THE GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

Denver, Colorado

Tuesday, April 16, 1996

Vol. 5 No. 1

Ministry Committee to Handle One Third of All Petitions

The Committee on Ordained and Diaconal Ministry will face the most daunting challenge of the 11 General Conference legislative committees. One thousand and fifty two petitions, one third of the total 3,070 pieces of legislation, have been assigned to that group, compared to only 546 handled by the same committee at the 1992 General Conference. The Committee on Church and Society will take on the next highest number of petitions, 330.

According to General Conference Secretary Carolyn Marshall, the large number of members (110) of the Ordained and Diaconal Ministry Committee will make it possible to have more than the normal number of sub-committees. In addition, the presentation of Ministry Study legislation to the plenary session set for tomorrow should reduce the amount of time needed to process this legislation.

Legislation assigned to other committees breaks down as follows: Local Church, 302; Financial Administration, 263; Conferences, 253; General and Judicial Administration, 247; Discipleship, 212; Independent Commissions, 198; Global Ministries, 153; and Higher Education and Chaplaincy, 54.

General Agencies Submit 1,005 Petitions

Of the petitions sent to the General Conference, general agencies submitted 1,005. Annual conferences added an additional 835, with Western North Carolina sending the most, 161.

The Council of Bishops put together the largest package of legislation of any single group, including 280 petitions in the Study on the Ministry. Ann Bateman and Patricia Meyers of Oregon followed with 95 petitions related to the Ministry Study. The UM Rural Fellowship sent 80; the Methodist Federation for Social Action, 65; the Aldersgate Covenant group based in Denton, Texas, 51; and the Diaconal Ministry Clearness Committee from Claremont School of Theology, 29.

The most petitions from a single individual came from Jerry Eckert, a retired clergy member of the Wisconsin Conference, who submitted 44. Ted Agnew, a retired professor from Stillwater, Okla. followed with 24, while Gary Thurman, a laymember of First UMC in Midland, Texas, and Thomas Oden, a professor at Drew University Theological School, tied with 20 each.

Areas of Concern

Disciplinary changes are involved in a majority of the legislation facing this quadrennium's General Conference. Delegates will weigh a variety of proposals for a restructure of the Church, from general agencies to annual conferences and local congregations. Most petitions are designed to allow greater flexibility for mission and ministry. Proposals likely to stir debate include a call to eliminate GCOM and the assignment of greater power to the Council of Bishops, homosexuality, the Ministry Study, the Baptism Study, and church finances.

Assignment of Petitions

Petitions are assigned to legislative committees based on a division of disciplinary paragraphs established by the Commission on General Conference. Marshall noted that those assignments were reviewed yesterday by the Committee on Reference. After consideration by the appropriate legislative committee, the original petition may be amended and/or forwarded to the plenary session with a recommendation of "concurrence" or "non-concurrence."

Dear Friends

Welcome to Denver for the General Conference of the United Methodist Church once again. The accommodating facility, Denver Convention Center, is one of our finest meeting facilities.

Situated in the foothills of the Rocky Mountains, Denver offers the best of both worlds for our delegates: the vitality of a major metropolitan area and the serenity of mountain getaways. Denver's first class meeting facilities, accommodations, and restaurants will ensure a thoroughly successful gathering, the surrounding mountain activities can provide unparalleled pre and post convention vacations.

On behalf of the citizens of the City and County of Denver, it my pleasure to extend this welcome to you. We sincerely hope you will have a memorable and productive gathering.

Yours truly,

Wellington E. Webb

Ministry Study Will Be First Item of Business

Assuming General Conference delegates approve a suggested plan of action, the first item of business will be the Study of Ministry.

The Committee on the Plan of Organization and Rules of Order is suggesting that the Council of Bishops present its recommendations about ministry to a plenary session tomorrow morning following the laity address.

After presentation of the study, General Conference will divide into 25 randomly selected non-legislative groups for 90-minutes of reflection and dialogue on the study. Each group will be led by a bishop and will include a person who is not a delegate to serve as a recorder.

Later tomorrow evening the leaders and recorders will identify areas of consensus as well as issues or questions. On Thursday, Judy Weidman, general secretary of UM Communications, will present a summary of committee responses and a bishop will have an opportunity to make additional comments.

The 280 petitions from the Council of Bishops on ministry issues will then move to the Legislative Committee on Ordained and Diaconal Ministries. That group will also deal with 36 petitions proposing amendments to the ministry study and an additional 736 petitions on other aspects of ministry for a whopping total of 1,052 petitions.

The bishops are proposing:

- Affirmation of the ministry of all Christians.

- The creation of a "lay ministry steward" office in the local church composed of persons who discuss their call with the pastor and the Pastor-Parish Relations Committee, complete a course of study prescribed by the General Board of Discipleship, and are annually elected by the charge conference.
- An order of deacons who have received a masters degree and completed two years in a service setting. All persons who are ordained deacons would serve a minimum of three years as a probationary member of the annual conference before election as full clergy members. The order would include persons in candidacy for elders' orders and non-itinerating clergy who formerly would have been consecrated as diaconal ministers.
- Procedures whereby present diaconal ministers may be ordained as deacons or permitted to continue as diaconal ministers.
- Provisions for some local pastors to complete a course of study and remain in this status without the currently required college work.
- An opening of the possibility for deacons to be licensed as local pastors.

General Conference
The United Methodist Church
Denver, Colorado

Greetings

It gives me great pleasure to welcome those attending the General Conference of the United Methodist Church

Over the years, the people of this organization have been committed to the values of our society and to the progress of our people. You have helped our youth, cared for our senior citizens and contributed to the growth of our communities. I know the people of Denver join me in thanking the members of this church for their many contributions throughout the years.

I would like to extend a special welcome to those delegates who have traveled to Colorado for this event. I hope you can find time in your busy schedule to enjoy some of the many attractions Colorado and Denver have to offer. The spectacular Rocky Mountains offer some of the best skiing, fishing, hunting and national and state parks in the world. In addition to the beautiful outdoors, you might want to visit one of the many impressive museums in Denver, the State Capitol Building or the newly renovated 16th Street Mall.

Again, welcome and best wishes for a memorable and productive event.

Sincerely,

Roy Romer
Governor

Delegates and Visitors to the 1996 General Conference of The United Methodist Church

Dear Family in Christ:

Welcome to our neighborhood! We of the Denver area having been preparing for some time now to welcome the world to our neighborhood. We began with Bible study and gatherings to ground ourselves theologically. We studied the Biblical stories of receiving strangers and transformation of strangers to become friends. We considered ways to create spaces of hospitality.

With our Bible Study we entered into prayer in a special way. We have prayed for the Conference. We have prayed for delegates and visitors. (In some cases there has been personal correspondence between prayer partners). We have prayed for the Church. We have prayed for the world.

And now you have arrived. You are here, and we continue to pray. We pray that in the midst of the many hours of reading and study and debate and conferring, you will walk outside the convention center and lift your eyes to the hills.

As you encounter the Rocky Mountains, we pray you will see them not as barriers but rather as God's creation of majestic grandeur. As you look toward them your eyes will scan Central City in the foothills. In the 1860's an African American woman arrived. Aunt Clara Brown, who had won her freedom from slavery in Kentucky, came with miners, paying her way with wash tubs and cook stove work. She used her money to buy freedom for members of her family and to establish them in business nearby. She opened her home, starting the Sunday school in Central City for St. James Methodist Episcopal Church. St. James United Methodist Church is the oldest United Methodist building in Colorado, begun in 1864 and completed in 1872 at a cost of $35,000.

As you lift your eyes to the hills, may you know you are on the frontier. Like pioneers on the frontier who have gone before us, this year at General Conference you will be pioneers for the future, preparing the way for another century of mission and ministry in The United Methodist Church.

Welcome to Our Neighborhood

Early in the planning stages for this General Conference, Bishop Mary Ann Swenson coined the phrase that was to become our working goal: "Welcome the World to Our Neighborhood."

The Commission on the General Conference is responsible for the overall planning of the conference. The commission is made up of a lay member and a clergy member from each jurisdiction who are elected by and responsible to General Conference. The local committee is selected by the host conference to assist the commission and to arrange for local hospitality. The local committee has worked closely with Roger Kruse, business manager and executive director of the Commission on the General Conference.

The local committee's five major divisions are education and interpretation, staffing and equipment, program, hospitality and courtesy, and bishops' hospitality. (Bishops' hospitality includes the Council of Bishops' meeting held in Denver the week preceding General Conference.) Each committee has several subcommittees with 800 to a thousand volunteers from churches across the Rocky Mountain and Yellowstone Annual Conferences, the two host conferences.

Hosting the General Conference is an opportunity for congregations in the Denver area to become intentionally involved in offering hospitality and growing in their understanding of the biblical meaning of the word. Congregations were urged to study hospitality, and several districts held workshops on the concept. The Division of Education led this phase and organized the Prayer Tree, which coupled the names of five delegates/bishops/staff members with each local church in the Rocky Mountain and Yellowstone Annual Conferences.

Hosting General Conference has not only given us the opportunity to do something for the whole church but has also created a sense of community within the two conferences, which encompass four states and part of another. District days were organized in both conferences, with two days reserved for each district's representatives to attend meetings designed to encourage them to observe and to volunteer.

Needless to say, we are excited about your coming! Every church has been involved in the preparations, from participating in the Prayer Tree to volunteering at the convention site. Denver residents have opened their homes to members of our conferences as well as to guests from other conferences.

Host Provide Assistance

To help you settle in and be as comfortable as possible while you concentrate on the work before you, we have provided hosts in the airport, on the buses, and in the hotels. Each one is ready to answer your questions, from "What is that building?" to "Where can I replace what I forgot to bring?" to "How do I register?" and "Where do I go?"

Additional hosts have been stationed in the convention center to direct you to rooms and/or meetings. The information center, where you can obtain information about Denver and the surrounding areas, and the delegates' lounge will be open and staffed all day. Break your glasses? Lose a filling? Have a headache? Check in at the first aid room, where a doctor and/or nurse will be available from 8:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. A paramedic will also be on duty as long as delegates are in the building.

A full slate of events and activities has been planned for the two weeks of the conference. The opening event was the bishops' reception which took place Monday night and reflected the ethnic diversity of the area. The ballroom of the convention center was decorated to carry out the theme "In a Tongan Village," and during the evening, we were entertained by "our" Tongans with traditional song and dance.

Luncheon Mini-Tours

Several mini-tours to outreach projects are being offered during lunch breaks, with lunch included in the tour. First on the schedule is a walking tour of lower downtown. The number of openings for each tour is limited, so we encourage you to sign up as early as possible at the visitor information desk.

Special Event Day, April 21

Special Event Day, April 21, will give you the opportunity to choose how you would like to experience the Denver area. Available within a two-hour drive of Denver are six day-long tours that will enable you to experience a taste of the West and interact with people from the area. If you prefer not to take an extended tour, several area churches invite you to worship with them. Afterward, you may explore Denver on your own. For information about tours, church locations, and where persons from General Conference will be speaking, check at the visitor information center.

A Night with Yellowstone

To complete your day, we invite you to join us that evening for what promises to be a great experience. The convention center will open at 7 p.m. for an exhibition of the work of nationally-known sculptor and artist Tim Holmes. At 8:00 p.m., "A Night with Yellowstone" will begin with music and dancing by a group of Blackfoot Native Americans followed by a concert by the Montana Logging and Ballet Co. Tickets for these events will be available at the visitor information desk until 5:30 p.m. Friday.

Events for International Delegates/Guest

Each day during the conference, international delegates and guests are invited to have lunch at Warren, Grant Avenue, or St. Paul's United Methodist Churches. Each of these downtown Denver churches has an active mission in its neighborhood.

Meals will be brought from other churches as we work together to extend our hand of hospitality. On April 22, international delegates will be special guests for lunch at Cliff School of Theology. Transportation will be provided daily.

Host families have been looking forward to housing guests from other conferences as well as from our own. The Supplemental Housing Committee has done a great job of compiling a list of hotels, motels, and a dormitory within a short distance of downtown Denver. Persons answering the requests have enjoyed the contacts they have made in helping delegates find suitable accommodations.

Refreshment Breaks

We are planning daily refreshment breaks. Dozens of cookies are being donated by churches across the two conferences, so plan on lots of good munching! (We also encourage everyone from a lower altitude to take advantage of the water stations that have been set up for your convenience.) In asking attendees to make a donation for beverages at the refreshment breaks, we are following the lead of the Louisville Conference in 1992. While we have $50,000 to $60,000 budgeted for amenities to make your stay an enjoyable one, spending $15,000 on coffee and cold drinks isn't good stewardship.

Although we, like every conference in Methodism, have to deal with financial limits, there are no limits to the amount of time, energy, and hospitality we will demonstrate in taking care of you as long as you are our guests. If you need anything, please stop by the visitor information center and let us know.

—Paula Johnston

Bishop Judith Craig to Deliver Episcopal Address

Ohio West Area Bishop Judith Craig will present the episcopal address to the 1996 General Conference.

— David Cottrill/West Ohio News

Bishop Judith Craig, resident bishop of the Ohio West Area, will deliver the episcopal address this evening at 8:15 p.m.

The presentation is precedent-setting in more than one way: Bishop Craig is the first woman bishop to present the address in the 184-year history of such endeavors, and she is the first to combine multimedia musical and visual images with the spoken word, in a departure from the traditional presentations of a "state of the church" address.

"My plan was to make this address more pastoral and invitational," Bishop Craig said in a recent interview. "At first I had this little idea of a few slides and a couple of graphic charts, but it's turned into something much more."

When the Council of Bishops voted two years ago to designate Bishop Craig as the speaker, her colleagues chose someone who has been a pioneer throughout her life.

One of five children of Ray and Edna Craig, Bishop Craig is a native of Liberty, Missouri, where she received her high school diploma and graduated from William Jewell College.

While serving as a youth director for Bellefontaine Methodist Church in St. Louis, Bishop Craig studied at Eden Theological Seminary in Webster Groves, Missouri, and received an M.R.E. in 1961. After an internship in the New York City office of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., she became director of Christian education at First Methodist Church in Stamford, Connecticut. She worked there through 1968 while earning an M.Div. at Union Theological Seminary in New York City.

For the next two years the bishop studied at Teachers College of Union and Columbia University, specializing in the religious education of adults. During the same period, she was an instructor in adult basic education in the New York City School System for one year and an educational consultant at Epworth-Euclid United Methodist Church in Cleveland for the other.

The attraction of parish work prevailed, and in 1970 she became Epworth-Euclid's director of Christian education, serving in that position until she was ordained deacon in 1972. After ordination, she was appointed associate pastor at Epworth-Euclid.

Ordained elder in 1976, she was appointed to Pleasant Hills United Methodist Church in Middleburg Heights, Ohio. In 1980 Bishop James Thomas appointed her director of the East Ohio Conference Council on Ministries. She served as director until her election as bishop in 1984 at the North Central Jurisdictional Conference in Duluth, Minnesota.

Bishop Craig's consecration set another precedent: The bishop who laid hands on Judith Craig was Marjorie Matthews, the first woman bishop in Christendom in almost 800 years. For both women, the moment was electric—the first such moment in modern times.

Bishop Craig's service in a variety of aspects of the life of the Church both before and after her consecration has given her wide experience and a broad perspective on The United Methodist Church. She served the Michigan Area as bishop for eight years and was assigned to the Ohio West Area in 1992.

Elected to both General Conference and jurisdictional conferences in 1980 and 1984, she was a member of the General Council on Ministries from 1980 to 1984 and a bishop on the General Commission on the Status and Role of Women from 1984 to 1988.

Bishop Craig served as chairperson of The Advance for Christ and His Church from 1988 to 1992. In producing the videotape that introduced the Advance at the 1992 General Conference, she drew on her Christian education roots while having fun with a group of children and a kite on a windy day.

Currently she is a member of the General Board of Publication. On her episcopal visitation in 1994, she traveled through the Middle East to Egypt, Israel, Palestine, and Cyprus, representing the Council of Bishops in meetings with the Middle East Council of Churches.

Tonight's multimedia episcopal address may have been her idea—or someone else's. "In the early consultations, the conversations sometimes went all day," she said. "Did I first offer this, or did someone else?"

Regardless of who may first have made the suggestion, Bishop Craig's conversation with a group that included UMC's General Secretary Judy Weidman ensured the idea would become reality. "She said, 'We'll do it with you,'" Bishop Craig recalled. And that is what happened.

Noting that UCom staff member Vince Isner spent days looking through photographs, video clips, and other images, Bishop Craig added that as soon as the rough cut was ready Isner took it to Lake Junaluska where Bishop Sharon Rader was reading the second draft of the episcopal address to the Council of Bishops while its author recuperated at home from knee surgery.

"There was tremendous affirmation from the Council," Bishop Craig said. Handed to UCom staffer Jay Voorhees for polishing, the address is almost in its final form. The last addition will be images from the afternoon service of Holy Communion, which will be edited into the final version of the presentation only moments before it begins.

"I feel like a major giver and receiver of gifts," Bishop Craig says, "and I feel I've done a significant piece of work. [The address] has been a constantly emerging work of the Spirit, and it is offered in a way that I believe will help the life of the Spirit be the basis of the Church's life."

—Tom Slack

The First General Conference

This year marks the 204th anniversary of General Conference. The first assembly—of clergy only—took place on November 1-15, 1792, in Baltimore. It was attended by ambitious, divisive, even tyrannical church leaders.

Within a fledgling denomination, the first General Conference was a showdown of sorts between rival clergymen. In his essay, Crisis of Leadership: The General Conference of 1792, Frederick A. Norwood writes that Methodists, for the first time, were forced "to deal legislatively with the personal tension between episcopal and parliamentary authority"—a tension that remains part of Methodism today.

Much of that tension surely was felt in the shoulders and back of Francis Asbury. The first American "bishop"—a term John Wesley opposed—of this young American church, Asbury wore a halo no straighter than those of his feisty colleagues. Some viewed him as tyrannical. Others sensed that he lacked the acumen of an administrator and felt compelled (perhaps called) to test his leadership mettle. Imagine Asbury's thankless task: to head a preachers' conference with literally no rules or constitution to keep the bishop's or conference's actions in check.

A motion made at the first General Conference would limit the power of the bishop, an action directly targeted at Asbury. Following heated debate, the motion was voted down. After less than a week, the Rev. James O'Kelly and like-minded colleagues became the first official members to walk out of a General Conference.

However, the wheels were in motion. The General Conference turned attention to enacting church legislation. The 1792 conference marked the beginning of an unbroken succession of quadrennial meetings on the state of the church. It became a quadrennial body answerable to the people called Methodists. Several decades passed, however, before lay delegates were included in General Conference. And it was another 100 years before women were admitted.

1996 Laity Address Calls God's People to be "Partners in Ministry"

James W. (Jim) Lane of Sherwood, Arkansas will present the laity address at 9:00 on Wednesday morning.

James W. (Jim) Lane of Sherwood, Ark., cares deeply for his church, his Lord, and the vital role and involvement of laity in bringing the redemptive message of Jesus Christ to the world. He has proven those strongly held beliefs through exceptional leadership and service over the last three decades to his local church, district, and conference, as well as to the general Church, world Methodist organizations, and ecumenical bodies. So it is natural that this longtime United Methodist has been selected to deliver the 1996 laity address at General Conference. Yet, his selection has nothing to do with his personal accomplishments or leadership roles. What convinced the Executive Committee of the National Association of Annual Conference Lay Leaders (NAACLL) to ask Lane to speak for the Church's 9.7 million lay members were his thoughts and ideas for the future of the Church—a Church made stronger by its network of "Partners in Ministry," the theme for this year's address.

Paul R. Ervin Jr., president of the NAACLL, explained that the process for selection of the laity speaker was altered this quadrennium "because we want the message to be the focus and not just the messenger." Annual conference lay leaders, rather than laity at large, were invited to submit written manuscripts, which were then judged "blind," without the names of the authors attached. A panel of independent judges considered the 17 manuscripts that were submitted. "I was stunned when I learned my manuscript was selected," said Lane, lay leader of the North Arkansas Conference. "I was also very thrilled that what I wrote was selected and not me or what I've done or any office that I've held."

Lane explained that he began putting his thoughts down on paper more than a year ago as he studied the North Arkansas Conference vision statement. "I began to formulate ideas and images that came into my mind as I connected with the statement and it began to speak to me. I wrote sitting at my computer for one whole day, and it just grew and grew from there." He wrote: "We are being drawn like a magnet toward this new century. Our imagination has been captured by all kinds of 'what if' questions about 'what might be' in the year 2000.... As United Methodist Christians, today is our time to see the visions, dream the dreams and to prophesy, as God's Holy Spirit is now poured out upon us. As the story of Esther informs us in the Old Testament—God has surely brought us to this place for just such a time as this!"

When the contest for selecting the laity speaker was announced, Lane made some additional changes and submitted his "visioning" thoughts. The address is now entitled "Partners in Ministry: A Vision for the Year 2000." Since the selection was announced in November, Lane has presented the address before NAACLL members and continued to perfect the document. "While the laity address is not a consensus document from the conference lay leaders, I received wonderful input and many helpful and constructive suggestions from them," Lane said.

The 1996 address examines "the imagery of the next millennium," Lane said, and his "hopes and dreams of the Church centering its mission and ministry on reaching out and receiving people where they are, relating them to God through Jesus Christ, training them in Christian discipleship, and then sending them out in their community for ministry." Lane feels that with this approach at its core, "the Church will be far better served than if we choose to chase after myriad social issues that tend to separate and divide us.

Not only will this be Lane's first opportunity to formally address General Conference, but the audience of about 2,000 delegates and observers will be the largest audience he's ever faced. Previously, his largest audience was 900 persons who participated in the North Arkansas Conference Vision 2000 launch event in 1995. Lane was the first lay delegate to be elected to the North Arkansas Conference's 1996 delegation. Previously, he served as a reserve delegate to the 1984, 1988, and 1992 General Conferences. Retired from U.S. Government Federal Civil Service and the U.S. Army reserve, the 59-year-old Lane is a delegate to the 17th World Methodist Conference to be held in Rio de Janeiro in August. A delegate to the 1996 South Central Jurisdictional Conference, he is co-chair of the Jurisdictional Committee on the Episcopacy for the next quadrennium. He is a member of the Forum of 32, which assisted the General Council on Ministries in its Connectional Issues Study over the last quadrennium. He previously served on the General Commission on Communication, on the 1984 General Conference Hymnal Revision Committee, and on the board of managers of the National Council of Churches' Department of Communication. Lane is currently chair of the North Arkansas Conference Vision 2000 Task Force and Council on Lay Life and Work. He is a member of the Conference Council on Ministries, Committee on Nominations, and Planning Committee, as well as the Arkansas Area Committee on the Episcopacy.

A member of Levy United Methodist Church, Little Rock, Ark., he has been a lay member of the North Arkansas Annual Conference every year since 1972. Lane has 30 years' experience as a certified lay speaker and an adult Sunday school teacher. He is a member of the Arkansas Interfaith Conference and a teacher of DISCIPLE Bible Study. A writer and computer enthusiast, Lane has written articles for Interpreter magazine and authored lay speaking resource booklets for the General Board of Discipleship and Hinton Rural Life Center, Hayesville, N.C. Lane's latest honor is being elected the next president of the NAACL.

The laity address will be presented Wednesday, April 17, during the morning session of General Conference. Among friends and family members who will be in the audience will be Lane's wife of 33 years, Nell Bizzell Lane. "I'm not nervous about giving the speech," he said. "I'm just hopeful the message I've written will come across."

Bishops' Prayer Vigil

The bishops have committed themselves to a 24-hour prayer vigil from the opening worship service Tuesday, April 16 through the closing business sessions and adjournment Friday, April 26.

A room in the hotel where the bishops will stay and room C207 in the convention center are being designated as chapels where visitors and delegates can join the bishops in their vigil.

Bishops' and Spouses' Choir to Sing

At 7:30 p.m. on the opening night of the conference, a choir of bishops and spouses will sing under the direction of Joy Solomon, wife of Oklahoma Bishop Dan Solomon. White said he believes the choir is a "first" for General Conference. "It will give the church an opportunity to see its episcopal leadership and spouses in quite a different role," he said.

Custom Audio Cassette

The Daily Christian Advocate offers delegates and visitors the opportunity to obtain any segment of any plenary session for $7 per each 30-minute segment.

Blessed Be the Women: Be Counted! Go Tell!

Just over 100 years ago, the first woman was seated at the 1892 General Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church. Today, women comprise nearly 35 percent of the 1,000 delegates making decisions at the 1996 General Conference of The United Methodist Church. We celebrate the presence of women here in Denver. We also encourage women to be counted, to participate fully in the times of discernment, prayer, and decision making. Women, in particular, have not always been encouraged to be counted. The Easter story offers one example: As the women returned from visiting the empty tomb, their witness was discounted, called "foolish." All of us participate in different ways as we share the fruits of our different gifts. Some of us are more accustomed to listening for long periods before we speak; some of us share our thoughts immediately. Factors affecting persons' full participation may include differences in language, culture, and hearing and sight abilities. Certainly, old patterns may sometimes be difficult to change. As Christians, we have been called to value the contributions of members of the body of Christ and to trust Christ's transforming love to do so. Moreover, as United Methodists, we have committed ourselves to seeking the full and equal responsibility and participation of women by charging the General Commission on the Status and Role of Women with challenging "The United Methodist Church...to a continuing commitment to the full and equal responsibility and participation of women in the total life and mission of the Church, sharing fully in the power and in the policy making at all levels of the Church's life" (Para. 2202. At this General Conference, the commission is providing a monitoring ministry in keeping with that covenant. In addition to tracking legislation for its potential impact on the status and role of women, a team of commission members and volunteers will be observing legislative committees and plenary sessions and counting the number of times women and men participate in decision making processes. Each day in the Daily Christian Advocate, the commission will provide feedback that will give some indication of women's participation. Look for this "Be Counted!" box and be aware of ways in which all delegates may share fully and responsibly in the important decision making at this General Conference. Doubtless, we may face times of tension and stress in our discernment, yet we will also be blessed with moments of tenderness and humor. The General Commission on the Status and Role of Women asks God's blessing on each of you as you listen for God's voice speaking among you.

What to See and Do in Denver

The Mile High City Denver is not called the "Mile High City" because it sits on top of a mountain. In fact, it is also known as the "Queen of the Plains" due to its location on the plain at the base of the Rocky Mountains. Those who come to see mountains will not be disappointed, however. Denver's elevation (at the 15th step of the state capitol) is exactly 5,280 feet.

On a clear day, you can see Pikes Peak near Colorado Springs and all the way to the Wyoming border, a panorama that includes over 1,000 peaks more than two-miles high.

While Denver's economy is primarily based on the energy industry, tourism is its second major industry. Half of Colorado's acreage is publicly owned, with extensive areas of spectacular scenery open to hiking, fishing, camping, and cross-country skiing.

The state has two national parks, six national monuments, 11 national forests, three national recreation areas, and 30 state parks.

Initially a staging area for the 1859 gold rush about 10 years after the gold rush in California, the city was established as a mining camp after a few flakes of gold were found.

The first building was a saloon. However, after sizable claims were mined at Central City and Cripple Creek, increasing numbers of new millionaires began to make their homes in Denver.

Although Denver is generally viewed as a western city, it is only 346 miles from the geographic center of the U.S. Population has doubled since the 1960's, and the city is second only to Washington, D.C., in the number of college graduates per capita.

Many delegates have already walked through the troubled but beautiful new Denver airport that opened 13 months ago. Early problems with a costly baggage-handling computer have been resolved, and the facility is impressive. Covering 53 square miles—twice the size of Manhattan Island—the airport will eventually be able to service 110 million passengers a year.

United Methodist Denver University and Iliff School of Theology

Denver is home to United Methodist Denver University and Iliff School of Theology, one of the 13 United Methodist seminaries in the U.S.

Museum of Western Art

Fans of western art will also want to visit the Museum of Western Art that includes paintings by Frederic Remington and Georgia O'Keefe (open Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., 1727 Tremont Place, 296-1880). The role of Black cowboys, who made up a third of the cowboys in the great roundups on the Plains, is featured in the Black American West Museum.

U.S. Mint

Coins stamped with a "D" are minted in Denver at the U.S. Mint at 320 West Colfax (open weekdays, 8 a.m. to 2:45 p.m.). A 10-minute tour shows you how metal blanks become shiny new coins.

Denver Art Museum

Make sure you stop by the Denver Art Museum to see its 35,000-piece American Indian exhibit. Adjacent you'll find the home of Ann Evans, daughter of Colorado's second territorial governor (open Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Sunday from noon to 5 p.m., 100 West 14th Avenue Parkway, 640-2793).

Denver Museum of Natural History

At the Denver Museum of Natural History, your children will enjoy seeing one of the largest gold nuggets found in Colorado as well as the skeletons of prehistoric animals (open daily 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., 322-7009).

Denver Zoo

After the museum, stop by the Denver Zoo for a visit with some 3,000 animals representing 300 species (open daily 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., E. 23rd Ave. at Steele St. 331-4110).

Buffalo Bill Memorial Museum and Grave

Another thrill for young people of all ages is meeting impersonators of characters from the Wild West such as Buffalo Bill, who makes scheduled appearances at the Buffalo Bill Memorial Museum and Grave, atop Lookout Mountain in Golden, near Denver.

Botanic Gardens

Nature lovers may want to take a 10-minute ride east of downtown to Denver's Botanic Gardens (1005 York St., 331-4000).

Cherry Creek Mall

You may want to drive out to the million-square-foot Cherry Creek Mall, noted for Tattered Cover, a bookstore that offers 140,000 titles.

Gart Brothers Sports Castle

And even though it is April, avid skiers will be able to take to the slopes. Gart Brothers Sports Castle, which claims to be the largest sporting goods store in the world, offers a test run down a simulated ski slope for die-hard enthusiasts of the sport.

City and county building graces the Denver skyline.

Sports-minded delegates already know about the Denver Broncos football team, the Denver Nuggets basketball team, and the Colorado Rockies baseball team. It is truly a major-league city.

Elitch Gardens, a downtown amusement park with more than 20 rides including three roller coasters, opens weekends in mid-April for delegates who find the need for more excitement than floor debates (455-4771).

You will want to visit historic Larimer Square (1400 Larimer Street). The shopping center features flea markets, craft shops, galleries, and restaurants, housed in buildings with gas lamps, brick facades, and Victorian woodwork. Larimer Square is just off the mile-long 16th Street Mall, a pedestrian walkway that unifies the downtown. Make a stop at Gart Brothers Sports Castle, which claims to be the largest sporting goods store in the world. Even in April, you can do a test run down a simulated ski slope.

Methodist Beginnings in Colorado

On November 16, 1858, a company of travel-weary settlers reached the confluence of Cherry Creek and the South Platte River. Among them was wagon-maker George W. Fisher, whose arrival in the area would initiate the rapid spread of Methodism throughout the Rocky Mountain region.

A Methodist lay preacher, Fisher wasted no time in holding church services in the new settlement that soon became known as Denver City. The first services took place out-of-doors or in a rudely constructed log cabin that otherwise served as a gambling hall. By the following spring when the Kansas-Nebraska Conference sent the first officially-appointed Methodist leaders as missionaries, Fisher was also preaching regularly in the developing mining town at Mountain (now Central) City.

Early Missions Take Root

One of the leaders sent by the Kansas-Nebraska Conference was superintendent William H. Goods, known as the father of Nebraska Methodism. Accompanying him was Jacob Adriance, who was to become known as the father of Methodism in Colorado and whose Diary is an invaluable resource for students of the early history of Methodism in the region.

Working in the zeal of the Lord, Goods and Adriance organized the first four Methodist churches in the region in 1859 during the space of five months: Central City on July 11, Golden on July 17, Denver City and Auraria Mission (now Trinity) on August 2, and Boulder on November 27. Originally established as separate towns on opposite banks of Cherry Creek, Denver City and Auraria united in 1860, taking the name of a former Governor of Kansas, James W. Denver.

Included among early church leaders of this period were William Howbert, who came from Iowa in 1860, and John L. Dyer of Wisconsin, affectionately known as "Father." Howbert and Dyer helped organize Breckenridge, Leadville, Fairplay, Cañon City, and Colorado City, which is now the western part of Colorado Springs. Dyer traveled widely throughout southern Colorado to Pueblo, Trinidad, and many other settlements. Organized in 1863, the Rocky Mountain Conference changed its name the following year to the Colorado Conference. It again became known as the Rocky Mountain Conference in 1957.

A Vision for New Mexico

As a delegate to the General Conference in 1868, Dyer urged the conference to send missionaries to the New Mexico territory. Not content to depend on others to take the initiative, however, he began the work in the "Rio Grande District" soon after his return to Colorado, riding his horse as far south as El Paso, Texas, and later into eastern Arizona to preach. Dyer estimated he had ridden his horse over 10,000 miles during a two-year period in New Mexico (1868-1870).

When the early work in New Mexico met with little success, Dyer persuaded his friend Thomas Harwood to leave Wisconsin and commit himself to this mission field. Harwood and his wife Emily ministered in New Mexico for many years, and both became fluent in Spanish. A school teacher, Emily helped establish a school that was later named after them.

After the New Mexico Mission separated from the Colorado Conference in 1872, Thomas Harwood was named superintendent over five churches with a total of 74 members. When the New Mexico Mission divided into English- and Spanish-speaking sections in 1884, with 8 and 16 churches respectively, Harwood became superintendent of the Spanish-speaking division.

The Work Expands into Wyoming

Even before the work in New Mexico began, John Dyer dreamed of expanding mission outreach to Wyoming in spite of the fact that there were few permanent settlements in that region. As a result of that vision, the first Methodist church in Wyoming was established in Cheyenne, Dakota Territory in 1867, the same year the town was organized.

The following year a Methodist church also began meeting in Laramie. These two churches made up the Dakota District of southern Wyoming. Rev. W. W. Baldwin of the Colorado Conference and Dr. G. F. Hilton, a physician and retired minister from Wisconsin, were the first preachers in Cheyenne and Laramie respectively. In conjunction with Greeley, Colorado, these towns made up the first circuit in the region.

The main expansion of the Colorado Conference in Wyoming followed the development of railroad camps during the construction of the Union Pacific Railroad through southern Wyoming in the 1870's. By 1888, with new churches taking root in Rawlins, Rock Springs, and Evanston, the Wyoming Mission Conference had grown large enough to separate from the Colorado Conference.

A Period of Prosperity

The year 1870 inaugurated a period of steady growth for Denver. Linked that year to the transcontinental railroad at Cheyenne, the town's dependence on mining and gold speculation increasingly gave way to farming and ranching interests. Denver's prosperity benefited the church as well. When Henry White Warren came to Denver in 1884 as the first resident bishop, the conference included 51 churches, 15 of which were in Denver, with 4 in Wyoming.

John L. Dyer retired in 1880 after a lifetime of profitable service for the Methodist Church and for the Lord. He died in Denver in 1901 at the age of 89. Dyer's memory is preserved in the name of the Breckenridge church where he last served and by his likeness in a stained glass window recognizing early pioneers in the State Capitol building.

The Methodist Episcopal Church, South

The same year Howbert came to Denver, 1860, a congregation of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South also organized; this congregation erected the town's first church building. With the outbreak of the Civil War the following year, however, most of the members returned to their homes in southern states, and the work disbanded. Reorganized in Denver in 1871, Methodist Church, South congregations in Colorado primarily concentrated in the southern half of the state where they were closely tied to that denomination's development in New Mexico.

Different Language Churches

A number of non-English-speaking Methodist churches affiliated with other conferences developed in Denver during the latter part of the 1800's. West German Conference Methodists established a church in 1872 under the leadership of such men as lay leader Henry Reitz, eventually disbanding in 1926. In 1883, the North Western Swedish Annual Conference organized a congregation of Swedish-speaking Methodists that joined the Colorado Conference when the Swedish Conference disbanded following the 1939 merger.

Throughout the first two decades of the 20th century, Japanese Methodists, Italian Methodists, and Spanish-speaking Methodists added their own congregations. African-Americans organized a church related to the Methodist Episcopal denomination in 1904. One of its ministers, Matthew Clair, Jr., a graduate of Iliff School of Theology, was elected bishop in the Central Jurisdiction in 1952. Trinity Methodist Church maintained a Chinese Sunday school in the early years, as did the Methodist Episcopal, South denomination.

The University of Denver

From the beginning, the early settlers of the region considered education a priority. Led by former Governor John Evans, several Methodist laymen organized the Colorado Seminary in 1864, the first institution of higher education in the mountain region. Although the struggling institution closed its doors after four years, a new board of trustees established the University of Denver in 1880, again under Evans' influence and guidance. Its first chancellor, David H. Moore, was later elected bishop.

Within 10 years, hampered by limited space for expansion, the University of Denver relocated to South Denver, which was at that time many miles outside the city limits. The most significant period of development in the early part of the century came under the guidance of Chancellor Henry Augustus Buchtel during a 21-year period from 1900 to 1920. Five new buildings were constructed as the student body and faculty grew significantly.

The Iliff School of Theology

In the late 1800's a local businessman and cattle baron began to dream of a school to train ministers. Although John Wesley Iliff died too young to bring his idea to fruition, his vision became reality through the efforts of his widow, Elizabeth Iliff, after she married Bishop Henry White Warren in 1883.

Initially, the Iliff School was a graduate division of the University. When the first class enrolled in 1892, the students met in University Hall, the only building on campus at that time. Almost immediately, however, John and Elizabeth's son, William Seward Iliff, provided funds to construct Iliff Hall. Classes moved into the new building in September 1893.

Financial difficulties, added to other challenges, caused Iliff School to close from 1900 to 1910. During this decade the endowment increased, however, allowing the school to reopen in 1903 incorporated separately from the University.

Heroes of the Faith

The words of B. F. Crary, who served 8 years as a presiding elder of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South during these early years, are a fitting tribute to all the men and women who labored so faithfully to preach the gospel in the Rocky Mountain region. Writing in 1880 of the hardships and trials of the work of that period, he concluded, "Our only regret was, all the time, that we could not plant more churches and send out more preachers. No more heroic men ever lived than our glorious cohort of frontier preachers. They deserve immortality and eternal life."

Proposal for Three Korean-American Missionary Conferences

The following petition was inadvertently omitted from the Advance Editions.

Petition Number: 21731-CO-NonDis-O$; National Association of Korean-American United Methodist Churches

Executive Summary of Proposed Korean American Missionary Conference

Proposed Action

- Request the 1996 General Conference to create three Korean-American Missionary Conferences in the Northeastern, North Central, and Western Jurisdictions.

Purpose

- To provide opportunities for distinctive language and cultural ministries with Korean Americans by developing new congregations.
- To provide channels for full participation in the life of The United Methodist Church
- To develop meaningful connectional ties
- To develop strong lay and clergy leadership of both genders and all generations

Rationale

- One million Korean Americans in the United States today whose primary language and culture is still Korean
- While 75% have some ties with the church, many do not "belong" to a church, and many churches have no ties to a denomination
- As of 1994, there are 295 Korean American UMC churches and congregations
- Korean American churches have unique characteristics that set them apart from other UMC churches
- Cultural misunderstandings and shifting circumstances have caused difficulties between UMC structures and Korean American churches
- Another structure for ministry needs to be explored

General Provisions

- Missionary conferences to be temporary structures; target termination date—2016
- Financially self-supporting
- Be consistent with the polity and provisions of The Book of Discipline

- Existing Korean churches may remain in annual conferences or join the new missionary conferences
- Inclusion of laity, second and transgenerational persons, and women—particularly women clergy—in all aspects of the missionary conference.

Organization and Administrative Structure

- Earliest anticipated date of the conferences—July 1997
- Will have a cabinet, conference council on finance and administration, council on ministries, and board of ordained ministry
- Additional administrative and program agencies and committees to be organized

Cooperation

- An umbrella structure such as National Commission on United Methodist Korean Mission to coordinate and support missionary conferences and existing missions
- To coordinate the work of missionary conferences and the UMC at large

Proposed Korean American Missionary Conference

1. Proposed Action

We request the 1996 General Conference to create Missionary Conferences in three jurisdictions as follows:

Northeastern Jurisdiction Korean American Missionary Conference

North Central Jurisdiction Korean American Missionary Conference

Western Jurisdiction Korean American Missionary Conference

2. Rationale

Korean Immigration and the Impact of Cultural Diversity on the UMC

There are nearly one million Korean Americans in the United States today,* the great majority of them having arrived in this country during the past twenty-five year period. In addition to the population increase, the presence of a new and distinct community has become evident in the rapid spread and visibility of “Koreatowns,” small businesses as well as corporations, and Korean language media (TV, radio, newspaper). While this new community promotes acculturation into the mainstream American culture primarily through education and social mobility, its primary language and culture is Korean. Given that the average length of residence in the United States for Koreans is eight years, the Korean community is basically an immigrant community, and the community process is largely conducted in the Korean language. Many in the community retain strong ties with Korea and Korean American social groups.

As Korean immigrants settled into their new homes in America, the Korean American Christian church became the center of their social and cultural life. About 65% of the Koreans attend Protestant churches and additional 10% attend Catholic churches regularly. Though over 75% of the Korean American population have relationships with the church, there are many individuals who do not “belong” to a church. In addition, there are Korean American churches that do not have membership with a denomination. As a missionary people, God is sending us forth to incarnate the Risen Christ in this community. Persons and churches among these people are bearing their distinct witness to Christ and offering their unique services to their people and the wider world. As of 1994, there were 295 Korean American United Methodist churches and congregations.* Although these churches belong to The United Methodist Church, they have distinctive features which set them apart from other UMC’s. They worship, fellowship, exercise their faith, and administer the church in their native language in their own unique cultural style, which has allowed the church to enter their community for most effective witness and service.

In response to the shifting demographics of Koreans in America, annual conferences, general boards and agencies, and bishops selflessly extended their efforts to reach Korean immigrants. Praise God! Regretfully, as a result of cultural misunderstandings and shifting circumstances, painfully demoralizing conflicts developed between the respective parties. Those offering their services in existing UMC structures realized that the complexities of the emerging and growing Korean American communities, and the scope of the services required of them far exceeded their capabilities. At the same time, Korean American communities, sincerely wishing to be cooperative and helpful, discovered that the demands of belonging to The United Methodist Church often exceeded their best intentions. It became apparent that another structure for ministry needed to be explored for Korean American churches and the UMC to continue in partnership.

Creation of the Jurisdictional Korean Missions

The 1988 General Conference authorized the creation of jurisdictional missions to supplement annual conference efforts in establishing new Korean American churches (¶¶ 663, 664). Five jurisdictional missions have since been launched, with the participation and support from Korean Americans and persons of other ethnic heritage in annual conferences, the jurisdictional colleges of bishops, and the General Board of Global Ministries.

Through these missions, United Methodism has established one hundred new congregations between 1988 and 1995. Twenty-nine of these have since become chartered churches in their annual conferences.

Additional Needs Surface

The UMC has learned throughout her history that new churches, regardless of their ethnicity, are not prepared at birth to participate fully in annual conferences nor in the general Church's mission. New churches require continual nurturing on all levels of program and the church. Preparing Korean American Methodist churches for their distinct participation in God's mission through The United Methodist Church requires training in the denomination's polity, programs, appointment system, and outreach—including interpretation, apportionment, Advance Specials, and Volunteers in Mission. Specialized training for this community requires unique skills to address their particular language and cultural needs.

While the general boards and agencies, as well as the annual conferences, have provided significant nurture and training, they recognize that their efforts have only signaled a start and are not sufficient.

The Jurisdictional Korean Missions also recognize their limitations. They were created to start new churches. According to The Book of Discipline and their by-laws, the missions are not organized to address the mounting need for the specialized and sustained training required by local Korean American UMC's. Nor are the missions authorized to handle rapidly shifting appointment needs as was true in the denomination's early development.

Missionary Conferences Continue to Build on the Momentum

The Book of Discipline (§ 659) provides for the creation of missionary conferences. This structure would sharpen the denomination's focus on developing her mission opportunities found in the Korean American community and churches. This structure would also build on the work of general boards and agencies, as well as annual conferences, the jurisdictional missions, and local congregations.

Missionary conferences would specialize in not only developing new congregations among this highly diversified immigrant group, it would also nurture them to fully participate in the mission of the wider church. Furthermore, the missionary conferences shall be futuristic and prophetic in focusing on ministries for the future generations (transgeneration, second and proceeding) of Korean Americans. Overall, the missionary conferences shall prepare local Korean American churches for distinct contributions to United Methodist outreach throughout America and the world.

Missionary conferences provide a setting to contextualize faith in Christ under the community's indigenous and diversified leadership so that their faith will address the unique dimensions of the issues common to all of us. These include issues related to spiritual needs, social problems, bridging gender and generational differences, reaching across class and racial lines, and spreading clergy and lay leadership in God's mission.

While those with Korean language skills will be very prominent in leadership, all persons, churches, conferences, boards and agencies, regardless of their ethnicity or language skills, can find ways to participate in this missional thrust of The United Methodist Church. Details of these possibilities can be explored in the proposed membership, structure, leadership, programs, funding, and tenure of the missionary conferences outlined below.

Our Faith and Calling

In the Acts of the Apostles we read about the Holy Spirit spreading the presence of the Risen Christ through persons crossing geographic and cultural barriers (Acts 1:8). United Methodism came into existence and continues at its best moments to offer Christ to new constituencies by entering existing communities and crossing the frontiers of emerging communities. The circuit rider who forged into new and unknown territories for the sake of ministry and God remains an appropriate symbol of that heritage.

We are, therefore, a people sent by the Holy Spirit into God's world (John 20:21) to make disciples (Matthew 28:19-20). They are formed into classes and congregations to become a part of the body of Christ as they continue the ministries begun in Christ (Romans 12:4-8; Ephesians 4:11-16). The time has come for United Methodism to build the momentum for mission with Korean American missionary conferences. They will help us all enter into a rapidly growing community which is lively, highly diversified, and ripe for witness to Christ and service in his name. Dear God, help us! Amen.

3. Purpose

The purpose of these missionary conferences is to make disciples for Jesus Christ by equipping the Korean American United Methodist churches for ministry, providing a connection for ministry beyond the local church, and empowering the Korean American community for mission—all to the glory of God.

These missionary conferences will provide opportunities for distinctive language and cultural ministries with Korean Americans by developing new congregations, providing channels for full participation in the life of The United Methodist Church, developing meaningful connective ties, and focusing on the development of strong lay and clergy leadership of both genders and all generations.

These missionary conferences can be an example of a new model designed to meet the needs of our changing society and the global village. This model may serve as a good example to what other immigrant communities in The United Methodist Church can do to further their ministries. The missionary conferences may also provide new models for the annual conferences of the UMC to better respond to the needs and hopes of our society, which is increasingly becoming pluralistic and multicultural.

4. General Provisions

A. Korean American missionary conferences will be created in three jurisdictions where there is a significant number of Korean American persons.

For the time being, the two remaining Korean missions of the South Central and Southeastern jurisdictions will continue to function as missions until such time as when they may choose to seek another option. Funds used to support the three other missions shall be diverted to support the ministry and growth of these two missions.

B. It is anticipated this shall be a temporary structure. The General Board of Global Ministries shall evaluate its effectiveness in mission and report to General Conference each quadrennium. The target termination date is the year 2016.

C. All structures of the missionary conferences shall have as one of their main responsibilities, the orientation and training of the Korean American constituency on United Methodist connective system for the purpose of strengthening the participation of these churches in The United Methodist Church.

D. These missionary conferences will enhance the interpretation of the connective mission of The United Methodist Church by providing their fair share of human and financial resources.

E. These missionary conferences will be self-supporting and will model an innovative and alternative organizational and operational style.

F. A bishop will be assigned by the respective jurisdictional college of bishops to provide episcopal supervision as prescribed by The Book of Discipline (§ 660.1).

G. The organization, memberships and relationship of the missionary conferences shall be consistent with the polity and provisions of The Book of Discipline as stated in §§ 659, 660, 661, 662; ¶ 12; and §§ 21, 22, 23.

H. Missionary conferences do not necessarily include all Korean speaking congregations within the annual conference boundaries. Existing Korean speaking congregations shall be given the opportunity to decide whether they will remain a part of the present annual conference or the Korean American missionary conference.

I. The missionary conference shall comply with the disciplinary provisions of inclusiveness as provided in §§ 113, 439.2c, 530 and other similar references. Therefore, special care and emphasis will be given to include laity, second and transgenerational persons, and women in all aspects of the life and leadership of the missionary conferences.

In cooperation with the General Board of Global Ministries, each missionary conference shall develop specific goals and action plans for inclusiveness.

J. The missionary conferences shall organize committees for English Language Ministry and Intercultural Families. These committees shall be represented on the conference Council on Ministries and other conference committees as appropriate.

K. A Clergywomen's Committee shall be instituted on the Board of Ordained Ministry.

L. The missionary conferences shall seek increasing opportunities for interaction with the annual conferences in their jurisdictions.

5. Organization

A. Organization of the missionary conference will follow the process of organizing an annual conference (§ 707).

B. Membership of the missionary conference will come from the following three categories of churches:

1) Mission congregations in the current Korean missions

2) a. Korean American churches which transfer from annual conferences following the provisions of § 44.

b. Korean American clergy members who transfer following the provisions of § 427.

3) Churches received from Korean Methodist Church and other Korean American churches in accordance with the provisions of §§ 44 and 272.

C. To provide inclusive clergy participation, affiliate memberships, with the rights and privileges described in § 443.4, may be granted by the missionary conference to Korean American pastors appointed in geographical annual conferences.

D. Election of lay membership as defined in § 35.

E. The earliest anticipated date the missionary conference could be operative is soon after July, 1997. In order for the body to be formed, the steps mentioned above will need to be taken.

6. Administrative Structure

6.1 Cabinet

The cabinet shall be appointed according to the provisions of ¶ 660.1.

Consideration shall be given to the district superintendent serving in a part-time capacity and without salary.

In the selection of district superintendents, bishops shall give due consideration to the inclusiveness of The United Methodist Church with respect to sex and age (¶ 517).

6.2 The Basic Structures

The three basic structures shall be the conference Council on Finance and Administration, conference Council on Ministries, and Board of Ordained Ministry.

6.3 Additional Structures

Additional administrative and program agencies and committees may be organized as the missionary conference deems necessary, such as Board of Trustees, Board of Pensions, Board of Diaconal Ministry, Board of Laity, Council of Youth Ministry, and United Methodist Men. United Methodist Women units in local congregations shall be organized, as well as a conference United Methodist Women unit related to the Women's Division of the General Board of Global Ministries in each Missionary Conference.

7. Cooperation

The General Board of Global Ministries is encouraged to organize such an umbrella structure as a National Commission on United Methodist Korean Mission to connect, coordinate, and support the ministry of the three missionary conferences and the two existing jurisdictional missions which shall participate as equal partners in this process.

The commission shall also take the role of coordinating and connecting in the area of relation, mission, and ministry and program between the Korean missionary conference structures and The United Methodist Church at large. The commission shall be inclusive of laity, second and transgenerational persons, women, intercultural persons, and Korean Americans who are not members of the missionary conferences in membership.

8. Plan of Action

June 1996

- Organization of three missionary annual conferences.

- Adoption of a four-year plan for each conference.
- Development of new models and structures

June 2000

- Evaluation of first four-year plan.
- Evaluation and revision of initial models and structures.
- Adoption of second four-year plan.
- Sharing of learnings with other immigrant constituencies, annual conferences, and the General Conference.

June 2004

- Evaluation of second four-year plan.
- Selection of successful models and training of churches.
- Adoption of third four-year plan.
- Sharing of learnings with other immigrant constituencies, annual conferences, and the General Conference.

June 2008

- Evaluation of third four-year plan.
- Training of Korean American churches according to successful models.
- Design UMC structural change suggestions for annual conferences and UMC boards and agencies to reintegrate Korean American missionary conference churches in cooperation with Korean language churches who are not members of the missionary conferences.

- Adopt fourth four-year plan.

- Sharing of learnings with other immigrant constituencies and annual conferences.

June 2012

- Evaluation of fourth four-year plan.
- Present suggestions for UMC structural changes to reintegrate Korean American missionary conference churches to annual conferences and UMC boards and agencies.

- Adoption of fifth four-year plan.

- Sharing of learnings with other immigrant constituencies and annual conferences.

June 2016

- Full integration of Korean American missionary conference churches into annual conferences.

9. Finance

There are approximately 233 Korean UM churches and fellowships in the three proposed conferences. Of this number, approximately 163 are expected to join the proposed conferences initially.

Petitions to the 1996 General Conference

The following is a list of 3,070 petitions that the secretary of the General Conference has forwarded to the Committee on Reference for its review and referral to appropriate legislative committees. Abbreviations and the petition code may be found on pages 1207-1209 of Advance Edition II.

This list is sorted in alphabetical order by source. Petitions from individuals are sorted by last name; petitions from local church groups are sorted by the name of the group; and petitions from annual conferences are sorted by the annual conference abbreviations. Petitions from multiple sources are sorted by the first source listed on the petition.

Perfect commemoratives for home or office

Accent your bookshelf with beautifully exquisite bookends created especially for United Methodists. Crafted of resin, with a bold bronze finish, each set will be a lasting reminder of the humble beginnings of the Methodist movement. From the very start, the burden of the Methodist church rested on the shoulders of those who were willing to commit themselves wholeheartedly to the cause of Christ.

For those who would remember the commitment of leaders in the past, these exquisite bookends serve as daily reminder of the great heritage of The United Methodist Church.

THE GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

Denver, Colorado

Wednesday, April 17, 1996

Vol. 3 No. 2

Holy Communion, Episcopal Address Highlight Day One

When the early circuit riders and missionaries struggled to the foot of the Rockies, where Native Americans were already at home, did they ever imagine the future? Did they conceive of a time when nearly 1,000 delegates plus their reserves, 125 bishops, and 2,000 staff and visitors would gather in Denver to celebrate and map the future of a worldwide, vibrant United Methodist Church?

But on Day One of the 1996 United Methodist General Conference it happened, beneath the familiar cross and flame symbol and the theme: "In Essentials Unity, In Non-Essentials Liberty, In All Things Charity".

The opening procession for the Communion service began with the cross lifted high, followed by the bishops from Africa, Asia, Europe and the United States. Bishop Sharon Brown Christopher and Bishop Woodie W. White served as liturgist and celebrant respectively.

In his sermon, Bishop Roy I. Sano challenged delegates to embrace a future which appreciates the distinctive contributions of women, people of color and those marginalized. "The past will be surpassed, but not supplanted," he said. "New surprises and new possibilities await us. Let us keep open to new possibilities and respectful of our past."

After debating the report of the Committee on Plan of Organization and Rules of Order (reported elsewhere in the DCA), the gathering dispersed throughout the convention center to meet in legislative committees, elect officers and begin to consider more than 3,000 petitions, reports and proposals.

In the evening the General Conference experienced three of many "firsts" for the 10-day event. Bishop Judith Craig, the first woman to deliver the Episcopal Address, echoed the unity theme: "The church we order must be an open house, where Jesus sits at the doorway and welcomes all who come." For the first time, the address was accompanied by a multi-image visual, prepared by United Methodist Communications, and a choir of bishops and their spouses sang, another first.

Acknowledging potential conflicts over several issues, Bishop Craig heralded the church as "alive and well." She listed: 29 Africa University graduates just six years after the school's beginning; 400,000 Disciple Bible Study graduates; more than 500,000 persons completing the Walk to Emmaus; more than 2,700 U.S. youth and young adults attending events focusing on ordained and diaconal ministry; a National Plan for Hispanic Ministry taking wing; a growing United Methodist presence in Russia; and more than 103,000 Volunteers in Mission. And the list continued.

"Is the church alive? Does evangelizing bear fruit? . . . You know the signs. You are the signs," the bishop said. "The [Communion] table stands between the old and new covenants, bringing together as one the continuing activity of the God of all covenants."

The Computer Bug Ate Them

That's the only explanation we have for four petitions that should have been in one of the two advance editions of the DCA.

"We caught the missing petition related to the Korean Missionary Conference early," said J. Richard Peck, DCA editor. "We were able to include that petition in yesterday's edition." The editor's furrowed brow would lead one to believe he is concerned a few more petitions might show up missing.

"I hope the bug had a restricted diet," the editor continued. "If not, the achieved record of entering 3,064 petitions and only dropping four isn't bad. I guess we could get our contract renewed!"

Reception Honors Bishops, Judicial Council

The evening before the official opening of the 1996 General Conference, delegates and friends came together for a "homecoming" to honor episcopal leaders and their spouses and the 10 members of the Judicial Council.

"Welcome the world to our neighborhood!" was the theme for the festive Monday evening event in the Convention Center ballroom. Honored were 68 active bishops, including 17 from conferences in Africa, Asia and Europe; 60 retired bishops and their spouses from around the world; and 33 widows of bishops.

"The Tongan Village Dancers," Rocky Mountain Annual Conference church members from Tonga, provided entertainment. The ballroom was divided into sections, decorated and named for Tongan villages.

This first gathering gave General Conference goers an opportunity to greet their episcopal leaders and reunite with friends in other conferences worldwide. Participants took full advantage of this opportunity with joy, tears, memories and the discovery of new friends.

Buttons, Buttons, Everywhere!!!

If you have a message for the delegates at General Conference, it has probably been put on a button. Many groups, caucuses, boards and agencies have created buttons to make themselves visible here. The buttons are just beginning to become visible. Share your buttons with the DCA, and we will publish a collage of the buttons in a future issue. Drop them by the DCA office, attention Brad Motta.

Newly Elected Officers Take Crash Course

Twenty newly elected chairpersons and vice-chairpersons met with several General Conference leaders for a crash course in how to be effective leaders of their respective legislative committees. Robert W. Stevens, Pacific Northwest Conference lay delegate, focused on how to move legislation through so it will be in good shape for consideration by the General Conference.

Carolyn Marshall, General Conference secretary, acted as moderator and offered assistance to the leaders, most of whom are in their positions for the first time.

Bishop Dan E. Solomon cautioned: "Remember you are about God's business. You must give leadership in that light. You have accountability to the gospel and accountability to the task."

The new leaders also heard from representatives of groups which will work with them: the General Commission on the Status and Role of Women, which will monitor the legislative committees; United Methodist Communications, which is videotaping the plenary sessions; and the translators.

"Your job starts immediately," Bishop Solomon said, "because you must return to your rooms tonight and become familiar with your petitions. It will be a very long night."

CHURCHES IN COVENANT COMMUNION

The Church of Christ Uniting

Approved and recommended to the churches by the Seventeenth Plenary of the Consultation on Church Union

PART I

THE COVENANTING PROPOSAL

WHAT KIND OF UNITY?

1) Scripture makes clear that Jesus calls the church to become visibly one. On the night before his crucifixion, Jesus prayed for the disciples and for those who would follow:

“I do not pray for these only, but also for those who are to believe in me through their word, that they may all be one; even as you, Father, are in me, and I in you, that they also may be in us, so that the world may believe that you have sent me.”— John 17:20-21

2) Based on the conviction, grounded in Scripture and Tradition, that God wills the unity of the church, the following proposal describes a covenantal form of unity. Biblical examples of unity are expressed in metaphor, such as Isaiah’s vision of the peaceable kingdom (Isaiah 11), and in parable, such as Jesus’ story of the great feast. (Luke 14) Rooted in the nature and action of the triune God, who is revealed to us as unity in diversity, the covenanting churches of the Consultation on Church Union hold to the vision of a reconciled and reconciling household of faith. Scripture and Tradition provide guidance on matters of unity, even though no blueprint exists.

3) Attentive to the yearnings and insights discerned from ecumenical dialogues over many years, the partner churches have come to believe that such a form of unity bears at least the following characteristics:

(a) Celebration of God’s grace will be central to our life together. (Eph. 2:12-21)

(b) Working together in Christ’s mission of salvation for the whole world will mark our endeavors. (Matt. 28:18-19a)

(c) Each member, by virtue of baptism, will be understood to be a member of the apostolic and priestly ministry. (I Peter 2:9-10)

(d) The form of unity will mirror the diversity of its membership in every aspect of its fellowship and ministry. (I Cor. 12:12-27)

(e) In seeking God’s justice in church and world, the reconciled communions will embody the unity that is God’s gift. (Lk. 2:46-55)

(f) Because of the mutual enrichment of our several traditions, this covenantal form of unity will more faithfully reflect the universality of the body of Christ and include the strengthening of our previous ecumenical commitments. (I Cor. 1:12-17)

(g) Covenant communion assumes a new kind of ecclesial reality, an organic life that includes, in Pauline language, those “joints and ligaments” which enable the church to act as one body knit together under Christ the head. (Col. 2:19; Eph. 4:15-16)

4) Given such characteristics of the unity God wills for the church, the Consultation on Church Union calls upon its member churches to confess their complicity in the sin of the church’s division, and to do all that can be done to exhibit that unity. Moreover, the Consultation proposes to the member churches, in the pages that follow, a form of unity which it believes to be at once faithful to God’s will, appropriate to the present circumstances, and open to the future for renewal and reformation. It is a proposal which calls for unity of heart and mind, for unity in faith, in prayer, in the breaking of bread, in the Word of the gospel, in ministry, in sharing, and in witness and service to the world. (Acts 2:42-44) Such unity will be a visible witness to the world of God’s saving power in Jesus Christ. The Consultation on Church Union calls the churches to communion in Christ — a covenantal communion in faith, sacraments, ministry, and mission. The name here given to the churches in covenant communion is The Church of Christ Uniting, and the means by which it comes into being is referred to as “covenanting.”

II. WHAT IS COVENANTING?

1) “Covenanting,” as the Consultation uses the term, is both an act and a process by which the churches come into a new relationship with one other.

2) It is an act of covenant by churches which, though one in Christ, are currently divided from one another. By this solemn act the churches will commit themselves, before God and each other, to live henceforth in one covenantal communion even though they continue to exist as distinct ecclesiastical systems.

3) Such a covenantal act will inaugurate also a process of deepening commitment by these churches to one another in which the Spirit’s gift of unity in Christ will be enabled to grow and to flower. The process will be one of maturing in unity as the covenanting churches jointly identify and take such mutually agreed actions as may serve to deepen their communion in faith, sacrament, ministry, and mission.

4) In covenanting, diversities remain even while the covenanting partners become truly one. Moreover covenant communion is itself a way of being one. The church is by its very nature a pilgrim people. Through covenant communion the relationship with one another will grow, deepen, and change as it matures over the years, as this covenant communion is drawn forward by the Holy Spirit into the fullness of God’s perfect will for the church.

5) In covenant communion the churches may maintain, for so long as each may determine, their own church structures and traditions, including present forms of worship, systems of ministerial selection, training, and placement, their international, confessional, and communion relationships, and their mission programs. What covenanting means is that these now separated churches will resolve to live as one in the most basic things — in faith, sacrament, ministry, and mission. Uniformity in structure is not essential to covenant communion.

6) Approaching Christian unity in this way will tend to focus the energy of the churches' shared life upon the local communities of now separated congregations. For it is in such towns, neighborhoods, and local areas that Christians most often gather about the Word and sacraments, served by their recognized ministers, in living communities of faith and mission. Covenanting will make it possible for these several congregations in each place to see themselves not only as members of a particular communion but also as members of a living and functioning communion of communions, sharing the one baptism, proclaiming the one faith, receiving together the one bread and cup, recognizing the ministry of each as a ministry to all, and reaching out as one in love and service to the world.

7) A covenant communion of churches is, by definition, committed to becoming truly inclusive. Each partner is enriched by sharing in the gifts that God has given to the other. Each partner works to take down walls of alienation that exist between the churches, and to overcome attitudes which tend to marginalize persons in regard to race, class, age, gender, disabilities, marital status, sexual orientation, and positions of power and powerlessness, and to live toward a church in which all participate in the wholeness of Christ.

8) In covenanting, the churches will make an act of common repentance for the sin of disunity among them, and for the sins which inhibit community within the human family. In living out that repentance, the covenanting churches dare to believe that in sacramental communion these sins can be faced in a substantially new way. What is needed for reconciliation is a new and intentional community of the Spirit, rooted in one Lord, one faith, one baptism, and nurtured at one eucharistic table. Such unity anticipates God's coming future, now unfolding in Jesus Christ. It is the promised gift of the Holy Spirit to those who penitently ask for it and diligently seek it.

9) Covenant communion is intended to be a sign and forerunner of the community God wills for the world. In its ultimate intent, it is for the salvation of each and all. It is for the redemption of the world.

III. HOW TO INITIATE COVENANTING

1) Faithfulness to God's mission in the world impels the member churches to enter into covenanting. To initiate covenanting, actions of several different kinds will be required. Just as doctrine, polity, and liturgy are basic to the church's life and mission, so also the initiation of covenanting has these same three interrelated dimensions:

- Theological: the churches receive and voice together the faith of the church through the ages.
- Governmental: the governing bodies of the church consider and act on commonly developed proposals for Christian unity.
- Liturgical: the churches' unity is declared and confirmed in corporate acts of worship.

To initiate covenanting, action in all three of these dimensions is required, in faith that it is God who moves the churches to act and who alone is able to sustain them in covenant communion. In Christ, the interrelationship between these three dimensions can be discerned: the church's theological affirmation is grounded in the joyful praise of God, with implications for the church's polity; its governmental decision has a theological grounding, with implications for the church's worship; and its liturgical action has a grounding in the church's polity, with implications for the church's theology.

2) The theological dimension of entering into covenanting is basic to the rest. The Consultation on Church Union has looked carefully at the differences which historically have divided the several traditions. Through the consultative process, confirmed by the claiming of The COCU Consensus, the churches have come to recognize in one another the apostolic faith of the church universal: the Tradition. Through covenanting, the distinctive treasures of these several histories will be maintained, while their insights and emphases will be made increasingly accessible to others for the common good. The process of covenanting begins by joyfully affirming the Christian faith.

3) The governmental dimension of entering into covenanting is also essential. This has to do with the decision making processes of each church. It includes voting. For the church, however, voting is much more than an exercise of democratic rule. When Christians gather in church governing bodies and seek God's leading through prayer and careful listening to one another in faith, God is there in the midst of them. The formal decision by each church to enter into this new relationship is therefore much more than a preparation for covenanting, but is itself a dimension of covenanting. Such governing action by each church is, the Consultation believes, a manifestation of God's action through the Holy Spirit in drawing the churches together into covenant communion.

4) The liturgical dimension of entering into covenanting is crucial as well. It is God who affects reconciliation in the divided household of faith. Corporate expressions of mutual commitment, shared hope, and common will must therefore be lifted up together in words and actions appropriate to the worship of God. Agreements reached separately must be celebrated together. The liturgical action in covenanting is much more than a ceremonial capstone for a uniting covenant which has been successfully voted; the liturgical action itself will be a sign and means of church unity.

5) Each of these dimensions has both an internal and an external aspect, related respectively to the church's life and to its mission. Thus the church's doctrinal life, consisting in appropriation of apostolic faith through continual theological reflection and teaching, finds its missional aspect in the urgent proclamation of the gospel of Jesus Christ, by word and deed, in and to the world. Similarly, the church's polity as the pastoral pattern of its life in Christ at once stands under the constant judgment of the gospel of God's reign and is directed to active mission for a just and life-giving stewardship of creation. Also, the worship of God in the church's life issues in mission and service to the whole human community created in the divine image and redeemed by Christ from its multiple distortions. Mission illuminates each of these three dimensions.

6) Crucial to covenant communion, in all three of the dimensions by which it is initiated, is a deliberate process of reception of the covenanting agreements by the churches. Such reception includes the participation and nurture of the people of the church, enabling them to understand and to receive these agreements and to enter fully the covenant communion into which their churches are being drawn. No such communion is possible, whatever one's system of church government may be, without the willing and joyful assent of the people of God. To that end, it is essential that the membership of the churches be fully informed about what is being proposed, so that their AMEN may be from the heart. A strong educational effort, accompanied by relationships which anticipate covenant life, can be an important part of the reception process. These can serve as vehicles of the Holy Spirit for building and strengthening ecclesial communion, as the churches find themselves increasingly beckoned of God to be and become one covenant people in Christ.

IV. THE ELEMENTS OF COVENANTING

1) Since the unity that we seek is not chiefly organizational, what then are the identifying characteristics of that covenant communion here described? Through the Consultation on Church Union, the participating churches have together identified eight elements of covenanting, none of which now consistently characterize the relationship between these churches. They are:

1. claiming unity in faith;
2. commitment to seek unity with wholeness;
3. mutual recognition of members in one baptism;
4. mutual recognition of each other as churches;
5. mutual recognition and reconciliation of ordained ministry;
6. celebrating the Eucharist together;
7. engaging together in Christ's mission;
8. formation of covenanting councils.

These are described more fully below. They are called "elements" because each is regarded as basic to a covenant communion of churches. Together, they comprise a single reality, and each in its own way is essential to the whole.

Claiming Unity in Faith

There is one body and one Spirit, just as you were called to the one hope that belongs to your call, one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of us all, who is above all and through all and in all.— Ephesians 4:4-6

2) The "one faith" which the church proclaims and by which it lives is the faith of the one holy catholic and apostolic church. This is the faith to which Scripture and Tradition bear witness. Notwithstanding differences of emphasis and interpretation, the covenanting churches dare to affirm their essential unity in the faith. Claiming that faith in common is basic to covenant communion

3) The ancient ecumenical creeds are not only witnesses to the faith but also abiding symbols of that faith. The divided voices of many churches, however, make it difficult today for the faith of the church to be heard by all as one. After more than two decades of theological work by officially designated persons responsible to the most authoritative bodies in the several churches, it is now evident that an essential core of theological agreement exists and continues to grow among these churches in matters of faith, worship, sacrament, membership, ministry, and mission. That agreement is expressed in The COCU Consensus: In Quest of a Church of Christ Uniting (1984). The existence of that document is a sign of these churches' basic unity in faith; their claiming of it is treated as an element of covenanting.

4) The COCU Consensus is not a complete exposition of every article of Christian doctrine. It is intended rather as a sufficient expression of the apostolic faith, order, worship, and witness to enable the participating churches to enter together into a covenanting relationship. It also is intended as the theological foundation for the vision of a covenant communion of communions which these churches seek by God's grace to become. It is therefore the theological basis of the document in hand, Churches in Covenant Communion: The Church of Christ Uniting. For a fuller expression of what it means to "claim" the consensus, see the Foreword of The COCU Consensus, pages 2-3.

5) Commitment to Christian unity is essential if churches are to become visibly one. The Consultation affirms that unity is a gift of God, to be made visible among the churches in response to the prayers and actions of those who diligently seek it.

6) Through patient and persistent work over many years, the covenanting churches have been led by God to overcome seemingly insurmountable obstacles to unity in matters of faith, sacraments, ministry, and mission. For this the church gives thanks to God. Yet the churches still are not one in other ways. Racism and sexism still live as idolatries in churches, continuing to divide and destroy. Handicapism marginalizes people with disabilities as the institutions of both church and society continue to value physical wholeness in divisive and destructive ways. Rich and poor seldom worship God together. These are theological issues, just as truly as those of sacrament and mission, for they demonstrate to the world the church's disobedience to the will of Christ "that they may all be one."

7) Commitment to a living unity, therefore, requires a change of heart — "transformed by the renewal of your mind" — not for the sake of the church alone, but ultimately for the sake of that larger oneness for which our Savior prays. To repent of sins that divide Christ's body is to turn from them to God, committed by God's grace to obey the clear will of Christ. It means being ready to change, especially in these idolatries which alienate and cause pain to sisters and brothers in Christ. It is to seek a unity that is inclusive of all who are baptized into Christ, while rejoicing in the diversity of persons and gifts which the Spirit has given to the church.

8) In Christ "there is neither Jew nor Greek." God abhors racism. It is essential to Christian unity that there be a redress of racism and a commitment to racial inclusiveness, in both our churches and our society. This is not alone a matter of justice or mission. This commitment is fundamental to Christian community itself, for the church is continually called to be and to become one living communion in Christ.

9) In Christ "there is neither bond nor free." God abhors all forms of oppression, whether economic oppression or that of society's exclusion of persons with disabilities. In a community where any enrich themselves at the expense of the poor, or exert power through the disadvantage of others, Christian unity cannot exist. The gospel which the church proclaims is "good news to the poor... release to the captives... recovery of sight to the blind... liberty to those who are oppressed." Inclusiveness is not just a matter of goodwill, but of the justice which the gospel demands. It is therefore of the very nature of the church, which is called to be one living body in Christ.

10) In Christ "there is neither male nor female." God abhors sexism. Degradation or diminution of others on the basis of gender, whether intended or not, is an affront to them and an offense to their Creator. The church often has fostered attitudes which devalue women. Such attitudes are the root cause of many evils which the church deplores, such as domestic violence, pornography, and the disproportionate poverty of women. Opportunities for leadership and full participation in the church are in many instances still effectively closed to women. The church cannot be whole without the gifts both of women and men in covenant communion through Christ.

11) Inclusiveness is essential to Christian unity. The word "inclusive," however, must be used with some care. For example, ethnic minorities often hear the word as a patronizing invitation to become part of the dominant group — to enter another's reality, but one which the other continues to dominate. Gay and lesbian persons in most churches seldom are included at all, if they are open in acknowledging their sexual identity. The appeal to inclusiveness is heard by some as an invitation to give up one's distinctive identity and merge into a culture alien to one's own. So the word "inclusive" is not an altogether adequate word, though it is far better than any others that have yet been proposed to replace it. The Consultation uses it, therefore, sensitive to its possible misuse, being deeply persuaded that there can be no unity for the church unless it is truly inclusive. By "inclusiveness" is meant the catholicity of God's inclusiveness.

12) The goal of this covenant communion is not a homogenization of all differences into a new sameness, but a new community in Christ, in which differences are affirmed, accepted, and celebrated as the gifts of God for the common good. This is a work of divine grace. The integrity, moral authority, and strength of witness that this covenant communion of churches will have within the nation and the world will be in significant measure related to its becoming, by God's grace, a truly inclusive communion in Christ.

Mutual Recognition of Members in One Baptism

13) Scripture and Tradition are united in witness that there is one baptism with water in the name of the triune God. Baptismal practice among the churches, however, is quite diverse, including both a variety of baptismal modes and, for some, preliminary acts of dedication or blessing and, for others, additional acts of affirmation of baptismal vows such as confirmation. This diversity reflects not different baptisms but different facets of the one baptism into the one body of the one Lord. (Eph. 4:4-6)

14) At its 1974 plenary session the Consultation on Church Union proposed a "Mutual Recognition of Members," by which it invited the member churches to recognize that "all who are baptized into Christ are members of Christ's universal church and belong to and share in Christ's ministry through the people of the one God, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit." Over the next four years each of the participating churches took formal and official action approving this resolution. These acts were a dramatic witness to our unity in Christ.

15) In its 1979 plenary, the Consultation proposed to its member churches that each take actions to move "Beyond Affirmation to Action" in implementing such mutual recognition. Many suggestions were offered by the plenary, and a number of significant actions were taken in response by the several churches, but much remains to be done. Recovery of our unity in baptism is at the heart of the covenanting journey, for it is central to realization of genuine koinonia among the churches. Mutual recognition of members in one baptism is of basic ecclesiological significance. It implies recognition of the ministry of all the others in the common priesthood in which and from which God calls those ministers who will be ordained. Membership in Christ and in Christ's church is for every believer a calling by God to ministry and witness in the world.

16) A church's membership in the Consultation on Church Union implies at least some recognition of the other member churches as participants in the one church of Jesus Christ. So also does membership in a council of churches. In local experience, congregations have sometimes achieved relationships which amount to mutual recognition in spite of certain canons and constitutions of their churches. The fact is, however, that the member churches of the Consultation on Church Union, acting in conformity with their respective foundational documents and theological principles, have not yet recognized each other as churches truly catholic, truly evangelical, and truly reformed. The absence of mutual recognition comes as a surprise to many who have been unaware of the official positions of the churches, and compels us to press on until such mutual recognition is achieved.

17) Covenanting provides the occasion and the means whereby that which is implicit in the relationship among the churches may become explicit, that which is privately and unofficially acknowledged may be openly and joyfully declared before God and many witnesses. To that end, in the liturgical event in which covenanting is inaugurated, participating churches through their authorized representatives will together make affirmations of:

- faith in the one God who through the Word and in the Spirit creates, redeems, and sanctifies;
- commitment to Jesus Christ as Savior and as the incarnate and risen Lord;
- obedience to the Holy Scriptures which testify to Tradition and to which Tradition testifies, as containing all things necessary for our salvation as well as being the rule and ultimate standard of faith;
- commitment to faithful participation in the two sacraments ordained by Jesus Christ, baptism and the Lord's Supper;
- commitment to the evangelical and prophetic mission of God and to God's reign of justice and peace;
- grateful acceptance of the ministry which the Holy Spirit has manifestly given to the churches.

These affirmations are to be voiced together in the liturgical act by which covenanting will be inaugurated. Through these words spoken together, each church will publicly and officially recognize the others as authentic expressions of the one, holy, catholic, and apostolic church of Jesus Christ. This liturgical action will fulfill the intention to confess the faith together affirmed in Chapter V of The COCU Consensus, where the fundamental sources of the doctrine of the faith are described in detail: Scripture, Tradition, and the creeds and confessions of the church, together with worship, mission and inclusiveness as forms of confession.

Mutual Recognition and Reconciliation of Ordained Ministry

18) Through their baptism all Christians are called and empowered by the Holy Spirit to share in the ministry of Jesus Christ in the church and in the world. Those among them who are ordained to particular ministries share also in that common ministry of the people of God, and represent to every member the ministry of Christ to which all have been called. Because the ministry of the baptized is affirmed already by each of the covenanting churches, there appears to be no impediment to public recognition and reconciliation of this common ministry. Obstacles remain to be overcome, however, to affect the mutual recognition and reconciliation of our ordained ministries. In the paragraphs which follow, therefore, attention is focused largely upon the ordained because that is where obstacles to the mutual recognition and reconciliation of our ministries lie.

19) The theological understanding of ministry, both lay and ordained, which underlies covenanting is set forth in Chapter VII of The COCU Consensus. But it is important to remember how that chapter of the Consensus is intended to function in the covenanting process. It is not a constitution.

Many details are deliberately left unsettled. There is room for the participating churches to grow together in unforeseen ways as they work out the implications of the covenant.

In the realm of ministerial order, just as in the doctrines of the faith, there is a historic tradition which these churches hold in common, despite their differing expressions of it; and it is this that the Consultation has sought to express in Chapter VII of The COCU Consensus. The concept of ministry expressed there is not embodied in quite this way in any of the participating churches. Yet there can be seen in the divergent polities of the member churches particular ministries which are in fact episcopal, presbyteral, diaconal, and lay in their essential nature. Chapter VII articulates this historic, underlying pattern, providing thereby a common frame of reference for recognizing in one another's ministries the ministry of the church through the ages, and thus for reconciling their ministries one to another. Uniformity among the several church polities is not essential to covenant communion; but mutual recognition and reconciliation of the ordained ministries is essential, for it is integrally related to the recognition of churches.

20) Mutual recognition of ordained ministries is intended to acknowledge in these ministries the manifest blessing of God and the fruit of the Spirit, and to affirm that they are rooted in the apostolic tradition. Such recognition does not obscure real differences, but neither does it depend upon first setting those differences aright according to one's own tradition before recognition can be granted. To the contrary, the mutual recognition of ordained ministries is a way of acknowledging both the headship of Christ over every ecclesial tradition and the freedom of the Spirit to work in and through these traditions however the Spirit wills.

21) Reconciliation of ordained ministries is intended to refer to actions by the churches, both separately and together, whereby the ordained ministries of each covenanting church become one ministry of Jesus Christ in relation to all. This is not intended to mean that the standard of ministerial training and certification must become the same for all the churches, nor that their call or appointment systems must change, but rather that the ministry of one may function, whenever invited, as a ministry to all. This is not now possible among all of the covenanting churches. Hence, covenanting will make possible an enrichment of the ordained ministry for each church, as well as provide a new and visible demonstration of our essential unity in faith, sacraments, ministry, and mission.

22) The method by which the covenanting churches intend to accomplish reconciliation of ordained ministries is, first, by setting this reconciliation in the context of mutual recognition of members in one baptism, mutual recognition of churches, and mutual recognition of ministries. Within the covenanting liturgy, these three acts will precede the reconciliation of ordained ministries and, taken together, are regarded as foundational to it. For the sake of reconciliation, the sequential order of these acts is important, and their close conjunction with one another is equally important. This ordering is reflected in the accompanying liturgy for declaring covenant and reconcing ordained ministers. Reconciliation of ministries enables full eucharistic sharing.

23) Having mutually recognized one another's ministries, these ministers will then offer themselves in mutual commitment to one another, so that their ministry in the wider covenant communion may be received and appropriately ordered in all of the covenanting churches. To this end, the accompanying liturgies provide that the reconciliation of bishops shall include words of mutual commitment to one another in covenant, and an act of mutually laying hands upon each other in acknowledgment of the authority of the other churches within which each will, from time to time, exercise elements of shared ministry through covenanting. So also, the accompanying liturgy for the reconciliation of presbyters and welcoming of deacons includes words which similarly acknowledge the authority of the other churches within which each is enabled to minister occasionally through covenant communion and an act of laying on of hands by a reconciled minister of episkope, together with other signs of reconciliation and peace.

24) Lest there be any misunderstanding in regard to the sign of reconciliation which these liturgies employ — the laying on of hands by an authorized minister of oversight — the covenanting churches recognize and declare that these are not liturgies of ordination or reordination, but of reconciliation among those whose ordained ministry already has been mutually recognized. The act of laying on hands is used for many different purposes within the church. It is used in blessing, in confirmation, in dedication, in anointing the sick, in commissioning to tasks of education or of mission, as well as in ordination. In each case, it is the context which defines its purpose. In the covenanting liturgies, the laying on of hands is administered in silence. The context, especially the prayer which precedes or follows, leaves no doubt as to its meaning: it is an act of reconciliation.

25) The Consultation is persuaded that no other sign serves that purpose as well as the ancient sign of the laying on of hands by the churches' authorized ministers of oversight. From the beginning of their journey together, the covenanting churches have sought a distinctively new communion: one that is simultaneously catholic, evangelical, and reformed. However evangelical and reformed this covenant communion may be, it will not effectively invite recognition of its ordained ministries by all parts of the universal church if the reconciliation of ordained ministries does not include the historic sign of episcopal succession — the laying on of hands. Its use under the circumstances here defined has to do, not with ordination, but with the recovery of a visible and widely valued sign of unity and continuity within the church of God, a sign that in this case signifies the mutual sharing of our ordered ministries. This understanding is in harmony with increasingly universal ecumenical understanding.

26) Just as the use of this sign is judged to be essential, so also the way it is used is equally essential: by the mutual laying on of hands. It is in the mutuality of this act that each tradition gives to the other a sign of acceptance and of deepened or enriched understandings of ordination and episkope as they have been preserved and practiced in the separate churches.

27) When reconciliation of ordained ministries has been achieved at the regional level, everyone who is ordained thereafter in that region will be ordained into an already reconciled ministry. No further act will be required to accomplish reconciliation. Nonetheless, the ordination of women and men to the ministry is such a highly visible act in the life of the churches that it provides for our covenant communion an unparalleled opportunity to demonstrate before the church and the world the unity which God has given. From the date of inauguration of covenant communion, there will be no more ordinations carried out in denominational isolation from the other covenanting churches. The Covenanting Councils will enable the conduct of all ordination of persons, credentialed by the churches, through the laying on of hands and prayer by reconciled bishops together with the presence and participation of ministers, both lay and ordained, from as many of the covenanting churches as possible. Moreover, it is the desire of the covenanting churches that these ordinations be conducted according to mutually acceptable rites, in order to facilitate participation from all parts of the covenant communion.

28) All of the participating churches in COCU already have a ministry of Word and sacrament, but not all now have a personalized ministry of episkope at the middle judicatory level where ordination and pastoral care of pastors is lodged. Nor do all now have a regularly constituted office of deacon. It will be the responsibility of each participating church, prior to the COCU liturgy in which covenant is declared and ministries are reconciled, to determine how its present categories of ordained ministry relate to the historic categories set forth in The COCU Consensus, Chapter VII.

29) Among the several functions of deacons listed in paragraph VII.63 of The COCU Consensus, the one function which may be regarded as sine qua non in identifying persons who are to be put forward initially for reconciliation as deacons is: "(f) Servants in Pastoral Care." Among the several functions of presbyters listed in The COCU Consensus VII.56, those which may be regarded as sine qua non in identifying persons who are to be put forward initially for reconciliation as presbyters are: "(a) Preachers of the Word," and "(b) Celebrants of the Sacraments." Among the several functions of bishops listed in paragraph VII.51 of The COCU Consensus, those which may be regarded as sine qua non in identifying those who are to be put forward initially for reconciliation as bishops are: "(c) Pastoral Overseers" of districts or regions, "(e) Representative Ministers in the Act of Ordination," and "(g) Servants of the Unity of the Church."

30) Each covenanting church may find these ministerial offices already existing within its polity, or may make amendment of existing offices to the extent necessary to fulfill the intention of ministry reconciliation through covenanting, or may create a new office within the integrity of its continuing polity but in a manner conformable to the intention of ministry reconciliation through covenanting. Each church may assign or continue to use such names for these offices as it may desire; however, in the shared life of the churches they commonly will be identified as deacons, presbyters, and bishops of the covenant communion of the churches.

31) By reconciliation through covenanting, a presbyter or bishop does not acquire new rights, powers, or authority within his or her own denomination or communion. Such decisions about authority are properly left to the member churches. Rather, through ministry reconciliation it becomes possible to act in ecclesial unity with other lay and ordained ministries of the covenanting churches to make manifest in new and wider ways the visible and organic unity of the church.

Celebrating the Eucharist Together

32) The Lord's Supper is the sacred feast of the people of God. In communion with Christ, members of the church are renewed in their communion with one another in Christ, and are commissioned afresh to be Christ's agents of reconciliation in the world. The sacrament is at the heart of the church's life. Regular celebration of the Eucharist together is at the heart of covenanting as well.

33) Observance of the Lord's Supper is a sign of the church's unity in Christ. In the present divided state of the churches, it is an ironic witness against their disunity as well. As Christians gather in all their diversity at one table of the Lord, they give evidence that their communion is with Christ, and hence, that they are in communion with one another in Christ. But when Christians are unable or unwilling to partake together of the one Eucharist, they witness against themselves and give a visible demonstration of the brokenness of Christ's body. Common celebration of Holy Communion is essential to the unity we seek.

34) The sacrament of the Lord's Supper exhibits a richness of meaning that is larger than the tradition of any single church. Its essential meaning is briefly stated in The COCU Consensus, Chapter VI, paragraphs 15-19. Without obscuring differences which remain, the covenanting churches find in The COCU Consensus sufficient agreement regarding the meaning of the Lord's Supper to enable partaking of it as one, while allowing for diversity of administration and practice. At the same time, they share in an increasingly universal convergence of Christian understanding that includes the following elements which should characterize all eucharistic liturgies:

- it is a great thanksgiving to God for everything accomplished in creation and redemption;
- it is a memorial of the crucified and risen Christ and a sign of Christ's redeeming love for all humankind;
- it is an invocation of the Holy Spirit who makes the crucified and risen Christ really present to us in the sacramental meal;
- it is a communion of the faithful who, in communion with Christ, are in communion with one another in Christ;
- it is a meal of the kingdom, a foretaste of the final redemption of all things in Christ.

The eucharistic liturgies already authorized by the churches of the Consultation reflect such a mutually accepted pattern

35) Shared celebration of the Eucharist is both a sign and a means of unity in Christ. Even before the inauguration of covenanting, the churches' experience of interim eucharistic fellowship over more than a decade has demonstrated the dynamism of regular eucharistic sharing for the sake of Christian unity. The power of reconciling grace made present in the sacrament has been compelling in furthering a new degree of unity between churches which have been deeply separated for many years along racial lines. It is that same power which has long been evident at the Lord's Table within each church, effecting the reconciliation of those who have become personally, politically, or theologically estranged from one another.

36) The Lord's Supper also is a powerful centering reality for the church's mission. The church always is tempted to pursue either institutional or ideological ends in mission, substituting its own will for the will of Christ. Some even regard Christian unity as an enemy of the church's mission, in the belief that unity draws energy away from cherished causes. But at the eucharistic table, we "show forth the Lord's death until he comes." That is in itself a powerful act of gospel proclamation, providing the spring for Christian witness and action. Indeed, it is the paradigm of all that the church is called to say and to do in mission in the world. Unity and mission are one at the Lord's Table.

37) In covenanting, it is important that common celebrations of the Eucharist be planned with intentional regularity. The frequency of such occasions is left to the discretion of the covenanting partners in each place.

Engaging Together in Christ's Mission

38) Mission is essential to the church's apostolicity. The church is apostolic not only because it continues in the faith and teaching of the apostles, but also because it is sent, like the apostles, to carry out Christ's mission to all people. Mission is essential to life in the church. It is essential as well to life in covenant communion among the churches.

39) The mission of the church takes many forms. In simplest terms, it is a mission of reconciliation and redemption. It is participation as a commissioned servant in God's mission, which is "to unite all things in Christ, things in heaven and things on earth." (Eph. 1:10) The church engages in mission through worship, through proclamation of the gospel, and through action which embodies God's justice, peace and love.

40) In worship, the church recalls and celebrates the mighty acts of God in creation, redemption and providence, is graciously forgiven and renewed in faith, hope and love, and is sent out in the power of the Holy Spirit, individually and collectively, to be ambassadors, witnesses and servants of Christ to the world. But in worship the church does more than just prepare for mission. Worship itself is one of the ways the church engages in its mission until the end of time. Even in places where some forms of mission are forbidden by the state, the faithful assembling of the people for Christian worship is a mighty witness to the gospel. What happens in worship is of vital significance for the world: the church intercedes for the world, and Christ is present for the life of all people. There is no such thing as Christian mission not rooted and renewed continuously in the church's worship. Worship is mission.

41) Proclamation of the gospel also is mission. Beyond the gathered worshipping community, faithful telling of the story by which the church lives is an essential part of its apostolate to the world. The church has been entrusted with the story that is life for the world. It is preserved and sent into the world to proclaim that story. The church can never be content simply to signify its faith by deeds done in silence, however essential such deeds are. The church is called as well to confess unambiguously the Christ in whom it lives, and to invite all who will to enter the fellowship of life in Christ through the church, and thus be faithful to its evangelistic task. Proclamation is mission.

42) Action which embodies Christ's mission of justice, peace and love is the church's mission, too. Without such action, the church's worship and proclamation are betrayed, "for the tree is known by its fruit." This action is described in many ways in Scripture: it is relief for the poor, release for prisoners, sight for the blind, liberty for the oppressed; it is food for the hungry, drink for those who thirst, welcome for strangers, clothes for those who have none, companionship for those who are sick, imprisoned, or alone. God in Christ has a special concern for those whom the world mistreats or overlooks: the poor, the weak, the oppressed, those excluded from full participation in society, and those who by reason of physical or mental disability, race, language or culture (such as African American, Asian, Pacific Islander, Hispanic, Native American) are dehumanized. Faithful participation in Christ's mission of justice, peace and love for all people, and the integrity of creation, requires repentance of the church: a deliberate turning away from all the various expressions of unconscious racism — individual, corporate, systemic — naming them and renouncing them. But such repentance is not enough unless it results in actions for justice, focused on eliminating those conditions which permit racism to fester and violate human life.

43) It is appropriate to add something more specific regarding the church's action in mission, in view of the racial and ethnic diversity of this covenantal communion. Christian unity, for churches of predominantly African American membership, is a subject never far removed from struggles to overcome poverty and to achieve social, economic, and racial justice. The struggle for civil rights in this country was rooted in the African American churches, and it became the greatest contribution of these churches to Christian unity in this century. With its holistic concern for the civic, spiritual and material well-being of every person, this evangelical movement for human rights gave new meaning to the word from which "ecumenical" is derived, oikoumene: "the whole inhabited earth." It embodied "ecumenical altruism": love that leaps all boundaries out of a profound respect for all people. This movement has taught us that where there is no condemnation of idolatry and no call to social justice, there can be no positive or prophetic ecumenical vision of unity or of peace. The covenantal communion upon which we enter deliberately claims and shall seek by God's grace to embody this understanding of what it means to be the body of Christ in mission to the world.

44) The Consultation desires that its unity in mission find expression in all three of these dimensions of mission. For the sake of the world, these churches wish to find occasions for worshipping together in covenantal communion, and celebrating the eucharist together. For the sake of the world, they seek ways in which their proclamation of the gospel may be made with one voice in covenantal communion. For the sake of the world, they seek opportunities for acting together in the service of God's justice, peace and love in the world, that the unity and diversity of this covenantal communion may be a sign to all people of God's redemptive will "to unite all things in Christ, things in heaven and things on earth."

45) Wherever covenanting occurs — nationally, regionally, or locally — one of the inaugural covenanting acts will be the formation of a covenanting council in each such "place." The reason for doing this is that church unity will be neither visible nor organic if it is not embodied in tangible form. The church exists not alone in the mind. It takes up space on the earth. It can be seen. It can act, and be accountable for its actions. In a covenantal communion of churches, therefore, it is essential that there be a company of persons who representatively give expression and leadership to its common life. Such groups we refer to as covenanting councils.

- 46) The primary purpose of these covenanting councils will be to enable the communion of churches in covenant. Several of their functions are of a distinctly ecclesial nature. By giving visible expression to the unity of the churches in covenantal communion, the covenanting councils create the corporate ecclesial setting for the ordering of the covenanting ministries of bishops, presbyters, deacons, and lay persons. Among them are:
 - ordering the sacrament of Holy Communion in ways that are faithful to the Tradition as claimed in the covenanting agreements, and assembling the people from time to time to celebrate it as one;
 - enabling joint ordinations among all the covenanting churches in which reconciled bishops lay on hands with prayer together with the presence and participation of representative ordained and lay persons from as many of the covenanting churches as possible;
 - giving joint spiritual oversight (episkope) of the things which enable covenantal communion among the churches, including:
 - pursuit of inclusiveness,
 - pursuit of a fuller embodiment within each church of the full vision of ministry described in Chapter VII of The COCU Consensus,
 - provision of public occasions which visibly bear witness to unity in Christ, such as common baptisms, confirmations, ordinations, and other sacred occasions;
 - acting as one in the service of justice on behalf of all for whom justice is delayed or denied, doing so within existing ecumenical bodies where appropriate; and,

- providing opportunity for shared decision-making in our common engagement in Christ's mission in the world.

The covenanting councils may also be given other tasks which the participating churches find appropriate to give them. Covenanting councils will not have authority over the churches. They will derive their authority to act from the judicatories which brought them into being. They will exercise a shared oversight of the covenanting process upon which the churches will enter.

47) This list of functions makes clear that the primary focus of the covenanting process is the local worshipping community, gathered around the Word and sacraments, and giving expression to the church's missionary vocation in the world. It is the local covenanting council, more than the regional or the national, on which primary attention falls in the covenanting process.

48) Local covenanting councils will exist to enable congregations of the covenanting churches, located in close proximity to one another (in the same town or in an urban or rural neighborhood) to live and act as one covenant communion in that place, even while maintaining their distinct existences and traditions. Through a shared life of Word and sacrament, publicly confessing the one faith together, and served by ordained ministers who are fully reconciled and hence fully accessible to all, these congregations will be able to reach out in mission as one people of Christ in ways not possible before they entered into covenant communion.

49) Regional covenanting councils bring together representatively those judicatories of the covenanting churches where ordination and oversight is located. They are a collegial expression of shared oversight of the covenanting commitment of the churches, particularly in relation to the ordained ministries, congregations of the faithful, and common mission. Additionally, they facilitate formation of local covenanting councils, and encourage and assist those which have been formed.

50) The national covenanting council will encourage regional judicatories to enter into covenanting, and will assist those that have been formed. It will invite other communions of Christ's church to enter the covenant. The national covenanting council will provide a forum where churchwide concerns may be considered, including concerns that arise from local and regional covenanting experience. It will enable the churches to think together about matters of worship, including mutually acceptable liturgical norms for shared worship. It will enable churches to think together about matters of ecclesiastical polity as each church seeks increasingly to embody the vision of ministry contained in The COCU Consensus, in partnership with the other covenanting churches. Any necessary amendments to the two documents embodying the basic agreements of the covenant communion shall be recommended to the participating churches by the national covenanting council. In sum, it will give collegial guidance to the covenanting process in matters of a general nature.

51) The covenanting churches will continue to participate fully in the life of other ecumenical bodies. The relationships nurtured through the conciliar movement have done much to bring the covenanting churches into closer relation with each other, and it is anticipated that the ecclesial depth of relationship among the covenanting churches will mean much to the conciliar movement as well. Councils of churches represent a broader constituency than do the covenanting councils; hence, councils of churches will continue to be of great importance to the covenanting churches. It is intended that the relationship between covenanting councils and the councils of churches will be a cooperative, complementary, and mutually enriching one. It is intended that the funding and human resources now committed by the churches in their present separateness will not be eroded when they enter into covenant communion. Covenanting councils are not a substitute for councils of churches; rather, they give expression to a covenantal form of church union.

52) Each covenanting council may be organized in such manner as seems appropriate to the consenting covenanting churches in that "place," provided only that the following basic agreements be observed:

—covenanting councils shall be composed of elected representatives of churches which have formally entered into covenanting through affirmative action on The COCU Consensus and Churches in Covenant Communion and through participation in the inaugurating liturgies of covenanting;

—covenanting councils shall be composed in such a way as to be representative of the total ministry of the people of God, lay ministries as well as ordained ministries, within these churches; the churches, with appropriate consultation, will determine in what way their existing ministries will be represented in the councils, and the particular persons who will be sent to them;

—covenanting councils shall be composed in such a way as to be inclusive of the diversity which God has given to the churches which form them.

The size, organization, and frequency of meeting of the several covenanting councils, as well as their geographical territories or boundaries, shall be determined in the joint discretion of the ecclesiastical bodies which form them in each "place."

V. THE PROCESS OF COVENANTING

1) The process of covenanting is intended to be implemented by the churches through a series of deliberate steps and stages.

Claiming the Theological Consensus

2) The first formal act of covenanting is for each church to claim The COCU Consensus: In Quest of a Church of Christ Uniting (1984). What that means specifically is stated in the foreword to that document, namely that each participating church is asked, by formal action, to recognize in it:

[1] an expression, in the matters with which it deals, of the Apostolic faith, order, worship, and witness of the Church,

[2] an anticipation of the Church Uniting which the participating bodies, by the power of the Holy Spirit, wish to become, and

[3] a sufficient theological basis for the covenanting acts and the uniting process proposed at this time by the Consultation.

The churches' action on these resolutions began in 1986. It is expected that by 1989 all of the member churches of the Consultation will have had opportunity to consider and act upon them.

Approving the Covenanting Proposal

3) The second formal act of covenanting is for the participating churches to receive, study, and take formal action upon the document, Churches in Covenant Communion: The Church of Christ Uniting (1988). What that means specifically is stated in the resolution of transmittal of this document to the churches, issued by the 1988 Plenary of the Consultation on Church Union (see Preface). This document contains the essentials of the covenanting agreements, together with the liturgies by which the covenant is to be inaugurated.

The Consultation Considers Next Steps

4) After the participating churches have considered and acted upon the proposals of the Consultation contained in the two documents, The COCU Consensus and Churches in Covenant Communion, the Consultation on Church Union will carefully examine the actions of the churches on these recommendations, and determine next steps accordingly. No judgment has been made in advance regarding the number of churches that must approve the proposals in order for them to be implemented, nor on other questions concerning the nature of the churches' actions upon them. Such matters will be addressed together by the churches, through the Consultation on Church Union, after the participating churches have acted upon the proposals now before them. If the decision of the Consultation is that the actions of the churches justify implementation of the covenanting proposals as presented, the following two sections of this chapter on "The Process of Covenanting" then apply. If the decision is other than that, the Consultation on Church Union in plenary session will itself determine what action to recommend to the churches.

Preparations to Implement Covenanting

5) The fourth step in the covenanting process may be somewhat different for each church. It has to do with the particular preparations that each church will need to make in order to participate fully in the inaugurating liturgies of covenanting. Each church which takes affirmative action on the first two steps described above will then need to take other steps as promptly as possible, internal to its own polity, to prepare itself in whatever ways it may deem to be necessary for the acts of recognition and of reconciliation which are described in the covenanting document and its accompanying liturgies. Specifically this could mean as many as four things:

(a) discovering what categories of ordained ministry within one's polity correspond most closely to that of "bishop," "presbyter," and "deacon" as described in the two documents named above;

(b) making such amendment of one's polity or ecclesiastical system as may be necessary — in good faith, in dialogue with other participating churches, and in the spirit of this covenantal commitment — in order:

[1] to make possible the participation of one's church in a covenantal form of church union as here proposed,

[3] to make possible, through whatever changes may need to be made, full participation within the covenant communion of those who are to be put forward for reconciliation as covenanting bishops and presbyters — utilizing the collegial processes of the Consultation on Church Union to assure mutual acceptability of these forms of ministry within the covenant communion of churches;

(c) naming its representatives to the national service of covenanting, and its representatives to the national covenanting council which will be inaugurated soon thereafter; and

(d) encouraging its regional bodies to name their representatives for participation in regional services of covenanting.

Participation in the Covenanting Liturgies

6) The fifth step in the covenanting process is the act of consummating the new relationship of covenant communion among the churches. Each church will participate representatively in the liturgies of covenanting, by which covenant will be declared, ministries reconciled, covenanting councils inaugurated, and the Eucharist shared by all. The full text of these three liturgies is attached. These covenanting acts are parts of a single reality. Though they occur in three liturgical settings, each is integrally related to the others. These three liturgical actions are described as follows.

7) The first will be the national service of declaring covenant. This liturgy will include an act of mutual recognition of each other as churches, together with an act for the reconciliation of a small but representative number of ordained ministers (a bishop, a presbyter, and a deacon) from each church. The primary services for the reconciliation of ordained ministries will be held later, in many regional and local settings: bishops will ordinarily be reconciled in regional liturgies, presbyters and deacons in local liturgies. The national liturgy, however, is chiefly focused upon the formal declaring of the covenant on behalf of the participating churches as a whole. Nonetheless, in so doing, it will anticipate as well the reconciliation of ministries which is to follow both there and elsewhere. The national service will not include an act for the inauguration of a national covenanting council, but will instead express the commitment of the churches to do so later after recognition and reconciliation of ministry has occurred in several regions. The liturgy for declaring covenant among the churches will conclude with the celebration of the Lord's Supper, done in a manner that expresses the new relationship among the participating churches, under the leadership of a reconciled covenanting bishop.

8) The second liturgical action will be the regional service for the reconciliation of bishops. This action is intimately related to the first. Therefore, the first of these regional services will occur in close conjunction with the national service. The choice of location for the national service will be in part made in light of the readiness of the middle judicatories of the covenanting churches in that place to enter promptly into the implementation of the covenant through the reconciliation of their ordained ministers of regional episkope. It is hoped that several of these regional services will be held immediately following the national service, perhaps simultaneously with one another at different places across the country. The reconciliation of bishops will be accomplished through the mutual recognition of one another's ministry of episkope and through a mutual laying on of hands among the bishops, together with other appropriate signs, and prayer. The regional service will include an act for the inaugurating of a regional covenanting council. The regional service will conclude with the celebration of the Holy Communion, done in a way that expresses the new relationship among the participating churches.

9) The third liturgical action will be the local service for celebrating the covenant, for reconciling presbyters and for welcoming deacons and other ordained ministers of governance. These local services will occur within regions where there has already been a regional service for the reconciliation of bishops. They will, of course, occur in many localities throughout the region. The first such local celebration may well occur on the same day as the regional service of reconciliation of bishops, and possibly in the same place. The local service will include an acknowledgment of the reconciliation of bishops that has occurred in that region. It will then move to the reconciliation of presbyters, this being essential to eucharistic fellowship. To that end, the liturgy will include the laying on of the hands of a reconciled bishop upon each of the presbyters there gathered, together with the giving of the hand of fellowship and other appropriate signs of welcome.

10) The diaconal ministries of the churches are now so dissimilar to one another that a meaningful act of reconciliation into a single ministry of deacon is difficult to contemplate at this time. Nonetheless, every church does engage in diaconal ministry; some of these diaconal ministers are ordained and others are unordained. So also, each church provides in some manner for the participation of other persons in ecclesial governance — persons variously defined as Elders, members of the Vestry or of the Official Board. For some, these ministries of governance are an ordained office, and for others they are not. Hence, no meaningful act of reconciliation into a single ministry of governance can be effected at this time. Nonetheless, the local liturgy will include a public act for the mutual welcoming of all ordained deacons and all ordained ministers of governance within the shared life of the covenant communion of churches, but it will not include a liturgical act for the reconciliation of these varied ministries.

11) The service will include an act for the inauguration of a local covenanting council, and will be concluded with the celebration of the Eucharist, done in a way that expresses the new relationship among the participating churches.

The Expanding Process of Covenanting

12) It is not anticipated that covenanting will commence in all places at the same time. While the national church bodies will declare covenant and will proceed sometime thereafter to form a national covenanting council, regional church judicatories will in turn celebrate covenant, reconcile ministries, and form a regional covenanting council when they are ready to do so. Even after the regional judicatories of the churches have entered into covenanting, groups of congregations within the region will celebrate the covenant and form a local covenanting council when they are prepared so to do. Relationships can be encouraged but not compelled.

13) For an indefinite period, therefore, there may be some unevenness and indeed some anomaly in this covenant communion of churches. One may judge, however, that the anomaly will not be greater than the divisions which now fracture the one body and the one Table of Christ. Covenanting provides a means whereby the Holy Spirit may draw the churches into an ever widening and deepening unity, where and when the Spirit wills.

THE EPISCOPAL ADDRESS

By Bishop Judith Craig

The Grace and Peace of Jesus Christ be with you, sisters and brothers of the Household of Faith.

Your Bishops greet you in the fresh and lively light of Easter Dawn that lingers in these days of Eastertide.

We come together in the presence of the Triune God. As God is Three, yet One, so we come from many cultures and expressions of faith, yet we are one in baptism and profession of faith in Jesus Christ.

Nothing reveals our unity more than having come to One Table this afternoon. At that Table we met the Risen Christ and each heard: "Take this . . . do this . . . remember this." A lay woman, Amy Spencer, wrote a prayer for the Table. "Help me to understand that your words . . . (take, do, remember) . . . are really an invitation to know you, trust you and follow you." Let us thank God for the inviting Table. Let us thank God for the rich and varied ways we may respond according to our national origins, our unique traditions, and our historic identities. With Amy let us pray that as a General Conference we will come to know Christ more deeply, trust Christ more fully, and follow Christ more faithfully in the conduct and completion of our work.

United Methodists are part of a world fellowship. Our global nature is made visible by the largest number of delegates in our history from Central Conferences: one hundred thirty eight (138) delegates from the Annual Conferences in our six (6) Central Conferences. In addition there are ten (10) delegates from those with whom we have concordat relationship, thirty-three (33) from affiliated autonomous churches in the Methodist family, and two observers from Russia.

In our Central Conferences we see our fastest numerical growth. At the end of 1994 the Central Conferences accounted for more than One and Half Million (1,500,000) of the worldwide ten million two-hundred thirty-six thousand, eight hundred thirty-five (10,236,835) members of United Methodism. This growth keeps giving birth to new annual conferences around the globe. Every day new professions of faith are made in chapels, house churches, cathedrals, and open air meetings around the world. The missionary enterprise is truly global, with no one way streets, no sense of one part of the world sending and another receiving. We all send to each and each receives from all.

We gather in a beautiful place where we can feel secure and comfortable. Here we have enough to eat, enough to wear. Some of us come from places in the world where security and comfort are a privilege restricted to the few. There danger stalks the daily walk of the many. Others live in places where freedom from war or disease is the usual. In those places the privilege of feeling secure and having more than enough for daily needs belongs to the majority. Yet we confess a sad truth: No place in this world is safe from violence and disruption at the hands of those whose anger and frustration explode in destruction of life.

Some of our delegates have left homes where wars rage, coming here not knowing what they will find when they return. Others have known the terror of violence in homes and cities and towns we do not usually think of as danger zones. Among us are Bishops who have escaped brushes with death and survived serious injury at the hands of violent people. And some — Bishops and delegates — are not here at all, caught in cross fire of battles at this moment and shut out of the United States for want of a visa.

But here our relative sense of safety and comfort numbers us among the privileged of the world as we are free to debate and think and decide with honor for each and all.

In our security, we dare not slip into a false sense of God abiding with us only. God is not confined in our assembly. God's attention is not limited to debates about order within The United Methodist Church. God's knowing and doing range far beyond us. God surely cares what we decide and how we decide. But God insists that our decisions embrace the creation plan for justice and life abundant for all the created order without limitation or exception. Our work here must manifest the justice and abundance envisioned by the Creator.

May the peace of Christ hold us as we are here. May the peace of Christ go with us as we return to our homes near and far when the work of this General Conference is completed.

The United Methodist Church is alive and well around the world. While many lament and wring their hands with worry and despair about the Church, there are signs of God at work all around us and within us. There is so much good in the Church, we could, in the words of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., "dig a tunnel of hope through every mountain of despair."

Consider these signs:

- Twenty-nine (29) persons have graduated from Africa University a bare six years after its beginnings. Now there are five faculties in place and enrollment in 1996 is three hundred (300). That University was a vision, birthed in a few inspired minds, caught by a General Conference and extended by a global community. It is the church alive, touching minds and hearts with knowledge and faith.
- More than four hundred thousand (400,000) persons have finished one or more courses of Disciple Bible Study. One seminary professor reports Disciple graduates bring a deepened foundation to their studies. The study is now in five languages — English, German, Korean, Spanish and Chinese. More than sixteen thousand (16,000) people are trained to lead.

- A series of spiritual growth movements is deepening faith and sharpening skills in Christian life and witness. They are reconnecting us to the almost lost principles of mutual accountability once at the heart of classes and bands. For instance, more than one-half million people have taken the Walk to Emmaus with more than twelve hundred (1,200) walks in 1995 alone. Covenant Disciple Groups and Wesley Classes are meeting in every Annual Conference in the United States. Four hundred twenty (420) persons benefitted from the two-year Academy of Spiritual Formation and Annual Conference Academies are springing up faster than they can be counted. The list is too long to catalogue. You add the specific movements and events that are part of our Church's response to the expression of a spiritual hunger resident among people around the world.
- In a majority of our Annual Conferences we hear with fresh urgency the questions: What is our primary task? Where does God call us to focus our resources in this age? They rise from initiatives born in congregations and conference gatherings. They are prompted in some places by participation in Vision 2000 and forms of Quest for Quality.
- Three events have been held in the United States inviting youth and young adults to listen for a call from God to ordained and diaconal ministry. More than two thousand seven hundred (2,700) have attended. Many are responding "yes." The average age of seminary students in the United States is lowering each year. The number of students in seminaries and schools of ministry in the Central Conferences is increasing each year.
- The National Plan for Hispanic Ministry has taken wing. It is bringing into being new congregations. Through its energy we are training and deploying lay missionaries, establishing faith communities, new outreach ministries and church schools. The report of this ministry is before the General Conference showing the measurable and hope-filled effect of an initiative of the 1992 General Conference.
- United Methodist presence is being experienced in places where we had scarcely been four years ago. Consider the Russia Initiative where new congregations gather for worship, Christian education and service because of United Methodist invitation. The initiative also fosters major work in medical, economic, educational, industrial and agricultural growth for the people of the region.

Signs of hope are not limited to congregational life or work among the membership of The United Methodist Church.

- The Church has been a voice for freedom, quietly and openly working against oppression in government and seeking to bring justice to people without a voice. Consider the Christian witness in South Africa through the dismantling of apartheid — the Middle East, where the Christian voice is small, but effective in giving hope — and Eastern Europe, where Christian communities survived forty years of oppression and being cut off from brothers and sisters in the rest of the world.
- Four years ago the General Conference set aside its agenda for a day to address a crisis of anger and destruction in one of the cities of North America. A vision was set forth. In the intervening years that vision has taken specific form. By the end of 1995 there were ninety-five (95) established or developing Shalom Zones on record.
- In the last four years over one-hundred three thousand (103,000) people participated in Volunteer in Mission events in forty-six (46) countries, supported by over thirty-eight million, eight-hundred thousand dollars ($38,800,000).
- And how shall we count contacts with legislators, letters written to influence public policy, information and testimony given to offer Christian perspective on decisions that affect the course of nations and communities? All that activity is also a sign of vital life among the Church's people. Such active discipleship brings the Gospel to bear on issues that shape the life of persons who may or may not be part of the Church of Jesus Christ, but are still the concern of God.

In all these signs of hope we see a marvelous linking of individual disciples, congregations, districts, conferences, and general boards and agencies. Signs of hope show the connection at work, doing together what we cannot do alone.

Is the Church alive? Does evangelizing bear fruit? All around us are stories of lives resurrected with ethical strength and moral toughness, of hope kindled in the face of despair, of generosity in spite of shrinking resources.

You know the signs. You are the signs. You know the stories. We urge you: tell them to each other. As you walk to and from meetings, as you have meals, as you share refreshments, tell the stories of the Church alive and shaping the world's peoples.

Signs of hope evidence evangelical fervor. Evangelizing is the natural outgrowth of knowing the Gospel. We receive to give away. The Gospel is effective if it is on the tip of our life-tongues — in both talk and walk

Our zeal to invite through example and exhortation must be motivated by more than a desire to effect membership numbers. If that is our only goal, we will know disappointment and be counted as unfaithful. Numerical growth is a by-product of spiritual growth which is the sign of faithful evangelizing. To evangelize is to tell about Jesus Christ, crucified and risen, reconciling the tattered world to the healing Creator's love. We must not truncate evangelism by limiting it to any sectarian definitions or motives other than compassionate, inclusive announcement of God's redeeming love. Our discipleship is defective if we try to limit God's encircling embrace of grace to those we judge acceptable.

As part of learning to be faithful evangelists, we urge our people to examine their relationships in congregational and personal life. If the Christian community is consumed with conflict and arguments about power and control, the Body of Christ is fractured and ministry impeded. How tragic to hear persons say, "I would be more interested in Christian faith if I didn't see the way church people treat each other." Our baptism means we have put on Christ. Let us be sure our actions reveal the wearing of Christ lest our sacraments become a hollow shell of false religion. Let us make sure those who wait to hear good news are not deafened by contradiction in our profession and practice.

The heart of the Gospel reaches beyond relationship of persons to Christ and Christ to Church. The Gospel is the expression of the Grace of God which intends social justice in the whole society of humankind and all of nature. To separate the salvation message from a call to justice, both within and beyond the communities of congregations, diminishes the thrust and energy of the Evangel. The whole Good News is ours to proclaim in word and act. Individuals, institutions and systems must be redeemed to free persons from any imprisonment that would deny the abundant life bought through a terrifying cross and an empty tomb.

We have so much for which to shout Hallelujah! At the same time, we are deaf if we do not hear underneath our shouting the groans and screams of a creation in pain. We learn from the Psalmist the strength of lament, a mixture of weeping and praising. The Psalmist was so sure of a listening, responding God as to dare to say it all: that which was cause for great joy and that which confounded and wounded. As the Psalmist, we live in a world that celebrates freedom even as it weeps because it is caught in the webs of pain and sin still begging for the news of redemption.

Look at God's world into which the Incarnate One came and comes to reconcile and redeem and bring life abundant.

FILM IMAGES.....PAIN AND HOPE.....

Images of God's people in God's world. They leave us with so much to mourn and so much to celebrate.

What has the agenda of this General Conference to do with the images we have seen, with the global concerns of God? How will our debates and decisions make visible the Body of Christ in the midst of creation's joy and wounds? The wind of God's spirit sweeps across places of deprivation, violence, fear and denial of dignity. We must welcome that wind blowing us to decisions and lives that reveal the reign of God.

We labor here in response to the Creator who looked on all that was made and said, "Behold, it is very good." That same Creator now weeps over impoverished cities and villages, ravished lands, polluted streams, depleted soil, poisoned air, fractured humanity. The weeping God beckons us to become God's healing presence in human communities and all the created order.

Humankind has lost its sense of reverence. We see the loss when life is robbed of meaning and dignity by unequal opportunity and unjust distribution of the basic goods that sustain life. The poor rise in number and sink in despair as political and economic systems continue to protect the comfort of the few at the expense of the many. Poverty strips human beings of their dignity and robs them of hope for the abundant life our Gospel promises. The Gospel of Jesus Christ stands against the forces that hold people in the captivity of poverty.

Loss of reverence relentlessly assaults the young of the world. Children are abused by images of carelessness with life. They both see and experience that carelessness daily. Our young are hungry and malnourished. They are dislocated and orphaned by war. They are held hostage to the power struggles of people without conscience. Children are scarred and deformed by systems that do not give first attention to their need for shelter, safety, education and nurture. The terror of carelessness with the lives of children is real in every nation, from the poorest and war torn to the richest where no declared wars are fought. Do you know the United States is the only industrialized country in which children are the largest segment of the population who lives in poverty?

Loss of reverence touches youth in their teens. A generation is at peril, hungry for help in standing over against the temptation to instant gratification and the altering of reality with drugs and alcohol. Their sense of future is blocked by walls of economic and educational limitations, blinding them to opportunity and inviting short-term goals that undermine long-term well-being. Values and morals are challenged and twisted by alternative views of life that are inconsistent with the Gospel vision.

As a Council of Bishops, we believe the Church can offer no more powerful sign of steward responsibility than making the welfare of children and youth the first concern. They are the ones who will inherit the wind of our terror or the nurturing breeze of our care. Their needs are the most urgent cries to which we must respond quickly and without reserve. To that end we urge this General Conference to keep the image of the most powerless of people — the poor, children, youth, women — always in the forefront as we do the work given us to do.

In the very near future your Bishops will be inviting you to major attention through an Episcopal Initiative addressing issues of children and poverty. All else we do will be wasted if we do not engage in shaping the future so that it offers life abundant instead of squeezing life out of the next generations.

As we think about what is now, we are aware also of the future coming toward us. This General Conference convenes on the threshold of a new millennium. A thousand years ago United Methodism had not been born. The second millennium has witnessed radical changes in how we speak of the faith. Our ancestors ordered the household of faith through reform after reform in that thousand years. Now we are they whose privilege and responsibility it is to think “long thoughts” after the fashion of God as we position The United Methodist Church for the third millennium. How we do our work must be influenced by this sense of time. We are gifted with an urgency and potential unlike anything given to previous generations. Some say that the revolutions of knowing and human comprehension facing us in the next thousand years will dwarf anything that occurred in the thousand years now ending. For instance, neuroscientists and linguists are unlocking the mysteries of how language is formed in ways that will revolutionize teaching and communication. Encounters with such revolutions are not new for the Church. Expanding knowledge has always called the Church to join in new expression and encounters with emerging truths. The Church has not been static in the last Millennium. Ways of speaking the faith and intersecting with life issues have developed and shifted according to God’s continuing revelation.

We sing, “as it was in the beginning, is now and ever shall be. . .” We proclaim God’s word, “Behold, I make all things new.” They are two phrases of one truth. What has always been is that God is always making things new.

In fact, United Methodists are the inheritors of major intrusions into the understanding of Church. It was a revolution when John Wesley dared to take preaching to the streets and open fields, declaring faith empty if not accompanied with insistence on justice. Listen to these words from Mr. Wesley’s diaries:

“Saturday, March 31. In the evening I reached Bristol and met Mr. Whitfield there. I could scarce reconcile myself at first to this strange way of preaching in the fields . . . having been all my life (till very lately) so tenacious of every point relating to decency and order, that I should have thought the saving of souls almost a sin if it had not been done in a church.”

Such a scandal, Mr. Wesley! But preach he did, in those unorthodox ways, often using the text from Luke: “The Spirit of the Lord is upon me . . . to proclaim Good News to the poor . . .” One story carries the memory of an angry crowd throwing empty whiskey bottles at Mr. Wesley. A woman whose stature was considerably more expansive than that of the slight Mr. Wesley strode out of the crowd, stood before him, and threatened all who would further assault, saying, “Let the little man preach.”

Oh yes, we are the inheritors of radical breaks in tradition and revolutions in ways of being “church.” Our faith and it’s practice are not frozen in time or space. What we do and say reveals whether or not we stand in continuity with what is always the same — the new and far reaching activity of God.

God’s continuing revelation requires us to claim what we already know and keep listening for what God has yet to teach us about divine grace and its reach. Some look at us and wonder how we can pronounce the limitless grace of God and then call together huge assemblies to define who and what falls beyond that limitless grace. The church we order must be an open house where Jesus sits at the doorway and welcomes all who come, regardless of whether the townspeople think it proper or not! It is an offense to God to define so carefully and describe church so rigidly as to create a family tree that says most clearly who is not welcome. It is unfaithful to focus so much on our own internal life that we have nothing left to give as moral leaders and stewards of the whole of God’s creation.

God watches us, perhaps with Divine angst, to see if we who claim to be faithful will indeed act faithfully. The poor, the oppressed, the young and the old listen for the Word spoken in language they can comprehend and recognize in actions that reach their needs. Can we speak God’s forgiving, nurturing Word in 21st Century languages and practices? O, please God, make us able to answer with a resounding “Yes!”

We move toward the new millennium as part of a wounded world. We are ourselves a wounded community. Our wounds, sign of sin still resident within us, cry out for healing. When they are healed, our message of redeeming hope will have integrity and power in the larger human community among whom God places us. Our announcement of reconciliation begins with confession of those places in our personal and institutional lives wherein we are not reconciled. Our invitation to holiness is accompanied by a fresh determination to live holy lives ourselves. Our call to justice includes ordering life within our own body in ways that are just.

We mark forty years of benefitting from the gifts of women as elders in full conference membership. That gift rises out of a century of history, dating back to the ordination of women as elders in the United Brethren Church as early as 1889.

We celebrate thirty years of having removed from our midst the scandal of formal segregation in the Central Jurisdiction. All our legislation and covenant agreements testify that racism and sexism are sins that must not live in Christ’s Church.

Sadly, we know legislation does not guarantee practice. It is difficult to find words to express our outrage at continuing discrimination against women and people of racial ethnic heritage. It lingers in every circle of the church’s life. An unrelenting migration toward homogeneity unmasks a myopic vision of God’s richly diverse creation. The exclusion of persons because of race, gender or status of any kind flies in the face of God's intention to embrace all who name the name of Jesus. Allowing congregations to participate in sinful patterns of discrimination surrounding them is faithless sinking into the ways of culture rather than shaping culture according to God's creation plan.

We call all who bear the name of Christ — United Methodist Bishops included — to confess the sad truth that we continue to participate in institutions and practices that favor Caucasians and males in overt and covert systemic exclusion. Let us repent that we may be led to just behavior.

We are grieved and puzzled by the rising number of allegations of clergy sexual misconduct. That so many of our covenant community seem insensitive and irresponsible about appropriate relationships and pastoral propriety is cause for lament. We join you in seeking to create just ways to respond.

We know the crucial distinction between the sure redeeming love of God for all who sin and the requirements that make one worthy of the sacred trust of the office given with consecration and ordination. We insist that those who carry the precious privilege of ordination and consecration maintain the exemplary lifestyle required by the call of Christ and affirmation of the Church.

Our ways of responding to clergy misconduct must evidence swift, just and gentle care for all the aggrieved — the ones primarily wounded, those in secondary and tertiary circles of disruption, and the wounding themselves. We cannot ignore or be inconsistent in our response to this offense in the Church.

God's gift of sexuality is good! Even as we claim that creation truth, our cultures are bombarded with twisted and demeaning exploitation of sexuality — pornography, promiscuity, the breakdown of covenant relationships. Within the Church our struggle to understand the expression of human sexuality has become painful and divisive.

We yearn for a holy community that embraces sexuality as a good gift of creation rather than something about which to be embarrassed or to interpret and define in ways that exclude persons from full participation in the life of the Church. In cultures saturated with images, abuses and excesses that belittle and demean holy intimacy, the Church is the only community with the possibility of teaching the strength of the divine blessing on human bonding and fidelity.

We affirm the sanctity of marriage. At the same time we are called by a gracious Christ to live with a spirit of welcome for persons of many realities and persuasions. We have much to learn about our human nature and what it means to be created in the image of God. Let us bind ourselves in common search for God's continuing revelation about Divine creation intention, especially the meaning and employment of the beautiful gift of our sexuality.

How shall we respond to the woundedness around and among us? So much of life waits for the healing touch of the Gospel. Sometimes it is mediated through human institutions, in systems and structures by which life is ordered. The General Conference is responsible for providing order and visible framework for United Methodism.

We are a people who value structure. We understand the strength of being connected with each other in orderly fashion that allows the flow of resources and the linking of gifts. Any decisions that weaken the coherence of that connection threaten the urgency of solidarity in witness and practice in a fractured world. So much in life suffers from discontinuity and disconnection. Our connection — manifested in structural coherence that is recognizable from place to place — is a sign of healthy wholeness. It is the means by which we are in ministry together where no one part of us can be effective alone.

We urge consciousness of that wholeness in your deliberations. Frequently ask: if we decide this way here, how will our decision effect what is being considered somewhere else? Let us never forget our linkage as a corporate body. Our language, our customs, our dreams, our desires are each shaped and worthy in their own time and place. Yet all together are the strands on a divine loom that become a tapestry of the Living Christ made visible through the likes of you and me — connected and united.

Remember United Methodists are part of the whole Body of Christ, in relationship with persons who live in other rooms in the grand Household of Faith. Our unity with other communions in councils of churches and covenant relationships moves us toward God's vision of the Church made whole. What we decide about our way of being faithful must be appropriate to ourselves and our tradition. At the same time we must demonstrate respect for our kindred of other Christian traditions and self-understandings.

The Council of Bishops has put before you the opportunity to place United Methodists in formal relationship to Churches in Covenant Communion. We urge you to debate and act in light of the world's need to see and hear a unified witness to Christ.

World consciousness and ecumenism are the twin templates within which to perfect legislative proposals. Let no continent or clan pretend any weight of authority that denies the unique energy of all nations and peoples. Rather, let the uniqueness of culture and continent enhance the beautiful unity of common heritage and practice as United Methodists.

One way our common heritage and practice is made visible is in ordering ministry for service through the Church. Four years ago you entrusted the Council of Bishops with the Study of Ministry. You asked us to undertake our work in a spirit of prayer and discernment. We have sought to be faithful to that task. Before you is a document overwhelmingly commended by the Council of Bishops. We ask you to consider the proposals about the ordering of ministry in the same prayerful and discerning spirit which we have sought to follow.

We are a people of The Word, the The Holy Bible. We gather to write two books: The Book of Discipline and The Book of Resolutions. Those we write must never take the place of the first. Our books must not interpret and order life in any way contrary to the always fresh and contemporary Word of God. Therein lies the tension of our work — an ancient body of truth guiding a contemporary and emerging expression of new things God is doing. We stand in between what God has done and what God will do next. We can be dams of self interest and polluted channels of selfish motives that block and foul the pure force and creative energy of God's will. Or we can be open doors and clean vessels through which God pours continuing Divine intervention into creation.

"In-between-ness" is as old as Scripture. We are told to remember who made us, who delivered us, what God has taught. At the same time we are told to follow the God who makes all things new, who is always doing a new thing. Jesus stood in between, saying "You have heard it said of old — but — I say to you..." When we gathered at The Table earlier today, we were in between: "Do this to remember me . . . until the reign of God comes." In-between-ness is our location in faith.

Wonderful discoveries break into our lives with speed that takes our breath away. Knowledge and ways of communicating unlike anything we imagined in our first decades of life are now commonplace to those born after us. We stand in between generations. One was raised on printed pages. The other knows the flicker of computer screens. One talks of truth in images that are static and contained in books. The other interacts with people around the globe, encountering truth in cultures and faith expressions that are dynamic and mutually enriching. One generation talks about the nuts and bolts of life. The other speaks in languages of bits and bytes. We are truly in between revolutions and revelations, right where the Church has always been. Our memory of God is tested in between.

I heard a story of a four-year-old girl into whose family was born a baby brother. From the day her parents brought him home she began to ask for some time alone with him. The parents were reluctant, not sure just what she would do with him. Finally they relented to her persistent insistence. One evening they told her she could go into the nursery after he had been put to bed, and there be alone with him. They shut the door, then cracked it ajar and watched as she went near the crib, bent down and spoke. She said to her baby brother, "Tell me what God looks like. I am beginning to forget."

The long look requires remembering what we have always known, but learning it in forms and images that are appropriate to our time and place.

When we sing, "O God our help in ages past, our hope for years to come . . .," we offer a unique gift of assurance that steadies those whirling in the excitement of unfolding revelation. A Church truly faithful to Christ will not be obsolete in the new millennium. The Church knows the Source of all that is coming to light. Our voice is essential, our understanding central, our confidence basic for the well-being of the world in the future as it has been in the past.

The 1996 General Conference comes to life in a birth-room full of what could become destructive controversy. It is always appropriate to examine our beliefs and engage each other in an earnest search for each generation's form of expression and confession. It is troublesome if the engagement scatters seeds of dissension and destruction among seeds meant to germinate in abundant new life for a new century.

We have watched with alarm tensions that rise out of good desire to protect the Church from harm. We fear the desire to protect may turn to desire to control. We urge you to tune in to the wind of the Holy Spirit, letting it drown out the sound and fury of human insistence. We exhort you to approach the work of this General Conference embracing a holy tension: remembering what God has done and expecting God to do something new.

A question confronts us: How can we faithfully guard the irreducible tenets of faith-filled tradition without confining God in any one creed or confession in human language?

Let us repent of our pretentious assumptions that human language and time-encrusted traditions can contain the omnipotent, omnipresent Holy One. The Apostolic faith is ours to enjoy, to give away, and to which to invite others. The Apostolic faith is not locked in expressions or experiences of the Apostolic Centuries. It is sufficiently strong to be flexible in expression and experience to be offered in language and form appropriate to all time, including the new Century we approach.

We are not suggesting a cavalier setting aside of valued and valid tradition. We embrace Trinitarian faith and hold to the centrality of the Incarnation, Atoning Death, and Resurrection of Jesus Christ. At the same time, we acknowledge the limitations of human formulations and rites to express those unchanging truths. Language and rituals that have been sufficient in the past may not be heard with convicting force in the now and the future. God's Spirit sweeps over the earth searching for expression to transcend tradition, gender, race, and nation.

Opposing temptations beckon us. One is to go on to new things disregarding tradition altogether. The other is to stand so rigidly in tradition as to believe we simply must make what once was happen again. While some retreat into memory, others tend to run ahead as if suffering amnesia. It is for us to find the balance in between, guided by the Holy Spirit who sets us free of partisanship.

We who are your Bishops believe that what you decide and order will make a difference in how both the Church and world recognize the continuing revelation of God among us and through us. So crucial and relevant do we believe your work to be that we issue an invitation.

We invite you to Holy Conferencing. We urge you to claim with confidence our rich heritage that trusts God to offer wisdom through the gathering of varieties of thought and convictions in conferencing. We believe debate can be prayerful expression, honoring the Holy resident among all and within each. It is possible to disagree with another's ideas while still claiming oneness in Christ. That flavor is what we hunger for in this General Conference.

We invite you to step out of party spirit and walk together in Holy Spirit. We urge you to turn from being slaves to predetermined agendas, no matter how thoughtfully and prayerfully prepared, to a free embrace of the will of the One to whom we belong. We invite you, we urge you, to remember where we began: at the Table. We invite you to create an atmosphere of hospitality and mutual respect that comes from sharing around that Table.

About a year and half ago I sat in a Bedouin tent outside the city of Jerusalem. There some Christians, some Israelis and Bedouin Muslims sat around a rug which was, for our hosts, a table. Around that rug-table Bedouins gather for talk and decision making. Around that rug-table they gather to eat. At that rug-table they asked us to sit as they told us their story of persecution and hope. Surrounded by the dust of the Judean hills, we sat at the Table. The Elder of the tribe did not speak until children had appeared out of the brown dust with sparkling clean glasses on a polished copper tray. They carried a bright blue pot out of which they poured the hot, sweet, strong tea of the Middle East. As we each took a glass and drank together, the barriers of culture, language, and faith began to fall. We found ourselves entering into the stories of each other's dreams and hopes. Tables tumble barriers and bridge distances between people.

Just so we began at the Table. We took broken bread and drank from one cup. This unique Table is central to our faith. From the Table we learn what God means to do — re-member the dis-membered order of life. In fact, Jesus told us to do just that — re-member him, put together again the wholeness of God's presence in this world. At the Table we receive the invitation to bring Christ's broken body back together and to offer Christ's spilled blood to salve the wounds of the world.

The Table stands in between the old and new covenants, bringing together as one movement the continuing activity of the God of all covenants. At the Table one part of God's salvation drama is completed as another waits to be realized in the future.

There were tensions at the table where the twelve sat with their Teacher. Jesus named his betrayer. The disciples quarreled among themselves about greatness. Jesus had to remind them about servanthood. But Jesus stayed at that table. He sat there in the midst of that broken community and gave them a sign of healing and wholeness.

In times of conflict and differing opinion what does it mean to stay at the Table? We believe all that we do can be transformed toward God's will if we will stay at the Table. Our invitation is to heed the call of the Table to re-member lest we pass by on our own way still dis-membering the Body of Christ.

The delegates to this General Conference were invited to prayer, using a common daily guide for the forty days preceding our gathering. It made us one before we saw each other. Your Bishops now offer a specific sign of continuing prayer. Members of the Council of Bishops will be in prayer around the clock for the duration of this General Conference. We have designated teams of prayer partners who will intercede for all of us, asking the Holy Spirit to intrude into all we dream and propose, all we say and decide. We will identify the intercessors each day and the place where they are in prayer. Others may join them there, or in one of the other chapels, or a place of your own choosing. We invite all to join us in making this entire General Conference a season of prayer.

In the same spirit, we ask that each time you gather in a legislative committee, in a caucus meeting, in plenary, you begin with five minutes of reflecting with another person — perhaps someone you do not know well — speaking about these two questions: 1) What is my most earnest hope for the next few hours of this General Conference? 2) What do I believe is God's most fervent hope for these next few hours? Then we ask you to pray with that conversation partner beseeching God to bring the two hopes into one. We go to our discipline of intercessory prayer with confidence God will break in with energy, wisdom and joy. We invite you to your moments of self-revelation and search, equally confident that God will bless the Church and the world through a General Conference earnestly praying and listening for God's guidance. May it be so, in the name of Christ.

We are confident you will respond readily and eagerly to this wrapping of our Conferencing in the mantle of prayer. We are confident you will do your holy work of conferencing always aware of being at the Table with Jesus. As sign of our mutual covenant to do so, let us sing a prayer to undergird all we do in these days as the General Conference of The United Methodist Church in the Year of our Lord, 1996.

Dear Jesus, in whose life I see

All that I would, but fail to be,

Let thy clear light forever shine,

To shame and guide this life of mine.

Though what I dream and what I do

In my weak days are always two,

Help me, oppressed by things undone,

O thou whose deeds and dreams were one.

Amen.

The Episcopal Address has been written by Bishop Judith Craig who was selected by the Council of Bishops. It has been perfected for presentation at the 1996 session of the General conference after considerable preparation, including discussion and debate at regular meetings of the Council of Bishops. Though not reflecting the view of every bishop at every point, in finished form this address has been approved by the Council of Bishops of the United Methodist Church.

Plan of Organization

I. Opening Session and Organization

The General Conference shall assemble on the day fixed at the place designated in accordance with the action taken by the preceding General Conference or the Commission on the General Conference. The Holy Communion and Memorial Service shall be celebrated by the Conference, the Council of Bishops being in charge. During the Memorial Service, there shall be called the names of the bishops who have died since the adjournment of the preceding General Conference, and likewise the names of the delegates-elect who have died. The opening business session of the Conference shall be on the day and at the hour fixed by the Commission on the General Conference and shall be called to order by the bishop designated, as provided in the Discipline 15.11.

The following order of business shall be observed:

A. Roll Call. The record of attendance shall be made in writing to the Secretary of the General Conference by:

(1) The Secretary of the Council of Bishops for the bishops,

(2) The Secretary of the Judicial Council for that body,

(3) The General Secretary of the General Council on Ministries for all general secretaries,

(4) The chairperson of each delegation for its membership. The chairperson shall be provided with a form on which to report daily the attendance of its members. Any reserve seated in the place of a regular delegate shall have been duly elected as a reserve delegate by the Annual Conference and shall meet the requirements set forth in the Discipline 37-39. Delegates, including reserves when the latter are substituted for a delegate or delegates, shall be seated in the order of their election, except when a reserve is seated temporarily, in which case the reserve shall occupy the seat of the delegate for whom the substitution is made. All delegates arriving after the opening roll call shall be reported by the chairperson of the delegation to the Committee on Credentials. (See Section VIII.A.4. and Rule 5. See also Discipline 607 defining a Quorum.) and

(5) The chairperson of the delegation for affiliated Autonomous Methodist and United Churches delegations.

B. Establish the bar of the conference.

C. Report of The Commission on The General Conference.

D. Report of The Plan of Organization and Rules of Order.

E. Elections

(1) Coordinator of Calendar. (See IV-C)

(2) Committee on The Plan of Organization and Rules of Order.

F. Report Of Committee On Agenda.

G. Miscellaneous Business.

H. Adjournment.

II. Episcopal and Laity Addresses

The Quadrennial Address of the Council of Bishops shall be delivered early in the Conference, at such hour as determined by the Commission on the General Conference.

The Quadrennial Address of the Laity shall be delivered early in the Conference, at such hour as determined by the Commission on the General Conference. The National Association of Annual Conference Lay Leaders shall be responsible for the preparation and presentation of the Quadrennial Lay Address, taking care to consult with lay leadership of the Central Conferences. The National Association of Annual Conference Lay Leaders shall enlist participation of men, women, youth, young adults, racial and ethnic minorities, and persons with handicapping conditions in the preparation and presentation of the address.

III. Presiding Officers

The presiding officers for the several sessions of the Conference, the opening session excepted (See Section I, above), shall be chosen from among the effective bishops by the Committee on Presiding Officers. (See Section VIII.A.6.)

IV. Secretarial Staff

A. The Secretary of the General Conference shall be responsible for all functions of the office in preparation for the session of the General Conference. The secretary shall select persons from the clergy and lay membership of The United Methodist Church to serve on the secretarial support staff.

C. The Conference shall elect, upon nomination by the Secretary, a Coordinator of Calendar, who shall assist the Committee on Agenda and Calendar in presenting reports in such order as to expedite the business of the Conference, as well as in other responsibilities of the committee. (See I.E.1 and VIII.A.1.)

D. After ascertaining that petitions, resolutions, and similar communications in hand and dealing with the regular business of the Conference meet the requirement of 608 of The Book of Discipline, the Secretary shall be responsible for preparing the same for reference to the appropriate legislative committee, subject to review by the Committee on Reference. (See Section VIII.A.7.) In the case of a single petition signed by a number of people, the Committee need print only the name of the first signer with an indication of the total number of signers.

E. The work of the Secretary shall be supervised by the Executive Committee of the Commission on the General Conference. A budget for the work of the Secretary shall be presented by the Commission on the General Conference to the General Council on Finance and Administration. Such budget shall be paid out of the General Administration Fund.

F. If in the interim of the quadrennial sessions of the General Conference the office of Secretary shall for any reason be vacated, the Council of Bishops shall elect a successor to serve until the next session.

V. Nominations and Elections.

The Secretary of the General Conference shall develop a timeline for the submission of nominations and elections/appointments by the Council of Bishops. In making these nominations and elections/appointments, attention shall be given to ensuring continuity of membership from the previous quadrennium.

It shall be the responsibility of the Council of Bishops to present nominations for The Commission on the General Conference, Committee on Plan of Organization and Rules of Order, Commission on Central Conference Affairs, General Conference standing committees, and secretary-designate of The General Conference. These nominations shall be presented to the General Conference for election.

Disciplinary provisions shall govern the nomination and election procedures for:

General Council on Finance and Administration (§ 905)
General Board of Pension and Health Benefits (§ 1602.1a)

General Commission on Archives and History (§ 1804.2)

The Judicial Council (§§ 2602, 2603)

Episcopal membership on:

General Board of Church and Society (§ 805.2b)

General Board of Discipleship (§ 805.2b)

General Board of Global Ministries (§ 805.2b, § 1412.6)

General Board of Higher Education and Ministry (§ 805.2b)

VI. Commission on The General Conference.

A. There shall be a Commission on the General Conference composed of one clergy and one layperson from each Jurisdiction and four members-at-large, at least one of whom shall be from an Annual Conference outside the United States, who shall be nominated by the Council of Bishops at its Fall meeting next preceding the General Conference and elected by the General Conference for a term of eight years, half of whom shall be elected by the General Conference each quadrennium. If vacancies occur, the Council of Bishops shall elect successors to serve until the next session of the General Conference and then nominate for election by the General Conference persons to serve any remainder of the term. The Secretary of the General Conference, the Treasurer of the General Council on Finance and Administration, and the Business Manager of the General Conference shall also be members ex-officio but without vote. The Commission may elect two additional members-at-large for each quadrennium.

The Council of Bishops shall designate one of its members to convene and organize the Commission before the adjournment of the General Conference.

B. This Commission shall determine the place and time (within such limits as may be set up by the General Conference) of the next General Conference and shall send an official notice to all elected delegates announcing specifically the opening day and hour of the General Conference and anticipated time of adjournment. It shall further advise the General Conference delegates in advance of all such special events and orders of the day, the dates and times of which have been determined prior to the opening of the General Conference, in order that the delegates may have an overview of the General Conference program. The Commission shall make all necessary arrangements in connection therewith, including arrangements for the publication of the Daily Christian Advocate and quadrennial reports of the general agencies of the church, the same to be published by the United Methodist Publishing House. The Daily Christian Advocate shall print the list of nominees for election to the Judicial Council, with biographical sketches not to exceed 100 words in length for each nominee.

C. The Commission shall take the necessary measure to assure full participation of all General Conference Delegates, including providing accommodation for language and physical challenges.

D. The Commission shall plan the schedule for the opening day of the Conference.

E. The Commission shall recommend to the General Conference the per diem allowance to be paid to the elected delegates. (See Section X.)

F. The Secretary, on behalf of the Commission on the General Conference, shall issue invitations to ecumenical representatives after consultation with the Council of Bishops and The General Commission on Christian Unity and Interreligious Concerns. The Commission shall arrange for local hospitality and presentation of ecumenical representatives to the General Conference.

G. The Commission is authorized, if it deems it advisable, to select the site of the General Conference two quadrennia in advance.

VII. Plan of Organization and Rules of Order.

A. There shall be a Committee on Plan of Organization and Rules of Order of ten members, including membership from each of the Jurisdictions and from Annual Conferences outside the United States, nominated from the elected delegates to the General Conference by the Council of Bishops at its Fall meeting preceding the General Conference and elected by the General Conference for a term of four years. Members may be elected for additional terms of four years, provided no more than four members of the new committee are returning members. The Secretary and Business Manager of the Conference shall be ex-officio members without vote. The Council of Bishops shall designate one of its members to convene and organize this committee after it is elected.

Outgoing members of the committee present at General Conference may meet with the newly elected committee during the current sessions of General Conference. These outgoing members will have voice but no vote.

B. To this committee shall be referred any proposed amendments to the Plan of Organization and Rules of Order (See Rule 39). To it may be referred any other matters relating to parliamentary order or procedure in the business of the General Conference.

C. This committee shall serve as an Interim Committee between sessions of the General Conference. The committee shall restudy the Plan of Organization and Rules of Order and make needed changes and adaptations and, after printing in the Advance DCA, shall present them to the General Conference for consideration and final action, same to be published in the Daily Christian Advocate which serves as the Journal of the General Conference.

D. The Plan of Organization and Rules of Order of the General Conference shall be the Plan of Organization and Rules of Order as published in the Journal of the preceding

General Conference until they have been altered or modified by action of the General Conference (Discipline, 606.)

VIII. Committees

The General Conference shall have the standing committees hereinafter indicated, with such functions, responsibilities, and limitations respectively as are hereinafter prescribed, and such special committees as it may order.

A. Standing Administrative Committees

The members of the following committees shall be appointed by the Council of Bishops at its Fall meeting preceding the General Conference. All except the Committee on Correlation and Editorial Revision shall be from the elected delegates to the General Conference. (See Section V.) Members of standing administrative committees which meet prior to the day on which the General Conference convenes, shall receive the delegate per diem for each additional day on which their attendance is required. Delegates who are nominated for such committees less than 60 days prior to the opening session of General Conference shall be entitled to reimbursement for any additional transportation costs.

(1) Agenda and Calendar

(a) There shall be a Committee on Agenda and Calendar of eight members, at least four of whom shall be laypersons, to be constituted as follows: one from each Jurisdiction, one from Annual Conferences outside the United States, the Coordinator of the Calendar, and the chairperson or substitute for the Chairperson of the Program Committee of the Commission on the General Conference. No member of the committee shall be chairperson of a Standing Legislative Committee or staffperson of any general agency. The Committee shall be convened, for the purpose of organization, by the Secretary of the General Conference at least the day before the opening of the General Conference.

Following the presentation and adoption of the report of the Commission on the General Conference at the opening session of the General Conference, the Committee on Agenda and Calendar shall immediately become responsible for guiding the order of business of the Conference.

(b) The Committee on Agenda and Calendar shall:

(1) Present calendar reports in such an order as to expedite the business of the Conference,

(2) Inform the bishop presiding as soon as possible of the agenda items, including order of priority, to be considered,

(3) Keep an overview of calendar progress;

(4) Report to each session of the General Conference recommendations concerning business agenda, including time allocation and order in which legislative committee reports shall be printed;

(5) Give priority to calendar items as soon as they are available;

(6) Give priority to calendar items involving minority reports;

(7) Announce, at the last plenary session of each day, a tentative agenda for the next day;

(8) Consult daily with the legislative committee chairpersons to expedite the business of the General Conference; and

(9) Receive all requests for special orders of the day, except those requested in the report of the Commission on the General Conference on the first day of the Conference.

(c) Proposals, questions, communications, resolutions, and other matters not included in the regular business of the General Conference shall be referred to the Committee on Agenda and Calendar without motion or debate. This committee shall determine whether or not the matter presented shall be considered by the General Conference. Appeal from the decision of this committee may be presented to the Conference upon the written signature of twenty delegates, and the item shall be presented to the Conference if the appeal is supported by a one-third vote.

(2) Correlation and Editorial Revision.

There shall be a Committee on Correlation and Editorial revision of four persons not members of the General Conference and the Book Editor, who shall be an ex-officio member. They shall be entitled to reimbursement of expenses for attendance at meetings of the committee. Two alternates shall be appointed by the Council of Bishops. The Book Editor shall convene the committee for the purpose of organization. The function of this committee shall be:

(a) To review all proposed legislation reported in the Daily Christian Advocate and that presented in special reports to the General Conference. The Committee shall report to the standing committees concerned, or to the General Conference as the situation may warrant, all contradictions, duplications, and inconsistencies discovered.

(b) To assure that, when a calendar item approved on the Consent Calendar or under an omnibus vote is found to be in conflict with parts of another calendar item discussed and voted upon at a plenary session, the item discussed and voted shall prevail.

(c) To edit the Discipline in accordance with Section XI.B.

(3) Courtesies and Privileges.

There shall be a Committee on Courtesies and Privileges of six members composed of one representative from each Jurisdiction and one representative from Annual Conferences outside the United States. The committee shall be convened by a Bishop for the purpose of organization.

The committee has the following duties and responsibilities:

(a) To consider, as presented to it by members of the Conference, what said members regard as questions or matters of privilege, to decide whether they are such or not, and if they are regarded as being such, to recommend to the Conference that they be heard.

(b) To consider resolutions of commendation, courtesy, appreciation, etc., submitted in writing by delegates. The committee may initiate similar resolutions and edit and amend those submitted to it. Resolutions approved by the committee shall be printed in the Daily Christian Advocate and brought to the floor if the committee considers them of unusual importance or urgency.

(c) To arrange for extending courtesies of the Conference to any to whom they may be due, ecumenical representatives and official visitors excepted.

(d) To limit its report, including the statement of the chairperson and the hearing of such persons as may be presented, to a maximum of ten minutes in any one business day. No person or persons shall be presented whose request has been denied by the Commission on the General Conference, nor after the sixth day unless approved by a two-thirds vote of the Conference. (See Rule 26.3.)

(4) Credentials.

There shall be a Committee on Credentials of six members, composed of one delegate from each Jurisdiction and one delegate from Annual Conferences outside the United States. The committee shall be convened by a Bishop for the purpose of organization.

To this Committee, the chairpersons of the respective annual conference delegations shall report on a form provided for that purpose any change in seating of delegates, indicating the length of time for which the change shall be effective. (See Section I.A.4.) The chairperson of this committee shall make a daily written report to the Secretary of the General Conference, listing all changes of seating approved by the Committee. In the event of questions which may arise regarding the eligibility of seating any delegates, this Committee shall report directly to the General Conference with its recommendations. (See Rule 5.)

(5) Journal.

There shall be a Committee on the Journal of three members to approve daily the record of Proceedings of the General Conference prepared by the Secretary and assistant(s). The committee shall be convened by a Bishop for the purpose of organization.

(6) Presiding Officers.

There shall be a committee on Presiding Officers of twelve members, composed of one clergy and one layperson from each Jurisdiction and one clergy and one layperson from among the delegates representing the Annual Conferences outside the United States. The committee shall be convened by a Bishop for the purpose of organization.

The Committee shall select and notify the presiding officer(s) of each session at least 24 hours in advance, insofar as possible. The Committee shall be free to select a bishop for more than one session and to change the presiding officer during the session, whenever it seems advisable. (See Section III.)

(7) Reference.

There shall be a Committee on Reference of sixteen members, composed of one clergy and one lay delegate from each Jurisdiction, one clergy and one lay delegate from Annual Conferences outside the United States, and four members-at-large. The membership of this committee shall include at least one member from each legislative committee. This committee shall be convened, for the purpose of organization, by the Secretary of the General Conference the day prior to the opening of the General Conference.

(a) After reviewing the proposed assignments by the Secretary to standing committees of the petitions, resolutions, and similar communications dealing with the regular business of the Conference, this committee shall refer the same to the appropriate legislative committees. (See Section IV.D.) One member of each legislative committee serving on this committee shall be designated to coordinate petitions assigned to his/her respective legislative committee. This committee shall also be responsible for reviewing the assignment, by the Secretary, of all reports, recommendations, and resolutions from general agencies, standing or special commissions and committees, and all other communications which shall come into the Secretary's hands after the convening of the General Conference, all of which shall be referred directly to appropriate legislative committees without presentation to a plenary session of the General Conference.

(b) The Committee on Reference may withdraw a paper that has been assigned to a committee, either upon a request or upon its own motion. It may also withhold from reference or publication any document it shall deem improper.

(c) Where the Committee finds two or more substantially identical petitions, it may group them under one title and number, indicating the total number of petitions.

(d) No petitions shall be assigned by the Committee on Reference to any General Conference Committee unless they meet the requirements of the Book of Discipline

B. Commission on Central Conference Affairs.

To this Commission shall be referred all petitions, resolutions, etc., relating to the Central Conferences, Autonomous Churches, Affiliated Churches, Affiliated United Churches and Concordant relationships (Discipline, 26-34, 528, 636-654, 2301.)

The Commission on Central Conference Affairs shall submit its report and any legislative proposals related to the paragraphs assigned to it directly to the General Conference.

If the Commission on Central Conference Affairs has a concern for any paragraphs assigned to one of the legislative committees, the commission shall offer its recommendation to the appropriate legislative committee for consideration and recommendation to the General Conference.

C. Standing Legislative Committees.

The General Conference shall have the following standing legislative committees, which shall consider all proposals looking toward new legislation or changes in the present legislation of the church, including all reports and recommendations from general agencies, and standing or special commissions or committees, and report recommendations relating thereto the Conference.

Any legislative committee considering legislation affecting the concerns of the Commission on Central Conference Affairs shall consult with the Commission before submitting its proposed legislation to the General Conference.

Report and recommendations of the Study of Ministry include amendments to ¶¶ 38, 101-1532.

D. Membership of Standing Legislative Committees.

(1) Each delegate shall serve as a member of one of the standing legislative committees numbered 1 to 10. Within the annual conference delegation each member shall choose from the legislative committees 1 to 10 the committee on which to serve, the choice being made in order of election. Beginning with 1988, the clergy first elected, shall be entitled to the first choice, the lay delegate first elected, the second choice, and thus the right of choice shall continue to alternate between clergy and lay delegates in the order of their election. For subsequent General Conferences, first choice shall alternate between the lay and clergy delegates, provided that two members of a delegation may not serve on any one of the above-designated standing legislative committees 1 to 10 unless the said delegation is represented on each of them. All delegations composed of eleven or more members shall assign all members in excess of ten according to this same principle of distribution. (For example, a conference with sixteen delegates shall have two members on each of any six of these ten committees and one on each of the remaining four. Similarly, a conference with 35 delegates shall have four members on each of five committees and three on each of the remaining five. Each delegate may, in the order herein indicated, select any one of these ten committees, provided that the foregoing division of the delegates among the committees is maintained.) Whenever a delegation has more than one member on a legislative committee, its members shall be divided as equally as possible between lay and clergy. Thus, if there are three members on a committee, they shall be two clergy and one lay or vice versa.

(2) If a matter is under consideration in any standing legislative committee which in the judgment of any annual conference delegation vitally affects the interests of its constituency, and if the said annual conference is not represented in the membership of said committee, then the said delegation may choose one of its members to represent its annual conference in the committee when the matter judged to be vital to the interests of this constituency is under consideration. Such a person shall be entitled to sit with the committee while this particular matter is being considered and shall be entitled to the floor, subject to such limitations as are imposed on the regular members of said committee, but shall not be entitled to vote. (See Section VIII.E.4.)

(3) Each person seated in the General Conference with the right to speak but not vote may submit to the Secretary of the General Conference a choice of a legislative committee and shall have the same right in that committee to speak but not to vote.

E. Meeting of Committees.

(1) For Organization. All standing legislative and administrative committees shall meet for organization at such time as the Commission on the General Conference shall determine. A bishop appointed by the Council of Bishops and an assistant secretary appointed by the Secretary of the General Conference shall serve, respectively, as chairperson and secretary to effect an organization in each of the several standing committees, except where other provision is specified. The first meeting of the legislative committees shall be held as soon as possible following the first plenary session of the General Conference. The orientation of the committee, followed by the election of officers, shall be the order of business of the first meeting of the committee.

(a) The election of chairperson, vice-chairperson, and Secretary of each standing committee, both administrative and legislative, shall be by ballot.

(b) The Secretary of the General Conference shall be responsible for arranging for a training session for all chairpersons, vice-chairpersons, and secretaries of legislative committees as soon as possible after their elections. The training shall include instruction in their duties, all procedures in the handling of petitions, the times of the daily deadline for publishing reports, and other information to expedite the work of the committees. The Commission on the General Conference is requested to arrange for a time and place for such a training session.

(2) Regular Meetings. The standing legislative committees 1 to 10 inclusive shall meet for business as scheduled by the Agenda Committee unless otherwise ordered by the Conference, until their work is completed, and at such other times as the committees may themselves determine.

(3) Quorum for Committee Meetings. A majority of the members shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business in all committees.

(4) Each legislative committee shall establish an area in which only voting committee members will be seated. Staff, resource persons, and visitors may speak only when authorized, in each instance by specific committee action. (See Section VIII.D.2.)

(5) Legislative committees are urged to give priority to significant and controversial legislation so that their reports on such matters may be printed as soon as possible in the Daily Christian Advocate and considered by the General Conference.

(6) Minority reports should be encouraged so that differing views held by a significant portion of the committee may be carefully prepared and expressed and the issues clearly defined for decision by the General Conference. Adequate time should be given for the minority to prepare its report and every effort made to have the majority and minority reports printed together in the Daily Christian Advocate (See Rules 16, 32, 33 and 35).

F. Function and Authority Of Committees

(1) The standing administrative committees, without specific instruction or direction from the Conference, shall assume responsibility for considering and reporting to the Conference upon all matters which would logically fall within their respective purviews, if it seems wise to do so.

(2) The standing legislative committees may not originate business, but shall consider and report only upon that which is referred to them by the Committee on Reference, or which has been referred to them directly by the Conference and processed by the Committee on Reference. (See Rule 30.)

IX. Proposal Involving Expenditure of Unbudgeted Funds

A. Any proposal submitted to the General Conference to establish an interim or continuing board, commission, committee or task force shall be referred to the General Council on Finance and Administration or its executive committee for a report and recommendation before final action is taken.

The General Council on Finance and Administration or its executive committee shall provide the General Conference with the following before action is taken:

(1) an estimated budget for the proposed board, commission, committee or task force for the next quadrennium; and

(2) a statement explaining how the creation of the proposed board, commission, committee, or task force will affect the budget or budgets for existing boards, commissions, committees and task forces already presented by the General Council on Finance and Administration.

B. Any proposal submitted to the General Conference which involves the expenditure of funds not included in the established budget shall be referred to the General Council on Finance and Administration for advice and recommendation before final action is taken.

X. Delegates' Expense Accounts

A. The report of the chairperson of the respective annual conference delegations shall be the basis for settlement with principal and reserve delegates for their per diem allowances. The total traveling expense including per diem shall be payable to the principal delegate if present and seated. If during the Conference a reserve delegate is seated for a principal delegate for one or more full days, the principal delegate shall adjust the per diem with such reserve on the basis of the time served by each.

B. Full travel expenses and per diem shall be paid for the number of allotted delegates from each conference whether those delegates are principal or reserve.

C. Air travel expense shall be on the basis of the most economical roundtrip tourist/coach air fare directly to and from the seat of the General Conference. Special excursion and promotional fares shall be utilized whenever possible. Additional expenses may be allowed delegates from Conferences outside the United States for arrival and departure not to exceed two days before or after General Conference. The per diem expense allowance for all such days before and after General Conference shall be at the same rate as granted delegates during General Conference. Exceptions to these limitations must be approved by the Business Manager of the General Conference.

D. When one or more delegates come in the same automobile, the owner will be allowed the established rate per mile plus the cost of room and meals en route up to the established General Conference per diem rate. Guest passengers who are the principal delegates to the General Conference shall submit only the cost of room and meals en route up to the established General Conference per diem rate. Maximum use of automobiles for travel may not exceed 1,000 miles roundtrip, for reimbursement purposes. If automobile travel exceeds 1000 miles roundtrip, reimbursement will be based upon the most economical roundtrip tourist/coach air fare, or the mileage reimbursement, whichever is less. In all cases delegates shall report only the actual cost of travel.

E. For the dates General Conference is in session, no General Conference delegate shall receive expense money from the general church or any of its boards and agencies other than approved per diem and travel expenses available to all delegates. This provision is not to restrict financial assistance to delegates from their own annual conferences. This shall become effective with the General Conference of 2000.

XI. Material to be Included in The Discipline

A. No non-legislative material shall be ordered printed in the Discipline without first referring it to the committee on Correlation and Editorial Revision for consideration and report to the General Conference for further consideration and final action.

B. The Book Editor, the Secretary of the General Conference, the Publisher of The United Methodist Church, and the Committee on Correlation and Editorial Revision shall be charged with editing the Discipline. These editors, in the exercise of their judgment, shall have the authority to make changes in phraseology as may be necessary to harmonize legislation without changing its substance. The editors, in consultation with the Judicial Council, shall also have authority to delete provisions of the Discipline which have been ruled unconstitutional by the Judicial Council. Any challenge of a decision made by the Committee on Correlation and Editorial Revision shall be in writing. If the matter should go to the Judicial Council, the appealing party shall give notice thereof to the Committee. Any established errata in the Discipline shall be forwarded by the United Methodist Publishing House to the Council of Bishops.

XII. Distribution to the Desks of Delegates

After the first day, only the Daily Christian Advocate shall be placed on the desks of the delegates, with additional copies for the first clergy and first lay reserve delegate from each delegation.

XIII. Distribution of Unofficial Material

Daily, periodic, or regular newsletters, or any special interest material published at General Conference by United Methodist boards, agencies, and related United Methodist groups may be distributed under the following conditions:

A. Two copies of each publication shall be deposited in the office of the Commission on the General Conference in advance of the time of distribution.

B. Material distributed should be used for information relative to matters that have been before or are coming before the General Conference and not for soliciting membership in an organization.

C. Distribution shall be at least 30 feet outside any entrance door to the plenary or committee meeting rooms.

D. Distribution shall be done by representatives of the publishing groups. Distributors shall be in the smallest number capable of effecting adequate distribution to those entering. During distribution it is the responsibility of the distributors not to impede or interfere with the entrance or exit of persons or to hamper the general flow of pedestrian traffic.

E. Distributors are responsible for the disposal of unused or unclaimed materials.

F. Distributors violating these regulations will be prohibited from future distributions.

XIV. Reports to be Mailed Before General Conference

The reports, recommendations, and resolutions, requiring action by the General Conference, as well as petitions submitted in accordance with Discipline 608.7, shall first be assigned a Petition Number by the Secretary of the General Conference or the one designated as Petitions Secretary and then shall be printed in an Advance Edition of the Daily Christian Advocate and distributed to all delegates and to the first clergy and first lay reserve delegates at least sixty days prior to the opening of the General Conference. If necessary to meet this deadline, material to delegates from outside the United States shall be sent by air mail. Such reports shall be printed in the same size and style as the Daily Christian Advocate and be punched for binding

In order to accomplish this, the finished copy of all such reports and recommendations shall be submitted to the editor of the Daily Christian Advocate at least 120 days prior to the opening of the General Conference. Any such reports and recommendations not so submitted and not printed in an Advance Edition of the Daily Christian Advocate shall be received by the General Conference only upon three-fourths vote of the General Conference. The General Council on Finance and Administration shall be exempt from this requirement to the extent necessary to allow inclusion of general funds receipts information for the first three years of the quadrennium. The General Council on Finance and Administration will provide data including the third year of the quadrennium and other appropriate information to delegates prior to the convening of the General Conference.

Rules of Order

I. Daily Schedule

Rule 1. Hours of Meetings

The following shall be the daily order for the General Conference, Sundays excepted:

- (1) 8:15 a.m. Choral music
- (2) 8:30 a.m. to 9:00 a.m. Devotional service under direction of the Council of Bishops
- (3) 9:00 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Conference business committee meetings
- (4) 2:30 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. Conference business or committee meetings
- (5) 7:30 p.m. Evening programs as planned by the Commission on the General Conference, Conference business or committee meetings

(6) Recess may be called during any plenary session at a time deemed appropriate by the bishop presiding.

Rule 2. Order of Business

After the devotional service, the daily sessions of the Conference shall be conducted as follows:

- (1) Reports of standing administrative and special committees
- (2) Agenda and calendar items
- (3) Consent calendar (See Rule 28.5.)
- (4) Miscellaneous business

II. Presiding Officers

Rule 3. Authority of the Chairperson

(1) The bishop presiding shall be the chairperson of the General Conference session.

(2) The bishop presiding shall decide points of order raised by the delegates and shall rule on points of order not raised by delegates, as the chair deems necessary to conform to these rules of order, subject in both cases to an appeal to the Conference by any delegate without debate, except that the chairperson and the appellant, in the order here named, shall each have three minutes for a statement in support of their respective positions. A tie vote in the case of appeal shall sustain the chair. (See Rule 26.2) Any delegate who raises a point of order shall cite the rule by number believed to have been violated.

(3) The bishop presiding shall have the right to recess a session of the General Conference at any time at the chair's discretion and to reconvene at such time as the chair shall announce. The bishop presiding shall also have the right to stipulate that the session shall reconvene with only delegates, authorized personnel, and authorized guests permitted to attend such a session following recess.

Rule 4. Calling the Conference to Order

When the bishop presiding calls the Conference to order, no member shall speak, address the chair, or stand.

III. Rights and Duties Of Members

Rule 5. Attendance and Seating Reserves

No delegate, unless hindered by sickness or other emergency situation shall be absent from the sessions of the Conference without permission of the Conference. All absences shall be reported by the chairpersons of the several Annual Conference delegations to the Committee on Credentials on a form provided for this purpose. A reserve delegate may be seated upon authority of the chairperson of the delegation who shall report the substitution in writing to the Committee on Credentials on a form provided for this purpose. Reserves are chosen to be seated:

1. by reason of being of the same order as the absent member;
2. in order of their election as reserve delegates.

If the Committee disapproves the substitution, after consultation with the chairperson of the delegation, it may report to the General Conference with its recommendation. The chairperson of the Committee on Credentials shall make a daily written report to the Secretary of the General Conference, listing all changes of seating. (See Plan of Organization I.A.4 and VIII.A.4.)

Rule 6. Voting When On The Platform

Electronic voting devices shall be available on the platform for delegates making a presentation to the Conference. Reserves shall not be seated for such delegates.

Rule 7. Directions for Securing the Floor

A delegate desiring to speak to the Conference shall hold up the appropriate placard provided for that purpose. A delegate shall not move to the microphone until recognized by the bishop presiding. Unless raising a point of order or parliamentary inquiry, the delegate shall not speak until given the floor. The bishop presiding is requested to consider the various sections of the auditorium in rotation. The delegate recognized shall proceed to the nearest microphone and shall first announce her or his name and the name of the Conference represented; and in turn, the bishop presiding shall then announce to the Conference.

Rule 8. Interrupting the Speaker

No delegate who has the floor may be interrupted except for a point of order, a misrepresentation, a parliamentary inquiry, a point of information, or to call attention that the time has arrived for a special order.

Rule 9. Speaking More Than Once; Length of Speech

A. No delegate shall speak a second time on the same question if any delegate who has not previously spoken on the question desires the floor.

B. No delegate shall speak more than twice on the same subject under the same motion, except as provided in Rule 36.3.

C. No delegate shall speak longer than three minutes unless that time is extended by the Conference. (See Rule 36.3)

D. The three-minute limit on delegate speeches may be amended by a majority vote of the Conference at any time and for any period of duration.

Rule 10. Point of Order

A delegate wishing to raise a point of order shall address the bishop presiding and say, "I rise to a point of order." The bishop presiding shall interrupt the proceeding; if a delegate is speaking, that one shall immediately yield the floor. The bishop presiding shall then direct the delegate raising the point of order to state the point as briefly and concisely as possible, citing the rule invoked in the point of order but the delegate shall not presume to decide the question or argue the point.

A point of order is decided by the bishop presiding without debate unless in doubtful cases the chair submits the question to the body for advice or decision. When the bishop presiding rules on a point, debate is closed, but the decision may be appealed.

Rule 11. Bar of the Conference

The bar of the conference shall provide for the integrity of the General Conference. It is for delegates, pages, and others who have been granted access to the area for General Conference business. Delegates are not to distract others near them by engaging in unrelated business activity.

Rule 12. Voting Procedure

(1) Voting shall be by electronic means unless otherwise ordered by the Conference, provided, however, that in elections, voting may be by written ballot.

(2) When electronic voting is not in use, a standing count vote or vote by secret ballot may be ordered on call of any delegate, supported by one-third of the delegates present and voting.

(3) If the event the electronic voting system is inoperable, the chairpersons of the delegations shall poll their respective delegations.

(4) Only delegates within the bar of the Conference when the vote is taken shall be entitled to vote. No delegate shall cast a vote in place of any other delegate.

(5) No other business shall be in order when a vote is being taken or when the previous question has been called until the process is completed, except such as relates to the vote itself or such business as the chair may deem appropriate.

Rule 13. Division of Question

Before a vote is taken, any delegate shall have the right to call for a division of any question, if it is subject to such division as the delegate indicates. If no delegate objects, the division shall be made; but if there is objection, the chair shall put the question of division to vote, not waiting for a second.

IV. Business Procedure

Rule 14. Motion for Adoption of Reports

Whenever a report of a committee signed by the chairperson and secretary thereof shall be presented to the Conference for its action, it shall be deemed in proper order for consideration by the Conference without the formality of a second.

Rule 15. Required Forms for Reports, Resolution, Motions, Amendments

All resolutions and committee reports shall be prepared in triplicate; and motions, including amendments, shall be presented in writing. (See Rules 28.2, 31.2, 33.)

Rule 16. Alterations of Motions, Etc.

When a motion is made and seconded or a resolution is introduced and seconded or a committee report is read or is published in the Daily Christian Advocate, it shall be deemed to be in the possession of the Conference and may not be altered except by action of the Conference. (See Rule 32.)

Rule 17. Undebatable Motions

The following motions shall be acted upon without debate:

(1) To adjourn, when unqualified, except to adjourn the Conference finally

(2) To suspend the rules

(3) To lay on the table, except as provided in Rule 36

(4) To take from the table

(5) To call for the previous questions (See Rule 22)

(6) To reconsider a non-debatable motion (See Rule 27)

(7) To limit or extend the limits of debate

Rule 18. Rights of the Main Question

The main question may be opened to debate under the following motions: to adopt, to commit or refer, to substitute, to postpone, and to reconsider. No new motion, resolutions, or subject shall be entertained until the one under consideration shall have been disposed of, except as provided in Rule 12.5. The foregoing does not apply to secondary motions if otherwise allowable.

Rule 19. Precedence of Secondary Motions

If any one or more of the following motions shall be made when one or more other motions are pending, the order of their precedence in relation to one another shall be the same as the order of their listing below:

(1) To fix the time to which the conference shall adjourn. (This motion is subject to amendment, or it may be laid to the table.)

(2) To adjourn

(3) To take a recess

(4) To lay on the table

(5) To order the previous question (See Rules 22, 24.)

(6) To limit or extend the limits of debate

(7) To postpone to a given time

(8) To commit or refer

(9) To amend or to amend by substitution (one amendment being allowed to an amendment)

(10) To postpone indefinitely

Rule 20. Motion to Adjourn in Order Except:

The motion to adjourn, when unqualified, shall be taken without debate and shall always be in order, except:

(1) When a delegate has the floor

(2) When a question is actually put or a vote is being taken and before it is finally decided

(3) When the previous question has been ordered and action thereunder is pending

(4) When a motion to adjourn has been lost and no business or debate has intervened

(5) When the motion to fix the time to which the conference shall adjourn is pending

The foregoing does not apply to a motion for final adjournment of the Conference.

Rule 21. Tabling Related Motions

No motion which adheres to another motion or has another motion adhering to it can be laid on the table by itself. Such motions, if laid on the table, carry with them the motions to which they adhere or which adhere to them.

Rule 22. Previous Question

Any member who moves the previous question (that is, that the vote be now taken on the motion or motions pending) shall also indicate to what it is intended to apply, if any secondary motion or motions are also pending. If said member does not so indicate, it shall be regarded as applying only to the immediately pending question. This motion shall be taken without debate and shall require a two-thirds vote of those present and voting for its adoption; if it is adopted, the vote shall be taken on the motion or motions to which it applies without further debate except as provided in Rule 36. (See also Rules 17, 24e, 25.)

Rule 23. Referring Reports, Etc.

It shall be in order for the Conference to refer to a committee a section or part of a report or resolution which is before the Conference for consideration of any amendment offered thereto.

Rule 24. Procedure for Amending by Substitution

(A) When a resolution or committee report is properly before the Conference for consideration and action, even if amendments are pending, a substitute may be offered by any member moving that the same be substituted for the report, resolution, or amendment under consideration. The substitute shall be an alternative to what is before the house and not simply a negation of the main motion.

(B) The Conference shall proceed first to perfect the original report or resolution, including consideration and action upon any amendments which may be offered to it.

(C) The same perfecting process shall be followed with respect to the substitute.

(D) The questions shall be put first on the motion to substitute, followed by the motion to adopt the report or resolution.

(E) The motion for the previous questions shall not be in order on the adoption of the report or recommendation or on making the proposed substitution until opportunity has been given for at least two members to speak on each side of the question of substitution or adoption. (Also see 35.2 for handling minority reports.)

Rule 25. Unlawful Motion After Speech

It shall not be in order for a delegate immediately after discussing a pending question and before relinquishing the floor to make a motion which, if adopted, would limit or stop debate.

Rule 26. Exceptions to Majority Vote.

A majority of those voting, quorum being present (Discipline 607), shall decide all questions, with the following exceptions:

(1) One-third of those present and voting shall suffice to sustain a call for a recorded vote in case the decision of the chair is doubted. (See Rule 12.2.)

(2) A tie vote sustains the chair. (Rule 3.2.)

(3) A two-thirds vote shall be required to sustain a motion to suspend (Rule 38) or amend (Rule 39) the rules; to set aside a special order (Rule 28.1); to consider a special order before the time set therefore; to sustain the request of the Committee on Courtesies and Privileges for the presentation of any person after the sixth day of the General Conference. (Plan of Organization VIII.A.3.)

(4) A call for the previous question is a motion to suspend the rules and therefore requires a two-thirds vote.

(5) A two-thirds vote shall be required to approve a proposal for a constitutional amendment. (Discipline, 62-64.)

Rule 27. Reconsideration

A motion to reconsider an action of the Conference shall be in order at any time if offered by a delegate who voted with the prevailing side. If the motion it is proposed to reconsider is non-debatable, the motion to reconsider may not be debated. (See Rule 16.)

Rule 28. Regular Calendar and Consent Calendar

(1) The Secretary shall keep the Calendar which includes the orders of the day and the reports of committees (See Rule 31). Business placed on the calendar shall be considered in the order recommended by the Committee on Agenda and Calendar, unless by two-thirds vote of the Conference, an item is taken up out of its order. (See Rule 26.3.)

(2) When a committee presents a report, it shall also list the numbers of all petitions relating to the report on which the committee voted non-concurrence so that all related matters may be considered together. (See Rules 30.3, 31, 33.)

(3) Action from a legislative committee shall be placed on the Consent Calendar if:

(a) No more than five votes were cast against the prevailing position in the Committee;

(b) The item has been previously printed in The Daily Christian Advocate;

(c) The item has been in the hands of delegates for at least 24 hours; and

(d) The item is neither a constitutional amendment nor one having financial implications.

(4) The Daily Christian Advocate shall clearly identify the Consent Calendar which will list items in three sections sub-headed as follows:

(a) Discipline Changes Concurrence

(b) Non-Discipline Items Concurrence

(c) Discipline and Non-Discipline Items Nonconcurrency

(5) The Consent Calendar shall be called up daily pursuant to Rule 2. Adoption of the Consent Calendar by vote of the Conference shall be deemed action on all calendar items on the Consent Calendar.

(6) Any five delegates may have a Consent Calendar item removed by having such a request on file with the Secretary by 3:00 p.m. of the day the calendar item first appears in The Daily Christian Advocate. Such items shall be called up in the regular order of business.

Rule 29. Rules of Order of Legislative Committees

The rules of order of the General Conference, except for Rule 36, shall be observed in meetings of standing legislative committees insofar as they apply.

Rule 30. Duties and Prerogatives of Legislative Committees

(1) Following election and orientation of officers, as its first order of business, each committee shall utilize the resources of its legislative coordinator. Each committee shall evaluate the petitions assigned to the committee, establish priorities, and outline the committee's work on the basis of those priorities unless it is given special instructions by the General Conference. (See Plan of Organization VIII.A.(7)(a).)

(2) When a petition or resolution or any similar item is referred to one of the several standing legislative committees, it shall be understood that the whole question with which the paper has to do is referred to that committee for such action as it may deem wise. In addition to concurrence and non-concurrence, a committee may recommend action or referral to the next General Conference or to a board, council, commission, or committee either for action or for report to the next General Conference.

(3) Committees shall report to the Conference upon all matters referred to them by the Conference, directly or through the Committee on Reference. Committee reports on resolutions, petitions, etc., shall cite the same, identifying them by numbers they bear respectively in the published reports of the Committee on Reference or in some other suitable manner.

(4) When a committee ascertains that another committee is, or in its judgment should be, considering a subject which the former is considering, it shall report the matter to the Committee on Reference for such adjustment as the situation may require.

Rule 31. Legislative Committee Report to the Daily Christian Advocate

(1) As quickly as material can be prepared, each secretary of a standing legislative committee shall present each of the committee's reports to a recorder assigned to the committee. The recorder will prepare the report and send it to the Daily Christian Advocate. A copy of the report as it will appear in the Daily Christian Advocate will be sent to the chair and vice chair for their approval and signature. After copy has been approved, it will be returned to the Daily Christian Advocate. A calendar number will be assigned and it will be printed as approved.

(2) Committee and minority reports which propose changes in the Discipline shall give chapter, section, and paragraph to be affected and shall be prepared in the following manner.

Existing words used as reference points shall be in quotation marks; words to be deleted shall be single-underlined; words to be added shall be double-underlined. In the publication of these reports, the Daily Christian Advocate shall substitute italics for single underlining and boldface for double underlining (See Rule 33.)

Rule 32. Published Reports in Possession of Conference

Reports submitted by the committee according to the deadline, as announced by the Secretary of the Conference, shall appear in the next day's Daily Christian Advocate.

The report as printed in the Daily Christian Advocate becomes the official copy, subject only to grammatical or other obvious editorial changes and shall be regarded as in the possession of the Conference. On the day following its first appearance in the Daily Christian Advocate or any time thereafter, a report is in order for consideration at the pleasure of the conference. The same rule shall apply to a report of a minority of any committee. (See Rules 16, 35.)

Rule 33. Preparation and Printing of Reports

(1) All committee reports shall be presented to the Daily Christian Advocate on a form provided therefore and using a process approved by the Secretary of the Conference. The form shall bear at the top the name of the committee, its total membership, the number present at the time the report was adopted, the number voting for and against the report, respectively, and the number not voting. (See Rule 15, 28.2, 30.3, 31.)

(2) Consent Calendar items (see Rule 28.3, 4) shall be clearly marked with an identifying symbol on the report cover and in the Daily Christian Advocate printing, this symbol to be supplied by the General Conference Secretary.

(3) Reports of the standing legislative committees shall be printed in the Daily Christian Advocate at least one day before being presented for consideration by the Conference. Committee reports to which minority reports are appended shall be printed in sequence, and so numbered.

(4) Every effort should be made by the secretary of the Legislative Committee to report consecutively all petitions which address the same issue.

Rule 3. Committee Chairperson Not in Harmony with Report

When the chairperson of a committee is not in harmony with a report adopted by the committee, it shall be the chairperson's duty to state the fact to the committee. The committee shall elect one of its members to present it in the presentation and discussion of the report in the Conference. If, in such a case, the committee shall fail to select a representative, the chairperson shall designate a member to represent the committee, and said representative shall have all the rights and privileges of the chairperson in relation to such report.

Rule 35. Minority Report

(1) Minority reports represented as substitutes for a committee report shall conform to Rule 24 and Rule 31 respectively and indicate the specific report number with which it relates. The names of the members of the committee signing the report shall be indicated. A minority report shall be signed by one-tenth or by ten members of the committee, whichever is the lesser.

(2) A minority report shall be processed as a substitution for the report of the committee pursuant to Rule 24 as would any other substitute.

(3) A member selected by the signers of the report of a minority of a committee to present the same shall have the same rights and privileges in relation thereto which belong to the chairperson in the presentation of the committee report. In closing debate on the minority report, the member presenting the minority report shall speak first and the chairperson last.

Rule 36. Speakers For and Against

(1) When the report of a committee is under consideration, it shall be the duty of the presiding bishop to ascertain, when recognizing a member of the Conference, on which side the member proposes to speak; the chair shall not assign the floor to any member proposing to speak on the same side of the pending question as the speaker immediately preceding if any member desires to speak on the other side thereof.

(2) Except for undebatable motions (Rule 17), no report shall be adopted or question relating to the same decided without opportunity having been given for at least two speeches for and two against the said proposal. After three speeches for and three against and provided no secondary motions come before the floor, the questions shall be put automatically. However, the chairperson and/or duly authorized member or members presenting the committee's report (and the minority report chairperson or representative if there be one) shall be entitled to speak before the vote is taken. (See Rule 35.)

(3) The right of the chairperson and/or other member or members to close the debate shall prevail in like manner to a limit of three minutes when a vote is about to be taken on a motion to amend, to substitute, to postpone, to refer, or to lay on the table or any other motion whose adoption would vitally affect the report under consideration. (See Rules 9, 35.)

Rule 37. Effective Date

All legislation of the General Conference of the United Methodist Church shall become effective January 1 following the session of the General Conference at which it is enacted, unless otherwise specified. (See Discipline ¶ 609.)

VI. Suspending, Amending, and Supplementing

Rule 38. Suspension of the Rules

The operation of any of the provisions of the Plan of Organization or of these Rules of Order may be suspended at any time by two-thirds vote of the Conference. (See Rule 26.3.)

Rule 39. Amending Rules

The plan of Organization and these Rules of Order may be amended or changed by a two-thirds vote of the Conference; provided the proposed change or amendment has originated in the Committee on Plan of Organization and Rules of Order or has been presented to the Conference in writing and referred to this committee, which committee shall report thereon not later than the following day. (See Rule 26.3 and Plan of Organization VII.B.)

The Plan of Organization and Rules of Order as adopted at the opening session shall be printed in the next Daily Christian Advocate.

Rule 40. Robert's Rules of Order, Supplemental Authority

In any parliamentary situation not covered by the Plan of Organization or these Rules of Order, the General Conference shall be governed in its action by the current edition of Robert's Rules of Order.

Rule 41. Persons Without Right to Make or Second Motion

A person seated in the conference with the right to speak, but without vote, does not have the right to make a motion or second motions.

Recommendation Number Two

We propose that the Study on Ministry come before the General Conference using the following process:

1. The Council of Bishops will present its Study on Ministry to the General Conference in plenary on Wednesday morning, April 17, as an order of the day.

2. Following this presentation, the body of the General Conference will be divided into 25 randomly selected non-legislative groups for reflection and dialogue on the study.

3. Each group will meet for 90 minutes guided by a convener Bishop selected by the Council of Bishops.

4. Each group will be provided a recorder who is a non-delegate and who has been trained by UCom.

5. On Wednesday evening, April 17, the convenors and recorders will meet to compare experiences and to identify areas of consensus among the groups as well as issues or questions related to the study which were not addressed in the Wednesday morning presentation.

6. The convener and recorder will provide the General Conference on Thursday morning, April 18, with a written report-for-information of their observations. The General Secretary of UCom will present a brief oral summary of the report. The Bishop presenting the Study on Ministry report will have opportunity for additional comments.

7. The study will then move to the legislative committee to which it has been assigned and follow the legislative process in accordance with the Plan of Organization and Rules of Order adopted by the General Conference.

Petition Number: 23071-GJ-905.1-D; GCOM.

Organization

Delete ¶ 905.1 and replace with new text:

Organization.—1. Membership.—a) The voting members of the Council shall be elected quadrennially by the General Conference and shall consist of forty (40) persons nominated as follows:

(1) three bishops nominated by the Council of Bishops;

(2) six persons from each jurisdiction nominated by the bishops of that jurisdiction;

(3) one person from an annual conference in the central conferences nominated by the Council of Bishops; and

(4) six members at large, at least one of whom shall be a youth under the age of eighteen and at least one of whom shall not be over thirty years of age at the time of election, and most of whom shall be elected for special skills. The members at large shall be nominated by the Council of Bishops without reference to jurisdictions.

b) It is recommended that attention be given to ensuring adequate representation of racial and ethnic groups, with at least two of the at-large members to be racial and ethnic persons. It is further recommended that in the membership from each of the jurisdictions and the at-large members, one-third be laywomen.

c) The general secretaries who serve as the chief executive officers of the general agencies and the publisher of The United Methodist Church shall be members of the council but without vote.

d) The voting members, including bishops, shall not be eligible for membership on, or employment by, any other general agency of The United Methodist Church (¶ 801.2), except where the Book of Discipline specifically provides for such interagency representation. Members shall also be guided by such conflict of interest policies and provisions as may from time to time be adopted by the General Conference or by the council itself.

e) Members shall serve until their successors are elected and qualified.

f) Vacancies occurring between sessions of the General Conference shall be filled by the council on nomination of the College of Bishops of the jurisdiction concerned (see ¶ 812), if the vacancy is among members chosen to represent a jurisdiction or, in the event of a vacancy among the episcopal, central conference or at-large members, on nomination of the Council of Bishops.

The Mission and Ministry of the Church

Action: It is requested that the General Conference delete paragraphs 102 and 103 from The Book of Discipline and replace paragraph 101 with the following:

TITLE: Mission and Ministry of the Church Statement

Mission:

The mission of the Church is to make disciples of Christ Jesus who will claim their ministry as agents of God's kingdom.

Rationale of Our Mission:

Jesus' words in Mark 1:14 ("The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God has come near; repent, and believe in the good news"), announced to the world his Gospel mission and ours. Jesus' entire ministry and disciple recruitment was directed to announcing and demonstrating God's kingdom as a present and coming reality; i.e., the reign and realm wherein God's loving will is done on earth as it is in heaven. Mark's account of Jesus' closing great commission, "Go into all the world and proclaim the good news (of the kingdom) to the whole creation" (Mark 14:15), coupled with Matthew's account of that commission (Matt. 28:19:20), "Go therefore and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, and teaching them to obey everything that I have commanded you," provide the impulse and direction of our mission.

This kingdom mission is an expression of God's larger work in creation. God seeks to restore human beings and all creation to the righteousness ("right relations") which God intends. God's grace is active everywhere, at all times, carrying out this purpose as revealed in the Bible. It is expressed in God's covenant with Abraham and Sarah, in the Exodus of Israel from Egypt, and in interpreted following the Babylonian Captivity, that graceful purpose is fully embodied in the life, death, and resurrection of Christ Jesus. It is experienced in the ongoing creation of a new people by Christ's Holy Spirit, or, as Jesus called himself, "the Spirit of truth," (John 14:17). As the Apostle Paul put it: "The Lord is the Spirit." (2 Cor. 3:17)

Whenever Christian disciples have had a clear sense of God's kingdom mission, God has used the Church as the agent of salvation (soteria, i.e., wholeness) to save persons, heal relationships, and change social structures; thereby transforming the world. In order to be fully alive (what Jesus called "eternal life,") we embrace Jesus' mandate to proclaim the good news of the kingdom and make disciples of all peoples.

The Process for Carrying Out Our Mission:

We make disciples and kingdom agents as we:

- proclaim the good news of the kingdom, seeking, welcoming, and gathering persons into the Body of Christ, the community of faith;

- lead persons to commit their lives to the God we meet in Christ Jesus and help equip them to claim their own ministry as agents of God's kingdom;

- nurture and equip persons in Christian living through teaching and understanding the means of grace: worship, baptism, communion, Bible study and prayer.

- continue the ministry of the kingdom begun by Jesus when he said: "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he has anointed me to bring good news to the poor. He has sent me to proclaim release to the captives and recovery of sight to the blind, to let the oppressed go free, to proclaim the year of the Lord's favor." (Luke 4:18-19)

- send persons into the world equipped to live lovingly and justly as disciples by healing the sick, feeding the hungry, caring for the stranger, and freeing the oppressed, as signs of Christ's presence in that kingdom where God's will is done.

Faithfulness and effectiveness demand that all ministries of the Church, whether by ordained or baptized ministers, be shaped by Christ Jesus' own mission, joining him in making disciples who will proclaim in word and deed the good news of the kingdom.

Rationale:

The United Methodist Church needs to refocus its life and mission upon that which unites us: Christ Jesus and his kingdom mission. Tragically, many groups and individuals within Methodism have focused on lesser issues (John Wesley called them "non-essentials") which divide us. We are a people passionate about many "things": the race thing, the war thing, the sexuality thing, the poverty thing, the justice thing, etc. We need to rediscover the word of Jesus, that if we "seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness," the answers to these other "things" will be provided as well. By clearly reaffirming in The Book of Discipline that our mission is consonant with the mission of our Lord, we can recover not only the vision but the power to use our great gifts and diversity to "serve the present age, our calling to fulfill."

UM Emphasis on Youth and Young Adults

Basis: In a survey conducted by Search Institute (Minneapolis, Minnesota) it was found that only a small minority of youth in Protestant congregations experience a life-transforming faith that is characterized by a strong relationship with God.

Two-thirds of youth said they have a dormant or under-developed faith.

In the same Search Institute survey, a small percentage of youth indicate that they actively engage their faith through prayer, Bible reading, service to others, or other spiritual growth activities.

Fewer than half of the youth in the Search Institute survey say their church challenges them to think and few have meaningful relationships with adults in their congregations.

Young adults experience similar problems with faith formation issues to connect with the church.

One of the ways for the church to turn these dismal statistics around and make the church a place where youth and young adults want to be, is to put a high priority on youth ministries and young adult ministries.

In a survey conducted by Group Publishing, it states that 80% of families with children say youth ministry is a major factor in choosing a church.

In the same survey, 57% of families stated the reason they joined their present church is the strong youth ministry program.

Conclusion: The 1995 National Youth Ministry Organization Legislative Assembly calls for a youth and young adult emphasis for The United Methodist Church during the 1997-2000 quadrennium.

Standing Commission on Alcohol and Drugs

In order to make more effectual the efforts of The United Methodist Church in creating a Christian public sentiment and in crystallizing opposition to all public violations of the moral law, and especially to oppose the many evils existing in society caused by the consumption of alcoholic beverages and other drugs, there shall be a Standing General Commission on Alcohol and Drugs, hereinafter known as the commission.

Its headquarters shall be in Washington, DC.

Purpose:

The object and duty of the commission shall be to promote by an intensive educational program voluntary total abstinence from all intoxicants and narcotics; the educational program to include the use of radio, television, publication and distribution of literature; to promote observance and enforcement of constitutional provisions and statutory enactments that suppress the traffic in alcoholic beverages and in narcotic drugs; and to promote the speedy enactment of such legislation throughout the world.

Incorporation:

The commission shall be incorporated in the District of Columbia. The commission shall be the legal successor and successor in trust of the corporations, boards, departments or entities known as the Department of Human Welfare of the General Board of Church and Society of The United Methodist Church; the Division of General Welfare of the General Board of Church and Society of The United Methodist Church; the Division of General Welfare of the General Board of Christian Social Concerns of The United Methodist Church; the Department of Christian Social Action of the Evangelical United Brethren Church; the Division of Alcohol Problems and General Welfare of the General Board of Christian Social Concerns of the Methodist Church; the Division of Temperance and General Welfare of the General Board of Christian Social Concerns of the Methodist Church; the Board of Temperance of the Methodist Church; and the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Membership:

The commission shall consist of thirty persons elected by the jurisdictional conferences and three bishops elected by the Council of Bishops. Those elected to the commission shall be chosen solely for their demonstrated concern about the problems caused in our society by the presence and use of alcoholic beverages and other drugs. Each jurisdiction shall elect six persons from the list of persons proposed for general agency membership by the annual conferences. A jurisdiction may elect a maximum of four clergy members or four lay members. At the first meeting of each quadrennium and each annual meeting thereafter, the commission may elect an additional person or persons based on special expertise that will be of assistance to the commission, provided that a maximum of five such persons may be elected each quadrennium.

Vacancies in the commission membership shall be filled by the procedure defined in ¶ 812 of the General Provisions.

Officers:

The officers of the commission shall be a president, a vice president, a secretary, and a treasurer.

Executive Committee:

The commission shall have an executive committee composed of the elected officers and two additional persons selected by the commission from among its other members. The general secretary shall be a member of the executive committee, with a voice but not the right to vote. The committee shall have the power ad interim to fill any vacancies occurring in the elected staff and to transact such business and adopt such resolutions and statements as are authorized between the meetings of the commission. It shall report all of its actions to the commission promptly after each of its meetings and again for confirmation at the next meeting of the commission.

Meetings:

The commission shall hold an annual meeting at a time and place to be determined by its executive committee and such other meetings as its work may require, and shall enact suitable bylaws governing the activities of the commission and its employees. A majority of the membership shall constitute a quorum.

Staff:

The commission shall have a general secretary and one or more associate general secretaries as its work may show to be necessary. The commission shall be otherwise organized and operate according to the general provisions of the Administrative Order of the Discipline, except where they may be in conflict with the provisions herein adopted specifically for the commission.

Funding:

The standing commission shall be funded like other general agencies of the church (§ 906). During its first quadrennium (1997-2000) it shall receive from the funds otherwise authorized for the use of the General Board of Church and Society that percentage that corresponds to the amount authorized for the use of the Board of Temperance during the last quadrennium (1956-60) that the former Boards of Temperance, World Peace, and Social and Economic Relations received in individual appropriations. It shall receive all property owned or controlled by the former Board of Temperance at the time of its merger in 1960 with the former Boards of World Peace and Social and Economic Relations.

The commission shall be authorized to solicit and create special funds; to receive gifts and bequests; to hold properties and securities in trust; and to administer all these financial affairs in accordance with its own rules and the provisions of the Discipline.

Annual Conference:

Each annual conference shall establish a Commission on Alcohol and Drugs. The total membership of this commission shall be determined by each annual conference according to its own rules. Each member of the Standing General Commission on Alcohol and Drugs shall be an ex officio member, with vote, of the annual conference where that member resides or has his or her annual conference membership. Clergy appointed beyond the local church may, if he or she chooses, be a member of the commission of the annual conference where he or she resides.

Local Church:

Each local church shall have a work area for alcohol and drugs.

Effective Date:

This legislation shall become effective 90 days after General Conference has adjourned.

Proceedings of the 1996 General Conference of The United Methodist Church

Tuesday Afternoon,
April 16, 1996

BISHOP RICHARD B. WILKE: Delegates are asked to be in their seats at a quarter past three. Go forth in peace. The grace of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. The compassionate love of God, the communion and fellowship of the Holy Spirit, be with you now and forever. Amen.

BISHOP ROY I. SANO: By the grace of God, we are gathered here, and the 1996 General Conference of The United Methodist Church will come to order.

The first item on the agenda is roll call. And there are a few items that we need to call to your attention. The agenda as we have it before any changes are made in our Rules of Order or Plan of Organization is found on page 88 of your Advance Edition. There is one item of business we wish to call to your attention on the roll call for the Council of Bishops. And I'm going to turn to the secretary of the council, Bishop Talbert, to note those items. Let us give Bishop Talbert your attention, please.

BISHOP MELVIN G. TALBERT: Bishop Sano and members of the General Conference, we note the presence of the absence of all bishops, but there are two of our colleagues who are not here that I think is noteworthy for the record. The first is our brother bishop from Liberia, Bishop Arthur Kulah. There is a lot of trouble in Liberia, fighting between factions, and he has decided that he needs to be there with his people in the midst of these struggles. And so he is in his own house. As far as we know he's safe. His choice is not to leave and to be there. And I think this General Conference would want to note that as we are here doing our business, one of our bishops is at home doing the work of peacemaking in behalf of us all.

The second is Bishop Alfred Ndoricimpa. He has been in Nairobi in exile from his homeland of Burundi for quite a time now. But getting to the United States has become a serious problem. Our State Department will not give him or grant him a visa. We have been writing to all of the departments, appealing our case, but they simply have not been willing to grant him a visa to be here with us. You need to know we are deeply disturbed by that. We plan to make a formal protest, but we wanted you to know that that's why our brother Alfred Ndoricimpa is not here. He was planning to come, but he could not get a visa. Thank you.

BISHOP SANO: Let us pause briefly for prayer.

(prayer)

We have a word of greetings from our marvelous host, so I turn to Bishop Swenson to bring greetings for us in this area. Bishop Swenson, please.

Bishop Swenson Welcome

BISHOP MARY ANN SWENSON: Welcome world to our neighborhood. Our neighborhood is vast and diverse. It is peaks and plains, mountains and metropolitan, sunshine and snow, desert, and continental divide. It is home to dinosaurs and aspen and petroglyphs of persons in canyonlands who lived there and travelled this way and glorified their creator a long, long time ago.

Our neighborhood is 460,000 square miles of Montana, Utah, Wyoming, Colorado, and a little bit of Idaho. In Utah we have a vision that the desert shall bloom with grace. In Wyoming we have more antelope than people and more wind than you can imagine. In Montana it's big sky country; the last best place. And you're going to see a lot of Colorado this week and next.

Our vast and diverse neighborhood is Tongan, Somoan, Korean, Japanese, Urdu, Blackfeet, Cheyenne, Arapaho, Crow, Ute, Hispanic, African-American, and cowboy and cowgirl. We are skiers, ranchers, farmers, teachers, and urban technocrats. And we are all learning. We are learning that we are all one family. We have been praying for you and with you in preparation for these days together.

Welcome world to our neighborhood. And we've come to learn something. In our preparation to welcome you as the world to our neighborhood, we have come to learn in fact that our neighborhood is the world. And as we have worked to create spaces of hospitality for stranger to become friend, we have come to know more and more we are one family, one people, related to one God, one holy apostolic catholic church, one world.

Now we hope you'll take advantage of some of the mission opportunities while you are here. You know people are coming from around the world to build a Habitat house during these two weeks. I got to be a part of the groundbreaking ceremony a little while ago, and see a big hole in the ground, and meet the family who will live there. Volunteers in mission are coming from all around the world. And it's going to be really interesting with all of the translators and see how many languages we can all learn how to say "hammer and nails." We will dedicate the house on Saturday after General Conference closes on Friday.

I hope that while you're here you will visit some of the mission adventures of the local area. I hope you'll take a visit to Warren Village. This is one of the general church Advance Specials that is a close-knit community of low-income, single-parent families where they are working to grow and develop and become self sufficient. There are families with up to four children who live in the apartments at Warren Village while they are working and going to school and growing and learning.

We will have a number of mini-tours available for you, a lot of special events next weekend, a lot of mission service opportunities. I hope you'll take time to see the Women's Bean Project and attend the play Caught in the Middle.

As we gather for these two weeks to do the church's work, I hope that you will not forget to take time to look to the mountains. Let us be God's people celebrating God's creation. Let us celebrate God's creation with a dream that we will know ourselves, participating in God's mission to redeem and restore all of creation to God's intended design.

Welcome world; welcome to our neighborhood.

BISHOP SANO: We'll turn next to the report from the General Conference Committee.

Commission on General Conference Introduced

JOHN J. THOMAS: Bishop Sano, members of the Council of Bishops, delegates, officials, and visitors. On behalf of the Commission on General Conference, we extend greetings and welcome to each of you. We welcome you to the conference which completes the 20th Century and makes plans for the 21st. We especially welcome those who are attending General Conference for the first time as elected and reserve delegates.

The commission is given responsibility for the determining of the time and place of the meeting of General Conference and making all arrangements for the sessions of General Conference. The names of the commission members are found on page five of the Advance DCA. I have them here before you and I at this time wish to introduce to you the members that have been working so hard for the past four years along with the Denver area representatives to make this a successful General Conference.

First of all I'd like to introduce, from Sierra Madre, Calif., the vice chair for facilities of the commission, The Rev. Don Locher. You will withhold your applause until I have introduced them all, please. The vice chairperson for program from Detroit, Mich., The Rev. William Quick; the secretary of our commission, all the way from Valhermoso Springs, Ala., Mollie M. Stewart; from River Edge, N.J., Robert Brandt; from Memphis, Tenn., Dr. Jerry Brewster; from New Orleans, La., The Rev. Carol Cotton-Winn; from Rockford, Ill., The Rev. Sandra Hoke; from Dallas, Texas, Thalia Matherson; from Walnut Creek, Calif., Harry Shaner; from Campbellsville, Ky., The Rev. Wallace Thomas.

MR JOHN J. THOMAS (chairperson of the Commission on General Conference) And from Rochester, Pennsylvania, the Rev. J. Howard Wright. In addition to which we have three ex-officio members. First of all, and I understand seated someplace out in front and not up here, is Sandra Kelly Lakore, the general secretary of the General Council on Finance and Administration. Would you, Sandra, please stand? She is way in the back. Also, Carolyn Marshall who is the secretary of General Conference, and she is from Petersburg, Indiana. Carolyn. And our executive director and business manager from Evanston, Illinois, as is Sandra Kelly Lakore, Roger F. Kruse. These are your commission members and my name is John Thomas and I come from Brazil, Indiana.

Local Committee Introduced

The names of the Denver area local committee are found on page six of the Advance DCA. You have already met the host area bishop, Bishop Mary Ann Swenson, the cowgirl who was out here a few moments ago, and I also wish to especially recognize, and these folks will be recognized later but especially recognize the fine work of Paula Johnson, who is the chairperson for the local committee for this conference. These persons have worked prayerfully and diligently to prepare for your arrival. We're very appreciative of the hospitality that they have shown and are showing as our local hosts and hostesses.

This session of the General Conference has been planned in accordance with the Plan of Organization of General Conference. To facilitate the work of the conference, the commission recommends the following schedule of special activities for your approval: the episcopal address at 8:15 this evening. This service will be preceded by a hymn sing at 7:45 this evening in this room. The laity address at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. The Denver area program that was referred to by Bishop Swenson a few moments ago for Sunday evening, April 21, at 7 p.m. The presentation of the ecumenical representatives at 9 a.m. on next Tuesday, a week from today, April 23. Bishop, I move these recommendations for approval.

BISHOP ROY SANO: Okay, thank you. You have heard the motion. Those in favor will lift the hand. Thank you. Those opposed the same sign. It is adopted. Thank you very much.

BISHOP SANO: The commission is also responsible for the seating assignments which are determined by law.

THOMAS: We recommend approval of the plan that is printed on pages seven through nine of the Advance DCA. We further recommend the commission be authorized to make any necessary adjustments in the seating assignments. I move the approval of the seating assignments.

BISHOP SANO: Right. Those who will approval lift the hand. Thank you. Those opposed same sign. It's approved.

THOMAS: Sections of the hall have been designated for persons with handicapping conditions. Marshals and pages will be pleased to direct persons to these areas during sessions of the conference. It is requested that there be no smoking in the center during the conference. Breakfast and lunch food services will be provided in the cafeteria in the halls on the main level of the conference. No electronic communication devices are to be used in the plenary hall or in the legislative committee meeting places except by the General Conference or the convention center staff.

Morning worship service is scheduled in this hall at 8:30 a.m. daily except Sunday, and the choir will present a brief concert at 8:15 a.m. each of those days. We express our appreciation to the co-directors of music, Cynthia Wilson-Felder, from Atlanta, Georgia, and S.G. Kimbrough Jr. from New York. We thank them for their endeavors on these and other worship services. It was their responsibility to select the singing groups to participate in General Conference and in the worship services. It has not been an easy responsibility for them because they have had many selection audition tapes to be considered. I remind you that announcements are to be made in the DCA or magnification image projected notices are to be limited to the official operation of the conference, its administrative and legislative committees. The commission recommends that the journal be the official record of the General Conference. Bound copies will be available for purchase as a package at a later date. I move approval of these recommendations.

BISHOP SANO: Recommendations before you, those who approve say "aye." Opposed "no." It is approved.

Two Offerings Announced

THOMAS: The commission recommends two offerings be received during the conference. The one just received will be designated by the Council of Bishops. Second, an offering for marshals and pages will be received on Wednesday, April 24. I remind you that these persons are volunteers who provide their own travel expense and other expenses while here. They provide an invaluable service to the conference delegates. In addition to these two offerings, you are reminded that this coming Sunday, April 21, is Native American Awareness Sunday throughout our denomination. If you were back home in your local church, you would be invited to make a contribution in the offering that will be taken. Since some of you have probably not made arrangements before you came for that offering, we will announce, I believe on Saturday, how that may be accommodated here, so that an offering can be taken, not across the plenary session, but by any of you that wish to make a contribution and be credited back in your local church for Native American Awareness Sunday. I move the recommendation that we have made concerning these offerings.

BISHOP SANO: All right, I think that this vote needs to be a little more sacramental, and rather than a voice vote, I'll call for a lifting of the hand. Those who will support this will lift the hand. Thank you. Any opposed? It's adopted.

THOMAS: The executive director and business manager of our conference is serving us anew this time. He's learning fast, by necessity. I'm speaking, of course, of Roger F. Kruse and I would request now permission from Roger Kruse to make some announcements concerning matters which pertain to the operation of this conference. If with your permission, I'll turn the floor temporarily over to him.

BISHOP SANO: Yes. Welcome, Roger.

Voting Procedure Explained

ROGER F. KRUSE (executive secretary of the General Conference): Bishop and members of General Conference, I can't tell you how intimidating it is to stand before you. It looks considerably different from up here than it does out there. Participants in the General Conference in 1988 of The United Methodist Church led the religious world in utilizing electronic voting at its General Conference in St. Louis. During that event a number of ecumenical leaders were present just as they will be next week, and noting the effectiveness of our voting system they too are now utilizing electronic voting during their major assemblies. Among these are such groups as The Presbyterian Church of the USA, The Church of the Nazarene, and The Evangelical Lutheran Church. Each has found this innovative method provides both a speedier and more accurate tally of votes cast, and thereby enhances the movement of conference business. In front of each of you, who are voting delegates, is the result of the latest research in the field of electronic voting. Utilizing the key pad in front of you, you will be able to record your votes instantly. When the presiding bishop states, "Please vote when the light appears," the green light on your key pad will light up. Also a message directing you to vote will appear in a small window on your key pad and on the large screen in the center of the stage. Next, press the button which corresponds to your choice. Press button one for yes, press button two for no, and if you choose to abstain, press button three.

When you do this, your choice will appear in the window on your individual key pad to confirm your selection. You may change your vote as long as the green light on your voting instrument is on by first pressing the star button in the lower left hand corner and then entering your new choice. When the green light on your key pad starts flashing, you will have three seconds left to vote. And when the light goes off, all voting will be closed. You will note that three seconds will come sooner and sooner and sooner as we move throughout the General Conference because you will become more and more familiar with voting and will be able to do it faster. The computer will then tally all votes cast and the results will be shown on the large video screen. Please remember that only one response will be taken from each key pad, so pushing the button ten times will not get you ten votes.

Now we would like you to be able to become familiar with the system so we are going to present a few questions for you to answer at this time. The first question may be the most difficult: Are you present? If yes, please press button one. If you are not here, press button two. And if you're not sure and you wish to abstain, simply press button number three. The question is now before you. Please vote when the light appears.

Apparently a majority of us are here, but some percentage aren't here, and there really are some of us who are not too sure.

Let's look at question two. How did you get here? Respond by pressing your button: one, if you came by plane; two, if you came by pogo stick; three, if you came by car; four, if you came by bus; five, if you came by walking; and number six, if you really don't remember getting here. The question is before you; please vote when the light appears.

(laughter)

I worry a little bit, but clearly the majority of us came by plane. When it comes and we experience the wonders of Denver International Airport.

When it comes time to take an electronic ballot of those who are nominated for certain offices, the procedures that we use will be the same. Assume for a moment that there is a contest for a new denominational mascot. As with the elections which will eventually be before us, we will use numbers for all candidates. So the numbers for our mascot in today's election are: number one for Bugs Bunny; number two for Kermit the Frog; number three for Mickey Mouse; number four for Bart Simpson; number five for Pluto; and number six for Big Bird. The question is before you. Please vote when the light appears.

(laughter)

And so, to Judy Weidman and my colleagues at UCom, it looks like you'll be working with Big Bird. And so ends the brief demonstration of our voting process.

The Commission on the General Conference and the Committee on the Plan of Organization and Rules of Order remind you that each delegate has only one vote, and this vote is to be reported only on the key pad in front of the delegate. Absentee delegates may not have their votes recorded by others except when a reserve delegate has been duly authorized to be seated in the place of a delegate.

Since the beginning of the Communion service earlier this afternoon, you have had the opportunity to benefit from another marvel of the electronic age. The IDA-Four Image Magnification System. The enhancement of visual images enables each of us to feel more closely involved in the presentations, the discussions, and the debates of the issues facing the church.

In keeping with the changing times, the central focus of this plenary hall will be ever-changing. In some previous general conferences, a static, unchanging backdrop or stage setting has served as the focus for our plenary sessions. In this session of General Conference, the video screen will be the center of attention. On the screen, a variety of images will greet you each time you enter the hall.

In the morning, for instance, the portrayal may specifically relate to the sermon topic being presented during worship. As people enter in the afternoon or evening sessions, a portrait of the church at work in the world will be projected on the screen. And during the business session, the image magnification system will help all of us keep abreast of the discussion. When a specific item in the Daily Christian Advocate is under consideration, the page number will appear, as you can see illustrated at this time. You therefore will not only have the oral announcement of the topic being discussed, you will also have the visual announcement, so that all will know the subject we are focusing our attention on at a particular moment.

It was 16 years ago that a new system was utilized which helped ensure equal application of time limits imposed upon individual debate as well as committee reports. The timing device has been proved so successful, it too is now used across other denominations. The system we use is composed of green, yellow, and red lights which are set for the time allowed. Beginning with the morning plenary session, the timing device will be installed in front of the table at which the presiding bishop is seated. The green light will come on when the speaker has two minutes remaining. The yellow light will be illuminated when one minute remains to close. When the red light comes on, your time is up, and the officer presiding will rap the gavel.

Language Interpretation

For the fourth time in the long history of general conferences, we are providing simultaneous interpretation by electronic means for those delegates and others requiring such services. Using wireless equipment, plenary sessions and worship services, as well as many legislative committees, are being translated into eight languages other than English and broadcast to special receivers designed for use by individual delegates. Translations of the proceedings this year are in French, German, Portuguese, Korean, Chinese, Russian and Swahili. This is the first time we are translating into Russian and Swahili, and we celebrate that reality. (applause) in the front of plenary hall. Please do not hesitate to use this service. For reserve delegates and visitors who need translation equipment, we have projected the sounds so that it will be more effective if you were seated off to my left in the seating on the floor during plenary sessions. For persons requiring sign language, a section in the hall off to my left, immediately outside the bar of the conference has been set aside for this purpose.

To help delegates handle the voluminous number of petitions, the commission has established and published a volume of the Daily Christian Advocate, which contains all the petitions from individuals, churches, and other United Methodist bodies. I know you will want to join me in saying thanks to Rich Peck and his staff for a job well done. (Applause).

In addition, when you go to your individual legislative committee, awaiting you in the room will be a computer with all the petitions under consideration. Through this system you will be able to perfect each item right there, without any repetitive typing as has been required in past General Conferences.

And, for the first time, we have a delegate computer center in room C101 of the hall, where any delegate may go and check on the status of any individual piece of legislation that is before the body. Special thanks to John Brawn and his staff for their diligence in refining this system.

Now I have one announcement that is of a very serious nature, because there are a large number of people in this hall. The commission is extremely concerned that if for any reason there should be a necessity that we evacuate this building, that everyone understand clearly what the plan and the procedure is. There are emergency exits on all four sides of this hall. The evacuation plan recommended to us by hall officials is that those persons on the stage divide equally at the center aisle and proceed immediately to the exits on the far sides where they are seated. We recommend that those persons in the floor sitting in this area proceed out the first set of doors marked exit; that all the persons on this side proceed out from the emergency exit here; that the persons seated in the rear of the hall in the bleachers proceed to the far corner to exit; that those persons seated in the risers in the back proceed off to their right, and that delegates either go immediately down the center aisle and out the sides if you're in sections A or D. There is a handicapped refuge area at each of the emergency exits. It is clearly marked on the two side exits; at the rear of the hall; it is along the glassed area of the lobby.

It is our sincere hope that through the use of image magnification, electronic loading, the automatic timing device, wireless interpretation, signers, and the additional volume of the Daily Christian Advocate, that the efficiency of this General Conference will be enhanced, and that it will be more meaningful to all participants.

BISHOP SANO: All right. Thank you very much. Yes, John?

JOHN J. THOMAS: The commission wishes to thank the hard work that Roger Kruse, as our executive director/business manager, has done in fulfilling his responsibilities for this conference. Likewise, our commission thanks the continuing hard work of our secretary, Carolyn Marshall. And I think that you would like to express your appreciation early on for all that they've been doing for the past four years.

BISHOP SANO: Will the secretarial team stand?

THOMAS: This morning members of the commission had the privilege of meeting with the overseas delegates, and to explain to them some of the parliamentary procedures and some of the issues that will be coming up before this session. We responded to questions, and we very much appreciate the response that we received from that meeting this morning.

Reimbursement Expenses Explained

Questions arise as to reimbursement of expenses in attending this conference by the delegates to the conference. The commission has established the per-diem amount of $88. That's based in part upon our ability to pay as well as what we contemplate the average cost of a two-per-room motel stay and a reasonable cost for meals per day. That will not cover the cost, I am sure, for some of you. It may be ample for some others.

The delegates will receive two expense reimbursement checks while you're here. The first one you will receive this Friday morning, and it will cover your travel expenses to and from General Conference. The second check will be for the $88-per-diem for the days you are here in Denver, attending this conference.

The chairperson of each delegation should have discovered at his or her desk, as you have arrived, an envelope containing travel expense vouchers for all members of your particular delegation. If a reserve has been seated and is entitled to travel expense reimbursement, give it to that person. We ask each of you to do some simple things. First, read the instructions as you fill out your expense voucher. Second, I remind you that the instructions are on the back of the form. And then fill out the form the way the instructions tell you to do it. Give it to your chairperson. The chairperson will approve it and submit the full delegation's expense claims together to the treasurer's office, not one by one, but together as a group. We're prepared to process almost 1,000 checks by the delegation, and it's very helpful if we get them all together.

As to the travel expense, if you travel by car, it's 31 cents a mile for every mile you've travelled to and from, up to 1,000 miles. If it's over 1,000 miles that you will have travelled, then you get either the lower of the cost of the miles above 1,000 or the cost of the least expensive air travel fare that you would have paid had you come here by air. You may claim actual expenses for meals and lodging en route to and from this conference. Again, at $88 per-diem.

If the chairpersons will hand in all expense claims forms to the treasurer's office before business begins, and tomorrow evening, that's Wednesday evening session, we will get the checks to you on Friday. If we don't get them by Wednesday evening, we don't know if you'll get them by that time or just for sure when. Now, presumably on Friday, you will all get expense checks.

Let me now, tell you how to get the money for them if you need it before you leave. It's very simple. We made arrangements with the First Interstate Bank located at the intersection of 17th and California Streets, about three blocks northwest on California Street from the front entrance to this convention center. We have established an account there. The checks will be drawn on that account. They should be cashed with no problems at all.

If, in addition to the expense reimbursement checks you receive, you want to cash personal checks, you may do so for up to $100 per check, provided you first go to the treasurer's office which is located on the main floor, and I believe it's about A204 [A202] thereabouts. And have one of us there authorize at the bank to initial it for you. In effect, we are guaranteeing your check so that the bank does not have to get nervous with checks coming in from a variety of places around the world. Bishop, I ask for the approval of these recommendations concerning expense claims and method of claiming.

BISHOP SANO: All right, any questions? Those who will approve will lift the hand. Thank you. Those opposed, same sign. It's approved.

THOMAS: Thank you. I've just been handed a note urgent for four people, saying that four cars are parked illegally around the convention center. If not moved immediately, they will be towed in. I'm not sure what illegal, what's illegal about it, but if you have some question about where your car is parked, you better check it, or you'll have a tow bill.

All right. The commission wishes to express its thanks and appreciation to Robert Lear and his staff at the United Methodist Communications for their coverage of General Conference, to this Denver, and to the Denver local committee, for their work prior to and during this conference, and to Richard Peck at the Publishing House for the production and distribution of the Daily Christian Advocate.

2000 General Conference in Cleveland, Ohio

I also report to you that the commission has responded to an invitation from the Ohio East Conference, and has selected Cleveland, Ohio, as the site of the next General Conference. [applause]

I wonder where they're from. And that will be held on May second through the twelfth in the year 2000. I wish to thank you for the privilege of having served here on this commission. The membership of this commission serves for a period of eight years, and we're on staggered terms. Approximately half of us are going off this time, and four, and eight new ones will be coming on. We thank you very much for your understanding and your questions that you have coming up, come to the business office on the main floor at A206 or to the General Commission office at A210, should you have questions. One of the questions that came up a little while ago, and I believe it's been answered, some of the delegates on the first rows here couldn't see because of the lights. Are they better now that they've been dimmed? I understand they're not perfect yet, so we may have to do something else, put blinders on them or something. We tried to respond by dimming them, but at least we're aware of your concern. So again, we thank you. And Bishop, that now completes our report.

BISHOP ROY SANO: Fine, thank you very much. I think you hear gratitude expressed by the delegates for a quadrennial work. Thank you. It is clear we will not be finishing our order of business, the agenda, for this session, so let the chair test with the body if the body is ready to go until five o'clock rather than the scheduled closing time. Will you approve the extension of the time to five o'clock? Lift the hand please. Thank you. Those opposed same sign. We will extend our session until five.

We turn now to a report from the Committee on Plan of Organization and Rules of Order. And, Bob Stevens, welcome. Good to see you here.

Report from Committee on Plan of Organization

BOB STEVENS: Thank you Bishop Sano, delegates, and friends of this General Conference. I'm here today presenting the report of the Committee on Plan of Organization and Rules of Order which is found in the Advance DCA on pages 87-106. I'm one of those persons that didn't chair the committee. I didn't vice chair the committee. I got elected as secretary and now both the chair and the vice chair are unable to be at this General Conference. I am sort of filling in at the last minute and may not have quite as much detail as some of you would like, but we'll do our best. The Plan of Organization and Rules of Order of this conference are our working guidelines and processes. And though they sometimes seem rigid and regimented, the purpose of them is to facilitate our work together. We are going to try some new things this year that may be a new experience for some of you, and we hope that this will be a way of doing things in the future and there will be more attempts to do things a bit differently.

One word about the committee itself, all the members of the committee, nine of the ten members for this quadrennium were new on the committee, never having served on this particular committee. However, Judge Jerry Bray from Virginia has served on this committee previous times and many of you know that he has been a delegate to this General Conference for many years. And he is not able to be with us this year due to his health condition and we surely will miss Judge Bray, his words of wisdom, and history. This year's report has two recommendations for action which I will be bringing shortly to you. But first let me highlight the changes we're recommending to the Plan of Organization and Rules of Order document itself and by the Discipline and the previous rules of the General Conference. These rules are adopted by the previous General Conference and are in place until these revised rules are adopted by this General Conference, at which time they become operative until the next General Conference.

A few highlights of some of the changes we've made, and otherwise I'm assuming that you have had the privilege of reading our report and recommendations and we will certainly entertain questions that may occur. First, we've reduced the number of legislative committees, and you've already experienced that from 11 to ten. We had 11 for two quadrennia, with a Faith and Order Committee, and felt that this quadrennium that was not necessary. We have divided the special reports among the several appropriate legislative committees.

Committees on Agenda and Calendar Merged

We are recommending a change that many of us have talked about for several years, several general conferences, to combine the historic Standing Committee on Agenda and the historic Standing Committee on Calendar into one new committee on Agenda and Calendar.

Now for some of you that are new and may wonder what the difference is, the Committee on Agenda has had the responsibility for planning the overall work day schedule and the Committee on Calendar would work with individual calendar items that were to come before the General Conference to be sure that we covered everything in an expeditious fashion. We've discovered that the two committees needed to work together so much that the efficiency was to combine them.

When we assigned the functions of the two committees to the new one, we also continued that the membership restriction from the previous Committee on Calendar would be included in these rules. And that membership restriction is in order to avoid an appearance of conflict of interest, that no member of a general agency, nor any general agency staff who happens to be a delegate should serve on the Committee on Agenda and Calendar. The matter of combining these committees has been discussed previously and, based on reports and recommendations from both of the 1992 committees, the need to combine seems appropriate. The two-committee structure created duplicate efforts, and the work loads can well be accommodated.

Another important stated change for the Commission on General Conference, and you heard some discussion about it from John Thomas, is we've included a directive provision now that all necessary measures be taken to assure full participation of delegates, including providing accommodations for language and physical challenges. We have provided for the deletion of Discipline provisions which have been declared unconstitutional by the Judicial Council. Currently it takes a specific General Conference action to delete such provisions, which seems unnecessary to the committee, and often frankly is not being done. It will help assure the accuracy of the current Discipline. Just as an example, for some of you that are interested in such technical details, there was paragraph 701.1e in the '88 Discipline that has to do with the right of an annual conference to determine some of its clergy membership. The Judicial Council declared it unconstitutional in 1989, but if you look in your 1992 Discipline, it's still there as paragraph 702.1e. Well, it seems to us that that ought to be a matter of editing, but in order to make it clear to the secretary and the editor of the Discipline, we're providing this in our plan of organization.

And finally, we've amended the rules and attempted to bring them in harmony with current practice and make it more clear. One of the issues that we dealt with, with the electronic voting, is how do we deal with not disenfranchising persons who are making presentations on the platform from having a right to vote. And in times prior, often there would be a reserve seated, and the persons on the platform would not vote. Well, with the electronic voting, we've tried to address that now and we've created a new rule six which indicates that persons who are making presentations on the platform will be able to vote from key pads on the platform. Roger tells me they're not here yet, but once you approve these rules, that they will be here at the necessary time.

Minority Reports Procedure Clarified

The use of the minority report or substitute motion which is the opposite of a main motion, has continued to be troublesome for delegates. We've added a clarification to rule 24a on page 103 that makes it clear that a substitute motion may not be a negation of the main motion. In other words, you can't, if a main motion says to vote "yes", you can't make a substitute motion to vote "no". You have to, your substitute motion has to cover a different approach or a different issue. And we've added that to 24a and rule 35 on page 105, which deals with a minority report, has also been amended to clarify that a minority report must conform to rule 24. So in the past we've had cases where a legislative committee would vote "yes" on an issue and a group of people would get together and create a minority report that simply said "no" on the same issue. We're making it clear that that's not Robert's Rules of Order and that's not the rules of our General Conference.

BOB STEVENS: The Consent Calendar is an important part of our process but is often difficult for delegates to follow legislative actions. Too often, important Discipline changes have been obscured by the many non-concurrence actions reported on the Consent Calendar. We've written the Consent Calendar provisions of Rule 28 to make it easier to follow, and more importantly, that the Consent Calendar as printed in the Advocate will be divided into three separate sections: Discipline-concurrence, non-Discipline concurrence, and all the non-concurrence items. Hopefully this improvement will help the delegates identify changes more easily.

And finally, Rule 39 has been amended in order that the Plan of Organization and Rules of Order as adopted today will be printed in full in the revised format in tomorrow's Daily Advocate. We hope that a clean copy will be useful to the delegates.

I'm going to stop at this point, Bishop, and bring a motion to approve the Plan of Organization and Rules of Order, as amended, that are printed in the DCA. And just to let you know where I'm going, following that, Bishop, I will bring a separate motion and some discussion regarding our recommendation number two. Bishop, I move the adoption of our report as printed on pages 88-106.

BISHOP SANO: All right. Over here please. Microphone. What's the closest microphone to you there? Seven. All right. Give us your name and conference, please.

PHIL GRANGER (North Indiana): Bishop, is this the appropriate time to move an amendment to the rules?

BISHOP SANO: Yes, it is. The proposals are before us.

GRANGER: I move that the end of 7D, found on page 94, column one, under the Committee on Reference, to add the following:

BISHOP SANO: Locate that again, please.

GRANGER: 7D, page 94. It's in column one. It's just before the beginning of the next section, B.

BISHOP SANO: Oh yes, B. All right, thank you.

GRANGER: And the amendment is: In accordance with paragraph 608 of the Book of Discipline, all petitions submitted by unofficial organizations such as Affirmation, Good News, Methodist Federation for Social Action, and the Mission Society for United Methodists, be declared invalid, and that they be withdrawn by the Committee on Reference and not be considered by any legislative committee or plenary session, notwithstanding the fact that they may be printed in the Advance DCA Volume 1 or 2. If I receive a second, I would like to speak to that.

BISHOP SANO: Is there a second? There is.

GRANGER: Bishop, paragraph 608 states that any organization, ordained minister, or lay member of The United Methodist Church may petition the General Conference. This has been historically interpreted to include any official organization of The United Methodist Church. I believe that that is the correct interpretation, and therefore petitions submitted by unofficial or unrecognized organizations should be declared invalid and not considered.

BISHOP SANO: All right. Is there any further discussion on the matter? Do you have the motion? Good.

Any speeches against? Yes. Over here, microphone seven.

PHILIP WOGAMAN (Baltimore-Washington): The list of illustrations offered is sufficiently diverse that what I have to say cannot be construed in any particular direction. It does seem to me that if it is historic practice to recognize groups of United Methodists, each of those named organizations is made up of United Methodists. That to turn our backs now on the petitions that these groups have worked on, in some cases at great labor, would be a slap in their face and an insult to them as United Methodists. I hope we'll turn this down.

BISHOP SANO: All right. Is there a speech for the amendment? Chair will call for a vote. Could we have the motion read again, please? Do we have the motion up here now at the secretary's desk? Could we have the mover read the motion again, please? Oh, we do have it here? All right. We'll have the secretary read the motion to amend.

CAROLYN MARSHALL: I move that at the end of 7D, page 94, column one, under the Committee on Reference, to add the following: In accordance with paragraph 608 of the Book of Discipline, all petitions submitted by unofficial organizations such as Affirmation, Good News, Methodist Federation for Social Action, and Mission Society for United Methodists be declared invalid and that they be withdrawn by the Committee on Reference and not be considered by any legislative committee or plenary session, notwithstanding the fact that they may be printed in the Advance Daily Christian Advocate Volumes 1 or 2.

BISHOP SANO: All right. The chair has called for the question. Is this a point of order? Clarification? All right. Could you state your question, please? Microphone eight. Name and conference, and this is only a question, not a speech. Yes, microphone eight, please.

SAM WYNN (North Carolina): Would you explain what "unofficial" means?

BISHOP SANO: All right. Is there a response to that? Should we say - not in the Discipline? (laughter) Is that going to be adequate?

STEVENS: Well, we haven't created a very good list of unofficial groups. Maybe we have a better list of official groups, but I don't know how extensive that list might become.

BISHOP SANO: All right. Chair will call for a vote now. This is a motion of amendment, of amendment by addition. And you've heard the motion. Those in favor of the amendment will lift the hand. Oop. I'm sorry. Is the machine working now? All right, let's test it. Let's see. One for yes, two for no, three for abstention. All right. You can vote when the light turns on.

Thank you. It does not prevail. You have the recommendations from the committee before you. [The vote was: Yes, 268; No, 621; Abstained, 22. The motion was defeated.] Any further discussion? Yes, back there, microphone nine.

GRAYSON ATHA (West-Ohio):

BISHOP SANO: Atha from West-Ohio.

ATHA: I do not have a motion. I do not have an amendment, but would like to make a motion for the committee to take under advisement for the next General Conference. May I make that motion?

BISHOP SANO: Let's have you wait until after we have acted on this recommendation. Yes, down here, microphone nine. Seven. Microphone seven, please.

Discerning the Will of God

SUSAN W. HASSINGER (Eastern Pennsylvania) I would like to offer an amendment to rule number 36 with the new numbering page 106 column one. I move that the following be added as item four under rule 36. Upon request by the presiding officer or a member of the body and upon vote by two-thirds of the voting members, a method of discernment may be used in order to facilitate listening to each other.

This method would require that following a speech or a motion or petition and before the next speech against the motion, the speaker against the motion would paraphrase the content and feeling of the previous speech, when the request by the presiding officer to the initial speaker to test that the original intent was heard. This pattern would then be followed for each of the two or three speeches for and against. Those who paraphrase should attempt to do so in one minute or less. And that time will not be included in the three-minute time limit. If there's a second I'd like to speak to it.

BISHOP SANO: Is there a second? There is.

HASSINGER: In terrible anticipation of General Conference, I've been reflecting on some of the decision-making process that we use. While much of it has stood the church in good stead, I'm uncomfortable at times with the win-lose atmosphere that emerges in relation to critical subjects through the usual pro-con debate format. It seems to me that at times the church needs to step aside from secular modes of decision making and engage in careful listening to each other and to the Spirit in our midst. At its best, the General Conference is a body seeking to discern the will of God for the present and future of the United Methodist Church. Discernment involves listening to the voice of God and seeking to hear the voice of God in the voices of each other. Often the conflict in our midst is a sign of the movement of God's spirit. It's not a win-lose matter.

However, the pattern under which we operate by the nature of speeches for and against and win-lose voting, makes that discernment process difficult. It comes more from a political legislative model than it does from the church and the church's practice of spiritual discernment. While the size of the General Conference and the quantity of items for discussion does not allow for the kind of discussion I propose on every item, there are certain matters for which the body may wish to operate in a more discerning mode.

My proposal allows for more than a majority, two-thirds, to make that designation for those matters that are of such a nature that a different procedure would be useful in seeking to understand where God's spirit is moving us. The model for my proposal has two sources. First and foremost is the biblical model of listening to each other carefully in the process of discernment. In Acts 15, for example, dare we call that gathering in Jerusalem the first General Conference? The disciples gathered to discern how the Spirit was guiding the fledgling church in the matter of circumcision of Gentile converts to Christianity. That issue had the potential of splitting the church at an early stage. Where if closing doors to the expansion of the church into Gentile territory, I suspect that the atmosphere was tense as they gathered and the speech may even have been somewhat heated. The NRSV uses the phrase "much debate" to describe the interaction. However, in verse 12 we read the whole assembly kept silent and listened to Barnabas and Paul. The listening I sense here is not just a . . .

BISHOP SANO: All right. If you could bring your point to the close, please.

HASSINGER: Okay. I was using the biblical model. The other model that we might point to is the model of mediation and negotiation where each side tries to listen carefully to the other story, and out of that sense the endless of the other and what either compromise or collaboration might come from that.

BISHOP SANO: Thank you, thank you. We're going to need to move on. All right. Is there discussion on the matter? It's before us, the amendment. Did I see a hand over here? Microphone seven. All right, any further discussion?

ROBERT W. STEVENS: Bishop Sano.

BISHOP SANO: Yes, please.

STEVENS: The Committee on Plan of Organization Rule of Order has not had an opportunity to review this and this is a rather significant process that I think merits our careful consideration. Rule 39 provides for amending our rules upon reference to the committee and provides for the committee to report back to the next session of this General Conference. I don't know whether they can do that tonight, but I would like to encourage you to refer this to the new Committee on Plan of Organization and Rule of Order and ask them to make a report back to you at their earliest convenience.

BISHOP SANO: All right, the chair is going to rule that's tantamount to a vote, a speech against. Is there a speech for the amendment? Yes, please, right down here. Microphone eight, I guess, yes.

LIZ ST. CLAIR (Peninsula Delaware): I speak in favor of this because when I hear the speech just ahead of me it sounds like you're postponing this four years. I think this kind of change in special circumstances we need right now in this particular conference. So, I urge that we consider this.

BISHOP SANO: All right, is there, there is a call for the question? We need, yes, we need another speech opposed to the, yes, down here microphone three. Microphone two please, microphone two.

BISHOP CARL SCHENCK (Missouri East): I would move the referral of the motion to the Committee on Organization and Rules of Order.

BISHOP SANO: Is there a second? Any discussion on the matter. Those in favor, let's vote on the key pad. "Yes" for one, two for "No" and three to abstain. Vote when the light turns on. The motion is referred. [643 yes, 263 no, 20 abstaining] Did I hear that you thought the report, the response could come back tomorrow?

STEVENS: Bishop I don't know what the plan of meeting for that new committee is, but I think that they will organize and meet this evening. And it's possible that they could bring a report back at the next session.

BISHOP SANO: All right, the report is before you, any further discussion? Yes down here on microphone, did you want to come forward, two or microphone seven, microphone seven please.

CAROLYN JOHNSON (North Indiana): I'd like a point of clarification again on the section eight committees a standing administrative committees the proposal for the merge agenda and calendar committee. Specifically on column one page 92. The addition, "no member of the committee shall be a chairperson of a standing legislative committee or a director or staff person of any general agency." In the commission report there was mention of conflict of interest. If you could clarify that, then I may be prepared to make a motion. Thinking behind the conflict of interest.

BISHOP SANO: Bob please.

STEVENS: Yes. In the committee's review of this, and I don't think the committee spent a lot of time on it, it's been the long-standing provision in the calendar committee, because that committee specifically controls calendar items that are coming to the floor. And if nothing else, the appearance didn't look right. And so I think the committee felt that it was important to maintain this appearance of independent and non-partiality that it didn't look like a person that happened to have a particular interest in a board or agency, would have an inside track as to what was going to come before the General Conference and when. I realize, evidently, that some persons were nominated to this new committee structure without that consideration having been made and for which I can only apologize. It was not the intention of the committee to not have this be considered.

JOHNSON: Bishop I would like to amend by deletion. My motion is to delete the word a "director" or a "director." And if there's a second, I'd like to speak to it.

BISHOP SANO: All right there is a second.

JOHNSON: Yes I think the issue of the appearance is well and good, but the real issue is substance. And that becomes to the point that one is elected to the General Conference by one's annual conference. So therefore one is not elected by a general board or agency to forward the work of that general board or agency. The directors are non-paid persons so therefore there would not be a direct conflict of interest. Every delegate has the right to submit petitions. So under the train of thinking of the commission, any of the persons who would currently be on the agenda or calendar committee would therefore be trying to forward only the work of their annual conference. We know that people rise to a higher occasion than that. So I don't believe that the conflict of interest piece that has been brought forward is indeed accurate. And what it will do is to disenfranchise annual conferences for the degree of leadership to which they provide the general church.

BISHOP SANO: All right, is there a speech against the motion of deletion of the phrase "or a director." There is none. Does the... call for the question, Bob, if the chair is prepared to call for the question. Did you wish to speak to the motion? Okay, clarification, microphone two, please. Name and conference.

DONALD AVERY (Louisiana): I'm unclear. Was the motion just to delete "director" or was it to also include "director or staff person" of any general agency?

BISHOP SANO: Just "director." "Or a director" is the phrase that's to be deleted if this motion is adopted.

AVERY: I would like to offer a friendly amendment.

BISHOP SANO: Let's hear it.

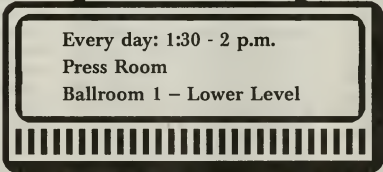

AVERY: To delete everything and to just make it an in a standing legislative committee, period. And then delete from there on, because the persons who are staff persons, they are also representing annual conferences. And, if the maker of the motion would accept that, that's a friendly amendment.

THE GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

Denver, Colorado

Thursday, April 18, 1996

Vol. 3 No. 3

Day Two Features Laity Address, Ministry Report

In keeping with the Episcopal Address admonition to "wrap our conferencing in the mantle of prayer," the 1996 General Conference opened day two with worship, enriched by the clear, young voices of the McCurdy School choir of Espanola, N.M., and the preaching of Northwest Texas-New Mexico Area Bishop Alfred L. Norris.

"God is in the creating, building and sustaining business," he said. "We are not without hope. In prayer we are convinced of the reality of hope." He called participants to a more disciplined prayer life, humility and openness to God's answers.

The morning featured two major presentations. James W. "Jim" Lane, lay leader of the North Arkansas Conference, drew from his 30 years' experience as a certified lay speaker and Christian educator for the Laity Address.

On the threshold of the 21st century, he said, laity and clergy urgently need to become partners in ministry: to chart new possibilities, "to convince the world of the reality of the gospel or leave it unconvinced."

Like the Episcopal Address the night before, the Laity Address challenged the church to "thrust open the doors . . . quit sitting around in meetings talking about what we ought to do, and get out and about, and be in ministry."

Clergy-laity partnership "means a place for service and ministry for everyone! A place where everyone is worthy and valued and has equal voice . . . sharing in ministry and leadership between the pastor and local church laity."

Mr. Lane called for local churches to become "full service mission stations . . . where everyone standing in the need of prayer will find love, forgiveness, acceptance and haven."

He also urged churches to become "saving stations," "empowering stations," "equipping and sending stations" and "community outreach stations."

"We are God's station keepers!" the address concluded. "Together, let us claim the vision and lift high the cross!"

The second order of the day was the presentation of the bishops' "Study of the Ministry," a 3,000-word report filling 136 pages of the DCA, including 280 petitions proposing changes to The Book of Discipline.

Bishop Sharon Brown Christopher and Bishop David J. Lawson reminded delegates that the 1992 General Conference referred the study to the Council of Bishops, with a heritage of studies going back to the 1960s. Calling the report a "vision for ordained ministry," Bishop Lawson said it was adopted unanimously by the 67 active bishops in the United States, Africa, Europe and the Philippines. Bishop Christopher said the proposal was offered in the hope that delegates "will join us in the prayerful, open search for God's leadership in this critical matter."

Delegates then gathered in randomly selected groups of 25 to consider the report and its legislative proposals. A follow-up process combined reports from the groups into one document which was sent to the Legislative Committee on Ordained Ministry. The next steps will come when that committee reports its actions on the legislative proposals on the conference floor, probably next week.

In other actions Wednesday morning, delegates elected trustees to the board of John Street Church, New York City; approved nominations to the Interjurisdictional Committee on the Episcopacy (pp. 80-81, DCA); and referred to the Judicial Council a request for a declaratory decision.

Following the noon break, delegates hurried to their assigned legislative committees to consider more than 3,000 petitions during the afternoon and long into the evening. The 15-hour days had begun!

Make Your Mark in Time

The Disciple Bible Study has involved more than 400,000 persons. For participants, Disciple has left a mark and guided them in their journey as disciples of Jesus Christ. During General Conference, Disciple graduates are invited to make their "mark" on the time line, located in the Cokesbury Bookstore, indicating when they began their journey. Persons are asked to indicate when they completed Disciple 1 or Disciple 2.

A little-known treasure, hidden in the convention center, is the literature room (C102-C104). Filled with resources from colleges, universities, boards, agencies, caucuses, mission groups and more, it is a great place to visit. Fill your tote bag with resources you can use when you return home. Process Used for the Ministry Study Report

The Study of Ministry came before the General Conference using the following process:

1. The Council of Bishops presented the Study of Ministry to the General Conference in plenary Wednesday morning, April 17, as an order of the day.

2. Following this presentation, the body of the General Conference was divided into 25 randomly selected non-legislative groups for reflection and dialogue on the study.

3. Each reflection group met for 90 minutes, guided by a moderator bishop selected by the Council of Bishops.

4. Resource persons were available near the reflection group meeting room to be called upon to answer questions and to provide information.

5. Immediately upon adjournment of the reflection groups from 12:15 to 12:45 p.m., the recorder from each reflection group met with the compilers of the report to share the thinking of each group.

6. From 12:45 to 1:45 p.m. an inclusive group of six compilers, one General Conference delegate from each jurisdiction and one from the Central Conference chosen by each College of Bishops, met to compile the thinking of the reflection groups and write a short report. This group of compilers was staffed by a person designated by the general secretary of United Methodist Communications.

7. Copies of the report were sent immediately upon the completion of its writing to the legislative committee to which it was assigned as it convened in its first session.

8. The body then followed the legislative process in accordance with the Plan of Organization and Rules of Order adopted by the General Conference.

This schedule replaces Recommendation No. 2, p. 106.

Directions and Tickets and First Aid, Oh My!

"Everything is going better every day."

That's the good news from Paula Johnston, Local Host Committee chair. "We're answering every type of question, from how do you get to the ballroom to how do you get tickets for the special events tours on Sunday." (Tickets are still available for the tours this Sunday, and reservations are requested. Tickets are also available for Sunday night's Montana Logging and Ballet Co. concert.)

Based in Room A-113, the Local Host Committee is also in charge of first aid (in the B section), name tags (of which there is a shortage) and myriad other items.

Delegates and visitors who experienced a two-hour delay waiting for ground transportation at the airport received Ms. Johnston's sympathy. "We had never been able to find when people were coming in," she said. "Our transportation person called the hotels and figured out that we had 500 people in on Tuesday. Actually, over 700 came in on Tuesday, with 500 coming in a 90-minute period."

"We apologize," she added, "but we're humans like everyone else."

Ms. Johnston was pleased with the display of memorial quilts honoring child victims of the Oklahoma City Federal Building bombing a year ago.

A resident of Longmont, Colo., about 45 minutes north of Denver, Ms. Johnston has a cadre of 500 volunteers to assist the committee. Each volunteer underwent a four-hour training session prior to serving in the convention center area.

Delegates Approve Changes

In the late afternoon of Day One, General Conference delegates received and debated several procedural changes recommended by the Committee on Plan of Organization and Rules of Order (page 87ff) in the Advance DCA.

Among the changes:

- combining the committees on Agenda and Calendar.
- adding a new "method of discernment" to the traditional methods for consideration of selected key issues. (A proposal from the floor was referred to the new Committee on Plan of Organization and Rules of Order.)
- removing wording that would prevent delegates who are directors of general agencies from serving on the new Agenda and Calendar Committee. (A provision exempting general agency staff was unchanged.)
- applying new rules regarding delegate expenses to the General Conference of 2000 rather than 1992.

In addition, the body approved (with changes) a small-group discussion process to follow the Council of Bishops' report on ministry. (The full procedure appears elsewhere in this edition of the DCA.)

Reflections on Reflection Groups

With 17 of 25 reflection groups reporting:

	Female	Male
Sub-group facilitators	32	33

Example of Intentional Inclusion:

- Leadership setting the tone for a welcoming environment resulted in more equitable participation by both gender and race.

Examples of Subtle Exclusion:

- Not regulating the length of one's own speeches
- Stepping on the end of another's sentence
- Completing another's sentence
- Discounting another's idea verbally and non-verbally
- Women waiting for permission to speak; men assuming permission to speak

Observation: Dividing and sub-dividing into 25 or more groups resulted in insufficient translation services.

Legislative Committee Recorders: the Unsung Behind the Scenes

Essential to the flow of General Conference is the work of 20 legislative committee recorders. The action on each petition in all 11 committees is entered into the DCA computer system and prepared for next-day publication. Without these 20 volunteers, the process would be vulnerable to unwelcomed errors and time delays.

Prior to the 1992 General Conference, committee officers signed off on handwritten calendar items, and the DCA staff typeset petitions for the next day. The late hours and heavy workload increased the possibility of errors, and the time-consuming process often caused printing delays. With the 1992 introduction of the Petition Electronic Tracking System (PETS), legislative committee officers began to sign off on the actual petition as the recorder typed it.

This is the second General Conference using PETS, and some of the recorders who worked in 1992 are back for a repeat performance. One of those persons is Mary Ann Hancy who said, "Part of the reason these folks are willing to volunteer is the excitement of being involved in the legislative process in a church that has global dimensions." She added, "Few of us are likely to be delegates, but we can add our skills in the effort to build a better church."

The recorders don't just volunteer their time and computer skills. Many travel long distances, paying their own expenses. Eight of the 20 hail from the Denver area.

In addition to Ms. Hancy of Nashville, Tenn., these rarely seen and generally unnoticed workers include: Carol Ball, Mesa, Ariz.; Betty Coleman, Atlanta; Nancy Drake, Silver Springs, Md.; Lynda Evans, Cheyenne, Wyo.; Joyce Gorman, Hatfield, Pa.; Laura Hughes, Montgomery, Ala.; Bob McClean, Mattoon, Ill.; Linda Barnes Patzke, Wheatland, Wyo.; David Persons, Texas; Sandy Scaggs, Macon, Ga.; and Susan Usher, Shallote, N.C.

Colorado-based recorders are Linda Downey, Lakewood; Brian Faust, Denver; Kurt Gwartney, Denver; Ted Johnson, Arvada; Lora Payne, Pueblo; Clark Rose, Denver; Barbara Thorne, Lafayette; and Marvin Vose, Greeley.

PARTNERS IN MINISTRY A VISION FOR THE YEAR 2000

1996 United Methodist General Conference Laity Address

God spoke, through the Old Testament prophet Joel, these words: "I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh, and your sons and your daughters will prophesy, and your young shall see visions, and your old shall dream dreams."

On Jan. 1, 1996, we were exactly four years from the beginning of the year 2000. Much has already been written, and much more will be published about this grand event in the history of humankind. Those of us who are destined to live through that occurrence will always remember it as a major milestone of our lives.

It occurs to me that in the final moment of truth on the night of Dec. 31, 1999, that the year 2000 will begin as every new year has: with just another tick of the clock of time. Everything will be different, and yet everything will be the same. There is nothing magical or mystical about one year ending and another beginning. When we awake on the morning of Jan. 1, 2000, what will be different? What is there about that morning that will be different from all other mornings?

We are being drawn like a magnet toward this new century. Our imagination has been captured by all kinds of "what if" questions about "what might be" in the year 2000. One thing is sure: if we have not planned well for that event and put systems in place to engage the world in which we live, that day will be like all other days, just another beautiful dawning of another new day. People will live and die, people will laugh and cry, people will hurt, people will love and lift up, people will be full and they will be empty. Many of God's people will be forgotten and ignored by us and continue to exist on the margins of life.

As United Methodist Christians, today it is our time to see the visions, to dream the dreams, and to prophesy, as God's Holy Spirit is now poured out upon us. As the story of Esther informs us in the Old Testament, God has surely brought us to this place for just such a time as this!

What is God's vision for The United Methodist Church in the year 2000? Since our past, present and future are in God's hands, we are destined, as God's people, to move toward and enter the 21st century. Onward we go, alive with confidence and excitement, people full of hope and open to the winds of God's Holy Spirit, as we are confronted with the changes and challenges of loving and caring for God's people.

As that part of the body of Christ called United Methodists, our calling and task is always to be open to discovering new and effective ways of fulfilling our ministry under the guidance of God's Holy Spirit.

Our focus must be Jesus Christ! John Wesley said "Offer them Christ!" Our ministry is to people. Our commitment is to make a difference in our neighborhood, in our community and in our world. We are God's ambassadors and ministers. The people of God are the church in the world. It is we who must convince the world of the reality of the gospel or leave it unconvinced.

We must thrust open the doors of our churches, as we go out in ministry and service. We need to quit sitting around in meetings talking about what we ought to do, and get out and about, and be in ministry. If every church would declare a moratorium on meetings next year and send the people out, equipped and prepared to offer Christ to their world, what do you think would happen? United Methodists who are dispersed for mission and ministry onto the highways and byways of our global community, just think about it! Folks, it should be obvious by now to everyone that we can't, as Wesley said, "Offer them Christ" by sitting in the churches waiting for something to happen.

Vision 2000 and similar programs have proven to be an effective way for local churches to vision their future and then live out that future in new and exciting ways. I have seen it at work in my own church, a church that was getting older and older, now attracting many young families with outstanding and exciting children's programs, and now with a state-licensed, after-school care program for latchkey children. At one time, our children's time during the morning worship service might have five children; now we have as many as 25 come forward for their special time in the worship service. I have seen Vision 2000's vibrant witness in scores of other churches across my conference. If your area has not yet begun a Vision 2000 program, let me strongly encourage you to be the one to stand up and tell your bishop and conference leadership that you want to be a leader in bringing Vision 2000 to your area.

We, the church, must be energized and set on fire by the Holy Spirit of God. You see, we Christians are in the fire business. The gospel song says, "It only takes a spark to get a fire going," but it takes all of us to keep the fire going! We gather as communities of the faithful in our churches for empowering, equipping and sending. We continue to kindle the fire. As one warms and is re-energized by the fire, others bring new coals. Together we keep the flame aglow.

God's people are bound in love and covenant by a golden strand that reaches back to God's people from the very beginning of time.

Do we all look alike, think alike, understand and express God's love the same, hold the same, turn loose the same? Heavens no! Does that make any one of us any less, or any more, worthy of membership in this covenant community of fire keepers? Certainly not! We all need each other. Each one of us needs his or her own place to stand in this great congregation, but we also need each other. As one warms by the fire, another brings fresh coals to keep the fire burning.

Dr. Donald English, president of the World Methodist Council, closed the 1991 World Methodist Conference in Singapore with this image: All of us are players in the symphony with which we praise God. We need each other to provide all the different visions and sounds that make the symphony beautiful, both to hear and to see. If we want to belong to a group that is only violins, we can only make one sound. If we want to only play our own violin, we don't need to be with anybody, and we will always be right. If we want to play the symphony in the orchestra of God, we all need each other.

Imagine for just a moment that this great United Methodist Church of ours is one of the fine "tall sailing ships" with all of its sails billowing in the wind. We have turned and trimmed those sails so that the wind—the wind of God's Holy Spirit—is blowing at our backs and we are speeding across the water. Wait! There's troublesome times ahead; the water is getting choppy; the wind is beginning to shift; the sails need retrimming, and there is a rocky shoal ahead. All of us, who are called United Methodists, have our hands on the wheel. Will it be shipwrecked or sailing on to ports of ministry? If you push and I pull, we are going to run our ship onto the rocks and just look longingly for the missed ports of ministry where God's people are? We must, all in one spirit, very quickly decide which way to turn this ship we call The United Methodist Church, to keep in on course.

We desperately need to become partners in ministry. What does it mean to be "partners in ministry" in the 21st-century church? It means a place for service and ministry for everyone! A place where everyone is worthy and valued and has equal voice. It is a partnership that places far more value on your ability to see through "kingdom eyes" than it does your certificates, diplomas and credentials. Being partners in ministry values the "warm heart" and the "passion for souls" that not only is our heritage as people called United Methodist, but gives us vision for our future. Partners in ministry is not just another program for us to consider. It is in fact a new way for folks in ministry to work together in our great church. It is an attitude, an ethos, something that permeates how we "do church." Out of the understanding of Partners in Ministry, a new model for leadership in the church is emerging. This new model calls for sharing in ministry and leadership between the pastor and local church laity.

It is crucial for pastors and lay leadership to work in tandem as partners in ministry. This requires a deep level of trust, commitment and communication on both sides. How can this trust be developed and deepened? How can we foster more effective teams in ministry? Our vision is that each congregation within United Methodism will be equipped with the resources and skills to engage in a shared ministry for Christ both within the church and throughout the world. This shared ministry is focused on the primary task of the church and yoked with that church's own unique shared vision. A new millennium is dawning, and many of us in The United Methodist Church are ready! God's word through Isaiah to us today is "I am about to do a new thing; now it springs forth, do you not perceive it?" The clarion call to be "partners in ministry" is valid and urgent.

The call is urgent. The time is now! We can't wait on studies to be completed. We don't have time to schedule committee meetings. We can't have consultants come in. Folks, we don't even have enough time to have a caucus meeting or take a vote. The Spirit of the Lord is poured out upon us right now! It is our time! God has brought us to this place and time with purpose and intent!

The calendar sheets come off, one by one. The clock ticks methodically, slowly, surely. The year 2000 looms before us on the horizon. God's people are given this time and this opportunity for imagination and vision. What shall we do?

Let me list just a few of the possibilities for mission and ministry as we stand on the threshold of the 21st century.

First, our churches must become "full-service mission stations." Centers for spiritual renewal and personal commitment. Stations where the sweet, Holy Spirit of God has permeated and engaged a whole community of believers. Stations that are community centers of wholeness and healing. Stations that serve as a welcoming

to become partners in ministry*

Methodist to all God's children who are seekers of the Way. Stations where everyone "standing in the need of prayer" will find love, forgiveness, acceptance and haven.

Second, we must become United Methodist "saving stations" where love abides, and all God's children can find salvation, healing, wholeness and safety. We shall offer Christ as Savior to God's people, to the community and to God's world. We shall be centers of fellowship where all people feel included, loved and valued: a place where everybody knows your name! We must create a myriad of programs of ministry and healing for young, old, men, women, boys, girls, married, single, senior citizens, persons with disabling conditions, all persons who are hurting—ALL God's children.

Third, we need United Methodist Church "empowering stations" to offer vital and exciting opportunities for worship and learning. We are people of the Book. It is absolutely essential that we know and understand our Book. "Disciple: Becoming Disciples Through Bible Study" should be a part of the yearly program in every parish. This is a United Methodist Bible study designed and written especially for United Methodist Christians. It is now 10 years old and growing each year. Let's use it!

Let's take a really honest look at how we conduct our worship services. Do they communicate the good news gospel? Do they lift up the excitement and call of the Pentecostal fires of a church in mission and ministry? Do they offer Christ? Do we lead persons to conversion and commitment? Do we have an opportunity for conversion and commitment at every service? Today worship must be exciting and vital. Worship must address our heartfelt and "gutfelt" needs with the integrity of Holy Scripture.

We must feed others with God's manna and lead them to the well with the water that will quench their thirst forever. We must meet the spiritual needs of our people! Let us challenge each other to ministry and service as disciples of Jesus Christ. Let us "lift high the cross, the love of Christ proclaim!"

Fourth, we must become "equipping and sending stations" where we equip persons for ministry and send them out into the community and world for mission and ministry. Equipping the saints for ministry is one of our most challenging tasks. Hands-on training for ministry and skill-building events are what we need for the 21st century. Every church should have a part-time or full-time director of volunteers. This person must be a dedicated church worker who has caught the vision and is willing to be equipped and sent and to equip and send others into mission and ministry in the church and in the community and world.

We must learn to listen to all our people. Our best ideas for ministry come from those who live out their lives in the everyday world, who have seen the struggles and injustices. People who see ways out for those who are in need and who are hurting. We need to help these with vision, sometimes far beyond our own, to translate their ideas, hopes and dreams into ministry.

And finally, our churches must become "community outreach stations." Stations that offer programs for youth groups, scouting groups, community agencies, recovery groups and assistance for those with immediate survival needs.

Committed to being peacemakers among individuals, families, communities and nations, we must serve as agents of change.

As we bind up the wounds of God's people, we are compelled to help find ways to stop the causes of those wounds.

Mission stations, saving stations, empowering stations, equipping and sending stations, community outreach stations.

The Spirit of the Lord is upon us now! Jesus reminds us, in the Holy Scripture, that God has anointed each of us to bring good news to the poor.

God has sent all of us to proclaim release to the captives, and recovery of sight to the blind, to let the oppressed go free, and to proclaim the year of God's favor.

We are God's station keepers! We are partners in ministry.

God's prophet, Habakkuk, stood at his watchpost; he stationed himself at the rampart and looked out, watching and listening for God's word in his day. Here was God's word for Habakkuk: Write the vision. Make it plain on tablets, so that a runner may read it, for there is still a vision for the appointed time! What kind of a new day will it be on Jan. 1, 2000? What will the dawning of a new millennium bring?

We are given this time and this vision. Let us write it in big, bold letters and lift it high for all the world to see!

Together let us claim the vision and lift high the cross!

During the session, Bishops David Lawson and William Oden gave the committee a historical review and a synopsis of the study and responded to some of the issues raised in the reflection groups from the morning plenary.
Those issues included: concerns about the proposed office of Lay Ministry Steward which the respondents felt would undermine other lay offices and have the potential for divisiveness and inconsistency with the ministry of all Christians; relationship between deacons and elders; and legal issues raised by the structure proposed in the study.

Termination of Office — Bishop

Amend ¶1509

Termination of Office.—An elder who is serving as a bishop up to the time of retirement shall have the status of a retired bishop. An elder whose term of office expires prior to the time of compulsory retirement age shall retain the title of bishop, but other rights and privileges shall be suspended until the time of his/her retirement when paragraph 510 will apply; his/her time of office shall expire at the close of the jurisdictional conference at which his/her successor is elected, and he/she shall therefore be entitled to participate as a bishop in the consecration of his/her successor.

4. Resignation.—a) A bishop may voluntarily resign from the episcopacy for assignment as an active clergy member under appointment in an annual conference after eight years of episcopal service or at any quadrennial interval following. Six months notice shall be given to the jurisdictional or central conference Committee on the Episcopacy so a successor may be elected. The bishop would re-enter the appointive process in the annual conference from which he/she was elected.

b) A bishop may voluntarily resign . . . until a successor is elected and assigned.

c) In both cases, the consecration papers of a bishop . . .

Reported by William Reasner
Committee On Journal

this has been delayed for the next committee, I propose this motion: I move that the Committee on Organization be instructed to inform each person or group presenting a minority report as to the proper mode of expression so as to assure that the proposal be presented in acceptable form.

BISHOP SANO: Yes, as in the case of another proposal, we'll handle that after the report is acted on. All right. Over here, please, microphone two. Is that close enough for you? Is there a microphone? Okay. Microphone one.

Delegate Expense Account Amendment

Membership Restrictions of Merged Agenda & Calendar Committee

BISHOP SANO: Right. The amendment is before the, the proposed amendment is before the body. Is there a second to amend the amendment by addition of or deleting the rest of the sentence. Is there a second to that? There is a second. Any discussion on this amendment to the amendment? There is none? Okay. Those in favor of this amendment to the amendment. Yes, do you wish to speak to it? Microphone seven? Or microphone two.

CAROLYN JOHNSON: A point of order, Bishop. The main motion that is before us, I believe is amended, and I believe the commission has brought that to us as an amendment, and mine would have been an amendment to the amendment. So this second piece that has come forth, is that correct?

BISHOP SANO: No. No.

JOHNSON: The chair did say he would bring it as an amendment, that was not correct?

BISHOP SANO: Yes. Right. Yes. The motion is in order. There was no request for any further speeches. Bob, did you wish to speak to the....

ROBERT STEVENS: I believe I made a statement on behalf of the committee earlier.

BISHOP SANO: All right. The Chair will call for a vote on this. The amendment to the amendment is what we have before us now, and that is to add, to delete in addition the phrase "or staff person of any general agency." All right. Those, and you'll vote when the light turns on. [Yes, 313; No, 581; Abstained, 29] There is, okay, the amendment to the amendment is defeated.

We have now the original amendment before us to delete the phrase "or a director." Any further discussion? There is none. The vote is on the amendment to delete the phrase "or a director." You will vote when the light turns on. [Yes, 536; No, 382; Abstained, 14] The amendment prevails. It is deleted. Any further discussion on the report? Back here, microphone seven.

GARNETT M. WILDER (North Georgia): Pursuant to the fact that SHIRLEY PARRIS (New York): On page 99 of the DCA, the new Rule E under 10, delegate expense account, I would like to amend by addition. I would like to have the following added: that this rule shall become effective with the General Conference of the year 2000, and if I have a second, I would like to speak to it.

BISHOP SANO: Is there a second? Is there a second? There is. Thank you. You may speak.

PARRIS: There are some delegates who fall under the provision which is proposed for deletion, whose arrangements for attendance at this General Conference were made under that provision. To be subjected to the new ruling when we are locked into our original arrangements will mean financial hardship if not financial embarrassment. I applaud the reason and the need for the change, but I ask that you support my amendment because it will support the change, but it will allow for a forewarning to both agencies and persons in that category for the year 2000.

BISHOP SANO: All right. Is there a speech against the proposed amendment by addition? There is none. Did you wish to speak to it, Bob?

STEVENS: Only to say that this action was taken by the committee about two years ago, and we sincerely regret that that information was not passed on to the persons that were affected. Simply as a committee member, I guess I assumed that it had been done, and Shirley, I'm surely embarrassed if that didn't get done. And I'm sorry.

BISHOP SANO: All right. The chair does not see any call for further discussion, so we will call for the vote. Vote when the light turns on. You've supported the amendment by addition. [Yes, 684; No, 194; Abstained, 21] Any further discussion on the report? Yes, please. Microphone seven.

AUSTIN FREDERICK (Southwest Texas): I would like to call the previous question to all that is before us.

BISHOP SANO: All right. All that is before... Is there a second to that? All right. Those who will support, do we take a vote by electronic too on this? Okay. You've heard a call for the question of all that is before us, let's remind ourselves that that is pages 87 through 906, excuse me, 106 excluding recommendation two. Is that correct, Bob?

STEVENS: That's correct. That is correct as amended.

BISHOP SANO: All right, as amended. If you will call for the question; vote when the light turns on. [Results: yes, 889; no, 38; abstained, 5] The question has been called for. Did you wish to make any further speeches?

STEVENS: No, I believe the matter is before you. I think we've answered most of the questions.

BISHOP SANO: All right. We have called for a vote on the section indicated. Vote when the light turns on on the proposal from the committee, as amended. It has been approved. [Results: yes, 897; no, 13; abstained, 12] We want to thank the committee for their work on this section. We do have another section before us. Recommendation two please.

STEVENS: Yes, and just a final word about the first section. If you have concerns and issues that need to come to this committee, it would help us a great deal if you would create a written piece of communication to the committee and give it to Carolyn Marshall who is secretary of the General Conference. Then the committee will have your concerns to have before them.

Now secondly, if you read our report that was on the first page of the DCA, started on the first page of the DCA, which would be page 87. You know, we talked about trying to do a new way of giving a broader base of participation and at least some discussion time and discernment time and reflection time on perhaps one issue. The committee spent a major portion of its meeting about two 1/2 years ago trying to devise such a plan. And out of that came the proposal that we give all of the delegates a chance to have some general discussion about a major issue that's before this General Conference. And the issue that was selected by the committee in consultation with a number of groups and persons, was a study of ministry.

But more importantly, was the process. The process was to divide ourselves into groups, into a group of 25 groups of what, 40 people that would be, about, each, and they would have a convener or a guider who would assist them in discussing issues that they felt were important on the matter. A study. It would not be a place where legislation would be developed, it would not be a place where motions would be taken or entertained; it would not be a place where consensus would be pushed, but rather a place for you to have some time for discussion and understanding and clarification. Out of that came our recommendation number two which is on page 106, which was the committee's effort to try to put together a plan that might enable this to happen. And, Bishop, I move adoption of recommendation number two on page 106 of the Advance DCA.

BISHOP SANO: All right, you have heard the motion from the committee.

It's before us, so back here, microphone eight, please.

Proposed Process for Study On Ministry

JOHN W. THOMAS (South Indiana): As chairperson of and on behalf of the Commission for General Conference, I move the substitution for the item designated as recommendation number two. For clarification, I ask the delegates to look at the green sheet that was originally passed out and is before each one of you on your desk. That is a recommendation. I will read it and there is a slight amendment in item six, the second line, which I will clarify when I get there. We propose the study on ministry come before the General Conference using the following process:

Number one: The Council of Bishops will present the study of ministry to the General Conference in plenary on Wednesday morning, April 17, 1996, as an order of the day.

Number two: Following this presentation the body of the General Conference will be divided into 25 randomly selected non-legislative groups for reflection and dialogue on the study.

Number three: Each reflection group will be meet for 90 minutes guided by a moderator bishop selected by the Council of Bishops.

Number four: Resource persons will be available near the room of the reflection group to be called upon by the reflection group to answer questions and provide information.

Number five: Immediately upon adjournment of the reflection groups from 12:15 p.m. to 12:45 p.m. on April 17, that's tomorrow, the recorder from each reflection group will meet with compilers of the report to share the thinking of each group.

Number six: From 12:45 p.m. to 1:45 p.m. an inclusive group of six compilers, one General Conference delegate from each jurisdiction, (right there is a slight amendment) and one from the central conferences. Again, and one from the central conferences, chosen by each College of Bishops, will meet to compile the thinking of the reflection groups and write a short report. This group of compilers will be staffed by a person designated by the general secretary of the United Methodist Communications.

Number seven: The compiled report of the reflection groups will be printed in the Daily Christian Advocate for all General Conference delegates to read. Copies of the report will be sent immediately upon the completion of its writing to the legislative committee to which it has been assigned as it convenes in its first session.

Number eight: At the time the ministry study comes before the whole General Conference, in the plenary agenda, there will be a period of open discussion without the use of the parliamentary procedure.

Number nine: After this period of open discussion, the body will then follow the legislative process in accordance with the Plan of Organization and Rules of Order adopted by the General Conference.

BISHOP SANO: All right. This was a motion to amend by substitution the recommendation two printed on page 106. This is coming from an individual, correct? And, so, is there a second? Is there a second? There is. All right, did you wish to speak to it? microphone eight, please.

THOMAS: We have run this by those that will be presenting the report and it is felt that this will be a slight amendment to what is on page 106, which would be a better procedure. We have had no objections to this.

BISHOP SANO: Let the chair clarify where we are in the process. There has been a motion to amend by substitution. What we will do next is to perfect the original which is on page 106. If you wish to perfect it, we'll entertain any motions and discussion on that and then we will turn back to this sheet—the proposed amendment by substitution and perfect it. And then the chair will ask whether you will substitute this for the recommendations on page 106. If it prevails, then this will become the main motion before us and at that point it now becomes the original motion and at that point it is again open for discussion.

I hope that will be clear enough so the chair now is going to direct the body attention to page 106 to see if there is any amendments on the original recommendation. Is there any? Yes, point of clarification? Microphone eight, please.

BISHOP SANO: Microphone eight.

LUCILLE VANZANT (Oklahoma Conference)

VANZANT: Number eight, I would like to have clarified for me.

BISHOP SANO: Oh, we are on, we are on the original at the moment. The original is before us to amend. Before we turn to this to perfect, we're trying, we're seeing, if there is any questions on or any perfections we wish to offer.

VANZANT: Will you get back to read this?

BISHOP SANO: We certainly will, yes. Wave vigorously, and I'll take note. All right. Any amendments proposed for the original? There is none? We'll go back to, you might as well stay at the microphone. Let's have your questions for clarification.

VANZANT: Or is it just harder for me to get to a microphone? On Number eight, where it says that there will be a period of open discussion without the use of parliamentary procedures, I've never been in a meeting where we didn't have to use some type of parliamentary procedure. Would you explain to me how we're going to take and finish up the business?

BISHOP SANO: Do you wish to speak to that?

ROBERT W. STEVENS: Bishop, I think the intent of this is that this would be for a period of organized and managed discussion with the bishops still being the presiding officer. But it means that there would be no motions, amendments, or debate in the sense of that structure, alternate speeches, for and against. I, bishop, I am not going to be presiding, but I think that would be....

BISHOP SANO: Yes. Those of you who have your Robert's Rules of Order, it's on pages 533-534. And he described it quite accurately. There is, yes, microphone nine, please.

THELMA L. JOHNSON (West Ohio): Yes, I have concern about, this is for the study on ministry, is this for a one time, just a one time, so it won't affect next year, if it happens next year, it would have to be requested again?

BISHOP SANO: Do you want to speak to it?

STEVENS: Bishop and members of the conference, I think from the perspective of the Committee on Plan of Organization and Rules of Order, they consider this an experimental effort, and I'm sure that the next committee will evaluate the process and perfect it and respond to the next General Conference. It is not intended that this become set in concrete forever within the rules. That's my understanding of what we're proposing. It might be at the next General Conference. Okay?

BISHOP SANO: Okay, Don, here please. Microphone three.

Amendments Proposed to Study of Ministry Process

SHARON K. RHODES-WICKETT (California-Pacific): I move to amend the amendment with two different deletions, bishop, and I, would you like to take those in two separate motions?

BISHOP SANO: Let's have both of them and make it connected.

WICKETT: The first one is number seven. I move to delete the first sentence. I...I'm appreciative of the efforts for discernment and dialogue and reflection, and I think that's helpful, and I think that's necessary. I am concerned about the impact that that may have upon the work of the legislative committee to have the responsibility for perfecting this and working on this. And I'm going to make this motion so that it does not come to the DCA, but rather it goes directly to the legislative committee and then the work of the committee is not measured against the reflection group reports, but it's rather in dialogue with the study, you know, itself. That's my first petition.

BISHOP SANO: Let's hear, all right, let's hear, let's hear the second one.

WICKETT: My second deletion is to delete all of number eight and the first part of number nine up to the comma, after this period of open discussion, comma. So I'm in essence suggesting that we delete the open discussion on the floor of conference, but rather move it right along.

BISHOP SANO: Yes, let's treat them separately. One by one, you know where the mover is...wants to go with this. Let's go back to item number seven. You had an amendment proposed? Sharon, please? Item number seven, you want to clarify what your motion was on that?

WICKETT: On number seven, my motion is to delete the first sentence which would have the effect of not having the printout in the DCA.

BISHOP SANO: All right. Is there a second to that? There is a second. Did you wish to speak to it? All right, you did speak to it, thank you. All right is there any discussion? All right, I don't see any. The chair is going to call for a vote on amendment by deletion of the first sentence in point number seven. You will vote when the light turns on. It is deleted. [Results: yes, 57; no, 33; abstained, 14]

We are at the 5:00 hour; we had scheduled to adjourn. Do you wish to extend or do you wish to go to the assembly, your legislative committees? Do we have a motion to extend the time just to complete these three? All right. It has been moved. There is a second. All right. Those who will, you will vote when the light comes on. You are extending the time only through the two additional motions. All right; we have extended the time. Could we have the second amendment, please?

WICKETT: The second amendment was to delete all of number eight.

BISHOP SANO: All right.

WICKETT: Then, just the first phrase of number nine, which reads "after this period of open discussion, comma," to delete that.

BISHOP SANO: Okay, let's see if we can handle both of them at once. Is there a second on that? There is a second. All right. Those, the motion to amend by deletion of eight and the first phrase of nine up through the comma. Vote when the light turns on. It has been deleted. [Results: yes, 62; no, 29; abstained, 13]

The 5:00 time has come; we're ready for the legislative committees. Let's have the secretary instruct us on what.... Are you ready then for the whole report? All right. Let's vote on the, let's see we're at the point of amending this, so it will, we'll go through the steps. Those who will, make the amendment the main motion. That's going to be the first step. Those who will vote to make this the main motion now, to substitute for the original. Vote when the light comes on. It is the main motion before us. Any further discussion? Did the mover, original movers wish to speak to it? There is none, no requests? Let's now vote. This is the main motion before us as amended. All right. Okay, vote when the light turns on. All right; it's adopted as amended. [Results: yes, 86; no, 7; abstained, 3]

UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER
(male): Thank you very much, Bishop Sano.

BISHOP SANO: Thank you. The secretary has two elections to bring before us and then announcements. Carolyn, please.

Elections of Coordinator on Calendar and Committee On Plan of Organization

CAROLYN MARSHALL (secretary of General Conference): Two elections which need to be done at this time. One for the Coordinator on Calendar to which Fitzgerald Greist is nominated. And the second one for the Committee on Plan of Organization and Rules of Order. These persons have been placed in nomination: Emery Percell, Jerome Del Pino, Bette Trumble, Darlene Amon, Robert Stevens, Momoh Kpaan, David Tanoko, Michael Pointer, Charles Brockwell and Marcus Matthews.

BISHOP SANO: All right; the nominations are before you. All right; those who will approve, you will vote when the light is on. All right; they're elected. [Results: yes, 835; no, 15; abstained, 24] The announcements, please.

MARSHALL: An announcement for that newly elected Committee on Plan of Organization and Rules of Order, that committee will meet in room A208. A208, 30 minutes following the adjournment of the evening session. In addition to that as far as time is concerned, inasmuch as we have extended the time now, we will begin the legislative organization of legislative committees at 5:30.

Please go directly to those legislative committees for the purpose of organization. Those persons who are elected to positions of leadership as chairperson, vice chairperson and secretary have a meeting scheduled at 6:00. We will change the time for that to 6:30. And advance the time for beginning the evening plenary this evening half an hour. The chairperson of the committee on presiding officers needs to bring a report to bishop.

BISHOP SANO: All right; we are adjourned for the legislative committees. I'm sorry, yes. Presiding officers? Yes, if you'll hold just a moment, please.

REX BEVINS (Nebraska): Chair of the presiding officers committee. The presiding officer for this evening's session will be Bishop Ruediger Minor, Bishop of the Commonwealth of Independent States. And the presiding officer for tomorrow morning, Wednesday April 17th, will be Bishop Lloyd Knox of the Atlanta Area.

BISHOP SANO: Thank you. Let the chair test with a body on the proposed schedule. To postpone the beginning of the hymn singing by half an hour. That has been the proposal coming from the secretary. Let's have a vote on that by the body. If you could take your places, please. You heard the proposal to postpone convening of the session this evening to 7:45, the hymn singing. All right, to postpone by half an hour. All right, vote when the light turns on. It's adopted; we're adjourned now for our legislative committee.

Evening Session April 16, 1996

Bishop Ruediger Minor, presiding

(song)

BISHOP RUEDIGER MINOR: Every quadrennium, there is a certain very important process happening in the Council of Bishops. And although it's happening every quadrennium, it's not routine. What happens for a time of over two years that the Council of Bishops is preparing its message to the church, to the General Conference, delivered by one of its members. And it's not just that a person is elected to give the Episcopal Address. In conversation, in listening and talking, praying, and deliberating, this message is developed. So although one of us is speaking to you, she is speaking for the bishops. This quadrennium, Bishop Judith Craig, bishop of the West Ohio Conference, will be the mouth of the bishops. And I present to you Bishop Judith Craig.

(applause)

BISHOP RUEDIGER MINOR: Bishop Craig, the General Conference has expressed its gratefulness and we give thanks to God for the blessing that you have been to us and what you have given us for these days. And now I turn to the secretary of the General Conference for announcements.

CAROLYN MARSHALL: There are several announcements that seem to have come to us at this time. The first one is a reminder to those persons who were elected to the leadership for various legislative committees. The rooms to which you are assigned or the time that you are to be leaving this General Conference will be open this evening for your use until 11 o'clock. And to also remind you again that the petitions for each of the legislative committees are available immediately after we adjourn here in room C204.

The Plan of Organization and Rules of Order will meet within 30 minutes at 10:35 in room A208 for the purpose of organization and to begin work immediately on two referrals which are already done.

Several notes have arrived at the podium during the course of this day. Of first reserves with queries about receiving the DCAs that are placed on the desks of the delegates, and were wondering where theirs are available. A word to you that those are available for first reserve delegates at the DCA office.

One announcement came here which in reality is a deviation from our rules. Inasmuch as there was not opportunity to make contact during this evening for the person who originated this announcement. It is being brought to your attention along with calling attention to the rules which I will do after reading the announcements.

The Inter Ethnic Strategic Development Group will meet 30 minutes after the Episcopal Address in Ballroom Four. And then to refer you to page four in the Advance DCA let me simply read it to you—, you do not need to find it right now—which says, announcements shall be made through the Daily Christian Advocate. Oral or projected announcements shall be restricted to the official operation of the General Conference and its legislative and administrative committees. Following this evening's adjournment we will certainly adhere to that.

And the last announcement is to remind the delegates that a resource document is made available. This document is offered so that all of us will be prepared to participate in the discussions tomorrow. You are invited to review this material printed on the yellow paper, which you received today, before tomorrow morning's session. Bishop Minor that completes the announcements.

BISHOP MINOR: Thank you. It has been a long day. The work will continue and this is just the beginning. [laughter] I ask Bishop James Thomas to dismiss us with the benediction.

BISHOP JAMES THOMAS (retired): [benediction]

Morning Session April 17, 1996

Bishop Lloyd Knox, presiding

(applause)

BISHOP LLOYD KNOX: Let us come to order. Our first order of the day is the address of the laity. And James Lane will be introduced by Paul Ervin who is the president of the National Association of Lay Leaders. So if Paul Ervin will come now and present Mr. Lane.

PAUL ERVIN: Thank you, Bishop. The laity address at General Conference is fairly recent. The first laity address was delivered in 1980, so this will be our fifth laity address. The selection process has been overseen by the National Association of Annual Conference Lay Leaders.

The national association operates much as the Council of Bishops operates with the Episcopal Address. There are some differences. One, it's shorter. Second, the address is from the lay perspective. It gives a message of hope and dreams for our church from the lay perspective.

The selection process has been varied. There have been consensus reports, addresses by the laity. There has been a churchwide competition in years past. This year the selection was from among the active conference lay leaders for the person giving the address. But in order to focus upon the message rather than the messenger, the judging was done by five independent judges, in the blind. They did not know who had written the particular paper that was presented by the conference lay leader. The winner of the written competition presented his paper to the national association at their annual meeting and received comments for his consideration.

Our presenter this morning is Jim Lane. Jim is the conference lay leader from North Arkansas. Tomorrow morning at the national association lay leaders breakfast, he will become the president of the National Association of Annual Conference Lay Leaders. Jim has been active in his local church and in his conference. He has written lay speaking materials for the General Board of Discipleship. He represents the hope for future of lay ministry. The theme for his address this morning will be "Partners in Ministry." As Jim gives the laity address, he will be representing all of the laity of our church. Please welcome Jim Lane.

BISHOP KNOX. Thank you very much, Jim, for that inspiring message. All right, I see a card back. If you will come to microphone 12 or eight. Well, 12 is right there. Microphone 12, please.

V.L. DAUGHTERY, JR. (South Georgia): In light of the episcopal address and the laity address, I would like to offer this motion. I quote, "The 1996 General Conference directs the Committee on Reference, requests the legislative committees and directs the committee on Agenda and Calendar to give priority in all sessions and actions to petitions relating to spiritual and numerical church membership growth, church membership decline, recommendations relating to evangelism, missions, and programs of service and servant ministries by giving such petitions priority status as calendar items to be acted upon by the 1996 General Conference." If I can have a second, I wish to speak to the motion.

BISHOP KNOX: Is there a second?

UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER: I second it.

DAUGHTERY: I wish to quote from one of my seminary professors, a bishop of the church and at one time my own bishop. "History shows us that the church is weakest and most ineffective when she spends her time considering herself and her own internal problems.

The business of the church, always and invariably, should be her mission to the world. When she becomes concerned with her own life and fortune, she loses it. Only as the church is engaged in work for the salvation of the world does the church find herself and become in truth and deed the church of Jesus Christ against which the gates of hell can not prevail." Already in the petitions of this General Conference are the forms and functions to carry out this motion. We simply need to receive them early in the session and not wait until the waning days to be concerned about mission, ministry, membership decline, membership growth, and servanthood ministries. Thank you.

BISHOP KNOX: All right. V.L., I am going to ask you to withdraw the motion until a later time. I erred in recognizing you because we do have an order of the day. So, is that All right with you? Will you accept? Okay, thank you. We do have, we will be hearing, there is an election, and we need to do some electing, so if you have your Advanced DCA available please turn to pages 80 and 81 or in the regular DCA of yesterday, page 31. And we will ask our conference secretary, Carolyn Marshall, to lead us in this.

Nominations for Interjurisdictional Committee On Episcopacy

CAROLYN MARSHALL: On the pages which Bishop Knox has announced are listed the nominations which have come from the various annual conferences for the interjurisdictional committee on episcopacy. That is the item which is before us.

BISHOP KNOX: Do you have that? Have you found your pages? These are before you. If you will vote, if you will approve the nominations, you will vote "yes" on your machine. If you will not approve, vote "no", and if you don't know, you vote "abstain." Please vote when the light appears. And they are elected. [Results: yes, 795; no, 20; abstained, 39] Thank you very much. Now we have another election that needs to be done, which we will be led by Mrs. Marshall.

CAROLYN MARSHALL: Whereas the deed of the John Street United Methodist Church calls for the election of the church's board of trustees by the General Conference, that plan having been approved at the General Conference session of 1868, with every General Conference since then having so elected those trustees. We now present the nominees for 1996-2000 quadrennium as they come from the John Street United Methodist Church. The resident bishop of the New York Area of the United Methodist Church, Connie Takamine, Wilma Roberts, James H. Hohenstein, William C. Kirkwood, William Staubach, Jr., James Cardwell, Raynor Rodgers, and Steven K. Rose.

BISHOP KNOX: All right. The names are before you. I don't suppose there are any other nominations; I hope not. I don't see any cards, thank the Lord. Now, you will please vote "yes" if you approve; "no" if you do not approve; and if you are not sure, vote "abstain." Please vote when the light appears. And they are elected. [Results: yes, 821; no, 18, abstained, 76] Thank you very much. Our next order, which is an order of the day, is the Study of the Ministry report. And we are going to ask Bishop Sharon Brown Christopher, Bishop David Lawson. Do you have something, Rex? Excuse me, the committee of presiding officers needs to make a report.

REX BEVINS (Nebraska): To announce that tomorrow morning's presiding officer will be Bishop Donald Ott of the Michigan Area.

BISHOP KNOX: Thank you. All right, and now we'll ask our bishops Christopher and David Lawson if you will come now and present the report which has been put in the hands of the Council of Bishops for four years and was an action of the General Conference. So this is one of the studies and we're asking [pause] They're asking for a brief break, so we will ask that V.L. Daughtery, we've already heard your motion and we wondered now, you've made your speech for it. It is basically a referral of... Would you give us a synopsis, V.L.? He is coming to microphone seven, please.

DAUGHTERY: V.L. Daughtery, South Georgia Conference. The essence of the motion...

BISHOP KNOX: We need a copy of the motion.

Proposal to Prioritize Mission, Membership Growth

DAUGHTERY: is to ask and request that the legislative committees, the agenda on calendar and reference give priority to all the existing petitions relating to mission, ministry, servanthood ministries, membership growth, numerical and spiritual, and membership decline, and that we receive those early in this session of the General Conference. I was present at a General Conference where we picked a number out of the air and said we were going to grow by that number. We didn't grow, and it was an embarrassment. We need to deal from the grassroots with persons who are feeling these issues and give the approval or disapproval of this conference on those matters.

BISHOP KNOX: All right. Is there someone who wants to speak against the motion. Okay. Over here on the left, come to microphone four please, microphone four.

MERLIN ACKERSON (Iowa): I think the intention sounds very good. We're all interested in mission; we're all interested in ministry; we're all interested in growth and evangelism. My concern about this motion is that we might get bogged down in our legislative committees debating about what is and what is not appropriate priority, and I think we could spin our wheels doing a lot of that kind of discussion rather than getting to the business of our legislative sections. It seems to me that the business in our legislative sections is ministry, and it is mission, and it does all relate to the priorities of the church—that we grow, that we be faithful to Jesus Christ.

BISHOP KNOX: All right. Thank you. Anyone want to speak in favor of the motion? Are you ready to vote? If you will vote in favor of the motion, push the "yes" button, if you're not in favor push the "no" button, if you wish to abstain, push the "abstain" button. Please vote when the light appears. And the motion does not prevail. [Results: yes, 340; no, 539; abstained, 44] Thank you very much. I see, David, ready? Come to 11, come to microphone 11, please.

Northeast Jurisdiction Appeal to Judicial Council

J. FAY CLEVELAND (Western New York): I rise for a point of personal privilege.

BISHOP KNOX: All right.

CLEVELAND: My personal privilege would be to move a referral to the Judicial Council for a declaratory decision, a matter of utmost importance to the Northeast Jurisdiction and to the Northeast Jurisdiction Committee on Episcopacy.

The review committee of the Northeast Jurisdiction has referred three items to the Judicial Council regarding a grievance that has been in process for 14 months. All parties to the grievance are aware of this referral and are anticipating and desiring a decision to be made as speedily as possible. It is my understanding that only if this referral becomes an action of this General Conference will such a declaratory judgement or decision be possible at this time.

Therefore, on behalf of the Northeast Jurisdiction Committee on Episcopacy and the Northeastern Jurisdiction Review Committee and all parties to the grievance, I move that the General Conference support the referrals from the Northeast Jurisdiction Review Committee and request declaratory decisions of the Judicial Council on those matters at the earliest possible opportunity.

BISHOP KNOX: All right. Is there a second?

UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER: I second it.

BISHOP KNOX: Would you like to speak further?

CLEVELAND: Only to say that individuals have been waiting and hurting long enough, and we need to move ahead with the process. I believe this action would allow us to move ahead quickly, fairly, and with justice.

BISHOP KNOX: All right. This is properly before us. Anyone else have something they would like to say? Are you ready? If you would approve this, you will push the "yes" button, if you do not approve, the "no" button, please vote when the light appears.

[Results: yes, 715; no, 95; abstained, 116.]

BISHOP J. LLOYD KNOX: Thank you very much. I believe that Bishops Lawson and Christopher are ready, and we will go ahead with the report.

STEVEN KIMBROUGH: This is a part of the report. May we stand and sing two stanzas of "Here Am I Lord."

(song)

BISHOP DAVID LAWSON: Just a word of explanation for you. We have been told you were going to have a cookie break before we made our report. I would like to share with you that you do not get cookies now. And you must not hold us responsible for that.

(laughter)

Bishops' Report On Study On Ministry

BISHOP LAWSON: We procrastinated here for awhile just on your behalf but it did not work and so here we are. Can you hear me? Thank you. I can hear you clear enough. The sound people are now aware of our needs. Can you hear clearly? All right, thank you. Ladies and gentlemen, the Council of Bishops by unanimous decision of those present and voting, brings to you our vision for the ordering of ministry in the United Methodist Church which we are calling "The ministry of all Christians expressing God's mission to the world."

This vision for United Methodist ministry centered us throughout our work. It became the source of energy, the central commitment, and the vision by which the Council evaluated all proposals and suggestions. This vision was the birthing place of the proposal that follows. Let me remind us all that the last General Conference, after extensive work and conversation, debate and decision on the part of the General Conference, the General Conference asked the Council of Bishops to take responsibility for developing a proposal for ministry of the future.

The Council has received that delegation from the General Conference, and has been about this work for the quadrennium. We come now to you with the report.

The Report includes both the introductory material which you have found in your DCA and proposed legislative changes. It also has available to you a correction sheet made necessary because of the process of transmitting material. A wrong sheet was sent to the editor of DCA.

Add a correction which is a part of our visual report. At this session of the General Conference by this action now, your Council of Bishops presents to you our report to you. In this report, we are recommending that you receive the report, that you place it in the processes which we have already agreed to, that the legislative committees will receive it in due order and begin their work on it. And when in time, legislative proposals return to the body for consideration and action, we will have before us continuing, the report of the ministry study.

What that means is, in keeping with rule 36 of our Rules of Order, as the report is made, those who brought the report will have opportunity to speak to amendments to it, if there is concern about the substance of change that is being made.

Now this is normal procedure for a General Conference. However, the people making the report are not normally making a report. And so, when we come back for that time of our work, we will need your permission for a bishop or two to speak to the issues before us. And that's ahead of us when the reports begin to come back.

I'd like to say to you, that openness to God's spirit leads us away in our work, from parenthetical assumptions, assumptions of control, and dominance and unequal value, to an organic view of inter-relatedness and inter-relatedness among a variety of ministries, an organic view.

These ministries we said to ourselves are all of equal value. God's spirit continued to lead us from parliamentary rules and decision making by vote to an openness toward experimenting with the gift of God's discernment.

In order to remain open to the guidance and surprises from our God, we as a council made several commitments.

First, worship was to be the center of all study and deliberation.

Second, the council and its study committee were committed to a radical openness to whatever outcome God might provide.

Third, as a council, we committed ourselves to intensive study of all past ministry studies dating back into the 1960's; parallel studies from other denominations around the world, resource materials from the earliest days of our predecessor denominations.

Fourth, we committed ourselves to listen, listen, listen, listen. The introduction to the proposal which you have in your hands, lists the representative groups with whom we spent time. Omitted from that list is the National Association of Local Pastors. In addition, we asked every episcopal area in the world to organize response groups to read and evaluate the early written documents. Each of their reports was carefully read, ideas and suggestions were gleaned, refinements were made to the developing proposal over time.

In light of our emphasis on the ministry of all Christians, we were delighted to discover that over 500, over 500, lay people were involved in this listening process. The fifth commitment, resource papers were developed, allowing intense examination and development of various aspects of the issues. Sixth, consensus decision making, or if you care to call it that, United Methodist conferencing, was the style throughout the process.

Proposals were continually rewritten reflecting what was heard and learned. We took no votes until the final vote in the final presentation to the Council of Bishops.

And finally, seventh, we recognize that there was a continuing need for the formation, the shaping of the spiritual life of all Christians, laity and clergy alike. And that was foundational for any proposal that would ever be written, and is, in this proposal, woven through all of its provisions.

Call for Discernment

BISHOP SHARON BROWN CHRISTOPHER: This proposal for ministry in the United Methodist Church represents the stewardship of the Council of Bishops. We offer it now to the General Conference with the hope that you will join us in the prayerful open search for God's leadership in this critical matter.

Last night, Bishop Craig urged us to gather together around the table, prayerfully attempting to discern God's will for our Church. In this spirit, let us now lay aside our causes and special interests, open our minds and hearts, respectfully listen and learn from one another, and seek the leadership of God's spirit.

BISHOP LAWSON: Central to our understanding of ministry is the task of equipping the church for the ministry of all Christians. There's been a genuine excitement in the Council of Bishops around this emphasis from the very beginning. In several meetings, the council sent a clear message to its study committee. "If you do not accomplish anything more," they said, "find ways of energizing the church for this task."

A part of this energy grew out of our vision of enabling church members to identify themselves as ministers of Jesus Christ, by assisting them in understanding how this ministry in the world can be expressed, commissioning them for such ministries, and sending members of our churches out from the congregations with a sense of vocation.

BISHOP CHRISTOPHER: A part of the council's energy grew out of a confession. Despite many worthy programs and organizational structures, our United Methodist Church has not achieved this goal of enabling all persons for ministry. We still define the highest lay achievement in terms of holding denominational offices and committee memberships. We still tend to define lay ministry as service in the institutional church. The full power of our Christian discipleship is thereby limited, perhaps thwarted.

BISHOP LAWSON: And thus every proposal in this report is conditioned by this vision of the ministry of all Christians in the world. A vision of over ten million United Methodist people moving to the structures of society, prepared to identify themselves as followers of Jesus Christ, prepared by their congregations to understand in fresh ways how this ministry may be exercised in the world of work and play, in neighborhoods, wherever: amendments to the legislation about the local congregations, the proposed stewards of lay ministry, the newly evolved ordained deacons, the newly focused ordained elders who are also deacons and carry the deacon responsibilities, adjustments to legislation concerning local pastors.

The definition and responsibilities of bishops and district superintendents are all conditioned by this principal thrust and single understanding. Our baptism marks us all as ministers of Jesus Christ. All of us of equal value in the sight of God and one another. No expression of Christian ministry is more important than any other.

Distinctions Between Ministries

BISHOP CHRISTOPHER: When the family of God gathers around the Lord's Table, we are reminded that we are sisters and brothers in Christ. Each of us greatly loved by God, and called to service.

BISHOP LAWSON: In the Apostle Paul's imagery we are the body of Christ. This is our essential identity.

BISHOP CHRISTOPHER: Some of us are feet, some hands.

BISHOP LAWSON: Some eyes, some ears.

BISHOP CHRISTOPHER: Within our equality, there is diversity. God called some within the family to serve on behalf of the entire family. All are needed.

BISHOP LAWSON: And thus while all ministry belongs to the entire church, specific expressions of that ministry focus in specific offices. God calls some of us to a lifetime of servant vocation, witness, service on behalf of all the others.

BISHOP CHRISTOPHER: Others are called to service in the context of their secular vocations and in volunteer ministries through the local church. We believe that the three offices recommended in this proposal are needed to enable and equip the ministry of all Christians in the world.

Lay Ministry Steward

BISHOP LAWSON: As they are proposed, these offices kneel at the Lord's Table in solidarity with all of God's people. The distinct responsibility to which God has called them, wholly integrated with, and supportive of, the servant ministry of the entire church.

One office, in which persons may feel God calling them to express their life vocation, we're suggesting to you is the lay ministry steward, or in other language, the steward of lay ministry. When you recall the power, the spiritual power, of lay leadership in the early days of the movement called Methodism in the United States, those class leaders, and stewards and others—this new office has an exciting possibility in it that's movemental in its nature. It certainly is in harmony with the cry which came back to us from all the hearing processes, a request on the part of lay persons around the denomination for a new level of spiritual leadership for themselves in this evolving church.

The lay ministry steward is called to innovative, disciplined, responsive support to the ministry of all Christians in and through the congregation. Called by God, affirmed through the discernment of the pastor in the local congregation, the lay ministry steward works under the guidance of the pastor in a collegial relationship with all other leaders in the congregation.

In contrast, the specific functional responsibilities for program and administration in the local church, the lay ministry steward has a single purpose: that of assisting the congregation in the development of Christian discipleship and in advancing the ministry of the laity in the world.

BISHOP DAVID J. LAWSON: The lay ministry steward will seek out and help members identify their skills, will help them be in ministry, be a witness in their workplace during the week, help them to disburse into the world scattered as God's people. One concern with spiritual formation of the people of God, the lay ministry steward will seek for themselves training in small group life, Bible study, most important, the theology of work, and other related matters.

Within this focus, this office is designed with the greatest flexibility possible. Since we have only been partially successful in emphasizing lay ministry in the world, we're challenged to allow for experimentation, innovation, flexibility. In order to prevent competition in the congregation, we must contain this office within the accountability structures of that congregation.

It is our belief that God is now calling lay persons to this kind of servant leadership. This new office proposed to you creates an avenue of expression of this call with accountability in the congregation. In a process similar to persons seeking pastoral ministry, the pastor and the congregation will explore with them the nature of their call, the gifts they bring for the service, and lead the congregation to discern whether or not they should be affirmed for the office. This is a practice with which we are quite familiar now with candidates. And for this reason, not all congregations will have such persons in their midst.

BISHOP SHARON BROWN CHRISTOPHER: While God calls all persons to ministry, God calls some to a lifetime vocation within the body of Christ. These persons enter into covenant relationship with God and the Church and are designated for specific leadership through prayer and the laying on of hands. Ordination is a public sign and act in which the Church affirms God's gifts, and authorizes their use through the work of those who are called as ordained ministers.

Now servant leadership is the foundation for all ministry, including the ministry of the ordained. The Church of Jesus Christ has one ministry in which all Christians are called. With the leadership of God's spirit, certain portions of this total ministry are focused in persons called by God, and provided by God with gifts and grace needed for specific forms of leadership. Within this understanding, we have identified two ministerial orders of ordained persons.

BISHOP DAVID J. LAWSON: The first order we've identified is our new understanding and appropriation of the office of deacon. The church currently has ordained deacons and consecrated diaconal ministers. This proposal seeks to enhance and to develop the diaconal office, allowing the richness and central purpose of these historic offices to flow into a newly ordained deacon.

Order of Deacon

Deacons are persons called by God, authorized by the church (the meaning of ordination), and ordained by a bishop to a lifetime of servant leadership in both the community and the congregation in a ministry that connects the two.

In the world, this new deacon, this ordained deacon, seeks to express a ministry of compassion and justice, assisting lay persons as they claim their own ministry. And in the congregation the ministry of the deacon is to teach and to inform disciples, to lead worship together with other ordained persons and laity, to celebrate the sacrament of baptism, to assist the elders in the sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

The deacon models service, inviting others to their own servant ministry in the world. We anticipate that the appointment for deacon will, in most instances, be outside the institutional church, in the world of work and marketplace. These deacons will carry out ministries of service, compassion, and justice. In those instances where their appointment is within the local congregation, deacons must demonstrate that this placement specifically affirms the inter-relatedness of worship and work.

BISHOP CHRISTOPHER: The ministry of the deacon will take many forms. Some will be employed in their place of service. Others may serve as volunteers. Some may be employed by schools, colleges, theological schools, or by church-related health and welfare agencies. Some will serve as educators, both in the church and in the community. Much of the service will be in settings that have no explicit religious affiliation.

In every instance, the deacon will also receive an appointment in a local congregation, and will share in the responsibility for leading other Christians into their own ministries of service. In rare instances, when the deacon volunteers, the bishop may appoint the deacon to a special assignment as a volunteer without financial support. These will be instances of special need and critical urgency.

We must emphasize that this order of deacon is new. While it flows out of previous expressions of diaconal service, it is different from all previous kinds of consecrated and ordained forms.

Order of Elder

BISHOP LAWSON: The second ordained ministerial order we've identified for you is the order of elder. The Council of Bishops proposes a vital and newly focused ordained elder, called by God, authorized by the Church, and ordained by the bishop. The elder enters into a lifetime itinerant ministry of Word, Sacrament, and Order. The elder leads in the ordering of the life of the church for the fulfillment of its central task. And you will not be surprised at this, of preparing Christian disciples for their service in the world.

The servant leadership of the elder is expressed by leading the people of God in worship and prayer, in leading people to faith in Jesus Christ, by exercising pastoral supervision in the congregation, and by leading the church in obedience to mission in the world.

At a time when the church is rediscovering the centrality of service in all of its ministries, we affirm the continuing responsibility of the elder to fulfill their servant leadership as deacons, while serving as elders. And as such, to be bound by the meaning of the deacon's ordination, and thus, in every congregation there will be the servant leadership, the presence of the deacon, sometimes in the form of the new deacon, sometimes in the form of the elder who is also a deacon, sometimes through the ministry of the local pastor who serves, and is licensed under the guidance of an elder. This proposal emphasizes that the deacon's ordination is foundational to all ordination.

BISHOP CHRISTOPHER: All clergy, both deacon and elder, upon election to full membership in the annual conference, shall be members of and participate in the order appropriate to their election.

Now an order is a mutually supportive covenant community within the church to care for and hold accountable its members for the sake of the life and mission of the church. These orders seek to respond to the spiritual hunger among clergy for a fulfilling sense of vocation, for support among peers, for a deepening relationship with God.

Now they are not exclusive clubs of insiders, but are spiritual communities that supplement and deepen the formation that deacons and elders receive through congregational life and exist to assist in the continuing formation of clergy for their vocation. Each order will provide for regular gatherings of ordained deacons and ordained elders; will assist in plans for individual study and retreat experiences; will develop a bond of unity and common commitment to mission and ministry; will help create relationships of mutual trust and support; and will provide accountability and offer support for the members in the fulfilling of these purposes.

The bishop will convene and provide continuing spiritual leadership for each order with the support and assistance of the Board of Ordained Ministry. The board will nominate in the order and elect quadrennially a chairperson of the order, who, in cooperation with, and with the guidance of the bishop, will provide continuing leadership for the order. The chairperson will be responsible for implementation of plans and activities, will represent the order on the Conference Board of Ordained Ministry, and will serve on the board's executive committee.

Plan for Local Pastors

BISHOP LAWSON: Now within this new vision for ministry in our denomination, the bishops recognize that there need to be new provisions for the local pastors, these persons' vital spiritual leadership in increasing ways in our denomination.

Our proposal allows local pastors to continue in long term service by completing a course of study. The assumption currently held in our Book of Discipline that these persons need to continue toward associate membership is being removed from this proposal, as are college requirements. However, should a local pastor choose to do so, provision is made for the fulfillment of requirements for ordination as a deacon, and then subsequent process through a probationary period toward the ordination of elder.

To exercise this option, you will discover the local pastor must reach the age of forty years, must have completed a five year course of study, and thirty-two semester hours of graduate theological study or its equivalent.

Plan for Transitional Provisions

The council realizes that this new understanding of ministry requires some transitional provisions. Because the office of diaconal minister, as well as the current ordained deacon, have flowed into the new ordained deacon, we recommend that the consecration of new diaconal ministers be discontinued as the ordination of the current style of deacon.

All persons who have begun the candidacy for diaconal ministry prior to January 1, 1997, may proceed under the provisions of the 1992 Book of Discipline. Persons currently serving as diaconal ministers may continue their service as long as they desire or until their retirement. Provision is made for those desiring to do so, that is, those diaconal ministers who desire to do so, to enter into a process of becoming an ordained deacon.

And because local pastors will now have the possibility of becoming ordained deacons, and proceeding through probationary membership to full membership in the conference and ordination as elders, we recommend the discontinuation of the status of associate members.

Current associate members in good standing may continue until their retirement or until they are discontinued for other reasons. Associate members in good standing as of January 1, 1997, may, after meeting specified requirements, be elected as full members of the annual conference and ordained elders as a part of a transitional provision.

There are many other recommendations and adjustments in the current legislation. In every instance, all proposals focus on, as the highest priority, the ministry of all Christians in the world. The Council of Bishops commends this ministerial proposal to you for your own prayerful consideration. The recommendations come after extensive study of past ministerial proposals and study commissions, review of current studies of other Christian bodies around the world, examination of more alternatives than you can believe.

The council offers these proposals in the belief that they will advance the cause of Jesus Christ, and will enhance the ministry of all United Methodist Christians in a time that calls for a fresh focus on the ministry of witness and service outward into the society and community. We offer this to you with a great deal of excitement, and frankly, with no small amount of passion.

BISHOP CHRISTOPHER: Now we begin the process of seeking the wisdom of this whole faith community, under the guidance of the Holy Spirit. We have received the report from the Council of Bishops. We have received news reports, recommendations from many quarters, and advice from friends. Now we also receive an invitation from the Council of Bishops.

The bishops invite this General Conference to accept the same discipline that guided our search.

Number one: Acknowledging all that we think, feel, fear, and hope, and admitting that we come here with our heads full of ideas and partial conclusions, we also affirm that our hearts are open to new guidance from God.

Number two: We will surround all we do with worship. Prayer will be the context for our work.

Number three: We will respectfully listen to one another with the will to learn and question.

Number four: We will provide occasional moments of silence in our deliberations in order that we may remember whose will it is we seek.

Number five: We will believe that this church can discover the leadership of God's spirit. The ancient ones of the Christian faith discovered that those seeking the gift of discernment need to be in a worshipping community. They need to understand the issue at hand, remember their purpose, and discover relevant information. Prayer is critical for it opens the mind and the heart to the possibility of new insight. The most difficult learning is the necessity of being open to surprises. This last faith attitude was called "sacred indifference to the outcome." God may choose to lead us on to new paths. Please remember that as you do your work, the Council of Bishops is engaging in an around-the-clock prayer vigil everyday for two weeks. They will be praying for all the work of the General Conference, including what we do here today. In the prayer room, in your private residence, the bishops invite you to share in this spiritual discipline.

Please, God, help us to discover wisdom as we search for the paths you would have us follow.

Sending Forth to Special Committees

This is how we are to proceed: The Committee on Plan of Organization and Rules of Order proposed that we approve the following procedure. At the announced time, each delegate is to go to the assigned room for your reflection group, and you should have on your table those assignments for you.

There will be a moderator who will guide you through the process, assisting you as you explore the ministry proposal. The process will be explained when the groups first meet. Please work together to ensure that all who wish to speak may have the opportunity. This is not the occasion for debate. It's not the occasion to persuade or dispute. It is in the legislative committee and the plenary session where such can happen. Here, we seek to share and to listen and to learn.

It is hoped that all delegates will feel free to express their hopes, suggestions, and questions. Three guiding questions will be used to encourage the sharing. First, how does this document lead us into spiritual growth? How does this proposal help us to be a missional church? And how does this document help lead us into a more faithful equipping of the laity for mission?

The recorders for your group will carefully record your discussion, listening for consensus and questions. They will then prepare a short document representing the consensus points and concerns of your entire reflection group, and will join the other recorders in discussion to identify the consensus points, the points of clarification, and the concerns of the entire General Conference.

A group of compilers will work in room C205 with these reports and prepare a written statement of what has been discerned. And this statement will be given to the Legislative Committee on Ordained Ministry.

It is that legislative committee which will receive all matters related to the ministry proposal. Then the legislative committee will work with the ministry proposal and all related petitions and report their recommendations to the plenary session of this General Conference.

Please note, persons who can clarify provisions of the proposal can be reached nearby your meeting room. You are encouraged to send for one of these persons if further information is needed in your group.

Now you are invited to make your way to an assigned room. Please be aware that this is the first work of the 1996 General Conference. You enter a new faith community with a holy purpose. You will find Christ in your gathering, so enter with anticipation and hearts full of grace. And let us go on our way by joining together in the last verse of hymn number 593, "Here I Am, Lord." May God bless us all.

THE GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

Denver, Colorado

Friday, April 19, 1996

Vol. 3 No. 4

God Is in This Place

Those who were in Oklahoma City April 19, 1995, will always remember that day in particular, and the days after, as a city and community united to stand up to tragedy. On that day, one would wonder: where was God?

The awful sight of the federal building is now gone. In its place is the beginning of a beautiful park. A people's faith, courage and determination are reflected in such beauty and newness. Life goes on amid stark reminders of what happened here. Recovery . . . healing . . . rebuilding, yet, for some, the struggle still continues.

The Scripture paints a vivid picture of people rebuilding out of ruin and claiming the promises of God: things new and lasting, things better than before. Let us hope this for the people of Oklahoma City. Today, amid freshly planted trees, flowers and green grass, a city will remember and give thanks to a God who was—and is—there!

—The Rev. Thomas Roughface,
Oklahoma Indian Missionary Conference

"There's a song in every silence, seeking word and melody;
there's a dawn in every darkness, bringing hope to you and me.
From the past will come the future;
what it holds, a mystery, unrevealed until its season, something God alone can see."

—Natalie Sleeth

Top Ten Reasons for Going to General Conference

10. You never have to explain who John Welsey was.
9. No one tries to sell you a raffle ticket.
8. Everyone has a name tag so you don't have to remember any names.
7. You get sermon ideas that no one else from your congregation has heard.
6. You get to ride the escalators.
5. You get a commemorative hymnal that doesn't match any other hymnal in your church.
4. You know where your bishop is.
3. You finally get to watch a big screen T.V.
2. You can see the many different styles of dark blue suits.
1. When you speak on the floor of conference, someone writes down every word you say and they publish it even if it doesn't make any sense.

Day Three: a Call To Witness and Prayer

As delegates streamed toward the convention center on day three, more and more delegates were carrying their DCAs, Bibles, Disciplines and reports in wheeled luggage as their piles of paper grew.

Morning Worship

The morning worship service began with the enthusiastic and disciplined voices of the Maranatha Choir of University United Methodist Church, Gainesville, Fla., led by Robert W. Jackson. In the sermon, Albany [N.Y.] Area Bishop William Boyd Grove continued the unity theme with quotations from John Wesley. Can we become men and women of "catholic spirit," he asked, "willing to pray with those who disagree with us, and long for their welfare? . . . If your heart (not your opinions) is as my heart, give me your hand." Bishop Grove encouraged a unity "that will surprise our church." That plea was met with a lengthy, standing ovation.

Discussion and Prayer

Following worship, presiding Bishop Donald A. Ott, Michigan Area, reminded delegates that in the Episcopal Address the bishops asked that all meetings begin with five minutes of one-on-one conversation and prayer, especially between persons who do not know each other well. Delegates pondered two questions: What is my most earnest hope for the next few hours of this conference? What do I believe is God's most fervent hope for these next few hours? Then they joined in prayer, beseeching God to combine the two hopes into one.

A Call to Witness and Prayer

A 90-minute celebration of United Methodism's historic stance in support of human rights for all persons inspired positive response.

The Commission on the General Conference had scheduled the special event in response to concern over the 1992 action by Colorado voters who passed a state constitutional amendment denying human-rights protection to homosexuals. The amendment, later overturned by a Colorado court, is now before the nation's Supreme Court. Because of this controversy, many United Methodists had wanted to move General Conference to another state. The idea of an on-site witness prevailed.

The moving service included Scripture reading, singing, praying and witnessing by persons reflecting the inclusiveness and worldwide nature of United Methodism.

F. Belton Joyner Jr., Raleigh, N.C., recalled God's grace in history, the examples of Christ and John Wesley's concern for human rights. Referring to Colorado Amendment 2, he said "some of our colleagues in United Methodism felt it was at odds with our historic Wesleyan witness for human and civil rights for all. Some of our family saw the amendment to deny to gay, lesbian and bi-sexual persons basic human and civil rights, and our tradition says 'no' to such denial.

"To be sure," he continued, "some of our United Methodist kin supported the amendment and saw it as an extension of our official denominational view that the practice of homosexuality is incompatible with Christian teaching, . . . yet here we are. . . . We call ourselves to prayers of repentance for ways we have violated or looked past others. We make witness to God's freeing gift of basic rights for all humankind."

Scripture was read in Spanish and English by Mary Silva, San Antonio, and F. Belton Joyner Jr., Raleigh, N.C.

In the meditation, William Abraham of Perkins School of Theology, Dallas, reminded delegates of Jesus' teaching and healing ministries, sending his disciples to do the same. "We dare to go forward under the authority of Jesus Christ," he said. "We cannot limit the kingdom." He noted that we must make disciples who will gladly "be spent in the service of justice and peace."

Andrei Kim, Moscow, Russia, spoke of the severe limits on religious, human and civil rights in his country. Dorothy Yoeman, Elgin, Ill., movingly described the justice problems faced by imprisoned, battered women and her opposition to the death penalty. Randy Miller, San Francisco, witnessed on behalf of justice and rights for gays and lesbians and his own knowledge of "the rejection of being the unwelcome guest."

Minerva G. Carcano, Albuquerque, N.M., told how she experienced the "darkness within us" as she heard behind-the-scenes statements of racism, sexism and homophobia at both Jurisdictional and General Conferences. Francisco de Castro Maria, an Iliff School of Theology student, described human rights problems in his native Angola, caused by grueling economic conditions and massive refugee migrations.

As the witnessing continued, delegates became increasingly involved, standing and applauding the speakers.

Leading delegates in a "season of prayer," Bishop Rueben P. Job, Nashville, Tenn., said: "Prayer is the universal language of us all."

The service closed with the Wesley covenant prayer which ends, "O glorious and blessed God . . . you are mine, and I am yours. So be it. May the covenant which I have made on earth be ratified in heaven."

Chalices and Patens Find New Homes

The chalices and patens used for Holy Communion during the 1996 General Conference opening worship are being made available by Cokesbury. The sets will be taken to various places in the United States, including Brentwood, Tenn.; Grand Rapids, Mich.; Pearl River, N.Y.; Pueblo, Colo.; Salt Lake City, Utah; and Thornton, Colo. We at DCA are curious about how the chalice and paten sets will be used when they reach their final destinations. If you have purchased a set for a special ceremony or event, please stop by the DCA office and tell Brad Motta. A future DCA article will describe the various uses of the chalices.

Corrections

Bishop Victor Bonilla is a member of the Council of Bishops with voice but not vote.

Add Bishop Robert M. Blackburn to the retired bishops' list.

The Chancel Choir of Mountain View UMC, Boulder, Colorado, Timothy Brown, director, was inadvertently omitted from the worship bulletin and schedule of daily worship services.

The city for Carolyn Marshall should be changed from Petersburg to Veedersburg, p. 47, col. 2, Wed. edition.

Fifteen Bishops Express Pain at Lesbian, Gay "Proscriptions"

(UMNS) Personal "pain" at "proscriptions...against gay and lesbian persons" in official policies was voiced by 15 bishops in a dramatic statement released late yesterday.

The bishops, 11 active and four retired, affirmed their commitment to "continue our responsibility to order and discipline of the church," but urged congregations "to open the doors in gracious hospitality to all our brothers and sisters in the faith."

"We believe it is time to break the silence and state where we are on this issue that is hurting and silencing countless faithful Christians," the statement said. Active bishops signing the statement were Judith Craig, William W. Dew Jr., Calvin D. McConnell, Susan M. Morrison, Fritz Mutti, Donald A. Ott, Sharon Zimmerman Rader, Roy I. Sano, Mary Ann Swenson, Melvin G. Talbert, and Joseph H. Yeakel. Retired bishops signing were: Jesse R. DeWitt, Leontine T.C. Kelly, Melvin G. Wheatley, and C. Daic White.

Delegates Take Advantage of Translation Services

As one walks through the convention center during General Conference, many languages can be heard. In fact, nine languages other than English, plus American Sign Language, are officially represented.

In order to give the speakers of these languages as much active participation as possible, a team of 48 interpreters and two on-site technicians are available to the approximately 141 delegates who requested interpreters. Interpreters are available to translate Chinese, French, German, Indonesian, Korean, Portuguese, Russian, Spanish and Swahili. The Rev. Laverle Carrington and several local volunteers translate American Sign Language.

Donald Reasoner, a missionary for the General Board of Global Ministries, coordinates equipment for the translators and serves as a Spanish and Portuguese translator. He said two systems are used to translate English into other languages. In the plenary sessions, an infrared system allows the individual to select a channel and listen on headphones to an interpreter, who sits in a booth at the front of the room. If a speaker needs translation, the interpreter translates the comment or question, which is then broadcast over the room's public-address system.

The other interpretation system, which relies on a portable headset, is used in the committees. Seven of the 10 committees are served by interpreters. Nilda Ferrari, multilingual resources director for the General Board of Global Ministries, serves as General Conference language-interpretation coordinator. According to Ms. Ferrari, all committee chairs support the effort to provide interpretation for those who need it.

Both Mr. Reasoner and Ms. Ferrari report relatively smooth sailing. They said the few minor glitches they have encountered have been easily solved. This is the first General Conference which has provided interpreters for committee meetings and other uses beyond the plenary sessions. Mr. Reasoner and Ms. Ferrari credited their success to recent technological developments and increased awareness of the need for interpreters.

Luncheon Celebrates Latin American, Caribbean Ministries

A luncheon yesterday honored Latin American and Caribbean delegates and the 34 annual conferences that have taken action in support of the missional initiative "Encounter with Christ in Latin America and the Caribbean."

Some 200 United Methodist bishops and delegates of the Council of Evangelical Methodist Churches of Latin American and the Caribbean (CIEMAL), Methodist Church of the Caribbean and the Americas (MCCA), representatives of the supporting 34 conferences, church executives and other special guests rejoiced in the response to this mission outreach program.

"Encounter with Christ" will link Methodist and United Methodist peoples of the Americas and the Caribbean in new dimensions of evangelism and mission. This commitment to partnership and mutuality in mission, as we move into the 21st century, will be undergirded by "Encounter with Christ" (No. 025100) through the General Board of Global Ministries.

Joys and Concerns

Our prayers are with Bishop William R. Cannon who fell and broke his hip April 17 while in attendance at General Conference.

Bishop Arthur Kulah has opted to stay in Liberia to support church members during the violence. Liberian delegate Lamark Cox, who boarded one of the last U.S. helicopters leaving the war-torn African nation, was scheduled to arrive in Denver late yesterday. He will hold a press conference at noon today in the Press Room (Ballroom 1).

Special Events Offer Diverse Opportunities

Whether you've set your weekend sights on Breckenridge, Cheyenne, the Colorado High Plains, Colorado Springs, Iliff School of Theology, Estes Park/Loveland or the Denver Metro Area, fun and adventure await you!

Special Events Day, April 21, is designed to offer General Conference delegates and their families unique opportunities to get acquainted with the Rocky Mountain Conference "neighborhood": the people, the churches and the attractions.

Hundreds of delegates and visitors have already signed up for the tours. In fact, Tour A (Breckenridge) and Tour F (Estes Park and Loveland) are booked solid. But don't despair, said Duane Knutson, a Special Events Planning Committee member and co-leader of the Colorado Springs tour. "There is added value in each of the tours. We're trying to offer visitors a choice beyond Denver Metro, trying to demonstrate hospitality wherever folks go."

Delegates received a brochure describing the tours. Mr. Knutson, a member of First United Methodist Church, Colorado Springs, noted that the second Colorado Spring tour (Flying W Ranch) and the Greeley/Weld County tour have been cancelled.

Paula Johnston, Local Host Committee chair, urged persons to purchase tickets by noon Friday, April 19. The tours, departure/return times and costs are as follows:

Tour A: Breckenridge, 7 a.m.-8 p.m., $33

Tour B: Cheyenne, Wyo., 8 a.m.-8 p.m., $40

Tour C: Colorado High Plains, 8 a.m.-7 p.m., $15

Tour D: Colorado Springs (Tour 1), 8:30 a.m.-6 p.m., $15

Tour E: Iliff School of Theology, 9:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m., $10

Tour F: Estes Park and Loveland, 9 a.m.-7 p.m., $33.50

Tour H: Denver Metro Area (various opportunities), free

Enjoy!

Reports of Legislative Committees

Church and Society — (4/18/96, 4:30 p.m.)

The committee concurred with petitions:

- Substituting new text for Social Principles Para. 71 D on divorce;
- Adding a new Social Principles paragraph on “Men and Women” after para. 71 E;
- Dealing with connectional relationships between the General Board of Church and Society (GBCS), conference, district, and local churches; membership on annual conference boards of church and society; and the purpose and objectives of the GBCS.

—Shanta M. Bryant and Lee Ranck

Conferences — (4/17/96, 9 p.m.)

The committee organized into subcommittees with the following chairs: Lucille Vanzant, J. LaVon Kincaid Sr., Bruce Ough, and Paul Extrum-Fernandez.

The committee concurred with petitions:

- Providing for The United Methodist Church to send two delegates annually to the British Methodist Conference and for The Methodist Church in Great Britain to send four delegates to The United Methodist General Conference. (21053, p. 175);
- Changing the phrase, “persons with handicapping conditions” to “people with disabilities.” (20309, p. 193);

The committee concurred with petitions (as amended):

- Suggesting that annual conference and district meetings be held in places accessible to people with disabilities. (20368, p. 190) [NOTE: The committee deleted all of the guidelines.];
- Allowing annual conferences flexibility in structuring while providing for connectional relationships between local churches, districts, conferences, and general agencies, and while being responsible for monitoring inclusiveness in the conference. (21617, p. 191) [NOTE: The committee deleted paragraph b);

The committee nonconcurred with a petition:

- Giving the effective bishops membership and vote in the General Conference. (20556, p. 175)

—Ken Horn and Carolyn Simms

Discipleship — (4/17/96, 4 p.m.)

The committee concurred unanimously with the petition to adopt the newly published Spanish-language hymnal, Mil Voces Para Celebrar, as an official hymnal of the church.

The committee formed four subcommittees and appointed a chair for each:

- Structure, (Aileen Williams, chair);
- Doctrine, (Duane Sarazin, chair);
- Laity/Youth, (Larry Powell Sr., chair);
- Baptism, (Greg Stover, chair).

—Lynne DeMichele and Garlinda Burton

Financial Administration — (4/18/96)

The committee recommended concurrence:

- Changing the name to General Board of Pension and Health Benefits from General Board of Pensions;
- Authorizing changing to new wording regarding legal entities of the Board of Pension and Health Benefits;
- Approving new language for permanent funds;
- Replacing text of P1604 authorizing the activities of the General Board of Pension and Health Benefits;
- Updating language and placing a floor in the accepted level of annuity rates;
- Changing “clergy” to “churches” to reflect responsibility of local churches to pay pensions;
- Revising the Basic Protection Plan;
- Deleting P2512;
- Changing language from “persons with handicapping conditions” to “people with disabilities”;
- Amending the Area Episcopal Residence Committee to allow other structures;

The committee recommended non-concurrence:

- Funding of the General Board of Pension and Health Benefits;
- Expanding the options of the Health Flex Insurance Program to gays and lesbians;
- Inserting a preface to P2501;
- Adding mandatory consultation by churches with other Christian churches when seeking a building site;
- Reflecting the diversity of the denomination in corporate body of trustees of church institutions;
- Mandating the annual conference or district board of trustees to conduct an energy audit;
- Prohibiting sale, lease, or mortgage of annual conference property to benefit current operating expenses of the conference or local churches;
- Asking for a task force to study salary equalization for pastors;
- Prohibiting mortgage or sale of real property by a district board of trustees.

The committee referred to a general agency.

- To General Council on Finance and Administration a proposal to establish a relationship with a major credit card company.

—Joretta Purdue, Erik Aisgaard

Global Ministries — (4/18/96)

The committee recommended concurrence:

- Supporting a permanent fund for mission work in Latin America and the Caribbean;
- Urging participation in development and reconstruction work in Africa;
- Calling for emergency assistance in rebuilding war-torn Liberia;
- Supporting the peace process in Central America;
- Deploring the continued occupation of East Timor by Indonesia and the abuse of human rights there;
- Advocating work on peace and human rights efforts in the Middle East and North Africa;
- Calling for development of programs on conflict resolution and alternatives to violence;
- Opposing the building of a radar station in Vieques, Puerto Rico;
- Supporting removal of all U.S. military bases from Okinawa.

Higher Education and Chaplaincy — (4/18/96)

The committee organized into three subcommittees: Structural Relationships, (Stefanie Gray, chair); University Senate and Seminaries, (Myron F. McCoy, chair);

Chaplaincy and Miscellaneous, (Bradley F. Watkins, Sr.).

The committee unanimously voted to accept the document Education: The Gift of Hope and recommended that the General Conference urge every local congregation to study the document.

The committee also recommended concurrence on the following:

- DCA, volume 1, page 823, to amend par. 1511;
- Number 21277 Standards for Endorsement for Ministry Settings. Amend the first sentence of par. 1511.2g.
- Number 21274. The Division of Chaplains and Related Ministries. Amend par. 1511.1.
- Number 21276. General Oversight for Clergy Members. Amend the last sentence of par. 1511.2d
- DCA, volume 1, page 821: Number 21662 pertaining to the Annual Conference Board of Higher Education and Campus Ministry. The committee rejected the deletion to Discipline paragraph 732. As a result, the committee then voted nonconcurrence with all other petitions dealing with the structure of the Annual Conference Board of Higher Education and Campus Ministry.

The committee recommended nonconcurrence:

- Number 20631 to delete words World Service from first sentence of par. 1512;
 - Number 21275 to change the language of par. 1511.2c;
 - Number 20479 to eliminate the Annual Conference Board of Higher Education and Campus Ministry.
- Terri Hiers and Dawn Hand*

Independent Commissions — (4/18/96, 4:45 p.m.)

The committee recommended concurrence:

- Affirming Commission on Status and Role of Women or similar structure at all levels of the church;
- Affirming the work of Gideons International but calling the organization to a more inclusive membership;
- Adding local church and annual conference to advocacy responsibilities of GCOSROW re: resolution of sexual harassment issues,
- Affirming that tasks of currently-mandated Conference Commission on Archives and History must be carried out, but may be assigned to another structure than a commission.

—Ann Whiting and Kristin Knudson Harris

Local Church — (4/18/96, 3:30 p.m.)

The committee recommended concurrence:

- Identifying children as well as men and women in a ministry concern that they be brought into a saving relationship with God;
- Inserting the word "who" into the sentence "The people of God, (who) are the church made visible in the world . . .";
- Specifying that United Methodist pastors are not employees of local churches, even though they may be so classified for taxation and other governmental entities;
- Defining clergy as deacons, elders, and local pastors under full and part-time appointment, and are licensed or ordained;
- Defining "cooperative ecumenical parish";
- Changing "persons with handicapping conditions" to "people with disabilities" in describing specialized areas of ministry;
- Changing term cooperative parish to "cooperative ministry" in section on churches in transitional communities.

The committee recommended concurrence with amendment:

- Inserting a new section defining and outlining relationship between the annual conference and Ecumenical Shared Ministries.

The committee recommended nonconcurrence:

- Calling for rejection of "exaggerated efforts" at inclusive language that deny ecumenical triune teaching;
- Calling for a quadrennial study commission on Classic Christianity and Modern Feminism.

—Kathy Kruger Nobel and Rayford Woodrick

Ordained and Diaconal Ministry — (4/18/96, 5 p.m.)

The committee voted non-concurrence:

with petitions 21751 (§116), 21757 (§201), and 21758 (§201), all of which deal with the Lay Ministry Steward in the Ministry Study. They also dealt with petition 21750 (§108) and concurred with an amended version, which deleted references to the Lay Ministry Steward but retained language relating to ordained ministry.

How to Access General Conference Information Online

Have you wondered how to access General Conference information online inside the convention center? It's easy, if you follow these directions.

Sit at any Windows NT terminal. If the login screen is present, press CTRL-ALT-DEL. If "delegate" does not already appear in the username box, use the mouse to click in the username box. Erase the username and type "delegate." No password is required. Click on OK. You will then see a window called "General Conference." Inside that window, double click on the Netscape icon. The General Conference WWW Pages will open automatically, and you can start browsing.

Beyond the convention center you may access this information through United Methodist Information (<http://www.umc.org>). From the United Methodist Information page, visitors can select "General Conference" to see the same information contained on our local web server, updated once daily.

Consent Calendar Explanation

With this issue, the DCA begins the first calendar items. There are three consent calendars: A) concurrence with proposed changes to the Discipline. B) concurrence with petitions on non-Disciplinary matters. C) non-concurrence on Disciplinary and non-Disciplinary items. The first day items will be listed as 01. The second day will be listed 02, and so forth. Items can be placed on the consent calendar if: 1) no more than five votes were cast against the prevailing position; 2) it has no financial implications; 3) the proposal does not require a constitutional amendment. Any five delegates may have a consent calendar item removed by having such a request on file with the secretary by 3 p.m. on the day it appears in the DCA.

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

Paragraph 2 under Baptism and Holy Living amended to read:

Baptism is the doorway to the sanctified life. The sacrament teaches us to live in the expectation of further gifts of Gods grace. It initiates us into a community of faith that prays for holiness; it calls us to life lived in faithfulness to Gods gift. Baptized believers and the community of faith are obligated to manifest to the world the new redeemed humanity which lives in loving relationship with God and strives to put an end to all human estrangements. There are no conditions of human life (including age or intellectual ability, race or ethnicity, gender or sexual identity, class or handicapping conditions) that exclude persons from the sacrament of baptism. We strive for and look forward to the reign of God on earth, of which baptism is a sign. Baptism is fulfilled only when the believer and the church are wholly conformed to the image of Christ.

Wednesday Morning Announcements

BISHOP KNOX: Thank you very much. Now let's hear from our conference secretary. She has several announcements.

CAROLYN MARSHALL: During the worship service this morning, the mention of the McCurdy Choir singing this afternoon at two o'clock here prior to a plenary session was made. There will not be a plenary session here, but I know that the members of the choir would be very happy and pleased if any of you who are available at two o'clock could be present in order to hear them.

Those persons who were elected chairs and other elected officers of legislative committees, as you organize and find a need for particular other space as far as sub-committees are concerned, as well as other materials, you are requested to go to the business manager, and his office is in A206 in order to receive those other locations which you may use.

As we move from this place to one of those 25 randomly selected groups for reflection and dialogue, I want to mention to you that among the persons who are here from the British Methodist Church is Moira Biggins, who is a member of their committee which is now working on revising the format for their annual conference. And they are in the process of developing a process very similar to that which we are using now, and are very appreciative of being here. She will be joining the group of compilers as a time of personal privilege, and a time of sharing with one of our other denominations from the British Methodist Church as they meet.

Then also to tell you that some of you have been wondering about a break. There are cookies and coffee for you. Please pick them up and endeavor, as much as possible, to be in your small groups by 10:45, as soon following that schedule as closely as possible. You did have on your desks this morning a blue sheet which delineated the places where all of those small groups would be meeting.

BISHOP KNOX: Thank you. Go in peace, and may the peace of God be with you. Amen.

Morning Session April 18, 1996

Bishop Donald A. Ott, presiding

(Prayer and Song)

BISHOP DONALD A. OTT: I would like to give you directions for a time of conversation. You will want and need to hear them. Will you please come to order? First a word to let you know that the choir from Gainesville, Florida, you heard this morning will be giving a concert in the lobby of the Grand Ballroom at 2:00 p.m., a good opportunity before legislative committees.

Now, before the order of the day, I want to call your attention to a statement in the episcopal address of our first evening together. In that address, the Council of Bishops asked for all meetings to begin with conversation and prayer. We are going to begin today with a five minute time for such conversation and prayer. In a moment, I will read to you the two sentences from the episcopal address and ask that you immediately after hearing them begin that conversation with a person near you. Perhaps with one in front or behind you to increase the possibility that it is someone you know less well. You may even wish to stand to converse for those few minutes. After four minutes, I will ask you to take the last minute to pray together in the way that is appropriate to you and your conversation partner. I will offer the amen for all at the ending of the five minute time.

Now, please, listen to those two sentences from the episcopal address and then will you go immediately to your conversation. "We ask that each time you gather in a legislative committee, in a caucus meeting, in plenary; you begin with five minutes of reflecting with another person, perhaps someone you do not know well, speaking about these two questions: What is my most earnest hope for the next few hours of this General Conference? Two. What do I believe is God's most fervent hope for these next few hours? Then we ask you to pray with that conversation partner beseeching God to bring the two hopes into one."

(paired conversation)

BISHOP OTT: In the name of our living God. Amen. Thank you Conference. The order of the day is at hand. It has been announced to you as a Call to Witness and Prayer and the celebration of the United Methodist Church's historic stance in support of civil and human rights for all persons. This report begins, this call, this celebration, this order of our day, begins with the word from the Biblical witness. You will need to be and want to be in silence, preparing to hear it. Will you please be in silence as we begin?

Special Call to Awareness

GATHERING

God's Word: Amos 6:8

WILLIAM K. QUICK (Detroit, Michigan): In the words of the Prophet Amos...

(scripture)

Hymn: "Amazing Grace" (Verses 1, 2, and 3 will be sung by soloists)

The Lord has promised good to me, his word my hope success;

He will my shield and portion be, as long as life endures.

Words of Welcome

F. BELTON JOYNER JR. (Raleigh, N.C.): What do you do with a God who won't quit? What do you do? What do you do with a God who won't let go?

God is a God of history. God moves in history in order to reach and claim God's people. That's our story. God touches history with the presence of grace. That's our experience. That's who we are.

Consider, Moses leads the people out of bondage. Consider, Nebuchanezzar becomes an unwitting servant of the one who owns history. Consider, Rahab takes risk for a people not her own. Consider, Amos speaks a word of justice and judgment to a nation that's lost its focus. God is a God in history.

And crash! With the softness of a baby and the hardness of a cross, God enters history in the incarnate word Jesus Christ! Nothing makes more clear the fullness of God's presence in this world, than the presence in this world of that cosmic Christ.

We build boundaries, barriers, blocks. But God gate-crashes history, comes among us and won't let go.

No wonder when we people of faith are at our best, we care about the daily news of history as well as the good news of faith. God is in both.

So it has been in our Wesleyan heritage: lives of faith lived in the midst of the world; Holy Club trips to the debtor's prison; John Wesley's care for saving children when a society said, "Children were for using"; Wesley's passionate dying voice against slavery in this land.

Thus it's in our Biblical roots and in our faith journey heritage to witness for human and civil rights for all persons. Our social principles say it specifically: "Certain basic human rights and civil liberties are due all persons."

If God's prevention grace is probing for a place for the spirit to land, how can I not give full human dignity to each soul? If God's image is stamped on that human sister or brother, how can I not acknowledge divine reflection in that child of God?

Yet we've not always seen that image—yet we have not always acknowledged that grace—or seen that all persons—all persons breathe the same air molecules as did our incarnate Lord, and God calls us to repent.

In 1992, a majority of those voting here in Colorado, approved an amendment to the State Constitution, Amendment Number Two, which some of our colleagues in United Methodism felt was at odds with our historic Wesleyan witness for human and civil rights for all.

Some of our family saw the amendment to deny to gay, lesbian and bisexual persons basic human civil rights, and our tradition says "No" to such denial.

To be sure, some of our United Methodist kin supported the amendment, and saw it as an extension of our official denominational view that the practice of homosexuality is incompatible with Christian teaching.

But from across the connection, came the voices of those who felt that in light of the passage of the amendment, it was no longer appropriate for this General Conference to meet in the state of Colorado. And yet, here we are. Rather than leaving this moment of history, we have stayed to see how God might be working in this, and how God would have us work in this.

We call ourselves to prayers of repentance for ways we violated or looked past others. We make witness to God's freeing gift of basic rights for all humankind. Amendment Two...its fate is now in the courts. And us... what about us? Welcome! Enjoy the God that comes into history, and won't let go. So let us stand in heart or in posture, to acknowledge the presence of that God.

CALL TO WORSHIP

JOYNER: The Spirit of God is moving...

AUDIENCE: Like the rushing of a mighty wind. We feel God's presence in our midst.

JOYNER: The Spirit of God is moving...

AUDIENCE: And we are "strangely warmed." God's fire melts hearts turned to stone; breaking down the barriers which have too long divided us.

JOYNER: The Spirit of God is moving...

AUDIENCE: Restoring sight to those who are spiritually blinded. Creating new words of praise for those who have lost their voices. Empowering those paralyzed by fear.

JOYNER: Spirit of the Living God fall on us afresh.

Spirit of the Living God fall on us afresh.

Melt us, mold us, fill us, use us.

AUDIENCE: The Spirit of God is moving.

JOYNER: Amen.

AUDIENCE: Amen.

COLLECT FOR PURITY

EVERYONE: Almighty God, to you all hearts are open, all desires known, and from you no secrets are hidden. Cleanse the thoughts of our hearts by the inspiration of your Holy Spirit, that we may perfectly love you, and worthily magnify your holy name, through Christ our Lord. Amen.

MARY SILVA (Rio Grande Conference): (speaking in Spanish) Scripture: reading Ephesians 1:3-12

JOYNER: reading Ephesians 1:3-12

MEDITATION

WILLIAM ABRAHAM (SW Texas): Let us pray together.

Oh God, we pray that you will take our minds and think through them; that you will take my lips and speak through them; but that above all, you will take our hearts and set them on fire with love for you and for our neighbor, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

The word of the living God as we find it in the Gospel according to St. Matthew, chapter nine. (reading of Matthew 9)

A letter of the Reverend John Wesley, near London, February 1, 1777: "My dear brother Christopher: James Curshaw, an obscure Irishman, is stark, staring mad. He prophesies that all the Methodists are to go over to America in the belly of a whale." Now happily, the first Methodists from Ireland who came to this remarkable continent did not come in the belly of a whale. And happily they did not represent the eccentric James Curshaw.

Robert Strawbridge, when he came, was, indeed, something of a maverick. When he showed up in Frederick, Maryland around 1762, he was a strong-willed individual who was prone to take ecclesiastical law into his own hands, and yet, God was able to make use of this remarkable itinerant preacher. And we see in Strawbridge all the passion, and the intensity and the industry which did so much to make Methodism a pivotal movement in western Christianity even before we began a church.

Now, as we remember and celebrate today what God has done through our movement and our church as an instrument of social justice across the world, it's very important that we place this crucial aspect of our work and witness in an appropriate theological and spiritual context.

I think it's fair to say that at the outset we're only too aware, that we are aware, surely, that we're here to celebrate not what we have done. We are here to celebrate what God has done in his mercy in and through the appearing of his Kingdom among us. And I think it is just as well that we put the matter that way. For otherwise, we might have to spend as much time in repentance as we do in celebration and in commitment.

Our record in the matter of social justice and natural and civil rights is frankly a mixed one. Sometimes it's a stem from our natural conservative instincts, instincts which are clearly visible in Wesley himself. At other times our reticences stem from the ambiguity and deeply contested character of all political and social claims.

Now our prophets, of course, have been very sure that they have had a word from the Lord in no uncertain terms. But our prophets have not always been infallible, so there's always been room also for debate and contention, and the same is true, I suspect, today. So we need to carry ourselves with an appropriate degree of humility and circumspection. So we do here, now, celebrate what God has done in and through our efforts—even through our flawed efforts.

Now, what's fascinating to me as I read the record of our church in the area of social justice is the very particular theological and spiritual context which made that possible. These components, I think, this spiritual and theological context is incipiently visible in the passage that I read from Matthew—certainly visible in the passage from Ephesians.

Why are we so concerned about matters of social justice? Of human and civil rights? In part, surely, it is because we are utterly committed to the gospel of the coming of the Kingdom of God.

There is no going back on that. Any movement which takes the gospel—this gospel—seriously cannot restrict the faith to a circle of private existence or experience.

The Kingdom of God is inescapably political and social in its connotations. Entry into that is inescapably personal but entry into that Kingdom leads us ineluctably out into history—into creation—into society so that God's wonderful rule may come in every nook and cranny of the world. Yet that Kingdom which we proclaim into which we enter—was announced and made visible in a way that was different from the run of the mill of politics of Christ's day, or for that matter, any other day. That Kingdom's arrival was born in deep compassion.

When Jesus saw the crowds he had compassion for them because they were harassed and helpless. Work in the Kingdom takes seriously the disorder, the confusion and the darkness of human existence. It acknowledges that work is difficult and demanding. That therefore, it utterly depends upon prayer. So he said to his disciples the harvest is plentiful, but the laborers are few. Pray, therefore, that the Lord will send laborers into the harvest. This work is to be carried out incarnationally by people—by ordinary people like you and I. And so these disciples were initiated into the ways of Jesus. And eventually he gave to them an inimitable authority over the destructive and disruptive powers at work in the world.

Part of the genius of our movement has been the ability to integrate these different components of the Christian faith into a dynamic life-giving reality. At our best we have held them together in love and fellowship. We've been personally rooted in the gospel of the Kingdom—driven by compassion—committed to the hard labor of harvesting—girded about with prayer—sold on fellowship and small groups and interpersonal contact—and utterly committed, surely, to the ending of injustice and oppression and slavery and poverty in God's world. Now to be sure, we have wobbled, and we have wavered. And no doubt we will wobble and we will waver again, but we humbly offer that wobbling and wavering to God. And we know that he will make manifest his Kingdom in and through it all.

And what then of the future? Can we incorporate our commitment to civil rights and justice into the mission of our church, thoroughly and naturally? I think we can, if we take seriously and think seriously about the mission of the church as it is laid out here.

The wider context in Matthew, it seems to me, is fascinating at this point. This passage that I have read is one of three passages. Chapter four gives us a wonderful account of Jesus going out and taking Galilee by storm. He didn't need a public relations firm to attract the crowds. The crowds came—so many of them that by the time you get to chapter nine you have what happens here—gathering the disciples, commissioning them to go out and do this work. And that wonderful and final commissioning in chapter 28: "All authority in heaven and on earth has been given to me. Go therefore and make disciples of the nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, teaching them to observe all that I have commanded you, and lo, I am with you always to the close of the age."

The disciples' work is clear. We are to go and make disciples, baptizing and teaching. And that is bonded. This is the wonder of it all. It is bonded on the one hand by the comprehensive authority of our risen Lord, and on the other it is bonded by the presence of the risen Lord with us here and now. We dare to go under the authority then, not of some secular philosophy or movement, but under the authority of Jesus Christ. We're not going to be afraid to work with other people who do not share those convictions. We can do that with flair. And as we go over against the secular world we seek assiduously to make disciples.

This is no narrow or sentimental or cheap project. It involves making disciples, that is, intentionally forming agents of the Kingdom of God who know God for themselves in justification and sanctification, and who know God so well that the whole of creation and society and history is to be brought under his compassionate rule and Kingdom. And as we go, we will be bonded by the double blessing of Christ's authority and presence?

Now, let me make this concrete. I began my ministry in the Irish Methodist Church in a housing estate in Belfast which at that time had the worst murder rate in western Europe. Across from the front door of the church, there was a shabine. Now, what's a shabine? It's very simple. It's an illegal drinking club, which was in this case run by a band of local terrorists.

On one occasion I visited one of my church leaders in an apartment above the shabine. He had yielded to temptation. I found both he and his wife lying flat out drunk and naked, soaked in their own urine.

We had no windows in the church because we could not get insurance to cover them. They were broken every time we put them back in. And there were occasions when we found dead bodies dumped at the rear of the church. I learned an awful lot from that experience. But one thing I learned above all else. I learned how important it is to make uncompromising disciples if we are to be serious about social transformation.

I recall the women who had been on the peace marches in Ireland and who had been spat on and kicked for doing it. I recall the young Christians who had to learn to survive in a hostile environment and I recall those who had to work so hard to build new structures for a stable society and for peace and for lasting justice. Now, we know, do we not, that we will not have any deep impact on the world if we restrict the faith to the private sphere and limit the Kingdom to some version of individual salvation. But equally we know that we will not change the world if we restrict our work to proclamations and declarations and whatever else we do without rooting people firmly and deeply in the Kingdom of God.

Let me put it very personally. Thirty years ago this year, I was wobbling my way into the Christian thought of atheism. As a seeker, seeking the Kingdom of God, one thing was clear even then. If you are going to ask me to go out there under the front lines and help change the world, then make me a disciple of Jesus Christ. Teach me the faith. Nourish me in compassion. Bring me into and root me in the Church. Introduce me to the working of the Holy Spirit, and teach me to fast and pray and stay the course. Don't leave that to others to do that.

And if you make me a disciple, make me a genuine disciple of the Kingdom. Introduce me to the rule of God which has come in Jesus Christ. Introduce me to the justice and to the implications of that in the social and political sphere without fear. Make me a disciple who is acquitted of my sin, and who is liberated to serve God and the neighbor with passion, with a passion for justice and peace.

This vision, it seems to me, of making disciples, has been central to the Christian faith at its best. It's been at the heart of our Church in its origins, and it is crucial, I dare to say, to our faithfulness unto God for the future. And to our God, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit be all glory, majesty, dominion, and power, both now and unto ages of ages. Amen.

(Applause)

Hymn: "River of Tears, Streams of Justice"

Witness: Andrei Kim, Moscow, Russia;

Translated by: Tobias Dietze

I greet you, brothers and sisters, in the name of our Lord, Jesus Christ, our Savior. And I greet you in the name of all our church neighbors of the Russia United Methodist Church. When I was leaving Russia and my church, I asked my church members to pray for this conference, that it would be under the leadership of God, and all of its outcomes would be for the sake of the Gospel of Christ. So at this moment, more than 6,000 miles from here, the young Russian Methodist Church is praying for you.

Our country, Russia, is having a time of hardship now. There are a lot of problems in economic life, politics, and spiritual life. And the situation is such that in his own country, the Russian citizens do not have any guarantees for life and civil rights. Indeed, we have a saying in Russia that says, guarantees are given only by the Lord and the Funeral Services Bureau.

The most important problem for the Russians at this moment is how to earn their daily bread. And of course, man needs his daily bread, and he needs certain conditions to lead a normal life. And these conditions do not exist; that already means that there is no normal life. And of course, the situation is used by those who want the return to the olden times, who want to create nationalist tendencies, and who seek the enemy everywhere.

I do not want to speak about politics and economy, but I want to concentrate on the spiritual life in Russia. The problem is mostly illustrated by the statement from Sugannoff (spelled phonetically), a candidate for presidency in Russia which was made recently. He said, "If I will be elected for president, I will prohibit any professions, denominations, apart from Russian Orthodoxy. This is a very real threat, because the Russian Orthodox Church agrees to that and makes also some efforts in that direction. In spite of all the material problems, a lot of people come to the church because they are seeking spiritual food, since man does not live on bread alone. And, of course, the major part of the population came to the Russian Orthodox Church as the prevailing church in Russia. Regrettably, in many of these Russian Orthodox churches—in their—sermons—priests preach about the destroying power and strength of other denominations and of their untruthfulness. That's why they want to prohibit any other new denominations.

Last year, I had the possibility to take part in a conference of the Russian Orthodox Church as a representative of the United Methodist Church in Russia. The central issue of that conference was mission in the Russian Orthodox Church and their understanding of proselytizing. There was a very specific understanding of liberty, liberty of religion. Their understanding of liberty means, not equality of all denominations, but a privileged position of the Russian Orthodox Church as the traditional, the cultural, and the religious heritage of the country. Those privileges do have to be confirmed and sanctified by state law. And I said, of course we don't argue that the Russian Orthodox Church is the main denomination in Russia and has the biggest cultural and social heritage.

But on the other hand, the presence of different denominations and even sects in Russia, this is only for the good—even of Russian Orthodoxy—because it stimulates the Russian Orthodox Church to strengthen its efforts to force their troubles for mission in the country. And to prohibit other denominations would also be a spiritual loss for Russian Orthodoxy. Those words, those were my words, were not accepted at the conference.

I myself find my church weak spirits, what this position of the Russian Orthodox Church means. After two years, we were kicked out of the building of the public library where we had worship services on Sundays. Our church was hopeless and was in danger of being extinguished. But, thanks to God, we found a new room, new premises, and our church is living. And this is the problem not only of our church, but all non-Russian Orthodox denominations in Russia. And each year it is becoming more difficult to preach the Word of God in a Protestant or non-Russian Orthodox congregation. But those difficulties only strengthen our belief. And I believe that, thanks to our and your prayers, I believe that the grace of God and the will of God will prevail in Russia, and the Kingdom of the Lord will do well there also. May our Lord bless you. Thank you very much.

For almost 12 years, I've been going down to the Dwight Correctional Center in Dwight, Illinois, the prison for women there, as a volunteer. And to begin this ministry, Church Women United decided to build a chapel and a children's visitation center there. It took us ten years to raise the needed funds and a lot of state and government interference, but we did it!

Now that chapel is being used daily, and we have felt that, when a mother is imprisoned, her children suffer from the enforced incarceration. And so, in the children's visitation center, mothers can visit their children in a more homelike atmosphere, read to them, and play games with them; and we've raised funds for toys and books as well.

There are almost 800 women incarcerated at Dwight and between 35 and 50 of them attend the monthly Bible study that I've led. Eighty percent of these women are abused and battered, but because they're poor, most of an ethnic minority, and have not had the best legal advice, they're serving time in prison.

John Wesley, our founder of Methodism, told us that justice should be our concern, and justice for those imprisoned was his plea. Now in England—John Wesley's home—in 1969, the death penalty was abolished. In this country, in the past 75 years, 417 people have been found to be wrongly convicted of their crimes and 23 of those human beings were executed, but were innocent. Even though we now execute criminals on all sides, violent crimes continue to rise. And because of the high cost of executions and appeals, some criminals are serving only 20 percent of their sentences. How many laid-off police officers is one execution worth?

Recently, there was a story in the national press, maybe some of you have read it. Illinois was going to execute the first woman in almost 60 years. Gwen Garcia had killed her abuser. If I told you the whole story of Gwen Garcia's life, you'd hardly believe it. On death row, she lost all hope, and in writing me, she said why should she have other appeals? She'd never had justice given her, why should she expect it now? And so she wanted to die.

Amnesty International then entered the picture, publicized Gwen's past life. She watched her mother commit suicide as a very young child. She was raped repeatedly by an uncle with whom she lived, and was forced into a marriage by her family for which they were paid $1,500.

She was then abused and sexually mutilated by her Iranian husband. When her baby daughter was to be given back to that family to be raised, she held that child in her arms and smothered her, rather than have her go to live the same way she had lived. She was found guilty of murder of that baby daughter, sentenced to 20 years, and because of good behavior was out in ten years.

Out of prison, she married, and was again abused, and so she killed her abusive husband. And for this she was given the death penalty.

I was asked if I would sign a petition for clemency to be sent to the governor, and I did, not just to save Gwen's life, but because I'm a United Methodist lay woman and a disciple of Christ. And I don't believe in the death penalty, which is also stated in our Social Principles.

Bianca Jagger came from New York City, and I'm sure that her celebrity status brought this case more into the public eye than my pleas. But just 12 hours before Gwen was going to be executed, the governor commuted her sentence to life in prison without parole.

I continue to stand against capital punishment, but sometimes I feel that I'm standing alone; for how many United Methodists, either laity or clergy, are speaking out against it? Another victim of abuse sitting on death row in Illinois has asked me to help with her clemency plea, and I intend to do that.

Thank you for listening to my plea. I promise to keep my commitment for battered women serving time in prison. And I'll continue to try and help them in my prison ministry. Thank you.

Witness: Randy Miller, San Francisco, California

*Out of the wilderness we cry, O Lord.
God, hear our prayer. And how, how shall I sing, sing the Lord's song in a foreign land?*

My dear brothers and sisters, I rise before you this morning to witness to the redeeming power of Jesus Christ, and to tell the good news that God's spirit is even now at work, reconciling and healing all those whom the Spirit touches. I know that the God who has brought us thus far on our journey will not forsake us until we are perfected in grace.

My sisters and brothers, I rise before you this morning as a proud African-American, as a gay man, as a Christian, a United Methodist, and a child of God, seeking God's will for my life, the life of the church, and the life of the world. I have been asked to provide a witness this morning to the terrible scourge of discrimination faced by gays and lesbians, bisexuals and transgendered persons all over the world.

Although I am not yet 40 years old, I have seen enough discrimination and hatred as an African-American man and as an openly gay man, to turn the heart to stone.

While attending seminary in Atlanta in the 1980s, I witnessed the torching of a newly-built Metropolitan Community Church simply because it was a place that welcomed gay and lesbian Christians. I waited for the outcry from the religious community that I naively thought must inevitably come when a house of God is desecrated. The silence was deafening. Lord, have mercy on us!

While working at the General Board of Discipleship in Nashville, Tennessee, I met a gay man in church who had suffered irreparable brain damage after having been savagely beaten by a group of angry young teenagers who came upon him and his lover sitting in their car together. His lover was beaten to death. Lord, have mercy upon us!

And in my own life, I have known the fear of losing my job and livelihood. I have felt the discrimination that comes from being born both African-American and gay. I have started over far too many times and searched far too often in vain for job openings where living proudly and openly, as God created all of us to be, was not a liability, but an asset. I have felt the alienation that must always go hand in hand with discrimination. I know the rejection of being the unwelcome guest, even in God's house, even in this Church.

In this very state in which we hold this great conference, a law has been passed which would deny me my civil rights, and not allow me to seek the legal remedies should I lose my job or home simply because I am a gay man. Now those who support this measure argue that they are only protecting all of us against the special rights of a small minority. In response to that, I hear the melodic voice of Coretta Scott King at a recent conference in Atlanta that I attended. Quoting her husband Martin, "We must come to sec," she said, "that we are bound in an inescapable web of mutuality, and an injustice anywhere is an injustice everywhere."

(Applause)

As United Methodists and the spiritual children of John Wesley, we come from a long tradition that has proudly stood and defended the human and civil rights of all people.

Discrimination and intolerance, no matter how they clothe themselves, and no matter where they occur, are great evils; no matter where they occur all around the world, are great evils. They are not made more holy because some of those who support the repeal of the rights of lesbians and gays have communion with us in God's Church. They are not made more holy. As Christians, we dare not rest with simply supporting the civil rights of gay and lesbian people and all people. To paraphrase Jesus, "Even those who are without the fellowship of God, do this."

Jesus calls us to do more. Jesus calls us to embrace the exile and lift up the downtrodden, and surely, surely, that must include gay and lesbian people.

Let us pray today, my brothers and sisters, for a new understanding of the heart, that will, in the twinkling of an eye, give us an understanding of the sanctity of the human and civil rights of all God's children.

Let us pray that the time will come now, and come quickly, when we will no longer need civil rights laws to protect the least of these, because God's law will be written in every human heart.

Let us pray that God's reconciling love will fall on us even now, even here, in this General Conference, and that we will in tearful forgiveness, embrace and comfort each other for past wrongs and as God's free children, reconcile.

And finally, my gay and lesbian brothers and sisters I say, lift up your hearts, for God has not forsaken us, and our liberation must come as surely as morning follows the long night and as spring follows the bitter winter. I say, lift up your hearts, for our salvation is at hand. Now, now is the moment to heal our Church. Now is the moment to cast down the walls that divide us and be made one. Now is God's moment. Now. Now. Amen. I pray that this is a faithful witness.

(Applause)

Hymn: "Jesus, United By Thy Grace"

Jesus, united by thy grace and each to each endured, with confidence we seek thy face and know our prayer is heard.

Witness: Mnerva Carcaño, Rio Grande Conference, Albuquerque, New Mexico

As I have considered speaking to you about human and civil rights, I have been haunted by the image of darkness within.

Every time I have attempted to look out into society at the invitation to share with you an insight of the subject of human and civil rights, I have been drawn again and again inwardly. Even as I have desired to say to you, as a woman of color, that the Church has been courageous and faithful, I have been silenced—silenced by a spirit much greater than my own that forces me to see darkness rather than light—that does not allow me to speak a word of affirmation—that requires rather that I speak a word of judgment that light might truly shine.

We, the United Methodist Church, are constant defenders of person's human and civil rights. We are quick to condemn any person or institution that violates the sacredness of human life, that devalues a person's gifts and abilities, that tears apart someone's body or spirit. We, indeed, strive to be a beacon of light in a world of darkness. Yet there is a deep darkness within us—a darkness so profound and so enveloping, that we have been swallowed up by it, seduced by its comfort, no longer able to recognize for ourselves the difference between light and darkness. Our racism, our sexism, and our homophobia are symptoms of our acquiescing to the darkness within.

I remember, not so long ago, arriving at a jurisdictional conference on a bright, shining summer day—summer morning—entering the place of meeting and watching the sunlight streaming through. The election of bishops was the agenda at hand. And as the conference began, a word came across the floor of that conference, a guiding message: "Two is enough. Two is enough. Two is enough." It was an unholy mantra, spoken as if sacred word. And it moved across that sunlit meeting room, filling it with great darkness.

What did it mean? It meant that no other Black person would be elected to the episcopacy on that occasion, because there were already two bishops who were Black serving in that jurisdiction, and two was enough.

It did not matter whether the Spirit was lifting up a Black brother or sister for such a call. It did not matter whether a Black sister or brother had greater gifts for the ministry of the episcopacy than the others being considered. It did not matter whether the Church would be blessed by the leadership of a person who happened to be Black. It simply did not matter, for "two was enough."

I recall a day when a sister left the United Methodist Church. She walked away because she determined one day that she had been beaten down long enough. Though gifted, the Church had always found reasons for not receiving her gifts. Though wise, the Church consistently told her that she simply did not understand. Though deeply spiritual, the Church found her spirituality lacking. Though faithful, she was never faithful enough for the Church. She was a United Methodist clergy woman who served throughout this connectional Church of ours. Included, but always excluded—recognized, but always denied. In the light of retrospect, she understood that the problem was that, though she was a White person, she was not a man. Sometime after leaving the Church, she said to me, "I went from the darkness of abuse to the light of healing."

And I cannot help but recognize before you that it was precisely at a General Conference that I came to know the truth about a Christian's attitude toward a relationship with homosexual persons. I was a seminarian then, struggling with the issue of homosexuality, desperately wanting to be faithful. I was standing with some of the most godly persons I knew at that General Conference. Their lips spoke of nothing other than God's love and God's mercy.

But then a self-avowed homosexual crossed our path, another United Methodist, and those lips of sweetness began to spew out the most vile attacks against that brother. Not loud enough for him to hear, of course, but loud enough to help me hear. Hatred was not the answer, nor was it exclusion, nor apathy. The right Christian attitude towards a relationship with homosexual persons must be one of nothing less than love. That was a long, long time ago, but things have not changed. Sweet lips still spew foul darkness upon us. And love—love is still the bearer of light.

It is no mystery that the world around us remains in darkness in spite of our concerted efforts as United Methodists to stand for human and civil rights. Though we are certainly not the Light, we are called to be the embodiment of the Light. Unfortunately, our embodiment of the Light appears to be only skin-deep—an inner core of darkness resisting the indwelling of the eternal Light. And thusly, dis-empowering our efforts to truly stand for the human and civil rights of persons.

May God have mercy upon us, and may we someday, as United Methodists, and as the Christians we claim to be, and as the Christians we can be, be truly God's light in a world of darkness; true defenders of persons' human and civil rights.

Solo: "Precious Lord"

Witness: Francisco de Castro Maria, Angola

Amen. First of all, I would like to thank the office of the General Conference for inviting me through Cliffliff School of Theology, where I am a student, to speak briefly on this crucial topic, human rights in Angola. I'm sure that I'm not the right person to speak on this topic, but there is such a reason why I accepted to do so. I accepted to speak on this topic because I am a Christian and also I am an Angolan.

As a Christian, I believe that one of the cardinal messages of Christianity is to emphasize the peculiarity and importance of the human being in the universe. And as an Angolan, I think that it is important that Angola addresses itself to the issues involved since one can say that Angola, like all African countries, suffers some violation of human rights.

For more than four centuries, Angola people experienced the violation of human rights and racial discrimination due to the colonization imposed on Angolans and denied the Black people the right to call themselves as humans by being providers of labor for the prosperity of Portuguese colonizers. Angola won its independence from Portugal twenty years ago. Now, in independent Angola, the single most serious threat to human rights is going to come from lack of development caused by external forces.

When people cannot satisfy their basic wants and needs such as food, shelter, and employment, they become restive, and the leaders respond by curtailing even further other human rights. So, although there have been encouraging signs lately, that leaders of Angola are showing concern about human rights, the grave economic, political, and social situation in which Angola is right now, gives us cause for concern.

Secondly, I believe that the number of refugees is an indicator of the degree of violation of human rights in Angola. Currently, Angola has more than 500,000 refugees, and has been described by the United Nations High Commission for Refugees as one of the worst refugee problems in the African continent. I hope this situation indicates that there is a lot to be done by churches and by all the people of Angola to solve this problem. And of course, we'll need your prayers and help. Are you ready to pray for us and give us help? Thank you.

A SEASON OF PRAYER

BISHOP R. JOB: Prayer is native language for us all. Prayer is not passive, but one of humankind's most profound activities that always leads to action. And so we enter this time of prayer with confidence in the One for whom all things are possible.

Our Season of Prayer begins with invitation, then moves to silence, adoration, petition, intercession, covenant, and concludes with the prayer that is common to us all. The bridge between each segment of our prayer time will be a musical response, and you are invited to sing as our music directors give us leadership.

When we come to the time of petition and intercession, we invite you to stand and form small clusters of prayer where you are. Join hands if you wish. And during this time you may, if you wish, speak your prayers audibly.

Each of these sessions is a brief time, but you don't need to worry about time, because, again, we will be prompted by the music. Will you join me now in the prayer of invitation?

Then Jesus told them a parable about their need to pray always and not to lose heart. Luke 18:1

UNISON PRAYER

*Loving God,
We come to watch and pray at your invitation.
Because you have promised to be with those Who gather in your name, we come with joy.
We welcome your presence into our midst
And ask for your help in this time of prayer
So that we may pray and live as you desire
In the name and spirit of Jesus. Amen.*

SILENCE

Silence helps us to hear the voice of the one who has everything to tell us and nothing to learn from us. —Evelyn Underhill.
Each person is invited to listen quietly and carefully as individually and corporately we seek God's will.

RESPONSE

*Jesus, remember me when you come into your Kingdom.
Jesus, remember me when you come into your Kingdom.*

ADORATION

In the school of adoration the soul learns why the approach to every other goal had left it restless. —Douglas Steere.
Individually and silently we offer our thanksgiving and praise to God.

PETITION

Prayer is an invitation to God to intervene in our lives. —Abraham Joshua Heschel.
In small groups of four to six we pray audibly and with each other for our deepest needs.

RESPONSE INTERCESSION

To clasp the hands in prayer is the beginning of an uprising against the disorder of the world. —Karl Barth.
Continuing in the same small cluster groups we pray for God's intervention in the places, persons and situation most needing God's help.

RESPONSE

COVENANT

What we need is a desire to know the whole will of God, with a fixed resolution to do it. —John Wesley.
Together we offer all that we are to God as we make the Wesley Covenant prayer our own.

*I am no longer my own, but yours.
Put me to what you will.
Rank me with whom you will.
Put me to doing, put me to suffering, let me be employed by you or laid aside for you,
exalted for you or brought low by you.
Let me be full, let me be empty, let me have all things, let me have nothing.*

*I freely and heartily yield all things to your pleasure and disposal.
And now, O glorious and blessed God, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, you are mine, and I am yours. So be it.
May the covenant which I have made on earth, be ratified in heaven. Amen.*

RESPONSE

THE LORD'S PRAYER

BISHOP JOB: Together we offer our prayers and our lives and our shared destiny in the name of Jesus, who taught us to pray, saying, Our Father...

BENEDICTION

DISMISSAL WITH BLESSING

WILLIAM ABRAHAM: Let us all stand together. Now, relax, and stand tall. Revel in the mercy of God our Father. Draw unsparingly on the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ. Rejoice in the ever-present power of the Holy Spirit. In that mercy, grace, and power, bind up the broken hearted. Heal the sick. Feed the hungry. Take care of the poor. Set at liberty the captives. And bring release to those who are oppressed. Work incessantly for justice for all peoples and for all persons. And proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord. And may the blessing of God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit rest and abide on all of us this day and unto ages of ages. And the people of God said, "Amen."

Courtesies and Privileges Committee

BISHOP OTT: I expect that you would want me on your behalf to offer thanks to the Commission on the General Conference, and in particular the team that they pulled together to bring this special call to awareness. Thank you.

(applause)

We have only a few necessary items before you will be adjourned to a welcomed break and then legislative committees. We need to hear from the Courtesies and Privileges Committee, the Presiding Officers Committee, and announcements. Bill Cook. Is Bill Cook available? Thank you, sir. This is a report from the Committee on Courtesies and Privileges.

BILL COOK: We have in our midst an ordained elder from Northern Illinois we've been asked to acknowledge, Rev. Tom Gray, who is working across the country against the expansion of legalized gambling. He has testified before the U.S. Senate, U.S. House, been featured in U.S. News and World Report, he speaks for us, as United Methodists. He will be available from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. today to let you ask questions and hear what he's doing. He is a field director for National Coalition Against Legalized Gambling. Rev. Tom Gray? I don't see him, but if you would, welcome him.

(applause)

Bishop Ott, we would request the permission of the conference to ask Bishop Peter Dabale to speak upon the crisis in Nigeria.

BISHOP OTT: You are requesting that at this time, or at a later time?

COOK: At this time or at a later date.

BISHOP OTT: Perhaps it would be well for you and the committee to decide with the Agenda Committee on the placement of that. Would you do that?

COOK: I will be happy to.

BISHOP OTT: Thank you very much. Rex Bevins for Presiding Officers Committee, please.

REX BEVINS: Tomorrow morning's presiding officer on Friday, April 19th, will be Bishop Ann Shearer of the Missouri Area.

BISHOP OTT: Thank you, and now to our conference secretary.

Thursday Morning Announcements

CAROLYN MARSHALL: Several announcements for our information and continuing responsibilities. The first one would call for the Committee on Agenda and Calendar as nominated now by the Council of Bishops and published on page 61 in today's Daily Christian Advocate to convene in room A210 at 12:30 today for organization.

The choirs which are singing for us each morning before worship and then also during the worship experience will be also sharing of their ministry at 2 p.m. each afternoon. That will be in the prefuctionary area near the Ballroom. Please avail yourselves of these additional opportunities for the ministry in music which they bring to us.

Several persons have brought to the attention of those responsible for facilities that there has not been opportunity to recycle paper. Several notes have arrived here saying there are recycling receptacles in the back of the rooms and to encourage all of us to please recycle as much paper as it is possible for us to do.

And lastly, but certainly one that you will all want to be aware of, as we move into our legislative committee meetings and then into sub-committee meetings, maybe even sub-subcommittee meetings, space—although it seems enormous as you enter this facility, is truly at a premium. However, it is extremely important that we not utilize hallways for those meetings. Some of you may be aware that yesterday when that happened, it just so coincided with the time that one of the fire marshals walked through. And we were on the verge of panic because they were ready to shut down the whole conference. So please adhere to holding all meetings within the confines of specified rooms. Thank you Bishop Ott.

BISHOP OTT: Thank you. In a moment I will call on a bishop of the Church, and the president of CIE-MAL, to have our dismissal prayer. There are refreshments available. I would presume that you would be convening, unless other arrangements have been made, as soon as possible in your legislative committees. We have a distinguished guest with us on the platform through this morning's session, President of CIE-MAL, Bishop Isaias Gutierrez. I've asked him to come and dismiss us.

BISHOP ISAIAS GUTIERREZ: Let us pray. (in Spanish)

THE GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

Denver, Colorado

Saturday, April 20, 1996

Vol. 3 No. 5

Day Four: Prayer for Others, Legislation for the Church

The 72-voice choir of First United Methodist Church, Peoria, Ill., greeted delegates and visitors as they found their places to begin day four of General Conference. Led by Timothy Corday and augmented by the Dynamic Brass Quintet, also from Peoria, the choir set the stage for morning worship led by Alabama-West Florida Area Bishop William W. Morris.

Wisconsin Area Bishop Sharon Zimmerman Rader preached on "Prayers for Struggling Saints," continuing the deliberate effort to surround the conference with a mantle of prayer. She described a prayerful, honest relationship with God, growing from her experiences with United Methodists in Zimbabwe and readings from the Psalms. "A true relationship with another," she said, "demands that all of life is to be shared" with complete openness and honesty.

"The psalmist teaches us how to pray and how to live in relationship to God and to each other. Be honest. It is OK to cry out; cry out from isolation. It is also right to let loose with exuberant shouts of praise. Give expression to doubt; live in trust. Be honest about your anguish; sing with joy. Let God hear the sounds of guilt and hope."

A Conference Moment

sionary Conference, for a statement of concern and prayer honoring the memory of those who died, those who grieved and those who helped following the Oklahoma City bombing one year ago. While delegates were praying, extra forces kept watchful eyes on the convention center. Later the conference approved a suggestion by Chester Jones, Little Rock Conference, that a message of concern be faxed from the conference to Mayor Ron Norrick of Oklahoma City.

Delegate Randy Day, New York Conference, asked the body to hear a statement of concern over Israeli attacks on south Lebanon. The morning papers had reported a barrage killing at least 75 Lebanese civilians and wounding more than 100. Ohio West Area Bishop Judith Craig read the strongly worded statement, which said in part: "Self-defense is not a legitimate justification for so massive and calculated an effort. . . ." The conference then asked Council of Bishops President Woodie W. White to lead a delegation to Washington, D.C., to present the statement to President Clinton or Vice President Gore and report back to the conference. The full statement is printed elsewhere in this issue of the DCA.

Joy Moore, West Michigan, asked the conference to hear a statement by Bishop D.P. Dabale of Nigeria about conditions there. The bishop reminded delegates that the church had Evangelical United Brethren missionaries in Karim Lamido as early as 1923. The area is predominantly United Methodist. He described "an unusual showdown" between Christians and Moslems which escalated to an Easter Sunday incident in which "a whole village (Karim Maude) was completely [burned]," including 15 United Methodist churches and schools. At least 130 persons died; church members were displaced, rendered homeless and hungry. He asked for prayers and support for "all of Africa."

William Hinson, Texas Conference, asked for a point of personal privilege to "express pain as a member of this covenant community" over the statement of 15 bishops expressing their concern over "proscriptions in the Discipline against gays and lesbians within our church and within our ordained ministers." He urged the remaining bishops to "reassure us of your support for the Discipline and laws of our church."

Before turning to the business agenda, Bishop Sherer asked delegates to discuss one-on-one their hopes for the next few hours, God's hopes; and then pray together. She called on Portland Area Bishop William W. Dew Jr., General Council on Ministries president.

GCOM Report

Bishop Dew reminded delegates that the GCOM and the General Council on Finance and Administration are the only two agencies that report directly to the conference floor, rather than through committees. As an introduction to the GCOM, Bishop Dew catalogued a long list of "listening to the church" efforts by general agencies, bishops and others through studies conducted over the past four to eight years, coordinated in part by GCOM. He also listed six proposals being considered to enhance ethnic ministries. He praised the general boards and agencies for their dedication and diligence, reflected in their reports to GCOM identifying key programs and initiatives by each one.

In a dramatic moment, Bishop Dew released the podium to Paul Dirdak, chair of the Interagency Task Force on AIDS, and Helen Worth, a task force member who said "God has been preparing me for this moment." She gave a moving account of her discovery that a blood transfusion had made her HIV positive, her subsequent acceptance by her church and her growing knowledge of and teaching ministry about AIDS. "Let God do the judging," she said. "All we have to do is love." She received a standing ovation.

Before returning to legislative committee work, delegates learned that U.S. First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton, a lifelong United Methodist, will address the conference Wednesday, April 24, at 2 p.m. Warm applause greeted the announcement.

Disciple Celebrates 10 Years of Transforming Lives

On Wednesday evening, General Conference delegates and visitors gathered to celebrate the 10th anniversary of Disciple Bible Study. It was an opportunity for the church to celebrate a "dream" that began in Flower Mound, Texas. In March 1986, a group of pastors, theologians, lay persons, a bishop, Christian educators, Bible scholars, publishers, editors and marketers shaped the vision that is now known as "Disciple: Becoming Disciples Through Bible Study."

The study was developed with the belief that people hunger for God's word and for the opportunity to meet in small groups to share their journey of faith. The study's goal is to help biblically literate people grow into disciples of Jesus Christ. More than 20,000 persons have been trained to lead Disciple groups, and more than 400,000 persons have participated in the 34-week study. Disciple is now available in English, German, Korean, Mandarin Chinese and Spanish. Training events have been held in Australia, Canada, England, Germany, Korea, Malaysia, Singapore, several countries in South America and the United States.

The Disciple celebration began with fellowship, food and "birthday cake," as persons enthusiastically shared their Disciple experiences. Participants renewed friendships. Bonds developed as people realized they had a "shared experience" even if they lived thousands of miles apart.

The celebration moved to the ballroom for a 20-minute visual presentation of the Disciple story. Neil Alexander, president and publisher of The United Methodist Publishing House (UMPH), welcomed guests and hosted the event. Guests heard reflections by persons who were at the 1986 "dreaming" session and from key leaders.

Mr. Alexander recalled: "December 1992. The dream is in full flower. A third gathering of laity and Bible scholars, bishops, marketers, clergy, publishers and editors. Each had a story, and their witness was one: God is at work through Disciple. Slowly but surely, we are becoming a people of the Book. Experience confirmed direction. The people are ready to confront and be confronted by the hard words of the prophets. They are hungry for the meat of Paul's gospel. So the third Disciple study takes shape, and its message is direct. Call home." The crowd applauded enthusiastically at the announcement of the third phase, which will be available this summer.

The evening concluded with a presentation by the former UMPH president and publisher, Robert K. Feaster, to Bishop Richard B. Wilke and Julia Wilke for their contribution to the writing and development of Disciple. The Wilkes expressed their appreciation for Mr. Feaster's leadership and vision. Julia Wilke also paid tribute to two key contributors to Disciple's success: Nellie Moser, editor, and Wini Grizzle, program director.

The impact of Disciple cannot be overstated. It has been mentioned in the Laity and Episcopal addresses and in many conversations at General Conference. Ten years after its beginning, Disciple is helping to shape the direction of the church.

Your Guide to General Conference Terms

ADCA: Advance editions of the Daily Christian Advocate. Volume one contains reports and petitions from annual conferences and agencies, and volume two contains petitions from all others.

Calendar Item: the chronological number of committee items submitted to the calendar secretary appearing in the DCA.

Consent Calendars: three groups of calendar items that received overwhelming support from legislative committees (no more than five votes in opposition). The groupings are: 1) concurrence with proposed changes in the Discipline; 2) concurrence on non-Disciplinary petitions; 3) non-concurrence on all matters.

DCA: Daily Christian Advocate, a daily record published during General Conference that contains news, features, calendar items and a verbatim record of everything said in plenary sessions.

Legislative Committee Item: a number temporarily assigned to a petition or group of petitions enacted by a committee prior to being assigned a calendar number.

Legislative Committee Recorders: volunteers who input committee action into the Petition Electronic Tracking System.

Legislative Committee Reporters: volunteers who provide brief summaries of action for the Daily Christian Advocate.

Minority Report: When 10 persons or 10 percent of a committee (whichever is fewer) disagree with a committee recommendation, they may file a minority report that is given the same calendar number as the recommendation of the majority.

Petitions: requests from individuals, churches, annual conferences and agencies for changes in the Book of Discipline, the Book of Resolutions, or other aspects of the general church. Petition numbers identify the chronological order in which they were received, paragraph or topic, and source (see ADCA page 83).

Can You Top This?

In the April 18 DCA, we mentioned Herman Will, who has attended 14 General Conferences and two Uniting Conferences. So far, no one has claimed to beat his record.

Now we're interested in other categories.

We're looking for the youngest delegate, the oldest delegate, delegates who are related to each other, the largest number of delegates from the same local church, the delegate who traveled the greatest distance to get to Denver, the delegate with the most hair-raising story of misadventures enroute to Denver, and the list goes on.

If you'd like to add your name and story to the "Can You Top This?" hall of fame, send a note to Barbara Dunlap-Berg at the DCA. We'll try to publish one "winner" a day during the remainder of General Conference.

Comic Relief

Day 1: Delegates carry (in their arms) copies of their DCAs.

Days 2-3: Delegates carry briefcases and tote bags filled with DCAs and other resources.

Days 4-5: Delegates pull luggage carts and wheeled suitcases crammed with DCAs, resources, special-interest group literature and souvenirs.

Next week: Watch out! Delegates will be driving minivans to haul all the stuff.

Do you want the cat or the ball?

The legislative-committee language of concurrence and non-concurrence can easily elude the sharpest delegate. The Independent Commissions Legislative Committee was bailed out of a quandary by an observer, the Rev. Pat Looper, Riverdale, Ga., who is also a former member of the National Association of Parliamentarians.

Faced with how to handle a substitute motion and how that might affect concurrence/non-concurrence and after hearing multiple opinions from committee members on what substitution means, the chair turned to Ms. Looper.

In parliamentary language, she explained what the committee had done, then put the process in the language of the "parliamentarily challenged."

"You have a ball; now you want to substitute a cat. If you vote for the substitute, now you have a cat. You have now decided that you wanted a cat. You have voted on and decided for the cat. You now have to vote on the main motion which, again, is the cat!"

World Wide Web Broadens the Community of Faith

As the church moves toward the future, technology is broadening the community of faith in exciting new ways. Thanks to the World Wide Web, the excitement of General Conference is spreading for the first time to a world without borders. This year's General Conference proceedings, news and information can be experienced by anyone with a computer, a modem and a few free minutes.

This addition to General Conference has been many years in the making. In 1983 several denominations began experimenting with the use of electronic mail to create new communication opportunities on the electronic frontier. This program was called Computer Based Communications (CBC). From the 12 people who signed up initially, more than 10,000 persons from 22 denominations enrolled in CBC's successor, the Ecumenical Network, as well as its United Methodist affiliate, the Circuit Writer Network.

The World Wide Web, the interactive graphics and multimedia network, where much of the recent explosive growth of the internet has occurred, is the newest frontier to communicate the gospel message. Today more than 250 United Methodist churches, as well as hundreds of annual conferences, districts and ministries beyond the local church are connected to the World Wide Web. General boards and agencies, United Methodist News Service and other church entities are also a part of this growing outreach. Through the Compuserve system, Cokebury offers a complete online version of the Daily Christian Advocate. (The DCA is free to Cokesbury online users).

The use of computers at General Conference has grown significantly, due to the work of a dedicated group of people. The heart and soul of the system is the Petition Entry and Retrieval System (PETS). PETS is the brainchild of John Brawn, a professional computer programmer from San Jose, Calif. He created the mammoth data base from which the General Conference system operates. Every one of the thousands of petitions submitted to General Conference was entered into this system, and each can be tracked every step of the way throughout General Conference.

Dr. Susan Brumbaugh, the "webmaster" of the General Conference internet homepage, transfers all information to the World Wide Web page. She is excited about what is being done this year. During the 1992 General Conference, persons could call a toll-free number for information on petitions and other work of the conference. This line was staffed by one person. In 1996, access via the internet is virtually unlimited. "This year someone can sit at home and watch the 1996 Discipline as it [is developed]," Dr. Brumbaugh said.

The task of putting information on the internet is herculean. You can see the results of these efforts at the computer stations throughout the convention center or on the internet at the address <http://www.bgumc.org/GC>. The internet is demonstrated daily at 1:30 p.m. in the Press Room (Ballroom 1, lower level). Get tickets for this event at the Press Room registration desk.

As the church looks toward the new millennium, the internet gives us a glimpse of the future—and a remarkable new tool in reaching the world with the message of God's love.

Bishop Woodie White Leads Council of Bishops

On Thursday, the Council of Bishops elected Indiana Area Bishop Woodie W. White and Wisconsin Area Bishop Sharon Zimmerman Rader president and secretary respectively. In accepting the leadership of the 130-member council of active and retired United Methodist bishops, Bishop White acknowledged the valuable examples of his predecessors, particularly Los Angeles Area Bishop Roy I. Sano, outgoing council president.

Asking his episcopal colleagues to remember him in their daily prayers, Bishop White said he will seek to serve with "honor and distinction this body which I hold in such high regard."

Elected to a four-year term, Bishop Rader succeeds San Francisco Area Bishop Melvin G. Talbert. Retired Bishop Jack M. Tuell, Greenbank, Wash., was named assistant to the secretary.

In later action, the council nominated Bishop Emerito P. Nacpil, Manila, as president-designate for 1997. Council presidents traditionally serve one-year terms.

♀♀ Blessed Be the Women: Be Counted! ♀♀

Observations from Legislative Committees Thursday and Friday:

- Higher Ed & Chap - Com action on Univ Senate & seminary monitoring: Males are 69% of committee and made 83% of comments. We affirm intentional and repeated efforts of Chairperson to encourage inclusive participation.
- Ministry - Com action on ordination proposals: Near parity in representation and participation - females are 38% of the committee and made 32% of the comments.
- Independent Commissions - Com action on some COCU and Christian Unity petitions: Men are 57% of committee and made 78% of comments. In action on GCSRW items, women were 52% of committee at that time and made 32% of comments.

Observations of unconscious behaviors that can exclude:

Stepping on ends of others' sentences; interrupting and taking response opportunities from others; not waiting to be recognized before approaching microphone and speaking.

Celebration: We celebrated many committee chairpersons who regularly check with monitors to "see how they are doing" in building inclusive participation. Most are surprised at what data show, but all have been eager for feedback and intentionally apply learnings. Blessed be!!!

Judicial Council Decisions

DECISION NUMBER 778

IN RE: Meaning, Application and Effect of Pars. 270.2 and 735, With Specific Reference to Eligibility of Otherwise Qualified Spouse of A Bishop to Serve on the Jurisdictional Committee on Episcopacy.

DIGEST

There is no disciplinary provision prohibiting an otherwise qualified spouse of a bishop from serving on the Jurisdictional Committee on Episcopacy. However, it would appear unwise for such spouse to serve on the Jurisdictional Committee on Episcopacy as such service could present a real or potential conflict of interest, or an appearance of impropriety.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

The Pacific Northwest Conference has petitioned the Judicial Council for a declaratory decision interpreting the meaning, application and effect of Pars. 270.2 and 735, with specific reference to eligibility of an otherwise qualified spouse of a bishop to serve on the Jurisdictional Committee on Episcopacy.

Jurisdiction

The Judicial Council has jurisdiction under Par. 2616 of the 1992 Discipline.

Analysis

The Discipline is silent on the particular issue raised. Par. 623, which delineates the composition and responsibilities of the Jurisdictional Committee on Episcopacy, does not address this issue. Par. 270.2 pertains to the Pastor-Parish Relations (Staff-Parish Relations) Committee of a local church or charge. Par. 735 pertains to the Conference Committee on the Episcopacy.

Pars. 270.2 and 735 are instructive. Par. 270.2 prohibits an immediate family member of a pastor or staff member from serving on the Pastor-Parish Relations (Staff-Parish Relations) Committee. Similarly, Par. 735 prohibits immediate family members or the staff of any conference agency from serving on the Conference Committee on Episcopacy, with specified exceptions.

The rationale for the above cited prohibitions is that service on these respective committees by the prohibited individuals would present a real or potential conflict of interest. The same rationale would suggest that it would be unwise for an otherwise qualified spouse of a bishop to serve on the Jurisdictional Committee on Episcopacy.

This and related issues are matters which the General Conference should address in specific legislation.

Decision

There is no disciplinary provision prohibiting an otherwise qualified spouse of a bishop from serving on the Jurisdictional Committee on Episcopacy. However, it would appear unwise for such spouse to serve on the Jurisdictional Committee on Episcopacy as such service could present a real or potential conflict of interest, or an appearance of impropriety.

DECISION NO. 781

IN RE: Petition from the General Council on Finance and Administration for a Declaratory Decision as to the Constitutionality, Meaning, Application, and Effect of Paragraphs 507.1 and 923 of the 1992 Discipline as They Affect the Date on Which Newly-Elected Bishops Receive Salary from the Episcopal Fund.

DIGEST

Pars. 507.1 and 923 of the 1992 Discipline are constitutional, as they follow the direction of Pars. 15 and 25 of the Constitution in making plans for the support of the bishops of the church.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

The 1992 General Conference adopted the report of the General Council on Finance and Administration which included the following sentence: "The salary of a bishop newly elected in 1992 shall begin on September 1, 1992." Similar legislation is proposed to the 1996 General Conference. The General Council on Finance and Administration took action to petition the Judicial Council for a Declaratory Decision on whether the General Conference has the authority to adopt rules which set September 1 of the year of election as the beginning date for the salary of newly-elected bishops.

At an oral hearing on Saturday, April 13, 1996, Bishop Jack Tuell appeared for the Council of Bishops and Mary K. Logan appeared for the General Council on Finance and Administration.

Theodore H. Walter recused himself and did not participate in any of the proceedings related to this decision.

Jurisdiction

The Judicial Council has jurisdiction under Par. 2616 of the 1992 Discipline.

Analysis

Par. 15 states that “[t]he General Conference shall have full legislative power over all matters distinctively connective.” Following this statement is a list of specific powers granted to the General Conference which includes “[t]o define and fix the powers, duties, and privileges of the episcopacy, to adopt a plan for the support of the bishops, to provide a uniform rule for their retirement, and to provide for the discontinuance of a bishop because of inefficiency or unacceptability.” Further, Par. 25 states that one of the responsibilities of the Jurisdictional Conferences is “to elect bishops and to cooperate in carrying out such plans for their support as may be determined by the General Conference.” Par. 17, one of the Restrictive Rules, states that “[t]he General Conference shall not change or alter any part or rule of our government so as to do away with episcopacy or destroy the plan of our itinerant general superintendency.”

Prior to 1976 newly-elected bishops were appointed to an episcopal area where their duties began immediately. Since 1976, the appointment to an episcopal area is effective on September 1 of the year of election. From 1976 to 1988, bishops were paid salary and other expenses from the Episcopal Fund from the date of consecration. Beginning in 1988 and continuing to the present, the salary has been paid from September 1 of the year of election.

Par. 506 states that the “consecration of bishops may take place at the session of the conference at which election occurs or at a place and time designated by the conference.” This paragraph clearly assumes that consecration of newly-elected bishops may take place at a time other than the session of the Jurisdictional or Central Conference. Par. 49 gives to the General Conference the power to set the time and place for the bishops elected by the jurisdictions, and the Central Conferences the power to do the same for those elected by the Central Conferences.

Par. 15 requires that the General Conference establish a “uniform rule” for the retirement of bishops. Par. 509.1 provides for bishops to be retired on August 31 following the regular session of the Jurisdictional Conference. Because of this provision, it is logical for the Discipline to provide in Par. 507.1 that September 1 of the same year is the date on which all episcopal assignments made at Jurisdictional Conference become effective. The approximately six-week period between election and consecration and September 1 enables a newly-elected bishop to conclude matters at the prior appointment and make an orderly transition to assumption of the duties of the episcopal area. This is analogous to the way clergy members of an Annual Conference session receive new appointments at the Annual Conference session but move to the new appointment at a later date.

In clear recognition that the bishops are general superintendents from the time of their consecration, funds are provided for travel and certain other expenses from the Episcopal Fund. Par. 527 states that bishops “are elected general superintendents of the whole Church...,” so bishops become through their election members first of the Council of Bishops before they are subsequently assigned to areas of service.”

As set forth in the 1992 Discipline Par. 923, bishops are paid from the Episcopal Fund, and the General Council on Finance and Administration recommends to the General Conference the budget for the Episcopal Fund. In adopting the recommendation of the General Council on Finance and Administration, the General Conference makes “plans for their support” as required by Pars. 15 and 25. It clearly is the responsibility of the General Conference to make these plans. The present plan may be unwieldy, cumbersome, vague, unfair, and/or unwise, but none of those things necessarily renders it unconstitutional.

The lack of any definition of effective bishop in the Discipline at present means that any plan of support for bishops recommended by the General Council on Finance and Administration must make assumptions about that definition. The present plan, and the plan recommended to the 1996 General Conference, assume that bishops become effective when they begin their residential and presidential supervision of the assigned episcopal area. It is the responsibility of the General Conference, not the Judicial Council, to determine what is meant by the term “effective bishops” in Par. 923 and whether the assumption of General Council on Finance and Administration is correct. In the context of the present plan of support, a person elected to the episcopacy is assumed to continue receiving a salary from the prior appointment from mid-July to September 1. When the General Conference determines the date a bishop becomes effective, it must also determine the source of the salary of the effective bishop.

Par. 505 refers only to bishops who are assigned to episcopal areas for residential and presidential supervision. It does not determine the total number of bishops in The United Methodist Church. As long as there is only one bishop assigned to an episcopal area, the total number of bishops in the period from the consecration of new bishops in mid-July until September 1 creates no Disciplinary problem.

Decision

Pars. 507.1 and 923 of the 1992 Discipline are constitutional, as they follow the direction of Pars. 15 and 25 of the Constitution in making plans for the support of the bishops of the church.

April 18, 1996

Signed by Tom Matheny, president, and Wayne Coffin, secretary.

Supplementary Opinion

I agree for the most part, with the opinion of the majority.

However, there are observations that I must make.

First, I believe that it must be clear that a person becomes a bishop when consecrated, regardless of the definition of "effective." This is correct theologically and from the disciplinary point of view.

Second, every piece of legislation by an Annual Conference or the General Conference must meet the test, "Is it fair?"

It is not fair for a person to be consecrated a bishop and not be paid immediately.

It is not fair for a previous appointment to bear this burden in the interim period.

It is not fair for the General Conference to have the responsibility for a program of financial support, and to do it without money.

It is not fair for the General Council on Finance and Administration to, in effect, amend legislation by means of a budget item without carefully explaining this to the General Conference.

Signed, Tom Matheny

Top Ten Things You Will Never Experience at General Conference

10. A Good eight hour sleep.
9. Someone without an opinion.
8. A Cokesbury going out of business sale
7. A rummage sale to pay for the expenses of General Conference
6. A request that worship begin at 7 a.m. so everything will get done.
5. Hear someone say, "Do what you want, anything will be fine with me."
4. An announcement of the daily winning lottery numbers.
3. A unanimous vote on any issue dealing with sexuality.
2. A dress-down day when everyone wears jeans.
1. An announcement by the presiding bishop, saying "Let's Party!!!"

Statement on Violence in the Middle East

General Conference after General Conference has condemned the ever-increasing cycles of violence in the Middle East. The current violence around south Lebanon has surged to heartbreaking levels. We are appalled by the scale of the Israeli assault upon the people of Lebanon. The extensive damage and many casualties that Israel has inflicted upon Lebanon far exceed a proportionate response to the Katyusha rocket attacks against Israel. Self-defense is not a legitimate justification for so massive and calculated an effort to drive up to 400,000 civilians from their homes, or to stage direct attacks upon power plants and civilian infrastructure far from the border.

The Israeli campaign against Lebanon has led to a severe, premeditated humanitarian crisis intended to bring political pressure on the governments of Lebanon and of Syria who are viewed as supporting Hezbollah. A strategy that holds the entire population hostage to armed attack must be condemned as totally unacceptable and in grave violation of international standards for the protection of civilians in times of conflict. Innocent people are being punished in a massive reprisal for attacks on Israeli civilians by Hezbollah. We condemn the attacks by Hezbollah. We believe that reprisals do not act as a deterrent to more violence, but only escalate it further. In like manner, we cannot be silent about Palestine while that community struggles to survive in the midst of such violations as the:

- Ongoing confiscation of Palestinian lands;
- Continued growth of Israeli settlement communities in the West Bank and East Jerusalem and the construction of bypass roads which isolate Palestinian towns and villages;
- Sealing and demolition of Palestinian homes;
- Administrative detention of men, women and minors without the right to a fair trial; and
- Continuing imprisonment of thousands of Palestinians in Israeli prisons.

All these sufferings during fifty years of Israeli occupation of Palestine have been made more acute since the suicide bombings in Jerusalem, Ashkelon and Tel Aviv. It is as if the Oslo Peace Accords had never been signed.

We call for the protection of the children, the youth and other civilians.

We call for a return to normalcy for people who have been refugees or subjugated in their own land for the past three generations.

We call for Christians, Jews and Muslims to be able to practice their faiths in the city which is holy to the three major monotheistic religions of the world.

Lastly, we call for increased efforts to assure geographic security, economic security and political security—all of which are necessary for Israelis, Palestinians and Lebanese to co-exist.

—Judith Craig

HOW DO THEY DO THAT?

How do all those names and graphics appear on the giant television screens in the plenary sessions of General Conference?

Behind the metal doors of the plenary session, an inconspicuous truck labeled "Mountain Mobile Television" is parked. Inside, a crew of local professionals, United Methodist staff and United Methodist volunteers are presenting the images to the delegates. Along with the images, the giant television screens also show the names of each presenter and speaker on the conference floor.

General Conference producer Jay Voorhees, the director and the technical director work in the truck's first room. In the second room, audio for musicians and speakers is monitored. Actual taping occurs in the third room. Mr. Voorhees explained that he and his crew provide image magnification with an Eidophor projector, which sends a broadcast of the event to monitors throughout the convention center as well as to monitors on the floor.

Joys and Concerns

Congratulations to Bishop L. Bevel Jones III, president of the North American section of the World Methodist Council (WMC); William K. Quick, pastor of Metropolitan United Methodist Church, Detroit; and Mary Hale, wife of WMC general secretary Joe Hale; for being selected as recipients of the WMC seat of honor at an April 19 luncheon in Denver.

Please be in prayer for Barbara Rose, lay delegate from the Kansas West Conference, whose husband died April 19.

Meeting in the Oddest Places

Who would have guessed that Charles Whittle, Northwest Texas Conference delegate, and Mochell Hughes, DCA staff, would end up meeting in the emergency room of Denver General Hospital (DGH)?

On Thursday morning, several General Conference attendees exchanged smiles and conversation while they sat at DGH. Charles was waiting for his wife, Joan, who was receiving stitches after a fall. Sitting with him were Ed and Ann Hill, also of the Northwest Texas Conference. Mochell was accompanying Heather Peck, DCA staff, who fractured her foot. An unidentified delegate was being treated for hypertension.

Dr. Wyatt Decker reported that the hospital had seen a steady stream of General Conference attendees. Fortunately, none had severe injuries. He added that it's common for them to see several patients during an event such as General Conference, since DGH is just a few blocks away.

Kathy Deasy, R.N., reported treating three other General Conference patients Wednesday night. She said our name badges informed her that we were with "that convention."

Convention center paramedics said they had treated delegates for mild shortness of breath, rashes and itching, and lacerations, according to Dave Bronson, operations supervisor for paramedics.

United Methodists Aren't Drinking Enough!

First Aid Crew Offers Advice

Along with bumps and bruises, the first-aid crew is preparing for cases of dehydration. They warn that the high altitude and the busy General Conference schedule can be hazardous to one's health. Effects of dehydration are usually experienced four or five days after arriving in the higher altitude. Warning signs include headaches, less-frequent urination and bright yellow urine. Left unchecked, dehydration can lead to confusion and disorientation, lightheadedness, fainting and shock.

Participants are encouraged to:

—avoid beverages containing caffeine (coffee, soft drinks) and chocolate;

—drink plenty of water or fruit juice.

However, because of the electronic voting system, delegates are not permitted to take water to their seats. Therefore, drinking water during breaks and between sessions is vitally important.

Other health problems experienced by those attending the conference include:

—high blood pressure brought on by irregular and poor diet, lack of sleep and stress;

—diarrhea or constipation because of the diet change;

—blisters due to long walks in improper footwear;

—earaches as a result of the high-altitude adjustment.

Gerri Evans, registered nurse, cautions participants to watch out for steps, which have resulted in falls and consequent cuts and abrasions. That warning is particularly important as people step up and down sidewalk curbs. Beware of the curbs in front of the center. The DCA thanks paramedics Bill Wise and Cory Richards for their helpful advice.

General Conference business is important, but don't neglect yourself. Take care of God's creation, YOU!

Cuban Bishop Describes Suffering in Wake of U.S. Embargo

Every day, Cuban Methodist Bishop Gustavo Cruz passes hungry children crying for milk in the streets of Havana. Poor people in Cuba die for lack of medicine, and people come to church in tattered clothes and shoes that are falling apart, he said.

Bishop Cruz was in Denver for the General Conference of The United Methodist Church, with which the 10,000-member Cuban Methodist Church is affiliated.

In an interview with United Methodist News Service, Bishop Cruz said he agrees with those U.S. Christians who are asking the U.S. government to end the embargo against Cuba. He emphasized that he was speaking for himself, not on behalf of the Cuban church.

Bishop Cruz, who was consecrated as a bishop in March, wept during the interview as he recalled a friend who died 18 days after prostate cancer surgery because the Cuban hospital had no antibiotics.

"I don't blame the United States for the troubles between our countries. It's probably true that the Cuban government is very much responsible," Bishop Cruz said, adding that he does not take sides in the political battle, but considers himself on the side of Jesus Christ.

Penalizing the Poor

But, he said, the embargo is penalizing the poorest Cubans, not government officials. "When the Cuban officials get sick, they have their own hospitals and access to the best medical care. But when a poor person gets sick, they die because of lack of medicine."

Bishop Cruz suggested that the United States could make resumption of diplomatic relations with Cuba conditional, holding Cuba to certain requirements.

He told stories of friends and church members who struggle from day to day to feed and clothe themselves.

Despite the economic strains, the bishop said, an evangelical fervor is sweeping the country. "The spirit of Jesus Christ is bringing thousands to church," he added.

Bishop Cruz estimated that 80 percent of Cuban Christians are youth and young adults. The Cuban Methodist Church has at least 200 organized congregations, with at least 100 more house churches or informal ministries bringing even more people to the faith. Christians also work ecumenically, in such organizations as the Council of Cuban Churches, the Caribbean Council of Churches and the Council of Evangelical Methodist Churches in Latin America.

Seeking Relationships with Christ

"It is amazing that our young people have been taught nothing about the faith in the secular, government schools, yet many of them are seeking a relationship with Christ," he said. He recalled a young woman, a high-ranking official in the Communist youth organization, who came to his church, had "a life-changing experience" and became a Christian.

Bishop Cruz said relations between Christian churches and the Cuban government have been relatively good since 1991. He admitted, however, that tensions have increased since the downing of an anti-Castro dissident group's plane by the Cuban military earlier this year. He said Castro's government has cracked down on tourists coming to Cuba claiming to be church workers because many of them preach anti-government sentiments.

Since 1984, The United Methodist Church has been on record as supporting resumed economic and diplomatic relations between the United States and Cuba. The 1996 General Conference is considering petitions from at least three regional United Methodist bodies—the Wyoming, Wisconsin and Nebraska annual conferences—to reiterate the call.

Berkeley UMC, Denver, Works Toward Becoming More Inclusive

In many communities across the United States, the number of Hispanics is increasing, along with the need to provide ministries for and with this growing population. For five years, Berkeley United Methodist Church, Denver, has taken on this challenge.

Historically a predominantly White congregation, Berkeley Church faced the reality of a changing community. With the gradual influx of Hispanics to the neighborhood, new ministries were needed. Addressing this need, the Rocky Mountain Conference sent missionary Lucia Guzman to the congregation. Ms. Guzman is now director of the Denver coalition of Christian churches.

"We are committed to being a multicultural community of faith," said the Rev. Justo Gonzalez, current pastor of the congregation. For more than two years, Mr. Gonzalez has dedicated time and energy to implementing the National Plan for Hispanic Ministry.

"One of our most exciting programs is Saturday Christian Children Society," he added. The popular weekly program draws 20 to 25 neighborhood children for lunch, Bible study and recreation.

Berkeley Church's Sunday school attendance has increased, and other churches have been inspired to get involved. Highlands United Methodist Church, for example, provides transportation for the children. "Their help is a clear recognition that we all need to be involved in Hispanic ministries," Mr. Gonzalez said.

Berkeley Church's youth-outreach program, "Friday Night at the Movies," offers a much needed alternative to "hanging out" on the streets. "We . . . gather for a community meal that the kids cook," the pastor said. Then participants watch a movie that deals with youth-oriented issues and discuss it from a Christian perspective.

The program is funded by the Women's Division, General Board of Global Ministries, and King Soopers grocery store, which provides free rental movies.

Berkeley Church also tries to educate persons about Hispanic ministry. Of particular interest are primarily White congregations whose demographic studies show a need for Hispanic ministry.

A Night With Yellowstone

Do you have your ticket? Then get ready for an evening of satire, music and fun, beginning at 8 p.m. Sunday!

Members of the Blackfoot Native American community from Montana will open the program with traditional music and dance from their heritage.

From the heart of sky country and the Yellowstone Conference, you won't want to miss "The Montana Logging and Ballet Company (MLBC)," four talented performers who bring back the spontaneity, creativity and humor of the Marx Brothers.

"Comedy usually comes from tragedy," says MLBC member Bob Fitzgerald, "so we make mountains out of molehills and molehills out of mountains. Comedy is the way we get to the general message: hope. There's hope out there."

Also for your enjoyment, performer/artist Tim Holmes will exhibit his sculptures in the convention center lobby before the performance.

Each delegate received a complimentary ticket. Additional tickets may be purchased for $5 in the hotel lobby.

a. All meeting rooms to be used are accessible to those in wheelchairs. Examples of things which may make a room accessible:

1) Everything is at ground level with no steps.

2) An elevator is available.

3) A ramp of size and maximum angle of 1/12 that wheelchairs can negotiate is available.

4) Door openings are at least 36 inches wide.

5) Pews or chairs are arranged to include space for wheelchairs.

b. Accessible washrooms.

c. Convenient parking for those with disabilities.

d. Curb cuts if curbs must be negotiated.

e. Adequate hand rails for safety.

f. Adequate lighting.

g. For overnight meetings, accessible lodging for participants.

Communications Guidelines

a. A loud speaker system.

b. Sound equipment for the more profoundly hearing impaired.

c. Signing for the deaf.

d. Large print program materials or tape recordings available.

e. Programs and directions making use of visuals, symbols, images, and sounds for persons who have difficulty communicating via the printed or spoken word.

Transportation Guidelines

If at all possible that Annual Conference and other major meetings be held at sites accessible by public or arranged transportation.

(Additions added by the Legislative Committee are underlined)

Add a new sub-paragraph after ¶71E:

Women and Men.—We affirm with scripture the basic similarity of the sexes and assert that it is human similarities and not differences that allow persons to find intimacy and partnership in accordance with Gods intention. We reject the ancient dualism between male and female which has led to the erroneous notion that one gender is superior to another, and that one gender must strive against another, and that members of one gender may receive love, power and esteem only at the expense of another. We especially reject the idea that God made individuals as incomplete fragments made whole only in relationship to union with another. We call upon women and men alike to share power and control, to learn to give freely and to receive freely, to be complete and to respect the wholeness of others. We seek for every individual opportunities and freedom to love and be loved, and to seek and receive justice and to practice moral ethical self-determination. We understand our gender diversity to be a gift from God, intended to add to the rich variety of human experience and perspective; and we guard against attitudes and traditions that would use this good gift to leave members of one sex more vulnerable in relationships than members of another.

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

(Legislative Committee additions are underlined. First para. was split into two parts)

Delete ¶71D and substitute new text:

D) Divorce. When a married couple is estranged beyond reconciliation, even after thoughtful consideration and counsel, divorce is a regrettable alternative in the midst of brokenness. It is recommended that methods of mediation be used to minimize the adversarial nature and fault finding that is often part of our current judicial processes.

Although divorce publicly declares that a marriage no longer exists, other covenantal relationships resulting from the marriage remain, such as the nurture and support of children and extended family ties. We urge respectful negotiations in deciding the custody of minor children, and support the consideration of either or both parents for this responsibility, in that custody not be reduced to financial support, control or manipulation and retaliation. The welfare of each child is the most important consideration.

Divorce does not preclude a new marriage. We encourage an intentional commitment of the church and society to minister compassionately to those in the process of divorce, as well as members of divorced and remarried families in a community of faith where Gods grace is shared by all.

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

Amend ¶ 216:

1. [Delete existing text.] Christ constitutes the Church as his Body by the power of the Holy Spirit (1 Corinthians 12:13, 27). The Church draws new persons into itself as it seeks to remain faithful to its commission to proclaim and exemplify the Gospel. Baptism is the sacrament of initiation and incorporation into the Body of Christ. An infant, child, or adult who is baptized becomes a member of the catholic (universal) Church, of the denomination, and a baptized member of the local congregation. (See ¶ 209.) After baptism, the Church provides the nurture which makes possible a comprehensive and lifelong process of growing in grace. Becoming a professing member requires the answer of faith of the baptized person made visible in a service of Profession of Christian Faith and Confirmation using the vows of the baptismal covenant (see ¶211).

a) Baptized infants and children are to be instructed and nurtured in the meaning of the faith, the rights and responsibilities of their baptism and in spiritual and moral formation, using materials approved by The United Methodist Church. Using the Services of the Baptismal Covenant youth will profess their faith, commit themselves to a life of discipleship and be confirmed. Confirmation is both a human act of commitment and the gracious action of the Holy Spirit strengthening and empowering discipleship.

b) Youth and adults who have not been baptized and who are seeking to be saved from their sins and profess Jesus Christ as their Lord and Savior, are proper candidates for baptism in The United Methodist Church. It shall be the duty of the congregation, led by the pastor, to instruct them in the meaning of baptism, in the meaning of the Christian faith, and the history, organization, and teachings of The United Methodist Church, using materials approved by The United Methodist Church for that purpose. After the completion of the period of nurture and instruction, the sponsor(s) and pastor shall bring them before the congregation and administer the Services of Baptismal Covenant in which persons are baptized, confirmed and received into the Church.

2. [Delete existing text.] a) Formation in the baptismal covenant and in the call to ministry in daily life is a lifelong process and is carried on through all the activities which have educational value. The pastor gives specific leadership that prepares youth for their profession of faith and commitment to discipleship, and for the Holy Spirit's action confirming them in their faith and empowering their discipleship. This preparation focuses attention upon the meaning of discipleship and the need for professing members to be in mission in all of life's relationships.

b) There are many occasions as persons mature in the faith when the Holy Spirit's confirming action may be celebrated, such as in the reaffirmation of the baptismal covenant or other services related to life passages. Unlike baptism, which is a once-made covenant and can only be reaffirmed, not repeated, confirmation is a dynamic action of the Holy Spirit that can be repeated.

3. Preparation for the experience of confirmation profession of faith and confirmation shall be provided for all candidates for full membership persons, including adults, but youth who are completing the sixth grade shall normally be the youngest persons recruited for confirmation preparation and full membership such preparation. When younger persons, of their own volition, seek enrollment in confirmation preparation for profession of faith and confirmation, such preparation shall be at the discretion of the pastor.

4. Persons in preparation for full membership make up the preparatory roll of the church. All baptized persons, including infants, children, youth, and adults shall be listed on the preparatory membership roll Roll of Baptized Members, and other persons who have declared their interest in church membership and have been rolled in confirmation preparation may be listed as preparatory members. (See also ¶¶ 223, 232-3.)

5. Statistics of church membership are counts of professing members rather than of all baptized members. For statistical purposes church membership is equated to the roll of professing members.

The membership of a local United Methodist church shall include all baptized persons.—1. The baptized membership of a local United Methodist church shall include all baptized persons who have received Christian baptism in the local congregation or whose membership has been transferred to the local United Methodist church subsequent to baptism in some other congregation. In valid baptism, water is administered in the name of the Triune God (specified in the ritual as Father, Son and Holy Spirit) by an authorized person and the Holy Spirit is invoked with the laying on of hands, ordinarily in the presence of the congregation.

2. The professing membership of a local United Methodist church shall include all baptized persons who have come into membership by confession profession of faith at baptism or confirmation, or by transfer, as expressed in services of baptism, confirmation, Profession of Christian Faith, reaffirmation of baptismal vows or transfer. (See ¶¶ 230, 232, 236, 243.) and whose names have not been removed from the membership rolls by reason of death, transfer, withdrawal, or removal for cause. (See ¶¶ 230, 232, 236-243.)

2.b) While primary responsibility and initiative rests with each individual professing member faithfully to perform the vows of the baptismal covenant membership which have been solemnly assumed, if the professed member should be neglectful of that responsibility, these procedures shall be followed:

(1) If a professed member residing in the community...the membership secretary shall report that professed members name to the Administrative Council or the Council on Ministries, which shall do all in its power to reenlist the professed member in the active fellowship of the Church. It shall visit the professed member and make clear that, while the professed members name...and that, since the professed member is not attending the church where enrolled, the professed member is requested to do one of four things: (a) renew the vows and become a regular worshiper return to living in the community of the baptismal covenant in the church where the professed members name is recorded, (b) request transfer to another United Methodist church where the professed member will be a regular worshiper return to living in the community of the baptismal covenant, (c) arrange transfer to a particular church of another denomination, or (d) request withdrawal. If the professed member does not comply with any of the available alternatives over a period of three two years, the professed members name may be removed. (See § (4).)

(2) If a professed member whose address is known...encourage a transfer of the professed membership shall be followed each year until that professed member joins another church or requests in writing that the name be removed from the roll of professing members membership roll; provided, however, that if after three two years the council has not been able to relate that professed member to the church at the new place of residence, the name may be removed from the roll of professing members by the procedure of § (4) below.

(3) If the address of a professed member is no longer known...If the professed member can be located, the directives of either § (1) or § (2) above shall be followed, but if after three two years of such efforts the address is still unknown, the professed members name may be removed from the roll of professing members membership roll by the procedure of § 4 below.

(4) If the directives of §§ (1), (2), or (3) above have been followed for the specified number of years without success, the professed members name may be removed from the roll of professing members membership roll by vote of the Charge Conference...provided that the professed members name shall have been entered in the minutes of the annual Charge Conference for three two consecutive years preceding removal...and if the action is on the basis of § (3), there shall be added: Reason: address unknown. The membership of the person shall thereby be terminated, and However the record thereof shall be retained; provided that upon request the member may be restored to membership by recommendation of the pastor; in order that upon reaffirmation of the baptismal covenant the person may be restored as a professing member, and provided further, that should a transfer of professing membership be requested, the pastor may, after consultation with the person, restore the persons membership for this purpose and issue the certificate of transfer.

(5) Recognizing that the Church has a continuing moral and spiritual obligation to nurture all persons, even those whose names have been removed from the roll of professing members membership roll; it is recommended...

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

Amend Paragraph 1 of petition by adding as follows:

Each local congregation shall provide a comprehensive program of nurture, outreach, and witness, along with leadership training, and the planning and administration of the congregations organizational and temporal life, in accordance with the mission of the United Methodist Church (See Paragraphs 101-114).

Amend Paragraph 2 of petition as follows:

1. [Delete existing text.] The Church Council and all other administrative and programmatic structures of the local church shall be amenable to the Charge Conference (see ¶247) The Church Council shall function as the executive agency of the Charge Conference.

Amend Paragraph 3 of the petition by eliminating 245.2, as follows:

[Delete existing text.] ~~The pastor shall be the chief administrative officer of the local church and charge and shall be a member of the Charge Conference and an ex officio member (with vote) of all boards, councils, commissions, committees, and task forces elected or appointed in the church/ charge, except as otherwise provided by the Discipline.~~

Amend Paragraph 4 of the petition:

[Delete existing text.]

2. Alternative plans may be developed in accordance with the provisions of Paragraph 248.2. Such alternatives include: Nurture, Outreach, and Witness Ministries; Administrative Council; or Administrative Board/Council on Ministries.

4. [Delete.]

The new Paragraph 245 would read as follows:

The basic organizational plan for the local church shall include provision for the following units: a Charge Conference, a Church Council, a Committee on Pastor-Parish Relations, a Board of Trustees, a Committee on Finance, a Committee on Nominations and Personnel, and such other elected leaders, commissions, councils, committees, and task forces as the Charge Conference may determine. Every local church shall develop a plan for organizing its administrative and programmatic responsibilities. Each local congregation shall provide a comprehensive program of nurture, outreach, and witness, along with leadership training, and the planning and administration of the congregations organizational and temporal life, in accordance with the mission of the United Methodist Church (See Paragraphs 101-114).

1. The Church Council and all other administrative and programmatic structures of the local church shall be amenable to the Charge Conference (see ¶247) The Church Council shall function as the executive agency of the Charge Conference.

2. Alternative plans may be developed in accordance with the provisions of Paragraph 248.2. Such alternatives include: Nurture, Outreach, and Witness Ministries; Administrative Council; or Administrative Board/Council on Ministries.

Insert after The Church and before fulfills the words: seeks to.

Insert after Spirit-given the word: servant.

I. The Mission

The mission of the Church is to make disciples of Jesus Christ.

Rationale for Our Mission

Jesus' words in Matthew 28:19-20 provide the Church with our mission: "Go therefore and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, and teaching them to obey everything that I have commanded you."

This mission is our grace-filled response to the Reign of God in the world announced by Jesus. God's grace³ is active everywhere, at all times, carrying out this purpose as revealed in the Bible. It is expressed in God's covenant with Abraham and Sarah, in the Exodus of Israel from Egypt, and in the ministry of the prophets. It is fully embodied in the life, death and resurrection of Jesus Christ. It is experienced in the ongoing creation of a new people by the Holy Spirit.

John Wesley and our other spiritual forebears understood this mission in this way. Whenever United Methodism has had a clear sense of mission, God has used our Church to save persons, heal relationships, and transform social structures, thereby changing the world. In order to be truly alive, we embrace Jesus' mandate to make disciples of all peoples.

The Process for Carrying Out Our Mission

We make disciples as we:

— proclaim the gospel, seek, welcome and gather persons into the Body of Christ;

— lead persons to commit their lives to God through Jesus Christ;

— nurture persons in Christian living through worship, baptism, communion, Bible study, prayer, and other means of grace;

— send persons into the world to live lovingly and justly as servants of Christ by healing the sick, feeding the hungry, caring for the stranger, and freeing the oppressed; and working to have social structures consistent with the Gospel; and — continue the mission of seeking, welcoming and gathering persons into the community of the Body of Christ.

The Global Nature of Our Mission

The Church seeks to fulfill its global mission through the Spirit-given servant ministries of all Christians, both lay and clergy. Faithfulness and effectiveness demand that all ministries in the Church be shaped by the mission of making disciples of Jesus Christ.

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

East Timor is part of an island on the far eastern end of the Indonesian archipelago, only 300 miles from Darwin, Australia. It had been under Portuguese control for some three centuries, unlike the other islands of present day Indonesia which were all Dutch colonies. During 1974-1975, following a coup and change of government in Portugal, East Timor was in the process of decolonization. There was a brief civil war between the newly formed political parties, which was subsequently won by Fretilin, the party favoring independence. But hardly had Fretilin declared independence for East Timor when, on December 7, 1975, Indonesia launched a massive invasion and annexed the half island. (Ninety percent of the weapons used by Indonesian armed forces were US made weapons.) Twenty years later, Indonesia continues to occupy East Timor in spite of repeated United Nations Resolutions deploring the invasion, affirming the right of the East Timorese to self-determination and calling on the Indonesian government to withdraw its troops.

The events in East Timor went unnoticed and unreported in the outside world because it was closed off to foreign presence until 1989. However, during the invasion and subsequent occupation over a third of the population died from killing, starvation or disease. Timorese culture was suppressed, local languages were discouraged and the majority of population living in the mountains and forests were forced to come out and re-settle in planned villages built by the Indonesian army.

World attention was finally brought to the plight of East Timor when, on November 12, 1991, Indonesian troops massacred between 50 and 250 peaceful demonstrators at the Santa Cruz cemetery in Dili, East Timor. The number of dead has never been determined because many people who disappeared on that day have not been found. This tragedy was witnessed by western journalists whose reports, especially videotape taken by British journalist Max Stahl, helped to stimulate international efforts to bring about a just resolution to the problem of East Timor. In protest of the massacre in 1992, the United States Congress eventually cut off military training (since reinstated by the Clinton administration in 1994), and instituted a ban on small arms sales to Indonesia. This tragedy was witnessed by western journalists whose reports helped to stimulate international efforts to bring about a just resolution to the problem in East Timor. The United States Congress authorized a moratorium on military training and small arms sales to Indonesia in protest of the massacre.

In January 1995, a delegation from the National Council of Churches of Christ, USA and a representative of the Canadian Council of Churches visited East Timor to express solidarity with the churches and people of East Timor. The region is 90% Christian, predominantly Catholic with a small Protestant minority. The population has come to identify being Catholic with being patriotic and supporting the East Timor cause. The Roman Catholic Bishop Carlos Ximenes Belo is recognized and respected as the leader and spokesperson of the East Timorese people. It has been said that relations between Catholic and Protestants have not been good. The National Council of Churches of Christ/Church World Service and Witness (CWS&W) delegation found this to be exaggerated, however, and witnessed many examples of Catholic/Protestant cooperation. The main Protestant church, the Christian Church of East Timor, has begun to find its voice and recently received membership in the World Council of Churches. Previously, it had been represented in religious fora only through the Indonesia Communion of Churches which always spoke on its behalf.

Human rights groups such as Amnesty International, as well as individual observers, have reported continued serious human rights abuses against the East Timorese, including beatings, abductions, torture, rape, extrajudicial killing, and imprisonment for any acts of political expression. In addition, the Indonesian government has encouraged thousands of Indonesians from more crowded islands to migrate to East Timor. These transmigrations have displaced many East Timorese from their traditional homes and land, taken over much of the trade and filled many of the civil service jobs. This has exacerbated the unemployment problem, particularly among the youth, and created social tension which has provided the military with justification for further repression.

Following its visit to East Timor, the NCCC/CWS&W delegation recommended an advocacy effort which calls for the demilitarization of East Timor and supports a process which would lead to the determination of the political status of East Timor, with the full participation of the East Timorese people.

Therefore, be it resolved, that The United Methodist Church, its members, local churches, annual conferences, central conferences and agencies:

Deplore the continuing occupation of East Timor and the resultant abuse of human rights and climate of oppression.

Support the witness of the Christian Church of East Timor and the Roman Catholic Church, and other groups in their commitment to human rights, peace and restoration of the East Timorese national identity.

Support the rights of the East Timorese to self-determination and calls for the full participation of the East Timorese people in the just resolution of the political status of East Timor.

Urge the United Nations to intensify efforts to resolve the political status of East Timor.

Support the East Timorese people and the East Timorese churches who struggle for justice, dignity, freedom from fear and the preservation of their ethnic and cultural identity.

Celebrate the membership of the Christian Church of East Timor in the World Council of Churches and its participation in ecumenical bodies in order that this East Timorese church may have an independent voice.

Encourage in the spirit of partnership, the Indonesian churches and the Communion of Churches in Indonesia to stand in solidarity with those who are oppressed in East Timor.

Call on the United States government to cease military aid, including military training, and the sale of arms to Indonesia as long as it continues its de facto military occupation of East Timor.

Call on the United Methodists to make efforts in mission, education, witness and advocacy to alleviate the plight of the East Timorese by:

1) Making available through general boards and agencies resources regarding East Timor to assist United Methodist congregations in initiating programs in education, mission, witness and advocacy;

2) Working to increase awareness of the on-going crisis in East Timor among US policy-makers, the general public, and United Methodist congregations through general boards and agencies and ecumenical bodies;

3) Supporting the East Timorese, both within East Timor and in exile, who are struggling to end the Indonesian occupation and attempting to achieve self-determination in their land.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that we urge the United States government and other governments to:

1) Take legislative and administrative action to pressure Indonesia to comply with the United Nations resolutions on East Timor, to withdraw its military occupation forces from

East Timor, and to cooperate with the United Nations in a process bringing about self-determination for East Timor, and

2) Send copies of this resolution to the Secretary General of the United Nations, the President of the UN General Assembly, the President of the United States, all U.S. Senators and Representatives and all appropriate ecumenical colleagues.

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

We applaud international efforts to develop a more just international economic order, in which the limited resources of the earth will be used to the maximum benefit of all nations and peoples. We urge Christians, in every society, to encourage the governments under which they live, and the economic entities within their societies, to aid and to work for the development of more just economic orders.—from Social Principles, ¶ 75, The Book of Discipline.

The continent of Africa is in crisis. The international community singled out Africa as the area of greatest human suffering at the United Nations World Summit for Social Development held in Copenhagen, Denmark in March, 1995. And more recently, the UN System-wide Special Initiative on Africa, jointly launched by the UN and the World Bank on March 15, 1996, has committed up to $25 billion over 10 years to respond to Africa's developmental needs in a coordinated way, in the following sectors; basic education, basic health, governance, food security, water and sanitation, peace-building and informatics.

A century of colonial rule, preceded by two centuries of a vicious slave trade and followed by a generation of neo-colonialism, has left much of Africa's social, political and economic life in a shambles. The decade of the eighties was disastrous. Real wages for Africa workers fell by 30% in a decade, and unemployment quadrupled. Infant mortality rates, a powerful index of human well-being, are now more than three times the rate for Southeast Asia and over double the rate for Latin America and the Caribbean. A destructive combination of military dictatorship, apartheid, economic collapse, social unrest, civil war, and natural disasters created 7 million refugees, 50 million disabled persons, and 35 million displaced people. Armaments poured into Africa during and following the Cold War are now used by some governments to oppress their own people; by armed bands who enrich themselves at the point of a gun and in inter-ethnic conflicts.

Archbishop Desmond Tutu, President of the All Africa Conference of Churches, observes with alarm that: The magnitude of the economic crisis is manifest by rising cost of living, adverse commodity prices, a ruthless free market, the unfair and heavy debt burden, the falling prices of raw materials, the over-burdening of social services, rising unemployment, especially among women and young men, unacceptable high mortality and morbidity rates among children and women and noticeable increases in general abuse and violence.

Yet the continent is a place of hope and promise. Peace has been achieved in a number of nations which were wracked by civil war for years. Democratic reforms are being demanded by the people of those countries still suffering under military dictatorship and government corruption. Democracy is struggling into life in more than a dozen nations. The whole world is rejoicing at the miracle of liberation in South Africa, as the old wine-skins of apartheid have been broken. New models of sustainable and equitable development are being created by the people of the continent, as they see the destructiveness of inappropriate Western and neo-colonial models. The continent is rich in natural resources needed by the entire world. Africa is blessed with people of remarkable energy, spirit and ingenuity. The United Methodist Church, continuing to grow rapidly, is a transforming presence in many countries, influential beyond its numbers, engaging in a holistic Wesleyan ministry of outreach evangelism and humanitarian service.

The Copenhagen Commitment:

In response to the crisis and mindful of the new possibilities emerging in Africa, governments and non-governmental organizations meeting at the United Nations World Summit for Social Development made a solemn pledge:

We commit ourselves to accelerating the economic, social and human resource development of Africa and the least developed countries.

To this end, we will:

a. Implement, at the national level, structural adjustment policies, which should include social development goals, as well as effective development strategies that establish a more favourable climate for trade and investment, give priority to human resource development and further promote the development of democratic institutions;

b. Support the domestic efforts of Africa and the least developed countries to implement economic reforms, programmes to increase food security, and commodity diversification efforts through international cooperation, including South-South cooperation and technical and financial assistance, as well as trade and partnership;

c. Find effective, development-oriented and durable solutions to external debt problems, through the immediate implementation of the terms of debt forgiveness agreed upon in the Paris Club in December 1994, which encompass debt reduction, including cancellation or other debt-relief measures; invite the international financial institutions to examine innovative approaches to assist low-income countries with a high proportion of multilateral debt, with a view to alleviating their debt burdens; and develop techniques of debt conversion applied to social development programmes and projects in conformity with Summit priorities. These actions should take into account the mid-term review of the United Nations New Agenda for the Development of Africa in the 1990s and the Programme of Action for the Least Developed Countries for the 1990s², and should be implemented as soon as possible;

d. Ensure the implementation of the strategies and measures for the development of Africa decided by the international community, and support the reform efforts, development strategies and programmes decided by the African countries and the least developed countries;

e. Increase official development assistance, both overall and for social programmes, and improve its impact, consistent with countries economic circumstances and capacities to assist, and consistent with commitments in international agreements;

f. Consider ratifying the United Nations Convention to Combat Desertification in Those Countries Experiencing Serious Drought and/or Desertification, Particularly in Africa³, and support African countries in the implementation of urgent action to combat desertification and mitigate the effects of drought;

g. Take all necessary measures to ensure that communicable diseases, particularly HIV/AIDS, malaria and tuberculosis, do not restrict or reverse the progress made in economic and social development.

United Methodist Response:

As Christians, our faith is in the God of Jesus Christ, who stands with the most vulnerable and oppressed people in our societies. Their well-being must serve as a guidepost for justice. God, sovereign over all nations, had made of one blood all the peoples of the earth. United Methodists, therefore, remain ever-vigilant, listening more attentively than ever to churches and movements around the world, as they struggle for social, political, economic spiritual development. Therefore, we call upon the United Methodist people, local churches and agencies to:

1. Participate fully in the Campaign for Africa of the Council of Bishops and the General Board of Global Ministries and to urge the continuation of the Campaign; and urge the General Board of Church and Society to advocate for policies that address the economic crises, peacemaking peacekeeping and human rights concerns in Africa.

2. Encourage United Methodist churches to increase their participation in programs of emergency relief, aid to refugees, reconstruction and development through the appropriate units of the General Board of Global Ministries, regional councils of churches and the World Council of Churches.

3. Encourage United Methodists to participate in Volunteers in Mission programs and educate themselves (orientation, cultural sensitivity and contingency planning), for working alongside and empowering African brothers and sisters and their institutions in , e.g. reconstructing schools, clinics and churches. There is also a need to emphasize the importance of preparation for the cross-cultural experience and mutuality of learning for both the volunteer in mission and the receiving partner.

4. Be faithful witnesses to government leaders in every country to the need for concerted national and international efforts toward sustainable equitable development and reconstruction on the continent of Africa, guided by the Copenhagen Commitment, World Summit for Social Development, the commitment and other bilateral and multilateral initiatives - including the Special Program of Assistance to Africa (SPA), and the new UN System-wide Initiative on Africa.

5. Urge United Methodists to persuade their governments to ratify the United Nations Convention to Combat Desertification in Those Countries Experiencing Serious Drought and/or Desertification.

6. Press the World Bank and International Monetary Fund to reform its structural adjustment programs, which have contributed to debts, declining economic and health systems, and deteriorating education and infrastructure in African nations.

7. Urge an embargo on present and future arms sales to Africa, and measures to rid Africa of the weapons which were poured into the continent, including the land mines which kill innocent people, predominantly women and children.

8. Continue and further develop the General Board of Global Ministries commitment to comprehensive community-based primary health care, recognizing the role which poverty, poor sanitation, and polluted water play in the spread of communicable diseases across the continent; the collapse of the health care systems in many countries; and the ineffectiveness of Western medical models.

9. Monitor all programs of relief and development with special attention to these criteria:

a. Give priority to women and children, who suffer the most during times of social unrest and war.

b. Involve full participation of African United Methodists in setting priorities , designing, managing and coordinating projects, relying upon their experience, wisdom and resourcefulness.

c. Design programs to alleviate the root causes of poverty, oppression and social unrest.

d. Program for sustainability, both in terms of ecological integrity, and the avoidance of dependency by utilizing appropriate technologies which do not require continuing input of resources from other countries.

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

Introduction

The Middle East and North Africa, the region of the world stretching from Mauritania on the west to Iran on the east and from Turkey on the north to Somalia on the south, holds a special place in the hearts and minds of United Methodists. The Methodist presence in the region dates back to 1887 when the Methodist Church in France answered a request for an organized Protestant church to be engaged in mission in North Africa. The Methodist Church responded by establishing a mission station in the Mountains of Kabylia in North Algeria. The mission station provided evangelistic, medical, educational and technical programs for the whole population. Methodist mission work later spread to other parts of Algeria and Tunisia.

The United Methodist connection to the region dates back to 1924 when United Methodists joined other Protestants in forming the International Missionary Council in North Africa. The Methodist Church in North Africa was also a founding member of the Near East Christian Council (NECC) in 1956. The United Methodist Church maintained its membership in the NECC when it became the Middle East Council of Churches in 1974. Following the 1948 War and the establishment of the state of Israel, The United Methodist Church began responding to the critical needs of hundreds of thousands of Palestinian refugees as well as the other human needs in the region caused by wars, invasions, liberation struggles, natural disasters and devastating economic and social conditions.

United Methodist engagement in mission in the Middle East and North Africa has challenged our understanding of the theological foundations for our presence there. As we deepened our relationship with the Christians of the region, we gained an appreciation for the life and witness of the indigenous Christian churches there. This broadened our understanding of mission, enabling the United Methodist Church to develop partnerships based on respect and mutuality rather than parochial concerns. For several quadrennia, the General Conference of The United Methodist Church has encouraged United Methodist members, local churches and agencies to pray for peace and become actively involved in justice and peacemaking efforts in the Middle East. The United Methodist Church has given special attention to the Arab-Israeli conflict and the homelessness of the Palestinian people, with the hope that the resolution of these long-standing conflicts would create the conditions for resolving other crises in the region.

Throughout our history of involvement in the Middle East and North Africa, we have gained a deeper understanding of the region in its full human and spiritual context. We join our Jewish and Muslim brothers and sisters in feeling a deep sense of rootedness to the land where our three religious traditions were born. We also celebrate the diversity of religious customs and traditions in the Middle East and North Africa which provide United Methodists with the opportunity to strengthen our understanding of and commitment to interfaith encounters and explorations. This challenge includes not only Islam and Judaism but the variety of Christian traditions indigenous to the region as well. Our United Methodist presence is primarily through our relationship with the Middle East Council of Churches (MECC). The MECC is an inclusive fellowship of churches from four Christian families: the Eastern Orthodox, the Oriental Orthodox, the Catholic and the Protestant.

Over the past four years, the Middle East and North Africa has experienced dramatic and profound political, civil, social, economic and religious developments. The strategic location of the region, its natural resources, ethnic richness and religious passions attract a variety of powerful influences and interests from around the world. The result has too often brought exploitation, violence and death to the peoples there. As we reflect upon these developments, in light of our Christian vocation, we are challenged to re-examine and reaffirm our United Methodist commitment to service and witness there.

Sustainable Development

The Middle East and North Africa is diverse in its topography, climate, physical and social environments, and covers an area approximately equal in size to the United States. The area is defined by a variety of independent states with diverse political systems, ethnic groups, languages, custom and traditions. These definitions join factors such as rapid population growth, increasing urbanization, scarcity of land, water and other economic resources, and limits on women's social and economic autonomy in playing a critical role in questions of sustainable development there.

Since the Gulf War of 1990, the social, economic and political situation has deteriorated drastically. Many countries are facing a major economic crisis which is rapidly getting worse. The struggles of people throughout the region are similar: an extremely high unemployment rate especially among the young population, falling per capita consumption, shortages of basic food commodities, no access to basic social services, high levels of illiteracy, an absence of accountable government, and governmental corruption.

Against this backdrop of deteriorating social, economic and political conditions, the region suffers from environmental degradation. Concentrations of air pollutants such as sulfur dioxide and lead are well above levels considered safe. The quality and productivity of agricultural land is threatened by salination. This limits the amount of land available for cultivation which is already threatened by dwindling sources of fresh water. The water needs of giant and overcrowded cities compete with agricultural methods demanding large amounts of water resulting in a water shortage of major proportions. Much of the water that is available is highly contaminated from industrial wastes, agricultural pesticides and other chemicals. While water shortage is a global problem, the political implications are most vulnerable in the Middle East and North Africa where a number of conflicts between states are rooted in disagreements over gaining unrestricted access to sources of water. The results of this environmental crisis are poor health, inferior housing, and poor sanitation for both rural and urban populations, especially those who are marginalised.

As people begin to demand more equitable access to jobs, schooling, housing and health care, it becomes clear that questions of population and development must be framed within a context of equity. Governments will continue to be unsuccessful in their efforts to slow rates of population growth until policies designed to protect the lifestyles of wealthy elites while ignoring the basic needs of the majority population undergo drastic changes. Family planning strategies must become more holistic to include factors that influence women's reproductive choices such as women's other health needs, their education, job opportunities and overall status and the role that men play in reproductive behavior.

Human Rights Concerns

Over the past decade, the human rights movement in the Middle East and North Africa has expanded rapidly. We applaud the commitment and determination of thousands of individuals and groups dedicated to documenting and publishing information about human rights abuses in their countries. These efforts have enabled people in the West to gain a better understanding of human rights violations. Their work has also helped to challenge stereotypes about Middle Eastern and North African societies.

Perhaps the most destructive of these stereotypes is the notion that political absolutism is generic to the region. There is a pervasive sense that the problem in the region is an absence of civil society—networks of non-governmental institutions and civic culture to which the state is accountable. However, in fact there are vibrant and diverse communities and non-governmental organizations knowledgeable about and critical of structures of power in and among their own societies.

The commitment to reforming the political and economic problems of the region has been threatening to authoritarian governments bent on maintaining power in the Middle East and North Africa. Many states throughout the region have implemented restrictions on basic civil and political participation, including freedom of expression, freedom of peaceful assembly and freedom of association. Corrupt justice systems allow politically motivated killings, arbitrary arrest, torture and denial of fair public trials. The rights of minorities, such as the freedom of religious and ethnic groups to express their culture, practice their religion and even use their own language are restricted and denied in many states. Fundamentalist religious groups, intolerant of those who disagree with their vision of society, have used violence to challenge and destabilize existing political orders. The struggle for women's rights has also been long and hard in the region. Women in many countries suffer from restrictions on their movements, activities and personal freedoms from both the state and religious fundamentalist groups. Immigrant women working in the Middle East are especially vulnerable to human rights violations with little if any access to redress their oppression.

Peace and Justice Concerns

In recent years, The United Methodist Church has become more active in justice and peacemaking efforts in the Middle East and North Africa. The church has worked with ecumenical and interfaith bodies advocating self-determination for Palestinians, affirming Israel's right to exist within secure borders, calling for region-wide disarmament and urging the United States government to initiate a US embargo on arms to the entire region.

United Methodists are committed to the objective of a comprehensive Arab-Israeli peace agreement which would bring recognition and security to Israel and national and human rights to the Palestinians. We commend those who have actively worked to end the Israeli occupation of the West Bank, Gaza, Southern Lebanon and the Golan Heights, while seeking the revocation of those articles in the PLO covenant that call for the destruction of Israel. We commend those who worked faithfully to uphold human dignity and resist dehumanization and demonization. We are hopeful that the signing of the Israel-Palestinian Authority Interim Agreement will begin the long-awaited withdrawal of Israeli forces from the West Bank in partial compliance with United Nations Security Council Resolution 242, the release of Palestinian political prisoners and the initiation of democratic political rights for Palestinians. The most important issues have not been resolved: Israel's claim to exclusive sovereignty over all of Jerusalem, the presence of existing Israeli settlements and the construction of new ones, the future of the Palestinian refugees in the diaspora, and Palestinian national rights. Israelis and Palestinians, the peoples of the three Abrahamic religions, should shape the future status of Jerusalem.

In the aftermath of the Gulf War, we deeply grieve for the Iraqi people. Massive declines in levels of education, health, water purification, and sanitation have hit women, children, and the elderly particularly hard. The imposition of economic sanctions on Iraq following the devastating war compounded by the Iraqi government's abusive and divisive social and political policies have resulted in massive cases of malnutrition, illness and death.

We uplift those groups and individuals who have worked tirelessly to bring human dignity, reconciliation, justice and peace to the region. We are especially mindful of those committed to resolving the conflicts and injustices suffered by people in Algeria, Cyprus, Egypt, Iraq, Kurdistan, Lebanon, Somalia, Sudan and the Western Sahara. We know that the interests of our governments, including the massive exportation of military weapons and technical assistance to the region, play a critical role in these conflicts. As citizens our responsibility is to stand with those laboring to redress all injustices in the Middle East and North Africa.

Call to Action

We call upon United Methodists individually, in their local churches, and through their boards and agencies to take the following actions:

- 1) to pray for all people in the region;
- 2) to continue United Methodist support, through the General Boards of Church and Society and Global Ministries, working with the people of the region to address their needs;
- 3) to strengthen our relationship with the Middle East Council of Churches and other indigenous partners in the region;
- 4) to seek a deeper understanding of the region and its peoples. We ask that leaders of Holy Land pilgrimages and volunteer in mission visits contact United Methodist missionaries, representatives of the Middle East Council of Churches, and other partner organizations in the region in planning their itineraries;
- 5) to urge governments to stop military assistance and arms exports to the region and to support sustainable development initiatives;
- 6) to urge the United States government to lead the United Nations Security Council in calling for a relaxation of UN economic sanctions against Iraq in order to end the cruel and devastating affect they are having on the Iraqi people, especially on the elderly, women and children;
- 7) to urge the Iraqi government to cease its abusive and divisive social and political policies and to encourage it to bring human dignity and justice to its people;

8) to provide a forum in United Methodist churches for voices of women, especially from Algeria, Egypt, Palestine, Tunisia, and the Western Sahara;

9) to support nongovernmental organizations dedicated to working for peace and justice, reconciliation, and human dignity in the Middle East and North Africa;

10) to urge the United States and other governments to support the internationalization of Jerusalem;

11) to urge the United States and other governments to encourage strongly the state of Israel to cease the confiscation of Palestinian lands; to cease the building of new, or the development of existing, settlements in Gaza and the West Bank, including East Jerusalem; to lift all closures of Jerusalem to Palestinians; to cease the construction of by-pass roads connecting Israeli settlements which isolate Palestinian towns and villages; to cease the sealing and demolition of Palestinian homes; to cease administrative detention of men, women and minors without the right to a fair trial; to cease the torture of Palestinian prisoners, deportations and other human rights violations; and to release Palestinian political prisoners;

12) to urge the United States and other governments to encourage strongly the Palestinian National Authority to cease human-rights violations including extrajudicial punishment, abduction and torture, and call upon the Palestine National Authority to establish a civil and independent judiciary in the West Bank and Gaza;

13) to organize educational events and community prayers for peace in the Middle East, in order to bring together in each community Jews, Muslims, and Christians.

Encounter With Christ in Latin America and the Caribbean

Whereas, colleague churches of Methodist heritage in Latin America and the Caribbean now have extraordinary new opportunities for mission and ministry, with many experiencing marked numerical growth and renewed vitality in witnessing to Gods redemptive work through Jesus Christ, our Lord; and

Whereas, many of these same churches are struggling with severe financial problems rooted in the massive poverty that besets the majority of peoples in this region of the world; and

Whereas, Methodist churches of the Caribbean and Latin America have made costly decisions in their history for self-determination, seeking to be more faithfully incarnate within the diversity of nations within this region; and

Whereas, the churches represented by the Council of Evangelical Methodist Churches in Latin America and the Caribbean (CIEMAL) and the Methodist Church of the Caribbean and the Americas (MCCA) urgently need sisters and brothers who will share with them in supporting new church development, evangelistic initiatives, and programs that nurture justice ministries and respect for all persons; and

Whereas, many of these colleague churches are being led to make costly new commitments in order to strengthen their solidarity and faithful ministry with children, women and youth;

Therefore, be it resolved, that we will encourage and invite support for the General Board of Global Ministries Permanent Fund entitled, Encounter with Christ in Latin America and the Caribbean (No. 025100), a designated giving channel that provides a special means for current and deferred giving in order to strengthen our shared ministries with the Methodist churches of Latin America and the Caribbean.

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

In recognition of the great investment that The United Methodist Church has made in the mission of the Church in Okinawa (Japan) since the turn of the century, with the arrival of the first Methodist missionary, this resolution is presented to request the support of United Methodist congregations for one of the urgent issues in mission of the Okinawa District of The United Methodist Church in Japan, the Christian body with which The United Methodist Church has a cooperative mission relationship.

With 1995 commemorating the 50th year since the end of the Battle of Okinawa, the long-term oppressive presence of U.S. military bases in Okinawa has become a critical issue for the entire Okinawan society. In accordance with the Japan-America Security Treaty, which grants the U.S. use of facilities and areas in Japan, the United States military forces occupy a substantial amount 20% of the land area of Okinawa Island, in addition to having exclusive use of designated air and sea space for military training. This vast military presence greatly hinders the development of Okinawa and threatens the livelihood of Okinawan citizens.

Even after Allied occupation ended on the Japanese mainland in 1952, Okinawa remained under complete U.S. military administration for 20 years, until 1972, when the islands reverted to Japanese jurisdiction.

Private property requisitioned by the U.S. military to construct the vast military bases after the war is still held today, denying some 30,000 families the right to live on and utilize their own land. Military aircraft produce ear-splitting noise on a daily basis. Military drills endanger the lives of citizens and destroy the natural environment.

Since 1972, the date of Okinawa's reversion to Japan, U.S. military personnel have committed 4,716 crimes. These crimes, which include robbery, murder, and rape, imperil the fundamental human rights of the Okinawan people.

The September 4, 1995, rape of an elementary school girl by three American military personnel is not an extraordinary case. Such structural violence is inherent in the enforced presence of the U.S. military in Okinawa. The residents of Okinawa living around the bases become the primary targets of this violence, with women and children being especially vulnerable.

This latest rape is only the spark igniting the Okinawans anger over this and past crimes perpetuated upon them by the U.S. military. Okinawan citizens are demanding the reduction of U.S. military bases in Okinawa and also a reappraisal of the Status of Forces Agreement, the document that governs the presence of U.S. military personnel in Japan.

The Okinawa District of the United Church of Christ in Japan considers the militarization of Okinawa to be an issue that the church is called on to address in its mission of peacemaking. Following the resolution acted on by the Okinawa District Executive Committee of the United Church of Christ in Japan, a letter was sent to partner church members in North America, including The United Methodist Church, in the name of the moderator of the United Church of Christ in Japan. This letter appealed for support of Okinawan Christians, who feel that it is no longer possible to coexist with military bases and personnel.

In light of the above, this resolution requests the General Conference of The United Methodist Church to join with Okinawan Christians in urging the following four appeals to the governments of the United States and Japan:

1. A thorough investigation of all crimes and acts of violence committed by U.S. military personnel stationed on U.S. military bases in Okinawa and an apology and compensation to the victims of the crimes;

2. An immediate cessation of all military exercises that destroy the environment and threaten the daily life of Okinawa citizens;

3. An immediate review of the Japan-America Security Treaty (AMPO) and the Status of Forces Agreement (SOFA), which completely ignores the laws of Japan, imposing great hardship on the people of Okinawa;

4. Establishment of a peace not based on military power, and the removal of all U.S. military bases from Okinawa.

(These four appeals were directed to President Bill Clinton by the Okinawa District of the United Church of Christ in Japan.)

We submit this resolution to the General Conference of The United Methodist Church, as missionaries of The United Methodist Church General Board of Global Ministries (World Division) assigned to the United Church of Christ in Japan, Okinawa District, with the full knowledge and support of the Okinawa District. Attached to this resolution are the signatures of other concerned United Methodists expressing their support of this resolution in the search for peace and justice in Okinawa.

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

Whereas, rural communities continue to suffer from the loss of leadership; economic resources; jobs in agriculture, mining, timber, processing, and textiles; small, family-owned businesses; opportunities for youth; human service institutions; environmental quality; political strength; viable churches; and

Whereas, God continues to call both laity and clergy along with congregations and cooperative ministries to be responsive to the hurts of people who suffer from oppression, exploitation, and marginalization; and

Whereas, the General Board of Global Ministries Office of Town and Country Ministries has facilitated a grassroots effort to enable local rural community and church leaders to address the issues and concerns of the rural crisis; and

Whereas, over one hundred persons representing the diversity of The United Methodist Church have become certified rural chaplains related to the General Board of Global Ministries; and

Whereas, rural chaplains have received enthusiastic affirmation of the whole Church and have extended fellowship to include ecumenical and international partners in ministry;

Therefore, be it resolved, that The United Methodist Church celebrate and affirm Gods continued call of persons committed to serving as rural chaplains in difficult times and places; and

Be it further resolved, that The United Methodist Church reaffirm its commitment to rural community/church development and vigorously pursue rural chaplaincy as a significant part of resourcing renewal in rural churches/communities throughout the world.

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

Their little ones also will be dashed to pieces before their eyes; their houses will be plundered, and their wives ravished. (Isaiah 13:16)

They ravished the women in Zion, the virgins in the cities of Judah. (Lamentations 5:11)

For I will gather all the nations against Jerusalem to battle, and the city will be captured, the houses plundered, the women ravished, and half of the city exiled, but the rest of the people will not be cut off from the city. (Zechariah 14:2)

We believe war is incompatible with the teachings and example of Christ. We therefore reject war as an instrument of national foreign policy and insist that the first moral duty of all nations is to resolve by peaceful means every dispute that rises between or amongst them; that human values must outweigh military claims as governments determine their priorities; that the militarization of society must be challenged and stopped; that the manufacture, sale and deployment of armaments must be reduced and controlled; and that the production, possession, or use of nuclear weapons be condemned.—from Social Principles, ¶ 75, The Book of Discipline.

For centuries women have been raped as an act of violence and a demonstration of power—most especially in times of conflict and wars. Rape has been and is sanctioned by military organizations for the gratification of soldiers as was seen in several Asian countries during World War II. The Comfort Women of Korea are a most blatant example of this practice. Rape during wartime constitutes many individual and group acts of violence perpetrated by soldiers against girls and women of enemy countries or opposing sides, often under orders. Thus rape, in effect, is used as an extension of warfare. But rape is rarely mentioned in resolutions and statements on war and peace. And the conquest of women as spoils of war continues to be tolerated in times of conflict.

Mass rape is an increasingly sophisticated weapon of war, as it is being used in the Bosnia-Herzegovina conflict and in other conflicts—such as in Haiti, Georgia, (CIS) and Rwanda—in the world today.

Survivors of conflicts speak of rape on the front-line and third-party rape; these rapes are carried out publicly by soldiers to demoralize family members and opposition forces compelled to witness them.

Many stories refer to village communities being rounded up in camps—perhaps a school or community center—and that a space is cleared in the middle. It is in this space that public raping takes place. It is reported as repeated and violent and procedural. It is claimed that many of the victims and witnesses know the rapists.

~~The use of rape as a weapon of war is perceived as having its roots in patriarchal systems.~~—Destruction and violation of women is one way of attacking male opponents who regard the women as their property—and whose male identity is therefore bound to protection of their property.

The current tribunals against war crimes undertaken in Rwanda and Bosnia have acknowledged rape as a form of torture, since it is not specifically mentioned in existing international laws.

The United Methodist Church affirms the sacredness of all persons and their right to safety, nurture and care. And, together with the international community, it is challenged to respond to the rape of women in military conflicts. The extent and frequency of the violation of women in war must not be allowed to deaden sensitivity to this as gross injustice. There must be greater understanding of the use of rape in this manner (as a weapon of warfare) Documentation and analysis of such planned violations of human rights and its root causes must be developed. Strategizing to confront systems which give rise to it and the needs of those who are its victims must be undertaken.

International instruments such as Geneva Conventions must be strengthened to ensure condemnation of rape as a war-crime with appropriate enforcement and monitoring.

At local and regional levels, churches and concerned groups must pressure for legal and political decisions to protect victims of rape. It is not sufficient to articulate condemnations of crime; practical actions to effect change must follow.

As part of the overall humanitarian responses to physical and emotional needs, it is a matter of urgency that adequate and appropriate attention be given to the psychological needs of women raped in war.

The task of supporting these survivors—their children, families and communities—requires massive commitment, resources and expertise.

We call on The United Methodist Church:

1. To condemn all forms of rape as incompatible with the church's understanding of the sacredness of life; and to affirm the right of all persons to safety, nurture and care.

2. To urge the United Methodist Office for the UN to work towards including the condemnation of rape as a war-crime in international instruments such as the Geneva Conventions.

3. To urge the General Board of Global Ministries to develop an anthology of theological and biblical perspectives of rape in times of war, written by survivors and other women who have observed and reflected on this grave concern.

4. To urge both the General Board of Global Ministries and the General Board of Church and Society to act as resources for churches who wish to pressure for legal and political decisions to protect victims of rape in times of war.

5. To urge UMCOR to continue developing assistance and support for women victims of war and their families, to meet their physical and emotional needs. This may mean supporting as wartime refugees, women who cannot return to their homes because of fear of rape, violence and condemnation.

Subject: Proposition 187 of California

Committee Item: GM26-NonDis-A Petition:

22714-GM-NonDis-O, Pg. 1372
Membership: 126; Present: 108;
For: 108; Against: 0; Not Voting: 0;
Date: 4/18

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

Whereas, Proposition 187 of California, approved by the electorate of this state in November 1994, is an attempt against the most elemental Christian moral and human principles that govern our life as a people, requiring even that schools and hospitals become branches of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, as they would be required under this proposition to report children and adults who are not legal citizens; and

Whereas, as Christians longing for a heavenly homeland, we are strangers in a foreign land but at the same time present in a world that demands Gods will and justice; and

Whereas, our holy Scriptures call us time and time again to the defense of the marginalized of our society, in particular, the poor, the orphans, the widows, and the strangers among us; and

Whereas, Proposition 187 of California represents a backwards step in our development as a nation seeking interracial harmony; and

Whereas, the spirit and intent of Proposition 187 goes against the Social Principles of our United Methodist Church, specifically ¶ 724 where it states: We reject racism in every form and affirm the ultimate and temporal worth of all persons...We assert the obligation of society, and groups within the society, to implement compensatory programs that redress long-standing systemic social deprivation of racial and ethnic minorities to equal opportunities...to education and training of the highest quality, to nondiscrimination in access to public accommodations...; and

Whereas, Proposition 187 is being challenged in the courts, and it has been found out of compliance with our constitutional rights;

Therefore, be it resolved that the General Conference by MARCHA to categorically, unequivocally, and totally repudiate Proposition 187 of California and the abusive and alienating spirit that it fosters and represents against Hispanic and other ethnic groups; and

Be it further resolved, that the General Conference MARCHA make a call to all churches to be witnesses against this and other forms of alienation of our ethnic constituency; and

~~Be it further resolved that MARCHA present this Resolution for approval at the 1996 General Conference of our United Methodist Church.~~

 Membership: 126; Present: 115;
 For: 115; Against: 0; Not Voting: 0;
 Date: 4/18

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

The West African nation of Liberia has been experiencing ~~experienced~~ a brutal civil war since 1989 ~~which lasted over five years~~. As a result, there are ~~were~~ hundreds of thousands of casualties in which one in 17 Liberians lost their lives. Over 150,000 people have been ~~we~~ displaced within the country, and more than 160,000 people are ~~we~~ forced to live as refugees in neighboring African countries.

The ~~Liberias~~ economic and social infrastructure of Liberia is ~~we~~ virtually destroyed, including the pertinent services of hospitals and schools. People have been dying on a daily basis from diseases and malnutrition. ~~And, with renewed fighting in Monrovia, the capital, cholera is claiming the lives of residents. The closure of industries and business has led to high unemployment and, consequently, a lack of resources for families to buy food and maintain basic life support.~~

The lives of Liberians children have been disrupted. Often they were kidnapped and coerced into becoming soldiers. Children ~~participate participated~~ in and view ~~viewed~~ the grisly murders of relatives and friends. As the war ~~continues intensified~~, the bombing and destruction of school buildings ~~prevents prevented~~ students from continuing their education.

Worship attendance ~~Attendance~~ in the Liberia Annual Conference has ~~The United Methodist Church~~ gradually declined because members are ~~fearful to travel distances from their homes to attend services. in rebel-controlled areas were not able to travel to attend services.~~ Church leaders and members have been displaced or have become refugees. Many Church leaders ~~remain remained~~ in Liberia and are ~~ministering ministered~~ to the people during this turbulent period. ~~the war.~~ We commend Liberian Bishop Arthur Kulah, Resident Bishop of the Liberia Annual Conference, and other Church leaders for remaining in the country during the times of ~~heightened a heightened period of the~~ civil war and ~~commend their active participation actively participating~~ in the process of peace and national reconciliation.

With ~~Following~~ the signing of the August 1995 peace accord in Abuja, Nigeria, ~~there was great anticipation among Liberians continue to struggle towards healing and~~ reconstructing their broken nation, improving their standard of living, and maintaining lasting peace. Unfortunately, the civil war resumed in March 1996, threatening the peace accord.

The Social Principles of The United Methodist Church (§ 74) state that the Church must commit itself to the achievement of a world community that is a fellowship of persons who honestly love one another. We pledge ourselves to seek the meaning of the gospel in all issues that divide people and threaten the growth of world community.

Such conditions call upon The United Methodist Church to pray, sympathize and stand in solidarity with over 70,000 Liberian United Methodists and the Liberian nation as a whole. We commit ourselves to:

— Urge our governments to continue all humanitarian assistance, including medical services, food and water to the suffering population;

— Urge the Organization of African Unity and the United Nations to facilitate an immediate disarmament of the warring factions as called for in the Abuja peace accord;

— Provide financial assistance to pastors and their families;

— Rebuild churches, parsonages and church-related institutions;

— Repatriate, resettle and provide shelter for refugees, displaced persons, and war victims;

— Rebuild homes through efforts by Volunteers in Mission and Habitat for Humanity;

— Assist the transition of soldiers into the civilian sector through counseling, vocational and general education;

— Engage in reconciliation and healing at a grassroots level between and among various ethnic groups;

— Train pastors to be agents of reconciliation, peace and healing;

— Set up counseling and educational programs to help children, women and others traumatized by war;

— Stabilize the country's economic structure by:

a) calling on the governments and international lending agencies to provide development grants, loans, and to forgive debts;

b) encouraging private investment in the country;

c) encouraging United Nations agencies such as the World Health Organization, the United Nations Childrens Fund and the United Nations Development Program to generate programs in Liberia; and

d) helping Liberians establish and maintain their own businesses.

The Liberia Annual Conference was founded by the Rev. Melville B. Cox in 1833. Liberia has maintained close historical ties to the United States and became the first independent republic in 1847.

The Liberia Annual Conference remains committed to finding peace and reconciliation in Liberia. We will advocate public policy, diplomatic relations, economic support and a negotiated settlement of the Liberian civil war.

~~United Methodists are urged to visit Liberia and identify with the people, especially through short-term volunteer service. Teachers, doctors, writers, students—all are needed and welcome.~~

Subject: Care of the Elderly Committee Item: GM47-NonDis-A Petition:

22490-GM-NonDis-O, Pg. 1368
Membership: 126; Present: 109;
For: 109; Against: 0; Not Voting: 0;
Date: 4/18

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

Whereas, the total number and percentage of the elderly of the population in ~~many countries~~ the United States will continue to increase into the next century; and

Whereas, the health care needs in the form of basic ~~custodial~~ care for some of these elderly citizens will likewise expand; and

Whereas, all elderly persons, no matter how frail in body or mind, are persons of sacred worth to whom we owe a duty of care and respect; and

Whereas, individuals, families, and governmental bodies all incur a great and growing expense for this basic care; and the continuing ability to provide such care cannot be taken for granted; and

Whereas, the ongoing expense for this type of care could potentially bankrupt individuals, families, and the nation as a whole; and

Whereas, there is potential for conflict in providing for the health care needs of the elderly and the available workers whose tax dollars will be used to pay for such services; and

Whereas, present cost-cutting proposals and measures could mean fewer services and poor quality of care for the elderly population; and

Whereas, the people providing direct ~~such~~ care in institutional settings like long term care facilities ~~nursing homes~~ are very low paid among the lowest paid workers in America; and

Whereas, the profit margins of some institutions are razor thin; and the needs of elderly residents compete with the needs of investors for a profit; and

Whereas, many so-called long term care facilities ~~nursing homes~~ are no more than warehouses for large numbers of crippled bodies; and

Whereas, in many instances the elderly resident of such an institution has survived most family members and has only a church body to visit or to express concern on his or her behalf; and

Whereas, Jesus has called his church to action on behalf of the weakest members of society (Matthew 25:34-40); and

Whereas, faith without works is dead (James 2:14-18); and

Whereas, there are potential curses for a church body for not responding to a need that is within our ability to alleviate (Matthew 25:41-46; Revelation 3:15-16);

Therefore, be it resolved, that The United Methodist Church will endeavor to:

Pray for Gods guidance in this and all areas of ministry;

Undertake a timely, thorough study of the need for and provision of health and social care services to the growing elderly population;

Identify and publicize programs and institutions that seem to be successfully meeting the needs of elderly individuals and groups, with the idea that such successful approaches can be copied by others in their communities;

Focus locally upon the spiritual, physical, and emotional needs of long term care facilities ~~nursing home~~ residents and the home-bound elderly, encouraging new or expanded services at the local church level;

Explore the need for and development of new approaches in health and social care delivery that provide quality care and fullness of life at affordable reasonable cost for the elderly, their families and friends, and society as a whole;

Research the potential for and promote the development of new technologies to help debilitated elderly individuals meet their basic needs for cleanliness, safety, and comfort at a reasonable cost while promoting job security and enhanced status for the health care workers directly helping the elderly; and

Mobilize the appropriate financial and personnel resources of the boards, agencies, and institutions of the church to address this pressing concern, ~~vast resources of United Methodist individuals, groups, and institutions to this end.~~

Attention should particularly be given to ensuring access to safe, legal and non-coercive contraception, well-informed choice regarding abortion and its alternatives (adoptions, etc.), informed consent for sterilization procedures, and safe womens health care facilities. Amend ¶ 439.1:

b) ...the responsibilities of the parent(s) and the sponsor(s) for the Christian training for the baptized child, and how these obligations may be properly discharged. (See ¶ 224.)

c) To encourage reaffirmation of the baptismal covenant and renewal of baptismal vows at different stages of life. ~~The sacrament of baptism may not be repeated.~~ The practice of re-baptism does not conform with Gods action in baptism and is not consistent with Wesleyan tradition and the historic teaching of the church. Therefore, the pastor should counsel any person seeking re-baptism to participate in a rite of reaffirmation of baptismal vows.

MINORITY REPORT

Whereas there is pastoral confusion in some segments of the United Methodist Church on the issue of rebaptism; and, whereas, the doctrine of our church unequivocally affirms only one baptism;

Therefore, be it resolved that ¶ 439.1.c shall be worded as originally proposed by the General Board of Discipleship (DCA, Vol. I, p. 1058, Petition #21457).

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

The National Committee on Deaf Ministries recommends the following program for the quadrennium 1997-2000:

I. All areas of the church need to be accessible.

We recommend that:

A. All annual conference sessions and conference events become accessible to persons with hearing loss, by making every reasonable effort to provide the following services; interpreters with American Sign Language skills, interpreters with skills in Conceptually Signed English, oral interpreters, sign/voice interpreters, real-time captioning, listening devices, telephone devices for the deaf, Computer Assisted Note Takers; and FM systems.

B. All United Methodist seminaries and educational institutions voluntarily move toward full accessibility as exemplified by the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 by the next general conference and to provide reasonable accommodations for deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons who desire to pursue deaf ministry as a vocation.

II. Qualified persons need to be invited and encouraged in the vocation of ordained or diaconal ministry and other lay persons should be provided with ways of offering their gifts to deaf ministry.

We recommend that:

A. Each bishop and district superintendent in their respective annual conferences reach out to churches to encourage deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons to consider ministry as a vocation;

B. Each annual conference board of ordained ministry and board of diaconal ministry ~~encourage~~ ~~adopt a policy that~~ ~~requires~~ candidates for ordination and consecration to have educational preparation in ministry to persons who are deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing.

C. Every annual conference recruit, train, and deploy deaf, deafened and hard-of-hearing persons as lay pastors and lay speakers.

III. The church must equip persons for ministry to persons who are deaf, deaf-ened, and hard of hearing.

We recommend that:

A. Annual conferences have available to hearing people brochures containing information concerning ministry with persons who are deaf, deafened and hard-of-hearing.

B. Each annual conference offer, at least biennially, continuing education and formation training events for ordained and diaconal ministers in the area of ministry with persons who are deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing.

C. Each annual conference provide workshops in their area that will prepare local church laity and clergy to work with persons who are deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing.

D. United Methodist seminaries include education for ministry to person who are deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing within their curriculum. We further ask the University Senate to advise the approved schools of theology of our concern for education for ministry with these persons.

E. The General Board of Discipleship develop training programs and resources with the assistance of the United Methodist Congress of the Deaf to assist local churches with such training.

IV. The United Methodist Book of Discipline language should reflect the current language and descriptive preferences of persons who are deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing. (In accordance with ¶ 608 of
The Book of Discipline, two petitions asking for a change in the wording of The Book of Discipline have been forwarded to the 1996 General Conference. The first asks to change the term handicapping conditions to special needs in ¶ 72G; the second asks to insert the following as the second sentence in ¶ 530.2: This is especially important for congregations and ministries having special language and cultural needs.)

V. Proposal to General Conference
From the National Committee on Deaf Ministries

We recommend the continuation of the National Committee on Deaf Ministries for the 1997-2000 quadrennium to be accountable to the General Board of Global Ministries and to work in cooperation with the other general boards and agencies.

Description of the National Committee

A. Purpose and Organization of the Committee:

The National Committee on Deaf Ministries shall be accountable to the General Board of Global Ministries to ensure coordination among general program boards.
This Committee shall provide an arena for networking, cooperative planning, and implementation of programs designed to empower and enable a ministry by, with, and for deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons. The Committee shall serve as an advocate for deaf ministries with all general agencies of The United Methodist Church.

B. Responsibilities of the Committee:

The responsibilities of the Committee shall include, but not be limited to the following:

1. Identifying the needs and concerns of deaf, deafened and hard-of-hearing individuals.

2. Collecting and disseminating information on successful models, programs, and resources that will inform the work of all boards, agencies, and annual conferences to strengthen, enrich, and enable individual family living consistent with Christian teaching and practice.

3. Encouraging exploration of the biblical, theological, and experimental understandings of family living and the church's role in ministry by, with, and for deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons.

4. Advocating for the development and implementation of programs, policies, and services by general agencies of The United Methodist Church that are designed to have an impact on those systems and concepts that adversely affect persons with hearing loss.

5. Assisting in the recruitment, training, and deployment of diaconal and ordained deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing ministers.

6. Advocating for the accessibility potential for annual conference sessions and programs as models for local churches.

C. Membership of the Committee and Organizing for Ministry:

Each member of the Committee, as designated below, shall have voice and vote.

1. The Committee shall consist of one bishop, 15 members of the United Methodist Congress of the Deaf, and a representative from each of the general boards and agencies listed below in item 4.

2. The bishop shall be selected by the Council of Bishops and shall have experience in deaf ministry within his/her annual conference.

3. There shall be fifteen members elected from the United Methodist Congress of the Deaf. Of those members, there will be six deaf and two deafened persons; two professional interpreters; one educator; one deaf institutional ministry professional; one mental health professional who has experience in the deaf and deafened community; and two ordained ministers, at least one of whom is deaf or hard-of-hearing.

4. There shall be either a staff person or a voting member from the General Council on Ministries, the General Board of Discipleship, the United Methodist Publishing House, the General Board of Church and Society, the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry, United Methodist Communications, and the General Board of Global Ministries. (If the GBGM member is a director of the Board, a staff member shall also serve with the understanding that the staff member will serve as executive director of NCOD.) Each agency will pay the expenses of its staff representatives.

5. Representatives from other general agencies or groups may be invited to be present as observers or consultants without vote. Their expenses will be paid by their agencies.

6. It is strongly urged that the Committee be inclusive with regard to gender, ethnicity, jurisdictions, and different sign languages and hearing abilities.

7. The Committee shall be convened by the bishop and shall have its organizational meeting no later than July 1, 1997. The members shall elect their own officers.

Objectives of the National Committee of Deaf Ministries

The objectives of the National Committee on Deaf Ministries shall be as follows:

A. To facilitate training programs for the development of deaf ministries in local churches, districts, annual conferences, and general church.

B. To serve as an advocacy group against the stigma and fear of having hearing loss and against those policies and practices in church and society that discriminate against deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons.

C. To identify critical issues and program implications of the gifts of deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons with special attention to the needs of all deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons; racial and ethnic constituencies; and persons with handicapping conditions; as well as to address issues such as abuse, care giving, poverty, legal rights, and ethical choices facing deaf and hard-of-hearing persons.

D. To rally deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons to a new consciousness of their potential and power in church and society.

E. To share in the initiation and planning of events for deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons to be conducted at all levels of the church (including the United Methodist Congress of the Deaf).

F. To coordinate information and to make referrals of requests and proposals to the appropriate agencies.

G. To advocate for the purchase and use (including training) of various communication technologies and methods including, but not limited to, telecommunication devices for the deaf (TDD), assistive listening devices and captioning services, and interpreters for more effective communications with and among deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons.

H. To keep abreast of technological developments in communications devices and update those services and training for those services.

Recommendations to General Agencies

A. We recommend that the General Council on Ministries give priority to the development of coordinated research at all levels of the church to provide demographic information concerning programs, needs, and opportunities by, with, and for deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons in The United Methodist Church.

B. We recommend that the General Board of Discipleship give priority to ministry by, with, and for deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons by:

1. Continuing the development of guidelines for the Council on Ministries/Administrative Council and the adult ministries work areas that significantly address issues and needs for ministry by, with, and for deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons in local congregations.

2. Identifying effective lay leadership models for deaf ministry for deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons.

3. Continuing and increasing the involvement and training of deaf, deafened, hard-of-hearing, and hearing persons in the leadership of the local church, such as lay leadership, lay speaking, teaching ministries, and evangelism and outreach.

C. We recommend that the United Methodist Publishing House give priority to ministry by, with, and for deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons by:

1. Producing curriculum resources in American Sign Language (ASL) for all age levels.

2. Adapting existing print or visual curriculum for use by, with, and for deaf and hard-of-hearing persons.

3. Cooperating ecumenically in the production of curriculum and other resources by, with, and for deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons.

4. Including deaf and hard-of-hearing persons in the planning, writing, signing, and testing of curriculum resources for deaf and hard-of-hearing persons.

5. Having a deaf, deafened or hard-of-hearing editor(s) on staff or on contract who is fully knowledgeable about the needs of culturally deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons to work on curriculum prepared for deaf and hard-of-hearing persons.

6. Researching within the deaf community the needs for curriculum and the appropriate design of curriculum resources for the different age levels and language abilities of deaf and hard-of-hearing persons.

D. We recommend that the General Board of Global Ministries give priority to ministry by, with, and for deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons by:

1. Holding yearly meetings with program-related general agencies to monitor progress and to receive progress reports. The General Board of Global Ministries will have responsibility for leading the denomination toward greater sensitivity to the deaf community and will also stress the importance and monitor the presence of interpreters at all national and international events.

2. Continuing and encouraging the inclusion of deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons in mission education and outreach.

3. Identifying and supporting effective models for deaf ministries in urban and rural settings, large and small membership churches, and among racial and ethnic groups.

4. Supporting the involvement of deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons in education and action in national and international affairs.

5. Planning and implementing programs that significantly include racial and ethnic deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons.

6. Initiating consultations with churches in other countries to identify concerns and needs of deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons, with follow-up outreach and ministry.

7. Including residents of United Methodist related retirement homes in decision-making on programs affecting deaf and hard-of-hearing residents.

8. Continuing to maintain a mailing list and disseminating a semi-annual newsletter in consultation with the United Methodist Congress of the Deaf.

9. Relating to and providing liaison services for interdenominational and ecumenical agencies in the area of deaf ministries, including the United Methodist Congress of the Deaf.

E. We recommend that the General Board of Church and Society give priority to the ministry by, with, and for deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons by:

1. Monitoring and supporting local, state, and federal legislation that has an impact on deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons.

2. Developing a network of deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing advocates for public policy issues, working in conjunction with the National Association of the Deaf, Self-Help for Hard-of-Hearing (SHHH), and the Association of Late Deafened Adults (ALDA), when appropriate.

3. Planning and implementing programs and resources that significantly include racial and ethnic deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons.

4. Providing financial assistance through the Office of Loans and Scholarships for persons preparing for deaf ministry.

G. We recommend that United Methodist Communications give priority to ministry by, with, and for deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons by:

1. Continuing to advocate open and closed captioned video from their constituents as well as with their own resources.

2. Purchasing and using appropriate technology to communicate with deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons through its various media.

3. Considering use of computer bulletin boards to facilitate contact between deaf and hearing leaders.

4. Providing information and education about the technology of assistive listening devices (such as, but not limited to, audio loop and FM infrared systems), captioned video, and real-time computer assisted captioning for use in local churches and at meetings beyond the local church.

5. Helping spread the word through various media about successful models for deaf ministry and the necessary conditions supporting such effective models.

6. Continuing to develop and provide educational resources for deaf and hard-of-hearing persons (such as access to TDDs and computers).

7. Employing deaf and hard of hearing person in all phases of media production, including on-camera talent, that is relevant to deaf and hard-of-hearing persons.

H. We recommend that all general agencies:

1. Evaluate all programs related specifically to deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons to identify whether these programs are by, with, and for deaf and hard-of-hearing persons and to what extent the programs enable the deaf and hard-of-hearing person to be participating, contributing and resourceful persons in church and society.

2. Develop deaf ministries that recognize the particular diverse needs of various groups of deaf and hard-of-hearing persons (age, gender, race, language, culture, geographic location, and handicapping conditions).

3. Provide regular board and staff training on deafness and hearing loss and support groups for both.

4. Allocate staff time and other resources to increase their effectiveness in ministry by, with, and for deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons. Resources include, but are not limited to, interpreters, real-time computer assisted captioning, TDDs, and budget for captioning video materials.

5. Voluntarily comply with federal or state legislation that has a positive impact on the lives of deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons.

6. Develop affirmative action goals for the employment of persons with handicapping conditions including persons who are deaf, deafened and hard-of-hearing.

I. We recommend that each annual conference:

1. Purchase a TDD for the conference office, train responsible staff to use it, and publicize the TDD number whenever the conference office telephone number is publicized.

2. Provide sign language interpreters at annual conference and other events within the conference.

3. Elect deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons as members to annual conference and as elected members to jurisdictional and general conference meetings, recognizing that adaptations to facilitate communications must be made.

4. Support, through its program agencies, education and awareness building about the varieties of ministry with deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons.

5. Set goals for new congregational formation and transformation with deaf persons; involve church development and redevelopment committees to find vacant churches or to build churches for deaf ministries.

6. Develop and maintain a census of deaf ministries within the annual conference.

7. Evaluate all programs related specifically to deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons to identify whether these programs are by, with, and for deaf, deafened, and hard-of-hearing persons and to what extent the programs enable the deaf and hard-of-hearing persons to be participating, contributing, and resourceful within their annual conferences, districts, and local churches.

Budget and Administrative Responsibility

The budget for the National Committee on Deaf Ministry shall be for the 1997-2000 quadrennium.

A. The budget for the Committee shall include expenses for members named in section V.C.3 and an adequate program budget to include identification of models and coordinating strategies for deaf ministry in The United Methodist Church.

B. The budget shall be $26,125 per year in the quadrennium.

C. It is recommended that funds be allocated for this budget to the National Committee on Deaf Ministries by the General Council on Finance and Administration, included as a line item in World Service, and administered by the General Board of Global Ministries.

Proceedings of the 1996 General Conference of The United Methodist Church

Committee On Journal Report

The Committee On Journal hereby certifies as accurate the proceedings as printed in the Daily Christian Advocate for Friday April 19, 1996.

William Reasner,
Chair, Committee On Journal
(C13, seat 2)

Friday Morning

Bishop Ann Sherer, presiding

BISHOP SHERER: Could we be in order, please? As we move to our seats and begin our business session for this day, we begin with great appreciation. We thank Bishop Sharon Zimmerman-Rader for the way in which she shared the Word with us. And we thank the Sanctuary Choir of First United Methodist Church, Peoria, Ill., Timothy Corday, director.

(applause)

BISHOP SHERER: We have once again begun our day with extraordinary worship, and we thank God. I see a card. Microphone eight, please.

TAL ODEN (Oklahoma Conference): Bishop, we ask for a moment of personal group privilege from the Oklahoma Indian Missionary Conference and the Oklahoma Annual Conference for a moment of witness and silent prayer on this anniversary of the Oklahoma City tragedy. May we have three minutes for that purpose?

BISHOP SHERER: Yes, you may.

ODEN: We would like to be led by the Rev. Phil Fenn, clergy leader of our delegation and the witness, and by Ann Saunkeah, chair of the Oklahoma Indian Missionary Conference delegation for our prayer.

Tribute to Oklahoma City Bombing Victims

PHILIP FENN: Thank you. We are one year removed from the bombing in Oklahoma City which took the lives of 149 adults and 19 children. That was an explosion which created a crater of grief in the lives of many people and sent shock throughout the nation. Though the distance of time from this event has diminished some of the anguish, this first anniversary date of April 19 causes the pain to renew itself in all who were jolted by the blast, and causes many of us to remember in a special way, to remember the experience, to think in a particular and special way about our neighbors and friends who were touched by the tragedy. And also those of us—especially in Oklahoma recall with great gratitude the marvelous outpouring of love and concern that came in all around from the world, including service and help from our own great Methodist Church. We were assisted by UMCOR and other agencies. In addition to that, there were individuals and congregations and annual conferences which sent gifts of money and supplies and assistance.

Earlier this morning, precisely at 9:02, which was the moment of the blast, citizens throughout Oklahoma paused wherever they were for just a few moments of silence. And it was a loud silence. It was a silence that articulated a message of judgment upon the bombing, but more importantly, it also was a way of honoring the memory of those who died, the grief of those who survived, and the service of those who helped. We wish to invite the General Conference to join Oklahomans and, indeed, many people elsewhere in the country and the world, in standing for just a moment of silent tribute which will be followed by a prayer by Ann Saunkeah. Let us stand for a few moments of silence.

(audience stands in silence)

ANN SAUNKEAH: Father God, we acknowledge you as the one who is bountiful in love and quick to feel the pain of the world. Look upon all who suffer this day and so enfold them with your love that in the midst of their anguish they might find the company of your helping and healing spirit. We thank you for all who by their presence and assistance in time of need have given help; and we acknowledge with grateful reverence all who by their brave endurance have allowed suffering stemmed by the cruelty of others. We commit ourselves again to the message of love, to the end that we might hasten the day when the neighborly concern will conquer the malice of conflict and hate. Amen.

FENN: Thank you.

BISHOP SHERER: Microphone six. Microphone one. That will be fine.

RANDY DAY (New York Conference): Randy Day, New York Conference. Bishop and members of the Conference, yesterday as we worshipped and worked, bombs fell on villages and also a UN peacekeeping camp in Lebanon where many people had taken refuge; and more than 100 people died there yesterday, mostly women and children. This civilian massacre is just another of a cycle of violence in a land that is so hungry for peace. Doctors who served many of those people yesterday, who had also been there during the invasion in 1982, said they had never seen suffering like this. And one woman who survived was 22 years old, lost 12 members of her family: her parents, her grandparents, her uncles. And she said, "I saw my sister burning with her child in her arms." And that seems to summarize the suffering of Oklahama, of Liberia, and what happened yesterday in Lebanon. I do have a motion to make, but first I would request that the conference extend an invitation to Bishop Judith Craig to share a moment with us.

BISHOP SHERER: If you extend an invitation to Bishop Judith Craig to speak to us, you would indicate that when the light appears, please vote. [vote approved] Bishop Craig.

Call for Peace in the Middle East

BISHOP JUDITH CRAIG: Thank you for the privilege of this moment to speak. In November of 1994, it was my high honor to represent the Council of Bishops of The United Methodist Church by visiting the constituency of the Middle East Council of Churches' communions. The visit included extensive time in Israel, Palestine. There I met with officials of the Israeli government, members of Christian communions, Mr. Arafat, and other Palestinian leaders.

I was privileged to hear stories and experience reality in a way that taught me how very difficult it is for any of us to come to understand the complexity of centuries-old enmities still raging across that little land we call holy.

Yet, though not fully able to understand, I join with many in believing that we must continue to be a voice that cries for a just peace. And, therefore, I am privileged to read a statement that has been prepared by more than myself. But on behalf of those who have asked me to read this, I am pleased to do so.

"General Conference, after General Conference has condemned the ever-increasing cycles of violence in the Middle East, the current violence around south Lebanon has surged to heartbreaking levels. We are appalled by the scale of the Israeli assault upon the people of Lebanon. The extensive damage and many casualties that Israel has inflicted upon Lebanon far exceed a proportionate response to the Katyusha rocket attacks against Israel.

Self-defense is not a legitimate justification for so massive and calculated an effort to drive up to 400,000 civilians from their homes, or to stage direct attacks upon power plants and civilian infrastructure far from the border.

The Israeli campaign against Lebanon has led to a severe, premeditated humanitarian crisis intended to bring political pressure on the governments of Lebanon and of Syria who are viewed as supporting. A strategy that holds an entire population hostage to armed attack must be condemned as totally unacceptable and in grave violation of international standards for the protection of citizens in times of conflict.

Innocent people are being punished in a massive reprisal for attacks on Israeli civilians by Hezbollah. We condemn the attacks by Hezbollah. We believe the reprisals do not act as a deterrent to more violence, but only escalates it further. In like manner, we cannot remain silent about Palestine while that community struggles to survive in the midst of such inhuman violations as:

- ongoing confiscation of Palestinian lands;
- the continued growth of Israeli settlement communities in the West Bank and East Jerusalem linked by bypass roads which isolate Palestinian towns and villages;
- the scaling and demolition of Palestinian homes;
- the administrative detention of men, women and minors without the right to fair trial;
- and continuing imprisonment of thousands of Palestinians in Israeli prisons. All these sufferings during 50 years of Israeli occupation of Palestine have been made more acute since the suicide bombings in Jerusalem, Ashkelon, and Tel Aviv. It is as if the Oslo Peace Accords had never been signed.

We call for the protection of children, youth, and other civilians.

We call for a return to normalcy for people who have been refugees or subjugated in their own land for the past three generations.

We call for Christians, Jews, and Muslims to be able to practice their faiths in the city which is holy to the three major monotheistic religions of the world.

Lastly, we call for increased efforts to assure geographic security, economic security, and political security—all of which are necessary for Israelis, Palestinians, and Lebanese to coexist.

In these calls, we join our Christian sisters and brothers of faith who are indigenous to Palestine, Lebanon, and Israel. We join with annual conferences of our denomination, with our United Methodist missionaries in the Holy Land, and with the Middle East Council of Churches in our call for a just peace and a free life for all residents and those who govern them in the Middle East." Thank you.

BISHOP SHERER: Mr. Day, microphone one. Would you repeat your name again?

RANDY DAY (New York): Randy Day, New York Conference. Bishop, I move that the 1996 General Conference send a delegation to the White House to meet with President Clinton or Vice-President Gore to express our deep desire as United Methodists, for peace with justice in the Middle East, and to share the statement just read to us by Bishop Craig, and to report back to this General Conference. I also request that Bishop Woodie White, the president of the Council of Bishops, lead this delegation of bishops and General Conference delegates.

BISHOP SHERER: Is there a second to this motion? [Second from the floor] Is there any discussion? If not, please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 678; no, 220; abstained, 19] The motion is sustained, and we will make that request. Thank you. Microphone four.

CHESTER JONES (Little Rock): If I could have a moment of special privilege to give support to our brothers and sisters in Oklahoma. That in light of the tragic bombing, I would move that we ask the secretary of the General Conference to fax some words of comfort to the mayor and the people of Oklahoma City, expressing, on behalf of all United Methodists, members and delegates of the 1996 General Conference, our thoughts and prayers for them in the process of healing.

BISHOP SHERER: Is there a second? Is there any discussion? Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 887; no, 18; abstained, 17] We have confirmed our desire for that message to be sent. Thank you. Microphone eight.

JOY MOORE (West Michigan): Respecting the work of the agenda committee, but in light of the morning message, the remembrance of the Oklahoma bombing, and the events of yesterday in Lebanon, it seems now is an appropriate time to hear of the crisis in Nigeria. And so I would request of the conference, to ask Bishop Peter Dabale to speak about that crisis at this time.

BISHOP SHERER: If you would grant Bishop Dabale permission to speak, would you please vote when the light appears? [Results: yes, 789; no, 114; abstained, 11] You have granted that permission. Bishop Dabale.

Report on Strife Nigeria

BISHOP PETER DABALE: A brief account of the massacre of innocent people in Karim Lamido local government of Taraba state of Nigeria, a brief account. History: It may interest you to note that United Methodism in Nigeria started in Karim Lamido local government in 1923.

It is therefore an area where the missionaries sponsored by Evangelical United Brethren spent most of their lives. Many missionaries from Germany are still there. Many primary schools, dispensaries, and a hospital were built in the local government area in Bambur, a town near the area, serving as the headquarters of the church. Then, before it was finally moved to Jalingo in the early 1970's, the first Christians of the Evangelical United Brethren were converted in the area. It is therefore an area which is predominant in Methodism.

What has happened in Karim Lamido therefore is of great concern to all United Methodists worldwide.

Background: I would like you to note that any social upheaval in Nigeria is associated to religion (in this case, between Muslims and Christians). The area in question is 90 percent Christians and 10 percent Muslims. The Muslims happened to be like...I want to call this what happens in Rwanda and Burundi: like the Tutsis in the area, with deep apologies to my friends in Burundi and Rwanda. They, however, do not succeed there, for the Christians are now more enlightened. What happened, therefore, is more or less a question of assertion.

Remote and Immediate Cause: As could be noted in the background, the remote cause is a usual showdown between Christians and Muslims. The immediate cause is a local misunderstanding between a Christian woman and a Muslim. The Muslim attempted and raped a woman under threat of death. After raping her, he severed her hand, cut off [her left hand]. As a result of this, fighting broke out between the local people and the Muslims, in which some damages were really bad. The Muslims did not take it kindly and blamed everything on Christians.

Matters came to the worst on the last Easter Sunday, when the Muslims hired their fellow kindred and burned houses, churches, and killed people indiscriminately. Before the government could intervene, a lot of damage had been done. A whole village was completely burned down—10,000 people including churches and schools. A total of 15 churches were burned, all belonging to the United Methodist Church. Top government functionaries of Taraba State, who incidentally are Muslims, were aware, but decided to intervene too late after the massacre.

It is early to know and state what the situation is now. But what is clear and certain is that a lot of damage has been done to lives. Eighty lives were laid down; 50 children; totalling 130 people were killed. Some have been missing in the society. This morning he told me that some of the family has not yet been found. Brothers and sisters, thank you for concern, not only for Nigeria, but Africa and the world. God bless us.

BISHOP SHERER: Thank you, Bishop Dabale. [applause] Special privilege, Kansas Area. Microphone three.

JAMES R. REID (Kansas West): Bishop Sherer, members of the General Conference.

BISHOP SHERER: Your name, please.

REID: I rise to point of personal privilege to ask for your prayers for lay delegate, Barbara Rose, who last night learned of the death of her husband, Bill. We're in the same community, and I serve as her district superintendent, and she is a vital member of our delegation. She has returned to Hutchison, Kansas, where she is joining her family. We ask for your prayers.

BISHOP SHERER: Thank you, Mr. Reid. We have heard many voices of pain and hurt throughout our world. In Liberia, in Nigeria, in the Middle East, in Oklahoma, in the midst of this community. I would ask Mr. Kimbrough to come and lead us in a song as we hold all of these persons in our prayers.

STEVE KIMBROUGH: On page 55 in this green book, Global Praise, you will find Jesus' words, "Peace, I leave with you. My own peace I now leave with you. It is not the peace of the world, but it is the peace I leave." Jesus has left that peace that we might be the bearers of that peace to the world. Join me in this simple melody in the three languages, for we are a people of many languages. Be it "peace", "friciden", "pace", "paix".

(song)

KIMBROUGH: Amen.

BISHOP SHERER: I see a card. Thirteen. Microphone 13.

Call for "Silent" Bishops'
Word on Homosexuality

BILL HINSON (Texas Conference): On this somber day when our grief turns green remembering all the pain which has been described, it's important, I believe, that we be honest as our speaker of the morning has suggested and share all of our pain with this General Conference. I rise, then, to a moment of personal privilege. And I wish to share my pain as a member of this covenant community upon learning through a public newscast that the conscience of 15 of our bishops will not allow them to affirm the doctrine and Discipline of our church. They have, indeed, broken their silence and much, much more. Now I plead with our remaining bishops to break their silence. Tell us in a clear, convincing way of your support of our Discipline, our laws. Assure us that our standards are based on scripture and majority rule. Tell us. Tell us, shaken, hurting church. Please, tell us.

BISHOP SHERER: Thank you Mr. Hinson.

(applause)

BISHOP SHERER: And now. And now we turn to our time of prayer. As we prepare for that, I would like for us to hear the words from the letter to the Phillipians, the first chapter, verses nine through 11.

(reading of scripture)

BISHOP SHERER: I invite us now to look again at the two questions: What is my most earnest hope for these next few hours of the General Conference? What do I believe is God's most fervent hope for these next few hours? Would you turn now to the person next to you and share those questions, and after five minutes, we will invite you to pray with that conversation partner, beseeching God to bring the two hopes into one. Let us turn now and share with the person next to us.

(group sharing)

BISHOP SHERER: Would you share in prayer with your conversation partner, beseeching God to bring your hopes and God's hopes into one? Let us pray.

(prayer)

BISHOP SHERER: We move now from prayer into our business session, hopeful people. Yesterday morning as I looked out over this General Conference and saw us in pairs and triads praying, I have great confidence about the ways in which God can work through us to achieve God's own purposes. We begin first with a report from GCOM, Bishop Bill Dew. You will remember according to paragraph 803 in the Discipline both the General Council on Ministries and the General Council on Finance and Administration report directly to the General Conference. Bishop Dew.

BISHOP WILLIAM W. DEW JR.: Thank you. Good morning delegates and colleagues, visitors and friends. As Bishop Sherer has just indicated, we of the General Council on Ministries have the privilege of reporting directly to the General Conference early in each session. We see this as an opportunity to report to you on the various ministry and mission proposals that are being presented to us here at the General Conference. But first, I want to say a word of appreciation to you as delegates for your leadership. For you, as our leaders, shape the future of the church.

Under our rules, this report is designed to place before you significant ministry thrusts of the general agencies of the church as they assist local churches and annual conferences in their mission and ministries. It will identify ways that your General Council on Ministries has facilitated the development of various proposals and collaborated in the development of many program-related items that you are going to be considering this week.

Quadrrennium of Many Studies

It's clear to us that this has been a quadrrennium of studies. The General Council on Finance and Administration has conducted a listening project with annual conference, finance, and other invited leaders. Our Council of Bishops has been involved with studies on the ministry and a study on the global nature of the church, which have provided extensive opportunities for us to listen to local people and other church leaders. In addition, our General Board of Global Ministries has been conducting extensive annual conference dialogues, and many of you were invited to those dialogues. The seminaries of our denomination held Agenda 21 consultation to discuss the future of theological education in the preparation of future leadership. The GCOM Connectional Issues Study has involved extensive listening across the church, perhaps the most extensive listening to the church in recent history.

These and other studies were facilitated when the General Council on Ministries initiated consultations to bring leaders of the various study groups together for communication and coordination so that each effort would not have unnecessary duplication. In addition, you will be considering proposals from the Study of Baptism and from the Study of the Relocation of the General Board of Global Ministries. These were begun eight years ago. Indeed, it has been a time of study and reflection.

In addition, the General Conference has before it at least five proposals to enhance our ethnic ministries. And we encourage you to think of these as ministries of The United Methodist Church with significant constituency groups. So often we hear that these are ministries for the Hispanics or for Native Americans, but we need to understand that these are ministries of the entire church, and they are for the entire church. GCOM has played important roles in the development of the National Plan for Hispanic Ministries and the proposal for Strengthening the Black Church for the 21st Century. These were based on referrals to GCOM from previous General Conference action.

GCOM, through its Native American Concerns Committee, has supported the development of the Native American Comprehensive Plan. We've received frequent reports on the Asian American Language Ministry Study, and the Korean American Missionary Conference proposal. We commend all of these emphases for your consideration.

GCOM Works with Program Agencies

As a part of each General Council on Ministries meeting this quadrennium, we received reports from each of the program-related general agencies. These were very useful in helping annual conference leaders understand the various ministries each agency provides to better resource our local churches and our annual conferences and our missionary conferences as well.

In the GCOM, we work closely with general secretaries. They're members of the GCOM, and they are leaders of our combined programmatic life. Working with the General Council on Finance and Administration, GCOM has developed recommendations for the ministry needs of the general agencies. This is an extensive process where each agency's needs are assessed and funding recommendations are made based on resources available. We have also evaluated the ministries of each of the program agencies, and in this way we provide mutual accountability for the church.

We have also heard from our advocacy commissions about significant initiatives which need our attention. The Commission on the Status and Role of Women is to be commended for the assistance and training they have provided across the church on issues related to sexual misconduct. They have been effective resources for our church in dealing with these issues. The efforts of the Commission on Religion and Race related to hate groups, such as the ones in rural America, is as timely as today's news. We benefited from the commission leadership on this issue before it was front page news.

The initiative on "Quest" by our General Board of Discipleship has helped the church direct its attention to our primary focus for ministry. We know annual conferences and their leaders have found these directions useful as we focus on our purpose as God's people.

We also commend the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry for their study on the reclaiming of our Wesleyan commitment to education and the efforts to involve local congregations in study and action. These efforts and the GCOM-shared mission for young people are crucial initiatives for our times.

The ability of our church to begin the initiative in Russia between sessions of the General Conference has provided a timely response; and we appreciate the leadership of the General Board of Global Ministries in this initiative. And we could only begin to imagine the impact of these efforts. The Peace With Justice special program of the Board of Church and Society keeps this effective witness before our churches and demonstrates our witness in the world.

And our church's response to the Advance for Christ and His Church continues to be one of our greatest success stories. We continue to encourage our people in choosing projects for support across the church.

We remind you of the covenanting proposal that is presented by the Council of Bishops, "Churches in Covenant Communion: The Church of Christ Uniting." And we commend the General Commission on Christian Unity for their continued support for all of our ecumenical involvements.

The General Council on Ministry also works collaboratively with our agencies and several inter-agency task forces. One such project is the Interagency Task Force on AIDS. Now I'd like to introduce the Rev. Paul Dirdak, chair of the task force, for a special presentation.

Inter-agency Task Force on AIDS

PAUL DIRDAK: Thank you. It is my privilege to chair the Interagency Task Force on AIDS. It is a task force which assembles the general program agencies of the church as well as the Commissions on Religion and Race and the Status and Role of Women and United Methodist Communications. All of these agencies meet regularly to consider the way in which they will support one another and encourage one another in the face of the epidemic that confronts us all.

One of the practices of the commission is that we have three members whose presence is made possible by the General Council on Ministries. One is a person with AIDS; another is a person who is a parent of someone with AIDS; and a third is a caregiver for someone with AIDS. These people join us in all that we do as full members of the task force. As we have worked in these last two quadrennia, we have encountered a delightful, lovely, United Methodist person who has become an inspiration to us; and in the course of our deliberations we believed that you would want to know her. She is a precious member of this church, and we love her very much. She comes from a small town near Buffalo, N.Y., where she has been a United Methodist nearly all her life. We would like you to know her now. Her name is Helen Worth.

Worth Tells of Living With AIDS

HELEN WORTH: Thank you, Paul. I have prayed long and hard about what I want to say to you. God has been preparing me for this moment for eight years. Please listen with an open mind and loving heart to my message this morning.

I have been a United Methodist since I was 13. I attend the same church now. I am 62 years old. I still am proud to be an active member of The United Methodist Church.

However, I have undergone a transformation. My spiritual awakening began in 1988. Although I didn't know it at the time, I was teaching English (I didn't know at the time that my spiritual awakening had begun)... I was teaching English at the local school. And the hot topics of the '80s was AIDS and I wanted to be a "with it" teacher. I involved my students in research and, to keep abreast of what was happening and to understand better how one could end up with this dread disease.

Fear of AIDS

Neither my students nor I felt threatened by the disease, really, because we felt where we lived in a small town in Western New York (population 2,000), really didn't put us at risk. Besides, at the time, we felt that this was a "gay disease." I didn't know very many gay people or lesbians then. I did have one gay friend who was a former student and had "come out," as they say. When we saw each other, we always hugged, and I had not seen him for awhile. And at a funeral, we happened to meet again, and he came up, and he grabbed me, and he hugged me, and he gave me a big kiss. I was not prepared for my reaction. It was instantaneous. I forgot about my AIDS education. I forgot about my Christianity. I simply stiffened, backed away, and fled. I held my mouth just so, and went home and gargled with Listerine. Little did I know then that Craig was the one that probably should have gone home and gargled, if in fact, you could have spread AIDS that way, and of course, you could not.

The following year my students talked me into donating blood to the American Red Cross, and I did. And when I came back from a summer vacation, one of those, I was told in a letter from the Red Cross that I was HIV positive. Impossible, I said. I had done nothing risky. Then I remembered in '81 I had had an operation, and during that surgery, I received four units of blood, one of which was found out to be contaminated.

What do I do now, says I? One of the first persons I told was my local pastor, and I was teaching Sunday school then. I had 20 students, ages 18 to 80, and I told them. And I fully expected when I came back the following Sunday morning that it would be the news of the church, and nobody looked at me strangely or said a word. They had held my secret. I thought, "Whoa!" I was pretty much treated that way, I think from the time, in my home town, from the time I first found out I was infected.

But then, I remembered the Craig incident, and I thought, "Oh, my gosh. I'm going to call him." So I did, and I said, "Remember when we met at the funeral home. Remember that I backed away and left? Craig, I'm sorry." And I told him about my infection. The next day, roses arrived and a note. And the note said, "Mrs. Worth, I love you, and I will pray for you. Craig." Wow! A seed had been planted.

However, I still felt resentment and anger to all homosexuals and drug addicts. I thought, They are the ones who have brought me to this point. I had been going to the infectious disease unit in Rochester, N.Y. And when I went into the waiting room, it was filled with mostly young men, and I thought most of them must be gay or drug addicts. I would sit myself somewhere where I wouldn't have to sit by them. I'd put my coat on one side of me and my purse on the other, give them my best teacher glare, and hope that I wouldn't have to talk to them.

Spiritual Transformation

This went on for several visits until one morning I was there, and a young man walked in, very emaciated, looked around, and there were no seats except where my coat and purse sat. I thought, "Oh, no. He's going to sit by me." As he came closer, he held his arms out, and he said, "I'm dying with AIDS. My family have kicked me out. Before I die, I'd like the arms of a woman around me one more time. Please, will you hold me?" "Oh, God." That was my full transition. I jumped to my feet. I grabbed him. I patted him on the back like I would my son. This could be my son. He could be my neighbor. He could be someone sitting in the pew next to me in church. And I cried. The other men that were in there all got up, and we formed a circle, and we all cried. And when the receptionist comes out and said, she usually said, "Next," but she said, "what's going on here?"

That was a major breakthrough for me. God has opened my eyes even more. Because of the Inter-Agency Task Force, I have had the opportunity to travel, and now my husband joins me. We are a unit now. He's here. And what we do is we think it's very important to go out and to educate about AIDS.

I was in Brazil and listened to the women there who told of their sexual problems and what was happening to them. And just recently returned, my husband and I returned from Vellore, India with the World Council of Churches, where I represented Women and AIDS for the United States of America.

I'd like to close my remarks with this: If I had the opportunity to go back and not have AIDS, it's been 15 years now, and yes, I have been ill, would I do that? No. Because I would never go back and be the person that I was in terms of the way I related to my fellow man. I have heard this issue here now for the two days I have been here, and I know it's a big issue. But I implore you, let God do the judging. All we have to do is love our fellow man. Thank you.

(applause)

BISHOP DEW: As I come to the end of this report, I want to take a moment to say a word of appreciation to all of those persons, directors, members of the staff our general agencies, for we are truly blessed to have dedicated volunteers who give so unselfishly of their time as they serve God's mission through the ministry of our agencies. And all of the staff of our agencies are also dedicated Christian leaders who seek to assist our churches in so many ways to be faithful to God's vision for the church. Our opportunity to work in cooperative and collaborative relationships with these colleagues is a great privilege for the members of the General Council on Ministries, and we appreciate their leadership, as we all work together to enable God's mission. And the General Conference, perhaps more than some in recent history, this General Conference has the opportunity to set the direction for the church's future. And we know you will do your work prayerfully and carefully as you consider all the proposals and then take action.

Our specific legislative proposals will be presented later in the General Conference. Today we simply wanted to give you a quick overview, a context, as you do your work. And we offer you these and other ministry initiatives so that we might lead our church in the 21st Century. May God bless all our journey together. Thank you.

BISHOP SHERER: Thank you, Bishop Dew. (applause) And now we will hear from the Committee on Courtesies and Privileges, William Cook. I guess not. The Committee on Presiding Officers Report, Rex Bevins.

REX BEVINS (Nebraska): The presiding officer for tomorrow morning will be Bishop Bruce Blake of the Dallas Area.

BISHOP SHERER: Thank you. The Committee on Calendar, Sarah Miller.

SARAH MILLER: Thank you. On the second page of your DCA which you received this morning, right here, is the agenda for the remainder of today. You'll notice that the majority of our time for this day will be given to the work of our legislative committees. You need that time. A preview of tomorrow: We'll be doing more legislative committee work. We'll be having a report from the Committee on Hispanic Ministries; presentation of the Hispanic hymnal, and we'll be voting on some items that are printed in today's DCA.

Our rules keep us on track by not allowing us to vote in plenary until items have been presented in the DCA on the previous day. So tomorrow we'll deal with calendar items that are printed in today's DCA. I hope you'll be familiar with those and be prepared tomorrow to vote. Thank you.

BISHOP SHERER: Thank you, Ms. Miller. The Committee on the General Conference, John J. Thomas. Microphone three.

Hillary Clinton to Visit General Conference

JOHN J. THOMAS (South Indiana): Bishop Sherer, members of the Council of Bishops, delegates, friends, guests: As chair of the Commission on General Conference, I have an announcement to make on behalf of that commission. Back some time ago, we were advised that the President of the United States might be willing to accept an invitation to come and bring greetings. An invitation was extended to him to attend. Just recently we received information from his office that he would not be able to attend, but that his wife, the First Lady, would be able to come. (applause) Accordingly, an invitation was extended by the commission to our First Lady, Hillary Clinton. Acceptance has been received, and she will be here to bring greetings next Wednesday, April 24th, at 2 p.m. (applause)

BISHOP SHERER: Thank you, Mr. Thomas. And now we will hear from Mr. Brawn. Mr. Brawn.

JOHN BRAWN: I'm sorry, Bishop, I didn't hear my name being called. I'm a lay delegate, not a delegate, but a lay person from the California-Nevada Annual Conference who's been working with the secretary of the General Conference on the computer system. We've had great fortune to change the way that the computer systems work compared to four years ago. Now, I'd like to introduce the two Susans who have put us on the Internet. Susan Peek and Susan Brumbaugh. And I'm going to disappear like in the Wizard of Oz behind the curtain and pull the levers.

THE GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

Denver, Colorado

Monday, April 22, 1996

Vol. 3 No. 6

Day Five Highlights Hispanic Plan, Hispanic Hymnal, Word from Liberia

The General Conference enthusiastically welcomed expressions of inclusiveness and the worldwide nature of the church on the morning of day five.

As delegates and visitors arrived, many were caught up in the rhythmic exuberance of music by an African-American intergenerational choir from St. Luke Community United Methodist Church, Dallas. Led by Monya Logan, the 70 musicians had many participants swaying, clapping and singing along. During worship their special arrangement of "O For a Thousand Tongues to Sing" was especially stirring.

In a report that featured a mariachi band and a 12-voice Hispanic choir recruited from several churches, delegates learned that the National Plan for Hispanic Ministries had made significant progress during the quadrennium.

As the morning session closed, they applauded Council of Bishops President Woodie W. White's announcement that Bishop Arthur F. Kulah was on his way from Liberia and that a lay delegate from that country had already arrived. On day one there had been grave concern for the bishop's safety and the delegate's ability to leave that violence-torn country.

Morning Worship

Led by Arkansas Area Bishop Richard B. Wilke, morning worship included Scripture reading by Mary Miller, South Indiana Conference, and a sermon by Bishop Joseph Christian Humper of Sierra Leone. Quoting texts from Romans, the bishop asked: "If God is with us, who

A Conference Moment

General Conference is a time to celebrate our successful ministries. The joy of Africa University should be in the hearts of all delegates. The joy of being United Methodist rests not in issues, but in our ability to put our faith into action.

is against us?"

"From this text," he said, "we find the indisputable truth and undeniable fact established: that God has, over the centuries, been and always is with us, even in the midst of our trials and tribulations, frustrations and despair in a world that appears to be unpredictable and challenging. . . . Take your part with Christ and his despised, misplaced and misguided people, for your recompense will be duly acknowledged, not only by God but with the angels in heaven."

Business Session

Presiding Bishop Bruce P. Blake, Dallas Area, led delegates in the now familiar "time of discernment." A special resolution honoring the "visionary leadership" of Robert K. Feaster, was read by Committee on Courtesies chair Bill Cook. The full resolution appears on page 189.

Mississippi Area Bishop Marshall L. Meadors Jr. introduced Richard Wilson Riley, U.S. Secretary of Education. A lifelong United Methodist, Mr. Riley had addressed the higher education banquet the night before. Bishop Meadors and Roger Ireson, general secretary, General Board of Higher Education and Ministry, presented Mr. Riley with a copy of Education, the Gift of Hope to carry personally to President Bill Clinton.

National Plan for Hispanic Ministry

Bishop Blake called on Nebraska Area Bishop Joel Martinez, chair of the National Plan for Hispanic Ministries, adopted by the 1992 conference.

Celebratory in nature, the report began with delegates singing "Decolores." Vice chair Rebecca Youngblood of Mississippi detailed many successes of the past four years. Fifty-six annual conferences participate in some form of Hispanic ministry (up from 38 last quadrennium). Reports indicate:

- 494 faith communities in 40 conferences;
- 199 church-school extension programs in 19 conferences;
- 66 new congregations started and 59 revitalized;
- 799 outreach ministries;
- 550 lay missionaries recruited and trained.

To give life to the statistics, Ms. Youngblood introduced "three persons whose lives have been impacted by the plan": Ana Velasquez Stone, a lay missionary from Kansas City; Mel Manchinski, a pastor from Phoenix; and Lavinia Lavoy, a lay woman from Orlando. Their moving testimonies brought rounds of applause.

Concluding the report, Bishop Martinez said: "The plan is first and foremost about people and congregations responding to God's purpose. Much is still to be done." The committee is proposing a budget of $1 million through the new quadrennium as seed money to go to conferences and local churches as development grants.

New Spanish Hymnal

Bishop Elias Galvan, Phoenix Area, introduced "for the first time in the history of our church, an official Spanish hymnal for the use of the entire church." He praised the General Board of Discipleship and The United Methodist Publishing House for accepting the publishing challenge.

Delegates joined the Hispanic choir to sing selections from the new hymnal and participated in a formal liturgy giving their unanimous approval. That action and the recognition of hymnal editor Raquel Martinez drew a standing ovation.

Nominations

Floor nominations were received for University Senate and Judicial Council to be added to those already listed by the Council of Bishops (DCA, p. 86).

Delegate Richard Reeves of Central Illinois asked prayers for congregations in Illinois affected by tornadoes. Three churches and parsonages plus many homes were destroyed.

Delegates were invited to participate in the Native American Awareness Sunday offering, which will be

Joys

William C. Crouch, North Texas Conference clergy delegate, has a new granddaughter, Claire Elizabeth Crouch, born April 19. Her proud uncle is North Texas lay reserve Tim Crouch.

Richard Street, DCA composition manager of news and features, is the beaming grandfather of Conner James Gleaves, born April 16.

Button Success Inspires New Project

Yes, the issues of this General Conference have been pinned "close to the heart" of many delegates. Thank you to everyone who answered my appeal on Wednesday for buttons. Many people came by with a sample. Keep those buttons coming.

My next project is to collect dollar bills from every delegate and visitor. I will take a picture of the bills I receive and they will appear in a future issue of the DCA. Unfortunately, I will not be able to return the bills after the photograph. Bring your bills to the DCA office, attention Brad Motta.

Corrections

"Cuban Bishop Describes Suffering in Wake of U.S. Embargo" has two errors. The first two sentences should be replaced by: Poor people in Cuba die for lack of medicine, children are hungry, and people come to church in tattered clothes and shoes that are falling apart, said Cuban Methodist Bishop Gustavo Cruz.

In the fifth paragraph, the second sentence should read: Both the United States and the Cuban governments are responsible.

Church Leadership

Can You Top This?

What a competitive bunch of United Methodists! The April 20 DCA asked for contributions to the "Can You Top This?" hall of fame, and respond you did!

A FAMILY AFFAIR

Since 1968, says Rebecca Carver, clergy delegate, "at least one member of my family or my husband's family [has served] on the Iowa delegation. At times there were three!" They've included: Donald Carver, her father-in-law (1968-92); Arthur Campney, her father (1976-84); Philip Carver, her husband (1984-92); JoAnne Campney, her mother (1988); and Rebecca herself (1996). She added that her son, Joel Benjamin Carver, was born during the 1992 General Conference. Someone to carry on the tradition?

SPOUSES

Robert "Bob" and Elizabeth "Betty" Sweet, New England delegates, like to confuse people when they vote on opposite sides of issues, and they've had lots of practice. In 1980, Betty was an alternate lay delegate. Every General Conference since then, both Bob and Betty have been delegates or reserves.

FATHER AND SON

North Texas boasts a father-son team of delegates: William C. Crouch, who is clergy, and his son, Tim Crouch, a lay reserve.

GRANDMOTHER AND GRANDDAUGHTER

Elizabeth "Libby" A.S. Wright, clergy delegate, is the grandmother of Elizabeth "Betsy" C. Hulick, 17, lay delegate. Both hail from the Virginia Conference. Libby serves Aldersgate United Methodist Church, Hampton, Va. Betsy is a senior at Warwick High School.

COUSINS

John "Jack" McCabe, Northern Illinois lay delegate, and Merlin Ackerson, Iowa clergy delegate, are first cousins. They have been elected to the past four General Conferences (1984, 1988, 1992, 1996).

FIRST A LAY DELEGATE, THEN A CLERGY DELEGATE

Beverly Shamana, California-Pacific Conference, has worn both lay and clergy hats at General Conference. She was a lay delegate in 1976 and a clergy delegate in 1992 and 1996.

FREQUENT GENERAL CONFERENCE ATTENDEE

The Rev. Winslow Wilson, Wisconsin Conference, attended the 1936 General Conference, voting on the union of the Methodist Episcopal Church; the Methodist Episcopal Church, South; and the Methodist Protestant Church. He subsequently attended 13 General Conferences.

MOST DELEGATES FROM ONE CHURCH

Buncombe Street United Methodist Church, Greenville, S.C., has four persons attending General Conference in official capacities. They include clergy delegates William C. Reid and William H. Willimon, lay delegate John A. Redmond, and Clelia D. Hendrix, a member of the Committee on Correlation and Editorial Revisions. By the way, Ms. Hendrix is Mr. Redmond's mother-in-law.

Buncombe Street Church is also proud to claim Bishop Jack Meadors, Mississippi Area; Susan Henry-Crowe, Judicial Council; and education secretary Richard W. Riley, General Board of Higher Education and Ministry keynote speaker—all of whom have roots there.

First Church, Tulsa, Okla., boasts two delegates—James Buskirk, clergy, and Tom Junk, lay—and two reserves—Jessica Moffatt, clergy, and Bob Parker, lay.

From First Church, Dyersburg, Tenn., come delegates Dossie F. Wheatley and Susan M. Sharpe, both clergy, and R.H. Bond, lay reserve.

Keep those "Can You Top This?" stories coming to Barbara Dunlap-Berg at the DCA office.

taken in local churches this Sunday since the conference will not be in session that day.

First Calendar Items

Delegates were given their first opportunity to consider calendar items coming from committees. Two items were lifted from consent calendars to be considered later. Delegates approved committee reports which rejected changes proposed for General Board of Church and Society responsibilities, rejected by a 75 percent vote margin a proposal to eliminate conference commissions on the status and role of women, and approved a resolution asking Gideon International to open membership to women. They delayed consideration of a General Conference "mission statement" until other committees could report.

Veteran conference watchers observed a small miracle. No committee recommendations were overturned, and the conference recessed the calendar session early. Such an experience is not anticipated in the second week, when the race to adjournment begins to accelerate.

Taking General Conference Home

General Conference opened with the celebration of the Lord's Supper. The chalice and patens used will travel to various places across the United States. Paula Watson, Pearl River, N.Y., encouraged her pastor to purchase the set so that her congregation could experience a spiritual link with the events of this conference.

Dick Vreeland will give the communion set to Genesis United Methodist Church in Grand Rapids, Michigan. The church had its first worship service in March 1996.

Fred Royer, a pastor of a two-point charge, will use the set at both churches May 5. The set will then travel to the meeting of the National Fellowship of Associate Members and Local Pastors in Colorado Springs next September.

Whether you have purchased a communion set or not, the challenge of each delegate is: "How do I take this experience home?" Each of us will do it differently. May each of us return with an experience to share with the people of God.

Resolution Honors Retiring Publisher

Whereas Robert K. Feaster was named president and publisher of The United Methodist Publishing House on June 1, 1983, and led the publishing ministry of The United Methodist Church in its celebration of 200 years of service, while providing visionary leadership to undertake significant changes to make the publishing house an effective agent for advancing the cause of Christianity now and in the 21st century.

And whereas his commitment to assuring the highest quality in services and resources inspired and motivated major attention by the staff to share with more people in more places the will to know God through Jesus Christ, love God, serve God, and their neighbor.

Now therefore, be it resolved that we, the delegates of the 1996 General Conference of The United Methodist Church, meeting in Denver, Colorado, April 16-26, 1996, do hereby express our heartfelt gratitude and sincere appreciation for the dedicated leadership, exceptional competence, and abiding vision of Robert K. Feaster, as he has led The United Methodist Publishing House in its service to the church and to the world.

On the occasion of his retirement, we give thanks for all that he has contributed, and pray God's continued blessings on him, his wife, Barbara, and their family in the years to come.

♀♀ Blessed Be the Women: Be Counted! ♀♀

Observations in Legislative Committees:

- Conferences - Full com action on Korean American Missionary Conf: Women were 30% of group and made 19% of comments.
- Finance - Full com action on the Budget: Men are 79% of group and made 77% of comments.
- Global Ministries - Full com action on Shalom Zones and the Native American Plan: Men are 50% of group and made 68% of comments. Laity are 23% of group and made 15% of comments.

Troubling Observations: Men as chairs may rescue women speakers to help them finish their speeches; may scold women, but not men, who challenge rulings of the chair; may give female committee/subcommittee vice chairs a chance to preside/present when the issue involves women, or racial/ethnic minority vice chairs when the issue involves racial/ethnic minority persons.

Advance Hospitality Tent, Suite Recognize U.M. Missionaries

During General Conference, the Advance for Christ and His Church is launching a special recognition of United Methodist missionaries who have answered God's call to mission.

Delegates and visitors are invited to visit the Advance tent, which features a fascinating photo exhibition of missionaries from 1833 to the present, as well as colorful displays and free souvenirs (while supplies last). Located directly across from the convention center, the tent is open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. April 22-24.

Another attraction is the new, interactive, multimedia "Whom Shall I Send?" CD-ROM, demonstrated in the Advance hospitality suite, also open from 8 to 8 April 22-24, Suite 2031, Marriott Hotel. The CD, which also focuses on General Board of Global Ministries missionaries supported through the Advance, will run on several CD-ROM "stations," for individual exploration. The CD features video clips, missionary photos and biographical sketches, and other information.

Council of Bishops Nomination

The Council of Bishops nominates Rodolfo Beltran of the Philippines to fill the unexpired term of Maximo Dizon on the Commission on the General Conference. Mr. Dizon must resign due to illness.

U.S. Secretary of Education Addresses United Methodists

John Wesley's passion for education once again needs to be the center of the work of The United Methodist Church, according to U.S. Secretary of Education Richard W. Riley.

Mr. Riley, a United Methodist, delivered that message as the keynote speaker for Higher Education Night April 19. He will deliver the 75-page Education: the Gift of Hope to President Clinton. The document will be considered by General Conference later this week.

The education secretary urged delegates "to fulfill this powerful document" by:

- preparing new generations of teachers to work with parents;

Prayer List

On Tuesday, Bishop Judith Craig, on behalf of the bishops, requested that the General Conference be wrapped in a "mantle of prayer." Prayer has become a part of every aspect of our gathering. The prayer chapel, subcommittees, legislative committees, worship and other events have been filled with the prayers of the people. When we pray for each other, we show our care and responsibility for each other. When we share our burdens, we share ourselves.

We invite you to come by the DCA and write down your prayer concerns, which we will publish in future issues of the DCA. Print the name of the person or group that you would like raised in prayer. We ask that delegates read the requests and offer prayer as part of their daily devotion. (We are busy, but not THAT BUSY!) Prayer requests need only include a first name or a request of several words. (We will not identify the persons requesting prayer.)

Prayers for Liberia

A delegate from Liberia urged General Conference to request U.S. government intervention in that war-torn African nation. During a press conference, Lamark J. Cox Sr., lay leader of Liberia, said anarchy now reigns in his country. "Gangs roam the capital of Monrovia, indiscriminately killing and destroying property," he said. Cox said he was packing for General Conference when 15 to 20 men held his family at gun point and stole suitcases they had been packing for Denver. Mr. Cox, his wife and his daughter managed to get out of Monrovia the following day on a U.S. military flight. Liberia Area Bishop Arthur F. Kulah was scheduled to arrive during the second week of the conference. This tragic situation is in our thoughts and prayers.

- reaching out to local public schools and working to sustain them in their attempts to prepare students for college;

- responding to the shrill voices of divisions, wedge issues and cynicism with positive options.

He said teachers who graduate from college today are not given the skills needed to encourage parents to be full partners in the learning process. "We . . . need to overcome this gap, and now is the time to do it," he said.

The Africa University Choir, a product of mission and labor by The United Methodist Church, sang at the dinner. The choir will sing to the entire General Conference tomorrow

These are the people who put the presenters names up in lights! It takes a crew to make the visuals of the conference come alive.

DCA Hits Bottom...

...the bottom floor of the convention center, that is. The DCA press office is now in the Ballroom. We hope this new larger area will allow more space for dancing and partying which the former location did not accommodate. Most parties begin after 1 a.m. It is at that time we go into "Executive Session," and we are not open to the public.

Host Families Open Homes to Observers, Pages, Marshals

"The biggest surprise is how little we see him!" Connie Cornelius said of the Drew University seminarian staying at her home. Ms. Cornelius and her husband, David Ashby, are one of more than 25 families in the Denver area who volunteered to open their homes to observers, pages and marshals during General Conference.

Linda Gertenback, a diaconal minister, could add "hotel management" to her Christian education duties at Mountain View United Methodist Church, Boulder. She chaired the local committee that secured host families for the U.S. visitors to General Conference. In addition, she and her committee coordinated more than 20 area churches that volunteered to host the choirs who are participating in the General Conference worship services. International guests were placed by another committee.

"We have people who are staying two weeks and some who are only staying two to three days," Ms. Gertenback said. All have been welcomed to the Denver area and are staying with families as far away as Littleton and Bloomfield. The committee also arranged for a low-cost housing option at Loretto Heights College.

Ms. Cornelius decided to serve as a host when she found herself between jobs. "Our financial giving to the church is limited, and we thought we could give back in a different way." While their guest has been leaving early in the morning and returning late at night, the Cornelius/Ashby family has had a few minutes to talk with him. "It's fun to be updated on all the goings on," she said, adding that their guest showed them how to retrieve the daily proceedings from the Internet.

"We had a surplus of families who volunteered to serve as hosts," Ms. Gertenback said. "It's a wonderful sign of hospitality."

Lord, Teach Us: The Lord's Prayer & the Christian Life
by William H. Willimon and Stanley Hauerwas

This brief introduction to the Christian faith includes Christian beliefs, practices, character, and ways in which we become and remain Christian. After a short introduction, the authors work through each phrase of the Lord's Prayer, using it as a framework for the Christian life. Providing basic faith understanding, this helpful book is appropriate for inquirers, as well as Sunday school classes. The book will help the user experience Christianity as attractive and inviting, not distant, difficult, or foreboding.

William H. Willimon is Dean of the Chapel and professor of Christian Ministry at the Divinity School at Duke University, Durham, North Carolina.

Stanley Hauerwas is professor of Theological Ethics at Duke University. He is a well-known teacher, author, seminar speaker, and cultural critic.

Legislative Committee Reports

Church and Society — (4/20/96, 4:45 p.m.)

The committee recommended concurrence:

- Reaffirming the historic United Methodist church and state positions on public education and opposing government legislation on Constitutional amendments to change existing First Amendment rights;
- Urging the closing of military installations;
- Lifting up the plight of “Comfort Women” or women who were drafted as “sex slaves” by Japan during World War II;
- Adding a new resolution on Immigrants in the United States that urges opposition to anti-immigrant legislation;
- Amending and updating current resolution on “New Issues in Human Rights”;
- Adding a resolution on “Gun Violence in the US,” replacing two current resolutions;
- Calling for actions against tobacco marketing techniques aimed at children by Philip Morris and RJR Nabisco and requesting the General Board of Church and Society to explore measures to stop such marketing including—“if necessary”—a boycott. The boycott amendment passed by a 40-38-9 vote;
- Replacing the current resolution on “U.S. Agriculture and Rural Communities in Crisis” with an updated version.

—Shanta M. Bryant and Lee Ranck

Conferences — (4/20/96, 4 p.m.)

The committee recommended concurrence:

- Providing for “Mentally, Physically, and Psychologically Handicapping Conditions” wording in the Discipline to be changed to “individuals with disabilities” or “people with disabilities”;
- Adding district coordinator of Criminal Justice and Mercy Ministries to the list of optional members of the District Council on Ministries (Para. 752.2);
- Adding the words “in the episcopal area” to Para. 703.7;
- Substituting new text for Para. 664.7 providing for the GBGM to administer, initiate, and coordinate a Mission;
- Authorizing a task force to examine the current jurisdictional system and to develop a plan to improve the system and its boundaries (or propose an alternate system) for effective, unified ministry in metropolitan areas and report to the 2000 General Conference;

The committee recommended concurrence with amendments:

- Establishing an inclusive task force appointed by the Council of Bishops to study and make recommendations to the 2000 General Conference regarding Korean-American Missionary Conferences;
- Providing for each annual conference to establish a Commission on Communications or equivalent structure as a service agency (new Para.);
- Providing for each annual conference to organize a committee on disability concerns or equivalent structure (new wording for Para. 747);
- Encouraging each annual conference to organize a committee on Criminal Justice and Mercy Ministries (new Para.);
- Providing that the program of the annual conference include Criminal Justice and Mercy Ministries, the implementations of which may be assisted in by the District Council on Ministries (Para. 752.4);
- Providing flexibility in annual conference organization to care for its functions around missional life, advocacy needs, and ministries, and in maintaining the connective relationships and in organizing for the development of ethnic ministries, churches and concerns (Para. 726).

—Ken Horn and Carolyn Simms

Discipleship

The committee recommended concurrence:

- To align language with proposed Baptism Study legislation;
- Clarifying qualifications for election of Jurisdictional Youth Ministry Organization Convocation Steering committee members;
- Streamlining language regarding National Youth Ministries Organization;
- Eliminating certain mandated requirements regarding NYMO Legislative Assembly;
- Changing racial ethnic requirements for NYMO;
- Streamlining language of Discipline regarding staffing of NYMO;
- Removing requirements for two of the adult member of the NYMO Steering committee;
- Encouraging youth participation in the work of the church as a program emphasis for the next quadrennium;
- Establishing a “free-standing” General Commission on United Methodist Men, amenable to the GCOM rather than the Board of Discipleship. The petition provides for the commission to be self-supporting in four years. Consensus was that the men’s organization should be encouraged to take more leadership in the area of discipleship and to address a growing spiritual hunger. Disagreement centered on the appropriate structural position for UMM to do that.

The committee recommended concurrence with amendments:

- Changing Discipline language regarding lay preacher from "appointed by the district superintendent" to "assigned..."

The committee recommended nonconcurrence:

- To make the National Youth Ministry Organization into a general agency;
- To increase the number of ethnic groups as required membership components in NYMO steering committee;
- To eliminate the Division on United Methodist Men;
- To allow for an alternate to conference United Methodist Men's structure;
- To eliminate both the women's and men's divisions to create a single "family ministries" unit.

—Garlinda Burton, Lynn DeMichelle

Global Ministries — (4/20/96, 4 p.m., business completed)

The committee recommended concurrence:

- Dealing with the restructure of the Board of Global Ministries;
- Lifting the U.S. economic embargo against Cuba;
- Preserving Jerusalem as a city where both Palestinians and Israelis can live equally and peacefully;
- Eradicating abusive child labor;
- Putting children and their families first on the social agenda;
- Supporting national observance of Children's Sabbath.

The committee recommended concurrence with amendments:

- Providing economic support for the Palestinian people;
- Opposing continued confiscation of Palestinian land and the building of Jewish settlements in the Occupied Territories;
- Affirming the purpose of United Methodist Women.

The committee recommended nonconcurrence:

- Deleting World Service as the specific fund support for Health and Welfare Ministries Department, Board of Global Ministries.

—Linda Bloom and Cheryl Edwards

Independent Commissions — (4/20/96, Completed their business at 8:52 p.m.)

The committee recommended concurrence

- With the resolution that "Membership in The United Methodist Church and in Supremacist Groups," which highlights the "deep inconsistency" between the Gospel and racial and ethnic supremacist groups. The report offers recommendations help members understand and act on that inconsistency;

- Identifying additional persons responsible for Christian training of children and youth;

- Deleting terminology of "Federated Church" from section on membership records;
- Adding words "and a member of the Church Universal" to description of church membership;
- Changing language to "church council";
- Eliminating language concerning the Administrative Board organization, officers and responsibilities;
- Assuring UM congregations in ecumenical shared ministries will have a lay member of annual conference;
- Adding candidates for diaconal ministry to the list of those whose candidacy is to be renewed annually by the Charge Conference.

The committee recommended concurrence with amendments:

- Describing the "Journey of a Connectional People" but restoring first person plural pronouns in the wording;
- Outlining procedures for cooperative parish ministries but deleting proposed changes to Para. 206.2;
- Describing an endowment fund agency but changing the title to "Planned Giving and/or Permanent Endowment Fund Committee";
- Holding meetings of church sanctioned groups and agencies as far as possible in facilities accessible to all as a "further sign of inclusiveness";
- Giving encouragement to developing cooperative parish ministries, ecumenical shared ministries or other options, including merger;
- Deleting Para. 260 but keeping the first three sentences as options (age-level, family life coordinators);
- Deleting Para. 259 (work areas) but keeping a list of "ministry group" chairs as options as outlined in the paragraph;
- Eliminating local church program support personnel but maintaining church school superintendent, health and welfare coordinator, and communications coordinator as options;
- Naming additional persons to those who should be involved in teaching an advanced course in Christian life for older youth;
- Outlining "Church Council" membership;
- Changing "Administrative Board" to Church Council";
- Defining the members of the Church Council and functions of the Nurture, Outreach and Witness groups;
- Urging decision making to be based on consensus;
- Enabling the local church to participate if a shared salary option is adopted by the annual conference.

—Rayford Woodrick and Kathy Kruger Noble

Ordained and Diaconal Ministry

The committee worked Friday and Saturday to bring all legislation related to the Ministry Study in line with the decisions made Friday morning to recommend a common probationary period. The committee approved legislation that moved away from sequential ordination to a single ordination for deacons and elders.

The committee also struggled to determine the title for a person in probationary membership and after considerable attempts decided on the term commissioning.

Additional actions incorporate many of the suggested changes from the Diaconal Ministers Clearness Committee into Paragraphs 306 through 315.

~~We, as United Methodists believe that organ transplantation and organ donation should be viewed as an act of charity, agape love, and self-sacrifice, much as that of Jesus when he gave his life for the salvation of the world. We recognize the life-giving benefits of organ and other tissue donation and encourage all people of faith to become organ and tissue donors as a part of their love and ministry to others in need. We request only that it is done in an environment of respect for the deceased and/or living donor and for the benefit of the recipient, and following protocols which will carefully prevent abuse to the donor and their family. We urge that it be done in an environment of respect for deceased and living donors and for the benefit of recipients, and following protocols that carefully prevent abuse to donors and their families. As the official voice of The United Methodist Church, we find no religious problem with organ donation and praise and respect the individuals right to make decisions about giving the Gift of Life by donating his or her own body. This spirit of giving the gift of life is best expressed by John the Apostle in 1 John 3:16, speaking of the love of Christ: We know love by this, that he laid down his life for us; and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren (NAS).~~ plain text entered by committee

Ministry, Authority and Responsibilities of Deacons in Full Connection. 1. Deacons are persons called by God, authorized by the church, and ordained by a bishop to a lifetime of servant leadership ministry of word and service to both the community and the congregation, in a ministry which connects the two. Deacons exemplify Christian discipleship and create opportunities for others to enter into discipleship. In the world, the deacon seeks to express a ministry of compassion and justice, assisting laypersons as they claim their own ministry. In the congregation, the ministry of the deacon is to teach and to form disciples, and to lead worship together with other ordained and lay persons.

2. The deacon in full connection shall have the rights of voice and vote in the Annual Conference where membership is held; shall be eligible to serve as clergy on boards, commissions, or committees of the Annual Conference and hold office on the same; shall be eligible for election as a clergy delegate to the General, Central, or Jurisdictional Conference. The deacon in full connection shall attend all the sessions of the Annual Conference and share with elders in full connection responsibility for all matters of ordination, character, and conference relations of clergy (¶ 326.1). Any deacon in full connection unable to attend shall write the Bishop requesting to be excused, setting forth the reason for the absence.

3. As members of the Order of Deacons, all deacons in full connection are in covenant with all other such deacons in the Annual Conference and shall participate in the life of their Order.

Add a new ¶ 320:

Eligibility and Rights of Probationary Membership. Probationary members are ordained deacons who are on trial in preparation for membership in full connection in the Annual Conference as deacons or elders. They are on probation as to character, servant leadership, and effectiveness in ministry. The Annual Conference, through the clergy session, has jurisdiction over probationary members. Annually, the Board of Ordained Ministry shall review and evaluate their relationship and make recommendation to the clergy members in full connection regarding their continuance. No member shall be continued on probation beyond the sixth regular session following their admission to probationary membership and commissioning unless extended, upon recommendation of the Board of Ordained Ministry. Such extensions shall not be granted beyond three additional years.

1. Probationary members who are preparing for elders orders may be ordained elders when they qualify for membership in full connection in the Annual Conference.

2. Probationary members shall have the right to vote in the Annual Conference on all matters except the following:

- a) constitutional amendments;
- b) election of delegates to the General and Jurisdictional or Central Conferences;
- c) all matters of ordination, character, and conference relations of clergy.

3. Probationary members may serve on any board, commission, or committee of the Annual Conference except the Board of Ordained Ministry (§ 733.1). They shall not be eligible for election as delegates to the General, Central, or Jurisdictional Conferences.

4. Probationary members shall be amenable to the Annual Conference in the performance of their ministry and are subject to the provisions of The Book of Discipline in the performance of their duties. They shall be supervised by the district superintendent under whom they are appointed. They shall also be assigned a deacon in full connection or elder as mentor by the Board of Ordained Ministry. Probationary members preparing to become elders shall be eligible for appointment by meeting disciplinary provisions (§ 340).

5. Probationary members in appointments beyond the local church shall relate themselves to the district superintendent in the area where their work is done. The district superintendent shall give them supervision and report annually to their Board of Ordained Ministry.

6. Discontinuance from Probationary Membership. Probationary members may request discontinuance of this relationship or may be discontinued by the Annual Conference, upon recommendation of the Board of Ordained Ministry. When Probationary Members in good standing withdraw to unite with another denomination or to terminate their membership in The United Methodist Church, their action shall be considered a request for discontinuance without consent, a probationary member will be advised of the right to a hearing before the executive committee of the conference Board of Ordained Ministry. A report of the hearing will be made to the full board. The provisions of Fair Process (§ 2622) shall be observed. When this relationship is discontinued, they shall no longer be permitted to exercise ministerial functions and shall surrender their credentials to the district superintendent for deposit with the secretary of the conference, and their membership transferred by the district superintendent to the local church which they designate after consultation with the pastor. The Board of Ordained Ministry shall file with the resident bishop and the secretary of the conference a permanent record of the circumstances relating to discontinuance as a probationary member as required in § 733.3d. After discontinuance, probationary members may be classified and approved as local pastors in accordance with the provision of § 339.

Probationary Service of a Deacon Commissioned Ministers. All persons who are ~~ordained deacons~~ Commissioned Ministers shall be appointed by a bishop (§ 323) and serve a minimum of three (3) years as a probationary member of the Annual Conference. During the probationary period, arrangements shall be offered by the Board of Ordained Ministry for all ~~ordained deacons~~ commissioned ministers to be involved in a curriculum that extends theological education by using covenant groups to support the practice and work of ~~the diaconate in~~ their ministry as servant leaders, to contemplate the grounding of ordained ministry, and to understand covenant ministry in the life of the conference. The specialized service of probationary members shall be evaluated by the District Superintendent and the Board of Ordained Ministry in terms of the probationary members ability to express and give leadership in servant ministry.

1. The deacons commissioned ministers planning to give their lives as deacons in full connection shall be in ministries of service the entire probationary period.

2. The deacons commissioned ministers planning to give their lives as elders in full connection shall be in ministries of ~~service~~ Service, Word, Sacrament and Order for at least half of their entire probationary period. A deacon commissioned minister serving as pastor of a local church shall exemplify and be held accountable for leading the congregation in servant ministry. ~~The District Superintendent and the Board of Ordained Ministry will evaluate the deacons ability to express his/her ordination as deacon in the congregational context.~~

Ordination. ~~Ordination as a deacon to Word and service~~ Commissioning.—Commissioning is the act of the church which acknowledges Gods call according to the talents, gifts, and abilities the person has received; the individuals response to that call; the equipping of the person for specialized ministry; the examination by the church to determine if the gifts meet the needs of the community and world; the validation of that call by the faith community through the laying on of hands; the invocation of the Holy Spirit for empowerment of the persons ministry on behalf of and with the church community; and the commitment of the person to seek avenues of growth to equip others for ministry; and to be accountable to the covenant community. The service for commissioning and the service for ordination of deacons and elders may be incorporated into one service symbolizing the total ministry of Jesus Christ. After fulfilling all the candidacy requirements and upon the recommendation of the conference Board of Ordained Ministry, the clergy session composed of ordained elders and deacons in full connection, shall vote on the ordination commissioning of the candidates. The bishop and secretary of the Annual Conference shall provide credentials to the deacon commissioned minister upon ordination commissioning.

Subject: Opposition to Abusive Treatment of Persons with Mental Disabilities Committee Item: CS107-NonDis-A

Petition:

20248-CS-NonDis-O, Pg. 138

Membership: 102; Present: 87;

For: 86; Against: 1; Not Voting: 0;

Date: 4/20

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

Whereas, a large part of the ministry of our Lord focused on persons with mental disabilities; and

Whereas, persons with mental disabilities are children of God and are therefore our brothers and sisters within the human family; and

Whereas, the full and equal rights of persons with mental disabilities are enshrined in the Social Principles of The United Methodist Church, as well as the Constitution and laws of the United States of America; and

Whereas, we note that the use of abusive treatment as therapy for persons with mental disabilities still occurs in the United States, and that such abusive treatment is used on both adults and children, and that programs which rely on such abusive treatments are usually funded by federal, state, and/or local tax revenues; and

Whereas, a number of organizations which advocate for persons with mental disabilities have already taken stands against abusive treatment;

Therefore, be it resolved, that The United Methodist Church affirms the right of persons with disabilities to freedom from abusive treatment.

Be it further resolved, that The United Methodist Church opposes the use of any form of punishment for children or adults with mental disabilities in any case where such punishment would be considered illegal, abusive, or unconscionable if applied to a child or adult who is not disabled. In particular, we condemn as unacceptable the following practices:

1. Treatments which result in physical injury or tissue damage to the person.

2. Verbal abuse or insult, humiliation, or degradation.

3. Denial of food, warmth, hygiene, contact with other human beings, or other necessities of life.

4. The use of electric shock or noxious substances as a form of punishment.

5. The use of any punishment on a child with mental disabilities that would be considered child abuse if used on a child with no disabilities.

6. Neglect.

7. The use of physical or chemical restraint when the individual or others are not in danger of physical harm.

8. The threat of any of the above treatments.

Any therapy used in the treatment of persons with mental disabilities must be potentially beneficial to the person. As an alternative to abusive treatments, we support the use of positive approaches in the treatment of persons with mental disabilities. Positive approaches affirm the humanity of persons with mental disabilities and recognize that the needs and desires of such persons are not significantly different from those of other persons. Our obligation to persons with mental disabilities is to support and assist them in their efforts to live lives as rich and rewarding as possible.

Be it further resolved, that we call upon all public and private agencies and service providers involved in providing services to persons with mental disabilities to adopt and uphold the standards set forth in this resolution.

Be it further resolved, that we call upon all federal, state, and local governments to end immediately the expenditure of public revenues on any agency or program which fails to adopt and uphold the standards set forth in this resolution.

Be it further resolved, that The United Methodist Church declares itself to be open to persons with mental disabilities and their families, commits itself to support such persons and families and accommodate their needs within our community. We further pledge our support to help persons with mental disabilities and their families find appropriate services, programs, and supports, and to protect them from abusive treatments.

Membership: 126; Present: 109;
For: 106; Against: 1; Not Voting: 2;
Date: 4/19

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

Whereas, town and country churches make up two thirds of the congregations in the United Methodist Church;

Whereas, ministry in town and country settings are faced with declining population, poverty, presence of hate groups, loss of jobs, economic decline, and sense of hopelessness and despair;

Whereas, in town and country settings there are opportunities to impact life through the collective work of the Church and the faithful servants who live, worship and witness in those settings;

Therefore, be it resolved, that the 1996 General Conference of The United Methodist Church mandate a comprehensive national plan for town and country ministry. This plan is to grow out of a process overseen by the General Board of Global Ministries National Division, or its successor agency, and involving local church and annual conference leadership in conjunction with appropriate staff from general church agencies including, but not limited to, Discipleship, Church and Society, Religion and Race, Higher Education and Ministry, Communications, and Council on Ministries or successor agencies.

Membership: 126; Present: 109;
For: 108; Against: 1; Not Voting: 0;
Date: 4/19

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

Whereas, the General Conference responded to the Los Angeles crisis of 1992 by creating a new strategy called Communities of Shalom which incorporates evangelism and community action by focusing on spiritual renewal, congregational development, community economic development, health, and strengthening race and class relationships;

The Communities of Shalom concept was piloted in seven communities in Greater Los Angeles and through struggle and determination enabled a new and comprehensive paradigm for ministry. The Communities of Shalom strategy has spread throughout the Church and in early 1996 engaged more than 250 urban and rural churches and community organizations in the United States and one in Africa;

The United Methodist Church through the General Board of Global Ministries in consultation with the National Shalom Committee designed and carried out a successful training and technical assistance program for those developing Communities of Shalom. These new resources are enabling churches and communities to develop and renew community life. The training has been utilized in 16 annual conferences and stimulates new enthusiasm and plans for creative ministry;

The need for Communities of Shalom within urban and rural areas continues to grow. Additional communities and churches in Los Angeles, the nation and the world are seeking effective ministry models that transform congregations, communities and individuals for Gods ministry of shalom.

Therefore, be it resolved, that The United Methodist Church:

Commend the ministry of churches and communities in Greater Los Angeles that pioneered the Communities of Shalom strategy;

Strongly urge the continual expansion of Shalom ministries throughout the United States and the world for churches in urban and rural communities in crisis and transition;

Through the General Board of Global Ministries, resource communities in the United States and around the world through training and technical assistance;

Affirm the Shalom Committee and its continued work with the General Board of Global Ministries and other General Church agencies. The committee shall be composed of twelve (12) members and two (2) ex officio members. There shall be six (6) members selected by the Council of Bishops, three (3) by the General Board of Global Ministries, and three (3) selected by the Shalom Committee for their expertise. The General Secretary of the General Board of Global Ministries and a staff person of the General Board of Pensions shall serve as the ex officio members with vote;

Mandate that The United Methodist Church at its General and local levels continue to collaborate with other denominations, businesses, and community organizations to transform congregations and communities through the Shalom strategy;

Charge all General Church agencies in the next quadrennium to explore and develop opportunities to work collaboratively to assist local churches with the Communities of Shalom strategy;

Endorse the solicitation of Shalom resources from foundations, corporations, government sources, individuals and churches utilizing the Advance, a foundation structure and other necessary strategies.

Membership: 126; Present: 109;

For: 109; Against: 0; Not Voting: 0;

Date: 4/19

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

Whereas, The United Methodist Church continues its mission and ministry denominationally, as directed by the General Conference of 1968, through the coordination of the United Methodist Appalachian Development Committee, and ecumenically through the Commission on Religion in Appalachia; and

Whereas, The United Methodist Church has engaged in ministry and mission in the Appalachian region for over two centuries. Even though many resources have been committed through ministries such as Red Bird Missionary Conference (Kentucky), Hinton Rural Life Center (North Carolina), Upper Sand Mountain Cooperative Parish (Alabama), Jackson Area Ministries (Ohio), Heart and Hand House (West Virginia), Connellsville Cooperative Ministry (Pennsylvania), Jubilee Project (Tennessee), and in many other local and community ministries, conditions among many people in this region continues to worsen; and

Whereas, the plight of the Appalachian region, with the exploitation of its people and natural resources continues to manifest a striking similarity to conditions in developing colonized nations of the world; and

Whereas, focused efforts on the part of private, church, and governmental agencies over the past three decades, aimed at stimulating appropriate development and at restoring health and dignity to the people and to the mountains, have fallen far short of projected goals; and

Whereas, the United Methodist bishops of Appalachia, along with other religious leaders, have joined the Roman Catholic bishops of the region in producing their pastoral letter, Gods Face Toward the Mountains, calling attention to the continued exploitation of the people of Appalachia and of the land; and

Whereas, a study guide has been produced to challenge The United Methodist Church to revisit Appalachia with all of its beauty and strength alongside the need for renewed commitment to ministries of compassion and hope;

Therefore, be it resolved, that The United Methodist Church reaffirm its commitments denominationally and ecumenically to be present with and supportive of the people and churches of Appalachia as they struggle toward the realization of the vision set forth in the Appalachian bishops pastoral; and Further, be it resolved, that The United Methodist Church, through all of its boards and agencies, examine ways it might be participating in the ongoing plight and exploitation of the people and land of Appalachia.

Membership: 126; Present: 107;

For: 107; Against: 0; Not Voting: 0;

Date: 4/19

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

Whereas, national-mission personnel in the United States, which includes Church and Community workers, US IIs, mission interns, summer interns, community developers, rural chaplains, lay missionaries, and others, have faithfully and effectively enabled The United Methodist Church to facilitate mission and ministry across the United States in settings often neglected and overlooked by others; and

Whereas, for many people in the United States, life is becoming increasingly difficult, with the basic necessities of food, shelter, health care, job and educational opportunities, child care, and transportation required for daily survival often being beyond reach; and

Whereas, God continues to hear the cries of the oppressed, impoverished, and neglected people; and

Whereas, God continues to call persons to offer themselves for service with the poor to provide both compassionate care and personal empowerment; and

Whereas, The United Methodist Church, with its unique Wesleyan traditions of identity and advocacy with the poor and its historical focus on social issues and human development, is challenged by God to be radically attentive and responsive to marginalized and dispossessed people and to bear responsibility for keeping their plight before the total Church and world community; and

Whereas, national mission personnel in the United States provide vital leadership required to initiate and maintain cooperative ministries, shalom zones/communities, etc. that focus attention on the needs of women, children, youth, racial-ethnic populations, the aging, and persons with handicapping conditions in both rural and urban areas;

Therefore, be it resolved, that The United Methodist Church reaffirm its commitment to impoverished people and oppressed communities in the United States by creating and maintaining among its highest levels of priority the recruitment, training, and placement of national mission personnel in the United States who can enable people, churches, and communities to move beyond their present circumstances to participate in healthy, whole communities.

Further, be it resolved, that new and innovative means of providing financial support for national mission personnel in the United States be developed as The United Methodist Church at all levels confronts the challenge to deal with limited available resources.

Subject: Reducing the Risk of Child Sexual Abuse in the Church
Committee Item: GM96-NonDis-A

Membership: 126; Present: 107;
For: 107; Against: 0; Not Voting: 0;
Date: 4/19

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

Jesus said, Whoever welcomes [a] child...welcomes me. (Matthew 18:5, NRSV). Children are our present and our future, our hope, our teachers, our inspiration. They are full participants in the life of the church and in the realm of God.

Jesus also said, If any of you put a stumbling block before one of these little ones..., it would be better for you if a great millstone were fastened around your neck and you were drowned in the depth of the sea. (Matthew 18:6, NRSV). Our Christian faith calls us to offer both hospitality and protection to the little ones, the children. The Social Principles of the United Methodist Church state that "...children must be protected from economic, physical and sexual exploitation and abuse.

Tragically, churches have not always been safe places for children. Child sexual abuse, exploitation and ritual abuse* occur in churches, both large and small, urban and rural. The problem cuts across all economic, cultural and racial lines. It is real, and appears to be increasing. Most annual conferences can cite specific incidents of child sexual abuse and exploitation within churches. Virtually every congregation has among its members adult survivors of early sexual trauma.

Such incidents are devastating to all who are involved: the child, the family, the local church and its leaders. Increasingly, churches are torn apart by the legal, emotional and monetary consequences of litigation following allegations of abuse.

God calls us to make our churches safe places, protecting children and other vulnerable persons from sexual and ritual abuse. God calls us to create communities of faith where children and adults grow safe and strong. In response to this church-wide challenge, the following steps should be taken to reduce the risk of child sexual abuse.

A. Local churches should:

1. Develop and implement an ongoing education plan for the congregation and its leaders on the reality of child abuse, risk factors leading to child abuse and strategies for prevention.

2. Adopt screening procedures (use of application forms, interviews, reference checks, background clearance, etc.) for workers (paid and unpaid) directly or indirectly involved in the care of children and youth.

3. Develop and implement safety procedures for church activities such as: having two or more non-related adults present in classroom or activity; leaving doors open and installing half-doors or windows in doors or halls; providing hall monitors; instituting sign-in and sign-out procedures for children ten or younger, etc.

4. Advise children and young persons of an agency or a person outside as well as within the local church whom they can contact for advise and help if they have suffered abuse.

5. Carry liability insurance that includes sexual abuse coverage.

6. Assist the development of awareness and self-protection skills for children and youth through special curricula and activities.

7. Be familiar with Annual Conference and other church policies regarding clergy sexual misconduct abuse.

B. Annual Conferences should develop safety and risk-reducing policies and procedures for conference-sponsored events such as camps, retreats, youth gatherings, child care at conference events, mission trips, etc. Annual Conferences shall also develop guidelines and training processes for use by church leaders who carry responsibility for prevention of child abuse in local churches. Both sets of policies shall be developed by a task force appointed by the cabinet in cooperation with appropriate conference agencies. These policies shall be approved by the Annual Conference and assigned to a conference agency for implementation. It is suggested that the policies be circulated in conference publications and shared with lay professionals and clergy at district or conference seminars.

C. The General Board of Discipleship and the General Board of Global Ministries should cooperatively develop and/or identify and promote the following resources:

1. Sample policies, procedures, forms, etc. for reducing the risk of sexual abuse and exploitation of children and youth in local churches, both in relation to their own sponsored programs and to any outreach ministries or other programs for children or youth that use church space.

2. Child abuse prevention curricula for use in local churches.

3. Training opportunities and other educational resources on child sexual abuse and exploitation and on ritual abuse.

4. Resources on healing for those who have experienced childhood sexual trauma.

*Ritual abuse refers to abusive acts committed as part of ceremonies or rites; ritual abusers are often related to cults, or pretend to be.

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

Whereas, the continuing efforts by the State of Israel to build settlements in the occupied territories violates both international law and the spirit of the Declaration of Principles, that such efforts are based upon a vision of superiority of Jewish claims to land over the long-standing and recognized claims to the land by indigenous Palestinian people, and that such efforts have a devastating effect on Palestinian communities; and

Whereas, the continuing confiscation of private land for the construction of settlements stands as an impediment to peace because it violates both international law and the Declaration of Principles; it destroys the capacity of people in Palestinian communities to work and earn a livelihood; it, along with the restrictions on building placed on the Palestinian communities, forces the emigration of Palestinian people from the occupied territories; and it demoralizes the indigenous Palestinian population; and

Whereas, the prophet Isaiah cautioned against coveting the lands and homes of ones neighbors... Woe to you who add house to house and field to field until no space is left and you live alone in the land. (Isaiah 5:8); and

Whereas, the continuing confiscation of privately held land for construction of settlements violates basic understandings of human rights, perverts the peace process, destroys the hope of people who are working for and longing for peace, both Israelis and Palestinians, and fosters a sense of desperation which can only lead to further violence; and

Whereas, we in the United States are providing financial assistance to the State of Israel which allows for the building of these settlements;

Be it resolved, that The United Methodist Church ~~communicate its opposition~~ ~~opposes~~ continuing confiscation of Palestinian land, the continued building of Jewish settlements, and any vision of a greater Israel which includes the Occupied Territories and/or the whole of Jerusalem and its surroundings, ~~to the Prime Minister of Israel and the Ambassador of Israel in Washington, D.C.; and~~

~~Be it further resolved, that we communicate the above to the President of the United States, the Secretary of State, the appropriate Congress people and Senators, along with our desire that the United States hold the State of Israel accountable for its actions and refuse to support the continued confiscation of land and building of settlements; and~~

~~Be it further resolved, that we send copies of this resolution to representatives of The United Methodist Church on the Boards of Church and Society, the General Board of Global Ministries, and the Council of Bishops.~~

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

Change the title of the Petition to Economic Support for Palestinians.

Whereas, the signing of the Oslo Accord by the PLO and Israel in September, 1993 stipulated financial aid for a necessary and rapid improvement in the economy of the occupied territories; and

Whereas, external parties, including the United States, at the World Bank Conference in October, 1993, pledged 2.4 billion dollars to help revive the failing economy of the West Bank and the Gaza Strip and to provide for immediate and basic needs such as nutrition, housing, health care, sanitation, education, and jobs; and

Whereas, delivery of aid has kept pace neither with the promises nor the needs, causing further deterioration of the living standards of the Palestinians, contributing to the unrest and cycle of violence which is endangering free elections, and making it difficult for the Palestinian National Authority to establish educational systems and other social programs and to implement economic development; and

Whereas, continued and, in many cases, intensified closures, confiscation of Palestinian land by the government of Israel, and the importing of foreign workers into Israel to replace Palestinian labor, coupled with economic policies of the Israeli government which hamper economic development in the West Bank and Gaza, have caused a further deterioration of the living standards of Palestinians, an increasing distrust of the peace process and its leaders, and an increasing sense of hopelessness and frustration; and

Whereas, we deplore the violence directed toward Israelis and the violence directed towards Palestinians and believe that, even as we hold the perpetrators responsible and accountable, we must address the root causes;

Be it resolved, that The United Methodist Church insist that ~~our~~ the U. S. government release ~~the~~ the remaining portion of ~~their~~ aid immediately and encourage other nations to do the same; and the entire structure of aid to the Middle East, one goal being to redistribute the huge amount now given to Israel and Egypt, and a second goal being to consider economic support for the efforts of non-governmental organizations, including religious institutions, human rights groups, labor unions, and professional groups; and.

Be it further resolved, that we request that ~~our~~ the U. S. government reevaluate

~~Be it further resolved, that we insist that our government use its influence upon the State of Israel to cease the confiscation of land, allow freedom of movement to the Palestinian people, and cease those economic policies which are detrimental to development in the West Bank of Gaza; and~~

~~Be it further resolved, that copies of this resolution be sent to the representatives of the State of Israel in the United States, to the President of the United States, the Secretary of State, the Representatives and Senators, the Council of Bishops of The United Methodist Church, and representatives of the General Board of Church and Society and the General Board of Global Ministries.~~

G) Extends sincere appreciation to those United Methodists who have facilitated the implementation of the above recommendations in tours they have sponsored or participated in during the first quadrennium following adoption of this resolution;

H) Expressed deep concern that many tours sponsored or arranged by United Methodist bishops, pastors, and laity do not schedule opportunity for all participants to enter into partnership with the indigenous Christians for the recommended program time and, therefore, fail to Walk With the Living Stones in their strides toward Palestinian self-determination, and their rich spiritual heritage, and their faithful contemporary witness;

I) Expresses deep concern that evidence continues to accumulate that Christianity is dying in the land of Jesus through economic, social, and political pressures, which have greatly diminished the numbers and percentage of Christians in the Holy Land. United Methodist bishops and other organizers of Holy Land tours, have a special responsibility to adhere to these recommendations to strengthen the witness of the remaining Palestinian disciples of the Living Lord;

J) Affirms the presence of The United Methodist Church in Jerusalem through our liaison office;

K) Encourages tour leaders to consult with the United Methodist liaison office in Jerusalem in order to facilitate adherence to these recommendations;

...cycle of violence.

Violence is simple and brutal, but its roots are complex. We know it to be bred in families where children and spouses are abused and maltreated, where problems are met with force or threat of force. People who are in submissive positions to authority, actual or perceived, including women, racial ethnic persons as well as lesbian, gay and bi sexual persons, are particularly vulnerable to violence. We know that violence may be related to learning disabilities and chemical dependency. And we know that violence is exacerbated in communities and families living in poverty, and by the prominence given to it in films, television and other media.

RESOLUTION STRENGTHEN- ING KOREAN MINISTRY

WHEREAS many Korean-American clergy and lay within the United Methodist Church and unchartered mission congregations appear to experience many difficulties in English language, socio-cultural adjustment, and serve their churches within the United Methodist structure as indicated by petition 21731;

THEREFORE, be it resolved that an inclusive task force be appointed by the Council of Bishops in consultation with the GBGM and the National Association of Korean-American United Methodist churches, and the National Association of Korean-American United Methodist clergymen, which shall include three clergymen, three clergywomen, three Korean-American laymen, and three laywomen, three transgeneration clergy, and up to three Bishops;

That the task force conduct a comprehensive study of the concerns and needs presented by, but not limited to, Petition 21731;

That the task force report the result of its study, including recommendations to the General Conference of year 2000 advising ways to help the United Methodist Church in Korean-American ministry and assisting Korean-American clergy and laity in fulfilling their mission and ministry effectively within the United Methodist structure;

That to implement this resolution a sum of $150,000 be allocated over the next quadrennium; and

That the funds be administered by the GBGM.

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

Mandate and Implementation

The 1992 General Conference adopted
 Calendar Item 213 on page 237 of the Daily Christian Advocate which directed the General Council on Ministries (GCOM) to implement the following action:

1. That during the 1993-96 quadrennium the General Council on Ministries lead the church in a time of discernment, reflection, and study of its mission and its structural needs as it moves into the 21st century. The Council will do this by consulting groups across the church, conducting appropriate research, and developing and utilizing resource materials.

2. That the General Council on Ministries continue to fulfill its disciplinary responsibilities in reviewing the church's structures and report its findings and any recommendations to the 1996 General Conference.

3. That in fulfillment of the above responsibilities the General Council on Ministries consult with the Council of Bishops, the General Council on Finance and Administration, the Commission on Central Conference Affairs, central conference agencies and/or leaders, annual conference and local church leaders, general agencies, and other appropriate groups.

In response to this directive the General Council on Ministries developed a comprehensive design called the Connectional Issues Study. The study's purpose was to enter into a collaborative process to discern Gods will for United Methodism into the 21st century through an ongoing process of listening, reflecting/reviewing and recommending, which prompted more listening and developed an ongoing transforming feedback process that involved the whole United Methodist Church. This discernment of the denomination's future needs has involved myriad constituencies across the church, providing opportunities to listen and gather important ideas, insights, and information that have been integrated and tested within the ongoing design of the study. It has been intentional in seeking to hear from the grass roots of United Methodism and to learn where God is leading United Methodists.

The Connectional Issues Study was done in collaboration with the Council of Bishops including its Global Nature of the Church Committee; The General Council on Finance and Administration; the general agencies of the Church; and church leaders from local churches, annual conferences, and central conferences. It included specific involvement with annual conference lay leaders, annual conference council directors, the general secretaries and directors of general agencies. The responsibility for this listening and reflection was assigned to the GCOM Connectional Issues Task Force. It presented regular reports to the Councils Division on Conferences and Connectional Issues and in turn to the full membership of the Council.

Central Components of the Connectional Issues Study

Faithful, Listening Disciples a Bible Study and video based on the Gospel of Mark providing biblical basis for the envisioning process. Four hundred videos were distributed, and local churches used this study and responded on the survey sheet.

Annual Conference Survey a grass roots survey of nearly 35,000 members on vision, mission, and structure of The United Methodist Church administered to each lay and clergy member of the annual conferences at their 1994 sessions. Translations were made into Korean and Spanish, as well as several European languages. Results were summarized by Rollins Center for Church Ministries at Candler School of Theology under the direction of Dr. Thomas E. Frank.

Town Meeting of Annual Conference Council Directors a setting providing significant linkage with leadership in the annual conferences for input into the design phase of the study and foundational material for understanding the needs of the local, district, and annual conferences to be enabled for vital ministry.

Hearing Vital Congregations telephone interviews conducted by members of the General Council on Ministries with leaders of three to five churches in each annual conference where mission and ministry are happening.

Consultation with Council of Bishops and General Council on Finance and Administration major presentations at the fall 1994 meetings of these Councils. Summary of data gathered was shared and ownership of the direction of study was established. Focus was made on potential structure scenes which emerged early in 1995. Further consultations were held at spring and fall 1995 meetings of both Councils.

Consultations with General Agencies held to ensure input from general agencies. Primary consultations occurred between November 1994 and February 1995 and during the fall of 1995. Members of the General Council on Ministries General Agency Relationships Division were involved in the consultations, and extensive notes were recorded.

Consultations with Central Conference meetings already scheduled for interfacing with people in the annual conferences of the Central Conferences were used: Philippines (January 1994), Africa Church Growth & Development (June 1994), Vienna (September 1994), and World Methodist Council (October 1994), and several European countries (March 1995).

Listening to the Church opportunities for reflection on present and emerging visions of the annual conferences. The purpose of this component was to hear directly from the leadership of the several annual conferences through the GCOM member of the annual conference. These annual conference leaders reviewed and reflected on the summarized annual conference vision/structure recommendations of all annual conferences coming from Dr. Thomas E. Frank and the Rollins Center.

Forum of Thirty-Two a group representative of the total church. They met twice and provided significant data and input into the study from their areas of expertise and insights. They also were asked to give ongoing critique of the study to the Task Force.

Collaboration and Consultation with the Duke University Divinity School/Lilly Endowment Study of Methodism and American Culture A member of the Connectional Issues Task Force was invited to be a leadership participant and an executive staff member of GCOM was invited as an official observer in the Duke/Lilly Study to keep abreast of the findings and input from this significant research project. Members of the Task Force were present for the summary findings presented by the Duke/Lilly Study on August 25 - 28, 1995 at St. Simons Island, Georgia. This data was reviewed and reflected upon in the process of completing the study.

Consultations with United Methodist Related Caucuses and Organizations scheduled meetings of caucuses and organizations were used to seek input into the study. Meetings were held with annual conference council directors, National Association of Annual Conference Lay Leaders, Inter-Ethnic Strategy Development Group, United Methodist Association of Health and Welfare Ministries, United Methodist Congress of the Deaf, United Methodist National Youth Ministry Organization, and National Association of Schools and Colleges of The United Methodist Church.

Annual Conference Vision Statements annual conferences vision/identity/structure statements responding to the survey instrument were received and analyzed. Results were initially summarized by the Rollins Center, under direction of Dr. Thomas E. Frank.

United Methodist Structure a special work team from across the GCOM complemented the Connectional Issues Study Task Force in developing a structural foundation to carry out the church's mission that is consistent with the emerging vision for The United Methodist Church.

Summary of Key Findings for the Connectional Issues Study

During this quadrennium, the Connectional Issues Study process involved intensive listening to various individuals and groups across the church. This effort led to thousands of responses and the collection of essential information, which was analyzed and combined with other information to form various themes and trends. These themes and trends were widely distributed for review and reflection. A series of consultations was also held with various organizational units and caucuses of the denomination to seek input and reaction to the data. In addition, several drafts of the evolving Connectional Issues Study report were distributed across the church inviting responses through specific instruments including voice-mail, fax, and mailings.

From the myriad listenings, reflections, and input from across the church, the Connectional Issues Study processes have provided 15 key findings which are described in detail on pages ___ of the report. The following descriptive words and phrases capture the essence of these findings:

A United Methodist Church alive, vital and intensively involved in mission and ministry throughout the world crying for a clearer vision seeking a Christ-centered, spiritual foundation a church inclusive of all persons committed to connectionalism

Local Congregations, the primary base for mission and ministry

Effective communication needed across the church

Structural flexibility

General Church Agencies

resourcing and serving congregations reduced in size appropriately

From these findings the General Council on Ministries concluded that The United Methodist Church must articulate God's vision for the denomination before formal structures are developed or imposed. Further, the focus of the denominations resourcing processes must be on the actual doing of mission and ministry, empowered and directed at the place where ministry is unfolding. In light of these principles, the granting of some flexibility in annual conference and local church structures, the clear need for servant leadership and the direction for a continued vital United Methodist became clearer and more focused.

Call For Action

Given these principled directions, the study moved to focus on the development of a call for action that would refine and bring reformation and self-organization into an ongoing vital denomination that has a crucial place and role as the people of God into the 21st century. The historic mission of Jesus Christ is still our call to action. The church must be in a covenant relationship through our accountability to the historic identity and purpose of the denomination.

Details of this call for action are found below on pages ____ of the report. Here are some key elements of this call.

- a vision-driven ministry
- doing Gods will in ministry
- accountability of connectional structures
- a collaborative style of interaction
- organizational flexibility
- regional conferences
- global conference
- optimum size of general agencies
- greater role of laity
- decision-making at the place of ministry
- servant leadership

What follows in this Connectional Issues Study Report to the 1996 General Conference offers a challenge and opportunity to the church to be vitally engaged in mission and ministry on behalf of Jesus Christ as together Gods people move into the 21st century.

Introduction

The faithful Church remains open to what God is doing in the world. It transforms its institutions and practices in alignment with an understanding of authentic Christian mission. In the spirit of Jesus Christ, disciples corporately and individually act boldly and creatively to reflect Gods light to the nations, to call persons to learn Christs servant ways and participate in Gods purposes. Throughout history, when the Body of Christ has been open to Gods new creation and willing to journey toward Gods promise, the Holy Spirit has breathed vitality into its forms and blessed its ministry.

Seeking to be aligned with Gods perceived activity in the present day, The United Methodist Church is urged to review its mission, faithfully revise the goals of its shared ministry, and bring its priorities and practices into line with this understanding. Merely adapting portions of the official connection for the sake of institutional survival or in order to entrench old and ineffective authority patterns is insufficient response to Jesus entreaty that our righteousness exceed that of the Scribes and Pharisees.

The radical nature of change today calls for thoroughly rethinking both personal practices and connectional patterns. By Gods grace we can discover a new way of seeing things, a paradigm shift more appropriate to the needs of our present day. Such a shift in thinking and acting will best be grounded in diligent Bible study, prayerful discernment, and open dialogue with intentional focus on

The ministry of all Christians

The essential role of congregations in ministry and mission

The support functions of connectional units

An open approach to connectional structures and communications

A strategy for placing decision-making as close as possible to the point of ministry

Flexibility, accountability, and broad inclusivity operating throughout the connection

The 1992 General Conference commissioned the General Council on Ministries to ... lead the church in a period of discernment, reflection, and study of its mission and structure as it moves into the 21st century.

Working through a Connectional Issues Study Task Force and with the cooperation of a wide range of United Methodist colleague groups, the General Council on Ministries brings the following report.

This report

(1) presents a studied synopsis of what is being heard through a broadly-based process of listening and dialogue,

(2) seeks to identify key concerns which will contribute to a shared and motivating vision, and

(3) suggests first steps toward restructuring the church by giving flexibility and guidance to local churches and annual conferences, while calling for accountability and enhanced communication from general church agencies which are called with all others to assume a servant role within a purposeful connection.

Mission and Vision

From the beginning the people of God have been called out, blessed to be a blessing, set apart for mission and given the tasks of being a light to the nations, and making disciples for Jesus Christ. This calling has given the church its identity and formed the basis for an understood purpose.

As we move into a new century, the church is called to live out its identity, purpose and mission and to journey by faith toward God's promise. While the values which shape the body of Christ and the mission which directs the nature of its ministry are foundational, it is imperative that the Church articulate the vision of a preferred future condition. Such a vital vision with prioritized long-range and intermediate goals can energize a covenant people and result in a vibrant church. In the face of present day challenges, it is imperative that The United Methodist Church discover at every point in our lives together how to express appropriate visions and form consistent structures so that the Holy Spirit may more likely move through us and cause our core values and beliefs to be more evident in our dealings with each other and the world.

As in other historic periods of intense social and cultural change, the challenge to existing structures and patterns is real and immediate. Laity and clergy alike are asking:

How can The United Methodist Church stay true to its calling, mission, history, and traditions while adapting to meet the diverse and expanding needs of those whom Christ calls us to serve?

In recent years, this question has taken many forms across the connection.

How can we be focused on a vision and mission in all of our work?

How can we develop a shared vision and leadership that the church needs?

How can the annual conferences improve effectiveness in mission and vision?

How can the local churches better understand and utilize the general agency structures and resources for ministry?

How can the agencies better understand the needs of local churches?

How can we learn to be inclusive in all that we do?

How can our mission and structure reflect the global nature of The United Methodist Church?

Such questions challenge the Church to persevere with ministries of hope in the midst of declining membership, to demonstrate faithful and creative stewardship in the face of reduced funding from some parts of The United Methodist Church, to effect open communication and empowering connections in response to growing anxiety about institutional structures, and to address perceptions of low morale among clergy and laity by refocusing upon the potential for a Christ-formed servant ministry in and to the world where God still actively creates.

Aware of the ferment within The United Methodist Church and seeking to benefit from both the old wine of our tradition and the new wine of the Holy Spirit, members of the General Council on Ministries have sifted the treasures of our tradition and searched for places in which these concerns are being effectively addressed through both traditional and creative ministries and where the church is vibrant and growing.

For more than three years, the members of the GCOM, through the Connectional Issues Study, have listened to voices from across the global connection and undergirded by Bible study, prayer, and thoughtful discussion have reflected on the collected data.

In the following recommendations, the fruits of this listening to God and to one another are evidenced in

A renewed mission statement

A vision statement for world and church

An identification of shared values to inform our transformation journey

A set of structural principles to provide a framework for an interactive system of shared mission and connected ministries while emphasizing flexibility, broadly-based inclusiveness, and missional accountability

A process to effect organizational transformation through ongoing consensus building that remains focused on servant ministry and seeks self-renewal.

The Vision For The United Methodist Church

We believe that an appropriate vision for The United Methodist Church should be a biblically-grounded, God-given picture of the preferred future for the Body of Christ. Aware that God calls us to live this vision into reality, we understand a forming vision is grounded in The United Methodist Church's identity, purpose and mission as affirmed in the Preamble to the Constitution.

The Church is a community of all true believers under the Lordship of Christ. It is the redeemed and redeeming fellowship in which the Word of God is preached by persons divinely called, and the Sacraments are duly administered according to Christ's own appointment. Under the discipline of the Holy Spirit the Church seeks to provide for the maintenance of worship, the edification of believers, and the redemption of the world.

The Church of Jesus Christ exists in and for the world, and its very dividedness is a hindrance to its mission in that world. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - Preamble to The Constitution, page 21)

In designing the next steps in our shared journey, the Connectional Issues Study Task Force utilized the following working vision and offers it to the church for study and guidance:

Our VISION is of a world transformed into the likeness of Christ where faithful persons actively manifest the love of God and neighbor while fostering true community among all persons.

This VISION is carried out within an interactive system of:

DISCIPLES who live, teach, and model a Christlike service in and to the world;

CONGREGATIONS that invite, nurture, equip, and send faithful disciples into the world as living witnesses to the sovereignty of Christ;

ANNUAL CONFERENCES AND DISTRICTS that connect local churches in mission by providing support and training, leadership personnel, and resources;

REGIONAL AND GLOBAL CONFERENCES that provide this connection with information and resources to enhance faithful discipleship.

The mission of the church as stated in ¶ 69 of The Book of Discipline, 1992 resonates with the findings of the study when it says:

Mission is the action of the God of grace who creates out of love, who calls a covenant people community, who graciously redeems and reconciles a broken and sinful people in Jesus Christ, and who through the Holy Spirit calls the church into being as the instrument of the good news of grace to all people. Mission is also the church's grateful response to what God has done, is doing, and will do. A grace-formed church is one who responsibly participates in God's action in and for the world. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 69, p. 85)

Findings From Our Study

This section reports the key findings from our study, gathered from across the church in many settings. These findings indicate several conclusions which are essential to understand the recommendations found later in this report.

During this quadrennium, the Connectional Issues Study was initiated through intensive listening to various individuals and groups across the church. This effort led to thousands of responses and the collection of essential information. The data from each listening was analyzed and combined with other information to form various themes and trends.

These themes and trends were widely distributed for review and reflection. A series of consultations was also held with various organizational units and caucuses of the denomination to seek input and reaction to the initial data. In addition, the first draft of a report was distributed across the church with an invitation for response.

These listenings have provided the following key findings for our study.

We found that:

1. The United Methodist Church is alive, vital, and intensively involved in the mission and ministry of Jesus Christ in many places throughout the world. The United Methodist Church has a window of opportunity for significant service to Christ and the world into the 21st century. We find that our church has the will and adequate resources to engage the world with Christ's message of love, peace and hope.

We found that:

2. The church is crying for a clearer vision, focused direction and Christ-led servant leadership throughout our denomination. We found that the most common theme within the data is a cry for a clearer biblically-based vision, led by dedicated lay and ordained/consecrated persons. Effective clergy leadership is seen as critical to the vitality of local churches. Lay and clergy leadership trained for partnership is an equally critical need for the church. The study identifies as critical the recruitment, training, placement, and evaluation of both pastoral and lay leadership for the future. Mission and ministry are understood as the work of the whole people of God.

We found that:

3. Our people are seeking a Christ-centered spiritual foundation. The data shows a desire for increased emphasis on Bible study, prayer and spiritual renewal. The church should address this spiritual hunger within its membership. The center of our preaching is and always will be the message of God's saving grace through Jesus Christ. We should experience and offer the transforming, liberating power of God, living out the redeeming love of Jesus Christ through nurturing communities and serving the needs of others throughout the global community.

We found that:

4. The local congregation is understood as the primary base for mission and ministry and the foundation for everything that happens in the denomination. The data shows widespread affirmation for empowered local congregations as the primary center for relational and outreach mission and ministry, consistent with the centrality of connectionalism. Also identified clearly is the need for adequate resourcing for local congregations to be vital and effective. Those areas cited most often were spiritual development, evangelism, Christian conduct, social justice, and vital and culturally diverse worship.

We found that:

5. Many parts of the church are preoccupied with maintenance of the institution. This finding is the strongest in reference to general agencies, annual conferences, and other leadership groups within the denomination. It is perceived that the transformation of persons and communities, and caring relational ministries become secondary to the status of position, style, and structures that keep the status quo and control. There is great concern that "business as usual" calls for substantial money and energy from local congregations. The data indicates an unwillingness to continue to fund such practices.

We found that:

6. Effective communication is needed throughout the denomination to knit the body together and energize its ministry. The need for more effective communication is a major theme throughout the study. It is seen as the basis of the connection, an opportunity for evangelism, and a healing force within the church. Local church people do not feel resourced and express a significant sense of disconnection. The data indicates that finances are not a major problem, but rather ineffective interpretation and communication limit the response from our people. Our study also indicates that agencies of the church need to listen to local churches and their needs as they plan.

We found that:

7. The church must be inclusive of all persons. The study data affirms the call to openness and inclusivity across the church. The gifts, wisdom and experience of all are genuinely needed as the church moves into the 21st century. The findings call us to celebrate our diversity in Christ at every physical, cultural and social boundary. There is an expressed concern that any change will further disenfranchise, if not totally abandon, persons of color and ethnic groups, and lose their valuable contributions to the body of Christ.

We found that:

8. Structural flexibility at the annual conference, district and local church is needed to allow all to carry out mission and ministry. While acknowledging the importance of the connection, one of the strongest findings is that local churches and annual conferences identify a need to adjust their organizational structures to adapt to their own mission and ministry situations. There is a clear call to provide flexibility in required organization to provide for innovation and response to quickly changing environments. This need for flexibility, however, is tempered with the acknowledgment of the need to preserve sufficient consistency so that the connection will remain viable.

We found that:

9. Our people have a commitment to share the responsibilities and benefits of connectionalism. Data confirms the importance of the connection and indicate its significance in the experience of United Methodists. While connectionalism is seen as central to the theological and historical roots of United Methodism, respondents indicate a concern that its theological understandings are being superseded by its institutional applications.

We found that:

10. Our history of worldwide outreach and ecumenical cooperation will be essential ingredients as we plan for the future. Many persons who contributed data spoke of the ecumenical and global nature of the church as essential qualities. In spite of perceived administrative and financial difficulties, the overwhelming voice spoke for a global church and ecumenical involvements for our future.

We found that:

11. The leadership of bishops in their spiritual and temporal roles is affirmed. The data generally identifies a need for effective leadership and a corporate need for direction-setting and accountability. In conversations with the Council of Bishops, their role as spiritual and temporal leaders was noted and affirmed as essential to our future.

We found that:

12. Many in our church express a lack of satisfaction with the general agencies of The United Methodist Church. The data shows that these perceptions lead to calls for downsizing and more effective resourcing for mission and ministry needs at the annual conferences and local churches. Our study clearly indicates a need for greater efficiency, discipline, and accountability in the use of human, natural, and financial resources to meet well-defined goals. While the study documents these needs, it also identifies appreciation for the ministries and expertise of the general agencies. Our study also finds that the general agencies are often perceived as independent entities that promote their particular interests rather than resource ministries of local churches and annual conferences, and that ministry efforts are not well coordinated.

We found that:

13. General agencies receive some positive evaluations of their resources and services by their constituencies. Consequently, in conversations the general agencies did not generally acknowledge expressions of dissatisfaction voiced toward their specific agency.

We found that:

14. The size of the general church organization needs to be reduced. The data received supports reduction in the size of general agency membership and staff. It also calls for preserving the value of inclusive representation. Several general agencies indicate that a reduction in the number of elected members is feasible.

We found that:

15. A serious disconnection exists between the general program agencies and the annual conference councils on ministries. The data indicate that annual conferences are planning for emphases that they do not believe can be effectively resourced by the general agencies. Corollary to this concern is the finding that the services offered by agencies often do not match the needs or emphases of annual conferences.

The Call For Action

The United Methodist Church has an opportunity to address the issues that face the denomination and prepare ourselves for greater ministry in the coming decades. The historic mission of Jesus Christ is still our call to action.

The Connectional Issues Study has provided extensive listening to all constituencies in our church. Our most faithful response to God's leading, as voiced by our people, is to analyze ourselves carefully as we prepare for the future.

Many voices have offered constructive critique of our current efforts and challenge us to reform our approaches to ministry so that we might be more effective in focusing on the mission and ministry of all Christians to transform the world.

It is clear to us that these voices are in harmony with the leading of God's spirit as we understand it.

The findings in the study prompt concerns. The United Methodist Church is strong and effective in many settings. However, the findings indicate serious disconnection from the highest ideals of our common ministry. It is time to reconnect our valued understanding of shared mission which has provided effective ministry at every context in our denomination.

These recommendations are intended to:

Reflect a vision-driven understanding of ministry that will provide focused mission and resourcing to respond to the concerns and hopes of all our congregations

Focus on doing God's will in ministry, rather than preserving a particular institution or organization.

Call for the accountability of our connectional structures and rebuild the sense of common mission across the denomination through a shared vision. At its best, our connectional style of ministry has provided effective outreach in ways not possible by a single or group of congregations. This need is great in our future and we must regain the confidence of United Methodists that our organization will fulfill their response to God's call for mission and ministry.

Seek to enhance a collaborative style of interaction among all parts of the church organization. We expect that these adjustments, energized by a clear vision from God for our work, can replace independence with interdependence and cooperation across the church.

Respond to the disconnections cited in findings 6, 8, and 12 through 15 of the Connectional Issues Study. Central to this understanding is the interactive process which is presented in principle on pages 18 through 20 of this report. Further, the interactive design is based upon the principles stated as The Identity, Purpose and Mission of The United Methodist Church (pages 11-17). The interactive connectional process and its organizational components will require additional study and analysis as the church moves toward its implementation.

Call for the utilization of the local church conference as the visioning and policy-setting body for the mission and ministry of the local congregation.

Call for organizational flexibility for the conferences. This recommendation for flexibility is needed to encourage congregations and conferences to organize for effective mission and ministry while maintaining the connectional linkages that are vital to our heritage.

Call for the creation of regional conferences to provide for ministry within a specified geographical region.

Call for the creation of a global conference to care for all matters distinctively connectional for The United Methodist Church.

Call for the optimum size of general agencies membership and staff with sensitivity to inclusivity and representativeness. We are convinced that new models for connectional linkage will be developed and can provide greater resourcing for annual conferences, districts and local congregations in the future. The appropriate agency staff size designed to meet the needs of each agency must also be considered as these structural components are finalized.

Call for greater role of laity in the mission and ministry of the church in every context. Lay persons, baptized into ministry, embody the love of Jesus Christ in the church and the world. Lay persons do ministry.

Call for decision-making at the place of ministry in order to empower those in general ministry while holding each other faithful to the God-given vision of the church serving the community and the world.

Call for servant leadership. We recognize the gifts and talents of all believers who are instruments of God within the body of Christ, empowered by the Holy Spirit to lead and serve each other as we live out the vision of a world transformed into the likeness of Christ.

We urge you to give serious consideration to The Recommendations for Mission and Ministry of The United Methodist Church into the 21st Century in this report. It is our prayer that they will give greater vision, collaboration and support as we seek to be faithful to our Identity, Purpose and Mission as God's people.

The Identity, Purpose and Mission of The United Methodist Church

(Core Values and Beliefs)

The identity, purpose and mission of The United Methodist Church are grounded in historical core values and beliefs which provide the foundation for mission and ministry in the Church. The Connectional Issues Study process, through listening to the church and gathering data, has identified core values and beliefs in language that reflects the traditions of the church as it emerges in today's social and missional contexts. These core values and beliefs are listed in alphabetical order:

Annual conference
 Connectionalism
 Doctrinal heritage
 Ecumenism
 Education
 Evangelism
 Global character
 Inclusiveness of the church
 Local church
 Ministry of all Christians
 Mission
 Mutual accountability
 Scriptural holiness
 Social justice
 Stewardship
 Vital worship

These historical core values and beliefs are consistent with The Book of Discipline, 1992 which states:

... all Christians share a common history. Within that history, Christian tradition precedes Scripture, and yet Scripture comes to be the focal expression of the tradition. As United Methodists, we pursue our theological task in openness to the richness of both the form and power of tradition. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 68, p. 79)

The Book of Discipline, 1992 delineates each of these core values and beliefs of United Methodists in various paragraphs which the GCOM has identified as the foundation for recommendations of the study.

Annual Conference

As declared in the Constitution we believe the Annual Conference is the basic body in the Church... (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - The Constitution, ¶ 36, Article II, p. 31)

The purpose of the Annual Conference is to make disciples for Jesus Christ by equipping its local churches for ministry and by providing a connection for ministry beyond the local church all to the glory of God. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 701, p. 328) (See also The Constitution ¶ 10, p. 23)

The Annual Conference shall provide for the connectional relationship between the general boards and commissions and the conference, district, and local church. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 707, p. 338)

Connectionalism

We are connectional in witness and community.

The United Methodist connectional principle, born out of our historical tradition, many biblical roots, and accepted theological ideas, is the basic form of our polity, the way in which we carry out God's mission as a people.

It is in essence a network of interdependent relationships among persons and groups throughout the life of the whole denomination.

It declares that our identity is in our wholeness together in Christ that each part is vital to the whole, that our mission is more effectively carried out by a connectional life which incorporates Wesleyan zeal into the life of the people. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 112.3, p. 112)

Our Doctrinal Heritage

We have faith in Jesus Christ and uphold basic Christian affirmations. We also affirm distinctive Wesleyan emphases.

United Methodists profess the historic Christian faith in God, incarnate in Jesus Christ for our salvation and ever at work in human history in the Holy Spirit. Living in a covenant of grace under the Lordship of Jesus Christ, we participate in the first fruits of God's coming reign and pray in hope for its full realization on earth as in heaven.

Our heritage in doctrine and our present theological task focus upon a renewed grasp of the sovereignty of God and of God's love in Christ amid the continuing crises of human existence. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 65, p. 40)

The outreach of the Church springs from the working of the Spirit. As United Methodists, we respond to that working through a connectional polity based upon mutual responsiveness and accountability. Connectional ties bind us together in faith and service in our global witness, enabling faith to become active in love and intensifying our desire for peace and justice in the world. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 65, p. 47)

Ecumenism

We are committed to ecumenical life and witness.

The United Methodist Church is a part of the Church Universal, which is one Body in Christ. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - The Constitution, ¶ 4, Article IV, p. 22)

The Church of Jesus Christ exists in and for the world, and its very aliveness is a hindrance to its mission in that world. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - Preamble, The Constitution, p. 21)

Christian unity is founded on the theological understanding that through faith in Jesus Christ we are made members-in-common of the one Body of Christ. Christian unity is not an option; it is a gift to be received and expressed.

United Methodists respond to the theological, biblical, and practical mandates for Christian unity by firmly committing ourselves to the cause of Christian unity at local, national, and world levels. We invest ourselves in many ways by which mutual recognition of churches, of members, and of ministries may lead us to sharing in Holy Communion with all of God's people. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 68, pp. 83-84)

Education

We are committed to the uniting of knowledge and vital piety. Christian education is understood to be the process which enables United Methodist Christians

... to grow in their understanding of God that they may respond in faith and love, to the end that they may know who they are and what their human situation means, increasingly identifying themselves as children of God and members of the Christian community, to live in the Spirit of God in every relationship, to fulfill their common discipleship in the world, and to abide in the Christian hope. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 1201, p. 486)

We affirm that higher education is a vital part of our historic mission.

Higher education is a significant part of our Wesleyan heritage, our present task, and our future responsibility. The Church continues its historic mission of uniting knowledge and vital piety by maintaining educational institutions and a campus ministry, and through them an intellectual, spiritual, and material ministry to all persons within the academic community without respect to sex, race, creed, or national origin... (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 1513.1)

Evangelism

We believe evangelism is foundational.

The people of God are the Church made visible in the world. It is they who must convince the world of the reality of the gospel or leave it unconvinced. There can be no evasion or delegation of this responsibility; the Church is either faithful as a witnessing and serving community, or it loses its vitality and its impact on an unbelieving world. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 107, p. 110)

2. Evangelism. To proclaim the Gospel is fundamental; to invite persons to personal decision for and commitment to Jesus Christ and his being is equally fundamental. The Gospel calls forth response. The invitation to respond to the Gospel is evangelism. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 69, p. 86)

Global Character

We believe that the church is global in its nature and ministry.

A rich quality of our Church, especially as it has developed in the last century, is its global character. We are a church with a distinctive theological heritage, but that heritage is lived out in a global community, resulting in understandings of our faith enriched by indigenous experiences and manners of expression. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 68, p. 83)

Inclusiveness of The Church

We believe in the inclusiveness of all persons with openness, acceptance, and support. The Constitution of The United Methodist Church reads:

Inclusiveness of the Church.-The United Methodist Church is a part of the Church Universal, which is one Body in Christ. Therefore all persons, without regard to race, color, national origin, or economic condition, shall be eligible to attend its worship services, to participate in its programs, and, when they take the appropriate vows, to be admitted into its membership in any local church in the connection. In The United Methodist Church no conference or other organizational unit of the Church shall be structured so as to exclude any member or be admitted into its membership of the Church because of race, color, national origin, or economic condition. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - The Constitution, ¶ 4, Article IV, p. 22) (See also The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 113, p. 114)

Local Church

The Church of Jesus Christ exists in and for the world. We believe that it is primarily at the local church that the Church encounters the world.

A local church is a community of true believers under the Lordship of Christ. It is the redemptive fellowship in which the Word of God is preached by persons divinely called, and the Sacraments are duly administered according to Christ's own appointment. Under the discipline of the Holy Spirit the Church exists for the maintenance of worship, the edification of believers, and the redemption of the world.

The Church of Jesus Christ exists in and for the world. It is primarily at the level of the local church that the Church encounters the world. The local church is a strategic base from which Christians move out to the structures of society.

Each local church shall have a definite evangelistic, nurture, and witness responsibility for its members and the surrounding area, and a missional outreach responsibility to the local and global community. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 201, 202, 204, selected, pages 116-117)

The Ministry of All Christians

We believe all Christian believers are involved in mission and ministry to the world.

The heart of Christian ministry is Christ's ministry of outreaching love. Christian ministry is the expression of the mind and mission of Christ by a community of Christians that demonstrates a common life of gratitude and devotion, witness and service, celebration and discipleship. All Christians are called to this ministry of servanthood in the world to the glory of God and for human fulfillment. The forms of this ministry are diverse in locale, in interest, and in denominational accent, yet always catholic in spirit and outreach. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 104, p. 109)

Ministry is understood as a call for all to serve and witness. Within this ministry some are called to representative ministry ordained and diaconal.

Mission

We believe that United Methodist mission and witness involves four essential dimensions: proclamation, evangelism, incorporation, and servanthood.

Mission is the action of the God of grace who creates out of love, who calls a covenant people community, who graciously redeems and reconciles a broken and sinful people in Jesus Christ, and who through the Holy Spirit calls the church into being as the instrument of the good news of grace to all people. Mission is also the church's grateful response to what God has done, is doing, and will do. A grace-formed church is one which responsibly participates in God's action in and for the world ...

Mission is witness to the God of grace. Witness has four essential dimensions:

1. Proclamation. We proclaim the Gospel. We tell the story of God's gracious initiative to redeem the world. The imperative for proclamation is found in the Gospel itself. Good news cannot be withheld.

2. Evangelism. To proclaim the Gospel is fundamental; to invite persons to personal decision for and commitment to Jesus Christ and his being is equally fundamental. The Gospel calls forth response. The invitation to response to the gospel is evangelism.

3. Incorporation. We call persons to be incorporated into the Body of Christ. All who are in Christ share in the mission of Christ.

4. Servanthood. We serve as agents of God's liberating and reconciling grace among the nations. Witness is to whole persons and their social contexts. The wholeness of grace entails justice, mercy, and forgiveness. Our aim is, therefore, transformed people in a transformed world. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 69, selected, pages 85-86)

Mutual Accountability

We are mutually accountable in the efficient use of human, natural, and financial resources.

The outreach of the church springs from the working of the Spirit. As United Methodists, we respond to that working through a connexional polity based upon mutual responsiveness and accountability. Connexional ties bind us together in faith and service in our global witness, enabling faith to become active in love and intensifying our desire for peace and justice in the world. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 65, p. 47)

c) Community. The principle provides for relationships of Holy Spirit-empowered community wherein support, supervision, healing, accountability, and growth can take place for persons and groups across the denomination. Our life together, with its mutual accountability and relationships, keeps us ever alert to being faithful to the gospel in all our efforts. Through it the whole system may be fueled with life-giving Spirit energy. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 112.3 c, p. 113)

Scriptural Holiness

We believe in the scripture as witness to faith. It is the revelation of God's grace and salvation through Jesus Christ.

Wesley believed that the living core of the Christian faith was revealed in Scripture, illumined by tradition, vivified in personal experience, and confirmed by reason.

Scripture is primary, revealing the Word of God "so far as it is necessary for our salvation." Therefore, our theological task, in both its critical and constructive aspects, focuses on disciplined study of the Bible. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 68, p. 76)

Social Justice

We are committed to social justice.

For Wesley there is no religion but social religion, no holiness but social holiness. The communal forms of faith in the Wesleyan tradition not only promote personal growth; they also equip and mobilize us for mission and service to the world. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 65, p. 47)

... The Social Principles are a prayerful and thoughtful effort on the part of the General Conference to speak to the human issues in the contemporary world from a sound biblical and theological foundation as historically demonstrated in United Methodist traditions. They are intended to be instructive and persuasive in the best of the prophetic spirit. The Social Principles are a call to all members of The United Methodist Church to a prayerful, studied dialogue of faith and practice. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - Preface to Social Principles, p. 87) (See also Our Social Creed,

The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 76, p. 106-107)

Stewardship

We believe all baptized persons in the body of Christ become co-workers with God in all of life and creation. The work of stewardship shall:

... encourage both individual and corporate stewardship, informing them that tithing is the minimum goal of giving in The United Methodist Church. Using as a basis Scripture, tradition, reason, and experience, stewardship shall have five components: (1) the use of God-given talents, (2) personal financial management and life commitments, (3) personal giving through the church, (4) local church management of resources, and (5) the Christian stewards responsibility in Gods world. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 262.10 (a), p. 157)

Vital Worship

We believe in vital and culturally diverse worship experiences.

We believe divine worship is the duty and privilege of all persons who, in the presence of God, bow in adoration, humility and dedication. We believe divine worship is essential to the life of the Church, and that the assembling of the people of God for such worship is necessary to Christian fellowship and spiritual growth. We believe the order of public worship need not be the same in all places but may be modified by the Church according to circumstances and the needs of all. It should be in a language and form understood by the people, consistent with the Holy Scriptures to the edification of all, and in accordance with the order and Discipline of the Church. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 67, Article XIII, p. 69)

The Recommendations for Mission and Ministry of The United Methodist Church into the 21st Century

As the writer of I Corinthians taught the early church:

As it is, there are many members, yet one body. The eye cannot say to the hand, "I have no need of you," nor again the head to the feet, "I have no need of you." On the contrary, the members of the body that seem to be weaker are indispensable, and those members of the body that we think less honorable we clothe with greater honor, and our less respectable members are treated with greater respect; whereas our more respectable members do not need this. But God has so arranged the body, giving the greater honor to the inferior member, that there may be no dissension within the body, but the members may have the same care for one another. If one member suffers, all suffer together with it; if one member is honored, all rejoice together with it." (I Corinthians 12:20-26)

We believe that an interactive organizational process is the best way for The United Methodist Church to live toward this vision. By interactive, we mean a body that encourages interdependence among the parts. Such a living entity would encourage individuals to present their different perspectives, concerns, and ideas. It would allow each member of the body to grow and learn in interaction with all other members of the body. For as in one body we have many members, and not all the members have the same function, so we, who are many, are one body in Christ, and individually we are members one of another. (Romans 12:4-5) Through such interaction, we hope to live out the vision of what God calls us to become: A joyful and loving community transformed by grace and transforming the world.

Our VISION is of a world transformed into the likeness of Christ where faithful persons actively manifest the love of God and neighbor while fostering true community among all persons.

We believe that the design for mission and ministry recommended in this document helps us toward this vision in many ways.

Focus on the local congregation's mission to the world provides the opportunity for effective resourcing from all other parts of the body consistent with the vision.

Repetition of essential functions (Outreach, Nurture, and Witness Ministries; Leadership Ministries; Administrative and Fiscal Ministries; Council) provides consistency to draw all into the community of the whole.

Flexibility in essential and additional functions provides for local congregations to adapt to local needs and focus outreach in ministry beyond the congregation.

Shared dialogue among all parts of the body in interactive ministry settings will allow for the development of a singular focus on the vision to guide the ministry of The United Methodist Church.

Interactive decision-making provides for mutual ministry resource development and accountability among the various parts of the body as the whole denomination focuses its resources on our vision and mission.

Simplicity of the design provides an opportunity for each ministry setting to understand and participate within the connection.

A focus on leadership ministries provides a setting to develop resources and styles of ministry that support individuals in their faith journeys and complement training for a particular leadership task.

The interactive style for all of the ministries provides a way for the whole denomination and all of its parts to act together in mission throughout the world.

Simplified structures minimize redundancy, provide for greater cost effectiveness, and encourage other efficiencies to free resources to be allocated for greater mission.

As you read the descriptions of the following design, we encourage you to experience the synergy of how this dynamic will move us toward our vision of a preferred future.

Provisions of The Book of Discipline, 1992 shall remain in force unless specifically noted in this document. We assume that organizational ministry units such as the United Methodist Women, United Methodist Youth Fellowship, United Methodist Men, local church lay leaders, district lay leaders, annual conference lay leaders, etc., will remain in place. Also district and annual conference groupings such as these named above shall continue.

The Interactive Body The Connection of Conferences

We believe that the interactive body is the way Christ would have us live as Christ Church in the world. In the interactive body, we meet together with a common vision and purpose. When we are involved in an interactive body, we listen, talk, and work to understand each other, no matter how different we may be. As we share, we learn and are transformed. Together, led by the Holy Spirit through this interactive process, we are able to create something new something that is greater than we could have done alone to perform focused, Christ-led ministry in the world. When many individuals led by the Holy Spirit are working together in this way, they create a community. We believe that such a community:

Lives by participation.

Learns and grows through diversity.

Asks for mutual understanding.

Builds ever-increasing energy and joy through interdependence.

Serves as the body of Christ in the world.

This concept is not new to United Methodists. Our ideal has always been to work together in conference, conciliar, and connectional ways to serve Gods church. Our reality, however, frequently falls short of this ideal. The interactive body that we describe supports a connection that does more than merely hold us together. It helps us all teach and learn from each other. Practicing these interactive skills in our Church lives, we learn how to interact in the world through evangelism and social justice, looking always toward our vision of a world transformed in the likeness of Christ.

During the Connectional Issues Study, we heard voices from across the connection asking the Church to engender this kind of community. The recommendations in this document encourage interaction at many points across the Church. We interact with other persons in ministry, not to ask permission but to share insights, learn new perspectives, and share the glory of God. Areas of ministry interact not to compete for power and control, but to build solutions that move the church toward its vision. The connection of conferences (church, district, annual, regional, and global conference sessions) brings persons together in constructive interaction to make the decisions that build the future of the community in the world. The conference bodies interact to bring together local and global needs and resources for mission. The general superintendency provides interactions that bring forth the spiritual and temporal welfare of the Church as a whole. Clergy and lay persons interact to strengthen and teach one another and to build leadership that is empowering and servant-centered.

This section describes the various parts of the interconnected body that we identify as the connectional design for The United Methodist Church. It describes an interrelated, interdependent organization that will help us all stay true to our identity, purpose and mission. It will keep us focused on our vision and mission as a denomination. This section includes the following parts:

The Connection of Conferences

The Local Church (Church Conference)

The District Conference (Optional)

The Annual Conference

The Regional Conference

The Global Conference

The United Methodist Church is a connectional structure maintained through its chain of conferences. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 ¶ 292). Data collected from across the church continues to affirm our connectional traditions. Our recommended design seeks to simplify the organizational components and improve local church, district and annual conference relationships in the following ways:

Utilize the local church and its church conference as a body where local congregations develop a vision for mission and ministry for their community and the world, consistent with the connectional traditions of our church. In a multiple-church pastoral charge this may be convened as a joint church conference. Also, this would be a setting for planning, evaluating and celebrating the ministry of Christian disciples in that place and around the globe.

Utilize the district conference (optional) The Book of Discipline, 1992 ¶ 749-762, pp. 410-423, allows the annual conference to provide for district conferences and other organizations.

Affirm the annual conference as the basic body of the connection to support the ministries of local congregations. It will also provide for the mission and ministry of the annual conference.

Establish regional conferences around the world that will resource the outreach, nurture, and witness ministries for local congregations through resourcing the annual conferences in their defined geographical areas. They will also provide other resources for mission and ministry of their region and the world.

Create a global conference that will represent the worldwide nature of The United Methodist Church and provide constitutional, doctrinal and theological foundations for mission and ministry.

The Nature of Superintendency

Integral to the Connection of Conferences is the cohesion provided by the superintendency of The United Methodist Church: the bishops and district superintendents. The Constitution grants the Council of Bishops responsibility for the general oversight and promotion of the temporal and spiritual interests of the entire Church . . . (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - The Constitution, ¶ 50, p. 35). Accordingly, through the general superintendency, the district superintendents share these responsibilities with the bishops in the communities of the district in which they serve. (The Book of Discipline, 1992, ¶ 519, pp. 282-283)

In order to exercise meaningful leadership, the Cabinet is to meet at stated intervals. The Cabinet is charged with the oversight of the spiritual and temporal affairs of a conference, to be executed in regularized consultation and cooperation with other councils and service agencies of the conference. (The Book of Discipline, 1992, ¶ 529.4, p. 287)

The superintendents serve a crucial role in the connectional structure in maintaining the interactive process within the connection of conferences. Any future design shall recognize and preserve the responsibilities of the Church superintendents for linking the mandate of the Church to the world:

It is their task ... to see that all matters, temporal and spiritual, are administered in a manner which acknowledges the ways and the insights of the world critically and with understanding while remaining cognizant of and faithful to the mandate of the Church. The formal leadership in The United Methodist Church, located in these superintending offices, is an integral part of the system of an itinerant ministry. (The Book of Discipline, 1992, ¶ 501, p. 269)

In order to exercise meaningful leadership, the Council of Bishops is to meet at stated intervals. The Council of Bishops is charged with the oversight of the spiritual and temporal affairs of the whole Church, to be executed in regularized consultation and cooperation with other councils and service agencies of the Church. (The Book of Discipline, 1992, ¶ 527.3, p. 287)

Bishops, as general superintendents, carry the responsibility corporately and individually to uphold the apostolic faith and the theological traditions of The United Methodist Church (The Book of Discipline, 1992, ¶ 514, p. 280). They bear the task of proclamation of Christian unity which is a gift of the Holy Spirit. They also promote the evangelistic witness of The United Methodist Church. Ecumenical and interfaith work within the Church is done in close consultation with the superintendents of the Church.

The superintendents, along with ordained and diaconal ministers, are charged with the equipping of the whole membership of the Church in the ministry of Jesus Christ. These persons exist to intensify and make more effective the self-understanding of the whole People of God as servants in Christ's name (The Book of Discipline, 1992, ¶ 301, p. 189). In the interactive process the superintendents provide interconnection and interrelationship within the connection of conferences.

As far as is possible, the interactions between and among the conferences and superintendents will be established through covenantal relationships, rather than regulations. Each conference will be accountable to the vision through this covenantal relationship. Through these relationships, the mission and ministry of conferences will be held accountable to:

The core value of an inclusive United Methodist Church, where each "conference" membership shall reflect a cross-section of the membership, including ethnicity, gender, youth, young adults, older adults, lay/clergy, and persons with disabilities.

The Identity, Purpose and Mission of the United Methodist Church, as identified in this document and stated fully in The Book of Discipline, 1992.

The Vision, as developed and stated within each conference, consistent with the vision for the entire denomination.

Detailed structural components beyond those essential for mission (Outreach, Nurture, and Witness Ministries; Leadership Ministries; Administrative and Fiscal Ministries; The Council) will not be determined by one conference for another. Rather, each conference will be responsible for structuring itself in ways consistent with its mission.

We believe that an interactive relationship among the conferences will meet the needs for our historic connectional relationships across the denomination. It will also provide the flexibility to respond to identified needs for effective mission and ministry.

The Conference Settings

The following sections describe in more detail how the interactive organization will function within each setting for mission.

The Local Church

Paragraphs 247 and 249 of The Book of Discipline, 1992 state the purpose of the Charge Conference and the Church Conference respectively.

In keeping with the interactive and participatory nature of the recommendations within this report, we recommend that local churches hold Church Conferences rather than Charge Conferences. This would be in keeping with ¶ 249 of The Book of Discipline, 1992 which reads:

To encourage broader participation by members of the church, the Charge Conference may be convened as the Church Conference, extending the vote to all local church members present at such meetings. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 249, p. 140)

The Book of Discipline, 1992 in ¶ 201 through ¶ 204, describes the purpose of the local church:

Under the discipline of the Holy Spirit the Church exists for the maintenance of worship, the edification of believers and the redemption of the world. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 201, p. 116)

Therefore, the local church is to minister to persons in the community where the church is located, to provide appropriate training and nurture to all, to cooperate in ministry with other local churches, to defend God's creation and live as an ecologically responsible community, and to participate in the worldwide mission of the Church, as minimal expectations of an authentic church. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 202, p. 116)

Further, the local congregation must embody inclusiveness:

Inclusiveness of the Church. The United Methodist Church is a part of the Church Universal, which is one Body in Christ. Therefore all persons, without regard to race, color, national origin, or economic condition, shall be eligible to attend its worship services, to participate in its programs, and, when they take the appropriate vows, to be admitted into its membership in any local church in the connection. In The United Methodist Church no conference or other organizational unit of the Church shall be structured so as to exclude any member or any constituent body of the Church because of race, color, national origin, or economic condition. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - The Constitution, ¶ 4, p. 22)

Given our historic identity, purpose and mission, the local church must be free to organize itself to meet the missional challenges of its community and the world. Also it must keep its covenant of connection with all other parts of the church body.

The need for organizational accountability within the current covenantal connection for the local church has often created difficulties for our congregations, especially those with small membership. The proposed interactive organization seeks to transform this tension between accountability and flexibility into a creative force.

Toward this end, we recommend that each local church utilize this interactive organization which contains these essential elements:

- The Church Conference
- Outreach, Nurture, and Witness Ministries
- Leadership Ministries
- Administrative and Fiscal Ministries
- The Council

These essential elements are based on two fundamental assumptions.

First, according to our belief in the general ministry of all Christian believers, the mission and ministry of the church are the responsibility of each and every member. The organization within the congregation exists to provide support and resources for its mission in the world. The organizational structures, themselves, are not intended to be the source of ministry in the community.

Second, each local church will need to determine the organizational details needed for its mission. Within the simple four-part body identified above, and the Church Conference, each local congregation could establish the additional task forces, committees, or commissions it deems necessary.

The functions of these essential ministries for the local church are described below.

The Church Conference

Membership: All local church members.

It will:

Determine the number of members of the Council and ministry areas.

Receive nominations and elect members for the three ministries areas and at-large members of the Council.

Form a Vision Team to develop a vision for the local church. The Vision Team, in consultation with the Council, will recommend a vision to the Church Conference for adoption and referral to the Council for implementation.

Approve compensation for paid staff.

Elect member(s) to the Annual Conference.

Evaluate the work of the Council in light of vision, core values and beliefs, and traditions of The United Methodist Church.

Fulfill the functions and responsibilities as presently stated in ¶ 247-252 of The Book of Discipline, 1992.

Meet at least annually.

Monitor to assure racial, gender and age inclusiveness of the congregation and for inclusion of persons with disability.

Outreach, Nurture, and Witness Ministries. Opportunities for mission and ministry will be initiated and developed through this group for the congregation. This unit will focus all of the human, spiritual, and financial resources of the congregation on the primary roles of outreach, nurture, and witness. Though the detailed organizational structures may vary from one local church to another, we anticipate that the essential functions of this body will include:

- Vital worship
- Bible study and faith development
- Evangelism, witnessing, and faith sharing
- Nurturing persons in Christian living and values (education, stewardship)
- Missional and outreach ministries in the local community and around the world (care, compassion, advocacy)

Social justice and advocacy

Support for groups such as UMYF, UMYA, UMW, UMM

Self-mentoring for racial, gender and age inclusiveness of the congregation and for inclusion of persons with disability

Leadership Ministries. Opportunities for educational and leadership ministries of the congregation will be initiated and implemented through this group. This will include calling forth and preparing the membership for direct mission and ministry to the community(ies). This unit will provide resourcing that is needed for effective servant leadership of the laity throughout the local church. Though the detailed organizational structures may be different for each local church, we anticipate that the essential functions will include:

Biblical, theological, and spiritual formation for teachers and leaders

Education in the traditions of United Methodism

Training to support mission and ministry

Training to support administrative and fiscal management

Leader recruitment, development, training and deployment for lay ministry

Organizational development and management improvement skills

Resource development and distribution

Development of a process for nomination of leadership to be used by the Church Conference

Ministry to students on college campuses

Self-monitoring for racial, gender and age inclusiveness of the congregation and for inclusion of persons with disability

Staff/parish relations

Support of candidates for representative ministry

Administrative and Fiscal Ministries. It is through this part of the body that the legal, financial, and administrative management will be developed to carry out outreach, nurture, and witness ministries of the local church. Though the detailed structures may differ from one local church to another, we anticipate that the essential functions of this body will include:

Budgeting, fiscal review and financial resourcing

Communications within the congregation and beyond

Interpretation of the connective stories of outreach, nurture, and witness ministries

Ongoing attention to improvement, cost effectiveness, and efficiency

Data management

Financial policies and procedures

Property and legal management

Recording and preserving the memory and tradition of the church

Self-monitoring to assure racial, gender and age inclusiveness of the congregation and for inclusion of persons with disability

The Council

Membership: Representatives of the three ministries areas (Outreach, Nurture, and Witness Ministries; Leadership Ministries; and Administrative and Fiscal Ministries) elected by them, and at-large members elected by the Church Conference from the congregation. The Council will provide communication and interaction among the three ministries areas. Membership of the three Ministries and the Council will be selected to represent a cross-section of the congregation, including ethnicity, gender, youth, young adults, older adults, and persons with disabilities. This diversity will enrich the interactive approach to and carrying out of mission and ministry.

It will:

Be accountable to the Church Conference.

Be the policy-setting and decision-making body for the congregation between the sessions of the Church Conference.

Implement the vision established by the Church Conference, core values and beliefs, purpose, and mission to support the three ministry units in coordinating and focusing all spiritual, human and fiscal resources to meet identified needs for outreach, nurture, and witness. Evaluate the work of the congregation in light of the vision, core values and beliefs, and traditions of The United Methodist Church.

Help define and resolve issues and other differences that may naturally arise within and among the ministry units.

Foster and ensure vital ecumenical and interfaith relationships within the life of the church and all its ministry.

Listen and respond to the spiritual and physical needs of the congregation and the larger community.

Monitor all units for racial, gender and age inclusiveness of the congregation and for inclusion of persons with disability.

The ministry units will be empowered to make decisions consistent with policies set by the Council.

The three ministry units, the Council, and the Church Conference will comprise the essential interactive organizational design for the local congregation. This proposal has many similarities with the structures for the local church as they are currently described in The Book of Discipline, 1992. Some significant differences are apparent, however.

Missional, administrative, and educational perspectives are brought together into a co-equal relationship within the Council for the purpose of making decisions collaboratively.

The Council focuses the spiritual, human and fiscal resources of the congregation on the vision and core values and beliefs, so that each decision can be made within the purpose and traditions of our church.

All parts of the body are held in mutual responsiveness and accountability throughout the decision-making processes.

Leadership within the congregation and its organizational life will be shared between clergy and laity.

Subcommittees, commissions, and task forces are determined by the congregation. They can be created and dissolved as needs change.

The coordinating functions of the interactive organization are drawn from, not imposed upon, the coordinated functional units.

The number of members needed to serve within each essential element is determined by the needs and available resources within the local congregation.

The decision of the ministries and Council are informed by the vision stated by the Church Conference.

Flexibility allows local churches to organize for their own missional needs.

The Leadership Ministries can focus attention on productive servant leadership skills for clergy and laity.

The Council would be expected to evaluate the ministries of the congregation regularly and to encourage refinements to enable the congregation to meet its ministry potential.

The General Council on Ministries believes that this interactive design will provide the continuity for local churches to participate effectively in the United Methodist connection, while allowing flexibility for the congregation to be in mission in its local environment. To implement this, descriptive and interpretive materials will be provided to assist local congregations in organizing.

This interactive organizational design will be flexible enough to meet the needs of congregations of all sizes. The organizational design may be transformed as needed to respond to the call of the Spirit and actively manifest the love of God and neighbor.

The District Conference (Optional)

Annual conferences choosing this option can provide a closer connection to local churches for the purpose of supporting and resourcing their ministries. Within this new interactive model, it is anticipated that this option for districts, sub-districts, clusters and the like would continue. Lay and clergy leadership, with the district superintendent, would design the necessary structures in each district.

The Annual Conference

In ¶ 701 of The Book of Discipline, 1992 the purpose of the annual conference is stated clearly.

The purpose of the Annual Conference is to make disciples for Jesus Christ by equipping its local churches for ministry and by providing a connection for ministry beyond the local church; all to the glory of God. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 701, p. 328)

In fulfilling this purpose, as the basic organizational body of The United Methodist Church, the annual conference supports and resources the ministries of the local church in its mission and provides its own outreach, nurture, and witness in ways that cannot reasonably be accomplished by its local churches. This design assumes the continuation of the annual conference session.

We understand that many annual conferences have already restructured their agencies, or are in the process of doing so, to be more effective in mission. We hope that our recommendation will provide guidance for continuity in structural patterns across the connection.

We believe the interactive structure provides an essential unity while still allowing for the flexibility necessary for the annual conference to meet its calling.

Membership on all organizational units within the annual conference will be selected to represent a cross-section of the annual conference membership, including ethnicity, gender, youth, young adults, older adults, lay/clergy, and persons with disabilities.

Toward this end, we recommend the following essential elements for annual conference organization across the connection:

Annual Conference Session

Outreach, Nurture and Witness Ministries

Leadership Ministries

Administrative and Fiscal Ministries

The Council

As noted above, each annual conference will identify the additional components to meet its unique ministry needs and resources.

The Annual Conference Session

Membership: Appropriate lay and clergy members as provided for in The Book of Discipline, 1992 - The Constitution, ¶ 35, pp. 30-31.

It will:

Meet at least annually.

Evaluate the work of the Council in light of vision, core values and beliefs and traditions of The United Methodist Church.

Determine the number of members of the Council and three ministry areas.

Receive nominations and elect members for the three ministries areas and at-large members of the Council.

Approve budget for financial support of the annual conference.

Elect member(s) to the regional and global conferences.

Form a Vision Team to develop a vision for the annual conference. The Vision Team, in consultation with the three ministries, the Council and local churches, will recommend a vision to the annual conference for adoption and referral to the Council for implementation.

Fulfill the functions and responsibilities of the annual conference as presently stated in ¶ 701-749 of The Book of Discipline, 1992.

Monitor to assure racial, gender and age inclusiveness of the annual conference and for inclusion of persons with disability.

Outreach, Nurture, and Witness Ministries. The purpose of this unit is the same as it is for the local churches: to focus all of the human, spiritual, and financial resources available on mission and ministry to the world. Each annual conference will determine a detailed organizational design to support the outreach, nurture, and witness functions necessary for ministry. We anticipate that essential functions will include:

Providing resources and support for outreach, nurture, and witness ministries of local churches.

Missional activities within the annual conference that cannot reasonably be accomplished by local churches.

Social justice and advocacy activities that cannot be accomplished by an individual or group of local churches.

Advocate for all issues of inclusiveness within the annual conference.

Support for connectional ministries of the denomination and the interaction between the local church and the connection.

Communications among local churches for interpretation of connectional ministries.

New church development.

Revitalization of local congregations.

Self-monitoring for racial, gender and age inclusiveness of the annual conference and for inclusion of persons with disability.

Leadership Ministries. Opportunities for education and leadership ministries for clergy, laity, and diaconal ministers, will be initiated and implemented through this group. It will identify, provide and evaluate continuing education for ordained and diaconal ministers. This part of the body will provide resources needed for effective servant leadership within the annual conference and its local churches. Each annual conference will determine the necessary organization for leadership ministries. We anticipate these essential functions will be included:

Support for leadership ministries of local churches (see list under "local church")

Leader development and training for clergy and laity that cannot be accomplished by individual or groups of local churches

Organizational development and management improvement skills acquired by leaders across the annual conference

Development of a process for nomination of leadership to be used by the annual conference

Resource development and distribution of resources that are most appropriately designed by the annual conference

Support for persons in appointments beyond the local church, such as chaplains and campus ministers

Self-monitoring for racial, gender and age inclusiveness within the annual conference and for inclusion of persons with disability

Implementation of the functions of ordained and consecrated ministry in cooperation with the Cabinet

Administrative and Fiscal Ministries. The purpose of this unit is similar to that for local churches. It is to provide the legal, financial, and administrative management services to carry out outreach, nurture, witness, and leadership of the annual conference. Each annual conference will determine the detailed organizational design necessary for administrative and fiscal functions. We anticipate that the functions of this body will include:

Support for administrative and fiscal ministries of the local churches

Providing budgeting and financial reourcing for the annual conference

Ongoing attention to improvement, cost effectiveness, and efficiency of annual conference ministries

Data management for annual conference ministries

Financial policies and procedures for the annual conference

Interpretation outside the connection for outreach, nurture, and witness

Responsibility for property and legal management

Recording and preserving the memory and tradition of the church in the Annual conference

Management of investments, insurance and pensions

Self-monitoring for racial, gender and age inclusiveness of the annual conference and for inclusion of persons with disability

The Council

Membership: Representative members of the three ministries areas (Outreach, Nurture, and Witness Ministries; Leadership Ministries; and Administrative and Fiscal Ministries), elected by them, and at-large members elected by the annual conference. The Council will provide communication and interaction among the three ministries areas. Membership will be selected to represent a cross-section of the Annual Conference, including ethnicity, gender, youth, young adults, older adults, lay/clergy, and persons with disabilities. This diversity will enrich the interactive approach to and carrying out of mission and ministry.

It will:

Be accountable to the annual conference session.

Utilize the vision established by the annual conference session, core values and beliefs, purpose, and mission to support the three ministry units in coordinating and focusing all spiritual, human and fiscal resources to meet identified needs for outreach, nurture, and witness.

Help define and resolve issues and other differences that may naturally arise within and among the ministry units.

Be the policy-setting and decision-making body for the annual conference between the sessions within limits set by the annual conference.

Foster and ensure vital ecumenical and interfaith relationships within the life of the annual conference in consultation with the annual conference cabinet.

Implement the vision for the annual conference.

Evaluate the work of the annual conference in light of the vision, core values and beliefs, and traditions of The United Methodist Church.

Hold leaders accountable to the vision, core values and beliefs, and traditions, of The United Methodist Church.

Confer with local churches (Church Conferences) regarding their accountability to the vision, core values and beliefs, and traditions of The United Methodist Church.

Listen and respond to the spiritual and physical needs of the local congregations, the annual conference and the global community.

Provide for communications among local churches for interpretation of connectioal ministries.

Monitor all units for racial, gender and age inclusiveness of the annual conference and for inclusion of persons with disability.

The ministries units will be empowered to make decisions consistent with policies set by the Council.

The three ministry units, the Council, and the annual conference session will comprise the essential interactive organizational design for the Annual Conference. The functions envisioned for the annual conference in the interactive organization are not strikingly different from those currently fulfilled by the annual conference. In fulfilling these functions, the annual conference will, however, support our doctrinal heritage that declares:

The outreach of the Church springs from the working of the Spirit. As United Methodists, we respond to that working through a connectioal polity based upon mutual responsiveness and accountability. Connectional ties bind us together in faith and service in our global witness, enabling faith to become active in love and intensifying our desire for peace and justice in the world. (The Book of Discipline, 1992 - ¶ 65, p. 47)

Further, the interactive body supports the following innovations in the ministries of the annual conferences:

Interactive processes for decision-making in the annual conference council will generate a cooperative, rather than independent, and coordinated process.

Repeated ministry units make it easier for a member of the local church to understand and appreciate the organization of the annual conference.

The Council, by implementing the Annual Conference Vision, focuses its spiritual, human and fiscal resources so that each decision is made in the context of the purpose and traditions of the church.

All parts of the body are held in mutual accountability throughout the decision-making processes.

Leadership will be shared by clergy and laity.

Needed subcommittees, commissions, and task forces are determined as they emerge from perceived needs. Each can be created and dissolved as needs change.

The number of persons needed to serve within each essential organizational element is determined by the needs and available resources of the Annual Conference.

The covenant connection with local churches is facilitated through relationship and dialogue, rather than rigid regulations.

A conscious effort is made to deal only with issues that relate to the annual conference, while issues of wider scope are dealt with in the regional context and local issues in the local churches.

Given the global nature of our church these recommendations would apply equally to all Annual conferences in the church, including annual conferences in the central conferences.

The annual conference council would be expected to evaluate the effectiveness of the ministries of the conference regularly and to help develop responses to enable the conference more effectively to meet its unique calling.

The General Council on Ministries believes this interactive body for annual conferences will provide the support needed by local churches while allowing the annual conference to provide for its leadership and administrative roles within the annual conference. The interactive design has this flexibility.

The Regional Conference

The regional conference is a new body, so it is not currently described in The Book of Discipline, 1992. This concept envisions several regional conferences around the globe. The number is not determined at this time. The regional conference will have responsibility and accountability for some current functions of the General Conference, the central conferences, and the jurisdictional conferences such as annual conference boundaries, the respective regional manuals for ordering the life and ministry of the church, consistent with The Book of Discipline, 1992 regional budgets, structures for mission and ministry. Many details concerning the regional conferences have yet to be worked out. The General Council on Ministries acknowledges that major work on the concept of regional conferences for the Church is being developed by the Council of Bishops. It has been in consultation with the Bishops Committee on the Global Nature of the Church. The General Council on Ministries will continue to collaborate with the Council of Bishops in the development of this concept.

At present the General Council on Ministries envisions the regional conference would perform six complementary functions:

Discern and articulate God's vision for the Region

Provide support to annual conferences for outreach, nurture, and witness ministries; administrative and fiscal ministries; and leadership ministries

Perform outreach, nurture, and witness ministries; administrative and fiscal ministries; and leadership development ministries in the regional context as determined by the regional conference or requested by one or more of the member annual conferences or the global conference

Support the connection between and among the annual conferences in the regional and global conference

Elect bishops

Monitor all units for racial, gender and age inclusiveness of the region and for inclusion of persons with disability

The interactive design within the Regional Conference would be similar to that of the annual conference. The detailed organization to perform these functions in the region will be determined by each regional conference.

The Regional Conference Session

A regional conference session will be held to develop a vision for the regions mission and ministry and to care for the ministry concerns of the region.

Outreach, Nurture, and Witness Ministries. The purpose of this unit is to focus all of the human, spiritual, and financial resources available in the region on mission and ministry to the world. Each regional conference will determine the detailed organizational design to support these ministries. We anticipate that essential functions will include:

Support for outreach, nurture, and witness ministries of the annual conferences within the region.

Cooperative missional activities within the region and the world.

Social justice and advocacy activities within the region in partnership with the annual conferences.

Advocacy for inclusiveness and accountability for monitoring issues of inclusivity.

Support and interpretation for connective ministries of the denomination and the interaction between the annual conferences and the broader connection.

Self-monitoring for racial, gender and age inclusiveness of the region and for inclusion of persons with disability.

Leadership Ministries. Opportunities for education and leadership ministries for clergy and laity will be supported through this body. This part of the body will provide support for effective lay and clergy servant leadership within the region. Each regional conference will determine the necessary organization for leadership ministries. We anticipate that some of the essential functions will include:

Leader development and training for clergy and laity that cannot be accomplished by the annual conferences, or are not determined by the global conference.

Support for ministries of theological education, higher education, and campus ministries which cannot be provided by the annual conferences or are not determined by the global conference.

Resource development and the distribution of resources within the region.

Self-monitoring for racial, gender and age inclusiveness of the region and for inclusion of persons with disability.

Administrative and Fiscal Ministries. The purpose of this part of the body is to provide the legal, financial, and administrative management services that are necessary for the execution of the outreach, nurture, and witness ministries and the leadership ministries of the Region. Each regional conference will determine the detailed organizational design necessary for the administrative and fiscal function. We anticipate that the functions of this unit will include:

Budgeting and financial resourcing for the regional conference.

Support for administrative and fiscal ministries for the annual conferences.

Continuous improvement, cost effectiveness, and efficiency for the regional conference ministries.

Data management for the regional conference ministries.

Financial policies and procedures for the regional conference.

Legal management for the regional conference.

Management of investment, property, and insurance for the regional conference.

Coordination and management of pension and health-care benefits for professional servant leaders in the Church within the Region where such management is appropriate.

Self-monitoring for racial, gender and age inclusiveness of the Region and for inclusion of persons with disability.

The Council

Membership: Representatives of the three ministries areas (Outreach, Nurture, and Witness Ministries; Leadership Ministries; and Administrative and Fiscal Ministries) and at-large members selected by the regional conference. Membership will be selected to represent a cross-section of the regional conference, including ethnicity, gender, youth, young adults, older adults, lay/clergy, and persons with disabilities. This diversity will enrich the interactive approach to and carrying out of mission and ministry.

This body would provide communication and interaction among the three ministry groups. It is anticipated that the regional conference council will perform the following functions:

Be accountable to the regional conference

Be the policy-setting and decision-making body for the region between the sessions of the regional conference

Evaluate the work of the regional conference in light of the vision, core values and beliefs, and traditions of The United Methodist Church

Foster and ensure vital ecumenical and interfaith relationships within the region in consultation with the bishops

Help define and resolve issues and other differences that may naturally arise within and among the ministry units

Listen and respond to the spiritual and physical needs of the annual conferences of the region and the global community

Monitor all units for racial, gender and age inclusiveness in the region and for inclusion of persons with disability

Implement the vision established by the regional conference, core values and beliefs, purpose, and mission to support the three ministry units in coordinating and focusing all spiritual, human and fiscal resources to meet identified needs for outreach, nurture, and witness

Each regional conference may have the option of establishing sub-regions to strengthen the effectiveness of mission and ministry and may delegate such responsibilities as are appropriate to the sub-regions.

It is anticipated that the regional conferences may covenant with each other to allow for shared ministries across regional boundaries.

The regional conferences will fulfill those responsibilities currently exercised by jurisdictional conferences and central conferences.

The General Council of Ministries believes this interactive body for the regional conferences will provide the support needed by the annual conferences while allowing the regional conference to provide for its leadership and administrative roles within the region. The interactive design has this flexibility.

The Global Conference

In the interactive organizational design, the purpose of the global conference will be to care for all matters distinctively connectional for The United Methodist Church, specifically, matters of faith, doctrine, polity, purpose, order and vision for the global connection. The global conference will have responsibility and accountability for the global design for mission. The design of the global conference is still being developed.

As the General Council on Ministries consults and develops this plan in collaboration with the Council of Bishops, the relationship with autonomous Methodist churches will need to be cared for in appropriate ways.

Conclusion to the Report

This report describes an interactive process. We have used on-going interaction of listening, reflecting, and recommending throughout the study process. We believe that the recommendations presented in this study will help the church move into the 21st century with a renewed vision, new energy and focus on mission and ministry.

On behalf of the General Council on Ministries we thank all who have participated with us in this journey of discernment—for their responses, prayers and commitment. We are confident that as we continue to discern and focus on Gods vision, the Church can be used for effective outreach, nurture and witness to the world.

Glossary

1. IDENTITY, PURPOSE, AND MISSION: This is the guiding philosophy, the ultimate reason for being that is non-negotiable. It is the fundamental reason The United Methodist Church exists. It is the essence of The United Methodist Church stated in its Constitution, (Doctrinal Standards and Our Theological Task) as stated in The Book of Discipline of The United Methodist Church, 1992. These are the core values and beliefs of The United Methodist Church. These guiding principles should permeate United Methodist ministry and give focus to the style and form of ministry appropriate to a particular context of ministry. This is the basis for mutual accountability and responsiveness as The United Methodist Church lives out its being.

2. VISION: A God-given picture of the preferred future for God's people. It is a shared and self-authenticating picture that energizes the whole body and gives unity and focus to the ministry of the whole United Methodist Church. A clear and compelling vision is essential for United Methodist people to see that the direction and importance of their ministry is allied with Gods will.

The Identity, Purpose, and Mission of The United Methodist Church are essential elements of vision for United Methodism. The vision for United Methodism is grounded in this self-understanding. God reveals to Gods people a picture of the preferred future for the whole world. God calls and empowers, through the Holy Spirit, the United Methodist people of God to live this picture into reality. The vision is always the outgrowth of the Identity, Purpose, and Mission that permeates The United Methodist Church and informs its policies, actions, and beliefs.

An effective vision for United Methodism must have a compelling overall goal that serves as a focal point of effort or ministry direction of The United Methodist Church. This overall goal should be achievable within a specific time frame. In contrast, Purpose and Mission calls The United Methodist Church toward the fullness of Gods coming Kingdom which is never fully achievable.

An interesting definition of vision is given from the GRACE UPON GRACE document:

"There is a unifying vision: Jesus Christ. The vision of God's mission comes to us; it is neither engendered by the church nor is it projected from the church. The vision is God-given. We are people called by God, 'recipients of grace, we become witnesses to grace.'"

3. INTERACTIVE ORGANIZATION:

The community of United Methodism responds to the working of the Holy Spirit, intentionally working through a connectional polity based upon mutual responsiveness and accountability. Connectional ties bind us together in faith and service in our global witness. Any action, or decision making, generates a cooperative and focused direction that is based upon the announced/accepted vision that rings true within United Methodisms Identity, Purpose and Mission. The focus would be ministry action per se, not forms or groups preparing for ministry. Further, the energy of the organization is collaboratively directed toward the achievement of the overall goal of the organization or the goal of the local church, district or cluster of churches, annual conference, regional or global conference.

An interactive organization seeks to hold the parts of the body in mutual accountability through interactive discussion and dialogue as vision is clarified, Identity, Purpose and Mission is reflected upon, and decisions are made.

Accountability, supervision, oversight of the organization is primarily done within the organization as parts of the body reflect upon its alignment with the whole body's commitment to the vision and verification that its programs, resources, and goals are expressive of and consistent with The United Methodist Church's Identity, Purpose and Mission and overall goal.

The decisions and directions for resourcing are made at the place nearest to the hands-on ministry being implemented and not from some outside source or body.

Decisions are made on the basis of need and creativity to accomplish the stated goal by the most inclusive and diverse grouping within the organization. Given the identity and purpose of United Methodism, this interactive decision making would involve both laity and clergy and would conform to the stated goals of inclusivity and diversity.

4. FLEXIBILITY: Much data has been collected and archived through the Connectional Issues Study that calls for some freedom within the annual conference and local church structures for practical ministry that does not comply with all the shalls of The Book of Discipline of The United Methodist Church, 1992. Flexibility in this report refers to potential ways that could allow for limited freedom that strictly conforms to the Identity, Purpose and Mission of United Methodism. Flexibility does not mean freedom to act in any way a part of the organization chooses. All parts of the organization must remain faithful to the spirit of the whole organization of The United Methodist Church. The matters listed in this Report under the heading of The Identity, Purpose, and Mission of The United Methodist Church are seen as non-negotiable and could not be disregarded in principle or spirit as parts of The United Methodist Church organize to do ministry. Yet, in some churches, each ministries area might include just several persons, and the Council might include these persons and the pastor. Or, each ministries might incorporate several standing and ad-hoc committees to meet the ministry needs in its locale. Some congregations may find the need to focus on extensive leadership education, so its Leadership Ministries might be large. Another might expand its Outreach, Nurture, and Witness ministries for a short time to respond to a specific missional need.

5. CORE VALUES AND BELIEFS: These are familiar words used within organizational development language. We have chosen to use the words Identity, Purpose, and Mission as appropriate for identifying the bedrock of United Methodism. This Identity, Purpose, and Mission are set out and identified primarily through statements from The Book of Discipline of The United Methodist Church, 1992. The Identity, Purpose and Mission of The United Methodist Church are the core values and beliefs of The United Methodist Church and are stated in the Interim Report under the following headings:

- a. Annual Conference i. Local Church
- b. Connectionalism j. Ministry of All Christians
- c. Doctrinal Heritage k. Mission
- d. Ecumenism l. Mutual Accountability
- e. Education m. Scriptural Holiness
- f. Evangelism n. Social Justice
- g. Global Character o. Stewardship
- h. Inclusiveness of the Church p. Vital Worship

6. CONNECTIONAL: The network of interdependent relationships among persons and groups on local, regional, national and international levels of The United Methodist Church. CONNECTIONALISM: The principle, basic to The United Methodist Church, that all leaders and congregations are connected in a network of loyalties and commitments that support yet supersede local concerns.

The outreach of the Church springs from the working of the Spirit. As United Methodists, we respond to that working through a connectional polity based upon mutual responsiveness and accountability. Connectional ties bind us together in faith and service in our global witness, enabling faith to become active in love and intensifying our desire for peace and justice in the world. (The Book of Discipline, 1992, ¶ 65, p. 47)

7. CONFERENCE: The organizational structure of The United Methodist Church including annual conference, central conference, charge conference, church conference, district conference, general conference, jurisdictional conference, missionary conference, provisional conference. The principal form of governing structure within The United Methodist Church, in the charge, district, annual, jurisdictional, and General Conference; deriving from Wesley's conferences (conversations) with his preachers and developed in America into a legislative body with lay and clergy participation at every level (compare conciliar).

8. CONCILIAR: A form of church governance by representative councils with authority, under their leaders, to determine doctrine and discipline; exercised in United Methodism through the connection of conferences.

Implementing Recommendations of The Connectional Issues Study Report For The 1997-2000 Transition Quadrennium

The General Council on Ministries respectfully requests that the 1996 General Conference adopt the following recommendations for the 1997-2000 quadrennium:

Recommendation I

It is recommended that the General Conference authorize the establishment of a Connectional Process Team (hereafter the CPT) which will manage, guide, and promote this transformational direction for The United Methodist Church during the 1997-2000 quadrennium. The CPT will continue the work begun in the Connectional Issues Study of the General Council on Ministries and the Global Nature Study of the Council of Bishops. The purpose of the CPT is to facilitate the ongoing process of self-renewing within local churches, conferences, institutions and the general agencies.

a. The membership of the CPT shall consist of 30 persons:

1. 16 persons across the church to be nominated by a Nominating Committee composed of two representatives from GCOM and two representatives of The Council of Bishops and elected by the Council of Bishops.

2. Three persons elected by and representing GCOM.

3. One person elected by and representing GCFA.

4. Six bishops selected by the Council of Bishops (three from the Central Conferences and three from the United States).

5. Four persons at large, elected by the CPT to ensure inclusive membership on the CPT.

Of the 30 members, the CPT shall reflect the ethnic, gender, and geographical diversity of The United Methodist Church. It is further recommended that there be at least one person from each of the five ethnic groups: Asian American, African American, Native American, Hispanic American and Pacific Islanders. It is recommended that the membership incorporate one third clergy, one third lay women, and one third laymen, including 3 or more youth and/or young adults and 3 or more persons over 60 years of age.

Three persons from the Affiliated and Autonomous Churches be invited to participate in the work of the CPT.

b. The purpose of the CPT shall be to:

Review the summarized data collected by the General Council on Ministries' Connectional Issues Study to assess the missional and structural needs of The United Methodist Church.

Consider recommendations approved by the General Conference in principle and other findings of the GCOM's Connectional Issues Study.

Encourage all local churches and annual conferences to utilize the interactive organizational design. The proposed organizational design is found on page ____.

Establish processes to receive feedback from local churches and annual conferences using the interactive design for evaluation and refinement of the interactive organizational design.

Consider holding periodic hearings across the Church. The purpose of the hearings will be to identify the crucial functions for mission and ministry of The United Methodist Church into the 21st century and develop a viable organizational form to resource those functions for the mission and ministry of United Methodism.

Encourage general agencies to utilize the proposed interactive organizational design.

Utilize the interactive connectional design for mission and ministry of the Church as approved by the General Conference in principle to guide the UMC in self renewal during the transition quadrennium and recommend an organizational design to the 2000 General Conference.

Define the roles of directors, staff, and representatives of the general bodies of the church.

Clarify consistent procedures and guidelines for nominations in the Regional and Global Conferences.

Develop recommendations to the 2000 General Conference.

e. The CPT shall collaborate with the COB, the GCOM, and the GCFA, as its work is developed and report twice each year to these three councils on the progress of its work. The CPT shall engage in dialogue with other general agencies of the Church to facilitate general agencies concerns and responses into the work of the CPT.

d. The GCORR and GCSRW shall monitor the implementation of the CPT to insure there is racial and ethnic minority participation and participation of women and to insure that the work of the CPT shall move the denomination forward in building a community that represents the multi-culturalism of our world.

e. Staffing for the CPT will be provided by GCOM; and funding for the CPT will be determined by GCFA.

The General Conference shall establish a Connectional Process Team (hereafter the CPT) for 1996 to 2000 to manage, guide and promote a transformational direction for The United Methodist Church to continue the work begun by the Connectional Issues Study of the General Council on Ministries and the Global Nature Study of the Council of Bishops.

A. The purpose of the CPT is to:

1. Review the summarized data collected by the General Council on Ministries Connectional Issues Study, the Council of Bishops Global Nature Study, and other pertinent studies and responses, to assess the missional and structural needs of The United Methodist Church, and to facilitate the ongoing process of renewal throughout the Church.

2. Consider recommendations received by the General Conference related to the General Council on Ministries Connectional Issues Study and the Council of Bishops Global Nature Study.

3. Arrange for communication and training in the interactive organizational process for implementation by local churches and annual conferences, using the resources of appropriate church agencies.

4. Establish methods to receive feedback from local churches, annual conferences, jurisdictional conferences, and central conferences which are using the interactive organizational process, and share with the Church those models being developed.

5. Establish methods for evaluation and refinement of the interactive organizational process.

6. Facilitate an interactive organizational process with the general agencies, boards and the Council of Bishops which will clarify the mission of the general church agencies in supporting and resourcing the Church. The second step in the discerning and interactive process will be to define and recommend the most faithful structure to enable the ministries of the local church, conferences and institutions of the Church.

7. Hold periodic hearings across the Church to continue discerning Gods vision for the Church.

8. Develop basic organizational forms to enable the mission and ministry of The United Methodist Church.

9. Define the nature, work and composition of the regional and global conferences.

10. Invite the affiliate and autonomous churches into dialogue regarding the Global Nature of the Church and the interactive organizational process, and encourage their ongoing feedback and participation in this process.

11. Report to The United Methodist Church no later than January 1999. Based on feedback and responses, make a final report and bring recommendations to the General Conference in the year 2000.

B. The CPT shall be composed of up to 38 members (plus 3 non-voting members from affiliated and autonomous churches) to be selected as follows:

1. Twenty-four (24) persons nominated by the Council of Bishops and elected by the 1996 General Conference. Three persons, including one clergy, one lay man, and one lay woman, shall be elected from each jurisdiction and the central conferences in Africa, Asia and Europe as follows:

North Central3

Northeast3

South Central3

Southeast3

West3

Africa3

Asia3

Europe3

2. Up to seven (7) persons nominated by the Council of Bishops in consultation with the General Council on Ministries to ensure continuity, inclusivity, expertise and representation of churches of different sizes. Attention should also be given to representation from region of greatest membership strength. These persons shall be elected by the CPT through mail ballot before the first meeting.

3. Six bishops elected by and representing the Council of Bishops: three Central Conference bishops and three U.S. bishops.

4. One person elected by and representing GCFA. This person shall coordinate the work of the CPT with the GCFA quadrennial Study of Connectional Ministry Funding Patterns (ADCA p. 322).

5. To ensure that the CPT reflects the breadth of The United Methodist Church, it shall:

a. Reflect the ethnic, gender, age and geographical diversity of The United Methodist Church.

b. Include at least one person from each of the five ethnic groups in the United States:

African American, Asian American, Hispanic American, Native American and Pacific Islander.

c. A majority shall be laity.

C. The CPT shall collaborate with the COB, the GCOM and the GCFA as its work is developed and report twice each year to these three councils on the progress of its work. The CPT shall engage in dialogue with other general agencies of the Church to facilitate general agencies concerns and responses into the work of the CPT.

D. The GCORR and GCSRW shall monitor the implementation of the CPT to ensure there is racial and ethnic participation and participation of women and to ensure that the work of the CPT shall move the denomination forward in building a community that represents the multi-culturalism of our world.

E. Staffing for the CPT will be provided by GCOM and funding by GCFA. It is expected that all general agencies will cooperate with the CPT as it conducts its work and provide staff and resources as necessary.

F. The Council of Bishops shall name one of the bishops on the CPT to convene the first meeting no later than October 1, 1996.

G. It is hoped that united Methodists, wherever gathered, will seek to discern and articulate Gods vision for ministry as guided by the Holy Spirit. The vision for each part of The United Methodist Church should be consistent with Gods vision for the whole United Methodist Church.

Recommendation II

It is recommended that the 1996 General Conference approve in principle the interactive connectional model proposed in this report. This interactive design will be considered as a method for reorganizing The United Methodist Church for mission and ministry in every aspect of the Connection.

It is recommended that the General Conference authorize considerable flexibility in organizational forms in the local, district, and annual conference. This is to allow greater focus on resourcing and empowering their members, congregations and districts for hands on mission and ministry during the 1997-2000 quadrennium. Specific legislation for accomplishing the flexibility has been submitted by GCOM and appears in various sections of the ADCA.

This is especially true in matters defined by annual conferences as their primary task. While this flexibility is specified by legislation in the Connectional Issues Study Report, the processes, linkages, and mandates related to the monitoring and advocacy roles for racial and gender inclusivity shall be fulfilled by every organizational part of The United Methodist Church, with guidance and resourcing from the GCORR and GCSRW. Inclusivity of race, gender, age, and class, a richness of community implicit in the Old and New Testaments and of the essence for Gods people called United Methodists, must be assured.

The 1996 General Conference approves in principle the interactive organizational process as a method of discerning and implementing Gods will for mission and ministry in every aspect of the connection. An interactive organizational process in response to the work of the Holy Spirit seeks to hold the parts of the body in mutual accountability through interactive discussion and dialogue as a vision is clarified. Identity, Purpose and Mission is reflected upon and decisions are made. This method will allow flexibility for organizational forms in the local, district, and annual conference and allow greater focus on resourcing and improving the Church for hands on mission and ministry. This flexibility does not in any way diminish the need for racial and gender inclusivity by every organizational part of The United Methodist Church, with guidance and resourcing from the GCORR and GCSRW.

Recommendation III

It is recommended that during the 1997-2000 quadrennium the present 13 general agencies seek to refine and reshape themselves best to carry out their responsibilities to enable the ministries of churches, conferences and institutions of the connection. During the 1997-2000 quadrennium, the present 13 General Agencies shall work in cooperation with the Connectional Process Team to continue to refine and reshape their mission in order to carry out their responsibilities to enable the ministries of churches, conferences and institutions into the 21st century. The GCOM has determined that more time is needed for a clearer discernment of a God-given vision for the people called United Methodists. As Gods vision is articulated it should guide the reforming of the general agencies during this time of transition.

It is further recommended that the total membership size of the 13 general agencies during the 1997-2000 quadrennium be reduced in accordance with specific legislation it has submitted to the General Conference to no more than 640 members in accordance with specific legislation to be enacted by the 1996 General Conference.

The General Council on Ministries is recommending amended legislation to comply with changes approved by adoption of the CIS Report in regard to the reduction of the membership size being proposed by: General Council on Finance and Administration, General Board of Global Ministries, General Commission on Communication, General Board of Publications, General Board of Pension and Health Benefits, and General Commission on Archives and History.

It is further recommending approval of legislation submitted by GCOM for reduction in membership for the General Council on Ministries, General Board of Discipleship, General Board of Church and Society, General Board of Higher Education and Ministry, General Commission on the Status and Role of Women, General Commission on Religion and Race, and General Commission on Christian Unity and Interreligious Concerns.

Recommendation IV

Vision and leadership for the church will be critical in the future, especially during this time of discernment and transition. Relying upon the leadership of the Council of Bishops, we recommend that the church focus attention on working together to discern and articulate Gods vision for us as individuals and a church that works toward a world transformed into the likeness of Christ.

As the Council of Bishops discerns and articulates Gods vision for the whole United Methodist Church, it is hoped that United Methodists, wherever gathered, will seek to discern Gods vision for ministry as guided by the Holy Spirit. The vision for each part of The United Methodist Church should be consistent with Gods vision for the whole United Methodist Church.

MINORITY REPORT

Whereas, The majority of United Methodists are ready for fundamental reform in the size, function and cost of the structures and institutions of The United Methodist Church; and

Whereas, The Council of Bishops has offered to the church its vision of a strengthened global church with a more flexible structure to meet the needs of local congregations and conferences in each region of the globe; and

Whereas, A number of Annual Conferences and individuals have submitted a variety of petitions to right size and reform the structure of our United Methodist Church, being faithful both to current economic realities and the need to fulfill our global mission; and

Whereas, 70% of the delegates to the 1996 General Conference named structural concerns as the major issue facing this General Conference, and even as we celebrate that many changes are beginning to pass at this General Conference to allow flexibility for local congregations and Annual Conferences, we realize that our church still has far to go; and

Whereas, Since 1968 the general agencies have increased in number and size, and that since 1985 the purchasing power of general apportioned funds has increased 4% in real dollars (ADCA P. 269), while since 1972 The United Methodist Church in the United States (which funds all these general agencies), has declined in membership by 18%; and

Whereas, The General Council on Finance and Administrations Summary Report on the Annual Conference Listening Project study has discovered that Attitudes toward the general church and general funds were described most often in terms that ranged from neutral to negative: general church—mixed, lack of understanding, indifference, feeling ignored or rejected by the general church, alienation, distant, beyond repair; general funds—a necessary requirement...like taking medicine, alarm about administrative overhead, a burden. In this GCFA study, of those surveyed from throughout the connection: 60.9% disagree or strongly disagree that general church staff and board members are sensitive to the economic conditions in local church and annual conferences; 61.9% disagree or strongly disagree that the general church budget includes an equitable balance of administrative expense and program expense; 75.6% disagree or strongly disagree that the general church does a good job of reviewing new needs and eliminating outdated programs before adding new ones; 72.8% disagree or strongly disagree that most people in local churches believe general church agencies use the money they receive wisely. (GCFA Report); and

Whereas, the GCOMs Connectional Issues Study itself discovered that the local congregation is understood as the primary base for mission and ministry and the foundation for everything that happens in the denomination,...many parts of the church are preoccupied with maintenance of the institution,...structural flexibility at the annual conference, district and local church is needed to allow all to carry out mission and ministry,...many in our church express a lack of satisfaction with the general agencies of The United Methodist Church,...the general agencies did not generally acknowledge expression of dissatisfaction voiced toward their specific agency, and the size of the general church organizations needs to be reduced, (ADCA pp. 556-557), but in response, after four years of work and study, the recommendations of the Connectional Issues Study appear seriously unconnected to these fundamental concerns, offer only a vague interactive-connectional model as an alternative, and offer no specific or measurable goals; and

Whereas, The General and Judicial Administration Legislative committee of this General Conference in its majority report has been unwilling to name an independent committee fully representative of our church, yet allows the proposed committee to be dominated by GCOM staff and agendas, introduces anew another unclear interactive organizational process as the principle of reorganization, and is unwilling to specify that the general agencies will be significantly downsized with measurable goals;

Therefore, Be it resolved that:

The General Conferences authorize the creation of a Connectional Reform Committee (hereafter named CRC) for the 1996-2000 quadrennium. The CRC shall be made up of 31 members selected as follows:

1. Sixteen persons shall be elected by the 1996 General Conference. Persons for election from each jurisdiction shall be nominated by each College of Bishops. Based on the members of ordained clergy and laity in the jurisdictions on ratio the members shall be:

North Central3

Northeast3

South Central4

Southeast5

West1

2. To ensure that 20% of the CRC will represent the Central Conferences, three lay persons from the Central Conferences (who shall serve with three Central Conference bishops) shall be elected by the Central Conference bishops at the 1996 General Conference.

3. Five persons elected at the first meeting of the CRC by CRC to ensure inclusivity, continuity and expertise.

4. Six bishops elected by and representing the Council of Bishops: three Central Conference bishops and three U.S. bishops. One of the bishops shall serve as the chair of the CRC.

5. One person elected by and representing GCFA. This person shall coordinate the work of CRC with the GCFA quadrennial Study of Connectional Ministry Funding Patters (ADCA p. 322).

Of the 31 members, the CRC shall be as much as possible one half women and one half men. It is recommended that the membership include at least one person from each of the five ethnic groups: Asian American, African American, Native American, Hispanic American and Pacific Islander. It is also recommended to ensure that a clear majority of the committee will be laity that the membership include 8 ordained clergy, 6 bishops, 17 laity.

Further, be it resolved that in the conduct of its work the CRC shall be instructed to:

1) affirm that the local congregation is the primary based for mission and ministry and the foundation for everything that happens in the denominations (ADCA p. 556),

2) conduct its work with the church at all levels and in all regions of the globe,

3) envision and recommend a new model for the general agencies and the whole denomination in the work and mission to resource local congregations and Annual Conferences, in which maximum flexibility will be affirmed,

4) develop consistent and fair processes for election of the directors of the recommended general agencies to ensure just and inclusive representation,

5) collaborate with the Council of Bishops and the GCFA and report its progress to each group and to the church at large twice each year,

6) receive the Council of Bishops Study of the Global Nature of the Church and the COMs Connectional Issues Study including its report, research and methodology of listening to the church at all levels and in all regions of the globe, along with the proposals arising from all Annual Conferences, other group, and individuals recommending changes to the general church structure.

7) define the nature, work, and composition of the regional and global conferences,

8) lead the general agencies and commissions in redesigning their organizations and work, with the expectation that there will be a minimum reduction of 15 to 20% of the budget of the general agencies over the 2001-2004 quadrennium, plus a significant reduction of the number of the general agencies,

9) make a full report to the church in January 1999, and then, based on critique, make a final report to the delegates to the 2000 General Conference in Spetember 1999;

Further, be it resolved that the GCORR and the GCSRW shall monitor the implementation of the CRC to ensure racial/ethnic and womens participation and to ensure that the work of the CRC shall move the United Methodist Church toward a more inclusive community;

Further, be it resolved that staffing for the CRC will be provided by the staff and resources of all the general agencies as necessary for its work. GCFA will provide funding. It is expected that all General Agencies will fully cooperate with the CRC with staff, money and enthusiasm as it conducts its work.

Major differences:

1. Local church: While the Connectional Issues Study often speaks of the local church as foundational, the majority report does not name the local church as locus of ministry. The minority report grants central priority to the ministry and mission of the local church.

2. Cost: The estimated cost of the majority reports committee will be approximately $350,000 over the quadrennium just for travel and housing. There is no estimate on the cost of printing, staff, mailings, hearings, etc. The estimated cost of the minority reports committee will be approximately $220,000 for travel and housing, a reduction of approximately $120,000.

3. Representation: The majority reports committee consists of 32% Central Conference members (who comprise 12% of the total membership of the connection). Additionally, the Southeast Juris-dition, which comprises 30% of the churchs membership and pays 34% of the World Service budget (that will pay the bills), has three representatives or 8% of the majority reports committee. Other inequities are also present. Justice demands a more equitable distribution.

4. Relationship to the General Agencies: The majority report committee will continue to depend heavily on the current staff and agenda of the GCOM. The minority report frees the CRC to use whatever agencies and resources of the church are necessary to complete its work.

5. Budget and General Agency Implications: The majority report refuses to address concretely the budget implications of its work, and specifically refuses to name whether the report in 2000 will reduce the size of the general church or the number of general agencies. No measurable goals or targets are set. No accountability by the general agencies is assured. The minority report addresses the budgets, size and number of general agencies.

Whereas, we recognize that teens dealing with questions about sexual orientation are at a greater risk of suicide; and

Whereas, an individual of any age confronting their own homosexual orientation and/or that of a close family member, friend or associate often experiences isolation, confusion, and fear when they need information, guidance and support; and

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

Our Christian heritage includes hearty critique of religious institutions, led by Old Testament prophets, Jesus of Nazareth, Martin Luther, John Wesley, Sojourner Truth, Evangeline Booth, Martin Luther King, Jr. and others. Their words and actions were necessary to call the people of God to goals of righteousness, justice and mercy. Their motives were to reform and heal, to bring purity through the refiner's fire.

The United Methodist Church endorses an open, uninhibited flow of information regarding its policies and actions. The church's health depends on an informed membership and the opportunity for that membership to participate in a non-threatening, responsible dialogue with church agencies and leaders.

Given its firm commitment to fair, accurate and truthful communication, the church today is deeply concerned about the miscommunication of information emanating from groups from within and outside the church. ~~The goals of these groups seem more political than spiritual, more dedicated to tearing down than to building up. Their tactics are divisive and fracturing, rather than reconciling and healing.~~ Criticism which is more political than spiritual, more dedicated to tearing down than building up is divisive and fracturing, rather than reconciling and healing.

Recent attacks on this denomination overlook or downplay the ways God is working through communities of faith.

There is a growing spirituality in the United Methodist Church as evidenced by the tremendous success of the Disciple Bible Study program in which many thousands have participated. The Walk to Emmaus, a Christian renewal effort, is experiencing steady growth around the world.

Today's United Methodist Church is doing substantial good around the world. We are in the Midwest, years after devastating floods, helping people recover. We are in South Florida easing the pain of Hurricane Andrew victims. The church is in Bosnia and Africa. In Oklahoma City, First United Methodist Church received $100,000 from the United Methodist Committee on Relief (UMCOR) to help recover from the federal building bombing.

The United Methodist Church rests on a strong foundation of seeking to address society's ills. Ours is a communion which provides for diversity, guards the ability of pastors to preach the gospel and affirms the priesthood of all believers. Our connectional strengths are needed by a world clearly experiencing isolation, alienation and loneliness. Members deserve to rejoice in what their church is doing.

We encourage our critics to engage in a dialogue to make our church stronger. Recognizing the value of true theological diversity, The United Methodist Church calls for a discussion of church issues, using the honorable principles of truth, fairness and accuracy in reporting the words and actions of church people and agencies.

The United Methodist Church recognizes the right of any group to inform those who have common interests. It honors the idea of free speech in an open forum. And it encourages the healthy discussion of diverse viewpoints so long as it is conducted with dignity and respect.

To all who truly love the church and pray for its future we say, Come, let us together listen to the Spirit of God, calling us to New Creation, where none are intimidated and all are valued for their gifts, passion and viewpoints. Let us share our pain and our dreams, that Christ's new church may be born through the travail.

The Committee recommends concurrence with the petition as amended:

Whereas, the Scriptures call us to one hope; one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of us all, who is above all and through all and in all (Ephesians 4:4-6); and

Whereas, Jesus prayed for the church that they may all be one (John 17:20); and

Whereas, despite the brokenness of the Church, the Holy Spirit works among us to break down the dividing walls between Christians; and

Whereas, the diversity of gifts among Christians is for building up and strengthening the Body of Christ; and

Whereas, The United Methodist Church has pursued and supported the unity of the Church through prayer, study, and leadership in the ecumenical movement; and

Whereas, The United Methodist Church has been a member of the Consultation on Church Union (COCU) from its beginnings, giving leadership to the work of the nine churches in the U.S.A. as they have sought to make visible the unity of the Body of Christ; and

Whereas, The COCU Consensus: In Quest of a Church of Christ Uniting was given overwhelming support by the 1988 General Conference, as an expression of the Apostolic Faith, and a sufficient theological basis for the covenanting acts to be proposed by the Consultation... (1992 Book of Resolutions, p. 206); and

Whereas, the COCU covenanting proposal, Churches in Covenant Communion, has been developed by the representatives of the nine member churches of the Consultation and studied by The United Methodist Church over the past eight years; and

Whereas, The United Methodist Church Council of Bishops stated in May 1992 1992, we celebrate Gods call to the concept of covenant relationships expressed in Churches in Covenant Communion...[and] long for the day when the covenant may be realized among us, and acknowledge with joy our eagerness to enter into covenant (1992 Book of Resolutions, p. 217); and

Whereas, the United Methodist Council of Bishops, on May 5, 1995, unanimously adopted a resolution in support of Churches in Covenant Communion; and

Whereas, this covenanting proposal offers to open doors to greater unity in theology, worship, sacraments, ministry, and mission among Christians in the U.S.A.;

Therefore, be it resolved, that the following changes be made in The Book of Discipline on the issue of the covenanting proposal:

1. Article 5, Div. 1 of the Constitution, after the word Union insert the words and covenantal relationships...

2. ¶ 2402 in the heading after the word Churches add and covenantal relationships.

3. ¶ 2402.1 in the heading, after the word Union add and the Church of Christ Uniting.

4. Add a new ¶ 2402.1b: The United Methodist Church is in covenantal relationship with other churches in the Church of Christ Uniting. Present ¶ 2402.1b becomes ¶ 2402.1c.

5. ¶ 918.2 after Church Union add and the Church of Christ Uniting.

Be it further resolved, that the 1996 General Conference of The United Methodist Church adopt the covenanting proposal of the Consultation on Church Union and approve the text Churches in Covenant Communion: The Church of Christ Uniting as the basis for agreement to join with other participating churches in covenant communion, including the acts sufficient to enable it;

Be it further resolved, that The United Methodist Church declares its willingness to enter into a relationship of covenant communion with the member churches of the Consultation on Church Union and other churches which similarly approve this agreement and The COCU Consensus which is its theological basis, sealed by the proposed inaugural liturgies;

Be it further resolved, that The United Methodist Church will begin to identify for itself such steps and procedures as may be necessary to prepare for the reconciliation of ordained ministries and for entering into covenant communion as set forth in this document. And that The United Methodist Church shall maintain its own standards for ministerial training and the ordination of ministers which shall also apply to our reception or transfer of ministers of other denominations, including any prohibitions set by General Conference

Be it further resolved, that the Council of Bishops shall oversee The United Methodist Church's participation in the Church of Christ Uniting and shall develop and present to future General Conference such changes in The Book of Discipline as may become necessary as we live into this covenant.

Be it further resolved, that the 1996 General Conference of The United Methodist Church entrusts to the Council of Bishops, in cooperation with the General Commission on Christian Unity and Interreligious Concerns, the guidance of The United Methodist Church at national, regional, and local levels into the covenanting acts and relationships described in Churches in Covenant Communion, including the steps and procedures necessary to prepare for the recognition and reconciliation of ordained ministries.

Be it further resolved, that the 1996 General Conference of The United Methodist Church send greetings of grace and peace in Christ to the other member churches of the Consultation, offering prayers that we may all be one so that the world might believe.

MINORITY REPORT

Whereas, there are lingering questions around issues of theology and polity among Episcopalians and Presbyterians and these are not yet resolved;

Whereas, our new commitment to Pan Methodist union (AME, AMEZ, CME and UMC), proposed to be acted upon in the year 2000 requires priority emphasis in our ecumenical efforts;

Whereas, the creation of further ecumenical institutions and programmatic relationships will not significantly affect Christian unity among lay Christians at the local level;

Therefore, we receive the Proposal for the Adoption of Church in Covenant Communion and urge its continued study. We commit ourselves to further participation in the Consultation on Church Union (COCU) and ask:

-That the viability of COCU at the regional and local church level be tested by organizing worship services, studies and ministries among participating communions.

-From these experiences annual conferences shall evaluate and report their insights and recommendations to the General Commission on Christian Unity and Interreligious Concerns.

-From this information any changes or recommendations shall be brought with the new proposal to the 2000 General Conference.

Ministry of an Elder. Elders are ordained ministers who, by Gods grace, have completed their formal preparation and have been consecrated and served as a probationary member, ~~ordained and served as a deacon~~, have been found by the Church to be of sound learning, of Christian character, possessing the necessary gifts and evidence of Gods grace, and whose call to ordination has been confirmed by the Church. Elders are ordained to a lifetime ministry of Service, Word, Sacrament and Order. They are authorized to preach and teach the Word of God, to administer the Sacraments of Baptism and Holy Communion, and to order the life of the church for mission and ministry. The servant leadership of the Elder is expressed by leading the people of God in worship and prayer, by leading persons to faith in Jesus Christ, by exercising pastoral supervision in the congregation, and by leading the Church in obedience to mission in the world. Elders continue their service responsibility as Deacons while serving as Elders and, as such, are bound by the meaning of that ordination.

As members of the Order of Elder, all elders are in covenant with all other elders in the Annual Conference and shall participate in the life of their Order.

Proceedings of the 1996 General Conference of The United Methodist Church

The Committee On Journal

The Committee On Journal hereby certifies as accurate the proceedings as printed in the Daily Christian Advocate for Saturday, April 20, 1996.

General Conference and the World Wide Web

SUSAN PEEK: Good morning. This General Conference marks a significant change in the way news and information from the sessions are made available to all of us attending the conference and to friends back home who wonder just what it is you do for two whole weeks. The World Wide Web on the internet provides a capability for us to take the news releases and petition updates, put them on a computer here, and then share them with as many people as request to see them. From inside this convention center and from around the world people can follow the proceedings of the 1996 General Conference.

If you've never tried the internet or don't know exactly what it is, it could be described simply as a system of computers that can connect and exchange messages and files. And if you're wondering if anybody is reading, yesterday alone, the United Methodist Information Home Page had over 4,000 inquiries.

Now, Susan Brumbaugh, who is Web Master for these General Conference pages and John Brawn, who is behind the curtain, who designed and created this system, will demonstrate it. If you have any questions about it or would like additional help using PETS, come to one of the 30 minute demonstrations led by United Methodist Communications staff, each day from 1:30 until 2:00 in Ballroom One. That's the press room, and it's on the lower level. Seating is limited, so come to the press room reception desk to get a ticket. The demonstrations are designed for people who have never used the internet, and they will go slower and cover more than we will have time to do this morning. And more information is available about United Methodism on the internet at the United Methodist Communications display in room C102.

Instructions for Using Internet

SUSAN BRUMBAUGH: First, I want to let you know that instructions for accessing the online information that we have here in the conference center can be found on page 92 of today's DCA. And the second thing I'm going to do today is show you how this online information looks when you access it on the screen and how to move around and find the information you are looking for. We're going to be getting the page on screen so you can see what it looks like when you first open it up.

The General Conference main page is on the screen now. What we're going to do is go to the updated information section, which is where you will usually want to go first. The first thing you see is "What's New." You can click on "What's New," and you can see what has been added for the day. We haven't added anything yet today, but we will. If we go back to the index, we can find the status of a petition or calendar item in "Information on the Status of Petitions and Calendar Items." All 3,076 petitions are online, and you can use this program to read those 92 calendar items you are supposed to be reading on these pages. So pay attention. On the "Information on the Status of Petitions and Calendar Items" page, we can search for petition information, calendar item information, or you can look at Discipline paragraphs.

What we want to do right now is search for the status of a particular petition. We'll click on "Search For Information About a Petition" and, for an example, let's try searching for Petition number 22019. So we click on "Search By Petition Number." On that page, you need to select the range of numbers that contain 22019. So we scroll down, select that range. When we get to that page, you scroll through and find the particular petition number that you're looking for. In this case, we find 22019. You click on the underlined number next to the petition title. When we get to the petition information screen, you can find all kinds of information about the petition, and I'll just run through what we see on the page. The petition title is "Commission on Small Membership Church." It was submitted by CIL, which is Central Illinois. If you don't know what CIL stands for, you can click on the list of acronyms. You can see the petition text which can be seen in the ADCA on page 1386.

If you click on the text, you can see the original petition that was submitted. If we go back to the index, now, you can see that that particular petition references paragraph 742 from the '92 Book of Discipline. We can click on the paragraph number to see the paragraph text from the Book of Discipline. The entire Book of Discipline is online. We can go back to the index and this particular item was assigned to the Independent Commissions Committee.

The next line shows the calendar item status and, if it has been assigned, you can click on "Calendar Item Number" to go to the calendar item information. This particular item is number 15742. And, again, there's a list of information about the calendar item. It's the same subject, the same Discipline paragraph. It has been assigned to Consent Calendar A01. You can cross-reference back to the petition number from this level. We can see that the calendar item involves no financial implications. Again, it was assigned to the Independent Commissions Committee. And here, you can see the committee recommendation.

For this particular petition, the recommendation was "concurrence as amended." And you can click on the text of the committee's recommendation to see how it was amended, if it was amended, to see the recommendation itself, and if there was a minority report included, that would be at the bottom underneath the recommendation.

If we go back to the index page, there was not a minority report in this particular petition. Under "Plenary Action", you can see that the plenary session has not yet acted on this calendar item, but once it has acted on the calendar item, the votes appear on this page.

Let's go back to the original Home Page. I wanted to let you know that everyone in the world can see all of these pages. Your friends and family at home and anyone who is interested in these pages can see them. The address that you'll want to give your friends is printed in the DCA, again on page 92, and it is <http://www.umc.org>.

If we click on "This is What the United Methodist Information Page Looks Like," you can see what it looks like. Visitors to that page will click on "General Conference" at the top of the page or inside the topic menu. If we click on "General Conference", you see that it is exactly the same page that we have here online. The pages will also be available after the conference is over, so you can visit them when you get home and can see what you did. The entire world is connected to the conference for the first time ever, and we are really, really excited about that. Thank you from both Susans.

(applause)

BISHOP SHERER: We are a bit overwhelmed, but thank you. Microphone two.

*Judicial Council
Nominating Process Clarified*

THOMAS EBLEN (Louisville Conference): Point of information. Will we at this session be allowed opportunity to make nominations from the floor for the Judicial Council?

BISHOP SHERER: The nominations for the Judicial Council will be printed today, and the floor will be open for nomination tomorrow for additional persons. Then all of the biographical information will be printed and that will be available to us on Monday, and we will vote on Wednesday.

EBLEN: So tomorrow morning, then, will be the nominations?...

BISHOP SHERER: Yes. Is there anything you would like to add to that, Ms. Marshall?

CAROLYN MARSHALL: No, that's correct.

BISHOP SHERER: Thank you. Microphone three, please. Would the delegates please stay in your seats until you are called on? Thank you.

Enforced Time Limitations for Proceedings

DON PIKE: I move that for the balance of the 1996 General Conference, that the schedules printed in the Daily Christian Advocate be designated as the Order of the Day for the purpose of enforcing time limitations for all segments of our proceedings. If I have a second, I'll speak to that. (second from the floor)

PIKE: As we met as legislative committee chairs this morning, we all expressed a deep sense of frustration that we have so much to deal with in our legislative committees, but we are consistently running over in plenary. We are acting as if we have an infinite amount of time. But we don't have an infinite amount of time. We have a finite amount of time, and we have so much to deal with, and as we understand it, we have this afternoon, this evening, and probably Saturday afternoon. For those of you here new at conference, if you relish the thought of meeting from 10 until 2:00 a.m. next week, in legislative committees to finish your work, then you won't want to vote for this. I will urge us to support this.

BISHOP SHERER: Is there any other discussion? If not, the motion is properly before us, and would you please vote when the light appears? [Results: yes, 815; no, 97; abstained, no 19]

BISHOP SHERER: The motion was affirmed. That means that the time this morning is up—for all of those green cards. I would ask Bishop Ben Oliphint to come and dismiss us with prayer. Oh, before we do that, we have some announcements. So, Ms. Marshall, would you share those?

CAROLYN MARSHALL: Thank you. There are three announcements. One, a query has come here as far as tomorrow's plenary as to whether or not there will be worship and when. Yes, there will be worship. As you will notice, that is the order of the day, every day with choral music at 8:15 and worship at 8:30. This morning, from this morning on, too, there are motion forms available for you. We have the pages advised to bring them to you. Please write your motions on those pads or attach an extra page if that is necessary. Returning the top form, the white one, to the platform and keeping the yellow one, the second sheet, for your own reference. And the third and final announcement, is that the Council of Bishops will meet in executive session this afternoon at 2:00 p.m. at Trinity Church Fellowship Hall. Thank you.

BISHOP SHERER: Bishop Oliphint, would you dismiss us with prayer?

BISHOP BENJAMIN OLIPHINT: May we stand?

(prayer)

Morning Session Saturday, April 20, 1996

Bishop Bruce Blake, presiding

BISHOP WILKE: Let us be in prayer. May we begin in silence as each of us offers our own soul concerns to the Lord.

(hymn)

WILSON-FELDER: Why don't you give God a hand clap of praise? Amen.

BISHOP WILKE: Please remain for a moment, for we'll move into the time of discernment. But now receive this, let's take hands for our MYF benediction? How about that? Been a long time. "The Lord bless you and keep you. The Lord make his face to shine upon you and be gracious unto you. The Lord lift up his countenance upon you and give you peace. Amen." Please be seated.

BISHOP BRUCE BLAKE: We would move into our time of discernment at this moment, taking the spirit of worship that we have experienced together, the Word in preaching and in song. I would like to invite you now to the two questions, to join a partner in visiting about "What is my most earnest hope for these next few hours of the General Conference?" and "What do I believe is God's most fervent hope for these next few hours?" Would you turn now to the person next to you. Share about these questions, and in four minutes, I will remind you to share with each other in prayer.

And now, God, may the words of our mouths and the meditation and thoughts of all of our lives be acceptable, God, not to each other, but to you, for you are our strength and salvation. Amen.

This is to remind you that the choir, as they are exiting will be in concert this afternoon at two o'clock, and we would remind you of that time.

We'll now turn to Bill Cook for the Committee on Courtesies and Privileges. Bill. Let us be in order, please.

*Resolution Honoring
Robert K. Feaster*

BILL COOK (Oregon-Idaho): I would like to present a resolution this morning on the retirement of Robert Feaster. "Whereas, Robert K. Feaster was named president and publisher of the United Methodist Publishing House on June 1, 1983, and led the publishing ministry of the United Methodist Church in its celebration of two hundred years of service, while providing visionary leadership to undertake significant changes to make the publishing house an effective agent for advancing the cause of Christianity now and in the twenty-first century. And whereas, his commitment to assuring the highest quality in services and resources inspired and motivated major attention by the staff to share with more people in more places will come to know God through Jesus Christ, love God, serve God, and their neighbor. Now therefore, be it resolved that we, the delegates of the 1996 General Conference of the United Methodist Church, meeting in Denver, Colorado, April 16 through 26, 1996, do hereby express our heartfelt gratitude and sincere appreciation for the dedicated leadership, exceptional competence, and abiding vision of Robert K. Feaster, as he has led the United Methodist Publishing House in its service to the church and to the world, on the occasion of his retirement, we give thanks for all that he has contributed, and pray God's continued blessings on him, his wife, Barbara, and their family in the years to come." I move that this resolution become part of the official record of the General Conference.

BISHOP BLAKE: And I'm sure that you would want to respond in the appropriate way that that would be done.

(applause)

Presentation of Secretary of Education Richard W. Riley

WILLIAM COOK JR.: I would like now to present Bishop Meadors to make an introduction and presentation. Bishop Meadors.

BISHOP MARSHALL L. MEADORS JR. (Mississippi Area): Bishop Blake, brothers and sisters. It is a high honor and a personal privilege to present to the General Conference a life-long United Methodist; a man committed to family values; devoted to his parents throughout their lives; a responsible and caring husband, father, and grandfather; an active churchman; administrative board member; Sunday school teacher; education pioneer and reformer; former two-term governor of the state of South Carolina; the United States Secretary of Education, the honorable Richard Wilson Riley.

(applause)

RICHARD WILSON RILEY (U.S. Secretary of Education): Thank you so much. Thank you so much. It's a great honor for me to be with you this morning. I had the great pleasure of being the speaker at Higher Education Night last evening, and what a grand experience that was—music from the African University group that was just beautiful.

I'm going to receive a book in a moment entitled Education, the Gift of Hope, and I think this conference will consider the book.

It is a statement of how important education is to all of us as United Methodists in this education/information era.

John Wesley had a strong belief that education really informed faith, and that education was the stepping stone to spirituality that was part of his great mission. The bishops and their spouses last year agreed to a statement which some 36 other religious groups agreed to, saying that they would urge all United Methodist families to support their own children's education, from early childhood right on through college and university and through life. That's a grand statement of support, and this book, I think, entitled Education, the Gift of Hope will be a very positive statement. I urge your positive consideration of it. It's a grand opportunity for me to be with you and God bless you all.

(applause)

ROGER W. IRESON (General Board of Higher Education): Mr. Secretary, we thank you for your speech last night to the concerns of education. We are grateful for your ministry as a United Methodist layman. Last night we presented you with a presentation copy of Education, the Gift of Hope which we would pray would be discussed in every church, so that churches and educators can make a difference for our young people. Today we have a presentation for the president of the United States, and I call upon Dr. Allen Norris, who chaired the committee which produced the book and is chair of the Legislative Session on Higher Education, to make that presentation.

Book Inscribed for President Clinton

J. ALLEN NORRIS (North Carolina): Mr. Secretary, I would like to read the inscription on the book that will be presented to you for the president. "Education, the Gift of Hope presented to President William J. Clinton by the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry of The United Methodist Church. The church must join hands with educators as we seek more effective ways to prepare our children for a future in which they will find personal fulfillment and will make significant contributions to our world." Mr. Secretary, we ask that you present this copy to the President of the United States.

(applause)

RILEY: Thank you very much.

BISHOP BLAKE: Thank you. As we move ahead in our calendar, I would remind the conference of your action yesterday which is my responsibility to implement as your presiding officer. It is not in the DCA today, but this is the official record, and the motion was that for the balance of the '96 General Conference, that the schedule printed in the Daily Christian Advocate be designated as the order of day for the purpose of enforcing time limitation for all segments of our proceedings. This was passed. It simply says that you want us to adhere to the calendar as the order of the day, and under our procedure, the rules would have to be suspended to vary from that.

So we turn now to the report that is in your calendar for the National Plan for Hispanic Ministry report, and Bishop Joel Martinez will be responsible for this report and introduce it. Bishop Martinez.

National Plan For Hispanic Ministry

BISHOP JOEL MARTINEZ (Nebraska): Buenos Dias, pueblo de Dios. Good morning, people of God. When you adopted the National Plan for Hispanic Ministry in 1992 in Louisville, you asked us to report here in Denver in 1996. The national committee which it is my privilege to chair, is now prepared to report to you and to share with you exciting events and blessings of God as we have worked during the quadrennium.

We will begin our report with song, and I call on Mr. Lockwood to come and lead us in the opening song.

JORGE LOCKWOOD: I invite all who are able to please stand and sing with us "De colores," one of the most beloved traditional Hispanic songs.

(song)

(applause)

REBECCA A. YOUNGBLOOD (Mississippi): You may be seated. And grace and peace to you this day. I am Rebecca Youngblood, Mississippi Conference, and vice-chair of the Committee on Hispanic Ministries.

"De colores" is a lively song of faith, but expresses very well our purpose here this morning. "De colores," and so must all love be. God's love is indeed made evident to us in people of every color.

Four years ago this committee came before the General Conference to propose the adoption of the National Plan for Hispanic Ministry. With this report today, we come to give account of our work and we invite you to celebrate with us what God is doing, through The United Methodist Church, as we implement this plan together.

(video)

YOUNGBLOOD: What has been accomplished since the 1992 General Conference? Reports from across the annual conferences, reports from you, indicate that significant progress has taken place this quadrennium. Earlier this week, all delegates received on your desks two maps, which are copies of maps you will see before you this morning. And I remind you of those maps so that you can refer to them today and later.

Before the initiation of the national plan, 38 of our 72 annual conferences were already involved in some type of ministry with Hispanics. As you can see on the first map, so far this quadrennium 18 additional annual conferences have begun new ministries with Hispanics, including faith communities and new congregations. The next map highlights these conferences for you.

The number of annual conferences participating in some form of ministry with Hispanics has increased during this quadrennium by nearly 45 percent. Today, as our next map shows, 55 conferences across the church have Hispanic ministries, and several others are preparing, even now, to respond to the growing Hispanic population in their midst.

Within the conferences that already have established ministries, growth has taken place as well. Twenty of these conferences have expanded their ministries during the last several years. Conference reports reveal to us that 494 faith communities have been started in 40 conferences, plus 199 church school extension programs in 19 conferences. These ministries are symbolized on the map by a book or a square. Sixty-six new congregations have been started in 24 conferences. And there are 59 revitalized congregations. These are indicated by a church topped with a cross. Seven hundred ninety-nine outreach ministries have been begun in 41 conferences, and these are symbolized by two clasped hands. Five hundred fifty lay missionaries have been recruited and are now trained. And these persons are indicated by a stick figure on the map. We rejoice together in this abundant evidence of God at work in us.

Hispanic Program Training Curriculum Developed

One of the most impressive accomplishments of the National Plan for Hispanic Ministries this quadrennium has been the design and utilization of a curriculum for training teams of lay missionaries and pastor mentors. Collaborating in an exemplary way with the four general program agencies of our church, the Committee on Hispanic Ministries has developed a resource for the whole church that did not exist three years ago. Two of three modules are already available and are being used extensively in local, conference, and regional training centers throughout this country and Puerto Rico. Further cooperation among the four program agencies and the other agencies of the church has produced resources for developing new Hispanic ministries, for Hispanic and non-Hispanic leaders and churches who desire to be involved in Hispanic ministries, and for interpreting the plan across the church.

These statistics and resources, however, cannot begin to fully tell the story of what God is doing as the National Plan for Hispanic Ministry is implemented. The plan is first and foremost about people and congregations responding to God's spirit.

Today we welcome three persons whose lives have been impacted by the plan. Our witnesses are Ana Velasquez Stone, a lay missionary from Kansas City; Mel Muchinsky, a pastor from Phoenix; and Lavinia Lavoy, a lay woman from Orlando. We welcome them. Ana.

(applause)

Hispanic Ministries in Kansas City

ANA VELASQUEZ STONE (Kansas City): Buenos dias. I am a lay missionary at Grace United Church in Kansas City, Missouri. I was working as a drywall finisher when I first heard the call to become a lay missionary. I was raised as a Roman Catholic and became a United Methodist Church member at Lynnwood United Church, because, as a Catholic, I did not feel encouraged to grow spiritually, nor did I see the opportunities that were calling, tugging at my heart.

When I was approached by my pastor for this position at Grace United, he asked me to think about it, pray about it—excuse me, this is very touching to me—and discuss it with my family. On that particular Sunday morning, it was as if God was talking to me, because the sermon was entitled, "How Can I Serve Thee?" and the hymn was, "Here I Am, Lord." How can you refuse when God whispers your name?

I began as the director of Outreach Hispanic Ministries in September of 1992, on a very part-time basis. Within months, I was very full time. I attended one of the first lay missionary training programs at Perkins School of Theology in Dallas, Texas, in 1993. When I began as the director of Outreach Hispanic Ministries, there were no programs at Grace United or anywhere else in northeast Kansas City for this rapidly growing Hispanic population. I began by helping to translate for people and to obtain the most basic of needs: food, clothing, and shelter. I was also developing and locating programs that would enhance the lives in adjustment to the United States and Kansas City.

I have spent days and nights in hospitals and homes helping get a young boy out of jail; keeping a 14-year-old girl from getting married and dropping out of school; opening my heart and my home to a homeless family. I have worked with others in the programs implemented at Grace United during the last four years, including: Project Strength, a nutrition-based education and budgeting class; a medical staff to meet basic medical needs; English as a second language; tutoring classes for youth and adults; Hispanic women's support group; counseling group for youth and adults; and parents as teachers, just to name a few.

A Hispanic women's shelter is part of our long-range plans, as there are none in the city at this time. This will include planning and implementing everything in Spanish and will emphasize a strong spiritual base. Our ministries have influenced the community by bringing together people of different cultures, finding harmony in our diversity, bringing peace, understanding, and acceptance where none existed. Providing for the spiritual needs of the Hispanic community was and is a challenge. I have led Bible studies and worship services, prayed with and for persons and families, and have just been here when needed by our Hispanic brothers and sisters.

As a lay missionary, I believe that I am an instrument of God. All that we have accomplished and all of the growth that we have experienced at Grace United and in the community has been as a result of God moving in my life and in the life of Grace United. Grace United is a combined Methodist and Presbyterian Church. Together, they have been instrumental in reaching out to the Hispanic community. Without this combined effort of both, this valuable effort would not have been possible. I am thankful to God that he has seen me worthy to be his disciple. As a United Methodist, I have been given the opportunity to serve Christ and the people of Kansas City. Gracias!

Hispanic Ministries in Phoenix

REV. MEL MUCHINSKY (Phoenix, Arizona): A Hispanic man came to my door on the afternoon of May 27, 1994. "Can I use your telephone," he asked. Well, never having met the man, I was rather taken aback, but something within me said, "Yes. This just might be an answer to your prayer." He did use the telephone; he didn't call Miami, Arizona. As I thought, it was Miami, Florida. As it turned out, Orlando Garcia Cara was a Cuban refugee who had just got off the plane in Phoenix, Arizona, a few days before. Experiencing culture shock and disorientation, he looked for a church closest to his apartment. The restrictive chains that he knew around him in Cuba were now thrown off, and he could worship as he pleased, he could evangelize, he could start a faith community. He asked for Spanish Bibles and hymn books, and this our church gladly bought for him. Shortly thereafter we bought Spanish Sunday school material, and Spanish video tapes to enhance his ministry. Initially, the faith community composed mainly of children and youth, but slowly others have been incorporated in that fellowship, adults and whole families.

Seeking to respond to the demographics of the community, Aldersgate United Methodist Church conducted a house-to-house visitation. Each household received a video on the life of Jesus Christ free in the spring of 1994. This survey revealed a population group of Hispanics, anywhere from 12 to 30 percent within a mile radius of the church. Now the time was to act now. We needed to respond to this particular population group, rather than wait until our Anglo-speaking congregation had dwindled in numbers and in strength. And we all know that most churches wait until it's too late.

We made a conscious decision to be in partnership in ministry with Hispanics and Koreans at a special church conference in June of 1994. I believe, during this time, the work of the Spirit was mostly manifest within our local church. Our congregation has been engaged in cross-cultural ministry to those in our neighborhood, and we've really found a new sense of mission to those around us. Five times a year, English, Korean, and Hispanic ministries come together for what is known as a Festival Sunday. Cross-cultural events and fellowship have enlarged both our vision as well as our ministry to the whole world. The faith community established by our Hispanic outreach ministry, continues to grow, and we are constantly involved also in refugee resettlement.

This new Hispanic ministry was a result of my own personal prayer. I had been praying since 1988 for the Lord to send me someone whom I could be in partnership with in this particular community. And, like Abraham, I many times tried to answer my own prayer, and of course I failed. The Lord provided the answer in his own terms, in his own time. I believe that this is the foundation of any ministry—that is prayer. I believe today, that through prayer and our cross-cultural ministry, Aldersgate United Methodist Church is an exciting place to be, and I invite you to celebrate this with us. Thank you. Gracias.

Called to Hispanic Ministries

LAVINIA LABOY: Ever since I came to Denver, I have felt all sorts of aches and pains, but nothing has been compared to what I felt this morning, when I had a million butterflies on my stomach just thinking that I have to talk to you today. So if I faint, complain to him, he sent me here. (points toward heaven)

(Laughter)

I'm Lavinia Laboy, and all my life I consider myself a Christian. I thought that by taking my family to church on Sundays, I had fulfilled the divine mandate. Sometimes the material things in my home had more importance than spiritual ones. And in order to ask a favor from the Lord, we use intermediaries—saints, candles, promises. I have not known of that private line that lets you talk directly to Jesus.

Quite a while ago, I went to visit a friend. He had a terminal illness. When I went there, they had the faith community going on, and I was invited to attend. I was able to see that man, that he testified how God sustained him in this moment in his life. I began to attend those groups and I watched him very closely. I never saw in him signs of sadness, bitterness toward anyone. He inspired me. His character showed me that no matter how alone, sick, and hopeless you might find yourself in life, there is always the friendly hand to sustain one's soul, that of Jesus Christ.

I remember the phrase, "Grow and multiply." Deep inside I began to feel something I had never experienced before, a new-found desire to serve my family, my neighbors, my community, but from a Christ-centered approach. I have been growing spiritually, multiplying my services, my talents, and my love to others, all for one purpose, to please Christ in the best possible way.

In order for the Lord to increase my growth in faith, strength, resignation, and tolerance during this year, I've had the experience of seeing my daughter go through six major operations. If this living Christ whom I met through the faith community group would not have been there with me, I don't think I would have been able to withstand so much suffering and pain. Praise God, for he is real and he can be found! He is with me. I have let him act, and I have accepted his will without questioning why things happened to us. Through him there is no fear, no doubt, no worry, no sadness. This is why I exhorted my friends to consider joining one of these faith communities; for it is the only way to grow, to find real value into your life, the only goal that will satisfy you, for in him lies the answer to all our heart desires. I have discovered the way. I have discovered the light, and I have discovered the truth, thanks to my friends in the faith community group. God bless you all.

Continuing the Hispanic Ministries Plan

BISHOP MARTINEZ: You have heard the voices, and seen the faces of those who hunger for righteousness and hope, in the videos and the slides. And you have just experienced the deep conviction and been caught up in the joy of a lay missionary and a pastor, and a faithful participant in a faith community. Our committee has proposed, and you will be considering a quadrennial extension of the national plan. We have made this recommendation for continuation for three reasons.

Firstly, many annual conferences are taking good first steps in implementing the plan, while others are just beginning to initiate new ministry. The need to resource our annual conferences is stronger than ever.

Secondly, in just three years the national plan has managed to provide training for 550 lay missionary-pastor teams. This falls short of our original goal, but we feel that we can train an average of 250 additional lay missionary-pastor teams through the new quadrennium and that will move us toward our goal of 2,000 lay missionaries.

And thirdly, major work in curriculum development, resources for evangelization, training networks and institutes, and ongoing work with our seminaries and general agencies, will require the plan's continuation.

The plan's effort to develop new ministries, and to strengthen the church's outreach to an ever-growing Hispanic population, has simply not been completed in the period of three years. In the new quadrennium, we propose major financial resources of the plan to go toward annual conference and local church ministry development grants. One of the urgent requests we have heard across the church is for seed money to fund new ministries and revitalization efforts. Our proposal includes a commitment of a million dollars through the quadrennium for such grants. We also want to accelerate the training of lay missionary-pastor teams, as I just indicated. And finally, we intend to increase user-friendly resources in all media, printed, and audio, and video. We have great demands, especially in the area of worship materials, educational resources, and planning resources.

Sisters and brothers of the 1996 General Conference, in its better moments, United Methodism has been characterized by boldness and a passion for the gospel. It has been willing to adapt its strategies to reach people where they are. While some have walked by on the other side, United Methodists in our more faithful moments, have been willing to risk for others. We have been most clearly the church when gospel claims have overcome institutional caution.

Sisters and brothers, ...Hermanos y hermanas, we are a colorful gathering here in Denver this week. We're a multilingual community that sings of the one Lord in diverse accents. We're also part of the Pentecost people, which is God's ecumenical church. We share the same Pentecost experience of the Jerusalem market place and of Aldersgate Street. As the Spirit comes among us, hearts are warmed, empty lives are filled, the captives are set free, the weak are empowered, and the timid are emboldened to proclaim the gospel and resurrection power.

This General Conference, all of us together, can be part of such a Pentecost moment in United Methodism—a bold moment, a faithful moment, as our church recommits to support the National Plan for Hispanic Ministry. We conclude, therefore, our report this morning, as we began, inviting you to join us in song as Mr. Lockwood comes to lead us.

LOCKWOOD: The title of our song "Unidos" means united, and it is only "unidos," together, that we can join in doing God's work. It is only hand in hand "tomados de las manos," that we can announce God's love to everyone.

Mil Voces Para Celebrar

BISHOP BLAKE: Thank you, and now we turn to Bishop Galvan concerning the presentation of the Hispanic hymnal.

(applause)

BISHOP ELIAS GALVAN: Bishop Blake, sisters and brothers in Christ, for Spanish speaking United Methodists, this is, indeed, a most meaningful moment. For this is the first time in the history of our church, that the General Conference approves an official Spanish hymnal for the use of the entire church. Your approval came through the consent calendar, item 28, printed in Friday's DCA. We're indeed grateful to the General Board of Discipleship and the United Methodist Publishing House for listening to the voice of the Hispanics, accepting the challenge to publish a Spanish hymnbook, and investing the necessary funds in the production of Mil Voces Para Celebrar.

Just as the United Methodist Hymnal that the General Conference approved in 1988, it created a liturgical renewal in our church. We fully expect this new hymn book to bring a revival in worship in our Hispanic congregations. Mil Voces Para Cele- brar has sought to preserve the best translations and the most-liked traditional hymns of our church, but at the same time, it has incorporated the best indigenous hymns from the wealth of a new hymnology coming out of the different Hispanic communities and throughout Latin America. We can say to you without reservations, that Mil Voces Para Celebrar is a worthy contribution to the total church.

We are pleased at the reception that this hymn book has already received. In the short time since its publication, sales have exceeded our expectations, and the edition in red is sold out.

(applause)

Finally, let me mention that Mil Voces Para Celebrar has also become an ecumenical project, when the Disciples of Christ joined us in using our material to produce their own Spanish hymn book. We rejoice that our work has assisted a sister church in meeting their own needs among the Hispanic people. In page two of the sampler that has been distributed to you, you find the names of all the members of the committee. Some of them are here to assist us in the presentation of this hymn book. They come from different regions of the United States and represent a variety of sub-cultures among Hispanics. To them, a special word of gratitude for their invaluable contributions. I also want to express a word of appreciation to the choir that assists us today with the presentation: Coral Metodista Unida Hispana de Nueva York under the direction of Jorge Lockwood, who by the way, will offer a concert at 1:30 p.m. today, just in front of the ballroom downstairs, and all of you are invited.

And finally, let me express a special word of thanks to our editor, Mrs. Raquel Martinez, for her able leadership.

(applause)

And I'm going to ask our editor at this point to begin our presentation in worship.

Worship from Hispanic Hymnal

RAQUEL MARTINEZ: Just a brief word of explanation about the first page of the Order of Worship which you have received for this presentation: In the Call to Worship you may respond in the language of your choice. Now a very brief word about the central theme of the hymns of praise. The first one, "Al despuntar en la loma el día"—"As Dawn Breaks, and as I see your creation, I feel your presence, just as creation sings to you, I sing to you, O God."

The second one, "Solo tú eres santo": Only you are holy, and worthy of praise. Pour out your Spirit and let your light shine. Let your glory fill this place.

The third song, "Para la gloria de Dios"—"To the glory of God": I sing to the glory of God, I praise God with all my heart.

And the last song: "Cristo es la Peña de Horeb"—"Christ is the Mountain of Horeb", is one of our bi-lingual hymns, and you may sing in the language of your choice.

For the prayer of the day, again, you may pray in the language of your choice. Let us stand as we worship God together. We'll have our Call to Worship.

MINERVA CARCAÑO: (Call to Worship in Spanish, then English)

RAQUEL MARTINEZ: You may be seated. Let us turn to the sampler, page 10, and we will sing stanzas one and two only.

(song)

RAQUEL MARTINEZ: Turn to page 15 in your sampler, "Solo tú eres de santo,"—"Only You are Holy."

(song)

RAQUEL MARTINEZ: Turn to page two of your program book, and we will sing together, "Para la gloria de Dios" from the Dominican Republic, page two.

(song)

RAQUEL MARTINEZ: Page four, we will sing one stanza only of "Cristo es la Peña de Horeb"—"Christ is the Rock of Horeb"—one stanza, and you may choose the language.

(song)

Let us pray.

(prayer)

RAQUEL MARTINEZ: We will do verses one through six of Psalm 24 found on page 30 of your sampler.

(song)

ERADIO VALVERDE: [in Spanish]

[song/musical response in Spanish]

ANNIE GONZALES: Please stand, and we will sing together "Somos uno en Cristo"—"We are One in Christ Jesus." Turn to page six in your program. Page six. We will sing it once.

(song)

MINERVA CARCAÑO: If you would remain standing for the Hispanic Creed found on page seven. [translation in Spanish] With Latinos from around the globe, let us affirm our faith: [in unison spoken in English] We believe in God the Father Almighty, Creator of the heavens and the earth; Creator of all peoples and all cultures; Creator of all tongues and races.

We believe in Jesus Christ, his son, our Lord, God made flesh in the person for all humanity; God made flesh in an age for all ages; God made flesh in one culture for all cultures; God made flesh in love and grace for all creation.

We believe in the Holy Spirit through whom God incarnate in Jesus Christ makes his presence known in our peoples and our cultures; through whom God, Creator of all that exists, gives us power to become new creatures; whose infinite gifts make us one people, the Body of Christ.

We believe in the Church universal because it is a sign of God's reign, whose faithfulness is shown in its many hues, where all the colors paint a simple landscape, where all tongues sing the same praise.

We believe in the reign of God, the day of the great Fiesta, when all the colors of creation will form a harmonious rainbow; when all peoples will join in joyful banquet; when all tongues of the universe will sing the same song.

And because we believe, we commit ourselves to believe for those who do not believe; to love for those who do not love; to dream for those who do not dream; until the day when hope becomes reality. Amen. You may be seated.

RAQUEL MARTINEZ: For the passing of the peace in a minute, you will have to stand again. We will sing that song on that first page, "La Paz Esté Con Nosotros." It's a Hebrew melody: "Peace Be With Us." May peace always, always be with us. We will stand and sing it together through once. The second time around, I will invite you to greet your neighbors around you with signs of love and peace. Let us stand. "La Paz Esté Con Nosotros."

(song in Spanish)

RAQUEL MARTINEZ: You may be seated.

BISHOP BLAKE: As the—before the final liturgy of the hymnal being presented, I do want to note that as we began the order of the day after worship we were some minutes behind. I'm sure you will want to extend the time for this presentation of the hymnal, and without objection, we will do so. Thank you.

(laughter)

Presentation and Acceptance of Mil Voces Para Celebrar

BISHOP GALVAN: Thank you very much. Will you please turn to the offering section? On behalf of the Spanish Language Hymnal Committee, I present a new hymnal, Mil Voces Para Celebrar Hymnario Metodista, to the General Board of Discipleship and The United Methodist Publishing House. We're confident that this hymnal will build up the church as we seek to serve the Hispanic community in the spirit of the Wesleyan tradition of good music and joyful praise.

EZRA EARL JONES, ROBERT FEASTER, NEIL ALEXANDER, BISHOP DAVID LAWSON: We receive Mil Voces Para Celebrar with deep thanksgiving to God for your labor of love. We offer this hymnal to the Methodist Church around the world. We especially commend it to our Hispanic United Methodist Church as well as other Methodist Spanish-speaking churches in Latin America and the Caribbean.

[in unison] We rejoice in the publication of Mil Voces Para Celebrar. We celebrate with our Hispanic sisters and brothers in their faithful ministry of singing with 1,000 tongues the wonders of God's grace.

(applause)

MARTINEZ: Page eight of your programs, and we will close with one stanza only of "Sois la Semilla"—"You are the Seed." One stanza.

(song)

BISHOP GALVAN: Will you receive the benediction? [Benediction in Spanish] Amen.

BISHOP BLAKE: I'm sure you would want to express your appreciation to Raquel Martinez, who made this all possible in many, many ways. [applause] Wonderful historic moment in the church, and that's one of our privileges as we are in this place together in these weeks to experience history in the making. And we've experienced that this morning.

Let me share with you that we will move now into the nominations for Judicial Council and the University Senate. This is a time of nominations. After the nominations of the Council of Bishops are placed in nomination, nominations will be open from the floor. These—is it a point of order? We must proceed with the order of the day. What? The nominations will be in a few minutes. Yes, we will recognize you for those nominations.

To prepare you for those nominations, as you make the nominations, they're not to be made with speeches. They're made with names and identification of conference. Be sure you state your name first as the person making the nomination before the nominations are placed before the house. We turn to Bishop Melvin Talbert, the Secretary of the Council of Bishops, to bring you the nominations of the Council of Bishops.

University Senate Nominations

BISHOP MELVIN G. TALBERT: Thank you Bishop, members of the General Conference. I call your attention to page 86 of the DCA. You will find there on page 86 the list of the nominees coming from the Council of Bishops for the University Senate and the Judicial Council. As you reflect upon these nominations coming from the council, I call your attention to paragraph 1517.2 regarding the University Senate.

The first four names, you will discover, have been indeed appointed by the Council of Bishops pursuant to that paragraph. Then I call to your attention the next 12 names, six who are executive officers of United Methodist-related educational institutions and six holding other positions relevant to academic or financial affairs or church relations. You will find those six listed.

Now Mr. President, would you want me to go ahead with the Judicial Council or do you want to stop here for nominations?

BISHOP BLAKE: Let's stop here and receive nominations for the University Senate.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right.

BISHOP BLAKE: I would read to you out of paragraph 1517 in the Book of Discipline that the same daily session at which the above nominations are announced additional nominations be made from the floor, but at no other time. Nominations are now in order for the University Senate. I would recognize the person at microphone three.

JEANNIE TREVINO-TEDDLIE (Central Texas Conference): I would like to put in nomination Dr. Justo L. Gonzales from the Rio Grande Conference.

BISHOP BLAKE: Right over here, microphone four.

BENITA ROLLINS (East Ohio): I'd like to place in nomination Dr. Willa Bing-Harris. She's a member of the Metropolitan United Methodist Church and a member of the Alabama-West Florida Annual Conference.

BISHOP BLAKE: Microphone three.

GREGORY V. PALMER (East Ohio): A question before a possible nomination. Is Dr. Fred Blumer still on the Senate and therefore does not need to be nominated?

BISHOP BLAKE: Is there someone in the house who can speak to that? Would you hold your question, and we'll try to get an answer and come back to you before the nominations close? I'll recognize microphone 13.

WILLIAM H. HINSON (Texas): I nominate Dr. Maxie Dunham of the Kentucky Conference.

Categories for Eligibility for Election

BISHOP BLAKE: If I could remind the persons that, including the person that just made the nomination, those persons who have made nominations thus far, there are categories of election. It will be very helpful for the house to know. These will be printed later, but it will be very helpful for the house to know which category these persons are being nominated, whether or not they are chief executive officers of United Methodist-related institutions or the others holding positions relevant to academic or financial affairs or church relationships. Would the persons who have made those nominations return to the same microphone to, yes, to state those in order, and again, state your name to make this clarification.

BISHOP TALBERT: And Bishop, as they're coming, Roger Ireson is prepared to answer the question that was asked down here, when you get to recognize him.

BISHOP BLAKE: Thank you, we'll get to that in order. Microphone three.

TREVINO-TEDDLIE: Dr. Justo Gonzales would be in the category of a person holding an academic position.

BISHOP BLAKE: Microphone four.

ROLLINS: Likewise, Dr. Willa Bing-Harris is also one who holds academic qualifications.

BISHOP BLAKE: Microphone 13.

HINSON: Dr. Dunham also holds a position relevant to academic.

BISHOP BLAKE: Roger Ireson, which microphone are you at?

ROGER IRESON: Fifteen.

BISHOP BLAKE: Fifteen, please. Thank you.

IRESON: Thank you, Bishop. The question was raised about Dr. Fred Blumer. He is a professor at Baldwin-Wallace, which falls into the non-CEO category, has served the past four years on the Senate, and would be eligible for nomination.

BISHOP BLAKE: We'll turn now to microphone three.

PALMER: I would like to place in nomination Dr. Frederick Blumer of the Baldwin-Wallace College for the category, as Dr. Ireson has mentioned.

BISHOP BLAKE: I do not see other nominations; therefore, I will declare that the nominations for University Senate are closed. We'll turn now to the nominations for Judicial Council, and Bishop Talbert will again review the nominations from the Council of Bishops.

Judicial Council Nominations

BISHOP TALBERT: Bishop Blake and members of the General Conference, I again call your attention to page 86. At the bottom of the page, left hand corner, you will find the nominees coming from the Council of Bishops for Judicial Council. I reference paragraph 2602 of the Book of Discipline. We are being called upon to select and place before you six clergy to fill two places and six lay persons to fill two places. The names are so indicated.

BISHOP BLAKE: Reminding you, from The Book of Discipline, that in this year you will elect two ordained ministers, other than bishops, and two lay persons. After the Council of Bishops will nominate these persons, and the Council of Bishops is required to nominate three times the number of persons to be elected. That is the reason for the number that have been nominated. I would remind you that each of the jurisdictions and central conferences as a group shall be represented by in nomination, which has been done, and therefore there are no other requirements of that nature before the house, and nominations are in order for the Judicial Council. I would turn first to microphone five, over here, the person in the third row, please. Yes.

JANET STEPHENSON (Iowa): I would place in nomination the name of Tom Matheny from Louisiana, and he is a lay person.

BISHOP BLAKE: I would like to facilitate this process, because the cookies wait. Would those of you who wish to make nominations, simply go to a microphone, and I will then be able to call it. If you would allow that, I think that would save us some time. I would turn to microphone eight.

TAL ODEN (Oklahoma): I wish to place in nomination Ed Hill, lay person, Northwest Texas Annual Conference.

BISHOP BLAKE: I turn to microphone three.

JO ANN FUKOMOTO (California Pacific): I would like to nominate Judge Levan Gordon from the Eastern Pennsylvania Conference.

BISHOP BLAKE: Microphone 14.

ROBIN E. BARR (Pacific Northwest): I would like to nominate Jerry Eckert of the Wisconsin Annual Conference. He is a clergy.

BISHOP BLAKE: Microphone seven.

VERGIL L. DAUGHTERY JR. (South Georgia): On behalf of the delegation from the South Georgia Annual Conference of the Southeastern Jurisdiction, I place in nomination lay person Judge H. Arthur "Mike" McClain to be a member of the Judicial Council of The United Methodist Church.

BISHOP BLAKE: Microphone two.

THOMAS W. EBLEN: I nominate Dr. Charles W. Brockwell Jr. Dr. Brockwell is a clergy member of the Louisville Conference.

BISHOP BLAKE: Microphone four.

VICKI WOODS (New England): Our delegation nominates Robert K. Sweet Jr., New England Conference, clergy.

BISHOP BLAKE: Microphone nine.

WARNER H. BROWN JR. (California-Nevada): I place in nomination Dr. John Corry, clergy member of the Tennessee Conference.

BISHOP BLAKE: Microphone eight.

JOSEPH D. HUSTON (West Michigan): I nominate Steven T. Lett, lay delegate from West Michigan Conference.

BISHOP BLAKE: Microphone seven.

MARY E. AKERS (Northern Illinois): I place in nomination Dr. Larry Dwayne Pickens, clergy member of Northern Illinois Conference.

BISHOP BLAKE: Microphone eight.

WILLIAM K. QUICK (Detroit): I'd like to place in nomination the name of Reynard Kolasa. Thank you.

BISHOP BLAKE: Microphone seven.

J. PHILIP WOGAMAN (Baltimore-Washington): I wish to place in nomination the name of Dr. Sally Brown Geis of the Rocky Mountain Annual Conference in the lay category.

BISHOP BLAKE: Microphone seven.

LIMERIO C. GARIBAY (East Philippines): I place in nomination Justice Rustico Panganiban, lay leader and lay delegate from East Philippines Annual Conference.

BISHOP BLAKE: I declare that the nominations for, I'm sorry, six, excuse me.

BARBARA W. RIDDLE (Florida): I place in nomination the name of Terrell Sessums in the lay category.

BISHOP BLAKE: I declare that the nominations for Judicial Council are closed. Now let me have your attention. I've got an announcement to make about these nominations. We've got an announcement to make before the break, and then we will have the break.

The names of all nominees, identified with the conference to which each belongs, and the biographical sketch, which does not exceed 100 words, shall be published by the Daily Christian Advocate prior to the time, at least 48 hours prior to the time of election. Those persons who made nominations are responsible of submitting this information to the office of the Secretary of the General Conference—by what time today? By 5 p.m. today. Let me make that announcement again. By 5 p.m. today the requirements of the Discipline for the biographical information must be submitted to the secretary for the nominations to be in good order for your elections. We turn to our secretary for an announcement, and then hold just before the break so I can tell you when we will begin again.

CAROLYN MARSHALL: During these last few minutes, it has come to the attention of the platform that there has been a misprint, which has appeared in several copies, a good many copies so it appears, of today's daily edition of the Daily Christian Advocate. It seems to be something that looks like a superimposed reprint on each of the pages, beginning about a third of the way through. If yours is a defective copy, if you will go to the DCA sales office, they will replace it for you. We figured that it would be well for you to have that announcement prior to the break so that might be another thing you can do during the break.

BISHOP BLAKE: Now I have two announcements. First of all, would Alvin Deer of the Oklahoma Indian Missionary Conference move to a microphone please. This is a matter that the General Conference Commission has requested because arrangements have been made for this announcement. And it was inadvertently omitted from the publication. It will not take long, but it will have to do with our, something we will do as we move to our break. They will usually make an announcement for the visitors. But for the visitors, please do not move to the refreshments until the delegates have moved there, because they're required to be back in time, and you are not. And it will be very helpful when we have the break for the visitors to move away from the refreshments so the delegates can move.

Is it a point of order? What is the concern here?

Churches Destroyed by Tornadoes In Illinois

RICHARD E. REEVES (Central Illinois): I expect many of you know that a series of tornadoes have hit the Illinois area. And three churches have been destroyed, and a parsonage has been destroyed. Many homes have been destroyed and will have to be rebuilt. We covet your prayers. Thank you very much.

BISHOP BLAKE: Thank you very much for that word. Mr. Alvin Deer, a lay delegate of Oklahoma Indian Missionary Conference. As I say, this was an arrangement made by the general commission on our behalf. And Alvin, we turn to you on microphone number eight.

Native American Awareness Sunday

ALVIN DEAR (Oklahoma Indian Missionary): Thank you bishop. I'd like to begin by quoting a scripture from 1 Peter 3, I mean chapter 2 verse 9, where it says, "But you are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, his own special people; that you may proclaim the praises of him who called you out of darkness into his marvelous light, who once were not a people, but now are the people of God, who have not attained mercy, but now have attained mercy."

I'm addressing you this morning about a special Sunday offering designated by the 1988 General Conference to observe and remind the United Methodist Church of the gifts and contributions made by Native Americans to the church and to society. Native American Awareness Sunday is celebrated annually on the third Sunday of Easter, which will be tomorrow. Since the General Conference will not be in session tomorrow, the General Conference Committee has graciously allowed us time this morning to reflect on the positive impact that this special Sunday offering has made in the lives of Native American United Methodists.

One half of the special offering taken for Native American Awareness Sunday stays at the annual conference level to support the needs of the Native American ministries. In the Oklahoma Indian Missionary Conference, a portion of the 1995 Native American Awareness Fund benefited the conference enlistment program and local church revitalization campaign. The Minnesota Annual Conference used its funds to send Native American pastors and youth to national training events.

The other half of the offering goes to seminary education for Native Americans and to undergird an urban ministries initiative coordinated by the General Board of Global Ministries.

We, as the Native American community, thank you as a church for helping our people. For instance, we have two observers here, Shirley Montoya, a Navajo scheduled to be ordained in June; Twitty Sombrero, who through Native American Awareness Sunday scholarships is able to work on a doctorate at the School of Theology at Claremont. With these contributions, you are making a difference in the lives of Native American people. This morning as you exit, there will be volunteers located near the exit doors to receive your Native American Awareness Sunday offering envelope. And in consultation with the general secretary of GCFA, Sandra Kelly Lakore, we have requested that if you fill this out that you put your name, address, your local church, and your annual conference, and the GCFA will make sure that proper credit is made. And as we say in one of our many Native American languages, "Aho."

BISHOP BLAKE: Thank you. We will break, and I will look at my clock, and we will begin with calendar items, which will introduce new delegates to the way we act on legislation. We will be doing that in 20 minutes from this minute. Thank you.

(song—"We're Marching to Zion")

BISHOP BLAKE: Thank you. Let's come to order. Please be seated. Let us be in order so that we work together towards our adjournment time at 12:30. That is binding by your action. We will move now into calendar items. This is the first time in the conference we're dealing with calendar items. We will have an orientation for this from Fitzgerald Reist who is the Coordinator of Calendar. Let's give our attention to be oriented to the handling of calendar items by Fitzgerald Reist. Fitzgerald

Consent Calendars Explained

FITZGERALD REIST (Coordinator of Calendar): Thank you. This General Conference we are proceeding in a way that differs from preceding general conferences, in that we have three distinct types of consent calendars. These will expedite the work of the General Conference a great deal by making it more clear what we are doing as we vote on the various calendars.

Consent Calendar A consists of all of those items which have come from committees with five or fewer dissenting votes, and which relate to changes in the Discipline. The support for Consent Calendar A means that you affirm those changes in the Discipline that have been recommended by the legislative committees.

Consent Calendar B consists of all those items which have come through the legislative committees, again with five or fewer dissenting votes, and addresses non-disciplinary items.

Consent Calendar C are those things for which the legislative committees are recommending nonconcurrence, including disciplinary and non-disciplinary items. And your support of Consent Calendar C means that you agree with those legislative committees that there should be nonconcurrence with those items.

Breaking it into three categories means that there will be less confusion about what we're doing and should make it easier for us to understand also that we're not voting a mixture of concurrence and nonconcurrence items. Consent Calendar A is concurrence. Consent Calendar B is concurrence. Consent Calendar C is nonconcurrence. A vote of support for Consent Calendar C means non-support for those suggested changes.

If we could have the graphics on the screen, I'd like you to just take a note. The red bar is the number of petitions that we have received. The tan bar represents the ones that are in committee. The yellow bar are the ones that are calendared. The green bar are the ones that have been voted. In order for us to get through our business and get out of here, all of those bars need to reach the top. You can see we have a lot of work to do. If you will follow the rules with the consent calendars, we can do it very expeditiously.

The consent calendars will, from time to time, be modified. If you would turn in today's DCA to page 176, you will note that Calendar Item 2 has been removed from the consent calendar. It was incorrectly placed on the consent calendar, and it was removed when we received the correct information. Calendar Item 49 was removed from the consent calendar at the request of the five delegates whose names appear below the number.

BISHOP BLAKE: Thank you, Fitzgerald. We have an announcement to make in terms of this process to be clear, because there are persons on the platform that are chairpersons or presenters from legislative committees. Heads of the delegation: Do not replace these delegates who are on the platform representing legislative committees. They will have key pads for their voting. Let me say this again. Persons who are on the platform, presenting for legislative committees have key pads. Chairs of delegations: Please do not replace them with reserves, for the obvious reason.

We move now to page 93 and turn to Sarah Miller to make motions concerning the consent calendar, and Sarah, I will remind you as you come and remind all the delegates when they move to the microphone, please state your name and conference.

Motion on Consent Calendar A01

SARAH S. MILLER (Wyoming): Bishop, I move the adoption of the Consent Calendar A01 as amended.

BISHOP BLAKE: Consent Calendar A01 with the deletion of number two. To vote "yes", if you support the recommendation of concurrence. If you vote "no," you are not for concurrence. Please vote when your light goes on. [813 approved]

Consent Calendar A01 is approved.

FITZGERALD REIST: Reminder, Consent Calendar B01 concurs with the non-disciplinary items listed.

MILLER: Bishop, I move the adoption of Consent Calendar B01.

BISHOP BLAKE: Please vote when the light appears. [825 approved]

Consent Calendar B01 is approved.

REIST: Consent Calendar C01 with the removal of Calendar Item 49 represents nonconcurrence with these items.

MILLER: Bishop, I move the adoption of Consent Calendar C01 with the exception of number 49.

BISHOP BLAKE: The motion is before you. Please vote when the light appears.

[846 approved] Consent Calendar C01 is approved.

Thank you. Now we will move to calendar items on page 100 and 101. These will be taken in order as they appear. We will be dealing with item number 78 first, and we would turn to the respective committee chairs. Let us be clear again, that your vote "yes" is to support the recommendation of the committee. If the recommendation of the committee is concurrence, and you agree with that, you will vote yes. Otherwise, vote no. If the recommendation of the committee is for nonconcurrence, and you support that recommendation, you vote yes; otherwise, no.

So you are voting whether or not to support the recommendation of the committee, and the committee chair will state clearly what their recommendation is. As they come forward, they are being asked to, first of all, we know that we are on pages 100 and 101. We know that already. In terms of the reference to the petition, they will indicate to you where it is located, either in the red DCA, or the white Daily Christian Advocate that you all received when you arrived. So we will move in order, and for the legislative Committee on Conferences, we turn to George Hunter III. George.

Committee on Conferences Actions

GEORGE HUNTER III (Florida): I begin with one announcement to the members of the Committee on Conferences, we're asking that you meet in your sub-committees at 2 o'clock today instead of the pre-announced time of 2:30, and then we'll try to meet in full committee at 2 o'clock.

Our committee brings two calendar items to you today, number 78 and number 79. The first you will see is a petition that calls for a mission statement for the General Conference. While the petition itself had merit, ...

BISHOP BLAKE: Would you identify where that petition is for those who want to refer to it? And what page number?

HUNTER: Yes, it's on page 100, well let's see.

BISHOP BLAKE: I believe it's noted on page 178 of the DCA. That would be helpful, so that if delegates have a particular interest, they can have that petition before them. Many times they will not, but that will facilitate our action. Thank you, go ahead.

HUNTER: Thanks. The committee voted 45-15 for nonconcurrence. The petition had merit, but we felt that a mission statement for the General Conference was redundant, since a mission statement prefaces the entire constitution in the front of the Discipline, and therefore, this repeat was not needed.

BISHOP BLAKE: The recommendation of the committee is nonconcurrence. Microphone 12.

FLO S. MARTIN (South Georgia): I move to postpone Calendar Item 78 until the conference has acted on the mission statement for the church which is currently under consideration in the legislative committees on discipleship and the local church.

BISHOP BLAKE: This is a motion to postpone. Is there a second? (second from the floor) Is there discussion? If you would vote?

MARTIN: May I speak to that?

BISHOP BLAKE: Okay, speak to it.

MARTIN: This is an important matter that deserves consideration at the proper time. And it depends on the outcome of the other petitions, so I would move to postpone the action.

BISHOP BLAKE: The motion is before you to postpone. Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 542; no, 346; abstained, 8] Requires a majority vote, and the action is postponed. Move to the next item.

HUNTER: The next item is number 79, a petition recommending that each conference encourage its people to join the annual conference historical society. We judged by a vote of 71-9, that this was not needed, and would set an unwarranted precedent for filling the Discipline with endless recommendations.

BISHOP BLAKE: The recommendation is nonconcurrency. Please vote when the light appears. [852 approved] The recommendation of the committee is sustained as nonconcurrency. George.

HUNTER: Thank you, Bishop. We have nothing further.

Legislative Committee on Church and Society Actions

BISHOP BLAKE: We turn to the legislative committee on Church and Society. Don Pike.

DON M. PIKE (Central Texas): We're beginning in the red book, page 128. It is Calendar Item 83, petition 20943, right hand column, third down. The title is "Executive Committee Delete 1109" if you're interested in where paragraph 1109 is, it's on page 485 in your Discipline. Let me simply tell you that this is a petition to delete this particular paragraph for the purposes of allowing the rules of operation and the by-laws of the General Board of Church and Society to be contained within their by-laws to remove elements of this nature from the Discipline.

The Discipline continues to grow, so it simply puts the by-laws as the governing factors of the board, and of course, it has to operate within the restrictions of the Discipline, and so the committee recommends, in this particular regard, concurrence.

BISHOP BLAKE: This item is before you. Please vote when the light appears. [850 approved] The committee is sustained in concurrence on Calendar Item 83.

PIKE: All right, continuing on page 128, petition 20942, immediately above that, dealing with the officers listed in paragraph 1108 of the Discipline, on page 485 of the Discipline; the same exact type thing; therefore the committee recommends concurrence.

BISHOP BLAKE: Is this Calendar Item 84?

PIKE: Calendar Item 84.

BISHOP BLAKE: Calendar Item 84, recommendation of concurrence. Please vote when the light appears. [877 approved] The committee's recommendation of concurrence is sustained on number 84.

PIKE: Next we would direct your attention to Calendar Item 80. And if you would do so, turn to page 1230 in your white DCA. We'll be dealing with petition number 22331, right hand side of the page, second from the top; dealing with paragraph 728.4, can be found on page 363 in the Discipline. The petition calls for the inclusion of the words "in rural and urban areas" in terms of the work of the Board of Church and Society. The sub-committee and the board simply felt like the world is our parish. We shouldn't begin to define this many specific areas. Therefore, the recommendation for Calendar Item 80 is nonconcurrency by a vote of 87 to six.

BISHOP BLAKE: Item 80 is before you. The recommendation of nonconcurrency. Please vote when the light appears. [830 approved] The recommendation of the committee is sustained for nonconcurrency on Item 80.

Calendar Item 81

PIKE: Calendar Item 81 in the white DCA on page 1231. You will find it, it's petition 22332; right hand side of the page, second from the top. It is a petition to amend the first paragraph 1104. You can see the inclusion of statement there. The committee, in turn, recommends nonconcurrency on the basis of the fact that it's a duplication of language and policy that is already in existence within the Discipline, and therefore is unnecessary. Recommendation is nonconcurrency by a vote of 77 for, 15 against.

BISHOP BLAKE: Calendar Item 81 is before you. Please vote when the light appears. [818 approved] Recommendation of the committee is sustained, nonconcurrency on Calendar Item 81.

PIKE: Calendar Item 82 can be found in your white DCA on page 1231, petition 22333, at the very bottom of the right hand column; reference to paragraph 1104 which can be found on page 484 in the Discipline. It is the vote of the committee for nonconcurrency. The committee believes that the lines of accountability are sufficient in terms of our protocol as a denomination and, therefore, this is unnecessary. Nonconcurrency by a vote of 79 to 12.

BISHOP BLAKE: Calendar Item 82 is before you. Please vote when the light appears. [777 approved] Committee's recommendation of nonconcurrency is sustained on Calendar Item 82.

PIKE: Calendar Item 85, white DCA, page 1232, petition 22726, left hand column, very bottom of the page. Amending paragraph 1104. Change the word "prime" to "a significant." The committee did not feel like there was enough distinction in the change of those two words to merit its approval, and therefore, the recommendation is nonconcurrency by a vote of 83 to 7.

BISHOP BLAKE: Calendar Item 85 is before you. Please vote when the light appears. [862 approved] Recommendation of the committee of nonconcurrency on Calendar Item 85 is supported.

PIKE: Calendar Item 86, page 1232, petition 22335, immediately above the one on which we just acted. Committee votes nonconcurrency by a vote of 72 to 17. The committee believes that what is asked for in this particular statement is already provided for in the language we have in the Discipline and therefore is unnecessary.

BISHOP BLAKE: Calendar Item 86 is before you. Please vote when the light appears.

The committee's recommendation of nonconcurrence is sustained on Calendar Item 86. [837 approved]

PIKE: All right. This completes our report, and I will assume that the balance of the reporting of the Legislative Committee on Church and Society will go equally well.

(laughter)

BISHOP BLAKE: We turn now to Higher Education and Ministry. J. Allen Norris Jr.

Calendar Item 87

Chaplains and Related Ministries

J. ALLEN NORRIS JR. (North Carolina): We are looking at Calendar Item 87. This will be found in the red DCA, page 823, on the right hand column near the bottom, petition number 20631, funding of the Division of Chaplains and Related Ministries. And the committee recommendation is nonconcurrence. The rationale of the committee for the recommendation of nonconcurrence: the Division of Chaplains and Related Ministries, as a part of the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry, receives World Service monies. The majority of the legislative committee supports this method of funding and nomenclature and, therefore, non-concurred with the change proposed in the petition. Bishop, I move approval of the recommendation for nonconcurrence.

BISHOP BLAKE: Calendar Item 87 is before you. Please vote when the light appears. [851 approved] The committee's recommendation of nonconcurrence is sustained on Calendar Item 87.

J. ALLEN NORRIS: Thank you. That's our only item at this time.

BISHOP BLAKE: I turn to Carl Stewart for Independent Commissions.

CARL E. STEWART (Louisiana): Thank you, Bishop. I am joined on the platform by Becky Haase from California-Pacific Conference and subcommittee chair of one of the subcommittees. We will consider Calendar Item 88 of the DCA and petition number 20483 found on page 904 in the Advance Edition of the DCA, the red book. The petition calls for the elimination of the annual conference Commission on the Status and Role of Women. The committee recommends nonconcurrence. The rationale is that the Discipline appropriately provides for an annual conference Commission on Status and Role of Women. I move the adoption of the committee recommendation of nonconcurrence.

BISHOP BLAKE: Calendar Item 88 is before you. Please vote when the light appears. [705 approved] The recommendation of the committee for nonconcurrence is sustained on Calendar Item 88.

Calendar Item 89

Membership of Status and Role of Women

STEWART: We will next consider Calendar Item 89, which involves two petitions: 20381 and 20465. These are found on page 905 in the red book, Advance Edition One. The essence of both the petitions is to amend para. 741.2 of The Discipline, which provides for the membership, the number, and composition of the annual conference Commission on Status and Role of Women. The petition would, first, delete language in the second sentence which gives the number; and secondly, the petition would substitute text allowing for membership to be determined by the annual conference. The committee recommends nonconcurrence, and the rationale of the committee is that the current wording of para. 741.2 gives appropriate guidance and latitude to the annual conference with respect to the membership and composition. Bishop, I would move the adoption of the committee report.

BISHOP BLAKE: Calendar Item 89 is before you. Please vote when the light appears. [799 approved] Recommendation of the committee of nonconcurrence on Calendar Item 89 is sustained.

Calendar Item 91
Gideons International

STEWART: We are now considering Calendar Item 91, and it involves petition number 21557. It's found on page 1391 in the white book, Advance Edition, Vol. 2. The essence of the petition is a resolution which affirms the ministry of Gideons International yet strongly encourages the Gideons to reconsider its membership criteria, which currently excludes women. The committee concurs in the resolution, with an amendment in the last paragraph which substitutes the word "gender" for the word "sex." The committee recommends concurrence with the petition as amended, and the rationale of the committee is that the Gideons ministry will be enhanced by a membership which includes women. Bishop, I move the adoption of the committee report.

BISHOP BLAKE: Calendar Item 91 is before you. Microphone two.

CAROL A. SMITH (Missouri East): I am a member of the Independent Commissions committee, and there was dissent to the report in the committee, and I wish to speak in opposition to the committee decision. When the vote was taken on this petition, information regarding the guidelines for membership in Gideons International was unavailable. There are three criteria for membership. You must be a born-again believer; you must be a member in good standing in your local church and recommended for membership by your pastor; you must be employed in a supervisory position, i.e. business and professional occupations. Men of evangelistic denominations are welcomed in membership. Many United Methodists are members. Wives of members are active in auxiliary work. The organization is a world-wide, independent, ecumenical organization to win people to Christ.

I would encourage the General Conference to endorse the work and mission of the Gideons International, leaving the composition of their membership to their prayerful decisions of Gideons International themselves, recognizing, thereby, the dignity of their polity without endorsing or condemning their membership policies. I would encourage a vote of nonconcurrency of the committee action on this petition. Thank you.

BISHOP BLAKE: This is a speech against the committee's recommendation. Is there a speech in favor of the committee's recommendation. Microphone five.

DONNA JONES (Kentucky): I'm a single woman. There's no place in the Gideon organization for someone like me. Therefore, I would support the committee's recommendation.

BISHOP BLAKE: I believe you're ready to vote. The committee's recommendation on Calendar Item 91 is concurrence. Vote when the light appears. [36, yes; 307, no;] Recommendation of the committee of concurrence on Calendar Item 91 is supported by the body.

STEWART: Thank you, Bishop. This concludes our work at this time. I appreciate it.

BISHOP BLAKE: Turn to Janice Huie for the Local Church.

Legislative Committee on Local Church Actions

JANICE RIGGLE K. HUIE (Southwest Texas): Calendar Item 92 please. It can be found in your white book, right hand column, page 1405. Page 1405. Left hand column, excuse me. Para. 113, the petition number is 22671. This is placed in the section on the Discipline under the ministry of all Christians in the subsection on inclusiveness. The committee voted for nonconcurrency based on the concerns that the definition of the word

"exaggerated" is open to many interpretations. Who will decide the definition raises other questions; and the context in which the word "exaggerated" will be defined raises still more questions. We believe that, regardless of your position on this issue, that this legislation creates more problems than it helps. We recommend nonconcurrency.

BISHOP BLAKE: Calendar Item 92 is before you. Number seven, microphone number seven, please.

VICTOR W. GOLDSCHMIDT (North Indiana): Based on the comments we just heard, I'd like to move an amendment that the word "exaggerated" be deleted.

BISHOP BLAKE: The amendment is before you to delete the word "exaggerated." Is there a second. It is supported. I believe you're ready to vote. Those who would support the amendment to eliminate the word ...

HUIE: Bishop. Bishop. May I speak to the amendment?

BISHOP BLAKE: Yes, Janice, pardon me. Yes, you may.

HUIE: I believe that we would not support the amendment, that we would prefer that it remain as it is. This is the intent of the legislation, and just vote it up or down the way the maker intended it.

BISHOP BLAKE: Please, the amendment is to delete the word "exaggerated." Please vote when the light appears.

[375, yes; 555, no; 9, abstained]

BISHOP BLAKE: The amendment is defeated. The main motion is before you on calendar 92. The main motion is the committee's recommendation of nonconcurrency. Please vote when the light appears. The recommendation of the committee for nonconcurrency on Calendar Item 92 is sustained.

JANICE HUIE: This completes our report at this time.

BISHOP BLAKE: Thank you. Please, I think you will be able to receive this word with some satisfaction. I'm going to ask Carolyn to bring some announcements. Please hold your chairs, because I do want to say one thing.

Requests to Commission on General Conference

First, John Thomas, would you stand. John was introduced to you at the beginning of the conference. He's right here. We've had some requests to come to the floor with information concerning schedule, invitations, and such. We do operate with the commission. And these items should be referred to the commission first and not come to the floor for plenary time. And so, the reason I am asking John to stand is to know, if there are requests and considerations, please turn to your commission first instead of the floor plenary.

I also would like to have William Cook stand. William Cook, who was before you earlier with courtesies and privileges. If you have items that you believe you would like to have brought before the conference in terms of special privileges, it really helps all of us to have those organized by that committee. These often times are concerns about—that have already been expressed in this conference, for instance. William Cook is the chair of the Committee on Courtesies and Privileges. Please channel those through him, because as a committee chair, he always has access to determine whether or not those items should be on the agenda. Thank you for your cooperation.

Ok now, what is your item? Number three? Please come to the microphone number three.

YOUNGSOOK C. KANG (Rocky Mountain): Point of order. Calendar Item 90 was not considered.

BISHOP BLAKE: We are aware of that, and when a legislative committee chair makes a presentation, it is their option when, whether or not they call every item that's in the DCA. That's not necessarily required. Do you have an answer to that? Fitzgerald?

FITZGERALD REIST: Calendar Item 90.

BISHOP BLAKE: Please identify yourself.

REIST: Fitzgerald Reist, Coordinator of the Calendar. Calendar Item 90 has been moved to the Consent Calendar. The vote was incorrectly recorded. The correct vote places it on the correct, on the Consent Calendar. It is now on Consent Calendar A02. If you look in your DCA for today, you'll find it as the first item as a correction on the calendar.

BISHOP BLAKE: Thank you for that information. Thank you. Let's turn to the secretary for announcements.

CAROLYN MARSHALL: A reminder that the Hispanic ensemble and the mariachi band will sing at a special concert time from 1:30 to 2:00 this afternoon, with the St. Luke's choir singing from 2:00 to 2:30 in what after two days has become the usual area, the prefunctionary area near Hall A.

We've been reminded several times to bring to the attention of the entire body that the Sunday evening performance of the Montana Logging and Ballet Company will be at 8 p.m., not at 7:00, which has been published in several places.

An announcement that the legislative committee on General and Judicial Administration will meet at 2 p.m.

And a reminder that those 100-word bios—we urge you to keep them to 100 words, because that is what will be published—for both the University Senate and for the Judicial Council are to be in the secretary's office, room C204, by 5 p.m. this afternoon. The University Senate is not judicial—or is not disciplinary, a disciplinary requirement; however, it was a recommendation which came from the body at the 1992 General Conference, and we are prepared to publish them.

Bishop White, who is President of the Council of Bishops, has asked for a moment to make an announcement.

BISHOP BLAKE: No, we still have our committee chairs to report. We got finished much earlier than we anticipated, so I wanted to be sure that Bishop White comes ahead. And we do have our committee chairs to report to us.

BISHOP WOODIE WHITE: Thank you very much. I think the members of the conference and my colleagues would like to know that word has been received that Bishop Kulah is on his way to the General Conference.

(applause)

BISHOP BLAKE: And we are aware that the lay delegate from Liberia, Mr. Cox, has arrived, and we celebrate his arrival and the anticipation of Bishop Kulah. (applause) In both of them, you will have an opportunity to greet them later in the conference.

I believe, John, did you have a request as a person I just introduced? And then we will turn to the Committee on Presiding Officers report and the Committee on Agenda and Calendar report.

JOHN THOMAS (South Indiana): Bishop Blake, you just—my name is John Thomas, South Indiana. You just called the attention of the conference to where I was seated. I now need to announce that there will be a meeting of the members of the Commission on General Conference at 2 p.m. this afternoon in room A210. Thank you.

BISHOP BLAKE: He did say thank you, which surprised me. (laughter) We'll turn to the Committee on Presiding Officers report. Rex Bevins.

Committee on Presiding Officers Report

C. REX BEVINS (Nebraska): Bishop Blake and members of the conference, one bishop in the Council of Bishops has referred to me as the "fickle finger of fate" (laughter) as I've approached bishops about their presiding assignments. The "fickle finger of fate" has rested on three bishops for Monday, Monday's session, April 22nd. On Monday morning, Bishop William Grove of the Albany area; Monday afternoon, Bishop Elias Galvan of the Phoenix area; Monday evening, Bishop Thomas Stockton of the Richmond area.

BISHOP BLAKE: Thank you. We turn to Sarah Miller for the Committee on Agenda and Calendar report.

SARAH S. MILLER: Thank you, Bishop. This is probably the last time we will adjourn early, don't you think?

BISHOP BLAKE: I hope not. (laughter) This group hopes not as well.

MILLER: We've had an unhurried consideration of business this morning. As the week progresses, the time will get shorter and things will be more urgent. I think the body is to be commended for the way in which they handled the legislation this morning. For the remainder of the day, we'll be in legislative committees afternoon and evening. While there is some time suggested on the agenda for that, of course you can adjust those times—meeting earlier, meeting later, as you wish.

I want to note the agenda that is proposed for Monday April 22nd. Is that on the screen? It should be on the screen soon. We will be having in the morning the Native American Ministries report and the Baptism Study report. And the remainder of the day will be devoted to calendar items in the afternoon and evening.

BISHOP BLAKE: Thank you for that report. We have one additional announcement from our secretary.

MARSHALL: The Committee on Ordained and Diaconal Ministries will meet this afternoon at 1:30; 1:30 Ordained and Diaconal Ministry legislative committee.

BISHOP BLAKE: As Bishop Emilio de Carvalho from the nation of Angola comes—I'm sorry, I see—number 12 do you have an item of privilege? What is your request for microphone 12? Go to the microphone, please. Microphone seven.

VERGIL L. DAUGHTERY, JR. (South Georgia): V.L. Daughtery Jr., South Georgia Conference. A point of information and a point of clarity concerning the Judicial Council nominations. At the end of the process, I think the chair instructed us to take the biographical sketches to Carolyn Marshall's office. Some of us have done that. We've now been handed a document instructing us to take them to the DCA office. Which should we do?

BISHOP BLAKE: We'll have the secretary respond.

MARSHALL: We'd appreciate if you could bring them to the secretary's office. The DCA office will be provided with them, but we do need to coordinate them. Thank you very much.

BISHOP BLAKE: Thank you for the inquiry. I do want to complement you on the way you have worked to accomplish your tasks. Enjoy the lunch hour tremendously with the extra minutes you have. And we will ask Bishop Emilio de Carvalho from Angola to dismiss us with prayer.

BISHOP de CARVALHO: Shall we stand and receive the benediction? [benediction] Amen.

THE GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

Denver, Colorado

Vol. 3 No. 7

Delegates Applaud Native American Ministries Report, Baptism Study

After a Sunday of worship at local churches, visits to Colorado's beautiful countryside and a hilarious, moving concert by the Montana Logging and Ballet Company, it was hard for some delegates to turn again to General Conference desks, committees, agendas and orders of the day. Others, whose legislative committees were still buried in a pile of petitions, got very little rest and relaxation.

But by mid-afternoon, when they returned to legislative committees, delegates had given the church a new core statement on baptism and endorsed major programs intended to strengthen work with four major racial and ethnic minority groups.

A motion from the floor suggested that Elizabeth Dole be invited to address the conference. General Conference Commission chair John Thomas said the commission had considered that possibility, but decided not to "inject partisan politics into the matter." First Lady Hillary Clinton is to address the conference Wednesday afternoon. Later it was decided to send a letter of greeting, good wishes and appreciation to Mrs. Dole for her contributions to United Methodism, the nation and the world.

A Conference Moment

Some of the most important United Methodists are not visible to the delegates at General Conference. Two of them, behind the plenary curtain, are Caitlin and Bryan Curtis, but there are millions of other children like them in United Methodist churches across the connection.

Native American Ministries Report

The Native American Ministries Report was preceded by a drumming group from the Blackfeet Reservation. The drummers led delegates and visitors in singing the Blackfeet Tribal Flag Song. Samuel Wynn, North Carolina clergy delegate, reminded delegates that the 1992 General Conference passed the Native American Comprehensive Plan and assigned implementation to the General Board of Global Ministries. A broadly inclusive task force was established to carry out the plan and "provide Native Americans within our own community to share the struggles, hopes and dreams about the future," he said.

Marvin B. Abrams, California-Pacific clergy delegate, introduced the plan's logo, developed to illustrate the circle, "a powerful symbol among Native Americans." It focuses on the four directions to symbolize new life, healing, traditional values and power. The task force used the directions as a guide to develop four committees: Denominational Presence, chaired by Ann Saunkeah, Oklahoma Indian Missionary lay delegate; Witness, chaired by Robert Mangum; Native American Spirituality, chaired by Anne Marshall; and Congregational Development, chaired by Billie R. Nowabbi. Work of each committee was illustrated by Betty J. Admussen, lay delegate, Missouri West; Alvin B. Deer, clergy delegate, Oklahoma Indian Missionary; Mr. Mangum; Shirley Montoya; and Joe Parker, lay delegate, New England. Full text of the plan report and its accomplishments begins on page 1342, Advance DCA, Volume II.

The conference approved the plan's continuation, referring a $1.2 million funding proposal to the Legislative Committee on Finance and Administration. Similar action was taken on the Hispanic Plan presented on Friday and proposals for an Asian-American language ministry study.

Strengthening the Black Church

An equally enthusiastic response was demonstrated for a personal and video-graphic presentation on "Strengthening the Black Church for the 21st Century," led by Indiana Area Bishop Woodie W. White and Walter L. Kimbrough, North Georgia clergy delegate. The plan calls for 25 congregational resource centers, a 19-member coordinating committee and resource development. A $1,779,000 budget was referred to the Legislative Committee on Finance and Administration. Presenters said the plan relies on successful churches to provide support and encourage success for others.

Mark C. Trotter, California-Pacific clergy delegate and Baptism Study Committee chair, presented the report "By Water and the Spirit: a United Methodist Understanding of Baptism." He characterized the report as "a foundation document for discussing our unity . . . and a resource for renewal of ministry for many pastors." Committee member Gayle Felton led delegates through the report which the conference approved unanimously and commended for church use. The study clarifies issues of rebaptism, confirmation and church membership.

Another report "A Shared Mission Focus on Young People," from the General Council on Ministries, was undergirded by a dramatic presentation by Cecilia Williamson who described her journey from welfare recipient to Ph. D. student. She credited much of her success to the support of The United Methodist Church. Stefanie A. Gray, California-Pacific lay delegate, added: "Institutions do not change from the outside. We must reach within the institutions of gangs, drug circles and poverty to provide leadership and guidance for young people." The report proposes a $270,000 budget which was referred to the Legislative Committee on Finance and Administration.

In the evening the conference received a dramatic video and personal report on The Advance for Christ and His Church. (See related story in tomorrow's DCA.)

Conference Demonstrates Commitment to Hispanic Ministry

Since the 1992 General Conference approved the National Hispanic Plan, annual conferences in the United States and Puerto Rico have been working on its implementation. For the North Georgia Conference, the process has been exemplary.

"When I was hired by the conference in 1993, there were no funds for Hispanic ministries, only a vision," said the Rev. Aida Beltran-Gaetan, a Hispanic congregational developer and national missionary of the General Board of Global Ministries. "Today, our total budget for Hispanic ministries is $101,000."

From this vision, which Ms. Beltran-Gaetan credits to Atlanta Area Bishop J. Lloyd Knox, numerous programs have been created. "Our aim is to revitalize existing congregations [Anglo and Hispanic], develop new ones and establish faith communities," she said.

Before Ms. Beltran-Gaetan was hired, only two established Hispanic Methodist congregations and five mission congregations ministered to the ever-growing Hispanic population in North Georgia. Today nine mission congregations and many newly created faith communities are in ministry there. Ms. Beltran-Gaetan attributes a large part of this growth to the work of Olga Mercado de Rodriguez, Carlos Gonzalez and Daisie Coloma.

Originally from Mexico, Ms. Mercado embodies the spirit of how Hispanic ministry is done in North Georgia: "creation from nothing." As a pastor of two new Hispanic congregations, she marvels at the response she has received from the two congregations in Cedartown. "In July of '95, we started with nothing. By November, 175 people attended our Thanksgiving dinner.... The time to reach out to Hispanics is now."

"Because there aren't many Hispanic churches in North Georgia, there is a spiritual void in the Hispanic community," said Ms. Beltran-Gaetan.

Lay missionary Carlos Gonzalez works with a historically Anglo church as he tries to address the needs of its Hispanic community. As director of Hispanic ministries at Mount Pizgah United Methodist Church, he is pastor of the 40-member Hispanic mission, which holds Saturday worship services. In addition to having a Spanish Christian radio program, Mr. Gonzalez also deploys "mission troops" to other Hispanic communities in the conference. Each provides communities with food, clothing and Bibles.

Daisie Coloma, a Spanish-speaking Filipino, directs the Atlanta Hispanic Neighborhoods Outreach Center (AHNOC), which operates out of Grant Park-Aldersgate United Methodist Church. The center works to address immediate needs of the community as well as their root causes. These programs include a food and clothing pantry, English-as-a-second-language classes and pastoral counseling. "AHNOC is successful because it is supported by other United Methodist churches in the community," said Ms. Coloma. "This ministry is a group effort."

Prayer List

We at the DCA invited delegates and visitors to share their prayer concerns with the entire General Conference. The following prayer requests were received Monday:

- Alexandra, 4, undergoing treatment;
- Bob and Karen Guerra;
- Lindsey Cobb;
- Dr. Andre Pieters, former superintendent of the United Methodist Church of Belgium and retired president of the United Protestant Church of Belgium. He is hospitalized in critical condition;
- The Rev. Nathaniel T. Grady, New York Conference, in his 10th year of imprisonment. His appeal for freedom is being considered;
- For the greater church and its education ministry through church schools, teachers, students and ecumenical community served;
- Wini Grizzle

The Coral Metodista Unida de Nueva York, a Spanish-speaking congregation in New York City, praised God with word and song on Monday morning.

Sunday Cyclers Conquer 20-Mile Ride

"Where did you go to church?" someone asked me. "To St. Cycling United Methodist Church," I responded.

I worshiped with a small "congregation" of 11. We traveled 60 miles south to Colorado Springs to cycle in the Cheyenne Canyon National Park.

As we were measured for our cycling gear, I mused: What a beautiful day for cycling! As we traveled up the mountain, on what was once used as a stagecoach path, the more my thoughts shifted to: It's going to be a cool day for cycling! As I approached our starting point, about 11,000 feet in elevation, I revised my expectations to: It's going to be a freeing day for riding!

Descending the mountain on the rugged terrain, our prayers were fervent: Oh God, please part those clouds to allow the sun to come bursting through and warm these frozen bodies of ours. Please, God, please. As we tried to keep the blood circulating in our feet and hands, we experienced breathtaking views and a spirit of community.

Despite the 30-degree temperature, with mild winds and light snow dustings, we successfully conquered the 20-mile mountain bike ride. Thanks be to God.

Joys and Concerns

Birthday greetings are extended to J.D. Phillips, Central Texas Conference clergy delegate, who has celebrated his April 26 birthday at every General Conference since 1976 (except 1980).

Wini Grizzle, Disciple Bible Study director, collapsed early Saturday as she entered the convention center. She was admitted to Denver General Hospital for observation. Doctors have ruled out neurological problems, but are continuing to run tests. So far, tests results look good. Wini appreciates the prayers of her friends and colleagues. Disciple groups everywhere will add her to their prayer list.

A STATEMENT TO THE GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

Denver, Colorado - 1996

We, the Council of Bishops of The United Methodist Church, acknowledge the serious differences that exist among United Methodists on issues related to homosexuality. These differences are also reflected within the Council of Bishops. We have been praying together and have been talking with one another in a new spirit of honesty and openness that is both painful and hopeful.

The Council understands the present language in the Book of Discipline to be a faithful expression of faith and discipleship and are committed, collectively and individually, to teach and uphold our church's doctrine and discipline.

We prayerfully support the General Conference delegates as they struggle with these issues during the current session. As General Superintendents and servants of the whole church, we affirm and respect the legislative authority of the General Conference. Together we remain open to God's continued guidance.

With the entire church, we seek to address all issues, including homosexuality, with biblical, theological, and personal integrity, and in ways that reflect God's love incarnate in Jesus Christ. As Bishops, we share in the church's pilgrimage and pray anew what we prayed at the Table: "By your Spirit make us one with Christ, one with each other, and one in ministry to all the world...."

Our life together is not based upon uniformity of mind or conscience. We are a community of grace centered in Jesus Christ who makes us one.

We call upon all United Methodists to join us in bearing witness to God's gift of unity in Jesus Christ.

Can You Top This?

The competition builds! The April 20 DCA asked for contributions to the "Can You Top This?" hall of fame, and readers continue to respond!

A FAMILY AFFAIR

We've heard of at least three sets of spouse delegates: Cheryl Phillips (lay) and J.D. Phillips (clergy) from Central Texas Conference; Inday Day (lay) and R. Randy Day (clergy) from New York Conference; and Judy A. Nutter (lay) and Randy P. Nutter (lay) from West Virginia Conference.

East Ohio Conference boasts a familial trio of delegates: Charles D. Yoost (clergy), his son Timothy R. Yoost (lay), 17, and his nephew Daniel R. Griffith (lay). (Is Tim the youngest delegate?)

West Ohio Conference has two sets of parent/child delegates: lay delegate Alfred C. "Al" Rhonemus and his clergy daughter, Sharon A. Hausman, and clergy delegate Margaret M. Mallory and her lay daughter, Gabrielle G. Mallory.

Bruno C. Schmidt, a retired elder from the Southwest Texas Conference, is a page. His granddaughter, Laura A. Merrill, is attending General Conference as a member of the National Committee on Hispanic Ministries. Ms. Merrill, a candidate for deacon's orders in the Southwest Texas Conference, says: "My grandfather is 85 years old. He graduated from Perkins School of Theology in 1935 and last summer celebrated 60 years in the ordained ministry. I am excited and proud to be sharing my first experience at General Conference with my grandpa!"

A LONG SHORT LEGACY

Bishop Roy H. Short was a ministerial delegate to the last General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in Birmingham and represented his conference for many years. Now his son, Riley P. Short continues the legacy as a clergy delegate from the Florida Conference. Bishop Short, who was elected a bishop in 1948, died in 1994. His widow, now 90 years old, attended General Conferences with Bishop Short and is present at the 1996 General Conference. "This spans over 60 years of General Conferences!" she says. The Rev. Phillip Short, Bishop Short's grandson, is visiting this conference.

FREQUENT GENERAL CONFERENCE ATTENDEE

Retired Judicial Council member Hoover Rupert has attended 15 General Conferences and two Uniting Conferences. In 1939 he sang with the Boston Seminary Singers at the union of the Methodist Episcopal Church; the Methodist Episcopal Church, South; and the Methodist Protestant Church. The group sang again the following year at General Conference. In 1944 he served on the host committee for General Conference in Kansas City, Mo. Four years later, in Boston, as national director of youth work, he wrote legislation. He missed the 1952 General Conference but returned as a delegate from Michigan and Detroit conferences (1956-68). He was elected to Judicial Council in 1968, which he served until his retirement 20 years later. In 1992 and 1996 he has attended General Conference as a consultant to the Judicial Council.

MOST DELEGATES FROM ONE CHURCH

From Fayetteville [N.Y.] United Methodist Church come five North Central New York Conference delegates: Kathleen B. Barden (lay), Elizabeth J. Burlew (lay), Stephen T. Deckard (clergy), Deborah L. Pritts (clergy) and Thomas V. Wolfe (clergy).

Snellville [Ga.] United Methodist Church has three North Georgia Conference delegates Beth L. Cook (lay), James B. Mooneyham (clergy) and Hershel S. Sheets (clergy), as well as one reserve, Mark A. Westmoreland (clergy).

Dakotas Conference delegates Peary Wilson (clergy) and Marion Muthiah (lay) are both reserve delegates from McCabe United Methodist Church, Bismarck, N.D.

Baptism Study Approved

"By Water and the Spirit," the Baptism Study document under construction for the past eight years was affirmed unanimously by the Discipleship Legislative Committee and by the General Conference body as a part of Monday morning's consent calendar. It thereby becomes the defining document on the sacrament of baptism for United Methodists.

What this action does, in effect, is to establish an interpretation of the sacrament of baptism as it appears in the United Methodist Hymnal adopted by the 1988 General Conference. The study clarifies issues of rebaptism, confirmation and church membership which have been discussed across the connection for the past two quadrenniums. During the past four years the study committee has responded to input from local churches and annual conferences in crafting the final draft approved Monday.

The Rev. Mark Trotter, California-Pacific Conference, served as chairperson of the committee and presented its report to the plenary with the assistance of the Rev. Gail Felton, Duke Divinity School faculty member and a member of the study committee.

Dr. Felton explained that the study brings together both the sacramental and evangelical traditions of the church's history for an individual's personal response to that grace in the form of his/her profession of faith and commitment to discipleship, through the ceremony of confirmation.

While baptism is to happen only once, a reaffirmation of that baptism may be done as many times as desired and using either sprinkling or immersion.

In a press conference following the plenary session, Dr. Trotter emphasized that the method by which local churches count members for the purposes of determining apportionments would not change. The rolls of professing members (currently known as "full members") will be used.

Dr. Trotter, pastor of the 3,800-member First UMC of San Diego, described the Baptism Study as one of the clearest affirmations of who we are as United Methodists. . . allowing us to recover the wholeness of our tradition, both evangelical and sacramental.

Turn Sorrow into Song—Bishop Jones

"Faith is hearing tomorrow's music. Hope is dancing to it today." These were the words of Charlotte Area Bishop L. Bevel Jones III, preaching at yesterday's worship service. "When the church loses its capacity to sing, [it] loses its power."

Responding to the challenge to sing their faith, Bishop Jones said the Hasidic tradition has three levels of response to suffering: crying, silence and turning sorrow into song.

To become the church confident, the bishop said, we need to be a singing people with vital worship. Our church needs a new epiphany, a fresh manifestation of Christ in and through the church.

Reflecting on the timidity and tentative quality of our church's life, he cited the lament of the late Flannery O'Connor who admitted that her virtues were as timid as her vices. This contrasts, he said, with Paul's counsel, "God did not give us the spirit of fear . . . but the spirit of power, love and self discipline."

As an introduction to the legislative work week, the service began with the lively and spirited Hispanic songs and rhythms of Coral Metodista Unida de Nueva York of New York. Morning liturgist was Denver Area Bishop Mary Ann Swenson, with Francisco Quibonda, Western Angola lay delegate, reading the account of Jesus' first sermon from Luke's Gospel.

Thanks, Marshals and Pages!

Seventy-one marshals and 67 pages from across The United Methodist Church quietly make the General Conference run as smoothly as possible. They are laity, diaconal ministers and ordained ministers. They are young and old. They are conference staff and local church volunteers from every jurisdiction. They come from rural and urban congregations. Five husband-wife teams serve as marshals, and five husband-wife teams serve as pages.

During these two weeks, marshals and pages walk miles, delivering messages, worship liturgies and other approved documents. They are responsible for checking credentials and seeing that only voting delegates enter the bar. They stand guard, usher and answer questions. Pages deliver mail and messages to delegates as needed, help count votes and assist in other ways. They rotate assignments so that they get to experience as much of General Conference as possible.

Laura and Mark Wharff are the co-chairs of the marshals. Laura is a support staff person for the California-Nevada Conference Center. Mark is an ordained minister serving in Modesto, Calif. This is Mark's fifth time to provide volunteer services at General Conference. They coordinate and assign services.

Marshals and pages work 15 hours every two days. They are all volunteers. They pay their own way here, including all expenses, to serve the General Conference. Your offering on Wednesday is your token of appreciation for their hard work. The offering and your thanks are the only payment they receive besides the satisfaction of a job well done.

Judicial Council Decisions

MEMORANDUM NO. 776

IN RE: Review of Bishop's Decision of Law in the Iowa Conference Concerning Validity of Request for Surrender of Credentials.

The additional documents from the Board of Ordained Ministry and Bishop Charles Wesley Jordan, which were requested in Decision 772, related to the bishop's rulings on items 20 and 21, submitted during the June 1995 Annual Conference. The rulings of the bishop are affirmed to the extent that suspension from clergy responsibilities were recommended by the executive committee of the Board of Ordained Ministry and the reference on page 412 of the Pastoral Record of the Iowa Conference Journal 1995 constitutes consent to the continuation of suspension of the clergy member until the verdict of the Trial Court is effected.

Under Par. 454.1(b), the bishop is allowed to suspend a person for a period of sixty days from all clergy responsibilities upon recommendation of the executive committee of the Board of Ordained Ministry. Or, suspension may be applied when five or more members of the Committee on Investigation under Par. 2625.3(d) recommend temporary suspension from all clergy responsibilities. (Note Decision 498)

The Constitution in Paragraph 36 of the 1992 Discipline grants to the ministerial members of the Annual Conference the right to vote "on all matters relating to the character and conference relations of its ministerial members." At no place in the Constitution is this power given to the bishop. The only submitted reference on page 412 of the Pastoral Record of the Iowa Conference Journal 1995 simply indicates that the clergy member was not appointed in 1995.

In this instance, the Judicial Council's recommendation for remedy would be to remand the case back to the executive committee of the Board of Ordained Ministry of the Iowa Conference to the point of recommendation to the bishop for the suspension process of Par. 454.1(b). Since recent data indicate that the properly requested trial was set for February 26, 1996, this issue is moot.

In Par. 2626.1(a)(3) on Trial Procedures, the process allows opportunity for correction of errors of procedure by appeal to the presiding officer of the Trial Court before the convening of the Trial Court. Otherwise, the right to appeal on such matters is forfeited. There was no information provided to the Council on any such appeal. If the February 26, 1996 trial is completed, the Council concludes that any error in procedure is moot.

The conference is commended for properly providing the clergy person under suspension from all clergy responsibilities with compensation, housing allowance, and benefits during the period prior to the trial.

Digest

The additional documents from the Board of Ordained Ministry and Bishop Charles Wesley Jordan, which were requested in Decision 772, related to the bishop's rulings on items 20 and 21, submitted during the June 1995 Annual Conference. The rulings of the bishop are affirmed to the extent that suspension from clergy responsibilities were recommended by the executive committee of the Board of Ordained Ministry and the reference on page 412 of the Pastoral Record of the Iowa Conference Journal 1995 constitutes consent to the continuation of suspension of the clergy member until the verdict of the Trial Court is effected.

DECISION NO. 777

IN RE: Review of Bishop's Decision of Law in the Alabama-West Florida Conference Concerning Leave of Absence and Grievance Procedures.

Digest

The decision of Bishop William W. Morris is reversed at some points and modified at others. The case on which it was based lacked a timely, signed grievance and a complaint specifying the chargeable offense in disciplinary terms, both of which are indispensable requirements for any such matter referred to the Joint Review Committee for possible punitive action.

Statement of Facts

The case is much too long and complex to detail fully in this decision. The essential facts are summarized.

It originated in 1989, when the resident bishop of the Alabama-West Florida Conference, C. A. Hancock, received word of the discharge from naval chaplaincy of a clergy member of that conference. The bishop sent a letter to the chair of the Board of Ordained Ministry informing him of the discharge for "conduct unbecoming an officer and fraternization," and directing the chair of the Board of Ordained Ministry to "call the Joint Review Committee to perform its duties."

The clergy member was placed on involuntary leave of absence, effective September 1, 1989, and was required to engage in counseling and career evaluation. From 1990 until 1994, the clergy member was listed in the conference journal as on leave of absence "with consent." During that period, he repeatedly requested that the leave be terminated and he be given an appointment. In 1994, he requested a church trial. The Board of Ordained Ministry filed charges with the Committee on Investigation, but the committee found that the filing did not constitute proper charges as defined by Discipline. The Board of Ordained Ministry submitted revised charges. We are informed that in July of 1995, these were also found to be inadequate by the Committee on Investigation.

The 1995 session of the Annual Conference did not extend the leave of absence, and the clergy member was appointed to a pastoral charge, effective July 1, 1995.

At the 1995 session, a seven-question request for a decision of law concerning the case was presented to the presiding bishop, William W. Morris. His decision came to the Judicial Council for review at the fall session in 1995, and was deferred to the spring of 1996 to allow time to seek additional information.

Jurisdiction

The Judicial Council has jurisdiction under Par. 2613 of the 1992 Discipline.

Analysis

In making his decision of law, Bishop Morris was disadvantaged in that the case had its origin long before he became the resident bishop. He has been most cooperative with the Judicial Council as we sought essential information and documents.

The questions and the bishop's responses are summarized briefly, with the Judicial Council's analysis of each.

1. Is the submission for the second time of a charge by the Board of Ordained Ministry a violation of Par. 2622.5 (1992)?

2. Does it violate Par. 453 (1988) when a bishop conveys an unspecified allegation and an unspecified complaint to the Board of Ordained Ministry without having followed the grievance procedures and supervisory response spelled out in that paragraph?

3. May an issue not previously specified in a grievance or complaint nor addressed by the Joint Review Committee be acted upon in a substantive way and/or presented to the Committee on Investigation without violating Fair Process?

4. Since the Administrative Review Committee found that Fair Process was not followed when the respondent was placed on involuntary leave of absence, is the respondent due compensation for the period he was without appointment?

5. Could the respondent be legally listed on voluntary leave of absence when he had made no such request and, instead, had asked to be removed from that category? Should the record be changed?

6. In view of the fact that there is no signed grievance and no valid complaint as defined in Par. 453 (1988), has the statute of limitations not expired?

7. Does the use in judicial procedure of material generated in administrative procedure violate Par. 2622.5 (1992)?

The crucial issue, on which the entire case hinges, is raised in Question 2, which refers to "an unspecified allegation in an unspecified complaint," and in Question 6, which includes a similar reference. Par. 453 (1988) defines a grievance as "a written and signed statement claiming misconduct or unsatisfactory performance of ministerial duties." It further requires that a "complaint must be based on incompetence, ineffectiveness, or any one or more of the offenses listed in Par. 2621. . . ." The complaint is dependent upon the timely filing of a grievance: "No complaint shall be considered for any misconduct or unsatisfactory performance which shall not have been committed within two years immediately preceding the filing of the grievance."

The Judicial Council repeatedly requested a copy of the signed grievance on which the complaint was based, but received none.

The Judicial Council repeatedly requested a copy of the complaint citing one or more of the offenses listed in the Discipline. We were provided only a copy of the letter from Bishop Hancock to the chair of the Board of Ordained Ministry, dated June 23, 1989, which refers to a "charge of behavior unbecoming an officer and fraternization."

"Behavior unbecoming an officer" and "fraternization" are military terms which have no precise translation into the language of the Discipline or the performance of parish ministry as a civilian pastor. There are actions inappropriate for an officer in a military setting which may be perfectly appropriate for the pastor of a local church. If the clergy member is accused of actions which are listed as offenses in the Discipline, they must be clearly and specifically spelled out. Otherwise, the respondent has nothing on which to base a response, and there is no tenable basis for reconciliation, corrective action, termination, or vindication.

Bishop Morris and others in the Alabama-West Florida Conference have been fully cooperative in our inquiry. We have no reason to doubt that, had the material we requested been available, it would have been provided. Therefore, we must conclude that a signed grievance and specific complaint which would have established a legitimate basis for action against the clergy member do not exist, and that the process was fatally flawed from the outset.

There were other lapses. Some were noted by the Administrative Review Committee in its report to the Clergy Session of the Alabama-West Florida Conference on May 28, 1995. Major deficiencies caused the Committee on Investigation to notify the Board of Ordained Ministry on May 23, 1995, that the committee was unable to proceed because of the lack of properly drawn charges.

Given the procedural errors and the absence of essential documents, we must reverse the bishop's decision at several points.

To Question 1, the bishop responded that there was no violation because the second presentation of the complaint was "an expansion of the original process," and it was offered before a judgment had been rendered.

The Judicial Council finds the question and answer moot in this case, since the original complaint failed to meet Disciplinary requirements as detailed above. The decision of the bishop is not affirmed.

To Question 2, the bishop responded that the previous bishop had stated "forthrightly and with sensitivity the process and the charge," and that there was no violation of Par. 453.

The Judicial Council finds that, as previously explained, the complaint was couched in military, not Disciplinary terms, and did not meet the requirement of Par. 453. The decision of the bishop is reversed.

To Question 3, the bishop's answer was that the issue before the Board of Ordained Ministry was the respondent's failure to complete all of the Joint Review Committee's recommendation of personal counseling, and that the Board of Ordained Ministry had "the right to make a judgment . . . based on the current knowledge it possessed."

The Judicial Council finds that this question is also made moot by the fact that the original complaint, on which the recommendation of the Joint Review Committee and the requirement of personal counseling were based, was invalid. The Board of Ordained Ministry could not recommend termination under the circumstances. The decision of the bishop is not affirmed.

On Question 4, the bishop ruled that remuneration is due "a minister in good standing unless the person is on sabbatical leave or disability leave or is on leave of absence or retired. The (respondent) was on leave of absence . . . (and) is not entitled to remuneration in that the process is still pending since no judgment has been made, and at no time did he report to his Charge Conference as required by Par. 448.2 of the 1992 Book of Discipline."

The Judicial Council finds this question the most difficult of all those raised in the case. There is irreconcilable dispute over whether leave of absence was with or without consent.

The clergy member repeatedly requested termination of leave of absence and appointment to a parish. However, there was also correspondence in which he indicated his intention to request or willingness to accept leave of absence. It is not possible for the Judicial Council to determine whether this reflected voluntary willingness or resignation to the inevitable.

It is clear, though, that in 1994 the clergy member requested removal from leave of absence in a timely manner, and that the request was considered and rejected by the Board of Ordained Ministry and by the Annual Conference. In addition to the finding of the Judicial Council that the case originated without the requisite signed grievance and specific complaint, the Administrative Review Committee determined, in a report accepted in 1995 by the Annual Conference, that Fair Process was not followed in dealing with the request. In his decision of law, Bishop Morris acknowledged that one meeting "did not meet the letter of the law."

Despite all the confusion and uncertainty, it seems clear that the clergy member is entitled to compensation, at the equitable salary level prevailing in the Alabama-West Florida Conference at that time, for the period from the adjournment of the 1994 session of the Annual Conference until July 1, 1995, when his appointment became effective. The decision of the bishop is modified.

To Question 5, the bishop responded that, in view of the circumstances, the leave of absence category in which the clergy member was listed in the conference journal was appropriate.

As the Judicial Council has admitted, it is not possible to determine to what degree leave of absence was voluntary, though it is possible to determine that there was no valid basis for involuntary leave, lacking a proper grievance and complaint. We see no basis for ordering a change in the record in the conference journal. Any errors there, as at many other points in the case, are beyond correction at this late date. We lack sufficient evidence either to affirm or reverse the decision of the bishop.

On Question 6, the bishop ruled that the statute of limitations had not expired because the original complaint was filed within the two-year period of the statute.

The Judicial Council finds that, since there was no valid grievance and complaint, the statute of limitations has expired. The decision of the bishop is reversed.

To Question 7, the bishop responded that it was a rephrasing of Question 1, on which his decision was that the action taken did not constitute double jeopardy.

This question and the bishop's ruling are also moot because of the flawed origins of the case. The bishop's decision is not affirmed. However, it should be noted that, though a clergy member may be put on involuntary leave of absence through the administrative process (Par. 448, 1988), any matter referred to the Joint Review Committee through the filing of a complaint (Par. 453, 1988) may, if not resolved, move through the judicial process. Reliance by successive bodies on records of preceding bodies does not constitute double jeopardy. (See Decisions 697 and 699.)

There are indications of other errors, omissions, and violations in the case that are either not within the scope of the decision of law or that the Judicial Council does not have the documents to pursue fully. It should be emphasized that both the administrative and the judicial processes in the Discipline are carefully and specifically designed to protect the rights of clergy and of the church. The steps set forth there must be followed carefully and explicitly or injustice results. Lack of diligence, integrity, care, or compassion in dealing with a case almost always results in irreparable harm to both individual and church. That has usually happened by the time a case of this nature gets to the Judicial Council.

Decision

The decision of the bishop is reversed at some points and modified at others. The case on which it was based lacked a timely, signed grievance and a complaint specifying the chargeable offense in Disciplinary terms, both of which are indispensable requirements for any such matter referred to the Joint Review Committee for possible punitive action.

April 22, 1996

Concurring Opinion

I agree fully with the Judicial Council Decision as written and I write only to clarify the Digest in order to prevent future misinterpretation. A timely signed grievance and a complaint specifying the chargeable offense in disciplinary terms are indispensable requirements for any and all matters referred to the Joint Review Committee regardless of whether the Committee's action is punitive, remedial or results in a dismissal.

MEMORANDUM NO. 779

IN RE: Review of Bishop's Decision of Law in the Tennessee Conference Concerning Legality of Appointment of a Clergy Member as a Staff Physician at a Hospital.

At the 1995 session of the Tennessee Annual Conference Bishop Kenneth Carder was asked to rule on the following matter:

Pursuant to Paragraph 2613 of the 1992 Book of Discipline, I request that you render an episcopal decision of law as to whether the appointment of the Rev. Amy Douglas McVey(sic) as a staff physician at Charity Hospital at the Conway Medical Center in Louisiana is in compliance with the provisions in Paragraph 443.1(D)(sic) of the Discipline, given the description of the duties as outlined in a letter submitted to the Conference Board of Ministry.

Bishop Carder made the following ruling:

The appointment of The Reverend Amy Douglas-McVay as a staff physician at the E.A. Conway Medical Center and as a member of faculty of Louisiana State University School of Medicine is not in compliance with Paragraph 443.1D(sic) of The Book of Discipline.

The Book of Discipline states: "Conference members may receive appointments beyond the ministry usually extended through the local church and other institutions listed above in (a) and (b) when considered by the bishop and the Annual Conference Board of Ordained Ministry to be true extensions of the Christian ministry of the Church. These ministries shall be initiated in missional response to the needs of persons in special circumstances and unique situations and shall reflect the commitment of the clergy to intentional fulfillment of their ordination vows to Word, Sacrament and Order."

The letter dated March 31, 1995 and submitted to the Board of Ordained Ministry by The Reverend Douglas-McVay does not reflect the commitment to intentional fulfillment of her ordination vows to Word, Sacrament and Order. Although Reverend Douglas-McVay serves Communion regularly in a local church and occasionally preaches in local congregations, there is no indication in the letter to the Cabinet and the Board of Ordained Ministry that the position to which she requested appointment includes opportunity to fulfill her ordination vows to Word, Sacrament and, Order.

In my opinion, it is possible that the position as a staff physician in a hospital which ministers predominantly to impoverished persons can comply with the provisions of Paragraph 443.1d, provided the request for such appointment specifically describes the clergy person's intent and commitment to fulfill his/her ordination vows in and through the position as a physician.

Bishop Carder's ruling is affirmed.

As constituted and described in a letter from Douglas-McVay requesting the appointment, the position did not require ordination for effective performance. Par. 443.1 states at the beginning "In order to establish clear distinction between the work to which all Christians are called and the tasks for which ordained ministers are appropriately prepared and authorized...." This wording clearly indicates that for a position to be considered an "appointment beyond the local church" in compliance with the 1992 Discipline the position itself must require tasks for which ordained ministers are appropriately prepared and authorized...." Douglas-McVay's position at E.A. Conway Medical Center as a staff radiologist did not comply with this requirement.

Subsequent to the 1995 Tennessee Annual Conference Session, the Board of Ordained Ministry received additional information and a rewritten job description for Douglas-McVay. The Board of Ordained Ministry approved the position as an appointment beyond the local church, and the bishop appointed Douglas-McVay to the position.¹

¹Matters subsequent to the 1995 session of the Tennessee Annual Conference were not before the Judicial Council for action.

DIGEST

The ruling of Bishop Kenneth Carder that the appointment of the Rev. Amy Douglas-McVay as a staff physician at Charity Hospital at the Conway Medical Center in Louisiana was not in compliance with Par. 443.1(d) of the Discipline is affirmed.

MEMORANDUM 780

IN RE: Reconsideration of Decision 754.

The request for reconsideration of Decision 754 is granted in light of the new information included with that request from Bishop Sharon A. Brown Christopher of the Minnesota Area. The information not previously provided clarified that the clergy member had no written complaint filed against him at the time he made written request to withdraw by surrender of ministerial office. The Council now determines that the ruling did apply to the case in question, and anything to the contrary in Decision 754 is reversed. The bishop's ruling in its entirety is affirmed.

The letter signed by the clergy member clearly states his intention to surrender the ministerial office under Par. 452 of the 1988 Discipline. The ruling in this situation originated from a request for a decision of law during the June 1995 Annual Conference which stated:

May an Annual Conference be prevented from voting on a motion to grant voluntary leave of absence to a person who had surrendered credentials when the 1988 Discipline was in effect and in response to a grievance alleging an occurrence of misconduct more than two years prior to the filing of the grievance?

The bishop's ruling and the additional information clarified that the question of law related to a specific situation. The ruling properly focused on the conference membership status of the clergy person. The clergy member made a written request to surrender the ministerial office as a member in good standing. The bishop stated the following regarding the June 26, 1995 ruling:

...I ruled that a motion to grant voluntary leave of absence by the Executive Session was not in order. Par. 457 stating the procedure for readmission after surrender of the ministerial office is applicable in this situation and remedy is available to the pastor.

From the data it is concluded that the clergy person had previously surrendered the ministerial office. Therefore, the clergy person could not be considered at the June 1995 session for voluntary leave of absence without readmission to conference membership under Par. 457 dealing with readmission after surrender of the ministerial office.

DIGEST

In regard to Par. 457, Bishop Sharon A. Brown Christopher ruled correctly. The Disciplinary process for readmission under Par. 457 cannot be waived. A motion or action in the clergy session which has the effect of circumventing this process in Par. 457 is improper and out of order. The bishop's decision of law is affirmed, and anything to the contrary in Decision 754 is reversed.

How Do They Do That?

How does the DCA land on delegates' desks? How are all those petitions, news, features, legislative committee reports, calendar items and proceedings processed?

Advance Editions

The marathon began with petition secretary Odell Thompson of Beloit, Wis. She received more than 8,000 requests for General Conference action by agencies, local churches, groups and individuals. Because many proposals were similar in intent, she combined them into some 3,000 petitions, and assigned petition numbers to each. These numbers included assignments to legislative committees based on Disciplinary paragraphs or topics. Ms. Thompson then forwarded the petitions to Joan Shoup of The United Methodist Publishing House in Nashville, Tenn. She entered each petition into the Petition Electronic Tracking System (PETS) and also prepared them for the pages of the DCA.

A schedule was established wherein annual conferences sent in material by August 1995 and each general agency submitted legislation two weeks after its fall meeting. The reports and proposals of general agencies, annual conferences and study groups that met these early deadlines were printed in Volume I of the Advance Edition of the DCA. Those that came after that time were included in Advance Volume II along with proposals from local churches, groups and individuals. The second 300-page volume was placed on the delegates' desks on the opening day of conference.

Daily Editions

Daily editions are the result of sweat and prayer. A staff of writers and editors, under the direction of Barbara Dunlap-Berg, writes or commissions all news and feature articles. Roger Burgess writes news on plenary sessions, and Brad Motta writes lively features and serves as the editor of the 16-page Round-up Edition.

Associate editor Sheila McGee and Keith Pohl coordinate a team of 20 legislative committee reporters who provide summaries of committee decisions. Most of these reporters are conference editors who volunteer their time during the busy first week.

Once the news, features and legislative committee reports are completed, Richard Street tackles page layout and design. He frequently is found staring into a computer well after midnight while the editorial team worries about making a 1 a.m. deadline.

Proceedings

A three-person team, under the direction of George Dunn, breaks audio tapes of the proceedings into 15-minute segments. That staff is aided by two spotters on the floor who help identify speakers, provide spelling assistance and help transcribers with troubling theological terminology and acronyms.

Angela Butler and her team of six listen to the proceedings and input all plenary speeches, while Marvin Cropsey, aided by six copy editors, edits proceedings, news and features. This copy is finally given to Gayl Hinton to be formatted for the DCA.

Calendar Items

Calendar items are entered into PETS by 20 recorders, under the direction of Mary Ann Haney. Training for these volunteers was provided by John Brawn, chief designer of PETS, and Glenn Hinton. The recorders and the elected secretaries are also blessed with 10 volunteer assistant secretaries. The petitions are then processed by Fitzgerald Reist and John Brawn and sent to Mike Cunningham who prepares them for the DCA.

Printing, Delivery and Sales

Around 1 a.m. Billy Murphy rushes off to Publication Printers on Platte River Drive. That crew works all night and delivers some 3,000 copies to the conference center, where Cedric Foley distributes them to delegates. A sales staff, under the direction of Juanita Freudenthal, provides guests, press and others with daily editions along with answers to numerous questions. The sales staff also makes sure that subscribers receive editions by mail and that all delegates receive the final editions after departure.

While delegates are en route to the Denver airport, the DCA staff assembles once again on Saturday to input proceedings from Friday night and to produce the 16-page Round-up Edition. The last person to finish her work is index editor Thelma Boeder. The rest of the staff is frequently playing balloon volleyball over the curtains by the time she is finishing her work.

Take a look at the mast and offer all these folks a word of thanks. Most of them are volunteers who work 18-hour days—the two longest weeks of their lives.

—J. Richard Peck

Keeping Up with General Conference

Ballroom One is a busy stop on the information highway during these two weeks in Denver.

From conventional print to home pages in cyberspace and the Episcopal Address on television satellite receivers, news of United Methodism is traveling across the nation and around the globe. And in Spanish, Korean, German and other languages in addition to English.

Early reports show that people in "pew land" are reading and listening. In one day on one service during the first week more than 4,000 "hits" were recorded, according to Susan Peek, director of on-line services. A "hit" is one access to the information.

Telephone calls to InfoServ had more than doubled, and by the beginning of the second week almost 2,000 had been logged on the voice mail service. Extra lines had been installed to handle the expected increase in traffic, says Woodley McEachern, director of operations in Denver.

General Conference personalities are placed on local and network radio and television programs under the direction of Shirley Whipple Struchen, Alan Griggs and Abby Brown. Feeds to radio stations are prepared regularly by Bill Richards and Bill Wolfe. Material can be tailored especially for a specific station or request.

At the heart of the information effort produced by United Methodist Communications is the United Methodist News Service team headed by Thomas McAnally. The team provides the basic news releases that are distributed in the many forms.

More than 150 journalists, church-related and secular, find the news releases and other information awaiting them in specially marked trays. Releases are issued throughout the day as breaking news requires.

Mike DuBose and John Goodwin roam the vast reaches of the convention center seeking out newsworthy photos. By the end of the first week they had a stock of 75 pictures ready for use by annual conference editors and other communicators, distilled from the eight to 10 rolls of film shot daily.

Through modern electronics both black and white and color photos can be supplied on discs or via electronic mail in the United States and abroad.

The 30 computers linked for use by the communications staff also are tied into another 200 computers in the convention center and at home base in Nashville, Tenn. Among other things, this network will give up-to-the-minute status reports on any particular petition. A technical support team headed by Zion Huang keeps the equipment on line.

Most visible to the delegates is the work of a crew headed by Steve Downey that operates the cameras for the big-screen projections in the plenary hall and on monitors scattered around the convention center.

The television team will produce a live satellite feed of the visit by First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton. The Episcopal Address was carried on the Faith and Values Network, and an Ohio pastor reported he was rigging wires at 3 a.m. to a satellite receive to bring in the address.

Deborah Jarrett and Ruby Cloyd head a support services team that includes hard-working volunteers supplied by the Denver Area.

Other early comments show great appreciation for the UCom effort under the general supervision of Wil Bane, head of the agency's public media division.

"I visited the (web) site yesterday and was quite impressed," one pastor said via electronic mail. "The links are easy to follow and the information is really quite extensive.

A Florida pastor called the communications effort "a great way to keep up with General Conference."

Thanks to You!

Delegates and friends of this General Conference responded generously to two offerings received at earlier sessions. The offering received during the opening Holy Communion and memorial service totaled $9,384. Those gifts are designated to support the work of the United Methodist Committee on Relief (UMCOR) in its worldwide efforts to respond to relief needs, disasters, hunger and refugee ministries.

A second offering received Saturday totaled $3,579 and is dedicated to the Native American Awareness Sunday. Half of the offering goes to annual conferences to develop and strengthen work among Native American people within their boundaries. The balance provides scholarship assistance for Native Americans attending United Methodist schools of theology and to expand the work of the Native American Urban Initiative.

GCFA General Secretary Sandra Kelley Lackore expressed gratitude and appreciation: "Your response is indicative of the response to God's call . . . deeply embedded in our life as Christ's people." You can still contribute to the Native American Awareness Sunday offering by handing your gift to any GCFA staff member.

Legislative Committee Reports

Church and Society — (4/20/96, midnight)

The committee recommended concurrence:

- Eliminate the words "although we do not condone the practice of homosexuality and consider this practice incompatible with Christian teaching..." from Social Principles Para. 71F. The committee approved (46-45-1) a petition deleting the last two sentences of Para. 71F and replacing them with new text that acknowledges differences within the UMC. It indicates a continued search for understanding through "prayer, study and pastoral experience." (A minority report has been filed.);
- Affirm the right of persons with mental disabilities to freedom from abusive treatment;
- Urge congregations to designate on Sunday during the year for observance of a Health Care Sabbath;
- Call congregations, annual conferences, jurisdictions and boards to join the UM Mental Illness Network;
- Comment to churches and families the Household EcoTeam Program "to help save the earth";
- Support "all movement toward the provision of quality health care" and "progressive methods of providing health insurance";
- Revise and update the current resolution on "Drug and Alcohol Concerns," as well as four other resolutions dealing with the issues;
- Add under "Causes of Suicide" the alienation and rejection youth experience when dealing with sexual identity issues;
- Describe "God's Vision of Abundant Living" and call UMs to examine their current actions and lifestyles;
- Update the present resolution on "The Law of the Sea";
- Encourage the inclusion of Environmental Tobacco Smoke Prevention in the Clean Air Act and other legislation;
- Amend the second paragraph of Social Principles Para. 71F to highlight the destructive nature of exploitative abusive or promiscuous sexual relations;
- Affirm the right of persons with homosexual orientation to serve in the military;
- Move Social Principles Para. 71G on "Rights of Homosexual persons" to Para. 72 and to also assure rights for former homosexuals;

(4/22/96, 5:30 p.m.)

- Affirming overwhelmingly paragraph 71H on abortion with an amendment committing "our church to continue to provide nurturing ministries to those who terminate a pregnancy, to those in the midst of a crisis pregnancy, and to those who give birth";

- Amending the resolution on "Responsible Parenthood" by inserting a reference to Discipline Para. 71H.

—Shanta M. Bryant and Lee Ranck

Conferences — (4/20/96, 10:00 p.m.)

The committee recommended concurrence:

- Wording that ensures understanding that Discipline requirements supersede annual conference's requirements;
- Voting rights for deaconesses;
- Voting privileges of lay members on the board of ordained ministry;
- Concerning expired resolutions in the Book of Resolutions;
- Dealing with the Interjurisdictional Committee on Episcopacy, moving bishops from one jurisdiction to another;
- Clarifying sentence structure of a paragraph on the jurisdictional conference;
- Changing "persons with a handicapping condition" to "people with disabilities";
- Concerning establishment and administration of a mission;
- Concerning assignment of missionaries and mission traveling preachers in the Missionary Conference;
- Concerning organization of a Missionary Conference;
- Asking that publisher of each new Book of Discipline prepare a table to show how paragraphs/changes are different from the previous issue;
- Asking that conference boards and agencies be intentional in their nominations for committees;
- Dealing with conference power to locate a clergy member;
- Changing a word from "trial" to "probation";
- Recommending that UMC join in covenanting relations with the Evangelical Church of Spain and of West Africa/Sierra Leone;
- Supporting Missionary Conference district superintendents having the same limitations on years of service as other district superintendents;
- Resolution supporting the Rio Grande Conference;

- Switching the order of Parts III and IV in the Book of Discipline (20232, Petition, p. 203)
- Adding UM Communications to list for records and archives;
- Seeking to identify Black clergy and laity for leadership positions.

The committee recommended concurrence with amendments.

- Expanding non-ordained clergymembers' voting rights at annual conference;
- Defining the election and eligibility of clergy delegates to General and Jurisdictional conferences;
- Giving lay members of the board of ordained ministry vote at the clergy session;
- Making changes possible in the district council on ministries and providing for an alternate structure;
- Formulating the number of bishops assigned to each jurisdiction.

The committee referred:

General Conference structure petitions to the Connectional Issues Study of the General Conference on Ministries.

The committee recommended nonconcurrence (on close votes):

—Carolyn Simms and Ken Horne

Financial Administration — (4/22/96)

The committee recommended concurrence:

- Adopting a $503 Million dollar budget for the quadrennia, as amended. Adjusted upward from the figures on page 285 of the Advanced DCA were Ministerial Education Fund and Black College Fund. Adjusted downward were all the other apportioned funds except Africa University, which showed no increase or decrease over the previous quadrennium. The bottom line is a zero percent increase for 1997, 1998, and a two percent increase for 1999 and 2000;
- Authorized creation of a personal investment plan that works like mutual funds for personal contributions of clergy and staff;
- Authorizing annual conferences whereby they may establish policies and procedures whereby allocations may be adjusted between sessions of annual conference;

- Authorizing the annual conference council on finance and administration to review audited reports of all funds administered by districts and district agencies;

The committee recommended nonconcurrence:

- Separating world service from conference benevolences in conference budgeting;
- Allowing charge conferences to approve paying apportionments.

Ordained and Diaconal Ministry — (4/22/96)

- Adopted in ¶304.3 the following language defining "self-avowed practicing homosexual:" "Self-avowed practicing homosexual" is understood to mean that a person openly acknowledges to a bishop, district superintendent, district committee or ordained ministry, board of ordained ministry or clergy session that the person is a practicing homosexual." This definition resulted from consultations between General Counsel of GCFA, the Council of Bishops, and the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry and was presented in Petition #21158 amending paragraph 402.2. They also recommend non-concurrence with all petitions suggesting alterations in the language of paragraph 402 and 304 related to self-avowed practicing homosexuals and language specifying fidelity in marriage and celibacy in singleness. In all cases the current language in the Discipline was retained, with the exception of the addition of the above-mentioned definition.

- The committee approved legislation defining interim appointments and specifying a national registry of certified interim pastors.
- The committee approved a new grievance procedure to replace the current joint review process in the Discipline and concurred with the resolution titled "Sexual Abuse Within the Ministerial Relationship and Sexual Harassment Within the United Methodist Church" submitted by GCSRW.
- The committee referred the ordination services to the General Board of Discipleship and the Ordinal Committee in consultation with GBHEM and the Council of Bishops.
- The committee recommended non-concurrence with petitions requesting that only active bishops be members of the Council of Bishops.

Consent Calendar Explanation

There are three consent calendars: A) concurrence with proposed changes to the Discipline. B) concurrence with petitions on non-Disciplinary matters. C) non-concurrence on Disciplinary and non-Disciplinary items. The first day items will be listed as 01. The second day will be listed 02, and so forth. Items can be placed on the consent calendar if: 1) no more than five votes were cast against the prevailing position; 2) it has no financial implications; 3) the proposal does not require a constitutional amendment. Any five delegates may have a consent calendar item removed by signing the appropriate form found in Room 204. This form must be returned to the secretary by 3 p.m. on the day it appears in the DCA.

(Additions by the Legislative Committee are underlined)

Add a new sub-paragraph to ¶71 and be renumbered 71. H and that all appropriate paragraphs be appropriately relettered:

Sexual harassment.—We believe human sexuality is Gods good gift. One abuse of the good gift is sexual harassment. We define sexual harassment ~~is~~ as any unwanted sexual advance or demand, either verbal or physical, which is reasonably perceived by the recipient as demeaning, intimidating or coercive. Sexual harassment must be understood as an exploitation of a power relationship rather than as an exclusively sexual issue. Sexual harassment also includes, but is not limited to, the creation of a hostile or abusive working environment resulting from discrimination on the basis of gender.

Contrary to the nurturing community. Sexual harassment creates improper, coercive, and abusive conditions wherever it occurs in society. Sexual harassment undermines the social goal of equal opportunity and the climate of mutual respect between men and women. Unwanted sexual attention is wrong and discriminatory. Sexual harassment interferes with the moral mission of the church.

We call for the Church to provide nurturing ministries to those persons who terminate a pregnancy. We encourage the Church to provide nurturing ministries to those who give birth.

With

We commit our Church to continue to provide nurturing ministries to those who terminate a pregnancy, to those in the midst of a crisis pregnancy, and to those who give birth.

So that 71 H read:

H)Abortion. — The beginning of life and the ending of life are the God-given boundaries of human existence. While individuals have always had some degree of control over when they would die, they now have the awesome power to determine when and even whether new individuals will be born. Our belief in the sanctity of unborn human life makes us reluctant to approve abortion. But we are equally bound to respect the sacredness of the life and well-being of the mother, for whom devastating damage may result from an unacceptable pregnancy. In continuity with past Christian teaching, we recognize tragic conflicts of life with life that may justify abortion, and in such cases support the legal option of abortion under proper medical procedures. We cannot affirm abortion as an acceptable means of birth control, and we unconditionally reject it as a means of gender selection. We call all Christians to a searching and prayerful inquiry into the sorts of conditions that may warrant abortion. ~~We call for the Church to provide nurturing ministries to those persons who terminate a pregnancy. We encourage the Church to provide nurturing ministries to those who give birth. We commit our Church to continue to provide nurturing ministries to those who terminate a pregnancy, to those in the midst of a crisis pregnancy, and to those who give birth.~~ Governmental laws and regulations do not provide all the guidance required by the informed Christian conscience. Therefore, a decision concerning abortion should be made only after thoughtful and prayerful consideration by the parties involved, with medical, pastoral, and other appropriate counsel.

Amend ¶ 805:

Amend Paragraph 805 as follows:

¶ 805. General Agency Membership. All provisions pertaining to the nomination and election of general agency members shall take effect immediately upon the adjournment of the General Conference which enacts them. The secretary of the General Conference shall coordinate the processes pertaining to nominations and elections of general agency members.

The people of God are called to faithful discipleship in the name of Jesus Christ. "The gifts he gave were that some would be apostles, some prophets, some evangelists, some pastors and teachers, to equip the saints for the work of ministry, for building up the body of Christ..." (Ephesians 4.11-12 NRSV)

In response to God's call, some are called forth from local congregations to fulfill the common mission of The United Methodist Church as an expression of the Church made visible in the world. This call includes the invitation to some to be in ministry with others who together seek to fulfill the vision for the Church as members of general agencies. Such persons come to this ministry as servants of the whole church.

The following provisions shall govern the nomination and election of the voting membership of those general agencies to which the Jurisdictional Conferences elect and Central Conferences nominate members.⁶ All provisions pertaining to the nomination and election of general agency members shall take effect immediately upon the adjournment of the General Conference which enacts them. The secretary of the General Conference shall coordinate the processes pertaining to nominations and elections of general agency members.

1. Nominations by Conferences. a) Each Annual and Missionary Conference in the United States and Puerto Rico, upon recommendation from a committee composed of the bishop and the General and Jurisdictional Conference delegation, and having allowed opportunity for nominations from the floor, shall elect persons to be submitted to a jurisdictional pool. From which the Jurisdictional Nominating Committee shall select persons for election to the following general agencies: General Council on Ministries; General Board of Church and Society; General Board of Discipleship; General Board of Global Ministries; General Board of Higher Education and Ministry; General Board of Pension and Health Benefits; General Board of Publication; General Commission on Christian Unity and Inter-religious Concerns; General Commission on Communication; General Commission on Religion and Race; and General Commission on the Status and Role of Women. Jurisdictional Conferences may decide that persons elected by the Annual and Missionary Conferences in the United States and Puerto Rico for inclusion in the jurisdictional pool shall not serve as members of the Jurisdictional Nominating Committee.

b) Each Annual and Missionary Conference in the United States and Puerto Rico shall nominate the persons most recently elected as delegates to the General Conference to the jurisdictional pool. In addition, it shall nominate at least fifteen and not more than forty-five (45) persons to the jurisdictional pool, including, where available, at least two (2) racial and ethnic persons from each of the ethnic groups Asian American, African American, Hispanic American, Native American, Pacific Islanders; and where available at least one and not more than five persons in each of the following eight seven categories: (1) clergy (including at least one woman), (2) laywomen, (3) laymen, (4) racial and ethnic persons (at least one from each ethnic group Asian American, Black American, Hispanic American, Native American, Pacific Islanders), (5) (4) youth (¶ 264.2), (6) (5) young adults (¶ 264.3), (7) (6) older adults (¶ 264.5), and (8) (7) persons with a handicapping condition disabilities. Eligibility to be nominated in one category does not preclude being nominated in another category as long as the nominee is nominated only once.

c) Each Central Conference, or a body authorized by it, shall nominate to each general program board membership at least one person from each of the following three categories: (1) clergy, (2) laymen, and (3) laywomen, to form a pool from which each board is to elect the additional members that are to come from the Central Conferences pursuant to ¶ 805.2c(4) 805.3c. These lists shall be sent to the General Council on Ministries for use by the general agencies in electing additional members.

d) All nominees shall list one to three preferences for agency membership. In addition all nominees shall prepare an up-to-100-word biographical statement listing experience, gifts, and training, and other qualifications which qualify him/her for general agency membership. Biographical statements for all persons in the central and jurisdictional conference pools shall be given to each member of the nominating committee. Names and biographical data of all persons nominated by the Annual and Missionary Conferences in the United States, Puerto Rico or the central conferences but not elected by the jurisdiction shall be forwarded by the Jurisdictional or Central Conference secretary to the General Council on Ministries agencies to be used by the general agencies as in a pool from which additional members may be elected (¶ 805.3e, 4b 805.2e, 3b).

2. Members of the General Agencies shall be elected using the following formula:

a) Five persons from each annual and missionary conference in the United States. At least thirty (30) of these persons will be women elected by the Womens Division process as members on the General Board of Global Ministries.

b) Five persons from each Central Conference.

c) Supplemental members Each annual and missionary conference whose membership exceeds 75,000 (as determined by the official records of the denomination on December 31 of the year immediately preceding the General Conference), shall have the following supplemental members of General Agencies:

75,001-150,000 supplemental member

150,001 - 225,000 a total of two supplemental members

225,001 or more a total of three supplemental members

d) Seven persons from the Iglesia Metodista Autónoma Afiliada de Puerto Rico.

e) A total of 119 additional at-large members for inclusiveness and expertise.

f) 51 effective episcopal leaders.

g) The total membership of all general agencies shall not exceed 640.

h) It is recommended that the membership of general agencies include both youth (¶ 264.2) and young adults (¶ 264.3). It is recommended that, wherever possible, at least 10 percent of the membership of each general agency be equally divided between youth and young adults.

I) It is recommended that the membership of each of the general agencies seeks to be inclusive based on gender, race/ethnic, age, ability and size of church. In order to ensure adequate representation of racial/ethnic persons (Asian American, African Americans, Hispanic Americans, Native Americans, Pacific Islanders), it is recommended that a jurisdiction's membership on each general agency be at least 30 percent racial/ethnic persons, and incorporate one-third clergy, one-third laymen, and one-third laywomen (except as provided in ¶1204, ¶1412). The episcopal members shall not be counted in the computation of the clergy membership.

j) It is recommended that each general agency elect at least one member without vote from among the member churches of the Consultation on Church Union in addition to members otherwise specified in ¶ 805.2 (a-h) above.

3. Members identified in 805.2a-f will be elected as follows:

a) categories a and c (as applicable) shall be elected by the jurisdictional and central conferences, except for the members elected by the Womens Division process.

b) category b and c (as applicable) shall be elected by the central conferences;

c) category d shall be elected by the Iglesia Metodista Autónoma Afiliada de Puerto Rico and

d) category e shall be elected by the general agencies for inclusiveness and expertise.

e) The secretary of the General Conference shall assign the number of members to be elected to each general agency by each Jurisdictional Conference and the Central Conferences. The number of members will be determined on an equitable basis taking into consideration the total number to be elected by each jurisdiction and Central Conference.

2.4 General Program Board Membership.a) Each general program board shall have the number of members specified in ¶¶ 1106, 1204, 1412 and 1507.

b) Basic Jurisdictional Membership.Each jurisdiction shall elect the number of persons listed in the specific legislation for membership on each of the four General Program Boards. ~~one person from each of its Annual and Missionary Conferences to each program board.~~

In the jurisdictional nominating process for membership on those boards, special attention shall be given to the inclusion of clergywomen, youth (¶ 264.2), young adults (¶ 264.3), older adults (¶ 264.5), persons with ~~disabilities handicapping~~ conditions, and persons from small membership churches.

In order to ensure adequate representation of racial and ethnic persons (Asian Americans, African Americans, Hispanic Americans, Native Americans, Pacific Islanders), it is recommended that at least 30 percent of a jurisdiction's membership on each general program board be racial and ethnic persons.

It is further recommended that the jurisdictional membership on each program board incorporate one-third clergy, one-third laymen, and one-third laywomen (except as provided in ¶¶ 1204.1, 1412.2. See also ¶¶ 1412.6, 1507.). The episcopal members shall not be counted in the computation of the clergy membership.⁸

~~Provided, however, that effective immediately when a new Annual Conference or~~

~~conferences are created by a Jurisdictional Conference and come into being following the Jurisdictional Conference, each such new Annual Conference or conferences shall~~

~~be authorized to elect one person directly to General Council on Ministries and each general program board on which no person from the new Annual Conference already has been elected by the Jurisdictional Conference under the provisions of this paragraph.⁹~~

c) Central Conference Membership In addition, E each general program board shall elect at least four (4) ~~six~~ persons from the Central Conferences, and one alternate for each who may attend if the elected member cannot attend. In the election of the Central Conference members, it is recommended that at least one ~~two~~ be clergy, ~~two~~ be one layman, laymen, and one laywoman be elected, ~~two~~ be laywomen as specified in general agency paragraphs.

~~This action shall take effect immediately after the conclusion of General Conference.~~

b d) Episcopal Membership.The episcopal membership of the general program boards shall be of not less than five six (6) nor more than ~~ten~~ eight (8) members shall be nominated by the Council of Bishops and elected by the General Conference (see exception, ¶ 1412.6). At least one of the episcopal members of each general program board shall be a Central Conference bishop.

e e) Additional Membership.(1) ~~United Methodist~~ Additional members shall be elected by each general program board in order to bring into the board persons with special knowledge or background which will aid in the work of the agency, to consider differing theological perspectives, and to perfect the representation of racial and ethnic persons, youth (¶ 264.2), young adults (¶ 264.3), older adults (¶ 264.5), women and men, persons with a ~~disabilities handicapping condition~~, and persons from small-membership churches, and distribution by geographic area.

~~There shall be not less than five nor more than nine~~ Each general program board shall elect additional members as specified in general program board membership paragraphs of each general program board. In so far as possible no more than one person shall be elected from each episcopal area. It is recommended that such additional membership shall maintain the one-third laymen, one-third laywomen, and one-third clergy balance.¹⁰

3.5. Other General Agencies.a) Each Jurisdictional Conference shall elect members from the jurisdictional pool nominated by the Annual and Missionary Conferences in the United States and Puerto Rico (¶ 805.1) in accordance with the specific membership provisions of those agencies as set forth in the Book of Discipline:

General Council on Ministries (¶ 1007), General Board of Pension and Health Benefits (¶ 1602.1a), General Board of Publication (¶ 1702), General Commission on Christian Unity and Interreligious Concerns (¶ 2006), General Commission on Communication (¶ 1907), General Commission on the Status and Role of Women (¶ 2204), and the General Commission on Religion and Race (¶ 2103)

b) Episcopal and additional members, if any, of the general agencies listed in ¶ 805.2 4a shall be nominated and elected by the procedures specified in the paragraphs listed in ¶ 805.2a 1b, 805.1d. The agencies shall consider names forwarded to them by the jurisdictions General Council on Ministries as having been nominated by the Annual and Missionary Conferences in the United States and Puerto Rico or the Central Conferences but not elected by the Jurisdictional these Conferences to general agency membership. Additional names may be considered in order to perfect the representation as provided in ¶ 805.2e 3b.

~~4. The membership of all agencies of The United Methodist Church, at the level of General and Jurisdictional Conferences shall ensure adequate representation of racial and ethnic groups Asian American, Black American, Hispanic American, Native American, and Pacific Islanders; all such boards, committees, and agencies whose membership is set forth in the Discipline shall be authorized to elect as many additional members as necessary to meet this requirement.~~

¶ 109 ~~1~~-Connectionalism in the United Methodist tradition is multilevelled, global in spread, and local in thrust.

2-For us connectionalism is not merely a linking of one connectional charge conference to another horizontally across the globe. It is rather a vital web of interactive and intertwining relationships that enable us to express freely, justly, and in dignity at both global and local levels our essential identity, inclusive fellowship, common mission, distinctive ethos, and visible unity.

3-We are connected by sharing a common tradition of faith, including our Doctrinal Standards and General Rules (¶ 67); by sharing together a constitutional polity, including a leadership of general superintendency; by sharing a common mission which we seek to carry out together both globally and locally; by working together organizationally in and through conferences that reflect the inclusive and missional character of our fellowship; by sharing a common ethos which characterizes our distinctive way of doing things.

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

Renumber existing ¶ 108 as ¶ 115 and amend:

Within the people of God, there are those called to the ~~representative ministry~~ ~~ordained and diaconal~~ servant leadership, lay and ordained. Such callings are evidenced by special gifts, evidence of Gods grace, and promise of usefulness. Gods call to ~~representative ministry~~ servant leadership is inward as it comes to the individual and outward through the judgment discernment and validation of the Church. ~~When inner and outer call agree and are affirmed by the local congregation, persons may be commissioned as Lay Ministry Stewards. The call of candidates for ordination shall be further affirmed through recommendation by the District Committee on Ordained Ministry and election by~~ an the Annual Conference, the candidate may then be ordained or consecrated, according to such election through symbolic acts which confer special roles of responsibility.

The privilege of servant leadership in the Church is the call to share in the preparation of congregations and the whole church for the mission of God in the world. The obligation of servant leadership is the forming of Christian disciples in the covenant community of the congregation. This involves discerning and nurturing the spiritual relationship with God that is the privilege of all servant ministers. It also involves instructing and guiding Christian disciples in their witness to Jesus Christ in the world through acts of worship, devotion, compassion, and justice, under the guidance of the Holy Spirit. John Wesley described this as watching over one another in love.

Change title of petition to—Our Relationship with God: Privilege

Add a new ¶ 113:

Our relationship with God. Christians experience growth and transition in their spiritual life just as in their physical and emotional lives. While this growth is always a work of grace, it does not occur uniformly. Spiritual growth in Christ is a dynamic process marked by awakening, birth, growth, and maturation. This process requires careful and intentional nurture for the disciple to reach perfection in the Christian Life. There are stages of spiritual growth and transition: Christian beginnings; Christian birth; Christian growth; and Christian maturity. These require careful and intentional nurture for the disciple to come to maturity in the Christian life and to engage fully in the ministry of all Christians.

The United Methodist Church has traditionally recognized these gifts and callings in the ordained offices of elder and deacon. The United Methodist tradition has recognized that lay persons as well as ordained persons are gifted and called by God to lead the church. The servant leadership of these lay persons is essential to the mission and ministry of congregations. The servant leadership of these persons is essential to the mission and ministry of congregations. They help to form Christian disciples in covenant community within the local congregation through spiritual formation and guidance for Christian living in the world.

editorial note: 10c should refer to 323.109 committee changes in plain type.

Add a new ¶ 323:

Appointment of Deacons in Full Connection to Various Ministries.1. Deacons in full connection may be appointed to serve as their primary field of service:

a) Through agencies and settings beyond the local church which extends the witness and service of Christ's love and justice in the world through equipping the ministry of all Christians to fulfill their own calls to Christian service; or

b) Through United Methodist Church-related agencies, schools, colleges, theological schools, ecumenical agencies; or

c) Within a local congregation, charge, or cooperative parish.

2. When deacons in full connection serve in an agency or setting beyond the local church, the bishop, after consultation with the deacon and the pastor in charge, shall appoint the deacon to a local congregation where they will take missional responsibility for leading other Christians into ministries of service. In this ministry the deacons shall be accountable to the pastor in charge, the charge conference, and other bodies that coordinate the ministry of the local church. In those instances where the appointment is in another Episcopal Area, the appointment to a local church shall be made in consultation with the Bishop of that Area..

3. This appointment shall be in a setting which allows one to fulfill the call to specialized ministry and where supervision is provided with goals, evaluation, and accountability acceptable to the bishop, cabinet, and the Board of Ordained Ministry.

4. The appointment of deacons in full connection shall be made by the bishop.

a) It may be initiated by the individual deacon in full connection, the agency seeking their service, bishop, or district superintendent.

b) Clarified by a written statement of intentionality of servant leadership in order to establish a clear distinction between the work to which all Christians are called and the work for which deacons in full connection are appropriately prepared and authorized.

c) If the bishop and cabinet consider an appointment not to be in the best interest of the church, the bishop may choose not to make the appointment. In such event, the bishop shall be in consultation with the deacon and the Board of Ordained Ministry. The deacon in full connection shall then seek another appointment, request a leave of absence, relinquish their credentials, or be terminated by disciplinary procedures.

d) Deacons in full connection at their request or with their consent may be appointed to a non-salaried position. Such missional appointments will serve to express the church's concern for social holiness, ministry among the poor, and for advancing emerging needs of the future. In such cases, the bishop will carefully review plans for expressing this appointed ministry and will consult with the deacon about the well being and financial security of family.

5. At the request of the deacon in full connection and with the consent of the bishop and cabinet, the deacon may receive a less than full-time appointment under the following conditions:

a) The deacon in full connection shall present a written request to the bishop and the conference Board of Ordained Ministry giving rationale for the request at least ninety (90) days prior to the Annual Conference at which the appointment is to be made.

b) Reappointment to less than full-time service shall be requested of the bishop by the deacon in full connection annually.

c) The bishop may make an interim appointment of less than full-time service upon request of a deacon in full connection with the recommendation of the executive committee of the conference Board of Ordained Ministry.

6. Deacons from other Annual Conferences and Christian denominations may receive an appointment in the Annual Conference in the following manner:

a) Deacons in full connection from other Annual Conferences and other Methodist churches: With approval and consent of the bishops or other judicatory authorities involved, deacons in full connection from other Annual Conferences or other Methodist churches may receive appointments in the Annual Conference while retaining their home conference membership or denominational affiliation. Appointments are to be made by the bishop of the conference in which the deacon in full connection is to serve. Upon the recommendation of the Board of Ordained Ministry, clergy in such appointments may be granted voice but not vote in the Annual Conference to which they are appointed. Their membership on conference boards and agencies is restricted to the conference of which they are a member. Such appointments are renewable annually.

7. Deacons may receive an appointment to another denomination in the following manner:

a) Deacons in full connection with the approval of their bishop and the judicatory authorities of the other denomination may receive an appointment to another denomination while retaining their home conference membership. The appointment may be made in response to exceptional missional needs.

8. Deacons in full connection who are deacons in full connection serving outside the bounds of their annual conference will receive an appointment to a local congregation in the area in which their primary appointment is located. This arrangement will be made in consultation between the two bishops. The deacons will be under the supervision of an appropriate district superintendent who will provide a written report to the deacons bishop.

9. Special provisions will be made for deacons whose primary appointment does not have accountability structures but whose charge conference will supply this need.

10. Support for Deacons under appointment of a bishop.

a) Deacons shall receive their support under the policies and agreements of the setting of their primary field of service.

b) When the deacons primary field of service is within a local congregation, charge, or cooperative parish, the deacon shall receive a salary from the local church, charge, or cooperative parish (§ 722.2) not less than the minimum established by the equitable compensation policy of the annual conference for full time and part time pastors, ~~with the right to participate in the United Methodist pension and benefit funds, health care insurance under the programs and standards established by the Annual Conference~~ and shall have the right to participate in the denominational pension and benefit plans, programs, and funds subject to the limitations imposed by local law and the right to participate in the health benefit and supplemental programs of his/her Annual Conference subject to the provisions and standards of those programs as established by the Annual Conference.

c. The above (§ 323.8a, b) does not apply to a deacon appointed by a bishop to a non-salaried position (§ 323.4d)

Add a new ¶ 114:

Our relationship with Christ in the World: Obligation. The ministry of all Christians in the United Methodist tradition has always been energized by deep religious experience, with emphasis on how ministry relates to our obligations obligation to Jesus Christ. The early Methodists developed a way of life that fostered consistency and reliability, and their methodical discipleship is best expressed in the General Rules that John Wesley first published in 1743, and remain in the United Methodist Book of Discipline, pages 71-73. (See ¶ 205.) ~~These Rules, referred to by Wesley as Works of Mercy and Works of Piety, may be summarized as follows: Avoiding Evil; Doing Good; and Attending upon the Ordinances of God. They may be expressed through: Acts of Devotion and Worship; Witness to Christ in the World; Acts of Compassion and Justice; Attentiveness to the Guidance of the Holy Spirit.~~

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

SEXISM ERADICATION OF SEXISM IN THE CHURCH

Whereas, sexism continues to be a pervasive and systematic force within our Church and our society; and

Whereas, sexism deprives the Church and society of the opportunity to use the skills and talents which women have; and

Whereas, the study showing the pervasiveness of sexual harassment throughout The United Methodist Church raised many concerns about changing this trend; and

Whereas, the recent Judicial Council decision ruling against the mandatory inclusion of women at all levels of the Church seems to be a sign that women are losing ground; and

Whereas, sexism, when not monitored, ~~continues to rear~~ rears its ugly head and ~~denies~~ denies the majority of women in The United Methodist Church the opportunity to participate fully and equally in all areas of the Church;

Therefore, be it resolved, that the General Conference affirm the work and the necessity for the continuance of the General Commission on the Status and Role of Women and of the annual conference Commissions on the Status and Role of Women; and

Be it further resolved, that each annual conference commission be given the financial backing to pursue projects which are aimed at educating the members of the local churches about the issues of sexism and at sponsoring the leadership events which enable the annual conference commission members to be better advocates for all who seek equity and inclusiveness; and

Be it further resolved, that the General Conference make it mandatory for each annual conference, United Methodist seminary, and all United Methodist-related institutions to have policies on sexual harassment in force by ~~January 1997~~ General Conference 2000; and

Be it further resolved, that ~~Discal Methodist For Church Renewal~~ the General Commission supports the General Commission on the Status and Role of Women as the advocacy and monitoring agency of womens issues ~~in~~ for increasing opportunities for females in leadership, promoting equality in filing decision-making posts, and fostering inclusiveness in all facets of The United Methodist Church.

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

The United Methodist Church made a prophetic witness against racism during the Civil Rights revolution, and we are committed to becoming a truly inclusive church. However, the face of racism in America has changed from the crudeness of segregation to more sophisticated but equally oppressive forms. If our church is to maintain a strong witness against racism and for an inclusive church, we need an analysis in keeping with the times.

Because of past inequality of opportunity and because of continuing discrimination against racial ethnic minorities, it is Pan-Africans, Latinos, and Native Americans which are hardest hit by rising unemployment. Because they have been kept at the bottom of the economic ladder in numbers disproportionate to their percentage of the general population, they are the first and the hardest hit by cuts in welfare, health care, education, and by harsher prison conditions and parole policies. These policies, seemingly racially neutral on their face, are harshly racist in their effect and implementation. One of the most blatant forms of this new sanitized racism is the rising clamor for imposition of the death penalty. Over 85% of the men on death row in United States prisons are Pan-African and Latino. This is due in large measure to their economic inability to afford high-priced legal representation, but it is never mentioned openly by those who cry the modern equivalent of Crucify him!

The new face of racism requires new remedies. To this end we call for:

1) the General Commission on Religion and Race to develop new programs to unmask and eliminate racism in its new guises.

2) every annual conference to conduct anti-racism training programs, with a list of organizations and groups who provide such training to be provided by GCORR;

3) increased salary and benefits to racial ethnic pastors who serve minimum salary churches in economically depressed and dangerous inner city communities; and

4) continued United Methodist opposition to the death penalty, emphasizing its disproportionate impact upon racial ethnic persons;

5) local churches to become intentionally multi-cultural and to share power with those they seek to include.

It is a simple issue of justice that we must ensure that racial/ethnic and women clergy who serve churches in economically depressed and/or blighted communities receive fair and equitable compensation. We strongly recommend that all annual and missionary conferences take appropriate steps to meet minimum salary and housing standards for pastors who serve in these circumstances.

In addition, we call for the United States government to enact legislation:

1) creating public sector jobs for the chronically unemployed;

2) for continued funding for America-Corp;

3) placing a local, state and national governments to place greater emphasis on education, job creation, drug rehabilitation, and community development than on building prisons, hiring police, and the imposition of imposing the death penalty.

Whereas, at the conclusion.

....from 1619 to the present day, for the purpose of submitting a report to Congress for further action and consideration with respect to slavery's effects on African American lives, economics, and politics, and

Whereas, the Northern Illinois Annual Conference voted June 8, 1991, to refer to the General Conference Delegation a petition similar to this one; and

Whereas, no report of any action or attempt to consider and present this petition to the General Conference was ever made to the Northern Illinois Annual Conference or to Chicago-BMCR (the then sponsor of this petition);

Therefore, be it resolved:

1) that we support the discussion and study of reparation for African Americans;

2) that we petition President Bill Clinton, Vice President Al Gore, and the United States House of Representatives to support the passage and signing of H.R. 40;

3) that the General commission on Religion and Race, and the General Board of Church and Society develop a strategy for interpreting and promoting the issue of economic reparations for African Americans in The United Methodist Church;

4) and that a written copy of this petition be delivered to Congressman John Conyers, Jr., House Speaker Newt Gingrich, the President, Vice President, and Congressional Representatives within the bounds of the Northern Illinois Conference the President and Vice President of the United States; United States Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole , House Speaker Newt Gingrich and Member John Conyers, Jr.

Membership: 71; Present: 55;
For: 52; Against: 2; Not Voting: 1;
Date: 4/20

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

Delete the current resolution on p. 159 of The Book of Resolutions and replace with the following:

The United Methodist Church has long been...

...in which the lives of each and all will flourish.

For this fundamental reason, we reaffirm our commitment to the concept of affirmative action. The use of numerical goals and timetables are a legitimate and necessary tool of effective affirmative action programs. This concept retains its pertinence as a means of attaining a more inclusive society in our educational systems, in our businesses and industries, and in religious and other institutions. No persons—whatever their gender, their ethnic or racial heritage, their physical condition—should be deprived of pursuing their educational or employment aspirations to the full extent of their talents and abilities.

Fairness is the rule for affirmative action guaranteeing more opportunities for all to compete for jobs. Indeed, the purpose of affirmative action has always been to create an environment where merit can prevail.

Rather than curtail or abolish programs in affirmative action, we should instead move toward the reallocation of the resources of our society to assure such opportunities for all.

At the same time, given the tenacity of many forms of racism, sexism, and ableism—both blatant and subtle—the concept of affirmative action retains its relevance as part of an overall effort to create a more just and equitable social system.

Therefore, be it resolved, that the 1996 General Conference of The United Methodist Church call calls upon all its members to:

1. affirm the our Judeo-Christian heritage of justice and inclusiveness as a foundation for the concept of affirmative action;

2. constitute a model for others in society by practicing and strengthening their own affirmative action policies whatever their our station in life;

3. declare their our support of efforts throughout the society to sustain, if not and where needed, strengthen, affirmative action legislation and programs;

4. collaborate with movements and initiatives seeking to insure effective participation of ethnic/racial minorities, women, and persons with disabilities in all sectors of our society;

5. interpret the genuine meaning of affirmative action dispelling the myths and in-response responding to the specious appeals that would undercut and vilify affirmative action policies and programs.

Be it further resolved, that the 1996 General Conference reaffirm its mandate to implement affirmative action programs in all general church boards and agencies, annual conferences, church-related institutions, districts, and local churches.

Be it further resolved, that the General Commissions on Religion and Race and Status and Role of Women continue to monitor The United Methodist Church and related institutions and to provide assistance in helping them move toward greater conformity with the principle of inclusiveness.

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

Whereas, the Racism in Rural Areas Task Force, created by the 1992 General Conference, through comprehensive study, has indeed determined that racism is alive and active in our society and in the church in rural areas; and

Whereas, racism is sin, separating us from God and one another; and

Whereas, a manifestation of sin is injustice, abuse, and violence; and

Whereas, the task force found personal and institutional racism and inter-ethnic conflict in rural areas throughout the United States;

Therefore, be it resolved, that the 1996 General Conference of The United Methodist Church ~~affirm~~ affirms the work of the Racism in Rural Areas Task Force, ~~accept~~ accepts the report, and ~~approve~~ approves the adoption and implementation of the recommendations contained in the report.

Be it also resolved that the 1996 General Conference of the United Methodist Church designates The Elimination of Racism in its Many Forms as a special emphasis of the church, to be addressed by every level of the church, and to be included by every general board and agency as one of the continuing priorities for the quadrennium 1997-2000.

General Church: It is recommended that

1. The Rural Chaplains Association, a network of clergy and lay persons, be affirmed in its work with individuals, rural churches, and communities in shalom ministries, and that the General Board of Global Ministries continue to resource the rural chaplains.

2. Training be made available by the General Commission on Religion and Race to enable each annual conference Commission on Religion and Race to serve as a resource and support group for promoting cross-cultural understanding in rural areas.

3. New rural-oriented resources on racism and inter-ethnic conflict be developed by the General Board of Discipleship, in consultation with the General Commission on Religion and Race. These resources should be developed for all age-level educational work of the church.
