Foreword

WHEN the symbol for the 1952-1956 quadrennium in the Woman's Society of Christian Service and the Wesleyan Service Guild was emblazoned across the pages of THE METHODIST WOMAN, it was impossible to conceive how deeply the goals would become engraved upon the minds and hearts of women throughout The Methodist Church. A compass points to all parts of the world—indicative of a world-wide concern; around the compass is a series of concentric circles, each summarizing one of the emphases—spiritual growth, widening fellowship, a world church, peace, missions; and, at the center, a cross is supported by discipleship. All this began as a symbol, but it became the heart and the soul of the Woman's Society of Christian Service and the Wesleyan Service Guild.

Most of these goals have no measuring rods; their attainment cannot, therefore, be tabulated. Their effect, however, when fully carried out, can mean the difference between Christ or chaos, peace or war, education or illiteracy, health or disease, security or hunger, human worth or valueless individuals.

Patterns for Peace have been lifted up through emphases on spiritual growth, brotherhood, daily witness to Christian faith, human rights, widening fellowship, and dedicated service. The World Witness of Methodist Women, as exhibited in schools, hospitals, homes, social centers, and other mission projects around the world, interpreted Jesus Christ—the Way: in Jerusalem and Judea, in Samaria and unto the uttermost parts of the earth. Investments of life and money have taken the hearts of Methodist women into twenty-nine nations, for Where Your Treasure Is, there is your heart, also.

We come, in our fourth annual report, this quadrennium, to Fruits of Discipleship by which the cross is supported and through which the crucifixion becomes the resurrection. Before there were fruits, there had to be faith; there had to be work; and, most of all, there had to be understanding love, for "we will not understand what we have not loved." The pages of this SIXTEENTH ANNUAL REPORT portray the fruits of discipleship of almost two million Methodist women.

The Woman's Society of Christian Service and the Wesleyan Service Guild are organizations which seek to give expression to the faith, work, and love of Methodist women. They are instruments which serve the spiritual and social interests of women of Methodism. As every great human interest requires an organization to serve it, Methodist women need the Woman's Society of Christian Service and the Wesleyan Service Guild through which their interests and concerns may be expressed. Through them, also, they are making visible gains toward a world order based upon righteousness and justice; toward a peace that is worth having.

Fruits of discipleship are not reaped quickly. We must have long-range goals if we are not to be conquered and discouraged by short-range failures. Methodist women look to a future, with new goals, as we close, in the summer of 1956, the fourth quadrennium of the Woman's Division of Christian Service of the Board of Missions of The Methodist Church.

Mr. Frank G. Brooks

President, Woman's Division of Christian Service

QUADRENNIAL GOALS, 1952-56

BASED ON THE EMPHASES

That The Kingdom of God May Be Realized

1. WE WILL SEEK TO GROW AS CHRISTIANS

Through individual and family worship, reading the Bible and other devotional literature.

Through enrollment in the Fellowship of Intercession.

Through active participation in the total life and work of the church.

Through a sensitive concern for the needs of the world expressed in gifts and service.

Through daily witness by our Christian attitudes and convictions.

2. WE WILL SEEK TO BRING OTHERS INTO THE CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP OF THE CHURCH AND OF THE WOMAN'S SOCIETY OF CHRISTIAN SERVICE AND THE WESLEYAN SERVICE GUILD

Through a continuing program of visitation and cultivation with special attention to newcomers, unchurched families, and changing communities.

Through systematic plans to enlist new members in the study and service program of the Woman's Society of Christian Service and the Wesleyan Service Guild.

Through increased use of The Methodist Woman and World Outlook with emphasis on subscriptions.

Through a wider and more effective use of publicity channels—newspapers and radio—to interpret the program of the Woman's Society of Christian Service and the Wesleyan Service Guild.

Through a program of leadership training, including an Officers' Training Day.

3. WE WILL SEEK WITH CHRISTIANS EVERYWHERE THE SUSTAINING FELLOWSHIP AND POWER OF A WORLD CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Through concerted efforts to interpret the vows of the church and to create a greater loyalty to them.

Through an earnest effort to live out the spirit of the world Christian Church in terms of concern for and fellowship with all individuals and groups.

Through wider reading to become familiar with the outreach and program of the world Church.

Through growing cooperation in interdenominational activities.

Through an effort to carry out the plans of the World Federation of Methodist Women.

4. WE WILL USE ALL AVAILABLE RESOURCES TO WORK FOR "THE THINGS THAT BELONG UNTO PEACE"

Through a program of study to educate adults, youth, and children concerning the world missionary enterprise as the Church's best channel for building a just peace and understanding among nations.

Through a wider knowledge and use of the United Nations and its agencies, as government's best organized channel for building a just peace and understanding among nations.

Through increased emphasis on human rights for all people and a resolve to accept and follow the "Charter of Racial Policies of the Woman's Division."

Through study of the world's economic and social needs and a recognition of our responsibility for meeting those needs through government and church channels.

Through daily prayer for missionaries, for leaders in church, in national governments and in the United Nations who are working on the issues of peace.

5. WE WILL PROCLAIM THE WORLD MISSION OF THE CHURCH TO BE GOD'S PLAN FOR THE REDEMPTION OF THE WORLD. TO THIS END, WE WILL WORK TO MAKE THE LORD JESUS CHRIST KNOWN TO ALL PEOPLES EVERYWHERE, TO PERSUADE THEM TO BECOME HIS DISCIPLES, AND TO FOSTER THE KNOWLEDGE AND EXPANSION OF THE MISSIONARY ENTERPRISE THROUGHOUT THE WORLD

Through a continuous program of study and interpretation of world missions for adults, youth, and children to develop attitudes of understanding and appreciation resulting in a fellowship of spirit.

Through well-planned monthly programs based on the Worship and Program Books, and the shared experiences of representatives who have attended a school of missions, a Guild Weekend, an educational seminar, a conference, district, or subdistrict meeting, plus any other method that will develop a realization of the opportunities and responsibilities of Methodist women.

Through cooperation with leaders of youth and students in developing an awareness that candidates for missionary and deaconess service are to be found in the local church.

Through personal gifts to the total budget set in the light of the world's needs and dedicated at a pledge service.

Through sincere prayer that Christ may be made known and that the Kingdom may be realized.

6. WE WILL ACCEPT THE PRICE OF CHRISTIAN DISCIPLESHIP

The cost of discipleship is made clear by Jesus Christ. We will try to apply to ourselves what this means in terms of all of life including: time, service, money, study, prayer, thought, and conviction which may result in suffering and sacrifice.

Department of Work in Home Fields

Every gardener knows that good fruit results from intelligent planning, careful preparation of the soil, wise choice of seed, proper cultivation of the growing plant, and never-ceasing war against destructive forces. So is it in the fruit of the Spirit.

The report of the stewardship of the Department of Work in Home Fields, under the guidance of the Lord of the Harvest, is humbly submitted.

MRS. J. N. RODEHEAVER, Chairman

Commission on Deaconess Work

By MISS MARY LOU BARNWELL, Executive Secretary

S AID Dr. Nels F. S. Ferré at the Second Deaconess Convocation: "The vocation of a deaconess is special dedication to full-time Christian service. It is living out the mind of Christ. Christ becomes fully known to us, however, and fully effective for us only in the Atonement. To be a deaconess is to know the meaning of the Atonement, to accept its power for ourselves, and to participate in its life for others, to fulfil in short, the Atonement. The Atonement contains three basic meanings: moral example, spiritual empowerment, and vicarious sacrifice. These three aspects of the Atonement are the basis of the deaconess' vocation.

"A deaconess to fulfil her task must incarnate the Master's life of love until the world sees in her Christ now, walking and working for the world's salvation. A deaconess can become such an example only by participating in the life of God. Even as Jesus could be and do what he was and did because the Father Himself did the work in him, the eternal Christ being so completely in the historic Jesus that the world can know in Christ-Jesus, the Son of God, even so we must let God so dwell in us until the world sees Christ in us and can call us Christ-Katharine, or the Christ-deaconess. Only complete surrender to God's presence and purpose in us, until we no longer live but Christ lives in us, can make the deaconess express the moral example and influence of the Atonement.

"A deaconess, to fulfil her task, should also be a source of redemptive power. She can become and be so only by knowing and being open to the Source of saving power. The world sees ideas and ideals that would change lives and civilization but the world is powerless to effect them. The cleft between education and life enters at this point. Foundations give millions to learn more about motivation. Right motivation, however, has power because it rests in reality. God as holy, inclusive Love alone is Reality. Only as far as we know and are open to Him can we become generators or transformers for the world's needs. The Cross of Christ is the exemplified power of God's love which we must own and take up if we are to touch other lives with the power of the Atonement. Atonement is no pious mush, but the clear, genuine enactment of the Reality of Love to reconcile, forgive, and enable man to walk in the weary ways of life with power.

"A deaconess should also fulfil her task by voluntary and vicarious sacrifice. By entering into the needs and the sins of the world the deaconess takes on the world's burdens. The law of Christ constrains her heart, and her concern for needy lives makes her identify herself with them in their needs, doing for them, praying for them what they themselves cannot do or pray, until they find the same source of power in Crucified Love. Christ gave his life for us, let his blood be shed. We must be unafraid to give our lives for others no matter what they do to us, taking up our own cup of suffering and shame. When we thus fulfil in our lives the suffering of Christ for the sake of the Church we really also take up our crosses for him.

"The vocation of a deaconess is not basically social service but spiritual dedication, not basically sociological but theological. Its secret and standard is 'Christ in you the hope of glory.'"

Fruits of Discipleship

That the world may see Christ in us; that men may be enabled to walk in the weary ways of life with power; that they may find the source of power in crucified love—these are the fruits of discipleship toward which the deaconesses of The Methodist Church continually strive in their various vocations.

A little child, in a home for children, learns a new interpretation of the Fatherhood of God in the pattern of the family based on respect, love, sharing, faith. "The unholy five," a neighborhood gang, finally become responsible citizens and at least one of the young men enters training for the ministry, because the leaders at the settlement did not think the youth unworthy of their prayers and efforts. A family, long separated because of illness and economic hazards, is rehabilitated through the untiring, cooperative efforts of nurses, social workers, houseparents, and others. A displaced person from Europe is given sponsorship through a deaconess home and becomes a useful, well-adjusted citizen in a new land. While waiting for and influencing the public-school system to provide facilities for an "unaccepted" group, educational opportunities are made available and a community grows into a realization of its obligation to all its people. In rural and urban communities the program of the church is enriched as deaconesses go in with vision, enthusiasm, knowledge, and concern.

These are fruits of discipleship. They result from moral example, spiritual empowerment, and vicarious sacrifice. They can be harvested only in the measure of the release of God's power through His witnesses. As Dr. Ferré said, "It matters not at all what happens to us, but it matters greatly what happens through us."

The Increasing Need

With the expansion of the church and its outreach, there is an increasing need for consecrated, well-trained leaders for full-time service. Many of these leaders should become deaconesses, for it is through that office that an official relationship to the church is established for the woman who is called to a vocation within the church. That office relates her to the church at large. It gives her a voice in the Annual Conference (but no vote). It brings her into a great fellowship of workers with similar interests and concerns. It affords a great degree of security and, at the same time, permits practical independence.

At a recent meeting of representatives from various agencies of The Methodist Church concerned with recruitment, some of the needs were lifted up. The Woman's Division of Christian Service of the Board of Missions needs more than 300 replacements annually in its projects in the Home Field, employing 1,500 persons. The Board of Hospitals and Homes reports 27,000 full-time employees with 3,000 replacements needed annually. The Methodist Student Movement has 459 local units with only 200 full-time, professional workers. Of these workers there are four or five men to one woman. Approximately 900 churches have full-time directors of Christian Education. The Board of Education expects to need at least 600 additional directors during the next quadrennium.

Bishop Voigt suggested that an increasing number of deaconesses be trained to serve as assistant pastors, so that ministers now filling those positions may be released to take regular pastorates.

Although others may be as well qualified to fill these positions as are the deaconesses, most of the nondeaconess women workers expect to continue employment for a few years only. Therefore, the turnover in staff is very great and this lack of continuity jeopardizes the program.

Standards

It has been suggested that the standards might be lowered in order to ease the problem of recruitment. After careful consideration by the Commission, it was agreed that there should be no change in requirements. To serve the church effectively, one must be educated as well as consecrated.

In speaking of a liberal arts education, Charles Malik, of Lebanon, said, "From its studies, the soul emerges with some unity of vision, some coherence of purpose, some freedom of spirit, some mastery over its own elementary powers, some joy in the knowledge of responsible theory, some humility before the mystery of being."

Of a university course, John Henry Newman said: "If then a practical end must be assigned to a university course, it is that of training good members of society. Its art is the art of social life, and its end is fitness for the world. It is the education which gives a man a clear, conscious view of his own opinions and judgments, a truth in developing them, an eloquence in expressing them, and a force in urging them. It shows him how to accommodate himself to others, how to throw himself into their state of mind, how to bring before them his own, how to influence them, how to come to an understanding with them, how to bear with them. He is at home in any society; he has common ground with every class; he knows when to speak and when to be silent; he is able to converse; he is able to listen; he can ask a question pertinently and gain a lesson seasonably when he has nothing to impart himself; he is ever ready yet never in the way; he is a pleasant companion, and a comrade you can depend upon; he knows when to be serious and when to trifle, and he has a sure tact which enables him to trifle with gracefulness and to be serious with effect."

For effective service, the deaconess needs "all this, and heaven, too."

Statistics

In The Methodist Church of more than nine million members there are fewer than 800 deaconesses, more than 300 of whom are retired. The following table indicates the age groupings of the active deaconesses:

Years	Number
65 and over.....	43
60-65	95
50-59	131
40-49	110
30-39	79
23-29	25

From this chart, it is revealed that 43 are eligible for retirement now and 95 more will reach retirement age within five years. More than half of them are over fifty years of age. Only 25 are under thirty.

During the past three calendar years, 69 have retired from active service.

Year	Number
1952	21
1953	22
1954	26

This brings the total number of retired deaconesses to 312. Their age groupings follow, the average age being 73 plus.

Years	Number
90 and over.....	8
85-89	18
80-84	48
75-79	69
70-74	91
65-69	63
Under 65	15

Sixty of these are in retirement homes of the Woman's Division of Christian Service. Losses by death and withdrawal far exceed the number of new deaconesses.

Year	Death	Honorable Discharge	Total
1952	16	21	37
1953	14	10	24
1954	14	9	23

Of those who have died, only six were in active service, 38 were retired. Honorable discharges were granted to 26 for marriage, 12 for employment outside The Methodist Church, and 2 for health reasons.

Forty new deaconesses have been commissioned during the past three years, and there are twenty-three accepted candidates. While this may seem to be a dark picture, we are not discouraged, because there are evidences of revival of interest and the new candidates, though few in number, are of high quality. However, we need to utilize all available resources to encourage able young women to serve the church as deaconesses.

In the quadrennium eight home missionaries have transferred to deaconess relationship and two former deaconesses have been reinstated. The total number on the active roll is 483. With the 312 retired deaconesses, the total number is 795.

Institutes for Conference Deaconess Boards

To provide a better understanding of the organization, purpose, and responsibilities of Conference Deaconess Boards, a series of institutes has been set up. Usually, about six conferences are included in one institute, with three representatives from each conference—a deaconess, the president of the Conference Woman's Society of Christian Service, and a district superintendent. Bishops of the areas involved have cooperated, selecting the district superintendents, and attending, if possible. There have been stimulating discussion and constructive planning in these institutes. This plan of bringing together representatives from several conferences seems more beneficial than conducting institutes within a given conference for its membership only. There is value in exchange of ideas, sharing problems, and raising questions. It is expected that these institutes will lead to the organization of boards in Annual Conferences not yet organized and effective promotion in all boards. Plans for the institutes are made by the executive secretary in consultation with the bishops involved, and the expense is provided by the Woman's Division of Christian Service.

Second Convocation

Despite railroad and bus strikes, many meetings, and other handicaps, the Deaconess Convocation, held in Nashville, Tennessee, May 3-5, exceeded all expectations. More than 300 enjoyed the hospitality of the Tennessee Conference Woman's Society of Christian Service, the Nashville district and, especially, West End Methodist Church.

In contrast to the first Convocation, which centered around the deaconess, herself, the second one was ecumenical in every respect. Dr. Walter Van Kirk vividly pointed up the responsibility of the church in world affairs. Under the able leadership of Miss Rosa May Butler and Miss Ruth Harris, music of many nations had a prominent place in the program. Students from other countries widened and strengthened the fellowship.

The love offering, amounting to $2,176.65, will be used for a young woman from Japan to study at Harris Memorial Training School in Manila. There is a possibility that this project may help lead to the establishment of a deaconess movement in the United Church of Christ in Japan.

With Bishop Phillips leading the closing service of commitment, a human cross was formed as deaconesses came to the altar and into the aisle of the sanctuary, rededicating themselves to the Master's call. The deaconesses were bound together in a common cause, a common purpose, a common heritage. But they went away with a realization that "what you have inherited from your fathers, you must earn in order to possess." And they write of fresh incentives, broader outlook, renewed hopes as they resume their responsibilities, as they seek to earn their heritage.

Conclusion

This is the last annual report during the 1952-1956 quadrennium. The work of the Commission during these four years has given strength to the deaconess movement, as it has set standards, formed policies, interpreted the office, and promoted the program. The generous, able leadership of Bishop Phillips, as chairman, has brought the Commission into a place of dignity and respect in the mind of the church. The cooperation and interest of the members have produced a working organization through which a great impact should be made throughout Methodism. The fine spirit and conscious concern of the deaconesses, themselves, have been a bulwark of hope and confidence in the midst of increasing unmet needs. And the continuing support of the Woman's Division of Christian Service has given security in spirit as well as finances. To all who have contributed to the development and stability of the program, great appreciation is expressed.

These, too, are fruits of discipleship and they must be earned to possess. That they may be earned, we make this our prayer:

"O God, we go out today into a world where it is not easy always to remember thee. But so did Jesus.

"We shall be tempted to believe in the power of evil as stronger than the power of good. But so was Jesus.

"We shall walk in the midst of crowds to whom the reality of this world alone appears convincing. But so did Jesus.

"We may be disappointed in some whom we had thought we could trust. But so was Jesus.

"Help us to remember him. By his unshaken faith, make us keep faith. By his unswerving righteousness, help us to keep trying to do right. By his witness to the power of another world, keep us from worldly-mindedness, and set our affections on the highest things we know. By his patience with those who disappointed him, make us to be patient and forgiving, conscious of our own shortcomings, and most of all concerned that our Master need not be disappointed when he looks at us. Amen."

Bureau of Educational Institutions

By MISS MURIEL DAY, Executive Secretary

ONE Sunday morning, our pastor called to our attention a word that was coming into usage, namely, "imagineering." That seems to be exactly what is needed in considering our Annual Report. We need to use the eyes of our imagination and also to engineer until we bring about the desired results. This idea was expressed in another way in an editorial in the American Magazine. The editor was writing of the fascination of hunting driftwood which could be used in making artistic and useful articles. "Call it imagination, or what you will, it is the gift of vision which has been the moving spirit of our nation from the beginning—which sees beauty in ugliness, progress in the scattered sticks of turmoil, and the pattern of peace and plenty in the dead stumps of war and hate. This is the sort of vision that even a blind man can see if he will."

I. The Fruits of Discipleship

Transformed Lives

In considering five categories under which we may designate the fruits of discipleship, it will be apparent that there is overlapping, that most of the schools and colleges have emphasized more than one phase of their program. However, the transformation of lives to the Christian way of life with all that it implies is their ultimate objective. There are over 10,000 young people and children who are reached by the thirty-one centers of the Bureau of Educational Institutions.

From Browning Home and Mather Academy in Camden, South Carolina, through the superintendent, Mr. Anton Deschner, comes an encouraging report of growing Christians. "We watched with pride during the religious emphasis week, as about twenty-five young people came forward to signify that Christ was to be the dominating force in their lives. No one knows what seeds were sown to bear fruit a hundredfold. There are a good many other forces that demonstrate the fruits of discipleship, and what a joy it is to be the teacher who is there to observe it, either in Sunday school or prayer meeting. One of the things that our young people do is to take the worship period on Sunday mornings by classes. That gives them a chance to grow and develop in leadership and enriches their own lives. Thus, school-work and all that goes with it in its program of development of mind, body, and spirit work toward bringing forth the fruits of discipleship."

The superintendent of Harwood Girls' School, Albuquerque, New Mexico, Miss Dorothy Marie Watson, gives the following illustration of a transformed life. "Through the years, the term 'a Harwood girl' has come to signify a young woman who exemplifies Christian ideals and conduct in her daily life. Those of us who live and work with the girls who come from all parts of New Mexico, Colorado, California, and other states, as well as Old Mexico, believe that our program of sharing in both work and recreation helps to develop the character traits we look for in Christian young people. One instance is typical of many. When a young girl from Mexico first entered the school she had a very unhappy outlook on life. She was not pleased with anything that had been done for her, nor did she take pleasure in doing anything for other people. Gradually, as she lived and worked with other Harwood girls and with the staff members, people began to appreciate her fine mind and seek her companionship. She began to feel the approval of others and became more and more interested in trying to help the girls with whom she lived and worked each day. At the conclusion of her life at Harwood, she had changed from a sulky, unhappy girl to a charming, thoughtful individual who found great happiness in helping others. She had learned that the value and dignity of any task is determined by the spirit in which it is performed."

The new superintendent at Vashti School, Thomasville, Georgia, the Reverend Woodward Adams, writes that the fruits of discipleship are in evidence on their beautiful campus. He says, "Sometimes I hear a minister pray for the 'underprivileged girls at Vashti' and I know what he means, but in a very real sense it isn't the whole truth. It is but a part of God's amazing paradox that she has been 'underprivileged' into the finest opportunities a girl can have in life. The valedictorian of the senior class has gone out to prepare herself to become a director of Christian education. The salutatorian plans to enter the university to prepare to teach. Another senior, who reigned as the Queen of the 1955 Rose Festival in Thomasville, has been given a scholarship in voice. Our girls have gone out to small churches in rural sections, carrying their musical and dramatic interpretation of the gospel of Christ. A beautiful Cuban girl won high honors in the eighth-grade graduation. A convert two years ago during a mission outside Havana, she brought to us a fresh interpretation of what Christ can do."

Mrs. Edith Carter, superintendent of Boylan-Haven School, Jacksonville, Florida, carries the theme in this analogy: "As I looked at the twenty lovely graduates of this year, my mind went back seven years when some of them came to us with not even much of the blossoms showing, to say nothing of the fruit. If one takes the shortsighted view of one's task—the plowing, the harrowing amid the rapid growth of weeds, the setback caused by drought, or harmful erosion—the harvest of fruits seems at times to be impossible of accomplishment. It takes long-time vision, as seed-sowing needs to be accompanied by tremendous faith in the eternal verities, an abiding faith in God's promise that 'While the earth remaineth, seedtime and harvest . . . shall not cease.' And so as we looked at these lovely graduates and saw one who came to us a timid, little seedling, and who now goes out from us determined to live for Christ in full-time Christian service; another who has had to learn to read since she came to us, but in spite of this was graduated as valedictorian; another who came a self-centered, pouting child and who is now an outgoing, socially concerned young woman; another who earned the award for the greatest growth in Christian living, and many others whom we cannot mention—our hearts are made glad within us that the rewards of our labors have been so great. . . . Our school received honorable mention for having given the greatest number of free work hours to the tuberculosis association Christmas Seal Drive. The Junior and Senior Glee Clubs both won highest rating at the Florida State-wide musical festival, and the newly-formed orchestra has played for several festive occasions and church events."

Social and Ecumenical Consciousness

It is always a source of satisfaction when students reach out in unselfish service for others. No group of leaders is more alert in stimulating such service than student counselors on the campuses of state colleges and universities. A full program is carried on by Mr. Robert Parrott, the counselor at Southwestern Louisiana Institute, Lafayette, Louisiana, who reports in part as follows: "One of the most rewarding and creative phases of student life was the participation of Negro students in the total program, and the increased social consciousness which their presence produced. Also experimental this year was a Music-and-Worship Seminar, emphasizing the relationship between worship and sacred music and its implication for laymen; a Wesley Foundation Choir for the second year; deputation work to area churches; Christmas activities for the children of the Malliecu A. M. E. Church and for the aged at the La Maison de Repose rest home; and full participation in the Regional Conference (Lake Junaluska, North Carolina), as well as the Louisiana State MSM Retreat and Conference numbering fifty-six students. Again this year, the primary emphasis has been upon the reality of worship, upon the encounter of students with God in Christ—a worship which endeavors to produce faith and repentance in every area of the campus scene."

Ann Adams, student counselor at Northwestern State College, Natchitoches, Louisiana, writes: "The Campus Christian Movement at Northwestern exists for one ultimate and supreme purpose and one only. That is to exalt the Christ. . . ." In fulfillment of the above high purpose, she enumerates the high lights of the undergraduate program. They have sent out six deputations to several churches (the largest of these led a Christmas-lighting service); superintended two hundred students at the Louisiana MSM Conference; sponsored a program of missions when Patsy Alexander (formerly of Vashti School and now a missionary in Uruguay) was a guest; and held a retreat at Camp Brewer for twenty-six students.

Miss Mamie Chandler, counselor at the Methodist Student Center in Greenville, North Carolina, gives us a glimpse of the many activities carried on for more than six hundred Methodist students on the campus of East Carolina College. "Some of the students go on an adventure of sharing with the family of another race. Cultivating friendship with a Negro girl, welcoming her into the fellowship of the social hour and supper on Sunday night, and asking her to share with the vesper group her hopes and desires to enter full-time Christian service—these are examples of the outreach of student life."

The students at the Methodist Center at Florida State University, Tallahassee, Florida, expressed their interest in others by a sacrificial supper, the proceeds of which went to the Methodist Committee for Overseas Relief and again a pledge to the Methodist Student Fellowship Fund. Mr. and Mrs. Austin Hollady, the directors, tells us "that the most cherished fruit of discipleship this year was the life of a Japanese student named Hanz, who was deliberately sought out and befriended. He came into our midst that first day more familiar with the Buddhist faith than any other, though an actual follower of none. Nine months of Christian love and friendship by our students and then came the thrill of a question in Japanese dialect: 'May I, too, be a Christian?'"

Miss Pearlye Maye Kelley, student counselor at Louisiana Polytechnic Institute, Ruston, Louisiana, gives glowing accounts of the many wonderful gifts they have received for the center from friends. "It gladdens our hearts and humbles our spirit."

The students in beautiful Kirby Hall, Austin, Texas, assisted in work camps, and helped with an art and recreational program at the Negro orphanage. The competent superintendent, Mrs. Irene T. Powers, developed a social program with Friday night open house and other parties which led to increased fellowship.

Bennett College, Greensboro, North Carolina, again exemplified its ecumenical emphasis in its graduating class. Of the one hundred graduates, seventeen states were represented as well as the District of Columbia, the Bahamas, the British West Indies, and Puerto Rico. As a service to the immediate community, Bennett again held its Homemaking Institute. The Institute's broad theme was "Education for Social Change as it affects family relations, the family's economy, and the family of the community." In tribute to President David D. Jones, the public school which bears his name was dedicated. Leading educators expressed much appreciation to President Jones for his outstanding work at Bennett College and for his large contribution to American life.

At Paine College, Augusta, Georgia, the students have again carried a "special" up to $150 for scholarship aid in Southern Rhodesia. Interest in Africa was intensified by the presence in the student body of the Reverend Peter Shaumba of the Belgian Congo and Jeanette Ponder from Liberia.

Enlarged Educational Programs

It is important that our institutions constantly evaluate their programs so that they may keep abreast of the times. They must also use "imagineering."

An authenticated story comes from Oregon and Ohio. Many years ago an alert young scientist went west with his bride to teach in a small church-related college. He wanted a modern research laboratory. A bishop of the church, in a tour of inspection, visited the college and questioned the young scientist. The bishop was not impressed by the arguments for a laboratory. He asked what good it would do. "We might discover something new," the young man replied, "perhaps even some great invention." "Nonsense!" said the bishop. "Preposterous! What things remain to be invented? Can you name one?" Timidly the young scientist replied: "I think that man may sometime learn to fly, to fly faster even than the birds." "Flying, young man," thundered the bishop, "is reserved for the angels." The bishop was the father of Wilbur and Orville Wright! (Television gives another version of the bishop's comments.)

Under the leadership of the new president, Dr. C. Ralph Arthur, Ferrum Junior College, Ferrum, Virginia, has been strengthened in faculty and staff. A new emphasis has been made in rural work through the appointment of the Reverend Gene Holdredge, outstanding Tennessee rural minister for 1953. Through his organization of the Department of Town and Country Studies, a forward step was taken which should appeal to rural youth and encourage more to attend college to prepare for life and vocations in rural communities.

The president at Sue Bennett College, London, Kentucky, Miss Oskie Sanders, has seen the third of the large buildings completely renovated, namely, the boys' dormitory. She commends the two new U.S.-2's, Miss Anna Marie Breyfogle, and Miss Elizabeth Ann Pruitt, for their enthusiastic approach to their work in the demonstration school and in the community. Another outstanding phase of the college was the art exhibit which was greatly admired by the people in the community. The recital of piano pupils and the operetta both were highly appreciated.

In the newly-merged Huston-Tillotson College, Austin, Texas, Eliza Dee Hall has been a residence for the senior women of the college. The superintendent, Miss Carmen Lowry, agrees that the fruits of discipleship are the two thousand young women who through the years have gone from the institution to bless their homes and communities.

From Allen High School, Asheville, North Carolina, comes this word from the principal, Miss Julia Titus. "We hope for a more integrated school in the future, but we have been happy in the graduation of our one white student as she has made a place for herself in the eighth grade and has been one of the eighty-two boarding girls living on the campus. We must mention one of the finest fruits of discipleship, the dedicated life of Miss Maude Worrall who retired as science and art teacher after twenty-five years of service under The Methodist Church. She truly worked with no thought of reward and gave herself unsparingly."

The work in Puerto Rico continues to expand. Miss Ruth Ferguson, the deaconess, has worked closely with the members of the Woman's Society and of the Guild on the Island. She has supervised five girls, enrolled in the university scholarship plan, who trained in religious education at George O. Robinson School and who practice in the church schools. The day school at St. Croix has been so popular that three units are planned.

A new project was added to the list of institutions in the bureau. In April, 1955, the Woman's Division voted to allow the Detroit Conference Woman's Society to send its contribution to the Protestant Foundation for International Students at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan, through the Woman's Division as a conference project. Miss Doris Reed and Miss Mildred Drescher, who had been the directors, summarize last year's program as follows: "It is our privilege to report to you on this unique church-sponsored counseling program with international students. Church people throughout the United States have recognized their responsibility for the increasing number of overseas students. In Ann Arbor, with the largest concentration of international students for any community of its size in the nation (1,089 from 70 countries enrolled for 1954-55) and with the State of Michigan fourth in overseas student enrollment (2,302 for 1954-55), the challenge of the Foundation's program to churches and councils throughout the state to share with the student friend from far away is tremendous. The Protestant Foundation for International Students, incorporated in 1953, secures financial backing, determines program policy, and supports the counselor in her liaison efforts: (1) to help students of Protestant affiliation find their church and participate in its program, and non-Christians to know the church at work; (2) to counsel the Wesley Foundation and similar groups in their international student emphases; (3) to plan with church groups; and (4) to be a helpful friend at all times to students of all faiths and cultures."

The president of Rust College, Holly Springs, Mississippi, Dr. L. M. McCoy, makes a comparison between the college in 1924-25 with the program of today. "At the opening of the Fall Quarter of the school year 1924-25, the enrollment reached around 450 students. The institution had a faculty for all departments of some 18 teachers. The budget of the college was around $42,000 for all purposes; the institution graduated a class of seven from the college department in 1925. At this commencement the faculty is recommending 89 candidates for graduation from the college—with a possibility of 50 others graduating at the close of the summer session in August, 1955. For the year 1954-55, the budget is $236,000 or a little more than five times that of the year 1924-25. In its in-service program the college administers to between 1,600 and 1,700 in-service teachers annually."

Expanding Facilities

The president of Tennessee Wesleyan College, Athens, Tennessee, Dr. LeRoy Martin, has the supervision of Elizabeth Ritter Hall in consultation with the executive secretary. The college became a four-year institution in the fall of 1954. To meet the larger enrollment (an increase of 42 per cent), the dining hall and cafeteria were expanded in Ritter Hall. The addition was dedicated on May 12, 1955, in honor of Mrs. H. C. Black of Johnson City, Tennessee, for many years a trustee of the college and a well-known leader in the work of the Woman's Home Missionary Society and of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Holston Conference.

Pfeiffer Junior College at Misenheimer, North Carolina, has also become a four-year college, by action of its Board of Trustees. This involved an expansion of the physical plant. The major buildings erected were a twelve-unit faculty apartment and three new family homes. Authorization was also given for the erection of two dormitories for men, and the conversion of the Industrial Arts Building into the Merner Library with an addition to house fifty thousand volumes. Pfeiffer had the largest percentage increase in enrollment in the entire Methodist Church with a student body of four hundred ten. The Religious Education Department continues to be an outstanding feature of the program, strengthened by an addition to the faculty and by the continued cooperation of the staff and student body.

Wood Junior College, Mathiston, Mississippi, is continuing to add to its physical properties. The Cathedral of the Pines has made a fine place for itself. The completion of the Wood Memorial is now under way, and will be a beautiful building, adding much to the usefulness and attractiveness of the campus. The grant of $2,000 has been voted to be spent on making apartments of the Pinnix House. The college has very recently been promised a set of real chimes for a memorial.

The superintendent of Erie School, Olive Hill, Kentucky, the Reverend Eugene K. Meyers, has stressed an increase in the enrollment of boys. With this purpose in mind, provision has been made for additional facilities. The new boys' cottage, LeMaster Hall, has been named after a former student, the Reverend Edwin LeMaster, who is serving as a missionary in Africa.

The Navajo Methodist Mission School, in Farmington, New Mexico, has also expanded in providing housing for forty high-school boys. The dormitory was named in honor of Mr. C. C. Brooks, who for fourteen years was superintendent. It is under the supervision of a Navajo couple, graduates of the school, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Billey. Mr. Brooks, the son of the former superintendent, is now director of Religious Activities of the school. Sixty boarding pupils were enrolled at Bisti, the outpost thirty-five miles from Farmington, and a new two-room schoolhouse was completed thus relieving the congested condition of having to eat, play, worship, and conduct school all in the same room. The Navajo Shepherd School was continued during the summer of 1954 and enrolled seventy-two children.

Improvements at Sager-Brown Home and Godman School, Baldwin, Louisiana, have made it possible to continue its licensing by the Louisiana State Department of Public Welfare. The superintendent, Miss Rosie Ann Cobb, writes, "There was never a dull moment at Sager-Brown Home and Godman School, with 150 children enrolled including 50 in the dormitories. Ninety per cent were from broken homes and the ages ranged from five to eighteen years."

One of the greatest challenges to discipleship in full measure comes from the need at Holding Institute, Laredo, Texas. The new superintendent, Mr. Victor Cruz-Aedo, accepted this challenge and speaks feelingly of the needs there. "The ravaging water which engulfed Holding Institute during the last days of June, 1954, completely destroyed an institution with a glorious tradition of service to the people of the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Central and South America." It was imperative that Holding should not be even temporarily discontinued, so it was decided to maintain the classes in the teaching of English to Mexicans. It is with gratitude that we record the helping hand of Laredo Junior College, which offered to let Holding carry on these classes on its campus. At the same time, one of the two residences on the new site for Holding has been used for the superintendent and his family, and the other for boys from Mexico, under the supervision of Deaconess Ura Leveridge. Mr. Cruz-Aedo writes further, "Our school year was successful. We have letters from parents stating their satisfaction and surprise that their children speak and write English as they do. For the first time we offered summer school work, but not having a physical plant, the boys helped to erect a flat-roof shade, open on three sides. Here thirty-two students enrolled for eight weeks. The students used motor scooters, bicycles, late-model cars, or thumbed the four miles from the heart of the city to our new location. Our station wagon met others at the end of the bus line." We pay tribute to Mr. Anton Deschner, former superintendent who carried on through three floods on the old campus and who now serves at Browning Home and Mather Academy, and also to the corps of workers who made the transition to the new site and a new Holding.

Trained Personnel

There are two colleges in the bureau with the special purpose of training for full-time Christian service. They are National College for Christians Workers at Kansas City, Missouri, and Scarritt College, Nashville, Tennessee.

Under the leadership of President Lewis B. Carpenter, National College has continued to expand its facilities. He writes, "In October, the very lovely C. Louise Zartman faculty apartment house was dedicated. This changed the pattern of faculty living and greatly added to the beauty of the campus. The second floor of Schoelkopf Hall was completely remodeled and equipped. Fisk Hall thus became the residence for young men in the new co-educational program."

The president of Scarritt College, Dr. Hugh Stuntz, writes: "We were highly pleased that thirty-eight of the sixty-four young people commissioned by the Board of Missions were either students at Scarritt or had been students at Scarritt or had been studying at Scarritt. We are also interested in the fact that fifty-three percent of all commissioned workers under the Woman's Division are Scarritt graduates or former students. We are proud to present them as fruits of discipleship in their commitment to the cause of Christ. Some two thousand graduates and former students working full-time or part-time in careers of Christian service in the United States constitute our largest group who are 'Fruits of Discipleship.'"

II. Organizational Relationships

Continued cooperation with the General Board of Education of the church has been furthered through the meetings of the Committee on Cooperation and Counsel, a committee authorized by the Discipline. An invitation to sit with the University Senate of the church has brought further understanding of the programs and problems of the Methodist colleges.

The leader of the discussion at the Workers' Conference of the bureau in October, 1954, was Dr. Myron C. Wicke, of the Board of Education. The conference was held on the campus of National College and was considered by all in attendance as most profitable in the development of the theme "Religious Values on the Campus."

Membership on the Boards of Trustees of eight colleges makes a crowded schedule and also makes it difficult to attend each one annually. However, the careful reading of minutes and other documents keeps us in close touch with academic developments.

Changes in program in the work in Santo Domingo have been followed closely through membership on the Board for Christian Work in Santo Domingo, and its administrative committee. A new field secretary, Dr. Maurice C. Daily, has been appointed. He is making a thorough study of the future program for hospital and educational work. This is a time of transition in evangelical work in Santo Domingo. Three other committees pertaining to Spanish-speaking work claim our attention. They are the Committee on West Indies, the Council of Spanish-speaking Work, and the Committee on Cooperation in Latin America. To coordinate these activities and be cognizant of the work of other boards, are two functions of these committees.

Personnel needs continue to be urgent not only for a larger number of commissioned but also for employed workers. Music teachers, commercial teachers, and dietitians are among those who have been most difficult to secure.

We are grateful that Crusade Scholars have been granted scholarships in the Home Field through funds from the Week of Dedication of the church.

Present prospects indicate that during the next five years college and university enrollment will increase by about one fifth or to over 3,000,000 by 1960. Such an increase in population can be a tremendous asset to the nation. It is still a truth even though it is worn a bit thin by frequent repetition at commencement exercises, that a nation has no resource more valuable than the education of its people. And the better the education, the more valuable the asset.

As Dr. Albert Schweitzer says in his Memoirs of Childhood and Youth:

"As one who tries to remain youthful in his thinking and feeling, I have struggled against facts and experience on behalf of belief in the good and the true. At the present time, when violence, clothed in life, dominates the world more cruelly than it ever has before, I still remain convinced that truth, love, peaceableness, meekness, and kindness are the violence which can master all other violence. The world will be theirs as soon as ever a sufficient number of men with purity of heart, with strength, and with perseverance think and live out the thoughts of love and truth, of meekness and peaceableness."

Bureau of Social Welfare and Medical Work

By MISS EMMA BURRIS, Executive Secretary

THIS report brings a brief glimpse of some of the fruits of discipleship of Methodist women. Followers of the Christ recognize the dignity and worth of every individual and their responsibility of helping to make possible the opportunities for individuals that they may fulfill their God-given potentialities.

Through agencies of the Woman's Division, supported by the giving of Woman's Society members, numerous individuals are finding a new and better way of life. The effect of these Christian influences can never be measured. The fruits of discipleship are varied and vast. Recently a man came to visit the Mothers' Jewels Home in York, Nebraska, where he had lived as a child. He expressed his appreciation for what the staff had done for him in his youth. Even during his periods of antisocial and belligerent behavior their love and concern had been constant. He owed much to the home and wished to make a financial gift so that others like himself might have a better life.

In the Fifteenth Annual Report we stated that we have 14 children's homes, 31 residence halls, 3 deaconess homes, 3 retired workers' homes, 3 summer vacation homes, 2 older people's homes, 2 immigration stations, 8 social work projects, 4 community centers, and 10 hospitals assigned to the Bureau of Social Welfare and Medical Work—a total of 80 projects. During this year the two immigration stations in which deaconesses were serving were closed because of drastic changes in the government immigration program. One residence hall for young businesswomen, Esther Hall, San Diego, was closed because of sociological changes in that city. One new project was opened—a social worker for Windham, Ohio. Studies are under way in preparation for the opening of new projects.

Homes for Children

It is difficult to believe that approximately 279,000 children in the United States are living outside their own homes. Less than 3 per cent of this number represent orphans. The greatest number of children require care because of family disturbances, marital unhappiness, and faulty parent-child relationships. Often children suffering from inadequate family life become antisocial and show signs of delinquent behavior.

Dr. Martha M. Eliot, chief of the Children's Bureau, says "The need to go forward, rapidly and effectively, in improving the care and treatment of children in the earliest stages of their delinquency is apparent when we realize that even now, about one million children a year are coming to the attention of the police because of delinquent behavior. Census figures show that by 1960 there will be 45 per cent more children between ten and seventeen than there were in 1950."

Mrs. Merle English of Cunningham Children's Home in Urbana, Illinois, points out that "The women of Methodism have always been pioneers. We, too, must face the future unafraid. We must accept the idea that if we are to meet the needs of our day we must plan to meet the needs of disturbed children. This means that we must increase our case work services and improve our placement program.

We must continue to work with families and help restore them to good living standards—financial status is only a part of such a program.”

A building program designed to provide adequate cottages and recreational facilities is now under way at Cunningham Children's Home.

Many of our children's homes are already beginning to adjust to the care of teen-age children as the trend is increasingly toward the need of this group. Pre-school children should not be a part of group living. Research has proved that great damage is done to infants who receive care too long in institutions.

David and Margaret Home, La Verne, California—Mrs. Cleta Terrill reports: “As we look at the roll—a total of 130—of the children served this year, the face of each child stands out clearly silhouetted against a background of family problems. We recall the deep concern of the case worker, housemother, and other staff members to help him understand himself and his needs and to find the joy of life that all children should know. We recall moments of discouragement over behavior problems and moments of high hope when responses were thoughtful and good. Our case records indicate that older children have come to us with more emotional instability and damage. They have suffered more from family hostility and often many moves from one foster home to another before coming to David and Margaret Home. These children have needed more individual attention, which has been possible with our smaller enrollment and more selective policy of admissions. We have been able to accept every child whom we felt could be helped by placement in our home. The larger percentage of older children has created a need for a better program of group activities.

“We were most happy over a letter received from the Guidance Staff of the high school pointing up the splendid work of three of our boys. The letter commends their development of sound character, their growth in good citizenship, and their progress in educational achievement, and states that the school feels their progress has been determined to a very large extent by the fine home environment provided and by the guidance given by our staff. Almost all of our children have come from homes with Protestant backgrounds, but rarely do we have children from homes where parents are active church members. Some have come from definitely irreligious homes. Through participation in our Sunday evening vesper service all of the children have learned to enjoy the great hymns of the Church and many have memorized them. A number of children attended preparatory classes during Lent and five became members of the LaVerne Methodist Church. These new members are conscientious about their responsibilities. Five are regular choir members. Life has been made richer and happier for all who live at David and Margaret Home because of the thoughtfulness and generosity of many friends.”

Epworth School, Webster Groves, Missouri—Miss Elva Lee Perry reports that one significant change has been the employment of married couples to act as house-parents, thus giving the girls a more normal cottage life.

Services of a psychiatrist have been procured for one and one-half hours each week. Miss Perry states that these services are expensive but have been a necessary and beneficial part of the program of this unique home for children.

Ethel Harpst Home, Cedartown, Georgia—Rev. Keith L. Loveless reports: “From May 1, 1954, to May 1, 1955, we were able to be of service to 153 children. On May 1, 1955, ninety-nine of these children were still in the home. Of these ninety-nine, thirty-one have been here less than two years. Only eleven have been here more than ten years. These figures show that more and more our children are staying for shorter periods. During the year fifty-four children have been dismissed.

Forty-five returned to rehabilitated homes of parents or to homes of close relatives, two have reached the age of registration for Selective Service and have joined the Armed Forces, six have gone into adoptive homes, and one married.

"One of our achievements of which I think we are justly proud is the increase in scholarship in the public schools. Out of seventy-five children who attend public school, twenty-one had an 'A' average in all of their academic subjects.

"A most satisfying experience continues in the religious life of our children through their attendance at church school and worship at the First Methodist Church."

Frances DePauw Home, Hollywood, California—Miss Reva McNabb gives interesting views of the work. "Frances DePauw is a Christian home for girls of Latin American background who wish to attend school. These girls are of junior and senior high school and junior college ages. This year the seventy-five girls came to us from Mexico, El Salvador, and Guatemala, the Los Angeles area and other California towns.

"The Music Department presented twenty-three girls in a piano recital this spring. The girls who liked to sing were divided into two choirs—one sang at the monthly chapel services here, and the other at the Plaza Mexican Methodist Church. At Christmas time, our girls joined the boys of the Spanish American Institute in presenting a pageant in the latter's chapel. This beautiful service provided an inspirational worship time for all who attended.

"One of the college girls made a snapshot book of her first year at Frances DePauw and dedicated it to her parents with these words: 'There is no way possible for me to thank you for sending me to Frances DePauw. I want you to know that I have enjoyed my stay here very much. I have learned many things, not only from books but things about life that will help me in later life. I feel that in some way I have come closer to you.'"

Spofford Home, Kansas City, Missouri, is a residential treatment center for emotionally disturbed children. The capacity is sixteen. During the year thirty-one children have received care. In addition to those in residence, a limited number of children from the community attend the school program and have care and treatment during the day. Mrs. Hester Sheneman, the director, gives a brief description of one child: "Dicky went home last month. We were sorry to see him leave, of course, but happy for him and for his parents that their home could once more be a place of satisfaction, where understanding and love are both given and received. Dicky no longer cries and has fits of anger when things do not go just his way, and mother also is more calm when dealing with Dicky and his younger brother. She helps them face their problems fairly and squarely." Both child and parents have been helped.

Jesse Lee Home, Seward, Alaska. The children of this home are encouraged in all types of creative activities. They write interesting items for their monthly mimeographed publication Ku-Eu-It (Northern Lights). Ruby Correa, aged twelve, wrote:

"Alaska, the land of snow and gold—
The land to us the Russians sold—
The land of the man called the sourdough,
The land of the Indian and Eskimo.
But it really isn't as cold as it seems,
It's lovely Alaska, Land of my Dreams."

During the summer of 1954, seven of the children of the home and the two children of the superintendent had polio. Only two had to be fitted with braces. The doctors and nurses of the Seward Sanatorium and Seward General Hospital were of great assistance to the home and community in the care and treatment of this first polio epidemic in the area.

Mr. Donn Lee, the superintendent, writes: "Though maintenance is a necessity and has a great deal to do with our children's physical health, their spiritual and emotional development is even more important. Progress in this field is much more difficult to evaluate, however, and depends on the day by day example and inspiration of staff members, of teachers in school and Sunday school, the minister, and others. Vacation church school at Seward Memorial Church provided a fine influence. Some of the older girls are getting a great deal out of 4-H club work. The Boy Scout program has been particularly active this past year. We feel it is proving very important in developing skills and self reliance in our boys. The children who had an opportunity to attend the Hope Church Camp are enthusiastic and eager for more. Many had a wonderful Christmas in Anchorage homes. Some of our boys and girls are showing leadership ability. All at Jesse Lee were very proud when one of our boys was chosen honorary mayor of Seward for the day when Seward High students took over the city government. Several of the older children are having the experience of working at jobs away from the home for the summer. This helps pave the way for their eventual adjustment to life on their own. Learning to spend wisely and to save some of the money they earn are important lessons for all children."

Peek Home, Polo, Illinois—Mr. Elwin P. Matthews reports: "Peek Home for Children offers institutional care to sixteen boys and ten girls. Being in a rural community and located on a farm, Future Farmers of America, Future Homemakers of America, 4-H, and Scout activities are some of the chief interests of the children. Our efforts were rewarded at the Scout banquet when one of the boys was named the Best Citizen in the explorer post. We are always happy to have families reunited and had an extra measure of joy when a teen-age girl was leaving and remarked to her housemother, 'I don't want to leave Peek, but I want to be with my family.'"

The board and staff of Susannah Wesley Home, Honolulu, Hawaii, have conducted a self-study of its program in the light of changing needs in the field of child care during the year. A committee in the Council of Social Agencies of Honolulu made a study of the three child-care agencies in the city. These studies have pointed out that a more specialized program is needed—that of helping teen-age girls work out their individual problems in a group setting.

At the close of the year Miss Frances Taylor retired after almost eighteen years of devoted service in directing the work of the home. The far-reaching influence of her service can never be measured. Rev. Eugene L. McClure, a well-qualified executive, has become the director. Girls of various ethnic backgrounds find love and guidance in this home.

Mrs. Cora McCann of Swartzell Home in Washington, D. C., speaks with pride of the girls who have graduated from high school and have left the home, having enough maturity to secure a job while continuing their education. They are active in the work of the church.

Residence Halls for Young Business Women

There is joy in Christian service. Miss Hazel Lovell of Alma Mathews House, New York City, expresses this in her report: "The director has suddenly become aware of a feeling of deep gratitude for being permitted to serve for three years in the home. Added to the daily pleasure of living with the girls and of meeting and knowing the women of many groups and of staff, has come the satisfaction of seeing girls she has known and loved go out and make good in apartments of their own and in their marriages or chosen careers. To those who have made it possible, it is rewarding to know that the girls remember the house with love and gratitude.

"The girls have entertained many friends and those interested in active Christian service have invited many foreign individuals or groups for meals and fellowship. Three of the girls are active at The Church of All Nations, and one goes weekly to entertain sick children at Bellevue Hospital. These girls carry full time jobs and go to college at night. The house continues to be inter-racial and non-sectarian and to maintain a decidedly Christian atmosphere."

The purpose of the residence hall is to help young women—many of them coming to the city for the first time—to grow socially, spiritually, and emotionally and to be able to gain enough maturity to establish homes of their own.

Of the thirty residence halls related to the Woman's Division, ten are known as Esther Hall. A typical statement comes from a girl from Chicago: "Esther Hall is more like a home to me than any other place. We would like to have our wedding here." Many young women have found in the residence hall helpful counsel during their courtship. Counseling is an important part of the work of a residence hall director.

Miss Cecile H. Davis of Wilson Inn, Richmond, Virginia, says "Wilson Inn points with pride to hundreds of fine young women who after leaving the Inn have become leaders in civic and social affairs and religious activities in their own communities, to mothers of fine families, and to many who have made a successful career in a chosen field. Since many of these girls come to us directly from high school, we feel that the influence of this home has had a direct bearing on their lives. Our greatest contribution lies in providing a pleasant and happy home life, an interest in the girls' activities, a willingness to help them in any way we are needed, and the protection and security this home offers to those girls from rural communities and small towns."

Miss Thelma Warley of Friendship Home, Cincinnati, Ohio, says: "We are happy to report that Friendship Home is successfully fulfilling the aim for which it was organized—providing desirable living quarters to employed young women at a minimum cost, and providing religious guidance."

Mrs. Corah Jordan of Friendship Home, Los Angeles, California, reports that a member of Friendship Home who passed the state bar examination and was sworn in as City Attorney assistant said, "Much of my encouragement has come from my Friendship Home family."

Gum Moon Residence Hall girls continue to make a special thank offering each year, the proceeds this year being given to Church World Service. Mrs. William Stone says that "a fine family spirit prevails among the girls, and there is a deeper interest in spiritual things as evidenced in the prayer group that started meeting in the chapel once a week in the fall of 1954. We know that some are finding it helpful in keeping a daily quiet time."

Community Centers

Mr. Warner Silver, director of Friendly Center, Toledo, gives an encouraging report of the work. "During the past year there has been a marked increase in the gross attendance at the center. The most heartening trend was found in the increased chapel attendance. Five years ago when the midweek chapel services were first started, fifteen or twenty was the average. This year there was not one service when all who came could be accommodated in the chapel which seats approximately eighty. During the Lenten services the gym had to be converted into an auditorium to accommodate the crowds. Another successful portion of the program was the increase in summer activities at the center, including crafts and other scheduled activities and Bible school. Camp is operating for ten weeks this summer and has been filled to capacity each session. As we look forward toward another year of service, it is quite clear that Friendly Center is greatly needed in the community."

Lavinia Wallace Young Community Center at Nome, Alaska, under the direction of Miss Esther McCoy, has had a good year. She writes: "During the year our continued efforts to teach and practice Christianity in our community have been shared through our program of social welfare and recreation. The community shows increased interest in our recreation program. Major problems of social and economic conditions still present stumbling blocks to spiritual maturity of individuals. It is difficult to teach Christian brotherhood by example where the economic conditions and social standards make paupers of many people. The delinquency and educational problems of the youth reveal an acute need for real Christian living in our community."

From Houchen Settlement, El Paso, Texas, comes a testimony from a parent: "Houchen means to me a home where every race, creed, and nationality is welcome. I have learned to sew, work in ceramics, and most of all to work with people. Above all I believe that Houchen turns us into better neighbors as well as parents. Houchen has been my 'new glory.'"

Mothers' Memorial Center, Cincinnati, is a day-care center for children whose mothers must work. This center also has a well-organized group work program.

Special Community Services

Miss Ruth Gress does a special kind of social work among the Chinese, Filipinos, and Koreans in the San Francisco area—that of helping immigrant women and war brides with conversational English, teaching private classes in the homes. "Formerly entry into the homes of newcomers to San Francisco's Chinatown was difficult. Now these women open their doors to us and extend a warm welcome. We have something they want—English. Besides the weekly classes in the homes, we also provide an English Bible Class on Sunday morning. It is a basic aim to share our joy in the Gospel of Christ."

Miss Doris Rhodes, a deaconess, began a new social service project in Windham, Ohio, in September, 1954. There is a fine spirit of cooperation on the part of the manager of the housing project, the churches, and community leaders. The program is an asset in character building and in the prevention of delinquency.

The rural work at Pahala, Hawaii, continues its service to people of the various nationality groups that make up the camps on the large sugar plantations. Miss Martha Almon is replacing Miss Hisako Tanji in this work.

Homes for Retired Workers

Bancroft-Taylor, Ocean Grove, New Jersey; Robincroft, Pasadena, California; and Thoburn Terrace, Alhambra, California, continue to render valuable service to many retired workers of the Woman's Division. As long as they are able, these retired deaconesses and missionaries are in demand for speaking, teaching, conducting prayer groups, and study groups. Their date books have an important place alongside their devotional and study materials. Plans are under way for infirmiry units to make possible even better care of those who have served so long and well.

Medical Work

The ministry of healing is an important part of the work of the Christian church. We rejoice in the splendid services of ten hospitals. Only a visit to these hospitals could give us an understanding of the importance of the work. Attention is given to the healing of the total needs of the patients. The work of the chaplain is being increasingly recognized as an essential part of the hospital service.

The Alaska Vocational Rehabilitation Program of Seward Sanatorium is increasing in its scope and service to patients during their period of treatment and for their future economic security. Patients who can look forward to living useful lives are able to maintain higher morale and have a desire to regain health. The San Chat, published by the patients, reflects the life in this 150-patient hospital whose chief service is to native Alaskans.

Seward General Hospital, owned by the City of Seward, Alaska, has been operated by our organization since 1932. A new hospital is to be erected to replace the present inadequate facility. The city manager has stated that the city appreciates the very fine job that the Woman's Division has done in operating the hospital and wishes to continue the present relationship.

Maynard-MacDougall Memorial Hospital in Nome, Alaska, is an example of a small hospital with one doctor doing a good piece of medical work in an isolated area. This is the only hospital on the entire Seward Peninsula in the northwest section of Alaska.

Bataan Methodist Hospital, Albuquerque, New Mexico, was opened in 1912 and has approximately 100 doctors on the staff. Already the 116 beds are not sufficient to care for the patient load of the accredited hospital where high standards of medicinal practice are maintained.

Although all of the hospitals related to the Woman's Division have interracial aspects, Freeman Clinic and Newark Conference Hospital, El Paso, Texas, and Brewster Hospital, Jacksonville, Florida, are dedicated to the service of minority groups—the Spanish-speaking Americans and the Negro Americans. Human relations are an important concern of these agencies and much good work in this field is being done. A Brewster Men's Club has helped in public relations and fund raising. Many local people have been interested in a development program to help make available additional facilities for the expanding program.

Sibley Memorial Hospital in Washington, D. C., is continuing its plans for expanding facilities and moving to the American University campus.

The services rendered through all the projects are facets in helping to meet the supreme aim of missions—"to make the Lord Jesus Christ known to all people. . . ."

Bureau of Town and Country Work

By MISS CORNELIA RUSSELL, Executive Secretary

"SEEDS for better citizenship, good will, and community esteem planted in minds and lives will, we hope, bear a rich harvest in days to come," the head resident of a community house concludes her annual report.

"We aim to meet the needs of people whose working hours are long and hard and who need to find the peace and abundant life Jesus offers everyone," writes one of the church and community workers.

On succeeding pages selections from the annual reports of twenty of the more than one hundred projects of the Bureau of Town and Country Work show a few of the fruits of the workers' discipleship. Many more are described in these reports for which there is not space here. Countless other fruits are never recorded, some because they drop off before reaching maturity, though the same or more effort goes into their cultivation, but most of them because they ripen slowly and inconspicuously and in unexpected places.

In going over the events of the past quadrennium, certain trends can be observed. Perhaps the first one to be noted is matrimony, which in just the past year has claimed ten of our workers, most of whom resigned either immediately or within a few months after their weddings. Miss Marjorie Minkler, who had served as executive secretary of this bureau since 1946, started the exodus in November, 1954, after her marriage to the Reverend Virgil D. Morris, D.D.

During these four years a number of new projects have been started and a few closed. The C. M. E. Cooperative Work in Georgia was discontinued on May 31, 1955. Considerable progress has been made in interracial cooperation. A number of advisory committees and boards as well as staffs and participants in community centers and rural projects are biracial, with either Mexicans, Negroes, or Indian Americans in addition to white people.

A short-term school on rural work held at Scarritt College for six weeks in January and February was concluded with a five-day conference for chairmen of rural work advisory committees. The "short-termers" felt they benefited not only from the refresher courses provided but perhaps even more from the stimulation received from contacts with other workers in situations similar to theirs.

Part of the 1953 Week of Prayer and Self-Denial fund was designated for equipment for rural workers. This fund has provided twenty new cars and a number of projectors and transcription players. Since a large proportion of the worker's waking hours are necessarily spent in traveling country roads in all kinds of weather, no one can estimate the number of fruitful meetings, conferences, and personal interviews made possible by her having a good, serviceable car to transport others as well as herself. The fund was used also to erect a new community center building at Alpine, Texas,¹ on land provided by local groups, who have furnished and equipped the building. (A report from that center appears on page 97.) A portion of the fund is being held for a new building at the Yuma Methodist Mission in Arizona.

The inclusion of field work supervisors for church and community work in two Methodist colleges that offer training for Christian workers, National College and Scarritt College, is a recent development. In both of these institutions weekends spent in supervised field work nearby supplement the class work in rural sociology and related subjects as a part of the regular training program. Several potential workers are at present enrolled in these two schools.

Each year approximately twenty college girls spend their summer serving in selected town and country areas, receiving guidance from experienced workers, who value their help. On the other hand, the girls benefit from contacts with parts of the country different from their own, and many receive the impetus to continue their college training with the definite purpose of becoming rural workers.

It has been found valuable to have one of the experienced workers placed where she can act as coordinator for several rural projects, particularly where U.S.-2's are serving. Miss Catherine Ezell, of the Holston Valley Rural Work² in Tennessee and Virginia, pictures the job of being a coordinator of rural work as being "a little of a trouble-shooter, a mama, a supervisor, a resource person, a speech-maker, and one who attends meetings morning, noon, and night. She is an understanding friend to the rural worker and seeks to help her with plans and problems as they work and pray together. She seeks not only to coordinate the work being done by all the workers in the project, but to coordinate the individuals' efforts with those of the pastors of the area and with the advisory committees on local, district, and conference levels. She tries to interpret the work to both the church and Woman's Society groups and to enlist the cooperation of all in a united effort to meet the needs of rural areas."

Two rural workers in the eastern part of North Carolina³ summarize their jobs in different ways that combined give a good picture of rural work, though each project of the bureau has entirely different problems and opportunities and resources:

"What do I do, you ask! I am working with the minister, with the people, through the programs of three local rural churches to help the influence of these churches reach out into three communities. One is a mill community; one is an agricultural community. The third I call a 'community of commuters,' for practically everyone works in the mills or the shops or the offices of the town, three miles away. I suppose that first I am an interpreter. Then I am a teacher. I spend much time in leadership training in the educational program of the churches. Sometimes I have to be an organizer. Then I am a resource person and a correlator of community services. (I'm remembering the time I helped channel the case of the little girl who had asthma to the County Health Department; and I'm remembering the announcements of Home Demonstration Club meetings found in our church bulletins, and our exchange of materials as the church and the club in May emphasized the Christian Family.) Finally, I am a sower of seeds. . . . Some seeds fall on good ground."—Ethelynde Ballance

"Have you ever visited a country church with one class composed of children from three to thirteen meeting in a dull, drab room? Have you seen a half-dozen children sitting on one side of a long, high table, little feet dangling uncomfortably over the edge of a discarded pew? Have you gone back, after several workers' conferences have been held, to find the class divided, the two classrooms painted a cheerful green, and the younger children sitting happily on small chairs around a low table? Have you heard the teacher telling eagerly of her plans for further improvements?

"Has tragedy ever stabbed your church awake to the needs of all the youth in your community? Has the arrest of two teen-agers caused your handful of active young people to reach out, encouraged by their counselors, to bring others into their fellowship? Have you visited the boys in jail and then in prison camp, in an effort to assure them of God's forgiving love and your concern for them? Have you gone to their homes and talked with their worried families? Have you observed the pleased reaction when the brother of one of the arrested youth is invited to join the Youth Fellowship? Have you watched the youth group grow and triple its membership?

"Have you met with junior boys and girls of all denominations to study such units as 'Praise Ye the Lord' and 'India and Pakistan'? Have you donned heavy boots and gone hiking through the mud with them on a Saturday afternoon? Have you watched them build a dam at the edge of a creek? Have you written in the sand and skipped rocks with them, climbed through barbed wire fences and up slippery hillsides? Have you called their attention to the beauties of nature? Then, has your heart been touched by their sincerity as each in turn thanked God for the blessings of His world? If you have had experiences such as these, then you know some of the joys that come from serving as a rural deaconess."—Alta Nye

Miss Joyce Ryerson, a U.S.-2 in Florida rural work last year, found "the women's groups were for the first time wanting study courses and planning for them. At the study sessions they were contributing through outside material found on their own initiative. . . . Every Methodist child in the five communities attended vacation church school."

Mrs. Ebenezer Wesley, who is director of leadership training in the Indian Mission Cooperative Work⁴ covering thirteen counties and made up of forty-seven churches in Oklahoma, describes two outstanding achievements of the year: "The first was the tour of missions. Two girls from each of the three districts into which the Indian Mission is divided and an adult counselor traveled over parts of Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri, and Arkansas, observing the work being carried on by the Woman's Division of Christian Service. Seeing and talking with the workers meant much more to the girls than if they were just told about them. The reactions of most of them were all that we had hoped for. With better understanding of the projects, they can now convey to others the importance of supporting them.

"The second was Christian Witness Missions. The boys and girls laid aside their timidity and went from house to house witnessing for Christ to other boys and girls, bringing in recruits for the Methodist Youth Fellowship and the church."

Miss Dorothy Caudle writes from the Holston Valley Rural Work⁵ of a teacher of the preschool group in a small church school. Returning from an area training school she had attended, she asked for help in dividing her class. "Usually this group of ten or twelve met in a screened-off corner. The newly organized commission on education had arranged for a co-teacher for each class, and the one for this group agreed to take the one-, two-, and three-year-olds. A place behind the stove was furnished for the older group with a table and chairs from an abandoned school. What was there left for the younger group? Some wooden boxes that had been used to make a fireplace for the young people's Christmas play, a few spools, and bits of leather were made into small furniture: a stove, a sink, a cabinet with curtained front, a table, and a doll's bed. One of the women found a toy telephone left from the play. The teacher planned to buy a doll and some dishes and bring other play equipment and a blanket to the church. In just one Sunday a difference was found in the discipline problem."

"Neither will I offer . . . offerings unto the Lord my God of that which doth cost me nothing." The minister read this verse from II Samuel at a worship service in a Southwest Missouri church preceding a Lord's Acre sale. Miss Lois Marquart, the worker in Johnson County, tells how "an auctioneer caught the spiritual significance of the occasion by reminding the crowd that the articles for sale were really the Lord's, for they had been dedicated to him early in the spring and had been tended and cared for in His name. The dedication of these projects in the spring discourages the practice of promising to give 'what I have the most of,' or stalling, 'We'll see when the time comes.'" Such results do not come about spontaneously. Miss Marquart tells of special meetings being held and packets of material prepared for each church, with films shown and individuals testifying to the value of the program to their church and to themselves.

Miss Cora Lee Glenn, working in North Mississippi, says: "The lovely new rock church at Spring Hill is a blessing to that community and, as it is centrally located, a help to the parish program. Building plans in other churches are in process. The proceeds from several Lord's Acres which have been planted should help make further improvements possible."

"A Lord's Acre project of sweet potatoes developed among the people of the Center Ridge Church, after individuals realized that by giving a little time to set out and cultivate potatoes they could help their church in building Sunday school rooms. One man gave the land, while others plowed and set out the potatoes. We are hopeful that it will be a help financially and spiritually."—Miss Ruby Hudgins, West Tennessee

Other workers also refer enthusiastically to the help given the churches by the Lord's Acre plan.

Community centers in small towns as well as rural work projects are showing the fruits of discipleship. "I did not realize it at the time, but I owe a great deal of my honesty and integrity to you folks," said a young Italian man, now assistant manager for a large and well-known manufacturing company. As a child he had been a member of various group activities at McCrum Community House⁶ in Uniontown, Pennsylvania, reports Miss Bessie K. Van Seyoc, the head resident.

"The women who are members of the Woman's Society of Christian Service have shown growth as a result of leadership training," says Mrs. Isaac Pittman, of Mississippi Rural Center, Columbia. "They are able to take leadership in planning and conducting meetings more intelligently. While there is no marked increase in membership, there is in giving and in interest. For the first time since we have worked with them they are right on time at meetings. They have all the officers required and have held the installation and the pledge service. This is the first time the group has been willing to make pledges. They are responding beautifully to the attempt to teach them stewardship, and they keep the church lovely with flowers grown in their yards." Mrs. Pittman writes also of the Boy Scout work at the center, which shows a two-way growth.

As in many other places, it was difficult to find men to serve as leaders, though there were many who were capable. "After being coaxed, one of them finally agreed to try serving as a commissioner for a while, with the stipulation that if he didn't like it he could give it up. The man received so much pleasure from the enthusiasm of the boys that his own interest was deepened. He has encouraged other men to the point where everything connected with Scouting is on a 'live wire' basis, and the leadership has spread to other areas. In 1949 there were only two colored troops in the county. There is today a whole new Division, comprising three counties. A Negro Field Scout executive for the area has been hired and forty-five men are working with the boys in the Division. On a recent camporee 150 out of an enrollment of 212 attended, and our troop led in scout craft and camp craft with 470 points out of a possible 475."

"Every person of the community is reached in some way by the 'House of Joy,' as the Highland Boy Community House⁷ in Bingham Canyon, Utah, is known locally, if in no other way than by telephone, mail, or house bulletins. Many take an active part in helping with the work—furnishing transportation weekly to the swimming pool, occasionally to camps and for Scout trips and institutes. They also help with house cleaning and the delivery of bulletins, and by turns take charge of the church nursery on Sundays. Four hundred people of more than twenty nationalities and fifteen denominations make up this copper-mining community where we are seeking to bring the knowledge of Christ and His abundant way of life."—Miss Ada Duhigg

"The community house program this year has been revised to meet the growing and changing interests in the neighborhood," reports the North Barre Community House in Vermont. "Interest groups have taken the place of specific age-group clubs and classes—crafts for all ages; a story hour period for children; a doll club for girls; a World Friendship group for boys and girls; recreation night; Mothers' Club; Golden Age Club; Girl and Boy Scouts; a hiking club; a kindergarten; and music lessons."

"The Worker Doesn't Go Alone"

"The most reassuring thought has been the knowledge that the worker doesn't go alone. The Home Demonstration Agent knows many folk on the country roads (and doesn't mind having company). The county health nurse knows the proper authorities to contact concerning a migrant camp. The minister has a common goal with the worker. And there is always the Power beyond one's own."—*Miss Dorothy Kelley, Arkansas-Oklahoma Rural Work*⁸

There are other ways of contacting community resources. "During a quarterly conference at one of the churches," writes Miss Doris Reynolds, worker in south Georgia, "we invited a panel composed of a school principal, minister, health nurse, welfare director, newspaper representative, and Home Demonstration agent. This group discussed 'What my agency contributes toward rural life.' The welfare director told the group that we must have the spiritual in order to live. The discussion was led by the chairman of the Town and Country Commission of the Conference. The ideas of the people of the church have been broadened and the conference has been strengthened by work with the county officials."

"There was a vacation church school in every church in the county, with the exception of one which had no children," reports Miss Martha Stewart, of the Holston Valley Rural Work. "As one step in including all the people in our planning and work, we recently have organized a County Methodist Fellowship and are working with some of the community leaders in other organizations. One of the highlights of the year was speaking to a group of public school teachers on 'The Rural Church and Its Problems.'"

One of the four goals established by Miss Mary Juno for her work in the Canisteo Valley Cooperative Parish⁹ of Genesee Conference, New York, when she went there as a rural worker in 1951 was to help establish a better feeling between the churches of the parish, that they might see what could be done as united groups. Miss Juno feels the greatest advance as a whole has been made in the work of the Parish Council, made up of representatives from each of the seven churches. (She thinks the social hour after each meeting has helped toward its success.) "A committee is to be formed," she writes, "to make a study of the churches and of how they measure up according to a rural church scoreboard which we received from another parish."

Miss Susanna Menah, rural worker at Sue Bennett College in Kentucky, reports that when "the sixteen members of a Woman's Society held their usual program meeting in April the subject, 'The Unity of the Faith,' hit home. In the discussion someone suggested that there were other Christian women who had the same goals as their Woman's Society. Someone else mentioned that the Woman's Missionary Union of the Baptist Church and their neighbors of the Salem Church were trying to do the same things. And in no time a May Fellowship Day was planned and carried out."

Perhaps the outstanding "fruits" of the year are evident in the stories of the gradual breaking down of racial and national barriers.

"When it became known that the graduation class from Alpine High School had asked for permission to hold their junior-senior banquet in our new building," writes Mrs. Mabel Hamilton, head resident of Alpine Community Center, Texas,¹⁰ "some of the Latin-Americans were slightly indignant. 'Oh! Can they use our building, too?' asked one. (Segregation has been a set tradition here for generations, although now Latin-American youth attend high school and college.)

"'Yes, dear,' I replied, 'isn't it wonderful to be able to share it with them? Sharing brings happiness to everyone.'"

"After thinking a minute she said, 'Well, I suppose you are right, Miss Mabel, but this is the first time I ever had anything anyone wanted to use.'"

"We have come a long way. For years the railroad track divided the town into two distinct settlements, and signs reading 'No Mexicans Served' were on the cafes and 'Mexicans Upstairs Only' at picture shows. Of course we do not claim all the credit, but now all the signs are gone from the cafes. Our Mexican women were included in the May Luncheon of United Church Women held at our center. Among the fifty graduates in the class of 1955 were seventeen Mexicans, and all came to our center for their prom. The Anglo Girl Scout troops have met with our groups and enjoyed our facilities. Recently two men who had been boys in Alpine in the early '20's visited the center. 'Do you mean to tell me,' said one, 'that the Anglos and Mexicans both come to this building and meet in mixed groups? When I was a boy here no one dared cross the tracks alone!'"

"For a long while we have looked forward to having a Negro worker added to the staff of Methodist Community Workers in the West Virginia coal fields. In September, 1954, Mrs. Izetta Taylor of the East Tennessee Conference joined us and is living in the Coalwood community. The people there were eager for help and the Woman's Society and Sunday school have taken on new life; the church building has been redecorated and put to more effective use; help has been given with the church financial plans. A number of clubs have been organized. In several instances there has been interracial cooperation between the two churches in the community."—Miss Jennie Flood

"Someone has said that we as Christians should be like turtles—always sticking our necks out in order to move forward." This challenge Miss Virginia Courtney, a rural worker in Georgia,¹¹ applies to the tour of Carroll County by an interracial, international "studycade" of twenty-seven graduate students of Scarritt College. The group, representing eighteen states and five foreign countries, was making a study of rural church and community work. The tour is an annual feature of the college program, though this was the first time it was interracial. Rumors were many about the difficulties presented in entertaining this mixed group, an undertaking involving twenty different communities in the county. "The facts are less startling than the rumors," concluded a county reporter.

Since no local church volunteered, the Veterans of Foreign Wars provided facilities for meetings and meals. "A church school teacher in one of the schools that had passed up this opportunity later exclaimed that she didn't know how she could go on teaching her class, when her own church could not put into practice what was being taught on brotherhood. The management of the motel in which the interracial group stayed willingly accepted them and had the opportunity of discussing with their neighbors freely and openly their position in accepting all people, regardless of race or creed." Horizons were broadened for many by the presence of the "little United Nations" in Carroll County.

These are some of the fruits of discipleship—from certain fields. On the executive secretary's desk are folders full of requests from churches and Woman's Societies that new work be started. But how can new projects be approved when there are now more than twenty vacancies in places where approved work has already been going on? Who will replace the seven rural workers who married and left our work, the two who retired, those who left to prepare for foreign service or to work in other bureaus, those who dropped out for other reasons? Can your Woman's Society of Christian Service help provide the answer?

"HOW do you get in that place?"

"Oh, there's a gate," was the answer as several small boys passed Homer Toberman Settlement House, San Pedro, California.

In keeping with the purpose and spirit of welcome of all our settlement houses, Toberman calls its gate, which happens to be one of beauty, a "Gate of Opportunity." The purpose is to welcome people of all ages, all races, all creeds, and all occupations with opportunities:

- to develop skills and attitudes for democratic living;
- to broaden mental and spiritual horizons;
- to strengthen family ties; and
- to cultivate good will and brotherhood among all races, creeds, and nationalities.

"You don't teach international and race relations here—you live them," said an English social worker who visited Toberman and found the keynote to be cordial appreciation of diverse human values. Little Lisa, aged eight, said, "We learn how to play together at Toberman so there won't be any more war."

To this center come all the problems in the area, either directly or indirectly, for the function of the settlement house is to minister to the needs of the neighborhood in which it is located. Through clubs, interest groups, and social events each individual develops his talents and finds new interests while working with others. "Because we know the whole family—the parents through visits in the home and the children through the various activities—we can work to build emotional stability and many other strengths and values."

Growing the Democratic Way

Skipping east over the Rocky Mountains and the Mississippi River, we find Bethlehem Center, Nashville, Tennessee, often referred to as "The House of the Open Door." Undergirding all phases of the program is a Christian philosophy of life with the objectives of helping people to live together harmoniously, aiding individuals to develop their own interests and abilities, enabling members to strive for a better neighborhood, and providing students with learning experiences. The program at Bethlehem Center is built around the interests and needs of the individuals and the families who come. A casual spectator might fail to realize the value of the activities observed, as so much of it appears to be fun, play, and good times. But play is a child's serious business, as this is the medium through which much of his learning takes place. This does not mean the kind of play which is mere running around aimlessly on the streets, but rather that rich creative play which focuses on the capacities that all children have at their disposal. Whether it has been through the use of their hands in crafts, the use of their bodies in games, the use of their imaginations in dramatization, through drawing, painting, clay modeling, hearing stories both old and new, or learning the fun of sharing toys—boys and girls have found it is good to know you belong to a group of friends. A weekly religious education program supplementing what the churches are doing reaches some children not attending any church.

For those who are members of clubs, the major focus has been on personal relations. Developing their own programs, club members play a responsible role in carrying through democratic decisions made by the group. Each individual can express himself easily in a small group and thus gain group status, which develops the capacity to live more effectively in a democratic society. Frequently the friendly relationships established between the worker and the individual members offer many opportunities for counseling and guidance.

"Can we play games today?" "Can we fingerpaint?" "When can we take a trip to the zoo and visit the bakery?" "We'd sure like to plan a party for next week and invite some friends!" Such are the spontaneous questions coming from youngsters as they swarm into a community center after school. A visitor would find many different types of activities, such as club groups, special interest groups, Scouts, teen-age clubs, Campfire Girls, adult classes, and Golden-Agers, as well as many others. Interest would include music, crafts, woodworking, group games and recreation, sewing, cooking, camping, hiking, trips, and any activity in which the group wished to find expression.

As the director of Bethlehem Center, Fort Worth, Texas, writes, "In all our groups we stress the Christian principles which Jesus gave us—fairness, cooperation and sharing, working together, thinking of each other as brothers. With this Christian emphasis and approach we help to fulfill our purpose of racial understanding and building Christian citizens." Such principles are basic. Likewise, a skilled leader is always studying and watching closely the development of each individual in the group.

"Hey, kids, did'ya hear that?" The leader at St. Mark's Community Center, New Orleans, had just announced that the Apache Boys' Club would meet in the workshop and that it belonged to them on Tuesday afternoons. Dewey jumped up and down, his eyes fairly popping, "Did'ya hear that—the workshop belongs to us on Tuesdays! It's all ours! Gee, will we have fun! It's really all ours!" So Dewey talked and talked during the first meeting. He simply could not believe he now was old enough to belong to a regular club, especially one that met in the workshop. Every time a new member came in he would jump up and make the same announcement. Only once did the leader have to suggest cleaning up and putting away things after the meeting. Dewey was now one of the first to volunteer to help and the first to arrive at the center. St. Mark's is proud of the progress Dewey has made, for he talks much more softly and is not as "pushy" as he used to be. He is liked by all the boys and feels very secure in his group.

"To create an atmosphere that will stimulate emotional and social growth, to help a child find a sense of security, to help him get along with others of his own age group, to grow more self-reliant and dependable, to learn to share and serve—these are some of the goals that the leaders strive for in work with children," as shown in the above illustration from St. Mark's.

This vivid report comes from the Methodist Mission, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, "Noise, confusion, hustle, and bustle. Children's voices strident and strong. Clatter and chatter and hurry and fuss. 'Miss Bessie, kin I paint?' 'When are we goin' to the park?' 'Don't the Brownies meet today?' 'She took my belt!' 'Where is the movie projector?' 'Don't we have any more paper?' Questions and answers, scurry and scuffle. And in a corner a neat girl quietly reads a magazine.

"To an outsider a community center is often confusion and a disorderly scramble. To the director the hustle and bustle are necessary for releasing young energies. The scuffling and seemingly chaotic energy is controlled and disciplined freedom. To one who doesn't know, the chatter, talk, and clatter mean unnecessary turmoil and uproar. To the club leader there is order and method in the jumble.

"Johnny is taking a big step. He has asked Caroline if she wants to ride the tricycle. For the first time he didn't have to be asked to give it up. Dorothy speaks in a voice that sounds coarse and raucous to the ear of one who doesn't know her, but Dorothy has changed. In September she didn't know a quiet voice. She may never speak like a dainty lady but she has had a long way to go. And to the storyteller, Jimmy says proudly, 'Look, lady, I didn't get my book dirty this week.' Little things, all. To an outsider, meaningless. To a club leader, priceless examples of children learning, changing, and growing into Jesus' way of life."

Juvenile Delinquency

Juvenile delinquency, ranging from petty thievery and vandalism to dope addiction, is in the spotlight today. Quick cures or magic methods are sought by well-meaning but shortsighted parents and community groups. Common sense and a calm objective viewpoint emphasize the fact that the best method is the preventive one. Huge sums are spent on police, courts, reformatories, and jails needed because of criminal offenses committed by youth. If communities would spend only a fraction of this public money on constructive measures, such as wholesome recreation and social facilities, society would be saved tax money and, more important, future useful lives would be developed. Because as citizens we assent to the above but are not aggressive in accepting our civic responsibilities, we should carry out more fully our Christian responsibilities in our own institutions and agencies. No finer opportunity to do this can be found than in our settlement houses, neighborhood and community centers.

"Stimulating teen-agers in a blighted city neighborhood like ours (Newberry Avenue Center, Chicago, Illinois) to participate in wholesome and creative leisure-time activities is an answer to the delinquency problem. One hundred and fifty-eight teen-agers (14-19 years) are now enrolled in eleven club groups."

The emphasis on the small club group is based on the theory and experience that a competent dedicated leader has opportunity in such groups for close friendships and influence for the good. Should the value of the program be measured by the number of youth who come or by the change in lives—as when Jocko, the young teen-ager who appeared to be destined for prison, informed the worker a few years later that "he'd have been 'up the road like other boys,' caught in several burglary jobs, if it had not been for Marcy Center."

Time and patience are needed for lives to grow. Leaders, as illustrated, must not only be patient with the changing likes and dislikes and strong puzzling emotions of youth, but local board members and all those concerned must be willing to wait months, or even years, for results. Perhaps we must leave it in God's hands—realizing that twenty years later Johnny or Mary may turn up as a teacher, pastor, or just an honest, upright citizen. Then, with an inward smile and a prayer of thanks we can recall that he or she used to be a "pest" at the center.

At the Deaconess Home and Center, Wilmington, Delaware, the Teen-Age Club reopened and took a new lease on life. Under the leadership of Miss Betty Lou Brown, U.S.-2 worker, it grew and flourished. The club started out with a social program but, as the year went on, other interests were explored, such as symphony concerts, art galleries, et cetera. The fact that these teen-agers, many of them undisciplined and from underprivileged homes, could have come so far in a brief nine months proves our need to serve and is a real tribute to their leader.

Knights of Bethlehem Center, Augusta, Georgia, is the club name of teen-age boys who, along with others, cleaned vacant lots and helped the Home Beautification Club with its project. Now these Knights have adopted as their own project the cleaning up of a corner of land which, covered with weeds and bushes, has been a dumping place for the neighbors.

Golden-Age Groups

"Neighborhood women over sixty-five years of age organized into a weekly club group and chose the name 'Forget-Me-Not Club.' They are lonely women, living in rented rooms, hungry for companionship and sociability. The worker keeps their meetings interesting and diversified. The women are most responsive and appreciative. All birthdays falling within a given month are celebrated together, a special birthday cake being provided by Hattie B. Cooper Community Center, Roxbury, Massachusetts," reports the director. "The first time this happened the lonely celebrant, a widow, burst into tears, explaining that 'No one has paid any attention to my birthday or remembered it for years and years.'"

In Biloxi, Mississippi, at Moore Community House the Golden-Age Club enjoys making quilts. Old age can be a drab time for men and women, whether economically handicapped or not. This is especially true for those without friends who are entirely dependent upon old-age assistance for their living. From Jackson, Mississippi, the director writes that Bethlehem Center is the only agency in that city with an organization for Negro senior citizens. Here they find fellowship, inspiration, and the opportunity to help plan their own programs, which may range from Bible study and movies to just plain sociability with a time for visiting and refreshments.

Biracial Developments

In Ohio a director reports that their "biracial program, especially in view of the Supreme Court decision as well as the ideal of Christian brotherhood needs to be rethought." Situated in a neighborhood of mixed cultures and racial backgrounds, the camp program this past summer was integrated, but the clubs seem to cling to old patterns and traditions. With a biracial staff and board the policy-making bodies are striving to satisfactorily develop an integrated winter club or group program in this settlement house.

Supporting the Woman's Division "Charter of Racial Policies," local boards and staffs generally are alert to their responsibilities as shown by such policies.

From Wesley House, Oklahoma City, the board president writes, "Our program is actually interracial. For years we have had Mexican children and some Italian. Now a small percentage of Negroes are moving into the area and few Negro children come to the movies and playground at the center. When the school next door to us is thoroughly desegregated, we shall have more Negro children."

In some communities surrounding our neighborhood houses and centers the people are predominantly or even entirely of one cultural or racial group. Even so, the board and staff are often biracial as illustrated in Bethlehem Center, Memphis, Tennessee. This gives important opportunities for Negroes and whites to be represented at the policy-making level. More and more local boards are following the recommendation adopted by the Woman's Division of Christian Service to elect representatives from the neighborhood. Such a policy is not only democratic and Christian but it expresses the viewpoint of working with people and helping them to help themselves.

New Buildings and Improvements

A main lodge and two cabins have been built at the camp run by Bethlehem Center, Spartanburg, South Carolina, and water facilities have been developed. St. Mark's Community Center in New Orleans also has developed its camp facilities. Both camps were in use this past summer.

The generous giving of Methodist women thus gave opportunity to enjoy the refreshing country to many mothers and children who otherwise probably would not have been able to leave the hot city. Because of favorable climate both camps will be used during a large part of the year for retreats and week-end camping.

Camp Dogwood, belonging to Bethlehem Center, Nashville, will also be of greater service because an infirmary was built and winterized so that it could be used by small groups the year round.

With the increase in day camping by churches and other groups, Aldersgate Camp in Little Rock, Arkansas, has at last been able to satisfy this need. A day camp area was developed in the spring with a shelter building and other facilities. In keeping with the interracial policy of Aldersgate this is, of course, used by all groups.

In March, Bethlehem Center, Augusta, dedicated a new boys' clubhouse, made possible by the sale of the Springfield branch.

Changes in Work

In September, 1955, our worker left the defense work in Piketon, Ohio. This work in southern Ohio was in cooperation with other denominations under the National Council of Churches. It was mutually agreed that local and state groups would carry on, as the mobile population had decreased after the impact of construction work ceased.

Beginning in February, 1955, we have supported at Beaufort, South Carolina, a defense worker who contacts the young families living away from the base but connected with Parris Island Marine Base. Her work has been most effective in assisting lonesome young wives to adjust and in helping church members and local people to understand and accept the newcomers.

By request of the Conference Woman's Society, support of work at Mt. Vernon Place Community Center in Baltimore, Maryland, has ceased. Because many families moved from the neighborhood, the large program was not needed so that Mt. Vernon Church can now fully support the present one.

During the year action was taken to give limited financial support to the kindergarten at McAllen, Texas, as part of the kindergarten work along the Mexican border.

Bidwell-Riverside Community Center is the name of two previous projects in Iowa-Des Moines which have been consolidated. An extension program is carried on in another area. Conference women are working enthusiastically to enlarge facilities.

Ensley Community House in Birmingham, Alabama, has developed a recreation and after-school care program at a large housing project, known as Elyton Branch.

Institutes

Local board and staff institutes or program consultations were held at twelve centers by Miss Margaret Young of Scarritt College.

An Institute for Kindergarten Teachers was held at National College in Kansas City, June 28-July 1, with some forty in attendance.

Fruits of Service

As they work and play together in informal settings, we try to help children and youth accept the fact that religion is for all of life. In a settlement house or community center we try to translate Christian ideals and principles into actions of everyday life. If religion motivates a life, it is revealed in attitudes, decisions, choices, and in all human relations.

Fruits of service—what are they? How can they be measured? In the everyday work and play together of children and youth “we discover that life is made up of little things—a handful of dandelions presented with shining eyes. The quiet voice of a child asking, ‘Can I help you this afternoon? I don’t have anything to do at home.’ A thank-you during Girl Scout prayers for the leaders who have made their camp trip possible. These are little things, all, but such little things mark the difference between a Christ-like life and the uncaring unaware multitude,” is the word that comes from Harrisburg Mission, Pennsylvania.

Is beauty also a part of the better life? If so, there is significance when little eight-year-old Chavelo noticed the new furniture at Wesley House, Fort Worth, Texas, exclaiming, “Oh, que bonito! (how pretty)” He said that his mother wanted some pretty chairs, but “we are too poor to buy them. When I grow big, I will buy pretty chairs for my mother.” Many of the boys and girls who, as Chavelo, started noticing beauty at Wesley House, are now grown men and women enjoying the comforts of nice homes.

Does joining church and selecting a vocation of service results in fruits of service? “Recently, to our joy, a boy and a girl who had been coming to the center for several years joined The Methodist Church. Although the girl lacks two years of finishing high school, she is planning her course of study to go on to college, because she says, ‘I want to be a group worker and work in a center like our Wesley Community Center in Portsmouth, Virginia.’ Her counselor says she is the first student in the high school to express this interest and purpose.”

“I’d like to close with a prayer,” writes the director at Harrisburg. “My prayer is for Goobie, who progressed from banging a child’s head on the sidewalk one day in a fight to earning money for his Scout uniform and being the first one to wear it. A prayer for Georgia who, when punished in the day nursery, looked up at me and said, ‘You love me, even when I’m bad, don’t you?’ And it’s a prayer for Ruth, who at eleven came to us ‘off the street,’ ears pierced, smoking, not caring about her appearance, until this last day with her hair washed and set, her clothes neat, and knowing that someone cares about her.”

Can we measure by the change in individual lives or are masses the criteria? “To say that fifty or more groups are accommodated each week by a settlement house is gratifying. But more important is the fact that an agency can report the hearts and souls of men, women, and children have been touched, that attitudes and behavior patterns of people have been changed to more socially desirable ends, as a result of the ‘helping spirit of the worker in the agency.’ There is particular gratification to those who work with individuals when the parent returns to say, ‘Teacher, my little girl has really changed for the better as a result of nursery school.’” Or “when Florence goes to church regularly now because she found out that her teacher or worker also goes.” Or “when eight-year-old Willie, the white boy, tells you that Negroes aren’t so bad after all, merely because his teacher or leader at Marcy Center is Negro and many other club members are Negro.”

If Jesus were here today, he would again walk the streets of the city. He would leap over its ugliness and its corruption. Perhaps he would say:

"I was a child, and you gave me a place to play.

I was a teen-ager and alone, and you talked with me; you helped me to make friends and gave me interesting things to do. I was not a delinquent; perhaps because you showed me a better way.

I was an adult, and you were a friend and helped me to live in my community in harmony with my neighbor."

Jesus would again be saying, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

“By this all men will know that you are my disciples, if you have love for one another.” (RSV) In twenty-eight countries the missionaries of the Woman’s Division of Christian Service with their co-workers bear witness to their discipleship through many services of love to those about them. You, too, are a part of this discipleship because your gifts shared through love have made possible their witness.

—MRS. CHARLES E. WEGNER, Chairman

Africa and Europe

By MISS RUTH LAWRENCE, Executive Secretary

FROM the beginning of the quadrennium, Africa has made news. Leading newspapers and magazines, as well as numerous books, have presented the emergence of Africa as a major factor in the life and thought of a world in revolution. The general public is confronted daily with the complicated racial, political, economic, and social problems of a great continent whose people are being wildly thrust into the confused world of today.

Dr. George Carpenter, executive secretary, Division of Foreign Missions, National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., describes the situation: “There is a familiar African story of a traveler on safari who found one morning that his carriers refused to leave camp. When he asked the reason they replied, ‘We have come so far so very fast that we must give our souls time to catch up with us.’ It would be a blessing if Africa could have a day or a year or perhaps a century of repose in which her soul might catch up with her body, but the pace of change is inexorably swift. Never in history has a whole continent been forced to undergo such complete transformation in so short a time. Our own culture, here in the West, has been changing during the last half century about as rapidly as we could take it, yet we have asked the African, starting a thousand years behind us, to overtake us in a single operation. The result is an incongruous mixture of cultures that, on the surface, fascinates the beholder; but underneath are tensions and conflicts that amount to a revolution, a revolution that is racial, cultural, economic, social, political, and religious all at the same time.”

World events have compelled people to give thought to Africa. The apartheid policy in south Africa and the Mau Mau terrorism in Kenya have sobered people to the realization of what can result from fear and racial prejudice on one hand and the smouldering fires of resentment and hatred on the other. What is happening in South Africa and Kenya today could happen in other parts of Africa with repercussions of serious consequence for all the continent, if not for the whole world.

The invitation from the Asians to the Africans to take part in the Bandung Conference, April 18-24, 1955, indicates that people in these two parts of the world consider that they have much in common in the political sphere and that they must act together. There is a need for leaders from eastern churches to participate in the Church’s mission in Africa.

In North Africa terrorism has been the order of the day in varying degrees in Tunisia, Algeria, and Morocco. The end is not yet and life for many people is disrupted. So far, our work has not been affected materially and we still have applications for places in our homes for children. However, the 1955 summer camp program was canceled and attendance at Annual Conference was small.

Fortunately the Church has not been altogether lacking in its interest in and concern for Africa. For many years missionaries have endeavored to bring this vast continent into the conscience of America. One hundred thirty-five years ago the first missionaries went to Africa. Today several thousands are there, living in all the major political areas of the continent. It is estimated that from one-tenth to one-fifth of the total population in Africa is identified in some way with the Christian Church.

Just recently a martyr church has stood forth there to witness to the spiritual power and courage Christianity affords in the struggle against evil. In Kenya many Christian Kikuyus resisted and denounced the Mau Mau Movement, refusing to take its oath. As a result more than 500 of them have been killed. Canon Max Warren, general secretary, Church Missionary Society, the Church of England, who has expert knowledge of Africa, sees in this Christian resistance "the greatest single factor of hope in East Africa today." "The Church" he said, "had been strengthened by the role of these martyrs. Also, as a sequel to the two and one-half years of horror, there is now an evangelistic awakening among the whites." The willingness of a few thousand native Christians to risk martyrdom for their faith led Europeans to say that if Kenyans can make that sort of witness, "We can do business with them." It also led to focusing public opinion in England on the problems of Kenya and the necessity for doing something about them.

Much energy is being thrown into the rehabilitation of the Mau Mau. Those who seem willing to be rehabilitated are being released from camps as soon as possible. The problem of what to do with the hard core of resisters remains. The Government's concentrating of the formerly scattered homesteads into towns changes the old pattern of living and calls for a whole program of social services.

The Church must provide programs to turn these aggregations of people into communities. England has undertaken to provide funds and some of the personnel to carry on this work, but will need help in both areas. Church World Service and the World Council of Churches are requesting a special working fund, and the Board of Missions of The Methodist Church was privileged to make a contribution to this fund. Probably the most pressing Christian responsibility in Africa today is this task of rehabilitation in Kenya.

Protestant churches in the United States, during the past four years, have made a special effort to interest their members as well as the general public in Africa, regarding the problems confronting the Christian church there. The year of 1952 was known as "Africa Year." The subject of the interdenominational mission study course was Africa, and in The Methodist Church this was also the theme in the church-school literature for all age groups. It was fitting that the Woman's Society of Christian Service should designate its Week of Prayer Offering, 1952, for its work in Africa.

The Strategy Conference of the Methodist Church in Colorado Springs, Colorado, held March 23-April 4, 1952, met to study the work of the Church throughout the world. Among the delegates were Christians representing The Methodist Church from every land where it has been established by the church in America. African delegates were there from south of the Sahara and Liberia. Their counsel and suggestions were valuable as the conference gave thought to ways and means of working more effectively in Africa.

In this same year, 1952, there were several other conferences which were wholly or in part concerned with Africa and the problems of the Christian church there. The North American Assembly on African Affairs met in June, 1952, at Wittenberg College, Springfield, Ohio, at the call of the Division of Foreign Missions of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U. S. A. The theme was "The Changing Racial, Economic and Political Conditions in Africa, South of the Sahara, and the Relation of the Christian Church to Them." Among the 344 persons registered for the assembly, there were thirty-four Africans from thirteen different areas in Africa who represented a good cross-section of African thinking and feeling. For the first time, representatives of eight governments in Africa joined in a public discussion of their policies and future plans for Africa. There were present also representatives from the United Nations. The Methodist delegation was not only the largest group from any denomination but also the most representative. Two of its members were African ministers representing the Methodist Church in Africa.

It was fortunate for the Christian Missionary Movement in Africa that the Assembly at Springfield, Ohio, was followed by an enlarged meeting of the Committee of the International Missionary Council in Willingen, Germany, 1952. A number of the delegates to the assembly were able to be present at this meeting. Among them was an African minister of the Methodist Church. In Willingen the thinking of the meeting in Springfield was carried forward.

In October, 1952, the Africa Central Conference of the Elisabethville Area was held in Katako Kombe, Belgian Congo, under the leadership of Bishop Newell S. Booth. This area includes Angola Central Conference, Central Congo Conference, Southern Congo Provisional Conference, Mozambique (Portuguese East Africa) Provisional Conference, and Southern Rhodesia Conference. Bishop Willis J. King of Liberia was present to represent the Council of Bishops. Rev. John Wesley Shungu, the African minister who had attended the gatherings in Colorado Springs, Springfield and Willingen, had returned to the Central Belgian Congo and was present to share with his African and missionary colleagues something of the significance of these world conferences.

The Central Conference at Katako Kombe was significant for the women of Africa. They composed more than one-third of the delegates. A continuing committee on woman's work was appointed, and correspondents were elected from each conference for the purpose of exchanging ideas and literature. The Central Conference voted to add the following to the paragraph in its Discipline: "Women are included in the provisions of the Discipline in regard to the ministry and may become candidates for the traveling ministry and be accepted into full membership in Annual Conferences, by meeting disciplinary requirements." The statistical report for the Central Conference gave the number of members of Woman's Societies as 15,063, a large increase over the conference in 1948.

This quadrennium has been marked by an interchange of American and African visitors for the purposes of study, travel, conferences, and fellowship. The names of bishops and other churchmen and women, delegates to conferences, Christian tourists, students, and members of study commissions who have visited Africa are too numerous to list. It is, however, of special interest and concern for Christian groups that at present there are at least 1,500 African students studying in the United States. This interchange of Americans and Africans should result in a better understanding of each other's problems, and a more effective ministry of the Church both in the United States and in Africa as it seeks to express the mind of Christ in all human relationships.

During the past four years the Woman's Division has carried on a large building program in Africa. Additional residences for African and missionary staffs have been built, and living conditions for girls in schools and nurse training centers improved. Improvements also have been made in school and hospital buildings.

Missionaries continue to be our greatest need for the work in Africa. The reaching of our goals as a missionary church is still, to a large degree, dependent upon securing capable, consecrated young missionaries to join the few now on the field who by unusual devotion and courage have held the lines and made possible the present opportunity for advance. At present, we have ninety-four missionaries for the work in Africa but we need twice this number. African leadership is developing but the very development of this leadership is dependent upon an increased number of missionaries of the highest quality.

Reports From the Field

North Africa

During the past quadrennium the Woman's Division has made noticeable progress throughout the conference, except in the strategic city of Algiers where it was necessary to discontinue the work because of lack of personnel.

Constantine—Good work has been done with the girls and women at the Good-all Social Center in the Arab section of the city. The Africa-3's appointed to this center have been almost entirely responsible for its activities, and have made a splendid contribution to the total program of the church in the city.

In 1952 the annex to the Gamble Memorial Home for girls was built from Week of Prayer offerings. It includes a beautiful chapel which is becoming a center for conference-wide gatherings.

Kabylia—In the mountains among the Kabyle people the Woman's Division has work in three centers: Il Maten, Fort National, and Les Ouadhias. Our most comprehensive program is in Il Maten where in 1952 an attractive modern school building was erected from Week of Prayer offerings. A new missionary, a French schoolteacher, is arriving in September, 1955, to have charge of the school. She comes under the auspices of the women of Switzerland who, together with the Woman's Division of Christian Service in the United States, will carry her support.

In 1954 a building, which was to serve as a Social Center for work among women and girls, was erected in Fort National near the Boys' Home of the Division of World Missions. This enabled the Woman's Division to begin work there on a permanent basis. Funds for land and building were supplied by 1952 Week of Prayer offerings.

Les Ouadhias is a small country market town near Fort National where the two Divisions are working jointly through a small dispensary and the social-evangelistic program of the church. This section of Algeria is one of the parts of the country most open to the gospel. From it a large percentage of our church members have come. A Woman's Division Missionary residence is being built there.

Tunis—The newest work of the Woman's Division in North Africa is at Tunis. In 1952 two missionaries were appointed to social-evangelistic work there and in November, 1954, the Social-Evangelistic Center was dedicated. The building, which houses this center together with an apartment for missionaries, was erected from Week of Prayer offerings.

Angola

The most outstanding advance in the work in Angola during this quadrennium has been the beginning of work in Luanda, the capital and port city of the country. For many years the Woman's Division had planned to join the Division of World Missions in developing a Social-Evangelistic Center. Funds from the Advance were allocated for the center and for a missionary residence, but lack of personnel delayed our entrance until late in 1952 when a new regular missionary nurse and an A-3 became available.

As yet, no new buildings have been erected and little equipment has been purchased, although money has been allocated for both purposes. It was thought wise to develop a program before building. As in Christian centers in other parts of Africa south of the Sahara, efforts are made to help the African people in the city adjust to a strange life and to correlate this new life with that of the village. Missionaries and African Christians are working together in the development of this project.

Quessua is one of our oldest mission stations in Africa. Woman's work was begun there in 1899. Today the Woman's Division carries on its activities through a Girls' School, a kindergarten and elementary school, a hospital, and a nurses' training school.

The purpose of the Girls' School through the years has been to prepare girls to be Christian leaders in their villages. During the past years increasing emphasis has been placed on scholastic training which has resulted in an increasing number of girls continuing longer in schools. In 1952 fifteen of the twenty-two Africans teaching in the Girls' School were graduates of the mission school.

During the past four years three residences for African teachers have been constructed in Quessua. The dilapidated condition of the present residence makes a new building necessary. Plans have been approved and we hope funds will soon be available.

Belgian Congo—Central Conference

In the Central Belgian Congo the Woman's Division is at work in Wembo Nyama, Tunda, Minga stations and districts, in cooperation with the Division of World Missions. Lack of personnel prevents answering the urgent request to begin work at Katako Kombe and Kindu where for the time being we are able to do little more than help in the dispensaries in some out-stations. We are under-staffed even on the main stations, and missionaries are postponing their furloughs in order to keep the medical and educational work going.

Two of the most encouraging trends of our work in this conference are the increasing concern for the development of girls and women and the development of African leaders in the church. During the past year three forward steps have been made: the election of African district superintendents; an Annual Youth Conference; and an Annual Meeting of the Woman's Society of Christian Service.

Three African women and two missionaries from each station met at Minga from April 4-7, 1955, for the woman's annual meeting. The theme was "That They May Have Life" and Colossians 3 was the basis for all of the devotions. There were both an African and a missionary president, but the African took as much of the leadership as she could. The subject for the addresses was "The Christian Home and Christian Village." Characteristics of a Christian home and ways in which that home could influence the village were discussed. The African women felt that though there was only one Christian family in the village, that family could make its influence felt in the following ways: through living quietly together and respecting each other; by working for the good of all, not just their particular family; by their uplifting conversation, courage, loyalty; and by Christianizing the funeral customs.

While little progress has been made in the building program during the past four years, some cottage dormitories were built for the Girls' Homes in the major stations. In 1952, Week of Prayer funds were given for improving the Girls' Home in Lodja, and some of the cottages have been completed. In 1954 a new school of home economics was opened with a small enrollment in temporary buildings. A new building is planned.

We are happy to report some progress in the development of the Lambuth Memorial Hospital. The Maternity Wing has been completed and recently dedicated.

Belgian Congo—Southern Conference

The following excerpts from the field report, 1954, describe recent developments in the Southern Belgian Congo Conference.

In August, 1952, we moved into the woman's residence in Kenya, a suburb of the African city of Elisabethville, now having a population of 120,000. This residence for missionaries and single African women teachers accommodates twenty-two. It was started as a means of giving protection to the girls teaching in the school who were remaining single for a few years longer than was customary. The work of the home is shared by the missionaries and African teachers. Many valuable lessons in house-keeping, cooking, and the still more important matters of democratic living are learned in the process.

The latest building to be added to the Woman's Division property in Elisabethville is the dormitory for the Normal School girls. It is built next door to the woman's residence in Kenya and has space for two missionaries, two African teachers, and forty-six girls. Plans are now pending for classrooms for the Normal School on this same Kenya property.

The women who were former students in our school give us the most courage in going on with the work in Elisabethville. They are taking their places in the church and the community in a way that is truly remarkable for young women in Africa.

We are grateful for the way in which the Woman's Division is moving into the vast opportunities open for the advancement of God's Kingdom in Southern Congo. There is a real need for a junior high school for the girls who are finishing at an earlier age now.

In 1953 work was begun in Kapanga, an interior station serving a large and thickly populated rural area where together with the Division of World Missions we have built a good medical center. A new hospital was completed and relatively well equipped as well as a residence for missionaries. Improvements are being made in the girls' dining hall. The African girls are eager for schooling and an adequate dining hall will be a useful tool for many types of learning. Unfortunately, for a time, there were no Woman's Division missionaries in the station, but this year the teacher has returned and one of the nurses is expected back from furlough and study in Belgium. Not only are more missionaries needed to strengthen the medical and the educational work, but also to begin social-evangelistic work among women and girls.

Liberia

The Woman's Division has been working in Liberia since October, 1950. In the city of Monrovia the first unit of a hostel for girls who attend the College of West Africa (Division of World Missions) was completed in 1953, erected with money from the Week of Prayer offerings. Two missionaries are working together with the African staff and girls to create a Christian home for those who come into the city to study. Two A-3's are scheduled to leave for Liberia in September, 1955, to work in the College of West Africa and the hostel. This will make it possible for one of the regular missionaries to take her furlough, and help fill the gap made by the recent departure of a third missionary because of ill health. Already the present hostel building is full to capacity and a second unit is now under construction. A residence for the missionary staff has been completed and furnished this year.

The Woman's Division is also at work in Ganta, our largest interior station in Liberia. In 1952 two missionary nurses who had served in China were assigned there to work with the Division of World Missions staff. They arrived on the field prepared to open a school for training nurses, but soon learned there were too few girls with sufficient education for this. First, it would be necessary to stress the education of girls and to this end a home for girls is essential. Plans for a Girls' Hostel in Ganta have been approved, and materials are being prepared for the building. During the year a residence was built for the missionaries. Both of these buildings are financed by Week of Prayer offerings. A staff house also has been completed.

A new regular missionary nurse for Ganta arrived in 1954. We hope to find a qualified Liberian woman to direct the hostel by the time it is completed. Already ten girls are living in the nurses' home and attending the station school. An urgent request comes from the field for a home for girls at Gbarnga, another interior rural station where the Division of World Missions is at work.

Mozambique

The Woman's Division is working in two stations, Gikuki and Kambini, in Mozambique, Portuguese East Africa, with a force of eight missionaries. In Gikuki the work centers in the Hartzell Girls' School and in the Mission Hospital. The enrollment is approximately 900, with as many boys as girls. New cottage dormitories for girls have recently been built and plans are ready for a greatly needed school building. At Kambini a new building in connection with the Keyes Memorial School has been made possible by a gift of money from a friend in Colorado and by other funds held by the Woman's Division.

Excerpts from Miss Ruth Northcott's report, 1954, describe some phases of our work and the needs in Mozambique:

After many years of faithful service at Gikuki, building up a huge clinic work and helping in the practical training of the nurses, Dr. Charles J. Stauffacher was transferred to Kambini. A Portuguese doctor filled the vacancy at Gikuki for three years, after which he resigned. Since then all the work of the hospital clinic, maternity, and the training class for nurses has been carried on by Woman's Division missionaries. This is a heavy load for the three nurses, heavier still during furlough times when there are only two. The government doctor comes on call when he can, from a distance of about twenty miles. Surgical and other serious cases are taken to him in the hospital car.

Since the establishment of the Woman's Division work at Kambini, much progress has been made among the women.

There are really three groups of women served, the wives of the evangelists and theological students in training being of two distinct categories. Some never had school privileges and must be taught to read and write. Sewing and cooking lessons add interest to this sometimes tedious program. Happier families are the result of these simple beginnings of home economics.

In the other category, the wives are former Hartzell School girls. They know how to read and write and sew. Now they are learning how to teach others. In the literacy work with the other group they do much of the instruction, which, of course, is excellent preparation for their work as pastors' wives in the villages.

The third group being helped is a class of elderly women of the neighborhood. This is almost entirely a spiritual service, but it has real fruit.

There is a desperate need for medical missionaries in Mozambique; the Board of Missions is being urged to find both doctors and nurses as quickly as possible. We must try also to find someone to continue the work among the women at Kambini, so effectively done by Miss Ruth Thomas whose retirement will soon be due.

Southern Rhodesia

The Woman's Division has a larger work and more missionaries in Southern Rhodesia than in any other country in Africa. Established many years ago, the work in Old Umtali, Umtali, Mutambara and Nyadiri has been largely educational and medical, but now we are emphasizing social-evangelistic work as well.

Education in Southern Rhodesia is largely under the missions with government cooperation through a grant-in-aid system. In Nyadiri and Mutambara, the Woman's Division conducts the boarding and home economics departments for girls and cooperates with the Division of World Missions in the educational work of the station schools. In Old Umtali two Divisions are jointly responsible for conducting the only secondary school of The Methodist Church in Africa. It corresponds approximately to high schools in the United States. Another joint project is the Teacher-Training School at Old Umtali which is largely the source for teachers in our mission and village schools.

A much needed Domestic Science building is being erected in Nyadiri from Week of Prayer funds. As a part of the medical work at Mutambara the Mother Hughes Memorial Center for women and children has been built from funds provided by a friend in Kansas and the Woman's Division. This new building was dedicated November 7, 1954. Progress also is being made in improving the Washburn Memorial Hospital at Nyadiri. Floors and foundations for the Hospital Nursing Unit have been completed, and the brick work started on all walls.

The African Girls' Hostel at Umtali is being enlarged to include a hall for social-evangelistic activities, as well as more dormitory space. During the recent visit of Bishop and Mrs. Richard C. Raines to Umtali, Bishop Raines laid the cornerstone of the new Hall while Mrs. Raines gave the address. The Hall is named for Miss Sallie Lou MacKinnon. Funds for this building program come from Week of Prayer offerings.

The newest development in the work of the Woman's Division in Southern Rhodesia is its cooperation with the Division of World Missions in opening a Christian Center in Umtali. The building has been finished and dedicated. This center is closely connected with Hilltop Church which, due to the large participation of African Christians, occupies an influential position in relation to the other Methodist churches in the country.

Europe

The Geneva Area, being composed of nine countries—North Africa, Austria, Belgium, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland, Rumania, and Switzerland—represents a long geographical line. The strength, size and vigor of The Methodist Church varies from country to country.

Switzerland has a very strong organization with excellent institutions in which five hundred deaconesses are serving. The Conference Woman's Society supports a number of missionaries jointly with the Woman's Division in the United States.

Belgium, though being numerically small, is easily the pilot church of several Protestant groups working there.

The Geneva Area has for many years been under the jurisdiction of an American Bishop. Since 1952 Bishop Arthur J. Moore has been serving in this capacity, and in October, 1954 he presided over the Central Conference held in Brussels, Belgium. Acting under the authority of the General Conference of 1952, a European Bishop was elected at the Brussels Conference. He was Dr. Ferdinand Sigg from Switzerland.

The work of the women of the church was given great emphasis at this Central Conference. Miss Sallie Lou MacKinnon and I were present to witness the organization of a strong committee on Women's Work, which will have its permanent membership on an Area Committee that gives day by day direction to work of the church in several countries.

Even though the Woman's Division does not have any missionaries in Europe at present and makes small appropriations only to Bulgaria and Poland, this area of the world presents a real challenge to us. Bishop Moore said recently that he considers this one of the great opportunities of the church. He pointed out the fact that a few American women, sent to these countries as missionaries, could render a magnificent service in training European women for leadership in the church.

THINGS TO DO

1. Underscore the places where Week of Prayer offerings were used for new buildings as mentioned in all the reports.

2. Check the number of cooperative projects carried on by the Woman's Division and the Division of World Missions.

3. Note the types of work in the various countries, including the United States.

4. Discuss the great need for more deaconesses and missionaries as revealed in all the reports.

India and Pakistan

By MISS LUCILE COLONY, Executive Secretary

India

The Setting for Christian Work

DR. HAROLD N. BREWSTER, medical secretary of the Board of Missions, and Mrs. Brewster visited India this year. Reporting on the general situation Dr. Brewster was "impressed with the progress which the Indian government is making in achieving economic improvement for her people." The degree of political stability through democratic methods, he feels, is one of the astonishingly bright details of the current world picture. He said, "Of all the countries of Asia, I feel that India is now safest from 'going communist.' The people feel that this government is concerned about their welfare and is working to better their lot in life."

As far as missionary service is concerned, this is a time when the missionary has a sense of insecurity and suffers somewhat from a popular propaganda against him and his witness. Attempting to evaluate this situation, Dr. Brewster stated:

A time of difficulty is a time for restudy and reappraisal. Perhaps we need to ask ourselves some questions and seek true, objective answers.

Is God using this means to challenge us to restudy the role of missionaries in relation to Indian Christians and co-workers on the one hand and toward the non-Christian community on the other? To many Christians and non-Christians, missionaries represent vestiges of colonialism and imperialism. They are asking why, if the Indian government has managed to get rid of nearly all of its foreign administrators and all of the foreign rulers, the Indian Church cannot do likewise?

Is the Lord using the government attitude to say to us, "One hundred years is long enough for American and European missionaries to play leading roles in the church of India?" Is He saying to us, "You have been too slow to turn over responsibility?"

If these thoughtful questions are what God is asking, it is good to know there is a most serious search to answer them with utmost honesty. A group in one annual conference replies, "A growing restlessness has touched the church to speed the emergence of leadership. Increasingly the shape of the organization of the church is forming around national responsibility and decreasing dependence on the money and missionaries of other countries. Both are welcomed as the visible proof of a world church and a means of increasing strength. But neither are demanded as the conditions of existence."

Opposition is not only against the missionary but against Indian Christians as well. None of this is from Central Government sources but from conservative sects within Hinduism who are striving for revival of their ancient faith. They are on the alert. They sometimes misinterpret a Christian program or demonstration as being antinational at heart.

Many of the outstanding Christians believe this is not merely a time of testing, but a time in which the church membership is coming into greater maturity and a deeper understanding of its faith as it proclaims and defends it. It is a spiritual experience to talk with responsible Indian Christian men and women on the subject of whether American churches should continue to send missionaries to India. Invariably they reply that Christianity knows nothing of geographical or racial barriers; that in India this must continue to be made known by Christians from lands working together. Yet there are two requests they make: first, that missionaries should not expect places of leadership except as it is given to them by their Indian colleagues; and, more fundamentally, that they should be well grounded in Christian experience. "Send us young people who have a knowledge of the Bible and their faith, and whose spiritual life will be a blessing and witness among us."

There is no political ban against the admission of missionaries. In fact, there are several thousand missionaries in India. Published statements indicate that visas will be granted only to persons who possess outstanding qualifications or specialized experience in areas of work for which Indians are not available. Further, "Missionaries already in India will not ordinarily be disturbed unless they indulge in anti-national activities."

"Those who have been working in India for a period of five years or more will normally be eligible for readmission and to the grant of 'No objection to return to India' endorsement, if they leave the country with the intention of returning to India."

A final dictum is, "Foreign missions or societies working in India will not be able to open a new branch or institution in India without prior permission of the government."

Since 1952 only one application for a visa, requested by the Woman's Division of Christian Service, has been refused. The number of new missionaries sent, however, has been small.

Active Missionaries for India

1952—146

1953—122 (First I-3's completed term)

1954—126 (Six transferred from China)

1955—133 (Six from China)

During the year fifteen visas have been authorized, twelve of these for missionaries returning to India after furlough.

Calls for Missionaries Continue

While there is a frank admission that Indian leadership must increase, yet requests continue to be made through Field Committees for missionaries. An Indian surgeon, superintendent of a hospital, asks for a missionary laboratory technician. An Indian principal of a Teachers' College wants two missionaries, one to teach art and home economics, the other to teach experimental psychology. She would like a librarian also. Another Indian principal pleads for a missionary to help in the teaching work of a large co-educational high school. An evangelist asks for a supervisor of village schools. A tuberculosis sanatorium wants a public health nurse and an occupational therapist. The list of needs could be multiplied, but this illustrates the fact that every conference expectantly requests the American church to send missionaries.

The Woman's Society of Christian Service

One evening in the year 1939, while sitting on the veranda of Roshanara Cottage at Sat Tal (Dr. E. Stanley Jones' Ashram estate), I noticed a tiny red speck on a distant hill. In a few minutes it spread. Soon it was a roaring forest fire. Before long the whole hillside was ablaze with the bright light of the flames. Helpers with lanterns and petrolmaxes rushed from all directions to control the fury of this brilliant fire. But it continued to spread.

Such has been the nature of the Woman's Society of Christian Service. It has caught fire in India and is spreading fast.

With these sentences a national officer of the Society in India graphically suggests the rapid growth of the Woman's Society of Christian Service. A few figures substantiate her account.

Year	Number of Societies		Membership	Income
	Urban	Rural
1946	65	118	3,117	Rupees 7,932
1947	69	125	3,227	" 6,613
1948	75	233	4,290	" 8,114
1949	83	241	5,038	" 9,188
1950	86	292	6,048	" 9,932
1951	89	305	7,564	" 10,754
1952	92	377	8,692	" 11,969
1953	96	391	9,255	" 12,224
(Incomplete) 1954	100	480	10,813	" 15,746

These women hold village institutes and rallies for inspiration and leadership training; conferences and conventions for city members. They promote the Christian Home Movement, temperance, clean-up campaign, adult literacy, evangelistic programs, home visitation, and support the Warne Baby Fold as well as participating in a home mission project.

New President, Isabella Thoburn College

To succeed a magnificent personality like Miss Sarah Chakko, who was recognized throughout the Christian world for her great depth of character, abilities, and true humility, requires courage and sincere dedication. Such a one was inaugurated president of the college on August 19, 1955. She is Miss Evangeline Mutharmnah Thillayampalam, M.A., M.S., Ph.D. Better than all her academic degrees is the fact that she has had wide administrative experience, and possesses the warm human qualities of good humor and joy in working with others.

The Work Advances

Teacher Training

Several years ago the undergraduate teacher-training classes at the Isabella Thoburn College were closed, as a result of a change in educational policies in the State. This made it practically impossible for high-school graduates in Northern India to prepare themselves to teach. Consequently Christian elementary schools have felt the loss of qualified teachers. Knowing an answer must be found, the Lal Bagh Higher Secondary School (Junior College) added one more section to its already overcrowded program. This is the Certificate Teachers' Training course. At Lal Bagh today there are the following departments, each in its separate building: Nursery and Kindergarten; Primary and Middle School; High School; Teacher Training; and Junior College of Home Economics. The principal of this cluster of schools and six of her colleagues are Crusade Scholars with American degrees. What would Isabella Thoburn think today of the Lal Bagh she knew in 1870, when she opened the first humble boarding school there for girls?

Graduate students are given teacher training at the Training Institute for Women, Jabalpur, as of July, 1955.

According to the most recent survey of literacy, in the important age group of 10-24 years, 23 per cent are now literate. For all ages literacy has increased 4.4 per cent since 1941. To cope with this increased demand for an education, we rejoice that Methodist women are training teachers in six Methodist schools and colleges, and participate in two other interdenominational normal schools.

New Buildings

"Medical work in India is like a man who has been starved so long he doesn't know how to ask for food," said an American reporter. "You have excellent doctors but you give them nothing to work with," said another adviser. These comments are painful because they are true. Not one of the hospitals or medical colleges has the supplies, equipment, buildings, or personnel that would be required in a Western land. Whenever we are able to send drugs and equipment we rejoice. This year a mobile van, an X-ray, some drugs, and medical books have been sent. A number of new buildings have been completed or are in the process of being built.

At the Christian Medical College, Ludhiana, a new 500 bed hospital, staff houses, and dormitories are being built. At Puntamba a small hospital and operation theater have been completed. One unit of a new rural hospital at Yadgiri and a woman's residence are under construction. At Creighton-Freeman Hospital, Vrindaban, a maternity ward, classrooms, and nurses' residence are new. The Union Tuberculosis Sanatorium, Madar, has a new surgical ward, still without equipment, and a recreational center as well as a new line of homes for the employed staff. Ellen Thoburn Cowen Memorial Hospital, Kolar, has a new ward for men and an out-patient department building.

Several village clinics have been opened. The most recent is in the Belgaum district, directed by a Crusade Scholar medical doctor, who has her degree in Public Health from Harvard University.

Nursery school buildings have been erected at Lal Bagh and in Jabalpur. Land for a Christian center in the city of Batala has been purchased. The hope is that the Woman's Division will build a school and a residence, and the Division of World Missions a church and parsonage here.

Literature

Christian literature is making progress under the inspiring leadership of persons at the Lucknow Publishing House and a few other persons in various conferences.

Centenary Forward Movement

The Methodist Church in Southern Asia is holding a Week of Dedication, September 19-25, 1955, in preparation for the Centenary in 1956. Methodists are called to pray in thanksgiving to God for "all the opportunities still open for making Christ known, and for the evidence of increased desire to witness for Christ in new directions and by new methods." The goals of the movement are: 1) to recruit 250 young men for the ministry during the next quadrennium; 2) to receive into full church membership 100,000 probationers; 3) to raise 100,000 rupees to endow a chair in an American university to teach Indian life and culture; 4) to contribute money for medical scholarships and to support medical dispensaries; 5) to provide 25,000 rupees for the United Christian Medical Mission to Nepal; 6) to place a Centenary Bible and a Christian picture in every Methodist home; and 7) to endeavor to help every church member rededicate himself and his family to God.

Spiritual Life

The first section of this report may raise a question of the power of the church to prosper in an atmosphere where there is a growing antagonism against it. It was founded by One who said, "In the world ye shall have tribulation: but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." It goes forward with new strength in a time of conflict.

Consider the thoughtful report from one area of the Indian Methodist church. "It can be told with joy and humility that the church is indeed assuming increasing influence in the life of India. The force of the church is being felt:

Hands laid on new members under a canvas roof in a small mud-walled mohalla.

Coins placed on an open Bible in a tiny chapel under the sign reading in Hindi, "Ye are the light of the world."

A pastor pedaling his cycle in the noonday heat, his white box of Communion elements tied securely to his luggage carrier.

. . . Three hundred children at a sunrise service in the north, and 3,000 singing villagers in a Christian jungle camp in the south.

. . . God is touching individuals.

The days of the Mass Movement served their purpose as God used them to multiply His flock in amazing numbers. Today God is speaking through His people in a different way, and individuals are stepping out of old ways of life in response. Old patterns are disintegrating rapidly, roots are being destroyed as the machine-fed city, like iron-filings in a magnetic field, attracts villagers by the thousands. The individual, torn out of the ancient group security in his search for a new learning and life, is asking with desperate earnestness for final meaning.

"The Indian church has its roots deep in the life of India and deep in the life of the world church. . . . There is a new respect for Christianity. . . . This respect is found in a new attitude toward the Christian faith by both the Christian and the non-Christian. It is found in the halls of parliament in a renewal of carefully modulated speeches of appreciation for the work of the Christian church. It is found as Christian leaders defend the Christian position with brilliant legal analysis and warmly contagious spiritual testimony."

Pakistan

The National Scene

Letters from Pakistan speak of the general political picture being confused, and yet there is continued optimism on the part of Christian people. Members of the Indus River Conference report: "The political, social, and economic unrest in the country has shaken the faith of the common man who expected his new Islamic State to provide him with security. Since corruption has increased greatly, the integrity of many of the leaders is questioned. This provides an opportunity for the church to win people by demonstrating that Christianity produces an integrity of character not commonly found in Islam. The Muslim attitude toward women is being seriously challenged even by Muslims. The church has an opportunity to demonstrate what a truly Christian home can be, and to develop an active Christian Home program."

Christian Activities

Opportunity and inadequacy are the key words of the Christian work in Pakistan today. If Spirit-empowered persons, well-trained and ready for Christian service, were available in adequate numbers, and could be assigned to all phases of the work now without leadership, and were given adequate funds for maintaining it, this vast opportunity for Christian service now open to the church would not go unclaimed. Pakistan is the only Muslim land where Christian witness is given complete freedom of expression. On the one hand doors are wide open, on the other hand too limited resources of human personality and commitment and funds are available for entering into these opportunities.

The evangelistic witness is very limited. We have only one missionary of the Woman's Division of Christian Service assigned full-time to evangelistic work. Village centers, to promote programs that tackle all the problems of any village group, are almost completely lacking. Just one Christian village has a rural dispensary in it. Too little is done in village education and literacy work. The whole problem of illiteracy calls for serious attention.

Training for Christian leadership among the laymen of the church is an area needing attention. There is only one Protestant theological school in Pakistan. There is need for a School of Religious Education and for a center for the training of workers in rural areas. Annual institutes, to strengthen the spiritual life of Christians, are held and are very excellent. They are well attended and have a profound influence on the lives of both Christians and non-Christian friends who join the crowds and listen with interest.

Educational Work

Kinnaird College for Women is one of the splendid union Christian colleges given to the countries of Asia by Christian women in the United States, Canada, and Great Britain. These colleges have been the most powerful contributing force in the emergence of womanhood, and continue a radiant witness to the meaning of Christian life to the nations in which they serve.

Dr. Helen Ferris, Miss Elsie Reik, and Miss Jean Robe are missionaries of the Woman's Division who teach at Kinnaird. All three are due furlough in the next year or two, and no other Methodist missionary is ready to join the college faculty.

Lucie Harrison Girls' High School is touching the lives of hundreds of boys and girls. It is worthy of the highest standards of Christian education. Miss Margaret Boss and Miss Mary Winn cooperate loyally with the principal, Miss Mabel Dean, Pakistani Crusade Scholar with a Master's degree from George Peabody College for Teachers, Nashville, Tennessee.

At the beginning of the 1952-1956 quadrennium it was decided to strengthen Methodist work in Karachi, the capital city, by building a high school for girls. Classes have begun in temporary buildings. Negotiations are in progress to purchase land. This will be the only Protestant high school in Karachi where the population is more than a million and a half and the Christians number in the hundreds. Miss Constance Blackstock and Miss Earline Hart are devoting themselves to this project.

Miss Evelyn Weaver, deaconess, has been transferred from the Department of Work in Home Fields to Lahore for evangelistic work. Miss Wynell Jordan has gone to Karachi for work among young people, through the Methodist church in that city. Both are P-3's, short-term workers, and both are deeply appreciated as new recruits.

Miss Anna Buyers, R.N., serves more than a dual function. She is both evangelist and public health nurse, and Field Correspondent for the conference.

Medical Work

The United Christian Hospital grew out of the emergency during the riots at the time of partition. It has become the most outstanding hospital in the land and ranks next to Vellore in quality. Staff residences and a tuberculosis unit are greatly needed. More subsidy is needed for poor patients. It is hoped the hospital may be able to purchase its buildings and the surrounding campus, on which it has functioned for eight years through the great courtesy and generosity of the Forman Christian College.

United Christian Mission to Nepal

The first official report of the work in Nepal was published in April, 1955. The work, at the present writing, is a year and a half old and is carried on in two valleys, touching the lives of hundreds in three cities and a number of villages. The introductory statement to the report reveals the spirit in which the United Medical Mission to Nepal has been undertaken by the National Christian Council of India.

These minutes are sent forth with confidence that they record a movement initiated and guided by God's Holy Spirit. The United Christian Mission to Nepal was not established on impulse but in response to a conviction that grew during many tests. The people of Nepal are God's people. They have every right to know the redeeming grace of God shed abroad in human hearts through Jesus Christ. Their birthright as members of the human family includes access to the Holy Scriptures which so long have been denied most of them.

Statistics show the response of the people to the medical service given. In the Kathmandu area, within the first few months, 16,154 were given treatment. In Tansen 2,150 received attention during the period from September, 1954 to March 31, 1955.

The little group of nurses, laboratory technician, business manager, and evangelist in Kathmandu and Bhotgaon possess the quality of first century Christians. In a pioneer task, amid people who never before heard of Christ or knew those who went forth in His name, they have become a small "church," closely united in prayer and fellowship. For several months they have been without a doctor. At this writing Creighton-Freeman Hospital, Vrindaban, has sent Dr. Nalathamby for six months. The experience of carrying on without a doctor has deepened the sense of dependence upon prayer. More personnel will be the answer to those prayers.

The program will expand as more workers are found. Schools, adult literacy, the revision of the Nepali Bible are first on the program for the immediate future of the Christian Mission to Nepal. This total program, a tiny witness in a neglected land, needs the prayers of Christians everywhere.

Japan and Korea

By MISS MARGARET BILLINGSLEY, Executive Secretary

THE theme of this Annual Report, "The Fruits of Discipleship," could be interpreted to mean visible "fruits" such as buildings and statistics. In the evaluation of the year's work, these are important, but the most lasting and far-reaching results cannot be tabulated in figures. The intangible fruits revealed in the lives of people as individuals and as groups bring the greatest rewards. When Jesus left the earth He left nothing behind Him but a group of people—people with a new life to share. Because they did share, the Church has grown and expanded until today there are Christians in almost every country of the world, though in many places only a very few.

One of the greatest fruits for which we are thankful is that many of the so-called "mission churches" have developed into indigenous churches with the leadership in the hands of the people of the country. Pastors of churches, heads of schools, and medical superintendents in the hospitals are nationals. This does not mean that missionaries are not needed, but they are required to play a different role—humbler and less spectacular—but more far-reaching, and perhaps more costly. As we look at some of the visible fruits of discipleship in Japan and Korea, let us not forget those deeper, more satisfying, and more revolutionary results which cannot be lifted out and which cannot be seen.

Japan

The fruits of the Christian ministry in Japan must be evaluated in the light of the developing Japanese scene. A very vocal press is more of a molding force than our American press because large groups accept unquestioningly the opinions advanced in the newspapers they read. The press, discussion groups, and political activity indicate that the central issue today in Japan is the slowly rising tide of national self-assertion. Though some anti-Americanism has developed, basically, except for the left wing group, Japanese sentiment is friendly. However, they do want to feel that they are entirely free to chart their own future and its commitments.

Recent studies indicate that Buddhism and Shintoism are showing new strength and appeal. Also a great flood of new non-Christian sects have appeared. By 1951 a total of 720 such groups with a combined membership of over six million were working in Japan. The Protestant Christian group has not made spectacular strides but it has made "steady progress." One outstanding event of the recent months in Protestant circles was the publication of a new translation of the entire Bible, making it more intelligible to those who so earnestly read it.

The Woman's Division of Christian Service works within the framework of the United Church in Japan (Kyodan), which has almost two thirds of the Protestant membership in Japan within its fold. Last year it experienced an average of 6 per cent increase as over against an average of less than 4 per cent in the older religions.

At the General Conference in the fall of 1954, the spirit of unity in the United Church was very marked. The adoption of the creed, a creed which was agreed upon after years of study and discussion of the differences which historically separate the church, was a real spiritual experience. The General Conference also adopted unanimously a Covenant and launched a Home Missions Board. This board is to care for the ongoing work of the church and help needy churches, thus releasing mission funds for pioneer projects, rural evangelism, special evangelistic campaigns, and for church building. In connection with the 100th Anniversary of the coming of the first Protestant missionaries to Japan, which is to be celebrated in 1959, the United Church has planned and begun a five-year evangelistic campaign. Each year the chief emphasis will be on a different aspect of church growth.

Christian education continues to be one of the most fruitful spheres of work. The schools which the church maintains are probably the greatest single evangelistic asset to the church, bringing thousands into membership every year. New buildings at Hiroshima, the new auditorium at Seiwa Training School, and others have made the physical plants more adequate. More concern is manifested regarding the importance of increasing the number of Christians on the faculties. Except in the schools for training religious workers, very few students are Christian when they enter school. There is a tremendous field for evangelism among them without any government restrictions. It is difficult to find a sufficient number of qualified Christian teachers, especially in some subjects, like science, in which Christian colleges in Japan do not specialize. It is gratifying that each year some of the non-Christian teachers are led to Christ.

Recently 38 matrons of girls' dormitories and 10 leaders met for three days to study the place of the campus dormitory in relation to the Christian program. As this was the second such conference made possible by a gift from the Woman's Division, it is reported that the participants were more advanced in their thinking and in plans for the devotional program in the dormitories. Due to these conferences, the girls living in the dormitories are showing growth in Christian leadership.

The International Christian University grows in interest and spiritual impact. Though it has not yet graduated the first class, it is already making a name for itself scholastically. The recent addition of an apartment building for single women faculty members was a gift from Methodist women.

Christian education is not confined to the schools, of course. The Christian Youth Center in Kobe is making a contribution that cannot easily be measured. Youth groups meet there for fellowship and study. The intangibles of such fellowship, of sleeping, eating, and working together, and the sense of belonging to a meaningful group, are evidenced in new courage and determination, new understanding of the Christian life and God's love. A new church camp for the Kobe area also gives opportunity for the sharing and fellowship so necessary for the upbuilding of the Christian group.

The Woman's Division shares in the work of pioneer evangelism, rural evangelism, occupational evangelism, and social-service work. Ai Kei Gakuin in Tokyo celebrated twenty-five years of bringing blessing and help to an underprivileged area; a missionary in Fukuoka works with the children and people of a fisherman's community; another is pioneering in rural work; and two young women who have just completed two years of language study have been appointed to two new areas, where no missionary has been stationed before, to work with the churches in an evangelistic program.

Miss Hazel Rippey, trained in Home Economics and appointed a year ago to the Nopporo Rural Center in the north of Japan, is working with the rural churches in the field of nutrition, canning, and cookery of new foods, such as potatoes, which are being introduced into the Japanese diet. She also works with the students of the Christian Dairy College, who teach in outlying Sunday schools; with Daily Vacation Bible Schools and youth groups.

AVACO is the Christian organization which is promoting the audio-visual program of Christian work, including the radio for Christian propaganda. In its studios are prepared radio programs for broadcasting to the owners of eleven million radio receivers in Japan and visual materials for use by pastors and teachers. The paper theater (kamishibac) is used by many teachers and workers with children and at least three other countries have adopted it.

The new missionaries themselves are tangible evidence of progress. Since the war, the Woman's Division of Christian Service has sent twenty-five new missionaries (a large number were formerly in China) to Japan, but with marriages, and retirement of older missionaries, there are not as many missionaries as four years ago. The urgent requests for missionaries far exceed the numbers available. Wide varieties of opportunity are open to young women. The Master's words, "Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men," ring out today as they have through the centuries.

Korea

Many visitors to Korea speak of the "apostolic vitality" of the church. The story of the disciples in the book of Acts becomes a living reality. Those who have gone through great tribulation, whose faith and loyalty have been tried, sing with gratitude and praise to God. In seventy short years the Church has had such an influence that in spite of hardships and persecution, approximately 5 per cent of the population is now Christian. Much of the strength of the Korean church is in consecrated, trained leaders.

The educational work started by missionaries and continued by Korean Christians has given the Church strong, well-equipped leaders. Schools, established by missionaries with only a few pupils, have grown into institutions with thousands of students. This wonderful opportunity for evangelism needs more Christian teachers and missionaries or the schools cannot continue to produce Christian leaders. Where are the workers who will go and guide these young lives?

Kindergarten Training has brought forth a great abundance of fruit, sending Christian young women into all areas of Korea to train children and parents in church-related kindergartens. The one training school at Ewha University in Seoul has not been able to meet the increasing demand for teachers. This year a new school was opened in Taejon. Last April young women started their training in temporary buildings under the leadership of Miss Clara Howard and her fellow Korean teachers.

Dr. Harold Brewster, Medical Secretary of the Board of Missions, recently visited Korea. He reports progress and great needs in the medical field. Severance Hospital, with the aid of the cooperating mission boards in America, and with a gift from the Army, is constructing a large chest unit on the new location near Chosen Christian University. Severance Medical School and Chosen Christian University have united into one school for higher learning. Severance School of Nursing is requesting a greatly needed building for the nurses who have been living under crowded, primitive, makeshift conditions since their former home was destroyed.

Dr. Barbara Moss reports from the Methodist Hospital in Inchon: "Everyone is familiar with the picture of a big overgrown boy in his late teens, fairly bursting at the seams, eager to be considered grown up, but still retaining many of his childlike ways. That to a large extent describes what has happened to the Inchon Methodist Hospital during the past year. After twenty years as an out-patient dispensary with twelve beds, all of a sudden it grew into a thirty-eight-bed hospital with a laboratory, autoclave house, storehouse, with not an inch of space left for expansion, but as yet retaining many of the characteristics of a dispensary.

"However, we are growing up to fit our new role. During the past year we had approximately 60,000 patient visits. Two doctors, three nurses, and one nurse's aid have been added to the staff. We have a kitchen for the in-patient department with a cook. That means we have been able to dispense with the little charcoal burners and pots and pans in each patient's room. Formerly, a member of the patient's family lived with the patient in the sickroom and cooked the meals.

"Two years ago there was literally nothing here to answer the description of a hospital, except for an X-ray machine without film, a microscope which had never been used, and a devoted staff doing the best they knew how with what they had."

In Taejon and Pusan, clinics are held in connection with Community Centers and in outlying areas; in Kangneung medical work reaches the villages under the supervision of Miss Gledhill and a young Korean woman doctor who is working with her. Approval has been given by the Woman's Division of Christian Service and the Division of World Missions to proceed with plans for a new hospital to be erected in Wonju, a large area where there is no hospital. Before the war The Methodist Church had five hospitals north of the 38th Parallel, but the "Iron Curtain" prevents any connection or even communication with these former institutions.

Christian education through the churches has made great strides forward. Dr. Gerald Harvey, on the Board of Education of the Southern California-Arizona Conference, during his six months' visit, gave valuable assistance and inspiration to the Korean staff and the few missionaries who had been able to give a small portion of their time to the religious-education program. Indications of progress include: 126 new church schools, with an increased enrollment of approximately 6,000 members; 118 new Methodist Youth Fellowships, with a total membership of 26,820, an increase of 6,687; 388 Vacation Bible Schools, ministering to 48,700 children. None of this could have been done without the faithful, consecrated Korean men and women, who attended the National Leadership Conference and 20 district conferences with 2,469 persons receiving training. The enthusiasm of these groups for training in new aspects of the Christian education program, such as Christian Family Life Movement, point to new trends.

Miss Irma Highbaugh, missionary of the Woman's Division loaned to the International Missionary Council, and working as field representative on Home and Family Life in Korea, at the invitation of the National Christian Council of Korea, attributes her unusual success in Korea to (1) delegates who went to Manila to attend the Asian Conference on Home and Family Life and to Miss Clara Howard and the Korean leaders who have been working on this program for a number of years; (2) the fact that there are trained leaders available in Family Life work through the Home Economics and Kindergarten Training Departments of the Christian schools; and (3) the self-confidence of the Christians of Korea which is lacking in some of the other countries.

Outlines for curriculum for kindergarten and youth in the church school have been developed. A number of books and manuals have come off the press on such subjects as "Administration of Sunday Schools," "Daily Vacation Bible Schools," "Children and Prayer," "Bible Stories," "Recreation."

To meet the growing demand for audio-visual aids, fourteen projectors and many filmstrips have been purchased so that each district will be able to have at least one slide projector with a number of religious filmstrips. Fifteen district leaders have been trained in audio-visual workshops. Methodists also participate in the interdenominational program under the Korean Christian Council. In 1954 the two mobile units (one contributed by the Woman's Division) had 250 showings of religious and educational films to 316,000 people in rural areas.

As a part of this audio-visual work, the radio station began broadcasting on December 15, 1954, bringing a new era in radio ministry. A substantial radio audience makes requests for the Bible course given over the air. The Koreans love good music and probably appreciate the programs of fine Christian and classical music more than any other one feature. Forty per cent of the time on the air is devoted to the Christian message through music, stories, dramas, lectures.

This station is heard in the southern half of the country. Since the station signal reaches 300 miles south, and goes with equal strength that far into the north, presumably it reaches the people behind the Curtain. Financial support of the Christian radio station by the church in Korea has been slow, but is gaining momentum. As evangelistic opportunities are more fully appreciated by more Christian groups, they will rally to the support. The station is hoping also to increase its sphere of witnessing by adding programs in Chinese and possibly Russian for the millions of these two nations living just beyond the borders.

New work has been opened on the east coast. Mrs. Irene Swinney and Miss Marion Kingsley were appointed by Bishop Lew to the new station at Kangneung. Mrs. Swinney writes: "Villages constantly are calling me. I go chugging down the road to some church service, passing up a little fishing village tucked in a cove of our beautiful coast or a sizeable village across the river, approached only by a log foot bridge. In this area, 500 miles long and 100 miles wide, not to mention the islands at sea, there is a wonderful natural opportunity to tell of the love of God and how He has provided this way for us to show love for one another.

"There are so many students at prayer meeting. In fact, the city church could easily absorb all my interest and time, but I must remember my villages. Maybe you can send someone to do the town work so my heart won't pull me in so many different directions at once."

Community Centers in Taejon, Pusan, and Seoul are ever alert to the needs of the people. Tai Wha Christian Community Center in Seoul, the oldest and largest of the centers again has been able to open its doors to the eager throngs in the center of the city. After using the buildings for five years the American Army returned them in April, 1955. Extensive rehabilitation is under way and activities for people of all ages call for more workers.

Number of Commissioned Missionaries in Active Service

April also marked the opening of the Girl's Christian Hostel in Seoul, where thirty-five girls live and work together while they attend various schools in the city.

Two hundred women from all areas gathered for the annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society. Reports told of new societies, increased membership, observance of Week of Prayer, Mission Sunday, World Day of Prayer, and social-service projects. Daily Bible reading, early morning prayer groups, carrying the Gospel to non-Christians, Bible study, visiting in Army hospitals were reported by the evangelistic committee. Special cause for thanksgiving came when the appointments of three Home Missionaries were read and the decision was announced to undertake the full support of the Christian Workers' Retirement Home for which the Woman's Division provided funds for the land and building.

The Korean Church gives full clergy rights to women. At the 1955 annual conference Miss Mila Chun and Miss Wha Young Myung were ordained and appointed to churches—the first Korean women to be ordained.

Let us never be weary in carrying Christ to the world. Whatever has been done and whatever may be done in serving with the Christians in Korea will bring forth a full harvest.

Latin America

By MISS MARIAN DERBY, Executive Secretary

AS THIS report is being written, this secretary together with Dr. James E. Ellis, administrative secretary of the Division of World Missions for Latin America, is visiting the Methodist work in South America. Impressions are too recent to be able to generalize concerning them, but certainly there is much that is encouraging everywhere. The Methodist Church of Brazil, autonomous since 1930, announced at its General Conference last July that during the past five years a new church building has been completed every twenty-one days and a new parsonage every forty-four days. In Peru, Chile, and Bolivia the statement was made on various occasions that people are more receptive to the evangelical message, and opportunities for opening new work are legion.

Our educational institutions are slowly increasing the number of active Protestant teachers on their staffs and reports show an increasing effectiveness regarding the influence of the evangelical message. There are more students in seminaries and training schools for Christian workers than in previous years. Two large hospitals, one in Curitiba, Brazil, and the other in Montevideo, Uruguay, are being built and equipped entirely through the efforts of the Protestant communities in those cities. They will be staffed by competent Protestant doctors who are not only well trained in medicine and surgery but who are also active leaders in the local Protestant churches.

Perhaps one of the most encouraging reports has come from the women's work in the church. Typical of the growth in membership and giving are the statistics shown in the graph below for the Woman's Societies of The Methodist Church in Brazil.

Woman's Societies in Brazil

At the Fourth Quadrennial Congress of the Confederation of Methodist Women of Latin America held in Lima in January, 1955, there was great rejoicing over the increase in missionary giving. During the past four years two missionaries have been supported by the combined efforts of Latin American women—one in southern Chile and one on the altiplano of Bolivia. In Lima it was decided that they should venture further and plans were made for sending a young woman to help with the work in the mountains of Peru. On September 25, Miss Maria Glisina Fernandez, an attractive young Brazilian from Porto Alegre, was consecrated as this missionary.

A former student in two of our schools, Miss Fernandez later continued her studies in the University of Porto Alegre and since that time has been active in the youth work of the church and in its extension program. When she heard of the missionary opportunity in Peru, she corresponded with the missionary committee, most of whom are resident in Argentina, proved her academic and spiritual qualifications for the work, and accepted the terms of the two-year contract. It is hoped that she will be at work in Peru before the beginning of 1956.

Assignment of Missionaries in Latin American Countries

Of course, the whole picture is not as rosy as the preceding paragraphs might indicate. Politically 1956 has seen stormy elections, bloody revolutions, and extended strikes which have influenced at least indirectly the work of the church. A real economic crisis, abrupt rise in the cost of living, and soaring inflation have resulted in acute financial problems in several countries. When a school budget jumps from 172,000 to 719,000 in five years as it did in Rosario, Argentina, it does something to financial plans, even if it is in Argentine pesos!

For most of our institutions, however, financial problems are not as serious as the securing of adequate personnel. Although there has been an increase in the number of well-trained Protestant Christians taking responsibility on the staffs of schools and other institutions, the number of students and the scope of the programs have increased even faster. The fact that today we have only 95 missionaries in place of the 122 who were active in 1951 explains a part of the problem. As may be seen by the graph below, the greatest loss has been in those assigned to regular school work where it has been easiest to replace them with well-prepared national teachers. However, there is not one of the schools which would not welcome more missionaries on its staff today.

For the most part, the institutions in Latin America in which the Woman's Division of Christian Service shares a responsibility are adequately housed. Considerable building has been done in the last quadrennium which will make the work in the future more effective. These buildings will be mentioned specifically under the countries in which they are located.

Though the work in all of the Latin American countries has much in common, the rest of this report will be taken up with the description of projects country by country. For the sake of convenience, they have been listed alphabetically.

Argentina

Argentina has been much in the news in 1955, but many of the reports have been so confused that it has been difficult to interpret them. If that has been true for the reader in the United States, it has been almost equally true for those living in Argentina! The open opposition to religion on the part of the Peron government was aimed at the Roman Catholic Church and did not directly affect the Protestant work. During the June revolution when the mob was entering Catholic churches to burn and destroy them, a group approached the Protestant bookstore on one of the main avenues and began to throw stones at the large show window. The manager, a Spaniard small in stature but great in courage, stepped out and shouted that this was a Protestant enterprise and had nothing to do with the Catholic Church. On hearing this, the mob backed off immediately and went on its way. Legislation against the church, such as a high tax on all church property, has affected both Catholics and Protestants. This may cause hardship for some of our churches if enforced. Of course, at this writing it is extremely difficult to prophesy as to what the future may bring.

Quadrennial reports from The Methodist Church in Argentina show growth in many aspects. In 1951 forty-five pastors and three deaconesses directed the work of the church. In 1955 there are fifty-one pastors and nine deaconesses in active service. The enrollment in the Union Theological Seminary in Buenos Aires, which has increased from sixty-one students to seventy-seven in the same length of time, gives a basis for the hope that the church will continue to grow in strength. Since these students come from four different denominations and from five of the Spanish-speaking countries of South America, this strength will be reflected in the total Protestant witness in various parts of the continent. The building constructed in 1942, which seemed more than adequate at that time, has had to be enlarged during this quadrennium by finishing the dormitory space on the third floor. But again it is proving too small. A new interest in full-time Christian service has been awakened among the young people, and they are preparing for that service in far greater numbers than in the past. This is probably one of the most encouraging facts in the church today. The church in these countries is prepared to contribute toward the new building which is needed but cannot hope to finance it entirely.

The Woman's Division has helped in three new projects in Argentina during this quadrennium. The Lena Knapp Hostel for girls in the primary and secondary schools in Rosario de Tala was founded in 1953. Here girls who otherwise would not have been able to do so, have an opportunity to continue their studies. The hostel has had a very definite influence on their lives and on the homes from which they came. One of our Woman's Division missionaries started a social work program in connection with one of the small churches in Rosario. With the help of the church, volunteers carry on this program which has been extended to include a daily kindergarten, a mothers' club, a recreational program for youth, and a clinic attended by a Protestant doctor and a nurse who also visits in the homes. In 1954 we contributed toward the purchase of a beautiful camp site with installations for fifty people. The camp is located at Oliveiros, about fifty miles north of the city of Rosario and will be administered by the conference Board of Christian Education. Already it has been used by many groups, including the students of Colegio Americano who have the use of it two week-ends each month during the school year.

Colegio Americano itself is in the midst of a large building program. For many years the present plant has been inadequate and a part of the 1951 Week of Prayer offering was designated for a new building. Difficulties and complications of one kind and another have delayed the actual construction until 1955, but it is now going ahead and it is expected that the classroom unit will be ready for use in February of 1956. The school celebrated its 80th anniversary in 1955 with special programs as well as with the excitement of building.

Brazil

The institutions in Brazil which have been related to the Woman's Division of Christian Service through the years have been both a contributing factor to the rapid growth of the church as well as a recipient of benefits from a stronger church. The growth of these schools in number of students and teachers as well as in financial responsibility is shown in the graph below which is based on statistics from the years 1950 and 1955.

Asked for reports of significant happenings during the past year, the schools have written of various activities. Colegio Centenario reports an increased interest in church activities with an average attendance of about 50 boarding students at the Sunday evening service. This interest was climaxed by a group of twelve making their profession of faith and becoming members of The Methodist Church.

Colegio Americano in Porto Alegre had for the first time an all-day retreat for the entire faculty of the school before beginning classes in March. The day was divided into periods of worship in the chapel, talks on methods, business and group discussions, with a delicious lunch during the fellowship period. At the end of the day the teachers were enthusiastic and asked that the experience be repeated at the beginning of the second semester. The Department of Education of the State has organized a new system of normal instruction. Colegio Americano and the State College for Teachers were chosen as the experimental schools in which to try out the system. This is giving a new opportunity to make a contribution to education in Rio Grande do Sul. The year 1955 marks the 70th anniversary of Colegio Americano. As a part of the special program for the observance on October 19, Miss Mary Sue Brown, former director of the school and builder of its very fine buildings, is to be the special guest of the alumni and ex-students.

From Colegio Bennett in Rio de Janeiro comes the report of various festivals and two rummage sales which were held for the purpose of raising money for their chapel, the church, and other institutions. Monthly recitals of the symphonic choir of the School of Sacred Music and their visit to cities in the state of São Paulo were greatly appreciated by the large audiences who heard them sing. A federal inspector of education who was present at a parent-teacher meeting where extra-curricular activities were being discussed was so much impressed with the meeting that he has suggested that all schools in Brazil should do something similar.

Colegio Piracicabano reports two periods of special religious emphasis during recent months. The fact that 50 per cent of the dormitory students are Protestant girls is reflected in the total life and program of the boarding department.

The official inauguration of the Allie Cobb Buyers building at the People's Central Institute in Rio de Janeiro in December of 1954, a generous gift from the Point Four program of equipment for carpentry, ceramics, and other crafts, and the purchase of a new camp site not too far from the city, are indicative of the progress and planning which are characteristic of that institution in its expanding educational and social program.

The Methodist Institute for the training of Christian workers reports that its twenty-three graduates are all serving the church in one capacity or another. At the General Conference in July, two of them were consecrated as the first deaconesses of the Brazilian Methodist Church. During the summer vacation period (December, 1954-February, 1955) the students worked under the Board of Christian Education directing Vacation Bible Schools and carrying on visitation evangelism. Both the Institute and the Board of Education felt that the project was most worthwhile and plans are being made for a continuation of this program.

Miss Verda Farrar, director of Colegio Isabela Hendrix, thinks that a new day has really dawned for women in Brazil. For many years there have been outstanding women in most of the professions, but today more than just a few are continuing their preparation for active service in the professional, economic, and political world. It has become almost a mass movement. If this is true, then our schools will have an even more important role in the future than in the past.

Chile

The Woman's Division entered into cooperation with the work in Chile in 1951 when Miss Semeramis Kutz was sent to "El Vergel" in southern Chile, the farm under the Division of World Missions, to take charge of the Vocational School for Girls. The twenty-five girls who live in the school come from varying rural backgrounds and with different levels of previous schooling. They study Spanish, arithmetic, a bit of history and geography, but at present dressmaking is the most important course, for it will provide the graduates with a means of earning a living. The girls also learn to weave and some of the graduates work in the weavers' cooperative which has been organized. Probably of more importance than anything learned in the regular classes is the experience of planning and preparing the menus for the group, working in the vegetable and flower gardens, caring for the chickens, and keeping the house neat and clean. A student council formed in 1954 gives helpful experience in organization—working in teams is the best way to teach cooperation. Morning prayers and evening devotions are not only times of spiritual growth but also periods to help prepare the girls to become leaders in their local churches.

For the past two or three years the Woman's Division has been requested to send two missionaries for work among the Indians in southern Chile. In September, 1955, a young lady trained in home economics extension work and with some experience in this field went to Chile for this purpose. It is hoped that a fellow worker, either a primary-school supervisor or a religious-education supervisor, may be sent to work with her within the next few months.

Cuba

The work of the Woman's Division in Cuba is more varied than that in other parts of the Latin-American field. It includes rural evangelistic and social work, cooperation in a rural institute, work among university students in an interdenominational seminary, and three primary and secondary schools for boarding and day students.

The growth during the past four years of the three schools—Buenavista in Havana, Irene Toland in Matanzas, and Eliza Bowman in Cienfuegos is shown in the graph below.

Typical of the work being carried on by the missionaries in rural Cuba is the report from Baguanos. This work was begun in new territory in 1941. At that time there was not a member of The Methodist Church in all this area and only one member of any church. The public school in the town of 2,000 had two teachers who taught only in the morning. There was no church of any kind—and no organization of “uplift”—unless one might count the social club, though some would deem that a negative influence.

Against that background this report is from a work thirteen and a half years old. There are now four organized churches with a total membership of 233, and ten organized Sunday schools with 710 enrolled and an average attendance of 456. Vacation church schools enroll 405 children. A day school provides primary education for 74 students and employs six teachers. There are in all 14 preaching places, 131 subscribers to the Methodist church paper, and 225 copies of The Upper Room are used regularly. “Friendship House” serves as a home for one missionary, one volunteer contract worker, one West Indian cook and housekeeper who is also the youth counselor and Sunday-school superintendent of the West Indian congregation, one graduate of the Agriculture School who does extension work in the mission (literacy work, homemakers’ clubs, mission Sunday schools), two full-time teachers in the school. The young man who teaches in the school also has his meals there. A playground is open every afternoon for the children of the town. From time to time such events as basketball and volleyball games, ping-pong tournaments, physical-education programs with field day are sponsored by the house.

Similar reports might be written to describe the work at Santa Rosa where a school was started in 1954 and work campers made a playground park in front of the church, or at Omaja where more than thirty young people have been helped to get scholarships to prepare for teaching, preaching, office work, and other vocations, or at Herradura where a new mission has recently been started which reflects the interest and the need in many parts of rural Cuba.

At the Agricultural School at Preston the students themselves are building a chapel which will make their devotional periods more worshipful. The new student hostel in Havana has been completed and is already in use. New buildings at the seminary in Matanzas will be dedicated in October, 1955. In each case, these buildings represent the cooperative efforts of various groups—Cubans, two Divisions of the Methodist Board of Missions, and, in the case of the seminary, of other denominational groups.

Mexico

To visit the Protestant work in Mexico is to become aware of the differences in the development of the church due to political, cultural, and geographical background. The Methodist work which in its beginnings was very similar to that in other parts of Latin America took on a different character when, because of government legislation, missionaries were withdrawn from educational work and active cooperation in church leadership. Fine Mexican leaders have grown up and in some places a strong local church has developed, but many times buildings have been allowed to deteriorate and the programs of institutions are not as effective as they might be if they could count on greater financial assistance and the help of missionary personnel.

In spite of this, six of the schools formerly related to the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society or the Woman's Missionary Council are still carrying on a worthwhile educational program. Colegio Palmore in Chihuahua is at present adding to its building to make possible the inclusion of the regular government secondary school course as well as the commercial course which has been a part of the curriculum. Colegio MacDonell in Durango reports a total enrollment of 255 students, 26 of whom are boarders. Colegio Juarez in Guanajuato was reopened this quadrennium and the building has been repaired. A new activity this year has been the opening of a recreation room for students and young people of the church. Sixty boarding students of Colegio Hijas de Allende in Pachuca are enjoying the dormitory which was built with funds from the 1951 Week of Prayer Offering. High-school students, under the direction of two primary teachers, hold free literacy classes for children and adults. Sara Alarcon in Mexico City, formerly known as the Industrial School, has a well-equipped building and an alert student body. About 100 of the students live next door in the Laura Temple Hostel. A new building now under construction will provide room for eighty more girls and will increase the effectiveness of the work of the hostel. The Normal School in Puebla was also reopened this quadrennium and is providing an excellent opportunity to prepare Protestant teachers for the other schools. One hundred thirty nine of the students live next door where three Woman's Division missionaries share the responsibility of making a home for them.

In 1954 the Deaconess Training School in Mexico City experimented with a brief course of six months for lay workers in the church. The course met with such approval that twelve students enrolled for the 1955 course. Twelve students also are enrolled in the regular course this year, making the total student body larger than in previous years. A part of this is undoubtedly due to the organization in 1952 of pre-deaconess clubs in the dormitory departments of the Methodist schools for the purpose of interesting girls in this work and of strengthening the spiritual life of the student bodies.

The Social Center in Monterrey reports that 560 children and young people are enrolled in regular activities of the Center besides those who participate in the gymnasium activities where on winter nights there are over a hundred boys in attendance. Several thousand children hear the character-building stories told each week in the public schools by staff members of the Center. Centro MacDonell in Durango has a similar program but on a smaller scale. Centro Roberts in Saltillo has been completely repaired and remodeled this year. Centro Christiano in Chihuahua, among other activities, conducts a well-organized commercial school for about 400 young people.

The new additions to Sanatorio Palmore in Chihuahua, completed in 1954, increased its capacity to 103 beds and made possible alterations in the maternity unit, the entrance lobby, enlarged office, a mortuary chapel, two adequate classrooms, and a well-equipped demonstration room. The latter changes have all been made in 1955 and have provided better accommodations for the school of nursing as well as for the hospital. There are at present forty-eight students enrolled in the school—all that can be taken care of with the present quarters.

Miss Mamie Baird writes that the Cortazar Rural Project has extended its work to four more villages in 1955, making a total of eight which are visited more or less regularly. One of the triumphs of the year was the opening of the chapel in Suchitlan. This was built several years ago but could not be used until official permission was given by the government. Miss Baird herself was honored by Agricultural Missions, Inc., who presented her with an award for distinguished service in rural missions.

Peru

For many years the Woman's Division has cooperated in only two projects in Peru—Lima High School, officially known as Colegio Maria Alvarado, for which we have the major responsibility, and Callao High School, where we have one missionary heading up the girls' department. This quadrennium the work has been extended to include a social center with various week-day activities as well as a Sunday school and preaching service on Sunday in a new section of the city called La Florida. The report from Lima High School states that among the students there is a growing interest in social service because of the La Florida project.

Lima High students won a city-wide scholastic contest in 1954 and in 1955 the Girls' Athletic Contest in the city. The long-range plan started in 1950 to reduce enrollment in order to make education and evangelization more individual, to increase the number of Protestant students in order to change the general atmosphere, and to employ more Protestant teachers is beginning to show results. In 1955 the Director of Secondary Education sent out a "final" decree on the matter of the religious program of public and private schools, stating that the official course must be taught by a Roman Catholic and any school not complying with this law would have its license revoked. Committees of pastors, school heads, and missionaries are studying the problem to see what course of action should be recommended for our Methodist schools. In the meantime they continue their regular classes of Christian education as in the past.

Uruguay

Until 1953 The Methodist Church in Uruguay and Argentina together formed the River Plate Annual Conference. Then because political differences between the two countries made travel from one to the other practically impossible, it was deemed wise to set up a provisional annual conference in Uruguay. There are at present thirteen pastors and two deaconesses giving full time to the church—an increase of five over the number four years ago! The Woman's Division contributes directly to the work of the church by giving a small sum annually toward the social-evangelistic work being carried on by the Division of World Missions in Friendship House in the meat-packing house district of Montevideo and to a day nursery in Malvin, another area of underprivileged homes.

Crandon Institute in Montevideo continues to be one of the outstanding schools of the Woman's Division. The testimony of a young non-Christian teacher who did substitute teaching for a few days is characteristic of the way many feel about the school. He said, "Here there is something different from the other schools. Here you practice what you preach!" Seeking the source of the practicing as well as the preaching, he is now a probationary member of the Central Methodist Church. In 1954 Crandon celebrated the 75th anniversary of its founding—75 years of preaching and practicing!

The number of new buildings constructed during the past four years make an imposing list. They are tangible results of the Fruits of Discipleship of Woman's Societies of Christian Service in the United States, but they also represent thoughtful stewardship on the part of Christian leaders in the countries where they have been built. Of much greater importance are the intangibles which are making large numbers of people more receptive to the gospel message. Trees have been planted which are bearing fruit, but there are many places where the seed has not yet been sown!

Southeast Asia and China

By MISS CLARA M. FRENCH, Executive Secretary

THIS IS SOUTHEAST ASIA

SOUTHEAST ASIA is like an arc stretching from Burma on the west to the Philippine Islands on the east. Methodists have work in Burma, Malaya, Indonesia, Sarawak, and the Philippines. North and east of this are Hong Kong and Taiwan, included in this area. In addition to this is a spiritual ministry to Chinese on the mainland and scattered throughout the world.

Southeast Asia is a region of the world where dynamic changes are taking place. What happens there becomes important, not only to the one-hundred seventy-five million inhabitants but also to the rest of the world. It is important because of the economic and political influence. It is also important because it is the thoroughfare for communications between Europe and the Far East. Whether by sea or air, world travelers stop at Manila, Singapore, Bangkok, or Rangoon. If one is to understand these lands, he must go farther than their large cities; he must travel the highways of Malaya, the rivers of Sarawak, or sit down to talk in homes of the Philippines.

Economically, Southeast Asia is of great importance. Five-sixths of the world's rubber and more than half of its tin are produced here. The largest supply of quinine and kapok are found here, two-thirds of the coconut products and one-third of the world's palm oil come from this area. The most important item, however, is rice, the staple food for Asia. Sixty per cent of all rice that enters international trade comes from this area.

The majority of the population are farmers who produce most of what they eat. Compared to western standards the economic living is low, but in thinking of their neighbors in India and China they are in a favorable position. This is due largely to the fact that land is sufficient in a great part of this area. The two overpopulated places are Java in Indonesia and Luzon in the Philippines.

The majority of these countries of Southeast Asia lie within the tropics. The climate is hot and humid. Westerners making their homes in these areas find the year-round heat drains on one's health and energy. Rainfall is plentiful. In some of the lowlands missionaries refer to a dry season with showers daily and to a wet season with downpours constantly.

One of the most outstanding characteristics of this part of the world is the diversity of its people. In Burma, Malaya, Sarawak, and Indonesia where the Methodists have work, churches represent two, three, and four distinct cultures. This offers problems not only in language but in the cultural differences and rights of citizens. An example of this is Malaya. Both Chinese and Indians who are immigrant peoples have large communities within Malaya and because of their keen sense of business and self-sufficiency, there has been strife between the cultures. The government has given preference to the native Malay people, and this, too, has caused unrest—a fertile land for the spread of communism. No country in this area has escaped strong Communist movements. In some countries more than in others this has had its influence on the churches.

Like other areas of the world, nationalism is an increasingly strong force. One can well understand this when he realizes that Burma, Indonesia, and the Philippines all have gained their independence within the past ten years and that Malaya and Sarawak still have colonial governments.

Tied into this spirit of nationalism are the ancient religions of Asia. Burma perhaps more than any other land has linked a devout spirit of Buddhism with a national loyalty. Thus to be a Christian in Burma one sacrifices the reputation of being a "first-class citizen" because he is not a Buddhist.

In Malaya three-sevenths of the people are of the Muslim faith. In accordance with the treaty made by Britain, Malaya is recognized as an Islamic state. Because of this, it is understood that any attempt to convert Muslim Malays would be a breach of this treaty. As a result, Christian churches are largely from the immigrant peoples—the Chinese and the Indians.

Among people of the Animist religion such as the Ibans of Sarawak and the Bataks of Indonesia, resistance to the Christian faith is not so great. Here are found the more primitive cultures where there is great need for literacy work and training in health and family living.

The Philippines offers a very different problem in religion. Of all countries of Southeast Asia, it has the largest Christian population which is predominantly Roman Catholic. Recent statistics give 16,000,000 Roman Catholics and 1,500,000 Independent Catholics. The Methodist Church, which is the largest single denomination, has 130,000 members. It is very much of a minority group in a land where Catholic influence is greatly felt in government. One of the most serious problems today is an attempt to legislate in the Philippines whereby religion must be taught within the public schools.

To this point the report has dealt with background material as preparation for the Southeast Asia study. When one becomes familiar with geography, history, and something of the life of the people, the program of the church takes on meaning. One understands why The Methodist Church in Burma, set in the heart of Buddhism, is limited to only 3,000 members and why the Chinese Christians on the island of Sumatra surrounded by a strong Communist movement are filled with fear and suspicion. Only as we understand these forces can we fully realize the problems and the needs of our Christian churches in these lands.

Missionary Personnel

(Right to left) Dr. Gumersindo Garcia, administrator of Mary Johnston Hospital, Manila, P. I.; Mrs. Ascuncion Perez, chairman of the hospital board; Dr. Harold Brewster, medical secretary, Board of Missions

This area more than any other has a very unique missionary family. Not so many years ago China was the largest field in our Methodist Church. When the door was closed and missionaries gradually and reluctantly passed through the bamboo curtain leaving behind a loyal and closely knit group of Christian co-workers, it was difficult to see the future. In 1953 Miss Louise Robinson reported 68 China missionaries assigned to other foreign fields and 14 assigned to work in the United States. Since then others have been transferred to service of the church. It would seem to be sound mission policy that missionaries be so equipped that they can move from one country to another, and it has been a source of great satisfaction to know the contribution that China missionaries have made in these other fields of work.

China missionaries who have retired without making this transfer are a part of this area and a large segment of the total retired family. There is no other one group of people in America with a greater concern for China and Christians on the mainland than retired missionaries scattered throughout the United States. They are praying and believing that God in His power is working in that land today. Added to that group of retired missionaries from China are also those from the Philippines, Burma, Malaya, and Sumatra in Indonesia. Never a week passes but what there come to the office letters from retired missionaries. They express live interest in the ongoing work and deep gratitude for their continued relationship with the Board.

And like the unusually large group of retired missionaries this area has a proportionately large group of missionaries on leave of absence. This happens in any land where there has been war and the group has returned home. Of necessity a break has come with the field of their choice and preparation. Needs in the home attract them, and in a number of cases family responsibility has made demands on these single women.

One cannot know the work on the field without becoming aware of the splendid group of special-term missionaries. They have gone into difficult areas sharing their special training and ability. Often it has meant taking over some of the most responsible work on the field.

The 23 per cent listed as active missionaries are those on whom we must depend largely for carrying the long-term program. One of their initial tasks is to study the language. This varies from country to country and even within the country. In Burma missionaries are working in the Burmese and Chinese languages. In the Philippines a large share of the Methodist work is in the Ilocano area even though the national language is Tagalog. In the Philippines and Malaya more than in other countries of Southeast Asia are many positions where missionaries can manage with the English language.

Rev. and Mrs. T. R. Doraisamy and family. Mr. Doraisamy is a district superintendent and secretary of Christian Education in Malaya. Mrs. Doraisamy is a teacher in one of our large schools for girls in Singapore

Area Leadership

Perhaps the greatest contribution missionaries have made is the training and encouraging of Asian leaders to carry the responsibility of the church. Within Southeast Asia only two of the larger institutions under the Woman's Division are still administered by missionaries, and it is hoped that these two positions may soon be filled by capable Asian women. It is an accepted mission philosophy that western missionaries are on the field to help in building a Christian church "of the people, by the people and for the people."

In the Philippines is Mrs. José L. Valencia, president of the National Woman's Society of Christian Service. She not only heads the work of this Society; she trains women in the local churches and conference organizations. Institutes for ministers' wives are held within each conference and directed by Mrs. Valencia.

The directors of our two largest educational institutions in the Philippines have been in America within the past year. Miss Prudencia Fabro, director of Harris Memorial School, has been observing institutions and churches in this land.

While in America Miss Fabro was presented with an honorary degree of Doctor of Literature from Texas Wesleyan College in Fort Worth, Texas. Miss Librada Javalera, director of the School of Nursing of Mary Johnston Hospital, is now studying in the University of Southern California. In an educational report made by Dr. Myron Wicke, he states, "Mary Johnston School of Nursing is outstanding in its standards and would compare well with any school of nursing in this land."

Among Crusade students in the past year have been four women from the Philippines. Two are continuing their study in America. Two who have returned home are in positions of real leadership. Miss Virginia Maniti, who took her M.A. at Drew University, is now working in the field of literature both for The Methodist Church and for the Federation. Miss Avenida José who studied at Searritt, is developing a student center in Tuguegarao, Cagayan. Throughout these islands are found former Crusade Scholars who are leaders in the church and are making a strong Christian witness.

Another Filipino student in America during this past year but not under the Crusade Program was Miss Josefina Cabanilla. As Miss Fannie Dewar has returned for furlough, Miss Cabanilla has stepped in as director of the Methodist Mobile Clinic for Northern Luzon. It is one of the most outstanding pieces of work The Methodist Church has in that land.

Only since World War II has the Woman's Division worked in Sarawak on the island of Borneo. Leadership among women has come from mainland China and Malaya. A very great loss to the church in Sarawak, and especially to the work of women, has been the death of Miss Louise Hwang. Miss Hwang, formerly of Foochow, China, was a Crusade Scholar who studied in Searritt College. From America she went to Sarawak and for five years had worked among women and children, organizing Woman's Societies and conducting institutes. Her last major work before her death was to get literature and program material into the hands of the women in the conference.

Among other Chinese who moved from the mainland to Sarawak was Miss Ivy Chou who had been principal of Hwa Nan High School in Foochow. During the first years after the war there was felt a great need for training church workers, both men and women. Thus, Ivy Chou was sent to America for further study that she might prepare herself for this work. After receiving her doctorate in the field of Christian education from Union Seminary and Columbia, she flew back to Sarawak in time to help conduct a special training conference for pastors. Letters tell of her outstanding ability and splendid spirit in the launching of this new training program.

In Malaya the high note of the Chinese Annual Conference was the ordination of Miss Lim Swee Beng. In a recent letter they write: "Miss Lim was a supply pastor for fifteen years in Malaya. She had taken the required examination and knocked at the door asking that it be opened for women to be ordained. After she stood up and gave her testimony her own district superintendent made the motion and it was passed unanimously that she be ordained the next morning with two young men." To honor this occasion a scholarship fund (named for Mrs. Raymond L. Archer, wife of Bishop Archer) was started to be used for the training of future workers. More than a thousand dollars was given to the fund during the conference session.

Two Crusade scholars returned to Malaya within the past year. Miss Rosemary Moreira who took her work in Syracuse University has returned to help in the administration and teaching of English Literature in the Methodist Girls High School in Ipoh, Malaya. This school has 1,256 students in the morning school and 768 in the afternoon school. The other Crusade Scholar from Malaya is Miss Yong Lo Lian who now has gone to Sarawak to help with the medical work among the Dyak people.

Literature

Literature in Southeast Asia has been of increasing interest. Most of this work has been carried on interdenominationally. In the Philippines Miss Doris Hess, trained in journalism, has served both in Methodist work and the work of the Federation. In a letter from Miss Elizabeth Johannaber, writing of her work in the Woman's Society of Christian Service, she says: "During the Christmas holidays we had a literature workshop for national and conference officers of the Woman's Society. The purpose of this conference was to study the needs of literature for the next two years in the program of the Woman's Society. It was a thrilling experience to see the way those women divided into small workshop groups, tackled the problems of literature in the various areas—missionary education, workshop, program building, Society organization. When you stop to think we are still in our first quadrennium of a national organization, it is almost breathtaking the strides they have taken. Much credit is due to the consecrated efforts of the president, Mrs. José L. Valencia. Perhaps some of you will have the pleasure of meeting her when she accompanies the Bishop to the States for the next General Conference."

In Malaya Miss Mary Liu and Miss Mabel Nowlin are carrying on literature work under the Malayan Christian Council. In a recent letter Miss Nowlin writes: "Our curriculum committee are now working on the last Junior Workbook and Teacher's Book of our Sunday-school lessons. I expect to see them through the press before I leave on furlough."

Regional Meetings

Within the past year interest has been focused on Southeast Asia as a meeting ground for the Asian-African Conference in Bandung. A similar interest has been shown in our churches of this area. In November 1954 was held the Home and Family Life Conference in Manila. Forty-eight delegates representing nine overseas countries were present. The result was a deepening of Christian fellowship among leaders in Asia, a new sense of mission and responsibility for families and homes. Following the Manila Conference was an Audio-Visual Conference held in Bangkok. Here, too, were Christian leaders representing a wide range of churches and nations of Southeast Asia feeling the need for united study and fellowship. In February of 1956 a similar conference for Theological Education is being planned.

Interchange of Personnel

Another trend and related to the regional conferences has been the desire to send workers from one area to another. In some cases it has been the sending of a missionary by the local churches. In Sarawak a Chinese boy from the church in Malaya is working among the Dyaks. In Okinawa a Filipino woman is supported by the Woman's Society of Christian Service, the Methodist Youth Fellowship, and the Children's Missionary Fund in the Philippines. In other cases it is a desire to send exchange workers between lands. It is the increasing need for Christians to come together in work and understanding.

Secretarial Visit

Since writing the last report, the secretary has made a three-months' trip to Southeast Asia visiting the seven nations of this area where the Methodists have work. Every missionary home of the Woman's Division and a large majority of the homes of the Division of World Missions were visited. The fellowship with these people and with Asian friends in their homes and church groups was perhaps the very highest point of the trip. It was with some reluctance that the secretary pulled herself away from that part of the world and returned to her duties in America.

The main purpose of the visit was to learn from those on the field their needs, their hopes, and their aspirations, and to keep this bond of understanding which had been so well carried on in the past. The meeting of church leaders for informal discussion was exceedingly helpful. Pastors, district superintendents, Bible women, teachers, medical leaders, and all workers connected with the church joined together in explaining the present program, the problems which they faced, and what they hoped to accomplish in the future. The lack of leaders was one of the greatest problems. In cases where the leaders were so few and the workers were spread so thin, the struggle to keep the work going took away the needed fellowship and understanding. In every land without exception one was impressed with the courage and devotion of Christians who through war and continuing unrest are giving of their lives for the building of the kingdom.

Hong Kong and Taiwan

The Woman's Division continues to call for missionaries to Hong Kong and Taiwan. There is need for commissioned missionaries who will study the language. The only missionary of the Woman's Division in Hong Kong today is due to retire next year. She not only has cared for the office in ministry to Chinese people in Hong Kong and those passing through, she has made her home a meeting house for groups of Chinese people. Chung Chi College to which the Woman's Division contributes through the United Board is needing well-trained college teachers. One of the best examples of partners in service has been the Wesley Village built on the steep hillside of Victoria Peak in Hong Kong. The city government gave the land and helped in the plumbing. The English Methodists and the Methodist Committee for Overseas Relief through the American Methodists gave the funds for the buildings, and members of the Methodist churches in Hong Kong have supervised and planned the village. Christian services are being held two evenings a week in this community and classes for children are conducted mornings.

The most recent word from Taiwan has been the organization of the National Woman's Society of Christian Service. This organization took place at a three-day summer conference held at Wesley Grove for the women from the three Methodist centers in Taipei, Taichung, and Tainan. Miss Florence C. Y. Chen was elected president, and it was arranged that a preparatory committee draw up a constitution and by-laws to present to the women at a later meeting. Mrs. Ralph Ward, wife of Bishop Ward, who for many years served under the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society in China, has been a strong leader among the women in Taiwan and has helped greatly in promoting their organization.

Indonesia

The two Woman's Division missionaries are ministering both to the Chinese and Bataks in the churches and teaching in the English School and Bible School. In addition to this Miss Gusta Robinett has been caring for the treasurer's work and other business for both divisions of the Board of Missions since the departure of the senior missionary, Rev. Armin Klaus.

Plans are being made for a Chinese high school so that children of Christian families can attend a school in their own language other than one strongly influenced by communism. For Batak work the Woman's Division has taken on the support of one Bible woman who will work in connection with the Rev. and Mrs. Ragnar Alm, the only full-time Methodist missionaries to the Batak people.

Burma

Methodists in Burma report increasing cooperation with other churches under the Burma Christian Council. At the annual meeting of the Council, Premier U Nu with several cabinet ministers were guests. Later the Premier was host to a group of Catholic and Protestant leaders. Here he presented them with mementoes from the Holy Land which he had secured on his recent trip abroad.

Under the International Missionary Council a study on Buddhism is being set up in Rangoon. Both Asian and Western leaders of the church are participating. This is one of several centers around the world that are being started. In a report from Dr. Glora Wysner whose responsibility it has been to encourage these centers, she states five main purposes for this study:

1. To acquaint the Church with the fundamental structure of Buddhist, Hindu and Islamic thought, both historic and present-day.
2. To assist the Church in relating its message to the daily lives of the non-Christian.
3. To provide a place where Christian and non-Christian can confront each other.
4. To find ways of helping the Church become rooted in the culture of the area in which it lives and works.
5. To produce literature designed to present Christianity in such a way that it will appeal to the modern mind of the non-Christian.

Sarawak

Sarawak, lying on the northwest corner of the island of Borneo, is one of the most fertile fields for evangelism in Methodist responsibility. Christianity first came to the land through Chinese colonies from Fukien. Today there are more than 13,000 church members with churches and schools largely self-supporting. The Woman's Division cares for the work of women in these churches, conducts clinics in country areas, and provides for a hostel for girls attending the co-educational high school under the Division of World Missions.

The natives of the land are Dyaks who were formerly headhunters. Scattered along the Rajang River are longhouses where thirteen to thirty families live under one roof. The story today reminds one of the early Church where they came for instruction, baptism, and church membership. Two Chinese nurses, one from Malaya and one formerly from China, have gone to these people to help in the medical program which is being developed. It is the hope that this work can be a joint project of the two Divisions. The Division of World Missions has three missionary couples giving full-time service. The Woman's Division missionaries have contributed only as workers from Sibu could spare time to make occasional trips to that part of the country. The need is for full-time missionaries who will study the language and carry through a well-planned program in education, healing, and evangelism.

Malaya

Within The Methodist Church in Malaya there has developed a strong emphasis on education. The Woman's Division is responsible for 13 secondary schools enrolling 13,355 students. The total number under The Methodist Church in Malaya is 42,505 students in 62 schools. More missionaries in Malaya today are working in schools than in any other one field. In every school are classes for religious knowledge where the door is wide open for well-trained teachers to make a clear Christian witness to the youth of the land. One of the greatest handicaps has been an increased expansion greater than the availability of Christian teachers.

Within the past year three of these schools have been engaged in extensive building programs to meet the pressing need for space. Much of the money for these buildings has been raised locally. The Woman's Division has shared in furnishing these new buildings.

A deep concern for evangelism is evident in Malaya. In a recent letter came this news: "Our Methodist Churches have recently tried a new venture in evangelism in the Serangoon Gardens new housing area of the city. They borrowed the audio-visual van of the Malayan Christian Council, which is equipped with loud-speaker for holding outdoor meetings. There was singing, preaching, and a good religious film. The preaching was in two dialects of Chinese, English, and Malay. A thousand people attended, of whom the sixty who signed cards as wanting to study the Christian message further are now under instruction at Peya Lebar Methodist Church, about a mile from the area. There are more opportunities of this kind than our churches have leaders enough to use."

Philippines

The work of the Woman's Division in the Philippines can be divided into two main services: large city projects located in Manila, the center of Methodist work, and a well-connected chain of smaller projects with deaconesses in churches and kindergartens, dormitories in student centers, and training programs scattered throughout the island of Luzon.

Mary Johnston Hospital started by the women has become a joint project with the Division of World Missions since the war. Dr. Gumersindo Garcia, administrator, reports for the year 1954 a total admission of in-patients 4,537 and of out-patients 39,845. The School of Nursing of Mary Johnston Hospital has raised its program to collegiate level graduating its nurses with a B.S. degree in nursing. This work is done in cooperation with the Philippine Christian College, another united project of the Woman's Division.

No picture for Harris Memorial School could better describe the work than Miss Prudencia Fabro's report to the annual conference this year. In part she says, "Deaconess candidates used to be sought. Now they present themselves. Young people present themselves because the churches have challenged them with the need. Numbers have been limited because of building facilities and funds to carry on. It is the hope that more space can be made available and the program can be expanded. Within this plan we are looking forward to greater opportunities in serving young women not alone from the Philippines but from other parts of Asia."

The Methodist Social Center started in 1950 is one of the outstanding social projects in the Philippines. Among some of the many activities are a dormitory for girls, two kindergartens, a library and milk feeding station for children, scouting, a program of recreation, and medical, dental, and mental hygiene clinics. The most recent development has been a social welfare department under the direction of a young social case worker recently returned from America.

On the southern island of Mindanao in the Philippines the Mindanao Provisional Annual Conference was organized in April, 1955. This is an attempt of The Methodist Church to care for Methodists and other needy people who have been reallocated by the government in distribution of land. Many Methodists have moved to this island. The Division of World Missions has one missionary family in residence. Two nurses from Mary Johnston Hospital are working there. In a letter from Mrs. José L. Valencia she writes: "Our trip to Mindanao for two months was one of the most thrilling experiences afforded me. That island is not only rich in soil for agriculture and machineries but, more so, rich soil for the gospel message. Both the Bishop and I toured many of the remote and interior places. We used almost all kinds of transportation—sled, cart, jeepneys, buses with hard seats, motor boats, and plenty on foot. We waded through mud, through rice, corn, and abaca plantations so as to get into those remote places. The church there is growing tremendously. Pioneer pastors, deaconesses, and lay people are working together in spite of hardships and much sacrifice. Our people have great faith. They have built churches with light materials, not very substantial but with substantial faith. There are buildings for institutes and conferences, hectares of coffee, corn, rice, and vegetables, poultry and piggery. But the highlight which I observed was not the buildings and plantations of crops, it was the consecrated lives of those young people who have offered their unselfish services to help in the propagation of the truth."

Southeast Asia is a strategic area. The opportunity for the Christian Church is today. What happens today will largely determine the future.

DISCUSSION TOPICS FOR CIRCLE PROGRAMS

1. THE DEVELOPMENT OF CHRISTIAN LEADERSHIP.

This is emphasized in most of the reports by both the home and foreign executive secretaries. See roster, pages 20-31, for the names of nationals who are serving as presidents and administrators of institutions. Note the Crusade Scholars who have returned to fill places of leadership.

2. WORLD FEDERATION OF METHODIST WOMEN.

Several of the reports mention the progress of the Woman's Societies.

3. BACKGROUND FOR 1956 STUDY COURSES.

All the reports of the Department of Work in Home Fields contain resource material for Mission Field U.S.A., and Miss Clara French in her report purposely provided background material for the study on Southeast Asia.

4. MISSIONARY PERSONNEL NEEDS.

Present all charts and figures given concerning deaconesses and missionaries, and state the case for more workers.

Christian Social Relations and Local Church Activities

"As you bear rich fruit and prove yourselves my disciples, my Father is glorified."¹ (John 15:8) "By this everyone will recognize that you are my disciples, if you have love one for another."¹ (John 16:35) Thus does Moffatt translate Jesus' words about the most important fruit of discipleship—Christlike love. Today the witness of every Christian is world-wide in influence. Recognition of this responsibility results in a new sense of community that knows no barriers, a new sense of unity that rejoices in ecumenical fellowship, and a new sense of opportunity for the expression of Christlike love through channels of witnessing as reported in these pages. Thus the church not only proclaims but lives the gospel.

Report of the Secretaries

MISS THELMA STEVENS, Executive Secretary

MISS MARGARET R. BENDER, MISS ETHEL L. WATKINS, Associate Secretaries

THE most important event in the Christian calendar during the year 1954-55 was the Second Assembly of The World Council of Churches, convened in Evanston, Illinois, August 15-31, 1954. From this Assembly a message of hope went forth to Christians in every land, and with it the call to a new commitment to work and pray for a world at peace—peace based on "freedom, justice, truth and love." The heart of this challenge and commitment was expressed in the following words from the Report:

"This troubled world, disfigured and distorted as it is, is still God's world. He rules and overrules its tangled history. In praying 'Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven,' we commit ourselves to seek earthly justice, freedom, and peace for all men. Here as everywhere, Christ is our hope. Our confidence lies not in our own reason or strength, but in the power that comes from God. Impelled by this faith, all our actions will be but humble, grateful, and obedient acknowledgment that He has redeemed the world. The fruit of our efforts rests in His hands. We can therefore live and work as those who know that God reigns, undaunted by all the arrogant pretensions of evil, ready to face situations that seem hopeless and yet to act in them as men whose hope is indestructible."

It is in the spirit of these words of hope that this brief report of the Department of Christian Social Relations and Local Church Activities for 1954-55 is written. This is the third year of the quadrennium—a year when the eyes of a troubled world are focused on our own nation with hope and fear intermingled. The cry from the heart of man through the centuries for "the things that belong unto peace" has become a great chorus of a billion voices from every land and tongue! Many millions of Christians throughout the world have felt the impact of this upsurge of the world's people toward freedom, peace, and a measure of life's good resources for the body and spirit as well. The Gospel of Hope—as found in the message of Jesus Christ for a distraught age—has become increasingly the leaven from which a new world order can grow. This leaven is at work not only through the organized channels of the Christian Church, but through the avenues of national governments and the United Nations, where the “abundant life for all” and the “gospel of peace” have become fixed stars on the horizon toward which the world moves with increased momentum, as “walls of hostility” between East and West seem to be shaking at their very foundations.

“Let us hold true to what we have attained” (Philippians 3:16)

Methodist women have not been idle! The quadrennial emphasis on the practical implications of “the things that belong unto peace” has given direction to thousands of Woman's Societies and Wesleyan Service Guilds as they have worked to translate the department's program into practical study and action, in an effort “to motivate men to work for the good life for all the peoples of the world.” This sense of direction has pointed up with new urgency the importance of moving forward at greater speed without retrenchment—to keep faith with the gospel we profess to believe! This guiding principle is crystal clear, not only in the realm of international affairs but also in every local church and community across this nation. In the words of the World Council at Evanston: “. . . An international order conformed to the will of God and established in His peace can be achieved only through the reconciliation which Christ makes possible. Only thus will those transformed attitudes and standards, agreements and practices which alone will insure lasting peace become possible. . . . Christians can never accept . . . a state of perpetual tension leading to inevitable war . . . because God wills peace. . . . The hatreds, jealousies, and suspicions with which the world has always been afflicted are deepened by racial prejudices and fears, rooted in the sinful human heart and entrenched in law and custom. . . . When we are given Christian insight, the whole pattern of racial discrimination is seen as an unutterable offense against God, to be endured no longer, so that the very stones cry out. In such moments we understand more fully the meaning of the Gospel, and the duty of both church and Christian.”

As Methodist women at work through all the channels at our disposal, we are called “to challenge the conscience of society” and move forward in the spirit of reconciliation seeking to make our church and community conform to the spirit and teachings of Jesus Christ through whom all the peoples of the world can become one without need for the artificial barriers erected by man in so many lands including our own nation. “Our urgent and immediate task is simply to be the creative instrument of our God of love.”

“You shall be my witnesses—in Jerusalem and in all Judea and Samaria and to the end of the earth” (Acts 2:8)

The issues of peace as seen by Christians in this crucial year of history are rooted and grounded in “Jerusalem” (our local communities!), in “Judea and Samaria” (our nation!), and “the end of the earth” (our neighbors in other lands!). It is these issues that have been the focus of our program this year. These issues have given great significance to such events and dates as the Bandung Conference of Asia and Africa, the Summit Conference of the heads of government from the “Big Four” nations, the Atoms for Peace Conference, and the directive from the U. S. Supreme Court for desegregation of schools in the U. S. A. Local Community

U. S. A. is inevitably linked with Local Community Everywhere in the World. That makes community issues world issues, and world issues community issues—and thereby gives a sense of direction to our practical task as Christians. The following emphases have been major concerns of Methodist women during the past year.

A. "Peace" and the United Nations

1. The following action was adopted in January, 1955:

"a. The Woman's Division believes that the work done during the past year by the United Nations has meant great progress toward the goal of a world where men can live together in peace as good neighbors and enjoy better standards of life in larger freedom. We have been especially heartened by the Ninth General Assembly's unanimous approval of the Atoms for Peace Plan and the leadership given by our own nation. We rejoice also in the establishment of an international finance corporation as an aid to the underdeveloped countries. We urge our government to further the work of the U. N. by doing everything possible to speed the establishment of these two new agencies of the U. N., and by making available promptly and with no crippling limitations our share of the budget for the U. N. and its Specialized Agencies and substantial contributions to the budgets of the U. N. High Commissioner for Refugees, U. N. Technical Assistance, and the UNICEF.

"b. Methodist women are urged to work with increased confidence and urgency in their communities and among their representatives in government to secure a better understanding of the work of the United Nations and of the part the United States needs to play in it, including especially its relations to our foreign policy.

"c. Attention is called to plans that are under way for observing the tenth anniversary of the organization of U. N. One phase of this planning calls for the selection of one hundred communities as pilot projects in the new campaign for community understanding of the U. N. This special program is to be launched in April 1955. It is recommended that Methodist women cooperate in this effort to reach every individual in these communities with information about the U. N. This cooperation can be made through the local Council of Church Women or, in cases where United Church Women are not represented, directly through the local committee for the project."

2. Ten Years of U. N.

"Ours is a brave world inhabited by courageous people. The indomitable desire of these courageous people for progress has resulted in the achievement of things which once seemed beyond human reach." These words were spoken by the representative of a small country, Burma, but they represented the Spirit of San Francisco, 1955. Again and again as the delegates from the sixty nations spoke, they voiced sentiments like these of Israel's Abba Eban: "The hour which we commemorate today is rich with enduring memories. It marks a crossroad in the journey of a generation that has passed through much affliction on its road to liberty and survival. . . . Let us see the labors of this first decade as a mere prelude to the decisive journey which will only have reached its destination when all peoples shall dwell each 'under his vine and under his fig tree and none shall make them afraid.'"

It was as if, coming together now after ten years, these sixty nations looked about them with new insight and realized suddenly that they really had gotten through this crucial first ten years without major disaster, and were now free to take their eyes from the immediate points of conflict and tension and to appraise the whole situation. The first observation that they made was that obviously this new world enterprise was no failure. "We should not be commemorating but performing an inquest if it were a failure," India's Krishna Menon said simply, paraphrasing in his inimitable way what nearly every delegate said.

Because of the stock-taking which went on as they prepared to go to San Francisco, there was a relaxing of tense attitudes and a new spirit of working together in ways that would have seemed impossible ten years ago. For the 16,000 people who attended the Festival of Faith the Sunday preceding the meetings, the demonstration of this new ability to do things together came in a very moving form. The precommemorative assembly event on the Sunday preceding the meeting began with a responsive reading arranged by Howard Thurman from Christian, Moslem, Jewish, Confucian, and Buddhist sources. Later in the service U.N. delegates, churchmen of the San Francisco area, and the public stood together and prayed silently, each in his own language and form. Bahai, Buddhist, Christian-Protestant, Christian-Orthodox, Hindu, Jewish, and Moslem prayers were on the program.

Something of this spirit seemed to carry over to the U.N. meetings on the following days. Never has the moment of prayer and meditation with which each General Assembly is opened seemed more full of meaning and hope. This hope was expressed, too, in the speeches of the representatives of the sixty nations and finally summed up by one of Europe's most realistic statesmen, Belgium's Paul-Henri Spaak, as, at the closing session, he made his special address as the president of the First Assembly.

The second assessment of the value of the United Nations came in the recognition of how important the work of such agencies as the Specialized Agencies, the Economic and Social Council, and the Trusteeship Council had been. Here there was almost universal agreement and a new sense that this was the fundamental first step in making a world really at peace. Especially in regard to trusteeship there was evident a new meeting of minds between colonial peoples and those that have been colonial powers. This was noteworthy enough to find its way into Paul-Henri Spaak's final summary. Remembering the frequency with which the Bandung Conference had come into the speeches of the past few days, he said of this new better understanding and greater agreement between the peoples of Asia, the peoples of Africa, and the peoples of Europe that he thought perhaps, indeed he hoped, that it was the result of the Bandung Conference.

The signposts emerged very clearly. One of these was best expressed by Menon: "We would like to see the spreading of the roots of this organization in the next ten years. We would like to see it grow in the hearts and minds of the people in our villages, our towns and cities, our factories and workshops, so that, whatever its structure may be, it will be an organization of the people—for there it is that the strength of the world lies and there is every reason to hold to faith. Faith is not a matter of taking a chance with destiny. Faith is the realization of truth, however dim."

B. Immigration Policies and Refugees

1. Consistent action of the Woman's Division through all channels has called upon the Congress of this nation to revise the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952 so as to remove all discriminatory provisions based on race, national origin, religion, or sex, and to place emphasis on the contributions immigrants will continue to make to our nation. This will remain a part of the task of Methodist women until the goal has been achieved. (See pamphlet, "I Lift My Lamp," Literature Headquarters, 20 cents.)

2. The limited provisions of the Refugee Relief Act of 1953 are far from being realized because of the many administrative blocks growing out of immigration laws and practices of our nation. The securing, before the expiration of the Act, December 31, 1956, of sponsors for 5,000 refugee families to be brought to this country under Methodist auspices has been a major concern of Methodist women at work with other groups in their local churches. This process will need new momentum in the year ahead if our goal is to be reached!

C. Technical Assistance

"Today it is time for a new advance! Technical Assistance is far from being the only instrument by which economic and social progress in the less developed parts of the world can be effected. It is, however, and will remain, a vital element in any international program for cooperation in human progress and for the preservation of peace." This statement by Dag Hammarskjöld points up the importance of the effort of Methodist women who seek consistently to urge our government to give increasing support to the U. N. Technical Assistance program, even as the "unilateral" technical assistance program of the United States continues with added momentum. Christians must not lose sight of the fact that the basic groundwork for technical assistance was laid through a century of Christian missions throughout the world. This initial program pushed forward with the limited resources of funds for Christian missions may well have served as "pilot" projects in so many places, making possible the larger programs of U. N. and its member nations. (See A Christian's Primer of Technical Assistance and Land Reform. Literature Headquarters—35 cents.)

D. Our Children

1. The shortage of teachers and school facilities has reached a stage requiring emergency measures by national and state governments. Federal aid to education has become an imperative, but yet Congress has failed to act to meet the need. A study of educational needs has been under way and conferences have been held in most of the states during the spring of 1955, in preparation for a White House Conference scheduled for November, 1955. The fact-finding process and results from these conferences should be of great importance to Methodist women at work in their communities. Five years have gone by since the White House Conference on Children and Youth and it is time to take stock of progress made in meeting the needs of children and youth.

2. On May 17, 1954, the Supreme Court issued its momentous and historic decision that segregation in public schools was a violation of the Constitution of the United States. On May 13, 1955, the statement came forth giving direction for the implementation of this decision, with the constant reminder that all laws—local, state, and federal—requiring or permitting racial segregation in public schools are null and void. The responsibility for carrying out this decision was placed squarely on local school authorities, with the request that "the courts will require . . . a prompt and reasonable start toward full compliance with our May 17, 1954, ruling."

Considerable progress has been made during the first year since the Supreme Court decision, but the speed with which desegregation and full integration are achieved will depend upon the skilled leadership in the community and the courage of dedicated Christians who practice the "brotherhood" principles they profess to believe! The task lies before us.

E. Our Churches

The Woman's Division adopted in January, 1952, the Charter of Racial Policies and recommended it to jurisdictions and conferences for ratification and further implementation in practice. As of June 15, 1955, there were seventy-eight conferences that had ratified the Charter. Great progress has been made. Christian women in many places have shown great courage and determination to practice the principles they profess, sometimes in the face of great pressures and persecution from individuals and groups obsessed with fear. In a very few instances some Methodist women have fallen prey to such pressures from the community, and as a result they have attempted to block progress toward the full recognition and acceptance of all of God's children into the life of the church and community. Our task in the months ahead is clear!

The General Conference of The Methodist Church will convene in 1956 and doubtless it will look again at the structure and program of The Methodist Church in terms of its racial policies. The following words of Dr. Harold Bosley (pp. 96-97, What Did the World Council Say to You?) are timely for Methodists who seek to be Christian in a day like this: "I have never tried to hide the fact that in my judgment the plan to divide the church into geographical jurisdictions was bad enough, but the proposal to divide it along racial lines was a sin and a shame. Yet given the situation which prevailed . . . in 1939, I would have voted for the union of the church with even a racial jurisdiction if there were no other road to union. I would have voted for it under those conditions for exactly the same reason I would vote for a splint to hold a broken bone in proper place for healing. That does not mean I am in favor of wearing a splint any longer than is necessary—let alone the rest of my life! . . . Until we do cast it off (the "splint"), we will hobble along on crutches instead of rising up with wings as eagles."

It is well also to remember that the "splint" has long existed in conference and local churches, until the scars have become deep callouses that will be removed only as enough Christians of all races determine to remove them!

F. Civil Rights and Civil Liberties

Although the 84th Congress established some rules and provided some safeguards from abuses in Congressional investigation procedures, there is still grave danger from the fear and confusion in our national life. We are still menaced with undocumented catchall terms like "un-American" and "Communist," and subjected to a "trial by the press" method of indictment and smearing good names. Therefore the program of the department continues to give emphasis to the need for enactment of important legislation to protect our civil rights and civil liberties (See Activities for 1954). The publication by the Woman's Division of The Five Year Supplement to States' Laws on Race and Color is another indication of the urgency of the need for action in this realm of our citizenship responsibility.

G. The Alcohol Problem

There is urgent need for constant awareness of the alcohol problem in every community. No real concern for family life or the needs of children and youth can fail to take account of this issue. (The Handbook for workers on this issue is available at the Board of Temperance, 100 Maryland Ave., N.E., Washington, D. C.—50 cents.) Methodist women are seeking to work through all the channels of the local church on this issue, including the Woman's Society and Wesleyan Service Guild. The Voice and Clipsheet of the Board of Temperance provide guidance for local groups regularly. (See also "Activities" leaflets of the Department of Christian Social Relations and Local Church Activities, and continue to use the filmstrip "Not My Community"—$5.00, Department CSR&LCA, 150 Fifth Avenue, New York, jointly planned and produced with the Board of Temperance.)

"Workmen That Needeth Not to Be Ashamed"

Methodist women have moved forward toward larger concerns for "the things that belong unto peace." The results cannot be measured in terms of accomplishments recorded—but like the mustard seed and the leaven for bread, the unending line of dedicated individuals and groups makes its power and influence felt on "large" and "small" issues and in far and near places! Only a few illustrations as gleaned from reports can be recorded here, but these bring new cause for hope.

Question: Can you note any similarity to your own activity in the following? Is this yours?

a. "That They May Have Life"

"X's Woman's Society of Christian Service had a very interesting study of the book, Christianity and Wealth. Our pastor was ill and to keep the church open on Sunday evenings we had our study class at that time and invited our husbands. We always had a section of the book and then had two or more interesting talks or papers on men of wealth who used their money for the benefit of man—and we discussed 'The Golden Rule in Business' as illustrated by the J. C. Penney stores.

"We had the oil superintendent here talk on John D. Rockefeller, as this is an oil town. During the study we passed out the leaflet, 'The Social Creed of The Methodist Church.' The oil company recently gave their retired workers hospital insurance which means so much to them. We have three oil companies here in town and two of them voted down the pension plan several years ago. There is a great contrast between those two and the security the retired men of the other company feel with their comfortable homes, their pensions, and now their hospital insurance. We cannot take credit for any of this but we have sowed the Social Creed lavishly. The housing is so much better than it used to be. The oil shack is almost a thing of the past. People are better housed and the old clutter is gone."

b. "Jesus' Teachings Concerning Women"

"'Jesus' Teachings Concerning Women' was our study. The discussion wandered to our community problems. As our valley is a haven for retired people and we had found in our visiting many lonely elderly people with no social life at all, an idea was born. We have a warm, dry, ground-floor, centrally located church; why couldn't we sponsor a club for our senior citizens, where they could meet old friends and make new ones? Our teacher, who is our Christian Social Relations secretary, moved at our executive board meeting to sponsor such a club for all elderly people in our community, regardless of race, color, or creed. It was recommended at the general meeting and passed. This all sounds so simple—suggest a thing, and vote to do it. Lots of meetings and leg work followed. We met with the welfare representatives, executive secretary for the Governor on social problems for the aging, the chairman of the recreation committee, news editors, and others. All were most cooperative with advice. The next thing was for us to ACT.

"A notice was put in the local paper telling of the first meeting on December 17. We made a party of it, using the Christmas theme and served cake and coffee. Thirty-one came, and officers and a board were elected and the name was chosen. Plans were made for future meetings.

"The Woman's Society helped buy some songbooks, and the first half-hour of their meeting is group singing. We furnish the leader and the pianist. Sometimes we have an amateur show which the members put on themselves. We were amazed to find how willing they were to perform, and such talent! Some sing, tell jokes, play the accordin, the violin, and harmonica. The community talent has helped too. We've had wonderful slide pictures, movies, magic shows, flower arrangements, pruning demonstration, and the children's clown club performed. They have displayed their own talents, i.e., a beautiful art display, wood carvings, lamp shade making, rug making, and others. They play games, such as chinese checkers, dominoes, canasta, lotto, and scrabble."

c. Comic Books

"There has been a drive to take the indecent comic books off the newsstands and out of the hands of young people and children. Several of the churches have been active in this. The local dealers have notified the publishers that they do not want to handle such books. The public library is offering new books for ten of the undesirable ones."

d. Unity in Diversity

"In a community-wide effort to promote genuine international understanding on a local level, the people of the area held their third largest U.N. observance last October 23 and 24, opening the doors of their homes and churches to foreign students and listening to 'the other fellow's point of view' on world affairs. Nearly 300 persons crowded into the church to hear six of the guests talk of their homelands. The speeches were received warmly by the audience, predominantly of the Methodist, A. M. E. Zion, Presbyterian, and Episcopal Churches and the Jewish Center, sponsors of the U. N. weekend. 'This is wonderful,' one new resident of the area commented. 'We never had anything like this back in the city.' 'It's good for people to get to know each other better, setting aside the artificial barriers of race, nation, and religion.'

e. Family Life Conference

"Following the lead of Dr. and Mrs. Harry Overstreet and their 'shared speech' at the Family Life Conference at Cleveland this fall, my husband, a minister, and I worked out a shared talk based on material gleaned from this tremendous conference. This shared report has met with outstanding interest. Naturally we are more than pleased because we have never done anything of this nature before. Worked out originally for our local Woman's Society of Christian Service annual banquet (150 women), we were able to get valuable information on the Family Life Conference across to them in this unique report.

f. City Park Cleanup

"An organization was formed, made up of representatives from Methodist, Lutheran, Presbyterian, Baptist, Catholic, Christian, and Church of Christ churches. Since this organization was set up, known as the Park Board Association, we have asked the various civic clubs to join with us in cleaning and maintaining Legion Park. A collection was taken at the general meeting of the Woman's Society of Christian Service on October 4 for a project resulting from the study just completed, Man and God in the City. It was decided to use this money for expenses in starting the cleaning of the park. The amount was $28.58. I prepared a copy of all that had been done toward this project for the president of the Guild of the Presbyterian Church. She presented it to that group and they gave $26.00. A similar report was prepared for the ladies of the Lutheran and Baptist churches, but as yet their amounts have not been reported."

g. UNICEF

"The secretary of Christian Social Relations and Local Church Activities secured the film, 'The Children,' from U. N. Headquarters and showed it to the Ministerial Alliance and the P.T.A. She then asked their cooperation in sponsoring and promoting a UNICEF Trick or Treat on Halloween. The local newspaper gave the project a great deal of publicity and as a result, about 200 children showed up to participate. They were divided into five groups, and the town divided into five sections. All the churches of the town had been briefed on the procedure and each church took one of the five groups. The children were given pasteboard milk cartons as coin containers and their collections amounted to $146.50. The Chamber of Commerce gave $5.00. The town's two milk companies gave the milk cartons. The churches were Methodist, Baptist, Christian, Presbyterian, and Catholic. Following each drive, which started by the ringing of church bells at 6:00 P.M., each church gave a party for the group over which it had supervision. The community cooperation was simply marvelous and everybody had a wonderful time."

h. Refugees

"Our displaced couple from Germany arrived April 9. We rented an apartment and furnished it completely, including layette for twins. Also gave them $100 in cash on their arrival. Helped them with the twins since their arrival home."

i. U.N. Community Program

"We asked the mayor if he would cooperate with us in planning and promoting a community-wide program. We did all the secretarial work and made arrangements for the committee meeting. Twenty-five letters were sent to the presidents of all civic organizations and churches, asking them to attend the organizational meeting. Fifteen people came. There were many discouraging comments and uneasy moments, but a few of us were determined that we should have some type of observance. After much consideration, it was agreed to have the panel discussion presented by members of the high school's Modern Problems class.

"Only one lady in attendance offered to give assistance in promoting this project. She was appointed chairman of publicity and was a great help. Three organizations agreed later to prepare window displays. The P.E.O. arranged articles from foreign countries which proved to be the talk of the town for several days. The V.F.W. Auxiliary collected dolls dressed in native costumes from different countries. The Wesleyan Service Guild prepared a display showing our dependence on international trade, with ribbons showing from what parts of the world the materials came to make our refrigerators. A fourth display was similarly arranged showing foods from different countries. Posters were shown in the store windows and the local newspaper was used to publicize the meeting. It was also announced at the half of the last football game preceding the meeting.

"The school band presented a half-hour concert preceding the panel discussion. Some 110 people were there, 35 or 40 being students who participated. After January 1, we hope to contact various organizations urging them to have U.N. programs, thereby laying a groundwork for a much more elaborate community observance next fall."

"We Must Go Forward Together"

The key words that have motivated many peoples of the world during the past year are implied in substance in Evanston's uncompromising assertion—"We must go forward together." This is true in the realm of the world's political and economic spheres of life as well as in the growing spirit of "oneness" among Christians throughout the world. This has been illustrated not only by the pronouncements and recommendations found in the Evanston Report of the World Council of Churches, but also in the climate of the Tenth Anniversary Assembly of United Nations in San Francisco in June.

This world-wide ground swell demanding an end to wars, even "cold wars," was a moving factor in the climate of the Summit Conference and in the hope generated by the Atoms for Peace meeting in Geneva. The time is ripe for committing ourselves, our churches, our nations, and our world to a program for peace with justice that knows no retrenchment, calls no halts, and accepts nothing less as its goal than a "new earth"—"the new Jerusalem" with the full knowledge that "God's dwelling place is with men," and that by His "light will the nations walk."

"With this assurance we can face the powers of evil and the threat of death with good courage. Delivered from fear we are made free to love. Far beyond the judgment of men and the judgment of history lies the judgment of the King who died for all men and who will judge us according to what we have done to the least of His brethren. Thus our Christian hope directs us toward our neighbor. It constrains us to pray daily 'Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven,' and to act as we pray in every area of life." (From the Evanston Report)

In this spirit of hope and assurance, the Department of Christian Social Relations and Local Church Activities must continue to project its program. As we go into the last year of the quadrennium, it is well to take stock of our achievements and responsibilities with special reference to the current quadrennial program based on "The Things That Belong Unto Peace." It is increasingly clear that we must find additional ways to create "understanding" of peoples and issues that are basic to a peaceful world. A sense of "world community" must become stronger in the United States. One way to increase understanding of world community is to have more opportunities for personal contact with persons of other lands. This contact must have a mutual basis of understanding if the best results are to be achieved. Therefore, the immediate and long-range emphasis of the department's program should be clearly and specifically related to resources and channels that build world understanding. The following resources and channels can become basic factors in achieving such a goal.

1. The National Seminar of 1955 with its program theme, "A Christian Woman Understanding Her World" can set in motion ideas and motivation that may well serve as the foundation for the next quadrennial emphasis.

2. "Teams" from overseas can be used by the department in a series of special workshops and seminars on "understanding" our world and our relation to its struggle for peace.

3. This increased emphasis on world understanding as a basic foundation for lasting peace must be an inseparable, integrated part of the studies for 1955-56—"To Combine Our Efforts for Lasting Peace" and "The Christian Mission in a Revolutionary World."

As the department looks at these urgent needs in the years ahead, possibly one of its major tasks will be to provide more creative leadership for local women as they seek to work more effectively through local church channels, "in a new effort to seek together where we live to be His witnesses and servants" among our neighbors.

As we direct skills, resources, and prayer toward the strengthening of our local church, we must ever seek that larger unity of Christian fellowship that knows no barriers of race or nation or creed—where we are all one in Christ Jesus, and "go forward together" to build "a new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness" and lasting peace.

Report of Treasurer

Comparisons for the Years Ending May 31, 1955 and 1954

By HENRIETTA GIBSON, Treasurer

	1955	1954	Increase or Decrease*
Income on Appropriations.....	$8,075,305.01	$7,763,487.49	$311,817.52
Expenditures on Appropriations..	6,560,810.18	6,256,289.09	304,521.09
Excess Income over Expenditures	$1,514,494.83	$1,507,198.40	$ 7,296.43

Increase in income on appropriations for the year ending May 31, 1955, is $311,817.52 over income on appropriations for the year ending May 31, 1954, or a 4.016 per cent increase.

Expenditures on appropriations for the year ending May 31, 1955, including transfers to reserves for unexpended appropriations of amounts which cannot be disbursed currently because of prevailing conditions amounted to $6,560,810.18. Details of these expenditures and transfers are given on pages 167-169 of this ANNUAL REPORT.

The excess of income over expenditures for the year ending May 31, 1955, due to an increase in giving on appropriations for the year just closed and for previous years, has made it possible to vote from surplus a distribution of $600,000.00 to the three departments of the Woman's Division to be used for nonrecurring projects:

- $309,924 for the Department of Work in Foreign Fields
- 286,428 for the Department of Work in Home Fields
- 3,648 for the Department of Christian Social Relations and Local Church Activities

An additional $100,000.00 was added to the Revolving Fund, making that total $600,000.00.

In addition to the income on appropriations in the General Fund, the Woman's Division received during the year, June 1, 1954-May 31, 1955, in its Designated Temporary Funds, $1,886,632.26, which includes the following amounts and which are given with the comparative amounts for the preceding year:

	1955	1954
From Bequests	$ 186,477.80	$ 94,394.71
From Cash for Supply Work.....	852,452.24	787,316.32
From Week of Prayer and Self-Denial Gifts.....	483,023.67	463,571.03
From Supplementary and Miscellaneous Gifts...	358,863.43	383,397.50
From Assembly Offering.....	5,815.12	96,761.55
	$1,886,632.26	$1,825,441.11

Total income for the year was, therefore, $9,961,937.27. Last year total income was $9,588,928.60.

Endowment Fund principal increased $40,247.42 during the year. Annuity agreements issued during the year amounted to $141,236.91. The treasurer of the Woman's Home Missionary Society transferred to the Woman's Division during the year annuity agreements totaling $372,605.82. Pension Funds increased $2,043,865.74 which included transfers from other Woman's Division funds, $1,766,238.38 from the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society and $50,000.00 from the Woman's Home Missionary Society.

NOTES TO THE COMPARATIVE BALANCE SHEET

1. The Division has followed the practice of accounting for funds, assets, and liabilities transferred by various uniting organizations, in accordance with the plan of unification of The Methodist Church, only when such funds and assets have been received by the Division. The permanent, restricted and other funds and assets transferred by various uniting organizations to the Woman's Division on or before May 31, 1955 and 1954, respectively, have been included in the accompanying balance sheet on the basis of amounts and provisions approved by the Executive Committee of the Division. The date or time of the transfer of the remaining assets and liabilities has not been definitely determined.

Assets, liabilities and income and expenses of certain operating units of the Woman's Division of Christian Service such as Literature Headquarters and THE METHODIST WOMAN are not included in the accompanying financial statements. Such units operate independently and maintain separate records.

Furniture and fixtures at headquarters and the Division's substantial interests in certain Christian centers, missions, hospitals, and schools in the United States and foreign countries are included in the accompanying balance sheet at a nominal amount.

2. Investments in bonds, stocks, and mortgages are included in the accompanying balance sheet at amounts which represent cost or amounts assigned thereto by the Division at the time of acquisition. The Division, in accordance with its regular practice, does not accrue interest on its investments nor amortize premiums on bonds purchased. The market value of mortgages is not readily determinable.

3. Article IV, Section 45 of the Insurance Law of the State of New York requires the segregation of Annuity Funds assets as separate and distinct from all other funds, which assets are not applicable to the payment of debts other than annuity benefits, together with the maintenance of prescribed minimum reserves for annuity contracts. On the basis of a calculation of the reserve as of December 31, 1954, submitted to the New York State Department of Insurance, the assets of the Annuity Fund appear to be adequate to meet the reserve requirement.

4. During the current fiscal year, the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of The Methodist Episcopal Church assigned to the Division life annuity insurance policies covering certain participants in that organization's pension plan. Such life annuity policies are stated at the cost thereof, $1,623,619.26.

5. The costs of construction of the Bataan Memorial Methodist Hospital in Albuquerque, New Mexico, title to which is held by the Division, was financed in part by a \$400,000 loan from an insurance company, for which loan the property was pledged as security. The loan, which is to be amortized at the annual rate of \$80,000 with interest at $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent on the unpaid balance thereof, had been reduced to \$120,000 at May 31, 1955.

6. Based upon actuarial studies made to determine the liability existing at May 31, 1953, under the various pension funds of the Division, an annual contribution of $352,197 is necessary over a period of twenty-five years, together with the income from investments, to meet such unfunded liability and current service pension requirements. At May 31, 1955, there was a deficiency of approximately $107,000 in contributions required to that date for Home pensions and an excess of approximately $154,000 of contributions required over the estimated liability for Foreign pensions.

Section of Education and Cultivation

An evidence of discipleship is to be found in the reports which describe the variety of work accomplished by the Section. The fruits of such labors bear witness to the devotion and interest of Woman's Society of Christian Service members everywhere. As these reports are studied let every woman know that she had a part in producing these fruits of discipleship.

MRS. JOHN M. PEARSON, Chairman

Organization and Promotion

By MISS DORCAS HALL, Executive Secretary

MRS. MAUDE WHITE HARDIE, Assistant to Executive Secretary

THROUGH this quadrennium, the thought of Discipleship, "unuttered or expressed," has been at the heart of emphases and plans. What has been accomplished has been the result of service performed in this spirit by thousands of women across the land. We rejoice that this year has seen 116,935 new members joining this fellowship.

Reporting—A more accurate, though still incomplete, picture of the statistical status and emerging trends comes through the reports received quarterly from conferences. The supplying free to societies of the Record and Report Book has meant not only better response but has encouraged the use of the regular blanks by small Societies and the abandoning of the outmoded modified plan reports. This year, 13 total conferences and 288 districts have had reports from every Society for one or more quarters. This is an improvement over every former year.

Theological Schools—Presenting the course on the Work of the Woman's Society of Christian Service in the Local Church, as part of a regular course at Methodist Theological Schools, proves increasingly worth while. With a view to having closer cooperation as to the presentation, a conference was held in January, 1955, with the deans of the Schools of Theology.

In the summer of 1954 a five-weeks' course was given at the Candler School of Theology, Emory University. At Perkins School of Theology, Southern Methodist University, the course was given for supply pastors. At Garrett Biblical Institute, Drew, Westminster, and Boston University, the presentation was made through lectures given in the course on Church Administration by a representative of the Woman's Division. At Iliff School of Theology, a week was given to the course. The University of Southern California presented the course in the spring of 1955, as did Duke and Gammon.

Promotional Plans—THE METHODIST WOMAN has continued to print names of 100-per-cent Societies—those where every woman member of the church is a member of the Woman's Society of Christian Service, and names of 100-per-cent organized districts—those where every church has a Society or Guild or member or members. Two hundred and ninety-five such Societies and thirty such districts have been newly reported this year. The number of "unorganized" churches has been further reduced to 5,966.

The Widening Fellowship Treasure Chests will continue to be in use till the end of the quadrennium. They have proved a worth-while means of education, even if there had been no financial return. The latter, however, has been highly encouraging: various districts and conferences report meeting their pledges, due to the receipts from the Treasure Chests, while many other conferences have gone over their pledges. The emphasis on people as the treasures chiefly to be sought has continued.

A check-sheet has been printed in THE METHODIST WOMAN, leaving leeway for local conferences or Societies to adapt to their own needs.

A poster was sent free to every Society, entitled The Purpose of the Woman's Society of Christian Service. This is the third in a series of free posters through the quadrennium.

The leaflet on Circles has been revised and in part rewritten. A Widening Way and Oh Yes You Can! have been brought up to date and reprinted. The leaflet on Organized Circuits has been discontinued. My Date Book was prepared again.

Four pages entitled "Chart and Compass" have been given to organization and promotion each month in THE METHODIST WOMAN, and one additional general page in the interests of education and cultivation has been prepared.

Leadership Training has been given special attention this year. At the meeting of the Standing Committee on Organization in September, 1954, Dr. Kenneth Benne of the Human Relations Center, Boston University, interpreted new techniques and led the group in methods of role playing, directed toward increasing attendance at district and subdistrict meetings.

Excerpts from "How to Be a Modern Leader" and from "Leadership Digest" have been shared through quarterly letters to jurisdiction and conference secretaries of Promotion: information on "Meeting Techniques" also has been shared.

Fifteenth Anniversary—Plans for the observance of the Fifteenth Anniversary were purposely held back until after June 1, 1955, with the suggestion that the observance be completed by December 31, 1955. However, letters from local women, through their district and conference secretaries of Promotion, were invited, on the topic "What Membership in the Woman's Society of Christian Service Means to Me." Each conference was asked to share an outstanding letter with the Division office of Education and Cultivation. From the 140 received, one from each jurisdiction was used in THE METHODIST WOMAN, and quotations from many more.

The letters bore witness to help received spiritually, intellectually, socially. It is a joyous witness: an indication of the sharing process inherent in the maturing of the Fruits of Discipleship.

Quadrennial Goals—The theme and emphases have been related to the work through program planning. The goal "A World Church" became more familiar and meaningful when the World Council of Churches met in Evanston, Illinois, in August, 1954. The goal of Widening Fellowship reveals new aspects on all levels, local to world wide, as the women try in all sincerity to make it real.

Wesleyan Service Guild

By LILLIAN A. JOHNSON, Secretary

IN THE Wesleyan Service Guild we are interested in facts and figures, especially when they indicate a growing organization. But we realize that the fruits of discipleship cannot be measured by numbers, by growth in membership, or even increased giving. We do not know how great the fruits are; we shall never be able to weigh them or count them. But it is as we find out what happens to people—to members of the Wesleyan Service Guild and to those whose lives they touch in some way—that we can see some of the fruits of our discipleship.

Spiritual Life—Requests for information on prayer groups, retreats, and spiritual life workshops show that Guild members are doing more thinking about spiritual enrichment. The Guild Standing Committee has recommended prayer breakfasts and prayer vigils as a means of deepening spiritual life. It also recommended that lists of devotional books be included on the Guild pages of THE METHODIST WOMAN and that some plan for circulating books be arranged in each local Guild. There has been a noted upsurge in participation in the World Day of Prayer, the Week of Prayer and Self-Denial, and in use of the Spiritual Life packets.

Missionary Education and Service—From the Guild annual report we take these figures:

Guild members in study classes.....	28,165
Attendance at Guild Weekends.....	13,054
Attendance at Schools of Missions.....	1,013
Number study classes receiving jurisdiction credit.....	1,432

Attendance at Guild Weekends and Schools of Missions leads to wider use of the approved study materials. Emphasis in Guild leadership training on "creative study" and on resource materials in this field has also helped. We are encouraged by the noted interest in study on the part of Guild members. As an added incentive to study, the Guild Standing Committee recommended that the Guilds be urged to take part in the church-wide study; and that contacts with Methodist employed women in other countries be increased.

Missionary Personnel—The insert in the leaflet World Needs, entitled "A Call to Service to Guild Members" is meeting a need that the Guild has felt for some time. Often the more mature woman feels left out of the recruitment program, but now, with this special call to Guild members, Guild women should feel that they are really being sought. At the commissioning service in January, the following Guild members were commissioned: Miss Helen Loomis, Miss Barbara E. Campbell, and Miss Margaret Hight.

Several other women who have made the decision and are now studying to become deaconesses or missionaries have been called to the attention of the Guild office. Although Guild officers keep in touch with these people, their names will not be publicized until they are commissioned or until they actually go to work for the Woman's Division. Upon recommendation of the Committee on Missionary Education, names of Guild members doing special types of service on short-term bases appear in THE METHODIST WOMAN when they are sent to the Guild office. In the "Suggestions for Weekends" for this year, it was urged that there be a special presentation of Personnel needs at each Weekend.

Christian Social Relations and Local Church Activities—Since heretofore there has been no provision for a Guild organization in district, conference and jurisdiction, it was not possible to take action as Guild conferences on the Charter of Racial Policies. Guilds are being asked to consider the charter as soon as they have their representative voting body established. In the meantime they are to study the charter further, with the understanding that the conference Guild will take action as soon as possible. Already two conferences where a voting body previously had been set up have reported that they have ratified the charter. Names of conferences doing this are being published in THE METHODIST WOMAN.

The Christian Social Relations recommendations of the Guild Standing Committee, which were sent to all units in the local church, are as follows:

1. That Guilds be asked to write immediately regarding refugee immigration, urging speedy implementation of the Refugee Relief Act of 1953.
2. That Guilds be urged to send to Congressmen copies of the immigration leaflet I Lift My Lamp.
3. That Guilds continue promotion of UNICEF, urging that a $12,000,000 budget for UNICEF be approved.
4. That the Charter of Racial Policies of the Woman's Division of Christian Service be presented to conference Guilds for ratification; that names of conferences ratifying it appear in THE METHODIST WOMAN.
5. That the Charter of Racial Policies be implemented through leadership training in overlapping jurisdictions and conferences.
6. That the Guilds study the "Right-to-Work" laws.
7. That the Guilds endorse Bill S728, which would give the Children's Bureau better status and would set up a Federal Advisory Committee on Juvenile Delinquency.
8. That the Guilds be alerted to (1) use on December 10 (Human Rights Day) the pageant in THE METHODIST WOMAN (July-August issue) and (2) in October study the implementation of the Supreme Court Decision as it affects housing.

Recommendation number five was brought up particularly because some of the conferences of Central Jurisdiction cover such wide territories that it is impossible for a Guild conference secretary to do adequate leadership training. The hope is that the overlapping conferences will confer with each other as to the best means of training their leaders. First steps have been taken in this program.

Work in defense areas and among women on the move is a deep concern of the Guild. Recently it was decided to send a letter from the Guild office to all new units, welcoming them and asking for a description of the composition of their membership, and for a statement as to how they became organized as a Guild. The first reply came from a unit whose members are mostly servicemen's wives, mainly teachers and office workers. They felt that they would have a difficult time in their group because its membership was so transient. Since this is one of the important areas for Guild work, our officers are trained to try to keep these units from becoming discouraged in these rapidly changing situations.

Leadership Training—During the year coaching conferences were held in order to train conference and district secretaries and local unit presidents. They started in the summer with the conference secretaries in clinics in jurisdiction Schools of Missions. The conference secretaries then had coaching conferences with district secretaries, who in turn held them with their unit presidents. The "Coaching Conference Suggestions" recommended two sessions of three hours each, which would mean an afternoon and evening meeting, or two evening meetings for each group. On the evaluation card there were only one or two lines for comments, but many secretaries were so enthusiastic about their results that they sent accompanying letters. Since the reports were so encouraging, it was decided at the standing committee meeting to continue the idea for another year. The total attendance at the coaching conference was 7,750.

By-laws Revision—The by-laws revision of the Wesleyan Service Guild went into effect in January, after much study by the committees of the Woman's Division of Christian Service and then by the Woman's Division itself.

Many Guilds, especially units of the local church, got to work right away to conform to the new by-laws. Most of the reactions to them have been favorable. The chief problem seems to be in conference and jurisdiction, for there a voting body must be set up, and the added expense is sometimes considered a problem.

Chairmen of lines of work are suggested in the by-laws, but they are not compulsory. Here again it is considered that these additional people will be a great benefit in the mission of the Guild. In fact, it has already proved to be the case. The jurisdiction, conference, and district secretaries have to be the presiding officers and the secretaries of Promotion in the Guild, in addition to serving on several time-consuming committees. They cannot be expected to carry on a program in lines of work in addition. It is true that the secretary of the line of work in the Woman's Society of Christian Service has responsibility for the Guild, but whereas formerly her contact was with an already overburdened Guild secretary, she now has a Guild person, responsible for that line of work, with whom to confer. This will make a closer tie between the Woman's Society and the Guild.

Status of Women—The Committee on Status of Women of the Wesleyan Service Guild has had three emphases this year: first, to urge further promotion of the Service Activity Cards; second, to urge study of the poster on the position of women in The Methodist Church and preparation of similar ones for local churches; third, to suggest careful study of articles in THE METHODIST WOMAN, WORLD OUTLOOK, and other periodicals regarding full membership in Annual Conferences for ordained women, and to send in any recommendations they may have to General Conference. Guilds have already sent to General Conference many memorials favoring "full clergy rights" for women.

Trends—The Guild secretary of the Woman's Division of Christian Service has had the opportunity to visit many conference and district Guild meetings and a few local meetings during the year, including a Guild meeting and officers' meeting in Puerto Rico, the first jurisdiction Guild Weekend of North Central Jurisdiction, and four jurisdiction clinics at jurisdiction Schools of Missions. Two rather extensive itineraries were made, one in the "far reaches" of North Central Jurisdiction and one covering parts of Southeastern and Central Jurisdictions not visited before. The trends that were noted in particular were—increasing understanding between the Woman's Society of Christian Service and the Wesleyan Service Guild as to function and program areas, concern within the Guild about program planning, and study of the meaning of Christian brotherhood.

Another trend is toward a greater emphasis on the issues that are of particular concern to the employed woman. After studying this, the standing committee approved the following recommendations from the Guild Program Committee:

(a) That the Wesleyan Service Guild concur in the next quadrennial goals of the Woman's Division; (b) that within the framework of these goals areas of special emphasis be developed for the Wesleyan Service Guild; (c) that areas of special interest for the employed woman be recognized and developed in the Guild program.

Field Cultivation

By MISS HARRIET SEIBERT, Secretary

THE fruits of discipleship have been clearly shown in all the addresses made by the speakers sent forth from the office of Field Cultivation. By far the largest number of requests have been for those who could speak on the current Home and Foreign Mission study themes. Deaconesses and home missionaries, staff members, and workers in urban areas have presented effectively the challenge of "The City."

On the subject of India, Pakistan and Ceylon, we have been fortunate in having nationals as well as missionaries from that part of the world who have given inspiring and informative addresses. No finer fruits of Christian discipleship could be found than is evidenced in the lives of these members of younger churches who have heard the Christian call and who are giving themselves so devotedly to the service of the Master.

Special mention should be made of Mrs. I. A. Jordan, who has had an almost continuous series of engagements in various parts of the country. Her chief assignments were in Northeastern and North Central Jurisdictions where she and her daughter were studying, though trips were planned which took her into South Central and Southeastern also.

Miss Mary Searcy, assigned to our office especially for itineration by the Department of Work in Foreign Fields, has had lengthy itineration in Southwest Missouri, Central Texas, Southern Illinois, and South Dakota Conferences, and has had speaking engagements in almost every conference of Western Jurisdiction. In June she gave leadership during all four weeks of the "House Parties" for youth at National College.

Our field workers have been in more demand than ever following their trips outside of continental United States. Miss Hoover's journey to India and Pakistan made vivid her presentation of the foreign study theme of the year. Mrs. Landrum through her trip to Alaska showed the fruits of discipleship in that distant Home field.

Assignments for Mrs. W. B. Landrum since June 1, 1954, included the annual meeting of the Louisville Conference, teaching or conducting workshops in one Jurisdiction School of Missions and in eight conference schools and one inter-denominational school. The summer's program was followed by itineration in New York, Troy, Erie, Florida, South Carolina, Louisville, Memphis, Western North Carolina and Virginia Conferences. Special features in these assignments included district officers' training days followed by the annual district meeting in each of the eleven districts of the South Carolina Conference; and following the annual meeting of the Memphis Conference, meeting with the district superintendent and the ministers of each district of the Memphis Conference.

Miss Hoover has itinerated in Mississippi, Upper Mississippi, Georgia, Florida, East Tennessee, Texas, and West Texas Conferences of Central Jurisdiction and in Ohio Conference. She has had engagements also at the following colleges—National, Bennett, Gammon, Southern Methodist, Clark, and Morristown Junior. Like Mrs. Landrum, Miss Hoover, too, has devoted much time to leadership and officers' training. She participated in one Jurisdiction School of Missions and in seven conference schools, also represented the Division in the Workshop for Leaders of United Church Women at Chautauqua. Besides many local church engagements, she gave leadership in the Conference on Missions in Greenwood, Mississippi, and in the Student Regional at Mt. Sequoyah.

Visual Education

By MISS ELIZABETH MARCHANT, Secretary

AS MORE films, filmstrips, and audio-visual materials are produced by the Woman's Division, Methodist women can better visualize the missionary work they support. The fruits of discipleship are personalized and acquire a new dimension.

Productions—Much time has gone into the planning of new audio-visual materials over the past year. In the fall production was completed on a black-and-white sound filmstrip, titled "Study in Sari and Salwar," showing Woman's Division projects in India and Pakistan.

Work continued on a filmstrip describing the World Federation of Methodist Women, titled "Methodist Women World-Wide Friends."

For the study of Indian Americans, a sound and color filmstrip was completed. This filmstrip, "Missions Follow the Indian Trail," shows Navajo, Cherokee, Dulac, Yuma, Odana, Ponca, and Cookson Hills projects.

For the study of a Christian Mission in a Revolutionary World, a sound and color filmstrip titled "Christian Roots in Southeast Asia" was begun. Woman's Division work in Malaya, Burma, and Hong Kong was pictured.

A contract was signed with Alan Shilin Productions for an important movie that will be used with the coming study, "Mission Field U.S.A." Activities at a community center of the Woman's Division will be featured in this movie and plans for the filming are under way.

A committee was formed to work with the Radio and Film Commission of The Methodist Church on the production of a film for missionary recruitment. The Woman's Division will cooperate with the General Section's Department of Visual Education and Interdivision Committee on Foreign Work in this production.

Workshops—At the end of the summer the secretary attended the Eleventh Annual Audio-Visual Workshop at Green Lake, Wisconsin.

In February the secretary represented the Woman's Division as a resource person at a workshop sponsored by the Methodist Radio and Film Commission and Virginia Conference Radio and Film Commission in Richmond, Virginia.

In early June the secretary was a member of the planning committee for an audio-visual workshop for denominational leaders, sponsored by the Protestant Council of the City of New York, and held at Union Theological Seminary.

Denominational and Interdenominational Cooperation—As a member of the Consultative Staff of the Methodist Radio and Film Commission, the secretary represented the Woman's Division at meetings in Nashville.

She has acted as chairman of the Audio-Visual Subcommittee of the Committee for Cooperation in Latin America over the past year.

On behalf of the Woman's Division, the secretary has served on planning committees for the interdenominational mission films to accompany the study of Indian Americans and for the coming study on Japan.

Student Work

By MISS DOROTHY NYLAND, Secretary

IF YOU plan for one year, plant grain; if you plan for ten years, plant trees; if you plan for one hundred years, plant men." (Chinese proverb)

Scholarships and Loans

The student program of The Methodist Church is interested in men and women who will be the leaders in our church tomorrow. One cannot always see the fruits but one can tell from the way the "twig is bent how the tree will grow."

Methodist women, especially the secretaries of Student Work, have been encouraging each local church to plan for the future by providing scholarships and loans for worthy students through the offering on Methodist Student Day which goes to the Board of Education. The Discipline of The Methodist Church suggests that this be observed in each church, preferably on the second Sunday in June. In order to inform the secretaries of Student Work how they may help in this program, Dr. Stanley Martin, in charge of Methodist Student Loans and Scholarships, met with the conference secretaries of Student Work in each jurisdiction for one day to discuss the subject. The Board of Education provided the expense of these meetings in order to channel the information to the local church. Reports indicate that many more churches are responding to the realization that The Methodist Church is interested in providing scholarships and loans now to train future leaders.

Methodist Student Workers Association

The standing Committee of Student Work of the Woman's Division have been asked to be auxiliary members of the Methodist Student Workers Association which met in Nashville in October. At the request of the chairman of the standing committee, Mrs. Alan K. Laing, there was an opportunity on the program for a presentation of the need of missionary personnel before the Methodist Student Workers of the country. As a result a consultation was held in January following the meeting in Cincinnati of all the boards of the church. This was for the purpose of discussing further the relationship of the student program to that of providing the personnel to serve the church at home and abroad. Plans are moving forward for a pilot project on Consultation on Missionary Strategy Among College Students for this fall, inviting student workers with staff of the Board of Missions and the Board of Education.

Increase in Local Secretaries

Realizing the importance of Student Work, there has been a steady increase in the number of local student secretaries. A few years ago, only half of the local Societies elected a secretary of Student Work. Today the reports indicate that over 75 per cent have a secretary of Student Work. There is increased appreciation of the importance of this work.

Students From Overseas

With 35,000 students from overseas now studying in America, the secretaries of Student Work of the local, district, conference, and jurisdiction have one of the greatest missionary opportunities knocking at their door. Many more are realizing the importance of opening Christian homes to all who come to our shores. Beyond the campus is the community responsibility. People of every color, of different kinds of dress and language, will realize the meaning of Christian democracy only when they are treated as sons of God. The secretaries of Student Work have found great joy and the fruits of discipleship when they have encouraged our women to welcome with Christian hospitality these ambassadors from other lands.

Youth Work

By MISS HELEN L. JOHNSON, Secretary

THE quadrennial emphasis on youth has helped many people to become aware of the program of the Methodist Youth Fellowship. This emphasis has resulted in more creative youth programs, increased membership, and a stronger faith as youth have sought "to discover the will of God and live by it."

Adult Leadership—Special effort has been made this year to recruit, train, and motivate mature adult Christians to work with youth in a vital MYF program. The MYF is the teamwork of youth and their adult leaders planning and working together. The secretary of Youth Work is an adult member of the MYF council. She often serves as adult adviser in Christian Outreach. This presents a great opportunity for the Woman's Society of Christian Service to share its many resources with the MYF to strengthen and support their program. Such resources help to interpret the concerns of Christian Outreach which are: the world-wide mission of the church (national and world missions), the ecumenical movement, overseas relief and reconstruction, and peace and world order.

Mission Study—Missionary education is an integral part of the program of Christian education of youth. Missionary units, in the curriculum for Sunday morning and Sunday evening sessions of the MYF, were related to the current themes: "India, Pakistan, and Ceylon," and "The City."

Through their participation in missionary activities youth and their adult leaders have grown in respect to their attitudes toward those of all cultural, racial, and national groups. They have gained a fresh awareness of peoples in many parts of the world and their sympathies have been deepened.

The unified program provides for interested girls, who are seniors or older youth, to meet in a World Friendship Group of Girls. The program materials, while related to the current themes, deal with the work of the Woman's Society of Christian Service. The programs for the current year were entitled Crowds and Faces.

Work Camp—The first National Methodist Senior High Work Camp was conducted this summer at the Navajo Methodist Mission School. This was a co-operative project under the auspices of the Youth Department of the General Board of Education and the Woman's Division of Christian Service. Ten carefully selected high school young people participated. A small group of Navajo youth and leaders of the mission school were a part of the work camp, too.

Giving—The Methodist Youth Fund makes it possible for youth to share in a plan of unified giving to a program of missions, Christian education, and youth work around the world. There is a wholesome increase in the receipts for the year closing May 31, 1955, which totals $606,493.97.

Youth Emphasis—All groups concerned in the missionary education of youth are working together in the MYF 1955 Fall Action Project on Missions, world peace, and overseas relief. As youth and leaders participate in this project they will become concerned about all people everywhere. Since activities in this special emphasis will be a part of the total program of the MYF, the place of Christian Outreach will be strengthened.

Children's Work

By MISS RUBY VAN HOOSER, Secretary

THE year has been a challenging and vital one for secretaries of Children's Work. They have shared with other teachers during the past twelve months the endeavor of helping boys and girls in Methodist church schools grow in living as Christians. They also have taken part with the children in experiences of Christian world friendship, and in activities that concern the missionary work of The Methodist Church at home and in countries overseas. No service could be more significant than this.

Training Opportunities for Leaders—To meet the religious needs of the large number of children for whom the church now has responsibility in communities across the nation, more and better prepared teachers continue to be an urgent need. With this fact in mind, the Woman's Division of Christian Service has approved recommendations that call for increased opportunities for training for conference, district, and local secretaries.

During the past summer, therefore, plans included the attendance of conference secretaries upon the jurisdiction schools of the Woman's Society of Christian Service. At the same time preparation was also made for similar training for district and local secretaries of Children's Work.

In alternate years emphasis is given to the possibilities for further growth and development in the program of the church for children that are provided by the leadership and laboratory schools of the General Board of Education.

Missionary Education, 1954-55—As an integral part of the ongoing curriculum of Christian education, missionary units for primary and junior children in 1954-55 were developed around the emphases of "India and Pakistan" and "The City." Reports indicate that the children found the study of both of these emphases full of interest, as they followed them in the Sunday school and additional sessions of the church school.

During the year plans for the missionary education of children that were approved by the Interboard Committee on Missionary Education went forward in an effective way.

The Children's Service Fund—For the year ending May 31, 1955, the offerings of children in additional sessions received by the Woman's Division came to $51,110.70. This represents 40 per cent of the offerings, and is the largest amount so far that has been reported to the Woman's Division of Christian Service from the Children's Service Fund.

Meeting of Standing Committee—One of the high points in the year was the meeting of the standing Committee on Children's Work in New York City on April 19-22, 1955. At this meeting the committee gave much time to a review of present needs, and to a careful consideration of cooperative plans for development in the work with children during the coming year.

Wide Outreach—As Methodist women, secretaries of Children's Work together with other leaders have tried to strengthen home and family life. Among other measures, they have worked for the prevention of juvenile delinquency, for the support of adequate public schools, and for the upholding of the United Nations in its service to children. For a share in all aspects of this common task, secretaries are grateful.

Programs and Other Literature

By JUANITA BROWN, Editor of Literature

THE summer of 1954 was different from most previous summers. Although the literature year of 1953-54 ended on April 30, work on the unfinished materials of the past year continued. Even so, we had an unusual sense of peace. The Fourth Assembly, for which preparations had been made during many months, was over, with all its high inspiration and forward-looking plans. The summer brought no visits to schools of missions nor to any of the projects of the Woman's Division—the regular office work was too heavy for these contacts. However, in late August, I was able to attend the meeting of the World Council of Churches.

The editorial group was grateful for having Miss Patricia Lewis, just graduated from Vanderbilt University, in our midst during the summer. She not only assisted with the editing of several of the chapters of An Introduction to Five Spiritual Classics, checking almost innumerable references, but also arranged chronologically in loose-leaf bindings for future reference and permanent preservation many publications of the Woman's Division from 1940 through July, 1954.

During much of the summer Miss Sarah Parrott, Editorial Assistant, was working on the manuscript Declaring His Glory (The Work of Methodist Women Around the World) by Mrs. Eloise Woolever. This 275-page book was a heavy addition to the regular work of this office.

As usual in the summer when the Week of Prayer projects for the next year are definite and the addresses of writers are known to the responsible editor, letters requesting information and photographs are sent to the fields—last summer to nine projects in six countries.

The autumn brought even more than the usual number of committee meetings, including those of a variety of staff groups for self-study, designed for improvement during the forthcoming quadrennium. Although preparing for the printer An Introduction to Five Spiritual Classics, a symposium by five authors, proved to be a wonderful source of spiritual uplift to all who worked on the manuscripts, it also proved to be a Herculean task. Each of four chapters introduces a full-length book, and the fifth is based on the equivalent of a small book. The five classics, writings that are true "fruits of discipleship," inspired everyone in the office to try to make her own special task an expression of discipleship in keeping with the spirit of the authors of the classics. Running parallel with work on the Spiritual Life textbook was the preparation of two field pamphlets and the guide to the Spiritual Life study. While the editors scarcely knew what was taking place, autumn changed to winter and winter to spring.

While the program of work mentioned above was progressing day by day, and often also by night and Saturdays, not at any time were the programs for 1955-56 out of the editor's mind—actually the editing of the programs was going forward simultaneously with the work on the other manuscripts. Even with many minds and hands at work, neither the days nor the nights had sufficient hours for the demands upon them. In the meantime the number of meetings and group and personal conferences increased, for the decision had been made that the Woman's Division editorial offices would be moved from the sixth floor to the tenth.

The past year was a testing time for discipleship.

Missionary Education and Spiritual Life Literature

By MISS FRANCES ESHELMAN, Associate Editor of Literature

Jesus said, As the Father hath loved me, so have I loved you: continue ye in my love. . . . This is my commandment, That ye love one another as I have loved you. . . . I have chosen you that ye should go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit should remain. . . .—John 15:9, 12, 16.

IT IS small wonder that Jesus revealed the key to fruitful discipleship as growth through love—wise and total love for one another as Jesus has loved us. For when we practice this love, we find how difficult it is to give God's love, and ours, to others while any selfishness remains to disrupt the vital inner flow of His Spirit and to prevent our becoming outwardly fruitful.

When we observe the Week of Prayer and Self-Denial, I hope that each of us will realize more of the genuine love for Christ and for others which shines through the printed words of those who contribute—from their firsthand experience—the thoughts, information, and inspiration to make the Week of Prayer and Self-Denial a time for total rededication of soul, self, and substance—so needed if new fruits are to grow and to remain His.

The Quiet Day Meditation is carefully written to make prayer and the practice of God's presence understandable and real to those who participate in it and to provide readiness for the meeting, later in the week, when the projects to receive the Week of Prayer gifts are described and the Self-Denial offerings are made for the rebuilding of Holding Institute, at Laredo, Texas, and for the increased training of more Christian leaders in Burma, the Philippines, Sarawak, and Sumatra.

The months from November to June were busy with the preparation of manuscripts. The following materials (in addition to the Week of Prayer and Self-Denial Packet—with its Leader's Handbook; Quiet Day Meditation, Worship Service, Prayer Card, and Poster) have come off the press: the Spiritual Life Packet, Study and Action, 1955-56, the missionary education leaflet; two Prayer Cards related to the 1955-56 Spiritual Life study (An Introduction to Five Spiritual Classics); and Worship Settings, a booklet by Mrs.

Salmon C. Myers.

Worship Settings—a thirty-two page booklet in direct question and answer style—gives the how, when, and where of arranging settings for worship. Mrs. Myers has incorporated the questions which most frequently arise on the subject. The booklet is generously illustrated by our artist, Mr. Robert Schwing, and contains special sections entitled: "Glossary: Symbols and Church Terms;" "Emblems and Pins" (of the Woman's Division); "The Church Calendar" (which outlines the "Christian Year and Special Observances"); "Colors: Their Meaning and Use in Christian Worship;" and "Books and References" for additional information on worship settings, worship services, symbolism, and the Christian calendar. This booklet should be of permanent value in each Woman's Society.

Programs and Other Literature

By MISS ALYCE L'HERTIER, Associate Editor of Literature

AMONG the materials that have come off the press during the past year are several booklets and leaflets which record the fruits of discipleship. The leaflet, Miracle in Peru, was produced as soon as possible after the opening of the Centro Metodista in Lima, Peru. The center is the result of the faith and determination of a missionary who is a true disciple. Cherokee Methodists and Profile of the Yuma, free leaflets for use in connection with the interdenominational home mission study, describe the work of the Woman's Division of Christian Service among two colorful Indian tribes. The booklet, A Christian's Primer of Technical Assistance, shows what the United Nations is doing, through its Technical Assistance Program, to enable human beings everywhere to attain a better life by working to eliminate wars, ignorance, and poverty. It presents a challenge to Christians to support an organization whose aims are compatible with the teachings of Christ.

As always, a major portion of the associate editor's time was devoted to the program book for World Friendship Groups, this year entitled Missions—Instrument of Peace, and to planning for and editing her share of the program book and the worship booklet for Woman's Societies of Christian Service.

All the materials for which the associate editor is responsible benefit from the wisdom and skill of Miss Sarah Parrott, editorial assistant.

It was the privilege of the associate editor to attend the Family Life Conference in Cleveland, Ohio, in October, 1954, and the A. A. U. N. Conference on International Affairs in Washington, D. C., in February, 1955.

Dozens, or perhaps hundreds, of times in the course of a year it is necessary to write to missionaries and deaconesses for stories of happenings on the mission field, at home and abroad. Despite their heavy schedules and innumerable responsibilities, they answer our requests promptly and carefully. It is impossible to express adequately our gratitude to them and our appreciation of their dedication to the work.

Sharing in the production of literature is for the associate editor a rewarding experience. Not least among its joys is the privilege of helping record the fruits of the discipleship of the Woman's Division of Christian Service.

World Outlook and Joint Literature

By MISS DOROTHY McCONNELL, Editor

AS THIS report is being written, I am attending a pre-World Council meeting in Davos, Switzerland, on cooperation between men and women in the church.

As nearly as I can discover, I am the only person present who is actually engaged on a joint project with the general board of a church representing co-operation between men and women of the church. It is with considerable satisfaction that I write this, since we are in a unique position as far as WORLD OUTLOOK goes and joint literature, a pioneer project, even though we are as old as the united Methodist Church itself.

The concept of joint responsibility has grown since the early days, especially in the past year. No longer do we, in WORLD OUTLOOK, have quite as legalistic a conception of division of work. While the sections still divide space equally, the planning is done on consultation, and there is much greater concern that each section become part of a whole in the magazine, so that no reader can say, "This is the General thought—this is the Woman's."

During the past year we have again produced one issue covering the work of the entire Board of Missions. As happened the first year, the issue met with general approval. This does not mean that such an issue will become, necessarily, a permanent policy. There are too many other special concerns before us. But we are grateful that the board issue seemed to meet a special need at the time.

During the past years the women of the church have done the greater part of promotion of the paper. This year the General Section has initiated a campaign for the paper through the Commission on Missions and, with the cooperation of the Cincinnati office, it is the most intensive campaign that has yet been launched. The Woman's Section of the magazine is deeply grateful for the work of the General Section in this field. It seems an augury of close cooperation and responsibility in the days to come.

Both sections are busy at the moment preparing for a special issue commemorating the hundredth anniversary of Methodism's missionary entry into India. The February issue, 1956, is the time set for the India number, and this will coincide in many churches with the study of the joint church-wide book, South of the Himalayas, by James K. Mathews. Both sections are gratified at the enthusiasm expressed for the study book.

In accordance with an unwritten policy, a world missions study is usually followed by a study in the field of national missions. The coming study now in preparation, is on the rural church and its relation to the town church. The book is not an administrative book. It will be a straight mission study in the sense that it is a book concerned with that person in the country who is often completely outside the church fold. The book comes as a result of consultation with the author by both sections, and with the Department of Work in Home Fields and the Division of National Missions.

Each editor publishes separately, as "Woman's material" or as "General material," as well as joint literature. There will always be a place for "separate" literature as long as there remain two sections of responsibility. But mission literature concerning the work of the whole board should come more and more into prominence, if the joint section is to become a working section equally committed to the promotion of General and Woman's work. Great progress has been made, however, and we can be proud that the policy of joint and equal work in the field of publications and literature was undertaken by the Board of Missions of The Methodist Church as early as it was.

The Methodist Woman

By MRS. C. A. MEEKER

MY YEAR was full of activity including attendance at denominational and interdenominational meetings and assemblies, a few speeches given at district and conference meetings, many committee meetings, and desk work—mulling over ideas and plans with lengthened hours of routine chores and brief flashes of stimulating productivity in the editing of a few leaflets, the Fifteenth Annual Report, and The Methodist Woman. Miss Mary Blake, editorial assistant, and Miss Dorothy Brow, editorial secretary, cheerfully shared all the office responsibilities.

Literature Headquarters

By MRS. E. LEROY STIFFLER, Publication and Business Manager, and MRS. C. C. LONG, Circulation Manager and Secretary of Literature

THE fruits of discipleship and interest in the total program of the Woman's Division are indicated by the increased purchasing of the literature distributed by Literature Headquarters. In 1940 receipts from sales of literature plus income from subscriptions to THE METHODIST WOMAN showed that each member of the Woman's Society purchased 16 cents' worth of literature. Using the same basic figures for the present fiscal year purchases per capita averaged 49 cents.

Production

During the year printing orders for materials, including THE METHODIST WOMAN, office forms, promotional materials, free and paid material bearing the imprint of the Woman's Division of Christian Service, totaled 17,215,740 pieces. In addition to this heavy production schedule orders were placed with outside publishers for 828,231 pieces; these included materials for the World Day of Prayer and books supplementary to the study program as recommended by the departments of the Woman's Division. Included in this number were approximately one quarter of a million pieces purchased from the Joint Commission on Missionary Education.

Finance

Prior to the year ending May 31, 1954, total sales were reported only on a cash basis. Last year the auditors, in checking accounts receivable, deemed it advisable to include this item in total sales since the financial report is strictly on an accrual basis.

Cash sales for the year ending May 31, 1955, showed an increase of $1,412.57, but the fact that accounts receivable were less than the previous year resulted in total sales reflecting a loss. The fluctuations in sales caused by the addition of accounts receivable will not affect the years after May 31, 1955.

The following figures are an analysis of expenditure of income: 53.4 per cent—spent for printing, art work, manuscripts, et cetera; 18.3 per cent—salaries; 9.2 per cent—postage; 7.2 per cent—insurance, taxes (sales and social security), interest, maintenance, et cetera; 3.3 per cent—office expense, which includes San Francisco and New York offices (2.2 per cent—office expense for Cincinnati only).

The indebtedness on the building has been reduced $40,000.00 during the fiscal year, leaving a balance due the Woman's Division of $45,000.00 on the original loan.

Distribution

The year's activities show that approximately 300,000 individual orders were handled in addition to 2,000 orders sent on consignment. The value of material sent to summer schools totaled $87,065.67 and the total sales were $51,746.65. Thirty-five thousand sample Week of Prayer packets were assembled and mailed to the conference secretaries of Literature and Publications for distribution to Woman's Societies and Wesleyan Service Guilds, and 32,000 Record and Report Books were sent to the district secretaries of Promotion for distribution.

Promotion

In addition to the preparation of the Catalogue listing materials available from Literature Headquarters, and the Sample Promotion Order Blank, fliers were prepared to promote sales on the Fifteenth Annual Report, program material, Declaring His Glory, and the Little Playmate Books. Letters to the conference secretaries are sent at intervals pointing up the use of the sample materials which are received by the secretaries.

We wish to pay tribute of special appreciation to Miss Carolyn Estes for her able assistance in the promotion and circulation departments.

At the beginning of this report the figures indicate that the production schedule is both heavy and demanding. In the fulfillment of such an exacting task Miss Norma Steinbeck has rendered a most valuable service.

As receipts from sales of literature mount yearly, as well as increased income from subscriptions to THE METHODIST WOMAN, the handling of funds becomes a responsibility requiring real dedication. Mrs. Ada Conner, as secretary to the publication manager and as bookkeeper, is giving unstintingly and conscientiously in the performance of her duty.

The fulfillment of a task so large in scope could not be accomplished without the loyalty and good will of the supervisors in charge of the various sections, as well as the entire staff.

The subscription list of THE METHODIST WOMAN is of major interest to all members of the Woman's Societies of Christian Service; therefore, in lieu of a written report, a comparative statistical report by state is listed.

Missionary Personnel

By MISSES MARGUERITE TWINEM and ALPHARETTA LEEPER

FRUITS of Discipleship" bring to our minds the 16 young deaconesses and home missionaries and the 21 foreign missionaries who have been commissioned for service with the Board of Missions this year. One also sees 33 U.S.-2's and 28 Special Term foreign missionaries preparing to begin their work as soon as trains and ships can take them to their destinations. Each goes in faith believing that "In everything God works with those who love Him."¹

Richard Belcher, secretary of the Interboard Committee on Christian Vocations, reports that now every Annual Conference has a Conference Commission on Christian Vocations. In this past year 6,500 young people and 750 adults have been together in seventy Vocation Conferences. This is one fruit of their work. We need to strengthen this commission because within it strategy and plans of action for the church are developed for recruiting and guiding youth for all church vocations. It has the responsibility of counseling and encouraging every young person within the Annual Conference who has expressed an interest in church work. It cannot do its maximum work unless there is a strong and active Committee on Christian Vocations in the local church. Records kept up-to-date by the commission with the help of the local church committee, and accessible to responsible people, are of first importance.

The filmstrip, "Counseling for Church Vocations," is being used to advantage in many conferences. The screen play, "A Question of Life," is available and is especially helpful for parents whose youth face the question of investing their lives in Christian and church-related vocations. A new sound film on recruitment for missionary service abroad is in manuscript form and will be ready for use in 1956.

The free companion leaflets on home and foreign service called, "You Can Be There," are especially helpful to young people about ready to apply. These and the free leaflet for high-school youth called, "Going Somewhere?" are the new recruitment literature of the year.

Plans are made for a pilot project of consultation on mission strategy among college students, involving leaders of campus and university religious life from one region, secretaries of the Board of Education and of the Board of Missions, a total of thirty-five or forty. The need for such a consultation was vividly felt when a group of secretaries of these two boards met in Cincinnati in January, 1955, to face together our common responsibilities in recruitment and guidance of candidates for missionary service. At that time it was agreed that we should get together a carefully selected group of campus workers to face issues, plan wisely, and then make their findings available to others. This consultation will be held in October, 1955.

Miss Nancy Grissom, a former U.S.-2, has been doing excellent work this year as field secretary in the colleges east of the Mississippi. Miss Joan Warnecke, a former A-3, is looking forward to being field secretary in 1955-56. Misses Colleen Gilmore, Anita Harris, Mrs. Dorothy Edwards Crisologo, and Miss Louise Weeks have served on the travel staff of the Student Volunteer Movement this year. Thirty missionaries, deaconesses, and Crusade Scholars have been invited to share experiences with the 5,000 young people gathering in August for the National Convocation of Methodist Youth. Every afternoon there will be a workshop on "Here's How Christians Witness Through Missionary Work."

Reports of Standing Committees

Missionary Personnel

By MRS. ALAN K. LAING, Chairman

"THE mission motivation should be the resultant of two main forces—an experience of God in Christ which is so meaningful that one is impelled to share it as good news, and a sensitivity to human need, physical, social, and spiritual, that draws one to centers of need."

"Could I articulate my faith to a Brazilian agnostic or a keen Hindu in India?"

"The college or university campus of today is perhaps the most strategic spot to be found for the recruitment of personnel for the mission program of the church."

These provocative quotations are from talks by Dr. M. O. Williams, Miss Marguerite Twinem, and Miss Alpharetta Leeper, secretaries of Missionary Personnel of the Board of Missions, given before the Methodist Student Workers Association in October, 1954. The talks appeared in the April issue of THE METHODIST WOMAN, pages 4, 5, and 40. They go to the heart of our concern for recruitment of missionaries. From the October meeting has come a desire for further consultation to discover how a more direct and continuing challenge to missionary service can be included in the Methodist Student Program. This is a significant development in personnel this year.

The need for regular term missionaries and deaconesses continues to be acute. From September, 1954, to June, 1955, 14 deaconesses and 3 home missionaries (young men) have been accepted for service. Likewise, for service overseas, 30 regular term missionaries. In the U.S.-2 Program, 1955, there are 35 young women. Twenty-nine special term missionaries are in the 1955 Fellowship of Service (overseas). Both groups are interracial and we give thanks for these lives.

When the standing Committee on Missionary Personnel met in New York, April 27, 28, and 29, 1955, one of the needs which it faced was that for increased itineration of the Personnel staff on the campuses of Negro colleges. The committee heard of the current situations and needs in mission fields at home and abroad from the executive secretaries in the Departments of Work in Home and Foreign Fields.

Although the Committee on Christian Vocations in most local churches still is dragging its feet, the Conference Commissions on Christian Vocations in many cases are promoting get-togethers for their young people who have made commitments in summer institutes. It would be excellent in cultivating for recruitment in the local church, if the local Committee on Christian Vocations would form a fellowship group of those same young people to keep the fire glowing with continuing creative spiritual experiences.

Word comes that the women of the Indian Mission Conference, Oklahoma, eager to do their part, have elected a secretary of Missionary Personnel, Mrs. Newman Long. We rejoice that these sisters of ours have this concern.

Several conference Woman's Societies are sponsoring tours that their young women may see our missionary work. Try it!

"To Rekindle the Gift" is a 32 minute, 16 mm sound film in color renting for $10.00 from The Methodist Publishing House nearest you. It is splendid, and shows the missionary work of the Woman's Division of Christian Service.

One of our most powerful expressions of brotherhood is through the missionaries and deaconesses who go in the name of the Master to live out His love among people. Our job is to see that this "Line of Splendor" remains endless.

Permanent Funds and Investments

By MRS. F. C. REYNOLDS, Chairman

DURING the fiscal year June 1, 1954-May 31, 1955, the total funds of the Woman's Division of Christian Service invested in bonds and stocks have increased from $17,898,969.21 (book value) to $20,531,362.74 (book value). For this service the amount paid during the year to the Irving Trust Company, which acts as investment adviser and custodian of the invested funds of the Woman's Division, was $22,964.95. The Endowment Fund which, by vote of the Woman's Division, is now guaranteed 3 per cent interest yearly, has during the year not only met its interest obligations by its own earnings, but through the years has earned enough to produce an accumulated interest balance large enough to have made it possible for a second 3 per cent interest payment. Last year a similar additional interest payment was made.

For the year which closed on May 31, 1955, the Woman's Division made a distribution of the interest on the Designated Temporary Funds to the several departments of the Woman's Division at the rate of 3 per cent, the sixth successive year this rate of interest has been paid. The interest so distributed during the year was $361,329.71 and it was allotted to the departments pro rata according to the proportion held for each in the fund.

During the year interest at the rate of $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent on the Pension Funds was distributed. The amount was \$120,015.82.

The Woman's Division holds also an investment in mortgages with principal valuation of $490,193.75 in the Permanent Fund and $2,459.45 in the Designated Temporary Fund. These mortgages are serviced by Cruikshank Company at a total service fee of $2,005.86. Also in the Designated Temporary Fund the Woman's Division holds a note receivable of $45,000.00 secured by property in Cincinnati.

The last analysis of the investment portfolio as of May 11, 1955, showed that the securities are divided as follows: Bonds, 53.05 per cent; Preferred Stocks, 5.36 per cent; Common Stocks, 41.59 per cent, with an interest yield at purchase price of 3.83 per cent compared with 3.85 per cent last year.

The chairman expresses to all the members of the Committee on Permanent Funds and Investments, both elected and coopted, her gratitude and appreciation for their help and counsel during the year. We wish to give a special word of thanks and appreciation to the Irving Trust Company for the generous reduction it has made in the charges for its service to the Woman's Division. This will result in a saving of about 20 per cent to the Woman's Division for the care of its securities.

World Federation of Methodist Women

By MRS. PAUL ARRINGTON, Chairman

INTEREST in the World Federation of Methodist Women is definitely growing. There have been many evidences during the year which indicate not only interest but also an appreciation of its value and potentiality for the future.

The chairman has received more requests for help in presenting and interpreting it on the conference, district, and local levels than in any previous year. The jurisdiction vice-presidents have been very tireless in their cultivation. Their resourcefulness and enthusiastic "push ability" have sparked much creative effort from conference and district vice-presidents. Reports show that the World Federation of Methodist Women has been presented in more conference and district meetings this past year than ever before. Moreover, local vice-presidents are becoming aware of their responsibility for making the membership feel that each one is a part of this world-wide organization of Methodist women.

Activities on the conference and local levels have been confined to cultivating "pen pals" and occasionally sharing in acts of neighborliness with women in other units. Such activities are helping to weld Methodist women of the world into a closer fellowship.

The women of the India, Pakistan, Philippines, and African units will greatly appreciate religious pictures for the home and printed materials on child guidance, home making, and devotional helps. Such materials may be sent to missionaries serving in these countries, with the request that they be distributed to the women who need them. There is no duty on printed matter.

The Quarterly Newssheet is reaching into local Societies more successfully. Some conferences are printing excerpts from it in their conference papers.

The film which has been promised for so long will soon be available. It is very good and no doubt will meet a great need.

We now have thirty-four units. Burma, Sarawak, and the Republic of China should be added to the list given on page 31 of the Handbook for Vice-Presidents.

Our unit will be hostess to the Quadrennial Assembly, August 27-30, 1956, to be held at Lake Junaluska, North Carolina. Mrs. Chaves, the president, has appointed the program committee with Miss Dorothy McConnell as chairman. This committee is now at work on plans for the meeting.

Spiritual Life

By MRS. J. W. BUNCH, Chairman

THE year just ended has been one in which the emphasis of the whole church has been on stewardship as the result of a decision of the last General Conference. The Woman's Society of Christian Service cooperated through articles in THE METHODIST WOMAN, placing stewardship literature in the Spiritual Life packet, in presenting stewardship cards, and in numerous other ways. A readers' count of Bishop Harrell's article in THE METHODIST WOMAN, "Should a Christian Tithe?" showed that almost 35,000 women read his message.

Literature Headquarters reports that, for the first time, all the Prayer Calendars were sold last year. An interim Prayer Calendar was printed to cover the period from September to December, 1955. Beginning with January 1, 1956, the dates of the Prayer Calendar will conform to the dates of other calendars.

There has been much confusion in reporting the Fellowship of Intercession. Three of the jurisdiction secretaries of Spiritual Life are experimenting with different ways of handling this situation, and these plans will be evaluated at the next meeting of the standing Committee on Spiritual Life.

The chairman had most interesting experiences in attending two jurisdiction Schools of Missions and becoming acquainted with many conference secretaries of Spiritual Life. Good work was done in the Spiritual Life Clinics.

A new editor, Miss Frances Eshelman, was assigned to Spiritual Life literature. The fine work and helpfulness of Miss Juanita Brown through the years has been appreciated so very much. She is missed in this capacity but we are happy to welcome Miss Eshelman, who has made an excellent record the months she has been with us. Our thanks and appreciation to her!

The lovely new pamphlet, Worship Settings, by Mrs. Salmon C. Myers, has just reached my desk. Much new material has been put in the Spiritual Life packet for next year.

Our editor has been tireless in finding supplementary material to help in the teaching of the Five Spiritual Classics.

In addition to the vast amount of Spiritual Life literature sent out from our Woman's Division Literature Headquarters, devotional literature has been widely used from the Board of Evangelism, stewardship material from the Board of Lay Activities, and pamphlets and cards for those who are ill from the Board of Hospitals and Homes.

One of the most rewarding phases of the work of the standing Committee on Spiritual Life is remembering the retired workers of the Woman's Division of Christian Service. With each quarterly check from the Woman's Division, a pamphlet or letter goes to each retired worker. Many letters come each quarter from our retired friends expressing their gratitude.

The chairman of the standing committee has attended two meetings of the Board of Evangelism during the year, one at Niagara Falls, Canada, in July, the other at Cincinnati in January. The close relationship with the Board of Evangelism is invaluable in carrying out the desire to correlate the Woman's Society program of Spiritual Life cultivation with that of the whole church.

During the year plans were made to organize the standing Committee on Spiritual Life on the same basis as other standing committees of the Woman's Division. The first meeting of the enlarged committee will be held in January, 1956, at Buck Hill Falls.

Good reports on the study of The Master Callesth for Thee have come from all parts of the country. Anticipation grows as we look forward to the study of the Five Spiritual Classics.

At the end of a year of work, it is always interesting to look back on the activities in a spirit of evaluation of the work and results accomplished. Upon these achievements and experiences plans for the next year can be based. With this background and the assurance of the guidance of our heavenly Father we look to another year of activity in the field of Spiritual Life cultivation.

Literature and Publications

By MRS. FRANK G. BELL, Chairman

THE current study, An Introduction to Five Spiritual Classics, is an ideal illustration of literature as one of the fruits of discipleship. No one can say how many radii of influence have gone out from these great spiritual centers. The brightness radiated from the great truths and experiences of these early writers has shone down the centuries.

It is the awareness of the intellectual and inspirational possibilities of all materials printed by the Woman's Division that lifts the work of the Committee on Literature and Publications above the routine duties of an average committee. Each member is challenged to give her best thinking to the discussions and planning at each session.

The committee has held its two regular meetings during the year 1954-55. The Subcommittee on Programs has met each time in conjunction with the full committee. The total of 153,000 Program Books sold this year is the largest number of any year to date. The reactions from the local Societies to both the Program Book and Worship Booklet have been most favorable.

The programs for 1956-57 on the theme, The Islands Await His Word, are well along in the process of preparation. The program for September will present the new Quadrennial Emphases. The theme for the programs for 1957-58, entitled The March of Missions, has been approved.

Elsewhere in this Annual Report will be found a complete list of the material printed this year, including the two study books prepared for the Woman's Division. All of these were requested through the committee and authorized after careful consideration of the need, timeliness, and financial possibility. The editors assumed responsibility for preparing the material. It was then sent to the publication manager at Literature Headquarters. When the finished piece came off the press, it became the task of the circulation manager to care for its distribution. All involved worked under a strict schedule of deadlines so that materials would be ready at the proper time.

THE METHODIST WOMAN and WORLD OUTLOOK have been invaluable in providing supplementary materials for study classes, society and circle programs, and for giving general information. The goal that every officer of the local Society subscribes to THE METHODIST WOMAN is fully justified by the help that magazine provides in carrying out the work of the Society.

The committee is deeply grateful to all of these staff members who comprise the Editorial Board and their assistants for the superior literature which they make available to the women across the church. This, too, is a fruit of discipleship.

Library Service

By MRS. C. P. HARDIN, Chairman

THE Woman's Division is proving very helpful to its workers around the world through Library Service. Since Library Service is within appropriations, it means that every woman who contributes to the missionary work through her local Woman's Society is helping to provide books and magazines for the workers in the home and foreign fields at no expense to the workers.

Your committee would like to share with you a few of the figures that tell a part of the story of what has been done in this area during the past few months.

The Library Service Book List containing 169 titles, which was compiled by the committee, was sent to all of the national projects in the Department of Work in Home Fields and to all households in the Department of Work in Foreign Fields, along with an order blank upon which requests were to be made. Five hundred and thirty-four books and 12 magazines have been sent to the workers in home fields, which has amounted to an average of about 3 books to each project. Six hundred and six books and 52 magazines have been sent to the households in foreign fields, an average of about 5 to each household. This makes a total of 1,140 books and 64 magazines sent to the workers.

The titles most popular on the current list were: The Revised Standard Version of the Bible, A Man Called Peter, Ralph J. Bunche, Handicraft, The Fun Encyclopedia, A Book of Little Crafts, and Stories to Dramatize.

Expressions of appreciation for this service have come from all of the workers. Many have said, "Please thank the Woman's Division for making this Library Service possible."

Status of Women

By MRS. W. H. RATLIFF, Chairman

THE high point of the year was the standing committee meeting held in New York in September. At this time detailed plans were made for the Status of Women clinics for the 1955 Jurisdiction and Conference Summer Schools.

Much preliminary preparation had been made by the members of the committee for this meeting. Materials had been assembled, reports analyzed, and requests classified, that the needs of the local women might be met. The resulting agenda gave every promise of being useful and usable.

At Evanston the Status of Women Commission of the World Council of Churches became "The Commission on the Cooperation of Men and Women in Church and Society." Dr. Madeleine Barot, the executive secretary of this department of work in Geneva, continues to do research in this whole area, seeking to bring together some usable materials. There is such a wide range of thought on this whole idea of women in church and society that so far no material is available from the World Council of Churches.

The chairman, while in Europe, had an invitation to participate in a consultation called by this department of the World Council of Churches. The consultation was on "Training of Women for Professional Church Work." Between forty and fifty women from ten countries were there. It was necessary to use interpreters and earphones. Everything was done in French, German, and English. This was the first meeting held by this commission since Evanston and a constructive approach to the whole problem was made. In Europe as in America, few women ever attain full ordination with full clergy rights. However, many women fill pulpits regularly—and preach in industrial centers during the noon hour.

The Woman's Division of Christian Service appointed a committee to prepare a memorial to the 1956 session of General Conference asking that full clergy rights and privileges be granted to prepared women. Conferences and jurisdictions of Woman's Societies of Christian Service have passed resolutions asking the Woman's Division of Christian Service to memorialize General Conference on this matter. At the suggestion of the committee, some articles will be run in THE METHODIST WOMAN on this subject.

While in Europe, the chairman met with Lady Hosie, author of the Bible study, The Master Calleth for Thee. This text will be on the reference shelf for Status of Women groups for a long time, giving the Biblical basis for women serving in church and society. Lady Hosie gave interesting side lights on this publication.

A second and most interesting consultation on Refugees was held at Les Rasses, Switzerland, by the World Council of Churches Commission on Inter-Church Aid and Refugees. This was attended by representative people from many nations affected by this world problem. There are still thirty million people who are homeless.

Methodist women's groups were visited and greetings brought to meetings in Germany, Belgium, and England.

A new Status of Women leaflet has been prepared and is now available from Literature Headquarters: "The Place Where Thou Standest."

Pensions

By MRS. H. E. WERNER, Chairman

THE year which closed on May 31, 1955, has been a significant one in relation to the Pension Funds of the Woman's Division of Christian Service, for the plan of the treasurer's office to bring together into one total picture all of the seven different pension funds has been realized. These seven funds include that of the Woman's Division and those transferred by the uniting organizations, interest on which, together with grants from appropriations, has made it possible to pay retirement salaries to all deaconesses and missionaries of the Woman's Division, whether they served under the Woman's Missionary Council, the Methodist Protestant Church, the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, or the Woman's Home Missionary Society. Also, all retirement salaries for all the deaconesses and missionaries, as reported last year, have been equalized.

During the year the treasurer of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society transferred to the Woman's Division cash and insurance policies covering lives of their foreign missionaries amounting to $1,766,238.38 to be added to the Retirement Fund of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church already held by the Woman's Division.

Also, during the year $50,000 was transferred to the Woman's Division by the treasurer of the Woman's Home Missionary Society to be added to the Retirement Funds for Deaconesses and Home Workers.

As of May 31, 1955, the Missionary and Deaconess Pension Fund of the Woman's Division of Christian Service amounted to $414,523.07.

The total fund, including all seven pension funds, amounts to $5,519,100.05 as of May 31, 1955.

Supply Work

By MRS. C. A. BARR, Chairman

WHEN a missionary writes, "I cannot begin to list all of the constructive things we have been able to do through Cash for Supply Work," it indicates that Methodist women are rendering a signal service through such gifts. While there is a decrease of $701.65 over the total amount of Supply Work done last year, more Societies are participating and several districts have had reports from every Society for one or more quarters during the year. The heart of the Christian faith is service and Methodist women are eager to meet the needs—"Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit; so shall ye be my disciples." (John 15:8)

Wesleyan Service Guild

By MRS. GEORGE DISMUKES, Chairman

MANY evidences of the fruits of discipleship have been noted among the 127,728 members of the Wesleyan Service Guild during the past year.

Through prayer retreats, small prayer groups, study classes, well-planned worship services and programs, attendance at Schools of Missions and Guild Week-ends, the organization has increased in membership and giving to missions.

Reported at the close of the year: total number of units, 5,222; new units, 268; new members, 11,626; transferred to the Woman's Society, 1,626.

A remarkable increase is noted in Cash for Supply Work; not only have the askings for Special Interests of the Guild been met, but gifts have also been sent to other projects of the Woman's Division. Total Cash for Supply Work according to reports was $75,781.16. The giving on appropriations has shown the greatest increase—grand total, $667,553.58. Impressive pledge services and presentations of Life Memberships were made a special feature on the program for Annual Week-ends in jurisdictions and conferences. The increased number in study classes and number of credits given are indicative of the interest and desire to be better informed members.

The marked increased in attendance at summer Schools of Missions is gratifying. Reports reveal 1,013 attended jurisdiction and conference schools.

Guild Weekends have shown an increase in each jurisdiction. Many conferences have two each year and a larger number were held in districts than during the previous year. Programs were well planned, including the presentation of approved studies, addresses by missionaries and deaconesses, workshops and training periods, impressive morning watch and vesper services, centered around the theme used in all summer schools, "Crown Our Good With Brotherhood."

Coaching conferences held in jurisdictions, conferences, and districts gave needed guidance for better-trained leadership.

"Tours With a Mission" have been made, visiting Woman's Division institutions; others are being planned.

Special emphasis has been given recruitment and, as a result, a number of candidates for missionary service have come from among the Guild members.

We continue to rejoice in the great strides made in Christian Social Relations, especially along interracial lines through study of the United Nations, the Declaration of Human Rights, and the Charter of Racial Policies. Guild members have taken the initiative in many instances to correct injustices and work for the things that make for peace.

While we rejoice in the great yield of fruits of discipleship for the year, we accept it as a challenge, a responsibility, and an opportunity given by the Guild to take one's place as an active Christian—an evangelist and a witness. We see signs of hope for a greater harvest of fruits during the coming year.
