

The 2005 Martin Luther King, Jr. Distinguished Lecturer The Most Reverend Njongonkulu Winston Hugh Ndungane

Having been commissioned by his fellow archbishops worldwide to drive the church's program to facilitate an African generation without AIDS, Archbishop Ndungane carries the weight of more than 110 million Anglicans in 164 countries when he addresses the pandemic in Africa.

He has closely aligned himself and the church with organized labor, the Treatment Action Campaign, the Catholic Bishops Conference and the South African Council of Churches in the battle to reduce the high incidence of mother-to-child transmission in South Africa.

A master of theology in his own right, he is the recipient of a number of honorary degrees and rates his graduation from Robben Island highly. In particular, during March 1960 he was involved in anti-Pass Law Demonstrations while a student at the University of Cape Town. This encouraged an increased interest in politics which resulted in his eventual arrest under apartheid law. From August 1963 to August 1966 he served a three-year sentence on Robben Island as a political prisoner.

While in prison, Njongonkulu decided to enter the church. He was ordained as a priest of the Anglican Church in July 1974 in the Diocese of Cape Town. He received a Bachelor of Divinity, Honors degree at King's College, London and became an associate of King's College. Additionally, he completed his Master of Theology degree in Christian Ethics – also at King's College.

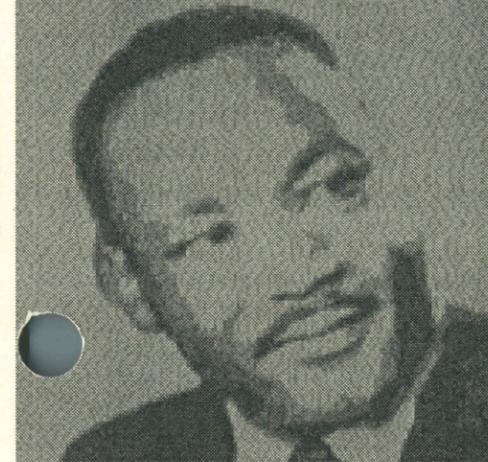

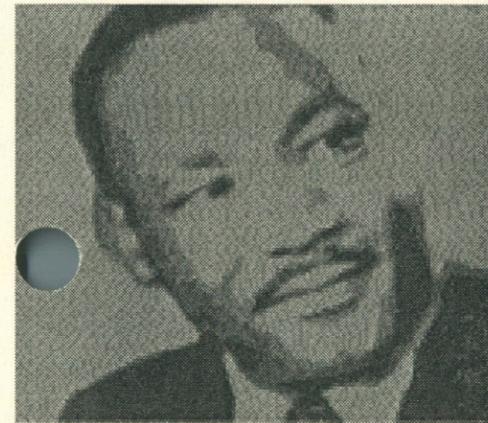

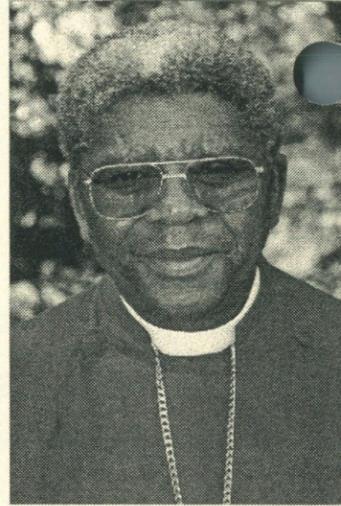

He has served as the Principal of St. Bede's Theological College in Umtata, the Provincial Liaison Officer for the Church of the Province of Southern Africa, the Provincial Executive Officer for the CPSA and Bishop of Kimberley and Kuruman. Since September 1996 he has served as the Archbishop of Cape Town.

A keen campaigner against the abuse of women and children, he is probably best known internationally for his relentless fight against poverty and the insidious injustices generated as much by debt that developing countries will never be able to pay as by skewed global economic practices.

He heads the Inter-religious Commission on Crime and Violence in the Western Cape and is patron of Jubilee 2000 and has been invited to act as a mediator in the Zimbabwean situation.

He is an ardent campaigner for words rather than war. The archbishop has also offered his services as a mediator in the dispute between apartheid victims, corporations and the financial sector. He does this on the basis that it is far better to negotiate reparation than to go to court.

Archbishop Ndungane has written many essays and made numerous contributions to books. A book which is part-autobiography and part-record of some of the speeches and sermons he has made has recently been published in Britain and South Africa. It is entitled A World With A Human Face: A Voice From Africa.
