DEDICATION

TO

MISS HELEN KENDALL

On a stormy afternoon a blue and rusty '39 Plymouth hurried to a halt in the back of the Divinity School. A quiet and modest woman jumped out, hastened up the steps, and unlocked the chapel doors. Then organ notes, clear and majestic, echoed through the empty halls. In the deserted York Chapel Miss Helen Kendall was playing "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God." Something seemed to whisper, "She does so much for us."

". . . Miss Kendall, will you sign my schedule card?" "Are these hymns suitable for the service next week?" "May I reserve the social room? . . ."

with these and a thousand other queries the Administrative Assistant, Organist, and Music Director of the Divinity School has become familiar. It is a tribute to Miss Kendall's ability that in four years she has become such a vital part of the main-spring of our school. We, the students of the Divinity School of Duke University, are proud to dedicate this 1954 CIRCUIT RIDER to Miss Helen Kendall.

FAITHFUL PIONEERING

TODAY, the charge of The Methodist Publishing House remains the same as in the year of its founding—1789. Namely, to provide and distribute church-school literature "of such type and variety as to meet the needs of all groups of our people."

The Church recognizes the vast differences among Methodists: their varying backgrounds, outlooks, and alignments. They represent every stage of culture and every shade of opinion; they are of every age and station.

That is why the Methodist church-school curriculum offers several series of lesson materials—the most diversified ever published. It is a strong, unified system with a complete literature program for every church, large or small, rural or urban . . . dedicated to the total program of united, world-wide Methodism.

The Methodist church-school literature is based on the Christian gospel of personal and social redemption, the Bible, and the beliefs and practices of The Methodist Church.

Today, The Methodist Publishing House perpetuates the tradition established by the Circuit

Riders of 1789. Its vast printing and publishing facilities and a nation-wide network of regional Houses serve millions with a wide selection of good books and the finest church supplies and equipment.

Remember this sign of the Circuit Rider—a symbol of service to the Church since 1789.

THE CLARITY OF THE CLERGY

Judging by what the wild air waves are saying there exists a large audience who prefer to be mystified rather than edified. If they can't understand they appear to be ready to buy.

Clergymen look at things differently. They feel that to mystify is not to satisfy. So the Presbyterian Ministers' Fund delights to deal in simple facts and plain figures. What can't be understood shouldn't be bought. It points with pride to the growing fellowship of preachers who feel it is better to clarify than to mystify.
