

hold responsible for its course on the highway a car that has a driver at the wheel that directs its very movement. If there is judgment of an individual such judgment is based on the fact that the individual makes his own choices. This belief that we can choose is, we hold, basic to Christianity.

III. In the long run each person profits or suffers according to his choices.

1. If you are an avid "comic strip" reader you are perhaps familiar with "Flattop" in Dick Tracy. At the present he is running around the countryside with the ghost of a girl hanging around his neck, a girl whom he pushed from a roof to her death. His hair has now turned white and he is greatly emaciated. Remorse over his crime evidently has caused him to imagine her ghost hanging on in a way he can't shake. Certainly at the moment he is the most severely suffering from his crime.

2. But what about people who suffer and die because of the evil acts and choices of others? What about the ~~44~~ people who died <sup>on</sup> the airliner bombed by a man after his mother's insurance money? What about the news columnist who will be blind the rest of his life because a vengeful member of a mob threw acid in his face? What about the
