

COOKING AND MAKING

Good cooking with skill and care as to seasoning produces a treat for all who enjoy food - and who doesn't? Some of us are gifted with what I call an "analytical" taste sense. Savouring the taste of a fine dish, they can come close not only to identification of the component ingredients, but as well, they can make a skilled guess as to how the ingredients are used to produce dish. As a child, I recall table conversations centering around such use of ingredients and how revolting that talk was to me! It seemed to me then that one ought to be content with the delightful outcome and not be concerned with how it had been brought about.

Time passes and one learns - or we hope we do! I have come to have healthy respect for and considerable interest in how things are put together, machines, foods, people, even church programs. Bread or something like it is common to every culture. Though not a baker, I am fascinated with the ability of some people to take what seem to me unlikely ingredients and then, from them, with skill and certainty, they produce bread which is esthetically beautiful, really nourishing for the body, and a delight to the taste. Out of flour, yeast, some kinds of liquids, maybe a bit of oil, a touch of salt - the listing proves my lack of knowledge - but out of it all comes a product of delight and nourishment for all of us.

Church programs and work come out of something of the same blending. We seek to bring together people with differing talents and tastes; suggestions from all segments of the congregation; some persons who are willing to give some time and their talents; a few who give a great deal of time. Add to it suggestions from our denominational leadership centers. Sprinkle in awareness of local needs as well as opportunities out in the world. One indispensable element is money to make it all go. And that brings me to the point of this paragraph; money is important! It is not the only thing and it is not the main thing. The main thing is Christian love and dedication. But without the fueling and provisioning effect of money, the whole thing will not go. Gasoline, even with our higher prices, is not the only thing in an automobile, but without it, the vehicle will not go.

We are in the completion stages of our Every Member Commitment. Commitment in intention of giving money is one aspect of total commitment. Your participation in giving is needed for the fulfillment of what we have set before ourselves as our goals. What anyone gives, taken alone, will not carry us very far. Put all our gifts together and we will move forward. What you do is important! Register NOW your intentions and our efforts joined will in God's mercy and leading enable us to continue and increase our outreach.

DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME ends Sunday, 29 October, at two o'clock in the morning. Please set your timepieces back one hour; i. e., from 10 to 9, prior to retiring Saturday evening.

EVENING HOLY COMMUNION will be celebrated at Duke Memorial Sunday, 5 November, from 5:30 to 6:30. This will be a service like the one last Christmas Eve. Come at your choice of time between these hours. Take time to read through the order of service, to offer the prayers that God places in your heart, and then receive the sacrament. In essence, it is a "come and go" service but this does not mean that one should be in haste and certainly, it does not mean that one should be unprepared for it!
