would be incomplete if it stopped merely with reading the Bible. So we find as a matter of fact that the whole business came to a climax in

II. The Renewal of the Covenant—9:1—10:31

It took place on the 24th day of the month. The Feast of Tabernacles lasted through the 22nd. The 23rd was a day of solemn assembly, a day of rest and worship. The next day they assembled again, with fasting, and sackcloth and earth upon them. The Jews fasted often when they wished to make their worship particularly reverent and solemn. Sackcloth was a coarse cloth of a dark color usually made of goat's hair. It probably resembled a sack, with openings made for the neck and arms, and slit down the front. It was worn by mourners (sorrow in presence of death, or else penitence for sin) and captives. Earth or dust upon the head was also another common sign of mourning. They then separated themselves from the foreigners—i. e. non-Jews—and proceeded with the ceremonies of the day. It was to be a national act of humiliation and confession and consecration, and in it naturally no outsider had a part.

The first part of the program was the reading of the Law. It continued for three hours.

The second part of the program was humiliation and confession. It continued for another three hours. Eight different Levites had the service in charge, and led in the prayers which are summarized for us in the rest of chapter nine. The prayer is largely a historical one, and needs no special comment. Professor Rogers points out that the passage is liturgical and shows how rich is the Biblical material in forms of prayer, and he who knows the Book of Common Prayer will there find how much the Bible has contributed to its rich and beautiful store of words of supplication.

The climax of the program was the sealing of the Covenant. The prayer had closed with these words: "And yet for all this we make a sure covenant and write it; and our princes, our Levites and our priests seal it," 9:38. The names of those who sealed are given us in 10:1-27. They are the heads of the various important families in Jerusalem, first Nehemiah, the Governor, then Zedekiah, representing the royal line, then Seraiah, representing the priestly line, etc. Ezra's name is not included because he belonged to the priestly house represented by Seraiah. By this act we are probably to understand that the princes signed their names to the document which was then sealed, and put away in a jar or other receptacle for safe keeping.

The rest of the people then ratified the action of their representatives and swore that they would keep the terms of the covenant, invoking a terrible curse upon themselves if they failed.

But what was the Covenant? It was a solemn agreement as described in 10:29 that they and their sons and their daughters would walk in God's Law, which was given by Moses the servant of God, and would observe and do all the commandments of Jehovah, their Lord, and his ordinances and His statutes. In other words they agreed, and this was not a reform imposed from above, as in the times of Josiah, but one accepted by the people of their own free will and accord, they agreed that the Law of Moses was to be the Constitution of their nation, that their whole national life was to be based on its precepts.

Foakes-Jackson says: "The promulgation of the Law is a fitting conclusion of the story of the Old Testament, as with a new period of religious history commences. Ezra's quiet work by which the Levites had been prepared to become expounders of the Law marks the beginning of a new era. From henceforth the law of God instead of being the property of a priestly caste became accessible to all who desired to know it. The Book of the Law became the final source of every rule and custom, the deepest student of the Law the judge of all actions. (As a result) slowly but surely the sacrificing priest made way for the man of learning, the rabbi, the theologian. Judaism left little room for priestcraft; it became above all other things the religion of a book."

The remaining chapters of Nehemiah tell us how this vigorous leader went about putting this agreement into practical effect, but the event we have just described is the last important historical event described for us in the Old Testament (Esther historically comes earlier). Throughout their history God had been revealing himself to Israel in divers portions and by divers manners. At the close of the Old Testament history by the Jews as a nation accept the first great section of this Revelation as their Bible.

The Lesson Applied

1. The Need in our Time as compared with the Need in Nehemiah's Time. In Nehemiah's time the Bible, that portion of it then in existence, was an unknown book. Is it an unknown book today? Every test that has been applied indicates that it is. Why is this the case? Consider candidly the reasons why men, women, young people today (and we ourselves) do not read, study, know the Bible more than we do. In Nehemiah's time it was not available. It certainly is available today. Why is it so little known? We certainly cannot discover the remedy till we know the reasons for the present situation. Consider another question in this connection. Why do men, women, young people today (and we ourselves) need to know the Bible? Did the people really need to understand the Bible in Nehemiah's day? Do they need to do so today? Why? The Roman Catholic Church follows to a certain extent the practise of the priests in Nehemiah's day. They do not encourage Bible reading on the part of the laity? Do you approve or disapprove of this position? Why? Does the Protestant Church face any danger if its young people are not grounded in the Bible?

2. The Remedy in our Time as compared with the Remedy in Nehemiah's Time. We have studied in some detail how Ezra and Nehemiah remedied the situation in their day. But their remedy won't work today. The people have the Bible already (but not all of them by any means) and can read it for themselves. How can we remedy our situation? How would Ezra and Nehemiah go about it if they were living today? What improvements would they suggest in the Sunday School? In your Sunday School? Should more Bible instruction be given from the pulpit? How can the Church promote Bible study on the part of its people? How can it awaken an interest in the unconcerned? What Covenant should the people of God make today?

CHURCH NEWS

DAVIDSON'S NEW PRESIDENT AT HOME

Dr. Walter L. Lingle, president-elect of Davidson College, has arrived from his old home in Richmond, Va., and begun his duties as head of the college. His time during the next two weeks will be principally taken up with preparations for the opening of the college for its ninety-four session on September 12th.

Dr. W. J. Martin, president-emeritus of Davidson, did not complete his work until July 1st, and since that time the direction of affairs at the college has been under F. L. Jackson, treasurer. Doctor Lingle has visited Davidson twice since his acceptance of the presidency, and spent several hours each time in conference with Mr. Jackson.

Doctor Lingle is located in the president's home, immediately off the campus. During the summer this has been remodeled and improvements made.

Davidson, N. C.

INTRODUCING THE EDUCATIONAL SECRETARY OF HOME MISSIONS

Homer McMillan

The Executive Committee of Home Missions is glad to present to the Church Rev. P. D. Miller, its Educational Secretary. Mr. Miller comes into the Home Mission office to take up the work laid down by Dr. E. B. Paisley, who resigned to accept the Professorship of Religious Education at the Assembly's Training School.

In selecting a successor to Doctor Paisley the Committee was guided by the judgment that it would be best to find, if possible, a Home Missionary with the necessary gifts and qualifications and to advance one of its own men to this responsible position.

Mr. Miller is a product of a Home Mission School and his ministry has been given to a Mountain Home Mission field. He is a graduate of Nacoochee Institute, of Davidson College and of Union Theological Seminary, where he was awarded the Hoge Fellowship. He chose Home Missions as a life work and was reluctant to leave his mountain parish in North Georgia, where he was rendering a conspicuous service in a needy community. He debated the Assembly's call for many weeks, and was induced to undertake the direction of the educational work of the Executive Committee only upon the assurance that he would be no less a Home Missionary in the new work to which he was called.

Mr. Miller is not only a missionary himself in choice and training, but comes from a distinguished missionary family. He is a brother of Rev. Hoyt Miller of our African mission, and of Miss Louise Miller of our Korean mission.

The Executive Committee earnestly commends him to the love and confidence of the church as he assumes the arduous duties of Educational Secretary of Home Missions of the General Assembly.

Atlanta, Ga.

CONCORD PRESBYTERY AT PROSPECT

Notice, to ministers and elders of Concord Presbytery: Prospect Church is looking forward with pleasure to entertaining you when Presbytery meets in our church September 17, at 10:30 a. m. We hope every church will send a representative. To insure you entertainment and avoid confusion, we ask that you kindly notify one of the undersigned of your intention to attend Presbytery. Please do so now without delay. If you plan to come by train please state when you expect to arrive.

Jas. D. Deans, Pastor.

F. E. Brumley, Chairman
Entertainment Committee.

Mooresville, N. C.

NORTH CAROLINA SYNOD AT ROCKY MOUNT

The Synod of North Carolina will meet in its 116th stated session in the First Presbyterian Church, Rocky Mount, N. C., on Tuesday, October 8, 1929, at 7:30 p. m. Rev. Willard Conger, the pastor, is chairman of the committee on program. All requests for special orders should be made through him.

R. A. McLeod, S. C.

RALLY DAY

Sunday, October 6, is to be rally day in the Sunday Schools, and all the churches should begin now to prepare for the occasion. The day ought to be made a time to get back all scholars and line them up for the fall work in all departments of the school. Parents, shut-ins, cradle rollers, everybody ought to try to get to Sunday School that day if possible.

A good program for the day may be obtained by writing Mr. R. E. Magill, of Richmond, Va., Box 1176. Materials of other kinds will also be forwarded. Superintendents and pastors should not delay getting this material for rally day. It probably has been sent to you ere this, and each one should see that it is not lost.

A good collection will be taken that day for Sunday School Extension, and the school giving the best average will receive a banner from Mr. Magill. This applies to each Presbytery, each of which will have a banner.

OPENING OF SCHOOL AT STUART ROBINSON

Jennie Lee Crafton

On Tuesday morning, August 20, Stuart Robinson opened her doors for her seventeenth year's work. The auditorium was filled with an assemblage of bright boys and girls ready for the duties of the coming days, with patrons and other friends of the school and with a number of former students. Mr. W. L. Cooper, Jr., our Superintendent, extended a most hearty welcome to these friends, after which the audience joined in singing, "There's a New Day Dawning," the hymn used as our Conference song last July.

This was followed by devotional exercises conducted by Rev. H. L. Cockerham, pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Blackey. Mr. Cockerham selected for his Scripture reading those "rules of conduct" laid down in the twentieth chapter of Exodus, making splendid application therefrom to the daily problems of both faculty and students and summing up his excellent talk with the admonition from Ecclesiastes, "Fear God and keep His commandments for this is the whole duty of man." A very earnest and fervent prayer was then offered by Rev. Roy Smith, of the Blue Ridge Academy in Virginia.

The address of the morning was delivered by Rev. E. V. Tadlock, of Winchester, who always brings a worthwhile message. Mr. Tadlock spoke at this time on "being happy," bringing out in a very convincing way the fact that our happiness depends not upon where we are or what we possess but on what we are and quoting from the Apostle Paul the result of his experience—"I have learned in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content."

The next speaker was Mr. Leslie Hogg, who has a record of never having missed being present at a school opening or a Commencement at Stuart Robinson. In a few words Mr. Hogg expressed his appreciation of the school and the work which, under the direction of the Southern Presbyterian Church, we are endeavoring to do for the community, emphasizing the superior opportunities enjoyed by the young people of today in contrast to those offered the boys and girls of his own time. Mr. A. H. Spencer, Principal of the Blackey public school, spoke briefly in commendation of the Christian training received at Stuart Robinson and his remarks were followed by a number of announcements made by Mr. Watt M. Cooper, who has recently assumed the duties of Principal of our institution.

In conclusion, Mr. W. L. Cooper, Jr., reminded us of the ideals toward which Stuart Robinson is striving—cleanliness of mind and heart, loyalty, thoroughness and co-operation.

We are looking forward to a happy and successful year and trusting in the great Head of our school, the Lord Jesus Christ, we hope that our expectations may be realized.

Blackey, Ky.

PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE IS READY FOR OPENING

The Presbyterian College of South Carolina at Clinton, is all in readiness for the opening of the 1929-30 session, with the most optimistic prospects in the history of the college.

The enrollment of new students has shattered all previous records. The freshman class will be largest since the institution was founded. Already the addition of the Presbyterian Synod of Georgia to the institution is proving a great asset. The new students are expected to arrive in Clinton Tuesday, September 10, and the old students, Thursday, September 12. The old students will matriculate September 13, and will begin recitation on September 14.

PERSONAL

The Central Church, of Atlanta, Ga., has called Rev. F. C. Brown, D.D., pastor of Bream Memorial, Charlotte, W. Va.

Rev. R. E. McClure has been called as pastor of the Church at New Bern, N. C., which he has been supplying, during the illness of Dr. J. N. H. Summerell, who has been elected pastor emeritus.

Rev. Walter F. Creason has taken charge of the West Asheville Church, and he may be addressed at Asheville, N. C. Mr. Creason was located at Winston-Salem, N. C.

Rev. J. G. Garth, associate editor of the Presbyterian Standard, will act as supply at Providence Church, near Charlotte, N. C., preaching the first and third Sundays. This Church has been vacant since the retirement of Dr. H. E. Gurney, of Charlotte, a few months ago, because of illness.

Rev. C. R. Nisbet, D.D., of Caldwell Memorial, Charlotte, is expected from Madeline Island, Wis., on September 5, where he has spent the month of August with his daughter.

Rev. W. W. Akers, West Avenue, Charlotte, will preach for the Brooklyn Presbyterian Church (Colored) on next Sunday afternoon.

Miss Edmonia Martin, of Recife, Brazil, has returned on furlough from her mission school. She may be reached at Rock Hill, S. C., care of Rev. Alex. M. of Oakland Avenue Church.

Rev. H. W. Burwell, D.D., Dallas, Tex., pulpit of Oakland Avenue Church, Rock Hill, Miss. Doctor Martin's absence.

Rev. Walter C. Cansdale changes his home, Madison, N. C., to Vernon, New York.

Rev. J. Walter Cobb, D.D., has accepted of Evangelist of Lafayette Presbytery, and from Columbia, S. C., to Booneville, Mo.

Rev. S. J. Hood, of Rock Hill, S. C., past A.R.P. Church, and Blacksburg, S. C., denomination, has been called to the Philadel of Mecklenburg Presbytery, U. S. This church without a located pastor since the removal of Brown to Jacksonville, Fla. It has been under of Rev. Robert Adams, D.D., for the past

Rev. W. Hooper Adams, who is supplying at Bryson City, N. C., and who has been from an illness, is in good health, and will be of service in other fields as opportunity offers.

Rev. R. D. Daffin, D.D., who is located in Misson, at Barretos, is at home on furlough Daffin. They are visiting their six children been at school and college in the states.

Dr. Daffin preached at Mooresville, N. C. This congregation has been responsible for the Dr. and Mrs. Daffin for 24 years. Doctor Daffin's permanent address while on furlough is Fla.

MECKLENBURG PRESBYTERY

Mecklenburg Presbytery will meet in adjournment at 2:00 p. m., Monday, September 9, at the First Charlotte, N. C. Routine matters will be on the agenda. The regular Fall session will be at Brainard Rockingham, at 11:00 a. m., October 22, two Synod.

NORTH CAROLINA

Glenwood — On Friday evening, August 23, the 7th annual Daily Vacation Bible School closed with commencement exercises and held in the church.

The school has been a decided success since its organization in July, 1927. The first two years of existence, the school was conducted by Mr. Hall, who is well known in this work. The teacher in charge was Miss Elizabeth Aronson, who proved herself not only an efficient teacher but a person possessed of much personal charm. She won a warm place in the hearts of both the pupils and the workers.

The school, although sponsored by the Presbyterian Church, is entirely undenominational, all children of Glenwood within the age limit, 4 to 12, being eligible to attend. The number of pupils enrolled this year was 266, with an average attendance of 197.

The younger pupils, 4 to 8 years, were taught at the Methodist Church, with Miss Alice Kerr as teacher. Miss Tressie Richey as heads of the two primary departments, each having her own helpers.

The junior and intermediate departments were taught in the Presbyterian Church, where Mr. Robinson had charge of the work, with Rev. Robinson, pastor of the church, as her first helper.

The school picnic which has become a regular feature, and one of deep interest to the community, was held on the Presbyterian Church grounds on the afternoon, August 6, with a large attendance of pupils and parents. That evening occurred an interesting event of the school, known as "The Good Shepherd," which took place in the church building.

At the closing exercises of the primary departments which were held on the evening of August 8, the children made a fine display of the knowledge they had gained in so short a time at the school having only half-day sessions, lasting two weeks.

The stories of "The Good Shepherd" and "The Good Samaritan" were dramatized by the children, who also had memorized a verse for each day, and had learned 8 new songs.

The Primary Department, 6, 7 and 8 years, sang in unison the first and the twenty-third, first five verses of the twenty-fourth, and the hundredth psalm, which they had memorized with various songs and other accomplishments.

In the recess periods of these two weeks stress was laid by the teachers in charge on "learning fair"—an important and helpful lesson for the child to learn. One of the teachers in charge said, "If we can teach one child to be fair, and to play fair, the school will not be vain."

The commencement exercises on Friday evening were exhibited an amount of general knowledge which was truly amazing. In addition to the Bible which was truly amazing. In addition to the Bible they recited in unison the 12th chapter of the psalms.

A beautiful and impressive feature of the exercises was the three salutes—to the Bible, to the flag, and to the American flag.

ries were told by different children from se stories having been given by persons n asked to give short talks to the school days.

the commencement exercises, a pageant d by a number of the workers in the h reflected much credit upon all who

a Hall being present, Rev. C. N. Morri- on her to come to the front and address ge, which she did in a very happy man- ill was cordially greeted at the close by former pupils and associates.

commendation was expressed by both Mr. l Miss Anderson for those who had con- generously of their time and ability to- the school a success. There were twenty- on the faculty, most of whom were pres- red and forty-seven certificates were perfect attendance, and for accomplish- amount of work.

A meeting will begin in this church 5, and continue for 10 days. The pastor, lowan, will be assisted in this series by Currie, pastor at Belmont, N. C.

Presbytery met in special session in N. C., on August 27th. The pastoral ren Rev. J. H. Poole and the Bluff, God- Millan churches was dissolved and Mr. anted a letter of dismissal to Wilming- y. He will become pastor of the Elizabeth- of churches. Rev. W. P. Gibbs was grant- f dismissal to Roanoke Presbytery. He rge of Central Academy, Stuart, Va.

tery will meet in stated fall session in Presbyterial Church on Tuesday, Octo- at 10:00 a. m. Rev. W. S. Golden, Car- is pastor of the church and will be the committee on Orders and Arrange- church is located on the Carthage-Vass e Sand hill Farmlife School.

R. A. McLeod, S. C.

Over 200 students took advantage of the i is now ending, 162 of them being enrolled summer school conducted by the college, and em taking courses offered privately during eeks. The enrollment of the summer school almost double that of the first attempt, and optimistic over the future summer school vidson.

on summer school, which is in its infancy, eed to the point where degrees are offered work. Few of the students are working npletion of their college degrees, and if they required to return at the following com- their diplomas, under the present arrange- pected that it will only be a matter of time tion exercises are held at the conclusion of hool.

Copies of a special issue of The David- een mailed to all upperclassmen and mem- eshman class of Davidson College, this pre- eeing an innovation and fostered by the in- object of the authorities was to fully ac- students with facts concerning registra- ng of the college for the fall session. In- ure a schedule; a drawing of the campus, ion of buildings; pictures of leading mem- adent body; a list of the new faculty mem- e of the coaching staff; a "Who's Who" in student body, and other enlightening in- itors of the publication were Zeb V. Long, chief for 1929-1930, and Ernest Milton, try.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Presbytery will meet in Hartsville, Octo- 11 a. m.

A. H. McArn, S. C.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Church of Washington—During our pas- the pulpit was supplied August 4 by A. Wells. He was to have preached for Sunday also, but his mother's sickness s coming. His place was supplied by a church, Rev. A. J. McKelway. For the days of August Rev. E. L. Silver, not only e each Sunday, but also gave very help- he men's Bible class. All three of these e our sincere thanks for their earnest A. H.

APPALACHIA

Dr. W. S. Wilson has accepted the call ed by the Lincolnton Church and expects ncolnton at an early date. This is an item rest. For it will be recalled that Dr. Wilson was pastor at Lincolnton for several years and was largely instrumental in building their beautiful and com- modious Church. And now after an interval of about six years the tender ties that bound them then will be re- united.

ALABAMA

Central Alabama Presbytery will meet in Fulton Chapel, Hanover, Ala., October 3, 1929, at 7:30 p. m. All delegates will arrange to be at Epes, Ala., Thurs- day morning of October 3. You will be met there by a committee and carried to the church.

I. C. H. Champney, S. C.

Elizabeth—This church enjoyed a splendid meeting from August 18 to August 23, inclusive. Rev. W. O. Chalhoun, of Chatam, Ala., did the preaching. The sing- ing was led by Mr. Geo. McDonald, who is an elder in the church. Large congregations heard the scriptural and inspiring messages by Mr. Calhoun. The whole com- munity was benefited by this revival as well as the membership being increased. P. H. Biddle, pastor.

FLORIDA

Key West—The minister of this church has re- turned to work after an absence of some weeks in which he has visited many of the churches in the State. At the last meeting of Synod it was agreed that every agency in every church should send an offering (designated) to the Assembly's Home Missions for Key West and thus erect a building where the Cuban Mission American Church can provide for the many visitors who come to Key West. Men of the Army and Navy are here in good number and it is found quite impossible to carry one this work in a frame building holding 75 persons. This request of Synod was quite ignored by many churches and forgotten by others. The result was quite inadequate. On the other hand some churches did nobly and beautifully. Mr. Barritt now urges, as Synod urged, that Sunday School, Women's Auxiliaries, the Churches and the young peoples' societies make a worthwhile offering, send it to the Assembly's Home Missions and designate it for the church at Key West. In the meantime the Public School Buildings is used with the frame build- ing and things are not stagnant because difficult. The women of the church conducted a very successful Bible Vacation School and the Elders conducted Divine Wor- ship. For the winter season a Bible Class in the Public School, the men's club, the opening of a mission with the poorest of the city and the usual work of a church and the work for the Cubans will be prosecuted with deter- mination and reliance on the blessing of God. Mr. Barritt desires that all offerings shall be sent direct and desig- nated to the Atlanta office.

TENNESSEE

The Presbytery of Nashville will hold its stated fall meeting in the First Presbyterian Church of Clarksville on the fourth Tuesday, September 24, and will convene at 7:30 p. m.

The Presbytery of Memphis met in called session on August 19, 1929, in the Second Church of Memphis, and in accord with his request dissolved the pastoral relation between Rev. L. N. Blackwelder and Mt. Carmel and Atoka churches; and dismissed him to the Presbytery of Meridian. He takes charge of Leaf River group near Hattiesburg, Miss. Mr. Black- welder has served the Mt. Carmel and Atoka churches for about nine years, and is much beloved by the people of his field. This leaves this important field vacant, and we want another good man who loves the rural work to take it up.

J. J. Hill, S. C.

Woodville—The Superintendent of Home Missions, Dr. J. J. Hill, conducted evangelistic meetings for six days in Wilson Memorial Church. This is a small church of 12 resident members in the northwest corner of Haywood County. It has been vacant for some time, with the exception of such services as the super- intendent could give it. The meeting was well at- tended by other denominations, and every one of the 12 members attended. It was a season of spiritual refreshment and consecration to all who attended the services. A fine spirit of Christian fellowship among the different denominations is manifested in that com- munity. The meeting closed August 2.

Reagan—Rev. J. L. McKinstry has been stated supply of Reagan church for some time. He was assisted in an eight days' meeting by the superin- tendent, Dr. J. J. Hill, closing August 25. This is the third meeting the superintendent has held in this church and each one has been better than the former. All the services were well attended. The last three or four days the house was full. One infant was baptized, one person proposed to establish a family altar and seven united with the church on profession of faith and baptism. Another made profession and will join at an early day. This was more than 25 per cent increase in the resident membership. There is a future for that church and community.

The Presbytery of Memphis will convene in reg- ular fall sessions Tuesday, October 15, 1929, in Grace Covenant Church, Memphis, Tenn., at 7:30 p. m.

J. J. Hill, S. C.

GEORGIA

Atlanta—Services were held under the joint aus- pices of The Atlanta Federation of Trades and The Evangelical Ministers' Association, Sunday evening on the lawn of the State Capitol.

Mr. A. S. Nance, president of the Federation, con- ducted the service.

Dr. L. Wilkie Collins, chairman of the Commis- sion on Industrial Relations of the Christian Council, brought the message.

Congregational singing, special numbers by the Electrical Workers' Quartet and the Chorus Choir of Wesley Memorial Church featured the music.

On Monday the churches and Sunday schools had a float in the Labor Day parade. This has been done for the last four years, and is made possible by con- tributions from Bible classes and individuals.

VIRGINIA

Callaway, Pippin Hills Mission—The Meeting which began in August 11 was closed very suddenly on account of the Quarantine against Roanoke. The meeting was conducted by Rev. Thos. Ruff, assisted by Rev. Roy Smith of Piedmont Church.

In spite of the shortness of the meeting the interest and attendance were unusual. There were six confes- sions of faith, three men and three girls.

This was the fourth of the series of meetings held by Piedmont Church this summer. The first held at Al- gorna, by Rev. T. K. Young who was assisted by Rev. Roy Smith, was from July 3 to July 10. It was a good meeting. There were eight confessions and two received by letter.

On July 11, the second meeting began in the Piedmont Church conducted by Rev. R. G. Lee, assisted by Rev. Roy Smith. The interest, attendance and results were good. There were six confessions and one received by letter. The meeting closed August 18.

On August 15, the meeting at Blackwater began. This was conducted by Rev. Mr. Lewis assisted by Mr. Julian Lake, student assistant of the pastor of this group, Rev. Roy Smith. This meeting lasted a week.

Interest and attendance were good. One confession and one received by letter. The fact is that Piedmont Church should be pleased with the attendance, interest and with the co-operation which was given in every meeting.

Please pray that this interest may continue and that the Master's Kingdom may grow rapidly in this corner of the mountains. (Miss) Margaret Ewing.

Unity Church, The Hollow—Mr. Nathan Watson, Mr. Hennis Epperson and Mr. Gaston Epperson have recently been made ruling elders of Unity Church. These are the first elders of this new Church, and we are delighted to have these young men accept this responsibility, and we ask that you pray for God's blessing on them and the congregation they serve, but especially for the protracted meeting soon to be held in which Rev. H. L. Reeves is to assist. Mr. Harry A. Epperson has been a deacon in this Church for some time.

Newton Smith.

Blue Ridge Church, The Hollow, Va.—We have been pleased to have had Rev. Plumer Smith, the son of the writer, and family with us for some weeks before returning to Africa, after their third furlough. He preached here and in the surrounding churches, showing his African curios over which the children go "daft."

Just received a card saying that they had arrived in Antwerp, Belgium.

We send grateful thanks to our young people, and others, for wonderful liberality and co-operation in prayer during our building campaign; and we give praise to God for such people.

Newton Smith.

TEXAS

Trinity Church, Waco—The vacation of the pastor, Rev. D. B. Gregory, was spent at the Columbiana Conference at Silver Bay, on Lake George, New York, as the guest of Dr. W. W. White, and the trip was made more pleasant by a purse presented the pastor by the congregation to defray expenses. Since the return of the pastor the congregations have been good considering such hot weather as Texas has ex- perience and the people are hopeful of making fur- ther progress with the opening of the fall work.

AS OLD AS THE BIBLE SOCIETY

Such is the fact reported about B. G. Trantum, whose photograph is herewith presented. And, what is also surprising, he reads the Bible without glasses in his one hundred and thirteenth year! "He was born in 1816, at Richmond, Virginia, and now lives in the hills of Maryland. He is a devout Christian and says he is just waiting for the Lord to transplant him to that other and better country, where he will be forever young."

Until recently he read for hours every day, spending much of his time with his Bible. The friend who writes of him, found that he was having difficulty in reading his small print Bible, wrote of the circumstances to our Society, received a large-print Bible and reported of its presentation thus:

"He opened the Book and began to read aloud. Tears streamed down his cheeks as he said, 'You can never know how grateful I am for a Book with print large enough for me to read.' His wife said, 'And I just want to tell you how much it means to me. I can't read, and I have just prayed and prayed that the Lord would let his eyesight stay good, so he could read the Bible to me.' Then he told me that he learned to read 'out of the Bible.' That he was so anxious to read God's Word, that he would take the Book and hold it and pray that the Lord would be his teacher, and help him to learn how to read. He went to school just one day in his life, but reads well, and said he always spent several hours each day reading his Bible."

Mr. Trantum is a Civil War veteran and lives on his war pension. He has thirty-three children.

It certainly seems strange to think of anyone still living who was born the year the American Bible Society was organized. It is happy in now giving him a Bible he can read. The above cut was loaned by the American Bible Society.

MISSIONARIES TO THE RESCUE An Open Letter to Pastors

My dear friend:

Had Lindbergh listened to others or to his lesser self he would have heard the stale news that, "It's just not done that way." But that young rider of the clouds came out of the west unheralded and unsung. When he landed his plane in New York after leaving California not many hours before, its nose was pointing towards Paris. And he was the first one to tell that city he left New York yesterday. Had he followed conventionalities, waited for this that and the other to happen the chances are he would never have walked before kings or become the world's worthy hero.

There is need of our blazing a new trail. Today, as in '49, there is prospecting to be done and pioneering awaiting us.

Your congregation has had so many pleas presented and so many demands besides their regular giving pastor and flock are both sick of it, and well you might be. If we do something out of the ordinary maybe we can free ourselves from a continuance of such.

Do you know what news your missionaries received just recently?—An urgent suggestion without any warning, from the Executive Committee of Foreign Missions asking that the mission ask all missionaries to remain on the field an extra year, that is, postpone their furlough one year. One thing that prompts this letter is that over two months have passed since this letter was received from The Executive Committee and to date not a word about this has appeared in the church papers and a number of letters have been received expressing utter surprise.

One of our missionaries at this station was practically ready to leave, the boat was to sail the following month. With her, plans were made at this and the other end. She is remaining until next year although this is her first furlough. Be thoughtful as you picture this situation.

We wrote our mother, whom we haven't seen in over six years, that it looked as if we wouldn't get home on furlough next year as scheduled and added that if staying here a dozen years would help get money out of the church papers and the pulpit we would be glad to do it.

Just one other thing and the only reason we write this is to make another side of this financial situation clearer and more emphatic. At our mission meeting recently the married couple voted that their salaries be reduced five hundred dollars each and the amount thus arranged be used to send a medical man to us—a medical man to take the place of Doctor Butler who died ten years ago. Think of it, a ten year vacancy, and he was the only evangelical medical missionary in a territory the size of the whole Southern Presbyterian Church east of the Mississippi! Do you get this in its fullness, missionaries cutting their salaries and financing a replacement?

Ten minutes of your morning service, before your sermon, by the pastor or by one of your best givers to missions will place, we believe, thousands of dollars in Nashville.

We are not putting on a plan, we are just praying that within the next three weeks you, as the responsible head, will bear the heart of this message home to your people. Along with your check tell them you will send theirs in to Nashville at once. When God sends a catastrophe into any section of our country, praise to our American people, the thousands come in over night. It is an emergency and must be met. We ask you to relay this S O S on to those who can and will help . . . not that we your missionaries might be relieved of a bit of disappointment but that the cause, to which our church has always been true, might not suffer.

God bless you and your Church. It is all for Him.

Fraternally,

Wm. G. Neville.

Garanhuns, Pernambuco, August 7, 1929.

APPEAL FOR MORE EVANGELISM

To the Pastors and Elders of our Beloved Church:

At a meeting of the Committee on Assembly's Work in Montreat, July 2, 1929, the facts concerning the evangelistic situation, revealed in the few additions reported by so many churches, and the increasing number of churches reporting no professions, came with overwhelming force to everyone present.

It was the unanimous conviction of the Committee on Assembly's Work that the church, busy with many things, is failing in the chief thing, and that we must come back to the primary purpose of the church's existence.

Do we earnestly desire a mighty outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon pastors and people?

What better use could be made of the mid-week service the next twelve months than for those who believe in prayer, and who long for a great revival in the church to come together, not primarily for a lecture or an address, but for a season of prayer and praise and waiting upon God?

Would it not be worth while to spend at least a half day of the meeting of Presbytery and Synod in prayerful consideration of this important matter, and in planning for evangelistic services throughout the bounds of the church? The General Assembly has asked that this be done.

If Evangelism is the fundamental business of the church, should we not be concerned about the little we have done? Has not the world a right to conclude that we do not believe in prayer, and that we do not really believe that those out of Christ are lost?

We must not forget that after the Transfiguration Christ told His disciples, in response to their question why they could not heal the lad, "This kind can come out by nothing save by prayer." Before Pentecost the disciples, "unitedly persevered in prayer with one soul." The church's lost power can be recovered only through prayer. This comes first. Afterwards comes preaching and personal evangelism. Cannot we as a church lay aside our man-made plans and try God's plan for a gracious revival by waiting on Him?

The Executive Committee of Home Missions earnestly requests all pastors and officers of our church, and as many others who will, to unite with it in a fellowship of prayer the coming months for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit. Will you not do this?

Very fraternally yours,

W. M. Everett, Chairman,
Homer McMillan, Secretary.

HOME MISSIONS AT MONTREAT A Message from Home Mission Chairmen and Superintendents

Rev. W. A. Rolle, D.D.

A dozen or more Chairmen and Superintendents of Home Missions were privileged to attend the Montreat Missions Conference, August 4-14. Having been deeply impressed with the appeal sent out by the Committee on the Assembly's Work concerning the great need for an evangelistic awakening in the church, we spent a few hours together in prayer and informal conference on this vital matter.

It was our conviction that the greatest need of the church today is a genuine revival of spiritual religion. We have been stressing budgets and programs and methods of work. We have neglected the deeper and more important things of the spirit, if budgets and programs are to avail.

It was the conviction of the group meeting in Montreat that the Home Missions Committee is the leader of Evangelism in every Presbytery, and that the Home Missions Committee must lead in this larger effort to which the church is calling us. We agreed to do the following things in our own Presbyteries, and we suggest the Chairmen and Superintendents for their consideration:

(1) Make a careful study of the spiritual condition within the bounds of the Presbytery, and by leaflet and by word of mouth bring the churches, forcefully laying them upon the pastors, officers and people to stir them to action.

(2) Have a program of Evangelism at the meeting of Presbytery, relating it to the work of the Presbytery, Synod and Assembly.

(3) Consider the best methods of Evangelism and the peculiar needs of our fields.

(4) Arrange for an evangelistic meeting in every church every year.

We hope that this larger effort, for which the Committee on the Assembly's Work is asking, is temporary or transient undertaking, but that it is now entering upon a great evangelistic period that will dominate the thought and activity of the church throughout the years.

Norman, Okla.

THE LAYMAN'S DUTY TO PROCLAIM HIS RELIGION

Dr. Robert E. Speer

"Any man who has a religion is bound to do two things with it, change it or spread it. If he must give it up. If it is true he must give it up. This is not the duty of ministers only. Religion is the affair of a profession or of a caste. It is the duty of every common man. There is no proxy religion. Every man has his own. If he hasn't, he has none. No one can have it for him. And if he has his own, then he must propagate it, if it is true, or repudiate it, if it is false."

The idea that the world or any one land is being evangelized by one section of the Christian body is a delusion for many reasons: Chiefly because a faith that does not make every possessor eager to propagate its worth propagating, and will not be received by those to whom it is offered. The religion that we have among men must be offered by man to man. The power seen in dominating the lives of all it touches and making them eager for its dissemination, is a testimonial of worth.

The Place of the Minister

The minister is to be simply colonel of the Christian army. The real fighting is to be done by the men in the ranks who carry the guns. No ideal could be more practical or more irrational than that the religion is engaged to do the fighting for his men, while he sits at ease. And yet, perhaps, there is one idea that is more absurd still. That is, that there is to be no fighting at all, but that the colonel is paid to spend his time in solacing his regiment, or giving it gentle exhortation, not destined ever to result in any real effort on the part of the whole regiment against anything against the enemy.

The Work of Laymen

Laymen are bound to propagate their religion by preaching about it, by preaching it, in fact. Telling the Gospel, explaining what Christ can be to man, and living, as scriptural as any preaching can be, are the duties of laymen. Preachers ought to make this plain, and lay the duty of preaching upon all their laymen, and teach them to do it. It makes no difference if it is done in a broken testimony from a laborer to his friend, or if it is more effective than a smooth and concise day morning sermon. The true ideal of Christian evangelism is the propagation of Christianity, not by preachers so much as by private conversation and the testimony of common men.

The Witness of Home Life

And no religious propaganda is likely to be so effective as that which does not spring from, and rest upon, a life, visibly influenced by religion. If men talk a good religion to their fellows and have religionless homes marked by unkindness, harshness, dishonesty, and talk is as sounding brass and clanging cymbals. The test of religion. And the best foundation for the propagation of religion is the Christian home where the family has its altar by the father and mother, and where the family has its altar by the father and mother, and where the family has its altar by the father and mother. When all our homes are evidently influenced by the Spirit of Christ, then the Gospel will be spread from Church or Chapel as it will never spread from Church or Chapel.

SUSTAINED BY GOD'S WORD

Frances Ridley Havergal

What Jesus Christ hath spoken cannot be broken;
Upon Thy word I rest each pilgrim day;
This golden staff is best for all the way.

Upon Thy Word I stand—that cannot die,
So full of comfort blest, so sweet, so pure,
The charter of salvation, Faith's broad foundation.

Upon Thy Word I stand—that cannot die,
Christ seals it in my hand; He cannot lie,
They Word, that faileth never, abiding e-

ROMANS AUXILIARY

- of Woman's Work, Presbyterian Church, U. S.
70-277 Field Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.
- LOCAL PRESIDENTS OF THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY
- J. F. Hooper, 610 Mabry St., Selma, Ala.
 - S. F. B. Kegley, Wytcheville, Va.
 - S. Walter Wilson, Arkadelphia, Ark.
 - W. G. Thompson, Jr., 3215 Obispo St., Palma Tampa, Fla.
 - E. G. Abbott, 1315 Eberhart Ave., Columbus, Ga.
 - H. P. Cooper, Lebanon, Ky.
 - Charles L. Bodin, Box 79, M. R. A., Lake
 - S. J. S. Hicks, Holly Springs, Miss.
 - Walter Craven, 223 Frances St., Excelsior
 - Mrs. G. V. Patterson, Gastonia, N. C.
 - Wilbur Garvin, 611 Euclid, Lawton, Oklahoma.
 - Mrs. Parker Connor, Edisto Island, S. C.
 - J. F. Forsythe, Bethel Springs, Tenn.
 - W. Culver, Texas Military Academy, San An-
 - E. R. Vaughan, 319 Mountain Ave., Roanoke, Va.
 - Mrs. J. McD. Lacy, Elkins, W. Va.

MANETTA TRAINING SCHOOL

A Personal Letter

...ot at Massanetta this year, were you? Well, big blessing. It was the most helpful and "school" that I ever attended. If I were you, ...ss being there next year,—why don't you plan for it?

...ple to give you in a letter the spirit of that I'm going to try to tell you of the feast of ...prepared for us, so that your mouth will ...is a mountain-top experience, an uplift of ...atmosphere, but you can only catch the real ...g there in person.

...was unusual in many ways, (1) we had the ...obtainable, (2) we had three schools going ...me (3) we had some of the greatest men in ...Church to address us and preach for us, ...ad a really, truly Commencement.

...annual Auxiliary Training School, ...School of Missions any more,— ...day, July 25, with a cordial ad- ...come by Doctor Hudson. "Mas- ...surely be found engraved on Doc- ...heart, for he throws himself soul ...the Conference, and his one aim ...ch year better than the last. The ...he "School," Mrs. C. R. Vaughan, ...appy manner, then introduced the ...wards we wended our way to the ..."Fannie Lupton building," where ...hful, informal reception.

...s" that night were discussing one ...topic only,—what classes shall I ...Listen in" or shall I take "cred- ...indeed a momentous question and ...hed carefully. It was the decision ...that you could only take two ...so that made it harder still and ...to know what to leave out when ...important. Then, too, there was ...ication due to the three schools ...ltaneously, no doubt—several ...es were held at the same hour. ...ed law, you know, that one body ...oy one portion of space at one ...s no matter how much you might ...ell, you were obliged to decide on ...stick to it,—no visiting around

...course I decided on: for credits, ...ducation (Foreign) taught by ...Dubose, and Bible Study, Ro- ...Mrs. Russell; for "listening in," ...hods, Mrs. Bratton, and Bible ...nd by Doctor Lingle. I'm going ...ttle secret right now, the teach- ...you better if you take credits, ...better and differently from the ...rly "listen in,"—that's a pointer

...ng at 7:30, there was "Morning ...t wide porches of the "Fannie ...ldg.," and, at the same place each ...70 Vespers, both conducted by ...President. The morning serv- ...a Circle of prayer, but at the ...rv, there was a speaker who ...a special message. All the messages ...ing but two were especially so the ...s. Anroe, of Japan, and the other ...al'sky, of the Czecho-Slovakian ...ce George county, Va. These, ...we the only missionaries at Mas- ...y, last year there were quite a

...ol properly began at 9:00 o'clock ...evonal," conducted by Miss Janie ...new Secretary of the Depart- ...s Work. I wish you could have ...ist seems filled with the Holy Spirit, and her messages were, therefore, "with power." Her topic for the week was "Missionary Messages." "And John" was the first theme, and she showed us how we all could be "and Johns," having not the speaking part—as Peter—but the praying part. It takes real faith and love to be prayers. "The Ready Witness, Philip," "the Giving Friend, Barnabas," "Timothy, who stood the Test," were some of her other subjects. These were not the only times Miss McGaughey spoke to us, but at Vespers and in the Auditorium, she brought us messages that seemed to bring us right into the presence-chamber of our Elder Brother, our Saviour Himself. One of the great privileges of Massanetta, 1929, was to hear and to meet this consecrated young woman upon a double portion of His Spirit has fallen.

Missionary Education was my next class. Here we had another delightful young teacher, Miss Dubose, one of the Field Secretaries of the Foreign Mission Committee. Our text-book was "The Church in China," by Doctor Richardson, a most interesting book, but a rather deep one and hard to study. Miss Dubose is a most magnetic person and held her clas absorbed in the subject, but, like a good teacher, she made her pupils do a great part of the work. The book was considered topically rather than by chapters, and each group was given a topic to demonstrate. Of course, I thought the group I was in did the best! We were given the theme: "Resolved, That the social and economical problems of the Church in China are greater than the political and religious problems." We decided to give it as a debate, and none of us had ever debated in our lives! The "honorable Judge" decided in favor of the negative side—the side I was one—much to our surprise. While the "Judge" was making her decision, Mrs. Carey, one of our group, in a most touching way, by word, poster, hymn softly played, and prayer, proved that the Cross of Christ was the only solution of all China's problems. I wish I could tell you about the other demonstrations,—they were all so good,—but time forbids.

The other Missionary Education class—Home Missions textbook, "The Crowded Way"—was taught by Mrs. Alexander Maitland. My roommate attended this class and found it delightful. There were two important classes at the same period, so I chose to be a Roman with Mrs. Russell.

Bible Study under the efficient direction of Mrs. Russell is study, and particularly is this true when the part of the Bible to be studied is "The Epistle to the Romans." With such a guide, however, you see more in Romans than you ever did before. There are three pivotal chapters in the Epistle, each beginning with "Therefore"—

- The Therefore of Justification—5:1;
- The Therefore of Sanctification—8:1;
- The Therefore of Consecration—12:1.

We had written assignments each day which were not easy. I have heard Mrs. Russell a number of time, at our Presbyterials and elsewhere, and each time I marvel at her wonderful power in presenting the deep things of the Gospel with such a clear analysis and arresting words.

The next hour, out of three possible studies, I chose to "listen in" on Auxiliary Methods, taught by Mrs. Bratton, chairman of the Committee of the Department of Woman's Work. The purpose of this class was to make us more efficient in our work, to help us to realize the Stewardship of Service, to stress that the spiritual side of our work comes first and all details of routine are secondary.

The last hour of school was another Bible Hour, the "Social Teachings of Jesus," based on the "Sermon on the Mount," by Dr. Walter L. Lingle, former President of the Assembly's Training School, Richmond, Va. Another unforgettable experience—if you've never heard Doctor Lingle, I can't begin to tell you how, in forceful language, he brought the teaching of Jesus right down into our everyday lives. The Sermon on the Mount doesn't tell us how to be saved, but how Jesus expects us to live after we are saved. The text of this sermon is found in Mathew 5:20, and (1) we have the Picture of the Ideal Christian, (2) the Mission and Position of the Christian on earth, then the definite attitude of the Christian in such matters as anger, marriage, divorce, war, prayer, alms-giving, riches, etc. Live the Golden Rule, don't advertise it! The introduction of the Sermon emphasizes Being, the conclusion, Doing. Keep the copy, Jesus, before you, and each day you will live better and better, until one day you will "be like Him, for you will see Him as He is."

The next hour was dinner hour, and to scholars of whatever school, or of whatever age, that bugle was a welcome sound, for concentration of the mind, combined with the exhilarating mountain air, and the hill climbing to classes, produced an appetite which did full justice to the good things prepared for the bodily needs.

From 2:00 o'clock until 6:00, the schedule read, "Rest, Recreation, Study," but for me there was only one word, Study, which took up all that time, and other hours also.

One of the delightful features of the School was the Song Service each evening by the Faculty of the Westminster Choir School, Dayton, Ohio. It was indeed a great privilege that our school and that of the School of Music met at the same time, for thus we had the benefit of their exceptionally fine, worshipful singing.

Then the addresses each evening,—I wish I could do them justice, but one must hear them to be impressed by them. "Christian Education and Ministerial Relief" was presented by the one who knows that subject best: Dr. H. H. Sweets. Doctor Reavis, of the Foreign Mission Office, held our interest with a graphic account of his trip, a few years ago, into the heart of Africa to our mission on the Congo. The President of the Tex.- Mex. School made real to us both that school and the one for girls at Taft. The necessity of our Church's undertaking special work among the students of the University of Virginia was stressed by the student pastor, Rev. J. Kyle Smith. The last address, Wednesday evening, by Dr. H. Wade Dubose, "The Indispensable Vision" was a fitting close to a week of great spiritual uplift.

As you see I have omitted Sunday,—that was a big day truly. Miss McGaughey taught the one large Sunday School class at 9:00 o'clock, telling us of the "Woman's Auxiliary of the First Church, Acts 16:11-15, 40. At the morning service, Dr. Sweets preached from Eph. 3:14-19, dwelling on the five wonderful petitions in that prayer of Paul's, all for spiritual, not one for material blessings. Doctor Reavis gave us the "Cure for Worry"—3 o'clock—preaching from the text, Phil. 4:6, 7.

The beautiful new Woman's Building given mainly by Mr. Lupton, and named for his wife, the "Fannie Lupton Building," was dedicated at 4:00 o'clock. Many took part in this service, but the dedicatory address and prayer were by Doctor Sweets. It is situated on the slope of the mountain, not far from the main Auditorium, and built of river stones. From every part of the building your eye naturally travels to the sky, and instinctively your heart cries out, "I will lift up mine eyes to the hills from whence cometh my help, my help cometh from the Lord which made heaven and earth."

The evening service of song and sermon concluded a full day of Gospel privileges. Doctor Lingle,—II Pet. 3:18,—dwelt on Peter's last words, and besought us to grow in Christ-likeness, we can never do Christ-like things until we have Christ-like characters. Will others see Christ in you?

Though our School lasted only a week,—but a week of intensive study,—we ended the session with a regular Commencement. Once more the Faculty—or what was left of it—was gathered on the platform with Mrs. Vaughan occupying the leader's chair. After the opening hymn and prayer, it was announced that the total of the School—

SHE LOVES TO READ HER BIBLE

Now eighty-two, this Chinese woman has been a Christian for twenty years.

"At the service of March 12, I was invited to speak and chose 2 Kings 2:1-11 as my text for the topic 'Christian Pilgrimage,' and afterwards sought to arouse their enthusiasm by leading in the song 'The Lord is my Shepherd,' Psalms 23:1-5, which I taught them to sing.

"There was one old woman present, over eighty years of age, who understood the Bible very well. Another old woman of over seventy years of age could read the Phonetic Script. It seemed to us that the Christians of Suchow were better than those in Shanghai because of their knowledge of the Bible. I also met many young men who like to read their Bible. I thanked our Heavenly Father that I was able to understand their Shantung Mandarin language. Also, when I went on the platform, I found that they understood what I said."

not counting the many who came on Sunday—was 377. Each teacher then read the credit pupils in each class,—over a hundred will receive certificates later on from the St. Louis office. This Commencement was unusual, because for the first time in its history, Massanetta had one full graduate, Miss Laura Campbell, of Charles Town, W. Va. Doctor Lingle presented her with the diploma, after which there came a surprise, the graduate read a brief thesis in Latin! Winchester Presbyterian Auxiliary, of which Miss Campbell is the President, presented her with a bouquet of roses, as a token of their love and pride. Doctor Lingle then made a beautiful tribute to Mrs. Vaughan, the leader and guiding spirit of the Training School, who had done so much in every way, by her gracious manner and lofty Christian character, to make it the blessing that it had been and would continue to be. A prayer by Doctor Dubose closed the Commencement exercises, and ended also the Auxiliary Training School, 1929.

With note-books full, bodies wearied—brains also—but hearts inspired with a new vision of service for God, we left that mountain-top of privilege and journeyed that afternoon to our homes in the valley and in the cities, feeling, like Peter, that it had been "good for us to be there."

There are many things that I haven't told you about, but I hope and believe I've told you enough to make you determine to attend the A. T. S. in 1930.

Good-bye, as ever your friend,

Mary C. Stribling,

Secretary of Christian Community service, Virginia Synodical.

Martinsburg, W. Va.

THE BON AQUA SCHOOL

It is with a feeling of gratitude to God for the privilege of having served as one of the Committee on the Tennessee Training School for Auxiliary Workers that I render the following report:

The Synodical Auxiliary having one year ago authorized a Training School for Auxiliary Workers to be put on in 1929, a committee composed of the three Presbyterian presidents was appointed to formulate plans and they, with the Synodical president, were given administrative powers and were also to compose the program committee.

After much investigation the place was announced as Bon Aqua Springs Park Hotel, at Bon Aqua, Tenn., the time was August 7-14.

Four credit classes were offered with the result that 73 credits were awarded. Bible Study taught by Rev. A. C. Dudley, Home Missions by Mrs. H. L. Cockerham, Foreign Missions by Miss Lucille Dubose, and Auxiliary Methods by Mrs. Walter A. Craven.

A Daily Vacation Bible School was held with Mrs. T. B. Roddy as Director. Morning Watch was led by representatives from our local auxiliaries. Vesper services held in the pavilion each evening were led by Miss Cornelia Engle from the Executive Office of Christian Education and Ministerial Relief. A committee composed of Mrs. J. G. Miller, Mrs. Ross Woods, and Mrs. Frank Gillespie assisted the program committee with the music, pageants, readings and demonstrations which were presented each afternoon after the rest periods.

The Tennessee Training School being in its infancy found it was highly favored and we feel greatly blessed by having the Secretary of Woman's Work, Miss Janie W. McGaughey, of St. Louis, with us for a few days. She addressed us two evenings,—the emphasized thoughts being, "Why we are here?" and the answer, "Soulwinning."

Others speakers who brought us inspirational messages were the Rev. J. J. Fix, D.D., Rev. Chas. E. Diehl, D.D., Rev. James E. Clarke, D.D., and Darby Fulton, D.D., Rev. J. O. Reavis, D.D., gave us two inspiring messages on Sunday.

The girls and boys from Monroe Harding Home gave much joy and created interest in this Synodical responsibility when they were presented in their Orchestra led by Mr. Fagan Thompson, and accompanied by Miss Mary Smith.

It will be remembered that Synod's Committee on Religious Education gave the sum of one hundred dollars to assist in the first Training School. It is a joy to announce we have paid all expense and have a balance to our account.

The echoes of the School were with one accord in favor of continuing the Tennessee Training School for Auxiliary Workers and the Committee was empowered to again make plans for it. Dr. Chas. E. Diehl extended a hearty invitation to the Committee for the Training School to be held in Southwestern in 1930. This invitation was much appreciated and will be carefully considered. A desire was often expressed that we might be able in the near future to own our own Assembly grounds where all of our conferences might be held.

Our registrar, Miss Bessie McKinstry, reports: Columbia Presbyterian, five women, one child; Memphis Presbyterian, thirty women, ten children; Nashville Presbyterian, twenty-three women and three children.

In addition to the registered delegates there were many visitors.

(Mrs. L. D.) Erma W. McAuley,

Oakland, Tenn.

Chairman.

ANOTHER PLEA FOR CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

(Continued from page 5)

tion. At the present time no such sentiment exists, and probably will not soon, if ever. I have found practically no enthusiasm for a denominational organization in our Church.

Some of the professors in Union Theological Seminary and in Richmond Training School and some of our secretaries are being criticized rather caustically because of their attacks upon Christian Endeavor. No one would prevent anybody from championing a cause dear to his heart, but it does seem that the bounds of propriety are broken when those in the employ of the church use their official positions to undermine faith in Christian Endeavor, a society sponsored by our General Assembly. Unless these unfair and unkind attacks cease unpleasant circumstances are sure to arise. We Christian Endeavor advocates are not going to sit by any longer and see an organization dear to our hearts discredited by those whose salaries are raised by the sweat of our brow.

I was reared in the Baptist Church and owe what I am today largely to that denomination. I left the Church of my childhood for the Presbyterian Church. I thought I saw in the Presbyterian Church a wider fellowship and a more tolerant attitude toward other faiths. I do not want to see the Presbyterian Church make the mistake of withdrawing from all interdenominational enterprises and establishing a narrow and exclusive attitude toward others. This is the day of union, of world brotherhood, of unlimited fellowship. Why cannot we foster the spirit of the day and not turn backward to a limited horizon and a limited service? The wider, the deeper, and the broader our contacts with others the deeper, the nobler, and the purer our character will become. We stand by Christian Endeavor because it stands for a worldwide brotherhood and a worldwide vision.

G. W. Irby.

Mayesville, S. C.

OBITUARIES

MRS. WILLIAM H. SPRUNT

On Friday morning, July 19, 1929, Mrs. Wm. H. Sprunt breathed her last quiet breath and went to her great reward. After the pain and weariness of the past ten months she is released from the burden of flesh and has entered into rest. A lover of beauty here, she sees the King in His beauty there; a faithful servant of His, she hears Him say, "Well done."

Bettie Hamilton Sprunt was a communicant of Saint Andrews Presbyterian Church of Wilmington, North Carolina, for almost fifty years, and from the earliest of her married life when she came to Wilmington, she was very active in all the work of the Church. She took her five boys to the Sunday School from their early days, and was herself in charge of the Primary Department, then called the "Infant Room." She was for years a member of the choir, and for many years played the piano at Prayer Meeting and led the singing there. She was active in the organizing of the Woman's Auxiliary, and in its early days of struggle, during which time she held various offices in its organization. Her public and private benefactions were more than will ever be known till God's books are opened; but many can tell of help bestowed with a gentle thoughtfulness when most needed. She was active in every program for promoting the welfare of the rising generation and participated in their activities both religious and social until a short time before her illness.

Her church was one of her chief loves, her home was another. To her it was a sanctuary, a place of happy comfort, a training ground, where each child and each servant learned to love God and His services, a place of hospitality, a haven of peace. She was an affectionate wife, a devoted mother, and her children and grandchildren rise up to call her blessed, with her husband, who was her lifelong lover, blessing upon her the devotion of a richly endowed nature.

Surviving Mrs. Sprunt are her husband, Mr. William H. Sprunt, and five sons and thirteen grandchildren. Three of the sons, Walter P. Sprunt, Alexander Sprunt and J. Dalziel Sprunt are associated with their father in the cotton business in Wilmington. Dr. W. H. Sprunt, Jr., practices surgery at Winston-Salem, in this state, and Dr. Douglas H. Sprunt is pathologist at Yale Medical School. In addition to the above, Mrs. Sprunt leaves an invalid sister, Mrs. H. C. Dixon, of Hickory, N. C., and a brother, Mr. Charles T. Hamilton, of Montreat, N. C., and a number of nieces and nephews.

"And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away."

J. D. W. and S. E. H.

Wilmington, N. C.

IN MEMORIAM

Whereas, Almighty God our loving Heavenly Father, in His infinite wisdom and eternal purpose, has called to her reward, Mrs. Sprunt, the devoted, affectionate wife of our dearly beloved friend W. H. Sprunt; in her death St. Andrew's lost a friend who, by her exemplary Christ selfish devotion to the work of the Master never failing liberality, has left the impress in the hearts and lives of the entire congregation in Christian living all may try to emulate.

Therefore, be it resolved:

First: That we humbly bow our hearts and wills to the will of the God whom she loved she served so devotedly.

Second: That we shall miss her winsome sympathy and Christian fellowship.

Third: That we extend to the bereaved family sincere sympathy, commending them to the Father, that when we walk through the valley of grief—He is there to bless and comfort and sustain.

Fourth: That a copy of these resolutions be placed in a page of the minutes of the session, a copy to the family and a copy to the Presbyterian Standard.

The Session of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church,
S. A. Haines
J. E. Woodbridge
Geo. S. Boyd
F. W. Fremont

Wilmington, N. C.

NEILL S. BLUE

Whereas, God in His wise providence has called to his heavenly reward our brother Neill S. Blue, who for fifty-six years served as an elder of the Grove Church, Fayetteville Presbytery, the following resolutions were resolved:

1. That we are mindful of the deep loss to the church through the death of one who was loyal and devoted member, a faithful ruling elder, and a useful and respected citizen.

2. That we desire to express our deepest sympathy of the work and worth of our brother. He was a faithful attendant upon all the services of the church and the meeting of the session; and during his six years as an officer in the church he was diligent to shirk a duty that the office of ruling elder demanded of him.

3. That we assure the grief stricken family our sincere love, sympathy, and pray that God may grant them comfort and peace in this time of need.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be placed in the minutes of the session, and that copies be sent to the family and the Presbyterian Standard.

A. D. Carswell
S. J. Cameron

Raeford, N. C.

MRS. VIRGINIA HARTSELL JOHNSTON

Tribute of Respect

We, the members of Gilwood Auxiliary, desire to offer a tribute of love to our friend and colleague Virginia Hartsell Johnston, who met a sudden death July 21, 1929, while on her way to church.

Therefore be it resolved:

1. That while we bow in humble submission to the will of our Heavenly Father, we feel deeply that we will ever cherish her memory.

2. That we are thankful for her beautiful life.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be placed in the family, the church paper, and a copy be sent to the minutes.

Mrs. M. M. ...
Mrs. J. O. ...
Mrs. H. B. ...

Concord, N. C.

MARRIED

McLean-Caldwell—Married in McPherson, C., at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Glover, on August 17, 1929, by the Rev. Harry Mr. Lawrence Carl McLean of Latta, S. C. Emily Glover Caldwell, daughter of the late Mr. Caldwell.

Alexander-Buchanan—In the Presbyterian Church, Brandon, Miss., August 27, 1929, by Rev. J. B. Buchanan, D.D., of Hazelbush and Rev. J. B. Johnston of Jackson, Miss.—

Rev. Norwood Alexander and Miss Ann Buchanan daughter of the late William Buchanan many years a ruling elder of this church.

Mr. Alexander is a native of Mecklenburg, N. C., graduate of Davidson College and a Seminary. For the past five years he has been pastor of Raymond and Brandon churches, local country seats of Hinds and Rankin counties respectively. He has done efficient work among the young people of Hinds County, Miss., at Raymond. The people of the town are greatly attached to him.

He resigned these important pastorates to spend a year in post-graduate study at the Theological Seminary.

How To Get HEALTH And How To Keep It

If the reading of this article teaches you only this one lesson about your own body it may be worth more than millions of dollars to you; for of what use is money without health, or after you are dead?

The lesson is this:—"Keep your system pure and you will have health and strength to gain and enjoy happiness, success and length of years."

But you may ask:—

How Can I Keep My System Pure?

That is not a hard question to answer, for physiology plainly teaches you that your liver, which is larger than all of the other glands of the body combined, does the special work of purifying your blood and thereby your entire system and of keeping it pure and healthy.

How Does the Liver Purify?

Physicians tell us that the liver has several functions, one of which is to manufacture a greenish-yellow, bitter fluid called bile, which, between meals, is stored up in the gall-bladder, but after each meal is poured out into the intestines. The bile is purgative and antiseptic or prophylactic. In health it is your bile that makes your bowels act regularly and freely every day,—it is Nature's purgative. It is your bile that keeps your bowels pure, sweet, clean and free from fermentation (gas) and putrefaction and decay. Remember that germs do not thrive where there is fresh bile and there can therefore be no fermentation to cause gas, nor putrefaction or decay to produce poisons or toxins. Also, as bile is Nature's purgative, there can be no constipation if the bile is flowing naturally and freely from the gall-bladder into the bowels after each meal.

But when the bile becomes stagnant and stops flowing freely, your bowels stop acting regularly and the contents become a stagnant breeding bed for the germs of fermentation (gas) decay and disease. These poisons, (called toxins) are gradually absorbed into your blood and circulate all over your body, poisoning, irritating or inflaming your brain and nerves, your muscles and joints, your heart, lungs, skin, kidneys, bladder, spleen and every vital organ of your body, including your liver, stomach and bowels. Your doctor calls this "intestinal toxæmia."

Functions of Gall-Bladder

In 24 hours your liver secretes about 30 ounces (5 to 6 teacupfuls) of bile, which flows through millions of minute canals, or ducts, uniting to make a large tube which empties into the gall-bladder, as creeks and rivulets unit to form a river that flows into a lake. Your gall-bladder is a hollow muscle that serves the double purpose of a reservoir and a pump. Its functions are similar to those of the urinary bladder. About two hours after eating, when the food is passing from the stomach into the intestines, your gall-bladder should begin its peristaltic contractions, thus pumping the bile into the small intestine where it is mixed with your food. (Bile is also a very important digestive fluid, aiding in the digestion and absorption of fats and oils. But that is too long a story to relate here.)

Nature's Danger Signals

When your car gets out of fix you can tell it. It is the same way with your bile. Nature gives you warning—not by words, but by signals or symptoms. Your doctor recognizes these danger signals and you should also know them and instantly heed them. It may save you much pain, serious illness and perhaps big repair bills.

When the bile becomes stagnant in your gall-bladder and is dammed back into your liver instead of flowing freely into your bowels you, sooner or later, begin to feel some of the following symptoms:—Your breath may become unpleasant, your tongue coated, a bad taste in your mouth, your food (and tobacco) lose their natural flavor, your food does not agree with you; you may have heartburn, gas, or fluttering around the heart, dizziness or blind spell; you may be troubled with belching or frequent passages of gas from the bowels: the gas "balloons" your bowels and presses so hard on the kidneys that it gives you pain, soreness, stiffness in the small of your back over your kidneys, making you think you have kidney trouble; at night the gas in your bowels presses upon your bladder making you get up frequently, thus breaking into your sleep. In the morning you are tired instead of refreshed. Gradually your health is injured. Your complexion becomes sallow, muddy or yellow—your skin may be disfigured with liver spots or pimples; dark rings may appear under your eyes, you may become sleepless, restless and irritable or blue and melancholic. You may have frequent colds or dull headache; your bowels stop their free, full and natural action; you have constipation, gas putrefaction and self-poisoning or "intestinal toxæmia," as the doctors call it. High blood pressure, with headache and swooning spells, may result from continued neglect.

How to Make the Bile Flow

But when the bile stops flowing freely, how can we start it up again? The answer is: Take Calotabs at bedtime and drink water freely the next day. This formula represents the best thought and experience of the best physicians in every civilized country in the world. No other purgative will do. If you take oils, salts, cascara, or the many other simple-laxative syrups, powders and candy laxatives, you are merely wasting valuable time. They only make you feel better for a day or two. They do not remove the cause, for they do not promote the expulsion of the bile which is Nature's only purgative and intestinal antiseptic. When you take Calotabs you know that you have taken a real doctor's medicine. It cleans you out thoroughly. Every inch of your twenty-five foot canal, including your stomach, small intestines and large intestines, is thoroughly cleared and washed clean and pure and your bile is flowing freely. Next morning your system feels purified and refreshed and you are feeling fine, with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you please and go about your work;—there is no danger, for Calotabs are perfectly safe and create no habit, except the habit of healthy bowel actions.

What Are Calotabs—How Do They Act?

Calotabs are sugar-coated tablets, containing the minimum effective dose of a thoroughly purified and refined calomel combined with assistants and correctives. The calomel facilitates the expulsion of the bile from the gall-bladder into the intestines and also serves as a mild intestinal antiseptic and diuretic. Every physician knows that no other medicine can take its place; there is no such thing as a substitute for calomel. The assistants act like salts, washing the calomel out of the system and preventing its accumulation and any possibility of danger. The correctives settle the stomach and bowels, preventing nausea, sickening and griping effects. Calotabs, (and water) therefore, give you the combined effects of calomel and salts without the nausea, griping and disagreeable taste.

The medicine chest of every home should be supplied with Calotabs, one of the most important of all family medicines. It is needed in many cases of sickness, and, if used occasionally, as needed, may assist Nature to correct conditions which, if neglected may lead to serious illness.

Avoid disappointment by refusing imitations and substitutes. Your druggist can supply you with genuine Calotabs if you insist. For your protection, Calotabs are marketed in original packages only, bearing the copyrighted trademark. Family package, containing full directions, only 35 cents.

CHILDREN

PUMPKIN PIE

Ruth was making her first pumpkin pie, and it was made out of the first pumpkin out of their own garden. Mother had shown her just how to prepare the pumpkin and mix the crust. Attracted by the fragrant, spicy odor, Brother Bob came in, followed by his dog Shad. "Smell's good," he announced. "Are we to have that pie for dinner?"

"No, indeed!" answered Ruth. "We are to have it tonight when Aunt Ruth is here." Ruth was named for Aunt Ruth, and she had not seen her for two whole years.

When Ruth took the pie out of the oven, baked to a shiny, golden brown, she set it in the pantry window to cool. Nobody knows how it happened, but the pie slid right on out of the window and crashed into the shrubbery beneath.

"Oh, oh!" cried Ruth.

And she ran outside. But Shad was there before her and eagerly licking the empty plate. What he hadn't eaten was lodged in the shrubbery.

But Ruth went to work again with a will and soon had another nice pumpkin pie out of the oven. This one she set on a little table on the back porch to cool. But when she went out to bring it in, there, perched on the edge of the tin, was her pet hen, daintily pecking the pumpkin out of the inside of the crust.

"Shoo! shoo!" cried Ruth, angrily.

Then, "You'll have to lay me two more eggs to pay for that," she said, laughing in spite of herself. "I will not give up," she decided. "There is still time to make another pie."

The third pie looked like the nicest of them all. She put it on a high shelf in the pantry where it would be safe, while she went upstairs to get dressed for company. But the afternoon mail brought a letter from Aunt Ruth, saying that her visit would have to be postponed.

The supper table was a jolly one as the tale of the three pumpkin pies was told to father. Then Ruth excused herself to serve the third pie. But the pie was not on the shelf where she had left it! While they were all wondering what could have happened to it, the doorbell rang. Ruth went to the door, and there stood Aunt Ruth, and she was holding the pumpkin pie in her hands, and she was laughing!

"Why, why! Aunt Ruth!" stammered Ruth in surprise. "You are here, after all. I am so glad! But how on earth did you get my pie?"

Mother and father both came to the door and Aunt Ruth was ushered in, still laughing, and then she explained how it all happened. After she had sent her letter, she found she could come after all, and as she just had time to get the train, she did not telegraph them. As for the pie that Ruth had made in her honor—well, she met Bob just as she reached the house, and he gave it to her.

After Aunt Ruth was seated in her place and supper was resumed, Bob appeared. "Please excuse me for being late to supper," he said, "and for borrowing your pie for a minute. I was playing ball with the boys, and on my way home, I told Tom Griggs that my sister had made a dandy pumpkin pie and he said he bet it would not be as good as his mother's pumpkin pies, and I said it was; so I came in the back door and took it out and gave him a sample of it." (They all looked at the pie and, sure enough, a small piece was missing). "Then I met Aunt Ruth right in the yard, so I gave the pie to her and skipped up the back stairway to wash up."

No wonder Aunt Ruth laughed, as did the rest of them.

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use the

YELLOW-haired Susie May and BROWN-haired Teddy are sailing their little paper boats in the BLUE pond. The BLUE is reflected from the clear BLUE of the sky, of course.

Susie May has a PURPLE boat with a big RED sail on a YELLOW mast. Susie May has a RED and white checked bloomer frock on.

Teddy wears BROWN trousers and a TAN (use BROWN and YELLOW mixed) blouse and a RED tie. His boat is ORANGE (use RED and YELLOW mixed) color with a white sail on a YELLOW mast.

"Oh, I see you have a Fairy Passenger!" cries Susie May. And sure enough—there is a beautiful butterfly with BLUE dots on its YELLOW wings. The body of the butterfly is PURPLE.

The grass is GREEN and the flowers have a GRAY (use Black light and GREEN leaves. Both children have PINK cheeks (use RED and GREEN) and RED lips.

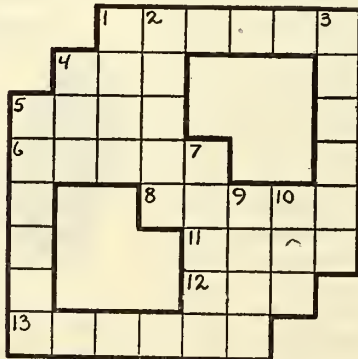

The border of this picture is colored ORANGE color and the trees are GREEN.

"Tom said the sample was fine," said Bob. "His mother could not do any better."

And when Ruth cut the pie and served it to the family, they all agreed that no one could make a better pie.—Carrie Belle Boyden, in Zion's Herald.

PUZZLE CORNER

Junior Cross-Word Puzzle

- | | |
|----------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| Horizontal | Vertical |
| 1—Compliment | 1—Trudge |
| 4—A southern State (abbr.) | 2—Swift |
| 5—To let fall | 3—Gained |
| 6—Wireless | 4—Associate of Royal Academy (abbr.) |
| 8—Rode | 5—A fabulous |
| 11—Withered | 7—Command |
| 12—Superlative ending | 9—A river in N. France |
| 13—Character | 10—Veteran (abbr.) |

Criss Cross Author Puzzle

My first is in Shakespeare but not in Coleridge.

My second is in Coleridge but not in Whitman.

My third is in Whitman but not in Longfellow.

My fourth is in Longfellow but also in Taylor.

My fifth is in Taylor but not in Fletcher.

My sixth is in Fletcher but not in Wordsworth.

My seventh is in Wordsworth but not in Hawthorne.

My eighth is in Hawthorne but not in Shelley.

My ninth is in Shelley but not in Keats.

My tenth is in Keats but not in Poe.

My whole helps to acquaint us with these famous men.

Colored Diagonals

Take the first letter of first word, second letter of second word, proceed diagonally down to the last letter of last word and find a color.

FIVE LETTER WORDS

- 1—A flower.
- 2—An Ancient Mexican race.
- 3—A temporary peace.
- 4—Grace.
- 5—Portion.

Fraction From the Kitchen Garden

- Add together—
- 3-5 of a room on a boat
 - 1-6 of an insect.
 - 3-4 of old
- And find a vegetable.

THE JUNIOR COOK

Iced Cocoa

One of the most delicious and nourishing of summer beverages is iced cocoa and every junior cook should know how to make it well.

Make a syrup by boiling for three minutes

- 6 tablespoonfuls of cocoa
- 6 tablespoonfuls of sugar
- 1 cupful of water

Pour into a bottle and keep for use.

This syrup may be measured in any amount—have the amount you want, the amount, or any way you like. Use the first few times you make it in quantities mentioned above.

Fill glasses nearly full with milk and add the syrup, until it is blended. Add enough cocoa to make a strong cocoa to suit your personal taste. Some like it brown and rich, others very light.

Serve with wafers or cookies between meal drink or with sandwiches for luncheon.

"AUNTIE" COMING IN

Dear Standard:
I am a little girl six years old and will start to school next year. I read and write some now. I have 17 little pigs, and I have a name is Frisky. I'm afraid I will run out of names if we will name all the pigs, aren't you? Auntie is coming home August 1st. She is a nurse in Richmond, all of us are looking forward to her. I hope Mr. W. the milk maker has gone swimming or fishing. My first letter to be published. Your new friend, Martha B.

Rowland, N. C.

HERO 777. A HERO

en Friel Baker

see those prisoners being work, mother," said Thomas. as he watched a long file convicts being marched to at where they were doing work. "I wonder why they hem through a back street to work in busses? I feel them every time I look at very recently one of those if one of the every-day been talking about." ose who have just passed ed Tom.

ed in another state. But he on garb and was under the onvict.' His very name had e world and he was known er 777."

he do that proved him a y asked. ed himself for one thing,"

"Will you tell me the story please, mother?"

"Gladly," said Mrs. Franklin.

"The story of Number 777 is also a story of the recent great and destructive flood which did so much damage in our country."

"But how could a convict prove a hero in that?" Thomas interrupted.

"Listen, and you shall hear," she answered:

"The story of the Mississippi flood is a sickening story of man's defeat at the hands of a great river. It is a story of ruin and havoc when levee after levee crumbled as the waters of the great river rushed southward on its way to the gulf. It is the story of the destruction in town after town, city after city, county after county and state after state. In many ways this battle of man against the river was the very bravest battle ever waged in our country. Men were mobilized in great groups to fight the destruction as best they might and most of their interest was centered in levees. Men toiled night and day to save these levees, for saving the levees meant saving homes, lives, property, and money."

"In the early days before men mobilized to fight the flood, levee after levee broke under tremendous pressure from the river and homes and lives were lost with little or no warning.

"Then there came a time when almost the whole interest of our country was centered in New Orleans."

"I remember that from your other flood story, Mother," Thomas interjected. "But why was there so much interest in New Orleans? Weren't all the other cities just as important?"

"Well, no, not from every view point," she replied. "You see New Orleans was important in more ways than one. The city lies for the most part below the river level and there are four hundred thousand people who live there. That was the first thing that made it a strategic point from which to fight the flood. In the second place the whole country knew that if the river ever reached the top of the levees, disaster not to be compared with anything else in American history would follow."

"But they did save New Orleans, didn't they, mother?" Thomas interrupted again.

"Yes, they did by a united and mighty effort. For a long time the racing flood lapped uncomfortably close to the very top of the levees. For a long time men worked and thought and prayed to save the city. But the saving of New Orleans did not end the flood.

"Planters in northern Louisiana were all this time fighting to save that section known as the 'the sugar bowl.' The levees along certain of the bayous were giving way and thousands of men toiled day and night piling up sandbags, bags of earth, building banks and doing everything possible to save the sugar bowl. Even though they feared their fight was in vain, it did not seem that they knew how to stop fighting. Finally they made a last stand at the banks of the Atchafalaya River which parallels the Mississippi to the Gulf. They attempted to build up the levees high enough to withstand the flood. Men from all over the world volunteered their services to help.

"Even the convicts in the prisons volunteered and begged to be let help. They were accepted and were put on duty at McCrea. The river still swept madly on, caught the steamer in which the convicts were serving nobly on the ramparts. None were lost. A few hours afterward they were again at work on the levees. Among this number was Number 777.

"Then at last the river was victorious in its attack on McCrea. The break in the levees came at three o'clock one morning and by noon it was more than a thousand feet wide. Six government barges, tied alongside the levees, crashed through in the first hour.

"But long before this Number 777 had made his escape."

"Did he get away?" Thomas asked excitedly. "But, mother, he wasn't a hero if he ran away."

"But he came back," she answered. "Wait until the story is ended, Tom, and then you may decide for yourself whether or not Convict Number 777 did a heroic deed or not. But to go back:

"It was during the hottest part of the fighting to save the levees and the convicts were serving nobly on the ramparts. Seven hundred and seventy-six of them worked like other men, with no patrol and no sentinels over them. Once more they were given an opportunity to play the part of men and they played it bravely, even while their lives were constantly endangered by the crumbling walls.

"All but Number 777. The others had worked out a sort of honor system among themselves and so ignored the chance to escape, as they swung the pick and shovel through the long days, and slept unguarded on the ship at night.

"But Number 777 was tempted and fell. He slipped quietly into the mad, raging river and swam for the shore. Then he sat down on the raindrenched earth to see how freedom really felt. 'I am free,' he kept repeating to himself. "Free from prison bars, free from convict stripes, and guards, and the hard labor that he had known."

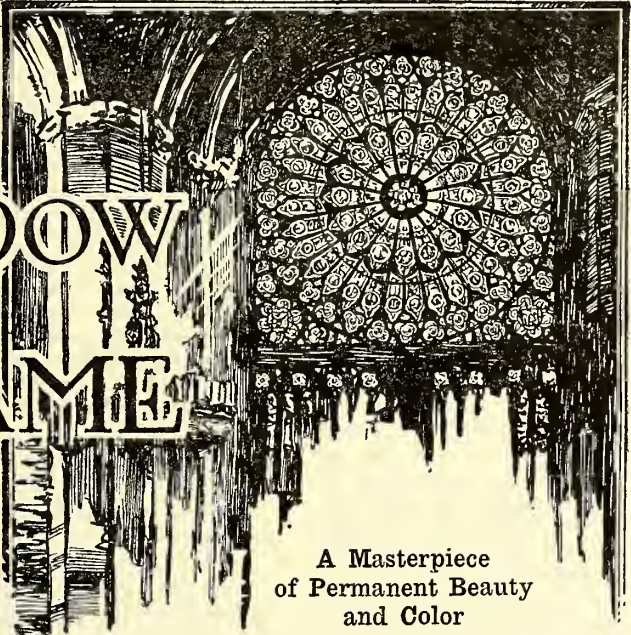

"He drank in great draughts of fresh, free air. He sprang to his feet and began to run. Then his conscience made him stop short in his tracks and he fell down face on the damp ground. He thought of fellows back there at work on the dikes and he felt ashamed. They were brave men, and only he was a coward. At last he decided to go back and face the consequences. Shamefacedly he began to retrace his steps. Suddenly he halted short again. He stood still and listened.

"He thought he heard a child crying. He began to beat about in the bushes near-by, and in the long undergrowth he found a crying child, a tiny, little fellow not more than three years old. He might have been lost by some family in their flight to save their lives. He might have been carried there by the dark waters. However that may be, he was there, and the big man was taking him gently in his arms and soothing his sobs against his breast. For the poor little fellow was badly frightened.

"Then he buttoned the little fellow inside his loose prison jacket and struck out through the mad waters, swimming for the dikes again.

"Where in the world have you been, and where did you get that child?" asked the man who worked next to him on the

The BEAUTIFUL ROSE WINDOW of
NOTRE DAME

A Masterpiece of Permanent Beauty and Color

THE Famous Rose Window of the Cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris is a work of infinite beauty and splendor. It perhaps the masterpiece of all art glass windows. Built in the Thirteenth Century, it stands today unsurpassed in beauty and excellence of workmanship. The color of gorgeous gems and precious stones are brought into this magnificent spectacle for the admiration of passing thousands through all the years. If a world-wide search were made for a monumental material approaching the beauty of the assembled colors of the famous Rose Window, such material would be found in

Winnsboro Granite

"The Silk of The Trade"

Trade Names of Precious Stones Cut From the Same Kind of Mineralogical Crystals as Are Found in Winnsboro Granite
ALASKA DIAMOND	BOHEMIAN RUBY
ALPINE DIAMOND	CEYLON OPAL
AMAZON DIAMOND	ELDORADOITE
AMETHYST	EMERALD
AMPHIBOLE	EMERALDINE
ANCONA RUBY	FELDSPAR SUNSTONE
AQUAMARINE	GOLD QUARTZ
AQUAMARINE TOPAZ	HELIOTROPE
ADVENTURINE	INDIAN AGATE
AZURE QUARTZ	JASPER
BAFFA DIAMOND	MOONSTONE
BASANITE	RAINBOW QUARTZ
BERYL	ROSE QUARTZ
BISHOP'S STONE	SAPPHIRE QUARTZ
BLOODSTONE	TOPAZ
BLUE MOONSTONE	YOGO SAPPHIRE

It is found, also, that the beautiful colors of Winnsboro Granite come from the various crystals it contains, which are identical in substance to many of the finest of precious stones and jewels of the order of the amethyst and moonstone. When the surface of this granite,—which is a composite of these actual precious stone crystals,—is highly polished, all the beauty and color of these jewels become visible. Could a more beautiful monumental stone be found anywhere than this?

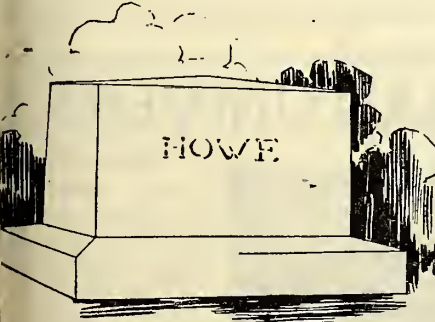

Winnsboro Granite is most lasting because it is composed of the most durable mineral known. It is superbly beautiful because it is made up of the substance of precious stones and gems. Inscriptions on it are clearly legible because of the marked contrast between cut and polished surfaces.

Be sure that "Winnsboro Granite" is specified in your contract for monuments. Like other high quality materials, there are many inferior substitutes, which resemble this granite on first appearance, but do not possess its lasting qualities and permanent beauty, because they contain more deleterious elements, such as water, lime and iron. These elements tend to disintegration and discoloration.

Have your monument dealer furnish you with a personal guarantee from the quarries that the monument you purchase is cut in genuine Winnsboro Granite.

The certificate of the quarries is signed by B. H. Heyward, Treas., and General Manager, whose signature insures genuine Winnsboro Granite. A facsimile of this signature is reproduced below.

Write for free descriptive literature.

Winnsboro Granite Corporation, Rion, S. C.

B. H. Heyward Treas. & Gen. Mgr.

dikes, and who had not missed him before this.

"Saved him from the flood," answered Number 777. And that is all he told of his attempted escape and his brave return to his comrades and their brave work.

"But the story got out somehow and a number of prominent newspapers had editorials about it. Now it is pretty generally known."

"What became of the little boy?" asked Thomas.

"He was restored to his parents who had lost him when they fled from their home, when awakened by the flood dashing about at midnight."

"He was a real hero to go back when he had a chance to escape," said Thomas thoughtfully.

"Yes, indeed he was," answered Mrs. Franklin, "and by doing so he took a long step upward toward regaining his manhood and his own self-respect."—Leader.

THE GIRL IN BLUE

Ernest Elwood Stanford, in C. E. World

A half-stifled scream; the wide violet eyes of the girl in blue were dilated in terror. None of the early shoppers in the scantily peopled aisles of the great store were near enough to find the burly officer's rumble articulate.

"Caught wid the goods, me dear. Steady, now. Quiet!" He swept up the little brown shopping-bag. "Walk careful, or I'll put a steel bracelet on y'r wrist."

Late in the afternoon Officer Burney, off duty, came to a standstill before a newly painted name on a rather dingy door. "Thomas Wentworth, Attorney."

Easing himself inside, Burney sat carefully down on an elderly chair, and rested his helmet on a crossed knee.

"Tom, I've a client for ye."

Young Wentworth had replaced his feet on the desk. They were small, trim feet, which looked well shod, with their soles toward the wall. The attorney was a slender young fellow, with the figure of a light-weight boxer, though there was nothing pugnacious about the smooth, still freckled face save perhaps the close-cropped brush of tawny hair above it.

"Fine!" he cried. "I was just wondering where next week's meals were coming from."

"Go on wondherr-in'," rumbled Burney. "I'm thinkin' it's a 'prentice case, with

'prentice pay, which is none at all. But a smile from the client—ah-h, that shud be much reward."

"Smiles, empty smiles," gloomed young Wentworth. "I'm hardboiled, and hungry. State the case."

"I'm detailed to Randall's big store. The mor-rnin' was hardly hatched when comes a yell from a big fat g-green fr-rog av a woman who's prowlin' the jool'ry department."

"I've been robbed," she says, makin' no secret of it at all. 'I've been robbed. Me bag is gone."

"So I had t' see what was all the noise about."

"It was the gir-rl in blue," sings the fat dame. "The gir-rl in blue. She's gone—with me bag."

"By then the aisle was full of them sootherin' sisters they keep to calm such excitement as ain't good advertisin.' The old gir-rl had laid her bag down to look at some gaudy trifle, and next she knew 'twas gone. From her and the salesgirl I pieced out a description of a bit of a gir-rl in a blue dress who'd been nearabouts."

"So I went in the direction they thought she'd gone, and, pretty soon, there she is, bag in hand, and all but to the door. I slipped round inconspicuous, but not ten feet I'd got when she glimpsed me. She'd done better not to have seemed to. But she rounds the corner in high, and me afther her, but at some distance. I thought she'd beat me to the door; but when I get there, there she still is, within hand's reach of it, bag and all."

"And you gathered her in?" The officer had stopped for breath.

"I did," he agreed, "and a purty catch she was; the slim and slender bit of a thing with the darkest blue eyes and the sweetest bud av a mouth, rosy cheeks that the faires painted, and waves av dark hair—"

"And so you let her go?" Wentworth mischievously interrupted the rhapsody.

"If I only had!" sighed Burney. "But afther all, a cop's a cop, and I've been all of that for twenty years. I take 'em as I find 'em, and let the judge be the judge of beauty. And a fine story she told me, all shakin' wid fright at the ugly sight of me—how a flyin' beauty in blue likewise had shoved the bag in her hand and eloped out the door."

"Which you swallowed, hook, line, etc.?"

"Which I did not. For when I looked out, or tried to, me view is blocked by the big broad blue back of me friend Patrolman Jerry Flynn, standin' just outside, as luck would have it. And Jerry swears that sorta person had passed."

"So, thinks I, 'tis plain that me young lady, seein' her way blocked by that same back, has decided to stand pat and play a bluff, with the pretty innocent way of her, and lacked time to throw the bag."

"Up-stairs the sootherin' sisters is feedin' the fat gr-rog on smellin'-salts. She comes to immediately and yank open the bag. When she finds her jool'ry safe, she all but kisses me,—all but, praise be!—and in her transports she rewards me with a whole dollar bill. Think of it—a whole dollar!

"Then she'd 'a' fainted again if she'd not wanted to yell some more. For six hundred dollars she'd had—or said she'd had—in another compartment was clean gone. The dollar bill, which from surprise I'd not had the strength to ram down the throat of her, she snatches back out of me nerveless hand. The wife of the war-profiteerin' Schneider she was, and six hundred is a cancelled stamp beside his r-rotten army raincoat stealin's, but she took on like 'twas the whole of 'em."

"An' the gir-rl, more av a lady, thief or not, than the fat gr-green fr-rog wud be in a thousand years, told the detectives to search her; and search her they did, with never a smell of the money."

"An' then the Schneider says I'd had the handlin' of the gir-rl, and if she didn't accuse me o' makin' way with the six hundred, she implied it and looked it entirely, bless her!

"So we locked up the Ferguson gir-rl—the one in blue—for grand larceny, and let the gr-green frog go, bad luck to her."

"Did your blue-clad friend ask you to select counsel? Or is that part of the regular duties of an arresting officer?"

"Neythur. But she'll be needin' a lawyer; and if she's alone in the big city, it's a hard chance for her to get a good one."

"Thanks! Do you think she'd accept your recommendation?"

"She might. We're acquainted, at any rate."

"You don't really think she's innocent?"

"If she is, 'twill be a good deed to defend her, and that's a rare enough thing f'r a lawyer. If she's guilty, and y' get her off, she can afford to pay ye well from th' six hundred. And in either case ye get experience, which ye sorely need."

"You flatter me. But you don't answer my question."

"When I nabbed her, I'd sworn she was the one that ran round the corner, f'r all her pretty, innocent talk. The dollar bill gave me the doubts. When th' gr-green fr-rog snatched it back, they became more so. When she let on I was an accomplice, I knowed the gir-rl was innocent."

"A fellow feeling makes one wondrous kind," quoted Wentworth. "Didn't the Schneider woman identify her?"

"She did that. And so did a clerk that'd been waitin' on her. An' if I'd fetched yourself back with the bag, they'd done as much for you."

"You're hopeless. But how about Officer Flynn?"

Burney scowled. "When Jerry Flynn says a thing is, it's me that well knows, other things bein' equal, it ain't. Ten dollars dropped in Jerry's hand would blind him to an ar-rmy wid banners."

"You'd hardly say that in court."

Burney shook his head sorrowfully. "The lawyers, bad luck to 'em, will not let ye tell what ye know widout seein'. An' Jerry Flynn is the chief's cousin, which has pulled him out of many a bad hole. I'm too old to be doin' aught but poundin' beats."

"A hard case," commented Wentworth.

"Must ye have none but easy ones? Wud ye take it?"

"I'd not be unprofessional enough to solicit it. But I'd consider it if offered."

"Offered 'twill be," said Burney, getting up.

Some twenty-four hours later the Irishman's stick again banged upon the door.

"Y' are to repair to the county jail," he announced.

"Is this official?" queried Wentworth.

"Not yet," grunted Burney, "Nor does the term 'repair' refer to brick and mortar, bad as they're needed. Y'r name has been mentioned to an acquaintance of mine."

"'Twould be professional to wait an hour," ruminated Wentworth. "But I'll scorn camouflage, and go at once."

The lawyer went, however, without great expectation! There was nothing wholly impossible about the girl's story as told by Burney, but even to his somewhat brief court experience it rang too familiarly to be impressive. The tale was too threadbare.

But in the dingy and unromantic of the old jail interior the bare story took on somehow an aspect.

"I haven't a friend or relative a hundred miles." The dark-blue eyes violet?—eyes had turned an appeal her voice was to pay. "My room-rent is paid for though that doesn't matter so. A faintly humorous gleam shined in her dark lashes. "But I haven't left in the world. How can I?"

Young Wentworth assured her sincerity that called the faint into anxiety-paled cheeks, that he be considered after her account was the immediate thing.

Else Ferguson shook her relatives didn't approve of home. Quite anything might happen to a young girl alone in the great that their case is proved"—a faintly humorous gleam—"tragedy won't be an appeal for here a—a month first."

"It'll be hard if we don't," prophesies her lawyer. "It'll be done. And we must try person who left the bag in. Could any one else have seen it?"

"I doubt if any one did?"

"Can you describe her?"

Else Ferguson smiled, not was much to smile about, but to young Wentworth) became the sort of person to whom a necessity. He resolved—the young attorney—to occasion those.

"I hardly caught a glimpse she was taller than I, and clearer. She seemed dark, with dark hair, not bobbed. Her dress blue than mine, and cut different."

"Could you identify her?"

"I'm sure of it. Oh, that other thing. As she thrust my hand, I noticed that her— it must have been the right bent as though it had been badly set."

"A good detail," said Wentworth. "Thanks to the national game be rare in a man; but in a woman to clinch the identification in our hands on her."

"It'll be hard if we don't," her mouth drooping a bit. "I'm clerk who 'identified' me, as a man in the doorway."

Wentworth remembered ruefully enough, the more so left, somewhat urged by the. The dozen chance-blown nor ing an average jury-box—how this simple, innocent story against such matter-of-fact

PUZZLE ANSWERS

COLOR DIAGONAL

- A — ster
A—Z—tec
Tr—U—ce
Cha—R—m
Shar — E

FRACTION FROM THE KITCHEN GARDEN — CAB-IN, B-eetle. AGE-d. CABBAGE.

How to Spend Your Sundays
ORTHODOX SUNDAY SCHOOL LITERATURE

Samples on Application, Free UNION GOSPEL PRESS Cleveland, Ohio.

FALL CLASSES

will start at BOWEN-CONNATSER BUSINESS UNIVERSITY COLUMBIA, S. C.,

the first week in September and each Monday and Tuesday thereafter. Send application now so reservations may be made for you.

The COLLEGIATE SCHOOL for GIRLS

ON HISTORIC MONUMENT AVENUE, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

THE SCHOOL: A day and boarding school under the control of the Protestant Churches of Richmond, Virginia. College, Preparatory and General Courses. Bible Courses required.

THE CITY: Abounding in historical interest and cultural advantages. trips to points of interest. Fifteenth session opens September 19, 1929. For catalogue and information write:

MISS VAN GREENLEAF, Head of the School

FURMAN UNIVERSITY

Greenville, S. C.

RICHARD FURMAN HALL

In the healthful, beautiful Piedmont Section of S. C. Strong Christian faculty. Emphasis on moral and spiritual values of life. Beautiful campus, commodious well equipped buildings. Courses leading to A. B., B. S., and LL. B. degrees. Vigorous and successful law school. 12 Weeks Summer School. Champion Athletics, Glee Club, Dramatics, etc.

For catalogue and other data write W. J. McGLATHLIN, President better to stick for a jury of each old enough to be her could a dozen young, susceptible view her case more chari-have hired a professional t it was not for a client like at the mercy of one of these ole inheritance, an unimportant-building in an up-town secally accepted as collateral, spute as to its appraisal; and ersely to his surprised client merely a part of the usual attorney.

iled, he is," Patrolman Burned with a grim chuckle, when move reached him indirectly. ctly he had had a description n Miss Ferguson had des- an urgent plea for a general force. The policeman grunt-

t arrest such a person—if there be." Wentworth bris-arrest any one on suspicion and 'em. An' then y' can say, nce all runnin' contrariwise, 's a dear, plead guilty, and young gir-rl from doin' time y-clerk, Wentworth decided view, was at least partially opinion, though he felt her e fortified by the knowledge ng-power of Mrs. Schneider. cross-examine Officer Flynn. rned of the man lent some ey's insinuations, but proof other thing. The officer dou- ight, but Wentworth caught ng physical revenge if things at the trial. Search and re- him back on only the unsup- of Elsie Ferguson, quite n, but for the jury.

must have been passing Ran- trance that Monday morn- a rueful smile Wentworth e possibility that a single remember the precipitate reffrom of a girl in blue. But ope he epitomized the inci- sional in the daily papers, result.

sort did come, and through f the press. As he passed morning, he became aware ed but very persistent news- g from the partial mental urrounded him these days, elt some remembrance of im there before. s corner long?" he queried

e papers here t'ree years." s hand paused. "Boy, do r, last Monday about nine ; a young lady in a great out of the store here?" must t'ink I got a won'er- Skirts in droves is comin' e all day long."

a very particular 'skirt.' etched a hasty description. big officer in the door, it y' say that before? Sure, er. Flyin' she was, an' scat- all over the walk—never when I hollered at her. Then s again, an' another big cop ng dame— Say!" The boy's rk with suspicion. "Youse

t shook his head, and tried suringly. "What happened bull asked the first if he'd said the boy, resitatingly. e hadn't."

ought that was queer?" t'ink nothin's queer that bulls e boy half sullenly. Evi- already regretting his con- her you're a 'tec' or not, if 'ta' in court, I ain't seen as Big Flynn outside. He's

t pulled out a two-dollar bill. or luck. There's a ten-spot with it if you can locate ne. Here's my card."

eh?" Apprehension was ungster's voice. "You ain't into trouble?"

"She wouldn't come if she knowed you was wantin' her?"

"She'd be more likely to go to New York or New Orleans."

"I'd like that ten," the boy said wistfully. "But I can't leave me pile to go chasin' off. Better tip off the candy points and ice-cream parlors."

Wentworth retailed the interview to Burney. "What do you think of that?" he inquired triumphantly; for the old Irishman, having got the case off his hands and conscience, had relapsed into a case-hardened and maddeningly sceptical attitude. "It's no good in court," was the practical comment.

Wentworth's client heard the news with greater enthusiasm.

"Even if the boy won't testify, it's such a relief that you no longer have to take so much just on my word."

"Oh, I say!" began Wentworth in quite unprofessional accents.

"If only we could locate that girl!" "Spend all your time in the shopping-district," suggested Wentworth. "There's the chance you might pick her up—even catch her at her—er—profession."

Elsie Ferguson smiled and sighed. "You've taken me away, temporarily at least, from the State's free boarding-house. I've just taken a job, not a position exactly, but one that'll do till—we see what's going to happen. I'm a waitress in a white front. Could we offer a reward—but we haven't the money."

"It would hardly do if we had. Any public offer might scare her out of town, if she's still here."

"My unknown friend must resemble me in one more thing," ruminated Miss Ferguson. "She must eat. And I can't quite see her in domestic surroundings. If I could work simultaneously in all the white-fronts! There's a fine opportunity for observation, but less for following up."

"We'll circularize the restuarants!" exclaimed Wentworth. "That won't be public advertising. A small reward—"

"But—" "The case is in my hands. A little hand-bill for the—er—waiting profession only. That ought to bring results."

It did. The ink was hardly dry when a voice hurried over the wire.

"Mr. Wentworth? This is Kelly's restaurant, St. Clair an' Thirty-fifth, Maggie Kennan speakin'. Your party's here. Come quick; I'll hold the order, an' hold on to her."

A breakneck taxi run brought him to the address, an unsavory place near the water-front. His eyes may have identified him, for the waitress buttonholed him immediately with the hoarse whisper: "Down there by the winder. I ain't sure about the finger, but—"

Wentworth looked, and turned with a snort. The woman was dressed in blue indeed, but there any resemblance to what he had intended to describe ended. She must have been ten years older and twenty pounds heavier than the object of his search. With a choked exclamation Wentworth hurried away, unheeding the protestations of the indignant Miss Keenman.

"Business is rushing," commented the neighbor attorney who had kept an eye on Wentworth's office during his absence. "You've had four calls, all from restaurants. Your party must have some appetite."

"Good heavens!" groaned Wentworth. More searching inquiries, this time, of the numbers left yielding a decided negative in all cases but one, where the suspected woman had already left.

Following days brought more calls, and some taxi bills, but no other results saving an increasingly harassed look in the eyes of Thomas Wentworth. He spent all his days in anticipatory apprehension, and his evenings in reporting to his client that there was nothing to report. At ordinary rates for professional conference she should have been millions in his debt, but it is really doubtful whether either thought of that. And old Patrolman Burney shook his ponderous head till all the vertebrae must have been loosened.

"She's here! Right at this restaurant! You must come at once!"

It was but two days before that set for the trial. The voice—there was no need of identifying that. Wentworth escaped manslaughter on the stairs because no one happened to be in the way, and arrived at the white-front after a run which still holds the distance record.

He sauntered in somewhat breathlessly, and seated himself at a discreet distance from the object of his search as indicated by blue-violet wireless. The woman had, causally, some resemblance to Elsie Ferguson, but her features were markedly less delicate; her larger nose had an almost masculine suggestion, her firmer mouth a subtle hardness, and in her roving dark eye Wentworth's prejudiced one found an evil light. Only the fleeting view of her back, he thought grimly, could extenuate Burney.

He trailed her out at a prudent interval, being barely in time to catch the same car. He was off at her destination early enough to see her mount the steps of a middle-class rooming house.

At nine the next morning the person known most lately at Miss Ethel Hewlett, dressed with some care not in blue, but in a becoming dark-red, came down the steps of that perfectly respectable rooming-house. Her plans were indefinite; two or three nearly untoward incidents these later days had imbued her with some sense of caution; and she was strongly considering, for the moment at least, some less hazardous if less remunerative venture, perhaps even into the paths of righteousness, in which recently she had been a stranger.

As she waited for her car, a tottering step came behind her.

"Would you tell me, miss, what street this is?"

Miss Hewlett turned to face a bent, decrepit woman in rusty black. Her face was heavily veiled; behind the veiling, dark glasses further hid her features. Her gloved shaking hands held insecurely a black bag.

"I'm havin' trouble with my eyes," went on the cracked voice querulously. "I can't read them signs."

"St. Clair and Eagle," said Miss Hewlett crisply.

"That's right!" cried the old lady. "But I don't see Emma. Emma's my daughter-in-law. She said if I get off the car here at eight o'clock, she'd meet me here. Wer're goin' shoppin'."

"Well, it's nine now."

"What? You don't say so! That can't be!"

The old lady dived into the bag, thus betraying inside a large green roll at sight of which Miss Hewlett's spine stiffened and her fingers made an unconscious grasping movement. The black-clad hand came out with a tarnished nickel watch.

"I allus take this, shoppin'. It's Zenas' old one. I can't make out to read a littler one." She drew the noisy thing close to her eyes. "It is eight o'clock. You see if it ain't."

"Daylight-saving time here," explained Miss Hewlett kindly.

"My-oh-my! Fool time! I never thought of that! Out home we use standard. Emma's thought I wa'n't comin', and she's gone on in. And there's the money for the wood-lot that oughter be put in the bank,"—she checked herself sharply, glanced near-sightedly round, and went on,—"and I can't half see. What be I goin' to do?"

"Come with me," offered Miss Hewlett graciously. "I'm going down shopping, and I'll look out for you." Perhaps with an inward wink.

"Will you?" cried the old lady in delight. Then she drew back hesitantly. With a quick darting motion she turned her new friend's startled and rather reluctant face to the light, and inspected it closely. "I guess it's all right," she concluded. "I like you. Zenas tells me never to talk to strangers, and I don't usually. But you've got a real nice face. You put me in mind of my daughter, Lucy. But I'd feel better if you let me pay you for the trouble."

"No trouble," said Miss Hewlett grandly. "Forget it."

"Well, I'll pay car-fare—" the bag gaped above the bills again as the car approached. "I hope the conductor won't mind a five. I ain't got anything smaller. Nobody'd think, to look at me, that bag had five hundred dollars in it."

"Keep it closed," advised Miss Hewlett wisely.

"I guess I'll stop at Houghton's, and trade on the way down," decided her charge when solidly seated. "I know I ought to go down to the bank first; but I allus go to Houghton's and I hate to walk back."

"I'll see to you," said her new friend protectingly.

Some shoppers in the crowded store may have noticed a deeply veiled old lady in rusty black, piloted solicitously by a snappily dressed young woman; her daughter, they may have thought, or more likely her grand-daughter. But no one seemed to be looking as the older woman in raptures over a bit of dress-goods laid her bag down to get a closer look.

"Stop, thief!" shouted a voice which had no hint of either femininity or age. With a still more youthful spring the black-clad figure bounded in pursuit of the younger woman, who had got at least two steps into the crowd with property not hers. But before two more the black-gloved fingers had her as in a vise.

The chagrined Miss Hewlett aimed a workmanlike and unfeminine uppercut, which the the gray head avoided with agility. One of the aged lady's hands had engaged a stray strand of dark hair; and now the whole mass, hat and all, rolled on the floor. The close-cropped black poll beneath it, with the distorted face below, surmounted the skirted figure with a strangely masculine appearance. A string of unladylike oaths in no soprano tones removed any lingering doubt of the sex of the captive.

"Ah-h!" It was a sigh of pure delight. One black glove loosened its hold as the other went home with a rifle-like crack. "Miss Hewlett" sprawled at full length back into the startled crowd.

"And the officers found Mrs. Schneider's pocketbook, with papers of her's still in it, tucked away in his room with a lot of other swag. He owned up—there was nothing else to do; and he thought, no doubt, it would get him off easier. Your case'll be nol prossed—you won't have to appear, except as a witness against him later, perhaps, if he should happen to try to withdraw his confession. Oh, it was a great moment when that wig fell off! If he'd only have come up for just one more —" the young man on the park bench flexed his bandaged fist wistfully in the flickering light of the street-lamp which the city fathers had placed not too near that secluded spot.

But the girl, with great eyes, looked at the bandage, bulking large in the dim light.

"O Tom!" The monosyllable, used for the first time, came quite unconsciously from the trembling lips. "Did you hurt yourself much?"

And old Policeman Burney, detailed now to the less strenuous evening task of keeping order in the parks, eyed the pair sternly a moment as he walked by unseen in the shadow, then shook his head with a tiny hidden smile, and silently paced the other way.

P·R·I·N·T·I·N·G

of every description

THE largest book or the smallest visiting card, we are equipped to serve you according to your needs.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD Publishing Company

P. O. Box 869 Charlotte, N. C.

QUALITY PRINTING & REASONABLE PRICE

STORY

LESLIE CROSSES THE EQUATOR

Have you ever been across the Equator before, Leslie?" asked his chum, Martin Johnson.

"No, I haven't," was the reply. "Have you?"

"Sure. Don't you remember I took this trip to South America two years ago? Here's my diploma."

"Your what?"
"My diploma. It's a piece of paper signed by Father Neptune saying that I'm a member of the noble order of sea-horses. All I'll have to do this time is show this paper, and I'll get off easy. But my — you're in for a pretty tough time."

Leslie had heard about what old sailors did to the new recruits who had never crossed the equator before, but he thought that if you were a passenger it was different. But Martin told him that being a passenger was just like being a member of the crew as far as Father Neptune was concerned. When the court was rigged up, he said, nobody but those who could show diplomas would be excused from the ceremony.

"You can take your choice of either letting us drag you behind the ship for two miles or jumping from the top of the mast into a hatch tarpaulin."

"Aw—you're just joking," replied Leslie.

"Your father wouldn't let them do that to anybody."

"Well, I may be joking about those two things," laughed Martin, "but wait until you see what you really have to do!"

That morning Leslie watched the sailors rigging up some canvas on the after deck of the cargo steamship on which he and his chum were traveling to South America.

"What is that for?" he asked.

"It's a tank," replied the Bosun. "You see, when Father Neptune meets a landlubber for the first time, someone has to take a bath. And you wouldn't want it to be Father Neptune, would you?"

Leslie shook his head.

"But what's the diving board for?" he queried. "Surely you don't expect anybody to jump overboard, do you?"

"Well," replied the Bosun, winking at a sailor who was listening to this conversation. "Sometimes when a landlubber is too young, like you for example, old Daddy Neptune makes him walk the plank."

Gee! But not into the ocean!"

"Into the ocean," was the reply.

Leslie had too much sense to believe that, and he also had sense enough to know that part of the fun for these old sailors was to tell the new ones how dangerous the ceremony was going to be, so as to scare them. But he couldn't understand them going to the trouble of putting up canvas tanks and springboards and of rigging up a heavy rope through a block at the top of the mast.

"What's that for?" he asked.

"Oh—that rope? Why, sometimes if a landlubber gets tough, we hang him up by the thumbs."

And that is all Leslie could find out about the ceremony until "Father Neptune" was actually on board and he was being blindfolded and led before the court of the "Monarch of the Seas."

"You are standing before the throne of Neptune," said a voice in his ear. "Have you anything to say before judgment is passed upon you?"

Leslie chuckled to himself but did not answer the question. He knew that in ceremonies like this one, what you said or didn't say made no difference whatever. Whoever it was taking the part of Neptune now began to speak.

"He is a very young landlubber, I am sure, and it seems as though he shall soon either hang from the yard-arm or walk the plank. Davy Jones, what do you say?"

"Make him do both," was Davy's reply.

"First you must visit our royal barber," said the King. "Sit down."

Leslie sat down as directed and in another second his face was covered with a rough lather put on with a large paint brush. The barber stuffed some of the soap into Leslie's mouth. He filled his ears. He rubbed some into his hair. Then he reached for a large wooden razor and began to shave, forgetting that Leslie had ears and a nose that stuck out from the rest of his face.

"This is Martin, Les," whispered a voice in his ear. "I hope the shaving didn't hurt you."

"It didn't, Martin," replied Les.

"Don't be afraid of the plank," continued Martin.

Leslie did not answer. The plank and the rope worried him. One overhung the ocean and the other was stretched from the top of the mast. Even fooling with things like that would be dangerous.

"Stand up," ordered Neptune. "We have decided that since you have entered our domain at so young an age without permission, you are to be sent to the bottom of the sea for the salt cure. In other words, you are to walk the plank. Put the weights on his feet, boys, and take him away!"

Somebody brought two very heavy pieces of iron and asked Leslie to feel of them.

"How much do they weigh?" he was asked.

"About fifty pounds each."

"Do you think one of these on each foot will be enough to keep you down to the bottom once you reach there?"

Leslie nodded.

"You heard what Neptune said about walking the plank?"

"Yes."

"Very well, give me your hand and I will lead you."

Leslie, although blindfolded, was familiar enough with the ship to know that he was led to the outboard rail on the starboard side of the ship. He also knew that when he mounted the three steps of the short ladder that was used in port for convenience in reaching the gangway, he was on top of this rail. There his feet found the edge of the plank.

"Step up on it," commanded his guide. "Now turn around. Again. Once more. Now let me turn you around."

Leslie felt himself spun around several times in the opposite direction and then steadied. Although all the veteran sailors were watching the ceremony, none spoke excepting the man at his right side.

"These ropes I am tying to your ankles are also tied to the fifty pound weights. They are being held on top of the rail by two of Father Neptune's assistants, and when you jump, the weights will be pushed over. Is that all right?" he asked, in mock kindness.

Leslie laughed nervously and nodded his head.

"Very well. Now step out along the plank foot by foot and when I tell you to stop, stop."

This was getting serious. Leslie didn't like to be out over the water on a very narrow board. He was blindfolded and he might slip—and it would not be pleasant to fall into the ocean, even on such a calm day.

"I'm taking this too seriously," he said to himself. "I'm not giving Martin and his father any credit for common sense."

With this thought, he edged along the board until he heard the order to stop.

"You are now at the very end of the plank. Is there anything you care to say at this last moment?"

Leslie was too scared to say anything.

"All right, then, jump!"

Leslie heard the command, but he did not jump.

QUEENS COLLEGE

A High Grade Institution of Education of Women
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

"The College With the Plan" Thorough in its instruction in its Christian influence Aim: The development of womanhood prepared for life serving.

Curriculum: Embraces every opportunity and demands for life; CHRISTIAN FOR CHRISTIAN SERVICE

Climatic conditions unexcelled Social and Religious privileges the attractiveness of the town.

Rates exceedingly reasonable For Catalogue Write

THE PRESIDENT, Box 300, Charlotte

HOT WEATHER

retards digestion, reduces vitality. self in perfect condition with

YERKE'S COD LIVER OIL

At All Leading Druggists

FOR DIAMONDS, WATCHES AND SILVERWARE

Write to JAMES ALLEN AND SONS

Jewelers since 1858

285 King St. Charleston, S. C.

Catalog on request

DEAGAN TOWER CHIMES

A hymnal program in the morning, old-fashioned down, curfew at night—the sweet, lingering, eagerly-awaited voice from the belfry that brings new prestige and influence to the Church.

Automatically Played by Hand-Recorded The press of a button, or the setting of a Master Clock, fills the air with the most inspiring music in Christendom. A living tribute—the Memorial Sublime. Price, $4375 up. Literature on request.

J. C. DEAGAN, Inc., 202 Deagan Bldg.

PARKE HAIR BALM Removes Dandruff, Restores Color, Beauty to Gray and Balding Hair. Price, 50c. and $1.00 at all drug stores. Hiscox Chem. Works, Boston, Mass.

RANDOLPH-MANLY School for Girls

Member of Southern Association of College and Secondary Schools

Situated amid beautiful surroundings, this accredited school offers to students a thorough, well-planned system of instruction, appointments, congenial companionship, wholesome out-door sports, and a sphere of culture and refinement. Students make rapid progress because of these happy surroundings. For information write John C. Simpson, Danville, Virginia.

DANVILLE, VIRGINIA

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE DECATUR, GA.

Strict entrance requirements, but few failures after admission. Some expensive, but cheap in comparison with advantages offered. No loafers accepted, but also none without capacity to enjoy almost unlimited good things. For details as to admission, scholarship aid, etc address

PRESIDENT J. R. McCAIN Box 5

MARY BALDWIN COLLEGE
For women. Courses lead to B. A. and B. S. degrees. Music, art, spoken English, physical education. Gymnasium and field athletics. Modern equipment. In beautiful Shenandoah Valley. Founded 1842. Catalog. Staunton, Virginia.

USE No LANCE
A Scientific Preparation
For BOILS, CARBUNCLES, BONE FELONS, ULCERS, CUTS, and OLD SORES. Price 50c
NO LANCE CHEMICAL CO.
New Brookland, S. C.

Summer VACATION TRIPS
Rail and Motor Tours
In the Southern Appalachian Mountains

In especially arranged rail and motor tours, the Southern Railway provides a new vacation recreation, combining rail and motor transportation for the individual and for parties, into the mountain sections of Virginia, North Carolina, Eastern Tennessee and North Georgia.

These tours will take you adventuring by rail and motor into regions of scenic beauty and historic interest. Each trip begins and ends with a railway journey, in which you enjoy the speed and comfort of rail travel. The motor trips are over established State highways.

For booklets, information and rates, call on Ticket Agents.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Daniel Boone—pioneer pathfinder in these southern Appalachian Mountains which we now invite you to visit

Arch Furniture
 WORK OF THE HIGHEST QUALITY
 AT REASONABLE PRICES
 Write for Catalogue
BUDDE & WEIS MFG. CO.
 JACKSON, TENNESSEE

IOUS DISEASES
 Alcohol addictions successfully bring Garden Sanitarium, 2911
 Street, Greensboro, N. C.
 full information. Correspond-

UNION CUPS
 and 36
 up. Best
 tion and Bread
 prices. Send for
 T. Write for free Catalog.
UNION CO., Box 314, Lima, Ohio

atcher's
ASTORIA
 FOR QUICK, HARMLESS COMFORT
Children Cry for It
 CONSTIPATION, DIARRHEA, FEVERISHNESS

THE PERRY PICTURES
 ONE CENT SIZE
 3x3 1/2. For 50 or more.
 TWO CENT SIZE
 5 1/2 x 8. For 25 or more.
 Send 50 cents for 25 on
 The Life of Christ or 25
 Art Subjects or 25 for Children, 5 1/2 x 8. Or 50 for Children, 3 x 3 1/2.

children make companions of most beautiful pictures. Cul-less and beauty will be added
 s.
 em in the Sunday School for Catalogue of 1600 Illustrations Pictures Box 313, Malden, Mass

O DRAUGHON'S
 equipped than ever to train
 and men for better positions.
 experience is behind us. Our
 than ever. All the commer-caught. Write us at once for

NS BUSINESS COLLEGE
 Tennessee

different things may headache, but there's thing you need ever do to
 of Bayer Aspirin is an tidote for such pain.
 the office. Have it handy
 Those subject to fre-
 sudden headaches should Aspirin in the pocket-
 you have used it for head-
 neuralgia, etc., you've Bayer Aspirin can help.
 ick, complete relief to
 men and women who
 year. And it does not heart.

ASPIRIN
 the mark of Bayer Manufacture
 icadester of Salicylic acid

"Jump!" came the order again.
 Still Leslie hesitated. He knew the ocean was beneath him. He had been told that there were there were weights fastened to his feet. If both these things were true, then the command to jump was carrying the joke much too far!

Yet he trusted Martin's common sense not to let anything happen that would hurt him. And in this moment when he stood there not knowing what to do, he heard Martin's voice:
 "Jump, Les, old boy. Jump."

Without any further doubt, Leslie leapt from the end of the plank.

He hit the water with a splash but there was something queer about the shortness of the drop. There was something queer, also, about his hitting bottom so quickly; and when the blindfold was taken from his eyes, he saw the reason. The plank was not out over the ocean at all, but over the tank, in which there was less than four feet of water!

The crew tied the mast rope around Leslie's waist and hauled him out of the tank, thus ending the ceremony.

"Honest, Martin," he told his friend, later. "I thought sure the plank was out over the ocean."

"We changed it after all the land-lubbers had a good look at it," laughed Martin. "What did you think of the initiation?"

"It was tough," replied Leslie. "But now that it is over, I wouldn't have missed it for anything. I've crossed the Equator, I've walked the plank, I've got a diploma. What more could a fellow want?"

PRAYING FOR THE IMPOSSIBLE

God wants us to ask Him for the impossible. God can do things that man cannot do; He would not be God if this were not so. That is why He has graciously made prayer a law of life.
 "If ye shall ask . . . I will do." This inviting promise from the Lord means that He will do for us what we cannot do for ourselves; He will do for others what we cannot do for them —
 if we will but ask Him.

How little do we avail ourselves of this immense privilege. Someone spoke this searching word at Edinburgh in 1910: "We have lost the eternal youthfulness of Christianity, and have aged into calculating manhood. We seldom pray in earnest for the extraordinary, the limitless, the glorious. We seldom pray with real confidence for any good to the realization of which we cannot imagine a way. And yet, we suppose ourselves to believe in an infinite Father."

The natural man calculated results.
 Calculations have no place in our relations with God, and in His relations with us. That matter which has been so burdening us just now and with which we can see no way of dealing:
 how are we praying about it? In anxiety, or with thanksgiving? Worrying prayer defeats its own answer.
 Rejoicing prayer gets through. "In nothing be anxious; but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God." Then will come the answer "exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think."
 —Sunday School Times.

BUT ONCE,

But once I pass this way
 And then, . . . and then
 The silent door swings on its hinges,
 Opens, closes . . . and no more
 I pass this way.
 So, while I may.
 With all my might I will essay
 Sweet comfort and delight
 To all I meet upon the Pilgrim way,
 For no man travels twice, the Great Highway
 That winds through darkness up to light
 Through night.
 Today. Ex.

God often visits us but most of the time we are not at home.—L'Abbe Roux.

BLACKSTONE — A MILITARY SCHOOL FOR BOYS

Located in Healthful Section of Virginia. College Preparatory and Business Administrative Courses. Best home influences prevail, and individual needs of each boy closely watched.
 Modern, new and fireproof buildings. All manly sports, Christian influences and surroundings. For illustrated catalog write to

Col. E. S. Ligon, President
 Box R

Blackstone

Virginia

ORIENT FLOUR
Its Whiteness Denotes Its Purity
MOUNTAIN CITY MILL CO., CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

MEREDITH COLLEGE
 For
YOUNG WOMEN
 STANDARD COURSES IN ARTS AND SCIENCES, IN MUSIC,
 IN ART, IN HOME ECONOMICS
 Confers the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Music. Delightful environment on a high plateau on the western boundary of North Carolina's Capital City.
 Room reservations are now being made for session 1929-30.
 For catalogue or further information write
CHAS. E. BREWER, President
 Raleigh, N. C.

Banish
Mosquitoes
Easier! Quicker!

Flit is the new, easier, quicker way to rid your rooms of mosquitoes—for comfort and health.
 The handy Flit sprayer floats a vapor that does not fall in drops, from which no mosquitoes escape!
 All die—or money back. More for your money in the quart size.

"The yellow can with the black band"

FLIT

© 1929 Stanco Inc. REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

BELK'S

Our Fall stocks of men's and young men's suits, top coats, furnishings, etc., ready for you. We give you a most cordial invitation to come in and see the new models, shades, in suits, hats, etc.

We are showing snappy, smart suits for college boys and young men.

We especially invite you to visit our second floor
 —Soon.

Women's and misses ready-to-wear and hats.
 All the new things are here and adding every day.

We have a wonderful line of luggage for the college boys and girls.

When in Charlotte we would be delighted to have you look through our store, whether you buy or not. You will be made welcome.

Belk Brothers Co.
 Charlotte, N. C.

THE RIGHT WAY TO TRAVEL

is by train. The safest. Most comfortable. Most reliable. Costs less. Inquire of Ticket Agents regarding greatly reduced fares for short trips.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Church and Sunday School Furniture

Send For Special Catalogue THE SOUTHERN DESK COMPANY Hickory, N. C.

BOILS Relieve the pain and draw them quickly to a head

with

GRAY'S OINTMENT

At all drug stores. For free sample write W. F. Gray & Co., 724 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Nervous Women Praise Capudine

Delicately poised women who suffer from high nerve strain and nervous pains, such as periodic pains, headache and pains in the back and sides are high in their praise of Capudine because it quickly soothes the tense nerves and relieves the pain.

Being liquid, Capudine acts almost instantly,—does not upset the stomach. Sold by druggists in 30c and 60c sizes. (adv.)

YOUR CHURCH deserves a beautiful exterior in harmony with its spirit of culture and worship.

Let us suggest appropriate shrubbery. THE HOWARD-HICKORY CO., Hickory, N. C. Local Representatives Wanted, especially to sell fruit trees. Landscape Gardeners and Nurserymen

STANBACK QUIETS NERVES

6 6 6

is a Prescription for Colds, Grippe, Flu, Dengue, Bilious Fever and Malaria. It is the most speedy remedy known.

WEAK EYES are strengthened and relieved by Dickey's old reliable eye water. In use over half a century. Relieves sore eyes from gnats and dust. Doesn't hurt. In red folding box at all good stores or by mail 25c. Dickey Drug Co. Bristol, Virginia

OVER-RUNS AND MILL ENDS SAVE ONE-THIRD ON CLOTH DIRECT FROM LOOM TO YOU

Cotton Flannels, Pillow Tubings, Sheetings, Crinkled Cloth for Bedspreads, Pajama Checks, Chambrays, Tinted Dimities, Gingham, Art Silk Striped Madras for men's and boys' Shirts. Write for free samples and prices. MONAGHAN MILL STORE, Dept. A., Greenville S. C. "Textile Center of the South"

Expert Kodak Finishing

Developing and printing by experts. Most beautiful work guaranteed. Developing and printing 6 exposure rolls as follows: Size 1 5/8x2 1/2, 40c; 2 1/4x3 1/4, 40c; 2 1/2x4 1/4, 46c; 3 1/4x5 1/2, 52c; Film packs, 12 exposures, 2 1/4x3 1/4, developing and printing, 85c. Other sizes in proportion. Quick delivery. LIGON'S DRUG STORE : Spartanburg, S. C.

SPARKLES

Latecomer: "Is the seat next to you reserved?"

Humorist: "Oh, very, it hasn't uttered a sound since I've been here." — Arizona Kitty-Kat.

She: "My, but you're courteous. I'll bet you come from a gallant old family."

He: "Yeah, they were all movie ushers."

She: "We must break our engagement. I'm sorry, too."

He: "Then return the ring."

She: "Oh, I'm not that sorry."—Pitt Panther.

Curious: "Did you give your wife that little lecture on economy you talked about?"

Domesticity: "Yes."

Curiosity: "Any results?"

Domesticity: "I've got to give up smoking."—Witt.

Professor: "What have you found out about the salivary glands?"

Student: "Not a thing. They're so secretive."—Shaft.

"What are you laughing at?"

"My hat."

"Why?"

"It's a new one on me."—Minn. Ski-U-Mah.

Death Preferable

"I'm going to shoot you."

"Why?"

"I've said I'm going to shoot anybody who looks like me."

"Do I look like you?"

"You do."

"Shoot!"—Ex.

Don't Letterslide

My friend, have you heard of the Town of Yawn,

On the banks of the River Slow, Where blossoms the Waitawhile flower fair,

Where the Sometimeorother scents the air,

And the soft Goeasys grow? It lies in the Valley of Whatstheuse,

In the Province of Letterslide; That tired feeling is native there,

It's the home of the listless Idont-care,

Where the Putitoffs abide. The Putitoffs never make up their minds,

Intending to do it tomorrow; And so they delay from day to day,

Till business dwindles and profits decay,

And their days are full of sorrow. —Brisbane Rotary Club.

To Doctors' Offices Only

Wanted: Boy to deliver magazines twelve years old.

—Notre Dame Juggler.

Just So

A small boy strolled into a New Mexico drug store and said to the clerk: "Give me a nickel's worth of asafoetida."

The proprietor wrapped it up and passed over.

"Charge it," said the boy.

"What name?" queried the druggist.

"Hunnyfunkle."

"Take it for nothing," retorted the languid druggist. "I wouldn't write asafoetida and Hunnyfunkle for no nickle."

A Wise Lad

Teacher: "William, how many bones have you in your body?"

William: "Nine hundred."

Teacher: "That's a great many more than I have."

William: "But, teacher, I had sardines for lunch."

Chicora College for Women

The Presbyterian College of South Carolina

Standard College Courses Beautiful Grounds Healthful Climate Large, Strong Faculty Ideal Surroundings Moderate Rates

For Catalog and Information, Address

S. C. Byrd, D.D., LL.D., President, Columbia, S. C.

FORTY-SIX YEARS CONTINUOUS SERVICE WITHOUT A LOSS ON ANY LOAN

We offer you a safe, tax-free investment for your regular weekly or monthly savings and your lump sum. Write for particulars.

ASSETS OVER $8,800,000.00

The Mutual Building and Loan Association

Established 1881

CHARLOTTE

If In Doubt, Take B. & L. Shares

You will earn the highest interest rate on your savings consistent with perfect safety, and pay no tax on your savings. Shares cost twenty-five cents per week, usually mature in 333 weeks. Net you 6 1-2 per cent maturity.

Series Open in January, April, July and October

Mechanics Perpetual Building & Loan Association

Established 1883

18 E. Fourth St.

Charlotte

THE WINTHROP DESK, $75

The Governor Winthrop desk has come down to us from the very earliest beginning of America. It is the one shown here every detail has been copied minutely. It is made in Grand Rapids which is an assurance of its fine quality. Others, varying in size from $70 to $145.

W.T. McCOY & Co Home Furnishers

423-425 SOUTH TRYON STREET CHARLOTTE, N. C.

"National Bank Safety For Savings"

For the Future

Are you making ready to share in the opportunities which increasing prosperity will bring?

A Reserve Fund Banked Will Help

Charlotte National Bank

Resources Over $5,000,000.00

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

Religious Newspaper for the Family  Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.

DGES, D.D., Editor-in-Chief
LLS, D.D., Co-Editor
ASPER WILLIS, Contributing Editor

ESTAB. JANUARY 1, 1858

M. F. ELLIS, Vice-President
REV. J. G. GARTH, Treasurer and News Editor
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
BY PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY

CHARLOTTE, N. C., SEPTEMBER 11, 1929

No. 37

Eastern Alumni At Montreat

of Tennessee College Banquet at Alba Hotel

J. G. Garth

ful cove of the Black here Montreat is located a rendezvous for alumni ern, our college at Mem- this summer and at the nce a large group gath- nquet on the evening of the Alba Hotel. Twenty- ents, a number having and families with them, former professors, Mrs. of Montreat, and Mrs. nder, of Dallas, and two ministers who are deep- Southwestern sat down Perhaps a half doz_n on the ground, but did e table, for various rea-up gathered at the audi- ght and appointed three ber to arrange for the of this committee, Dr. acted as chairman and able, called on Dr. John eulen to ask the blessing. ned on Page Two)

13 to Be Montreat Day

Assembly Makes Earnest Effort to Remove Debt from Assembly Inn

el Assembly at its last Montreat unanimously following resolution: ssembly give its full en- a campaign to be con- President of the Asso- the supervision of its irectors, for funds to indebtedness of $70,000 n the building as speed- and to this end our pas- sions are earnestly quest- the opportunity of pre- use to our congregations he opportunity, either by e or by personal visita-ommittee on Assembly's ested through its prop- ee, to arrange for the a suitable day when the e presented and a col- or it in our churches.

e Assembly hereby direct y Committee of Religious a. Publication to appro- ts earnings and reserve of twenty-five thousand s to be applied on the e Assembly Inn, and it directs e be made as rapidly as der and Treasurer of the Reat Association submits wing cash collections oces and new pledges in for to be used in the pay- t on Assembly Inn."

ommittee on Assembly's Work, ne with the direction of the ssembly took the following ene Assembly, meeting in M. 22, 1929, having given dment to a campaign for Rosy Outlook for P. C.

South Carolina Synod's Boys College is Ready for Best Year it Ever Had

"Our Monthly," the paper published by Thornwell Orphanage at Clinton, S. C., gives its view of the glowing prospects which the coming scholastic year holds for Presbyterian College also located at Clinton. We copy the paragraphs from the orphanage paper:

"Out on the Presbyterian College campus the sound of the saw and hammer have been heard for several weeks past preparatory to the opening of the approaching session in September. The campus and physical equipment are in excellent condition, and all buildings have been repaired, painted and thoroughly renovated during the summer. Work on the swimming pool is rapidly nearing completion and all final arrangements are now being made for the new session soon to open.

Turning to the prospective enrollment, it is highly gratifying to learn that the matriculation will break all previous records. The freshman class is expected to be a record-breaker. President McSween, Coaches Johnson and McMillan and several students have been all over the college's territory during the summer seeking new students and their efforts have been highly successful. From the state of Georgia, a large number of students have been signed for the first time and it is evident that the Presbyterians of the Synod are becoming aroused to the fact that they are now joint owners of the college and are manifesting a deep interest in the work and future development.

It is gratifying to Clintonians and all friends of this splendid institution, to know that it is now facing a rosy outlook. Once its burden of debt is lifted, as we believe it soon will, the college will rapidly expand and its sphere of usefulness be enlarged. President McSween has the determination and enthusiasm to put the job over, he has the ability, he holds the confidence and good will of the institution's entire constituency and the Presbyterians are nobly responding to his leadership.

The outlook at Presbyterian is one of encouragement and promise. This should be a source of pride and gratification to every friend of the institution.

funds to liquidate the indebtedness of $70,000 now resting on Assembly Inn, and having requested the Committee on Assembly's Work to arrange for the appointment of a suitable day when the matter may be presented and an offering taken in all of the churches, "Your Committee recommends that Sunday, October 13, 1929, be designated as the day for this special offering, and that the Publicity Department of the General Assembly be requested to co-operate with the President and Board of Directors of the Montreat Association in placing this cause before the churches, that this indebtedness may be removed as speedily as possible."

By donating $25,000 the Assembly gives the strongest possible expression as to the wisdom of investing the Church's funds in Assembly Inn. This (Continued on Page Two)

China's Famine Still Growing

40,000,000 People Now on Verge of Starvation—$4,000,000 Needed

Announcement by the China International Famine Relief Commission of Peking that there are 40,000,000 persons reduced to the verge of starvation by wide-spread famine, has been rapidly followed by cables telling of the death from typhus in a single famine-stricken province of 13 American and foreign missionaries, who were engaged in relief work, according to a statement issued at the National Headquarters of China Famine Relief, U. S. A., 205 E. 42nd St., New York City.

James A. Thomas, for 26 years a resident of China, where he served as vice-president of the Chinese-American Bank of Commerce, yesterday stated, in connection with the late news from the famine areas, that while in certain regions recent rains are reported to have been of some help, the total of persons given as "on the verge of starvation" is actually greater than at any time during the present famine.

"The fact that self-sacrificing Americans are actually giving their lives in an attempt to provide relief for these people will, I believe, bring this terrible mass suffering more closely to us than anything else could possibly do," Mr. Thomas stated.

"We may discuss, in an abstract way, methods of relief," he continued, "but now, surely, we can all realize that while we debate ways and means not only are thousands of the starving succumbing, but also our countrymen in China are losing their lives.

"Just a few days ago I learned that in one section, where it had been hoped that something of the crop had been saved by late rains, a break in the dykes of the Yellow River resulted in the flooding of nearly 500 square miles of farm lands, completely destroying what was left of the maturing crops.

"Within the last month we have had reported a Moslem outbreak in one of the famine provinces, Kansu, which took 20,000 Chinese lives.

"If there had also been American victims of this human aggression our immediate interest would have been challenged and official as well as individual action to remedy the situation taken.

"When Nature itself becomes responsible for the loss of human life among our fellow beings, even though our compatriots lose their lives in an effort to relieve the suffering of those so afflicted, we do not have our attention so strikingly called to the situation.

"Even in the case of the Moslem outbreak in Kansu, so inaccessible is that region, from the point of view of communication, that weeks elapse before we are aware of what has occurred. Then too, the native of Kansu has few if any friends at court to plead for him in the hour of affliction. We do not number among our acquaintance, as individuals, nor among our constituencies, if we are officials, those who either by blood or religion are directly connected with the victims.

"Certainly there is no place in the world today where death is imminent (Continued on Page Two)

Bible Conference At Massanetta Springs

The great Bible Conference at Massanetta Springs closed Sunday night, August 25th. It was estimated that there were 7,000 people at the three services on Sunday. There were eight addresses, extending the service over almost the entire day.

It was observed that there were on the platform on the closing day two ex-Moderators of the General Assembly, U. S. A., namely, Dr. John Timothy Stone, of Chicago, and Dr. Robert E. Speer, of New York; and one ex-Moderator of the General Assembly, U. S., namely, Dr. A. M. Fraser, of Staunton, Va.

Dr. Robert E. Speer took for his text Sunday morning John 13:13: "Ye call me Master and Lord, ye say well for so I am." "The painters and sculptors have never been able to provide for us a satisfactory representation of Christ. No doubt the task is an impossible one. One of the ablest men in South America, Senor Rahas, spent a great many years traveling all over the world examining every statue and picture in the hope that he would find one which would satisfy his heart and mind. The task was in vain. So, he wrote a little book, setting forth what he could not find, and called it 'The Invisible Christ.'"

"Possibly we are looking for a submissive, repressive Christ," said Dr. Speer. "The cross of Christ is in the character and person of Jesus, but that is not all. We need to remember that while there was the cross and sacrifice, there is the resurrection and glorious raising of Christ. Christ rose from death and hell. The picture is not one of submission. It is one in which we see Him standing, saying to that company of men and through the whole life of the world. 'Ye call me Master and so I am.'"

"You turn to the representation of Jesus in the four gospels and what do we see there? We find Him standing out in clear and consummate authority. He spoke with authority. That is the note from the first to the last—'go and sin no more. Go in peace. Your sins are forgiven.'"

"Who was it," asked Dr. Speer, "that said those things? When the great struggle was over, the last words were the words of a King. It is the word of one who spoke from the first to the last with a voice of masterful control, authority and power. The gos- (Continued on Page Two)

SPECIAL OFFER FOR COLLEGE STUDENTS

The Presbyterian Standard wishes to keep in touch with our boys and girls off at college, and makes the following special offer to the students or to their parents:

For nine months, we will send the paper to the college address of any young man or woman for $1.50.

Send us the names and addresses and help us to give these young people a home touch they will feel every week for the time of their absence from home.

CHINA'S FAMINE STILL GROWING

(Continued from page 1)

to so many people, nor where the afflicted are less to be held responsible for the conditions they face than in China.

"The American China Famine Relief organization is striving to raise $4,000,000 to save the lives of an equal number of the starving in regions which, our American minister has agreed, are readily accessible. Personally I am convinced that there is no more deserving goal toward which the efforts of humanitarian America could be directed."

BIBLE CONFERENCE AT MASSANETTA SPRINGS

(Continued from page 1)

pels represent Him as a great free-thinking influence. He never asked anybody's counsel. He never sought anybody's help. Everybody who passed under his hands came out a different man. Peter, the poor, wanton, vacillating fisherman, turned into Simon Peter, the rock. Nobody ever crossed his pathway and went away uninfluenced by his personality.

"We now see Jesus standing before Pilate's throne, the judge of those who judged Him. So it is through all the ages. If Shakespeare should come into the room now, we should all arise. If Jesus Christ should come into the room now, we would all kneel. Thank God He died for us. Thank God He rose for us. Thank God He is God's lamb. Thank God He is God's lion, too."

A prominent physician said to one of Dr. Speer's friends sometime ago, "What America needs most of all today is an emperor." The friend was puzzled and surprised as he had great confidence in the wisdom of the physician. The physician explained that what he meant was that Christ should be the emperor of this country.

"When I look into my life today," said Dr. Speer, "and out over this generation, I wonder if there is any word in the gospel which needs so unflinchingly to be sounded as the word, 'Ye call me Master, and that is what I am.' This is the kind of master that we need," said Dr. Speer.

Dr. John Timothy Stone, of Chicago, stated in his sermon on the last Sunday morning, "It is what a man has in his own soul that counts. There are those who are weighed down with things, whose backs are almost broken with things. Suppose God turned to one such man today as He did in the old days and said, 'This night thy soul will be required of thee.' What would things amount to? God never asks what a man has, but what a man is."

In speaking of the phase from the third chapter of Ephesians, 'That we being rooted and grounded in love,' Dr. Stone said, "There is no fruitage without rootage. Have you ever looked at the beautiful views of life lying down?" asked Dr. Stone "Many a life needs the discipline of reclining. Many a life needs to be cut off from friends, from action, to be brought close to God. If that had not been the case Charlotte Elliott, a cripple, would never have written 'Just as I am without one plea.'"

In speaking of the Massanetta Springs Conference, Dr. Stone said, "You people do not know what this conference here means to the betterment of your civilization, to the upbuilding of Christian character. There are hundreds of places in this country and Canada which would give anything to have this kind of an institution in their midst."

Dr. George L. Robinson, professor in the Presbyterian Theological Seminary of Chicago, spoke in the afternoon at 2:30 p. m., and Rev. Gypsy Smith, Jr., spoke at 3:30 p. m. Many of the Gypsy's friends from all over the Shenandoah Valley were present to hear him. There was probably a third larger crowd in the afternoon than in the morning.

Immediately after Gypsy Smith's address on Saturday night, "From Gypsy Tent to Pulpit," Dr. John Timothy Stone stated to the manager of the conference, that he has never said it before, but wanted to say then that this was the best conference he had ever attended.

Mr. Homer Hammontree, who has attended all the Bible Conferences of any size on this continent, and led in the singing at a number of them, stated the other day that this was the greatest Bible conference he had ever attended. This was the unanimous opinion of scores of delegates.

There have been delegates from 30 states attending the conferences. Approximately 50,000 people attended the various services during the series of the conferences during July and August. There have been 1,400 young people in attendance at the conferences at Massanetta Springs for a period of a week. Many of them received credits for having taken various courses in Leadership Training and Young People's Work. Scores of them consecrated their lives to the Master.

The Auxiliary Training School was held with about 300 in attendance. They received 132 credits for having taken various courses in the Auxiliary work, and filled their notebooks with material and methods which they carried back to their local churches.

The Men-of-the-Church held a conference with an attendance of between 75 and 300 men.

The School of Music was pronounced by the delegates as one of the most artistic and worshipful types of music ever put on in the Valley. The faculty of the John Finley Williamson Choir School had charge of the school.

SOUTHWESTERN ALUMNI AT MONTREAT

(Continued from page 1)

After an excellent meal had been partaken of, Dr. Fulton said that the committee on arrangements had gotten only two of their number together, and they promptly appointed Dr. Urban D. Mooney, of New Orleans, to act as toastmaster, as he was the only absent member of the committee. Dr. Mooney graciously accepted his appointment in absentia, and enlivened the occasion with his usual wit and aptness of remark.

The toastmaster introduced Dr. John M. Vander Meulen, president of Louisville Seminary, which has always been properly considered an adjunct of Southwestern. Dr. Vander Meulen after speaking of his love for the college, and his high admiration of its president, Dr. C. E. Diehl, whom he characterized as the best college president of his acquaintance, narrated his reception of the degree of LL.D., at Clarksville, and because he appropriated the gown loaned for the occasion, and was summoned to return it, felt he also had received the degree of Humility, which had probably done him more good than the LL.D.

Dr. J. I. Vance, of Nashville, was the other distinguished visitor. Dr. Vance avowed his deep love and concern for the institution, and told the alumni of the progress now being made toward the goal of $650,000 necessary to complete the present campaign for the endowment of the college. Dr. Vance, who has done some noble work on the campaign, outlined the prospects for success in raising this amount, and said that with all resources calculated, it would appear that there was in sight about $500,000 of this amount, and if $150,000 bonafide subscriptions could be raised, not only would a good friend in New York give $100,000 to complete the fund, but much more besides.

Our space is too limited to give a report of the interesting reminiscences contributed by the alumni present. Each one avowed his own personal debt to the college, particularly assuring Mesdames Webb and Alexander of their feeling for their distinguished and sainted husbands. We must suffice with a list of those actually there, which was as follows, as listed by the hotel register, which contained the signatures of those who sat at the table: C. S. Sholl, New Orleans; R. P. Richardson, Taichow, China; R. E. Fulton, Eutaw, Ala.; J. E. McJunkin, Forest City, Ark.; W. A. Rolle, Durant, Okla.; J. E. Berryhill, Lowell, N. C.; F. D. Daniel, Memphis; J. L. Green, Ft. Worth; U. D. Mooney, New Orleans; H. H. Thompson, Baton Rouge; J. F. Naylor, Learned, Miss.; H. L. Sneed, Archer, Fla.; C. A. Harper, Lufkin, Texas; W. H. Armistead, Franklin, Tenn.; D. F. Wilkinson, Zachary, La.; J. G. Garth, Charlotte, N. C.; W. R. McCalla, Little Rock; G. T. Pace, McClellansville, S. C.; Joseph Duglison, Danville, Va.; and J. D. Wallace, Decatur, Ala.

Other alumni on the grounds but not present as this scribe can recall them were, J. S. Foster, Winston-Salem, N. C.; B. H. Franklin, Ridgeway, S. C.; R. L. Campbell, Macon, Miss.; W. S. Hamiter, Chester, S. C.; and C. E. Mount, Mobile, Ala.

OCTOBER 13 TO BE MONTREAT DAY

(Continued from page 1)

is the second time the Assembly has done this and by doing so it sets an example and offers an inducement for churches, Sunday Schools, Bible classes, Auxiliaries and individuals to do likewise. The Assembly, however, specifies that this amount shall be paid into the Montreat treasury just as a like amount is paid in from other sources, thus offering special inducement for contributions to this cause by others.

Our indebtedness is in the form of short term notes and overdue bills. These must be paid in the near future in order to save our beautiful church home from a mortgage debt. Surely it should not be necessary for the Assembly to mortgage its home.

The Assembly in Atlanta passed the following resolution:

"We further recommend that the Woman's Auxiliary be asked to consider the possibility of providing furnishings for Assembly Inn."

DEVOTION

"Begin the day with God,
He is thy sun and day;
He is the radiance of thy day,
To Him address thy lay.
Take thy first meal with God,
He is thy heavenly food;
Feed with and on Him, He Will feast in brotherhood.
Thy first transaction be
With God Himself above,
So shall thy business prosper,
And all thy business prosper,
And all the day be love."

Seventy-two rooms are and paid for, fifty-eight furnished but not paid for. furnishing a room is $350. giver of this amount has t of having a bronze table the door bearing the name the donor.

The Assembly gives $350 every $350.00 we get for room, so the gift of $35 $700.00 to be applied on the rooms should be subscribed quickly as possible and materials in our Assembly's honor.

Assembly Inn has been half of its market value and has at least two dollars in permanent investment for given to Assembly Inn. afford to invest our money.

Every loyal supporter of bly's program should contribute to Montreat at this time determination to save Assembly from a mortgage debt and institution again on a cash basis.

Let individuals send in contributions and furnish a room. Auxiliary do its part. Local churches on October 13th appointed by the Committee of bly's Work, present the Assembly Inn and secure a description for the liquidation. Surely it should not be the Assembly to mortgage this must be done unless promptly the $70,000 which Assembly has asked for.

Send subscriptions or contributions to Mountain Retreat Association, Montreat, N. C., marked for Assembly Inn.

New York Bible Society Gives Hotel

A Religious Service Held for Governor Clinton

The beautiful large hotel Governor Clinton, was recently opened to the public. A few days before the Bibles were delivered to the New York Bible Society to be placed in each guest room. The manager of the hotel has asked the Society to arrange for a religious service dedicating to be held in the hotel on Sunday the hotel was opened. The service was held on Sunday afternoon.

The Bibles were placed in the lobby of the hotel. A cross was placed in the lobby. The service was furnished music, by the New York Bible Society, of Churches sang solos, one by one. "How Sweet is the Name of the Lord," by Thomas Ross, a local pastor, read from the Bible. A short address was given by the value of the Bible. The prayer of dedication was read by John C. West, in appropriate address. Bibles and Mr. West, graciously accepted the gift. It is interesting to note that all the employees were present at the service.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

FOUNDED 1858

Organ of the Synod of N. C. for 70 Years

The Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as Second Class Matter

Terms—The subscription price of the Standard is payable in advance. To ministers the price is $2.50 per year. To ministers' wives the price is $2.50 per year.

The mailing label shows the month and year to which the subscription is paid. Payment in advance is required.

Payment may be made by money order, check, or registered mail. Send currency by mail.

Obituary Notices—No charge is made for notices of less than 100 words, but for all over fifty words the charge is $1.00 per line.

Advertisements—Sent on application.

Changes—Kindly send us both old and new addresses previous to the desired change.

Subscriptions are made only upon the written request of the subscriber. Settlement in full must be made at the same time.

Advertising and Business Communications Should be

Addressed to

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

Box 869

Charlotte, N. C.

EDITORIAL

THE NEW PRINCETON

of Princeton in the Presbyterian is a peculiar significance, as it has tried with it a guarantee of order.

A new Princeton has been launched, derivatives of the Northern Presbyterian, but they were forced to use the name, upon the principle, we suppose, that another name, it would smell as to the Church under a name of its own, a name redolent of the time when it was believed in soundness of doctrine, and not undermining the foundations of

It has been criticized by the friends of the primary, because we have not discovered a new School of the Prophets, as if different to its success.

We tell our friends that no organization exists of the Church that has for its object the defense of sound doctrine, and that a matter of indifference to us. Contrary there is no question that pierces our heart and head than one relating to the old doctrines that have ever been the life of our Church and the comfort of our people. We have refrained from discussing the matter because we have been in doubt as to our moral status.

Questions relating to doctrine we know that our position should be. Between the extremes in the North Church, the conservative and the liberal elements we are in doubt, because our sympathies and our consciences are always with the conservative. Most decidedly against the liberals. The line of division between them is defined, we are never in doubt as to our position; but there is a third element concerning which while we are not able to under-stand the moral position, we have great respect for them personally, and give them our sincerest sympathy.

We feel that there may be another side to the matter, as there always is, and till we know what that other side is, we remain neutral, but ready to honor those who clearly what their position is, and have burned their bridges behind them.

Men are always with men who for the sake of the future, are ready to stake all their future, as Luther, "Here I stand; I will not move, otherwise, God help me. Amen!"

We watch with deep concern whether the principles given that the old Princeton's or orthodoxy shall not suffer from the fact that it be carried out, though it may be like a diseased tree bearing good

RALLY DAY

approach the resumption of church work after the summer interval, when the churches of religious work are more numerous, or they are laying out no great energy, it is very important for the leaders of the church to take stock, and prepare to call the roll of workers, for the purpose of inspiring them to resume their tasks, and to do it with greater zeal.

Vacations are over, the period of rest has reinvigorated all who had the privilege of a visit or a conference. We may thank God for the mountains with their cool breaths that swept down the coves, their winding trails that gave a new vista at every turn, for the challenge to our strength as we climbed their steep slopes, for the murmur of the ever chattering streams, and the myriad other charms of nature the mountains afford.

We may also recall the ocean filling the landsman with wonder as its restless breakers come rolling in from unseen distances that lead to strange ports and stranger men. One looks on the sea with a sense of ownership, as he does at the sky with its starry dome no man can claim. It belongs to God and you.

We have seen friends long forgotten, or revelled in the company of loved ones separated by years of time and miles of distance. Life has been full of deep joys of rest, refreshment, and recreation.

But now is the time for rallying to our work that fills the week days and the program of the Sabbaths. October 6 is Rally Day for the Sunday Schools. Let us make it significant and eventful. Go into it with the sense that all over America, the churches are calling men, women and children to come to church and study the Bible, and join in the crusade with Christ against sin, and help him to bring in the sheaves into his garner. He calls out to his loved ones the command, Speak to the children of Israel that go forward. J. G. G.

SUPPORT THE PRESIDENT

It is against our creed to interfere with political matters because our only excuse for separation from the Northern Presbyterian Church in 1861 was because of their action in political matters.

There are times, however, when the moral element in a question that the State deals with, is so manifest that the question really loses its political character and falls within the sphere of the moral.

In such cases we gladly discuss it, though often we find that there are readers who, by temperament, are unable to draw fine distinctions, and therefore in their estimation we wobble in our position.

For years past the Sabbath question in the District of Columbia, and especially Washington City, has been a stench in the nostrils of all good people of this land.

While all the States of the Union have strict Sabbath laws, whether they are enforced or not, in Washington there are not only no such laws, but the Sabbath is openly violated.

The effect of such violation is worse there than in any other city in the land.

The United States is known the world over as a Christian nation and its example sets the standard of what a Christian nation should be.

Washington City is often the only part of our nation that the foreigner sees, and very naturally he forms his estimate of Christianity from what he sees there.

He knows that we make loud professions and rather look down upon European nations, and use the expression "European Sabbath" to denote open violation of the fourth commandment.

This foreign visitor does not judge us by what we profess but by what we do. So that when he reaches our Capital City and sees no Sabbath law, he is apt to conclude that we are a nation of "loud professions and little deeds."

For years the churches of the land have tried to have enacted a Sabbath law for the District, but the influence of the worse element, backed by the movies and baseball magnates, has been too powerful.

We learn that the President has become interested in the question, so we trust that in time there may be a change.

Write to the Congressman from your district and try to stiffen his backbone.

A GREAT ACHIEVEMENT

This editor during the Bible Conference in August enjoyed a week's entertainment as a guest at the beautiful hostelry known as Assembly Inn. He has never been more comfortably situated than he was in his commodious room, with private bath. He looked like a millionaire though he far from felt it, as his financial status resembles that of the great majority of the fourth estate. And not only the room, but all other appointments of the building won his admiration.

It was a pleasure to observe how many all others visiting or staying at the hotel also admired the beauty of the architecture. The building has such ample proportions, yet is clothed in such taste, and presents such a very graceful exterior, that every one's artistic sense is fully gratified. The massiveness of the hotel almost awes one who views it for the first time. One visitor who spent but an hour or two there, and who is a successful builder in Illinois, looking at the great structure said, We just couldn't build such a building in St. Louis. We haven't got the foundation for it.

An interesting matter at Assembly Inn was to pass down the halls, and see how many societies, churches, and organizations are dedicating rooms and suites to names they hold dear. A bronze plate on the door indicates the donors, and the wide range of these liberal and farseeing benefactors evinces the fact that the vision of Montreat as a great church asset and institution extends to the borders of our denomination, as well as holds its place in the hearts of the churches nearby. Many other rooms are still unassigned, and the privilege of assuming them for $350 per room, is still available.

There is to be given to the church by order of the General Assembly an opportunity on October 13, the second Sunday, to clear up the $70,000 obligation resting on Assembly Inn. We are publishing in another column a full statement of the Assembly's action. Let all read it carefully, and let us come to the help of the Lord in this great enterprise. J. G. G.

"GO YE APART"

A few weeks ago the ministers of one of our Presbyteries slipped off for a day to themselves in one of the country churches of the Presbytery.

They did not call it a "retreat," nor by any other name. They just felt the need for a time of communion and fellowship, and so turned aside to pray.

They were all feeling the wind of rationalism as it chilled the hearts of their people and blew from the books and papers of to-day into their own souls. They felt that something was wrong in their churches and hearts, and did not know what was better to do than to go apart and talk with Him.

And so they met and began their conference with a sermon. Next time they will probably do without the sermon. Not that sermons are not good things, but at such a time they give an official note to what was entirely unofficial.

Then after the sermon they considered "The Minister and Prayer." One named beforehand opened the discussion, and then each man out of his heart and out of his experience talked. And all felt when through, that some new vistas had been opened into this wonderful subject.

Then "The Minister and His Reading and Study of the Word," was taken up and considered in the same way. Then "The Minister and Soul Winning" was considered.

And finally "The Minister and His Master" was to have been pondered and studied, but a threatening storm, led to a hasty trip homeward.

All felt that it was good to have been there. Our church courts have been so given over to methods, machinery, and learning how to "serve tables" that the spiritual note is almost lacking. May we not have in meetings such as this the spiritual refreshments that our courts once supplied and now no longer give?

J. M. W.

CONTRIBUTED

FOR THE GOSPEL! AND UNASHAMED!

Rom. 1:16, 17

W. C. Robinson

It is always a pleasure to find a man who stands for his convictions, unashamed. It was quite a thrill to read the other day that James Bissett, the psychologist, was a dualist, and unashamed! Whenever you face a man like that you know that you have to deal with a man—not a mollycoddle.

And Paul was a man, a real man, an epochal man—one of the great men of all history. You may try to explain his greatness as the tale of two cities, Tarsus and Jerusalem; but a rendezvous on the way to Damascus did more to supply the dynamics of his career than either environment from which he came. "Have I not seen Jesus, our Lord?" You may strive to present him as the man in whom the lines converge—the line of the centuries, the Jew; the line of beauty, the Greek; the line of empire, the Roman. But the line that holds and the line which moves Paul is the line of redeeming love—"He loved me and gave Himself up for me."

Facing Rome, that vast microcosm of the Mediterranean empire, Paul declares himself unashamed of the Gospel. A decade later he is writing from that same Rome declaring that he rejoices in his bonds since they have proved the furtherance of the Gospel. In the hour of his soul's deepest need; when neither legalism, nor zeal which manifested itself in persecuting the Church availed to justify him before the searching majesty of a law which said thou shalt not covet, there had come to Paul a Gospel. When the stern demands of the law fell like a prosecuting witness, a sheriff, a judge, a jury and an executioner all in one; when Paul was condemned under the law; about to die under the law; then "God revealed His Son in me—revealed Him as crucified for me." The Gospel of His dying and rising again drunk up my curse; yea, and drunk up my life and my loyalty, so that I live for Him and serve for the progress of His Gospel. How can I be ashamed of it? of Him?

The Gospel the Power That Brings Salvation

But to turn to our text Paul declares himself unashamed of the Gospel because "it is the power of God unto salvation." As he knows first hand, God efficaciously acts through the Gospel to deliver from sin and its penalty and to usher into life and blessedness. The Gospel is the one sufficient antidote for sin. And, as Dean Inge has recently remarked, sin is something more serious than the removal of certain repressions and complexes. The lid was off in the Roman Empire; the heathen world was repressed by no sense of moral authoritarianism; and the result painted either by Seneca or by Paul, Romans 1: 18-32, is a tale too sordid to read to a general audience. No Paul's psychoanalysis of sin is deeper than Froude's. He says: "I know that in me, that is in my flesh dwelleth no good thing." "Wretched man that I am, who shall deliver me from this body of death." Not the unhindered expression of the passions of the flesh; but crucifixion of the old man is Paul's Gospel.

In a day when the lighter literature is making its suggestive appeal to man's libido; when the more intellectual, e. g. The Forum, is calmly running Will Durant's proposals to revise the ten commandments; or Russia's plans to abrogate the family, men need the unvarnished Gospel of Jesus Christ the one foundation of morals and decency and the only hope for the regeneration of men and women. Only the power of God can deal with the awful hold of sin on this age. God's saving power is in the Gospel.

And the guilt of sin is greater than those who treat it as a mere case of arrested development, a relic of the jungle will admit. Offenses increase in gravity according to the worth of those against whom they are directed, and the values of life which they jeopardize. Sin is directed against the Most High. Disturbing the personal relationship with the heavenly Father it throws the whole family of personal values and interests out of harmony. Therefore, the guilt of sin is an infinite guilt. Man needs an infinite Saviour; a redemption of infinite worth. Only the satisfaction wrought by our Lord Jesus in His obedience and suffering even unto the death on Calvary can deliver from this great entail of misery and doom. The Gospel is that He gave Himself for us that He might forgive us.

And just this Gospel is the power that anchors the soul amid all the vicissitudes of life. Its power breathes the word of faith and peace in death. How could Paul be ashamed of it when he could say: "If God is for us, who can be against us? He that spared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all, how shall he not also with him freely give us all things . . . I am persuaded that neither death nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor things present, nor things to come, . . . shall separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord." By all that the Gospel holds out of the saving power of God I would that we might stand with the Apostle, "For the Gospel and Unashamed!"

The Gospel Is God's Revelation

Again, Paul is Unashamed of the Gospel for it is God's Revelation. "For therein is revealed." We have said that God efficaciously works His salvation through the Gospel. It would seem to be an inevitable inference that the avenue through which God works would be the avenue of His own ordering. If religion be a relationship between two entities, God and man; then in the nature of the first entity, God, must determine the conditions under which the relationship must take place. It is idle to call for God's power against the gates of Hell when we are not proclaiming the Gospel which He has revealed as the means through which He wills to work. Paul's confidence in the Gospel is based on the assurance that his is not a man made, a man taught, Gospel. It came to him by revelation of Jesus Christ.

Of course, it is easy to say that Paul's view is out of date, that we have gotten beyond the idea of revelation; that we need only the guidance of the religious consciousness or "the thoroughly Christianized religious experience." But are these substitutes really up-to-date? The religious consciousness as the seat of authority in religion goes back to Schleiermacher who attracted attention with his Redem in 1799. A. Ritschl laid the foundations of the Christian experience theology about the time of the Confederate War. As a matter of fact the newest theology has entirely rejected the pansubjectivity of both these schools. To make religion wholly subjective is to make it anthropocentric rather than theocentric; a matter of psychology rather than a matter of theology. And at least until psychology is ready to give us a definite answer as to whether man has a mind, a soul, a consciousness; and whether that mind is a stream of consciousness; a stream of activities; or, like a row of electric sparks, a stream of disparate conscious moments united in a subliminal soul—until psychology has some unified answer as to its own nature which will preserve the fundamental values of life I, for one, would rather see religion resting anywhere else than on the heaving turmoil of the sea of psychology.

Of course, an intellectual apprehension of the Word of Revelation needs to be vitalized and validated in experience; but that is grounding experiences upon revelation, not substituting experience for revelation. Evelyn Unterhill in "Man and the Supernatural" has acutely remarked, "Religion is either revelation or it is illusion." Make it wholly subjective and your unbelieving psychologist will blow it out of the window with the remark, "your religion is only the objectifying of a subjective fear complex." "The Newest Theology" is right at least in this: it emphasizes the idea of revelation. The plane of the historical and the psychological has been bisected by another plane, straight from heaven, the plane of revelation. Karl Barth says, "Our grandmothers were right; there is something more than religion in the Bible; there is Revelation there." On the field of history the subjective basis for religion has been weighed and found wanting. After a century's fair trial German theology is turning away from it either toward the theology of the Word, or toward the historic faculty of the positive school. Why import Germany's outworn Kultur as a substitute for Paul's certainties—the Gospel, the Revelation of God?

Are we willing then to stand with Paul for the Gospel as God great revelation of the way of salvation? A recent editorial in one of your (Columbia, S. C.) dailies gives to the Presbyterian minister of a former generation the credit of straight line thinking. Are we ready today for straight line things? If the Christian Gospel is God's revelation it is not only a religion, it is the religion. The only inference which a revealed religion can draw is that it is the only true religion. And that is just the inference which this age is least willing to accept. Has the Christian of the twentieth century the fine charm of the courageous, which marked the Apostle of the first? Can he march out with Peter facing the Sanhedrin of culture declaring that there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved? Can he face the acropolis of machinistic naturalism, philosophical tolerance, comparative religion, Philistinism and preach Jesus and the Resurrection? Dare he hurl an anathema declaring any other Gospel, no Gospel? Let us make no mistake about it. The Christians of the first three centuries were not persecuted for worshipping Jesus. They were persecuted for worshipping Jesus only? Had they been willing to worship Caesar, and Mithra and Magna Mater, and Jesus not a hair of their heads would have fallen by a Roman sword.

We bear a name which was won by martyrs and saints those awful first centuries, martyrs who would die rather than accept Alexander Severus ecclesiasticism: Jesus, Apollonius, Abraham, Orpheus and Elagabalus, the sun-god of Emesa. What will twentieth century Christianity do with the fundamental character which the third century Christian died to give his religion? Those dead hands do have a claim on our hearts. Had they saved their lives by compromise, we would never have borne the Christian name. Christianity conquered because it was an exclusive religion. Had it allowed to its devotees the worship of many cults it would have been snuffed out in the rushing hurricane of time; and been as little known today as Isis and Serapis, its ancient Egyptian rivals. The founders of an institution, the characters of a corporation have the right to determine the fundamental character and purposes of that business. For later managers to turn the corporation away from its fundamental character and work is described by the lawyers as ultra vires. Shall twentieth century Christianity breach the fundamental character of the faith of the martyrs? Shall our day revise the stand of Elijah on Mt. Carmel; and tell him that like an "old fogey" he was mistaken; that Baal, Bel, Ashtar, Ashtoreth are all one with Jehovah?

Shall we meekly consent to have the worst placed on the same plane with the worshiped, Buddha, or Confucius? Shall we accept rationalism of the school of comparative religion says that all religious history is one block—are no miracles, no unique Incarnation has place—the Gospel, itself only a syncretistic ancient cults? Nothing less will satisfy the ane of the history of religions school. In the new onslaught which has already penetrated Presbyterian ranks God give us grace to Paul, and Peter and the martyrs of the Gospel as God's Revelation and Unshamed!

Gospel Proves God's Righteousness

Finally, Paul stood for the Gospel because he revealed the justifying righteousness of God even shall live by faith."

The first part of this word was a veritable terror to Luther for may a day and year. He thought righteousness of God meant the retributive justice whereby the awful judge punishes sinners. He tried to read Romans this verse block. There stood facing the awesome picture of justice by which God punishes unjust persons to the punitive sense of God's righteousness justifies according to one's desert and, they do otherwise than punish sinners. His sensitivity was continually reproving him in the presence of retributive God. Try as he might he was unable to find his satisfactions to placate this God.

And Luther really tried. He entered the terror in order to do enough to save his soul not himself; but devoted his strength to fasting, ascetic practices. He went to confess; his father confessor told him not to return until he had confessed. He visited Rome for the Renaissance culture; but rushed back to masses, relics, and sacred Churches. His grandfather from Purgatory he climb Sanca on his knees repeating a Paternoster. But at the top a doubt returned, "Who knows if it is true?" He advanced as an eager student of "modern" theology. But when he was made a theologian he did not know the Gospel.

Again and again he returned to the word. He became angry. "I raged and my conscience was agitated. I beat importunately at the door of Paul; thirsting with a most ardent desire to enter. The Apostle meant." At length, to his importuning the door opened. That which had been offense became the Gate of Paradise. He saw the connection between the righteousness of God and shall live by faith. The righteousness of God shall live by faith. The righteousness of God is imputed sense. The righteousness is that which is imputed to the sinner and receives by faith and is thereby justified. God's righteousness is equivalent to His gift by which a merciful God justifies the sinner. "Just as I had previously hated the phrase 'God,' so now I extolled it with equal love and esteem of words; and so to me that passage in the gate of paradise."

In Augustine, Luther found encouragement. For Augustine reminded him of one Peter, persecutor, who instead of punishment for his part in the death of Christ, instead of condemnation found mercy; of Peter who had been so terribly preaching that gift of God whereby righteousness accrues to the children of God. The righteousness of God is not a righteousness which man can earn for himself; it is not that whereby God is righteous; but it is that with which He enlightens the ungodly. And Luther re-awakened Europe with the thrill of justifying righteousness. He stood forth; a poor unarmed man—but the Gospel of God and Unashamed!

Some two centuries later when the clerical rationalism's intellectual conceits were the fountains of spiritual life in England; when Presbyterian Churches were taking Ariarianism and finding it the down grade to Socialism, a young minister of the Church of England a little "society" in Aldersgate Street, London, one was reading Luther's preface to the Romans. At about a quarter before nine, while he was describing the change which came in the heart through faith in Christ, the young man, John Wesley, found his heart strangely warmed. "I did trust in Christ, Christ alone, for salvation, and assurance was given me that he had taken away my sin, and saved me from the law of works."

Paul and Luther and Wesley stood for the Gospel Unashamed because it brought its price—justifying righteousness to their own hearts. That is the one thing which will keep us from being ashamed to stand with Paul before the crucified Lord. Let us affirm "He loved me and gave Himself up for me" and seek with Luther so that His Divine righteousness imputed becomes the righteousness of God which will warm the heart strangely warmed like Wesley's. Let us have a personal assurance of the truth of the Gospel to you and to me it will be given to stand with Paul—and Unashamed! The Gospel is the power that saves us from shame and everlastingly. However, much we may be ashamed of our poor accomplishments may we never be ashamed of the Gospel. Let us believe the Everlasting Gospel. Columbia Seminary, Decatur, Ga.

Men-of-the-Church

Presbyterian Church in the United States

E. PURCELL, D.D., Executive Secretary
HENRY GRADY BUILDING
ATLANTA, GEORGIA

N. L. FAIRLY, D.D., Wilmington, N. C., Charge of Men-of-the-Church Department

THE GROUP

Men underlie the Men-of-the-Church, an inclusive and an exclusive principle. By inclusive every man in the Church is included in the plan, theoretically at least, is used to propose for which the organization was originally inclusive is meant the division of the large number of small units for more efficient use. Men underlie every efficient organization. Built around corps, divisions, regiments, and department Store is built around the department is composed of section as the whole body of men come together monthly for education and worship. The group meets for its part of the program which has for the whole organization.

The Value of the Group

The Group Plan enables each man to receive a message or a call to service in the time and with the minimum effort. One of the group plan, invited every man in a group of eight hundred members in two hours possibilities in this plan are easily seen. Men may be easily assembled for special services, special service tasks, meetings of the Church, or for any other purpose.

For Service. The Group Plan provides more service, and, more direct channels for service. It is easily seen that five or ten small groups can do more tasks of service than one large group. The smaller it is more easily welded and can be directly in touch with the task.

Development of leadership. Responsibility and activity are great means of developing leaders. Every man, with but few exceptions, has developed a leadership. His leader did not just happen to be, but largely by the crisis itself. Place on the responsibility of group leader, and on the men's responsibility for certain tasks, and you will see a development in the men and in the Church.

Each Man a Part of the Church. One reason for the group is that they feel that the group is running it and they have no part. The group is each man his place, however, small it is, and every group member feel a part of the church.

Division of Labor. It is easy to let a dozen men do the work of the church, but it is not right. Let His Kingdom should come by such a plan that each member has his share. The group plan gives to each man that share.

It is hard to become acquainted with a group of men draw very near to each other when they work together for the common end. More Intimate Spiritual Supervision. Most men are one who is interested in their spiritual growth. A group leader has a marvelous chance of obtaining the Christian graces in the hearts of the men.

Group Leaders

The Group Leaders are appointed by the committee—President, Secretary, Treasurer, and the Pastor.

The number of Group Leaders will depend on the number of groups. See discussion under Groups.

Group Leaders are key-men in this work. They are the men whom men like and who can influence them. They should be men who are loyal to the Church, to learn, and to work. They should be men who are so many good men without it. Men of strong personality should be selected. Men, they must be men of positive Christian character. In the last analysis, men follow character.

The Groups

The members of the groups are selected by the Executive Committee, consisting of the President, Secretary, and Treasurer, together with the Department of Men, the Group Leaders and the Pastor. They should study carefully the personnel of the Church and make an effort to place each man in the group.

The number of groups will vary; of course, the number of men and also with the service tasks given to the men. If the men are to be mobilized— assembling the men for service— the number of men should be small, not over a dozen, eight or ten. One Group Leader should be in touch with them more easily. If, however, the men are to be assigned service activities—prayer, singing, other tasks suggested in the Service Program— the group should be formed with from four to ten men. This might require from twenty to thirty men in a group. The number of available group leaders will influence the number on the groups. Selection. A good plan of selection is to separate the men into four divisions—loyal, semi-indifferent, indifferent and non-church members of the congregation. The names in each division are then read in order and are chosen by the Group Leaders. If more than one leader wishes the same man the Council decides who shall have him. It is wise to get a speaker, an automobile, and a deeply earnest and spiritual man on each group. One may possess all of these qualifications.

4. New Yearly Alignment. The groups should have a new alignment each year, the change being made in March so that no break shall occur when the church year begins. Some country churches using a geographical division for the groups may find it difficult to change the personnel entirely. However, it should be done as much as possible.

The Work of the Group

1. Mobilization of the Men. One of the greatest tasks in which the group of all churches can engage is assembling the men for a particular meeting or to accomplish a special work. Pastors and leaders are frequently desirous of getting all the men together for a special service at the church, a series of services, or a men's meeting. The groups will prove invaluable for such work. All of the tasks given to the groups should be discussed fully and accepted by the Council and then assigned to the groups. This applies to the special and general tasks as well.

2. Special Tasks. Groups may be assigned special tasks in the Presbyterian Progressive Program, in the work of the local church and elsewhere. The "Monthly Programs and Service Suggestions" give a list of service tasks which other churches are doing.

3. General Tasks. By general tasks is meant those projects in which all of the men of the local church are interested in at the same time—Every Member Canvass, Evangelistic Services and other things.

Meetings

1. Business Meeting. Each group should have one meeting each month. This meeting should be a business meeting to plan for the execution of the work assigned the group by the Council. This meeting can be held most conveniently immediately after the General Monthly Meeting and in connection with it. Some groups, however, prefer the lunch hour or an evening hour in the home of a member of the group.

2. Social Meetings. These meetings are held at the discretion of the Group Leader. The Monthly Meeting may supply the necessary social life.

3. Called Meetings. These meetings should be held very rarely and only when there is special need.

Organization

The groups need but little organization. All should have a Group Leader of course. In addition, some groups have an assistant leader and a secretary. This is left to the individual group.

Conclusion

This pamphlet gives but an outline of the organization and work of the group. Discussions on handling the groups and news of what the groups are doing are carried each week in the column on Men's Work in the Church Papers. This column should be a source of information and of inspiration and should supplement the outline of the group in this pamphlet.

The whole work of the Men-of-the-Church is going to be successful just in proportion as those in places of leadership pray and teach the men to pray. We may as well realize that organization in itself is not going to develop men spiritually. You cannot develop men very far without some form of organization, but the essential thing in an organization is that it shall be shot through with a devotional spirit. A devotional spirit comes as we pray and as we daily come in contact with God through the Scriptures.

ORGANIC UNION WITH THE UNITED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

W. M. Crowe

After a correspondence beginning in the early summer of 1926, the Assemblies of the two Churches involved heard the report of the Joint Committee on Organic Union at the meeting in May of this year. The history of the movement is given in the Minutes of our Assembly, 1929. (Pages 137-141.)

The actions of the two Assemblies were as follows:

"When the report, together with the recommendations, was presented to our Assembly by Rev. S. L. Morris, D.D., by almost unanimous vote the plan of union was referred to the Presbyteries for rejection or approval, with the understanding that the Assembly of 1930 may discover by the returns whether or not the plan is acceptable to the whole Church. Should the Basis of Union receive the approval of three-fourths of the Presbyteries, and should like action be taken by the United Presbyterian Church, the proposed union would thereupon be effected.

The United Presbyterian Assembly met a few days after the adjournment of our Assembly, and heard the report and recommendations presented by Rev. R. M. Karr, D.D. This report is as follows:

"1. That this Assembly express its appreciation of the cordial and fraternal spirit manifest in the recent overture action of the Southern Assembly.

"2. That the General Assembly record its conviction that union with the Southern Presbyterian Church is desirable, provided the union be a real union without the loss of any considerable minority in either denomination.

"3. That the Assembly express its approval of the amended Basis of Union insofar as it has been developed and reported by the Joint Committee.

"Since Presbyterian reports do not indicate that the time is ripe for the submission in formal overture of the question of organic union, we recommend that Assembly's Committee on Closer Relations be authorized to prosecute its work more vigorously, in order that, the Lord willing, the way may be prepared for a true and happy union of our two denominations through the development of mutual acquaintance and brotherly love.

"5. That the whole Church be requested to continue in earnest prayer that the will of God in this matter of Church Union may be most clearly known and His purpose therein be fully accomplished."

I have in my hand a communication from the United Presbyterian Committee interpreting this action as follows:

"The resolutions given above were all adopted without a dissenting vote. The action of the Assembly seems to us to be distinctly favorable; but evidently the General Assembly intends to proceed deliberately, so that there may be no unwholesome reaction and no occasion for regrets. This Assembly has committed itself to something more definite in the matter of union with the Southern Presbyterian Church than any other Assembly since the negotiations began. The action of our General Assembly opens the way for a more constructive work, which the Committee on Closer Relations is authorized to prosecute with vigor."—Robert M. Karr, Chairman, Committee on Closer Relations.

It will be seen, however, that the situation is not exactly the same in each Church just at present. In view of the loss of step between the two Assemblies, there is liable to be a confusion in the minds of our Presbyters as to what disposition to make of the overture sent down by our Assembly. In the meantime a proposition for a general organic union has appeared on the horizon, which has caught the imagination of a part of the United Presbyterian Assembly, has affected the situation, and has become a contributing factor to their delay. Let it be said also that our Assembly has responded by the appointment of a committee to the proposition mentioned above, but their response seems to be entirely apart from a continuance of the correspondence with the United Presbyterian Church. This is as it should be, for there is no relationship between the two movements.

As a member of the Committee from our Assembly, and as chairman of the Joint Committee, I am writing to suggest that our Presbyteries proceed with the matter and submit to our Assembly of next year their re-action to the overture looking to organic union with the United Presbyterian Church.

Let it be understood that this proposed union is on the basis of a common faith. There are two ideas on the subject of church union prevailing today. One is an administrative union, with little or no regard to the question of theological standards, or the interpretation of symbols that are now supposed to be in operation. Such a basis will never produce a full-orbed Church, such as our Lord had in mind when he prayed, "That they may all be one." Two bodies of believers cannot possibly be one, unless there is a oneness of faith. Thereby the whole question of organic union is reduced to simple terms. Are we seeking to erect a great organization, or are we undertaking to bring together the people who have a common attitude toward the essentials of our faith? The whole scheme hinges upon that question. The other idea is that church union should be based upon a similarity of doctrine, a complete accord in the interpretation of the doctrine, and fellowship born of a common zeal for the enlargement of the spiritual Kingdom of Jesus Christ. It is to this character of union that these two Churches are now called upon to address themselves.

The United Presbyterian Church and the Southern Presbyterian Church, while possessed of somewhat different traditions and occupying in the main, different areas of ministry, are of one mind in the interpretation of the Calvinistic system. They place a common emphasis upon the home, the Sabbath, the Scriptural idea of the Church, evangelism, and every other important factor in the spiritual life of the people. A union between these bodies could be made effectual because of a unity of spirit and motive. There are differences between the two Churches, let us be assured, but the differences are not insuperable. Every problem of administration could be adjusted by a wise and patient leadership. The United Presbyterian Church calls its executive agencies boards; we call the same agencies committees; the work of the women in that Church differs somewhat from the same department in our Church; their testimony of 1858 would not be acceptable to our people; their attitude toward the state differs from ours in a measure. But in every instance, with proper sympathy, and with the use of common sense, a single mind could be secured. Speaking of their Testimony of 1858, we remark that the Confessional Statement has taken its place, which statement is in entire accord with the strictest demands of our Standards.

Facing the situation, the advice to the Presbyteries from our Committee would be to proceed, even though the United Presbyterian Church is postponing action for a year. Let us remember that the postponement, according to the interpretation of their own committee, is not born of reluctance, but simply in order that their final vote may be with due deliberation.

This communication is given at the instance of Doctor Karr and Doctor Morris, both of whom fully concur in its conclusions and advice. St. Louis, Mo.

MINISTERIAL RELIEF

Rev. Henry H. Sweets, D.D., Secretary

Why should the Church, as she faces large opportunities and heavy responsibilities, give of its means to the aged and infirm ministers? They are no longer able to serve, their productive period has passed, the Church can hope for no adequate material returns from their labors.

Thus the cold business member might reason. Is he right? Has he stated the truth with regard to the responsibility? Has he appreciated to the right extent the kind of production expected from the ministry? There is no question in the minds of any Church today with regard to this responsibility. It is enforced by the Word of God and by logic that is simply overwhelming in its convincing power.

God made abundant provision for the Levites in the Old Testament dispensation. Not only did He provide for their sustenance out of the offerings brought to the Temple, but whole cities were set aside for their habitation.

This was not an arbitrary enactment. The support inhaled in the nature of the office. The Priests were called to separate themselves from the sources of worldly gain. They were to minister to the people in spiritual things. Those to whom they ministered thus of right should provide the material things for them.

In order that this duty might not be overlooked in the fierce struggle for the conquest of Canaan, God said to Israel time and again, "Take heed to thyself that thou forsake not the Levite as long as thou livest upon the land."

In the New Testament dispensation the same duty was laid upon God's people. The Apostle Paul declares: "Even so hath the Lord ordained that they who preach the Gospel shall live of the Gospel," and in I Timothy 5:17-18, we have this message: "Let the elders that rule well be counted worthy of double honour, especially they who labour in the Word and Doctrine. For the Scripture saith, Thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth out the corn. And, the laborer is worthy of his reward."

The Church, therefore, must care for these men and for the needy widows and orphans of the deceased ministers, out of a sense of strict justice. The late Ex-Governor James A. Beaver, for many years Judge of the Superior Court of Pennsylvania, said: "A minister, while he lives, has no hesitation, nor have his legal representatives any when he dies, in asking a congregation which he has served to make good the consideration named in the call under which service was rendered. And why? Simply because there is an express contract to pay. When a minister has been solemnly ordained and thereby adopted by the Church, and has, by his ordination vows, voluntarily closed against himself the avenues by which men ordinarily acquire a competency, and he becomes physically or mentally disqualified for the proper discharge of the duties of his high office, or after a half century of devoted service he is laid aside by the infirmities of age, he has just as much right morally—aye, and just as much right legally in the truest sense—to claim from the Church such provision at least as was at the time of his ordination made for those in like circumstances."

No Church could keep its self-respect without providing for these men and their families who have forsaken all to follow Christ and to minister to His people.

The late Dr. Arthur T. Pierson declared: "It is an insult to call this charity. It is in the very highest sense a debt, and should be so honored as an imperative obligation owed to those who use their days of strength in the service of our Lord; and no blessing can be expected on a Church which allows the veteran soldier of Christ to go down to his grave like an inmate of a poor-house, or a dependent on charity, looking for a miserable pittance, bestowed as on a beggar, for the bare subsistence of life."

Surely the gratitude of God's people should drive them to make abundant provision for these faithful servants of God. No one will ever know the depths of their sacrifice for Him and for our Church. Many have used up all their private means and slender patrimonies. Many of them have gone forth to face sure poverty. They have denied themselves not only the necessary things of life, but many things that were absolutely needed for their largest usefulness to the world. Many of them have not only borne the results of pinching poverty but have seen their wives and their children facing want and denied the many things so needed for their comfort and advancement.

We are all proud of the record of our Church. Shall we forget these faithful men who, with such courage and self-denial, have sowed the seed from which we are reaping the splendid harvest? Shall we be unmindful of those who have laid the foundations deep and strong upon which we are today erecting the beautiful Temple of our God?

The Church could scarcely keep her self-respect if she failed to do this. The farmer provides sustenance for the old horse that served him well. The master still throws bread from his table to the faithful watch dog which has grown too old for his accustomed watchfulness. "Doth God take thought for the oxen," and shall not His Church, which professes to have His spirit, minister to the distressing needs of God's aged saints who have denied themselves in the days of their strength to care for the poor, to seek the lost, to relieve the sorrowing and to lead all to a blessed hope in God?

The Church that neglects her aged ministers shows a woeful lack of Christian strategy. The General Assembly of our Church declared: "This is the day of opportunity. If the Church does not act promptly, not only will the cause of Ministerial Relief suffer, but also the supply of candidates for the ministry will be seriously affected. If the father lies wounded on the field of battle uncared for, can we expect the son to fill his place in the depleted ranks of the regiment?"

Probably only a very few young men are kept out of the ministry on account of the lack of provision for those who serve in this office. Youth is not accustomed to look forward with much anxiety to old age. The boys and girls of the Church know little of the needs of the ministers. But where could you find a missionary, either at home or abroad, laboring on an insufficient salary, who, should he know that if he fall by the way, the loving arms of the Church would surely be placed beneath him or if he be called to his reward his wife and his little ones would be cared for by the Mother Church, would not have more of heart and earnest zeal to put into his exacting labor?

Every dictate of religion would urge the Church to the fulfillment of this sacred obligation. To plead for these needy ones is not begging. It is merely calling the people to the fulfillment of one of the most fundamental obligations of the Christian's life. James, the practical brother of our Lord, declared: "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this: to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction and to keep one's self unspotted from the world." Again the Word of God declares: "Whoso seeth his brother have need and shutteth up his tender compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?"

The Church ought to care for these because it is one of the rarest privileges that God has given to His people. Nothing more fully develops the principles of the Gospel of Jesus in the human heart than the giving out of our love and sympathy and substance to those who are less fortunate than we. What a privilege to minister, in the name of Christ, to these who have given their whole lives in His service.

We have sometimes wondered why God did not call these aged ministers home. More of their loved ones are over there than are with them on this side. Possibly they are left for two principal reasons. First, that we may have the joy of ministering to them. It is a great privilege to have some part in the "fellowship of ministering to the saints." Do you remember that those precious words of Jesus, which were given to us after His ascension in the conversation of the Apostle Paul with the elders from the Ephesus Church, are connected with service such as that involved in the work of Ministerial Relief? He declares: "I have shewed you all things, how that so laboring ye ought to support the weak, and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how He said, 'It is more blessed to give than to receive.'"

"And we believe Thy Word,

Though dim our faith may be,

Whate'er for Thine we do, O Lord,

We do it unto Thee."

The Ministers' Annuity Fund, approved by each General Assembly since 1924, provides a safe, sane, sure and Christian method to insure to each of its servants provision for needs during the years of enforced inactivity and for the care of widow and orphans who are left behind.

A MISAPPREHENSION REGARDING MISSIONARY FURLOUGHS CORRECTED

Egbert W. Smith

We find it necessary to correct a misapprehension, evidenced in a letter recently sent from the foreign field to all our pastors, regarding an action unanimously taken last April by the Executive Committee of Foreign Missions. That action was—

"That, in view of the great increase of expense in the home traveling of our missionaries on furlough and the increased deficit of the Committee, rather than detain missionaries at home in other employment as some Boards are doing in order to cut down expense, we suggest to all our Missions to consider the advisability of extending by one year, for the present emergency only, the field service of all missionaries, except those individuals whom the medical staff or the Mission deems it inadvisable for health or other reasons to remain on the field longer."

From the above language it is clear

(1) That the Executive Committee does not order or instruct or even ask our missionaries to extend their terms of service on the field. It simply suggests that each of our Missions "consider the advisability" of such one-year extension. In other words each Mission itself, which simply means the missionaries themselves in their organized capacity, is to pass upon the advisability of such extension. (As a matter of fact it is not so very unusual for missionaries to request an extension of their service period.)

(2) That, in case of a Mission's approval of such extension, its action is not to apply to missionaries whose health would be endangered by prolonging their terms of service or whom the Mission, for any "other reasons," might deem it wisest not to detain on the field beyond the usual period.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT

EDITOR'S LOOKOUT

W. A. Gamble, Pinetops, N. C.

The young people of Albemarle Presbytery fall rally September 5, at Elizabeth City, eastern corner of the state. This was the first of the meetings of the Presbytery's Young People's League was staged in this section. The Elizabeth City was largely the outgrowth of the Presbytery's first young people's summer conference last July. The pastor of this church, Rev. C. and his wife, were counsellors at that conference and were so pleased with what they saw of the young people that they invited the fall rally to their church.

Arriving during the morning, the delegates signed to homes for the mid-day meal. In the noon they enjoyed the rare privilege of a U. S. Revenue Cutter, "Pamlico," down the River toward Albemarle Sound. Upon returning trip, a session was held at the church, and a session after supper. The homeward trek was next morning.

Presbyterianism is weak in this section, and Melick, in welcoming the delegates, spoke of given the local church in seeing so many young people present at one time. Miss All of Greenville brought the devotional message for next summer's conference was presented. The people voted in favor of a rally during the holidays.

At the night meeting the devotionals were by Rev. R. E. McClure, pastor-elect at New Daphne Carraway, of Wilson, who is Presbytery's Story-Tellers' League of America, spoke of telling will help to make interesting weekly young people's meetings, and closed with a Bible story.

The Tarboro delegates presented a demonstration, showing the value of Christian education. Mrs. Jeannette Grainger, Presbyterian Auxiliary of Young People's Work, announced a test to be closed with the Easter rally. An appeal to the society, or individual in the sending the best poster setting forth the work of the young people's group of that local church.

Rev. W. A. Gamble, Presbytery's Chairman of Young People's Work, offered the help of the young people of the Presbytery in forwarding young people to Elizabeth City.

The closing challenge was presented by Miss All of Greenville, N. C., who has just taken up the appeal to the young women at Eastern Carolina College. A number of the young people kneeling in front of the Church in token of their decision to let the Lord have His own way with them.

Several of the younger men of the ministry work in Albemarle Presbytery, and this is a number of ministers interested in the work of the young people, an encouraging sign.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPIC

Sunday, September 22—Standing By Our Lord
Matt. 6:10; Matt. 28:18-20; Luke 2:49; and

The Leader

One petition of the Lord's Prayer is, Thy kingdom come. It is in heaven, and the Church as part of Christ's kingdom, a pray that prayer, we hope the church will be a powerful factor in making the world so they will do right and try to live as thou art in heaven.

Before Christ ascended, after his resurrection his disciples they must go forth to be his witnesses. We as members of this young people's society are His disciples and followers and we must be His witnesses wherever we go. He will be with us and to help us as we work for Him. Let us be an example, for as a boy 12 years of age must be busy about His Father's business.

(3) That the Executive Committee's action on the present emergency only.

Of our nine Missions only one, the North Carolina, reported on the advisability of this one-year extension. This Mission, on recommendation of its Executive Committee, has decided:

"That we do not think it would be wise to extend the furlough of any of the members of this young people's society who were in China and who endured the strain and anxious times of the revolution and its aftermath."

This action of the North Kiangsu Mission is eminently wise.

From one other Mission, the North Carolina, received unofficial echoes of one missionary's furlough being extended, but as that Mission's official report recently received contain no record of this matter, we suspect a mistake somewhere. We will further information.

ing to do what we can to make the world
ach it to love and trust in Jesus.
t today is Standing by Our Church, and we ust what is expected of us and how we can Christ and the Church.

The Church is the Body of Christ ve and respect the Church, but have we ink why we should consider the church a tion which must not be treated lightly, but st thing in the world. It is because the organized by Jesus Christ, the Son of God
e world. He came to save the church, e cross for it, he rose from the dead that he ete his work and become the ruler of the calls the church the body of Christ. He is directs its members in their work. Be-rch is the body of Christ, it is holy and set own. And so we should always remember the church is to Christ, and never speak of terms of love and respect. And we should because it is his body.

Why the Most Important Organization had a divine origin, because Jesus organled it his own body. But the church has also the most important organization that is in brings about the happiest conditions of the business and government. It helps nations ch other kindly and try to be just and help-ch has gone into heathen countries and is beneficial changes in them all. If there ches, our lives would not be safe, our prop-se its value, our homes would be in constant ng molested and disturbed.

people who speak slightly of the church, of it, but if they had to chose a place to ld always select the place where there are us never join those who make fun of the and by it, and declare our belief in it and owe to it.

Being Witnesses for Christ
to the Church is to be a witness for Christ. church and Sunday School, and joining the y to the world, The Church is a good thing, important to us. Jesus Christ is our Savior,
d our king, and we want to serve and love

other times and places where we can stand as a witness for Christ, when we refuse places Christ will not honor and approve, or their mockery of holy things. We should er we are Christian, followers of Jesus
e expects us to be loyal to Him.

Standing by the Church as a Worker must do more than wear a uniform, he must commander, and fight for him when he is Christian also must do more than be merely a church member. He must work for the to his share of the labor necessary to keep make it a success.

ch a church, you will be impressed that the orkers is always small compared to the list
n roll. Just a few do the most of the work.
e responsibility and offer themselves to do verybody ought to do his share. We must by the church, and do our work, whatever hat has been one of the benefits of young ties, they teach the young folks that they and tells them how to do their part.

Standing By With Our Money important part of standing by the church is part of the expenses of the church. If our ng to do the best work, it must have money eals and buildings, it must keep up the buildnds, it must employ men and women, who other means of making a living that they for the church all the time. Then there are to raise money for, so the church can help n different parts of the world, foreign mis-missions, Bible distribution, hospitals, orl many other things. We must take our ing raise the money to carry on the great church.

be loyal to the church who does not give oney to support it.

Standing By Our Pastor
the finest things in church work is loyalty to he minister has given up his life to serve nd while he needs money for his support, ht is for the success of the work. He wants ople coming to the services. He loves to ief interest is in the Lord, and he is greatly they are inconsistent and untrue to their epares his sermon with the idea of helping ersons, and he is disappointed when they e gives a certain piece of work for some d how glad he is when he sees the officers bers of the church all trying to do their stand by our pastor, and let him know he us to do what he asks us to do. Loyalty certainly means standing by the man we be our minister.

WOMANS AUXILIARY

The Department of Woman's Work, Presbyterian Church, U. S.
270-277 Field Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

SYNODICAL PRESIDENTS OF THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

Alabama—Mrs. J. F. Hooper, 610 Mabry St., Selma, Ala.
Appalachia—Mrs. F. B. Kegley, Wytheville, Va.
Arkansas—Mhrs. Walter Wilson, Arkadelphia, Ark.
Florida—Mrs. W. G. Thompson, Jr., 3215 Bispo St., Palma
Ceia Park, Tampa, Fla.
Georgia—Mrs. E. G. Abbott, 1315 Eberhart Ave., Columbus, Ga.
Kentucky—Mrs. H. P. Cooper, Lebanon, Ky.
Louisiana—Mrs. Charles L. Bodin, Box 79, M. R. A., Lake
Charles, La.
Mississippi—Mrs. J. S. Hicks, Holly Springs, Miss.
Missouri—Mrs. Walter Craven, 223 Frances St., Excelsior Springs, Mo.
North Carolina—Mrs. G. V. Patterson, Gastonia, N. C.
Oklahoma—Mrs. Wilbur Garvin, 611 Euclid, Lawton, Oklahoma.
South Carolina—Mrs. Parker Connor, Edisto Island, S. C.
Tennessee—Mrs. J. F. Forsythe, Bethel Springs, Tenn.
Texas—Mrs. J. W. Culver, Texas Military Academy, San Antonio, Texas.
Virginia—Mrs. C. R. Vaughan, 319 Mountain Ave., Roanoke, Va.
West Virginia—Mrs. J. McD. Lacy, Elkins, W. Va.

RED SPRINGS TO SUPPORT A MISSIONARY

Miss Frances Hesser, of Roanoke, Va., has been chosen by the local Presbyterian Church to represent it on the mission field of Brazil. At the regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary held last Monday, Miss Hesser made a very interesting and instructive address on the necessity for missions to Brazil and the reasons for her choice of that country, rather than some other foreign field, for her life's work. Brazil being a Roman Catholic country, it is hard for some people to see why missionaries should be sent there, but Miss Hesser showed very conclusively the need for true Christianity in that country to replace the degraded and idolatrous worship practiced by its people.

Miss Hesser is a beautiful and talented young woman, a graduate of Flora Macdonald College and of the Assembly's Training School at Richmond, Va. She is being sent to Brazil by the foreign mission board of the Presbyterian Church and is the special missionary of the Presbyterian Church in Red Springs. Miss Hesser will leave for her work in Brazil on September 21st.

Following her address an informal tea was held by Circle No. 2 of the Auxiliary, in the new hut, which has been attractively decorated for the occasion. Fruit punch and cheese wafers were served to about forty ladies.

GROUP CONFERENCES ANNOUNCED

Group conferences of the Concord Presbyterial Auxiliary will be held throughout the Presbytery beginning Tuesday, September 10th, and continuing through Friday, September 13th. All of the conferences will convene at 10 o'clock in the morning and last until 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

The date and locations of the conferences are as follows:

District No. 1, Mrs. Janie Reid, chairman, will be held at Siloam, Tuesday, September 10th.

District No. 2, Mrs. J. L. McBride, chairman, meets at Harmony, Wednesday, September 11th.

District No. 3, Mrs. W. C. Pou, chairman, meets at Bethesda, Thursday, September 12th.

District No. 4, Mrs. Walter Goodman, chairman, meets at Harrisburg, Friday, September 13th.

A splendid program has been arranged for these group meetings and it is hoped that every church in the districts will be well represented. A banner will be awarded to the Church having the largest representation. Mrs. W. B. Ramsay, president of Mitchell College, will have the Bible hour. Miss Carrie Roberts, of Salisbury, who has recently returned from a visit to the Holy Land, will be chief speaker and will give a graphic word picture of the wonderful places and scenes visited.

Mrs. Edgar Yoder, Mrs. John Henderson, and other prominent women of the Presbyterial will have a part on the program. Local presidents are asked to give brief narrative reports of work being done in their Auxiliaries, they are also asked to bring a list of questions or problems to be answered during the question period.

A box lunch will be served during the lunch hour.
Mrs. Frank B. Gwin, President.

OBIDS AUXILIARY ORGANIZED

Mrs. E. P. Gray, President of the Winston-Salem Presbyterial, Mrs. J. P. Price, Presbyterial Secretary accompanied by Mrs. Redfern, came to the mountains one day from Winston-Salem arriving in time for a splendid country picnic spread on the lawn of Obids, N. C., Church. The purpose was to assist in the organization of an Auxiliary.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Gray the following officers were elected: Mrs. Frank Severt, President; Miss DeEtte Crawford, Secretary; Mrs. Rufus Parsons, Vice-President; Mrs. Jesse Baker, Treasurer; Mrs. Luther Woody, Secretary Spiritual Life; Miss Ray Severt, Secretary Foreign Missions; Mrs. R. S. McNeill, Secretary Assembly's Home Missions; Mrs. L. F. Miller, Secretary S. and P. Home Missions; Mrs. Mary Burgess, Secretary Y. P. and S. S. Ext.; Mrs. J. C. Crawford, Secretary Christian Social Service; Miss Vivian Parsons, Secretary Literature. Since the organization two meetings have been held and the Birthday meeting has been planned for July 12 at 3:00 p. m. in the Obids Church.

This is the baby Auxiliary of the Winston-Salem Presbyterial but it has proved to be a lively one since its birth.

The Churches of Obids, Ezenecer and Peak Creek have invited the women of Group No. 6 to meet with them at Pine Crest Hotel during a day to be designated for September.

The Auxiliaries of West Jefferson, Jefferson and Lansing celebrated their Birthday in the West Jefferson Church on the fourth Sunday night in May. Two pageants were presented in costume. A large congregation were impressed with the service. The offering amounted to nearly thirty-five dollars which goes for the erection of school buildings to equip our educational plants in Mexico.

SYNODICAL AUXILIARY OF APPALACHIA

The Synodical Auxiliary of Appalachia will meet at Montreat, N. C., September 24-26. Names of officers and delegates expecting to attend should be sent to Mrs. R. C. Anderson, chairman of hospitality committee. The first business session will be held at 7:30 p. m. The Executive Committee will meet at 2:30 p. m. on Tuesday, September 24.

Mrs. C. E. Dorsey, Secretary.

N. C. AUXILIARY TO MEET IN DURHAM

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Synod of North Carolina will hold its seventeenth annual meeting in the First Presbyterian Church of Durham, N. C., October 15, 16, and 17, 1929. The first session will open at 3:30 Tuesday, October 15 and the last session will close at noon Thursday, October 17.

The Executive Board will meet in the church at 1:30 Tuesday, October 15.

Corinne Puett,
Corresponding Secretary.

OUR BIRTHDAY OBJECTIVE FOR 1930

It will be of great interest to the women of our Church to learn that by vote of the Woman's Advisory Committee and approval of the Committee on Assembly's Work, it was decided that the 1930 Birthday Gift should be given to the Cause of Ministerial Relief. The entire amount of the Birthday Offering will be held perpetually in the Endowment Fund of Ministerial Relief, interest from this invested fund being used for the relief of widows and little fatherless children of ministers and missionaries and for women who have served long and well in the service of the Church as commissioned lay workers and are forced to retire without adequate support.

Realizing how dear the Cause of Ministerial Relief is to the heart of our retiring Secretary, Mrs. W. C. Winsborough, and desiring to pay a tribute of love and honor to the one who was the inspiration and unexcelled leader of the Woman's Auxiliary since its organization seven-teen years ago, the Woman's Advisory Committee decided that this fund should be known as "The Winsborough Foundation." It seems fitting that interest from a fund bearing the name of one who was a child and grandchild of the manse should minister throughout the years to come to children of the manse and to those who have given sacrificially of their service to the Master.

By action of the Committee on Assembly's Work, the title "Secretary Emeritus" was conferred upon Mrs. Winsborough. Thus the women have asked of the Assembly the privilege of designating a part of the interest from the Winsborough Foundation to be paid to Mrs. Winsborough annually. This gives to all the opportunity of expressing their love and appreciation of this one who has meant so much to the Woman's Work, for as each one makes her love offering to the Birthday Fund next year, she will not only be helping the worthy Cause of Ministerial Relief but also having a share in honoring our beloved Secretary Emeritus, who was herself the originator of the plan of Birthday Offerings.

The 1929 General Assembly expressed its approval of the Auxiliary Birthday offering in the following recommendation:

"That the Assembly approve the Birthday offering of the Department of Woman's Work and its plan of conduct."

The Committee on Assembly's Work also unanimously endorsed the plan as outlined. It is left for the women of the Auxiliary to carry out the plan, making their love-gifts the largest ever given and endeavoring to have every Presbyterial 100 per cent in their gifts to the Birthday Objective for 1930.

Synodical and Presbyterial Presidents and Secretaries of C. E. and M. R. Please Note.

Additional copies of the above statement concerning the Birthday Objective for 1930 may be obtained from the Department of Woman's Work for inclosure in letters to the local Auxiliaries.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Ernest Trice Thompson, D.D.

Lesson for September 22

MALACHI FORETELLS A NEW DAY Malachi 1:1-4:6. Print 3:1-12

We study this week the book of Malachi. Yet the probability is that there never was a man named Malachi. The book that bears this name is really anonymous. The word really means "my servant," or "my messenger" and was probably borrowed by the editor from 3:1. We know nothing then of the author of this book. We do know something, however, about the times in which he wrote, and that is more important. It was about 460 B. C., seventy years and more after the first Jewish colonists had returned to the promised land, a few years before the return of Ezra, and about 15 years before the return of Nehemiah. The Temple on whose construction Haggai and Zechariah had set high hopes was still standing (1:10), but the whole book pathetically shows how deeply the hopes of that early day had been disappointed. The intervening sixty years or so had been years of disillusion and misery, and the situation to which Malachi addressed himself was melancholy beyond words. There seemed to be a curse upon the land (3:9), but as McFadyen has pointed out, it went far deeper than that. There was a blight on men's hearts and on their faith. It was an age of religious indifference, of moral scepticism and social corruption. Malachi, as we shall continue to call this unknown prophet, was the first man to attack the root of this evil. It was his work carried on by Ezra and Nehemiah that resulted in the great revival that we studied about last week and ended with the Jews becoming officially and really the people of the Book.

Though Malachi then is not chronologically the last book in the Old Testament, it is the logical end. For Malachi's message centers about the coming of God's Messenger, "GOD'S MESSENGER," that is the theme of the prophecy, and the New Testament opens with the coming of that Messenger as he had foretold.

Read the book through with the background as sketched above in your mind, and try to understand the message that it had for the people of Malachi's own day. Read the book again marking those verses which reveal the people's attitude toward God, thus 1:2, 6, 7, 13, etc. How does Malachi deal with the different problems that are thus raised? With these facts in mind make your own outline of the book.

We divide it into two parts:

I. The Need of God's Messenger—1-2

In getting at the root of Israel's trouble Malachi puts his finger upon four great evils.

1. The Doubting of God's Love 1:2-5. God does love them, yet they question it. And they demand that Malachi show them tangible evidences of that love. We need to remember here that the Jews were a disillusioned and disappointed people. Their fathers had returned to the Promised Land with high hopes. When they built the temple Haggai (cf. 2:6-9, 20f) and Zechariah (ch. 8) had spoken glowingly of the future. But those daring promises remained after sixty or seventy years unfulfilled. The people were growing skeptical. And when the prophet proclaimed God's love, they replied, "Wherein hast thou loved us?"

We will have to admit here that Malachi's answer is disappointing. He does not have the insight of Hosea, or of Isaiah. His proof of God's love for Israel (the descendants of Jacob) is His hatred of Edom (the descendants of Esau), the neighbors of the Jews to the South, and through history their bitterest enemies. His proof that God hates Esau is that Edom's mountainous land has been recently desolated, apparently by an Arab invasion from the South, and he declares that the land will remain desolated. In other words Israel may think that God does not love them, but they certainly have been blessed in comparison with Edom.

Let us stop here for a moment. The religion of any people is fatally impaired when they begin to doubt God's love. Do people doubt that love today? On what grounds could it be doubted? Are those grounds valid? What are the great evidences that we have of God's love?

2. The Profaning of the Altar. 1:6-2:9. The first great trouble that Malachi finds with the religious life of the Jews is that they question God's love. The second is that they despise His worship. "A son honor-eth his father, and a servant his master," but the leaders of Israel's religious life have despised His holy name.

Now it is important to note that this is a charge that the priests do not admit. They say, "Wherein have we despised thy name?" Malachi proceeds to specify.

1st: They say the table of Jehovah, i. e., the altar, is contemptible. This they said we can be sure not in words but in their hearts. It was evidenced by the irreverence of their conduct.

2nd: They offered unworthy offerings. There was a law in Dt. 17:1 against offering blemished animals on the altar. The priests coolly disregarded this law by offering animals that were blind, lame, or sick (vs. 8), which they would not have dared to offer to the Persian governor of Judah (vs. 8). And yet they said, it is no evil, i. e., there is no harm in it. The appeal to the priests—such priests—to entreat the favor of God in vs. 9 is ironical rather than a call to repentance. If this is the sort of sacrifice you offer can you expect God to look upon you with favor? Better close the Temple doors and extinguish the altar fires, which are but kindled in vain, than have the worship conducted by such low-minded, half-hearted ministers (vs. 10). The great God of hosts can accept no offering at the hands of men like these. As Dr. McFadyen points out in this connection: "Sincerity in public worship meant much to Malachi. He virtually says, Give God the best you have or bring the worship to an end and get out of his service altogether." Then follows one of the greatest verses in Malachi (11), a verse whose meaning is obscured because both A. V. and R. V. translate it as a future when in reality it should be a present. He does not say that God's name will be great among the Gentiles, he says, it is great. In other words Malachi suggests that sincere worship, wheresoever and by whomsoever offered, is in reality offered unto God, and is acceptable unto him. He suggests that the sincere worship of the heathen is more acceptable to Him than the insincere worship of the Jew.

3rd. They are wearied with the worship of Jehovah. What a bore, they say. And the laymen who brought these blemished offerings, offerings in addition that were the fruits of violence and trickery, were as guilty as the priests. They too shall know the curse rather than the blessing of God. Vs. 13, 14.

In 2:1-9 Malachi proceeds to announce God's doom upon the unworthy clergy. It will fall upon them because of their careless and contemptuous conduct of the worship (1:6-13) and for not giving glory to God's name (1:2). Over against their failure he sets a beautiful description of the ideal minister (vs. 5-7). To this noble ideal, however, the priests of Malachi's time had provided utterly recreant (vs. 9, 10). They themselves had turned out of the way and had caused many of the people to stumble. As a result the people now utterly despised them. As McFadyen remarks here: "Noblesse oblige, and in the long run a trustful people will despise the clergy who fall too pitifully below their ideal."

Do these words of Malachi have an application to our present day? Why do you think so? When we speak of those who despise God's house we are apt to think of those who never attend its worship. But Malachi is speaking of those who take part in the worship, especially those who lead in the worship. Is it possible for those who take part in the worship today to profane that worship? Do men today ever offer blemished offerings? Are men today ever wearied with the worship of God? What does it indicate? What kind of worship is really acceptable to God, helpful to man?

3. The Profaning of the Home. 2:10-16. This paragraph is a little obscure, and it is difficult to explain it in the little space we have at our disposal. It is plain, however, that Malachi is condemning two related evils, divorce, and remarriage with the heathen. As McFadyen puts it: "They had profaned the covenant and the holiness of Jehovah by marrying foreign women. Each of these women as the daughter of a strange god (vs. 11, just as the Israelites were sons of Jehovah, vs. 10) was a menace to the holiness, the distinctive religious and ethical quality of the Hebrew faith. There were probably wealthy women of the neighboring people, e. g., Philistia, Moab, Ammon; but they would bring their alien religion into the Hebrew home, with the result that the Hebrew faith would be contaminated and Hebrew distinctiveness obliterated. Worse still these marriages with foreign women had led to the divorce of native Hebrew women. Therein lay the climax of the treachery, that the wife of thy covenant, i. e., pledged to thee in a marriage contract which has been solemnly witnessed before and by Jehovah himself should be repudiated in favor of an alien—the wife of thy youth too, the faithful companion of many years, discarded when she is old . . ." and this too in spite of the fact that God's ideal is that they should be one. The paragraph comes to a climax in 2:16. "I hate putting away," i. e., divorce.

Does this paragraph have any message for our day? Divorce certainly is becoming more prevalent, more prevalent in America than in any other Christian country. Does God still hate divorce? Why? How can divorce be prevented? Consider in this connection the fact brought out by Dr. Fiske of Oberlin College at Montreal this summer that extensive investigations indicate that whereas the general ratio of divorce to marriage is 1 to 7, the ratio of marriage and divorce among Christian families was one divorce to 117 marriages. Was Malachi right in condemning marriages with the heathen? Should our people today take religion into account as they marriage? Why?

4. The Doubting of God's Justice 2:17. A declaration that something was radically wrong with Israel's religion is found in the fact that they were beginning to question and to doubt the justice of God. It seemed to them as they looked at the world that God actually favored and the wicked. Where is the God of justice then? The other defects in Israel's religious life were serious enough, but it is this questioning of justice that leads Malachi most particularly on to the coming of God's Messenger and vindication of the Divine honor. We have

II. The Coming of God's Messenger

Two things Malachi tells us about this messenger: 1st. as the forerunner of the Lord he will prepare the people for judgment; 2nd, as the forerunner of Elijah he will invite the people to repentance.

1. As the forerunner of the Lord he will prepare the people for judgment 3:1-6. The people were to be where is the God of justice? Malachi points out that in due time God would send his messenger to prepare the way for His coming, and messenger would be followed by the Lord. When he came, however, only the purest would be able to stand his searching test, for he would cleanse in a purifying judgment, like which separates the base metal from the true.

This judgment Malachi declared would fall upon the priests, as the most highly privileged, most responsible and the most guilty. Their judgment had done its work upon them. Their offering would be accepted as in the day of vs. 3-4.

But it would also fall upon the people as well. Their crimes we note are summarized as adultery, perjury, exploitation of the poor, and fenceless. Do we still have these crimes? Do they manifest themselves today? Malachi traces all back to a single cause—it is because they have feared Jehovah. Is this true today?

Here then is the first part of Malachi's message. That justice is not dispensed in all of its fullness—but it will be dispensed later. The messenger come as he had predicted (cf Mt. 11:10). A messenger followed by the Lord Jesus Christ. We did not expect immediate judgment, as Malachi and John the Baptist seem to have expected, but he lived such a life that all men are judged by their attitude toward him. He warned men that the final vindication of justice would certainly come.

2. As the successor of Elijah he will call the people to repentance. 3:7-4:6. The fact that God would judge them led Malachi to stress the necessity of repentance. If Israel will return unto Jehovah (vs. 7), Jehovah would return unto them.

Evidently the people challenged him to show wherein they needed to repent. They said, shall we return? Malachi proceeded to point out very definite respect wherein they needed to return unto God. They were in effect robbing God by refusing or failing to pay the tithes demanded by law. Cf. Dt. 14:22-27; Levit. 27:30-32. This had brought a curse in the form of drought and devouring locust (vs. 11); let them return to God (vs. 7) and show their penitence by paying tithes and Jehovah would in return send his blessing and abundance from heaven (v. 10). Their tithes would be so conspicuous that they would be known of all nations (vs. 12). Does this promise seem to you? Some Bible students think so; others doubt it. But there may be other reasons for their doubt. Are there?

The Jews in Malachi's day were hard to convince. They said there was no profit in serving God. They were thinking of course of material profit. Those who prospered in their day seemed to be those who didn't bother about the divine standard. Is it any different today? Does religion pay? Does it give material dividends? Is that the test of its value?

Malachi comforted the men of his day by telling them that they were not forgotten; a book of remembrance was being written, i. e., a book in which their names were recorded, and which would be in the mind of Jehovah (v. 16). In the day of judgment they would not only be spared, but they would be specially dear (v. 17); and they would see the vindication of their names. The difference between the righteous and the wicked is infinite—for the wicked, a fire would burn up the root and branch (4:1), while upon the righteous the sun would arise in whose light they would be healed, and from whose wings, i. e., rays, would be healing for wounded hearts and minds (vs. 2). In their joy they would frisk like calves. Part of that joy would be to trample the wicked under the soles of their feet. (vs. 3). Dr. McFadyen adds here: This ugly vindictive treatment

(Continued on page 11)

CHILDREN

SPEED-BOAT RACE

the driver of the speed-
New York" to a boy who on the boathouse pier work. "My mechanic is ride with me in this something about speed
like to have you come

Mr. Burns. Wait until I boathouse and put on

up the runway toward his heart beat high in coming excitement. He ched these power boats
r to the finish; and while g just to stand on the watch them, how much it would be to ride in

returned, dressed in the that speed-boat drivers
his heart beat higher yet;
New York was purring imstructed Mr. Burns. "On-utes left before we are starter's boat, and this m yet."

ued the driver, as they out the sideline traffic pen fairway. "Miss New thing new in speed-boat notice that the engines
us instead of in front,
the boat will ride higher most of the entries in tom anxious to have her many people do not bea boat built this way show them that it is a nent over the old idea."
his head to show that Then he turned toward
t and listened to the
the three high-powered ed to detect any sound dicate the coming of everything was perfect.
the timing devices, and operating without a

up like a symphony or-id to the driver.

over everything pretty morning. I'm proud of running. Hello! There We're off, Joe! Keep the cooling system, and we making the turns."

like that of a mighty
New York leapt up and took the lead from the
the promptness of her
at racing is a serious an can drive a boat at miles an hour through chat easily with his e same time. Nor can perate three one-thou-vr engines and take time enery. Both driver and el to their racing and to nd their motto is to straight-away with ev-ppen, and to take the nd as close as possible in over.

ce suddenly and do ter-log of wood floating in e of these racing dee is complete disaster.
er obstacle than a log hing so small, perhaps,
te seen.

first curve nicely, then he third, and each time straightened out, the
the engines told him
was still anxious to me in first. But sud-Miss New York shudder had struck something.
asted for only a mo-
speed-boat slowed
an half its full speed.
d slightly as she lost

oel ny it

RIGHT OR LEFT?

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color).

YELLOW-haired Susie May is trying to choose. BROWN-haired Teddy has asked her to choose "right or left"
and he has two apples in his hands.
The right-hand apple is RED and the left GREEN—but of course Susie May doesn't know that.

Susie May wears a light PURPLE dress with YELLOW sash. Her socks are YELLOW, too.

Teddy wears a light-BLUE blouse and white collar. His trousers are dark-BLUE. He has a BROWN belt.

The grass is GREEN with YEL-LOW flowers here and there and the trees have light-BROWN trunks with GREEN leaves above. The little playhouse is GREEN with a dark-BROWN roof. It has white curtains with PINK (use RED lightly) ruffles in the windows.

The sky is BUE and the path to the house BROWN.

Both children have PINK cheeks and RED lips. The border of this picture can be colored YELLOW and the lettering GREEN.

shouted Joe, a moment later. "And there is a hole in the bottom of the boat as big as my first. We're sinking!"

"We won't sink," replied the driver,
"because we've got two automatic bail-ers and they'll take care of enough of the water to prevent us from going to the bottom. But we've lost the race.
There isn't a chance of winning it at the speed we're going now."

Joe looked down into the hull of Miss New York and saw the water pouring in through the hole. He looked up again to see another boat, the Miss Maryland, tear past to take the lead.
Then he examined the leak again and as a result of what he saw and thought,
he shouted to the driver:

"Speed her up, Mr. Burns. I want to see what happens."

In response to Joe's request, Mr.
Burns opened the throttle and sent
Miss New York leaping ahead again.
As she did so, like all speed-boats, she lifted her bow out of the water.

"A little more," shouted Joe.
"Can't do it," returned Mr. Burns.
"Come back here, Joe."

Joe returned to the cockpit.

"The faster I go," explained Mr.
Burns. "The more water will come in through that hole. The automatic bailers will take care of some of it, but the rest will soon fill up the boat and sink us. I've got to run the Miss New York slowly enough so that the water coming in will be just about equal to the amount that the bailers can throw out. No use trying to win the race. We may as well make for the pier."

"Mr. Burns," replied Joe, speaking rapidly. "The faster this boat goes, the higher she puts her nose in the air.

Isn't that so?"

"Yes."

"Well, that hole is almost above the water right now. If you can give Miss New York a little more speed, it will be above the water and we'll be all right. Try it, anyway, Mr. Burns. I can help by riding as far back aft as possible."

For a moment the driver was silent.
He knew that Joe's suggestion was sound, but he was considering the chances of being able to win the race even if he followed the advice. Then he made the decision:

"I'm going to try it, Joe! I believe we can still come in first!"

The increased roar of the engines told the young mechanic that the driver had acted as he spoke, and in a moment both he and Mr. Burns had the satisfaction of seeing the stream of water from the bailer outlet reduce itself to a mere trickle. People watching from the shore shouted encouragingly as Miss New York lunged ahead again at full speed, for with Miss Maryland almost a full lap in the lead and other boats strung out at various distances ahead of Miss New York, they knew that the battle to regain first place would be a difficult one.
They held their breath as Burns took the next turn, for he came within an inch of capsizing. They were further surprised to see the speed he made on the straight-away—and when on the home stretch, he overtook and passed Miss Maryland, their excitement could not be controlled.

It had been the greatest speed-boat race they had ever seen, and not one of them doubted now but that Mr.

Burns' idea of having the motor in back of the driver's seat was the best.

"I didn't win the race," laughed the driver, happily, as the judges were presented him with the trophy. "It was won by my young mechanic, Joseph Ward, who used his head to such good purpose that a hole in the bottom of the boat big enough to sink an ocean liner didn't even wet our floor boards."

Then Mr. Burns told the story of the leak and of Joe's suggestion—and it was decided to engrave Joe's name on the trophy along with the name of the boat. That pleased Joe a lot, but what pleased him most was when Mr.
Burns drew him aside after the ceremonies were over and said: "Will you be my mechanic in the Big Cup Races
next week?"

I leave it to you to guess what Joe said.

Diamond

- My first is in Holland.
- My second when combined with relief means low.
- My third is a section in a sleeping car.
- My fourth is gathered in the Fall.
- My fifth propels engines.
- My sixth is His Satanic Majesty (abbr.)
- My seventh is in Turkey.

CHURCH NEWS

"THE BEST I KNOW"

That is what a friend in South Carolina who occupies a prominent pulpit said about one feature of the Standard, and he wants his friends to enjoy the paper with him. He writes:

"I would be glad if you would send sample copies of your excellent paper to the following: Messrs. J. S. B. and J. B. P., and Maj. W. W. B. These three gentlemen are Bible class teachers and the lesson expositions would particularly appeal to them. Major B. is a Baptist and recently asked me about a good 'help,' when I told him that your paper had the best I knew.

With every good wish for your success.

J. W. J.

PERSONAL

Rev. W. H. Matheson, pastor of the Thomasboro Church, Charlotte, N. C., has been called to a group of churches in Nashville Presbytery consisting of Woodbury, Cripple Creek, Milton and Stone's River.

A CORRECTION ABOUT MRS. DEMAREST

We have received the following communication from the Demarest Evangelistic Campaigns, of Norfolk, Va.: Presbyterian Standard, Gentlemen:

In the issue of the Presbyterian Standard of August 28, there appears a beautiful report of the lecture on "The Virgin Mary" given in Montreat by Mrs. Victoria Booth-Clibborn Demarest. There is also a reference to Mrs. Demarest in the article "The Bible Conference Comes to a Close."

I am sure your paper will gladly make a correction of a few statements regarding Mrs. Demarest. In the last mentioned article it was said that Mrs. Demarest was a leader in the Salvation Army. This is a mistake. Mrs. Demarest's mother, Catherine Booth-Clibborn, known as "La Marechale of France," established that great institution on the Continent of Europe, but both her mother and father, Arthur Sydney Booth-Clibborn, formerly a Quaker minister, severed their connection with that organization when Mrs. Demarest was a child and entered the work of general evangelism. Mrs. Demarest is a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Norfolk, Va., and has for years devoted herself to lecturing, preaching and evangelism in churches of all denominations. The costume worn by Mrs. Demarest when delivering her lecture at Montreat was an individual one and not, as was believed, that of the Salvation Army. Again, Mrs. Demarest is not the great-granddaughter of Gen. William Booth, but his granddaughter, her mother being his eldest daughter. Mrs. Demarest is a niece of the recently deceased Gen. Bramwell Booth and of Commander Evangeline Booth of the American Salvation Army.

Those of your readers in Montreat who were interested in Mrs. Demarest and her work during her visit there will appreciate this explanation, especially as there sometimes is confusion in the public mind regarding members of the Booth family.

Yours sincerely and gratefully,

Agnew Demarest.

NORTH CAROLINA

Mooreville—Our Church calendar for September 1 had the following notice: Rev. Dr. R. D. Daffin, for 24 years a missionary in Brazil, is with us today. He has been supported by this church throughout the whole of this period. No church has ever had a more faithful missionary and we feel honored to have had him as our representative. Today he comes back to us under orders from his physicians not to return to the work he loves and to which he has given these years of hard but cheerful labor. He leaves the work in a most flourishing condition and with pangs of regret that he alone knows. Most reluctantly we sever this connection with this congregation which has existed so pleasantly all this time. To him and his faithful wife and children we today extend most cordial greetings, with the hope that while this terminates these happy relations it does not mean the end of their visits to us nor the breaking of the ties of friendship that have bound us together. Our prayer is that God may have many more years of fruitful service for them in the home land.

Cook's Memorial—During the week of August 18-25, Dr. George F. Robertson, of Mt. Holly, N. C., was with this congregation for a series of revival services. This was the second time this congregation has had the privilege of having Doctor Robertson for such a series. Doctor Robertson preached the gospel in the same effective way that he did when with us seven years ago. There were eleven professions of faith in Christ, and eight of these joined our own Church.

Rockfish—This historic old church, in Wilmington Presbytery, enjoyed a series of evangelistic services from July 28 through August 4. The preaching was by Rev. A. V. Gibson, pastor of Westminster Church, Whiteville, N. C. Mr. Gibson was a comparative stranger to the congregation when he came, but with his easy manner and mingling with the people in their homes they soon learned to know him. The attendance was good at both the morning and evening services. The gospel messages, which were presented with clearness and force, were heard with attention and interest. The congregation was pleased with the preacher and his preaching. There were two additions to the membership of the church, by letter.

Charlotte—The Second Church—The Spencer Woman's Bible Class, H. J. Spencer teacher, held a shower for Mission Court, Richmond, on Tuesday evening, and invited Philips-Fidelis Class of young ladies, taught by J. T. Porter. The gifts were made especially for the kitchen of the apartment for which North Carolina women are responsible.

The Men's Club will not resume their monthly suppers until October.

Charlotte—Tenth Avenue—Rev. W. T. Smith, of Cornelius and Bethel churches of Mecklenburg Presbytery will fill the pulpit of this church next Sunday. This church is planning evangelistic services early in October lasting two weeks.

Charlotte—Westminster—Rev. W. L. Lingle, D.D., new president of Davidson College will preach here next Sunday.

NORTH CAROLINA

Elmwood—The two churches in the village agreed this summer to have a union revival which was a decided success.

Dr. E. D. Brown, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, did the preaching, and the services were held in the Methodist Church. The Methodist minister, Rev. R. L. Young, assisted in every way possible. The services lasted for a period of 10 days. The community experienced a great blessing under the preaching of Dr. Brown. His messages were so scriptural, so earnest, so sincere, that they made a deep impression on all who heard them. He used the kind of logic that appealed to both conscience and intellect.

Good congregations were in attendance at each service, in spite of heavy rains which fell several evenings just about time for service. Mr. Harvey Freeland was song leader. Miss Grace Allen was pianist.

As visible results of the meeting there were few conversions, but the greatest result was in the church members themselves. A goodly number re-consecrated themselves for better service to God and their church. They were awakened to a fuller sense of their responsibility in the advancement of His kingdom, and we expect blessings to continue to flow as a result of these services.

Mrs. W. C. Pou.

Elmwood, N. C.

Norwood—Rev. J. Blanton Belk, D.D., of Huntington, W. Va., son of a former pastor of this church, was with us in an eight-day meeting ending September 1.

Dr. Belk preached splendid evangelistic sermons to congregations that filled the church. The weather was ideal and the music attractive. There were eight professions of faith. Six boys from the Sabbath School united with the church, three were baptized.

Presbyterian Orphans' Home, Barium Springs—School opened August 22nd with a full enrollment. Three new members have been added to the faculty. Many new faces in the various grades.

The young people's work has been organized for the winter and everything points to a very active year's work. Some 25 or 30 boys and girls have been promoted from the primary department to the junior department in Sunday School.

We are thankful for the renewed strength of our beloved pastor, Rev. W. C. Brown. He seems to be gaining ground these days, and we hope with the return of cool weather that he will be himself again.

Olney Church, Gastonia—Rev. T. G. Tate, pastor. The fourth annual Daily Vacation Bible School closed Friday, August 16 with appropriate exercises. Ninety-five children were enrolled, with seventy-five perfect in attendance. A fine corps of teachers, all from the local Church had charge with the pastor as director of handwork and recreation for the Junior and Intermediate boys. Mrs. C. P. Robinson was superintendent of the school.

Our local Men-of-the-Church was represented at the Montreat Men's Conference by Mr. J. M. Smith, who came back full of enthusiasm over the men's program. Our men are organized on the Assembly's plan and put on regular monthly meetings. Dr. T. H. McDill, pastor of First A. R. P. Church, of Gastonia, spoke to the men at the last meeting, which was in August.

The pastor and his wife spent a week of their vacation at Montreat during the Bible Conference.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Chester—Purity Church. Mr. Jack Johnston, a young man who grew up in this church, who is under appointment for mission to Brazil, will speak in this church next Sunday. Mrs. Johnston will sail on September 20, for Patrocinia Oeste Minas, Brazil.

The Auxiliary of this church is preparing a canvass of the congregation in the interest of a missionary survey.

The Synod of South Carolina will meet at Church, Anderson, S. C., Tuesday, September 2, 1929, at 8 p. m.

H. Waddell Pratt.

Lowry's—Revival services at Mt. Pleasant. Rev. W. D. Ratchford, the pastor, preached evening, August 25th. Dr. Harrison, of Ft. York, came Monday morning and preached day, morning and evening through the week. Dr. Harrison preaches the plain and pure gospel of Christ. His preaching is so plain any child can understand him. He certainly has gained a great following with the Mt. Pleasant people and they want to have him come back and preach to them. The results of the meeting the members were up in faith and made stronger for the Master.

Four young people united on profession of faith and four on statement.

In June 18 members of the church stood up and repeated the Ten Commandments. The pastor finished the pastor stated that they had one word in repeating the entire Ten Commandments. On the next Sabbath seven repeated the Creed without missing a word.

We are planning to have Children's Day October 6th.

Thornwell Orphanage, Clinton—Vacation workers and children closed August 19. Many workers were away for a shorter or longer period. Many of the children were invited for vacation.

The schools opened on August 28, with a large number of capable, consecrated teachers.

With special funds provided, improvements were made on the Georgia and Florida C. barn burned more than a year ago, has been replaced. A new silo has been erected.

The church activities for the fall began with a series of services, by Rev. E. D. Viser, of Ft. Fla. Mr. Viser spoke twice daily; at the close of breakfast, and at the Orphanage 7:30 in the evening. His messages were very helpful to workers and children.

L. Ross.

The Presbytery of South Carolina met at Springs, Laurens, at 3:30 p. m., October 1, 1929.

H. Waddell Pratt.

GEORGIA

Savannah Presbytery will meet in Mt. Vernon on November 12, 1929 at 8 p. m.

A. L. Patterson.

APPALACHIA

White Oak—This church has been open about two years and has but 16 members. Age attendance at services is about 40. There were 11 men in the adult Bible class.

Hazelwood—During the absence of the pastor church building and manse were newly organized. The men of the church had a meeting on supper together and talked over certain things in the near future. One was to begin a meeting as soon as arrangements can be made. Sunday School has improved its work and is attempting to have a standard program. We now have a weekly church service which is a great help in our work. We covet the Synod that we may grow in numerical strength and in favor with our Lord.

Mountain Orphanage, Swannanoa—are becoming more interested in school. They attend the State School. Thus, we save of having our own school, which enables us to clothe and educate more children. Our good grades at school last year and a full share of honors.

The Vacation Church School closed a very successful term. This school, under the supervision of Miss Mary Curran, of Swannanoa, S. C., and Miss Blanche Penland of Swannanoa was the first of its kind held here. Everyone was enthusiastic over the results. Mr. Gruber, of Swannanoa, was church school for each summer. Forty certificates given by the teachers at the Vacation School, for faithful work. There were three honor pupils, Edith

Meetings of Synods

Table with columns: Place of Meeting, Time, Stated Clerk. Lists meetings for various churches like Trinity church, Arkadelphia, Ocala, etc.

Table with columns: Church Name, Location, Time, Stated Clerk. Lists meetings for Synod of Missouri, North Carolina, and Oklahoma.

Time and Place of Meetings of Presbyteries

Table for Synod of Alabama with columns: Place of Meeting, Time, Stated Clerk. Lists meetings for Fairfield, Woods ch., etc.

Table for Synod of Oklahoma with columns: Church Name, Location, Time, Stated Clerk. Lists meetings for Durant, Indian, Mangum, etc.

Table for Synod of Appalachia with columns: Church Name, Location, Time, Stated Clerk. Lists meetings for Glade Springs ch., Swannanoa church, etc.

Table for Synod of Sneed Memorial (Colored) with columns: Church Name, Location, Time, Stated Clerk. Lists meetings for Central Alabama, Louisiana, etc.

Table for Synod of Florida with columns: Church Name, Location, Time, Stated Clerk. Lists meetings for Marianna ch., Daytona Beach ch., etc.

Table for Synod of South Carolina with columns: Church Name, Location, Time, Stated Clerk. Lists meetings for Bethel, Charleston, Congaree, etc.

Table for Synod of Georgia with columns: Church Name, Location, Time, Stated Clerk. Lists meetings for Mt. Hermon ch., Crawfordsville church, etc.

Table for Synod of Tennessee with columns: Church Name, Location, Time, Stated Clerk. Lists meetings for Columbia, Memphis, Nashville, etc.

Table for Synod of Kentucky with columns: Church Name, Location, Time, Stated Clerk. Lists meetings for Highland school, Munfordville church, etc.

Table for Synod of Texas with columns: Church Name, Location, Time, Stated Clerk. Lists meetings for Brazos, Brownwood, Central Texas, etc.

Table for Synod of Louisiana with columns: Church Name, Location, Time, Stated Clerk. Lists meetings for Carrollton Church, Orleans, etc.

Table for Synod of Virginia with columns: Church Name, Location, Time, Stated Clerk. Lists meetings for East Hanover, Lexington, Montgomery, etc.

Table for Synod of Mississippi with columns: Church Name, Location, Time, Stated Clerk. Lists meetings for Forest Grove church, Camden, etc.

Table for Synod of West Virginia with columns: Church Name, Location, Time, Stated Clerk. Lists meetings for Bluestone, Greenbrier, Kanawha, etc.

A PLEA FOR UNION

Editor of Presbyterian Standard: The United Presbyterian Church is progressive. Its people, in general, regard Christianity as a present reality and as the great dynamic power that has and will raise mankind, especially those who accept, to higher and better things.

Life is queer with its twists and turns, As every one of us sometimes learns, And many a failure turns about When he might have won had he stuck it out;

Often the goal is nearer than It seems to a faint and faltering man, Often the struggler has given up When he might have captured the victor's cup;

"THE RESURRECTION AND THE LIFE"

Edgar Cooper Mason

Dead in the tomb our Lord was laid, Great the stone before it; Deep in the grave that sin had made— Gloom lay brooding o'er it!

Deep in the night a light was seen. At the turn of morning; Angel of God, with heavenly mien, Came, the great stone scorning;

Conqueror, He, of Death and Hell, Jesus Christ, our Saviour; Over the world His glory tell— Risen Lord and Saviour!

DON'T QUIT

"When things go wrong as they sometimes will, When the road you are trudging seems all up-hill, When the funds are low, and the debts are high, When you want to smile, but you have to sigh, Gillard, and Woodrow Walrop, who had very work for the entire term. The big merit badge on their certificates and the pictures rewarded delighted their hearts.

our superintendent, loaded a number of boys and girls into the big truck and drove over to Montreat for one of the most parties of the season. After a swim in Lake Montreat proceeded to Tree Top cottage, the summer home, for a supper long to be re-

VIRGINIA

tery of Roanoke will meet in Drakes Branch, October 1, 1929, 7:30 p. m. F. M. Allen, S. C.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

(Continued from page 8) the temper even of the later O. T. time how far men were still from the spirit closes with an exhortation to remember Moses, and a declaration that before that terrible day Elijah the prophet would come to the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the hearts of the children to their fathers. The margin suggests "with the children" and "fathers," i. e., all together shall be brought come as Malachi had prophesied (Cf. Mal. 9:11-13; Lk. 1:17). He came preaching the Gospel: Repent ye in the Gospel. Mt. 4:17. And Peter after Jesus had ascended up into the clouds, saith Jehovah," (Mal. 3:7)—Malachi's message is for all times, and needs in every age. In the light of this book, in the light of the religious life which it portrays, God's people need most to return unto

STORY

ALL US'S BABY

Annie Hamilton Donnell, in C. E. World

It was the minister's wife's turn at All Us's Baby, and she was giving him his bath with the attendant hilarity. The minister stood in the door, laughing. He loved the ruffledness of Mary's usually so-sleek hair and the whole-heartedness with which she "entered into" the hilarity. He loved his Mary, but he had plenty of love left over for All Us's Baby.

There were no children in the little sunny parsonage of Otis Mills, only little graves. It was those little tended green graves that had threaded this beloved Mary's sleek dark head with gray and pencilled her sweet face with the lines that hurt the minister. That gently contributed now to his contentment there in the door, watching Mary's good time. He did so delight in these "turns" of theirs when All Us's Baby came to them for a month. And correspondingly did so hate to have the gay month end. But cheer up; they were to have two months this time to cover Miss Humility Piller's "turn" as well as their own.

It was due to the children of Otis Mills that the small splasher over there in the ministerial tub was called All Us's Baby, really due to one particular child, Sammy Twiss, property of the grocery Twisses. Sammy with calm abandon had christened the tiny foundling left for all Otis Mills to adopt and to love. The name had clung as tightly as the baby's fumbling little hands had clung. But a little shortened.

The minister loved Sammy's name.

"Bixy, will you look at him washing himself? Look at how he soaps his darling knees!" There she went calling him Bixy again; some day she was going to get caught Bixy-ing before a parishioner. The Rev. John Bixby Clough had been trying for all the nine years of his pastorate to cure Mary of Bixy-ing; he did not know just why, but that odd little Mary-name didn't seem—seem religious. John, stodgy and proper, fitted a minister better. What with "Bixy" and "Us's Baby," the minister curled his lips whimsically.

"Bixy, isn't it too splendid Miss Humility fell—Wait! wait! I'm not through—fell down the cellar stairs, if she had to fall down-stairs, just as our Baby-Turn began? There, any objection to that way of putting it? Because now we can have him two blessed months, and you want to stay two blessed, don't you, Us's Baby, darlin' Bixy—"

"John," gently.

"Bixy," calmly "(for I refuse to John you in private), will you hand us that big wuzzy-fuzzy towell on the rack, please? The pink one, because pink is so becoming to his little dimples."

"But, Mary—"

"Polly."

"But, Polly," he could yield that point for the moment of more importance, "some day you will call me Bixy out of 'private.' Before the Ropersides, for instance, who look at things so seriously."

"If I ever forget and say it in public I hope it will be before the Sobersides—Ropersides, I mean." But she didn't mean, naughty Mary. "They need a little humanizing, and Bixy is a darlin' human name, even for a minister, and so there! Besides, Us's Baby is humanizing us all. Mrs. So—Ropersides said, 'Bother!' the other day. Just like that—to the minister's wife. They never had any children, and they needed an Us's Baby; I think we all needed him, dear," the soft voice softer still. The minister's wife snuggled the damp little bulk closer. Why is it that tiny naked body, damp from the bathtub, slippery, soft, dear, is pathetic and touching? Why do mothers catch it close and yearn over it? Just as a little child fallen asleep over his supper, in his high-chair, touches us—"poor little thing!" But why "poor" baby and "poor" little child?

Us's Baby was in no pathetic mood. He was having a joyous time; the noise of it filled the room. A kicking, crowing, hilarious Us's Baby.

"I feel like crowing, too. Bixy, you crow! You rascal, you, do you think I have ten hands? Do you want to land on your bald spot on the floor? No, I don't mean the minister; I mean you," as the slippery baby bounced perilously. The "bald spot" was Mary's little joke aimed at John, though the resemblance between bald spots was, at that, not convincing. The baby's covered his whole small head, while the minister's was (he fondly hoped) barely discernible. "The powder-puff, please, your Riverence,—now the little shirt there—Bixy! the doorbell, and the new handmaiden that slow-witted—Don't you think you'd better go down—No, too late; she's opened the door. Now, if she goes and lets a canvasser in!"

But it was not a canvasser. A moment later they found that out.

"O! O, I beg your pardon. But she said 'up-stairs,' and I thought she meant—O, but please don't stop a minute. If you would only let me just stand here and watch—" the sweet voice almost pleading. In the doorway stood a young woman. A stranger in Otis Mills. She hurried into explanations.

"I have rented the old Bell cottage. I just moved in. I thought if I could get acquainted with the minister and—his wife—O, I forgot; I am Alastair Scott. Its' a queer name, I know; but my mother gave it to me; so I love it; she loved it. May—may I watch?"

"Why, I never have received callers in my bathroom," answered Mary Clough with a laugh. "Bixy, get a chair, dear; of course you may watch. I don't wonder you want to; isn't he the darlin'est? He's Us's Baby, and speaking of queer names—" the pleasant gurgle of laughter again. "Otis Mills is his mother—composite mother. We all take our turns, and this is our turn. No, he is not a little orphan. Would you call a baby with eleven submothers an orphan?"

The minister went quietly away, and left the two women, the young and the always young, at their world-old worship of a laughing baby. He thought wisely to himself that the great Creator had shown divine insight when He decreed that the mysterious thing called life should begin with a tiny and most appealing creature of dimples and soft curves and the little face of His baby angels. All mothers—white, black, human, animal—knelt at the tiny creatures' feet. This strange young woman in there with Mary was a mother in spirit; the wise mother had seen her eyes as they looked at Us's Baby.

"If you've just come to the Mills, you will have to get used to our ways; not all little towns own a town baby. You see, some one left him on the church steps—"

"I know—I heard," interrupted the stranger gently. "A little boy told me about it; I think his name was Sammy.

Sammy something—"

"Twiss. Sammy Grocery Twiss, I call him, because there are the miller Twisses, too. Sammy will never get over the glory of naming the baby for us. I suppose sometime we shall have to name the little beloved a real name—John or William or Reginald or Clyde. If we do it by ballot, I'm perfectly sure Alicia Sobersides will vote for Reginald or Clyde."

"O, not Clyde!" cried out the caller. The minister's wife was too busy with powder and safety-pins to notice, but the minister would have heard the eager note in the exclamation. Are all ministers wise?

"My dear, not if I have to vote early and often. Will you take him one little minute now while I run down and warm his milk? I warn you, he is an armful. When he plays, he plays thoroughly, and you have to hold him tight—be a good Us's Baby while I'm gone."

So good an Us's Baby that the minister's wife, delayed a bit below-stairs, found him asleep in the caller's arms. The minister had passed the door and looked in, paused to look again.

"Why, the little tike! Without his milk! You must have waved a wand—but how could you with both hands full? I'll put him in his crib; did you ever hear of a baby before with eleven cribs?"

"Must you—I mean quite yet? You could pick up the room while I held him."

"It certainly needs picking up. I was going to wait for that till after you went. All right, I will straighten things out now; I do like to do it while the blessed little night-clothes are warm. You know, when the grocery Twisses have their turn with him, Sammy begs to pick up after the bath, his mother says; and he smells of the little taken-off things, and says, 'Oo, but ain't the baby smell nice, mother?' Sammy's a dear."

The call lasted but a short time after Us's Baby was deposited in his crib. But the ice of strangeness had been not only broken, but quite melted.

"Come again and hold Us's Baby for me," said Mary Clough. "He will be here two months; and, my dear, both of 'em have thirty-one days! I am glad July and August are that kind. Poor Miss Humility, turnless! I am going to take him over there very often in her month."

The caller turned on the lower ministerial step. "You said eleven mothers, eleven cribs; but there are twelve months in a year," she said.

"I know. Must have sounded funny. You see, one of the months moved away! We are going to meet and decide about that; there is a waiting-list! Really it should be Theodosia Grant's turn; but then again there's lonesome little Mrs. Tweeney, and the Crowell sisters are crazy for a turn! Come again, come again. That Bell place is in a lonely quarter; you must get out a lot to make up. Good-bye."

"Bixy, I like her. We so seldom have strangers come to Otis Mills that I am afraid we sha'n't know how to treat her. Did you see how she hated to put Us's

Baby down? You always s one that loves a baby must

They were at tea that nig Baby sat in one of his chairs, pounding happily with pewter mug that the minister ations of still earlier Cloughs with. Mary, the minister's raise her voice to be heard.

"Yes, I always 'said,'" and ter nodded; "and I do not. It's a good sign, isn't it, o taking the baby in.

"Well, I hope she will com There was something wistful Bixy."

"There was," he agreed. "Alastair is a funny name made her spell it. Well, if loved it and named me it, I w ogize for it any more than sh en or no heathen name. I w ogize for Seraphina or Clem any one dared to call me eit the laugh the minister loved s out. Us's Baby joined in.

She came again soon—r than the minister's wife e

A DOZEN different t cause a headache, just one thing you need get relief. Bayer Aspirin absolute antidote for Keep it at the office. Ha in the home. Those sub, quent or sudden headac carry Bayer Aspirin in tin. Until you have used aches, colds, neuralgia, noidea how Bayer Aspirin It means quick, complete millions of men and w use it every year. And depress the heart.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer of Monoaceticacidester of St

P·R·I·N·T·I·N·G

of every description

THE largest book or the smallest visiting card, we are equipped to serve you according to your needs.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD Publishing Company

P. O. Box 869 Charlotte, N. C.

QUALITY PRINTING & REASONABLE PRICE

The COLLEGIATE SCHOOL for GIRLS

ON HISTORIC MONUMENT AVENUE, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

THE SCHOOL: A day and boarding school under the control of the Presbyterian Churches of Richmond, Virginia. College Preparatory and General Courses. Bible Courses required.

THE CITY: Abounding in historical interest and cultural advantages. trips to points of interest. Fifteenth session opens September 19, 1929. For catalogue and information write:

MISS VAN GREENLEAF, Head of the School

QUEENS COLLEGE

"The College With the PLUS SIGN"

Sound literary training plus Christian influence. Faculty member characterized by thorough scholarship, and unquestionable Christian character.

RATES EXCEEDINGLY REASONABLE.

Ask for catalogue—enroll now—College opens Sept. 11.

WILLIAM H. FRAZER, D.D., Litt.D., President, Box 300, Charlotte, N. C.

out of breath as though she were dying. The boy and Mary under the wide-armed sycamore side yard. "Here we are!" welcomingly.

you heard that they have e—the Grocery Twisses? I out. Didn't you say they him next after you? I was aid—"

I did. Sit down here with er one is comfy. Measles, n it must be Sammy, poor der children had 'em our here at the Mills. Yes, their ct; how Sammy will hate to far as the minister's family aughed happily,—“we shall to have him another extra thought perhaps—I didn't —there, I am out of breath! ait and count ten.”

too hot a day to run.” run, I walked, perhaps a after I saw that 'Measles ee, I had a sudden idea. I e I might have the Grocery t. It was out now, and Ala- ank into the wicker rocker, Vaiting hurt.

—I'd love that, and so baby, I am sure; but don't have to do everything to- Mothers? Maybe we are a n't know, but anyway that's Where Us's Baby is con- tell you what; I'll call a ting!” Mary nodded bright- ot seem to want to look at aiting face. “For Saturday tell them you have volun-

! Not the right word. Alamed at the incompetence be what she had done. She e of the way; she remem-

ALDWIN COLLEGE
Courses lead to B. A. and s. Music, art, spoken Eng- education. Gymnasium and s. Modern equipment. In enandoah Valley. Founded Staunton, Virginia.

No Lance
Scientific Preparation RBUNCLES, BONE FELONS, s, and OLD SORES. Price 50c
CE CHEMICAL CO.
Brookland, S. C.

bered now. Ought she to own up at this late minute?

“I” tell 'em how you put him to sleep without his milk. You bewitched him, that's all! I couldn't do it; he would howl healthily. Why, the more I think of it, the nicer it sounds—for you to have him the Twiss month, I mean. I am sure they will all think so, too. You wait. And then I can go over to your house and give him his bath when I am too hungry to wait! You wouldn't deny a poor minister's wife? You could take our crib and high-chair. Bixy, Bixy!” calling to the minister as he came up whimsically.

She had done it—Bixied him in public. The minister's brows went up whimsical-ly. He strode across the lawn and stood before the guilty one. The raised brows of the minister's wife showed him that she knew he knew she had done it. But she persisted calmly in her misdoing.

“Bixy,” as he shook hands with the visitor, “Mrs. Scott would like to have a turn. They have the measles at the Grocery Twisses”; she saw the measles card up. Sammy. Their turn comes right after Miss Humility's, and we have Miss Humility's—I am going to phone round and call an advisory meeting for Saturday, Bixy. Advisory meetings are so all-important!”

“And you called me—?” He smiled down at her his ministerial smile that she adored. “Not apparently for—er—advice.”

“O my, no! Just to talk at, dear, nothing 'advisory!' I do love to talk and talk and talk, and you sit and bear it like a darlin' martyr. And you always can break in if I get crazy-going, you know.”

The advisory meeting of the mothers of Us's Baby duly met, and considered duly. It was perhaps a very little reluctantly, voted to give the stranger within the Mills gates a turn. The minister's wife pleaded for it. “Because,” she urged, “we must not be selfish, and becauser still, she wants him so. Her eyes—women dear, if you had seen her eyes!” and becauser still” they voted “yes,” to a woman dear. Their minister's wife seldom pleaded in vain.

Two months later the minister made a ministerial call at the little Bell cottage. As near to a ministerial call as he ever came, if breezing in and breezing out again might so be designated. There was no trace of solemnity to it, and many traces of friendly conversation, not un-mixed with kindly gossip and a flitch of current news and even politics. But no current news or politics, no friendliest of gossip, during this particular ministerial call. For the little person of the house was giving Us's Baby his bath in her reception-room, before her fire.

“Polly, my darling, you 'talked and talked' surely to the Lord's own end. No one seeking the little woman's eyes—”

“You say 'em, Bixy? Then you understand.” But the minister had understood long ago. “But tell me,” sternly, “did she do it right? The bath, I mean—did you feel and see if the water was the righth warmth and coolth?” “N-no, not that,” confessed the minister. “Did she air all his darlin' things enough? Did she just flur him all over, the dear, with powder? O, I should have gone with you”; but the minister knew better than that. That flushed and enthralled little woman person at the Bell cottage had wanted no other enthralled and earnest woman person there. The minister—yes, because he was the minister.

The regular advisory meeting occurred before the end of Alastair Scott's turn. The eleven “mothers” met at the minister's. After the business had been done there would be tea and small deliciouses by the name of vanities. But there was unusual business this time. Mary Clough presided, as was the custom.

“Women, dears, it's up to Us's Baby's mothers to settle a lot of things, and why not today? A name — John, Richard, Moses (he was left in our—our bulrushes) and—and, don't you see? his little future. What about after he gets over being Us's Baby, and grows up?” She waited, but no one was ready to respond as yet. She went on, “I don't suppose he will want to answer to, “Is your mother living?” with “Yes, all eleven of her!” A good laugh was a saver of meetings some-times. “So I've been thinking and think-ing and thinking; here's the result, and it is respectfully submitted. Not advised, submitted: An Us's Baby Fund, of course,—that is advised!— to bring him up on, till he earns his own blessed living. And the referring of who's who for a permanent mother to some wise and altogether —er—reliable Man person— no, no, wait! Not at all necessarily the minister man. I was thinking of Mr. Grocery Twiss or Judge Twombly—some one not a woman. We couldn't be trusted! I should choose myself, and you—” But it was never left to them to choose. Some one had entered the room and stood before them. Some one holding a baby tightly—a flushed and trembling some one.

“I—had to come. Forgive me. There's something I must tell—” She held the sleeping baby toward them. “He is mine! My flesh, my blood—I thought I could bear it, but I can't! I held his little naked body against my heart, and knew I could not bear it. So I came.”

Utter stillness in the pleasant room, except for the gentle welcoming gesture of the minister's wife. “Sit down, dear.” She took Us's Baby into her own arms, so trembling were those other arms.

“No, no, let me stand. Unless—unless I kneel down—I want to tell it all. I left him on the church steps because I saw the faces of you going in, you all. I knew I could trust him to those faces—you see, I was going to die. I had heard the doctor say it at the Charity Hospital; ‘She'll never pull through,’ he said. But I pulled through! I could not let him be farmed out to—to anybody. Flesh of my flesh—oh, I loved him! I lived two weeks, anyway,” she attempted a pitiful laugh, “and then he and I ran away. To—here, though I did not know it was here. I saw you all going into the church. I was almost dead, I thought; then. It was just a matter of getting away somewhere and dropping down in peace—I was so very tired. But your dear faces had made me happier.

“I suppose I came to a train just starting somewhere; I cannot remember. But putting the pieces together that is all I can make of it. And they must have taken me off and sent me to another hospital. I came to life three weeks after.

Months after I was discharged cured. Alone—no little baby. No anybody, for by a kind providence—God will forgive me for putting it like that—by a kind providence the terrible man I had married so innocently and fled from in such terror had been killed in a drunken fight. Was I wicked to thank God?” Now she sat down beside the minister's wife, her story told. Yet not quite; she got up again and faced them.

“I found I had some money—his insurance money. So I could go to find my baby—and I found him here. All of you loving him, all of you his mothers. But oh, he is mine! Mine!” Her hands went out for him, awake now and crowing in the arms of the minister's wife. She caught him to her tightly. And there a lovely miracle seemed to take place before their eyes. For it seemed to them that Us's Baby had got home. No one could have explained the impression; as Mary, the minister's wife, said afterward, it just seemed. And certain it was that the curious impression relieved the tautness of the moment.

The minister, too, relieved it. He had come in without being noticed and now stood behind the mother and little found son. He did not say, “Let us pray;” but his wife, Mary, saw it in his face. She saw the prayer in his soul.

But to them, the disinherited mothers, sitting there, he only smiled his whimsical smile. Curiously it seemed to settle things, so that there need be no words. No need, perhaps, but the minister's wife was the minister's wife; she sprang up and said eager words to them.

“I shall go over there and demand to be allowed to give him his bath! It's a hint to all o' you! We've got to be let down easy!” And, although she laughed, the tears were streaming down her cheeks. Down many cheeks, but not down Us's Baby's; he beamed eternal fealty to all his mothers.

“Bixy,” that night at tea, Mary's elbows on the table and chin in palm, “Bixy, queer that none of us ever suspected, isn't it? Especially when we saw her eyes—”

“Queer world, Polly,” and the minister smiled his gentle ministerial smile. But the minister had “suspected” all along, for the minister was very wise.

DON'T DRIFT ---- PLAN

Are you drifting along?
Have you made plans for the future?
Don't you think you should?
Don't you want to be successful in business?
Then write us!

DRAUGHON'S BUSINESS COLLEGE
1218 SUMTER ST. COLUMBIA, S. C.

HARRIS FRESH WATER SYSTEMS

Private water supply systems for suburban and farm homes, schools, hotels, churches, clubs, filling stations, industrial plants. Fresh cool water under pressure. No frozen pumps or tanks. No greasy machinery about the well. Automatic electric or engine drive. Durable, dependable and economically operated. Thousands in use for years. Write for literature.
HARRIS PUMP MFG. CO. Greenville, S. C.

STANDARD FOR 50 YEARS
WINTERSMITH'S CHILL TONIC

For over 50 years it has been the household remedy for all forms of

Malaria Chills and Fever Dengue

It is a Reliable, General Invigorating Tonic.

Summer VACATION TRIPS
Rail and Motor Tours
In the Southern Appalachian Mountains

In especially arranged rail and motor tours, the Southern Railway provides a new vacation recreation, combining rail and motor transportation for the individual and for parties, into the mountain sections of Virginia, North Carolina, Eastern Tennessee and North Georgia.

These tours will take you adventuring by rail and motor into regions of scenic beauty and historic interest. Each trip begins and ends with a railway journey, in which you enjoy the speed and comfort of rail travel. The motor trips are over established State highways.

For booklets, information and rates, call on Ticket Agents.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE
DECATUR, GA.

Strict entrance requirements, but few failures after admission. Somewhat expensive, but cheap in comparison with advantages offered. No loafers accepted, but also none without capacity to enjoy almost unlimited good times. For details as to admission, scholarship aid, etc address
PRESIDENT J. R. McCAIN
Box 5

Junior Cross-Word Puzzle

- Horizontal
 1—Drinking glass
 8—Boy's name
 9—Conjunction
 10—Prince Edward Island (abbr.)
 11—Head covering
 14—S. W. State (abbr.)
 16—Self
 17—A woman devoted to religious life.
 18—Regrets.
- Vertical
 1—Tutor
 2—A receptacle for keeping coffee hot
 3—Angry
 4—Edge
 5—Before
 6—Dried grapes
 12—To grow old
 13—Boy's toy
 14—Girl's name
 15—Sunken wheel track

State Chops

- Use the last three letters of a tree for the first of one of the United States.
- Use the last three letters of calm for the first of one of the United States.
- Use the last three letters of the coast for the first of one of the United States.
- Use the last three letters of frequently for the first of one of the United States.

PUZZLE ANSWERS

DIAMOND
 H
 B A S
 B E R T H
 H A R V E S T
 S T E A M
 H S M
 T

STATE CHOPS — 1. ASPEN — PENNSYLVANIA. 2. STILL — ILLINOIS. 3. SHORE — OREGON. 4. OFTEN — TENNESSEE.

The Bristol-Nelson School

For mentally defective children. Open throughout the year—limited to 25 pupils. Girls of all ages. No boys over 12 years of age. Scientific training. Ideal home life. Large lawns and playgrounds—5 assistants. Prices range from $900 to $1,800 per year. For illustrated catalog—Address
MRS. CORA BRISTOL-NELSON
 Murfreesboro, Tenn.

Banish Mosquitoes Easier! Quicker!

Flit is the new, easier, quicker way to rid your rooms of mosquitoes—for comfort and health. The handy Flit sprayer floats a vapor that does not fall in drops, from which no mosquitoes escape! All die—or money back. More for your money in the quart size.

"The yellow can with the black band"

FLIT

© 1929 Stanco Inc.

We have gotten nowadays so that we divide lies into white lies and black lies, society lies and business lies and so on. The Word of God knows no such letting down of the standard. A lie is a lie no matter what are the circumstances under which it is uttered. There is a proverb: "A lie has no legs." It requires other legs to support it and so on. Tell one lie and you are forced to tell others to back it up. May God help us to conform to His standard in all things. As the disciples said, "We must obey God rather than man."

Great souls prove their greatness by making opportunities where others only have compliments. True power will turn the most formidable difficulties into an occasion of victory, and take the boldest adversary prisoner and make him fight in our own ranks.—A. B. Simpson.

Since perfection of life is the Christian's goal, he must lose no time in running the race.

TWO WAYS TO BE SURE

Discriminating buyers of monuments, desirous of securing the most permanent, beautiful and perfect stone, specify Winnsboro Granite in their purchase contracts, which affords a granite of greatest crushing strength; freest from water, lime and iron, which are deleterious, and in time tend to disfigure the monument; and which affords a stone of an even and beautiful crystalline structure.

The buyer may be absolutely sure of getting the real Winnsboro Granite if he insists upon the dealer delivering a certificate from the management of Winnsboro Granite Corporation, to the stock used being Winnsboro Granite; but to make assurance double sure the purchaser may test the monument by throwing water upon it. If there are then apparent any black or white streaks, black or white splotches of size, or if there is any wave in the grain, some mistake has been made, and the monument is not of Winnsboro Granite.

Mistakes are always possible, as there is quarried from the Winnsboro quarries a second grade stone, known as "Smith stock"; also as there is quarried from many other quarries stones not so good, but resembling Winnsboro Granite.

The water test made three times at the plant before shipment assures first grade stone being shipped on orders for Winnsboro Granite; and such stone is certificated as Winnsboro Granite. Errors, however, might occur unintentionally, and all dealers should make the test above suggested before cutting a piece of stone. Buyers can be assured by the same test.

Winnsboro Granite is of flawless, even, straight grain—the ideal monumental material.

Write for free booklet of monumental designs. Winnsboro Granite Corporation, Rion, S. C. adv.

LYNCHBURG COLLEGE SENIOR COLLEGE MEN AND WOMEN

Membership in Southern Association of Colleges Rates Reasonable—For Catalog and full information write
J. T. T. HUNDLEY, President Lynchburg

PEACE INSTITUTE Raleigh, North Carolina

OWNED by the Presbyterians of North Carolina

COURSES OFFERED: (1) College courses for first and second work; (2) Preparatory courses; (3) Special courses in Art, Home Economics and Commercial subjects.

WORK ACCEPTED BY: (1) The North Carolina State Department of Education; (2) All colleges and universities in North Carolina and by many colleges without this state.

SPECIAL FEATURES: (1) Individual attention to student Limited number of students; (2) Intimate home surroundings; (3) highly trained faculty; (4) Wholesome religious atmosphere; (5) Modern equipment.

Register Now for Fall Session of 1929-1930

For catalogue, book of views and other literature, write to
William C. Pressly, President, Peace Institute, Raleigh, N. C.

ORIENT FLOUR Its Whiteness Denotes Its Purity MOUNTAIN CITY MILL CO., CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

MEREDITH COLLEGE

For YOUNG WOMEN

STANDARD COURSES IN ARTS AND SCIENCES, IN MUSIC, IN ART, IN HOME ECONOMICS

Confers the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Music. Delightful environment on a high plateau on the western boundary of North Carolina's City.

Room reservations are now being made for session 1929-30. For catalogue or further information write

CHAS. E. BREWER, President
 Raleigh, N. C.

BELK'S

Our Ladies' and Misses' Ready-to-Wear Department Children's Department, were never in better position to show you every thing that's new and desirable for the Now and the Coming Season. Dresses, Coats, Hats, Furs, Etc. Fine Shoes for Women, Misses and Children are on one floor, our second floor.

Our Children and Baby Department is very attractive and complete in every thing that Baby needs.

If you cannot come, send us your orders. Our mail order department will take especial care of all your orders.

We thank you for past favors, and promise you our best service in the future.

Belk Brothers Co.
 Charlotte, N. C.

HT WAY TO TRAVEL

in. The safest. Most le. Most reliable. Costs ure of Ticket Agents ggreatly reduced fares trips.

HERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

and Sunday School Furniture

For Special Cataloge TERN DESK COMPANY Hickory, N. C.

NS Ease the Pain Heal the Sore Stop Infection

with OINTMENT e, Cuts and Sores stores. For free sample write o., 724 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

est Relief n Headaches is the logical medicine to and high nerve strain behes the nerves and is not d Capudine relieves quicksier on the stomach than . Neuralgia and women's elieved promptly. 30c and t all drug stores. (Adv.)

E is a permanent asset to your a constant source of pleasure a will find greater satisfaction, ur, if you set out our hardy, this fall—Catalog free. WARD-HICKORY CO. J. HICKORY, N. C. Representatives Wanted

ANBACK

QUIETS NERVES

6 6

Prescription for Grippe, Flu, Dengue, Fever and Malaria. Most speedy remedy known.

YES are strengthened and relieved by Dickey's eye water. In use over half a eves sore eyes from gnats and hurt. In red folding box at es or by mail 25c. Co. Bristol, Virginia

ERUNS AND MILL ENDS CLOTH DIRECT FROM LOOM TO YOU

Pillow Tubings, Sheetings, Crinkled ds, Pajama Checks, Chambrays, Tinted es, Art Silk Striped Madras for men's Write for free samples and prices. L STORE, Dept. A., Greenville S. C. le Center of the South"

Children Cry for Fetcher's ASTORIA BABY REMEDY PROVED BY DOCTORS IC, CONSTIPATION, DIARRHEA

SPARKLES

In amazement I watched the trained flea do his stunts. "Did you educate that flea yourself?" I asked the man. "Yes," he replied proudly, "I raised him from a pup."—Life.

Bride: "My husband had a hope chest, too, before we were married." Neighbor: "For mercy sake! What was in it?" Bride: "A bushel of socks—he hoped someone would darn 'em."—Montreat Star.

Not What Was Promised

The family was seated at the table with a guest who was a business acquaintance of dad's, all ready to enjoy the meal, when the young son burst out, "Why, mother, this is roast beef!" "Yes," answered his mother; "what of it?" "Well, daddy said this morning that he was going to bring that big fish home for dinner tonight."

Teacher: "Now, Willie, if James gave you a dog and David gave you a dog, how many dogs would you have?" Willie: "Four." Teacher: "Now, dear, think hard! Would you have four if James and David each gave you one?" Willie: "Yep! You see, I got two dogs at home now."

No Go Between

"Won't you give a shilling to the Lord?" said a Salvation Army girl to an old Aberdonian. "How old are ye, lassie?" he inquired. "Nineteen, sir." "Ah, well, I'm past seventy-five, I'll be seein' Him afore you, so I'll hand it to Him myself."

Developing a Comedian

"How did your boy Josh get on in college?" "Fine!" answered Farmer Cornrossel. "The professor told him to be a snob. His effort that way is so comical that maybe it will make him positively popular."—Washington Star.

Protection

Landlady: "You must be a very cheerful soul, singing every morning while you take the shower." Boarder: "Well, it isn't exactly that. You see, the bathroom door won't stay locked."

A Domestic Product

Customer: "I want to get a pair of those shoes for this youngster." Salesman: "French kid?" Customer: "Certainly not; born right here in Philadelphia."

Not Excited

Teacher: "What is the interest on a thousand dollars for one year at two per cent? Ikey, pay attention!" Ikey: "For two per cent? I'm not interested."

Sambo: "Doc, I'se jest been bit by a dog." Doc: "Well, well! Was he a rabid dog?" Sambo: "Nossah! Doc, he was jest a plain ole bird dog."

When answering advertisements mention this paper. Thus you will aid us in securing more advertising patronage.

Chicora College for Women

The Presbyterian College of South Carolina

Standard College Courses Beautiful Grounds Healthful Climate Large, Strong Faculty Ideal Surroundings Moderate Rates

For Catalog and Information, Address

S. C. Byrd, D.D., LL.D., President, Columbia, S. C.

FORTY-SIX YEARS CONTINUOUS SERVICE WITHOUT A LOSS ON ANY LOAN

We offer you a safe, tax-free investment for your regular weekly or monthly savings and your lump sums. Write for particulars.

ASSETS OVER $8,800,000.00

The Mutual Building and Loan Association

Established 1881

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

If In Doubt, Take B. & L. Shares

You will earn the highest interest rate on your savings consistent with perfect safety, and pay no tax on savings. Shares cost twenty-five cents per week, and usually mature in 333 weeks. Net you 6 1-2 per cent at maturity.

Series Open in January, April, July and October

Mechanics Perpetual Building & Loan Association

Established 1883

18 E. Fourth St.

Charlotte, N. C.

THE WINTHROP DESK, $75

The Governor Winthrop desk has come down to us from the very earliest beginning of America. In the one shown here every detail has been copied minutely. It is made in Grand Rapids which is an assurance of its fine quality. Others, varying in size from $70 to $145.

W.T. McCOY & Co. Home Furnishers

423-425 SOUTH TRYON STREET CHARLOTTE, N. C.

"National Bank Safety For Savings"

For the Future

Are you making ready to share in the opportunities which increasing prosperity will bring?

A Reserve Fund Banked Here Will Help

Charlotte National Bank

Resources Over $5,000,000.00

The Provisions of the Ministers' Annuity Fund are Just and Wise

Our Church, together with other denominations throughout the world, is facing a serious situation that grows more critical each year. Strong men, called of God and the Church, have turned aside from all the sources of worldly gain and have given their time and energies to the spiritual ministries of the Kingdom of God. By direct command of the great Head of the Church they have been promised a living that would keep them "free from worldly cares and avocations." The Church has failed to keep its promise—especially to those whose strength has failed on account of age or sickness. Throughout more than two hundred years evidence has been accumulating that only through a contributory pension plan can this obligation be met.

1. Plans For Those Who Have Already Served.

In order to meet, in part, the obligation which has accrued for service rendered before the Ministers' Annuity Fund could be established, a special fund of three million dollars is to be raised. Every minister and missionary in the Church will be treated alike with regard to this Fund. All will be considered as having served the Church on a hypothetical salary of $1,200 a year. They will be entitled to one-seventh of this $1,200 for each year of service, or so much of the same as shall be needed to raise the pension to a minimum of $600 a year for thirty-five years of service.

This three million dollars is in no sense an endowment fund. Ultimately every dollar of it, together with the interest as it accrues will be used in meeting a solemn obligation that the Church has assumed, without making any provision whatever to meet the same.

2. Plans For Those Who Will Render Service in the Future.

Each minister for future service, i. e., service rendered under the Plan, during which period he has paid into the Fund an amount equal to 2½ per cent of his salary and the church or employing agency has paid on his behalf an amount equal to 7½ per cent of his salary, will be entitled to one-seventh of the salary received for each year of service.

It will thus be seen that the pension for each minister and missionary does not come from a common fund, but that he and the organization he serves make provision for it.

The Accrued Liability Fund of $3,000,000 will be drawn upon solely to raise all pensions to a minimum of $600 a year for thirty-five years of service to the Church.

Salaries are not equal and it would be wholly impossible to make them so. Needs at retirement are not the same and will never be so. Increasing the salary automatically increases the pension.

There is resting upon the Church another serious obligation which is to see that a proper living is provided for each minister and missionary. It will doubtless come to pass that all the Presbyteries will begin to view their ministers as a group, and will insist that each one receive an amount that will keep him free from anxiety and enable him to give his time, without temporal distractions, to the spiritual ministries of the Church.

3. Plans Which Have Been Tried and Proved.

The Minister's Annuity Fund has been examined by some of the leading financiers of America. Within a few weeks we will present the statements of some of these men who give it their unqualified endorsement.

The Plan is thoroughly Christian, is wholly sound and is completely adapted to meet the needs of the Church throughout all the coming years. It has been tried and its worth proved by other great Churches.

The Plan opens the door to large heartedness. Ministers who apparently receive larger salaries will help raise the three million dollars from which they will draw little or no direct benefit. Wealthy churches will accept and raise their share of the same Fund, knowing that its benefits will be felt chiefly in the smaller congregations. Men and women who have been endowed with large wealth will accept the challenge of the General Assembly and make liberal gifts to meet the accrued liability of the Church for the prior service of its ministers and missionaries. Church officers and congregations will provide their payments of an amount equal to 7½ per cent of the minister's salary that the Fund may be carried on. The marvelous working of compound interest together with his open-hearted response of a loyal people, will help solve one of the biggest problems now before the Church.

Watch this page for answers to other questions.

(Ask any question and we will gladly answer.)

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH IN THE UNITED STATES,
Department of Ministerial Relief and Ministers' Annuity Fund,

Henry H. Sweets, Secretary. John Stites, Treasurer.

410 Urban Building, Louisville, Kentucky.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

Religious Newspaper for the Family

Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.

J. EDGES, D.D., Editor-in-Chief
M. F. ELLIS, D.D., Co-Editor
W. ASPER WILLIS, Contributing Editor

ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858

M. F. ELLIS, Vice-President
REV. J. G. GARTH, Treasurer and News Editor
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
BY PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY

CHARLOTTE, N. C., SEPTEMBER 18, 1929

No. 38

Maxton Opens with 600 Students

Maxton Welcomes College Men formally Begins—Recital on Morrison Organ

September 12 Dr. Walter Lingle, Davidson College, formally opened the 94th session of this institution of the Synod when he extended words of cordial welcome to the student body and the many visitors and plead for a close partnership between the students, professors, and between the students and the president.

Dr. Lingle reiterated his expressed hope that all of the students would be patient in this task, which he designated as a "large assignment."

The president's office announced late in the afternoon that the registration is the same as last year. The college approximates 600 students arriving hourly. By the time the registration is complete, and the students will have settled down to their daily classes.

Dr. Lingle, of Charlotte, entertained the people with a 15-minute recital immediately preceding the exercises. Mr. Craft returned from Paris, where he spent a year under the famed organist, Mrs. Cameron Morrison, who was used publicly for the first time.

September Month of the Bible Cause

Assembly Asks Churches to Pray a Day in its Behalf

September 15th, was appointed as Bible Cause day. The Southern Presbyterian Church, the American Bible Society, New York City, is the official church for the world-wide distribution of the Bible. Rev. J. E. H. and Rev. George Wilcox, both of New York City, are general secretaries of the Since 1816 with the sole object of propagating the wider circulation of the Scriptures, the American Bible Society, besides ten agencies in the United States, now maintains branches in Cuba, Mexico, the Canal Zone, Argentina, Brazil, Egypt, India, Siam, China and Japan. The program includes the translation of the Scriptures into languages of the people; the distribution of the Scriptures at the lowest possible cost, or free of charge to the world at cost, or free of charge. The latest report of the Society shows that it has been translated into 85 different languages. The circulation during this same year has reached seven million copies, exceeding the record-breaking circulation of the regular editions of the American Bible Society.

(Continued on Page Two)

Queen's College Has Fine Beginning

72nd Annual Session of School—President Frazer Encouraged at Prospect of Great Year

Queen's College, of Charlotte, N. C., opened its doors for the 72nd annual session of this church school on Friday, September 13. After devotional exercises conducted by Dr. Luther Little, of the First Baptist Church, and Dr. Robert L. Patterson, one of the local Lutheran ministers, Dr. W. W. Peele, of the First Methodist Church, delivered a fine address on the formation of character in school.

Dr. William H. Frazer, president of the college, then introduced several of the local pastors of Presbyterian churches, including Dr. J. R. Bridges, a former president of the school, who is now editor of the Presbyterian Standard.

The president then introduced five new teachers, who with 25 others make the faculty of 30 members. Dr. C. W. Sommerville is still head of Religious Education and is assisted by Rev. B. Frank Yandell.

After these introductions Dr. Frazer delivered an address to the students, especially as to conduct and preparation of work.

The enrollment was 290 with registrations coming in every hour. It is expected that the complete figures will reach 330. The school has been busy for three days with classifying and orientation work. All of the societies are getting busy with cultural and religious work outside of the classroom.

Young People at Massanetta

The Eighth Conference of the Synod of Virginia, July 16-22, 1929

Again the merry voices of the young people rang out through the hills of "dear old Massanetta." Without a doubt, everyone of the five hundred and fifty, including the delegates and instructors, agree with Mr. Currie when he said it was the best conference ever held. The young people entered into the spirit of Massanetta with an unusual amount of enthusiasm. Everyone seemed to have had a week of happiness and enjoyment. Although the conference only lasts a short while, it is one place where the foundation of Christian character can be stimulated and strengthened.

All delegates enrolled in two of the following courses, one required and one elective. The required were: Home Missions, taught by Rev. J. E. Hemphill, D.D., and Rev. E. M. Delaney; History and Doctrine of the Presbyterian Church, by Rev. E. T. Wellford, D.D., and Rev. John B. Gordon; Stewardship, by Rev. Z. V. Robertson.

The electives were: Personal Evangelism, taught by Rev. R. W. Cousar; Sunday School, by Miss Clarabel Williams; Vacation Church School, by Mrs. Grover Taylor; Foreign Missions, by Rev. D. W. Richardson, D.D., and Mrs. D. W. Richardson; Christian Endeavor, by Rev. Paul K. Buckles, and Rev. W. W. Grover; Vocational Guidance.

(Continued on Page Two)

Flora Macdonald Starts Fall Semester

Large Enrollment Marks Beginning of 34th Annual Session at Red Springs, N. C.

Flora Macdonald College opened for the thirty-fourth collegiate year September 10th with a large registration.

Following the usual custom chapel exercises were held in the auditorium Wednesday morning at 8:45 and work for the college year started auspiciously. In welcoming the student body President C. G. Vardell gave many practical and helpful suggestions, particularly to the new students. He said "You will notice that Flora Macdonald wastes no time in getting down to work. Follow her example and you will profit thereby." Endeavor to make the most of your opportunity and think for yourself."

Classes are being fully organized and there is a splendid beginning in all departments. The spirit of the student body is especially good as evidenced at the first meetings.

The Cabinet of the F. M. C. A. held its annual meeting at the practice house from September 6th until September 9th. Plans for the year were made in detail. The date for the first reception is Monday, September 16th.

The General Alumnae Association has been active during the summer months in carrying out the College Beautiful plan under the direction of the chairman, Miss Mary McEachern, and many improvements have been made in and around the college.

During the first opening days the following alumnae were among the visitors: Josephine Shaw, Flora Monroe, Isabelle Currie, and Miriam Watson. Also Mrs. J. C. Carson (Eulla Miller).

Agnes Scott In Fall Opening

41st Session Begins With Every Student Space Taken

Agnes Scott opens its 41st session with all spaces taken and with an unusually interesting student body, including exchange students from France and Germany.

For several years, the college has encouraged its faculty to take leave of absence on part pay for study and travel in order to keep abreast of the times. An average of perhaps half a dozen per year have been following the plan with gratifying results. More than 40 first class universities or colleges are represented in the degrees held by the faculty.

The college is opening this fall its new central steam plant and laundry, erected at a cost of about $150,000; and it will now have ample heating facilities for developing its plant. Plans are being drawn, and a contract will soon be let for the erection of a new administration and recitation building to cost about $300,000. Other structures are to be erected as the campaign now in progress is completed. The college has not found it an easy time to raise funds, but gratifying and steady progress is being made.

Junior College Begins Work

Maxton Welcomes 80 Students to Synod's Newest Institution

At Maxton, N. C., September 12 the Presbyterian Junior College for Men formally opened with an exceptionally interesting, impressive and inspiring program. The exercises were held in the college auditorium which was well filled with Maxton citizens and friends of the college from other communities.

Rev. W. M. Fairley, D.D., of Raeford, vice-president of the board of trustees, presided in the place of the president, Hervey Evans of Laurinburg, who was unable to be present.

The program began with the doxology followed by the invocation by Dr. Fairley. After a song by the entire audience, Rev. R. A. McLeod, president, gave an inspiring talk preceding the Scripture reading. Mr. McLeod pledged himself and the college to the work of the Lord, emphasizing the fact that the development of Christian principles and the study of the Bible would be the outstanding aim of the college.

Dr. Fairley complimented the work of Mr. McLeod in the selection of the faculty and Mr. McLeod responded with appreciation of the co-operation shown by the people of the community, the board of trustees, and the backing of the synod of North Carolina. Members of the faculty were presented and were enthusiastically greeted.

Prof. C. L. Green, superintendent of Maxton schools, also made a welcoming address and pledged the support of the public schools. An anthem "Awake" was sung by a number of the young girls of the town, following which Dr. Fairley presented J. P. Wiggins, president of the Bank of Robeson, Maxton, who as secretary and treasurer of the board of trustees is said to have done more than any other one person to make possible the Junior college. The audience rose in tribute to Mr. Wiggins' splendid work. Mr. Wiggins publicly thanked all who contributed in any way to the opening of the college and said that February 21 would be known as Founders' day, as that was the date the synod of North Carolina had voted to take over the property. He said that February 21, 1930, a list of the donors to the college would be made public.

Eighty students were present at the opening exercises and more are expected.

(Continued on Page Two)

SPECIAL OFFER FOR COLLEGE STUDENTS

The Presbyterian Standard wishes to keep in touch with our boys and girls off at college, and makes the following special offer to the students or to their parents:

For nine months, we will send the paper to the college address of any young man or woman for $1.50.

Send us the names and addresses and help us to give these young people a home touch they will feel every week for the time of their absence from home.

YOUNG PEOPLE AT MASSANETTA

(Continued from page 1)

ance, by Miss Louise Slack; The Rural Church, by Rev. H. W. McLaughlin, D.D.; Auxiliary Organization and Administration, by Mrs. W. H. Hobbie; Social and Recreational Leadership, by Mr. C. R. Warthen; Methods with Young People, by Rev. John L. Fairley, D.D.

This being the end of the fourth year for the credit system, a post-graduate course was added: A Study of the Pupil, by Miss Anna D. Elmore. Besides the above courses, all students attended a Clan Bible Class taught by a clan leader.

Mr. Currie selected a program so appropriate and so full of variety and smoothness than it was a real joy to follow it. The day's work was eagerly started off by a most inspiring talk from Rev. James H. Taylor, D.D., of Central Church, Washington, D. C.

One of the appealing features of the conferences was the Conference Hour which gave the young people an opportunity to express freely their ideas and advance thoughts upon the discussions of problems and plans for the Young People's Work in the Church. The success of this hour was due to the leadership of Rev. Robert W. Miles who, through his straightforward talks created in the minds of the delegates thoughts of a more reverent attitude in the church service.

Every evening address was delivered by Rev. Dwight M. Chalmers, of Charlottesville, Va. These addresses, so full of inspiration and interest, had a far-reaching effect on the minds and hearts of the young people.

We again met Mr. Miles at the daily vesper services. His informal talks on the Lord's prayer made everyone realize more deeply the meaning of this familiar prayer.

The hearts of the young people were kept singing by the inspiring music under the leadership of Rev. Charles L. Nisbet, of Norton, Va., who was ably assisted by Miss Helen Brickley. The afternoon musical program was especially appreciated, not only by the members of the conference, but also by their friends. The young people chose for the 1929 hymn, "Follow the Gleam." "Be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only" was chosen as the motto.

The recreational activities were promoted to a very high standard among the four tribes under the supervision of Mr. D. V. Blayne and his assistant, Mr. Funkhouser.

The clan system was continued this year. The keen, but friendly competition added to the enjoyment of the conference.

After much competition, the following officers were elected for the coming year: James Crinkley, of Blackstone, Va., was elected president; Jas. Sydner, of Charles Town, W. Va., vice-president; Miss Mary Rogers, of Richmond, Va., secretary.

THIS IS THE MONTH OF THE BIBLE CAUSE

(Continued from page 1)

ety publishes Bibles for the blind in the Braille and other systems. During ninety-five years more than 75,000 copies of the Scriptures have been issued to blind persons. A announcement has been made that the Bible is now available in the "Penny Portion" series. The New Testament is published in eleven small volumes, and the cost of each volume is one cent.

JUNIOR COLLEGE BEGINS WORK

(Continued from page 1)

pected before the end of the week. Barney McLean, of Rockingham was the first students to register. The first to arrive and occupies room 1 in the new college dormitory.

Minister's Annuity Fund Campaign Launched

Special Representatives Gather in Louisville for Conference

On Wednesday and Thursday, September 11 and 12, Dr. H. H. Sweets, secretary of Christian Education and Ministerial Relief held a conference in Louisville with a group of laymen and ministers who have been invited by the committee to assist in the great task of putting over the new cause, the Ministers' Annuity Fund, which has been adopted by five Assemblies, and and at the final endorsement of which at Montreat at the Assembly's meeting in May, a splendid ovation as given to Dr. Sweets, as the promoter of the plan.

Four laymen and four ministers constituted the group of special representatives who gathered at Louisville last week. The laymen were as follows: Dr. W. J. Martin, Montreat, N. C., B. G. Alexander, Chattanooga, Tenn., L. A. Coulter, Dallas, Texas., and H. H. Hull, of Kentucky. The ministers were Dr. F. H. Barron, Charleston, W. Va., Dr. R. L. Cowan, McKinney, Texas., Dr. J. S. Baird, Dallas, Texas., and Rev. S. W. Huffer, Orlando, Fla.

There were present also, as visitors, Dr. J. E. Purcell and Mr. F. L. Naff, who wished to assure these brethren of the full sympathy and co-operation of the Committee of Men's Work, as this task is very importantly a layman's job, though it belongs to the whole church.

This group of special representatives has been assigned the task of visiting the presbyteries and synods in their fall meetings, and of visiting the churches where opportunity presents itself, so as to acquaint the people with the big project that is before them of raising $3,000,000 to make a fund with which to start the Ministers' Annuity Fund on January 1, 1931. They will ask the presbyteries to make plans for raising the $3,000,000 in cash and pledges during the year of 1930, and open the way for approaching the churches.

The progress of the fund is already very gratifying. Fifty-nine presbyteries have definitely approved it, and 28 have appointed committees to report to the fall meetings, after investigation of the plans. The mail is bringing in every day acceptances of ministers who are willing to pay in two and one-half per cent of their salaries to the Annuity fund which will be put on interest, and thus accumulate to pay the pensions of those who join the fund together with the church's seven and one-half per cent. This is of course outside the $3,000,000 which will soon be used up by past service of the older men for whom it is particularly intended. The main current fund will be built up by the yearly payments of the ministers and churches, and thus meet the needs of the younger ministers as they come to necessitous circumstances.

The following letter will prove of interest as it shows how the practical workings of the Annuity Fund will affect the calls of churches for the services of pastors. Dr. Benjamin R. Lacy, president of Union Seminary, Richmond, Va., writes:

"Some time ago a Committee for the selection of a pastor for one of our largest churches which was then vacant asked my advice about certain ministers whose names had been suggested. I was struck with the fact that most of the men whom they were seriously considering were under forty-five years of age. The names of two of our very strongest preachers who are perhaps over fifty-five years of age had also been suggested. I stated that I thought either one of these men would probably do as fine a piece of work in their church as anyone whom they could call. Their reply was that they had decided to call a younger

Winona Lake Bible Conference

The Thirty-Fifth Annual Bible Conference Has Twelve Inspiring Meetings

The thirty-fifth annual Bible conference in session for ten days at Winona Lake, Ind., closed Sunday, August 25, with twelve inspiring meetings. At least 12,000 were in attendance at the combined services of the day. The conference throughout was exalting in its instruction and in its association, and to thousands a spiritual feast. For the first time the conference closed with Holy Communion at 9:30 p. m., in the auditorium.

More than two thousand wended their way from the Tabernacle to the communion service in charge of Dr. Biederwolf, who was assisted by ministers and elders of various denominations. It was the most impressive and spiritual conference closing on record and will no doubt be carried out in the future.

With the soul-stirring messages of the preachers and Bible teachers the quiet communing with God at the closing hour, men and women who have been in contact with events for years at Winona were led to exclaim "the like of this 35th conference we have never known."

The attendance throughout broke the record of last year by three hundred. Six hundred and ninety-four ministers were registered, coming from all parts of the United States. A large number of Home and Foreign missionaries were in attendance who thanked God for the privilege afforded them.

The conference closes with all expenses paid and a neat balance which Director Biederwolf turns over to Winona institutions.

One cannot begin to tell of the many good things which the program afforded, sermons, Bible expositions, the splendid music directed by Homer Rodeheaver, the "Rescue Mission Boys," the Gideons, the Hillside services, the meetings for women, daily addresses by Dr. Masee, the inspiration given by the missionaries who told of their work each afternoon and evening.

"Home-Coming Day" was a great success. The largest crowd ever assembled on a mid-week occasion was here. Rev. "Billy" Sunday was the preacher, and the very mention of his name always brings great crowds to Winona. An "old-fashioned lawn party" was held under the trees, where reman. The Chairman of the Committee stated very frankly to me that if our Southern Presbyterian Church had a system by which a minister would be retireable at sixty-five years of age, yet could continue to be reelected as long as his strength continued unabated, that they would probably call an older man. They were afraid, he said, of having a pastor grow old upon them without any provision having been made elsewhere for his support after he became infirm. It, therefore, seems to me that our Church is losing the most effective work of some of our strongest ministers at the very time of life when they are best prepared to serve. Therefore, the Ministers' Annuity Fund of our Church, when it is established, will be of inestimable value in encouraging churches to call men of ripe experience to their pastorates."

The Northern Presbyterian Church is having a fine response to its Annuity Fund. Their Laymen's Fund of $15,000,000, which is to be used just as our $3,000,000 fund, has now become $8,000,000, which shows it is more than half paid. The ministers are accepting their share of two and one-half per cent so that quite 80 per cent have joined.

It will be necessary to have not less than 80 per cent of the ministers members of the fund, or it will not be workable.

DEVOTION

DIVINE CORRECT

"It is not pleasant to any to be corrected. The smart the staff is painful. Yet the solution in the reflection that care for us, or He would worth while to expend thought upon our chastise troubles to take to the lapid common flints and stones of The stone that is deeply crimson which is carefully p metal which is plied with for weeks and even months proved themselves to be worth. What gardener w time and pains over a tree repeated trial had refused fruit? Is it not the bough already borne luxuriant receives the incessant attention of the husbandman? 'Whom the He chasteneth,' and scold son whom He receiveth. If chastening, God dealeth with sons.' Welcome, then, of God, each stroke of the staff! Get comfort out of by the thought: My She love me tenderly, or He treat me thus, and then tu toward Him in eager desire the lesson He would teach, nothing of the benefits w tends."

No doubt the changes of life are all needed to fit us for less. Time is the necessary robing-room for eternity. training-house for the real awaits us when the last lesson and the school-bell ring that is, and has been, and just completing our character finishing touches to our souls all shall be forgotten, as a night, when once we have that eternity, which is the sense of never taking of our true possessions, complete them; or in the same the seed is taken away, and is developed a higher and growth."—Paw Creek Cal freshments were served, sciences of old time W quently given. Dr. Bieder

Among the preachers Frank H. Ballard and H. England; Drs. J. C. Ma Watson, Boston; Dr. Ro Memphis, Tenn.; Dr. W St. Louis; Dr. Robert Newark, N. J.; Dr. W. noted Bible expositors, W. Bieber and A. T. Rol large audiences at the the auditorium being filled

There were a number who spoke at the Hillside Biederwolf preaching at Sunday evening service "Where there is no vision perish." Many declared the strongest message of the Sergeant Alvin C. Yo soldier, speaking on Sunday told of his war experiences of his plans for the mou dren.

The consecration meeting on the Indian Mound led Biederwolf will ever be remembered the hundreds who took part

Dr. Masee had charge of the meeting in the auditorium was also largely attended

The conference goes down as one if not the greatest Winona. Dr. Biederwolf as director and will have the God's people in his work goes and in his plans for the conference next year. There hundred here from the S. th.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

FOUNDED 1858

Organ of the Synod of N. C. for 70 Years

The Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as Second Class Matter

Terms—The subscription price of the Standard is payable in advance. To ministers the price is $2.50 per year. To ministers' wives the price is $2.50 per year.

The mailing label shows the month and year to which the subscription is paid. Payment in advance is required.

It may be made by money order, check, or registered mail, and currency by mail.

Obituary Notices—No charge is made for notices of less than 100 words, but for all over fifty words the charge is $1.00 per line.

Advertisements—Sent on application.

Changes—Kindly send us both old and new addresses in advance of the desired change.

Changes are made only upon the written request of the subscriber. Settlement in full must be made at the same time.

Advertising and Business Communications Should be

Addressed to

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

Box 869

Charlotte, N. C.

EDITORIAL

MEMORIES OF MONTREAT

The ball is over, after the dance is good time to recall the pleasant companionship at Montreat. In like manner the Conference season is over, time to indulge in retrospect, and to dwell upon the pleasures of meetings.

It is a hot spell, as well as distance, that prevents us from returning to the view, so that we re-cremate the cool bracing morning of nights that required a blanket and a personal fire.

Out of view the creature comforts and dwell mainly upon the spiritual enjoyed, that even now kindle in our hearts of gratitude that our Church is a storehouse of spiritual enthusiasm, and that ministers gather each year, and that spiritual energy that must be renewed from time to time.

As we are with the blessings of these Conferences that we attend with the church whose pastor has been blessed.

Part of the Conference season was rational, and few become enthused and employed. We are apt to remember the latter Conferences were rational, and he was a dull soul that inspired to higher things in life. As already in former articles given in the addresses of Dr. Wm. George Truett and Dr. Speer, in the risk of repetition we again propose to them after the thrill of the performance the speakers has subsided, and we think.

Big State, and it has among its some big men. We doubt whether there is at this time any abler pair than Dr. Wm. Anderson and Dr. Truett, both of Dallas, Texas, one of the Presbyterian Church and the other of the Methodist.

Dr. Anderson is the son of Dr. Wm. Anderson, pastor of the same Church of which he is now pastor.

We heard the father, but we doubt if he was the equal of his son, at least if he was not.

Men are always odious, but whoever are Dr. Anderson and Dr. Truett comparing two men who have nothing in common, except a burning earnestness of practical experience gathered from an evangelist and a knowledge of that seems marvelous.

It is acknowledged by many to be a great preacher in the world. Dr. Anderson bore his testimony to this claim. One of the Northern Church, made his name at a Montreat Conference. He did with his world-wide reputation naturally raised high expectations is a great handicap to any new preacher to be fully met all expectations.

One of the fire of Anderson and Truett, he won his audience by sheer force of intellect—giving his hearers solid facts.

These three speakers made a deep impression upon all who heard them, and it seemed to be the general desire that they should return to us another season.

Dr. Jas. I. Vance is a great favorite with a Montreat audience, and was heard with pleasure by his many admirers when he closed the Conference season with two sermons. There is no man in our ministry whom we love more, or whose brilliant talents we admire more, yet we rarely hear him or read his charming sermons, without finding something that is contrary to our opinion. We have finally concluded that we were made in a different mental mould, and that neither of us can be made over. We are satisfied with old truths, while he follows Dr. Kirk's advice and lives near the danger line.

He preached from the text, "God Is Love."

The next time we hope that he will preach a companion sermon from "Our God Is a Consuming Fire."

Dr. Vander Meulen, President of the Louisville Seminary is always gladly heard. This time he appeared in a new role, and took the Conference by storm.

He gave a striking impersonation of Judas Iscariot, in which he displayed histrionic ability of no mean order.

Then the next morning at the Bible hour he gave a double impersonation of a man of the world and his pious wife.

The man gave every possible reason for not going to church, and for not believing in foreign missions—and the wife met each reason.

The whole performance was thoroughly enjoyed, and his acting the double part was admired. The only fear we have is that each student at the Seminary will imitate the performance—and as usual will make a farce of it. To all such, we say, "Don't."

"Let all such remember the ass in the lion's skin."

OUR FRIENDS, THE ROMANISTS

We have never been addicted to baiting the Romanists, and by our course with reference to them, we have incurred the criticism of some of our best friends.

While there is much in their course to condemn, there is also something to approve.

Now and then our mantle of charity is worn threadbare, and we are forced to let our readers see the ugly spots in their Church life.

It has been said of Rome as was said of the Bourbons, it never forgives and never forgets.

In all ages, especially in the days of her power, she was intolerant, and brooked no opposition and at that time she could punish with none to stay her.

Since then the world has advanced, and men have become conscious of their dignity, and refuse to submit to tyranny, either political or priestly. Rome, however, has never kept pace with these advanced views. Mankind is still regarded as pawns on a chess board, and the weapon used against them has always been the terrible doctrine of absolution, the refusal to forgive their sins, and the consequent consignment to the terrors of purgatory.

We who are Protestants can form no idea of the power of such a threat when used against the Catholic mothers.

The leaders fear the influence of the Public Schools of our land, or the Private Schools where man's right to think for himself is taught.

In Boston where Catholicism abounds, some Catholic mothers, in order to get into society, have been separating their children from the common herd, such as they imagine is found in non-Catholic schools, and have been sending them to private schools.

Cardinal O'Connell has lately ruled that Catholic women who deprive their children of religious education to make them stepping-stones to their own social ambition, must be refused absolution.

This declaration savors of the Middle Ages. It ran as follows:

"Confessors of this diocese are not to give absolution to such women who for mere social reasons deprive their children of their highest birthright, their Catholic faith and hope of eternal salvation."

On the other hand, however much we may scold the Cardinal, we rejoice that we can find some "good coming out of Nazareth."

It seems that dancing in bathing costumes at the fashionable seaside resort, Fregene, 20 miles from Rome, has been severely condemned, because the girls' bathing costumes are too scanty; so in order to check it as far as Catholics are concerned, the Vatican has decided to buy the entire estate.

It will be turned into a special seaside resort for ecclesiastics, Catholic schools and people who bathe only for bathing's sake. Only costumes buttoned up to the throat and showing as little as possible of the skin will be allowed. There will be a ban on dancing, sunbaths, lying half naked on the sand and spooning under the moon.

We congratulate his Eminence.

A WORD TO OUR PRESBYTERIES

As far as we can judge our pastors are not awake to the importance of the proposal to unite with the United Presbyterian Church, which by order of the General Assembly must be acted upon by the Presbyteries at their next meeting.

In all our experience with Church affairs, we have never known as important a matter treated with as much indifference as the proposed union with the U. P. Church. This is true, not only in its beginning, but also at its ending and seeming victory.

There has never been any apparent demand for it, and since the action of the last Assembly, when it apparently swept the field of all opposition, the Church, at large, judging from the views of the pastors one met at Montreat and elsewhere, there has been a most remarkable apathy on the subject.

When we remember that the Presbyteries are called upon to vote upon this question in a very short time, it would seem that, in view of the important questions involved, there would be some interest expressed.

Let us remember that the U. P. Church has never shown any great eagerness to join forces with us, but on the contrary, that Church has postponed action till they have time to feel the pulse of their people.

In view of this fact, our haste in pushing the matter, seems rather lacking in delicate tact.

Let us also remember that a hasty step may undo all the work of the old worthies who suffered in the past for their principles, and whose memories we cherish and whose example it should be our glory to follow.

Let us then follow the example of the U. P. Church and not show too much eagerness to join forces with them.

DR. WM. F. WEIR AT MONTREAT

We have already mentioned the addresses of Dr. Anderson, Dr. Truett and Dr. Speer as being unusually fine, leaving a most pleasant memory.

There was another new voice, not quite as eloquent it may be as those of the other three, but equal to either when measured by the standard of hard sense and usefulness in life.

We refer to Dr. Wm. F. Weir, of Chicago, who occupies the same position in the Northern Church that Dr. Purcell does in ours, that of Secretary of Men's Work.

He delivered nine addresses full of common sense, and applicable to the problems of Church life in our daily contact with men.

Some hearers measure a man's eloquence by the loudness of tone, or the ranting in the pulpit; but Dr. Weir was not eloquent when so measured. He had a message worked out, and in an earnest tone he delivered it, and unless we are mistaken, his message reached home, and will bear fruit in coming years.

We were impressed by the serious earnestness of the man, and the strict attention paid him by the men who came, not to listen to pretty sentences, but to what would help them in this new work they have undertaken, that of harnessing the latent energy of the men of the Church of God, and making it count as much in its upbuilding as that of the women in recent years.

OUR GREATEST ASSET

R. E. Magill, Executive Secretary

ent past, President Hoover called to the a group of representative citizens to under- wide survey of the conditions confronting America.

d that the spread of juvenile delinquency down of wholesome home influences and parents in the matter of example and disci- d a threat to the existence of orderly gov- our very civilization.

nt explained that the gravity of situation p of patriotic citizens to contribute a fund or the prosecution of this investigation. mmittees were appointed to study every bject and report concrete plans for remedy- arming situation. In addressing the group said:

urge upon you the fundamental importance king. The greatest asset of a race is its ation moves forward on the feet of little bodily strength and development should o receive the heritage which each genera- eath to the next. These questions have the l importance, that reaches to the roots of f."

Perils That Threaten

riter of international reputation summar- ne perils threatening American civilization

ers due to crime and lawlessness; a mil- icts; two hundred thousand prostitutes; ictims of venereal diseases; sordid com- usements, the most vicious being movies underworld views and crimes to morbid minds; the growth of obscene literature; n of the home; the increase of divorce— y seven marriages; the presence of twenty- children and young people who are not atic religious instruction at home or in ix million of these neglected young people th."

rained investigators of conditions in our titutions, from grammar schools on through specialized schools and universities, show lks enter an atmosphere that tends to d God and establish character and conduct are little short of pagan.

ire returned by seniors of a great uni- the following votes: Three to one to services; eight to one to repeal the prom- t; 306 of the class drink, 61 do not f beverages showed following preferences: beer, 79; milk, 3.

iversity survey reveals that more students ke. College journals are out with indig- at there is less drinking among students e adoption of the eighteenth amendment. f a jury of educators in Chicago who ive survey confirms the view of the col-with its boasted conservatism and claim g high ideals and stable religious con- nt escaping the contagion of lawlessness ical and religious standards.

ten leading Southern cities shows more murders per 1,000 population than is re- ss Chicago. Georgia and North Carolina d States in the number of wildcat stills n gallons of moonshine liquor confiscated. t that 60 per cent of the convicted crimi- twenty-five years of age and about 35 per twenty-one years of age. A startling fact per cent of the juvenile criminals and ne from homes of well-to-do and from h social standing. The probation officers southern city report that 2,000 children their hands from the probation court in f a school population of 30,000), and that of these delinquents were from the most wealthy section of the city and not from ty and underprivilege.

Our Church Doing to Turn the Tide?

inescapable responsibility for our share of neglected and spiritually destitute children he direction of the Church-wide effort to the youth of our churches and in the of the South is given to the Committee ducation and Publication at Richmond, called the Executive Committee of Pub- beth School Work). To compass this Committee carries on the following activi-

ur field workers were used in 1929 to aid Sunday schools in neglected areas, to ured workers in hard fields, to pro- hods in all our schools, and to train ders in young people's societies for more itors and trained workers are used at editing twenty-eight publications for the and young people's societies. The total out eighteen million copies per year. ation Department issues for free circu-

Men-of-the-Church

Presbyterian Church in the United States

REV. J. E. PURCELL, D.D., Executive Secretary
HENRY GRADY BUILDING
ATLANTA, GEORGIA

REV. JOHN L. FAIRLY, D.D., Wilmington, N. C.,
Editor in Charge of Men-of-the-Church Department

THE MEN-OF-THE-CHURCH CONFERENCE AT MASSANETTA SPRINGS

The Men-of-theChurch Conference held at Massanetta Springs, Virginia, on August 1-4, was one of the most helpful ever held at Massanetta. It was the opinion of all those present that the Assembly's plan of Men's work was the most practical plan for meeting the needs of our churches. One of the encouraging things about the Conference was, that the men and speakers not only believed in the plan, but they were familiar with its functioning. Another encouraging feature was the fine spirit that prevailed among the men. The Conference was not as large as it should have been, however, the men present were leaders in their respective churches and a number of churches in the Synod were touched.

Discussion Period

There were three discussion periods under the leadership of Mr. F. L. Temple, of Roanoke, Chairman of Synod's Committee on Men's work. The Conference opened on Thursday night with a splendid discussion by Dr. Anderson, of Dallas, Texas, on the problems of Men's Work and how we can meet and overcome them. The first part of the Friday morning period was taken up with a discussion of the plan of organization by Mr. Temple, and this was followed by Dr. Anderson who brought out some of the things a Men's organization does for a church. Saturday morning Doctor Anderson went back and took up the subject that was under discussion on Thursday night. This was one of the most helpful parts of the whole conference. Doctor Anderson is a splendid conference leader, and he was not only able to draw out from the men their problems, but nearly always had some practical answer from his own experience, or was able to get one from some member of the Conference.

The Inspirational Addresses

The largest number of men were present on Friday. It was also the day of Inspirational Addresses. In the morning Doctor Young of the First Presbyterian Church, Roanoke, Virginia, spoke on "Loyalty to the Church." He was followed by Doctor DuBose of the First Presbyterian Church of Spartanburg, S. C., who spoke on "Loyalty to Christ." At the vesper service Dr. J. E. Hemphill, of Petersburg, Va., spoke on "Christ's Challenge to Men." These three addresses were unusually fine, and the same theme running through all three left a deep impression on all the men who heard them.

Personal Work

On Friday night, Doctor Anderson spoke on the topic, "A Man and his Church." This was a splendid and helpful discussion of how men can do personal work with its possibilities and its joys. He emphasized the fact that it was the first obligation of every man in the church. Doctor DuBose followed this on Saturday morning with an address on "A Layman's Highest Ministry." This was a study of personal work in the form of a character study of Andrew, the brother of Peter.

Prayer and Testimony Meeting

One of the most difficult problems in the lives of most Christians is the problem of prayer. If we were to single out the most outstanding thing in the Conference, it would be the splendid discussion of Prayer by Doctor Anderson on Saturday night. He held a large audience of men and visitors who came for the night service at tense attention while he discussed, "The Conditions of Prayer," and "How We Pray." He continued this topic on Sunday afternoon in a prayer and testimony meeting held in the lation over one hundred thousand tracts and leaflets annually to promote evangelism, to stimulate a better type of religion in the home, and to stress Sabbath observance. Donations of books, Bibles, tracts, and periodicals to the value of $52,000 were made to needy churches, schools, and individuals last year. During the past twenty-six years the Publication Department has contributed over $600,000 to accomplishing its own task and to other causes of the Church.

The Assembly's Call for an Advance

The churches, Sunday schools, and membership of our Church are asked to give $105,000 for this work this year. Less than $80,000 was given last year. If our Church is to fulfill her mission and enlarge her membership, we must reach and train our share of the youth of the South. This foundation-laying task cannot be accomplished without a large increase in gifts for this work.

Rally Day on October 6, 1929, brings a special opportunity for every Sunday school in our Church to enlarge its membership, improve its method of work and make a generous offering for the neglected children and youth of the South.

One half of the budget fixed for this great work is expected from the Rally Day collection in our Sabbath school. Send all offerings to R. E. Magill, Treas., Box 1176, Richmond, Va.

auditorium. The Conference closed with a stirring inspirational appeal by Dr. DuBose on Sunday evening.

Speakers and Leaders

Doctors Anderson and DuBose both have splendid organizations of men in their own churches, and the practical things that were brought out by these men from their own experience, both in the conference hours and as they met and talked with the men individually, were very helpful.

A word of appreciation should be said about Mr. F. L. Temple, who is a deacon in the First Presbyterian Church of Roanoke, Va., and Synod's Chairman of Men's Work. From his own experience he knows something of the problems as well as the splendid possibilities of Men's Work. Mr. Temple has been at the head of the Synod's Work for one year, and under his leadership the work has made splendid progress. The Synod owes him a debt of gratitude for the splendid conference at Massanetta.

MEN'S CONFERENCE ON PETIT JEAN MOUNTAIN, MORRILLTON, ARK., JUNE 28, 1929

A conference for men was held on Petit Jean Mountain, June 28, in connection with the Ozark Assembly, the annual training school for Christian workers in that Synod. A fine spirit was in evidence, and the largest attendance we have ever had at the Conference before. Dr. J. E. Purcell and Mr. L. A. Coulter were present and gave us splendid addresses and conducted helpful discussions through the meeting.

An encouraging feature of the Conference was the widespread interest manifested in Men's Work from over the Synod. Churches which had not been represented before had good delegations on hand, and they gave comprehensive reports of their work in the local church. Others were represented by individuals who indicated that they would go home and do greater things in Men's Work. Many in attendance asked questions about their problems and about definite activities for the men at home. Altogether there is a growing feeling among the men that there is a great need for the organization in the local church. Two churches have effected organizations since June. Reports from the churches show a deeper appreciation of the possibilities of Men's Work over the Synod. In making plans for the immediate future a number of group rallies are being arranged for in strategic centers where four or five churches may be represented. Mr. Coulter will conduct the first one at Forrest City on September 8. Men's Work "schools" will be held in different places during the winter. Two or three regional gatherings will be held over the Synod later on.

FINE THINGS IN STAUNTON FIRST

Helping the Mid-Week Prayer Service

In view of the fact that there are quite a number of men who do not attend prayer meeting, and also a number of people in the congregation who have no cars and, therefore, do not attend, the idea of giving these men transportation work to do seemed a good one, especially as it would mean their attending the services themselves. At first this was carried on by the minister assigning the parties to be brought, and getting the men to volunteer for a month's service. Afterwards he worked it through the Men-of-the-Church, and each group selected one who would be responsible for furnishing a car when called upon by the transportation Chairman. On two occasions we brought in from 30 to 40 students from the Manch College of Music. It is a good plan and certainly helps the attendance. Some who never made it a practice of attending prayer-meeting have been interested in this way.

THE WEST AUGUSTA SABBATH SCHOOL

At West Augusta, 20 miles west of Staunton, a little one-room mountain school house had stood useless for 19 years, abandoned by the School Board, and a whole generation had grown up without school advantages. The Evangelistic Club had held occasional meetings there. About 18 months ago the Men-of-the-Church of this congregation organized a Sabbath school and put one of its members, Mr. Truman S. Vance, in charge as Superintendent. The attendance has grown from 14 to an average of over 40. The School Board has reopened the school and a godly young teacher of the day school has been of greatest help in the Sabbath School. The Home Mission Committee has aided greatly in occasional preaching, a Vacation Bible School of 18 and a revival that resulted in 12 additions to Rock Spring, the nearest Presbyterian Church, though that is ten miles away. Except for this the Sabbath School pays its own way; buys its own literature, pays for Christmas treat to children, gives something to Home Missions, and besides, has repainted the interior and put up curtains to separate the classes.

Men-of-the-Church that have taken the Superintendent out every Sabbath afternoon have all been greatly impressed by the work. The Superintendent himself has missed going only once in 14 months, and his little ten-year old son has missed only five times. The Superintendent says, "Positively the happiest hours of the week are those that I give to this work. Everything indicates, I think, that we are about to have a most glorious evangelistic campaign here."

"THE STRENGTH OF GIBRALTAR"

Hon. Edward D. Duffield, LL.D., President of the Prudential Life Insurance Co.

The following remarks were made by Dr. Edward D. Duffield, President of the Prudential Life Insurance Co., of Newark, N. J., at the 138th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A. Doctor Duffield was Vice-President of that Assembly and was introduced as a grandson of Jonathan Dickinson, first President of Princeton College. As the Ministers' Annuity Fund of our Church in its fundamental principles is like the Service Pension Fund of our sister Church, Doctor Duffield has given permission to use this address. See his letter on page 20.—Henry H. Sweets.

Mr. Moderator, Fathers and Brethren:

I realize perfectly that I appear at this particular moment as the President of a Life Insurance Company, rather than as the grandson of Jonathan Dickinson. I do not know that it is necessary for me to endorse a single sentence of a plan that has received the approval of the actuaries who have given the Prudential Insurance Co. the strength of Gibraltar! I am glad to appear here with the idea that I am supposed to know something about life insurance. I say that because of an experience in the small town where I live. We have a girl's school there, and the lady principal called me up and said they were giving the girls a course in political economy; that they had reached the point where they desired to devote one hour a week to special subjects, and could I come up and spend that hour in entertaining the young ladies with my knowledge of life insurance. I said that I would be very glad to do this, but that life insurance was a subject about which I knew very little. To my surprise the lady remarked, "Oh, that's all right; this class doesn't know anything about it!"

Since that time I have never permitted myself to suggest that I didn't know all that there is to know about life insurance.

Reference has been made to the actuarial soundness of this plan, and I might say that it is extremely interesting to notice that a plan prepared by one actuary has been pronounced sound by another. I cannot imagine any more definite proof of the wise conception and the thoroughly scientific basis of this plan that is presented to the Church, than the fact that it was prepared by one actuary and that no other actuary has been able to find any flaw in it. And you may take it for granted that if the Presbyterian Service Pension Fund is carried out in accordance with the plan which has been promulgated, it too will have the strength of Gibraltar. We received the copy of this plan for study and criticism. Coming from a Church, we assumed it would be unsound! After careful study we were able to return it to the Presbyterian Board of Ministerial Relief with the assurance that actuarially it was absolutely sound.

Of course the difficulty with this plan is that it was not put into operation at the very start of the endeavor to make provision for those to whom the Church owes a greater debt than it can owe to any other class. If this plan had been put into operation then, there would have been no need even for the appearance of benevolence. It would have provided itself the means by which sustenance and support might have been given. You put this plan into operation and you have adopted a methodical scientific, business-like and efficient proposition. It will do those things that are expected of it, and it will do it because of the fact that it provides a means for doing it, a means which will as certainly produce a result as definitely as a chemical combination can be prognosticated as to result, because life insurance and actuarial science are no longer experiments. It is the most definite system that we have. You can calculate with the most extreme accuracy as to results, based upon expectation of life and earning power of invested funds; it is based upon experience. And with that experience, and with that knowledge, I say to you, and I say it not upon my own authority, but backed up by those who are responsible for the doing of exactly this kind of work, that this plan is thoroughly efficient and competent to produce the results you desire, and that you may expect with perfect assurance that it will meet the requirements of the situation.

RECEIPTS FOR ASSEMBLY'S HOME MISSIONS

April 1-August 31

	1929	1928	Inc.	Dec.
Churches	$ 90,254.64	$88,884.21	$1,370.43	$
Sunday Schools	2,120.13	444.92	1,675.21
Auxiliaries	6,075.10	6,900.92		825.82
Y. P. & C. E.	474.13		474.13
Total Receipts
from Donors	$101,882.69	$97,397.32	$5,311.19	$825.82
Designated gifts	10,436.34

$122,319.03

Total amount apportioned by the General Assembly for Assembly's Home Missions for 1929-1930 $840,000.00

Total Receipts April 1, through Aug. 31, 1929 112,319.03

$727,680.97

A. N. Sharp, Treasurer.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION AND MINISTERIAL RELIEF

Comparative Statement of Receipts

April 1, 1929-August 31, 1929

	1929-30	1928-29	Inc.	Dec.
Churches	$35,198.35	$35,789.34	$	$ 590.99
Sabbath Schools	2,129.22	2,106.97	22.25
Societies	5,098.79	5,704.97		606.18
Individuals	3,351.09	3,092.48	258.61
Miscellaneous	66.27	436.85		370.58

Total Donors $45,843.72 $47,130.61 $280.86 $1,567.75
Net Decrease, $1,286.89.

John Stites, Treas.

COMPARATIVE STATEMENT—FOREIGN MISSION RECEIPTS

Receipts Applicable to Regular Appropriations:

	August 1929	1928
Churches	$ 29,691.49	$ 39,070.10
Sunday Schools	2,219.77	960.02
Sunday Schools Objective	1,081.21	669.11
Societies	7,813.37	6,593.19
Societies Objective	74.00	35.30
Individuals	2,652.79	1,915.98
	$ 43,532.63	$ 49,243.70
Legacies	53.88	3.00
Total	$ 43,586.51	$ 49,246.70

Five Months, April 1st to August 31st, Inclusive

Churches	$189,029.36	$194,326.92
Sunday Schools	6,525.66	6,838.95
Sunday Schools Objective	11,004.96	12,980.44
Societies	34,030.89	33,112.27
Societies Objective	658.86	664.03
Individuals	18,600.72	15,044.62
	$259,850.45	$262,967.23
Legacies	130.18	84.98
Total	$259,980.63	$263,052.21

Cost Year 1928-29 $1,209,205.39
Initial Appropriation 1929-30 $1,235,068.96
Deficit March 31, 1929 $174,659.02
Less gifts for same 2,179.44

$1,407,548.54

Edwin F. Willis, Treas.

Nashville, Tenn.

BOOKS

Elements of Rural Sociology. By Newell Leroy Sims. Thomas Y. Crowell Company, New York, 1928. 698 p. Price $3.50.

This is a book every man who wishes to keep abreast of the times should read. A man is not truly educated who is ignorant of sociology, just as one is not truly educated who is ignorant of the facts of history. For practical purposes it is more important to know life in one's own generation than life in those which have preceded. If you are going to read only one book on rural sociology, I would say that this is not only the best book of the year on the subject but probably the most satisfactory treatise extant.

The author has read widely, has shown the faculty of classifying knowledge, and expressing himself in a readable style. It is not expected in a science so new that all of the conclusions of the author should be accepted without question, but in most cases the facts are so well marshalled that they carry with them conviction.

This is a book that every student of Home Missions and every Christian worker in the country should study. It reveals facts that will quicken one's enthusiasm for making American Christian. It reveals the danger points in our American life and it suggests methods of procedure by which our own generation may be helped.

Henry W. McLaughlin,
Country Church Director.

Rural Church Development. By J. W. Jent, D.D., LL.D. Oklahoma Baptist University Press, Shawnee, Okla., 1928. 298 p. Price $2.60.

This is perhaps the best work of the year on the subject of the Country Church. The author is well qualified for his task and he has performed it in a way which reveals the fact that it is the result of much pains-taking thought and work. Dr. J. W. Jent was reared in the country as the son of a country preacher and was for ten years a country pastor in Texas. He graduated at Columbia University, majoring in the Country Church. He has taught the Country Church in Oklahoma Baptist University, Mercer University and is now President and Professor of Bible in Southwestern Baptist College, Bolivar, Missouri. He is the author of "The Challenge of the Country Church" and is, therefore, no novice in this field of authorship.

The book is written from a Baptist viewpoint, but this church has done so much good work in the country (Continued on Page 11)

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT

EDITOR'S OUTLOOK

W. A. Gamble, Pinetops, N. C.

Another Confirmation

My dear Dr. Gamble:

For some time, I have intended writing in press my profound appreciation of your issue of the Presbyterian Standard of May 22 with reference to the young people's work of our Church. I am glad to secure some extra copies of the paper, and the article has been printed or otherwise been made available for distribution—which I think would appreciate a number of copies.

I have been, for more than fifteen years, active in the Presbyterian Church, U.S., and particularly in the work among our young people, as well as in Presbytery and Synod, and I have felt like crying out, over the attitude and the efforts of some of our leaders during the past few years, which my father faced thirty to thirty-five years ago, the efforts of some of our leaders to supersede the Endeavor with the Westminster League, and I have inherited his views—and, I hope, his great cause at stake.

I do not see how the Southern Presbyterian Church can do very much in the development of its young people's organizations so long as this cry of "League" on the part of some, is made to practical efforts to translate into expressive words, the talents so bountifully bestowed upon our boys and girls, who do want the Christ, and our efforts are going to be wasted if we do not, them, our own theories and, relatively at least, our own opinions.

So far as the frequently charged lack of loyalty is concerned, I can only say for myself, that of their forty-five children and grandchildren, including the nine "in-laws," every one of them is a member of the Presbyterian Church; all of them have been baptized, and all old enough, by active membership, the one daughter met her husband, and five sons met their wives through the Christ Society of the Presbyterian Church, U.S., in membership was held.

Walter D.

Montgomery, Ala.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPICS

Sunday, September 29—Standing Together. Heb. 10:25; Ps. 133; I Cor. 3:4-9.

Leader

We have come to the close of the month of Loyalty in the Church. We will recall the subjects have been Standing By Our Job, Our School, Standing By the Bible, Standing By the Church, and now we come to consider together in the Church.

This is a study in co-operation. As you and we must consider our relation to the whole Church. We are all interested in the Church and all its work. We must think as it is connected with the various departments, do all we can to make the work successful.

Brotherly Unity

Psalm 133 is a very beautiful poem about brotherly unity. The Bible teaches us that all Church members are all brothers in Christ, and that we must treat one another as brothers and not as enemies.

Sad to say, churches are very subject to quarrels. People who have been members for a very long time often say very unkind things about each other, and talk goes around with every repetition.

We young folks don't like fusses in the Church, and look so out of order for Christians, and we can become peace-makers and harmonizers by our desire for peace and unity. Let our society become a sort of agency to keep the Church in proper motion and together for Christ and His Church.

Co-operating With the Sunday School

Our young people's society can do much for the Church by working in and for the Sunday School. While we like our own organization where we have things our own way, yet the Sunday School is a very important place for young people to work. The Sunday School is the agency for systematic teaching of the Bible. All departments join in the great work of the Bible.

We as young people can do much to ought to do all we can to work up our to make them regular, studious, reverent and sympathetic with the superintendent. We ought to build up the membership, new members by inviting strangers, and feel our deep interest in the lessons and always new teachers needed for the we can prepare ourselves to teach classes boys and girls, and it will be a great help and the superintendent if they know someone they can depend on for teaching.

Cooperating With Prayer Meeting

Week prayer meeting is the hardest service to attend, and yet those who go to it say they enjoy that service more than any other. It is more informal, comes at a time when we need of spiritual refreshment, after the week is about half through. It gives us an opportunity to confer with each other next Sunday and its plans, since developments probably taken place that were not expected the previous Sunday.

People are not frequently seen at prayer meeting who have school studies to prepare, or who say that prayer meeting has no particular interest for them. The pastor is always glad to see them at prayer meeting, and usually tries to give them some special thought. It does us good to be in the church in the spirit of prayer, and we learn there to become effective leaders in the prayer meeting. We also must remember what the Bible says, We must not forsake the assembly of ourselves together, because it increases our interest in religion.

Successful Young People's Society

As young people ought to be interested in church services, the Sunday School, the prayer meeting, and all phases of the church work, our Young People's Society. Our big job is to get that organization a success which is common to our town set and age.

We have a successful young people's society where everybody ought to join it, boys and girls. The girls seem to take more interest than the boys. This should not be so. The church needs the boys and boys must not leave religious work and girls.

Members must be regular, prompt and take time to learn to pray in public, make a little home leaders, by doing what we can. It is our personality, strengthens our minds, and later satisfaction to do something that is good. There are men and women now who are on their training in the young people's society. It helped them to be ready for when they grew to maturity.

Young People and Personal Work

Important part of Church work is called personal work. Personal work is trying to persuade those who are not Christians to become followers of Christ. We are all born in sin, and need the grace that Christ alone can give. For there is no name under heaven given among men by whom we must be saved, except the name of Jesus our duty to bring every man, woman and child to the power of that name.

For young people we may do much personal work with our young friends who have not become Christians. We should study how to reach them, and be ready at our disposal to persuade them to Christ, and definitely take a stand for him in their hearts. Thus we save a soul from death and bring them like into the best life possible here on earth.

Young People and the Church Budget

Church budget is another phase of church work. Young people think does not concern them. They want money raising for the work of the church. Young folks often have no money, or they depend on their parents for their money. The jobs they are paid for are not so frequent as the first things we ought to learn to do. Part of our money to the Lord. Tithing, or giving, is a good plan to follow.

Young people in our societies have gone to work making salaries. They like to feel they are supporting the family, and they have some money to spend. They should certainly not waste it. They should do many things as they are tempted to do, to help other young folks. Dressing, automobils, parties, and many other temptations are there. Let us certainly use a part in helping the church in its work. If possible, we ought to contribute to the budget, and pay regularly what we

WOMANS AUXILIARY

The Department of Woman's Work, Presbyterian Church, U. S.
270-277 Field Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

SYNOCDICAL PRESIDENTS OF THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

Alabama—Mrs. J. F. Hooper, 610 Mabry St., Selma, Ala.
Appalachia—Mrs. F. B. Kegley, Wytheville, Va.
Arkansas—Mhrs. Walter Wilson, Arkadelphia, Ark.
Florida—Mrs. W. G. Thompson, Jr., 3215 Obispo St., Palma Ceia Park, Tampa, Fla.
Georgia—Mrs. E. G. Abbott, 1315 Eberhart Ave., Columbus, Ga.
Kentucky—Mrs. H. P. Cooper, Lebanon, Ky.
Louisiana—Mrs. Charles L. Bodin, Box 79, M. R. A., Lake Charles, La.
Mississippi—Mrs. J. S. Hicks, Holly Springs, Miss.
Missouri—Mrs. Walter Craven, 223 Frances St., Excelsior Springs, Mo.
North Carolina—Mrs. G. V. Patterson, Gastonia, N. C.
Oklahoma—Mrs. Wilbur Garvin, 611 Euclid, Lawton, Oklahoma.
South Carolina—Mrs. Parker Connor, Edisto Island, S. C.
Tennessee—Mrs. J. F. Forsythe, Bethel Springs, Tenn.
Texas—Mrs. J. W. Culver, Texas Military Academy, San Antonio, Texas.
Virginia—Mrs. C. R. Vaughan, 319 Mountain Ave., Roanoke, Va.
West Virginia—Mrs. J. McD. Lacy, Elkins, W. Va.

PARTIAL LIST OF SYNOCDICAL MEETINGS FOR 1929

Synodical, meeting place, date, send literature to:
Albemarle met during the summer.
Appalachia, Montreat, N. C., Sept. 24-26, Mrs. C. E. Dorsey, Montreat.
Florida, Quincy, Fla., October 22, Miss Agnes Davidson, care Rev. D. J. Blackwell, Quincy, Fla.
Georgia, Rabun Gap, Ga., October 15-17, Mrs. S. H. Askew, Rabun Gap-Nachoochee School, Rabun Gap, Ga.
Kentucky, Bowling Green, Ky., Oct. 14, Mrs. R. E. Douglas, Bowling Green, Ky.
Missouri, Spring, Mo., Oct. ?, Mrs. Frank Robertson.
709 S. Fremont, Springfield.
Mississippi, Gulfport, Miss., Oct. 30, Mrs. H. E. McCandless, 2400 E. Beach, Gulfport.
Oklahoma, Hugo, Okla., Oct. 22-23, Mrs. Bailey Spring, Goodland, Okla.
Tennessee met during the summer.
Texas met during the summer.
Virginia met during the summer.
North Carolina, Durham, October 15-17, Miss Aline McKenzie, Durham, N. C.

KINGS MOUNTAIN CONFERENCES

"The Group Conferences for Kings Mountain Presbyterial (N. C.), will be held on the following dates:
District No. 1 at West Avenue Church, Gastonia, at 10 a. m., September 4th; Mrs. S. P. Stowe, District Chairman.

District No. 2 at Spindale Church, at 10 a. m., on September 26th; Mrs. R. W. Logan, District Chairman.

All women of the Presbyterial are urged to attend one of these all-day meetings, bringing a light box-lunch. Interesting and helpful programs have been prepared. Mission speakers from China are expected, and we ask the prayers of our women for an especial blessing on these conferences.

Mrs. Coit M. Robinson, President.

GROUP CONFERENCE CONCORD PRESBYTERIAL

The Auxiliary of District No. 3, of Concord Presbyterial was held at Bethesda on Thursday, September 12, with Mrs. W. C. Pou, chairman of the district, presiding. The church was beautifully decorated with potted plants and cut flowers. There were 130 women in attendance from the various churches in the district. There were 40 representatives present from the First Church, Salisbury. This splendid representation won for them the attendance banner which is given to the church in the district having the largest number present.

Rev. J. D. Deans, pastor of Bethesda, conducted the devotional service at the opening of the meeting. The subject of his talk was service. He called for volunteer verses of scripture on service. Quite a number were given. Cordial words of welcome to the conference were spoken by Mrs. E. F. Owens, and a suitable response was given by Mrs. T. P. Fowler, of the Spencer Church.

Mrs. W. B. Ramsay, president of Mitchell College had the bible lesson. The subject of the lesson was prayer. She also made an appeal for Mitchell College, particularly for scholarships.

The inspirational address was by Miss Carrie Roberts, of Salisbury. She told in her most unusually interesting sweet way of her travels last year in the Holy Land. Her talk was illustrated with pictures, mounted flowers, some gathered from the garden of Gethsemane, and other interesting things.

Auxiliary Methods for Officers was presented by Mrs. Jno. Henderson; The Standard, by Mrs. C. E. Stevenson; Montreat Training School, by Mrs. Frank Gwin, and Our Birthday Gifts, by Mrs. Howard, of Salisbury.

An interesting part of the program was the report from the auxiliaries represented at the meeting.

Adding greatly to the program was the special music, which consisted of pleasing numbers being sung by Mrs. J. D. Deans, of Mooresville, Mrs. Faggett, of Salisbury, and Miss Elizabeth Cowan, of Statesville.

Miss Edmonia Martin, missionary to Brazil, told of her work there, especially the school work.

At noon a very bountiful dinner was served in the shade of the stately old oaks which surround the beautiful old Bethesda Church.

The women of the church proved themselves most gracious hostesses, having remembered everything that could add to the comfort of their guests.

The group conference for District No. 3 will be held next fall at Thyatira Church in Rowan County.

HOSPITAL AUXILIARY

The Presbyterian Hospital Auxiliary of Mecklenburg Presbytery held an enthusiastic meeting with an attendance of seventy-six members in the hospital parlor on Wednesday afternoon, September 11. The vice-president, Mrs. L. J. Crouch, presided.

A vase shower was given the hospital at this meeting, about fifty vases being contributed, and a dozen scrap books, made by a girls' circle for the children patients, were brought in. Announcement was made of the donation of thirteen additional hot plates, also of several more new magazine subscriptions for the patients.

Several ladies present from two country churches hitherto unrepresented in the Auxiliary were welcomed as new members.

The suggestion was made by the chairman of the linen committee that, if any of the Auxiliaries in the city churches are not prepared to contribute jelly for the shower at the October meeting, they might take that as an occasion for a linen shower, bringing from their circles gifts, not only of new linen, such as sheets and towels, but also pieces of old, soft linen, as a supply of the latter is useful in a hospital. The chairman of the Women's Ward Committee requested the prayer of the members for the work in that ward.

The Auxiliary adjourned to meet at the regular time, three-thirty, on the second Wednesday afternoon in October.

Mrs. Chesley Watkins,
Publicity Chairman of the Presbyterian Hospital Auxiliary.

A WHITE CROSS DAY IN FLORIDA

The members of the Westminster Auxiliary, Miami, Fla., recently held, at the home of Mrs. Frank Woorall, an interesting White Cross Day, under the auspices of Mrs. R. C. McGahey, secretary of Foreign Missions.

Although this is an annual affair, it was the first White Cross Day of our new Presbyterial, which came into being last April, when the new Miami Presbyterial was organized.

Although it was summer time with many of our members still absent, there was a large attendance. Sewing-machines hummed, needles and scissors flashed—witty speeches, too, occasionally—as garments were cut and made and bandages rolled for the Annie Edward Morrison Hospital, Lubondai, Africa.

The morning activities were interrupted by a bountiful lunch; but by three o'clock the last stitch was taken, the bandages packed in a beautiful basket brought by Dr. Reavis from Africa, the rest of the work piled upon a table-cover brought by Mrs. Martin from Africa many years ago.

A short program followed, conducted by Mrs. DeLacey Wardlaw, foreign mission secretary of the new presbyterial. After a prayer Mrs. Wilkinson and Mrs. Dalenberg, accompanist, sang a moving missionary hymn, after which Mrs. Yeager read the poem, "Give a Thought to Africa." "At the Sign of the White Cross," by Miss Eva Cavers, was given, not as a pageant, but with equally impressive effect. The speeches made by Cap, Apron, Bandage, Pillow-Case, Sheet, etc., had been types, numbered and cut apart, and were distributed among the women. Each one stood as she read per part, and the presence of the machines and the finished work formed appropriate stage-setting. This brilliant and appealing presentation of White Cross Work was new to the auxiliary and was pronounced both profitable and delightful. The president, Mrs. Theron Nisbet, concluded the program with prayer.

Mrs. Philip Jones, president of our new presbyterial, wound up our day by giving a most interesting account of Montreat and its activities and by paying a glowing tribute to its rich spiritual privileges.

A worried looking ranger drove into town, tied his team, and headed for the family doctor's office. Without preamble he began:

"Doc, the first time you're out our way, I wish you'd stop in and see my wife."

"Is she sick?" asked the doctor.

"Not exactly."

"What's the trouble, then?"

"Well, this morning she got up at the regular time, about four o'clock, milked the cows, got breakfast for the hands, done her housework, church, and long about ten o'clock she told me she felt a little tired. I expect she needs a tonic or something."—The Farmer's Wife.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Rev. Ernest Trice Thompson, D.D.

Lesson for September 29

REVIEW: SIGNIFICANCE OF THE EXILE AND THE RESTORATION

Our lessons this quarter have had to do with the fortunes of the Jews during the days of the Exile and the Restoration. They have centered about the life and work of six outstanding men: Ezekiel, Daniel, Zerubbabel, Ezra, Nehemiah, and Malachi. We will consider them in order.

I. Ezekiel: The Prophet of the Exile

We saw last quarter how Jerusalem was destroyed by the Babylonians and the people of Judah carried into captivity. A hundred and fifty years earlier Israel had suffered the same fate. But there was a tremendous difference between the ultimate fate of the two peoples. The ten tribes (Israel) were swallowed up by the peoples among whom they lived, and their religion perished with them. The Jews, as the men of Judah now began to be called, preserved their racial identity, and what is more, purified and preserved their religion. That Judah should have reacted thus differently to the captivity from Israel is due to the influence of her great prophets, Isaiah, Jeremiah, and in especial measure Ezekiel the great prophet of the Exile. H. P. Smith says that he "is the most influential man that we find in the whole course of Hebrew history; he emphasizes while he bridges the break between the older Israelitism of the past and the Judaism of the future. The conceptions of religion which he predicted for the later generations of his country men were actually theirs. All that was noble among the later Jews was the gift of Ezekiel handed down to them as a legacy from the earlier ages, and transformed by him so as to persist under the changed circumstances; and all that was evil in the Pharisaism that rejected Paul's gospel and slew the Lord of glory rose from a misunderstanding of the truths which it was given to Ezekiel to expound." This is not to say, of course, that Ezekiel was the greatest of the Hebrew prophets; it is to say that it was he who shaped in large measure the subsequent history of the Jews.

Who was the man and what was his message? We know little of his early life. He was a younger priest, carried captive by the Babylonians, during the days of Jehoiachin, eleven years before the destruction of Jerusalem. Five years later, when Ezekiel was just turned thirty, he received his prophetic call. While he was in a trance he saw a marvelous vision (Ezek. 1) which impressed upon him in an unforgettable manner the omnipresence, the omnipotence, the omniscience of God. Following that there came to him the clear call to proclaim God's message to men (Chap. 2). To impress upon him the necessity of delivering God's word he was commanded (so it seemed to him in the trance) to eat the roll of God's word. God did not promise him an easy task, but He did promise to give him the necessary strength. And Ezekiel would be held strictly responsible for the fulfillment of his task. He was set as a watchman over Israel, and if he failed to warn the people their blood would be upon his head.

Ezekiel's subsequent ministry was divided into two parts: the period prior to the destruction of Jerusalem, and the period subsequent to the destruction of Jerusalem. In the first period Ezekiel emphasized two great truths: (1) that Jerusalem would be destroyed. The Jews thought that God's interests were bound up with Jerusalem just as we are apt to think that God's purposes are bound up with the church. Ezekiel made the people see at the last that God's kingdom was not identified with the Jewish nation. (2) That every man was definitely responsible to God for his own soul (Ezek. 18, 33). The Jews thought that God dealt only with the nation, or with the church. Ezekiel insisted that he dealt with the individual: the soul that sinneth it shall die, . . . he that is just shall live. It followed for Ezekiel that man had a responsibility for the soul of his fellow man—his blood shall I require at thy hand 33:8. It was because Ezekiel got these two truths into the consciousness of the men of Judah that survived the captivity whereas the men of Israel in similar circumstances 150 years earlier had perished.

It was during the second period, subsequent to the destruction of Jerusalem, that Ezekiel accomplished the great constructive work of his career (Ezek. 25-48). In the earlier period he had dealt with the destruction of the old Jerusalem; now he speaks of the construction of the new Jerusalem. In the first section (25-32) he foretells the destruction of Israel's enemies, the enemies of the kingdom; in the second section (33-39) he deals with the restoration of the Jews, not only of their physical restoration to the land of Canaan, but also of their spiritual restoration; in the third section (40-48) he pictures the ideal religious organization of the redeemed people. This section reaches its climax in the beautiful picture of a river flowing out of the temple, deepening supernaturally as it flows, and transforming all the ugly features of Palestine's physical environment, enriching the desert so that fruit trees bear their fruit on its banks every month, and so that even the Dead Sea is filled with life. As Ezekiel inspires the people for the future, and lays down the laws of their future religious development, he does not fail to remind them that the influences which flow out of the temple must ultimately transform the whole environment of man.

Does Ezekiel have any message for the modern day? What is it?

II. Daniel the Statesman of the Exile

Daniel was a contemporary of Ezekiel, though his life work was developed on quite different lines. He had been taken as a captive into Babylonia as a mere boy, some years earlier than Ezekiel. He and other of the noble youths of Judah was brought up at the king's expense in the royal Academy. The expectation was that at the end of their period of training they should be received into the king's service. Here occurred (1) the first great testing of Daniel. It was in regard to the food that was sent down to him from the king's table. The food was rich no doubt, the wine had its danger then as now, but there were other considerations than those of hygiene. According to the Jewish law only certain animals were accounted clean, i. e., eatable, and even these had to be slain in such a manner as to leave no blood in the flesh before they could be eaten. Besides it was a custom among the heathen to bring a portion of that which was eaten and drunk by them as an oblation to the gods, and sometimes they also used for food animals that had already been offered at the altar of their gods. To partake of meat and wine that had been used in this connection was regarded as an act of worship. For Daniel no doubt it was a question of principle, but more than that, religion and nationality were at stake. Yet it was dangerous to refuse. It would mean no doubt the end to any advancement in the Babylonian Empire. It was hard too for a young lad to be different from his fellows. Thus the great temptation was presented to Daniel, off at college, away from the restraining influence of home and church, to conform to the customs of a heathen land. Nonetheless he purposed in his heart not to defile himself. And when the final test came at the end of the three years of training Daniel passed at the head of his class. He became one of the wisemen or soothsayers of the Babylonian empire, and when a year later he alone was able to disclose to the king a dream which he had forgotten, and then to interpret it he was made viceroy of the province of Babylon, and chief governor over all the wisemen of Babylon. This position it seems that he retained during the remaining days of Nebuchadnezzar.

(2) Belshazzar's Feast. Dan. 5. Nebuchadnezzar finally died after a long and brilliant reign of 43 years. He was succeeded on the throne by a number of weaklings, the last of whom was Nabonidus. The crown prince, and Nabonidus' associate on the throne was Belshazzar. During the reign of these two kings Cyrus, king of Persia, was into power. While Nabonidus was with his armies in the field Cyrus' General, Gobryas, entered Babylon without a struggle. Belshazzar retired with his army into one of the great temple fortresses, and there prepared to withstand the enemy. But one night he gave a great feast to a thousand of his lords. As he came under the influence of the wine he sent for the sacred vessels of the Jews, and profaned them by drinking wine to his own gods. While he drank there came a great hand and wrote mystic words on the wall. Daniel gave him the interpretation: Thou art weighed in the balances and found wanting. Thy kingdom is divided and given to the Medes and Persians. That very night while the lords were in a drunken stupor the Persians entered the citadel. Belshazzar was slain. Cyrus became the master of the Eastern world.

(3) Daniel in the Lion's Den (Dan. 6). Daniel had not been in favor with Nebuchadnezzar's successors, but he was restored to his old position by Darius, the Mede, Cyrus' vice-regent in Babylon. The whole country was divided into 120 provinces, and the 120 satraps were put under the supervision of three presidents, of whom Daniel was one. In this position, largely because he was a Jew, he excited the jealousy of his colleagues. They persuaded Darius to pass a law that for 30 days no petition should be made to any man or god save to himself. Daniel continued to pray unto his God as he had always done, and as they well knew that he would do. He was taken at his devotions, and the king forced against his will to thrust him into the lions' den, as the law provided. The next morning, however, it was discovered that Daniel had not been harmed. He was taken out of the pit, and the fate visited upon his enemies which they had wished for him. A few years later Daniel passed on to his reward, ripe in wisdom and full of honors and years.

Does Daniel's career have any value for our own day? What is it?

III. Zerubbabel, the Leader of the First Return

Ezra 1-6

Cyrus initiated a new policy in the treatment of conquered peoples. Both the Assyrians and the Babylonians thought it wise to deport the people whom they conquered, in order that they might break their national spirit. Cyrus thought it wiser to treat them justly, in order that they might become loyal citizens of his larger empire. In accordance with this policy he issued a decree in the first year of his reign (after the conquest of Babylon) that the Jews and other people residing in Babylon might go to their own homes. He was especially generous to the Jews, giving them substantial gifts to enable them to rebuild their beloved temple.

Most of the Jews, as was natural, preferred to remain in Babylon. They had their homes there, and were succeeding in business. Fifty thousand of the people, however, were willing to undertake the venture. Zerubbabel back into Palestine. As so had established their homes in Jerusalem as a rounding country they resumed their nation and made preparations for the rebuilding of the Samaritans asked to share in the project, curtly refused their offer, and reminded them had no part in the worship of Jehovah. They then set themselves in opposition to the work discouraged and terrified the workers that the construction was halted. Then two prophets, Haggai and Zechariah, who put a new spirit into the people and into their leaders. The work was resumed and in a short time the temple was completed.

Is there anything that we can learn from the experience of Jews who returned to Palestine under the leadership of Zerubbabel? What?

IV. Malachi Who Foretold the Coming Messenger

Sixty years went by. The Jews in Palestine prospered. The glowing promises of Haggai and Zechariah seemed impossible of fulfillment. There seemed a curse upon the land, and religion languished. In the time there arose an unknown prophet who gave the name of Malachi. He spoke to them as a Messenger. There was need for a messenger. The people had begun to doubt God's love, to neglect his altars, and profaned their own homes, and all they had grown sceptical of God's justice. It no longer seemed profitable to serve the Lord. He told the people that God would send His messenger who would prepare the way for the coming of the Messiah. Malachi called upon the people to return unto the Lord—they might see no profit in the Lord's service. The final judgment would decide their eternal fate. Realizing perhaps his own inability adequately to persuade them he declared that God's Messenger would come in the spirit of Elijah, and he would turn again unto God.

Does Malachi have any message for the modern day? What is it?

V. Ezra the Leader of the Second Return

Ezra took up and carried on the work which Zerubbabel had begun. He lived in Babylon, and was a different sort of scribe from the ordinary scribes. Ezra's day the scribes were copyists (the printing presses) or secretaries. Ezra's job was to copy the Law of Moses. And as he toiled over this purpose took hold of his life. He set his heart upon the law of Jehovah, and to do it, and to teach the statutes and ordinances (Ez. 7:10). And that was fortunate, for if the religious life of Israel had not revived the preaching of Malachi needed to be followed by the instruction that Ezra was to give.

In order to carry out his great purpose Ezra returned to Palestine with such Jews as cared to go with him. About 8000 in all made the journey. It was not a very propitious one. When he returned to Jerusalem he was alarmed by the many changes between Jew and Samaritan. He persuaded the people to put away their heathen wives. And that was the work of Ezra till thirteen years have passed. He assumed that there was a reaction against the reforming policy. But no doubt he continued to preach in Jerusalem, and at the last his teaching also bore fruit.

Does Ezra have anything to teach the modern day? What is it?

VI. Nehemiah, the Leader of the Third Return

Book of Nehemiah

The preaching of Malachi, the teaching of Ezra, had been fruitless had it not been for the return of Nehemiah, a practical politician and a bold man. He held a high position in the court of Artaxerxes. When he heard of the miserable situation of Jerusalem, its walls broken down, its gate burned, he asked the king that he be allowed to return to Jerusalem and rebuild its walls. The king consented, and sent him out as Governor.

Nehemiah's first task was to rebuild the walls of Jerusalem, which was absolutely necessary if the city was to have security, or if the people were to retrieve their national spirit. He laid his plans carefully, aroused the energy of the whole city, gave everybody a work to do, and everybody to co-operate, kept up the spirits of the people, refused to be intimidated by the threats of the Samaritans, turned aside by their wives, or discouraged by the obstacles. The result was that in 52 days the walls were completed. The feat transformed the spirit of the community.

Nehemiah's second task was to renew the national conscience to Jehovah, and to ground it in a thorough knowledge of the word of God. From this time forward Ezra worked together. On the first day of the return all the people were brought together to hear the word which God had spoken through Moses. This was of the utmost importance, for hitherto the Law had been largely an unknown book so far as the people were concerned. They had depended mostly on the oral tradition of prophet and priest. Ezra and Nehemiah declared that this was a sound basis for the religious

(Continued on page 11)

LDREN

HORSE ROUND-UP

sat on his horse and look-valley at the herd of wild near the side of the hills.
another horse, was Bill
reatest wild horse catcher

id, "the round-up is going soon. Are you sure you saddle?"

replied Ben, smiling. He me on the back of a horse
the seat of an automoad never had the chance Bill Weston, who was al-him about his riding. In ted his cowboy friend to morous reply, but instead ipped his arm in excite-

" he cried. "Isn't that a are my eyes telling me

the grays and the browns wild horses, was a single standing nervously at at-gh it had already scented
tself and its followers.

a sharp breath of surprise.
the cowboys talking about horse that some of them
hich none of them had been hey spoke of it as a white down the valley with the s. They said it had the sh from sight; because y had "cornered" it only steriously disappear. The unreal and fanciful that m very seriously.

ite Stallion!" Ben gasped.
e stories were fairy tales!"
plied Bill Weston. "Which
n't know as much about

I'm supposed to know.
nce between other cow-is this: They have merely Stallion. I'm going to his grip on the reins and se toward the wild herd.

n, at the same time glance
lley to where he and Bill
e funnel-shaped entrance
they hoped to drive the
the corral.

Stallion is the leader of d Bill. "If we can get him
t direction, the rest will

at in rounding-up wild nwise to get the animals
he approached the herd
the intention of getting ward the corral without But just as he was about is purpose, he heard low s coming from the other tains. Looking up, he saw reading rapidly over the

" grumbled Bill Weston. ml Let's hope it stays
w get the White Stallion
the corral so that it will apede him the rest of the opes were soon shattered.

bk cloud was by this time of the sun and the valley go darken as though night
There was a sudden flash
fowed almost immediately
ek of thunder.

tallion started nervously,
ead in surprise and alarm
moment with quivering ng for a repetition of the ng. The rest of the herd about him, waiting for a course of action.

shouted Bil. "Start the too late!"

and snapped his whip
ough the air, spurring his herd at the same time.
nearest horse shied away
ooling with other animals

cer of the group. They,
because of the thunder,
as a result the entire herd
oward the corral.

s that the White Stallion
orse who did not follow

A MUSIC LESSON

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color).

YELLOW-haired Susie May is giving a music lesson to her YELLOW-haired Dolly, BROWN Teddy-bear and BROWN-haired Teddy, too.

Susie May wears a PINK (use RED lightly) dress dotted and edged with light BLUE.

Dolly wears an ORANGE (use RED and YELLOW mixed) colored frock. The soles of her shoes are YELLOW.

Teddy-bear wears a GREEN and white checked blouse and his collar is PURPLE. His feet are BROWN.

Teddy wears a light-YELLOW sailor suit with RED tie and stripe on the arm. His socks are YELLOW, too, but his shoes are BROWN. Teddy holds a song book with an ORANGE color cover.

The bench is RED and the grass is GREEN. The sky is BLUE.

Paint the house GREEN with a GRAY (use Black lightly) stone base and BROWN shutter and sill. There is a GRAY stone wall behind. The children and Dolly have PINK cheeks and Susie May holds a RED chalk in her hand. Teddy-bear has GREEN eyes. Dolly and Teddy have RED lips and Teddy-bear has a RED mouth.

The border of this picture can be colored RED and the lettering BLUE.

this movement blindly. He was still standing alert, his ears up, his whole body in a tense, listening attitude. The herd swept on in a frenzied panic, but still he refused to move. In front of him was Ben, shouting and snapping his whip, but behind him was the storm; and at that moment there was a second flash of lightning and another crash of thunder nearer and louder than the first. At this, the White Stallion took sudden fright. He rose high upon his hind legs and shied off to the left, breaking into a gallop as he regained all-fours.

Ben swerved and turned with him. The boy knew that White Stallion was probably the faster horse, and if he once got ahead, he would escape from the valley and go free, and so to prevent the wild horse from pulling ahead, Ben jerked his reins and threw the weight of his own horse against the head and shoulders of the stallion. This confused the wild horse so that he changed his direction a trifle and stumbled a few steps before regaining his former speed.

"Look at that boy ride!" cried Bill Weston, to another of the round-up cowboys. "He's trying to edge the stallion around!"

The rest of the herd had scattered hopelessly, and Bill Weston was watching the strenuous duel between Ben Johnson and the wild horse.

Ben glanced up once and saw that by repeated collisions he had swung the stallion in a huge semi-circle, so that now he was headed just to the left of the funnel opening to the corral.

Could he force him in with another try? They were almost on top of the fence as it was, and if the stallion ever got by, he would escape.

The wild horse seemed to sense the fact that he was being forced into a trap, so he bore outward and resisted Ben's attempt to turn his head toward the funnel. But with a tremendous pull on his reins, Ben threw himself and his horse directly across the head of the stallion. There was a dull thud as the two horses met. The stallion was swerved off to the right, and Ben's horse was knocked away to the left with such force that its rider was thrown heavily to the ground.

When Ben opened his eyes again, Bill Weston was leaning over him anxiously. "How do you feel, Ben?"

Ben winced as he tried out his arms and legs. They had been bruised and sprained, but no bones had been broken.

"I'm all right, I guess," he said. "But I'm pretty sore at myself."

"Why?" asked Bill.

"Getting the White Stallion so close to the corral and then losing him just because I couldn't stay in my saddle."

Bill grinned.

"You didn't lose the White Stallion," he said, "come here. I'll show you."

They walked to the edge of the corral and looked over the fence. Heaving and panting from his exertion was Ben's own horse, and running around the corral in an attempt to find a way to get out was the White Stallion!

"You were inside the funnel when you took the tumble," explained Bill. "Both horses kept right on through the gate, and I let the bars down."

For a moment Ben was silent.

"And if it's the tumble you're worrying about," Bill went on. "Forget it. You did the neatest piece of riding this afternoon that I've ever seen anybody do, and that includes the riding that I do myself. I want you to stay out with me for the rest of the month. Will you do it?"

"Sure," agreed Ben; and two weeks later, a cowboy rode into the camp on a white horse that had just been tamed and broken.

"White Stallion!" exclaimed Ben. "Isn't he a great horse. You're lucky to have him."

"You're the lucky one," returned the cowboy. "White Stallion is for you."

"For me?"

"Sure," replied Bill Weston, grinning. "You caught him, didn't you?"

PUZZLE CORNER

Junior Cross-Word Puzzle

Horizontal

- 1 A bag filled with gas
- 6 Own (Scot.)
- 7 Title
- 9 Conjunction
- 10 Short sleep
- 11 Sailor
- 12 Comparative ending
- 13 River in Brazil
- 14 Case of wood
- 15 A small fish

Vertical

- 1 Flags
- 2 Anything that gives out light
- 3 An untruth
- 4 Forward
- 5 To tell a story
- 8 Swiss river
- 9 Row
- 11 Taxicab (short)
- 13 Seed covering
- 14 British (abbr.)

CHURCH NEWS

NORTH CAROLINA SYNOD AT ROCKY MOUNT

The Synod of North Carolina will meet in its 116th stated session in the First Presbyterian Church, Rocky Mount, N. C., on Tuesday, October 8, 1929, at 7:30 p. m. Rev. Willard Conger, the pastor, is chairman of the committee on program. All requests for special orders should be made through him.

R. A. McLeod, S. C.

MEETING OF SYNOD OF WEST VIRGINIA

A Correction

The Presbyterian Standard,
Charlotte, N. C.
Brethren:

I have just discovered the minutes of the Assembly has listed the Synod of West Virginia as meeting October 15th. I do not know how this error occurred as our minutes distinctly state that Synod adjourned to meet October 8th. When you print the dates of the meetings of Synod will you please make the date for our Synod October 8th, hour and place as in the minutes of the Assembly.

H. H. Orr, S. C.

SOUTH CAROLINA SYNOD AT ANDERSON

South Carolina Synod will meet in the First Church, Anderson, S. C., on Tuesday, September 24, at the First Presbyterian Church, at 8 p. m.

H. W. Pratt, S. C.

MEETING OF JUNIOR BOARD

Trustees Are to Meet at Maxton, N. C., on Friday, September 27, and Not on Tuesday, September 24, as Previously Determined

There will be a meeting of the Board of Trustees of Presbyterian Junior College for Men, on Friday afternoon, September 27, at two o'clock. This will be a very important meeting and we are hoping that every member will be present. Lunch will be served in the college dining-room at one o'clock and members of the board are expected to arrive by that hour.

At eight o'clock p. m. of the same day we will have a public reception for the purpose of introducing our college to the Presbyterians of the State.

E. H. Evans, Chairman.

J. P. Wiggins, Secretary.

CHARLOTTE DISTRICT, MECKLENBURG PRESBYTERIAL

The Charlotte District of the Mecklenburg Presbyterial will meet at the First Church, Charlotte, at 11 a. m., October 11.

All Presbyterian women of this district are expected to attend, and all are asked to be prompt and bring a lunch.

NORTH CAROLINA

Presbyterian Orphans' Home, Barium Springs —

The first church wedding ever held in Little Joe's Church was solemnized on the evening of September 4, at 7:00 o'clock, when Miss Margaret Adams, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Brown, became the wife of Mr. Robert Collier, attorney of Statesville. The bride's father performed the ceremony. We would like very much to speak at length of this beautiful wedding, but space prohibits it.

On last Sunday, in the absence of our Pastor, who was away in a service at Salem Church, the pulpit at Little Joe's Church was filled by Rev. Rowland Sims of Statesville. Mr. Sims is no stranger at Barium, having preached for us several times before. We are always glad to have him. He was accompanied by his mother.

Turner Church, Monroe — Services began at this Church on the evening of July 29 and continued over Sunday, August 4. There were two services each day, one at 3:00 p. m. and one at night. Rev. E. A. Dillard of Tenth Avenue Church, Charlotte, and Rev. R. J. McIlwaine, Evangelist of Union County, were in charge of the meeting, Mr. Dillard doing the preaching. Mr. Chenot, Musical Director and Assistant to the Pastor of Tenth Avenue Church, led the music part of the time. The attendance and interest were good. Much pastoral visiting and personal work were done during the week. The people greatly enjoyed Mr. Dillard's good preaching, Mr. Chenot's service of song and the christian fellowship of both. There were eleven accessions to the church, one by statement and the other ten by profession of faith. The sacrament of the Lord's supper was administered on the last day of the meeting.

Locust—Protracted services began at this church on August 18 by the pastor, Rev. W. C. Cooper, who was joined by Rev. R. J. McIlwaine, of Monroe, on the following day. Services continued over the following Sabbath, Mr. McIlwaine doing the preaching. There were no accessions during the meeting but we are sure that the good seed of the kingdom which was sown in abundance will not return unto Him void, according to the promise. This is Mr. Cooper's first charge, coming here from the seminary last spring. He is greatly interested in his work and is laying himself out for it. He seems to have the favor of the people and we believe the favor of God and we look for some permanent results. We have here the school building of Stanley Hall and twelve acres of land adjoining the church property. This property should be deeded to the church for a manse and glebe. A manse should be erected at an early date, as it is not good for a preacher to be alone. The communion was administered on the last sabbath of the meeting.

Lexington—The First Church has had its fifth Consecutive Daily Vacation Bible School with 110 children attending. The pastor and session asked for twenty-five volunteer workers to conduct the Bible Schools of the summer and they rejoiced that more volunteered than were needed. This is characteristic of its membership. The bible school was the finest one yet and the leaders hope to have each succeeding year a better one. The pastor, Rev. J. Rupert McGregor acts as superintendent of these schools.

The Dacotah and South Lexington Sunday Schools had a joint Daily Vacation Bible School with an attendance of 125 boys and girls, The South Lexington Sunday School is just a little more than two years old and has had two hundred attending. The young men's Bible class of fifty and the young woman's Bible class taught by Miss Lena Schultz leads the young men. This is an extension work of the First Church with one of her deacons, Charlie E. Williams as superintendent. The plan is to combine the Dacotah and South Lexington work into one Church to be called the Second Presbyterian Church. A beautiful lot has been secured in the midst of the field which is rapidly building up with fine people.

Teachey—The third Daily Vacation Bible School was held this year from June 23 to July 5. It was conducted by the Misses Miriam Anderson and Jane Russell of the Assembly's Training School with the assistance of several of the local workers. The total enrollment was 58. This was the largest of any previous school. The daily attendance was also the best of any previous school. There was no regular handwork period but drawing and notebook work in connection with the Bible lesson were substituted. Eight pupils recited the Child's Catechism and received New Testaments and certificates for the same.

The church and community were blessed by a revival service held in the Church from August 25 to September 1. The preacher was the Rev. A. T. Lassiter who is Evangelist for the Synod of North Carolina. Large congregations heard Mr. Lassiter at both the morning and evening services and were helped by his straight forward presentation of the Gospel Message. There were five additions to the Church. Further visible results were that about seventy-five reconsecrated their lives and about ninety promised to read the Bible and pray daily. Many of these were the young people of the community. The pastor of this church is the Rev. S. C. Harness.

Galatia—On August 11 Rev. A. T. Lassiter came to us to conduct a series of meetings. Such attendance I have never seen, the auditorium as well as the galleries were filled from the first services. We enjoyed a real week of Gospel preaching and fellowship together. The visible results were 19 united with the Church on profession of faith, there were several reconsecrations and several promised to hold family prayer. I am sure that the effect of the meeting will be visible for quite awhile. We thank Brother Lassiter for coming to us and preaching so earnestly and faithfully the simple gospel, which proves yet to be the Power of God unto the Salvation of Souls.

The Pastor has just returned home from conducted a meeting for Rev. E. B. Carr, at Mt. Pisgah Church. The Church here was filled to its capacity from the first services, as a result of this meeting. There were ten professions of faith, all of which united with the church.

On August 29, we had to meet with us the Cumberland County Interdenominational Sunday School Convention. We had some inspiring and helpful talks on the Sunday School work. I only wish that more of our pastors, leaders and members realized the value of the Sunday School.

F. M. Bain, Pastor.

Parkton, Fayetteville Presbytery—On August 23 we concluded a most satisfactory and successful Church Bible School in the Lumber Bridge Presbyterian Church. It was under the able and efficient superintendency of Miss Carrie McMillan of Parkton, a graduate of the Assembly's Training School, of Richmond, Va., and a Post Graduate of the Biblical Seminary, of New York City. We were fortunate indeed to have Miss McMillan, who with her ability and efficiency plus her beautiful Christian spirit, did more than any other one thing or person to guarantee the success of the school.

Please let me stop long enough here, to most heartily recommend her to any one planning to do special work with their young people.

We had more than 80 pupils enrolled besides the splendid corps of teachers and departmental superintendents. We awarded 45 certificates for perfect attendance and 39 gold stars for doing all assigned work and the other work of the school.

We had four departments Beginners, Primary and Intermediate. Each department entered in with interest and earnestness, which was throughout the entire ten days.

We all feel that the Church and Sunday both been greatly benefitted by the school. Not had one, try a Church Bible School in and note the results.

Chas. E. Clark

Mecklenburg Presbytery met in adjourned session at the First Church, Charlotte, Monday, September 23. There were present 35 ministers and elders. Frazer, presiding.

It was reported that Rev. W. W. Akers, installed as pastor of West Avenue Church following ministers had been ordained at Rev. W. C. Cooper, Oakboro, and Locust McFall, Morven, Lilesville and Camden; Burney, Sugaw Creek, and Rev. M. B. Prince and Polkton.

Dr. F. A. Barron, of Charleston, W. Va. was elected to the Presbytery. He made a talk of fund. The Presbytery extended a vote of Dr. Charles R. Nisbet in the recent loss of License to preach was granted to J. A. M. M. will have charge of churches at Pageland and Beulah.

Bruce Peabody, son of Rev. M. E. Peabody, received as a candidate for the ministry, and will study his study at Davidson College upon the fall term.

Rev. E. A. Dillard reported the establishment of a church at Nivens.

It was announced that the Fall meeting will be held at Brainerd Church, near Rockingham, at 11 o'clock on September 22.

Laurinburg—During August this Church was supplied by several distinguished ministers: Dr. J. H. House, Laurinburg; Rev. W. B. S. Chaney, N. C.; Dr. Wm. A. McLeod, Cuero, Tex. A. D. McArn, Camden, S. C., a son of the pastor. Through the generosity of a member of this church and his family had a most refreshing visit to Niagara, Toronto, and Finger Lake, New York state.

A district convention of young people of Fayetteville Presbytery was held at Laurinburg School Building September 4. In spite of a rain over forty were in attendance and a conference under the direction of Miss F. McNair, Maxton, District President, and M. Fayetteville, President in Fayetteville. A social hour with refreshments followed the convention.

The Sunday school recently presented a New Testament, Mount of Olives woodcut edition. Members who graduated from high school are going to college this Fall. They are McCormick; Miss Laura Graham Wilkins; Thomas Henley. In our Bible reading contest close of the ninth week since the plan of 10,982 chapters have been read by members a total equivalent to a single person having read the bible nine times and 191 chapters over that this bible reading contest, recently developed, is a most helpful feature in our school. We are glad to see others adopt it.

Hickory—On Sunday, September 8, 1929, elders were ordained and installed in the Presbyterian Church of Hickory. Two of the new elders were J. W. Bingham and P. W. Bumbarger. The Church for a number of years as deacons Messrs. A. J. Bradshaw and J. L. Hendon held official positions in the Church. The session is rejoicing in the addition of such material to the personnel of the office. The method followed in the election of these elders was universal satisfaction and commendation. The election was given, of course, a discussion from the pulpit of the method and qualifications for the office, etc. So on the morning set, there was balloting for no other purpose. All members were asked to cast ballot for the office. It was agreed that there should be considered as nominated, and these six, three or more should be elected. The rest of the session retired to count the ballots. The rest of the service, including the election, was carried on. At the conclusion of the service the six highest were announced, and it was plain that at the morning service the day, the election would be completed. The same procedure was followed. The members were asked to vote for three of the six not yet elected. The ballots had been counted it was found that four men named above had each received a majority of the ballots cast, and they were elected.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Enoree Presbytery will meet at Union First Church on October 15, 1929, at 11 o'clock.

APPALACHIA

Elders were recently elected, ordained

Asheville Church has enjoyed the visit of pastor, Rev. P. N. Gresham, who preached recently.

Presbytery—Reports from the field indicate that R. S. Eskridge is doing a great work in part of the Presbytery. Present plans are to cover part of Haywood, Jackson, Cherokee, and Clay counties. Mr. Eskridge has entered with a fine spirit of devotion and enthusiasm.

Great Church had a Vacation Bible school "outside the gate," which was a delight to the pupils. Thirty-six were enrolled, and catecheses of the scriptures, and hymns were learned. Messrs. McCutchen and Wyly were assisted by Dr. Willis Wilson, and others. It is hoped that the school will grow as the years go by. The Great Auxiliary will be hostess to Synodical, this month.

Special evangelistic services have been held, with Rev. Walter K. Beaty doing the large congregations attended every service interest being manifested throughout the city. Beaty is a real gospel preacher, with an evangelistic zeal and passion for souls. Practically every congregation signified a desire to live lives of devotion to God and consecration to His service. Six who made their profession of faith were, indeed, grateful to God for this meet-

Presbytery—At a call meeting held in the Church at Highlands, on Thursday night, 7:30 p. m., a Presbyterian Church was organized of those uniting with the new organization profession of faith in Christ as their Savior. The ordinance of baptism. Doctor Gilbert and Messrs. Henry Holt, and L. C. Rice were elected elders, and Messrs. Henry Holt, and L. C. Rice were elected deacons. Superintendent Rev. H. B. Dendy, superintendent of the Highlands Church.

Meeting of Presbytery, Mr. R. L. Alexander was elected as a candidate from Meridan Presbytery for licensure. His examination was satisfactory, and he was licensed to preach in the Presbytery adjourned to meet in the Brevard Church on Thursday night, August 22, at 7:30 p. m., to ordain and install these officers in the Highlands Church.

of Asheville—At a called meeting September 10, W. Carrigan Wilson was received into the Presbytery as a candidate for the ministry. Wilson will enter Union Seminary in the beginning of the term. Carrigan Wilson resigned as pastor of Montreat and was dismissed to Kings Mountain Presbytery. He expects to enter his work as pastor of the Lincolnton Church Sunday, September 22.

Rev. W. A. Murray, of Black Mountain, was elected to succeed Dr. Wilson as stated clerk of Asheville Presbytery.

Mountain Orphanage, Black Mountain—Our sixty children are off to school again. They attend the fine state school at Swannanoa, thus saving for the Orphanage the salaries of three teachers. This economy enables us to care for our children at a small cost. But speaking of costs, can you imagine buying books and school supplies, shoes and other clothing for sixty children? Those of our friends with smaller families might remember us in our difficulty and send a check to help buy books and shoes. Heed the admonition, "Do it now."

We have sixty children and have room for ten more if food and clothing could be provided. With our present force of helpers we could care for this number with the only additional cost of food and clothing or for about $15 per month per child. We are praying that ten individuals or organizations might be found who will take the care of one child each. Recently we have received applications of forty homeless children who are begging for entrance that they might be given a home and a chance in life. Two bright little boys are bereft of parents who came to Asheville for health reasons. First the father then the mother died leaving the children homeless. Surely some Auxiliary Circle or Sunday School Class will remove the handicap from these children and help us take care of them.

Please let us hear from you.

Programs that the orphanage boys and girls have been giving in the various churches: The Weaverville Presbyterian Church congregation enjoyed one recently. The Sunday following, Ora Street Church in Asheville was visited. August 11th, West Asheville Presbyterian Church invited them for an especially good program given under the supervision of Miss Penland and Mrs. Gaillard, who directs the choruses.

Miss Blanche Penland, who with Miss Mary Currell, has done such fine work during the summer, in the Vacation Church School, has agreed to remain with us as the girls' matron. Miss Edna Honeycutt, who has had double duty, will now, as a sewing matron only, be able to give more care to the children's clothes.

J. H. Gruver, Superintendent.

Franklin—Rev. S. R. Crockett changes his address from Waynesville, N. C., to Franklin, where he has taken charge of Maxwell Training School, an institution of Asheville Presbytery. Mr. Crockett writes:

Maxwell is a farm home for boys. We take the mountain boys of this section who are old enough to help with the farm work and are trying to give them a home with practical christian training.

We are thinking rather of that large class who will likely in after life have to make their living with their hands. If we find a boy who is especially apt and ambitious for a higher education we will try to place him where he can get it, but there are many worthy boys who are capable of making self-respecting Christian citizens who do not desire to go beyond the high school and some not even that far. Those who are sufficiently advanced we send to the high school at Franklin; the others go to the county school which is located conveniently to the farm.

At present like other good institutions we are in need of funds to help meet overhead expenses. We have a good mountain farm, a gift of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Slagle in memory of their son, Maxwell, who died years ago. This farm represents a very generous and sacrificial gift on their part. And we feel we are doing a rather special service in trying to reach and help the homeless boys of our mountain and train them in such a way that they will go out to make self-supporting Christian men and establish homes which will be an asset and not a liability to any community where they may chance to settle.

We would like to take in more boys but can only do so as the friends of such a work make definite provision for their support.

S. R. Crockett, Supt.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

(Continued from page 8)

read the Word and explained it to the people from early morning till high noon. The second day the experiment was continued. Adjournment was then taken till the Feast of Tabernacles. This feast lasted from the 15th to the 22nd, and every day the Word was read to the people. The 23rd was observed as a day of sacred worship. On the 24th the people came together again: three hours were spent in reading the Word, three hours were spent in prayer and in the public confession of sin; and then the princes of the people signed a solemn covenant, which all the people ratified. According to this Covenant the people entered "into a curse and into an oath to walk in God's law, which was given by Moses the servant of God, and to observe and do all the commandments of Jehovah our Lord, and his ordinances and statutes." With this event the history of the Old Testament comes properly to an end. The Jews had become the people of the Book.

Is there anything which our age needs to learn from Nehemiah—the man or his work? What is it?

BOOKS

(Continued from page 6)

that its point of view is worthy of consideration by all denominations. The whole book is worth reading, but chapters eight and ten are of special value. They treat of the two vital topics: "The Money Problem in Rural Churches" and "The Appeal of the Rural Pastorate."

Henry W. McLaughlin,
Country Church Director.

MUCH QUICKER TIME FOR THE PIEDMONT LIMITED

Mr. R. H. Graham, Div. Pass. Agt. Southern Railway at Charlotte, has received advice from Passenger Department headquarters at Washington that the Piedmont Limited, train No. 33, which now leaves New York at 3:40 p. m., will, beginning September 29, be changed to leave New York, 6:35 p. m., passing Washington, 11:55 p. m., arriving Greensboro, 7:25 a. m., Salisbury, 9:05 a. m., Charlotte, 10:10 a. m., and Atlanta at 5:00 p. m. (E.T.) instead of 4:50 p. m.

Connections will be made at Greensboro for Durham, Raleigh and Winston-Salem.

This change gives very much better schedule than ever before as it gives a full business day in New York, leaving New York at 6:35 p. m. instead of in the early afternoon 3:40 p. m. as at present.

WATER TEST

person Quarries, owned by Granite Corporation and located in Rion, South Carolina, and at Rion, S. C., three water tests to grade stone. If the stone is of straight grain, no streaks or splotches, no grain, it is graded as granite, and sells at a high price. If any water appears when water is poured on the stone, it is not Winsboro, but is graded "Smith" and sold at a lower price.

Winsboro Granite should be used in their contracts, ask for quarry and also make the water tests show up plainly when wet with water if there are defects in the block. Dry stone shows up defects so readily when buying Winsboro

Granite, wet the stone and see for yourself that you get certificate from the quarry through your dealer, to the effect that the stone used in your monument is Winsboro Granite. With that certificate and with the water test, you can be sure that you have the best monumental material known to the world.

It costs a little more, but only 30 per cent. of monument cost is for material, so that the higher price of Winsboro

Granite means very little in the increase of the price of the monument; but it means a great deal in the satisfaction of knowing that it is the best monument possible—the most permanent, the most beautiful, flawless.

Write for the free booklet showing attractive monumental designs. Winsboro Granite Corporation, Rion, S. C.—Adv.

Football Games

CAROLINA vs. GEORGIA TECH—FRIDAY OCTOBER 11th

YALE vs. GEORGIA—SATURDAY, OCTOBER 12th

via

Seaboard Air Line Railway

SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY

$10.06 Charlotte to Atlanta $10.06

and return with stop off at Athens to see Yale-Georgia game. Do not miss these two wonderful football games, which start:

Carolina vs. Georgia Tech at Atlanta 2:00 P. M.

Yale vs. Georgia at Athens 2:00 P. M.

Seaboard dining cars will be parked at Athens serving all meals. The Seaboard is the only road having Atlanta and Athens on its main line. Proportionately low rates from all stations on the Seaboard in North Carolina. Inquire of ticket agent, or call on

JOHN T. WEST, D. P. A.
Telephone 2700 Raleigh, N. C.

SPECIAL EXCURSION FARES

to

WASHINGTON, D. C.
SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Friday, September 20, 1929

Round Trip Fare From
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

$12.00

Final Limit 5 Days

Big League Baseball Games
St. Louis Browns

vs.

Washington Senators
Philadelphia Athletics

vs.

Washington Senators
ASK TICKET AGENTS

WORTH $60.00 IN THE SPRING

delivered postpaid 15 pounds seed and NitrA-Germ inoculant one acre with oats or rye. October. Grows during winter months tons of hay to the acre by your land with Vetch. NitrA-Germ inoculant shr d hlsdrdbttt NitrA-Germ Company Savannah, Ga.

STORY

CHRISTMAS ON A BATTLESHIP

"Messenger" readers will no doubt be interested in the following description of the Christmas celebration on the U. S. S. Pennsylvania. The Chaplain, Rev. Herbert Dumstrey, is a member of Philadelphia Classis, and the article is a good description of some of the fine service he is rendering. On this occasion 70 children were entertained by the boys of the navy, and the crew gave over $700, each child receiving the value of $10. It is the duty of the Chaplain to buy everything necessary for this Christmas treat. One of the guests on the battleship, Miss Faustina Nenno, gives the following account of the party from the children's viewpoint:

Nine o'clock on Christmas morning. A dozen children have already gathered at the Pine street pier, Long Beach. Half past nine, and more children—little boys wearing coats much too big, blue overalls faded by sun and washtub, feet bare to the chill air of December mornings; little girls with coats thrown open showing neat print dresses made especially for this gala occasion, shoes worn out at the toes, gay tamo'shanter's set on curly heads, straight hair—mysteriously kinked—for was this not a great day? The leisure population of the city encircled the group and asked: "What is going on there?" "The Christmas guests of the battleship Pennsylvania are gathering," we tell them. "Every year the navy men in our harbor play Santa Claus to hundreds of little folks who might otherwise be passed by when the busy old fellow is making his rounds," we explain further.

"Johnnie Wiener?" The ship's Chaplain is calling the roll, for each child is personally selected by Miss Mable Clever, of the Long Beach Welfare Bureau, and every one must be accounted for.

"Johnnie Wiener—you don't put 'wurst' on the end of that do you, Johnnie? Jimmie Clark? All right, Jimmie, stand in line over here. Sammy Penn?"

"I'm already here," pipes a small voice. "Miss Clever," begs a boy who is a little taller than the rest, "I know I am over twelve this year and too old to go to the party, but I went last year, and I'd like to go again. I won't mind if I don't get a box like the rest of them—I just want to go along." Well—yes—he could go.

A boat load of happy, cager children—a few sailors scattered about for safety, three or four mothers, and the boat moves out through the harbor.

The fleet, phantomlike in the distance, grows more distinct as the shore line fades. One can distinguish, on the nearer ship, a green tree placed above the great guns of each ship, and one hears in fancy the angel chorus of long ago caroling, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."

Now we draw near the Pennsylvania; she is festive in palm branches and ever-green wreaths; bluejackets wait on the deck for the arrival of the Christmas party. Soon we are being unloaded. The children are lifted over the side of the tossing boat by strong arms, and then they climb up the steep stairway to the deck. Now and then one is more timid or smaller than the rest, and is carried safely up. When all are aboard, the leader of each division of men is given five children by the Chaplain to take care of during the day, and the party has begun.

Officers and crew lose no time in making friends with the little guests, and all are busy walking about, chatting, or watching the antics of the organ grinder's monkey, which has been brought out for the day. The jolly Chaplain remarks that there is such a crowd of bluejackets around the monkey that the children can't get near. Buster, the ship's dog, shows a jealous disposition and claims his share of attention. Buster is an old-timer on the sea, for he has lived aboard the Pennsylvania for nine years. His one "game" leg, and his corpulency render him feeble and slow of action; but the fact that he is the only survivor of eight who once walked the decks of the Pennsylvania and called it "home," is proof of a tenacious nature and a constitution.

"How much turkey can you eat?" a bluejacket inquires of a little girl in his charge. "Oh, I can eat a whole ful," she declares.

Every body is hungry. The loaded with food. Each division for first prize of twenty-five the best decorations, using trees, streamers, bells, "snow," flags, and what not.

"I wish I had that much to day." These are sentiments of dinner.

Out on the deck a stage has and a magician is producing rabbits from empty kettles; bones and ropes in two and no whole again; finding red chiefs in unexpected places; hats and handkerchiefs from all of which is to prove to that the hand is quicker than to instruct them in methods of eggs and cabbages whenever gry.

When the stage is cleared, the program begins. Johnnie stands audience to speak a piece. I bulge with fruit salvaged from that the one button and butto can be coaxed together are str limit. The shirt has crept up a shoved down. It won't be she seems to be too much shirt. F ready, and the piece is spok knows how to stand on his he Chaplain calls him up for a p Susie and Mary sing a duet. D while the band furnishes the untrained feet touch the floor rhythmically as she does the d own creating.

Now is the big moment: S with his pack stuffed with

P·R·I·N·T·I·N·G

of every description

THE largest book or the smallest visiting card, we are equipped to serve you according to your needs.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD Publishing Company

P. O. Box 869 Charlotte, N. C.

QUALITY PRINTING & REASONABLE PRICE

MOST people depend on Bayer Aspirin to make short work of headaches, but did you know it's just as effective in the worse pains from neuralgia or neuritis? Rheumatic pains, too. Don't suffer when Bayer Aspirin can bring complete comfort without delay, and without harm; it does not affect the heart. In every package of genuine Bayer Aspirin are proven directions with which everyone should be familiar, for they can spare much less suffering.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

RALLY DAY

October 6, 1929

$105,000

NEEDED

To Reach and Teach Our Share of the Neglected Childhood of the South

SEND CHECKS TO R. E. MAGILL, Treasurer, BOX 1176, RICHMOND, VA.

3103-11-2443

It keeps a couple of blue-bringing him all the pack-let get into his pack. Santa increased so rapidly within five years it has become at something must be done. Realizing the disease is preventable than curable, the Society for the Control of North Carolina Medical Society and State Board of Health have the second week of October as for North Carolina.

EASE OF CANCER

The month of September a cancer campaign will be con-gh the press, over the radio distribution of cancer control during the second week in a State-wide cancer clinic. is absolute charity.

ican Society furnishes the County Boards of Health his literature and arranges the physician of the coun-the examinations without you help us by writing small g September calling atten-week?

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Removes Dandruff—Stops Hair Falling—Restores Color and Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair
60c. and $1.00 at Druggeists.
Hiscox Chem. Wks. Patchogue, N. Y.

UNION CUPS
and 36 up. Best action and Bread prices. Send for IT. Write for free Catalog.
UNION CO., Box 310, Lima, Ohio

Christmas Cards
FULL NAME EMBOSSED
cluded. These Cards are color and design and are Order today.
NEVERFULLY REFUNDED
Immediately upon receipt of Cash, Money Order.
AM PRESS, Inc.
6 Webster Ave., New York
SATISFIED CUSTOMERS!

IDEAL CRUISE
to the HOLY LAND MEDITERRANEAN
and
PASSION PLAY

the curtain on Western ning. Cast your worries aside THE IDEAL CRUISE to Africa, Southern Europe, Land and the Passion Play.

spell of the Orient, the belled minarets and mosques seep soul.

pend interesting days ashore ahal, Gibraltar, Algiers, Naples, Athens, Constantine Holy Land (16 days) and ts have been arranged far in are by our organization with yrs experience. Plan now to with us this winter. Write for the interesting booklet describing the Ideal Cruise.

Every necessary expense included.
Send the Coupon

Send me your descriptive book-Cruise. No obligation, of course.

wants to see what is in the first boy's box which he delivers, and so he opens it up right on the stage. He holds up a pair of gray "cords," and he finds also in the box everything a boy wears—even shoes. Each girl is given a package, and when she goes home she will find in it everything that she wears—two of some things, even. But Santa Claus thinks life isn't all just bread and butter; life ought to furnish cake, too. And so he has asked each child what kind of a toy he would like best to have him bring, and he has filled the order as given to him. And such toys—skates, baseballs, bats, guns, pocket-knives, watches, scooters, wagons, jumping ropes, dolls, doll buggies—each bearing a tag with the child's name and a Merry Christmas from the officers and crew of the U. S. S. Pennsylvania.

When Santa has emptied his sack, Chaplain Dumstreya introduces Captain Green-slade, who was "the inspiration for carrying through the party, and whom we all love." He is greeted with loud applause. He speaks of the pleasure the party has given them all, for the spirit of Christmas is with them as with other people, and it is hard for them to find an outlet for it. And so, he says they were grateful for this opportunity, and for the opportunity of meeting so many nice children. He then introduces Miss Clever and presents her with a gift, showing the ship's appreciation for her share in bringing the children to them.

It is the children's turn now. A dark-eyed boy—yell leader of his Boy Scout troop—jumps to the stage, and with lowered head and elbows leveled upon the audience like a football player about to tackle his man, he leads in a yell:

"Stand 'em on the head,
Stand 'em on the feet—
Pennsylvania, Pennsylvania, Can't be beat."

Seventy childish voices ring out in eager enthusiasm.

Now the bluejackets return the compliment, their big voices booming forth for the "Kids."

An officer steps up to the Chaplain and whispers in his ear. "Good news has just come to me," the Chaplain announces. "There is plenty more ice cream, but only enough for the kids. I'll tell you, you can eat it on the boat going back, and you can get it all over you and all over the boat and just have a good time."

Time to go home; every child gathers up his precious packages. Some are loaded to the ears with packages for small sister or brother. But always the blue jackets are at hand to relieve them. One guest is fearful lest something is forgotten, and is heard to remark: "They haven't given us the ice cream yet." But it has already been loaded into the boat, according to the Chaplain's promise.

All are aboard—toys, boxes and all—and the sailors are about to give the signal, "1, 2, 3," for cranking the engine, when a sobbing is heard. One of the twins has lost her bonnet. Somebody springs up the stair, finds the bonnet and all is well—we can start. A blue jacket yells back, "Take care of the chow if I don't get back."

The keg of ice cream is opened at once and when one piece around is eaten, there are hands outstretched for more. Jimmie is overburdened with a "whole stummickful" already; but ice cream isn't to be passed up lightly.

The landing is gained and children and precious possessions are unloaded. Some of the children are not too busy managing boxes and toys to pause and express appreciation to Miss Clever for a good time with the real sincerity of childhood. But Miss Clever is full of gratitude to the men of the U. S. S. Pennsylvania for all that they have done for the children whom Santa might have passed by.—Reformed Church Messenger.

OVERNIGHT SLEEPING CARS BETWEEN SOUTHERN CITIES SAVE BUSINESS MEN TIME

Pointing out the growth of overnight business travel between cities of the South as an interesting development in connection with the general increase of industrial and commercial activities, W. H. Tayloe, passenger traffic manager of the Southern Railway System, said today:

"As the manufacturing and other business activities of the South have grown we have had an increasing demand for long distance overnight sleeping car service on through trains between the larger business communities and in recent months the Southern has made great strides in providing and improving this time-saving service for the business man.

This system of overnight service has now been developed to the point where it is possible to transact a full day's business in almost any of the cities served by the Southern and make an overnight 'jump' to any other city within a distance of from 200 to 600 miles, the passenger retiring at a convenient hour and reaching his destination after a night's sleep, early enough for another day of business.

To list all the cities of the South which are furnished this service by the Southern would be put to recite the geography of the section but the following are cited as examples of improvements in the service, recently made:

Formerly, a business trip from Washington to Charlotte consumed practically three business days. Under the Southern's new schedules, a business man can leave Washington at 11:55 p. m. one day, reach Charlotte the following morning at 10:00 a. m., have until 8:15 p. m., for business, and be back in Washington at 7:05 a. m., the next morning.

Similarly, a business man can leave Charlotte on the "Crescent Limited" at 7:25 p. m., having spent the day in his office, reach New York at 10:40 a. m., the following day, leave New York at 8:40 p. m. and be back in Charlotte at noon the next day, having had a full day in New York with the loss of only a day from his office in Charlotte.

Other comparatively long 'jumps' which are covered by the Southern's overnight service are: between Charlotte, Atlanta, Birmingham, Raleigh, Philadelphia, Asheville, Goldsboro, Savannah, Jacksonville, Memphis and other principal cities of the North and South as well as the West.

Business travel for long distances has become a very important part of the Southern's passenger business and, in arranging our schedules, special attention is given to the convenience of the business man."

FALL CLASSES
will start at
BOWEN-CONNATSER BUSINESS UNIVERSITY
COLUMBIA, S. C.,

the first week in September and each Monday and Tuesday thereafter. Send application now so reservations may be made for you.

THE JOY OF YOUTH

When a young man or woman is able to compete in the business world and receive a good salary from their services, joy knows no bounds, we can soon have you in position to command such a salary. Just drop us a line today.

DRAUGHON'S BUSINESS COLLEGE,
Knoxville, Tenn.

THE PERRY PICTURES

ONE CENT SIZE
3x3 1/2. For 50 or more.
TWO CENT SIZE
5 1/2 x 8. For 25 or more.
Send 50 cents for 25 on The Life of Christ or 25 Art Subjects or 25 for Children. 5 1/2 x 8. Or 50 for Children, 3 x 3 1/2.

LET your children make companions of world's most beautiful pictures. Culture, happiness and beauty will be added to their lives.

Use them in the Sunday School
Send 15 cents for Catalogue of 1600 Illustrations
The Perry Pictures Box 313, Malden, Mass

MARY BALDWIN COLLEGE

For women. Courses lead to B. A. and B. S. degrees. Music, art, spoken English, physical education. Gymnasium and field athletics. Modern equipment. In beautiful Shenandoah Valley. Founded 1842. Catalog. Staunton, Virginia.

USE No LANCE

A Scientific Preparation
For BOILS, CARBUNCLES, BONE FELONS, ULCERS, CUTS, and OLD SORES. Price 50c
NO LANCE CHEMICAL CO.
New Brookland, S. C.

Summer VACATION TRIPS
Rail and Motor
Tours

In the Southern Appalachian Mountains

In especially arranged rail and motor tours, the Southern Railway provides a new vacation recreation, combining rail and motor transportation for the individual and for parties, into the mountain sections of Virginia, North Carolina, Eastern Tennessee and North Georgia.

These tours will take you adventuring by rail and motor into regions of scenic beauty and historic interest. Each trip begins and ends with a railway journey, in which you enjoy the speed and comfort of rail travel. The motor trips are over established State highways.

For booklets, information and rates, call on Ticket Agents.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Daniel Boone—pioneer pathfinder in these southern Appalachian Mountains which we now invite you to visit

AN OPORTUNITY FOR YOU . . .

For 42 years we have made money for others. More Bibles are sold than any other book in the world. You can make money selling Bibles, Testaments, and Religious Books. Whole or spare time. Write to-day for full information.

WILMORE BOOK & BIBLE CO.
Established over 40 years.
443 South Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

In pursuing an ideal, make sure that your object is real and not an illusion.

Surrendering self to Christ is not a sign of defeat but the beginning of victory.

Nut Initials

The initials of the following three words read downward name a nut:

1. Tom, the piper's stole one of these animals.
2. What we reach when we finish a story.
3. A poisonous snake.
4. We use this when we go crabbing.
5. A country (abbr.).
6. Half a score.

Word Square

My first is toil.
My second is used for baking.
My third is a city in Nevada.
My fourth is to be aware.

PUZZLE ANSWERS

NUT INITIALS

- P—ig
- E—nd
- A—sp
- N—et
- U. S. A.
- T—en

WORD SQUARE

W O R K
O V E N
R E N O
K N O W

OBITUARIES

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT
MRS. OLA JONES NISBET

The Mecklenburg Ministerial Association would go on record in an expression of deepest sympathy with our honored leader and president, Rev. Charles R. Nisbet, D.D., in his recent bereavement in the death of his beloved and talented wife, Mrs. Ola Jones Nisbet, who died on July 19, 1929.

As brother ministers, some of whom have passed through the same sorrow, we would join him in honoring the memory of a noble and self-sacrificing life.

This death has removed from church circles and the society of this city one who had achieved in a short term of two years a place of leadership among the women of the city, not only by her career as a minister's wife, but as a student and teacher of literary ideals, and we record our sense of loss of one devoted to these noble and uplifting activities.

The Ministerial Association would also avail itself of this opportunity of declaring the debt we owe other women, mistresses of the manse, whose affections have been our constant solace and whose assistance has been timely and inestimable to us as ministers of the gospel in our homes and among our flocks over whom God has made us overseers.

We would record the high esteem we feel for our brother, Dr. Nisbet, in his forward looking ministry in this city, and his leadership of this Association, and as the year of his presidency proceeds, we would take this occasion of rendering those encomiums which he deserves for his aggressive exercise of the functions of his office as our president.

May the God of all comfort comfort his heart and the hearts of his children in this sad bereavement, guiding them day by day to perfect peace, and enabling them to go on in the fulfillment of life's duties, sustained by that blessed hope of a reunion in the great beyond with her who has gone on before them.

We hereby adopt these resolutions, order that the same be spread minutes of this body, that furnished Dr. Nisbet, and that handed the press for publication.

Committee,
E. N. Orr.
E. K. McLarty.
J. G. Garth, C.
Charlotte, N. C.

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE
DECATUR, GA.

Strict entrance requirements, but few failures after admission. Some expensive, but cheap in comparison with advantages offered. No loafers accepted, but also none without capacity to enjoy almost unlimited good.
For details as to admission, scholarship aid, etc address
PRESIDENT J. R. MCCAIN
Box 5

ORIENT FLOUR
Its Whiteness Denotes Its Purity
MOUNTAIN CITY MILL CO., CHATTANOOGA, T

MEREDITH COLLEGE
For
YOUNG WOMEN

STANDARD COURSES IN ARTS AND SCIENCES, IN MUSIC
IN ART, IN HOME ECONOMICS

Confers the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Music. Delightful environment on a high plateau on the western boundary of North Carolina's City.
Room reservations are now being made for session 1929-30.
For catalogue or further information write
CHAS. E. BREWER, President
Raleigh, N. C.

The COLLEGIATE SCHOOL for GIRLS

ON HISTORIC MONUMENT AVENUE, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

THE SCHOOL: A day and boarding school under the control of the Presbyterians of Richmond, Virginia.
College Preparatory and General Courses.
Bible Courses required.

THE CITY: Abounding in historical interest and cultural advantages. With trips to points of interest.
Fifteenth session opens September 19, 1929.
For catalogue and information write:

MISS VAN GREENLEAF, Head of the School.

The Presbyterian Foundation AND OUR PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGES

The Presbyterian Foundation offers you the easiest, most inexpensive, surest and most permanent method of distributing money in large or small amounts to a number of causes and institutions (1) by direct gift, (2) life insurance, (3) annuity bonds or (4) through the provisions of your last will and testament.

Remember the dreams of your youth? In education it is dreams that count. Where can you buy fulfillment of your dreams better than through our colleges? The following colleges invite you to help them through the Presbyterian Foundations:

- Arkansas College, Batesville, Ark.
- Centre College, Danville, Ky.
- Davidson College, Davidson, N. C.
- Davis and Elkins College, Elkins, W. Va.
- Hampden-Sydney College, Hampden-Sydney, Va.
- Southwestern, Memphis, Tenn.
- Westminster College, Fulton, Mo.

For particulars about this plan of investment write to either of the colleges at the above addresses or to the Presbyterian Foundation, Mr. R. A. Dunn, President, care Commercial National Bank, Charlotte, N. C., or Promotional headquarters, 306 Henry Grady Building, Atlanta, Georgia.

KEEP YOUR DREAMS AT WORK

It ought to become a rule among Presbyterians that every last will and testament made by a Presbyterian include a provision setting aside a respectable portion for some cause or institution of the Church.

BELK'S

Select Your New Fall Coat Now

Paris designers have given us some wonderful new coat fashions which our American designers have so accurately duplicated in the smartest of new coat fabrics. We are showing now a smart variety of stunning coats in the new flared silhouette, with intricate seamings and insertions, without prejudicing the slender effect achieved by the tube-like coats of the past season. Furs are applied in the most unusual ways that add distinction and individuality to many of the new models.

Priced $16.50 to $98.50

Belk Brothers Co.
Charlotte, N. C.

Ministers' Annuity Fund

Of the Presbyterian Church in the United States

EDWARD D. DUFFIELD
PRESIDENT

THE PRUDENTIAL INSURANCE COMPANY OF AMERICA
HOME OFFICE, NEWARK, NEW JERSEY

Rev. Henry H. Sweets, Secretary,
410 Urban Building, 122 So. Fourth Ave., Louisville, Kentucky.

July 26, 1929.

Dear Dr. Sweets:

I should endorse the Ministers' Annuity Fund of the Southern Presbyterian Church. The object of the plan is to meet an obligation which has been too long unrecognized. If the Church is to advance and to in any measurable degree fulfill its great purpose, it can no longer overlook the claim of these faithful servants who have for these many years labored in its behalf. I cannot think that it is necessary to more than present this cause to obtain a favorable response.

The one question that might suggest itself is whether the plan proposed is sound from a business and actuarial standpoint. I have delayed writing you until I could submit the plan to our actuaries for their comment. They advise me as follows:

"If the plan of raising three million dollars on account of accrued liabilities, and securing as contributions thereafter 10% of the salaries of the ministers becoming beneficiaries of the annuity fund is carried out, the minimum pensions promised may be relied upon, as the calculations upon which the benefits and contributions are based are conservative and actuarially sound.

It is assumed that the Fund will exercise the right to establish a maximum annuity of $2,000, and to limit disability annuities to $600 until such time as there is evidence that these limitations may be removed.

It is quite probable that in the future it will be feasible to increase slightly the minimum scale of benefits provided, and provided any such increases are strictly limited to such amounts as are within the proved capacity of the Fund, the Fund will remain solvent."

Under these circumstances I feel justified in giving it my hearty endorsement. Wishing you every success in this work, I am,

Sincerely yours,

Edward D. Duffield

See address by Dr. Duffield on page 6

Watch this page for answers to other questions

Ask any question and we will gladly answer

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH IN THE UNITED STATES,
Department of Ministerial Relief and Ministers' Annuity Fund,
Henry H. Sweets, Secretary. John Stites, Treasurer.
410 Urban Building, Louisville, Kentucky.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

Religious Newspaper for the Family

Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U. S.

DGES, D.D., Editor-in-Chief
LLS, D.D., Co-Editor
SPER WILLIS, Contributing Editor

ESTABLISHED 1858

M. F. ELLIS, Vice-President
REV. J. G. GARTH, Treasurer and News Editor
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
BY PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY

CHARLOTTE, N. C., DECEMBER 25, 1929

No. 39

Virginia Meets at Danville

and Causes Receive Major Union Seminary to be Next Year

from the Presbyterian of tain outstanding features of the Synod of Vir-of Virginia held a most meeting September 10-12, Church of Danville. The on was preached by the rator, Dr. J. B. Bittinger, wn, W. Va.

was followed by the son, of News Ferry, was ator.

on the Massanetta Bible
s presented by Dr. B. F. risonburg, president of directors. The institution erous condition. It is in oney the churches were ynod to give, but which fully given in any year.

from two committees
ore Conference of the
iscopal Church, South,
y includes the Valley of presented to the synod,
t some arrangement be h that conference may interest in the ownerrol of the Massanetta
onferences. This propoferred to an ad interim
S far as known, there is the synod in favor of onferences were pre-

R. C. Anderson. The
the past summer were total of about 20,000
oly Inn has been nearly to bring it to its pres-
as been necessary to go he first time. To pay this ut the finishing touches will require $70,000. Of the General Assembly at ng gave $25,000, condi-
her friends giving a like n College was presented a report from the presoard of directors, Rev.

aser, and by the new e college, Dr. L. Wilson
g the past session there ents enrolled. The colcognized as a standard

arrington presented the board and made an admpden-Sydney College.
lge came under the con-
nod, ten years ago; the students has grown 5, which is the largest college has ever had.
n Seminary building has led at a cost of $17,000, w building that could not te for less than $150,000.
g has an endowment of an effort is now being an additional million

has asked its churches years to give $30,000 a year
lle. The average amount ar has been about $15,000.
nted on Page Two)

State Sunday School Convention

Meeting of North Carolina Association at Raleigh, October 2-4, at First Baptist Church

Beginning Wednesday night, October 2, and continuing through Friday night, October 4, the Annual State Sunday School Convention under the auspices of the North Carolina Sunday School Association, will be held at the First Baptist Church in Raleigh. General sessions of the convention will be held on Wednesday night, October 2, and Thursday and Friday mornings and nights, October 3 and 4. The afternoons of Thursday and Friday will be given over to departmental conferences.

Among the out-of-State Sunday School specialists who have already accepted places on the convention program are Dr. Percy R. Hayward, Chicago, Ill., Director of Young People's Work for the International Council of Religious Education; and Miss Elizabeth McE. Shields, Richmond, Va., Director of Children's Work for the Sunday School Board of the Southern Presbyterian Church.

Other outstanding leaders in religious education who have agreed to appear on the program are Dr. W. A. Harper, President of Elon College; Rev. Lawrence Little, Director of Religious Education for the General Board of the Methodist Protestant Church; Prof. Duane McCracken, of Guilford College; Mrs. Chas. L. Van Noppen, Greensboro; Prof. John W. Myers, Salisbury, Professor of Religious Education in Catawba College; E. B. Crow, Teacher of the Vanguard Men's Bible Class in the First Presbyterian Sunday School of Raleigh; Rev. J. E. Pritchard, Asheboro, pastor of the Methodist Protestant Church; Thos. P. Pruitt, Hickory, Superintendent of the First Baptist Sunday School. Several other prominent religious educational leaders have been invited to participate in the convention program and will be announced later.

The Raleigh Committee on Arrangements for the Convention is as follows:
(Continued on Page Two)

Appalachia Synod Features Colleges

With Assets of $750,000 Kings Will Will Raise $200,000 More—Stonewall Jackson Also on Program of Meeting

The Synod of Appalachia met in the First Presbyterian Church, Bristol, Tenn., Tuesday, September 10, in one of the best attended and most interesting meetings in its history. The Synod was organized in this same church on November 2, 1915.

The outstanding feature of the synodical program was the prominent place King College was given. The educational program of the Synod has centered on this institution and the most positive and enthusiastic resolutions were passed calling upon the friends of the college to complete the present campaign for endowment and building by the last of May, 1930. The goal of the present undertaking has been to provide a minimum of $500,000.00 of endowment and the erection of an administration building in order to enable the institution to meet the
(Continued on Page Two)

Junior College Appeals for Books

Library Committee at Maxton Issues Request for Volumes to Place in Synod's Newest School

The Junior College for Men at Maxton, N. C., is now in full swing and we publish herewith an appeal for books for the library. The request comes from the local committee, which gives the address to which books should be sent.

The appeal is as follows:

As our well informed Presbyterians know, the Presbyterian Junior College for Men, is located in Maxton, N. C. The citizens of Maxton appreciating the privilege of having this institution in their town have organized a Junior College Club to help in any way they can in starting this college on its way to success.

Among the committee appointed by this Club is a Library Committee, and we, members of this committee, knowing that the whole Synod of North Carolina is much interested in this, the Synod's latest project, and feeling that a good library will play a very essential part in making the College a success, wish to put before its friends the immediate needs of the library.

First, we need books. Second, we need more books. Third, we need still more books. If you have any good reference books which you would like to contribute, send us the names of these books. Possibly you may save the College from having to buy these very books. Our young men must have what they need, and the College will buy what is necessary; but every penny saved will help to make our youngest institution more efficient, and we know you are all interested in helping to bring this about.

Our Library looks very attractive now, and will be a joy and help to our young men and we want it to be 100 per cent effective. After it is fully gone over we will let you know any special books we need; but just now, without careful examination we know that we want modern, good fiction and biography, etc., and are hoping that our friends all over the state
(Continued on Page Two)

Lees-McRae Opens Junior College

Institution at Banner Elk Now Has High School, Boys' School and New Collegiate Department

At Banner Elk, N. C., on September 11, with an address by Dr. A. A. McLean, of Lenoir, at chapel exercises Lees-McRae opened its thirteenth year as a school and its first year as a Junior College. Dr. McLean, who is president of the Board of Trustees of the Edgar Tufts Memorial Association, traced the development of the institute from the elementary schools of the early days of its history to the Junior College of to-day, laying particular stress on the vocational courses, which will fit the boys and girls taking them, to return to their homes in the mountains and hold leading places in the new developments which are offering new opportunities.

There has been an enrollment of over two hundred students, so far, and when the registration is completed with the formal opening of classes, the capacity of the school will be taxed to the utmost.

Union Seminary Has Fine Opening

Enrollment of 150 With 45 New Students—Leading Address by Dr. Richardson

By J. Gray McAllister

Union Seminary, Richmond, has had an unusually fine opening, the official exercises being held in Watts Chapel of the Seminary on Wednesday afternoon, September 18, in the presence of a large number of old and new students and friends of the community and city. About 45 new students have been enrolled, with wide representation by colleges, states and even foreign countries. This will make an enrollment for the session of about 150.

Dr. Ben R. Lacy, Jr., president of the seminary, presided at the opening exercises. Dr. Charles L. King, pastor of the Grace-Covenant Presbyterian Church, in a very cordial and witty speech, extended the welcome of the churches of Richmond. The leading address of the occasion was delivered by Dr. Donald W. Richardson, professor of Christian missions in the seminary. Speaking on the subject, "The Call of Christ," Dr. Richardson said in part:

Christ began his public ministry by calling certain men to follow Him, to learn of Him, and become His ministers to others. His call was intensely real to those first disciples, but to us living in this far-distant age there is sometimes a feeling of unreality in the call which comes. We wish sometime that we might have stood with Him by the side of the Syrian Sea and heard His voice.

Christ's call to you however is just as real as it was to those fishermen by the side of the Galilean Sea, and the call will ring more clearly and commandingly as you go on following in the way of the Lord. John tells us that the voice of Christ is as the voice of many waters. There is a constancy in the call of Christ like the constancy of the sea. There is also a note of adventure and romance in His voice.

Christ calls you first to faith in Himself. Christianity is based on great historical facts, and on the inspired interpretation of those facts, and on the personal experience of those facts in the human soul and in society. Those facts cluster and center in Christ, and the only Christ we have is the Christ of the New Testament narratives. We cannot discredit or disregard the historical facts of the life of our Lord and keep our Christ. The only Christ we have is the Christ of the gospels and of history. This Christ of the gospels is not a little Christ. He is a Christ of supernatural proportions and of supernatural power. He is the Son of God who died for the sins of man. As you begin your work of preparation for the Christian ministry, are you sure of the Christ who died and rose again? The minister's message is Christ. There is no other name worth remembering, and yet, to the true ministry of Christ every human name becomes significant, and every human need is an opportunity. If you believe that Jesus is Christ, the Son of God, the Saviour of man, do not put Him on a level with other masters of the world. He is not simply an improvement on Socrates,
(Continued on Page Two)

Assembly Inn To Be Winter Resort

Montreat's Great Hotel Now Open for Guests to Enjoy Fall Scenery

To meet the demand of a number of people who wish to continue their stay in Montreat through the fall weeks and to give others the privilege of enjoying the matchless beauties of Montreat when the vast forest is clothed with brilliant autumn colors, Assembly Inn will be kept open. During this period rates will be very reasonable and attractive.

There are many throughout the South who need quiet rest and to enjoy the peace and beauty of the mountains. These would do well to spend a while in Montreat to tone up the system, to rest the nerves and to enjoy one of the most beautiful scenes to be found in the world.

SYNOD OF VIRGINIA MEETS AT DANVILLE

(Continued from page 1)

Ministerial Relief, and especially the Ministers' Annuity Fund, was forcibly and clearly presented by Dr. W. J. Martin, president-emeritus of Davidson College.

Dr. C. W. Maxwell, the president of the board of trustees, presented the report and the interests of the Sunnyside Home for Ladies, at Danville. He called special attention to the recent gift of the late Mrs. F. X. Burton of her handsome residence for a home for the old ladies, and $10,000 in money, which has been used in enlarging the building by the addition of a number of rooms. There are now about 20 ladies in the old home.

Rev. M. B. Porter, of Richmond, the agent of the American Bible Society, spoke on the great work being done by that society in distributing bibles throughout the world.

Col. D. M. Kemper, the president of the Danville Military Institute, made a report on that institute and its work. The school had an enrollment last year of about 150, and the prospects for the session are very good.

In connection with the report on Foreign Missions Dr. E. E. Lane, of our Brazil mission, spoke.

Dr. Darby Fulton, field secretary of the Foreign Missions Committee, gave a general survey of the work under the charge of his committee.

The General Assembly's Training School at Richmond was represented by Rev. W. E. Hill, D.D., of Richmond. He spoke of the loss of Rev. Dr. W. L. Lingle as its president. He said that while the board is looking for a new president, the work of the school will be carried on without interruption.

He said that the demand for the graduates of the school to do religious work of many kinds was greater than the supply. It is hoped that means can be secured to enlarge the work and its scope.

Home Missions always occupies an important place in the meetings of this synod. The report on Synodical Home Missions was presented by the superintendent of this work, Rev. J. E. Booker, D.D. It showed the work is in excellent condition. Each presbytery reported that practically all of its churches are supplied with preaching.

Addresses were made by several workers in the mission fields showing the great needs, and results accomplish.

During the last four years a debt of $12,000 has accumulated.

One thing that brought sadness to synod was that Dr. Booker felt that, because of the condition of his health, his resignation as superintendent was necessary to take effect on March 31, 1930. The synod expressed its high appreciation of the most excellent work he has done during the thirty-nine years in which he has held that office, and made him superintendent-emeritus, with a salary of $1,500. He will continue to act as treasurer of the synod until its next meeting.

Rev. S. L. Morris, D.D., of the Assembly's Home Missions Committee, made a most earnest address on the general subject of Home Missions.

In connection with the report on Union Theological Seminary, Rev. T. C. Johnson, D.D., of that institution, spoke.

For the W. W. Moore Memorial Fund, about $170,000 has been received and about $50,000 more has been subscribed. The desire is to make the fund $1,000,000.

On the recommendation of a special committee the synod urged the pastors and sessions to join heartily with the woman's auxiliaries in an effort during Church Paper Week, the first week in November, to place a church paper in the homes of every family in their churches.

Presbyterian Orphans Home. The report of this institution is highly gratifying to the Synod. More than 130 children are housed, fed, clothed, and taught in this institution. More than twenty of them have united with the church in the past year. Four of them are at Hampden-Sidney College. It is a real inspiration to men, women and children to witness the happiness of these "kiddies" as they enjoy the benefits of such a real and delightful home. The management of Rev. William Megginson is admirable.

The Woman's Auxiliary. The woman's work is always encouraging. There are 335 auxiliaries in the synodical, with 23,513 members. The grand total of contributions is $272,599. Total increase compared with last year 23,536. The prayer bands and bible classes are splendid features of this fine work. Mrs. C. R. Vaughan and her co-workers have managed this work in the most successful manner.

The country church work was effectively presented by Rev. H. W. McLaughlin, Country Church Director.

The Stewardship Committee's report revealed these facts: That of the $412,000 apportioned to the Assembly's causes, $321,195 has been paid the treasurers. Of the $200,000 apportioned to the Synod's cause, $121,930 was paid to the treasurers. Our gifts to all the Assembly's cause last year were about $35,000 less than the year before.

Appropriate memorials were read of four ministers who had died during the year: Rev. J. S. Webster, D.D., Rev. J. M. Calhoun, Rev. C. T. Chandler and Rev. E. B. McCluer, D.D.

The entertainment of the Synod was of the most delightful character. All the arrangements made for the comfort of the members, the cordial reception in the homes, the bountiful lunches provided and served by the women of the church each day, the kindly attention of the pastor, Rev. Joseph Dungleison to every detail, and the successful execution of these details by all connected with the church, left a lasting impression on the members of this body.

The next meeting of Synod will be held in Richmond at Union Theological Seminary.

The above report has been enlarged by certain paragraphs from an article sent in by Dr. Emmet W. McCorkle.—Ed.

JUNIOR COLLEGE APPEALS FOR BOOKS

(Continued from page 1)

will examine their book shelves and see if they have some they would like to give us right away. Please mail or express to Mr. R. G. Matheson, Jr., Maxton, N. C., marked "For Library."

We have had one gift of a complete personal library as a memorial which we appreciate very much. We know there is no better place to put that library which some one you love has left in your hands, and we are hoping that you will feel as we do. Certainly there can be no better memorial than to influence these young lives. It is a perpetual memorial.

Our Library needs chairs, solid straight chairs. If you have any spare ones send them on. If they need painting, we will gladly do it.

We want most of all your earnest prayers for our College, and that our Library may be used by God to help these young men to become active workers in the Kingdom of God.

Mrs. J. S. MacRae,
Chairman Library Com.

UNION SEMINARY HAS FINE OPENING

(Continued from page 1)

He is the Everlasting Father, and His name is Wonderful!

Christ calls you also to fellowship. He does not necessarily call you to leadership. The training school of those early disciples was a training school in the principles and the practice of service. This fellowship is based on faith and issues in knowledge. It is possible for your faith in Christ to stop with the mere intellectual acceptance of certain articles of christian belief. Christopher Columbus believed that the earth was round, but he did not stop there. He set out on a great voyage of discovery. First the faith, and then, the knowledge. When people come to us with questions about sin and God we cannot answer them simply with a doctrine however true it may be. We cannot simply present them with a book however holy it may be. When you tell people that Jesus saves, let it not be preaching, but testimony. In your seminary days you will be learning much about Christ, but there will always be more beyond, and we learn as we follow on in fellowship with the living Lord.

Christ calls you also to fidelity. Loyalty is one of the greatest human virtues, and a man is at his best when he is loyal. Christ would have His disciples be loyal. There can be no divided allegiance. Jesus never said that it is easy to follow Him. He always declared that it is hard, and He makes terrific demands upon our loyalty. So long as there are Christian men and women who are loyal to Christ, He will go on conquering the new generations of the world.

In your seminary days there will be no great tests of your loyalty. Your life will be filled with little things, but can't you make these little things contribute to the building of a great soul? Can't you move through the common days with an unwavering faith, with an unbroken fellowship and with an undying loyalty? Christ's voice is as the voice of many waters. He calls you to adventure and romance. He calls you also to quietness, and to peace and rest. Not only in your days of enterprise and achievement, but also in your days of withering weariness and deep distress you have Christ. You can turn to Him and have your strength renewed so that you can face life refreshed in soul, and with a song of gladness in your heart because you hear the voice of Him who stood beside the quiet Galilean waters of John's memories, and who stands also beside the troubled sea of your own soul saying, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavily laden, and I will give you rest."

STATE SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

(Continued from page 1)

J. Henry Highsmith, Superintendent of the First Baptist Sunday School, General Chairman; J. Charles Phelps, Superintendent of Central Methodist Sunday School, Chairman of the Entertainment Committee; Clarence E. Mitchell, Chairman of the Finance Committee; Dr. R. W. Lieby, Superintendent of the Lutheran Sunday School, Chairman of the Ushers Committee. Other members of the general committee are J. S. Holmes, Superintendent of Good Shepherd Episcopal Sunday School; John M. Foster, Superintendent of Hilyer Memorial Christian Sunday School; Miss Maud Reid, of the Tabernacle Baptist Sunday School; H. H. Milner, Superintendent of First Vanguard Presbyterian Sunday School.

The program for the convention is being arranged by a committee composed of the following officers of the North Carolina Sunday School Association, with Miss Flora Davis, General Superintendent of the Association, servant; J. B. Ivey, Charlotte agent; L. W. Clark, Charlotte Executive Committee; E. I. Eigh, Treasurer; and Vice-President John B. Wright, of Raleigh; Van Poole, of Salisbury; of Gatesville, Thomas P. P. ory.

APPALACHIA SYNOD COLLEGE CAMPAIGN

(Continued from page 1)

standards of the Southern Association of Colleges for full membership.

It seems that the required endowment have now been met or will be when certain subscriptions are received within the next few months.

The next feature of the campaign is the raising of funds. Proposed E. W. King administration which will occupy the full location on the space of 58 acres. This building, approximately $200,000.00, erected in honor of Mr. of Bristol, Tenn., who is the greatest benefactor the school had. This administration house commodious classrooms, auditorium, library, and will be designed to meet the needs of the college of 500 students.

On Wednesday night, gathering of the members and visitors, Rev. Henry D.D., made an inspiring address on Christian Education, and appeal for the standardization of the college. Dr. Sweets' splendidly received and of very definite value, and especially to those vested in our educational work.

Dr. Sweets was followed by President W. I. of Abingdon, Va., and by den Scherer, of King College. Dr. Sweets' addresses brought out these institutions had made progress since the Synod in 1915, and now the only distinctly being fostered by the Appalachie.

At the time of the adoption of the new constitution as a synodical institution just been burned down, it is entirely without present time it has a valuation with five handsome a property valued at about $50,000.00 at the formation of the Synod.

The assets of approximately $50,000.00. The alumni and friends of these institutions have been devoted in their welfare and are now forward to the time at an Synod's educational program in bringing to a high efficiency the work of education in our bounds.

The campaign for King College has been conducted at a very wise and prudent expense. The work is being conducted by college organization agents, so that all the expenses, go into the pocket of the institution. The part of the Bristol people is most commendable, a mination to complete the work which was passed and heartily.

"That Synod reaffirm of King College as its chief projective the standardization of the present campaign and endowment in this end, and that all the Synod give all possible support to this campaign."

EDITORIAL

HUMOROUS ELEMENT IN ECCLESIASTICISM

Our church papers are not noted but now and then, one, otherwise has in it an editorial that combines and the ridiculous in a manner that he risibles, and adds to the enjoyable article.

As we have been reading a High-priest that is the personification of deity.

Every paper we find typographical work of error, and strong editorials, side by side profound discussions of questions of whether dissenters should be as part of the Lord's heritage.

As we find an example of mingling no sense of the proportionate im-each. That in an Episcopal Church in the there was a union service that the ire of the ritualistic editor, who messes for the Romanists, but does y dealings with dissenters.

delivers himself in describing the dozen, more or less, ministers of ts, vested in their coat tails, enhance, the rector accompanying a n minister. A Baptist minister be- service and a Presbyterian minister salter and a second Presbyterian ad the lesson which was followed ate (the Te Deum was not used).

gational minister read prayers and gave out the notices and welcomed ian" minister preached the sermon (minutes long) and a United Presbyte- r gave the final prayer and bene-

, one must have the right point of er to be impressed by the gravity ase and be shocked, as our fellow- nantly was.

analysis, however, we can set apart ingredients that enter into what aporary evidently regards as an I pot pie.

isters of various sorts" should have clearly systematized.

nation of Presbyterians, Baptist, onalist, Christian and Episcopal, ally vex the righteous soul of our he filthy conversation of the wicked oul of Lot.

ese ministers of various sorts, heir coat tails" should have donned mental vestments, and the Presby- ster who accompanied the rector fallen several feet behind his com- order to emphasize his lack of dination.

are informed that a Christian min- uted the sermon, forty minutes e at a loss to decide, whether this s offense because the preacher is or that he preached forty minutes, beyond the orthodox length.

ely in connection with this breach ical etiquette, we find a discussion sion whether a certain kind of head- worn in a certain place about the though it had been given to the questioning the poor economy of ood headdress, we are struck with ty of talent, shown in the ability ristian unity and the proper place headgear, seeming to make them portance:

confess that our sense of the metimes dissipates our sense of rever-

THE IMMIGRATION PERIL

as "the home of the brave and the eed," sounds well in speeches, but rils, as a study of crime statistics that this country owes whatever it is to the immigrant, for they cleared the forests and built our cities.

All this, however, was when they came from England, Scotland and Germany, where Protestant was in flower.

In recent years the tide has turned, and we have received vast hordes of undesirable immigrants from Southern Europe, men and women utterly out of sympathy with our religious and political views, not to mention our ethical ideas.

Many have been the attempts to check this tide of undesirables, but the politicians who depend upon the support of that class have succeeded in rendering futile our best endeavors.

These aliens and their descendants are the chief violators of our laws, so that whatever failure is claimed for the prohibition laws, can, in the main, be charged to these people.

Read the following testimony from a high source:

"Major Chester P. Miller, graduate of West Point and a distinguished soldier, who fought his bitterest war in 1926 as prohibition administrator of the New York sector, says in Colliers: "In cases of still seizures aggregating 1,500 in 17 months, all were manned by aliens or persons of alien origin."

Three thousand miles away, in San Francisco, Senator Grant, author of the California Red Light Abatement Act headed, during 1927, a vice survey of California, and gives similar evidence. He found "California's vice problem is mainly one of immigration restriction. The old time American stock is practically never found as defendant in criminal cases involving vice exploiters."

Self-preservation is the first law of nature, so it would seem to be the duty of America to protect itself, and to insure the safety of coming generations.

Remember Paul's words to Timothy: "But if any provide not for his own, and specially for those of his own house, he has denied the faith, and is worse than an infidel."

THE WIZARDRY OF WORDS

There is no study more absorbing than that of words. One who has been a student of Latin, Greek, Anglo-Saxon, French, German, and Hebrew is practised to look at words through their derivations, and if he writes for the public, he learns to choose words with care and purpose.

Writing is surely an art, and no phase of composition is more important than the selection of terms which clarify meaning and at the same time, stimulate the sense of beauty, and inspire to fine action.

Writing has an eye for symmetry, clearness of style, and pleasure of sound. No author should repeat a word, when a synonymous term would bring out the meaning better. The shades of difference are all important. By choosing another word instead of the one that occurs to you, because it is familiar, you charm the reader and edify his mind. Such carefulness also brings to the writer the feeling of achievement. On the other hand it offends to use the same word continuously, especially in close repetition, or even to din the ear with the same sound, though the word be different. In fact, it reveals slovenliness in the writer.

A writer's desk is like a carpenter's shop, with its tools and materials. Each tool has its purpose, each material is suitable for its own object. So the writer has his tools and materials. There is the dictionary, there the atlas, there the encyclopedia, and there the book of synonyms, and other books of reference. I have just come on a book that might be part of the equipment of our ministers' libraries and serve a great purpose in his preparation of sermons and articles. It is Hartrampf's Vocabularies, published by the Hartrampf Company, Atlanta, Ga., and costs $5. Here we have words arranged according to related meanings, helping the writer to make his choice of words so as to improve perspicuity and strengthen the thought in mind by such clearness of terms.

How often we cudgel our brains for just the right word. By the use of Hartrampf's Vocabularies, time will be saved and the mind satisfied, and our literary output will be far more worth while.

One reason many of our ministers do not write their sermons and furnish their productions for the press is because they have not trained their minds in the selection of accurate speech, and I therefore would suggest that our pastors buy this book of synonyms, keep it at hand, and make constant use of it as they prepare sermons and articles in their studies.

J. G. G.

THE UNION GERM

Men everywhere are fond of hobbies. Some take them up more diligently and seriously than others.

These hobbies seem to sweep over a country very much like epidemics, and when they do seize upon a man, no amount of reasoning will laugh it out of court.

We can all recall the winter when the "flu" swept over the land, springing as it were from the ground and afflicting men, women and children. We were told that it was caused by a germ that floated in the air, so that we were affected as we breathed.

At present there seems to be afloat the union germ, and unless you give it room, you are cast out of the Synagogue.

No denomination seems immune from it. The religious press clamors for it, and he must be a brave man who sets himself against it.

We fully believe in the spiritual unity of the Churches, and we know nothing more contradictory to the principles of our religion than that spirit of arrogance with which some Churches draw their robes about them and thank God that they are not as other men are.

On the other hand, we have no sympathy with the desire that we wipe out all lines of division and become organically one.

Human nature is too weak to withstand the temptation to use the tremendous power that one big union would put into the hands of a few.

What is known as the "Dark Age" of the Church of God is the time when the Church was organically one.

The history of that time is a blot upon the history of religion, and every lover of the Church would like to blot out that record from the annals of the Church, and we have no desire to have it rewritten in the 20th Century.

We have before this alluded to the mania that seized our last General Assembly, to unite with all Presbyterian bodies, without regard to "race, color, or previous condition of servitude."

Now it is possible that the union germ may inoculate our brethren in time, though our prayer is that it may come after we have gone home.

There is one form of union proposed by a Congregational brother, upon which we can gaze as a disinterested spectator.

He proposes a union of all bodies having a congregational form of government, which would include Congregational, Baptist, Trinitarian, Unitarian and Universalist Churches, a union to be based on "The Fatherhood of God, the Brotherhood of Man, and the Leadership of Christ."

With reference to their belief he says, "The above mentioned divisions naturally belong together as one family, and are at present kept apart by tenets that are largely philosophical or theological. They have the same democratic spirit and methods.

They stand for liberty of conscience and adherence to the fundamental truths of religion, and their differences are not so fundamental, as we have been wont to feel."

We know very little about the Baptist Church of the North, but we can assure our union-loving brethren that a Southern Baptist would flee from such a conglomeration, with the possible exception of the Congregationalist, as John the apostle fled from Celsus when he met him in the bath.

The only union of Church that will stand the weakness of human nature, is one founded upon mutual confidence, and united, not by agreements on paper, but by loyalty to the truth as set forth in the union between Christ and His Church.

BLAMING THE MINISTRY

Daniel Ferguson

An officer of one of our larger churches tells me that he has discovered a great restlessness in the ministry. He discovered it shortly after being appointed the head of a committee to obtain a pastor for his church. Last week, a minister who has long known of this restlessness, and whose work takes him all over the nation, stated as if forced to a new expression of the fact that, "There is fearful restlessness in the ministry."

Can the Preacher Fill the Pews?

Why the restlessness? The answer must be that it is not the ministry but the churches that are restless. They are restless because they wish a pastor who will fill the pews. Members who are so delinquent that they rarely worship, yet blame the minister from their delinquency. Unless there is a membership of about three times the seating capacity of the church, the pews will not be filled. This is the frank statement of the secret of having a church full. But the laity is not aware of the secret.

Restlessness results. The minister feels it and must look for a change, whether asked to do so or not. The people, instead of praying with him and inciting him to speak in some public way so as to bring the actual sting of their sin to the public, resent any bold pressure on the part of the preacher. They wish smooth, casual, rhetorical sermons. The heckling of magazines and story writers, when they speak on religious matters, has led the public to think this is the trivial office of the preacher. The result is that the public view of its own indifference to religious interests is very complacent.

Can he Attract Young People?

Another cause of strain in the relation of people and pastor is indicated by the question usually asked about incoming pastors: "Can he get the young people?" It is apparently thought that there is a magic touch, an "open sesame" with youth, and certain ministers have found it. The idea is absurd. Parents who are steadily relaxing their parental grip, and asserting little or no authority such as parental experience bids them to exert, will expect a minister to catch and hold their young in some sort of an artful coil. It has gotten out that there is a kind of pedagogical secret by which you can manage youngsters without discipline. Parents who neither incite or insist at all on church attendance, would like to have the control of their young taken over by someone who has mastered the pedagogical secret. The fact is, of course, that there is no such secret, although pedagogical theorists invariably give the impression that they can convey it. The fact is that the young never have known and do not now know what is wise for them. If they know something of it, they still need the unique authority that parents alone can supply. It is this unique authority that parents fondly hope the minister can replace with some ecclesiastical and recently discovered magic. Failure is foredoomed. The minister is blamed. The people instead of blaming themselves, lay the failure on him. The churches are restless. The minister feels the upheaval.

Must the Church Entertain?

Let us blame the ministry here and there, for the failure of the church service to draw worshippers. Blame must be laid to the fact that people have been led to regard the service as sort of entertainment. A recent thorough canvass of the men in a fair sized Southern town, aiming to get the reasons for non-attendance, showed with surprising frequency the reply: "The church services do not interest me; I get better entertainment elsewhere." One who has questioned candidly, especially among relatively intelligent people, will find that they believe they have a right to entertainment at church.

Why is this? The answer is two fold. There are a few ministers who give entertainment in the form of heart throbs, which the credulous and the easily stirred find very delightful. Wonder stories and human interest yarns of the type that might go into the confessions magazines, are offered, rather poorly, but with all the authority of the christian pulpit as a form of entertainment. Now, as matters go, a minister cannot compare as an entertainer with picnics, hikes, periodicals, parties, radio programs, funny papers, magazine sections of newspapers. But having given the view to the public that he is a capital entertainer, he must take the consequences when competition becomes keen.

The entertainment feature is stressed heavily in churches that give attention to elaborate music. Churches cannot build around music of any kind. Congregational music, always excellent, is a fine necessity. But great revivals, strong currents of religious vitality and growth in religious life must come through the spoken word. Music is subsidiary. Many of us find it highly delightful as we join in it at worship or hum the hymns for our own pleasure at home. But the force of its appeal is based solely on the intelligent understanding we have of things divine which music itself cannot start.

When the service, however, runs on and on from organ prelude to interlude, and solo and chorus and features of this character; when the outlay of money on the organ and singers is so great that the people expect a lot for their money (to use a crude but exact description), then the entertainment field has been deeply entered. In churches of this type, we note that the people who regularly occupy the pews were raised without the fanfare of entertainment, in small, earnest churches. On the other hand, the very people whom the music is gotten up to attract, are at home or at their clubs, or taking trips, or otherwise debasing the Lord's Day by turning it into a "week end."

Slighting the Sermon

The result of entering the entertainment field is that the sermon is slighted, crowded into a fifteen minutes; prayers take three minutes or less; intelligence starves. Meanwhile those of the congregation who regard themselves as culturally broad rise to show ill concealed scorn for any who would curtail the ever rising tide of entertainment. Something of the subtlety of sin is here, obscuring purposeful thought, hedging the material for intelligent religious views, hampering the agitation of anything that would bring the actual movements of sin forth and stand them up for inspection, or set forth the vigorous program of Christ, or otherwise make religion significant. The service is insignificant religion and futile entertainment. No wonder there are numbers who are frank to state, as if they were talking about legitimate entertainment features, that the services of the church do not interest them; that they get better entertainment elsewhere.

Now, the preacher cannot fill pews when the entertainment ideal is advertised and practiced. He may be innocent of that great transgression himself; but his times are not innocent. Slack attendance makes restless people; restless people make a restless ministry. It is not well to hush these conditions. They need to be frankly faced. There is a correction for them.

SCOTTISH KIRK IN THE LIME-LIGHT

Austin L. Budge

October 1, 1929, will again find the Scottish Kirk in the limelight. Her bells are ringing the glad tidings of peace; the doors are wide open for the throng of her home-coming sons and daughters; the long-separated "fathers and brethren" are to stand together in the pulpit, their ancient war-cries swept away in the swell of their common psalms of praise. It is the reunion of the main streams of Presbyterianism in Scotland and the new birth of the National Kirk.

All eyes are turning to Edinburgh and that romantic part of the capital which has been the theatre of her exciting events of history. Holyrood Palace, the Canon-gate and past St. Giles' Cathedral to the Castle are the symbols of a remarkable race of people. Their love of freedom, the ebb and flow of national glory, their testimony and their blood! From two great Assembly Halls the pride of the nation's intellect, piety and religion will issue forth in separate bodies and meet at the great Industrial Hall. There to sign the new articles of the reunited Church of Scotland.

When the Kirk Was Split

Eighty-six years ago saw the Kirk split at the door; when 193 commissioners to the General Assembly took their hats and marched through crowded streets to a large warehouse, seated as a hall, and constituted a Free Assembly of the Church of Scotland. Their first psalm of praise was, "O send Thy Light forth and Thy Truth," and then followed the signing of the Deed of Demission, whereby they surrendered their emoluments and position. The total number of ministers who seceded was 451, leaving 752 in the Established Church. The Presbytery of Tongue, Sutherlandshire, had not a minister remaining, and 101 of those who left the Assembly were preachers who used the Gaelic language. It is admitted also that it was the flower of the clergy and eldership who forsook the Mother Kirk.

It was probably the greatest of the many battles in which the followers of John Knox engaged in the name of their faith. Other struggles were with champions of different creeds; this was among people of the same religious household. The former had scarcely ceased for 130 years; war between two estates, that of the Realm and the Kirk; the State, whose head was a succession of Stuart kings and opposed by those who shed their blood for the "Crown Rights of the Redeemer." Presbytery and General Assembly were distasteful to autocratic rulers, and in conflict the latter became the centre of Scottish life; their army, church and parliament combined. The "Black Acts" of King James were met by the National Covenant, signed by nineteen-twentieths of the adult population of Scotland and the rebellion in which Jenny Geddes fired the first shot with her famous stool. The climax came when the dragoons of the State attacked the crowded conventicles on the hillsides, with the parish kirks empty. Seventeen thousand persons suffered fines, imprisonment or death. They had not suffered in vain, when William of Orange secured the Throne and Presbyterianism was recognized as the National Church of Scotland.

It is not hard to recognize what spirit would dominate such a Kirk for at least a generation or two. The graves of the martyrs, the precious catechisms, Confession of Faith and Directory of Worship, and the deliverance from bondage filled every pulpit with awe and found the Cotter singing psalms and offering prayer at his own fireside. Kirk and School stood side by side and both placed the Bible foremost. The Old Testament with its Sabbath law and the new declaring for an Elect

Church, the Holy Bride of the Redeemer. spirit but the flesh was still weak and with tury seeds of strife were sown which were the great Disruption of 1843 and are only and separated as tares from wheat in 1929. Parliament in 1712 passed an Act legalizing in the Church of Scotland.

The Parish Church where the rich are together as brethren, is an ideal. Scotland, every inch of the country into parishes, lished Church. Religious ordinances were, for every man, woman and child in the la and churchyard for the people and a ma stipend for the parish minister, that he mig without money and without price. The fr vided by tithes or teinds, as the Scottish l term, harking back to the Book of Gene torical descent from the "parson's tithe-pig; in the Norman Law. But who was to decid ister to be inducted?

As Israel got tired of her strict prophets Scottish Kirk smarted under the rule of th The Calvinistic doctrine was too high, wo and long, and discipline severe. The quicke in a new type of minister, moderate in all Hence the rise of the opposing parties Moderatism and Evangelical, the latter popular section. Over their differences th the Church was vexed for a century or one hand it was argued that the man who ister, that is the patron or landowner, sh right to choose him; whereas on the other of the People" was fundamental in the Pr tem. To put it more sharply, the patron h the State for his authority, while the peo Word of God, which liveth and abideth f theless the latter were in danger of losir of the right to call, were given as a sop t "concur" in the patron's choice.

It is a sad story. There is no doubt t of the system of patronage were decidedly cases where harmony between classes pre innocent suffered with the guilty. Moder graced by the tyranny of a few of its men small beginnings a sweeping religious f the land. The saintly Erskine was rebuke the Assembly in 1733; in the next genera was thrust upon a congregation under gua in 1839 the Presbytery of Dunkeld was fine a minister, who was the choice of the peo the patron; seven ministers in the Prest noch appealed to the Civil Court agains judgment of the Assembly and were allow congregations under an interdict; the H declared an Act of the General Assembly calling of a minister to be ultra vires: old in the Kirk was moving much of the bes sake her and complained of a House of F of the House of the Lord; then finally which was heard throughout the world a upon the head of the newly organized Fre

It was almost a deadly wound for any to have its ministry and eldership rent in its missionaries to drop out; with rival very gates; and the ache of an uneasy c with the hard work of re-building. It w not death. The Church of Scotland had n the symbol of the Burning Bush, for ir "Nec tamen consumebatur," she burned consumed. In other words she did not banner. Her vacant pulpits, mission stati halls were gradually refilled. Errors an set right as far as possible and the nati faith in her. She kept the lead in member Her daughter, never despised but year into a great church as by magic; gathere the passing years; evangelical, learned, l and abroad. How natural also and right Mother who put out her reconciling hand which has now happily led to the great

How Reunion Was Accomplished

Twenty years ago the friendly gesture the Established Church. As brethren, Scottish Presbyterianism had been in S dral, honoring the name of John Calvin, centuries ago. Doctor Scott of St. G Edinburgh, interested himself in sugge of negotiations. Joint committees, numb members each, began to confer, the Free somewhat shy of dealing with a State Ch case was submitted, hampered with no e everything at stake. The Mother Church defining her spiritual liberty and asked clare that such exists in law. Such magr won the heart of the Free Church as e leader, Moderator Martin, who said—"I s ing achievement, and not the less to be pri accomplished by the State, this was a fearless solicitation of the Church its reference, he stated that "it had been re we had not dreamed of." Disestablishme issue in Scotland, because the re-unite once free and national. The settlement b with almost unanimity in the Mother in the United Free there is a virile re out that the new Church of Scotland established." They are making use of q to the plan, who wrote that such statutory would always "taint the spirit of the Church." It, however, has dwindled to thirty-nine in the majority being elders. The king's son at last session of the Assembly, and if health the V will grace the union with his presence. Ontario, Canada.

FUNDS AND LIFE INSURANCE

It is often asked if existing insurance companies can conduct the pension work contemplated by the Annuity Fund. The following facts will show why this is not possible.

Not any question of Pension versus Insurance is possible every man even though he be in a position to take life insurance.

Insurance involves an individual contract exclusive of group insurance. Practically all the field of group insurance in America have group insurance does not offer a pension plan for ministers of a church. This has been carefully considered in this field of insurance. Several have defined "the group" and "the employer" so that the ministers do not come under the insurance. A policy of life insurance is an contract between the insurance company and the minister. It changes his pastorate or other work that he does and does not cover his successor. It is from church to church his salary varies, and it is the matter. The amount of premium in the case of an older minister called for. Therefore, there would be a tendency against older men.

Insurance in life insurance is to provide protection for the widow and minor children in the event of disability, all of which, admirable though it is, does not provide the age benefits. This is provided under the pension fund, where the insurance is to provide for the man's age; secondly, protection against disability, and for the widow in the event of death.

Insurance even in part for the accrued liability for the pastorate and missionaries the Church has a large fund. Three millions is demanded to pay for the Church would not be willing to pay for insurance company. Several of the heads of insurance companies have made this declaration. Monthly payments on the pension must be collected from 2,000 pastors and about 3,500 churches. A change in the relationship of pastor and church would greatly complicate the matter of insurance company. It is absolutely necessary to deal with all the church courts—Session, Synod and General Assembly—in order to matters straight. No life insurance company can be a basis to take care of these contracts. The church has a solemn obligation to take care of its group of ministers. Each minister should be taken into the Fund because he is a member of the church and because he is removed from the opportunity available to others. The churches must deal with in the same way and from the same system cannot completely provide for all and it is wise for the minister, if possible, to have the benefits provided for him through the church with additional protection obtained by insurance in life insurance companies.

Insurance companies are subjected to exacting the pension fund will be relieved. The church has paid large salaries. Headquarters are in large numbers of communities. Agencies are to be provided salary or commissions, rent, office rent, etc. The Church Pension Fund is handled with equal efficiency, but at a

Insurance companies must pay various kinds of taxes and therefore forced largely to invest their money in empty securities. Fortunately, the Church has a fund of these taxes as their work is, in no way for profit.

The church has a solemn, serious and binding obligation to its ministers and missionaries—who have been supported from all the sources of worldly gain—and this is its own responsibility to God and the conscience of man. It cannot be evaded, and it is transferred to any other agency.

It is well known to the financial world is to be that all the funds of the Ministers' Annuity Fund are being consulted a large number of banks, trust companies and insurance companies. Men of ability and experience, as to be more completely accomplished. All of the work is now in the keeping of one of the largest representative of the trust companies in the South. The funds are made except in those classed as "trust funds." All of the officers are bonded and checked is made on the handling of funds. The assets of the Ministers' Annuity Fund will be turned over to the Church and its ministers. No salaries or agents compensated by commissions. All of the assets will go to benefit the ministers and their families, and to meet a solemn obligation of the Presbyterian Church in the United

A SECRETARYATTED CHURCH

C. Z. Berryhill

Dr. R. L. Dabney said that one of the dangers of the Southern Presbyterian was, that it would become "A Secretaryattened Church." Evidence that Doctor Dabney was right is not wanting.

In one particular it is very evident. The demand that is being made and urged by some in the Church, that upon retirement of a secretary he shall be treated differently from other ministers in a financial way and that only because he has been a secretary.

At the Eldorado Assembly a report was brought in which recommended that the secretary upon retirement be paid from the funds of the committee which he served, one-half as much salary as his average salary had been for each of the five preceding years before his retirement—in other words if the salary had been $6,000.00 per year for each of the five preceding years then the retired secretary would receive $3,000.00 for the remainder of his life. This recommendation was voted down by the Eldorado Assembly by about a three to one vote and the secretary was placed on the same retirement basis as that of his other brethren in the ministry. Notwithstanding this vote the same committee brought a similar recommendation to the Atlanta Assembly, and as one of the members of this Assembly said "Ran it over the Assembly." The last Assembly at Montreat was overtured to rescind the action of the Atlanta Assembly on this subject and to reinstate the action of the Eldorado Assembly. In answer to this overture the General Assembly appointed an Ad Interim Committee to study the whole question of retirement of secretaries and associate secretaries of the executive and promotional agencies and report to the next general Assembly (see minutes of the Assembly, page 55.)

This committee is directed to consider. (1) The importance of the parity of all the ministers. (2) That the secretaries might have occupied pastorates in large churches had they not been secretaries. (3) The wisdom of securing retirement support from some other source than a tax on the general benevolences of the Assembly.

1. As to the parity of the ministers, we as Presbyterians teach and preach that all ministers have the same right to equal treatment at the hands of the church, and that the church as a church must treat all alike and cannot discriminate for or against any minister because of position or mental ability.

2. The committee is to consider the fact that the secretaries might have occupied positions as pastors of large churches, etc. Let us notice that there is a "might" in the sentence. There are only 35 pulpits in the Southern Church that pay over $6,000.00. The salary of the secretary at the present time is $6,000.00.

It is a question as to whether there are not 35 men in our Church who are not secretaries and are just as able preachers as any of the secretaries and possibly 35 who are better preachers. (No reflection on the secretaries' preaching ability). If these preachers were retired and were thrown on the Church they would get only $50.00 or $60.00 per month—why treat the secretaries better than these preachers?

I believe it is true that not one of our secretaries went from a larger salary as pastor of a church to a smaller salary to become a secretary. I believe all of them got an increase in salary when they became secretaries.

(3) The injustice of the move is seen again in that possibly the secretary is getting a larger salary than any of our professors in our seminaries.

The writer knows professors in our seminaries of equal ability and who would say that they were not equal in every way to the secretaries, who are only receiving enough salary to pay their living expenses. If their health should fail they will get only $600.00 or $700.00 per year. Who will say that the professors in our seminaries are not doing just as great and far reaching work as any of the secretaries?

II. Evidence is not wanting that some of the secretaries are in sympathy with this move and urging it. If I am not wrongly informed some who have retired have demanded that they receive a good retirement salary and refused to give up their place until this was done. On page 49 of the minutes of the Assembly at Montreat we find that one of the secretaries proposed to retire next year if a satisfactory retirement annuity is available, "or with a satisfactory annuity." Why should these brethren make this demand? Why should the Church grant it? Are they better than others? Have they done a better or bigger work than many others of their brethren?

Again the argument is made, that they might have been pastors of big churches and be retired on a good salary as pastors emeritus. This is a man of straw. There is not one in a hundred so fortunate, possibly not one in five hundred.

Again the plea is made that they are men of great business ability, necessarily so in order to take care of this work. If I am not wrongly informed, there is not much business ability required of any of the secretaries, except the secretary of publication. All of the business of ordinary business life is left out of their work except paying bills, which is the smallest part of any business. Our secretaries do not even have to collect—just pay bills out of what is sent to them by churches.

Ordinary business men have to plan their business, secure at their own expense a place to do business, buy and pay for their raw materials or goods at their own expense, pay the entire expense of clerk hire or operators, making the money themselves to do this with, then go out and collect his bills, all this before he gets to the payment of bills, where our secretary starts in.

I am not unmindful of the fact that he must distribute this money as directed by the church, but that distribution is a joint responsibility with the advice and direction of his committee of responsible men of great business ability chosen by the Church to direct and assist him in its money.

Again who would say that we have not hundreds of preachers in our church with just as much business ability and could handle the work just as well and with just as much effectiveness as the men who have been called to this work. Brethren, let us be fair.

Further, why should the Assembly try to secure a greater support for retired secretaries as suggested (on page 55, minutes of Montreat Assembly) to the Ad Interim Committee? Why not let the secretaries share and share alike with those who like them have borne the heat and the burden of the day in every field in the church?

Why should the poor home missionary who only gets enough salary to keep the wolf from the door—whose wife and children live in poverty and suffer untold hardships that he may preach the gospel, he who has served the Lord just as faithfully—and possibly in the great beyond when the record is made up it will be revealed that he has served the church in just as wide a way as the secretary has—why should he be thus discriminated against?

Those who are not preachers but have been secretaries and retired should receive from the church the same retirement salary as that of the preacher-secretary. And I am sure the church would gladly give it.

Hattiesburg, Miss.

GREAT WORK OF MEN IN CHATTANOOGA

The Laymen's Club of the First Presbyterian Church of Chattanooga, which was organized February 9, 1912, and is more active today than it was during its first year, owes its success to the fact that it has had a personal representative on the foreign field throughout the seventeen years of its existence.

The sending of a young man into the foreign field and the personal responsibility involved not only in the maintenance of this missionary but in keeping in close personal contact with him, served to tie the members of the club together to develop a keen interest in the work of their missionary and his field of labor. His letters telling of the things he was doing and side lights on the field and its people have always been looked forward to with interest and read at the club meetings. At the meeting of the club, on which occasion the missionary was presented on the eve of his departure for the foreign field, a prayer was offered for him, his family and his work. Throughout the seventeen years no meeting of the club has been held without a prayer for the club's missionary and foreign mission work.

The needs of the missionary and the members of his family have been uppermost in the minds of the members of the club at all times. As an example, it was noted that the typewriter he was using was badly worn. As a result, a new typewriter was purchased and sent him.

Not satisfied with personal gifts to their own missionary, the membership of the club, as a result of their interest in the foreign field, assembled and from time to time sent packages containing gifts for other missionaries and their children. This even led to providing funds for the purchase of such useful articles as a bicycle, motorcycle, truck, radio, moving picture machine, films, phonographs, records, books, magazines, etc.

It is the consensus of opinion of members of the Laymen's Club of Chattanooga who have been active in the affairs of the club since its organization that having the club's own representative in the mission field gives every man in the club a direct and personal interest in that particular field, a growing interest in all missions, and develops an interest in all the work of the church. They also feel that in sending out a missionary they are obeying one of the Lord's last commands. This, coupled with His assurance that He is with us always, engenders in the hearts of all the fruits of the spirit, love, joy, peace, and urges us all to further accomplishments in His service.

The responsibility of backing a missionary and the fellowship with him through the years have been inexpressibly inspiring. These two forces have resulted in a development of more leaders among the men of the church than any one activity. The power of prayer for the missionary and his family has been forcibly demonstrated in the fact that God has spared them throughout all of the years, bringing them through illness and guarding their safety on many 12,000-mile journeys between their home in the states and the station in the foreign field.

W. C. Johnson.

MONTREAT DAY, OCTOBER 13

S. H. Chester

As one who has been intimately associated with Montreat since the time of its founding as the promotional center of our Assembly's work, and who has watched with ever growing interest its far-reaching and growing

(Continued on Page 6)

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPT.

Rev. W. A. Gamble, Jr., Editor, Pinetops, N. C.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPIC

Sunday, October 6—Ideals Worth Living For—Phil. 2:14-22; Phil. 3:7-14; Gal. 5:22, 23

Leader

We are to study this month the devotional life. That means the private and public worship of God. There are several ways of developing the devotional life. One way is by reading the bible, and devotional literature, such as sermons, books, and religious papers. Another way is to attend church services, prayer-meetings, and young people's meetings. Another is by praying and meditating on our own lives, and asking for God's Spirit to help us grow better each day, and overcome our temptations.

Our subject to-day is, Ideals Worth Living For. This subject suggests the purpose and plan of a devotional life, and ought to be a very practical topic for each one of us.

What Is An Ideal?

Perhaps as we begin this study, we should ask ourselves the question, What is an ideal? An ideal is a spiritual idea of that kind of action or word we ought to perform or to speak such that it will be nearest what it ought to be. It might be called a perfect pattern for speech and conduct.

There are ideals for everybody. We sometimes speak of ideal parents and we mean people who seem to be the right sort of fathers and mothers, because they have the right idea of what they ought to be and do, and appear to live up to those ideas. We say of some young person, He or she is an ideal young christian. We mean these people have fine notions of what a young christian ought to be and do, and try to live up to them.

Christian Ideals

The only kind of ideals worth living for are christian ideals. These ideals touch every phase of life. They refer to character, conduct, purpose, and service. A christian ought to have moral ideals, right ideas of what a moral life is. Morality includes all the virtues of character, such as reverence for holy things, as God, His name, and His day and His worship. Obedience to parents and other authorities is another moral ideal.

Moral ideals include temperance in eating and drinking, kindness to others and care for their lives, honesty of dealing, purity and chastity of thought, word, and deed, truthfulness of speech and action, and a charitable feeling toward all mankind.

Christian ideals also include what we call christian graces, as love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, meekness, brotherly kindness, generosity, and such like virtues.

The Ideals of Christ

Jesus Christ our Savior is our example in all these things we call Christian Ideals. He actually lived up to every ideal that was possible for man to have to strive for. As we watch Him we see He was the one perfect human being. No one could say that He failed to do what He promised, or neglected any duty, or did anything for a selfish motive. And those ideals He demonstrated were things which we who follow Him must try to copy, and walk in His steps every day.

Character Building by Grace

Paul tells us that the Holy Spirit is trying to work into our lives and characters the graces of Christ. In Galatians he calls them the graces of the Spirit. They are love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, and temperance, and he says, Against such there is no law. Paul urges all christians to try to build up their private and public lives by always acting in accordance with these graces. What a difference it would make in our own lives and those of others if we tried to live according to such rules. We would be always loving, always cheerful, always peaceful, always gentle, and wait a long time on those who offend us, hoping they will change, always be good and kind, always confident in God and His word, always meek instead of angry and harsh, always temperate in eating, drinking, and all other things.

By observing these christian graces we would build up our characters by adding grace to grace.

Ideals of Service

The building up of a strong moral character and one that is beautiful to see in these christian graces of love, joy, peace, and so forth, can be accomplished only by making our lives full of service to others. We must not spend our time dreaming and thinking of what good people we would like to be. Our thinking and wishing must be shown in action. We must learn to serve. We should be useful as well as ornamental.

Paul, in Philippians, talks about what a service the church at Philippi had rendered him while he was in prison by sending in money and friends to cheer him.

Men-of-the-Church

Presbyterian Church in the United States

REV. J. E. PURCELL, D.D., Executive Secretary
HENRY GRADY BUILDING
ATLANTA, GEORGIA

REV. JOHN L. FAIRLY, D.D., Wilmington, N. C.,
Editor in Charge of Men-of-the-Church Department

COUNCIL SUGGESTIONS FOR NOVEMBER

To the President: Give kindly, personal supervision to every part of your organization this month. A cheering word means much to any worker. It helps a great deal to talk things over. Watch especially for any fellow who is getting slack in his duties or careless in his work. A word brings many back. Do not stop until the plans of the Council are definitely outlined.

To the Council: This meeting should be held seven to ten days before the General Meeting. Open and close with prayer. This month has been assigned to the Department of Home Missions in the Presbyterian Progressive Program. The Chairman of this Department is responsible for the program. The following suggestions may help to interest the men in Home Missions and they will be helpful. Get some missionary who is actually doing the work to come to your church and speak. Then get out all the men to hear him. Appoint a select committee to assist your pastor in observing the week of Self-Denial and Prayer for Assembly's Home Missions. Promote any good plan which appeals to you to secure a generous free-will offering for the needed and neglected work. Select some Home Missionary and write him or her a letter letting them know that you appreciate their work. Department I should assign a definite book in the bible for reading. Arrange, too, if possible, on Sunday evening before the preaching service, a prayer service with the pastor, using the groups one by one. Department VII should report the names of all the sick and needy and the plans for the supper entertainment. Get the plans down in typewritten form so that the groups will have no trouble in carrying them out. Make the assignments definitely to the groups.

To the Leaders: See to it that your speakers are supplied with the packet, "The Romance of Assembly's Home Missions," which will be sent you free from the Educational Department, Executive Committee of Home Missions, Room 613, Marietta Street, Atlanta, Georgia. This packet contains four leaflets or stories, one for each speaker.

To the Speakers: There is a thrill in the title for the program this month. The material is concrete, simple and interesting. Make the most of it.

To the Group Leaders: Mobilize your men for the Home Mission School of Missions. You will do a great work if you can interest them in this work. Personal work will help much. Get clearly your work and carry it out thoroughly.

Sources of Information: Church papers the early part of October, Presbyterian Survey, Educational Department, Executive Committee of Home Missions, Room 613, 101 Marietta Street, Atlanta, Georgia.

And he says it was his delight to be of service to them, and that he was willing to actually be a sacrifice for them, if he could help them grow in faith and love to Christ and one another.

We christians must be busy. We must look for opportunities of service. Every day offers us such chances, and we may keep busy, if we will be ever trying to help somebody by our personal work, or by our sympathy and encouragement, or by our gifts, money or other things.

We young people are called by our Master to give our lives to Him, in some form of life service. Let us hear His call and obey.

Why Live for Ideals?

As a last thought we may ask ourselves, Why live for ideals? Can we make our ideals a reality in speech and conduct? Is it worth while to live up to our ideals?

We may answer our questions by saying, It is worth while to live our ideals, and there are several reasons.

One reason it is worth while to live our ideals is that it gives us a satisfaction to translate a fine thought into life and action. Our consciences and our souls endorse our decision and action.

Another reason we should live our ideals is that it is Christ's command. He says, Be ye perfect, as your Heavenly Father is perfect. He says, Follow me. Walk in my way. Obey my command. Love one another.

At last reason it is worth while to live our ideals is that ideals win in the long run. To live up to them will prove at last the best way.

May God and the Holy Spirit help us to live our ideals.

WOMANS AUXILIARY

The Department of Woman's Work, Presbyterian
270-277 Field Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

SYNODICAL PRESIDENTS OF THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

Alabama—Mrs. J. F. Hooper, 610 Mabry St., Selma
Appalachia—Mrs. F. B. Kegley, Wytheville, Va.
Arkansas—Mrs. Walter Wilson, Arkadelphia, Ark.
Florida—Mrs. W. G. Thompson, Jr., 3215 Obispo
Ceia Park, Tampa, Fla.
Georgia—Mrs. E. G. Abbott, 1315 Eberhart Ave.,
Kentucky—Mrs. H. P. Cooper, Lebanon, Ky.
Louisiana—Mrs. Charles L. Bodin, Box 79, M.
Charles, La.
Mississippi—Mrs. J. S. Hicks, Holly Springs, Mo.
Missouri—Mrs. Walter Craven, 223 Frances Springs, Mo.
North Carolina—Mrs. G. V. Patterson, Gastonia
Oklahoma—Mrs. Wilbur Garvin, 611 Euclid, Lawton
South Carolina—Mrs. Parker Connor, Edisto Island
Tennessee—Mrs. J. F. Forsythe, Bethel Springs
Texas—Mrs. J. W. Culver, Texas Military Academy,
tonio, Texas.
Virginia—Mrs. C. R. Vaughan, 319 Mountain Ave.,
West Virginia—Mrs. J. McD. Lacy, Elkins, W. Va.

GROUP CONFERENCE SCHEDULE MECKLENBURG PRESBYTERIAN

Mecklenburg County, Thursday, October 10, Mulberry Church.

Charlotte District, Friday, October 11, 10 Church.

Stanly County, Thursday, October 24, Badin, N. C.

Montgomery County, Friday, October 25, Wadeville, N. C.

Richmond County, Tuesday, October 27, Marks Creek Church.

Anson County, Wednesday, October 30, Polkton, N. C.

Union County, Thursday, October 31, Marshville.

These conferences are very helpful and the most important meetings of the year. My earnest desire that all our women attend all possible even if it means a sacrifice.

As usual all ladies are asked to bring their own refreshments and these will be spread together and enjoyed by all.

(Mrs. A. A.) Bessie Noel Walker, Chairman

MONTREAT DAY, OCTOBER 13

(Continued from page 5)

influence on the development of the mission of our Church, I naturally feel a deep concern for the observance of October 13 as the day set apart for the Assembly for the rally of the churches for the promotion of its equipment for a still greater future. In my humble judgment, no other institution has had anything like the influence that has had in bringing about the phenomena of both our home and foreign work during the two years of its existence.

As is well known, nearly all of those who are known as large givers in our Church, have their first inspiration to such giving by listening to the addresses of our home and foreign missionaries in personal contact with them at Montreat. It is an exaggeration to say that the marvelous development of our Woman's Work, which is now the admiration of sister churches, has been largely due to instruction in the annual Woman's School of Missions at Montreat.

And now with Assembly Inn completed we have the facilities for a much more effective motion for all time to come, but if it were not for the debt it would almost make it unnecessary to make a further appeal to the Church for its future support. Therefore, let us make October 13 a sure enough day and put the finishing touch on this great enterprise of the Church in the accomplishing of its mission.

CHARLES H. HAMILTON

Resolutions adopted by the session of the Presbyterian Church, Concord Presbyterian Church.

Whereas it has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from our midst our beloved brother, Charles H. Hamilton, who since the organization of this church, forty years ago, has been a faithful and secreted elder, serving all the time as a session, therefore be it resolved by this session,

1. That we humbly bow in submission to the will of Almighty God, who doeth all things according to the counsel of His own will and for His own glory.

2. That we deeply feel the loss of the life of our brother, whose life was a constant testimony to the truth of the christian faith, and that we bear witness to his fidelity to every trust, and his devotion to his service in the Master's service, both as a teacher in the Sabbath School.

3. That we extend to his family our sympathy in their bereavement and sorrow.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be placed in the minutes of the session, be published in the Presbyterian Standard, and a copy be sent to the Session of Gilwood Presbyterian Church, Cabarrus County, N. C.

Announcing

A PROGRAM OF DELIVERANCE

. . . for Presbyterian College

LOOKING AHEAD, preparing to assume a position of increasing importance in the advancement of the cause of Christian Education, Presbyterian College, of Clinton, South Carolina, is undertaking this Fall a Program of Deliverance. This Program is designed:

- (1) To deliver Presbyterian College from the burden of debt.
- (2) To assure Presbyterian College receipt of three conditional endowment gifts totaling $148,000.
- (3) To assure retention by Presbyterian College of its "A Grade" standing and membership in the Southern Association of Colleges.

The Program calls now for the launching of a financial campaign throughout the Synod of South Carolina. The goal of the appeal is $350,000. Several important reasons prompt the undertaking of the Program at this time.

First: Delivered from its burden of debt (a debt represented in tangible college assets and in service to our Church) the College will have a sound financial foundation for future growth, while the Church will be delivered from burdensome emergency contributions for college operating expenses.

Second: The three endowment gifts (totaling $148,000) have been offered upon the condition that the College liquidate its debt by January 1, 1931.

Third: To assure retention of its high classification by and membership in the Southern Association of Colleges, Presbyterian College must be free of debt and must have invested endowment funds (or revenues equivalent thereto) of at least $500,000. The present endowment of the College is $338,000. Receipt of the $148,000 in conditional gifts, together with a normal annual contribution from the Church, will enable the College fully to meet the Association endowment requirements.

Presbyterian College, therefore, in undertaking this Program of Deliverance, is looking ahead to a new era—an era in which the college will be in a vastly improved position for the education of our youth, for service to our Church, and for the advancement of the cause of Christian Education.

WHAT THE $350,000 FUND WILL DO

1. Deliver P. C. from the burden of debt.
2. Eliminate life-sapping interest payments.
3. Deliver the Church from burdensome annual contributions for operating expense.
4. Assure receipt of three gifts totaling $148,000, offered upon condition that debt be liquidated by January 1, 1931.
5. Bring the endowment (by receipt of the $148,000) almost up to the required half-million mark.
6. Assure retention by P. C. of its "A Grade" standing and membership in Southern Association of Colleges.

Presbyterian College

PROGRAM OF DELIVERANCE

COLLEGE FREE OF DEBT

CAN BETTER SERVE OUR CHURCH

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Rev. Ernest Trice Thompson, D.D.

Lesson for October 6

RECOGNIZING OUR DEBT TO OTHERS

Neh. 4:15-23; Mk. 12:28-34; Rom. 15:1-7; Phil. 2:1-8; Col. 3:12, 4:1; James 2:14-17. Print Mk. 12:28-34; James 2:14-17.

We begin this week a three months course on "Some Social Teachings of the Bible." Doctor Lingle in his book: "The Bible and Social Problems" (The James Sprunt Lectures, 1929) reminds us that there has been and still is confusion in the minds of some as to what we mean by social teachings. He reminds us that when he first offered a course on the social teachings of the Bible at the Seminary some of the leaders of the church assumed that he was offering a course on socialism. One fine Christian woman who had half a dozen charming daughters remarked that she was so glad that he was going to give such a course because her daughters were starting out in society and she was not clear in her mind as to what they ought to do about cards, theatres, and dancing, and now she was so glad that he was going to clarify what the bible had to say on these subjects. Doctor Lingle help to dissipate such confusion by contrasting the social message with the individual message. "There as a very distinct personal message in the Bible. It is directed to the individual. It tells him that he is a sinner and needs a Savior. It presents to him Jesus Christ as the only Savior of mankind, and calls upon him to repent and believe in Jesus Christ. It tells him that he must be born again before he can enter the Kingdom of God. It tells him of the necessity of personal purity and holiness, without which no man can see God. The social message of the Bible tells us of our relationships and duties to others. It so happens that the first question in the Bible is: 'Where art thou?' That is personal and individual. It also happens that the second question in the Bible is: 'Where is thy brother?' That is social. The Westminster Shorter Catechism tells us that 'the Scriptures principally teach what man is to believe concerning God and what duty God requires of man.' When you take up your Bible and begin to search for the duties which God requires of man, you will discover that the major portion of these are duties to our fellowmen. In other words they are social duties. The Sermon on the Mount, the Golden Rule, the Royal Law of Love, and many other portions of the Bible are taken up with our duties to others. The message which the Bible brings us concerning our relationships and our duties to others is its social message. If you will keep your social eye open when you read your Bible you will conclude that the bible is full of social teachings." It is the purpose of this course to study some of these social applications of the Gospel. Appropriately enough our first lesson deals with "Recognizing Our Debt to Others." We are not sure that the best passages have been chosen to bring this point home, but they will do. Read them in order. Neh. 4:15-23; Mk. 12:28-34; Rom. 15:1-7; Phil. 2:1-8; Col. 3:12; 4:1; James 2:14-17. What debt does each passage suggest that we owe to others? To what others do we owe this debt? We will build our study about these two questions.

I. What Debt Do We Owe to Others?

The shortest, completest answer that can be given to this question is found in Mk. 12:28-34. It is the answer that the Master gave in the closing days of his life. He came to Jerusalem, we remember, to make his final appeal to the nation. He asked the people to choose between his leadership and that of the high priests, the scribes, and the Pharisees. They were infuriated, and yet because Jesus was popular with the people, they feared to proceed against him directly. They sought, therefore, to discredit him by asking him difficult and entangling questions. The first question was about tribute to Caesar; the second had to do with the resurrection. The third question was of a different sort. One of the scribes, a bible teacher, came and heard them questioning together, and knowing that he had answered them well, asked him: What commandment is the first of all? We need to remember here that there were a thousand and one injunctions in the law, and in the traditions of the fathers, some of them ethical, some of them merely ceremonial but all of them equally binding. Jesus replied like a flash: "The first is, Hear, O Israel; the Lord our God, the Lord is one; and thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and will all thy mind, and with all thy strength. The second is this, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." According to Matthew's account he continued: "On these two commandments the whole law hangeth, and the prophets." 22:40.

It is the second of these two commandments that we are concerned with at this present time. It is a good thing for us to realize as we study this lesson, and as we begin to study some of the social teachings of the Bible, that all of the duties that we owe to our fellowmen, the whole debt, is summed up in one word, Love, or in one expression: Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.

But what does it mean to love our neighbor? To answer this question we need to go back to the Bible, and in this case at least to the original Greek in which the New Testament was written. When we do this we find that there are two words there, both of which are translated "love" in our English versions. The first of these words is used to describe the emotional aspect of love, the second the volitional aspect of love. The one puts the emphasis on the natural affection of the heart, which is spontaneously bestowed on the object of one's love, the other on the practical determination of the will, to seek the highest good of the one who is loved. Now the word which Jesus uses when he says, 'Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself' is not the word which expresses the emotional aspect of love, the affection one has for the object which is loved; but the word which expresses or emphasizes the volitional aspect of love, the practical determination of the will to seek the highest good of the one that is loved, and this determination may arise from admiration, or it may arise only from the sense of benevolence. We need to bear this distinction in mind. Most of us think that when Jesus said we must love our neighbor he meant that we must like our neighbor. As a matter of fact we know that there are some people whom we do not like, whom we cannot like. And, therefore, if we are frank many of us will have to admit that we have thought of this commandment as a counsel to perfection which we cannot hope to realize in practice. As a matter of fact the writer believes that there are some men, whom, on account of the lives that they live and the principles for which they stand, we as Christians cannot be expected to like. But on the other hand there is no man on the face of God's green earth, however, wretched he may be, however, steeped in sin, however personally repugnant to us he may be, whose real welfare we should not be willing to promote even at the cost of personal sacrifice to ourselves. Jesus does not say that we must like our neighbor as ourselves. He does say that we must love him, and he means that we must seek his highest good just as we seek our own.

Just what this requires in actual practice depends, of course, on the circumstances, and because the circumstances are infinitely varied, the obligations of love can not be stereotyped invariable forms. In order that our study may not be too abstract, however, we will consider some concrete cases. But before we do this we need to consider our second question for a moment.

II. To What Others Do We Owe This Debt?

Jesus said: Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. But who is our neighbor? Luke tells us that Jesus was once asked this question (10:29), and in reply he gave us the familiar story of the good Samaritan. A certain man traveling from Jerusalem to Jericho fell among thieves, who stripped him and beat him, and departed, leaving him half dead. A priest, and a Levite saw him but passed by on the other side. A Samaritan, however, chanced to pass that way and was moved with compassion for him and bound up his wounds and put him in the hands of those who would care for him. To understand just how this story struck the Jewish lawyer we might say that a Protestant minister saw him and passed by on the other side, that an officer of the Church saw him and passed by on the other side, but that a Catholic priest, or a negro, or a Mohammedan, or an atheist took compassion upon him. "Which of these three," asked Jesus, "thinkest thou, proved neighbor unto him that fell among the robbers?" And he said, "He that showed mercy on Him." And Jesus said unto him, "Go, and do thou likewise." As we think through this parable we know that the definition of a neighbor is not the definition of kinship or of friendship, but the definition of a neighbor is the definition of need. Wherever there is a need which in any way we can help to meet there in God's sight is our neighbor.

Now if this is true and it is true, then it is plain that we find our neighbors in many varying relations of life. And as already intimated the obligations of love will vary as the circumstances vary. Our other Scripture passages suggest some of these varying relations, some of these varying applications. Thus we may consider the obligations of a neighbor, the responsibilities of love toward

1. One's own community. Neh. 4:15-22. We have recently studied this passage and the circumstances are familiar. Jerusalem's great need was a protecting wall. The wall had been broken down, and the gates burned with fire, and the people were despondent. Nehemiah succeeded in getting the people to sink their differences, and to work together for the common good,—to persevere in spite of difficulties and dangers that would have daunted the most of us. The passage here cited gives us just a brief picture of the people carrying on their great task in the presence of the common enemy, some working, some watching, but all co-operating together for the common good. When there is a need which concerns the whole community, and which the individual cannot meet alone, love means co-operation, it means a willingness to work with others, and under others, for the common good. That is the debt we owe our community.

What are some of the needs of our community? Is it a library, a playground, a decent prison, a drive against vice, or the supplying of the community chest? Is the Christian obligated to help in such community activities? How can the co-operation of all Christians be more nearly secured for community activities?

2. A 'weak' brother, Rom. 15:1-7. To understand this paragraph we need to read also Rom. 14. The 'weak' brother of whom Paul is speaking is the Christian who regarded some meat as unclean, i. e. me: heathen idols should not be eaten by Christ still regarded some of the Jewish feast days as profane such days in spiritual life. It had no such effect on the Christian. How then should he behave himself his weaker brother. Paul said: "We who are to bear the burdens that the weak make for us. We are not to please ourselves. Each please his neighbor, doing him good by his faith." (Moffat's translation Rom. 15:1-7) course, this principle can be driven into it has its limits. Some common sense must. But the principle holds. Love means compromise self-denial, it means sacrifice, on the strong for the weak.

Do we have 'weak' brethren today? Who that they are those who can not indulge in practices which in themselves are morally innocent example playing bridge. There is no sin in playing bridge. But it may lead, it does something, which in some cases grows, until the character is more or less seriously impaired was such a prevalent and far reaching an evil or two ago that the church as a whole agreed Christians ought not to play any 'card' game they were all in themselves evil, but for the weaker brethren. Similar conclusions were regard to dancing, attendance on the observance, drinking of intoxicants even in What does love require of us in these and today?

3. A divided church. Phil. 2:1-8. Perhaps little unfair here to the church in Philippi say that the church was actually divided, from Paul's language that there were tendencies toward division. There was a division of opinion altogether willing to subordinate itself to the king of the church. Paul wrote from his prison "By all the stimulus of Christ, by every love, by all your participation in the Spirit affectionate tenderness, I pray you to give joy of knowing you are living in harmony same feelings of love, with one heart and acting for private ends or from vanity considering each other the better man, and eye to the interests of others as well as to Treat one another with the same spirit as in Christ Jesus. Though he was divine by not snatch at equality with God, but empty taking the nature of a servant; born in human appearing in human form, he humbly submitted obedience even to die, and to die upon the cross (Moffat's translation). Love in the church means to sink one's personal opinion, one's interest in the good of the whole.

Do we have divided churches today? To a church which does not have divisions which less grievously impair its witness, and desirability. Does Paul's solution hold? Would about the larger divisions within Protestant communities especially, and in the count the cities, the Church is handicapped by it. Paul's words apply here? What would require?

4. A disagreeable neighbor, Col. 3:12-14. He might be mighty disagreeable sometimes. Paul What should be our attitude toward such a neighbor? "As God's own chosen, then, as beloved, be clothed with compassion, kindness, gentleness and good temper, forbearance and other in any case of complaint; as Christ must you forgive." (Moffat's translation). How can we get to perfection? Can it be realized in practice about that woman who speaks about us in the man who takes advantage of us in a business practical and definite way, just what does love require in such cases?

5. A servant or an employee, Col. 4:1-6. We are living here only of servants or slaves. But in the laboring class of that day. If he were wealthy he would include employees. Matthew the text: Masters, treat your servants justly remember you have a Master of your own. Recent investigations have brought out that employees of southern textile mills receive a living wage, their wages must be supplemented by labor of their wives and children. Such a wage is justified in part because the workers are they were on their miserable little farm justify inadequate wages? The wages have been defended because it is all the industry. Granting that that is true, and that the owner is thereby absolved can the people of Christians be content with such conditions? Is it fair wage? Is it what the employee can accept? Is it what he can receive elsewhere? Is it what he can receive elsewhere? Is it what he can receive elsewhere? Does it bear the profits of the corporation?

6. A man who lacks the physical necessities, James 2:14-17. James is speaking of the rich and works. Faith to Jesus meant a practical attitude toward God, not merely belief in God, but Faith to Paul meant a practical attitude toward Jesus Christ, not merely belief in the Son of God, but a trust in Jesus as Savior.

(Continued on Page 10)

LDREN

THE LIONS 'N EVERYTHING

met at the corner of Walker and Main. Main was the business artery of the town. Walker street led off from some of the substantial community.

and there were four of them to discuss what they were to entertain themselves. Like, so called because of his hopstick legs, reminded them a picnic would be the thing to get their mothers to approve, and one of them to take her car to the woods or ard scorned the idea of a good deal to say about what he had seen the day before. He proposed a real, down-on-the-sidewalk with animals and stunts like Bruce's barn, now by the garage. Jackie being one of the bunch and one of the number, was the idea.

is, freckled-faced and with carrot-colored hair, re- the new boy who had just brought his family into the big red house on Walker Street, might be a lead, and "Red" thought it a good plan to stroll along. Horace Hancock happened enough, Horace was right in front of his house. A counter out of a couple of boards set between two boards was covered with a board. There was a pailful of liquid with a chunk of ice in it. A tree was tacked a white sheet over the public to quench the sign read:

LEMON AID
Right Up. Ice Kold. sense a Glass.

as behind the counter a tumberful of his own. Trot, Jackie and "Red" gazed with admiration—that a minute, and then they talked at once. The tenor of the talk was about the same goin' to do with all the who hadn't been on the scene enough to be favored with a nod. He hesitated, but upon the question, he looked a little embarrassed as he replied casa kid round on the next day. "I ain't got any Dad, an' her mother work awful hard jest to support an' things, an' Sally can't do a thing. She's awful lame. I'm gonna make some lemonade—a lot of it. I'll give it to her mother, an' if anybody else'll give her some, I'll give her a wheel-chair for Sally. It'll be over back of us."

They were thoughtful. Skinny had had three cents with him, and he promptly ordered lemonade to share with Trot and

Jackie who burst out as soon as they had swallowed the last gulp of the mixture. "Say, let's have some more like we said, an' put some more in, an' charge five cents. We'll make a big pile of it. We'll give it to Sally, too. I know how to do it. My mother does some sewing for

"Red" sniffed Skinny. "They ain't got any money to pay for it. If the admission was different, but pins ain't worth anything."

Red said to—lots of folks would have offered. "I could bring my car to Jackie's barn is a good idea. I let any kid ride around in it twice for five cents. I could bring my sister's Perce's a beaut. I could put it in the attic an'

TO SCHOOL NOW

(To be colored with paints or crayons, Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color.)

The children are going to school now. There is YELLOW-haired Susie May and BROWN-haired Teddy walking down the BROWN pathway from Susie May's house.

Susie May wears a PURPLE and YELLOW checked dress with white collar and cuffs. Her socks have PURPLE and YELLOW checks at the tops. Susie May wears a PURPLE beret cap. The slate she has under her arm is BLACK with a RED flannel edge. She has a RED and GREEN striped pencil and one plain RED one in her hand.

Teddy wears a GREEN sweater trimmed with ORANGE (use RED and YELLOW mixed) color about the neck, waist and cuffs. There is an ORANGE color airplane sewed on it, too. Teddy's trousers are dark-BLUE. His cap is GREEN and ORANGE color and his tie is GREEN. Teddy has a RED notebook in his hand and a big RED apple in his other hand. His socks are GREEN.

Susie May's house is PINK (use RED lightly) with a BROWN roof, GREEN shutters and RED chimney.

There is a big GREEN tree with BROWN branches in front of Susie May's house and the grass is still very GREEN.

The sky is light-BLUE. Both children have PINK cheeks and RED lips.

The border of this picture is to be colored RED and the lettering can be GREEN.

make a side show of it an' charge two cents for a peep at the catamost."

Skinny was getting interested.

"Say," he offered, "I've got a clown suit—yellow with black and white spots on it. I wore it to a masquerade party, and they's a peaked white cap with a black top-knot on it. I'll be the clown!"

"A fine clown you'll make," shrugged "Red," but Skinny didn't pay any attention.

The plans for the circus went forward swimmingly. Horace offered to move his lemonade business to the circus grounds if the boys would help him carry the boxes and the board for a counter. He was sure too that his mother would let them have her poodle for the afternoon, and they could give it the name of some ferocious, wild animal.

"Red" had had little to say, but the boys were used to that. When he did speak, the rest always listened. He spoke now.

"Say you fellars," he interrupted at last. "The people who live next door to us have a big guy visitin' them. He has written a book, an' he gives lectures, an' my mother says he's a real lion. I know him because he comes over to our piazza an' talks to my dad. I'll ask him to come an' talk to us. He can say some of his poems for the people an' I bet lots of folks will come just to hear him. But we'll have to advertise to let 'em know about it."

The boys looked dubious.

"How'll we do that?" Skinny demanded.

"Red" shook his head.

"We can tell all our friends the circus is tomorrow at two o'clock, and that the famous lion, Arnold Wakefield, will be right there already to roar, and that the admission money is to buy a wheel chair for a little lame girl. Say, what's the matter, Horace Hancock, with you getting your father to put a free notice in the Turnbull Daily News? He's the new editor, isn't he?"

Horace nodded, but he didn't look very certain about the matter.

"I can ask him," he said, "but perhaps he'd be surer to do it 'Red,' if you asked him."

"All right," returned "Red." "I gotta dollar of my own, an' I'll give him that if he'll write it up for us an' ask everybody to come, an' put a border around it."

And that's how it came about that there was a crowd—all Jackie Bruce's

(Continued on page 15)

PUZZLE CORNER

Geographical Diamonds

1. In iron.
2. A fuss.
3. One of the United States.
4. An electric unit.
5. In iron.

1. In metal.
2. To dawdle.
3. One of the United States.
4. A buffalo-like animal.
5. In metal.

Curtailments

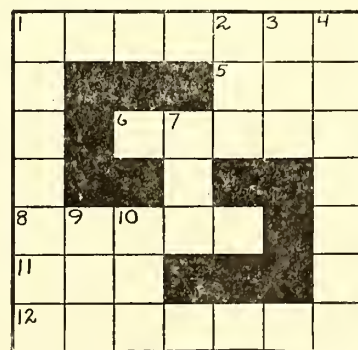

1. Curtail a loud sound, and leave a vegetable.
2. Curtail a girl's name, and leave a measure of length.
3. Curtail part of a door, and leave a confection.

4. Curtail a brave man, and leave a pronoun.
5. Curtail an animal, and leave a reptile.

All the chopped off letters arranged in a neat row will spell a word meaning toil.

PUZZLE CORNER

Junior Cross-Word Puzzle

Horizontal

- 1—An out-door game
- 5—A grain
- 6—Popular way of serving ice cream
- 8—A musical drama
- 11—Sabbath (abbr.)
- 12—Official residence of an ambassador

Vertical

- 1—Conductor's car on a freight train
- 2—Vase with a foot
- 3—Organ of sight
- 4—To state a fact
- 7—Over (contr.)
- 9—Pamphlet (abbr.)
- 10—Recede, as tide

CHURCH NEWS

SOME THINGS CROWDED OUT THIS WEEK

After we had gotten our first form ready, there came an ad for the Presbyterian College of South Carolina. We already had devoted one page to the Pension Fund. Therefore we are crowded for space. It has been necessary to leave out some news and some of the Auxiliary page. But we hope to make all this up to our good friends, the women. We expect to give them front page for the Synodicals as far as we can, and we shall double up on news later.

We are concerned to help the cause of Christian Education, and we are sending all the ministers of the South Carolina Synod this week's paper that they may see P. C.'s appeal for deliverance from debt, that she may proceed on her great destiny under her new president, Rev. John McSween.—Ed.

STATE-WIDE RALLY FOR PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE OCTOBER 4

Firm in the belief that "A college free of debt can better serve our Church," Presbyterian College, Clinton, S. C., this Fall is launching a financial campaign to be known as The Program of Deliverance.

A great educational rally, attended by pastors and leading Presbyterian laymen from all over the Synod, will be held at the college at Clinton on Friday, Oct. 4, to mark the official launching of the program. A large attendance is expected. The meeting begins at 10 a. m., followed by luncheon. Those attending the meeting will be guests at the P. C.-Mercer football game that day.

The goal of the campaign is $350,000, and the fund is to be raised in a state-wide organized appeal throughout the Synod of South Carolina.

(a) To deliver the College from the burden of its debt of nearly $350,000.

(b) To assure the receipt of three conditional endowment gifts totaling $148,000.

(c) To assure retention by the College of its "A Grade" standing and membership in the Southern Association of Colleges.

It is pointed out by Rev. John McSween, President of the College, that delivered from debt the College will be on a sound financial foundation for future development. The Church, too, will be delivered from burdensome annual payments for college operating expenses.

The three gifts totaling $148,000 have been offered the College on condition that the debt be liquidated by January 1, 1931.

Addition of the $148,000 to the present endowment of $338,000 will bring the sum nearly up to the half million dollar mark. This, with a normal annual contribution from the Church, will meet the requirements of the Association and enable the College to retain its "A Grade" standing.

REV. D. M. FULTON, D.D., DIES AT DARLINGTON, S. C.

Rev. D. M. Fulton, D.D., former pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, at Darlington, S. C., died at his home there after an extended illness.

Doctor Fulton came to Darlington in May, 1895, and served as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church for 33 years, resigning a year ago on account of his failing health. He was chaplain of the local post of Traveling Protective Association and of the American Legion since its organization. Doctor Fulton was much loved by all who knew him and his friends are many.

He was 63 years of age and is survived by one brother, the Rev. Sam P. Fulton, a missionary in Japan; three sons, D. M. Fulton, Jr., W. D. Fulton and the Rev. S. Hewitt Fulton of Honea Path; two daughters, Miss Emma Fulton and Miss Rachel Fulton, a student at Converse College.

Funeral services were held Friday morning and were conducted by the Rev. T. E. Simpson, who succeeded Doctor Fulton as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, assisted by the Rev. A. H. McArn of Cheraw and the Rev. H. Tucker Graham of Florence.—Columbia State.

OKLAHOMA SYNODICAL

Oklahoma Synodical Auxiliary will meet at Hugo, Okla., October 22, 23, 24, 1929. Executive Committee meeting 2:30 p. m., October 22. Call to order at 4:00 p. m.

Emma McBride, Cor. Sec.
Colgate, Okla., September 6, 1929.

NORTH CAROLINA

Marston—A week's revival services conducted by Rev. J. W. Stork, of Mt. Gilead, closed Sabbath night, September 15. Four children were received on profession of faith. Both morning and evening services were well attended. This was indeed a season of spiritual refreshing. Rev. A. T. Taylor is pastor of this Church, having begun his work here April 1 of this year.

Charlotte, Thomasboro—Rev. W. H. Matheson has accepted the calls to four Home Mission Churches in Nashville Presbytery, Milton, Cripple Creek, Stone's River and Woodbury, in Rutherford County, Tenn., near Murfreesboro. Mr. Matheson has been at Thomasboro since his ordination in June, 1927, and has led the Church here in building a splendid edifice, well adapted to this growing suburb. He and Mrs. Matheson, who is an Assembly's Training School graduate, have done a good work here. They will leave for their new field about October 15, and will probably make their home in Milton, Tenn., where the manse of the group is situated.

Elizabeth City—At this farthest northeast point of the Synod in Elizabeth City, the Albemarle Presbytery Young People's League held their fall Rally-Conference at Cann Memorial Church, September 5, 1929. Thirty-four delegates and ten adult leaders from New Bern, Washington, Greenville, Pinetops, Tarboro, Wilson and Edenton attended. In the afternoon a delightful cruise was enjoyed down the Pasquotank River on the U. S. Coast Guard Cutter "Pamlico." Upon return the young people held inspirational services in the Church at 5 p. m. and 8 p. m. The Conference was concluded at the close of the evening service with a beautiful consecration service at which time several of the young people rededicated themselves to Christ. C. M. B.

Maxton—A meeting of the board of trustees of the Presbyterian Junior College for Men has been called for Friday, September 27th at 10 a. m. at the college in Maxton.

On the evening of the same day there will be a public reception at the college for the purpose of introducing the college—the faculty and students—to the Presbyterians of the State. The public generally is invited, but the trustees hope that as many of the Presbyterians throughout the State and country as possible will be present on this occasion. It is hoped that the members of Synod present last year when the body met in Maxton and decided to start this college will be at this reception.

Winston-Salem Presbytery met in its thirteenth stated meeting in the Lansing Presbyterian Church, Lansing, Ashe County, N. C., September 10, at 7:30 p. m. The opening sermon was preached by Dr. B. R. Lacy, president of Union Theological Seminary. Rev. R. L. Berry was elected moderator and Rev. W. T. Baker temporary clerk.

The name of the North Winston Church was changed to the George W. Lee Memorial Church.

The commission to organize a church at Low Gap reported that the church had been organized with nineteen members to be known as The Low Gap Presbyterian Church. The following officers were elected and installed: Elders, William Bare and F. M. Allen; deacons Lee Bare and Isaac Bare.

The Lansing Church was dedicated with Dr. Lacy preaching the sermon and Elder J. R. Weaver giving the history of the church.

Rev. J. J. Douglas was received from Holston Presbytery.

The overture of the General Assembly concerning union with the United Presbyterian Church was answered in the negative.

The Presbytery heard with pleasure the following speakers: Rev. S. W. Huffer, on the Ministers' Annuity Fund, Mr. J. B. Johnston, on the Orphanage, and Dr. B. R. Lacy, on Union Seminary.

Thursday morning session of Presbytery was held in the Peak Creek Church for the purpose of dedicating this church. Rev. C. W. Robinson presided over this service and Rev. John W. Luke gave a history of the church. Dr. Lacy preached the sermon.

The next stated meeting of Presbytery will be at Mount Airy.

E. P. Bradley, Stated Clerk.

Concord Presbytery met in Prospect Church, near Mooresville, September 17, 1929, at 10:30 a. m. Present, 34 minister and 32 ruling elders.

Rev. W. G. Harry was elected moderator and Rev. S. L. Cathey, temporary clerk.

Rev. F. A. Barnes was received from the Presbytery of Holston. He becomes pastor of the Harmony group of churches. Arrangement was made for his installation at an early day.

Arrangement was also made to install Rev. J. D. Deans at Bethesda church. Mr. Deans has been supplying this church in connection with the Prospect church.

Candidate A. N. Moffett was received by transfer from the Macon Presbytery. After a creditable examination he was duly licensed and a commission was appointed to ordain and install him in the Taylorsville group within the next two months.

Two candidates for the ministry were examined, viz: J. E. Moore, a member of Church, Salisbury and Junius L. Thomason of Lin Church.

The pastoral relation between Rev. K. L. M. and the Patterson Church were dissolved.

Presbytery postponed action on the matter with the United Presbyterian Church.

Presbytery heard a very instructive and interesting address from Dr. L. I. Moffett, one of our ministers in China, in connection with the report on Foreign Missions.

Presbytery gave its cordial endorsement to the plan adopted by the general Assembly and a committee of three leading laymen to have charge of the work of the M. A. F. in the Presbytery.

Two new trustees of Mitchell College were elected, Mr. S. E. Sloop, to take the place of Mr. J. M. Ramsay, resigned, and Mrs. George A. Brown to take the place of Mrs. Ramsay, who is now President.

An adjourned meeting will be held during the Synod. The Stated Clerk will be glad to receive invitation for the Spring Meeting.

E. D. Brown

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Washington, Central—At a meeting of the following representatives were elected: Synod, Principal, Jas. T. Mathews, Alternate, M. Ely; To Potomac Presbytery, Addison H. Principal, W. W. Warwick, Alternate.

TEXAS

Beaumont—The Synod's Committee on Wide Campaign of Evangelism met in the First Church in September to plan for the campaign. Members of the committee are I. W. Currie, of the Austin Seminary, Dr. C. T. Waco and Dr. T. M. Hunter, of Beaumont.

Port Arthur—The District Conference Clubs met at Westminster Presbyterian Church, Port Arthur, Wednesday, September 25. About 100 were present and a most enthusiastic meeting was held. Refreshments were served by the ladies of the Port Arthur Church. Mr. Winthrop W. Sided and the principal address was made by Samuel Joekel, of Austin Seminary.

Beaumont—Westminster Presbyterian Church has begun preparations for a financial campaign. Funds secured are to be used for the erection of a new Sunday School building and the repair of the church auditorium. Dr. T. M. Hunter, pastor, is being assisted by Dr. S. W. McGill, of Louisville, Ky. The amount sought is $125,000. The campaign closes September 30.

Marshall, First Church—Dr. W. I. Carroll, pastor, during the summer the church has been newly decorated throughout. Four tall hand posts surmounted with round globes have been placed outside, two on each side of the spacious lawn. An artistic illumination of the whole church is being effected. These beautiful lamp posts or standards are the gift of Mrs. Milton Lothrop in memory of her husband, who many years was a deacon in this church.

Doctor Carroll returned September 8. He preached two Sundays in Boston, Mass., one in the First Presbyterian Church and the other in the First Street Church, then two Sundays in the Brooklyn Presbyterian Church in New York City.

VIRGINIA

Covesville—As the visible results of a mission in the Worth Garden Church which is under the pastoral charge of Rev. J. C. Johnson, Covesville, which he was assisted by Rev. A. T. Massie's Mill, ten young people united with the church and others will come later.

In August the pastor held a meeting at Covesville and on September 15 seven young people were received into the church. Pastor and people praise to the Holy Spirit for His presence.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

(Continued from page 8)

to Him as Lord. But in James' day, just as our own, there were some Christians who thought that nothing more than intellectual belief was enough. That sort of faith can never save a man. It is not real unless it proves itself in works of love. He uses as an illustration the case of a man who needs food, and who needs clothing. Love presses itself in helpful action. Do men lack necessities of life today? What is the debt that we owe to our fellow men? How can it be paid? Is the debt to be paid by Christian people in your community? Can it be paid simply by charity?

Ministers' Annuity Fund

Of the Presbyterian Church in the United States

Some Other Questions Answered

I. Does the Plan Favor the Higher Salaried Man at the Expense of Those Poorly Paid?

Those who ask this question are laboring under a distinct misapprehension. The Plan does not give to better paid ministers an annuity of $2,000, and to the less well paid $600. In fact no minister for a few years can receive more than the minimum pension.

For "prior service," i. e., service rendered before the inauguration of the Fund (which we hope will be January 1, 1931) every minister will share in the $3,000,000 which will be raised, (as may be needed to bring his pension up to the minimum) to the amount of 1-70 of a hypothetical salary of $1,200 multiplied by the number of years of such service. In case of 35 years of service the minimum pension will be $600. This rule will apply whether the actual salary has been $700 or $7,000. The $3,000,000 Fund will be consumed in creating annuities for those who have been in the service so long that they could not hope to have created for them annuities by the regular provision of the plan.

For those who come later, the plan is wholly "contributory." For all such the annuity is built (1) by monthly payments by the minister of 2½ per cent of his total salary, (2) by monthly payments by the church of a sum equal to 7½ per cent of the minister's total salary, and (3) by the remarkable accretions produced by compound interest.

As the salaries of the poorly paid ministers are increased, their pensions are automatically increased. A minister who gets $7,000 a year may not receive half that amount at his next location. The peak of the salary curve of our ministers is at age 49. The pension is based on the average salary under the plan.

As an illustration take two men who have each served the Church twenty-nine years and then enter the plan. Each then serves six years under the plan, and reaching sixty-five years of age, retires with a total of thirty-five years of service. The average salary of one is $1,200 a year, the average salary of the other $7,000. The man on $1,200 a year has an earned pension of 6-70 of $1,200 or $102.84 to bring his salary to the minimum of $600. There will be drawn for him each year from the $3,000,000 fund for accrued liability $497.16, and his annual pension will be $600, as long as he lives and $300 annually for his widow and $100 to each minor orphan at the minister's death. The one on the average salary of $7,000 will have an earned annuity of 6-70 of $7,000 or $600—he will draw nothing from the accrued liability fund of $3,000,000 and both will have the same pension of $600 a year.

II. Who Will Manage the Ministers' Annuity Fund?

The Management is in the hands of the Executive Committee of Ministerial Relief which has an unbroken record of twenty-five years of successful management and safe investment of funds. The Article of Incorporation to be acted upon by the next Assembly will provide that every known human safeguard shall be thrown about the finances. It is proposed that the next General Assembly add to the personnel of the committee a few other members who are capable in the field of pension and of finance. All the records of the Fund will be presented to the proper Church courts, published for the inspection of every member of the Church, and the spotlight of publicity will be thrown on every transaction. There is nothing covered or hidden in our work and the work of the Fund will be carried on in the same frank, public and faithful way. No change can be made in the Fund except with the consent of the General Assembly.

III. How Will the $3,000,000 Be Secured?

Each church will be asked to provide at least an amount equal to the yearly salary paid the minister, plus ten per cent, to be paid in cash or in equal payments, during a period of three years. Men of our own Church, on modest salaries, with strict economy, will assist men in the Synods, Presbyteries and local churches who will see that all have an opportunity to have some part in this work. The pastor will not be expected to enlist his church, but it cannot be done without his active interest. We have been deeply gratified at the large number of men who have volunteered, even before a call is made, to assist in this program. There is a growing appreciation in the minds of thoughtful men and women of the responsibility of the Church to provide for its servants who have been called away from the sources of worldly gain and of the sin and folly of a failure to keep the promise made to them that they shall be "free from worldly cares and avocations." This money will be cheerfully given and will make the pev more appreciative of the pulpit and cause the people to understand more sympathetically the serious problems of the pastor.

IV. It Can't Be Done, Can It?

This was the message written on a card returned by one pastor. We were not surprised. In the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., there were many who said the ministers could not pay the 2½ per cent of their salaries and the churches would not pay the equivalent of 7½ per cent; the $15,000,000 demanded by that Church for the accrued liabilities for the prior service of its ministers would not be subscribed; and if all this were done it would simply take out of the benevolent offerings to the other Boards amounts they sorely needed. No one of these doleful predictions came to pass. The ministers and churches have entered; the Church gladly subscribed the needed money; and the other Boards have prospered—their receipts increased, their debts paid and because of the reduced place in the Budget for the Board of Pension and Ministerial Relief they received larger proportionate shares of the total offerings. Hundreds of thousands of dollars are given by Southern Presbyterians to causes, very remotely, if at all, related to the Kingdom of God. Many give from $50,000 to $250,000 to great enterprises who never pledge more than $25 per week in the budget. All our people live when their heads and hearts are both touched. This money can be raised without hurting any other worthy cause. It will be a challenge that will awake our people to renewed sense of an obligation too long neglected.

Watch this page for answers to other questions

Ask any question and we will gladly answer

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH IN THE UNITED STATES,

Department of Ministerial Relief and Ministers' Annuity Fund,

Henry H. Sweets, Secretary. John Stites, Treasurer.

410 Urban Building, Louisville, Kentucky.

STORY

PETER SPRINGS A SURPRISE

Peter Ogden looked at the clock on the fireplace shelf and was dismayed to find it was five o'clock. His mother might be home any minute and the radio was not yet finished.

"Nancy!" he called, hastily disconnecting a wire which he had attached to the wrong binding post.

"Nancy!" He repeated the call more loudly, following it up almost immediately with a shrill whistle.

His younger sister, clad in knickers and sports sweater, ran up the steps of the cottage and entered the living-room. "What is it, Peter? I was up the creek when you called first. Are you not going to get it finished?"

"Not today, but I would like to work on it as long as possible. Be a good scout and stick around the shore, will you? I want to have everything out of sight before mother gets back. You can warn me in plenty of time."

There had been an air of mystery about the Ogden camp for several days and, although she was conscious of it and of the children's obvious desire to have her out of the way, Mrs. Ogden had no suspicion of what they were doing. She had been secretly amused at Peter's urgent seconding of Nancy's proposal that she should visit the Grays that afternoon. Peter had even volunteered to run her across the Bay in the "putt-putt," but she had declined his generous offer, preferring to take the canoe. She had left directly after dinner, promising to be back in time for supper.

"Tee-oo-wee!" signaled Nancy from the shore, having sighted a long red canoe cutting through the still waters.

Peter whistled his reception of the desired information and, shoving loose wires, binding posts and other odds and ends into a box, he carried the receiver down to the boathouse cautiously stowing it away beneath a heavy tarpaulin. This done, he opened the door and launched the rowboat.

"Want to come?" he shouted to Nancy, starting the outboard motor and backing the skiff away from the dock. "I am going to meet mother."

"No, I will wait for you here." Nancy shook her head in refusal of his invitation and sat down on the shore to await their return.

The Ogden camp was situated on the wooded shores of shadow Bay, one of the southerly recesses of a large lake in Northern Ontario. The cottage was ten miles from a railway station and their nearest neighbors were to be found in an Indian village two miles up the lake. Mrs. Ogden liked the summers spent up north but she missed the church service on the Sabbath and regretted she had not spoken to her husband about bringing along a radio, when he took his holidays. Something of this she had said to Nancy, who had imparted the news to her brother. Peter lost no time in writing to his father and the result was that a bulky parcel had been sent to the Grays, whose camp was only two miles from the station. The parcel contained all the necessary parts of a radio, including batteries, ready for assembling. Nancy had gone across for it in the "putt-putt," while Peter had taken his mother for a long promised trip up the lake in the big motor-boat.

Saturday found Peter again at work on the receiving set. He was eager to get it finished in time for the Sunday service. Nancy and Mrs. Ogden had gone fishing. The set was assembled and there only remained the soldering and shielding to do before it would be ready to test out. He took the soldering iron to the kitchen and, lighting the coal-oil stove, held it over the flame. As he was about to remove it he heard a noise on the veranda, followed by a stealthy footfall in the living-room. The hot iron still in his hand, he stepped quickly to the doorway. What he saw, startled him. Bending over the receiving set and peering inquisitively at the baseboard, was a tall, lithe figure, topped by sleek hair and wearing a tattered khaki suit—a young Indian.

"Hey! What are you doing?" challenged Peter, entering the room.

The Indian straightened up and, observing the smoking iron in the boy's hand, moved swiftly toward the outer door. On the veranda he paused and pointed toward a basket at his feet. In it were woven baskets, mats and other colorful knick-knacks.

"You buy?" he asked, his smile revealing two rows of beautiful white teeth.

"No." Peter did not recognize him, although he and Nancy often paddled up to the village and he knew many of the occupants by name. "And do not come in the house again. See?"

Like the shadow of a passing cloud in the summer sky, a frown darkened the smiling face—to be instantly replaced by an even broader showing of white teeth.

"I go. I not come back." The brown skinned youth picked up the basket and strode down the path.

Peter watched him until he disappeared through the trees on the west side of the boathouse. Then he hurried over to the radio and examined it carefully. The Indian had not molested anything and Peter returned to his soldering.

Late that evening the radio was finished and, while Nancy took her mother for a moonlight paddle up the creek, Peter connected the batteries and tried out the machine. His father had sent up the parts of an Exodyne—the same set the boy had built for their home in the city. Peter was sanguine the radio would work, although he had read a great deal about air pockets and he wondered if he would be troubled by them. However, after a few adjustments, he tuned in on one of the large American stations and the volume was so great he had to transfer the earphones to the first stage.

"Hurrah!" he cried, wishing Nancy were there to hear it. "Mother will certainly be surprised when she hears the service tomorrow."

He dialed through the middle wave lengths and picked up several stations, among them two in their own city. Thoroughly satisfied, he turned off the current and replaced the radio beneath the tarpaulin. He had rigged up a temporary aerial from the boathouse to a tall tree behind the cottage.

"Did it work, Peter?" asked Nancy, half an hour later. She and her brother were sitting on the porch steps. Mrs.

Ogden having gone indoors to letters.

"Like a bird!" Peter assumed to raise the antenna though. I think I will put house to that big tree over the beach then, can't we?"

The boy nodded. His mind devising an aerial for the machine they could take the set with the long jaunts.

Sunday in the Ogden camp of quiet repose. There was breakfast and understood thing that no special indulgence during the day. Nancy were both fond of it; there was a plentiful supply of nature at the cottage, so the advance of Sunday did not prove some.

Peter awoke that morning eight o'clock. The sun was bright morning felt refreshingly cool.

"Reception ought to be fine reflected, bounding out of bed his daily dozen. Mr. Ogden

GOLDEN MAIZE DINNERWARE

3 LUZIANNE COUPONS and 89 Cents Per Group

At Your Grocers or Mail Coupon

See the Golden Maize Dinnerware at your grocers or mail coupon for three Luzianne coupons and 89c to the United Profit Sharing Corporation for any one of the three groups you wish to start your set with. Always remember too, Luzianne has become the world's largest selling coffee because it is so good.

Genuine Golden Maize Dinnerware probably needs no introduction to you. Undoubtedly you have been reading Good Housekeeping Magazine, Delineator or House and Garden and have seen where Golden Maize was chosen as the finest example of American art. Picture the gold of the sunset and then you most closely approximate the glorious background of color of this beautiful dinnerware. Note the unique and perfectly proportioned shapes of each piece, wouldn't you like to have a full dinner set for your table?

Luzianne Makes Startling Offer

Searching for a way in which we could be of real service to housewives, we approached the manufacturers of Golden Maize Dinnerware and made them an offer for three solid car loads of these wonderful dinner sets. Now we are going to sell them to our Luzianne customers at what they cost us, and in a very easy and convenient way.

3 Luzianne Coupons and 89c per group

Under each group the pieces are described so you can figure just how many of each group you will need for your family.

You can buy a group at a time and in a few weeks you will have a full set. Think of it, a 65-piece set of Genuine Golden Maize that will have only cost you $9.84. To know what a remarkable offer this is, just price any dinner set equally as beautiful and you will find it will cost $50.00 or more.

LUZIANNE GUARANTEE

If after using the entire contents of a can of Luzianne (according to directions) you are not satisfied in every respect, your grocer will refund the money you paid for it.

GROUP No. 1	9 in. Dinner Plate.
consists of:	6 in. Bread and Butter Plate.
	6 in. Soup Plate.
	5 in. Fruit or Dessert Cup.
	Saucer.
GROUP No. 2	1 Covered Sugar Bowl.
consists of:	1 Cream Pitcher.
GROUP No. 3	11 in. Meat Platter.
consists of:	9 in. Oblong Vegetable Dish.
	8 in. Salad Bowl.

3 LUZIANNE COUPONS ENTITLES YOU TO MANY GROUPS AS YOU WISH FOR AT 89c PER GROUP

LUZIANNE COFFEE

100% GOOD

640 MAGAZINE ST. NEW ORLEANS

If your grocer cannot supply you send this with Luzianne coupons and 89 cents per group to The United Profit Sharing Corporation, 18th St., New York, include 50 cents per group for postage and packing.

NAME.....

ADDRESS.....

Y. M. C. A. and the two men had been brought up regarding physical training. will be ready in fifteen minying monuments the im-ors are to secure the very and workmanship. From standpoint you can make if you require your dealer sboro Granite. It should be ure and straight grain, free s, such as stains, white or s, white or black splotches aves (variation in the mix- and dark crystals) in the yourself test the stone by cket of water thrown over which are not apparent one is dry stand out prom- it is wet. It is important owever, that the stone is one similar to Winnsboro the real Winnsboro Gran- means first grade product Anderson quarries of the Granite Corporation, Rion, ina.

MONUMENTS

ite costs more and is ed. You can afford to pay something more for a built of such stone, if you ed in having a monument last, remain beautiful nturies, and afford high inscription. The quarry rough your dealer a guar- ne stone which he uses for ase of a monument is Granite, which means the rade of perfect stone sold oro Granite Corporation.

pt second grade stock un- willing to have the monu- y certain irregularities he trade as defects. Since the stone in the finest Granite monument is only cent. of the total cost of monument, you can afford higher price for a real Granite monument, and urance that there is noth- b be had for permanence, legibility of inscription.

free booklet of designs Winnsboro Granite Cor- on, S. C.—Adv.

uts, children," called Mrs. Ogden from the kitchen. "It s a beautiful day—you ought to be off for a tramp through the bush."

Nancy, the sleepy head of the family, had to be called twice but, at length, breakfast and Bible were over and Peter was free to go to the boathouse. He had brought fresh water from the spring while Nancy was dressing.

Nancy, whose duty it was to wash the breakfast dishes, was putting away the cereal dishes when she heard a summon- ing whistle from Peter and hastily tuck- ing the last spoon in the drawer, she ran down to the boathouse. One look at her brother's worried countenance told her something direful had happened.

"Someone has stolen the radio." Peter wasted no words.

"Stolen the radio?" echoed Nancy in bewilderment. "Are you sure?"

For reply, Peter lifted up the tarpau- lin. The space where the radio had lain was empty.

"Oh, Peter! After all your work, too!" Nancy was on the verge of tears. She stared at the spot where she had last seen the receiving set. "Who do you suppose would take it?"

"I think I know," said Peter grimly. He told her of the Indian's visit the dav before.

"It is very likely down at the village," decided Nancy, when her brother had finished. "Are you going after it?"

"Yes. I will take the motor-boat. Where is mother?"

"She has gone over to the Point for a walk. I will go with you, Peter. She will not be back for hours."

Her brother hesitated a moment. "All right," he agreed, finally, unfastening the front doors of the boat-house. "I don't suppose we will have any trouble."

The speed boat drove through the water at twenty miles an hour and it was not long before they reached the Indian en- campmt. The boy shut off the power and the boat drifted toward the shore.

"Peter! Do you hear an organ?" Nancy lifted her head and listened eagerly.

The boy nodded. Suddenly the full tones of the instrument came to their ears— someone in the village evidently under- stood how to operate a receiving set.

Peter grew wrathful as he realized his radio had been stolen deliberately. He tied the boat to a stout sapling and turned to follow Nancy up the path.

At that moment the organ ceased and a deep voice rolled through the forest. The sermon was commencing and the minister was announcing his text. "Be ye kindly affectioned one to another . . ."

Peter stood still, while the voice which came from somewhere in the far South exhorted its hearers to listen intently to the unfolding of the Scriptures.

"What is wrong, Peter?" called Nancy,

Largest and MOST MODERN PLANT in the Carolinas

LARGEST USERS OF WINNSBORO GRANITE IN THE CAROLINAS

Charlotte Marble & Granite Works

R. E. SCOGGINS Proprietor CHARLOTTE, N. C. W. 7th St. and Southern Railway OLDEST LARGEST BEST Phone 281

RALLY DAY October 6, 1929

$105,000 NEEDED To Reach and Teach Our Share of the Neglected Childhood of the South

SEND CHECKS TO R. E. MAGILL, Treasurer, BOX 1176, RICHMOND, VA.

to suffer long from neu- ealgia, or headaches when siff and sure, with Bayer or 28 years the medical has recommended it. It ffect the heart. Take it d rheumatism, sciatica, argle it for a sore throa . Proven directions for yses, in every package. res have genuine Bayer hich is readily identified ne on the box and the rs on every tablet.

ASPIRIN

the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture aceticacidester of Salicylicacid

HARRIS FRESH WATER SYSTEMS

Private water supply systems for suburban and farm homes, schools, hotels, churches, clubs, filling stations, industrial plants. Fresh cool water under pressure. No frozen pumps or tanks. No greasy machinery about the well. Automatic electric or engine drive. Durable, dependable and economically operated. Thousands in use for years. Write for literature. HARRIS PUMP MFG. CO. Greenville, S. C.

The Bristol-Nelson School

For mentally defective children. Open throughout the year—limited to 25 pupils. Girls of all ages. No boys over 12 years of age. Scientific training. Ideal home life. Large lawns and playgrounds—5 assistants. Prices range from $900 to $1,800 per year. For illustrated catalog—Address MRS. CORA BRISTOL-NELSON Murfreesboro, Tenn.

$4.00 NOW WORTH $60.00 IN THE SPRING

For $4.00 we will deliver postpaid 15 pounds of Hairy Vetch seed and NitrA-Germ inoculation to plant one acre with oats or rye. Plant during October. Grazy during winter and make two tons of hay to the acre by May. Build your land with Vetch. Nitr-Germ will grow the crop for you. Cetaoin shrdl shrdl shrdl shr d hlrsdrdbttt

The NitrA-Germ Company Savannah, Ga.

25 Xmas Cards
with FULL NAME EMBOSSED

Envelopes Included. These Cards are distinctive in color and design and are worth $3.00 Order today.

MONEY CHEERFULLY REFUNDED
Shipped immediately upon receipt of Cash, Check or Money Order.

FORDHAM PRESS, Inc.
Dept. 2496 Webster Ave., New York

100,000 SATISFIED CUSTOMERS

HARTRAMPF'S VOCABULARIES

An Aid to Writers and Speakers who wish Clarity, Precision, and Beauty. Useful to business as well as professional men and women.

HARTRAMPF'S VOCABULARIES—548 pages—classifies, arranges, and refers synonyms, antonyms and relatives.

Offers 60 to 150 different terms as against the few provided by Roget, Soule and others.

Three Styles of Binding—Cloth, $5, Fabriko, $10, and Deluxe, $15 Sent on 10 Days Free Trial.

HARTRAMPF'S COMPANY
Gould Building Atlanta, Ga.

P·R·I·N·T·I·N·G

of every description

THE largest book or the smallest visiting card, we are equipped to serve you according to your needs.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD Publishing Company

P. O. Box 869 Charlotte, N. C.

QUALITY PRINTING & REASONABLE PRICE

who was some distance ahead. "Aren't you coming?"

Peter motioned her back. "Wait a minute; I want to hear the sermon."

The girl stared at him in surprise but sat down quietly and waited for the minister to finish his discourse. The sermon was one of brotherly love and the speaker emphasized the need for kindly toleration and besought his congregation to "return good for evil." Before long Peter's face had lost its angry look and he and his sister exchanged glances of sympathetic understanding.

"Aren't you glad we came along when we did, Peter?" asked Nancy, half an hour later, when the minister had closed with a brief prayer. "If you had taken the radio away, the Indians would never have heard that sermon."

"It would have been worse for me," admitted the boy truthfully. "For I was awfully angry when I came and I might have said something I would have been sorry for—not to mention causing trouble with the Indians."

When Mrs. Ogden returned from her walk to the Point, she was startled to hear voices as she neared the cottage. She quickened her step, fearing lest something had happened to the children during her absence. Before she reached the clearing, the voices were stilled and, in their place, came a burst of congregational singing:

"Onward Christian soldiers, marching as to war,
With the Cross of Jesus going on before."

She hurried through the bush and, coming out into the open, beheld a sight which remained with her for many years. Nancy and Peter were sitting in the midst of twenty or thirty Indians, while on the top step of the veranda was a dusky-skinned youth seated before a radio receiver. A pleased expression lighted the usually stolid countenances of the brown-skinned folk and Chief Rain-in-the-Face, who had once been saved from drowning by Peter's father, was nodding his head in time with the music.

"Mother!" Nancy made room for her between herself and Peter. "Isn't it wonderful? That chap knows almost as much about radio as Peter does. His name is Jumping Rabbit and he has been away from the tribe for over two years."

There was no time for further explanation for the music had ended and the service was but half over. There was something very awe-inspiring in the picture presented that summer in the Canadian northland. The Indians could not understand much of the sermon but the solemnity of the peaceful Sabbath day left its impress on their hearts.

When the service was over, Rain-in-the-Face turned to Mrs. Ogden and smiled apologetically. "I ver' sorry, Jumpin'-Rabbit—he been 'way two year—hear music maybe. He not tak' it again. How Mr. Ogden?"

Peter, who had been talking radio with Jumping Rabbit, now came forward. "Mother did not know anything about it, Rain-in-the-Face. It is all right. Jumping Rabbit is going to help me put my aerial higher tomorrow. He did not mean to steal the radio. He was going to bring it back this afternoon."

After their guests had gone back to the village, Mrs. Ogden heard the whole story. Her heart was glad when Peter came to that part which showed his conquest over self.

"That is practical Christianity, Peter," she said quietly. "If we cannot do unto others as we would have them do to us, we are not living up to our beliefs. You have done good missionary work this morning, son, and I am proud of you and Nancy."

Peter and Nancy flushed happily at these words of praise. They were not sure they deserved them but they had tried to live up to the words of the text. —Olive Burus Kirby in The Uplift.

HAPPILY EVER AFTER?

Bernard C. Clausen, D.D., in the Watchman-Examiner

"And so they were married, and lived happily ever after." It is the traditional ending for the old-fashioned fairy story. In these ancient tales, all the trouble happened before marriage. Everything was supposed to be safe and pleasant afterwards.

Nowadays, the stories begin with the marriage ceremony and show the trouble which comes afterwards.

"Needles and pins, needles and pins, When a man marries, his trouble begins!"

This is the jingle that is characteristic of our new experience. Why?

In the first place, it is harder than ever to create the necessary factors for a happy home life. And in the second place, we know less than ever about it. We have learned so skilfully to do almost everything else. But for this, the most difficult profession in the world, we have devised no adequate training, and can propose no satisfactory advice.

And so I am daring, out of an experience which has involved marrying 1,200 young people and hearing from them year after year in direct and intimate correspondence, to suggest ten commandments for wedded life:

1. Thou shalt have no other purpose more important than the purpose of securing and maintaining a happy home. Nothing is worth while without it; nothing is too hard to bear with it. Poverty, pain, defeat—these are mere incidentals to the men and women who enjoy exultant love in their homes. Whatever else you omit from your life, this you must secure, or be in all respects a failure.

2. Thou shalt not neglect thy Church, together. I know that this sounds like professional advice from a minister who is anxious to build up his business. But I dare to give it because I have never seen a break occur where both continued consistently active in the same know that the glow of roma "busy-ness" of new babies make it hard to come to Ch far as I have been able to o one absolutely certain safeg domestic unhappiness.

3. Thou shalt not be consc things. Most divorces can E the constant irritation of tiny Before you are married, peo to say, "I don't understand v in her!" But after you are are likely to say, "I don't s irritate each other so easily things for the sake of home

4. Thou shalt look forwa what you do in the light of years and your children.

5. Thou shalt remember—d preferences, places. If you fo seem like neglect. Your joy pends upon your ability to r

6. Thou shalt forget. Do resentments. Night-time is a partly because it is a time fr Settle things before sleep co

7. Thou shalt not be afrai edge. I know the old-fashion if you knew anything about r were stained by the knowle

DR. HILL'S 1200 Bible Questions In Consecutive Order

A wonderful help in Bible study. Thousands are using th ting a clearer and better und the Bible.

We are using them in our c the booklets intensely interest, instructive. We thank you for derful help in the study of the F. P. Furtick, St. Matthews, S I think that your 1200 Bil should be in every home.—Mrs back, Linwood, Ga.

Answers printed separately. same price as Question book- ders promptly filled when set t

IRVING GILMER, Liberty, Missouri

MARY BALDWIN CO

For women. Courses lead to B. S. degrees. Music, art, lish, physical education. Gyn field athletics. Modern equ beautiful Shenandoah Valley 1842. Catalog. Staunton, Va

USE No Pain

A Scientific Preparation For BOILS, CARBUNCLES, BOI ULCERS, CUTS, and OLD SORE NO LANCE CHEMICAL New Brookland, S. C.

5,000 CHRISTIAN WORKERS to sell Bibles, Testaments, and handsome velvet Script Good commission. Send for logue and price list.

GEORGE W. NOBLE, Dept. 3-F, Monn Bldg. :: CH

STANDARD FOR 50 YEARS

WINTERSMITH'S CHILL TONIC

For over 50 years it has been the household remedy for all forms of

Malaria Chills and Fever Dengue

It is a Reliable, General Invigorating Tonic.

McCALLIE School for

Historically located on Missionary Ridge, view of renowned Lookout Mountain

An outstanding school in South. Thorough preparation for College and Technical Schools

Small classes. Individual Instruction. Strong Physical Education. Military Drill. Honor System. Christian Training. Complete modern equipment. Concrete Swimming Pools. Gymnasiums. 40 Acre Campus. Lake. Rate $100.00 per year. Summer Session, July and August, with Camp

Write for illustrated catalog. The Headmaster, Box P Chattanooga, Tennessee

DON'T DRIFT --- PLAN

Are you drifting along? Have you made plans for the future? Don't you think you should? Don't you want to be successful in business? Then write us!

DRAUGHON'S BUSINESS COLLEGE 1218 SUMTER ST. COLUMBIA, S. C.

o believe that the more you tter are your chances to succomes know too little.

alt decide all money matters
d frank and friendly negotiasiness partnership has no succeed unless the books are alt develop life together—no independent ventures, few shalt never get too tired to each other. This is my own

ery. Domestic unhappiness often when we are worn out,
ayed, our tempers exhausted.
times as these that you do at you are saying and what
ng. But this is no excuse!
ver get so tired!

ou are sighing, and saying, is too late now. We have wrong way. If only we had mandments when we began."
not too late. You may start
t. Why can you not, with ledge and all these new suggestions, take a fresh hold on life and find anew the secret of a happy home? From this time on, why not live happily ever after?

LEMONADE LIONS 'N EVERY-THING

(Continued from page 9)

barn would hold, at the circus. And sure enough, the "lion" roared good-naturedly, and everybody loved the poems and the stories he told. The lemonade sold amazingly well. The pony was kept as busy as a frog on a fish hook, and the catamost was a huge success, for everyone came laughing and wouldn't tell anyone else what it was all about. The poodle was fastened to a post with a tire chain, and although he looked very meek, the public was warned to keep at a distance. The clown did himself proud.

Then an old man interviewed "Red" and told him where he could get a good wheel chair for a little money.

When the circus was over and the chair bargained for, there was still ten dollars left, for a lot of people had paid more than five cents admission, and the "lion" of the afternoon had slipped a gold piece into the fund. So with the wheel chair went an envelope with a lot of coins in it. On the envelope was written "For Sallie" in Horace's best hand-writing.

It was a good thing he had taken this precaution, for at the last moment the boys were strangely tongue-tied and wouldn't even wait to see Sally lifted into the chair. But they were happy just the same, and so was the little lame girl.

IN FOURTH GRADE

Dear Standard:
I am a little girl 10 years old. I love to color the pictures in the Standard.
School will start soon and I will be glad of it. I am looking forward to the 11th of September, I will be in the fourth grade. I live with my Grandmother on the eastern shore of Vir-

PUZZLE ANSWERS

Graphical Diamonds

M LAG
MAINE
GNU
E

Curtailments

Pea—L Eil—A Jam—B
Her—O
Boa—R

HELP PUT YOUR CHURCH ON THE HONOR ROLL
Sunday, September 29th Is Second Quarterly Pay-Up Day

STEWARDSHIP THERMOMETER OF HONOR ROLL CHURCHES
to pay each month onetwelfth of Benevolent Quota

PAY
UP YOUR BENEVOLENCES
AS YOU DO YOUR CURRENT EXPENSES

PAY-UP! STAY-UP! STEP-UP!

Roll church must have Honor Roll members. Let every member pay up in order that church treasurers may remit monthly one-twelfth of your proportionment for the year. Watch the Presbyterian Survey each month Honor Roll Churches.

THE STEWARDSHIP DEPARTMENT
305 Henry Grady Building
ATLANTA, GA.

PEACE INSTITUTE
Raleigh, North Carolina

OWNED by the Presbyterians of North Carolina

COURSES OFFERED: (1) College courses for first and second year work; (2) Preparatory courses; (3) Special courses in Art, Music, Home Economics and Commercial subjects.

WORK ACCEPTED BY: (1) The North Carolina State Department of Education; (2) All colleges and universities in North Carolina and by many colleges without this state.

SPECIAL FEATURES: (1) Individual attention to students; (2)
Limited number of students; (3) Intimate home surroundings;
(4) highly trained faculty; (5) Wholesome religious atmosphere.
(6) Modern equipment.

Register Now for Fall Session of 1929-1930

For catalogue, book of views and other literature, write to
William C. Pressly, President, Peace Institute, Raleigh, N. C.

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE
DECATUR, GA.

Stric entrance requirements, but few failures after admission. Somewhat expensive, but cheap in comparison with advantages offered. No loafers expected, but also none without capacity to enjoy almost unlimited good times.
For details as to admission, scholarship aid, etc address
PRESIDENT J. R. MCCAIN
Box 5

ORIENT FLOUR
Its Whiteness Denotes Its Purity
MOUNTAIN CITY MILL CO., CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

The COLLEGIATE SCHOOL for GIRLS

ON HISTORIC MONUMENT AVENUE, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

THE SCHOOL: A day and boarding school under the control of the Presbyterian Churches of Richmond, Virginia.
College Preparatory and General Courses.
Bible Courses required.

THE CITY: Abounding in historical interest and cultural advantages. Week-end trips to points of interest.
Fifteenth session opens September 19, 1929.
For catalogue and information write:

MISS VAN GREENLEAF, Head of the School.

BELK'S

Select Your New
Fall Coat Now

Paris designers have given us some wonderful new coat fashions which our American designers have so accurately duplicated in the smartest of new coat fabrics. We are showing now a smart variety of stunning coats in the new flared silhouette, with intricate seamings and insertions, without prejudicing the slender effect achieved by the tube-like coats of the post season.
Furs are applied in the most unusual ways that add distinction and individuality to many of the new models.

Priced $16.50 to $98.50

Belk Brothers Co.
Charlotte, N. C.

ginia in North Hampton county. In an old-fashioned brick house. My sister and I go in bathing every day. Hope Mr. W. B. is on a trip because I want my letter to be published.

I am your new friend,
Anne Floyd Dick.

Nassawdox, Va.

THE RIGHT WAY TO TRAVEL

is by train. The safest. Most comfortable. Most reliable. Costs less. Inquire of Ticket Agents regarding greatly reduced fares for short trips.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Church and Sunday School Furniture

Send For Special Catalogue
THE SOUTHERN DESK COMPANY

Hickory, N. C.

CUTS

Scratches, burns and other skin abrasions with children, easily become infected. ::

Safeguard with

GRAY'S OINTMENT

At all drug stores. For free sample write
W. F. Gray & Co., 724 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

For Nervous Headaches

Overwrought nerves cause many headaches. For quickest and easy relief nothing is so effective as Capudine because it relieves by soothing the nerves and is not narcotic. Women's pains and Neuralgia are promptly relieved also. Being liquid Capudine acts quicker and is easier on the stomach. 30c and 60c bottles at all drug stores. (Adv.)

A FRUIT TREE is a permanent asset to your property and a constant source of pleasure and profit. You will find greater satisfaction, year after year, if you set out our hardy, healthy stock this fall—Catalog free.

THE HOWARD-HICKORY CO.

BOX J, HICKORY, N. C.

Local Representatives Wanted

Stop HEADACHE with STANBACK

10¢ & 25¢

TIRED EYES Dickey's old reliable water has been used over 50 years to refresh and strengthen a tired eye. Nothing better for sore and weak eyes. Relieves sun and wind burned eyes. Doesn't hurt. All good stores or by mail, 25c. DICKEY DRUG CO., Bristol, Virginia

OVER-RUNS AND MILL ENDS

SAVE ONE-THIRD ON CLOTH DIRECT FROM LOOM TO YOU

Cotton Flannels, Pillow Tubings, Sheetings, Crinkled Cloth for Bedspreads, Pajama Checks, Chambrays, Tinted Dimities, Gingham, Art Silk Striped Madras for men's and boys' Shirts. Write for free samples and prices. MONAGHAN MILL STORE, Dept. A., Greenville S. C. "Textile Center of the South"

NERVOUS DISEASES

Drug and alcoholic addictions successfully treated at Spring Garden Sanitarium, 2911 Spring Garden Street, Greensboro, N. C. Write us for full information. Correspondence Confidential.

Children Cry for Fletcher's CASTORIA
A BABY REMEDY
APPROVED BY DOCTORS
FOR COLIC, CONSTIPATION, DIARRHEA

S P A R K L E S

Rastus: "Ah wants a divorce. Dat woman jes' talk, talk, talk, night an' day. Ah can't get no rest and dat talk-in' am drivin' me crazy."

Young Lawyer: "What does she talk about?"

Rastus: "She doan say."—Ex.

Our idea of nothing is a bladeless knife without a handle.—Penn. Punch Bowl.

"I've changed my mind."

"Does the new one work any better?"—Aggievator.

Coach (to football candidate): "Have you had any experience?"

Aspirant: "Well, I was in a train wreck last summer." — Colby White Mule.

Husband (to wife): "Who is that strange woman I just saw in our kitchen?"

Wife: "Sh-h-h! That's the cook-of-the-month."—Ex.

"That is a skyscraper," announced the guide.

Old Lady: "Oh, my! I'd love to see it work."—The Churchman.

Physician, collect thy fee while the patient aileth, for then he regardeth thee as a god. Once he be dead, thou art a murderer. Once he recovereth, thou art a thief.—College humor.

"What's the age limit for sailors?"

"Listen, dearie, a sailor at any age is the limit."—Wisconsin Octopus.

"Did you know Harold has died? Such a clever man. He knew four dead languages."

"Well, he can use them now."—Kariaturen.

"Do the Joneses go 'round quite a bit?"

"Well, the old man's a Rotarian." —Brown Jug.

A teacher who was giving the children written exercises wrote out this "Wanted" advertisement:

"Wanted—A Milliner. Apply by letter to Miss Smith, 10 Blank Street."

The children had to make application for the position in writing:

One youngster wrote:

"Dear Miss Smith: I saw you want a milliner. I hate to trim hats. Can't you get somebody else? Please let me know at once.—Edith Brown.—Ex.

Doctor: "It's a boy, Professor.

Prof.: "What is?" —West Point Pointer.

Wife: "I'm going to give you a piece of my mind."

Hubby: "Just a small helping, please." —Missouri Outlaw.

E C Z E M A PSORIASIS ITCH

RU-BON will remove every spot. Poison Ivy, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Athletes' sore itching feet, Tinea, Crotch Itch and Dermatitis, Baby Rash, Vegetable and Mineral Poisons all yield to the soothing original RU-BON Prescription. Ask your druggist.

FOR DIAMONDS, WATCHES AND SILVERWARE

Write to

JAMES ALLEN AND CO.

Jewelers since 1855

285 King St. Charleston, S. C.

Catalog on request

Chicora College for Women

The Presbyterian College of South Carolina

Standard College Courses
Beautiful Grounds
Healthful Climate

Large, Strong Faculty
Ideal Surroundings
Moderate Rates

For Catalog and Information, Address

S. C. Byrd, D.D., LL.D., President, Columbia,

FORTY-SIX YEARS CONTINUOUS SERVICE WITHOUT A LOSS ON ANY LOAN

We offer you a safe, tax-free investment for your regular weekly or monthly savings and your lump sum. Write for particulars.

ASSETS OVER $8,800,000.00

The Mutual Building and Loan Association

Established 1881

CHARLOTTE

If In Doubt, Take B. & L. Shares

You will earn the highest interest rate on your savings consistent with perfect safety, and pay no tax on savings. Shares cost twenty-five cents per week, usually mature in 333 weeks. Net you 6 1-2 per cent maturity.

Series Open in January, April, July and October

Mechanics Perpetual Building & Loan Association

Established 1883

16 E. Fourth St.

Charlot

A Beautiful Table, $75

A copy of a beautiful Duncan Phyfe table. The wood throughout is solid mahogany. Apron and top of crotch mahogany. Shown in a smaller size at $49.50. No item of furnishings can add more to the attractiveness of the living-room than well chosen table.

W.T. McCoy & Co. Home Furnishers

423-425 SOUTH TRYON STREET
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

For the Future

Are you making ready share in the opportunity which increasing prosperity will bring?

A Reserve Fund Banked Will Help

"National Bank Safety For Savings"

Charlotte National Bank

Resources Over $5,000,000.00

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

Religious Newspaper for the Family

Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.

D. G. S. D. D., Editor-in-Chief
L. S. D. D., Co-Editor
W. S. P. W. L. S., Contributing Editor

ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858

M. F. ELLIS, Vice-President
REV. J. G. GARTH, Treasurer and News Editor
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
BY PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY

CHARLOTTE, N. C., OCTOBER 2, 1929

No. 40

College Has Good Start

Single and Mrs. W. B. Make Addresses—Plans for Selfhelp

College at Statesville, N. C., under the leadership of Ramsay as the new president on September 16, with a fine student and able faculty. The exercises were attended by near and far. Dr. C. M. Davidson, chairman of the Board of Directors presided. Courses were extended by various and citizens. Dr. W. L. Davidson, president of Davidson College, gave a message on Personality, urging students to develop their individuality. His address was made by him as president, and was published in the Statesville Landmark from her speech: "Mrs. Ramsay Dr. Davidson stated that Mitchell College had rendered some of its service under the leadership, and it was with this in mind that trustees had elected Mrs. Davidson to the presidency of the institution. In her message Mrs. Ramsay expressed her appreciation to the Statesville people for their generous contributions liberally to the college, thus enabling many improvements to be made at the institution. The college itself is proud of a heritage from the Statesville people, namely, that Mitchell College is a standard junior college, and a full two-year college. It is a pleasure to the Statesville people to see the progress of the four-year college. Does it provide the education that the Statesville people desire? It is desired by the state department of education, but it also has been approved on Page Two)

Carolina Synod At Anderson

McSween, of P. C., Elected Moderator—Name of Synodical Office Changed

The annual meeting of the Synod of South Carolina, opened its sessions Tuesday, September 24. We have a fuller report but use the report taken from Associated Press. More than 200 representatives of the Synod of South Carolina met Tuesday night at the Presbyterian Church of Statesville. McSween, president of the Synod, has been elected succeeding Rev. J. M. Holm. He preached the opening exercises. The name of Presbyterian Synod of South Carolina at Clinton to Presbyterian Synod of South Carolina was approved by the Synod. Joint ownership and support of the Synod was given as a result of the change. Rev. C. Bellingrath today was elected for the post of director of religious education of the Synod of South Carolina. (Continued on Page Two)

Chairman Announced For P. C. Campaign

W. P. Jacobs, of Clinton, S. C., Will be in Charge—$350,000 to be Raised to Swell Endowment to $500,000

William P. Jacobs, Clinton business man and civic and religious leader, will serve as general chairman of the program of deliverance launched this fall by Presbyterian College, is announced by the board of trustees.

Mr. Jacobs is salesmanager of Jacobs and Company of Clinton and a grandson of Dr. William Plumer Jacobs, founder of Presbyterian College and of Thornwell Orphanage.

The program calls for a statewide campaign among Presbyterians for the sum of $350,000 for liquidation of the indebtedness of the college.

In agreeing to serve as general chairman, Mr. Jacobs received assurances of wholehearted co-operation on the part of the members of the board, and declared he felt he "would have the sincere support of all Presbyterians in the synod."

Mr. Jacobs and the Rev. John McSween, president of the college, point out that raising the funds will deliver Presbyterian College from the burden of debt, assure the receipt of three conditional endowment gifts and assure the retention by Presbyterian College of its "A grade" rating as a member of the Southern Association of Colleges.

(Continued on Page Two)

Great Rally At Clinton For P. C.

On Friday, October 4, Presbyterians of South Carolina Will Gather to Launch Campaign

Plans are being completed for the great educational rally that will be held at Clinton, S. C., on Friday, October 4, to mark the official launching of the Presbyterian College Program of Deliverance.

This gathering, to be attended by from 250 to 350 pastors and leading laymen of the Synod of South Carolina, will be the meeting of the General Committee of the Program. Details will be mapped out for the campaign to raise the fund of $350,000 needed to liquidate the indebtedness of Presbyterian College and thus place the institution upon a sound financial basis for future development.

Leading Presbyterian laymen and ministers will be among the speakers at the rally, plans for which are being arranged by William P. Jacobs, general chairman; Rev. John McSween, president of the college and associate general chairman for the program; Rev. Dr. H. W. Dubose and Rev. F. D. Jones, chairman and associate chairman respectively of the speakers' bureau. The meeting begins at 10 a. m. on Friday, and the members of the committee will be guests of the college at the P. C.-Mercer football game in the afternoon.

Mr. Jacobs and Mr. McSween announce steady progress in the building up of the campaign organization. The following have accepted positions as (Continued on Page Two)

Mary Baldwin Has Fine Opening

Virginia Girls' College Meets Standards Required—L. Wilson Jarman, New President, in Charge

Mary Baldwin College, of Staunton, Virginia, opened its session of 1929-30 on September 12th. The enrollment is most satisfactory. The number of students enrolled is already twenty per cent beyond the total college enrollment of last session. The student body comprises representatives from twenty states. The freshman class numbers approximately eighty, coming from various sections of the country. As usual the alumnae of Mary Baldwin in many parts of the United States have maintained their interest in their alma mater, and have rendered invaluable service in assisting the college in the selection of prospective students.

Mary Baldwin College enters its 88th session, as the successor to Mary Baldwin Seminary, which has gradually merged into the college during the last six years. The college is now accredited as a standard four-year college by the Virginia State Department of Education.

It will be of interest to the many friends of Mary Baldwin to know that funds already in hand, together with the increasing financial support of the Synod of Virginia, constitute an endowment sufficient to meet the stand-

(Continued on Page Two)

Fine Opening Of Montreat Normal

Miss Janie McGaughey, Woman's Work Secretary, Addresses Student Body

On the tenth of September the Montreat Normal School held its opening exercises in the Anderson Auditorium. Mr. S. L. Woodward, the superintendent, extended a warm welcome to the former students returning and to the new students. He introduced Miss Janie McGaughey, secretary of the Woman's Work, as the speaker of the day. Miss McGaughey used as the basis of her remarks, Christ's words to Peter, "Thou art Simon. Thou shalt become," emphasizing the point that whatever our students are now, here at the Montreat Normal they have the opportunity to become—to become better, finer, to work toward the fulfillment of the highest ideals of educated, christian womanhood.

The members of the faculty were also introduced by name. The new teachers added to the staff this year are: Miss Margaret Spencer, University of New York, who comes to the department of education; Miss Margaret Hyde, University of Tennessee, department of science; Miss Annie George, Mississippi State College for Women, home economics; and Miss Mary Lord, department of music. Miss Lord has studied in several fine schools of music and some of her work has been done with Mrs. Crosby Adams of Montreat.

Mr. Woodward spoke of the ideals of the founders and directors of the (Continued on Page Two)

Christian Endeavor Office At Atlanta

W. Roy Breg, Secretary Moves Southern Headquarters from Chattanooga—All South Committee Dissolved

Effective September 20, the southern office of the International Society of Christian Endeavor will be located in the Walton Building, Atlanta, Ga. W. Roy Breg is the Southern Secretary, representing the International Christian Movement through the South. Mr. Breg came to the Southern office, which was formerly located in Chattanooga, on August 1, 1928, taking over the work for the International Society of Christian Endeavor which was formerly conducted in the South by the All-South Extension Committee, which committee has been dissolved. A new Southern Advisory Committee will be appointed in the near future, and will meet this fall to consider plans for the work in the South.

The Crusade with Christ for Evangelism, Christian Citizenship and World Peace will receive the attention of Christian Endeavor Societies throughout the South during the coming two years. A special effort will be made by societies throughout the South to raise funds for their denominational missionary and benevolent causes, and to organize mission study classes.

A World's Christian Endeavor Convention will meet in Berlin, Germany, August 5-10, 1929, and there will be a large delegation of Southern Christian Endeavorers in attendance under the leadership of Southern Secretary Breg.

Plans are also being formed for the attendance of a large delegation from the South at the Golden Jubilee International Convention to be held in San Francisco, July 1931.

Austin Seminary Made Legatee

Institution Will Receive About $25,000—Other Agencies and Churches Will Share in Generosity of Texas Lady

Miss Isa Y. Millar, a faithful and beloved member of the church at Gonzales, Texas, died on August 14, 1929. In her will, which has been duly probated, many legatees are named, among them Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary, which will receive $15,000 from the estate, besides being the residuary legatee, which will add about $10,000 to the specific legacy. To each of the benevolent causes of our church, including the American Bible Society and the Assembly's Training School, from $250 to $1,000 was left; to the Gonzales Church, to be used in its support for five years, $1,500, to the Home Mission work of Western Texas Presbytery $4,000; to the Synod's Orphanage $5,000; to Synod's colleges $7,000; and to the two Mexican schools of the Synod $15,000. The fund to the seminary is for the partial endowment of a chair. These legacies are in addition to provision made for a large number of relatives and friends, in this country and in Scotland.

Master of Theology Degree to Be Conferred

Post Graduate Courses in the Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary for 1929-1930

The post graduate department in the Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary is a department distinct from our undergraduate work. The two departments are not mingled as they are in some institutions. The work is for one year and the course is open to all ministers. The degree conferred for those who have already the A. B. and B. D. degrees is that of Master of Theology. The courses that are offered this seminary year are as follows:

I. In the New Testament Department, Dr. Charles R. Hemphill: (a) The Inter-Testament Period. (b) The Exegesis of the Pauline Epistles.

II. The Old Testament Department—Dr. Jesse L. Cotton; Old Testament Prophecy.

III. The Department of Apologetics—Dr. Andrew K. Rule: Special Problems in Apologetics.

IV. The Department of Missions and Evangelism—Dr. Charles H. Pratt. (a) Missions in the Light of the Jerusalem Conference (b)—Seminary—Problems of a Modern Pastor (second term).

V. The Department of Religious Education—Dr. Lewis J. Sherrill. (a) History of Religious Education. (b) A Problem Seminar in Religious Education. (c) The Curriculum of Religious Education (second term).

VI. The Department of the English Bible—Dr. Andrew W. Blackwood. Practical Studies in Old Testament Theology.

VII. The Department of Archaeology—Dr. M. G. Kyle. (a) History and Civilization (Patriarchal Period. Seminar). (b) Canons and Fallacies of Research. Seminar. (c) Practical Training in Pottery Chronology. In the Museum.

VIII. The Department of Homiletics—Dr. John M. Vander Meulen. The Psychology of Jesus.

One of the new features of the post graduate work this year is the possession of the finest collection of Palestinian antiquities in America. The course in this is to be given by the veteran archaeologist, Rev. Melvin G. Kyle, D.D., LL.D., who will thus be connected semi-officially with our institution. This new department will prove to be a very unique and attractive and satisfying feature.

GREAT RALLY AT CLINTON

(Continued from page 1)

presbyterial chairmen and associate presbyterial chairmen:

Piedmont Presbytery—J. H. Anderson, Anderson, chairman; Rev. Dr. R. F. Kirkpatrick, Anderson, associate chairman. South Carolina Presbytery—Joel S. Morse, Abbeville, chairman; Rev. George M. Telford, Abbeville, associate. Congaree Presbytery—J. W. Wassum, Columbia, chairman; Rev. Dr. R. A. Lapsley, Columbia, associate. Enoree Presbytery—Col. W. H. Keith, Greenville, chairman; Rev. Dr. Flournoy Shepperson, Greenville, associate. Bethel Presbytery—A. M. Aiken, Chester, chairman; Rev. H. D. Corbett, Bowling Green, associate. Pee Dee Presbytery—Fred L. Wilcox, Florence, chairman; Rev. Dr. T. E. Simpson, Darlington, associate. Harmony Presbytery—Thomas McCutcheon, Kingstree, chairman; Rev. C. K. Douglass, Manning, associate; Charleston Presbytery—Clarence W. Legerton, Charleston, chairman; Rev. G. A. Nickles, Charleston, associate.

MARY BALDWIN HAS FINE OPENING

(Continued from page 1)

ards of the highest accrediting agencies.

This session is marked by the coming of President L. Wilson Jarman to the college, succeeding Rev. A. M. Fraser, D.D., who has been president of the college since 1923.

MITCHELL COLLEGE HAS GOOD START

(Continued from page 1)

a number of additional courses. Being a Christian college provision is made for thorough courses in Bible study; there is a department of home economics; a teacher training course whose graduates are awarded grammar-grade C. certificates, entitling them to teach in the public schools of North Carolina; there is a commercial department for the training of those planning to enter the business world; and a music department affording opportunity for the study of piano, voice and pipe organ. The college has a registration of more than 100 students this year, Mrs. Ramsay stated.

Mitchell has no regular endowment. It does have two endowed scholarships, amounting to $4,000 yearly, its share of the fund for schools and colleges, contributed by the Presbyterians of North Carolina, and this is accepted in lieu of an endowment. Mitchell has a definite place in the educational world, providing as it does junior college training at a minimum cost. Since the tuition fees amount to less than $300 a year, the institution gives an opportunity to many girls who would not otherwise obtain a college education. In this connection Mrs. Ramsay expressed the hope that the tuition cost many be kept at its present level for some time. Mitchell's nearest competitor in the educational field has prices that are exactly twice those of the local institution. More than one-half the applicants for admission wanted to help pay their own way in college, and provision has been made for 18 worthy girls through work in the laundry, dining room, office and library to meet their own expenses. The institution needs a scholarship fund of $80 for each of these individuals, and is asking that friends of the institution provide these scholarships. Already $800, or scholarships for 10 girls, has been secured and it is expected that the remainder will be raised before the end of the college year. This has been contributed by churches, auxiliaries and other friends of the institution, it is understood.

Mrs. Ramsay recalled that when Mitchell was founded there were 246 colleges in the country, of whom only 17 were supported by state funds. Today approximately one-sixth are state institutions, but two-thirds of the colleges in the country still are denominational, or have some religious affiliation. There is a large place in the world for the church colleges, and it is much better to have the two types of institutions working side by side. Back in the days when education was turned over entirely to the church, she said, the result was the dark ages; on the other hand, when in a certain country, the state took entire charge of education a world war resulted.

In defining a christian college Mrs. Ramsay found that it is an institution having educational standards equal to any state institution, and at the same time an institution the members of whose student body and faculty are active adherents of Jesus Christ, manifesting in their lives His principles. There is a well-trained faculty, and at the same time a faculty whose members are christians and have formed certain basic attitudes of life in relation to God that will affect their relation to and influence over their students. There is not perfection any more than there is perfection in the church, and in the home, but there is the influence of this attitude and its effect upon the students of a Christian institution. In concluding her message Mrs. Ramsay requested the co-operation and the prayers of all friends of the institution.

SOUTH CAROLINA SYNOD AT ANDERSON

(Continued from page one)

lina Synod's committee on religious education.

DEVOTIONAL

"PERILOUS TIMES"

In penning his last epistle, Paul told his son in the faith, Timothy, of what would come to pass in the "last days." He described them as "perilous" times, the Holy Spirit through him using a word chalepoi, that He uses in only one other place, when He used it to describe how "fierce" the demoniac of Gadara was, exceeding "fierce" so that no man might pass that way. It would seem to indicate that the fierceness of the man and the perilousness of the last days were both due to the same demon influences.

Read for yourself the description He gives us of those perilous times and then compare them with what you see and read about in the newspapers of to-day—men, lovers of their own selves, money lovers, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy without natural affection, trucebreakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, high-minded lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God, "having a form of godliness but denying (in their lives) the power thereof."

Think a bit over each of these adjectives and descriptive phrases. Take one of two here as examples: "Without natural affection"—were there ever as many murders of parents by children,

FINE OPENING OF MONTREAT NORMAL SCHOOL

(Continued from page 1)

school, to train its students for lives of christian service, of its growth from an enrollment of six the first year to one hundred and twenty during the past session, and of the future prospects. The present enrollment is approximately one hundred, and others are already matriculated. The total enrollment will be approximately the same as last year.

Informal messages of welcome, admonition and encouragement to the students and expressions of appreciation of the fine work being done by the school were given by several friends present in the audience. In the absence of Dr. Anderson, the president, who was attending a meeting of Synod, Mrs. Anderson assured the faculty and students of her and Dr. Anderson's co-operation and help in all the activities of the school. Mrs. Crosby Adams spoke of the splendid work done since graduation by some of the former students of the Montreat Normal.

After other brief remarks the program was closed with prayer.

CHAIRMAN ANNOUNCED FOR P. C. CAMPAIGN

(Continued from page 1)

Mr. Jacobs announced that preparations are going steadily ahead for the great educational rally to be held at the college, Friday, October 4. This will be the meeting of the general committee of the program and will mark the official launching of the campaign. New campaign leaders named today include: C. M. Bailey, Clinton, chairman of Zone No. 1; Col. A. L. Gaston, Chester, chairman of Zone No. 2; the Rev. John W. Davis, Kingstree, chairman of Zone No. 3.

Mr. Bailey, widely-known banker and business man, will have charge of the campaign forces in Zone No. 1, which includes the Piedmont, South Carolina and Congaree Presbyteries. Colonel Gaston, active in business, educational and religious circles, will direct the campaign work done in Zone No. 2, which is composed of the Enoree and Bethel Presbyteries.

Zone No. 3 includes the Pee Dee, Harmony and Charleston Presbyteries and will be organized under the leadership of the Rev. Mr. Davis, who is pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Kingstree.

or of children by parents been in the past two there ever as many bro Were there ever over 5,000 children under 12 years of

Recently there came t fact—a woman (not in A had the reputation of le children so greatly that ceiving all who were br in her large estate. But suspicion was aroused, was discovered in which sized whips and a table w buckle, and chairs for sp had been binding these and whipping them to d delight of the spectators, v paying $50.00 a seat for t "Without natural affectio

"Disobedient to parents ther word of comment "Unthankful"—it is hard keep from losing fait "Lovers of pleasure more of God"—see the crowds movies, and their attenda gious service on Sunday say nothing of a week "Having a form of godline ing the power thereof"— more church members, a gious organizations, and r tarian activity; but when real spiritual service— prayer, personal effort to Christ, and an unworldly different from that whic ling lives that it really be arated life), the numbers ly, if not actually, distress than they were thirty, even five years ago!

Perilous times — chak times; times influenced These times! What shall them?

No, this is not pessimis ply facing facts fearless but one thing to be done examine his own heart that resembles anything found, confess it and fo look to the Spirit of the control henceforth, that fluence may manifest it North Avenue News.

THE LIFE AFTER DEATH IS IT?

Paul L. Berm

In many of the old tow one sees a plain red-brick ing flush upon a noisy place street. It looks un significant, very ordinary of beauty or distinction. and enter, and you will old-fashioned hall, and b other door which ope thing so surprising that y dering at what you see. the back of the house, a and old trees, sweet be and white-robed girls, it move under the deep sh memorial elms with lau voices; and beyond a bright bright sky undim and the deep fruitful s all the rough noises of harmonized into a dis murmur. So our House double view, one tow other toward heaven; o noisy street of Time, th the sublime silence of is what we see from the life—struggle, turmoil, men marching to battle, the slow moving harse we see from the garde "And behold a door heaven, and a voice, as i pet talking with me, sa hither, and I will sho that shall be hereafter." den, behind the house Resurrection garden, walks and says—"Be of go to prepare a place where I am there ye m

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

FOUNDED 1858

Organ of the Synod of N. C. for 70 Years

The Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as Second Class Matter

Terms—The subscription price of the Standard is payable in advance. To ministers the price is $2.50 per year. To ministers' wives the price is $2.50 per year.

The mailing label shows the month and year to which the subscription is paid. Payment in advance is required.

Subscriptions may be made by money order, check, or registered mail, and currency by mail.

Obituary Notices—No charge is made for notices of less than one column, but for all over fifty words the charge is $1.00 per word.

Advertisements—Sent on application.

Addresses—Kindly send us both old and new addresses so as to be previous to the desired change.

Changes are made only upon the written request of the subscriber and settlement in full must be made at the same time.

Advertising and Business Communications Should be Addressed to

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD
Box 869
Charlotte, N. C.

EDITORIAL

WESTMINSTER THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Several years past, our brethren of the Presbyterian Church have been troubled over the question of the control of the Westminster Seminary, that stronghold of the old plan the control was under the Board, but the General Assembly, after a long matter to two Committees, finally decided to reduce the control to one Board.

The union was sustained by a combination of liberal and conservative elements of the Church, but it was opposed by the strict conservatives, especially certain members of the Board who resigned and proceeded to organize a new seminary to be called "The Westminster Seminary."

Opposed to the action of the General Assembly, they contended that it was really a move to disguise to broaden the doctrinal standard of the Seminary, changing it from the old conservative standard to a more liberal policy, of belief far different from what had stood for in the past.

On the other hand, those who won their point held that such was the aim of the new Seminary, and they assured the Church that the Westminster Seminary still would hold the old standard which it was famous.

In assistance, we of the Southern Church do not pronounce any opinion of the merits of the case.

One can only judge by what appears on the surface, there are certain facts that impress one of the new Seminary, though it is not clear that further light would present the case differently.

In the Southern Church there are two distinct parties, one contending for the old truths and the construction of the Standards of the Church, and the other denying that the old Standards are to be binding in every respect, and demanding a certain amount of liberty of construction which should be allowed to those who accept the new.

Those dissenters hold views that are far from what we believe, and for that reason our sympathies are in favor of the new Seminary, and we wish those in charge "God bless them."

But there are among the majority of the Southern Church who are as conservative in their views as we are, but we can only sympathize with those who keep good company.

APPEAL FOR MONTREAT

In printing in this week's issue a short article of the value of Montreat, by Dr. J. G. Thompson, chairman of the Assembly's Committee of Forty-Four.

A distinguished minister is making an appeal for raising of the balance on Assembly of $10,000. The General Assembly is asking the churches to make October 13 a day for a special appeal for Montreat. In the opinion of J. G. Thompson, the church cannot afford to neglect this great institution at this time when a thousand of dollars will establish this agency of the church in the great service it is rendering.

J. G. G.

THE WISE ACTION OF BROWNWOOD PRESBYTERY

We have divine authority that the children of this world are wiser in their generation than the children of light.

Occasionally we find that in the matter of wisdom the children of this world have nothing to learn from the children of light.

Recently we have been impressed with the fact that some of the children of light have lucid moments, and that they at times show some wisdom.

Church courts as a rule act more from impulse than from reason, especially where sentiment comes into play.

It was chiefly sentiment that caused the members of the last General Assembly to tumble over each other in their haste to vote for union with the United Presbyterian Church, only to realize, after the General Assembly of that Church declined to be hurried into a position so important, without due consideration, that they had been too anxious.

The Brownwood Presbytery by a recent action, has set a good example to the other Presbyteries of the Church. Instead of voting for a union with the U. P. Church, they decided to wait till all the points of difference in administration between the two Churches are worked out: Till the U. P. Assembly takes a more decided stand in favor of union—and till the practical advantages of the proposed union are made more evident.

If you study the methods of administration of the two Churches you will see that they are different, and unless these differences are worked out they must in the future cause friction.

It would seem therefore the part of wisdom to have all such differences adjusted beforehand.

Again in any union between Churches as in a union between a man and woman, up to a certain time too much anxiety on the part of one of the parties would appear out of place.

It is well for "Barkis to be willing" but not too willing.

The last proviso is striking. We must wait till the practical advantages of the union are made evident.

This implies that, as things now are, they can see no practical advantage in the proposed step.

THE UNION SEMINARY REVIEW

This excellent Review should need no introduction to a Southern Presbyterian audience, because it ought to speak for itself, and in fact it does speak, but unfortunately it by no means has the audience that its merits deserve.

It began about 40 years ago, but it has had to struggle for existence more than once in its career, yet it has shown that "the perseverance of the Saints" is a characteristic Presbyterian doctrine, whether exhibited in the life of a believer or in the conduct of a Review.

We have read it from time to time in its history, and without making any odious comparisons, we believe that it is now better than it has ever been at any time.

The October number is a rich one, so much so that we had to tear ourselves away while reading one of the articles.

Without any invidious comparison intended we may say that Dr. Egbert Smith's article on "Origin and Growth of the Organized Women's Work of the Southern Presbyterian Church" is one of the best articles he has ever written.

The Church has reason to be proud of the record made by the women, so if any one wishes data upon this subject, he will find it succinctly given there.

We understand that this Review reaches very few of our ministers.

This is strange when one remembers that it has discussions by some of our ablest men, and that they deal with questions of practical value, and it also has reviews of recent books, written by scholarly men, so that by the reading of them one can keep abreast of the times, without a heavy expenditure of his small salary.

It seems rather a reflection upon our ministry that they do not seem to keep abreast of the times.

P. C. THE COLLEGE OF TWO SYNODS

We are giving much space to the present campaign to put Presbyterian College of Clinton, S. C., on a firm endowment basis. The Synod made Rev. John McSween, president of "P. C.," their moderator last week, and is standing back of him in his big task of raising right away $350,000, so that two conditional gifts of $148,000 may be obtained. This will give them practically $500,000 endowment. They wish to clinch their rating with the Southern Association of Colleges.

Georgia Synod has withdrawn its sponsorship of Davidson to lend her strength to "P. C." This is probably what they should have done, though we Tarheels think it must have been hard to make the choice. But with two such powerful synods behind it, the South Carolina college is bound to win out.

We congratulate "P. C." on her president, with his enthusiasm, enterprise, and vision, and Mr. McSween on the wealth of personal resources he has behind him in his campaign committee.

J. G. G.

A HAPPY FAMILY

Last week we mentioned the beauty and general convenience of Assembly Inn at Montreat, the great hotel which places all the conveniences of modern times at the command of its guests. Telephones are in each room, and they are a success in long distance conversation as well as local use. A telegraph station is in the lower entrance of the hotel, with an agent there at all necessary hours. All other conveniences too numerous to mention are at hand, ready for the use of all who wish them.

But it is the lobby and the dining-room which produce in the guests a feeling of at-homeness. The people who come to Montreat lay aside their snobbishness, if they practice it all, and a spirit of comradeship and friendliness pervades the lobby. It is easy to get acquainted, for all feel a community of interest and singleness of purpose. Most people are there to get spiritual refreshment, and the exchange of ideas and experiences afford much illustration of the great addresses in the auditorium to which all with few exceptions have listened. Until late at night, small groups sit under the delicate purple lights of the conch shells, and with the last address fully discussed—and otherwise considered and greatly enlarged by personal reminiscence, the conversation reaches a lighter vein. Jokes of ancient vintage, and a few fresh from the harvest of experience emerge, like furtive mice from their holes. The lobby rings with laughter, at chestnuts and all others, for nobody is so discourteous as to suggest the joke was familiar.

But perhaps the family feeling which pervades the hotel is best seen in the beautiful dining-room. A few may sit down and start their meal, but only once, for they notice the rest are standing and waiting for the blessing. The tables are set for family groups, and soon one comes to know his table mates, and the conversation becomes replete with mutual exchanges of incident and opinion which make new friendships and strengthen old ones. Many happy reunions take place between old college mates, and the paths each have followed since graduation are revealed, renewing the deep and brotherly concern of former days.

It would be difficult to find a more lovely room than the dining-hall with its ample spaces, and the food is well prepared and excellent in quality. The kind and hospitable heads and their waitresses make the home atmosphere complete. And when the time of separation comes, the fellowships formed are broken up with genuine regret that paths divide and are so far apart.

Assembly Inn is drawing many to Montreat who are finding there the home conveniences they would miss in many resorts, and because of the equipment, they are the readier to make Montreat their summer home.—J. G. G.

CONTRIBUTED

THE HARVEST AND THE LABORERS

W. C. Cumming

Luke. 10:2, "The harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few: pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that He would send forth laborers into His harvest. (3) Go your ways . . ."

Every man who has ever lived in the country knows the importance of the harvest. During the spring the farmer sows his seed, during the summer he cultivates his fields, he works and waits looking forward to the harvest. As the months pass by his hope grows and he looks for its fulfillment in this time of ingathering which is the climax of the year. How encouraging it is to have a great crop ripen into a fine harvest!

But has every farmer knows there is a danger connected with the harvest. There is danger that after the grain has grown through the long months of spring and summer that something may happen to spoil it before it is gathered in—danger that rain, or wind, or hail may come, after the crop is practically made, and may spoil it all.

Neglect may have the same effect, and that is why it is said in the Proverbs that "He that sleepeth in harvest is a son that causeth shame." Few cries can be more bitter than the lament of Jeremiah when he said, "The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and we are not saved," for after the harvest is past it is too late! After the summer is ended it is too late to plant or grow a crop—the day of opportunity is gone.

As Jesus speaks here of "the harvest" and says that it "is great" our minds may picture wide fields of wheat stretching to the horizon—but He is not speaking of wheat harvest, or of barley harvest, or of any kind of harvest of grains or fruits. He is speaking of a harvest of men, and "the harvest truly is great."

After talking with the woman at the well-curb at Sychar, when she went back and told her neighbors and they began coming out in crowds to see Him, Jesus looking out and seeing them coming and said to His disciples, "Lift up your eyes and look at the fields, for they are white already to harvest." What did He mean? He meant that there is no need of waiting—that the time is already ripe. Their minds are open, their hearts are hungry, they will receive Him now.

As Jesus went to and fro in Palestine and saw the hungry hearts, and the destitution and the need He realized the greatness of the harvest that was before Him. As He perceived how insincere the spiritual leaders were—what "blind guides" they were—and as He looked beyond to the great world surrounding that little country—a world sunk in heathenism, sin and degradation—what could He say of it all? He said, "The harvest is great"—yes, it is so great as to seem appalling.

What did Jesus do in the face of such a harvest? Did He try to reap it all Himself? Did He give Himself to a series of intensive evangelistic efforts? Did He go from city to city and land to land and spend His life in an effort to reap the great world harvest? No, He did not! One person would not be equal to it even though that person was the Son of God. While He was preaching in the cities of Judah, what would become of the cities of Galilee? While He was in Galilee what would become of Samaria, and Syria, and Egypt, and India, Africa and Greece and the more distant lands? It was impossible! In being born as a man He had limited Himself to being in one place at one time. He could not be in every place at once as God is, and as He is now.

So during His life on earth Jesus did not give himself to general evangelistic work, for that would have failed! That could not have accomplished its purpose, for it could only have touched a few people, and that was not His work in the world. His work in the world was to provide the salvation by means of the cross that would save men, and to call out and send forth a company of men and women who would be in Judea and Galilee and Samaria, Africa and Asia and all parts of the world simultaneously, and with whom He would be present (unseen, but nevertheless real) at all times.

And so in the face of the great harvest His thought was of laborers. What harvest can be saved without laborers? Wheat will shatter to the ground, fruits will spoil. Every farmer knows that all will be lost unless it is gathered in—and so it is with the harvest of souls. There must be laborers to save it.

Now the laborers that Jesus is talking about in this place are not manual laborers—not men in overalls with sickles in their hands, but they are men and women with the Word of Truth in their mouths, and with the Love of God in their hearts. They are men and women who will go out in His name, who will go for the saving of souls. The twelve had not been following Him very long before He sent them out, in the early spring of the year 29, to go two by two into the cities and villages of Galilee to proclaim the Kingdom of heaven and to call men to it. It was in November of the same year that He sent out the seventy disciples on a similar mission, and at both times He was impelled by the thought of the greatness of the need, and of the fewness of the workers. At both times He thought of the country before Him as a harvest field, and both times He uttered the words of our text, "The harvest is plenteous, the laborers are few."

At first there were twelve laborers—how very few—and then there were seventy laborers—still how few in comparison to the greatness of the need. What can be done about it? Why there is another factor in the situation besides the harvest and the laborers. The third factor is God. He is the Lord of the Harvest. After all, He is the one most concerned. It is His harvest. We must not forget Him—we must look up to Him. "Pray ye therefore the Lord of the Harvest"—and what sort of prayer shall we make? Shall we pray for Him to work a miracle and reap the great harvest? No, we are not told to ask that! What are we to ask for? Why, ask for laborers, and more laborers, and that He will send them forth.

How will He answer the prayer? Where are these laborers to come from? Where did the first laborers come from? Why they came from the group of His disciples. And who are the disciples? Are not you a disciple of Christ? Have you not taken His name upon you? Are you not called a christian? How did you get that name? How did you become a disciple? Did you choose Him? You may think that you did, but the fact is that He chose you,—He chose you before you chose Him. He says to us very plainly, "You have not chosen Me, but I have chosen you, and ordained you, that ye should go and bring forth fruit"—that is a purpose that He had in view in calling us. So it is not enough to be good—we must be good for something. We must be good for service in His harvest.

The twelve increased to seventy, and the seventy increased to five hundred. The five hundred has increased to a great host, and we have become a part of it. It is to this great company of His people that He says, "Go ye therefore and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them . . . teaching them . . . and lo, I am with you. . ."

And so we also are a factor in the situation. We look to God, the Lord of the Harvest, and pray for laborers—and He looks at us, and names us among the laborers. What would He have us to do? Where would He have us to serve? There are some whom He has called to go to a foreign mission field and learn a foreign language and bear the gospel to another race of men, but that is not His call to most of us. The field is not only in China or Africa, it is also right here where we are:

"If you cannot cross the ocean,
And the heathen lands explore,
You can find the needy nearer,
You can help them at your door.

"Let none hear you idly saying,
'There is nothing I can do,'
While the souls of men are dying,
And the Master calls for you.

"Take the task He gives you gladly,
Let His work your pleasure be;
Answer quickly when He calleth—
'Here am I, send me, send me!'"
Henderson, N. C.

ROTARY ELDERSHIP

B. W. Baker

The question of a rotary system for the eldership is of the gravest importance in the affair of the church today. It is a debatable question. Yet I am convinced that practically all thinking men are coming to the common conclusion that such a system would solve many of the perplexing and vexing problems of our church today.

Many are of the opinion that a man once elected and ordained to the office according to the scripture must remain an elder in active service till death call him above, or until he is deposed for one reason or another. Hence it is thought that the rotary system cannot be worked in harmony with the Word of God. I grant that every command of the Word is to be obeyed without the least compromise. Paul says, "All things are lawful for me; but not all things are expedient." So far as I know the Word, there is no stronger argument for an elder serving for life than the mere expediency of the matter, and my limited experience has taught me that is the most inexpedient thing in the church today.

Paul exhorts also, "That there be no schism in the body." We hear much of the preacher who splits his church. But preachers are not the only offenders in this respect. Of the divided churches which I personally know, three times as many were split by elders as by preachers. Now if we are to obey that injunction and avoid all divisions in the church, we must consider seriously whether our present plan of dealing with the eldership is the expedient plan or even the one that God can or will bless.

The work of the church first last and always is evangelism. Every energy of the church should be bent in that direction. All the officials and machinery which does not contribute to that end should be side-tracked and left behind. The pastor who outlives his day of usefulness is placed on the Honor Roll, and the church is not hindered in its progress because of him. I am pleading for a provision whereby the elder who outlives his usefulness also will cease to be on the active roll. If we should try to remedy the situation under our present Book of Church Order, the whole Assembly would be in a constant turmoil. We would have many thousand such fights as the Salvation Army has just passed through with Bramwell Booth. When a pastor becomes infirm, he ceases to be active and is placed on the Infirm Roll. We need an equivalent for the infirm elder so that he will not have a ruling voice in the affairs of the local church. The most satisfactory way to get this is to institute a system by all officers will be elected for a period of if they are not re-elected at the end of that pass to the retired roll. If it is imperative that should serve a church for life, then a pastor the same. However, a church does not expect to stay forever when they issue a call. What that it is disastrous in most cases for a pastor to serve too many years in the same field. If a pastor can't render a satisfactory lifetime service, and he is a rare one who can, it is folly to the elder who has had no special training along church work can render such service in a preacher. Practically every congregation has of elders who have been in the service too long far behind the day in their ways of thinking, really a hindrance to the work of the Kingdom. They are good men, thoroughly orthodox, and of the highest moral character—merely out of date. They are on an inactive roll.

The election and ordination of deacons is a matter of expediency. The work of the church goes on for the apostles and elders, so the deacons are to assist. It put more people to work. One of the things in every age is to get the people to work; so in the lead of the apostolic church, we went straight to Sunday school, the Women's work, the Church deavor, and the Men of the Church. All these things blessed wonderfully. The greatest evangelizing work of the church is the Sunday school, perhaps the most effective is the Christian endeavor. God Himself measures the good that is being done by the work of the men of the Church. Yet there is nothing in scripture commanding either of these great things. Shall we abandon them simply because they did not expressly command them? Certainly so would be suicidal to the church. There is nothing in the scripture which forbids such works. God has provided them by pouring out His Spirit upon us, and we will stand behind them in their good work.

Following the same reasoning, there is nothing in the Holy Writ which commands that an elder be deposed into office is to serve till death, unless deposed for immorality. A heretic, or even an immoral man, not slow up the works of the Kingdom near the man of sound Christian Character, who is orthodox, but has become disinterested, dishonest, has outlived his days of usefulness and become aggressive. Doctor Ardman says, "Much of the failure attending the work of a pastor will be due to the officers of the particular church he serves. They make or mar his ministry." The wrong type of officer not only harms the local church, but harms the man who attempts to serve it. A new system is needed. The Rotary system is not forbidden in the Word. We can say that God would not bless it, as other expedient moves.

I am aware that many are saying the Book of Church Order provides a way of dealing with the situation. The contention is that the Book is behind the times, out of date in this particular, and should be replaced by a new one. Cases which most need attention can't be dealt with under its present ruling. To attempt to do so would be to throw oil on the flame which is already burning. The situation is already rapidly, and make bad matters worse. The church today are not going to resort to that method as expedient that they do so. So as Israel in the past they must patiently wait the death of certain leaders so that they can again march to God's glory forward."

The church is suffering, souls are being lost. It is our duty to reach, men are out of the church. The Kingdom, who should be in, and the Kingdom are being shut against men; because of the old men—best men in the world—are past and trying to administer to the present. The church is making a mess of the whole business. The church is groaning under this load of elders who are past and trying to administer to the present. She must have relief if she is in any way to meet God's challenge, "Go ye therefore and baptize them in the name of the Father, Son and of the Holy Ghost, teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you when we are doing our utmost to meet this challenge, his presence is to be realized. "And lo, I am with you always." A rotary system, or some better system, we now have is essential if we are to reach the world with the presence and of his power.

A PLEA FOR UNION WITH THE

We have been reading what has been said concerning union. We do not wonder at the feeling of the your people take. If you realized the situation in the United Presbyterian Church differently, perhaps, toward the action of the church, there was informal unofficial vote taken in favor of Union in our Presbyteries and it is not surprising. The main apparent and proffered reason for the action is the danger of a residual church. We endeavor to make clear the real reason. The United Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., knows the United Presbyterian Church well and they want it. There is a small, but growing ministry who are willing to unite with the United Presbyterian Church for advancement has a lure in it for those who are willing to and take the Church with them.

(Continued on page 11)

Original Building, Agnes Erskine Evangelical School, Recife, Pernambuco, Brazil

UNFINISHED!

30 we read that our Savior's last words ished." He had paid the price of our par-given, not money but life, he sacrificed life illness and glory as the Son of God to live
y and suffering; sorrow, loneliness, tempta-d in all points like as we are." Our Sav-God, became man, and as man He loved ings of life—country, kindred, friends—He o satisfy Divine Justice that we might have ad paid all and suffered all for us, when in agony and shame on the Cross, when d to the utmost the weight of our sins, and tion from God the Father as a sinner He is finished." Naught had been left undone.

rd day our Savior returned and helped his stand that He was now alive forever more nd of God the Father, continually making them and us. His last command was, "Go e world and preach the Gospel to every have gone to far parts of the world where ve and His supreme sacrifice and the par-by His blood are unheard of. We find such prance that only through education can we nderful truths known.

in superstition and sin, surrounded by oms, immorality and ignorance, can scarce-the "Wonderful Words of Life." If, howay the people are led, shown and taught by cept, it is a rare case that does not unfold orth into the blessed light, and bear the of righteousness.

Erskine Training School for Christian ecife, Pernambuco, Brazil, is such an ina wonderful thing to see the change that young lives touched by Gospel influence, truths of the gospel penetrates into their
s. I look back and see their attentive faces, eir diligent study of the Bible lessons and wonderful expression of almost Divine faces of pupils from five to twenty-five and remember that this school has existed years and still its pupils are forced to e opening bible lesson of the day is taught.
e years our pupils have had no adequate e opening exercises. This bible lesson is a red devotional given by one of the mis-ristian teachers and for many years the ils has made it necessary for all to stand.
ould you expect to retain from a new and g about religion if you had to stand durof it? How much would you expect your rn? Some of you have helped with the School Building, and I carried back o what we had, and now we have begun our "Other Wing," but what we have is finish the first floor of this much spoken "Dove of Peace." Do you ask why we ve had enough to complete? I shall answer, nd was so urgent that after much prayer and peration, we thought God's hand directed At Once. We did, and found an opening e side of the main building that the beams e floor of its second floor were all giving ad not begun our new wing, we should atastrophe, which would probably have of some, if not of many of the pupils en-care. Are you not deeply grateful to God elp to the fund for the "other wing" you the lives of innocent little children and may be the means of saving their Souls?
girls and teachers are now crowded into n my absence, and all the missionaries will during the December and January holiceiling of our first floor is made safe.

This ceiling has been propped up with boards all over the building while school is going on.

The executive committee has allowed me to appeal to individuals for gifts for the completion of this much needed building.

The North Brazil Mission has sent me to you with this appeal. The appeal to the individual is to you, dear reader, you who have been so greatly blessed in gifts from

Graduating Class, 1929, Agnes Erskine Evangelical School, Recife, Pernambuco, Brazil

God, you who have received so much, you who know no lack! You who have several sitting rooms, remember your workers in Brazil have no where to seat their pupils in a body to hear God's word. You owe all you have to Gospel privileges. Some of you were educated by the Church. All of you rejoice in the well being that is the result of the knowledge of His Word. Won't you make some sacrifice for the unfinished building in your school in the North Brazil Presbyterian Mission, the only training School for Christian Teachers in a section of country the size of the whole Southern Presbyterian Church East of the Mississippi?

I cannot have any of your Foreign Mission gift, nor do I want it. The committee needs that and a great deal more. I cannot have any money generally given to the regular benevolences, but I can have free will offerings, a love offering, a thank offering made in the name of the dear Saviour, who paid it all for you.

The following is a clipping from a letter from Miss Boyce, written since I left Brazil. She says: "They are beginning to do some of the inside work on the auditorium now, and Miss Douglas is thrilled over the details. They have a new boss for the interior and she has been talking over the plans with him. The roof is all on and they are working on the window sills of the second floor. I think we will get Planks instead of windows to put in them. I hope someone is thinking about sending money right away, we are surely going to need it soon.

"We are praying for you, that the Lord will help you present our needs to the church people. Much love to you, Lina Boyce."

I earnestly hope that the readers will try to imagine the large and beautiful city of Recife and the wonderful buildings the Catholics have for their work and see a Planked-up upper story to our new wing over the Assembly room in which we teach God's Word.

Dear friends, I begged for a hearing at a Group Conference which I attended since my return. I was given fifteen minutes because of an absent speaker. One little widow, with a good many children gave me a check for $5.00. She said she had many calls, but her conscience would not let her go home without making a gift to help other children to a Christian Education. I pray that many may be moved and send checks to me. My address for the present will be Mooresville, N. C.

Edmonia R. Martin.

Recife, Pernambuco, Brazil.

TWO LETTERS FROM GIRLS OF AGNES ERSKINE SCHOOL

Dear friends of the United States:

The girls of the ninth year decided to write to you, asking help to finish the building of the College.

We are in great need of this auditorium because we do not have a proper place for the morning exercises; the children have to stand all the time because of the small space. Neither do we have a place for the exercises at the closing of the school.

We hope you will be interested in this cause.

Yours sincerely,

Juracy Vianna.

Messrs. John and Peter;*

I belong to this college and I love it very much.

I am also of the ninth grade and so I finish my course very soon.

I have a good teacher whose name is Miss Martin, that is going to your country to solicit some money to finish the work of the college because we are in bad financial conditions.

And so I would like you to give something and I will be very thankful if you will so do.

Sincerely,

Fanny Leitao.

*"John and Peter" stand for the committee of foreign missions.

Unfinished Building, Agnes Erskine Evangelical School Recife, Pernambuco, Brazil

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPT.

Rev. W. A. Gamble, Jr., Editor, Pinetops, N. C.

EDITOR'S OUTLOOK

Those in charge of the make-up of this paper gave our readers the privilege last week of reading their copy of a letter sent by a Presbyterian Elder and staunch supporter of Christian Endeavor to the one who serves as editor for this Young People's Department.

While the article referred to, "Where is the Southern Presbyterian Church Going in Young People's Work?" was presented to our church papers several weeks ago without any reference to its author's connection with this department, it might be stated here that the attitude set forth last week is typical of that of a number of other readers of our church papers who have in recent weeks expressed themselves to the writer or to the papers. We believe it is also typical of the attitude of many hundreds of Southern Presbyterians. Endeavor advocates in our Church are apparently becoming much aroused upon learning more definitely of some of the efforts to bring into disfavor this organization which has meant so much to our Presbyterian young people in their work "For Christ and the Church." Suggestions are coming that the article in question be made available, in leaflet form, for general distribution, and it may be possible to have this done.

Rally Day on October 6. What does it mean in your young people's work? If your church school leadership preparing for a great occasion? "The Church-wide effort to reach and teach the youth of our churches and in the neglected areas of the South is given to the Committee of Religious Education and Publication, Richmond, Va." The sum of $105,000 is needed for this year's work. Besides "boosting" your local work on Rally Day, don't forget about the offering for Sunday school extension.

In addressing a group of representative citizens who had been called to undertake a nation-wide survey of conditions confronting America's youth. President Hoover said: "I need not urge upon you the fundamental importance of this undertaking. The greatest asset of a race is its children. Civilization moves forward on the feet of little children. Their bodily strength and development should prepare them to receive the heritage which each generation must bequeath to the next . . ." Sound minds, sound bodies, and more the Light of Life, are needed by these young people. On Rally Day we have a special opportunity to bring these priceless possessions to boys and girls in our Southland.

A recent issue of the Christian Endeavor World, published in Boston, Mass., each week, carried on its cover page a picture of Montreat, photographed from the Chapman home. The paper carries an article on "Montreat, the Beautiful" by Mr. Allan Nicholson. For the many Southern Presbyterian readers of this publication of the International Society of Christian Endeavor, this article is a timely one in view of the plans for a Montreat Day in our churches—a day when opportunity will be given to contribute toward the liquidation of the debt on the handsome new Assembly Inn.

The same issue carries some other interesting items. One tells that Mr. Wilfrid Whiteley, member of the British Parliament from Birmingham, England, is a Christian Endeavorer of long standing. His C. E. experience began in 1898, and he has been a Junior society superintendent, and a worker in city union activities. His testimony is this: "Much of my early public speaking was done in connection with Christian Endeavor, and I retain many happy memories of the work, especially of that in connection with the Juniors." It would be interesting to know how many public men and women around the world have had C. E. training. The president of our own country is one of the number.

In a short article entitled "How Christian Endeavor Spreads," a mountain worker in Tennessee tells of beginning work among a group of young people where so few were professing Christians that a set of Christian officials for any sort of young people's organization could not be secured. Finally a Christian Endeavor society was organized. Personal conferences were held with the young people, the workers presenting the first clause of the C. E. pledge, "Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength I promise Him that I will strive to do whatever He would like to have me do." The work through the society led to professions by the two "key" girls in the group, and their example helped some twenty others to do the same. Here again is a fine testimony to the practical value of the C. E. pledge as "a standard of character and action which we promise to try to reach."

A picture is shown of a fine C. E. conference in Norre Nissum in Jutland, Denmark. Jumping again across sea and land, brings us to the work of the Southern California Floating C. E. Association, which for twenty-five years has worked with the men of the sea. Last year 150,000 men passed through the doors of the mission conducted by the Association. These men were member of ship crews, men of the navy, cannery-workers, longshoremen, lumber-handlers, oil and refinery men, shipyard workers, and others. Not only was a good work done for the men individually, but it is seen at once that such work also aided Christian Endeavor to become more and more a world-wide fellowship "For Christ and the Church."

YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPIC

Sunday, October 13—What Is Worship?—John 4:19-24; I Chron. 16:29; Ps. 27:4; Ps. 42; Ps. 95:1-16; Luke 24:32

Leader.

Last Sunday we began the study of the devotional life. Our first topic was "Ideals Worth Living For." Today, we are to ask, What is Worship? We are to analyze the state of mind and the acts of the soul which are employed as we worship God.

Worship is a word derived from the word "worth." Worship is worth-ship, and means the consideration and esteem we have for God. God is worthy of our love, and praise, and we ought to express our feelings about him in song, and prayer, and in hearing his word, wishing to know him and his will. If we as Christians love and honor God then let us the redeemed of the Lord say so.

The Soul and God

The worship of God is a spiritual exercise. It is the act of the soul and may have an outward expression, or be just a silent communion with God in our thoughts. God is a spirit, the Great Spirit, and seeketh such to worship him. God made man in his own image and man's chief end is to glorify God and to enjoy him forever.

The employment of our minds in learning truth and considering the works and ways of God is the highest occupation of which our souls are capable. As David says, As pants the hart after the waterbrooks, so panteth my soul after thee, O God. My soul longs for thee, Living God. When shall I come to appear before God?

The Acts of Worship

Since the soul is acting in worship we may next inquire, What are the various acts of worship? First, praising God is one act of worship. To praise God is to definitely point out the things that God is in his being and what he has done. Next, we worship God in prayer, making known our needs and presenting our requests. Then we meditate on God's word, and seek to learn from the bible his will and ways. Worship is also exhibited in the gifts of ourselves and of our money to God. So we see there are several ways in which we may worship God.

Praising God

What is included in praising God as an act of worship? The praise of God is the announcing of God's attributes and works. God is holy, just and good. God is all-wise and all powerful. God is everywhere. God is true, God is gracious, God is eternal. He knows all things and plans all things. No being on earth or in heaven or in hell is his equal. God's works of creation and providence are perfect, and the universe of worlds, angels and men must obey his will.

We may praise God in music and song, as we lift up our voices in melodious strains and thus announce his works, and his ways. Nothing is more soul-stirring than the united tones of human voices, singing in harmony the praise of God.

Prayer as Worship

We are all familiar with prayer as an act of worship. We worship God when we pray in private as well as join in public prayer in a church. Prayer has several forms and each is an act of worship. We have spoken of prayer as praise to God. Prayer is also thanksgiving. Prayer is confession of sins to God. Prayer is supplication, for pardon of sin. Prayer is petition or request for things we need in which we acknowledge God as the source of all good, our Heavenly Father who loves and cares for us. Prayer is intercession for the needs of others. The consecration of our selves and our money is prayer.

No form of worship is more soul-warming and soul-stirring than prayer. And we should carefully follow the words of those who lead us in public prayer. It is a sin to let our minds wander in church.

Meditation as Worship

Meditation is a form of worship. By meditation we mean thinking on what we read in the bible or on what we have read. Meditation is different from studying, which is a mental effort to learn truth. In meditation we may study and seek the explanation of bible passages, but it is combined with prayer, reflection on our own affairs or sins, or desires and purposes. We should learn to meditate as we read the bible.

We also meditate when we are in church, listening to the exposition of scripture by the minister or others and hear the application of bible truth to life and duty.

Reading religious articles in church papers, or books of meditation may also be an act of worship.

We should guard our thoughts at Church as we hear the bible explained and applied.

Giving An Act of Worship

Giving of our money at church is an act of worship. The money we lay on the collection plate, or turn over to the use of the church is a symbol of our lives. We have thought and worked to earn our wages and the money we receive is an expression of our lives and souls. Money is life. It is life in a tangible form. We give part of our lives in the offering.

Our money given to the church may go where we cannot go to send the gospel through the service of others, or in some beneficial form, as gifts, bibles, and so on. Our money like our prayers can reach where we ourselves cannot go. Our gifts should be accompanied by our prayers.

We may give ourselves as well as our money. Certainly no act of worship is finer than the consecration of life and service to God. We young people especially worship God in this way by giving ourselves to him.

Men-of-the-Church

Presbyterian Church in the United States

REV. J. E. PURCELL, D.D., Executive Secretary
HENRY GRADY BUILDING
ATLANTA, GEORGIA

REV. JOHN L. FAIRLY, D.D., Wilmington
Editor in Charge of Men-of-the-Church Department

PHASES IN DEVELOPMENT SINCE ESTABLISHMENT OF THE MEN-OF-THE-CHURCH BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY IN 1923

Note: Material for November program late reaching us, so it will be published instead of October 2nd.

1. Initial Stages

As is well known the present operation of the Men-of-the-Church Department did not begin until January 1, 1924, between the meeting of the Assembly 1923 and 1924, the work was directed by the Committee on Men's Work of which Dr. Callie was Chairman. They initiated the work and showed constructive statesmanship in the way they approached the problem.

2. Visitation

The definite promotion began January 1, 1924, the beginning there was no literature constitution. This was, of course, the work of the organization. The constitution has proved so well conceived and so flexible as to have required no change up to this time. This shows the definite thought put into it by the committee in charge of its development. There were very few organizations in the Assembly at that time, not more than 12 to 15, and most of them were of a pioneer nature in every department. Consequently the development of the church on this subject was slow. The literature had to be provided, the pastors had to be convinced of the need of Men's Work, organizations had to be set up, and at least a degree of success. In other words, the work had to be developed and made practical. The literature had to be developed and made practical. The literature had to be developed and made practical. The literature had to be developed and made practical.

The first two years were spent largely in local churches and in conferences here and there over the church. It was the period of its development in the local church. Here and there a church started. In the meantime, so many churches started without the proper background and preparation. In most cases these failed. During the years we used every means at hand to develop the literature and the operation in the local church.

3. Convention Period

The second period was a convention period. In part of 1925 and 1926, we held six large conventions. The program of these conventions was for the whole church. The speakers were largely from the Synods in which the conventions were held. We used a large number of our own pastors. These convention speakers were men from over the Synods in which the conventions were held. Not only this, but they gave to the Synods and to the General Assembly the opportunity to present their work. This was a period of development of Men's Work. They served a purpose. It took, however, a great deal of time and money to hold these conventions and they were also expensive. We held the six conventions at a total cost of $8,500.00, and they cost the Department of Men's Work $450.00. We see that each convention cost the Department of Men's Work in the U. S. less than $100.00. Attendance at these conventions ran near 100,000. In some of them the women co-operated in separate meetings. It would be impossible to estimate the number of pastors, men, women and churches that were reached in the various phases of the development of Men's Work.

4. Intensive Field Work

During 1927 and 1928, after so much time and money expended in holding these conventions, it was necessary to have in charge of the promotion that a period of intensive work must be done in the church. It was not possible on the budget. For three years the work had been with practically no increase by the Assembly. It was, therefore, at a definite standstill until the promotion could be secured. This was the Committee on Assembly's Work at the General Assembly in 1927. In September, 1927, we began a very intensive promotion in four Synods—Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Appalachia. This work was fully reported to the General Assembly in 1928. Suffice it to say that between September 1, 1927, and the Assembly meeting in 1928 by definite intensive promotion in the local church, and in larger groups in the Synods and conferences in the Presbytery, we reached more than 300 pastors and approximately 6,000 churches there were not less than from 300,000 to 400,000 men and women. We would not leave the impression that all of this work was done in the four Synods.

During this period, Mr. L. A. Coulter gave most of the West of the Mississippi River, and the Secretary a contribution of his time to the various churches and West of the River.

Continuation of Intensive Field Work

It has been used during the church year and has been pressed with vigor. We have opened up plans for the same kind of operation. We are planning for intensive promotion in Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia and Florida. J. A. Naff and the secretary. West of the Mississippi River we are planning definite promotion, using Mr. L. A. Coulter and the secretary to the meeting of the Assembly this year, approximately 20 months to this method of promotion. The testimony of men and pastors is far the most fruitful method. By this method Training Schools at various centers for men's work both before these schools and after churches adjacent. We also group churches for pastors and leaders in Conferences.

For this, the Field Workers go to a church one to two days helping to ground the principles of organization. If the church is organized, we show the pastor and men how to hold Meetings and to use the plan and program of the year, we have come in contact with approximately 12,500 men and pastors. The men in these churches are approximately 40,000. Therefore, during the period, September 1, 1927 to April, 1929, we reached approximately 18,500 men and pastors at these meetings and churches numbering 75,000 members.

Inspirational and Informational Meetings

In addition to this method which should be held in the church for informational and inspirational meetings. The Department of Men's Work does not feel that it should hold the synods or presbyteries any particular time of meetings. These meetings must come from the committees of the synods and presbyteries. They should advise and co-operate. At the meetings the chairmen of the Synod's Committees should be held in Little Rock for the Synod of the Committee on Men's Work of which J. A. Naff is chairman.

The Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., has a general plan of operation. Ten or twelve conventions held many years for men, then for the last eight years they gave their time almost exclusively to intensive promotion. They are now holding conventions in various centers in their synods, and have been given $15,000, by one of the synods for this purpose. Is there a man of means who would give us six or seven thousand dollars for the same type of work?

CONFERENCE ON MEN'S WORK

Greenbrier Presbytery

On May 9 a conference on Men's Work was held at Mount Pleasant Church at Sinks Grove, which Rev. W. A. Benfield is pastor. There were ten churches in the lower section of Greenbrier available for this conference, eleven of which were represented. It was only a brief three hour conference with a supper at six-thirty in the evening. It was held in a large country church which has become a community center in a rich section, and although it was a very busy season, this conference was received with interest. Ample preparation was made for it by the Mount Pleasant Church who manifested a spirit of enthusiastic helpers in a good cause. A period of repast and fellowship was enjoyed by all the men, the president of the local organization-of-the-Church presiding.

At the recess the men assembled in the auditorium for the most helpful and inspiring program was given by Thomas K. Young of Roanoke delivered a message in his fine way on "Church Loyalty." This was followed by a very practical talk on Men's Work by Mr. F. L. Temple, citing some instances of the work of the Synod of Virginia of which he is chairman of Men's Work. Mr. C. P. Miles of Blacksburg, came along and filled a big place on the program by narrating his experience with a new organization-of-the-Church in his own church. We then heard Rev. George L. Whitely of the Synod of Roanoke in a splendid inspirational address which the Program closed.

It seems to be a turning point of larger men's organization. The attendance went beyond expectations and the interest manifested on the part of the men present was very marked. At the close of the attendance 12 ministers, 38 church officers and members of Men-of-the-Church organizations, and other organizations represented. We are looking for results to follow upon such an enthusiastic experience.

The program was carried out. We give it in connection with other groups of men:

—Supper and Fellowship (Lower floor church building). Presiding, A. A. Hedrick, President of Local Organization.

7:15 p. m.—Program (upstairs). Presiding, Presbyterial Chairman. Open Hymn, "The Son of God Goes Forth to War." The Purpose of this Conference.

7:30 p. m.—Address, "Loyalty to the Church," Rev. T. K. Young, D.D., Roanoke, Va. Prayer, Rev. M. B. Porter, Jr., Renick, W. Va.

8:05 p. m.—Men's Work in Greenbrier Presbytery. Rev. A. N. Perryman, Chairman. Hymn—"Men of the Church."

8:15 p. m.—"Growth in Men's Work." Mr. F. L. Temple, Chairman Men's Work Synod of Virginia.

8:45 p. m.—Checking the Conference.

9:00 p. m.—"Organization in the Local Church," Mr. C. P. Miles, V. P. I., Blacksburg, Va.

9:30 p. m.—Prayer and Benediction, Rev. W. A. Benfield.

SYNOD OF ARKANSAS

The church year closing March 31 reveals some encouraging things in connection with Men's Work in our Synod, and marks a certain degree of progress made since our last meeting here. A number of the churches have organizations in line with the Assembly's plan and are using the programs outlined by the Committee. Others are having regular meetings adapting their programs to their particular conditions. There is an increasing number of those who are planning their work along the lines of the general organization. In due season, Men's Work throughout the Synod will harmonize with that of the rest of the church. From correspondence with the churches we find that a goodly number of our men are engaged in definite activities, as conducting religious services in outpost work, holding prayer meetings, building bible classes and encouraging church attendance.

A Men's Conference under the auspices of the committee of Synod, was held on Petit Jean Mountain last summer in connection with the Ozark Assembly, Synod's Training School for Christian workers. Our speakers were Rev. J. E. Purcell and Mr. L. A. Coulter. The attendance was not what we had hoped for and expected, but much good was done through the strong addresses made and in the instruction given along the line of organization, programs and conduct of the work in the local church. This was our first attempt at having a men's conference in the Synod. The "findings committee" of this meeting reported among other things, "We cannot express too greatly our appreciation of the instruction given on the work of the Men-of-the-Church. We feel amply repaid for our efforts and we are making plans for another conference this summer."

A Men's Conference was held in Little Rock, February 21. Although the weather was very unfavorable the attendance was splendid, and a fine spirit was in evidence. We are confident that what was accomplished at this meeting has gone farther in creating a sentiment for men's work in the Synod than anything we have done thus far. Our program consisted of addresses, discussion and demonstrations covering the whole ground of Men's Work. From outside the Synod we had Rev. William M. Anderson, D.D., and Mr. L. A. Coulter, of Dallas, and Mr. R. B. Clinton, of Memphis. The rest of the speakers were members of the Synod, and with one exception, were laymen who are doing things at home. Eighteen churches were represented. Every presbytery had good delegations in attendance. The Spirit's power was felt from the beginning, and the men received a great vision of the possibilities of the work. No doubt forces were set in motion at the Petit Jean Conference that paved the way largely for this gathering.

Very active work has been done by Mr. Coulter, who has labored in all the Presbyteries. He has visited many of the churches and has come in contact with a large number of the members of the local organization and at meetings he had held. The Committee wishes to thank the Assembly's Committee for what they have done for us through the activities of Doctor Purcell and Mr. Coulter, also in "The Men-of-the-Church" columns of the church papers conducted by Rev. John L. Fairly.

In making plans for the immediate future the committees will suggest that, in addition to the program of work for the Synod as a whole, we outline some activities for the Presbyteries and for what might be called "districts." We believe that such a plan would enable us to cover the territory of the Synod more thoroughly, and also to head up the work in a more profitable and efficient way. This plan would develop leadership in the general work, and bring the local organizations into closer touch with each other.

To give a better idea of our plans for the future we submit a copy of the recommendations of our report adopted by Synod at its last meeting:

1. That pastors and officers in the churches make Men's Work a subject of prayer and study, that by patient and continuous effort they may succeed in training their men in efficient service.

2. That pastors of churches where there is no organization plan for the study courses with a view to organizing their men.

3. That a conference on Men's Work be held in connection with the Ozark Assembly next year.

4. That popular meetings be held at the spring meetings of Presbyteries and at Synod in 1929.

5. That Dr. J. E. Purcell, Secretary of Men's Work, be asked to conduct training schools at strategic points of the Synod, as per the plan he is following at this time.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

The Department of Woman's Work, Presbyterian Church, U. S. 270-277 Field Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

SYNODICAL PRESIDENTS OF THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

Alabama—Mrs. J. F. Hooper, 610 Mabry St., Selma, Ala.
 Appalachia—Mrs. F. B. Kegley, Wytheville, Va.
 Arkansas—Mrs. Walter Wilson, Arkadelphia, Ark.
 Florida—Mrs. W. G. Thompson, Jr., 3215 Obispo St., Palma Ceja Park, Tampa, Fla.
 Georgia—Mrs. E. G. Abbott, 1315 Eberhart Ave., Columbus, Ga.
 Kentucky—Mrs. H. P. Cooper, Lebanon, Ky.
 Louisiana—Mrs. Charles L. Bodin, Box 79, M. R. A., Lake Charles, La.
 Mississippi—Mrs. J. S. Hicks, Holly Springs, Miss.
 Missouri—Mrs. Walter Craven, 223 Frances St., Excelsior Springs, Mo.
 North Carolina—Mrs. G. V. Patterson, Gastonia, N. C.
 Oklahoma—Mrs. Wilbur Garvin, 611 Euclid, Lawton, Oklahoma.
 South Carolina—Mrs. Parker Connor, Edisto Island, S. C.
 Tennessee—Mrs. J. F. Forsythe, Bethel Springs, Tenn.
 Texas—Mrs. J. W. Culver, Texas Military Academy, San Antonio, Texas.
 Virginia—Mrs. C. R. Vaughan, 319 Mountain Ave., Roanoke, Va.
 West Virginia—Mrs. J. McD. Lacy, Elkins, W. Va.

MONTREAT DAY, OCTOBER 13, 1929

Were you at Montreat this summer, or did you listen to the report of your delegate who was there? In either case, you are enthused over the new Assembly Inn which has just been completed and which is already proving a real asset in our Church's life.

Many lives have been touched and made richer by the influences of the Conferences, that might never have been drawn to Montreat, had it not been for the Inn. In many ways we have found that Assembly Inn has ministered to a real need.

It is not only a matter of just pride but one of real expediency that we help in every way we can to liquidate the indebtedness of $70,000 now resting on the Inn. The Woman's Auxiliary is a helping arm of our beloved Church and so stands ready to help meet the needs of our Church as we can. Here is another call to service.

Sunday, October 13, 1929, has been designated as the day for a special offering for Assembly Inn in all our churches. This has been authorized by our Assembly which was moved by an earnest desire to have this debt removed as soon as possible. The Assembly, meeting at Montreat last May, gave its endorsement to the plans made for the removing of this debt, and directed "the Executive Committee of Religious Education and Publication to appropriate out of its earnings and reserve fund the sum of twenty-five thousand ($25,000) dollars to be applied on the debt of Assembly Inn, and it directs that payments be made as rapidly as the President and Treasurer of the Mountain Retreat Association submits statement showing cash collections from new sources and new pledges in bankable form to be used in the payment of said debt on Assembly Inn." Thus every dollar contributed now doubles its value.

Let each one decide what is her own responsibility in answering this call of the Assembly to observe October 13th as Montreat Day.

Janie W. McGaughey.

COMPLETE LIST OF SYNODICAL MEETINGS FOR 1929

Synodical, Meeting Place, Date, Send Literature to.
 Alabama, Met during the summer.
 Appalachia, Montreat, N. C., Sept. 24-26, Mrs. C. E. Dorsey, Montreat, N. C.
 Arkansas, Ft. Smith, Ark., Nov. 13-15, Mrs. A. L. Leitzel, 106 May Ave., Ft. Smith, Ark.
 Florida, Quincy, Fla., Oct. 22, Miss Agnes Davidson, care Rev. D. J. Blackwell, Quincy, Fla.
 Georgia, Rabun Gap, Ga., Oct. 15-17, Mrs. S. H. Askew, Rabun Gap, Ga.
 Kentucky, Bowling Green, Ky., Oct. 14, Mrs. R. E. Douglas, Bowling Green, Ky.
 Louisiana, New Orleans, La., Oct. 29-31, Mrs. Spencer Tallmadge, 81 Audubon Blvd., New Orleans, La.
 Missouri, Springfield, Mo., Oct. --, Mrs. Frank Robertson, 709 S. Fremont, Springfield, Mo.
 Mississippi, Gulport, Miss., Oct. 30, Mrs. H. McCandless, 2400 E. Beach, Gulfport, Miss.
 North Carolina, Durham, N. C., Oct. 15-17, Mrs. Preston P. Phillips, 905 Dacian Ave., Durham, N. C.
 Oklahoma, Hugo, Okla., October 22-23, Mrs. Bailey Spring, Goodland, Okla.
 South Carolina, Bishopville, S. C., Oct. 10-11, Mrs. D. W. A. Neville, Newberry, S. C.
 Tennessee, Met during the summer.
 Texas, Met during the summer.
 Virginia, Met during the summer.
 West Virginia, Huntington, W. Va., Oct. 22, Mrs. C. R. Garrison, care First Presbyterian Church, Huntington, W. Va.

(Continued on page 11)

6. That a Men's Conference be held in Little Rock at some convenient time this winter.

Our Committee also hopes to perfect organizations in the Presbyteries that will fit in with Synod's plan. In each Presbytery there shall be a committee, the chairman of which will be a member of Synod's committee on Men's Work. A definite program of work will be outlined for the Presbytery.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Rev. Ernest Trice Thompson, D.D.

Lesson for October 13

KEEPING FIT FOR THE SAKE OF OTHERS

(Temperance Lesson) Dan. 1:8-20; I Cor. Cor.

9:19-27; I Tim. 4:7-12; II Tim. 2:1-5.

Print Dan. 1:8-20

We began last week to consider some of the great social teachings of the Bible. And as was proper we considered first of all the debt we owe to others—the great responsibility which underlies all our other social responsibilities. That responsibility we saw can be summed up in a single phrase: Thou shalt love thy neighbor as Thyself. But if we are to discharge that responsibility in any acceptable way, the most effective way, we must keep ourselves fit to serve our neighbors. Our lesson this week, therefore, has to do with keeping fit for the sake of others. And we will note how three men did keep themselves fit, Daniel and Paul and Timothy.

I. Daniel's Way of Keeping Fit

Read Dan. 1:1-20. How did the problem present itself to Daniel? What reason would he have for defiling himself—what was there to gain? What reasons would he have for refusing to defile himself—what was there to lose? What were the results of his choice?

We studied this whole passage fully a few weeks ago, there is the less reason, therefore, for a great deal of time on it now. Daniel we remember was born in Judah in the reign of the good king Josiah. When he was eleven years old Josiah was killed by Pharaoh-Necho in the disastrous battle of Megiddo, and the reformation which he had sponsored came to a sudden end. Three years later Jehoiakim, Josiah's successor on the throne, and many representatives of the more prominent families of the city were carried into captivity. Jehoiakim later was allowed to return and resume his throne, but his fellow captives remained in Babylon, at that time one of the most magnificent cities of ancient times. Among these captives was Daniel, at the time a boy of about 14 years, the scion of a noble family, it may be a member of the royal house itself, an outstanding lad, both in regard to his physical appearance and his mental attainments.

The Babylonians seem to have had a custom somewhat similar to that followed until comparatively recent times by the Turks. This was the custom of taking youths of christian parents, bringing them up in the Mohammedan religion, and training them for the royal service. One result of this system was that the Emperor had about him men who had no family ambitions, no loyalty to anyone besides himself. In somewhat similar fashion Nebuchadnezzar ordered Ashpenaz, the master of the eunuchs, to have educated for the king's service those youths of the Jewish captives who belonged to the royal family and to the nobility, and who seemed to be youths of especial promise, youths of fine physical appearance and of exceptional mental ability; they were to be trained in a special royal seminary in the learning and in the tongue of the Chaldeans. The last phrase does not mean simply that they were to be taught the Chaldean language. The term "Chaldean," was used to denote the learned class among the Babylonians, i. e. the priests, a large part of whose functions consisted in the study and practise of magic, divination, and astrology. This course in the learning of the Chaldeans was to continue for three years, and at the end of that time the young men were to appear before the King, to be assigned if they were fit to the royal service.

Immediately Daniel faced a great problem. Here was a magnificent opportunity to prepare himself for quick advancement in his adopted country, the mightiest power of the Eastern world. But at the same time his conscience bade him to be true to the faith of his fathers. The first real test of his attitude came in regard to the special food that was sent down from the King's table. The food was rich no doubt, the wine had its dangers then as now, but there were other considerations beside those of hygiene. According to the Jewish law only certain animals were accounted 'clean', and even these had to be slain in such a manner as to leave no blood in the flesh before they could be eaten. Besides it was a custom among the heathen to bring a portion of that which was eaten and drunk by them as an oblation to the gods, and sometimes they also used for food animals that had already been offered at the altar of their gods. To partake of meat and wine that had been used in this connection was regarded as an act of worship. For Daniel no doubt it was a question of principle, but more than that religion and nationality were at stake. Yet it was dangerous to refuse. It would mean no doubt the end of any hope of advancement in the Babylonian empire. If the refusal to carry out the royal instructions would have endangered the life of the chief of the eunuchs, much more would it have put Daniel's life in jeopardy. It is hard too for a young fellow to be different from his fellows. Thus the great temptation was presented to Daniel, off at college, away from the restraining influences of home and church, to conform to the customs of a heathen land.

Risking the scorn of his companions and the wrath of his masters, Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with the king's dainties (R.V.), nor with the wine which he drank. It would be far better to live on simple food than to feast on the dainties sent from the king, he had the good sense to see that if he were to rise in the kingdom it must be with a clear head and a pure heart and that wine is the deadly enemy of both; in any case he would be true to the national ideals of Israel and above all true to Israel's God. And so he put his request to the prince of the eunuchs. That official was afraid to grant it. Daniel applied, therefore, to the subordinate officer who had the immediate charge of himself and his companions, and induced him to try them temporarily on a vegetable (pulse) diet, with water to drink instead of wine. The test was to extend over a period of ten days, and if at the end of that time favorable results were not apparent the procedure would be changed.

When the ten days were ended it was seen that the countenances of Daniel and his three friends were fairer and they were fatter in flesh than all the youths that did eat of the king's dainties. We are not told that this result was due to a miracle of any sort. Most likely it was the natural result of a temperate diet. Daniel had won his point. The final test came at the end of the three years of special training. The graduates of the royal academy were brought before the king. The four Jewish youths were found to be distinguished beyond all the others in wisdom and knowledge, Daniel being skilled particularly in the interpretation of visions and dreams. Therefore, "stood they before the king," i. e. they became his personal attendants. As this gave free access to his presence it involved a position not only of high honor but of great influence. And their superiority stood the test of time. Whenever the king consulted them on matters which required wisdom and understanding he found them not only better, but "ten times better" than all the magicians and astrologers that were in all his realm. And Daniel continued even unto the first year of king Cyrus.

Let us stop here for a moment. How are young people, older people tempted to defile themselves today? What are some of the things that make it easy to yield, hard to refuse? Why should we purpose in our hearts not to defile ourselves? Why not pet, drink, tell unsavory stories, engage in questionable conduct, employ questionable business practices? What is there to gain? What is there to lose? Daniel might easily have argued himself out of his convictions—his future was at stake—why not yield? Is it proper to compromise in order to gain success? Would Daniel's way of keeping fit help us?

II. Paul's Way of Keeping Fit

Read I Cor. 9:19-27. Study especially verses 24-27. In your own words how did Paul keep himself fit for the sake of others? What illustrations does he use? Are they apt illustrations?

It is a long distance from Daniel to Paul. Daniel was a statesman of the exile (about 600 B.C.); Paul was the great missionary to the Gentile who lived in the early days after Jesus Christ. No man rendered such great service to the cause of Christ as he. By his strenuous labors and sacrificial toil he made the church of Jesus Christ a world conquering church. On his second missionary journey he spent 18 months in Corinth, the greatest commercial city in Greece, and one of the wickedest cities in the Roman Empire. He succeeded in establishing there a church which continued to grow after his departure. Dissensions arose, however, and other abuses also, so that three years later Paul wrote a letter to this church from Ephesus, in which he sought to solve the problems of the church in the light of the cross. One of these problems had to do with eating meat offered to idols. Paul realized that this was an indifferent matter in itself, yet undoubtedly it held a real danger for the spiritual life of many of the Corinthians, imperfectly weaned away from their former faith. It was while he was dealing with this problem that he reminded them how strenuously he strove to keep himself fit and how necessary it was for all Christians.

He took his illustrations from the Isthmian games. These games were a glorious feature of life in Corinth, representing to that city what the Olympic, Pythian, and Nemean games meant to the Greeks in other portions of the country, and what world series baseball games, championship football games, great prize fights mean to us. The contests carried on in these games were chariot racing, horse racing, and foot racing, together with boxing, wrestling, throwing the spear, and throwing the discus. The prizes were simply wreaths of leaves; these were of the wild olive (Olympian), parsley (Nemean), laurel (Pythian) and Pine (Isthmian). The athletes trained long and strenuously, forcing their bodies to endure many hardships, that they might become strong and tough, supple and resourceful, and gain the victory which meant more to a Greek than anything else. All of this required great self-control; and indeed the Greek word usually translated "temperance" means "self-control."

"Now the Christian life, Paul says, is a race, and a hard race too. If discipline and constant self-restraint are necessary to enable the athlete to win his race, discipline and rigorous self-restraint are necessary to enable a man to run successfully the Christian race." But how much more should a man be willing to exercise self-discipline for the Christian race? In the Isthmian games only one can win the prize, but in the Christian race all can win it; in the Isthmian games one runs for a corruptible crown; in the Christian race he runs for an incorruptible one. Marcus Dods reminds us here that "while it was quite true that the wreaths of pine given might fade before the year was out, yet he came home with all the honors of a victor the wall of his town being thrown down, he passed in as a conqueror, and his statue became that of his fellow citizens." He was honored during of his days. And yet with all that it was able crown. If they were willing to make for a crown of that sort what exertion Christian make for an imperishable crown?

The apostle appeals to his own conduct of the lesson that he is trying to express, not say anything more about their duty, but—"I so run, as not uncertainly." That is, steadfastly upon the goal. The trouble was it is that sometimes our eye is upon the goal, sometimes it is off. Then his figure changes to "So fight I as not beating the air." That is, fight as one in earnest. He does not miss waste them upon the air; he plants his body of our spiritual activity is wasted because of no definite aim. And the adversary against which he blows is his own body. Paul uses the Greek word 'I buffet my body,' the Greek means 'I buffet and bring it into a subjection.' That is, he keeps his appetites instead of being his master slave of his spirit. We might note here to misconception that Paul brings his body voluntary and arbitrary asperities (cf. Col. 3:10) the unsparing employment of it in the service of God. And his purpose is lest 'I myself should be lost.'

Was Paul an exception? Or is it necessary for Christians to discipline themselves constantly to succeed in the Christian life? Why is that continuous care necessary? Why is it that many of our aged Christians, and too many ministers, are so full of grievous sins? What are the dangers we need especially to be on our guard against? Impurity, the lust for power, the lust for pleasure, can we buffet our body and keep it under control? Can a Christian engage in practices which are a moderation, but which carry with them excess?

III. Timothy's Way of Keeping Fit

Read I Tim. 4:7-12; II Tim. 2:1-6. What does Paul suggest whereby Timothy may keep fit?

Timothy was a young man, who met Paul on his first missionary journey. He was converted on that occasion. When Paul returned a year or so later Timothy was invited to join Paul and Silas. He became Paul's devoted companion and minister, and with him almost constantly during the rest of Paul's life. Paul looked upon him as a son. During Paul's imprisonment Timothy was in Ephesus, having been put in charge of the great church in that city. During the course of his imprisonment Paul wrote two letters to Timothy advising him as to the proper conduct of his work. In the first letter Paul suggests as to how he may keep himself fit for the work. We mention a few of these suggestions for example:

1. Bodily Exercise. It is profitable, and necessary, to have a little in comparison with spiritual exercise. Paul did not need to emphasize this point to the Greeks, and Timothy's father was a Greek. He had inherited the value of physical exercise. As Americans, especially young Americans, we are prone to neglect bodily exercise. Bodily exercise is profitable, and no man can be fit unless he does take the proper amount of bodily exercise. What kind of exercise should we take? Is it possible to take too much? Can bodily exercise take the place of spiritual exercise? Is there any danger in that respect, say in Sunday golf, or in winter sports?

2. Spiritual exercise, or exercise unto godliness, says this is even more profitable. Is it necessary in the spiritual life? How should we exercise ourselves unto godliness?

3. The setting of a right example. Timothy was not put it perhaps in the same way. We should consider examples. And to a certain extent we should have a healthy feeling. For too often those of us who are examples become prigs, and overlook our faults. Yet certainly we should measure up to the standards that we expect of others. Certainly we should not set a bad example for others. We may be influenced by what we do. Timothy was a minister. He must live a life consistent with his office. He must preach by example more than by words. We must live out our ideals. We must think other men should live in word, in deed, in love, in faith, and in purity. Would we expect all men to follow our example?

4. The endurance of hardship. 2 Timothy 3:12 translates verses 3-7 as follows: "Join the ranks of those who bear suffering, like a soldier of Christ. No soldier gets entangled in civil pursuits, lest he be disqualified. A competitor is not crowned unless he observes the rules. He who has done the work must have the fruit. Think what I mean? The Lord will understand perfectly."

Paul uses here three inspiring figures, may well close our study. If a Christian is to be a soldier, eager to please his

(Continued on page 11)

LDREN

A GIRL AND A LITTLE KITTEN

ten here, the next time a s on your car, bring it home t was what little four-year- said to her Uncle David eard that he had taken a off of his car and sent it to its mother. ght, I'll do that," answered l, and the very next day he vely little gray kitten home

mine, my little gray kit- Selma. "Did it jump on e the other little kitten?" n't jump on my car, but I car and came along home thought you might like a

I never been so happy in e stroked it and petted it, d tried to sing it to sleep. tter not hold Kitty all the s," her mother told her in, but she just would not attention.

id it very well, but after a his little bones began to en he saw Selma coming he ran away and tried to called, "Here, Kitty, Kitty ach that finally he scurried ding place and ran up to me-ow, me-ow."

ma, Kitty is saying, 'Don't much, let's play something mother. Selma, however, n listen to her dear kitten. him up tight to her and y Little Bluebird," and ie, Mew, Mew, Mew," to d again.

h was ready. After Selma the house, Kitty stretched thought, "I'll just be gone Why won't that nice little one sometimes?"

nch was over Selma came calling, "Kitty, Kitty, ou Kitty?" but no Kitty that poor little Selma for she loved her kitten nd her best to comfort her, pt crying over and over, ty ran away, because I him and when he would me-ow, don't hold me so ld keep on holding him ghter anyhow. The next s back I won't hold him ad, dear," said Mother, efully about supper time itty will come home for milk."

s exactly what happened. Kitty's saucer of milk out

ROUND TALES

STORIES FOR THE KIDDIES NELSON WHITE

ld hen sees clever tricks as much as any - er upside down and see not always what you e when you see them n Around Tales" for in- are beginning this week. these little figures, turn own and see one animal other. Every week for will be a funny "Turn

A FAMOUS VOYAGER

(To be colored with paints or crayons, Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color.)

Here is BROWN-haired Teddy and YELLOW-haired Susie May and RED (use BROWN and RED) haired cousin Willie, all having a very interesting time in Susie May's attic. Teddy is telling Susie May and Willie about a famous Voyager and Teddy has found a globe of the world on a YELLOW stand to show Susie May and Willie just where Christopher Columbus sailed. The globe is light BLUE with PINK (use RED lightly) and YELLOW countries on it.

Teddy wears a light-GREEN blouse and a RED tie. His belt is BROWN and his trousers are dark-BLUE. The cuffs of his socks are GREEN.

Susie May wears a PINK dress. She is sitting on a YELLOW box. Willie has a BLUE sailor suit on and a RED tie. He is sitting on a large RED box. His shoes are BLACK.

The rafters are light-YELLOW and the roof between is TAN (use BROWN and YELLOW mixed). The chair board is the same color as the rafters and the floor boards are BROWN.

Teddy says Christopher Columbus had three ships. The pictures in the border show what they looked like. You can color the ships BROWN with white sails. Paint the border GREEN-BLUE (use most GREEN and mix the colors) and the lettering can be RED.

as usual, and there was a great rush of kitty feet and Kitty himself jumped right up into Selma's lap.

The next day was a very happy time for both Selma and Kitty. Selma would hold a string for Kitty to reach after, she would throw her red ball, and then she and Kitty would race after it. Nearly every time Kitty won the race. So they played one game after another. Soon Kitty learned to play "I spy" with Selma, only Kitty was always the one to hide; he just wouldn't hide his eyes and let Selma hide. Maybe he was afraid she would slip off from him, and he loved her too well to let her leave him.

Now Kitty follows Selma around all day long, and they never seem to get tired of playing together. — Carolyn Carper, in Christian Evangelist.

A TRIP TO NEW YORK

Dear Standard:

Last Saturday was my birthday. I am nine years old and am in the fourth grade. My teacher's name is Miss McPhaul, I like her fine. I have five sisters. I went with my mother to New York this summer, we spent one day at Bronx Park looking at all the animals, birds, and the largest snake in the world. We spent one day at Coney Island. I received my testament for reciting the child's catechism at the close of the Daily Vacation Bible School. I also learned the twelfth chapter of Romans. I like to hear my mother read your nice stories and letters.

Your friend,
Walden McMillan Hearn.
Teachey, N. C.

ATTENDED D. V. B. S.

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl seven years old. I go to school and am in the third grade. My teacher's name is Miss Hall, I like her fine. I go to Sunday School every Sunday. I received my testament for reciting the child's catechism at the Daily Vacation Bible School. I learned the twelfth chapter of Romans this summer. We take your nice paper and my Mama reads us all the nice stories.

Your friend,
Madelene Hearn.
Teachey, N. C.

THEY COLOR THE PICTURES

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl six years old. I go to school and am in the first grade. my teacher's name is Miss Herring, I like her fine. I have four sisters and one brother. My Daddy is with the State Forest Service. I want to surprise my Grandmother and Grandpa McMillan. We race to see who can get your paper first to color the nice pictures. I learned the 100th and 23rd Psalms at the D. V. B. School and all four of us (Continued on page 14)

PUZZLE CORNER

A Famous Birthday

Add together:
2-3 of an animal,
2-7 of a cradle song,
1-5 of a girl's name,
3-7 of a bird,
2-5 of a boy's name,
1-5 of a river in Alaska,
And find a famous birthday.

Five-Letter Words

1. A flower.
2. A number.
3. A food fish.
4. A wild animal.
5. To admit as true.
6. A box.
7. A diagram.
8. To dupe.

The first four words start with the letter T. The last four end with T. All words have five letters.

Horizontal

- 1—A fall sport
- 5—Arab (abbr.)
- 6—A kind of small sour apple
- 8—Fresh eggs
- 10—Wheel with teeth
- 12—Vases
- 14—Past
- 15—To sever violently
- 17—Railroad (abbr.)

Vertical

- 1—A month
- 2—A sailor
- 3—To boast
- 4—Spring sport
- 6—A small coin of U. S.
- 7—To carry
- 9—Conjunction (abbr.)
- 11—Agriculture (abbr.)
- 13—Wither
- 16—Part of body

(Puzzles Answers on page 14)

CHURCH NEWS

PERSONAL

The address of Rev. J. J. Hill, D.D., Superintendent and Treasurer of Presbytery's Home Missions, and Stated Clerk of the Presbytery of Memphis, is changed from 1465 to 1473 Madison Ave. All treasurers and correspondents will please note the change in number.

WADE C. SMITH'S ENGAGEMENTS

First Presbyterian Church, Dothan, Ala., October 2-13.

First Presbyterian Church, Bogalusa, La., November 3-10.

First Presbyterian Church, Charleston, W. Va., November 17-24.

First Presbyterian Church, Harrisonburg, Va., February 16-23.

First United Presbyterian Church, Pittsburg, Kansas, March 16-30.

The period, October 16-30, by reason of an eleventh hour cancellation, being unassigned, is available to any church that may care to use on such short notice. Communicate with Rev. O. E. Buchholz, D.D., director of Extension Department, Assembly Training School, Richmond, Va.

NORTH CAROLINA

Myers Park, Charlotte—Dr. W. L. Lingle preached for us at the evening service September 22, while Dr. E. G. Gammon, pastor, addressed the Davidson College Y. M. C. A.

Charlotte, Tenth Avenue—Last Sunday our church began evangelistic services with Mr. Harry D. Clarke as evangelist. Mr. Clarke who is an ex-sailor, had an unusual conversion, has had rich and varied experience, is possessed with an attractive personality. He is a powerful preacher but best of all is a consecrated man of God. He also is a song writer and a song director. In preparation for the services cottage prayer meetings were held.

Charlotte, Second Church—Rev. R. H. Stone, pastor of three churches in Winston-Salem Presbytery, occupied the pulpit of this church, September 29th, and preached on the subject of "Antiques." He began by showing the emphasis placed on altars in the early ages of the Church, he then pleaded for the family altar, which has become an "antique." Noting the antique craze now sweeping over the country, he recommended this antique to the consideration of those who enjoy the gathering of such reminders of the past.

We enjoyed this sermon, not only because it was a practical one, but also because the preacher was a man who is doing excellent work in a difficult mountain field.

Charlotte—The Second Church is planning to put on the new expanded session of the Sunday School, Elementary Division, which combines a short period of the morning church service, after which the children will return to their rooms and continue their own work which will be in the nature of handwork largely. The church calendar of September 22 makes the announcement as follows:

Beginning October 6, new literature published by the committee in Richmond will be in the Elementary Division of the Church School. In order to give the children of the church full advantage of the second session which the new courses provide the Sunday morning session of the Cradle Roll, Beginner, Primary, and Junior Departments will be extended through the church hour. Primaries and Juniors will come into the church auditorium for the first fifteen minutes of the regular church service in which period Dr. Hardie will preach a five-minute sermon to them.

Dr. J. F. Hardie is discussing the book of Hebrews at the weekly prayer meeting.

Red Springs—Dr. and Mrs. B. F. Bedinger delightfully entertained at their home Friday afternoon at a reception in honor of their son and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Bedinger, of the mission on the Congo, under the Southern Presbyterian Church. Many guests called during the afternoon.

Central Steele Creek—We had our midsummer communion service the third Sunday of August; and had the happy privilege of having Dr. Geo. F. Robertson with us in the preparatory services for several nights of the preceding week.

Dr. Robertson's bow abides in its strength, and we were delighted with the thoughtful and helpful discourses he gave us on this occasion.

Lee Park—Rev. A. F. Doty, of North Charlotte Church, preached for eight days at this church embracing the third and fourth Sundays of June and greatly endeared himself to this people. He speaks out of a rich experience with men in personal evangelism and knows how to move among the people as he seeks the fruit of the preached word. There were no accessions but the membership was encouraged and strengthened. Rev. R. J. McIlwaine was with Mr. Doty part of the time.

Salisbury First—We had to fill our pulpit on September 22 Rev. J. King Gordon, of Kenora, Ontario. Mr. Gordon is a son of Dr. Charles W. Gordon (Ralph Connor), whom we know so well both from his charming stories and from his visit to our church last spring. We appreciated deeply the messages Dr. Gordon brought us, and heard his son with equal interest.

Mecklenburg Presbytery is called to meet on October 9 at Rocky Mount, N. C., during the sessions of Synod, for the purpose of considering the request of Rev. W. H. Matheson:

1. To dissolve the pastoral relation between him and Thomasboro Church.

2. To dismiss him to Nashville Presbytery if the way be clear.

By order of the moderator, W. H. Frazer, D.D.

J. G. Garth, S. C.

Charlotte, N. C., September 27, 1929.

Pinehurst—The Community Church is to be erected near the Pinehurst schools at a cost of approximately $75,000. The new edifice is expected to be ready by March. The church itself will seat 450 persons, and the Sunday school wing will accommodate 500.

The building will be constructed of Colonial face brick and is expected to be one of the finest church buildings in the state. Its erection has been made possible through the efforts of a group of citizens of Pinehurst in raising the necessary funds from residents and winter visitors.

Pleasant Hill—The week following the third Sunday of August we had preaching each night with the Lord's Supper on Sunday.

We were fortunate to have with us for these services Rev. A. H. Key, pastor of Bethel Church, of Bethel Presbytery, S. C. Brother Key preached the gospel with earnestness and power, and our people heard him gladly. Four young people united with the church on profession of faith.

Sincerely yours,

R. W. Culbertson.

Banks—Services began at this church on Sunday, August 11, at 11:00 a. m., and continued over the following Sabbath. There were two services each day, one at 11:00 a. m., and the other at 8:00 p. m. Rev. S. B. Lyerly of St. Pauls Church, Charlotte, and Rev. R. J. McIlwaine conducted the services. The attendance was good. The interest in the meeting was encouraging from the beginning. There were eight additions to the Church on profession of faith the second day of the meeting. Nine others were received later in the meeting, making seventeen altogether, all on profession of faith. Mr. Lyerly greatly endeared himself to this people by his rich gospel preaching and his brotherly spirit among the people. Nearly every home in the church was visited and much personal work was done. The Communion of the Lord's Supper was administered on the last day and one infant was baptized.

Rocky River—We have had a splendid meeting in this old historic church. Rev. R. C. Morrison, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Fountain Inn, S. C., came to us on Tuesday, August 27 and preached faithfully the unsearchable riches of Christ. It is not necessary to use adjectives. Mr. Morrison preached the word in its purity and with power—such preaching is always blessed of God. The Christian people were built up in the faith, and others were made to think of God's hatred of sin, and His love for lost souls.

One was added to the church on confession of faith. The meeting closed on Sunday afternoon, September 10, the communion of the Lord's supper being observed after the morning service.

T. H. Spence.

Harrisonburg—Rev. J. E. Flowe, D.D., superintendent of Home Missions, in Concord Presbytery, began a meeting in this church on Sunday night, September 1 and continued to preach for two weeks, closing Sunday night September 15. Dr. Flowe brings to the evangelistic work a long experience, acquired in both the pastorate and in the evangelistic field. He is a sound proclaimer of the law and the gospel; and has a very apt way of putting truths before an audience. He has none of the objectionable traits of the professional evangelists. His sermons were highly appreciated by his congregations. Seven were added to the church on confession of their faith in Christ. We are looking to God for good and lasting results from this meeting. An offering was taken for Home Missions amounting to over $80.

Eureka Church, Moore County—This church has recently had a successful series of evangelistic meetings, conducted by Rev. J. M. Clark, D.D. pastor, Rev. W. S. Golden. The date of the series was September 1st through 8th. Large crowds were present at all the services, and eight were received into the church on profession of faith. A young married couple coming into the church had their baby to receive baptism with them. They preached strong sermons, which had deep impressions on their hearers. Scores of church members were created themselves. The pastor and people were delighted to have Dr. Clark with them, and we remember these good meetings. Dr. Clark has many old acquaintances and friends, being himself of Moore County.

Priest Hill Church, Moore County—This year a series of evangelistic services of great interest was held during the summer. Rev. C. E. Clark, of Parmer pastor of this church, assisted the pastor, Rev. W. S. Golden. The building overflowed with people at most of the services, and great work was done in the community. Mr. Clark has a special interest in these good people, who always hear the word.

Fayetteville Presbytery will hold its starting at the Eureka Church, Moore County from Carthage, beginning October 22. Please note the change in hour of meeting. Carthage is on the line between Raleigh and Charlotte. Four bus lines connect with trains at Sanford. Those planning to attend will please notify the pastor, Rev. W. S. Golden, at Carthage, at their earliest convenience.

Mebane—Beginning September 4th, we have the rare privilege of having with us in a tenting Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Thacker, one of the State's best evangelists, and Mr. and Mrs. White, of Indiana, who have been in the music at Montreat for the past four summers.

We feel that our church and entire town community has been drawn closer to God by the presence of these people. They bring to us daily a message of eternal life. Dr. Thacker in his simple, yet forceful preaching God's word, and Mrs. Thacker's most marvelous lectures, were the means by which such a hold upon both the saved and the unsaved was obtained. That only God in his infinite wisdom is the author of this sure good accomplished.

There were hundreds who rededicated to Jesus Christ and scores led to accept personal Savior.

The music which was in charge of Mr. and Mrs. White was by far the most select, uplifting and stirring that our town has ever had. We are confident it will be God's will to have these four with us again and any church will be fortunate to get them. Daniel B. C.

Charlotte—The Men's Fellowship Club meeting of the fall on Monday, September 23, was held at the home of Walter L. Lingle, president of Davidson College, who was the honor guest, and made an excellent address. He stressed making sympathetic contact with the world. "Let the knowledge and the practice of the gospel enlarge your vision and scope of thinking." "Know the Bible and carry it into your daily lives."

Dr. Lingle urged his hearers to learn to know other people, to understand them in a practical way, and really to know them. "When a man or woman say, 'I don't like that man or woman because he or she doesn't know me,' it is really because he or she doesn't know him or her."

The new president of Davidson College, Dr. W. B. Bradford, was in the city for a few minutes on the recent opening of the college. He was sure that the relationship between Davidson College and Charlotte would be as cordial as that between Davidson College and the city.

R. E. Suther, president of the club, presided at the meeting. W. B. Bradford was in the city for a few minutes on the recent opening of the college. He was sure that the relationship between Davidson College and Charlotte would be as cordial as that between Davidson College and the city.

Mooreville Second—This church has since February. While vacant we have had a successful series of evangelistic meetings. The pulpit for awhile was supplied by Mr. E. A. Beaty, from Davidson College. The time the church and manse were paired was made possible mainly by a donation from the church from another town.

The pulpit was filled by Mr. DeV. Kenly, N. C., for three months during this period our local people were benefited. Mr. Helm conducted a Daily Vacation Bible School. The study of the catechisms was strengthened. Eight testaments and one Bible were presented for perfect recitations. The sessions were for any that would come. Testaments were given to two Baptist children. Naturally these children had to have a second question, "Who are to be baptized?"

Mr. Helm worked hard. His labors were rewarded. The services were well attended. At this time three were received on profession of faith and ten on reaffirmation or letter. Mr.

course at Davidson college. He has re-to Richmond to enter Union Seminary.
day, September 22 the congregation met morning service. Rev. Walter Furr con-vice and moderated the meeting of the when the congregation extended an Rev. Ralph S. Carson, of Durham, N. C., the pastor. A salary of $2,100 has been people are praying that Mr. Carson will accept the call.

A Member.

The first week's work at Flora Mac-ended Monday evening, September gathering in the rotunda of the main reception was under the auspices of the and was for the purpose of getting acing as the guests the new students and pers. Various features were used for own to each other and its purpose was shed.

night, annual stunt night was held in
in, breaking the ice for the new girls.
The first chapel services President Vardell
the benefit of the new students the work-Government, which is such a vital lege life. Dr. Vardell also preached the the school term at the First Presbyteere Sunday morning, all the students meeting of the Junior Class Miss Milton, Durham, N. C., was elected presis Esther Hutchins, Lexington, N. C., and Margaret Burgess, Sumter, S. C., itor of the Annual.

just been received that Col. Walter the firm of Butler Brothers, of New ago, will visit the college sometime durof October. Colonel Scott is one of the cotchmen in the United States and a nd of the college.

APPALACHIA

Presbytery—The committee's funds are sustaining the work which Presbytery er the supervisory care of your Home ittee. No funds are at this Committee's in repair of buildings and replacement buildings of the Bachman Memorial me after more than ten years of hard ce need of paint and repairs, while other roof leaks stopped and some minor equipment, as for instance mattresses, ce as the agent of the church is passing on to a few friends of the work, in pe that each individual who receives find it in his heart and means to make to help meet these emergencies. Any $1.00 up will be greatly appreciated.

your remittance, for Farner repair to Rev. B. M. Larson, Tr., Athens, of Knoxville—A review of the report Caroline Miller has prepared as worker ery of Knoxville, reveals the following erence to Daily Vacation Bible Schools he recently passed weeks within the

presbytery:

ches constituting the presbytery report ion Bible Schools conducted, having a nt of 1,148 eager and enthusiastic boys total of 194 days were spent in actual teaching of the word of God through a three hours each. In these schools the paid workers were utilized, while 116 and workers in the local churches pay as teachers and helpers. Of these were held under the supervision of the nd by Presbytery's Committee of Reliion, while the remaining seven were con-al pastors and helpers. Two young Assembly's Training School, Miss Kate go, S. C., and Miss Carolyn McGehee, ere associated in this work and were a 50-50 basis by the Committee at Rich-esbytery's Home Mission Committee.
ches which hitherto had not conducted Bible Schools made an effort this year spend issues.

nds held the past summer in most indork was eliminated save in so far as it contribution to the presentation to the al mind of the great messages of the d Children were most eager and enthu-sise to the message of the book. An ex-h average attendance and interest was ne part of the children and workers in e heart rejoices in the splendid work done within the presbytery and plans for an even more effective and en-for Daily Vacation Bible Schools for

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

(Continued from page 7)

NORTH CAROLINA SYNODICAL AT DURHAM

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Synod of North Carolina will meet in the First Presbyterian Church of Durham, N. C., at 3:30 p. m., Tuesday, October 15, and will continue in session until noon, October 17.

The theme for this meeting will be Foreign Missions and this will be a special feature of Tuesday night session.

At this time North Carolina unit of Mission Court, Richmond, Va., will be presented to N. C. Synodical and to General Assembly. Dr. R. M. Wilson, a medical missionary to Korea, will make the address on Foreign Missions. The recently elected Secretary of the Department of Women's Work of the Southern Presbyterian Church, Miss Janie W. McGaughey, of St. Louis, Mo., will be present throughout the sessions of Synodical.
Miss McGaughey will give the Bible messages each day and on Wednesday morning will address the Assembly on
"Our Supreme Task."

Rev. H. H. Sweets, D.D., Louisville, Ky., Ex-Secretary of Department of Christian Education and Ministerial Relief of the Southern Presbyterian Church, will give an address on Christian Education and Ministerial Relief and also present the birthday gift for 1930.

Rev. J. H. Henderlite, D.D., Gastonia, N. C., Chairman of Synod's Committee of Religious Education will speak on Religious Education and Stewardship.

Miss Carrie Lee Campbell, Richmond, Va., Vice-President, Virginia Synodical will present Auxiliary methods and also accept the North Carolina Unit Mission Court for General Assembly.

Dr. W. C. Pressley, of Peace Institute will bring a message from Peace, also a number of Peace girls will render special music Wednesday night.

Rev. E. E. Gillespie, D.D., Greensboro, N. C., will present Home Missions and Rev. C. E. Hodgins, Greensboro, Synod's chairman of Woman's Work, will bring a message from Synod.

Besides these outstanding subjects, other matters of interest will be presented.

GREETING CARDS

A beautiful monogrammed greeting card, with envelope to match, has been printed for the convenience of presidents to welcome new members.

These cards are available, at 25c a dozen. Order from The Department of Woman's Work, 270-277 Field Building, Saint Louis, Mo.

MRS. WINSBOROUGH'S BOOK

"The Woman's Auxiliary Presbyterian Church, U. S." by Hallie Paxson Winsborough, cloth binding, 75c, paper binding 50c, is the background history development of the Woman's Auxiliary. Every member of the Auxiliary should have a copy and study it. Order from The Presbyterian Committee of Publication, 6 North Sixth Street, Richmond, Va.; or Department of Woman's Work, 270-277 Field Building, Saint Louis, Mo.

MONTREAT—ASSEMBLY INN

Ernest Thompson

To one who has recently been there these words bring up a picture of unusual loveliness—a winding road leading into a cove, surrounded on three sides by towering mountains—in the center for the jewelled setting, a little lake formed from the babbling mountain streams, woods filled with all kinds of wild flowers in season—groups of buildings showing here and there through the trees. The crowning triumph of these buildings is the Assembly Inn, outwardly, fitting most exquisitely into its surroundings, inwardly, a thing of beauty and seemingly so built as to be a "joy forever."

Personally I am a recent and reluctant convert to Mon-treat both as a place for summer gatherings and for meetings of the General Assembly.

One is intrigued by being away from the embarrassment of being entertained in strange places, relieved from long distance travel after the sessions, rested by the comfort of the Inn, cheered by the sociability of meeting everybody in the lobby. Work is hastened by the convenience of getting committees together. Concentration on the task at hand is secured by the lack of disconcerting distractions. It is easy to do your work, get done with it and go home.

Only one cloud, beside those so often resting on the tops of the mountains, mars the satisfaction of this unique place. And that is a debt incurred in the effort to finish Assembly Inn in time for the meeting of the last General Assembly.

It is a marvelous piece of property we have there at an unbelievably low cost. The General Assembly, realizing this at its recent meeting, designated Sunday, October 13, as a day when the cause of Montreat might be presented to our churches, looking to the end of liquidating this indebtedness.

It is earnestly hoped that all of our ministers and churches will observe this date, each giving at least some small amount for this cause and so giving to the Assembly, as the central gathering place of all its interests, a magnificent piece of property free from all incumbrances.

R. O. T. C.

Religious Obeisance to Caesar

A. J. McKelway

In George Lansbury's contribution to "Labor Speaks For Itself on Religion," he writes, "Years ago I was asked, 'Why don't people accept religion? why don't the masses go to Church?' I said then, as I say now: they, the masses, believe that we Christians do not believe what we say we believe."

The Southern Presbyterian Church has upon the Minutes of its last General Assembly a resolution, adopted without one dissenting opinion, in which there is an unqualified renunciation of war, including the expressed refusal of the Church to be used as an instrument or agency for the promotion or support of war, and its refusal ever again to bless a war. In the meantime, and now, this same Southern Presbyterian Church, through some of its colleges (which are certainly its agencies and institutions) complacently tolerates a policy of compulsory military training, which policy constitutes de facto a contradiction both of the letter and spirit of the splendid resolution adopted by the General Assembly. So far as the writer is able to learn, our Church is the only one which is able to countenance this contradictory policy.

About a year ago, The Christian Century, rejoiced editorially that President Oxnham, of the Methodist College at Greencastle, Indiana, had abolished compulsory military training in that college, thus putting an end to compulsory R. O. T. C. in denominational colleges. A member of the board of trustees of one of our colleges wrote to the editor to correct his statement, since such a policy was still in full force in more than one of our colleges. The board member wrote that he "vigorously opposed this state of affairs" with in the Board and that also "Protests have been entered by patrons of the institution and some students have gone elsewhere to a school on this ground." Writing of this incident, another distinguished minister of our church said, "The idea of the Church of Jesus Christ compelling its best students to take special training on the field of Mars is an anomaly at which the devil himself must grin in complete satisfaction."

There are several reasons given for the continuance of
R. O. T. C. in our colleges. They generally are expressed in these terms: The financial aid to students; the physical exercise afforded the students; teaches students to hate war; training Christian officers for the next war.

There are some reasons for its discontinuance. It is a contradiction of the profession of the Church. It is at absolute variance with the Spirit of Christ. It creates a ridiculous situation in that "faculty members" are admitted to the most intimate contact with the students if they teach the military profession in a manner satisfactory to the War Department whereas, the mathematics professor must subscribe to the Confession of Faith. The Church has no business, even for a large number of pieces of silver, in joining hands with the War Department in its war program while professing the ministry of the Prince of Peace.

Just how long the membership and the ministry of our Church winks an all too tolerant eye in the presence of this situation this may indicate to some extent the justice of the charge quoted in the first paragraph of this article.

In the meantime, the minister of our Church with conscientious scruples against having his son trained in the most efficient methods of wholesale slaughter under the banner of Christ, must send him elsewhere.

Laurel Hill, N. C.

A PLEA FOR UNION WITH THE U. P.'s

(Continued from page 4)

Certain things, which we cannot take time to discuss here, have been done in the United Presbyterian Church that has prepared it for union. It is not with it, as with the Southern Church, a question of union now or a postponement until better acquainted and prepared. It is a question of congenial union with a church holding similar views on the great doctrines of christianity and Presbyterian attainment, or be led into a church that is now in a turmoil, where their very foundations are being shaken.

We presume the vote in the presbyteries would or could be taken with the understanding that the details of administrative matters would be worked out satisfactorily before the final steps in union are taken. A favorable vote would open the way for the U. P. Assembly of 1930 to hand the question down to the presbyteries.

Present indications are that by next year the real conditions in the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., will be better understood, and that the United Presbyterian Church will be ready to act. An unfavorable vote by the Southern Church will aid the Northern Church to realize its hope for union. And will be a disappointment to a major part of our people.

Billings, Okla.

Calvin L. Young.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

(Continued from page 8)

to render who-hearted service, ready to bear suffering.
He must be an athlete, ready to subject himself to sacrifice and discipline according to the rules of the Christian life. He must be a husbandman, continuing patiently in monotonous toil for the same of the future harvest.
Think on what these words of Paul mean for your life.
"The Lord will help you to understand perfectly."

STORY

A NEW LINE OF THOUGHT

(Copyrighted by D. J. Walsh)

The Spencer high school had been out now for more than a month. The summer vacation was passing and Margaret and Angeline Carter, who taught in the school, were longing for something, anything, to happen so long as it brought a change. The first week or two after school closed the two young women had been busy in doing a belated house cleaning in their small, white house. When the cleaning was finally done to their entire satisfaction they turned their attention to their clothes, and when their wardrobe was in apple-pie order they made calls and caught up with their reading. And now when they had done everything they had planned there seemed nothing further for them to do but sit with folded hands and wait for vacation to end and the school year to begin. Though, dear knows, the Carter girls were tired to death of teaching. In fact, they were tired of home and a wee bit tired of each other, and for the past week they had discussed the idea of selling or renting their house and boarding for the coming year.

"I think," said Margaret seriously one day when a morning of idleness had irritated her frayed nerves more than usual, "that I shall go to see Cora Blaine and see if she will let me board with her this winter."

"Well, of course you can do as you like," answered Angeline, "but for my part I wouldn't think of boarding with Cora Blaine, not with that snip of a daughter of hers in the house."

The discussion was waxing hot when the postman brought a special delivery. Angeline tore open the letter and read it.

"It's from Cousin Fanny Pringle," she announced as soon as the man had gone. "She is coming to make us a visit. She is planning a continental tour and she is seeking a congenial companion for herself and a comfortable, safe place where she can leave Darling while she is gone—Darling—who do you suppose Darling can be. Margaret? I never heard her mention her before, did you?"

"Never," said Margaret. "But read on, Angeline, maybe she will explain."

"I shall room at the hotel while I am in Spencer," Mrs. Pringle wrote. "But I shall expect to take my meals with you girls, as the hotel fare doesn't agree with Darling. I will arrive some time before noon on Tuesday and I wish you to have an extra fine sirloin steak, well done and cooked without either salt or pepper. I trust you will select the steak very carefully, for Darling is most finicky about her food. She is having a twist with her stomach and that is one reason why I am getting her out of the city for a few days, hoping the change will do her good. In her present condition of health I am uneasy about leaving her for my trip abroad and I shall not go unless I can find an understanding person to leave her with." There was not a great lot more to the letter and nothing that explained the mysterious Darling.

Tuesday! Why, there would be only tomorrow in which to put the house in order and do the extra baking for their guests! The Carter girls were all excitement and with so much to think about and so many things to attend to they forgot for a time their differences and were as busy as bees.

Tuesday morning dawned clear and bright. Margaret and Angeline were up at five o'clock putting the last touches to their immaculate house and planning the final details of the dinner. Everything must be perfect, for Cousin Fanny was very wealthy and fussy, and then of course there was the mysterious Darling. No one could guess what she would be like. Probably some one out of the ordinary, for Cousin Fanny was always getting infatuated with unusual people. And then of course there was the trip abroad, and it all depended upon which of the Carter girls Cousin Fanny took a notion to. A trip abroad with all expenses paid was a prize worth working and fighting for if necessary. And Margaret and Angeline each secretly meant to do her best to win her way into the good graces of Cousin Fanny.

As the hands of the clock in the hall moved to the noon hour, excitement. The table was set for five best linen and silver, the cooking and the extra was pounded to a shred be put over the coals at notice.

The coffee had just begun late when Margaret, who the dozenth time to the house, announced in a low

"They've come!" She the door.

Angeline, who was in slipped the steak over the off her kitchen apron, s hair with her hands an the front hall just as Mar the door in answer to a peal of the doorbell. On th Cousin Fanny. She was lady, elaborately dressed, stood the chauffer, and in held a small, silky black had such a funny, wrinkling face that Angeline ha

Ledge vs. Boulder Granite

The purpose of a monument is to perpetuate the memory of the dead. An all-important factor, therefore, is its permanence.

Beautiful Winnsboro Granite is a true granite unaffected by the processes that disintegrate rock because of its protection from the elements, due to being deep in the earth in vast ledge formation. It has retained all of the strength and durability accomplished by the union of its beautiful crystals while molten millions of years ago.

Winnsboro Granite

"The Silk of the Trade"

therefore, will last many, many years longer than monuments cut from other granite. Its flawless beauty, stalwart strength, and great durability make it the ideal memorial granite. It possesses wonderful contrasts in shades and shadows. Thus, inscriptions cut on Winnsboro Granite Memorials can be read with greatest ease.

A DOZEN different things may cause a headache, but there's just one thing you need ever do to get relief. Bayer Aspirin is an absolute antidote for such pain. Keep it at the office. Have it handy in the home. Those subject to frequent or sudden headaches should carry Bayer Aspirin in the pocket. Until you have used it for headaches, colds, neuralgia, etc., you've no idea how Bayer Aspirin can help. It means quick, complete relief to millions of men and women who use it every year. And it does not depress the heart.

Beware of Boulder Granite.

A boulder is a piece of granite which has come detached from earth stones, ages ago. It has been left on the surface exposed to the elements. The smooth round edges of boulders show that the stone has been to disintegrate. Such stone is inferior, having partially lost its vitality, becoming more brittle and tending to crumble though having a fair appearance. It naturally sells at a lower price, but if you get a monument of boulder stone, you have a stone which has already started to rot. It is well to remember, "The sweetness of low prices never equals the bitterness of poor quality."

Typical Granite Boulder.

Be sure that "Winnsboro Granite" is specified in your contract for monuments. Like other high quality materials there are many inferior substitutes, which resemble this granite on casual examination, but do not possess its lasting quality and permanent beauty.

Have your monument dealer furnish you with a personal guarantee from the quarries that the monument you purchase is cut from genuine Winnsboro Granite.

The certificate of the quarries is signed by B. H. Heyward, Treasurer and General Manager, whose signature insures genuine Winnsboro Granite. A facsimile of this signature is reproduced below.

Write for Free Descriptive Literature

Winnsboro Granite Corporation, Rion, S. C.

B. H. Heyward Treas. & Gen. Mgr.

Arch Furniture
 OF THE HIGHEST QUALITY
 AT REASONABLE PRICES
 Write for Catalogue
ODE & WEIS MFG. CO.
 JACKSON, TENNESSEE

tol-Nelson School
 defective children. Open year—limited to 25 pupils.
 No boys over 12 years of
 training. Ideal home life.
 playgrounds—5 assistants.
 $900 to $1,800 per year. For g—Address
A BRISTOL-NELSON
 reesboro, Tenn.

WORTH $60.00 IN THE SPRING deliver postpaid 15 pounds seed and NitrA-Germ inocuone acre with oats or rye.
 October. Grazy during winter ons of hay to the acre by r land with Vetch. Nitr-- the crop for you.
 rd shrld shr d hlsdrdbttt
A-Germ Company
 vannah, Ga.

CLASSES
 will start at
ONNATSER BUSINESS UNIVERSITY
COLUMBIA, S. C.,
 September and each Mon-thereafter. Send application
 ions may be made for you.

UNION CUPS
 d 36
 p. Best on and Bread
 ces. Send for Write for free Catalog.
UNION CO., Box 310, Lima, Ohio

MPF'S VOCABULARIES
 Writers and Speakers
 arity, Precision, and ul to business as well
 al men and women.
MPF'S VOCABU-
 48 pages—classifies,
 d refers synonyms,
 ad relatives.
 o 150 different terms
 he few provided by
 and others.
 ces of Binding—Cloth,
 $10, and Deluxe, $15
 Days Free Trial.

MPF'S COMPANY
 ng Atlanta, Ga.

N·T·I·N·G
 ry description
 t book or the small-sing card, we are iped to serve you cording to ur needs.

YERIAN STANDARD
 lling Company
 Charlotte, N. C.
 NTING & REASONABLE PRICE

desire to shriek as the diminutive little creature peered at her from under a huge red satin bow.

"Well, here we are," announced Mrs. Pringle. "Parker," she commanded the chauffer, "set Darling down, and then you may go." Then, turning to the waiting girls, she said: "I hope dinner is ready. Darling is used to having her meals on time and she doesn't like to be kept waiting. Let's eat as soon as I can get my things off. We can talk later while Darling is having her nap. She likes to go to sleep just as soon as she is through eating."

While Margaret was helping Mrs. Pringle remove her wraps Angeline hurried back to the kitchen and a few moments later they were all seated at the table. Darling had a chair close beside his mistress, because, as Mrs. Pringle explained, her food had to be cut up just so. The girls winced when they saw the little dog eating off the delicate china that had been put on the table for the expected guest. It was a long tedious process coaxing Darling to eat, but after a while she was stuffed to her mistress's satisfaction and was carefully lifted down from the chair and laid to rest on a fat silk pillow on the davenport, where it was cool and quiet. When the little dog's snores satisfied Cousin Fannie that her pet was sleeping she herself settled cozily back in her chair and announced that she herself felt like taking forty winks after her dinner and journey. This left the Carters free to retire to the kitchen and do up the dinner work.

It was a good thing that Mrs. Pringle and Darling were tired and their naps were prolonged, for never before had it taken the Carter girls so long to do a mess of dishes. They did not talk much, for fear of disturbing the sleepers, but words under the circumstances were unnecessary. They would look at each other and go off into perfect spasms of laughter. They laughed until they cried.

"Can we hold out for a whole week. Angeline?" Margaret asked in a whisper.

"I don't know," Angeline answered. "But whether we do or not, I can see where the experience is going to do us a world of good, can't you?"

"Which do you prefer, Angeline—a trip abroad with Cousin Fannie as a companion or staying at home to keep Darling comfortable?" Margaret asked.

"Neither," Angeline answered, with finality in her voice. "I only want you, my home and my job when vacation ends. What about you, sister?"

"You have expressed my sentiments exactly. What fools we were getting to be to want to break up our dear home. And, Angeline, do you remember those lines. 'The more I see of men the better I like logs?'"

Angeline nodded and they began to laugh again, and anyone who heard them would realize that nothing—nothing could ever spoil their companionship again.

A HELPING HAND
 Margaret Duvall Lee

"But he is dying."
 These words reached me as I was sitting in the sun parlor at the end of a long hospital corridor. The tone of the small voice, more than the words aroused my interest; so I immediately made an effort to find out what was happening. I could hear the harsh voice of authority reply:

"You have plenty to do without worrying about a nameless foreigner for whom nothing can be done; he is past human assistance."

The sweet young voice replied, "Oh! that is just it, medical skill is useless, but could we not call some person to minister to his spiritual welfare?"

Again the voice of authority more stern than before—"Resume your duties, there are many depending on your professional knowledge and skill."

I watched the young nurse walk down the corridor to continue her duties for the suffering ones in a mechanical manner. All lightheartedness was erased from the countenance which a moment before would have been an inspiration to the most cynical. My curiosity to know the reason for those heart-rending words, "But he is dying," led me to follow as the nurse passed down the corridor which I knew led to the general ward. All at once she passed, bowing her head as though in deep thought. Could I read her mind? No, but I could notice those young lips move in an earnest entreaty. Then the countenance cleared, and a look of determination crossed her face as she hurriedly continued on her way.

Down the length of the ward, where the first beam of morning light was peeping through the windows, I saw her approach the bed of a young lad. Though the light was dim, I, a casual observer could tell the boy was fighting a losing battle for life on earth. Reaching under the covers, she found his hand, apparently to count the dying lad's pulse: but again I observed that look of light and inspiration cross her face, her lips moving as though in prayer.

I was so entranced as I witnessed this sad scene, that I scarcely realized she had left the patient's bedside. She walked past me to a window where she stood buried in meditation. I passed her to finish my night's vigil in the sun-parlor; she turned to me and said:

"Oh! nurse, I may have neglected my duties for a few moments: but you understand. I could not leave that poor boy to go on his last journey without a prayer or a friend. He was brought in a few hours ago by an officer who found him critically ill in a railroad station. He has been unconscious since his arrival. We do not even know his name. The police are trying to trace identification. However, it will be too late for those near and dear to see him alive."

"May I ask if you were praying for the lad?"

"Yes, my prayer for him was—"

"The Lord is my Shepherd: I shall not want, He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters. He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake. Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for Thou art with me: Thy rod and Thy staff, they comfort me."

"Now I can continue my work without a guilty conscience. I could not have performed my duties if that poor boy had gone as may others go, without a prayer or a friend to guide them 'Home.' Do you wish to see my reward?"

She led me to the bed of the boy who five minutes before had been drawing most agonizing breaths. He now lay quietly breathing. As we stood there he looked up into the nurse's face, his sinking lips trying to murmur some message that we were never to hear.

She leaned over him and whispered these words—

"Remember what our Christ said, 'Lo,

THE JOY OF YOUTH

When a young man or woman is able to compete in the business world and receive a good salary from their services, joy knows no bounds, we can soon have you in position to command such a salary. Just drop us a line today.

DRAUGHON'S BUSINESS COLLEGE,
 Knoxville, Tenn.

25 Xmas Cards
 with FULL NAME EMBOSSED
 Envelopes Included. These Cards are distinctive in color and design and are worth $3.00. Order today.
 MONEY CHEERFULLY REFUNDED
 Shipped immediately upon receipt of Cash, Check or Money Order.
FORDHAM PRESS, Inc.
 Dept. 2 2496 Webster Ave., New York
100,000 SATISFIED CUSTOMERS!

THE PERRY PICTURES
 ONE CENT SIZE
 3x3 1/2. For 50 or more.
 TWO CENT SIZE
 5 1/2 x 8. For 25 or more.
 Send 50 cents for 25 on The Life of Christ or 25 Art Subjects or 25 for Children, 5 1/2 x 8. Or 50 for Children, 3 x 3 1/2.

LET your children make companions of world's most beautiful pictures. Culture, happiness and beauty will be added to their lives.

Use them in the Sunday School
 Send 15 cents for Catalogue of 1600 Illustrations
The Perry Pictures Box 313, Malden, Mass

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
 Removes Dandruff—Stops Hair Falling
 Restores Color and Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair
 60c. and $1.00 at Druggists.
 Hiscox Chem. Wks. Patchogue, N. Y.

HOT WEATHER
 retards digestion and reduces vitality. Keep yourself in perfect condition with Extract YERKE'S GOD LIVER OIL
 At All Leading Druggists

MARY BALDWIN COLLEGE
 For women. Courses lead to B. A. and B. S. degrees. Music, art, spoken English, physical education. Gymnasium and field athletics. Modern equipment. In beautiful Shenandoah Valley. Founded 1842. Catalog. Staunton, Virginia.

5,000 CHRISTIAN WORKERS WANTED to sell Bibles, Testaments, good books and handsome velvet Scripture mottoes. Good commission. Send for free catalogue and price list.
GEORGE W. NOBLE, Publisher
 Dept. 3-F, Monn Bldg. :: CHICAGO, ILL.

WHEN WRITING OUR ADVERTISERS PLEASE MENTION THIS PUBLICATION

McCALLIE School for Boys
 Historically located on Missionary Ridge. In view of renowned Lookout Mountain.
 An outstanding school in South. Thorough preparation for College and Technical Schools.
 Small classes. Individual instruction. Strong Faculty. Military Drill. Honor System. Christian Training.
 Complete modern equipment. Concrete Swimming Pool. Gymnasium. 40 Acre Campus. Lake. Rate $800.
 Summer Session, July and August, with Camp features.
 Write for illustrated catalog. The Headmaster, Box P Chattanooga, Tennessee

I am with you always even unto the end of the world."

The boy had passed to the other side: we could not tell whether or not he heard her last comforting words but I know that I turned to this young nurse and quoted—

"Well done, thou good and faithful servant."—United Presbyterian.

CHILDREN

(Continued from page 9)

got certificates for being on time and present every day.

Your friend,
Edna Earl Hearn.
Teachey, N. C.

IN HOSPITAL THIS SUMMER

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl five years old. I go to Sunday School every Sunday. This time last year I was going to the Highland Presbyterian Sunday School at Fayetteville. I have one brother and four sisters. My sister next the baby had ostemycolitis this summer and had to stay a week at the Baby Hospital at Wrightsville Sound, her name is Neta Marie and the baby's name is Hilda. I help Mama when the rest are at school. I learned the 100th and 23rd Psalm at the D. V. B. School.

Your friend,
Elouise Hearn.
Teachey, N. C.

PUZZLE ANSWERS

A Famous Birthday

CO-w, LU-llaby, M-abel, BUS-tard, DA-vid, Y-ukon.

COLUMBUS DAY

Five-Letter Words

- TULIP
- THREE
- TROUT
- TIGER
- GRANT
- CHEST
- CHART
- CHEAT

Quickest Relief from Headaches

Capudine is the logical medicine to relieve pain and high nerve strain because it soothes the nerves and is not narcotic.

Being liquid Capudine relieves quicker and is easier on the stomach than other forms. Neuralgia and women's pains also relieved promptly. 30c and 60c bottles at all drug stores. (Adv.)

DEAGAN TOWER CHIMES
A hymnal program in the morning, old favorites at sundown, curfew at night—the sweet, lingering, eagerly-awaited voice from the belfry that brings new prestige and influence to the Church.
Automatically Played by Hand-Recorded Reproducing Rolls
Press a button and the Chimes begin to play. Or, set the dial of a clock today and tomorrow at the desired hour a program of Chimes music fills the air! The Voice of the Church—the Memorial Sublime.
Price, $4.75 and up. Full details on request.
J. C. DEAGAN, Inc., 202 Deagan Building, Chicago

WHEN WRITING OUR ADVERTISERS PLEASE MENTION THIS PUBLICATION

A DAY'S VACATION

Mrs. J. G. Nelson

"Oh, Mother," cried John as he rushed into the kitchen where his mother was just beginning to attack the pile of breakfast dishes, "Daddy and I are going to the river to fish. Put us up a lunch quick, please."

"I haven't anything cooked for a lunch. Why didn't you tell me last night that you were going, so I could have prepared something?" answered his mother.

"Give us some bacon and eggs to cook and some bread. I wish you would go with us, Mother. Sister is crying so hard to go, but Daddy told her that she couldn't unless you went, and that you were too busy to go," said John.

"Well, I am busy. I haven't done any of my morning's work and this is ironing day, and I want to bake a cake, for tomorrow Aunt Sarah is coming for lunch."

"Sister and I will make the beds and Daddy will sweep, while you hurry and dress. Let the ironing go; I like to wear my shirts and overalls not ironed. Aunt Sarah has cake at home every day. We have so much fun in the woods. Come on and go with us," argued John.

Mrs. Robinson looked at him thoughtfully. "I believe I will," she said. With a half-reluctant glance at the pile of unwashed dishes, she began to pack some bacon, eggs, a jar of butter, another of jam and the bread in a box. Then she went to her room to change to her outing clothes. The beds had been made and the floor swept, but in a very hasty manner.

"I can't leave my house this way," she thought. "Aunt Sarah might come today."

She started to the door to give John the lunch and to tell him that she would not go. But a glance at Sarah's radiantly happy face as she danced up and down the hall, made the mother change her mind again. Soon she and the happy little girl joined the others at the car, where John was packing in the fishing tackle and bait.

A short drive brought them to the river. The hooks were made ready and in a very little while they were all trying their luck in the water. As the restful stillness of the woods stole over Mrs. Robinson, she forgot her household cares and entered into the spirit of play with her family.

Such an exciting moment when Sister caught her first fish! Then mother caught the largest one of them all. How good were the bacon and eggs cooked on a camp fire, with jam sandwiches for dessert and how many interesting things they saw in a walk down the river! Time to go home came entirely too soon.

"It has been the happiest day I ever had," confided Sister to John as they were washing the breakfast dishes while their mother cooked the fish for supper, "and Mother says that we are going with you every time you and Daddy go this summer."

A POOR UNFORTUNATE

"His hoss went dead an' his mule went lame;
He lost six cows in a poker game;
A hurricane came on a summer's day,
An' carried the house whar he lived away;

Then a airthquake come when thet wuz gone,
An' swallered the lan' that the house stood on!
An' the tax collector, he come roun'
An' charged him up fer the hole in the groun'!
An' the city marshal, he come in view
An' said he wanted his street tax, too!

Did he moan an' sigh? Did he set an' cry
An' cuss the hurricane sweepin' by?
Did he grieve that his ol' friends failed to call
When the airthquake came an' swallered all?

Never a word o' blame he said,
With all them troubles on top his head!
Not him—He clung to the top o' the hill

Whar' standin' room wuz left him still,
An' barin' his head, here's what he said:
"I reckon it's to get up an' git;
But, Lord, I hain't had the measles yit!"
—Frank L. Stanton.

A man sued for his overcoat and lost his suit.—Colby White Mule.

A Presbyterian Church of hundred members in a city wishes to secure the good tenor singer in a officers of the church themselves to secure a singer so that his salary be supplemented by his b Address music Com Presbyterian Standard, C

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE
DECATUR, GA.

Strict entrance requirements, but few failures after admission. expensive, but cheap in comparison with advantages offered. No lo pected, but also none without capacity to enjoy almost unlimited go For details as to admission, scholarship aid, etc address
PRESIDENT J. R. McCAIN
Box 5

ORIENT FLOUR
Its Whiteness Denotes Its Purity
MOUNTAIN CITY MILL CO., CHATTANOOGA

BELK'S

Attention, Mothers

We have opened a New Children's Shoe Department
"On Our Second Floor"

Featuring the very finest Footwear that money can buy.

Owing to the increased demand for children's shoes we have opened a new department on Second Floor catering to the mothers who want the very best footwear for their children. We have an expert fitter in this department and you are assured of having your children fitted correctly.

Sturdy welts for school or play, in high shoes, straps and Oxfords. Dainty turns in straps or pumps. Ties for the smart little miss. Shown in widths A to E. Sizes 2 (in infants' shoes) to 7 (in misses' shoes). Priced $2.95 to $7.50.

Children's Shoe Dept. : Second Floor

Belk Brothers Co.
Charlotte, N. C.

Football Games

CAROLINA vs. GEORGIA TECH—FRIDAY OCTOBER
YALE vs. GEORGIA—SATURDAY, OCTOBER 10
via

Seaboard Air Line Railway

SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY
$10.06 Charlotte to Atlanta $10.06

and return with stop off at Athens to see Yale-Georgia Do not miss these two wonderful football games, which

Carolina vs. Georgia Tech at Atlanta 2:00 P. M.

Yale vs. Georgia at Athens 2:00 P. M.

Seaboard dining cars will be parked at Athens serving the public. The Seaboard is the only road having Atlanta and Athens on its main line. Proportionately low rates from all stations. Seaboard in North Carolina. Inquire of ticket agent,

JOHN T. WEST, D. P. A.
Telephone 2700 Raleigh, N. C.

E MONEY!
For You
& SUNDAY SCHOOL

You can make generous profit with a few hours' pleasant work. Mistex Dish Cloths—a cloth that finds instant favor everywhere. Send ten cents for full particulars.

WILKINSON PRESS
1015 E. St., Baltimore, Md.

S P A R K L E S

Oy, Oy, Oy

An oyster met on oyster
And they were oysters two.
Two oysters met two oysters
And they were oysters too.
Four oysters met a pint of milk
And they were oyster stew.
—Pitt Panther.

How Could He Know?

It is related that Billy Sunday, well known evangelist, stopped a newsboy in Philadelphia one day and inquired the way to the postoffice.

"Up one block and turn to the right," said the boy.

"You seem a bright little fellow," said Sunday. "Do you know who I am?"

"Nope!"

"I'm Billy Sunday, and if you come to my meeting tonight I'll show you the way to heaven."

"Aw, go on," answered the youngster, "you didn't even know the way to the post office."

Sidewalk Expert (surveying newly laid strip of sidewalk in which are many childish footprints): "Children are all right in the abstract but I don't like them in the concrete." — Notre Dame Juggler.

Just about the most useful day we can think of is Wednesday. Very often, and especially in summer, if it were not for Wednesday there would be nothing to keep the week-ends apart. —Life.

Mark Twain is commended to a certain kind of critic. He said: "It isn't the things in the bible I don't understand that worry me; it's the things I do understand!"

A minister who had given up his former position as a magistrate in order to enter the church, was conducting his first marriage service.

"Wilt thou have this man to be thy wedded husband?" he asked the bride.

The bride answered promptly: "I will."

"And you," he continued, addressing the bridegroom, "what have you to say in your defense?"

At Blah University, where they hope to have a championship football team this fall, this arrangement has been made for the spring exams: The examination will be given to the football coach first. If he passes it, it will be given to the players. If he does not pass it, another one will be given him—and so on, until he gets an exam he can pass. The coach stopped going to school when he was ten years old.

Unpopular Summer Fiction

"The Smell of Loneliness," by Hal I. Tosis.

"The Naked Truth About the Sun-Tan Back," Noe Skeeter.

"Down the Cellar in 18 Steps," by O. U. Stumble.

"The Sheik's Demand," by Mustapha Kiss.

"The Descent of Man," by Ima Nape.

"The Midnight Horror," by Hoos Thair.

"Essays," by U. R. Borsum.

"The Fly," by Knight.

"Missed," by A. Mile.

"Let Bygones Be," by Gones.

"Ben Franklin's Auto," by Ography.

"Yes," by George.—The Pathfinder.

Chicora College for Women
The Presbyterian College of South Carolina

Standard College Courses Large, Strong Faculty
Beautiful Grounds Ideal Surroundings
Healthful Climate Moderate Rates

For Catalog and Information, Address

S. C. Byrd, D.D., LL.D., President, Columbia, S. C.

FORTY-SIX YEARS CONTINUOUS SERVICE WITHOUT A LOSS ON ANY LOAN

We offer you a safe, tax-free investment for your regular weekly or monthly savings and your lump sums. Write for particulars.

ASSETS OVER $8,800,000.00

The Mutual Building and Loan Association

Established 1881

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

If In Doubt, Take B. & L. Shares

You will earn the highest interest rate on your savings consistent with perfect safety, and pay no tax on savings. Shares cost twenty-five cents per week, and usually mature in 333 weeks. Net you 6 1-2 per cent at maturity.

Series Open in January, April, July and October

Mechanics Perpetual Building & Loan Association

Established 1883

18 E. Fourth St.

Charlotte, N. C.

A Beautiful Table, $75

A copy of a beautiful Duncan Phyfe table. The wood throughout is solid mahogany. Apron and top of crotch mahogany. Shown in a smaller size at $49.50. No item of furnishings can add more to the attractiveness of the living-room than well chosen tables.

W.T. McCOY & Co.
Home Furnishers

423-425 SOUTH TRYON STREET
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Nervous Headaches

Nervous headaches cause many of our quickest and easy remedies so effective as Capudine relieves by soothing the nerves. It is not narcotic. Women's neuralgia are promptly relieved. Being liquid Capudine acts easier on the stomach. Bottles at all drug stores.

There is a permanent asset to your life in a constant source of pleasure. You will find greater satisfaction in life, if you set out our hardy Capudine this fall—Catalog free.

WARD-HICKORY CO.
1015 E. ST., HICKORY, N. C.
Representatives Wanted

WANT BACK TO RELIEVE PAIN

WANTS AND MILL ENDS CLOTH DIRECT FROM LOOM TO YOU

Yellow Tubings, Sheetings, Crinkled Fabrics, Pajama Checks, Chambrays, Tinted Madras, Art Silk Striped Madras for men's shirts. Write for free samples and prices.

STORE, Dept. A., Greenville S. C.
Center of the South"

etcher's ASTORIA
FOR QUICK, HARMLESS COMFORT
Children Cry for It
FOR CONSTIPATION, DIARRHEA, FEVERISHNESS

WE INVITE OUR ADVERTISEKS TO MENTION THIS PUBLICATION

"National Bank Safety For Savings"

For the Future

Are you making ready to share in the opportunities which increasing prosperity will bring?

A Reserve Fund Banked Here Will Help

Charlotte National Bank

Resources Over $5,000,000.00

How the Ministers' Annuity Fund Will Benefit the Church

1. It Will Make It Possible for the Church to Meet a Sacred Obligation.

The minister, when he is ordained by the Presbytery, is called away from gainful occupation. The Church promises him a living that will keep him "free from worldly cares and avocations." In many instances the Church has failed to provide these men a living—nothing like adequate provision has been made for their old age and disability. No other plan has been devised whereby the Church may so fully meet this solemn and binding pledge except through a contributory pension plan such as the Ministers' Annuity Fund.

2. It Will Encourage and Strengthen the Minister and Insure Better Service on His Part.

Anxiety concerning old age and the provision after his death for those dependent on him lies at the root of restlessness in the ministry today. The certainty of a fixed annuity on retirement and for widow and orphan in case of death will stimulate morale and largely increase the effectiveness of every minister and missionary.

3. It Will Remove the Unjust Discrimination Against Mature Men.

Scores of churches have declared they would employ no man over forty-five years of age. Recently some have refused to have any one over thirty-five visit their churches. Part of this comes from the fear that the local church may have to care for the minister on retirement. The Ministers' Annuity Fund shows a way out of this difficulty. Thus many men of broad training, ripe experience and tried ability will be made available for large use during their years of maturity.

4. It Will Deepen Respect for the Church on the Part of All Right-Thinking Men and Women.

It is not right for the Church to regard so lightly the very serious financial burdens being borne by our ministers and their families. Abundant provision was made for the Levite in the days of old. The Ninth Chapter of First Corinthians explicitly brings this obligation over into the Christian Church. "Ever since the dawn of the Christian era," challenges the business world, "you have taught us that our responsibility to our fellowmen is endless. You have seen us accept this responsibility and through a system of pensions offered protection for our employes when no longer active. But what have you done for your own helpless servants who have grown old?"

5. It Affords An Approved Christian Business Method for the Church.

Under the plan of Ministerial Relief, provision is not made for the days of inactivity of the minister until he must have assistance. The Church must then pay in cash 100 per cent of whatever relief is given. Under the Ministers' Annuity Fund both the minister and the church month by month, in small sums, are setting aside funds to meet the days of coming need. When the day of retirement comes these deposits will have been increased by about fifty-four per cent through the marvelous workings of compound interest.

There is a restlessness today in the ministry of all Churches that is very serious. Many of these servants of the Church are so harrassed and disturbed on account of financial matters that they cannot give their undivided attention to the spiritual ministries to which they are called. The Ministers' Annuity Fund will center the thought of the Church on this problem, which grows more critical every year, and altogether will bring new encouragement and strength to the hearts and homes of its servants.

Watch this page for answers to other questions

Ask any question and we will gladly answer

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH IN THE UNITED STATES,

Department of Ministerial Relief and Ministers' Annuity Fund,

Henry H. Sweets, Secretary. John Stites, Treasurer.

410 Urban Building, Louisville, Kentucky.

Correct Date of Home Mission Week

There is a discrepancy in the minutes of the General Assembly regarding the dates of the Annual Week of Prayer and Self-Denial for Home Missions. This has been very kindly brought to the attention of the Executive Committee and this notice is published because we do not wish there to be any mistake in the minds of our people about the matter. The correct date is November 17-24 as printed in Recommendation 11, page 68, in the Minutes of the Assembly.

We trust this week will be observed throughout the church for this essential and important branch of the church's work.

CLINTON RALLY AROUSES ENTHUSIASM

(Continued from page 1)

President John McSween, who talked on "Presbyterian College's Need and This Opportunity"; William P. Jacobs, of Clinton, general chairman, who told of the business man's place in the movement; Rev. Dr. R. A. Lapsley, Jr., of Columbia, on the Church's educational need; Rev. C. K. Douglas, of Manning, representing the alumni; R. T. Gillespie, Jr., representing the students; C. M. Bailey, Clinton, as chairman of Zone No. 1; Col. A. L. Gaston, of Chester, as chairman of Zone No. 2, and Rev. John W. Davis, of Kings-tree, as chairman of Zone No. 3.

Additions to the executive committee and officers personnel of the campaign this week included W. J. Bailey, Clinton banker and manufacturer, as treasurer; Rev. Dr. H. W. DuBose, Spartanburg, chairman of the speakers' bureau; Rev. Dr. F. D. Jones, associate chairman of the speakers' bureau. Executive committee members, in addition to these men, the general and associate general chairman, zone chairman and Presbytery chairmen include Dr. E. C. Doyle, Seneca; Dr. S. C. Hodges, Greenwood; Rev. Alexander Sprunt, D.D., Charleston; E. S. Tennant, Spartanburg, and Joseph L. Walker, Columbia.

A majority of the group chairmen and associate group already have been obtained by the Presbytery chairmen, and these group leaders are busy securing the services of chairmen for the churches in their respective groups. The group chairmen and associates will be announced next week.

GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY OBSERVANCE URGED IN EUROPE

(Continued from page 1)

organization of a permanent International Golden Rule Council.

The provisional committee includes the following well known persons: Count A. Apponyi, Hungary; Dr. Eduard Benes, Minister for Foreign Affairs, Czechoslovakia; Dame Rachel E. Crowley, Chief Social Service Section League of Nations, England; Principal Alfred E. Garvie, Scotland; Duchess of Hamilton, England; Minister Rudolf Holsti, Finland; Bishop Irinaus, Novi Sod; Major T. F. Johnson, Refugee Settlement Commission League of Nations, Great Britain; Ringold Kalnings, former Finance Minister, Latvia; Dr. Adolf Keller, European Central Bureau for Inter-Church Aid, Switzerland; Senator F. Lafontaine, Belgium; H. J. Procope, Minister for Foreign Affairs, Finland; Dr. Siegmund Schutz, Germany; Premier A. Volde-maras, Lithuania; Dr. Ycas, Minister of Finance, Lithuania.

SOUTHWESTERN'S DORMITORIES ARE FULL

(Continued from page 1)

institution are greatly encouraged by accounts of the recent hearty action of the Synod of Mississippi, agreeing to attempt to raise its share of the sum undertaken by the synods for the payment of the debt and the endowment of the college.

JUNIOR COLLEGE HAS BRILLIANT RECEPTION

(Continued from page 1)

to train young men as husbands for his girls.

A quartette, of college students, Jack McIllwain, John Hudgins, Lambert Sykes, and Luther Clark, sang a negro spiritual which was enthusiastically received by the audience and an encore demanded.

Rev. S. B. McLean of Charlotte, formerly of Maxton brought congratulations from Mecklenburg Presbytery and felicitations from the president of Queens College who was unable to be present. "My heart's desire is realized," said Mr. McLean, who from the beginning has been an ardent worker for the college. He congratulated the charter students upon the privilege of establishing the principles and morals of the college. He also spoke of his satisfaction in reading about President McLeod's dedication of the college to the guidance of the Word of God, and said that with such a pledge he had no fears for its success.

The high mark of the program was reached when Rev. Lacy L. Little, D.D., and missionary to China and moderator of the Synod of North Carolina, said "I bring greetings from the Synod to the youngest member of the fine galaxy of Presbyterian institutions in North Carolina." He expressed also the Synod's pleasure over the successful opening of the college and congratulated the students upon their fine equipment, their president, and the spiritual atmosphere of the community in which the college is located. Doctor Little stated that there is only one other Presbyterian college for men in North Carolina and said he believed the Junior College fulfilled a long felt need.

Some clever "stunts" performed by the college men entertained the guests and President McLeod made a few closing remarks, asking the faculty to come to the stage and introducing each one to the audience.

After a final chorus, the guests were invited to make an inspection of the buildings, ending at the dining hall where refreshments were served.

Board of Trustees Praises Work of the Junior College Club

At the public reception given Friday night by the Presbyterian Junior College, Rev. R. A. White, D.D., of Mooresville, representing the board of trustees, highly complimented the work of the college club. Doctor White spoke particularly of the comfortable and attractive infirmary and the home-like den, also commenting upon the improved condition of the grounds. He said that the trustees realized the amount of work and the sacrifices that had been made in order to make these improvements and that he wanted the club to know how much their efforts were appreciated.

College Trustees Adopt Budget

Friday afternoon the trustees of the Presbyterian Junior College for Men met in annual session and passed upon routine matters. Among the rest, a working budget was adopted in order to put the operations of the college on a strictly business basis. A committee was appointed to make a study of the future needs of the college and to make recommendations to take care of the growth of this institution. In this connection it was brought out that with the addition next year of new classes and perhaps larger classes the problem of additional teachers and equipment will present itself.

The members of the board of expressed themselves as being pleased beyond their fondest expectations with the successful opening of this institution. Resolutions were passed thanking the people of the town and others who contributed to the successful opening. Chairman E. H. Evans of Laurinburg presided at the meeting.—Maxton Scottish Chief.

Near East Relief Continuation

Findings by Co-operating Committees

A careful review of the work we have been doing through Near East Relief causes a joyful pride in the excellent achievements and confirms our determination to see this task through, and at the same time gives grave concern as we face the final effort to bring the whole task to worthy culmination.

While the American people may congratulate themselves on having done so well, there is serious danger lest we fail in carrying the work to its safe conclusion. With our ample means, we must not be recorded as leaving unfinished a task of such human importance.

A year ago, we advised the Trustees to call on the people to subscribe a carefully prepared budget of $6,000,000 for the last 32,131 orphans. This call has gone to individuals, churches, schools, clubs and many other organizations, with admirable support from the religious and secular press.

But we are distressed to learn that the response has been insufficient, making it necessary to give up the rehabilitation work for refugees and to reduce drastically that for the orphans. The process of liquidation has been hastened in every possible way, but it is not finished. At least $2,000,000 more is imperative to meet the minimum requirements of the orphans.

This will require more than doubling the income of the corresponding months of last year. Immediate cash is needed, and we urge gifts accompanied with pledges for the same amount payable over one or two years, so that when campaigning closes by order of the Trustees, the funds will be available to complete the overseas commitments of Near East Relief, which will run two years or more beyond that date. The spirit of America demands that Near East Relief finish the proposed minimum training of the orphans in institutions and their proper placement where they may live the useful lives for which they were rescued and trained.

This outstanding international service has written a new chapter in the history of philanthropy. The whole movement is reconstructive in its nature, not pauperizing the people it benefits, is wisely guided under expert advice in its various phases, is scrupulously administered, is co-operative with other overseas agencies, and has enlisted the aid of native forces in a way to prepare them to carry on after our service is completed.

In addition to humanitarian care, the orphans have received a training that undoubtedly will provide a worthy measure of leadership in their communities and countries. Through the demonstrations made in modern methods of education, in trade training, in religious and character education, in welfare work, in public sanitation and hygiene, in agricultural and industrial production, lasting benefits should result. These demonstrations have induced additional similar work by native agencies and by other countries. By-products such as these, incidental to the care and training of the orphans and eagerly welcomed by the authorities, have multiplied America's contributions to the Near East.

It has been good for us to join in this task. The work has given us an interdenominational and interorganizational co-operation of much benefit to this country; it has developed better understanding of people and purposes both at home and abroad; it has extended the spirit of goodwill; it has developed new sources of benevolence; it has helped us to realize our privilege of stewardship; it has brought the Bible Lands close and made the people of the Bible Lands more real to us.

DEVOTION

TWO WAYS

Elisha Safford

"I might have made that self," said the college pre-impromptu speech to the group. "There was a time," in a semi-humorous vein, such an ambition. I wanted a ball star. I wanted to see in the sporting columns of the I wanted the thrill of being the field of battle on the sh- hurraing comrades. I wan- much, but not quite enough to submit to the grind of to put myself under rigorou- give up my late hours, my le- my own particular fondness and various other things. stern lessons life has taught men, is that in this world desire two mutually exclusi- expect to attain them. It ne- done. It never can be done."

It would seem that this is for a good many young peo- Here is Tom. He is a promi- parents are proud of him. H- mire him. His teachers be- Like all young fellows, Tom with dreams and ambitions. into the future and picturing moves forward along the p- years. He hopes for certain longings and desires. But occur to Tom that if he is c- ambitions that are mutually and destructive one or the o-

For example, neither Tom Harry nor any of their frie- to possess and enjoy self- good health. These two ca- together, and every young p- decide which he is going own. If he insists on gra- desire, satisfying every app- bound to have late hours, foods, to cultivate intemper- may as well make up his- that he will have to deny- coveted boon of good hea- physician or any man or w- rience and they will unhes- roborate this truth.

Nor can Tom reasonably sess both laziness and succ- covers that he wants to be- going drifter and a succes- the wisest thing he can do- quickly between them. "I- ambition to be a rich man," in modest circumstances. "I- and my early aims were- career. But when I found- out my ambition to be ric- danger my health by worki- and never taking a vacatio- decision. I decided that I- my health. Nor for all the- world shall I die twenty ye- time as Harriman did, or- age drinking hot water a- mensely rich man is com- concluded the farmer.

The central lesson of life simply this—we must choo- may not always lie betw- wrong, between righteous- sometimes it may be just- thing of value and somethi-

(Continued on pa-

NEGRO COLLEGES IN TEN YEAR

(Continued from page 1) Negro physician in Am- 3,343 of Negro populatio- one white physician to e- sons, while the proporti- dentists was only one-t- as that of physicians. N- cal seminaries are turni- ly less than ten graduate- cies occurring in 19,000- The report points out- groes themselves are- uous efforts to meet thi- established 16 colleges a- which they own, admi- large degree finance. — Advance.

EDITORIAL

TRUTHS FOR THE NEW AGE

The most striking passages in Ezekiel that touches most closely the conveyance of every consecrated minister is where he presents the minister as a watchman on a tower who must at the peril of his life stand firm in the face of approaching danger.

When the people do not heed, the watchman will perish, but their blood will not be on his hands.

When the watchman fails to cry out and his blood will be required of the watchman.

The editor of a Church Paper is also a watchman. He must warn of danger and if he fails to do so, he is held equally responsible as the minister.

In the past we have seen danger approaching the Church and it has been borne in that we must lift our voice in warning. We urge our ministers to be on their feet, lest they be led away by the subtleties of the enemy.

Look over the Church and see the danger. The Church as set forth in the scriptures is addressed by ministers of various gifts, but it seems to us that the Church is drifting from the old paths and substituting for the old truth those of man's reason.

Many who claim to be watchman, but whose voice is heard, warning the Church and saying, "that unless the ministers and people recognize the changing times in which we live, there is danger in store for the Church."

At Montreal we more than once heard a warning. This danger as far as we can perceive it, lay in the fact that the Church is drifting to the old truths, and is not standing firm to the new truths that are being brought forth under the new conditions in which we live.

The frequency with which we hear of a panic, we fear that a panic has seized especially the younger men, and the danger of their imagining that they are left behind in the march of time.

The danger that they should face is not that they should be left behind, but that they should be swept off their feet, and swept from the earth, as once sheltered our fathers.

One thing is that unless we recognize the discoveries of the scientists, we shall lose the rising generation and thus lose the future of the Church.

Repeatedly charged that the modernized and tired of old truths, that have been belated, and that the modern mind is questioning the old.

When we listen to these watchmen and read the scriptures we are apt to conclude that the old teachers of our Church are a remnant, religious Bourbons, who cling to anything new.

They have been accused of moss-kissed because we cling to the old truths, and the inspiration of the Bible.

How easy it is for a man to become proud of the past, we have more than once seen our heart to see whether such is true, or whether we have reached a state of mental paralysis that we are no longer able to the conviction of truth.

Unconscious of our love for the past, we are the memory of our old teachers follow in their steps, yet we hold to them not because they are old, but because they were founded upon God's Word.

The present generation are too much like the fathers who spent their time, either in clinging to some new thing.

Those whose chief merit is that it is new, and a reaction for us. We fear the new, and the new theology, and pray that the time will come when every truth, founded upon the Bible, may carry conviction with it.

It is true that this is a new age and that there are many new truths abroad, but the basis truths, the inspired Word, the Son of God dying for man, His return to earth, and the final triumph of the Church are old, but woe be to that man who turns from them with the vain hope that the new is better.

MODERNISTIC APPREHENSIONS

We often hear the warning, that we must not take counsel of our fears—and we have found it good advice. There is no warning about taking counsel of the fears of those we oppose—so we propose to urge our friends of the conservative party, to take counsel of the fears of the liberals, and not only to take counsel of their fears, but also encouragement.

No one who studies the signs of the times will deny that there is reason for those who hold to the old truths to fear the results of the present day agitation for he must be a blind man who does not see that never in the history of the Church, at least, not in modern times has the Church been attacked on more sides than at the present time.

The accuracy of the Bible is called in question, in so many ways that we do not know what to accept and what to reject.

He who, according to the Scriptures, was sent to save men by the blood of the Cross, was merely sent as an example to follow, and the awful suffering on the Cross had no saving power, but were merely to show men what sin would do when unrestrained.

The Old Testament, so rich in promises of the future and full of comfort for the sorrows of men, has no more divine power than a page of Caesar's Commentaries or Virgil's Iliad.

These views, so repugnant to those who accept the Word in its entirety, seem to have a peculiar fascination for the young ministers.

They not only seem to love what is new, but love to differ from what their fathers believe, so that in this way, they may show independence of thought. They also imagine that in this way they can gain a reputation for learning, and enroll themselves among the intelligent scholars.

Of course we know that the noise they make is out of all proportion to their numbers, and we always discount this fact, yet that they should be so inclined is a symptom that causes us uneasiness when we look to the future.

We have seen many changes in our day. We have seen the speculations of men taking the place of a "Thus saith the Lord," and we have seen doctrines dear to us so trimmed down that we scarcely know them.

In view of these signs, the old men look to the future of the Church with sad misgivings, and imagine that "the perilous times" have indeed come.

An old soldier, in speaking of his army record, once said "I killed as many of the enemy as they did of me."

In like manner we can cheer the hearts of the timid orthodox that the other side is as frightened as we are, and is by no means satisfied with the outlook.

In one of their journals, that out-Herods Herod in its radicalism, sounds an alarm, and calls upon the critical school to line up more hopefully against the orthodox.

He evidently sees the handwriting on the wall, and believes that the reaction has set in.

In sounding the alarm he calls upon his radical friends to take courage.

He begins by stating what he considers the cause of the revival of orthodoxy.

According to this watchman upon Zion's walls, this revival of orthodoxy has been due to the quiet, yet persistent efforts of Biblical scholars to discredit evolution and higher criticism, and to bring back the antiquated idea that the Scriptures are inerrant.

He also laments the fact that the preaching of these new evangelists, not only has no trace in its of the new ideas and conclusions of Science, but, that the multitudes hang upon their words, and are led by them.

Another sign that causes him uneasiness is that men in high life, men who figure in Congress and heads of the Government, are sympathetic with these old truths, and also that the followers of progressive theology have grown timid and are afraid to use the new nomenclature, and have adopted terms of the old theology.

Evidently frightened by these facts this watchman calls upon the progressives to rally around the progressive flag, or to be prepared to see the antiquated theologians sweep the country.

We quote his words: "If higher critics and modernists have any grounds for their faith, it is time that they wake up from smug complacency to the fact that they face the most powerful forces ever lined up against modern ideas."

Those of our brethren who are ready to leave the Old Ship of Zion, as rats leave a sinking ship, we would advise to remain where they are.

If they have become frightened, it is evident that the enemy is more so.

A WISE INVESTMENT

Every true Christian ought to seek to grow in grace, and the only way to make this growth, is to seek to obey our Lord's commands. There is no truth more clearly laid down than that we are not our own, but belong to Him with all we have, and that we not only do not own ourselves, but that what we imagine we own belongs to Him.

As stewards of the Lord's money we must not only give, but we must give wisely, and see that what we have is wisely invested.

The one talent man imagined that he had done his duty because he was able to return the one talent intact.

His lord, however, reminded him that he owed the natural increase of that talent.

Those of our readers who have means should keep this truth ever before them that what they have should be invested where it will bring the best returns.

We do not know a better investment of the Lord's money than to put it where it will bless the destitute places of our land with gospel preaching.

In the eastern part of this State there is the town of Williamston with a population of 1,800, where the consolidated school number 323 pupils, but these children have no Sunday School privileges. The nearest Church is a Primitive Baptist, with occasional preaching, as a rule by elders who do not believe in an educated ministry, and no effort is made by them to provide religious training for the children of the community.

A recent census shows that there are 39 families or 171 persons not one of whom is a professed Christian.

Our devoted Synodical Superintendent, Dr. E. E. Gillespie, held a meeting there recently and organized a Church of 24 members. Rev. Z. T. Piephoff, just from the Richmond Seminary, is now its pastor, full of the zeal of youth and blessed with common sense. They propose to erect a church building and they have a fine lot. The members aided by Presbytery and Synod have raised over $7,000 in cash and the brick needed for building, but need $6,000 more to build as they ought. They mailed to prominent Presbyterians of the Synod 10,000 letters, asking $1.00 from each, or more if possible. Presbyterians are noted for their liberality, but it must have been an off-day with those addressed, as only 525 replied, and their contributions netted only $650.00.

Gentle reader, were you one of those who failed to reply? If so let us beg you to reconsider, and help this most worthy cause, for by so doing, you will bless a deserving people and invest the Lord's money wisely.

Of all men the Home Missionary needs encouragement most. He faces in his work difficulties that would daunt most men, and there are times when a contribution would only meet a pressing need, but gives him encouragement when is most depressed.

Send all you can spare to Rev. Z. T. Piephoff, Williamston, N. C.

CONTRIBUTED

THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD

Rev. Lacy L. Little, D.D.

(Moderator's sermon before the Synod of North Carolina at Rocky Mount, October 8, 1929.—Ed.)

"Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven."—Matthew 5:16.

The first command given by the Lord of the universe, when He created this mundane sphere, was "Let there be light." Clothed in human flesh, as he lovingly ministered to the children of men, this same infinite Creator said "I am the light of the world." Again, as He sends forth His disciples on their mission of mercy to benighted mankind, He says "Ye are the light of the world." In wonderful words, the apostle Paul describes this divine illumination when he says:

"God, who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ."—II Cor. 4:6.

As a safeguard against the delusion that this heavenly enlightenment was to terminate in themselves, the Master said to His disciples "Let your light shine."

Our Mission One With the Master's

Having burst the bonds of the grave and meeting together with His own chosen ones on the first day of the week, at eventide, the Savior gave utterance to these memorable words "As my Father hath sent me, so send I you," setting forth very clearly the central thought of the Gospel: that the disciples of Jesus, like their Lord, should not live for self, but for others.

"Let Your Light Shine"

Not "under a bushel"—and not for the praise of men. There is such a thing as false modesty. The Master enunciated in plain terms the attitude we should have toward ourselves: "Let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth." This is to warn us that we are to be on our guard against self-gratulation and self-complacency. At the same time our Lord did not command us to conceal from others the good deeds that we do for the glory of God. On the contrary, He bids us to let these "shine," so that others may be stimulated thereby.

"Let Your Light So Shine"

Not that men may see us, but that they may see Him, Doctor Bonar writes of a friend of his, who on the streets of Glasgow saw a large crowd gathered around an immense painting that was being sold at auction. As he approached, he observed the spectators lost in admiration of this wonderful picture and heard the voice of a man, who, concealed from sight behind the painting, was directing the attention of his audience first to one mark of excellence of this work of art and then to another. The crowd was absorbed in contemplation of the many attractions of the picture and utterly unmindful of the one who, behind the canvas, was pleading for their approval of this masterpiece. Doctor Bonar used this incident as an illustration of the way in which the disciple should show forth the many charms and excellencies of his Lord, keeping self out of sight in order that his Master may be seen and loved: "that they may . . . glorify"—not you—but "your Father which is in heaven."

Jesus the Sun, His Disciples the Moon

Jesus said, "I am the light of the world," thus fulfilling the prophecy of Malachi that the "Sun of righteousness" should "arise with healing in his wings." He also said, "Ye are the light of the world." It has been well said that Jesus being the "Sun," His Church may be compared to the moon: as the moon shines upon a world of darkness, not with a light of her own but, with a light reflected from the sun, so the Church of Christ, with her face turned to her Lord, receives His glorious light and transmits it to the world that is darkened with sin and the shadow of death. Furthermore, when the earth comes between the sun and the moon, the light of the sun is cut off and the moon suffers an eclipse. So, when the things of this earth come between our Lord and His Church, the "light of His countenance" ceases to shine upon her and, receiving no light from Him, she is unable to transmit the light of His salvation to a perishing world. What a blessed privilege to be permitted to keep our faces constantly turned toward Him, so that His healing light, shining full upon us, may be reflected into the hearts and lives of those to whom He sends us! What a tragedy is enacted when His people allow earthly pleasure and earthly ambition and earthly honors to intercept the full, free shining of His glorious light and, instead of becoming lightbearers, they cast a shadow upon the world of mankind round about them! Years ago, from a mountain top in China, just before sunrise, we looked down upon a valley filled with fleecy, snow-white clouds. A little later, the sun rose and gilded these clouds with golden splendor. They melted before his beams and all nature was illumined with the brightness and glory of the sun. This was a wonderful illustration of what the "Sun of Righteousness" is waiting to do for a world that is shrouded in ignorance and sin.

Again, it was night and the writer ascended that same mountain top, finding it wrapped in the embrace of a heavy mist when, suddenly, the moon shone forth and with soft, bewitching beams put the mist to flight, shedding her blessed radiance over mountain top and vale. Here, was given us a picture of the mission of the Church to a benighted world, when receiving the light of His glorious truth from her ascended Lord, she lets it shine forth in such power and beauty as to dispel the mists of ignorance and superstition and idolatry that envelop so large a part of the inhabited world of today.

"Ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children of light." . . . "Wherefore He saith, 'Awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light.'" Ephes. 5:8, 14.

"Let Your Light Shine"

1. As Individuals

The individual soul may be compared to a single bulb of electric light. The value of the single bulb is reckoned according to the candle-power it possesses. The worth of the individual soul is estimated by the "Father of Lights" according to its power to shed the light of His truth. This applies alike to pastor and people, man and woman, old and young, home and foreign worker.

One of our veteran missionaries to China said to a young lady who had recently arrived on the field: "My dear, you began to preach the Gospel the very moment your foot touched the shores of China. The message of your life speaks for, or against, Christ, every passing moment." In China or in America, it is equally true that:

"You are writing a gospel, a chapter a day,

By the deeds and the words that you say;

Men read what you write, whether faithless or true,

Say, what is the gospel according to you?"

Searching, indeed, was Ralph Waldo Emerson's criticism of the man whose message was not backed up by his life: "What you are speaks so loud, I can't hear what you say."

Over and over, as the writer has mingled with the ignorant, illiterate throngs of China, the thought of another has come to him: "You are the only bible that most of the people can read." The same great truth was expressed by the Apostle Paul:

"Ye are manifestly declared to be the epistle of Christ, ministered by us, written not with ink, but with the Spirit of the living God."—II Cor. 3:3.

How careful we, as individual light-bearers, should be, so to walk before men that our light may shine with a clear, steady, unobstructed radiance, that will point the way of salvation to many a soul stumbling on in the paths of darkness and death.

2. As Families

The family may be likened to the chandelier, where a group of separate lights combine their radiance for the illumination of a given area. This is a very effective plan for chasing the darkness away. The enlightenment of a nation depends upon the family life of its people. The glory of America was the Christian home of her early history. The greatest peril that confronts our country, today, is the decline of the spirit of godliness in the home circles of our land. Fathers and mothers must win their children back to the family altar and to regular attendance upon the sanctuary until they shall be ready to say with the Psalmist of old:

"Thy word is a limp unto my feet,
And light unto my path."

and

"The opening of thy words giveth light;
It giveth understanding unto the simple,"

and

"With thee is the fountain of life:
In thy light we shall see light."

The light that shines out from the Christian home not only dispels the darkness from the surrounding community but reaches out to the bounds of the state and the nation and to the "dark habitations of cruelty" the world over, provided God-fearing leaders in agriculture, in industry, in commercial life, in the education of the young, in the production of wholesome literature, in positions of public trust, in the healing of the body and in the ministry of the Word. And, when we refer to the light of the Christian home, we think at once of the radiance that encircles the brow and shines forth from the life of the queen of the home, the consecrated mother, who seeks no higher glory for herself than to lead her children in the paths of righteousness and to train them for the service of the King. For:

"Many make the household,
But only one the home"

and it is eternally true that:

"The hand that rocks the cradle moves the world."

Is it not too often true, in our day, that "the hand that rocks the cradle" is the hand of a hireling, who loves her wages more than she loves the precious little life committed to her care, while the mother forfeits her God-given crown by a mad quest for worldly amusement and social distinction?

Apart from the illumination given by God's Holy Word under the influence of His Holy Spirit, the most winsome, the most pervasive, the most far-reaching, the most beneficent light in all the world is the light of heaven upon the brow of a Christian mother, as she bends above the form of her beautiful babe and offers it unreservedly to the service of her Lord. All praise to those mothers who are true to their heritage and who are making this most splendid contribution to the upbuilding of the Kingdom of God at home and abroad. Most earnestly and most persistently should the call go forth from our pulpits to the women of our homeland not to despise their birthright, and sell it for a mess, but, rather, to meet faithfully and joyfully responsibilities and privileges entrusted to them by the Lord, in training Christian boys and girls to be bearers of the true light to the multitudes in the darkness of sin.

3. As the Church of Christ

The true, invisible Church of Christ is one, and may be compared to a mighty light—its beams are shining forth over the perilous whole world, giving warning and guidance in the "utmost part of the earth."

How clearly our risen Lord sounded forth His Church to make Him known to men and children throughout the whole world! How people have responded to this "Great Commission" deep the darkness that envelopes more than the world of mankind, today! How urgent the need of a new consecration of life and substance on the part of God's people to the work of the Kingdom!

Our General Assembly has enjoined our people to make this a year of special evangelism. The Assembly's Committee of Forty-four has echoed this call. The Great Commission of Chicago is sending forth repeated appeals to people in all lands to unite in prayer for revival. The Lord of the Church, "when He beheld the multitudes, was moved with compassion on them, because they fainted and were scattered abroad, as sheep without shepherd. Then saith He unto His disciples: 'The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few. Pray ye therefore, the Lord of the harvest, that He will send forth laborers into His harvest.'

We observe that our Lord did not say "Let us labor," but "Pray ye." The old Latin statement was: "Laborare est orare"—"to labor is to pray." It is to transpose this sentence and make it read "orare est laborare"—"to pray is to labor." If we pray, we shall labor aught.

The great central dynamo of Heaven is being set in motion. The power lines have all been laid. The communication are all complete. The Lord of Light is for His people with united hearts to press forward in prayer, and the Light of the World shall fill the uttermost bounds thereof.

"Thou, whose almighty word,
Chaos and darkness heard,
And took their flight,
Hear us, we humbly pray:
And where the Gospel's day
Sheds not its glorious ray
Let there be light.

"Thou who didst come to bring
On Thy redeeming wing,
Healing and sight,
Health to the sick in mind
Sight to the inly blind,
O now, to all mankind,
Let there be light.

"Spirit of truth and love—
Life giving, holy dove—
Speed forth Thy flight;
Move on the waters' face,
Bearing the lamp of grace,
And in earth's darkest place
Let there be light.

"Blessed and holy Three!
Glorious Trinity!
Wisdom! Love! Might!
Boundless as ocean's tide
Rolling in fullest pride,
Through the world far and wide
Let there be light."

A COUNTRY CHURCH COMMITTEE

A forward step in the Country Church work was taken by the last Assembly. It provided for the formation of a Committee on Country Church Work in each synod, also for a similar agency in the presbyteries and synodicals.

Recommendation was made that the Country Church Department be put on a permanent basis as soon as possible. This can best be done by the setting aside of legacies for an endowment as approved by the General Assembly in 1925. See page 47 in the Proceedings of the General Assembly.

The Form of Bequest is as follows: "I, the undersigned, do hereby bequeath to the Trustees of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States for 'the establishment of a Country Church Department for the support of the Country Church Work' the sum of _____ (insert the estate devised and bequeathed) dollars for the benefit of said Church."

The last Assembly passed the following resolution: "That each Presbytery and Synod appoint a Committee on Country Church Work, or if deemed wise, a Mission Committee of the above bodies, to promote the Country Church Work. The same should apply in the Woman's Work. Reports should be made to the Country Church Department to the General Assembly. Said committees should present the cause of Country Church work and send copies of their reports to the Country Church Department."

esbytery, synod, presbyterial and synodical injunction of the General Assembly it will Country Church Department to begin to function for which it has been preparing for the

Sunday of May was fixed as Country for Village and Country Churches was literature and information about a free wall the Country Church Department, Box 1176,

EAT NEED FOR A PRESBY- AN CHURCH IN MARTIN COUNTY

North Carolina there are large sections ically destitute of Gospel privileges. This pressing fact in the experience of some of aders for some time, but it has not been y members of the church who are inter- hest welfare of others, and especially in mate brethren.

ation of the conditions referred to above, unity in Martin County which has a con- l with an enrollment of 323 pupils. These no Sunday School privileges whatever. nitive Baptist Church not far away which preaching services, conducted, as a rule, by ot believe in an educated ministry and lieve in Sunday Schools. That church has members, and no effort is being made by e religious training for the children of the recent census revealed the fact that there families in that community in which there ed and seventy-one persons, not one of essed Christian, and there are many other dults, as well as many children, who are gnorance of the saving truth of the Gospel. at present holding services in this school- nday night with an attendance of around great need for work here.

of the Home Mission work of our denomi- cted Williamston, N. C., as a well-located n to establish a Presbyterian Church and needy and destitute sections. Dr. E. E.

MINISTERS' ANNUITY FUND AND THE ELDER

Ever since 1717 the Presbyterian Church in America has been trying to solve the great problem of how to deal justly with the ministers and missionaries who, on account of sickness or old age, have been forced to retire both from labor and from income, and with the needy widows and orphans of those who have died.

At this time the General Assembly is making arrangements to put all of this work on an approved, economical, Christian, actuarial basis. It is proposed that, when we begin to use up the energies of our ministers and missionaries, at that time we shall lay by in store for the days of need. The marvelous working of compound interest on such sums will provide more than fifty-two per cent of the entire cost of the same.

In this connection we wish to call attention of all our elders to a report prepared by Judge Drake, of Washington City, and adopted by the elders who were commissioners to the General Assembly of our sister Church in Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1885. Its message is vital and powerful today:

"That the Church is under the most sacred obligations to care for her disabled ministers is obvious from the relation which the Gospel ministry bears to the Church. A living ministry is one of the foremost and most precious of the ascension gifts of our glorified Lord to His Church—to be prized as His gift, to be used as His gift, and to be cared for as His gift. As in other forms Christ lives and manifests His presence in His Church, so does He pre-eminently in the persons of those called by His grace and imbued by His Spirit, who have been separated to His service and have spent the vigor of their lives in making known the savor of His Name.

"But the Church does not regard her obligation to Christ for such a gift as wholly discharged when some equivalent is rendered for its direct and immediate benefit. The honor of Christ's Name is involved in the proper care and maintenance of those whose "strength has been weakened in their way," and of those who, "having served their generation, by the will of God," are laid aside from the further exercise of their ministry by sickness or by the infirmities of age. Nor are their families, often left destitute by their death, to be uncared for.

"This obligation has been fully recognized in the Pres-and every member of our Sabbath schools shall thoroughly understand the nature of the sacred claim of these wards of the Church. The heart of the eldership should be tender on this subject. If the people are instructed they will promptly, heartily and generously respond. Let us solemnly, and in the fear of God, charge ourselves with this responsible duty. . . .

"Brethren of the Eldership! The honor of Christ's Name is involved in the proper discharge of this duty to His ministers. The cause is urgent. The claim is just. The means are ample. A united, energetic, persistent movement on our part, all along the line of the Church, will fill the impoverished treasury of the Board of Relief, and gladden the hearts of hundreds of Christ's servants who, after long and faithful service in the ministry, look to it as their only means of support in their sickness, or helpless old age."

A letter to 410 Urban Building, Louisville, Ky., will bring to any member of the Presbyterian family full information concerning the Minister's Annuity Fund.

410 Urban Building, Louisville, Ky.

REMEMBER MONTREAT, OCTOBER 13

Up to a few months ago Montreat had been operating on a cash basis. But it became necessary to incur a $70,000 debt in order to finish and furnish Assembly Inn for the meeting of our General Assembly in Montreat last May. With all the facts before it, the Assembly unanimously decided it was best to remove this indebtedness at the earliest possible date. To this end it took vigorous action and did all possible to give its encouragement and assistance in the undertaking.

It offered to give out of the accumulated earnings in its Publication Department, $25,000 to be paid in as a like amount should be paid from other sources. It heartily endorsed a campaign for funds throughout the borders of the Assembly. It directed its Work Committee to appoint a suitable day for the cause to be presented in all the churches and an offering to be made to liquidate the debt.

The Assembly could not make a stronger nor more earnest appeal than this. Sunday, October 13, is the day appointed and all the churches are asked by the Assembly, both to present the claims of Montreat and to take an offering for the liquidation of the $70,000 debt. This request for every reason should receive a loyal and hearty response. The appeal is reasonable!

(1) Because of the immense service Montreat has rendered and its unspeakable value to the Church.

(2) Because Montreat is a gift to the Church, one of its greatest assets, and deserves a manifold greater support than it has received.

(3) Because of the wise investment of money in this Institution. Every dollar given gains at least two dollars as a permanent investment for the Church. Gift money is not used for current expense or up-keep, but only for improvements which are made at a cost of about one-half their market value.

(4) It is not reasonable to expect the Montreat management to pay out of its annual income the cost of maintenance and up-keep, plus the cost of permanent improvements, such as Assembly Inn.

(5) It would be almost a calamity, and would check and paralyze the future development of the Institution to have to apply all of its income to interest and debts.

(6) The task is easy. Raising $70,000 is no burden for all the churches of the Assembly, if each church would do its part.

October 13 is the day appointed. Let every pastor and session give their church a chance and the appeals for Assembly Inn will be no more.

THE YOUNG WOMAN WITH THE LAME FOOT

Egbert W. Smith

The love of the Korean Christians for the Word of God is continually reflected in the letters from our missionaries. It is also touching to note the sacrifices that many of the poor women make to take the bible courses offered by our missionaries. Miss Willie Burnice Greene, of Kunsan, Korea, gives the following illustration of this devoted spirit of self-sacrifice:

"I want to tell you about the young woman with the lame foot. She was here last year also, and when she came last year she only brought about 3 or 4 handfuls of rice for she thought that she could eat by herself and would only eat a little at a time and so be able to take the course. She was a great problem, for she cried every day, and pleaded with us to let her stay. We felt sure she could not get help from home, but she persuaded us to let her stay till she could write and hear from her husband. In a few days the full amount of money came, so she studied to the end. But we found out that her husband had borrowed the money at an exceeding high rate of interest. In the end I had to lend her the money to pay off the debt. This year when she came to register, she paid her entrance fee, then for her rice, and then to my surprise returned the money I had lent her. Clapping her hands with joy as she did so, saying, 'I've saved ever since I left last year and its all come out even; for see I have 20 sen (10 cent) left and that will be 5 sen for collection each Sunday.'

"Think of that sacrifice! Was she sorrowful over not even having one sen left to use during the month? No, she was very happy that God had let her save enough to pay it all and even have collection to put in Church each Sunday during the month."

Williamston, N. C., Proposed Church—Rev. Z. T. Piehoff, Pastor

ical Superintendent of Home Missions, in Williamston some time ago and organized 24 members. Rev. Z. T. Piehoff, who as pastor of this church and is delighted unity for service this community and the county affords. His wife, who is a graduate Assembly's Training School in Richmond, on the field and both are eager to render they can to the needy and interesting iction who are hungering and thirsting rist came to teach and preach and live. e have no building and no equipment for illiamston our meetings are being held in ub under disadvantages; therefore, our ntral building, including an auditorium hool Department, at Williamston. A cut building is printed above. The estimated biding is $15,000.00. Toward this amount and brick with which to build has been ount yet needed to build is $6,000.00. Our already given all that they possibly can. this undertaking therefore depends upon friends in other sections. As we cannot his building until we are assured of the eed to build, and as it is our desire and inilding during the early days of Septem- please send us your contribution at your nce? We thank you.

byterian Church by the establishing of the Board of Relief but its provisions as shown by the report of the Board to the Assembly and in the address of Doctor Cattell, are so slight and desultory, that they show a very partial and inadequate sense of the value of Christ's gift. It is time our Church should awake to a full sense of its duty to these worn-out servants of Christ, and charge herself with their proper maintenance.

"During the present Assembly many of us have been deeply moved upon this subject. We have felt a special call to go forward, actively and earnestly, in this matter. The hearts of the pastors are with their 'suffering brethren,' but many of them feel a reluctance to press home this subject upon the hearts and consciences of their people. It seems to them like pleading for themselves or claiming their own right. We do not think there should be this reluctance, but we can understand the feeling that underlies, and we can sympathize with it. And it constitutes an obligation, all the more imperative and sacred, for the elders to give their hearts and hands to the important work of this Board. We ought to esteem it both our duty and our privilege to bring this cause before our people, so that in every congregation systematic and liberal contributions may be made to it. In few things can we better uphold the spirits of our pastors than in giving our time and strength to this blessed work.

"Let us, then, brethren, charge ourselves with the personal duty of seeing that every member of our Church

Men-of-the-Church Presbyterian Church in the United States

E. PURCELL, D.D., Executive Secretary
HENRY GRADY BUILDING
ATLANTA, GEORGIA

N. L. FAIRLY, D.D., Wilmington, N. C.,
Charge of Men-of-the-Church Department

ANCE OF ASSEMBLY'S HOME MISSIONS

of Assembly's Home Missions arises out of human elements involved. Here the whole joins in preaching the gospel of the underprivileged people of our land. Some romance has been caught up into the folio-man interest stories from the Assembly's Mexican and Mountain work.

happened When the Presbyterian Church ro Slave.

Message and What Came of It.
r Beet Farm Fails—A Mexican School rges.
derate Medical Officer and His Dream.

MOD OF APPALACHIA

meeting in the interest of Men's Work was eting of Synod, September 12. Synod formed its endorsement of the Men-of-the-ations were adopted calling for the reor-e committee and directing that an aggres-made to promote the work. An expense f $100.00 was ordered.

ing of men was held at Abingdon, Va., 228, composed of men from the churches resbytery and three churches of Holston round-table discussion was followed by a series of talks by laymen showing the organization and its practical workings. resbytery existing organizations have been ring the year, and at least two new ones of formation.

arked development of the year is in Knox-y. Doctor Purcell addressed the Presby- meeting. Under the efficient leadership L. McClurkan, Presbytery's Chairman, ably r. J. P. McCallie, a genuine interest is throughout the Presbytery.

ty of Synod's Committee is: 1. To secure rees in the Presbyteries. 2. To stimulate effort in each Presbytery directed by the ommittee. 3. To secure a strong delega- 's Conference at Montreat.

ts for inspiration are now being planned h four Presbyteries.

ment and prospects in Appalachia are en-

G. A. Wilson, Jr., Chairman, Synod's Committee.

MESSAGE AND WHAT CAME OF IT

Ralston, a native of Rockingham Coun- al a missionary to the Indian territory, had Ava, Thomas L., and Calvin. A small as willed to these children by their grand- r education. The part of the youngest s $256.56, to be used only after he had omore class in college, or in case of his e time, to go as a memorial to some edu- on.

ev. C. J. Ralston, was sent by the Com- Missions to take charge of Armstrong e-blooded Indian church school in an iso- e Choctaw country. While connected with k, he became intensely interested in the e Indians.

1894, Mr. Ralston came before his Pres- in Tishoktok, to urge the purchase of a r for a Christian school for Indians. He e the regular schools would soon be placed e government control, and was urging the eady for that time.

meeting of the Presbytery, Mr. Ralston e the Indian Council to plead for an agree- ame matter of purchasing land for the e. While he was speaking before the coun- eaded a telegram which read as follows: s owned this morning at eleven o'clock." e for his home immediately to carry the e young son to Denton, Texas, a former home, e needless to say that the father's heart tu from the burial, Mr. Ralston stopped in e was asked by a friend to attend a school e found two factions disagreeing as to the pur- eanement of the local school. He was asked e effort to reconcile the factions, but appar- e not be brought together. At this junct- e proposed that they sell him the property e subject of the dispute, and he would guarantee to establish a school within twenty days. The offer was accepted and the $256.56, which he would have used in helping to educate his baby boy, was paid for the property.

Within ten days the little school was opened and named Calvin Institute, although struggling along against many odds in its early years, of the Indian Presbytery. In 1908 the General Assembly, meeting in Greensboro, North Carolina, passed a resolution enlarging Calvin Institute into the Oklahoma Presbyterian College. Mr. Ralston was a member of its board of trustees and did not miss a regular meeting of that board to the end of his life.

Oklahoma Presbyterian College is now the largest and most important missionary institution in all the South-west. It wields perhaps the greatest Christian influence of any school in the young state of Oklahoma. One who is in a position to know whereof he speaks, says, "If the Indian Mission work of our church had accomplished no more than the establishment of Oklahoma Presby-terian College as an institution for righteousness in this new State, it would have been abundantly worth while." This school has throughout its history been supported almost entirely by appropriations from the Assembly's Home Mission Committee.

It must have been all dark that day when Calvin Ralston received the message that his young son was dead. Surely there was only glorious light for both Calvins when on January 7, 1929, the father went to be with the son and both together could lay such a trophy as Okla-homa Presbyterian College at the feet of their Lord.

(Continued in Next Issue)

WHAT HAPPENED WHEN THE PRES- BYTERIAN CHURCH BOUGHT A NEGRO SLAVE

A few years before the Civil War, Rev. C. A. Stillman, D.D., then pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Gainesville, Ala., came before the Synod of Alabama with a novel proposition. He urged the Synod to buy a negro slave to be trained and sent as a missionary to Africa. His proposal met with favor, and Doctor Stillman was entrusted with the training fo the slave, whom he accompanied as far as New Orleans to give him God-speed on his way.

This story is concerned, not with what the Foreign Missionary did, but with what happened in America as a result of such a proposition.

The first thing that did occur, happened to the mind of Dr. C. A. Stillman. When the war was over, he was thoroughly convinced of the obligation of the church to do something for the spiritual needs of the newly freed slaves. Things were bad enough when they attended the church of their owners; he readily saw that now they would attend none. There was no place to look for a negro ministry for the much needed negro churches. And so in 1876 we find Doctor Stillman overturing the General Assembly to establish a school for the training of colored people. In this proposal he received the earnest support of Dr. Benjamin Morgan Palmer and many other prominent leaders of the church. The result was the founding of Tuscaloosa Institute at Tuscaloosa, Ala-bama, where Doctor Stillman had meantime moved as pastor.

When the Assembly must have a superintendent for the new school, Doctor Stillman was called. For twenty years he managed the Tuscaloosa Institute with consummate tact and patience, and at the same time retained, through all that troublesome period, his popularity as pastor of the aristocratic old church at Tuscaloosa. Upon the death in 1895 of its first superintendent, the name of the school was changed to Stillman Institute in honor of this white man whose life had so richly blessed the colored race. The school has always from that time to the present had the ablest men at its head.

Stillman Institute is the chief contribution of the Southern Presbyterian Church to the uplift of the negro race. The school is located on a plot of one hundred and ten acres of fertile land in the suburbs of Tuscaloosa, well adapted to the variety of farming operations carried on. It has substantial brick buildings for the students and good homes for the faculty. There is a Theological Department, Boy's Department, a girls' Department, agricultural work, training in mechanical arts, and in addition, the new Nurses' Training School, provided for by the Birthday Gift of the Woman's Auxiliary. A very important part of the school has always been its Theological Department. In its work, this department has trained hundreds of colored preachers for the Methodist and Baptist denominations as well as all those for our own church. Stillman has helped educate approximately two thousand negroes, some five hundred of these having graduated from the Theological Department and gone out to preach the gospel to their own people. The school is supported entirely by appropriations made from the funds of the Executive Committee of Home Missions of our Church.

It was Stillman Institute that in 1889 overtured the General Assembly to establish a permanent mission in Africa, stating that one of the graduates was preparing to go, and that a consecrated young white man from Ala-bama was ready to go with him. As a result, the next year Samuel N. Lapsley, the white man, and William H. Sheppard, the negro, went to the Congo to found what has since grown to be one of the great foreign mission projects of the world. Little did the Synod of Alabama realize what a mighty thing it was beginning when it bought a negro slave to make a missionary for the Congo.

WOMANS AUXILIARY

The Department of Woman's Work, Presbyterian Church, U. S.
270-277 Field Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

SYNOCDAL PRESIDENTS OF THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

Alabama—Mrs. J. F. Hooper, 610 Mabry St., Selma, Ala.
Appalachia—Mrs. F. B. Kegley, Wytheville, Va.
Arkansas—Mhrs. Walter Wilson, Arkadelphia, Ark.
Florida—Mrs. W. G. Thompson, Jr., 3215 Obispo St., Palma Ceia Park, Tampa, Fla.
Georgia—Mrs. E. G. Abbott, 1315 Eberhart Ave., Columbus, Ga.
Kentucky—Mrs. H. P. Cooper, Lebanon, Ky.
Louisiana—Mrs. Charles L. Bodin, Box 79, M. R. A., Lake Charles, La.
Mississippi—Mrs. J. S. Hicks, Holly Springs, Miss.
Missouri—Mrs. Walter Craven, 223 Frances St., Excelsior Springs, Mo.
North Carolina—Mrs. G. V. Patterson, Gastonia, N. C.
Oklahoma—Mrs. Wilbur Garvin, 611 Euclid, Lawton, Oklahoma.
South Carolina—Mrs. Parker Connor, Edisto Island, S. C.
Tennessee—Mrs. J. F. Forsythe, Bethel Springs, Tenn.
Texas—Mrs. J. W. Culver, Texas Military Academy, San Antonio, Texas.
Virginia—Mrs. C. R. Vaughan, 319 Mountain Ave., Roanoke, Va.
West Virginia—Mrs. J. McD. Lacy, Elkins, W. Va.

FORTY OR ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND

Rally Day in the Auxiliary is upon us. Have you all that you need in the way of material for that important day? Have you gathered together your faithful workers and with enthusiasm planned a way for better work?

Someone has pictured the Auxiliary as a great ocean liner bound upon a mission, fully equipped for its task, a wonderful ship. But just before the prow there are high rocks, standing ready to wreck the vessel. These rocks stand for the women of our Church, who, though they are members of the Church, will not have anything to do with the work of Christ and stand in the way of the more fruitful work of others. There are 100 thousand of these women in our Southern Presbyterian Church, against 40 thousand interested, active Auxiliary members.

A situation such as this confronting us brings at once a stupendous task and a great challenge. Think of the untapped power which lies in that great army 100,000 strong! Think of the strength and inspiration which is there, a reservoir as yet unused. How many of the 100,000 are in your Church, and how many of them will be reached by your Rally Day?

The answer lies in the local auxiliary. You are making a special effort just now to gather your forces for a year of more fruitful service. You are having a program on the subject "Our Greatest Asset" which is of such interest to us all since it presents the need of our children and Young People. You are using the invitation cards (50c per 100) and the leaflets, "Reach Them—Teach Them," "The Sunday School in Galilee" and the pageant, "The Church and the Child." If you have not these on hand, you may still order them for the program. A good program is of great importance, for it is an effective way of holding your rallied forces for interest and work.

But in the final analysis the forward march of the Auxiliary and of the Church lies in the prayer and constant work of the few. Call upon the uninterested, pray for them, work with them. Let us rally our forces and bring them in for the Master's service.

Perhaps you have had your Rally Day Auxiliary meeting, but it is rally time now and every month until we have them all, until the proportion is no longer 40 to 100 thousand.

A message has come to us from Miss Catharine Garvin, the daughter of our President of Oklahoma Synodical. Her many friends will remember how very ill she was during the Montreat Training School for Auxiliary Leaders. Miss Garvin expresses her deep appreciation for the "kindness shown and the prayers offered" during her illness, and wishes to thank those who made such proof and interest during the Conference. She writes that she is now back at her work and feels that she is gaining strength each day. At the close of her letter, Miss Garvin sends this message to her Montreat friends. "The friendships that I formed and the sweet associations will linger in my memory through life. I pray that the inspiration I received will make me a more fit vessel for my Master's services."

Department of Woman's Work, 270-277 Field Building, St. Louis, Mo.

A MONTREAT LETTER

The Montreat Auxiliary had the great pleasure of entertaining the Appalachia Synodical.

The sessions opened in the Chapel of Anderson Auditorium, September 24, Mrs. T. B. Kegley, of Wytheville Va., called the meeting to order. About forty delegates and visitors were in attendance, being entertained by the local society in the Assembly Inn.

Montreat is beginning to realize the great value of Assembly Inn and what it means to have such a place of comfort and beauty in which to entertain our guests.

Mrs. R. C. Anderson has been selected as the new president of the Synodical and Mrs. Dorsey, also of Montreat is the Secretary.

Tuesday evening the Synodical was entertained at a reception given by the students and faculty of the Montreat Normal School in the Alba Hotel which is the school dormitory in winter.

The school has enrolled 100 girls from all over our Southland. Then five girls together with a faculty of fifteen with Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Woodward to head

(Continued on page 12)

EVIDENCE

That Presbyterian College is Vital to All of Us . . .

EVIDENCE SHOWING that Presbyterian College, of Clinton, South Carolina, is vital to all of us is readily available. The College, its record of achievement reveals, is a vital force in the lives of all our people, in the growth of the Church and is the advancement of Christian Education. P. C. plays an important part in:

1. Our Daily, Moral and Spiritual Life.

EVIDENCE: 1,750 men and women, graduates and former students, trained in a Christian atmosphere by Christian teachers, taking part in community, social, welfare and uplift work.

2. Our Religious Life.

EVIDENCE: 200 ministers of the Gospel who received their inspiration and early training at P. C.; 145 P. C. graduates now in ministerial posts; 24 P. C. graduates now ministerial students in training; 13 P. C. graduates serving as foreign missionaries.

3. Our Commercial, Financial, Social and Political Life.

EVIDENCE: 912 business men and women; 84 physicians, surgeons, and dentists, P. C. graduates now occupying places of Christian leadership and service.

4. Our Cultural and Educational Life.

EVIDENCE: 192 teachers, 19 athletic directors, trained in Christian principles at P. C., stressing the word of God in education, leading our youth in righteous paths, teaching our boys and girls how to live and grow and lead useful lives.

5. Our Presbyterian Church Life.

EVIDENCE: A brilliant history of faithful service to our Church for fifty years. Presbyterian College is so vital to Columbia Seminary that last year, of the 65 students at the Seminary, one-third were P. C. men. The Synod of Georgia, too, has adopted P. C. as the official, standard Presbyterian college for men for that Synod.

WHAT THE $350,000 FUND WILL DO

1. Deliver P. C. from the burden of debt.
2. Eliminate life-sapping interest payments.
3. Deliver the Church from burdensome emergency contributions for operating expense.
4. Assure receipt of three gifts totaling $148,000, offered upon condition that debt be liquidated by January 1, 1931.
5. Bring the endowment (by receipt of the $148,000) almost up to the required half-million mark.
6. Assure retention by P. C. of its "A Grade" standing and membership in Southern Association of Colleges.

✓ ✓ ✓

WITH ITS NOTABLE history of achievement, Presbyterian College could not remain true to its ideals if it did not look ahead to an even greater measure of service in the years to come. To render such service the College must first be placed upon a solid financial foundation.

In the achievement of this foundation the initial step must be the liquidation of the debt of $346,000—the chief barrier to complete operating efficiency. With the debt cleared away the College will be assured of the receipt of three endowment gifts totaling $148,000, offered upon condition that the indebtedness be eliminated by January 1, 1931. These gifts will bring the College endowment (at present $338,000) nearly up to the half-million mark required by the Southern Association of Colleges for "A Grade" Colleges.

Liquidation of the debt and meeting of the endowment requirement are essential if Presbyterian College is to retain its high classification by and membership in the Association. It is for this reason that P. C. is now undertaking its PROGRAM OF DELIVERANCE—a Synod-wide campaign to raise $350,000. Here, then, is an opportunity for all of us to share in a noble undertaking—an undertaking that is truly vital to all of us.

A COLLEGE FREE OF DEBT CAN BETTER SERVE OUR CHURCH.

Program of Deliverance
PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE

CHURCH NEWS

(Continued from page 8)

Wilson's sense of duty that he should accept another call.

3. We assure Dr. and Mrs. Wilson and family that our most hearty and sincere good wishes and prayers attend them as they enter upon their work in their new field of labor.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be given Dr. Wilson and copies be sent to our church papers for publication.

R. C. Anderson, Chairman.

Mrs. Crosby Adams.

I. J. Archer.

Committee on Resolutions.

(Dr. Wilson recently resigned at Montreat to accept the pastorate of the Lincolnton, N. C., Presbyterian Church. He began his work there September 22nd.)

Presbyterian Orphans' Home, Barium Springs —

On a recent Sunday morning, Rev. A. C. Miller, of Shelby, N. C., who has charge of the Evangelistic work for the deaf mutes in this part of the state, brought a number of his people to Barium and took charge of our eleven o'clock service. There were some thirty-five or forty of the visitors. Mr. Miller preached a very interesting sermon on Love which was interpreted to us by one of the visitors. This was a new experience for us all, and very impressive. I am sure it made us all more grateful to God for the special powers of hearing and speaking. They were most welcome and we hope they will visit us again. At the close of the service they took up a special offering among themselves for the Orphanage.

The pulpit at Little Joe's Church was filled on the last Sunday in September by Rev. M. W. Doggett, of Kingsport, Tenn. Mr. Doggett brought us a very interesting and helpful message on Faith. He was accompanied by Mrs. Doggett, and they spent the week-end visiting their daughter Miss Elizabeth Doggett, who is a member of the High School faculty this year. We were delighted to have them as our guest and hope to have the pleasure of having them again during the year.

Kenly—Visitors from over eastern North Carolina attended the dedication services here September 29. Many former members and friends of the church and three of its former pastors were present. Six Presbyterian ministers in all were present and had a part in the services of the day, they were, Rev. T. H. Spence, of Harrisburg; Rev. G. F. Kirkpatrick, of Laurinburg; Rev. G. E. Clark, of Parkton; Rev. W. B. Neill, of Faison; Rev. A. G. Link, of Raleigh; Rev. D. F. Waddell, of Selma, and Rev. C. Logan Landrum, the present pastor of the church. The church, which was organized in 1890 and rebuilt several years ago, was formally dedicated at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The building which was dedicated and which the church has occupied for some years is of brick and has two additions, Sunday School rooms and pastor's study.

Mr. Kirkpatrick preached the sermon at the morning service. He emphasized the fact that christian character is the strength of our nation. He paid beautiful tribute to the early pastors of the church and especially to Rev. Jas. H. Kirby, who for more than twenty-two years was a faithful worker in the church and a highly respected citizen and business man.

The sermon at the dedication service was preached by Rev. T. H. Spence. He spoke of the power of the church in the world, an appropriate history of the church was read by Mr. J. T. Edgerton, an elder in the church. The dedicatory service was led by the pastor, who also offered the prayer of dedication.

The choir, which consisted of voices from the different churches of Kenly, rendered several anthems during the day. Mrs. H. M. Grizzard and Miss Katie M. Hooks were in charge of music. Kenly has an abundance of musical talent.

Kenly Church has always been a missionary church. Five churches have been organized from mission points started by her workers. We have two young men now studying for the ministry, one a junior at Union Theological Seminary, at Richmond, and the other a senior at Davidson.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Harmony Presbytery will meet in stated session at Lanes, October 15, 1929, at 11:30 a. m.

Also called to meet in special session at Synod.

W. H. Workman, S. C.

Blacksburg—Rev. S. J. Hood, who has been pastor of the Blacksburg A. R. P. Church for several years and recently also of Tirzah, A. R. P. Church, near Rock Hill, has accepted a call to Philadelphia Church in Mecklenburg Presbytery. He will be received by that body at its next meeting.

Clinton—Beginning on Wednesday night, August 21, and continuing through Sunday, special evangelistic services were held at the Thornwell Memorial Church, to which the public was invited. There was only one service daily, at 7:30 p. m., and the leader for the services was the Rev. E. D. Viser, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Orlando, Fla., and one of the well known ministers of Florida Synod. Mr. Viser also preached at the closing union services of the summer, which were held in our church, to a packed house.

Ebenezer—The annual evangelistic meeting was conducted by Rev. W. A. Hafner, of Gaffney, assisting the pastor, Rev. John C. Bailey. Services were held from August 26 through September 1. The sacrament of the Lord's supper was administered on the sabbath. There were six additions by profession and one by letter. The sermons were evangelistic in spirit and were greatly enjoyed by the large congregations attending.

Bethel—The York County Sunday School Convention was held at Bethel Church on Tuesday, September 3. Under the leadership of Mr. A. M. McGill the work has made satisfactory progress during the past year, township conventions being held in all townships. During the campaign for members in April, about 350 new members were added to the schools of the county. Mr. W. T. Beamguard and Mr. T. Vance Roach are the only surviving members of the original organization just 27 years ago. Two splendid inspirational addresses were delivered. Mr. Julian S. Miller, editor of the Charlotte Evening News, spoke on "The Philosophy of Man-Making," emphasizing christian character through the Sabbath School. Dr. Luther Little, of the First Baptist Church, of Charlotte, spoke on the subject, "The Educational Task of the Church." About 700 people were in attendance. The attendance banner was awarded to the Hopewell Presbyterian School, Lesslie, S. C., of which Dr. D. S. Rawls is the energetic superintendent. The music was furnished by the Bullock Creek choir, and the orchestra from Hickory Grove, led by Mr. J. B. Dickson. A splendid picnic dinner was served in the grove.

Spartanburg, Second Church—The officers of the church were much gratified when a tabulation of church attendance was made this week to find that during the month of September only 70 of the 425 members of the church had failed to attend a morning service. Many of those who failed to attend the morning service have attended evening services, but no record was kept of that. The attendance at the evening service is always larger, more visitors attending.

Every member is being given a slip to fill out at the morning service, giving name and address, telephone number, whether a member or not, and if one desires to unite with the Second Church to indicate it. This method has brought many into the church. The pastor, the Rev. John D. Henderson, preaches only evangelistic sermons, never just to entertain. His officers follow up and visit the prospects. As a result there has been added to the church since the church year began April 1 one and a half members for every Sunday during the year, and only five months of the year have passed.

The first Sunday in September was the third anniversary of the occupancy of the church. The membership of the church has been more than doubled in that time.

S. F. Parrott.

Bethel Church, Clover—Bethel, which is 164 years old celebrated on August 7 Home-Coming. It was a great occasion for the many former members and descendants of former members who returned to the old church to spend the day in fellowship and worship.

It was regretted that none of the former pastors of the church could be present, four of her ministerial sons were present and made short talks. The service was under the direction of the pastor Rev. A. H. Key. After singing the doxology the opening prayer was made by Rev. H. D. Corbett, pastor of Bowling Green Church, a daughter of Bethel. The address of welcome was given by Dr. T. N. Dulin, an elder in the church, to which Dr. C. E. Adams, of Gastonia, N. C., a former elder responded.

A history of Bethel was read by Mr. H. G. Stanton, a deacon in the church. The following ministerial sons were introduced, and responded with short talks. Rev. W. W. Arrowood, pastor Presbyterian Church, Tazewell, Va.; Rev. E. L. Flanagan, pastor West End Presbyterian Church, Atlanta, Ga.; Rev. W. H. Johnston, pastor Amity Presbyterian Church, Charlotte, N. C.; Rev. J. H. Dulin, pastor Armstrong Memorial Presbyterian Church, Gastonia, N. C.

The sermon was preached by Rev. W. W. Arrowood, a son of the church and also a son of one of Bethel's most beloved pastors, the late Rev. W. B. Arrowood. After the benediction by Rev. J. E. Berryhill, pastor of Union Presbyterian Church, Gaston County, N. C., a bountiful dinner was served by the ladies to the fifteen hundred or more people attending, after which there was the renewing of old friendships, meeting new friends, the enjoying the remainder of the day in christian fellowship. Surely it was a day long to be remembered as an occasion of joy and profit to all who were present.

ALABAMA

Trinity Church, Montgomery—Trinity is proud mother of three "children": Mulberry Church, Montgomery; Millbrook Church, Ala.; and Calebee Church, Shorter, Ala. Churches have been recently organized from among those which have been nurtured by Trinity for many years. During those years, Trinity has had her own night service, in order that her pastor might minister to the chapels. Now that they are churches, and in view of the rapid growth of the Cloverdale residence section of Montgomery, will inaugurate night services October 6. This but one feature of an intensive full-time program for the mother church, a new program planned to meet the challenge of her fortunate location and the enlarging opportunity.

Having given some of our best officers to organized churches, a congregational meeting was called to elect a number of new elders and deacons. These will be ordained and installed in communion service on October 6. On this day we shall observe Rally Day in the Sunday School in the three young people's societies.

We report with sincere regret, the loss of a fine and efficient director of Religious Education, Mrs. M. E. Smith. She became the bride of Rev. P. Adams, pastor of the Roxboro Presbyterian Church, Roxboro, N. C., Tuesday, September 17. The wedding took place in Montgomery, the home of the bride, and for the past three years, the bride has devoted labors as a professional Christian worker. After her graduation from the Assembly of God School, she served the Central Church of Montgomery for a year. She returned to her home church in Montgomery in response to a unanimous and enthusiastic call of the congregation. She leaves it with the love and prayers of the congregation.

Miss Mildred Thomason, a former member of Trinity, has been selected to succeed Mrs. Adams. She has already entered upon her duties.

The Synod of Alabama will meet in Montgomery, Tuesday, October 8, at 7:30 p. m.

H. V. Carson,

FLORIDA

The Presbytery of Florida will meet in Tallahassee, Fla., on Tuesday, November 12, 1929, at 7:30 p. m.

Daniel J. Currie,

DeFuniak Springs Church—After an excursion spent in Virginia, New York, and Pennsylvania, the pastor, Rev. Daniel J. Currie, returned to work on the third Sunday in August.

During his absence the congregation worshipped with sermons by Rev. D. P. Drawbaugh, of Tallahassee, Fla., Rev. Warner Thompson, of Tallahassee, Fla., and Dr. H. A. Love, president of Palmer College, Tallahassee, Fla.

One member has recently been received. The congregations are large and interested. Prospects are bright for a fine season of work in the fall and winter.

We are looking forward with great pleasure and high expectation to having Gypsy Smith, of Tallahassee, Fla., for a series of services during the month of November.

Tampa Presbytery, Gardenville—This is a large and growing community, situated at the mouth of two rivers entering Tampa Bay, about five miles south of Tampa, Fla., on the "Tampa River."

A number of fine people from the north have come and built their homes on the mountains overlooking the bay.

There is, as yet, no organized church in Gardenville. Rev. Charles Kingsley, of the Tampa Presbytery is trying out a new plan for a day school of some 100 has been organized in some months is going well. The people are interested and made out a "call" to Mr. Kingsley asking him to preach every Sabbath which he is doing, also visiting and otherwise giving his time to the church, though it was to a regularly organized church. It is great good being done with a constant interest. The people freely refer to the evangelist as "our pastor" and gladly receive him and his wife in their homes. Services are held in the auditorium of the high school, but there is a new church and the time for organization of a Presbyterian church seems near. Steps have already been taken to organize a Woman's Auxiliary and a church paper. A vass will be taken "Church Paper Week" during the church paper, not a single copy of which has been received in the community.

"The Economic Crime of the Protestant Church"

what Dr. Joseph H. Odell in a magazine article called the failure of the Church to provide honestly for its retired ministers and their families.

There is an awful economic waste when the Church permits her aged ministers to continue too long in exacting pastorates where the duties are too much for their lessening physical powers. The Church suffers and the minister is needlessly sacrificed. Of what great service could he be if retired and financially provided for before all his strength is abated? With his ripe experience he could then encourage younger men, occasionally supply pastorless churches and serve in countless other ways.

The obligation assumed by the Church, when it takes a man from civil life and sets him apart for a definite function which he cannot well combine with other and remunerative activities, nor from which he has either the will (as a rule) or the opportunity to pass into any other occupation, is paramount.

This definite function of the minister requires a long period of general and specialized education. In this it is like the profession of the physician, of the lawyer and of the engineer; but unlike those professions, the activities of the clergyman are part of an organism and largely regulated by the authority of the session and Presbytery; and the large financial prizes possible to them are not open to him.

Indeed, upon the salaries paid in the Church, and probably that always will be paid, a minister has great difficulty in maintaining and educating a family, keeping up the decent style of living demanded by those he serves, taking the part in philanthropic and social activities required by his position, making provision for his own growth by purchasing books, papers and magazines, attending conferences and conventions, and at the same time laying up a reasonable provision for his old age and for his family.

That some clergymen, of every denomination, have somehow managed to do all of these things is a remarkable instance of good management, and proof positive that either the minister or his wife has "good business sense." That some Churches have been more considerate and just with their pastors is a tribute to the Christianity and understanding of officers and people.

The Minister's Annuity Fund of our Church will solve this problem and remove this reproach from our Church's history. Its fundamental principle is this: The moment we begin to use up the energies of a servant of the Church we then begin to lay in store to provide for him, when he can serve no longer, or for the widow and orphan.

"The object of the plan," says Dr. Edward D. Duffield, President of the Prudential Life Insurance Company, "is to meet an obligation which has been too long unrecognized. If the Church is to advance and to in any measurable degree fulfil its great purpose, it can no longer overlook the claim of these faithful servants who have for these many years labored in its behalf. I cannot think that it is necessary to more than present this cause to obtain a favorable response."

The General Assembly has directed its agencies to enter the Fund. Home Mission Committees of Synod's and Presbyteries are deciding to enter and the Assembly, Synods and Presbyteries are urging the churches and ministers to enlist.

What is Your Church Doing?

Watch this page for answers to other questions

Ask any question and we will gladly answer

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH IN THE UNITED STATES,

Department of Ministerial Relief and Ministers' Annuity Fund,

Henry H. Sweets, Secretary. John Stites, Treasurer.

410 Urban Building, Louisville, Kentucky.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

(Continued from page 7)

them and Dr. and Mrs. R. C. Anderson as guiding spirits always make an interesting group. The summer people often express themselves as thinking it must be very quiet and dull in this resort town during the winters. Do not waste your sympathy, kind friends, if there is ever a dull day in Montreat one who has been here four years has failed to discover it.

Mrs. Joseph Will, sister-in-law to President Wilson, has been a guest at the Inn for several days.

Mrs. McIver, of Chattanooga, Tenn., who was Miss Julia Holt of Davidson is visiting her daughter who is a student at the Montreat Normal.

The Montreat Presbyterian Church very reluctantly bade good-bye to her pastor, Dr. Willis Wilson, this week. Doctor Wilson goes to Lincolnton, N. C. A very beautiful reception was given to Dr. and Mrs. Wilson by Mrs. Franklin Wilson, in the name of the Auxiliary. The members of the Extension Board of the Auxiliary stood with the pastor and his wife to receive the many guests who called to say good-bye.

The young people of the "cove" regret very much to give to Lincolnton, Miss Isabel Wilson, who has been a leading spirit among them, always on the alert to give somebody a good time.

Montreat has sent a number of boys and girls to our colleges this fall.

Miss Emily Miller returned to her studies with Westminster choir in Ithaca, N. Y. Miss Annie Webb as teacher of mathematics at Flora Macdonald. Mr. Donald Wilson at Georgia Tech. Mr. Frank Wilson and Mr. Allen Wilson to Davidson College. Misses Bessie and Virginia Wilson to Peace Institute at Raleigh. Miss Mary Miller to the University of North Carolina. Miss Elizabeth Duncan to Maryville College at Maryville, Tenn. Miss Irene Stevenson and Miss Lucile Land to N. C. C. W. at Greensboro. The Moffett boys, whose parents from China are still in their cottage here go to the University of Tennessee.

The Auxiliary make an earnest effort to keep in touch with these boys and girls. We have a secretary whose business it is to do this and keep the Auxiliary informed about them. We also remember them with gifts, and count this as one of our most worth while acts of service.

We have a wide awake Girl's Circle. A lovely thing they did was to put flowers in every room in the dormitory the day before the girls arrived for school.

Montreat has had a series of lovely weddings this past season but none in whom the friends were interested more than the coming marriage on October 2 of Miss Lawrence Wyley and Rev. Harry Keller Holland, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Conyers, Ga. The ceremony will take place in the chapel of Anderson auditorium and will be performed by Dr. W. S. Wilson, former pastor of the bride.

Miss Wyley has been the inspiration for a number of parties. Dr. Margery Lord, president of the Business Woman's Circle, entertained for her as did Miss Lillian Russell, secretary of the Auxiliary.

Rebecca Ranson Duncan.

THE FORT HILL CHURCH—CLEMSON COLLEGE, S. C.

The September meeting of the Fort Hill Church Auxiliary was held was Mrs. A. G. Shanklin, the president, as hostess. A goodly representation took part in a very interesting program and made plans for entertaining the new students just entering Clemson, and also for entertaining Synod at a picnic luncheon on September 25th.

The reception for the new students was held on the lawn of the Manse on the evening of September 6th., this being given under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary. The receiving line was composed of the following—Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Shanklin, Dr. and Mrs. R. N. Brackett, Rev. S. J. L. Crouch and Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Bradley. On account of her recent illness Mrs. Crouch was unable to stand in the receiving line, but greeted all friends from the porch. All church members and newly elected members of the faculty without local church affiliation were invited to meet the new Presbyterian students, the new students numbering about seventy-five. Quite a number of visiting young ladies came from neighboring towns and a very enjoyable evening was spent. Ice cream and cake was served by members of the Auxiliary.

The many friends of Mrs. Crouch rejoice to know that she is recovering from her recent operation and stay of several weeks in the Anderson Hospital.

After being closed during the summer months to unite in Union services with the other churches on the campus, the Fort Hill Church was open again on Sunday morning, September 7, the regular Sunday School services being held at 10:30 and the church services at 11:30.

The first meeting of the Business Woman's Circle for the new session was held at eight o'clock on the evening of September 17, with Mrs. J. T. Foy as hostess. Twelve members of the young business set of the college community responded to roll call. Mrs. M. E. Bradley is the newly elected president of the circle, taking the place of Mrs. B. B. Burley, resigned, and had charge of the meeting. Miss Cornelia Graham led the devotional and Miss Vera Lowe was in charge of the program. Following the business meeting a delightful social hour followed, during which Mr. Fay served refreshments.

The regular Wednesday evening meeting of the Christian Endeavor was held in the Presbyterian Church on September 18, with members of the college cadet corps and young ladies of the campus present. The program was in charge of the Rev. Mr. Crouch. This is the first meeting of this organization since the close of the past session in June. It is hoped that a flourishing band will continue throughout the year.

M. S. B.

LITERATURE FOR YOUR WINTER'S PROGRAMS

Take advantage of the half prices on the Year Book Literature for the remaining six months of the Church year. Orders sent in during September and October will bring the regular literature for October, 1929, through March, 1930.

Auxiliary Program Literature, 50c.
Circle Program Literature, 50c.
Auxiliary and Circle Literature Combined in One Package, 75c.
Literature for Free Distribution, 50c.
Business Circle Program Literature, 50c.
Business Circle Program Literature, 50c.
Year Books, 2 for 5c.
Folders of Topics for Business Circle Programs, 2c.
Order Now from Department's of Woman's Work; 270-277 Field Building, Saint Louis, Mo.

THANKSGIVING—CHRISTMAS GIFTS

Service Through Victrola Records

Miss Annie Ellis and Miss Annie Dowd from the Carrie McMillan Home at Kochi, Japan have written of their need for Victrola records. We feel sure that there is many an accumulation of Victrola records in the homes of our Auxiliaries, where mothers are wondering what they are going to do with all these records in this day of radio music. Here is a school where these records are wanted, not only old, but new. Picture to yourself the Japanese girls of the Carrie McMillan Home in far-away Kochi as they listen to the music which you have sent them across the water. Perhaps you have played for them an inspiring hymn, perhaps a joyful song. They will be happy as they listen to your loving messages in music.

Ship records to the Carrie McMillan Home, Kochi, Japan. Packages up to eleven pounds may be sent by Parcel Post at about 12c per pound. The package must have a declaration card attached. Mark parcels, "Breakable," "Gift," that care may be taken in handling and that the missionaries may not have to pay custom's duty on the records. If the packages are mailed about Thanksgiving time they will arrive for Christmas.

MRS. RUSSELL'S ENGAGEMENTS FOR FALL

October 6-11—Bremen Memorial Church, care Miss Mary P. Musser, 1045 Valley Road, Charleston, West Va.
October 13-18—First Presbyterian Church, care Mrs. E. B. Sabine, 825 Westover Ave., Norfolk, Va.
October 21-25—Orange, Texas, care Mrs. Tom Coyle.
October 27-November 8—Open.
November 10-15—Lynchburg, Va., care Mrs. Easley Edmunds, Jr., Grey Rocks, Route No. 4.
November 17-22—Broadway Presbyterian Church, New York, N. Y., care Mrs. John H. Reid, 250 West 73rd St.
November 25-30—Open.
December 1-6—Shepherdstown, West Va., care Mrs. Adrian Folk, Route No. 5.

Any other churches desiring to secure the inspiring messages which Mrs. Russell brings in her bible classes may do so through Dr. O. E. Buchholz, Assembly's Training School, 3400 Brook Road, Richmond, Va.

TEXAS TRAINING SCHOOL FOR AUXILIARY WORKERS

The Training School for Auxiliary, Westminster Encampment, Kerrville, Texas, opened Tuesday evening, August 13, and closed at noon Wednesday, August 21, 1929.

Credits were offered in three subjects, "The Country Church," Rev. H. W. McLaughlin, D.D.; "Stewardship," Rev. R. C. Long, D.D.; and "Auxiliary Methods," Mrs. J. W. Culver, Synodical President. Each member of the faculty presented not only material from the text books but by the addition of new, and challenging facts led the pupils into an enthusiastic study of the subjects.

Thirty minute worship periods were held each morning conducted by our own Texas men, Rev. E. S. Sansom and Rev. T. W. Currie, D.D. Evangelism was the theme of the entire conference and each of the worship periods dealt with some phase of it. The spiritual messages were brought by these consecrated, gifted ministers in such a manner as to establish the sweet spirit of the day.

Inspirational and educational messages were presented each evening by means of two pageants, one "Indian Village" written by Mrs. F. H. Hisey, given under the direction of Mrs. R. S. McClamrock; the other "The Wings of the Morning" written and directed by Miss Elizabeth Dobbs and by addresses given by such eminent speakers as Rev. R. L. Cowan, D.D., Rev. R. F. Gribble, D.D., Rev. J. O. Reavis, D. D., Rev. E. S. Sansom.

Miss Janie McGaughy, the newly elected S. the Department of Womans' Work came as the three closing days and gave helpful metho gestions for Bible Study also inspirational n Personal Evangelism.

Mrs. G. M. Doyle, musical leader furnished the conference, through the School Choir and special numbers. It was a difficult task to p musical treats, blending the voices in such c bers without the usual practise.

In an effort to co-operate with Synod in wide Evangelistic Campaign the program s to that end. Through the discovery of t Stewardship, The Challenge of the Open o Methods of Service, the Needs of the Wor the call to Personal Evangelism those, who be more in prayer and service for the Master

The social features of the school were delig tunities to form new friendships and renew th of the charm of the School would be lost r feature. Mr. and Mrs. Garland, the efficient r his wife not only help with every social but pleasant surprises which add much to the spir liness.

The registration reached its highest mark The program closed with commencement v which time the pupils were called upon to st plauded for their success.

GROUP CONFERENCE AT HOP

The eastern York district conference Presbyterial met in the Hopewell Church C., on Thursday morning last, at 10 o'clock Cato, district chairman, presiding. An ir votional service on prayer was conduct O. W. Carmichael, pastor of the Neely's P. Church.

Cordial greetings were extended by Williams, to which Mrs. J. M. Love gr sponded. A solo by Mrs. R. M. O'Hair enjoyed.

The outstanding feature of the morn was an address by Mrs. Loraine Simril o Methods. Group meetings of the various round table discussions were held. At nc was served and a pleasant social hour v

Mrs. Z. V. Davidson had charge of the for the afternoon session. She spoke of Paul as the author of the Book of i book assigned for study next year.

Mrs. J. R. Lindsey, first president of Be terial, told of some of the inside work infant presbyterial. A report was give Rainey, a delegate to the colored confer

Miss Mary Lesslie, of the Associate Pre sion in India, gave an impromptu talk o try and the people. Each presbyterial presented her cause.

All of the churches in the district were The attendance banner went to the Bo Church.

NORTH CAROLINA SYNODICAL AUXILIARY

The North Carolina Synodical Auxilia in the First Presbyterian Church, of Du Tuesday, October 15, 1929, at 3:30 p. continue in session until noon, October

Executive Committee meeting will be day, October 15, 1:30 p. m., at the church

SUNDAY SCHOOL

(Continued from page 6)

mally any more than the other. But one out at least in the scattered passages that considering. We must go about our work faithfully. We recall, because we have re the main obstacles which confronted Ne sought to rebuild the walls of Jerusalem. the man's spirit is summed up in the m sent down to those who would impede a work: "I am doing a great work, so that down; why should the work cease, while come down to you?" Neh. 6:3. What are which tempt us from our work, God's Jesus felt that he must make good use of ties that were before him: "We must wor him that sent me while it is day; the night no man can work." Yes, the night cometh. when our work here on earth shall be don come to stand before the judge of heaven give an account to him of what we have c new day dawns may we enter upon that glorious work which shall be given to t been faithful in their work here on earth 46-7; 25:21.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPT.

A. Gamble, Jr., Editor, Pinetops, N. C.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPIC

Rev. W. Arnett Gamble, Jr.

October 20—The Young People's Meetings.— Col. 3:12-17

Remarks

Text given for this week in our denomination seems an indefinite one, giving the possibility of covering "the whole world" if one wished connection with this topic. The subject in an Endeavor list is "Taking Part in the Why and How?" Perhaps the makers of such a development in mind for their "why" and "how" will constitute part of the comments.

The Leader

Study Colossians, the book of the bible from scripture for tonight's meeting is taken, we find in the second chapter Paul speaks of what the Christian ought NOT to follow after. In our teaching what true Christians ought to do as part of this teaching or exhortation is for us in connection with our topic. We want to take to pieces the question of young people's meetings: the "why" of them, the "what" of them, the "how" of them, the spirit of them. Our own experience, and our powers of thought, each throw light on these questions. Some of the assigned talks we want further on the subject treated.

Why Have Y. P. Meetings?

Young people should be seen and not heard" is a long paid tribute to, not only in the home of the church. It is still a worthwhile guide to, and also in certain parts of the church's life. Our church leaders have been learning in the last half century that young people in the church should not be kept silent if they are to be in leadership. In starting the Christian Endeavor Society, Rev. Francis E. Clark recommended that provided that each member should take part in each meeting. This was in order that they testify for Christ and be trained for service. Religious educational leaders do not debate the need of such expression by the young people. The expressional and other activities of young people are more easily carried out in the presence of all older persons except one or two who is at least part of the reason for young people's meetings.

What Should Y. P. Meetings Include?

In an age of stress upon the "worship" in our services. We have been including this element in our services for a long time, though without a name. It is well to remember, however, that the scriptures, prayer (as also the "talks") have the purpose of the ascribing of "worship" to God. Here it might not be amiss to mention the "prayer service" adopted by many C. E. churches. A short service with the leader, prayer-committee, and a few others before the regular service. This does much to promote a worshipful and atmosphere for the whole meeting. Young people promise to "take some part, aside from the regular service, in every C. E. prayer meeting, unless conscientious reasons." This participation is to the acquiring of poise and power in our work. If the society membership becomes a reasonable regularity in such participation, two groups should be organized. One for the members, the other for the observers. Watching others eat and take exercise is a little benefit to the observer. The church should have too many "observers."

Music may be arranged for a good share of the service, provided it is suitable in character and in the spirit of the meeting.

It is the society whose minister will attend to the chief comments in a fairly good proportion of the meetings. Of course the opportunity should be given to the Advisor or Counsellor to make

How Should Y. P. Meetings Be Conducted?

What the worship should fit into, the theme of the meeting. Sometimes the president should conduct the worship features, though the president should attend all the meetings. The C. E. service is usually held on the first Sunday night, a splendid opportunity for a special worship. The plan is that the roll should be "called" in (not alphabetically every time) and each member should respond with a testimony or bible verse. These should be presented from absent members. An interesting and helpful type of participation—"discussion period" is usually that of the speaker in one's own words, the remarks of the one who speaks them. Reading a

OBITUARIES

DIED

Newton—Mr. John J. Newton was born at Newton's Cross Roads, N. C., on November 25, 1846, and died at Rose Hill, N. C., on August 9, 1929. Services were conducted by his former pastor, Rev. W. P. M. Currie and interment was at Rose Hill. He united with Mt. Zion Church in 1866 and had been faithful in his service to the church.

Kingsley—Chester J. Kingsley passed the river at Greeneville, Tenn., September 2. He is a brother of Rev. Charles Kingsley, evangelist in Tampa Presbyterian, also of the late W. N. Kingsley, Baptist minister. Other brothers are Ross Kingsley, at Greeneville, Tenn., W. R. Kingsley, Miller, Mo., and T. G. Kingsley, of Florida. He died in full faith.

Wiggins—Mrs. Ethel Wiggins died at her home in Chester, Pa., August 19. She became a member of the Presbyterian Church in childhood and died in the faith. Mrs. Wiggins was the eldest daughter of Rev. Charles Kingsley, evangelist, Lithia, Fla.

McKinnon—Mrs. Emma Bruton McKinnon, wife of D. D. McKinnon, senior elder of the Wadeville Presbyterian Church died September 13, 1929, at her home at Wadeville, N. C., in the 73rd year of her age. Faithful to the end in all things great and small, a noble soul has passed to her reward.

Garrison—Eugene H. Garrison, at his home, near Newport, S. C., on July 23, 1929. He had been in ill health for over a year. He was aged 69 years. He is survived by his wife and two sons and three daughters. He was a ruling elder in the Ebenezer Church, his father and grandfather having also been elders in this church. Interment in the Ebenezer cemetery.

Fewell—Mrs. Alice Ligon Fewell, wife of Mr. J. Edgar Fewell, at the Lyle Hospital, Rock Hill, S. C., on July 24, 1929, after a short illness. She was a daughter of Mr. W. T. Ligon. She was married on January 26, previous, and would have been 18 years of age on the day of her funeral. Interment in Laurelwood cemetery, Rock Hill, S. C.

Thomasson—William N. Thomasson, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. G. H. Gruver, Charlotte, N. C., on July 26, 1929. He had been in ill health for over a year, following a stroke of paralysis. His wife had preceded him to the grave nine years. He is survived by two sons and five daughters. He was a deacon in the Hopewell Presbyterian Church, Lesslie, S. C. Interment in the Neely's Creek cemetery.

Taylor—At his home, Rock Hill, S. C., on July 30, 1929, Joseph Miller Taylor, after a critical illness of only a few days of heart trouble, aged 55 years. He is survived by his wife, one daughter and four sons. He was a ruling elder in Tirezah A. R. P. Church, and the interment was in the Ebenezer cemetery.

Watkins—Doris Virginia Watkins, 18-month-old daughter of Mr. B. C. Watkins and wife, of Lesslie, S. C., after a short illness of pneumonia following whooping cough, on September 25, 1929. Interment in the Hopewell Presbyterian cemetery.

Clipping is good work for a beginner but if a member is still reading clippings after several weeks or months or years, this person is lazy or the leaders of the meeting are not preparing properly for the members' participation. "Clippitis" is an ancient disease in young people's societies, but is still quite as deadly as when its parents, the "hookworm," first attacked a young people's society.

The leader of the meeting should prepare all elements of the program ahead of time, make proper assignments, keep copies or "parts" for those who lose them, be at the place of meeting ahead of time, start on time, keep things moving briskly, give opportunity for recognition of visitors in the meetings—and do all in the spirit and practice of prayer.

The Spirit of a Y. P. Meeting

Our scripture for tonight teaches us the spirit in which our meetings, and our life as a group of young people, should be conducted. Our spirit should be that of kindness, gentleness, meekness, patience, forgiveness. We should endeavor to so live with Christ that His peace may dwell in each heart. The society life will then be one in which the members are at peace with one another. Singing with God's grace in the heart, the natural way of admonishing our fellows will be by psalms, hymns, spiritual songs. The purpose of it all should be the adding of glory to the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, a young man, who knows the needs and desires of young people, and desires to build up young people in Him and use them in His service.

MRS. ELIZABETH McINTYRE McCALLUM

In the evening hours of December 16, 1928, Mrs. Elizabeth McCallum, the widow of the late Joseph Brown McCallum, in the 72nd year of her sojourn here on earth, quietly passed from us to enter into the mansion that Christ had prepared for His loved one.

She was the last surviving child of the late Dougald C. and Demarias McIntyre.

Mrs. McCallum possessed traits of character of sterling worth, which, illumined by divine grace, combined to give her a strong personality, an unselfish and consecrated life for the duties of home, society and church. Her love for her home and her devotion to her children and grandchildren were marked and beautiful.

She was an active and loyal member of the Presbyterian Church, and even in declining years her interest and service in the church were unabated. Better still, her christian faith was her strength and inspiration in life and her hope and comfort at the approach of death.

The memory of this christian mother and friend will abide and prove a source of inspiration as time goes on. Such an heritage challenges the best that can be offered in return.

The following children survive her: Messrs. John D. and Lamar, of High Point, N. C., and Rufus B., of Laurinburg; Duncan and Misses Mary Edna and Blanche, of Rowland, N. C., also three grandchildren, Mary Elizabeth, Joseph B., Jr., and James William McCallum, of McColl, S. C.

The services were conducted by the Rev. J. M. Lemmon, pastor of Ashpole Presbyterian Church, assisted by Rev. C. S. Mathews of the Lumberton Presbyterian Church.

She was laid to rest in the old historic cemetery at Ashpole Church.

J. M. Lemmon.

Rowland, N. C.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

As an appreciation of the beautiful and helpful christian life of Mrs. Elizabeth Brown McGee, wife of our fellow-elder Mr. Edgar M. McGee, be it resolved, that the session of this church extend to him and to his and her families, our heart-felt sympathy, in the death of this beloved wife and mother.

And be it further resolved, that this resolution be inserted in the sessional records of this church, a copy given to Mr. McGee, and another copy sent to the Presbyterian Standard for insertion.

Signed:

A. H. Fraser.
N. C. Long.
Edward G. Hayes.
S. M. Alexander.
W. E. Kistler.

NEILL McKAY

On Friday, July 12 Neill McKay was quietly and quickly called to his eternal home. There was no lingering illness, no anxious waiting. He had been in declining health for a number of years, but his passing was peaceful and the end was even unexpected. He was visiting at the home of his daughter in Red Springs, and on the preceding day had been well enough to go about town as if better than usual.

The funeral was at Union Church in Moore County, and was conducted by his pastor, Rev. J. F. Menius, assisted by Revs. J. B. Black, of Red Springs, W. S. Golden, of Carthage, and M. D. McNeill, of Cameron. Several other ministers and a large number of friends were present.

Neill McKay was the son of "Lawyer" Neill McKay. He was born at Summerville in Harnett County on December 28, 1859. As a boy he attended the famous Union Home School, near Carthage. There he met, and a little later married Mattie Blue, daughter of Capt. S. McN. Blue. They lived on a farm near Union Church for many years. Seven children came to gladden their lives. About eleven years ago Mrs. McKay went home. Soon afterward Mr. McKay and Ruth removed to Buie's Creek, in Harnett County. After Ruth's marriage he lived with her, making repeated visits to the other children. The surviving children are Neill, Jr., Mesdames J. H. Brown, Sam Trogden, Carlos McLeod, J. D. McLeod, Jas. McDonald and Forrest Holland. One sister, Mrs. Fannie Chapin, and four brothers, Felix, Fred, John, and Moore, survive.

For more than forty years he was a faithful member of Union Church. For about eight years—until his death—he was a useful and generous member of Buie's Creek Presbyterian Church. He was made an elder in the latter church and served with fidelity and zeal. He was a good father, kind, gentle, patient. He was a warm and generous friend and neighbor. He was interested in the uplift of his community and always put his church first. He will be much missed—especially by his pastor and the little church. But the Master knew best and will fill his place somehow. We will go forward inspired by his memory, and challenged by his example.

Rev. J. F. Menius, Pastor.

Lillington, N. C.

CHILDREN

UP FROM THE DEEP

Wilbur Rice stood by the controls of the undersea boat and watched the dial which told him how deep the submarine was under the water. When it pointed to one hundred feet, he called out to the Captain, who gave orders to stop pumping water into the ballast tanks.

"The bottom of the bay is ten feet under our keel," he said to Wilbur. "I believe we'll settle down nicely."

Wilbur nodded his head in agreement. He had always been interested in deep sea boats, and he had been lucky enough to get the chance to go down with the L5 on this important test.

"When we get there," explained the Captain, who was Wilbur's uncle, "we are to shut everything down as though we were disabled, send a radio S O S, and then wait for results. Mr. Slade, I firmly believe that your inventions will work, and that the government will be glad to accept them after this trial."

"Thank you, Captain," replied Mr. Slade. "I am hoping to be able to convince the inspectors that my ideas will be the means of saving the life of many a brave sailor."

"They will, I am sure. Well, we've struck bottom with our forward end, and soon we'll be lying completely on the ocean's bed. Send the radio call for help, men, and shut down everything."

In a few minutes this was done. The men all collected together in the control room of the L5, silent and thoughtful, wondering what new idea it was that was going to "save" them, now that they were pretending to be wrecked.

"Men," said the Captain, "I want to give the deep-sea divers all the time possible to apply the device that has been invented by Mr. Slade. They are supposed to descend, find out where we are, and attach air hoses to valves that are in the side of the submarine. Then they will pump fresh air in here to keep us alive while they are trying to raise the boat. Isn't that right, Mr. Slade?"

Everybody turned to Mr. Slade for his answer, but he looked so weak and pale that the Captain asked him quickly what was the matter?"

"It's just my lungs," was the answer. "I always get sick when I am in a closed room without any air, and I imagine being shut in down here will be a difficult ordeal for me to withstand."

"Sit down, Mr. Slade," invited the Captain. "There will soon be plenty of air for us all, because I believe I can hear the divers working on the outside of the submarine."

They all listened, and sure enough they could hear the men working outside. The divers even rapped on the side of the undersea boat to let them know what it was; and then they went away.

"The pump ought to be started pretty soon," remarked the Captain. "Then everything will be all right."

But the men waited and waited and the air didn't seem to get any fresher. Instead it got worse, and beads of sweat began to stand out on their foreheads.

"I know what they have done," gasped Mr. Slade. "They have connected the air hoses to the wrong valves, and instead of pumping the air in here, they are pumping it into the tanks!"

"I'll soon inform them of their mistake," replied the Captain. "Wilbur, give the inspector's boat a call on the radio and tell them what the trouble is. In the meantime, one of you men start the oxyogen generator."

"Captain," interrupted Mr. Slade. "Don't forget that every machine on this submarine is supposed to be broken down. If you start any of them up again, the test is over, and I've failed. Do you understand?"

"Yes. But what else can we do. I can't let the crew suffocate."

"I'll go up and tell them myself," said Mr. Slade. "I'll use a pair of my artificial lungs."

For a moment the Captain was undecided. Then he replied.

"All right, Mr. Slade. I haven't any objection, because, after all, that is what we'd have to do if we were really wrecked."

But when the inventor tried to put on his "lungs" he fell back in his chair too weak to raise his arms.

"I'm exhausted," he said. "Very well, Captain, send the S O S. I'm through, I guess, although I'm sure my inventions will work."

"I'll go up, Uncle," offered Wilbur, eagerly. "I'd like to try Mr. Slade's idea."

Again the submarine Captain hesitated.

"Let him do it, Captain," put in Mr. Slade. "It is perfectly safe!"

"All right," agreed Wilbur's uncle. "Put on the suit, Wilbur, and we'll get ready to let you out."

As Wilbur was putting on the new deep-sea suit devised by Mr. Slade, the inventor told him what to do.

"First, we let out a long rope that has a float tied to the end of it. This float goes to the surface. Then we tie the other end of the rope to something that is solid within the submarine, and as you go up, you always keep hold of this rope. Do you understand?"

Wilbur nodded assent. There was no time for delay, so everything else being ready, the crew let Wilbur out into the water, and closed the escape door after him.

As soon as he was in the water, Wilbur felt himself being drawn up toward the surface, and he understood what Mr. Slade meant when he said to keep hold of the rope. The greatest danger a man has to face when rising from the bottom too quickly, without giving his body time to adapt itself to the changes of pressure. If it wasn't for the rope, Wilbur would have popped to the surface like a cork, and he would have suffered from what divers call the "bends." But with the rope in his hands, he could let himself up gradually. This he did, and soon he was on the surface beside the inspector's boat.

They were surprised to see Wilbur appear as he did, for Mr. Slade had not told them about his second idea of an artificial lung. He preferred to have them see it actually in use before making any comments on whether or not it was any good.

"Send the divers down again," said Wilbur, as he climbed aboard the tender. "They connected the air hose to the wrong valves!"

"That's all right," said one of the men. "We are testing those out first. If they work, the submarine will rise to the surface on its own account. It ought to be pretty nearly up as it is."

"But they've got the air generator shut off!" cried Wilbur.

"They can start it again," said the Chief Inspector. "That has nothing to do with the real test."

In a few minutes the nose of the L5 showed above the water, and shortly afterwards, the entire submarine was in full view. The men opened up the conning tower and came out on deck and waved.

"There's Mr. Slade," said the Chief Inspector. "Call him on board. I'm heartily in favor of his inventions, and I want to buy them for the government. Not only do I want his idea of how to bring a sunken submarine to the surface, but I want the other idea of how to escape from one should it be impossible to carry out the first scheme."

"I want to thank you for what you have said," replied Mr. Slade, later, "but all of the credit is not to be mine. You must not forget to mention the name of Wilbur Rice, to whom I am greatly obliged. Without him I should not have been able to prove to you the value of my artificial lungs."

And with this "honorary" mention,

Wilbur was satisfied. It only goes to show, he thought, what a fellow can do when he gets the chance.

LICKING JIMMIE

Jimmie was the strongest boy in his school. He could saw wood, carry heavy baskets of fruit, climb trees, and run faster than anyone he knew, and when he got into a fight he fought fair and always won.

After a while he grew very proud of his record. He began to boast about how strong his arms and legs were, and how easy it was for him to lift heavy things.

One day his mother heard him. But although she knew how well he could run and lift and fight, she did not call him a strong boy. Her very good reason was this.

Every time anything went wrong at home or in school, Jimmie lost his temper. His tongue ran away with him. He let it say all kinds of cruel and thoughtless and impatient things, and he kept on saying them until his temper cooled.

One day, when his mother heard him boast how strong he was, she called him to her and said: "Jimmie, you have one foe whom you have never once beaten in a fight."

Jimmie looked surprised and interested.

"Who?" he asked, puzzled.

"Yourself," said his mother.

"Me?" said Jimmie. "What do you mean, mother?"

His mother said: "Day before yesterday, I asked you to bring up some wood in the morning and you forgot it. I let it go until afternoon, and then I asked you again. Instead of taking five minutes of your time in bringing up the wood, you said: 'Don't waste my time, mother. I'm busy.' When I insisted, you lost your temper and said the same old things. I always try to forget you have said them, because I know your temper has run away with you. That is the way you very often get beaten, Jimmie; and I think, until you can fight that enemy and lick him, you'd better not boast any more about how strong you are."

Jimmie hung his head. He knew what his mother said was true. But after a little while he forgot about it, because things went pretty smoothly.

One day his father asked him to take an important letter at once to the post-office. Jimmie was within ten minutes of finishing an airplane model.

"What's your hurry, father?" said he. "Can't a fellow ever have any time to himself? I'll go as soon as I finish this."

"It is necessary that this letter be sent at once," replied his father.

Jimmie's face grew as black as a thunder-cloud, and before he knew what he was doing, he had thrown his fine new airplane straight at his father. His father had never seen Jimmie throw things about, though many a time he had heard him lose his temper.

The airplane crashed past his father and fell, a wrecked heap, on the floor.

And then, before Jimmie could open his mouth, he remembered his talk with his mother.

Without a word he picked up the letter and ran as fast as he could go to the post office. Perhaps he was trying to run away from his tongue, but of course it went with him. But for the first time in his life he kept his lips tight shut upon it.

It was almost dark when he got back and supper was on the table. Jimmie came in, very silent.

His father said: "Thank you, Jimmie. You made some speed to the post-office. I think you ought to get a good job as special delivery boy."

Jimmie mumbled, "Thank you, father." To be praised, after what he had done, was too much.

After supper he went to his room, and tried to study, but he couldn't keep his mind on his lessons. He kept thinking of the way he had thrown that airplane at his father. At last when he heard his father stairs, and followed him to

"Father, I'm sorry," he said. Nor did he stop there. He father what his mother had his having one enemy beaten. "I was so proud of father, of how fast I could well I could fight with arms, too, and what he could carry. But mother is beaten the other day when me to bring up wood, and licked worse, when you go to the postoffice. Father catch me getting licked like Jimmie stalked out of the r

His mother was just in had heard Jimmie's last w "Good for you, Jimmie," said.

But it took a long time to me," as he called it. He hard, and often; but eve was afraid of losing out, away to his room and open of his closet. Can you guess inside? The wrecked pie precious airplane.—Katherine, in Christian Register.

PUZZLE CORNER

Junior Cross-Word

1		2	3	4
		6
7	8
10				11
12			13
		14
15

Horizontal

- 1—Indoor game
- 6—Consume
- 7—A vegetable
- 9—Egyptian sun-god
- 10—Latitude (abbr.)
- 11—Vapor
- 12—Comparative suffix
- 13—Province in Italy
- 14—Boy's name
- 15—To divest of clothes

Hidden Fall Flow

Take one letter from each sentence to form the fall flower:

- Gladys tore Lillian's dress
- Monday begins the new year
- Drawings always help in
- tailed explanations.

Double Word Square

- Rapid descent.
- Enclosed space.
- Seek support.
- Solid earth—Period of time
- Toward the ocean.
- Sharp cry of distress.
- Draws one's strength.

Under a spreading chestnut
A stubborn auto stands;
The smith an angry man
With trouble on his har
The carburetor seems to b
The cause of all his wo
He tightens half a dozen
But still it doesn't go.
He sits beside the road to
His brain a chance to co
He ponders on his training
In the correspondence sc
And then he starts his job
And just by chance 'tis
The cause of all his troub
He's out of gasoline.—E

HENRY'S PRIZE

way home from school one Henry and three of his stopped every now and then snowballs to throw at some tree or fence or telegraph made believe that whoever mark would get a prize.

They came to Granny White's Henry noticed a star-shaped way between the two parlor of the little frame cottage. boys!" he cried pointing to 'Let's see who can hit that

That's easy!" said one of the as he picked up some snow. he it's my first turn!" shout- and threw with all his might. d aimed a little too far to and the snowball crashed st the window-pane.

ed at what they had done, the other boys ran away as could till they were a long Granny White's house; then d all out of breath.

row snowballs against that led one of the boys, but not feel like throwing snow- more. He kept thinking of Granny White and the ss. She lived alone, and he now she was going to keep a big hole in her window. ant to play any more," he e other boys, "I'm going ed away as fast as he could anny White's house. But ached it he could not bear he parlor window. He went door and knocked. Gran- t with a smile on her kind 'Well, well, if here isn't e said. "Come right in and ondered how she could be n one of her windows had broken. He sat down near stove and turned to Gran- ke your window, Granny. mean to. I was trying to on the front of your house e parlor windows, and I d struck the glass. I'm aw-

White smiled a pleasanter ver. "You didn't break the ey," she said. "The snow een soft, for it did not go pane."

ns an astonished little boy ard that the window wasn't r all, and he was glad, too. you are smiling," he said. so glad the glass didn't t in all the cold air."

at alone. I am happy that nest and manly enough so ne back to tell me you did ou really thought you had window. I never should who threw that snowball, n I heard it hit the glass il to the parlor window a boy or girl in sight!" nry noticed that it was outside and told Granny e going home she gave agful of cookies and said, ey, take home these nice, cookies for your supper. as baking them when you snowball."

ran home he was very nk that he hadn't broken nny White's window after was still happier that he k and told her who it was own the snowball. Then, he hugged the bag with icy cookies he thought of nny: he was the only one oy that afternoon to win a ead he hadn't hit the mark, Th Youth's Companion.

ls, says a naturalist, "don't wcky they are." Do a fam- bi, for instance, realize that ruing about in a beautiful co?—London Opinion.

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color).

YELLOW-haired Susie May and BROWN-haired Teddy are having a fine time gathering all the leaves on the lawn into a big pile.

"Here are some bright RED leaves from under the maple tree," cries Susie May with her light PURPLE frock held out full of the bright leaves. Susie May's frock has white collar and cuffs and a BLACK velvet tie. Her slippers are BLACK and her socks are light PURPLE.

"Oh, I have a heap of BROWN oak and YELLOW poplar leaves!" says Teddy. He is raking the leaves together on the GREEN grassy lawn beside the GRAY (use BLACK lightly) cement walk. Teddy's rake is RED with a long BROWN handle. Teddy wears a pair of dark BLUE over-alls over his TAN (use BROWN and YELLOW mixed, lightly) blouse. His shoes are TAN.

The tree has a BROWN trunk and the broom standing against the tree has a long RED handle and top to the whisks. The whisks are BROWN. There is one BROWN oak leaf hanging over-head. The sky is light BLUE.

Both children have PINK (use RED lightly) cheeks and RED lips.

You can color the border bright YELLOW and the lettering a nice bright RED.

PUZZLE ANSWERS

Hidden Fall Flowers

Goldenrod, Aster, Dahlia.

Double Word Square

F A L L
A R E A L E A N
L A N D A Y S
A S E A
Y E L P
S A P S

AUTUMN NIGHTS

A tang of frost is in the air,
The stars shine clear and bright,
And by these signs the elfin know
It is an autumn night.

They hurry forth from out their dens
With paint brushes in hand
And spread a coat of hoary white
Upon the sleeping land.

They tweak the leaves from off the branch
And toss them far and wide;
They tease the nut burrs till they scream
And laugh to split their side.

And then before they scurry off
They blow a chilly blast
To tell the little boys and girls
Snow time is coming fast.

TOMORROW

He was going to be all that a mortal should be
Tomorrow;

No one should be kinder or braver than he,
Tomorrow.

A friend who was troubled and weary,
he knew,
Who'd be glad of a lift and who needed it, too;
On him he would call and see what he could do,

Tomorrow.
Each morning he stacked up letters he'd write

Tomorrow;
And thought of the folks he would fill with delight,

Tomorrow.
It was too bad, indeed, he was busy today,
And hadn't a minute to stop on his way;
More time I will have to give others he'd say,

Tomorrow.
The greatest of workers this man would have been

Tomorrow.
The world would have know him had he ever seen

Tomorrow;
But the fact is he died and he fade from view,
And all that he left here when living was through
Was a mountain of things he intended to do

Tomorrow.
—Edgar A. Guest.

TURN-AROUND TALES
TWO-IN-ONE STORIES FOR THE KIDDIES

BY NELSON WHITE

This puppy feels so sad and glum,
His joyful air is lagging -
But when we turn him upside down

He jumps-with tail a-wagging.

Things are not always what you think they are when you see them first. Our "Turn Around Tales" for instance that we are showing this week. Watch out for these little figures, turn them upside down and see one animal change into another. Every week for awhile there will be a funny "Turn Around."

"Iceland," said the teacher, "is about as large as Siam."

"Iceland," wrote William, afterwards, "is about as large as teacher." —Ex.

Heard in local movie house when a picture of a chimpanzee was flashed on the screen:

"Oh, look at that bamboo!"

"Huh! That ain't no bamboo, it's a boomerang."—Annapolis Log.

When answering advertisements mention this paper. Thus you will aid us in securing more advertising patronage

HOME MISSION STUDY BOOKS

FOR ADULT CLASSES
"The Crowded Ways"

By CHAS. HATCH SEARS

The official study book for the year. Especially interesting treatment, in popular style, of the problem of reaching the unchurched multitudes in our cities. Shows that moral and religious conditions in cities are influencing social and religious life of the whole country. Price, cloth, $1.00; paper, 60c.

"Helps for Leaders" in studying "The Crowded Ways." Prepared by Mrs. E. B. Paisley, and containing denominational material. Price, 15c.

"The Bible and Social Problems"

By W. L. LINGLE, D.D.

A special edition of this book in paper binding has been prepared for the use of those studying Home Missions this fall. The book is recommended for special reading in this connection, as it throws a flood of light on modern social problems as viewed from the Bible standpoint. Price, student's edition, 75c.

STUDY BOOKS FOR OTHER GROUPS FOR SENIORS AND INTERMEDIATES

"Pioneers of Goodwill"

By H. B. HUNTING

Fascinating stories of twelve great pioneers in Home Mission work, this book containing material for the students. Paper, 75c.

"Good News Across the Continent"

By MARY JENNESS

A course on Home Missions for leaders of Seniors and Intermediates, based on "Pioneers of Goodwill." Paper, 50c.

FOR JUNIORS
"Jumping Beans"

By R. N. McLEAN

A practical book on the problems of working with children of immigrants. Paper, 75c.

FOR PRIMARIES
"Rafrael and Consuelo"

By FLORENCE C. MEANS

A story of two Mexican children told in an interesting fashion. Paper, 75c.

Order all of these books from

PRESBYTERIAN COMMITTEE OF PUBLICATION
Richmond, Va.—Texarkana, Ark.—Tex.

STATEMENT

Pilot Life Insurance Company, Greensboro, N. C.

Condition December 31, 1928, as Shown by Statement Files

Amount of Capital paid up in cash ----- $
Amount of Ledger Assets December 31st of previous year ----- Premium Income, $2,829,629.03; Miscellaneous, $912,949.95; Total ----- Disbursements—To Policyholders, $1,248,371.94; Miscellaneous, $1,485,073.40; Total ----- Business written during year—Number of policies 34,790; Amount ----- Business in force at end of year—Number of Policies 75,568; Amt. -----

Assets

Value of Real Estate (less of encumbrances) ----- $
Mortgage Loans on Real Estate -----
Loans secured by pledge of Bonds, Stocks, or other collateral ----- Loans made to Policyholders on this Company's Policies assigned as collateral ----- Premium notes on Policies in force ----- Net Value of Bonds and Stocks ----- Cash -----
Interest and Rents due and accrued ----- Premiums uncollected and deferred -----
All other Assets, as detailed in Statement -----

Total ----- $
Less Assets not admitted -----

Total admitted Assets ----- $

Liabilities

Net Reserve, including Disability Provision ----- $
Present value of amts. not yet due on Supplementary Contracts, etc. -----
Policy Claims -----
Dividends left with Company at interest ----- Premiums paid in advance -----
Unearned Interest and Rent paid in advance ----- Commissions due to Agents -----
Estimated Amount payable for Federal, State, and other Taxes ----- Dividends due Policyholders ----- Amount set apart for future dividends ----- Accident and Health -----
All other Liabilities, as detailed in statement -----

Total amount of all Liabilities, except Capital ----- $
Capital paid in Cash ----- $1,000,000.00
Unassigned funds (surplus) ----- 422,939.64

Total Liabilities ----- $

BUSINESS IN THE STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA DURING

Policies on the lives of citizens of said State in force December 31st of previous year	22,097	$48,351,234.00	15,733
Policies on the lives of citizens of said State issued during year	3,648	$9,599,597.00	13,861
Total	25,745	$57,950,831.00	29,594
Deduct ceased to be in force during the year	2,210	$5,405,874.00	11,454
Total	23,535	$52,544,957.00	18,140
Losses and Claims unpaid December 31st of previous year	5	$6,124.00	2
Losses and Claims incurred during year	116	$242,716.10	168
Total	121	$248,840.10	170
Losses and Claims settled during the year, in full, $258,951.35; by compromise, $480.00	111	$236,182.10	165
Losses and Claims unpaid December 31st	10	$12,658.00	5
Premium Income—Ordinary, $1,498,039.30; Industrial, $165,982.20; Total, $1,664,021.50.

President, A. W. McAlister; Secretary, Arthur Watt; Treasurer, Vaughn, Actuary, Arthur Watt; Home Office, Greensboro, N. C. For Service: DAN C. BONEY, Insurance Commissioner, Raleigh, N. C. Manager for North Carolina, Home Office.

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA
Insurance Department

(Seal)

Raleigh, March 12, 1929

I, DAN C. BONEY, Insurance Commissioner, do hereby certify that the above is a true and correct abstract of the statement of the Pilot Life Insurance Company, of Greensboro, N. C., filed with this Department, showing the condition of said Company on the 31st day of December, 1928.

Witness my hand and official seal the day and date above written.
DAN C. BONEY, Insurance Commissioner

Needless Pain!

Some folks take pain for granted. They let a cold "run its course." They wait for their headaches to "wear off." If suffering from neuralgia or from neuritis, they rely on feeling better in the morning. Meantime, they suffer unnecessary pain. Unnecessary, because there is an antidote. Bayer Aspirin always offers immediate relief from various aches and pains we once had to endure. If pain persists, consult your doctor as to its cause.

Save yourself a lot of pain and discomfort through the many uses of Bayer Aspirin. Protect yourself by buying the genuine. Bayer is safe. Always the same. All drugstores.

BAYER ASPIRIN

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

ORRY

ANNNOYS YOU MOST?

and nature of common was the theme of a paper symposium on the psychol-sonality by Prof. Hulsey e University of Rochester international Congress of meeting at Yale Univer- told that Professor Cason ploration of what peeves veral years ago. He called ups to tell him what an- most. He compiled a list of vances, but finding dupli- many instances of spurious he boiled the list down to mber was the basis of his der to show the compara- of various annoyances he a scale which ranged from nate in annoyance—down give some of the annoy- by the professor, together ber indicating their power A gushing manner, 18; ; continually criticising 23; younger person show- et for older person, 26; ring to make a sale, 23; a ding in front of me instead a line, 24; talk of one's ill- o see an intoxicated man, n intoxicated woman, 26; aking unnecessary move- performing, 17; hearing ring mechanical music, 7; singing, 17; to hear vocal whistling to one's self, 3; r persons talking during ure performances, 18; a ing over my shoulder at azine I am reading, 14; to wear, 17; to hear a woman o see the bald head of a e or hear an animal treated person, 28; a dirty bed, 28; ckroaches, 24; mice, 20;

sight of a snake, 17; to find dirt in food I am eating, 25; to find hair in food I am eating, 26; to smell liquor on breath of person, 28. In looking over this list we wonder why the mosquito and the loud speaker were not mentioned, and in speaking of a liquor breath we wonder that the stenches of the cigarette were not mentioned. We are certain that all our readers could very easily add to the list given above of things which most annoy. A dog which barks all night annoys us extremely, and the man who tell us of a happening and takes 30 minutes to do it when two minutes ought to suffice, and the man who takes out time with inconsequential chatter when we are wild to get to our work, and the man who rudely interrupts and destroys the interest and point of a story and— But stop. Soon we would make a list longer than the one given above and not repeat any of it. It is easy to believe that the learned professor compiled a list of 21,000 annoyances. We would have given him full credence even if he had announced that he had compiled a list twice 21,000. It ought to do us all good to read thoughtfully, however, the list given above. It should make us more thoughtful, more man- nerly and more likeable. Let us not be guilty of annoying others with the very things which most annoy us. Let us seek to be more thoughtful, more considerate even to the point of sac- rifice ofttimes of our personal pleas- ure. Thus the world will grow kinder, pleasanter for every person. And we should remember that annoyances are not to be permitted to make us cross, petulant, impatient. We are to conquer our annoyance, whatever it may be, by that grace which is freely given. We are to win people from thought- lessness by a spirit of such unfailing courtesy and consideration that our ex- ample may rebuke without speech and inspire to finer things without ser- monizing. We grinned broadly when

PEACE INSTITUTE

Raleigh, North Carolina

OWNED by the Presbyterians of North Carolina

COURSES OFFERED: (1) College courses for first and second year work; (2) Preparatory courses; (3) Special courses in Art, Music, Home Economics and Commercial subjects.

WORK ACCEPTED BY: (1) The North Carolina State Department of Education; (2) All colleges and universities in North Carolina and by many colleges without this state.

SPECIAL FEATURES: (1) Individual attention to students; (2) Limited number of students; (3) Intimate home surroundings; (4) highly trained faculty; (5) Wholesome religious atmosphere. (6) Modern equipment.

Register Now for Fall Session of 1929-1930

For catalogue, book of views and other literature, write to William C. Pressly, President, Peace Institute, Raleigh, N. C.

we saw "The bald head of a man" in the list of annoyances. A bald head should not annoy any one save the man who has it.—United Presbyterian.

And every man decideth which way his soul shall go."

—Forward.

DEVOTIONAL

(Continued from page 2)

uable, yet not essentially evil or worthless in itself. Here again we must choose and here, too, may be found a real test of character for many of us. "Don't you know," demands John Ruskin, "that if you read this book, you can't read that?" If you elect to spend your leisure time playing dominoes the probability is you will never become an accomplished musician, a successful artist, or a writer of ability. An unwise choice here may not doom you to the slavery and bondage of sin, but it may doom you to mediocrity and inconspicuousness in a world in which you would have stood out above the throng had your choice been otherwise:

"To every man there openeth a high way and a low

Aunt Liza's former mistress was talking to her one morning, when suddenly she discovered a little pickaninny standing shyly behind his mother's skirts. "Is this your little boy, Aunt Liza?" she asked.

"Yes, miss, dat's Prescription."

"Goodness, what a funny name, Auntie, for a child! How in the world did you happen to call him that?"

"Ah simply calls him date becuz Ah has sech hawd wuk gettin' him filled."

—Exchange.

WANTED

1,000 Workers, men and women, to place our Bibles, Testaments and Religious Books in homes. Big profit. Full or spare time. JOIN HANDS WIS US. Write today for free information. Dept. 240.

WILMORE BOOK & BIBLE COMPANY
443 South Dearborn St. Chicago, Illinois

OCTOBER 27th

REFORMATION SUNDAY . . . PROTESTANT RELIEF

Subject

'Are the Issues of the Reformation Present Day Issues in the Religious Life of Europe?'

1. Is God a real God? Is he a person? Is he running this world?
2. Is Religion to be proscribed? Or is it still the inalienable right of every man to worship God as his conscience dictates?
3. The Perils of a commercialized Church—the need of a prophet voice that recognizes only God as Master.
4. Is the Bible the one virile and infallible message in spiritual things or merely a worn book for a dusty shelf?
5. Is Salvation the result of an evolutionary process or is the sinner justified by faith?

These are some of the issues and, if Europe, with America, is to lead the way to a Better Day, these issues must die.

To keep alive, on the continent of Europe, a Church that will fearlessly proclaim them, Southern Presbyterians are asked to contribute

$20,000 on Reformation Sunday

Send all contributions for Protestant Relief in Europe to MISS MARGARET VANCE, Treasurer 154 Fifth Ave. N., Nashville, Tennessee.

EATING FOR HEALTH

Twice as many young women between the ages of fifteen and twenty-five die with tuberculosis as young men of the same age. The causes of this situation are attributed to several factors—more young women in industry, the fast pace of modern youth, and so on—but medical men are agreed that self-dieting to achieve a slender form is one of the most important reasons for the untimely death of so many of the nations fairest.

The most important factor in the matter of diet is balance. Eat balanced meals which supply the body with all the necessary elements for heat, energy and repair, without over-loading it with too much of any one substance. Balance in weight is a goal to strive for. Overweight is as detrimental to health as underweight. If you are too slender it is probable that your resistance to disease is low; if you are too heavy, you are more than likely overtaxing your vital organs.

Eat plenty, but do not stuff yourself. Always stop eating before you feel that your next bite will be all you will want. Starches must not be more abundant in the diet than green vegetables. Milk and its products are the most nourishing of all foods.—Tuberculosis and Health Society of St. Louis.

A Most Benevolent Cow

A man was trying to fill out a claim sheet for damages inflicted by the railway. His cow had been killed, and he so entered it on the blank. All went well until he came to the question: Disposition of the carcass?—

He puzzled for a time, then filled in—"Kind and gentle."

—Sante Fe Magazine.

NERVOUS DISEASES

Drug and alcoholic addictions successfully treated at Spring Garden Sanitarium, 2911 Spring Garden Street, Greensboro, N. C. Write us for full information. Correspondence Confidential.

FOR DIAMONDS, WATCHES AND SILVERWARE

Write to
JAMES ALLEN AND CO.
Jewelers since 1855
285 King St. Charleston, S. C.

Catalog on request

Mother!

Child's Best Laxative is
"California Fig Syrup"

Hurry Mother! Even a fretful, peevish child loves the pleasant taste of "California Fig Syrup" and it never fails to open the bowels. A teaspoonful today may prevent a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

WHEN BILLY WAS KIDNAPPED

Mrs. Barrett sat on her wide porch knitting a sweater out of gold-colored yarn. It was intended to embellish a new golf costume in which she accompanied her banker husband to the links at the Country Club, where he got most of his much needed exercise. Like her husband, Mrs. Barrett was stout and florid, a condition which came from having plenty of ease, a good cook in the kitchen and an unlimited credit at Mr. Houlehan's superior grocery store.

Very comfortable and fair looked Mrs. Barrett as she sat knitting this delightful summer afternoon, while the honey-suckles threw off their golden perfume and the bees hummed and her three-year old son, William, Jr., plied up and down the lawn in his expensive new automobile, painted green and fully equipped, save for motor power, which Billy's stout legs supplied. Mrs. Barrett had Billy where she could keep an eye on him for the reason that she lived in a continual fear of his being kidnapped.

It was Miss Stowe who had put the idea in Mrs. Barrett's head. Ideas usually had to be put in Mrs. Barrett's head; they did not grow there. Miss Stowe lived alone in the pretty house opposite, and she hadn't a thing in the world to do but to hear her parrot swear and watch her neighbors. She was sure that the child of Westmore's banker would sooner or later be in danger of the kidnapper and had so announced to Mrs. Barrett. As a consequence Mrs. Barrett kept her eye on Billy every moment that Avis, the reliable $10-a-week maid did not.

The telephone bell rang and Mrs. Barrett ran in to answer it. It was Miss Stowe, who had just read something dreadful in the Tattler and wanted to know if Mrs. Barrett had seen it. Those dreadful Serges had bought the house where they lived and Gordon street had them permanently. Now wasn't that sad tidings? The Serges were quite beyond

(Continued on page 19)

GET WHAT YOU BUY

Monument buyers are in almost all cases interested in securing the very best material. Material costs only about 20 per cent of the price of the job. Hence the percentage of increase for the best material over the cheapest material is insignificant. Besides which, Winnsboro Granite, when specified, returns to the dealer considerable saving working as it works easier and more safely, owing to the toughness, than most other granites.

The buyer should be sure that the monument purchased is not of boulder stone; is not from some quarry of inferior crushing strength, or larger content of lime, iron and water—all of them injurious. To be perfectly sure, specify Winnsboro Granite in your purchase contract; require the dealer to furnish you a quarry certificate signed by the manager of Winnsboro Granite Corporation; and test the monument by throwing water over it. If there are any flaws, white or black streaks or splotches of size; or if there is wave (variation in the mixture of light and dark crystals) in the grain, some mistake has been made.

Insist upon flawless, even grain, granite. Only such granite, quarried and graded by Winnsboro Granite Corporation, is dependable as the best; and it is certificated on request.

You can get seconds, known as "Smith stock," but you sacrifice beauty and permanency. You can get granite from many other quarries which looks very attractive, but it will not last as well because containing more injurious ingredients—lime, iron, water. To be safe and sure, specify Winnsboro Granite. Have it certificated; examine it while wet.

The honest dealer, eager to please his customer, will be glad to make this test for you on all faces of the monument, and to furnish you a certificate from the quarry, which costs you nothing.

The pleased customer, sure that he gets what he buys, is a living advertisement to any monument dealer.

Write for free booklet of designs of Winnsboro Granite Monuments supplied by Winnsboro Granite Corporation, Rion, S. C.—Adv.

A Presbyterian Church of hundred members in a North Carolina city wishes to secure the good tenor singer in a quartet of officers of the church themselves to secure a position for a singer so that his salary may be supplemented by his business. Address Music Committee, Presbyterian Standard, Charlotte, N. C.

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE
DECATUR, GA.

Strict entrance requirements, but few failures after admission. So expensive, but cheap in comparison with advantages offered. No loss expected, but also none without capacity to enjoy almost unlimited good. For details as to admission, scholarship aid, etc address
PRESIDENT J. R. MCCAIN
Box 5

ORIENT FLOUR
Its Whiteness Denotes Its Purity
MOUNTAIN CITY MILL CO., CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

BELK'S

MAKE A TRIP IN BELK'S

For Your Ready-to-Wear Needs

What fun it is first to shop in Belks—to see the new Fall things—a gorgeous selection of handsomely furred coats—a stunning group of Fall smartest dresses awaits your approval.

And too, such cunning Millinery styles—Clever Belk creations and the very finest Foot-Wear.

Just a trip in Belk's and you'll be happy that you went.

Belk Brothers Co.
Charlotte, N. C.

Football Game

CAROLINA vs. GEORGIA TECH—FRIDAY OCTOBER 10
YALE vs. GEORGIA—SATURDAY, OCTOBER 11
via

Seaboard Air Line Railway

SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY
$10.06 Charlotte to Atlanta $10.06

and return with stop off at Athens to see Yale-Georgia. Do not miss these two wonderful football games, which will be held at Atlanta.

Carolina vs. Georgia Tech at Atlanta 2:00 P. M.
Yale vs. Georgia at Athens 2:00 P. M.

Seaboard dining cars will be parked at Athens serving the public. The Seaboard is the only road having Atlanta and Athens on its main line. Proportionately low rates from all stations. Seaboard in North Carolina. Inquire of ticket agent, or call

JOHN T. WEST, D. P. A.
Telephone 2700 Raleigh, N. C.

Stol-Nelson School
 defective children. Open
 year—limited to 25 pupils.
 No boys over 12 years of
 training. Ideal home life.
 playgrounds—5 assistants.
 $900 to $1,800 per year. For log—Address
STOL-NELSON
 Memphis, Tenn.

STANDARD FOR 50 YEARS
PETERSMITH'S
HILL TONIC
 50 been hold for all able,
 nvig-
 nic.
Malaria Chills
 and Fever
Dengue

FRESH WATER SYSTEMS
 supply systems for suburban schools, hotels, churches, stations, industrial plants.
 r under pressure. No frozen
 No greasy machinery about atic electric or engine drive.
 able and economically opers in use for years. Write for MFG. CO. Greenville, S. C.

DRIFT --- PLAN lifting along?
 ade plans for the future?
 ink you should?
 ant to be successful in bus-
 us!
S BUSINESS COLLEGE
R ST. COLUMBIA, S. C.

MPF'S
VOCABULARIES
 Writers and Speakers
 larity, Precision, and ful to business as well
 al men and women.
MPF'S VOCABU-
 48 pages — classifies,
 and refers synonyms,
 ad relatives.
 Go 150 different terms
 the few provided by e and others.
 es of Binding—Cloth,
 $10, and Deluxe, $15
 0 Days Free Trial.
MPF'S COMPANY
 ling Atlanta, Ga.

N·T·I·N·G
 ery description
 ot book or the small-ing card, we are ipped to serve you
 according to our needs.

RYRIAN STANDARD
olishing Company
 Charlotte, N. C.
ING & REASONABLE PRICE
ING OUR ADVERTISERS
ON THIS PUBLICATION

the pale of banker's families and moneyed old maids. There were six children and the father watched the Bell street crossing and the mother was a good-natured slattern who didn't know a thing about sanitation. It was awful, horrible, shocking to have such folks in the neighborhood. "I knew when Jennie Pratt went away and left her house to be rented that trash would get into it. And now we've got them forever," cried Miss Stowe passionately. "Until they came there wasn't any objectionable feature here on Gordon street, not a dog, not cat, only dear little Billy and Honeydew, and I'm sure Honeydew is harmless enough." Honeydew was the parrot.

Five minutes later, when Mrs. Barrett returned to the porch, Billy was nowhere to be seen. His green auto stood empty.

She called, she hunted, she got Avis to call and hunt. Miss Stowe saw what was going on and came running out. Billy gone? Kidnapped! Of course. At that Mrs. Barrett had hysterics. Mr. Barrett was out of town, she hadn't an available relation or a friend nearer than Miss Stowe—Miss Stowe sent for the police. They came, gorgeously panoplied. Westmore's entire force, four crowded into a borrowed roadster. They beat through the shrubbery, they looked into the pond, they asked questions. Who had seen Billy last? Hazel Peters said she had seen a little red car going like everything, swoop through the street a moment before the alarm was given. Mrs. Cryden said she had heard a scream. Old Mr. Mitt said that a mysterious car had kept it's headlights turned on the Barrett house for ten minutes the night before. Little Carrie Wade, pie-eyed with imagination, said a queer-looking man had walked past the Barrett house three times that morning. The consensus was that Billy had been kidnapped for ransom. Mr. Barrett was notified by telegraph, extra police were called. Mrs. Barrett went to bed in a collapse and Doctor Hilton, arriving in haste, administered bromide and strychnine.

They searched far and near without avail. Miss Stowe enjoyed the first real excitement for years. After Mrs. Barrett, she was the center of attraction. Honeydew swore to empty ears; he capered on his perch, beat his wings, stood on his head with rage while his mistress, with folded arms, held audience on the front steps.

Hours passed. Afternoon arrived and the Tattler was just ready to get out an extra edition with dazzling headline, "Son of Banker Disappears!" Five times had young Boyd Walters, reporter for the Tattler, appeared on Gordon street to gather news. Avis, swollen faced with weeping and incoherent, told all she knew. Miss Stowe told much more than she knew.

Three o'clock brought Mr. Barrett, scarlet and dripping with perspiration. His high-nosed car was splashed with mud, for he had sought every possible short cut. He barely looked at his moaning wife. Being efficient, he went to the telephone and called up the Tattler office and the chief of police. Half an hour later, damp from the press, startling lettered bills appeared in several public places, "$1,000 Reward!"

About that time a swarthy, tubby woman in a faded blue dress appeared in Gordon street. She ambled causally by Miss Stowe's with a wide white-toothed smile. Obviously she was looking for somebody.

"It's that awful Serge woman," Miss Stowe said to the little group on her steps. They looked after her scornfully. "What can she want on this street?"

The Serge woman ambled down and ambled back. Then Miss Stowe overhauled her.

"Who are you looking for?" she demanded.

"That man's house where the lil'l boy got lost," returned Mrs. Serge amiably. "What for?"

"Oh, 'cause," Mrs. Serge broadly grinned.

"Do you suppose she knew anythin'?" asked Mrs. Lippitt.

"How could she?" Miss Stowe sniffed. She pointed. "That's the house over there."

The women went to the front steps, changed her mind and went around to the back door. An instant later Avis' voice was heard ascending in a shriek. Still another instant and Mr. Barrett dashed out of the house and plunged into his waiting car; he waited only long enough for the Serge woman to take a seat beside him before he broke the speed limit in his flight.

Ten minutes later he returned with the missing child. A waving of handkerchiefs and cries of joy went up from the group on Miss Stowe's steps. All the same they were disappointed.

Billy Barrett had been found. In fact he had never been lost at all. Lacking society, and free for an instant from his mother's watchful eye, he had wandered forth in search of some one to play with. He had come to the little house beside the crossing where Mr. Serge kept watch, had strolled in and finding it impossible to understand Mr. Serge's jargon or for Mr. Serge to understand his he had promptly gone to sleep. He had awakened refreshed and had had his dinner from Mr. Serge's pail—dark looking bread and onions and a red pepper. When Mr. Serge's "trick" came to a close he had taken Billy home with him and he had been having the time of his life playing with the smaller Serges when Mr. Serge, who had gone to the news-stand after some tobacco, had seen the poster—" $1,000 Reward!" He had hurried home to tell Mrs. Serge and she had fared forth to the bankers, discreetly keeping in the background meanwhile.

And that was all there was to the kidnapping of Billy Barrett except that Mr. Barrett really paid the $1,000 to Mr. Serge, who refused to take it.

"Na—Na! Me like lil fella, na—na!" protested Mr. Serge.

But Mr. Barrett insisted and it was Mrs. Serge who finally took the money. The $1,000 gave them their home free and clear. And because they were simple, kindly, honest folk who minded their own business, even Miss Stowe had to admit that she did not begrudge them their good fortune.

THE JOY OF YOUTH

When a young man or woman is able to compete in the business world and receive a good salary from their services, joy knows no bounds, we can soon have you in position to command such a salary. Just drop us a line today.

DRAGHON'S BUSINESS COLLEGE,
 Knoxville, Tenn.

25 Xmas Cards
 with FULL NAME EMBOSSED

Envelopes Included. These Cards are distinctive in color and design and are worth $3.00. Order today.

MONEY CHEERFULLY REFUNDED
 Shipped immediately upon receipt of Cash, Check or Money Order.

FORDHAM PRESS, Inc.
 Dept. 2 2496 Webster Ave., New York

100,000 SATISFIED CUSTOMERS

Largest and MOST MODERN PLANT in the Carolinas

LARGEST USERS OF WINNSBORO GRANITE IN THE CAROLINAS

Charlotte Marble & Granite Works

R. E. SCOGGINS Proprietor CHARLOTTE, N. C. W. 7th St. and Southern Railway
OLDEST LARGEST BEST Phone 281

Traffic cop gets summons

Even he can't get away with it

"DON'T try to put anything over on Nature," is the way a cop would express it. "Sooner or later she'll get you. Give you a ticket and lay you up in a place where you'd rather not be. Even cops can't get away with it. Like everyone else, if they don't pay attention to the warnings they get a summons that lands them in the doctor's office."

"What the doctor advises is Nujol. Says Nujol will regulate you just like you regulate traffic. Keep things from getting in a jam. And the doctor is right. Just ask the healthiest men on the Force. If they need Nujol—with all the exercise they get—what about the fellows that roll by in their cars?"

"Just take a tip from me. You may have the best intentions in the world. But everybody gets tied up at times. Nature can't always take care of things without help."

"Our Medical Chief tells me that Nujol isn't a medicine. It contains absolutely nothing in the way of medicine or drugs. It's simply a pure natural substance (perfected by the Nujol Laboratories, 2 Park Avenue, New York), that keeps things functioning at all times as Nature intends them to. Normally. Regularly. It not only keeps an excess of body poisons from forming (we all have them), but aids in their removal."

Nature's law O. K.

Start Nujol today. It won't cost you much—not more than the price of some smokes. Worth a try, isn't it?

You'll find Nujol at all drugstores. Sold only in sealed packages. Get some on your way home today.

RAISE MONEY!
For Your CHURCH & SUNDAY SCHOOL

You can make a generous profit with only a few hours' pleasant work selling Mistex Dish Cloths—a new woven cloth that finds instant favor and sells quickly. Send ten cents for sample and full particulars.

STOCKTON PRESS
516 N. Charles St., Baltimore, Md.

THE RIGHT WAY TO TRAVEL
is by train. The safest. Most comfortable. Most reliable. Costs less. Inquire of Ticket Agents regarding greatly reduced fares for short trips.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Church and Sunday School Furniture

Send For Special Catalogue
THE SOUTHERN DESK COMPANY
Hickory, N. C.

BURNS Ease the Pain
Heal the Sore
Stop Infection
— with —
GRAY'S OINTMENT
For Burns, Cuts and Sores
At all drug stores. For free sample write
W. F. Gray & Co., 724 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

For Nervous Headaches

Overwrought nerves cause many headaches. For quickest and easy relief nothing is so effective as Capudine because it relieves by soothing the nerves and is not narcotic. Women's pains and Neuralgia are promptly relieved also. Being liquid Capudine acts quicker and is easier on the stomach. 30c and 60c bottles at all drug stores. (Adv.)

A FRUIT TREE is a permanent asset to your property and a constant source of pleasure and profit. You will find greater satisfaction, year after year, if you set out our hardy, healthy stock this fall—Catalog free.

THE HOWARD-HICKORY CO.
BOX J, HICKORY, N. C.
Local Representatives Wanted

STANBACK
QUIETS NERVES

OVER-RUNS AND MILL ENDS
SAVE ONE-THIRD ON CLOTH DIRECT FROM LOOM TO YOU

Cotton Flannels, Pillow Tubings, Sheetings, Crinkled Cloth for Bedspreads, Pajama Checks, Chambrays, Tinted Dimities, Gingham, Art Silk Striped Madras for men's and boys' Shirts. Write for free samples and prices.
MONAGHAN MILL STORE, Dept. A., Greenville S. C.
"Textile Center of the South"

Children Cry for Fletcher's CASTORIA
A BABY REMEDY
APPROVED BY DOCTORS
FOR COLIC, CONSTIPATION, DIARRHEA

WHEN WRITING OUR ADVERTISEMENTS PLEASE MENTION THIS PUBLICATION

SPARKLES

I'm Alone
Pat was spending the night in a haunted room. Suddenly a voice moaned, "There's only you and me, there's only you and me."
"Huh!" cried Pat, "there'll only be you when I get this other boot on."—Psychic News.

Customer: "You charge more for cutting a woman's hair than a man's. How is that?"
Barber: "We barbers have had to learn an entirely new line of conversation for you ladies."—Watchman-Examiner.

Grandma: "Oh, Jenny, darling, I am surprised! Aren't you going to give your brother part of your apple?"
Jenny: "No, granny. Eve did that and she's been criticized ever since."—Exchange.

Teacher: "Who was king of France during the Revolution?"
Confused Student: "Louis the Thirteenth—no, the Fifteenth—no, the Fourteenth—no, the—well, anyhow, he was in his teens."

Mrs. Mandy Johnson: "I wants to see Mistah Roeser."
Office Boy: "Mr. Roeser is engaged."
Mrs. Mandy Johnson: "Go long, boy. Ah don't want to marry him. Tell him his wash lady wants huh money." —Evangelical Crusader.

Vacation Money
"Little bankroll, ere we part,
Let me hug you to my heart,
All the year I've cherished you,
I've been faithful,
You've been true,
Little bank roll, in a day
You and I will go away
To some gay and festive spot,
I'll come back—but you will not."—Ex.

Vacation Joys
"We are camping tonight at the tourist camp;
Give us a pillow, please,
Our weary forms a place to stretch.
And room for both our knees.
Many are the backs that are aching tonight,
Waiting for the tour to cease,
Many are the hearts that are longing for their homes,
Where they can sleep in peace."—Ex.

Cross Examination
A lawyer, formerly a vaudeville star, question a witness who also is an ex-vaudeville star.
Lawyer: Where were you at noon, November first, last year?
Witness: Where was I at noon, November first, last year?
Lawyer: Yes, where were you at noon, November first, last year?
Witness: Why do you want to know?
Lawyer: Why do I want to know?
Witness: Yes, why do you want to know?
Lawyer: Because it my duty to find out.
Witness: Because it is your duty to find out?
Lawyer: Yes, because it is my duty to find out.
Witness: Then I will tell you.
Lawyer: Then you will tell me?
Witness: Yes, I will tell you.
Lawyer: What will you tell me?
Witness: What will I tell you?
Lawyer: Yes, what will you tell me?
Witness: Why, what do you want to know?
Lawyer: What do I want to know?
Witness: Yes, what do you want to know?
Lawyer: I want to know why the judge is tearing his hair and why the jurors are strangling each other.
—College Humor.

Chicora College for Women
The Presbyterian College of South Carolina

Standard College Courses Large, Strong Faculty
Beautiful Grounds Ideal Surroundings
Healthful Climate Moderate Rates

For Catalog and Information, Address
S. C. Byrd, D.D., LL.D., President, Columbia,

FORTY-SIX YEARS CONTINUOUS SERVICE WITHOUT A LOSS ON ANY LOAN

We offer you a safe, tax-free investment for your regular weekly or monthly savings and your lump sum. Write for particulars.

ASSETS OVER $8,800,000.00

The Mutual Building and Loan Association
Established 1881 CHARLOTTE

If In Doubt, Take B. & L. Shares

You will earn the highest interest rate on your savings consistent with perfect safety, and pay no tax on dividends. Shares cost twenty-five cents per week, usually mature in 333 weeks. Net you 6 1-2 per cent maturity.

Series Open in January, April, July and October

Mechanics Perpetual Building & Loan Association
Established 1883 Charlotte

18 E. Fourth St.

A Beautiful Table, $75

A copy of a beautiful Duncan Phyfe table. The work throughout is solid mahogany. Apron and top crotch mahogany. Shown in a smaller size at $49.50. No item of furnishings can add more to the attractiveness of the living-room than well chosen table.

W.T. McCOY & Co
Home Furnishers
423-425 SOUTH TRYON STREET
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

For the Future

Are you making ready to share in the opportunity which increasing prosperity will bring?

A Reserve Fund Bank Will Help

Charlotte National Bank
Resources Over $5,000,000.00

"National Bank Safety For Savings"

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

Religious Newspaper for the Family

Representing the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.

F. ELLIS, D.D., Editor-in-Chief
F. ELLIS, D.D., Co-Editor
W. ASPER WILLIS, Contributing Editor

ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858

F. ELLIS, Vice-President
REV. J. G. GARTH, Treasurer and News Editor
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
BY PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY

CHARLOTTE, N. C., OCTOBER 16, 1929

No. 42

THE 116th ANNUAL SESSION

Of the Synod of North Carolina Held at Rocky Mount, October 8-10

J. G. Garth, Publicity Director of Synod

of North Carolina met at Rocky Mount, October 8-10. The representatives and elders, the First Church on Tuesday, and adjourned Thursday, 10 a. m. The attendance was usual, probably owing to the fact that the elders were not as usual.

Church, under the leadership of the pastor, Rev. Willard Conner, a complete organization for the entertainment of the members and every facility was provided and the disposal of the Synod was grateful, and expressed its gratitude in a resolution.

of the Synod was discussed with the greatest rapidity, due to the preparation of the report by the Committee of Finance, which met on Monday, and the details committed to the Finance Committee.

the work was digested and the Finance Committees could not do more work and offer recommendations without the delay of as much as a week. This had already been done and the Synod expressed its appreciation of this fine piece of work, and the chairman, Dr. A. D. P. Gilmour, and the executive secretary, Dr. E. E. Gillespie, and the other members of the committee for their self-sacrificing labors. Always the conviction of the committee had justified the work and a word was heard summing up too much power.

A committee of five was appointed to study the whole plan of the Synod for further efficiency. The report in Synod's dispatch was read by the moderator, Rev. J. G. Garth, of Winston-Salem, with acclamation, and none could pass him in his courtly administration. His fair church procedure, his impartial attention, his model presiding officer.

daily press of the state could find space to the reports of the account will be conspicuous features.

Heard by Synod

sermon by the moderator, Dr. L. Little, 34 years' ministry in China was a literary and stimulating appeal to be heard by the World. The sermon appeared in the week's Standard.

addresses by Drs. B. S. Johnson were stirring to the Synod, as they urged more evangelism in the church. The president of Union Seminary, 158 students there, and wishing to pursue the degree of Doctor of Divinity, only 12 had been admitted against the roads of northern seminaries.

Lingle, new president of the Synod, there were 606 at that time and they could take 500 more, and need $500,000 more to erect a new church, a new

Y. M. C. A. building, and more scholarships for needy students. He spoke of the fine spirit among the boys, and expressed great hope for the future of the school.

Dr. R. C. Anderson pleaded for the Church to stand by Montreat, and pay the $70,000 debt as requested by the Assembly.

Dr. D. Clay Lilly urged comity in promoting interracial relations with the colored people, and working with the headquarters of this movement in Atlanta.

Dr. W. J. Martin, president emeritus of Davidson College, who is giving a year to the promotion of the Annuity Fund for Ministerial Relief, made a strong address on the Fund, which was heard with close attention. He was convincing.

Strong speeches advocating Men's Work were made by Rev. H. N. McDiarmid and Dr. J. S. Foster. Dr. J. L. Fairly, coordinate secretary of Religious Education, the chairman of Men's Work, presented this report, and later spoke on his new field in Religious Education.

Dr. S. L. Morris, veteran secretary of Assembly's Home Missions electrified Synod with an appeal to back up the Assembly's call for evangelism. He spoke at the popular meeting for Home Missions, at which time Synod also heard Dr. W. H. Frazer on Colleges for Women, and Dr. J. S. Foster, who deplored the falling off in conversions and benevolence, and urged the duty of stewardship of time and money. Dr. W. L. Lingle gave some illuminating experiences in Personal Work for individuals. This meeting was presided over by Dr. E. E. Gillespie, the executive secretary of Home Missions.

Synod heard with pleasure an appeal from Roy Breg, of Atlanta, southern secretary of Christian Endeavor, for the church to think of its young people and encourage them in their efforts to lead spiritual lives.

A fine presentation of the Junior College at Maxton was made by Rev. R. A. McLeod, the president and J. P. Wiggins, of Maxton, secretary of the board. They showed progress in the endowment and equipment of the school which opened with 82 students, double the number anticipated. Synod adopted a resolution of appreciation of Mr. Wiggins and his promotion of the college.

Pleas were made for West Raleigh Church by Rev. J. R. Walker, the pastor, and Dr. E. P. Harrison, of State College, whose students include 500 Presbyterians. It is planned to build a $250,000 church for these young men, one unit of $100,000 to be quickly erected. A strong committee was appointed to do this.

Rev. G. C. Shaw (Colored), president of Mary Potter Memorial School at Oxford, addressed the Synod on his work. This school is affiliated with our Home Missions through the Northern Board.

Joseph B. Johnston, superintendent of Barium Springs Orphanage, presented the cause of 354 wards of Synod now at that institution, and pleaded for the raising of the deficit and full support of the orphanage in the budget and the Thanksgiving collection. Rev. Campbell Symonds, of Fayetteville added his plea for the children. Last year's expense was $94,000, there is a deficit of $45,000.

The Work of Synod

Dr. A. D. P. Gilmour, chairman of the Committee of 27, read his report to Synod, which had been formulated by the two day sitting of the committee just previous to the meeting of Synod, at which all but three of the committee were present. The divisions of the report by subcommittees were placed in the hands of standing committees appointed by the moderator to review and recommend. We give short summaries of these reports as adopted by the Synod:

Sub-Committee on Home Missions

This was the 41st annual report. Eighty-nine persons have been supported in whole or in part by this committee, and more than $67,000 expended. Nearly all fields in the nine presbyteries have been supplied with preaching. In the four state institutions 15 per cent of 7,000 students are Presbyterians. Dr. W. D. Moss at Chapel Hill and Rev. J. R. Walker at Raleigh State College are regular pastors, while two young women work in the normals, Miss Lucy Crisp at Greensboro, and Miss Ruth Hillhouse, at Greenville. All these workers have faithful and successful.

Rev. A. C. Miller works among the deaf mutes of the state.

September 16 was set as day of prayer for Synod's Home Missions.

Rev. A. T. Lassiter was reelected synodical evangelist.

Sub-Committee of Schools and Colleges

The central treasury for this cause was continued and F. L. Jackson, Davidson, was reelected treasurer. The sum of $32,758 was distributed to the eight schools, and the following percentages were adopted for next year: Six per cent, to Glade Valley and Elise High Schools, 11 per cent to Peace, Mitchell and Junior College at Maxton, 18 and one third to Davidson, Queens, and Flora Macdonald. With the addition of Junior College the churches are urged to increase their gifts to this cause.

Sub-Committee on Religious Education

The churches were urged to adopt graded literature in Sunday School work. Young People's Conferences were commended. Presbyteries were urged to employ full time Directors of Religious Education. Mr. Claude T. Carr was reelected Synodical Director, and made his annual report. Training Schools, Daily Vacation Bible Schools, and conferences had been held over the Synod much under his direction, 1465 teacher training credits had been awarded, the Davidson Conference was

(Continued on Page Two)

Campaign Groups In South Carolina Set Up

Presbyterian College Program of Deliverance is on the Way in Fine Shape

Chairmen and associate chairmen have been obtained for the twenty-eight groups into which the Synod of South Carolina has been divided for the carrying out of the Presbyterian College $350,000 Program of Deliverance.

These group chairmen and associates now are busy, in turn, obtaining the services of chairmen for the churches in their respective groups. Each church in the Synod is to have a chairman and a campaign committee, with the pastor as associate chairman, to carry on its part of the movement to raise the funds necessary to deliver Presbyterian College from the burden of debt.

The church chairmen are to be obtained by October 17, and the church committees by October 24. When the organization is complete more than a thousand laymen and pastors will have been welded into a strong force for the waging of the campaign.

Growing enthusiasm for the program has been noted throughout the State, for the program not only will deliver the college from the burden of debt, but also will deliver the Church from burdensome emergency contributions for college operating expense and life-sapping interest payments on the debt.

The group chairmen and associate group chairmen follow:

Zone No. 1: Piedmont Presbytery—Group 1, G. W. Brown, Anderson, chairman; Rev. J. H. Carter, Anderson, associate chairman. Group 2, Dr. E. C. Doyle, Seneca, chairman; Rev. J. L. Crouch, Clemson College, associate chairman; Group 3, L. H. Smith, Easley, chairman; Rev. C. G. Lynch, Easley, associate.

South Carolina Presbytery—Group 1, Dr. B. O. Whitten, Clinton, chairman; Rev. E. D. Patton, Laurens, associate. Group 2, Joel S. Bailey, Greenwood, chairman; Rev. J. W. Jackson, Greenwood, associate. Group 3, P. H. Mann, Abbeville, chairman; Rev. J. F. Bradley, Abbeville, associate.

Congaree Presbytery—Group 1, A. B. Langley, Columbia, chairman; Rev. F. Ray Riddle, Columbia, associate. Group 2, T. K. Elliott, Winnsboro, chairman; Rev. Dr. G. G. Mayes, Winnsboro, associate. Group 3, Rev. A. Douglas McArn, associate chairman; Group 4, William Wise, Trenton, chairman; Rev. B. S. Hodges, Batesburg, associate.

Zone No. 2: Enoree Presbytery—Group 1, I. A. Phifer, Spartanburg, chairman; Rev. J. D. Henderson, Spartanburg, associate. Group 2, J. V. Askew, Union, chairman; Rev. J. F. Matheson, Union, associate. Group 3, James A. Winn, Greenville, chairman; Rev. C. T. Squires, Greensboro, associate.

Bethel Presbytery—Group 1, W. B. Byars, Rock Hill, chairman; Rev. A. W. Shaw, Fort Mill, associate. Group 2 not yet selected. Group 3, C. N. Alexander, Clover, chairman; Rev. W. S. Patterson, Clover, associate. Group 4, R. R. Hafner, Chester, chairman; Rev. J. C. Neville, Lowrys, associate.

(Continued on Page Two)

THE 116TH ANNUAL SESSION OF OF THE SYNOD OF N. C.

(Continued from page 1)

attended by 449, which was the best yet.

Sub-Committee on Stewardship and Business

To all benevolent causes Synod gave last year, $747,998, which was a decrease of $148,042 from last year. To local work, contributions were $1,529,945. The whole amount was $2,359,874, a per capita of $31.91, which was a decrease from $37.57 of last year.

February was set aside as Stewardship month, the year as Stewardship year. March 16 is every member canvass date. Synod adopted the 60-40 ratio between Assembly and Synod's causes. The budget for next year is $885,000. For Synod's 40 per cent, $354,000, was divided as follows: Home Missions, $88,500, Orphans' Home $66,375, Schools and Colleges $76,995, Union Seminary $11,505, Presbyterian Home Missions, $110,625.

The budget of the Synod's Work Committee, $9,000, was apportioned to Home Missions, $6,000, Schools and Colleges, $2,000, Orphans' Home, $1,000. Men's Work was appropriated $300.

Sub-Committee on Woman's Work

Synod congratulated the women on their successful work especially commending the emphasis laid on the spiritual life. Synod commended the colored women's conference and the unit at Mission Court at Richmond. Synod offered its assurance of sympathy to Mrs. Winsborough, who has resigned as superintendent of the Assembly's Department of Woman's Work, and welcomed Miss Janie McGaughey her successor.

Dr. D. H. Scanlon was appointed to convey the greetings of Synod to the Synodical meeting at Durham, October 15-17.

Sub-Committee on Men's Work

This report was given in connection with a popular meeting, led by Dr. J. L. Fairly. He reported fine conferences at Montreat. Dr. J. S. Foster gave some account of Dr. W. F. Weir's addresses there, and urged all to get the book to be published containing the addresses. There are about 100 men's organizations in the Synod. Pastors were urged to encourage and co-operate with their men in forming groups for work in the churches.

Sub-Committee on Assembly's Causes

The churches were urged to take definite responsibility in Foreign Mission work. The Synod gave $232,020 to this cause last year. Assembly's Home Missions received, $93,486, Ministerial Relief and Education, $45,447, Sunday School Extension, $14,669, Training School, $3,744, Bible Cause, $3,744. Synod urged the adoption by the presbyteries of evangelistic campaigns, endorsed Home Mission Week, November 17-24 and endorsed the Annuity Fund.

Sub-Committee on Publicity

Synod again endorsed the Presbyterian Standard as its organ, and directed its agencies to take $3,600 worth of advertising in the paper. It urged also the consolidation of the paper with the Presbyterian of the South when the way was open.

Special Actions of Synod

Synod resolved to appoint a committee to consult the Trustees of Davidson College with reference to abolishing military training.

Special committees were formed to promote building a new church at Davidson College, and another building at Raleigh, at State College.

A Bureau of Vacancy and Supply was ordered to be established in the office of the Executive Secretary.

Synod adjourned to meet October 14, 1930. No place was chosen, the matter being left in the hands of the stated clerk.

CAMPAIGN GROUPS IN SOUTH CAROLINA SET UP

(Continued from page 1)

Zone No. 3: Pee Dee Presbytery—Group 1, Paul Quattlebaum, Conway, chairman; Rev. C. D. Brearley, Conway, associate. Group 2, Dr. F. L. Martin, Mullins, chairman; Rev. Fred J. Hay, Dillon, associate. Group 3, R. B. Fulton, Florence, chairman; Rev. H. G. Bedinger, Hartsville, associate. Group 4, Dr. O. A. Matthews, Bennettsville, chairman; Rev. J. S. Garner, Bennettsville, associate. Group 5, Julian S. McGregor, Ruby, chairman; Rev. J. Hector Smith, Jefferson, associate.

Harmony Presbytery—Group 1, R. H. McElveen, Lake City, chairman; Rev. R. W. Park, Lake City, associate. Group 2, Captain W. C. Davis, Manning, chairman; Rev. R. H. Ratchford, Greeleyville, associate. Group 3, Hugh L. McLaurin, Wedgefield, chairman; Rev. R. L. Grier, Mayesville, associate.

Charleston Presbytery—Group 1, Frank C. Riddick, Charleston, chairman. Group 2, Rev. F. B. Mayes, Beaufort, associate. Group 3, Prof. A. J. Thackston, Orangeburg, chairman; Rev. W. S. Scott, Bamberg, associate.

"No More Valuable Agency"

Rev. John McSween, President,
Presbyterian College,
Clinton, S. C.

Dear Mr. McSween:
Especially through the students who enter the ministry, Presbyterian College, at Clinton, S. C., is rendering to the Church in South Carolina and Georgia, and wherever the Church has projected its program, a service, the value of which cannot be estimated. At present there are fifteen Presbyterian College men at Columbia Seminary, which is thirty-two per cent of the student body. In former years P. C. has sent to Columbia, for theological training, many of her choicest sons.

From personal knowledge of P. C. men at the Seminary, and as fellow workers in Presbytery and Synod, I wish to say to Presbyterians of South Carolina, that the Church has no more valuable agency for producing trained leaders than her college at Clinton.

I have two sons who are now students at the College. Through observing the development of my own boys, and through their friends, I am deeply impressed with the fine spirit, sterling character, and steadfast faith of young men who are trained at Presbyterian College.

Cordially yours,
Richard T. Gillespie,
President, Columbia Theological Seminary, Decatur, Ga.

DR. BEDINGER RESIGNS HIS CONGO POST

Missionary and His Wife Close Active Relations With the Foreign Mission Work After 18 Years of Service

The following recommendation was adopted by the Executive Committee of Foreign Missions at its meeting October 9-10:

"Rev. Dr. and Mrs. R. D. Bedinger, for 18 years missionaries in Africa, tender their resignation from the foreign service to the Executive Committee under the fixed conviction, reached after much prayer and with sincere regret, that their field of service hereafter must be in this country. Dr. Bedinger requests that their resignation take effect on or not later than February 1, 1930, which ordinarily would mark the expiration of their furlough, unless he should enter upon some self-supporting work in advance of that date, in which case his salary would at once cease. We recommend that the Executive Committee in accepting their resignations express to Dr. and Mrs. Bedinger its profound regret, its sincere appreciation of the preeminently faithful and efficient service they have rendered in our African Mission during the last 18 years, and the assurance of its prayers that God's rich blessing may rest upon them and their children throughout the coming years."

DEVOTIONAL

HE CLOSED THE BOOK

Jesus, about to preach his first sermon, first "opened the book," and then, having read his text, "he closed the book." An obvious reason for closing the book was that he could not read it all, and we must constantly take it piece by piece in our studying and teaching it. But there were much deeper reasons why Jesus, having read his text from it, closed the book. He closed it to concentrate attention upon himself. He did not want his hearers to think only of the book and worship the bible. The Jews came perilously near doing this very thing as they pored over its pages, counting its very words, droning it out in the synagogue and shouting it on the streets. They were slaves of the book, worshipping its letter, and missing its spirit. Jesus, having read the book, then closed it and pushed it aside and took the center of the stage himself. He would not have it take his place, but would have them worship only him. The bible is not the Saviour of the world, and we are not to turn it into a book of magic. Highly as we are to appreciate and reverently as we are to study it, yet are we to make it only the means and not the object of our worship. More deeply still, Jesus closed the book because he was above it and independent of it; in a sense he did not need it. He had the spiritual content and life of the book in his own soul. He was himself a fountain of truth that welled out of him as water out of a spring. Books did not make him, but he made books. His soul was a soil full of seeds out of which come vast forests of literature and harvests of spiritual life. All great teachers are their own books and speak out of the fulness and freshness of their own minds. Some men when they close a book are done and can say nothing of themselves, but Jesus closed the book because he did not need it and spoke words out of his own living experience that have ever since been the saving wisdom and the wonder of the world. We should so read and study the bible that when we close it its words and spirit will remain in us as our living experience and constantly bear fruit in our lives.—Banner.

When thou prayest rather let thy heart be without words than thy words without heart, and remember emphatically either prayer will make thee cease from sin or sin will certainly entice thee from prayer.—John Bunyan.

Self-praise cannot abide when we lose ourselves in praise to God.

Faith that it is not worth fighting for may be surrendered without loss.

CHARLOTTE STANDARD TRAINING SCHOOL

Mr. Claude T. Carr, Director of Religious Education of the Synod of North Carolina will conduct a Standard Training School for Mecklenburg County Presbyterian churches in Second Church, Charlotte, October 27 to November 1. This is the Eighth Annual School for this county.

The school begins at 3 p. m. Sunday October 27, and will have two periods on the following five evenings. Mr. Carr is director, Dr. R. H. Lafferty is local chairman, W. E. Price is treasurer.

The courses of study will be as follows: Primary Methods and Materials, taught by Mrs. F. F. Ballard, Birmingham, Junior Materials and Methods, Miss Nan Weeks, Richmond, Teaching Work of the Church, Dr. E. B. Paisley, Richmond, The Pentateuch, Dr. C. M. Richards, Davidson, The Pupil, C. T. Carr, Mooresville, N. C.

All the faculty are specialists in their subjects, connected with our institutions and agencies.

FACING THE SUN

Egbert W. Smith

When the bright day is done,
Close,
And eastward far the shadows fall,
With noon's harsh noises
ward repose,
Ere night descending shall,

A glory flames upon the
Of richer color than born,
God's daily sign to unbelieve,
Life's beautiful eve out morn.

The kindly tolerance that had spurned,
The deeper wisdom that
'have brought,
The peace of soul from learned,
The tenderer sympathy
ing taught.

The ripening fellowship
Love,
The loosening grip of
and greeds,
The spirit touched with above,
And voiced in loveliness
deeds.

The quickened zeal to day,"
To fill with loving grown few,
The longing at the end
say,
"I've finished what to do."

So shines the sunset
The Master's image grown,
As grace, transforming,
stined goal,
And colors life with known.

Bright is the promise
star,
And rich with hope
life is new,
But when for us the bar,
A prospect fairer view:

Our Father's House,
heart's deep longing,
Sweet with His love
love first came,
And there to welcome
thronging,
More beautiful in same.

No strangeness there;
of time
Baptized in immortal
us;
Earth's best, all flow
Heaven's sweet
With dear familiar
meet us.

And there each noble
piration,
Cherished on earth
and tears,
Shall blossom into
mation,
And we be "like Him"
nal years,

And workers with Him
lime,
To endless altitudes
deavor,
On tasks outranging
time,
In exercise of power never.

Life's sunset do we rise.
Those glorious tints
heavens are gay,
Colors of morning are The golden dawn
day.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

FOUNDED 1858

Organ of the Synod of N. C. for 70 Years

The Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as Second Class Matter

Terms—The subscription price of the Standard is payable in advance. To ministers the price is To ministers' wives the price is $2.50 per year.

The mailing label shows the month and year to which the subscription is paid. Payment in advance is required.

Payment may be made by money order, check, or registered mail, and currency by mail.

Obituary Notices—No charge is made for notices of less, but for all over fifty words the charge is $1.00 per word.

Advertisements—Sent on application.

Changes—Kindly send us both old and new addresses previous to the desired change.

Changes are made only upon the written request of the advertiser. Settlement in full must be made at the same time.

Advertising and Business Communications Should be Addressed to

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

Box 869

Charlotte, N. C.

EDITORIAL

AT THE SYNOD

Dr. Searight disclaims any connection with the Synod, yet he sees some resemblance, in at least. He has lingered long on this subject, always lands on his feet, when he is at the meetings of the Courts of the Synod, either General Assembly or Synod. His last meeting at Rocky Mount was no different, he fared better in many respects, than in the nearness of the place of entering the delightful hospitality when he was at that place.

Days of uncertain domestic help, she is a woman who opens her home to the stranger, because she has no assurance that the labor will fall upon her.

In this uncertainty, it is fast becoming the custom of churches entertaining Courts of the Synod to do so by proxy in hotels or boarding houses, else to let others do the entertaining. This year at Rocky Mount, N. C., the attendance above the average.

The sermon was preached by Rev. D. Searight, who has spent many years as a missionary in China, and is now home on a furlough. His sermon in full in the Standard of the Synod.

Dr. S. Foster, of Winston-Salem, N. C., was elected by acclamation. This is rather an unusual thing, as it is generally customary to substitute the delegates, and at times the delegates.

It seemed to be in the air, the Union work among the Churches, seems also to have related the commissioners of the General Assembly and the Synod.

Dr. Searight, the present moderator of the General Assembly, was elected by acclamation, and the Synod of North Carolina also elected its moderator in the same manner.

Dr. Searight may claim that this is probably the highest honor was given without a contest—a proceeding that shows both the respect of the man and his reputation as a speaker.

The exercises with which each meeting of the Synod is opened daily constitute the most important part of the proceedings because by each service the members are brought into a frame of mind to debates that may be sharp.

The report of importance was that of "The Committee of Work," with Rev. Dr. Searight as chairman.

Dr. Searight made a most carefully prepared report, and the Synod to work to great advantage and in the manner of transacting business was at the General Assembly, it was a new thing and of course it met with opposition because they saw in it a tendency to the concentration of power, alien to our form of representative government.

It is predicted that in time we would have a concentration of Cardinals, all the power in the hands of a few in order to avoid that danger and to have a political government representative, and in his report that all the recommendations of his committee should be referred to the Standing Committees, appointed at each annual meeting by the Moderators, that should consider these recommendations and report to the Synod, and such should only become the action of the Synod when confirmed by a majority vote. In this way the action instead of being the act of a small minority, would become the action of the Synod. The report of this Work Committee reflected great credit upon the analytical mind of its Chairman, backed as he was by his Committee.

This report showed that there has been a decided decrease in the benevolent contributions.

Dr. Lingle, the new President of Davidson College addressed the Synod in the interest of that institution. The address was clear and informing, and no doubt will bring forth fruit, if not in the shape of money, certainly in new students.

The Synodical Communion was held on Wednesday, at which time Dr. Walter Lingle and Dr. A. R. McQueen presided.

Then followed the Memorial services in honor of Rev. Mr. Yandell, Rev. Mr. Gaston and Rev. J. S. Morrow, Colored. The latter will be printed as the brother appointed to read this was absent.

We should have mentioned the address on the value of Montreat by Dr. R. C. Anderson. Rev. H. N. McDiarmid made an address on Men's Work, and was followed by Dr. Foster on the same subject.

Dr. W. J. Martin, former President of Davidson College spoke in behalf of the Annuity Fund.

We have heard more than one speech on this subject and have read more than one explanation of the proposed plan, but we must say that this address was the best we have ever heard. It came with peculiar force because as an elder he could advocate it without making the impression that he was self-interested.

The Christian Endeavor Secretary, Mr. Breg, was introduced by Rev. W. A. Gamble. His address made a favorable impression on the Synod and must have removed some of the objections to this Society.

The interest of Synod in the proposed new church building in West Raleigh was solicited by Dr. Harrison of the State College and Rev. J. R. Walker, the pastor.

Wednesday evening was devoted to the cause of Home Missions in the Synod.

Instead of having representatives from various fields to present the work, Dr. Gillespie, believing in variety, had several speakers with prepared addresses. Dr. S. L. Morris of the Atlanta Committee delivered a carefully prepared address that showed much study and thought.

The time was carefully divided among the speakers and when Dr. Morris was about to encroach upon the time of the others, in his enthusiasm for his subject, Dr. Gillespie in the most delicate manner dropped a hint to that effect.

When Dr. Morris asked a few minutes times in order to "wind up," it was suggested, "sotto voce," that he was already "wound up."

However that may be, it was an address far above addresses on such occasions, giving us a glance at the past that caused us to remember things forgotten.

Dr. Walter Lingle spoke on Personal Evangelism and Dr. J. S. Foster gave us a short, but strong address on Stewardship.

Dr. Lacy, President of Union Seminary gave a most interesting account of the work and prospects of the Seminary.

He reported 146 students already on the ground. He warned the Church of the danger threatening the Church, through the ministry of the future by reason of the rebellion against old beliefs. He quoted from a questionnaire sent out in the neighboring states near Chicago, where ministers confessed that they do not believe in a personal God, some did not believe in inspiration and some never prayed.

It was a wonderful address that made us realize the need of better training, such as our Seminary could give if they could raise money enough to enlarge the faculty.

Dr. J. H. Henderlite presented the report on Religious Education, and bore testimony to the excellent work of Claude T. Carr, Director of Religious Education. Dr. J. L. Fairley, the co-ordinator of Religious Education, delivered a fine address, which favorably impressed all who heard by its clearness and good sense.

The Synod's action in taking publicity space in the Standard is highly appreciated.

The editor was forced to leave at mid-day on Thursday, and, therefore, must refer our readers to the story by our co-laborer, if they wish to know the further proceedings.

THE DEATH OF H. B. SEARIGHT, D.D.

On October 8, the members of the Synod of North Carolina, in session at Rocky Mount, were saddened by a telegram from Washington, N. C., stating that Dr. H. B. Searight, the pastor of that Church, had passed away after a long illness. The Synod stood in silent prayer which was offered in behalf of his widow and family.

Dr. Searight was born in Nashville, Tenn., August 27, 1878, was educated at S. W. P. University, studied at Princeton Seminary and Union Seminary, Richmond, Va., and was licensed by Nashville Presbytery, September 9, 1901. In 1902, September 12, he was ordained by Cherokee Presbytery and then served as pastor the Acworth group of churches from 1902-1908. October, 1908, he became pastor of our church at Washington, N. C., where he did his best work, dying October 8, 1929.

He was a trustee of Peace Institute and a member of Synod's Work Committee, and in 1925 he was the Moderator of the Synod of North Carolina. Dr. Searight was a man of scholastic ability, and a close student.

His friends expected him to occupy a professorship in one of our Seminaries, but death cut short what promised to be a career of usefulness.

We can ill afford to lose such men—his loss will be long felt, as he was a strong conservative thinker at a period of our history when such men are few.

TWO KINDS OF LIES

There are more ways of killing a dog than hanging, and in like manner there are more ways of lying than suggesting the false. The moralists have always made the distinction between suggesting the false and suppressing the truth, and have classified both under the name of lying.

This distinction, however, is not always kept in mind, and under the cover of the latter name much lying is done. Sometimes it is done to ignorance, and sometimes it is deliberate. Cardinal Gibbons who during his life was one of the leaders of the Catholic Church in America, and who by reason of his high character was a man of much influence, wrote a book discussing the Church and State in which he endeavored to gain the respect of the Protestant world for his Church, by reciting what the Catholic Church had done for the world.

Among the blessings he mentioned the gaining of the Magna Charta from King John by the barons of England, by which the world gained trial by jury, right of habeas corpus and no taxation without representation.

He claimed that the Catholic Church was the leader in this movement, as it was by Langston, Archbishop of Canterbury at the head of the Catholic barons of England.

His object was evidently to meet the charge that our liberties in this country would be in danger in the event that the Catholics gained the control of our government.

If such a claim could be substantiated by the facts in the case, it would be a strong answer. This, however, is another case of suppressing the truth, yet with those ignorant of history, it has for years carried weight.

Let us examine the facts, and see how far the Catholic Church was responsible for these blessings. The Catholic Church then was the Church before any division. There were two elements in it, one believing in liberty and one ready to persecute. These two parties, 268 years after, under Martin Luther divided, one becoming the Protestant Church which suffered persecution and the other the Church now known as the Catholic Church of this day, which was the more powerful body. As soon as this separation took place, the stronger body began to persecute the weaker, and ever since wherever they have had the power, they have persecuted the Church. So far from giving the Catholics the credit for the Magna Charta, let us remember that English history gives the credit to Langston, Archbishop of Canterbury who was afterwards suspended from his office by the Head of the Catholic Church. Let us also remember that this Head of the Catholic Church

(Continued on page 10)

CONTRIBUTED
THE SUCCESS OF THE CHURCH DEPENDS UPON THE PERSON-ALITY OF ITS MEMBERSHIP

C. W. Hunt

An editorial in the Charlotte (N. C.) News dated July 28, dealt at length on the church's present condition and position, under the caption of: "The Church In Retreat." There is nothing in that editorial that is not food for thought, but the writer was discussing conditions and was not offering remedies.

The present writer may not be capable of discussing causes and effects, but if there is any humble, little layman who feels more keenly the ills of the church, than I, then I am not acquainted with that man. I doubt if I can be classed as either an optimist or a pessimist. I am free to confess there are some hopeful signs and signs that offer no hope, so without further preliminary I am about to say that the churches' future depends upon the individual members. If these are awake to the importance of their profession, feel that its ultimate triumph depends upon what we as individuals do and say and feel, then it goes forward. If all but a few "Salts of the earth" feel that all that is required of them is to pay a small amount to the budget when begged to do so; that there is no obligation for attendance upon the hours of worship; that they can run with and be like the worldly; neither attending the services, paying the budget, saying a prayer or lending a helping hand, then the condition of the church can be classed as hopeless, and its position, as it faces the world, a problem, a very serious problem. These are facts that have to be faced.

A Striking Contrast

Not many months ago I attempted to speak to an adult Sunday School assembly on this subject: "What kind of a church member are You?" My attempt to distinguish the different personalities and what caused them to be in the Church, was far from satisfactory to me, but I tried to illustrate my meaning in this way: here is a man in mature life, who has gone far afield in sin, has been wicked, an unbeliever. By some wonderful Providence of God this man is awakened, is convicted, is converted to God, and comes into the church feeling that he was lost eternally. Such a man feels an obligation to God and to the Church that the man or woman who was never wicked, nor ever felt that he or she was lost in sin can ever feel. The former church was made up largely of such men, the harvest of the pioneer preachers; and they were alive, they went forth to help others, felt a duty to, and a pride in their church that made them towers of strength, men and women worthy of example. In contrast with such as are here mentioned the church is now largely composed of men and women who grew up in it very perfunctorily. They never felt that they were lost, never experienced any change of heart; they love the church from habit, not for its vitality or saving power to them. Such as these all too often feel that the obligation is small. If they feel like sleeping all Sunday morning it is their business. They want the church to grow and prosper, but not by any act of theirs. Let Sam do the work, hold the offices and assume all the obligation. They may be wide enough awake to confess that the church stands them a good turn, in that it is the only thing between them and utter ruin of society, as civilization is known. It has never occurred to these members described here that if all felt and acted as they do, the whole organization would go to the "Bow-wows," the ministry would quit in disgust, and the houses of worship would be deserted.

These are not fancies. Trace them out and you will find truth in all the foregoing. I was born in the church, have been a member for 54 years, I have seen many phases, have seen the obligation felt grow less and less. I belong to a church that is now in the midst of a great building program; greater than its number of members ought to undertake, as judged by the world. In it are men who feel the responsibility and have obligated themselves to the limit in a human sense, but there are those who are willing to stand aloof, pay little, come seldom; yet if these were asked the direct question: do you want the church to grow and win? they would answer in the affirmative; yet there is not enough of the love of God in their hearts or church pride in their bosoms to cause them to feel that their church's success depends on the attitude of the individual. It can never grow and succeed while less than half its membership has to carry the burden. Can anything save the church of God live under such conditions? Would anything save the untiring mercies of God stand for such laxity?

Spiritual Declension Explained

Dr. E. O. Watson, a native South Carolinian, who has grown old in the service of The Southern Methodist Church, as pastor, presiding elder, and is now editor of the Southern Christian Advocate at Columbia, in a sermon the last Sunday in July took severely to task those who like Elijah under the juniper tree see only evil in present conditions. He quoted the opinion of many leaders of wide reputation, but the most thoughtful and hopeful thing he said, outside the promise of the Master himself that the "gates of hell shall not prevail," was the assertion that the present chaos comes from what has come into the world in the last twenty-five years: the movie, the radio, the auto, the airplane, the world war. All these have come in so short a time that they have demoralized us; that we live in a new world so new we have not yet found ourselves. The foregoing is a poor synopsis of an hours discourse, but there is something worth thinking about. It may be possible that the newness of things we have, the elimination of distance by auto and airplane, the ability to hear anything and everything going on in the world from the air, while under one's own roof, has much to do with the wildness, in comparison, of the present membership, but be it understood and well known that none of these in any way releases the individual church member from his or her obligation to the church of his choice. These new things may finally work out to the glory of God and the good of the church, but it is yet to be seen.

My experience is with the small town church, the city church, the village church and slightly with the country church. I know that the trouble with my city church is the lack of that feeling of responsibility that each member is an integral part of it. Too many feel that they are just fillers in, occasional bench warmers, the church will go on even if they drop out. I am sure right here is the secret of the church's present ills. You and I are not willing to acknowledge that the church's prosperity depends upon Me, upon You; that Our presence, Our money, Our first duty is at the regular service; that is what the church is to Us, what it is intended to be, it requires Our love, Our prayers. Our presence and all the money we can possibly give it.

Small Interest at Summer Resorts

I have dealt with a resort village church now for eight years, and here is a thing few ministers have ever come up against, and even fewer laymen know anything about the conditions I have found. This special church has a once a month regular service the year round. That is all they ask (the membership is very small) all they want, all they care to pay for. This happens to be where I spend my summers, and from the first I have undertaken to provide a preacher so as to have services each Sabbath morning, all on my own resources, depending on the Sunday morning collection for the expenses. I have succeeded in the several years very poorly. We have had many inspiring services. The thing I cannot understand is the fact that these people attend service in the off seasons, but when the summer comes and I announce a program of services by a different minister each Sabbath, the local membership, on the whole, quit me as school children quit school when it is out. I am told that such is true in all Methodist resort churches in the connection. The local membership will not come to church for various excuses. There is only one conclusion: such are short on vital religion; they feel that they are getting enough already. (It is proper to say here that such is not true of other denominations.) And this would be unfair if I did not say that in this resort work I come in contact with another class: men who are forward in church work when at home, go to a resort and never go to church, spending their time in amusement. These have some excuse; the preacher gets a vacation, why not I have a respite from the church service? Will that pass muster under the searching eye of truth?

A Demand for More Consecration

Hence I assert without the fear of any one's successfully contradicting it that the church's present ills lies in indifference of its membership, and the cure for its ills in a better, more faithful, more consecrated membership. We have gone along so long, filling the church roll with children's names whom we have failed to follow up and teach; who grow up to take the church as a matter of course, a thing that will live on in spite of anything I do or you do, who have no abiding faith in God, nor feel any need of Him in their lives or in the life of the church. With such a membership there need be no wonder that the attendance is small; that anything of a worldly nature will attract them; that there is no desire to make the church the greatest thing in all the land. And this brings me back to where I began. A reconsecrated ministry, assisted by a deeply religious laity, that will not perfunctorially preach twice each Sabbath, but a preacher and a leadership that will visit and follow up and lift up or drive out the dead membership like a pruner in his vineyard. The general run of church membership will have to wake up before there can be what is known as a live church and at work to save men from their sins and make the world fit to live in.

I know of no better closing of this than the retelling of the incident in a fourth quarterly meeting many years ago, when Rev. Hugh K. Boyer was presiding elder, when he found a church that always paid out rather far in arrears for the end of the year and chided the officials for their lack of interest. They began to make excuses about the little time they had to do the church's work. When they had finished Doctor Boyer said: "Brethren, is the church of God worth while? Is it? If it is, it demands the best there is in us."

The success of the church, the getting of it out of its present lethargic state depends upon the personality of its membership. You, I, all of us must make its needs first.

Charlotte, N. C.

(Mr. Hunt, the writer of the article above, is a good Methodist friend. His logic, however, is undenominational.—Ed.)

THE TWO MEN

Rev. T. J. Knight

The first is of the earth, earthy; the second is of the LORD from heaven. I Cor. 15:47.

There are two men in the world, world position to each other.

The one is the result of Satan's work, the perfect creation of God. He is of the earth, of his nature and his desire to do evil and rebel against God. He is under the control of the devil. 10:5-19. His whole work is to bring about the downfall of mankind.

The second is from God. His nature is to serve God and bless the human race. He is God himself. John 1:1. And was made of a man. Ver. 14. As a man he conquered Satan. 3:21. He made a way for a captive race to return home to God. Eph. 4:8.

These two characters have their representatives in the Christian world today. It is hard to distinguish them, for there are nice ladies and gentlemen in both groups. In fact, the Master tells us to "judge"; but "try the spirits." "Every spirit that confesseth that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh, is of God: And every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh, is not of God." A kind act and good behavior do not always indicate a godly person. For "Satan himself is transformed into an angel of light."

By the Sin of the First Man

The whole race of human beings have been under the power of the devil. I Jo. 5:19. Through the dispensation till Christ came given opportunities to help himself back to God, he failed every time. Those who found their way to the Creator were led by a special Providence. The whole race is permeated with sin and it is the will of God for them to please God. Jo. 8:44. We must expect a clod of earth to turn to an angel, and an out going through the tree as to expect a man to turn to God of his own free will. When the Holy Spirit was sent to write on the heart, Heb. 8:10. And he was told to be "born again." Jo. 3:3. "They that are in the world do not please God." Rom. 8:8. "If any man love the Spirit of Christ he is none of his." Ver. 9. The blessed gospel age it is man's part to "open the door." Rev. 3:20. It is the Spirit's part to "teach the nations." Jo. 14:16. Also protect and fight for the church, with "sword" and "shield," Eph. 6:16.

Their Plans and Purposes

The first man beguiled the parents of the human race in the garden and aimed at the destruction of the world; but the second man, the Lord Jesus, conquered Satan by his life of righteousness and atoned for the guilt of the world on Calvary. 15:22. And so brought life and "purity" of the city to light through the gospel," II Tim. 1:10. Now the "devil" "walketh about seeking whom he may devour."

But "the second man," Christ Jesus, has to have suffered a while, make you perfect in strength, settle you," I Pet. 5:8-10. The first brings death and misery; the second brings life.

This struggle has been going on between the forces in the world, all the time, since the fall in the flesh. The Lord Jesus is in the flesh, the Spirit, his Word, and his messengers, giving the great throng of redeemed ones to fill the earth, the New Jerusalem. Luke 14:23. The devil is all the time sowing the tares. It goes on in the community circles, as well as in great count down world-wide movements. But the most important is that in the individual life. It is true that "the powers, the rulers of darkness of this world, the spiritual wickedness in high places are at work." Eph. 6:12. But the mighty Captain has said to his flock, "They shall never perish, I will never pluck them out of my hand," Jo. 10:28. The eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath thee are the everlasting arms," Deut. 33:27.

Cornelia, Ga.

LISTENING THREE HOURS WANTING MORE

Egbert W. Smith

A recent letter from Rev. Martin A. Hopp, one of our beloved missionaries, makes it still more clear the recent upheaval in China, instead of being a setback, has powerfully advanced the Kingdom of our Saviour in that great land. He speaks of receiving into the Kingdom 82 members by baptism. Of a certain layman in the field he says:

"Here I examined some of the most prominent quakers I ever examined. One young man was a catechized and belonged to an official family. I had been converted in the Tsingkianpu field and had come home especially to tell the glad news to the members of her family. Her testimony was so appealing that she could not resist it. I paid them a visit and spent hours talking and answering questions ab-

ing man, though most deeply interested in of his country and a former student in a demy, was also a most earnest inquirer, due to the fact that his wife is a fine Christian in our Sutsien school. One school teacher miles to be examined and four miles back woman made a round trip twelve miles on examined and attend church.

places I preached to crowds on the streets. In of us preached to a crowd of over a huny till we were exhausted. After three hours still stood and wanted to hear more! The gelist told me that he frequently has similar The people seem to be open to the gospel as

MISSIONS OF STUART ROBINSON SCHOOL

By Alma Harris

ity, alumnae, students and other friends emily's Training School often speak of f A. T. S. No one can be there very long s conscious of this spirit which is such a of the school. Therefore when getting o to Stuart Robinson School I was very ed to be told by one who, though he had e privilege of attending A. T. S., knew because of three years spent at the "inross the way." "You'll find the spirit of onson more nearly like that of A. T. S. lace you go." I had not been at Stuart ong before I realized this to be so. It g that cannot be easily explained but it everything that is done and said—the in-concern in the guests and in each other, the acts, the way in which the work is done— showed this spirit. As I came to know s better and learned of and attended the er groups held twice a week I found the is spirit.

ers at Stuart Robinson are of the high- their training and character make them o do the work they have been called of Each of them—the superintendent and atrons, dietitian, nurse, office workers s have gifts with which they could make themselves in the world. However, they .this mountain school in which to labor ich they receive very small salaries. No what part of this is put back into the year, too. Their reward is the joy of the knowledge that the boys and girls itted to live lives of usefulness and to ers among their people.

and girls are among the finest that can any school. I was impressed with the ad good will with which they did the ks about the grounds, dormitories and . There are no hired servants but every n order and just as it should be. The d order on the dining-room and dormi-group of that size and of those ages was rful. In the Sunday School classes they markable knowledge of the Bible. There er of girls in the Teacher Training Class ways entered into the discussions in a owed great ability as well as a knowl-Bible.

ing people have wonderful religious opesides the influence of the lives of the al workers. The Bible is taught in every gh the High School. Sunday School is Sunday morning in the administration al then teachers and pupils go to Blackey he morning service in the little church e are three Christian Endeavor Societies on Sunday afternoon and night. The ng talks given each Thursday night are to the children and young people. The given by Mr. Cockerham, Mr. Cooper wis are most helpful and inspiring. I ed to find in talking with a number of eople that they are interested in taking they have gained to their people in the ollows of the mountains.

entified with Stuart Robinson are the al his wife, Rev. and Mrs. H. L. Cocker- hearts are wrapped up in the school, n and the faculty. Their lives and prayers to them all. Every Sunday some of the in their home and only those who have ter day in a boarding school know what hange it is to visit in a real home. It is blessing to those who have so little op- change in a place so shut off as the . It was my good fortune to be in this umber of times.

it a great privilege that my first work yd of Kentucky was at Stuart Robinsdn oating much pleasure in working all over ut shall always be glad when my work eack there.

ch has a right to be proud that it has col as a part of its work. All who give orts, support may be sure that their gifts are to further the Kingdom of God.

Harbard put it stronger. Probably he was think- lucion when he wrote: "The actual fact is that Opportunity not only knocks at your door ay; an anvil chorus on every man's door, and the owner around the corner with a club. can easily be recalled by every one where ctually smashed in the door and collared her dragged him forth to success."

CONCERNING COLLECTIONS

"The announcement of the collection brings a drop in the temperature. It sounds and seems an irrelevant intrusion of secularity into the sanctities of worship; but that is quite wrong. We have drifted into the bad habit of thinking that any allusion to money in public worship requires apology; and so we do it timidly and shamefacedly. But all this springs from a misunderstanding about money.

"We are not ashamed to talk freely about money elsewhere; and if appeals for money are distasteful to us in church, it is not because there is anything wrong with money, but because there is something wrong with us."

Dr. Richard Roberts, in the New Outlook, tackles that difficult question, the church collection. He writes, after the above:

"Money is a symbol of value and that value is something created by the toil of man out of the gifts of God in nature. A coin is so much minted life; and if we could keep that steadily in mind we should in general use money very differently from the way in which we commonly do.

"Money has, to be sure, no value in itself. It is a symbol: and value is imputed to it by social agreement. We mint or print money as a convenience of exchange, a device to facilitate the transfer of values and the distribution of commodities. It is an invention to simplify life; and it is a curious reflection that a device of simplification should have become the subject-matter of the most intricate studies, the profound mysteries of international finance.

"But money still remains what it was, one of the vehicles of our social traffic. Sometimes we speak of it as currency, which, being interpreted, is something that runs; and money which is not running is not money. Moreover, we speak of money being in circulation, which means that money is money only when it is in motion.

"Idle money is not money at all; it is the symptom of a disease or an obsession. Money is the common carrier of value; and it is, therefore, a binder of society. Alas, that in our time it should have become also a divider of society! But that is due not to any evil in money but in us. Sometimes people inveigh again "tainted gold." But there is no such thing. Unhappily, however, there are tainted persons.

"But money can become the carrier of more and rarer things than economic value. Economic value is itself in a real sense a spiritual thing. We know it is a real thing; but no man has ever seen it. We have to invent symbols of value in order to handle and to mobilize it. We say an ounce of gold is worth so much; but that is more or less arbitrary. There is no value in gold except what we attach to it in our minds; and if you doubt that, you have only to consider how much a chest of gold would be worth to you if you were stranded and starving on a desert island.

"What value gold has is attributed to it by social agreement. We take a piece of metal or of paper and we make of it a carrier of value; but if we can do that, we can make it a carrier of other things as well. And here we come upon the higher uses of money. It may be made the carrier of love and light, of grace and good will, of beauty and truth. We may transfigure it into a currency of spiritual values; we may use it to put into circulation the deep things of God.

"Here a new principle comes in. In commerce there is a principle of equivalence. For your penny or your dollar you get the expected equivalent in goods and service, and for more money you may acquire commodities more in quantity or better in quality. But when money passes into the realm of the spirit that principle does not apply. There the return is determined not by the amount of the gift, but by the spirit and the intention of it.

"The value of a man's gift is not measured by the amount of it, but by how much of himself goes with it. The amount of the gift, of course, bears some reasonable relation to one's means; for he who gives less than his means allow is giving nothing of himself. His gift is without grace and good will, and there is no blessing in it for himself or for his neighbor.

"The collection should be and can be made the supreme sacramental moment of a Sunday-morning service. The collection plate becomes a sort of altar on which the sacrifice is myself. And that, I think, is the only Christian way of looking at it. Instead of being an impertinent intrusion of secularity it becomes in that light the high moment of our worship."

SERVING THE KINGDOM IN OVERALLS

Egbert W. Smith

If any one has any doubt whether the gospel is still the almighty power of God, let him read the letters of our foreign missionaries. There he will see drunkards made sober men, the lewd made clean of heart, and the Pauline miracle continually re-enacted of the enemies of the gospel transformed into preachers of the faith which once they destroyed.

I want all our people to read the following paragraph which I find in a very recent letter from Mrs. H. L. Ross, one of our beloved missionaries located at Morelia, Mexico:

"The colporteurs of the Latin-American Prayer Fellowship have just visited our city and in spite of fanatical opposition sold over two hundred New Testaments in the market places. These three Mexicans are from the laboring class and serve the Kingdom in overalls. They are all trophies of Grace and knowing that the Word is the Seed of Life, they sow it with joy.

"At a temperance service given at our church, one of them told of his conversion. Since childhood he had been a heavy drinker and lost in every form of vice. Under the influence of drink, he had committed many crimes, more than once attempting to kill his wife. He was often conscious of being bound and carried about by an evil spirit, who incited him to specific violences. One night he felt thus led to go to the evangelical church where services were being held, to attempt the killing of 'one of those Protestants.' He was met at the door by a Mexican woman, who had something in her face and voice which subdued the spirit which was directing him. Led by an influence he could not comprehend he quietly entered and took a seat, listening with a new fixity of attention to the scripture reading and gospel songs. As is often the case with the depraved, God used a hymn to carry to his soul the message of life.

"This man is now a joyous servant of the Christ, straight and clean in body and soul, and bears about his Indian face that same light which the woman had in hers, as she invited him into an evangelical church on that memorable night."

BOOKS

The Gospel of the Kingdom, with an Examination of Modern Dispensationalism, by Philip Mauro.—Samuel McPheeters Glasgow, D.D.

Mr. Mauro, a well known Bible teacher, a member of the bar of the United States Supreme Court, was himself an erstwhile strong dispensationalist. This background makes his present volume both arresting and significant. He presents, with trenchant pen and keen discriminating insight and full scriptural background, the prevalent view of the fathers up to some thirty years ago. His position regarding dispensationalism is one quite congenial to a great segment of our own Church.

He examines the Scofield Bible with searching frankness and proceeds on the safe basis that the comments are not as completely inspired as the text. He traces the history of dispensationalism; discusses sanely the subject of "law and gospel;" patiently and earnestly faces the whole Kingdom question, and the Kingdom passages of the gospel and their import.

He projects, with great vigor, the part that Israel shall have in the Kingdom, and seems also to find that every Jew that is saved will be saved in the same manner as any other man is redeemed; namely, by a personal faith in Christ and not by some national-wide movement into the Kingdom.

The book is well written. There is a movement that one senses at the very beginning and which carries well to the end, and the whole presentation is very strong.

Knoxville, Tenn.

GOD'S GARDEN

[These verses were written by Mrs. Dorothy Frances Gurney, a granddaughter of Bishop Bloomfield, of Chester and London, for the late Lord Ronald Sutherland Leverston-Gower, on his garden at Hammerfield, Pennshurst.]

The Lord God planted a garden
In the first white days of the world,
And He set there an angel-warden
In a garment of light unfurled.

So near to the peace of Heaven,
The hawk might nest with the wren;
For there in the cool of the even God walked with the first of men.

And I dream that these garden closes,
With their glades and their sun-flecked sod,
And their lilies and their bowers of roses,
Were laid by the hand of God.

The kiss of the sun for pardon,
The song of the birds for mirth,—
One is nearer God's heart in a garden
Than anywhere else on earth.

For He broke it for us in the garden,
Under the olive trees,
When the Angel of Strength was the warden,
And the Soul of the World found ease.

"But once I pass this way,
And then—and then, the silent Door
Swings on its hinges—
Opens . . . closes—
And no more
I pass this way.
So while I may
With all my might,
I will assay
Sweet comfort and delight
To all I meet upon the Pilgrim Way,
For no man travels twice
The Great Highway
That climbs through darkness up to light,
Through night
To day.

—John Oxenham.

CHURCH NEWS

PERSONAL

Rev. R. D. Bedinger, D.D., changes his address from 48 St. Dunstan's Road, Asheville, North Carolina, to Richmond, Virginia, care of Union Theological Seminary.

NORTH CAROLINA

Norwood—At the morning service September 29, seven young people were received on profession of faith and the sacrament of baptism.

At the communion service October 6, one was received by transfer of membership.

Belmont—The revival services conducted throughout the week at the Belmont Presbyterian Church by Rev. Donald McIver, of Bristol, Va., closed last Sunday night. Services have been held each morning and evening for the past week.

Large congregations have heard Rev. Mr. McIver. He is a native of North Carolina, having been reared in the congregation of old Buffalo Church, near Sanford.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Chesterfield—Rev. J. K. Johnston, who has been supplying Chesterfield, Ruby and White Oak in Pee Dee Presbytery, is scheduled to sail for Brazil during September. He will be stationed at Patrocinio. He will be accompanied by his wife, who before her marriage was Miss Theresa Reid, of Bishopville. Mr. Johnston is a native of Chester.

Columbia—The Rev. McKendree Long, of Statesville, N. C., conducted four fine services in his evangelistic campaign Sunday, three at the Arsenal Hill Presbyterian Church and one at the University of South Carolina under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

The Arsenal Hill church was taxed to its utmost capacity to seat the congregation, which literally hung upon every word of the evangelist.—Columbia State.

Summerton—Memorial services were held in the Presbyterian Church on Sunday, September 1, for their late pastor, Dr. W. H. Trainum, who died suddenly in Piedmont while on his vacation in August. Rev. W. R. Pritchett, of Olanta, S. C., presided. Ruling Elder A. P. Burgess, of the Summerton Church and Rev. J. M. Rodgers of the Methodist Church spoke on his life and work. Dr. Trainum was much beloved both by his own congregation and by the people of the town. He was unselfishly devoted to his work. Mrs. Trainum will reside with a relative in Alexandria, Va.

The Fort Hill Church, Clemson College—On Wednesday, September 25th, the Fort Hill Church had the pleasure of entertaining at luncheon the entire Synod of South Carolina, during the past week in session in Anderson. During the summer President E. W. Sikes and Rev. S. J. L. Crouch had extended an invitation to the synod to spend one day at Clemson College, attending chapel services in the assembly hall, having luncheon on the campus, and holding its afternoon session in the Presbyterian church. It had been planned to serve luncheon on the college campus under the historic trees on the homestead of John C. Calhoun, but due to heavy rainfall the plans were changed and luncheon served on the main floor of the Y. M. C. A. building.

The members of synod arrived at the college at 12 o'clock and went immediately to the assembly hall where chapel services were to be held. In behalf of the college President Sikes welcomed the visitors to Clemson College, and introduced to the audience, composed of more than twelve hundred cadets, members of the faculty and the Synod of South Carolina, Dr. H. H. Sweets, of Louisville, head of the Educational Board. Dr. Sweets made a very forceful talk. At one o'clock the body adjourned to the Y. M. C. A. building, where luncheon was served by the ladies of the church. President and Mrs. Sikes were invited to have luncheon with the visitors, as well as the entire congregation of the Fort Hill Church. At 2:30 o'clock the visitors and members of the congregation assembled in the Presbyterian church where the afternoon business session of the Synod was held. Following this meeting the Synod adjourned to hold its evening meeting in Anderson.

Despite the very heavy and steady downpour of rain during the entire day, about two hundred visitors drove to Clemson for the day. Many of them were paying their first visit to the college, and all expressed their great pleasure of the day spent on the historic campus. Among the out-of-state guests were Dr. H. H. Sweets, of Louisville, Ky., head of the Educational Board, and Dr. R. T. Gilliespie, president of the Seminary at Decatur, Ga.

M. B. S., Church Correspondent.

The Fall Meeting of Bethel Presbytery was held at Salem Church, Cherokee County, about five or six miles west of Hickory Grove, on Tuesday and Wednesday, October 8 and 9. Rev. W. D. Ratchford is pastor. The opening sermon was delivered by Rev. W. S. Hay, the retiring Moderator, from the text, Acts 4:20, his subject being, "Constrained testimony—the urge of the Gospel message." The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered by Revs. J. B. Swann and W. W. Harrison.

Rev. A. W. Shaw was elected Moderator. He is pastor of the church at Fort Mill. Twenty-two ministers and thirty-three ruling elders were in attendance. Visiting ministers were Revs. W. A. Hafner, of Gaffney; John McSween, of the Presbyterian College and J. S. Baird, of Louisville, Ky.

A beautiful gavel was presented to the Presbytery by Mr. T. J. Robbins, of the Mount Pleasant Church.

Mr. Robert W. Abell of McConnellsville, a student at the Presbyterian College was received as a candidate for the ministry.

The Presbyterial address was delivered on Tuesday afternoon by Rev. W. S. Patterson, of Clover, on the subject, "The apologetic value of Foreign Missions." The Presbyterial sermon was delivered on Wednesday morning by Rev. J. J. Brown on the subject, "Christian Stewardship."

On the question of the union of the Southern Church with the United Presbyterian Church, Presbytery voted against the proposed union.

Considerable opposition to the proposed pension plan of the General Assembly developed, and as result of two overtures on the subject, the whole matter was postponed until the Spring Meeting of Presbytery.

November 17-24 has been designated as the annual week of prayer and self-denial for national home missions. Congregations were urged to observe it appropriately.

It was announced that the Synod of South Carolina had joined with the Synod of Georgia and the Rev. George C. Bellingrath as director of re-education.

A committee consisting of Revs. W. D. R. G. Somerville, and Ruling Elder R. D. B. Mc appointed on Country Church Work to co-ordinate the Director, Rev. H. W. McLaughlin in his efforts to promote the interests of these important churches. The latter is to be invited to visit our Presbyterial conference on the country church task.

President John McSween spoke earnestly in behalf of the Presbyterian College. The Synod is now joint owner of the College, and Florida Synod invited to share in its ownership at the next meeting of the Florida Synod. Presbytery heartily endorsed the Director's plan, and there will be general exchange of views on October 27, presenting the situation to the congregations.

Revs. Frank A. Drennan and A. W. Shaw as commissioners to the next General Assembly at Hot Springs, Va. Ruling elders K. E. McKeown and White were chosen as the lay commissioners. Services were held at night, but Rev. R. W. Jopling, of Hopewell School house on Tuesday night, preached at Hopewell School house on Tuesday night. Woodlawn church at Sharon was selected for the spring meeting.

Sumptuous dinners were served on both days. A big chicken stew by the men on Tuesday night.

John C. Bailey,

Greenville, First Church—Rally Day, October 1, a red letter Sunday for our church. Dr. Sweets, Executive Secretary of Christian and Ministerial Relief, who is known and loved by the church, was with us for our three services.

Our pastor, Dr. Sloan, very happily introduced a brother in Christ and also a brother-in-law, before a double pleasure to all of our church members. Our entire Sunday School assembled in the morning, and it was good to see 580 present.

Dr. Sloan made a special appeal, that beautiful new building and double the membership. He also that the children remain for church services. Dr. Sweets was very emphatic in urging the old time family pew and both ministers to support the fact that the Sunday School and the church are one, and not two separate organizations.

Dr. Sweets gave a very earnest sermon on 3:16-21, and at night, by request, he gave from his trip to the Orient.

On Friday evening, October 4, about 100 of our church met in our new Fellowship Hall. A delicious supper was served by our Women's Society.

After supper a good program was enjoyed. A feature being an address by Dr. Sheppey of the Second Presbyterian Church. Many questions were discussed, all looking to an early organization of "Men of the Church." The original committee consisted of W. L. Miller, R. N. Ward and Col. Keith. Names of others will be named for various departments of work. Echoes from the meeting were evening full of good things.

On Sunday morning, June 30, our beautiful new Sunday School building was used for the first time. It was formally opened and many other churches of the city were present. The building and were entertained in the new social hall. The building is four stories, with a basement, and has 77 rooms, completely equipped. The proximate cost of $80,000, and the third story yet finished. It is modern in every respect and provides sufficient room to house the growth of our church for some years. The main floor of the building is made up of a chapel, where prayer meetings are held and the men's bible class will meet. The cradle roll and beginner departments, and daughters' bible class room, pastor's study, the large primary department are located on the second floor. The junior, intermediate and young people's departments, the Graham bible class and Taylor's bible class are on the second floor. The basement is a well equipped kitchen and social hall, where all church social needs are satisfied, whether along Sunday School or Christian Endeavor or other lines. The building is of red brick, the halls are tiled with rubber tiling, while the class room floors are of wood. Rev. T. W. Sloan, D.D., is the pastor of our church, and his twenty-fifth anniversary as pastor was celebrated two years ago. Dr. Sloan was on his vacation and Dr. S. L. Morrison was with us for two Sundays in August. Mr. Plumer Smith, of our African mission, who was supported by our church, visited us recently and his story of his work greatly impressed our church members.

GEORGIA

Athens Presbytery—At a recent called session of the Athens Presbytery, Dr. Thomas M. Johnson of the Jefferson Church was received as a candidate for the ministry. Mr. Johnson is attending the Presbyterian College of South Carolina and is a member of the Junior class. His father, gr-

CHURCH PAPER WEEK

The General Assembly Has Appointed the Week of Nov. 3 to Nov. 10

as CHURCH PAPER WEEK. At that time, the pastors, the Auxiliaries and all other church workers are requested to bring to the attention of all church members the duty and privilege of subscribing to the Church Papers.

No person can be as useful in church work who does not read the Church Papers. The minister has no time to inform the congregation of events, projects, purposes, needs, and all the thousand and one things each ought to know for effective work in the departments.

The discussion of the church's great projects, such as now is going on, as to the Ministers' Annuity Fund, will be found in the Church Papers. Other important matters are discussed, and we ought to know what they mean, and how they bear on our own work and people.

Good reading for the family is provided by the Church Papers, and solve many problems of restless children, and furnish a quiet hour for older people. The devotional articles are valuable in developing our knowledge and faith. The Sunday School articles and Young People's discussions are very helpful.

The Presbyterian Standard will give the Auxiliary, or any other organization ONE DOLLAR out of $3 collected for a new subscription.

We are depending on our auxiliaries to send us many new subscribers the week of November 3 to November 10.

PASTORS, DON'T FORGET THE CHURCH PAPER WEEK

The women want your co-operation to make it a success.

ther have all been ministers of the Presby-ytery of Athens will hold its Fall meeting Hermon Church, Ia., Ga., Tuesday, October
 ing session beginning at 11:00 a. m.
 S. J. Cartledge, S. C.

Nacoochee—The opening of this school year of service in its new quarters was a us event. The exercises were held in the the Community School, which was more the large crowd. Before the exercises, pic-made of the various groups composing the
 at, the people from the large 1500 acre farm, men, women and children, were grouped a picture. There are 15 of these farm famive been brought together here for five years farming and home making, and a splendid to see them all together. Next came the oup, which include students and teachers, about 150. Never was brought together a of boys and girls, most of them still un-world, many of them away from home for and what a challenge they presented to the will guide them for the next year! They into the school in a most unexpected man-in both dormitories is full and more are Every available room is filled to capacity come knocking at our doors. Can we turn No, they must have their chance before the unity for them has passed, or they must their mountain homes to grow up in ignord group to photographed was made up of the entire community and a splendid gather-includes in its faculty and student body

 ple. There are about 200 pupils in the Com-l, with eight teachers; the Farm School ment of 60, with three teachers, and there more people in the farm families who come ion of some member of the faculty; in the here are about 120 pupils with eight teachke up the Rabun Gap-Nacoochee family—indeed, but a happy and busy one. There n this group, for every one has his job and see that it is done and well done. This is eriment in school work. It is said that there school like it in the United States, and hat there is not its like in the Southern Church. It is seeking to bring to bear on problem of our southland a practical and for many of the vexing questions which ed both church and state for generations

KENTUCKY

Robinson School, Blackey — On Sunday
 ember 22, Rev. S. M. Logan, of Winchester, Guerrant Presbytery, commenced a tenat Blackey, holding two services on each also one every evening at the Presbyterian reaching each morning at Stuart Robinson hour. The plain, sincere gospel messages of ere productive of much good to the school rrounding community. At the close of the ee on Sunday, September 29, eight boys and orjority of them dormitory students, made heir faith in Christ, were baptized by Rev.
 nam and received by him into the Blackey Church. It is expected that others will come ch later as a result of this meeting.

ce coming to Bevier a little over a month le and I have held two communion meet-ervices each; one at Mt. Zion, where there sions of faith, and nine added to the church, at Nelson, where there were 14 professions the school children, but none have yet been the church. In these meetings we were as-Frank Cox, a member of Bevier Church, in the Louisville Theological Seminary, as ganized a Sunday School at Nelson, and as organized auxiliaries at Mt. Zion, and shall begin a meeting at Mt. Pisgah the at 7:00 p. m. Our work is in the coal min-Kentucky, and we find many souls we long impress them to come into the fold.

J. T. Wade.

Presbytery of Ebenezer met in the Sharon Augusta, Ky., on September 24 at 8 opening sermon was preached by Rev.
 ter of Paris, Ky. There were 10 min-elders present. Mr. Chas. Fufbr of the ue Church was elected moderator. Mr.
 presenting the Executive Committee on and Rev. J. S. Baird, D.D., representing Committee on Christian Education and elief were present to assist Presbytery the work for the causes they represent.
 nces will be held in this Presbytery to men of the church. A memorial service honor of Rev. A. D. Tadlock, D.D., and I. Doermann. The sermon was preached Duke Williams. The Hopewell Church
 ly suspended from the roll because it refuses to sever its relations with J. Archer Gray, who was deposed from the ministry by West Lexington Presbytery. Presbytery voted to support the Ministers' Annuity Fund as presented by our Executive Committee. An ad interim committee was appointed to study the question of union with the United Presbyterian Church and report at the spring meeting.

 Rev. E. V. Tadlock spoke on Assembly's Home Missions at the evening session and Mr. Chas. Fagan an elder of the Sharon Church read a history of the Sharon Church and Presbyterianism in Bracken County. The next stated meeting will be held at Millersburg, Ky.

Benjamin Andres, S. C.

Fulton—Under the leadership of Rev. and Mrs. J. T.
 Wade, who work hand in hand in many kinds of up-to-date lines of religious work, the conditions at Fulton have been greatly improved during their stay, of 15 months, at this place. During this time, in addition to the regular work of preaching, holding prayer meetings, and conducting Sunday Schools, Daily Vacation Bible Schools were held at Fulton, Clinton, Mt. Joy, Columbus, and Murray; evangelistic services at all of these points save at Mt. Joy; School of Missions at Fulton, holding two Daily Vacation
 Bible Schools and two revival meetings at Fulton.

Fourteen were added to the Fulton Church, 12 on examination, and 2 by letter. A good brick church, formerly owned by the Methodist brethren, was purchased at a cost of $2,000.00, having to borrow $600.00 from the Church and Manse Fund; a splendid roof has been added, chairs, to the amount of over $100.00, supplied, three pulpit chairs and a communion table presented, church lighted with electric chandeliers, and some money now in the hands of the treasurer, Mr. W. A. Bell, toward purchasing a musical instrument. Besides, the church has been insured for three years, and the street paving tax for this year has been paid. The most encouraging feature is the changed attitude, on the part of the people, to the Presbyterian Church.

For some time these christian workers were treated as though they were interlopers, but, during the last few months of their stay, they were shown many marked courtesies, and from many sources came the praise of the Presbyterian Church.

The Synod of Kentucky, for the first time in many years, are manifesting an interest in this wonderful Home Mission field, and has offered to pay the salary of the man who will take up the work which Mr.
 and Mrs. Wade have laid down for what seemed to them a more needy field, among the coal miners of Bevier, Ky., and surrounding sections.

MISSISSIPPI

Presbytery of Mississippi—At an adjourned meeting held in Tupelo Presbytery changed the meeting from October 15 to October 22 at 7:30 p. m. in Na-chez.

S. C. Caldwell, S. C.

MISSOURI

Napton—My first meeting as evangelist of Lafayette Presbytery was held in the Memorial Church near Napton, Mo., from the ninth to the seventeenth of September. No services were held for three nights during the week on account of rain, bad roads and Missouri mud.
 The attendance at other services was good. Visible results, six accessions to the Church membership, four on confession of faith and two by letter. Offering for Presbytery's Home Missions, one hundred dollars ($100.00).

The church has no pastor.

J. Walter Cobb.

The Presbytery of Upper Missouri met in Lawson, Mo., September 17, 18, at 11 o'clock. The sermon was preached by the retiring moderator, the Rev. Rev. J. Layton Mauze, D.D. The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed, presided over by Rev. Joseph Rennie, D.D., and Rev. I. Cochran Hunt, D.D.

Rev. J. E. James, D.D., was elected moderator, and Rev. H. T. Guthrie, Temporary Clerk.

There was a large attendance both of ministers and elders.

The following commissioners were elected to attend
 the next General Assembly. Principals: Rev. Trigg A.
 M. Thomas, D.D., and Rev. H. T. Guthrie; Alternates:
 Rev. R. S. Crain, and Rev. I. F. Swallow, D.D.

Elders: Principals—H. F. Harbinson, and John W.
 Newlee.

Alternate: H. A. Hecker, and H. A. Wylie.

The Presbyterian sermon was preached by the Rev. A.
 H. Sargent on the subject of the power of the Holy Spirit.

The annuity fund was discussed and adopted and commended to all the churches and ministers.

The question of uniting with the United Presbyterian Church was postponed until the action of that Assembly had made evident their desire.

Since the last report two young ministers have taken up active work in our Presbytery, the Rev. F. H. Tegler, of the Richmond Church, and the Rev. C. D. Wardlow of the Northeast Church. They were received and installed recently. All of our Home Mission churches are supplied.

Most of our churches report activity and spiritual progress.

OKLAHOMA

The Presbytery of Mangum met in the First Presbyterian Church, Weatherford, Okla., Wednesday evening, September 11, 1929. All the ministers of Presbytery were present save the infirm ones: Revs.
 J. E. Latham, S. L. Hogan and J. T. Wilson.

Elder D. T. Dunlop was elected moderator and C. E. Devin temporary clerk. Weatherford is an interesting little city of western Oklahoma. It is situated on Highway 66 which is the main street of the republic. The Southwestern Teachers' College is located here. This and other features make Weatherford a strategic point for Oklahoma Presbyterianism.
 Rev. C. Fred Hancock is the very acceptable pastor of the Presbyterian Church. The business was mostly routine but there were at least three things of more than local interest: (1) The Presbytery voted with some feeling and much enthusiasm in favor of the union with the United Presbyterian Church, (2) The Presbytery accepted the plan of "The Ministers Annuity Fund," (3) Mr. George Troudt a member of the Weatherford Church was received as a candidate for the ministry and directed to matriculate at once in the Austin Seminary. It is to be hoped that Brother Troudt is the beginning of a long line of Oklahoma preachers from Mangum Presbytery. The Presbytery adjourned to meet at Marietta during Synod.

J. W. Moseley, Jr., Stated Clerk.

Durant Presbytery met September 10, 11, 1929, at Wewoka.

Rev. E. G. Beckman, who has been serving the First Church, Wewoka, was elected moderator. He has been serving the church as stated supply for almost two years but was at this meeting installed as the pastor of the church. During the short time that Mr. Beckman has been in Wewoka he has built up a splendid congregation of about 50 members with five ruling elders and five deacons. He and his people have also built a splendid new church valued at about $15,000. They are to be congratulated on the splendid success that has accomplished their labors.

Rev. Horace C. Casey, who was recently installed pastor of the church at Holdenville was elected temporary clerk.

In connection with Home Mission Report given by the chairman, Rev. W. N. Sholl, a short program on Evangelism had been prepared. This was in keeping with the request made by the Assembly's Work Committee. Rev. R. R. Craig spoke on the subject, "Bible Evangelism"; and Rev. W. A. Rolle, D.D., "Evangelism in the Light of Oklahoma's Needs." A strong appeal was made to the members of presbytery to make this the best year possible in the winning of souls.

Members of presbytery were glad to have Rev. J. S.
 Baird, D.D., present. He gave a very helpful and informing address on the Ministers' Annuity Plan and answered several questions that were in the minds of the people. Hon. A. N. Leecraft, of Durant, was also present and gave a very illuminating talk on the same subject. He is a member of the Assembly's Work Committee. Presbytery voted in the affirmative on this question.

Rev. Erskine Brantley, D.D., who has served in Oklahoma for the past 27 years and was the organizer of Durant Presbytery, preached the opening sermon on Acts 1:11. His subject was, "The Second Coming of Christ." Members of presbytery and the entire congregation were greatly helped by this splendid sermon. Dr. Brantley is loved by all the members of the presbytery and synod. He has done much for the building up of the kingdom of Christ.

R. R. Craig, Stated Clerk.

TENNESSEE

Memphis, Highland Heights—This church has just enjoyed one of the greatest revival services ever held in the city. Dr. Trigg A. M. Thomas was the evangelist and preached the gospel in its beauty, power and purity September 1-15. Mrs. Thomas assisted very ably by singing each night and leading one of the four prayer meetings each morning. The church was filled to overflowing with people standing at the doors even to the streets. The "Win-One Club" was very active. There were 40 additions to the church and there will be perhaps as many more to be received later. The whole church was revived and a reconsecration of life is the great blessing to the church and community. Dr. Thomas uses no sensational methods but through good preaching and singing won the hearts of the people from the beginning. The church made good preparation for the revival through a religious survey and cottage prayer-meetings. Dr. Thomas is most highly commended to other churches who are seeking a great man of God to lead them in a revival.

(Continued on page 11)

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Rev. Ernest Trice Thompson, D.D.

Lesson for October 27, 1929

THE CHRISTIAN VIEW OF RECREATION

Jer. 31:12, 13; Zech. 8:5; Mt. 11:16-19; Mark 2:18-28; 6:30-32; Jno. 2:1-11. Print Mt. 2:13-28

We are considering this quarter some of the great social teachings of the bible. Last week we saw that useful work was one of the social obligations of the Christian. But if we are to live normal lives, if we are to develop harmoniously all the powers with which God has endowed us, work must be balanced by recreation, re-creation, as the word properly signifies. It is most fitting though that we should consider this week the Christian view of recreation.

Before you read the discussion that follows, read over the assigned passages. Write down what the bible teaches here about recreation.

We will consider:

I. The Value of Recreation

The prophets of the Old Testaments, under whom the religion of the Old Testament reached its highest development, and Jesus in the New Testament all appreciated the value of recreation.

Take Jeremiah for example. He lived during the last days of the kingdom of Judah. He saw the fate that awaited the nation when no one else was willing to see it, or to take intelligent steps to avert it. For forty years he stood out in Judah, isolated and alone, meeting the opposition and the plots of the kings and the princes, the prophets, the priests, and the great masses of the people. When, however, the fate that he had foreseen actually came upon the nation, and the people were sunk in hopeless despair, Jeremiah encouraged them with pictures of the future. He promised (Jer. 31:12-13) that God would bring them back from their captivity, would bless the land with abundance of grain and oil and wine; would make their souls as a watered garden (This metaphor is far more expressive in the East, where drought is so common); would turn their mourning into joy: "Then shall the virgin rejoice in the dance, and the young men and the old together." The significant thought for us just now is that God so plainly desires that His people shall enjoy themselves—both young and old. Jeremiah cannot conceive of that future destiny which God has in store for His people without the dance, not our modern dance, it is true, yet the symbol then as now of carefree and unrestrained joy.

See also Zechariah (8:5). He wrote after the return of the exiles. The little colony made slow progress; the people grew discouraged; the prophecies of Jeremiah seemed impossible of fulfillment. Zechariah was raised up to encourage the people. He said: "There shall yet old men and old women dwell in the streets of Jerusalem. . . And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof." Again the recognition of the importance of play, and its necessary inclusion in God's ideal for His people.

Jesus too recognized the value of recreation. We have no real record of his youth, but we can be sure that He who advanced in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and men joined in the games of the boys of his own day. Even as a man he retained his interest in the play of children, and must have watched them often. Otherwise he would not have used the illustration he did in Matt. 11:16-17. His opponents he said were like spoiled children who would not play at dancing or mourning. They criticised John the Baptist because of his austerities, and they criticised him because of his social proclivities. There is certain truth in Bruce Barton's remark that Jesus was the most popular dinner guest in Jerusalem. And what light this throws on his attitude toward life.

It is interesting to note in this connection that Jesus' first recorded miracle was wrought at a wedding feast (Jno. 2:1-11). That was a most festive occasion. But if the wine gave out that would embarrass the hostess, and mar the pleasure of the guests. Jesus worked his first miracle solely so it would seem that such consequences might be averted.

The Pharisees noted that Jesus and his disciples never went about with sad and solemn faces, and they criticised him for it. They wanted to know why he and his disciples never fasted. Jesus replied that he and his company were too happy to fast, it would be hypocritical for them to go about with long faces, they were like a merry wedding party. Mk. 3:18-19.

There were times, of course, when Jesus and his disciples grew weary. When such times came he recognized the need of rest, or as we should say of a vacation. One such occasion is recorded in Mk. 6:30-32. Jesus said: "Come ye yourselves apart into a desert place and rest awhile."

So we say that Jesus and the prophets recognized the value of recreation. It is to be regretted that His followers have not always possessed equal discernment. The Puritans have been much maligned, and are generally caricatured. Yet it is not to be denied that they were too solemn a lot. They did not adequately recognize the value and indeed the necessity of play. John Wesley to whom the Church owes such a large debt of gratitude had something of the same spirit. Children in the school that he established were not allowed to play, and perhaps for that reason they were not very successful. He himself was constantly resolving that he would be serious at all times, and on all occasions. Perhaps there are some Christians today, who inherit the same attitude. But not many we think. Christians in general recognize today the value of recreation.

What is its value? We are driven to play by one of the strongest instincts we possess. It is through play that children develop their latent powers. Some recreation is necessary for older people as well as young in order that they may preserve their physical wellbeing, and in order that they maintain a fresh and healthy attitude toward life.

Two questions arise here. (1) Do we give recreation the right place in our lives? Do we give enough time to recreation? Do we give it too much time? Do we engage in the most helpful forms of recreation? How much time should we give to recreation—what are the best forms of recreation—from the standpoint of mental and physical wellbeing?

(2) What responsibility do Christians have for providing opportunities for recreation for those who would not otherwise possess them? Are there, for example, proper facilities for all ages and all classes to find proper recreation in your community? In all towns, playgrounds become increasingly necessary. Are suitable and sufficient playgrounds provided in your town? For the poorer classes? For the negroes? There is plenty of room in the country—but facilities are commonly lacking. Is this a thing about which Christians should properly be concerned? Is it a thing about which your class or organization can properly act? Some children, and some adults, too, do not have time for recreation. The hours and the conditions of labor are too severe. Is this right? What are the conditions in your community? The probability is that you do not know. It would be worth while to find out. Is this any proper concern of, say the Woman's Auxiliary?

II. The Problems of Recreation

We have dealt so far with the value of recreation, and with the responsibility of Christians to see that all classes of the population have an opportunity to engage in suitable forms of recreation. But it is generally recognized that there are certain problems in regard to recreation that Christians have to face, and about which at the present time there is not always a general agreement. We do not have the space here to deal with all those problems—but they are problems which Christians of the present day need to face, and about which they need to do some very clear thinking.

For example, what kinds of recreation can Christians properly engage in? There are some forms of recreation which the Christian conscience almost universally condemns. There are other forms which the Christian conscience almost universally approves. About these there is no real difficulty. There are other forms of recreation, however, which are on the border line,—recreations which some Christians approve, which others condemn,—recreations which are often harmless, but may easily become harmful. Some of these doubtful recreations are dancing, card playing, theatre attendance, mixed bathing. In many communities where this lesson is studied there will be such general agreement that these recreations are proper or improper that it will not be recognized that any problem exists. Nevertheless in many communities, and in the minds of many individuals the problem does exist, and we need to face the facts frankly.

What can we say about such recreations? We note first of all the bible does not decide the question for us. Jeremiah does speak of dancing in the New Jerusalem, but the dancing he knew was not mixed dancing, and the other recreations to which he referred were not even known in bible times. During the age of the Puritans the Church took a stand against many of these diversions and others as well. This attitude has been passed down from generation to generation, and is accepted by many Christians today as an essential part of their christianity. If there is any justification in this attitude it is because of the abuses to which these recreations are subject, the consequences to which they lead. It is foolish, for example, to say that a game of bridge is necessarily and itself wrong. In itself it is no more an evil than a game of rook, or parchesi, or croquet. It is a fact, however, that games played with playing cards do more readily lend themselves to gambling devices than the other games to which we have referred. And gambling is an evil which grows on one, and has undermined the character of many a man, many a woman. If any card game is wrong it is because of the abuse to which it is subject. If theatre attendance is wrong it is not because the theatre is necessarily an evil, or because it is a sin to attend even a good play, but because so many plays are demoralizing that it is advisable for Christians to set themselves against the whole institution rather than to attempt the task of raising its standards. And so with our other debatable recreations. If Christian people are to oppose these diversions, they should make the grounds for their opposition plain, especially to our young people. We should not allow them to think that the Church condemns practices in themselves harmless as though they were necessarily and inevitably wrong in themselves. We should let them see that christians refrain from some practices which are morally neutral in themselves because they do actually prove demoralizing to so many, refrain because of the possible danger to themselves, or because of the proved danger to so many of our weaker brethren. The question is, is this danger real enough to demand the christian's non-Should the Church oppose card games, themselves, or gambling which is the real er for the Christians to stay away from the gether, or would it be better for them to help to develop the better types of play? oppose dancing or only the wrong kind of de do you think?

The only other question that we will discuss raised by our printed text. What recreations the Christian engage in on the Sabbath. (answer to question 60 leaves no room for any sort. According to this famous statement bath is to be sanctified by a holy resting all from such worldly employments and recr- lawful on other days; and spending the who public and private exercises of God's worst much as is to be taken up in the works of mercy." As we saw in previous lessons, statement goes beyond the scripture warrant commandment, (Ex. 20:8-11) two injunction on God's people: (1) Remember the Sabbath it holy; (2) in it thou shalt not do any gave us a most important interpretation of t ment in Mark 2:23—3:6. The scribes a had interpreted the prohibition of labor so r it had made the Sabbath rest a burden inste lege as originally intended. Jesus by conc showed that works of necessity (Mark 2: mercy (Mark 3:1-6) were certainly not o spirit of the Sabbath. But he went further. I a far reaching principle that has a bearing ction problem. He said: "The Sabbath was and not man for the Sabbath." It follows bath was not intended to become a burde was given to him for a blessing. Any interp fourth commandment based on the assumpti day to be observed for its own sake rathe designed to minister to man's welfare is twin injunctions of Ex. 20:8-11 indicate that man's spiritual wellbeing that God has in r onarily his physical welfare. Apply those our particular problem it seems to us to fo those recreations are prohibited on the that (1) require the labor of other men; (2 the rest of other folk; (3) that render wors for ourselves or others; (4) that destroy value of the day, that prevent us from ke Holy Day, or that impair in any way our Is this the correct solution? If so are you v ly to bring your Sabbath recreations to the

DR. BEDINGER AT UNIO

Picturing the "changing African" on 'continent" with the great new demands w made of him, the Rev. Robert D. Beding week told the Society of Missionary Inq Theological Seminary in Richmond, Va., th must hasten its work in preparing the m the inroads of secular civilization.

Doctor Bedinger, who for eighteen years, the Morrison Bible School for Evangelis Africa, and is on furlough to study at Ur was the first of a group of distinguished spe appear before the missionary body during Contrasting the use of bicycles five year employing of Ford cars for the same purpos the displacement of the caravans by pul months-old newspapers by the radio, and of vice by air mail, the speaker delineated a co is rapidly emerging into great commercial great energy being directed toward the mini copper, diamond and radium deposits has integration of tribes, resulting in dissatisfie are indifferent toward religion and missio commercial conditions have come to stay speaker, the Church must cope with the sit and as quickly, as possible.

"The first duty of the Church," said Do "is to develop and foster a Christian ch natives that will withstand the onslaught of zation. To do this, we need more and bette better equipment and faculties but greates need of a printed literature with which to Developing and fostering the emerging making it self-governing and self-supporting to be the second duty of the organized Ch ally, he declared, there must be more worke field with the least possible delay in order work which has been started.

HERE IS A WAY YOU CAN H

Have you some good used clothes packe you are not wearing? They could be doing our mountain section a great deal of go Sunday School class, your circle of your group interested in collecting good wearin sending it to us. We have a large num people who are in need of help. Anything v will be put to excellent use and greatly appa ages may be sent to Katherine O'Neill, Co

Men-of-the-Church

Presbyterian Church in the United States

J. E. PURCELL, D.D., Executive Secretary
HENRY GRADY BUILDING
ATLANTA, GEORGIA

JOHN L. FAIRLY, D.D., Wilmington, N. C., in Charge of Men-of-the-Church Department for November Program—Continued from Last Week

SUGAR BEET FARM FAILS—A MEXICAN SCHOOL FOR BOYS EMERGES

es a very humble Scotchman to admit his own failures. This is the story of a Scotchman who came back; who missed financial riches, but a before God. He was born in Kentucky, eduntre College and Princeton, held three pastoring twenty-eight years in Indiana, Illinois, and and then became a Home Missionary in Texas, lder of a great mission school.

that a first-prize exhibit of beet sugar from unty, Texas, shown at the international ex-900 was the direct cause of the coming of Rev. ner from Ft. Collins, Colorado, to the Rio ntry. This preacher joined a group of business ing the plantation which had produced the ugar. Folks had been making money growing in Colorado. Two years' of bitter experience new syndicate that beet sugar did not make he Rio Grande. White collar farmers, with verhead, water-shortage, bugs and borers,—so y of the sugar plantation.

oint the preacher came to Texas to try to salving from the wreckage of his investment. sentence of his tells the story of that effort, years of nursing a forlorn hope, preparations for a return north." But God had other plans not "returned north" yet. The aftermath of g enterprise is thus told in the preacher's : "Come two messages on the same day in 11; one an invitation to the pastorate of a the other an invitation from the Synod of ndertake the development of Tex.-Mex. The w in the invitation to the city pastorate 'A od.' The preacher's wife had a different inter- n city pastorate is an appeal to your pride. Mex. work is of God, and you are turning it e you are afraid to tackle it.' So we set our cactus wilderness, and so we wrought at the here with the blessing of God, we have spent the happiest years of our lives working with ys, helping to lay the foundation of Tex.-

exican Institute was truly a cactus wilderness en hundred acres of wild land without build- ipment. In October, 1912, the school was mule barn, with mules on one side of the el school on the other.

quent story is one of heroic struggle againt g odds—revolutions in Mexico, border ban- rnaoes that twice blew away every stick l, and a bank account that was often in red. exas-Mexican Institute at Kingsville, Texas, d worth while missionary project. There are erlocking tile buildings that are storm proof, ne buildings. These include an administration a school rooms and chapel, library and read- rmitories, dining hall, commissary and teach- here is a faculty of five teachers and a stu- one hundred Mexican lads. These boys are cademic courses, farming, dairying, printing, and withal learning to be Protestant Chris- an Citizens.

onored the man whose sugar beet plantation ore of usefulness and helpfulness than he l possible. The church has honored him with arship of the General Assembly, and the Mexi- he Rio Grande country owe him a debt they ble to pay. He is happy in living his days e Missionary to the Mexican people—a call- he has never been ashamed.

MODERATE MEDICAL OFFICER AND HIS DREAM

bit of this story served the South during the a young medical officer under the command rgan. In this capacity he spent much of his Cumberland Mountain area, crossing and any times. The absence of churches and reli- ion of the mountains made so indelible an pon this young officer that it eventually he whole course of his life—and through him the multitude of other lives. Sometime during in the hills, slowly perhaps or possibly all came the dream that was his guide through

Amattox the young doctor went back to his the cure of bodies, however noble, would n. His mind went back to the hills where in need of the cure of souls. With this on left his medical practice and entered Union

Seminary where he fitted himself to preach the gospel.

Upon leaving the Seminary the door to the hills did not seem to open. Because of his brilliant attainment, the young preacher was called to the First Presbyterian Church, Louisville, Kentucky. Still mindful of his dream, he began at once to bring his large influence to bear upon the Synod, urging it to care for the destitute parts of that state. Through his influence the Synod was led to inaugurate its Synodical Evangelistic Work, the first work of the kind ever undertaken in the Presbyterian Church.

Whom should the Synod call to lead this new work unless it be the brilliant pastor of the First Church who had championed its beginning? Needless to say he accepted the work. When the First Church's pastor became a missionary to the hills, his dream began to come true. He found in the mountains to which he went, to quote his own words, "a region as large as the German Empire practically without churches, Sunday Schools, or qualified preachers; whole counties of people who had never seen a church or heard a gospel sermon they could understand."

The new superintendent had a zeal for his work, and with every missionary he sent, and every church he built, the Synod's expenses mounted. When he was ordered to retrench and cut the expenditures, he resigned with these words, "Brethren, if you cannot afford to pay for the schools and churches and the missionaries for the poor Highlanders, God can pay for them."

In this simple faith that "God can pay," this mountain missionary organized the independent American Inland Mission supported by the Society of Soul Winners. He raised $14,000 annually for his work and expended it employing preachers and teachers, building churches and schools, caring for the sick and orphaned. In ten years he saw 6,404 persons converted under the influence of his work and workers. When his health began to fail, he transferred in 1911 fifty missionaries together with all the property of his mission to the Assembly's Home Mission Committee of the Presbyterian Church.

Although worn and feeble from his fatiguing duties, he could not stop. The last Sabbath of his life he preached and received fourteen persons into the Church at one service. April 26, 1916, at the age of seventy-eight years, this soldier, doctor, and man of God was called home. In being the first evangel to the mountains, in turning the mind of the church to the heart of the hills, in seeing many thousands brought to the Savior, the dream of Edward O. Guerrant came true a thousand fold. All that our church is doing in the mountains today had its inspiration in Doctor Guerrant, and more than a decade after his death his work and influence are still growing. Surely his was a worthwhile dream, realized in a worthwhile way. When he dared to attempt such things in his day of adversity, surely we will be recreant to our trust if we do not carry them on in our own.

GOOD RESULTS IN HARTSVILLE, S. C.

Henry G. Bedinger, Pastor

In response to the request of the editor of this column the following account of the work of the Men-of-the-Church of Hartsville, S. C., for the year ending March 31, 1929, is gladly given.

While the results are far short of what they might have been, it was in many ways the most successful year since organizing, due chiefly to two reasons, i. e., careful planning and faithful adherence to the Monthly Programs.

In the beginning the Executive Committee adopted the policy of following closely the Assembly Plan of Men's Work. Except for occasional deviations, this was done throughout the year.

Following this policy, the Council decided to meet regularly on the last Sunday afternoon of each month and plan definitely for the monthly meeting of the Men-of-the-Church to be held on the second Thursday night. The Council meetings were held regularly and the Educational Programs and Service Objectives carefully planned.

Most of the programs were put on by local men, numbers of whom for the first time participated actively in church work. Material was furnished the speakers by the Department Chairman responsible for the program, who secured it by writing to the Executive Committees and from the Church papers. The talks were usually well prepared and surprisingly interesting. Quarterly a supper meeting was held, when a special speaker was heard as an addition to the usual program. The Circles of the Woman's Auxiliary graciously served these meals for the men. The Service Program was outlined by the Department Chairman and the objectives assigned to the Group Leaders for their groups.

One of the most enjoyable features of the year was the presence of pastors and men who were occasionally invited from nearby churches. The older boys of the Church and the Boys Scouts were also several times their guests.

The results of this work were soon revealed. Through the Educational Programs each month much information about the work of the church was disseminated among the men. Workers were discovered and developed for service. Deeper interest in religion was cultivated and felt in the church.

Some of the objectives of the Service Programs may be mentioned: In the Department of Spiritual Life the men sponsored at different periods the attendance at the Men's Bible Class and the evening services. The attendance increased decidedly as the result of their efforts. Copies of the Gospel of Matthew were distributed. The groups conducted services and prayer-meeting while the pastor was on vacation and frequently supplied vacant churches during the year.

In Evangelism the men conducted cottage prayer meetings in preparation for an evangelistic meeting in their church. A group assisted by others, during the whole year held a service each Sunday night in a nearby community. As a result the whole community has been blessed and eighteen persons were led to Christ as Saviour, most of them united with the Presbyterian Church and now attend regularly the services there. God has richly owned and blessed this effort.

Under the Department of Missions, besides the regular programs on the subject the men co-operated with the Woman's Auxiliary and the Christian Endeavor in a School of Foreign Missions. Sixteen men attended the Men's Class, which was conducted by the men themselves. The Home Mission Programs were presented at the regular meetings.

The Department of Christian Training sponsored the Presbyterian College Emergency Fund, sending groups of men to present the cause in six churches in the Presbytery. Two boys were sent by the Bible Class to the Young People's Conference at Clinton. Two men serve as Boy Scout Masters and others on the Local Council.

The programs on Stewardship were among the best of the year and the men assisted the deacons with the Every Members Canvass. The interest created through the Men-of-the-Church greatly helped the financial program of the church. Interest is in direct proportion to information.

Under the head of Christian Social Service and Fellowship the chairman invited the Superintendent of the Public School to tell the men how they could serve the youth of the community best. He also had a representative of the local Red Cross who gave a most interesting account of its work in the district. Special emphasis was given to the fellowship at four of the regular meetings during the year. The Men-of-the-Church, in co-operation with the Woman's Auxiliary and the Christian Endeavor, had a very enjoyable "Get-together-meeting" for the whole church in September.

While much of this work is done by the men of any well organized church, the experience of this church has been that the Men-of-the-Church organization has been a wonderfully stimulating and useful influence.

Bedinger, Pastor.

THE MINISTERS' ANNUITY FUND AND THE PRESBYTERY OF KNOXVILLE

The following resolutions were presented by a Committee composed of R. T. Faucette, Chairman, E. J. McMillan, and C. R. Endsley, and were unanimously adopted:

"Your committee, after careful study of the Minister's Annuity Fund, endorsed by our General Assembly since 1924, is unanimous in recommending that Knoxville Presbytery approve this plan and earnestly seek through all its agencies to cooperate in the establishment of the Fund, urging all the churches and pastors of Knoxville Presbytery to adopt and enter into it.

"An Analysis of minister's salaries and conditions affecting these, discloses the regrettable fact that all too few of the ministers of our Presbytery are adequately renum- erated.

"We are, therefore, conscious that our recommenda- tions, under present conditions, may work some real hardships, by reason of the 2½ per cent requirements of this plan, on the part of the minister. Nevertheless, the benefits provided in the working of this Annuity Plan so far exceed the relatively small cost, that the sacrifice involved is more than justified.

"Beyond doubt ultimately the Minister's Annuity Fund will prove a real blessing to the churches of our Presby- tery and throughout our General Assembly. A general study of the reasons for and purposes of this plan will revitalize our church membership.

"In seeking to establish the Ministers' Annuity Fund throughout our Presbytery, your committee begs leave to suggest that some action be taken looking toward the readjustment of the salaries of our under-paid ministers, to the end that the benefits of this plan may not of necessity be denied them, or be had at a sacrifice they can ill afford."

The Home Mission Committee decided to pay an amount equivalent to ten per cent of all the salaries paid by the Presbytery to its workers and not to call on the workers for any part. This, therefore, means an increase of ten per cent in the salary of each of the employees of the Presbytery.

STUDENT BIBLE CONFERENCE TO BE HELD AT LEES-McRAE COLLEGE

There will be a Student Bible Conference conducted at Lees-McRae College, beginning with the Chapel exer- cises on October 16 and continuing through the Sunday services October 20. This conference will be led by the Rev. Taliaferro Thompson, D.D., Professor of Religious Education at the Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va., and will be open to all who may be interested in the privilege afforded by the coming of Doctor Thompson.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPT.

Rev. W. A. Gamble, Jr., Editor, Pinetops, N. C.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPIC

Sunday, October 27—Heroes of the Reformation.
(Reformation Day) References: Hebrews 12:1; Revelation 2:7

C. G. A.

For the Leader

Today has been appointed by our Assembly as Reformation Day. We shall study something of the beginning of our peculiar brand of religion. Let us see why there was need for reformation, and why the people who led in the movement were called "heroes." Four hundred years ago, practically everyone in central and western Europe called himself a Christian, and all belonged to an ecclesiastical body called the Catholic Church. The word Catholic itself means universal, and the Church was the most universal organization that has ever existed. Every child was born into the Church as he is now born into the state; the Church was not supported by volunteer contributions, but by taxes which had to be paid; and the state saw that the Church's laws were enforced. The ruler of this tremendous organization was the "bishop of Rome"—or the pope. He was the supreme administrator. He might depose a king; forbid the people to obey a law of any state; or release a ruler's subjects from their oath of allegiance. He was indeed the "father" of Christendom—as the word pope signifies. Of course there is only one supreme Head of the Church—Jesus Christ. The popes were themselves only human and consequently they used their authority to further their own aims. And if the head of the church was corrupt we can expect the same laxity among those in lower stations. There was a spirit of unrest and doubt pervading the whole of Christendom.

The Dawn of the Reformation

In the fourteenth century, John Wycliffe appeared in England and John Hus in Bohemia, both preaching that the individual Christian needs no priestly mediation between himself and God. Wycliffe translated the bible into English so that the common people could read it for themselves. "He made the bible vulgar, so that even women could read it"—and though Wycliffe himself was not burned for this deed, his followers were killed by fire and sword. But the work had started, and as a rock gathers force when rolling down hill, just so the spirit grew that ended with the breaking away from the Catholic Church. John Hus was called the "Morning Star of the Reformation."

Martin Luther and His Ninety-Five Theses

Martin Luther himself was a monk in the Catholic Church, and had no thought of revolting from the Church. He even made a pilgrimage to Rome for the good of his soul. When he had returned from this pilgrimage, a certain agent of the church was selling "indulgences" in the district to which Luther belonged. An indulgence, according to Catholic theology, was a "remission of the temporal punishment in purgatory due to sin"—that is, one could sin and buy himself forgiveness so that he would not have to suffer for his sin after death. Against this Luther protested. He wrote a series of ninety-five theses which he posted on the church door in Wittenberg on October 31, 1517. He wrote the theses in Latin for the educated class and in German for the rest of the people.

The theme of the theses was that the Christian who has true repentance has already received pardon from God altogether apart from an indulgence, and does not need one; Christ demands this true repentance from everyone. With this as a beginning, Lutheranism, as the teaching of Luther was called, spread like wildfire through the Germanies and Scandinavia.

John Calvin

The second general type of Protestantism which appeared in the sixteenth century was the forerunner of the modern Presbyterian, Congregational and Reformed Churches. The leader of this movement was John Calvin. He too was destined for a monk, but changed his plans later and studied law. When he was about nineteen, he experienced a "conversion." He rebelled against the Catholic Church and became the apostle of a purer life. Calvin wrote a full account of the Protestant position as contrasted with the Catholic. He was so strict in his doctrine that the people were oppressed. "No more festivals, no more jovial reunions, no more theaters or society." Calvin was the theologian of the Reformation, and modern founder of Presbyterianism. As the head of Council of Geneva in Switzerland, he ruled the city. The Puritans of England and the Covenanters of Scotland were also followers of Calvin, as also were the Huguenots of France.

John Knox

John Knox was a Catholic priest in Scotland in 1545. The next year he turned against the Catholic religion and began preaching a strong puritanical morality. The Catholic church was still powerful enough to have Knox banished and imprisoned in France. Soon thereafter Knox found his way to Geneva where Calvin was and in Calvin Knox found a leader with whom he could agree. He went back to Scotland, was successful in political maneuvers and had the queen imprisoned. Knox was overwhelmingly the victor, he organized the Presbyterian Church and made Scotland so completely Protestant that it is to this day one of the strongholds of Protestantism and Calvinists. Once again one man turned the course of history.

The Heroes

Why are these men called heroes? They were intolerant and did many things that we consider autocratic: Luther was against the peasants, Zwingli intended waging war in the name of religion, Calvin ordered a Unitarian burned to death, Knox severely censured the girl-queen he had imprisoned. The people in 1500 A. D. had various opinions. They knew no other way to advance religion than by force. Force had been used against them and they in turn used force. We call them heroes not because of their methods, but because of their devotion to God's cause. They were intolerant of error, yet they made possible an age of religious tolerance.

They made possible our present attitude that war is devilish, though they themselves used fire and sword. We may not admire their methods, but we can admire the courage that broke away from the autocratic church of the middle ages. They ushered in a new autocracy, but they also showed men could successfully rebel against tyrants.

"Therefore let us also, seeing we are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, lay aside every weight and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us." Hebrews, XII, 1.

FLORIDA PRESBYTERIAN YOUNG PEOPLE'S RALLY

The most successful and inspiring Young People's Rally ever held in this section of the church met at Chipley, Fla., Saturday, September 28, when the young people of the Presbytery of Florida gathered for an all-day program.

At noon there were registrations of 146 delegates, and quite a number of others arrived in time for the afternoon session.

The following program was carried out:

Theme: The Young People of the Church.

Worship period of song led by Miss Kathryn Gallo-way of the Voice Department in Palmer College.

Open Discussion of Ways and Methods and Purposes in Young People's Work led by Dr. Charles Haddon Nabers, of the Pensacola First Church.

Devotional Message by Miss Rachel Wylie, Student Secretary of the Florida State College for Women.

During the dinner hour Mr. A. J. Coakley, Director of Religious Education in the Synod of Florida spoke on "What the Church Can Contribute to Youth," and Miss Campbell, of Jacksonville, spoke on "What Youth Can Contribute to the Church."

In the afternoon session the Group Discussion for Adults and Young People was led by Mr. Coakley, the Seniors were led by Miss Kathryn Monroe, Director of Young People's Activities in Pensacola First Church, and the Intermediates were led by Mrs. Walter E. Wicke, of the McIlwain Memorial Church, Pensacola. The closing devotional message was given by the chairman of the Presbytery's Committee on Young People's Work, Rev. Edward N. Caldwell, of Tallahassee.

In addition to the speakers on the program, the following pastors of the presbytery were present: Rev. D. J. Currie, of DeFuniak Springs, Rev. C. B. Ratchford, of Chipley, Rev. R. H. Latham, of Madison and Rev. Henry Holmes, of Monticello.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR ENDORSED BY ALABAMA C. E. CONVENTION

The following resolutions were adopted by about 100 of the young people from sixteen Southern Presbyterian Churches assembled at Christian Endeavor State Convention, Dothan, Ala., April 12th, 1929, during their Denominational Conference:

1. Be it resolved that we hereby declare there is nothing wrong with our Church, its creed nor its methods; but that we young people should give it more loyal and active support.

2. Be it resolved that it is the judgment of this group of young people, members of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, that the Christian Endeavor Society affords the best means for the training and development of our young people and that it need in no way detract from our Denominational loyalty, and does not when properly directed.

EDITORIAL

(Continued from Page Three)

actually annulled the Charta, and ex-communicated the barons concerned in it.

In view of these facts the only conclusion possible is that either Cardinal Gibbons was ignorant of history, or else he deliberately distorted facts—unless he refused to agree with the moralists—that suppression of facts is equal to suggestion of the false. Either horn of the dilemma will not be very complimentary to his worship.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

The Department of Woman's Work, Presbyterian
270-277 Field Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

SYNODICAL PRESIDENTS OF THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

Alabama—Mrs. J. F. Hooper, 610 Mabry St., Selm
Appalachia—Mrs. F. B. Kegley, Wytheville, Va.
Arkansas—Mrs. Walter Wilson, Arkadelphia, A.
Florida—Mrs. W. G. Thompson, Jr., 3215 Obispo
Cia Park, Tampa, Fla.
Georgia—Mrs. E. G. Abbott, 1315 Eberhart Ave., C.
Kentucky—Mrs. H. P. Cooper, Lebanon, Ky.
Louisiana—Mrs. Charles L. Bodin, Box 79, M.
Charles, La.
Mississippi—Mrs. J. S. Hicks, Holly Springs, M.
Missouri—Mrs. Walter Craven, 223 Frances S.
Springs, Mo.
North Carolina—Mrs. G. V. Patterson, Gastonia,
Oklahoma—Mrs. Wilbur Garvin, 611 Euclid, Lawto
South Carolina—Mrs. Parker Connor, Edisto Isla
Tennessee—Mrs. J. F. Forsythe, Bethel Springs, Texas—Mrs. J. W. Culver, Texas Military Acade
tonio, Texas.
Virginia—Mrs. C. R. Vaughan, 319 Mountain Ave.,
West Virginia—Mrs. J. McD. Lacy, Elkins, W.

A PLEA FOR STEWARDSHIP

Throughout our whole beloved Church there being placed in all of our programs a special on that which is the supreme task of the winning of souls to Jesus Christ in this land the sea. This commission has been entrusted Christ Himself, who says to us: "Ye shall unto me." But first, He said to His disciple "Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields."

This is the season for us to lift up our eyes on the fields of need in our own land. October have been designated by our Assembly a season for Home Mission study, prayer and by planning to begin the study in October ready for the climax to the Home Mission vember 17-24, the week of prayer and see Home Missions.

Our text book for study this year, "Ten Ways" by Chas. Hatch Sears, is the general to be used throughout the United States. Our Mission Committee in Atlanta has excellent material to you for working out programs that special challenge of the cities to our Southern Church. This is included in the valuable titled "Leader's Helps" prepared this year B. Paisley.

Let us emphasize the study of Stewardship with our Mission Study classes as this recommended to us again this year. "Stewardship of the Crowded Ways" gives special material for your devotionals.

We strongly recommend "The Bible and Lenses" by Dr. Walter Lingle for parallel connection with the study of the Home Mission Order at least one copy of Doctor Lingle's Bible Auxiliary and encourage its reading by as best as possible, for its message will be especially just at this time when our thoughts are the social problems of our cities.

Plan for the kind of mission study that best group: A Church School of Missions which plan in many places, or the circle or group classes. The important thing is to lead the member of your women into the study of the Mission task. Then we shall all be more intercessors for our Master's work and more nesses to Him in our own homeland.

With a prayer for God's guidance of you on you, I am

Faithfully yours in His service
Janie W. McGaughey,

GROUP CONFERENCE KING'S MOUNTAIN (N. C.) PRESBYTERIAL

The Group Conferences of King's Mountain (N. C.) were held during the week of District No. 1 was held September 24 at Church, Gastonia, presided over by Mrs. S. Belmont, and District No. 2 was held on at Spindale presided over by Mrs. R. W. Rutherfordton.

In spite of the inclement weather, both were well attended, most of the auxiliaries in the material being represented.

An interesting presentation of the Standard by the Presbyterian Cause Secretaries and messages on "Personal Evangelism," the theme of the conference, were brought by Rev. W. M. C. R. T. Baker.

We were fortunate in having with us conferences, missionaries from China, Miss and Mrs. Lacy Little, who gave very interesting of their work in that country.

The Bible Hour—The Study of Romans was a helpful way by Mrs. Fred Allen and Mrs.

The whole days program was very interesting and all causes of Presbyterian work were At both meetings delicious lunches with ere served by the hostess auxiliaries in the buildings near the churches.

Mrs. Claude Litman,
Secretary of Presbyterial.

ADELAIDE

Egbert W. Smith

ye Southerland, our missionary nurse at Mexico, writes a most interesting account of a Zitacuaro School whom she is helping to support. It shows the rich fruits of a missionary's work and illustrates also what splendid material those Mexican boys and girls. Says Miss was a poor, ignorant, ranch girl seventeen years old when she came into the hospital with her feet and legs covered with sores. She stayed in the hospital for months getting these terrible sores cured. When she was ready to leave, she asked for work. She seemed to have the chance that I gave her work in the hospital. She did her work well. She heard the Gospel through morning prayers that are the first order of the hospital. She loved the hymns, and since she had a clear, sweet voice, we encouraged her to sing hymns. At first she was fearful about going to church because she had been told that she would worship the Devil, but after she had been in the hospital a few times with the rest of the hospital force, she took deep interest in the services. When she was in the hospital for two years, she made her profession of faith. Her face as she went about the hospital was radiant that the patients liked to have her had never been to school a day in her life. She came to me and said she wanted to learn to read. I asked one of our teacher missionaries if she would take Adelaide. She put the girl in the first reader and she had studied some by herself, so they began to read together. She did so well that we decided to send her to the school in Zitacuaro to finish out the school that was drawing to a close. In less than half a year she had finished the third and fourth grades and made excellent progress in her studies. Last year she was in school for a year and completed the work of the fifth grade. Now she is preparing to return to Zitacuaro for another year before beginning serious work in nursing. During the two vacations she worked in the hospital. She is going to be a good nurse, strong, capable, willing, cheerful and all truly christian."

WISDOMS OF OUR HEARTS' DESIRE" shadows drifting over the hills,

over the hills of our hearts' desire;
the trees reaching to kiss the sky
the road climbs higher and higher;
fountains of water, cool and clear,
soft winds that whisper, "God is near,
strength, and joy, and peace are here
the hills of your hearts' desire."

the hills of our hearts' desire
a quiet, restful place,
friendliness is the watchword,
and a smile is on every face;
the hills of our hearts' desire
where faith and hope grow strong,
the peace of God steals into our souls
the notes of the evening song.

of the hills of our hearts' desire,
back to the toil and strife
we go with a broader vision and a nobler purpose in life;
of the hills of our hearts' desire
to serve our fellowmen—
Oh dear God, if it be Thy will, bring us back to the hills again.

Grace B. Evans,
(Mrs. Arthur C. Evans).
Terrell, Texas.

Christian Observer in the issue of July 3, the Department of Women's Work there appeared a folder that had been issued telling of the things in store for those, who attended the Training School for Auxiliary Workers in Kerrville. In front of the folder was the invitation "Come to the Hills for your hearts' desire;" and leaders, who would help to gratify your hearts'

Grace B. Evans, Terrell, Texas, wife of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., was so attracted by the invitation to come to the heart of the hills that she began to inquire the rates and accommodations. She found Rev. and Mrs. A. C. Terrell and their children at The Westminster Encampment, Terrell, Texas.

On her first visit but the words and thought of the hills and then the participation of the reality so that she wrote the beautiful little invitation came to receive their hearts' desire they also gave freely of themselves and were a great addition to the Camp Life and we pray that they may be permitted to come back to the hills again.

WILMINGTON PRESBYTERIAL AUXILIARY

The District Days of Prayer of Wilmington Presbyterial Auxiliary will be held in the sixth district of the presbyterial as follows: District No. 1, October 24th at Myrtle Grove Church; District No. 5, October 25th, at Willard; District, No. 2, October 26th at Clarkton; District No. 6, October 29th, at Pink Hill; District, No. 3, October 30th at Beth Car; District No. 4, October 31st, at Pollockville.

A fine inspirational program has been arranged. Dr. George Worth, Superintendent of Kyangyin Hospital, China, and Dr. R. C. Clontz, Superintendent of Home Missions in Wilmington Presbytery will be the principal speakers. Mrs. Lacy Little of Kyangyin, China, will be the bible teacher. Other phases of our work will be presented by those leading the work. These days are set apart primarily for prayer, and the earnest consideration of the work of our Church and all the women of the Presbyterial are earnestly urged to attend these meetings. Lunch will be served at the Church each day.

Mrs. W. T. Bannerman, Pres.

GROUP CONFERENCES—FAYETTEVILLE PRESBYTERIAL

Group Conferences will be held in eight Districts as follows:

District No. 1, Erwin, November 5th—Chairman, Mrs. J. W. Thornton, Dunn, N. C.

District No. 2, Godwin, November 12th—Chairman, Mrs. David McNeill, Wade, N. C.

District No. 3, Philadelphus, November 13th—Chairman, Mrs. J. P. Wiggins, Maxton, N. C.

District No. 4, Wagram, November 14th—Chairman, Mrs. A. J. McKelway, Laurel Hill, N. C.

District No. 5, Lumber Bridge, November 7th—Chairman, Mrs. G. W. Hanna, Antioch, N. C.

District No. 6, Eureka, November 6th—Chairman, Mrs. J. D. Wimberly, Aberdeen, N. C.

District No. 7, Cameron Hill, October 30th—Chairman, Mrs. A. C. Prevost, Carthage, N. C.

District No. 8, Flat Branch, October 31st—Chairman, Mrs. Charles Ross, Lillington, N. C.

Mrs. Lacy L. Little, of China, will be the missionary speaker. All women of Fayetteville Presbyterial are cordially invited and expected to attend one of these meetings.

Mrs. W. M. Fairley, President.

PRESBYTERIAN WOMEN OF SOUTH CAROLINA

This is the title of a remarkable book of seven hundred and eighty-six pages by Margaret Adams Gist. It is just off the press; and Miss Gist and those associated with her have placed all the Presbyterians of South Carolina and others under fresh obligations to them for their faithful and self-sacrificing efforts. It is an excellent companion volume of the "Presbyterian Church in South Carolina since 1850," a book that has been published by the Synod of South Carolina. One is the complement of the other. "The Presbyterian Women of South Carolina" contains a wealth of details of permanent value to our great, historic communion and other Christians; and reveals the marvelous development of the women's work in organization, numbers, methods, literature and results. Pictures of some of the noted women of the Synod and of the historic houses of worship embellish some of its pages. Consecrated and skillful pens have recorded the facts and figures in attractive style that relate to the Women's Auxiliaries in Bethel, Charleston, Congaree, Enoree, Harmony, Pee Dee, Piedmont and South Carolina Presbyteries; to the history of each Presbyterial, to the Synodical, to the Colored Presbyterial in North Carolina and South Carolina.

Many honored names of men and women appear on its pages that are dear to the hearts of South Carolinians. Their posthumous influence abides.

The Presbyterian women have cultivated the spiritual life; have been loyal to Christ and the Church and have shown the christian spirit of co-operation in all their great and varied work for years. God has crowned their labors with success. They have always been deeply interested in Missions at home and abroad and the names of these missionaries from each Presbyterial are given in this book, and interesting biographical sketches of them written. "And they that be wise (teachers) shall shine as the brightness of the firmament, and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars forever and ever." Daniel 12:3. Biographical sketches of many other prominent women enrich its pages and items of note are recorded. Hundreds of volumes have been placed in the hands of the women of the eight Presbyterials for sale at reasonable figures.

E. P. Davis.

Greenville, S. C.

CHURCH NEWS

(Continued from page 7)
TEXAS

Brownwood Presbytery met in Ballinger, Texas, September 17, 1929. Present: Ten ministers and five ruling elders. Officers: Rev. B. O. Wood, D.D., moderator; Rev. B. D. Kennedy, D.D., temporary clerk.

Ordained: John Knox Bowling as evangelist supplying Paint Rock group of churches; Thos. B. Gallaher by a commission on July 28 and installed pastor of Comanche Church.

Ministerial Annuity Fund was endorsed at the spring meeting. Rev. R. M. Hammock was placed upon honorary retired list.

As to the union with United Presbyterian Church, postponed until the possible points of difference in administration are worked out more carefully, and until the General Assembly of United Presbyterian Church takes a more decided stand as to the union, and until the practical advantages of the union are made evident.

Presbyterial sermon was by Rev. R. M. Hammock.

Next stated meeting at Eldorado, Texas, at 8 p. m., third Tuesday in April, 1930.

Malcolm Black, S. C.

Beaumont—More than 400 Presbyterians attended the congregational "Get-together" dinner of Westminster Presbyterian Church, Wednesday, September 25. The occasion was the launching of the campaign to secure $125,000 for the erection of a new Sunday School building and church enlargement. The principal speakers were the pastor, Rev. T. M. Hunter, D.D., and Dr. S. W. McGill, of Kentucky, who is assisting the pastor in the campaign. The enthusiasm manifested indicated complete success in the undertaking. The attendance was made up entirely of Presbyterians. It was stated that this was the largest social gathering of Presbyterians ever held in southwest Texas. The beneficial results to the entire work of the church cannot be overestimated.

Presbytery of Paris met in the First Church, Texarkana, Texas, September 17, 1929, with 17 ministers and 12 ruling elders present.

Officers: Rev. Geo. C. Moore was elected moderator, and Rev. J. J. Ramsey, D.D., reading clerk.

A new church at Hallsville was reported and enrolled.

The Assembly's overture relative to union with the United Presbyterian Church was deferred until the next stated meeting of Presbytery.

An evening service was devoted to Home Missions and Evangelism, with addresses by Rev. Drs. Hill, R. M. Hall, and A. F. Cunningham.

Waskom was chosen as the place for the next stated meeting.

J. G. Varner, S. C.

VIRGINIA

Olivet—Rev. W. L. Latham, of Rutherfordton, N. C., has taken charge of Olivet Church in Lexington Presbytery and has moved his family there. His post office is Staunton, Va., R. F. D.

Mt. Zion Church in Lexington Presbytery has as its pastor now the Rev. J. T. Williams, who has been supplying Beulah and Stony Run churches. His present address is Cornwall, Rockbridge County.

Cornwall—Mr. L. M. McCutchan, a student in Union Theological Seminary, has labored for two summers in a community on the Norfolk and Western Railroad, 10 or 12 miles north of Buena Vista, Va., in a field that has been without a church building. His work has been very successful and a membership of about half a hundred has been gathered together. A movement towards the erection of a church building was made last summer a year ago and this summer the building was erected at a cost of about $1,500 and paid for.

This building is at the mouth of Irish Creek, Rockbridge County, and across the South River, which flows into the north branch of the James River just below Buena Vista.

The church is erected very near to the spot on which the great Dr. Archibald Alexander was born and he gives the following account of his birthplace:

"The house in which I was born was built of square logs, as were most of the houses at that time. The place is rough, and is near a little mountain stream, called the South River, which, after joining the North River, falls into the James River, just above its entrance into the mountains. (Balcony Falls now). Nearly opposite to the place, Irish Creek, a bold stream from the gorge of the mountains, falls into the South River. This my birthplace at that time in Augusta County, which was unlimited to the west; it is now in Rockbridge County, and is about seven miles from Lexington, in an easterly direction."

Wm. C. White.

CHILDREN

PLUGGY MAKES A TOUCHDOWN

We had a pretty good football team at our school, with helmets enough to go around and everything; and the big fellow who was coaching us said that we'd win the championship game sure if we'd follow his advice.

I wasn't so sure, but that must have been because I was nervous. The Steam Rollers were already out on the field, going through a few signals, and I could see that they were just as husky as we were, if not huskier. I could also see that Pluggy MacDonald was worried.

Pluggy is the quarterback of our team, and I guess he's about the neatest football player there is. Anyway, I think so, and it's not because he's my chum, either, although that's got a little to do with it, I'll admit. He and the coach were always having arguments about the best way to score touchdowns.

"I've told you a dozen times before, Pluggy," the coach said. "Good football is hitting the other line hard and often. None of this fancy stuff is any good at all."

"Good football is using the old head," replied Pluggy. "Look at those Steam Rollers practicing out on the field. They are ten pounds heavier than we per man. If we try to go through them, they'll stop us like a stone wall."

"Never mind about that," replied the coach. "You do as I say."

We trotted out on the field and began to throw the ball around for a little practice. The referee got all ready, so did the linesmen, and when the two captains had arranged which team was to kick off and in which direction, the whistle blew and the game started.

Pluggy did as the coach told him to do. "8-9-6, Hike," he yelled, and since that was the signal for a plunge through the Steam Rollers' line, we all got set for the collision. When Pluggy yelled "Hike" the second time, we dug in and smashed the men in front of us as hard as we could, trying to knock them over and fall on top of them. At the same time we were supposed to open up a path for Pluggy, who always carried the ball on a play like that.

We were supposed to! But we had all we could do to open up a crack in the Steam Roller's line wide enough to see through, let alone a path big enough for Pluggy to lunge through with the ball!

"That's their style of play!" cried the Captain of the Steam Rollers. "C'mon, fellows. Let's hold 'em!"

"Hold 'em? Let push them back!" cried the rest of the team.

And they did push us back. Instead of our making any progress toward their goal, as we should have done, they were forcing us back toward our own.

"This is so bad that it's awful!" groaned Pluggy. "I'll bet a good forward pass would win the game for us, if the coach would only let me try one."

But the coach wouldn't, so the only thing we could do was to hit the line harder than ever in the hope that the Steam Rollers would get tired before us; but what was the use of having such a vain hope? In the second quarter our opponents pulled a neat fake pass and their quarterback got away for a forty-yard run, ending in a touchdown!

Score 6-0, their favor. Everytime a football team makes a touchdown, they have a free chance to kick a goal. Well, it isn't exactly a free chance, because the other team has the right to block the kick if it can. The Steam Rollers took their try and made it, which added another point to their score.

Then they got conceited, I guess, or maybe they thought they could tease us a little, for they let us travel down the field until we were within thirty yards of their goal. They expected us to keep on with our battering ram plunges, I guess, so they were caught unprepared when we tried a goal kick from the field.

So were we, but Pluggy knew what he was doing. He gave the correct signals, the center threw the ball back to him, he caught it in his hands and then gave it a terrific kick down the field. It soared over the heads of all the players and made a

PICKING GRAPES

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use the

"Here is a nice big PURPLE bunch of grapes!" says BROWN-haired Teddy to YELLOW-haired Susie May.

"There are lots of PURPLE grapes among the GREEN grape leaves, aren't they?" said Susie May.

"Yes, and we must fill your YELLOW basket quite full—see it is nearly full. I can see the PURPLE grapes are almost to the top!" Teddy replies.

The vine has a YELLOW trellis.

The vine is BROWN and the little twisted tendrils are light GREEN.

Susie May wears a PINK (use RED lightly) dress with a light BLUE yoke and cuffs. They are bound with a darkened BLUE binding.

Teddy wears a light TAN (use BROWN and YELLOW mixed) blouse, with white collar and cuffs. His necktie is RED and his trousers are dark BROWN with white buttons. His socks

are TAN and his shoes P

The hedge is dark C BROWN trunks and the g GREEN (you can mix Y your GREEN to lighten it BLUE and both childrenr cheeks and RED lips.

You can color the bordt ure YELLOW a n d should be PURPLE.

beautiful arch through the air, going through the exact middle of the goal posts.

Maybe our rooters didn't yell! It was only three points, but that was something, anyway, and if we worked hard during

(Continued on page 13)

PUZZLE CORNER

Junior Cross-Word Puzzle

1	2	3	4	5	6
7			8
9			10
		11
12	13			14
15			16
17

Horizontal

- 1—A review (pl.)
- 7—Anger
- 8—Feminine name
- 9—Right (abbr.)
- 10—Exactly
- 11—Insect
- 12—Ripped
- 14—The size of a shot
- 15—Period of time
- 16—A constellation
- 17—A member of the senate

Vertical

- 1—Robbers on the high seas
- 2—Skill
- 3—Musical note
- 4—A pigeon
- 5—Before
- 6—Bar of sand
- 10—Even (poet.)
- 11—Coarse outer coat of wheat
- 13—Raw metal
- 14—Brother (abbr.)
- 16—Preposition

Beheading Acrostic

The letters beheaded arranged in order form the name of a season:

- Behead help and leave wager.
- Behead a poisonous tree and leave the French word for "step."
- Behead appreciation of what is fit and leave performance.
- Behead on and leave abbreviation of ponder.
- Behead additional and leave native metal.
- Behead not far and leave part of the head.

Fractional Vegetable

- Add together—
- 2-5 of a fruit.
- 1-6 of a number.
- 2-5 of a flower.
- 2-5 of a tree.
- and find a vegetable.

Arithmetical Puzzlers

- Take 1 from 9 and get 10. (Answer: IX; take I away leave X.)
- Bring three 2's together so as to make 24. (Answer: 22; plus 2 equals 24.)
- What number of 3 figures multiplied by 8 will make exactly 10? (Answer: 1-14 or 1.25.)
- Add 1 to 9 and make 20. (Answer: IX; cross the I and you have XX.)

Puzzle Answers on Page 13.

TURN AROUND

TWO-IN-ONE STORIES FOR

BY NELSON WHITE

In our little Zoo today we have the cutest pig. But turn him upside down and you'll see he's a piggy bank. Things are not always what they seem. Watch out for these little puzzles. Change them around and you'll see how they change into another. Every now and then there will be a Turn Around."

An hour of worship on all the hours of work.

A mind three-quarters full is less than twenty-five percent.

BITUARIES

IN MEMOIAM

WILLIAM GIBSON WATSON

God, in His wise providence, has called to His reward our brother, William Watson, an elder, faithful and true, of the Presbyterian Church, Salisbury, N. C., there-fore solved:

The mindful of the deep loss to our church of one who was a loyal and consistent faithful ruling elder, a loving and con-der and husband, and an esteemed and

Express in this manner our deepest ap-preciation of the work, worth and influence of one so regular in attendance on the services of our church, punctual in the performance of his duties in his walk and conversation be-fore all men.

Assure the grief-stricken family of our sympathy and pray that God may give to them peace, comfort, and strength in the time to come.

May these resolutions be spread on our church records, a copy published and a copy sent to

S. H. Plexico.
E. W. Rice, Committee.

MARRIED

Watson—In Montgomery, Ala., September 7, 1929, by Rev. Herbert V. Carson, D.D., Rev. P. J. of Roxboro, N. C., and Miss Emily Watson, Montgomery, Ala.

Wilkeson — In Richmond, Va., at the bride's sister, on April 25, 1929, by Rev. J. the uncle of the bride, Mr. James F. Petersburg, W. Va., and Miss Cary on, of Mooreland, W. Va.

Howard—At the bride's home in Moores-ville, September 7, 1929, by Rev. R. A. White,

Mr. Edwin Beverly Gresham, Jr., of Charlotte, N. C., and Miss Christine Howard.

DIED

Williams—W. T. Williams, at his home near New-Port, S. C., on July 22, 1929, from an infected throat and heart trouble, aged 60. Survived by his wife and three sons and six daughters. He was an elder in the Tirzah A. R. P. Church. Interment was in the Neely's Creek Cemetery.

COMPARATIVE STATEMENT—FOREIGN MISSION RECEIPTS

Receipts Applicable to Regular Appropriations:
September	1929	1928
Churches	$ 28,011.70	$ 24,442.33
Sunday Schools	408.14	955.18
Sunday Schools Objective	526.37	425.54
Societies	4,965.30	6,266.75
Societies Objective	107.50	55.50
Individuals	2,767.96	1,809.30
	$ 36,786.97	$ 33,954.60
Legacies		21.75
	$ 36,786.97	$ 33,976.35

Six months April 1 to September 30, 1929, inclusive:
Churches	$217,041.06	$218,769.25
Sunday Schools	6,933.80	7,794.13
Sunday Schools Objective	11,531.33	13,405.98
Societies	38,996.19	39,379.02
Societies Objective	766.36	719.53
Individuals	21,368.68	16,853.92
	$296,637.42	296,921.83
Legacies	130.18	106.73
	$296,767.60	$297,028.56

Cost Year 1928-29	$1,209,205.39
Initial Appropriation 1929-30	1,235,068.96
Deficit March 31, 1929	$174,659.02
Less gifts for same	2,179.44
	172,479.58
	$1,407,548.54
Nashville, Tenn.	Edwin F. Willis,
September 30, 1929.	Treasurer.

RECEIPTS FOR ASSEMBLY'S HOME MISSIONS

The following table gives a comparative statement of receipts of the Assembly's Home Missions for six months, April 1st through September 30, 1929:

	1929	1928	Inc.	Dec.
Churches	$113,783.25	$104,320.86	$9,462.39
Sunday Schools	2,499.81	444.92	2,054.89
Auxiliaries	7,465.36	8,010.01		$544.65
Y. P. & C. E.	509.83			509.83
Individuals	3,220.19	1,364.27		1,855.92

Total Receipts—$127,478.44 $114,140.06 $13,883.03 $544.65
Designated Gifts, $12,532.63; Total $140,011.07.

Total amount apportioned by the General As-sembly's Home Missions for 1929-30—$840,000.00
Total receipts April through Sept. 30, 1929—140,011.07

$699,988.93
A. N. Sharp, Treasurer.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION AND MINIS- TERIAL RELIEF

COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF RECEIPTS

April 1, 1929-September 30, 1929

April 1, 1929-September 30, 1929
	1929-30	1928-29	Inc.	Dec.
Churches	$40,349.60	$40,858.34		$ 508.74
Sabbath Schools	2,279.91	2,240.95	$ 38.96
Societies	6,275.44	7,087.55		812.11
Individuals	4,211.82	3,599.48	612.34
Miscellaneous	66.27	486.85		420.58
	$53,183.04	$54,273.17	$651.30	$1,741.43
Net Decrease,	$1,090.13.

John Stites, Treasurer.

"For this is the challenge of the Dollar Dug from the mountain side and washed in the glen Servant am I, or the master of men;
Steal me, I curse you;
Earn me, I bless you;
Grasp me and hoard me a friend shall possess you;
Lie for me, die for me;
Covet me, take me;
Angel or Devil, I am what you make me."

CHILDREN

(Continued from Page 12)

Pluggie laughed. "I know I'd have to surprise them in order to score," he replied. "And besides, a touchdown counts six points while a field kick only counts three. If I had kicked that last time instead of trying for a touchdown, the score would have been 7-6 in their favor."

For a moment the coach was silent. Then he said, admiringly:

"Pluggie, that sure was using your old head," and after that, there were no arguments about the right way to play foot- ball!

PUZZLE ANSWERS

P	A	R	A	D	E	S
I	R	E		O	R	A
R	T		E	V	E	N
A		B	E	E		D
T	O	R	N		B	B
E	R	A		A	R	A
S	E	N	A	T	O	R

Beheding Acrostic

A bet
U pas
T act
U pon
M ore
N ear

AUTUMN

Fractional Vegetable

LE-mon, T-wenty, Tu-lip, CE-dar.

LETTUCE

RIDES A PONY

Dear Standard:

I am writing to you to surprise my Grandmother. I am a little girl seven years old. I have four brothers and one sister. I have a little black pony, I like to ride on his back. I like to go to Sunday School. My teacher is Mrs. Dees. My pastor is Mr. McIntyre.

Your friend,
Mary Best.

P. S.: Hope Mr. Wastebasket is on a vacation.

THE JUNIOR COOK

Scalloped Oysters

Wash and pick over enough oysters to make 2 cupfuls.

Butter a baking dish (not too deep a dish).

Roll enough crackers to make one cupful.

Melt 1-3 cupful of butter and mix with the crumbs.

Strain the oyster liquor and add enough milk to make one cupful.

Put a thin layer of crumbs in the buttered dish.

Cover this with a layer of oysters and then a layer of crumbs alternating till the dish is full.

Season each layer of oysters with pepper and salt before putting on the crumbs of salt and 1-3 teaspoon pep- per.

Pour the liquid over the top and bake for 25 minutes. Serve immediat- ily.

LEAVES OF AUTUMN

Down the lane they're dancing by ones and twos and threes—

Little leaves are dancing away from mother trees.

They've donned their newest dresses of brown and red and gold

And fearlessly they're dancing away into the cold.

A puff of wind,—they're rustling now, murmuring to each other,

"Perhaps we're foolish little leaves to leave our sturdy mother."

But on they whirl and dance again in Nature's merry game,

Forgetful of the mother tree and woods from whence they came.

Now whirling high, now floating low, now twirling round about,

Now hurrying on in answer to the North Wind's lusty shout,

They very air seems full of leaves — they come down all the ways,

Dancing in the nipping breeze these frosty days.

ON THE CAMPUS

Dear Standard:

I am seven years old I live on the Columbia Seminary campus. When we came here we killed some snakes; one was a king snake and the other was the mother snake.

