Delete the three paragraphs after the first two paragraphs

Remove the word further from the last paragraph so that the petition reads:

Whereas, the Environmental Protection Agency of the United States (EPA) has established the health risks attributed to Environmental Tobacco Smoke (ETS), also known as second-hand, passive, or involuntary smoke; and

Whereas, EPA studies conclude ETS is responsible for lung deaths of approximately 3,000 non-smokers in the United States each year; and

~~Whereas, EPA studies conclude exposure to ETS causes other health problems in adults, including coughing, phlegm production, and reduced lung function; and~~

~~Whereas, in school systems within the United States, children suffer from asthma, noted to be the fastest growing condition among children with ETS increasing its severity as well as generating other risks; and~~

~~Whereas, the Clean Air Act does not encompass involuntary smoke in public restaurants, a threat to the health of non-smokers;~~

~~Therefore, be it resolved, that the 1996 session of the General Conference of The United Methodist Church go on record in support of any federal legislative and administrative efforts to curtail or eliminate the presence of ETS in public restaurants; and~~

Be it further resolved, that this action encourage the inclusion of ETS prevention in the Clean Air Act and enable more stringent laws by the states to supersede those of federal law, in this case, specifically the Clean Air Act.

Petition:

Membership: 102; Present: 87;

For: 70; Against: 13; Not Voting: 4;

Date: 4/20

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

In the third paragraph add the word annually at the end of the fourth sentence and substitute more than for approximately so that the text reads as follows:

Working as an instrument ... In the United States, approximately more than 30,000 men, women, and children are shot to death in homicides, suicides and accidents annually...

In the sixth paragraph which begins We do not believe delete the first sentence so that the text reads as follows:

~~We do not believe there is any constitutional personal right to bear arms.~~ Although there is vigorous debate over the meaning of the Second Amendment to the Constitution, which speaks to the right to keep and bear arms, the United States Supreme Court and lower federal courts have held that the private ownership of guns is not protected by the Second Amendment.

Correct the spelling of devices: in the section labeled 5", so the text will read:

5. Supports the outlawing of the production and sales of automatic weapon conversion kits as well as the production of guns that cannot be detected by traditionally used metal detection devices devices.

In the section labeled 7 delete the words media and in the first sentence, and insert print, broadcasting and electronic media as well as the: and place a period after usage to children and delete the rest of that section so that it will read:

7. Calls upon the media and print, broadcasting and electronic media as well as the entertainment industry to refrain from promoting gun usage to children. In such magazines as Boys Life, Guns and Ammo, Guns, The American Rifleman and many others. We also discourage the graphic depiction and glorification of violence by the entertainment industry.

Remember 8" and 9" and insert the following as number 8" and also add numbers 11" and 12", so the text reads as follows:

8. Discourages the graphic depiction and glorification of violence by the entertainment industry, which greatly influences our society, and recommends that these issues be addressed through education and consciousness raising.

8. 9. Calls on all United Methodists who are members of gun clubs and associations to use their influence to help expand gun education and safety programs. These individuals should also enter into dialogue with their clubs and associations to establish responsible and safe gun regulations, and to build a safer and less violent society.

9. 10. Calls for all church properties and facilities to be designated as No Gun Zones and prohibit guns from being carried onto the premises.

11. Calls upon the federal and state governments to provide significant assistance to victims of gun violence and their families.

12. Recommends that annual conferences make visible public witness to the sin of gun violence and to the hope of community healing.

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

Change the conclusion to read:

~~Conclusion: The United Methodist Church should affirm the rights of homosexuals to serve in the United States Armed Forces. The U.S. military should not exclude persons from service solely on the basis of sexual orientation.~~

the following text:

STRONGLY URGE GENERAL BOARD OF CHURCH AND SOCIETY TO CREATE A STANDING COMMITTEE ON DRUG AND ALCOHOL ABUSE

It is time for The United Methodist Church to fully reclaim its historic position in leading efforts to confront drug and alcohol abuse and promote abstinence in modern society.

In 1990, the Council of Bishops, through its Special Initiative on Drugs and Violence, captured the attention of the world when it showed that the church can have an impact on communities and families torn apart by drug and alcohol abuse and violence. This special ministry resulted in the grass roots focus of the Special Program on Substance Abuse and Related Violence created by the 1992 General Conference and supported by the generous contributions to the Mission Initiatives Fund.

While the Special Program has been highly successful in its initial efforts to overcome denial and raise the issue of drug and alcohol abuse and violence throughout the church, we believe that it must be followed by a deeper commitment on the part of all areas of the church. Simple words printed in a book of resolutions are not enough. It is a sin to mouth words, but not follow them with the appropriate actions, especially when millions of lives are at stake.

We strongly urge the General Board of Church and Society to form a Standing Committee on Drug and Alcohol Abuse during the 1996 quadrennium. We would pry that the committees advocacy would be supported by appropriate financial resources and staffing that befits the crisis in our midst. We would encourage the board to strengthen its efforts assisting churches to become involved in ministries with persons in recovery.

We believe there is no other issue that the board must confront that puts more lives at risk every day, every month, every year. Such an action would be in keeping with the boards historic role as an advocate for holy living and calling our governmental leaders into accountability for their actions.

The Committee On Journal hereby certifies as accurate, with the following corrections, the proceedings as printed in the Daily Christian Advocate for Monday, April 22, 1996.

Daily Edition, page 268, column 3, line 10, should read "ANNIE GONZALES: Let us pray."

Daily Edition, page 268, column 3, line 19, replace ANNIE GONZALEZ with RAQUEL MARTINEZ.

Reported by William Reasner
Chair, Committee On Journal

Monday Morning Session April 22, 1996

Bishop William Grove, presiding

BISHOP WILLIAM GROVE: Let's be in order, please.

STEVE KIMBROUGH: As we gather, would you join me with two Native Americans, Mr. Kenneth Deere and Mr. Alvin Deer?

BISHOP GROVE: Let's be in order, please.

KIMBROUGH: We'd like for you to stand, and we're going to sing, "Heleluyam." You only have to join in two words: Heleluyam and Hele. These gentlemen will lead us. We ask that you stand and join us.

(song)

(applause)

BISHOP GROVE: Thank you very much. Our thanks also to Bishop Jones for that message and to Bishop Swenson and the others who shared with them in our leadership of worship today. Our organist for this week is Kathleen Forsberg, who is organist at the Littleton United Methodist Church in Littleton, Colorado. Why don't you welcome her and thank the others? It's time now for our shared prayer and seeking of the sermon. I think that the two questions that we're asking will come onto the monitors, and we ask you again, as we have at the beginning of each session, to turn to someone near you and have a conversation for four or five minutes about those two questions: What is my desire for the next hours of these General Conference? and, What do I believe is God's desire? Then after the time, period of time has passed, I'll call you to pray together. Can we be in order and turn to our neighbors and have a brief conversation about those two questions?

BISHOP GROVE: All right, will you now pray together, asking for the discernment of God's will for the General Conference?

(prayer)

BISHOP GROVE: Now may we pray together using the "Collect For Purity of Heart," which I think you all know?

(prayer)

BISHOP GROVE: I recognize Charles Applebee at microphone 12 for a personal privilege, and I would ask John Thomas, the Commission on—chair of the Commission on the General Conference to be ready to respond to this request, which I believe is going to be made. Charles Applebee, at microphone 12. Would you indicate your conference?

Invitation to Elizabeth Dole

CHARLIE APPLEBY (South Carolina): Thank you Bishop Grove. One way to avoid sending confusing signals during an election year could be to invite Elizabeth Dole to bring greetings to this great General Conference. Like Mrs. Clinton, Mrs. Dole has been of lifelong Methodist roots. As president on leave of the American Red Cross, Mrs. Dole works with the poor, the hungry, the disaster victims, is certainly representative of the Methodism call to help the downtrodden and the oppressed. Bishop Grove, I move that the Commission on the Conference be asked to invite Mrs. Dole to address this great conference.

BISHOP GROVE: Is there a second? (second)

BISHOP GROVE: There is a second. Now, this request has been made first of the Commission—was referred to the Commission on the General Conference. So I would like to ask Mr. John Thomas to make a response if he wishes to do so. I think I see him going back to microphone 10. Eight. Microphone eight.

JOHN THOMAS: Bishop and members of the Conference, this issue has come before the Commission on General Conference on two occasions. On each occasion, after discussing the matter, the Commission, by a majority vote feels that to do so would be to inject perhaps more partisan politics into the matter than may there be there now. And each time the commission has, by majority vote, declined to invite Elizabeth Dole, even though they have recognized her great input into this great church of ours.

BISHOP GROVE: All right. Is there further discussion, anyone want to speak for the motion? I hope we can settle this quickly, but we can have—you're entitled to two speeches. One has been made on either side. Really entitled to three. Is there...? Back here. Is this a speech for? All right. I recognize you. Go to microphone seven.

CHARLES PEARCE (Florida): Four months after our last General Conference in Louisville, my home and ten acre line grove was destroyed by Hurricane Andrew. The UMCOR and the Red Cross was invaluable to 50 thousand people in the Homestead area. And your prayers and the millions of dollars that you sent to us in Homestead can never be fully appreciated. I want to thank, personally, each one today for this. But knowing what the Red Cross did under Elizabeth Dole's leadership can also never be fully appreciated. I would hope that this great, great conference would see fit to invite her as the president of the Red Cross at that time. Thank you.

BISHOP GROVE: All right. Is there a speech against? Back here. Yes, I see a green card. No, the one on the aisle. There. Go to microphone nine.

RONALD BRETSCHE (North Central New York): Thank you Bishop. As an enrolled Republican, but more as a United Methodist, I would like to remind the body those of us from the United States, we have one President at one time, and we have one First Lady at one time.

BISHOP GROVE: Thank you. Are you ready? I think you are. I don't see anyone. Vote when the light appears.

BISHOP GROVE: (results: yes 301, no 562, abstain 24) Thank you. The motion is defeated. We're ready now for the Consent Calendar. I recognize Fitzgerald Reist and Sara Miller.

Process for Deleting Items from Consent Calendar

FITZGERALD REIST: (Coordinator of the Calendar): I've been asked to explain and clarify for folks, again, a few items related to the Consent Calendars. First of all, let me say that there is a form available in the secretary's office for the General Conference in room C204 for the removal of items from the Consent Calendar. We must use that form because the material asking for removal comes to us sometimes without the information we need to identify the petition.

I had one note that came with five names on it, but no number of calendar or otherwise. So we need use the form. We would appreciate it if you would pick that up when you need to make a request for removal from Consent Calendar. Room C204.

The other thing that I want to say to you is that you do not need to remove from Consent Calendar items which are not on the Consent Calendar. (laughter) I know it is very confusing locating what Consent Calendar things are on because they're on pages following the heading, and sometimes it is confusing. But you do not need to request those items that are not on Consent Calendar to be removed. They may be discussed on the floor automatically.

The Consent Calendar that we will be considering today is...the Consent Calendars we will be considering today are A02, B02, and C02. We have had removed from Consent Calendar A02 by request of delegates the following items: Calendar Items 102, 103, 104, 133, 141, 145, 165, and 194. Before you panic, they're all spelled out on page 260 in the DCA.

SARA MILLER: Bishop Grove, Sara Miller.

BISHOP GROVE: Yes.

MILLER: I would move the adoption of the Consent Calendar A02, with the deletion of those items which have been named.

BISHOP GROVE: It would be good to give the page. The page is 129. The first page of the Consent Calendar A02. That motion is before you. Vote when the light appears. [773 approved] The motion is adopted. The Consent Calendar is approved with those deletions.

REIST: Consent Calendar B02 is found on page 142 of the DCA in your blue book. There are no changes to Consent Calendar B02.

BISHOP GROVE: That is before you. Vote when the light appears. [834 approved]

Motion is supported. Consent Calendar B02 is approved.

REIST: Consent Calendar C02 is found in your DCA, and I apologize, I lost my bookmark. It is on page 155 of your DCA. Calendar Items 306 and 397 have been removed by the request of the delegates.

BISHOP GROVE: Please vote when the light appears. [854 approved] That Consent Calendar, C02, is approved.

MILLER: I have one additional item for the Agenda and Calendar Committee. This afternoon at 3:30 there will be a five minute presentation by Cheeta Framol of the Philippines who is president of International Diaconia.

BISHOP GROVE: That's placed on the agenda for 3:30 this afternoon. Thank you. Ready now for the Native American Ministries report. I'm not sure who's to give that, but if those persons who are presenting that report will come now, we are ready to receive it.

Report on Native American Comprehensive Plan

SAMUEL WYNN: Bishop, delegates. This morning, the drumming group who is with us is from the Blackfeet Reservation, and they would ask for your prayers for a grandmother who has passed away, Ms. Alice Samoa. And she has been taken back to Great Falls this morning. Let us stand together for the Blackfeet Tribal Flag Song.

(song)

WYNN: You may be seated. Bishop, delegates, and to all the saints called United Methodists who have traveled from the four corners of the earth, gathered together as laity and clergy, grace and peace to you from God our Creator, and the Lord of our Savior, Jesus Christ.

The 1992 General Conference passed the Native American Comprehensive Plan, and its passage was a historic event for The United Methodist Church. Four years later, it gives us great joy and pleasure to share with you what has been accomplished since that time. The plan is found in Volume Two of the Advanced DCA on pages 1342 through 1354.

The delegation of the responsibility for carrying out its directions was given to the General Board of Global Ministries. A task force was established with two Native Americans from the Oklahoma Indian Missionary Conference, the Native American International Caucus, one Native American person from the Alaskan Missionary Conference, and one director and one staff person from each of the four general boards and agencies. The task force was organized, and it met in Syracuse, New York; the Blackfeet Reservation in Browning, Montana; Schurz, Nevada; Dulac, Louisiana; and the Seminole Reservation in Morehaven, Florida.

The purpose of these meetings were twofold. Number one, to fulfill the responsibilities assigned to the task force by the 1992 General Conference. Two, to provide opportunity for Native Americans within their own community to share their struggles, hopes, and dreams about the future. As a result of our time of listening, the task force was encouraged and strengthened by the witness of their faith in our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. Our stories of faith today are similar to the faith stories of the Wyandots who introduced Methodism to parts of the Midwest. Let me share a small part of the Wyandots' faith story.

In Zanesville, Ohio, on September 5, 1824, an unidentified Wyandot tribesman gave his personal testimony and spoke of the spiritual benefits of the Christian faith. As Christ had brought power of salvation not only to one man but also to a whole community of people, this tribesman stated, "Our eyes never melted into tears while worshipping until we heard the name of Jesus Christ."

This story reminds us of the apostle Paul in his letter to the church to Ephesus when he said, "I have heard of your faith in the Lord Jesus Christ and your love toward all the saints."

We continue to fill gaps and to build bridges upon the faith of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ through the four directions that is set forth in the Native American Comprehensive Plan. They are: denominational presence, Native American spirituality, congregational development, and leadership development.

MARV ABRAMS: The Comprehensive Plan is one that has been an exciting program. I have coordinated that for the task force. And as we met in Montana, we began to talk about these four directions. And from that we put together a logo. And I want you to think about it with me.

Native Americans and the Four Directions

Think of a circle. Think of the four directions of that circle. The circle is not one that is a closed circle; it is a broken circle, signifying that is not just for native people, but it is for all of God's people. There are four directions to our plan. The circle, of course, is a very powerful symbol among Native Americans. When there is peace, wholeness, and harmony, Native Americans view the circle as in balance. There is a balance to life. There is a balance to our world.

The four directions: the East, the South, the West, and the North, symbolize new life, healing, traditional values, and power. Some Native Americans in the United Methodist Church, using John Wesley's quadrilateral, would assign scripture, experience, tradition, and reason to these four directions. In the logo that I'm describing, we have some buttons, and we will be passing these out later in the week, there are two things that you will notice about the logo. One, as I said, that it is not a closed circle. Second, that there is a cross that is formed at the intersection of the lines drawn through each of these cardinal points. Native Americans within the United Methodist Church believe that only through the cross of Jesus Christ can balance, wholeness, peace, harmony, and salvation be achieved. And you will note, when you see the logo, that there are half arrows that are parallel each arm of the cross. They symbolize the work of the Holy Spirit, which has guided the Native American Comprehensive Plan task force as it developed its work, this report, and the recommendations that you see before you.

Against a backdrop of need and opportunity, the four committees of the Native American Comprehensive Plan, use the four directions contained in the circle as a guide for their work. The remainder of this report will be given by the chairs and by witnesses of the accomplishments of these committees. The North, symbolizing powers associated with denominational presence. The denominational presence committee is chaired by Ann Saunkeah. The witnesses will be Bob Mangum and Betty Admussen.

The West, symbolizing religious heritage, is associated with Native American spirituality. The Native American Spirituality Committee is chaired by Anne Marshall. The witness will be Joe Parker.

The South, symbolizing healing winds, is associated with congregational development. The Congregational Development Committee is chaired by Billie Nowabbi. The witness will be Shirley Montoya.

The East, symbolizing new life, is associated with leadership development. The Leadership Development Committee is chaired by Cynthia Abrams, and the witness will be Alvin Deer.

If you will turn to page 1353, you will see many of the plans and the programs of these committees.

Denominational Presence Committee

ANN SAUNKEAH: The Denominational Presence Committee is developing structures that will help annual conference keep the doors of communication open between Native American ministries, rural communities, and the United Methodist Church. We have encouraged the Church's program boards and agencies to develop or maintain advisory committees or linkage groups. These committees or groups will be the voice of Native American needs at the general church level. They will also help the boards and agencies be sensitive to Native American culture in program development.

The committee has made available training for five jurisdictional consultants, who, in turn, help annual conferences establish and train their committees on Native American ministry, as mandated by paragraph 748 of the Book of Discipline. We will now hear from two of the jurisdictional consultants.

Southeastern Jurisdictional Agency for Native American Ministries

BOB MANGUM: I work with SEJANAM, the Southeastern Jurisdictional Agency for Native American Ministries. I am also a jurisdictional consultant, working with annual conferences, helping them to create, organize, and train committees on Native American ministry. We held an initial training session for conference committees in 1994 to train leadership of those committees. Since then, we have provided training for committees at conference sites, to help empower these committees to function effectively.

In one conference, the Native American Committee prints a newsletter to help create greater awareness of Native American issues in that conference, and also to promote Native American Awareness Sunday. In another conference, the Native American Committee has established a Simeon F. Cummings Endowment Fund for Native American ministries, to help create a funding for ministries in the Southeast. In another conference, the committee is working to identify Native Americans in a large municipal area, and then to create a ministry of presence. In the Southeast, the comprehensive plan is helping create a Native American Advocate Ministry Group in each of the annual conferences. Existing ministries are being strengthened, and new congregations and ministries are being formed.

South Central Jurisdiction Native American Ministries

BETTY ADMUSSEN (Missouri-West): I am one of the five jurisdictional consultants, and I work with the South Central Jurisdiction. We are working with all of the annual conferences to assist them in getting the Native American committees established. What a wonderful venture this has been for me! You see, there are 582,000 Native Americans in the South Central Jurisdiction. And many of them have been invisible to our United Methodist communities. Statistics tell us that 69 percent of the total Native American populations live in the urban areas, and you have become aware of the pockets of the communities you didn't even know existed. I have heard your stories of how you are working with the Native American monies to invite our brothers and sisters to the table. Scholarships have been made available for schooling, camps have been established for youth, and internships have been available for young adults who are interested in learning more about the ministry of this great church.

In the South Central Jurisdiction, a training session has been planned for the first week in August, using the Southeastern Jurisdiction's Native American Ministry as a model. The other three jurisdictions will also have training sessions in the fall. We are here today to say "thank you" for allowing space at the table.

Native Americans Spirituality Committee

ANNE MARSHALL: Native Americans are spiritual people, and our very being has spiritual significance. The goal of the Native Americans Spirituality Committee is to help Native American United Methodists and the general church develop respect for spiritual values, our practices, and symbols of native people, which will bridge understandings among us. A survey instrument was developed and tested in various Native American settings and communities. In addition to the survey, information gathered from dialogues based on spirituality will be used during the 1997 to the year 2000 quadrennium, to develop curriculum, resources and a mission statement sensitive to Native American culture for the local churches, annual conferences, and seminaries.

JOE PARKER: The West, in Native American spirituality, relates to the association of the Native Americans. Native Americans understand that everything spiritual, everything has spiritual significance. The goals of the Native American Spirituality Committee is to help Native American United Methodists and the United Methodist Church develop a respect and understanding of the spiritual values, practices, and symbols of native people.

When I was six years old, in New England, the Native Americans, most of them, were assimilated into the communities, and at the age of six I was taken away from my family with my brothers, and put into an orphanage. This was during the Depression, 'cause we know the government knows best how to take care of people, and subsequently, they placed me with an Irish family, who was, I'd say religious people, but through my prayer life, the Creator did instill in me a total respect for all of life, which we believe that Native American spirituality is. So my work on the task force, a brother on the task force shared with me that when he was growing up on the reservation, that his grandmother, who was a long-time Methodist, and teachings for the long houses, he thought that some of the things being taught seemed to him to be pagan. But after seminary, and then returning to the reservation, to share in a ministry, that these same lessons that were coming from the long house, to him, seemed biblical. It is this Native American spirituality that has helped native people to survive. Aho!

Native American Congregational Committee

BILLIE NOWABBI: The congregational committee is developing models of ministry that can be established, revitalized, and strengthened within Native American rural and reservation communities. These models will: 1) be culturally sensitive to Native American ways of life; 2) be developed in partnership with United Methodist program agencies and Native American entities and; 3) utilize existing resources available in the United Methodist Church.

We offer four models of ministry:

1) Recruiting and training of gatherers. Ten Native Americans attended the orientation of trainers to resource, coordinate, and provide cultural context for those becoming a gatherer. A gatherer is a Native American who gathers other Native Americans for worship, fellowship, outreach, and service. The gatherer is encouraged to fish for people like Christ's first disciples. Ninety-four participants from 21 annual conferences attended the first training event. Each team included a lay person, a clergy, and a conference staff person. With supervision, a gatherer may serve to establish new ministries or to assist a pastor.

2) Rural Reservation Chaplaincy. Twenty-five gatherers from Native American churches and ministries are invited to pursue certification as rural reservation chaplains. A chaplain may affirm and respond to economic and social needs of Native American people and communities. They will share resources and services, and help to strengthen Native American communities.

3) The third model is a Native American Consultation on the Diaconal Ministry that will be held during September 20 through 22, 1996. The purpose is to develop models and resources for recruitment, certification, consecration, and deployment of Native Americans as Diaconal Ministers.

4) And then the last model is the Rural and Reservation Congregational Development, and the accomplishments will be shared by the following witness.

Western Jurisdiction for the Native American Ministries

SHIRLEY MONTOYA: Serving as the Western Jurisdiction for the Native American Comprehensive Plan, I have seen a vision and a dream become a reality. Through seed money from the Native American Comprehensive Plan and strong commitment and support of the Desert Southwest Annual Conference, the Northern Arizona Native American Ministry has become a reality. This ministry will provide a United Methodist presence among the largest concentration of Native Americans in the annual conference. The majority of these Native Americans are the Denai People, the Navajos. The Native American Comprehensive Plan's four directions will provide the base from which this ministry will be developed to meet the needs and address the issues of the Native Americans in this area.

The vision of this ministry is to empower people; a ministry of affirmation through the liberating gospels of our Lord, Jesus Christ. Only in this way can we, as a people, begin to combat poverty, homelessness, alcoholism, violence.

The ministry will have three phases: First, to assess and focus on the crucial needs and concerns of the people. Second, to formulate and develop clusters, utilizing the gatherers concept, to identify leadership. And third, the beginning development of our congregation, identifying leadership.

This is God's plan. This is God's timing. Your prayers and your support is greatly needed for the long life and success of this ministry.

National Native American Family Camp

CYNTHIA ABRAMS: One Native American leader recounted his experience at the 1960 General Conference by saying he was a dark spot in a sea of white faces. The leadership development committee recognizes that for Native American people to truly be a part of the church, we need to be involved in all levels of the church. We need to be at the table.

An example of this quadrennium's work was a continuing education training event in 1995 for pastors and other church workers at the National Native American Family Camp. Along with the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry, we are exploring a course of study designed to be sensitive to Native American leaders and their unique situations. The plan has enabled and will continue to enable Native Americans to be effective leaders in the church and in their communities.

As we look toward the twenty-first century, we are calling on the church to be in partnership with Native American people. As we continue to develop new, innovative, creative, and vital ministries, like the reservation chaplaincy, that will help deal with economic development, alternatives to gaming. We want to be a part of the circle that includes the whole church, as we continue to develop and implement creative leadership models for this great denomination.

Native American Leadership Development

ALVIN DEER (Oklahoma Indian Missionary Conference): Leadership development means training events such as Event '95, whose goal was to introduce local church leaders from the Native American communities to the United Methodist structure and polity, for application at the local, district, annual conference, jurisdictional, and general conference levels. Nearly 100 persons participated and were given the opportunity to attend workshops led by Native Americans. One participant stated, "I never realized what a great church we have, and I want to be more involved." Another person said, "This event has far-reaching ramifications which shall continue to influence our mission of ministry in the Native American community."

Leadership development also means salary parity for Native American pastors. Pastors in the Oklahoma Indian Missionary Conference are as committed to the ministry of Jesus Christ as any in the denomination. Many of our pastors commit to full-time ministry knowing that the entry level of a full-time pastor in the OIMC is $12,000 per year. The 1996 conference average compensation of our Native American pastors is 52 percent less than the denominational average compensation.

At this General Conference, great attention has been given to the impact of local church obligations. General apportionments rise. Conference benevolences rise. Local church expenses rise. The very necessary missional needs rise. And pastoral salaries rise. In many Native American churches, it is not possible to meet all the obligations of the local church and pay salaries comparable to the denominational average compensation.

The Native American Comprehensive Plan has recognized that in order for many Native Americans to answer the call to ministry, that they have bound themselves to the minimum salary levels of the annual conference. The plan has embarked on a process to study salary parity for Native American pastors in order for Native Americans to answer the call, and then not be burdened by poverty-level compensation. Through the Native American Comprehensive Plan, we will find a means to parity in Native American compensation.

KENNETH DEERE: As Native Americans are representing our own sovereign nation here, we ask that you join us in the song that you just learned earlier: "Halleluyam!" by standing, and I'm going to ask my elder, George Miller, to lead us in that song. Will you stand, please?

(song)

Native Americans Look Ahead to Next Quadrennium

SAM WYNN (North Carolina Conference): You may be seated. Now that you have heard about the accomplishments, the impact, and the necessity for this plan, you have the opportunity to join as partners with Native Americans throughout North America in the continuation of this exciting ministry. Here are several of the findings that the task force would encourage you to remember. That over 60 percent of all Native Americans live in metropolitan areas. The Native American population has increased 39 percent between 1980 and 1990. Just under one-half of those older than the age of 25 living on reservations are high school drop-outs. One third of Native Americans, including Eskimo and Aleut, in the United States live below the poverty level. Among Native American teenagers, the suicide rate is four times higher than of any other ethnic group in the United States. Native Americans are four times more likely to die of alcoholism than any other group in the United States. The fetal alcohol syndrome is six times higher than the national average.

The next General Conference, when we meet together, will be the beginning of a new millennium. The decisions that you make today will impact the future of our denomination. The Native American community will be affected by this decision and as well as others throughout our church. It is the purpose of the Native American Comprehensive Plan to share the gospel of Christ from the four directions of the Native American Plan, thus giving our children hope for a brighter future.

The faith that the Wyandots expressed in Zanesville, Ohio, on September 24, 1824, brought about salvation and spiritual benefit not only to one man but to a whole community. Likewise, this same faith has watered the desolate places within the hearts of Native American people today within The United Methodist Church, replacing despondency, loss of hope, poverty, and brokenness with new hope, new dreams, and new life.

In the Book of Ezekiel in chapter 37, verses 9 and 10, God reveals to Ezekiel in this vision the state of a nation that is dry, that is desolate, that has little or no life. However, he brings a vision of restoration and new life, and he says, "Then He said to me, 'Prophecy and breathe. Prophecy, mortal, and say to breath: Thus saith the Lord God: Come from the four winds, oh breath and breathe upon the slain that they may live.' I prophesied as I was commanded, and the breath came into them, and they lived, and they stood on their feet as a vast multitude."

We, as Native Americans, can relate to Ezekiel's vision. The dry bones are symbols of our past and present oppressions, some of which have been mentioned here today. But we press forward. We continue to strive for a better way of life for our children and for our children's children. God through his Son, has breathed new life into our spirit. And like the Wyandots, we, too, have received God's benefits through the saving power of Jesus Christ. Our eyes melted into tears as well, but our tears are also tears of hope, joy, and love because of the impact of this Plan in our community.

We want to say thank you for what you have done, and thank you to the Native American Fax Network, and the support that we have received from United Methodist Communications and the other four program boards and agencies, the General Council on Ministry throughout The United Methodist Church. Now may God's peace abide with each of you always; the love and the faith of Jesus Christ continue to strengthen you.

BISHOP GROVE: Thank you very much Sam Wynn and Marvin Abrams and all the others who have brought this report to us. We are very grateful to you. I think we are ready now for calendar items related to this report, and I recognize Carolyn Johnson, chair of the Legislative Committee on Global Ministries.

Calendar Items from BOGM

CAROLYN JOHNSON: Good morning, Bishop and delegates. Well, there was one person out there who said good morning back. Thank you. This morning, on behalf of legislative group number six, Global Ministries, we'll be bringing to you four calendar items. All of the calendar items are found in your blue DCA on page 174.

We will be looking at calendar items beginning with Calendar Item 444. The reference material that you will need for that is found in your Advance DCA book one, the red book, on page 778. As you're turning to that page, it might help you to know that that item is in the lower left hand column. This first item, continuation of the Native American Comprehensive Plan, the petition number is 21345. As the legislative group reviewed the petition, the recommendation was concurrence: 108 for, 0 against, and 0 not voting. And therefore, because of the financial implications, our recommendation is concurrence, with reference to GCF&A. And I so move, Bishop.

BISHOP GROVE: All right. Will you vote when the light appears. [880 approved]

BISHOP: That is affirmed. Approved, with reference to Finance for the financial implications.

JOHNSON: Thank you. The next item, and you'll notice we are going in descending order, is Calendar Item 443, also on page 174. This item and the one that will follow it relate to the National Plan for Hispanic Ministries. The reference material you will need is found in the Advance DCA book one, that's the red book, on page 762.

And again, as you are going to that page, it might be helpful for you to know that it's in the lower portion of the right hand column. This is petition number 20078. This petition is to continue the emphasis on the National Plan for Hispanic Ministries. The legislative group reviewed it and recommended concurrence on a vote of 104 for, 0 against, and 0 not voting. Again, because of the financial implications, our recommendation to you is concurrence, with reference to GCF&A, and I so move.

BISHOP GROVE: All right, it is before you. Anyone want to speak to it? I think you're ready. Vote when the light appears. [908 approved]

BISHOP GROVE: It is approved, with reference to Finance.

JOHNSON: Thank you. The next Calendar Item 442, again on page 174. This recommendation is on the National Plan for Hispanic Ministries. The reference material in the Advance DCA book one, the red book, is on page 771 at the bottom of the right hand column. Petition number 21343. The recommendation from the legislative group on a vote of 107 for, 0 against, and 1 not voting, was concurrence, with reference to GCF&A, and I so move.

BISHOP GROVE: All right. Anyone wish to speak to it? Vote when the light appears. [922 approved]

BISHOP GROVE: It is approved, with reference.

JOHNSON: Thank you, and the final item that we will bring to you today is Calendar Item 441 on Asian-American Language Ministry Study. The Advance DCA reference is Advance DCA, book one, the red book, page 777. You will find this in the lower portion of the left hand column. It's petition number 21344. On a vote of 107 for, 0 against, and 1 not voting, the legislative group recommends concurrence, with reference to GCF&A, and I so move.

BISHOP GROVE: All right. Anyone wish the floor? Yes. I see a hand over here. Go to microphone six.

Clarification of Budget Referrals and GCF&A

BARBARA WILLIAMS RIDDLE (Florida Conference): A question. The ones—the items that are being brought before us today that are being referred to GCF&A are not currently in the proposed budget that has gone out to us, and these are being referred, and these will be in addition? I want to make sure I understand.

JOHNSON: As I understand it, the rules of the General Conference require that any items that have financial implications, whether they are in an existing budget, whether they are continuation, or whether they will be a new program, must be referred back to GCF&A who handles those on site and are required to report back to this session of the General Conference. Is that correct, Bishop?

BISHOP GROVE: That is correct, and my understanding is that these amounts are in the proposed budget, but it still has to go to GCF&A. Is that right? Is that your understanding? Yes.

RIDDLE: So for clarification, everything that we're considering at this point has been and is considered in the proposed budget that will be before us later in the week?

JOHNSON: The items that I brought you today, yes.

RIDDLE: Thank you.

BISHOP GROVE: All right. Are you ready? Vote when the light appears. [919 approved]

BISHOP GROVE: The motion is passed. The proposal is approved, with reference.

JOHNSON: Bishop, may I introduce to the house the other members of the legislative team who will also be coming to you later on in the week? Howard Daughenbaugh, vice chair, who's a clergy delegate from Central Illinois; and Betty Suzuki, who is our secretary and lay delegate from California-Nevada. Thank you.

BISHOP GROVE: Thank you very much. (applause) And thanks again to all of those who presented the Native American Plan to us today. We're within five minutes of recess, and I think we're going to take it now rather than going to the next legislative committee, rather than to break into their work. So we're in recess for 15 minutes. Please be in your seat ready to begin at 25 minutes after ten.

BISHOP GROVE: Come back as quickly now as you can. We have a lot of work to do this morning. All right, let's be in order, please. Please, friends, we need to begin. We have two items of personal privilege that I want to recognize, and I know that you want to be here for that.

Will the delegates be seated? We're going to begin. If you're at the cookie tables, please, if you're a delegate, please return. We're way past our starting time, and you don't seem to be moving this way. I recognize the delegate at microphone three for special privilege. Let's be in order, please.

PATRICIA FARRIS (California-Pacific): I invite the sisters and brothers of the General Conference to be in prayer and thanksgiving for the life and the ministry of the Rev. Tim Tyner from our annual conference, who died last night, after a long journey with AIDS. As we're in prayer, I'd like to lift up the refrain of one of Tim's favorite hymns: "I will cling to the old rugged cross, till my burdens at last I lay down. I will cherish the old rugged cross, and exchange it one day for a crown." Let us be in silent prayer together.

BISHOP GROVE: Can we be in silence as we remember this brother?

PATRICIA FARRIS (California-Pacific): Hear our prayer, O God, and give us your peace. Amen.

BISHOP GROVE: Amen. Another matter of concern: A delegate has asked me if I would just ask you without recognizing him, if we could send a greeting to the mayor of Ft. Smith, Arkansas. That community has been devastated by a hurricane. The mayor is a United Methodist. As we hold the people of that community in our prayers, is it in accord with your will that we send greetings to the community in a correspondence to the mayor? Unless there is objection, we will do that by common consent. I see no objection; it is done.

Another person asked for a moment of privilege relative to a letter to be sent down here. I don't see him. Microphone seven.

Elizabeth Dole Update

AUSTIN FREDERICK JR. (Southwest Texas): I move that the 1996 General Conference send a letter affirming Elizabeth Dole's church membership and exemplary service on behalf of the church and the Red Cross. If I may have a second, I would like to speak to that.

BISHOP GROVE: Is there a second? It is seconded.

FREDERICK: Bishop, while I was at my seat, visions of the Denver Post headlines reading "the 1996 General Conference voted not to hear Elizabeth Dole" came in my head, and I think that we could do this, in allowing, in expressing our deep appreciation for her work.

BISHOP GROVE: All right, it's before you. I don't think this is a matter of courtesy. Is there objection? If there is not, we'll do it by common consent.

Any objection? I see no card. It is approved by common consent. A letter of greeting and good wishes and appreciation will be sent on behalf of the General Conference to Elizabeth Dole, a faithful United Methodist. Thank you.

Ready now to recognize Paul Ervin, Chair of the legislative committee on Discipleship.

PAUL R. ERVIN JR. (North Georgia): Thank you, Bishop Grove. First, I would like to introduce the committee's secretary and vice-chair, if they would stand: Susan Hassinger, from the Eastern Pennsylvania Conference is our vice-chair, and Martha Etter from the Southwest Texas Conference is our secretary.

Please turn to page 227 in your red book. While you're doing that, I'm going to need request permission of the body, Bishop, to allow Dr. Gayle Felton, of Duke Divinity School, and Dr. Dale Dunlap to speak to the body on behalf of the study. Bishop? I need to request Dr. Felton, Dr. Gayle Felton, and Dr. Dale Dunlap to be able to address on this particular study.

Baptism Study Committee

BISHOP: Members of the Baptismal Study Committee?

ERVIN: Yes, sir.

BISHOP: Is there objection to voice for these two particular persons who served on the committee? I see none. Permission is granted.

ERVIN: Thank you. Today I hope we will celebrate the approval of a significant and important document in the life of our church. I know many of you may have attended earlier conferences, where our doctrinal statements and theological tasks were adopted. Last Saturday, by your approving the Consent Calendar Items 26 and 27, you approved the report of the Baptism Study Committee entitled, By Water and the Spirit, a United Methodist understanding of baptism. After a day of review and explanation of the document, the Discipleship legislative committee passed, 100-0, approval of this paper, with only one amendment. I wish to commend the study committee that has spent so much time and has been so patient over the last eight years to come to today.

At this time, I would like to introduce the chair of the study committee, to introduce any of the committee members he wishes to introduce, and those who will be assisting in the report to this General Conference. Following the report, we will have two legislative petitions, and there will be others throughout the week to come before this body related to the baptism study that will require additional conference action.

At this time, I would like to introduce Mark Trotter, clergy member of the California-Pacific Conference, and chair of the Baptism Study Committee. Mark.

History of Baptism Study Committee

MARK TROTTER (California-Pacific): Bishop, and members of the General Conference. The General Conference in 1984, adopted new rituals for the Church. Typical of United Methodist interests in things sacramental, at least in those days, no one seemed to notice what happened except the church's curriculum writers, who realized that the 1984 baptism ritual had significantly changed the way we think about baptism.

The General Board of Discipleship, therefore, petitioned the 1988 General Conference to establish a committee to study the United Methodist understanding of baptism and its relation to confirmation and other rites of the church. The delegates to the 1988 General Conference also received the proposed hymnal that year. And when they opened it, they discovered that the 1984 rituals for Holy Communion and Holy Baptism were not at the back of the hymnal, where they're supposed to be, but in the front. It's referred to as "in your face editing." And the result was to cause an awareness of baptism, the likes of which has not been present in the church for over 100 years.

A committee was formed with representatives from three agencies: the General Board of Discipleship, the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry, the General Commission on Church Unity and Interreligious Concerns, plus theologians from the differing theological points of view, and others to make up the inclusiveness of the committee. We began meeting in 1989, working with drafts that were prepared for each meeting, held in different regions of the country, so that we could talk with both laity and clergy who had been sent the latest draft of the document, and met with us for a session to share with us their opinions of it.

By 1992, we felt we had a pretty good document, but we still did not have consensus on some knotty problems. And so we submitted our work to that 1992 General Conference under the title, By Water and the Spirit, and asked that it be sent to the connection as a whole, along with a study guide and a response questionnaire, to be returned to the committee by fall of 1995. I understand that 20,000 copies of the study guide were sold by the beginning of 1995. The committee received 1,200 responses, which we read, discussed, and used to sharpen and focus a final draft, which was sent to all of you along with our proposed legislation.

Results of Baptism Study

We have now completed our assignment and placed it in your hands. But I feel that we have accomplished much more. The baptismal study has served as a catalyst for denomination-wide discussion of who we are as Christians. Although we were not responsible for the new baptism ritual, a great number of the questions directed to us have been questions about elements in the ritual. And the questions about the ritual correspond to the issues at the heart of Christian identity, beginning with the renunciations. The question arose immediately, why do we have to use such primitive language, such as renouncing evils powers of this world? Why do we pray that the infants be washed of sin? Have we not gone beyond such pre-scientific ways of discussing human nature, especially in little children? Why do we say baptism is initiation into the church? Why the prayer over the water with its rehearsal of the history of salvation? Why the laying on of hands in the act of confirmation? Why not postpone baptism until the individual can decide for himself or herself? Why not rebaptize? The church that seeks the answers to these questions has returned to the source, to one of the wells from which we draw the waters of renewal.

The study has also proved to be a resource for the renewal of ministry for many pastors, which has been another gratifying byproduct of the study. I offer my own testimony as an example. Before I took this assignment eight years ago, I was a typical United Methodist pastor, which meant baptism was something I rarely ever thought about. It was something that I did for families, and I treated baptism in that way in the worship, as a distraction. I got 'em in, got 'em done, and then got 'em out. And when I was appointed to serve on this committee, I thought I'd better try the new ritual, in case somebody who knew my position should stumble into worship some day. So I did. And the result has been a transformation of my understanding of my ministry, a transformation of the life of my congregation, and my own personal life.

Baptism is no longer seen as a service that we perform for families, but as the initiating sacrament of the church, to be celebrated in the worship of the church, not only as the initiation of new members, but through its rehearsal of who we are. It's an opportunity for God to renew us as individuals, and as the church.

And finally, the committee's work has demonstrated that it is possible for us to discuss an issue on which there are sharp divisions of opinion and find common ground. We do not think it is presumptuous to suggest that the committee's work is an example of how Christians from differing points of view can find unity. The committee's life together was a practical application of the theme of this conference, "In essentials, unity; in nonessentials, liberty; and in all things, charity." It was no picnic, but we did it. And as a result we received criticism from both sides of the theological scrimmage. But we receive encouragement also from the old story about the field commander who said, when his troops said that they felt that he was moving too fast, and his general said that he was moving too slow, he figured he was at the right place. And when criticism came equally from both sides, we figured that our work was done, and we stopped.

There are statements here in this document that some will feel to be compromises. And they are right, but we believe they are appropriate and defensible, given our task to find common ground on which all of us can stand as United Methodists in thinking about baptism.

Members of Baptism Study Committee Introduced

We propose that By Water and the Spirit, the United Methodists' Understanding of Baptism is a foundation document for discussing our unity. The names of those who have served on the committee are listed at the conclusion of the report on page 235. I want to name them as a way of thanking them for their contribution. Some of them we've managed to get here on the stage, others are in the room someplace, and others are not able to be here at this conference. Dan Benedict, Oley Borgen, Sang E. Chun, Dale Dunlap, John Ewing, Gayle Felton, John Gooch, Sharon Hels, Pat Jelinek, Chuck Kishbaugh, Tom Langford, Jean Audrey Powers, Thomas Salsgiver, Stanley Washington, and Garnet Wilder.

There are two that I want to thank especially. First Peggy Sewall, who was the secretary for the committee for all these eight years, and made sense out of what must have seemed at times, a babel of tongues, and consistently and quietly contributed wisdom and grace to our proceedings. She was a gift to this committee.

And Dale Dunlap, who did the hard work of writing the many drafts of the paper during the committee's formative days in the first quadrennium. I don't know if you can appreciate what it is to spend hours and hours writing something and then submit it to 15 people who then begin to tear it apart. There must be a circle in hell where that is the punishment.

(laughter)

For four years, through at least four drafts, this brilliant, faithful, and gracious man, served his church, as he has done so many times over the years. We are most grateful for Dale Dunlap's contribution to our committee.

(applause)

It is now my pleasure to introduce to you, Gayle Felton. Gail teaches at Duke Divinity School. She's made valuable contributions to the work of this committee, and as many of you know, she's been a kind of ambassador for the committee, introducing By Water and the Spirit on scores of occasions to both clergy and laity, and giving them at the same time, an invaluable education in Methodist history and sacramental theology. She will now give you a brief tour through By Water and the Spirit.

By Water and the Spirit

GAYLE FELTON: Good morning! Several years ago, I read in Christianity Today magazine, a kind of mythical account of a softball game. The softball game was being played between a wide range of persons of various denominations. And without going into the details that developed as that story was told, I was simply struck by a characterization in it, this story being written by a Presbyterian, and his comment at one point was, "Oh we love to play softball with the United Methodists. They don't care what the rules are." I've been struck by that, and have remembered it since, because I fear that this has often been the stereotype of Methodism that has come to us from other denominations, and indeed, the stereotype of United Methodism that has sometimes existed even within our own denomination.

Do United Methodists believe anything? Or do we make the appeal that we're sometimes accused of making, "Come on and be a United Methodist, you don't have to believe nothing." I don't believe this is the position we want our church to be in. I don't believe that it is the position that we are in. This, to me, has been one of the great values of the work that we have done on the Baptism Study. It is, I believe, the great value of this document to the church, as it serves us henceforth, as a guide, as a source, as a touchstone. For not only our understanding of the sacrament, but more broadly, our understanding of theology.

For baptism cannot really be limited to a particular ceremonial act conducted by a minister on a Sunday morning involving one child or adult. In talking about the meaning of baptism, we are talking about our understanding of who God is, of who we are in relationship to God, we are talking about how the brokenness of our relationship with God, with each other, with the natural world, and indeed even with our own best selves; how that brokenness, how that alienation can be overcome. What God has done to make it possible for us to come into saving relationship with God through Jesus Christ. We are talking when we think about baptism as well, about the meaning of the church, and what it is that the church has to do with our relationship with God. Why is it that God has given us the church, and within the church, the sacraments, referred to as "means of grace,"—ways that God's grace comes to us and is active and transformative in our lives?

As you look at the baptism document, By Water and the Spirit, as it is printed in your copy volume one of the DCA, beginning on page 227. I'm certainly not going to read the document, or even to summarize it, but I do want us to look together for a few moments, at the overall plan or layout of the document, and some of the foundational thinking that, it seems to me, undergirds the whole thing.

By Water and the Spirit Rooted in History

The first page, and indeed continuing over into the second page of the document, is really a very condensed historical, theological survey of the United Methodist tradition. United Methodism is a mediating tradition. It is a church in which, I believe, some of the best elements of the Christian faith, as they are exemplified in a variety of other denominations, are brought together, are combined, are synthesized, to make up what we as United Methodists believe. This, indeed, is in line with our heritage. A part of the recovery of United Methodism today and in the future, I believe, will be our recovery of the significance of our heritage. It is in knowing how we got to this place, that we will be able to examine the realities of the life of our Church today, and work toward a revitalization of our ministry in the world tomorrow.

So, in this document, as indeed as in our baptismal rituals, we are looking back to the classical Christian tradition in which we stand. And we are looking back specifically to the Wesleyan tradition that we have inherited from our founders. When we look at the Wesleyan tradition, we must remind ourselves that John Wesley was an Anglican priest, not just an Anglican priest until he became a Methodist, but indeed an Anglican priest all of his life. He had no desire to leave the Anglican Church, he only wished to rekindle the flame of God's spirit burning within it. And so, Wesley is not just an Anglican priest, but he is also a Methodist revivalist, a fervent evangelical, preaching the necessity of a personal experience of rebirth, in commitment and discipleship to Jesus Christ.

Now these are two aspects of Christian theology, that we often believe are separate. And indeed, that we sometimes believe are actually opposing and contradictory to each other.

Wesley and Baptism

GAYLE FELTON: We have a tendency to split off what we consider the evangelical, revivalistic view of faith from what we consider the sacramental, ecclesiastical understanding. But in truth, this is not an option for United Methodists. Such a split is not an option for us if we are going to be authentic to our heritage, if we are going to proclaim the version of the gospel, if you will, that God raised up the United Methodists to proclaim. For John Wesley was able to create a synthesis, a blend or combination of the high Anglican, ecclesiastical, sacramental side of his belief, with the fervent, revivalistic, evangelicalism that he proclaimed actively in the many decades of his ministry.

This synthesis, this belief that God works through the church, and through the sacraments of the church, in a very powerful and special way. And yet, at the same time, God expects, indeed requires, each individual to come into saving relationship with God through trusting surrender and commitment to Christ.

Wesley holds those wholes of the faith together. And neither one alone is Wesleyan. Neither one alone is authentic United Methodism. Mediating positions, synthesis positions, are difficult to maintain. It is much easier to go to extremes on issues than it is to see the truth of all sides and hold those together. And unfortunately, for us contemporary United Methodists, John Wesley's creative synthesis of sacramentalism and evangelicalism did not survive the passage across the Atlantic to the United States without sustaining some damage and change.

When Methodism first came to what is now the United States, we know that it came into a society very different from the society of Great Britain where it had its origins. For example, John Wesley's revisions of the Book of Common Prayer, which he sent over to America as the guide is for the Sunday service for the Methodists in North America. This very carefully done, and to Wesley, very important guide to worship was, in truth, rather flippantly tossed aside by most of the early Methodist preachers, lay preachers they were, and indeed even by the first ordained preachers in Methodism in America after 1784, when the Methodist Episcopal Church was officially created.

Most of the worship life of early Methodists, and with that term I include, of course, the traditions that make up the Evangelical Church and the United Brethren Church with which we are now one family. Most of the worship in these early traditions was worship that was quite informal, focusing upon hymn singing, Bible reading, preaching the word, and praying. And Wesley's sacramentalism, while never lost, was certainly de-emphasized and depreciated in the American environment.

I don't think though that we should go too far with this; we should remind ourselves that even in the midst of camp-meeting revivalism, and camp-meeting revivalism was, of course, typical of Methodism in the 17th Century. Even in the midst of this very evangelical expression of the faith, the sacraments continued to have their place in every camp meeting there was often Holy Communion and every camp meeting climaxed with the service of baptism. But it is certainly true that as far as the balance between sacramentalism and evangelicalism that Wesley had developed, the scales do not stay in balance, and there is much more stress upon the evangelical and much less upon the significance of sacraments. As the century goes on, another change occurs in that Methodism ceases to be as interested in emphasizing the necessity of personal conversion and commitment to Christ. And so we no longer find the strong root of evangelical, revivalistic appeal for personal conversion and commitment.

Baptism in the UMC Today

This, it seems to me, underlies a great deal of our difficulties as a denomination today. We have taken the two parts of the Wesley synthesis, the sacramentalism and the evangelicalism, we have torn them asunder. We have de-emphasized the sacramental part quite early in our history in this country and later in our history, we have de-emphasized the evangelical part. And now we wonder why we are losing tens of thousands of members every year. I submit this because we no longer know who we are. We no longer know what we believe. We no longer know what God has called us to do.

It is not that I am foolish enough or naive enough to believe that this document or any document is going to reform and rechannel the church. But I do believe that it does give us the opportunity to recover the authentic identity, and the powerfully important mission, for which God has raised up the people called United Methodists.

As the document goes on, I will only point to the major headings, since time is short. In the second column on 228, and on to the following page, we have simply tried to outline a kind of basic theological understanding that recognizes the reality of human sin and brokenness; recognizes that as human beings we are utterly dependent upon the initiative of God the outreaching love embrace of God, what Wesley called "preventive grace,"—if that brokenness is to be healed.

Recognizing, on page 229, the absolute necessity of the human response of faith to the gift of God offered to us. And continuing on that page you see a section entitled, "The Means by which God's Grace Comes to Us." We believe, as United Methodists, that God has chosen to work in the church, not just in the church, thank goodness, but God has chosen to work in and through the church for the salvation of the world, and has given to the church certain means through which God's grace can be received.

Then there is the beginning of a lengthy section on page 229 and continuing for some pages there after, talking about the meaning of baptism in the overall understanding of life of faith. And here I simply want to say that the term baptism, as this document uses it is not limited to a particular occasion of administration of water in the name of the triune God with one particular person on one particular morning in one particular worship service. Baptism is seen as part of the process of salvation. For Wesley, unlike for some other traditions, for Wesley salvation is not an event; salvation is a process that works throughout our lives.

And, therefore, baptism is understood correctly only as a part of that process, not in isolation from it. That process calls upon us that every point in our lives as Christians to be open to the working of God's grace and to continue to be nurtured in the faith toward deeper commitment and holiness of life.

In the very last section of the document, prior to the conclusion, page 239, we have carried out the duty with which the General Conference charged us of talking about baptism in relation to other rights of the church. And then finally a concluding statement, in which an attempt has been made to draw together the major emphases of the document. I commend it to you for use in the church, we believe that the experience of creating By Water and the Spirit has been an experience of grace for us. Indeed we know that the committee, as individuals and as a group, has been privileged and touched by the love and grace of God in a special way.

We hope and pray that By Water and the Spirit will function in the United Methodist Church to remind us in a powerful way of the outreaching love of God in Jesus Christ that claims us in baptism as God's own. And the power of that grace to enable us to make the human response of faith through which we become the people God intends for us to be. Thank you.

PAUL ERVIN: I want to take just a moment to thank both Gail and Dale as well as Mark and Peggy Sewell who were so patient with the Discipleship Legislative Committee. We spent about a day to a day-and-a-half on this matter. Every question was answered. And I think that we all can probably get an extra three hours of credit from some seminary somewhere from that experience.

But would you, as a conference, show your appreciation to this study committee for what they've done for our church?

Bishop, there are two items, and I would ask you at this time if you would take out your blue book, page 169. There are two consent agenda items: number 419 and 420. And at this time I would like to ask Greg Stover who is from the West Ohio Conference, he chaired our baptism sub-committee, to come forward to present these petitions.

By Water and the Word Inclusive Language

GREGORY STOVER (sub-committee chair, Discipleship Committee): Thank you. I'm Greg Stover from the West Ohio Conference, and I would like to direct your attention first of all in the blue book, page 169, to Calendar Item 419. This refers to an item in the red book, Volume One, page 945, petition number 21426. The legislative section amended this petition by deleting the words "age or intellectual ability, race or nationality, gender or sexual identity, class or handicapping conditions" so that the paragraph simply reads, "Therefore, all persons shall be eligible..." The rationale is that this brings the language in the Discipline in conformity with the language of By Water and the Spirit, which we have already acted upon. It's simplified language that avoids the need to continually be adding lists or items to lists and categories. The Discipleship section recommends concurrence with this item as amended. The vote was 98 for, 16 against, and 1 not voting.

BISHOP GROVE: All right. Calendar Item 419 is before you with a recommendation of concurrence from the committee. Anyone wish to speak to it? Yes, over here, if you'll come to microphone two.

RICHARD PARKER (New York): Bishop, I guess...

I guess the only way to restore that would be a move to amend the committee report to restore that language which says without regard to race, color, etc., to the calendar item, and I would so move, Bishop.

BISHOP GROVE: Well, I think that if you...you can do it that way, or if you vote this petition down, it essentially leaves it that way.

PARKER: Bishop, if we vote the petition down, there are other amendments...

BISHOP GROVE: All right. We'll receive this as an amendment. You would move to restore the stricken lines in the second through about the seventh. Beginning "without regard" and ending with "handicapping conditions."

PARKER: Yes, Bishop.

BISHOP GROVE: Is there a second? There is. You want to speak to it?

PARKER: Please. I wish we had had a chance to consider that item in regard to the baptism study as well. I would have liked to see that language retained there. I believe we do need to specify those persons very, very clearly who are included not only in the total life of the church and the membership of the church but also entitled to receive the sacrament of baptism in our churches. We know from our own experience that there are people who are denied baptism as a result of being a part of some of those groups named there. One is a person who grew up in my church, now attends a different church, and I told her story in a press conference last week when she and her partner, a family with two mothers, brought the child, or asked the pastor to baptize the child and was told that that child could not be baptized because of the lifestyle of her parents. I feel that we need to be very clear about this. We need to name specifically what we mean by inclusion in The United Methodist Church, and I hope we will restore that language.

BISHOP GROVE: All right. The amendment is before you. Anyone want to speak against the amendment? I don't see anyone. Do you wish to speak?

STOVER: Yes I do. Thank you.

BISHOP GROVE: Then we'll vote.

STOVER: We would oppose the amendment that has been proposed on the floor. I would reiterate once again that this brings language and conformity to that which we have already acted upon. It's simpler language. The listing of multiple categories is unnecessary. The word all, indeed, is very inclusive. All means what it says: all persons. By placing these lists of categories in this particular legislation, it also simply raises red flags to a number of persons across our church. So we would urge you to defeat this amendment.

BISHOP GROVE: All right, vote when the light appears on the amendment.

BISHOP GROVE: The amendment is defeated, and the petition is before you. Anyone else wish to speak to it? I heard a voice. Yes, back here. If you will come to the middle to microphone eight. Please give your name and conference.

LUCILLE VANZANT (Oklahoma Conference): If I was not a member of The United Methodist Church in America, the word "all" might have a different significance. It might mean all men, all women, all white, all black. The United Methodist Church has become known over the world as being an inclusive type of congregation. Whereby, we spell out what we mean. We tell people that we care for women, for men, for ethnics, for handicapping conditions. We tell the world that we love all people, and sometimes people cannot understand that until it's spelled out that we love our neighbors, and we spell out who those neighbors are. Thank you.

BISHOP GROVE: All right. Thank you. I think that speech was on the amendment upon which we had already acted. But the petition is before us. Any other perfection amendments or speeches for or against? Are you ready? I think you are. Vote on the petition 419 when the light appears. [838 approved]

BISHOP GROVE: It is approved.

Practice of Rebaptism

STOVER: We would now direct your attention once again in the blue book, same page, 169, just to the top of the second column. Calendar Item 420. This refers to an item in your red volume one on page 1058. Petition number 21457. This amendment comes to...or this petition comes as amended from the legislative section. The amendment which we have made in the legislative section is under paragraph C. To delete the last sentence: "The sacrament of baptism may not be repeated" and to insert these words: "The practice of rebaptism does not conform with God's action in baptism and is not consistent with Wesleyan tradition and the historic teaching of the church. Therefore, the pastor should counsel any persons seeking rebaptism to participate in a rite of re-affirmation of baptismal vows." This amendment was passed in the section upon the recommendation of the Baptismal Study Committee. It was an attempt which would reconcile the concerns of those who want a very firm understanding of our baptismal theology expressed on one hand and those who want to provide room for pastoral conscience on the other. There is a minority report on this item. But our section recommended concurrence: for, 91, against, 11, and 2 not voting.

BISHOP GROVE: All right. The petition is before you. As has been indicated there is a minority report. The way we will handle this will be to hear from a representative of the minority, then we will go to perfect the main motion. After having done that, we will perfect the minority report and then entertain it as a substitute, voting on it as a substitute motion after both have been perfected. Who is here to speak for the minority?

STOVER: The minority report will be presented by Charles Brockwell.

CHARLES BROCKWELL (Louisville Conference): Bishop Grove, sisters and brothers of the General Conference, the minority simply asks that the original wording proposed by the General Board of Discipleship be retained. The issue is very simple and very clear. We believe that as our doctrine is quite clear on the issue of rebaptism, especially with the study document that we have just adopted, that the Discipline should be equally clear, and that the Discipline should clearly say there shall not be rebaptism. We do not think this will be administered harshly across the church but administered pastorally by our bishops and our district superintendents. And as one person who teaches our polity to seminarians, I very much need to be able to say to my new pastors in formation: know clearly when you are instructing your people, and when persons come to you asking for rebaptism, that the Discipline says that we do not rebaptize. And that's why the minority moves this minority report. Thank you.

BISHOP GROVE: All right. We'll look now at the petition as it comes to us from the majority. Are there any motions to amend? Any perfection? I see no one.

BISHOP GROVE: I see no one. Then we'll go to the minority report, and see if they're any amendments to it. If not, the two issues will be clearly before us as they've been presented by either side. Any amendment? Yes. This is an amendment to the minority report. All right. He yielded. Then what we need is a motion to substitute the minority report for the majority report, and after that motion's is put then the whole issue will be debated. Put that motion. All right, the minority report is before you. Yes over here, come to microphone seven. This is speech for the minority report?

BISHOP GROVE: Well, all right, you're in order.

RILEY CASE (North Indiana): The minority report proposes something that's never been known in United Methodist history and tradition, mainly that rebaptism, that is baptizing someone a second time, under any circumstances, is not only inappropriate and wrong, but it will not be tolerated, and it is very possibly a chargeable offense. In a day of theological confusion, it's good to see an absolutist stand of some kind. Unfortunately, this is the wrong issue on which to take an absolutist stand. Let us have unity on essentials, but I hope this is not what we as a General Conference affirm as an essential of the faith. It is a non-essential. Let us have liberty.

BISHOP GROVE: All right, now we're ready for a motion in favor of the minority report. Anyone wish to speak in favor of the minority report? All right, are you ready? Yes, down here I see a hand. Microphone four.

JAMES LAWSON (California-Pacific): I want to speak, bishop, I want to speak on behalf of retaining the language that the Board of Discipleship has sent us. It seems to me that there is freedom for us to counsel as pastors diligently with people who have issues of baptism. I've discovered as a pastor across the last thirty/forty years, that by having reaffirmations of baptism by seeing baptism as a sacramental element of the church, as a means of grace, and as encouraging my congregations again and again during the year to reaffirm that baptism both when we're baptizing others, and then through rituals that are available and for which I'm happy. One has been put into the new hymnal. I think that language does leave us where we ought to be so far as our understanding of baptism is concerned. We pastors still have the responsibility of helping people to come to understand this, and therefore applying it in a fashion that indeed represents grace.

BISHOP GROVE: All right, that's two speeches for and one against. Is there another speech against? The minority. Yes, here. Microphone seven.

VICTOR GOLDSCHMIDT (North Indiana): I speak with some fear that I may not be able to control myself through this process. My daughter had a second baptism, and I would have given everything I own for that to have taken place. We are acting here a little bit too legalistically. I would like to ask that pastors present, how many of them have never been involved in a rebaptism? I'd like to ask those that visited the Holy Land, how many of them did not see some evidence of a second baptism? I cannot find anything in the scriptures that guides us to this decision that second baptism is inconsistent with the word. I do agree and I understand our theology is not and the wording now and the petition that was accepted in the Book of Resolutions makes that clear. We do not need to make now a dividing line. Please, I plead with you. Thank you.

BISHOP GROVE: All right we've had two speeches on either side. We can have one more on either side, and then the two representatives of the minority and the majority will have an opportunity to speak. Anyone else? Yes, down here. I think what we need now is a speech for the minority. All right, microphone three.

BILL AUVENSHINE (Central Texas):

BISHOP GROVE: Thank you.

BILL AUVENSHINE: I speak for the retention of the language. I'm certainly no theologian, but I think God got it right the first time. I worked on the Book of Worship for four years. We have a worship service of reaffirmation in the Book of Worship. That should be sufficient to reaffirm our baptism, if we believe, in fact, that God got it right.

BISHOP GROVE: All right, you're entitled to the one more speech against, if there is one. If not we'll go to the representatives. I don't see any hand. Yes. Yes, down here. Microphone five.

need from the Chair. In respect of rebaptism, now does this relate to the particular church? Do you have a situation where someone has been baptized in another denomination, and wants to be a Methodist? Those been baptized there, can he not be rebaptized in Methodism?

BISHOP GROVE: You address the question to the Chair. I would love to answer it, but I don't think it's appropriate. We'll ask the representative of the committee to answer the question.

STOVER: It's not only the theological position of the United Methodist Church, but of most churches that there is only one baptism; that God has entered into covenant and grace with us at our baptism, and it does not need to be renewed. It should not be renewed. If someone transfers their membership from one church to another the receiving church recognizes the baptism of the church that performed the baptism originally.

BISHOP GROVE: Thank you for the answer. Now there's the opportunity for another statement against it still here. Yes, back here. Microphone...

MICHAEL B. SLAUGHTER (West Ohio): This is a tremendous study report back to our conference. And it really emphasizes the tension we have in The United Methodist Church, and we live in this tension. My fear with this minority report is that this could become the new fundamentalism in the church. I would encourage us to vote against the minority report.

BISHOP GROVE: All right. Under our rules, we are now under the previous question, three speeches on either side. We'll hear first from the representative of the minority and then from the chair of the committee, and then we'll vote.

BROCKWELL: Thank you, sir. Our Discipline will be pastorally administered. And as we know, there are miles to go between a problem and anything like charges being brought. Just last week, one of our probationary members of conference called me long distance with this pastoral question about a potential rebaptism problem. And as we discussed it and she outlined for me what she knew about the situation, it was not clear that there had been baptism in the first instance. And my counsel to her was to do this baptism and to be pastorally sensitive, but the voice of the church in its Discipline needs to be as straightforward as is its doctrine. Page 232 of the red DCA, column 2, the section in the baptismal study on God's faithfulness to the covenant is the theological foundation. This is the disciplinary doing of that doctrine. Thank you.

BISHOP GROVE: All right. Speak for the majority.

GREGORY D. STOVER (West Ohio): I think there are two issues that are in tension before us. One is an issue of clarity of understanding. We are clear that we understand that rebaptism is not the normal, nor is not within our theological context. But there is a second issue, and that is the issue of clarity of application or implementation. What this language seeks to do, which is before you in the majority report, is it seeks to bring those two together in a sensitive and a well thought out way, in a way that helps us to understand that we need to make a firm statement about our theological understanding of baptism, and yet that we need to realize that it is a nonessential though important doctrine and needs to leave room for pastoral conscience. I would reiterate the fact that even though rebaptism was debated all through the 1800's, and even though the position of the Methodist Church throughout the 1800's was always against rebaptism, it was never stated in a way that could be in any way construed as not allowing freedom of conscience and some latitude for pastors. We hope that you will allow that latitude and the freedom to operate pastorally.

BISHOP GROVE: All right. The issue is clear. If you will vote to substitute the minority for the majority report on this issue, you will vote yes. If you want to stay with the majority report as it's stated, you will vote no. Vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 348; no, 599; abstained, 7] The substitute is defeated, and the petition is before us as it's stated, 419. If you are ready, vote when the light appears. [833 approved] It is supported. Mr. Ervin.

PAUL R. ERVIN JR. (North Georgia): It has been recommended that when Dr. Felton's remarks are printed in the DCA that you might want to preserve copies of that for use in your local conferences. I want to thank all of the people, this morning, who have helped us in this process. We're finishing on the button for the day. Thank you, bishop.

BISHOP GROVE: Thank you very much, and thanks again to the study committee. (applause) We go now back to the Committee on Conferences. George Hunter is the chairperson to present calendar items.

GEORGE HUNTER (Florida): Like most of you, the Committee on Conferences put in a full month last week, and I was pleased to work with our vice chair, Judith Siaba of the Northern Illinois Conference and our secretary Beth Cook from the North Georgia Conference. Today we bring eleven legislative petitions to your attention. You will find them in the DCA for Saturday on pages 167 and 168. They're marked as items 406 through 416. We will commend action on ten of them and will move to defer consideration on one of them.

Calendar Item 406 Petitions Involving Funding Requests

The first is item 406. The original petition will be found in your red book on page 181. It is petition number 21558. This is its essence: the petition proposes that all petitions to General Conference involving proposals that would require funding, either for new programs or expansions of existing programs, must be accompanied by noting its estimated cost as well as noting what the source of that funding would be; and the petition would be invalid and would not be considered before the General Conference without that cost estimate and the acknowledged source of funding.

Our committee voted nonconcurrency by 66 to 11, with this rationale. We believe the petition had merit; there's certainly a limit to the number of good ideas that any one denomination can fund and thereby implement. Nevertheless, the majority of our group found the petition unnecessarily restrictive and would be tantamount to saying to most of the church that we don't really want people's contribution to this important process. Bishop, it is appropriately before us.

BISHOP GROVE: All right. It is before you, the recommendation of nonconcurrency. Anyone wish to speak to it? All right. If you want to support the committee, you will vote yes to nonconcur. If you wish to oppose the committee, you will vote no. Vote when the light appears. [818 approved] The committee is supported. We nonconcur with Calendar Item 406.

*Calendar Item 407
Annual Conference Flexibility in Mission*

HUNTER: Calendar Item 407 is described in the red book, page 175. It comes from petition 20063. The essence of the petition is to allow annual conferences greater flexibility to organize for their understanding of their distinct mission and their region and culture. Our committee voted concurrence as amended. As I recall, 71 for and 4 against, reminiscent of a University of Kentucky half-time basketball score. (laughter) Our vote was accompanied with this rationale. The idea of allowing flexibility in the conferences and in the churches has considerable support in a great many petitions coming before this General Conference, and many conferences are already doing what this petition would give permission for. They've been there. They've done that. It was our reasoning that that is the direction in which this parade of conferences is already marching. Therefore, the General Conference needs to run around and get in front of this parade because we're supposed to be the leaders.

Constitutional Amendment

BISHOP GROVE: This is a constitutional amendment. It will take two-thirds. Anyone wish to speak to it? I see no card. All right. It will take two-thirds vote. Vote yes for concurrence, which is the committee's recommendation, no for nonconcurrency. Vote when the light appears. [895 approved] It is supported by more than two-thirds, so it is approved.

HUNTER: Bishop, Calendar Item 408, that petition is found in the red book, page 175. On that page you will find petition 20961. That petition proposes that annual conference delegates to General and Jurisdictional Conferences be elected out of a calculation that combines the total of church members and clergy, not on the basis of clergy alone as we have it at present.

HUNTER: This is the one upon which I need to ask that we defer consideration on this petition until we take up similar petitions later that deal with more or less the same concern. The rationale for this request is that we initially concurred with this petition as we had amended it some. But the more some of our members thought about this, the more some thought that it required further study. And therefore, when we revisit this, we will propose that, and we would like to defer this now.

HUNTER: The next item is number 409. You'll find it in the white book.

BISHOP GROVE: George, let me interrupt just a moment to remind the house, I think they all know this, but just to be sure, the constitutional amendment we just passed on paragraph 15 will also require a vote in all of the annual conferences, and an aggregate two-thirds vote of all the annual conferences. So we have not actually implemented that. We've taken the first step toward amending the constitution. I just wanted to be clear. OK.

Publication of Petitions in DCA

HUNTER: Thank you. In the white book, page 1263, you'll find petition 20783. In its essence, this petition proposes that petitions to the General Conference may come from lay persons or clergy persons or from groups of United Methodists. Our Committee on Conferences voted concurrence to this, by a vote of 45 to 32. I can reflect the discussion on both sides, I think, very briefly. Some folks had some resistance about petitions coming to the General Conference from unrecognized or unofficial groups of United Methodists. But on the other side, the majority seemed to feel that because any United Methodist is free to petition the General Conference, therefore, any group of United Methodists ought to be free to petition General Conference, and in any case, the spirit of this, of any resistance to it, would be unenforceable because individuals of groups would simply petition General Conference as individuals rather than as groups, and would thereby storm General Conference with even more petitions. And we were not in the mood, at that moment at least, to welcome still more petitions.

BISHOP GROVE: So the committee's recommending concurrence?

HUNTER: Yes.

BISHOP GROVE: All right. It's before you. Clear back in the corner, go to microphone six.

DENNY WHITE (Western North Carolina): I believe Dr. Hunter gave the wrong rationale for this petition. This petition, does it not, has to do with publishing petitions from individuals in the Advance DCA that we receive in the mail?

HUNTER: Well, I thought I wrote it down right, but, Bishop, what is the procedure for checking the validity of this?

BISHOP GROVE: The suggestion is that we're dealing with a different petition than you thought we were, is that it? I'm not sure. We're on 409, correct?

HUNTER: Yes. I'm on 1263 in the white book.

BISHOP GROVE: Yes, OK, I'm told by my helper that the comment from the floor was correct. The Calendar Item 409 has to do with printing petitions.

HUNTER: Ah, OK, yes, thank you. Then our vote to concurrence would be commended to you as has been corrected.

BISHOP GROVE: All right, it's before you. Question? I heard this, yes, here. Come to number seven.

VICTOR GOLDSCHMIDT (North Indiana): I wonder whether an estimate was made of how many pages this would be if all the petitions that are going to be published submitted by individuals and groups, we're going to have a massive, massive documentation mailed to us. And I'm concerned by this. The principle is good, but the cost may be overwhelming. Also for those receiving it, trying to read it all.

HUNTER: We did not discuss that at great range, but as I recall, we felt like the publishing of petitions from groups would reduce rather than increase the number of petitions we would receive.

BISHOP GROVE: Down here. I'm sorry. Yes. Go ahead.

GOLDSCHMIDT: Is not the petition to publish those submitted by individuals as well?

HUNTER: Yes, that's correct.

GOLDSCHMIDT: Thank you.

BISHOP GROVE: Yes, down here. Microphone three.

DAVE RICHARDSON (California-Pacific): I think the real issue, from our perspective, came down to having them all in one book, so we wouldn't be going back and forth from book to book, and also, simply recognizing that they were of equal weight. And I think that's why we voted in favor; the ones that did.

BISHOP GROVE: All right, as I have it, that's two speeches for and one against. Anyone want to speak against this? Back here. Come to microphone eight.

JUNE McCULLOUGH (Southern New Jersey): Bishop, is an amendment in order?

BISHOP GROVE: Yes.

McCULLOUGH: I would move that following the word "submitted by" we add: "local churches," and then continue on.

BISHOP GROVE: So you would insert between "submitted by an individual member," local churches, and then it would go on individual members, etc.?

McCULLOUGH: It would read, "petitions properly submitted by local churches, (comma), individual members, (comma), and so forth..."

BISHOP GROVE: OK, is that amendment seconded? (second from floor) It is.

McCULLOUGH: May I make a statement?

BISHOP GROVE: Yes.

McCULLOUGH: It seems to me that we have a large number of petitions also from local churches, and they ought to be given equal consideration as those from individuals or groups. And it's extremely helpful if they're all in one volume.

BISHOP GROVE: All right, that's an amendment to the petition. Does anyone want to speak against it?

HUNTER: I think we'd regard that as a friendly amendment.

BISHOP GROVE: Unless the house objects, it will be included. I see no objection. All right, the petition has been amended. Center aisle, on the right. Yes, back here, come to microphone thirteen.

JAMES PERRY (Troy): James Perry, Troy Conference. I believe that June McCullough's amendment is redundant. Local church groups are already included.

HUNTER: I think that's essentially correct. With her addition, it then permits individuals or groups of people within a church, or the whole church, to submit a petition.

BISHOP GROVE: Well, I think that Jim Perry is suggesting that local churches can submit them for inclusion in the Advance DCA under the present rules. We didn't need to amend it, but we have amended it, and unless we move to reconsider it, it stays in. All right. We're not reconsidering unless someone asks to do that. We're on the petition itself. Are you ready? Yes, down here. If you go to microphone nine.

JEFF SITTS (Minnesota): "The weight of our white books right now is like a pound. What would the cost be of mailing the white book added to the red DCA, and mailing all that to every delegate? We'd add a lot of cost?"

BISHOP GROVE: What's your question again?

SITTS: What would be the cost of mailing the white book as inserted into the red DCA under the amendment so far?

BISHOP GROVE: What would be the cost if the white book as we now get here was part of the red book? That's a question I can't answer. Anyone want to answer that? We don't have that information. All right. That was a question. Question back here? Yes, go to microphone eight.

JUNE McCULLOUGH (Southern New Jersey): Bishop, I want to be sure I heard your statement correctly. You said that local church petitions are already in the Advance DCA? I do not believe that is true.

BISHOP GROVE: I said that that was what Jim Perry said. (laughter) I don't know.

McCULLOUGH: Sir, I do not think that's correct.

BISHOP GROVE: All right. It's irrelevant because your amendment prevailed, and nobody moved to reconsider it, so it will be in there the next time. Anyone else? Hand back here. I saw a green card right off this aisle. Yes. Go to microphone nine.

JOE HARRIS (Oklahoma): I move all that is before us.

BISHOP GROVE: All right, is there a second? (second from floor) There is. We've had two speeches, so that's in order. No debate on the call for the previous question. The previous question is on the petition, which is all that is before us. Vote when the light appears. It takes two-thirds. [825 approved]

We're on the previous question and we'll vote. If you support the committee's recommendation on the petition, vote yes. If you do not support the committee, vote no. Vote when the light appears. [843 approved] It is supported.

HUNTER: Bishop, the next petition is Calendar Item 410 found in the red book, page 176.

BISHOP GROVE: Yes, what is your point of order? Come to microphone two.

JINNY GORDON (Central Illinois): Is there a way we can keep that line on the screen giving us the page numbers and things? As we flip back and forth, it would really be helpful if it doesn't keep disappearing. If it's helpful, if you can, we'd like that to happen, I think.

BISHOP GROVE: Well, I'm sure the people heard that, and will do it, if possible. It's technically not a point of order, but it's all right.

HUNTER: In the red book, on page 176. (point of order from floor)

BISHOP GROVE: Yes, what's your point of order? Come to microphone, well, I don't see you. Come to microphone nine. Yes.

Difficulty in Bishops Seeing Speakers

GRAYSON ATHA (West Ohio): My point of order is not being seen. And the number of people in our delegation and in the back parts are having cards up, and I know it's very difficult for you to see. Perhaps there's some way that could be developed for later sessions, so that you, the person in the chair, can be aware of people trying to get the floor in the back. Thank you.

BISHOP GROVE: Thank you. It is very difficult to see against these lights, and against the back bleachers. Let me ask, while I'm in the chair, if people in the back will stand when you raise your card? I'll do my best.

HUNTER: In Volume One of the advanced copy of the DCA on page 176, you'll find petition number 21127, which is Calendar Item 410 in Saturday's DCA.

Constitutional Amendment on Annual Conference College Student Representation

GEORGE HUNTER: The essence of this proposal would add the chair of the Annual Conference college student organization to the paragraph of the constitution which defines the ex-officio members of the annual conference. Our committee voted concurrence with this 75 to nothing, but it is before us rather than on the consent calendar because this, too, would amend the constitution.

BISHOP GROVE: All right, it's before you. Does anyone in the back want to speak to this? (laughter) Or anyone in the front? Or anywhere? Yes, down here. Number eight.

SUSAN RUACH: (South Indiana) I have a question. Is this the same as the young adult council?

BISHOP GROVE: No.

RUACH: Thank you.

BISHOP GROVE: All right, anyone else?

HUNTER: It would be in addition to that person.

BISHOP GROVE: I think you're ready. Vote when the light appears. Yes, two-thirds, this is a constitutional amendment. (pause) It is supported subject to ratification in the annual conference. [804 approved]

Petitions on Bishops Statements that are Inconsistent with Social Principles

HUNTER: Our next two petitions are petitions upon which our committee voted non-concurrence and it is our judgment that they involve such similar perspectives that we can take them up together. Items 411 and 412, both of which are described in the white book on page 1264. The essence of them is as follows: Item 411 would prohibit bishops, agencies and church officials from publicly supporting positions inconsistent with the Social Principles of the church; item 412 would prohibit similar support on matters that contradict official statements of the church. The committee voted nonconcurrence on both by a vote of 68 to 12. There are a great many reasons that were given pro and con and so we commend any necessary discussion of this to the General Conference.

BISHOP GROVE: All right, you're presenting them together?

HUNTER: Yes.

BISHOP GROVE: I think we better take them separately. Calendar Item 411 is before you with a recommendation of nonconcurrence. Anyone want to speak to it? All right, vote when the light appears. The committee is supported, and we nonconcur. Calendar Item 412. Vote when the light appears. [698 approved] The committee is supported and we nonconcur.

Petition Against Printing Unconstitutional Material

HUNTER: Item 413 is found back in your red book, page 181. Petition number 20202. In its essence, it simply proposes that a new addition of the Discipline shall not reprint any clauses from previous editions of the Discipline that in the interim have been declared unconstitutional by the judicial council. We voted nonconcurrence of this 64 to 8.

BISHOP GROVE: Want to say why? (laughter) The recommendation asks that we not print material that's been declared unconstitutional. Is that right? And you're recommending nonconcurrence.

HUNTER: Let me quickly ask my colleagues. The DCA says we recommended nonconcurrence, but that in fact contrasts with my own aging memory. Can the chair or the secretary of that committee help us recall? Or some other member of the committee? I see a hand went up.

MENNO GOODE: (Eastern Pennsylvania): In 1988 the Judicial Council declared paragraph 702f unconstitutional; it was repeated in the 1992 Discipline to the great confusion of the church.

BISHOP GROVE: But that is a speech against the committee, the committee recommends nonconcurrency which would continue the material which has been declared unconstitutional, if I understand it right. I may be not understanding it...back here. It has to be only one person, you can't all come to the mike. Microphone 13.

PAUL EXTRUM-FERNANDEZ (California-Nevada): As I recall, George, I serve on the legislative committee and there was another petition that was addressing this and that's why we're voting for nonconcurrency on this particular petition.

HUNTER: That's helpful, thank you.

BISHOP GROVE: I think it would be helpful, not only for now, but for the future, if we know that when we receive it because otherwise it simply confuses the house; it might be better to bring us the position that we concur with, then simply indicate that the other petitions are duplicates. I wonder if it would be the will of the body to refer this one back to the committee until we can get clarity on it. Doesn't seem to me to be wise to continue material in the Discipline that's been declared unconstitutional. Can we do that by common consent?

ALL: Yes.

BISHOP GROVE: All right, thank you. George before you go to the next one, I have an appeal from somebody who says they have been sending this by the pages and it isn't working, that it is too cold. How many of you think it's too cold? (many conflicting voices) I'm not going to get my dog in that fight. You want to vote when the light appears?

(laughter)

HUNTER: For the record, on 413 did we in fact concur by acclamation? Or did we refer back? OK, we referred back.

BISHOP GROVE: We referred back.

Nominating Process for the Episcopacy

HUNTER: Number 414 is found in your red book also, number 178. Petition number 20558. The petition proposed in essence that we delete paragraph 506.1 in the Discipline, and amend 506.2 in a way that eliminates nominations in the conferences or jurisdictions for episcopal elections. We voted nonconcurrency with this petition, I think largely because a majority of our committee, 59 to 14, like the nominating process.

BISHOP GROVE: All right, the recommendation is for nonconcurrency with this petition which would eliminate nominations for episcopal election. Anyone want to speak to it? Vote when the light appears. [789 approved] The committee is supported, we do not concur with that calendar item.

HUNTER: Number 415 will be found in the red book on page 177. The essence of the petition calls for a reconfiguration of the office of the president of the Council of Bishops in a way that would involve a four-year-term for the president of the Council of Bishops. It would call for that Bishop who was elected, that Bishop's jurisdiction, electing another Bishop to do the annual conference episcopal duties, freeing the president of the council to lead the whole church full time. The committee voted nonconcurrency with this petition by 64 to 11, largely out of a reluctance to empower any one individual in our church as much as that seemed to suggest.

BISHOP GROVE: All right, it is before you with a recommendation of nonconcurrency. I don't see any... All right, vote when the light appears. [874 approved] The committee is supported, we do not concur.

Deaconesses Proposed for Annual Conference Membership

HUNTER: Bishop, Item 416 is found once again in the white book, page 1259, petition 22736. It proposes adding deaconesses as lay members of the annual conference in which they serve. The committee voted concurrence with this petition 74 to 0. It is before us because it also involves an amendment to the constitution.

BISHOP GROVE: All right it's before you, it would be an amendment to the constitution. Anyone wish to speak to it? Yes, back here, microphone seven.

BISHOP GROVE: I saw a card. Oh, you've gone to six. All right. Microphone six.

CHARLES "DENNY" WHITE (Western North Carolina): I couldn't find seven, sir. I'm Denny White, Western North Carolina. It is with greatest reluctance that I rise to oppose this lest I be thought to be against deaconesses somehow. I'm not. I've been given assurance by Global Ministries personnel in New York that the concerns I am about to address would be addressed when this amendment came to the legislative committee. They may have been. I don't know. But, basically, the problem as I see it is two-fold. First, deaconesses, unlike diaconal ministers, are not elected or consecrated by the annual conferences. They are commissioned by the General Board of Global Ministries and the bishops of the church. So that's one sort of difficulty I have. But there's an even more practical consideration, at least for the conference of which I happen to be secretary. In western North Carolina, we are blessed with the presence in Asheville of the Brooks Howell Home in which reside some 40 retired deaconesses. And in my view, this insertion of simply an undefined word, "deaconesses," does not help me, at least, to understand to which deaconesses it refers.

Does it refer to those who are appointed to serve within the bounds of the annual conference? Or perhaps, does it refer to any and all who have ever served within that conference and perhaps are now retired? Or perhaps, does it refer to those who hold church membership in the annual conference? Or perhaps, does it refer to those who reside in the annual conference? I don't know that any other conference would have this problem, but as the conference officer responsible for administering the membership equalization provisions of the Constitution, this simple, unmodified word gives me in Western North Carolina infinite problems. And for that reason, I rise to oppose it, not because I'm opposed to deaconesses, necessarily, voting in the annual conference, but because I don't know to which deaconesses it refers.

BISHOP GROVE: Thank you. That's one speech against. Anyone want to speak for this? Yes, back here. If you'll come to microphone nine.

LA'VON KINCAID (Western Pennsylvania Conference): I served on the legislative committee that dealt with this concern, and we see deaconesses as servants of the church. And I would speak in favor, because as we discussed it with the information provided to us, we felt that there were not a large number within our denomination, and we felt that those who are currently serving deserve the right and opportunity to be a member of the annual conference. Thank you.

BISHOP GROVE: All right. Is there another speech against, or are you ready? Yes. Speech against. Right here, number nine.

ARMIN BESSERER (German South): We have some 500 deaconesses in hospitals, and if we vote that they be members in the conference, they are twice as much as some conferences. So I don't know what to vote.

BISHOP GROVE: That is a speech against. Speech for. Anyone over here? In the back, yes. Come to microphone seven. I guess I saw a page. Microphone eight.

PAUL DIRDAK (California-Nevada): Yes, here. Bishop, would it be proper to refer this back to the committee so that these questions could be answered by the committee, questions which apparently the committee has not considered?

BISHOP GROVE: That's in order. A motion to refer?

DIRDAK: This is a motion to refer.

BISHOP GROVE: Is there a second? (second) If you will refer, vote when the light appears. [780 approved]

BISHOP GROVE: It is referred.

GEORGE HUNTER: Bishop, that concludes the petitions from the Committee on Conferences.

BISHOP GROVE: Thank you George. I'm sure you'll be back. You're not through. You don't mean you're through; you're through for now. OK. Church and Society, Don Pike.

DON PIKE (Central Texas): Don Pike, Central Texas...

BISHOP GROVE: Yes, just a second. A hand down here. Come to the microphone, please. Come down to four.

Distribution of Unofficial Materials to Delegates' Desks

CHARLES LIPPSE (Holston Conference): Bishop Grove, I would like a point of information in regard to Rules and Organizational Rules of the General Conference, page 99, Number 13. I ask for that information at this time while we're still dealing with conferences. This is in regard to distribution of unofficial material. Materials have been distributed to our desk during this session today which I think would be unofficial. I would like for the chair to examine that rule and have some clarity. I could describe this material if you wish. It not only seems to be unofficial, but it carries the United Methodist insignia which is another concern that came before the previous General Conference.

BISHOP GROVE: Rule 12 says that after the first day only the Daily Christian Advocate shall be placed on the desks of delegates. So there shouldn't be anything else coming to your desks.

LIPPSE: Sir, may I make a brief comment?

BISHOP GROVE: Sure.

LIPPSE: This paper entitled "Let's Go Forward, Not Backward, Please" carries the United Methodist insignia, and at the bottom it is published by the National Association of Korean-American Clergy Women and other concerned laity at the 1996 General Conference. It would seem that material is out of order, and I would like for the chair to instruct other groups not to distribute such material. It even says that there is a punitive measure to be taken in regard to this.

BISHOP GROVE: I think that your point is well taken, and I am instructing everyone to observe Rule 12 on page 99 of the Plan of Organizations and Rules. After the first day, only the Daily Christian Advocate shall be placed on the desks of the delegates, and additional copies for the clergy and first lay reserve delegates.

Calendar Item 417 Distribution of Condoms

PIKE: Don Pike, Central Texas Conference. We are going to begin with the white edition. If you'd please turn to page 1247. White edition, page 1247. Right hand column, second petition from the top. Petition Number 22655, entitled "Regarding Public Funding for Condom Distribution," which is really not an appropriate title for the petition. You will find it Calendar Item 417 on page 168. In turn, this is a resolution. If you want to refer to the ultimate result of the petition, you will want to open your Book of Resolutions to pages 375, 376. It is the section of the Book of Resolutions entitled "The Status of Women." It will be addressing paragraph eight under roman numeral three. In effect, the committee has amended this petition by substitution. And you will find the text of that substitution beginning at the bottom of page 168 with the word "to support programs" and ending at the top of page 169, "freely available elsewhere." In effect, as the committee examined the existing paragraph in the Book of Resolutions, they felt like that it needed updating. They simply rewrote this particular paragraph, and it was approved by committee action 63 to 24 for concurrence as amended by substitution.

BISHOP GROVE: And it is before us, with a recommendation for concurrence. Anyone want to speak to it? Down here, yes. Come to microphone two. Saw a gentleman with a green card I recognized up front.

BETH CAPEN; (New York Conference): I would urge us to not vote with the committee on this in that the current language in our Discipline, I believe, is better and stronger.

BISHOP GROVE: It's a speech against. Anyone want to speak for this? Yes, back here. In the back of the room. The lady. Yes, ma'am. Microphone nine.

ELIZABETH WRIGHT (Virginia Conference): I would like to rise to concurrence with this petition speaking particularly to the matter of abstinence as a method of birth control. This does not mean we are against other means of birth control. In my opinion, we need to speak clearly, especially to our young people, that this is an appropriate stance. Other churches have programs for their young people. I speak particularly of "Love Can Wait." Our young people in our Virginia Conference have endorsed that program as being an appropriate stance for them. I would, therefore, commend this to the entire church. I ask that you will concur with this position. Thank you.

BISHOP GROVE: All right. Is there a speech against? I think you're ready. The committee is recommending concurrence. Vote when the light appears.

(voting)

BISHOP GROVE: The committee is supported, we have concurred with petition 417.

DON PIKE: Our next item is in the red book, page 128. Petition number 20944, you will find it in the right hand column, the fourth item down. It's entitled "Meetings." The petition requests the deletion of paragraph 1110. This is another one of those items that we dealt with yesterday.

BISHOP GROVE: Let's ask you to go a little slower and let us find it. Give us the number, the page number, and the petition number again, please.

PIKE: All right, page 128. Petition 20944, right hand column, fourth item down, entitled "Meetings," calls for the deletion of paragraph 1110 from the Discipline. This another one of those items like we had yesterday, where we're taking things out of the Discipline and putting them in the by-laws of the General Board of Church and Society.

PIKE: No, DCA, petition number 20944, right hand column, fourth item down, entitled "Meetings," delete of paragraph 1110. It's Calendar Item 418.

BISHOP GROVE: That's what I was asking.

PIKE: I'm sorry. Committee approved this concurrence 80 to 10.

BISHOP GROVE: All right, it's before you, the recommendation of concurrence. It's Calendar Item 418. Anyone wish to speak to it? Vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 887] You have concurred. In support of the committee, we concur with Calendar Item 418.

PIKE: Those are the only two items we have, bishop.

BISHOP GROVE: We have about 10 minutes. Do we have anything from...Okay, Finance and Administration is ready. Cashar Evans.

CASHAR W. EVANS JR. (North Carolina): I'd like to ask Grady Knowles from Cal-Nevada Conference to present Calendar Item 421.

*Calendar Item 421
HealthFlex and Domestic Partners*

GRADY KNOWLES (California-Nevada): Thank you Bishop, delegates, guests. For this one item you'll need your blue DCA and you'll need volume two, or the white volume of the Advance DCA. In the blue DCA, please turn to page 169. On page 169, in the center column, at the bottom, is Calendar Item 421. This item deals with the HealthFlex program, which is currently offered to conferences and others by the General Board of Pensions and Health Benefits.

Now with your blue DCA opened to that page, please take your white volume two of the Advance DCA, and turn to page 1322. On page 1322, in the right hand column, the petition number is 22760. It's entitled, "Expand Options of the HealthFlex Insurance Program." This petition would direct the General Board of Pensions and Health Benefits to offer what is known as "domestic partner coverage" as a part of the HealthFlex program, which is available to conferences now. It further directs annual conferences to notify the present and other eligible employees and other participants in the HealthFlex plan, that this option is being offered.

From the legislative committee on financial administration, this recommendation comes to you. This petition comes to you, with a recommendation for concurrence. The vote of the legislative committee was 87 in favor of concurrence, seven against, four abstentions. Bishop it's before you.

SUE SHERBROOKE (Pacific Northwest): I rise to amend by substitution.

BISHOP GROVE: All right.

SHERBROOKE: The substitution would read, "The General Board of Pensions and Health Benefits is strongly encouraged to offer annual conferences and other participant plann sponsors the option to provide health benefit coverage under the hospitalization and medical expense program to members of participants' non-traditional family. If I have a second I'll speak to it.

BISHOP GROVE: Before you have a second, where are you placing the amendment in the text?

SHERBROOKE: It's by substitution. I would replace it in its entirety.

BISHOP GROVE: All right, so it's an amendment by substitution for all of Calendar Item 420?

SHERBROOKE: Yes.

BISHOP GROVE: Is it seconded? All right you may speak. It's 421, right.

SHERBROOKE: Yes, 421. I believe that our committee opposed this, in part, because it was so directive, and because it focused on domestic partners. Our Social Principles, however, state that we believe the family to be the basic human community through which persons are nurtured; and that we understand the family to encompass options in addition to the nuclear family, including the extended family, adults with adopted children, single parents, etc.

Since health insurance is an important element in maintaining the well-being and stability of families, we believe it is both consistent and necessary for us to make this option available.

You'll note that this substitute is permissive legislation, which allows annual conferences and other planned sponsors the option to make this coverage available. It is not a mandate. It does not require an annual conference or local church to do anything. It simply would make the option available. We believe that's in keeping with the value of local flexibility, expressed so often during this General Conference.

BISHOP GROVE: All right, thank you. Now do you need to have the amendment re-read or do you have a sense that, I'm asking the house, or do you have a sense of what this is? Are you able to proceed, or do you want her to re-read it? I think we should ask you to re-read it. I think it will save us time in the long run.

SHERBROOKE: All right. The General Board of Pensions and Health Benefits is strongly encouraged to offer annual conferences and other participant plan sponsors the option to provide health benefit coverage under the hospital and medical expense program to members of participants' non-traditional family.

BISHOP GROVE: Thank you. Anyone want to speak against that substitution? Yes, back here? Yes, I'm recognizing you. Yes, microphone 12.

DELOS D. CORDERMAN (South Carolina): What Sue is addressing is an eligibility issue; and eligibility should be determined by the planned sponsor. I believe that an annual conference, as a planned sponsor, could entertain what Sue wants to do, but I don't think you put a horse in a doghouse. I think this ought to be left up to annual conferences who are plan sponsors. And for that reason, I speak against Sue's amendment.

BISHOP GROVE: All right, anyone want to speak for it? I just hear, but I don't see where it is. Yes down front, all right, number four.

MERLIN J. ACKERSON (Iowa): I'd like to speak in favor of the substitute. I think the information that came just a moment ago was it's up to the annual conference. And that's true. I think what this legislation, that I hear being proposed, is that it asks the Board of Pensions [and] Health Benefits to provide that option for annual conferences. Now is that...that not possible?

BISHOP GROVE: I believe you are correct, that is the intention of the substitute.

ACKERSON: OK, so that's what we're asking them to do. So it's not up to just annual conferences, it's up to the Board of Pensions and Health Benefits.

BISHOP GROVE: All right. Two speeches for the substitute; anyone want to speak against it? Back here, yes, center. Yes ma'am, come to A.

JUNE D. MCCULLOUGH (Southern New Jersey): Bishop, it would be helpful if someone could inform us if the options for the example she gave are not now available, because they sounded to me like they might be.

KNOWLES: I can respond to that. The option for domestic partner coverage, or in the case of the substitute, for benefit coverage for a participant's non-traditional family, are not presently an election of annual conferences within the health plan, the HealthFlex plan document. They could be added as an annual conference option if the General Conference directed them to; if the General Board of Pensions was able to incorporate that kind of language among the states where HealthFlex is offered; and if the body adopted that change later. This is permissive legislation on the substitution as I understand it.

BISHOP GROVE: Yes, the substitute's before you. Anyone want to speak against it? We've had two speeches for it. Yes, microphone nine.

J. LAVON KINCAID SR. (Western Pennsylvania): Bishop, I move the previous question.

BISHOP GROVE: It's not in order until we've had two speeches on either side. Anyone else? Back here, yes. Microphone 14. That's all right, come to nine. That's all right.

BISHOP GROVE: All right.

Domestic Partners and Social Principles

BILL HINES (West Ohio): I have the Social Principles before me, and I have the preface. They're intended to be instructive, persuasive, and the best of prophetic spirit, and to be a prayerful, studied dialogue of faith. Therefore, they cannot be used, in my estimation, to support this kind of an action. So my suggestion is we go back and take the previous question and deal with it.

BISHOP GROVE: All right, that's two speeches against. You can't make a speech and move the previous question. Two speeches against; anyone want to speak for it? Back here, yes. I see you. Number eight. I recognized the gentleman waving the card on this side. That's who I recognized. (laughter) Yes, sir. Number eight.

THOMAS BOLLER (Yellowstone): I speak in favor of the substitute. The original petition came from a local church, and as it came before the Financial Administration legislative committee, it came and went almost without attention. As some of us reviewed that afterwards, we realized that this just might be one of those places where the small voice of God might be trying to speak to us. I believe that, while the Social Principles do not dictate direction that we should take, they certainly are an informative statement on how we should prayerfully consider all of our actions. The insurance industry allows for this type of coverage; and indeed, in private industry, many employers are providing that kind of coverage. It is time for us to be combining the actions of our faith with the words we proclaim. Therefore, I speak in favor of the substitution to make coverage available to those who have, are taking care of dependent parents, those who may have siblings who are their dependents in a variety of ways, those who have domestic partners that are in covenant with them even though society in many other ways may not recognize that covenant. Thank you.

BISHOP GROVE: We're at the time where we're going to have to stop, so we're either going to have to vote on the substitute or hold it over. Are you ready to vote on this? (yes from floor) What's the point of inquiry? Number five.

MEL BOWDAN (Kentucky): Bishop, I realize that time is of the essence right now.

BISHOP GROVE: Yes, Mel Bowdan, Kentucky.

BOWDAN: Bishop, all of this sounds very good, but I think we need to hear either from the committee whether they have looked at what the impact of this substitute motion might be or to the Board of Pensions. If they don't have that information, then perhaps this should be referred for that.

BISHOP GROVE: Yes, I'm going to ask the chair to have the last statement.

GRADY KNOWLES (California-Nevada): Yes, the committee has looked at the impact of this. The Health-Flex program is presently offered to annual conferences and other plan sponsors in all fifty states. States have different regulations and, in some cases, mandates that vary regarding health insurance, and so there might be some legal issues that would need to be pursued if the substitute became the main petition and were adopted. There's also the matter of taxability of benefits for those who are what are known as sponsored dependents instead of being what are known as legal dependents. However, even though there are some legal issues and some possibility of taxability of benefit issues, the wording of the substitution would allow the General Board of Pensions, as the administrator of the plan, to carry out the wishes of this body, regardless of which way the body voted, after it adopted the substitution as the main motion.

BISHOP GROVE: All right, we're on the substitute now. If you will substitute, vote yes. If you're in favor of the petition as stated and against the substitute, vote no. Vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 408 ; no, 516 ; abstained, 44] It is not substituted. Now we're ready on Calendar Item 421. The committee recommends concurrence, excuse, me non-concurrence. If you support the committee on nonconcurrence on Calendar Item 421, vote yes when the light appears. [Results: yes, 673; no, 265; abstained, 14] You have supported the committee and nonconcurrent with 421.

KNOWLES: Thank you, Bishop.

BISHOP GROVE: Now, before we recess, I have a point of personal privilege. J. Philip Wogamann, then announcements from the secretary. Phil, if you'll come to microphone six. Or seven. Wherever.

Wogaman Speaks About Elizabeth Dole

J. PHILIP WOGAMAN: Bishop, thank you for this privilege. This has to do with the letter to Elizabeth Dole which we discussed earlier. I have had the privilege of serving as pastor on behalf of Christ and the church to both President and Mrs. Clinton, and to Senator and Mrs. Dole, the presumptive standard bearers of both parties in the forthcoming presidential election. I support both the invitation to the First Lady to speak and the letter to Mrs. Dole. Mrs. Dole is now a member of a Presbyterian church, a denomination with which we have cordial relationships, and she has left us with our prayers and best wishes. So the letter addressed to her may need some editorial revision without diminishing its cordiality and warmth. Bishop, in light of the fact that both candidates and their spouses have been identified with one of our churches, I ask that the conference pause for a moment of prayer for all four of these persons to be led by Bishop Yeakel, in whose area that church is located. Thank you.

BISHOP GROVE: I'm sure you give permission for this privilege. Bishop Yeakel, would you offer prayer?

BISHOP YEAKEL: (prayer)

BISHOP GROVE: Thank you. Now the secretary has some announcements.

CAROLYN MARSHALL: The leadership team of Ordained and Diaconal Ministry will please meet immediately after the morning session in A106.

Because there have been referrals, all legislative committees except that for Independent Commissions and the Commission on Central Conference Affairs will need to meet this afternoon at 3:35. Higher Education will meet on the floor near the press table area to the right of the platform.

The Public Service Officer encourages persons to be very careful crossing the tracks to visit the Advance tent. Please watch out for the train.

Another word of caution, delegates and visitors are advised that the areas behind the stage are restricted areas. Only appropriate technical personnel are to be in these areas.

And the final one comes as an invitation to all African American pastors and bishops of Africa inviting you to a lunch at the Marriott Hotel this afternoon at 12:30, Denver Suite Four,

Lower Level Two, to dialogue about the crisis on the continent of Africa.

BISHOP GROVE: All right, we're in recess until two o'clock.

Monday Afternoon Session April 22, 1996

Bishop Elias G. Galvan, presiding

BISHOP ELIAS G. GALVAN: Our Council on Ministries. Bishop Dew. (laughter) Will the delegates be in order, please.

BISHOP WILLIAM W. DEW JR.: Good afternoon. The General Council on Ministries comes to you this afternoon to provide two information reports. The first of these information reports is on a shared mission focus on young people, Walking Together in the Way that Leads to Life. This calendar item has not yet been printed in the DCA, although I have been informed that it passed in the General and Judicial Administration legislative committee by a vote of 82, 0, 2. It can be found in the red book on page 599. Petition number 21678.

The shared mission focus on young people will provide our church with an opportunity to bring together ideas and resources, to address the critical issues facing our youth both inside and outside of the church. You will be hearing of our proposed response to provide assistance and support for our youth. So I invite you to welcome this presentation, which has involved a quadrennium of study by GCOM under the direction and with the leadership of Dr. Peter Weaver who will lead us now in this presentation. Peter.

(applause)

Shared Mission Focus on Young People

DR. PETER D. WEAVER (General Council on Ministries, Shared Mission Focus on Young People): Thank you Bishop Dew. Good afternoon. Good afternoon! Anyone out there?

(laughter) The shared mission focus on young people Walking Together in the Way that Leads to Life.

His name was Dorian Reed, a 16 year old scholar-athlete from our local high school. By all accounts he was a wonderful young man. He had made the decision to stay out of the warring gangs in our neighborhood, but on the evening of January 31st, 1995, Dorian was gunned down five yards from the back of the First United Methodist Church of Pittsburgh where I am privileged to serve in the struggles of a congregation that deeply feels the hurts of its neighborhood and its neighbors and wants to make a difference for Jesus Christ in the world of that neighborhood and the lives of young people, that is young people who are children and youth and young adults who are all about us. (visual)

This picture, taken at Dorian's funeral, invites us to begin to open the doors of the church, its resources, the unconditional love and hope offered in Jesus Christ. How can we really make the world our parish? How can we share with all young people both the celebration of their gifts as well as being with them and for them as they face violence and hopelessness, economic issues, and moral and spiritual dilemmas? Have you been asking these kinds of questions in your congregation and community?

The General Council on Ministries is charged with the duty of recommending to General Conference one issue that, because it is so critical, should become a top priority for all boards and agencies, all conferences and local churches; in short, for all the people called United Methodists. Through GCOM a process of listening took place over the last quadrennium, listening to people in many settings, urban, rural, town, globally. And the one issue that rose above all others as being an urgent need requiring immediate attention is this: the need to open the doors of ministry to and with young people in our communities in new and creative life-changing and world-changing ways.

In drawing our attention to the young, Bishop Craig said to us in the Episcopal Address, "All else we do will be wasted if we do not engage in shaping the future so that it offers life abundant instead of squeezing life out of the next generation."

This statistical chart tells us that the nations in which The United Methodist Church exists—Africa, the Philippines, the United States, and Europe—report that from 40 percent up to 70 percent of their populations are persons under the age of 30. And yet The United Methodist Church itself reports only 6 percent of its membership as being between 12 and 30. Clearly, the call to be more present with young people is upon us.

Therefore, for the sake of all the Dorian Reeds of the world; for the 50 percent of the world's population who are young people, most of whom are outside of the Church; and most of all for the sake of Jesus Christ who loved the world, we are offering to this 1996 General Conference this shared mission focus on young people. It is a new way that the whole church can offer its resources to local churches. Here we can walk together in the way that leads to life.

To present to you the details of this shared mission focus, I'd like to present to you Jeannie Trevino-Teddle, who gave excellent leadership to the Committee on Missional Priorities that led our missional emphasis division to this shared mission focus. Jeannie.

JEANNIE TREVINO-TEDDLIE (Central Texas): This proposal calls The United Methodist Church to reorder its priorities and focus on the needs of young people. It is to enable young people to be participants in the life and work of the church.

The shared mission focus is shared because it comes and it belongs to every part of the church. It is shared because it will take United Methodists working together in task forces, local churches, districts, annual conferences, jurisdictions, central conferences, and the general agencies for the response to cause a real difference. No one part of the church can do it alone. It is shared because this work is done with God. It is mission because in the spirit of the Great Commission in Matthew 28, verse 19 it is people to people.

We are being sent in response to a critical need in God's world. It is mission because it is action. It is a primary focus, not a program. This shared mission focus is a way of seeing and focusing on young people in our world. It calls us to turn our heads, open our eyes, feel with the heart, and look deeply into the eyes of young people all around us.

It is this focused theme that then inspires United Methodists to channel its creativity, its energy, and resources that can flow from every part of the Body of Christ. Every area of the church, especially the local church, is being called by God to participate in making a difference—making a difference in the lives of young people around the world through their understanding and response to the gospel.

The shared mission focus initiative has several important components designed to strengthen the local church with support from the annual conference and general agencies in this important ministry. The overall seed money for the next four years for this critical venture is $270,000, or $67,500 per year. The first component is that local churches would be equipped to undertake discovery and theological grounding. It would help United Methodists listen to the voices of young people both inside and outside their congregations and to discover the joys and challenges which young people experience.

Discerning God's call will come through this process of discovering, which will lead us into moving beyond the four walls of the church out into the neighborhood and larger community. Resourcing ministry through action plans will be developed by local churches and will be supported by a comprehensive data bank of successful innovative models of ministry that will be catalogued in a central clearing house. Print media and electronic resources will be available to local churches and communities. They will be developed by the supporting church structures.

Dynamic Issues Forums With Youth

An exciting and unique resource will be dynamic issue forums. How can we make ministry with young people come alive? What are the critical elements required to help answer these questions? Ten issue-focused forums will function as creative think tanks to discover and document what works. This think-tank effort will press the ordinary boundaries of ministry and will be designed to take the church to the cutting edge of issues. New concepts of mission will be discovered and shared.

The third component is that of interpreting the mission and inviting the entire congregation to be a part. This process of engaging and training the congregation will enable the local church to do the needed reordering of priorities to make this effort successful. Creative resourcing tools will be developed. And in celebration of this missional journey, a mid-quadrennial celebration for lifting up successful ministries with young people will be designed and, if possible, linked with other general and global celebrative mission events that are occurring within the denomination.

And finally, this initiative will be guided by a shared mission focus team, a group of 19 persons representing the concerns of young people throughout the world. We ask this General Conference to approve $270,000 of seed money for this shared mission focus. In the spirit of collaboration, this figure is only a beginning portion of resources that will be multiplied—multiplied by the addition of human and financial resources from districts, annual conferences, jurisdictions, central conferences, general agencies, and most of all, local congregations where this mission focus will come alive. We, as United Methodist people and churches around the world, are being called to hear God's voice, a call that is moving us to a new place and a new ministry, a new promised land. We have an opportunity to transform the world.

Stories are a powerful way of sharing the truth of the word, the truth of the world. Let me introduce a young person who has moved from struggle to hope, who is walking in that path that leads to life.

Her name is Cecilia Williamson, a young woman who has walked a road of struggle and challenge, and found solace and support through the ministry of the church. Cecilia is originally from Toledo, Ohio, and is now residing in Indianapolis. Welcome Celia.

Cecilia William's Personal Story

CECILIA WILLIAMSON (Indianapolis): Young woman? Gee, I like that. I want to talk to you today about where I am now in my life, and where I've been, and where I plan to go. I'm getting my Ph.D. right now at Indiana University in social work. And I'm focusing my research on youth and children and prevention of violence, substance abuse, teen-age pregnancy, and prostitution. What I've found, and a lot researchers have found, that there are common risks and common protective factors. Risk can be such things as family management problems, family conflict, neighborhood, peers that you hang around, having weak social bonds. Some protective factors could be things such as having a mentor, having a close family.

The reason I want to talk to you about that is because I have experienced close family bond and close family mentoring through a United Methodist mission. I was raised on the north side of Toledo by a working class family. And I played at Friendly Center, which is a United Methodist community center. When I grew up, I moved out of my parent's house, and I was 19 years old. At that time I was forced to go on welfare.

I stayed on welfare for three years, and I can tell you that's probably the most depressing time I've ever spent in my whole life. I decided, well you know, I should go to college. So I went to my case worker at the welfare department. I said, "I'd like to go to college."

And she said, "Well if you can go to college, you can get a job."

I said, "Well, if I go to college, I can get a better job, and I won't be back." [laughter]

Well, we differed; and so, three county conferences and two state hearings later, my attorney said, "You can't go."

So I decided, OK, eat now or eat better later...I'll eat better later. So I decided to go to college and I got my associate degree in Social Work.

Now let me tell you about expectation; and what expectation can do for you, or how expectation can fight against you. When I was in high school, my senior year I spent in the HERO Club, which is Home Economic Related Occupations. That's defined as, "Cecilia, we've given up on you, and so we better teach you some home-making skills so that at least you'll be able to keep your house and cook." Expectation can be a wonderful thing and it can be a detrimental thing. I decided to go to school anyway.

I got my associate degree in Social Work, and I decided, "Well, I fooled them. I don't know why they gave me this degree. It can't be because I'm smart." So I decided, "Well, okay, I want to get my bachelor's degree. So I'll go over and do a two plus-two program." And I went over to the main campus at the University of Toledo, and I said I would like to take two more years and get my bachelor's degree in Social Work. And they said, "We don't have that. If you want your bachelor's degree, you'll start over."

So I thought, okay, a genius I am not, but determined, I am. So I started over.

I got my four year degree, started work at Friendly Center as a Social Worker. I developed a program—the first program in Ohio that works with young women who want to get out of prostitution. I got that backing from the United Methodist Women—the only people that trusted in my idea and thought it would work. I have women today... [applause] Thank you. I have women today that are starting training programs, that are starting college, that have their apartments for the first time in their lives, that are trying to provide a place for their children, now, so it's working. I'm happy about that. That's my pride and joy.

After that, I decided, "You know, maybe I ought to get my master's degree." And so my boss there at Friendly Center, David Morris, he told me one day, "Guess what? I think you're going to get your master's degree."

And I said, "I don't know about that."

He said, "You're going to do it." And that brings me back to expectation again. See, no one rises to low expectation.

So, I applied to Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland, which is a private, prestigious university for social work. Now you have to understand that I didn't graduate magnum cum laude. OK, in my undergrad, I graduated Oh-God-Thank-God-I'm-Done-O'Lordy. [laughter] OK? So when I applied at Case Western, I had a 2.69999. You had to have a 2.7 to apply. I don't know why the man called me for an interview. Maybe he thought well, this will be fun; we'll see what happens. So I drove down to Cleveland, 45 minutes late and an $85 speeding ticket. And I walked into the room and he was reading his paper. And he looked up and I said, "I'm sorry, sir, I'm Cecilia Williams. I realize I am 45 minutes late."

He said, "Yes you are." And he went on reading his newspaper.

So I thought, "OK, Lord, be with me today because I'm about to do something crazy." So I walked in and I said, "Excuse me, sir, but you have to hear what I have to say."

He listened to me and said, "Well, let me ask you this, what makes you think you can make it at this university when you had a 2.6 at the other university?"

I said, "Because, sir, I'm not a genius, but determination I have. And I will be famous. And I'm going to do national things, and I'm going to do great things, and I'd just like to have Case Western's name attached to it." [laughter]

So he told me, "I will personally walk your file over here and admit you to this university. But," he said, "you better walk across that stage."

I said, "We have deal, sir."

He said, "If I don't see you walk across that stage, I'm going to drag you across that stage."

I said, "OK."

I graduated in 1993. All A's and only two B's. [applause] So, I went back to work at Friendly Center. People told me, "Why, with a master's degree from this university, are you working at a small community center?" I said, "Because, you don't understand my mission. You don't understand my determination. You don't understand my focus. See, United Methodists have been taking care of me for a very long time. And now I have to take care of them." [applause]

I decided, well, let me just find out what else I can do. So I competed for a national fellowship and I was chosen to go to Indiana University and get my Ph.D. And that's where I am studying today. [applause] So, I just want to bring a message of thanks. Every time I'm invited to do anything for the United Methodist Women, I jump to do it. I always say I am partial to United Methodist Women, but I love United Methodist Men as well. [laughter]

I want to thank you for allowing me to come here and share my story. And I want to let you know that wherever I'll be or whatever I'll be doing, it will be for The United Methodist Church. It will be God's work. And I'm sure that United Methodist people will continue to take care of me, whether they know me or not. They always have friendly faces. The first group of people I've run into during my life that were color-blind. [applause] And that's, you know, that's God's work in action.

So, I will leave you with the message that no one rises to low expectations. Strong nurturance and high expectations is the key. I thank you. [applause]

(standing applause)

PETER WEAVER (Western Pennsylvania): As Celia said, God's work in action. Wouldn't it be wonderful if that were multiplied throughout the United Methodist churches around the world with a shared mission focus on young people, so that we could walk together in the way that leads to life? Stephanie Gray is from Los Angeles. She's been on GCOM and has helped us to get the enthusiasm as well as this ministry shaped. Stephanie.

Shared Mission in Los Angeles

STEPHANIE GRAY (Los Angeles): Greetings, bishops and friends. I think that the time has come when we, as United Methodists, seriously evaluate how we consider youth and young adults in our conferences and our congregations and our communities. As a young adult who has served on the GCOM this past quadrennium, I am in strong support of the shared mission focus on young people. I believe that the resourcing and networking that will happen as a result of this shared mission focus will enable local churches to reach out to their communities and to the young people within those communities.

As I've learned by my experiences on the GCOM and in the real world, one cannot change an institution from the outside. In order for The United Methodist Church to reach out to young people, doesn't it seem most wise to reach within the institutions of gangs, drug circles, and poverty and to provide the leadership and guidance for young people within those institutions to take the leadership roles of changing their own communities? And also within the institution of our church there is a need for change.

The shared mission focus would enable congregations, conferences, general boards and agencies, and General Conference to consider youth and young adults in a different, new way, one in which young people are not patronized or stuck in token youth/young adult slots to fill disciplinary mandates. (applause) A way in which our own individual senses of spirituality, social justice, conviction, and our leadership abilities will be respected and fostered by our church family. For the sake of our church in the present, for the sake of our young brothers and sisters who long to be heard and understood and loved, I urge you to take the shared mission focus in a prayerfully enthusiastic way. Thank you.

(applause)

PETER WEAVER: So the question now before us is whether we are willing to be bold disciples and through Jesus Christ to move and walk together with young people in the transformation of the world. Shall we move from apathy to loving concern and unconditional acceptance to be authentically and enthusiastically with and for young people? It is only that kind of movement that will make possible a shared response to the joys and pains of young people around the world through the good news of God's unconditional love in Christ. The names—Dorian Reed, Celia, Stephanie—the names are many yearning to walk in the way that leads to life. We urge you not just to adopt but to implement this shared mission focus on young people.

(applause)

Strengthening the Black Church

BISHOP DEW: The second item on which we wish to present an information report is "Strengthening the Black Church for the 21st Century." It is Calendar Item 762, found on page 235 of the Daily Christian Advocate. In the red book, page 579, petition number 21677. Since the item that was printed in the Daily Christian Advocate was printed this morning, and our rules call us to wait 24 hours for action, we urge you to hear this report and be prepared to vote later. We are very happy to present this report as we believe its approval is going to have a tremendous impact on all of our congregations as they benefit from congregational resource centers. And so I invite Bishop Woodie White, who has chaired the task force that has prepared this proposal, I invite him to come and present the report.

BISHOP WOODIE W. WHITE: I remember quite well, as a student in college, watching with considerable interest speakers when they came to visit that tiny college. I watched their mannerisms, listened carefully to their words, studied their motions, and one of my observations was this: I noticed that most of our speakers had a habit of putting their glasses on and taking them off. And I thought they did it for dramatic effect. Now I know why they did it!

Strengthening the Black Church for the 21st Century: a challenge, a goal, a mission. Through the past three years, we have studied, related to and with, consulted with lay persons and clergy all across the United States. We found exciting, growing, and vital black congregations in a variety of settings, some suburban, some rural, some major metropolitan areas. However, we also found many congregations that were struggling to keep their heads above water, looking for focus and direction and very much wanting to be in mission and wanting to know how they could do that.

Out of our time together, we thought, why not pair, why not match those exciting, vital, growing congregations with those congregations seeking to reach out? Thus, the proposal "Strengthening the black Church" is one such proposal. It is to bring together those congregations that they might share and they might learn from each other; a focus that is principally laity led as lay persons from vital congregations, growing congregations, missionally-focused congregations can share with those who are intending to be so; vital congregations where there are vital pastors, where there are vital programs.

As we looked at the statistics over the last several years, we noted with dismay that, despite the fact that the United States census revealed an 11 percent increase in the black population between 1980 and 1990, in the course of those years we have seen a decline in Black United Methodist congregations and membership. But there is opportunity to turn that around.

Proposal for 25 Congregational Resource Centers

The proposal is a simple one: Have 25 congregational resource centers all across the country in the course of the quadrennium, bringing together lay persons, youth, clergy from congregations all across our denomination, exposing them to other youth, other lay persons, other pastors in settings much like their own, with the one difference being these are settings where the congregations are growing and are vital and are missionally focused. We calculate in the course of that quadrennium we can reach between four and six hundred congregations through such a process. This will involve congregations of every description, every size.

As we worked on this proposal more, we thought, while this program calls for strengthening Black churches, we also observed that there are congregations located in racially transitional communities, some located in predominantly Black communities, who are needing an opportunity and wanting an opportunity to be involved more effectively in those communities. These resource centers will be open to all churches regardless of their ethnic make-up, in order that they might determine and be equipped to be in mission more effectively.

The proposal is before you. You have read it. It is a proposal that we believe has considerable merit and promise. Vital congregations pairing with, partnering with, praying with other congregations seeking to be vital as well. I'd like to call Rev. Walter Kimbrough, who has been a part of this process, to share with you, for he comes from one of those vital congregations. And he will make a statement at this time.

WALTER L. KIMBROUGH (North Georgia): Thank you Bishop White. Sisters and brothers, I take this opportunity to say thank you for being sensitive and caring to a request that we make of this 1996 General Conference. I've thought about this United Methodist Church long and hard and I'm convinced of three principal things about it.

Number one, of the greatness of who we are lies in our connectionalism. It says to me that we are not alone. We don't stand by ourselves. No one congregation is independent of all of the other congregations. And when that power is released, as we reach beyond ourselves across the vastness of this nation, and yea, even and especially globally, joining hands one with the other, the power of God is released in our midst and we rise to new and greater heights. The power of this proposal simply seeks to say in significant ways that first of all we're connected. We're not alone.

The second thing it says is that we are in a significant position to help each other. Those that have grown, those that are made stronger ought to certainly bear the responsibility of reaching back to help those who are still weak. I'm convinced it's like D. T. Niles years ago. In seeking to describe what evangelism was all about he declared, "Evangelism is like one beggar telling another beggar where to find bread." We proposed, sisters and brothers, that each of our congregations that have in fact become vital congregations ought to directly assist other congregations in becoming vital as well. Then we are in a position to be a blessing for the total church.

That leads me to the third point. I call it a blessing for the total church. Some people raise the question about the amount of money that we are requesting, $1,779,400. I thought about it. How much do we pay income from apportionments? And I thought in my own city of Atlanta, in the North Georgia Conference, that two of our congregations in that city, formerly all White, today 99-plus percent Black, will in fact give this amount of money over the quadrennium. And I thought that was exciting. I was applauding it. But there is another Black congregation in Texas giving currently at the level $429,000 annually in conference apportionments. And yet just a few years ago it was nearly dead.

The issue is, sisters and brothers, because something is nearly dead does not mean there isn't the possibility of resuscitating it and bringing it to new and vital life. That's God's will for us. God's will for us. [applause] And we're committed to do that. We're simply asking you to help us. We're simply asking you to empower us. We are simply asking for your blessing to be a blessing for others in our denomination with the understanding every Black congregation that we strengthen, every Black congregation that's empowered, becomes a blessing for this United Methodist Church. We can do it. I'm convinced we can do it.

Now what's different about it is that we aren't looking at bringing in consultants from anywhere. Amen. [applause] The people with the know-how reside within our congregations. And we're talking about empowering that leadership from within our congregations to help teach, to train, to motivate others so that they will have the desire to become a vital congregation. That's what it's about. And that's our challenge.

Let me see if I can close on this note. There is a song writer who said it much, much better than I could ever say it: "If in the course of my life I can help somebody as I pass along. If I can cheer somebody with words or a song. If I can show someone he's travelling wrong, then my living shall not be in vain."

We don't want our living to be in vain. Help us members of this 1996 General Conference. And to know full well what will be a blessing to the Black church is also a blessing for the whole church because it is a model that will work anywhere. God bless you. And thank you one and all. [applause]

BISHOP WOODIE WHITE: We regret that Dr. Kimbrough does not have more enthusiasm for this proposal. [laughter] This is a proposal about mission and persons being in mission. This is a proposal about bringing the good news of Jesus Christ to those who have not heard and not yet responded. This is a proposal about church growth and changing lives. This is a proposal about sharing and vision and futuring.

It is our prayer and our hope that in four years when we return we can give evidence of vital, growing, relevant Black congregations—directly the result of this proposal. Thank you very much. [applause]

BISHOP WILLIAM DEW: These comprise the two reports we wanted to bring to you this afternoon and urge your full consideration when they are reported out from the legislative committee.

BISHOP GALVAN: We thank Bishop Dew and Bishop White and all those presenters today for their very fine presentations. Thank you very much. I see a card in the back. Microphone number 6, to the front. Microphone number 6. Your name.

FRANK H. FURMAN JR. (Florida): Two wonderful programs have been presented to us. But in keeping with our Rules on Budget, I bring to the attention of the presenters that GCFA, the General Council on Finance and Administration, will be meeting. The question I have of the presenter, both of these mission statements require additional funding, have they been submitted through the budget process or are they in position to bring us figures so that they may be considered at the appropriate time?

BISHOP GALVAN: Bishop Dew, can you answer the question?

BISHOP DEW: They have been presented through the budget process. And you will hear from the legislative committee later in the conference about that.

FURMAN: Thank you. And, Bishop, if I may, one further statement. I understand there are other fund items that'll be brought to us that have a missional quality about them that have yet to come before General Council on Finance and Administration. And I implore those who may have such items that need to be funded to be sure they get to us so that we can work on the budget at the appropriate time. Thank you, sir.

BISHOP GALVAN: Thank you for your statement. In the back, microphone number 12.

BETTY S. GORDON (West Virginia): Bishop Galvan, I move to suspend the rules to consider voting on Calendar Item 762, page 235 in DCA three. And I'll speak to it if I have a second.

BISHOP GALVAN: You can speak to it because it's a suspension of the rules. Yes please state the reason for suspension of rules.

GORDON: OK. The reason is to suspend the rule that states materials must be printed 24 hours before plenary action. This Petition 21677 was approved by a vote of 86 to zero against in the legislative committee.

BISHOP GALVAN: Excuse me. You cannot speak to it. You're just stating the reason why you want to suspend the rules.

GORDON: Okay. Well, it's so we can suspend.

BISHOP GALVAN: The motion is not debatable. Thank you.

GORDON: OK.

BISHOP GALVAN: So the motion is before you. Are you ready to vote on the suspension of the rules? Please indicate when the light appears. It will take two thirds vote. [Results: yes, 614; no, 266; abstained, 19] The rules are suspended so we now turn our attention to Item 762 for consideration.

BISHOP DEW: The legislative committee chair is here.

BISHOP GALVAN: Okay, please.

DAVID SEVERE (Oklahoma): The legislative committee has indeed acted on this as has been stated and we did approve it 86 for the proposal. No voting against it with one abstention. And we would move concurrence on this report with reference to the GCFA.

BISHOP GALVAN: The motion was concurrence with reference to the GCFA. Is there any discussion? Yes, in the back. Microphone number 12.

JAMES D. SWANSON (South Georgia Conference): Bishop Galvan, just one concern that I have about this particular petition, and that is that there is no program indicated for ministerial recruitment. And I would like the GCOM persons to speak to that concern.

BISHOP ELIAS G. GALVAN: Do you want the respond to the concern? It's a question?

BISHOP WOODIE WHITE: This proposal did not deal with ministerial recruitment, and so consequently you did not find a component in it.

SWANSON: May I make another statement here? I feel that, in the midst of us trying to strengthen the Black church, it is so extremely important that we have the engines to try to drive this program. My conference that I come from in South Georgia, we have a tremendous shortage of ministers. And I think that it's probably one of the things that we suffer throughout the whole connection, and not to speak to this, to me, is short-sighted. I think the committee needs to look into this.

BISHOP GALVAN: Thank you very much. You have spoken to it. I consider that a statement is against the motion.

SWANSON: Not really. What I'd like to do, probably, is to go on and offer an amendment to this program.

BISHOP GALVAN: OK, anyone speaking in favor? Microphone number nine.

DAVID L. WHITE (South Indiana): I would like to say that, we as laity, African-American laity, in this church think that we are very capable of giving the leadership necessary. This is not giving any reflection on the pastoral leadership. We want to do this in partnership with our clergy brothers and sisters, so I urge you, my fellow delegates, to vote for this, as has been asked.

BISHOP GALVAN: Thank you. Anyone wishes to speak against the item before you? Yes? Against the item? OK, if no one wants to speak against, now we can accept the speeches for. Here I recognize you, microphone number eight.

TULLALAH F. WILLIAMS (Northern Illinois): I just want to urge your support of this mission. I think often times clergy forget that we were once laity, and that if we strengthen laity in the church, surely we will enhance the recruitment of clergy in the church, so I strongly urge your support. Thank you. [applause]

BISHOP GALVAN: Are you ready to vote? All those in favor, please vote as the light appears. It has been approved. [857 approved] [applause, most are standing] The chair recognizes Mr. Cashar Evans, chair of finance and administration for some calendar items.

Real Property*

CASHAR W. EVANS JR (North Carolina): In the blue DCA, on page 169, Calendar Item 422, can be found on page 382 of the red DCA. That petition number is 20020, and it is in the second column at the bottom. The subject is property used as fulfilling the mission of the church. The committee recommended nonconcurrency, 63 for, 34 against, and 0 abstentions. It is before you, bishop.

BISHOP GALVAN: The item is before you. Any discussion? I think we're ready to act. When you're ready to vote, please vote when the light appears. [728 approved] It is approved.

*Calendar Item 423
Episcopal Residence*

EVANS: Page 169, blue CDEFA... DCA, you can tell where my mind is. Calendar Item 423, that is on page 364 of the red DCA. In the second column, in the middle of the page, the petition number is 21627, the subject is the Episcopal Residence Committee. The committee recommends concurrence. The vote was 71 for, 24 against, and 0 abstentions. It is before you.

BISHOP GALVAN: It is now before you. Any discussion? The committee recommends concurrence. Are we ready to vote? Please vote when the light appears. [878 approved] It's been approved.

EVANS: Page 169 of the blue DCA, Calendar Item 424 can be found on page 1318 of the white DCA. And it is in the first column, in the middle. The petition number is 22251. The subject is establishing a relationship with a major credit card company. The committee's recommendation is referral to GCFA. The vote is 88 for, eight against, and zero abstentions. Bishop.

BISHOP GALVAN: Item 424 is properly before you. Any discussion? Yes, microphone number one, please.

PORTER J. WOMELDORFF (Central Illinois): I want to question the impact of this referral. If the referral is made, does that mean that GCFA would require four more years to undertake such a relationship if they found it desirable?

EVANS: Four years ago they investigated this and determined that it was not desirable, hence they did not do it. But they will be glad to re-study it again.

BISHOP GALVAN: Any other discussion? Anyone else seeking the floor? I see none. So are you ready to vote? Please vote when the light appears.

[651 approved]

BISHOP GALVAN: Item 424 has been referred.

CASHAR EVANS: Page 169 of the blue DCA, Calendar Item 425 can be found on page 365 in the red book. That petition number is 20592. It's in the second column in the middle of the page. The subject is the amenability of the General Council on Finance and Administration. The committee recommends nonconcurrency by a vote of 94 for, seven against, and zero abstentions.

BISHOP GALVAN: Item 425 is before you, any discussion? I think we're ready to vote. Please vote when the light appears. [826 approved]

BISHOP GALVAN: You have supported the recommendation of the committee of nonconcurrency.

EVANS: On page 170 of the blue DCA, Calendar Item 426, page 370 of the red book, the petition number is 20596. And it's in the second column in the middle of the page, deals with general program agency funds. The committee recommendation is nonconcurrency. The vote was 94 for, nine against, and zero abstentions.

BISHOP GALVAN: Item 426 is now before you, any discussion? I believe you're ready to vote, please vote when the light appears. [837 approved]

BISHOP GALVAN: The recommendation of the committee is sustained.

*Calendar Item 427
Support of World Service and Conference Benevolence*

EVANS: On page 170 in the blue DCA, Calendar Item 427, page number 372 of the red book. That's in the second column at the bottom, the petition number is 20420. The subject is the support of World Service and Conference Benevolence. The committee's recommendation is nonconcurrency. And the vote was 95 for, eight against, and zero abstentions.

BISHOP GALVAN: Item 427 is now before you. Is there any discussion? I believe you're ready to vote. Please vote when the light appears. [811 approved]

BISHOP GALVAN: The report of the committee is sustained.

EVANS: On page 170 again of the blue DCA, Calendar Item 428, page number 373 of the red book. The petition number is 20602, second column at the top. Deals with the subject of elimination of the General Council on Ministries. The committee recommendation is nonconcurrency. And that vote was 94 for, nine against and zero abstentions.

BISHOP GALVAN: Item 428 is before you for action. Any discussion? I believe you're ready to vote. Please vote when the light appears. [718 approved]

BISHOP GALVAN: The recommendation of the committee is sustained.

EVANS: Still on page 170 of the blue DCA, the Calendar Item now is 429, page 373 of the red book, first column at the top, the petition number is 20601, the subject? Eliminate General Council on Ministries. The committee's recommendation is nonconcurrency. And the vote was 91 for, 12 against, and zero abstentions.

BISHOP GALVAN: Item 429 is before you. Any discussion? I believe you're ready to vote. Please vote when the light appears. [714 approved]

BISHOP GALVAN: The recommendation of the committee is sustained.

EVANS: Page 170 of the blue DCA, Calendar Item 430, page 372 of the red DCA. It's in the first column, in the middle. The petition number is 20418. The subject is general policies. The committee's recommendation is nonconcurrency. The vote was 84 for, 19 against and zero abstentions.

BISHOP GALVAN: Item 430 is now before you for action. Is there any discussion? I believe you're ready to vote. Vote when the light appears. [790 approved]

BISHOP GALVAN: The recommendation of the committee is sustained.

*Calendar Item 431
Annual Conference Apportionments*

EVANS: Again on page 170 of the blue DCA, Calendar Item 431, page 372 of the red book. It's in the first column, the second item. The petition number is 20016. The subject is annual conference apportionments. The committee's recommendation is nonconcurrency. The vote is 80 for, 23 against, zero abstentions.

BISHOP GALVAN: Item 431 is before you. Are there any questions or any discussion? I believe you're ready to vote. Please vote when the light appears. [731 approved]

BISHOP GALVAN: The recommendation of the committee is sustained.

EVANS: Page 170 of the blue DCA, Calendar Item 432, page 382 of the red book. It's in the second column, the third one down, the petition number is 20606. The subject is eliminating the General Council on Ministries. The committee's recommendation is nonconcurrency. The vote was 92 for, 10 against, zero abstentions.

BISHOP GALVAN: Item 432 is before you for action. Any discussion? I believe you're ready to vote. Please vote when the light appears. [740 approved]

BISHOP GALVAN: The recommendation of the committee is sustained.

EVANS: Thank you, very much.

BISHOP GALVAN: The chair recognizes David Severe, Oklahoma, of the General Judicial Administration.

DAVID L. SEVERE (Oklahoma): All of ours are on page 170 of the DCA, and one of them on page 171.

BISHOP GALVAN: Is there a point of order? Microphone number 9.

Increasing Minimum Number of Votes for Minority Report

ROBERT SWEET (New England Conference): It's a parliamentary inquiry, I think. Bishop, I'm concerned about the amount of time that we're taking and I know that our Rules of Order say that all motions must be brought to the floor if they have at least five votes in the legislative committee. At what time is it appropriate to make a motion to suspend the rules to increase that number?

BISHOP GALVAN: That's in order any time.

SWEET: I so move.

BISHOP GALVAN: Will you state your motion again?

SWEET: Yes. I move that the rules be suspended so that a minimum of 10 dissenting votes in any legislative committee report be required to bring it to the floor.

BISHOP GALVAN: Is there a second? OK. I think we are ready to act on this. There's no debate on this motion. If you suspend the rules, it requires two-thirds. Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 650; no, 275; abstain, 10]

BISHOP GALVAN: You've suspended the rules. OK. Go ahead.

SEVERE: All right sir. We are...

BISHOP GALVAN: Point of order. Come to microphone number 8.

THOMAS R. BOLLER (Yellowstone): The inquiry is if we've changed the rules at this point, that's going to put items on consent calendar. At what point then, if someone wants to lift something that is now being shifted, will they need to take care of that matter?

BISHOP GALVAN: This is a very good question. We need to ask the calendar people to, the Committee on Calendars to find a way to do so. And they will have to report to us. Thank you for that question. Point of order. Microphone number 1.

PORTER J. WOMELDORFF (Central Illinois): Bishop, I believe the motion was to suspend the rules. The change in the rules, I believe, must be a separate motion and is debatable.

BISHOP GALVAN: The chair rules that you are correct, so we need to go back and ask for the motions to be placed before us. So will you please come back, the person who moved to suspend the rules? Come back and make the specific motion again.

SWEET: It's my understanding we have now suspended the rules so the motion is in order?

BISHOP GALVAN: That's correct.

SWEET: I move to suspend Rule 28.3a so that it reads, "No more than 10 votes were against the prevailing position in the committee."

BISHOP GALVAN: You need to clarify your motion. We already suspended the rules, so now you just state your motion.

SWEET: I did. Oh I'm sorry, I beg your pardon. I move that Rule 28.3a now read "No more than 10 votes were against the prevailing motion in the committee," substituting 10 for five.

BISHOP GALVAN: Okay. That's the motion. Is there a second? It's been seconded. Is there discussion? Come to microphone number 7. Is that 7?

JONATHAN KEATON (Northern Illinois Conference): Bishop, at what point would this change, if it does get approved by the body, take effect?

BISHOP GALVAN: My understanding is it takes effect immediately. Any discussion on the motion? It takes two thirds because an amendment to the rules. Yes? Microphone number seven.

PAUL ERVIN (North Georgia Conference): Would the person moving on the motion be willing to say effective as of tomorrow? That would allow, I believe, the DCA to make the appropriate adjustments.

BISHOP GALVAN: Would you like to amend the amendment?

ERVIN: If that's in order, I would.

BISHOP GALVAN: It's in order.

ERVIN: Then I would like to amend the amendment to make it effective as of tomorrow.

BISHOP GALVAN: OK. Is there a second? (second) It's been seconded. We're now on the amendment. Any discussion? Yes, microphone number 13. Twelve. You're closer to 12.

FLO MARTIN (South Georgia): My concern would be that it's after three o'clock, and if this takes effect tomorrow, then what do we do by getting the items we need to pull from today's stuff?

BISHOP GALVAN: So you're speaking against the amendment. Anyone in favor of the amendment? Since there is no one, I think we are ready to vote on the amendment. If you are ready to vote, please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 556; no, 342; abstained, 23]

BISHOP GALVAN: OK, it is amended. Now we are back to the motion that was made before, and this will take two thirds. Are we ready to vote? I see a card. Microphone number eight.

JOHN HOPKINS (South Indiana): I would like to amend the motion to exclude any of the, exempt any of the minority reports that are attached to a calendar item so that these would automatically be presented.

BISHOP GALVAN: Is there a second? (second) It has been seconded. Do you want to speak to your amendment?

HOPKINS: Yes, I think our Rules allows us to have ten members or ten percent of a committee in order to bring a minority report. A lot of work has gone into those particular calendar items, and I think they ought to be exempt.

BISHOP GALVAN: It is already on the floor, so we need to act on it. It has been seconded. Are we ready to vote on this amendment? Are you ready to vote? Please indicate so when the light appears. [730 approved]

BISHOP GALVAN: It's been amended. Now we are back to the main motion. Are we ready to act on the main motion? I don't see any cards, so I think we are ready to do so. Please vote when the light appears. It will require two thirds.

BISHOP GALVAN: The motion is approved... We only have about three minutes or so.

DAVID SEVERE: All right, these are hopefully quick. Page 170 in the DCA. Calendar Item 436. It is on the right hand column toward the lower part. In the DCA number two, the white book, it is page 1324. And it is Petition 22707, and it will be found in the upper right hand column. The gist of this is that it would strike the language "without regard to race, color, national origin, or economic condition". The committee voted nonconcurrency: 83 for noncurrency, 8 against, and 1 abstention. Our rationale is that we believe that the present language should be retained in the Discipline as it is.

BISHOP GALVAN: Item 436 is before you for action. Is there any discussion? I see a card; right, in the back. Microphone number 13.

GRADY KNOWLES (California-Nevada Conference): This is a point of information, Bishop. I believe we just suspended the rules and acted to move anything with fewer than ten votes onto the Consent Calendar. The amendment is as of tomorrow. Does that mean it doesn't take effect until items are presented tomorrow?

BISHOP GALVAN: That is correct.

KNOWLES: Thank you.

BISHOP GALVAN: We are on the Calendar Item 436. Are you ready to vote? If you are ready to vote please indicate so when the light appears. [762 approved]

BISHOP GALVAN: The committee recommendation has been sustained. I believe this is the last item we have time for.

SEVERE: Thank you, sir. Do you want me to take one more, or was that it?

BISHOP GALVAN: No, that was it.

SEVERE: That's what I thought. Thank you.

BISHOP GALVAN: At this point we are on the Orders of the Day, and we recognize Chita Framo, president of International Diakonia, to make a statement.

GLORIA J. BLACKLOCK (Southern Illinois Conference): It is with a great pleasure that as chair of the Committee on Deaconess Service for the National Division I present to you Chita Framo. She is a United Methodist Deaconess from the Philippines. She is attending this conference as a reserve delegate from the Northwest Philippines Annual Conference. Chita is a graduate of Scarritt College in Nashville, Tennessee, and is presently serving as president of Diakonia, World Federation of Diaconal Associations and Diaconal Communities. I present to you Chita Framo.

Diakonia Explained

CHITA FRAMO: Bishop, and members and friends of General Conference. This is indeed an honor and a wonderful privilege to be present among you and to greet you in the name of all the deaconesses and diaconal ministers from about 48 associations from many countries around the world that form Diakonia, the World Federation of Diaconal Associations and Diaconal Communities. This is an ecumenical federation of women and men who after the end of World War II felt the need for reconciliation between countries and groups that had hurt one another. Diakonia will celebrate its 50th founding anniversary in July 3-11, 1996, in Frederic Rhoda in the eastern part of Germany under the theme "Bridges of Reconciliation, Hope, and Mission." There is so much need in our world, and we extend our hands to care for those in need as we stand on our tiptoes to advocate for change, and as we continue to build bridges of friendship and mutual ministries. We are Christ's own persons touching people with love and grace. We all stand in the long line of faithful women and men who follow God's call to service. We are servants, one with another to carry on the mission of Christ wherever we are. Lastly, as a member of The United Methodist Church in the Philippines, I bring you greetings from my 300 active deaconesses who are presently appointed in churches, institutions, and agencies of The United Methodist Church across the Philippines archipelago. Thank you. (applause)

BISHOP GALVAN: Will you please give your attention to the secretary of General Conference for announcement? (Floor Voice) Is this something very urgent? Come to microphone number 13. Yes. We have reached the Orders of the Day. That's the reason it has to be something of extreme urgency. Will you please state.

BARBARA LEMMEL (Troy Conference): I'm not sure if this is an emergency, but it will be very short.

BISHOP GALVAN: Go ahead.

LEMMEL: I have a motion to present to this body that General Conference recommend to the Commission on General Conference that child care be provided during all scheduled worship and business sessions beginning with the General Conference of 2000. If I have a second, I will speak to it.

BISHOP GALVAN: It is my judgment that this can be referred to the Commission on General Conference since it is dealing with next General Conference. Is that correct?

LEMMEL: Yes.

BISHOP GALVAN: Could that be referred to the Commission on General Conference?

LEMMEL: I didn't know that. That is what I am asking to do.

BISHOP GALVAN: Fine. Then the motion is properly before us. Anyone who wants to speak to it? Any discussion. It's a motion of referral. I believe we are ready to act. If you are ready to act, please indicate so when the light appears. It is a motion of referral.

BISHOP GALVAN: This has been referred. Thank you very much.

CAROLYN MARSHALL: A reminder that the Legislative Committee on Higher Education and Chaplaincy will meet for a brief time at 3:35 upon adjournment just now in the area near the press tables. That's stage left, and for a bit more clarification, it will be near microphone five.

BISHOP GALVAN: The plenary is adjourned at this time, and please go to your legislative committees after your break.

Conference Celebrates Ecumenism, Africa University Success

In the words of delegates, the April 23 session of the 1996 General Conference took a "giant step" in ecumenism and "one small step for 'Methodistkind'" when it approved joining the "Churches in Covenant Communion" along with two reports leading toward a "vision for global connection."

With Louisville Area Bishop Robert D. Morgan presiding, delegates received a greeting from Bishop Dolok-saridu of The Methodist Church of Indonesia. The bishop and 50 church members, including a choir, flew 18 hours to be present. His description of the Indonesian church cited 100,000 members, 500 pastors and 100,000 students at Methodist schools and universities. He presented a flag and a banner to the General Board of Global Ministries and the General Conference.

San Francisco Area Bishop Melvin G. Talbert, Council of Bishops secretary, presented some 20 ecumenical visitors and guests from Catholic, Jewish and Protestant traditions. The bishop said he believed it was the first time an official representative of the American-Jewish Committee was part of the group.

Dr. Joan Brown Campbell, general secretary, National Council of Churches, said: "We must move

A Conference Moment

Delegates celebrate the ministry of the Advance by waving the flags of the 102 countries where United Methodists are in mission. Each raised hand is a response to the theme of Advance "Whom Shall I Send?" The 1996 General Conference responds, "Here I Am, Lord."

forward as one to witness as one." She thanked Bishop Talbert for his leadership as NCC president.

Delegates then heard Albany Area Bishop William Boyd Grove, General Commission on Christian Unity and Interreligious Concerns president, describe progress being made by the Consultation on Church Union as a challenge to the church to "move beyond our maps." Division of the church is the major impediment to our task of unity, he said.

Proposal Overwhelmingly Approved

The proposal for participation in the "Churches in Covenant Communion" was overwhelmingly approved despite strong presentations by minority report representatives who urged a slower ecumenical pace. (See related story.)

The Study Report on Connectional Issues was introduced by Portland Area Bishop William W. Dew Jr., president, General Council on Ministries. The report proposes "significant new formation, anticipating the 21st century," he said. Leading delegates through the report, GCOM member Gordon Goodgame, Holston Conference clergy delegate, described a vision for global connection and a connectional design with interactive connections, based on a pattern of outreach, nurture and ministry. At the heart of the plan is a "Connectional Process Team" which will shepherd the reorganization process on all church levels.

Debate continued in the afternoon, as a minority report was presented and discussed. The final vote affirmed the committee's report, looking to a future church with greater flexibility at all levels and a one-third reduction in size and cost of general agencies. A preliminary report is to be completed by January 1999, with a final report to the 2000 General Conference.

A closely connected item, coming from the Council of Bishops, was a report on "The Global Nature of The United Methodist Church," presented by Bishop Emerito P. Nacpil of the Philippines. It includes proposals for a Global Conference and a Global Mission Council. A continuing study process will be coordinated with the Connectional Process Team.

International Concern, Celebration

Bishop Adriel de Souza Maia, Methodist Church of Brazil, asked the General Conference to express concern to the government of Brazil and U.S. officials over what he described as a massacre of innocent people of the "landless movement" in the state of Para. The request was approved.

The afternoon session was concluded with a joyous celebration of Africa University. In eight years the dream has become a reality, with 28 graduates, 300 students, nine buildings, and colleges of agriculture, theology, management and education. A scholarship fund has reached $9.5 million. The Africa University choir inspired delegates to stand, clap, sway and applaud with appreciation.

Western Angola Area Bishop Emilio J. M. de Carvalho, first chancellor of the university, promised an institution with "a continuing commitment to train present and future generations of African leaders."

As the session closed, Illinois Area Bishop David J. Lawson, presiding officer for the afternoon, led delegates in prayer for the students of Africa University and for the victims of tornadoes and storms across the midwestern United States.

Debate on the Connectional Issues Study covered so much time that delegates faced a long evening of other calendar reports. The day before they had voted to place all calendar items coming from committees with 10 or fewer negative votes (up from five) directly to the Consent Calendar. This meant that the next day more than 1,500 items could be passed without floor debate, but the job ahead was still massive.

Hungering for the Future

by David J. Lawson

The way into our future, writes Bishop Lawson, is not clear. The congregation of the future will see itself as a missionary congregation in the mission territory, wherever in the world it is located. Such a congregation must be solid in faith, open to innovation, and responsive to the changing needs of the world. Bishop Lawson calls for a church that "incarnates compassion, peacemaking, and healing, that asks more of [us] than [we] have ever given before, where that deep but nameless hunger [for a church] will find a banquet table."

Special Security Measures for Hillary Clinton Visit

Special security measures are in order this afternoon, when First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton addresses the General Conference. Business manager Roger Kruse said delegates should remove all bags, knapsacks, purses and other containers from the plenary hall by 11:30 a.m. These items may not be brought back into the room during Mrs. Clinton's visit. Items remaining in the plenary hall may be subject to removal. Books may be left on tables.

Mr. Kruse asks delegates and visitors to exit the plenary hall immediately. "The faster delegates get out, the faster we'll get back in," he said.

At Monday noon I quit writing the Tuesday entries for this column because I'd received almost a page's worth! The competition goes on. Keep those "Can You Top This?" contributions coming.

A FAMILY AFFAIR

Pacific Northwest Conference delegates Roger W. Barr (clergy reserve) and Robin E. Barr (lay) are a father-daughter team from Trinity United Methodist Church, Sequim, Wash.

Two brothers/clergy delegates from the Mississippi Conference, John M. Case and Martin A. Case, are joined by their brother-in-law, J. Anthony "Tony" Holifield, clergy delegate from North Arkansas. Another brother-in-law, Dick Sigler of Alabama-West Florida Conference, was a clergy delegate in 1988 and 1992.

Brothers Charles L. Johnson Sr. and H. Samuel Johnson—both clergy delegates—hail from the South Carolina Conference.

Joanne Montgomery Link, Central Pennsylvania Conference clergy delegate, is wearing the badge her father, F.W. Montgomery, wore to the 1960 General Conference, also in Denver.

MOST DELEGATES FROM ONE CHURCH

First United Methodist Church, Hendersonville, Tenn., is well-represented at General Conference. Attending from that congregation are spouses Ben Alexander, a visitor, and Betty M. Alexander, Tennessee Conference lay delegate; spouses Ben R. Alford, clergy delegate, and Sheri Alford, news-room staff; Roy Lightner, lay delegate; and spouses Elijah E. McGee, clergy delegate, and Sheila McGee, DCA staff.

From St. Andrew United Methodist Church, West Lafayette, Ind., delegates include former pastors Jacob C. Williams Jr. and Brian Witwer, and current members Victor W. Goldschmidt and Carolyn E. Johnson. All represent the North Indiana Conference.

Christ United Methodist Church, Erie, Pa., has three delegates, representing the Western Pennsylvania Conference: James L. Donner, lay reserve; Jeffrey E. Greenway, clergy; and Harold Yannayon, lay. They brought their spouses, bringing the total number of persons from that congregation to six.

First United Methodist Church, Stillwater, Okla., is home to three delegates representing the Oklahoma Conference: Theodore L. "Ted" Agnew (lay), James P. "Jim" Gragg (clergy reserve) and Frieda K. Peters (lay reserve).

Two members of First United Methodist Church, Tupelo, Miss., are attending General Conference: Dot Harrelson, who serves as a marshal, and Stephen L. McAlilly, Mississippi Conference lay delegate. In addition, quilter Susan Lucky, whose beautiful memorial quilts were displayed in the conference center lobby last week, is a First Church member.

WHAT GOES AROUND COMES AROUND

Elaine J. (Woodworth) Stanovsky, Pacific Northwest Conference clergy and head of her delegation, first attended General Conference 20 years ago, as a lay person and head of her delegation (at age 22).

ELECTIONS PARALLEL JOURNEY

Darlene T. Montgomery, Kansas East Conference lay delegate, is attending her third General Conference. In 1987 she was approved by her annual conference into candidacy for the diaconal ministry and elected a delegate to the 1988 General Conference. In 1991 she was consecrated as a diaconal minister, certified in social work and elected a 1992 General Conference delegate. In 1995, she retired and was elected a delegate to this General Conference.

Lay delegates Amy L. Spachman, West Michigan Conference; Jennifer Weigle, Central Pennsylvania; and Chris White, Western Pennsylvania, are all 16 years old.

How Much Is He Getting?

A rather clean-cut, young man is in trouble! His pickup has broken down, and he must get it towed before his tools are ripped off. He only needs $22 or any amount you can give to help pay the tow charge. If you'll help him out, he will send you twice the amount as soon as his truck is fixed and he gets his pay check. He only needs $22; he's got the rest. He has never asked anyone for money before, and begging makes him feel like dirt.

Walking to his pickup where we could meet the tow truck and where we could combine our money wasn't good enough. He needed the cash right now.

Wouldn't you want to help? Maybe you did! Some on Sunday night, others on Monday night, and still others on Tuesday night. Some have been approached more than once. Maybe we'll all get our chance before the week is over.

Joys and Concerns

Congratulations to new officers of the United Methodist Association of Communicators (UMAC), elected April 23: Alvin J. Horton, president; Lynne DeMichele, vice president; Cheryl Hahs Edwards, secretary; Darrell Bryant, treasurer; Shirley Whipple Struchen, United Methodist Communications liaison; Victoria Shearn, membership secretary; and Marilyn J. Kasperek, awards program. The UMAC annual meeting is set for Nov. 21-23 at the Renaissance Hotel, Washington, D.C.

The staff and employees of Duffy's Restaurant and Tavern, near the Adam's Mark Hotel, expressed appreciation for the visiting United Methodists. "They are a pleasure to wait on and have as customers," they told Pam and Dan Horner, spouses who serve as General Conference pages.

Sympathy is extended to Robert L. Powell, Alabama-West Florida lay delegate, whose 20-year-old grandson was killed in an auto accident.

Carolyn Marshall Enjoys 'Meeting People Where They Are'

If General Conference were a party, Carolyn Marshall would have to be considered the party planner. As General Conference secretary, she is responsible for knowing who is invited to this "party" (the certification of nearly 1,000 delegates from around the world). She puts out all the "place cards" (oversees the seating arrangement) and directs "party games" (makes sure legislative committees consider their share of more than 3,000 petitions).

A laywoman from Veedersburg, Md., Ms. Marshall is completing her second quadrennium in her post. While the job is demanding, she relishes it as her contribution to the church she loves.

"The job is really meeting people where they are," she said. "It's explaining rules and changes and dealing with people one-on-one. . . . People want someone to talk to them, to walk them through a situation; then they are happy."

The job of secretary is the only elected position of the General Conference organizational team. Disciplinary paragraph 608 details a host of "shalls" for the conference secretary.

Ms. Marshall said one of the toughest parts of her assignment is gathering necessary data about delegates from regional and Central Conferences. "It takes forever and ever and ever to get all that in," she said. An entire room in her home is dedicated to General Conference work. It's filled with bulging files, a well-used copy machine, and a fax machine that has beeped and buzzed for months on end. And, after receiving faxes at 3 a.m. from Bali where it's midday, and attempting to make connections late at night from other time zones, Ms. Marshall at last installed a separate fax line in order to simplify her life and retain her sanity.

"I really enjoy my job," she said, admitting it has some frustrating moments. "I enjoy . . . relating to people. I love the church. The church has been my world for more years than I'd like to admit."

Beginning with her first local church Women's Society of Christian Service meeting some 30 years ago, Ms. Marshall has served as conference United Methodist Women (UMW) treasurer and president, jurisdictional UMW core planning group president, General Board of Global Ministries director and Women's Division president. She was the first woman to serve on the South Indiana Conference Council on Finance and Administration (CFA) and the North Central Jurisdiction CFA.

Currently, by virtue of her position as conference secretary, Ms. Marshall serves on the Committee on Plan of Organization and Rules of Order, the Committee on General Conference, and the Committee on Correlation and Editorial Revision for the Book of Discipline. She is completing her second quadrennium as South Indiana Conference lay leader.

When she's not immersed in church work, Ms. Marshall serves as executive director of the Lucille Raines Residence in Indianapolis, a continuing-care facility for persons completing substance-abuse programs or undergoing mobility training.

The most exciting development Ms. Marshall has seen during her service to the conference has been the refinement of computerization. "When conference actions are put on the World Wide Web, we are literally connected around the world," she said.

One benefit of computerization, she said, is "the speed of getting through the petition process, transmitting it to the DCA and seeing how it will affect the Discipline. We can share this information, and people don't even have to be at the site of General Conference to know what's going on."

Ms. Marshall was quick to credit her "extraordinary staff" for their support and dedication. "Nobody operates in a vacuum," she remarked. The secretary has a staff of about 10 persons plus some volunteers. "They have been immensely helpful," she added.

Lizards in Denver?

Not everyone at General Conference is here to follow legislation. There are some quiet rooms where participants can leave their coats and extra books, kick off their shoes, munch cookies, and read or visit. One such room is the pages and marshals' lounge which is staff by volunteer "lounge lizards"!

These members of Rocky Mountain Conference churches spend four-hour shifts extolling the beauties of Colorado, refilling the ice water, checking on the cookie supply and offering hospitality to other volunteers who serve as pages and marshals. Although most lounge lizards are from the Denver area, the "longest distance traveled" award would go to George Cannon, Casper, Wyo.

Lounge lizards watch proceedings on a monitor in the room. Many said they had no concept of how big The United Methodist Church is until they came to the convention center and visited with volunteer pages and marshals.

Cokesbury Display Proves Popular

The Cokesbury display area has been busy since the first moments of registration. As the primary resource supplier for United Methodist local churches, Cokesbury went to great lengths to display a wide variety of products.

According to the Cokesbury staff, gifts are on the minds of delegates and visitors. Commemorative hymnals, tote bags and mugs are big hits for people to take home. Customers also enjoy the hand-painted, signed African prints.

Bill Turner, general manager of the General Conference display, and Mary Turner, field sales director, who are responsible for the area, note that people seem to read a wide variety of books, with high interest in the "Preaching/Worship/Lectionary" area. The "Self-Help" area also has a lot of traffic (that makes you think, doesn't it?). The "Devotional and Inspirational Books" section is busy, too, with many people looking at new selections.

Delegates must have felt musical on Friday and Saturday. Many customers inquired about "Africa Praise" CDs; MIL VOCES, the Hispanic hymnal; and song books.

While some people come to Cokesbury to browse, others arrive with a particular area of interest. The chalices and patens from the opening Communion service were sold within 24 hours. Another area that receives considerable attention is clergy apparel.

Neil Alexander, president and publisher of The United Methodist Publishing House, recommends that laity look at the wide variety of biblical references and commentaries that are available. He encourages lay persons in particular to explore resources that some people think are mostly for clergy.

Visitors have shown interest in new curriculum resources and enjoy talking with editors and developers. Both clergy and lay persons show interest in computer technology now available to the church. "Cokesbury Online" and United Methodist Resources available on the Internet are demonstrated at the rear section of the display.

One of the most magnificent parts of the display area is the set designed and used in the videos for "Disciple: Remember Who You Are." It includes all Disciple resources and a beautiful commemorative plaque that declares the theme verse of Disciple, "If you make my Word your home, you will be my disciples."

One way to take the General Conference home with you is to carry resources and ideas that will be useful to the local church. The United Methodist Publishing House has certainly made that easier.

Menace to Society or Economic Development?

Gambling is a "menace to society," according to the Discipline; yet it is a growing industry for a number of Native American tribes. The Rev. Thom White Wolf Fassett, general secretary of the General Board of Church and Society, shared his concern about the increasing number of gambling casinos on reservations. At a luncheon meeting dealing with gambling, Mr Fassett said, "I am caught between a rock and a hard place." Mr Fassett, a member of the Seneca tribe, noted that reservations on which Native Americans live are recognized as sovereign states by The United Methodist Church. At the same time, the church's Social Principles prohibit gambling.

Mr. Fassett likened a Native American sovereign state to Monaco, which bases its economy on gambling. "Monaco has the right to do whatever it needs to create an economy," he said, "but as United Methodists, we can tell Monaco's Prince Rainier we do not support his way of doing it."

Persons from both sides of the issue attended the luncheon. Some presented the rights of Native Americans, while others expressed their opposition to gambling. "Those of us who support Native American sovereignty and anti-gambling must urge the church to enter into partnership with Native American nations to explore economic-development alternatives," said Mr. Fassett.

The Rev. Alvin Deer, Oklahoma Indian Missionary Conference, said, "Every time Native Americans threaten to become economically independent, society comes up with laws and provisions that say 'we want you to stay dependent.' We are not dealing with a society that really wants Native Americans to be self-sufficient."

"Our group has no official standing on gambling," said the Rev. Sam Wynn, head of the Native American International Caucus (NAIC). He added: "Our big concern is that we want the church to speak up about it, but The United Methodist Church is not doing it. Many of us are struggling against gambling, but there is no one to help us."

The General Board of Church and Society is launching an "Enough is Enough" campaign to educate people about the moral implications of legalizing gaming. The board is also scheduling a consultation with United Methodist Native Americans in December to discuss the gaming issue and alternative forms of economic development.

Raising the Unconscious to Consciousness

Monitoring the policies, programs and practices of The United Methodist Church is a major responsibility of the General Commission on the Status and Role of Women (COSROW). As evidenced by the "Blessed Be the Women: Be Counted!" information boxes featured in the DCA, COSROW is monitoring activities here. Some delegates and visitors have wondered why.

We all say and do things that convey unconscious biases and stereotypes. In a parliamentary setting such as General Conference, the following should be considered. With whom do we talk? With whom do we share information? Who is called on to speak? What inclusive or exclusive language do we use? Who is elected to a leadership position? All of these factors indicate how bound we may be—consciously or unconsciously—by these biases.

Research on such unconscious biases has been done with teachers and students in elementary and secondary classrooms showing how biases affect our behavior. Adapted to the decision-making arena, such research helps us analyze our interactions.

COSROW monitors observe interaction in committees and other groups. When someone is recognized to speak, ask a question, or make a point of order or a motion, the monitor records data on lay/clergy, racial/ethnic minority and male/female categories. Percentages of participation are then calculated, based on the number present and the number speaking.

The commission is grateful for the support of each committee.

UMPH President Responds With a Mission Opportunity

The United Methodist Publishing House is encouraged by and grateful for the enthusiasm the General Conference has expressed for Mil Voces Para Celebrar. I am aware that a number of delegates wish to obtain copies of the new Spanish-language hymnal to share with folks back home in their annual conferences and congregations.

In light of the discussion on the floor Monday night, The United Methodist Publishing House wants to emphasize our commitment and hope for vibrant ministry with Spanish-speaking persons through the use of the new hymnal. The UMPH will give one hymnal at no charge to Hispanic ministries for every copy of Mil Voces Para Celebrar purchased during General Conference. Delegates may purchase one or more copies of Mil Voces Para Celebrar to take home or they may designate them for use in Hispanic ministries (as determined by the Committee on Hispanic Ministries). The committee directing the National Hispanic Plan will be asked to designate faith communities or congregations to receive all hymnals made available through this mission effort.

The United Methodist Publishing House decided four years ago to make a major investment to support development of an outstanding resource for extending ministry with and by Spanish-speaking persons. More than $600,000 has been spent to undergird the work of the editorial committee and editor for planning and pre-production steps. The $600,000 figure does not include the actual costs of manufacturing and shipping printed copies of the new hymnal. The sale of copies of the hymnal is not—and was never—expected to recoup the missional investment necessary to assure a high quality and useful aid for the worship life of Spanish-speaking communities. The $9.50 price for the new hymnals at this General Conference is roughly one-fifth of the actual cost of each copy when development expenses are considered. In making a decision about distributing copies of the hymnal at General Conference, The United Methodist Publishing House opted instead to make the sampler available and use the roughly $10,000 needed to pay for delegate copies to invest in additional resources for Spanish-speaking ministries such as the new bilingual curriculum for children, Adventuras.

You can pick up Mil Voces Para Celebrar "matching gift" forms in the Cokesbury display area. This opportunity is available until the close of General Conference.

Bishops' Report: The Global Nature of the Church

Philippines Bishop Emerito P. Nacpil, speaking on behalf of the Council of Bishops, presented the report on "The Global Nature of The United Methodist Church" Tuesday. Bishop Nacpil called for the study in 1988 in order that "our vision could match the reality of our church." He said that if we do not catch the vision, "our church could be in danger of becoming fragmented."

The report outlines the global existence of United Methodism. Our membership is global, our self-understanding is universal (catholic), our fellowship inclusive, our heritage stretches beyond borders, and our mission covers the entire world. Our vision needs only to be faithful to who we are.

The report contains proposals of regional and global conferences of United Methodism, along with a Global Mission Council. Bishops would be charged with providing "visionary spiritual leadership." The report also calls for a 30-member task force that would develop in greater detail the global connectionalism broadly described by the bishops. A comprehensive proposal would be brought before the 2000 General Conference. (See pp. 168-74, DCA Advance Edition I.)

Veteran General Conference delegates and visitors can't help but notice the greater participation of Central Conference delegates in legislative committee discussions and floor debates from one conference to another. David Lundquist, general secretary, General Council on Ministries, told delegates four years ago that it simply is impossible to think of The United Methodist Church in national terms, as only an American Christian community.

LEARNING LESSONS FROM OUR NATION'S CHILDREN

It Takes a Village: And Other Lessons Children Teach Us, by Hillary Rodham Clinton. America's First Lady chronicles her quest to discover how we can make our society into the kind of village that enables children to grow into able, caring, resilient adults. By looking honestly at the condition of our children, by understanding the wealth of new information research offers us about them, and most importantly, by listening to the children themselves, we can achieve a more fruitful discussion about their needs. Ideal for anyone concerned with the welfare of our nation's children.

'Whom Shall I Send?' Video Celebrates Missionaries

The work of United Methodist missionaries around the world was highlighted in a new 20-minute video "Whom Shall I Send?" premiered at Monday evening's plenary session as part of a celebration of the Advance for Christ and His Church.

The celebration ended with delegates standing and singing the popular hymn, "Here I Am, Lord" as they waved flags from the 102 countries where The United Methodist Church, through the General Board of Global Ministries, is in mission.

Bishop Woodie W. White, General Council on Ministries Advance Committee chair, and song leaders Cynthia Wilson-Felder and ST Kimbrough Jr. waved flags from Brazil, Germany, Mozambique, the Philippines and the United States.

The United Methodist Church has more personnel and programs in Brazil than in any other Latin American country. Germany, Mozambique and the Philippines represented Central Conferences in Europe, Africa and Asia.

Bishop White told delegates and visitors that there is "no program more exciting, no program that touches more places in the world on behalf of United Methodism, than the Advance."

The video, which will be included in an Advance "Tool Kit" mailed this fall to every local church in the United States, features missionaries in action. It celebrates "the thousands of missionaries . . . all across the world who are in mission," Bishop White said.

Featured are Mario Rodriguez, who nurtures new Hispanic communities of faith in Scottsbluff, Neb.; Don Wilson, a community developer whose ministry is part of the outreach of Theresa Hoover United Methodist Church in Little Rock, Ark.; and Sun Lae Kim, Young Chuel Cho and Susannah Cho who work with fledgling United Methodist churches in Moscow, Russia. Also featured are three missionary couples: Glenn and Darla Rowley, Bill and Roberta Smith, and Al and Mavis Streiffeler, who are working to establish a United Methodist presence in Senegal, West Africa, a predominately Muslim country.

The video also celebrates the work of short-term missionaries working on projects worldwide through Volunteers in Mission.

The video theme is based on Isaiah 6:8: "Then I heard the voice of the Lord saying, 'Whom shall I send, and who will go for us?' And I said, 'Here am I; send me!'"

Choirs from five Northern Illinois Conference congregations sang "Here I Am, Lord" for the video: Community, Naperville; El Mesias, Elgin; St. John, Oak Park; and St. Mark, Chicago.

The video is available in English, Korean and Spanish, according to Barbara Dunlap-Berg, United Methodist Communications senior account executive for the Advance. She said each bishop was given a copy of the video on Monday. Churches or individuals wishing to receive the video prior to the fall mailing can order advance copies at the Advance tent (open until 2 p.m. today) across the street from the convention center.

Africa University Teaches Students How to Flex Their 'Spiritual Muscles'

Of 28 graduates in 1994, one is a beloved grade-school teacher, another is helping people feed themselves and their communities in southern Africa, and one is a pastor whose congregation has grown from 750 to 1,600 in two short years.

Not bad for a university that, seven years ago, was a vacant field and a fervent dream.

Today, Africa University, the first United Methodist university in southern Africa, is 300 students strong, with colleges of theology, education (beginning this fall), agriculture and business.

A celebration of Africa University, including a performance by the university's choir, capped the Tuesday afternoon session. The choir sang their thanks in a song, "The Dream is Alive," written by the university's music instructor and choir master, Patrick Matsikenyiri. The rhythmic anthem brought delegates and conference observers to their feet.

(A recording of songs by the Africa University choir, available on CD and cassette, is available for sale at the Cokesbury sales center).

In hailing the growth of Africa University, assistant vice chancellor James Salley praised annual conferences and other groups for their financial support of the university.

He introduced Korean Methodist Bishop Sun-Doh Kim. Kwan-Lin Methodist Church in Seoul, reportedly one of the largest Methodist congregations in the world, recently donated $1 million for the construction of a chapel on the Africa University campus.

Two graduates of Africa University also thanked United Methodists for supporting education of young people from across the African continent. Paulo Filipe Bunga of Angola, now with the United Nations food development office in Mozambique, said his education by the church-related college taught him the importance of helping people find "food for the body as well as the soul."

The Rev. Tsitsi Moyo, also a 1994 graduate, now pastor of St. Andrew United Methodist Church, Harare, Zimbabwe, recounted her journey from a girl denied the prospect of a formal education, to a trained pastor serving a fast-growing, urban church. "At Africa University I learned to flex my spiritual muscles," she said. "For that, and for my ministry, I am grateful."

The United Methodist Church is related to more than 120 schools, colleges and universities in the United States, Europe, Asia and Africa.

General Conference Outside the United States?

Because of the nature of United Methodism as a global church, the Northern Europe Executive Committee invited the 2000 General Conference to come to Copenhagen, said Henning Bjerno, committee chair. Following a decision to go to Cleveland, however, the Commission on the General Conference decided to urge the new commission to prepare guidelines for planning a General Conference outside the United States. If the conference were to meet in Europe, the following current attendees to General Conference might be the organizing committee, Mr. Bjerno added.

United Methodism in Northern Europe and Russia is represented by (front row, from left): Rolf Lindell and Berit Carlstrom, Sweden; Bishop Hans Vaexby, Northern Europe Area; Gerlinde Minor; Bishop Ruediger Minor, Eurasia Area; Andrei Kim and Anton Zakharchenko, Russia; (second row) Oyvind Hellesen and Anders Isnes, Norway; Tapani Rajamaa and Iris Rajamaa, Finland; Olav Paernamets and Tarmo Lilleoja, Estonia; Tobias F. A Windshield Tour of the Consent Calendar

Each morning in the DCA, delegates face an increasingly longer list of Consent Calendar items. Items which come out of committees with no more than five dissenting votes are automatically placed on the Consent Calendar and in one fell swoop, delegates vote on these items as a block without further discussion on the floor. Already, the fate of more than 1,000 petitions has been decided in this manner. Hardworking DCA staffers have sifted through this daunting pile of legislation and offer the following as actions which may hold particular interest.

Calendar Item 26

Baptism is the doorway to the sanctified life. There are no conditions of human life that exclude persons from the sacrament of baptism. Baptism is fulfilled only when the believer and the church are wholly conformed to the image of Christ.

Annual Conference Accessibility

The annual conference sessions shall be held in places which are accessible to persons with disabilities.

Calendar Item 249

Care of the Elderly

Whereas, all elderly persons, no matter how frail in body and mind, are persons of sacred worth to whom we owe a duty of care and respect, therefore, be it resolved, that The United Methodist Church will endeavor to identify and publicize programs and institutions that seem to be meeting the needs of elderly individuals; focus locally upon the spiritual, physical and emotional needs of the elderly; explore the need for and development of new approaches in health and social-care delivery; and mobilize the appropriate financial and personnel resources of the boards, agencies and institutions of the church to address this pressing concern.

tissue donation and encourage all people of faith to become organ and tissue donors as a part of their love and ministry to others in need.

Calendar Item 467

Family Violence and Abuse

We recognize that family violence/abuse in all its forms—verbal, psychological, physical, sexual—is detrimental to the covenant of the human community. Calendar Item 579

Reducing the Risk of Child Sexual Abuse in the Church

God calls us to make our churches safe places, protecting children and other vulnerable persons from sexual and ritual abuse. God calls us to create communities where children and adults grow safe and strong. Calendar Item 583

Affirm Purpose of United Methodist Women and Continue Giving Through the Proper Channels

Be it resolved that The United Methodist Church reaffirm the reason for which United Methodist Women came into existence over 100 years ago: to spread the gospel of Jesus Christ through mission outreach of the church, especially to women, children and youth throughout the world. We are, therefore, committed as United Methodists and United Methodist Women to continue our giving through the proper channels of our organization. Acting upon its purpose, United Methodist Women will follow the Discipline on the social principles of The United Methodist Church.

Calendar Item 250

The Sand Creek Apology

Whereas one of the blights on America's past that happened on Nov. 29, 1864, was the pre-dawn attack on Chief Black Kettle's Cheyenne village by Col. Chivington, killing and mutilating many, including helpless and unarmed women and children, and whereas The United Methodist Church has held itself up as a champion of ethnic minority causes and prides itself in its ethnically diverse membership; be it resolved, that this body of the 1996 General Conference extend to all Cheyenne and Arapaho a hand of reconciliation and ask forgiveness for the death of over 200 persons. . . . Let us heal the past and offer to one another the gifts with which God has blessed each of us, acknowledging that racism is a sin, but also seeing one another as whole people who need one another, as we acknowledge that we also need God.

March Beyond Our Maps

If you are going to be a leader in the Christian church, there are three things that you must have: a screw loose, a death wish and a sense of humor. That's what Christian Methodist Episcopal (CME) Bishop Thomas Hoyt said at the ecumenical worship service Tuesday morning.

The bishop quoted former World Council of Churches General Secretary Phillip Potter, explaining that to have a screw loose is to be open to the movement of the Spirit. To have a death wish is to choose to be a shepherd, rejecting the crown for a cross. And to have a sense of humor is an absolute necessity to ward off the devil, for the devil never laughs.

His sermon brought delegates to their feet as he urged the conference to march beyond our maps, to take a step of faith where there is no light. He urged the conference to move together in faith into new ecumenical territory.

"We are going through an ecumenical winter," Bishop Hoyt said. "some churches seeking an isolationism into the cocoon of their own self-indulgence." To prevent this, he urged delegates to dream and venture by faith into the ecumenical future.

He asked that delegates dream of a church that has not become one with the world, where God is known; a church truly inclusive and caring, working to meet human needs. In such a manner, United Methodists become risk-takers, willing to march off our maps.

Introduced by songs of praise from the colorfully garbed choir of the Methodist Church of Indonesia, other service participants represented the United Methodist commitment to the ecumenical movement. They included Bruce Robbins, general secretary, General Commission on Christian Unity and Interreligious Concerns; Sheila Greeve Devaney, Roman Catholic professor at Iliff School of Theology; and Leonid Kishkovsky, secretary for ecumenical and external affairs, Orthodox Church in America, and former president, National Council of Churches.

Delegates Adopt COCU Covenanting Document

The historic adoption yesterday of the Consultation on Church Union (COCU) covenanting document, "Churches in Covenant Communion," is the "first, unique opportunity for the ecumenical movement of the church and grass-roots congregations to meet," said Byrd L. Bonner, lay delegate, Southwest Texas Conference. He joined Albany Area Bishop William Boyd Grove to present the covenant proposal to the General Conference.

In his introductory remarks, Bishop Grove described the division of the church as a "major impediment to our evangelical task." He continued by saying, "We will experience the life of the one church in a new and dynamic way The division of the church confuses and repels people," he said.

Bishop Grove said five of the nine COCU churches have already adopted the covenant: the Christian Methodist Episcopal Church, the International Council of Community Churches, the Presbyterian Church USA, the United Church of Christ and the Christian Church—Disciples of Christ. Two other historically African-American Methodist denominations will consider it this summer at their General Conferences: the African Methodist Episcopal Church and the African Methodist Episcopal Church Zion. He said no COCU member church has rejected the covenant. The Episcopal Church is still studying the covenant.

Bruce Robbins, general secretary, General Commission on Christian Unity and Interreligious Concerns, said ecumenism welcomes diversity. "Ecumenism is like the Body of Christ. There are so many parts to it. It is not an either/or proposition to build unity that exists among us.

"The church we are called to be is a church welcoming to all," he continued, "with different traditions and perspectives. [The covenant] offers opportunities for churches to grow and be nurtured by one another."

The United Methodist Church has been an active participant in COCU since the early 1960s and part of the eight-year development and study of the covenant document.

What is covenant communion? The proposal cites Scripture highlighting God's call for unity in the church, including the well-known passage in the 17th chapter of John's Gospel—Jesus praying that "they may all be one"—and then describes covenanting as "both an act and a process."

Acknowledging that the covenant process is not designed to eliminate diversity, the document says: "In covenant communion the churches may maintain, for so long as each may determine, their own church structures and traditions, including present forms of worship, systems of ministerial selection, training, and placement, their international confession, and communion relationships, and their mission programs. What covenanting means is that these now separated churches will resolve to live as one in the most basic things—in faith, sacrament, ministry, and mission. Uniformity in structure is not essential to covenant communion."

The move toward union will grow out of the covenant process. For now, there are eight elements of covenanting:

1. claiming unity in faith;
2. commitment to seek unity with wholeness;
3. mutual recognition of members in one baptism;
4. mutual recognition of each other as churches;
5. mutual recognition and reconciliation of ordained ministry;
6. celebrating the Eucharist together;
7. engaging together in Christ's mission;
8. formation of covenanting councils.

One concern surfaced by some United Methodists about ministerial standards in the covenant document is related to denominations that ordain openly gay men and lesbians. The legislative committee that acted on the covenanting proposal reinforced the ability of The United Methodist Church to "maintain its own standards for ministerial training and the ordination of ministers which shall also apply to our reception or transfer of ministers of other denominations, including any prohibitions set by General Conference."

The covenant urges local churches to worship and celebrate the Eucharist together, as well as work together locally in mission. Nearly 70 percent of the delegates voted to adopt "Churches in Covenant Communion."

We recognize science as a legitimate interpretation of God's natural world. We affirm the validity of the claims of science in describing the natural world, although we preclude science from making authoritative claims about theological issues. We recognize technology as a legitimate use of God's natural world when such use enhances human life and enables all of God's children to develop their God-given creative potential without violating our ethical convictions about the relationship of humanity to the natural world.

In acknowledging the important roles of science and technology, however, we also believe that theological understandings of human experience are crucial to a full understanding of the place of humanity in the universe. Science and technology are complementary rather than mutually incompatible. We therefore encourage dialogue between the scientific and theological communities, and seek the kind of participation that will enable humanity to sustain life on earth, and by God's grace, increase the quality of our common lives together.

Mission of the Church (Referral from Plenary Session)

Delete ¶101 and replace as follows:

I. The Mission

The mission of the Church is to make disciples of Jesus Christ.

Rationale for Our Mission

The mission of the Church is to make disciples of Jesus Christ by proclaiming the good news of God's grace and thus seeking the fulfillment of God's reign and realm in the world. The fulfillment of God's reign and realm in the world is the vision which Scripture holds before us.

Jesus' words in Matthew 28:19-20 provide the Church with our mission: "Go therefore and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, and teaching them to obey everything that I have commanded you."

This mission is our grace-filled response to the Reign of God in the world announced by Jesus. God's grace is active everywhere, at all times, carrying out this purpose as revealed in the Bible. It is expressed in God's covenant with Abraham and Sarah, in the Exodus of Israel from Egypt, and in the ministry of the prophets. It is fully embodied in the life, death and resurrection of Jesus Christ. It is experienced in the ongoing creation of a new people by the Holy Spirit.

John Wesley and our other spiritual forebears understood this mission in this way. Whenever United Methodism has had a clear sense of mission, God has used our Church to save persons, heal relationships, and transform social structures, and spread scriptural holiness, thereby changing the world. In order to be truly alive, we embrace Jesus' mandate to make disciple of all peoples.

The Process for Carrying Out Our Mission

We make disciples as we:

— proclaim the gospel, seek, welcome and gather persons into the Body of Christ;

— lead persons to commit their lives to God through Jesus Christ;

— nurture persons in Christian living through worship, baptism, communion, Bible and other studies, prayer, and other means of grace;

— send persons into the world to live lovingly and justly as servants of Christ by healing the sick, feeding the hungry, caring for the stranger, and freeing the oppressed; and working to have social structures consistent with the gospel; and — continue the mission of seeking, welcoming and gathering persons into the community of the Body of Christ.

The Global Nature of Our Mission

The Church seeks to fulfill its global mission through the Spirit-given servant ministries of all Christians, both lay and clergy. Faithfulness and effectiveness demand that all ministries in the Church be shaped by the mission of making disciples of Jesus Christ.

If Annual Conferences choose to certify lay missioners, they must do so according to the guidelines. They are accountable to their pastor-mentor as a member of the ministry team. The ministry team is accountable to the local congregation or sponsoring body that established the goals for the ministry and assigned the ministry team. The Lay Missioner is accountable to the policies and procedures of the Annual Conference where assigned. The concept of lay missioners is theologically based in the ministry of the laity. While lay missioners are engaged in a variety of ministries, their purpose is to complement, not replace pastors.

I. The Mission

The mission of the Church is to make disciples of Jesus Christ.

Rationale for Our Mission

The mission of the Church is to make disciples of Jesus Christ by proclaiming the good news of Gods grace and thus seeking the fulfillment of Gods reign and realm in the world. The fulfillment of Gods reign and realm in the world is the vision which Scripture holds before us.

Jesus' words in Matthew 28:19-20 provide the Church with our mission: "Go therefore and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, and teaching them to obey everything that I have commanded you."

This mission is our grace-filled response to the Reign of God in the world announced by Jesus. God's grace is active everywhere, at all times, carrying out this purpose as revealed in the Bible. It is expressed in God's covenant with Abraham and Sarah, in the Exodus of Israel from Egypt, and in the ministry of the prophets. It is fully embodied in the life, death and resurrection of Jesus Christ. It is experienced in the ongoing creation of a new people by the Holy Spirit.

John Wesley and our other spiritual forebears understood this mission in this way. Whenever United Methodism has had a clear sense of mission, God has used our Church to save persons, heal relationships, and transform social structures, and spread scriptural holiness, thereby changing the world. In order to be truly alive, we embrace Jesus' mandate to make disciples of all peoples.

The Process for Carrying Out Our Mission

We make disciples as we:

— proclaim the gospel, seek, welcome and gather persons into the Body of Christ;

— lead persons to commit their lives to God through Jesus Christ;

— nurture persons in Christian living through worship, baptism, communion, Bible and other studies, prayer, and other means of grace;

— send persons into the world to live lovingly and justly as servants of Christ by healing the sick, feeding the hungry, caring for the stranger, and freeing the oppressed; and working to have social structures consistent with the Gospel; and — continue the mission of seeking, welcoming and gathering persons into the community of the Body of Christ.

The Global Nature of Our Mission

The Church seeks to fulfill its global mission through the Spirit-given servant ministries of all Christians, both lay and clergy. Faithfulness and effectiveness demand that all ministries in the Church be shaped by the mission of making disciples of Jesus Christ.

Note: the original petition on page 117 also called for the amendment of Paragraph 70A. This committee has already amended that paragraph to include the concerns of this petition.

The full petition now reads:

~~A) Water, Air, Soil, Minerals, Plants. We support and encourage social policies that serve to reduce and control the creation of industrial by-products and waste; facilitate the safe processing and disposal of toxic and nuclear waste and that move toward the elimination of both. A Dioxin Free Future

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) 1994 report entitled The Scientific Reassessment of Dioxin affirmed health warnings made 20 years ago—that the "background" levels of dioxin, a deadly chlorine-based chemical, pose a serious threat to the health of the general U.S. population.

The EPA concluded that dioxin compounds cause several types of cancer. Exposure to toxic chemicals such as dioxin is widely suspected to be related to the increasing rates of cancer in the United States. The rate of testicular cancer has tripled in the past thirty years and the rate of prostate cancer has doubled in the past ten years, and the rate of breast cancer in the United States has risen from one in every 20 women in the 1960s to one in every eight women today. More women have died of breast cancer in the last two decades than U.S. soldiers killed in World War I, World War II, and the Korean and Vietnam wars.

The EPA report stated that there is reason to believe that dioxins at extremely low levels cause a wide range of other serious health effects including reproductive impairment, learning disabilities, developmental injuries, and the increased risk of diabetes and endometriosis. Furthermore, even low levels of dioxin impairs the ability of the immune system to fight infectious disease. The EPA report says that there is no level of dioxin below which the immune system is not affected.

The EPA concluded that the levels of dioxins already lodged in human bodies are already close to levels known to cause serious health problems. According to the EPA, the average person is exposed to dioxin levels 50 to 100 times greater than the maximum allowable amounts designated by the federal government in 1985.

Some persons have what the EPA calls "special" exposures, including certain occupational groups, people living near dioxin emitters, and people who consume higher than average levels of meat, fish, and dairy products. Human exposure to dioxins begins early in life, since dioxin crosses the placenta. Nursing infants take in four to twelve percent of their lifetime dose of dioxin within the first year of their lives, a period during which they are most susceptible to the effects of such toxins.

Toxic pollution costs society hundreds of billions of dollars each year in expenses for health care, diminished productivity, waste disposal, and remediation of contaminated sites and ground water.

A healthy population, a clean environment, and efficient non-polluting technologies are essential to a sound economy. With a single program—dioxin phaseout—much of the world's most severe toxic pollution could be stopped.

The United Methodist Church calls on cancer research organizations to move to a prevention based approach to cancer research and funding, including more studies on the relationship between cancer and chlorine based toxins in the environment.

We support a phase out of the production of dioxin, beginning with the immediate action on the three largest sources of dioxin: incineration of chlorine containing wastes, bleaching of pulp and paper with chlorine, and the entire life cycle of polyvinyl chloride (PVC) plastic.

We support worker protection programs for people working in industries that make toxic chemicals or result in toxic by-product and related chemicals, who may lose their jobs with a phase out of these chemicals. Such programs could include a "Workers Superfund" program.

We direct the General Board of Church and Society to cooperate with the Health and Welfare Ministries unit of the General Board of Global Ministries to work with companies, governments, and medical institutions to implement the above recommendations.

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

The gospel call to take the Christian message to the world moves us toward a global understanding of mission and ministry. It is our belief that as The United Methodist Church restructures to meet this call it should remain faithful to its historic and prophetic stands of equality and ethnic/racial inclusion.

Toward this end, we call upon the General Conference to make major efforts to preserve and enhance racial/ethnic diversity within any new structures during and after restructuring.

This resolution is not to be published in the Book of Resolutions and is to be referred to the Connectional Process Team.

The doctrinal standards of United Methodism stand in the broad stream of apostolic Christianity. These standards are distinguishing characteristics of our unique identity. Whenever persons become members of local United Methodist congregations, they, along with the congregations of which they become a part, affirm the Apostles' Creed as a summary of doctrine these doctrinal standards.

Whenever persons are ordained within The United Methodist Church, they covenant to proclaim the faith of the Church and no other... (Book of Worship, page 675, Ordination of Elders).

The certificate of ordination attests that each ordinand is set apart for the work of an Elder... so long as this person continues to be a faithful servant of Jesus Christ and adheres to and teaches the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ and the doctrines of the Church.

After ordination, the Board of Ordained Ministry is responsible for all processes related to the character, effectiveness and conference relations of ordained members (§ 733).

Episcopal leaders are given responsibility to guard, transmit, teach, and proclaim corporately and individually the apostolic faith as it is expressed in Scripture and Tradition, and, as they are led and endowed by the Spirit to interpret that faith evangelically and prophetically. (§ 114.2 512.2). Episcopal leaders have the responsibility of general oversight and promotion of the temporal and spiritual interests of the entire church. (§150) Such oversight includes holding the church accountable to our doctrinal standards.

In addition, all general agencies of The United Methodist Church are amenable to the General Conference (§ 802). This amenability extends to the affirmation and defense of the doctrinal standards of the denomination, on whose behalf the general agencies have been created to serve. Some elders, episcopal leaders, and members of boards and agencies, having made these commitments in good conscience at one time, may determine that they are no longer able to affirm and uphold the doctrinal standards of The United Methodist Church.

Therefore, be it resolved, that those whose teaching and/or leadership demonstrably repudiates the doctrine of United Methodism and who persistently refuse to relinquish their privilege of leadership granted by the people they have been called to serve must be subject to the provision for removal in The Book of Discipline of The United Methodist Church:

1. We affirm our doctrinal standards as set forth in the Book of Discipline, and encourage their practice at all levels of church life, and

2. We encourage the Secretary of the General Conference to forward a copy of this resolution to the Council of Bishops and the chairs of the boards of diaconal ministry, laity and ordained ministry in each Annual Conference.

MINORITY REPORT

Doctrinal Integrity in Denominational Leaders

The doctrinal standards of United Methodist stand in the broad stream of apostolic Christianity. These standards are distinguishing characteristics of our identity. We are also characterized by a practical and faithful interpretation of those standards in response to the Spirits promptings to proclaim the gospel to the present age. To encourage such reflection, we have placed alongside our Doctrinal Standards and General Rules (§ 67) the normative statement Our Theological Task (§ 68).

Whenever persons are ordained within The United Methodist Church, they covenant to proclaim the faith of the Church and no other... (Book of Worship, page 675, Ordination of Elders). The certificate of ordination attests that each ordinand is set apart for the work of an Elder... so long as this person continues to be a faithful servant of Jesus Christ and adheres to and teaches the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ and the doctrines of the Church. After ordination, the Board of Ordained Ministry is responsible for all processes related to the character, effectiveness, and conference relations of ordained members (§ 733).

Episcopal leaders are given responsibility to Guard, transmit, teach, and proclaim corporately and individually the apostolic faith as it is expressed in Scripture and tradition, and as they are led and endowed by the Spirit, to interpret that faith evangelically and prophetically. (§ 514.2). Episcopal leaders have the responsibility of general oversight and promotion of the temporal and spiritual interests of the entire church. (§150) Such oversight includes continually holding our doctrinal standards before the church.

In addition, all general agencies of The United Methodist Church are amenable to the General Conference. (§ 802) This amenability extends to the affirmation and defense of the doctrinal standards of the denomination, on whose behalf the general agencies have been created to serve.

No United Methodist has a perfect understanding of our body of doctrine. We affirm and welcome the fresh witness of the Holy Spirit to lead us deeper into truth. We encourage creative theological thought, humbly acknowledging that all honest thought risks error and that we need a lively conversation as we seek to be faithful to the gospel of Jesus Christ and to one another.

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED:

1. We affirm our doctrinal standards and Our Theological Task, as set forth in the Book of Discipline, and encourage their observance at all levels of church life, and

2. We encourage the Secretary of the General Conference to forward a copy of this resolution to the Council of Bishops and the chairs of the Boards of Diaconal Ministry, Laity and Ordained Ministry in each Annual Conference.

RESOLUTION CALLING FOR AN EMPHASIS OF CONCERN FOR WORKERS

Be it resolved, that the 1996 General Conference authorize an Emphasis of Concern of the Worker to be conducted in the 1997-2000 Quadrennium and reported to the 2000 General Conference. The Emphasis of Concern will provide opportunities for our denomination, annual conferences, districts and local congregations to explore the history of our church and its relationship to workers in their struggles for workplace peace and justice.
 This Emphasis of Concern will explore:

Ways United Methodists can celebrate workers, their economic importance to our community and their many and diverse contributions to a free and just society;

The new challenges that confront us in an international economy and find ways we can stand together in continuing struggles; and

Ways to implement the actions called for in the resolution entitled The Right of Workers passed at the 1988 General Conference (Book of Resolutions, pages 369-370).

The Emphasis of Concern may, for example, organize a nationwide Conference on the United Methodist Church and Working People.

The General Conference shall direct the General Board of Global Ministries and the General Board of Church and Society to appoint a task force to coordinate the activities of the Emphasis of concern.
 This task force will be composed of both clergy and laity. The General Board of Global Ministries and General Board of Church and Society will each appoint one-third of the task force. Those appointed will then nominate the final one-third of the task force to represent the church-at-large. All appointees will be persons who are informed about the issues and/or presently engaged in ministry to working people, the unemployed and the underemployed. The task force will be gender, race and class inclusive.

Be it further resolved, the General Conference shall encourage each annual conference, district, and local congregation to explore and develop their own ministries to working people, the unemployed and underemployed. The General Board of Global Ministries and General Board of Church and Society will assist these efforts to Identify working people, the unemployed, and the underemployed who worship in our local congregations and, in the best tradition of Wesleyan inclusiveness, design settings in which to hear their stories, survey their needs, affirm their diverse gifts, and nurture their leadership skills;

Encourage regular dialogue with local organized labor communities and reach out to unorganized workers;

Advocate for the economic, social, political and spiritual interests of working people, the unemployed and the underemployed within annual conferences, districts and local congregations;

Be in special community with all who are affected during grievances, organizing efforts, contract negotiations, strikes, lockouts or plant closings; and

Participate in ecumenical, interfaith and other community-centered efforts to serve working people, the unemployed and the underemployed. Help to find funds both within and without the church to undergird ministries of support and advocacy for unemployed and underemployed.

Our denomination, its annual conferences, districts and local congregations, its boards, commissions, agencies, hospitals, nursing homes, seminaries and other higher education institutions employ many workers. We lift up the standards of being model employers, including:

Listening to the concerns of our employees and respond to their suggestions and grievances;

Supporting, not impeding, their efforts to organize for the purpose of collective bargaining; and Developing written guidelines based on the Social Principles for use within the denomination, its annual conferences, districts, local congregations, agencies and affiliated institutions which affirm the rights of workers to organize for the purpose of collective bargaining.

The General Conference recognizes that an Emphasis of Concern alone will not solve the workplace crisis. Each United Methodist must make a personal commitment to join the struggle. We worship the Carpenter and embrace the wisdom of John Wesley. Both served working people. United Methodists are well positioned to serve working people. We are workers, bosses, farmers, shoppers, preachers, educators, missionaries, administrators, corporate officers, landlords, doctors, bankers, stockholders and consumers. Embracing the spirit and implementing the call of the 1988 Resolution, United Methodists can help working people realize their full potential and find justice, peace and wholeness within their workplaces. By our actions, we seek to proclaim the sacredness of the workplace and the dignity of its workers.

 Membership: 98; Present: 88;

The Committee recommends concurrence with substitute motion as amended as follows:

Substitute Motion:

Whereas, the 1988 Task Force to Study the Feasibility of Relocating the General Board of Global Ministries (the 1988 Task Force) reported to the 1992 General Conference its judgment that such relocation was feasible, and it also reported a series of recommendations to effect such a relocation.

Whereas, the 1992 General Conference directed that the General Board of Global Ministries (the GBGM headquarters be moved from New York City.

Whereas, the 1992 General Conference established a Site Selection Task Force (the 1992 Site Selection Task Force) to select a new site for the GBGM headquarters.

Whereas, the projected costs of the 1992 Site Selection Task Force recommendations are so great (in excess of 72 million dollars) that the proposed relocation site is too costly and not reconcilable with the study and recommendation of the 1988 Task Force or the 1992 General Conference Resolution.

Whereas, the General Council On Ministries Connectional Issues Task Force is recommending (Item III on Page 576 of DCA) that the general agencies seek to refine and reshape themselves during the 1997-2000 quadrennium.

Whereas, the 1996 General Conference will be considering numerous petitions and studies recommending restructuring of the General Church that may require an overall study of the general boards and agencies during the next quadrennium.

Whereas, more prudent action necessitates a delay in mandating the relocation of the GBGM until the General Conference in 2000, so that any restructuring of the general boards and agencies can be incorporated into the site relocation decision and a more economical site can be determined in accordance with the recommendations of the 1988 Task Force.

Now, therefore, the 1996 General Conference adopts the following:

1. The 1992 Site Selection Task Force be dismissed with appreciation.

2. That the standing joint committee of the General Council on Ministries (GCOM) and the General Council on Finance and Administration (GCFA), as authorized by Paragraph 907.2 and 1006.26 of The Discipline review the suitability of the New York Headquarters location based upon possible restructure recommendations and stewardship of mission resources.

MINORITY REPORT

We the undersigned members of the General and Judicial Administration Legislative Committee, offer the following minority report:

WHEREAS, it is essential that the major decisions affecting the General Church be made by the General Conference; and

WHEREAS, the 1988 Task Force to Study the Feasibility of Relocating the General Board of Global Ministries (1988 Task Force) reported to the 1992 General Conference its judgment that such relocation was feasible, and it also reported recommendations to effect relocation; and

WHEREAS, the 1992 General Conference directed that the General Board of Global Ministries (GBGM) headquarters be moved from New York City.; and

WHEREAS, the 1992 General Conference established a Site Selection Task Force (1992 Task Force) to select a new site for GBGM headquarters; and

WHEREAS, the recommendations of the 1992 Task Force are not acceptable because of excessive costs and are not reconcilable with the 1988 Task Forces recommendations or the 1992 General Conference decision; and

WHEREAS, although the General Conference does not seek to assign fault, it is clear that the will of the 1992 General Conference has been frustrated and that a new way to resolve this matter is now essential in order to keep faith with a large part of the membership of The United Methodist Church; and

WHEREAS, because major restructuring of the general agencies is in process, it is not advisable to select a site for the GBGM headquarters at this time; and

WHEREAS, there is a strong possibility that suitable new sites for the GBGM headquarters are available with will result in annual reductions in net costs; and

WHEREAS, it is not desirable and not necessary to create another task force or to incur any significant expense for an additional study; and

WHEREAS, the necessary work to enable the General Conference to make an informed decision can be done by utilizing an existing Disciplinary joint committee;

NOW, THEREFORE, the 1996 General Conference adopts the following:

1. The Standing Joint Committee of the General Council on Ministries (GCOM) and the General Council on Finance and Administration (GCFA) authorized by Paragraph 907.2 and 1006.26 of the Discipline, as part of its continuing quadrennial review of the location of general agency headquarter, shall make a report to the General Conference in 2000. This report shall take into account all applicable restructuring and plans for restructuring, costs and cost savings, and stewardship of mission resources. The report shall include:

a. A review of the suitability of the New York City headquarters location;

b. A recommendation of one or more relocation sites for the economical and effective operation of the GBGM headquarters; and

c. A comparison of the suitability of the New York City headquarters and each proposed relocation site.

2. The General Conference in 2000 shall decide whether to retain the GBGM headquarters location and, if not, shall select a relocation site.

3. The Standing Joint Committee of GCOM and GCFA shall carefully control expenses and shall not use any mission funds for this assigned task. The Committee is encouraged to use relevant data from the 1988 and 1992 Task Forces and to invite specific proposals from local development authorities and others.

Monday Evening Session April 22, 1996

Bishop Thomas Stockton, presiding

song

BISHOP THOMAS STOCKTON: And now, as we begin each of our sessions with a few moments where we share with each other, please turn to perhaps someone that you have not shared with yet, someone a few spaces from you, in front of you or behind you. And we'll take just a few moments to share with you. What do you want to happen tonight and what does God want to happen tonight? May we have your attention, please, as we share with each other for just a few moments and then we will have prayer.

(moments of sharing)

Now having shared, would you please join with each other in prayer?

(prayer)

Now we have a personal privilege. Dr. Lee Sheaffer, would you come to microphone number 9, please.

LEE B. SHEAFFER (Virginia): I thank you for this personal privilege.

BISHOP STOCKTON: May we come to order, please. (laughter)

Society of St. Andrew

SHEAFFER: The Society of St. Andrew is a ministry in the Virginia Annual Conference working to alleviate hunger. This ministry is well known internationally for its Potato Project. In preparation for General Conference, the Society of St. Andrew promoted a "Penny Blizzard," encouraging congregations to raise a mile of pennies or $850. Twenty-one annual conferences and 147 churches have responded by giving $85,000 toward alleviating hunger in the United States. This represents 4 1/2 million servings of food.

We thank these churches and annual conferences for their support. We salute and thank the Rev. Ray Buchanan and the Rev. Jeff Allen for their outstanding leadership and vision to help address the hunger problems in our world. The Rev. Buchanan and Rev. Allen are up to my right. As you can see, their Society of St. Andrew donated $85,000 to help with the hunger problem of our nation. Thank you very much. [applause]

BISHOP STOCKTON: Let's express appreciation for that ministry. [applause] Pete Weaver, Pennsylvania, wanted to make an inquiry. Where are you? Microphone 9.

Rule 36

Discernment and Consensus

PETER D. WEAVER (Western Pennsylvania): I know time flies when you are having fun, and it seems like we've only been here a day. [laughter] But the fact of the matter is, we've been here almost a week. And on the first day of our proceedings, if you will refer in the Daily Proceedings on page 54 and 55, you will remember that Susan Hassinger proposed an amendment to Rule 36. And as a body, we referred that Rule 36 to the Committee on Plan of Organization and Rule of Order.

And if you will look at the dialogue that occurred between Bishop Sano and Robert Stevens, you will note that the implication was that we would hear back on that referral the next day. It is now the next day plus, and so I rise to inquire what has happened to that referral, and based upon the answer, I may have an motion.

BISHOP STOCKTON: It's my understanding that Robert Stevens had to leave the site of the conference. And I am not sure whether there is someone else that can answer that question. Is there a member of the Rules Committee that can speak to this issue? Jerome Del Pino? Jerome, would you go to number nine, please.

JEROME K. DEL PINO (New England Conference): Bishop, the Rules Committee did, in fact, receive the proposal that had been submitted by Susan Hassinger. And it was given due consideration in the meeting of the committee as it formed and elected its new officers. It was determined in that meeting that while, as my colleague, Pete, has indicated, it was implied that it would be returned. There was not the understanding that that was mandatory, given the scope of the study that the committee felt would need to be done in order to act responsibly regarding the parameters of that motion.

That is to say that we believe that it has implications for a paradigm change for the General Conference. We were very open to being able to hear back from the process that was utilized by the ministry study group, and we would be informed by that. I have made the commitment to Susan that the first meeting of the Rules Committee for the General Conference, I, as chairperson, would ensure that she would be invited to be with us, so that we could deliberate about this together, and be able to bring an informed decision to the General Conference of the year 2000.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, that is the answer to the question. Thank you from the Rules Committee.

WEAVER: May I make a motion then to follow that?

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. Microphone 9.

WEAVER: I'd like to move that the Committee on Plan of Organization and Rules of Order report back to the Tuesday morning session concerning the Hassinger amendment to Rule 36. And if I have second, I would like to say just another word.

BISHOP STOCKTON: Now, you are speaking about tomorrow?

WEAVER: That's correct.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, it's a second. You may speak.

WEAVER: This is indeed a time of shifting paradigms, to use Jerome's phrase. Many of us feel that the winds of the Spirit are moving in ways as the bishops have led us to pray and be in times of discernment. The amendment to Rule 36 proposed that we put that in a formal way into our rules, so that if the body by a two-thirds vote, decided that it would want to move into a time of discernment and consensus finding around some of the divisive issues that are facing us, that we might do so.

As we prepare to sail into some of those heavy waters, I believe that it is important for us to allow God to give us this tool in our Rules of Order so that we may, by a two-thirds vote, if we feel moved by the Spirit, move into a time of discernment concerning the issues that are facing this General Conference.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, the motion is before us. The original motion is on page 54 of the blue book. The motion that has just been made is before us by Pete Weaver. Is there discussion? All right, will you then vote when the light appears, yes or no, on the motion by Pete Weaver, affirming the motion on page 54 to refer to the Plan of Organization? [Results: 450 yes, 273 no; 35 abstained]

Yes, we will refer that to the Plan of Organization. I am hopeful that the chair of the Plan of Organization is here and listening and can deal with that, and bring it back to us tomorrow.

All right, Jerome, will you work on that and come back tomorrow? Thank you. Mary Silva, from Rio Grande Conference. Where are you? Microphone 8.

Request Free Copies of Mil Voces Para Celebrar

MARY SILVA (Rio Grande): Last Saturday we rejoiced and gratefully accepted the report from the Hispanic hymnal. I would like to request that the United Methodist Publishing House provide a copy of the Hispanic hymnal, Mil Voces Para Celebrar, to every delegate to the 1996 General Conference just as it was done with the United Methodist Hymnal at the 1992 General Conference. Gracias.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. You are asking the Publishing House to do this. Are you asking the General Conference to ask the Publishing...

SILVA: Right.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, that motion is before us. Is there discussion? Please vote then when the light appears. I don't see anyone that wants to speak. Oh, All right. Come to microphone 9. Excuse me, we will redo the vote, because his hand was up before I called for the vote and I did not see it.

JACK PLOWMAN (Western Pennsylvania): Bishop, I commend the maker of this motion. However, this church has experienced some financial difficulties. I think before this is voted upon, I think this General Conference should have some indication as to what it would cost to fulfill the motion.

BISHOP STOCKTON: I'm not sure that we have someone here who could give that indication. Microphone 9? Is there anyone? All right. Over here. Go to microphone 6. Microphone 6?

SKIP KEELS (Baltimore Washington): While I may not know the cost of this, I think there are some things in life which cost should be irrelevant. If we truly are going to celebrate the somebodiness of everybody in this connection of ours, our Hispanic sisters and brothers indeed have given us a rich legacy and treasure which all of us can live and grow and live up even a greater person than before. For that reason, I would affirm it with all my heart and soul.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. That's one for and one against. Back here? Number, go to number 12. Well, microphone 7, then.

V.L.DAUGHTERY (South Georgia): I wish to offer a substitute motion.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right.

DAUGHTERY: I move that the Publishing House make available forms for delegates of the General Conference to purchase and to send a hymnal to a Hispanic congregation somewhere within the denomination.

BISHOP STOCKTON: Say that again.

DAUGHTERY: I would like for Cokesbury to make available some kind of form where the delegates of this General Conference could purchase a hymnal, a Spanish hymnal, and send it as a gift somewhere to a Hispanic congregation.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. The substitute motion is before us. Is there discussion on the substitute motion? All right, back here. Yes, come to microphone 9, out to your right.

Request Hispanic Hymnals at Cost

CHARLOTTE ABRAM (Nebraska): While the amendment is in order that we should indeed purchase and send hymnals to our brothers and sisters in Hispanic ministries all around our world, I would also note that the Hispanic hymnal has relevance and worth in all of our congregations. And I believe that the Publishing House can provide to us at least at cost, a cost less than $10, and hopefully that will go a long way towards us using those hymnals in the communities where we serve and engender good will, and also inspire others to order hymnals from the Publishing House.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, that's a vote against the substitute. I see no other hands. If you, as we vote on the substitute...yes, you may speak, microphone 8.

SILVA: May I clarify that there are 64 conferences who have Hispanic ministries already in place that could use the hymnal.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. When the light appears please vote on the substitute motion. [Results: yes, 467; no 383; abstained, 25] The substitute does prevail. All right, the substitute becomes the main motion now. If you favor this would you please, well, if you favor or don't favor. When the light appears, please vote. [Results: yes, 542; no, 330; abstained, zero]

That is affirmed. Thank you. Now we come to the order of the day; the Advance. We turn to Bishop Woodie White to lead us in this deeply significant aspect in the life of our church. Bishop White.

Report on Advance

BISHOP WOODIE WHITE: Delegates and friends of the General Conference, it is my honor as the chairperson of the Advance Committee to bring this report to you. Perhaps there is no program more exciting, no program that touches more places in the world on behalf of United Methodism, than the Advance. Tonight the theme of our report is "Being in Mission, Being a Missionary." We celebrate the thousands of missionaries all across the world who are in service, in mission in significant ways. Indeed you might be surprised to see the variety of ways in which missionaries serve. We hope that as you view the video that we are about to share with you, that you will be inspired and challenged to find ways though the Advance to support in full the services of a missionary. To help you see the scope, we shall take both a historical look and we'll also be able to look at missionaries from these very halls of our General Conference. First, however, we go back to 1984 for a quick video clip of a wonderful young person named Laura Bucher. In this film, "Born to Give," Laura is asking her grandfather about being a missionary.

(video)

BISHOP WHITE: Amen! We thank you delegates and we thank Laura as well for being witnesses to God's mission in the church. Now we'll have an opportunity to see other witnesses. Indeed you'll have a chance to see a brand new video. In fact, you're part of a world premiere of a new video, "Whom Shall I Send?" These are scenes that go all across the world showing persons in mission. We hope that as you view this video that you'll ponder the question, "How will I answer the question, 'Whom shall I send?'"

(video) "Whom Shall I Send"

CYNTHIA WILSON-FELDER: And now, let's wave all those flags we were given earlier, because you see, these are the flags that represent our missionaries and our mission work all around the world!

STEVEN KIMBROUGH: And let's sing our answer, "Here I am Lord! Send us to work for the Advance, to work for your church!"

WILSON-FELDER: Let me ask those among us who have been in mission service, to please, at this time, stand as we sing the chorus. "Here I Am, Lord."

(song)

BISHOP WHITE: On behalf of the Advance for Christ and His Church, we thank you for your prayers and for your support. This concludes our report. (applause)

BISHOP STOCKTON: On the video, we heard the district superintendent who said that 85 percent of the charges on his district are involved in the Advance. And he said that this brings vitality to the life of the church, and it brings vitality to the lives of each one of us. Thank you, Bishop Woodie White, for challenging us and lifting us and informing us. Now we can move to some calendar items. All right, back in the back, would you go to microphone 14?

WILLIAM HINES (West Ohio): If it's in order, Bishop, I'd like to make a motion of request.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right.

HINES: Is that in order, sir?

BISHOP STOCKTON: Go ahead.

Call for a Statement from Bishops' on Homosexuality Issue

HINES: I would like to move that the 1996 General Conference go on record tonight, April 22nd, as requesting the Council of Bishops to inform us when they plan to issue a statement concerning the news release issued by fifteen of our bishops last Friday. And if I have a second, I'd like to speak briefly.

BISHOP STOCKTON: Let me ask the President of the Council of Bishops to respond to that, please. Bishop Woodie White.

BISHOP WHITE: The Council of Bishops has been in prayer and in meeting for the last few years, few days, (it seems like years!) (laughter).not in response to any action taken by this General Conference, but rather, in response to what we felt the need of the Council and of the church seems to be. And so tomorrow morning, in your DCA, you will find there a statement from your council.

BISHOP STOCKTON: Thank you, Bishop White. All right. Let's move to calendar items. Would you come to microphone 4, please.

Correction on Calendar Item 200

ED KAIL, (Iowa): Bishop, we discovered an error in the transmission of text from the local church legislative committee to the secretary's desk, and didn't catch it until after the consent calendar had been adopted this morning. So I'd like to offer an amendment to suspend the rules in order to reconsider a particular item just to correct the record.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. You want to suspend the rules.

KAIL: Yes, sir.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, this takes two-thirds majority. If you would, you will vote now whether or not to suspend the rules. When the light comes on, would you please vote? [814 approved] All right, the rules are suspended. Will you bring to the body the correction?

KAIL: Yes, sir, in the blue DCA, page 141, Calendar Item 200.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right.

KAIL: As this petition was processed through the local church committee, it was the intention of the committee that sub-paragraph two be deleted.

BISHOP STOCKTON: Do you chair that committee?

KAIL: I was the secretary of the sub-committee that worked on this, sir. It was that the proposed amendments to sub-section two that are part of this petition not prevail, and that the Discipline in that section remain in tact. The effect of this petition was to mandate the creation of a conference staff position in every annual conference. We didn't think that was a good idea.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. Thank you. That correction will be made. We will vote. Let's vote on the motion that that correction be made. When the light appears, will you please vote to make or not to make that correction? That vote is positive; we will make that correction. [871 approved] Microphone 14. Just one of those who's raising the hand. Microphone 15.

Delegate from Zaire Grateful for Missionaries

SUL A. NAWAJ (Southern Zaire): (interpreted from French) His excellency, the Bishop, and members of the conference, I don't want the missionary action throughout the world to pass silently. We must congratulate those who have the courage to do missionary work throughout the world. I have the case of my country, Zaire. They are willing to stay in spite of all the great insecurity which reigns there, even though the United States has not made them safe. And if we take the case of Mrs. Glenn, the wife our general treasurer, who has begun to feed the children who have (unintelligible), and the abandoned children. We must acclaim the glory of God and be grateful for the missionary work throughout the world. Thank you. (applause)

BISHOP STOCKTON: I don't know how many of us here have really suffered for our faith. How many of us have been at a point of facing death for our faith? I haven't. But we have people in various parts of the world who are in that situation. And I'd like for us in some way to say thank you for who they are and what they're doing for the glory of God. Again. (applause)

BISHOP STOCKTON: Those of you who are here from countries where there is intense suffering, please carry back to them our love and our gratitude for who they are and what they do for the glory of God. All right, General Judicial Administration, David Severe. Do you have calendar items to present?

DAVID SEVERE (Oklahoma): Yes, sir, we do. Thank you. The Calendar Item 438. In the DCA number 2, page 1324.

BISHOP STOCKTON: Say that again, please.

Sexual Orientation*

SEVERE: All right. In Calendar Item 438, DCA number 2, the white volume, and it's on page 1324. It is Petition 21003. You'll find it in the left column in about the middle of the page.

SEVERE: Yes, sir, on 171 in the blue book in today's DCA. Or, yesterday's. The gist of this is that it would add language regarding sexual orientation to this section of the Discipline. And the action of the legislative committee was to vote nonconcurrence: 67 for nonconcurrence, 22 against and no abstentions. Our rationale was that we believe the present language should be retained in this section of the Discipline.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, this is before us. The committee recommends nonconcurrence. Is there discussion? I see none. When the light appears, will you please vote? The recommendation is nonconcurrence. [yes, 695] The committee is affirmed.

SEVERE: Calendar Item 434. Again, in the DCA, page 2. This is on page 170 of today's paper, or of today's, I'm sorry, April 20th. You'll find the petition on page 1338 of that DCA number 2, the white volume. It is Petition 22660. It's the left hand column about the middle of the page.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. This is a resolution that is before us. The committee recommends concurrence. Is there discussion? I see no requests, so when the light appears, will you please vote? The committee recommends concurrence. The vote is for concurrence.

*Calendar Item 435
Review of Church Programs*

SEVERE: All right. Calendar Item 435, page 1335 of the DCA number 2. It is Petition 22362. It is in the left column about the middle, also. This requests a critical review of all church programs by one individual in particular with the intent to remove ineffective ones. The committee voted nonconcurrence: 86 for nonconcurrence, 6 against and no abstentions.

Our rationale was that we did not see that it was necessary. There are valid processes available to us in other ways.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. Is there discussion? I see no requests for no discussion. The committee recommends nonconcurrence. Will you please vote when the light appears? [849 approved] The committee is affirmed for nonconcurrence.

SEVERE: Calendar Item, I believe I did that one. I think that that finishes us for right now. Thank you, sir.

BISHOP STOCKTON: That's yours for now. Thank you. Higher Education and Chaplaincy, Allen Norris.

Funding Seminary Education

J. ALLEN NORRIS (North Carolina): Bishop Stockton, for our first item this evening, we are in the blue book page 174, Calendar Item 446. The petition is in the white book, page 1382, top left, and the Petition 22275. A resolution entitled "Funding Seminary Education." The legislative committee moves concurrence as amended. The amendments following the "therefore be it resolved" clause in the paragraph numbered 1, delete the words "increase the amount of funding to" and replace them with the words "encourage increased funding for." And in paragraph numbered 2, insert after the word "develop," "and evaluate the feasibility of." Bishop, the rationale for this amendment: this resolution is a direction to the Board of Higher Education and Ministry with the intent to increase funding for seminary students. The legislative committee concurs with this intent, but does not choose to prescribe to the Board of Higher Education and Ministry that it must increase funding, realizing, of course, that there are budget constraints. The text that is included as the amendment would ask the board to become more proactive in encouraging the development of sources for funding and in evaluating alternative means of loan repayments. With those amendments, we recommend concurrence.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right this is before you as amended. This goes to Finance and Administration because it has financial implications. Is there discussion? The committee recommends concurrence as amended. Yes. Would you go to microphone number 2?

JARED A. NEWMAN (Rocky Mountain Conference): I have a question as to where the financial implications are. When we were in legislative committee, one of the things that we did in making these amendments was remove the direct financial implications out of it.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, if they have been removed...

NORRIS: Yes, sir, they have been removed. It's encouragement to the board to find these sources and to also ask the board to evaluate a plan whereby the loans might be repayed by some kind of years of service type principal.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. It is before you as amended. Will you vote when the light appears? [891 approved]

Consistency in Language

ALLEN NORRIS: Our next item is in the blue book page 175. Calendar Item 453. The petition is found in the white book on page 1382, bottom right. And the Petition 22277. The title is, "Consistency In Language" in the Discipline, regarding clergy members. This was a petition pertaining to quite a number of paragraphs in the Discipline, some of which were applicable to our legislative committee. The committee recommends nonconcurrence by a vote of 71 to 8 with 1 abstention, believing that the terminology currently in the Discipline is appropriate, and that with the petition addressing so many paragraphs in the Discipline, that we felt that our committee certainly did not have jurisdiction over some of those. And therefore we recommend nonconcurrence.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right this is before you on page 1382 of the white book toward the top. Is there discussion? The committee recommends nonconcurrence. Will you please vote when the light appears? [804 approved] Nonconcurrence is affirmed.

Black College Fund

NORRIS: Also in the blue book on page 175, Calendar Item 452. It is found in the red book on page 826 in the middle of the right hand column, page 826 in the red book. The Petition 21280 titled, "The Black College Fund." The legislative committee recommends concurrence with a goal of $46,708,480 for the 1997 to 2000 quadrennium for the Black College Fund.

The committee wanted this body and GCFA to know it affirms fully the historically Black institutions affiliated with The United Methodist Church and the support given through the Black College Fund. Bishop, we realize that if this is passed that it must, of course, be referred to GCFA. But recommend concurrence.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, number 452 in the blue book referring to 826 in the red book. Committee recommends concurrence. Is there discussion? Yes, microphone 9.

Black College Fund and GCFA

LOVETT WEEMS (Missouri West): What are the implications of passing this and GCFA and the Financial Administration Committee coming in with a figure other than that figure? Because I believe that's not a figure that's in any of the budgets that we've been working with at this point.

NORRIS: Bishop and delegates, the committee was aware of a compromise discussion and situation that had been worked out. However, they still wanted to go on record to this body and GCFA favoring the larger amount. I would assume that if this body recommends that it go to GCFA, that GCFA must come back to this body with its recommendation. And that we would then proceed to look at it from that point of view when we have that recommendation.

WEEMS: So is it correct to say that if this is passed, this is not necessarily a mandate of this conference that that figure must be at that amount?

BISHOP STOCKTON: That is correct.

NORRIS: That would be my assumption. I would defer to someone from GCFA.

BISHOP STOCKTON: GCFA will have to bring that total budget back. And this will be a part of that total budget. All right, back at the back of section C. Go to microphone 13.

RUTH PALMER (Texas): Could you tell us how much was raised during this current quadrennium? Thank you.

BISHOP STOCKTON: I would defer to someone from GCFA. Do you have an answer to this? Would you come to microphone 3?

PAT STROMAN (Central Texas): I'm not on the GCFA. I am on the Higher Education and Chaplaincy Committee, and did some research, and found that only 31 million out of the 41 million apportionment was given over this past quadrennium. My comment to the committee was, if you want to make a statement, go home and raise the money.

BISHOP STOCKTON: So $31 million is the answer to your question. All right, this is before us. All right, back at the back, yes, microphone 13.

EWING WERLEIN JR (Texas): I'm a member of the Financial Administration Legislative Committee; and that committee has been dealing with this particular issue. While we would all like to have this larger sum available for Black colleges, as well as larger sums for many other ministries, we find that the church cannot support, in the aggregate, all of what is being requested.

In this particular instance, the request is being made for some $3 million more than what the GCFA has recommended. At that, our own committee will recommend a slight increase over and above what the GCFA recommended. I would urge the conference not to begin making budget considerations at this time, before hearing GCFA and the Financial Administration Committee. We, therefore, urge that this be voted down.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, that's a vote against. Yes, come to microphone 2.

PHILIP R. GRANGER (North Indiana): Bishop, I move direct reference to GCFA.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, there is a motion that this be referred to GCFA. I heard a second. All right, if you would, yes, microphone 4.

MAREYJOYCE GREEN (East Ohio): If it's passed as it is, will it not be referred to the finance committee anyway? I think that is a routine thing if, in fact, it has financial implications.

BISHOP STOCKTON: Yes, the motion was to refer the whole petition to GCFA without taking a vote on it here. That's the motion.

GREEN: Is it possible to pass the substance of the motion with referring the financial part of it to GCFA? Or does it have to be all at once?

BISHOP STOCKTON: Would you want to amend the amendment to that effect?

GREEN: Yes I would. I would move that we vote upon the substance of the amendment with the financial part of it

We vote upon the substance of the amendment with the financial part of it being referred to GCFA.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. You move that we consider the substance of the motion and then refer the financial figures to GCFA.

MAREYJOYCE GREEN: Yes, bishop.

BISHOP STOCKTON: My consultants say that the best way to handle this is if you would like to do that then you vote against the amendment and then we're back. All right. Come to microphone 7. We're on the amendment to refer. We're on the motion to refer.

JOHN D. KEATON (Northern Illinois): Wondering if a point of clarification is in order.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right.

KEATON: Early on, one of my fellow delegates said about the Black College Fund that the committee should go home and raise the money. It is my understanding that the Black College Fund is a ministry of the whole church and so for me if there's any going home, that's the going home for all of us not just the committee.

STOCKTON: Oh yes, that's right. All right. If you would refer, All right, come to microphone 2. Come on to number two.

BRADLEY WATKINS (Central Illinois): I'd like to try an amendment. I move that we separate the substance of this motion from the financial part of it and vote on them separately.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. That's properly before us. We do have the motion to refer. It's proper to separate the motion. Is there any objection to separating the motion? Come to microphone 3.

BERT TALBOT (South Indiana): Isn't a motion to refer a higher ranking motion than a motion to amend or substitute?

BISHOP STOCKTON: Yes, we have the motion to refer, but the question of separation can be done. So, if you would separate the finances from the substance of the petition, let's vote on that. Vote on whether you would separate the question—finances from the substance. Vote when the light appears. All right, it is separated. The motion to refer is before us. Who made the motion to refer? Just a minute, All right, you made the motion to refer. We have separated the two aspects of the question. (Question from the body about whether this pertains to the financial aspect). This pertains to the financial aspect. We will refer this to GCFA regardless, whether this is passed or not, but what you're saying is refer it without voting on it? Number seven.

PHIL GRANGER (North Indiana): Bishop, the issue was not to be working as a committee of the whole this early on budget and to refer that item so GCFA can give us some advice.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. The question is separated, the motion is to refer the financial aspect of this petition. Are you ready? When the light appears, will you vote. Wait a minute, don't vote. Whoa. Stop the machinery please. All right. Come to microphone 9. We're discussing the motion to refer the financial aspect of this.

GABRIELLE G. MALLORY (West Ohio): As a student at Bennett College, one of the eleven historically Black colleges related to the United Methodist Church, I urge you to make a decision based on faith and support the funding of the Black colleges.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. I see no other requests. When the light appears, will you vote on reference for the financial part of it, to refer the financial aspect of this petition. All right, it is referred. We're back to the substance of the petition and that is before us. The committee recommends concurrence. When the light appears, will you please vote. [850 approved]

That is confirmed. All right, Allen.

ALLEN NORRIS: Thank you, bishop. Our next item is in the blue book on page 175.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, what is it? Number 10, microphone 10.

ROLF LINDELL (Sweden): In order to make the presentation more understandable to all delegates, I would like for those who present the petitions or those debating to refrain from the use of abbreviations. We do have on page 83 a list of the abbreviations, but it's sometimes a little bit hard to have the thumb there all the time.

Schools of Theology and Small Membership Churches

white book on page 1381, bottom right. The Petition 22523 and the title is "Schools of Theology and Small Membership Churches." The committee recommends nonconcurrence by a vote of [Results: yes, 69; no, 8; abstained, zero]. And the rationale is that we should not try to spell out in paragraph 1531 a list of special content concerns. We therefore recommend nonconcurrence.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. This is before you. Number 454 in the blue book. Would you like to speak? Microphone 4.

ED KAIL (Iowa): In appointment beyond the local church at Saint Paul School of Theology in the area of town and country ministries. We recognize very well that 67 percent of the churches within our denomination are small membership churches and think that that proportion of churches should deserve some special attention in theological education. We do that at our seminary. I know the other seminaries do that. But it's very helpful, we believe, for the whole denomination to realize the important significance of that type of church within our denomination. I would like to see that spelled out.

BISHOP STOCKTON: So you're speaking against nonconcurrence.

KAIL: That's correct.

BISHOP STOCKTON: Is there someone speaking for concurrence? Or nonconcurrence? Anyone to speak on either side of the issue. Chair, do you want to speak?

NORRIS: We still would support the principle that we do not believe as a committee—a majority of the committee—that is that we should start having a list of special emphases in the Discipline pertaining to content of courses.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, this is before you. When the light appears will you please vote. [Results: yes, 640; no, 286; abstained, 6]. The committee in affirmed for nonconcurrence. All right.

NORRIS: The next item is in the blue book on page...

BISHOP STOCKTON: Wait, back at the back. Go to microphone number 12.

CHARLES JOHNSON (South Carolina): I rise to ask a question about Calendar Item 454. We referred the financial implications to GCFA, but we did not take action on the other part of that calendar item, did we?

BISHOP STOCKTON: Yes, Yes, we did. We voted on the other aspect of that. On the substance and not on the financial aspect. All right.

Purposes of University Senate

NORRIS: Right, blue book, page 174, Calendar Item 447. This can be found in the red book page 824 in the middle of the right-hand column. The Petition 20724. The title is "Purposes and Objectives of the University Senate." The committee recommends nonconcurrence by a vote of 71 to six with three abstentions on this petition. Rationale: That the senate itself should continue to develop the criteria by which all United Methodist institutions and seminaries are to be evaluated and not delineate in the Discipline the detail of these criteria. Therefore we recommend nonconcurrence.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, this is before you, no. 447 in the blue book, 1518 in the red book. Is there discussion? The committee recommends nonconcurrence. Will you please vote when the light appears.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. The committee has sustained 81.6 percent, 17.7 percent opposed. [764 approved]

ALLEN NORRIS: Bishop, having taken that action, there are three other calendar items that are very similar to 447. These are also on pages 174 and 175, Calendar Items 449, 450, and then on 175, 455. All of these petitions can be found in the white book on page 1381. They deal with exactly the same subject matter that we voted on in 447, and therefore, the committee would recommend nonconcurrence on all three calendar items. And, bishop, we leave to you, sir, whether you want to take them as a group or individually.

BISHOP STOCKTON: Let's take each one separately.

NORRIS: All right, Calender Item 449, Petition 22568. And we recommend nonconcurrence.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. Is there discussion? Yes, microphone number 2.

DONALD R. AVERY (Louisiana): I would like to move that we vote on these three in toto.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, that motion is before us. Vote on all three at one time. Is there discussion? There is a second. All right, the motion . . . Yes, microphone 7.

RILEY CASE (North Indiana): I think that these petitions are sufficiently different, that they should be considered separately. I have one that I would like to speak to. I don't care about the other two. [laughter]

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. That's a speech against including all three together. The motion is that we vote on 449, 450 and 455 together. Will you please vote when the light appears whether or not to take all three together? Vote; the motion is that we take all three together. Please vote when the light appears. Sixty seven percent to 31 percent that we take them all three together. So, you may speak. We are taking 449, 450 and 455 together. Microphone number 7.

CASE: Bishop and members of the conference, I would speak against the committee recommendation and for Calender Item 455. Many United Methodists and local churches are under the impression that to be called a United Methodist college or university or seminary means that there is some connection with United Methodist values. They're surprised to learn that for many such institutions, questions about connections with United Methodist beliefs or practices or values are never asked.

Our University Senate, the body responsible for credentialing schools as officially United Methodist affiliated, asks about institutional integrity, well-structured programs, sound management, a clearly defined church relationship and, sometimes, they ask about appropriate diversity, but never about consistency with United Methodist values or doctrines. They would like to set their own criteria. I think that this General Conference could ask them to include some more criteria. This proposed petition would begin to address this lack.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, that's a speech against nonconcurrence. Do we have a speech in favor of nonconcurrence. All right. Come to microphone 3 please.

Voices From UM Schools and Seminaries

MARY ELIZABETH MOORE (California-Pacific): I plead to vote with the committee on this recommendation, because to be faithful to United Methodist theology is to be open to questions and ideas that are not in our Discipline; to explore the traditions of other religions; to explore traditions that have not yet been explored. I beg you to leave the freedom of exploration and academic integrity with schools of theology. [applause]

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. Are there others? Yes, come to microphone 2.

JASON A. PAULSMYER (Missouri East): As a student of a United Methodist school, I feel that it would be very appropriate to teach our doctrine, not exclusively. We wouldn't necessarily have to exclude other teachings. This petition doesn't say we have to exclude other teachings. But, I do think it is important to stress our heritage as United Methodists and our doctrine in our teachings of institutions. [applause]

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. That's a speech against nonconcurrence. Is there a speech for nonconcurrence. All right. Come to microphone 14 please.

E. EUGENE FRAZER (West Ohio): Bishop and members of the conference, I am also privileged to be the clergy chair of the Board of Trustees of Ohio Northern University, a United Methodist-related school within the bounds of the West Ohio Conference. I believe that I speak for our president, for our board of trustees, for the majority of our faculty, and especially for the majority of our student body, when I assure this conference that we are proud to be fully associated with the United Methodist Church in matters of the mission and the philosophy of our church within the total Christian community. I would trust that you would vote accordingly as you cast your ballot on this matter and only can regret that the three issues have been grouped together. Thank you.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. We have had two for and two against. Back at the back, microphone 13.

EWING WERLEIN JR. (Texas): I served for 16 years on the board of trustees of Southern Methodist University. And, thus on the Board of Perkins School of Theology. I observe, when the budget comes to us from GCFA, that there is going to be an asking of the churches during the next quadrennium of somewhere in the neighborhood of $108 or $109 million. Three-fourths of that is proposed to go to the seminaries of The United Methodist Church to be distributed to the theological schools on a formula. Now, when a church such as ours is asked to give in the tens of millions, yea, up towards $100 million, it seems a modest enough request that we ask the theological seminaries, recognized by the senate as affiliated with our church, simply to teach faithfully the doctrine and the heritage of The United Methodist Church. I would urge our support of this resolution. [applause]

WERLEIN: That is correct. I would speak against nonconcurrence in order to favor the resolution that was under consideration.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. Microphone 3.

DONALD E. MESSER (Rocky Mountain): I speak in favor of nonconcurrency. I speak in favor of what the legislative committee has recommended, which is nonconcurrency. The reason is that the United Methodist theological schools, of which I have served as president in the past, do faithfully teach the doctrine and heritage of The United Methodist Church. We are required to teach the history, doctrine and polity of the church. We submit our regular courses to Nashville [Tenn.] to the division.

We do so proudly and effectively teach. We have currently at our own school, the Liff School of Theology, over 30 some students studying the General Conference and attending every session. This is a part of the life of the church. This is a part of the integral life of the curriculum of our 13 United Methodist schools, and therefore, I urge you to vote nonconcurrency.

BISHOP STOCKTON. All right. We've had three and three, so the question will be put.

NORRIS: Bishop, may I have one concluding statement?

BISHOP STOCKTON: Yes. We are voting on 449, 450 and 455.

NORRIS: All right, the committee, the legislative committee, is assured that the criteria of the University Senate adequately cover this matter. And that, therefore, we should not begin to spell it out in the Discipline. That is the rational for nonconcurrency.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. When the light appears, will you please vote? [Results: yes, 650; no, 299]

BISHOP STOCKTON: The committee is affirmed, 68 percent to 31 percent. Your point of order, please. Come to microphone 8.

JUNE D. MCCULLOUGH (Southern New Jersey): Bishop, we all like applause when we make our statement, pro or con. However, it has been the custom for the presiding officer to remind us that applause is not appropriate. I wonder if the chair would take that under consideration?

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, thank you. That is correct. In a loving situation in which we're in, we do not put down or affirm people. [laughter and applause] Do you object to that applause? [laughter] All right, will you please continue?

Membership of University Senate

ALLEN NORRIS: We're in the blue book again on page 174, the Calendar Item is 448. The petition is in the white book on page 1380, page 1380, and the Petition 22271, dealing with membership of the University Senate. The legislative committee recommends nonconcurrency with this petition by a vote of 73 to 7, with zero abstentions.

Our rationale is that the proposal would change the senate membership by limiting the number of members who are professionally affiliated with a United Methodist-related educational institution. By a large majority, however, the legislative committee has affirmed the current disciplinary provision for membership based on the widely accepted premise and practice of peer review, both in education at all levels, and in the church. Therefore, we would recommend nonconcurrency.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, 448 is before you, 1380, number 1517 in the white book. Is there discussion? I see no requests. Will you please vote when the light appears? The recommendation is nonconcurrency. [860 approved] The committee is affirmed 86 percent to 12 percent for nonconcurrency. All right.

NORRIS: Bishop Stockton, for our last item on page 175 in the blue book, Calendar Item 451. That is in the red book, page 824, Petition 20723, also titled, "Membership of the University Senate." And this petition is quite similar to the one we just voted on in Calendar Item 448. Therefore, the committee would again recommend nonconcurrency.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, we're on 451 in the blue book, 1517 in the red book. Is there discussion? All right. Come to microphone 2.

VICTOR W. GOLDSCHMIDT (North Indiana): I'd like to move an amendment that the proviso that they be United Methodist members, that want to be included in the petition, and not the others. The wording, I need your help, Norris, on this. You know where I'm heading. The first lines includes, I'm sorry, the four line of the petition on page 824, "shall be members of The United Methodist Church," will be the parts I would like the amendment to include, but no other parts. So from there after, the words "United Methodist Church," it would stop, and it would return to the wording in the Discipline.

So the purpose is only to add the requirement that is not in the Discipline now, that they be members of The United Methodist Church.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. This is an amendment to 1517 in the red book. You will amend it by a period after "United Methodist Church."

GOLDSCHMIDT: Not really a period, but continuing with the wording in the Discipline, which is not before us, but it is in the Discipline. So the only change in the present disciplinary language would be the requirement that they be United Church members.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. That amendment is before us. When the light appears, will you vote on the amendment? Yes? Yes. It has been now. [Bishop Stockton had a request from the floor for a second.] Would you please vote when the light appears, on the amendment. [Results: yes, 495; no, 413; abstained, 28]

BISHOP STOCKTON: The amendment passes 52.9 to 44.1. So the amendment is part of the Petition 1517. That is before us. All right, number 451 is before us. The recommendation is for nonconcurrency. Allen, do you have a final word?

NORRIS: You have amended it. In terms of the statement as it is, I believe the amendment, Victor, if I understand it, is that it would be the Senate shall be composed of 25 voting members who, at the time of their election, shall be members of The United Methodist Church, and then pick up the language as it is in the Discipline, now. Is that correct?

BISHOP STOCKTON: That was the amendment.

NORRIS: All right. I have no further statement then to that, bishop.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, number 451 is before us? Yes. Come to microphone 3.

BECKY HAASE (California-Pacific): Just a point of clarification. The motion is nonconcurrence. Is the motion still nonconcurrence or was that basically a substitute for the original motion?

BISHOP STOCKTON: That was an amendment, and the recommendation of the committee is still nonconcurrence.

HAASE: So a yes vote would still be nonconcurrence?

BISHOP STOCKTON: That's right.

HAASE: Thank you.

BISHOP STOCKTON: Is that clear? A "yes" vote would be nonconcurrence. A "no" vote would be for concurrence. All right, will you please vote when the light appears? [Results: yes, 533; no, 404; abstained, 12] Nonconcurrence is affirmed.

NORRIS: Bishop, that completes our items for the evening. I would like to introduce at this time, the vice-chair and the secretary of the Higher Education and Chaplaincy Committee. If they would come forward, LaVon Wilson, the vice-chair from Central Illinois, and Janet Stephenson from the Iowa Conference as the secretary. They have worked hard, and you may be hearing from one or both of them tomorrow, or whenever we bring additional items. And I wanted the body to see them. [applause]

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. Thank you. This does not mean that you are through with all of your petitions?

NORRIS: We are not through, sir. I wish we were, for the good of the body. I do have an announcement. We have approved, on the Consent Calendar, the study, "Education, the Gift of Hope." And we have recommended it to the church for study. We have been advised that some delegates did not receive their copy in the mail before they came to General Conference. I would like to announce that there are limited number of these available from the DCA desk near Cokesbury. And of course they will not cost you anything. And so we do urge you to pick up a copy if you do not have one of this very interesting and important book.

BISHOP STOCKTON: Yes. Come to microphone 2, please.

CHRISTIAN T. RICKS (Missouri East): Bishop, besides having to fight the lights up here, overnight some trees have grown, next to the podium. We were wondering if we could get those moved, so we can see the bottom of the screen and know what we are voting on all the time?

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, we'll make that request. [laughter] Thank you. You may want to know what causes them to grow so quickly. All right, Carl Stewart, Independent Commissions, Carl Stewart. Wait. Yes. Microphone 6.

Financial Implications Not in GCF&A Report

BARBARA W. RIDDLE (Florida): I want to move in between the presenters, and I appreciate you recognizing me. I move that persons presenting business to the conference which is not a part of the proposed budget of the General Council of Finance and Administration, inform delegates of the additional funding requested. And, if I have a second, I'll speak to it.

BISHOP STOCKTON: There is a second. Please speak.

RIDDLE: We have so much before us that it really is almost impossible to keep one's finger in the report from General Council on Finance and Administration. And in recognition of the covenant that we have with each other, this would be another way that our presenters might inform the delegates about the business that's before us, so that we can make informed decisions.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. You're saying that if there is, if there are financial requirements that are not in the Finance and Administration report, that that needs to come before, needs to be clearly delineated for the body?

RIDDLE: That's right. And the amount that will be requested.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, there is a second. Is there a discussion? Will you please vote when the light appears? [753 approved] It is approved. 82 percent to 15.5 percent. So we'll keep that in mind, please. All right, Carl Stewart.

CARL E. STEWART (Louisiana): Thank you, Bishop. I will present to you five petitions. We will first consider Calendar Item 456, found on page 175 of the Daily Christian Advocate. And Petition 20507, found on page 901 in the Advanced Edition 1, the red book.

BISHOP STOCKTON: 9201?

Conference Commission on Archives and History

STEWART: 901. The petition concerns the Conference Commission on Archives and History. The petition would amend paragraph 738 of the Discipline. Currently, each annual conference is required to have a Commission on Archives and History. The proposed amendment would allow for the responsibilities of Archives and History to be handled by another annual conference organization if the annual conference elected to do so.

The committee recommends nonconcurrence on this petition based on the rationale that the change is unnecessary. The committee feels that the current disciplinary provision is quite workable at the annual conference level and provides for a needed continuity within our connectional system. Bishop, I would move the adoption of the committee recommendation of nonconcurrence.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, 456 in the blue book.

STEWART: Of the red book?

BISHOP STOCKTON: 738 in the red book. And the recommendation is nonconcurrence. Is there discussion? Please vote when the light appears. [776 approved]

BISHOP STOCKTON: Nonconcurrence is affirmed. 84.5 percent to 14.5 percent.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, 906.

General Commission on Archives and History

STEWART: This petition pertains to the accountability of the General Commission on Archives and History. The petition would amend paragraph 1803.2 of the Discipline by making the General Commission on Archives and History accountable to the Council of Bishops, rather than its current accountability to the General Council on Ministries. The committee recommends nonconcurrence. The rationale of the committee for nonconcurrence is that the proposed change is unnecessary. The amendment would shift additional oversight responsibilities to the Council of Bishops, which are not warranted. The current language should be maintained. And I move the adoption of the committee's recommendation of nonconcurrence.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, this is before you, 457 in the blue book, 1803 in the red book. Is there discussion? Will you please vote when the light appears? [875 approved] Nonconcurrence is affirmed. 94.5 percent to 4.5 percent. Nonconcurrence. All right?

STEWART: Thank you. The next petition is Calendar Item 458. It's also found on page number 175 of the Daily Christian Advocate, and it's Petition 20240, found on page 901 in the red book. The petition also pertains to the Commission on Archives and History. It would add a new sub-paragraph after paragraph 738.4 in the Discipline. The proposed language would require the Commission on Archives and History to consult with the Conference Commission on Communication on matters needing communication expertise.

The committee recommends nonconcurrence. The proposed amendment is deemed to be unnecessary. Currently, the Commission on Archives and History can avail itself of the resources of the Communications Commission and other resources as the need arises. I would move the adoption of the recommendation of nonconcurrence.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. This is 458 in the blue book, 738 in the red book. Is there discussion? Will you please vote when the light appears? [894 approved] Nonconcurrence is affirmed by 96 percent to 3 percent.

Proposed Commission for Persons with Handicapping Conditions

STEWART: Thank you. We will next consider Calendar Item 459, also found on page 175 of the Daily Christian Advocate, and it's Petition 20772. It will be found on page 920 of the Advanced Edition, your red book. Here we'll have a subject matter shift. The petition calls for the establishment of a new commission: The General Commission on Inclusiveness of Persons With Handicapping Conditions.

The committee emphatically embraces the premise of the petition that The United Methodist Church must be vigilant in respecting the rights of persons with handicapping conditions, and, indeed, insuring their full participation in all areas of the church. The committee believe, however, that church members have been and continue to be made aware of the need to accept, to include, and to respond with Christian love through the special needs of persons with handicapping conditions without the creation of a new commission.

We commend the petitioners for raising our consciousness about this vital concern and we affirm the work in this area already existing through such boards and agencies as Global Ministries and Discipleship. I move adoption of the committee recommendation of nonconcurrence.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, this is 459 in the blue book, page 920 in the red book. The committee recommends nonconcurrence. Is there any discussion? Will you please vote when the light appears? [905 approved] It is affirmed. 95 percent to 3.5 percent. All right?

Historical Society of UMC

STEWART: All right, my final Calendar Item is 460. This is also found on page 175 of the Daily Christian Advocate, and it's Petition 20758. It'll be found on page 907 of the Advanced Edition of your red book. This petition takes us back to the subject matter of the Archives and History, and involves specifically the historical society.

The essence of the petition is to amend the first sentence of paragraph 1810.1 of the Discipline. The amendment is to change the language there from "may organize" to "shall support the" Historical Society of The United Methodist Church. In other words, the current language in the Discipline indicates that the Historical Society may be organized.

The rationale of the committee is that the Historical Committee does, indeed, exist and thus the language of the Discipline should be amended to conform to that reality, and in turn, to affirm its work. The committee recommends concurrence, and I move adoption of the recommendation.

blue book, number 1810 on page 907 in the red book. Yes?

BISHOP STOCKTON: Come to microphone 4.

A. MARK CONARD (Kansas West): As vice-president of the Historical Society, I would move to amend the motion to substitute the words "endorse and encourage" for the word "support." So that it would read: "the General Commission shall endorse and encourage the Historical Society."

BISHOP STOCKTON: Endorse and encourage. The amendment is before us: "shall endorse and encourage the Historical Society of the United Methodist Church." Seconded? You want to speak to that?

CONARD: That clarifies the relationship between the General Commission and the Historical Society and relieves any doubts that is a financial obligation, since the Historical Society is self-supporting.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, the amendment is before us.

CARL STEWART: Bishop, may I speak to this?

BISHOP STOCKTON: Let's see if there is other discussion. Is there other discussion on this amendment? I see none. Please speak.

STEWART: Bishop, I would only state that the committee, I believe, would embrace the amendment being sought. Within the subcommittee there was varying discussions about language in order not to implicate some financial undertaking. And so I don't view that the subcommittee would be adverse to the proposed amendment.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, so you think the committee will affirm this?

STEWART: Yes.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. That is accepted by the committee then. So the wording becomes "shall endorse and encourage." All right? As accepted, the amendment is part of the petition now. The petition is before us. Is there discussion? Will you please vote as the light appears? [896 approved]

That is affirmed, 94 1/2 to 4 1/2.

STEWART: Thank you, Bishop.

BISHOP STOCKTON: Thank you. All right, I think, George Hunter, do you have those that have been taken off the Consent Calendar, and do you have others?

GEORGE G. HUNTER III (Florida): Yes, Bishop, two items that were voted on a very large majority, less than five negative votes. There are four that were put on the Consent Calendar have been called off the calendar and will be before us this week, one of them tonight. It is Item Number 2 on the Consent Calendar. I think you need not refer to that. However, instead, turn in the red book to page number 175.

BISHOP STOCKTON: 175 in the red book.

HUNTER: It is Petition 21053. This is the gist of it historically.

BISHOP STOCKTON: Which one is it?

HUNTER: 21053. And it requires a bit of historical explanation. Traditionally, ...

BISHOP STOCKTON: Hold it a minute. Let's be sure we get it. It is on page 1075 of the red book?

Delegation from British Methodist Church

HUNTER: No, 175. Sorry. Basically, it has to do with the fact that we send delegates to the Annual Conference of the British Methodist Church. And they send delegates to our General Conference. The pattern has been for us to send them four people every year. And for them to send four people to us every quadrennium. The petition has proposed that we adjust that some: send them two people every year, and they send us four people every quadrennium. This is, colleagues, a very important relationship, and we have invited a distinguished member of our committee, the Rev. Brian Beck, the Secretary of the Conference of the British Methodist Church, to fill us in on the importance and the emerging shape of this relationship.

BISHOP STOCKTON: If you would welcome Brian to our, to speak today, would you give him some applause? From the British Methodist Church. (applause)

BRIAN E. BECK (British Methodist Conference): Bishop, and colleagues in the conference, I bring you greetings of the British Conference. This arrangement is a feature of the concordat between our two conferences, which has been going since 1968. As you have heard, under the arrangement, we exchange delegates, and up to this point, the arrangement has been for four delegates going in each direction, and in both cases, to have both voice and vote within the conference.

The petition before you is the fruit of conversations which have been going on between representatives of the British Conference of the Council of Bishops, and of the General Council on Christian Unity and Inter-religious Concerns for more than four years now. It's essentially just to renegotiate the terms of the concordat; and there are two principal reasons why it is being proposed: The first is that in terms of size, four representatives of the British Conference, in a conference of this size, I think we have found over the years to be helpful to come with such a contingent.

The British Conference, on the other hand, currently numbers 576 and is contemplating reducing that size to about 400. We have 12 related conferences who send representatives to us, and reducing the size of our conference, considerably, is going to affect the size of all those delegations. If we were to retain four voting representatives from the United Methodist Church within a reduced British Conference, the proportion would be significantly changed in a way that we could not offer for the other autonomous conferences voting with us. We do, of course, value this particular link.

I am conscious of the fact that I and the others from Britain, here, represent the only concordat church which has voting rights within this conference, and we wish to continue to offer those voting rights to those whom you send to Britain. We make that exception because we recognize the United Methodist Church as a global church, and not just as a national conference. We also wish to preserve the link because you have generously referred to us in your Discipline as the Mother Church of Methodism. We, for our part, regard you as our first break-away conference. (laughter)

The other and subsidiary reason why the change is being proposed is because, clearly, when each conference bears the cost of sending its own delegation to the other conference, the cost on The United Methodist Church sending four every year, is much greater than the cost for the British to come once every four years. And in practice, you have been sending only two delegates in recent years.

I think it has been agreed between those who have held the conversation, that this proposal is acceptable and will work. The British Conference has already resolved that it will adopt the change if this conference also agrees to do so. And I hope, therefore, that you will support the committee in voting for concurrence on this item. Thank you sir.

BISHOP STOCKTON: Thank you, Dr. Beck. This is a constitutional amendment, I understand, George, and it's on the consent calendar in the blue book, page 93, Calendar Item 2. And so you recommend concurrence?

GEORGE HUNTER: We do, sir.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right, is there any discussion? Will you please vote as the light appears. [907 approved] It is affirmed by 98 percent. Thank you.

HUNTER: Bishop, one other item has been lifted from the consent calendar, number 49, but we will take that up later in a package with other petitions.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. Thank you. All right, we're at the point where, I think, another one of the committees has to meet tonight, so we will adjourn after a few moments, and allow that committee to meet with hope that they'll have some sleep sometime tonight.

Let me report on Bishop Bill Cannon's surgery today on his broken hip. The surgery went very well, and the doctor said the bishop will be up and walking some tomorrow, and may be able to go home Friday. (applause)

Committee on Presiding Officers, Rex Bevins.

REX C. BEVINS (Nebraska): The presiding officers for Tuesday, April 23, are as follows: Tuesday morning, Bishop Robert Morgan of the Louisville area; Tuesday afternoon, Bishop David Lawson of the Illinois area; Tuesday evening, Bishop Clay Lee of the Holston area.

BISHOP STOCKTON: They will sleep well tonight. Committee on Agenda and Calendar reports, Sarah Miller?

SARAH S. MILLER (Wyoming): Thank you, bishop. We've got a big, good day for tomorrow. We're going to hear the Africa University choir, (applause), yes sir! We're going to be visited by a great array of ecumenical leaders, and we've got important business to do: the consultation on church union covenant communion proposal, the connectional issues study report, the global nature of the church report, the General Board of Global Ministries site location. Now, because it's going to be a busy day, I know you hate to miss any of your lunch or dinner time, but since we've had such a generous time for those two things, we're proposing that we cut the lunch hour to an hour and a half (take a half hour off of it), so that we come back a half hour early, and we're proposing that we cut the dinner time from two and a half hours to two hours.

BISHOP STOCKTON: Give us the time. 12:30 til 2?

MILLER: 12:30 til 2 and 5 to 7 to eat.

BISHOP STOCKTON: All right. If you will approve those or not approve them, vote when the light appears. [723 approved] All right, that is affirmed by almost 80 percent. Thank you. Announcements, Carolyn Marshall?

CAROLYN M. MARSHALL (South Indiana): There are three announcements this evening. The General and Judicial Administrative/Legislative Committee..

BISHOP STOCKTON: Can you hear:

MARSHALL: It's not on. The General and Judicial Legislative Committee will meet briefly in the space between the front platform and the bleachers at the front. We're presuming that this means over here, stage left, basically near the press area.

Bishop Nacpil would like to meet with the Manila Episcopal Area delegation in room A112 soon after the adjournment this evening.

And the Plan of Organization and Rules of Order Committee will meet in room A210, ten minutes after adjournment.

BISHOP STOCKTON: Thank you. And I'd like to express appreciation to Bishop Jack Tuell and Bishop Kern Eutsler for seeking to keep me straight here, by backing me up. Now as we adjourn, we will ask Bishop Ann Sherer to come and pray us out. Bishop Sherer.

BISHOP SHERER: (prayer)

BISHOP STOCKTON: We are adjourned until 8:15 tomorrow.

Tuesday Morning Session April 23, 1996

Bishop Robert Morgan, presiding

BISHOP ROBERT C. MORGAN: Excuse me please, if there is a doctor, Dr. Holzinger. There is an accident in the back. If all of you would just take your seats now, please. There is an accident back there. And if there is a doctor, Dr. Emerick, I think I saw. Leon, there's an accident back here. If the rest of you would please just be seated.

I know you join me in expressing appreciation to the worship leaders today. Bishop Hoyt, Dr. Davaney, Dr.

Robbins, and this wonderful choir. They all came to us and they laid it on the line for us and we thank you. [applause]

Now we come to the time, as we do each day, of discernment, where we turn to our neighbor just for a few moments, to do some reflection and a moment of prayer. On the screen you will see the two questions, I say this to our ecumenical visitors, we would invite you to join with us in this. If you would please return to your seats now, and let us be in a moment of quiet and reflection.

If you would turn to your neighbor now, and reflect together, discerning God's will for our life together. If the visitors would just please remain quiet, so our delegates can do their work. Thank you. If you are leaving, just leave quietly. We're now in a very important part of our day. A time of prayer and discernment. If you will turn now to your neighbor.

And now if you would join us together as we pray together. Let us sing together, a little hymn, we can sing it without accompaniment. Join me if you will.

(hymn)

Amen. We begin the day, by recognizing the bishop from Indonesia. I want to do this right, Bishop Doloksarieu for a special presentation. Bishop, we welcome you, we thank you for seeing that this wonderful choir came to our conference. If you will great the bishop. [applause]

Indonesian Bishop Addresses General Conference

BISHOP H. DOLOKSARIEU: Thank you, bishop. Dear beloved Methodists, good morning. I'm grateful to God for this wonderful moment, to be among you and speak to you. As you can see, there are 50 people who come from Indonesia. It is 18 hours flight to Denver.

The main purpose of our coming here is to praise our Lord Jesus Christ and to thank you, all members of The United Methodist Church for your faithful support in mission in Indonesia since 1905. Since then, with the missionaries' support and cooperation, many mission works have been achieved successfully. In this regard, allow me to name some of the missionaries the American Methodist Church has sent to Indonesia. Rev. (unintelligible) from Indiana, Rev. John Wesley Day from New Jersey, Mr. Angalanda, Mr. Reems, Rev. Dale Walker from Illinois, Rev. Freddie Ginglock from Estes Park, Rev. W. Armstrong from Texas, Rev. Harbock from Kentucky, Bill Immler, Rev. Joe Daniels from North Dakota, Rev. Thurman, Rev. Lionel Mutaya, just to mention some.

My heart drew me to say again, I Corinthians, chapter 15, that "their labor in the Lord is not in vain." Now there are 100,000 members of The Methodist Church in Indonesia, 500 ministers, hundred and hundred churches, hundred thousand students at Methodist schools and university, many health clinics, in addition to many rural development and clean water projects. We believe this is the most grand gathering of the Methodists in America. In this regard, we think, now is the most appropriate time to say thank you to all of you.

As a token of our deep heart thankfulness, on behalf of the Methodist Church of Indonesia, I would like to present a flag and a banner, in this regard, to the General Board of Global Ministries, and to this General Conference. I would like to invite Dr. Randolph Nugent and Bishop Herbert Skeete.

Indonesian Church Celebrates 90 Years with Gifts

BISHOP F. HERBERT SKEETE (Boston area): I'll share the plaque with you. "We wish to express our greatest and heartfelt gratitude to God and to our brothers and sisters of the United Methodist Committee on Relief of the United Methodist Church. Last year we celebrated together the 90th anniversary of Methodism in Indonesia. Thank you on behalf of UMCOR." (applause)

RANDOLPH W. NUGENT JR. (general secretary General Board of Global Ministries): The plaque reads the same for the General Board of Global Ministries, "Serving the Lord together with you for 90 years, the Methodist Church of Indonesia." I should like to say we are deeply grateful for the recognition and want to be in with you for the future, and say to the General Conference, the leadership which you have seen here has followed the tradition in which we have been working to leave in place, to enable the people of the region to be the leaders. Presently there are now only two missionaries in Indonesia, Warren and Jo Harbert, who are in theological education, serving and enabling pastors in evangelism. Thank you. (applause)

BISHOP DOLOKSARIBU: And lastly, I would like to present this to this General Conference. Would you please... (presenting a banner)

BISHOP MORGAN: I accept this on behalf of the General Conference, and we will place it in a very significant place here at the General Conference. It says, "Thank you, American Methodist Churches, for your 90 years of mission in Indonesia, 1905-1995," cross and flame. (applause)

BISHOP DOLOKSARIBU: Thank you and God bless you all.

BISHOP MORGAN: Now we have an order of the day to recognize our distinguished ecumenical visitors. Bishop Melvin Talbert, who is the secretary of the Council of Bishops, and also is our ecumenical officer of the church, will make these presentations.

Categories of Ecumenical Guests

BISHOP TALBERT: Thank you, Bishop Morgan. Good morning, sisters and brothers. I am Melvin Talbert, secretary of the Council of Bishops, and it has been my privilege to be ecumenical representative of the Council of Bishops for the last eight years.

Before I present our distinguished guests, I think it's important for me to let you know that, at this General Conference, there are various categories of guests that are present with us. The first category are churches with concordant relationships, and these two churches are seated in the bar with unique relationships. And they are the British Methodist Church and the Methodist Church in the Caribbean and the Americas. They are the only churches with which we regularly exchange witnesses.

The second category is autonomous affiliated churches. There are many persons here representing autonomous, unaffiliated churches. These churches have a special relationship with us, because they were begun by missionary outreach of The United Methodist Church or one of our predecessor societies. Many of those persons are seated with us in the bar of the conference or on the podium.

Third, there are churches with whom we have a pact of covenant. These are different churches from across the world who have signed special covenants with us under the leadership of the Council of Bishops, affirming each other's ministries and missions. In 1992, we signed eight such covenants. Tomorrow we will vote on and fully honor two additional covenants, one with the Evangelical Church of East and another with the West Africa Methodist Church of Sierra Leone.

Finally, there are guests to the ecumenical guests of the churches and organizations within the United States. These are the guests that I'm privileged to present to you at this time, and we are honored and indeed delighted to have them join us this morning and to be organized at this time. I understand that the pages are passing among you. Just of these, as I present the ecumenical guests, for this morning, I would like them to stand and remain standing. If you would hold your arms up, the complete list has been prepared for you, I would appreciate it.

Presentation of Ecumenical Guests

May I present these our ecumenical guests. Representing the African Methodist Episcopal Church, Bishop H. Hartford Brooks. Representing the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, Bishop Joseph Johnson. The American Baptist Churches in the USA, Dr. Louise B. Barger.

BISHOP MELVIN TALBERT: Representing the American-Jewish Committee, Ms. Anita Fricklas. And may I add I'm not sure but this may be the first time that we've had someone from the Jewish community with us at our General Conference. (applause) Representing the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), the Rev. William C. Crowl. Representing the Christian Methodist Episcopal Church and our preacher of the morning, Bishop Thomas L. Hoyt Jr.

Representing the Consultation on Church Union, Dr. Vivian U. Robinson, President and Dr. Daniell C. Hamby, General Secretary. Representing the Episcopal Church, the Right Rev. Edward F. Gulick, Jr. Representing the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, Bishop Ralph Kempski.

Representing the Free Methodist Church of North America, the Rev. Dr. Richard Morrow. Representing the International Councils of Community Churches, Dr. Michael J. Owens and Mrs. Michael J. Owens. Representing the National Baptist Convention of America—I have not seen him but he may have arrived—Dr. James Diehl.

Representing the National Conference of Catholic Bishops the Most Rev. William S. Skylstad of Yakima. And I take a pause here. Six members of the Roman Catholic Church under the leadership of Bishop Skylstad—he co-chairs the Roman Catholic-United Methodist dialogues with Bishop Bob Greig—prior to this General Conference heard about the Guide to Prayer and Preparation. They are the six copies of that devoted to prayer and preparation for forty days leading up to the General Conference.

prior to our coming here, and we are most grateful. (applause)

Representing the National Council of Churches in the United States of America, the Rev. Dr. Joan Brown Campbell, general secretary, and then of course myself as president. Representing the Orthodox Church in America, the Very Rev. William Leonid Kishkovsky. Representing the Reformed Church in America, the Rev. David Dutchman. Representing the United Church of Christ, the Rev. William F. Dark. Representing the Wesleyan Church, the Rev. Phillip L. Harris and Mrs. Betty Lou Harris. And representing the World Council of Churches, Mr. Phillip E. Jinks. Let us give our ecumenical guests a warm hand of welcome. (applause)

Now my friends, we could have a hallelujah time this morning inviting all of these guests to greet us and we could learn a lot about them, but we are not going to do that. What we're going to do is ask one of these guests to greet us, and it is my privilege to do that now.

Presentation of Joan Brown Campbell

One that I've been privileged to work with over the last many years and over the last four years in a very close way is the General Secretary of the National Council of Churches, Dr. Joan Brown Campbell. She is a tremendous person, a great ecumenical leader, a great visionary, and one who is able to lead us in such a way that we are all so proud. It is not easy to work with 33 communions when they all have their own goals and directions and try to bring them together as one to foster a common direction, goal, and spirit. But Dr. Campbell has done that magnificently and we are delighted to greet her. It is my privilege to have worked with her as president-elect in the last two years traveling with her, not only in this country but in places like Russia and Armenia, and then this year it is my privilege to serve as president for 1996 and 1997. Let us greet Dr. Campbell and enable her to greet us in the name of Christ. (applause)

JOAN BROWN CAMPBELL: Thank you, Bishop Talbert. Dear sisters and brothers in the family of God; grace and peace to each and every one of you. I greet you this morning in the name of the one who in the face of the cross called us to be the one people that we are intended to be. Jesus knew and knows us so very well. How clear he was that a hungry, hurting, and war-weary world would yearn for people of faith who could speak and act together. To stand under a banner that lifts up the great commitment to unity of this important Church is humbling, comforting, and challenging. In all essentials unity. In essentials unity. Can the congregation join me by saying, "amen."

CONGREGATION: Amen.

Campbell Brings Word from National Council of Churches

CAMPBELL: I greet you today and believe me, it is indeed an awesome task as I look at those who stood when I stood; those who are gathered now behind me. I greet you on behalf of all of those, and the cloud of witnesses that they represent. Each one of them, as Bishop Talbert said, could give you a special greeting. Together I believe that those gathered here bespeak the diversity of the family of God.

And what we want to say to you today is a very simple message. We want to say to you, you are not alone. But even more than that we want to say to you, your decisions matter enormously. And much as you may think they are your decisions, we would say to you, they are not yours alone; for they matter to the people of God. We are all related my friends, related by nothing less than the blood of Jesus Christ. We are related here in this country, we are related to sisters and brothers all over this world. I bring special greetings today to those who call themselves Methodists and who come from around this world.

I was deeply touched as I walked into this room and walked passed the translation booths, and realized the vast diversity of those gathered here. I would say to those of you from around the world, your cultures enrich us, your witness informs, your faith deepens our faith. Your struggles enrich our mission. They quite rightly command our resources and very often test our comfort. You add richness to the tapestry of our common life.

Tribute to UM Contribution to National Council

Especially today I would be remiss if we did not thank you for the enormous gifts of leadership of The United Methodist Church, gifts of leadership shared nationally, internationally, and in cities and towns all throughout this great nation. You have shared with us generously. Ecumenically, The United Methodist Church gives leadership to ecumenical efforts throughout this land; especially to the National Council of Churches, the World Council of Churches, and the Consultation on Church Union.

And now just one personal word. A word of special thanks and of warmth and gratitude to Bishop Melvin Talbert. Time would not allow me to say what I would like about this great and good man who has brought courage and strength to a struggling ecumenical movement. Thank you, Bishop Talbert, thank you United Methodist Church, for the gift of this man in our life, and thank you Ethelou wherever you may sit for sharing him with us.

Our prayers are with you now as we move forward together to witness as one. To witness as one, not simply because it is convenient, not even because it is politically effective, but profoundly and earnestly so that the world might believe, and that all might receive the promise of eternal life. We pray for you that you might be gifted in these days with vision, with wisdom, with courage, and with charity in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit. God's peace be with you and with all those for whom you pray. Amen. [applause]

BISHOP TALBERT: As people called United Methodists, we have never assumed that we are the Church. In the spirit of John Wesley, we have always proclaimed that to be who we are, we must be involved ecumenically. And so we have invited our guests to be with us this morning to demonstrate the fact that we are serious about that. We cannot do our work effectively as people of faith unless we commit ourselves to being on the journey of faith with our sisters and brothers in other communions and denominations in our communities.

Sisters and brothers, this ecumenical journey does not simply belong to us at the national level. It is our common witness at the very grassroots of our life with the congregations in our communities. We greet our sisters and brothers who have come to be with us this morning in the name and in the spirit of Jesus Christ.

The corporate responsibility for ecumenism belongs to your Council of Bishops. But in order to give someone the privilege of sitting around the table in the ecumenical arena for the past eight years and throughout the history of the council, the secretary has been designated the one to carry that responsibility. And as I said earlier, it has been mine to do that in behalf of this council and in behalf of this church for the last eight years.

Bishop Grove to Represent Council of Bishops at National Council

Assuming that you will approve an agenda item coming before you later, Bishop William Boyd Grove will be my successor as Head of Communion in the next four years. I want to say to you again it's been a joy and a privilege representing you, but that task could not have been completed or been done successfully without the support of Dr. Bruce Robbins and staff of the General Commission on Christian Unity and Concern; without Bill Grove and his leadership as president of that council, and without many of the general agencies of our church and who have in behalf of all of us made ecumenical commitment in and through the National Council of Churches and the World Council of Churches.

So, it's been a joy and privilege representing my church, and it's been an inordinate privilege for me to represent you in presenting our ecumenical guests this morning. And as they stand and leave the stage, let us again, greet them and welcome them in the name of Christ. (applause)

BISHOP MORGAN: We are so grateful for the presence of the ecumenical—you may be seated—and we're so proud of Bishop Talbert who is the president of the National Council of Churches.

We're in the midst of an Order of the Day, friends. I will call on you at the appropriate time. We're still in the midst of this moment, and I think it was not said specifically, and I should have said that when I presented him, and what a tremendous honor that is for the whole church for him to serve us in that capacity.

Yes, back here. Go to microphone 14. What is your purpose?

Petition of Commendation to Bishop Talbert

ELAINE STANOVSKY (Pacific Northwest): The Western Jurisdiction Committee on Episcopacy has asked for me to present a "Petition of Commendation" for Bishop Talbert.

BISHOP MORGAN: All right, we'll hear that.

STANOVSKY: "Whereas Bishop Melvin G. Talbert has served our denomination and Christ's Church Universal in an exemplary manner, and whereas, Bishop Talbert has been elected and is now serving as President of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the United States of America, therefore be it resolved that the 1996 General Conference of the United Methodist Church hereby gratefully express our appreciation and joyful support of Bishop Talbert as he fulfills the office of

As United Methodists, we, indeed, are proud of the leadership that Bishop Talbert offers, conveying to all that the Church is one in Christ Jesus. We thank God for Bishop Talbert and his ministry within our church, and now representative of the church throughout the United States and the world. We rejoice that God has given us Bishop Melvin G. Talbert, especially at such a time as this. Congratulations, Bishop Talbert, and our prayers are with you. I would move its adoption.

BISHOP MORGAN: And let us affirm that petition with our applause. That would be the way, rather than using the electronic things on that. (applause)

(Bishop Talbert stands)

BISHOP MORGAN: I think that was unanimous applause. Thank you for that. Very appropriately now, we move to the COCU report, Churches Of Christ Uniting, in that same spirit. And I turn to Bishop William Grove and those who will be making this presentation, and the legislative committee appropriate, who will make this. Bishop Grove?

BISHOP WILLIAM GROVE: Thank you, Mr. President. Members of the General Conference, and friends. It is a blessed opportunity for us to present this report on churches in covenant communion within the context of ecumenical joy which we're experiencing this morning. Sharing with me in this report will be Mr. Byrd Bonner, a lay delegate from the Southwest Texas Conference, a member of the General Commission on Christian Unity and Interreligious Concerns, and the chair of the task force of the General Commission that has been dealing with this covenantal possibility for us through the years.

Ecumenical witness is an evangelical imperative. Jesus' prayer for the unity of his disciples represented, I believe, the deepest yearning of Christ's spirit: "May they all be one, as you, Abba, and I are one, that the world may believe." The division of the church is a major impediment to our evangelical task.

UM Constitution and Ecumenism

The United Methodist Church is constitutionally ecumenical. I read to you from Division I, Article V of the constitution: "As part of the Church Universal, the United Methodist Church believes that the Lord of the Church is calling Christians everywhere to strive toward unity, and therefore, it will seek and work for unity at all levels of church life. Through world relationships with other Methodist churches and United churches related to the Methodist Church, through councils of churches, and through plans of union with churches of Methodist or other denominational traditions." Our constitution represents our essence, what is constitutive of us: our bone marrow and our blood. Our constitution commits us to seek the unity of the church.

We now face the opportunity of a new form of unity, a unity that is not organizational, but covenantal; that is not institutional, but spiritual; a unity in sacred things, as the document, "Churches in Covenant Communion," describes the relationship.

Churches in Covenant Communion

BISHOP GROVE: "Churches in Covenant Communion" represents a covenantal relationship among communions while allowing them to retain their own ecclesial heritage, identity and authority. The dimensions of the covenant into which we are invited to enter are the following:

One: "Claiming our unity in faith." The General Conference 1988 adopted the COCU consensus, which is the theological foundation of the covenant by overwhelming vote.

Two: "Commitment to seek unity with wholeness together." That means commitment to an inclusive church in every dimension of what inclusive means—racially, economically, gender.

Three: "Mutual recognition of members in one baptism."

Four: "Mutual recognition of each others' churches." Do you know that we've never taken a formal action to recognize as churches, the other member churches in the Consultation on Church Union?

Five: "Mutual recognition and reconciliation of ordained ministries."

Six: "Celebrating the Eucharist together."

Seven: "Engaging together in Christ's mission at every level—locally, regionally, and nationally."

Eight: "The formation of church covenanting councils."

This proposal is put before you by the Council of Bishops by unanimous vote. Over the last seven years, the council has devoted more time in plenary session of the Council of Bishops to this proposal than to any other issue, with the exception of the ministry study. In 1991, the council withheld its recommendation to the 1992 General Conference so that we would have the time, within the council and throughout our church, to gain clarification about some issues that we believed at that time, needed clarification. We delayed the recommendation for four more years.

In spite of the fact that the Council of Bishops withheld its recommendation in 1992, 19 annual conferences recommended to the 1992 General Conference that we enter into covenant communion. When we came finally to our vote within the Council of Bishops on this proposal, there were two votes in the negative; and after the vote, those who had voted in the negative asked to have the vote reopened, so that it could be made a unanimous vote.

In addition to the Council of Bishops, the General Commission on Christian Unity and Interrreligious Concerns, and 34 annual conferences have petitioned the General Conference for approval of the covenant.

The following churches have voted to enter into this covenant: The Christian Methodist Episcopal Church, as we heard from Bishop Hoyt; the International Council of Community Churches; the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America; the Christian Church, Disciples of Christ; the United Church of Christ; two other churches—the African Methodist Episcopal Church and the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, will vote on the covenant in their general conferences this summer.

No member church of the Consultation on Church Union has rejected the covenant. We pray for the day when the Episcopal Church, which still has the covenant under study, may decide to join us within the covenant.

Imagining Union

Imagine some scenarios that might soon become reality within this covenant. In a small town in Ohio, or in Nebraska, or in the state where you live, four of the covenanting churches have congregations. They decide that once a month, or four times a year or more, they will meet for a shared Eucharist, with all clergy as co-celebrants. They also decide that they will do all their baptisms together. Or they decide that when they do their baptisms in their own congregations, there will always be representatives of the other churches within the covenant present at the baptism.

In one annual conference in New York or in California, or in Virginia or Georgia, a decision is made to have a shared service of ordination. For the United Methodists, the ecumenical service of ordination is an adjourned session of the annual conference. But in another annual conference, the decision is made to have representatives of the covenanting churches present at the annual conference, when the service of ordination takes place, to participate in the laying on of hands. Both are possible within the covenant.

This covenant will move faith and order ecumenism to the local congregational level. It will help us all—laity, pastors, superintendents, and bishops—to experience the life of the one Church in a new and dynamic way. I believe that this is the most significant ecumenical challenge to be placed before the General Conference of The United Methodist Church in nearly half a century, since we first voted to enter the National and World Council of Churches. To quote a good preacher, "We are challenged to march beyond our maps." [applause]

Layman Supports COCU

BYRD BONNER (Southwest Texas): In the late 1800's a French impressionist painter named George Seurat began to develop a painting technique called pointillism. I am certainly no painter, but my understanding of that technique is that individual distinct dots of paint are placed on a canvas with a hope and conviction that, upon viewing the painting from a distance, the entire landscape of hue and color appear.

My name is Byrd Bonner, and I am a first time lay delegate to a General Conference from the Southwest Texas Conference. I was baptized and confirmed in a United Methodist Church in a county seat town in the North Texas Conference. My wife and children and I now are members of an inner city church in San Antonio. Like most of you, I have been United Methodist all my life. But the way that we too often go about our ministries within the walls of our congregations and sanctuaries, or cocoons, as Bishop Hoyt visioned, is troubling.

Covenanting helps us address some of that isolation with a fresh understanding. It will encourage a broader understanding of baptism, Communion, and mission. We are all aware of the significance of the ecumenical movement, and many in this room have been particularly important players in that movement. The general church level is the primary place where the ecumenical movement has been played out. But ecumenism is not primarily lived out here. We now understand and proclaim evangelism and mission to primarily take place in our local churches. The unity we seek is primarily lived out at the local level as well.

Upon learning about "Churches in Covenant Communion" in presentations, many people have said to me, "We do this already." True, many do, but not all. Covenanting is the first unique opportunity for the ecumenical movement of this century and the widespread ecumenism going on at the grass roots, finally to meet. If covenanting can be described as some kind of marriage, I suggest that this is the marriage, not necessarily one between Methodists and Presbyterians and Episcopalians and AME and CME and on and on, but a marriage between the grass roots ecumenism, the power of Spirit and ministry that we encounter in our local churches, and the ecumenical, theological movement that has been going on amongst our denominations.

This is the first General Conference action relating to ecumenism that has had such a direct and immediate impact on our local churches. The congregations that we come here from, yearn to take something back that will affect them. The use of the study guide, "We are the Church Together," has resulted in more than 40 petitions to this General Conference, urging the adoption, from all parts of the church. If your annual conference is not among the ones, if they're in the minority of conferences not sending petitions to General Conference urging adoption, then one of your neighboring conferences is among that majority of conferences.

I first heard about covenanting while on our Conference Commission on Christian Unity in the late '80s, trying to wade through all the theological movements and acronyms of the world of ecumenism. I saw in it a place where laity can plan and carry out dreams of understanding and unity as partners in ministry with their sisters and brother clergy. The covenanting councils in local areas no more constitute some kind of new bureaucracy than a ministerial alliance or an Emmaus reunion group...

They simply set the stage for the framework for joint worship, communion, and mission as never before. Whether your image for the opportunity available to us in covenanting is that of vibrant strands of thread woven into a colorful tapestry, as Bishop Craig so prophetically shared with us last week, or whether it is even that of my Presbyterian uncle on the coastal plains of south Texas, who sees many deep, time-worn, dirt, livestock trails, all leading up to the summit of a low hill where there is a common well overflowing, as an approach to salvation available through Jesus Christ, unity is not something that we can afford to nonconsent.

The unity of the body of Christ is a gift of God. It is we who divide it. I am also no theologian, but it seems to me that God has placed each one of us here, corporately and individually, as distinct dots on God's canvas, with our own gifts and graces, our own qualities to bring to the body of Christ. And that as God backs up from that canvas, we portray the entire color of God's masterpiece landscape. We must not leave this place saying, in a very United Methodist voice, that we want to remain one single color of thread, only one hue of landscape, or one narrow, deep trail, thinking that we have the shortest or only route to God.

Covenanting is not the answer to the unity of the church and its dividedness. What it is, is a significant, unique step, through which many more steps can be taken to other traditions and denominations, with them and to other spiritual growth and life movements, thriving within the lives of the churches. This is not a time to wait. We Methodists have always been leaders in this ecumenical dialogue and the ecumenism that happens in our grass roots. We must not take this opportunity to wait further. We must take this opportunity to say,

"yes!" Our oneness in Jesus Christ is not a matter of cooperation or of efficiency, or of convenience, it is a matter of our salvation. Thank you. [applause]

BISHOP MORGAN: All right. Thank you. Now, where we are, is that we will turn now to the Calendar Committee to present the Consent Calendar. In the first item up from the legislative committees will be Independent Commissions, will present a report of this matter that has just been presented to us. Who will report, Fitzgerald Reist, Sarah Miller? You're on.

SARAH S. MILLER (Wyoming): First let me call your attention to a correction. If you'll note on today's DCA, page 329, there's a note about moving two items that were incorrectly listed yesterday under Consent Calendar A03, items number 639 and 640, should have been listed under the Consent Calendar 304. They were still on the Consent Calendar, so we assume we can still deal with them today, but just under a different category.

Items From Consent Calendar Voted On

MILLER: Bishop, I move the adoption of Consent Calendar A03 with the exceptions noted.

BISHOP MORGAN: All right. Let me say to you as you vote today for the first time, you will just be entering a "yes" or a "no" vote. Abstain vote, you just don't vote, and it is not counted. We will just be counting "yes" and "no" votes. If you will approve the Consent Calendar report, vote when the light appears. [871 approved] And it is supported.

REIST: Consent Calendar B03 is found on page 213 of the DCA, and removed from the Consent Calendar are listed on page 390. There is a correction to be made. Item 559 is removed from Consent Calendar B03, but also item 575, you will want to insert there, is removed along with item 576. Those three items are removed from Consent Calendar B03.

MILLER: Bishop, I move the adoption of Consent Calendar B03 with the exceptions noted.

BISHOP MORGAN: All right. It is before you. If you will vote when the light appears.

BISHOP MORGAN: Consent Calendar C03 is before you. Vote when the light appears. You have supported Consent Calendar C03. [861 approved]

Rules for Removal From Consent Calendar

REIST: May I, sir, just a word of clarification for the delegates. The "Remove from Consent Calendar" forms, that are available in the secretary's office, will now of course need 10 signatures and printing of 10 names. Just to clarify that for everyone. Thank you.

BISHOP MORGAN: Thank you, Fitzgerald. Turn now to Carl Stewart, Independent Commissions to...Yes, microphone 2.

DONALD AVERY (Louisiana): If a motion to limit debate would be in order at this time, I would like to make one.

BISHOP MORGAN: What kind of motion are you talking about?

AVERY: For the balance of this General Conference session, I would move to limit debate to two speakers for, two speakers against, and two minutes each, for all matters.

BISHOP MORGAN: That's in order. It would take a two-thirds vote. Are you ready to do that. Rather a majority vote, excuse me, not a two-thirds vote. If you...I don't see a...Yes? Microphone 4.

MERLIN ACKERSON (Iowa): I think it does take two-thirds, by the way, does it not? To change the rules? More than that, I think that this is too early in the week to start limiting debate. We have some very important issues coming before us. I don't think two speeches on each side is enough. So I would urge the conference to vote against this motion.

BISHOP MORGAN: The rule now is that you have two speeches on either side, but you may have a maximum of three, then you go to the vote. All right. It is before you. If you would support it, the motion, vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 301; no, 633; abstained, zero] The motion fails.

All right, Mr. Stewart.

Petition in Favor of Covenant Communion

CARL E. STEWART (Louisiana): Thank you, Bishop. On the platform with me is Patricia Toschak, delegate from Minnesota, who is the subcommittee chair on Christian Unity and Interreligious Concerns. We will consider Calendar Item 780. Calendar Item 780 is found on page 257 of the Daily Christian Advocate. It is Petition 20970, found on page 921 of the Advanced Edition, the red book. There is a minority report. It is also found on page 258 of the DCA.

The petition before you involves the proposal for the adoption of the Church in Covenant Communion about which we have heard this morning. The committee celebrates the work of the study committee and wholeheartedly echoes the words spoken this morning by our bishops, Bishop Grove, Bishop Talbert and also Bishop Hoyt. We rejoice in the presence of our ecumenical friends as we present this historic opportunity to the General Conference.

The committee recommends concurrence with the petition with amendments. The amendments made in committee are contained in the DCA, and they are of three types. On page 258 in the left hand column, you'll see in bold "whereas, the United Methodist Council of Bishops on May 5, 1995 unanimously adopted the resolution and support..." The petition was amended to insert that and updated the balance of the amending you see in that same left column, primarily was just modifying language to make the petition current, and to indicate appropriately where the designations and the Church of Christ Uniting.

Still on page 258, but in the center column, you'll see language in bold at the top that the committee added. That amendment was to the effect that The United Methodist Church shall maintain its own standards for ministerial training and the ordination of ministers which shall also apply to our reception or transfer of ministers or other denominations, including any prohibitions set by General Conference.

The last amendment that I just read was added primarily as a result of discussion in the subcommittee, that it would be well to clarify or refine the language to so indicate that's there. So the committee presents to you and moves for adoption of the petition with concurrence with the amendments that I have indicated.

BISHOP MORGAN: Thank you Judge Stewart. Will you present the minority presenter?

STEWART: Mr. Riley Case from our committee is present and on the podium to speak to the minority report. If that's in order.

BISHOP MORGAN: He'll present that now? And then we'll come back and perfect the majority.

Minority Report on Covenant Communion

RILEY CASE (North Indiana): We've had two hours of sermons, speeches, and introductions all assuming that the Church of Christ Uniting is an accomplished fact, that the decision has been made, and that there is widespread and almost unanimous support. It is not necessarily so. We still do have a choice. One option is with the minority report which says let's continue our commitment to the conversations and Consultation on Church Union, but let us proceed with caution. So the minority report is there for you. Do you want me to continue or just finish the report?

BISHOP MORGAN: No, no. That's before us now, then we will turn to Judge Stewart to now perfect the majority report, then we'll come back to you, Riley.

STEWART: Thank you bishop, on behalf of the committee, would say that the amending language that you see before it, is in our opinion, is an effort to ameliorate concerns that were expressed. The document is before you and you have read it, and we feel that the time for action is now.

BISHOP MORGAN: What is the wish of the body on how we receive it? I would assume that we take it seriatim, because the first one is a constitutional amendment, and we would need to take two-thirds vote on that. Is that All right would you Dr. Stewart? All right, it's before you now. Anyone wish to speak? Yes, I recognize microphone 2, and I would assume number 1 is before us right now. Charles Brockwell of Louisville, home of the national champions.

CHARLES BROCKWELL (Louisville): Well, in 1986, and in the future. Bishop Morgan and sisters and brothers of the conference, I speak in behalf of the majority report, and I hope that we will affirm our covenanting in the COCU covenanting proposal. I'm a member of the Louisville Conference. I'm also a member of the Louisville Presbytery. My ministry at the Presbyterian Seminary qualified me to apply for membership as a Presbyterian minister under the Book of Order of the Presbyterian Church, which I did. Without reordination, I was received into the Presbytery. And I work on the Board of Ordained Ministry of our conference and the Committee on Preparation for Ministry.

BISHOP MORGAN: Dr. Brockwell, let me interrupt you. I misled you there. We are perfecting this. If you have an amendment, I will call on you later, when we come back, to speak to the report. What we have now, are there any amendments or changes you wish to make? We're not looking for speeches right now. We'll give you a chance in a moment. Yes, microphone 3, and we're looking at number 1. The article which is the constitutional revision.

HENRY RADDE (Central Texas): There is a correction that needs to be made, but it's not in number 1. It's in the beginning on page 257, I believe the third paragraph down "whereas Jesus prayed for the church that they may all be one," scripture quote John 17:20. I believe that should be John 17:21.

BISHOP MORGAN: All right, an editorial, and we thank you. Let me try you again now, on number one are there any amendments? I do not see any hands. All right number 2 paragraph 2402, are there any amendments? I see a hand right back here, a guard. Come to microphone 9 please or 14, whichever you prefer.

ELIZABETH HULICK (Virginia): I just have an editorial correction. When we discussed this in the committee, on page of 258 of the blue book, we had changed the date from 1992 to 1991.

BISHOP MORGAN: All right, thank you. Number two. Are there any amendments on number two. I do not see a card. All right, I'm moving to number three. Are there any amendments that you wish to make? All right, number four. Any amendments? I do not see a card. Number five, any amendments? All right. Is there anywhere else in the document of the report that you wish to make any changes or amendments? I do not see a hand, so I would declare that we have perfected the majority report, and if, brother Case you would come now, we will do the same for the minority report and I'll come back to you, Judge.

Let the chair, Brother Case, Brother Riley. As I read the minority report, and I want to try something, rather than perfecting this, it seems to me that what you're asking for is a postponement to study. Can we not just address this together as a body? In reality, what would be before us, do you want to vote on it now or do you want to wait four years to deal with it right? Is that what you're asking?

CASE: Basically.

BISHOP MORGAN: Can I try this on the body, if they'd be willing to? Do you feel comfortable with that? Rather than, you know, working on perfecting it. I think the essence of your minority report is delay four years or postpone four years, and then vote. If the body would support that approach to the minority report, then we'll discuss that, and give you a chance to speak to that, and everyone else who wishes to speak to that do so. If you would support that idea of approach to this minority report, please vote when the light appears. This would be without perfecting it. [Results: yes, 537; no, 334]

You support the chair, well, not overwhelmingly, but you did support me, 537-334.

All right, now the minority report which is basically to postpone to further study is before us, and I'll give you the closing crack at it, right.

Call for Continuation of Current COCU Status

CASE: I'm impressed that so many or so few really, so few of our local communities even know about this proposed half merger, let alone are enthusiastic about it. Many of the communities that I know there is, indeed, a decided lack of enthusiasm. The minority report says let's continue in COCU, which for those in central conferences and beyond the bounds of the United States, means Consultation On Church Union. Let us continue in these efforts, but before we enter into marriage, let's have a time of engagement. Let's have a time of getting to know each other. We have done that on the national level. Let's have a time of getting together on local levels.

Let's call together our other communities, our communions, the other churches who are part of this COCU consultation. Let's have some worship services, let's have some studies, some gatherings, some celebrations. We already have this unity in Christ, we don't need a covenanting service to express that unity. Let's express that unity now, to see if there truly is interest in proceeding with this half-merger. And if local churches are committed enough, and really want to add another layer of structure, and the apportionments that go with it. And if we're sure that this will best express our unity, then let us rejoice and let it be. Let's test to see how deep is our commitment.

My Presbyterian friends tell me the COCU proposal may not pass the General Assembly this summer, at least in its present form, without some qualifications. My Episcopal friends tell me there are serious questions around apostolic succession and the laying on of hands. It is still not settled for them. Things would be very complicated if we, clergy, got hands laid on, without the Episcopalians. Let us continue our ecumenical efforts.

Let us continue our COCU walk, but let us proceed with caution. We sometimes do march beyond our maps to greater victories. But sometimes we march off our maps into the desert and into disaster. Let's proceed, but let's give ourselves some time to set the course.

BISHOP MORGAN: Thank you. Is there anyone who wishes to speak from the floor. I see a card, a man standing, in the blue, go to microphone 10.

Now, once again, Joel, before I...all that is before us now is to discuss the minority report. The minority report basically has been perfected. We talk about delaying and amendments and so forth, in order that you may speak for. Are you speaking for or against?

JOEL S. GARRETT (Western Pennsylvania): I'm speaking against.

BISHOP MORGAN: All right.

GARRETT: I rise to speak against the minority report. Although I understand its intent, my hunch is that those who are opposed to COCU will go home and give it only half-hearted effort, if any at all, while those in favor will go home to support it and make it work. And then in four years we'll come back here and we'll debate this subject all over again based on our success or lack thereof.

As a member of the Legislative Committee on Independent Commissions, I have studied the COCU legislation and I am in favor of the majority report, because the concerns addressed in the many legislations are taken care of in the amendment that you find in the blue book. I'm opposed to the minority report because the Episcopalian and Presbyterian denominations will be meeting later this year, after us. I've opposed the minority report because the COCU plan will enhance our commitment to Pan-Methodism, not slow it down.

As a former member of our Conference Commission on Christian Unity, and I chaired that commission, I was involved in many conversations with those who were conservative and who were frustrated with a lack of willingness on the part of our General Commission to be engaged in dialogue with people all across the theological spectrum. But again, as a member of the Independent Commissions Committee, I'm impressed with the inclusiveness that the General Commission is expressing in all of the legislation that we have approved on the Consent Calendar.

I support the majority report because of its involvement of people all across the theological spectrum, to bring people to the table of ecumenical dialogue in the mission field of Christian unity. I ask us to affirm those who are leading us in the unity to which Christ calls us. We've been engaged with COCU for 30 years, its time to go to the altar.

BISHOP MORGAN: All right. Is there someone who wishes to speak for the minority report. I see, right here, go to microphone 8.

Christianity Unity Differs from Church Union

WILLIAM K. QUICK (Detroit): I find myself in somewhat of an awkward predicament. But I rise to support this minority report for several reasons. I am admittedly an ecumaniac. I believe, however, there is a difference between Christian unity and church union; to which I think if we approve the majority report today, is the first step to church union.

I believe a major player in Christian unity is the Roman Catholic Church. And we have been in conversations in the World Methodist Council with the Roman Catholic Church since John XXIII. I believe the Evangelical Lutheran Church is a key player in ecumenism. We have initiated in a petition before this conference, to re-establish conversations with the Evangelical Lutheran Church, which stopped in 1988.

I believe it is incumbent upon us to move closer to that dream articulated by E. Stanley Jones to bring together the historic Black United Methodist congregations who left this family of ours in 1786; shortly thereafter, and then in 1866, back under the umbrella of a truly United Methodism. And I think that ought to be our first priority.

This proposal does not suggest that we cut the cord with COCU. It brings to us some common sense and very practical considerations that I think merits our thoughtfulness, our prayers, and our support. And I hope, as you vote, you will support the minority report.

BISHOP MORGAN: Let us indulge the chair a moment. It is time for the break. What is the wish of the body? Do you wish to proceed or do you want to take a break now and come back and pick up right there? Proceed? If you would proceed that we finish this matter, would you vote when the light appears. [836 approved]

BISHOP MORGAN: We have voted to proceed, 836 to 98. We have had one speech for, one speech against. Is there someone who wants to speak against the minority? Over here, right here, on the aisle. Come to microphone 2. You are speaking against the minority report.

CHARLES H. LEE (North Alabama): It sounds as though much that is being said about the minority report seems to suggest that we're entering into a marriage; that's the image that's being used, or suggested, it seems to me. And I don't think it's quite marriage yet; it's still sort of engagement, it looks like to me. Still kind of talking it out, feeling it—well, that might not be a good word. (laughter) When we were in committee, I gave an example of how on World Communion Sunday in the evening service, as a Black United Methodist pastor, I was invited to be the preacher in the evening service on World Communion service at an all White Pentecostal church. They were fully Pentecostal and White. I was fully Methodist and Black. (laughter) I preached, they shouted, and we all survived. (laughter and applause) I would recommend that we oppose the minority report, and let's go on and talk together a little while in a long engagement.

BISHOP MORGAN: All right, is there now someone who wishes to speak for the minority report? Yes, right here in the middle, go to microphone 9. This will give us two for and two against.

UMCOR and Ecumenism

GUY C. AMES III (Oklahoma): I rise to support the minority report. Actually coming from the perspective that what we are asking, many of us, is for a structure that would allow us to, at the local level, really get on with the ecumenical efforts. We've heard today some very fine presentation proposals, and I think much work has gone into what has taken place with the covenanting proposal.

However, my experience as a UMCOR consultant, one of the first twelve that was established back in '86, I've come to understand that ecumenism means many different things across the country. And one of the things that oftentimes has hindered or kept us from getting on with some serious, important task of disaster response or ministry at the local level has been the process by which we often times have to spend time in dialogue and conversation rather than getting on with the actual work of ecumenism. I'm very much in favor of us coming to the table together. I have served as a pastor of an all Black congregation. I have served in ministry beyond The United Methodist Church with Roman Catholics, the Disciples of Christ, with those who are part of charismatic denominations as well as other evangelical churches.

I'm thrilled with the movement of our church to extend our ecumenical relationships beyond the boundaries of COCU. However, I believe this General Conference is moving in ways that will enable us to move toward, not institutional structures of ministry, but person-to-person structures. I do not believe that the institutional and programming structure of COCU and the covenant team experiences that we will be asked to share in at district and local levels will truly enhance ecumenism, at least from where I come from and the communities in which I serve.

We ask that you help us to focus on things that I believe will bring greater unity. The Pan-Methodist merger, which we will propose beyond this next four years, that will bring together four denominations, will do more than just celebrate ecumenism; it will actually lead us to unity. I ask you to support the minority report for these basic concerns.

BISHOP MORGAN: All right, we've had two speeches for, two against. Others wishing to speak? I'm trying to be fair here. I'm looking back in the back, there. I'm not going to get the guy with the jumping jack, but the guy with the, excuse me, the man with the tan suit. You may go to microphone 13. Who wishes to speak back there? Do you not wish to speak?

JULIAN L. BYRD (Texas): I rise to oppose the minority report.

BISHOP MORGAN: All right.

BYRD: For more than 38 years I have served as a chaplain in hospitals in the city of Houston, Texas, working in a truly ecumenical setting with persons of all denominations and faiths. On the staff of the institution in which I serve, the Methodist Hospital in Houston, we have an ecumenical chaplains staff representing denominations of the Protestant and Catholic faith as well as a Jewish rabbi. In the experience I've had in working across denominational and faith lines, I can tell you that when persons face medical crises in their life, in essentials, we stand together in unity. We recognize our differences and provide the opportunity to persons to give expression to those, but we share love with one another. I oppose the minority report because I think we've had enough time over twenty years in working together at the denominational level. It is time now for us to march beyond our maps, and affirm our brothers and sisters in whatever denomination and faith group they happen to express their faith, and come together as one in Christ by voting for the majority report and against the minority report. Thank you for allowing me to give this expression of my belief.

BISHOP MORGAN: All right. Now is there someone who wishes to speak for the minority report? We have one more speech available. Over to the left, here, in the red, on the aisle. Go to microphone 10, please, or to fifteen, whichever you prefer. This will give us three on either side, and we'll go to the minority report.

JAIME POTTER-MILLER (Western Pennsylvania): Bishop, I'm asking for the floor for the gentleman you recognized in the tan suit. He's one of our international delegates and was not able quickly enough to have the translation. He rose, sat, rose, sat, and someone else spoke, and I'd like to hear from him.

BISHOP MORGAN: All right. I'm not going to fight that one. I'm not going to get my dog in that fight, I think Bishop Grove said. Are you speaking for the report of the minority?

ONEMA OMBAKU (Central Zaire): I am speaking against the report of the minority.

BISHOP MORGAN: OK.

Word from Zaire on Ecumenism

OMBAKU: My name is Ombaku from Central Zaire. I don't understand why we need to discuss this question a lot because we have this experience where I live. About thirty years ago, there were about thirty denominations, and we were all separate, but now we are all one, and we have forgotten that we were from different groups. And I often ask myself, are we saved because we are Methodists, Catholics, Presbyterians, etc., or are we saved because we believe in Christ. Habits are hard to break, and that's what I mean, because the adventure is imminent. Jesus is one, and faith is one, and we have—and the church lives in faith. We must work. There are a lot of people that work in the administration, but we really must work at another level. There is a voice that brings us to faith, to unity. We must not wait. I ask this assembly, and I ask this conference to support the report of the majority and vote in opposition of the report of the minority. Thank you. [applause]

BISHOP MORGAN: We must have a speech for; except when the bishop speaks for the minority report. Microphone 10, OK, microphone 13. This is a speech for the minority report.

MICHAEL WEAVER (Virginia): Bishop, a year ago I was privileged to attend a local gathering of the Walk to Emmaus. At that gathering of a movement that includes members of many Christian denominations we, together, witnessed the baptism of a person who had come to learn of and accept God's grace in Christ, while she attended a Walk weekend. It was a true joy to join Christians of different stripes in reciting the Apostles' Creed and celebrate together the initiation of a person into Christ's Holy Church.

I stand solidly in support of relationships with other Christians in other denominations. However, let me express my serious reservation about the COCU proposal. Much of the grass roots ecumenism that takes place today takes place apart from any other structural unity between churches. Movements like the Walk to Emmaus and Promise Keepers bear witness to a unity brought about by the blowing of God's Holy Spirit amidst God's Church.

In addition, I am concerned that the COCU proposal is not sufficiently inclusive of denominations represented in the world today, including denominations not based in the United States, and including denominations that are today experiencing great renewal and growth. For these reasons, I stand in support of the minority report.

BISHOP MORGAN: The speech first, a little while ago, rather than last, but if you just have a comment, not a major speech. I took you out of turn awhile ago, it was my fault. But if you have a comment you may say something here.

RILEY CASE (North Indiana): I think the choice is before us. The minority report does not ask us to end ecumenical involvement; it does not ask us to pull out of COCU; it asks us simply to consider moving at a pace that would allow us, at all levels of the church, to come together to a decision that will affect our future.

BISHOP MORGAN: OK, thank you Judge Stewart for the majority report. Then we are ready to vote.

STEWART: Bishop, do I get a word on...

BISHOP MORGAN: Yes. On the minority, you are the final word now, what your recommendation is from the majority, then we'll come to the majority.

STEWART: With respect the minority report, I'll make it brief. Covenanting delay, is denying it. The minority report in seven paragraphs is conclusionary and speculative. With all due respect to the enthusiasm and the spirit expressed by the authors, it is simply grounded in speculation and not in faith.

There are no facts that are presented to buttress the claims that have been made. It simply asks us to delay this decision into infinity and I would respectfully request that you deny and reject the minority report.

BISHOP MORGAN: All right, we are voting on the minority report. When the light appears, you're voting on the minority report. If you vote yes, you support the minority, if you vote no, you're not supporting. Vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 361; no, 579] And the minority report fails.

Vote for COCU Majority Report

We are now to the majority report. We've already perfected it. Are you ready to move into a vote on that, or do you want to make more speeches? If you are ready to vote on this, would you vote when the light appears? [841 approved] You vote yes, clearly a two-thirds. I think as we vote here, prepare to vote, we need to vote number 1, which is a Constitutional amendment. And we will need to vote that. No, we were voting to vote.

All right, if you would...we're voting on the majority report now. You just voted to say you were ready to vote, is my understanding. If you, number 1 is a Constitutional amendment. If you will take number 1, we're voting on number 1 on page 258, number 1. If you would support that Constitutional...then we'll take the rest of it altogether. It'll take a two-thirds vote on this. If you would support number 1 on page 258, vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 646; no, 276]

Now, the whole report, the rest of the report is before you. If you would support the report, vote when the light appears. The rest just takes a majority. [Results: yes, 661; no, 288] And it is supported. The report prevails. Thank you. [applause] Now then, we are...we'll come back to you just a little bit later. We're going to take a break now folks, we have a lot on our plate this morning. And we have the connectional issues, that's going to come up beyond the break, and so it is now seven minutes until the hour. Be back in your place by 11:15. We will begin business. Steve will lead us in singing "Blessed Assurance" at that time.

BISHOP MORGAN: All right, thank you, friends. I see you coming to your places. We have an order of the day to hear the Connectional Issues Report from the General Council on Ministries. Bishop William Dew, please come now. It sounds so much like we're in school, and a school teacher saying take your place and that sort of thing. Don't want to do that, but we need to come now to our place; this is such a very important matter. In fact, we gave you a couple more minutes than you normally get for break. If you will be in order now, please. Bishop Dew.

BISHOP WILLIAM DEW JR: Thank you, Bishop Morgan.

BISHOP MORGAN: Excuse me. Please if you're on the floor in the bar, stop your conversations with one another and listen. And if you on the side need to conversation, slip out, have your conversation outside. We need to do business now; a lot is on our plate today. Thank you so much. Now Bishop Dew.

BISHOP DEW: Thank you. This General Conference will provide leadership in determining the future direction of our life together for many years in our future. This may, in fact, become the most significant General Conference in its responsibility of formation of The United Methodist Church as we anticipate the 21st century.

The actions that you will take are going to shape our ministry, and that ministry will be affecting our local congregations, and our annual conferences with yet unidentified challenges and opportunity. Your actions already are beginning to shape a shared vision for our denomination.

I remember Bishop Felton May's words, when he was GCOM president at the last General Conference; when he said seeking God's wisdom is often an uncertain task and your service as a delegate to the General Conference will convince you that a single clear vision has not yet emerged among the people called United Methodist. We've now travelled through another quadrennium.

Your conference leaders in the General Council on Ministries have sought to be attentive to God's voice, and to lead the church in a time of discernment concerning the mission of our church. This is provided in the unique opportunity to listen to all of the constituencies of the church, including representatives of all of our congregations gathered in all the annual conference and missionary conference sessions in 1994.

These listening processes and their findings have significantly shaped the response of the General Council on Ministries. You have had the opportunity to see this response in more than 40 individual reports that are presented in fulfilling our responsibilities as outlined in the Book of Discipline. It's also apparent in the response to 26 specific assignments that were voted by the 1992 General Conference to be carried out on behalf of the church.

In all of our listening, we are comforted by the passage from Habakkuk.

"Write the vision. Make it plain on tablets so that a runner may read it." But still there is a vision for the appointed time. It speaks of the end and does not lie. If it seems to tarry, wait for it. It will surely come. It will not delay.

As best we can understand God's will and vision, this is an in-between time when the fullness of God's wisdom is not being realized in our communities. What is clear from our observation is that we are fragmented, broken, often seeking our own will rather than God's. And in this day of word search capabilities, we know that the word "vision" appears only six times in the 1992 Book of Discipline. But for the last four years it has become common in our language. But more than that it has helped us realize the need for a compelling sense of mission that will unite us in our common ministry.

Earlier, I had opportunity to give you a brief overview of the work of the General Council on Ministries and now we come to begin to present specific proposals. There are many in the church who believe that the General Council on Ministries is a relatively new creation, having been established by 1972 General Conference. That would say that the GCOM is slightly near 24 years old. However, if one traces the history of the council in terms of functions and responsibilities, we find that both the former Evangelical United Brethren Church and the former Methodist Church each had very similar agencies that were a primary part of its organizational life for decades.

Tracing GCOM History

During my renewal leave this past year, I reviewed the history of our conciliar and coordinating bodies. Since the early 1950s, the EUB tradition had a coordinating body known as the Council on Administration and related to it a Program Council. In 1952, the former Methodist Church created a Council on Coordination and the Council on Finance. So for at least 11 quadrennia, we have benefited from a coordinated programmatic approach.

Tracing the disciplinary responsibilities of each of these predecessor denominations, their coordinating units had responsibilities that are essentially synonymous with those given to the General Council on Ministries in 1972, and have continued to the present day. It's very clear that the organizational decisions made by the Wesleyan family of EUBs, Methodists, and later United Methodists, all affirm as core value the importance of a coordinating agency to give leadership and to which other units of the denomination would be accountable.

In the spirit of our history and acknowledgement of this essential role for our denomination, we offer our recommendations for your consideration. Together all of the proposals that are coming from the General Council on Ministries comprise the actions of elected representatives from your annual and central conferences, as well as representatives from the Council of Bishops and colleagues from the program agencies.

Summary of Issues before GCOM

Rather than merely seeing these items isolated or as the property of several legislative committees, we would like you to see them as a package, as a collective response to the disciplinary responsibilities of GCOM. First the General Council on Ministries is recommending the report of the extensive connectional issues study and the legislative proposals to fully implement its recommendations.

These recommendations will provide greater organizational flexibility for local congregations and annual conferences; reduce the number of general agency directors from 950 to approximately 640; develop a connectional process team to further develop recommendations for General Conference in the year 2000.

And this will include further development of the connectional issues study and the Council of Bishops' report on the global nature of the church. We will also identify our process of the church to develop a compelling vision to guide our ministry and mission.

We believe this report provides the essential processes to allow the church to be transformed and equipped for the 21st century. I want to say a brief word, you may know that we have a general secretary named David Lundquist. David is having severe back problems and is unable to be with us. He needs rest. So while you may be concerned, I'm going to suggest that you not start making telephone calls and all that. Just let him alone and let him rest. We'll take care of our responsibility, and I think David will trust that.

I want to now introduce to you the chairperson of the Division of the General Council on Ministries, who has given leadership with the Connectional Issues Study. And there will be a team of people who will make this presentation. The chairperson, who will come now, is the Rev. Gordon Goodgame.

Chairperson Introduces GCOM Report

GORDON GOODGAME (Holston): Thank you Bishop Dew, Bishop Morgan, sisters and brothers called to be saints in the Church of Jesus Christ. Every period is a time of dying and a time of coming to birth. Change, which is a very part of creation, raises the potential for apprehensive fear, but also the possibility of new creation, energy and life. This study presents a sincere attempt to discern God's will being communicated to the whole body and to help us, as a church, move forward in faith.

Please join us in considering the mission, values, vision and practices to be invested in a God-called, Christ-shaped, Spirit-led movement into the 21st century. From the beginning, when the body of Christ has been open to God's new creation, and willing to journey towards the Lord's promise, the Holy Spirit has breathed vitality into its forms, and blessed its ministry. Faithfulness to this still creating God always involves sensitive discernment, continual realignment, and responsive transformation in organizations and processes.

As a faithful component of Christ's body, and in the face of radical societal change, The United Methodist Church is being called upon to make a relevant transition, while holding fast to the core Christian beliefs and practices. In such a faithful journey, it will be necessary to review our biblical mission, discern and articulate a consistent vision, and take steps to order our lives together so that we can be more effective stewards of all God-given resources.

While maintaining a commitment to God's will, the requirement of this day urges us to focus intentionally on the ministry of all Christians; on the essential role of congregations; on the support functions of connectional units; on an open approach to connectional structures and communications; on moving decision-making as close as possible to the point of ministry, all the while with flexibility, accountability, and broad inclusivity.

BETTE T. TRUMBLE (Nebraska): In 1992, General Conference commissioned the General Council on Ministries to lead the church in a period of discernment, reflection, and study of its mission and structure as it moves into the 21st century. Entrusted to an inclusive and broadly representational task force, this mandate has been carried out in the true spirit of discernment, including Bible study, theological review, and conversations with a broad network of church persons who have contributed input, and reflection.

Connectional Issues Study

From the beginning, this has been a shared journey, as concepts and directions have been made public and feedback was carefully considered, and included in our thinking. The Connectional Issues Study, which you have before you, presents a studied synopsis of churchwide listening; identifies key concerns leading to a shared vision; recommends first steps toward restructuring; and grants flexibility to local churches and annual conferences; calls for accountability and enhanced communication from general agencies; proposes a transitional quadrennium for reformation of general agencies, local churches and annual conferences guided by an articulated vision.

The General Council on Ministries Connectional Issues Study Task Force entered into a collaborative process of listening, reflecting, reviewing, and recommending. This resulted in more listening and an ongoing, transforming, feedback process which involved the whole United Methodist Church. This discernment process of the denomination's preferred future has involved a myriad of constituencies across the church. The study's intent was to hear from the grass roots and to learn where God is leading United Methodists.

Components of Connectional Issues Study

HEINRICH MEINHARDT (Germany North): The central components were a survey of 35,000 annual conference members, a review of vision statements already developed by annual conferences, consultation with central conferences, a forum of 32, consultation with numerous groups from across the church, the Council of Bishops, the General Council on Finance and Administration, all 13 general agencies, conference lay leaders, conference council directors, ethnic caucus groups, representatives of other churchwide studies.

Summary findings on page 552 of the advance DCA are built upon prayerful discernment, broad input, shared reflection, and open inquiry into historic and current disciplines. Presentations on paradigm shifts, visioning, and theological and biblical roots were made to GCOM members' plenaries to inform and undergird the work of GCOM.

...in the Connectional Issues Study. Minerva G. Carcano, pastor and spiritual leader for the Rio Grande Annual Conference, led sessions on biblical rules and scriptural principles motivating a vital United Methodism into the 21st century.

TRINA BOSE (California-Pacific): Intensive listening to various individuals and groups across the church led to thousands of responses and the collection of essential information. This data was analyzed and combined with other information to form various themes and trends. These themes and trends were widely distributed for review and reflection. Several drafts of the evolving Connectional Issues Studies Report were distributed across the church, inviting responses in specific ways, including voice mail, FAX, consultations, and mailings, resulting in further revisions. These findings indicate that:

Findings of Connectional Issues Study

BETTE T. TRUMBULE (Nebraska): The United Methodist Church is alive and vital throughout the world. The church wants a clearer vision, focused direction, and Christ-shaped servant leadership. Our people seek a Christ-centered, spiritual foundation;

WILLIAM "BILL" S. HATCHER (South Georgia): The church must be inclusive of all persons. United Methodists are committed to the benefits and the responsibilities of connectionalism. The local congregation is understood to be the primary base for mission and ministry;

KATHI AUSTIN MAHLE (Minnesota): Effective communication is needed throughout the denomination. Worldwide outreach and ecumenical cooperation are essential. Structural flexibility is needed at local church, district, and annual conference;

MEINHARDT: The spiritual and temporal leadership roles of bishops are affirmed. Consistency of a positive variation of how some general agencies resource and serve them. A serious disconnection exists between general program agencies and annual conference Councils on Ministries. The size of general church organizations needs to be reduced.

TRIMBLE: These findings are foundations calling for servant leadership, a greater role of laity.

HATCHER: Decision making, taking place closest to the points of ministry. Utilization of local church conferences as the visioning and policy setting body for mission and ministry of the local church.

BOSE: Organizational flexibility for the conferences. Creation of regional and global conference. Optimum size of general agencies.

Connectional Issues Study Is Visionary

MEINHARDT: A vision-led ministry focused on doing God's will in the world. Accountability of all connectional structures.

GORDON GOODGAME (Holtston): Yet these recommendations are more than a summary of findings or the ideas of a single task force. A mission-focused vision, biblically grounded and theologically tested, emerged at the heart of this process and is interwoven throughout the recommendation. It has become clear that the church will share in God's redemption of creation by calling, nurturing, equipping, and sending disciples. The discerned promise is a vision, a vision of a world transformed in the likeness of Christ, where faithful persons actively manifest the love of God and neighbor while fostering true community among all.

This vision will include an interactive connection of disciples who live, teach, and model a Christ-like service in and to the world, gathered in congregations that invite, nurture, equip, and send faithful disciples into the world as living witnesses to the sovereignty of Christ; guided by districts and annual conferences that connect local churches in mission by providing support and training, leadership personnel, and resources; by regional conferences that maintain the connection and are responsible for visioning and resourcing the annual conferences in the region to enhance faithful discipleship; and by a global conference that cares sensitively for matters of faith, doctrine, polity, purpose, order, and vision for a global connection.

JAMES R. KING, JR. (Tennessee): Beautiful people, the purpose of all connectional structures is to enable disciples gathered in learning congregations to fulfill the commission of Jesus Christ. Historically the church has taken on shades and practices which represented the best thinking of the day. More recently, much has been discovered about how communities can be guided in focusing on authentic purpose and values, empowered by commitment to a shared vision, and strengthened through servant leadership to move forward for the mutual good. This identity, purpose, and mission has already been voiced through the United Methodist Constitution and other parts of the Book of Discipline and is reaffirmed now by the Connectional Issues Study.

Here you can see this identity and purpose portrayed as roots to a living vine or organism. These roots are from the 1992 Discipline of The United Methodist Church, listed on page 558-562 of the ADCA. The Connectional Issues Study and its related legislative petitions seek to claim once more the power of a people connected in vision and mission.

Vision is God's will, the work of the Holy Spirit leading the church's mission in transforming the world through faithful disciples. Such a God-called people would best be served through a collaborative process of interdependence, undergirded by a Christ-shaped servant leadership, and knit together by open interactive communication. Being led by the Holy Spirit, we can create together something new and greater than that possible when we work alone.

The United Methodist ideal has always been to work together in conference and through conciliar processes. This study recommends a connectional design which seeks to align the alignment of identity, purpose and ministry through an interactive connection of conferences and involving a pattern of interdependent decision-making within the conferences. This design encourages, empowering each conference to renew its vision and responsibility, shaping its practice of ministry as it deems best.

Three Primary Areas of Ministry

This design stresses minimal functions which can be nurtured and expanded as a sense of mission and the capacity for Christ-like service grows. The focus is on three primary areas of ministry. First, outreach, nurture, and witness. For many in our church the church has lost its sense of purpose.

Our purpose is mission and ministry, going into the world, making disciples of young and old alike, edifying the believer, claiming the poor and the marginalized.

Then the second area of ministry is leadership, a servant leadership ministry. God seeks to use our mouths, to use our hands, to use our feet, as resources enabling mission and ministry to take place in the world.

Then the third area of ministry is administrative and physical. Unfortunately, for too many in our church, we have been administratively led rather than being led by the Holy Spirit. The work of administration, the work of order, the work of finances, are very important to God's work. But they are resources for mission and ministry.

Now these ministries collaborate and focus a unified ministry. At every place, the conference will devise policies and allocate resources consistent with its understanding of identity and values. Our council, comprised of ministry leaders and additional members, will maintain stewardship of the shared vision. Membership within this interactive design will intentionally represent a cross section of the church including ethnicity, youth, young adults, older adults, and persons with disabilities. This design ensures that the whole people be engaged in ministry which calls, nurtures, equips, and sends disciples into the world.

With each part of the body, local church, annual conferences, regional conferences, and global conference, we will ask them prayerfully to be open to an interdependent connection with other parts. The call will be to responsible ministry rather than structural conformity. In our growing trust, grounded in renewed covenants, reason, accountability, and creative communication, there is great potential for creatively responding to God's call in a particular circumstance. Local churches, districts, annual conferences, and general agencies will be encouraged to experiment with effective structures to help a people discern God's will for their ministry and become transformed as missional communities.

Connectional Process for Transition

KATHI AUSTIN MAHLE (Minnesota): As we move into this new century, we continue to seek God's unfolding vision. The recommendations before you in this Connectional Issues Study were birthed out of a process of listening and discernment and move us forward as we continue the journey of discerning God's vision for the church.

The transition process in the next quadrennium, led by a broadly representative group called the Connectional Process Team, allows for a comprehensive transformation of the United Methodist organization. We urge the General Conference to avoid adopting a piecemeal or quick fix approach with organization. Instituting partial changes incorrectly assumes a mechanical and independent arrangement of parts. The United Methodist Church is valued for its connection. In seeking God's vision for the church, conferencing together across the whole church can lead us all forward into that vision.

The Connectional Process Team will bring continuity to the study process. But it will not be another study. It will shepherd, manage, and enrich the reorganization of local churches, districts, annual conferences, and general agencies. We are on a journey together, and these steps towards aligning ourselves with the perceived will of God are before us. Aware that much remains to be done, it is recommended that the 1996 General Conference acknowledge the renewed direction set before this body and call our denomination forward by establishing a 30-member Connectional Process Team, or CPT, to manage, guide, and promote this transformational direction during the 1997 through the year 2000 quadrennium, approving, in principal, the interactive connectional model; affirming greater organizational flexibility for the church; challenging all 13 general agencies to refine and reshape themselves to enable ministry in annual conferences and local churches; encouraging the Council of Bishops to continue discerning and articulating God's vision for ministry for the whole United Methodist Church as guided by the Holy Spirit.

So, what will be the immediate impact on The United Methodist Church by your approval of the Connectional Issues Study and the related implementing petitions? This process will begin a new organizational structure to The United Methodist Church and general agencies for adoption by the 2000 General Conference.

It will establish this Connectional Process Team to manage the renewal and reformation of the church, including concepts developed by the bishops' Global Nature of the Church Committee, the Connectional Issues Study, and other groups that will have input. It will reorganize The United Methodist Church from within, guided by a confirmed identity, purpose, and mission.

It will establish a focus on congregations being resourced and supported by connectional bodies. It will grant greater flexibility through the interactive connectional model for structures in local churches, districts, and annual conferences, empowering them to organize in a manner that best fulfills a unique call to laity-led ministry resourced by servant leaders.

It will initiate a transitional quadrennium during 1997 through 2000 in which general agencies will be transformed organizationally. This will be initiated by, first, reflecting each agency's responsibility and commitment to support and resource the ministries of annual conferences and local churches. And secondly, effecting a reduction of the total membership of general agencies from 950 to approximately 640. It will facilitate the discernment of God's global vision for The United Methodist Church and articulate that vision as a guide for the ministry and organizational forms of United Methodism under the leadership of the Council of Bishops.

BISHOP DEW: You committed this task to the General Council on Ministries four years ago. We now have brought it to you. We trust you, and we trust the spirit of God. It is going to be placed in your hands for your action. Thank you.

BISHOP MORGAN: Bishop Dew, will the legislative committee now come? How will you make your case?

BISHOP DEW: No, the Global Nature of the Church report is coming.

BISHOP MORGAN: All right, Bishop Nacpil?

Global Nature of the Church

BISHOP EMERITO P. NACPIL (Baguio and Manilla): Bishop Morgan and members of the General Conference. When I introduced to the College of Central Conference Bishops—of the Council of Bishops in 1988 the resolution that led to the study of the global nature of the church, little did I think that it would reach all the way to the floor of the General Conference, and that I would present a progress report on it. Yet, here am I by the grace of God. Only in The United Methodist Church can such a thing happen. And I want to thank the Council of Bishops and the General Conference for this privilege.

As you all know, the 1992 General Conference asked the Council of Bishops to study the global nature of The United Methodist Church and make a progress report to the 1996 General Conference. The Council of Bishops did make the study, and it is submitting its progress report which appears on pages 168-174 of the Advantage DCA.

Three Recommendations for Global Church

The report makes three suggestions. First, it suggests that this General Conference formally take the giant step of turning transformatively in the direction of becoming a truly global church. There are cogent reasons for doing this. For example, this step is consistent with our global membership which aims at an inclusive global fellowship, our self-understanding as being a part of the universal Church, our heritage of faith which we share with all Christians, our connectional polity which extends around the globe, and our missionary perspective which sees the world as a global parish.

If we do not take this step now, this great church will most likely face the dangerous possibility of becoming fragmented into autonomous or national churches in various parts of the world, with the American segment becoming merely that, namely, an American fragment of the once future global United Methodist Church.

Surely, you do not want this church to break up into Humpty-Dumpty pieces that cannot be put together again? And so, let us go global! Move out of an American to a global map. There are proposals in the report as to how this might be done. For example, there is a proposal to create a global conference, which will deal mainly with Methodists distinctively connec-tional and leave matters distinctively national or regional to a regional conference yet to be established.

The second suggestion in the report of the Council of Bishops is to use the period of the next quadrennium, 1997 to the year 2000, as a time for perfecting the concept of the global church, developing the legislation and structures that will put it in place, and educating our constituency in the implications of a global church. These are tasks not easily done, and they require adequate time and wisdom to do them well.

The third suggestion of the Council of Bishops report is the creation of a task force suggested to be called a Connectional Transition Team, appropriately composed and duly authorized to do the work described generally in the second suggestion of the report. The work of this task force will be reported to the General Conference in the year 2000 for consideration and action. Hopefully, we shall enter the next millennium renewed, inspired, strengthened, and prepared to face its challenges.

The Council of Bishops has worked closely with the General Council on Ministries in doing its work and developing its report. Now it finds its work and report absorbed into the Connectional Issues Study as now reported to you by the Legislative Committee on General and Judicial Administration. Our suggestions have been incorporated in this legislative committee report. This is as we had hoped it would be. We desired from the beginning to present to the General Conference one coherent vision for a future global church. So far, it seems that we are not so far off from succeeding. But, of course, it is for General Conference to say the final word on this matter. We trust that you too have seen the vision and will follow after it and will draw our United Methodist Church map to cover the whole wide world. Thank you. (applause)

BISHOP MORGAN: Thank you so very much for the presentation. This is something I think the chair has to call. Before we move into the legislative process which is going to take some period of time when the committee moves, I do not believe there is enough time between now and time for lunch break to do this. I've talked to the chairs, and what we will do, we will pick back up on this item. We've got several matters we got to deal with before that. But we will deal with the legislative committee now that you've made the presentation, so you'll have the continuity of doing that. I want to recognize the courtesies chairperson to introduce at this time the central conference delegates. Bill.

This is always a very important moment in the General Conference.

Introduction of Central Conference Delegates

WILLIAM B. COOK JR. (Oregon-Idaho): Thank you Bishop Morgan. We have a tradition at conference of recognizing those people who come from the central conferences. At this point, I would like to have them stand up—the bishops, the delegates, and the visitors of the central conferences, so they can be acknowledged by this our 1996 General Conference. Would all the people from the central conferences please stand? (applause) Thank you, Bishop.

BISHOP MORGAN: Thank you so very much. I recognize Arturo Fernandez from the Oregon-Idaho for a matter of personal privilege. Microphone 7, please.

ARTURO M. FERNANDEZ (Oregon-Idaho): Bishop, a Bishop Adriel de Souza Maia from Brazil would like to have the personal privilege to address the General Conference and he is seated at the back.

BISHOP MORGAN: Without objection, will you allow Bishop Adriel to come and to speak to us for a few minutes? All right. I do not hear and objection. Please come.

Strife in Brazil

BISHOP ADRIEL: [Translated from the Portuguese] Presiding Bishop of the church, of the bishops of the Methodist Church in Brazil, and the fraternal delegate to this General Conference of The United Methodist Church. Dear Presiding Bishop, dear brothers and sisters, we, the bishops and delegates from the Methodist Church in Brazil with the support of the Council of Latin American and Caribbean Bishops in CIEMAL, have come before you to share what has just occurred this last Thursday, April 18th in Eldorado dos Carajas, State of Para, Brazil, when about 200 military policemen opened fire on families of the landless movement, about 1,200 persons—men, women, children—were demanding a meeting with representatives of the government office of land reform. This incident resulted in 21 men killed, 35 wounded, and 100 have disappeared, among them, women and children. In light of this terrible episode, we ask you now for the prayers of this General Conference and ask for your support for the motion presented by delegate Arturo Fernandez. Thank you, very much.

FERNANDEZ: Bishop Morgan, delegates of the General Conference, I move the General Conference in response to this appeal by the bishops and delegates of the Methodist Church of Brazil and the Council of Evangelical Churches of Latin America and the Caribbean take the following action: One, send a letter to President Fernando Henrique, the minister of justice, Nelson Jobim, and to the president of the National Congress Jose Sarney requesting (a) government verification of the facts and the timely prosecution of those responsible for the massacre, (b), prohibition of the use of arms and all forms of violence by the government against the landless people of Brazil, (c), a celebration of the process of land reform in Brazil.

Two, a copy of this letter be sent to President Clinton, Secretary of State Christopher, the United States ambassador to Brazil, and to the Brazilian ambassador to the United States.

Three, request the General Board of Church and Society to organize a delegation to convey this action of the General Conference to the assistant Secretary of State for Latin American Affairs in the state department and to the Brazilian ambassador to the United States.

Four, request delegates and local congregations to communicate their concerns to Brazilian and United States authorities. If there is a second, I would like to add a brief word.

BISHOP MORGAN: It is supported.

FERNANDEZ: Bishop Adriel has already shared with us the tragic massacre of last week, committed in a remote area of Brazil. We are all well aware of the widespread poverty and human suffering endured by the millions of people in Latin America and the Caribbean. To their daily misery is added this kind of armed violence of which we hear little in the American media.

Let us hear the cries of those who continue to mourn the loss of their loved ones, violently sacrificed to satisfy insatiable appetites of the wealthy and powerful. I move acceptance of this motion.

BISHOP MORGAN: It's a privileged motion. Does anyone wish to speak to this? Do you wish to...are you ready to vote on it? All right, I don't see a card. All right, if you would support the resolution from Arturo Fernandez, regarding the situation in Brazil, vote when the light appears. [848 approved]

You have supported the motion: 848, yes; 58, no. [applause] Thank you, Bishop Adriel, and thank you brother Fernandez. I recognize Walter Ellisor at microphone four for a privileged matter.

J. WALTER ELLISOR (Alabama-West Florida): I have another sad report to make. Mr. Robert Powell, lay delegate of the Alabama-West Florida Conference, returned home to discover that his grandson, 20 years old, Wes Powell, had been killed in an automobile accident. I would like to request for brother Robert Powell, who is also national president of the United Methodist Men of our great church, that we send an expression of our sympathy undergirded with our love and prayers to Robert in this difficult time.

BISHOP MORGAN: Thank you. Without objection, will you do this? I see the heads nodding. It will be done. Thank you. Thank you very much. Turn to Mel Talbert, who is going—Bishop Talbert, who has a matter about the nominations. You need to pay close attention. I will, too.

Changes In Nominations for University Senate

BISHOP MELVIN TALBERT: Thank you, Bishop. Melvin Talbert, Secretary of the Council of Bishops. If you will turn in your DCA, the blue book, to page 86. We placed before you a list of nominees the other day for the University Senate. When we presented these nominees to you, the Council of Bishops, through its nominating committee, faithfully did its work. And when it came to the positions where it says "six holding other positions relative to academic or financial affairs," and you'll find that on page 86, and you'll find six positions. We interpreted that very liberally, but when these names appeared, some delegates communicated with us and challenged our interpretation of that section. They communicated to us very strongly that they thought by placing persons with CEO leadership capacity and seminaries into that position, from their perspective, called into conflict the spirit of this particular section.

The nominating committee met, and we talked about this; and without contesting that request, we are prepared to withdraw three names and to place in nomination, three other names. In light of this conversation and challenge, we are withdrawing the names of Donald Messer, John White, and Lovett Weems. And we're placing in their places three names that have already been nominated: Dr. Frederick Blumer, Baldwin College; Dr. Willa Bing Harris, University of Alabama; and Dr. Justo L. Gonzalez. With that before us, Mr. President, we thought it would be in the spirit of fairness if someone would, from the floor, could move that the three names we are removing: that's Messer, White, and Weems, would be nominated in the first category, six chief executive officers. We already have the bios. And that would then increase your competition in that area, but it would simply not bounce them from the list altogether. With that in mind, I present these nominations.

BISHOP MORGAN: Yes. Microphone 2.

MICHAEL J. COYNER (North Indiana): I move that the names of Messer, White, and Weems be moved to the category of CEO.

BISHOP MORGAN: All right, that's the nomination. All right. Now, it's properly nominated. We do not need to take action. Those biographies will be in the DCA tomorrow. All right, if you will approve. Is there—yes? We will vote on it. Microphone 2.

NANCY CARRUTH (Louisiana): Just a question, Bishop Morgan. Which category does Maxie Dunnam, who was nominated from the floor, fall under? CEO or other?

BISHOP TALBERT: We did not deal with that. That was a nomination from the floor.

BISHOP MORGAN: What we are dealing with now are the nominations of the bishops. They erred. The floor nominations are in order. Nancy, is that OK? You understand what I am saying? What he is talking about are the three that the Nominating Committee from the Council of Bishops made that were in error. And now nominations have been made to put them in a general category. Dr. Dunnam will be in another category. Yes? In the back. Microphone 10. Or 7.

Nominations from Bishops or from the Floor?

JOHN HORTON (South Georgia): I would speak against the motion to add these three persons to the list under CEOs, because it would have the affect of giving the Council of Bishops nine nominations in that category when they are entitled only to six.

BISHOP MORGAN: Well, this nomination comes from the floor, so it would be your nomination. So it is before you. Point of order. State your point of order at microphone one. We are not voting on these persons, we are voting on putting these persons in the nomination pool.

PORTER J. WOMELDORFF (Central Illinois): My point of order is very similar to the point just raised. I believe the motion that was just made is improper, for the reason that it moved the nominees to the other category. I think the only appropriate motion would be that these three names be considered nominated from the floor.

BISHOP MORGAN: That is the spirit of the motion as I understood it to be, and he is nodding his head. So it is in order. Yes, microphone 8. We need to move toward a vote here.

WILLIAM QUICK (Detroit): Bishop, a point of inquiry. We were set, in the agenda, to vote tomorrow on the University Senate and Judicial Council. It takes 48 hours by our rule. Do we need to suspend the rule in order that we can have that vote tomorrow? We would have to suspend the rules in order to do that, but I'm asking?

BISHOP TALBERT: If the secretary can speak to that, I think you're right.

BISHOP MORGAN: And Roger Ireson, I understand, wants to speak on microphone 15. The point that I understand Dr. Quick's talking about is the fact that you're up to vote tomorrow, and if it's in the DCA tomorrow, you won't have the time to get the bio. Is that it?

QUICK: That is correct.

BISHOP MORGAN: Roger Ireson, can you help us?

ROGER IRESON: Bishop, just a point of clarification. There's been a lot of confusion in the categories. The first set of categories are CEOs of United Methodist institutions, chief executive officers of United Methodist institutions. The second category would be all others related to educational institutions. Therefore, a person could be a chief executive officer of a state institution or another seminary that was not United Methodist, and be included on that list in the second category.

BISHOP MORGAN: All right. I think Dr. Quick's point of order is well taken. We'll either have to delay the vote a day or suspend the rules. Do you have a motion?

QUICK: Bishop, I think there is a motion on the floor. I would like to make a motion when you dispose of this nomination.

BISHOP MORGAN: All right. I'll return to you. Yes. We're on the motion to add these persons to the nomination pool.

JUNE McCULLOUGH (Southern New Jersey): Bishop, I'm in the Discipline on page 570 in the paragraph "referred to," and it seems to me that the Discipline is clear that those nominations could only have been made the other day when these persons were first submitted. It says "at the same daily session at which the above nominations are announced, additional nominations may be made from the floor, but at no other time." I don't know whether we can suspend the Discipline to receive these nominations.

BISHOP MORGAN: I think the point is well taken. I think we're trying to get out of a dilemma. These people were nominated the other day and we're just moving their category to another category. Yes. Right here, microphone 7, can you help us?

SARAH S. MILLER (Wyoming): Yes. The Judicial Council nominees need to be in for 48 hours, I don't see that same language for the University Senate, so I think, in terms of the time, I think we're OK.

BISHOP MORGAN: All right. Thank you. Listen, are you ready to vote on this matter? You can declare yourself by the way you vote. If you would support the recommendation to add these three to the general pool, vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 677; no, 229]

We're moving toward...yes, here in the middle...toward adjournment for lunch. You know we've shortened your lunch hour. And I have identified this person right here in the middle to go to microphone 8 and I will go to you next, Ann. If you'll move to microphone 8. I'll turn to the secretary for announcements in a moment.

LUCILLE V. VANZANT (Oklahoma): Bishop, in light of our tornadoes in my state of Oklahoma, as well in the state of the First Lady, I wonder if the conference can pause just a minute, either this morning or this afternoon, to offer up a prayer for those victims who have been caught by this disaster.

BISHOP MORGAN: And Kentucky, I'm going to call, in a moment, on Bishop Onema to come and close a prayer, and if Bishop Onema could include that. I turn to microphone 8 now. Thank you Lucille, we will certainly do that.

Sand Creek Apology

ANN SAUNKEAH (Oklahoma Indian Missionary): I'm acting on behalf of Rev. Alvin Deer who is ill and at the emergency room at this time. I am addressing Consent Calendar Item 250, the Sand Creek apology, found on page 154 of the blue DCA. The full text can be found in the white DCA on page 1373.

The 1996 General Conference of The United Methodist Church, the elected representatives of the tribal government of the Cheyenne and Arapahoe tribes of Oklahoma wish to make known to this assembly, our heartfelt gratitude to the Rev. Alvin Deer for his presentation of the three resolutions on your agenda that relate to our tribes. The Rev. Deer is knowledgeable of the circumstances that pertain to the subject matter of these resolutions.

Each of us has reviewed the information and intent of the resolutions, and we individually, as tribal members, and collectively as the governing body of the tribe, support and endorse this effort. We wish to thank you for this time and consideration. The gesture encompasses the historic past as well as the future of our tribes.

Although the Sand Creek Massacre occurred over 130 years ago, the horrors and the terror of that tragic day are never completely out of our hearts and minds. Fort Reno is also a part of our history, but it also offers opportunities to the future. With these comments, we await the recommendations of the esteemed assembly. Charles Surveyor, Archie Hoffman, Lightfoot Hawkins, Robert Tabor, and James Pedro. Also with us at this time is Patrick Spotted Wolf, Arapahoe tribal chief, and Lawrence Heart, Cheyenne tribal chief. Thank you.

BISHOP MORGAN: Thank you Ann. We are moving toward time for the lunch break, and I need to turn, as the Order of the Day, unless you are going to extend the time. Is there any wish to do that? I do not hear that. I am going to turn to the secretary now. And if Bishop Fama Onema will move here to dismiss us for the announcements.

CAROLYN MARSHALL: There are several for our attention at this particular time. In light of the action which we have just taken, as far as the nominees for the University Senate, the bios for all of those, not required by the Discipline, but provided as a result of the action which was taken at the 1992 General Conference, will be published in the DCA tomorrow.

Also, to bring to our attention once more, that of the bios which have been published for the Judicial Council, that for Terrell Sessums, the last name of Sessums has been misspelled, and should be "Sessums." Please make note of that.

BISHOP MORGAN: Thank you, Carolyn. Now. Yes.

MARSHALL: Earlier this morning there was a reference made to the number of names, signatures, which were required to remove some action from the Consent Calendar. Please note that that remains at five names. The action that was taken yesterday noted that 10 names or 10 votes was simply on votes, number of votes as far as placement on the Consent Calendar, not for those for removal.

The note that the local church legislative committee will meet in room 207 at 1:30 this afternoon for a brief meeting. And also that the Church and Society Legislative Committee will meet this evening upon adjournment from the plenary. The choir, which we heard this morning, the Indonesian choir of the Methodist Church of Indonesia, will be giving a concert at 1:15 this afternoon, 1:15 in the area downstairs just near the ballrooms.

And a final one, those of you here who are involved in the ecumenical luncheon, just upon adjournment now, please make note of the change in location. The ecumenical luncheon will be held in room A210, A210 for the ecumenical luncheon. Thank you, Bishop.

BISHOP MORGAN: Yes. And we will reassemble at 2:00, not 2:30, 2:00 today. Bishop Onema, if you will dismiss us with prayer.

BISHOP ONEMA: [prayer in French]

BISHOP MORGAN: Adjourned.

Strengthen your leadership skills

Focusing on leadership within church structures, Douglas W. Johnson contends that growing into a leader is a personal experience that can be aided—but never dictated—by someone else's experience. He offers directions, proposals, and suggestions from which laypersons can experiment and adapt until they find the patterns that work best for them.

Readers will learn how to recognize leadership traits in themselves and others, as well as how to develop the skills to use those leadership traits for the benefit of the church.

Once, it took only 12 apostles on foot to tell the story of Jesus Christ to the known world. Today that communications task is much more complex.

United Methodist Communications (UMCom) helps the church tell its story to itself and to the world. Through UMCom, the church stays on the cutting edge of all areas of communication—radio, television, print, video presentations, communications planning, marketing and computer usage, to name a few.

To make this expertise readily available throughout the denomination, UMCom maintains a regionally-based field staff. These individuals work closely with annual conferences and districts to meet communication challenges. Conference staff, bishops and district superintendents are encouraged to contact their field staff representative for

First Lady's Visit a Joyous, Historic Event

Sleepy-eyed delegates received a "wake-up call" as they entered the General Conference plenary hall Wednesday morning. The Lovers Lane [United Methodist Church] jazz band played with vigor and style. Led by Terry Price, the group's home base is Dallas. (See separate worship story.)

Presiding Bishop George W. Bashore, Pittsburgh Area, urged delegates to use the time of one-on-one reflection and prayer to "emphasize the positive" and to celebrate the many good things God is doing in the church and world, as well as their concerns for the conference.

Giving quick approval to a lengthy Consent Calendar, the conference began electronic voting for new Judicial Council members who will serve until the year 2000. Elected were clergy members C. Rex Bevins, Nebraska, and John G. Corry, Tennessee, and lay members Sally Curtis AsKew, North Georgia, and Tom Matheny, Louisiana. A Judicial Council member since 1972, Mr. Matheny has served as president since 1976.

Retired Bishop Paul W. Milhouse gave a capsule history of the Evangelical and United Brethren churches which came together 50 years ago to form the Evangelical United Brethren Church, a forerunner of The United Methodist Church. Celebrations are scheduled this summer in Johannesburg, Pa., and Dayton, Ohio.

A Conference Moment

"I am particularly indebted to the many people who taught Sunday school and Vacation Bible School. I can remember the lessons there, sometimes more vividly than what I have read or seen just last week."

The conference also elected, by a show of hands, members of the General Commission on the General Conference nominated by the Council of Bishops. (See page 25, DCA).

Despite a down-sizing mood, the conference created a new General Commission on United Methodist Men which must be self-sustaining by the year 2000. Proponents saw this as a valuable challenge. United Methodist Men (UMM) is currently a division of the General Board of Discipleship. Funding to the board for UMM will transfer to the new commission until it becomes self-sustaining.

The National Association of Korean-American United Methodist Churches had petitioned for creation of three Korean-American missionary conferences. After lengthy discussion in the Committee on Conferences, an alternate proposal was brought, creating an inclusive task force to "conduct a comprehensive study of the concerns and needs presented by" the petition. Delegates approved a $200,000 study budget. The General Board of Global Ministries will administer funds and oversee the task force's work. A report and recommendations will come before the 2000 General Conference.

Visit of Hillary Clinton

Anticipation was high as a record 2,700 visitors joined delegates for the historic afternoon session to hear U.S. First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton address the General Conference. Presiding Bishop S. Clifton Ives, West Virginia Area, called on Bishop Hae-Jong Kim, New York West Area, for the opening prayer.

As the 2 p.m. hour drew closer, William K. Quick, clergy delegate, Detroit Conference, shared a history of relationships between American Methodism and the White House. "We are about to hear from the most forthright Methodist witness in the White House in 95 years," he concluded.

A thunderous, standing ovation greeted Mrs. Clinton's arrival. The "first lady's bishop," Richard B. Wilke, Arkansas Area, introduced her. He recalled Mrs. Clinton's role as a "vibrant and vital" member of First United Methodist Church, Little Rock.

A lifelong United Methodist, Mrs. Clinton said growing up in the church helped her understand "the connection between my personal faith and the obligations I faced as a Christian, both to other individuals and to society."

Turning to her concern for world problems and especially children, Mrs. Clinton said, "It is easy to complain about the problems we face. It is harder, but far more rewarding, to roll up our sleeves and work together to solve them." She urged delegates and visitors to "act outside the church as we try to act inside the church" and open the doors "to all those John Wesley sought out."

The full text of the first lady's address appears in the proceedings printed in the DCA. Audio tapes and printed copies are available at the DCA sales booth. Videotapes may be purchased in the Cokesbury display area.

Shalom Zone Report

Following recess, delegates received an upbeat report on the Shalom Zone initiative launched by the 1992 General Conference as a response to the Los Angeles riots of that year. Bishop Felton E. May, Harrisburg Area, said: "Shalom is on the loose." He cited a string of statistics, including 800 people trained, 250 churches involved, 71 ecumenical ventures and 24 annual conferences with Shalom sites. A video described specific projects. The initiative has "set in motion one of the most powerful strategies for church and community revitalization," the bishop concluded. Future plans call for 300 sites by the year 2000.

The remainder of the afternoon was devoted to extensive debate on the first of several key votes on the church's stance on homosexuality. Delegates voted (60.4 percent) to retain the present language in the Social Principles calling homosexuality "incompatible with Christian teaching." A proposal from the Christian Social Concerns Legislative Committee would have dropped that language in favor of a more general statement recognizing differences of opinion on the issue. It had passed the legislative committee by only one vote and was defeated in the plenary 577 to 378.

As the evening session began, a joyous reception was given to the arrival of Bishop Arthur F. Kulah, Liberia Area. His safety was a matter of grave concern as the conference opened. Bishop Kulah tearfully told the conference of the six-year devastation of his country and his people by warring factions. He decried the fate of a country "so rich in natural resources but poor in human relationships.

"Do not give up on Liberia," he concluded, "for our hope is in Jesus Christ, and we, too, will rise from darkness to light."

The conference then turned to legislative proposals related to the bishops' Study on Ministry. After some 30 years of continuing ministry studies, delegates agreed to drop the longtime practice of sequential ordination and established two permanent orders of elders and deacons. The assembly also rejected proposals for a lay ministry steward.

Assembly Holds Line on Homosexuality

(UMNS) An attempt to soften The United Methodist Church's proscription against homosexual practice was defeated April 24 by a 378-577 vote.

Delegates rejected a proposal to change the assertion that homosexuality is "incompatible with Christian teaching" with the acknowledgment that United Methodists are "unable to arrive at a common mind" on the subject.

The defeated proposal is almost identical to one considered by the 1992 General Conference. During that session, a four-year study committee also asked delegates to add the "not of a common mind" phrase, but that proposal failed.

With Wednesday's action, the current language in the Discipline stands: "Although we do not condone the practice of homosexuality and consider this practice incompatible with Christian teaching, we affirm that God's grace is available to all."

During the impassioned, 90-minute debate on the subject, supporters of the failed proposed change called the church to "humility." Iowa clergy delegate Merlin J. Ackerson, who presented the proposal, said: "Some of us think that homosexuality is incompatible with Christian teaching; others think it is acceptable in covenantal relationship. This is who we are."

Noting that Jesus himself never spoke on homosexuality in the Bible, Mr. Ackerson urged delegates to accept the Church and Society Legislative Committee's recommendation to adopt language that would admit that ambiguity.

However, the Rev. David Seamands, a retired seminary professor from Nokomis, Fla., presented a minority report that called for retention of the "incompatibility" clause. He said changing the language would be a rejection of "a basic, bottom-line, biblical stance." He also claimed that to condone homosexual practice would be to "reject the biblical standards for all sexual behavior," including that for heterosexuals.

Along with Mr. Seamands, delegates opposing the change cited biblical prohibitions from the Old Testament. The Rev. Mpanga Ngeleka of Zaire, citing Leviticus 18:22, said: "We cannot be divided on the issue of homosexuality. Just as we help people who use drugs and alcohol, we can try to help heal homosexuals, but the Bible is clear: it is wrong."

During the debate, several attempts were made to strengthen the majority report (to include the "not of a common mind" phrase) or soften the minority report (to retain the "incompatibility" language).

Lay woman Nancy D. Duel of Arlington Heights, Ill., rejected the idea of "saying which side is the majority and which is the minority." Such language "defeats the purpose" of claiming a spirit of humility and reconciliation, she said.

First Lady Praises United Methodism for Its Role in Her Faith Journey

In a historic address before the 1996 General Conference, Hillary Rodham Clinton told an enthusiastic Denver audience of United Methodism's influence on her "faith journey."

During an introduction by Arkansas Area Bishop Richard B. Wilke, and Mrs. Clinton's 30-minute address, delegates learned of her long association with the denomination including her baptism at Court Street United Methodist Church, Scranton, Pa.; her childhood experiences at First United Methodist Church, Park Ridge, Ill.; and her current association with Foundry United Methodist Church, Washington, D.C.

"I am particularly indebted to the many people who taught Sunday school and Vacation Bible School," said Mrs. Clinton in her April 24 address. "I can remember the lessons there, sometimes more vividly than what I have read or seen just last week. How many times did I sing the song, 'Jesus Loves the Little Children of the World — red and yellow, black and white, they are precious in His sight.' Those words have stayed with me more personally and longer than many earnest lectures on race relations. And to this day I find myself wondering how anyone who ever sang them could be prejudiced against any group."

Mrs. Clinton told the crowded assembly hall she "almost couldn't even list all the ways" the church influenced her. "It taught me practical lessons as well," she said. "For example, how to recover from the embarrassment of passing out in an overheated sanctuary when I was playing an angel during the Christmas pageant."

Discussing her youth, Mrs. Clinton told of opportunities provided by her pastor to leave her "middle-class, all-White suburb of Chicago" to go into "the inner city, to have exchanges with church groups of Black and Hispanic children and to babysit for migrant workers.

The first lady also expressed gratitude for the fact that her daughter is now having similar experiences at Foundry Church. "Just this past year Bill and I went to a meeting of the teen-age Sunday school group where the teen-agers talked about what bugged them about their relationships with their parents. And it helped to have another child say what your own child didn't want to say to you directly. It was one of the many experiences that we have had because of the loving and faithful adults who care for young people in the [United] Methodist Church."

Turning her attention to the need for society to care for the marginalized, the author of It Takes a Village, said:

"Here in the United States and certainly in the other countries represented here, we see too many children and people who remain on the margins of society. We see children who are unloved, unfed, unhealthy and un-schooled. We see women and people of color who are marginalized because they are denied the opportunities they deserve to become full participants in society. Those are the continuing challenges, and yet we now know much more about what we can do together to meet those challenges. Despite the problems of poverty and illiteracy and violence, there are solutions being born . . . in churches and communities throughout the world."

Visitors and delegates alike applauded her observation: "It is easy to complain about the problems we face; it is harder but far more rewarding to roll up our sleeves and work together to solve them." She said all of us need to follow the golden rule and "act on the outside of church the way we try to act inside." She praised the Council of Bishops for renewing its call to make the welfare of children a top priority.

Noting that the legislative body is struggling with "hard issues," Mrs. Clinton said one of the reasons she is a United Methodist is the fact that "disagreements are part of life. . . . It's part of how we grow together.

"In the name of Jesus Christ," she said, "we are called to work within our diversity, while exercising patience and forbearance with one another. Such patience stems neither from indifference toward truth, nor from an indulgent tolerance of error, but from an awareness that we know only in part and that none of us is able to search the mysteries of God, except by the spirit of God."

She urged the assembly to recognize that we have "much in common" and we need to "summon our energy to work on behalf of our children. If we were to do that," she said, "I know we would see changes before our very eyes. And that the church you serve, and that has served us, would continue to grow because it was serving the world, living out the gospel and being a servant for those who need to hear that message."

Following the presentation, Mollie M. Stewart, lay delegate, North Alabama Conference, presented the first lady with a commemorative hymnal and a wooden box which bears the General Conference logo. "This has been a historical moment in the life of our denomination," said Ms. Stewart. "It has been an afternoon we will not soon forget."

NCC Exec Lauds United Methodist Commitment to Ecumenical Work

"The United Methodist Church is a strong church; it is in good spirits, and its commitment to ecumenical work is very firm," according to Dr. Joan Brown Campbell, general secretary of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the USA (NCC).

Dr. Campbell attended General Conference Monday and Tuesday, along with ecumenical guests from a wide range of denominations and religious organizations. "The broad representation of global church life in the assembly is impressive," she said.

She expressed gratitude for the vote on the Covenant Communion petition. Her sentiments were echoed by Philip Jenks of the World Council of Churches, who said the proposal "is gaining . . . momentum for the ecumenical movement."

Bishop Thomas L. Hoyt Jr., Christian Methodist Episcopal Church, believes the morning's discussion of Pan-Methodism was a diversionary tactic by those who oppose the Consultation on Church Union (COCU). He noted that funding provided to implement COCU will impact the movement toward Pan-Methodism.

Because of power issues, Bishop Hoyt considers it necessary for the African Methodist Episcopal Church, the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church and the Christian Methodist Episcopal Church to come together in unity before solidifying ties with The United Methodist Church. "Issues of participation, power and authority have to be clarified," he said. "COCU has to deal with, and has dealt with, safeguards. But there must be covenanting and a contract with the people."

Dr. Campbell praised the "open and friendly" attitude evident in the General Conference. "Even though [delegates] have disagreements, they seem to be approaching one another in love."

"The conference is raising issues that matter for the future of Methodism, and the unity of the church is helpful to see," Bishop Hoyt commented. "As The United Methodist Church moves into the 21st century," he noted, "there is much evidence of a broad perspective, [inclusiveness] and an ecumenical spirit."

The proposed move of the General Board of Global Ministries was also on Dr. Campbell's mind. She also said she hopes the board will remain headquartered in New York City, where its proximity to other organizations, such as the NCC, contributes to effective interaction.

She also expressed pleasure that Albany Area Bishop William Boyd Grove will serve the NCC as head of the United Methodist participants, joining San Francisco Area Bishop Melvin G. Talbert, who recently took over as the council's president.

Coats and Cancellations

"Coats" and "cancellations" were the common words spoken in several languages by Central Conference delegates during the first day of General Conference.

Changes in itineraries delayed arrival times which, in turn, resulted in a cancellations of hotel rooms. This was particularly true, according to local committee members, if the delegates had not sent a deposit. Thanks to some quick shuffling of the roomless from hotel to hotel, most delegates had rooms by bedtime even if it meant bunking four and six to a room the first night.

Some Central Conference delegates were not prepared for the brisk mornings and cool evenings. When one of the Africa delegations requested 17 coats, local committee members answered the need within two hours. Now 45 coats that were awaiting shipment to Bosnia are being worn by delegates from Zaire and the Philippines.

While the cold might have been a problem for some, snow was the delight of others. For some delegates who took one of the mountain trips offered on special-events day, snow is a new phenomenon. "To see snow, feel snow, taste snow is a highlight," said Ntambo Nkulu, a clergy delegate from North Shaba.

Ute Minor, a German North lay delegate, has a new insight into the outreach of the denomination. "To be here with 130-some delegates from the Central Conferences and all of the U.S. delegates—that is to experience the global church," she said.

Samuel B. Villa, clergy delegate from the Philippines, said attending General Conference is an experience in "bigness." He added: "We have big hopes and aspirations."

Some delegates expressed the belief that certain topics relate primarily to situations in the United States. Although translators are provided for legislative and plenary sessions, language differences have created problems for some.

VIM and Habitat Pool Efforts, Build House

United Methodists joined with Habitat for Humanity to build a house while the General Conference is in session. More than 325 people, 155 of them United Methodists involved in Volunteers in Mission (VIM), came from nine states and 11 countries, raised this 1,200-square-foot, three-bedroom house in just two weeks. Workers came from as far away as India and Kenya and six countries in South America. U.S. teams came from the country's three corners—Florida, Vermont, Washington—and states in between, as well as several churches in the Rocky Mountain Conference, according to Jon Laughlin, VIM project coordinator and Cheyenne, Wyo., pastor.

The house will be sold to the new owners for $62,000—$35,000 in land and materials and $27,000 (estimated) in contributed labor. The new owners will have contributed 500 hours of volunteer labor before total completion. More than 75 homes have been built in the Denver area since 1979.

The "General Conference House," located at 3rd and Decatur, will be dedicated this Saturday at 10 a.m. Conference participants are invited to attend.

Lay Missioners Enrich Hispanic Ministry

Ana Velasquez Stone wears many hats. She's a teacher, a preacher and a counselor. She helps the homeless, youth and women. In many ways, she serves as a pastor, but she's not one. She is a lay missioner for the National Plan for Hispanic Ministry. Like the original lay movement that accelerated church growth during John Wesley's lifetime, the National Plan relies on lay missioners for church revitalization.

Ms. Stone illustrates how effective a lay missioner can be. As director of the multicultural program at Grace United Church (United Methodist and Presbyterian), she ministers to Hispanics in northeast Kansas City. A member of Linwood United Church, she was referred to Grace by her pastor. What started as a part-time position immediately became full time. "The need for Hispanic ministry was overwhelming," she said.

Within a year, Ms. Stone was assisting 30 to 40 families from the community. Her first task was to translate for those who did not speak English. Gradually, her work became more substantial. She began to address immediate needs, such as food and clothing. From this initial contact, the church also began to minister to spiritual needs. The result was a small Hispanic congregation.

Not quite comfortable with the responsibility of leading a congregation, Ms. Stone requested that a Hispanic pastor be appointed. The Rev. Juan Carlos Ramon was hired. Meanwhile, Ms. Stone helped create English-as-a-second-language classes, provided counseling, started a Hispanic women's support group, and began budgeting and cooking classes. She also is committed to helping youth. "One of our most exciting programs is our peace-making academy," Ms. Stone said. This eight-week summer program builds self-esteem and stresses conflict resolution and anger control.

Designed for children and youth, grades one through eight, the academy emphasizes the importance of retaining cultural identity. In doing so, Grace United Church has produced Sunday school curriculum that reflects the complexion of the community. "Working to empower the Hispanic community is what I do," Ms. Stone said proudly.

Can You Top This?

If you can't top yesterday's entries, we won't say you didn't try. Here are today's contributions. Keep them coming!

A FAMILY AFFAIR

Louisville Conference delegates Jack J. Scott (lay reserve) and Rachel Scott James (clergy) are a father-daughter team. From the Virginia Conference come lay delegates Roger C. Dowdy and Kristen E. Dowdy, another father-daughter team. Roger is attending his third General Conference, Kristen her first.

Eastern Pennsylvania Conference lay delegate Ruth Daugherty and her brother, Lee B. Sheaffer, clergy delegate, Virginia Conference, are attending their 13th General Conference.

True to the term "dynamic duo," Bill and Joan Hataway of the Texas Conference have together participated in four General Conferences. Bill served as a reserve lay delegate in 1984 and as a delegate in 1988 and 1992. This year marks a new era in the "Hataway General Conference legend" as Joan takes her turn as a first-time lay delegate.

Donald W. "Don" Underwood, clergy delegate, North Texas Conference, has a long family history of General Conference representation. His grandfather, J.E. Underwood, was elected to General Conference in the 1930s and 1940s. His father, Bishop Walter L. Underwood, was a delegate 1968-84 and was elected to the episcopacy in 1984. His uncle, Lloyd Ramer, represented the Memphis Conference 1968-76.

GOD BLESS THE SMALL-MEMBERSHIP CHURCH!

In the New England Conference delegation are two persons, both diaconal ministers, who have roots in the same 60-member church in Penobscot on the Maine coast. Dot McMahan currently is a member of Penobscot Church. Richard Gross grew up there, but now is a member of Calvary United Methodist Church, Lewiston, Maine.

Margie M. Briggs, first alternate for the Missouri West Conference comes from Creighton United Methodist Church, a 68-member congregation.

MOST DELEGATES FROM ONE CHURCH

St. Luke United Methodist Church, Houston (Texas Conference), claims three delegates and two bishops: Julian L. Byrd (clergy), Houston Area Bishop J. Woodrow Hearn, James W. "Jim" Moore (clergy), retired Bishop Benjamin R. Oliphant and Randy Smith (lay).

Claremont [Calif.] United Methodist Church is represented by one delegate, two alternates and one page who is a retired missionary from Japan. All represent the California-Pacific Conference.

Tom L. Christian, lay delegate, and Donald W. Underwood, clergy delegate, from the North Texas Conference, share the same local church—Christ United Methodist, Plano.

SOMETHING IN THE WATER?

Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss., may hold a record for educating future bishops. Claiming the United Methodist-related college as their alma mater are retirees Bishops Roy C. Clark, Bishop H. Ellis Finger Jr. and Bishop Joel D. McDavid, as well as Holston Area Bishop Clay F. Lee Jr. and Denver Area Bishop Mary Ann Swenson.

How Firm a Foundation?

The Rev. Jeanie Burton, clergy delegate, Little Rock Conference, learned just how grounded in the faith she could become during the 1996 General Conference.

During a recent lunch break, Ms. Burton was walking down 17th Street, and her mind was wandering. "I was thinking about how many coffee bars are in Denver," she admitted sheepishly. Unaware that she had walked between two saw horses tagged with yellow caution tape, she waded, ankle deep, into smooth, wet cement.

"The construction workers were trying not to laugh," she said. But when she also dropped her purse in the sticky gray goo, they quickly lost their composure.

The workers tried to remedy the situation by hosing her down a bit, "then I squished back to the hotel," she said.

The owner of the construction company has agreed to replace the ruined shoes. And as Ms. Burton heads back to Arkansas, she laments: "I've still got concrete in my toes."

Her new favorite hymns are—not surprisingly—"How Firm a Foundation," "Standing on the Promises" and "It Is Well With My Sole." Any other ideas?

'Denver Will Never Be the Same'

The good news is we will adjourn. We will get through the business.

These assurances come from Roger F. Kruse, business manager for the General Conference.

Even though Mr. Kruse is directing his first General Conference, he knows the end is near, if for no other reason than another convention is scheduled to move into the Colorado Convention Center on Sunday. The former director of a teacher's organization and professional meeting planner said he has had a lot of help to put on this "show" as he refers to the General Conference.

"I have worked with staff from the General Council on Finance and Administration who have been wonderful," Mr. Kruse said. In addition, assisting him are one full-time volunteer from Missouri, the 12 members of the volunteer Commission on the General Conference, various adjunct staff such as Mark and Laura Wharf who shepherd the pages and the marshals, travel agents and musicians.

"The host committee is wonderful, and the area committee is great," Mr. Kruse said. "They have really modeled local hospitality."

Mr. Kruse brought changes to the workings of the General Conference. For the first time, an in-house computer center and commercial print shop are available for delegates. The translation equipment was upgraded, and the addition of three languages emphasize the truly global nature of the church. In addition, travel to and from the General Conference was handled through his office, which meant delegates didn't have to purchase their own tickets.

"The biggest glitch has been with the hotel community," Mr. Kruse said, adding it has been a longstanding problem for all General Conference sessions. Traditionally, hotels who cater to conventions overbook their facilities, counting on a percentage of "no shows." Unfortunately for the hotels, United Methodists showed up. There was also a problem with the reservations made for international delegates. Another frustration was with gallery seating for conference visitors and guests.

Mr. Kruse and the Commission on the General Conference spent countless hours attending to small and large challenges — the most noticeable of which was the visit made by First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton.

"We didn't know Mrs. Clinton was coming until we got here. Her appearance was upbeat and helpful and did some good for us as a church, I think," Mr. Kruse said.

The convention center staff has been pleased to host the General Conference. "The housekeeping staff says we're the cleanest, most polite convention they've ever had," he said.

Mr. Kruse and his staff are already working on plans for the 2000 General Conference. "We started working on it as soon as we knew it was going to be in Cleveland," he said. Throughout the conference, Mr. Kruse and his staff have kept track of things that will be different in Cleveland.

"First, we'll be in an arena, so that will solve some of the visitor seating problems," he said. "I also think we'll change the floor layout and contract for longer food service hours." In addition, he plans an additional move-in day to allow for more set-up time. He'll also have more direct contact with the hotel community in an attempt to counter some of the housing problems.

"I was surprised how many people came in and thanked our staff for putting this on," Mr. Kruse said. "They realized we were rookies at this. That's been a nice surprise."

"I really love this job," he added. "Because of the witness of the General Conference, Denver will never be the same."

Words Have Limitations, Morning Preacher Asserts

In a conference nearly overwhelmed with words, Portland Area Bishop William W. Dew Jr. told conference delegates: "There are no words adequate to describe our deepest experiences or to answer our questions and doubts."

Quoting T.S. Eliot about the difficulty of depending on words to convey deep truth, the bishop said, "Words strain; crack and sometimes break under the burden, under the tension, slip, slide, perish, decay with imprecision, will not stay in place, will not stay still."

To Christians who demand dogmatic assurance that they have the right answer, he affirmed that the mystery of God surrounds us at every point. Words which are meant to convey the deep truths of God are always limited. "No one ever came into faith through reciting the words of a creed or confession," Bishop Dew said.

Giving nonverbal spirit to the worship service was the sound of big-band gospel music by the Lovers Lane jazz band from Dallas. The band gave new life to favorite hymns such as "Just a Closer Walk with Thee."

The 25-person band does not usually play for worship but gives special programs in their local church and are booked more than a year in advance in neighboring churches.

Worship leaders were liturgist Philadelphia Area Bishop Susan M. Morrison and Scripture reader Ann Saunkeah of the Oklahoma Indian Missionary Conference.

Calendar Item 103

An Amendment on Men and Women

We affirm with Scripture the basic similarity of the sexes and assert that it is human similarities and not differences that allow persons to find intimacy and partnership in accordance with God's intention. Divorce

When a married couple is estranged beyond reconciliation, even after thoughtful consideration and counsel, divorce is a regrettable alternative in the midst of brokenness. Delegates, 16-21, Offer Skill, Experience

"Don't call us youth delegates," said Janelle Thompson, Detroit Conference. "We are delegates who happen to be youth. We weren't elected because we're youth. We were elected because we have the abilities and the same voice and right to vote."

"We're full delegates," added Deborah Wilcock, Eastern Pennsylvania. "I wasn't elected because of my age. I was elected because somebody respected what I have to say. None of us speaks for the youth or young adults as a whole. The issues that are most universally important to us are the issues that are most universally important to the church as a whole."

Stefanie Gray, California-Pacific Conference, is a second-time delegate. "I feel a lot more together and more respected for what I know and what I think," she said. "I think when people are meeting . . . that youth and young adults shouldn't just fill youth and young adult slots. We young adults can serve and fill leadership positions."

Cathy Stedman, Central Illinois, is attending her first General Conference. "Before I came here, I was told General Conference was one of the few remaining democratic processes left in the United States. I agree with that. Even someone who disagrees just a little gets a chance to get their voice heard. It's an awesome process to watch and be a part of."

Jason Paulsmeyer, Missouri East Conference, is also experiencing his first conference. "I've been taken aback," he said. "There are so many people expressing so many opinions on so many issues that you have to . . . try [to] get a broad perspective before you can have any idea what the issues really are."

The delegates echoed a concern heard in Ohio West Area Bishop Judith Craig's Episcopal Address: the church's future. "We are the church of tomorrow," they said, "—and the church of today!"

General Council on Finance and Administration

Report No. 15

Response to Referrals from the 1996 General Conference

The 1996 General Conference has adopted nine legislative committee reports which call for the allocation of funds from general apportioned fund budgets. The General Council on Finance and Administration makes the following recommendations in response to those referrals.

In making these recommendations GCFA has kept within its promised "0-0-2-2" limits, which were established after listening to the church. As a result, it may not be possible to be fully responsive to concerns expressed in the various legislative committees. The "0-0-2-2" budget established after GCFA's listening process was intended to enable local churches and annual conferences to increase the percentage of apportionments paid. If the General Conference adds funds to the budget, apportionments will have to be raised. (Based on present and proposed commitments, it is estimated that the World Service Contingency balance will be $580,000 in the year 2000.)

1. National Plan for Hispanic Ministries. (Calendar No. 442, page 174; Petition #21343-GM-NonDis-OS, Advance DCA, page 771). The petition requests funding in the amount of $3,100,000 for the 1997-2000 quadrennium. The legislative committee report recommended concurrence with the petition, which was adopted by the General Conference and referred to GCFA on April 22, 1996.

GCFA, in its Report No. 1 on the World Service Fund, has recommended budgeted support for the National Plan for Hispanic Ministries within the regular budget allocations to the four general program boards, in a total amount of $2,800,000 (Advance DCA, page 287, under the heading "The Mission Initiatives Fund"). The amount allocated for this program from general apportioned funds during the 1993-1996 quadrennium was $2,716,000.

GCFA recommends that the $2,800,000 included in its existing World Service Fund recommendation be approved without change.

2. Native American Comprehensive Plan. (Calendar No. 444, page 174; Petition #21345-GM-NonDis-OS, Advance DCA, page 778). The petition requests funding in the amount of $1,200,000 for the 1997-2000 quadrennium. The legislative committee recommended concurrence with the petition, and the report was adopted by the General Conference and referred to GCFA on April 22, 1996.

GCFA, in its Report No. 1 on the World Service Fund, has recommended budgeted support for the Native American Comprehensive Plan in a total amount of $1,075,000, within the regular budget allocation of the General Board of Global Ministries (Advance DCA, page 287, under the heading "The Mission Initiatives Fund"). The amount allocated for this program from general apportioned funds during the 1993-1996 quadrennium was $1,020,000.

GCFA recommends that the $1,075,000 included in its existing World Service Fund recommendation be approved without change.

3. Historically Black Colleges and Universities Related to The United Methodist Church and the Black College Fund. (Calendar No. 452, page 175; Petition # 21280-HE-NonDis-OS, Advance DCA, page 826). The petition requested that, for the 1997-2000 quadrennium, $46,708,480 be apportioned for support of the Black College Fund. On April 22, 1996, the General Conference referred that funding request to GCFA.

GCFA, in its Report No. 3 (Advance DCA, page 293), has recommended that the 1997-2000 apportionment for the Black College Fund be in a total amount of $43,309,000. The Legislative Committee on Financial Administration, in Calendar No. 1051 (p. 333), has recommended an apportionment which totals $43,682,000 for the quadrennium.

GCFA recommends that the 1997-2000 apportionment for the Black College Fund be whichever of those two latter amounts is approved by the General Conference.

4. Executive Summary of Proposed Korean American Missionary Conference. (Calendar No. 751, page 234; Petition # 21731-CO-NonDis-OS). The legislative committee report consists of a "Resolution Strengthening Korean Ministry." It proposes the establishment of a task force to conduct a comprehensive study of the concerns and needs presented in the original petition. The task force would include fifteen persons, in specified categories, to be appointed by the Council of Bishops, plus up to three bishops.

The legislative committee report estimated that the cost of the task force's work would be $150,000. The General Conference amended the legislative committee report to request funding in the amount of $200,000; the report, as amended, was adopted and referred to GCFA on April 24, 1996.

It is the judgment of GCFA that, because of meeting cost savings resulting from reduced board membership, the General Board of Global Ministries will be able to provide for the expenses of this task force.

GCFA therefore recommends that the quadrennial total of $200,000 be provided from within the Board's existing budget.

5. Strengthening the Black Church. (Calendar No. 762, page 235; Petition # 21677-GJ-NonDis-CS, Advance DCA, page 579). The petition requested funding in a quadrennial amount of $1,779,400. The legislative committee recommended concurrence, and the report was adopted by the General Conference and referred to GCFA on April 22, 1996.

GCFA's Report No. 1 on the World Service Fund includes funding in the amount of $1,316,000 in that fund's recommended budget (Advance DCA, pages 287, 290). In Calendar No. 1810, the Legislative Committee on Financial Administration recommends funding in the amount of $1,310,000 from the World Service Fund budget.

GCFA recommends that funding for Strengthening the Black Church be in whichever of these two amounts is approved by the General Conference in its action on the World Service Fund budget.

6. Connectional Process Team. (Calendar No. 764, pages 235-258; Petition # 21676-GJ-NonDis-O$, Advance DCA, page 551). The legislative committee, in Calendar No. 764, recommended the establishment of a Connectional Process Team (CPT) of up to 38 members, plus 3 non-voting members from affiliated and autonomous churches, as a response to the GCOM's Connectional Issues Study and the Council of Bishops' study on the Global Nature of the Church. No cost estimate for the work of the CPT was included in the legislative committee report.

The General Conference adopted the report on April 23, 1996, with a recommendation that funding be provided by GCFA (DCA, page 253). Working from assumptions and cost estimates provided by GCOM, GCFA estimates that the work of the CPT will cost $660,000.

GCFA recommends that $450,000 of the estimated cost be from the Contingency Reserve line item in the World Service Fund budget, and that the remaining $210,000 be from within the approved budget of the General Council on Ministries, based on estimated meeting cost savings resulting from its reduced membership.

7. National United Methodist Native American Center. (Calendar No. 777, page 257; Petition # 22037-HE-NonDis-O$, Advance DCA, page 1356). The petition requests additional funding in the amount of $316,000, beyond current funding from the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry and the General Board of Global Ministries. The legislative committee recommended concurrence with the petition, and the report was adopted by the General Conference on April 23, 1996.

GCFA understands that, for the 1997-2000 quadrennium: 1) the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry will provide funding in the amount of $164,000; 2) the General Board of Global Ministries will provide funding in the amount of $160,000 (designated for a staff person for congregational development).

GCFA recommends that an amount of not more than $75,000 per year, for a total of not more than $300,000, be provided from the Contingency Reserve line item of the World Service Fund.

8. Commission on Union (Pan-Methodist). (Calendar No. 781, page 258; Petition # 21726-IC-NonDis-O$, Advance DCA, page 931). The petition includes a quadrennial budget estimate for the work of the Commission in the amount of $100,000, to be divided among the four denominations. The legislative committee recommended concurrence with the petition, and the report was adopted by the General Conference on April 23, 1996.

Based on the formula by which expenses of the Commission on Pan-Methodist Cooperation have been allocated among the four participating denominations, it is estimated that the United Methodist share of the expenses of this Commission on Union will be approximately $45,000.

GCFA recommends that funds to meet the United Methodist share of these expenses be from the Contingency Reserve line item of the Interdenominational Cooperation Fund budget, on recommendation of the General Commission on Christian Unity and Interreligious Concerns (Advance DCA, page 306).

9. General Commission on United Methodist Men. (Calendar No. 1681, p. 386; Petition # 20712-DI-NonDis-OS, Advance DCA, page 1285). The General Conference has adopted Calendar No. 856 (DCA, pages 310-313), setting the total membership of all general agencies at 640. The General Commission on United Methodist Men would have 43 voting members not included in that total. It appears to GCFA that these actions are in conflict, and GCFA therefore seeks specific direction from the General Conference as to how it wishes to reconcile these two actions. Until that issue has been clarified, GCFA is deferring funding recommendations related to the General Commission on United Methodist Men.

A behind-the-scenes look at Russia

Who are the Russian United Methodists? What impact is all the change having on the people of Russia? What are the problems and opportunities faced by Russian women?

Lydia Istomina, lay pastor of the First United Methodist Church of Russia in Ekaterinburg, tells about the challenges and opportunities for the church in Russia. With a church 1,000 members strong, two soup kitchens, a prison ministry, a school, a special education program for the hearing-impaired, and an out-patient clinic, United Methodists are rising to the challenges of ministry in Russia in the 1990s. With special attention to the role of women in the new Russian society, this book will be especially suited for UMW groups.

Add a paragraph at the end (bold text), so that the petition reads::

Whereas, the use of character assassination and the misrepresentation of another candidates position and record is deceptive and manipulative, preying on our worst human qualities instead of building on our best; and

~~Whereas, negative campaigning undermines the faith of the public in all political leaders and creates a climate of hostility and divisiveness, making it difficult for our elected officials to work together; and~~

Whereas, instead of distorting the truth for political gain we should speak the truth to our neighbors (Ephesians 4:25), and the General Rules of The Methodist Church condemns Uncharitable or unprofitable conversation; particularly speaking evil of magistrates or of ministers;

Be it resolved, that The United Methodist Church call upon all candidates for public office to focus their campaigns on the issues, and on their own qualifications to serve in office; that they refrain from personal attacks and name-calling of opponents; that they do not distort an opponents views by taking quotes out of context or misrepresenting the opponents positions or voting record; and that they set an example of truthfulness and integrity for the public.

Be it further resolved, that The United Methodist Church call upon all candidates for the office of President of the United States to lead the country in this style of campaigning by conducting their campaigns with honesty and respect.

Be it further resolved that the General Conference write a letter communicating this concern to the President of the United States, the both houses of Congress, and to all the National Political parties.

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

Delete the word Whereas at the beginning of the first four paragraphs and substitute a period for ; in the body of the paragraph and for the words ; and at the end of the paragraphs.

In the second paragraph, third sentence, delete a whole range of such and insert such between issues and as.

In the fourth paragraph, remove the periods in the sentences and the word The and replace them with , but these, delete nonetheless and delete in the coming national welfare debate.

Rewrite and add to the sentence which begins with Therefore, so that it now reads:

We call upon the 1996 General Conference of the United Methodist Church to adopt that the following statement, Principles of Welfare Reform, and have it be sent to the President of the United States, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and the United States Senate Majority Leader. In addition, Annual Conferences are asked to send this statement to appropriate state officials.

The statement itself was not changed.

The amended introduction now reads:

~~Whereas, a~~ people of faith and religious commitment, we are called to stand with and seek justice for people who are poor.~~Central to our religious traditions, sacred texts, and teachings is a divine mandate to side with and protect the poor.~~~~We share a conviction, therefore, that welfare reforms must not focus on eliminating programs but on eliminating poverty and the damage it inflicts on children (who are 2/3 of all welfare recipients), on their parents, and on the rest of society.~~~~and~~

~~Whereas, w~~We recognize the benefit to the entire community of helping people move from welfare into the job market when possible and appropriate.~~w~~We fear, however, that reform will fail if it ignores labor market issues such as unemployment and an inadequate minimum wage and important family issues such as the affordability of child care and the economic value of care giving in the home.~~s~~Successful welfare reform will depend on addressing these concerns as well as a ~~whole range of such~~ related issues such as pay equity, affordable housing, and the access to health care.~~and~~

~~Whereas, w~~We believe that people are more important than the sum of their economic activities.~~s~~Successful welfare reform demands more than economic incentives and disincentives. It depends on overcoming both based assumptions about race, gender, and class that lead hostile social stereotypes about people living in poverty and suspicions that people with perspectives other than our own are either indifferent or insincere. Successful welfare reform will depend ultimately upon finding not only a common ground of policies but a common spirit about the need to pursue them for all.

Whereas, The following principles do not exhaust our concerns nor resolve all issues raised, ~~The~~ but these principles will serve nonetheless as our guide in assessing proposed legislation. ~~in the coming national welfare debate,~~ We hope they may also serve as a rallying point for a common effort with others throughout the nation.

Therefore, ~~be it resolved,~~ We call upon the 1996 General Conference of the United Methodist Church to adopt that the following statement, Principles of Welfare Reform, and have it be sent to the President of the United States, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and the United States Senate Majority Leader. In addition, Annual Conferences are asked to send this statement to appropriate state officials.

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

Delete paragraph 4 and delete the word such in the first sentence of paragraph 5 so that those paragraphs will read:

...
Encouraged by demagogic politicians, mean spirited talk show hosts, and millionaire televangelists, the social contract which has bound this nation together since the Civil War is being systematically unraveled, with the result that increasing numbers of Americans are forced into poverty, unemployment, low wage jobs, and homelessness, while their children are denied the education which once promised that children of poverty could aspire to a better life than their parents. The direction is clear: as economic and social conditions worsen, those who benefit from injustice and inequality will become increasingly strident in placing blame on the poor and the powerless, and the downward spiral will continue until the nation explodes in civil unrest and the repression of a police state.

In such a climate of anger, violence and stridency, even Jesus would be derided were he to call to one of the popular talk shows and call for a rebirth of compassion. There are few politicians in either major party who are willing to challenge the ethics of selfishness, greed and scapegoating which characterize politics today. Too few voices challenge the culture of sex, violence, self-indulgence and instant gratification spewed into millions of homes 24 hours a day. ...

GUIDELINESTHE UNITED METHODIST CHURCH AND THE CHARISMATIC MOVEMENT

Copyright 1976 by Discipleship Resources

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

Since its beginning in the early 1960s, the ecumenical charismatic renewal has exerted a continuing influence upon mainline Christian bodies, both Protestant and Roman Catholic. Recent studies by George Gallup indicate approximately 18 percent of United Methodists identify with the movement.

At the 1972 session of the General Conference of The United Methodist church, the Western Pennsylvania Annual Conference brought a petition asking that a position statement be prepared on the posture of The United Methodist Church toward the charismatic movement.

A General Board of Discipleship task force consisting of Don Cottrell, director of services, Youth Ministry Coordinators; T. Poe Williams, assistant general secretary, Local Church Education Training Enterprises; Maxie Dunnam, editor, The Upper Room; Horace Weaver, executive editor, Adult Publications; and Ross E. Whetstone, assistant general secretary for Evangelism, admitted the Guidelines for consideration by the Board of Discipleship and the General Conference. The task force felt that this position statement should be couched in the context of the theological pluralism which characterizes The United Methodist Church; the current culturally conditioned demands for experiential Christianity, insofar as we respond to them with integrity; and the doctrinal statements, the General Rules and Doctrinal Guidelines as set forth in Paras. 68-70 of the 1972 Discipline.

The Guidelines portion of this paper was approved by action of the 1976 General Conference. The paper, The Charismatic Movement: Its Historical Base and Wesleyan Framework, derived by the Executive Committee of the Division of Evangelism, Worship, and Stewardship and the editors from a paper by Dr. Robert G. Tuttle, is a separate piece not considered to be official in nature but commended to the church for study as background to the Guidelines.

GLOSSARY

Terminology associated with the charismatic movement is confusing because of varying usage.

Pentecostal refers to the movement which began late in the nineteenth century, resulting in the formation of a number of Pentecostal denominations in the early years of the twentieth century. Classic Pentecostalism affirms what is sometimes spoken of as initial evidence, which includes the concept of a requisite baptism in the Holy Spirit that may be expressed by glossolalia or speaking in tongues. The inference that one who does not speak in tongues is guilty of withholding a full surrender of self to the will and purpose of God can be divisive among United Methodists.

Charismatic. While in popular usage the term charismatic is often closely associated with glossolalia, or speaking in tongues, most persons within the charismatic movement recognize the importance of all the gifts of the Spirit, affirming that to each is given the manifestation of the Spirit of the common good (1 Cor. 12:7). Many elevate the gifts of prophecy, healing, tongues, and interpretation of tongues because of a conviction that these gifts have been neglected by the church and should be reaffirmed.

Charismatic Movement. Throughout this report the term charismatic movement is used to identify the movement which began about 1960 in mainline Christian bodies, both Protestant and Roman Catholic, reemphasizing the importance of the gifts of the Spirit in the life of the church.

In a biblical sense there is no such person as a noncharismatic Christian, since the term charismata refers to the gracious gifts of God bestowed upon all Christians to equip them for ministry. The terminology above is used throughout this paper as a concession to popular usage.

GUIDELINES

We believe the church needs to pray for a sensitivity to be aware of and respond to manifestations of the Holy Spirit in our world today. We are unmindful that the problems of discrimination between the true and fraudulent are considerable, but we must not allow the problems to paralyze our awareness of the Spirit's presence; not should we permit our fear of the unknown and the unfamiliar to close our minds against being surprised by grace. We know the misuse of mystical experience is an ever-present possibility, but that is no reason to preclude authentic and appropriate relationships with the Spirit.

In facing the issues raised by charismatic experiences, we plead for a spirit of openness and love. We commend to the attention of the church the affirmations of First Corinthians 13, as well as the 1972 Discipline of The United Methodist Church, Para. 70: United Methodists can heartily endorse the classical ecumenical watchword: In essentials, unity in non-essentials, liberty; and, in all things charity (love that cares and understands). Without an active, calm, objective, and loving understanding of the religious experience of others, however different from ones own, reconciliation is impossible.

The criteria by which we judge the validity of another's religious experience must include its compatibility with the mind and the spirit of our Lord Jesus Christ, as revealed in the New Testament. If the consequence and quality of a reported encounter with the Holy Spirit be manifestly conducive to division, self-righteousness, hostility, and exaggerated claims of knowledge and power, then the experience is subject to serious question. However, when the experience clearly results in new dimensions of faith, joy, and blessings to others, we must conclude that this is what the Lord hath done and offer him our praise.

Guidelines for All

I. Be open and accepting of those whose Christian experiences differ from your own.

II. Continually undergird and envelop all discussions, conferences, meetings, and persons in prayer.

III. Be open to new ways in which God by his Spirit may be speaking to the church.

IV. Seek the gifts of the Spirit which enrich your life and you for ministry.

V. Recognize that, even though spiritual gifts may be abused, this does not mean that they should be prohibited.

VI. Remember that, like other new movements in church history, the charismatic renewal has a valid contribution to make to the ecumenical church. For Pastors Who Have Had Charismatic Experience

VII. Combine with your charismatic experience a thorough knowledge of, and adherence to, United Methodist polity and tradition. Remember your influence will, in large part, be earned by your loving and disciplined use of the gifts, by your conduct as a pastor of all your congregation, as well as by your participation as a responsible pastor.

VIII. Seek a deepening and continued friendship with your clergy colleagues within and without the charismatic experience.

IX. Remember your ordination vows, particularly the vow to maintain and set forward, as much as lieth in you, quietness, peace, and love among all Christian people, and especially among those that shall be committed to your charge. Also, to reverently heed them to whom the charge over you is committed, following with a glad mind and will their godly admonitions.

X. Avoid the temptation to force your personal views and experiences on others. Seek to understand those whose spiritual experiences differ from your own.

XI. Seek to grow in your skills as a biblical exegete, a systematic theologian, and a preacher in all the fullness of the gospel (Para. 304, The Book of Discipline, 1972).

XII. Pray for the gifts of the Spirit essential for your ministry; continually examine your life for the fruits of the Spirit.

XIII. Find significant expressions of your personal experience through ministries of social witness. For Pastors Who Have Not Had Charismatic Experiences

XIV. Continually examine your understanding of the doctrine and experience of the Holy Spirit so you can communicate this with clarity.

XV. Remember the lessons of church history when God's people rediscover old truths; that the process is often disquieting, that is usually upheaval, change, and a degree of suffering and misunderstanding.

XVI. Seek firsthand knowledge of what the charismatic renewal means to those who have experienced it. Keep your judgments open until this firsthand knowledge is obtained (i.e., by attending and understanding their prayer meetings, etc.). Then observe and respond as a Christian, a United Methodist minister, and as a sympathetic, conscientious pastor. Keep an openness to scriptural teaching regarding the charismatic gifts.

XVII. When speaking in tongues occurs, seek to know what it means to the speaker in his or her private devotional life and what it means when used for intercessory prayer, especially in group worship. We should be aware that speaking in tongues is considered a minor gift of the Spirit by many who have charismatic experiences.

XVIII. Seek to know the meaning of the other gifts of the Spirit in the charismatic experience, such as the utterance of wisdom, knowledge, the gift of faith, healing, miracles, or prophesying.

XIX. United Methodist pastors should be intentional about the benefits to be derived by a mutual sharing of a variety of experiences which have biblical support. Accordingly, the pastor should seek to keep all meetings called for prayer and fellowship open to all interested members of the congregation.

For Lait Who Have Had Charismatic Experiences

XX. Remember to combine with your enthusiasm a thorough knowledge of an adherence to the United Methodist form of church government. The charismatic movement is closely related to the holiness movement, which is a part of our tradition. Consult with your pastor (or pastors) and if he or she has not also had your experience, help him or her to understand what it means to you. Invite your pastor to attend your group meetings.

XXI. Pray that the Spirit will help you understand, and that he may help you to maintain empathy with your colleagues and all your fellow United Methodists.

XXII. Strive for a scholarly knowledge of scriptural content in combination with your spiritual experiences. Seek to unite knowledge and vital piety (Wesley). Strive to integrate your experiences with the theological traditions of our church.

XXIII. Avoid undisciplined diplomatic enthusiasm in your eagerness to share your experiences with others. Resist the temptation to pose as an authority on spiritual experiences. Failure in this area often causes your fellow United Methodists to accuse you of spiritual pride.

XXIV. Keep your prayer meetings and other gatherings open to all members of your congregation. When noncharismatics do attend, discuss with them the purpose of the meeting with an interpretation of the significance of the content.

XXV. Remember that there are many types of Christian experiences which lead to spiritual growth; charismatic experience is one of these.

XXVI. Accept opportunities to become personally involved in the work and mission of your own congregation. Let the results of your charismatic experience be seen in the outstanding quality of your church membership. Be an obvious enthusiastic supporter of your congregation, its pastor and lay leadership; of your district, your Annual Conference, the General Conference, and mission of each. This may well be the most effective witness you can offer to the validity and vitality of your charismatic experience. Strive to integrate your experience with the theological traditions of our church.

XXVII. It is not necessary to embrace all the usual physical and verbal expressions of Pentecostalism. These singular expressions may at times be a barrier to your witness.

XXVIII. Keep your charismatic experience in perspective. No doubt it has caused you to feel that you are a better Christian. Remember that this does not mean you are better than other Christians, but that you are, perhaps, a better Christian than you were before. For Laité Who Have Not Had Charismatic Experiences

XXIX. In our Western tradition, we believe God is constantly seeking to renew his church, including The United Methodist Church. Pray that God may make known to your own place in the process of renewal. The advent of the Charismatic movement into our denomination is only one aspect of renewal.

XXX. Should some fellow members of your congregation have charismatic experiences, accept them as Christians. Should it edify, thank God.

XXXI. Be aware of the tendency to separate ourselves from those who have experiences which differ from our own. Observe personally the charismatics in their prayer meetings, in your congregation, and in the mission of your church. Examine scriptural teaching about this. Pray about it. Discuss your concern with your pastor. The United Methodist Church is theologically pluralistic.

XXXII. Do not be disturbed if your experience is different from others. This does not mean that you are an inferior Christian. Your function in the work and mission of your congregation calls for many gifts (1 Cor. 12-14). Each Christian is a unique member of the body of Christ.

XXXIII. Should your pastor be a charismatic, help her or him to be mindful of the spiritual needs of all the congregation, to be a pastor and teacher to all, and encourage her or him in preaching to present the wholeness of all aspects of the gospel. For Connecional Administration

XXXIV. Refer prayerfully and thoughtfully to the other sections of these Guidelines.

XXXV. Remember your pastoral responsibilities toward ordained persons and congregations within the connection, particularly toward those whose spiritual experience may involve charismatic gifts.

XXXVI. Each administrator should consider whether any teaching or practice regarding the charismatic movement involving an ordained minister of a congregation is for the edification of the church.

XXXVII. If there is divisiveness involved in a particular situation, make as careful an evaluation as possible, remembering that there are other kinds of issues which may divide our fellowship. Sometimes tensions and conflicts may result in the edification and greater purity of the church and need. Therefore, to be handled wisely and prayerfully by all concerned.

XXXVIII. Administrators and connectional bodies will be required to deal with expressions of the charismatic movement. We urge all involved to seek first-hand evidence about the movement, its meaning for those involved in it, and its value of the particular congregation.

XXXIX. Where an ordained person seems to overemphasize some charismatic doctrines/practices, she or he should be counseled to preach the wholeness of the gospel, to minister to the needs of all the congregation, and as a pastor to grow in understanding of our polity in the mission of the particular Annual Conference.

XL. Annual Conferences may also be faced with a situation where there is a charismatic group within a congregation whose pastor, or whose lay leadership, or both, may be hostile to or ignorant of the charismatic movement. The Annual Conference Board of the Ministry, the bishop, and the district superintendent have a pastoral responsibility to mediate and to guide in reconciliation.

XLI. Pray continuously for sensitivity to the will of, and the leading of, the Holy Spirit.

THE CHARISMATIC MOVEMENT ITS HISTORICAL BASE AND WESLEYAN FRAMEWORK

Within the last quarter of the twentieth century we have witnessed a unitarian emphasis on the fatherhood of God, a radical evangelical faith in the person of Jesus Christ, and the charismatic expression of the Holy Spirit. Charismatic gifts and experiences, however, are not new to the church. History has revealed certain manifestations of the gifts and experiences of the Spirit, in every century since Pentecost.

In our own time, the work of the Holy Spirit is apparent. Increasingly, United Methodists are holding healing services, participating in prayer and praise groups, and attending Holy Spirit conferences across the country. Interest is high, with testimonies coming from bishops, lay persons, district superintendents, seminary professors, and local pastors. Yet many United Methodist charismatics feel isolated and misunderstood; many non-charismatics feel threatened and/or alienated and hostile. If we can gain perspective from our Wesleyan heritage significant contribution to the charismatic movement reconciliation can take place.

Azusa Street, where American Pentecostalism was launched, is to this moment what Aldersgate is to Methodism. The Pentecostal doctrine of subsequence was derived from Wesley's teachings concerning the second blessing, or entire sanctification.

The Historical Base

Methodism provides a highly important tradition for the student of charismatic origins. Wesley's theology of grace is in fact a theology of the Holy Spirit. The terms grace and Holy Spirit are associated in all of Wesley's writings. Although Frederick Dale Bruner exaggerated a bit to insist that the Pentecostal/charismatic movements are primitive Methodisms extended incarnation, the fact remains that eighteenth century Methodism gave rise to the nineteenth century American holiness movement, which gave rise to the twentieth century Pentecostal/charismatic phenomena. It was the eighteenth century Methodist quest for an instantaneous experience of sanctification, or second work of grace (rightly or wrongly interpreted), that inspired the nineteenth century American holiness movement. Revivalists like Charles Finney (born in 1792, the year after Wesley's death) used Wesley's theological writings as grist for a holiness emphasis designed to revive religion in America. Although Finney's methodology was more significant than his theology upon the Pentecostal/charismatic movement, his popularization of the phrase baptism of the Holy Ghost had a close parallel to the Pentecostal emphasis arising out of Azusa Street.

There is some question whether Pentecostalism per se would have occurred had the holiness tradition retained its influence within the local church. By the turn of the twentieth century, however, the decline of Wesley's emphasis on perfection among Methodists, the development of theological views in response to changing cultural conditions, and the apparent wealth and worldliness of the church created considerable spiritual insecurity.

It was also a period of tremendous social change. The American scene was shifting rapidly from an agrarian to an industrial society. The move was from a rural to an urban-centered population, from a relatively homogeneous to a poly-genetic people. Anticolonialism was giving way to imperialism, and the laissez-faire policy to the first stages of governmental social regulation. Those changes registered shock most severely, accordingly to W. G. McLoughlin, on the "country-bred, evangelically oriented, intellectually unsophisticated and sentimentally insecure individuals who made up the bulk of the nations churchgoers.

Many, however, sensed the need to individualize and to create an excitement for the Christian faith in a depersonalized civilization. Pentecostalism, viewed by some as closely akin to a Methodist experiential theology and a revivalist experiential methodology, was to meet that need, at least in part, and to find response in an experience-hungry world.

Pentecostalism might never have severed itself from mainline denominations, and revivalism might have remained within the established churches, had not many Christians overreacted. The social gospel, born out of revivalism, aligned itself with a more liberal tradition which saw the necessity of stamping out anything that was suggestive of the priest and Levite bypassing suffering humanity. The church became polarized in response to the Pentecostal emphasis. The Pentecostal doctrine, which insists on speaking in tongues as initial evidence of baptism in the Holy Spirit, remains divisive to the present time.

Pentecostal beginnings were spontaneous, scattered, and little noticed. As early as 1896 some revivalists reported experiences of glossolalia in North Carolina. It was not until 1900, however, that any significance was attached to this experience. Charles F. Parham, a young Methodist minister frustrated by the sterility of his own ministry in contract with the power of the apostles, started the Bethel Bible College at Topeka, Kansas. Parham and his students quickly identified Wesleys doctrine of subsequent instantaneous sanctification with Finneys baptism of the Holy Spirit and concluded that it should be sought with the evidence of tongues. Parham then opened a second school in Houston, Texas. Among those who came seeking the baptism of the Holy Spirit was W. J. Seymour, a black minister from Los Angeles. After several months of study and prayer he returned to Los Angeles where a revival broke out during a mission at a former Methodist chapel at 312 Azusa Street. That revival lasted three years and the American Pentecostal movement was officially launched.

About twenty-five years ago pastors and lay persons within mainline denominations began to confess experiencing various gifts of the Spirit more openly. Rather than leaving for Pentecostal congregations, they chose to remain within their established churches. Thus, the charismatic movement began when individuals across denominational lines Protestant and Roman Catholic realized that they shared common experiences. While continuing to support their local churches, they began meeting to discuss those experiences openly.

There are several areas where charismatics identify with their Pentecostal cousins the emphasis on religious experiences beyond conversion with an openness to spiritual gifts, for example. But there are significant differences as well. Pentecostals organize their converts into separate churches; charismatics do not. Charismatics encourage their number to remain within their local churches. Pentecostals have a fairly well-defined theological system. They maintain, for instance, that subsequent to justification there is an instantaneous sanctification experience known as the baptism of the Holy Spirit which must be confirmed by speaking in tongues. Charismatics do not. Although charismatics are open to all spiritual gifts and experiences subsequent to conversion, they try not to isolate those gifts and experiences as marks of spirituality. They choose, rather, to interpret them in the light of their own traditions. John Wesley writes:

In [Acts IV] we read, that when the Apostles and brethren had been praying, and praising God, the place was shaken where they were assembled together, and they were all filled with the Holy Ghost. Not that we find any visible appearance here, such as had been in the former instance: nor are we informed that the extraordinary gifts of the Holy Ghost were then given to all or any of them: such as the gifts of healing, of working other miracles, of prophecy, of discerning spirits, the speaking with divers kinds of tongues, and the interpretation of tongues (I Cor. XII, 9, 10).

Whether these gifts of the Holy Ghost were designed to remain in the Church throughout all ages, and whether or not they will be restored at the nearer approach of the restitution of all things, are questions which it is not needful to decide. But it is needful to observe this, that even in the infancy of the church, God divided them with a sparing hand. Were all even then prophets? Were all workers of miracles? Had all the gifts of healing? Did all speak in tongues? No, in no wise. Perhaps not one in a thousand. Probably none but the teachers in the Church, and only some of them (I Cor. XII, 28-30). It was, therefore, for a more excellent purpose than this, that they were all filled with the Holy Ghost.

It was, to give them (what none can deny to be essential to all Christians in all ages) the mind which was in Christ, those holy fruits of the Spirit, which whosoever hath not, is one of His; to fill them with love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness (Gal. V.22-24); to endue them with faith (perhaps it might be rendered fidelity), with meekness and temperance; to enable them to crucify the flesh, with its affections and lusts, its passions and desires; and in consequence of that inward change, to fulfill all outward righteousness; to walk as Christ also walked, in the work of faith, in the patience of hope, the labour of love (I Thess. I. 3).

John Wesley, Sermons: Scriptural Christianity, Introduction, 2-4 (S, I, 92-94)

It is in a failure to see the importance of this that some charismatics get into trouble. Ideally, Presbyterian charismatics, for example, interpret their gifts and experiences in light of the sovereignty of God, Roman Catholic charismatics in light of their sacramental theology, and United Methodists in light of John Wesleys theology of grace. Problems arise when charismatics, knowingly or unknowingly, attempt to adopt a more classical Pentecostal line in conflict with their own tradition, and division occurs. Equally devastating is the circumstance in which some charismatics adopt no line at all and become floaters vulnerable to exploitation. They substitute experience for doctrine and are no longer rooted in the traditions that could sustain them.

Our task, therefore, is to provide United Methodists with a clear understanding of our heritage a heritage that will enable them to interpret charismatic gifts and experiences in a way that is healthy and sound.

A Wesleyan Framework

Charismatics interpret their gifts and experiences in light of their own traditions. When this does not occur, division and/or exploitation sets in. When United Methodists charismatics adopt a classical Pentecostal line, they are no longer United Methodists at least in the Wesleyan sense. John Wesley said:

The gift of tongues may, you say, be considered as a proper test or criterion for determining the miraculous pretensions of all Churches. If among their extraordinary gifts they cannot show us this, they have none to show which are genuine.

Now, I really thought it had been otherwise. I thought it had been an adjudged rule in the case, All these worketh one and the self-same Spirit, dividing to every man, severally as he will; and as to every man, so to every Church, every collective body of men. But if this be so, then yours is no proper test for determining the pretensions of all Churches; seeing He who worketh as He will, may with your good leave, give the gift of tongues, where He gives no other; and may see abundant reasons so to do, whether you and I see them or not. For perhaps we have not always known the mind of the Lord; not being of the number of his counsellors. On the other hand, he may see good to give many other gifts, where it is not his will to bestow this. Particularly where it would be of no use; as in a Church where all are of one mind, and all speak the same language.

Charismatics must be brought gently to an awareness of the inherent possibility of division. When United Methodist charismatics have no theological base a disease common not only among charismatics they need to know that, properly understood within the context of our own tradition, their charismatic gifts and experiences will be considered as fresh wind in a church that still has more trouble with ice than fire. John Wesley's theory of grace, properly understood, can ground charismatic United Methodists in a tradition that can give direction to their enthusiasm. Let us, therefore, reexamine Wesley's theology of grace in light of the charismatic gifts and experiences.

Wesley's theology of grace is in fact a theology of the Holy Spirit. He believed that Reformation theology was built upon the cardinal doctrine of original sin and that it is God's sovereign will to reverse our sinful, devilish nature by the work of his Holy Spirit. He called this preventing, justifying, and sanctifying grace.

Bound by sin and death, one experiences almost from the moment of conception the gentle wooing of the Holy Spirit prevenient grace. This grace prevents one from wandering so far from the Way that when a person finally understands what it means to be justified, the Holy Spirit prompts one's freedom to say yes. For Wesley, this yes was a heartfelt faith in the merit of Christ alone for salvation. It allows the Holy Spirit to take the righteousness that was in Christ and attribute or impute it to the believer justifying grace. For Wesley this begins a lifelong movement from imputed to imparted righteousness in which the Holy Spirit moves the believer from the righteousness of Christ attributed through faith to the righteousness of Christ realized within the individuals sanctifying grace.

Most students of Wesley are keenly aware of the emphasis he placed upon sanctification. It is precisely at this point, however, that we must not make the same mistake by classical Pentecostals, namely that of isolating sanctification as one other experience beyond conversion. Harald Lindstrom writes in Wesley and Sanctification that investigation of Wesley's concept of salvation has been concentrated too often on the new birth and complete sanctification (Christian perfection) as two isolated phenomena unconnected organically with this doctrine of salvation as a whole. Since both of these events in Wesley's thought may be instantaneous, the gradual process of general sanctification is often minimized. Yet Wesley's emphasis upon the gradual process is obvious, for, though entire sanctification is a possibility and goal for all believers, by far the greater number of Christian believers will always be involved in the process. Admittedly, Wesley was a bit unguarded at times when referring to sanctification as an instantaneous experience subsequent to justification. If he were writing today, he would probably place even more emphasis on sanctification as a gradual work of grace characterized by many experiences that keep conversion contemporary.

To understand Wesley's experience of entire sanctification is to know how far the Pentecostal baptism of the Holy Spirit falls short, if there are not continuing works of grace. Grace is continual, though it may be perceived episodically. In our study of the charismatic movement it is essential that we do not confuse being filled with the Holy Spirit with Wesley's mature doctrine of sanctification. The Spirit-filled life is, rather, a sustained line of gifts, experiences, and divine support, beginning with conversion, constantly moving us toward that goal.

Many charismatics have come to believe that being filled with the Holy Spirit is an experience which begins with justification and continues as a lifelong motivating experience for the believer. For the charismatic, Spirit-baptism is not one but many gifts, not two but many experiences, intended to sustain one day after day. The relevance of Wesley's doctrine can be demonstrated by his statement: The only way to keep Methodists alive is to keep them moving. Wesley took the expression moi progressus ad infinitum—my progress is without end—from Francois Fenelon, the seventeenth century theologian and mystic. Thus, United Methodist charismatics, within the context of their own rich tradition, can never interpret gifts and experiences as signs of superior spirituality making them better than others. Rather, the power of God being sustained within them makes them better than they were.

Conclusion

Pentecostals have a predictable interpretation of the Wesleyan revival. Although Pentecostalism has its roots imbedded within that tradition, it has little in common with Wesley's theology. Charismatics, on the other hand, have a point of reference for understanding their gifts and experiences in a way that is both guarded and open.

United Methodist charismatics and noncharismatics alike should be encouraged. There is no need for battle lines to be drawn. Albert Outler has stated that the charismatic movement might be the catalyst for a third great awakening. He concludes: What if their charismatic renewal should prove more than a passing fad? Would they be our allies or rivals in our commitments to a church catholic, evangelical, and reformed: catholic in its human outreach, evangelical in its spiritual outreach, reformed in its constant openness to change? If nothing comes of all this, put my comments about it down to a softening of the brain. But if something does come of it, dont say you werent warned!

There are blind spots in all of us. Charismatics, for example, have a tendency to exalt a personal gospel; noncharismatics need to remember that opposite of personal is not social but impersonal. The social dimension of the gospel does not bypass the personal; it harnesses it and rides it to the stars. It provides an opportunity for witness and service in the world. In fact, the term noncharismatic Christian is a misnomer. All Christians have gifts. Charismatic, as earlier defined, refers to those who more explicitly acknowledge and emphasize teaching concerning the power of the Holy Spirit at work within them through such gifts. Surely there are lessons to be learned as well as lessons to be taught, sometimes from mistakes and sometimes from successes. In the meantime, God help us all if we do not practice love and openness. After all, that is what the Spirit-filled life is all about.

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

Whereas, it has been our practice for two centuries to use what the ritual printed in our hymnals has referred to as the pure, unfermented juice of the grape for Holy Communion; and

Whereas, this terminology was inadvertently omitted when the present hymnal was adopted;

Therefore, be it resolved, that the 1996 General Conference restore this phrase to our ritual by ordering that the words The pure, unfermented juice of the grape or an equivalent shall be used during the service of Holy Communion be added beneath the heading of A Service of Word and Table I, A Service of Word and Table II, and A Service of Word and Table III.

And be it further resolved that this petition as amended be referred to the General Board of Discipleship and the United Methodist Publishing House of the United Methodist Church requesting that future development, writing and publication of worship resources related to the Eucharist convey responsible sensitivity and instructions on behalf of participants in Holy Communion for whom fermented elements would be a stumbling block to a drug-free lifestyle and that any future revisions of The United Methodist Hymnal and The Book of Worship convey this same sensitivity and instruction for unfermented elements in an appropriate manner.

Reported by William Reasner
Chair, Committee On Journal
(C13, seat 2)

Tuesday Afternoon April 23, 1996

Bishop David Lawson, presiding

BISHOP DAVID LAWSON (Illinois area): And now delegates to the General Conference, this session is in order. The only person who has a right to speak is the person speaking at this moment. Will you please be seated quickly so we can do our work. Thank you for moving quickly to your seats. Thank you guests for taking your seats as an example to those who were supposed to be out here. We are going to begin with some music. Thank you for leading us.

CYNTHIA WILSON-FELDER: If you have a hymnal, you will look with me at number 191 in your hymnal. We'll do "Jesus Loves Me," in the English and then we'll do the Cherokee and then the German.

(hymn)

BISHOP LAWSON: We turn now to the General Judicial Administration report. We are calling on David Severe to give us leadership at this point. David.

Introduction to Judicial and General Administration Report

DAVID L. SEVERE: (Oklahoma): Bishop and members of the conference, the members of the Judicial and General Administration legislative committee wish to express their deep gratitude for the excellent report submitted to the General Conference by the bishops and their study on the global nature of the church. As our spiritual and temporal leaders they have set a direction before us that is visionary, challenging, and sensitive to God's leading spirit in our time. We are profoundly grateful to them and are eager to lean into that future which they are discerning. We also wish to thank the members of the General Council on Ministries and the Connectional Issues Task Force, which has fulfilled the mandate of the General Conference to lead us all in a time of discernment and reflection as we seek God's new direction for the United Methodist Church into the 21st century. We commend them that they have not rushed to a judgment shaped by a change-for-change-sake attitude, nor have they under the pressure of providing a done-deal kind of package provided us with a cut and paste proposal which simply moves the blocks around, lops off a section here or there and lets it go. Rather they have offered to us an interactive process by which and through which we may all join together to discern God's stirrings in our times at all levels of our great church, from the local, the district, the conference, and the general arenas of the church. The legislative committee's report is found on page 235 of your blue DCA. It is calendar item 764. There is one correction that we need to make that is an error in the printing. If you will turn to page 253, the last four paragraphs of that page on the right hand side were to have been omitted and were so voted by the legislative committee and inadvertently were included again in the printing when it was finally done. We apologize for that, but that is not material that is before us because the substance of these paragraphs have already been incorporated in recommendations 1 and 2 from the legislative committee. They are not a part of what we are to deal with now. Using the interactive method which the CIS study describes, the sub-committee which dealt with the report took up the task of reviewing and ultimately refining the four recommendations with which they concluded that report. With great appreciation for the work of GCOM, the legislative committee voted 90 to 2 with no abstentions to receive the report. It is my pleasure to introduce Dr. Rex Bevins, the chair of the sub-committee on the Connectional Issues Study for the legislative committee, who will lead us in the presentation of the recommendations that they are making. Dr. Bevins.

REX BEVINS (Nebraska): Thank you David. Bishop and members of the conference, we now come to a crucial time of decision making regarding one of the critical issues facing this General Conference. Please note that I said, "one;" there are a number of critical issues. And as we approach this decision, we confront two major questions, I think. Can we be open to the leading of the Holy Spirit as we reshape this church that we all know and love? And in the reshaping of the church, can we create structures that are open and flexible enough to deal with the enormous changes that are taking place all around us?

Judicial and General Administration Subcommittee

I came to this General Conference skeptical about the Connectional Issues Study and its recommendations. But, I resolved to come with a commitment to lend my efforts to creating a process that would make a difference in the life of our church and to keep an open mind. And, I must say that in the discussions in our legislative committee and in the comments around the edges, my mind has been changed.

I think what we have in the Bishops' Report on the Global Nature of the Church, and also in the Connectional Issues Study are two tributaries that come together now to create a flowing stream which provides the basis for moving forward in the church and shaping it in a way that it can be relevant to the future and bring us into the 21st century with strength and vitality. In our legislative committee, we divided into three legislative groups.

I want to name the officers of the legislative committee. I served as the chair of that subcommittee, Sandra Ferguson as the vice chair, and John Cooke as the secretary. We divided then into three subcommittees, one on the Connectional Issues Study and the Global Nature of the Church, Carl Schenck chaired that committee and the vice chair was Barbara Wendland, and the secretary John Cooke. We had a subcommittee also on membership of general agencies the chair of that committee was Marcus Fang, the vice chair was Jim Holsinger, along with Anna Workman and Kathi Austin Mahle and the secretary was Elaine Stanovsky. Then, a third subcommittee was at work and some of their work is figured into this too. It was the committee on the future of the GCOM and its work, and it was chaired by Patricia Farris, the vice chair was Conrad Page, the secretary was Stan Sager.

C. REX BEVINS (Nebraska): I've chaired a few legislative committees at General Conference, and rarely have I found a legislative committee that has applied itself to, I think a very complex and difficult task, with such commitment and energy and effort. Our recommendations start on page 235; but really, much of that material has already been presented to us, so I call your attention to page 251 in the DCA. And I'll call upon Carl Schenck now, the chair of the Connectional Issues and Global Natures Subcommittee to come and lead us through recommendations one and two.

Proposal for Actions on Connectional Issues Study

CARL L. SCHENCK (Missouri East): Thank you, Rex, Bishop, and delegates. It is with real pride and pleasure that I stand before you to present the work of the sub-subcommittee that dealt with recommendations one, two, and four of the Connectional Issues Study. Those recommendations are found in your book DCA, beginning on page 251. The entire Connectional Issues report is before us. As we deal with this report, we deal in some very profound ways with the future of our church in the next millennium.

Proposed Connectional Process Team

You will find on 251 that your legislative committee has amended recommendation one; and the amended recommendation begins in the second column on page 252. This has been before you, and I would like to simply highlight a few things in recommendations one and two. You will notice that recommendation one calls for the creation of a Connectional Process Team whose work shall be limited to the 1996-2000 quadrennium; and its general task is to manage, guide, and promote the transformation of the church. That transformation comes as it manages the two streams that Rex spoke of from the Bishops' Study of the Global Nature and of the Connectional Issues Study.

Its specific purposes are listed under paragraph "A," and that is to receive the data from those two great quadrennial studies which we have before us. In point two, also, to consider all those things that have come before this General Conference. There are many petitions from many parts of the church, most particularly a great number from the Western North Carolina Conference, that touch on the work of this report and this proposed Process Team. If you adopt this report, it will commend all of that material to the Process Team as it establishes itself and does its work across the quadrennium.

On point six of "A" you will notice that its mode is to be an interactive organizational process to clarify the mission of the general boards and agencies for their work in supporting and resourcing the church, and to seek ways to develop the most faithful structure for our denomination and its witness for the century ahead. In point eight, you will notice again that it calls upon development of structural forms and, in point nine, leans upon the regional and Global Nature of the Church. In point ten, then, there's a call for affiliate and autonomous churches to dialogue with us. And one of my great hopes and dreams would be that, perhaps through this effort, our church would become global in such a way that many of our brothers and sisters in Christ who did not have the freedom to develop Wesleyan structures and styles appropriate to their own context within our current Discipline would find in a new form the opportunity once again to be a part of one broad United Methodist Church across the globe.

Membership of Connectional Process Team

Section "B" has to do with the proposed membership of the CPT. It will have 31 members plus up to seven additional members for inclusion and expertise. The 24 basic members will come from the five geographical jurisdictions in the U.S. and from the five continents around the world where our church is heavily represented. There will be in sub-paragraph two, as I said, up to seven additional. There will be six bishops, half from the U.S., half from the central conferences; a person linking to GCFA; and in paragraph five of section "B" the requirements for inclusiveness, including the requirement that the majority of the members shall be lay.

All of these folks, if you adopt the report, will be nominated by us here during this week by the Council of Bishops and will be elected by the General Conference. And the CPT will belong to the General Conference. It will not belong to any board or agency. It will be elected by you, and it will belong to this house until it reports at the next General Conference.

Paragraphs "C" through "G" address various ways in which the group will organize for its work, and I won't review them. And those paragraphs then end recommendation one.

Bishop, should we look at recommendation two and on through? How do you wish to do this?

BISHOP LAWSON: It is my understanding that we have a minority report attached to your report. It would seem, then, that what you would need to do is to present your entire recommendation and follow that by the minority report, and then we'll drop into normal process.

SCHENCK: Thank you. I will present, also, recommendation two on page 253. You will note it also was substantially amended by your legislative committee; and in the bold print in the middle of the second column, you will see that it calls on this conference to approve in principle the interactive organizational process for mission and ministry. This is a principle that lifts up words that are becoming dear to us. Words like flexible, responsive, local and global, interactive, collaborative, and accountable. This is an overview of recommendations one and two.

Now I will yield to Jim Holsinger of our legislative committee who will present recommendation three. As you have heard, recommendation four was deleted by the legislative committee.

BISHOP LAWSON: Do those two recommendations represent the total of your recommendations? They do not, Jim.

Proposal to Reduce Membership of General Boards and Agencies

JIM HOLSINGER (Kentucky): Bishop, members of the Conference, if you will look at recommendation number three as it's been amended. The major issue before us in this recommendation is that this will reduce the number of individuals serving on general boards and agencies of this denomination to a maximum of 640 members. As our sub-subcommittee under the leadership of Marcus Fang worked hard on this particular recommendation, we did it with a small team that consisted of myself and Anna Workman and several individuals from the staff of the General Council on Ministries who had previously worked on this material for the Connectional Issues Task Force. Now while I am beginning this presentation, I would like for our pages to hand out white sheet number one to all the members of the General Conference.

As we worked on this particular piece, we knew that it would be impossible for us to be able to cramp this number that is recommended here and have it approved either by our legislative committee or by this body without presenting to the group the data that it took us to come to that number. If you will look on page 310 in your blue DCA, item number 856 deals with paragraph 805. This is the implementing legislation that will implement this number of 640 that is in recommendation three.

In addition, there are petitions that will implement by each general board and agency the number that will come to 640. I would add that both paragraph 805 and all the implementing legislation will be found in either today or succeeding days' consent calendars. Our work together as a task force on this sub-subcommittee was a lot of fun and a lot of hard work. We burned a lot of not just midnight oil, but 2 a.m. to 4 a.m. oil in an attempt to do this. In addition, as a sub-subcommittee, we worked very carefully together. We never took a vote on this issue. We did this by consensus, and since I am no longer a federal employee, but now am an academic, I would use the term collegial, but interactive is the style of what we are talking about today in this General Conference.

The first issue that was before us was how to size the particular pool of individuals that would come, under paragraph 805, to the general boards and agencies of the denomination.

Size Categories of Annual Conferences

You will see on the white page labeled number 1, we have amended 805 to be able to have four different categories, which have up to 75,000-member conferences; those annual conferences of 75,000 to 150,000; those from 150,000 to 225; and those that are over 225. And each conference is guaranteed five conference members who would be on one of the 13 general agencies of the church. Those with 75 to 150,000 would have an additional individual that could serve. Those with 150 to 225,000 would have two. And those with over 225,000 would have three additional over that base eight.

If you will turn the sheet over, you will see the impact of this upon the central conferences. All seven central conferences, including the new central conference of Zaire, will have five individuals, as indicated here. Those annual conferences in the central conferences with 75 to 150,000 would have one additional; those with 150 to 225,000, two additional; and the single one, North Shaba, with more than 225,000 would have three members.

We've used exactly the same numbers as we have used for the U.S. annual conferences. Now with those numbers, we were able to come up with the fact that this would increase the base number that was originally presented by the Connectional Issues Task Force by 20. We were able to spread those 20—three of which were in central conferences, 17 within the jurisdictional conferences—to arrive at a number of 420 that will appear on the next page.

Membership Distribution of Boards and Agencies

And if the pages would please hand out the buff-colored page titled number 2. As we worked on developing the specific target number of individuals per board and agency of this church in a variety of different categories, those categories are found in paragraph 805. They provide us with jurisdictional and central conference, basic and supplemental members, as you will see when you receive this sheet.

On the first line, it includes individuals from the central conferences. On the second line, those are basic members from the central conferences. In the case of the General Council on Ministries, there is a specific category of youth and young adults. Then there is a category in the implementing petitions of additional members. As you will recall we will continue to have members from the autonomous church in Puerto Rico during this next quadrennium. It includes the bishops, and for the total that you see at the bottom of that page for each general agency of the church.

As we worked on this and spread these numbers, we were able to provide this particular composite and arrive at a number of 632. Within the 640 that we are recommending that we not exceed in the third recommendation, in the Connectional Issue Study recommendations.

I will indicate to you where there are some things that may make it interesting to try to figure out exactly what we did. But, for example, the Women's Division of the General Board of Global Ministries includes 30 members elected by the Women's Division through their process. The General Board of Discipleship includes five jurisdictional United Methodist Men's presidents. And we have five jurisdictional presidents of archives and history in the 14 base members that you see there.

And in the case of the Board of Pensions, those 22 include 16 from the jurisdictions and six that are elected by the General Conference. In the case of the central conferences, as you know, seven central conferences times five base members each, should reach to a number of 35. You see 30 in that far right-hand column. If you come down in the General Board of Global Ministries under additional members there are five central conference members of that 35 that are found in addition to the General Board of Global Ministries.

As you continue to come on down, in the case of youth and young adults, the enabling legislation in 805 recommends that 10 percent of each general board and agency be youth and young adults, split as equally as possible between the two groups. In the case of the five youth and young adults in the General Council on Ministries, those are split, I think it is in the legislation, two youth and three young adults.

That 10 percent figure would carry off across the entire page, and would represent about 56, at a minimum, youth and young adults, depending upon how one rounds down odd numbers, or rounds them up. It could be obviously much beyond that.

Legal Requirements for Membership of Pensions and Publications

In the case of two boards, publications and pensions, both of their young adult or youth members would be young adults because these are corporate boards that require individuals being over age 18 to serve.

Additional members, are as you see in front of you, seven members from the Puerto Rico autonomous church. There are 51 bishops assigned to these 13 boards. We reached that number by working very hard to make sure that we were looking at the oversight responsibilities of our episcopal leaders. In the case, for example, of the General Council on Ministries, there would be one bishop from each of the five jurisdictions and one from the central conference.

In the case of the General Board of Global Ministries, there would be one from each of the five U.S. jurisdictions plus three central conferences. And then for the other three large program boards, Church and Society, Higher Education and Ministry, and Discipleship, we would expect that the bishops would elect five from the United States and the legislation reads at least one from the central conferences.

The rest of those then remained as they were initially presented by the legislation from ...

BISHOP LAWSON: I just got a signal from the translators that they're having trouble moving at your rate with these numbers. If you could speak just a tad slower, that would help.

HOLSINGER: I'll slow up. I was trying to help move this along. But I can be happy to slow up.

If the pages would pass out gray sheet number 3. The number 632 that comes from that total of board membership that you see on the bottom row of page number 2, the buff-colored, we worked diligently to try to maintain equity and fairness across the five jurisdictions. And if you look at the number of 420 at the top of the page, those 420 are basically spread across the five jurisdictions by the particular agencies you see on page number three, the gray piece of paper.

Now, lest you all think that we did not have an adequate calculator, the bottom totals do not add to 420. And there is a reason for that. And the reason for that is that in order to take care of some of the nominations that had already been proposed by the Council of Bishops, for example, three of the members that would normally have appeared on that row, for example, show up in the nine additional members at GCFA, to make sure that all of those individuals are able to serve.

We also have three Women's Division elected individuals that show up in the General Commission on Status and Role of Women. There are a variety of other places within this overall chart where the additional few people show up to make this come to 420. In the case of each one of the five jurisdictions, it ranges from one to three individuals more in the total number, that would be called for in paragraph 805, than you see in this particular chart.

Legislative Committee Votes Approval

The result of this was that we had a vote to approve 805 with only one negative vote, as you can see on page 311. That was 87 for, one against. In the 10 petitions handled by our legislative committee, there was a unanimous vote on each one of those for the particular agency involved.

In the case of the three that came through the Financial Administration Legislative Committee, if I remember correctly, all three will appear on the Consent Calendar as well.

I would like to tell you that at the time that we met as a legislative committee to adopt this, I threatened mayhem and other types of difficulties should anyone wish to amend this proposal. There are ungodly numbers of human hours in this vote before it arrived at the General Conference and since we have worked to try to perfect it. It is not perfect. But we have, we believe, gone a long ways to perfecting this particular report.

Every piece interdigitates. That's why there are multiple charts that arrive at the place where we are. The result of which, though, is as I said we had great unanimity among a very diverse group of our membership in this General Conference who served on this legislative committee. Thank you, Bishop.

BISHOP LAWSON: Thank you and now we. Yes?

BISHOP WILLIAM DEW: I want to give you some information. The General Council on Ministry—which has the right to give its' report to you for action—has accepted the legislative committee's report on these matters of the Connectional Issues Study and the membership size of general agencies.

BISHOP LAWSON: Thank you for that clarification, that's most helpful. We now turn to the presentation of our minority report. Mr. Langford, are you the spokesperson?

Minority Report on Judicial and General Administration Report

THOMAS A. LANGFORD, III (Western North Carolina): Bishop, I present to this General Conference the minority report which is found on pages 254 and 255. They serve as a substitute. And the material that is found on pages 252 and 253 with the exception of the fine report just given by Jim Holsinger on the membership of general agencies. That was felt very good, but it serves as a substitute for the material on pages 252 and 254.

BISHOP LAWSON: And may we assume that your name is Andy Langford and you're from Western North Carolina.

LANGFORD: Now as I understand I want to be very brief, and give it back to the chair. What you see on the bottom of page 255, the first column down at the bottom is what we perceive as five major differences between the minority report and majority report. I'd say of those, the two critical ones are numbers one and five. The first one in the minority report tries to emphasize the value, the function, the locus of ministry in the local congregation. While much is said in the connection of issues study about that, if you look on pages 252 and 253 the local church, we believe, has not yet been strongly enough affirmed. You also see on item number five, a third of the way down in the middle column. The second major issue is that the majority report refuses to address concretely the budget implications of its' work, and specifically refuses to name whether the report in the year 2000 will reduce the size of the general church or the number of general agencies. The specificity of that is found in the minority report, and, Bishop, at this point I'll turn it over to you, and then I'll save my time to speak at the end.

BISHOP LAWSON: May I ask you, Andy, please for the benefit of the chair, and maybe others, if you would state once again what your minority report intends to take the place of, the substitute for in the other report.

LANGFORD: This is a substitute for the materials found on pages 252 and 254.

BISHOP LAWSON: All right, thank you. That's clear, and now our procedures are, as you remember, that we'll continue then our work by perfecting the majority report, and that is open for us when we begin that perfection process. And if completed to our satisfaction we'll turn our attention to perfecting the minority report. When that is done to our satisfaction, then we'll vote first on the minority report depending on what happens to that, we'll take our second vote. So the floor is open for perfection now of the majority report, and I see a woman standing up coming to microphone 9.

Perfection of the Majority Report

AMY TWIGG (Western Pennsylvania): Thank you Bishop. I would move to amend the provision of the Connectional Process Team; DCA volume three, page 252, column 2 in order to insert three new paragraphs under section "A" before the present paragraph one, so that they would read as follows: "The purpose of the CPT is to: one, enable the United Methodist Church more faithfully to carry out its' mission to make disciples of Jesus Christ (see paragraph 101)." Then item two: Support local congregations as the primary locus of mission and ministry within the United Methodist Church. And finally paragraph three: To reinvent the organization, mission and ministry of general agencies including an overall reduction in both the number of general agencies and their budgets, and if there is a second I'm prepared to speak to it.

BISHOP LAWSON: It is seconded? It is seconded. Please go ahead.

Focus on Making Disciples of Jesus Christ

TWIGG: In the midst of all the wonder of United Methodist diversity stands a need, I believe, to refocus ourselves together from time to time. This is one of those moments. Already this great conference has adopted a mission statement for paragraph 101 which is succinctly quoted as being "to make disciples of Jesus Christ." My amendment and what would be number one reaffirms and refocuses us around this statement. And as United Methodists we understand disciples to be made as the good news of God's grace is proclaimed throughout the world, and as the fulfillment of God's reign and realm is sought within our world. The vision which the scriptures hold before us. Our local churches have always been the centers out from which we reach and preach, go and give, love and live into our mission and ministry as United Methodists. And, of course, to continue to work with our structure was a main finding of the Connectional Issues Study. Such continued labor needs to find its' focus upon our mission and its wide and expansive movement. So, I would urge your addition of this amendment to the connectional process team's purpose. And this would mean, Bishop, that paragraph one on page 252 would then be numbered paragraph four, paragraph two would be paragraph five and so forth.

BISHOP LAWSON: Thank you. Would you please stay there for a moment? For our general help, since that's three paragraphs, please read them for us again so we have a clear fix on what you're proposing.

TWIGG: DCA volume three, page 252, column two in order to insert three new paragraphs; they are very brief. Under section A, first of all, paragraph one. Enable the United Methodist Church more faithfully to carry out its mission, "to make disciples of Jesus Christ" (see paragraph 101). Two, support local congregations as the primary locus of mission and ministry within the United Methodist Church. And finally paragraph three, reinvent the organization, mission, and ministry of general agencies including an overall reduction in both the number of general agencies and their budgets.

BISHOP LAWSON: Thank you for doing that. We have now an amendment to the majority report. You've heard that said twice. The floor is open for any comments you'd like to make about that. Yes ma'am. Coming this way, and forward to microphone 3 please.

LIZ ST. CLAIR (Peninsula-Delaware): I need some help in understanding some terms. Would someone explain to me the difference between the statement "the local church is the primary base for mission and ministry," and "the local church is the locus of ministry?"

BISHOP LAWSON: I hear your question. I'm sure the mover of the motion would be glad to respond to that.

TWIGG: I believe, indeed, they are the same, and I would accept a friendly amendment to be attached to mine.

BISHOP LAWSON: That was a question for information. I think it was not a friendly amendment. The interpretation is that they are the same. Same meaning, same connotation. The floor is open would anybody care to speak?

BISHOP LAWSON: As in the back, center section, you're come out turning left and going to microphone 13. Down to microphone 13, please.

STEPHEN E. DRACHLER (Central Pennsylvania): Bishop, I would ask to amend or divide the amendment, please.

BISHOP LAWSON: What is your request for division?

DRACHLER: I would request, sir, would move that we consider paragraph number three separately. If I have a second, I would speak to that.

BISHOP LAWSON: Your request for division, is there any dissent to that? Is it all right to divide this? I hear no dissent. Shall we consider the matter divided? And you're asking for that to be considered separately? And so, consequently, we will consider the first two. When we are ready to consider three, I'll call upon you for your statement.

DRACHLER: Thank you sir.

BISHOP LAWSON: You're welcome. The first two are now before us. Floor is still open. I see no green cards. Does that mean you're ready to vote on the first two? Yes, all right, over here.

REX BEVINS (Nebraska): The committee is willing to accept one and two.

BISHOP LAWSON: Excuse me Rex, my apologies, but someone has asked for the floor. Microphone 7.

A Place for UMCOR in Proposed Connectional Plan

PHILIP WOGAMAN (Baltimore-Washington): I have a couple of questions I'd like to ask. There is some background to these questions relating to the adoption of a statement of mission.

Two of the legislative committees have been involved in interacting over that. In mine, which was Discipleship, there was a concern that the statement of mission be more broadly gauged than the statement simply that the "purpose of the church is to make disciples," though of course that is a part, a very important and central part of our mission. But my question is where in this line-up would there be place for the work of UMCOR, for instance? In reaching out to the world to serve in areas of disaster and need around the world, where would there be place in this for the advocacy work of the denomination on Capitol Hill and in state capitols and in various other places where we are attempting to impact the world. It seems to me these are very important things, and I wonder if these are sufficiently encompassed in the proposal that is now before us.

BISHOP LAWSON: That approaches a statement against. Would the person who made the motion want to respond to this? Microphone 9.

TWIGG: It is true, as Phil Wogaman has said, we have been working with both the Local Church and the Discipleship committees to bring our focus together. I believe, indeed, there is a place for the work of UMCOR and other lobbying kinds of efforts because, as the love of Jesus Christ is born into the world, it is born through those who are disciples.

BISHOP LAWSON: Now are you ready to, after we hear from majority movers, decide this matter? Are you? Are you? We're calling to you. Do you want to speak to these two?

DAVID SEVERE (Oklahoma): We are very happy with those two. It's up to the house.

Plan Voted On

BISHOP LAWSON: Are you ready to vote? Are you ready to vote? If you would, vote when you see the light. The first two, amendment—point one and point two of the amendment, pass. [Results: yes, 652; no, 230] We now have before us the third of these points. And I call upon you, sir, to finish your statement, microphone 13.

STEVE DRACHLER (Central Pennsylvania): My concern is that we are going into a study, but we are preordaining the results. I certainly have a lot of sympathy and understanding and, I'm sure, some agreement with the intent of those who offer this proposal. But I don't think it is wise, Bishop, that we should go into a study and research and tell the committee what result to bring back. That is often times dangerous, nonproductive, and may not serve the ultimate goal of our great denomination. Thank you.

BISHOP LAWSON: Thank you. That's a speech against this amendment. Somebody care to speak for it? I see no one requesting the floor speaking in favor of this. Someone care to speak against it? Yes. Microphone 4.

JAMES L. LAWSON JR. (California-Pacific): I just want to make three points that partially represents, perhaps, my own ambiguity but also some sense of some of the questions that we need to ask, answer, or talk about.

Church Described as Constantly Restructuring

Number one, since 1960 this church has been involved in restructuring, reorganizing itself, re-phrasing its creeds and theological task, and the rest of it. In those same years we've also had droopy morale, primarily aimed at the point of membership. I just raise the question, with all the talk about the presence of the Holy Spirit, is this yet another exercise of housekeeping that keeps us away from, perhaps, the mainstream?

Secondly, all of the churches, almost all the United Methodist churches today, are consequences of grace. I pastored Centenary United Methodist Church, organized by a missionary in the Centenary Movement of the last century. I pastor at a church now that the Department of Negro Work helped to establish. Almost all our local congregations are consequences of clergy, circuit riders, district conferences, bishops, annual conferences, and the rest. I think there need to be questions about the local church as the primary locus of mission and ministry. I think the church's dimension is vaster than that and larger than that. And, maybe that needs to be amended in some fashion.

And thirdly, I question the whole business of being in the mood that our nation is in for downsizing. Should The United Methodist Church follow the lead of the nation? Should The United Methodist Church, maybe, want to find ways that we can "grace size" ourselves, that we can maybe "right size" ourselves. I am not sure that the issue is the size of the agencies. Too much of what I hear is related more to the kind of "we" and "they" philosophy rather than all of us being baptized people of the kingdom, and, therefore, this being an "us" issue. I don't know if downsizing the boards and agencies is related to the work of the Holy Spirit or related, rather, to the 24 years of intense criticism of all the boards and agencies that was located more in that animus towards government, animus towards the national church rather than a recognition of the unity of the body of church that is the UMC.

Turn right, microphone 13.

Continuing Debate on Board and Agency Reduction

SCOTT J. JONES (North Texas): Bishop, I would like to speak for the amendment. I am deeply committed to the mission and ministry of our church, and want to see it protected and expanded for the next century. I think this study is an important effort in that direction, but I also think that the connection depends upon a new way of our general agencies being organized, funded, and related to the rest of the church. We will be doing the Connectional Process Team a favor by setting, not particular conclusions, but a broad general direction to guide their thinking. Toward that end, this amendment helps focus their work. I urge you to pass it.

BISHOP LAWSON: Now the question before us at every point in a discussion like this, is have we shared the insight, the wisdom, the questions that need to be shared to prepare us to make a decision? It is never, how long can we talk, and so the question is, at some point I'll be watching, listening to what you say, and wondering whether or not we have said enough to allow us to vote. The floor is still open. Yes. What will be your position, sir? You're coming out to microphone 9. To which side are you speaking?

FRANK DORSEY (Kansas East): Against. I would not want to vote for this amendment, because of the actions that are before us in the majority report. We are a connectional church, and our boards and agencies of the church are an expression of that connection that enhance our mission and ministry to the world. I would rather take time to begin to study very carefully where those boards and agencies fit, and how they might best serve us in the new millennium. I would rather do that than to react in a knee-jerk way as this substitute does.

BISHOP LAWSON: Now that there's a desire, there's a space for somebody to speak for this, or perhaps you're ready to make a decision. Are you ready? Could you hear it again? I'm sure you could. Yes, a little secret about relating to the...why don't you just hold your card up. You see me scanning around this room, and I'll try very hard to find you. OK. You want the floor. You're coming to speak, on what side, sir? You can only speak in favor. Microphone 5.

DALE JONES (Kentucky): Correct. I bear no blood relationship to Scott Jones. I just wish to point out that the General Council on Ministries in the Connectional Issue Study, you can find it in your Advance DCA or on page 240 of today's. The one we're looking at today has already concluded the size of the general church organization needs to be reduced. That's finding number 14. So I don't see anything knee-jerk or reactionary or fearful in this amendment, and I would urge us to favor it, because it supports the conclusion that the GCOM has already come to in their Connectional Issues Study. Thank you.

BISHOP LAWSON: Thank you for your statement. We must now vote. I turn now to the person, we're going to come in a minute to you, but let's turn first of all for clarification. And we're asking the mover of the motion to state again what this item is, so everybody's clear about what's before us.

AIMEE W. TWIGG (Western Pennsylvania): Item 3 would then read, "Reinvent the organization, mission, and ministry of general agencies, including an overall reduction in both the number of general agencies and their budgets."

BISHOP LAWSON: Thank you. Sir?

DAVID L. SEVERE (Oklahoma): We would oppose this, because we believe that the process that we are entering into, should be free from any attempt to conclude what is going to happen. It is entirely possible that there will be reductions, but we believe, at this point, that we should not even hint that that should be necessary though we expect it may happen. We would be against the motion.

Proposal 3 Fails

BISHOP LAWSON: Thank you for your comment. You are now ready to vote. You've heard the matter clarified. Please vote when you see the light. [Results: yes, 410; no, 514] Number 3 is defeated. We are now back to the main body of the majority report. The floor is open. Yes, over here.

DALE SEGREST (Alabama-West Florida): I have a question concerning the CPT committee and its selection. As I understand it, there will be 31 nominations from the bishops, and then we will elect those same people that the bishops have nominated. And this seems to give us some possessory interest in the election process. But actually that sounds a great deal like elections used to be held in Russia where only a certain number are nominated and I'd like clarification. I might arise to raise a question.

BISHOP LAWSON: I understand your question. Did you hear the question on the desk?

GORDON C. GOODGAME (Holston): I will try not to respond to the analogy. What we're seeking to do is in the same conversational manner, to trust a group to put together an inclusive, representational, broadly experienced team. It will come back to the house. If the house does not want to accept it, it can send it back. But it is very difficult when you're working across a global church, to bring the kind of team that will give us broad perspective unless we have an nominating committee. Nominating committees are not out of the norm in our situation. I respect your concern, and we hope there will be fairness and equity, and broad, broad inclusiveness of every reasonable type. But we do feel this is an appropriate way to handle such an issue.

BISHOP LAWSON: All right. Right here in the center. Both of you. I'm calling now on the lady now standing. Microphone 9.

HOLLY S. MCCRAY (Oklahoma): I propose to amend by deletion. I propose to delete all of recommendation number 3 beginning with the second paragraph of that recommendation on page 253. If I have a second, I would like to speak to that.

Motion to Delete Recommendation for Reduction

BISHOP LAWSON: You have a second. Identify it further on page 253, center column, bottom of the page, recommendation 3. You're moving to delete. Do we understand you correctly?

MCCRAY: Beginning with the second paragraph through the rest of recommendation 3.

BISHOP LAWSON: Thank you. That is before us. It has been seconded. You would like to make a statement?

MCCRAY: Yes, sir. I welcome and embrace the flexibility and the visioning in this study. The Connectional Issues Study calls us to affirm the local church as our primary base for mission and ministry. The study declares, effective communication is needed throughout this denomination to knit this body of Christ together, and to energize its ministries. We must move beyond "them versus us," I believe. We are the local church and the general level. I believe we can be better financial stewards in other, more practical, ways and paragraph 1 of recommendation 3 lists this clearly. I also understand that in the budgeting process, the proposed reduction in membership was not of significant impact. I believe to cut membership, to cut more than 300 of our voices, would weaken the communication we need, impact our inclusiveness, cause a heavier reliance on staff than we already have. I do not believe that reducing our voice is the best approach to enhance communication and the responsiveness that this study cries out for at the general level. This is about the power of our collective voice, gathered from each annual conference. Thus, I support this amendment.

BISHOP LAWSON: Thank you. A statement in favor of your amendment. Do we have someone to speak against it? Over here.

PORTER J. WOMELDORFF (Central Illinois): Bishop, I would like to ask a question, not speak either for or against. The question is this: this amendment affects both the white and the gray sheets that we were handed, and I have the question that if my arithmetic is correct, the numbers on the white sheet for at least three of the five jurisdictions add up to a larger total than the total at the bottom of the gray sheet for those same jurisdiction.

Explanation of Number to Be Nominated

JIM HOLSINGER: Porter, that's absolutely correct. If you will recall that at the time I made my presentation, I so announced that. And I indicated at that time that they ranged. I believe I may not have said exactly what they ranged, but they range from three to one different. That's because with the way there are spread of individuals from this pool, three of them show up in the nine additional members in GCFA's number. They were originally proposed to have only six members. The bishops have nominated nine. We placed three of them in that location, in order to not have to have those individuals removed from that list. There are three under COSROW that are elected by the Women's Division that come from within this number, and there are others within the whole pattern of this that come through that process, a different process than the straight forward nominating process. So the upshot of that is that there are ten fewer than show up, as I have added correctly on the spur of the moment. But we knew that at the time. We also cannot guarantee, if you look at that gray sheet where it shows General Board of Global Ministries, there is a number that says seven plus seven, seven plus five, and so on. Those are the plus—whatever the number is with the first asterisk showing—are the women's, the individuals that will be elected by the Women's Division. We cannot guarantee that they will come in that location, because of the process under which the Women's Division elects. But they are covered within this total number. We believe that we have done the best we possibly can to effectively spread these in a fair way across the jurisdictions within the confines of the election process that is included under paragraph 805.

WOMELDORFF: Could I continue my question just this much further? Then what you are suggesting is that if there are people previously elected, for example, to GCFA or to COSROW, from a particular annual conference, that will be deducted from the number that is on the white sheet?

HOLSINGER: No. The white sheet provides the base numbers from each annual conference by jurisdiction that will go to the jurisdictional nominating committees to nominate for, and for the jurisdictional committees, jurisdictional conferences to elect. What happens is though that as you recall, the secretary of the General Conference will provide the specific number once we know how these other individuals are actually elected by this body when they are elected by the General Conference in other locations. We will then know how exactly how many each nominating committee will have to elect.

WOMELDORFF: Then you are saying that a nominating committee may have less than the five, six, seven or eight shown on the white sheet for a particular annual conference?

HOLSINGER: No, I'm not saying that. What I'm saying is that they appear within the buff sheet in other locations than on the first line. We had to do that in order to take care of things that were proposed in the variety of the individual board or agencies' proposals for how they would elect. There will be...the total that is called for within the gray sheet will show up somewhere within the total. The other ten, that are not on this bottom columns when you add them, are in other locations on the buff sheet.

BISHOP LAWSON: Thank you very much for your response to that inquiry. Yes, you who are coming out. Forward to microphone 2.

ANNA WORKMAN (North Carolina): May I try to help answer this gentleman's question? As we understand it, it's one of the ones we worked on, this proposal. The difference is in the numbers guaranteed to the conferences will show up in the at-large members. I can give you the totals by each of those jurisdictions if they would like to have those.

BISHOP LAWSON: Is there a request for that? I do not hear one.

WORKMAN: OK. And may I speak against the amendment on the floor?

BISHOP LAWSON: Excuse me?

WORKMAN: May I speak against the amendment?

Reduction and Financial Savings

BISHOP LAWSON: Yes, you may.

WORKMAN: I spent a lot of hours working on this with the folks in our committee and sub-committee because I came with one message from folks at home. And that is that we do need to be very accountable in the manpower and in the dollars that we are spending as a general church. This recommendation is only for one quadrennium, after which time we hope that whatever process we use to come up with restructuring or to determine to stay the same will be there. But I can go home a whole lot better, with a lot better conscience, if we address some of the issues that I think probably all of us are hearing in our local churches. Thank you.

BISHOP LAWSON: Is there someone who would like to speak in favor of the amendment? Yes, sir. Right here. You're doing well. Please go out and turn right to microphone 9.

ROBERT D. PIERSON (Oklahoma): The concern for reducing budgets is a concern that all of us have, and we want to respond to the people back home in terms of that. But I'm concerned that by reducing the size by one-third the net effect is that we have less representation all across the church, in our annual conferences, in the central conferences. What we're looking for is more participation, more responsiveness of our general agencies to the people back home. And the way you accomplish that is not by cutting the representation. Now I appreciate all the work that was done in preparing these charts, but the bottom line still is we reduce representation by one-third, and I'd like to support leaving the amount, the number of representation as it is in the 900's than reducing it. So I'm in favor of this.

BISHOP LAWSON: Thank you very much. You remember we're on page 253, the right hand column, the second full paragraph, which begins, "it is further recommended." The motion is to delete. There is, we are getting close to the time when we want to express ourselves by vote. And, sir, you're...please come forward, and tell us who you are. Microphone 3.

PAT STROMAN (Central Texas): If we vote to leave them the same, how much money would—how much difference in budget will there be in terms of cost for meetings and so forth if we cut back to 600?

DAVID SEVERE (Oklahoma): GCFA would have to answer that question. We do not know exactly, but it would be a significant savings. It's a pretty good figure, but we don't have an exact figure because they have not yet supplied it.

STROMAN: David, you don't even have a ballpark?

SEVERE: Not right now I don't.

BISHOP LAWSON: OK, thank you. We're getting really close to the time when you're going to want to express yourself in vote. So think about this a little bit. Back here, there's a gentleman standing up now. You're going out to microphone 7.

STEVEN LETT (Western Michigan): I'm speaking against the amendment. Thank you. I speak against the amendment for two reasons. Number one, to answer the gentleman's question about the cost, obviously if you have a third less people, you have a third less cost. Number two, we seem to think that representative government, which is what we have here, would be better with more representatives. If that were the case, then we should have a general conference every year and let everybody come. I think we have to have faith in the people that we elect, appoint, or nominate to represent us. And I think that we, as United Methodists, have that faith, and that they can do the job right, and I speak against the amendment.

BISHOP LAWSON: Now we have room for only someone to speak in favor of the amendment. And ma'am, you're sitting right back there, and you're coming out to microphone 8. And then we will vote.

MARY SILVA (Rio Grande): We were told on the first day to stay at the table, but now some chairs have been removed from that table, and fairness and equality is not on the menu. I would like to recommend that the language conferences be considered to be represented on all boards.

BISHOP LAWSON: All right. Thank you. You now are ready to vote. Our discussion is full at this point. You know what's before us, page 253, right hand column, first full paragraph. The motion is to delete. If you would delete this paragraph...

SEVERE: Bishop?

BISHOP LAWSON: Thank you for the reminder.

SEVERE: We would hope you would defeat this amendment because we believe that we are moving in the right direction. We remind you again, this is a one quadrennium trial. We may discover in this period of time that we need to change this figure. But we think that we can demonstrate to ourselves as well as to those back home and to the spirit of what we are doing here that we can reduce the number at this time and can provide a vital church.

A Vote for Reduction

BISHOP LAWSON: All right, thank you. If you would delete, you'll be voting yes. No, if you would not. Please vote when you see the light. And you've not supported the amendment. [Results: yes, 289; no, 640] The full report is before us. Yes. Over here. Microphone 5.

VICTOR ORTIZ VIDAL (Puerto Rico): I move to amend, on page 252, letter B, in which says, "plus three voting members from affiliated autonomous churches," to add, "elected by the 1996 General Conference."

BISHOP LAWSON: Is there a second? It is seconded. And your amendment is, please, what?

Call for a Voice for Affiliated and Autonomous Churches

ORTIZ VIDAL: To add at the end of the parentheses, "plus three non-voting members from affiliated and autonomous churches," to add, "elected by the 1996 General Conference."

BISHOP LAWSON: All right, that amendment is before you. Do you have something you'd like to say, sir?

ORTIZ VIDAL: Yes. I think that it is important to define the method in which these three non-voting members will be elected. I think that this General Conference is the adequate party to elect that persons. We have a big representation from the affiliated autonomous churches and the autonomous churches here, so I think that this body could be the proper place to make that decision.

BISHOP LAWSON: All right. You understand that the proposal before us in this amendment, page 252, the right hand column, just a couple or three paragraphs down, capital "B," following the parentheses, this amendment is added. Anybody care to speak against it? Anybody care to speak for it? Then please vote.

DAVID SEVERE: Bishop?

BISHOP LAWSON: Yes, excuse me, I will remember you. I promise this. Some day—tomorrow. I apologize.

SEVERE: It's all right. It's all right. The struggle we would see in this proposal is being able to make that process work in a short period of time. We find that the process of making sure that we have included a broad spectrum of the central conference people, that we need a little more time to be able to make that a fair process. We would rather it be done after the General Conference and in consultation with the leadership of the central conferences.

BISHOP LAWSON: You now are ready to express yourself. When the light appears, please vote.

BISHOP LAWSON: It does not prevail. The whole report is before you? Yes, microphone 3. Go ahead. They're playing back there. [laughter]

TIMOTHY RUSSELL (Central Texas): On page 249, the blue DCA, far left column, two-thirds down the column, the item "Elect Bishops." I would like to move an amendment to change the wording to "determine the process to elect bishops." Do I have a second, I'd like to speak to that?

BISHOP LAWSON: Second?

Regional Meetings Discussed

RUSSELL: If you look on page 215, second paragraph, on the left column, you will see that each regional conference has the option to establish sub-regions. I believe this amendment will be more internally consistent. I believe it will allow more creativity in the discerning process for selecting our leadership in the church and will allow us to keep the election of our bishops as close to the people as possible.

BISHOP LAWSON: Sir, your point has been heard and your motion has been received and seconded, but it is the chair's judgment that what is before us is the matter—this is preliminary material, or introduction to the report—and what is before us are the specific recommendations. So I reluctantly must call your motion out of order, but the people have heard you speak, and your point I think is probably made.

RUSSELL: Question? Is there a time when it would be in order?

BISHOP LAWSON: My understanding is not. This is what you would call introductory or prelude material to the recommendations that are before you, and the recommendations are before you at this point. I must call your motion out of order.

RUSSELL: Thank you.

BISHOP LAWSON: Now in the back there is a gentleman standing next to the aisle. You're coming forward, are you? At microphone 8.

PAUL R. DIRDAK (California-Nevada): Bishop, I'm at the top of page 252, the right hand corner of that page, it is the sentence number 9, and I would like to suggest an amendment. I would amend the sentence by replacing it with the following language: "Consider the advisability of regional and global conferences and propose and further elaborate upon their nature, work and composition." Following a second I would say a word.

BISHOP LAWSON: Will someone provide a second? It is seconded.

DIRDAK: Thank you. I know that a small group of us has spent considerable time working on the question of regional conferences. However, it occurs to me that there are huge numbers of questions implicated here that have yet to be fully discussed. And it seems to me that the nature of the sentence, as it appears in the text, would presume that regional conferences will exist in some form when this next quadrennium's work is over.

I think we need to consider that more carefully. I would be happy to spend the quadrennium doing it. It occurs to me that there are some significant dangers in our face if, in fact, we move ahead with regional conferences; but the course of the quadrennium could prove me quite incorrect. The dangers which I fear are these: We, in the General Board of Global Ministries, where I am privileged to be president of its National Division, have spent these last years learning that the globe is one place. It needs no National and World Division separation any longer. That is a revolutionary idea for many of us. The globe could become one.

It concerns me very much that regional conferences could impose boundaries which do not exist at precisely the time when we are trying to eliminate boundaries under which we have suffered for years and years.

So, it occurs to me that the study which is conducted should consider regional conferences rather than assume them. Therefore my amendment. Bishop.

BISHOP LAWSON: Thank you for that clarification.

DAVID SEVERE: The committee is willing to accept that. We think that was very well stated. We'd be happy to accept it.

DIRDAK: Thank you.

BISHOP LAWSON: The chair is interested in accepting that. No one take exception to that? Are you taking exception to the acceptance? All right. Thank you. Then we'll consider that amendment as part of the definition of the majority report, and the floor is now again open, and we're coming right here, yes. Microphone 4.

CHARLIE O. DUNDAS (Minnesota): I consider myself a broad-stroke person. I am not into a lot of detail. I stand to support this, the recommendations of the committee. Because I believe that this is one small step for Methodist-kind. It is only a beginning. We are putting in place, in my judgment, a process over the next four years, which we hope and pray will lead us into the 21st century. We will be kidding ourselves immensely if we think that we are putting in place, even at that time, structures or organization which will last for many years.

Our present structure has been in place for some 20 years. I submit that the pace of change in the world and the need for the church to communicate the gospel will require us to have a dynamic, flexible process always in place. And we will need to revisit again and again the way we do ministry in this rapidly changing world. I would hope that we would support this and get on with the process. And that we would trust those who are nominated and put in place by the church to work on this in a helpful and meaningful and powerful way.

BISHOP LAWSON: Thank you for your statement. I call the house's attention that we are right now in the process of perfecting the majority report. I'm looking in the far corner near microphone 11. There's a person standing up there. Microphone 11.

NOW: Nurture, Outreach, Witness

DEBORAH CRONIN (Western New York): First of all, Bishop, on behalf of short people sitting in a back left corner, I thank you. [laughter] Secondly, I would like to offer a friendly amendment that any place in the GCOM report and related legislation where the terms "outreach, nurture, and witness," occur, that they be rearranged to read "nurture, outreach, and witness." If I get a second, I'll speak to that. Yes, in the last quadrennium the Strengthening the Small Church Task Force worked very diligently with these three words to organize them into a structure for our churches with small membership. We are gratified that they have been picked up in this quadrennium, and used to project a ministry outline for all of our churches as well as our denomination. We chose the model "nurture, outreach, witness," the arrangement of those words in that form, because they give to us an acronym. The acronym is NOW. There are many persons across the denomination now, that are used to that term, that speak very frequently of the NOW model. It will be helpful for us in interpreting it throughout the denomination. Thank you.

BISHOP LAWSON: All right, that is before you. Yes, you don't want to speak to that. Anybody care to speak to that? You all care on the committee to speak to this?

DAVID SEVERE: That is in the report, and we're not sure that that's an area we need to be messing with. We understand the concern, however, that model does exist, and we felt, at this point, we were not, would not want to use just exactly what that was. It does have some slight differences in some places, but I believe that's in the report, not in the recommendations.

BISHOP LAWSON: Well, I think your point is well taken. The chair unfortunately, and with apologies to you, will call that out of order and now, it's my responsibility to share with you that we are still working on General and Judicial Administration report and the hour is now 3:30. We have following us the Africa University report, the Africa University choir, the Independent Commissions, Financial Administration, Discipleship and Church and Society calendar items. We'll all need to take responsibility for managing the floor. Are there amendments for the majority report? I'm sorry, but what you do when my attention, just stand or hold up your card. That will get you more success. Over here on this side. Microphone 9.

UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER: Bishop, I move the previous question and all that is before us.

BISHOP LAWSON: We are in the middle of perfecting a majority report. We must hear the perfection of the minority report before I can receive that motion. Thank you. Now over here, somebody was wanting the floor. Don't want the floor. Yes. Microphone 7.

JOHN S. McCABE (Northern Illinois): A question: in the legislative section, was there any comment on paragraph C on page 253 with the inclusion of GCOM in the reporting process, and in paragraph E in that same column, with GCOM providing the staffing?

BISHOP LAWSON: I'm not sure what the question is. Would you say what is the question with that, sir.

McCABE: The question was, was there any discussion around the inclusion of GCOM at those two points, the reporting as well as the staffing?

SEVERE: Yes, it was discussed. That is where we felt it would be the best way to provide the staffing.

McCABE: All right. I'd like to make a motion, if I could, Bishop. I'd like to eliminate—in paragraph C, of page 253, in the left hand column, second sentence, I'd like to eliminate GCOM from that sentence, second line. And then referring to paragraph E, I'd like to substitute COB or Council of Bishops instead of GCOM to provide for the staffing. If there is a second, I'd like to speak to that.

BISHOP LAWSON: Is it seconded? It is.

Proposal to Eliminate GCOM

McCABE: The reason I'd like to see this is I think one of the scenarios for reorganization of the church might be the elimination of the General Council on Ministries, and so to prevent the fox in the hen house problems here, I think it's appropriate that GCOM not be one of the reporting bodies during the course of this study, and also even though staff may come out of GCOM at the direction of the bishops or staff from other general agencies, as appropriate, I think it's proper for the staffing to be by the Council of Bishops as they see fit. Thank you.

BISHOP LAWSON: All right sir, thank you. This matter is now before us. In the center a woman is standing. You're coming out and forward to microphone 8.

BETTY T. TRUMBLE (Nebraska): I would argue that we should keep the General Council on Ministries. The reporting process without the General Council on Ministries, would be to the Council of Bishops and the Council of Finance and Administration. I think the church is better represented in the Council on Ministries than in the Council on Finance and Administration, and there is laity in the Council on Ministries, but not in the Council of Bishops. As to the bishops providing staffing, the bishops as I understand it, do not have staff. Thank you.

BISHOP LAWSON: Thank you for that. Speech against this amendment. Someone want to speak for it? For it? Yes, right here.

MARVIN H. McCALLUM (Detroit): I move that we close debate on this item and the majority report.

BISHOP LAWSON: Is it so obvious when I stop and think, or so rare, perhaps? (laughter) I have a motion that we cease the perfection of this report and go on to the minority report. That is probably in order. Is it seconded? It is variously seconded. If you would move us on toward the minority report, would you please vote yes when you see the light. [852 approved] There was a person who yelled, "Yea." I presume that this means that this passed, and so then...

Did I miss a motion on the floor? Thank you very much. As interesting as that last motion was, we do have this amendment before us, page 253, left hand column, items C, D, and E. Thank you for helping the chair at that point. Is there anything else to be said about that amendment? Thank you. If I said right, I meant left. It is in the left hand column, page 253. Those adjustments you know about. Are you ready to decide this? All right.

SEVERE: May I speak?

BISHOP LAWSON: Yes, you may.

SEVERE: We hope you will not agree to this amendment. We believe that the three councils are very much involved in this process and are very helpful in their guidance. The GCOM is an appropriate place for staffing to be done, both by experience and expertise. We have in almost every situation affirmed that, and we would prefer that we continue with that. We would ask that you defeat this motion.

Vote to Retain GCOM

BISHOP LAWSON: If you would delete from the staffing process the GCOM and if you would, in item E, change the GCOM to the Council of Bishops, you would be voting yes. Will you please vote when the light appears? [Results: yes, 247; no, 670]

BISHOP LAWSON: And you do not agree with that amendment. Now, are you still of mind to move onto the minority report? All right. Now we are at 3:35. Some of you are beginning to look a little blurry-eyed. I'm wondering if you would benefit from a 15 minute break. [applause] Your applause means that you pledge before God that you will be back in your seat and quiet at 10 minutes until four. [laughter]

Now, please do not leave for a minute. What we've had here is an offer. I think the answer to the question, however, is not in the chair. It's in you. The mover of the minority report has said that he would be willing not to have his report perfected, but simply make a closing statement about it and allow us to move ahead and vote on that minority report without the perfection process.

My response to that is that really the question is in your hands. Are you willing to receive the minority report without the opportunity to perfect it? [applause] It sounds like you are. Does anyone take exception to this? Yes, microphone 3.

BECKY HAASE (California-Pacific): I feel it is appropriate for us to spend some time on that. I would appreciate it after the break, myself. But I think that if this is presumed to become a main motion, that would then be the main motion that has not had any opportunity for amendment. And I feel it is not appropriate.

BISHOP LAWSON: Your point is well taken. We are in recess.

(Recess)

BISHOP LAWSON: Back in the corners of this place is a crowd of people, everyone of whom, promised before God, you'd be in your seats right now. We are going to start with Cynthia, is going to help us to sing. By the time we are first versing it, you are going to be back in your seats.

(song)

BISHOP LAWSON: Thank you for taking your seats, that's very thoughtful of you to do that. Thank you for stopping the conversation now. That's even more thoughtful. There are a few people in the room, but not many who haven't figured out that every sentence has a period at the end, and when you come to a period, you stop talking. OK? [laughter] Now we're ready to go. Forgive me for looking around. I thought we had an arrangement here. But I think we don't. So we'll turn our attention...

All right, ladies and gentlemen, we are going to listen to the presentation of the minority report. Just to let you know what the staffing up here was about. We had hoped to create a situation where the African choir could sing for us at this juncture, and there's a confusion in the arrangements, and that doesn't seem to be working just real easily, so we'll move ahead with the minority report.

I think I share with you a sense of DIS-EASE that these good brothers and sisters from a very long distance have come to sing for us, and we've held them for a long time. But that doesn't seem to be fixable at the moment, and so rather than try to do that publicly, now and use time up, let's encourage ourselves to face the minority report. To perfect that and prepare to report, to vote on all of this matter.

We turn to Andy Langford. All right, he does not want to speak to us on this; doesn't need to, he says, and so the minority report is before us for perfection. I see there has been a little revolt in the house. We now have orange cards. That is nice. And I'm turning...there is a woman standing back right here. I have a point of order. OK. Microphone 9.

PETER WEAVER (Western Pennsylvania): Last night the body voted to ask the Rules Committee to report to us on the Hassinger Amendment to Rule 36. Some of us who are interested in that have waited patiently for that report. It was to be reported back this morning. I understood it was going to be reported at the beginning of this session. And would request the chair ask for that report.

BISHOP LAWSON: For your information, Pete, that report is ready and is on standby for at the end of this particular report, which we are dealing with now.

WEAVER: Thank you.

BISHOP LAWSON: You will, perhaps, allow a little flexibility around that if we find that the choir can come, but right about that period of time.

WEAVER: I would hope it would come before we enter into the debate concerning this matter, so that that might be a tool if the body chooses for discernment.

BISHOP LAWSON: Before we consider what matter, Pete?

WEAVER: After the perfecting of the minority report, before we enter into the debate concerning the minority report and the majority report.

BISHOP LAWSON: I think that would be most awkward for us, parliamentarily speaking, but it will come to the floor as soon as possible, and I thank you for your question. Now before us, we have the minority report. It's available for perfection as you did, in fact, request. Does anybody care to work on it?

Yes, there's a woman right here. These new orange cards are just remarkably helpful.

SHARON ADAIR (North Texas): Bishop, I believe you gave me permission. I'm on microphone 13.

BISHOP LAWSON: I'm sorry, but I called on the lady walking across here. And you're coming up here to microphone 2.

ADAIR: You gave me permission before Pete spoke.

BISHOP LAWSON: I'm very sorry, but the lady up here. Ma'am, you just stay in the precinct back there, and we'll come to you. All right, number 2.

Evaluation of Process Transition by GCORR and COSROW

GWEN HENDERSON (North Carolina): I have a point of information or clarification regarding the minority report, page 255, subsection 9, left column. It reads, "Further be it resolved that the GCORR" and I won't read the rest of it. But the question that I have is, does implementation mean GCORR will monitor the composition of CRC and CPT?

THOMAS (ANDY) A. LANGFORD, III (Western North Carolina): The answer is, I understand, this writing to be precisely what was in the majority report. And so the minority report uses language CRC, whereas the majority report uses language CPT. It's exactly the same.

HENDERSON: CRC?

LANGFORD: Just to be different. Sorry. So yes. So it means the Commission on Religion and Race and COSROW will evaluate both processes, whichever way is done.

HENDERSON: Will monitor the composition of?

LANGFORD: I assume so, yes.

HENDERSON: Thank you.

BISHOP LAWSON: Thank you very much. Now microphone 13.

ADAIR: I want to speak against the minority report by speaking in favor of the majority report.

BISHOP LAWSON: At this particular point we're perfecting the minority report. That is to say, I'm receiving motions that might perfect it. There'll come a moment in time when your statement will be most appropriate.

ADAIR: Thank you.

BISHOP LAWSON: Thank you very much. Does anybody want to make an amendment to the minority report? Yes ma'am. You're coming out and coming forward to microphone 3.

LAVADA REDDING (Rocky Mountain): In last night's procedures, it was decided that we would abstain from using the acronyms, so to better allow the central jurisdiction people to be with us in this process. But we seem to have gone back to that today.

BISHOP LAWSON: Thank you for your reminder to us. It's such a habit. It's in our genes, I think. Over here in this section. I think that person must not want the floor. Must be fanning with the orange fan. Over here by number 8.

Question Effect of Proposals on Central Conferences

THOMAS BOLLER (Yellowstone): I have a point of inquiry. Will either the minority or the majority report, if they are approved, discourage or encourage or permit churches outside the United States belonging to central conferences the option on autonomous relationship or to join up with churches to form a united church in their particular country? What kind of effect does this have on that proposal that will be coming before us?

LANGFORD: I simply have not thought through that. I assume this is absolutely neutral regarding that.

BISHOP LAWSON: There are current provisions in our polity allowing for those possibilities if anybody wants to exercise them. It is consensus of the people around me that there is nothing in this that would prevent that during the period of this study.

BOLLER: Thank you.

BISHOP LAWSON: You're very welcome. Now does anybody have an amendment they want to make to the report. I'm coming over here. Coming forward to microphone 10.

Speaking in Favor of Global Church

ROLF LINDELL (Sweden): I would like to amend the minority report, on the middle column, in the bottom, starting with number 116 persons unto the end of number 2 from the right-hand column, to delete these two paragraphs; and instead of that, put what is on the majority report, page 252, on the right-hand column, point B1 reading, "24 persons nominated," and so on.

BISHOP LAWSON: Is it seconded? It is seconded. The chair understands that you're substituting on page 254 the center column, the second and third paragraphs, all the way down to the bottom of that column and the top of the column on the right-hand side down to 2. And you're substituting the material on page 252, Item B1. Do I understand you correctly?

LINDELL: Yes sir.

BISHOP LAWSON: Would you like to speak to that?

LINDELL: Well, I have a very short comment to that, and that is that in dealing with global church I find it extremely important that the central conferences are represented, not only by the 20 percent, but a little bit more as I then have suggested.

BISHOP LAWSON: All right. Thank you. You understand that this is a substitution of the material on page 252 substituted for the material on page 254. It's before you. Anybody care to speak against it? I see no one caring to speak against it. Andy, would you like to say anything before we act on it?

LANGFORD: The minority report simply reflects, I believe, more accurately the regional and global representation of this denomination. The global conferences of the central conferences, which are a vital part of this church today, constitute 12 percent of our membership. It seemed the position of the minority report that because this is a global committee, the 20 percent was fair, in fact, very fair to have that voice heard. I'd urge defeat of the amendment.

BISHOP LAWSON: Now if you would support substituting the material on page 252, B1. If you would place that material over on page 254, if you would do that as a substitute would you please vote "yes." If you would not, "no." When you see the light would you please vote? [Results: yes, 324; no, 565] No, you would not make that substitution and so the minority report is not amended. Anybody else care to speak to it or amend it in any way? Are you ready to vote on the minority report? You seem to be ready to vote. Andy, do you have anything you'd like to say? Andy is first.

LANGFORD: First of all, I give thanks for this General Conference for the way in which you have dealt with the issue this afternoon. You have noted the major differences between the two reports. You've discussed them well. You have debated them well. And I congratulate you.

I come this day as a person who loves The United Methodist Church. I'm a child of this church. I'm a servant of this church. I'm a student of its theology. I love its history. I celebrate its diversity. But I fear deeply for this, our denomination. We're searching for theological integrity. We're struggling with how to speak to rapidly changing cultures. And we are flawed structurally.

*Agencies/Masters?
Local Churches/Servants?*

The number one organizational flaw of this denomination, as we have had in place since 1968, is that in our United Methodist system, our organization, especially the general agencies, have been like masters. And the local congregations have been treated like unwilling servants.

Local churches, I believe, have been captives of a bureaucratic organization, which have hindered both local ministry and the global ministry of our denomination. In 1992, I stood in a similar place before the General Conference, and presented to you a United Methodist Book of Worship, with the intent to reform the worship life of our denomination.

On this day, I present to you a minority report, which gives us the hope of also reforming our structure. I had high hopes for the Connectional Issues Study. It was led by exceptionally competent people and staff. They had a big task in front of them, and I had high hopes, that as they worked hard, that what they came out with would really help us re-shape this denomination. But when I saw the report, as you have it in your Advanced DCA, your DCA, it appears, at least to me, that it has an unclear vision. It has a limited affirmation of the local church. There is no substantial critique of our general agencies. It appears to me cautious and business-as-usual.

In our own legislative committee, we have worked hard this last week, and the document is better than it was a week ago. But in essence, I would contend that it asks us to maintain the status quo for another four years. We have changed the membership of the general agencies, the voting membership, but that is not substantial. In this report, there are very few measurable goals. Especially regarding the relationship between the general agencies and the local congregations they are designed to serve.

BISHOP LAWSON: Andy, you must come to a conclusion.

LANGFORD: Yes, sir. In the town in which I live, there's a train track that goes through the middle. You can see, every day, locomotives going down that train track. And there are engineers in it, blowing whistles, following wherever that train track leads. On this day, my sense of this General Conference, is that we are riding that train, that locomotive, blowing the whistle, taking us wherever that track is leading. I want us to engage in laying some new tracks, some new rails, to take the church in another direction.

When we go home, our friends and neighbors will ask us, "Did you, in the tradition of the Wesleys, reform The United Methodist Church?" If you vote for the majority report, you're going to say "no." We came, we saw, we talked. We put off major decisions for four years. If you vote for the minority report, you'll be saying, "We began to lay some new tracks, to take this church forward." I urge you to vote for the minority report. Thank you, Bishop.

BISHOP LAWSON: I call now on the maker of the majority report. Point of Order, yes.

BECKY HAASE (California-Pacific): Would you clarify for me, bishop, are we actually coming to the vote now, because I don't believe we've had any debate? We were perfecting the minority report, is that correct?

BISHOP LAWSON: The procedures that we have and our rules bring us to the point of where we have perfected both. We complete our work by doing so, and then the matter is put to a vote after the speakers speak.

HAASE: And we do not have actual debate on the issue after it's perfected?

BISHOP LAWSON: That is in keeping with our rules, yes.

HAASE: Thank you.

BISHOP LAWSON: Please?

DAVID SEVERE (Oklahoma): Thank you. The legislative committee urges you to defeat the minority report. There are a number of flaws in it that we will not take time to go into. There are things in it that would really be, in fact, business-as-usual, because it would represent the way we have been. We would have representation that would exclude many of our central conference brothers and sisters.

It would go back to a formula based on an old paradigm that is passing out of existence. They would have only three central conference representatives, while the majority report would call for nine, as we begin to feel our way forward to this new church that is before us.

The minority report calls for no particular staff relationship, forgetting the rule that says, "everybody's business is nobody's business." They offer a nebulous suggestion that staffing could be done by all of the general agencies. Does that mean that every agency must pry loose precious staff time for the process team? We believe the GCOM is well-suited by preparation, experience, and job description to adequately staff the needs that we have.

Finally, we note that the minority report wishes that what they would call the CRC to deliberate all that it wants, but it prescribes what it must decide with regard to reduction of agencies and budgets. There is a current-reality, budget-driven approach, and this process is truncated by a present mandate.

We, too, believe that reductions may be what is in the future, but we wish to see the CPT allowed to have a vision-pulled reality and the opportunity to discern a compelling, unifying vision for the entire church into the 21st century.

I used to have a recurring dream when I was a child. Andy reminded me of it when he talked about the train track. My dream was that the track, the train had jumped the track, and it was coming up the street, and it was going to get me. I think that the minority report is scary like that. I would suggest to you that let us not seek to control the spirit and order the future out of our fears, our angers, or our frustrations.

Let us trust the spirit in the process which the majority report asks us to do. Let us be open to where the spirit might lead, even if we're a little giddy at the thought we don't have to know the answer before we get there. Let us be confident that it is not up to us and us alone to guard God's future from breaking in upon us. I encourage you to vote this minority report down, and make it possible for us to receive the gift of a new church, which God wishes to bestow upon us. I move the defeat of the minority report.

BISHOP LAWSON: Now the floor is open for the debate you hoped for. Yes, and this is not amendment time. We're just talking about the proposals. You will have to decide as we go along, at what point in time do you think we've heard the kind of statements we need to hear to help us to vote. And that, of course, will be a lot less than what you might guess. Think a little bit about when we've had enough. Yes, ma'am. Microphone 2.

MONTY STABLER (North Alabama): Bishop, I'm speaking for the minority report. We heard the challenge this morning from Bishop Hoyt to dream beyond our maps. My dream is a united church that has its hands on the local and national levels together. I dream of a denomination that embraces diversity in the spirit of love. I dream of a denomination that has confidence in its local church enough to believe that it's worthy enough to act responsibly on mission without being told what to do at every point.

Seventy percent of us have concerns about the structure of the denomination. Most of us have our concerns, but take little action to these concerns. Andy Langford has gone further. Rather than being negative about the past, he offers a solution that provides hope for the future. This minority report is visionary, positive, and a great solution. I urge that you give it your prayerful and sincere consideration.

BISHOP LAWSON: Now I want to acknowledge to myself that there's a person at microphone 13. Are you speaking against the minority report?

SHARON ADAIR (North Texas): I have a point of order, please.

BISHOP LAWSON: Yes, ma'am.

ADAIR: Are we speaking against or for the minority report? And will we have a chance to debate the main motion after this vote?

BISHOP LAWSON: We will decide what the main motion is, and then we will speak to it.

ADAIR: Well, may I speak now against the minority report?

BISHOP LAWSON: Yes.

ADAIR: I want to speak against. I want to speak against the minority report by speaking in favor of the majority report.

I feel the majority report is adequate. It needs no changes. We could discuss detail changes all day. I was on the initial General Council on Ministries Task Force when it began in 1988. This is a change in our church that we must approve. We are now a global church and we need to look like one.

Like someone said yesterday, let's get in front of the parade. I watched the central conference delegates in my legislative committee and saw how many times they voted "abstain," because an issue just did not relate to them. We must move past our patronizing attitude towards central conferences and give them the power, through the regional conferences, that they need to move ahead with their own unique growing ministries. This study is critical. I urge you to vote against the minority report in favor of the majority report. Thank you.

BISHOP LAWSON: Someone care to speak in favor of the minority report? In favor? You're standing, Sir. Would you go to microphone 14?

Effect of Connectional Issues Study on Local Church

ROBERT E. HAYS, JR. (Texas): Bishop, the voice of the local church is crying in the wilderness. And that voice has not been heard in many years. And if we don't heed the voice of the local church, I'm afraid that the voice will not be there in the years to come.

What this legislation does, the majority report, is to prescribe to a hurting and dying church, an aspirin of mediocrity that is clothed in $200 words like "interactive," "affirming," "discerning;" $200 words that won't mean two cents to the people who are struggling to catch the vision in the local church.

Indeed, the church needs many things, but it does not need yet another concept which asks us to go back to the local church to do away with most of what we already have been working on hard and diligently. But, to bring in now, confusing, frustrating terms will take people to resignation. This legislation does not fix the broken pieces of our faith and of our denomination. If we take this aspirin of mediocrity, I'm afraid that when we wake up in the morning, the great physician will not even be there to answer our call. I urge you to vote in behalf of the minority report.

BISHOP LAWSON: There's room for someone to speak against the minority report. And back in the corner, microphone 11.

THOMAS J. BICKERTON (West Virginia): Most days when I wake up I fool myself into believing that I'm about this much smarter than God. I think my way is best. That is, until I think beyond myself through interacting with other people, through earnest prayer, and faithful study. I believe that some of the most important words inserted into this amended report are found on page 252 in the second column where the report mandates the Connectional Process Team to review and consider other pertinent studies and responses beyond the Connectional Issues Study in order to discern God's will.

The majority report openly acknowledges the hard work, and in many cases good work, of varieties of groups and peoples working independently of one another in formulating a vision and a plan of implementation for our church's future. The majority report does more than just receive other proposals, as is recommended in the minority report. It reviews and considers them through an interactive model of mutual dialogue and discovery, in order to reach common understanding of God's vision for the church and how that vision can be implemented across the connection.

BISHOP LAWSON: Three minutes, sir.

BICKERTON: The minority report states that the Connectional Issues Study recommendations are not sensitive to the local church. I disagree. Recommendation 3 provides for communication and training in how to develop flexible, interactive models. Recommendation 4 recommends feedback from the local church. Recommendation 7 provides listening sessions.

Friends, as we journey through this transitional period in our church's life, we are sailing in uncharted waters. And if those waters are uncharted, I believe we need to have as much input and support as is possible, and remain open and flexible in our process so that we can discern God's direction lest we think that our own agenda is best. I urge the passage of the majority report's proposal.

Connectional Issues Minority Report Defeated

BISHOP LAWSON: I recognize there are persons with waving cards. I need to imply a question. The question continues to be, at what point do you have enough wisdom and enough insight to vote. Are you of a mind to vote? It is the sense of the chair that you are of a mind to vote with recognition that there are persons who would say other things if they could. If you are of a mind to vote, the question before us is, "Will you support the minority report?" And if you want to do that then you will vote "yes" and if you do not you will vote "no." Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 374; no, 567.]

No, you do not affirm the minority report and that means now that the principal motion before us is the majority report. And I call your attention to that and the floor is open for persons who would care to speak beyond what we've heard now. Who would speak? It is a wonderful chorus. If there were sopranos and basses and tenors, you could sound beautiful by the way you do it. But, that doesn't really help me very much. As I understand our situation, the floor in fact is open for statements if there are persons who desire to make any. And so I see in the center section in the back, going to microphone 14.

ARDITH ALLREAD (California-Nevada): Bishop, I move that we vote on all that is before us.

BISHOP LAWSON: We have a motion for the question. I think that motion is in fact in order at this point in time. Is it seconded? I think the various groans were seconds of one kind or another. [laughter] This is going to take a two-thirds vote. If you would close debate—remember this is not an insignificant thing to do, you're asking the house to stop the conversation—it takes two-thirds of you to do that. If you would close debate, would you please vote when the light appears. [826 approved]

There is some sense that you probably want to vote. [laughter] If you would. You are ready now? You are ready now.

DAVID SEVERE: Bishop? May we have the closing statement please? You don't want to hear Minerva? [laughter] Oh, all right. Thank you.

Connectional Issues Majority Report Approved

BISHOP LAWSON: I was raised along the railroad tracks, but they don't seem to want to hear our railroad stories [laughter]. And so, if you would support the majority report, you're going to vote "yes." If no, "no." When the light appears, you will vote. [720 approved] Yes, you do support the majority report. That action is complete.

I would like to suggest to you that we have a pending action from this morning, and if you will turn your attention now to Jerome Del Pino. Let me say to you that as soon as this is handled, which will surely be in just a moment, we will then turn to the Africa University report, and we'll entertain our guests from Zimbabwe. Jerome, are you on the precincts?

JEROME K. DEL PINO (New England): Bishop, after due consideration and the urging of this body last evening, the Committee on the Plan of Organization and Rules of Order has developed a response, which we feel is appropriate to the request made by this body.

BISHOP LAWSON: Jerome, a reference point. You're talking about Rule 36?

Standing Rule of Order 36 Hassinger Discernment Motion

DEL PINO: I'm referencing, Bishop, Rule 36 of our Standing Rules of Order, and also the motion that was made and is located in the Daily Christian Advocate, volume 3, number 2, page 54.

To refresh the body's memory, it would be important for us to just simply indicate that on the first day of our coming together we were presented a motion that was received by the presenter of the Plan of Organization and Rules of Order for that session. As was indicated last night, by the maker of the motion, calling for the committee to respond to you today, there was strong implication that it would be responded to.

As a result, the committee then, last night, chose to meet with the original maker of the motion to amend Rule 36 by adding a new number 4, which would be on...the motion is on page 54, as I already indicated of your DCA. We did meet with the maker of the motion and gave opportunity to for her to expand further upon her conception of what the committee has already prior to that motion last night affirmed, in principle, as an appropriate approach for this body to make in succeeding General Conferences. Subsequent to discussion by the committee, the following motion was made, and I now present to you.

Whereas the Plan of Organization and Rules of Order adopted by the 1996 General Conference already provides for ways to suspend the rules to accomplish the objectives of the Hassinger motion; and whereas, the Committee on Plan of Organization and Rules of Order believes that the Hassinger motion deserves careful consideration over the upcoming quadrennium; therefore, the committee affirms the current rules until such time as it can give the Hassinger proposal due consideration. That is the committee's response, Bishop.

BISHOP LAWSON: I assume this takes the form of a motion of affirmation of the current rules? And that is from your committee and doesn't require a second. The floor is open. You're ready to vote? If you would affirm the current Rule 36, would you please vote when you see the light. [748 approved] And you do so affirm.

Let me tell you where we are, please. Thank you Jerome. We are now preparing to receive the Africa University report with this wonderful choir as a part of that report. It has been recommended to us that we complete this report and that we take our two hour evening break from the time this report is completed until two hours have elapsed. Is that a satisfactory arrangement with you? Any problems with it anywhere? All right. Ken, you wanting the floor for...microphone 4.

Rules Suspended for Cleveland 2000 Invitation

KENNETH CHALKER (East Ohio): Bishop, I would like to move for suspension of Rule 12, on page 35 of the blue book. Regarding distribution to the desks of delegates for the purpose for facilitating a matter of privilege. I apologize for my shaky voice. The altitude of this conference is affecting me. The Committee on Agenda has granted Bishop Edwin Boulton time on the Friday agenda for the purpose of cordially inviting the General Conference to Cleveland, Ohio. And specifically, to the wonderfully renewed city of Cleveland, indeed, in the year 2000 and the East Ohio Annual Conference.

We would like to have distributed at each delegate's desk, a formal written invitation, in preparation for Bishop Boulton's appearance at the podium on Friday. I respectfully request suspension of Rule 12 to allow for the distribution of this invitation.

BISHOP LAWSON: Motion to suspend that rule for this purpose. If you would, is that seconded? It is seconded. Would you consent to raise hands just now? If you would suspend the rule, would you please raise your hand? Thank you, if you would not, would you raise your hand. The rule is suspended. And now you're moving that you would like to have permission to distribute this material. Do I understand you correctly? Is that motion seconded? All right. It is before you. Would you give consent for the distribution of this material? If you would, would you raise your hand? Thank you. If you would not, would you raise your hand? (Passed)

Let me use this as an occasion to say to you that, however, there has been other material circulated in the course of this particular session for which permission was not gained. And we simply take this occasion to remind us all that that is not appropriate. There is, as I understand, around here no mood to be punitive toward anyone, but simply to ask us all to be sensitive to the guidelines of the General Conference. Now it is really important that we go to the Africa University report. Do have something pretty critical for us here, Sir? Microphone 9.

DALE FOOSHEE (Kansas East): I request for a very short personal privilege so that we may get this in this afternoon.

BISHOP LAWSON: Personal privilege is recognized.

Tribute to Clergy Women

FOOSHEE: As a member of the Kansas East delegation, it is my privilege and joy to sit with Rev. H. Sharon Howell, one of the ten clergy women in full connection elected to the 1976 General Conference. The 1976 General Conference marked the first time when women with full clergy rights were seated at the General Conference of the United Methodist Church.

Granting women full clergy rights was made possible by the action of the 1956 General Conference of the Methodist Church, and affirmed at the 1968 uniting conference. Today, 40 years after that action, Sharon sits as one of over 100 clergy women in full connection, together with 200 lay women delegates in this General Conference. I move that this conference of the United Methodist Church affirm and celebrate full clergy rights for women, and also invite the General Conference to express commendation and thanksgiving for the profound and faithful ministry of thousands of clergy women who serve Christ in the church within our United Methodist connection. Thank you. (applause)

Thank you for that, and I'd like to suggest to you that we ask these clergy women to stand, if they will, please. Because of my failure to be clear, I think, in the instructions, we had some clergy women standing and who looked for all the world like men. [laughter]. Calling on Janice Huie for a matter.

JANICE HUIE (Southwest Texas): This is a technical motion to help us later in the week. Bishop Lawson, I move that we suspend the rules for the purpose of lifting Calendar Item 195 from the Consent Calendar and reconsidering it with the Local Church report. We harmonized our version from Local Church with the Committee on Discipleship, and this will help us bring one report to the conference.

PAUL ERVIN (North Carolina): Paul Irvin, chair of the Legislative Committee on Discipleship, and we confirm that this is the case.

BISHOP LAWSON: We have a motion to suspend the rules in order that—please state it again so we'll all understand it.

HUIE: In order that we may reconsider Calendar Item 195. It's currently on the Consent Calendar. We'll need to lift it from the Consent Calendar, and it will be reconsidered with the Local Church report.

BISHOP LAWSON: Thank you. You could certainly use hands again. If you would suspend the rules for this purpose, would you please raise your hand? Thank you. If you would not? And they are suspended, and that is effective. Thank you very much. We turn now to the Africa University report. Roger Ireson.

ROGER IRESON: (General Secretary of the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry) Thank you, Bishop Lawson. At the conclusion of our report, after the choir has sung its last song, we'll ask the marshalls and the pages to distribute this printed report. Ladies and gentleman of the General Conference, it is time to celebrate.

History of Africa University

In St. Louis, eight years ago, we came to you with a dream of the African people for a university, and at that time, we had an empty field. Shortly thereafter, at a meeting in Harare, in a moment of inspiration, in the middle of the night, Bishop David Lawson woke up and penned the mission statement for the faculty of theology that has now become incorporated in the mission statement of Africa University. And that mission statement has guided us throughout these years.

Four years ago in Louisville, we had acquired government legislation for a private, church-related university in a country that had never had private, church-related universities, along with three buildings renovated by the volunteer-in-mission teams, and two faculties functioning: agriculture and theology.

Today, in Denver, in 1996, we have nine buildings, four faculties (agriculture, theology, management, and education, which is opening in August of this year); and a humanities core teaching staff; $9.5 million in the endowment fund providing scholarships to students from 17 African countries. We hope to have five faculties by the turn of the century and 1000 students by the year 2000 thousand.

However, the best way to understand Africa University is to meet the students. So we have brought the Africa University choir and two recent graduates who are now at work in their home countries, to meet you at the General Conference during this presentation. I know that you will want to know that a CD of the choir and tapes are on sale in the bookstore. And they've been provided graciously by the Board of Global Ministries. We're all cooperating in this great project. And all the proceeds go to Africa University.

It is my pleasure now to introduce to a man who has given great leadership and commitment to this project, the president of the Board of Higher Education and Ministry, Bishop Calvin D. McConnell. [applause]

BISHOP CALVIN D. MCCONNELL (Seattle Area): It has been eight years now since Bishop Leontine Kelly swung her gavel down confirming the vote that was made by the General Conference for global United Methodism to establish at last, again, in our long heritage, a new university, this time in sub-Saharan Africa. Zimbabwe was the place that was chosen to establish this university. The Zimbabwe Conference then donated land next to the Hartzell school in old, Mutare, on a beautiful hillside that was covered with brush and grass and yam fields.

And now we have a campus there. Eight years, and we have done it. We United Methodists from across the world have accomplished an awesome challenge of giving birth to a new full-fledged, four-year university in the kind of days and times in which we live. It is a university for African students, with an African administration, African faculty, for the most part, an international board of trustees, the majority of whom are Africans, an enrollment of 300, our first graduating class in December of 1994, a campus of beautiful and functional buildings which continues to grow.

And here's our opportunity as a general church. (applause)

(applause)

To the students, we welcome you with our hearts overflowing with love for you, and with the expression of gratitude to each other here, for our faithful witness that has made it possible for these students to be here. And always with our hearts filled with gratitude to the grace of God, which has made this all possible. Now we want you to see a brief video. And then, following this video, we will ask the first chancellor of the university, Bishop De Carvalho, to speak to us and to introduce the students.

First Africa University Chancellor Brings Greetings

BISHOP EMILIO de CARVALHO: Africa University stands today as a concrete commitment of The United Methodist Church in helping to eradicate ignorance and to train the present and the future generations of African leaders. The development of the university comes from an action of 1988 General Conference, implemented by a group of committed women and men, and will continue to create a universal forum for the youth of our countries, moving them toward intellectual maturity through university training.

Being the only officially United Methodist-related university in Africa, please note, the only officially United Methodist-related university in the whole continent of Africa. Coming from an action of this General Conference, Africa University stands today as the sole United Methodist institution of higher learning on the continent of Africa, directly established by this United Methodist Church.

This time we bring to this General Conference, some of the outstanding first fruits of its endeavors, who are already engaged in applying what they have learned in their own countries. They are a part of a group of 29 graduates, and are here to help us, all of us, to re-catch the vision and to join the United Methodist Church in this major project, by dedicating, again, anew, our prayers and the material resources to the growth and development of such an educational undertaking.

It is with a great joy that I introduce to you, Mr. Paulo Filipe Bunga, a graduate in agriculture and natural resources from Angola, and the Rev. Tsitsi Moyo, a graduate in theology from Zimbabwe. Let's welcome them here. (applause)

Agriculture Graduate Speaks

PAULO FILIPE BUNGA (Angola): Thank you. In March 1992, 28 seeds were planted at a place called Africa University in Zimbabwe. And on 17 December 1994, 28 learned minds were harvested from Africa University. (applause) And I bring to you special greetings from the 28 students that graduated from Africa University in 1994. My name is Paulo Filipe Bunga from Angola, a 1994 graduate from the faculty of agriculture and natural resources. After graduation I was employed as an agricultural base project manager by the United Nations Development Program in Mozambique, where we took the challenge of changing an ex-soldier into a farmer in order to increase food production. I'm presently employed by the World Food Program of the United Nations in Angola as a food aid monitor. My responsibilities range from monitoring and coordinating food assistance and insuring overall food security in my region of assignment. My activities go around in four essential areas:

First, I have to organize food distribution to communities in need. I do that through surveys where I identify areas of critical food shortage and I have to negotiate with the government and other non-governmental organizations in order to provide food, and I distribute it.

Second, I make a general assessment of the marketing system and the marketing conditions in my region.

Third, I create food-for-work programs whereby I motivate farmers to participate in other rural development projects. And they are paid or given food in return, instead of money.

Fourth, my food security activities involve measuring the farmers' food stock for a period of six months. And, if I find a family which is food-insecure, I have to try my best to provide the food.

I'd like to stress the fact that my intellectual and professional capabilities are fruits of the high standard of education that Africa University provided, along with a strong Christian foundation. (applause)

Finally, on behalf of Africa University "alpha class" I take this opportunity to thank you all for the great support you gave us through graduation and you continue to give to Africa University. (applause)

Theology Graduate Tells Her Story

TSITSI MOYO: Bishops, pastors, lay delegates, I feel greatly honored and privileged to be invited to this General Conference. My name is Tsitsi Moyo. I am married and I am a mother of four beautiful girls. I was born in 1965 in an extra big family of 10, comprising of eight boys and two girls. When I was a young girl, I had to drop out from school to let the boys continue with their education. This was quite a blow to me. I always wanted to go to university, and it seemed as if my dream would never be realized.

I was married very young, but my zeal for education kept on growing. After 10 years of marriage, and being a mother of four, my husband, who is a pastor also, allowed me to study. It was not easy, being a wife, a mother and a student all at the same time, but the good Lord saw me through and I finally qualified to go to university.

The building of Africa University was right on time. It was an answer to my prayers. To me, Africa University was built especially for me. (applause) If it had been opened a year earlier or a year later maybe I could not have made it. It was God's perfect timing. With the help of my church, I managed to secure a place there. At Africa University, I learned so many things. When I graduated, I was a whole new person. I learned my duties and responsibilities as a pastor. I was helped to realize my identity and my strength.

I learned self-control which is vital for a pastor. I also learned how to deal with opposition and criticism. Now I am leading a church with a membership of more than 1,500. When I was appointed there, (that is less than two years ago), it had a membership of 700, comprised mainly of elders, males for that matter. I being the first woman clergy to be sent to them, surely opposition and criticisms were not to be exempted. My opposers had done a good job. They had exercised my spiritual muscles. Instead of falling, I stood up. Instead of crying and frowning as I used to do, I smiled. Most of all, at Africa University I learned to praise God in everything, in every situation whether good or bad. (applause)

My church is in Harare and it is known by the name of St. Andrew's United Methodist Church. I preach, teach, do counselling, do house-to-house visitations. I visit prisons and preach to prisoners. I visit hospitals and share the good news with the sick and preach to the hospital staff during lunch time. Pastoring is very interesting; it is full of challenges. Each day is different from the previous one. I enjoy my work. I am thankful to the Lord who called me, and to Africa University for the preparation and training and to you all for your support. Thank you. (applause)

Chancellor Kurewa Sends Greetings

eral Conference, we greet you in the name of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. I'm Jim Salley, a lay delegate from South Carolina and the Assistant Vice Chancellor for Development for Africa University. From offices in Nashville, Tennessee, at the Board of Education and Ministry, it's our responsibility to advance Africa University to the United Methodist Church, and the world. We bring you greetings on behalf of Dr. J. W. Z. Kurewa, the chancellor and president of your Africa University, the administration, faculty, staff, and students, and say, thank you, thank you to this General Conference and the United Methodist Church for your support, your gifts and your prayers. Africa University was founded on a dream or a vision that can be traced back to 1897 and a Methodist Missionary from the Central Illinois Annual Conference by the name of Bishop Joseph Crane Hartzell.

We believe that Africa University is a gift from God, and we thank all of you for being Africa University partners and helping to make the dream a reality. Dr. Benjamin E. Mays, the great African-American educator from South Carolina, said, "It's a sin to have low aim." He also said, "It's a worse sin to have no aim at all." At Africa University, we have high aim; we aim high. We dream big dreams, and we see visions. At Africa University we know that dreams do come true, because we see God's work as it manifests through the Holy Spirit every day.

We invite you to catch the vision and be a partner in one of the most important mission projects of the United Methodist Church in this century. In the 36th chapter of the Book of Exodus, verse 7, you find these words, "For the stuff they had, was sufficient to do all the work and more."

Well, at Africa University, we don't have enough stuff yet. But we believe, that within the United Methodist Church, within Methodism worldwide, we have enough stuff to do all the work and more for Africa University. Let's finish what we've started. Bishop Lawson, members of the General Conference, thank you for your support and your prayers for Africa University. Now, Mr. Patrick Matsikenyiri and the Africa University Choir singing, "The Dream is Alive." (applause)

ROGER IRESON: Bishop Lawson, this concludes the report of the Africa University.

BISHOP LAWSON: I recognize Dick Reeves. Microphone 1.

Korean Gift to Africa University

DICK REEVES (Central Illinois): As has already been said, Bishop Hartzell came from our conference and was elected a bishop a hundred years ago this year in New Orleans. I also serve on the Africa University Board of Directors, and I'm chairman of its Building and Grounds Committee. Bishop Sondu Kim, directing pastor of Kwanlin Methodist Church in Seoul, Korea, is here among us. This is the church that has given Africa University $1 million U.S. dollars to build the chapel on the campus. The working drawings are now in process. We go out for tenders in August. We hope to start building in September of this year. I'd like to ask permission for Bishop Kim to address us briefly. Anyone who gives Africa University $1 million ought to be permitted, I think, to say a word. [applause]

BISHOP SONDU KIM: Thank you very much, Bishop Lawson, and delegates of conference. It is my great privilege to express my testimony to you, what God has done to our church. One hundred and ten years ago, American missionaries came over to Korea. They served the gospel. They planted the churches and they established the universities, colleges and seminaries. Now we have 1,035,000 Methodists spreading the gospel to all of the world. Now, by the millennium it will be open, new future. This is the time of cooperation for the organization of the gospel. Now Korean church eagerly wanted to help the globalization of the gospel. We are not a rich church. We are a poor church, as you know. But we eagerly wanted to cooperate with you for the mission all over the world.

Still we have the tension between North Korea and South Korea. Probably you noticed or you heard about the tension between the North and the South just a few weeks ago. However, you prayed for us. You encouraged all of us. God will help us with reconciliation and unification in the future. So last Easter Sunday morning, we offered them the money to send to North Korea. They are starting to die spiritually and physically. We are going to help them to resurrect them to be as a child of God. Now, I eagerly request for you to pray for us, Korean people. We eagerly wanted to help, to cooperate with you, into mission for all the world. Thank you for prayer. Thank you for your encouragement. God bless you. Thank you very much. [applause]

BISHOP LAWSON: Now we come to the time of our adjournment. It is my understanding that you will be back here at 7:30 to do business. During the time after adjournment, if any of you want to stay, this good choir will continue our concert for us. I think that it's appropriate to repeat the experience of prayer. We are aware here in the United States that across Oklahoma, Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, large numbers of persons have become the victims of tornadoes. Significant numbers of churches have been destroyed, lives have been lost, and untold numbers of homes have been left beyond the possibility of being used. June Goldman, I think you'll understand and I'd like to suggest this evening sometime that your motion might come forward instead of at this particular moment. I'd like to invite you all to be in prayer with me, and with that prayer, we are adjourned.

(prayer)

CAROLYN MARSHALL (South Indiana): It is almost anti—can you hold for a moment? It seems anticlimatic after this to have to make some announcements, yet there are three that do need to come before us. The first one being that the presiding officers need to meet immediately near the steps here at the front of the platform. The Leadership Team for Ordained and Diaconal Ministry will meet very briefly at the conclusion of this evening's session in A106, and the Discipleship Legislative Committee is to meet immediately for approximately ten minutes in rooms A108, 110. Thank you.

Tuesday Evening April 23, 1996

Bishop Clay Foster Lee, Jr., presiding

BISHOP CLAY FOSTER LEE, JR.: I'd like to ask you now, if you would please, bring your conversation to a close. And if you would be seated in your place, I'd like for us to enter into a time of prayer. And our prayer this evening is going to be a prayer that means so much to all of us. We're going to change a word in it. Rather than singing and praying "Jesus, remember me when you come into your kingdom", we're going to be singing "Jesus, remember us," and with the emphasis upon the fact that that's a plural term, not just those of us here, but all of God's people around this world. Cynthia, come and lead us, if you would, as we pray together through song.

(song)

BISHOP LEE: Amen. I see a card. Would you please go to microphone 5?

JUNE P. GOLDMAN (Iowa): Bishop Lee, thank you for this moment of personal privilege.

BISHOP LEE: Would the conference please be in order?

Cross Requested for Conference Platform

GOLDMAN: I wish to convey concern that has been expressed by a number of persons including observers and visitors who are here. The focal point of this conference resides in the cup and the loaf, certainly a most appropriate and deeply meaningful image. But our friends have asked why there is no cross to hold our attention as a constant focal point. To be sure, there is a cross that is part of the logo that appears occasionally on the screen. But most of the time, the screen is filled with other images. And unfortunately, the cup and the loaf are not visible from many of the sections where we are seated. Since the cross is central to our faith and needs to undergird all of our deliberations, I would respectfully ask the appropriate committee if it might be possible to include a cross somewhere on the platform as a gentle reminder of whose we are. Thank you. (applause)

BISHOP LEE: Thank you. A matter of personal privilege requesting that the appropriate committee would take under consideration the placing of a cross as a symbol, central symbol here on the platform. Yes, I see a card to my left. Go to microphone 10, please. And if you would, please, state the nature of...

One Africa, Many Countries

AKASA UMEMBUDI (Central Zaire): The dear Bishop, brothers and sisters, delegate to the, to this General Conference. We all are very excited for all the good things that have been done, accomplished with Africa University. There is no need to tell you that I am an African, and that, consequently, Africa University is my university. Nevertheless, there are few concern or some concern that I want to bring to your attention. Africa is a continent, not one country or one state. I call that because, one day during my itineration here, I happened to talk to a high school class and when I presented myself, one student, very excited, told me, "Mr. Akasa, I saw your president on the TV last night. Then I ask him, "Who was the president?" And this was his answer: "Mr. Nelson Mandela." (laughter) So, many of us, or many of you still consider Africa like one country. Africa is not one country, is a whole continent.

Number two, Africa is multi-language continent. The predominant language, French, Arabic, English, Portuguese. The establishment of The United Methodist Church in my country, [unintelligible] Zaire, brought light, hope, love as Christ's gifts. And after the arrival of the first missionaries, churches were built, school, clinic established. And even today The United Methodist Church is still have [unintelligible] evangelisation, education, and health. And the local church is working harder and harder. And that's love; for example: In central, in Zaire, we have about 854 elementary schools, 238 high schools, three teacher training schools, two seminaries, and all that are United Methodist religious schools.

BISHOP LEE: May I call to your attention that your time is about up. If you could bring this to a conclusion.

U MEMBUDI: Yes, Bishop. The petition of the Africa University has shift the attention of the church, the global church away from all existing high education institutions. What are our requests? Our request is to see Africa University being like one body. And I take this like example: The Africa University being like a blanket to cover the body, which is the Africa high education system. And when you wrap the system, if and you have a thick, very thick cover, if one leg is outside the cover, you still feel cold.

So, would like to consider if there should be some means that Africa University be like umbrella for all the higher education institutions in Africa, that will have every country in Africa. Thank you.

BISHOP LEE: Thank you. (applause)

As you have probably noted, the agenda this evening is to take up calendar items that we really were supposed to be dealing with this afternoon. We'll pick up where we left off this afternoon, and I call on Independent Commissions, Carl Stewart, and then perhaps Cashar Evans will want to come on to his place for Financial Administration, as well as the Discipleship group, Paul Ervin and Don Pike for Church and Society. All right, Judge.

Commission on Pan-Methodist Union Approved

CARL STEWART (Louisiana): Thank you, Bishop. We will present Calendar Number 781. That'll be found on page 258 of your DCA. It is Petition 21726 and is found on page 931 in the Advanced Edition One, your red book. The petition involves the establishment of a Commission on Pan-Methodist union. This is a companion piece to the COCU petition that was presented this morning. In essence, the study commission, which has been in place since 1994, requests that the four general conferences of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, the Christian Methodist Episcopal Church, and the United Methodist Churches, move further towards reunion. And to that end, the creation of a commission on union is represented. The petition in your DCA spells out the particulars for it. And, as a committee, this matter was voted unanimously in favor, and we recommend concurrence with the petition. Bishop, I so move.

BISHOP LEE: All right, it is before you. Calendar Item 781. All right, I believe this goes directly to GCFA because there is money involved once it has been voted on.

STEWART: The matter in the monetary amount indicates that all four of the general conferences have agreed to have a pro rata share. It's my understanding that those monetary amounts are already taken care of, but otherwise this matter would go to GCFA.

BISHOP LEE: All right, it is before you. I do not see anyone asking for the floor, so you will vote please when the light appears. [767 approved] And the committee is sustained in its judgment of concurrence. And it will go to GCFA. All right.

Language for Ecumenical Legislation

STEWART: All right, thank you, Bishop. Next, we will consider Calendar Item 782. Also, found on page 258 of the DCA. It is Petition 20084, found on page 901 of your red book.

This petition is also a part of the ecumenical piece. It pertains to ecumenical relations and it would be a constitutional change. Paragraph five of the Discipline would be amended to add the language, "and covenantal relationships with" to the language of Article Five on page 22 of the Discipline. This petition, in essence, just provides the necessary language to make the disciplinary language conform to the action that we've taken earlier. The committee recommends concurrence, and I so move.

BISHOP LEE: All right, it is before you. You say that it is a constitutional amendment, so it'll take a two-thirds vote.

STEWART: Yes, sir.

BISHOP LEE: I do not see anyone requesting the floor. You will please vote when the light appears. [792 approved] The committee is sustained.

STEWART: All right, thank you, Bishop. That's all I have at this time.

BISHOP LEE: Thank you very kindly. We turn now to Financial Administration, Cashar Evans.

CASHAR EVANS (North Carolina): Bishop, I'd like for you to recognize Grady Knowles, from Cal-Nevada to present the pensions portion, please.

BISHOP LEE: Very good, Grady Knowles.

Mandatory Versus Voluntary Benefit Plans

GRADY KNOWLES (California-Nevada): Good evening. The pension and benefit sub-section of the Financial Administration Committee brings you four petitions tonight. The first one is found in the blue DCA on page 136. It's in the left column at the top. It's Calendar Item 145. The text of this petition is found in the red DCA on page 376, in the right hand column, half way down. It's Petition 21484. This is one of several petitions that replaces the current language in the Discipline regarding the General Board of Pension and Health Benefits. That section of the Discipline is being restated and updated. This particular paragraph is about the authorizations of the General Board. This new language distinguishes between the mandatory benefit programs of the church: the Ministerial Pension Plan, the Comprehensive Protection Plan, and the Staff Retirement Benefits Fund; and the voluntary plans: the Cumulative Pension Benefit Fund, the Basic Protection Plan and others, such as the HealthFlex plan. It indicates that the board can create new voluntary plans, can amend the voluntary plans to keep up with the needs of constituents. It also indicates that, in response to GCFA and others, the board can receive and invest non-employee benefit-related monies. It clarifies that the General Board may not use general church funds for administration or operation.

The petition comes to you from the committee with a recommendation for concurrence. The vote was 101 in favor, one against, one abstention. It was on the Consent Calendar, but it has been lifted from the Consent Calendar, and it is before you now for your consideration.

BISHOP LEE: All right, Calendar Item 145. The gentleman standing, please go to microphone 6.

FRANK E. TROTTER, JR. (Baltimore-Washington): I would like to move an amendment on the tenth line of Petition 21484 on page 376. After the sentence that ends with the word "families," to insert the following sentence, "subject to the provisions of paragraph 2506, herein, the General Board shall perform its duties and responsibilities in the spirit of the church's mandate for inclusiveness and racial and social justice." If it's seconded, I would like to speak to it.

BISHOP LEE: Is there a second? I hear a second. You may speak.

Inclusive Language in Benefits Plan

TROTTER: Bishop, this sentence is in conformity with language that is already presently in the 1992 Book of Discipline. It allows for the church to remember its' stand on inclusiveness and justice with regards to racial and social issues. And this language has been concurred with by, as Grady can tell, by members of the General Board.

BISHOP LEE: All right, are there others who would wish to speak?

KNOWLES: Just to confirm, there was great discussion in the legislative committee about the changes in the language of inclusivity in this paragraph and some others. There was a change. At first there was some concern over the legal matter of exclusive purpose, which the board is subject to, but this is wording which has been worked out, with the concurrence of legal staff and others, and it's the decision of those who study such matters that this language balances the legal concerns of the General Board and the concerns of the General Commission on Religion and Race.

BISHOP LEE: All right, it is properly before you. You are voting on the amendment. Yes, I see a card here at the front. If you will go to microphone 2, please. I believe if we follow our rules, you would have to speak against this, even though the chairperson of the subcommittee has already spoken against it.

CHRISTOPHER H. ANDREWS (Louisiana): I really have a question more than a speech for or against, and the question is, in the language as you have presented it, not as the motion has amended it, what is exclusive in the language? What am I missing here? Why do we continually have to edit things, to add something in that by implication is not there?

KNOWLES: The General Board of Pensions has a dual role in the life of the church. It's first responsibility is as a fiduciary to all of the plan participants, and the charge of any fiduciary is to carry out its operation for the exclusive benefit of participants. They call that the exclusive rule, and any fiduciary that manages funds on behalf of others is subject to that. On the other hand, the General Board of Pensions is an agency of the United Methodist Church, subject to the Social Principles and the other policies of the denomination, and so there is always a balancing that goes on between the two. And the investment committee and the full board, and, of course, others, have great concern that line is walked appropriately and fully. So, when this kind of language is discussed, the trick is to get language that reflects adequately and fully the concerns of the United Methodist Church, but that also carries out the responsibility of the fiduciary. And it seems in this particular discussion, that a good compromise has been struck.

BISHOP LEE: All right, now, the amendment is before you. I believe you're ready to vote on that. The amendment is to amend by inserting words that were given, and I don't have that before me, but I think you heard those words. Does the secretary have—would you read those for us please.

CAROLYN MARSHALL (General Conference Secretary): Following the word "families" insert the following sentence: "Subject to the provisions of paragraph 2506, herein, the General Board shall perform its duties and responsibilities in the spirit of the church's mandate for inclusiveness and racial and social justice."

BISHOP LEE: Thank you. All right, we're ready to vote. If you will support this amendment you will vote yes, and you will please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 515; no, 384] All right, the amendment is added. These words have been inserted. It is now before you, Calendar Item 145. I believe you are ready to vote on that. If you will vote, please, when the light appears. [829 approved] And now then, it has been approved. All right.

Comprehensive Protection Plan

pastors are, and conference members, ordained conference members, are eligible. This petition would have some student local pastors eligible for CPP coverage, while others are not.

The intention of the petitioner is that, if a pastor has been serving a church and returns to seminary part time so they are no longer eligible for the plan, that they remain eligible for the plan. In our committee discussion, the General Board staff was unable to advise the committee on the cost implications related to the request, although there was some initial response that there was some potential for adverse selection. When an entire group is given eligibility for a plan, there is less risk, apparently, than if some people can choose and other cannot. Another problem the committee had with the petition is that it does not indicate who the plan sponsor would be, who would pay the bill.

And, finally, I guess, more importantly, the committee struggled with the fact that some student local pastors would have eligibility and others, perhaps even at the same seminary and appointed under the same provisions in the same annual conference, would not. For these reasons, the committee voted nonconcurrence. Recommendation comes to you for nonconcurrence. The vote was 84 in favor of nonconcurrence, eight against, and two abstaining.

BISHOP LEE: All right, it is before you. I believe you are ready to vote. Please vote when the light appears. [829 approved] All right, the committee's recommendation of nonconcurrence is approved. Grady, if I might ask you please, the initials CPP, MPP, we have some who don't immediately understand that.

KNOWLES: Thank you. CPP stands for the Comprehensive Protection Plan. It is a welfare plan that covers clergy of the denomination providing death benefits, long-term disability benefits, survivor benefits, and a pensions supplement for those pastors whose salary is below the denominational average. MPP stands for the Ministerial Pension Plan, the plan that covers clergy.

Distribution of Tax Deferred Annuities

The third out of four petitions is noted in the blue DCA on page 235. It is Calendar Item 758. It is in the left hand column. And for the text of this you need to turn to your white Volume Two edition of the Advance DCA. The text appears on page 1322. On page 1322, it's at the bottom of the left column. It's Petition 22639, a petition from an individual that would suggest amending what the petition calls the Policies and Procedures Manual of the General Board of Pensions, to change the required beginning date for the distribution of tax deferred annuities.

There was some discussion in the legislative committee because the concept is appealing. Unfortunately, the plan documents that we have already take full advantage of the law in this regard. And this petition states that it, that we could take advantage of an action of Congress. In fact, the case noted is a private ruling letter by the IRS. We learned that a private ruling cannot be relied on by anyone outside of that individual case, and that the board could not rely on it, and would have to seek its own private ruling letter, and so on. It also wasn't clear that this kind of ruling letter in that case could be applied to our plans. And so on.

There were other concerns about the cost of administering that kind of a change versus the number of individuals who would want it. And as a result, since there was some interest in the concept, the committee brings to you a recommendation for referral to the General Board of Pension and Health Benefits for study. The vote of the committee was 95 in favor of referral, seven against, and zero abstaining.

BISHOP LEE: All right, Calendar Item 758 is before you. Its a recommendation for referral to the General Board of Pension and Health Benefits. I believe you are ready to vote. Please vote when the light appears. [893 approved]

The committee's recommendation for referral has been approved. Thank you.

Proposal to Eliminate Conference Board of Pensions

Having a Conference Board of Pensions provides for greater attention to these plans at a time when health care plans are becoming much more complex and there are many more options coming to us in these plans. And it was also noted that having a Conference Board of Pensions facilitates the communication between the General Board and the annual conference, as well as between the annual conference and the active and retired clergy who, as near as we were able to determine, have in some cases, different needs.

And so, the committee concluded that the Conference Board of Pensions is a useful part of our structure, and that we would do well to retain it. And as a result, the recommendation from the committee comes to you for nonconcurrency with this petition. The vote is 91 in favor, 10 against, zero abstentions.

BISHOP LEE: Calendar Item 759. The recommendation is nonconcurrency. I see a card. Please go to microphone 2 or 7, whichever one is more convenient.

VICTOR GOLDSCHMIDT (North Indiana): Question to the presenter. There is a second part to that, I don't know if it is relevant or not, which says in accordance with paragraph 719. So you are addressing two topics under this petition, but you're commenting on only one part. Could you indicate whether the second part, 719 is relevant?

KNOWLES: Yeah, just a moment. Let me get a Discipline.

Oh, I see. The second part of the recommendation is that the members of the Conference Board of Pensions be persons who are not in any way indebted to the pension and benefit funds. Paragraph 719 refers to the apportionments for pension benefits funds. It would be difficult to get clergy on the Conference Board of Pensions without having someone on who's indebted to pension benefit funds. I would say, though, Victor, to be fair in your question, I think the discussion in the committee was mainly on the need for the agency. We stopped short of a full discussion on that particular matter, because a decision had been made on the first part for nonconcurrency.

BISHOP LEE: All right. You seem to be ready to vote. This is Calendar Item 759. The committee's recommending nonconcurrency. You will please vote when the light appears. [869 approved] The committee is supported in its recommendation.

KNOWLES: Thank you.

BISHOP LEE: Thank you.

CASHAR EVANS (N. Carolina): Page 235 in the blue DCA. Calendar Item 760. Page 368 in the red book. The Petition 20416. It's in the first column, second item. The subject is "Fiscal Responsibilities." Committee recommends nonconcurrency. The vote 98 for, 11 against, zero abstaining. I move the adoption of the committee's recommendation.

BISHOP LEE: All right, the committee is recommending nonconcurrency on the Calendar Item 760. I believe you're ready to vote. If you are, please vote when the light appears. [847 approved] The committee is sustained in its recommendation.

EVANS: Thank you.

BISHOP LEE: Thank you very kindly. Now before we ask the next presenter to come I must announce to you a thing I failed to announce earlier. In the second item that we dealt with this evening, Calendar Item 782, which had to do with constitutional amendment, the house did give approval to that in a percentage and in a vote that exceeded the two-thirds needed, and we need to have that as a part of our minutes. Thank you. Paul Ervin, Discipleship.

Baptism/Rebaptism Revisited

PAUL ERVIN JR. (North Carolina): Thank you, Bishop Lee. We have two items that were on the Consent Calendar that have been lifted and Greg Stover, who was chair of the baptism subcommittee, will give the report.

BISHOP LEE: All right, thank you.

GREGORY D. STOVER (West Ohio): Thank you, Paul. Bishop and members of the Conference, I would direct your attention in the blue DCA to page 133, Calendar Item 133. It's in the center column there on page 133. This refers to an item in your red DCA, page 946, Petition 21430. This particular petition deals with admission into the church, and it rewrites this paragraph in accordance with the understandings of the study, By Water and the Spirit. The section on Discipleship concurred with this petition as amended: 99 for, 1 against, and 1 abstention. This item was lifted from the Consent Calendar on which it had been placed.

BISHOP LEE: All right, Calendar Item 133 is before you. I see a card. Please go to microphone 2.

VICTOR GOLDSCHMIDT (North Indiana): The item that we are bringing to the attention of the General Conference is in part 2B of page 133 far right column. As you recall, we had a similar action before that we recognized that the call for baptism being non-repeated was addressed in the resolution which we already approved. And a previous petition which had the word "non-repeatability" within the proposed wording for the Discipline was not approved at that time. So the motion at this time will be to delete the sentence in 2B, last in that paragraph, starting with the word, "unlike" and continuing "unlike baptism, which is a once-made covenant which can only be reaffirmed or repeated, confirmation"... so and so forth. So that would be the motion to make this consistent with previous actions.

BISHOP LEE: All right. You're abandoning actually the report that is before us?

GOLDSCHMIDT: That's correct.

BISHOP LEE: Do I have a second to that? There is a second. Would you like to speak to it?

GOLDSCHMIDT: I spoke at this issue before and we're all tired. Thank you.

BISHOP LEE: Thank you for your consideration. All right, please go to microphone 4.

UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER: Bishop Lee, I apologize. You're still on that issue, aren't you?

BISHOP LEE: Yes.

SPEAKER: OK, I have a Point of Order, but I'll wait.

BISHOP LEE: All right. Thank you. We're dealing now with an amendment. I see a card in the back, please. Would you please go to microphone 12.

BILL CROUCH (North Texas): I would oppose the amendment because, as a matter of fact, this statement is not at all inconsistent with our previous action. The previous action was to suggest that these matters of requests for rebaptism be dealt with pastorally, and they certainly can be, as is the case here. We did not suggest that rebaptism is ever appropriate, ever appropriate, and so I oppose this amendment.

BISHOP LEE: All right. Thank you. We have had a speech in favor by the maker of the amendment and then a speech in opposition. Are there any others who would like to speak? All right, I believe you are ready to vote. The amendment is to delete the last sentence in 2B in the far right hand column of page 133 in the blue DCA. If you will support that amendment, you will vote, yes. Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 244; no, 674] It fails.

It remains as a part of the main motion that is before us, Calendar Item 133. You ready to deal with that now? I believe you are. If you will vote, please, when the light appears. [888 approved] The committee's recommendation of concurrence is approved. Thank you.

STOVER: I would now direct your attention in the blue DCA to page...

BISHOP LEE: Excuse me, just a moment. We did have a Point of Order. You'll ask for it later? All right, thank you.

Removal of Persons from Membership

STOVER: I will direct your attention in the blue DCA, now, to page 134. In the bottom right hand corner, Calendar Item 141. Red DCA on page 950. Petition 21441. This petition deals with the care of members and in particular, contains language related to the removal of persons from membership.

The Discipleship section voted to change the word 'three' in four places in this petition to the word 'two.' The effect of which would be to require two years of reading persons names and of seeking to re-enlist them prior to removal from professed membership rather than three years as it is now. The discipleship section voted concurrence with this petition as amended: 96 for; 4 against; and 1 not voting. However, we recognize that the Local Church section was dealing with some similar matters and in the midst of a conference with them it was agreed that we would lift our petition, so that Local Church would have an opportunity to review the action we had taken and decide if it concurred with that action. We understand that they have concurred, but we would like to request that Janice Huie, the chairperson of the Local Church section confirm that, or someone else from her section.

BISHOP LEE: All right, is Janice here, can someone else in that committee confirm it? Microphone 8.

HERSCHEL SHEETS (North Georgia): (I am) secretary of the Committee on Local Church. The Committee on the Local Church did approve that change.

BISHOP LEE: All right, thank you.

STOVER: Then, we move concurrence with this petition as amended.

BISHOP LEE: All right, we're dealing with Calendar Item 141, it is before you, as amended. The recommendation is concurrence. All right, you're ready to vote. Please vote when the light appears. [866 approved] The committee is sustained in its recommendation for concurrence.

STOVER: Bishop Lee and members of the conference, this concludes our report at this time.

BISHOP LEE: Thank you very kindly. All right, now we turn to Church and Society; Don Pike. If you'd hold just a moment, I see some cards back there. Go to microphone 14.

Distribution of Shalom Zone Materials

THELMA JOHNSON (West Ohio): Bishop, I'd like to make a motion to suspend the rules in order that we can allow the pages tomorrow morning to distribute educational materials on the Shalom Zone, because in the afternoon having a special guest, we don't think there'll be an opportunity to do this.

BISHOP LEE: All right, is there a second to that? All right, I think you want to do this and I'll follow the precedent set this afternoon. If you will approve suspending the rules for that purpose, please lift the hand. It clearly passes, thank you. All right, let's turn now to Church and Society.

DON PIKE (Central Texas): Bishop Lee, and all of us here gathered, I have six items that we will be dealing with. But before I begin them Bishop, if possible, I'd like to make one editorial correction. I understand when I reported yesterday, I had the spring wound a little tight, so I'll try to slow down tonight and help you to keep up. If you would turn in your blue edition of the DCA to page 142, Consent Calendar B02, in the middle column, Calendar Item 206. It reads in your printed document, "removal of reduction;" it should be "or," that will make a little more sense to you.

Now if you would turn in your blue DCA to page 130, we will be dealing with two calendar items found on that page. The first we will be dealing with is 103. This was removed from the Consent Calendar, and you will find the text of that petition in your red DCA on page 119, the original petition. You will notice that the committee has recommended concurrence as amended. This is a section on women and men, paragraph 71e, in the Discipline, found on page 91. The committee recommended concurrence, 89 to 4, and we still recommend concurrence.

BISHOP LEE: All right, Calendar Item 103 is before you. I see a card; please go to microphone 2.

Men and Women of Equal Value

VICTOR GOLDSCHMIDT: (North Indiana) I do apologize to the General Conference for again being standing before you. I wish I did not have to do this. I need to ask a question. What does the first sentence mean?

PIKE: I think that it simply says, I do not recall the subcommittee discussing exactly its rationale for that, but, that we're all equal people in God's sight.

GOLDSCHMIDT: It says that we have similarity in sexes. I don't understand that. May I move an amendment to delete that first sentence unless the presenter can explain to me what it means. I move deletion of the first sentence inasmuch as it cannot be explained to me.

BISHOP LEE: All right, there is a motion to amend. Is there a second?

There is a second. Would you like to have another word?

GOLDSCHMIDT: I'll be glad to comment once it is explained to me, but, I've been married for 39 years and I don't think there is much similarity in our sexes. (laughter) And it does lead to a lot of intimacy.

BISHOP LEE: All right. I'll accept that as a statement in behalf of the amendment. (laughter)

Different in Gender Similar in Humanness

PIKE: I think the committee... May I speak, Bishop? I think that when you look, it simply is saying that no matter whether we're male or female, that we're all the same in God's sight. That our human similarities, and not our differences, that are the important part. We are different, obviously, men and women, but that in terms of who we are in terms of our value and worth no matter what our gender, we are all valuable in God's sight. We would still maintain that this is a better statement.

BISHOP LEE: All right. Yes, if you would go to microphone 3, please. We're on the amendment to delete the first sentence in this proposed new sub-paragraph.

DAVID BANKS (North Carolina): I was on the subcommittee. As we were reflecting on this, we understood that the first sentence was reflecting the fact that between male and female there is an equality given to us. And that, while there is a division between the sexes, there nonetheless is an equality, a compatibility.

BISHOP LEE: Thank you. If you will please go to microphone 2. I believe if we follow our rules, you would need to speak in favor of the amendment. To delete.

CHRIS ANDREWS (Louisiana): To delete. Yes, I can do that.

BISHOP LEE: Yes.

ANDREWS: I think that the gentleman who spoke earlier raised a significant issue, and I don't think it has been answered. And I would also call attention to the body to another paragraph in this matter that says, "we especially reject the idea that God made individuals as incomplete fragments, made whole only in relationship to another." It seems to me that the story of creation is that it is not good for humans to be alone. And that we live in relationship and we are relational beings. And, that flies in light of the biblical witness as well as what the incarnation is, God's relatedness to us. So I add my voice to that earlier speech.

BISHOP LEE: All right. Thank you. We've had now two speeches both for and against. Yes, would you please go to microphone 4.

JAMES LAWSON (California-Pacific): First of all, on 103, you noticed that we amended this. We crossed out the word "relationship", and we put "in union with one another." And there the idea was to reject a common notion that men and women are fragmentary persons apart from a one-on-one relationship.

It is to try to indicate that God has made us in God's image, and that we can stand in union with others in a great variety of ways; with families, friends, community, congregation and like. The other issue here is that in the beginning God made mortals. God said, "Let us make a human being," God said, "Let us make human beings in our image," God said, and God made human beings, male and female, God made them. And God saw that it was good. Well this means that each of us has the image of God in us. In that sense that's the critical similarity from all accounts biblically. Then we all bleed the same, biologically, we all have the same DNA's. We have the same structures basically. The fact of our sexual difference is not what makes us human. We are, can be, intimately involved with each other in a great variety of ways.

In that sense, that first sentence does try to say that because we are made in the image of God, we can therefore be intimate with one another, and with all other kinds of people. We can build community and family and the rest and I wish that we would leave that statement in.

BISHOP LEE: All right, thank you. All right, if you will, please go to microphone 3. Now the last statement I would interpret as being in support of the committee report, so you have to speak in favor of the amendment, which is an amendment to delete.

GREGORY PALMER (East Ohio): I need your assistance. I think the sentence as it reads in the proposal before us is a poor one at best. However, I've been instructed by the spirit of responses from the committee. I'd like to propose an alternative rendering that catches up that spirit, and I need to know, parliamentarily, how to do that.

BISHOP LEE: We have an amendment already before us to delete that sentence, but we could take one other amendment.

PALMER: All right. Would it be an amendment by substitution at this point or..

BISHOP LEE: You would just be amending his proposal to delete by or giving a..

PALMER: All right, let me try it, and then you instruct me in the house, please. I would like the first sentence to read, rather than as it does, "we affirm, with scripture, the common humanity of male and female both having equal worth in the eyes of God."

BISHOP LEE: All right, is there a second to that? Would you like to speak to it?

PALMER: I think it speaks for itself.

BISHOP LEE: It speaks for itself, he says. Would you like to vote on the amendment to the amendment? I believe that you would. All right, the amendment is to, rather than delete, insert this new sentence for sentence number one. And if you approve this, that would become the main motion at that point; for that part of this report. All right, if you would please vote when the light appears.[857 approved] All right, that is approved, and that now becomes a part of the committee report. Yes, please come to microphone 3.

Debate of Ethical Self-determination

DAVID BANKS (North Carolina): It seems to me about two-thirds, almost three-quarters of the way down the words, "and to practice ethical self-determination," my recollection is that we deleted those words, but since it's not deleted here, I would move their deletion.

BISHOP LEE: All right, the amendment is to delete the words "ethical self-determination."

BANKS: It would begin with, put a period after justice. And the deletion would be "and to practice ethical self-determination."

BISHOP LEE: All right, is there a second to that? All right, it is seconded. It's before us if you would like to speak to it.

BANKS: That engendered a lot of discussion in the sub-committee, and in the end, I think we decided that we would go home to our local churches and probably few people would say I wonder why they didn't say "ethical self-determination" in the report? So in order to not confuse those at home, we felt it most wisely would be left out.

BISHOP LEE: All right, I see a card. If you would, please go to microphone 7.

CHUCK HEFLEY (North Indiana): I was the recorder for that group, and the only thing that was done was "ethical" was substituted for "moral" and it was left.

BISHOP LEE: All right, so the term "self-determination" would not be in there, but it is proposed as a part of this amendment. All right, please go to microphone 4.

ZANE SCOTT (Holston): I have a question, and perhaps a point after the question. We need to delete more than the words, "ethical self-determination," or the sentence won't make sense. I think we need to back up to the "and" immediately preceding that, and delete from the "and" forward.

BISHOP LEE: We need at this point to get a copy of that. As soon as we get that we're going to read it again. I'm a little confused myself.

SCOTT: I think what would be proposed when we get the copy, if we delete that idea, we ought to put a period right before the "and" which comes before "ethical self-determination," otherwise we're going to have a sentence that says "and of practice."

BISHOP LEE: Would you read it for us again, please? Microphone 3 please.

BANKS: The motion is to put a period after "justice" and delete the words "and to practice ethical self-determination."

BISHOP LEE: All right, a period after the word "justice" and then delete those next three words. All right, microphone 7.

HEFLEY: It is correct the way it is printed in the DCA, the blue copy. That's the way it was voted in the legislative group.

BISHOP LEE: All right, thank you. And we have an amendment now that would change that. Yes. Would you please go to microphone 7?

PHILIP R. GRANGER (North Indiana): I would urge the defeat of this amendment. It seems to me that if we do this, what we are doing is affirming sexual relations, healthy or unhealthy. We could be in a position of affirming relationships that have, at their basis, spousal abuse. We could be in the position of affirming relationships between dominating adults and minors. It appears that the church has an ethical responsibility to speak to society and say that, while we affirm that you should be practicing and receiving love in a spirit of self-determination, there are boundaries for our expression. There are such a thing as moral or ethical values. Therefore, I would urge the defeat of this amendment.

BISHOP LEE: All right, thank you. Microphone 8, please, if you will come.

JERRY SMITH (Southwest Texas): I would like to move the previous question on all that is before the house.

BISHOP LEE: I believe that is not quite in order. According to my count, we've had only one speech in favor of this amendment and one speech against it. We would have to have at least two on each side. No one else is trying to get the floor. We can certainly bring it to a vote on the amendment, but I see a card. Go to microphone 7, please.

JEAN-PIERRE DUNCAN (Wyoming): Point of Order, Bishop. I'm unclear as to what we had done in the vote concerning the first sentence.

BISHOP LEE: We have substituted a new sentence at that point.

DUNCAN: So that what we voted on was not an amendment to the amendment to delete, but rather to the committee report?

BISHOP LEE: Yes, it was an amendment to the whole thing, but it was a substitution, an amendment by substitution.

DUNCAN: All right, thank you.

BISHOP LEE: Thank you. All right, I believe you are ready to vote on this amendment. May I ask the secretary to read that for us, please, one more time?

CAROLYN MARSHALL: Move deletion of the words, "and to practice ethical self-determination."

BISHOP LEE: All right, with a period after "justice." Let me call on the chair of the committee to see if he would like to have a word.

DON PIKE: I believe the committee would much prefer that we leave the language the way it is, because it simply declares, if you read that, "we seek for every individual opportunities and freedom to love and be loved, to seek and receive justice, and to practice ethical self-determination." I really have difficulty finding fault with that. I urge you to support it.

BISHOP LEE: All right, thank you. It is before you, Calendar Item 103, and we are on the amendment only at this point to delete those words, "to practice ethical self-determination" and place a period after "justice." If you will support that amendment, you will vote yes. Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 307; no, 602;] The amendment does not carry. Back now to the main report, 103, and it has been amended to insert a new sentence at the beginning. Microphone 8. Yes, if you'll go there, please.

JERRY J. SMITH (Southwest Texas): Bishop, I move the previous question on all that is before us.

BISHOP LEE: All right. I believe you're ready for that. I'm going to ask, if you will support the call for the previous question, please lift the hand. That previous question is definitely called for. So Calendar Item 103 is before you. The recommendation is for concurrence as amended. Would you like to have any word?

PIKE: No further word.

BISHOP LEE: No further word from the chair person. So if you're ready to vote, please vote when the light appears. [766 approved] The committee's recommendation for concurrence is sustained. All right. Thank you.

Calendar Item 104 Divorce and Remarriage

PIKE: Continuing on page 130 of the blue DCA, we now turn to Calendar Item 104. You will find that in your red DCA on page 122. Petition 20922. You'll find that at the bottom right hand column. The subject is divorce. You will notice in Calendar Item 104 that the recommendation is concurrence as amended. This is dealing with paragraph 71 in the Discipline found on page 91. The paragraph there is likewise entitled "Divorce." The committee is recommending what you find printed in the blue DCA as a substitution for what now presently exists in the Discipline. We recommend its concurrence.

BISHOP LEE: All right. Calendar Item 104 is before you, recommendation for concurrence. Yes, would you please go to microphone 1?

HARRIET JANE OLSON (Northern New Jersey): I sought to remove this item from the Consent Calendar in order to raise concerns about how we use or don't use scripture. With this issue in mind, I'd like to move that this General Conference request the General Board of Discipleship to consider and prepare resource materials to lead the church in a study of how we use scripture in making life decisions on issues like this issue of divorce and remarriage; and further, that the board consider language to be proposed to the General Conference of the year 2000, that might be added to paragraph 71D, reflecting a response to the biblical witness. If I have a second, Bishop, I'd like to speak to it.

BISHOP LEE: All right. I'm struggling with this. I hear what you're requesting. It would seem to me that maybe that would be an additional item to come after this particular matter has been dealt with because you're asking the General Board of Discipleship to create some materials and resources. Would you be willing to take it after we have dealt with this, because we're dealing now with the calendar item.

OLSON: Yes, sir. You'll come back to me when we're ready?

BISHOP LEE: I certainly will.

OLSON: Thank you.

BISHOP LEE: All right, this item is before you. You seem to be ready to vote. Calendar Item 104, recommendation of concurrence. Please vote when the light appears. [842 approved] All right, the committee recommendation for concurrence is supported, and Mr. Chairman, if you would, let me take this other motion at this time, since it's related to this matter. If you would just give us briefly that motion again?

Biblical Educational Resources on Divorce and Remarriage Proposed

OLSON: Yes, sir. I move that this General Conference request the General Board of Discipleship to consider and prepare resource materials to lead the church in a study of how we use scripture in making life decisions on issues like this question of divorce and remarriage; and further, that the board consider language to be proposed to the General Conference of the year 2000 that might be added to 71D, reflecting a response to biblical witness.

BISHOP LEE: All right. Thank you. Is there a second? There is a second. Would you like to have any other words to speak to it?

OLSON: If I may.

BISHOP LEE: Yes.

OLSON: This proposed revision of 71D does not make any attempt to address or integrate Jesus' teaching on divorce into the Social Principles. You might want to look at texts like Matthew 5, Matthew 19, Mark 10 at some time at your leisure. We do not currently provide adequate support for persons dealing with these questions. If we do not provide guidance on these issues—I have had the opportunity to walk miles this year with a member of my congregation as she has tried to struggle with this question in her own life. On the other hand, we see the church today taking a firm stand on scriptural references drawn from the Old Testament Holiness Codes and from some of the Pauline letters that we feel preclude us from including the ministry of some among us.

We need help in resolving our schizophrenia about the use of the biblical texts. How many of you have had a member of your youth group dismiss the position of the church or the relevance of scripture because of the charge that we only attend the passages that support our own perspective? I believe that statements like the language of 71D open us up to this accusation. Please support this request for study and resourcing. We desperately need assistance in this matter which will assist in our efforts to integrate scripture on this issue and other issues with integrity.

BISHOP LEE: Thank you. It is before you. I believe you're ready to vote. If you will support this motion, which includes a recommendation to the Board of Discipleship for study and resourcing on this particular issue, you'll please vote yes. Please vote when the light appears. [728 approved] And that is approved. Thank you very kindly. Mr. Chairman.

*Calendar Item 752
Science and Technology*

DON PIKE (Central Texas): We now turn to page 234 in your blue DCA. Page 234, and on that page in the center column, you will find Calendar Item 752. The subject is science and technology. The petition, which is addressed in that calendar item, will be found on page 117 of your red DCA; 117 in your red DCA. It is Petition 20921. You will find that located in the right hand column, second from the top. Petition 20921. It addresses disciplinary paragraphs 70E found on the page 89 in the Discipline. The committee recommends concurrence as amended by a vote of 81 to seven as we delete the existing first paragraph of 70E and substitute the text which you see printed in Calendar Item 752. We recommend concurrence as amended.

BISHOP LEE: All right, it is before you. I see a card. If you will please go to microphone 8.

JEREMY VETTER (Nebraska): I move to amend by substituting the following for paragraph 70, section E. "We recognize science as a legitimate interpretation of God's natural world. We affirm the validity of the claims of science in describing the natural world, although we preclude science from making authoritative claims about theological issues. We recognize technology as a legitimate use of God's natural world when such use enhances human life and enables all of God's children to develop their God-given creative potential without violating our ethical convictions about the relationship of humanity to the natural world. In acknowledging the important roles of science and technology, however, we also believe that theological understandings of human experience are crucial to a full understanding of the place of humanity in the universe. Science and theology are complementary rather than mutually incompatible."

BISHOP LEE: All right, is there a second to that amendment? There is a second. Would you like to speak to it?

VETTER: Yes, I would like to. I apologize for the length of this amendment, but the current language, I think, is unsatisfactory for two reasons. First of all, I think, as a church it's important that we give our support to science. There are many religions both in history and in current times who like to reject science and challenge its claims in ways that question the validity of what most of us accept as scientific discoveries. I think it would be a good thing for our church to go on record as being compatible with science. And the second element that is incorporated that goes beyond what is in the present language is to expand our understanding of what it means for science and theology to be compatible with each other. And I think that's a very good statement to say that without theology, science is incomplete, and without science, theology is incomplete in a sense of understanding our world to the fullest extent of the human potential of discovery.

BISHOP LEE: All right, thank you. [applause] Now I know that you appreciate his effort in that. I do hope, though, that we will refrain from any applause because everyone needs to have a right to hear their voice. Now, or make their voice heard, may be a better way to put it. [laughter] All right. Is there anyone who would like to speak in opposition. It is an amendment by substitution. Yes, if you would please go to the nearest microphone, and I will try to call the number. Yes, microphone 1.

WILLIAM D. SCOTT III (Mississippi): I chaired the subcommittee on the Church and Society Legislative Committee that dealt with this issue. While I'm not totally opposed to some of the wording of the proposed amendment, I am opposed to the rationale given for supporting that. I am a trained chemist, and I do know that science deals with things that are relative. And theology deals with things that are absolute. And if we get into the position of saying that science is absolute, then we're going to create science as a religion, and I'm opposed to that, and therefore, I would support the language as it is proposed by the legislative committee.

BISHOP LEE: Thank you very kindly. Yes. Please go to microphone 9. We've had a speech for and a speech against.

FRANK L. DORSEY (Kansas East): I want to speak for the amendment. Before going into ministry, I as a trained biologist. And I believe that Jeremy has set forth a holistic view of the relationship of science and theology. And I believe, in a growing era of fundamentalism, that we ought to confirm that kind of understanding, holistic understanding, that Jeremy has brought.

BISHOP LEE: Thank you very kindly. Is there anyone who would like now to speak against that amendment. Yes, I see a card in the back. Microphone 9, please.

BRIAN K. BAUKNIGHT (Western Pennsylvania): Bishop, I'd like to request, or maybe you can recommend that maybe we can postpone until we can see that resolution in writing that Jeremy gave us. I request that especially in light of the comment made over here at microphone 1 a little while ago. So I would move that we postpone until it can be printed in the DCA.

BISHOP LEE: That is in order. You have made a motion, then, to postpone any action on this until you have it in writing. Is there a second to that? There is a second. All right, I do not see anyone asking for the floor at this time, so I will ask you to vote on that proposal to postpone further action on this until we have it in writing. If you...please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 654; no, 259] And it has been postponed. All right, so we need to move on to the next calendar item, please.

General and Complete Disarmament*

committee recommends concurrence as amended. It is petition number—let me give you a DCA page. In the white DCA, page 1229. Petition 20059. You'll find it at the bottom of the right hand column. General and Complete Disarmament. The committee recommends concurrence as amended by a vote of 74, nine, and four.

BISHOP LEE: All right. That is before you. Recommended concurrence as it has been amended by the committee. You seem to be ready. All right, if you will please vote when the light appears. [754 approved] It has been supported. All right.

BISHOP LEE: Calendar Item 754 now is before you. You seem to be ready to vote. If you will please vote when the light appears. [704 approved] Committee's recommendation of nonconcurrence is sustained. Thank you.

PIKE: Likewise, on page 234 of the blue DCA, Calendar Item 755, middle of the page, right hand column. You will find the text for that in your white DCA, page 1230. It is Petition 22328, left hand column, second from the top. The committee, by vote of 72 to 14, recommends nonconcurrence on the grounds that what is being suggested there is adequately covered in a number of other places.

BISHOP LEE: All right. Calendar Item 755 is before you. Recommendation of nonconcurrence. I believe you are ready. You'll please vote when the light appears. And it has been sustained. [798 approved]

PIKE: I think, Bishop, that concludes our report for this evening.

BISHOP LEE: All right, thank you very kindly. I see a card in the center section here. If you'll please go to microphone 8.

BETTE T. TRUMBLE (Nebraska): I move that the information from my minority report on Calendar Item 764 be referred to the Connectional Process Team for their consideration.

BISHOP LEE: Is there a second? There is a second, and that is in order. All right, it is just a matter of reference. I see a card in the rear. If you'll go to microphone 15, please, or whichever is closer. Fourteen.

THELMA L. JOHNSON (West Ohio Conference): Help me to understand something. I thought yesterday we voted that articles' votes that had 10 or less, that we would not do unless they were pulled from the Consent Calendar. And yet we have done those that had six against, eight against, nine against. I don't quite understand.

DON PIKE: I can explain it. These were all acted on before you made that rule. Once something is published in the DCA, we have to wait a full day before we can report on them. Everything that is printed in today's DCA conforms to that 10 negative vote rule. But we cannot report on them until tomorrow. So there is a one day lag. So this all happened before you passed that rule.

JOHNSON: So tomorrow we should have it that way.

BISHOP LEE: That is correct. Now let me remind you, we do have a motion on the floor, and that motion is simply to refer the minority report that was attached to Calendar Item 764, and I believe that is the item that was defeated, maybe this afternoon. I do not remember exactly when. But the item is to just simply refer it as a matter of information to that particular committee that will be created. All right, are you ready to vote on that? If you will refer that material, please vote when the light appears. [702 approved]

All right, the motion to refer has been passed. Now we've been here about an hour and a half. We've got another hour to go, well, you've already taken up five minutes of that hour. I would like to suggest that perhaps we just take a standing break for about two and a half minutes. Please do not leave the room, but stand and stretch, if you will.

(short recess)

BISHOP LEE: All right, will you please come to order now? Thank you. Will you please be seated? Thank you, we are ready to begin now. Dear friends, we cannot begin until you are seated, please. And if you would please close your conversations. All right, I have a recognized card here. Come to microphone 4. This was the earlier request for a point of order. Microphone 4. Would you please? All right, thank you, we're ready now.

CHARLES E. LIPPSE (Holston Conference): Thank you, Bishop Lee, I do have a point of order to raise in regard to the Plan of Organization and Rules of Order, page 99, Rule 13. I rose a while ago, but I realized it would be best to wait until we were between dealing with other legislative matters. It's not that immediate, but I do want it to be addressed this evening. At the time I rose, we had just received a packet of material on our desks, and it came to other delegations as well, from an unofficial group. And this is the "Open the Doors" group, and this is the third time in this General Conference that the point has been made that unofficial material is being distributed to the desks. Now if that rule says that groups that do that can be prohibited from distributing any other material, I think it's time to take that action. And that's my appeal of the point.

BISHOP LEE: All right, thank you. We are sorry that the rules have not been followed as we have already discussed earlier in our sessions. We would ask the cooperation of all groups at this point to do what has been done. If you have something that is imperative to be distributed to the delegates, that you ask for the suspension of the rules and do it that way. Thank you for your bringing that to our attention. All right, I see a card in the very back of the section C, I believe. If you will go to microphone 14.

Proposal to Limit Debate Defeated

JUDITH HILL (Central Pennsylvania): Bishop Lee, I would like to move limiting debate on the pro and cons of these speeches to two each, effective Wednesday morning. Let me have a second.

BISHOP LEE: All right, just a moment, please. All right, that is a proper motion, and the motion is to limit debate to two persons on each side of the question. Did I understand that right, Judith?

HILL: Yes.

BISHOP LEE: All right, and it has been seconded. Would you like to make a statement? I believe you said that would be effective tomorrow morning.

HILL: Yes. Tomorrow morning. You know, during the past General Conference meetings, on the last day, someone always moves to refer all of the remaining items to appropriate committees, and we have much to discuss. And I think, in all fairness to the legislative committees, I believe that we should respect the work of the legislative committees and the work they've committed thus far. Thank you.

BISHOP LEE: Thank you. Is there anyone who would like to speak on the other side? I see a card here. If you will please go to—microphone 7, I believe, is the nearest one.

GARNETT M. WILDER (North Georgia): I believe this motion at this time is premature because the two most crucial issues before this conference have yet to come before us. And to limit discussion and debate on those two issues, namely homosexuality and the structure and ministry of the church, must have full attention by this body.

BISHOP LEE: All right, thank you. All right, I believe you're ready to vote at this point. There's a motion to limit debate to two persons on each side of the question to be effective tomorrow morning. If you will support that you would vote yes. If you do not, you would support no. Please vote when the light appears.

[Results: yes, 356; no, 522] The motion fails, and we will be under the regular rules. Now I see one other card here. You will come to microphone 9.

ROBERT SWEET (New England): Bishop Lee, in order to save time tomorrow, I would like to move to suspend Rule 28—sorry. I move to suspend Rule 28(6) on page 104 of the Advance DCA, changing the number five to ten beginning with the Wednesday morning session. In addition, that those items with five signatories by three o'clock today be given until noon tomorrow to gain five additional signatures.

BISHOP LEE: I believe we have already acted on at least the first part of your motion, have we not? If I've not...I am not looking at the rule; will you ...

SWEET: This rule, sir, refers to the number of signatures that are required to lift from the Consent Calendar. The motion I did yesterday, I'm afraid, was incomplete, which only dealt with the number of dissenting votes in the committees.

BISHOP LEE: All right, read it for us one more time. What is the amendment to this standing rule?

SWEET: That standing rule 28(6) on page 104 in the Advance DCA, that we change the number five, which is the number of signatures required to lift an item from the Consent Calendar, to ten, beginning with the Wednesday morning session. In addition, that those items that had five signatures by three o'clock today be given until noon tomorrow to gain five additional signatures.

BISHOP LEE: All right, my advisers tell me that we need to suspend the rules in order to do that at this time. So your first motion is to suspend the rules for that purpose?

SWEET: I so move.

BISHOP LEE: All right, is there a second? Second. I believe you are ready. If you will vote to suspend the rules for this purpose, then you will please vote yes, or if you are against it vote no. Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 579; no, 301] I do not have a two-thirds vote at this point; we have not suspended the rules. Thank you. All right, now we need to move to the calendar items, and they come next for Higher Education and Chaplaincy. Dr. Allen Norris.

Church Affiliation in Institutions of Higher Education

ALLEN J. NORRIS (North Carolina): Thank you, Bishop. I would refer you to the blue book, page 256, Calendar Item 772. The petition may be found in the white book, page 1381. Calendar Item 772 is titled "Requirements for Church Affiliation in Institutions of Higher Education." The legislative committee voted nonconcurrency by a vote of 55 to 24 with one abstention. Rationale that is based on the prevailing belief that the Discipline should not place policy restrictions on individual institutions. Bishop, there is a minority report to be presented by Stefanie Gray.

BISHOP LEE: All right, we will have the minority report presented. Then we will come back to perfect the majority report, then perfect the minority report, then give you an opportunity to debate it, then vote. All right, if you will give your minority vote.

STEFANIE A. GRAY (California-Pacific): Thank you. Paragraph 1519.4, according to the minority report, would read: "To qualify for affiliation with The United Methodist Church, institutions must maintain appropriate academic accreditation and protect the civil and basic rights due to all persons regardless of race, ethnicity, gender, national origin, sexual orientation, or physical disabilities." The difference—do I speak to it now or just present it?

BISHOP LEE: I'm sorry?

GRAY: Can I speak to it now or do I present it?

BISHOP LEE: We would like for you just to interpret it to the group now, and then you will be given an opportunity to speak for it.

GRAY: OK, so I will just explain the difference between the minority report and the original petition that was nonconcurrent in committee is that the minority report no longer requires United Methodist schools to have policies prohibiting discrimination of several sorts; however, it does make an effort to affirm the basic civil rights that are currently in our Social Principles for people at United Methodist schools and prospective United Methodist schools who are not treated in accordance to those Social Principles.

BISHOP LEE: All right, thank you. Now we will go back to the chairperson to see if there is any perfecting that you would like to do as a body to the main report, Calendar Item 772. The committee has recommended nonconcurrency. All right, I do see a card at the far right. Microphone 6, please.

Clarification on Presenting Minority Report

DENNY WHITE (Western North Carolina): I think I know the answer to this before I ask it, but I want to ask it anyway as a procedural matter or enlightenment upon our rules. In our legislative committee we operated on the assumption that when a legislative committee came forth with a recommendation of nonconcurrency that a minority report was not in order because the substitute may not simply reverse the action of the committee. Now, the minority presented here is not precisely identical to the original petition, but it is so close as to call in my mind the question of whether, in fact, this minority report is in order. And I think for our enlightenment in future General Conferences it would be helpful to know what our rule really is in this situation.

BISHOP LEE: I believe you are correct at this point, that with the committee's vote of nonconcurrency this minority report would not be in order as a substitution. It is entirely possible in my thinking that it would be appropriate as an amendment. Perhaps this is the only way they felt they could change the text to make it acceptable.

It is our judgment, in order for this minority report to be properly before us, the body would first of all have to reject the committee's recommendation of nonconcurrence. Then that would make it possible for the group to concur. But before we actually acted so that they could concur, we could take that as an amendment.

NORRIS: The committee is recommending nonconcurrence, Bishop, based on the prevailing belief that the Discipline should not place policy restrictions on the institutions.

BISHOP LEE: All right. So this is before you, and you understand what you would have to do if you do want to consider this other material in the minority report as an amendment at a later time. All right. Recommendation is nonconcurrence. Calendar Item 772. You will please vote when the light appears.

[Results: yes, 630; no, 275] All right, they concur with the committee's nonconcurrence. And the minority is now out of order.

ALLEN NORRIS: All right. Our next item is in the blue book again on page 256, Calendar Item 773. The petition may be found in the red book on page 823, the left hand column in the middle, Petition 20630. The title is, "Support of the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry." The committee voted nonconcurrence by a vote of 65 to 8, with 1 abstention.

I would point out to the body that this petition is similar to one that we considered yesterday or earlier, and this one would substitute the words "apportioned general program agency funds" for the words "world service monies as the source of support." The majority of the committee affirms World Service and we ask that you sustain the recommendation of nonconcurrence.

BISHOP LEE: All right. Calendar Item 773 is before you. I see a card. Please go to microphone 10.

I'm wondering is, we didn't actually discuss 772. I'm not aware that there was ever an opportunity to discuss that. That's the one that we had the minority report on, and I'm sure that one of those 10 people who made that minority report would be willing to, or would want to discuss that. I think there was some confusion. I know there was some confusion on my part in regard to what exactly we were suppose to be doing in order to discuss that. So, I'm not sure if our votes to concur with that were actually in order at that point, without having a good opportunity to discuss it.

BISHOP LEE: Well, I'm very sorry. Don't feel that your confusion is just on your part. I was confused somewhat myself. However, before we did vote on the nonconcurrence, which I pointed out that you would have to defeat the committee's recommendation in order to take any part of the minority report, that I did give a chance for any...I looked around and I saw no one asking for the floor. So I'm sorry, but that action has taken place. All right, we're on Calendar Item 773. I believe you are ready to vote. The recommendation of the committee is nonconcurrence. Please vote when the light appears. [828 approved] The committee's recommendation of nonconcurrence is sustained.

NORRIS: The next item is also on blue book 256, Calendar Item 774. Red book, page 823, right hand column at the bottom, Petition 21278. The committee recommends concurrence by a vote of 58 to 16 with 4 abstentions.

BISHOP LEE: All right, Calendar Item 774 is before you.

GBHEM Facilitates Between Agencies and Higher Education Institutions

NORRIS: Bishop, the rationale for recommending concurrence in this petition. The committee majority supports the involvement of the Division of Higher Education as facilitator in discussions between church-related institutions and the agencies of the church, when these agencies make inquiry into the work of the educational institution.

Please note that the wording indicates that the Division of Higher Education should be involved. And, as liaison and bridge-builder, the Division's presence can be most helpful since most colleges are independent organizationally in terms of ownership. So we would recommend, sir, concurrence with this petition.

BISHOP LEE: All right, you seem to be ready to vote. Please vote when the light appears. [832 approved] The committee's recommendation is sustained.

Funding Evangelical Seminary of Puerto Rico

NORRIS: Next item is Calendar Item 775 on blue book 256. The petition may be found in the white book beginning on page 1383 and continuing to 1384, Petition 22788, titled, "Funding the Evangelical Seminary of Puerto Rico." The committee recommends concurrence by a vote of 70 to 1 with 1 abstention. Concurrence as amended. And the amendment would apply as follows: in the paragraph following the "therefore" clause, which is on page 1384, beginning with number 1, delete the word "continue" and insert in its place the words, "give strong consideration to the continuation of." And the paragraph would continue to read in the same paragraph, you would delete the words "at the 1992 level."

And our rationale for this concurrence, as amended, the committee majority wishes to ask the Board of Higher Education and Ministry to give strong consideration to continued funding within its budget parameters, through the year 2000, to the Evangelical Seminary of Puerto Rico, without mandating the level of support. Therefore, we would recommend concurrence as amended.

BISHOP LEE: All right, it is before you, Calendar Item 775. Recommendition of concurrence as amended. Yes?

Dr. Norris, does this remove the financial element from...

NORRIS: Yes, sir, it's really saying to the board, we recommend that you continue funding within your budget parameters.

BISHOP LEE: All right. Thank you for that clarification. I believe you're ready to vote. If you will please vote when the light appears. [884 approved] The committee action has been sustained.

Objectives of Division of Higher Education

NORRIS: Continue in the blue book on page 256, Calendar Item 776. The petition is in the white book on page 1380, the left column, the second item, Petition 22665, "Objectives of the Division of Higher Education."

The committee recommendation is nonconcurrence by a vote of 67 to 13 with 1 abstention. The rationale for this recommendation of nonconcurrence is the content of the proposed addition pertains to seminaries, and therefore is really inappropriate to paragraph 1513 dealing with the Division of Higher Education objectives. And the general subject addressed is already a part of the University Senate criteria for theological schools.

Bishop, there is a minority report to be presented by Gregory McGarvey. I would say that again we have a committee recommendation for nonconcurrence. And I'm not sure how you want to take this, sir.

BISHOP LEE: All right. We're going to handle this the same way that we did a while ago. We'll give the person representing the minority report the opportunity to at least give us some interpretation, and then I will rule on whether or not it is in order.

NORRIS: All right.

GREGORY MCGARVEY (South Indiana): Thank you Bishop Lee, sisters, and brothers. Our opinion as members of the minority committee that by moving the words that are printed before you on page 256,

"United Methodist Schools of Theology," though I'm sure the biblical, historical, and theological studies are faithful to the church's positions as stated in doctrinal standards in our theological task, to the end of paragraph 1531, carried the intent of the original author as well as making a good amendment to our Discipline.

BISHOP LEE: All right. I believe we are in exactly the same situation we were a few moments ago, and that is, this is really not in order at this point since the committee had voted nonconcurrence. The body can, if it desires, you can debate whether or not you want to vote nonconcurrence or not at this point or to support the nonconcurrence. But it's up to you as a body as to whether or not you want to support the committee or whether you do not want to support the committee. Now, that is open to debate at this time. That's the only issue that's open to us. Would your statement, Mr. Chairman, come at this point or would you want to have it at a later time?

All right, a point of order, that would take precedence. Microphone 7, please.

WILLIAM C. CROUCH (North Texas): Perhaps this is a parliamentary inquiry. This petition addresses paragraph 1513, and the minority report asks to move to paragraph 1531. Is that in order?

BISHOP LEE: That is in order at this time. All right. Microphone 1, please. Or microphone 2 will be fine, since you're heading this way.

BRADLEY F. WATKINS (Central Illinois): I was a member of that committee, and the rationale given for minority reports for this particular minority report was given to us for both of these minority reports. The difference was not caught up in any particular paragraph, but because those particular persons were in disagreement with the action of the committee. And so, while we can do that kind of parliamentary procedure, the essence, the fairness of that, is that both of these petitions had minority points of view because they did not agree with the vote of the committee.

BISHOP LEE: Thank you. We are going to deal only with what is before us at this point. And I think I have explained to you that if you do in fact want to give support to what is in the minority report, that there is a way of doing that. But this matter of supporting the committee's recommendation of nonconcurrence is the item that is before us now. And you wanted to have a statement.

NORRIS: All right. Let's ask the maker of the minority report. He would like to speak just as a delegate at this point.

MCGARVEY: Just speaking against nonconcurrence is all I'm allowed to do at this point?

BISHOP LEE: I believe that's right.

Minority Report Addresses Seminaries

MCGARVEY: As United Methodists we are proud of our heritage and United Methodist schools of theology for training leaders for our great denomination. We recognize the vital role of United Methodist Schools of Theology in preparing outstanding leaders for today and into the 21st century. As we creatively seek to address the needs of individuals, communities, and congregations facing the challenges of culture in the present day, it is imperative that our United Methodist schools of theology be clear about our covenant as United Methodists.

United Methodists do not exist in a doctrinal vacuum. We do have fine standards that have withstood the ebb and flow of faddish theology and doctrine through the two centuries of our life. Our Discipline's doctrinal standards and our theological task section offers guidelines that, as United Methodist schools of theology do their work, they will find good guidelines. We are aware of the grass roots criticism of our United Methodist schools of theology. We seek to respond to their legitimate concerns. Many laity want assurance that their schools are keeping faith with our covenant as United Methodists.

Academic freedom is vital. This disciplinary change will not be a threat to academic freedom nor preclude the teaching of other disciplines of religious thought.

However, teaching of other religions, thought, should be distinguished from Christian teaching. This is not a litmus test of doctrine and theology. A litmus test validates or invalidates based on one or a few criteria. We believe the breadth and depth of our Discipline's Doctrinal Standards and Our Theological Task are such that the document does not lend itself to a litmus test. So we ask the United Methodist seminaries would follow through on these and would share these, would allow them to be a part of the Discipline. So we would encourage you to vote against nonconcurrency.

BISHOP LEE: All right, thank you. I see a card here in the middle. Microphone three. This is a speech against.

JIM REED (Kansas West): A point of clarification, Bishop. My understanding, if we would vote against nonconcurrency, what we allow, in reality, are voting for, then, is the original as it appeared before the committee. Is that correct?

BISHOP LEE: That is correct, and you would have the opportunity to amend the original at that time.

REED: That's what I needed to be sure about.

BISHOP LEE: Thank you kindly. I saw a card at the rear. Please go to microphone 14, or...yes, that'll be fine.

SHAWN HARTMAN (Central Pennsylvania): I believe just not more than a few calendar items ago we specifically said that we did not want to put into our Discipline any criteria or rules for our schools. I believe this is, in essence, just doing what you voted against earlier.

BISHOP LEE: All right. I believe you are ready now to vote now on the question. I do see a card here. If you will please go to microphone two.

RICHARD PARKER (New York): I am so glad to be a United Methodist, and I am very glad that I am not a Southern Baptist. In spite of what the representative of the minority report says to us, my fear is that this is the beginning step of trying to evaluate the positions of theological professors and faculties and leadership in our seminaries and trying to so limit them that we might be in the position of never being open to theological diversity and never changing the standards which are already before us. I hope we will support the action of the committee.

BISHOP LEE: All right, thank you. All right, I see another card at the back. Please go to microphone 14. I believe the way our speeches are going, you would need to speak, please, if this is your position, in opposition to the committee recommendation.

WARNER H. BROWN JR. (California-Nevada): Parliamentary inquiry. The minority report is speaking to paragraph 1531, and if we should act to adopt this as a substitution, I am unclear what this will do with our main motion, which is addressing paragraph 1513.4.

BISHOP LEE: We would have to wait and see what amendment is made as to how it would finally affect it.

BROWN: Thank you.

BISHOP LEE: All right, I believe you're—All right, I do see, yes, a card, a green card. We haven't had one of those for a while. Would you go to microphone 13, please.

BILL HINSON (Texas): Mr. Chairman, I hope in the ecumenical spirit that we have shown this day, if we can avoid speaking of a sister denomination in a derogatory sense. We must be very careful that we not surrender any moral high ground that we might have had.

BISHOP LEE: Thank you. All right, I believe we're ready to vote. I'm going to turn now to the chairperson of the committee for a statement.

ALLEN NORRIS: Bishop, I'm assuming then that we are voting on the recommendation of the committee for nonconcurrency. Is that correct?

BISHOP LEE: That is correct.

NORRIS: And of course, the rationale really is that the content of the proposed addition pertains to seminaries and, therefore, is inappropriate to paragraph 1513 dealing with Division of Higher Education objectives.

BISHOP LEE: All right, thank you. Recommendation of the committee is nonconcurrency. We've had a discussion of what this involves. If you will please vote when the light appears.

[Results: yes, 649; no, 229] The committee's recommendation of nonconcurrency is supported, so the other is not before us at this time. Thank you.

NORRIS: All right, the last item that we have to bring before you is blue book page 257.

BISHOP LEE: All right. Just a moment. I see a card. Is your's a point of order? All right, please go to microphone 2.

Rule 35 Concerning Minority Reports

JARED NEWMAN (Rocky Mountain): I have a point of order pursuant to Rule 35 dealing with minority reports. It says that minority reports shall be represented as substitute for the committee reports. As I understand the committee reports, the committee's recommendation would be included in that. Therefore, a substitute motion to concur with a different petition would be, in turning to Rule 24, which says the substitute motion needs not to be a simply negation of the main motion, which it would not be. Therefore, I feel that the minority report was in order, and that we need to reconsider the issue, because it was not presented like it is supposed to be.

BISHOP LEE: I appreciate your concern, and this has been a problem for us this evening, but the point has to be made that the recommendation of the committee was not for concurrence, but for nonconcurrency. And so the minority report was not in order. You could have considered that if you voted down the committee's recommendation of nonconcurrence, but the committee was sustained by the action of the house. Thank you.

NORRIS: Blue book page 257, Calendar Item 777.

BISHOP LEE: All right, point of order. Come to microphone 4, please.

DALE SEGREST (Alabama-West Florida): In the spirit of fairness, I must protest the ruling from the chair concerning the minority report. There was a definite difference in the minority report and the majority report, in that the rationale given for the majority report was that it was under the wrong paragraph. The minority report would have put it under the right paragraph. The minority report was entitled to receive attention, because of the fact that we might very well have voted on the basis that it was improperly placed.

BISHOP LEE: All right, thank you. All right, let's go to Calendar Item 777.

National UM Native American Center Funding

NORRIS: Calendar Item 777. The petition may be found in the white book page 1356. The left hand column at the bottom, Petition 22037, entitled, "The National United Methodist Native American Center." The committee recommends concurrence by a vote of 66 to 6 with 3 abstentions. Concurrence, with reference to GCFA, since this proposal includes a budgetary request in the amount of $316,000. It is the understanding of the committee in our deliberations that the center projects a budget of $640,000 of which two general boards have committed $324,000. GCFA would consider and recommend regarding the $316,000 balance needed. Therefore, we recommend concurrence with reference to GCFA.

BISHOP LEE: All right. This is before you. I see a card. Would you please go to microphone 3?

SAMUEL WYNN (North Carolina): Bishop, I would also call the attention to the conference, in the red book, to report number 14, page 643, Petition 21688. This is a report of the General Council on Ministries, over the quadrennium, of the work that's been done with the general agencies and the general secretaries trying to secure funding for the center.

This particular issue has been to this General Conference for 12 years. Each General Conference, we have voted to support the center. But there has always been the problem of funding, and it keeps coming up over and over, again and again. The center has a valid ministry. It is a ministry that is seeking to train persons for the ordained and diaconal ministries. And so I believe it is time for us in the church to say, "yes, we feel this is important," and to put some money to help the center continue the work that it has been doing for the past 16 years. I would encourage you to support this.

BISHOP LEE: All right. Thank you. I believe you are ready to vote. The recommendation of the committee is concurrence. Please vote when the light appears. [809 approved] The committee's recommendation is supported.

NORRIS: Bishop Lee, to my knowledge, this completes the work of the Legislative Committee on Higher Education and Chaplaincy. And I would like to thank the committee for its hard work and the body for your consideration of our work. Thank you, sir. [applause]

BISHOP LEE: Thank you. All right, we have arrived at that time for adjournment this evening. There are a number of announcements to be made and a couple of other committee reports to be heard from. I'd like to ask for Rex Bevins to please come with the report of the Presiding Officers Committee.

Presiding Officers Announced for Wednesday

REX BEVINS (Nebraska): Bishop and members of the Conference, the presiding officers for Wednesday, April 24, are as follows: Wednesday morning, Bishop George Bashore of the Pittsburgh area; Wednesday afternoon, Bishop Clifton Ives of the West Virginia area; and Wednesday evening, Bishop Melvin Talbert of the San Francisco area.

BISHOP LEE: All right. Thank you very kindly. We'll hear now from the Committee on the Calendar and Agenda, Sarah Miller. Thank you for your enthusiasm. [laughter]

SARAH S. MILLER (Wyoming): I know you know who is coming tomorrow. Mrs. Clinton will be with us at 2:00. We'll also vote on nominees for the Judicial Council in the morning. And we have a heavy legislative agenda for tomorrow. In the morning, we'll consider legislation around the ministry study. In the afternoon, we're lumping together all items related to homosexuality. In the evening we'll discuss abortion.

Let me suggest that you be reminded of the offering for the 67 conference pages and 71 marshalls who have served us so very well. That offering will take place at the end of the morning session, so if you'll be prepared for that. And I'm asking the production crew to show us the percentage of petitions we've cared for so far. Thank you. We're coming along.

BISHOP LEE: We're on the way, but not very far. All right, we're going to call on the secretary in a moment for announcements, but I have been asked by Jim Perry of the Troy Conference for a matter of personal privilege. Where are you, sir? Yes, come into microphone 8.

Green Mountain College

JAMES M. PERRY (Troy): I rise for a moment of personal privilege to read to you the following: "Whereas, Green Mountain College in Vermont reaffiliated with The United Methodist Church in 1995; and whereas, this reaffiliation represented the end of a 25-year interruption in that relationship; and whereas, Green Mountain College and its predecessor institution, the Troy Conference Academy, church relationship began over 100 years ago; and whereas, Green Mountain College has become only the 5th institution of higher education in the U.S. and the first United Methodist-related institution to take as its primary mission, an environmentally-focused liberal arts curriculum; therefore, be it resolved that the 1996 General Conference acknowledge this reaffiliation and join with Troy Annual Conference and Green Mountain College in celebrating this renewed relationship.

BISHOP LEE: [applause] Thank you. If you approve that, let's applaud. [applause]

PERRY: Thank you, Bishop.

BISHOP LEE: I think you would want me to bring to your attention that today is a very special day. One of my colleagues that has been assisting me this evening reminded me of a birthday, and I thought he was talking about the fact that Bishop Felton May's birthday was today. But he says there's a better birthday for us to celebrate than even Felton May's birthday. And that is that 28 years ago today, at the General Conference session in Dallas, we became the United Methodist Church. (applause)

I thank Bishop Yeakel for reminding us of that. It is something we should not forget. We will call upon the secretary now for announcements.

CAROLYN MARSHALL: Two announcements. First, is that the Central Conference College of Bishops are requested to meet at the podium immediately following adjournment. The second one will be a bit of a guidance for us for tomorrow. As Sarah Miller, when she brought the report a few minutes ago from the Committee on Agenda and Calendar, mentioned, tomorrow afternoon Mrs. Clinton will be here. The timing for our day will be rearranged a bit, inasmuch as the morning session will adjourn at 11:30. We are requested, at that time, to remove all knapsacks, bags, any containers that you have of any kind. Books may remain on the tables, but we thought it might be well for you to have that information now, in case any of you wanted to take anything with you this evening. Just be aware that sometime between now and 11:30, all bags will have to be removed from the area.

BISHOP LEE: All right. Thank you. I want to thank the conference for your indulgence this evening. We've had a couple of difficult times, and I'm aware of the fact that some of you are frustrated. We believe that we've moved through these things, and you've done it with such a wonderful spirit. And I want to thank you for it, and I want to thank my two colleagues, Bishop Bruce Blake and Bishop Joe Yeakel, for their assistance this evening. And I've called on Bishop Christopher Jokomo to come and lead us in our closing prayer this evening. We've celebrated Africa University today. Africa University is located in Zimbabwe, and that is Bishop Jokomo's area. And I think it's fitting for him to come and to lead us in our closing prayer this evening. We'll ask you please to rise.

BISHOP JOKOMO: Let us join in prayer. (prayer)

Wednesday Morning April 24, 1996

Bishop George W. Bashore, presiding

BISHOP GEORGE W. BASHORE (Pittsburgh Area): We certainly want to offer our thanks and gratitude for the stirring music, and for the presence of those from Lovers Lane United Methodist Church. We are deeply indebted to you for giving us the dance in our spirits. (applause)

We also want to express thanks for those who have led us in worship. For Bishop William Dew and the others who shared of themselves and presented the Word. Now may we please gather, and if we could begin to watch and listen to the conversation subside, we can move on to the items which are before us. So will you please take your seats.

And will those who are visitors, please, we ask for your courtesy so that we will be able to hear and move on with our business. I think we've had a great setting, this morning. I'm reminded of the 150th Psalm. "Praise God with the trumpet sound. Praise the Lord with lute and harp. Praise the Lord with tambourine and dance. And praise the Lord with strings and pipe. Praise the Lord with clanging cymbals and praise the Lord with loud clashing cymbals. Let everything that breathes praise the Lord."

We have started on this wonderful note, as we seek today to join in the dance with the Lord of the dance. Now, we need to enter into our time of discernment. Several persons have spoken to me and expressed concern about this time. They've indicated that as we have shared our hopes, sometimes that period has turned into a time of complaint and negativism. I would like to read another portion from one of the psalms, and then suggest as you turn to one another, that maybe we ought to concentrate more on the second part than on the first part, about looking at what our hopes are for the next few hours, but to try to delight in what God's hopes are for us as a General Conference in these next hours. Listen to these words from the 84th Psalm. "Happy are those whose strength is in you, in whose heart are the highways to Zion. As they go through the Valley of Baca, they make it a place of springs. The early rain also covers it with pools. They go from strength to strength. The God of gods will be seen in Zion."

We have seen the God of gods at work. We have celebrated the new Hispanic hymnal. We have been thrilled about seeing the choir here from Africa University and beginning to see the results of the commitment to Jesus Christ, the Lord of the dance, on the part of the General Conference. Let's spend now this time together, one on one, and let's share together the celebrations of God's hopes being fulfilled, and what those hopes are for us as a General Conference. Talk one on one and then we'll have our time of prayer.

(conversation)

BISHOP BASHORE: All right, now. If you will enter into a brief time of prayer with your partners, please.

(prayer)

(song)

BISHOP BASHORE: We'll turn to Jerry Reist now who will guide us through our morning agenda. Jerry.

FITZGERALD REIST (Coordinator of the Calendar): Thank you, Bishop Bashore. We will be dealing today with the calendars found in your DCA, numbered 7, volume 3, number 7. Sarah OK? Consent Calendar A04 is found on page 303, and the list of items removed begins on page 482. There are no changes from the list removed that's printed in the DCA on pages 482 and 483. Given the number, I don't suppose... Do you want me to read each one?

BISHOP BASHORE: It is not necessary. I think they can see those. Sarah?

SARAH MILLER: Bishop, I move the adoption of consent calendar A04 with the exceptions noted on pages 482 and 83.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right. that is before us. I don't see anyone wishing the floor. We are ready to vote. When the light goes on, please vote. Somebody turning on the light? [It wasn't ready] All in favor, will indicate with the uplifted hand, pleased. Thank you, those opposed like sign. And, it is approved. Thank you.

SARAH S. MILLER (Texas): Bishop, I move the approval of Consent Calendar B04 with the exceptions noted.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right, thank you. Those in favor will indicate with the uplifted hand please. Those opposed, like sign. Thank you. I believe our technology is set up for the next item. And, I think I threw them a curve on this so, we'll proceed this way.

REIST: Consent Calendar C04 is on page 339. The corrections to that or the removals from that are page 484. There are no other changes.

MILLER: Bishop, I move the approval of Consent Calendar C04, with the exceptions noted.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right thank you. All right, I don't see any cards. Are we ready to vote? If you approve, will you indicate with the uplifted hand, thank you. Those opposed like sign. Thank you. And that is approved.

REIST: I just wanted to say that I'm glad the correction to my misstatement about the 10 delegates needed to lift was not made until after the sessions were over. It was so much easier to find five names we could read that way.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right, thank you. Sarah?

MILLER: A note about the agenda: you have it printed in today's DCA, but I want to change it. I learned this morning, that many of the members of our Korean-American delegations are leaving this evening. We had intended to consider the Korean-American missionary conference proposal tomorrow. Cashar? Oh I'm sorry. He's got his hand up. Is that wrong?

BISHOP BASHORE: Is this a point of order? No, go ahead Sarah.

MILLER: So, we have moved things around to enable us to consider the Korean-American Missionary Conference this morning at 10:30, which would then have us move the items for ministry to this evening. Let me review the revised agenda for this morning because we've juggled times to make it work. We expect to vote on nominees to the Judicial Council as soon as I'm done. Then we would take up some items from Discipleship, including United Methodist Men. If there is time, we would go to General and Judicial Administration items. Then at 10:10, we would take the special offering for pages and marshals just prior to our break. And then at 10:30 come back for calendar items related to the Korean-American Missionary Conference. Our lunch will be at 11:30 as scheduled.

BISHOPS BASHORE: All right, thank you for that information, Sarah. Some of us thought we were going to be dealing with the ministry study this morning and have spent a good many hours in relationship to that. But God is a God that takes us through interruptions and changes, and so we'll make the adjustment. Thank you. Yes? Is there a point of order here?

CASHAR EVANS JR. (North Carolina): I move that the General Conference request an oral argument for the referral of Petition 21560, Calendar Item A04838 to the Judicial Council.

BISHOP BASHORE: I wonder, would you mind repeating, maybe standing away a little bit away. I was having a hard time. Would you repeat that information for us please?

Judicial Council Oral Argument on Item 838 Approved

EVANS: I move that the General Conference request an oral argument for the referral of Petition 21560, Calendar Item A04838 to the Judicial Council.

BISHOP EVANS: Where is that found, please? Can you tell the page?

EVANS: 308 and its at the bottom of the left column. If I could get a second, I'd be glad to speak to this.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right, you have it.

EVANS: When this petition came in, it included a request for a Judicial Council decision, and my motion just asks for an oral argument, sir.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right, that is before us, any discussion? You know what it is before us then? We'll have you vote when the light is on. [Results: yes, 523; no, 225]

Judicial Council Voting Explained

BISHOP BASHORE: All right, that has been approved. Thank you very much. Now I think we're ready to move along to the item of voting on the nominees to the Judicial Council. Let me say a word about the procedure for the voting. You know that we will be selecting two persons from the list of nominees.

BISHOP BASHORE: When we consider the nominees, we will vote two times. Each time that we vote, you will enter the number corresponding to the person for whom you wish to vote. Reminder, if you change your mind while the green light is on, press the star key to cancel, and enter the correct number for your vote. Now, you will be voting twice, which means you will be voting for two persons. We will go through the entire process first and you will vote for one. When that is completed, we will come back through the list of names, and you will vote, then, for your second person. I need to mention to you that you cannot vote for the same person twice. That if you do that, with the wonders of technology, that will be known and your vote will be considered invalid for that person. Are we clear?

We will throw the names on the screen, and then when I indicate, you will vote for one person. All right, you will see there 15 names. Now these names are done with their complete names. We will then throw onto the screen all fifteen names with just their last name. Now, those names are before you. Please vote for one person. Press your key of the number. All right, vote when the light is on. Now it's on. All right proceed. All right, it will take a little time for the results to be tallied. We will now put on the screen the names of the clergy, and follow the same procedure. Oh, I'm sorry. We need to have the second opportunity for the lay. Thank you. The lay names, nominees, will be placed on the screen again. They're there. Now you will vote for your second person when the light is on. All right, thank you. Now that will take a little time to tally the results.

Now, we will turn to the list of the clergy. They will be placed on the screen, please. It's on the way. Yes, second screen. All right, the complete names have been before you, and now we will have all the names on one screen. We are ready now to vote for one person. All right, when the light is on, please vote. All right, we're ready for the names to appear again. Now you are ready to cast your second vote for the clergy. When the light is on, please vote.

Methodist/EUB Merger Anniversary

Now, it's my understanding that it will take a little while yet to tally the results, so at this moment, there is a key celebration taking place in the life of our church, especially involving the part of the family from the former Evangelical United Brethren Church that will be celebrating the 50th Anniversary of the merger of the Evangelical Church and the United Brethren in Christ Church. We have been asked by the Commission on General Conference to take a few moments to celebrate this occasion, and we will turn to Bishop Paul Milhouse out of the former Evangelical United Brethren tradition who will lead us.

BISHOP PAUL W. MILHOUSE: Mr. Chairman, delegates, visitors, I've been asked to remind you about this celebration which will be in two events: one at Johnstown, Pennsylvania, the other Dayton, Ohio, on November the 16th this year. This is the anniversary of the birth of the Evangelical United Brethren Church which united with the Methodist Church in 1968. In the Methodist church, you remember, was a 1939 reunion of Methodist-Protestant, and the north and south branch. The Evangelical United Brethren Church in 1946 was the result of a union of the Evangelical Church and the United Brethren.

The Evangelical Church came out of the preaching of Jacob Albright who preached among the German-speaking people in the colonial days. He was born in Pennsylvania, reared and confirmed in the Lutheran Church, later joined the Methodist Church because he was attracted by the spiritual discipline that he witnessed among the Methodist people. As he preached, congregations were formed, and in the early 1800's three of them came together and organized the newly organized Methodist Conference. Then they changed the name to Evangelical Church, and elected Albright as their bishop. When they came into the union in 1946, they brought four conferences from Germany, two conferences from Canada and work in Nigeria and Japan.

The United Brethren Church, as a result of the preaching of Phillip William Albright—Or Otterbein, who preached among the people of eastern Pennsylvania and in the Shenandoah Valley. Otterbein was reared in the Reform Church. He came to the United States in response to an appeal that was made in the chapel of Hetterbaun University where he was teaching. Mr. Slatterer who had been in America, worked among the German Reform people, went back to the Dutch Reform Church to Amsterdam, reported on the sad condition they were in and asked for money. The Dutch Reform Church said we will provide money for six missionaries to go to America. Slatterer went down to Hetterbaun, preached in the chapel, asked for six volunteers. Professor Otterbein and six students responded. They landed in New York in 1752, began preaching among the German-speaking colonists. Most of these people had come from Palatinate of Germany where the Black Plague had devastated the country and the population, and then the 100 Years War had just about destroyed their villages and their farming. So they came as indentured servants and by the time they served out their time to pay for passage, they were still about as poor as they were before. Otterbein, from his pastorate in Baltimore preached among these people. Then he met Martin Boehm preaching to the Mennonite preachers one day. He went up to him after the sermon and he said, "Der seine bruder, we're brethren." And together they brought together a group of preachers in 1800 and organized the United Brethren Church. When this church came into the union of '46, we brought conferences from Sierra Leone, the Philippines, Japan and China, and Hong Kong, and I've been told, that there are 13 bishops of the present council who have their spiritual roots in the Evangelical United Brethren Church.

Bishop Maynard Sparks who is not able to be here and myself were members of the uniting conference in 1946, and we came into the United Methodist Church as bishops of the Evangelical United Brethren Church. And, as I call these names, of these bishops, I would like for them to stand and remain standing: Wayne Clymer, George Bashore, Thomas Bangura, Reuben Job, Hermann Sticher, Joe Yeakel, Walter Klaiber, Sharon Rader, Joseph Humper, Neil Irons, Peter Dabale. And then I would like to ask among the delegates and visitors those of you who have your spiritual roots in the Evangelical United Brethren Church, would you stand, please. We might see where you are. [applause] Thank you.

BISHOP BASHORE: Thank you very much. In the spirit of what has been mentioned, I know that we will wish to work [wir sind Brudern und Schwestern] today in Jesus Christ. And so we will be working in that. Yes? I see a flag back there. Number 9, please.

GRAYSON ATHA (W. Ohio): I should have spoken at the time the agenda was mentioned, but I'm a little slow sometimes. We have some really major items to come up, and we've done two of the studies, we have two more to come. Last night, twice a motion has been made to limit debate. That was squelched because there were important items coming up. Today we had one of those important items and were told that folks need to leave so we need to adjust to do something about that. I'm really feeling uncomfortable that we continue to deal with items that ... and we delay some of the major items that we have before us. I really don't have a motion to make, but I'm feeling very uncomfortable about the way the agenda is proceeding, and I may be the only one here, but I wanted to express that and I would like to see the Agenda Committee really address this matter. Perhaps they have, and everything's been done. I'm just giving my perspective on it.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right, thank you. I know there are others who agree. We need to move on so that we can take care of the Calendar Items which are before us. Now, I think we're ready for the results of the election for Judicial Council. They will be placed before us and then we will move on for another ballot.

Lay Ballot Produces No Judicial Council Election

BISHOP BASHORE: For the lay persons first. All right, you will note that we need 426 to elect. There is no election. All right, you have the listing and the votes that have been cast. We'll be ready now for another ballot...Yes, is there a point of order? A request. Well, we'll listen to it while we're waiting. All right, number 7, I guess.

KATHARINE LEHMAN (North Indiana): Could we see the numbers again? That happened so quickly—we could take another look please?

BISHOP BASHORE: All right. They have heard the request, but they're ready to put up the clergy results, so let's get the clergy results, then we'll try to respond to your request. I believe they're ready for the clergy results now. All right. You notice that we needed 444 votes for election. No one has been elected. All right, Bevins, 400; Corry, 312; Brockwell, 238; Tews, 212; Sweet, 147; Chalker, 109; Collins, 102; Topolewski, 82; Pickets, 70; Cain, 60; Eckert, 40. Now the results of the lay ballot will be presented to you again. Valid votes 1,702, valid ballots 896, needed to elect 426, invalid ballots 36.

All right, Matheny, 283; AsKew, 270; Geis, 233; Gray, 170; Plowman, 130; Hill, 129; Sessums, 94; Bonney, 78; Lett, 69; Panganiban, 55; Church, 54. Gordon, 52; Kolasa, 35; McLane, 26; Danburam, 24. Now I believe we'll see which one appears on the screen. We will follow the same procedure again since no one was elected, so we will have two ballots for each, clergy and laity. Yes microphone 9. It's a point of order? Question, all right.

Second Judicial Council Ballot

BISHOP BASHORE: Well, I don't know that completely. If you voted for the same person twice, that would be an invalid ballot. Or you may have voted for a number that was not there, also. All right. All right, are we ready to place this on the screen? Now the names are being placed in front of you again. This is the first frame and the rest of the lay persons. Now vote for one person using a number that corresponds with the name. All right, when the light goes on please vote.

OK, now this is the second ballot. So you will cast your second vote. When the light goes on, please vote. All right, thank you.

Now I believe we're ready for the slate of the clergy. All right, now we have the first frame for the clergy and the rest of the clergy names. All right, you have all in front of you, and you will vote for one person, please. When the light goes on, please vote. The screen will appear again, and then you will vote for the second person. There it is before you. When the light goes on, please vote.

All right, it will take a little while to tally the results, but it sure is better than the old system. We've just gone through an election of General Conference and Jurisdictional Conference delegates, you'll remember, and how long that takes to tally when you don't have the technology, so we're grateful. I want to turn to Carolyn Marshall because we also need to elect persons on the Commission to General Conference. Carolyn will you help us with that item?

CAROLYN MARSHALL: The persons who have been nominated to the Commission on the General Conference are listed on page 25 left hand column about a third of the way down in the April 17th edition. Please note that it's the April 17th edition. That was before the error of beginning with renumbering again every day was caught. So you've probably got more than one twenty-five.

The names that are in brackets are continuing that list, the entire list for the Commission on General Conference, by classes, and only the ones that are without brackets around them are those which are before us now for election. They have been presented by the Council of Bishops. Bishop Bashore. [Nominees are found on page 25, volume 3, number 2]

BISHOP BASHORE: All right, thank you. These names are before us.

MARSHALL: Bishop Bashore, also to note a correction that was in your DCA a day or two ago, and that is the substitution on line 11, "central conferences of Rololfo Beltram for Maximo Dizon." That is a nomination to fill an unexpired term.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right, thank you. Yes, the card back here. Microphone 9, I guess.

WILLIAM A. HINES (West Ohio): I'd like to make a motion, bishop. In the light of the pronouncement of the 15, we now request before an afternoon vote on this matter, that all United Methodist bishops who support unrevised scriptural standards, unrevised...

BISHOP BASHORE: I'm sorry. We can listen to that motion at another time, but we are right in the midst of election right now. Will you hold that, can we handle that at another time, please.

HINES: Will you call me back, sir?

BISHOP BASHORE: All right. I may need to be reminded, but please, we will need to finish this process. All right? Thank you. Yes, microphone 1, please.

SHIRLEY PARRIS (New York): Bishop Bashore, I would like to suggest to the General Conference Commission, that for the next, in the year 2000 for elections, that they provide the delegates with a sheet with the numbers of the candidates, the names and the numbers of the candidates, that we can refer to while the election is going on, rather than having to wait to see them on the screen. I think that would be very helpful.

Commission on General Conference Elected

BISHOP BASHORE: All right, thank you. I'm sure that that suggestion has been heard, and will be referred. Now, we're ready, I think, to elect the Commission on General Conference. Does somebody want the floor? I think we're ready to elect, and since we're dealing with the technology for the other issue, we'll do this by hand.

If you will approve these persons and elect these persons as the Commission on the General Conference, indicate with the uplifted hand, please. Thank you. Those opposed, like sign. And they are elected. Thank you. Now, are we ready for the continuation of the vote? We'll have the results of the lay ballot.

Second Judicial Ballot Fails to Elect

Valid votes, 1841; valid ballots, 942; need to elect, 461; invalid ballots, 22. There is no election. You have the names in front of you as AsKew 407, Matheny 388, Geis 260, Gray 197, Plowman 139, Hill 101, Bonney 65, Sessums 63, Panganiban 49, Lett 47, Gordon 34, Church 33, Danburam 22, Kolasa 18, McLane 18. Now we should be ready to have the screen in front of us for our next ballot. We will again need to have two ballots for the laity side.

All right, I guess we're going to get the clergy results first. Valid ballots 1852, valid ballots 937, need to elect 464, invalid ballots 22. I need to raise a question. Thank you, I'm sure you are as confused as I was, because if your arithmetic is at all decent, you wondered about the "need to elect." You must first, we should say, total ballots instead of valid ballots. Then you need to subtract the invalid ballots, and that is why the majority "need to elect" seem to be lower than what it should be. But then it will make some sense. All right?

Rex Bevins Elected Clergy to Judicial Council

So we need to elect 464. Now may we have the results. There is an election. [applause] Rex Bevins has been elected to the Judicial Council. Now, if you will note the rest: Corry 415, Tews 259, Brockwell 250, Sweet 107, Chalker 98, Collins 70, Topolewski 49, Pickens 42, Eckert 26, Cain 19. The next screen, please. I guess that's it. All right.

Now, we'll see what comes on the screen. Now, there will be, to vote for lay persons on the Judicial Council, so you will still have two ballots. Vote one time now for the lay persons. When the light is on, please vote.

All right, thank you. Now we'll wait until the lay persons come back on the screen again for your second vote. All right, there it is. Now, will you cast your second vote for a lay person on the Judicial Council. When the light goes on, please vote.

All right. Hopefully, we'll see the clergy... [Bishop Bashore confers with Bishop Yeakel and Bishop Skeete] They need to reset this matter, so I'm going to turn now to Paul Ervin, I think, from the discipleship, so we can begin to handle calendar items. And, in between, we will continue the election process. Paul?

PAUL R. ERVIN JR. (North Georgia): Thank you, bishop. We have two matters to bring before you. The first will be Calendar Item 1681, page 386, of the blue book. Larry Powell from the Desert Southwest Conference will present it, and will be assisted by Gil Hanke from the Texas Conference.

UM Men Commission Proposed

LARRY POWELL (Desert Southwest): Bishop, members of General Conference. Item 1681 will be found in the blue DCA on page 386. That would be Volume 3, number 7, dated April 23. Should be able to locate that in the left-hand column, lower left-hand column. We'll also relate to Volume 2, the white book, on page 1285, also in the left-hand corner of that one. The Petition 20712. The title is the General Commission on United Methodist Men, and basically what the petition calls for is a new commission on United Methodist Men. The commission would be amenable to the General Conference; and during the period of time when the General Conference is not in session, it would relate to the General Council on Ministries.

It does have monetary significance—would have to be referred to GCFA if it were passed here. However, the petition itself is written in such a way as to be self-sustaining and not have a significant budget impact as far as the dollars that are already allocated to United Methodist Men. There is also a provision in it that requires that if the commission is unsuccessful in becoming self-sustaining within the next four years, then it would revert back to something similar to where they are currently lodged within the General Board of Discipleship. Bishop.

BISHOP GEORGE BASHORE: All right, this matter is before the body. Any discussion. Yes, over here, at the side. Microphone 6, please. Will this be speaking for or against?

MARY ALICE MASSEY (Florida): For.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right, thank you.

MASSEY: As a wife and mother of three sons and a United Methodist Woman, I know personally the blessing of having a Christian father who was a wonderful spiritual role model, but I also know that not everyone has been blessed to have that same experience. In an age when we need more spiritual male role models, I celebrate the United Methodist Men and their Christian leadership. If a new structure will help facilitate their ministry, then I wholly, fully support it and ask you to support it as well.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right, thank you. It's been called to my attention that there may be a mistake on the top of page 387 in the blue DCA, the very top line in the first column. The College of Bishops should be the Council of Bishops, I believe. That's just so that we understand that's a correction. Now we need a speech against this. A question, microphone 4, please.

DON MENDENHALL (Iowa): I would like to ask again for a little more clarity around the financing, mainly because if things do not work out, does that pull from other agencies or boards? More clarification around the financing.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right, thank you.

Funding Moved from GBOD

GILBERT HANKE (Texas): As the petition is written right now, the financing that would already be allocated to Methodist Men's programs in the budget of GBOD, General Board of Discipleship, that monies would be transferred over into the new commission. So there would be no additional funding requested in the petition.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right, thank you. Now, does anyone wish to speak against?

Yes, microphone 8 please.

DONALD WILLIAMS (West Michigan): Bishop, I offer a substitute motion.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right.

WILLIAMS: I move that rather than the current Calendar Item 1681, that the Board of Discipleship prioritize for the coming quadrennium the study in needs, concerns of men in our church and provide every programmatic and structural support to address the needs of United Methodist Men rather than a United Methodist Men commission.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right. Is there support for this amendment? Yes, I hear a second. You may speak to it.

WILLIAMS: I would raise a couple of issues. Yesterday we spent a great deal of time debating downsizing, restructuring. I am amazed that we would add a new structure at the same time that we talked of restructuring. Secondly, I feel that the Board of Discipleship is equally able to address the needs as I understand them in my reading of this petition. I urge your support of the substitute motion.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right, thank you. Now the substitute amendment is before us. Does anyone wish to speak against the substitute? Yes, right here in the center, please. Again microphone 8, please.

JUDY BENSON (Oklahoma): The United Methodist Men has been lodged under the Board of Discipleship, but the United Methodist Men feel that really hasn't met their needs. That's been kind of like a secure nest. However, that environment and attitude of a secure nest has not always allowed for the achievement of the highest potential. We feel that risking a free-standing committee will allow for growth and leadership and empowerment of United Methodist Men in meeting their needs and concerns on all levels, which hasn't really been done before. So we believe that a vote against this will be for growth for United Methodist Men, a restructuring for mission, and a freeing of the spirit.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right. Thank you. Now does anyone wish to speak for the amendment? Yes, back in the far corner. Microphone 14.

PHYLLIS FERGUSON: (Pacific Northwest): I'm not against men and I have father, grandfathers, great grandfathers, and great great grandfathers. I have a husband, five brothers—not in that order—and I have one son, innumerable uncles, and male cousins. I am not against men. But as a speaker of this amendment, I cannot understand why United Methodist Men cannot work with Board of Discipleship to achieve whatever it is they want to achieve. Thank you.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right. That was for the amendment. Now is there anyone who wishes to speak against the amendment? All right. Over here. Microphone 9, I guess.

JEROME K. DEL PINO (New England): Bishop, I have a question.

BISHOP BASHORE: Yes, Jerome.

DEL PINO: I would appreciate it very much if the presenters of the motion would clarify specifically what would be the financial implications of this for the long term, especially vis-à-vis entry into local United Methodist churches.

HANKE: May I speak to that?

UM Men Longterm Funding Discussed

BISHOP BASHORE: Please.

HANKE: It has been a—I have had the honor of chairing the Long Range Plan for the National Association of United Methodist Men's presidents. And it has been a long-standing goal of our organization, the United Methodist Men, to be independent financially. We currently raise a significant amount of the funds used to operate that office now, and those funds will continue. And we think being a free-standing agency will increase giving to that agency. So it is our intent, and with the work we have done on this we feel that the current petition that is before you will not cost any additional funds, and in four years when we meet again, we will be financially independent, which has been our long-term goal and desire. So that those world service funds that we currently use can be freed up to use, to build up other programs within our church.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right. Now, we still have an opportunity for a speech against the amendment. Yes? Question? Microphone 5.

MEL BOWDAN (Kentucky): I'm a little concerned about what I hear from the presenters about we feel this, we think this, about the financing, financial impact. The programmatic money going to United Methodist Men is one thing, and I'm a little concerned—I want, the question I have is, have you looked at what that financial impact is when, in fact, you then begin to look at salary for general secretaries and associate secretaries and staff, and can that be absorbed in the current money that's set aside for United Methodist Men?

BISHOP BASHORE: All right.

HANKE: Yes.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right. Now, speech against? Yes, right here. Microphone 3. This is against the amendment.

WILLIAM R. AUVENSHINE (Central Texas): I rise to speak against the amendment.

BISHOP BASHORE: Bill.

AUVENSHINE: I've served two quadrenniums on the Board of Discipleship. During that time, the Methodist Men have gone from, we can say infancy into mature status. At this time, they ask to stand on their own. We're simply, with the original motion, asking that they stand on their own.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right. Thank you. Now we've had two for and two against. Are you ready to vote on this? Well, all right, microphone 7.

THOMAS W. FLINN JR (Baltimore-Washington): I have a question for the chairs. Could you be very specific and tell me exactly what would be accomplished by moving from the General Board of Discipleship to independence that you could not already accomplish being a member of the General Board of Discipleship?

Problems in UM Men Staying within GBOD

HANKE: That's an excellent question. Many of the things that we are able to do right now as a division within the Board of Discipleship, when an idea comes up, an area of ministry that we want to pursue, we are unable to pursue that completely on our own. It sometimes slows our ability to interface with other agencies of the church because we need to use the structure of the Board of Discipleship to facilitate that. We feel that we could have, just as we do in many annual conferences, direct access to areas of ministry in a much more rapid time period to provide better ministry. Three of the areas—the three areas of United Methodist Men's ministry is in the area of evangelism, mission, and spiritual growth. Being an independent commission will allow us to pursue those more directly, more rapidly, with the leaders of those different areas of ministry.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right. I think we are about ready to move on, are we not? OK, that seemed to take the cards down, so I think we are ready to vote. This is on the amendment. Do you recall the amendment? That basically is to give the Board of Discipleship the opportunity to study this matter of finding ways to bring about intensity of faithfulness on the part of the United Methodist Men. All right. If you favor this amendment, indicate with the uplifted hand, please. Oh, we're ready for the other. All right, now we can do the other. When the light is on, will you vote, please? [Results: yes, 262]

UM Men Commission Approved

All right, the amendment is defeated. Now, we're ready for the main motion. Are we ready to move along on the main motion? All right, I believe that's the body's wish. When the light appears, please vote. [754 approved] That is approved. All right. Thank you very much.

Now we are ready to move onto the results of the election. So we'll hear the results of the election and take ballots, and then we will have the opportunity for the offering for the pages and the marshalls, and then we'll have a break. All right, now you have the names before you. You'll notice that number one already says elected. If you vote for number one, that will be an invalid ballot. So you have the list of clergy. Please vote for one person when the light is on.

Offering Taken for Pages and Marshalls

All right, while we are waiting for the lay ballot, we will have the opportunity to receive an offering for the pages and the marshalls. These are persons who are here, who have served us and continue to serve us in such wonderful fashion and often come at their own expense, and we need to be generous as we share our appreciation in an offering. Yes? Is this related to this. All right, microphone 4, please.

EDWARD A. KAIL (Iowa): If we wanted to write a check, to whom should that be made out?

BISHOP BASHORE: Just make it to the General Conference, if you want to write a check. Now, I think we are ready to receive the offering. While we're doing this, is there any chance that we can sing a song or have some music. (Bishop Bashore leads group in hymn, Blessed Assurance.)

Asked Laity Elected to Judicial Council

Thank you very much. We will now continue in our election process. All right, we should have the lay results in front of us. Valid votes 868, total ballots 940, need to elect 468. Invalid ballots 20. There is one election, AsKew, with 515. All right, results of vote: AsKew 515, Matheny 399, Geis 261, Gray 194, Plowman 125, Hill 82, Bonney 67, Sessums 42, Panganiban 40, Lett 38, Gordon 35, McLane 23, Church 20, Kolasa 14, Danburam 13.

Now we have the list in front of us and remember, well I hope...This is the clergy. These are the clergy results, but we didn't have the first frame. We need the summary. While we're waiting, microphone 1, please.

JANE A. MIDDLETON (New York): Thank you Bishop. Just for a quick moment of personal privilege, and an affirmation, and a word of gratitude to the General Conference for joining in singing "Blessed Assurance," written by Fanny Crosby who comes from our neck of the woods.

BISHOP BASHORE: Thank you very much. Thank you Jane. All right, are we ready? I think its time to take a break, my watch says 10:20, would you be back please by 25 minutes before 11 a.m. and ready to work.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right, let us come to order, please. We've been grateful to Cynthia and also to S.T. for the fantastic guiding in the music area for us this week. Can we come to order please. We will be ready to take another ballot.

All right. Will we come to order, please. Now there have been some questions raised about this afternoon about our belongings. Someone wanted a definition of bag, as to what's included in that. I think, over here we can get some help at microphone 1, please. Microphone 1, let us be in order now please.

RICHARD NICODEMUS (New York): Roger Cruise, our general manager, business manager, has agreed that delegates may take their bags, their tote bags which weigh 20 pounds or better, to their respective legislative rooms and leave them there during the entire afternoon session, and then collect them prior to, or after, coming back from dinner. The rooms will, in fact, be monitored by marshals and pages, so they will be relatively secure.

BISHOP BASHORE: Wait just there, please. One of the questions was related to, I understand those bags, but what about purses? That was the question.

NICODEMUS: I understood that purses can be brought in. Ladies can bring their purses in, but other brief cases and bags cannot be brought back.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right. I think there is an announcement. Before we adjourn, there will be an additional announcement regarding that matter. Thank you.

Now, are we ready to proceed? All right, now. Let's have your attention please. We have the lay persons in front of us. One person has been elected. So, I want to give just a point of advice. If you are voting multiple numbers, that is two numbers like a 10, 11, 12, 13, make sure you press those quickly. Do not delay, because it may come out just 1, if you're voting for 13. You can see on your own monitor and check that. All right? Now, we're ready. We'll vote just for one person on the lay side. When the light is on, please vote.

All right. Thank you. All right. You can see that we have the results in front of you, both the numbers and percentages. Matheny 329, Geis 189, Gray 114, Plowman 57, Bonney 37, Gordon 24, Hill 20, Panganiban 19, Lett 10, Sessums 10, Church 6, Danburam 6, Kolasa 5, McLane 1.

All right. We are ready now. You had the results. We're speeding up the process. This, again, is the lay person on the Judicial Council that is before you. When the light is on, please vote. All right. You have the results of that vote, I think. Do you want me to keep reading the tally? Good. You can read them. Let's have the next screen. Matheny 370, Geis 196, Gray 110, Plowman 49, Bonney 29, Gordon 22, Hill 22, Panganiban 16, AsKew 13, Church 9, Danburam 8, Kolasa 4, Lett 4, Sessums 3, McLane 1.

All right. Do you have the results of that? Now we're ready again for the slate. All right. The names are before you. Vote for one person. When the light is on, please vote. (Still no election). Matheny has 47.0 percent at 419 out of 892, Geis 213, Gray 101, Plowman 45, Bonney 22, Gordon 21, Panganiban 20, Hill 15, AsKew 11, Church 9, Danburam 4, Lett 5, Sessums 3, McLane 3 Kolasa 1.) All right, you now see the results.

OK. The next screen please. All right. I believe we're ready now for the listing for the ballot.

Matheny, Layman Elected to Judicial Council

BISHOP BASHORE: You know we need a majority fifty plus one in order to elect. All right, ready to vote? When the light is on please vote. All right. Thomas Matheny has been elected [he received 477 votes] and now that completes the lay side, we need to move to the clergy side. AsKew and Matheny have been elected. All right. Yes, microphone 9, please.

ROBERT SWEET (New England): I've been deeply honored by the nomination to the Judicial Council by my annual conference delegation. However, I think there's something far more important, and that's the racial inclusiveness of the council, and so I would like to withdraw at this time.

Corry Elected Clergy Member of Judicial Council

BISHOP BASHORE: All right, thank you. Are we ready? All right, now we have one person yet to elect on the clergy side. You see the slate in front of you. Vote for one person. When the light is on please vote. All right John Corry has been elected. [he received 478 votes] So Corry and Bevans have been elected on the clergy side. We've completed the elections of the Judicial Council. Yes, there's a card over here microphone 5, please.

JUNE GOLDMAN (Iowa): Thank you Bishop Bashore. I rise for a point of inquiry. I wish to inquire whether a response is in process to the request that I made last night that a cross be placed somewhere on the platform as a focus for our General Conference. Bishop Dew in his address to us this morning said that words do not mean much unless they are accompanied by action. We speak a great deal about Christ-shaped servanthood but we have no cross to command our attention. We talk about the cross being central to our faith, but there is no cross for us to look at at the front. We sing "Lift High the Cross," but there is no cross. I would request respectfully, once more, that the appropriate committee place a cross somewhere on the platform that we might focus on it.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right thank you, June. That matter, I've been told, has been referred to the Commission on General Conference. Are you going to speak to that, Bill? All right. Microphone 8, please.

WILLIAM QUICK (Detroit): In response to that request, though we're all beneath cross of Jesus, we'll see that a cross is there for the afternoon. Thank you.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right, thank you very much. Now I need to remind everybody that we're really not done with the election because we need to elect alternates. So we need to have six alternates on each side, so we'll be in this process for a little while. All right, way back in the corner, microphone 14.

You're here at the General Conference because you care about the church. No doubt, you also care about the earth.

What if one of the prophetic roles of the church at century's end is to stand up for ALL of creation?

"If the church doesn't, who will?"

That question was asked in an open letter to religious leaders from 35 leading scientists, including Carl Sagan. They said that fundamentally the environmental crisis is a spiritual one and must be addressed by people of faith.

This six-program video series helps us reflect on the spiritual nature of the problem and to reclaim our connection to all that God called good – in short to Love the Earth and Be Healed.

Delegates Experience World Church, Quicken Legislative Pace

In sharp but beautiful contrast to the jazz band Wednesday morning, delegates were greeted Thursday by the Christ United Methodist Church Deaf and Sign Choir, Peggy Johnson, director. (See separate worship story.)

Delegates experienced yet another example of the worldwide nature of the church. Oklahoma Area Bishop Dan E. Solomon, General Board of Global Ministries president, helped delegates have a telephone conversation with exiled Bishop J. Alfred Nduricimpa of Burundi, transmitted through the plenary sound system. The bishop, living in exile in Nairobi, Kenya, answered delegates' questions about the serious conditions in Burundi and the fate of United Methodists there. He expressed thanks to the many people and churches who have sent aid to thousands of refugees fleeing Burundi to Kenya, without food, goods or shelter, especially children and youth. "Send assistance to refugees in surrounding countries as well," the bishop said. "The need is enormous!"

Bishop Solomon expressed regret that the U.S. government would not give Bishop Nduricimpa a visa to attend the General Conference. It was reported that the visa was denied because the U.S. State Department accused the bishop of running arms. Delegates then prayed that God

A Conference Moment

"We share each other's woes, our mutual burdens bear; and often for each other flows the sympathizing tear."

would uphold the bishop and his family "in strength and love, to serve God's call."

Presiding Bishop Joseph H. Yeakel, Washington Area, led the period of discernment and prayer to begin the business of the day.

Site Selection Task Force Report

Following a detailed report from the Site Selection Task Force for the General Board of Global Ministries, delegates voted overwhelmingly not to move the board's headquarters in the near future. In view of the studies approved earlier on world and U.S. structures, the conference assigned the issue to a standing joint committee of the General Council on Ministries and the General Council on Finance and Administration, which regularly reviews the suitability of all general agency locations. (See additional report elsewhere in the DCA.)

Delegates were moved by a personal word from North Alabama clergy delegate Kelly A. Clem and her husband, the Rev. Dale Clem, of Piedmont, Ala. They thanked the worldwide church for its immediate and direct assistance when the Goshen United Methodist Church was hit by a tornado during Palm Sunday services last year. Twenty persons lost their lives, including the Clem's 4-year-old daughter. Birmingham Area Bishop Robert E. Fannin termed Ms. Clem's widely televised, heroic response "a sign of the ultimate depth of those called to ministry."

The conference unanimously approved inviting First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton to be honorary chair of the church's "Focus on Young People" and adopted legislation to implement that program.

Other Conference Actions

In other conference action, delegates:

- received word that the Southwest Texas and Rio Grande conferences (San Antonio Area) would give copies of the new Hispanic hymnal Mil Voces Para Celebrar to each delegate and send a special copy to Mrs. Clinton.
- approved development of a comprehensive plan for town and country ministries, with a task force representative of all levels of the church.
- approved continuing development of Shalom Communities in urban and rural areas facing crisis and transition.
- supported the principle of cooperative parish ministries in rural, town/country, urban and suburban settings. Primary responsibility was assigned to the General Board of Global Ministries with the General Council on Ministries to study the effectiveness of the approach to ministry.
- approved continuation of the Special Program on Substance Abuse and Related Violence with a proposed quadrennial budget of $1,440,000 plus a guarantee of $127,000 per year for programs in Northern Europe, Baltic and Eurasian Areas conferences. The "national" director title was changed to "international."
- spelled out six program areas for the General Board of Global Ministries: Evangelism and Church Growth, Community and Institutional Ministries, Mission Context and Relationships, Mission Education, Mission Volunteers and Mission Personnel.
- approved a resolution proposed by United Methodist Communications: "A Call for Truth, Fairness and Accuracy," emphasizing truth, fairness and accuracy in reporting and the principle of free speech in an open forum.
- voted to limit debate for the next sessions to two speeches of two minutes for and against.
- rejected proposals to have the work of the General Commission on Communication evaluated by the Seminary Students Participate in General Conference

Among the many delegates and visitors at General Conference is a group of more than 60 people who are an important aspect of The United Methodist Church's future. They're students at Boston University School of Theology, Drew University—The Theological School, Garrett-Evangelical Theological Seminary (G-ETS), Iliff School of Theology and Methodist Theological School in Ohio (Methesco).

Representing many United Methodist annual conferences, the seminarians demonstrate serious interest in the future of The United Methodist Church. Some students work with caucus groups. Others observe and participate as part of a seminary course.

G-ETS has offered a General Conference course for more than 40 years. Doris Rudy, director of continuing education, attended General Conference as part of her seminary education. She and Richard Tholin, senior scholar in senior social ethics, now lead student groups at General Conference. A similar course has been part of the Methesco curriculum for several years. Iliff students have had a special opportunity this year as they've volunteered to help host General Conference.

What have the seminarians learned? Some have commented that amid the struggle to deal with diverse opinions and experiences, it is possible to have a spiritual experience that augments the educational experience.

—Greg Edwards, Methesco student Council of Bishops for program matters (in addition to the General Council on Ministries) and to establish a new General Commission on Alcohol and Drugs. Instead, urged the General Board of Church and Society to establish a standing committee on the subject.

- referred to the General Commission on the General Conference a concern that no World Service funds be spent by general agencies for promotional materials distributed at the 2000 General Conference.
- approved a plan for the National Committee on Deaf Ministries by a vote of 704 to 39.
- approved by a large margin continuation of the Interagency Task Force on AIDS, pending budgetary approval.

As the afternoon session drew to a close, delegates prepared to open the evening session with debate on the long-term controversies related to abortion and homosexuality issues.

Announcement

Attention: bishops, district superintendents, conference chancellors, chairpersons of ordained ministry: Look for a joint mailing in two weeks from GCFA and GBHEM relating to important information you will need for your upcoming annual conference sessions regarding changes in the church's internal disciplinary process (administrative and judicial) that will go into effect immediately at the close of General Conference.

Florida Annual Conference has designated the 1996 annual conference offering to purchase Spanish hymnals for Cuba. Florida Conference UMM have already purchased 250. Anyone wishing to help, make checks to Florida Conference Treasurer marked Spanish Hymnal and mail to: P.O. Box 3767, Lakeland, FL 33802.

Discussing the Disciple Bible Study today at 1:15 p.m. are Arkansas Area Bishop Richard B. Wilke and his wife Julia. Delegates and visitors are invited to meet with the Wilkes in the Abingdon area of the Cokesbury display. Honored last week at the 10th anniversary of the Disciple Bible Study, they are co-authors of the study manual for all phases of the study. Their lifelong interest and commitment to Bible study have been the driving forces behind the vision for the Disciple Bible Study program. Bishop Wilke will retire this year, but will continue to contribute to Disciple Bible Study, phase four. He will provide training and information through the Disciple office at The United Methodist Publishing House.

It's not too late to get a DCA. The DCA will only be available for three months after General Conference. You can order them by calling 1-800/672-1789 and asking for Joyce Wolf.

Cookie Coordinator Caters to Conference

Ruth Post has the sweetest job at General Conference. She's the coordinator of the 120 cookie volunteers and the 120,000 cookies which are provided for delegates and others working at the conference. Early this year, a call went out to 276 churches to donate 40 dozen cookies apiece. Nearly all of them responded.

Trinity United Methodist Church, Denver, in addition to serving 11 lunches and four dinners during the conference, sent 65 dozen cookies. But small-member congregations also responded enthusiastically. Two small Wyoming churches, Midwest and Carpenter, with 14 and 12 members respectively, each sent their full complement of 40 dozen cookies.

Members in the Yellowstone Conference pitched in, too. They provided cookies for Monday, April 22.

In keeping with the theme of the local hosts' focus on "Welcoming the World to Our Neighborhood," home-baked cookies are a way to show care and love to delegates and visitors.

And Now, a Word from a Host Committee Member

It's very important,
It must be done now.
I suppose it could wait,
But I cannot see how.

I've lost my committee.
Can you give me directions?
My chairman is silly and won't let me ask questions.

So I've come here to ask you,
I've come to find out
All of the answers
Now don't make me pout.

I've misplaced my dentures.
Do you know where they are?
I drive well in England;
Can I borrow your car?

My back hurts; my leg hurts.
My digestion is bad.
My arm's falling off,
And the lighting is bad.

I've got spots in my eyes;
Nothing can be seen.
My doggie is sick;
Can you send some vaccine?

You gave away coats,
But mine was there too.
Since you gave it away,
I'll have one from you.

I just got here. It's late.
I'm not feeling too well.
I must go to sleep.
Do you have a hotel?

Please call me a cab.
Please get me a car.
I just cannot walk;
Two blocks is too far.

I know you are gracious;
I know that you care.
I don't know how to do this.
The cookies go . . . where?

My wife needs a wheel chair,
With lifts for her legs.
My breakfast was awful;
I'm allergic to eggs!

My committee is missing;
They just disappeared!
They're trying to dump me.
It's just as I feared!

There's a little old lady,
Standing right there.
She must be the one
In need of our care.

Lead her right up.
We'll get this chore done.
She's here! She's happy!
She's the wrong one?!?

But everything's done
This week everything finished
Was done with a smile.
Did you look up that dentist?

That's right, her teeth hurt—
The upper incisor
Will we ever be finished?
Please, Lord, give an answer.

We've cooked. We've coffee'd.
We've smiled and we've taken.
We've walked all day long,
'Til our feet feel like bacon.

But when all of it's through,
When all of it's done,
When nobody's looking,
We'll admit we had fun.

A FAMILY AFFAIR

Spouses Paul Extrum-Fernandez, lay, and Renae D. Extrum-Fernandez, clergy, are delegates from the California-Nevada Conference. Paul chairs the delegation. Both were elected on the first ballot and are 38 years old. They said: "We are the first couple in our conference to be elected in 50 years. Most certainly we are the first couple in our conference where the clergy delegate is a woman and the lay delegate is a man." Paul's father, Arturo M. Fernandez, is a reserve clergy delegate in the Oregon-Idaho Conference.

Spouses Bernard "Skip" Keels, clergy, and Christine Dean Keels, lay, are delegates from the Baltimore-Washington Conference. Skip chairs the delegation.

FOUR DECADES AND COUNTING

Bob Lear, a member of the United Methodist News Service (UMNS) team, first attended General Conference in 1956 as the newly hired director of Iowa Methodist Information. His first full General Conference was in Denver in 1960, and he has covered every regular and special session since, plus two sessions of the former Evangelical United Brethren General Conference. He retired from UMNS in 1992.

WAY TO GO, B.K.!

South Central Jurisdiction has five B.K.s (bishops' kids) serving as delegates: James J. Bryan, son of retired Bishop Monk Bryan (clergy reserve, Missouri West Conference); Mary Brooke Casad, daughter of retired Bishop Benjamin R. Oliphint (lay, North Texas); Charles Crutchfield, son of the late Bishop Finis Crutchfield (clergy, New Mexico); Randy Smith, son of the late Bishop A. Frank Smith (lay, Texas); and Donald W. "Don" Underwood, son of the late Bishop Walter Underwood (clergy, North Texas).

MOST DELEGATES FROM ONE CHURCH

St. Paul and St. Andrew United Methodist Church, New York City, is represented by the following members and regular participants: Ressie Mac Bass, lay delegate, Florida Conference; Linda Bloom, United Methodist Communications (UMCom); Edward C. "Ed" Horne, clergy delegate, New York; Don Reasoner, translator; Bruce Robbins, general secretary, General Commission on Christian Unity and Interreligious Concerns; Pat Rothrock, translator; Shirley Struchen, UMCom; and Connie Takamine, treasurer, Women's Division, General Board of Global Ministries. Visitors from that congregation include Barbara E. Campbell, Frances Helen Guest, Betty J. Letzig and Melissa Morgan.

PAGES OF TIME

The Rev. Glenn L. Courts, Kentucky Conference, is serving as a page for his fifth General Conference.

SEEING DOUBLE—TIMES TWO

Stephen R. "Steve" Pacey, lay delegate, Central Illinois Conference, has six children. "Big deal," you might say. Well, here's the "Can You Top This?" part: four of them are 10 years old! They're quadruplets Ed, John, Rachel and Robert. They have an older sister, Sarah, and a younger brother, Tom.

SETTING A GOOD EXAMPLE

Paul and Gwen Curtis, along with their children Caitlin, 6, and Bryan, 4, are volunteers in mission, working on the Habitat for Humanity "General Conference House." This is Caitlin's and Bryan's fourth mission trip. Gwen said: "We choose to make mission trips our family vacations for a very clear reason: As we hammer nails, hang sheet rock and lay brick, our children play with Native-American, African-American, Appalachian and Denver children." At General Conference, Caitlin has made drawings and written messages to bishops, music directors and delegates.

SOMETHING IN THE WATER? PART II

Does LaGrange [Ga.] College hold the record for alumni serving as delegates in the greatest number of conferences? Six LaGrange graduates/General Conference delegates include: L. Cecile Adams, lay, Detroit Conference; I. Carolyn Briscoe, lay, and Betty Moss B. McGuirt, lay, South Carolina; E. Malone Dodson, clergy, North Georgia; John E. Horton, clergy, South Georgia; and Louise K. Schock, lay, Northwest Texas. In addition, another LaGrange alumna, Sally AsKew, North Georgia, serves on the Judicial Council.

Opposites Make Beautiful Music Together

At first, just look and listen. General Conference music directors Cynthia Wilson-Felder and S T Kimbrough Jr. seem to have little in common. She's a diaconal minister; he's clergy. He sings opera; she sings the blues and jazz. He's deliberate on the platform; she's energetic.

A case of opposite attracting opposite? They sing and work together well enough that they've just released "Spirituals: Songs from the American Experience," available from Cokesbury (here in Denver) as a tape or a CD.

They share a love of singing and stellar musicianship, nurtured from childhood by their families and honed with excellent classical music training which they've shaped into their own styles.

Growing up in New Orleans, Ms. Wilson-Felder and her six brothers sang jazz and blues on radio and television. "My daddy was a musician," she said, "and music was always part of our family life." A voice education degree from Dillard University, study at Eastman School of Music and a graduate degree from Southern Methodist University refined her technique but didn't diminish the soul at the heart of her performances.

Now a diaconal minister of music at Ben Hill United Methodist Church in Atlanta, she is in demand as a performer and music director for church events nationwide.

On the CD, he's Steven Kimbrough ("S T is my given name, but people always seem to hear 'Steve,'" he says), and global music is now one of his major interests. Trained at the Birmingham Conservatory, and holding theological degrees from Duke and Princeton universities, he sounds like an opera singer for a good reason. Mr. Kimbrough is executive secretary for mission evangelism for the General Board of Global Ministries.

He sang more than 40 operatic roles, mostly in Germany, from 1970 to 1982. As much as he loves that type of music, however, Mr. Kimbrough says "operatic style isn't right for everything."

The two laugh often as they work together. They auditioned 75 individuals and groups on tape—"everything from quartets to a steel drum band," Ms. Wilson-Felder said—before settling on and assigning the nine groups which sing for opening worship services and provide afternoon concerts.

Her experience with a wide variety of musical styles and his work with the General Board of Global Ministries' "Global Praise" project make them appreciate the many musical ways United Methodists have to praise God in song.

Their love of the same God and their love of many kinds of music keep them singing together—as different as they can be.

—Tom Slack

Bishop Kulah Expresses Hope After Harrowing Journey

Throughout their harrowing, week-long journey from war-ravaged Liberia to Denver, Liberian Area Bishop Arthur F. Kulah and his wife Violet faced great personal risk in order to ask the conference not to "give up on Liberia."

They arrived Wednesday evening to a joyous reception after which Bishop Kulah tearfully and haltingly brought greetings from his sisters and brothers in Liberia. He characterized his country, devastated by six years of civil war, as "rich in human resources but poor in human relationships."

At a press conference yesterday, Bishop Kulah said he and his family of 13 daughters and two sons faced grave danger at the numerous checkpoints between their home in Monrovia, Liberia's capital city, and the border of Sierra Leone where for several days they awaited visas to the United States. They faced interrogation; and the Kulah children and grandchildren, now safely relocated in Dananae, Ivory Coast, were taunted by young soldiers with threats of cannibalism and brutality.

Soldiers among the warring factions, their courage heightened by internationally supplied drugs and firearms, are brutalizing citizens and burning homes. Bishop Kulah said he unsuccessfully confronted a United Methodist pastor's militant son whose sense of reason, feeling and fear was distorted by drugs. "Drugs are destroying the moral fabric of the nation," the bishop said.

"Pray for us," said Bishop Kulah, who fears the bitter fighting that has plagued Liberia since 1989 could spread to other West African countries. Although he acknowledged the United States has provided hundreds of millions of dollars in humanitarian aid to Liberia, he appealed to the United Nations and the United States "to take a decisive role in bringing the dissension to an end."

Despite the risks of his role as an outspoken proponent of peace in Liberia, Bishop Kulah plans to return to his people; but Mrs. Kulah will join their children. "The fear is so great for our Methodist women and for all our families," she said. Bishop Kulah was detained under house arrest in Gbarnga Jan. 16-20 by members of the National Patriotic Front of Liberia (NPFL) and subsequently suffered the loss of two members of his extended family who were beaten to death by soldiers of the NPFL.

Confirmation of the two deaths near Gbarnga, site of the 1996 annual conference of the Liberian United Methodist Church, was received March 26 by General Board of Global Ministries officials. NPFL commanders have since found charges of improper actions by Bishop Kulah were "unfounded, untrue, falsified and misleading." Still, he lives each day in danger.

Despite the civil war, Bishop Kulah said the church in Liberia continues to grow and have influence. He thanks God daily for the safety of the many refugees the church has housed and his own ability to serve. "Do not give up on Liberia, for we have hope...in our Lord Jesus Christ," he said. "And we too shall rise again. Continue to pray for us!"

Russian Observers Cite Similarities, Differences

Anton Zakharchenko (Zah HAR chen ko) and the Rev. Andrei Kim are Russian observers attending General Conference.

From Samara, a city of 1.5 million in the Volga area, Mr. Zakharchenko said he will take back his impressions of the conference. "I see and hear and try to understand everything" that is happening here, he explained. A teacher at the Electrical Communication Institute, he is a member of the administrative council of the [national] Russian Methodist Church.

An ordained deacon and pastor of Perovo Methodist Church, Mr. Kim lives in Moscow, a city of 6.5 million people. He said he will assure his 75-member congregation that The United Methodist Church is deeply concerned about what is going on in the rest of the world. The "ecumenical worship service and the problems, concerns, style of work and different admonitions impress me greatly," he said, adding, "I think that in the future, Christianity will develop only on the basis of ecumenical cooperation."

Russians, Mr. Zakharchenko said, see the United States as "the main country of Methodism in the world." His congregation has 1,000 members, with about 200 worshipping each Sunday. His pastor, Vladislav Spectorov was the first ordained Russian Methodist elder.

Mr. Kim said his congregation has become well-established because of its ability to absorb the culture of the region, retaining its own traditions and customs. In Russia today individuals are free to organize churches and worship as they choose. He believes the United Methodist General Conference should give more freedom to congregations to organize locally.

Ten years ago, on a trip to Estonia, Mr. Zakharchenko met some Methodists. They shared their faith and taught him about Bible study. Now every year he returns to Estonia to get religious literature for the Samara church. He said his congregation has an organized group, in which participants study the Bible and discuss spiritual matters. The group, which started with just a few persons, is growing steadily.

Mr. Zakharchenko is eager to "tell United Methodists about Russian Methodism. In the United States there seems to be little knowledge of Russian Methodism and Russian life in general." He said this is a mutual problem because Russians also know very little about the United States. "We must have [more] contact with each other and learn about each other," he added.

"A tremendous event" is how Mr. Kim described United Methodism's General Conference. He said the debates are interesting, the issues vitally important. Although he participated in the Ordained Ministry Legislative Committee, he said most of the problems weren't directly related to Russia so had little relevance for him.

Instead of a quadrennial General Conference, Mr. Zakharchenko said the Russian Methodist Church meets annually for a three-day session. He noted that while The United Methodist Church is struggling with issues like homosexuality and relocation of general boards, the Russian Methodist Church deals daily with human-rights concerns and basic needs such as food, clothing and shelter.

This is Mr. Kim's third visit to the United States. While he speaks little English, he feels no discomfort here, he said. People are friendly, responsive and helpful.

Conference Declines to Move General Board of Global Ministries

On Thursday morning the General Conference declined a call to move the headquarters of the General Board of Global Ministries. The 1992 General Conference had narrowly approved a move from the board's current New York location and authorized a task force to make a recommendation for a new site.

But that recommendation—to relocate to Reston, Va., at an estimated total cost of about $72 million—was rejected unanimously by the 1996 Legislative Committee on General and Judicial Administration. Instead, the committee offered majority and minority reports.

The majority report, which passed with one amendment by a vote of 584 to 354, recommended a delay in mandating a move until General Conference 2000 "so that any restructuring of the general boards and agencies can be incorporated into the site relocation decision and a more economical site can be determined . . ."

As amended by the Rev. Ernest S. Lyght, Northern New Jersey, the majority report declared that the standing joint committee of the denomination's General Council on Ministries and General Council on Finance and Administration should continue its assigned duties of reviewing the suitability of all locations of the denomination's boards and agencies. The adopted majority report did not require the development of an alternate site proposal for the board.

The minority report, which failed by a vote of 400 to 558, would have required that recommendations of at least two alternative headquarters sites be presented in 2000. The same standing joint committee would have made those recommendations.

Church Overhauls Ministry

After 30 years' discussion, the 1996 General Conference agreed April 24 to reorder the church's ministry. Underlying the proposals adopted was an affirmation of the ministry of all baptized Christians.

The adopted plan calls for two separate offices of ordained ministry: deacon, one who pledges to serve God and the church through "word and service" to the community, and elder, one who serves through "service, word, sacrament and order."

Most local churches in the denomination still will be led by ordained elders. As with current practice, only elders will be eligible for the offices of district superintendent and bishop.

The bulk of the ministry proposal came from a four-year study and subsequent proposals submitted by the 130-member Council of Bishops, which called for two orders of ordination. The bishops' proposal would have retained the tradition of first ordaining elders as deacons. However, the Legislative Committee on Ordained and Diaconal Ministry modified the proposal by recommending a one-step process for elders and a separate process for deacons. That modification was accepted by delegates.

Delegates rejected the bishops' proposal for a new category of "lay ministry steward," those individuals who feel called to special service. Members of the legislative committee argued successfully that the lay steward category would create an unnecessary hierarchy among laity.

The General Conference vote marks the end of three decades of discussion on the definitions and duties of people who are ordained in The United Methodist Church.

Elders are "members in full connection" of annual conferences, are appointed annually by their bishops and itinerate (move from place to place). They bear the title "the Rev." and are the only people authorized to administer the sacraments. However, deacons may assist.

Like diaconal ministers, the new deacons will not itinerate but will be considered clergy. The new deacons will seek to connect the local church in ministry to the world in a variety of ways.

Diaconal ministers may continue in that category or may become ordained as deacons. No new diaconal ministry candidates will be accepted after Jan. 1, 1997.

Paula Johnston Wraps Up Conference Duties, Anticipates Renewed Local Church Involvement

Howard Johnston is about to get his wife Paula back.

When the gavel sounds the adjournment of the 1996 General Conference, Paula Johnston will complete her responsibilities as Local Committee chair, a job that has been "a driving force during the past few weeks."

Paula, who has served as a delegate to three General Conferences and as a member of the 1992 Commission on the General Conference, is familiar with the time demands. She admits, however, that this General Conference has been much more time-consuming. "Since Bishop Roy I. Sano [Los Angeles Area] asked me in 1991 if I'd chair the Local Committee, I've actually been involved with this one for five years," Paula said. Never one to claim well-deserved credit for herself, she heaps praise on others. "I had six good committees, and each of those had subcommittees," she said. More than 500 volunteers were involved.

However, any volunteer will tell you that Paula's leadership was key to the success. For example, she doesn't mention that for months before General Conference, she made the 80-mile round-trip drive from her home in Longmont, Colo., to the Denver Area office an average of twice a week. Nor does she mention that during General Conference, she has spent 12- to 14-hour days in the Local Committee hospitality room.

Instead, Paula would rather talk about the services the committees have provided. "I'm so pleased," Paula said, "that we have involved people from every local congregation—from the smallest to the largest. We laugh about the cookies, but they are gifts of love from across the conference."

She cites the first-aid station in the hospitality room as among the most important benefits to delegates and visitors. "I'm so grateful for Gerrie Evans, a volunteer registered nurse, who was on duty seeing 50-some people every day. She took a lot of blood pressures and dispensed a lot of Band Aids."

Paula had hoped the Denver Area would receive delegates and visitors with an attitude of Christian hospitality. Each congregation in the Rocky Mountain and Yellowstone conferences was assigned prayer partners. "I'm thrilled about the success of the prayer partners. Congregations and delegates have said this was unique."

As one would expect of any meeting this size, there have been glitches. "Once we got people [to downtown Denver], our transportation services have been good," she said, "particularly taking people on the mission mini-tours, the Special Event Day tours and the Central Conference delegates to eight off-site lunches. "However, since we couldn't determine arrival times, we did have a problem getting people here from the airport. About 500 people arrived within an hour-and-a-half span, so there were delays." Paula considers another problem, that of running out of name tags, a "good problem to have."

"Besides wanting to do what the General Commission asked us to do, part of my mission was to get a large number of visitors from the area to come and observe. This was a wonderful opportunity to increase their understanding of the connection and General Conference," she said.

With 1,500 visitors from the local area, she considers that mission accomplished. "Howard and I," she said, "are going to spend some time in the mountains and take a motor-home trip to Alaska. My local congregation has been so understanding, they've not asked anything of me lately. I know I've got to get back in the swing soon. There is work to be done."

JUDICIAL COUNCIL DECISIONS

DECISION NO. 782

IN RE: Petition from the West Michigan Conference for a Declaratory Decision as to the Status of a Clergy Member Affected by Leave of Absence Procedures, in Light of Pars. 36, 448.1, 704.4, and 705.6.

IN RE: Review of Bishop's Decision of Law in the West Michigan Conference Concerning Legality of Leave of Absence

Recommendations and Actions.

DIGEST

The respondent is placed in the same status as he would have been before the special clergy session of the West Michigan Annual Conference. He is entitled to salary and other benefits as of July 1, 1995, and to a pastoral appointment immediately. The questions of law referred to Donald Ott, the presiding bishop, and his answers are now, in light of the ruling on this declaratory decision, either duplicative or irrelevant to the issue.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

Clergy member Marvin Rosa was on voluntary leave of absence for the 1994-1995 year and on December 8, 1994, he requested in writing to terminate this voluntary leave effective July 1, 1995.

The Board of Ordained Ministry approved this request. On June 13, 1995, the clergy session of the 1995 West Michigan Annual Conference, in response to that motion, voted that Rosa "be continued on leave of absence." At a Cabinet meeting on June 27, 1995, the district superintendents voted to place Rosa on involuntary leave of absence with the effective date to be determined upon completion of the processes pursuant to Pars. 448.1(b) and 2622 of the Discipline. The basis given for this action was that the clergy session of the past June voted to continue Rosa "on leave of absence." Rosa was notified of his rights to a hearing if he so requested within 10 days. The hearing was held on August 31, 1995 by the executive committee of the Board of Ordained Ministry with the full Cabinet present and the decision was made to place Rosa on an interim involuntary leave effective September 1, 1995. On October 23, 1995, a special clergy session of the West Michigan Annual Conference was held to review the Executive Committee's action. A two-thirds vote was not received for approval of the action.

Matters involving the same issues have reached the Judicial Council from two routes. Sixteen questions of law were presented by Marvin Rosa to the presiding Bishop Donald Ott, were answered, and came to the Judicial Council for review.

In addition, by motion, the special clergy session of the West Michigan Annual Conference seeks a declaratory decision from the Judicial Council on four questions in accordance with Par. 2616 of the Discipline. Some of the questions in the motion and in the questions and answers of law overlap.

Although the Judicial Council does not ordinarily grant an oral hearing on a review of a decision of law by a presiding bishop, an oral hearing was held in reference to the motion for a declaratory decision, with Bishop Donald Ott and S. Dale Lathers participating.

Jurisdiction

The Judicial Council has jurisdiction under Pars. 2616 and 2613 of the 1992 Discipline.

Analysis

In the course of the clergy session on June 13, 1995, a motion was made that, "By the will of this executive session, Marvin Rosa be continued on leave of absence." It was seconded and passed by a majority vote of 147 yes, 120 no, with 6 abstentions.

Bishop Ott gave a lengthy explanation of what he believed the conference's parliamentary status was regarding the vote. Bishop Ott explained, "I wish to explain the parliamentary situation you are in. The motion would overturn the action of the Board of Ordained Ministry."

It would confirm the desire of this body to retain Marvin Rosa on leave of absence. Immediately, it would require the Chairperson to go to Mr. Rosa to ask if he would remain in "voluntary leave of absence." If he were not to accept, you would be placing him on leave of absence without consent. That would trigger protection from the Discipline. The cabinet would need to meet. They would have to determine that there were reasons. They would have to vote. They would have to inform Marvin Rosa. A hearing would include the Executive Committee of the Board of Ordained Ministry, the Cabinet and the Bishop. That hearing would determine whether he were to be placed on involuntary leave of absence. If this happened it would take place away from the seat of conference. It would be an ad interim involuntary leave of absence. Such involuntary leave of absence would have to be approved at the next clergy session.

We will take the questions submitted for declaratory judgment in numerical order.

Question 1.

Did the June 13, 1995 West Michigan clergy session have the right to initiate matters relative to the conference relationship of one of its members, in light of the 1992 Book of Discipline paragraphs 36 (The Constitution Section VII, Article II); 704.4, 705.6 and Judicial Council Decision 6907 (sic).

We quote with favor the facts as outlined on page four of respondent counsel's brief, which state: During the 1994-95 church year, Rev. Rosa was on a voluntary leave of absence. In December of 1995 (sic) he made a timely request to return from leave effective at the end of the one year period on July 1, 1995. The Board of Ordained Ministry met to review the circumstances surrounding the leave of absence and voted to return Rev. Rosa from Leave effective July 1, 1995. He was advised by this decision by letter of February 28, 1995.

Prior to the clergy session on June 13, the District Superintendents did not take action to initiate a leave. Rev. Rosa did not request additional leave, the Board of Ordained Ministry took no action except that indicated on February 28 to return Rev. Rosa to an appointment. Rev. Rosa received no notice that further leave was being considered, and Rev. Rosa had already received an appointment to be effective July 1, 1995 which both he and the local church had accepted.

As a result of the vote of the clergy session on June 13, 1995, Rosa did not receive an appointment, but was rather placed at that time on an illegally processed leave of absence. Par. 448.1 of the Discipline states:

Leave of Absence.- 1. This relationship is granted to clergy who are probationary, associate, and full members who because of sufficient reason, are unable to or who chose temporarily to cease to perform the duties of full-time itinerant ministry. This relationship may be initiated by the minister as a voluntary leave of absence or the district superintendents as an involuntary leave of absence through the Board of Ordained Ministry, and granted or renewed by the vote of the executive session of clergy members in full connection of the Annual Conference upon the board's recommendation. The fair process as set forth in Par. 2622 shall be followed in any involuntary leave of absence procedure. Between sessions of the Annual Conference, leave of absence may be granted or terminated, with the approval of the bishop and district superintendents, by the executive committee of the Board of Ordained Ministry. This interim action shall be subject to the approval of the executive session of clergy members in full connection with the Annual Conference at its next session. This leave shall be counted as a part of the eight-year limit for probationary members unless the eight-year limit is extended by the executive session of the clergy members in full connection with the Annual Conference upon the recommendation of the Board of Ordained Ministry. Should there be grievances, complaints, or charges pending at the time of a request for leave of absence, they should be placed in the file of the clergy member. All subsequent actions concerning such entries should be duly noted and placed in the file. Clergy members on leaves of absence shall have no claim on the conference funds. However, in exceptional circumstances, on the recommendation of the district superintendents, salary and/or other benefits may be granted by vote of the executive session of the clergy members in full connection with the Annual Conference. In an interim between sessions of the Annual Conference, by vote of the bishop, Cabinet, and executive committee of the Board of Ordained Ministry, salary and/or benefits may be granted. Clergy members on leaves of absence shall not be eligible for membership on Annual, Jurisdictional, Central, or General Conference agencies and may not be elected or serve as delegates to General or Jurisdictional Conferences. Involuntary leaves of absence shall be approved by two-thirds vote of the clergy members in full connection at a session of the Annual Conference.

a) Voluntary Leave of Absence. - The written request for this relationship should be made at least ninety (90) days prior to the Annual Conference session, giving specific reasons for the request. Representatives of the Annual Conference Board of Ordained Ministry may interview the clergy member to determine sufficient cause. This relationship shall be approved annually upon written request of the clergy member and shall not be granted for more than five years in succession except by a two-thirds (2/3) vote of the clergy members in full connection.

b) Involuntary Leave of Absence. - The District Superintendents may request an involuntary leave of absence without the consent of the clergy member, at least ninety (90) days prior to the Annual Conference session. They shall give to the clergy member and the Board of Ordained Ministry in writing specific reasons for the request. The clergy member has the right to a hearing before the bishop, district superintendents, and executive committee of the Board of Ordained Ministry prior to being placed on involuntary leave of absence. By two-thirds vote of the executive session of clergy members in full connection with the Annual Conference, upon recommendation of the bishop, district superintendents, and Board of Ordained Ministry, the ninety-day notice requirement may be waived. This relation shall be approved annually upon written request of the district superintendents and shall not be approved for more than three years in succession. There will be an Administrative Review Committee composed of three members and one alternate in full connection who are not members of the Cabinet, Board of Ordained Ministry, or Joint Review Committee. This committee shall be nominated by the bishop and elected quadrennially by the executive session of clergy members in full connection with the Annual Conference. Its purpose shall be to ensure that the Disciplinary procedures for involuntary leave of absence were properly followed. The entire process leading to the recommendation for involuntary leave of absence shall be reviewed by the Administrative Review Committee and it shall report its findings to the executive session of clergy members in full connection with the Annual Conference.

Involuntary leave of absence shall be approved by two-thirds of the clergy members in full connection at a session of the Annual Conference. The vote held on June 13 of the clergy session did not fulfill this requirement nor the requirements of Par. 2622, or Pars. 36, 704.4, 705.6. (See also Decision 697.)

Therefore, we rule that while the West Michigan clergy session did have the right to vote on Rosa's request to come off voluntary leave, it could not legally place Rosa on an involuntary leave.

Question 2.

In light of the fact that on June 13, 1995 the clergy session sustained the motion that "by the will of this executive session (the names (sic) clergy person) be continued on leave of absence" and in light of the facts that neither had the clergyperson requested a continuance of a voluntary leave of absence, nor had the District Superintendents initiated a process for an involuntary leave of absence; was a two-thirds requirement of the 1992 Book of Discipline Paragraph 448.1 applicable to this motion?

To reiterate, extension of the voluntary leave was not voted on, and could not be under the circumstances.

We refer to Decision 650 of the Judicial Council in which a similar situation existed, and we hold that even if it were legally possible to vote for an involuntary leave, there was a requirement for a two-thirds vote in this matter, which was not met.

Question 3.

What was the status of the clergyperson from July 1, 1995, until September 1, 1995, when the clergyperson was placed, ad interim, on involuntary leave of absence following the initiation of such processes by the District Superintendents on June 27, 1995, and a hearing before the Executive Committee of the Board of Ordained Ministry, the Bishop and the District Superintendents on August 31, 1995?

It is to be noted that the 1992 Discipline substantially changed the language of Par. 448, and that a requirement of fair process was added under Par. 2622.

Therefore, Rosa was without an appointment and was placed on leave of absence in an improper fashion from July 1, 1995 through August 31, 1995. He is entitled to salary and other benefits for that period.

Question No. 4.

What is the current status of the said clergy person subsequent to the action of the October 23, 1995, clergy session in which the session did not sustain an involuntary leave of absence motion, and in light of the June 13, 1995 clergy session action that "by the will of this executive session Mary Rosa be continued on leave of absence"?

Again, we quote with favor from Counsel's brief in which he stated that the action of the clergy session was illegal for the following reasons:

- The meeting of June 27 was not a meeting of the District Superintendents, but rather a Cabinet meeting at which the Bishop and assistant were involved.
- The District Superintendents state the reasons for their action was that the clergy session had already voted to place him on leave. This notice does not provide "sufficient reasons" for a leave as required by 448.1.
- Neither did the notice received relative to the right to hearing provide specifics required for the respondent to prepare a defense as required by 2622.2.
- At the hearing before the Executive Committee of the Board on August 31, the presumption of innocence was not maintained in violation of 2622.

Therefore, the appropriate answer to this question is that since July 1, 1995, Rosa has been improperly listed on leave of absence.

Having reached this four-part declaratory decision, it is not necessary or helpful to rule on the 16 questions of law, as the material is either duplicative or irrelevant.

We find that the provisions for fair process and the two-thirds vote requirement for the imposition of an involuntary leave were not followed. Consequently, the respondent is placed in the same status in which he would have been prior to the special clergy session and is entitled to salary and other benefits retroactive to July 1, 1995.

Decision

The respondent is placed in the same status as he would have been before the special clergy session of the West Michigan Annual Conference. He is entitled to salary and other benefits as of July 1, 1995, and to a pastoral appointment immediately. The questions of law referred to Donald Ott, the presiding bishop, and his answers are now, in light of the ruling on this declaratory decision, either duplicative or irrelevant to the issue.

Concurring Opinion

In Par. 448 of the 1992 Discipline there is a missing link related to voluntary leave of absence and involuntary leave of absence. There is lack of clarity on the subsequent status of a clergy member, who makes a timely, written request to terminate a voluntary leave of absence, with the affirmative recommendation of the Board of Ordained Ministry to the clergy session. A major problem arises, in the event, vote of the clergy session denies the request to terminate the voluntary leave of absence. A majority vote of the clergy session is required to grant a voluntary leave of absence, if the circumstances of the leave have been alleviated or resolved (Par. 448.4). The primary question of subsequent status of the clergy member arises when the vote denies the termination of voluntary leave of absence. Is the clergy member in "good standing" by default without an intentional majority vote of the clergy session or does the status of voluntary leave of absence continue?

In brief, when termination of voluntary leave is requested, the 1992 Discipline is not clear that by majority votes the clergy session may continue the status of voluntary leave of absence, or that the clergy member's status reverts to involuntary leave of absence.

Regarding the right to vote, Decision 632 notes: "Par. 36, Article II of the Constitution reserves to the Annual Conference the right to vote on, and thus determine, all matters relating to the character and conference relationship of its ministerial members. Since an "involuntary leave of absence," as set forth in ¶ 448.1, is a conference relationship to be determined by the Annual Conference under ¶ 36 of the Constitution, Par. 448.1 is constitutional."

The phrase "involuntary leave of absence" as used in ¶ 448 has reference to a relationship which a ministerial member holds to the Annual Conference. It is not punitive.

With involuntary leave of absence an additional problem exists. The current process requires two-thirds (2/3) vote to grant or terminate involuntary leave of absence (Par. 448.1(b)) and the fair process (Par. 2622) which includes notice, hearing, right of advocacy, etc. The effect of this required two-thirds (2/3) vote by the clergy session means that one-third (1/3) plus one additional vote may determine the status by not granting an involuntary leave of absence. One consequence of such action during the Annual Conference session most certainly places a clergy member at disadvantage for the proper consultation in an appointment process, which in many conferences would be near completion. Par. 448.1(b) allows for the ninety (90) days notice to be waived. Even interim involuntary leave of absence, family leave (Par. 451), and disability leave (Par. 449) are subject to such a potential vote when reported to the clergy session.

The Discipline is not clear on the effect of the noted actions on these two leaves of absence by the clergy session. Attention to legislation by the General Conference is needed in Par. 448:

1. To address a process for granting or terminating voluntary leave of absence, which continues allowing the clergy session to restore qualified clergy into full membership in the conference by at least by majority vote, rather than default.

2. To clearly state whether or not a clergy member, who requested termination of voluntary leave of absence, may be continued on voluntary leave of absence by majority vote which denies the termination.

3. To address a process for granting or terminating involuntary leave of absence, which is determined by more than one-third vote plus one vote.

4. To determine whether or not, when a stated margin of votes is not received, a clergy member on voluntary leave of absence may be continued, until the circumstances for granting the leave have been alleviated or resolved (Par. 448.4) or the fair process is followed to change status to involuntary leave of absence.

MEMORANUM NO. 783

IN RE: Petition from the 1996 General Conference Regarding the Constitutionality, Meaning, Application or Effect of Proposed Legislation to Delete the Second Paragraph of Par. 810.3.

A petition proposing to delete the second paragraph of Par. 810.3 came before the General and Judicial Administration Committee. The Committee's only action was to refer the petition "for a Judicial Ruling as to the constitutionality of this legislation." The 1996 General Conference voted approval of the referral. The Judicial Council has jurisdiction under Pars. 2609.2 and 2616 of the 1992 Discipline, determining that the petition is "proposed legislation." (See Decision 481).

A petition proposing to delete the second paragraph of Par. 810.3 is within the constitutional authority of the General Conference.

This matter reached the Judicial Council by way of the Consent Calendar, which is not the most effective method of referral to the Judicial Council.

DIGEST

A petition proposing to delete the second paragraph of Par. 810.3 is constitutional under Par. 15.14.

DECISION NO. 784

IN RE: General Conference Petition for Declaratory Decision on Questions of Law Submitted by the Northeastern Jurisdictional Review Committee Relating to Grievances, Statute of Limitations, and Double Jeopardy.

DIGEST

A grievance which has been judicially terminated cannot be the subject of another grievance based on the same facts and time period even though titled "amended grievance" as such would constitute double jeopardy. Only material not barred by the statute of limitations can be considered in the handling of the grievance. The date of receipt of the grievance stops the running of the statute of limitations.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

On April 18, 1996 the General Conference referred to the Judicial Council a petition for a declaratory decision on certain questions from the Northeastern Jurisdictional Review Committee. The three questions of law are:

1. Can an amended grievance, after a portion of an original grievance is time-barred, be considered by the NEJRC? Par. 513

2. Does consideration of an amended grievance constitute double jeopardy under the provision of Par. 2622.5?

3. How does the statute of limitations apply to material included in an amended grievance? Is the relevant date of the statute of limitations the date of the original grievance or the date of the amended grievance?

These questions arise from actions taken by the grievant, the respondent, the College of Bishops of the Northeastern Jurisdiction, and the Northeastern Jurisdictional Review Committee.

On January 26, 1995, a grievance was filed with the College of Bishops of the Northeastern Jurisdiction against a bishop, alleging offenses of sexual misconduct and abuse of power of the office, which occurred between May 1986 and December 21, 1994. In due course, the College of Bishops referred the matter to the Jurisdictional Review Committee as provided in Par. 513.2 of the 1992 Discipline. Inasmuch as some of the allegations occurred more than two years prior to the filing of the grievance, the Jurisdictional Review Committee petitioned the Judicial Council as to whether the 1992 General Conference lengthened the statute of limitations under Par. 513.5 from two years to six years as was done in Par. 454. While the matter was pending before the Judicial Council, the Jurisdictional Review Committee held a hearing on September 11, 1995, at which time testimony was received from both grievant and respondent with a verbatim record being made by audio tape. The Review Committee withheld final consideration of the matter until the Judicial Council ruled on the matter of the statute of limitations under Par. 513.5.

On October 27, 1995, the Judicial Council in Decision 761 held that the statute of limitations against a bishop is two years as provided in Par. 513 of the 1992 Discipline.

On November 20, 1995, the Northeastern Jurisdictional Review Committee met and returned the grievance to the College of Bishops with copies to the grievant and the respondent. The text of the document reads as follows:

In light of the Judicial Council Decision #761, the Review Committee acknowledges that all of the alleged misconduct of prior to January 26, 1993 is barred from consideration by the statute of limitations. (Para 513.5)

The alleged contacts between the grievant and the respondent after January 26, 1993 are not sufficiently definitive, as written, to justify sending the complaint to the Committee on Episcopacy.

We are therefore returning the grievance to the College of Bishops.

The NEJRC, nevertheless, recognizes that serious violation of covenants have occurred, therefore justice and healing must be sought for all concerned, the grievant, the respondent, the families and the College of Bishops.

We therefore recommend that:

1. The principals in this case be offered therapy and spiritual direction and that financial resources be sought to share in the cost of such assistance.

2. As an expression of the committees concern and care for the bishops, we encourage the College of Bishops to do what is necessary for healing within its community.

3. We encourage the bishops to give leadership within each of their episcopal areas to continue and intensify training and resourcing in areas of clergy sexual misconduct.

4. The College of Bishops find ways to eradicate the continual racial polarization around issues of clergy sexual misconduct.

On December 12, 1995, David Polhemus, the Secretary of the Northeastern Jurisdictional Review Committee, wrote to the respondent stating:

This is to inform you that all of the tapes made of your interview were destroyed at the November meeting of the Review Committee in the presence of the committee.

On December 16, 1995, the Northeastern Jurisdictional College of Bishops received an "amended grievance" dated December 15, 1995 from the grievant which alleged "offenses of immorality and disobedience to the Order and Discipline of The United Methodist Church" against the respondent bishop, which set forth essentially the same allegations in the earlier grievance for the period between January 26, 1993 and ending December 21, 1994.

On February 5, 1996, the College of Bishops referred the December 16, 1995 "amended grievance" to the Northeastern Jurisdictional Review Committee. On April 9, 1996, the Review Committee met and petitioned the Judicial Council for a declaratory decision on the questions set forth above. The petition was referred to the Judicial Council by action of the General Conference on April 18, 1996.

Jurisdiction

The Judicial Council has jurisdiction under Par. 2616 of the 1992 Discipline.

Analysis

In order to answer the questions presented, it is necessary to consider the facts of this matter in relation to applicable Disciplinary provisions and Judicial Council Decisions. The Judicial Council has held that once a formal grievance is filed, the judicial process begins (Decision 697). At all levels of consideration fair process must be followed as set forth in Par. 2622 of the Discipline and by Decision 763.

Under Par. 513 of the Discipline, the College of Bishops had, in addition to seeking the required reconciliation, several options in dealing with the grievance. One option was to forward the grievance to the Jurisdictional Review Committee. Acting on that option, the grievance was forwarded to the Jurisdictional Review Committee by the College of Bishops. Upon receiving the grievance, and after consideration of the matter, the Jurisdictional Review Committee, in addition to seeking reconciliation, had the option of taking one of two actions. One option was to dismiss the matter. The other option was to "prepare a complaint and forward it to the Jurisdictional/Central Conference Committee on Episcopacy" (Par. 513.4).

In considering the matter, the Jurisdictional Review Committee held a hearing in which fair process was required: i.e., both grievant and respondent present, and verbatim testimony recorded as required by Par. 2622.1 and Judicial Council Decision 698. While the matter was pending before the Jurisdictional Review Committee, the committee had the right to hold additional hearings with grievant and the respondent to obtain additional information concerning alleged contacts between the grievant and the respondent within the period allowed by the statute of limitations. A written grievance must contain sufficient information to allow the respondent an opportunity to prepare a response to the allegations, but the language of the grievance does not restrict testimony to specifics of the grievance so long as testimony does not introduce new charges and so long as testimony is defining of the matter contained in the grievance. In the instant matter, after Decision 761 was rendered, the Northeastern Jurisdictional Review Committee met and acknowledged that all the alleged misconduct prior to January 26, 1993, is barred from consideration by the statute of limitations. There was no additional testimony and the Jurisdictional Review Committee returned the grievance to the College of Bishops. In taking this action, the Jurisdictional Review Committee no longer had the matter pending before the committee. In addition, the committee destroyed the tapes of the testimony; this fact alone is sufficient to bar further proceedings.

We hold the action of the Jurisdictional Review Committee constituted a dismissal of the grievance. The only other action the committee could have taken was to refer the matter to the Committee on the Episcopacy, which they did not and could not have done because they had destroyed the tapes.

We held in Decision 698 that a verbatim record of the proceeding must accompany the recommendation to a body which has the authority to recommend remedial action, as in this case, from the Jurisdictional Review Committee to the Jurisdictional Committee on the Episcopacy in Par. 513.6. We stated in Decision 698 that the absence of a verbatim record of the proceeding would deprive the respondent of the right to be heard by the entity required to develop a response based on the report of the Review Committee. Failure of the verbatim record to accompany the recommendation of the committee would constitute a violation of Par. 2622 which was developed to ensure fair process in accordance with Par. 18 of the Constitution.

Having related the facts, disciplinary provisions, and Judicial Council Decisions to the matter, we issue our ruling on the questions asked as follows:

1. Can an amended grievance, after a portion of an original grievance is time-barred, be considered by the NEJRC? Par. 513

Answer: There is no provision in the Discipline for an amended grievance; however, this does not prevent a body in the judicial process which has a matter properly pending before it from obtaining additional information or facts upon which to file a complaint in connection with the filed grievance. The Northeastern Jurisdictional Review Committee could have considered the portion of the grievance which was not barred by the statute of limitations and obtained additional testimony in order to prepare a complaint to forward to the Committee on the Episcopacy. The committee chose instead to return the grievance to the College of Bishops and destroy the tapes, which action we hold constituted a dismissal of the matter.

2. Does consideration of an amended grievance constitute double jeopardy under the provision of Par. 2622.5?

Answer: Under the facts of this case, the processing of this grievance, even though titled "amended grievance", alleging conduct covering the same time periods or a portion thereof of a grievance which has already been dismissed, constitutes double jeopardy under Par. 2622.5.

Therefore, the "amended grievance" which was filed in December 16, 1995, covering alleged conduct of the same period, constitutes double jeopardy and no proceeding can be pursued in connection with the amended grievance.

3. How does the statute of limitations apply to material included in an amended grievance? Is the relevant date of the statute of limitations the date of the original grievance or the date of the amended grievance?

Answer: Again, we hold there is no provision in the Discipline for an amended grievance, whether or not the statute of limitations is involved. Again, we hold that a body can obtain additional information or facts relating to a grievance which is properly pending before the body. We further hold that the relevant date of statute of limitations relates to the date of the filing of the grievance. Inasmuch as we hold there is no provision for an amended grievance, the second part of this question is moot.

The Judicial Council offers no opinion on the truth of the allegations of the grievant, which have been denied by the respondent, and renders this opinion on the basis of procedures and fair process as set forth in the 1992 Discipline.

Decision

A grievance which has been judicially terminated cannot be the subject of another grievance based on the same facts and time period even though titled "amended grievance" as such would constitute double jeopardy. Only material not barred by the statute of limitations can be considered in the handling of the grievance. The date of receipt of the grievance stops the running of the statute of limitations.

Concurring Opinion

We find it grievous that bodies of the church charged with responsibilities in this matter have failed to follow the procedures for fair process in a timely and efficient manner. Fair process, as defined in the 1992 Discipline, clearly provides for conclusion of matters such as this while ensuring fairness to all parties.

MEMORANDUM NO. 785

IN RE: Petition from 1996 General Conference for a Declaratory Decision as to the Constitutionality, Meaning, Application or Effect of Newly Adopted Legislation in Pars. 710.1, 710.7, 711, and 716.1a(2) Regarding Adjustments to Annual Conference Budgets.

The General Conference has petitioned the Judicial Council to render a declaratory decision on whether newly enacted legislation to amend Pars. 710.1, 710.7, 711, and 716.1a(2) of the 1992 Discipline is constitutional. This legislation would permit the Conference Council on Finance and Administration, the Conference Council on Ministries, and the bishop to make adjustments between conference sessions to the budget which had been approved by the Annual Conference.

Par. 36 of the Constitution states: "The Annual Conference is the basic body of the church and as such shall have reserved to it . . . rights as have not been delegated to the General Conference under the Constitution . . ."

The Judicial Council has ruled consistently that the Annual Conference cannot delegate to any other entity responsibilities which have been granted to the Annual Conference by the Constitution. (See Decisions 78, 79, 584, 682) This legislation would allow such unconstitutional delegation of responsibility.

Oral argument was heard at 10:30 a.m. Thursday, April 25, 1996 in the Judicial Council meeting room at the General Conference site. Mary Logan represented the General Council on Finance and Administration.

DIGEST

The proposed amendments to Pars. 710.1, 710.7, 711, and 716.a(2) are unconstitutional.

Address by Hillary Rodham Clinton

HILLARY RODHAM CLINTON: Thank you. (applause) Thank you very much. (applause) Thank you so much, Bishop Wilke, for that kind introduction. We're going to miss Bishop and Mrs. Wilke in Arkansas, but I am particularly pleased to have just learned as I was walking in that they will both be working on the *Disciple
Bible Study* in their continuing efforts.

I have to confess to you that I have not been this nervous, with 150 bishops, someone told me, behind me, since I read my confirmation essay on "What Jesus Means to Me" in my home church. (laughter and applause) And I got through that all right. I hope I am able to convey to you my great sense of honor and pleasure at being here.

This quadrennial General Conference is important to all of us who are Methodists. And Methodism has been important to me for as long as I can remember. My father came from a long line of Methodists who had immigrated from England and Wales. And they took their church very seriously. And when my brothers and I were born, despite the fact we were then living in Chicago, my parents took us back to the Court Street Methodist Church in Scranton, Pa., to be christened in front of my grandfather and other relatives. We recently took back my nephew to go through the same experience at that church.

My parents belonged to a very large and active congregation in Park Ridge, Ill., the First United Methodist Church. It was the center not only for Sunday morning worship, but Sunday evening youth groups, and often during the week, for other activities. My mother taught Sunday school, and my brothers and I were there as often as the church doors opened, sometimes, although my mother later confessed that one of the reasons she taught Sunday school was to keep an eye on my brothers, so that they actually showed up and stayed after they were dropped off.

The church was a critical part of my growing up. And in preparing for this event, I almost couldn't even list all the ways it influenced me, and helped me develop as a person, not only on my own faith journey, but with a sense of obligations to others.

It taught me practical lessons as well; for example, how to recover from the embarrassment of passing out in an over-heated sanctuary when I was playing an angel during the Christmas pageant. (laughter) That particular lesson has stood me in good stead on many occasions in my adult life.

But most importantly, I learned from the ministers there, and the lay leaders there, the men and women such as yourselves, who ran the church life, about the connection between my personal faith and the obligations I faced as a Christian, both to other individuals and to society.

I am particularly indebted to the many people who taught Sunday School and Vacation Bible School. I can remember the lessons there, sometimes more vividly than what I have read or seen just last week. How many times did I sing the song, "Jesus Loves the Little Children of the World—red and yellow, black and white, they are precious in his sight." Those words have stayed with me more personally and longer than many earnest lectures on race relations. And to this day, I find myself wondering how anyone who ever sang them could be prejudiced against any group. (applause)

When I graduated into Methodist Youth Fellowship, I was fortunate to have a youth minister who arranged for us, living in our very comfortable, middle-class, all-White suburb of Chicago, opportunities to go into the inner city; to have exchanges with church groups of Black and Hispanic youngsters; to baby-sit for the children of migrant workers who, for those of you who did not grow up around Chicago in the 1950s and can only imagine flying into O'Hare where everything looks developed, might find it hard to believe how many farm workers we would have.
And our church took some responsibility for helping. We visited the residents of nursing homes. We would go to public events that would feature speeches by people we'd barely heard of like Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. We discussed what our faith meant in the world; and I am so grateful for those lessons and those opportunities.

I am equally grateful that my daughter has had the same, both at her church in Little Rock, and now at her church in Washington. Her Sunday School teachers there have helped her and her peers explore and express ideas and fears. One time just this past year, Bill and I went to a meeting of the teen-age Sunday School group where the teen-agers talked about what bugged them about their relationships with their parents. And it helped to have another child say what your own child didn't want to say to you directly. It was one of the many experiences that we have had because of the loving and faithful adults who care for young people in the Methodist Church. (applause)

And I hope that one of the lessons that we all take from our own experience, and one of the messages that comes forth from this conference, is that despite all the headlines and the problems that we face in helping our children and young people, we have so many wonderful young people.
(applause) And just a few days ago, I received a letter from a young man who is a delegate here from Arkansas. You are going to think that between the bishop and me, we are promoting Arkansas. He wrote to me about all the good things that were happening in his church and conference, and he said to me, "Our church and our world must know that youth are not just involved in gangs, drugs and violence; they are also involved in youth programs, missions, and the life of our church."

And I hope that each of us, and certainly from my background with the debt I owe to so many who helped me, understand that in today's world, churches are among the few places in society where young people can let down their guard, let off steam, and be part of a fellowship that offers them the opportunity for religious and spiritual expression and acts of humanity. And if we look at the positive side of what we can offer to young people, then we know that at the center of that experience is our faith and our mission as Methodists and as Christians.

That faith has certainly meant a great deal to me over the years. But I know that today, here at this conference and throughout the world, we are faced with many new

us how we will put into action what we believe. We know we need to strengthen the spiritual and moral context of our lives. And we know that we need a new sense of caring about one another in which every segment of society, every institution, fulfills its responsibility to the larger community, and particularly to families and children.

Here, in the United States, and certainly in the other countries represented here, we see too many children and people who remain on the margins of society. We see children who are unloved, unfed, unhealthy, and unschooled. We see women and people of color who are marginalized because they are denied the opportunities they deserve to become full participants in society. Those are the continuing challenges; and yet, we now know much more about what we can do together to meet those challenges. Despite the problems of poverty, and illiteracy and violence, there are solutions being born, being born in churches and communities, throughout the world.

The bishop mentioned a book that I have written, It Takes A Village, which really does, for me, express my fundamental belief that we all have an obligation to reach out to assist each other; and that we all should be willing to work toward solutions to our problems. It is easy to complain about the problems we face. It is harder but far more rewarding to roll up our sleeves and work together to solve them. [applause]

I was heartened, therefore, when I read a text of this year's episcopal address, to see that the Council of Bishops has renewed its call to make the welfare of children a top priority. And I commend the council for adopting the Episcopal Initiative on Children and Poverty, which will amplify the discussion of this very important issue worldwide. Children need us. They are not rugged individualists. They depend, first and foremost, on their parents who bare the primary responsibility for their upbringing.

And, yet, as a mother, I know that my daughter's life has been influenced and affected by countless other people, some of whom I know; many, many others I will never meet. Think of it: the police who patrol our streets to keep our children safe; the government officials who monitor the quality of air and water and food; the business leaders who employ parents and make decisions about what kind of income and benefits they will receive; the executives who produce the programs that our children see on television.

As adults we have to start thinking and believing that there isn't really any such thing as someone else's child. [applause] My child, your child, all children everywhere must live and make their ways in society. And now, in the increasingly shrinking world we live in, in the larger globe as well.

For that reason, we cannot permit discussions of children and families to be subverted by political or ideological debate. There are strong feelings about what should or should not be done, but there are also, I believe, strong areas of agreement where people should get beyond their disagreements to work together. There should be no disagreement about the fact that the family structure is in trouble; not only here, but in many parts of the world. There should be no debate that children need the nurturing and care that a stable family can provide. And there should be no debate about a common sense truth that children are the result of both the values of their parents and the values of the societies in which they live.

And so, if we look honestly at the problems we have, as the Episcopal Initiative is doing, then we should be asking ourselves, "What areas of common agreement do we have that can lead us as individuals, as a church, as community and society to work together on behalf of our children?" We know the biblical admonitions about caring for each other. We know so well what Jesus said to his disciples in Mark, holding a small child in his arms, "that whoever welcomes one such child in my name, welcomes me, and whoever welcomes me, welcomes not me, but the one who sends me." If we could only keep that in mind, and see in every child's face that faithful hopefulness. Take the image we have of Jesus—I can remember so clearly walking up the stairs so many times to my Sunday School class and seeing that picture that is in so many Methodist Churches of Jesus as the Shepherd—taking that face and transposing it onto the face of every child we see. Then we would ask ourselves, "Would I turn that child away from the health care that child needs? Would I say that there is no help for that child because, look who he is, or look who her parents are?" No, we would take a deep breath in the face of disappointment in our efforts to help, and we would continue to try.

For me, the Social Principles of the Methodist Church have been as much a description of our history as a prod for my future actions. We can find direction if we look to the church's call to strengthen families and renew our schools, and encourage policies that enable each child to have a chance to fulfill his or her God-given potential.

Now, it is not easy to do that. I don't think it ever has been. I believe if one looks back, not only into the Bible, but certainly since then, and reads the stories of John and Charles Wesley, and looks to other church leaders in the last century, we know that acting on our faith is never easy. And it is often a test of our own resolve as much as anything else. I think of the stories that I heard, even as a child, of John Wesley preaching to people who did not want to hear him. There was that one memorable story of where they were throwing whiskey bottles at him. And I think to myself, how many of us, myself included, would even go into places now where we were likely to be the object of thrown whiskey bottles? Not many of us. And in part what we have to confront is our own willingness to take the blessings we have and take them into a world that is complex, often turns away, and may even be hostile.

But just look at the tradition we come from. We continue in this church to answer John Wesley's call to provide for the educational, health, and spiritual needs of children. We can be proud that our church has been a leader in the fight to improve the quality of education, promote parental responsibility, curb smoking among young people, expand comprehensive health care, strengthen marriages, and help people of all kinds of backgrounds. I'm heartened by the work I see being done in the Communities of Shalom Initiative, where individual churches and churches in union are looking to transform just four city blocks in some instances. But taking that responsibility on, being there one-on-one with people unlike ourselves, often letting people hear the message of the gospel as well as the example of our works, will do more to change lives than any program that could be passed by any legislative body. [applause]

As I look at this great gathering, I see reflected here John Wesley's words that "the world is my parish." And if that be the case, then I am optimistic. Despite the headlines of the moment, and all of the difficulties we know lurk outside in this city we are in today, and every other one, I am optimistic because I see spiritual growth and action, based on that, beginning to manifest itself in so many different ways. In my book I wrote a little chapter called "Children Are Born Believers" because I feel so strongly that we owe our children a chance for them to have a spiritual life; for them to be part of a church. And it is not only something we do for them; we do it for ourselves, and we know that in ways we might not even predict, consequences can be positive.

A recent survey of young people and drug use found that children and youth who had regular religious involvement and attendance in a church or synagogue were far less likely to engage in self-destructive behavior like drug use. So we do it because we believe. And we do it because we trust that it will lead our young people to a better life for themselves.

Just this past month, I attended the funeral of a young man who epitomized the Methodist spirit of compassion and charity. He was the grandson, the son, and the nephew of Methodist ministers. His name was Adam Darling. He attended Foundry Church in Washington, as my husband and daughter and I do. And he had accompanied Commerce Secretary Ron Brown on his trip to Bosnia and was among the men and women who died on the side of that mountain in Croatia. He was only 29-years-old. But in the four years the President and I had known him, we had seen a young man who not only blossomed professionally, but was committed to rebuilding cities, rebuilding communities, living in one of the toughest neighborhoods in Washington, getting to know his neighbors, babysitting for their children when he had time, hitting a hall with them in the street. Because he understood from the way he was raised that fame and success were fleeting. But a commitment to the spirit, involvement in the work of his church, would give him satisfaction and build a legacy that others, themselves, could take advantage of. I raise his name because when one contrasts what his short young life meant, and what he was attempting to rebuild, it gives me a great deal of energy and optimism about what all young people can do if they are given the chance.

I know that we have disagreements in society. We even have disagreements in the church. I think one of the reasons that I'm a Methodist is because I think disagreements are part of life. I think [applause] it's part of how we grow together. And I think all of us know that despite our disagreements, as the Book of Discipline puts it, we are engaged in a task to articulate our vision in a way that will draw us together as a people in mission. In the name of Jesus Christ, we are called to work within our diversity, while exercising patience and forbearance with one another. Such patience stems neither from indifference toward truth nor from an indulgent tolerance of error, but from an awareness that we know only in part, and that none of us is able to search the mysteries of God except by the spirit of God. That call to humility, and forbearance, and patience is not only important for the work of the church within the church, but it's critical to our work outside. It calls us to try, time and again, to reach into the lives of those who are left out. And it also pruds us to look for ways we can work together to help our children.

If we were able, even within our own church in every congregation represented here, to help every mother and father be the best parent that parent could be, we would have done a wonderful piece of work. [applause] If we were able to persuade every parent that it's important to talk to a baby, to be affirmative toward a child, to wrap that child in the love, attention and discipline every child needs, then by the time those children reached our schools we would be able to persuade our teachers to look at every child and see hope, and see possibility. And we could renew and reform our schools so that they involved—even welcomed—parents, threw open their doors to the community, and were determined to leave no child behind.

We would also ask those in the business community to think about the decisions they make in terms not only of their primary responsibility to their bottom line, but also to the communities that they serve and work in. To ask how they, too, could be [applause] part of strengthening families. [applause]

Even simple things, like giving time off to parents to go to parent-teacher conferences in schools, would send a wonderful signal about what is important. [applause]

And if we were able to persuade everyone who has any control of what appears on our televisions and what we hear on our radios, to think about their own children (would they want their own children to see and hear what comes into our homes on a daily basis, or would they rather not?) [applause] and therefore change what they produce. [applause]

And we would ask all of us who are members of churches, and synagogues and mosques, we would ask all of us to set an example of love and respect. We would ask all of us, in whatever form it appears in our holy writings, to follow what we call "the Golden Rule." We would ask all of us to act on the outside of church the way we try to act inside, [applause] and to throw open the doors [applause] of our churches, and welcome in those who John Wesley sought out. And open those doors after school, on weekends, especially in some of our tougher neighborhoods, so that children have places that are safe to go.

There is so much we can do in meeting these challenges; and so many opportunities for us, as Methodists, to grasp and be part of fulfilling.

I am grateful for my Methodist upbringing. I am grateful for this church. I watch with great interest and appreciation those of you who struggle to make the decisions that will govern us for the next four years. And I appreciate that you are grappling with the hard issues; being willing to debate and discuss what needs to be done. And I would hope that many of us, not only members of this church, but all people of faith, would say we have so much in common that we can do, and summon our energy on behalf, first and foremost, of our children.

If we were to do that, I know we would see changes before our very eyes; and that the church you serve, and that has served us, would continue to grow because it was serving the world, living out the gospel, and being a servant for those who need to hear that message.

With that in mind, I thank you for keeping alive the Methodist traditions and teachings; for helping to awaken and strengthen the spirit and faith of men, women, and children; and for helping all of us to have courage in the face of change; to be willing to struggle forward doing what we can individually; and to make common cause with others who believe that we are called, both for personal salvation, but also for the work we must do in this world. Thank you very, very much. [applause]

American Methodism in the White House

WILLIAM K. QUICK (Detroit): Bishop Ives and colleagues, delegates, and guests to this conference. As I came on the stage today, someone said, "I suppose you were picked because your name is Bill and it's going to be the Bill and Hillary show." I said, "Not at all."

I want to talk about American Methodism in the White House; for this denomination of ours has been described as America's most characteristic church. And the description in these words: "It's short on theology, long on good works, brilliantly organized, primarily middle class, frequently bigoted, incurably optimistic, zealously missionary, and touchingly confident of the essential goodness of the person next door. It exhibits all the chief American faults and virtues, and has done so for all its life."

Since 1789, when George Washington was inaugurated as our first president, 41 men have held this nation's highest office. And each of them has either held membership or has attended church. The denominational breakdown shows that there have been 11 Episcopalians, six Presbyterians, five Methodists, four Unitarians, four Baptists, three Disciples of Christ, two Dutch Reformed, two Quakers, one Congregational, and one Roman Catholic.

Thomas Jefferson, who considered himself a deist, attended the Unitarian and Episcopal churches on occasion. And Abraham Lincoln, though he never joined, attended the Presbyterian Church. But Lincoln had the highest regard for the Methodists. And on May 18, 1864 he said, "It is no fault in others that the Methodist Church sends more soldiers to the field, more nurses to the hospitals, and more prayers to heaven than any. God bless the Methodist Church." Blessed be all the churches and blessed be God who in this, our great trial, giveth us the churches." And history records for us that his dear and perhaps closest friend, Bishop Matthew Simpson, was chosen to deliver his final funeral oration.

The Methodist Episcopal Church, as we all know, was organized at that Christmas Conference at Lovely Lane in Baltimore in 1784. And in the conference of 1788, Bishops Francis Asbury and Thomas Coke were instructed to go and call on the newly-elected president, George Washington. They did so, and they offered the new president the prayers and support of the Methodists.

And that was the beginning of the long association and connection between the Methodist Church and the White House. It has been said that you cannot read the history of the United States in the 19th century apart from the history of Methodism. Be that as it may, the facts are that the five Methodist presidents were all elected in the 19th century. And they were born in states where Methodism continues to be a vital and active witness in the late 20th century.

James Knox Polk and Andrew Johnson were born in North Carolina. Ulysses S. Grant, Rutherford B. Hayes, and William McKinley were born in Ohio. Three presidents were educated in our United Methodist-related colleges. James Buchanan at Dickinson, William McKinley at Allegheny, and Richard Nixon at the Duke University Law School. We take a brief glimpse at these five Methodist Presidents.

James Knox Polk's parents took him as an infant to be baptized in the Presbyterian Church. But the pastor refused to perform the service unless both parents professed their faith in accordance with Presbyterian doctrine. For his mother that was no problem, but his father refused. And an argument between Mr. Polk and the clergyman followed, and the former stalked out with this wife and the unbaptized child. In 1833, James Polk attended a Methodist camp meeting and was profoundly moved by the preaching of the Rev. John McFerrin. He was converted and became a Methodist privately, affirming his devotion to Methodism. He married Sarah Childress, a well-educated woman at the exclusive Moravian Female Academy in Salem, North Carolina. She was a strict Moravian. And in the White House, she and the president refused to attend the theater or horse races. She banned dancing and card-playing and alcoholic drinking at the White House, refused to let visitors come to the White House on Sunday. And on his death bed, President Polk summoned the preacher under whom he had been converted, now Bishop McFerrin, who baptized him a Methodist before he died.

Andrew Johnson attended Methodist services with his wife, Eliza McCardle, who at 16 married at a younger age than any of the first ladies. He occasionally attended Catholic Mass, defended Catholicism from its critics. He never attended a single day of school, barely taught himself to read. But his better-educated wife tutored him, teaching him to write and to figure math and to greatly improve his reading and writing. And while he labored in the tailor shop, she read aloud to him. Johnson, though a Methodist, never formally joined the church.

Rutherford B. Hayes neither smoked or drank, but married Lucy Webb of Cincinnati, a devout Methodist, and she was the first of the first ladies to graduate from college. They attended church regularly. Lucy Hayes vigorously opposed slavery and convinced her husband to abandon the Whig Party for the anti-slavery Republican Party. And as the first lady, she brought her zeal for temperance to the White House and was nicknamed "Lemonade Lucy." She banned all alcoholic beverages. But I want to tell you something that most historians don't record. On one occasion, the reception for the Grand Duke of Russia in 1877, Lemonade Lucy allowed wine to be served. The Women's Christian Temperance Union hailed her policy and in gratitude commissioned a full-length portrait of her which now hangs in the White House.

I think you would find it interesting that in the Hayes administration a typical day in the White House began with prayer. And in the evening the family gathered together for prayer, for music and hymn singing. And as president, he introduced the practice of group hymn-sings in the White House on Sunday night. And we are told that they set a good example for the American family and gained respect for their hospitality, their simplicity, and their modesty.

It was the Hayes who introduced the custom of Easter Egg Rolling for the children on Easter Monday on the White House lawn. Hayes wrote, after he left the presidency, "I try to be a Christian. I want to be a Christian. I want to help to do Christian work." And he gave freely both of his money and his time, contributed 25 percent to the construction cost of a new Methodist Church, and bore another 25 percent of its reconstruction cost after it burned down.

Ulysses S. Grant, as a youth, rarely went to church. But this all changed when he fell in love with Julia Boggs Dent of St. Louis and began with her attending Methodist worship services. During his final struggle with cancer, the Rev. John Phillip Newman of Metropolitan Methodist Church in Washington called on Grant regularly, urging him to confirm his faith in God and the church. And after one such visit, Reverend Newman announced to the press that he had baptized the president at his request. The family members later disputed that, saying that Grant had tolerated Newman's visits and bedside prayers because they comforted Mrs. Grant, and he did not want to be rude to the minister, whom he greatly admired.

Grant had little use for organized religion but was always expressing belief in God, in the Bible, and in an afterlife. He said in a speech in Des Moines, "Leave the matter of religion to the family altar, the church, and the private school. Keep the church and state forever separate." And he wrote, "Hold fast to the Bible as the anchor of your liberties. Write its precepts in your hearts and practice them in your lives. To the influence of this book we are indebted for the progress made in true civilization. And to this we must look as our guide in the future."

William McKinley, the fifth Methodist president, was brought up in a devout Christian home. At ten years of age, he professed his faith in a revival meeting and joined the church at age sixteen. Throughout his life he was a devout, active Methodist, a regular church-goer in Canton, Ohio. He was a Sunday School superintendent at the First Methodist Church. In Washington he attended Metropolitan Methodist Church. And at his inauguration he kissed the Bible which was open to Second Chronicles 1:10: "Give me now, O God, wisdom and knowledge that I may go out and come in before the people. For who can judge this thy people, that is so great?"

As president, he invited people to come and sing hymns in the Blue Room on Sunday evenings. And among his favorites were, "Nearer My God To Thee" and "Lead Kindly Light." In 1899, he summarized his credo in these words: "My belief embraces the divinity of Christ and a recognition of Christianity as the mightiest factor in world civilization." He maintained his faith to the end. But he was overheard softly reciting the Lord's Prayer as he was being prepared for surgery after being shot. Teddy Roosevelt, who succeeded him on September 14, 1901, remarked to the Methodist Chaplain of the United States Senate as he went to address congress, "Your church is the church of America."

Calvin Coolidge spoke at the unveiling of the only equestrian statue on public land in Washington which does not honor a military hero. On the occasion of the unveiling of the statue of Bishop Francis Asbury, that prophet of the long road, Coolidge said, "Asbury ranks as one of the builders of this nation. He printed the map of this country with the hoofbeats of his horses." And he closed that moment with one of the greatest lines, "We build monuments to men who do not need them."

Some of us were present in Baltimore in 1966 when President Lyndon Johnson spoke to the bicentennial of Methodist beginnings in America. And many here know that the links of historic Methodism to the White House includes the action of delegates in 1980 in sending a delegation headed by Bishop William R. Cannon to the White House for a meeting with President Jimmy Carter regarding the Americans held hostage by the Iranians. We note that President Carter married a Methodist, Rosalyn Smith of Plains, Georgia.

And so the action we took here, requesting a delegation headed by Bishop Woodie White to call on President Clinton, has many historic precedents. In a few moments we will be eyewitnesses to a current page of Methodist and White House history as we welcome the most forthright United Methodist witness to be in the White House in 95 years. And the national publicity she has brought to United Methodism is, perhaps, without historical precedent.

Reviewing Methodism in the White House, I would close by quoting briefly John Wesley and Martin Marty. John Wesley had only one fear: "I'm not afraid that the people called Methodists should ever cease to exist either in America or England. But I am afraid that they should only exist as a dead sect, having the form of religion without the power."

Martin Marty, our contemporary historian from the University of Chicago, said in my hearing, "Methodism was the hottest lava flowing in America in the 19th century. Beware if it heats up again in the 21st."

May our prayer be: "Lord, do it again." Thank you. (applause)

General Council on Finance and Administration

REVISED Report No. 15 Response to Referrals from the 1996 General Conference

This report replaces Report No. 15 (pages 539-541 of the Thursday, April 25, edition of the DCA). GCFA has revised that report because of additional General Conference referrals made after the original report was published.

The 1996 General Conference has adopted several legislative committee reports which call for the allocation of funds from general apportioned fund budgets. The General Council on Finance and Administration makes the following recommendations in response to those referrals for which funding will be taken from existing budgeted funds. GCFA will submit a separate Report No. 16, which will cover all referrals to GCFA for which funding will require an increase in apportionments (Calendar Nos. 441, 751, 764, and 1694). That report will be distributed to delegates desks as soon as it is available on Friday, April 26.

1. Report and Recommendation of the Interagency Task Force on AIDS. (Calendar No. 439, p. 171; Petition # 21674-GM-NonDis-O$, Advance DCA, page 744). The petition recommends "continuation of a downsized Interagency Task Force on HIV/AIDS"; it also requests funding in the amount of $25,000 for the 1997-2000 quadrennium, "to ensure the participation (in the task force) of individuals, families, and care providers whose lives have been touched by HIV/AIDS." The legislative committee concurred with the petition, and the report was adopted by the General Conference and referred to GCFA on April 25, 1996.

GCFA recommends that funding of no more than $25,000 for the expenses of the task force be provided from the existing budget of the General Board of Global Ministries. It is further recommended that the expenses of persons representing specific general agencies on the Interagency Task Force be paid by those agencies.

The report further recommends that a training consultation on HIV/AIDS be held by the end of the 1997-2000 quadrennium, and that the cost of that event up to $100,000 be borne by the budget of the General Council on Ministries.

GCFA recommends that the General Board of Global Ministries, in consultation with the Interagency Task Force, determine whether such an event will be held; if the event is held, funding will be from the budget of the Board.

2. National Committee on Deaf Ministries. (Calendar No. 440, page 171; Petition # 21346-GM-NonDis-O$, Advance DCA, page 779). The report of the legislative committee requests funding in the amount of $104,500 for the 1997-2000 quadrennium.

During the 1993-1996 quadrennium, funding in the amount of $51,000 has been provided from within the existing budget of the General Board of Global Ministries. GCFA, in its Report No. 1 on the World Service Fund, has recommended that funding be continued from that source for the 1997-2000 quadrennium (Advance DCA, page 287, under the heading "The Mission Initiatives Fund").

GCFA recommends that the recommendation in its Report No. 1 be approved.

3. National Plan for Hispanic Ministries. (Calendar No. 442, page 174; Petition #21343-GM-NonDis-O$, Advance DCA, page 771). The petition requests funding in the amount of $3,100,000 for the 1997-2000 quadrennium. The legislative committee report recommended concurrence with the petition, which was adopted by the General Conference and referred to GCFA on April 22, 1996.

GCFA, in its Report No. 1 on the World Service Fund, has recommended budgeted support for the National Plan for Hispanic Ministries within the regular budget allocations to the four general program boards, in a total amount of $2,800,000 (Advance DCA, page 287, under the heading "The Mission Initiatives Fund"). The amount allocated for this program from general apportioned funds during the 1993-1996 quadrennium was $2,716,000.

GCFA recommends that the $2,800,000 included in its existing World Service Fund recommendation be approved without change.

4. Native American Comprehensive Plan. (Calendar No. 444, page 174; Petition #21345-GM-NonDis-O5, Advance DCA, page 778). The petition requests funding in the amount of $1,200,000 for the 1997-2000 quadrennium. The legislative committee recommended concurrence with the petition, and the report was adopted by the General Conference and referred to GCFA on April 22, 1996.

GCFA, in its Report No. 1 on the World Service Fund, has recommended budgeted support for the Native American Comprehensive Plan in a total amount of $1,075,000, within the regular budget allocation of the General Board of Global Ministries (Advance DCA, page 287, under the heading "The Mission Initiatives Fund"). The amount allocated for this program from general apportioned funds during the 1993-1996 quadrennium was $1,020,000.

GCFA recommends that the $1,075,000 included in its existing World Service Fund recommendation be approved without change.

5. Historically Black Colleges and Universities Related to The United Methodist Church and the Black College Fund. (Calendar No. 452, page 175; Petition # 21280-HE-NonDis-O5, Advance DCA, page 826). The petition requested that, for the 1997-2000 quadrennium, $46,708,480 be apportioned for support of the Black College Fund. On April 22, 1996, the General Conference referred that funding request to GCFA.

GCFA, in its Report No. 3 (Advance DCA, page 293), has recommended that the 1997-2000 apportionment for the Black College Fund be in a total amount of $43,309,000.

GCFA recommends that the 1997-2000 apportionment for the Black College Fund be in the amount of $43,309,000, as recommended in its Report No. 3.

6. Communities of Shalom. (Calendar No. 576, pages 215-216; Petition # 21363-GM-NonDis-O). The legislative committee report requests the establishment of a Shalom Committee with twelve members and two ex-officio members, six to be selected by the Council of Bishops, three to be selected by the General Board of Global Ministries, and three to be selected by the Shalom Committee itself. The ex-officio members are the general secretary of the General Board of Global Ministries and a staff person from the General Board of Pension and Health Benefits.

The report was adopted by the General Conference and referred to GCFA on April 25, 1996. It does not include an estimate of the cost of funding the work of the Shalom Committee.

GCFA recommends that funding be from the existing budget of the General Board of Global Ministries, except that the expenses related to the participation of the staff person from the General Board of Pension and Health Benefits be paid by that agency.

7. Strengthening the Black Church. (Calendar No. 762, page 235; Petition # 21677-GJ-NonDis-CS, Advance DCA, page 579). The petition requested funding in a quadrennial amount of $1,779,400. The legislative committee recommended concurrence, and the report was adopted by the General Conference and referred to GCFA on April 22, 1996.

GCFA's Report No. 1 on the World Service Fund includes funding in the amount of $1,316,000 in that fund's recommended budget (Advance DCA, pages 287, 290).

GCFA recommends that funding for Strengthening the Black Church be in the amount of $1,316,000, as recommended in its Report No. 1 on the World Service Fund.

8. Special Program on Substance Abuse and Related Violence. (Calendar No. 769, page 255; Petition # 21342-GM-NonDis-O5, Advance DCA, page 771). The petition requests funding in a quadrennial amount of $1,440,000; the legislative committee recommended concurrence with the petition. When the report was considered by the General Conference, an amendment was adopted asking that $127,500 per year ($510,000 for the quadrennium) be allocated for a similar program in the Northern Europe Central Conference and Russia. The report, as amended, was adopted with the added provision that the additional $510,000 be from the World Service contingency funds administered by the General Council on Ministries. The report, as amended, was adopted by the General Conference and referred to GCFA on April 25, 1996.

GCFA observes that the contingency funds administered by GCOM are unlikely to be adequate for this purpose. It also notes that, during the 1996-2000 quadrennium, funding in the amount of $1,836,000 has been provided from funds allocated to the General Board of Global Ministries. Funding for the continuation of this special program is a part of the recommended allocation to that Board from the World Service Fund (Advance DCA, page 287, under the heading "The Mission Initiatives Fund").

GCFA therefore recommends that funding for both the original program and the program in the Northern Europe Central Conference and Russia be from within the recommended World Service Fund allocation for the General Board of Global Ministries.

9. National United Methodist Native American Center. (Calendar No. 777, page 257; Petition # 22037-HE-NonDis-OS, Advance DCA, page 1356). The petition requests additional funding in the amount of $316,000, beyond current funding from the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry and the General Board of Global Ministries. The legislative committee recommended concurrence with the petition, and the report was adopted by the General Conference on April 23, 1996.

GCFA understands that, for the 1997-2000 quadrennium: 1) the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry will provide funding in the amount of $164,000; 2) the General Board of Global Ministries will provide funding in the amount of $160,000 (designated for a staff person for congregational development).

GCFA recommends that an amount of not more than $75,000 per year, for a total of not more than $300,000, be provided from the Contingency Reserve line item of the World Service Fund.

10. Commission on Union (Pan-Methodist). (Calendar No. 781, page 258; Petition # 21726-IC-NonDis-OS, Advance DCA, page 931). The petition includes a quadrennial budget estimate for the work of the Commission in the amount of $100,000, to be divided among the four denominations. The legislative committee recommended concurrence with the petition, and the report was adopted by the General Conference on April 23, 1996.

Based on the formula by which expenses of the Commission on Pan-Methodist Cooperation have been allocated among the four participating denominations, it is estimated that the United Methodist share of the expenses of this Commission on Union will be approximately $49,000.

GCFA recommends that funds to meet the United Methodist share of these expenses be from the Contingency Reserve line item of the Interdenominational Cooperation Fund budget, on recommendation of the General Commission on Christian Unity and Interreligious Concerns (Advance DCA, page 306).

11. General Commission on United Methodist Men. (Calendar No. 1681, p. 386; Petition # 20712-DI-NonDis-OS, Advance DCA, page 1285). The report of the legislative committee provides for the establishment of a General Commission on United Methodist Men. It states that GCFA "shall make provision for the necessary support of the work of the Commission by transferring from the budget of the General Board of Discipleship those World Service funds and direct United Methodist Men contributions (charter fees and EMS memberships) allocated for United Methodist Men..." The report was adopted by the General Conference on April 24, 1996.

GCFA recommends that a new line item be established in the "Program Agencies" section of the World Service Fund budget for the General Commission on United Methodist Men. Annual amounts of $296,000 (1997), $296,000 (1998), $297,000 (1999), and $297,000 (2000), for a quadrennial total of $1,186,000, will be included in the new line item, and the proposed allocation for the General Board of Discipleship will be reduced by the same amounts. Allocations to the Commission will be on-ratio, and will be contingent on compliance with the same budget and audit requirements placed on other general program agencies by The Book of Discipline and other relevant policies of the General Council on Finance and Administration and the General Council on Ministries.

The cost of organization in the fall of 1996, including an organizational meeting of the General Commission and the selection of a general secretary, up to $20,000, will be advanced by GCFA and coordinated by the General Board of Discipleship. The advance is to be repaid from the General Commission's World Service Fund allocation during 1997-1998.

These recommendations assume General Conference action reducing the voting membership of the General Commission to 23 members.

12. Other Reports Referred to GCFA. GCFA is aware of certain other calendar item reports which were identified in the DCA as having financial implications and which were adopted by the General Conference. However, as it has examined these reports in the form in which they were finally adopted, the Council has concluded that their provisions can be fulfilled by existing agencies without incurring significant additional costs. These reports are:

Calendar No. 775, Funding the Evangelical Seminary of Puerto Rico.

Calendar No. 1695, Standing Commission on Alcohol and Drugs.

Calendar No. 1992, Continue Funding the Area of Abuse and/or Misuse of Drugs and Alcohol.

13. Other General Conference Actions Which May Affect General Agency Budgets. A significant number of resolutions or other actions embodied in legislative committee reports adopted by the 1996 General Conference call for one or more of the following:

1. Educational or promotional resources to be provided by general agencies.
2. Task forces or consultations (interagency or otherwise) to be organized.
3. Research or study to be done.
4. Other actions to be taken which imply the commitment of funds by one or more general agencies.

In some cases specific agencies are given responsibility, while in others the request or instruction is more general.

Unless the report names a specific source of funding and has been referred to GCFA for a funding recommendation, as required by the Plan of Organization, it is GCFA's assumption, and, by adoption of this report, the sense of this General Conference, that any costs associated with carrying out the provisions of the report will be borne by the agencies from their regularly budgeted funds. Established procedures exist for agencies to request supplemental funding from contingency funds administered by GCOM or GCFA.

Wounded for Redemptive Reasons

Delegates arriving for worship Thursday morning were met with reverence as those already assembled watched and listened to the Deaf and Sign Choir of Christ United Methodist Church, Baltimore. With flowing and expressive motions, the choir signed familiar words of the Lord's Prayer and "Standing in the Need of Prayer."

Ohio East Area Bishop Edwin C. Boulton said: "God often insists on a person having a legitimate handicapping condition if he or she is to be fully employed in the God movement." Bishop Boulton spoke from experience, explaining that because of his limp, he has a blue plastic disability logo on his car for special parking privileges.

In his sermon, the bishop observed that our church has a legitimate handicapping condition which God may use: our acute memory of other days and an uncertain future. "Thanks be to God that we are wounded for redemptive purposes!"

But our church is also beset, Bishop Boulton said, with an unnecessary and profoundly crippling ailment: a climate of fear which "can hover over us like underemployed morticians" who capitalize on fear, and "religion-political surgeons whose strategy for abetting God's reform of the church is to spray the surgical suite with the virus of suspicion."

Illustrating the power of fear, the bishop how Moses sent spies into the Promised Land. The spies reported discovery of a fine neighborhood. But the land was filled with giants, before whom Moses' people appeared as grasshoppers. Filing the ultimate minority report against fear was the lone dissenter's, "Let's go! We can do it!"

In a personal witness, Bishop Boulton prayed that delegates would welcome the long-expected Jesus who alone can save us from the giants of fear and imagined disabilities.

Leading the liturgy were Bishop Joel L. Martinez, Nebraska Area, and Veronica C. Teano, Philippines Conference.

Consent Calendar Explanation

There are three consent calendars: A) concurrence with proposed changes to the Discipline. B) concurrence with petitions on non-Disciplinary matters. C) non-concurrence on Disciplinary and non-Disciplinary items. The first day items will be listed as 01. The second day will be listed 02, and so forth. Items can be placed on the consent calendar if: 1) no more than five votes were cast against the prevailing position; 2) it has no financial implications; 3) the proposal does not require a constitutional amendment. Any five delegates may have a consent calendar item removed by signing the appropriate form found in Room 204. This form must be returned to the secretary by 3 p.m. on the day it appears in the DCA.

Within the people of God, other persons are called to the ministry of elder. The elders carry on the historic work of the presbyteros in the life of the Church. Beginning in some of the very early Christian communities, the presbyteros assisted the bishop in leading the gathered community in the celebration of sacraments and the guidance and care of its communal life. The ministry of elder exemplifies and leads the Church in service to God in the world, in remembering and celebrating the gifts of God and living faithfully in response to Gods grace.

Reported by William Reasner
Chair, Committee On Journal
(C13, seat 2)

Wednesday Morning April 24, 1996

THELMA JOHNSON (West Ohio): I would like to move that the top six vote getters be the alternates.

BISHOP BASHORE: I wish that we could do that, but the Discipline indicates that we need to have a majority vote for each one. Thank you very much. The order in which persons are elected is also the order in which they would serve, and we'll need to go through this process. I wish we could honor that. All right, yes microphone 7.

SARAH MILLER (Wyoming): Bishop because the agenda was changed in order to facilitate the consideration of the Korean-American missionary conference, can we postpone these additional elections until another time?

BISHOP BASHORE: Well, yeah, we can. Yes. Is that a motion Sarah?

MILLER: Yes.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right, there is the motion and support that we postpone these elections to another time that will be brought before us so that we can move to some of the items scheduled this morning. If you favor that postponement, please vote when the light is on. [772 yes] Yes, you want to move along. All right, I think we'll turn now to George Hunter.

GEORGE G. HUNTER, III (Florida): The first day I began chairing the Committee on Conferences, it occurred to me that chairing such a committee is analogous to trying to herd rabbits. And nowhere was this feeling more pronounced than on the remarkable day when we discussed the Korean-American missionary conference petition from the Korean-American coalition. And our vice chair Judith Siaba from the northern Illinois will present this for us.

Korean Proposal Introduced

JUDITH SIABA (Northern Illinois): Bishop, we are referring to item 751 found in the blue DCA, page 234. This item is reference to Petition 21731 which is found at the very beginning of your blue DCA. Beginning on page 31. That's the very beginning, because I understand we have two page 31's so this would be Tuesday, April 16th. The committee, after many many hours of deliberation, recommend concurrence as amended, and the amendment is found there on page 234.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right, thank you. Now this matter is before us. Yes, microphone 7, please.

YOUNG OK PARK (Northern Illinois): I would like to move an abandonment to this substitution that is in front of us. We'd like to add a paragraph before the first paragraph of the substitution, and that first paragraph reads "whereas Korean-American churches have a spiritual contribution within the United Methodist church we the United Methodist Church affirm and celebrate their ministry." And then we go over to the second paragraph in the current substitution, and we would like to add "representing the five jurisdictions" after and inclusive task force. So the first sentence should read "therefore be it resolved that an inclusive task force representing the five jurisdictions," and then the third line from the bottom of the second current paragraph we'd like to add "and three Korean-American lay women." And after "three transgenerational" we'd like to add "or representative from both General Commission on Status of Role of Women and General Commission on Religion and Race," and then the last one is to delete "up to." So it will now be "and three Bishops" without "at least." If there is a second, I will speak to it.

BISHOP BASHORE: Yes, there is.

YOUNG OK PARK: Transition, wherever that happens, and wherever that needs happen, always is very painful. And we, all Korean clergy women and men and also so many of you in this house, have been very concerned about and sensitive to, the pains that many, many of us are going through at this moment. So even though we all are very, very hopeful for the future of the Korean United Methodist Church's ministry, as we are beginning a new task force, which is very inclusive in terms of the inclusiveness of male and female, clergy and laity, and young and old.

Still we would like to acknowledge, appreciate, affirm, respect, and recognize and celebrate the 40 years of ministry that was begun and continued through the first generation, clergy and laity, of the Korean United Methodist Church. And also including the five jurisdictions represented, by that we would like to make our task force as inclusive as possible for the present and future of the ministry of the Korean United Methodist Church's laity and clergy.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right. And now there are several matters related to that. Do you have that in written form? Can that be brought, please, to the secretary's desk? If we could have that, that would be most helpful. Thank you.

Now that was a speech for these additions. Does anyone wish to speak against these additions? I don't see anyone wishing the floor, so I think we need to turn to the committee and see whether you want to give a response.

JUDITH E. SIABA (Northern Illinois): We accept that amendment and I don't think there's anything further that needs to be said.

BISHOP BASHORE: Is there any objection in the body, that these additions would be accepted? I don't see any at all, so that will be incorporated into the whole matter. Thank you. Now the whole matter is before us. Yes, right here in the middle, microphone 9, I believe, or 8, whichever one, 9.

Appreciation for Committee Work

LUCILLE V. VANZANT (Oklahoma): As chairman of the subcommittee who worked on this, I would like to give a special thanks to the Korean clergymen and the Korean clergywomen who worked untringly with us on this matter. No matter what you might have heard, this matter was thought through very carefully for over six hours. People were tired, but they were not willing to give up, and at this time I would like for the conference to stand in appreciation of the hard work that these Korean brothers and sisters went through for this. Thank you.

BISHOP BASHORE: Will you give your name and conference, please. Thank you, All right. [applause] Thank you, I think that was a speech for, is there anyone who wishes to speak against? Yes, a question. All right, microphone 3.

BECKY HAASE (California-Pacific): I have a question for clarification. In terms of the second paragraph, there is a question of the, there is a term "inclusive" task force, and we have a designation now for lay men and lay women, but they will be Korean American. I would just like to clarify that that is the only place that there is specific designation that they will be Korean American? Is that correct? Yes.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right, thank you. Over here? Is there a speech against, or, microphone 1.

ERNEST S. LYGHT (Northern New Jersey): Bishop I'd like to make an amendment.

BISHOP BASHORE: Go ahead, Ernie.

Proposal for Consultative Process

LYGHT: I'd like to move an amendment to the resolution that is before us. If we would look at the resolution where it is on the second column, top of the column. It ends by saying "within The United Methodist Church structure." I would insert a period there. And then, by addition, add these words, "through the quadrennium, as appropriate, the task force should be in consultation with all the general church agencies, especially the General Board of Global Ministries and the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry. The United Methodist theological schools and the annual conferences, where there is a Korean American presence and/or participation regarding the implementation and coordination of recommendations, initiatives, and programs, that these entities can undertake within their existing budgets without General Conference approval." And then it would continue.

BISHOP ? : All right is there support? Yes there is.

ERNEST LYGHT: My concern is that I would affirm the resolution as it is before us that we would be able to profit from recommendations resulting from study during the quadrennium. However, there are learnings which will occur in that process, and the possibilities which arise from those learnings should not be held until General Conference meets again.

In addition, that which we learn ought to be applied to the resources that we have to undergird our commitment to the development and enhancement of Korean-American ministries within this great United Methodist Church. Thank you

GBGM or GCOM Oversight?

BISHOP BASHORE: All right, thank you. That amendment is before us. Does anyone want to speak against that amendment? Yes, right here. Microphone 4.

MAREYJOYCE GREEN (East Ohio): I support the amendment, but it seems as though, assuming that the amendment would be acceptable, that this work should be more appropriately coordinated by GCOM as opposed to the Board of Global Ministries. Is it appropriate to make such a motion?

BISHOP BASHORE: Well, you want to amend the amendment?

GREEN: Yes. Is that appropriate?

BISHOP BASHORE: I'm trying to see...

GREEN: It's simply, it's an add-on to the amendment. There was nothing in the amendment that spoke to its coordination.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right. That's appropriate, if you want to make that as an amendment to the amendment.

GREEN: Yes. That it be coordinated by GCOM.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right. Is there support for this amendment? I don't hear a second. Yes, there is. All right. Does anyone wish to speak in opposition to this amendment to the amendment? Yes, microphone 8.

DOROTHY A. RAVENHORST (Virginia): The reason it was given to the Board of Global Ministries to administer is because the Board of Global Ministries has been for many years working with the Koreans. And they have developed 11 points from the Korean community, which they will be working with, and it seems appropriate to leave it where there is already structure and staff who have been working with them.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right. Thank you. Anyone wish to speak for the amendment to the amendment? Yes, microphone 9.

Korean Ministry Study Funding

MONA MAE WAYMIRE (Oklahoma): Are the $150,000 referred to there in the Board of Global Ministries budget as now, or are those funds which will need to be arranged for later by GCFA?

GREEN: It is my understanding that this money is not included in the budget that has been considered.

BISHOP BASHORE: Yes. This matter will have to be referred depending on your action. Now we're back to the amendment to the amendment, and that is the place of coordination. Anyone wish to speak in favor of this amendment to the amendment? I don't see anyone, so I believe we're ready then to vote. Is there a question? All right, microphone 7.

DEAN S. H. YAMAMOTO (Oregon-Idaho): I wanted a clarification. I heard that GBGM was not listed and the substitute to GCOM, but GBGM does arise after four sentences after "therefore" in the document.

BISHOP BASHORE: Yes, I believe that is for the administering of the funds. This was an addition to the amendment to the amendment—I mean, to the amendment, I'm sorry. Yes, right here. Microphone 8.

DAVID SEVERE (Oklahoma): It would seem that this properly belongs with the Board of Global Ministries not with the General Council on Ministries. This is strictly in the area of our work with global ministries, and I think that it would be best to keep it with the General Board of Global Ministries.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right. That's another speech against. Anyone wish to speak for the amendment? I think we are ready to vote. All right, microphone 3. This is the amendment to the amendment.

SEOG WHAN CHO (California-Pacific): I just have a question. The amount proposed to do this task is $150,000. I wonder whether that amount of money will be enough to do the things which is being asked to do by this task force?

BISHOP BASHORE: All right. Can we hold on that so we can finish the process here, and then we'll turn to the committee and have them respond to your question? We're on the amendment to the amendment right now, which is before us. Do you want to speak? You've already spoken to this matter? OK, microphone 4. Nobody else wants the floor.

GREEN: Bishop, there is clearly no interest at all in this amendment, and I will therefore withdraw it.

BISHOP BASHORE: Anybody object to this being withdrawn? All right, I don't see anyone. So we're back to the amendment. Over here. All right, now. Does anyone want to speak against the amendment? Yes, microphone 9. We need a copy of this amendment over here, please. All right, he's working on it? Thank you.

S. STEPHEN FOSTER (Wisconsin): Bishop, I have a question. Does this amendment we are dealing with enable the work to begin or is this more study? Please tell me.

BISHOP BASHORE: We'll turn to the maker of the amendment. Ernie? Does this enable the work to begin or is this calling for more study? Microphone 1, please.

ERNEST S. LYGT (Northern New Jersey): The intent of the amendment is to allow the general boards and the theological schools and other appropriate agencies to do work that they're able to do before waiting until the next General Conference.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right, thank you. Now this is the amendment before us. I don't see anyone wishing the floor. I think we are ready to vote on this amendment. The Lyght amendment. Do you want to say anything about this? All right. We are ready to vote. When the light is on cast your vote, please. [Results: yes, 582; no, 314] All right, thank you. It's approved. Now we're back to the original presentation as amended. Yes, all right, microphone 13 in the back. Yes, OK, come to eight. Microphone 8.

MYUNG J. KIM (Virginia): I'd like to commend the legislative committee for such a fine work they have done, and I believe a colleague from California raised a question concerning the funding. If I may be permitted to express my feelings and my understanding, I'll appreciate it.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right. You're going to respond to that question?

KIM: Yes. Our commission from Jesus Christ is to go into all the world and proclaim the gospel of Christ and lead people to accept Jesus Christ as their Lord and Savior. And our challenge as United Methodists is to encourage people, the children of God, to be a part of The United Methodist Church to help our great denomination fulfill its mission in the world. There are hundreds of thousands of Korean and Korean-Americans living here in America who are yet to be won to Christ. Truly the fields are white unto harvest. Of the ones who are followers of Christ and involved in churches, The United Methodist Church is far from having its proportionate share of these Korean and Korean-Americans. Other denominations have run circles around us in this area. Today there are many Korean and Korean-American pastors who are hurting because of inadequate itinerant system as a result of cultural as well as language difficulties. I believe this resolution, the recommendation coming from committee, will help the Korean United Methodist pastors and Korean Methodist pastors, as well as those churches that are hurting, and it will also help all of us, the United Methodists, to strengthen our ties during this transitional period.

Now, in order to accomplish our mission, I believe, $150,000 for the next quadrennium would be inadequate. And I would like to suggest that this amount be raised to $400,000; in other words, $100,000 per year for these people to really come and put their hearts and minds together and work together. Thank you.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right, thank you for that speech. Now we'll turn—can we turn to the committee to respond to the question that was raised about the amount being adequate?

JUDITH SIABA (Northern Illinois): This amount that was recommended was just an estimate that we are sharing with you. It was very difficult, Oh, if our brother could speak to it, he was on the subcommittee and also the maker of the amendment.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right. Can you speak to this matter? Microphone 4, please.

DAVE RICHARDSON (California-Pacific): I did make the substitute; and it was in conversation with a person from GCSA dealing with what would be, we thought, adequate. It has been added to substantially since I made the substitute with regard to responsibility. So I do agree that it's not adequate any more. I couldn't come up with a magical figure now, but I know that we will need more than $150,000. I don't know if that was a motion already made.

BISHOP BASHORE: No.

RICHARDSON: If it was not a motion, I would like to make an amendment to that number at this point and amend it upward to $200,000.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right. Is there support? Yes, there is. Now the amendment here is to move this $150,000 figure to $200,000. That is what is before the body. Anyone wish to speak against this? Do you want to speak against this? All right, microphone 3, please.

SEOG WHAN CHO (California-Pacific): The original amount asked by the transgeneration group was $500. As you know, many Korean pastors and lay people went out and started a new church by praise. And we have seen some tension and conflict between one camp against another camp; one camp was supporting for the proposal for creating a Korean mission conference and another camp against it. And the TG Group tried to work on something for reconciliation, and that was the proposal made by this group. So, well, I don't know how much would be adequate, but maybe double this amount to $300,000, maybe better than $150,000.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right. That's a speech against the amendment which is to move it to $200,000. Thank you. Does anyone wish to speak for the amendment? Microphone 1 over here.

Funding for Study or Ministries?

BETTY J. YOUNG (North New Jersey): I have a question for clarification. Is this amount, that is being presented to us, an amount to cover the costs of the committee for the study or is it a cost for ministries?

SIABA: It is the cost for the study for the committee's use.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right. Does anyone wish to respond to that? Someone needs to respond. All right. It's left hanging, then. Yes, could you respond to that? Thank you.

SIABA: Yes, I could. It's for the committee's use.

BISHOP BASHORE: Oh, I'm sorry. It's for the committee's use. All right, thank you. Microphone 3, please.

SONG JA PARK (California-Pacific): If we amended the amendment from that side—I don't know the gentleman's name—I think he said that this would include study as well as the ministry that's starting as soon as possible. So it is not just a study. I think it is for the amount that we are going to amend, would mean the study plus the ministry.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right, thank you. Now we have the amendment before us which is to increase the amount of money from $150,000 to $200,000. Does anyone wish to speak to that? Yes, microphone over here, 9. We need to move along because we're coming close to our adjournment time. I hope that we can complete this item very shortly.

JEROME DEL PINO (New England): As a member of the subcommittee which considered and received this substitution, it is my understanding that all of the discussion resulted in the fundamental conviction that what is needed is a study. There are many, many perceptions about what would be appropriate ministries that could be initiated or supported. But rather than entering into them, without clarity regarding what ought to be a priority, that there needs to be, therefore, a coming around the table in order to develop something that is coordinated and, hence, all funds that are requested in the original motion of the committee are funds that are reserved strictly for study. That's the priority now, that's the reason and the direction that this General Conference is being asked to go in this motion.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right. Yes, microphone 3.

PAT STROMAN (Central Texas): Bishop, I move to suspend the rules so that we may move on all that is before us.

BISHOP BASHORE: OK, the motion is to move on, close debate on everything that is before us. If you, will, when the light is on, please vote on whether you wish to close debate on everything before us. [862 approved] Yes, you obviously want to move on. That means that we will move immediately to the amendment which was to increase the amount from $150,000 to $200,000. Do you want to say anything about that? [Directed to Siaba] No? Thank you.

Well, we're ready to move, I think as a body. I think we need to move along. We have the amendment before us. If we're ready to vote, when the light is on, please vote. [Results: yes, 536; no, 361] All right, that amendment is approved, so the amount has been increased to $200,000, and now, the whole thing is before us as has been amended, and we're ready to vote on this matter. When the light is on, will you please vote? [839 approved] Thank you. This is approved.

Funding Referred to GCFA

Now, I want a point of clarification. That money that is part of this, you understand, this is referred to GCFA. So this is a matter of a request to GCFA. And GCFA will make some determination, all right? Thank you very much, this matter has been approved. All right? [applause]

I think we need to turn to the secretary. Now I know I have seven different sheets of paper here of people who want the floor and flags are waving all over. We must be adjourned in five minutes, and so I'm going to turn to Carolyn Marshall and you'll have to talk with succeeding presiding officers about your concerns. So let's turn to Carolyn Marshall.

CAROLYN MARSHALL: First announcement is that the jazz band, which we heard already this morning will be in concert at 1:15 in the perfunctory room downstairs by the ballrooms. A notice to Church and Society Legislative Committee, I'm sure you will rejoice in having another meeting. It will be in room A109 to

111. However, you will also be very pleased to know that it will be short. Perhaps about five minutes.

I've been asked to announce that there is an error in the DCA today regarding the lunchtime fellowship for African and African-American clergywomen. The lunch is to be on Thursday, tomorrow at 12:30 p.m. in room A207.

Now, for the announcement that many of you have been waiting for as far as plans and what is allowed for this afternoon. I apologize to many of you who have sent notes up here asking about specifics on cameras and purses and so forth. The normal procedure is to try to answer every note that comes up here. I apologize to you, it has not been possible this morning to do so. Hopefully, this announcement will take care of all the requests that have come. Immediately upon adjournment, everyone is asked to move immediately to the nearest exit, because we do need to clear the room. Please take with you, all bags, purses, boxes, brief cases, whatever. You may leave books. Anything that's a container that holds things must go with you. Any bags or boxes or any of those things which are left will be searched and are subject to removal by security. The note that was given to me was, if in doubt, take it with you.

We hope to be able to have the hall open again for seating this afternoon by 1:20. Now, for what you can do as you come back in, which seems to be the majority of the questions. You may bring back your purses and your bags when you come back in. It's just a case that the bags must be removed in order that when the sweep is done, they will not be here at that time. So anything you take with you, you can bring back in. You're just going to have to shepherd it during lunch.

Question has also come as far as cameras and video recorders, video cameras. Those may be used this afternoon. However, the request is that they be used without flash. Hopefully that answers your questions and you'll know what to do as you come back in. Please do leave after adjournment just as quickly as possible in order that we may be prepared for the afternoon.

BISHOP BASHORE: All right, now we're going to conclude with Bishop Hermann L. Sticher who is out of the former Evangelische Gemineschaft Kirche in Germany, and he will conclude our time together with prayer. Let us pray.

(prayer)

Wednesday Afternoon April 24, 1996

Bishop S. Clifton Ives, presiding

BISHOP S. CLIFTON IVES: If you would find your way to your seats. Would you be in your seats so we could come to order, please. Our time is very precious. Our time line is very tight this afternoon. I appreciate you all being back here on time so that we could begin this session right on the moment. At the request of a Korean woman delegate just at the conclusion of the last session, I'm going to call on Bishop Hae-Jong Kim to open us in prayer as we begin our session this afternoon. Hae-Jong.

BISHOP HAE-JONG KIM: [prayer]

BISHOP IVES: As all of you are aware, we have a very high privilege this afternoon, that we need to be prepared for, and the time is rapidly approaching when that will occur. As a way of preparing ourselves for that moment, I want to call on John Thomas, who is chair of the Commission on General Conference, who will lead us through our time of preparation. John.

JOHN J. THOMAS (South Indiana): Bishop Ives, members of the Council of Bishops, delegates, visitors, and guests. This is a high moment for us during this conference. And, as chair of the Commission on General Conference, it has been the commission's privilege to invite this special guest for us this afternoon.

The first thing that we will be doing this afternoon is to have songs that will be led by our co-directors of music for this conference. And I now turn the program over to them for that and then I'll be back again.

THOMAS: Thank you for that leadership, Cynthia Wilson-Felder and S.T. Kimbrough Jr. What great co-directors of music we have at this time. [applause]

And now we'll have some remarks from a member of our commission, the Vice Chair in charge of program for this conference. I'm speaking of the Rev. Dr. William K. Quick, who is senior pastor, and has been for the last 22 years, of Metropolitan United Methodist Church in Detroit, Mich. He's been an ardent student of the presidency and especially as it relates to our denomination. His church is one of an interracial mix, and it is with a very great privilege that I introduce the Rev. William Quick at this time to give us some historical perspective on this pending visit. [applause]

American Methodism in the White House

presentation turn to page 658)*

JOHN THOMAS (South Indiana): You may be seated. Well friends. A high moment has now arrived. In the commission considering who would have the privilege of making the introduction, several persons were suggested and several person requested that privilege. (laughter) I think it's been the wise decision of the commission to pick her bishop to make that introduction. So from the State of Arkansas, the Arkansas area, Bishop Richard Wilke for the purpose of making the introduction. (applause)

BISHOP RICHARD B. WILKE: The joy of this introduction is to present a warm and gracious friend. And I must say, Mrs. Clinton, you have warm and gracious friends here to receive you. (applause)

First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton Introduced

The honor is to present to you the First Lady of the United States of America, and in many respects, the First Lady of the world. (applause) Twelve years ago, when Julie and I moved to Little Rock, Ark., Julie had joined the First United Methodist Church of Little Rock, and I entered my offices in that very same building.

We quickly discovered that Hillary Clinton was a vibrant and vital part of the life of that congregation, serving as a Sunday school teacher, a worker with youth, a faithful worshiper in the church. We were privileged to worship with Mrs. Clinton and Chelsea. In fact we were present the morning that Chelsea was confirmed in the church there and both Governor Clinton and Mrs. Clinton were present. One of the fun evenings was an evening that Mrs. Clinton invited an adult Sunday school class for a picnic on the back lawn of the governor's mansion. Now, that's the way to have a Sunday school picnic!

So it was no surprise to me to see in the newspaper a few Sundays after the inauguration the Clintons faithfully trudging through the snow, making their way to the Foundry United Methodist Church in Washington, D.C.

We had no attorney, no chancellor of the United Methodist Church in Arkansas, but we hadn't needed one up until that time. So one day I invited top professional United Methodists, top business leaders of our church, to lunch. I told them we needed a highly dedicated lay person who loved the Lord, knew and loved the United Methodist Church, and we needed an attorney with such sterling stature that any attorney or legal representative in the state of Arkansas would have instant respect. They ate the free lunch. Then they said with one voice, "you are looking for Hillary Rodham Clinton, the finest attorney that you can find." And I was thrilled to have her serve as my church attorney, the chancellor, until the President was elected.

Her great concerns are life-long. Her concern for children reaches back to immunization of children in Arkansas, to presidency of the Children's Defense Fund. Each year she and the governor honored volunteers of Camp Aldersgate, our United Methodist work with children having illnesses or handicapping conditions. I was not surprised when she spoke so forcefully in China, pleading for children, women, human rights. Mrs. Clinton also is in the practice of bringing people together, people of all races and of all social structures.

Those of us who know her have seen her move easily and work carefully with people of all backgrounds. Her recent book, It Takes a Village, continues her plea for the children of the world. Mrs. Clinton, I wore a "Save the Children's" tie in your honor today. She is in the forefront for education for children, always. She is in the forefront of health and safety for children, always. She is in the forefront for the spiritual formation and nurture of children, always.

So, it is my great honor and privilege to introduce a brilliant attorney, an advocate of concerns dear to The United Methodist Church, a loving mother and spouse, a gracious and warm person who walks as easily among the great of the world as she does in a children's ward in the hospital or in a kindergarten room in the school; to present to you my friend, Hillary Rodham Clinton. (applause)

BISHOP IVES: Mrs. Clinton, on behalf of all of us today, we thank you for walking among us; but more importantly, we thank you for your witness in the world into which you go. Go in peace, and may God bless you. (applause)

JOHN THOMAS: You may be seated. And now, on behalf of the commission, we have asked a commission member, Mollie Stewart of the North Alabama Conference, to make a presentation on our behalf to our distinguished visitor and speaker. Mollie Stewart.

Gifts Presented to Mrs. Clinton

MOLLIE STEWART (North Alabama): Mrs. Clinton, you have graced us with your presence, inspired us with your reflections on The United Methodist Church, and lifted our spirits with your vitality. This has been a historical moment in the life of our denomination. For those of us in the room, it has been an afternoon we will not soon forget. (applause)

We trust that for you too it has been a memorable day. In thanks and appreciation, we, the Commission on the General Conference, want to present you with these two items: First, a copy of the commemorative hymnal from this General Conference. (applause) I hope you sing it well. We also want to present to you this wooden trinket box which bears the logo of the General Conference. (applause)

MRS. CLINTON: Thank you, Mollie. That's so very nice of you. Thank you very much. Thank you. (applause, audience standing)

(song:

"Jesus Loves the Little Children")

(song:

"My Hope is Built on Nothing Less")

BISHOP IVES: What a high privilege, a wonderful moment this has been for us. As Mrs. Clinton continues to greet some of the people on her way as she exits the hall, I would ask that we just remain standing in silent respect for a moment.

(song:

"There's A Sweet, Sweet Spirit in This Place")

BISHOP IVES: God bless you on your way. God bless you. (applause) [music] Let us be seated. Let's be seated. Can we be in order please?

As we move in transition from this moment into the work of the afternoon, I would like for us, as we have been singing softly, to remain in our seats, and ask Cynthia to come and sing, "Let It Breathe On Me," just to center ourselves around the work that we have in front of us this afternoon. Can we just sing that together?

CYNTHIA WILSON-FELDER: Just to remind you of the text. The words are, "Let it breathe on me. Let it breathe on me. Let the breath of God now breathe on me."

BISHOP IVES: Could we sing that, "Breathe on us?"

(song)

BISHOP IVES: Let us pray. [prayer] Call on Felton May, Bishop May, to bring us the Shalom Zone Report. Bishop May. You may note that we are just slightly behind on our business, so we want to move as expeditiously as we can this afternoon. Welcome Bishop May.

BISHOP FELTON MAY: Bishop Ives, colleagues, sisters and brothers, all, we will wait a few seconds for the clue of the video, and then we shall have the report of the National Shalom Committee.

(video)

BISHOP MAY: It has been God's amazing grace that has given life to the Communities of Shalom movement. I am here this afternoon to proclaim that Shaloms on the loose. Shalom is on the loose in 103 urban and rural communities where laity, clergy, community residents, business people are working toward the biblical vision of Shalom.

Numbers Involved in Shalom Zones

That represents 24 annual conferences with another 16 conferences organizing new sites. It also represents 250 congregations, more than 50 community organizations, 71 ecumenical ventures and a lot of prayer.

Four years ago in response to the Los Angeles crisis the General Conference of 1992 proclaimed that, in solidarity with community residents and churches in a selected neighborhood: "The United Methodist Church commits itself to the creation in Los Angeles, a Shalom Zone in the hope that the Shalom Zone concept becomes a prototype for proactive ministry in other places." Four years later, thousands of people in and around the country and in Zimbabwe declare Shalom is on the loose. The Communities of Shalom Initiative empower congregations to work in a defined geographic area in collaboration with residents and business people on four goals:

'empower spiritual renewal and congregational development in the name of Jesus Christ our Lord; develop communities economically in the name of Jesus Christ our Lord; strengthen race and class relationships; and improve community health in the name of Jesus Christ our Lord.

Now you will hear the report of the Shalom Committee, a creation of the 1992 General Conference. The committee developed the strategies for Communities of Shalom while working in collaboration with the General Board of Global Ministries with whom we are indebted, especially to Bishop Herbert Skeete, Dr. Randolph Nugent, and the members of the General Board of Global Ministries. The agency has carried out, without hesitation, the mandate of Shalom.

The report will be given by Gaunnie Dixon, staff person for the Los Angeles District and district Shalom coordinator; Linda Bales, a General Board of Global Ministries director, National Shalom Committee member, and a volunteer who took a six-month leave of absence from her employment to coordinate new site development; and Dr. John Schol, urban ministries staff person for the General Board of Global Ministries and the director of Shalom communities. (applause)

Los Angeles Shalom Zone Success Described

GAUNNIE DIXON: Good afternoon. For the people of Los Angeles, I want to say thank you. Thank you for helping to set the gospel of Jesus Christ loose. Four years ago when you responded to the Los Angeles crisis, you set into motion one of the most powerful strategies for church and community transformation. As I meet others from around the country working on Shalom, it's rewarding to see and experience first hand how the love of Jesus Christ is transforming lives and communities. Shalom is on the loose.

This success has not come without pain and struggle, though. The acquittal of police officers in the beating of Rodney King left the community divided and reactive because of years of poverty, of neglect, of racism, classism and social injustices. We found that in Los Angeles, and throughout the world, people are in a spiritual desert.

The 1992 General Conference developed a vision. We found that the development of strategies, resources, and mechanisms took time. No money was allocated by the 1992 General Conference. And the appeal for Communities of Shalom realized $267,000 of a $5 million goal. We found that this demoralized and slowed our progress. For 21 months following the 1992 General Conference Los Angeles suffered several major disasters: fires, floods, mud slides and a major earthquake. During the earthquake, one of our Shalom pastors lost his home. Another pastor's home was seriously damaged and four Shalom churches had structural damage.

Because the Shalom strategy is new, revolutionary and comprehensive, we found that Shalom sites around the country experienced tension as people shift from the old paradigm to a mission evangelism strategy that focuses on church and community development. In the California-Pacific Conference, and across the country, pastoral changes in Shalom churches often interrupted the movement toward Shalom. But we found that laity continued toward the vision of Shalom. Through Shalom, these obstacles became opportunities for growth and development. Often, in spite of the obstacles, people persevered because of God's amazing grace to build communities of hope and daring, Communities of Shalom.

Hear now some powerful stories from Los Angeles and from around the country where Shalom strategies are being used.

(video presentation)

(applause)

BISHOP IVES: As we complete this report, would our guests please be quiet as you're around the edges? It's a little bit annoying to some of the delegates. Go ahead. Linda.

How Shalom Works

BALES (West Ohio): As Bishop May mentioned, I had the opportunity to serve as a staff volunteer for six months with Shalom. And I am here to tell you that it changed my life, and it changed my thinking. It reinforced the power of God's grace in me and in the church. The general church, primarily through the General Board of Global Ministries, assists Shalom sites through three resources.

First; we provide training. A five-part, 35-hour training program assists local sites with mission-evangelism, congregational development, community and economic development, community organizing, public relations, and fund raising. By the end of the training program a Shalom site has a trained team and a written Shalom plan for church and community development.

Secondly; we provide a year's worth of technical assistance following the training.

And thirdly; we assist local Shalom sites with developing and leveraging the necessary funds to carry out Shalom plans. By July of this year, more than 800 people will have graduated from the Shalom Training Program. Reverend David Hutchinson, a Shalom Zone pastor in Houston, Texas, wrote the following to his bishop, Bishop Hearn: "The Communities of Shalom ministry have made me look at life and ministry differently. It has renewed the power of Jesus Christ within me and transformed my ministry forever." Shalom is on the loose.

JOHN SCHOL: We are certainly grateful to Linda Bales who gave six months of volunteer time to the Community of Shalom effort and I'm also pleased to say within the last three weeks, two additional people have come forward and said, "I would like to take a leave of absence from my work and volunteer time with the Community of Shalom Initiative." As Patricia Kersey said: "to come home, really home." Many people have been coming home through the Communities of Shalom Initiative. In the South, a business man said to me, "I've been away from the church a long time, but Shalom is bringing me home." Shalom is on the loose, not by chance, but because of dedication and constant effort; but most of all because of God's amazing grace and the Spirit of God at work through people.

Shalom Uses Mission Evangelism Strategy

Shalom is also happening because the 1992 General Conference was bold with a new vision. It's happening because dedicated laity and pastors in Los Angeles and across the church in rural and urban communities have been willing to envision a new future and dared new possibilities. It's happening because the General Board of Global Ministries freed staffing and funding. It's happening because new ministry principles are being applied in communities and churches across the country. We're using a mission-evangelism strategy. No longer are we saying "It's OK to only do community outreach without working on spiritual renewal." And no longer is it appropriate to talk about evangelism without working on changing the conditions that individuals and communities find themselves in. We're also using asset-based principles which say it's more important to use our resources than to try and fix our needs. We're looking at systemic change and changing the systems that are operating in communities that prevent people from moving forward. And we're working in collaboration; no longer as single churches but reaching out and working with other churches, community organizations, businesses and community residents.

The spirit of God's amazing grace is changing lives.

To continue this transforming ministry we will need to continue to emphasize several things. First of all, we need to emphasize pragmatic idealism. We need to put an emphasis not on being right, but getting the right thing done. We need to emphasize that we can learn together. Yes, there will be successes and failures. But through them we can be strengthened. And finally, we need to emphasize a sustained effort. This strategy takes time, patience, and commitment for the long haul. Dramatic results will be realized, but it will take four to seven years to see that realization in communities. That sustained effort needs to be at the local church level, at the annual conference level, and at the general church level. Shalom is on the loose. (applause)

Shalom Hopes for the Future

BISHOP MAY: During this past quadrennium, we have made outstanding progress, a grace-filled beginning, and yet there is still much to be done. Those working on Shalom are prepared to take the next steps to develop 300 sites in the United States and abroad by the year 2000. Utilize the General Advance for Shalom, and a Shalom Foundation to raise $2 million for the development of Shalom sites. We want to celebrate 2000 new Shalom graduates by the year 2000. By God's grace we will do it. We invite you to join, to join us in this dynamic journey of Shalom by: supporting the Shalom Advance in your annual conference; sharing the Shalom ministry with others and inviting churches in your neighborhood to participate in the strategy. And last, but not least, praying for the ministry of Shalom around the world. Shalom is on the loose. Would it not also be possible for Shalom to be on the loose here in this great General Conference?

Perhaps the story of the three kings might be a fitting ending. Oh, I know it's Eastertide and not Epiphany, but the story of the three kings goes something like this. One King, beaten and bludgeoned on the streets of Los Angeles: That King said, unlettered and unlearned, "Can't we all get together down here?" That was Rodney. The other King, lettered Nobel Peace prize winner: He said, "We will either learn to live together as sisters and brothers or die together as fools." Martin Luther King. But then there is the King of kings, who said: "Let us learn to love the Lord our God with all our heart, and soul, and mind and strength, and our neighbors as ourselves." Let Shalom be here in this place. For shalom is on the loose around the world. And if that is true, then there is nothing, but nothing, that can hold United Methodism back. For in the words of Paul, "I am convinced, that neither death nor life nor angels nor principalities, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor anything in all creation will be able to separate us from the love of God that is in Christ Jesus." And that is Shalom on the loose. Thanks be to God. [applause]

BISHOP IVES: Thank you very much. Thank you very much. Now let me help you to understand where we are at this very moment. We are at 25 minutes past three o'clock. Ten minutes past our break time. I'm going to give you the opportunity for the next 15 minutes to practice Shalom. I know some of you have been a little bit annoyed with the noise that's been around you as the guests have been among us and at their moving I want to remind you also that those guests have eaten most of your cookies. (laughter) This will give you an added opportunity to practice Shalom. Let us greet one another during this break. We will return...when we return, we will return to the order of the day at 3:30. But be back at 20 minutes before the hour...twenty minutes before the hour.

(break)

BISHOP IVES: Cynthia, let's sing. Let's sing as we come back together.

CYNTHIA WILSON-FELDER: And as you arrive, at your hymnals, it will be page 127, "Guide Me, O Thou Great Jehovah, Pilgrim Through this Barren Land."

(song)

WILSON-FELDER: As I was growing up as a very young child, we would hear deacons, way in the amen corner, singing this a little bit differently. And it was something like this.

(song)

BISHOP IVES: Hallelujah! And all God's people said, "Amen." Will you be seated and in order as we begin our afternoon session following the break? Here, as I indicated at the time of the break, we were going to return to the Order of the Day which was printed for 3:30. If you will take your seats, we will begin that business momentarily. You note in the Order for the Day we're going to deal with some matters related to the issue of homosexuality. We have petitions from Church and Society, from Financial Administration, and from Discipleship. And we are going to deal with as many of those as we possibly can this afternoon. I know that you feel like you're entering the third lap; you are just turning the third corner on the third heat—the second corner on the third heat of a 1500 meter. And it's important for us to continue to conserve our energy. But it's important for us to begin to pick up the pace. So let us be attentive to one another. I will try to be attentive to the house. I see cards but I would like for us to move to the Order of the Day. Unless you have a matter of extremely high urgency, of extreme high urgency, I would like for us to move to the Order of the Day. Is this a matter of extreme urgency? I will rule whether it is or not. You can come to the microphone 9.

ALFRED RHONEMUS (West Ohio): I would like to know, and I think many of the delegates, how the minority reports will be handled before we start this. Is that possible?

BISHOP IVES: We will be into that in just a moment, and we'll see. Thank you. I would also encourage—are some of you having problems hearing? Can you hear me all right? Do I need to be back? It's very—I'm having difficulty hearing some people when we speak into the microphones. It may be that we just need to settle our spirits down so that when we come to the microphone we can speak as clearly as we can so that everybody in the house can hear us. I'm going to turn to Don Pike, Church and Society, to bring us the first item.

Church and Society Report Introduced

DON PIKE (Central Texas): Thank you. If you would, please, turn in your blue edition of your DCA to page 385. Calendar Item 1677, right-hand column, 1677.

Also turn to page, in your white DCA, page 1217, left hand column, top of the page, Petition 22612. You will notice from your blue DCA that the vote within the committee to support the petition you find on 1217 was: 46 for, 45 against, and 1 abstaining. As a result of that vote we have both a majority and a minority report.

Merlin Ackerson will be presenting the majority report. David Seamands will be presenting the minority report. But I'd like to call on Dale Weatherspoon, who was chairperson of the subcommittee which dealt with this issue, to describe for you the process which they used.

DALE WEATHERSPOON (California-Nevada): Praise God from whom all blessings flow. First of all, I'd like to say that I'm very, very proud of the subcommittee that worked on the legislation on this particular issue. I think in our subcommittee, we were a group of about 33, and when we began on those first days, I think folks came in with their minds made up on which way they were going to vote on the issue. But as the days progressed, our hearts were softened and ears were opened. And the dialogue was good. We were respectful of each other, showing Christian love. And it seems that people finally felt each others' pain. And you can see that in the close vote that we had.

I'd also like to thank Don Pike and our officers of the legislative committee for how they facilitated the discussion. They allowed the discussion to go on so that everyone got a chance to speak. And I think they were very, very fair in how they handled the discussion. There was a lot of pain. There was a lot of tension. But we didn't look at this as a win-lose type situation. We looked at it as a way to allow the Lord to work within us; trying to listen to the Holy Spirit, and moving us in the direction the Spirit would have us to move. So at this time I would turn it over to our next presenter.

Majority Report on Issue of Homosexuality

MERLIN ACKERSON (Iowa): Bishop Ives, members and friends of the General Conference of 1996. I'd like to add to your words, Dale. There was also a lot of love in our subgroup as well as in our Committee on Church and Society.

The issue of homosexuality has divided and polarized people called United Methodists for too many years, much too long. This statement that you find in the DCA. It comes as a majority report from the Church and Society Committee, acknowledges who and where we are—a people who are unable to arrive at a common mind on homosexuality and people who are gay and lesbian. Some of us think that the practice of homosexuality is incompatible with Christian teaching. Others of us believe that it is acceptable in covenantal relationships. That's who and what we are.

This statement moves all of us, moves all of us as people of God, called in Christ, to a common and a higher ground where we can come together and go into the future, asking God to continue to love us, to inform us, and to lead us in this very important matter. That unity, if we could achieve it, would really feel good.

This statement that is before us, as a majority report from Church and Society, will help to lessen and eliminate unfair judgment and condemnation of our sisters and brothers. It will end contentious and adversarial relationships and feelings that today so sharply divide us as an important part of the body of Christ called United Methodists. This change that we are calling for in paragraph 71F, will also prevent people from, in any way, using what we as a church say on this subject as a reason for discrimination and even violence against people who are gay and lesbian.

I also believe that this statement is a model for other denominations who also struggle with this issue. We can help to lead the church of Jesus Christ to an experience of reconciliation in passing this report. And that, my friends, would feel real good as we go into the future believing that God has a future for people called United Methodists, people who are of Jesus Christ.

BISHOP IVES: Thank you. The majority report is before you. You note also that there is attached to this a minority report. Mr. Seamands, were you going to bring that minority report?

Minority Report on Issue of Homosexuality

DAVID SEAMANDS (Kentucky): Bishop and fellow delegates. I think it is very fitting that we are voting on this issue at this place, in Colorado, because not far from here, about an hour's drive up in the mountains, there is a line that is called the Great Continental Divide. And I think there is an ethical continental divide that separates these two reports. Later on in my closing remarks I will give the reasons why I am against the majority report, and why I think we should support the minority report. But for now, I just want to clarify the issue.

I believe that to delete the two final sentences of paragraph 71.F, and substitute the words of the majority report, is not merely a subjective rephrasing of words in order to express what appears on the surface to be a more open and compassionate attitude towards homosexual persons. It is the deletion of our basic, bottom line, biblical and theological stance on homosexual practices. Namely: same sex genital intercourse. For it is this very paragraph, 71F, that is the rationale behind all the other paragraphs in the Discipline, like 402.2 regarding ministry, and 906.12 regarding finances.

Paragraph 402 begins by referring to this paragraph. And, 906 implies relationship to it. But deeper than this, to accept the language of the majority report would also change the biblical standard for heterosexual, one-fleshness intercourse. The biblical standard is objective, unambiguous and confines full one-flesh sexual intercourse only within the context of heterosexual, monogamous, marriage.

And to substitute this statement from the majority report, which is an ambiguous, subjective standard which defines the limits (to quote) "the context of human covenantal faithfulness." Now these are poles apart. I will later summarize and give the reasons behind all of this. But for now I simply want us to understand that these two reports represent, literally, an ethical continental divide, and in a very important moral issue. And as my eighth grade teacher used to dramatize about the two drops of water falling on the continental divide, our votes ultimately determine into which ocean they will ultimately flow. Thank you.

Process for Perfecting Reports on Issue of Homosexuality

BISHOP IVES: It is my opinion, as I read the minority report, I see it as is stated that it is indeed not a minority report. It is simply a negation of the majority report. If the majority report will be defeated, we will have the minority report. I'm not going to rule it out of order at this point because I know how important this matter is to everyone here. The process for dealing with a majority and a minority report is to first perfect the majority report and then perfect the minority report. My opinion is that there is nothing to perfect in the minority report. It's a simple statement that we keep language which is already there. Therefore, I would like for us to move to the majority report, to deal with it, but thereby still offering to Mr. Seamands the opportunity to speak to the minority position prior to our taking formal action on these reports. Does the house agree with that kind of movement? Then let us proceed with the majority report. The majority report is before you. I...here in the middle of the, on the left, go to microphone number...in the middle, right here, yes. Microphone 9. Point of order has been called for. Hold it, number nine. Yes? Come to microphone 4. Number five, excuse me.

EKE A. HALLOWAY (Sierra Leone): My point of order is that—in respect of, with the greatest respect—interpretation given by the chair to the minority report. I would think, considering the voting status of the so-called majority report and the minority report, that the minority report should constitute, as it were, that's looking it pari passu, a counter motion to the majority report, which is the motion before this house. And therefore, as a point of order, that the minority report or the so-called minority report, which I will term as the counter report, be treated first before the so-called majority report. That is the order of—with the greatest respect—my Lord Bishop.

BISHOP IVES: The house heard my statement that I am reluctant to call the minority report out of order, which I think I could do. I've suggested to you the way I would like for us to proceed. My decision has been called into question. Does the house sustain the chair's suggestion or do you want me to take other action? If you would sustain the chair, signify with the uplifted hand. If you would not, like sign. Thank you. Then we will proceed. Microphone 9.

Scripture and History Support Majority Report

LINDA CAMPBELL-MARSHALL (New England): The word that is before us today is "homosexuality." But I would like to refocus us a little more clearly on the first line of the majority report where another word beginning with the letter "H" is used—humility. It seems to me that the church has been where we now are, many, many times in our history. In the book of Acts we watched the church wrestle with the issue of circumcision. We listened as they decided whether or not they could be a unified body in the light of their conflict about that issue. During the Middle Ages we watched the church wrestle again with the issue of whether or not the earth was flat. For a long time the church stood in the wing of the opportunity of persons to take clearly the word of God into their own hearts. A hundred years ago this General Conference was wrestling about whether or not the church would disintegrate if women were seated on the floor of this body. Forty years ago we wrestled about whether or not the ordination of women would destroy the integrity of the gospel. In the middle of the last century we did divide the church over the place of slavery, each of us witnessing to the power of scripture for our own position. I would invite us today in this historic, divine moment to move toward humility.

BISHOP IVES: That's a speech in favor of the majority report. I move to the gentleman. Yes.

*Scripture and History Support
Minority Report*

PHILIP R. GRANGER (North Indiana): I rise to support you the minority report, and/or the current provision of 71.F. This section of the Social Principles is a prophetic statement. It is a prophetic statement to the world that offers no boundaries to sexual expression. One gift that The United Methodist Church offers to our contemporary society in paragraph 71.F is a message of redemption, grace, and transformation. To young people, our statement offers the necessary guard rails to protect them from sexual brokenness. The church has always opened its doors to the world. That's not the question before us. It has always offered an opportunity for the life-changing power of God to overcome whatever form of brokenness, sin, that separates us from intimacy with God and the pursuit of a holy life.

The biblically prophetic message has always been more interested in truth and transformation than in consensus and conformity to the world's standard of morality. What the church often finds excusable and acceptable—excuse me, what the world often finds excusable and acceptable, the church does not, and cannot. Racism, sexism, exploitation of the poor, promiscuous sexuality in any expression, heterosexual or homosexual; these actions and thoughts are all unacceptable in the light of the redemptive and transforming nature of the gospel of Jesus Christ. The prophetic, life-giving message of the gospel is that people can be transformed; transformed from bigotry, sexism, and freed from whatever that is that separates them from God. Let us continue to offer an open hand of transformation to the homosexual. Let us not clench our fist to the possibility of grace and mercy poured out from the mercy seat of a loving Lord and Savior.

Let's continue to be a prophetic church and continue to retain the current language in paragraph 71.F.

BISHOP IVES: Your time is up. Thank you. In this section in the very back. Yes. Go to microphone 14. That was a speech...are you speaking for the motion? Microphone 14, are you speaking in favor of the motion?

Yes, I am. (unidentified speaker)

BISHOP IVES: OK. Excuse me. I think I recognized the person who was just coming to you.

JEANNE BARNETT (California-Nevada): Thank you. I first addressed this body four years ago as a member of the committee to study homosexuality. And I return to this General Conference as a member of the California-Nevada delegation. One day I turned a page in my life's book at age 50 and discovered I am a homosexual, a lesbian. It did not cancel my baptism in the Methodist Church in Oklahoma where my father ushered and sang and my grandmother played the piano for years. Nor did it cancel my youth as an active member of The United Methodist Church in Central Methodist in Phoenix, Ariz.; nor my current work in the California-Nevada Annual Conference.

I urge you to vote for this, and to recognize that all of us are members of the church, members of faith, and delegates here. I call on you to support this. Thank you.

BISHOP IVES: Thank you very much. To the far right. Yes. Is this a speech against the majority? OK.

MARTIN CASE (Mississippi): The majority report contends that there is no clear cut word about God's will concerning homosexual practice. The scriptures, which are our foundation of faith and conduct, have spoken with enough clarity for us to conclude that the practice of homosexuality is incompatible with Christian teaching. Two thousand years of collective wisdom have confirmed God's witness through scripture. Strong statements could be given from the Old Testament. The affirmation of Jesus of God's plan in creation for marriage, a man and a woman, could be stated as the only option Jesus gave.

But I want to say just a quick word about the Apostle Paul, who wrote more of the New Testament than any other writer, who said more about the all inclusive, abundant grace of God than anyone else, and who literally laid down his life to share this amazing grace made available for every person. Paul gave us I Corinthians 13—that awesome proclamation of love from which Bishop Dew took his text in today's worship service. No one has ever offered Jesus Christ as a savior for all more than Paul.

But Paul spoke with some of the strongest words against homosexual practice. To have placed the present language, in paragraph 71.F about homosexuality with the majority report, we send a confused witness to a confused world about our commitment to God's word, to say nothing about the confusion of tens of thousands of our own members. Thank you.

BISHOP IVES: Thank you. Right down here in the front. Yes. Are you speaking for?

Teen Speaks on Issues of Homosexual Debate

TIMOTHY YOOST (East Ohio): Yes. As a teen-ager growing up with my brother who was also a teen-ager, there are many issues that the two of us argued diligently over and feel very strongly about how we stand. Many times my mother will interject into the argument and ask, "Why are you arguing about something that neither of you know the answer to?" This, my friends, is what I feel is happening here.

While there are two sides who feel they are right, and will argue diligently, neither side knows the definite answer of how we can come to a common mind. This statement recognizes these two sides; it allows both sides to be heard. Thank you.

BISHOP IVES: Thank you very much. [applause] Yes. Are you speaking against the majority report? Yes, OK. Go to number 8.

DUANE SARAZIN (Minnesota): If it's in order, bishop, I would like to offer an amendment.

BISHOP IVES: State your amendment, please.

SARAZIN: I would like to amend the majority report by adding this statement at the beginning of the paragraph, "Although the majority of us do not condone the practice of homosexuality, we acknowledge with humility," and then the paragraph would continue. If there's a second I would like to speak to it.

BISHOP IVES: The motion is second. You may speak.

SARAZIN: I am a conservative Christian. My colleagues and friends know this about me. I have had many relationships, dialogues over my years of ministry with gays and lesbians. I believe that we are at a point in our church life when we need to state exactly who we are and where we are so that we can move out of the arena of debate; where we continue in large forum to state the arguments that we are all so used to; and move into the arena having acknowledged where we really are—not of one mind—into that arena of one-on-one dialogue.

We need to continue the study; but more than study the conversation and relationship, trusting that God's spirit will give us wisdom to know how to interpret the scriptures; to know how to interpret the moving of the spirit for this day. Thank you very much.

BISHOP IVES: This was a speech in favor of the motion. We are in order to have a speech again the motion. And at this point I want to remind all of you to please refrain from applause. Will you please re-read the motion, the amendment?

I should remind you to, let's refrain from applause during our time together. Yes? Here, listen carefully to the amendment.

Language of Report Restated

SARAZIN: At the beginning of the majority report, this statement: "Although the majority of us, does not condone the practice of homosexuality, we acknowledge, with humility, that the church has been able to arrive at a common mind on the compatibility of homosexual practice with Christian faith," and then that paragraph would continue.

BISHOP IVES: Thank you very much. Are you speaking against the amendment? Come to microphone 9...Excuse me. I recognized the gentleman behind you who is coming to the microphone. Excuse me.

JACK PLOWMAN (Western Pennsylvania): I would like to offer an amendment to the amendment by restoring the last two sentences of paragraph 71.F, and then with the text as authored in the amendment.

BISHOP IVES: You would like to amend the amendment by adding? Say what you want to add.

PLOWMAN: I want to restore the last two sentences of paragraph 71.F.

BISHOP IVES: Would you read them please?

PLOWMAN: Well, I'm sorry, I didn't bring the Book of Discipline here with me.

BISHOP IVES: So we can be very clear what it is that you want to add.

PLOWMAN: The last two sentences of paragraph 71.F states as follows: "Although we do not condone the practice of homosexuality, and consider this practice incompatible with Christian teaching, we affirm that God's grace is available to all. We commit ourselves to be in ministry for and with all persons." Thereafter, to be followed by the paragraph as proposed in the amendment. As proposed in the majority report. As it has been in the process of being amended. As it is...

BISHOP IVES: Sir, you do not wish to change the amendment, you only want to add to it?

PLOWMAN: That's correct. To the amendment.

BISHOP IVES: OK, the motion is before you. Do you understand? Does the house understand the amendment to the amendment? The house is not clear on the amendment to the amendment yet. It is my understanding that it is to add to the majority report the words that he read at the very conclusion of the majority report. Is that clear? At number 9. You want that at the beginning of the report? At what point are those words placed?

PLOWMAN: Well sir: The majority report recommends the deletion of paragraph 71.F, the last two sentences. My amendment proposes the restoration of those last two sentences. Thereafter, to be followed by the amendment proposed by this gentleman.

BISHOP IVES: In other words, you want it at the very beginning?

PLOWMAN: That's correct, sir.

BISHOP IVES: OK, is the house clear? The will is to have those words at the very beginning. Now I need a speech against the amendment to the amendment. Over here. Yes? Come to microphone 7?

Pastor Speaks of Local Church Experience

J. PHILIP WOGAMAN (Baltimore-Washington): Bishop, I rise to oppose this further amendment. Its effect is simply to negate the majority report. The majority report is honest and truthful. There are people of good faith who disagree with one another on these matters. We do not yet have enough information to bring closure to this issue.

In particular, it seems clear that there are some homosexual persons who are not capable of changing their sexual orientation. It is also clear that there are some who are capable. We do not have closure upon that issue. The church must be careful not to condemn, not to stigmatize, when it does not have a really clear basis.

We know enough to warn people clearly about sexual promiscuity. The Social Principles are already and properly clear about that. But those of us who minister to homosexual persons, know that there are those who lead exemplary Christian lives. The statement is honest and truthful. It is also the kind of statement that can bring healing to our church.

My own local church has struggled with this issue. Through several years of study and honest dialogue among mutually caring Christians, we have learned in our church to be respectful of one another's positions. We do not have to have the final word on everything. Are the reports poles apart? Possibly so. When that is so, it does not have to be one pole winning, the other losing.

Yes, we are near the Continental Divide. The waters of the great Rockies flow to the great Pacific Ocean and to the great Atlantic Ocean. Both deep recesses of God's beloved earth. Let us not hastily close off one side or the other. My friends, we need one another. We need healing on this issue. Thank you.

BISHOP IVES: Thank you. Now, we're on the amendment to the amendment. I need someone who is willing to speak in favor of the amendment. Come to microphone 8, and state your point of order, please.

AMY SPACHMAN (West Michigan): I think the amendment to the amendment, to the amendment to the amendment, can get really confusing sometimes. And I'm sure it's really hard for the interpreters to get that all back to our delegates who don't speak English. So I would ask you, the chair, respectfully to read the statement how it is, with both the amendments, and continue to do that when something else is added. Thanks.

BISHOP IVES: OK, you're asking for a reading of the amendment to the amendment as we have it here. Ask the secretary to read that for us please, as you have it. This is the amendment to the amendment.

CAROLYN MARSHALL: The amendment to the amendment was to restore the last two sentences as they now are in 71.F to be followed as a proposed resolution which read...do you want me to start with the Discipline, those two sentences, and read it as it would be?

BISHOP IVES: Yes, read it as it would read please.

MARSHALL: "Although we do not condone the practice of homosexuality and consider this practice incompatible with Christian teaching, we affirm that God's grace is available to all. We commit ourselves to be in ministry for and with all persons. Although the majority of us do not condone the practice of homosexuality, we acknowledge..." and then go on with what is printed there on page 1217.

BISHOP IVES: In the majority. Thank you for asking for that clarification, and we'll try to move slowly enough so that we can continue to do that. You have a point of order. Yes. Microphone 4.

DAVID RICHARDSON (California-Pacific): If the motion was to delete; and the minority report is to keep it in; and now we have a new motion to put it back in; it seems like it's just the opposite. I mean, I don't understand how that can be in order; to put back in what the motion's already said to get rid of.

BISHOP IVES: Well the motion is in order to...the way we have received it. I hear your statement to be one that seems to indicate that the house would like to move along on some of this. But it was in order. Well let's see. Where was I last? Let's go down front here. We haven't been down front; haven't been back there either. Let's go down here. Are you speaking in favor or against?

DAVID WILSON (Little Rock): Opposed.

BISHOP IVES: You're opposed to the amendment? OK.

WILSON: In response to the last speech concerning this issue—regarding the church not knowing where it is, and its importance for us to be honest—I think it's more than an issue of honesty. I think it's also an issue of authority. I serve in a resort area—Hot Springs, Ark—Paramutual gambling at the race track. I have folks in the community and in my church who say it's OK to gamble; and others say they should not gamble.

We take a stand as The United Methodist Church regarding gambling. And it's a firm stand. And I believe that if we are to speak with authority on gambling, we have to be willing to speak with authority on other moral issues. And I think for us to go home just saying that we really don't have a position on this is to fail the church as leaders of the church.

BISHOP IVES: I would say that was a speech in favor of the amendment rather than in opposition to it. So I would seek a speaker in opposition to the amendment, yes. Come to microphone 6.

African Delegate Speaks on Financial Assistance to Homosexual Issues

NDJUNGU NKEMBA (Southern Zaire): (translation from French) We cannot be divided when we look through in the Bible. Leviticus 18:22, we hear that God says strongly that you cannot sleep with somebody with the same sex. When we go to Romans 1:18-27, the same thing is there. And when we gather here trying to divide the church because of sin, I don't think that that is right. We want to help those who are in drugs and alcohol. Why can't we provide money to help those who are homosexuals in order to get them out of where they are, out of sin, and help them.

In Ezekiel 23:7-9, tells us that you, who belong to God—when you see your brother going astray from God's will—if you don't help the person to go from that way—if he dies or she dies from there, you will be responsible. I will ask you for his blood or her blood.

BISHOP IVES: Thank you. I think if the interpreter would indicate to the delegate please that his time is expiring. Thank you very much. I interpret that to be a speech in favor of the amendment. Therefore we really need to have the speech in opposition to the amendment. Yes, standing right in the middle waving the card. Yes I see you. No, the woman in front of you, please. Go to number 8.

ELLEN BRUBAKER (West Michigan): I am speaking in favor of, or against the amendment. I believe that I learned the most that I could learn recently about this issue from a colleague with whom I disagree on a great many things. He is the pastor in a small community where it was discovered that one of the teachers in one of the public school systems was in a covenant relationship with a person of the same sex.

ELLEN A. BRUBAKER (West Michigan): Knowing how that must have torn at the fabric of that community and of our United Methodist Church there, and knowing that this particular colleague, despite our differences, is my friend. I called him to say simply, "How are you doing in the midst of what must be diversity and grief for you in your local church, for surely you have persons on both sides of the issue?" The issue was to drive the teacher from his position in the school.

My friend said, (and before he finished saying it, I was in tears,) "I went in to my ministerial association and I asked of us one question." And the question he asked is the one that I see amazingly absent so often in this discussion. We cite the Levitical laws; we cite Paul. The question my friend asked was, "What would Jesus, our Lord, do in this situation?"

I believe that for my colleague and for myself, as I dissolved into tears, that that's the one question needful, that we ask in this situation. Jesus said nothing. The majority report, without the amendments, admits that we are still struggling in the spirit of Jesus Christ, with where God's grace and love would take us, and we are not yet finished; that we might receive and love all persons in the life of the church.

No Vote on Amendment to Amendment

BISHOP IVES: Thank you. Now we've had three speeches in favor of the amendment to the amendment and two in opposition. Are you ready to vote on this matter? I feel the house is ready to move to vote on the amendment to the amendment. Do you need to have it stated? You know the amendment to the amendment which you are voting on? Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 348; no, 569] The amendment to the amendment is defeated, and we return to the amendment.

Can the secretary please read the amendment now so that the house will be clear upon that which we are now speaking?

CAROLYN MARSHALL: "Although the majority of us do not condone the practice of homosexuality, we acknowledge..." and finish it as it is printed.

BISHOP IVES: We have had one speech in favor. I am prepared to receive a speech in opposition to the amendment, if it is your will to do that. Yes, in this section. Go to number 8.

"In All Things, Charity" Offered as Amendment

NANCY DUEL (Northern Illinois): I would like to remind us of the theme that is before us to the right of the screen. The last line says: "In all things, charity." I believe that the essence of the majority report is for us to be in charity with each other on this issue. By adding these lines at the beginning, about who is in the majority, defeats the purpose of this statement to heal us, and to give us...to have more time to discern God's will.

BISHOP IVES: Thank you. Now, if there is a speech in favor of the amendment? Over here, yes. Go to number 9.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE FROM MEXICO: (in Spanish)

BISHOP IVES: Interpretation please. Interpreter?

INTERPRETER: This is not in favor of the majority.

BISHOP IVES: Would you be patient a minute; we'll get some interpretation.

Interpretation at microphone 9, please. Speak, and see if the interpreter will come.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE FROM MEXICO: (in Spanish)

BISHOP IVES: We're not hearing the interpretation.

INTERPRETER: I would like to speak in favor of the majority report.

BISHOP IVES: You may speak in favor of the majority report. It is the amendment that is before us. Are you speaking in favor of the majority report or the amendment? It is the amendment that is before us now. You would like to speak later. OK.

INTERPRETER: I hope I could have the floor at a later time.

BISHOP IVES: We will try to recognize you. Is there someone else back in this section who wanted to speak in favor of the...Yes, I see you way in the back. Way in the back. Yes. I saw a card. There you go. I just...I only saw a card sticking up there, but let's see what we can...15.

SUL A. NAWAJ (Southern Zaire):
(in French)

BISHOP IVES: Do we need interpretation again?

NAWEJ (through French interpreter): Bishop, president. I believe the question of homosexuality takes us away from the natural base. We have male and female trees. We also have male and female animals. I believe that the opinion of Jesus Christ would be the following: When the rich man approached Jesus, he told him that he had practiced all the laws correctly. Jesus told him that he was missing one thing. The young man who had said that Jesus was a good master, left with much sorrow.

The second time it was the adulterous woman. She had been condemned by the Jews, but afterwards, everyone went away. And Jesus said, go away and do not sin anymore. Of course, we want our brothers to enter into the church, but that they benefit from the grace of the church, and reconcile themselves with the church. We love them, but we want to say to them, "Go and do not sin anymore."

BISHOP IVES: Thank you very much. That's a speech in favor of the amendment. Yes, down here.

BISHOP IVES: Yes? Down here. Are you speaking against the amendment? Yes, come to microphone 2.

Speaker Calls for Leadership by Delegates

JARED E. NEWMAN (Rocky Mountain): The first thing I'd like to say when it comes to homosexuality is I don't know what the answer is. I don't know if it's a sin, or I don't know if it's not a sin. I haven't, in my relationship with God, I haven't been able to determine that yet.

However, when it comes to this issue, it is crystal clear for me. The language that this amendment proposes to add condemns our gay and lesbian brothers and sisters. It tells them that we do not condone you and we do not want you. The argument is made that back at the local church 80 percent of the people are in favor of retaining the language.

Well, we are the leaders. We need to turn this around. When Christ met at the table with the tax collector—I think his name was Matthew—he sat down and had dinner with him before Matthew, the tax collector, reconciled his sins. Christ welcomed him to the table, welcomed him to his kingdom before the sinning was done.

I think that there's more that the homosexual and gay and lesbians—whether it is right or wrong—there is more issues to that to our faith. There's more that they need to be experienced to. We need to open our doors. We need to let them in. Invite them in. Welcome them in. Because we don't want to miss the forest of our faith for the trees of issues like homosexuality. We don't need to deny people what they need for petty sins, because we do all sin. [applause]

BISHOP IVES: Let's refrain from applause. Let me see if I can have the sense of the house at this point. We've had two speeches in favor of the amendment and two in opposition to the amendment. We've had three speeches in favor of the majority report and two speeches against the majority report. It seems to me that we're at a point where you may be ready to vote on the amendment. Having voted on the amendment we could turn to the person who made the minority report and then to the person who brings the majority report, and then be ready to clear this item. It seems to me that the house is ready, but maybe there are those who think otherwise. Yes. Back here. Microphone 9.

Homosexual Practice (Not People) Unacceptable

AKASA UMEMBUDI (Central Zaire): (through French translation)

Bishop president, I believe this is a question of . . .

BISHOP IVES: A question?

TRANSLATOR: No, this is an issue of understanding.

BISHOP IVES: Is this another speech for the amendment?

UMEMBUDI: I'm completely in agreement. I think we should vote, but I would like you to allow me to speak.

BISHOP IVES: Can you make a one-sentence statement?

UMEMBUDI (through French translation): One sentence, only. We are not against our brothers and sisters who are homosexual. We love them, but what we cannot accept is the practice. The doors of our church are open to everyone.

BISHOP IVES: Thank you. I would like that to be a speech in favor of the amendment. Are you ready to vote on the amendment? Do you need to have it read? If you are ready to vote on the amendment to the majority report, please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 454; no, 499]

The amendment fails and we are now on the main motion. Excuse me, did I read it wrong? Put it up again. OK, we've got lots of points of order. Let's see who has got the first point of order. Right here. The amendment failed, the way I read it.

CHARLIE DUNDAS (Minnesota): Bishop, with all due respect, I believe some of us believed we were voting on whether we were going to vote.

BISHOP IVES: OK.

DUNDAS: And so I would ask that the vote be put again and that it be clarified.

BISHOP IVES: OK, if the house is not clear. I was assuming that we were ready to move on the amendment. I didn't hear a motion from the floor calling for the question. I was just moving us along. If you would like to vote at this point, if this is a call for the question as to whether we will vote or not on the amendment, please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 868; no, 72]

I think you're ready to vote on the amendment. We're voting on the amendment to the majority report. Do you have a question? It's only a question. Because we're under a previous question at this point, so it's only a matter of high privilege or question.

PATRICIA L. MILLER (South Indiana): I would just appreciate if the secretary would read where we are and exactly what we're voting on.

BISHOP IVES: OK, the secretary will read the amendment upon which we are to vote now without further debate.

CAROLYN MARSHALL: The amendment is to preface that which is printed on 1217, Petition 3612, with, "Although the majority of us do not condone the practice of homosexuality we acknowledge," and then finish out that which is there printed.

BISHOP IVES: The amendment is the addition of those words. Question? Microphone 4.

MICHAEL WATSON (Alabama-West Florida): This is indeed a very, very important matter.

BISHOP IVES: All right. If you have a question, ask your question.

WATSON: My question is, did everybody in this house understand—those from other countries and those of us even here. If we understand.

BISHOP IVES: I think that, do you have a problem of understanding that you are raising a question?

WATSON: Yes, I do.

BISHOP IVES: Well, what is your question?

WATSON: My question is if we vote this amendment, if we vote positively, does that then become the majority report?

BISHOP IVES: It becomes an addition to the majority report upon which we will then vote.

WATSON: That's my clear understanding.

BISHOP IVES: OK, thank you. I think we are ready. When you are ready, which I think is right now. On the amendment to the main motion, please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 369; no, 592]

The amendment fails. And that takes us to the main motion and it's important for us now to hear, if you're ready, it's important for us to hear statements from the minority and from the chair. Is this a point of order? Microphone 3.

DONALD MESSER (Rocky Mountain): I believe you've already ruled this, but in case you haven't, I'd like to move the question on all that's before us.

BISHOP IVES: The motion before us is to move the question on all that is before us. That is the motion which I will put without debate, unless somebody has a point of order. Point of order. Let's hear it. Number 9. Point of order.

BETTY WHITEHURST (Virginia): Bishop, it is extremely difficult for the delegates from other countries with translation to be a part of the process. The delegate from Mexico has been trying to speak and did ask you if he could be heard later, so I would urge you to allow him to speak.

BISHOP IVES: He did indeed ask that question. But now we're under the motion for the previous question and I think we need to vote on that. Point of order. Yes? Microphone 5.

JUNE GOLDMAN (Iowa): Thank you Bishop. I just needed a point of clarification. I thought that you had indicated that we had only had...You gave a certain number of speeches that had been made for the majority report. This was prior to any amendments and it was my understanding that if the amendments failed, that we would have an opportunity to speak again if we had not had sufficient speeches on the majority report as it originally was presented.

BISHOP IVES: You will indeed have that opportunity if the motion that is before us fails.

GOLDMAN: Thank you.

BISHOP IVES: The motion before us is a motion. The previous question has been moved and we must vote on that. At this point, the question is, are you ready to vote or would you rather have additional discussion? State your challenge to the decision.

THOMAS BOLLER (Yellowstone): I have absolutely no idea of what my brother from Mexico wants to say, but it seems to me that you did tell him that he would have the opportunity to speak, and I believe that that should be honored as opening up the conversation to those who have more...

BISHOP IVES: If the house should defeat the motion for the previous question, he will be the first one I will call upon to speak. The motion before us, which is undebatable, is a motion to move the previous question. Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 477; no, 449]

The motion fails. I would like to call...and it takes two-thirds...I would like to call on the delegate from Mexico. Come to microphone 9, please. Would you tell me whether you are speaking in favor of or against the majority report?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE FROM MEXICO: [translated from Spanish] Could somebody help me?

BISHOP IVES: Could you tell me if you are speaking in favor of or in opposition to the majority report?

Delegate from Mexico Speaks for Current Disciplinary Language

DELEGATE FROM MEXICO [translated from Spanish]: I want to thank you for letting me speak at this assembly. I'm a pastor from North Mexico. He had major problems because a pastor from the United States came recently and had a ceremony approving homosexual relationships. This happened through television. We had so many headaches, we did not know what to do. In Mexico, we evangelicals are a minority. And our church has been in problems due to what took place.

Here we speak about human rights. We speak about grace. But that is not the issue here. The deal is to accept the authority of the Word of God. I am in support of the minority report. Because that paragraph number 71.F helped me defend United Methodism. When that program was on television, people came to make fun of us. I am in support of the Discipline of The United Methodist Church, and as part of my discussion with them, I showed them paragraph number 71.F to exhibit that homosexuality is no part of the United Methodist beliefs.

If you take that away, I don't know how to discuss these issues against them.

The deal is to find out what the Bible means to us. What is grace, according to Wesley mean to us? In the letter that he wrote in 1639, and he said the following words: "I will show you where before was a lion, and now is a little lamb. One who before was a drunkard, and is now is an exemplary person. One who was before very promiscuous, and now he recognizes that he is a sinner."

If Wesley were to write a letter today, he would tell us that before you were homosexuals, and now you are a transformed person. That's God's grace. That which allows us to live in a position of fairness and equality and piety. I ask you to remember about Mexico and Latin American countries, in which we cannot accept that homosexuality is compatible with Christian education. Methodism is not only yours. Don't make us ashamed to be United Methodists.

BISHOP IVES: Muchos gracias. We have now had three speeches in favor and three speeches in opposition. By our rules, we go immediately to the vote. Having received those. After having those speeches from the persons, the maker of the motion. I want to ask the person who made the minority report first to make a closing statement, and then ask the chair of the committee to make a closing statements.

BISHOP IVES: What is your point of order? Microphone 6.

BERNARD (SKIP) KEELS (Baltimore-Washington) It is with great sadness that I rise to make this point of order. For I truly am as neutral as one can be on this issue. But, my sense of the legality of what just happened with the translation given the fact that we have translators who are official seems that we could put ourselves in serious legal difficulty should any words have been mis-translated, misheard or misinterpreted.

BISHOP IVES: I hear your point, but the delegation welcomed Mr. Goldschmidt's interpretation and he was the one who motioned to have him come and do it. Let's move to the brief statement of the minority report.

DAVID SEAMANDS (Kentucky): I'll keep this as brief as possible.

BISHOP IVES: Yes, Go to microphone 5.

CHRISTIAN ALSTED (Denmark): I'd like to ask, do the delegates who don't speak English have an extended time for their speeches? If they don't, I would like to ask if the time for those people could be extended, because time goes with the translation, especially with a translation like the one we just had.

BISHOP IVES: I appreciate that, but my understanding is that they were given additional time.

Speech Against Extention to All Types of Sexual Orientation

SEAMANDS: I want to refer back to my first point about substituting for a very clear, unambiguous, objective statement regarding the bounds of sexual intercourse confined to monogamous, heterosexual marriage, and substituting the words of a covenantal human relationship. This literally does pave the way for all kinds of sexual intercourse. Let me point out to you that in 1988 the masthead of Affirm was "United Methodists for Lesbian and Gay Concerns." In 1992, it became "For Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Concerns." Now, in 1996, if you'll read the fine print on the right, this is issue number one; it is for "Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transsexual People; come home to a church that isn't afraid to include lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgendered people in its ministry, membership, deliberations, clergy and life." I am very concerned about the extension to all types of sexual orientation. There only remains one left, and I'm not exaggerating and can give a score of references, that there is beginning a movement to OK "transgenerational" sex, which is sex between older and very young people, including those who are aged 9, 10, and 11. I can give a lot of references for that, and this is not the time to do it. But, the way we are moving, when you remove the biblical context and the negative parameters, then there are no parameters, except mutual, covenantal loving relationships.

Now the second reason why I oppose the majority report and think we should maintain the language is that it articulates the biblical balance of the true tension which is at the heart of love; acceptance of all persons without approving their practices. We see this illustrated in Jesus, his amazing combination of tenderness and toughness, of incredible compassion and immovable confrontation of sinful practices. John 8:11, "Neither do I condemn you. Go your way, from now on don't sin again." With the woman at the well, Jesus threw away, literally, every religious, racist and sexist tradition. But, he did not throw away the necessity to confront her with the truth of her life. The pool at Bethesda, the same thing. He heals the man, then later finds him in the temple and says, "See you have been made well, do not sin any more lest nothing worse happens to you."

Our Lord combines this tender toughness. Paragraph 71.F combines gracious hospitality, it combines a strong stand for civil and humane rights, but does not in any way lower moral standing. And that is true compassion and love at its best.

BISHOP IVES: Thank you, now we'll hear the closing statement of the majority report.

MERLIN ACKERSON (Iowa): Thank you Bishop Ives. Friends in the General Conference, I want to give to you my witness, or my testimony, of belief. I believe that God's word to us, above all other words, even above the Bible, is Jesus Christ. Jesus Christ is God's extraordinary and eternal word, and it is the most important thing in my life, even more important than the scriptures. I share with you one of the ways that this spells it out in my life. When I'm confused about what the Bible might say, on matters such as homosexuality, where on the one hand Jesus says nothing, neither do any of the prophets, we find it not in the wisdom literature, it's not in the 10 commandments.

On the other hand, we're referred to Leviticus, and where we find where "a man should not lie with another man as with a woman," we find that there should be the death penalty.

Now in that confusion, I seek for the mind and the spirit of Christ for insight and for action. In this issue of homosexuality, Christ has taught me, motivated me to love, and to accept everyone, heterosexual and homosexual, without any exception, as persons God has created as we are. And, for whom also Christ has died. That's where I begin and that's where I end. In Christ above all. So I say to you my friends, let's not be afraid, there is nothing to be afraid of, to moving ahead to higher ground where we together are in unity in the name of Christ. Amen.

BISHOP IVES: Thank you. Now what is before us is the material on page 1216, that is the majority report as I understand it.

BISHOP IVES: You have a question? A matter of personal privilege? We're on page 12! 17th. Yes.

AMY L. SPACHMAN (West Michigan): I would respectfully ask the chair to have—pardon me, I'm losing my voice—to have two or three minutes of silent prayer to discern God's will.

Majority Report on Homosexuality Defeated

BISHOP IVES: Thank you, Amy. As soon as we finish making sure that we're clear and we're ready to vote, I will ask for us to be in reflective silence before we, before I call for that. I think we are ready for that now. The issue is before us. Let us be in silence as you prepare to vote.

[silence]

Will you now please vote when the light appears? You are voting on the majority report. I said we were voting on the majority report, which is the material on page 1217. That which is clearly before us, which we have been debating. Please vote when the light appears. The majority report is defeated by a vote of 577 to 378.

Pardon me? The order of the day is for us to break and go to dinner. After we have had announcements, and I would call upon the secretary to bring those announcements to us now. Somebody over here was—I can't recognize you without recognizing somebody else who was here. We have—the order of the day is for us to be in recess so there is no room to take any more action. No more motions can come at this point. We can receive no more motions. We are past the time of adjournment already.

OK, can we remain steady for just a moment? The question is being raised is, will this issue be before us again? There will be other—we had about six other issues that we hoped we would deal with today. We've dealt with only one of them. And surely there will be other time on the agenda for us to deal with matters which we have not completed today. After announcements, we will be in recess until 7:00, I believe. Carolyn, announcements. Announcements. Give your attention to the secretary.

CAROLYN MARSHALL: The Committee on Presiding Officers will meet immediately following adjournment this afternoon near the platform and on the side where the translation booths are located. During the dinner hour, we want you to know that there will be information and papers distributed on your desks from the Legislative Committee on Ordained and Diaconal Ministry. This will be information which you will need to have in order to participate in the session this evening. Want you also to know that the reason for distributing it this way other than something, other than the DCA as the rules read, is because that information was not available in order to be printed in the DCA today, and it is necessary for you to have it prior to the discussion.

BISHOP IVES: Without objection, that material will be distributed while we are on break. Just so that the house is clear where we are on this issue at this point, there was a motion to change the language of the Discipline. That motion did not prevail. The Discipline stands as it currently is written. I mean, just in case there's anybody who's going away from here with any question. I want to express my gratitude to you for your gracious way in which you have dealt with this issue today, and thank you for the opportunity to be here on this great historic occasion that we've shared today. Go in peace. May God bless you.

Wednesday Evening April 24, 1996

Bishop Melvin Talbert, presiding

(song)

BISHOP MELVIN TALBERT (San Francisco): Thank you very much. Thank you. The conference will be in order. We are prepared for this evening's agenda. And if you would take your places and be quiet, I can announce where we're going. Quickly, delegates take your places and I'll announce where we're going. If the delegates that are standing, will you please take your seats? Delegates, please take your seats. This crew right in the middle, here, you hear me. Please take your seats. The first item on the agenda this evening is covenanting relationships with Spain and West Africa. And I call on Bishop Elias Galvan who will lead us. Bishop Galvan.

BISHOP ELIAS G. GALVAN: Bishop Talbert, members of the General Conference, for our presentation we need to have before you the Service of Recognition, Act of Covenant. And we're not sure that has been distributed.

BISHOP TALBERT: Has it been distributed? All right. I'd like to have a copy, here. Thank you. All right, I think it's out.

Covenant with Churches in Spain and Sierra Leone

BISHOP GALVAN (Phoenix): Thank you. Sisters and brothers in Christ, we have come to another high moment in the life of this General Conference where we have the opportunity to recognize and affirm an act of covenanting with two sister churches: the Evangelical Church of Spain and the West African Methodist Church of Sierra Leone. The Act of Covenanting provides for the recognition of each other's churches as an attempted expression of one, holy, catholic church of Jesus Christ. It means the recognition of our respective baptism as different facets of the one baptism.

In the Act of Covenanting we receive each other's full eucharistic fellowship, and look forward to mutual sharing of the ministry and mission of Christ's Church. It means that we shall care for and pray for each other. The Council of Bishops through its Committee on Affiliated Autonomous Churches over the last three years has engaged in dialogue with these sister churches. We are pleased to report that each of these churches has already approved the Act of Covenanting of the respective legislative bodies. The Council of Bishops submitted to this General Conference petition 21723. This matter was acted upon this morning when you approved Calendar Item 1022 in the Consent Calendar B4.

The West African Methodist Church of Sierra Leone traces its beginning to the year 1821 as part of the British Methodist missionary outreach. This early beginning gave birth to a vital church serving the people in West Africa, primarily among the recaptive slaves who were discriminated upon because of their poor economic conditions. For many years The United Methodist Church through the central conference of Sierra Leone have worked together at the ecumenical levels. There have been pulpit exchanges and other contacts that have enriched both churches. Today, we celebrate our common roots and pilgrimage. I call on Bishop Humper to introduce the representative of the West African Church.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. Bishop Humper.

BISHOP JOSEPH CHRISTIAN HUMPER (Sierra Leone): Bishop Talbert and members of Conference. It is my delight and pleasure to introduce to you one of the representatives of one of the bodies with whom we will be in covenant relationship as from tonight; the Rev. Jeremiah Moshoper Pratt who is the General Superintendent of the West African Methodist Church in Sierra Leone. He's been a distinguished servant of God. The history of how that church came into being, and I've always been aware of the many faces of Methodists around the world, I might try to share with you. But I'm delighted to introduce to you one who has had some academic background to equip him for leadership in that part of the continent. The Rev. General Superintendent Pratt attended college in the University of Sierra Leone, the University of Birmingham, and the University of Edinburgh.

He holds a fellowship of the Victoria College of Music in London. He is ecumenically minded, a servant who defies all odds to maintain and uphold the discipline of the Church. He is a resourceful, industrious, dedicated, and committed servant of the Lord. In spite of the many difficulties he's had to encounter, he has been able to hold on the parts with honor and dignity.

Delegates, I now present to you the General Superintendent of the West Africa Methodist Church in Sierra Leone, the Reverend Jeremiah Moshoper Pratt. (applause)

Bishop Pratt Brings Greetings from West Africa Methodist Church

GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT JEREMIAH PRATT: My Lord Bishop, Bishops, members of conference, I bring you greetings from the West African Methodist Church of Sierra Leone. I am now the present head of that church. Unfortunately, we do not refer to our head as "bishop." We say "general superintendent." We know it's one and the same thing because it carries the same functions. We have been striving together, The United Methodist Church and the West Africa Methodist Church in Sierra Leone, to walk together for the common good of our people, through the grace of God. The act of covenant which we now enter into today, is to cement that relationship. I hope and pray that we shall continue to foster good relationship for the good of our people and to the praise and glory of God. Once again, I bring you greetings from our church with God's richest blessings. (applause)

BISHOP GALVAN: Our church traces its contacts with the Evangelical Church of Spain to the early 1900s when missionaries were sent out from our church. Schools were established, churches organized in several Spanish cities. However, when General Franco came into power the Protestant churches were persecuted and suppressed. Methodist lay persons and pastors were imprisoned, exiled and some were executed. Properties were confiscated and the church was forced underground. Missionaries were pulled out of Spain and we lost contact with this Church for many years. During these long years of repression, these Methodist congregations joined the Lutherans, the Presbyterians, and the Congregationalists to organize the Evangelical Church of Spain.

It is a joy to claim our historical roots and renew with this courageous church a relationship. I call on Bishop Lloyd Knox to present to you the representative of the Church of Spain.

BISHOP LLOYD KNOX (Atlanta): It's a privilege for me to introduce the Reverend Enrique Kapo, the president of the Evangelical Church of Spain, or the United Protestant Church of Spain. As you heard, the Spanish Protestants suffered a great deal during the time of Francisco Franco when he took power in 1937. He held power for 40 years. During that time, there was great persecution of Protestants and Evangelicals. Nevertheless, the church has been courageous and now we have a united church. The Rev. Mr. Kapo has been the pastor in Barcelona. I had the privilege of preaching there three years ago, in Barcelona, and I had known him previously. He and his very wonderful wife hosted us while we were there, and we were impressed with his deep dedication to Jesus Christ. It's my privilege to present to you the Rev. Enrique Kapo. (applause)

President of Evangelical Church of Spain Brings Greetings

ENRIQUE KAPO: Just a word of greetings from my church, the Spanish Evangelical Church. We are a very small church. Altogether it would be less than we are here, in all of Spain. We have about 50 congregations, most of them small congregations. I come from a small church in parish in Roman Catholic country, and in very different circumstances, but we are sure that we are one with you in love; one with you in faith; and we have the same Lord. That is what really counts. God bless you. (applause)

BISHOP GALVAN: Will you please turn to our liturgy? And I'm going to ask our song leader to assist us as we begin our liturgical moment.

WILSON-FELDER: Let me invite you to look with me at the sung response you will find in your order of worship. We will play for you the melody all the way through, and then at each time that we sing the response, let me invite you to select the language of your choice. Listen first to the melody.

(music)

WILSON-FELDER: Would you sing it with me?

(song)

WILSON-FELDER: Each time that you see "sung response" in your order we will sing it. Once again, you may select the language. Now if you will please stand as you are able and join me in singing our hymn of the evening, "Filled with the Spirit's Power."

(music)

BISHOP JOE WILSON (Ft. Worth): You may be seated. Our reading from the Scripture is taken from Acts, the second chapter, reading the first through the fourth verses. And the reading will be in English as well as in Spanish. "And when the day of Pentecost had come, they were all together in one place. And suddenly from heaven there came a sound like the rush of a violent wind, and it filled the entire house where they were sitting. Divided tongues as of fire appeared among them. All of them were filled with the Holy Spirit and began to speak in other languages as the Spirit gave them ability."

Reading from Spanish Scriptures

BISHOP LLOYD KNOX: Let me remind you that the Bible in Spanish was translated before the Bible in English. There were two Roman Catholic priests, or monks, who did it, Reyna y Valera. They did it about 50 years before the King James Bible was used. And Lancelot Andrews, the chief translator for the King James Bible, used the Reyna y Valera version very heavily because, you see, at least the first five books of the Bible were in Spanish when the Jewish people had gotten to Spain much earlier, probably in the fifth or sixth centuries. And so, they had a Bible in Spanish long before we had a Bible in English. And so, I read to you from the Heavenly Version.

(Acts 2:1-4 repeated in Spanish)

BISHOP WILSON: Let us continue following the order of liturgy in your service of worship. Come, Holy Spirit, renew the whole creation. Send the wind and flame of your transforming life to lift up the church in this day. Give wisdom and faith that we may know the great hope to which we are called.

WILSON-FELDER: (singing) Come, Holy Spirit, renew the whole creation. Come, Holy Spirit, and renew us.

BISHOP WILSON: Giver of life, sustain your creation. Confront us with our greedy consuming of your gifts. Stand before us as we pillage and destroy. Call us forth into new harmonies of care, for all that lives and breathes has its being.

(music)

BISHOP WOODIE WHITE (Indiana): On behalf of the United Methodist Church, we now present the certificates and documents of covenanting. (Applause)

BISHOP WILSON: As you remain standing, will you join me as a people of God. (prayer of covenanting) "We celebrate the oneness of the church in these moments and give thanks that we are covenant partners with the Evangelical Church of Spain and the West African Methodist Church of Sierra Leone. We recognize that your baptisms, members and ministries are of the church of Jesus Christ. We know that the Holy Spirit is present in the life of your churches. We believe that God calls us together for the sake of God's mission in our world. We ask that you pray for us as we will do for you. So may God bless us all that across continents, but together with Jesus, we will meet again, and again at his banquet." Let us pray.

(prayer)(music)

BISHOP WILSON: And now let us offer in our own language the prayer our Christ taught us to pray.

(Lord's Prayer)

BISHOP GALVAN: Will you receive the benediction?

(prayer)

BISHOP TALBERT: What a tremendous moment. We last time took in, made covenant relationships with others, and two more tonight. What a day. Now my sisters and brothers, I believe the moment has arrived that we have all been hoping and praying for, and I believe that moment is now. The moment has arrived for us to welcome our colleague and our dear friend from Liberia. Bishop Kulah is here!

(singing)Bishop Kulah Addresses Conference

BISHOP ARTHUR F. KULAH (Liberia): Good evening to all. I need not tell you that I am extremely happy to be here this evening. And I bring you greetings from Liberia, from your sisters and brothers who have been devastated for the past six years by a civil war. A war that has left many mothers without children, many fathers without mothers, many husbands without wives, and many wives without husbands.

I bring you greetings from a little country that is so rich in human resources and yet so poor when it comes to human relationship, I bring you greetings from a country that is called a Christian country, that was built upon Christian principles, and yet has allowed itself to be destroyed by greed and selfishness. I bring you greetings this evening, and as I come, my people are asking, "Is there any hope for us?"

"Is there any hope for us?" Even as I raise this question they are very thankful to you, and I am to you, for the prayers you have offered on our behalf, for the support you have given to us for the past few months, the years. I want to thank you for everything you have done to keep us moving as a people. Without your prayers, without your support, without your cooperation, our annual conference wouldn't have been where it is today. My special thanks go to the Council of Bishops, the President of the Council of Bishops, Bishop Skeete, Bishop Muti, Bishop May, the general secretary Dr. Nugent, and all of us who are here praying for the annual conference.

The situation in Liberia is beyond human description. It's beyond human understanding and human reasoning. For the past five years, Liberia has been torn apart by war. I describe this war as senseless war because there is no reason, no matter how big, for brothers and sisters to be killing each other, for homes and institutions to be destroyed as we have done to ourselves. Yet we have faith, and I have faith, and I have hope.

So I came to say to you, do not give up on Liberia, for we have hope. We have hope in our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. We believe that in as much as Christ was arrested, ridiculed, mocked, spit upon and dragged, crucified, hung on the cross, dead and resurrected, we too shall rise. (applause) The Liberia Annual Conference shall rise from gloom to glory, shall rise from darkness to light. And we shall have life in us because our life has been given to us by our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. People of God, followers of Jesus Christ, continue to pray for us. For with your prayers and your support, the church in Liberia shall rise again. Thank you very much. (applause)

BISHOP TALBERT: My, what a marvelous, miraculous intervention. And what an appropriate time. On the agenda tonight, we're going to be considering next the Study of the Ministry, but we welcome our brother from the fields where he has, on behalf of all of us, been in ministry as a peacemaker. So welcome Bishop and Mrs. Kulah. We now call on the Ministry Study Committee. We will be led in that by Sandra W. Lutz.

Ordained and Diaconal Ministry Report Introduced

SANDRA LUTZ (East Ohio): Bishops. Fellow delegates. At a meeting of the Divisions of Ordained and Diaconal Ministry earlier this quadrennium, Judy Smith told of a meeting where a panel of distinguished persons presented reports that documented, in unrelenting fashion, the terrible condition of the world. After these reports there was silence. Then one woman in the audience raised her hand and said, "I understand how terrible things are. Would it help if I baked a cake?"

We in The United Methodist Church honor and acknowledge that kind of call to be as important in God's sight as those more honored by the world. That is the ministry of all Christians. We speak with respect and kinship with the widow and her mite, with Amos' prophetic call, with the servant ministry of Martha. But all too often our structure does not reflect that commitment. We now have the opportunity to attend to that. It is an honor to present to you tonight the ministry proposal from the Ordained and Diaconal Ministry Legislative Committee.

Just one week ago, the Bishops' Study Committee presented their overview document to you. It looked like this. (She points to the document) They led us through it so that we might understand the totality of their proposal, and not be lost in the hundreds of individual petitions that we must deal with in order to bring a ministry proposal to reality in our church. We examined and reflected upon that document in small groups where we raised concerns, affirmations, and questions to be recorded and transmitted to the Ordained and Diaconal Ministry Legislative Committee. As our legislative committee began its work on the ministry study, we heard additional presentations from the bishops, and also received that summary report of those reflection groups. We found ourselves resonating with that summary report. Our hearts seemed to be one. Your concerns were ours, as were your affirmations.

After considerable discussion, we reached an understanding that we would accept the bishops' proposal as our baseline, but felt called to perfect it in ways to reflect those concerns. As you know, this ministry study could not be dealt with as a single, amendable document. Rather it entailed several hundred discreet changes in the Discipline. Having agreed to use the ministry study legislation as our base, we were then able to work with reasonable consistency across our ten sub-groups that were needed to handle the over 1000 pieces of legislation assigned to our committee.

To help you understand our proposal, we have prepared and distributed a brief summary document that uses the format in sequence that you became familiar with in the bishops' document. We will use that to show you where and how we have affirmed and where we have diverged from their proposal. You will note, that the areas we affirmed and the areas we changed reflect the fact that we were overwhelmingly convinced that, as a denomination, we must move forward in ministry, and that it is more important that our structure honor God's call on all our lives than that we hold to historic patterns which, although once effective, may now interfere with our ability to move ahead.

Would you turn with me to the two-page white document entitled "Ordained and Diaconal Ministry Legislative Committee Ministry Proposal." We created a brief document so that we can read it together. My teacher self tells me that some of us learn better by reading, others by listening, and others by visual images. This should help you understand the framework. Then as we consider the specific petitions later, you'll see how they relate one to the other.

Chapters of Bishops' Ministry Study Summarized

Let's begin with chapter 1. As you can see, just as we sensed in the reflection group, there is affirmation of the understanding of ministry of all Christians as contained in the ministry study, with only minor amendments to clarify and expand the mutual ministry of laity and clergy.

As we looked at chapter 2, the office of lay ministry steward, we too felt we could not affirm that particular piece. We recommended nonconcurrency but with referral to the Board of Discipline, in hopes that somehow the underlying concern might continue to germinate and perhaps bear different fruit. Our image was of a seed that is still beneath the soil. And somehow the lay ministry steward felt like an artificial flower placed upon a germinating seed. We wanted to keep the germinating seed but to recommend nonconcurrency with the lay ministry steward. This we sensed was the general feeling in the reflection groups.

Chapter 3. The ministry of the ordained. Here you will see four affirmations to affirm the meaning and qualifications for ordination. (You will see as the legislation comes out that we have added a footnote of definition of self-avowed, practicing homosexual), but affirm the ministry study's position—affirm the organization of the ordained ministry into two distinct orders: deacon, which is non-itinerating, and elder, which is itinerating. But both are members of the annual conference in full connection. This seemed to reflect what came out of the reflection groups, that we are at a point where we need to move to two permanent orders.

We affirm joint exploration and candidacy for ordained and licensed persons. Affirming the work that has been done by the two divisions, Ordained and Diaconal Ministry, during the past quadrennium; affirm formal academic, theological education for both orders.

Probationary Period

As we looked at the probationary period, we felt it important to redefine that probationary period to provide parallel paths leading to single ordination to each of the two distinct orders. All candidates would be elected to probationary membership and commissioned to servant ministry specific to their call and gifts. And commissioned probationary members in the elders track would be licensed to administer the sacraments while assigned to a particular charge. And commissioned probationary members in the deacon's track and ordained deacons will assist elders in the administration of the sacrament of baptism. We felt it important to clarify the sacramental rites and how they are divided between the two orders.

Two Orders of Ministry

Now, if you'll look at the back of your sheet and look at this path to ordination...let's walk through that. Where does a person begin? The individual begins with one year of membership in The United Methodist Church before applying for candidacy; then moves to that call to servant leadership and service; which is played out in at least one year as a congregational leader. Then they move to candidacy and there is action by the charge conference, so that each local church begins that process. Whether the person is feeling called to become a deacon, or to become an elder. They become a certified candidate. There is completion of formal academic theological education. They come before the district committee which recommends to the Annual Conference Board of Ordained Ministry for election to probationary membership, and Commissioning to servant ministry.

Those who are called to service, word, sacrament and order will have a three-year probationary period and then be ordained as elders, which will be appointed and itinerating.

Those who feel the call to become deacons are elected to probationary membership, and commissioned, and move into a three-year probationary period toward becoming a deacon. They are then ordained as deacons and they are appointed and non-itinerating.

On the next page—the deacon in full connection: Here we affirm the understandings outlined in the Ministry Study of call, membership in the annual conference, and a nonitinerating appointive process.

For the elder in full connection, we affirm the understanding of call, membership, status, and itinerating process. The elder will be ordained to service, word, sacrament and order; claiming their service responsibility which was formerly acknowledged through ordination to deacon prior to ordination to elder.

For the local pastor: We affirm the current understandings and the new directions to provide for permanent local pastors as well as a path for those who plan to seek ordination as elder; We have affirmed the evaluation of continuing formation; have affirmed the understandings of changes in conference relationships; and as we looked at transitional provisions you will see that we affirmed the procedure for present diaconal ministers and associate members and those in candidacy to become ordained deacons or, if they choose, to continue as diaconal ministers.

We have amended, to enable a shorter transition time, by assimilating the Conference Board of Diaconal Ministry into a restructured Conference Board of Ordained Ministry, and placing responsibility for the transition and continuing certification of individuals under its purview. We believed it was important to move to a shared responsibility as soon as possible.

Chapter 3. The local church was assigned to the Local Church Legislative Committee. And chapter 4, the superintendency, and chapter 5, we affirmed the understandings as presented in the Ministry Study document, with only minor amendments for clarification.

We have been studying ministry for a very long time. Amazing as it seems to some of us, God's spirit right now seems to be moving among us, gently nudging and encouraging us to take heart, breathing life into the dry bones, and calling us to trust new models and new understandings of ministry. The Bishops' proposal comes out of careful listening, prayerful and thoughtful reflection, and sound crafting. We in the Legislative committee affirm that work, but believe that we have perfected significant parts.

Lay Ministry Stewards

We believe the lay ministry steward would not be a helpful affirmation of lay ministry, and we feel it is important to structure the probationary period to clearly respect and honor the call to two distinct orders.

You will note that the vast majority of our petitions on the Ministry Study appear on one of the consent calendars. In our committee, we have been able to reach rather remarkable consensus around very difficult issues. We have been guided by ten gifted sub-group leaders and by assistance on the executive committee of our secretary, Louise Schock, and the vice-chair, Earl Bledsoe. You will meet them as they present petitions to you as we move through the legislation.

Like a good parent, God knows when we are ready to move. We need to remember that when God calls us God also is there to hold our hand on the journey and to receive us in a new place. Let us move ahead to new understandings.

Now, Bishop, we would like to consider legislation. I suspect that you have noticed that the lay ministry steward paragraphs have appeared on the nonconcurrence consent calendar, and no one has removed them. Later in the week, we will bring reference of the concern, but not the form, to the Board of Discipleship for your attention. But we move ahead now with the understanding that there will be no lay ministry steward.

The first calendar item we would like to bring deals with understandings around the probationary period. It is here that the committee made its overwhelming affirmation of single ordination for both deacons and elders. This comes to you from the entire committee with a vote of 92-12 in favor of concurrence. Larry Goodpastor, the sub-group chair, will present that item for your action. Let me move you to the correct location. This is in your blue DCA, page 259. It is Calendar Item 792, and it deals with paragraph 324. That's blue DCA, page 259, Calendar Item 792 dealing with paragraph 324. Now if you'd like to also open your red DCA so you can refer to it, it is found on page 1002. Again, paragraph 324, Petition 21843.

And the subject is, "Ministry of an Elder." Larry.

LARRY M. GOODPASTOR (Mississippi): Let me refer you first to the blue document, page 259, Calendar Item 792. There are two editorial corrections that we need to make as we present this calendar item. In the fourth line of the first paragraph, the word "consecrated" needs to be changed to "commissioned." "Those who have been commissioned and served as probationary members." The other editorial change is at the last sentence of that first paragraph, the sentence that begins with the words, "Elders continue their service in responsibility..." Delete that sentence. The Legislative committee had deleted that, and it did not get picked up.

I first want to begin with a word of thanks to those persons who served and worked and shared on our sub-committee that dealt with this material. It was obvious from our first conversations, both in the Legislative committee and as a sub-committee, that we had all, for the most part, given this very careful and prayerful consideration before we arrived in Denver. Many of us had served on area response teams, reading, reflecting, and responding to various pieces of the Ministry Study as the Council of Bishops moved through their process during this last quadrennium. In addition, the input from all of us just one week ago was extremely valuable. Our sub-committee began its work with this petition, which led us into a time of thinking and praying and listening and having conversation about ordination. Our work on this particular petition and on the issue of ordination significantly impacted the rest of our action.

The effect of the amendments as you see them in Calendar Item 792, which our Legislative committee is recommending, is to eliminate the two step ordination sequence for elder's orders. It would create a permanent deacon, as was proposed in the Ministry Study by the Council of Bishops. Several issues emerged in our conversations. Ordination is, as stated in the Ministry Study report, an act of the church which acknowledges God's call according to the talents, gifts, and abilities the person has received.

Question of Hierarchical Orders

The act of ordination sets persons apart for various ministries. One of our questions: "Why is it necessary to set persons apart twice?" These amendments will move us from having persons who have willingly responded to God's call and prepared themselves, being ordained at one service, and then realizing that some would have been ordained deacon permanently, while others for only a brief three year period before being ordained again.

Are there two different kinds? Is one incomplete? Does this continue the hierarchical way of ordering our ministry? We arrived at the decision that it was time to move in a new direction in a time when we are seeking to build partnerships and share in a common ministry around a common vision. The legislative committee offers this way of ordering ministry which will maintain and enhance our commitment to service and which will continue to celebrate the ministry of all the baptized. We will continue to identify and authorize persons to a ministry service that is set apart for specific roles and functions, never separate from the ministry of the whole people of God, and never viewing one ordination as a stepping stone to yet another. The legislative committee voted 92 to 12 for this petition that is now listed as Calendar Item 792, which builds on the significant work of our Council of Bishops. We present it to you this evening.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, I recognize the gentleman at microphone 6.

J. LAWRENCE McCLESKEY (Western North Carolina): Bishop Talbert and delegates, I would like to move to amend Calendar Item 792. The amendment I propose is to substitute for that item the wording originally proposed for paragraph 324 in the Council of Bishops' study. That wording, as has been indicated, is found in the yellow sheets for that study on page 20, or in the Advance DCA on page 1002, Petition 21843. If there's a second, I would like to speak to the proposal.

BISHOP TALBERT: It is seconded.

Sequential Pattern of Ordination Discussed

McCLESKEY: It's clear that when this General Conference comes to its conclusion we will have established a new deacon in The United Methodist Church, a new understanding of deacon. I support the new deacon as proposed in both the bishops' study and the report of the legislative committee. My concern is with the effect of the legislative committee's proposal on the elder. The committee proposes two ordination to either deacon or elders separately. The bishops' proposal places ordination as a deacon in a much more central place in the understanding of ordination. By providing that all ordained persons be first ordained deacons, the bishops' proposal affirms the deacon's ordination to service as the foundation of all ordination in our church. If we adopt the proposal of the committee, we will depart from almost 1700 years of tradition which has characterized most of Christendom, including the Anglo-Catholic tradition out of which Wesley came, as well as the mainstream of American Methodism since Francis Asbury. The sequential pattern of ordination, first as a deacon and then for those called, as an elder began to be required in the church in the early fourth century. It was a practice built on a pattern of deacons, elders and bishops as old as the first century. While it is true that not every branch of Christendom and not every branch of Methodism has followed this pattern, it is equally true that most of Christendom for 1700 years and most of Methodism for over 200 years has followed this sequential pattern of ordination, thus grounding all ordination in a servant ministry. There are several hundred persons in this room tonight whose identity and self-understanding as clergy are rooted in this historic, theological tradition. They have been deacons longer than they have been elders. Their deacon was not a transitional order. They are permanent deacons. This pattern of sequential ordination has also been one of the reasons that Methodism has long been a bridge in the ecumenical world. Traced through Anglicanism and medieval Catholicism to the early church, this pattern has provided a point of relationship in Protestant/Roman Catholic dialogue, which has kept ecumenical lines of communication open and mutual respect and affirmation. The bishops' proposal affirms each of us, whoever we are, and however and wherever we are called to exercise our ministry. And it does so while also affirming historically, ecclesiastically, and theologically, who we have been and who we are as United Methodists.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. Your time is up. I recognize Mary Elizabeth Moore at microphone 3.

MARY ELIZABETH MOORE (California-Pacific): I think the question before us tonight is the question of where are we going, and where is God calling us into this future? The theme of journey has been a theme that has been part of our days since the very opening of this General Conference. We've heard stories of trains roaring through town and boats sailing in uncharted waters. We've heard the challenge to march beyond the edge of the map. In ministry studies we have indeed been journeying for a very long time, 30 years or more, depending on how you count. These years have not been wasted. These have been years of learning and growing, challenging ourselves, asking ourselves, "where is God pulling us?" At times, these years have seemed like journeys in the wilderness, especially as we sought to understand what does ministry mean and where're we being called? After the merger in 1968, after the formation of diaconal ministry in 1976, and if you'd like to know how much value we've derived from these studies, just read the Disciplines between 1968 and now.

Quadrennium by quadrennium we have increased our passion for lay ministry. And the bishops have taken us one enormous giant step forward. What the bishops have done, with this document they've offered, is to challenge us to realize that in our baptism we are incorporated into the Body of Christ. We are incorporated into a servant ministry and that is the base of all ministry. The base of our ministry is in baptism not in the diaconate. Through all of these years of study, one of the most wonderful things that we've discovered is that, in fact, the Christian tradition is rich with examples. It's rich with examples of different forms of ministry, different directions and changes over time, as new occasions pull us into new futures.

During this quadrennium when the bishops have been studying they have been praying, they've been reading, they've been calling together listening groups and annual conferences. And alongside the bishops, others have also been praying and reading and listening. We have come to this General Conference with perhaps the best gift of ministry that we've ever had. We've had study team after study team. They have done magnificent work. Almost every time they have brought the recommendation of two distinct ordinations: one to deacon, one to elder. Last time, that particular recommendation came out of legislative committee and was defeated on the floor of this General Conference by two votes. Let me close with just one last word. And that is that if the ministry of the Christian church is grounded in baptism, then the servanthood of all Christians is the ground from which all ministry comes. We don't therefore need to be ordained first as deacons. And we might ask ourselves where is God calling us into the future? What vessels do we need as we journey beyond the edge of the map?

BISHOP TALBERT: Thank you very much. That's a speech against. All right, I recognize the person at microphone 14.

SUZI ROBERTSON (Texas): I want to affirm Dr. McCleskey's passionate account of the history of the deacon and the elder in the United Methodist Church. I want to affirm our Anglican roots and the bridge that United Methodists build between our Anglicanism and our Catholicism. I also want to remind us that the Anglican Church and the Roman Catholic Church did not ordain women. And the United Methodist Church led the way, and I submit to you that if the legislative committee's proposal is adopted at this conference, the United Methodist Church will lead the way once again.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, that's a speech against. That's right, it's against. Anyone speaking for? You are. All right. Microphone 8.

Appeal to Ordination Tradition

HELMUT NAUSNER (Austria): I'm been involved in ministry studies since 1977. And I just want to share a few insights. I support the proposal of Lawrence McCleskey that asks the conference to follow the report of the bishops. If we depart from tradition, we run ourselves into difficulties. And I'm a little bit astonished that we at this conference have accepted and replaced tradition in the baptism study. We seem to throw tradition very lightly away with this proposal. Tradition keeps us in connection with the Catholic Church. And the United Methodist Church is the only Protestant denomination that holds the three-fold structure of ministry. All the other Protestant denominations who have one ordination have it because they have departed and cut themselves off the church catholic. The consequences I see are these: The proposal of the study of the legislative committee breaks the unity of ministry. It sets up a base for division between the new deacon and the new elder because they are not united and held together in sequential order, and it invites new and unforeseeable problems. We have no experience at all with that new structure. We try, and we will have to rewrite the whole Discipline in many ways anew. And my last impression as an outsider, is that I have the impression that some U.S. annual conferences try to solve problems of salary, benefits, pensions and other more financial questions by changing the structure of ministry, and by doing so, burdening the whole connection. I plead to stay with the proposal of the bishops.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. The gentleman here. Microphone 9.

ARMIN BESSERER (Germany South): Since my Austrian colleague spoke against the legislation committee, I want to speak for the proposal of the legislation committee.

BISHOP TALBERT: Are you speaking for the amendment?

One Ordination in Germany

BESSERER: No, I speak against the amendment. I'm from Germany and maybe you know that we have the one ordination in Germany for the last 50 years, and we worked good with this. We understand ordination as an elder including the ordination as a deacon. In our German environment, the Lutheran Church is very huge, and they have also one ordination. And as far as I know, the British Methodist Church has also the two orders, the presbyters and the deacons and so I think when we accept the new order, or the new form, we are just preparing. We are still in order or parallel with the British Methodists. I think this is OK. One problem which I had, but is now no longer the problem is the question of the itinerancy, because elders do itinerate and the deacons not. But since the appointment is just for one year, as I was told, and its an appointment although its not itinerating, I think its still very close that the bishop can say this deacon can have this appointment or not.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. We have three against and two for. I must take one now for. Are you for the amendment? All right. Thirteen.

GEORGE ATKINSON (Texas): My colleagues sometimes ask me what difference theology makes in the practical life of the church. It probably doesn't make a whole lot. I don't know that it would make any difference to my congregation if we kept the present order of the Discipline, or adopted the Bishops' proposal, or took the legislative committee's proposal. Most congregations want caring pastors who are able to preach and people who will help them to grow in the Christian life.

But I can't help but think that changing the way we've done things for so long, that will take so much energy over the next several years to work out, is not the best way to perfect the order of deacon. Certainly we need to work on creating a permanent deacon, a deacon who has a particular work in the world, who is able to embody and witness to the Word, but I don't see that doing that requires that we alter the way we think about elders.

The grounding of ordination is not simply in baptism. There is only one ministry—that's the ministry of Jesus Christ. Baptism allows us to participate in that ministry. The ministry of Jesus Christ, as described in many theologians as being that of prophetic, and priestly and royal work, which is why we have reflected in our own ordination Word and Sacrament and Order. There is one ministry of Jesus Christ. There are not conflicting, separated orders of deacon and elder, not to mention whatever the bishops are. I'm convinced that we would be better off in our understanding if we simply accepted the bishops' proposal rather than the Legislative committee's proposal. Thank you.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. According to your rules now, you've had three for and three against. And unless there's a motion to do otherwise,

I must turn to the committee to see if there's a last word before we vote.

SANDRA LUTZ (East Ohio): Yes, we have asked Earl Bledsoe, our vice-chair, to give that final word.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, it's before you, and as the, when the light appears—Well, excuse me. Oh, you're going to have the last word?

EARL BLEDSOE: Yes, I was going to give the last word, if it's OK.

BISHOP TALBERT: Oh, I thought that was it.

Final Word from Legislative Committee

W. EARL BLEDSOE (Texas): Earl Bledsoe, from the Texas Conference. And George, the bishops are elders, if you didn't know where they stood.

I would urge you to support the Legislative committee's decision on this part of the ministry report and to vote no on the substitute motion for basically two reasons: One is that for a time of reflection and prayer; laity, diaconals, and elders working together; there is common agreement that there is clarity, and that there is a particular focus on our ministry together. Within our petition and our recommendation, the dynamic togetherness of laity, deacons and elders is the basic formation for servant leadership within our church.

Now, if I took the argument of Lawrence and the others who have spoken for the substitution, if it were only elders within the church and we were talking about ministry as being only for the elders, I, too, would probably affirm and say, "Yes, I'm for two ordinations, and sequential, to make sure that the deacon and service is a part of that understanding." We're not the Catholic Church, you all! That's just not who we are. We are The United Methodist Church. And we affirm the ministry of all persons, both laity, deacons and elders working together in ministry. And so, when we look at the model by which we put forth in the amended version of the bishops' study, we find that it has clarity. And it has focus on the ministry of servanthood.

The second thing and reason why I urge your support of our petition and recommendation is that it clears up the perception among those who are in ministry within the church that there is this hierarchy, or that some are more superior, or inferior, to others in our ministry. We should be about the ministry of Jesus Christ in service to all persons, and we ought to be able to utilize the gifts that everyone brings to the table to share the gospel of Jesus Christ to others.

BISHOP TALBERT: You need to finish.

BLEDISOE: So in summary, we listened to you. The committee was very clear on the issue and voted 92 for and 12 against. And I would ask you to vote no on the substitute motion.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, what's before us now is the McCluskey amendment. That's what's before us. And if you are for the amendment, you would vote yes. If you're against the amendment and, thus, prepared to take the recommendation coming from the committee, you will vote no. Will you vote when the light appears? [Results: yes, 224; no, 710]

BISHOP TALBERT: All right the motion, the amendment fails. What's before us now is the report from the committee, I recognize the gentleman here. Microphone 7.

MENNO E. GOOD (Eastern Pennsylvania): Bishop, I have a friendly amendment that will clear up a pastoral difficulty in counseling with young and older persons applying for the elder's order. And that is on the, and I'll make us a motion, and then speak to it, if I have a second. It's the 10th line down on 792 and it reads after the comma, "and whose call," I would add "by God" and then continue "to ordination has been confirmed by the church."

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, that's your motion. Is it seconded? It is seconded.

GOODPASTOR: Bishop we'll accept that.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right it's accepted; any objection to that? That is accepted. All right, this is before us. Back here. Microphone 9.

PETER D. WEAVER (Western Pennsylvania): I'd like to also offer an amendment on line 7. After the word "church" in line 7, for the rest of that sentence to read in this order: "found by the church to have the necessary gifts and evidences of God's grace, to be of sound learning and Christian character," and then in line 10 to continue "and whose call to ordination.. etc." If I have a second, I'd like to speak just quickly to it.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. Is that seconded? It is.

WEAVER: This essentially, simply changes the order. I debated whether to do this but too many times I have sat in Boards of Ordained Ministry that talked about the matter of learning, the matters of the head, before they talked about the matters of the soul. Seems to me the first question, the entry question, always is the issue of the gifts and evidence of God's grace. I would like us always to be putting that first in the order, that we ask: How is it with your soul before we begin asking how is it with your head?

BISHOP TALBERT: All right is there someone to...

LARRY M. GOODPASTOR: Bishop, we would accept that.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, you be sure to get that up here so we can get it in. All right, I recognize you, sir. Microphone 9.

ARNOLD A. RHODES (Western Pennsylvania): I have a question. If one is ordained as a deacon can that person serve a church as a pastor?

BISHOP TALBERT: You want to speak to that?

GOODPASTOR: According to the way the Bishops' document reads, which we have not changed, the answer to that would be no, unless that person makes that decision and goes through the proper steps.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, over here. Microphone 1.

Difference Between Consecration, Commissioning, and Ordination Asked

TERRY L. CLARK (Central Illinois): I would like to ask if the committee could explain theologically and biblically the difference between consecration, commissioning and ordination. All three of those words are used, and I think it'd be helpful if we had some understanding here in terms of what those are. Again, that's both the biblical and theological understanding of this.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right now, we don't want to stay here all night with a treatise, but I think they could probably speak to that.

SHARON RHODES-WICKETT (California-Pacific): Thank you, Bishop, we don't either. I am bringing, on behalf of the legislative committee, a petition a little bit later where that word is used. One of the difficulties is that in the transmission of materials to your DCA, not all of the changes were picked up. The wording of the legislative committee was chosen to be "commissioning." The subcommittee and the legislative committee spent a significant amount of time debating the meaning of not only the words you've asked about, but about a dozen other words as well. And I don't think we have time, and I know what you've asked for; I don't think we have to time to get into a big treatise of all of those. Let me just mention some of the issues and concerns that were brought up.

Around the word "consecration," some were uncomfortable with the close connection with the concept of ordination. The relationship of consecrating bishops and consecrating persons as they begin their ministry seemed to be confusing. We looked at various biblical passages where commissioning was used, where licensing came in, where consecration came in. And the different words that-and on ordination—and each of the words that we considered had dimensions to them that made sense to us, and there were parts of them that troubled us.

And the subsection probably spent about a day to a day and a half wrestling with all of that kind of language; their meanings, the layers of meaning, the theology around it, what is our practice, what are we attempting to do? The word "commissioning" was the one that we finally proposed, as we thought about the biblical notion of sending out for a task, "go therefore." That at the beginning of one's ministry, in a probationary period, they are being commissioned, and it's a time to be in probation before coming back to be ordained, set aside, in a very final sense for that order. Now, is that sufficient to say that the nature of what we've been struggling with?

BISHOP TALBERT: Yes, well I'm going to test it with the gentleman. I think what you're saying is, is that even though the word shows up in various ways, your consistent use of that word is going to be "commissioning"? Is that all right? No?

CLARK: Just one or two sentences. What is consecration? What is commissioning? And what is ordination? One or two sentences for each.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, do you want to say anymore?

RHODES-WICKETT: I'm wondering if we might call on Mary Elizabeth Moore to speak to that. Would that be appropriate? She was a part of the sub-group.

BISHOP TALBERT: Would you want to say something about that? All right, we want to clear this up. I think it's very important. All right, microphone 3.

Short Definition Given

MARY ELIZABETH MOORE (California-Pacific): The words "consecration" and "ordination" have been used interchangeably throughout Christian history. They basically mean, "to be set apart for holy service." And they have been used in many varied ways, but that is the basic dictionary definition that you find in most places. The word "commissioning" has to do sending out together in mission. Com-missioning. And the word "commissioning" has been used in our tradition in terms of commissioning people for short term service, and also commissioning people to life time service, such as we commission missionaries and deaconesses; we commission class leaders; and we commission groups who are going out on a work team. The choice of the legislative committee was a choice for sending people out in mission together with the idea that we might envision the probationary period in a way that we've never been able to envision it before.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, thank you very much. All right this document is before you. I recognize this gentleman right here.

BISHOP TALBERT: Microphone 2.

J.ERIC MCKINNEY (Central Texas): Bishop and members of the conference, I'm an ordained elder and happen to serve as a superintendent at this time, and Larry, I would like to go back to that question about a deacon being able to serve as the pastor of a congregation. To clarify, is it not right that this proposal would allow a process for them to seek license to do that function? In other words, there would not be prohibition universally from deacons being able to seek such license. And there would be provisions for that would be done? Is that not right?

GOODPASTOR: Correct.

MCKINNEY: Thank you.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, the gentleman here. Microphone 3.

DAVID BANKS (North Carolina): I would like to address a question to follow up on that, with regard to a deacon who is licensed and serving a church and begins to discern that his or her call is to Word, Order, and Sacrament. What would be the process to become an elder, and would that amount to a double ordination, or an elder who begins to discern that the call goes beyond the bounds of Word, Order, and Sacrament in a service, what would be the process to become a deacon; and would that amount to a double ordination?

GOODPASTOR: One of the problems we faced in presenting the petitions is that we cannot present them all at one time. Some of these questions will be cleared up as other petitions get presented. The answer to that would be in the sense of having to qualify and be licensed for one or the other. One of the questions that we have wrestled with, and in some conversations, we believe if a person had been ordained elder, sensing a call to another order of ministry, that one of the ways for exiting would be to surrender that, qualify for the other, and be ordained to that. Some of those materials will be presented later. There are exiting procedures for both orders. There are ways to be qualified for both orders. There are other educational requirements and qualifications for each one that will be spelled out in other pieces of the legislation as it comes.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. What's before us now is 792, and I think what you're doing is asking questions that will get answered later. So what we need to do is to speak to Calendar Item 792. Person in the middle right here, yes. You put your card down? OK. I recognize you. Microphone 8.

JUNE D. MCCULLOUGH (Southern New Jersey): Bishop, I move to suspend Rule 36 and to vote upon this matter.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, that's seconded. You moved to suspend the rules. If you would suspend the rules, you'll vote when the light appears. All right, you've suspended the rules. [779 approved] All right, I think this document is before us. Is there a word from the committee before we take the vote? Nothing from the committee. Thank you. It's before you. You will vote when the light appears. [769 approved] All right, Calendar Item 792 is adopted. All right, the next item.

LUTZ: I'm sorry to be running. We don't have enough pads up here, and I wanted to vote on that particular thing. Now we will move sequentially through the document.

BISHOP TALBERT: Let me just check this out. I think it's important for you committee members not to be disenfranchised. Maybe you need to think about the order in which you are coming, and those who are going to be a little later can go back to your seats, and then come up as you finish.

LUTZ: Thank you for that advise. We thought there would be enough pads up here.

BISHOP TALBERT: I think you ought to work that out. While you are presenting, the others can think about it.

LUTZ: All right. As you realize, not all items relevant to the Ministry Study are before us. There were twelve items that were available for us to present today. We have dealt with one.

The next item we now will go to, a 100 paragraph, that beginning section on the understanding of ministry, and this is an item that was lifted from the Consent Calendar, published on page 390 of your blue book, but the reference that you'll want to look at is the blue DCA, page 211, and it is Item 552, on page 211 in your DCA, and it references paragraph 110. Bishop, there seems to be a question.

BISHOP TALBERT: Yes, she hasn't put anything before us yet.

LUTZ: And that reference is the red DCA, page 983, paragraph 110, Petition 21743. The committee voted concurrence, 91-0. The subject is Ministry of all Christians, and Renae Extrum-Fernandez, who chaired that sub-committee, will present that to you.

Ministry of All Christians

RENAE D. EXTRUM-FERNANDEZ (California-Nevada): Thank you, Sandra. Bishop and members of the General Conference, it is my privilege to set before you this particular petition that provides the foundational understanding of our call, our general call, to Christian ministry, which undergirds the whole of the ministry study. Our legislative committee affirmed this foundational piece, with out amendment and by unanimous concurrence. The vote count was 91 in concurrence, zero non concurring, and zero abstaining.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. Is that it? I recognize the gentleman here. Microphone 3.

DAVID BANKS (North Carolina): I would move to amend the first paragraph of what would become paragraph 110 to read in this fashion: The ministry of all Christians is the continuation of the saving ministry of Jesus Christ who declared to his disciples, "as the Father has sent me, I also send you." This saving ministry is expressed, hopefully, in the prayer that Jesus first taught his disciples, "thy kingdom come, thy will be done, on earth as it is in heaven." All Christians, therefore, are to live in active expectancy of the fulfillment of Christ's saving work, faithful in witness to the world regarding the gospel of life in Christ Jesus; faithful in making disciples of all the world's peoples; faithful in service of God and neighbor; faithful in seeking the fulfillment of God's universal love, justice, and peace on earth, as in heaven.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, is that seconded? It is seconded.

BANKS: It seems to me, while the document that's printed in the Advanced DCA is a good document, there is an omission with regard to how the ministry of all Christians is tied specifically to the ministry of Jesus Christ. In The Book of Discipline now there is a statement that says something to the effect that the heart of Christian ministry is the ministry of Christ's outreaching love. In the COCU Consensus, which is the theological foundation document to the covenanting proposal that we approved earlier today, the COCU Consensus says this: "The ministry of the one people of God, with all its diversity, is the continuation of the saving ministry of Jesus Christ." It seems to me that this says everything that currently you have before you, but it more clearly ties the ministry of all Christians into the saving ministry of Jesus.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. That's a speech for. Is there one against this amendment? Is there someone to speak against the amendment? Anyone want to speak at all? All right, Chair. Renae, any word from you before we vote?

EXTRUM-FERNANDEZ: I would direct you perhaps to ..., there are other paragraphs which I do believe relate our orders of ministry, the way we're attempting to order ministry, to the ministry of Jesus Christ. I think, besides paragraph 110, there's also paragraphs 112, 113, and 114, as well as 115, which ground our ministry in Christ's ministry.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, what's before you now is the amendment. If you vote for the amendment, it's a yes; against the amendment, no. Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 297; no, 682]

All right, the amendment does not prevail. The matter before us is item 551. All right, any further discussion? 552, sorry, 552 is before us. Any further discussion? All right, if you would, if you're ready to go with this one, vote yes if you support the committee, no if you do not. Vote when the light appears. [867 approved] All right, you've supported the committee with concurrence

LUTZ: Thank you. The next item was also lifted from the Consent Calendar. It appears in your blue DCA, page 211, Item 554, which deals with paragraph 313. It's in your red DCA, page 996, paragraph 313, Petition 21829. That's page 996, paragraph 313, Petition 21829.

Membership in Orders of Ministry

And we concurred as amended, 101 to zero. The subject is membership in an order. And Sharon Rhodes-Wickett, who chaired that subcommittee, will come to speak to that.

Probationary Period Differs from Transitional Period

SHARON K. RHODES-WICKETT: Thank you. The only amendment that was made to this petition happened to be renumbering, which resulted from the work of the legislative section. And so, in fact, what you have before you in this petition, is exactly as it appears in the Bishop's Ministry Study, and it is before you.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, it is before us. Any discussion of it? If not, I think you're ready. If you support the committee you will vote yes. If you do not, vote no. Vote when the light appears. All right, you have supported the committee. The item is adopted. [875 approved]

RHODES-WICKETT: Thank you. The next matter before us is on your Consent Calendar as number 557 on page 212 in your blue DCA. And it refers, in your red book from the Bishops' Study, page 998, Petition 21835. The amendments that you find in this document simply put into motion the earlier action that you took and does then bring into light the language used, where ordination as deacon was eliminated, and the language of commissioning was put into place. And I believe that this particular document is all correct and there are no corrections needed. And so it is before you.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, it is before you. Any discussion? If you are ready to vote, I think you know the process. You will vote when the light appears. All right, you have supported the committee, it is adopted. [885 approved]

RHODES-WICKETT: Thank you. The next petition I bring before you, you will find in your blue DCA from the Consent Calendar 556, the same page, 212; referring in your red advance book, number 999, page 999, referring to Petition 21836. And in this case there are some changes that need to be made. There is one place where it still says ordained deacons. It simply needs to say commissioned ministers.

BISHOP TALBERT: Can you show us where it is?

RHODES-WICKETT: No, I don't think I can. (laughter) The second sentence.

BISHOP TALBERT: That's been changed, I believe.

RHODES-WICKETT: Well, that's the way it looks to me, too. Maybe, maybe it got caught. At any rate, I think at this point it is simply editorial.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. Is it before us? All right, it is before us. Any discussion? Are you? All right. Microphone 4.

BRIAN E. BECK (Great Britain): Page 212 in the blue DCA, third column at the top, numbered one. "The commissioned ministers planning to give their lives as deacons." Is that the point they are looking for correction? Or is that word deacons there correct?

RHODES-WICKETT: In my copy that's corrected, and it shows that it would remain deacons. Yes, that is correct, uh huh. Thank you for asking about that.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right now, what is it? Does deacons . . . ?

RHODES-WICKETT: It's correct as printed.

BISHOP TALBERT: So deacon comes out and you just say commissioned ministers.

RHODES-WICKETT: That is correct.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. Yes. Microphone 4.

DAVID RICHARDSON (California-Pacific): This is a question, actually and I may not need to relate to it, but why is it that there is different treatment for deacons planning to give their lives in full service in number one, and then a different treatment in number two, in terms of half the time of probational period?

RHODES-WICKETT: My recollection is that is how it was presented in the original study, and that we did not change that.

RICHARDSON: It seems unfair. I am not prepared to work on the amendment yet. I have to think about it.

RHODES-WICKETT: I know the feeling.

RICHARDSON: I'm just questioning it first. But if someone else talks I may have time to think about it.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, I see a card over here. Yes. Microphone 3.

J. ERIC MCKINNEY (Central Texas): I think if you work from the blue DCA there is a correction and there is a parallelism between paragraph two and three where the entire period of service is spent in the respective order for both deacon and elder.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, any discussion? Are you ready? If you are ready you will vote when the light appears. All right, you have supported the committee. This item is adopted, number 556. [871 approved]

RHODES-WICKETT: Thank you. The final petition that I'm bringing to you this evening is found on page 211 in your blue book, Calendar Item 555, referring to your red book page 999, Petition 21837. And this is where I do need to just point out the editorial corrections so that it won't be confusing to you. At the beginning we're in the right column on page 211 where it begins "eligibility and rights," the third line down, "ordained deacons who are" is stricken so that it reads "probationary members are on trial." If you would go down to number one at the bottom of the page, the word "deacons or" needs to be inserted in two places, on the second line and on the third line prior to the word "elders."

Probationary Membership

RHODES-WICKETT: . . . so that it would read, "Probationary members who are preparing for deacons or elders orders may be ordained deacons or elders when . . ." and it continues on over on page 212 in section number four a little more than half way down, with the sentence that begins, "They shall also be assigned a deacon." Cross out the words, "in full connection," so that they shall also be assigned a deacon or elder as mentor." Number four, on the left column about half way down on page 212, crossing out "in full connection." And then, finally . . .

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, let me just test now, just make sure. You with her? Any questions? Bear with us. OK.

RHODES-WICKETT: Only one more. Toward the end of this section, which is the center column of the page, six sentences down. Six lines down, I should say. Where it talks about surrendering their credentials, the committee preferred the word, "return," so it would read: "permitted to exercise ministerial functions and shall return their credentials to the district superintendent." With these changes which were part of the original motion that the Legislative committee adopted, I put this before you.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, this is before us. I recognize the card. Right, that's right, sir. You. Microphone 9.

STEPHEN FOSTER (Wisconsin): Bishop, I would propose an amendment.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right.

FOSTER: It would be in line nine of item four on the left-hand column. The insertion would be these words: "Where possible, probationary members preparing to become elders and deacons should be joined together in covenant groups for ministerial formation."

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. Is that seconded? It is seconded. You may speak to it.

FOSTER: The intention is to develop collegiality among those who are in the probationary status in order that they might be colleagues in ordained ministry later on. It's the intention of the study and the committee to maintain the collegiality of deacons and elders, and this would be the formative stage of that collegiality. Thank you.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. This amendment is before us. That's a speech for it. Is there someone to speak against it? Yes? Microphone 13.

WILLIAM H. WILLIMON (South Carolina): I would speak against it. That's something that the conferences could take various approaches to. Our conference has a program. I think that shouldn't be mandated.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. That's a speech against. Anyone speaking for or against it? I see no further ones. Committee?

RHODES-WICKETT: Well, Bishop, I've been looking. Somewhere in another paragraph in the bishops' document there is reference to covenant groups as part of the process, and I can't find the paragraph quickly where that is...

BISHOP TALBERT: So regarding this one, you are for it or against it? This amendment? What do you have to say about this amendment?

RHODES-WICKETT: Oh, I'm sorry. I would say we'd be against it because I do believe it is covered elsewhere in the document.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. This matter is before us. Yes? You want to say more about this one? What's your Point of Order? Come on to microphone 8.

MICHAEL WEAVER (Virginia): Mike Weaver from Virginia. If you check Calendar Item 556, it talks about covenanting groups about ten lines down.

BISHOP TALBERT: So you were pointing out that that's where it's mentioned? All right?

WEAVER: That's correct.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, thank you. All right, this item is before us. That what's before us now is the amendment. Are you clear on the amendment? Do you need it read again? All right. If you support the amendment, if you're for it, you will vote yes. If you're against it, vote no. Vote when the light appears. All right, the amendment is not supported. This document, item number 555, is before us. Any further discussion? Yes? Microphone 9.

ARNOLD A. RHODES (Western Pennsylvania): Arnie Rhodes, Western Pennsylvania Conference. I would like to have an amendment of deletion. On page 212 under paragraph two, would delete a and b. Delete "constitutional amendments" and "b. election of delegates to the General and Jurisdictional or Central Conferences."

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. Is that seconded? Do I hear a second? It is seconded. All right. You want to speak to it?

RHODES: Yes I would. My understanding of probationary membership is in regards to effectiveness of ministry of the individuals. And it seems important to me that if a person is appointed to a local charge or a person is already has the right to vote in annual conference that that right should also extend to constitutional amendments and the election of delegates.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. Someone speak against this amendment? All right. Gentleman in the center. Microphone 8.

ROGER C. DOWDY (Virginia): Roger Dowdy, Virginia Conference. I would speak in opposition to this amendment. As a diaconal minister, according to this report I have until the year 2000 to determine whether I would choose to be ordained deacon or remain diaconal. If this amendment passed, it sounds as though I would, or let's say if I chose to move towards ordination as deacon and the conference Board or Ordained ministry determined that I was not yet qualified, that I could no longer vote during that probationary period for General Conference delegates, and I've already been voting as a member for a number of years in that way. I think that's very unfair for persons who might be in a transition period from diaconal to ordained deacon. I would vote against that amendment.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. Any other discussion on this amendment? Yes? Microphone 14.

HELEN E. POTTER (West Ohio): I have a question. If they were probationary members and were allowed to vote, would they be voting as lay or clergy?

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. The maker of the motion, would you like to respond to that? Microphone 9.

RHODES: My understanding is that they would be voting as...

ARNOLD RHODES: The understanding is that they would be voting as clergy.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. This matter's before us, this amendment. Any further discussion? I see none. I now recognize the chair of the committee.

RHODES-WICKETT: We would ask you to oppose the amendment. We understand this would, in fact, be a constitutional amendment to go in this direction, and secondly, we see this probationary period, which is distinct from a transition time for deacons, for current diaconal ministers to decide which way they're going to go—that's, that's a whole 'nother category. But the probationary time is a time of discernment and a time to try out and explore ministry before the ordination. And we don't think it's appropriate that this would be changed.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, this matter's before you, the amendment. You are now voting on the amendment. Yes, if you support the amendment; no, if you do not. Vote when the light appears. All right, the motion does not prevail. [yes, 108; no, 797]. What's before us now is item number 555. Are you ready on that? OK, if you are ready, you will vote when the light appears. All right, you've sustained the committee. It's adopted, 555. [yes, 877; no 37]

RHODES-WICKETT: These complete my items for tonight. Thank you, Bishop.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, thank you.

Deacons in Full Connection Disability Leave

SANDRA W. LUTZ (East Ohio): The next was lifted from the Consent Calendar. It is in your blue DCA on page 211, and it is item 553, which deals with paragraph 321. It's found in the red DCA on page 1,000, paragraph 321, petition 12839. We had voted concurrence, 104 to four. It's titled "Ministry Authority and Responsibility of Deacons in Full Connection."

And Larry Goodpastor will come back to bring that to you.

BISHOP TALBERT: Oh, he's over here. All right, you want to do it from there? I'm...Wherever you want to do it; it's up to you. All right, microphone 1.

LARRY M. GOODPASTOR (Mississippi): Thank you. I got thrown a curve on that one. I apologize, Bishop. Consent item 553. It was on the Consent Calendar, and we pulled it off so that we could present all of this material tonight. It is before you with the amendment "ordained by a bishop", in line five, "ordained by a bishop to a lifetime ministry of Word and Service".

BISHOP TALBERT: Is that it?

GOODPASTOR: It is before you.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, end of discussion of this. All right, if you're ready to—yes? Over here. Microphone 9.

DOROTHY S. MCMAHAN (New England): I'm Dorothy McMahan, New England Conference. I am a diaconal minister, and I would like to add a word to the sentence that reads, "Deacons are persons called by God, authorized by the church, and ordained by a bishop to a lifetime of ministry, of justice, service, and word". The word I would add is "justice."

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, now tell us where you are.

MCMAHAN: I believe it's the second sentence.

BISHOP TALBERT: Second sentence. All right. Can we, can you help us? I'm...

MCMAHAN: Line six.

BISHOP TALBERT: Line six.

MCMAHAN: If I have a second, I'd like to speak to it.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. Do it again so I can, so we can make sure we know where you are.

MCMAHAN: All right. The sentence would read "Deacons are persons called by God, authorized by the church and ordained by a bishop to a lifetime ministry of justice, service, and word."

BISHOP TALBERT: I get it. So you are simply adding the word "justice".

MCMAHAN: And reversing "Service" and "Word", I think.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. All right, is that seconded? It is seconded. All right, number nine. She's still speaking to it.

MCMAHAN: OK. The deacon is to be ordained to a ministry which moves out of the congregation out into the community. And when you move out of a congregation and into a community, the issues of justice become uppermost. I envision deacons, as diaconal ministers do, working outside of the church setting in many venues of ministry where justice is the uppermost issue.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, this amendment is before us. I recognize the—yes? Microphone 7.

DEBORAH G. PITNEY (Oregon-Idaho): Debbie Pitney, Oregon-Idaho. I think if you read a few sentences further, you will find the words, "in the world, the deacon seeks to express a ministry of compassion and justice".

BISHOP TALBERT: So you're speaking against this amendment? All right. Someone else to speak on this topic? The amendment? The committee?

GOODPASTOR: Yes, we would speak against it. We were picking up the words that were used throughout the document from the Council of Bishops that deacons were "ordained to ministry of word and service".

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. This amendment is before us. If you will support the amendment, you will vote "yes"; if you're against it, vote "no". Vote when the light appears. The amendment is defeated. [yes, 145; no, 760] This item 553 is before us. Any further discussion? If you are ready, you will vote when the light appears. All right, 553 is supported; it's adopted. [781 approved] Next?

LUTZ: Bless you. [laughter] Goodness.

BISHOP TALBERT: Bless you. [laughter]

LUTZ: The next item is in the blue DCA, page 259.

BISHOP TALBERT: 259.

Categories of Local Pastor

LUTZ: And it is item 791, and it references paragraph 408. It is in the red DCA on page 1,008, paragraph 408, and it's petition 21863. And we voted concurrence 89, 9. The subject is, "Categories of Local Pastor," and Deborah Pritz will present that.

DEBORAH L. PRITTS (North Central New York): Thank you. We bring this petition to you with the unanimous concurrence of our subcommittee and with the vote of our full Legislative committee as was just reported to you by our chairperson. We bring it with no amendments in the text of the petition as it was brought to us by the Council of Bishops. You will note that the document accords clergy status to both full and part-time local pastors. You will note that student local-pastors retain their current status within the annual conference. And point number five in the original petition delineates the voting rights for local pastors.

Debate Local Pastors on BOM

EDWARD A. KAIL (Iowa): I rise to propose an amendment. It would be with reference to the red DCA, page 1008, in point five, to delete the words, "except the Board of Ordained Ministry and the District Committee on Ministry; and also deleting the words, "to vote on or." The sentence would then read, "Local pastors, except student local-pastors, may serve on any board, commission, or committee with voice and vote, except on matters of clergy character, qualifications, status, and ordination. They shall not be eligible to serve as delegates to the General, Jurisdictional, or Central Conference." I would like to speak to that.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. Is it seconded? It is.

KAIL: The purpose of this change would be to allow local pastors to serve on both the Board of Ordained Ministry and District Committee on Ordained Ministry, but without vote on matters of clergy character qualifications, status and ordination. Over the last quadrennium, laypersons have been observers on these boards and committees and are being recommended at this General Conference to be full voting members of both the Board of Ordained Ministry and District Committee.

For too long, the local pastor has had no representation and no input into the workings of this board or these committees. This change also opens the door for local pastors to have a say in the affairs of the general church. Since local pastors serve over 23 percent of our charges and 35 percent of our churches, a change would need to be made to the Constitution in paragraph 38 in order for them to vote for clergy delegates.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, that's for it. Is there someone to speak against? All right, here. Microphone 8.

HERCHEL S. SHEETS (North Georgia): I oppose this amendment. You would have local pastors serving as members of the very bodies, which examine them and make recommendations of them to continue as local pastors, or to become probationary members, and deacons, and elders.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, is there someone to speak for the amendment? Yes, over here. Microphone 10.

GLENN B. KOHLHEPP (Western Pennsylvania): Bishop, I'd like to make another amendment, please.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right.

GLENN B. KOHLHEPP: In paragraph 5....

BISHOP TALBERT: Is that, is that an amendment to the amendment?

GLENN B. KOHLHEPP: No, it's not.

BISHOP TALBERT: Then you're out of order. You'll have to wait until we dispense with this amendment.

GLENN B. KOHLHEPP: Thank you.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, what's before us is this amendment. Yes? Number 9. Microphone 9.

SHARON A. HAUSMAN (West Ohio): I guess basically I have a question. Isn't there a way that a local pastor can stay a local pastor and never go through the ordination process?

BISHOP TALBERT: Is this on the amendment, the amendment is...

SHARON A. HAUSMAN: That's a question on that, before I talk for it or against it.

BISHOP TALBERT: You want, you want the person who made that motion to respond to you then on that?

HAUSMAN: Yes.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, if you could, can you respond to that, sir? Microphone 4.

KAIL: My understanding of the proposal is that there is provision for local pastors to remain local pastors.

HAUSMAN: And that is for the committee also. I'd like to speak to it because if they are not going through the process, they still...we're talking 23 percent of the pastors in the conferences, 35 percent of the churches served. They still should have an ability to have some input into what makes for good pastoring, what makes for a good pastor. At least to have a voice in that. I think we do that in most of our clergy sessions at annual conference now. And we would just like to be able to see that there could be one that could at least have a voice, even if they don't have a vote. Thank you.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, any further discussion on this topic? Yes? Microphone 7.

BARBARA DAY (North Georgia): I just want to reiterate what Herchel Sheets clarified. Local pastors have to appear before the board annually for renewal of their credentials. So, whether or not they are going ahead for ordination, they would be appearing before the same board that they might hold membership on. So, I would speak against the amendment.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, any further discussion on this? Yes? Microphone 3.

LAVADA S. REDDING (Rocky Mountain): Many small urban, as well as remote and rural churches are served most effectively by local pastors. Their spiritual guidance, their pastoral skills and administrative abilities make them most effective in their setting. Yet, they're neither clergy or laity in many cases. It's a vital concern to them, in the life of the church, and yet often they cannot be participating. I would urge support of this amendment to include these most worthy servants in Christ's ministry.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, any further discussion? Yes? We've had three for, and see...you speaking against? All right, OK. Number 8, microphone 8.

THOMAS R. BOLLER (Yellowstone): Bishop, it occurs to me, as I read through this particular paragraph, that when you give local pastors membership on a Board of Ordained Ministry or District Committee, but you say that they cannot deal with matters of character, qualifications, status or ordination, all you're saying is they can sit around and watch, but they aren't going to be able to do anything once they get there anyway.

I'm a district superintendent. I've got some good local pastors serving in the churches that I supervise. In fact, I would recommend some of them for the superintendency. And I would nominate some of them for the...to be bishop. They're that good. I don't question their qualifications as pastors or their ability to work. But it seems to me that this amendment to strike that phrase just doesn't make any sense.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, do we have this before us now, three and three? Yes? This is the end of debate, so you, you have a question of clarification, or anything? Microphone 6.

JIM C. GILLAND (Western North Carolina): Would the maker of the motion accept the phrase, "with the exception of the Board of Ordained Ministry?" I think that would clarify what we've been talking about for the last little bit.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, what you are doing is, is you are....

GILLAND: I'm inquiring of the motion maker, sir.

BISHOP TALBERT: Let me see. Yes.

KAIL: I'm sorry, I'm not sure what the question is.

BISHOP TALBERT: He said, he asked you if you...would you state that question again, let him hear it?

GILLAND: Yes, I will. I agree with everything except local pastors serving on the Board of Ordained Ministry. I wonder if the maker of the motion would accept that one exception?

KAIL: I believe I'd like the amendment to stand as proposed.

BISHOP TALBERT: You'd like it to stand like it's...all right, committee?

DEBORAH PRITTS (North Central New York): We believe that many of the reasons that have been articulated around the room tonight for retaining the language as it was originally proposed by the committee and the Council of Bishops are sound. We believe that it is appropriate and, indeed, we celebrate the ability, if you pass this petition, of full and part-time local pastors to be able to participate in the life of the annual conference in ways that they have not been able to up until this point in time.

However, keeping in mind that local pastors need to appear before the District Committee on an annual basis for reapproval of their license, and keeping in mind the statements in the constitution of our church, we believe that the bishops are on target in recommending the provisions as they appear in point 5 of the original petition.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, the amendment is before us. If you support the amendment, yes. If you do not, no. Vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 170; no, 744] The amendment is lost. All right, this item is before us. Yes...What's the question? Hold it a minute, sir. You may go on to the microphone. Yes, question.

DON W. MENDENHALL (Iowa): I do have a question for the committee.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right.

Question About Laity Serving as Pastors

MENDENHALL: It has to do with this study. My sense is that the bishops and the committee did very, very well in the area of clergy responsibilities and who they are in their distinctions of ministry. When it really gets down to the laity, it gets thin real fast. Here's my question: In one area, for example, the idea of laity pastoring a local church. For example, in other parts of the world, maybe not so much in the United States, they do use lay evangelists or lay persons that they train to be at preaching points. My question, then, is how does the study allow lay people to be involved under the supervision of an ordained elder to pastor local churches? Does it answer that question?

BISHOP TALBERT: All right.

MENDENHALL: I may have a motion, depending on the answer.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, you're speaking to calendar item...

MENDENHALL: The reason I chose this is that the local pastor concept is very, very close to the use of a lay person in a part-time pastoring position. That's why I chose to ask the question now.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. You want to respond to that?

PRITTS: I'll try. I don't believe that that falls under the purview of what we were discussing in terms of the Ministry Study. I don't believe that that topic was considered directly by the Ministry Study. I do believe that one of the other legislative committees during this previous week considered the question of lay preachers, and it may be that they will be bringing some legislation to us at another point in time.

MENDENHALL: All right. Then I do have a motion.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, I think you need to...you raised to get the floor on a question, and I had recognized this gentleman, so I need to try to get back to you. All right, over here.

ALBERT SHULER (North Carolina): Bishop, on page 1008, at the top of that page regarding this petition, where it states, "The local pastor shall complete two courses per year." I think that's an error, is it not? Should that be four courses?

PRITTS: Yes. There is another petition that our legislative committee has voted that catches that error and changes the disciplinary language to reflect four courses a year, which is the expectation of the Course of Study outline. Thank you.

SHULER: Thank you very much.

BISHOP TALBERT: OK. All right, over here. Yes. Microphone 10.

GLENN B. KOHLHEPP (Western Pennsylvania): I would like to amend item five by the deletion of the words, "except student local pastors."

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, that's in the heavy, bold words, "except student local pastors." Is it seconded? I think it's seconded. All right.

Rights, Obligations of Part-time, Full-time, Student Local Pastors

KOHLHEPP: I serve as a pastor in Western Pennsylvania Conference and as a mentor to three student local pastors who are studying at Waynesburg College and serving charges in the Washington District. It seems to me if we were to extend these kinds of privileges to those who are part-time local pastors in the Course of Study and full-time local pastors in a Course of Study, that we ought to extend the same privileges to student local pastors who are also studying for ministry.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. Yes. Microphone 3.

J.ERIC MCKINNEY (Central Texas): Bishop, I would oppose this amendment. The reality is that for annual conferences that have seminaries in close proximity or within their bounds many, many student local pastors serve in those annual conferences who have no connection at all with those annual conferences, serve those appointments on the weekend, intend fully from the day they take that appointment to return to their home conference. I see no parallel between a student local pastor and a part-time local pastor who is invested in longevity of appointment, grounded in the community long-term where he or she will serve, and does, in fact, have an ongoing relationship with the same annual conference.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. Any further discussion of this? Yes. Back here. Microphone 13. No, microphone 8.

JOAN G. LABARR (North Texas): I have a question regarding the Course of Study for part-time local pastors.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. What we have before us is this motion to delete. Is this on the motion to delete?

LABARR: I heard a few moments ago the statement that the Course of Study requirement was being changed to four courses.

BISHOP TALBERT: No. What is before us now is the motion to delete "except student local pastor." That's what we need to be talking about.

LABARR: Okay. Could we come back to that question?

BISHOP TALBERT: I'll try to get to you.

LABARR: Thank you.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. What's before us now is this motion to delete. Yes. Microphone 8.

SUSAN W.N. RUACH (South Indiana): I speak against the amendment because some student local pastors have probationary membership in conferences where they are not serving because they're in seminary. And you can't have voting rights in two annual conferences.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. Any further discussion on this? Yes. Microphone 4.

BRUCE R. OUGH (Iowa): I would support the amendment to delete this. Even in those conferences that have a lot of student local pastors we expect those student local pastors to perform the same duties as full-time and part-time local pastors. We expect them to raise apportionments, we expect them to disciple our people, they're under supervision of a district superintendent, and they're held accountable for all the same responsibilities. Let's let them vote.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. Any further discussion? Committee.

DEBORAH L. PRITTS: We have recognized that there are many questions that surround the status of student local pastors. We felt that the questions were significant enough that they deserve further attention from the Division of Ordained Ministry of the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry, and we feel that it is important for them to be given a time for further dialogue with annual conferences about this issue, and would therefore ask that you not support this amendment.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. This amendment is before us. If you will support the amendment, vote "yes"; if you do not, vote "no". Vote when the light appears. [736 approved] All right, the amendment is not supported. It's lost. The calendar item is before us. In the rear. All right. Number 8.

LABARR: My concern relates to the statement that part-time local pastors would be required to have four, not two, courses under the Course of Study per year. We have a program of bi-vocational ministry, which is basically part-time local pastors. The two courses a year is a very, very large commitment for them, and to increase that to four for part-time local pastors would be very problematic.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, you want to speak to that?

PRITTS: Yes, I believe that the—I took the original question to refer to paragraph number one, which refers to full-time local pastors. The expectation has been, and will continue to be for full-time local pastors that they take four courses per year. The expectation for part-time local pastors in point two, will not change from two courses a year.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. Yes. Microphone 4.

DON W. MENDENHALL (Iowa): I'd like to ask the committee, I do have a motion regarding the lay pastoring concept. Will the lay steward, even though it was nonconcurrent, will that come up? That may be a better time for this motion than right now.

PRITTS: My understanding, from the chair of our legislative committee, is that it will come up as a motion of referral later in our work.

BISHOP TALBERT: And a motion of referral is debatable, so if you have something you will have a chance.

MENDENHALL: I think it would be better if I waited until that time. Thank you.

BISHOP TALBERT: Thank you. Thank you. In the rear. Number 12.

Size of Appointments for Local Pastors

JOHN A. MASON (West Virginia): In part two in the red DCA, page 1008, the last sentence of part two seems to me to suggest that a part-time local pastor may be appointed only to small membership churches which are grouped together. Therefore, I move, if I may, to change the "are" in the next to the last line to "may be."

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. Is that seconded? Did someone second that? It is seconded. All right. Do you want to say anything more about it?

MASON: The only thing I have more to say about it is that in our annual conference many part-time local pastors are appointed to very small single church appointments.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. This is before us. Yes. Over here.

PRITTS: I don't believe that our committee would have an objection.

BISHOP TALBERT: Oh. So, you are accepting it?

PRITTS: We'd be willing to accept that.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. Over here. All right. Number 2.

BRADLEY F. WATKINS (Central Illinois): I have a question about that same sentence because I was confused about whether that sentence, if we adopt that, would that limit the use of a part-time local pastor only to this kind of specification? We have part-time local pastors serving in many other kind of appointments, and I wonder why you specified that and did not identify the other uses and appointments that part-time local pastors currently are being used for.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. Do you want to respond to that?

PRITTS: Well this is language that we did not change from the original ministry study that the Council of Bishops brought to us. As we read it, we did not understand it to be restrictive in any way but merely being permissive in pointing out another option for configuring of appointments.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, are you ready. Yes, over here. The gentleman, yes.

He's going to yield to you? All right.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN: I'm going to yield to Joel Garrett, Western Pennsylvania. I'm going to yield to him because we're both doing the same thing.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, let's do that.

CHRIS WHITE (Western Pennsylvania): Would it be in order to move the previous question?

BISHOP TALBERT: If you say so. [laughter and applause]

WHITE: I move the previous question, of all that's before us.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. If you are prepared now to close debate, will you vote "yes," if you are not, vote "no." Vote when the light appears. All right, you're ready to go. Any word from the committee? No word. Item 791 is before us. Any discussion. If you are supportive, you will vote "yes," no, you will vote "no." Vote when the light appears. It is supported. [841 approved] Calendar Item 791 is adopted.

SANDRA W. LUTZ (East Ohio): The next item to come before you is in the blue DCA, page 389. It is Item 1700 and deals with paragraph 451. That's page 389, Item 1700, and that reference is to the red DCA, page 1011, paragraph 451, Petition 21880. The committee's recommendation was nonconcurrency, 55 to 26. The subject is disability leave. And Wee-Li Tan will speak to that.

WEE-LI TAN (New England): Thank you, Sandy. This petition before us right now attempts to combine two issues which really are distinct and separate. The issue of leave, which is an appointment issue, and that of eligibility for pension and health benefits.

Leave should be identified by categories of relationships to the annual conference rather than by categories of eligibility for benefits, which are secondary. And, since we believe the provisions in our current Discipline are adequate, we recommend nonconcurrency.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, this is before you. Any discussion. If you are ready to vote, you will vote "yes" if you support the recommendation of the committee, "no" if you do not. Vote when the light appears. [855 approved] You have sustained the committee, the nonconcurrency is supported.

LUTZ: The next item is in the blue DCA, page 389, Item 1699, which deals with paragraph 509.1. That reference is the red DCA, page 1076, paragraph 509.1, and it is petition 21255. Committee voted nonconcurrency, 61 to 41, on this mandatory retirement item. And Ruth Daugherty will speak to that. She is going to speak from the floor.

Length of Terms of Bishops

RUTH DAUGHERTY (Easter Pennsylvania): Bishop, may I speak from the floor? The legislative committee recommends nonconcurrency with this petition. The vote was 61 for nonconcurrency and 41 for concurrence. The majority of the members of the legislative committee felt that the present provisions are adequate; that the retirement provisions should not be changed to lengthen the terms of bishops. This was also in the context of quite a number of other petitions which we had, which came to us asking for the limitation of terms or for tenure for bishops. Those were voted nonconcurrence and that was one of the reasons given for this vote.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, this is before you. Any discussion of this petition? All right it is before you. If you would support the committee you would vote "yes," if you do not, vote "no." It's before you. Vote when the light appears. [801 approved] All right, you've sustained the committee and the nonconcurrence prevails.

LUTZ: The next item is in the blue DCA page 389. It is Item Number 1698, and deals with paragraph 516.3. It is in the red DCA page 1079, paragraph 516.3 and it is Petition 21340. The committee voted concurrence as amended, 82 to 12. And this deals with working with ordained and diaconal ministers and commission personnel. Bill Crouch will bring that to you.

WILLIAM CROUCH (North Texas): As you can see, the item is Calendar Item 1698, blue DCA, 389. The petition in the red DCA at 1079, paragraph 516, deals with the duties of bishop. It is not a part of the ministry study, and the rationale is as follows. There are small items being considered here. One is to move home missionaries up into a place that we think is more appropriate, in the place where it belongs in the sequence.

Appointments "Read" or "Announced" by Bishops?

The other is to remind you there will be a continuation of diaconal ministers who need to be appointed, and so diaconal ministers are not deleted.

The change that brought the 12 negative votes has to do with the fact that we are changing the phrase from "read" to "announce." That comes from another petition that was brought to us, and we thought that we would like to make both of them and make them consistent.

There's not a great deal of difference between "read" and "announce," but the majority believe that since there is very little difference, and since many bishops have long since abandoned "reading" of the appointments, that we would prefer to bring our legislation into conformity with our practice. The 12 voted, I think, to leave "read" rather than "announce," because they like the more traditional word "read." But, the committee moves concurrence as amended.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, this is before us. Any discussion? Yes?

All right. Microphone 8.

DUANE V. SARAZIN (Minnesota): Duane Sarazin, Minnesota Conference. Just a question, please, Bishop. Are we going to run into any difficulty with the constitutionality or the appropriateness of the word "appointment" as it relates to lay persons in service or any of the other categories, as opposed to a word like assigned?

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, do you want to respond to that?

WILLIAM C. CROUCH (North Texas): All that we have changed is what you can see before you in this petition, and therefore, appointment has to do; we are not adding anything to all of this with respect to the appointment of lay persons in service with the General Board of Global Ministries.

BISHOP TALBERT: In other words, you're saying that the word "lay person" was already there and is not an addition.

CROUCH: Yes.

SARAZIN: Thank you.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. This is before us. Any discussion? Any last words from the committee?

CROUCH: No.

BISHOP TALBERT: Think you're ready for us to vote on it?

CROUCH: Ready.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. This calendar item is before us, Calendar Item 1698. If you are ready to vote, vote when the light appears. [891 approved] All right, the committee is sustained. You voted concurrence. All right.

Ministerial Recruitment of Persons with Disabilities

CROUCH: The next item is Calendar Item 1701 found in the blue book at page 389. Now we would need for you to turn to the white book, page 1483. And here we're looking at paragraph, in the Discipline, 733, having to do with the Conference Board of Ordained Ministry, and it is petition 22094. The right-hand column, the second paragraph there, if you're looking, or the second petition.

The petition asks that we include in the responsibilities of the Board of Ordained Ministry for enlistment for men and women of all races, ethnic origins, inclusive of those with disabilities. We recommended nonconcurrence, and I think that this is before you as a calendar item because of the number of persons who voted against nonconcurrence. We certainly believe that persons with disabilities ought to be welcomed and recruited. We believe that this a category, however, that is different from the others in terms of men and women and ethnic persons; it is covered in other categories; and that we should not imply that this paragraph ought to multiply all the categories in an attempt to be exhaustive of all those that ought to be recruited for ministry. And therefore, we moved, and ask for nonconcurrence.

BISHOP TALBERT: It is before you. Any discussion? I see none. If you will support the committee, you will vote yes; if you do not, you will vote no. Vote when the light appears. [838 approved] All right. You've sustained the committee, and you've voted nonconcurrence. Calendar Item 1701.

SANDRA LUTZ: Bishop, that concludes the items that are available to us for action today.

BISHOP TALBERT: Thank you very much. (applause) I recognize the person here, microphone 8.

JUANITA BASS WRIGHT (Tennessee): I have a question, Bishop, and I'm not sure what we have done. Paragraph 434 in the 1992 Discipline states, "that a deacon is an ordained minister who has been received by the annual conference either as a probationary member or as an associate member and has been ordained deacon." Under the transitional provisions in this white document from the Legislative committee, it says, "a firm procedure for present diaconal members—ministers and associate members and those in candidacy to become ordained deacons." I want to know if we are saying that those who are presently associate members would have their deacon's orders invalidated.

LUTZ: No. People who are currently in positions have options. They may remain where they are and under the 1992 Discipline, or they can transition into the deacon position. Does that answer the question? They have the option of staying where they are. OK?

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, I recognize the gentleman over here. Yes. Goldschmidt.

VICTOR GOLDSCHMIDT (North Indiana): A very simple motion to be sure we don't get into a problem with conflicts. It reads as follows: "Parts of Consent Calendar items in conflict with the actions voted upon by plenary session shall be superceded by the corresponding plenary session action."

BISHOP TALBERT: Is there a second?

GOLDSCHMIDT: What this means, Mr. Bishop, and I can give some examples, but I won't.

BISHOP TALBERT: Let me test this. Don't we have a rule governing what takes precedence?

GOLDSCHMIDT: I've searched for the rule. I've not found it. Even the rule of the two and four courses is more folklore than true.

BISHOP TALBERT: I can't cite the rule, but somewhere I thought we said the item that takes precedence is the one last voted.

GOLDSCHMIDT: Mr. Bishop, in some cases, we may vote on the Consent Calendar after it was already listed, and we had an action in plenary that contradicted what was in the Consent Calendar but not yet approved as a Consent Calendar. So the definition of what was last voted becomes a little bit delicate.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, let me see.

LUTZ: I know that the issues of language are confusing in this, but we were told that any floor action takes precedence over a Consent Calendar item.

BISHOP TALBERT: That's what I thought—we had a rule saying that.

GOLDSCHMIDT: I was not only addressing that issue. I'd like to see that rule, but irrespective of that, what I'm saying is tomorrow we may be approving a Consent Calendar which was listed today. But we may have voted since it was listing another item that contradicted what is in the Consent Calendar and not yet approved.

BISHOP TALBERT: Victor, I would suggest, if you wouldn't mind doing it, would you give the people a chance to find that rule, and then, if that is not satisfactory, then we will see if your motion is one that we can deal with.

GOLDSCHMIDT: Sure. Fair enough. Thank you.

BISHOP TALBERT: Thank you. Let's move then...

GOLDSCHMIDT: I see two bishops at work, and it's a pleasure to see that.

[laughter]

BISHOP TALBERT: I want to move to the other calendar items if you'll let me. Yes, what do you want. We're not at the privilege place, we got business before us tonight.

RANDALL F. ROBINSON (Central Illinois) Bishop, I have a question regarding the bound services of ordination of deacons and elders that appear in our 1992 Book of Worship. It seems to me that with the new understanding of ministry that we have adopted tonight, we're going to need new services of commissioning and ordination. And I'd like to know if the legislative committee provided for that to happen.

BISHOP TALBERT: Isn't something coming on that, I believe?

SANDRA W. LUTZ: Yes, there is a reference to the Board of Discipleship.

BISHOP TALBERT: There is something coming on that. All right, I'm ready for the next calendar item, Financial Administration, I believe.

Shared Salary Plan

CASHAR EVANS (North Carolina): Page 387 of the blue DCA, Calendar Item 1683, page 362 of the red DCA, right column, third of the way down, Petition 20499. Subject, shared salary plan option. Committee recommendation, nonconcurrency, vote 62 for, 16 against, 2 abstentions. I would move the committee's recommendation.

BISHOP TALBERT: It is before us, any discussion? Yes, in the rear. Microphone 11.

SUE C. JARRETT (West Virginia): I stand to speak against the vote of nonconcurrency. Often we form opinions based primarily on our own frames of reference. This leads us not only to myopic vision, but limited understanding. I ask you to consider the small-membership churches across this land and this globe. This petition only asks for permission for each annual conference to decide whether or not it wishes to consider and practice appointment-making and salary-setting in more flexible consultative ways.

To vote against nonconcurrency will strengthen churches and the church, offering to those thousands of churches, with little resources and even less voice in this great connection of ours, an opportunity to explore clustering of appointments and other configurations, which will offer hope and new life to churches, by making possible strong effective informed leadership, which the church at all levels so desperately needs.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. Any further discussion of this calendar item? Yes, right in front here. Go to microphone 9.

SUSAN DAVIES, (Nebraska): I, too, would like to speak against the committee's recommendation. I served on the subcommittee that considered this item. And we put forth a substitution that incorporated several of the items that came from the different conferences, cabinets, rural fellowship, and others to address this issue.

And I would like us to seriously consider the ways in which we might be flexible at this time, that we might put this back into the opportunity of the conference to look at its own situation. And that this is certainly a time when our conference is looking at flexibility and things that are close to each individual setting's appropriateness. We could present at this time a motion for substitution of the item that we presented in our subcommittee and was supported by that subcommittee. If that's proper, I would do so.

BISHOP TALBERT: Well, you've spoken against this one, I think you need to make your motion before you speak. So I'll have to move on to the next person. Microphone 14.

DONALD R. HOUSE (Texas): I was on that subcommittee, as well, and we discussed the merits of this. The points that came out of our discussion really mainly were two. One is that we would like to retain the rights of the local church to determine the compensation of the minister. There are several reasons behind that, the main one is, we believe that the local church is in the standing that is best to determine that compensation.

The second point is that we don't believe that the conference is in a position to make that determination of any kind of salary scale. If you look at the resolution it indicates that the salary scale could be determined on the basis of the number of dependents, the amount of education, cost of living, and a variety of other factors.

These things, we don't believe, necessarily might be related to the compensation of the minister. We believe that in the judgment of the local church those things that are most important to the church should be weighed, and not those things that might appear on a resume. So we are urging you to accept the recommendation of the committee, which is non-concurrence.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, thank you. Microphone 7.

JEAN-PIERRE DUNCAN (Wyoming): I'd like to ask a question, and then speak against nonconcurrency, if I may. The question is, is this petition that we're dealing with now the only chance that we will get to discuss shared salary of plenary?

BISHOP TALBERT: Can you answer that?

EVANS JR. (North Carolina): I don't have any others to discuss at this evening.

DUNCAN: Well, then, I might take this opportunity to speak against non-concurrence. The issue of shared salary has been before the General Conference since 1972. It has been a part of our polity prior to that time, and a significant number of our annual conferences have been in support of such a plan. It is high time that we would give our annual conferences the option to care for making appointments to churches based, not upon salary structures, but rather upon the quality of the pastoral care needed for a particular church.

Too many times, churches which need pastors with particular skills, are not able to have such persons appointed to them because those persons are considered to be a little higher on the salary scale. Allowing annual conferences the option of standardizing salaries appropriately could enable conferences to care for such churches.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. Are you ready? OK, over here. Number 4.

CHARLES E. LIPPSE (Holston): I'd like to speak in support of non-concurrence. It's a similar argument to the other one put forward, but I'd like to underscore even more that it is the Charge Conference that sets the salary, and we've talked about connection. That's when the superintendent is present. I think some similarities to the issue that was before us at the last General Conference when we, as a General Conference, initially made health care mandatory for all the annual conferences.

Now, we're about to suggest that the annual conference can make mandatory the salary of the pastor. I believe that that's moving in the wrong direction, and the power of the Charge Conference in the local church needs to be protected.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. Are we ready? We have three and three here now, and according to your rules, I think we need to turn to the committee. Is there something other than debate? All right, a motion to substitute. Let's try. I'm recognizing microphone 8.

Summary of Shared Salary

THOMAS R. BOLLER (Yellowstone): I want you to know, there's nobody in this room more exhausted than I am tonight. But I'm not sure that this issue is going to come up again. I move to substitute petition 20499 with the following, beginning of paragraph 722 would read, "equitable commission/shared salary option plan therefore shall be in each annual conference, an equitable compensation plan or a shared salary plan."

The paragraph then will continue as it exists adding a new sub-paragraph after 11, and begin with 12. You can turn on page 362 in your red DCA and that, where it says 12.a you would strike the "a" and it would read, "an annual conference by two-thirds majority vote at any regular session may adopt a shared salary plan for the support of its active itinerant clergy and local pastors."

Then, point "b" would become "a." It would read, "the shared salary plan may allow for differences in years of service, educational levels, and other variables such as actual differences in living costs, as the annual conference may approve."

"C" would become "b." "The amounts due from the pastoral charges shall be paid to a conference treasury established for that purpose, and all shared salaries due shall be paid from that treasury. The shared salary provided for each clergy under the plan shall constitute his/her entire cash compensation."

Point "d" becomes "c," and would read, "The Equitable Salary Commission shall administer the shared salary plan and the conference treasurer/director of administrative services shall be responsible for collecting and dispersing the funds."

Point "e" would become "d," "An annual conference which has elected to pay its salaries according to a shared salary plan as herein provided, may terminate the plan by a two-thirds majority vote of the annual conference at any regular session."

Point "f" would become "e," and it would read, "If adopted by an annual conference, this plan would constitute an exception to the authority granted in paragraphs 248.13, 257.3.f, 722.1 through 722.11, and the comparably related divisions of paragraph 270.2.f.4."

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, is that seconded. It is seconded. Anything further you want to say on it?

BOLLER: Bishop, there have, in the subcommittee, sub-subcommittee that we worked on this particular reading of this proposal, we dealt with about 15 different petitions on shared salaries. The committee worked hard to take the best out of each of those, to try to use language that would be faithful with the needs of annual conferences. We consulted with representatives from the General Board of Pensions to check and see if the language would be such that it could be workable within the pension plans, and we tried to give as much leniency and openness to the proposal that annual conferences would have a great deal of control over the design; it would take two-thirds vote for them to adopt it, and two-thirds vote for them to end it. It seems to me that, if we have that many folks that would like to try it, we don't have to make it mandatory, but we can sure give them permission to try.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. This is before us. Right here. Microphone 7.

MARVIN H. MCCALLUM (Detroit): Bishop, on a similar matter, yesterday, we moved that this be referred until we could have it printed in the DCA. I would move the same for this, and if it's in order to make a second motion, I would move that we close debate on all that's before us.

BISHOP TALBERT: You can't do the second part. If you're going to refer this, it takes with this, until this whole matter is dealt with. All right, we'll take your first one, and if the body refers it, then that's it on this one until it's printed, and then it comes back before the body. Is that your motion, to refer it?

MCCALLUM (Detroit): Yes sir.

BISHOP TALBERT: Is that seconded? Yes. On the referral. It's too late to get it in tomorrow's DCA, you need to understand that. All right. Number 8.

JERRY J. SMITH (Southwest Texas): Bishop, I speak against referral. I was on the legislative committee, and I voted for this proposal that my friend, Tom, just brought. It was defeated. It seems to me strange for us to try to do the work of a legislative committee on this floor. If we could not get it past the legislative committee, we ought to vote nonconcurrency. That's the reason I'm against referral. I think we ought to handle the thing tonight.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, the motion of reference is before us. Yes, on the reference. When I get this one done, I want us to get out of here. All right, number 9.

SUSAN P. DAVIES (Nebraska): Bishop, I understand what Jerry is saying about this. However, I think we're in a different situation since both the Legislative Committee on Local Church and also on Conferences have put forth legislation that would support this idea of the shared salary plan. So I think it is worthy of the full body considering it.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, over here. Microphone 5.

AL GWINN (Kentucky): Bishop, I move that we suspend Rule 36 in order that we might vote on all that is before us.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, that motion is before you. If you would cut off debate, that's what that rule is, I believe, you would vote "yes." If you would not, vote "no." Vote when the light appears. [817 approved]

You're ready to cut off debate, so what's before us is the substitute, no, the referral. Sorry. The referral. If you will vote to refer this, vote "yes;" if not, vote "no." Vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 290; no, 621] Substitute does not prevail.

What's before us now is Item 1683. If you will support it, you'll vote yes; if you do not, vote no. Vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 676; no, 226] All right, you've sustained the committee, and you have voted nonconcurrency.

This is it for calendar items. We turn now to the secretary to do a couple things. First of all, I want her to read the rule regarding the Goldschmidt request earlier. Could you share that with us, secretary?

CAROLYN MARSHALL: In the rules of the conference, VIII.A.2.b. reads: "To assure that when a calendar item approved on the Consent Calendar or under an omnibus vote is found to be in conflict with parts of another calendar item discussed and voted upon at a plenary session, the item discussed and voted shall prevail."

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, I think that takes care of that. All right. We're ready now for the Committee on Presiding Officers and the Committee on Agenda and Calendar.

C. REX BEVINS (Nebraska): Bishop and members of the conference, the presiding officers for Thursday, April 25th are as follows: Thursday morning, Bishop Joseph Yeakel of the Washington Area;

Thursday afternoon, Bishop William Oden of the Louisiana Area; Thursday evening, Bishop C.P. Minnick of the Raleigh Area.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right. Calendar and Agenda.

Planned Phone Call to Bishop Nduricimpa Announced

SARAH S. MILLER (Wyoming): Thank you, Bishop. When we first came to conference, we heard about Bishop Alfred Nduricimpa, who was denied a visa to come and join us. He's in Burundi. We've arranged for a telephone conversation with him 10 minutes tomorrow, right after worship. Hope you'll all be here and in your places for that. Also tomorrow morning, we'll consider the General Board of Global Ministries Site Location.

In the afternoon, there'll be presentations by the directors of the General Council on Finance and Administration, followed by presentation of the budget. We'll elect members of the University Senate, and alternates for the Judicial Council, and many more calendar items. We have a graph to show us how far we are now. We're coming along.

BISHOP TALBERT: All right, I saw this card. What is it now? We've finished our business for tonight. What is your privilege? Number 2.

KEITH M. LADD (Eastern Pennsylvania): We know that friends of Charles Yrigoyen will be interested in knowing and saddened to hear that Chuck has had to leave this conference. Chuck's son is gravely ill, and has been taken back to the hospital with an undiagnosed illness. We know that you will hold Chuck, his son, and Jean in your prayers as they go through this trying time.

BISHOP TALBERT: Thank you very much. All right, announcements. Yes, what is this? Over here. Number 5.

WILLIAM LUX (Iowa): Bishop, as we look at those tired, haggard faces staring at the words concessions, men and women, the only things that we aspire to in the episcopacy, are those cool pitchers of water that we don't have access to. I'd recommend, Bishop, that we be able to bring bottles of water tomorrow and place them on the floor, if we can't place them on the tables. And if we can't do that, hide your pitchers of water up there, so we can't see them. [laughter, applause]

BISHOP TALBERT: They heard you. Secretary.

MARSHALL: Perhaps the place to start with announcements tonight would be to reply to that one. I have been advised that, as a result of a note which has been passed up here during the evening about water, that we had planned to have water stations available; they were to have been set up today, and obviously, that did not happen. At this point, they're promising us that they will be set up tomorrow.

Now for a couple of announcements of committees that need to meet yet tonight. I note your enthusiasm. [laughter] The General and Judicial Administration Committee must meet briefly this evening. They will meet in room A207, A207 for the General and Judicial Administration legislative committee.

One other meeting, Ordained and Diaconal Ministry leadership team will meet immediately following adjournment in room A106. Bishop, that completes the announcements.

All right, Bishop Kelly, will you come now and dismiss us for the evening.

BISHOP LEONTINE T.C. KELLY: [prayer]

BISHOP TALBERT: Thank you. Until tomorrow.

Thursday Morning April 25, 1996

Bishop Joseph H. Yeakel, presiding

(song)

BISHOP YEAKEL: Now will you please be seated, and as I indicated earlier, we will extend this period of time together and reach out across the miles to Nairobi where Bishop Alfred Nduricimpa is on the line. And I've asked Bishop Solomon to lead us in that conversation with Bishop Nduricimpa, and if some of you may wish to raise a question with the bishop, would you go to a microphone and I'll try to recognize you at the appropriate time. If we don't have time you'll understand, but at least we'd be prepared. Bishop Solomon.

Telephone Conversation with Bishop Nduricimpa

BISHOP SOLOMON: Thank you Bishop Yeakel. Alfred, I'm going to take a moment to context this conversation for our delegates. To The United Methodist Church—those who are on this platform—are a council, but to those of us who are bishops, this our congregation. When we were elected bishops, our church membership was transferred from our home annual conference to the council. We left one home to enter another one. Think of your own congregation this morning where you share life and love and leadership, where you hurt and hope and do so in community. Then you will now understand when I say to Alfred, we long to be with you that our joy may be complete. Alfred, we greet you in the name of the blessed Lord and Savior Jesus Christ and ask you now to share a word of greeting with this 1996 General Conference.

BISHOP NDORICIMPA: Thank you very much. On behalf of Burundi Annual Conference of Eastern and Central Africa, I want to express my deep appreciation for this opportunity to be able to greet the 1996 General Conference. Also, I want to take this opportunity to report on the critical condition in Burundi where the world keeps on going on. The entire country of Burundi has been affected whether it be the Hutus or the Tutsi are being forced to leave their homes and escape to the neighboring countries each day. People are leaving Burundi in great number. However, I want to express my deep appreciation to all those countries who are hosting these refugees who are hopeless. I'm most grateful to the churches in those countries where the refugees are going. It is there where there is special caring. It is my prayer that they will continue to do this.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Alfred, would you say a further word about the refugee situation as it now is?

BISHOP NDORICIMPA: It is bad, and they know that refugees leave their own place without notice. When they leave, they leave without food, no clothing, nothing, so in the places where they are going, you understand that they are suffering, no food, no clothes, no medicine. They are just suffering.

Role of Church in Burundi

BISHOP SOLOMON: What is the church doing to address the situation of the refugees?

BISHOP NDORICIMPA: What the church is doing is exactly what I'm doing. We just keep informing brothers and sisters across the world, if they could come to the assistance of the refugees in the countries where they are. And here I want to emphasize that I'm not talking only about the Burundi refugees, but I'm talking about the refugees in general in the region.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Alfred, there are persons gathered here at this General Conference who may wish to ask you a question, and I'm going to ask Bishop Yeakel to lead us in a few moments of conversation.

BISHOP NDORICIMPA: Thank you. I am ready to answer any question.

BISHOP YEAKEL: There's a woman at microphone 8, please.

L. CECILE ADAMS (Detroit): Hello, Bishop Nduricimpa. Cecile Adams from Detroit.

BISHOP NDORICIMPA: Hello! Nice to hear your voice.

ADAMS: It's nice to talk with you. You and I have had conversations about the refugee children and youth in Kenya. Would you talk with us a little bit about the situation with those children and youth who were refugees in Kenya?

BISHOP NDORICIMPA: The refugees children in Kenya and the young people in Kenya as well as those young students who are at the university, they are here. They are more cared because, I want to express my deep appreciation to the General Board of Global Ministries, because they have been sending money to us to assist those children, and not only those children in Kenya, but also in Burundi.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Thank you, microphone 9, please.

J. LAVON KINCAID (Pittsburgh): We were together in August of last year, and I enjoyed our time together, and our prayers are with you. My question specifically is: Is there any word from you regarding the vision and goals for the Methodist Church in Uganda to become a conference with Rev. Solomon Mawanda? Can you share with us today regarding that question?

BISHOP NDORICIMPA: Yes, I am happy to answer the question. You know, this is not a question of which is left to me. In order to become an annual conference, the Uganda District will have to come from the decision of the whole annual conference if it has fulfilled all the requirements which is required any district in the country to become first a provisional annual conference, then after becoming provisional annual conference, to become full annual conference. We have to go through the proper channels of the committees.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Thank you. Let me go to microphone 7.

HORST KERSHER (German Southwest): Dear Bishop Alfred Nduricimpa, we are in a special relationship with your Burundi Annual Conference. Our local congregations think of the Methodist people in Burundi every Sunday in their worship. However, we want to do more for your people. Please tell us what can we do in addition to our prayers to bring relief to those who are suffering?

BISHOP NDORICIMPA: Let me express my deep appreciation to The United Methodist Church in Germany for the relationship we have several of the years and for being sister annual conference. What you can do? You can send assistance to help the children in Kenya, young people in Kenya, refugees, as well the children who are orphans, who are in Burundi or in Tanzania or in Zaire. The need is enormous.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Thank you, number 11, please.

LAMONT COX (Liberia): Thank you very much, Bishop. Good morning, Bishop.

BISHOP NDORICIMPA: Good morning.

COX: I would like to find out from you, how would you relate the problems of your country to what is happening in Liberia now, and do you feel as to whether, despite what Burundi has undergone over the last few years, is the church still alive and is it growing, and what may account for this? Thank you.

Causes of Strife in Burundi

BISHOP NDORICIMPA: Thank you very much. I may have an unhappy answer to your question. Number one, the problem of Burundi, how it is related to the problem in Liberia, I want to tell you, in one way there is some kind of difference. Because Burundi problem, is mainly those people who have been in power, the minority group who is in power, particularly the military, the army who's been in power for so long, so they don't want civilians to come in power. The military in Burundi wants to keep controlling. Then the civilians want say that now enough is enough for the army to keep controlling us for 35 years. Civilians feel that they want to come in control through elections—popular elections, democratic—popular elections of the people. But the army wants to come in power by guns. So in Liberia, I don't know exactly. It would be different issue, but what I want to tell you all these problems in Africa, if you are asking me if they are related, yes, in one way there is someone behind all these problems in Africa. Why? These people in Liberia or Burundi are not, they don't manufacture guns. Who are supplying these arms to the Liberians or Burundians? This is a question mark.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Thank you. We have one more question, and then Bishop Solomon will talk with you, Alfred. At microphone 6.

J. FAY CLEVELAND (Western New York): Bishop Nduricimpa, sister conference to Burundi, asking you, sir, if you could give a word about the pastors and churches where we have been so interested and supportive of developing the ministry. Is there any word on the pastors and churches in Burundi?

Status of Pastors in Burundi

BISHOP NDORICIMPA: Yes, I have a word on that. Thank you for I hear your voice. As you know, as I said that the war is still going on some places such as Etega or Kayero or Moreje, you know the place? Moreje is doing very well. Kayero is doing very well. Etega—not very well because the armies killing people day by day. For the last two weeks, I don't have news about my pastors in Etega, but in Kayero, Moreje the churches are doing very well. And I want to answer you this question which I even forgotten to answer. The previous person who asked me the question from Liberia. You know the church belongs to God, and God always has grace for people even if someone may want destroy the people, God is there to protect them.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Alfred, we rejoice that we have this privilege of conversation with you this morning. Two concluding comments: one, would you share a brief word as to how your family is doing.

BISHOP NDORICIMPA: The family is doing very well. The pastors who are with me in Kenya are doing very well. The lay people who are with me in Kenya are doing very well.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Alfred, an additional word, as a citizen of the United States, I want to express to you profound apology for the unwillingness of the government of the United States to give you a visa that you could be here in your congregation this morning. And I'm going to ask, not only that we pray for you, but that we do that even in this moment. And I'm going to ask those who are gathered here to take the hand of someone who is near to you, as I share this prayer for you.

Eternal God, whose grace and love know no limitations of time and space, and yet bring a hollowing to all time and space, uphold our brother Alfred and his family in the strength of faith and hope and love, that they may serve faithfully the calling to which you, oh God, have called them. And Alfred, we pray that the Lord will watch between you and all of us as we are physically absent one from another as we are united in the strong bonds of Jesus Christ. May God bless you richly, Alfred and your family, Amen.

BISHOP YEAKEL: And Amen. Go in peace, Alfred. Thank you very much for sharing this time together. I'm sure you would want to sing as we are led, the chorus, and have the opportunity of regathering for the work of the day.

[hymn]

BISHOP YEAKEL: Before we begin our work, let me say thanks to all who led us this morning in the time of worship, to our preacher Bishop Boulton, to the Christ Church of the Deaf

Choir from Baltimore, Md., celebrating 100 plus years of ministry to the deaf community in that city. [applause]

And it would be most appropriate that we continue in the time of discernment now. So with this experience and this worship together, let us turn to each other, seeking the answers to the questions, "What is it that God has placed upon our hearts for this day, and what is it that we believe God wants of us this day." Let us discern together. [conversation] Now let us share in our time of intercessory prayer.

[The Lord's Prayer]

BISHOP YEAKEL: Let me recognize Jim Lawson at microphone 4.

JAMES LAWSON (California-Pacific): Bishop Yeakel, I rise to make a motion of personal privilege. I move that the historic addresses of Pastor William Quick and Mrs. Hillary Clinton be published in the DCA. [applause]

BISHOP YEAKEL: I think you have a second and a vote on that, and we will so do. We turn now for the Consent Calendar. OK Gerry Reist and Sarah Miller.

FITZGERALD REIST: Good morning. The calendar has some removals this morning. They are found on page 584. And there are some changes that I would ask you to make in your copies of the DCA. There is an additional removal, 1806, it's not actually a removal, it's a move from one calendar category to another. It was incorrectly recorded as nondisciplinary which put it in B06; it should have been in A05. Sorry, correct that, it was B05 and should have been in A05. They are both consent but it is a disciplinary item.

Then the Items 1900 and 1957 should have been added to A06; they were incorrectly recorded as C05. They should have been A06. They are consent items.

If you'll turn on page 543, Consent Calendar...I'm sorry. We had a late night last night and I'm afraid I have gotten myself a little confused. Consent Calendar A05 which begins on 445, has the correction of 1561, and includes the item 1806 that was on the Consent Calendar B05. Those are the only changes in Consent Calendar A05.

*Consent Calendars A05, B05, C05
Adopted*

BISHOP YEAKEL: Thank you. Now, Sarah Miller.

SARAH MILLER: Bishop, I move the adoption of Consent Calendar A05 with the additions and changes noted.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right, the motion is to adopt. Please vote when the light appears. [784 approved] And the motion is adopted, the calendar is adopted.

REIST: The only other changes to Consent Calendar B05 are those that already noted in the calendar—the inclusion of 1410 and 1582.

BISHOP YEAKEL: And that begins on page 459.

MILLER: Bishop, I move the adoption of Consent Calendar B05 as explained.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right, it is before you. Vote when the light appears. [752 approved] And B05 is adopted.

REIST: Consent Calendar C05 on page 464 is before you. There are no changes.

MILLER: Bishop, I move the adoption of Consent Calendar C05.

BISHOP YEAKEL: This is properly before you. Please vote when the light appears. [794 approved] And C05 is adopted. That brings our Consent Calendar in line?

REIST: Yes. Bishop, I'm not sure if I referred the delegates to page 584 for the removals; I thought I did, but I am not quite sure that I did lift those up.

BISHOP YEAKEL: You did refer us to that page.

REIST: Thank you.

BISHOP YEAKEL: We understand that they get to be long nights and we thank all of you for the work you are doing for us to facilitate our work here. Thank you very much. [applause]

BISHOP YEAKEL: I have been asked to remind you or to tell you that there are now water stations where the refreshments are in the surrounding areas of the bar of the conference, so if you need a glass of water you will know where to get it.

Now we are getting behind time in our work together. I see a number of folks who want special privilege. Microphone 10—we'll try you. Please make it quick, and if you will go over to microphone 7, I will call you in a moment and...with you.

JAMIE POTTER-MILLER (Western Pennsylvania): The headlines all over the papers this morning in Denver and other places proclaim to us that the Methodists have welcomed the First Lady and that the Methodists have taken certain actions. As the elder in the Johnstown District, privileged to share in supervising with the disciples of Jesus Christ in our part of Western Pennsylvania, I am blessed to be a part of the Wesleyan family. And, as Bishop Milhouse reminded us yesterday, I am deeply indebted to others in our lineage.

In this year of the 50th anniversary of the event that was held, by the way, in historic First Church in my hometown of Johnstown—the event that created the EUB Church—let us remember that not only those who, like myself, stood when Bishop Milhouse invited us, but all of us in The United Methodist Church have spiritual roots in the family trees of Albright, Otterbein, and Boehm. I hope that many of you will come to the party that we are planning in Johnstown this next November—it's going to be some party. And I hope that you will remember that we are all United Methodists. And I trust that with that on page 521 of today's DCA we will correct the word Johannesburg, Pa., and make it Johnstown, Pa. Thank you.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Thank you. Now microphone 7.

SHARIE MORGAN (North Indiana): I move that in a spirit of honesty and openness, the Council of Bishops respond to the morale and the legislative authority of the General Conference. If I could have a second, I'll speak to the motion.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Would you be kind enough to tell me what you mean by the council respond? What is your desire of response?

MORGAN: I would like to have a response from the Council of Bishops to take home to our local churches.

BISHOP YEAKEL: I believe the council's response was printed in the DCA several days ago.

MORGAN: But we would like to have a response to the vote that was taken yesterday.

BISHOP YEAKEL: I don't understand your question. What vote are you referring to yesterday?

MORGAN: The votes that were taken yesterday during the session when we voted on the language of homosexuality in our Discipline.

BISHOP YEAKEL: I think the council is on record. I believe the word was "collectively and individually to uphold the actions of the General Conference." And I think that response is already before you.

MORGAN: Excuse me, sir, but we are receiving many phone calls from local churches. There is a great deal of confusion at home because of reports in the newspapers. We as lay delegates and perhaps some clergy delegates, we feel that we need to take a strong, concise statement from our Council of Bishops...

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right, let me interrupt you. Bishop White, Woodie White, are you present?

He is not present. I believe if he came to the platform and would make a statement, it would be to say that we have given you a precise response to the question you're raising.

MORGAN: Sir, that response was a response in response to the message given by 15 bishops. Since then other things have happened.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Ma'am, I really believe that you're out of order at this time. The council is not individually accountable to this particular part of the church. If it is a question of our personal accountability, it would be to the jurisdictional conferences. As a council, we have tried to speak in regard to that particular situation and to all of the surrounding concerns that have come forth, and I think that's the only answer I can give at this time. And I believe that is the correct answer.

MORGAN: Okay, I did receive a second, I'm not real familiar...

BISHOP YEAKEL: Well, I'm ruling your motion out of order at this time. Microphone 12. Microphone 12, please. Yes, you're going to come forward to number seven?

Publishing Makes Offer on Hispanic Hymnal

VERGIL L. DAUGHTERY (South Georgia): As a point of personal privilege, I wish to call to the attention of the General Conference an opportunity for mission related to a motion adopted on last Monday evening. The opportunity for mission appears on page 434 of the Daily Christian Advocate in an article entitled, "United Methodist Publishing House President Responds With a Mission Opportunity." Neil Alexander, the president and publisher of the United Methodist Publishing House, is offering to give one copy of the new Spanish hymnal at no charge to the United Methodist Hispanic Ministries when a delegate to the General Conference purchases one of the new Spanish hymnals. Delegates who wish to purchase and give a new Spanish hymnal for use in the mission and ministries of the United Methodist Hispanic Ministries will have their gift matched by a free gift of a Spanish hymnal from the United Methodist Publishing House. Distribution of these gifts of hymnals will be directed by the Committee on Hispanic Ministries. I know that each of the bishops on the stage, including my own bishop, Richard Looney, will want to lead the way in giving two of these hymnals. (laughter)

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right, thank you very much, I think we have the point. Will the chair of the committee, the calendar—no General and Jurisdictional Administration—we must go to business. Will you come, please, and orient us to the business at hand.

DAVID SEVERE (Oklahoma): Bishop, I believe we are to deal, are we not, with the site selection?

BISHOP YEAKEL: Yes we are.

SEVERE: All right. And, I believe the first thing is the report by Dr. Messer on the site selection committee. The delegates will note that the item was non-consented in the Legislative committee, and that appeared on the consent calendar and has now been approved by that process. But the report has not yet been made, and Dr. Messer is here to make that.

History of the Site Selection Committee

DONALD E. MESSER (Rocky Mountain): We in Denver are delighted that the weather has cooperated, and we hope you like our Rocky Mountain springtime. We hope that this will also be a day of renewal and joy for our conference as we deal with the issue which has perplexed and troubled our church for some years. God is calling us in many directions, and I can assure you that four years ago I never expected to be called to deliver this particular report. But we respond to the call of our bishops and our leaders of our church, and we do the task that is presented to us in as open and as honest and as fair and as firm a fashion as possible.

The 1988 General Conference established a task force to study the feasibility of relocating the General Board of Global Ministries. That report was presented to us at the 1992 General Conference in which that task force by a divided vote of nine to four recommended that it was feasible to relocate the General Board of Global Ministries. A key portion of that report, prepared by Price Waterhouse, suggested a relocation was feasible, and I quote, "Further study and analysis are warranted." If you will turn in your red books to page 683, you will find there a complete report from the 1996 Site Selection Task Force.

The 1992 General Conference received the report from the task force to study the feasibility of relocating the General Board of Global Ministries. Those familiar with that debate will know that it was contentious and close at many points. The report was debated in its entirety, and it was the determination of this General Conference to amend the report's recommendations in three important ways. Number one, there was a motion which passed on this floor which changed one fundamental recommendation of that report. The original recommendation was the task force would have responsibility to have completed the relocation move already by this time, or at least to have worked out all the financing and details. The 1992 General Conference determined in its wisdom, however, that this was not the proper way to proceed, and that a report should be given to this '96 General Conference giving in detail a site, plans for such a location, and all funding sources and aspects.

A second motion was made and passed overwhelmingly by a vote of 721 to 238 that three members of the task force should be representative of the central conferences. They had not been a part of that deliberation, and the location of the General Board of Global Ministries is very, very important to members of the central conferences. And, therefore, the task force was expanded to include three members of the central conferences. And finally, by motion of this body a third amendment was inserted which insured that one of the 13 persons be a youth delegate or representative.

The 1992 General Conference then, after these recommendations were amended, voted by a very close margin of 485 to 470 that they approved the conclusion that it was feasible to move the General Board of Global Ministries from its present location at 475 Riverside Drive in New York City.

Secondly, they directed that the General Board of Global Ministries headquarters be moved from New York City.

Third, they established a Site Selection Task Force which was empowered to select a new site for the General Board of Global Ministries headquarters. The membership was specified, as you will see in the report, to include three persons who previously served on the '92 task force, three persons who would be named by the General Board of Global Ministries, two persons to be named from the General Council on Finance and Administration, two persons from the General Council on Ministries, as well as the three persons from the central conferences. And, you will see that they have served faithfully from Angola, the Philippines, and Sweden.

A relocation coordinator was approved by action of this body so that we would have in detail the best analysis of all possible sites and locations and have a professional firm handling this task.

Finally, they approved, as I have said, that we are to bring to you a site plans for such location and all funding sources and aspects. The body, itself once assembled under the leadership of the Council of Bishops, elected its own officers, and you will see, they are listed. The task force held 14 meetings plus spent over two weeks in five visits to selected cities. Never has it been my privilege to work with a more dedicated group of laity and clergy anywhere. Those 14 meetings plus two weeks of intensive day and night work, had 100 percent participation at every meeting, and ultimately comes before this body with a unanimous report on the site, on the plans for such location, and all funding sources and aspects. Diverse as we were, from around the world and from all the respective agencies and previous task force, we reached a unanimous conclusion after full participation.

Site Selection Committee Budget

The budget was $400,000 plus various travel expenses which were to be paid by the agencies we represented, and contributed staff services. The costs of the study were enormous. As you can see, on page 313 in the red book, the estimated travel expenses costed out to the various agencies—General Board of Global Ministries, General Council on Finance and Administration, General Council on Ministries as of Dec. 31, 1995—was $112,000. Add that to approximately $400,000 and you can see that the cost well exceeded $520,000 thousand, and not counting the hours and days of work of the staff of the General Council of Finance and Administration, General Council on Ministries, and the General Board of Global Ministries.

Qualifications of Reston, VA.

The site selection committee reviewed proposals from 21 firms and interviewed four, and hired the nationally respected firm of Cushman & Wakefield which has offices throughout the United States to do the professional analysis. Critical to our work was to determine the community criteria where we would locate the General Board of Global Ministries. Our task force never considered the possibility of staying in New York City, because this body determined it was to move. But we knew we must find an inclusive cosmopolitan community affording access to a pool of competent workers who are multi-racial, multi-cultural, and international in background with a variety of language skills other than English. In selecting Reston, Va., we found such a location.

Secondly, we had, as our community criteria, good affordable housing of various kinds: apartments, houses for general and executive staff, in neighborhoods that are racially and culturally inclusive and economically integrated. Our task force members visited actual homes and places that were available in the area. Reston, Va., has been an inclusive, integrated community in Virginia from its inception, a planned community.

Third, it must have a good educational system. Fairfax County in Virginia has one of the finest educational systems which can be demonstrated by many many surveys.

Fourth, it had to have an international airport with convenient accessibility to flights to a wide variety of international destinations in Africa, Asia, and Latin America. The value of Reston, Va., is that we got not just one international airport, but we got two international airports, Dulles, which will be just a few miles away, and Baltimore International Airport, which is in close proximity. In addition, National Airport, which serves broadly throughout the United States.

A fifth community criteria was that it must be in a place where there is a large base of United Methodist members and strong local churches. Well, Virginia is the conference with the largest United Methodist membership. There are United Methodist churches in the nearby vicinity of the proposed location, plus it has a beautiful ecumenical witness, with the Interface Center of Reston, where they work together to deal with the homeless in Reston, and to struggle with the social problems of that community.

Sixth, it must have access to consular offices, both to facilitate the securing needed travel documents and communications with governments. No place in the world better than Washington, D.C. for those purposes.

And finally, among those criteria, I lift up the need for having excellent higher educational institutions in the vicinity. And here again we are proud to have a United Methodist University, American University, pledging its cooperation with the General Board of Global Ministries if moved to Reston, Va., and the excellent services and facilities of Wesley Theological Seminary.

Facilities Criteria

The site selection criteria included needed to have work space which was at least equivalent in size to present space. Our facilities in New York City are first-class quality at a low rental cost of just over $13 [per square foot]. We needed to have equivalent facilities. We do not need luxury facilities, but we do not need a warehouse. We just need equivalent first-class facilities to facilitate the mission work of our church throughout the world for Christ's sake.

Therefore, we did detailed analysis of the facilities and determined that we needed approximately 120,000 sq. ft., plus we needed space for the chapel, the cafeteria, elevator, heating, cooling systems, and library, all of which need to be moved. These had to be cost-effective facilities, whether we owned them or leased them, whether they were existing or built to suit. It had to be fully wired and capable for computer network and communication needs. It had to have parking facilities for our persons, and many other of the criteria.

The Site Selection Committee began with a list composed from computer analysis and advice from our professional consultants of 23 cities. We examined those cities in detail, and reached a unanimous decision to narrow the list to five metropolitan areas: Atlanta, Chicago, Dallas, Denver, and Washington D.C., speaking alphabetically. We received appeals from two cities—Kansas City and Indianapolis—and we considered those appeals but decided that these five were still our unanimous decision because they best met the criteria.

Now, I admit that my preference was for Denver, and after you have experienced this city, you will see why. But it was not the prevailing view. It was, based on the best analysis that we could make, that the best two cities to narrow the selection were Chicago and Washington D.C. That was the unanimous decision, and none of the three other cities chose to appeal. Therefore we did an intensive analysis of nearly 20 specific building sites, or buildings existing, in Washington D.C. and Chicago metropolitan areas. And then, by a unanimous decision, we decided, a build-to-suit location in Reston, Va., would best serve the Board of Global Ministries if we are moving from New York City.

Unfortunately, it costs a great deal of money to relocate. That is why this General Conference ordered us to do intensive studies; because you wanted to be in a position where you are not in a predicament in the future; that you would vote with the full facts before you. Unfortunately, the estimated total cost came to nearly $42 million. You will see those major expense categories and estimated amounts: the personnel related costs, the land acquisition, the office building and parking structure, the other developers' costs, and additional tenants costs. You have seen, for example, proposals circulated that things could be done cheaper. I can assure you I have had all proposals analyzed by our professionals of Cushman & Wakefield, and I have discovered exactly where the differences are and prepared to answer those if that question should arise. It is very important that we not be excessive in our cost, but it is extremely urgent that we be realistic about the facts. No contracts have been signed, but the price of the land has been guaranteed and we have an option to buy if that should be the wish of this General Conference. You will note in that report that we said that if there were any revised estimates, we would print those in the final editing of the Daily Christian Advocate as General Conference opened. I, therefore, went to the General Council on Finance and Administration and to our professional consultants over a month ago and said, "Our estimates were as of the end of September. Would you review these figures? Is there a deviation? Is there a way to report that the costs will increase or decrease?" And they—the General Council on Finance and Administration staff, who have worked so faithfully and diligently in this task—reported that these are the best estimates that we can give you at this time.

Necessity of Borrowing Funds

Unfortunately, there are no funds or funding sources presently available in our great church. The General Council On Finance and Administration has explored all the financing options and could be prepared to answer questions if asked. But I can assure you that we do not have those funds. Therefore, it would be necessary to borrow at estimates based on 8 percent over 15 years. The previous task force suggested possibly 8 percent over 20 years. So it could vary. The cost of interest could go up or down. But anyway, these are the best estimates that the General Council on Finance and Administration can provide today. Therefore, we would need to borrow this $42 million. Our belief is that once relocation was completed in 1998, there would be an estimated savings of $850,000 annually. That's the good news. The bad news is that it would cost us $4,935,000 per year from apportioned general church funds over a period of 15 years. This raises the total approximate cost of moving from New York City to our new location proposed, to approximately $72 million. This would raise your apportionments approximately 4 percent annually for the next 15 years. At the conclusion of that 15 year period we would have a valuable asset which would, of course, increase in value over the years, and we would have our own facility for the General Board of Global Ministries much as we do for other agencies of the church.

Summary of Site Selection Proposal

Thus, the recommendations of the task force are as follows: that the General Board of Global Ministries site be on a specific parcel of land in Reston, Virginia; the General Board of Global Ministries be authorized to construct on this site according to the specifications cited in our report; that the General Conference go on record endorsing the principle of the ongoing mission work of the church to the General Board of Global Ministries be continued; and that the costs related to this headquarters relocation are not to be paid from or impact negatively funds intended to support that work; that all expenses will be paid from the apportioned General Fund receipts which you will so generously give; and that the General Board of Global Ministry be authorized to borrow the needed money. The General Board of Global Ministry will have authority for carrying out this General Conference action, but in the event of unforeseen circumstances, General Council on Finance and Administration will be authorized to grant additional amounts from appropriate funds in the church's eight general funds. This relocation process can be completed with a new building and relocation by January 1998, and the staff moved. The best recommendation of all is the final recommendation unanimously agreed to by the task force. And that is that the Site Selection Task Force would be dismissed by this General Conference. Thank you.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Thank you Dr. Messer. [applause] The chair needs to remind the body that this was a commission set up by the General Conference and therefore the report here is appropriate and proper; however, you have already acted upon this report on page 360 of the blue DCA, Calendar Item 1363, which is on the Consent Calendar indicates a unanimous vote in the committee; 88 for, zero against, that nonconcurrence with this proposal was adopted. There is, however, at least one minority report that should come to you at this time and I'll call on the chair, David Severe, to bring this to us.

DAVID SEVERE: Bishop, there was an additional motion or petition, rather, in our committee, and it was acted upon. Harriet Olson, who chaired that subcommittee, will present the majority report and then Patricia Miller and Joe Whittemore will present the minority report on that petition.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right. And the petition is on 360, I'm sorry, 481 number 1996. Is that correct?

Majority Report for Nonconcurrence

HARRIET JANE OLSON (Northern New Jersey): That's correct, Bishop. Calendar Item 1996 appears on page 481 of the blue DCA. The Bishop has already indicated that the house has supported the committee's decision of nonconcurrence with the report of the Site Selection Committee. But as you find this item that we propose for action today, I think it's appropriate to say here what we said in our legislative committee, which is that we appreciate the degree of effort and attention that was given to this effort by the task force. You will see that one of the things that we express in this motion is appreciation for the work of the Site Selection Task Force. We are grateful for the time that they spent with us in our grappling with the report and the recommendation that's brought to you.

However once we had reached the conclusion to non concur with the Site Selection Task Force we had a selection of other petitions in front of us, and we grappled with several issues. One of them was the great concern that has been expressed throughout the church about the proposed move. Another issue is our concern about stewardship, about the financial impact that Dr. Messer has already described. We're also concerned about whether we are in a good position at the present time make decisions about what kind of a facility we need. We had already heard a presentation on the global nature of the church. You have already adopted that.

We will be looking toward multilateral resourcing for mission. Our view in the committee was that we're not sure that we currently know what kind of a facility it is that we will need by the year 2000 or by the year 2004. Finally, we struggled with being faithful to the action of the 1992 conference in expressing a desire to move from New York. And the result of that struggle is the majority report which you see before you at 1996.

The effort here is to recognize the prior work, to take into account the uncertainties about the needs for a facility that will result from the possible restructuring in the global nature of the church report. To recognize the issues raised about the New York location in 1992, and also to address the concerns we have about the expenditure of additional funds. You'll note that the majority report does not call for additional budgeting, refers the issue to a standing joint task force, and does not call for the presentation of a specific recommendation of a site from which to move in the year 2000. The majority of the committee thinks that this is a proper way to resolve this issue, and we recommend it to you today.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right thank you. Now there is a minority report.

Minority Report for Concurrence

PATRICIA MILLER (South Indiana): Bishop, brothers and sisters of General Conferences. We celebrate the wisdom of this and previous General Conferences in providing an avenue for a variety of views to be heard. Our legislative committee, as you've already heard, unanimously rejected the site selection report. It seems reasonable to ask: have we spent four years, $300,000 and produced a recommendation which apparently not one single delegate can support? We believe our church is calling for stewardship and responsibility in our decision making process. Since the site selection report has already been rejected, this conference has not been presented with a proposal that enjoys the support of any segment of the church. Without a viable alternative, this conference has not had the opportunity to make a decision. The minority report would solve this problem. The majority report would delegate the responsibility for reconsideration of this major decision to a committee thus denying the General Conference, in the year 2000, the opportunity to weigh alternatives. Our minority report on the other hand calls for the General Conference to make the final location decision after review by the standing joint committee. We are confident the best answer to this solution can only be made by General Conference itself. Without question there are enormous operating costs savings available from alternative locations thereby making more resources available for mission. We believe our minority report provides a way to evaluate the alternatives and present the best of them to the next General Conference for consideration. We think it is tremendously important for us to accept the responsibility and the opportunity that the church has given us. I would urge your favorable consideration of the minority report.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right thank you. Now you should be on page 481 of the blue book, item 1996. Since there is a majority/minority report we will need to perfect them and then you will vote on them appropriately. First of all, we will go to the majority report which is in the middle column, and to the right column you see the words minority report. We're down to that point. What is in order right now are motions to perfect the majority report and most importantly the two parts of the recommendation numbers one and two on the right hand column. Are there any motions to perfect the majority report. That's all we're doing. We're not making speeches for or against. I see no one going to a microphone. I do see a card now yes. Will you come to microphone 9? Microphone 9.

PHILLIP CONNOLLY (West Ohio): I'd like to move to amend the majority report by dropping the, deleting the words following the word "Discipline" and inserting the following in it's place. "Evaluate the East Point Georgia proposal and adopt that proposal unless proponents of some other suitable location put forth an even less expensive proposal which saves even more funds for mission. If I can have a second I'll speak to it.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Is there a second? I hear a second. You may speak.

East Point Proposal

CONNOLLY: The East Point proposal before us clearly demonstrates that there are other opportunities that we've not adequately examined. I feel that the church deserves a full opportunity to look at the other proposals. This will give us an opportunity to move ahead and not continue to deal with this matter for year after year and allow the General Board of Global Ministries to get on with their work.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right thank you. Be sure the body knows where you are. This is under point number 2 of the majority report the right hand column in the middle. if you count up the one, two three, the fourth, one, two, three, four, the fifth line from the bottom where it says review the suitability of New York. It would turn us toward the East Point situation in Georgia. Is there a speech against this particular amendment? You're speaking against the amendment. I can't see beyond...yes the... right here on the... yes ma'am. This is a speech against this amendment? Yes.

SHARON HOWELL (Kansas East): What is the East Point proposal? It's not before us that I know about.

BISHOP YEAKEL: May we have a brief definition of the East Point proposal? If you will allow the chair, I think the Georgia people around Atlanta did make a specific proposal to the commission and it was visited, or at least it was reviewed. Dr. Messer is that not correct? Is this...This is for information the East Port proposal.

MESSER: The East Point Georgia proposal was never formally presented to the Site Selection Task Force though we visited Atlanta, Georgia and visited with the governor, business officials, and church leaders of Georgia. This proposal has been circulated in this body this week but never formally presented to the site relocation. An analysis, however, has been done by Cushman & Wakefield.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Well I think that might be argument. I think you've described the proposal and thank you for that. That answers your question. Now let me, right here in the center please. Section C which microphone is closest to you? Go to microphone 8 please. We're on the amendment only.

LUCILLE VANZANT (Oklahoma): I stand to speak against this proposal because not long ago I flew to Atlanta. I could have flown to New York City at half the price because from Oklahoma City to Dallas is one leg, and from Dallas to Atlanta was another leg. From Dallas to Atlanta, that last part of the leg, cost more than a round trip ticket to New York City. People, I stand as an example of a person in many instances who sacrifice her own money to get United Methodist meetings wherever they are. And I don't see the need of me spending my mission money trying to make our church look good for some reason never spoken, undercurrent, and never intentioned to be in mission. We can certainly use that money to put a day—care center in every city where there is a Methodist church and help our children become United Methodists for the world. Thank you.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right, speech for and a speech against. In the middle over here of section D. Number 9 please.

Speeches For and Against East Point Amendment

ROBERT SWEET (New England): Bishop, it would be helpful to me, in knowing how to vote on this, if I could have the information that the consulting firm has discovered in looking at the East Point proposal. I wonder if we could ask Dr. Messer to share that information with us.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Well, the reason I stopped him when I did, was that, as I understand the amendment, it would turn this responsibility toward this particular project and make it the comparative for everything else that the committee did, so I didn't think you needed the details about what had already been done. It's whether the body wishes to identify a specific place that would be used then as the rule of thumb for all the rest of the work. I think that's the intent of the amendment; and that's why I didn't proceed in that way. Would the body support me in that, or do you want this information? If you'd support me, would you lift the hand, if not would you lift the hand. I believe I have the support of the body, and we will proceed.

I'm going to take the person off to the left there, giving me green on one side, yes, I know there are multiple cards. Number 9. We're on the amendment only. I had a speech for and a speech against. And which way will you be speaking, sir.

STEPHEN T. DECKARD (North Central New York): I'm speaking against. I believe we have addressed this when we approved the interactive study committee. In point six of that study, we adopted a way to look at this. I'm a former forestry student. And it appears to me that we are spending a lot of time looking at individual trees, when what we need to do is to consider the worldwide forest. I would encourage us to go back to the main motion, to defeat this minority motion, and to give our church a chance to work together, to look at the many options that involve the world, the world community, and what we're really about around the world. Thank you.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right, I need a speech in favor of this motion. I'll take the gentlemen right here next to microphone 8.

AFONSO ZUMO (Western Angola): [translated] Thank you very much. My brothers and sisters, dear bishops, we just heard about the problems in Burundi and problems in many other parts of the world, and we consider these questions. We need to consider the conferences outside the United States. We understand that the relocation implies heavy expenses, and there is the need to help the peoples, who have needs as we have seen. Why do we consider incurring this heavy expense instead of helping the people who need our help? If there is money for the relocation, we should use that money to give help to the people who need it. Thank you very much. Those are my thoughts.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right. Thank you. I have two speeches for and two against. It's time for the break this morning. Is it possible you could decide on this amendment? We will then, in a moment, take the recess, and when we come back we'll continue to perfect the majority report. It's obvious we're not going to get it all done before the break time. If you would be willing to vote, would you lift the hand. If not would you lift the hand. You are willing to vote. If you favor this...

HARRIET J. OLSEN (Northern New Jersey): Bishop, may I speak to this?

BISHOP YEAKEL: Yes, yes you may speak. If you favor the amendment, you would vote "yes," of course, and it would be for setting this potential site in Georgia as the primary and rule of thumb point for the rest. I think, if with that, will you speak please.

OLSEN: Thank you, bishop. The committee did not have the analysis from Cushman & Wakefield. I can't tell you that they've looked at it. I have a list of questions that they've raised about the proposal, but I don't think that that would help the body. What I want to suggest, at this point, is that this amendment would make the majority report much more like the minority. That if you are asking for a specific proposal to be brought back to the conference of 2000, you have an opportunity to do that. It's not our feeling that the...we did receive information about the East Point proposal, but it did not appear to us to be one that we would recommend to you. And we would urge that you reject this amendment.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right. Thank you. We are now ready to vote. If you favor the ... What is your point of order, please? Number 7.

PAUL R. ERVIN JR (North Georgia): I believe we've had two speeches against and no speeches for.

BISHOP YEAKEL: We've had two speeches for and two speeches against, and I asked if the conference was ready to vote, and I had an almost unanimous vote on that, and so I'm moving forward on the amendment only.

ERVIN: We've had two speeches for?

BISHOP YEAKEL: Yes, sir. The original maker of the speech, and there was another speech that I noted in favor of it. That's what my tally has.

ERVIN: Who was that? I'm just asking the question. Could this person stand?

BISHOP YEAKEL: I can't...I don't have the notation on that one, Paul. I have notes here, two for and two against. What's your tally show?

ERVIN: I heard the original speaker and two against. You asked if there was one for...

East Point Defeated

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right, you want another speech? Does the body wish to return and get one more speech in favor? Let me ask you to record this vote. If you wish me to open it up for one more speech, you will vote yes; if not, vote no. Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 335; no, 606] All right, it is lost on the two—to—one vote, so we will proceed now. We've had the speech, and we're ready to vote on the amendment only. The last five lines of item number two, substituting the amendment that would make East Point the primary site unless other sites could be proven more appropriate. Is that a correct, or generally correct restatement of the amendment? Please vote when the light appears. 276 for, 672 against. The amendment is lost. When we come back after the break, we'll continue perfection. Will you give Bishop Fannin your attention, please.

Kelly Clem Introduced, Speaks

BISHOP ROBERT E. FANNIN: Thank you, Bishop Yeakel. General Conference, delegates. On March the 27th, 1994, while preaching in another part of my area in North Alabama, I received a phone call telling me that a tornado had hit one of our churches in the Piedmont area. I later found out that it was the Goshen United Methodist Church. I immediately left for Goshen. When I arrived, I found myself trying to find cover, for another tornado was following the same path. Visiting the hospitals where the injured had been taken, it soon became apparent that the reports were correct. Twenty persons had lost their lives in the sanctuary of Goshen United Methodist Church. As the children were sharing their Palm Sunday pageant, seven children were to be counted among those who had been lost.

The witness of that congregation, their families, and friends caused my faith to be strengthened. At the very center of this shocking drama was the powerful, loving, pastoral witness of their pastor, the Rev. Kelly Clem. Having lost her own four year-old daughter, Hannah, Rev. Clem continued to minister in the midst of her own grief and shock to her people. Her powerful witness to the world shared with all a sign of the ultimate depth of the call of those serving in ministry in The United Methodist Church. Rev. Clem is a delegate to this General Conference. She would like a moment of special privilege to express her feelings surrounding your tremendous response to this tragedy. Because of your love from around the world, families are merging their grief and faith. The Goshen congregation and church are rebuilding. As we said that Easter morning in 1994, we are the Easter people. Rev. Kelly Clem and her husband and partner in ministry, the Rev. Dale Clem. (applause)

KELLY A. CLEM (North Alabama): Bishops, delegates, and guests, I did not ask for this personal privilege to call attention to myself or us. I simply wanted to make a few, a few words that my heart has led me to come up and say. As we've been meeting here these two weeks, several systems of tornadoes and storms have crossed the Midwest and South of the United States, have caused tremendous losses of homes, businesses, some lives, and even some United Methodist churches. I rise and stand before you in earnest plea to each of you and to your churches to respond, either directly to these communities or through the United Methodist Committee on Relief, that healing might be affected and the witness of Christ be furthered.

And I would be remiss if I passed up this opportunity to commend the United Methodist Committee on Relief, Bishop Robert Fannin, Herb Williamson, my district superintendent, individuals like you and thousands of churches—United Methodist Churches—especially, worldwide, who offered my church, community, and family direct assistance in our time of similar loss. Thanks to you, we are on the road to healing. Our new church building should be completed next month, and it will stand proudly as a tremendous witness to your love and support, which has been, and I use the words of Mrs. Clinton yesterday to say, "in the Methodist spirit of compassion and unity. Remember our connection, and please, please keep up your vital witness to a world in need." Thank you. (applause)

BISHOP YEAKEL: Thank you so very much. We will be in recess until five of eleven.

(Break)

BISHOP YEAKEL: Please assemble. Please come back.

STEPHEN KIMBROUGH: Friends, as you return to your seats, if you happen to have the little green book, Global Praise I, turn to page 43. And if you don't, you can follow the screen as the words will be projected for us in this very simple melody of praise to God from the Taizé community of Jacques Berthier in France. "Sing praises all you people, sing praises to the Lord." We'll begin with the Latin words, "Laudate omnes gentes." We'll sing it over and over until we gather. A very simple melody. Some of you may care to sing the parts as we go along. Just fall into that as you may choose.

[song]

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right, folks, may we be in order, please? I have a special privilege at microphone 13 that I think you'll want to hear. I'm sorry, microphone 3. Microphone 3. Will you please give us your attention as you're coming to your seats?

Hillary Clinton Invited to Join

YOUNGSOOK C. KANG (Rocky Mountain): Bishop, I rise to my personal privilege. I'd like to make a motion that we invite First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton to be the honorary chair of the Shared Mission Focus Team of Young People that the 1996 General Conference decided to form. If I have a second, I will speak to it.

BISHOP YEAKEL: We have a second.

KANG: Yesterday we heard the first lady's enlightening message about reaching out to young people. We heard her love and care for young people clear and loud. As a matter of fact, my 14-year-old daughter was here. I know she will do anything if she can get out of school. And if Mrs. Clinton became part of this focus on young people's team, the team will be enriched by her presence and expertise. So I think it is very appropriate to invite her to be part of this team as the honorary chair.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right, the motion is to ask Mrs. Clinton to consider being the honorary chair of the Youth Emphasis in the Church. Can we proceed to vote on this by a show of hands? If you'd adopt this request, if you're in favor, will you lift the hand, please? If not, will you lift the hand? We have acted to extend this invitation. I'd like to recognize microphone 11.

Prayers for Arkansas Tornado Victims

D. MAX WHITFIELD (North Arkansas): Bishop, I rise to a point of special privilege. The delegation from North Arkansas and the people of Arkansas would like to express our deep appreciation for the immediate response by the General Board of Global Ministries, the United Methodist Committee on Relief to the tornadoes that struck Fort Smith and Van Buren this past Sunday.

Over 2,000 families are without homes. Two churches and one parsonage were damaged. Four persons were killed. This Sunday, all the congregations in Arkansas, both in the Little Rock and North Arkansas conferences will take a special offering to assist. It's great to be a part of such a great denomination, which can and does respond to needs so quickly and appropriately. We appreciate all the prayers and expressions of concern, but especially the response that has been made by the church. Thank you.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Thank you, sir. While this is on your minds, and you have a pencil or pen in hand, the UMCOR ADVANCE Number for tornadoes: 901-670-1; the ADVANCE Number again is 901-671-1. Now, let me call on Bishop Galvan for a moment of privilege in the life of the conference.

Introduction of Autonomous Affiliated Churches

BISHOP ELIAS GALVAN: Sisters and brothers in Christ, it is for me a privilege to be able to present to you as the chair of the Autonomous Affiliated Churches, the bishops and presidents of the Autonomous Affiliated Churches, who are here in attendance. Some of them have already left, several are seated right here with us on the platform. Others are seated with you on the floor, and others are still on break, and I don't see them. But I will read their names, and I ask them as I read their names, to please stand. I'm going to ask you to refrain from applause until I am able to read all the names. And there is a good number of them. These are those persons who I am introducing at this time:

Bishop Aldo M. Etchegoyen from the Evangelical Methodist Church of Argentina and president of the Council of Bishops of Latin America; Bishop Nefali Aravena from the Methodist Church of Chile; Bishop Francisco Gustavo Cruz Diaz from the Methodist Church of Cuba; Bishop Adriel de Souza Maia from the Methodist Church of Brazil and president of the College of Bishops in Brazil; Bishop Nelson Latey from the Methodist Church of Brazil; Bishop Paolo Lockmann from the Methodist Church of Brazil; Bishop M. Lucia Leiga de Oliveira from the Methodist Church of Brazil; Bishop Luis F. Palomo from the Evangelical Methodist Church of Costa Rica; Bishop Garcia Alvarez of the Methodist Church of Mexico, (she had to leave); Bishop of the United Church in Ecuador; the president of the Evangelical Methodist Church of Uruguay; Bishop Sundo Kim from the Korean Methodist Church; Bishop H. Doloksaribu from the Methodist Church of Indonesia; Bishop Denis Dutton from the Methodist Church in Malaysia; Bishop Ho Chee Sin from the Methodist Church of Singapore; Bishop U. Maung Than from the Methodist Church of Burma; Bishop Jacob F.S. Ching from the Methodist Church of the Republic of China; Bishop Lincoln Leung Lamhoi, president of the Methodist Church in Hong Kong; the president of the National Methodist Church of Guatemala; Pastor Francisco Mendoza from the New Church Information in Venezuela; the pastor of the New Church Information in Colombia; Dr. William Whadty, president of the Methodist Church of the Caribbean and the Americas; Dr. Brian Beck, president of the Methodist Church in Great Britain; the Rev. James Lowe, general secretary of the Methodist Church in India; Ms. Rita Oliva, executive secretary of the Council of Evangelical Methodist Churches in Latin America (CIE-MAL). [The names of four persons introduced in the above transcription were not received by the DCA. Also, the correct spelling for 13 persons listed above were not received by the DCA.] And last night you also greeted the president of the Evangelical Church of Spain and the General Superintendent of the West African Methodist Church Sierra Leone.

I'm going to ask also the representatives of these churches to please stand where you are. The delegates of the Autonomous Affiliated Churches who are with us. Will you please greet and receive these delegates and bishops of our sister churches? [applause]

BISHOP YEAKEL: Thank you very much. We are privileged to have you with us and sharing with us in these opportunities and responsibilities. Now, I'm required to ask you to be prepared to take a ballot. We're going to take the ballot for the Judicial Council and also for the Senate. Before we do this, I have an embarrassing statement to make and that is that it's been reported to us that at least a few of you have discovered a way to vote twice. By the use of one of the unused keypads. It feels uncomfortable to have to remind you that you are entitled to one keypad and one keypad only. We'll appreciate your cooperation.

Ballot for Laity Member of Judicial Council

Now, if you'll prepare when the appropriate information is on the screen. We're going to go into the laity ballot for the Judicial Council. We must, by the Discipline elect six alternates, lay alternates, and they must have a majority vote. We can't do it on a plurality vote. The names that are available are before you and their key numbers. Will you make note to yourself of the six people that you want to vote for. We will be doing it like we did yesterday. You'll vote for one. That will be tallied in. It will come back on, you'll vote for a second one. Your machine is programmed that you cannot repeat the same number that you had already used. So you need to get in your mind and thinking and probably on your note pad, the numbers of the six persons out of the 13 for whom you'll be voting.

If you have this information ready for yourself, then please, yes? This is a question? All right, go to microphone 5.

MARY VIRGINIA TAYLOR (Holston): I just wondered if you could give us the page where the biographical information was located?

BISHOP YEAKEL: Ah, yes. 194 is the page where the biographical information is located. And thank you for the help on that one. Yes? Is this a question, Ma'am? All right, come to number 3 please. I know this takes time, but it doesn't take nearly the amount of time if we were doing paper ballots and collecting and counting. You know that.

ROBBIE BEAN (Rocky Mountain): I was wondering if we could see the people in person?

BISHOP YEAKEL: No, I don't think we can produce pictures. They're not all here. I don't think that would be fair to those who were properly nominated if they're not present, to just see the others. Thank you very much. I take it you are ready to vote. Question? Yes, number 2.

TOM GRIEB (Louisville): I'm wondering if we could see the tally from the last ballot of both lay and clergy side?

BISHOP YEAKEL: It will take a little time for us to check with the folks in the booth to see whether we have the last laity ballot tally. We're trying to check on that, and you'll just have to wait. I'm sorry, that's not in the computer. We'll have to create one and we'll give it to you the next time. All right. You will vote for one, one of the numbers and you were reminded yesterday if you're in the double number, move quickly from the first key to whatever other key you are using. Vote for one when the light appears. All right, thank you. That will be going into the computer. And when you're ready in the booth if you'll put the screening up again for the second voting. You will vote for one when the light appears. Thank you. When the booth is ready. Put it on the screen. You will vote for one...when the light appears. Yes, thank you. All right this is being put into the computer. Let me remind you that according to my tally, since I'm having a hard time counting, this would be number four on your list. Good, we agree this time. Vote for one when the light appears. All right, and when you're ready in the booth. This will be your fifth ballot. Vote for one when the light appears. And it's complete. Now, one more. Vote for one. This is the sixth. All right, we'll need time to get this altogether and report it later.

*Ballot for Clergy Member
of Judicial Council*

We now go to the clergy side. We also need six alternates. Again, they must have a majority, and we'll have to keep doing it until we accomplish that. So whenever the booth is ready they'll give us the names eligible for election, the nominees. When you're ready, we'll have the names for the next ballot, the clergy ballot. The clergy ballot now listing is before you. There are nine names. Will you make note to yourself of the six numbers that you intend to for in this first ballot. We'll do the one at a time for six times again. Are you ready? No, I'll give you a little more time. Yes, I see a question over here. Go to microphone 6. It's not proper to interrupt the balloting, but before the balloting we're OK. Yes.

BARBARA WILLIAMS RIDDLE (Florida): My question is, is our ballot considered invalid if we vote for less than six.

BISHOP YEAKEL: I'm getting the answer, no. And according to Roberts Rules at least anything six or less is a valid ballot. They tell me the machine is set up for processing it in that fashion. All right? Do you have your 6 numbers now in hand? All right, vote for one when the light appears. [1] Thank you. Vote for one when the light appears. [2] Vote for one when the light appears. [3] This should be number four. Vote for one when the light appears. [4] Vote for one when the light appears. [5] And your final vote. Vote for one when the light appears. [6] All right, thank you. Now if you want to check on the biographies. We're going to vote for the Senate. It's pages 195 and 196.

Pardon? You gave me the wrong reference, 438. You know what it said about Moses; he leaned on his staff and died. They're loading the program—just so that's all they're loading. There are two categories here, one of CEOs and one of other than CEOs. You'll be voting for two persons in each of those categories, so we'll take two votes, and we will have the report of this. This does not require a majority, it requires a plurality. So we'll only have to go through this exercise once, and you'll have the answers of your balloting, so don't plan for any throw away votes. This will count right away.

Ballot for CEOs for University Senate

All right. You've got the screen with the full name before you now. These are chief executive officers of United Methodist institutions. You will need to note, for yourself, two persons in this category. So if you'd write down those numbers so you don't forget them.

Now, are we going to the screen to vote on this or are we going to go to the ... We're going to show you the next, oh, I'm sorry. The signal's off, there are four more names that you should have here to consider. Do we need to go back to the first screen and then the second one? All right, look at this one, and then we'll put the first screen back on. There will be one with everybody in the last name, so that should clue you in, and I'll give you a little chance.

All right. Can you give us...? There's the comprehensive listing, last names only. You have two persons to vote for out of these nine. Are you ready? Vote for one when the light appears. Wait, we're getting a message here. The booth was concerned that you understood this would be a plurality vote. I did explain that and I think we are understanding. It will be the two highest ranking vote getters, whether it is a majority or not. Vote for one when the light appears. All right. The first choice is completed. No, wait a minute. They're allowed to vote for two persons, so there must be a second vote, and then you have to put the two tallies together and work it out. All right.

What our discussion is about is that the booth understood that they only needed one tally. If you take one tally, then you really are only voting for one person, but you have the right to vote for two. So we have to reprogram like the Judicial Council one, so it can be compiled, and then you get the ranking for a plurality. At least that's my understanding, and I guess I have the chance to rule on it, don't I? So that's the way we'll do it. Otherwise, you only choose one person, or get to vote for one person. But we may, will we be late? OK. What we'll do is take, signal's off, you didn't vote for anybody. We're going to go through the exercise, this isn't so long, we'll vote again, you'll do it twice. Can we have the composite screen of all of the names? All right, now. Vote for one when the light appears. We'll do this twice. Vote for one when the light appears. [1] Now, as soon as they're ready, they'll put the screen back up and you'll vote for your second choice. All right, vote for the other one when the light appears. [2] All right, thank you. Now, when the booth is ready, they will put up the screen or screens for the nominees who are non-CEOs of United Methodist institutions, and there are to be two voted on there, so you'll want to check the list appropriately. When you're ready in the booth.

Ballot for Non-CEOs for University Senate

All right, I'm told this is the entire list of nominees, so there is only one screen to look at. You'll need to determine which two you wish to vote for. I take it you have your notations on your pad. We'll put up a different screen when we're ready to vote. When you change the screen we will vote. Ok, we can use this screen. Vote when the light appears. [1]

And we will take one more vote. Now all right vote when the light appears. [2] All right, the machine is working. The folks are in the presentation on the calendar item we discontinued when we broke for the recess. You were ready and we'll be going to that just as soon as this is completed.

Return to Site Selection Report

While we're waiting for this you might want to get your blue book open to page 481 Calendar Item 1996 and in the red book page 715 the petition in the middle of the left hand column on that page number 20515 is the petition that allows us to get in this series of majority and minority reports. We're still waiting for the report on the ballot. Okay it's going to take a little longer to get that report, so what we are doing now is on page 481 we are in the process of perfecting the majority report which begins in the middle column and goes up through half of the right hand column. We had one attempt at an amendment to point number 2 that was not adopted. Are there any other amendments in perfecting the majority report? I for once do not see any cards I take it we are ready to go to perfect...oh I'm sorry over here. Microphone 1, thank you for your help.

ERNEST S. LYGH (Northern New Jersey): Bishop I'd like to try an amendment to the majority report. It would occur in the third column under number 2 the sixth line where it says

"1006.26 of the Discipline" Starting there to delete everything that follows and insert these words, "continue their regular review of all general agency locations."

BISHOP YEAKEL: Is there a second to that? This amendment would return it to the CFA and COM in their regular review, and that's the intent of it.

LYGHT: Correct. My reason for putting forth this amendment is that I have a concern about unspoken words. I would characterize that concern by suggesting a question of whether or not there are some unexpressed demons. Perhaps I could suggest a couple. Are we talking about an issue of power versus participation? Are we talking about a matter of location versus mission? I would submit that our concern ought to be around participation and mission, and in light of all that we have said and done here in this General Conference, that our participation and mission should go forth in unity. Thank you.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right, that's a speech for it. Does anyone wish to speak against the amendment? All right do you wish to have a speech before we vote?

HARRIET J. OLSEN: (Northern New Jersey) The attempt of the committee was to try to harmonize this action with the action of the '92 conference. We did not have this particular proposal in front of us, so I don't know that we can really speak for the committee on this matter.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right, I take it then we're in the proper order to vote on this one. All of our numbers are the same this time. If you will adopt you'll vote "yes" if not vote "no." It is to relate this basically to GCOM, GCFA and their regular responsibilities. If you will adopt please vote when the light appears. OK the booth's not ready. If you're in favor will you lift the hand. If not, will you lift the hand. This amendment is adopted. Now we've amended it once, are there any other amendments. Is it now perfected? I'll declare it perfected. Now if the people presenting the minority report will please come and let me ask are there any amendments to the minority report? We're perfecting the minority report. Way back there on the aisle come to number 9. Yes sir?

Further Discussion of Minority Site Selection Report

GREGORY D. STOVER (West Ohio): I move to amend the minority report by deletion and addition. If you'll look on blue DCA page 482 item 1b in the first column. I move that we delete the words "one or more" and insert the words "at least two" so that the beginning of item 1b would read "a recommendation of at least two relocation sites" if I have a second I will speak to it.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right, is it seconded? it is seconded.

STOVER: The spirit and goal of this minority report is to give opportunity for the General Conference to make a decision among several acceptable locations for the General Board of Global Ministries. This is consistent with the spirit of the 1992 General Conference to provide a choice of an alternative location for New York City. By decisive action of the legislative section those who previously opposed the move of the board and those who previously supported a move have come together to reject the recommendation that was brought by the Site Selection Committee. Almost everyone of us understands that the proposal of the committee involves excessive costs and does not give us an acceptable alternative. As a consequence, we as a General Conference now have only one possible choice that is reasonable for the short-term future. Leave the General Board of Global Ministries in New York. I believe that this is an unfortunate turn of events, given the directive of the 1992 General Conference. I also believe there are a number of cities which would meet the criteria established by the site selection committee at a more affordable and reasonable cost. It would be unfortunate in the year 2000 to be presented with only one option outside New York City. This amendment makes certain we will be able to choose among New York City and at least two other sites at the General Conference in the year 2000. Let me close with an analogy. Not long ago our family purchased a new family car. Our old car wasn't in terrible shape, but we sensed that it had a lot of miles and that it might not meet the needs of the future as well as a new one. Now a Mercedes would have been nice, but we couldn't afford it. So we shopped around and finally settled on a beautiful, affordable, usable Dodge Caravan. The report of the Site Selection Committee and the majority report leaves us with the choice of the old family car or a Mercedes. I believe that there are many Buicks, Plymouths, Dodges, and maybe even some Cadillacs out there that we may well be able to afford. I think we ought to shop for them.

THE GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

Denver, Colorado

Saturday, April 27, 1996

Vol. 3 No. 11

Delegates Approve $508 Million Budget as 1996 General Conference Draws to a Close

"Soon, and very soon . . ." The words of the spiritual seemed appropriate for General Conference delegates April 26 as they headed into the final day of their quadrennial meeting with hundreds of calendar items yet to receive action.

After three hours of debate, a budget of almost $508.3 million to fund worldwide ministries for the next four years was approved. The budget reflects an increase for 1997 of 1 percent above 1996, no increase for 1998, and a 2-percent increase for 1999 and 2000.

Included in the total is $253.6 million for World Service, the church's basic benevolence fund; almost $110 million for the Ministerial Education Fund; $43.7 million for the Black College Fund; $61.7 million for the Episcopal Fund; $18.5 million for the General Administration Fund; $6.5 million for the Interdenominational Cooperation Fund; and $10 million for the Africa University Fund.

The askings will be apportioned to annual conferences and passed on to local churches, using a formula based on the number of members and other factors.

Turning to other matters, delegates marked the 10th anniversary of the tragic Chernobyl nuclear power accident in the Ukraine where the loss of life was heavy. Anton Zakharchenko, one of two Russian observers attending General Conference, said "people are dying from the results of radiation," especially in the countries of Ukraine, Belarus and Russia.

On another international note, Indiana Area Bishop Woodie W. White said the delegation seeking a meeting with President Clinton and Vice President Gore regarding the Middle East hope to visit the White House during the week of April 28. (See related story in this issue.)

Turning to local church items, delegates approved changing church law to provide for a lay person to be vice chair of the committee on nominations. The pastor will continue as chair. Another action specifies that "all locations of meetings for sanctioned church groups and agencies shall be in facilities accessible by participants and potential participants, including people with disabilities."

It was announced that three special offerings received during General Conference totaled about $25,000. The money will go as designated to the United Methodist Committee on Relief, Native American ministries, and honorariums for conference pages and marshals.

A major item of business during the closing hours of the conference was adoption of a paragraph defining the meaning of self avowal in the Disciplinary ban on ordaining or appointing "self-avowed practicing homosexuals." The paragraph reads: "Self-avowed practicing homosexual is understood to mean a person openly acknowledges to a bishop, district superintendent, district committee on ordained ministry, board of ordained ministry or clergy session that a person is a practicing homosexual."

Other business items included resolutions giving annual conferences greater flexibility and increasing from 630 to 650 the number of directors of general boards in the coming four years. The latter was to accommodate creation of a General Commission on United Methodist Men.

At 10:30 p.m. Houston Area Bishop J. Woodrow Hearn declared the business of the conference concluded. Indiana Area Bishop Woodie W. White led in a brief closing worship calling on the delegates to spread the word that "the good news is that the bad news is wrong."

Great strides have been made in Denver, the bishop said, "but the work begins when we leave. May God bless what we have attempted to do here, but may you bless others as you share the good news."

The conference formally was adjourned at 11:03 p.m. Delegates will assemble next on May 2-12, 2000, in Cleveland.

'DuBose and Company'

This is the first General Conference for some delegates, but it is also a first for Mike DuBose, photographer for United Methodist News Service, United Methodist Communications (UMCom). Mike came to UMCom in February 1995 after several years as a photo journalist with The Tennessean, the local newspaper for Nashville, Tenn.

Mike and his team arrive each morning at 8 a.m. and stay on the job until at least 11 p.m. Each day reporters and conference leadership request photo coverage of special events at General Conference. Mike has covered every corner of the convention center and hotels to photograph worship, committee meetings, special events and informal gatherings. Along with John Goodwin, he has recorded on film the many special events of the conference.

In the midst of a busy schedule, Mike had all the challenges that came with the visit of First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton. His inspiring photo, which appeared on the front page of Thursday's DCA, was an example of his creativity and vision. Mike's sense of humor and his sense of ministry through his craft are a gift to this conference. Mike is assisted by two technical assistants, Jackie Vaughan and Sheri Alford, along with a team of volunteers.

Chilean Pastor Launches Hispanic Ministry in Sweden

"Felipe brings a lot to the conference. He serves as an example of what the church and ministry are about."

Bishop Hans Vaexby, Northern Europe Area, Central Conference, is referring to Felipe Stuart who, since 1993, has served a Hispanic congregation. This is nothing new for this Chilean pastor. What is new, however, is Mr. Stuart's latest appointment: Vaxjo [Sweden] United Methodist Church.

Over the past couple of decades, Argentine, Chilean and Cuban refugees, fleeing political and social violence, have found refuge in Sweden. "These are the people we minister to," said Bishop Vaexby. "Ironically, The United Methodist Church is not for Swedes, but for people who live in Sweden," he added, referring to Sweden's secular state.

A few years ago, when Mr. Stuart visited Sweden, he saw no opportunities for Hispanics to worship in Spanish. He asked Bishop Vaexby and the conference for permission to work with the Hispanic community in Sweden. In 1994, Mr. Stuart received a special appointment, funded by the Northern Europe Area, Central Conference, and the World Division, General Board of Global Ministries.

Since then, Mr. Stuart has developed a Hispanic congregation that gathers for worship, Bible study and youth programs.

General Conference Approves 'A Shared Focus on Young People'

An initiative designed to increase and enhance the involvement of youth and young adults in the church during the next four years was approved Thursday by the General Conference.

The General Council on Ministries (GCOM) created "A Shared Focus on Young People" in response to a 1992 General Conference declaration that the church must do more to address the needs of young people. Delegates voted 589 to 329 to accept this new missional focus and recommended $3 million to fund the initiative.

Jeff North, lay delegate, North Arkansas Conference, requested the GCOM make available another $230,000 to local churches to be used as "seed money to respond to the needs and issues of young people in the church and community."

He also proposed that $2.4 million be provided to a shared mission team to oversee and coordinate pilot programs in 10 annual conferences and 10 local churches. He further recommended a $100,000 grant to undergird a fund to strengthen theological education in the area of ministry with young people.

"It's time for us to . . . dive into the ministry of youth and young people in our denomination," Mr. Quick said. "We are not studying it; we're deciding that this is going to be a priority and a focus of our denomination."

Rebecca C. Carver, clergy delegate, Iowa Conference, made an impassioned plea: "I have waited all my life to see The United Methodist Church take youth and young adults seriously and be committed to us."

General Council on Finance and Administration

Report No. 16

Mission Initiatives/Focus 2000

The General Council on Finance and Administration believes it is important for the General Conference delegates to understand the complex variety of factors that have influenced this report. During the last four years, we have worked diligently to respond to the local churches and annual conferences that have urged no increase in apportionments.

Accordingly, the GCFA developed a proposed "0-0-2-2" budget limit for the next quadrennium through a careful budgeting process. Budget proposals were prepared by all general boards and agencies over the past four years, and carefully considered by both the General Council on Finance and Administration and the General Council on Ministries. Not all budget requests submitted were approved. Many of those approved were not at the level requested by the initiating group. GCFA has been faithful to that process, as have the general agencies. The "0-0-2-2" budget established after GCFA's listening process was intended to enable local churches and annual conferences to increase the percentage of apportionments paid over the course of the quadrennium.

The Advance Daily Christian Advocate, Volume I (pp. 275, 277 and 279) shows the decrease in real dollars for general church boards and agencies over the last two quadrennia. The GCFA is conscious of ministries that do not happen when dollars lose purchasing power at the same time that budgeted amounts decline. Consequently, many worthy general church programs will not receive funding support this coming quadrennium. We also hear the urgent concerns for new mission and ministry raised by legislative committees and delegates to this General Conference. The new programs you have voted for require funding beyond our recommended budget limits of "0-0-2-2".

It is the General Conference's responsibility to determine whether these programs are important enough to increase apportionments. If General Conference votes to support these increases, the total addition to the quadrennial apportionment will be $4,760,000, an additional 1 percent over GCFA's proposed budget.

As provided in the Plan of Organization of the General Conference, Section IX.B, certain legislative committee reports and other actions adopted by the General Conference were referred to the General Council on Finance and Administration for its advice and recommendations. Prior claims for interpretation and administration of the new apportionment for Focus 2000 will be set in accordance with disciplinary requirements and in consultation with United Methodist Communications.

After careful consideration, GCFA is bringing recommendations for action by the General Conference.

Asian-American Language Ministry Study. (Calendar No. 441, page 174; Petition # 21344-GM-NonDis-O$, Advance DCA, page 777). The petition requests funding in the amount of $1,120,000 for the 1997-2000 quadrennium. The legislative committee recommended concurrence with the petition. The General Conference adopted the report and referred it to GCFA on April 22, 1996.

The four program components are: recruitment and training of pastoral and lay leadership, development of new congregations, development of community ministries, and development of language resources and materials. The language groups included in this study are: Mandarin, Cantonese, Amoy (Taiwanese), Tagalog, Vietnamese, Cambodian, Laotian, Hmong, Urdu, Hindi, Gujarati, Telegu, Tamil, and Japanese.

GCFA recommends that funding in the amount of $900,000 for the quadrennium be allocated to the General Board of Global Ministries and apportioned as part of Focus 2000.

Strengthening Korean Ministry. (Calendar No. 751, page 234; Petition # 21731-CO-NonDis-O$, DCA, dated April 16, 1996, page 31). The legislative committee report consists of a "Resolution Strengthening Korean Ministry". It proposes the establishment of a task force to conduct a comprehensive study of the Korean-American Ministry within the United Methodist structure. The task force would include 15 persons, in specified categories, to be appointed by the Council of Bishops, plus three bishops and a representative each from the General Commission on the Status and Role of Women and the General Commission on Religion and Race.

The legislative committee report estimated that the cost of the task force's work would be $150,000. The General Conference amended the legislative committee report to request funding in the amount of $200,000; the report, as amended, was adopted and referred to GCFA on April 24, 1996.

GCFA recommends that the quadrennial total of $200,000 be allocated to the General Board of Global Ministries and apportioned as part of Focus 2000.

Connectional Process Team. (Calendar No. 764, pages 235-258; Petition # 21676-GJ-NonDis-O$, Advance DCA, page 551). The legislative committee, in Calendar No. 764, recommended the establishment of a Connectional Process Team (CPT) of up to 38 members, plus three non-voting members from affiliated and autonomous churches, as a response to the GCOM's Connectional Issues Study and the Council of Bishops' study on the Global Nature of the Church. No cost estimate for the work of the CPT was included in the legislative committee report.

The General Conference adopted the report on April 23, 1996, with a recommendation that funding be provided by GCFA (DCA, page 253). GCFA estimates that the work of the CPT will cost $660,000.

GCFA recommends that the quadrennial total of $660,000 be administered by the General Council on Finance and Administration and be apportioned as part of Focus 2000.

Focus on Young People (Calendar No. 1694, page 388; Petition # 21678-GJ-NonDis-O$, Advance DCA, page 599). The petition requested funding in a quadrennial amount of $270,000. The legislative committee recommended concurrence with the petition.

When the report was considered by the General Conference, it was amended by the inclusion of an additional funding request contained in Petition # 22747-DI-NonDis-O$. As amended, the total requested was $3 million to be allocated among four separate programs: 1) the program which had been proposed in the original petition submitted by GCOM in the amount of $270,000 to fund a discovery process, resource ministry action plans, interpret, provide scholarships to events, and provide meeting expenses for the Shared Mission Team; 2) $230,000 to "be available to local churches in the form of seed grants for use as seed money to respond to the needs and issues of young people in the church and community"; 3) $2.4 million for salary of trained and qualified staff to craft ministry with young people for the future and for these staff people to meet together on an annual basis for review of the program, related to "quadrennial pilot programs in 10 conferences and 10 local churches..."; and 4) $100,000 "for the purpose of strengthening theological education in the area of ministry with young people..."

The report, as amended, was adopted by the General Conference and referred to GCFA on April 25, 1996.

GCFA recommends that the quadrennial total of $3 million be administered by the General Council on Ministries and be apportioned as part of Focus 2000.

Thank You, Denver Area!

"Welcome, world, to our neighborhood," said Denver Area Bishop Mary Ann Swenson on the opening day of General Conference. "Our neighborhood is vast and diverse. It is peaks and plains, mountains and metropolitan, sunshine and snow, desert and Continental Divide. . . . Let us be God's people celebrating God's creation with a dream that we will know ourselves, participating in God's mission to redeem and restore all of creation to God's intended design." As delegates and visitors head home, they take unforgettable memories of General Conference 1996. Thank you, Denver Area, for your hospitality!

Delegation Heads to Washington to Deliver Statement of Concern

Indiana Area Bishop Woodie W. White, president of the Council of Bishops, will lead a delegation of United Methodists to the White House to deliver to President Clinton and Vice President Gore a statement of concern from this General Conference about escalating violence in the Middle East.

In addition to Bishop Woodie W. White, the delegation will include both bishops and delegates. They are: Ronald Bretsch, North Central New York; Bishop Judith Craig, West Ohio Area; R. Randy Day, New York; Kristen E. Dowdy, Virginia; Jo Ann Fukomoto, California-Pacific; Bishop Dan E. Solomon, Oklahoma Area; and Bishop C. Dale White (retired).

General Conference approved the statement April 19 after learning that more than 175 persons were killed or wounded by retaliatory attacks launched by Israel following Lebanon-based Hezbollah rocket attacks. According to Mr. Day, physicians in Lebanon report the bombing and shelling has caused more suffering than the 1982 invasion.

Delegates welcomed Bishop Craig, who called for United Methodists to continue to be "a voice that cries for a just peace." She presented the statement prepared by an ad hoc committee. Writing team members included: Mr. Bretsch; Mr. Day; David M. Graybeal, a retired professor from Drew University; Shirley Stevens, chair, North Central New York Standing Task Force on Peace with Justice in Israel and Palestine; and Bishop C. Dale White.

The delegation will ask President Clinton to take steps to protect children, youth and other civilians and seek a return to normalcy for persons living in that region. It proposes that Christians, Jews and Muslims be able to practice their faith in Jerusalem, a city which is holy to all three major monotheistic religions. The document requests increased efforts to assure geographic, economic and political security.

According to Bishop Woodie W. White, as of April 26, the exact time the delegation would be received had not yet been determined by the White House. He anticipated that the group would be welcomed in the White House during the week of April 28.

Don't Buy Those Airline Tickets!!!

DCA news and features editor Barbara Dunlap-Berg points to the sign that has been confusing people. Persons going down the escalator after leaving the Cokesbury display are surprised to find the sign "See You in Las Vegas, April 26-30, 1997." Some people fainted when they saw the sign, thinking it meant General Conference would meet again next year. Others scurried to buy airline tickets, and some just ran screaming at the thought of another General Conference. Please disregard the sign; it was not meant for the eyes of delegates.

Legislative Committee Chair Recalls Discerning, Consensus-Building Process

"We examined and reflected upon that document, where we raised concerns, affirmations and questions," said Sandra Lutz, East Ohio lay delegate and Ordained and Diaconal Ministry Legislative Committee chair.

Introducing an evening of legislative action on the Ministry Study report from the Council of Bishops, Ms. Lutz described the discerning, consensus-building process undertaken first by the bishops, then by her legislative committee dealing with 1000-plus petitions and, finally, by General Conference delegates.

She recalled that small groups of delegates spent part of a morning reflecting on the report. "After considerable discussion," she said, "we reached an understanding [in the committee] that we would accept the bishops' proposal as our base line, but felt called to perfect it in ways to reflect those concerns. We found ourselves resonating with that summary report. Our hearts seemed to be one."

Ms. Lutz also made reference to traditional elements of ordained ministry, but said the committee was "overwhelmingly convinced that, as a denomination, we must move forward in ministry, and that it is more important that our structure honor God's call on all our lives than that we hold to historic patterns which, although once effective, may now interfere with our ability to move ahead.

"We have been studying ministry a very long time," she said. "Amazing as it seems to some of us, God's spirit right now seems to be moving among us, gently nudging and encouraging us to take heart, breathing life into the dry bones, and calling us to trust new models and new understandings of ministry."

"Like a good parent," she concluded, "God knows when we are ready to move. We need to remember that when God calls us, God also is there to hold our hand on the journey and receive us in a new place. Let us move ahead to new understandings."

'We Fall Down, and We Get Up'

Controversy over theological and justice issues have been with us a long time, Missouri Area Bishop Ann B. Sherer said at the final morning worship of General Conference. She reminded the 1,000 delegates that such struggles did not destroy the church. "Fracture it? Yes. Improve it? Sometimes. Destroy it? Never."

Bishop Sherer had researched General Conferences from some 100 years ago. In the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, General Conference delegates were fussing about the holiness movement. In the wake of their condemnation of excesses and narrowness, 27 new denominations were formed, and 100,000 persons left the Methodist fold.

Two years later, in the Methodist Episcopal Church, the issue was the election of four women delegates who, unfortunately, withdrew from the conference. [There is no record of how many women left the Methodist Episcopal Church and never returned.]

Continuing her theme of controversy, Bishop Sherer recalled the story of a little girl who asked an old monk from a monastery on a hill, "What do you do up there?" "We fall down, and we get up," was the startling response.

In our journey, the bishop explained, "we continue to fall down, and by God's grace, get up again. . . . In our life, falling down and getting up, we come closer to God and one another," the bishop said.

The service was introduced by acapella harmonies of the 10-person Iluzija Choir from the United Methodist Church of Liepaja, Latvia.

The liturgist, New York West Area Bishop Hae-Jong Kim, received positive response from his greeting, "T.G.I.F." No one needed a translation. Iris Rajamaa of the Finland-Finnish Provisional Conference read the Scripture.

The Committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows:

Mandate

The focus on prison ministry was first initiated in 1984 when the General Conference adopted a mandate to coordinate this ministry. In 1988, General Conference reaffirmed the mandate, and it was continued and expanded in 1992.

The 1992 General Conference adopted Calendar Item 208 on page 237 of the Daily Christian Advocate which continued the ongoing consultation among general program boards in order to receive progress reports on work related to prison ministry/prison reform. This legislation called for an interagency committee, under the direction of GCOM, to build awareness and provide resources to local churches and annual conferences. The General Council on Ministries was asked to convene an interagency committee for oversight, planning, and program implementation for this area of ministry. The mandate also called upon this interagency group, the Council of Bishops, and the General Council on Ministries to build an awareness by providing leadership and advocating the development of effective prison ministries.

Process

In order to implement this General Conference mandate, the General Council on Ministries contacted each general secretary of the four program boards to identify one staff representative to serve on the interagency committee. Once the four boards named a representative, a GCOM member and GCOM staff person convened the interagency committee, and the planning process began.

First, a comprehensive prison ministry booklet was updated for general distribution to bishops, districts superintendents, annual conference council directors, annual conference prison ministry programs, and other interested individuals seeking resourcing on how to develop and enhance prison ministry programs.

The interagency committee then set out to develop a four-year holistic plan for building awareness and resourcing the denomination. This planning process reflected both the ongoing work of each agency in this area of ministry, plus specific assignments which were made to general boards and GCOM by the 1992 General Conference. At each yearly meeting of the interagency committee, the program boards reported on their agencies work and outreach in prison ministry.

Early in the planning process, the interagency committee determined the need to develop the study guide. This committee also decided to continue the distribution of a resource packet. The study guide was made available at the end of the 1993-96 quadrennium.

During the previous quadrennium, annual conference cabinets were asked to record their visits to jails and prisons. During the current quadrennium, bishops were asked to identify outstanding prison ministry/prison reform ministries within their conferences. The interagency committee determined this was an effective way to build an awareness of the work already under way. Sixty-five outstanding prison ministry programs were identified by bishops. GCOM provided certificates of recognition to honor these projects and persons within annual conferences.

A primary way that awareness was stimulated was through the consultative services of the Criminal Justice Mercy Ministries Office, under the leadership of the Reverend Dr. Jerry Murray. Dr. Murray, a member of the interagency committee, made himself available to annual conferences and local congregations for planning, organizational development, and training. Dr. Murray made frequent reports to the interagency committee on the development of prison ministry programs and evolving ministry opportunities and needs of constituents. Also, Dr. Murray provided education for members of the interagency committee. Each member of the interagency committee provided an opportunity to learn about existing United Methodist and ecumenical programs related to prison ministry.

The committee continued discussions with the General Board of Publications and other agencies of the general church regarding effective distribution of surplus materials for use by chaplains and prison ministries.

In every general board, there has been increased attention to programs and issues related to prison ministry/prison reform.

The committee was made aware, through the work of the General Board of Higher Education and the General Board of Global Ministries, of the increase in awareness and involvement in prison ministry within the central conferences.

The General Board of Higher Education and Ministry held its second prison chaplains consultation early in the 1993-96 quadrennium. Information and insights from this event were shared with the interagency committee. The GBHEM provided expertise in the creation of prison ministry in central Russia and continuing support for prison ministry in Germany.

The General Board of Church and Society offered input and information on the Human Relations Day and outreach services for communities in crisis and prison work. The board, through its focus on Peace with Justice, raised awareness and provided study resources to congregations. Their work with Police and Community Relations provided an important component for the emerging work in annual conferences. This boards ministry with Saving Stations offered opportunities for proactive involvement in justice ministries.

The General Board of Discipleship offers the Covenant Discipleship in Prisons. This board was instrumental in the development of a churchwide resource packet on prison ministry, with over 5,000 packets having been distributed. In addition, the board prepared and distributed the Prison Ministries Action and Study Guide.

The General Board of Global Ministries offered many services. The United Methodist Women developed and implemented programs of learning, services and support for prisoners, crime victims and their families. The work of the Communities of Shalom, Church and Community workers, the Substance Abuse and Related Violence Program are several ways the board has enabled the committee to plan and to be proactive. The National Program Divisions focus on Combating Violence Against Women and Children enabled the committee to share resources with constituents who want to assist women and their families. The committee acknowledges the work performed by this board as foundational and pioneering. Other denominations and many local churches have been empowered through the effective models and ministries initiated and ongoing by this board. The World Division has been responsive to requests from central conferences for assistance in the development in prison ministry.

The General Commission on Communication has been supportive in providing coverage of the interagency committees action and plans.

The General Council on Ministries has provided coordination, support, and guidance for the work of this interagency committee.

Theological Statement

We are a covenant people but we are marked in many ways by having broken the covenant. The Biblical story reflects Gods relationship with us, accompanying us, always calling us back into right relationship with God and Gods creation.

We are mandated by Christ to be in ministry by proclaiming freedom to the captives, and we are all summoned to remember those in prison as if you were their fellow captives (Hebrews 13:3). The ministry of the global church affirms that we no longer see anyone from a human point of view (citation), but rather through the eyes of Christ we see the world of prisoners, crime victims and their families as an arena of Gods grace and the place of our ministry.

Jesus identified himself as being the one who was hungry, thirsty, a stranger, a prisoner and invites us to ministries of nurture, outreach, and witness. We respond to this invitation and commit ourselves to justice-making.

We understand that justice-making is restorative rather than retributive, seeks to create wholeness rather than merely isolate blame, cares for both victim and offender, and seeks the ultimate restoration of right relationships among God, persons, and people until we see peace (shalom) restored in the community.

We understand that our ministry is to prisoners, crime victims and their families. This includes a concern for the entire criminal justice system, including persons who are employed within the structures of that system, such as law enforcement, judicial, correction officers. Our ministry is both pastoral and prophetic, seeking both to heal those who have been wounded and to transform those structures which inflict those wounds.

We believe that the following recommendations represent the significant and essential next steps in establishing channels through which The United Methodist Church shall respond to this commitment.

Recommendations

Recommendation #1

We recommend the formation of a Global Prison Ministry Resource and Training Institute. Global Criminal Justice and Mercy Ministries Institute. A global coordinating committee shall give guidance to the operation of this Institute. The global coordinating committee will be composed of fourteen persons: two members and one staff person from each of the program agencies (12); and one Council member and one staff person from GCOM. The agencies will provide funding for their representatives to this global coordinating committee. The Council of Bishops will name one episcopal consultant from the central conferences, and one episcopal consultant from the United States (at the expense of the Council of Bishops). The bishops will convene the first meeting of the global coordinating committee in the spring of 1997, in advance of the meeting of the General Board of Global Ministries, in order to include input from other members of the central conferences. The General Board of Global Ministries will be requested to provide linkage and access to these leaders and their expertise in the global context.

The General Board of Global Ministries will provide funding for staffing and facility needs for the Global Criminal Justice and Mercy Ministries Institute.

The purpose of this committee is to give leadership to the Church through the Institute for enhancement, coordination, and enablement of effective prison ministry programs around the world.

The purpose of the first meeting of the committee will be to engage in a holistic planning process to determine strategies, identify resources, and develop nurture, outreach and witness ministries in relating to prisoners, victims of crimes, and their families in the global community. This may include the areas of:

- Evangelism
- Discipleship
- Education and motivation of congregations in criminal justice and mercy ministries
- Social justice theology for prison ministries
- Celebrating United Methodist involvement in Criminal Justice and Mercy Ministries
- Sharing effective Models through networking people and programs
- Coordinating services and programs
- Developing cross cultural models

Facilitating the use of the Study Guide within annual conferences and local churches around the world

Working with central conferences in the development on resources and study tools which are context specific

Developing biblical and theological resources

Dialogue on the creation of a Prison Ministries Action and Study Guide

Also, at the first meeting consideration will be given to identifying a site location and accountability structure for the ~~Global Prison Ministry Resource & Training Institute~~ Global Criminal Justice and Mercy Ministries Institute.

Recommendation #2

We further recommend that the United Methodist Women give consideration to the integration of prison ministry/justice ministries within the Schools of Christian Mission as they develop study curricula. We recommend that the United Methodist Women ~~give consideration to creating units with jails and prisons for women.~~ encourage the exploration of how United Methodist Womens units may be begun in and/or related to jails and prisons for women.

Recommendation #3

We encourage the General Board of Global Ministries to give consideration to naming missionaries in the field of prison ministry.

Recommendation #4

That central conferences and annual conferences within the United States be linked through E-Mail, when available, so that frequent communication can enhance the planning process of the Institute.

Recommendation #5

That the General Board of Discipleship be responsible for training of local churches and annual conference leaders to utilize study processes such as Disciple Bible Study, Covenant Discipleship, and to provide mentoring.

Recommendation #6

We recommend that the United Methodist Men give consideration to starting units within jails and prisons and create study guides and tools to promote Christian discipling.

Proceedings of the 1996 General Conference of The United Methodist Church

The Committee On Journal

The Committee On Journal hereby certifies as accurate, with the following corrections, the proceedings as printed in the Daily Christian Advocate, for Friday April 26, 1996.

Daily Edition, page 672, column 2, six lines from the bottom; replace "abandonment" with "amendment."

Daily Edition, page 672, column 3, line 17; replace "or" with "a."

Daily Edition, page 710, column 2, eight lines from the bottom; Randall Robinson's correct initial is "L."

Reported by William Reasner
Chair, Committee On Journal

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right, thank you. Can I test the body? This seems to me to be a pretty clear kind of an amendment. It's either stay with what is, which says "one or more" or say that at least two so it's multiple. Could we vote on this quickly? We're taking lots of...well, OK I saw someone right over here then in number 2. Are you the person?

Site Search for GBGM

ANITA CRUMP (Louisiana): I'm against the amendment for the reason that we don't need to seek any other locations or areas for the movement of the General Board of Global Ministries. I concur with the majority report. Many delegates are concerned about the $520,000 which we spent for the Reston, Virginia study. How can we justify another study and a waste of our funds when we have so many people who are in need, so many groups, and we need to be concerned with missions.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right, thank you. May I point out that we're on the simple amendment of substituting the words "at least two" for the words "one or more" in item "b" under point 1 of the minority report. That's all we're on right now. Over here please.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Microphone 9.

JEROME K. DEL PINO (New England): Bishop, I have a question, and the question is whether those two locations would be delimited to the continental United States?

BISHOP YEAKEL: I can't answer your question.

DEL PINO: Is it possible that the maker of the motion could indicate whether that is intended or implied?

BISHOP YEAKEL: Would the maker of the motion respond to that? Nine. Microphone 9.

GREGORY STOVER (West Ohio): There is no intention in the amendment to make a limitation.

BISHOP YEAKEL: There is no limitation. We're still on this amendment. Are you ready to vote on this? Do you want to speak to it, sir?

JOE M. WHITEMORE (North Georgia): Thank you, Bishop. Our objective in the minority report has been to leave the comparison to the standing committee. We would be willing to accept the decision of this body either way.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right, I take it you are ready to decide. If you will adopt the motion to insert "at least two" for the words "one or more," will you vote "yes;" if not, vote "no." Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 481; no, 448] It is amended. Now the minority report as amended once is before you. Microphone 2. We're perfecting the minority report.

CARL L. SCHENCK (Missouri East): Thank you, Bishop. I would move the following amendment to the minority report: that we delete the "whereas" paragraph at the bottom of page 481 on the DCA, and as it continues to the top, delete that whole paragraph. Further, in the second "whereas" paragraph on page 482, that we delete the word "strong." And finally, that we, under the "now therefore be it resolved," that we add recommendation one from the majority as follows: "The 1992 Site Selection Task Force is dismissed with appreciation," and then renumber the following paragraphs.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right, there's three parts to this. Deleting the paragraph at the bottom of page 481 continuing on the top of 482; deleting the word "strong" from the second "whereas"; and inserting the number one from the majority report as number one in the minority report, making the others two, three, and four. Is that correct sir?

SCHENCK: That is correct.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Is there a second? It is seconded.

SCHENCK: Bishop?

BISHOP YEAKEL: I'm sorry.

SCHENCK: May I speak?

BISHOP YEAKEL: Yes, you may.

SCHENCK: Just briefly, I think the minority report has merit, but I believe that the deletions I am recommending and the addition make the report more charitable and more generous to those who have labored long, and less with the connotation, perhaps, of criticism of those who have labored over the site selection report.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right, thank you.

WHITEMORE: Bishop, do we have the option of accepting that as a friendly amendment?

BISHOP YEAKEL: Yes.

WHITEMORE: We would be delighted to accept it.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right, it is accepted as a friendly amendment. Now, we are perfecting the report. Are you ready? You're not ready. Yes? Here in the middle, please.

MARY H. MILLER (South Indiana): On page 482, I'd like to ask for two editorial corrections.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right.

MILLER: In the second "whereas," the third line, I believe after the word available that should be "which" rather than "with."

BISHOP YEAKEL: I think that's correct.

MILLER: In the fourth "whereas," in the last line of that paragraph, I believe the word should be "joint" and not "joined" committee.

BISHOP YEAKEL: I think that's right. We need to have "it."

MILLER: Thank you.

BISHOP YEAKEL: OK. Yes sir, what is your motion please? Number 9. We are perfecting the minority report.

FRANK L. DORSEY (Kansas East): I want to stand opposed to the amendment.

BISHOP YEAKEL: We are not debating it yet, sir. We're amending it, perfecting it. That's the point I've been trying to make. When we get all the motions, then we'll come around to debate. Is the report now perfected? Is it your agreement that...? I see someone wanting to perfect the report. Number 5, please. Microphone 5.

JIM HOLSINGER (Kentucky): If it's in order, I'd like to move that we vote on all that is before us and suspend the rule.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Suspend the rules, move that we vote on all that is before us. Well, we'll test it with the house. If you will suspend the rules and put us in the posture to go ahead with the appropriate speeches from the committee chairs, which would be a part of our rules not suspended in this, then we'll go to vote right through, will you vote when the light appears. "Yes" if you approve, "no" if you don't. It takes two-thirds. You are ready to vote on the material that's before you. Our conference rules say that we vote on the minority report first, we hear from the chair of the minority report, and then we go to the chair of the primary report. When we've heard those two persons, we will vote. That's the order we're going. So you have the speech, sir.

WHITTEMORE: Bishop, can you clarify for me that once we finish with the two closing statements, we will then be voting on the minority report.

BISHOP YEAKEL: That is correct.

WHITTEMORE: So if we want to support the minority report, we would vote "yes." Is that correct?

BISHOP YEAKEL: When we vote, if you want to support the minority report, you will vote "yes;" if you want to get to the majority report, you'll vote "no."

WHITTEMORE: We urge you to vote "yes" for the minority report. This would allow the 2000 General Conference to make an informed decision of the location of the General Board of Global Ministries. The legitimate concern being expressed by our minority report is, there has to be a better answer, and the General Conference should make that decision. We are not asking for special consideration of any site. We, the General Conference, are the servants of our beloved church, and we have been given the opportunity and the responsibility for church decisions. The majority and the minority of our committee unanimously agreed to approve legislation to prohibit the use of any program funds for relocation. Implementation of the minority report will cost no more than the majority report. However, the minority report provides the mechanics for General Conference to regain the confidence and trust of our membership on this issue.

At this point in time, the New York location of General Board of Global Ministries has not been compared to any other location in this process. Clearly, adequate sites are available that would reduce annual operating costs and make those millions of dollars available for mission. Clear view and decision making with integrity never hurts. It heals, and it paves the way to collaboration, to reconciliation, and indeed to community. To take advantage of these possibilities and have General Conference make this important decision, we encourage you to vote "yes" for the minority report. Again we want to thank you for this consideration.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right, thank you. Now we'll hear from the majority. The speakers and the summary are under the three minute rule. They don't have a light over there. I have one here, and you have one out there, so we'll try to be gentle.

DAVID L. SEVERE (Oklahoma): Thank you, sir. We would suggest that the minority report is flawed in a number of ways but in particular at the point at which it asks for this report to the General Conference. I would remind you that under your Discipline the joint committee that is spoken of is required to report to the General Conference. That is already a conclusion that need not be debated. It's in the Discipline, so we do not need that to be in a motion. The review that they would do in their natural way of doing all the reviews is required to be reported to the General Conference.

Secondly, I think you need to be aware of the fact that to require there to be a number, any number, of sites investigated requires an additional amount of money because the report of the committee that has been, or would be dismissed by all of our actions, has taken into account situations that you've already rejected, so we would have to have new analyses done. That is a very expensive process. If we put it into the whole process of the general church as we now see it and particularly could relate it to the Connectional Process Team and their ongoing work, we believe that we would have a far better chance of seeing the grand picture of the whole church and not be required to expend that kind of money.

I believe that we should defeat the majority report, that we should adopt the minority report, that we should adopt the majority report, and I trust that you will do that. Thank you very much.

Minority Report Defeated

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right, thank you. Let's be clear what you're voting on. What is before you is the minority report. If you vote "yes," it becomes the primary report. If you vote "no," we then go to the majority report, and we'll hear the speeches and then vote on that. Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 400; no, 558] The minority report is lost. We are now ready to go to the majority report. Is there a final speech from the chair of the committee? There is no final speech.

Majority Report on Site Selection Adopted

Let me tell you what you're voting on. If you vote "yes," then this becomes the action of the conference. If you vote "no," there is no action, and the report of the Consent Calendar, which brought the original search to conclusion, is the action of the conference. What I'm trying to have you understand is, it's not a simple "yes" and "no" on this particular item. Voting "yes" means this will be what we do in the next quadrennium. If you vote "no," there is no further action on this particular item coming from this General Conference because you have already on the Consent Calendar set aside the report of the Messer task force, if I can refer to it that way, which has already been adopted. Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 584; no, 354] The majority report is adopted and will be the plan and procedure for the next quadrennium. All right, I think that, hopefully, that completes this particular part of your responsibility, but you have other items. All right.

SEVERE: Would the rest of the members of my committee please make their way here quickly. We did not have enough key pads up here for everybody, so we had asked the committee members to return to their seats. We have a number of items to bring to you today that are under the General and Judicial Administration area. I want to, in the beginning, want to express appreciation for the people who have been in that committee. We have had a number of things to deal with. I would particularly like to express my appreciation to Minerva Carcaño who has been our vice chair, and she has done a wonderful job of assisting and helping and giving leadership in a number of ways in the committee. I very much appreciate her help and her leadership in all the work of the committee.

Thelma Johnson has been our secretary and has done a yeoman's task, for we have had a great number of petitions to deal with, and she has kept up with that. She has kept the chair from making major blunders, and she's just been a great help to us, so we want to express appreciation to her. I would also like to express appreciation to the subcommittee chairs, to Rex Bevins who chaired the connectational issues and GCOM legislation subcommittee; to Harriet Olson who was just here, who chaired the committee on site location and the constitutional questions that were in the petitions; to Sam Wynn who dealt with the missional studies and the special Sundays; and to Alfred Johnson who dealt with the judicial petitions that we had. My deep appreciation goes to all these people, some of whom will be on the platform during these presentations and others of which you will see a little later.

At this point, Minerva Carcaño will lead us in two or three items. I have forgotten, we got one of them already...two items. Thank you, Minerva.

Amenability and Program Accountability

MINERVA G. CARCAÑO (Rio Grande): The first petition deals with amenability and program accountability. You will find it on page 170 of your blue book. It is Calendar Item 433, Petition 21534. The text of the petition is found in your white DCA on page 1327. It's on the right hand column, the second paragraph. The essence of the petition is that it would limit general agencies to paying for only three persons to any non-United Methodist event. The recommendation of the committee is nonconcurrency with a vote of 84 for, 9 against and 1 abstention. And the rationale of the committee is that we believe that as general boards and agencies do their work, they are in a better position, a more informed position, to make the decision about our need for representation at events. I would move the recommendation of the committee.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Motion is for nonconcurrency. I take it you're ready? Please vote when the light appears. Shift gears. If you will support the committee will you lift the hand? If not, will you lift the hand? The committee is supported.

Inclusiveness of the Church

CARCAÑO: The second matter deals with the inclusiveness of the church. It is related to paragraph 4 of the Book of Discipline. You will find it on page 170 of the blue book. It is Calendar Item 437. It is Petition 22869, and the text of the petition is found in your white DCA on page 1324 on the right hand column, third paragraph. The petition seeks to add language on inclusiveness to the fourth paragraph of the Book of Discipline. The committee recommends nonconcurrency with a vote of 73 for, 19 opposed and 10 abstentions. The committee believes that the Discipline is clear and strong as it stands. It already states that all persons shall be eligible for membership in the United Methodist Church, and for participation in all of its programs and ministry. The paragraph also lists examples of inclusiveness, a list which is clearly not intended to be exhaustive. So we recommend nonconcurrency.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right. The recommendation is nonconcurrency.

This item has to do with the Constitution of the church. I see no cards or anyone moving. I will put the question if you will adopt the committee's recommendation of nonconcurrency, will you lift the hand? If not, will you lift the hand? You do support the committee.

CARCAÑO: Thank you.

SAM WYNN (North Carolina): Call your attention to the blue book page 235, Calendar Item 762, Petition 21677 found in the Advanced DCA on page 579.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Page 235 in the blue book, and what was the number again in the red book?

WYNN: 762.

BISHOP YEAKEL: What page number, please?

WYNN: Ah, page 235.

BISHOP YEAKEL: No, that's in the blue book. What's in the red book? What's the number..

WYNN: Page 579 in the red book. This petition is a petition of support for the Black Church Study.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Page 579 in the red book is not the right page reference. Well, let's see, well 579 is the Strength of the Black Church. What is your point of order, please? One of you was raising the point of order. All right.

EDDIE SELF (North Alabama): In my book it shows me that we dealt with that on the 22nd. Is that not correct?

WYNN: Bishop, this is just the petition of support and it would have to be referred to GCFA.

BISHOP YEAKEL: It has dollars with it?

WYNN: Um, well, yes it does, but it is a petition of support for the Black Church.

BISHOP YEAKEL: But the point, legal question they're asking me was didn't we adopt this the other day? And everybody says they did, so we don't need to adopt it again. Well, we don't have to refer to the petition if you adopted the calendar item. So it has been passed. You're one up, Sam.

Enabling Legislation for Shared Focus of Young People

WYNN: OK, thank you. Page 388 in the blue book. Calendar Item 1694, Petition 21678. It's found on page 599 of the Advanced DCA of the red book. This is the Shared Focus of Young People. And the report has been received in the GCOM report, but this is the legislation to enable this to happen. The committee concurs with a vote of 80 for, zero against, 2 abstaining. There are dollars. It's been referred to GCFA. The rationale we believe this will be a great opportunity for the entire church to enhance and to increase the young people and the youth in involvement of the United Methodist Church.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right. This does take your action to refer it. Especially to see GCFA. I take it you're ready? All right? No you're not, I see a card over here to my right. Microphone 7.

JEFF QUICK (North Arkansas): I rise to amend what we are doing or about to do. Let me make sure I'm in the right place.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Get us all to that place. What page are you on?

QUICK: I would like to turn us to 1305 of the white DCA. I would like to amend the budget of the Shared Mission Focus in the following way.

BISHOP YEAKEL: We're on 1305. What petition are you in there?

QUICK: Petition 22747.

WYNN: Bishop, this is a different petition.

Funding of Shared Focus of Young People

QUICK: Right, and what I would like to do is amend the Shared Mission Focus budget by adding a portion of this petition. I would like to see the budget remain at $270,000 that's listed on 603 in the red DCA and then add the following: "$230,000 which would be available to local churches in the form of grants to be used as seed money to respond to the needs and issues of young people in the church and community." And then "$2.4 million which the Shared Mission Team will oversee or coordinate, quadrennial pilot programs, in ten conferences and ten local churches." And then, finally, "$100,000 to fund a fund for the purpose of strengthening the theological education in the area of ministry with young people." If I have a second, and if that's in order, I would like to speak to that.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Well, I'm not sure that it's in order. Let's get our minds around this. We're on 1694 in the blue book which is referenced to the petition found beginning on 599 in the red book. I need help in knowing the connection between what's in the white book and the red book. Can you help me with that?

WYNN: Yes, Bishop. These are two separate petitions, and our committee has some action that we plan to bring for the second petition found in the white book. And we would oppose this simply because we feel that we have an enabling petition or action that will help accomplish some of the goals that set forth in Petition 22747.

BISHOP YEAKEL: OK. I think a motion is in order to bring part of the material on 1305 onto page 603, but not the other way around. And if I understood what you proposed, you were taking a part of 603 and putting it into what's on 1305. You were not?

QUICK: No, sir. I would like to move part of 1305 to add that to the bottom of the 603 report.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right. Would you repeat then how you are perfecting what's on 603, which is the budget. I think that's where you were working. Is that correct?

QUICK: Right. That's correct. I'd like to leave the $270,000 total that is on page 603...

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right.

QUICK: And then, if you move to 1305, underneath. We propose a plan for implementing a focus on young people. I'd like to include the next three bullets, only changing that first bullet which would read "$230,000 will be available to local churches."

BISHOP YEAKEL: So you want 230 to go in there instead of 500,000. Take those three paragraphs and put them on page 603.

QUICK: Yes, Sir.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Is there a second? All right, I think it's a proper motion.

QUICK: I've worked with youth, both as a young person, as my local church's youth chair person of United Methodist Youth Fellowship, and also for the past seven years as a youth director of local congregations in the Arkansas area. One thing that I've noticed about young people is that they have a wonderful skill of noticing hypocrisy among people. I find that $270,000 is belittling to a focus or to a priority of the Church, especially on the denominational level. I think that that will filter back to our youth, and our words will be without action, and we will be doing little more than speaking out of the sides of our mouths. Mrs. Teddlie encouraged us early on in the week to reorder our priorities, and to accept this focus of young people. I support that 100 percent. The scriptures say, however, that where our treasure is, there our heart is. It seems to me that yesterday we adopted a plan of studying the ministry of different areas, and we adopted a $200,000 budget to go along with that study, to see what we wanted to do. Now we're ready to work. It's time for us to go, hands and feet, and dive into the ministry of youth and young people in our denomination. We're not studying it; we're deciding that this is going to be a priority and a focus for our denomination. And to do so with only $270,000, seems unfair. It seems to me that there should be more of a difference than just simply $70,000, in something that we're proposing as a study and something that we're proposing as a focus. I support both the Korean ministries of our church as well as the young people. I just think there's a difference between what we support as a study and what we say we're going to dive into and make real in the life of our denomination.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right, thank you. Speaking against? You're speaking against, sir? Come to microphone 9.

JOSEPH L. HARRIS (Oklahoma): Would it be in order to table until we hear the committee's recommendation on 22747 and act on it at that time?

BISHOP YEAKEL: A motion to table would be in order.

HARRIS: So move.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Is it seconded. You cannot table it until a specific time. If you table it, you table it, and then it will have to be re-enacted at that time anew. A tabling motion is not debatable. If you will support the tabling motion, will you lift the hand? If not, will you lift the hand? It is not tabled. The motion is before us. Yes, right here. In section C, come to number 8, please. A speech against the motion would be in order.

DOUGLAS BRANTLEY (North Georgia): I'm moving to substitute the amendment to the amendment.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right.

BRANTLEY: I move that the General Conference refer this proposal for further study and development and to ask the General Council on Ministries to bring back to the 2000 General Conference for a consideration for a new plan for a bold, real focus on young people, a missional priority.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right, that's your motion. You're into the speech, are you not? You're still on the motion?

BRANTLEY...a missional priority to reach young people for Jesus Christ, not to exceed $10 million over the next quadrennium.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right, this is a motion to refer. From my information, you would refer the whole thing, not just the amendment, but the amendment and the basic text.

BRANTLEY: Correct.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right. We're debating the referral only. Yes, down here, number 3.

BRANTLEY: May I speak to that?

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right, yes, you may speak. You speak first.

BRANTLEY: I appreciate the efforts that have been made to present this proposal at this time, but I agree with the person who spoke a few moments ago, that this is not a focus on youth. A focus is described as a priority, a cause of critical importance. A focus on young people is critically important at this time, but that proposal that calls for only $270,000 is not a focus. The time has come for The United Methodist Church to place young people as a real focus of the church. This proposal is only a quick glance at youth. It is time to focus on youth. I call upon the General Council on Ministries to come back in 2000 and lead The United Methodist Church in a dynamic focus on young people. It is time for that bold focus in the midst of the problems and needs of young people today. Out of a proposed budget for The United Methodist Church for the quadrennium of over $5 million, $270,000 says that we're committed, not to a focus, but a mere glance. I call upon the General Council to come forward with a bold plan to help us to consider in the following years of 2000, a proposal to reach the more than 50 percent of the young people, and to find ways of speaking, seeking, and enabling young people to find Christ. In the 1992 General Conference in Louisville, it was declared that the church must do more to address the needs of young people, specifically the spiritual, social and emotional needs that are critical to the achievement of wholeness. It is my prayer that our great church will indeed focus on young people with a focus that is worthy of challenge that faces the church today. It is time to give further consideration for this critical issue that confronts us as a church.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Thank you. Now I presume you were speaking against it. Microphone 3. Your name and conference please.

JEANNIE TREVINO-TEDDLIE (Central Texas): I would speak against the amendment. We can't afford to postpone for four years. I served as you all saw, with GCOM that developed the proposal. We would love to have recommended much more than we did. But we wanted to take this step, in thinking of a New Testament story, where Jesus, in the midst of so many people, wanted to feed them, and asked the disciples, "What do you have? Feed them with what you have." The disciples felt like they didn't have anything, but Jesus asked them to look, and they found something. We knew the budget limitations that we're facing. We felt this was a good first step. I don't want to delay this for four years. Let's take a step with what we can do.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right, thank you. Is there a speech in favor of reference? In the C section all the way in the back. No, over -. OK, the card's down. All the way back in B, microphone 13. I take it you're speaking in support of reference. Give us your name and conference.

WILLIAM T. MCCLENDON (South Carolina): I have a point of clarification which will enable me to make up my mind about reference.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right.

MCCLENDON: The item on page 1305 in the white book, in the bullets that the gentleman shared, mention a figure of $2.4 million and a figure of $100,000. I'm not sure where that money is going to come from. And I need that answer before I would like to refer.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Will the maker of the amendment concerning the finances, yes, will you come, please, to the microphone and respond to the question? Where is it that you anticipate this particular money to come from? Obviously, it would be referred to GCFA, according to our rules, but it's an appropriate question.

QUICK: And I'm not sure exactly where that money needs to come from best either. My recommendation would be that it be referred to GCFA for their insight.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right. Thank you, Jeff. That's the best we can do, sir. All right. Now, a speech in favor of the reference would be, unless you're ready to vote. A reference question, it seems to me, is fairly simple. Are you ready to vote? Time, you know, tomorrow night at midnight is coming. You're not ready to vote on this? All right, over here. Microphone 5. And which way are you speaking?

REBECCA C. CARVER (Iowa): I am speaking against referral. This week I turned 35 years old at this General Conference.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Happy Birthday.

CARVER: Thank you. I have waited all of my life to see The United Methodist Church take youth and young adults seriously, and to be committed to us. I have watched my friends walk away from the church. I'm a campus minister. I watch students walk away from the church because they do not feel that they are taken seriously. We cannot afford to spend four more years thinking about young adults and youth. We need to be supportive and keep them, keep all of us, in the church. I urge you to vote against referral.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right. This is properly before you. Are you ready, now, to vote? You're ready to vote. All right. This is on referral only. If you vote for referral, it takes the whole thing with it. The machine is working on this one. Will you vote when the light appears? The vote to refer is not supported. [Results: yes, 142; no, 777] We're back on the original amendment which takes a portion off of page 513, adds it to the budget on page 603. That amendment is before you. I've had one speech in favor. You're speaking to this? Are you speaking against it? A speech against it would be in order. Over here, then, microphone 5.

JIM HOLSINGER (Kentucky): Bishop, I move we suspend the rules and vote on that is before us.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right. You have a motion for suspending the rules and voting. Are you ready to receive that? Whichever way you wish to vote, do so when the light appears. [775 approved] The motion is supported. Do we have amended the document. Now, the document. I'm sorry. Thank you. I'm trying to do too many things. Thank you for your help. Now you're ready to vote. We need to hear from you, sir, before we vote.

SAMUEL WYNN (North Carolina): I would call your attention to the emphasis that GCOM as well as this General Conference is trying to enhance. We have been in depth, listening sessions, we are trying very intently to address the needs of the youth. We believe that this is a good beginning, and over the next four years I believe very positively that some things will come from this that will enhance the youth of our church.

BISHOP YEAKEL: I thank you. Now you have the amendment before you. Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 589; no, 329] The amendment is adopted. Now the whole thing as amended is before you. There is still one last speech from the chair.

WYNN: One of the questions that was asked earlier, and that was in reference to page 305, the $2.4 million. There has been no consultation or dialogue with GCFA about where this money would come from. And I would ask you to take note of that. We are trying to address the need of the youth within our denomination, and we feel that the proposal that we have will adequately begin that process.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right. You now will vote on the item as amended with the budget information. Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 753; no, 173] You have adopted this calendar item. And it is referred automatically to GCFA. Now, Sam, I'm going to interrupt you and do some other things at the moment.

Jurisdictional Committee on Episcopacy Confirmed

If you will turn in your blue book to page 31, or your red book to pages 80 and 81, the Inter Jurisdictional Committee on Episcopacy needs to be elected. The nominations are appropriately before you. They come from each of the conferences so represented, and it just requires your confirmation. If you will confirm the Inter Jurisdictional Committee on Episcopacy please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 819; no, 30] It is confirmed.

*Weems Bigham,
Gonzales, Bing-Harnis Elected to University Senate*

Now, I want to, working with the folks wherever they are, I keep saying the booth. They're in the booth or someplace around here. The report of the University Senate election, of the CEO category. Will you please give that to us? Well, now you make me work. We have elected then, Weems and Bigham, is that correct? They are the two highest number of vote getters. The records show Weems 441, Bigham 281, and they are elected. Now the non-CEO category. Gonzales, 437; and Bing Harris, 418; and they are elected. There is no further work to be done on the University Senate.

Tews, Sweet, Brockwell, Collins, Pickens, Cain, Clergy Elected to Judicial Council

Now will you put up the information on the Judicial Council clergy? Six persons to be elected. They must have a majority of the ballot. Needed for election is 366. Will you put up? We have elected, I believe, all six. Tews 595, Sweet 579, Brockwell 555, Collins 508, Pickens 481, and Cain 464. All have received the appropriate number of ballots needed and are elected. Now may we have the ballot for the Judicial Council of the Laity. Needed to elect will be 331, and will you give us the slate? Grey received 452, BISHOP YEAKEL: Geis 440, and Hill 361, they are elected.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Will you make a note for yourselves, of the other persons so that when we convene this afternoon we will take another ballot for three more lay persons for the Judicial Council alternates. You need to go to the two screens, would you give us the first screen again? Beginning with Plowman, Sessums, Lett, Church, Bonney, Gordon, Pangiban, Danburam. And there's two names on the other side, Kolasa and McLane. If you can make a note for yourself for the persons, you need to consider three. We will do that voting this afternoon.

We'll go to announcements at this time, then I'll survey the membership. Announcements please, madam secretary.

CAROLYN M. MARSHALL: I will have to ask your forbearance because there are several announcements. More than we have had at any one session so far during the General Conference.

The first is a request for the Philippines delegates to meet on the right hand side of the platform right after the morning session. And also a request that the three bishops from the Philippines meet with them.

One, just a comment, we've received a fly back and I'll have to thank the delegation that has sent numerous messages about lights, we'll say to you that we get requests here as far as heat, first its too hot and then its too cold, and we keep relaying those messages. Then lights are bright then they're not bright, and so right now we seem to have gotten them where at least the people who have been bothered by them are happy. Thank you for our word of appreciation in the various languages.

A note that there are valuable items available in the lost and found, and if you have lost something and would like to meet up with it again, there is a probability that it is at the information desk.

Just a few moments ago we elected the Inter-jurisdictional Committee on Episcopacy. That committee will convene this evening in room A 209

In today's DCA, on page 537, there is a listing of schedules for the airport shuttle. If you happen to be in one of the hotels that is not listed, would you please go to room A113 to make arrangements. That is, the original is listed on page 537 in today's DCA.

And, a word to you, we have been blessed during this general conference by the music leadership of Cynthia Wilson-Felder and S. T. Kimbrough. They, as a special for this particular conference, did record spiritual songs from the American experience. There are solos by each of them as well as duets, and those are available in both CD and cassette form in the Cokesbury display.

And, then this one for our use, this comes to us from the Denver Visitors and Convention Bureau. And, I'm going to read it in its entirety: "We have been made aware of some unfortunate communications which several of you may have received from your hotels. We apologize for any inconvenience or confusion that may have been created. These are the steps that you should take to resolve any problem. For those of you who have received letters, go to the front desk of your hotel and request to extend your stay. In most cases they will be able to help you. In the event your hotel cannot extend your stay, please call this telephone number, 571-9431, between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. to discuss alternatives. This number will also be posted at the information desk in lobby A. You will NOT, in caps, be put on the street. There are hotel rooms available. Please know that this problem is not, again the not is emphasized, created by the United Methodist conference office. In some cases reservation forms noted Friday check out; in other cases letters were delivered inadvertently. Again, we apologize for any inconvenience. We trust you will continue to enjoy your stay in the Mile High city.

Bishop, that completes the announcements.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Thank you. Let me call now for Mary Silva for a point of personal privilege. Is that Mary Silva at microphone 7? Thank you.

BYRD BONNER (Southwest Texas):

MARY SILVA (Rio Grande): And we move that we allow Bishop Ray

Owen and the heads of the delegation from Rio Grande conference and Southwest Texas conference to make a presentation.

MINERVA G. CARCAÑO (Rio Grande).

San Antonio Area Gives Hispanic Hymnal to All Delegates

JANICE RIGGLE K. HUIE (Southwest Texas) [spoken alternately]

On April 20th this General Conference received the gift of its first hymnal in the Spanish language, Mil Voces Para Celebrar. This body rejoiced in celebration making the Spanish language hymnal an official hymnal of the United Methodist Church. This hymnal comes at a time when the United Methodist Church is experiencing great growth in its ministry with and among Hispanics. And so as a sign of our ongoing commitment to Hispanic ministry, and our rejoicing over the new Spanish language hymnal, the Southwest Texas and the Rio Grande conferences, the San Antonio area is pleased to be able to give each delegate of this General Conference a copy of Mil Voces Para Celebrar. We hope and pray that this gift to each of you will inspire and strengthen our United Methodist commitment to Hispanic ministry.

Bishop, we have two motions, please. We move that the rules be suspended to allow the hymnal to be placed at each delegates desk during the lunch hour. (applause)

BISHOP YEAKEL: I think you've got your motion granted.

HUIE: And we also move that you give one of these hymnals to Hillary

Rodham Clinton on our behalf. (applause)

BISHOP YEAKEL: I'll be pleased to see that's taken care of.

HUIE: And now we call on Bishop Owen.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Bishop Owen, please.

BISHOP RAYMOND OWEN: This expression of our connection is only one of the many reasons I count it a high privilege to be the bishop of the San Antonio area, which consists of the Southwest Texas and Rio Grande conferences. Our cabinets and our councils are working together to explore and strategize how better, together, we can fulfill the plan of the Hispanic ministry. Rio Grande conference overlaps six annual conferences in Texas and in New Mexico. With this gift we now overlap with all of the conferences all over the world. May this hymnal, Mil Voces Para Celebrar, be a blessing to you as you connect your local church with Hispanic ministries in your own local communities. Thank you. (applause)

BISHOP YEAKEL: Thank you, very much Bishop Owen. All right. I was looking for Sandra Lackore. Is she in the back of the room or up in the front. May I suggest that the Calendar Committee and the Agenda Committee...

Our plans and our agenda for this afternoon were to deal with the fiscal matters, with the major fiscal matter of this morning. GCFA's requesting that they be delayed until tomorrow on their agenda. You'll need to consult over lunchtime, but this at least signals that possibility to you, Sarah, and to the body and if...I think the other thing that should be said is if there are any other items with dollars assigned to them that are lurking out there, that we haven't had before us, we really need to get them on as quickly as possible so that GCFA has the total package to work on. Microphone 3, please.

BECKY HAASE (California-Pacific): Just a moment of personal privilege. At the conclusion of this session, this morning's session, there will be a memorial service being held in room C105 for David Harada, who is a minister of the California-Pacific Annual Conference, and has been a past member of the General Conference. He has died during the time that we have been here, and we would just welcome anyone who would care to join our delegation in that service.

BISHOP YEAKEL: Thank you for that invitation. Now, one more from the secretary.

CAROLYN MARSHALL: During the General Conference we have been appreciating the ministry of music, which has been brought by the choirs, which are shared during worship, and which have again been sharing during the noon hour. Those, as we are now aware, have been held in the perfunctory area near the ballrooms. Today, we make a change in location for the deaf choir, who ministered to us this morning. They will be sharing again this afternoon at 1:30; however, the location this time will be in this plenary hall.

BISHOP YEAKEL: All right. Thank you. I've asked Bishop Abel Muzorewa, retired bishop from Zimbabwe to speak for us a word of prayer and benediction as we conclude, we will meet at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

[prayer]

Thursday Afternoon April 25, 1996

Bishop William B. Oden, presiding

"Songs For the Poor"

BISHOP WILLIAM B. ODEN: As the delegates are coming in and taking seats for the afternoon session, I want to call on S.T. Kimbrough, our song leader for a very special moment.

S.T. KIMBROUGH: Our bishops have reminded us of the importance of our service and ministry among the poor, with the program that they are developing for the church. Mrs. Clinton reminded us yesterday of the long-standing interests of Methodists in ministry to the poor. In just a moment as we gather, we're going to sing two stanzas of a hymn that we do not know by Charles Wesley. He wrote a number of hymns that have to do specifically with ministry to the poor that never made it into our hymn books, which is a rather strange commentary on our lives as Methodist Christians. You can find these on a compact disc at Cokesbury, called "Songs For the Poor."

I invite you to join me in singing two stanzas of one of these hymns. The words will be projected, the tune is extremely familiar to many of us. To some, perhaps, not. You know it as traditionally tied to the hymn "Faith of Our Fathers" the tune known as "Saint Catherine." Would you join me and stand as we sing, "The poor as Jesus' bosom friends, the poor he makes his latest care, to all his followers commends and wills us on our hands to bear"? And notice what he says in the last stanza—Charles Wesley invites us to make the poor our friends. So that when we meet them in heaven, we will know that they, indeed, are our friends who have been Jesus' bosom friends. May we sing?

[song]

The proceeds from this project go to the Bishops' Appeal for Africa. Join us in celebrating ministry to the poor in the song of our own tradition, Charles Wesley's words.

BISHOP ODEN: Thank you Mr. Kimbrough. Please be seated. I would like to call us to do our time of discernment in a bit of a different way this afternoon. While we are all together, and yet, in each of our hearts, let us ask ourselves in silence what we would like to see happen this afternoon that will be the will of God for this church. Let us do that in silence and I will close in prayer.

[prayer]

BISHOP WILLIAM B. ODEN: I would like to begin this afternoon by asking the house if you would be willing to move quickly into our afternoon agenda, which is very heavy, and to hold our privileged motions that you may have until the end of our session so that we might move immediately into what is before us. (applause) I would like to call on only one such motion because of the large number of red shirts to the conference's right. So I'm going to ask Betty Whitehurst to share with us a word about those red coats that have invaded us. Betty? Microphone 9.

Volunteers in Mission

BETTY C. WHITEHURST (Virginia): I request a moment of personal privilege to introduce a very special group of persons who are visiting us this afternoon. While we have been busy about the Lord's work in our legislative committees and plenary sessions during these two weeks, Volunteers in Mission have completed one Habitat for Humanity house here in Denver and have another house almost completed. (applause) Volunteers have also worked at six community service sites. A total of 326 volunteers from 19 states and 11 other countries have worked together on these projects. The representatives from other countries include bishops, presidents, and executive secretaries of national churches, as well as coordinators of Volunteers in Mission. A group of these volunteers is here in the bleachers in the red shirts. I would like to recognize the Rev. John Laughlin who has organized this, he coordinates Volunteers in Missions in the Rocky Mountain Conference, and thank him and all the volunteers for their work. (applause)

BISHOP ODEN: Volunteers, we send you out this afternoon to work on our behalf as well. God bless.

Ballot for Alternate Lay Member of Judicial Council

We're now ready for the third ballot on the alternate lay members of the Judicial Council. We would like to ask that these names might be put on the screen that we might once again see them. The names are before you, numbers 1 through 13. You will vote for three. One at a time, but vote for three. These are the lay alternates to the Judicial Council. Vote when the light appears. The voting is complete. Now, vote again when the light appears. One more time, vote when the light appears. Thank you very much. We're to wait for a report from the tabulation. We will move on into calendar items and come back to the results. The first committee to report is Global Ministries, and I call upon Carolyn Johnson.

Interagency Task Force on AIDS

CAROLYN E. JOHNSON (North Indiana): Thank you, Bishop. This afternoon as we progress through what I hope will be the concluding items for legislative committee group number 6, Global Ministries. The first calendar item is found on the blue book in page 171, and it's Calendar Item 439. This calendar item refers to the Interagency Task Force on AIDS on which you had a presentation early in the General Conference. There is some supporting information that's found in the Advance DCA, the red book, on page 744, and specifically this is Petition 21674.

BISHOP ODEN: Does everyone have that? Page 171 in the blue book, Calendar Item 439, Advance DCA, page 744.

JOHNSON: The recommendation of the legislative committee on its vote of 107 for, zero against, and zero not voting was to recommend concurrence, and because of the financial implications, that's why it's brought to you for reference to GCFA. And I so move, Bishop.

BISHOP ODEN: The report is before you. Is there discussion?

BISHOP ODEN: I believe we are ready to vote. All in favor of the motion before you, vote when the light appears. Opposed, vote "no." They are almost reprogrammed. Vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 685; no, 39] You have voted overwhelmingly to support the motion.

National Committee on Deaf Ministry

JOHNSON (North Carolina): Thank you. Yes. Our next item is also found on the same page, 171. It's Calendar Item 440. This refers to the National Committee on Deaf Ministries. There is supporting information in your red DCA; however, that entire document has been reprinted before you. So if you're on page 171, you will have all the back-up information. This refers to Petition 21346. On a vote of 107 for, zero against and 1 not voting, the committee recommends concurrence, with one amendment. And that amendment you will see at Roman numeral 2, item B. That's in the second column. In bold face you will see where the word "encourage" is recommended to be substituted for the words "adopt a policy that requires." The committee recommends concurrence as amended, with reference to GCFA. And I so move.

BISHOP ODEN: This is before us even though it was unanimous in the committee because of the referral to GCFA. I see a card. Would you go to microphone 6?

BARBARA W. RIDDLE (Florida): Just again a clarification that I think I asked for Monday or Tuesday. That is, is this already in the proposed budget that's being presented to us, or is this in addition? And we've already voted on the other one, but particularly in reference to this.

BISHOP ODEN: Will the chair respond?

CAROLYN JOHNSON: Yes, I can respond as the status of it as of the legislative committee met. If you will recall, last quadrennium when the General Conference voted on a Mission Initiatives Fund, this item was in that fund. And with our pre-mailing this year, we were told both in the Report 16 from GCFA as well as in the Multiplier Gifts book that all those items that have previously been in Mission Initiative Funds would, for the 1997-2000 quadrennium, be listed in World Service. Now as we had our consultation with Financial Administration, it was our understanding that this would be an item in the World Service budget. However, you may want someone specifically from Financial Administration or GCFA to comment on that. But it is to be a World Service line item.

BISHOP ODEN: All right. I see no more cards. We're ready to vote. Vote when the light appears. [704 approved] You have overwhelmingly supported the committee's motion.

JOHNSON: Thank you, Bishop. Our next item is found in your blue DCA on page 215. That's Calendar Item 575.

BISHOP ODEN: 575 page 215 of the blue DCA.

National Comprehensive Plan for Town and Country

JOHNSON: And, again, the supporting documentation is found in your red book, page 284. This is Petition 21356, The National Comprehensive Plan For Town and Country. This item was originally placed on the Consent Calendar and was lifted from the Consent Calendar. The committee's recommendation was concurrence with amendment, and that was by the addition of the words "successor agencies." I would so move, Bishop.

BISHOP ODEN: All right. Is this a calendar item that requires referral to GCFA?

JOHNSON: No, it is not.

BISHOP ODEN: OK, thank you. I see a card to the left. Microphone 4. ED KAIL (Iowa): Thank you, Bishop. I would like to offer an amendment, please.

BISHOP ODEN: All right. That's in order.

KAIL: In Calendar Item 575, as on page 215, in the second "whereas" paragraph after the word "whereas," insert the word "some" and change the word "ministry" to "ministries." And after the word "despair," replace the semicolon with a comma and add the following language: "while other ministries in town and country settings must deal with radical changes caused by population growth, rapid economic development, and conflicts of culture."

BISHOP ODEN: Would you repeat that one more time? The last part.

KAIL: Let me give this to the page to send up to you.

BISHOP ODEN: Fine.

KAIL: The last part would say "while other ministries in town and country settings must deal with radical changes caused by population growth, rapid economic development, and conflicts of culture."

BISHOP ODEN: All right. The Kail amendment is before you. Would anyone like to speak to it?

KAIL: May I speak?

BISHOP ODEN: Please.

KAIL: Delegates to the General Conference, on behalf of friends and colleagues in the United Methodist Rural Fellowship, I want to thank you for indulging this amendment in support of the Town and Country Ministries. I understand that this is noncontroversial. Voting against Town and Country Ministries or ruralness is like voting against motherhood and apple pie. But the issue is not your moral support. The issue is your connective commitment. At this point, as far as I'm aware, there is only one seminary among our 13 United Methodist seminaries which has a dedicated position named for Town and Country Ministries. If I'm wrong, I sure would like to know about it.

There are three regional Rural Life Centers operating currently, but all three of those struggle year-by-year, even week-by-week for the financial support to sustain them as a real resource for rural ministry. We have one person in the office of Town and Country Ministries in the National Division, but that person has a multiple portfolio which takes her far beyond Town and Country Ministries. What we're calling for here is development of a national comprehensive plan for Town and Country Ministries.

I'd like to try just a little bit of research right now. Those clergy and lay delegates who would self-identify themselves as being from rural or town and country settings, would you please stand? It's encouraging to see so many of you sisters and brothers who actually did get elected to the General Conference. So often people in rural and town and country settings feel that it's other folks who have the majority voice in setting policy for our church. But now let's add to the district superintendents who have rural or town and country churches and ministries in their district. Would you please stand? This connective relationship is very vitally important.

BISHOP ODEN: You have less than a minute.

Urban Network "Holy Boldness" Plan

KAIL: Thank you. I appreciate the warning. Do you see the potential present if a national comprehensive plan could be developed? We rejoice with the sisters and brothers of the National Urban Network in their development of their plan Holy Boldness. It's been exciting to see how that process of development has created new excitement, new passion, new energy, new commitment. We the advocates for Town and Country Ministries ask for your support and your connective commitment in developing a similar movement for revival in rural ministries. Thank you.

BISHOP ODEN: All right, thank you. That's a speech for the amendment. Is there a speech against? I see none. Are we ready to vote on the amendment? Vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 620; no, 129] You have supported the amendment. It now becomes a part of the main motion. Calendar Item 575. Is there any discussion on that calendar item?

I see a card. Go to microphone 9.

FRANK L. DORSEY (Kansas East): I want to speak very much for this proposal because it is so terribly important to this church of ours. We still have more United Methodist churches than post offices. We are linked across this great land. But there has been a time of the devastation of community that is destructive to the life of rural community. And we must be about building community in our rural communities and in our urban communities. Jean Sindab wrote an article and shared it with me before it was published. Jean recently passed away at a great loss for the ecumenical community. She described what was happening in the core of our cities across the land by saying that what was happening to those cores was de-industrialization, disinvestment, and demonization. I told Jean that in my experience, under the current crisis that we continue to experience in rural America, that that was precisely what we were experiencing there too, the devastation of community that is so important to our total church and to this nation.

BISHOP ODEN: Thank you. Is there a speech against? I see none, which signifies we're ready to vote. So we're on Calendar Item 575 on page 215. The motion is before you, vote when the light appears. [778 approved] You have supported the calendar item.

Before we proceed, I need to let you know that there was no election for the Judicial Council lay alternates. And we will go to the next calendar item, Carolyn, but then we're also going to put those persons who are in the electronic box on notice that after that we'll come back for an election time.

Communities of Shalom Legislation

JOHNSON: Thank you. Next you will remain on page 215, our next calendar item is Calendar Item 576. Again, the supporting documentation is in your red book on page 796. This refers to Petition 21363, "Communities of Shalom." This petition also was originally on the Consent Calendar, and you will recall there was a note from the Calendar Office lifting it off because of its potential financial implications, which have now been discovered to be the fact that, since it is in an existing budget, we will not need to move any reference to you; but it is still before you again. So, on behalf of the committee, I would move concurrence as amended, and you will notice the amendments you will find on page 216 in the bold-faced type. And I so move.

BISHOP ODEN: Calendar Item 576 is before us. Would you like to speak to the item? Microphone 3.

STEFANIE A. GRAY (California-Pacific): I'd like to propose an amendment.

BISHOP ODEN: That is in order.

GRAY: The amendment would follow the sentence, the sixth paragraph down, where it says, "The committee shall be composed of 12 members and two ex officio members... There shall be six... The general secretary of the General Board of..." OK. So right before "The general secretary of the General Board," I'd like to insert the words "at least one of these members will be a young person under the age of 30 that resides in a Community of Shalom."

BISHOP ODEN: The amendment is before you. Make sure the secretary has a copy of that. Carolyn, I assume we'll need to go on then to floor discussion.

JOHNSON: Yes, I think so.

BISHOP ODEN: Would you like to speak to your amendment?

GRAY: Well, I think that the Communities of Shalom I've witnessed in my city, in Los Angeles, are a very vital part of the renewal of cities and of people's morale, and I also believe strongly that young people within those communities can take a great part in the uplifting of those Communities of Shalom, and so that's why I would propose this amendment.

BISHOP ODEN: OK. The amendment is before you. Is there someone who would like to oppose the amendment, who would like to speak against it? I do not see a card, so we're ready for the amendment that is before us. Vote when the light appears. [726 approved] It does prevail, so the Gray amendment is now part of the calendar item. Are we ready to vote on the calendar item or does anyone wish to speak to it. I see no cards. Vote when the light appears. [818 approved] It does prevail.

JOHNSON: Bishop?

BISHOP ODEN: Yes?

JOHNSON: After the period of balancing, our vice chair will bring the next items.

No Election of Lay Alternate to Judicial Council

BISHOP ODEN: Thank you, Carolyn. We now would like to ask that the results of the Judicial Council lay alternatives be put on the screen that we might see them and proceed with that voting. I don't believe I need to read those to you. (Plowman, 285; Sessums, 247; Church, 237; Lett, 231; Bonney, 215; Gordon, 163; Panganiban, 120; Danburam, 92; Kolasa, 86; McClain, 84; Gray, 5) There is no election. Now we're ready to vote, and we ask that the names might once again appear on the screen. And we will vote three times, one time for each person. Vote when the light appears. Vote again when the light appears. Thank you. Now we're ready to proceed with the calendar item.

National Consultation on Cooperative Ministries

HOWARD DAUGHENBAUGH (Central Illinois): Bishop, I would like to address our attention, if we could please, to page 174 in the blue book. Calendar Item 445. In the white book, page 1370, is the supporting material. The petition printed there is Petition 22661. It's in the lower left-hand column, on page 1370. The legislative committee recommends concurrence by a vote of: 108 for, zero against, and zero abstaining. And a referral to GCFA because of the financial implications. I move the adoption of the item.

BISHOP ODEN: The motion is before you to adopt Calendar Item 445. Is there discussion? I see none, which means we're ready to vote. I'm sorry, halfway back on my right. Go to microphone 6.

BARBARA W. RIDDLE (Florida): I am really embarrassed to have to ask this again, but could we, sir, have definition when we're referring for financial implications, so those of us that are needing to vote will know whether this is within the proposed budget, or is this being referred as additional. I would appreciate that, sir.

BISHOP ODEN: I think that's a legitimate request, and would ask the committee to so indicate.

DAUGHENBAUGH: It is my understanding in this case that this is additional. It has been referred to GCFA, and if someone from the council would like to speak to that, that's fine. It will come back to us, it is my understanding, from having talked to one of them, tomorrow, in their presentation.

BISHOP ODEN: All right, far back, go to microphone 13.

EWING WERLEIN (Texas): I would like to ask the presenter what the anticipated financial implications are on this petition number. In hastily reading it, I have been unable to find how much money, how much additional money, is being requested.

DAUGHENBAUGH: That has been a puzzle to us, as well. We do not have the answer to that.

BISHOP ODEN: Does anyone else wish to speak to the motion? Microphone 14. I saw a card waving toward the back. Microphone 9.

JAMES L. BRANSCOME (Virginia): I don't appreciate having to vote on something that has financial implications without knowing what those implications are. I think we should do something with this to find out if we need to defer it or something. But we need to know how much money we're voting on before we vote.

BISHOP ODEN: It's a speech against the motion. Is there a speech for the motion? Yes.

KAIL: Do I understand correctly, we're dealing with Petition 22661 on the white DCA 1370?

BISHOP ODEN: That's my understanding.

KAIL: Thank you. This petition rose out of the experience of over 400 people who gathered in Louisville, Ky., this last November for the fourth National Consultation on Cooperative Ministries. Out of that experience and the enthusiasm that came from the urban, and suburban, and rural people who were there exploring new models for ministry, this team of two people were delegated to generate this legislation.

I think, it is our belief, that a good amount of what is being asked for here can be done through the existing channels of the church and general agencies that are there. I'm sorry that I don't have a sense of what dollar figure might be involved in carrying on this kind of development, study, and discussion. But I hope that concern about the dollars will not keep use from affirming the principle. The cooperative ministry—whether it is in a cooperative parish, or many of the other forms that are emerging in the church—I hope that we will want to affirm that development. And if there are portions of this that do seem to call for the investing of new money through other channels than existing agencies, we should be open to deleting those particular references. But the emergence of cooperative ministry is a movement and trend in our church which I think now is really on a roll, and needs to be respected, and now given the guidance of the church.

So I ask you to affirm and support this petition.

BISHOP ODEN: Thank you. That's a speech for the motion. Is there a speech against? To the left, microphone 5.

JIM HOLSINGER (Kentucky): I'd like to ask a quick question. Is it in order to amend this document in order to preclude the use of apportioned funds?

BISHOP ODEN: I see no reason why that motion, or that amendment, would be out of order.

HOLSINGER: Then I would move that we amend the base petition to authorize the use of no apportioned funds so that we can go ahead and approve the petition.

BISHOP ODEN: So there is an amendment. The Holsinger amendment calls for no apportioned funds to accompany this calendar item. Would someone like to speak for or against the amendment that is before us? Far, the middle one here, to microphone 9, white coat.

ARNOLD RHODES (Western Pennsylvania): I rise to speak against the motion, because the resolution that is before us is asking the General Council on Ministry to incorporate into its work the policy of cooperative parish ministry. If you take note, a number of those things that are being recommended are already in place and can be added to the portfolio of the General Council on Ministries.

BISHOP ODEN: All right, that is a speech against the Holsinger amendment. Is there a speech for? Yes. Microphone 1.

PORTER J. WOMELDORFF (Central Illinois): I would like to offer a friendly amendment if Jim Holsinger will accept it, and otherwise, less than friendly amendment. (laughter) That is that we add the word, "additional" ahead of "apportioned," and if there's a second, I'll speak to it. Or if he accepts it, I'll speak to it.

BISHOP ODEN: Is there a second? It is seconded? Mr. Holsinger, will you, do you accept that? Microphone 5.

JIM HOLSINGER (Kentucky): I will be happy to accept my friend Porter Womeldorf's friendly amendment. It's what I had in mind.

BISHOP ODEN: All right. So there is no amendment to the amendment because the amendment to the amendment was friendly. We're now back on the Holsinger amendment, and we have had one speech against. Is there a speech for? Yes. Microphone 4.

KAIL: A question, Bishop. Does this matter of apportioned funds, does that preclude the involvement of the General Council on Ministries?

HOWARD DAUGHENBAUGH JR. (Central Illinois): You'll have to ask the presenter. I would think not.

BISHOP ODEN: OK, that is a question. We still need a speech in favor of the Holsinger amendment. Far back, go to microphone 7.

E. MALONE DODSON (North Georgia): I speak in favor of the amendment. That makes two. (laughter)

BISHOP ODEN: Is there a speech opposing the amendment? The person far back, standing.

JAMES H. RUSH (South Georgia): Sir, I make a motion that we table this whole paragraph and petition until the financial business can be worked out for the entire conference.

BISHOP ODEN: Well, the motion to table is in order. It is not debatable. Is there a second? It has been seconded. If you favor tabling the motion, vote when the light appears. And you do not vote to table. [Results: yes, 247; no, 634]

DAUGHENBAUGH: Bishop. Here. Is it in order for me to say that, since this is a friendly amendment, to be friendly and to accept that as a part of the report?

BISHOP ODEN: Well, I believe so.

DAUGHENBAUGH: All right, we'll do that then.

BISHOP ODEN: All right, so the Holsinger amendment is now a part of your report. Is that correct?

DAUGHENBAUGH: That's correct.

BISHOP ODEN: As amended. And now we're ready to vote, I believe. I see no cards. If you would favor— Yes, far back, section C, go to microphone 13, I believe.

EWING WERLEIN JR. (Texas): I want to make sure that I understand the Holsinger amendment that has been accepted. As I understand it, it is an amendment that no additional apportioned funds would be used for this matter. Since we have not apportioned any funds yet, I infer that the amendment must mean no additional apportioned funds other than the $503,500,000 proposed in the GCFA budget on page 285 of the Advance DCA. I would like clarification on that to make sure that we understand what no additional apportioned funds means.

DAUGHENBAUGH: My response to that is - Mr. Holsinger has his card up over there, but my response to that is that, that would mean that it would be in the GCOM funding amounts available to them currently.

BISHOP ODEN: Does that answer your question? All right. Are we ready to vote, then? We will, we're now voting. Would you vote when the light appears? [797 approved]

You have voted affirmative on the calendar item. Thank you. Before we continue with the other calendar items, the vote is now ready on the Judicial Council. We have had two elections, we're going to show the screen and then we're going to continue our voting until the election is completed. So will the Judicial Council lay alternate election results please show on the screen? You have elected Plowman and Sessums.

Church Elected Lay Alternate to Judicial Council

Now let's see the list once more. Vote for one when the light appears. [vote] There is no election. Vote for one when the light appears. There's the list and the light. [vote] You have elected Church. [Church 352]

That completes the total election of the Judicial Council, clergy and lay.

We're now back to calendar items that are before us.

Proposed Committee on Audit and Review

DAUGHENBAUGH: The next one I would like to direct your attention to is on page 255 of the blue book. It is Calendar Item 767, Committee on Audit and Review. The supporting material for it is found on page 752 of your red book. It is Petition 20080, beginning in the lower left hand column of page 752 and continuing into the upper right hand column. The committee recommends nonconcurrency by a vote of 88 for nonconcurrency, 8 against, 4 abstaining. You can tell that the essence of the petition is to amend paragraph 1407 of the Discipline by calling for a new paragraph 1407.2 which would provide for a Committee on Audit and Review in the General Board of Global Ministries and elected by the General Board of Global Ministries. The committee's rationale for recommending nonconcurrency was based on the fact that we felt there was no need to create another level of auditing responsibility in addition to that which already exists, because the current process is working well and meets the standards recommended by Price Waterhouse, the auditing firm for the General Board. And, so the committee recommends nonconcurrency. And I move that action at this point.

BISHOP ODEN: The recommendation of the committee is nonconcurrency. And, it is before you. We are on Calendar Item 767. Does anyone wish to speak to this calendar item? I see no hands, which means we're ready to vote. Vote when the light appears. I'm sorry. Thank you, go to microphone 2.

JACK SCOTT (Louisville): I speak from the perspective of many years experience in banking and business. Eight years as a BGM director in finance investments have made me very appreciative of sound audit and control systems. I stand for nonconcurrency. The committee structure at GCFA and GBGM is presently effective and meets recommended audit standards noted by auditor Price Waterhouse and the accounting profession. This issue has been reviewed in detail by GBGM directors and has been voted down on two separate occasions. An oversight committee would simply add directors to an already effective structure. Requiring such a committee for all boards and agencies just adds one more structure. Thank you.

BISHOP ODEN: So that is a speech supporting the committee's recommendation. Is there a speech opposing the committee's recommendation of nonconcurrency? I see none. We are ready to vote, voted when the light appears. You have supported the committee's recommendation of nonconcurrency. [801 approved] Please continue.

Bishops' Working Group on Missions

DAUGHENBAUGH: The next item is on page 255 of the blue book, just continuing down that right hand column on that page to Calendar Item 768, subject of which is reaffirmation of the bishops' working group on mission. The supporting material is found on page 754 in your red book. It is Petition 20220. The committee recommends nonconcurrency by a vote of 93 for nonconcurrency, 8 against, 2 abstaining. This petition, as you can tell, proposes an amendment to paragraph 1411.3 to the Discipline by adding a new paragraph 1411.3d. It calls for the GBGM to place the highest priority—oh, I used an abbreviation!—General Board of Global Ministries—place the highest priority on providing full support for our missionaries from World Service apportionments. Committee's rationale for recommending nonconcurrency is based on the fact that, in our judgment, approval of this petition would tend to reduce the local church's participation in providing financial support of our missionaries through such arrangements as the covenantal relationships and support of Advance Specials. So we recommend nonconcurrency and I move that action.

BISHOP ODEN: Thank you, Mr. Daughenbaugh. The recommendation of nonconcurrency is before the house. Does anyone wish to speak to it? I see no cards. Vote when the light appears. [791 approved] You have supported the committee's recommendation of nonconcurrency. Please continue.

Special Program on Substance Abuse and Related Violence

DAUGHENBAUGH: The next item is Calendar Item 769, also on page 255 of the blue book. And the supporting material, is on page 771 of the red book. It is Petition 21342. This is the Special Program on Substance Abuse and Related Violence. I think I may have gotten the wrong...771, I'm sorry.

DAUGHENBAUGH: That's correct. Petition 21342. Special Program on Substance Abuse and Related Violence. The legislative committee recommends concurrence by a vote of 106 for concurrence, zero against and 1 abstaining. This petition also contains a dollar figure, as you can see on the right hand column of 771 and it has been referred to GCFA.

The essence of the petition calls for a continuation of the Interagency Task Force on the Special Program on Substance Abuse and Related Violence, which was created by the '92 General Conference. It is the judgment of our committee that given our continuing societal problems in these areas, it is extremely important for the church to continue its involvement and ministry in these areas of human need. So we recommend concurrence. Now, I do not believe in this case that there is any new money involved. This would be a portion of the World Service dollars that would be made available for use in this program.

BISHOP ODEN: All right. Thank you very much. I see a card on microphone 6. Yes?

JAMES HARNISH (Florida): Let me just be clear. You're telling us that this $1,400,000 is included in the proposed budget that GCFA presented to us prior to the General Conference?

DAUGHENBAUGH: That's my understanding.

HARNISH: Because my understanding as we're running, our running total is that we have already added over $8 million on top of the proposed budget that GCFA had sent to us before General Conference. But this is already in there?

DAUGHENBAUGH: That's my understanding.

BISHOP ODEN: If this does pass, it will be referred immediately to GCFA. I see a card, please go to microphone 10.

ROLF LINDELL (Sweden): Bishop, I move an amendment by addition to this petition, and I would like the conference to look at page 771 in the red book. The text of the amendment should be inserted as a new bulleted paragraph following the second bulleted paragraph on page 771 of the Advanced DCA. The text goes like this: "Confronting the acute drug and alcohol abuse crisis in northern Europe, the Baltic nations, and the Russian Federation, the General Conference ensures funding of no less than $127,500 per year for the quadrennium, so United Methodist conferences and congregations can undertake a multi-faceted initiative modeled after the special program. This initiative is a direct result of United Methodist training conferences in Sweden, Estonia, and Russia during this past quadrennium. It will focus on equipping local congregations..."

BISHOP ODEN: Just a moment, Rolf. Before you continue. You have finished your motion? Am I now correct that you're entering into a time of speaking on behalf of it?

LINDELL: No.

BISHOP ODEN: You're still continuing the amendment?

LINDELL: I am still reading the amendment.

BISHOP ODEN: Excuse me.

LINDELL: Let me repeat the last sentence. "This initiative is a direct result of United Methodist training conferences in Sweden, Estonia, Russia during this past quadrennium. It will focus on equipping local congregations to educate young people on the spiritual, physical, and sociological benefits of drug and alcohol-free lives, and assisting addicted persons into lives of recovery and deliverance."

BISHOP ODEN: Thank you. Now is there a second to Rolf's motion? It has been seconded. Do you wish to speak to it?

LINDELL: Bishop, I would like the chair to give the floor to one of the Russian delegates, Andrei Kim. And due to the need of interpretation, perhaps extend his time a little. And also give Bishop Minor, from Moscow, some time for information in this issue.

BISHOP ODEN: All right. Since this does include a non-delegate, we will have to have the floor's permission. Do you grant the request that has just been made? If so, raise your hand. If opposed, the same sign. It is granted.

LINDELL: Thank you.

BISHOP ODEN: Bishop Minor and...all right. You may proceed. This is a speech in favor of the amendment.

Alcoholism in Russia Described

ANDREI KIM (translation from Russian): My dear brothers and sisters, I thank you for the possibility to speak about the problems of my church that are indeed the problems of the whole country of Russia. To which end alcoholism is leading, I would like to illustrate with an example that has been really frightening.

It happened to one of our sisters in Christ. She is a handicapped person. Her legs are paralyzed. One day as her son was at work she was sleeping in her chair and woke up because of her husband, who was stone drunk, was pouring kerosene over her and just about to set her ablaze. She only saved her life because she succeeded to take her crutches and to lash out at him. As she called the police, she was told that they would not deal with drunk persons except if he had beaten or slain her. There are no official government measures to fight these problems nowadays. However, I repeat again that this is an illness and grief of many Russians.

I'm grateful to the Lord and to those people who have been close to these problems, they organized a seminar on alcoholism and drug abuse in St. Petersburg. Because of this initiative, my church has begun a program that helps alcoholics and their family members. We are doing this together with AA and AL-ANON in the Baptist church. For the sake of time I'm not able to talk more explicitly, however, I will be glad to talk to any of you and to answer your questions if we meet in the break time later. Finally, I would like to say that the spiritual rebirth of our country depends on the way we will resolve this problem of alcoholism. Thank you.

BISHOP ODEN: Thank you Mr. Kim and Bishop Minor for translating.

BISHOP RUEDIGER MINOR: May I have a few words, bishop?

BISHOP ODEN: I think that would be in order because of the granting of the request of the body.

BISHOP MINOR: Thank you so much. There is probably no other country in the world where alcohol and the addiction to it are playing such a prominent role in the daily life as it is in Russia. And as we heard yesterday, it even suspended the iron rules of "Lemonade Lucy" in the White House. Therefore, we need to develop a special strategy to address this as the special program for this country has developed such a strategy. Imported strategies forced on the people have failed already. The sighing and longing is great throughout the country and the churches.

First results have already been produced, but we need to continue. As for the budget figures, I know this question will come. They need to be referred to GCFA and conversations have already been underway about increasing the budget. I do not talk about this lightly because I feel torn between my support for this important program and the concern that it might hurt other programs in case that we only redistribute funds. Help us to help our Russian brothers and sisters. As we pray, help us to help each other, Lord.

BISHOP ODEN: Bishop Minor, do you have an approximate figure of those budget estimates.

BISHOP MINOR: As it is in the amendment, $127,500 per year.

BISHOP ODEN: Thank you very much. Now I think it's important that we see where we are. We are on Calendar Item 769 on page 255. We have the Lindell amendment before us, and we have had one speech for the amendment. Before we continue I wonder if the secretary would read the amendment once more so we will have it firmly fixed in our minds. We are still waiting for it.

The amendment calls for a northern Europe initiative in drug and alcohol concerns, especially a Russian initiative, is the essence of the amendment. Now we have had a speech for the amendment. We're ready for a speech against the amendment. Yes sir. Microphone 9.

Funding for Northern European Drug and Alcohol Initiative Debated

RONALD SALYER (North Central New York): I have a question, specifically are we adding additionally another $508,000 to the $1,440,000 that's on the budget page?

BISHOP ODEN: We'll let the presenter answer that?

DAUGHENBAUGH: Yes.

BISHOP ODEN: OK, to the right, about half way back. Microphone 7. I'm sorry, 6. Try 6.

JAMES HARNISH (Florida): I'd like to try an amendment, bishop. I move that we amend to include this amount in the $1,400,000 budget amount that is in the petition. And if there is a second, I'll speak to it.

BISHOP ODEN: OK that is an amendment to the amendment.

Which is to include the funding for the Lindell Amendment in the $1,440,000 being requested. Is that correct?

HARNISH: Yes, sir.

BISHOP ODEN: Is there a second? It is seconded. So the Harnish amendment to the amendment is before us. Would someone like to speak to the amendment to the amendment?

HARNISH: May I speak to it? As many of you do, I have two young adult daughters, both of whom received credit cards in college, and my name was also on the credit card. And I discovered that my daughters found a multitude of wonderful things that they were able to use and to enjoy and to appreciate. But the bills all came to my address. And I sense that we are walking down that same path.

There's no question that we are committed to young adult and youth ministries. I come from a church in which the largest single item in our program budget is ministry for young adults and for children. We are committed to rural churches, we are committed to an effective drug and alcohol program, we are committed to the global concern for drug and alcohol abuse. But brothers and sisters, we have already increased the proposed budget by over $8 million in requests that will go to GCFA. I'm a little concerned about the process. The GCFA worked very diligently prior to the conference to recommend to us something of a reasonable goal for our commitments for the quadrennium ahead, and we continue to add to those, and somewhere, the credit card bill comes due and has to be taken home.

And as much as we're committed to the ministries, we also have to be responsible to the whole funding of the whole ministry of the church for the quadrennium. So I would urge you to be committed to this ministry, but to include it in the already proposed funds.

BISHOP ODEN: All right, that is a speech in favor of the Harnish amendment. Far back, standing up. Yes, sir. Microphone 13.

STEPHEN E. DRACHLER (Central Pennsylvania): I would like to offer a substitute for the Harnish amendment, please.

BISHOP ODEN: You're offering a substitute for the amendment to the amendment?

DRACHLER: Yes sir.

BISHOP ODEN: That is in order. Proceed.

DRACHLER: I would move that the funding for the amendment for the Northern Europe Conference's drug initiative be provided, if at all possible, from the contingency fund for the General Board of Global Ministries. If I have a second, I'll speak to it.

BISHOP ODEN: It is seconded. You may speak.

DRACHLER: My rationale is very simple on this. During the past quadrennium, in the Mission Initiatives Fund, which provided the funding for the special program on alcohol, drugs, and related violence, $1.8 million was provided for that special program. The proposal before you, offered by the committee, was $1.44 million. I believe that the full $1.8 million will show up during the upcoming quadrennium and is budgeted in the General Board of Global Ministries budget for that quadrennium. While it may mean that the full $510,000 may not get funded, I think it's only a matter of justice and fairness and of love and mercy for our brothers and sisters across the ocean that we approve this substitute. Thank you.

BISHOP ODEN: All right. The substitute is before us, by Drachler, and we also have had a speech for the substitute. This is a substitute for the Harnish amendment to the amendment. Microphone 3.

PAT STROMAN (Central Texas): Bishop, I move that we suspend the rules in order that we might vote on all that is before the house, before John Miles is not here. [laughter]

BISHOP ODEN: All right. It seems like we have a lot of fish to fry out there, anyway. We first need to vote on the motion to suspend the rules. This takes a two-thirds vote. Vote when the light appears. [786 approved] You have overwhelmingly voted to suspend the rules, and that means we're now ready to vote on what is before us, and we're just going to...I want to get our train on the track; all going the same way and the right way. Yes. Microphone 9.

SUSAN DAVIES (Nebraska): I have a question. Many have been standing up and talking about $8 million being added to the budget. That doesn't compute with some things that I have been writing down that have been talked about in terms of being referred to GCFA. Could we have someone clarify that so that we don't just operate under the assumption that that's just growing by leaps and bounds?

BISHOP ODEN: All right. I'm not sure who can answer that. Mr...Yes, microphone 9. Do you have an answer to that question?

TRACY MERRICK (Western Pennsylvania): I'm a member of GCFA. I've been meeting, as many of us have, on GCFa the last day or so. I don't know that I can give you a specific total because it seems to be changing rapidly. We'll be prepared to report on this tomorrow. The preliminary numbers are not $8 million, but I'd be a little reluctant to tell you right now what it is unless we have a little further material in front of us.

BISHOP ODEN: OK, thank you. Now, nothing is before us except to vote on all that is before us. So unless you have a question or a point of order, then you are out of order. Yes, ma'am? Microphone 4.

MAREYJOYCE GREEN (East Ohio): A question. Does what we're voting on now maintain the intent of the original amendment that was made by the person from Sweden?

BISHOP ODEN: We will simply have to take our motions in order. We will begin with the Drachler substitute. If that prevails, then that will replace the Harnish amendment to the amendment. If it does not, we will be on the Harnish amendment to the amendment. We will vote on it, and then, if it prevails, it will be amended to the Lindell amendment. Yes? Microphone 4.

GREEN: Question. Does this, if we, suppose we say yes to what we are voting on now, does that retain the spirit and intent of the prior amendment?

BISHOP ODEN: Yes, I think so. And in what way it does that will depend on our voting. We're now ready to vote. Question or a parliamentary inquiry or point of order is all that's in order. Yes? Microphone 7.

SUSAN HASSINGER (Eastern Pennsylvania): A question for information on the substitute. What would be the impact on General Board of Global Ministries if this were done?

BISHOP ODEN: Was it—repeat your question.

HASSINGER: Well, if I heard the substitute correctly, the request was for the funds to be taken from the total GBGM budget, and I'm not sure what proportion, what impact that would have on GBGM?

BISHOP ODEN: It's my understanding that the funds were, according to the substitute, to come from the contingency fund of GBGM, General Board of Global Ministries.

HASSINGER: And is there any sense of what percentage of the contingency that would be?

BISHOP ODEN: I'm not certain who could answer that question. I don't...there's a card. Can you answer the question directly, sir? No? I don't think we have an answer to that question. I think we are going to have to go ahead and vote. Question or parliamentary inquiry or point of order. Microphone 4.

LEON L. PALAGANAS (Central Luzon): Bishop, I just want to present a clarification on the proposed budget because in my computation here I am only adding $105,101, and the total budget here on sub-budget is $205,000. I just want to know whether the grant is $100 or $100,000.

BISHOP ODEN: I'm sorry, what was the question?

PALAGANAS: Should I repeat, Bishop?

BISHOP ODEN: We're working on it.

PALAGANAS: On page 771 and the proposed budget, the total amount here on sub-total is $205,000, but the amount of grant here is $100. Does it mean...?

BISHOP ODEN: $100,000.

DAUGHENBAUGH: I think, yes, $100,000.

PALAGANAS: Oh, this is $100,000.

BISHOP ODEN: Yes. OK, we're ready to vote? Microphone 9.

RON BRETSCHE (North Central New York): Thank you, Bishop. Point of parliamentary inquiry. Under the rules on the previous question, does Mr. Daughenbaugh, now at the podium, have an opportunity to address?

BISHOP ODEN: Yes, he does. I'm going to clear the floor and then turn to our presenter. Unless there is a point of order or a question. Microphone 14. Yes, microphone 9.

ZEDNA HAVERSTOCK (Central Pennsylvania): I was a member of the legislative committee that dealt with this, Bishop, and one of the actions that we took was to, in our...

BISHOP ODEN: OK, do you have a question or a parliamentary inquiry?

HAVERSTOCK: I'm hoping it's a point of clarification on the funding.

ODEN: I believe we are ready to vote. OK, now, let me see if, I believe that we first vote on the substitute, and then we'll go from there, and then before we vote on the main motion, then you will have a chance to speak. OK. Sir, you will be able to speak on each point as we move.

DAUGHENBAUGH: All right.

BISHOP ODEN: If you so desire. We're now ready to vote for the substitute. So if you favor the Drachler substitute, you will vote "yes;" if not, you will vote "no." Vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 457; no, 423] OK, the Drachler substitute does prevail and replaces the Harnish amendment to the amendment. So the substitute now becomes the amendment to the Lindell amendment.

Now, we're ready to vote on the Lindell amendment. I wonder if it should be read first. We're going to ask the secretary to read it.

CAROLYN MARSHALL: "Confronting the acute drug and alcohol abuse crisis in northern Europe, the Baltic nations, and the Russian Federation, the General Conference insures funding of no less than $127,500 per year for the quadrennium, so United Methodist conferences and congregations can undertake a multi-faceted initiative modeled after the special program. This initiative is a direct result of the United Methodist training conferences in Sweden, Estonia, and Russia during this past quadrennium. It will focus on equipping local congregations to educate young people on the spiritual, physical, and sociological benefits of drug- and alcohol-free lives, and assisting addicted persons into lives of recovery and deliverance."

BISHOP ODEN: Now could you read the substitute which is now a part of that amendment?

MARSHALL: That is to direct the General Board of Global Ministries to provide funding for northern European drug initiative from the General Board of Global Ministries contingency funds.

BISHOP ODEN: Now I believe that the presenter does have a right to speak to this, but from the floor, no one has the right of floor access. If this is a parliamentary inquiry or point of order, it is in order.

BECKY HAASE (California-Pacific): Point of order, that the substitute was voted. But I believe, don't we still have to vote whether that would amend the original amendment?

BISHOP ODEN: Let's do that to make sure. If you favor the substitute, to amend the first amendment, will you raise your hand? If you oppose it? It passes. Now we're ready for Mr. Daughenbaugh.

HOWARD L. DAUGHENBAUGH JR (Central Illinois): I first have a question, if I might ask it. And the question is, I thought in the amendment that we passed, there were the words, "if possible" included in that.

BISHOP ODEN: Will the secretary respond?

MARSHALL: They're not on this sheet.

BISHOP ODEN: They're not on the sheet.

DAUGHENBAUGH: All right. I thought I heard the maker of that motion include those words in it, that's why I wanted to ask. This particular item has not been before the legislative committee, so it's impossible for me to speak for the committee in reference to it. I think it may be safe to say that the jist of the amendment would be something that we would have great support for; the financing of it is another question. And I think that approval of this would simply motivate us to do that much better with our World Service apportionments, and also, if the Mission Initiatives Fund is continued, where these monies were available last year, then that would be yet another source of funding for it.

BISHOP ODEN: All right, we're ready now to vote on the Lindell amendment as amended by substitute. If you would favor this amendment, vote "yes" when the light appears; if not, vote "no." [653 approved] You do favor it. It passes by 72 percent.

We now have the Lindell amendment, which is attached to Calendar Item 769 on page 255. And we are under orders of the house to now vote on Calendar Item 769. Vote when the light appears. [812 approved] It passes by 88.6 percent. You have endorsed, you have voted Calendar Item 769. I believe you deserve a recess. It is time. Be back in 15 minutes.

(music)

Thank you, S.T. [Kimbrough] Please be seated. Will the delegates take their seats. We are ready to begin the second part of the afternoon. We had a very busy early afternoon and have a hard hour ahead of us, with a lot of legislation. I remind you that by midnight tomorrow, we clear out. And we have a lot of things to do before then. So if we can have the cooperation of the house, we will be able to move ahead. There's so much that's before us. I'm going to start by doing a little bit of clean up. We need to call on Steve Drachler. Microphone 13. Steve.

STEVE DRACHLER (Central Pennsylvania): Thank you, Bishop. I'd like to make a correction for the record on the nomenclature that I used to describe the fund. It should be, sir, the World Service Fund. Thank you. Sir, it should be the contingency fund of the World Service Fund administered by GCOM.

BISHOP ODEN: I've just been informed that it's the World Service Contingency Fund administered by GCOM. Now, what I'd like to do is to see if the house would allow that correction by consensus. If you will so allow, please raise your hand. If you would not. It is allowed. Now, we're going to call on Mr. Daughenbaugh for a continuation of the calendar items.

Teens at Risk

HOWARD L. DAUGHENBAUGH JR (Central Illinois): Thank you. I have only one more to present. That is on pages 255 and 256 of your blue book. It is Calendar Item 770. The supporting information is found on page 763 of your red book. It is Petition 20219, title of which is "Teens at Risk." The legislative committee recommends concurrence as amended, and those amendments are noted on page 256 of your blue book. And the vote of the committee was 96 for, 10 against, and 1 abstention. I move support of the action of the committee.

BISHOP ODEN: All right. Calendar Item 770 is before us and is now on the floor. Yes. Microphone 2.

RICHARD S. PARKER (New York): Bishop, it's my understanding that the other day we voted that all calendar items with no more than 10 dissenting votes be moved to the Consent Calendar. And I believe that was to have taken place today. If that is the case, then this calendar item and others that we've acted on today could indeed be moved to the Consent Calendar. And if that's not clear, I'll make that motion.

BISHOP ODEN: OK. To be clear, why don't you just go ahead and make the motion.

PARKER: I do so move, Bishop.

BISHOP ODEN: Does everyone understand the motion? Repeat it. Just a moment. I'm not sure that's in order. We have a motion on the floor. Give me a moment. OK. I think we're clear. First, your motion is not in order. Second, that motion has previously been made but it was not made before this matter appeared, so we're going to have to go ahead and take it as presented. Thank you very much. Microphone 2.

JASON A. PAULSMEYER (Missouri East): Bishop, I would like to propose an amendment, quite possibly a friendly amendment, to this petition that we would change the word 'teen' everywhere it appears to...change it to the word 'youth.' And if I can have a second, I'll speak to it.

BISHOP ODEN: Is there a second. You may speak.

PAULSMEYER: It's pretty simple. It's an editorial change to make the language in this petition more consistent with the Book of Discipline and other resolutions.

DAUGHENBAUGH: We would accept that readily.

BISHOP ODEN: It is accepted as a friendly amendment. Now the motion is before us; does anyone wish to speak to it. All right. Microphone 2.

KELLY A. CLEM (North Alabama): This may also be a proposal for a friendly amendment. The second paragraph, beginning with "whereas, an individual," I would just amend that we change the word, delete the word 'homosexual' and replace that with 'sexual.'

BISHOP ODEN: I'm sorry, replace it with...sexual?

CLEM: Delete the word 'homosexual' and replace that with 'sexual.'

DAUGHENBAUGH: We would accept that as well.

BISHOP ODEN: Thank you. Say, we're perking. I see no more cards. We're ready to vote. If you favor this amendment, vote "yes" when the light comes on; if not, vote "no." [645 approved] You passed the Calendar Item 770. Thank you very much, Mr. Daughenbaugh. Carolyn?

CAROLYN E. JOHNSON (North Indiana): Yes, the next calendar item is found in your blue book on page 205. This is Calendar Item 490. And the supporting documentation is in the red edition of the Advanced DCA, page 756. This is Petition 21331. This was one of several restructuring petitions related to the 1400 paragraph in the Book of Discipline, and there was a unanimous vote by the legislative committee to concur as amended. However, this was lifted from the Consent Calendar, and that's why it's before you. So I would move concurrence with the amendment that you see on page 205.

BISHOP ODEN: OK, this was passed unanimously by committee but was called from the Consent Calendar. We're on 490. Does anyone wish to speak to it? Yes? Microphone 5.

AL GWINN (Kentucky): Thank you, Bishop. I'm moving by addition to paragraph 413, number 6, item "g." It's found on page 758.

BISHOP ODEN: Just a moment. We're now in the red DCA: Page 758. Is that correct?

Inequalities in Compensation Packages

GWINN: Yes. Numerical number 6, item "g." It will include the following words: "Insuring that there exist no inequalities in compensation packages beyond placement consideration for commissioned long-term missionaries." So that the entire sentence of item "g" would read: "To administer a diverse program of remuneration and benefits for personnel service, insuring that there exist no inequalities in compensation packages beyond placement consideration for commissioned long-term missionaries."

BISHOP ODEN: All right.

GWINN: And if I could receive a second, I'll speak to it.

BISHOP ODEN: Is there a second? There is, you may speak.

GWINN: I want to certainly affirm our insight that we are no longer a geographical section of communities, but we are one global community. We will no longer speak of "national" and "foreign" missions, or of "home" and "overseas" missions, but will speak of one mission, our mission, the global mission.

In this new day we'll see not only missionaries being sent, but missionaries being received by us all. And I strongly commend our Board of Global Ministries staff and directors for their vision and for their leadership in leading us in this way. But since under the old structure of a National Division and a World Division commissioned long-term missionaries receive different salaries and different benefit packages, it would seem that our new vision and structure would call for a new equality for all of those who serve our church as missionaries in this new global community. Thank you.

BISHOP ODEN: Thank you very much. The Gwinn amendment is before us on Calendar Item 490. We have had one speech for. Is there a speech against? Yes? Microphone 4.

MARION MUTHIAH (Dakotas): While I am surely supportive of the intent of this, I think that those who are not closely related to how many different salary scales and so on we do have for different personnel in different places within the outreach ministry of our church, I just don't want this to be limiting. And so I'm reluctant. I do not want to support something that locks us into a salary scheme that we must abide by. There are many that are willing to go as volunteers even though they're long-term missionaries, after a certain period of time. There are so many ramifications these days that, while I am in favor of the essence of it, I would oppose it because I don't want to lock us into something very restrictive.

BISHOP ODEN: Thank you. Is there a speech for the amendment? Microphone 8.

Pay Differences Between National and World Divisions

JIM W. MORRIS (Red Bird Missionary): There are, at the present, some significant and long-standing inequities in relation to compensation and benefits issues between the World and the National Divisions. And those things need to be addressed. I would favor the Gwinn amendment because it would give us the opportunity to address those items.

BISHOP ODEN: OK, thank you very much. Is there a speech against? Yes?

NANCY CUCKLER (East Ohio): Bishop, compensation for missionaries has a long history, and at this moment I would like to move that the subject of compensation for missionaries be referred to the General Board of Global Ministries. That subject, in reality, is not the responsibility of the General Conference.

BISHOP ODEN: All right, the motion is for reference to the General Board of Global Ministries; is it seconded? This is debatable. So if there is anyone who would like to speak to it. Yes, sir; microphone 9.

RONALD BRETSCHE (North Central New York): Thank you, Bishop. I speak in favor of the motion to refer. While there are differences, some of those differences are also based on years of service or longevity, which certainly we would want to take into account. There are differences in costs of living around the world; some of those differences in costs of living are acute, are very extreme. And as the General Board of Global Ministries moves into a new structure, the historic differences, which may have caused some hardships between the World and National Divisions, will be ameliorated by our new structure, where the two divisions will have been combined. I think the motion to refer is very much appropriate in order to deal with the several variables in a new structure.

BISHOP ODEN: Thank you. Is there a speech against referral? Yes? Microphone 8.

EMERY A. PERCELL (Northern Illinois): To refer would refer the whole document, and so I speak against the referral.

BISHOP ODEN: Let me check with the maker of the motion. Was the motion to refer only the item on 6.g. or the entire document? Microphone 3.

NANCY CUCKLER (East Ohio): The attempt of the motion was to refer only the subject of compensation for missionaries.

BISHOP ODEN: I believe that is in order, and that was the understanding of the chair. So we're now ready to vote on reference, if you would vote for or against, vote when the light comes on. [631 approved] You did vote reference to the item of missionary compensation that returns the regular 6.g. to the document that is now before us. We're on Calendar Item 490 and it...the motion to support the calendar item is before us. Yes.

VICTOR GOLDSCHMIDT (North Indiana): A very simple amendment to bring Christ into the document in two different locations. Line four, left column page 756; that is line four, on the bold print, adding "Christian" prior to mission. So it reads, "United Methodists in Christian mission" And jumping to 757, line one, left column, adding "Christian" again, "which the church is called to Christian ministry."

BISHOP ODEN: All right.

CAROLYN JOHNSON: That's fine. Yeah, that's fine, we can accept that.

BISHOP ODEN: You accept?

JOHNSON: Yes.

BISHOP ODEN: Thank you, Mr. Goldschmidt. Those friendly amendments have also been friendly to our chair. So they are accepted. Microphone 9.

Church Growth, Church Development Debated

ALFRED C. RHONEMUS (West Ohio): This is probably just a friendly amendment. In the first, number one on page 756, I would like to substitute the word, "congregational development" rather than "church growth." Both there and at the end of that paragraph. I move, so move.

BISHOP ODEN: All right, we're on page 756, number one, "the responsibilities of evangelism and congregation development" instead of "church growth." Now where's the second?

RHONEMUS: At the bottom of that, where it says, "the responsibilities of evangelization and church growth" would read "congregational development." Substituting those words.

BISHOP ODEN: Right, so in the title and in the last sentence of the paragraph. Is there a second? It has been seconded. Discussion?

JOHNSON: Bishop, the only concern I would raise is that we do have phraseology currently about congregational development that is of a little different nature substantively. And I would be concerned that there might be a confusion for those people who think of congregational development, particularly as new building of churches and those kind of things. Other than that, there would be no problem. So it would be...

BISHOP ODEN: All right, the amendment is before us, it's been seconded. If anyone would like to speak for or against it, they may. Otherwise, we'll just vote on it and see where we are. Didn't work. [laughter] Yes. Microphone 2.

REBECCA C. YOUNGBLOOD (Mississippi): No it didn't work. We discussed this in the full committee, and my argument for retaining the words "church growth" is that church growth does refer to more than simply the development of congregations, and especially in the global context and the opportunity to develop faith communities etc. I would argue to retain those words.

BISHOP ODEN: This is a speech against the Rhonemus amendment. Is there one for? I see none. We're ready to vote. Vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 222; no, 657] You do not concur with the Rhonemus amendment.

We're back on the main motion of Calendar Item 490. Are we ready to vote? I see no cards. If you would favor Calendar Item 490, vote "yes" when the light appears; if not, vote "no." [874 approved] And it prevails. Carolyn, thank you very much.

Membership of the Conference Board of Global Ministries

JOHNSON: Our next item is found in your blue DCA on page 256, and this is Calendar Item 771. "Membership of the Conference Board of Global Ministry." It refers to page 750 in your red book, and is Petition 20453. This is a recommended change to the Book of Discipline in the 731 paragraphs.

I would, before I move it, I would like to give a little background. The committee operated, as do most of the committees, and on topics that were similar subjects, perfected one item and then voted non concurrence on the others...tried to blend the items as best they could. So this is one of those items for which the motion was non-concurrence. And at the time it was moved, we were still under the five limit restriction for the Consent Calendar. So that's why it's not on the Consent Calendar. So with that background, I would move nonconcurrency on Calendar Item 771.

BISHOP ODEN: The motion of nonconcurrency for 771 on page 256 is before us. Vote when the light appears. If you vote "yes," you're voting for nonconcurrency with the committee. [858 approved] And you support the committee.

JOHNSON: Bishop, this does conclude our report, but, I would like to thank all of the chairpersons and the recorders and the sub-committee chairpersons, and particularly to thank all those people who sent petitions. Because even though they made our hours long and gave us lots of paper, it really was a nice, celebrative witness that people are concerned, and they care, and they are committed to the witness of mission for our church. And I thank you and the General Conference.

BISHOP ODEN: Thank you Carolyn. [applause] We now turn to independent commissions. Judge Carl Stewart.

A Call for Truth, Fairness, and Accuracy

CARL E. STEWART (Louisiana): Thank you Bishop Oden. I'd like for you to turn your attention to Calendar Item 778 found on page 257 of the Daily Christian Advocate, and it will pertain to Petition 21380.

That petition is found on page 927. The petition comes to us from United Methodist Communications. The petition is entitled, "A Call for Truth, Fairness, and Accuracy." The petition addresses a strong concern that the reporting of information about The United Methodist Church and its policies and actions be truthful, fair, and accurate. Recognizing that criticism of the church from within and without is a part of our reality, the petition encourages constructive criticism that is spiritually driven and intended to be reconciling. The committee amended the language in the petition about criticism in order to phrase it in a less judgmental way yet retain the intent of the authors. With that explanation, the committee would recommend concurrence as amended.

BISHOP ODEN: It is before you, Calendar Item 778 on page 257. Does anyone wish to speak to the motion? I see no cards. It is before us. Vote when the light appears. [856 approved] You affirm the committee.

STEWART: Thank you. We will...

BISHOP ODEN: Before you continue, Judge, I see a card in the back. We're on calendar items. Nothing else is in order unless you wish to speak to a calendar item. Go to...

MARY ALICE MASSEY (Florida): Bishop, would a motion, an enabling motion be in order?

BISHOP ODEN: Try it.

MASSEY: I move to set aside the standing rules in order to limit debate to two speeches for, two against, with a two minute time limit on the remainder of the calendar items, except for the ones dealing with the General Council on Finance and Administration items. If I have a second, I'll speak to it.

BISHOP ODEN: Second? There is.

MASSEY: It is a great concern of mine that we have approximately 100 items on the calendar still to deal with. In order to be fair, so that all these items may at least get some amount of attention, we need to limit our debate. And so I hope that you will favor this motion.

BISHOP ODEN: All right. We now have before us a motion to suspend the rules, and it was seconded. Yes. This motion takes a simple majority, as rule 90 calls for. Yes.

JAMES M. LAWSON (California-Pacific): I'd like to amend the amendment by deleting the word "except" and the words that follow it.

BISHOP ODEN: As I understand it, the exception of GCFA called for in the motion is what you are asking be deleted. All right, let's put the question. First, if you would favor...Wait a minute. Yes, I think we can proceed. If you would, if you would vote, if you favor the Lawson amendment to, not to except GCFA in the motion, would you vote "yes" when the light appears? If not, vote "no." [Results: yes,448; no,447]

Now we're ready for the main motion to suspend, and it is before us. It requires a simple majority. If you favor the motion as amended, vote "yes" when the light appears; if not, vote "no." We are now under house rule of two speeches for each motion, or each amendment, and two minutes per speech. Yes. Proceed. Microphone 8. No, I'm sorry. The person, the person—no. There was a person in front of you that I called on first. I guess not. Go ahead to the microphone. Microphone 8.

LUCILLE V. VANZANT (Oklahoma): Bishop, I, too, feel the squeeze of time on all that is before us. Therefore, I also ask for a suspension of the rules, so that we may take up 30 minutes early this evening and go 30 minutes later in tonight's session. Thank you.

BISHOP ODEN: You have heard the motion to extend the time 30 minutes past five o'clock adjournment and begin 30 minutes early. If you would favor that, raise your hand. If not, raise your hand. It does not carry. Now to the podium and continue with Judge Stewart.

STEWART: Thank you. We will next consider Calendar Item 783. It is found on page 258 of your Daily Christian Advocate.

BISHOP ODEN: Just a moment. I got the motion wrong. I'm going to assume the house still sustains the chair. Let's move on.

Amenability of General Commission on Communications

STEWART: All right. We will consider Calendar Item 783. It's found on page 258 of the Daily Christian Advocate, and it pertains to Petition 20637, which is found on page 908 in your red book. The petition is entitled "Amenability of General Commission on Communications." The petition would amend the second sentence of paragraph 1904 of the Discipline, which is found on pages 621 and 622. The petition as proposed would change the accountability on program matters for the General Commission on Communications from the General Council on Ministries to the Council of Bishops. The committee amended the petition to provide for the dual accountability on program matters of the General Council on Ministries and the Council of Bishops. With regard to the rationale of the committee, I would call on Stan England, who was the secretary of the sub-committee, and ask him to share that with you.

BISHOP ODEN: All right. Stan?

STAN B. ENGLAND (North Georgia): As the committee met and discussed this, we felt that the Council of Bishops should take an active role in the evaluation of the General Commission on Communication. The commission has an awesome responsibility working with the general agencies to speak and publicize for the church. We realize that the bishops have representation on the General Commission on Communication, but we know that for action to take place there must be a clear line of works and words. The evaluation process does not mean spending more money or taking control of, but to call our Council of Bishops in with the accountability process with the council along with the Council on Ministries. That was the rationale of the committee.

BISHOP ODEN: The motion is before you. And we have had a speech for. Is there a speech against? I see none. Oh, I'm sorry. To the left, house left. Microphone 3.

SAMUEL WYNN (North Carolina): I would oppose this motion for several reasons, one being that we are in the process of trying to hold all agencies accountable. And secondly, does the Council of Bishops have in place an evaluation process to carry something like this out?

BISHOP ODEN: Are you asking?

WYNN: Yes.

BISHOP ODEN: Yes. I do not believe we have in place such a procedure.

SAMUEL WYNN (North Carolina): And, if we pass this motion, what would the council have to do to put something of that nature in place?

BISHOP ODEN: I cannot answer that, I'm sorry.

WYNN: I would move that we not approve this amendment for those reasons.

BISHOP ODEN: All right. Microphone 9.

STEPHEN C. MOTT (New England): I oppose this motion. I think it is...

BISHOP ODEN: Just a moment. We just had a speech against. I need to call for a speech in favor before you proceed. Is there a speech in favor of this motion? I see none. You may proceed.

MOTT: I'd urge a vote against this motion. I think it upsets the very important balance of power between the bishops and the General Conference.

I don't think the Council of Bishops should be evaluating the General Commission of the General Conference.

BISHOP ODEN: Thank you. I want to ask again for a speech that favors the motion. Yes. We have two speeches against, and this will be the second speech for. All right. That's in order.

JAMES M. LAWSON JR. (California-Pacific): I'd like to...I move an amendment to page 759, the top of the left hand column. And that would be to delete the words "and Council of Bishops." The four words "and Council of Bishops" would be deleted from that second sentence.

BISHOP ODEN: Sir, do you mean page 259?

LAWSON: Yes, 259.

BISHOP ODEN: And again, your motion is?

LAWSON: To amend the second sentence of paragraph 1904 by deleting the following words: "and Council of Bishops." So that the sentence would read, "The General Council on Ministries in program matters."

BISHOP ODEN: All right. Is there a second? It has been seconded. Would you like to speak to it?

LAWSON: Yes, very quickly. I think that the General Council of Bishops, the General Council needs to understand that one of the ways in which the Council of Bishops does, indeed, carry on its work of evaluation of accountability and oversight is because, on every board and agency of the church, a group of bishops are assigned.

BISHOP ODEN: Excuse me just a moment. If we do remove "and Council of Bishops," does not that return the language to its present disciplinary form?

LAWSON: Yes, it does, it does.

BISHOP ODEN: Then, I think, if you vote "no," I believe that amendment is out of order. If you vote "no" it accomplishes the same thing.

LAWSON: Good. Thank you.

BISHOP ODEN: All right. To the microphone 4.

ZANE SCOTT (Holston): I'd like to speak for the committee's recommendation. I was a member of that committee. The words "Council of Bishops" appeared in the context of a number of the petitions that we have before us, always in a substituting mode, as they did originally in this petition, substituting them for the General Council on Ministries. In every instance, we struck, as a committee, struck that out and down, in favor of review by the General Council of Ministries.

It saved this one, and we saved this one because we felt in the matters of communication and speaking for the church in those particularly delicate matters, we felt that the Council of Bishops could bring to us expertise and a valuable contribution in evaluation. So, in this one instance, we added the language rather than substituting the language.

BISHOP ODEN: All right, we now have two speeches for the motion and two speeches against. And we'll call on Judge Stewart for the final word, and then we'll vote.

CARL E. STEWART (Louisiana): Bishop, under the rules, I opted to have the chair designate someone else to speak to it under the provision that is in the rules, and that is why I have designated someone.

BISHOP ODEN: Fine.

STAN B. ENGLAND (North Georgia): I think that the point has been taken. We have not concurred on some of the others to enhance some of the petitions that came to us asking that the Council of Bishops be included. And there has been much consideration towards doing away with the Council on Ministries. We felt that this would be a good process to make sure that there was something in place. And, secondarily, that it would be a good way for the communications to be able to enhance itself by working with these two bodies.

BISHOP ODEN: The motion is before us. We are on Calendar Item 783. Is there a question? Microphone 4.

DON MENDENHALL (Iowa): The question is, will this apply to the annual conference level in terms of evaluating communication offices within an annual conference?

STEWART: The petition is addressed to the general commission, not to the annual conference commission.

MENDENHALL: What will be the spin back into the annual conference from your estimation?

STEWART: Well, the middle language of the paragraph addresses only the general level of the church, and that is all.

BISHOP ODEN: Now, we're ready to vote? Vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 404; no, 478] You do not favor the motion. It is not concurred. It fails.

Organization of General Commission on Christian Unity and Inter-Religious Concerns

STEWART: All right, we will next consider Calendar 784 found on page 259 of the Daily Christian Advocate, and it is Petition 20551, found on page 910 in the red book. This petition pertains to the organization of the General Commission on Christian Unity and Inter-Religious Concerns. The petition would amend the first sentence of paragraph 2005.6 of the Discipline found on page 631 of the Discipline.

The current language provides for the commission to nominate its general secretary, who then is elected by the General Commission on Ministries. The General Council of Ministries, I'm sorry. The amendment would allow the commission to nominate and elect its own general secretary. The committee deems the amendment to be unnecessary. Paragraph 813 of the Discipline provides the general secretaries of program agencies to be elected by the General Council on Ministries. This method has not only proven to be workable, but it allows for accountability of the general secretaries to the whole church, and for that reason the committee recommends nonconcurrence.

BISHOP ODEN: All right, the motion is before us, and we record one speech in favor of it by the chair. Is there a speech opposing the motion? I think we're ready to vote. If you would vote, vote now when the light appears. [816 approved] You favor the motion; it is sustained. Judge Stewart.

CARL STEWART (Louisiana): Next, consider Calendar 1695, found on page 388 of the Daily Christian Advocate, and it's Petition 23076. And that petition is before you on the same page in the DCA. Petition 23076 is a substitute for two petitions that were referred to the committee on the same subject. Those petitions are Petition 22035 found on page 1394 of your white book, and Petition 21015 found on page 1390 of the white book.

Both of those petitions call for the creation of a general commission on alcohol and drugs. The committee nonconcurred with 22035 and 21015, and that nonconcurrence was ratified on the Consent Calendar numbers 704 and 705, found on page 229. The committee recognized the serious health, safety, and human welfare issues related to the subject of use and misuse of alcohol and drugs. Nonetheless, the committee did not conclude that creating a new commission related solely to those issues was warranted.

Petition 23076, which is before you, strongly urges the General Board of Church and Society to create a standing committee on alcohol and drugs. The committee rationale is that while creating a new general church level commission is not warranted, a more intentional approach towards addressing the concerns of the petitions that were submitted is warranted, due to the continued escalation of drug and alcohol use and abuse throughout the world. The creation of a standing committee within an existing general board, which has already accepted the responsibility to advocate and educate in this area, will be in the best interest of the church.

Creation of this standing committee will insure that the vital health, safety, and spirituality concerns regarding drugs and alcohol will always be given the church's greatest attention and action. The petition as amended does not contemplate the expenditure of any funds beyond those already appropriated to the General Board of Church and Society. With that, I would move the adoption of the committee's recommendation, which is a deletion of the two whole petitions and a substitution of the one before you.

BISHOP ODEN: Calendar Item 1695 is before you. Does anyone wish to speak to it? I see no cards; we're ready to vote. Vote when the light appears. [865 approved] The calendar item passes by 96 percent.

Demeaning Use of Native American Names

STEWART; Thank you. We're now considering Calendar Item 710. This was a calendar item that was earlier on the Consent Calendar and was pulled from the Consent Calendar; that's why it's before you. It's to be found on page 230 of the Daily Christian Advocate, and it's Petition 20895, found on page 920 of the red book, and Petition 22427, found on page 1395 of the white book.

The petitions read concerning names demeaning to Native Americans. The committee voted nonconcurrency on 20895 and 22427 in favor of Petition 20030, which says, in pertinent part, that it is demeaning to Native Americans and other members of our society to depict Native Americans as violent and aggressive people. Because you have approved Calendar Item 590 on page 219 of the Daily Christian Advocate Consent Calendar, the committee recommends nonconcurrency on Calendar Item 710. Bishop, I would move the adoption of the committee recommendation.

BISHOP ODEN: Thank you, Judge. That seems clear enough. Anyone desire to speak to it? I see no cards. If you favor the committee's recommendation of nonconcurrency, vote when the light appears. And you do concur. Thank you very much, Judge Stewart.

STEWART: Thank you, Bishop. That's it for me.

BISHOP ODEN: All right. Are we ready to move on now to Church and Society? [applause] Don Pike, chair of the Committee on Church and Society.

DON M. PIKE (Central Texas): Bishop Oden, we have a very easy subject to deal with at this time: that of abortion. [laughter] And as I look at the time remaining, we're going to try to finess this thing. I'm beginning to feel like a man in a desert with a cup of water. I want to preserve every minute that we possibly have. In order to help the conference to understand the process that we used in the committee, I'd like to call on Beth Capen, who is the chairperson of the sub-committee, to share with you the process that we used. And then we'll try to deal with the petitions that I think we can deal with rather easily. And then we can deal with the heavier and heavier ones as we get to the calendar.

BISHOP ODEN: Don, hold just a moment. The floor is not open for business, only for matters of...if you have a point of order or point of inquiry or information. Yes. Microphone 14.

MARY ANN GALLOWAY (West Ohio): I'd just like to ask that when they present the petitions, they would present which book they're talking about, then the numbers, the page number, and then the petition number, in that order. That really helps. I can't compute backwards.

BISHOP ODEN: Thank you. We will ask the committee chairs to so respond. Blue book first, and then the Advance DCA, and then calendar item.

BETH CAPEN (New York): Hello, I was the chairperson of the sub-committee that dealt with the issues that will be before us this afternoon. Specifically, our sub-committee dealt with a variety of things, but about half of our petitions dealt with issues of abortion or related to abortion. We recognize, both in the sub-committee and in the larger committee, that we are at very different places in our opinions, in our beliefs, really went across the spectrum. We recognized that it was very important to hear each other and for us to express what it was that we believed.

To that end, we had a process whereby after reviewing the preface to the Social Principles, in the introductory paragraph to "The Nurturing Community," which is where these issues are addressed in the Social Principles. We then, at that point, went around and each one of us, in turn, explained our beliefs and our feelings regarding abortion, the issues related to abortion, and specifically, we also discussed the language as it currently appears in the Social Principles.

This was done with a lot of prayer, with a lot of consideration, and most importantly, with a very deep appreciation for where each one of us comes from and what we believe. It was within that context, and with those prayers, that we then made the decisions that's come before you, and that Don Pike will now be bringing our attention to.

ODEN: Thank you very much, Beth.

Rights of the Unborn

DON M. PIKE (Central Texas): All right, you'll have to be patient with me. I have mine organized in a different way, so let me try to convert this thing. If you'd first turn in your white DCA to page 1226 at the very top of the left hand column, you'll see Petition 22585, entitled, "Rights of the Unborn."

Now if you will turn in your blue DCA to page 386, Calendar Item 1679, left hand column, middle of the page leading with Petition 22585. The committee voted 61 to 18, 11 not voting, for nonconcurrency. And, I would urge you as a conference to support that action, because we have another petition on exactly the same subject that we'll be dealing with later that has both a majority and a minority report. So Bishop, we would hope the conference would sustain us as we can deal with it later.

BISHOP ODEN: OK, thank you. So Calendar Item 1679 is before us, and is there discussion? Way in the back. Microphone 13.

MORRIS MATTHIS (Texas): Would it be possible for us to look at the majority/minority report and deal with that first, and then return to the one that is before us now?

PIKE: If you want to take that procedure, I need to pull back on it, because there is no time for us to really debate this given the time remaining. I was just trying to clean off a calendar item that's going to be given more opportunity for debate later. You'll find the majority/minority report calendar 1982, on page 477 and 478. If you want to look, you'll see it's exactly the same thing, "Rights of the Unborn," and there is a majority and a minority report.

BISHOP ODEN: So we have before us 1679, which the committee is recommending nonconcurrence in order to clear this calendar item and move on to the other two petitions that will be before us later. Is there further discussion? I see none. So, if you favor the committee's recommendation of nonconcurrence, vote "yes," if not vote "no." Vote when the light appears. [809 approved] You agree with the committee.

PIKE: In your white DCA, if you will turn to page 1236, Petition 22587. That is on page 478, Calendar Item 1983. The committee recommends by a vote of 62 to 20 for nonconcurrence, for basically the same reason, we have it all in the other paragraph.

BISHOP ODEN: I think everyone has it, but it is a bit complicated. Don, once more, repeat those pages and calendar items.

PIKE: All right. In the white DCA, page 1236, Petition 22587. You see it's submitted by the administrative board, Saint Paul UMC, Gulf Breeze, Fla. Calendar Item 1983, Petition 22587 on page 478, by a vote of 62 to 23, the committee votes nonconcurrence.

BISHOP ODEN: All right, this is before us, is there discussion? Vote when the light appears. [800 approved] You have supported the committee by 87 percent. Don.

PIKE: All right, in your red DCA on page 123, Petition 20923, right hand column, very top of the page. In your blue book, page 478 Calendar Item 1984, left hand column, very bottom of the page. Titled, "The Social Community." By a vote of 49 to 30, with 6 not voting, the committee recommends nonconcurrence.

BISHOP ODEN: Calendar Item 1984 is before you with the committee's recommendation of nonconcurrence. In the back. Microphone 6.

BARBARA W. RIDDLE (Florida): It's not that I don't support the committee. It's not that I don't trust the committee's work. I continue to be uncomfortable with dealing with business and items before the entire crowd with the substance of the entire concern that's before us. And I know time is of the essence, but I would have to vote nonconcurrence. I would not support the committee's vote of nonconcurrence, because we really haven't had the opportunity to fully hear what the committee's going to be presenting to us today on this very important matter. And so because of integrity here, I would not support the committee's nonconcurrence.

BISHOP ODEN: That's a vote against the committee's recommendation. Is there a speech for the committee's recommendation? I see none. I'm assuming we're ready to vote. So vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 697; no, 222] You do support the committee.

DON PIKE (Central Texas): Thank you, Bishop Oden. I guess the prudent thing would be to begin the discussion, and let me direct our attention to the petition that is entitled, "Rights of the Unborn." Look in your white DCA.

BISHOP ODEN: I would like to make a suggestion, that we find the petitions and pages and then hold the debate until the beginning of the evening session. And we do have some announcements, but let's take time and get the pages and calendar items in mind that will be before us tonight. So, go ahead, Don, with the pages and calendar items.

PIKE: Oh, I'm sorry. I misunderstood you. You simply want what we're going to be dealing with first. All right. Tonight, we'll start off with, in your white DCA, page 1226, petition entitled, "Rights of the Unborn." It's Petition 22584. You'll find that petition in the left hand column, middle of the page. You see the text there. All right.

Then turn in your blue DCA, if you'll look on page 477, Calendar Item 1982, at the very bottom of the right hand column, "Rights of the Unborn." You'll notice that the committee voted 50 to 35 against concurrence. There is a minority report on page 478. That, in turn, will be the subject of our discussion. Now, bishop, am I understanding that this is where you want me to stop?

BISHOP ODEN: That is correct. Thank you very much. We'll pick up there at the evening session's beginning. We do have just a few minutes for announcements and there are...let's just see where we go here, if we can move up to the time of adjournment. I see a card in the back. Go to microphone 6. I'm sorry, the person in the blue jacket. It looks blue from here, without a lot of hair.

CHARLES "DENNY" WHITE (Western North Carolina): It appears, sir, that in this matter, we are back where we have been before with a minority report in response to a committee proposal of nonconcurrence. In view of that, I have a procedural motion.

BISHOP ODEN: I'm sorry. I'm going to ask you to bring that up at the beginning of the evening session.

WHITE: It doesn't relate to this specifically. It's actually your request to the Rules Committee for the 2000 Conference to do something to help us out.

BISHOP ODEN: All right. Let's try it.

WHITE: Bishop, I move that in its preparation for the 2000 General Conference, the Committee on Plan of Organization and Rules be directed to propose such revisions and amplifications of our rules as may be necessary to clarify, in print, the circumstances in which a minority report may be filed; and in particular, whether the filing and printing of a minority report to a legislative committee recommendation of nonconurrence is to be permitted.

BISHOP ODEN: All right, that's a motion to refer to the Rules Committee for the General Conference of 2000. If you would support that motion of referral, raise your hand. If not. It is supported. All right. The person standing. In the tan jacket. Full head of hair. [laughter]

Prohibition of General Agencies Funding "Favors" at General Conference

CHARLES W. COURTOY (Florida): I thank you. I also have a matter related to the General Conference for the year 2000. I move that all general agencies be prohibited from spending apportionment funds on favors such as buttons, calendars, clocks, and the promotional materials for distribution to the delegates to the General Conference for the year 2000. They shall be limited to distribution of interpretative materials, which address issues and subjects assigned to their areas of responsibility. If I get a second, I'd like to speak to it.

I have been amazed at the escalation of the amount of promotional materials that has come at this General Conference. It seems to me that there are more materials than we've ever had in the way of buttons and promotional materials. The crowning promotional packet came this afternoon entitled, "The National Hispanic Ministries Challenge Fund," in which there was a clock and other materials. I, for one, object to using our ministry and World Service funds in order to try to influence this kind of vote for a particular plan. So I urge us to instruct, tonight, the General Conference of the year 2000 to prohibit this kind of materials.

BISHOP ODEN: Sir, that is a matter of reference to the Commission on the General Conference. Is that what we're about?

COURTOY: That would be OK.

BISHOP ODEN: All right. The motion of reference is before you. If you would favor it, raise your hand. If you oppose, raise your hand. It is referred. Now we're at the point of having time for announcements. And we call on our secretary.

CAROLYN MARSHALL: The first announcement has to do with airport shuttles for those of you planning to utilize those in order to get to the airport. Another announcement saying that people who need to, will need to sign up for those. Sign up is at the information booth. If you want a shuttle from your hotel, this will enable the committee to have enough shuttles available.

Also, all chairs of legislative committees are asked to meet with Sarah Miller in the front of the platform immediately upon adjournment.

And then a clarification of the meeting this evening of the Inter-Jurisdictional Committee on Episcopacy. It will meet after adjournment of the evening session in room A209. The question also has come as to who is on that committee. Those are the persons whom we elected this morning. They are, for the most part, those who are listed on pages 80 and 81 in the red book, the Advance DCA, and on page 31 in the blue book, as well a correction on page 289 in the blue book.

BISHOP ODEN: All right. As we close out, I need to confess I am in deep trouble. I've been requested for a personal privilege from the lay chair of the Louisiana delegation. We simply do not have time for it. She is requesting that the bishops consider changing the phrase, "children in poverty" to "children in need." And Anita Crump, I will see that this gets to the bishops. I now would like to call on a very favorite "Louisiana-type bishop" to give our benediction, Bishop W.T. Handy. Let us stand.

[prayer]

Thursday Evening April 25, 1996

Bishop C.P. Minnick, Jr., presiding

(music by S.T. Kimbrough)

BISHOP C.P. MINNICK JR.: Sisters and brothers, let us please now find our places and take our seats. We are ready to move into our time of prayer in preparation for the events of the evening. Please will you take your seats now? Please be seated. We are ready to begin.

This General Conference of 1996 will live for many years in my memory, not because it is the last General Conference before my retirement, which is four months, four days, four hours and 57 minutes away. But it shall remain always in my memory because it, more than any other General Conference, has been clothed in the mantle of prayer. We have begun every session with a time of prayerful reflection with a prayer partner or partners. And I hope you're aware of the fact, and I'm sure most of you are, that for the past nine days for 24 hours a day, the Council of Bishops, together with delegates and reserve delegates and guests, have been involved in a prayer vigil around the clock each day. As a result of our life of prayer together, we have felt the power and presence of God with us in a very special way.

Right now let's turn again to a time of prayer. Find a prayer partner or partners. And as we begin this time, let's sing together as a prayer of invocation and as words of commitment, the Spirit Song. It's on page 347. The Spirit Song. You may remain seated while we sing prayerfully.

ST KIMBROUGH: And in an attitude of prayer, we may imagine ourselves as the church, without the instrument of an organ or a piano for ten centuries, gathering as a people, preparing itself in prayer with the concert of our voices.

(singing)

BISHOP MINNICK: Now will you, with your prayer partner or partners, enter into a time of prayerful reflection? Let us join now together in praying the prayer that Jesus taught the disciples of old to pray.

(The Lord's Prayer)

Well, as we begin our work tonight, I will turn again to Fitzgerald Reist and Sarah Miller to set the direction for us.

Sister Sarah Miller will tell us the direction in which we are moving tonight.

SARAH S. MILLER (Wyoming): We'll begin this evening by trying to complete the items on abortion that we did not complete this afternoon. We'll go directly from that to finishing up the remaining items on homosexuality. We'll have several different legislative committees coming and bringing their items that relate to that subject. At the completion of that work, we hope to move on to remaining items from the Legislative Committee on Discipleship.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, thank you. So we'll turn first to Don Pike, chair of Church and Society, to lead us again in the legislative items that he has.

DON M. PIKE (Central Texas): Thank you, Bishop. We resume where we were, as the bishop said, before we adjourned and I expressed to the body their willingness to trust the committee. I think you will discover that all that we dealt with in terms of the previous actions will indeed be encapsulated in what we're about to do in order to give you an opportunity to discuss.

Let me invite you, if you would please, to turn in your white DCA on page 1226. We will be dealing with Petition 22584. You will find it in the left-hand column, middle of the page. It is calendar item, found on page 477; Calendar Item 1982. Right-hand column, the very bottom of the page, dealing with rights of the unborn. You'll notice that the legislative committee voted on concurrence by a vote of 50, 35, to zero; there is a minority report which you will find on the following page, 478. Bishop, would it be appropriate at this time; do we begin with the minority report? Is that correct, Sir?

BISHOP MINNICK: Yes. You will remember from this afternoon, it was noted that we have no process in our Rules of Order for a minority report being brought to an item that is non-concurred-with by the legislative committee. So we will address this by first hearing the minority report.

PIKE: All right, Bishop. Elizabeth Wright will address the minority report and then Beth Capen will be prepared to respond to the majority report. Elizabeth?

BISHOP MINNICK: All right.

Minority Report on Rights of the Unborn

ELIZABETH A. WRIGHT (Virginia): Thank you, Don. I would ask you to please, as Don has requested, to turn to Calendar Item 1982; begins the bottom of page 478. Bishops, colleagues, I rise to present the minority report. Add a new subparagraph after 72C and re-letter all the following sentences: "While the full rights of women must always be respected, unborn children are acknowledged to be human beings in their own right. Although there is no consensus as to when human life begins, unborn children are deserving of treatment that is due those who are made in the image of God. Thus we support the development of adoption agencies, counseling services for expectant mothers, care services, centers for unwed mothers designed to protect the sacred worth of the unborn child."

I served on the Human Sexuality Subcommittee which prayerfully examined the disciplinary statement on abortion. Beth Capen described that process to you this afternoon and it was an experience that none of us in the committee will ever forget. It was truly a beautiful time together. The statement is a fair and thoughtful statement which describes with power and compassion the tragic conflict of life with life. I stand with my sisters and brothers of the legislative team on the abortion statement, which has been accepted through the Consent Calendar.

Now, it is appropriate after affirming the rights of a woman over her own body to bring our disciplinary statement full circle to consider the rights of the unborn child. In dealing with this issue, the critical question is: "When is a human being a human being?" As we discussed this in our subcommittee, it became obvious that we were not all of one mind about when life truly begins.

Using magnificent biblical imagery, one of the group spoke passionately of God blowing the very breath of life into a human being. "It is then, at birth, that life begins!" said that person. Others spoke of the beating heart as the beginning of life. Another talked about the emergence of brainwaves as being the definitive sign of life. Said yet another, "The medical profession does not presume the question. They say it is a theological issue." It was then that someone in our subcommittee spoke the words of God to Jeremiah: "Before I formed you in the womb, I knew you. Before you were born, I sanctified you."

We began our discussion with Biblical imagery; we ended with scripture. And still, there is not agreement. There is no absolute on when life truly begins. If you have ever thought about when an embryo or a fetus becomes a human being, a human being deserving treatment due those made in the image of God; if you have never thought about it, think about it now! Study about it; pray about it. Come to some conclusion about it in your own heart and mind. For it is a great moral and theological question of our day.

If we believe that at any point during human pregnancy the unborn child becomes a true human being, then it becomes a theological imperative to consider what might be the rights of the unborn child. Such consideration of the unborn is not in contradiction to our disciplinary position on abortion. Indeed, it affirms and dignifies that position, that which we have already approved. It seems entirely appropriate for this General Conference to go on record to encourage the development of adoption agencies, counseling and support services for expectant mothers, care services for unwed mothers to protect the wellbeing and the sacred worth of the unborn as well as the mother. I encourage you to vote in favor of the minority report. Thank you.

BISHOP MINNICK: We're going to treat this as an amendment by substitution to the nonconcurrence of the legislative committee. So, we're ready now for you to address this minority report substitute. Is there someone who will speak for it? All right, in the back here. Microphone 9.

SHARON L. DUGER (North Central New York): As a woman, as a mother, as a mother of three stillborns, I need to tell you that at 13 weeks after conception, I had a sonogram and I saw a child sucking its thumb. When does life begin? This is the question. I think life began when God created human beings and when God stated that what we must do is procreate. Now we're not in that kind of culture now, but we must look to the Biblical scriptures for answers. We must look to our own hearts, and we must pray and find what God would have us do when we look at the—what you would call a fetus—what I would call a human being waiting to be. This is in favor of this amendment or motion.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, is there someone who will speak against the amendment? Yes, I see a card here in the back. Microphone 7.

CHARLES PEARCE (Florida): I have an amendment at this moment, Bishop, if I may.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right.

PEARCE: I move that everything under rights of the unborn be deleted with the exception of the following, "We support the development of adoption agencies, counseling services for expectant mothers, and centers for unwed mothers." If I have a second, I'll speak to it.

BISHOP MINNICK: It's seconded. You may speak.

PEARCE: Thank you, sir. As a father of four adopted children, we need to pay more attention to the mother that wants to have her child. And I think, I don't believe I'll take the whole three minutes, but I would like to tell you that Terrell Sessums had a grandson today, three hours ago. Thank you.

BISHOP MINNICK: Congratulations. Let me remind you that by your action this afternoon, we are limiting our speeches to two for and two against each, to two minutes only. Is there someone who would speak against the amendment? All right, over here. Microphone 7.

Issues of Child Abuse

ROB BASZNER (North Indiana): I would speak against this amendment. It is my belief that this minority report in its fullness is not only essential to affirming the love for unborn children, but also crucial to affirming the love for young children in our country. Yesterday the first lady spoke to us on our mission as a church to solve problems facing young children all over the globe, especially child abuse and child abandonment. I believe there is a direct connection between our love and treatment of the unborn and love and treatment of young children. If we deny love and respect to unborn children, how can parents be expected to love and treat their young children with respect? Abortion has instilled the attitude in our society that children are not valuable unless they are planned and wanted.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, is there a speech for the amendment? Over here on the front, yes? Microphone 4.

EARL R. RENSHAW (Southern Illinois): This is a question. I heard our first speaker say a few moments ago that the basic statement on abortion is on the Consent Calendar and has been approved. I would like to know where that appears in our DCA?

BISHOP MINNICK: All right.

ELIZABETH WRIGHT (Virginia): It appears, Bishop, if I may.

BISHOP MINNICK: Yes, please.

WRIGHT: It appears on the Consent Calendar, page 305, number 809. Thank you.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, is there a speech for? That was just a question. All right. In the back here. Go to microphone 13, if you will.

BARBARA LEMMEL (Troy): I speak against this amend...no, I take that back.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, you're speaking for it.

LEMMEL: I speak for this amendment because I believe that what has been deleted by this amendment is already covered under 71H, which speaks about the sanctity of unborn human life and also about the reluctance to approve abortion and the considerations necessary in the circumstances of the life of the mother. I also would like to say in response to the previous statement about child abuse that wanted children are more rarely abused than unwanted children.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, we've had two speeches for and one against. Is there someone who would like to speak against the amendment? All right, right here. Microphone 3, please.

PENNEY SCHWAB (Kansas West): While I affirm the intent of the maker of the motion of the amendment, I really believe that we can only address this issue as we come to it from our emotions. The minority report, as unamended, speaks to what our Discipline now affirms, the tragic necessity, or the tragic conflict of life on life. It also gives a very clear statement of compassion to those who have lost a child through stillbirth, for those who have experienced infertility, and I think it just provides the very best balance in a situation where we are certainly not of one mind on this issue any more than we are on some others.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, thank you. Now there have been two speeches for and two against and it's time to vote on this amendment. Do you need it read to you again? It's on page 478 as you know, to delete everything in the paragraph except the one, two, three, four...the last five sentences and the last word of the sentence before that, so that it reads, "we support the development," etc. All right, it's before you now for the vote. Please vote when the light appears.

BISHOP MINNICK: The amendment is lost, 584 votes to 281. All right, we are back to the minority report. We have had one speech for and one against. Is there someone who would speak for the report? All right. Over here. Microphone 5.

Beginning of Life Addressed

CHRISTIAN ALSTED (Denmark): I speak for this Minority Report because I think this is not only a petition about abortion. In my country, we have an Ethical Council elected by the Parliament. And this Council has stated that life begins at conception. In my country, we also have free abortion, and the Ethical Council has not given their statement to stop abortion, but they had given their statement to protect the embryo against experimenting like genetic manipulation. I think the minority report gives us an important foundation to speak against genetic experiments, because its states that life begins before birth.

BISHOP MINNICK: Thank you. We've had two speeches for, one against. Is there someone who will speak against? Back, way in the back. Microphone 14, yes.

ROBERT HOSHIBATA (Pacific Northwest): I speak against the minority report at this time, because I believe in my heart that all the situations that we would need to deal with are covered under the current language in the Discipline, as well as the amended version of Paragraph 72C in question. I have been involved with persons who have come to me, as their pastor, asking for counsel and guidance and a word of faith as they have faced an unwanted pregnancy. In the anguish of that consultation, the words currently in the Discipline have served me well. I believe that the current problem, or the reason why we are having this debate, is a struggle over the language and the discussion whether a life begins at a conception or somewhere else along the way. I firmly believe, as a father of three children, that conception marks the beginning of life. However, struggling over that question of the terminology between unborn human life and unborn children will not help us in any way to determine the right answer for a person in crisis. I urge our voting against the minority report, deferring instead to the current language as amended by our Church and Society committee.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. We've had two speeches for and two against. We'll turn now to see if there is a further statement from the Chair of the Minority Report, and then we'll hear from the Legislative Committee Chair.

WRIGHT: As I mentioned to you earlier, in the subcommittee, as we discussed abortion, there was not only consensus, but we were of one mind on the disciplinary statement as it exists. Now in your Consent Calendar, you will see that there is an amendment that we made. But certainly we would agree with each of you about the validity of the abortion statement that is already in the Discipline. I would like to say that the focus in the abortion statement in the Consent Calendar, the focus is primarily on the rights of women and the care of the mother. Whereas the minority report focuses more on the unborn child, and I heard someone say something about balance, and perhaps that is what this might afford. Bishop Minnick, under the rules, I would like to call on Jessica Moffat of the Oklahoma Delegation to begin our summation, if I may please.

BISHOP MINNICK: I believe that would not be in order since we have already had the -.

WRIGHT: No? Then if I may make the closing remarks then.

BISHOP MINNICK: You may.

WRIGHT: Obviously, as we have talked together tonight, there is diversity in our church among people of good faith. And that diversity reaches into this very issue. This minority report is not designed to negate our denomination's long held and respected stand on abortion; and I quote once more "the tragic conflict of life with life", but rather, this is to affirm the rights of the unborn from whatever time, from whatever point you believe that human life truly begins.

Whether you believe life is breathed into a baby at the moment of birth, or if you believe that life in the image of God begins sometime during the gestation period, I trust you agree it is incumbent upon The United Methodist Church to provide for the life and welfare of the unborn as well as the pregnant woman. I invite you to support the minority report.

BISHOP MINNICK: Thank you, we turn now to the legislative committee chair.

BETH CAPEN (North York): The paragraph 71h, that is the paragraph regarding abortion, was unanimously supported. The legislative committee, in regard to the rights of the unborn, by a majority, did reject this language. There were a number of reasons. However, I believe that, and I hope I'm representing this fairly, I believe that one of the primary reasons why some people rejected this, was because there was a belief that was covered under the language that is currently provided for in 71h, and also within the Social Principles is an additional paragraph regarding adoption. Another sentiment that I heard expressed, and that indeed is my own personal sentiment, is that there is some difficulty regarding the language that is presented in the paragraph entitled, "Rights of the Unborn," as it undermines the spirit of the language, which we agree is good language, in paragraph 71h.

One of the arguments of the minority is that it recognizes the conflict of life with life, and indeed, that language is currently in the legislation which we have already approved here. Also recognized in the paragraph 71h, which has been adopted, as amended, is the following: "Our belief in the sanctity of unborn human life makes us reluctant to approve abortion, but we are equally bound to respect the sacredness of the life and well-being of the mother for whom devastating damage may result from an unacceptable pregnancy. In continuity with past Christian teaching, we recognize tragic conflicts of life with life that may justify abortion, and in such cases, support the legal option of abortion under proper medical procedures. We cannot affirm abortion as an acceptable means of birth control, and we unconditionally reject it as a means of gender selection. We call all Christians to a searching and prayerful inquiry into the sorts of conditions that may warrant abortion." And this is the new language: "We commit our church to continue to provide nurturing ministries to those who terminate a pregnancy, to those in the midst of a crisis pregnancy, and to those who give birth." We urge you to vote no on the vote that you are about to take regarding the minority report. Thank you.

Votes Taken on Abortion Legislation

BISHOP MINNICK: Now the minority report under Calendar Item 1982 is before you for your vote, please vote when the light appears. The minority report does not prevail. It lost by a vote of 399 for 497 against.

BISHOP MINNICK: Now we're back to the matter of nonconcurrency on Calendar Item 1982. Let us vote on this when the light appears. To complete this legislative process, please, will the booth give us vote here, the voting process. All right, please vote when the light appears. You have supported the committee's recommendation of nonconcurrency by a vote of 619 to 281.

Membership in Religious Coalition for Reproductive Rights

DON M. PIKE (Central Texas): Bishop Minnick, the next item that we would address you will find in your white DCA if you would please turn to page 1236. It is Petition 22621, you'll find that at the very bottom of the right hand column, entitled, "Membership in Religious Coalition for Reproductive Choice." It is Calendar Item found on page 478, Calendar Item 1985. The committee voted 46 for, 27 against, 4 not voting, for nonconcurrency; and you will note there is a minority report. Mike Lowry will represent that minority report and Beth Capen will, in turn, share the thoughts of the legislative committee.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, the minority report is before you as an amendment by substitution to the recommendation of nonconcurrency. Yes. Point of order, microphone 7.

CHUCK E. HEFLEY (North Indiana): The minority report is the exact wording of the paragraph, after amended, that we voted on. So, according to our rules, it cannot be submitted as a minority report.

BISHOP MINNICK: Let us check that out. I believe the point of order is well taken, and so this would not be in order at this time. So the committee's recommendation for nonconcurrency is before you. Are you ready to vote? I see in the back here, microphone 7.

GARNETT WILDER (North Georgia): We seem to be having continued difficulty because we didn't cover this in our rules at the beginning. I stood to make a motion to address this situation, but was deferred by the chair. I want to try a motion at this time. I move a suspension of the rules as they apply to the minority reports in order that minority reports may be considered without legislative impairment or encumbrance.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, that is before us and has been seconded.

That is a suspension of the rules, and this takes a two-thirds majority to approve. Are you clear on what-? All right, if you will suspend the rules, will you lift a hand? Well, no, let's vote with the machine. If you will suspend the rules, vote when the light appears. You did not suspend the rules. [Results: yes, 249; no, 553] So, we will proceed. And the committee's recommendation for nonconcurrence is before you. Please vote when the light appears. You have supported the committee's recommendations. And we'll move on to the next item. [Results: yes, 537; no, 269]

PIKE: All right, Bishop, that concludes all of the -

BISHOP MINNICK: Yes. Microphone 3.

WILLIAM D. PEEPLES (Louisiana): I'm not sure what we just voted on. It clicked through too fast. I'm not sure where we are on that.

BISHOP MINNICK: I apologize for that. It was Calendar Item 1985. The legislative committee recommended nonconcurrence.

PEEPLES: And we supported nonconcurrence?

BISHOP MINNICK: Yes. Let me apologize, All right?

PIKE: All right, Bishop, that concludes all of the items that deal with the subject of abortion. And I believe, according to the calendar that we are pursuing this evening, we now turn to multi-committee petitions relative to homosexuality, is that correct?

BISHOP MINNICK: That's correct. All right.

PIKE: So I would need to ask that those, I guess, representing the other committees would begin to make their way up here. And also there is a minority report, Charles Pearce, that some of you signed. Whoever is speaking for that minority report needs to come to the platform. We would begin in your red DCA on page 142. In your red DCA on page 142.

It is Petition 21473; 21473. You'll find it on the right-hand side of the page at the very bottom of the column. This is calendar item found on page 386; page 386. And it is Calendar

Number 1678. You will find it on the left-hand side of the page at the very top. By a vote of 47 to 15, 12 not voting, the committee recommends concurrence as amended. You can see the difference in the two documents; you can compare the conclusion in the red DCA with the final wording in your blue DCA. The committee recommends concurrence 47, 15, 12.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, this is Calendar Item 1678 is before you. The committee recommends concurrence. Is there discussion on this item? All right, you will vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 617; no, 209] The committee's recommendation of nonconcurrence is sustained by a vote of 617 to 209. Concurrence, I'm sorry.

Rights of Former Homosexuals

PIKE: It is concurrence, yes, sir. All right, the next item, if you would turn in your white DCA to page 1218; white DCA, page 1218. It is Petition 22311; Petition 22311. You'll find it in the bottom right-hand column, supporting the rights of former homosexuals. It is calendared on page 477. Calendar Item 1981. You will find it right in the middle of the page, center column, Calendar 1981. The committee recommends concurrence as amended; 59 for, 8 against, 6 not voting. You'll notice we have a majority report and a minority report. Charles Pearce will be presenting the minority report; and Dale Weatherspoon and I will be handling the legislative committee's report.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. First, we shall move to present both. You have further things you want to say about the committee's report?

PIKE: No, we'll wait till the last, Bishop.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, we'll turn now and have the minority report presented.

CHARLES PEARCE (Florida): Bishop, and very fair Conference, I really wasn't expecting this right at the time. Over the last few years we have noticed that in our society name changes. Going to African-Americans—from Black to African-Americans; from Indians to Native Americans. And we want people to be called what they want to be called. And I stand before you today, urging you to support the minority report, which the transforming congregations, who have been meeting you in the afternoon to give you their newsletter, they requested that they not be called former homosexuals, but they want to be called—let me read my last story, anyway.

To not support this minority report denies the testimony of former homosexuals, such as Ron Dennis. Ron spent 34 years as a homosexual. He knew he was a homosexual as a child. He marched in Gay Pride parades, and he is a homosexual no more because he came to Jesus Christ while in the gay church. Afterwards, he read in the Bible that homosexuality was wrong, and this spoke to his heart. He left the gay lifestyle. He found a new church. His life was transformed. In a ministry, Ron has helped others to leave homosexuality. It is wrong to deny that Ron was a homosexual, as this amendment seeks to do. He was a homosexual; he is one no more. Therefore, it's only proper to call him a former homosexual, not a supposed homosexual.

The amendment is saying that he and others were never really homosexuals. And to deny this is to play a word game which refuses to rejoice in the freedom that Christ has brought to former homosexuals. Join me in seeking justice. Join me in seeking equality and openness to all persons and groups, and allow Ron to be called a former homosexual. Thank you.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, we'll move now to perfect the majority report. Any amendments you might want to make to it, so please come and present it as you will.

PIKE: We'll simply let it stand as it is, Bishop, and we'll make a comment at the very end. We can perfect it with the body.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. Are there amendments that you would like to make? Now, not speeches for or against at this time, just amendments. All right, right here, microphone number 8.

JEREMY VETTER (Nebraska): I would like to amend the majority report.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, what is your amendment?

VETTER: I would like to amend by substituting a new sentence for the last sentence which appears in the minority report. This sentence will read...

BISHOP MINNICK: We're perfecting the majority report.

VETTER: Yes, I'd like to replace the last sentence in the majority report with the following sentence: "We also commit ourselves to social witness against the coercion and marginalization of former homosexuals."

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. Is it seconded? It is seconded. All right. Are there other amendments?

VETTER: Can I speak in favor of my amendment?

BISHOP MINNICK: Yes, you may.

VETTER: We haven't voted on it yet, correct?

BISHOP MINNICK: That's right.

VETTER: OK. I was the one in the Committee on Church and Society who made the original amendment. In some discussions with people since then, I have learned that the language that I originally thought was sensitive to both sides, is not sensitive to many in the transforming congregations group. But, yet I think the statement needs to be placed in a separate statement, because former homosexuals face different kinds of pressures in society than do homosexuals. That's why I put it at the end, and that's why I made it that language which the minority report is advocating. I think that this amendment addresses the main concern of the minority report, but yet does it in a way that is sensitive to the important rights that are protected for homosexuals in this paragraph of the Discipline. I urge you to support this amendment and the majority report.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, that's a speech for. Is there a speech against it? I see no speeches against it. Another speech for it here? Microphone 3.

Call to Let People Describe Themselves

DAVID A. BANKS (North Carolina) I don't want to be presumptuous of those who signed the minority report, but I would support the amendment that Jeremy has put forward. I think indeed it does satisfy the desire of the minority report. It calls those who consider themselves homosexual what they prefer to be called.

It calls those who consider themselves former homosexuals what they prefer to be called. And, I think it has the best title of the two reports. And I would recommend, personally, that we accept the amendment and then approve the majority report.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. There have been two speeches for. Are there any against the amendment. Right here, microphone 3.

BECKY HAASE (California-Pacific): I would oppose this amendment, because I think as the last speaker said, this makes it like the minority report. I think it does not give us the choice of using the language which is here which I think is very appropriate. The fact that people formerly understood themselves homosexual can suggest that maybe there was a change or maybe there was not a change and I just think it is important for us to leave the language as it stands in the majority report.

BISHOP MINNICK: Thank you. All right. We've had two speeches for and one against. Does anyone else wish to speak against the amendment? I see no one asking for the floor. I believe you are ready to vote. So you will vote on the amendment when the light appears. [Results: yes, 522; no, 363] The amendment is approved.

BISHOP MINNICK: So we will proceed now to further perfect the majority report. Any other amendments to it? Microphone 14.

WARNER BROWN JR. (California-Nevada): Parliamentary inquiry. I need the help of the chair. It would appear that the minority report is merely a reverse of the majority report. Earlier in our proceedings, we have had situations where minority reports with similar intent have been ruled out of order. I request your assistance in understanding the difference in this situation.

BISHOP MINNICK: Well at this point, I will simply rule that we are in order and will proceed to address these majority, minority reports and let the body act as it will on them. Microphone 13.

ALYS RICHARDS (North Texas): The voting box on my particular table is no longer functioning. Could we please have it fixed. It is section B, row 18.

BISHOP MINNICK: Will someone please take care of that. Thank you. We are still perfecting the majority report, item 1981. Are there any other amendments? Yes? Microphone 10.

JOEL GARRETT (Western Pennsylvania): As I read paragraph 71H, it speaks to the guaranteeing of basic human rights and civil rights. To enlighten me as I prepare to vote, can I have some examples of how human rights, those basic human rights, and civil liberties are being denied to people who are former homosexuals or who...

BISHOP MINNICK: Do you have an amendment to make at this point?

GARRETT: No mine is a question, I need some information.

BISHOP MINNICK: Let us proceed to perfect the document. Then we will vote later and have any debate that you might want to have. Over here.

DAVID RICHARDSON (California-Pacific): With just the amendment that we made, both of these are the exact word for word now. I compared them word for word. The last speaker made me look at them. I don't see that there is a word difference; not even an "and."

BISHOP MINNICK: We are perfecting the two and you will make the decision as to which you would support. Over here. Microphone 1. Microphone 2. Yes?

JINNY GORDON (Central Illinois): Bishop, in light of what we just passed, I would like to go back to the original language that was struck where they took out "former homosexuals." It's down in the last paragraph, about six lines down.

BISHOP MINNICK: Yes.

GORDON: "And former homosexual persons" was struck. I would like to reinstate that in place of "homosexual persons."

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. The motion is to put in again the deleted words "and former homosexual persons." Is there a second to that? It is seconded. All right. Would you...

GORDON: May I speak to it?

BISHOP MINNICK: Yes.

Transforming Power of Christ

GORDON: This has been a hard issue for all of us. All of us are trying to be fair. I feel very strongly that those who have found a new life in Christ have found a transforming power in their life, and I think to deny that Christ can change lives is really a serious mistake. I hope you'll support this amendment.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, the amendment is before you. Is there someone who will speak against it? All right, I'll go all the way to microphone 13, here.

BILL BARNEY (Troy): Our committee decision on this really tried to be sensitive to the concerns of those who understand themselves to be, or are former homosexuals. And one of the things that I would speak against this amendment for, is that the writing in this very important part of the Social Principles which we adopted four years ago does apply only to homosexual persons. The issues here—shared material resources, pensions, guardian relationships, mutual powers of attorney and so on—are simply not issues for someone who is a former homosexual. They do not need to have their rights protected against violations regarding these issues. So it is very important that we keep the language clean in this paragraph and add the sentence at the end to provide for the former homosexual persons among us and let the homosexual rights be protected, as we did in this very momentous moment four years ago.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, that is a speech against. Is there a speech for? Over here, microphone 5.

JUNE P. GOLDMAN (Iowa): Bishop, excuse me, I do need a point of clarification. I thought that when we just voted and passed the amendment that was made, that we took care of this concern. Perhaps I lost it somewhere. The young man who made the amendment, crossed out, I thought, the words "who supposed themselves to be former, supposed themselves to be homosexual," I thought that we, by passing that amendment, restored the intent of having the concept that we were protecting those who are both homosexual and former homosexuals. Could you tell me what we did when we passed that amendment?

BISHOP MINNICK: The maker of this motion feels like that these words need to be added for his satisfaction. So, it is up to the body to decide whether or not to include them again. Is there some speech against this? Yes. Microphone 8.

MICHAEL WEAVER (Virginia): Since the issue of the rights of homosexual or former homosexual persons is at issue, I would request that you read the amendment that was just passed.

BISHOP MINNICK: Yes, you have it. We'll let the secretary read that.

CAROLYN MARSHALL: (unintelligible)

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. Is there someone who would speak against the amendment that is before us, which is to reinstate the words "and former homosexual persons" which had been deleted. All right. Over here. Microphone 4.

Nature of Change Addressed

MERLIN J. ACKERSON (Iowa): I think the way the secretary just read the amendment, it takes care of the concern of the delegate who made this last amendment. But I rise also—by the way, I rise to support the majority report as it's now amended because of a deep concern. And that concern is that I think we do talk about former homosexuals. By the way, if there are persons of this nature, that's who they are and I'll accept that. But I think the implication too often is that people who are gay and lesbian can change if they want to or if they go through certain procedures, prayer and so forth. Now that may be true for some, but I think to imply that for all is a bit dangerous because the testimony of many of my gay and lesbian friends and acquaintances is that this is who they are. This not something they can change. It may be true for some, but for many, it is not true.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, I have two speeches for and two against, although some who have said they were speaking for or against, have spoken in ways that to me were not clear, but as to which side they were on. Are you ready to vote on this amendment? Point of clarification, microphone 4.

LOIS BROWN ROGERS (Peninsula-Delaware): Thank you, Bishop. On that last amendment, she said to reinstate, in the sentence that was half-way down the paragraph, "former homosexual persons."

BISHOP MINNICK: Yes.

ROGERS: Did she also mean to reinstate "rights of homosexual and former homosexual persons" in the title?

BISHOP MINNICK: That was not in the amendment that was offered.

ROGERS: Thank you.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, you understand, do you, the amendment that is before us, which is to restore the words that were deleted, the words, "and former homosexual persons." If you support that, will you, well, whether or not you support it, vote your feelings when the light appears. The amendment is not supported. [Results: yes, 422; no, 475] All right, are there other amendments to be made to the majority report which we are perfecting? Over here, microphone 5, the second row, if you will.

AL GWINN (Kentucky): Thank you, Bishop. I move we suspend rule 36, and vote on all that is before us.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. You hear the motion. It takes, of course, two-thirds majority to suspend the rules, in order to vote on all that's before us. If you will suspend the rules, would you lift the hand? Opposed? You have clearly suspended the rules. All right, if you will, this is a bit redundant, but perhaps it ought to be done. If you will now call for the previous question, please indicate that desire when the light appears. All right, you are ready to conclude that. [854 approved] That's, right. Are you ready? Well - I would like to ask first the minority, if they're ready to accept this majority report as amended.

DON PIKE: Bishop, Charles Pearce went back to his seat, if you...

BISHOP MINNICK: Charles, are you? All right. Charles Pearce is ready to accept this, representing the minority, is willing to accept this majority report as amended. All right, Don we're ready for your speech.

PIKE: All right. Really, the central issue, as you look at it, is to decide whether or not you call the person who was once practicing homosexuality and now who is not, are you going to call them a "former homosexual person," or are you going to call them "one who formerly understood themselves to be a homosexual person?" And we'll leave it up to the body to decide which they prefer. That's, that's the issue between the two reports. Quite frankly, I think they are congruent.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. The majority report is before you. All right, is there a question or point of order here? Microphone 8.

JOSEPH D. HUSTON (West Michigan): Is the majority report now identical to the minority report?

BISHOP MINNICK: Basically, yes.

HUSTON: Is everyone clear on that, that the majority report now is identical to the minority report?

BISHOP MINNICK: But the minority has accepted the majority report as is.

HUSTON: Thank you.

BISHOP MINNICK: As amended.

HUSTON: Then may I ask for the majority report, as it is amended right now, to be read for us so that we can all be clear?

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. The whole thing needs to be read, the majority report as amended. We'll ask the secretary to do that and then we will vote.

CAROLYN MARSHALL: "Certain basic human rights and civil liberties are due to all persons. We are committed to supporting those rights and liberties for homosexual persons. We see a clear issue. Moreover, we support efforts to stop violence and other forms of coercion against gays and lesbians. We also commit ourselves to social witness against the coercion and marginalization of former homosexuals."

Legislation on Rights of Homosexuals and Former Homosexuals Approved

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, it's before you. Vote when the light appears.

And you have supported the committee. You have affirmed it. [739 approved] All right.

DON PIKE: Bishop Minnick, at this particular time one of the efforts that is being made, that I would share with the plenary is tonight to deal with all the issues related to the issue of homosexuality that are vested in each of the legislative committees. Those that have other items to present, they are legal, because their's have been in the DCA long enough. I need to know the will of the body in that we have two more items that were printed in today's DCA. As I understand the protocol of the General Conference, we would have to suspend the rules in order for us to be able to consider them tonight. Let me invite you as you would deliberate that in your mind to turn to page 583 in your blue DCA. You will find Calendar Items 2402 and 2403. Now let me tell you where to find them in your other DCA's. For 2402, it's in the white DCA page 1212. It is Petition 22493. It is at the very bottom of the right hand column. The heading is "Ceremonies That Celebrate Homosexual Union." That would be one that we would consider if you so desire. The other is found on page 1213, just across. Petition—by the way let me tell you that the committee on Ceremonies That Celebrate Homosexual Unions voted concurrence 29, 25 and 5. The one on 1213 is Petition 22301. The vote was nonconcurrence 59, 37 to 18. But if we're to deal with those tonight, it would require a suspension of the rules and to test the will of the body, I would move that we suspend the rules in order to be able to deal with these two issues.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. It will take a two-thirds vote to suspend the rules. If you are willing to do that in order to consider these two items, will you vote when the light appears? [829 approved] You are ready to consider these two items. You have suspended the rules.

PIKE: All right, Bishop Minnick, let's begin then in the white DCA on page 1212. Calendar Item 2402 as found, as I suggested to you, on 583. Petition 22493. The committee recommended concurrence 29, 25 and 5. Dale Weatherspoon was chairman of that subcommittee and he will be prepared to speak to that.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. Brother Weatherspoon.

Ceremonies that Celebrate Homosexual Unions

DALE WEATHERSPOON (California): In our sub-area, and also in the legislative area, one of the questions that we had was whether we should have received this petition or whether it should have gone to the Board of Ordained Ministries. But we acted on this petition and the vote, 29 to 25, felt that ceremonies should not be conducted by ministers in our churches.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. This is before you. Is there a speech against it? Right here, microphone 3.

SALLY DYCK (E. Ohio): And in my church there is a custom of asking myself, the pastor, to come and bless a home when a family moves. It would just be my question of, that it's OK to bless an inanimate object like a home, a house, and what goes on there, and not two person who have decided to only have relations with each other. And also, what constitutes a ceremony? I don't think that this legislation indicates what is a ceremony. Does it involve what might be affirmed in the course of counseling or perhaps a gathering around a table? It does not address that and furthermore, it also doesn't seem to be consistent with social principles. It seems to be more a matter of ministerial and pastoral relationships, so I would speak against it, because it raises too many questions.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. Is there a speech for? Yes, over here, microphone 5.

JACKSON BREWER (Kentucky): This week we have affirmed the social principles concerning the relationship of homosexuality to the Christian lifestyle. And it seems to me that this petition is an enhancement of those social principle stand. This issue is of great concern to lay people in our local churches particularly as I notice that this one comes from the Newport Grace Church of which I happen to be the District Superintendent. And so I feel strongly that I want to speak to say that I support this action.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. Is there a speech against? All the way back, microphone 14.

ELAINE STANOVSKY (Pacific Northwest): Is the motion to refer in order?

BISHOP MINNICK: Yes, it would be in order.

STANOVSKY: I move that we refer this to the Board of Ordained Ministry — Board of Higher Education in Ministry.

BISHOP MINNICK: Is there a second to that?

STANOVSKY: Can I speak to that?

BISHOP MINNICK: Yes, you may.

STANOVSKY: It seems to me that this is an item that's all tangled up with questions of authority and responsibility and accountability of ordained ministers, and ought to be looked at in the context of the broader considerations in that regard.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, the motion to refer is before you. Is there someone speak against the referral? Right here, microphone 2.

J. ERIC MCKINNEY (Central Texas): I'd simply ask this conference to be honest about where we are, and deal with this tonight. To refer, simply delays the possibility of making a decision as a General Conference. I'd ask that we move on and vote against referral.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. Is there anyone else to speak for referral? Over there at microphone 7, microphone 7. I could not see it for that person standing.

Explanation of Nature of Social Principles

PHILLIP WOGAMAN (Baltimore-Washington): Bishop, I speak in favor of referral partly because of the substance that is at stake here. Perhaps even more because of the form. The statement of Social Principles is not a juridical document. And yet what we are contemplating now is a juridical action. The Social Principles are teaching tools. They express the teaching of the church on many subjects. I doubt there's anybody in this room who fully agrees with everything in all of the Social Principles. And yet they hold principles before us to guide our thinking and to direct our hearts in the direction that our church as a whole has approved. To begin to think of the Social Principles as a juridical document, one that is enforceable as a direct aspect of the polity of the church, distorts all of the relationships in the Discipline. The motion of referral, on the other hand, is to set this question before the right body in the church with the understanding that it can bring to us some suggestions about the best way to handle what is, at best, a very tangled, complex, difficult and sometimes heart-wrenching, human pastoral problem. Thank you.

BISHOP MINNICK: Now let me ask the maker of the motion, I understood her to refer it to the Committee on Ministry to report back to us tomorrow. Please, microphone 14.

ELAINE STANOVSKY (Pacific Northwest): My motion was to report to the Board of Higher Education and Ministry.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. Thank you. We have had two speeches for and one against. Is there anyone who would speak against referral? Let me go back here to microphone 8. Yes.

HERCHEL SHEETS (North Georgia): This is a matter that has to do not just with the ministers of our church but it has to do with the whole church. And it is something that should be decided by this body and not referred to the Board of Higher Education and Ministry.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, you've had two speeches for and two against. The motion is to refer. You will vote when the light appears. You have not referred it, so we're back to the item 2402. We've had two speeches against it and one for. Does someone speak for it? Anyone else? Yes, microphone 10. We need a French translator, please.

FRENCH TRANSLATOR: Can you hear me?

BISHOP MINNICK: Yes.

FRENCH TRANSLATOR: I would like to speak in French first. (translating) My name is Akasa Umembudi, and I come from Central Zaire.

AKASA UMEMBUDI (Central Zaire): (translation) We've had some difficulties with these amendments because some of them are not very well translated. But on this particular question which is under discussion now, we're having a little difficulty understanding the orientation, the direction that you're taking. Are we trying to regulate the homosexual life or are we going to be faithful to what we said yesterday? Are we going to also try to regulate the lives of people who kill their friends? And also to regulate the partnerships of prostitutes? I thought that we said that this practice was a sin. We know what we are supposed to do with sinners. If the sinner repents, he is in the family with everyone else. But if he doesn't understand that he's in sin, that he is living in sin, we have to help him to see that and help him to make peace with God. This debate keeps going on. Today we are talking about marriage between homosexuals, tomorrow its going to be engagements between homosexuals and the debate just keeps going on. Thank you.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, we've had two speeches for and two speeches against. All right, what is your point of order? Microphone 9. Yes, microphone 9.

PHILLIP AMERSON (South Indiana): Bishop Minnick, with all due respect, I believe there was only one speech against.

BISHOP MINNICK: No, I inadvertently began with a speech against rather than one for. Normally I do the other order, but we've had two on either side now.

AMERSON: I understood that you took the speech to refer as a speech against.

BISHOP MINNICK: No, I did not. No. All right, we're ready to vote now. We've had two speeches on either side. Yes, point of order right here.

CARL SCHENCK (Missouri East): Thank you for recognizing me, Bishop. I rise to request a ruling of the chair as to the appropriateness of this language having to do with professional ministerial conduct and matters related to property in the use in our local churches. I rise to ask the chair to rule whether or not such legislation is appropriately in the Social Principles.

BISHOP MINNICK: Now you'll have to, you'll have to clarify for me, I'm not...we're dealing with 2402. Now does...

CARL SCHENCK (Missouri East): That's correct, sir. It is an amendment by addition to...

BISHOP MINNICK: No, no, the committee recommends concurrence and that's what we're dealing with, 2402.

CARL SCHENCK: That's...am I not in order for the chair to rule whether or not language regarding the use of local church property and the professional conduct of clergy is appropriately in the Social Principles? It is, I believe, out of order in the Social Principles.

BISHOP MINNICK: I believe the body has a right to decide, and if there is then objection, you may appeal to the Judicial Council, so we will proceed with this, the vote now. It is item 2402. The committee recommends concurrence. Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 553; no, 321] You have supported the committee. All right, back here, microphone 9.

Appeal of Chair Ruling to Judicial Council

C. JOSEPH SPRAGUE (West Ohio): I would like to appeal the ruling of the chair. I do not believe that there were two speeches against, there was only the one by the Rev. Sally Dyck, and none other.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, my notes indicated that there were two on either side. If you will support the chair, will you lift the hand. If you disagree with the chair...I am supported. Let's move to the next item.

PIKE: All right, bishop.

BISHOP MINNICK: Please, go ahead.

PIKE: With a great deal of...

BISHOP MINNICK: Yes, yes, over here. Microphone 1.

JEFFREY R. SPELMAN (Northern New Jersey): I would like to move that what we have just done be referred to the Judicial Council based on what this gentleman has just said—whether it's appropriate, the action we took, is appropriate for the Social Principles.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, it's in order. I guess we just....Is there anyone who would oppose that recommendation? We're ready to debate this if there's opposition to it. If you will refer this to the Judicial Council, please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 546; no, 363] You have appealed it to the Judicial Council. That's fine. All right.

PIKE: With a great deal of...

BISHOP MINNICK: Yes. Microphone 3.

DON MESSER (Rocky Mountain): Bishop Minnick, it would be helpful on these very controversial decisions if we would continue to use the voting machines on all issues. There's great pressure when we have to vote against you and your distinguished leadership by hand, and I think it would be better for all if we would continue in a wired form. Thank you.

BISHOP MINNICK: I apologize for that, Don. I will do that henceforth, All right?

PIKE: All right, Bishop.

BISHOP MINNICK: Twenty-four, three.

PIKE: All right, with a great deal of relief, I come to my last petition on this particular subject (laughter). The white DCA, page 1213, just across the page, top left hand column, Petition 22301. It is calendar item on 583, right below where we were just talking, Calendar Item 2403. By a vote of 37 for, 18 against, 4 not voting, the committee recommended nonconcurrency.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, it is before you. The committee recommending non-concurrence. Is there someone who would speak for the...over here on the right. Microphone 7.

Pastor Tells of Conducting Same Gender Covenant Services

GREGORY R. DELL (Northern Illinois): As a person, a pastor for 25 years, who has celebrated covenant services with a half a dozen couples of the same gender, I rise for your support and understanding of faithfulness to those who search for a way to, in the faith, affirm their connection to Jesus Christ, to one another, and the community of faith. The persons with whom I have done such celebrations recognize by my counsel that they may not be married, not in the state of Illinois, and not in the eyes of the church. But that the love and commitment of persons who recognize the power of relationships lived in weakness and strength before the grace and judgment of Jesus Christ, needs to have room in the church. I urge you, sisters and brothers, even in the context of the action which we just took, to enable us who serve those who have in some ways been marginalized by the church, please enable us to continue a ministry of grace and accountability to these who search and celebrate love and who search for and celebrate their Christian, biblical faithfulness.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, that was a speech against...for. That was a speech for; now we need one against. That's right. All right. We need a speech against. All right, I'll do better here. We need one for; that was a speech against. So we need one for. Over here, microphone 5. Speech for.

JUNE P. GOLDMAN (Iowa): I would uphold the committee's recommendation of nonconcurrency. I have a nephew who is gay. I have a niece who is lesbian. I have several friends who are gay and lesbian. We have discussed many issues that confront and concern the church. I have been in their homes and have been welcome; they are always welcome and have often been in my home. And as we have discussed this issue with love, this is what they have said to me. They have said, "I love my church, and so I beg you, June, to convey the message that I don't want my church to compromise itself just to accommodate my lifestyle." I think this is a tremendous sense of grace and understanding from persons who are gay and lesbian, who feel a deep love for their church and for all that it represents to them. And so they have asked not to let the church compromise itself simply to accommodate their choice of a lifestyle. I would vote in favor of the committee's recommendation of nonconcurrency.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, we need someone who would speak against nonconcurrency. Microphone 6. Someone had the card. Yes, microphone 6.

KABAMBA MUNYANGWE (North Shaba): (through an interpreter) Your Excellency, Bishop, members of the General Conference, I come in the humility of faith which we have in Jesus Christ. I don't think this problem can divide the body of the Christ that we are. I know that the problem of homosexuality is a social problem. And when a problem is a social problem, it becomes a problem of the entire society. We are a connectional church. This problem no longer concerns the church in the United States. It concerns everyone. That is why it is being submitted to this supreme body.

But I would like to draw the attention to all members of the conference; but the church, which is the body of Christ, has its principles, which must be respected. We love those who are homosexuals as human beings. We have great respect for them because they are people like we are. But we are against the practice of homosexuality because it is against human dignity. I don't want to go into biblical details because the Bible is not clear on this issue. I believe this is above all a cultural problem. To my knowledge, I know that in all the cultures of the world this practice has never been tolerated. If it has been practiced in some place, it was perhaps only occasionally.

I invite you, my brothers and my sisters, to continue working for the love of Christ to the gospel and to win souls to Christ. Let us stay away from all which can break Christ's heart. And finally, I would like to invite the church to continue to teach. I believe that this discussion of homosexuality can make us a failure in terms of education and teaching. That will show that we have failed as teachers. I believe that, starting with the parents who are responsible, it's necessary to...

BISHOP MINNICK: I'm sorry, your time is up.

My tally shows two speeches for nonconcurrency and one against nonconcurrency. Is there anyone else who would speak against nonconcurrency? Over here. All right, microphone 2.

GEORGE D. MCCLAIN (New York): The other night, actually Saturday night, I was a part of arranging for a presentation of a choral program by the Denver Area Gay and Lesbian Chorale called Harmony. About half the audience was members of the support community for that group and others were delegates and friends of the General Conference. Immediately following that event, a woman who had been in tears in the row right behind me came up to me and said, "I'm not a United Methodist, but I'm going to be. I grew up a Southern Baptist, and there's been no place for me and my partner in our church. Could you tell me where the nearest United Methodist Church is?" I would pray that this General Conference would allow those of us who feel called to reach out in this evangelical way to gay men and lesbians and allow them, anoint their relationships, to have this evangelical outreach and not prohibit this. Thank you.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, we've had two speeches for and two speeches against the committee's recommendation of nonconcurrency. The time has come for the vote. Question? Point of order? Yes? Microphone 9.

JACK PLOWMAN (Western Pennsylvania): Bishop, I rise to a point of order. It would seem to me that what is being proposed here in agenda item 71 is contrary to the Book of Discipline. I think it would be out of order for us to adopt a provision that is contrary to the Book of Discipline. Specifically, paragraph...

BISHOP MINNICK: This is a speech, and your point of order?

PLOWMAN: No, sir. I'm just explaining why I think it is out of order. If the chair doesn't want to hear why

I think it is out of order, of course, I'll be seated.

BISHOP MINNICK: No, go ahead.

PLOWMAN: I would think the chair would want to hear why it's out of order.

BISHOP MINNICK: Yes, please. Please go ahead.

Appeal to Book of Discipline

PLOWMAN: I think it is out of order, sir, because paragraph 402.1 of the Book of Discipline clearly states that the practice of homosexuality is incompatible with Christian teaching. Paragraph 2623 of the Book of Discipline makes it a chargeable offense for a pastor to conduct himself in a manner incompatible with Christian teaching. So what we're being asked to do is to adopt a provision to change the Social Principles which would be contrary to Book of Discipline. That was my reason for asking the chair to rule that this is out of order.

BISHOP MINNICK: I guess I'll rule again, as I did before, that the body may do what it will, and then you may appeal it to the Judicial Council if this is your desire. There are two speeches that have been made for and against. We're ready to vote on 2403. The committee recommends nonconcurrency. Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 598; no, 304] You have supported the committee's recommendation of nonconcurrency.

DON PIKE: Bishop, that completes the report of the Committee of Church and Society, and I would yield to Paul Ervin.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. I have an urgent note here. "Last night we went three plus hours without a break. Would you help us take a brief break sometime soon?" [laughter] So we will take a ten minute break, please. Come back at nine o'clock.

S.T. KIMBROUGH: As you return to your seats, maybe it's appropriate for us to sing a "Kyrie Eleison," Lord, Have Mercy." And you can join in the three parts.

(song)

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, let us be in order, please. Will you take your seats? Let us be in order, and I'll turn now to Paul Ervin for Discipleship.

PAUL ERVIN, JR. (North Georgia): Thank you, Bishop. We have two items that are in the same subject area. Calendar Item 756, which is in the blue book at page 234, is the first item. Page 234. Presenting the two petitions we will cover is Duane Sarazin from the Minnesota Conference. He chaired our Doctrine Committee. Duane.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. Will you please, please take your places?

Creation of Same Sex Commitment Ceremonies

DUANE V. SARAZIN (Minnesota): Bishop Minnick, Christian friends of the General Conference, if you would please turn in your blue DCA to page 234, there you will find Calendar Item 756, and it is located in the third column on that page, down towards the bottom. In your white DCA, you will find the petition in its entirety on page 1298; 1298, the first column, down at the bottom. It is item 22408. That's 22408. And it is entitled, "Creation of Commitment Ceremonies for Same Sex Couples within The United Methodist Church."

Our committee voted nonconcurrency with this petition. There was spirited, but loving, conversation and debate within our legislative committee. It was a prayerful and soul-searching time. The primary reason for the vote of nonconcurrency was because our church has not changed its stand on the Social Principles, and, therefore, it would be inappropriate to ask our church, as this petition does, to create such a liturgy. The vote was 89 in favor of nonconcurrency, 13 against, and 3 abstentions.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, item 756 on page 234 is before you. The committee recommends nonconcurrency. Is there someone who would speak for, or are you ready to vote?

Yes? Microphone 13. Or Microphone 8.

JOE KILPATRICK (North Georgia): I was simply going to make a motion that we suspend the rules and go ahead and vote.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. If you are ready to suspend the rules and vote, indicate that when the light appears.

You are ready to suspend the rules and vote. If you will support the committee...Did you...do you want to speak before we vote? If you will support the committee's recommendation of nonconcurrency, please indicate so when the light appears. You have supported the committee. [Results: yes, 628; no, 190]

SARAZIN: Bishop, the next item is to be found in the blue DCA, page 387; 387.

BISHOP MINNICK: Page 387.

SARAZIN: In the middle column, up towards the top, it is Calendar Item 1682 and Petition 22212. Page 387, Calendar Item 1682, and it is entitled, "Service of Worship for the Celebration of Persons' Mutual Support and Commitment." You can find the petition in its entirety in the white DCA, page 1291. Page 1291.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, item...

SARAZIN: Excuse me. This service is essentially the same as the one just mentioned, some different wording. The committee voted nonconcurrency, 66 in favor of nonconcurrency, 15 against, and 5 abstentions.

BISHOP MINNICK: Item 1682, the recommendation for nonconcurrency is before you. Is there discussion? All right, microphone 5. Are you speaking for or against nonconcurrency?

BISHOP LINDSEY DAVIS (Kentucky): I move that we suspend the rules and vote.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. If you will suspend the rules and vote, indicate so when the light appears. All right, you are ready to suspend the rules. If you will support the committee's recommendation of nonconcurrency, please indicate so when the light appears. You have supported the committee. [Results: yes, 655; no, 203] All right, David Severe, General Judicial.

ALFRED JOHNSON (Eastern Pennsylvania): I chair the subcommittee on judicial matters in the legislative section on General and Judicial Administration. I call the attention to the body to Calendar Item 1997.

BISHOP MINNICK: What page?

BISHOP MINNICK: Page 482, item number...Give me the item number.

JOHNSON: Page 482, Calendar Item 1997; 1997.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, thank you.

Chargeable Offences for Pastors

JOHNSON: This item will deal with three petitions as listed. If you want the text for the petition, probably the best text will be found in the red book, page 1093; Petition 20722. Text can be found on page 1093, Petition 20722. The other petitions all have similar or the same language. These petitions ask the General Conference to amend paragraph 2623.1 of the Book of Discipline by adding to the list of chargeable offenses for pastors who participate in leadership of same-sex covenant services uniting gay and lesbian persons. Both the sub-group on judicial matters and the legislative section on General and Judicial Administration, by a majority vote of 44 for, 23 against, and 3 abstaining, voted nonconcurrence.

First, let me share with you briefly. We were privileged not only to have persons of great experience and expertise within our sub-group, but also the grateful presence of General Council of GCFA, and also a member of the Judicial Council, whose presence certainly embellished and informed our decisions. Secondly, we were guided by several principles, one of which was not to add to the Book of Discipline items that appear to be self-evident or already and adequately cared for under other paragraphs within the Book of Discipline. I must say we received at least ten requests to add to chargeable offenses of other matters.

Finally and especially, proceeding from this second point, we felt there is more than adequate paragraphs within the Book of Discipline, including actions taken yesterday on 71.F, actions taken today on the new 71.C, the action taken just proceeding here also referring to 402.2, but specifically in paragraph 2623.1b, which states, "Ministerial practices that are declared by the United Methodist Church incompatible with Christian teaching," as well as 2623.1e, which declares "Disobedience to the order of the Discipline of The United Methodist Church" as a chargeable offense, adequately and effectively covers this particular petition. (unintelligible) ...discussions in the section. Therefore, we of majority opinion conclude that nonconcurrence is indeed the appropriate response to this petition. We urge your support for our decision.

BISHOP MINNICK: 1997 is before you; are you ready to vote? Do so when the light appears. You have supported the committee's recommendation of non-concurrence. [730 approve] All right, is that it? All right, we'll turn to ministry. Sandra Lutz.

Committee on Ordained Ministry and Human Sexuality

SANDRA W. LUTZ (East Ohio): The petition we bring before you will find in the blue DCA at the top of page 384. This is Calendar Item 1668. And I know, before you tell me that it appears on a Consent Calendar. It's been removed from there, however, and that reference appears on page 484. But since that doesn't give you any information, stay there on page 384. And this references paragraph 402.2, and you will find that the original petition in the red DCA, page 1048, that's 1048, referencing paragraph 402.2, and it's Petition 21158. And the subject is "Human Sexuality," and Cecile Adams will speak to you on that.

L. CECILE ADAMS (Detroit): Bishop, I believe I need to refer to another Consent Item in order to provide information for the body to have before the item which has been removed from the Consent Calendar can be considered.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right.

ADAMS: I would ask you to turn to Calendar Item 1013, which begins on page 328 in the blue book, Calendar Item 1013. And then I would ask you to turn in the red book to page 992, paragraph 304. In the subcommittee and in the legislative committee we considered the Ministry Study as the base for all of our decisions. In looking at all the petitions related to human sexuality and to the phrase, "fidelity in marriage and celibacy in singleness," we used the paragraph 304, which you find on page 992. Consent Calendar A04, item 1013, reflects the amendments which we made to paragraph 304 and the particular wording of 304.3. You will find on page 329 a continuation of 1013, and you will see that in 304.3 we added a footnote and the wording for the footnote. I do have an editorial change to make in the footnote. The phrase, "self-avowed practicing homosexual" is to be in quotation marks. The footnote describes self-avowed practicing homosexual.

When both the subcommittee and the legislative committee adopted paragraph 304 as you find it amended on page 329, all other references to the language which is included in 304 were put on a Consent Calendar and voted by both the subcommittee and the legislative committee as nonconcurrence. That is where we are. It is my understanding that the item removed from the Consent Calendar refers to the original language of a petition which you will find on 1047. And I understand there is someone, there are some ones who wish to speak to that.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, now we are on page 1047. Is this what you...?

ADAMS: Yes. If you want to follow the language which will come up in the discussion, you will want to look at page 1047 in the red book, which contains the language which will be referred to in the discussion. I would encourage you, though, to keep your hand also at page 992 so that you can begin to understand the differences we are dealing with.

BISHOP MINNICK: Yes. Point of Order. Microphone 7.

PHILIP R. GRANGER (North Indiana): Bishop, the petition that technically is in front of us deals with 402.2. I would like a ruling from the chair. I believe that section of the Discipline has been superseded by the new paragraph 304. Any action that we take tonight on 402.2, will that be translated into paragraph 304?

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. I do not believe so. We have already adopted the Ministry Study.

GRANGER: Excuse me, Bishop. I was taking care of the clerical secretary's office. Would you repeat, please?

BISHOP MINNICK: I said I do not believe so, inasmuch as we have already adopted the Ministry Study.

GRANGER: Then, Bishop, would this item be out of order for this evening?

ADAMS: Bishop, in the action that was taken by placing 1013 on the Consent Calendar and the approval of that Consent Calendar, all that is in 402.2 is found now in 304.3.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. I think then we are in order, are we not? I would think that we are in order.

GRANGER: Bishop, does that mean that we're voting a potential amendment to 304?

BISHOP MINNICK: Yes. Yes, we are.

GRANGER: Thank you.

ADAMS: We have some people who are asking for recognition.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. Microphone 1.

LARRY GOODPASTOR (Mississippi): We lifted this particular petition because we felt it was important to add the words, "proven with a clear and convincing evidence," which you will find in that line on page 1048 in the red DCA. As the chair of the Board of Ordained Ministry, I have discovered over the last four years the importance of proceeding cautiously and not engaging or relying in hearsay evidence. We have also been told and instructed by the Judicial Council and others to provide definitions. The definition that is in this particular petition that is not in the new paragraph is the section, "proven with clear and convincing evidence." This particular phrase would certainly enhance and strengthen and give to our boards and others some better guidelines for working out the decisions that we have to make. It is up to each board to determine whether the evidence is clear and convincing, but it will help us to provide the definition for the practicing part of that phrase.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. That is a speech for. Is there a speech against. Right here. Microphone 3.

GERALD O. TRIGG (Rocky Mountain Conference): Are we still in the process, Bishop, and I need to ask, of perfecting even the wording of this 402 recommendation? And is a motion to perfect in order?

BISHOP MINNICK: Yes, it is in order, a motion to perfect.

TRIGG: Then I would move that in the preliminary sentence there, that states, "Since the practice of homosexuality is incompatible with Christian teaching" as the introduction, that we delete the word Christian and substitute the word Scriptural. If I have a second, I'll speak to that.

All right. Is there a second? It is seconded.

*In Harmony With
"Our Theological Task"*

GERALD TRIGG: I think if we made this move we would discover a statement that would be in harmony with our doctrinal position in "Our Theological Task," which lifts the primacy of Scripture. It would also accurately acknowledge, that as the 1992 study on homosexuality acknowledges, that whenever the practice of homosexuality is mentioned in Scriptures, it's viewed negatively. But, on the positive side, the statement would accurately acknowledge that not all Christians teach the condemnation of homosexuality. Witness the votes that we have been taking here. The change of wording, milder though it is, would be very important. We would cease to be so judgmental regarding those Christians who disagree on the subject and would more accurately, honestly suggest where we are as a church. And because it is more accurate and more compassionate, it would enable us, in the words of the bishops' statements to the General Conference, express a new spirit of honesty and openness and enable us to speak the truth as we discern it in love.

BISHOP MINNICK, JR.: All right. Thank you. The amendment is before you. That is a speech for it. Is there a speech against it? Yes? Microphone 9.

Question of Clear and Convincing Evidence

SHAWN HARTMAN (Central Pennsylvania): First, I have a question on "proven with clear and convincing evidence." Who would present that evidence, and would it be the Board of Ordained Ministry that would then...

BISHOP MINNICK, JR.: We are not on that right now. We're on the substitute, the amendment to substitute the word "Scriptural" for the word "Christian." That's all we're talking about right now.

HARTMAN: Would the answer to the question, then, make for, or against, the amendment?

BISHOP MINNICK, JR.: Well, we may come back to that later, but right now it's for the substitute of the word if you want to speak about that. All right, microphone 9. This will be a speech against.

RONALD BRETSCH (North Central New York): I would speak against the motion to substitute. Although I am no theologian, I do think that there is a difference between "scriptural" and "Christian." For me as a Christian, the Old Testament is included in my theology, but it is made more complete by the gospels in the New Testament. I would think that we could all agree on that more than we could on what is Christian. Christian teaching has taken place during the past 1,996 years, and on that we do disagree. I would think that the statement would be more in touch with reality of where we are as a denomination if the word "Christian" were retained instead of "scripture."

BISHOP MINNICK, JR.: All right. Is there a speech for? I saw a card...All right. Over here. Microphone 5.

AL GWINN (Kentucky): Moving suspension of Rule 36 in order that we can vote on all that's before us.

BISHOP MINNICK, JR.: All right. Is there a second to it? If you will suspend the rules so that we can vote on all that's before us, will you vote when the light appears? All right, you're ready to vote. Yes, please, microphone 7.

JOY MOORE (West Michigan): Is it in order that the question that the young man asked, as we entered this amendment, be answered? I think I might be able to address it for him.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. Let's hear the question, again. Microphone 9.

SHAWN HARTMAN (Central Pennsylvania): My question is, who would present the evidence that would be needed, and also is it the Board of Ordained Ministry that will then make final decision?

MOORE: I was on the legislative committee. I believe we thought that we were taking care of the issue without the line, "clear and convincing evidence." The Council of Bishops and the Board of Higher Ed have given counsel that the addition of the phrase, "proven by clear and convincing evidence" allows for the evidence to be used and sets the standard which is consistent with the standard for evidence in trial procedures. Paragraph 2626, "the burden of proof for a vote to convict shall be clear and convincing evidence. As in any complaint, it is up to the Board of Ordained Ministry to determine if the evidence presented is clear and convincing on a case-by-case-basis." Thank you.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. Thank you, and I believe now we're ready to vote. We're voting first on the amendment to substitute the word "scriptural" for the word "Christian." Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 339; no, 564] You have not approved that amendment. Now we come to the substitution. Will you please repeat now what it is you'd like for us to substitute?

ADAMS: I'd like to ask Larry Goodpastor who moved that, or who brought that before us, to speak to that, please.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. Larry Goodpastor, microphone 1.

LARRY GOODPASTOR (Mississippi): I'm not sure I moved anything. We're just responding to the petition that is before us. In essence, what this particular petition would do would be to add to what we have already passed on the Consent Calendar: the phrase, "or prove with a clear and convincing evidence."

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. That's a motion to insert that in 304. Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 667; no, 214] All right, you have approved that substitution. And now, we're ready to vote on the entire matter before us. Yes, you please get to speak.

ADAMS: Bishop, the amendment, or the substitution has been approved. The subcommittee felt very strongly that the language that was covered in the petitions as presented was sufficient.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. Will you please vote, now when the light appears? Yes? There. Microphone 3.

Questions of Parliamentary Process

BECKY HAASE (California-Pacific): Bishop, this is extremely confusing, and again, we have a situation where we have a motion, as I understand it, a motion of nonconcurrency and we have an amendment. And I just would like clarification, if we vote yes, we are supporting the motion, the recommendation of nonconcurrency? And not the amendment. Is that correct?

BISHOP MINNICK: Is this what you're asking?

ADAMS: It is my understanding that voting yes would be a vote for paragraph 304.3 as amended.

BISHOP MINNICK: No, no that—it would be the opposite way to that.

ADAMS: It would be to support the recommendation of the committee, then?

BISHOP MINNICK: Yes, yes. If you vote yes, you'll be voting nonconcurrency. If you vote no, you'll be voting for it as amended. Yes? Back at microphone 14.

MARY ANN GALLOWAY (West Ohio): I'd like to know exactly what I'm voting on, please.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. Will you please?

ADAMS: It is my understanding that if you vote yes, you vote nonconcurrency with Consent Calendar Item 1668, and you vote concurrence for Calendar Item 1013 as amended and printed on pages 328 and 329. If you vote no, you are voting for paragraph 304 as amended with the words, "with clear and convincing evidence."

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, microphone 12. Microphone 12, please. Ended up going to 7 instead of 12, All right.

VERGIL L. DAUGHTERY (South Georgia): Mr. Chairman,...I am completely confused. I move to separate the question in order that we might know exactly what we're voting on.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, is there any objection to separating the question? All right, please state the first part.

ADAMS: I need some help from you, bishop, at this point because I'm not sure what separating the question does.

BISHOP MINNICK: Well, in section....., you have two items before us. Give us the first.

ADAMS: The first would be to support the recommendation of the committee in terms of nonconcurrence with Calendar Item 1668. Is that right?

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. Let's vote on that. Nonconcurrence with item 1668 is the recommendation of the committee. Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 566; no, 193] All right, you have supported nonconcurrence. What is the second item there now?

ADAMS: The second item would be on Consent Calendar A04 to support concurrence as amended on pages 328 and 329 in the blue DCA.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, that's before you. Please vote when the light appears. Microphone 6.

JAMES A. HARNISH (Florida): We still are not sure on which language we're reading. Could you have the secretary read to us the, what it is that we're voting on?

BISHOP MINNICK: Please, yes. All right. Do you have that? Do we need to...do you have...Is there a motion from Larry Goodpastor? This is what she is asking for. Larry, microphone 1. Microphone 1.

LARRY GOODPASTOR: The paragraph 304.2 has been amended... point 3 has been amended by our action earlier to insert the words "or prove with a clear and convincing evidence" after the word self-avowed, so that it would read "self-avowed or to prove with a clear and convincing evidence practicing." That's the motion, that's the action that we took a few moments ago.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. All right, there was a question over here, I believe. Microphone...All right. This is before you then as amended. Yes, microphone...let me go back to microphone 8, if you don't mind.

SUSAN W. RUACH (South Indiana): Am I not correct in thinking that the item on page 329, numbered, Calendar Item 1013 on the Consent Calendar, was already voted on and therefore we can't amend it without reconsideration. Is that correct?

ADAMS: That is my understanding.

RUACH: So then what we did was amend a paragraph in connection with the other, with that other item, which we have just nonconcurred with. So it seems to me we finished it. (applause)

BISHOP MINNICK: Yes, please, microphone 5.

JIM HOLSINGER (Kentucky): Bishop, we are in a position that is extremely difficult, as we all know. The issue here is that 304 and 402, one is replacing the other due to the fact of the ministerial study. And so we have entered 402.2 on the calendar lifted item, but you ruled at the beginning when we asked the, when the question was asked, that that would amend 304.2 or 3, whichever one it is. And the result of that is that we have amended by our action of 75 to 25, 304, and now we need to simply vote to concur or nonconcur with that final motion.

BISHOP MINNICK: You're point is well taken. We will vote on the item as amended. All right? Will you vote when the light appears? Yes? I guess...All right, come on. Microphone 3.

BECKY HAASE (California Pacific): I think the point was made, Bishop, that the calendar item that has been amended had previously been voted on. And it would seem that we would need a motion to reconsider, reconsider that item if we're going to amend it. I'm just asking what is the calendar item we are now voting on, and hasn't it already been voted on?

ADAMS: The calendar item, which would be amended by your action, would be 1013 on pages 328 and 329. That was approved as a part of Consent Calendar A04 in action yesterday, I believe.

BISHOP MINNICK: One moment. I believe we're at the point where the whole matter is before us for our decision as a body, and the point of, let's see the point of order here, yes...microphone 4.

DON W. MENDENHALL (Iowa): I would move to table for the reason to allow the committee to re-evaluate its presentation of these items and to confer with the presiding officer when that is completed and have it be the first item on tomorrow's agenda.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. The motion to table is before you. It is not debatable. If you will table, will you lift, will you vote when the light appears? [Results: yes, 587; no, 334] And you have voted to table and the committee will come back tomorrow. All right, Cashar Evans. Yes, point of order, over here.

EARL RENSCHAW (Southern Illinois): Does not a tabling have to be two-thirds? That was 63.7%.

BISHOP MINNICK: No, it does not have to be two-thirds, just a majority. All right, Cashar Evans. Yes, microphone 13.

WILLIAM T. MCCLENDON (South Carolina): Bishop, I would respectfully submit that that motion to table was out of order because it should have been a motion to postpone to a definite time. And perhaps the delegates weren't aware.

BISHOP MINNICK: The motion may be made at any time to take it from the table.

MCCLENDON: I move to take it from the table.

BISHOP MINNICK: I believe it's not in order at this moment. (laughter)

All right, we'll turn to brother Cashar Evans here.

CASHAR EVANS (North Carolina): Calendar Item 18. Let's start again. Calendar Item 1989, page 479 of the blue book.

BISHOP MINNICK: 479, item 1989.

EVANS: It refers to a petition on page 1313 in the white book. That Petition 22240. It's in the first column. It's the second one down.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right.

EVANS: The action of the committee voted not to change the paragraph by a vote of 70, 23, and 0; concurrence. There is a minority report, Bishop Minnick.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. Let us, is there anything you want to say further about the majority report?

EVANS: No, Sir.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, let's go to the minority report. Frank Trotter.

Committee on Ministry Minority Report on Homosexuality

FRANK TROTTER (Baltimore-Washington): Thank you, Bishop. Tonight sort of reminds me of that joke about the longest conversation in recorded history in the Guinness Book of World Records. It lasted ten days and thirteen hours and forty-six minutes, that happened when an Amway salesman rang the doorbell of a Jehovah's Witness. I think, tonight, all of us are Amway salesmen and Jehovah's Witnesses. I want to apologize to you for not wearing a tie. I thought I was going to talk to you tomorrow morning. For those of you out there from Holston Conference who know my mother, please don't tell her I look like this.

Yesterday we reaffirmed our Social Principles on homosexuality by a vote of 60% to 40%. Sixty percent thought we should stay where we are; forty percent believe we should change. Yet, I would guess that most of us will go home knowing that this issue is not laid to rest. What do you do when a family disagrees about serious issues? What do you do when members feel strongly and fervently and on opposite sides of the fence? When I was assigned to the Financial and Administration Legislative Committee, we began to debate 906.12, and we had strongly different opinions about whether the language should stay or be deleted. And we began to talk with one another. We had an excellent conversation, much as Church and Society did on abortion. There were no hard feelings, there were no angry words. There was honest sharing. And finally we looked around and found a substitute motion that was written by the Wisconsin Conference. You have it in front of you tonight as the minority report. These words are from the Wisconsin Conference. And those of us tried to substitute these words to become the majority report. When we took a vote, low and behold, the vote of substitution was 48 to 45. We were only three votes apart within the Financial Administration [legislative committee].

What do you do when we're that close? We feel, in the minority, that the words before you do not violate the Social Principles which we have reaffirmed. We do believe that these words begin to build a bridge. That is what we have been saying that we are here to do: to build a bridge between those of us on different sides of strong issues. This morning Bishop Bolton began the first words of the discussion following our vote yesterday. And whether you agree with what he said or not, he took us a step farther in the discussion. And bravely he reached out and said words of apology to a colleague whom he felt he had offended, in front of God and everybody. If a bishop can build a bridge, cannot we build a bridge as well? And start to talk with one another, even while reaffirming that our Social Principles are in the same place. I encourage you to join us in building a bridge over a very hard issue. Thank you.

BISHOP MINNICK: The minority report is before you. Is there discussion? Amendments? Yes, microphone 5.

LINDSEY DAVIS (Kentucky): I'd like to speak against the minority report.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right.

DAVIS: There's no present limit, I believe, on dialogue or study or research on homosexuality within our church. In fact, there's much material excellently produced by the Church today on human sexuality. Certainly, this General Conference has had much dialogue on the subject. The addition proposed by the minority proposal is unnecessary, in my view; it's unnecessary verbiage which we do not need to add to the Discipline. Thank you.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. Is there any for? Microphone 10.

RAE LYNN SCHLIEF BEVERIDGE (West Ohio): Easter Sunday I received word that the daughter-in-law of one my-, and I'm speaking for the minority report, the daughter-in-law of one my elderly members committed suicide. She was caught between a lesbian daughter who was wanting acceptance of her lifestyle, and her husband, who held to some very firm Christian understandings of that being an unacceptable lifestyle. I think it's time that the Church offered a word of grace and even put money toward some kind of educational resources and studies that would help us build bridges and offer one another a hand of reconciling ministry where we can learn and listen, and so that those of us who hold so fast to our Christian teachings, find ways to reach out to loved ones, so that persons caught in the middle, innocently, don't take their own lives.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, is there a speech against? I see a card in the back. Microphone 13.

Funding to Promote Practice of Homosexuality

EWING WERLEIN JR (Texas): Bishop, I would speak in favor of the resolution that came from the committee and against the substitution for the minority report. This is not just a matter of adding language to permit discussion. I quite agree with the earlier speaker, that there's no limitation and no restriction upon our discussions in the church. The printed part of 907.12 is not before you in the blue DCA, but if you turn to your Discipline, you'll find that the minority report has a much more significant effect upon this paragraph. It is in the words that it drops, the words that it omits, and those words are the prohibition upon giving United Methodist funds "to any gay caucus or group or otherwise use such funds." Those are the words that are significant and are significantly omitted from the minority report. I believe the church should not be prepared to retract its statement in view of our Social Principles, and I would urge defeat of the minority report.

BISHOP MINNICK: We've had two speeches against, and one for. Does anyone else want to speak for it? Microphone 8.

THOMAS R. BOLLER (Yellowstone): Bishop, my friends, this church has nurtured and loved me and made me who I am. This church, with its stands, has also destroyed my family. My step-father was a United Methodist clergy person, now deceased. His birth son, my stepbrother, went to his father in the latter years of his father's life, and told him that he was gay. His father walked out of the room and never spoke to him again. His father was being faithful to the position that the church that he served told him he should have, and let his son go. I serve that same church as a clergy person, and have a different position. I respect his right to stand where he stood. I trust you'll respect my right where I stand. We are on that divide of not being able to agree on the issue. But as United Methodists, our theology is based on the quadrilateral: Scripture, tradition, experience, and reason. And my experience tells me that this is a destructive way to treat families and to treat individuals. My reason tells me that if we do not keep talking, if we do not keep studying, if we do not keep learning, and providing ourselves resources to do just that, we will surely divide families again and again and again.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right, we've had two speeches for and two against. We'll turn now to the representative of the minority report. Question? Yes. Microphone 9.

TOM WATSON (Nebraska): I have a question that is kind of important to me before I vote on this. In the reading of the minority report, after the words, "the acceptance of homosexuality" there are three dots. The way I read that, that doesn't omit language. The language that would normally be in there is still contained. Is that correct?

FRANK TROTTER (Baltimore-Washington): That is correct.

WATSON: All right. The brother that talked before indicated that that language was omitted, and that substantially changes how this minority report affects this.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. You may speak.

TROTTER: Thank you for the opportunity to speak tonight. If I really had my honest way, I would delete the language of 906.12 altogether. And when we had our first vote in the sub-subcommittee, the vote was 14 to 12; it was that close. But, then we begin to talk about how can we compromise. What is a reasonable compromise between the 60 percent and the 40 percent? We think we present you with a reasonable compromise as crafted by the Wisconsin Conference. We believe it protects the Social Principles as reaffirmed by the General Conference, and we believe it allows for discussion which families ought to do. I encourage you to build the bridge. Thank you.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. The minority report is before you. Yes? Microphone 13.

EWING WERLEIN, JR. (Texas): Bishop, there's been a misstatement made in the response to previous question, I believe. If you look at page 479, in the minority report, the three dots follow the words, "to promote the acceptance of homosexuality" then the three dots to indicate that words are not being omitted. If you look at section 907 of the Discipline, paragraph 12, I beg your pardon, 906, I said the wrong paragraph. At 906, the language reads, "that the Council shall be responsible for ensuring that no board, agency, committee, commission or council shall give United Methodist funds." Then it says, "to any gay caucus or group, or otherwise use such funds," and then it picks up again "to promote the acceptance of homosexuality." Thus, as you can see, on page 479 in the minority report, the words...there should be the showing of the omission of those words between the words "funds" in line 5 and the words, "to promote". That's where those words have been dropped, and those words were dropped also in the Wisconsin Conference delegation resolution that this minority group picked up. And, I believe that my statement was quite accurate, Bishop, and fellow delegates.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. Do you want to-. Yes, please.

TROTTER: Help me out, Ewing. Tell me the page where the Wisconsin. I came up without my books. Help me out, Ewing. Where is that? Where is the.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right.

TROTTER: Is it on page 368 of the red book? Is that where it is, Shawn? I want it to appear, I'm sorry that I don't have my book here, I want it to appear, Ewing, as the Wisconsin recommendation is, we used the exactly the Wisconsin recommendation as our substitute motion. And, the language should reflect whatever it is the Wisconsin Delegation has assimilated. And, that is our minority report.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. The minority report is-. Is it a point of order? Yes. Go to microphone 9.

RHONDA V. COLBY (Virginia): Can you have the brother help us by reading to us the minority report, just the whole paragraph. It is short, and that would be helpful.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. Would you do that please? Read the minority report so that they may hear it in its entirety.

TROTTER: I want to apologize for the confusion. This is not intentional and I'm not trying to hide any agenda. I am really, really not.

BISHOP MINNICK: Just read, if you will, read the minority report on which we are voting here.

TROTTER: "The Council shall be responsible for ensuring that no board, agency, committee, commission or council shall give United Methodist funds to promote the acceptance of homosexuality." And I don't have the reference to where the Wisconsin document is. 368?

BISHOP MINNICK: Microphone 13. Brother Werlein, do you have that to read?

WERLEIN: Yes, Bishop, I have that now. It's in your red DCA, page 368 on the right hand column, at the bottom. And you'll notice

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. He has that now.

WERLEIN: And, you'll notice, the fund, the words are stricken, which read, "to any gay caucus or group, or otherwise use such funds." That's the critical point that I have tried to make and which is represented in the Wisconsin Resolution.

TROTTER: Ewing is correct.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. Will you read it as it should be heard and voted on.

TROTTER: Ewing, I apologize to you for the misunderstanding there. "The Council shall be responsible for ensuring that no board, agency, committee, commission or council shall give United Methodist funds to promote the acceptance of homosexuality." And then, the language continues, "This restriction shall not limit the Church's ministry in response to the HIV epidemic, nor shall this restriction limit the Church's research, study, and discussion of any issues of human sexuality."

Vote on Committee of Ministry Report on Homosexuality

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. That report is before you. Will you please vote when the light appears. [Response: yes, 395; no, 497]. So, we'll vote now on the committee recommendation for concurrence, Item 1989. Please vote when the light appears. You have supported the committee's recommendation for concurrence. All right. Thank you, Brother Cashar. We'll turn now to the Committee on Presiding Offices. Brother Rex Bevins.

REX BEVINS: Bishop and members of the conference, the presiding officers for Friday, April 26th are as follows: Friday morning - Bishop Dan Solomon of the Oklahoma area; Friday afternoon, Bishop Judith Craig of the Ohio West area; Friday evening, Bishop Woodrow Hearn of the Houston area.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. Committee on Agenda and Calendar report, Sarah Miller.

SARAH S. MILLER: Thank you, Bishop. Tomorrow we will again talk about homosexuality. We'll deal with the budget. We'll talk about Local Church calendar items, and all remaining calendar items. Let me say a word about adjournment tomorrow. We need to vacate this convention center by 1:00 A.M. Saturday morning, and that means we need to have everything out, computers and everything out. So, our production people tell us we really need to adjourn by 10, so they can unhook all the equipment and get it out. Now we still have a great deal to do. I know some of you are anxious about it. I feel duty-bound to let you know that there is a growing movement to refer any unfinished business to the Wyoming Conference. (laughter) It's fine with us. But, if you have a problem with it, you may want to take on Friday's agenda with an even greater urgency. Thank you.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. Thank you. Brother David Severe needs to bring us one short additional item tonight.

DAVID SEVERE (Oklahoma): Thank you, Bishop. Members of the Conference, for a couple, three days there have been some people waiting very anxiously for a piece of legislation that our committee dealt with. It is found in the white book, page 1338. It is a resolution proclaiming a "Quadrannium of the Worker." It passed our committee after we took the dollars out of it. It had originally asked for some dollars. We said that we did not think that that was possible, and they worked that up so that they could still have the emphasis but there would be no conference, no church dollars, would go into that. However, we made the error of not getting that dollar stricken, so it did not appear on the Consent Calendar, though it passed our legislative committee overwhelmingly - 74 for, 4 against and 2 abstentions. I would like to bring that to you and my recommendation would be that we hear what we have done, that we remove that dollar by our vote to accept this. There are no dollars attached to it. And I would move its adoption. It's in concurrence with the committee.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. Are you ready to vote on this? I believe you are.

SEVERE: Would you like to have those numbers again? It is Calendar Item 1995, page 480, excuse me; page 480 in the DCA. Calendar Item 1995, Petition 22709. It's found on page 1338 of the DCA number 2, the white book. It was voted concurrence, and as I stated, we failed just as a clerical error to take the dollar sign off, and therefore the clerk could do nothing but put it on the calendar. It would have appeared a day or two ago on the Consent Calendar without that problem. It's been on the calendar item, and we haven't been able to get to the floor to bring it to you.

BISHOP MINNICK: All right. Are you ready to vote on this? If you will approve it, indicate when the light appears. [764 approved] You have approved it.

SEVERE: Thank you very much.

BISHOP MINNICK: Now, let me recognize Pete Weaver for a very important announcement. Special privilege. Yes, microphone 9.

PETER WEAVER (Western Penn.): Thank you, Bishop. As we have been debating, babies have been born. And as someone said, every baby who is born comes with a promise that God is not yet discouraged with us. And so I would like the General Conference to join the Western Pennsylvania delegation in congratulating Bishop George and Carolyn Bashore on the birth of their grandson late this afternoon: Jonathan Haggie.

BISHOP MINNICK: Thank you for that. [applause] I recognize the secretary for announcements.

CAROLYN MARSHALL: The secretaries of the legislative committees are invited to meet tomorrow morning at 7:30 a.m. in room C204. Then to simply make an announcement for the several of you who have sent up notes about there not having been enough water today, I want to explain just for your understanding that more water was ordered than was delivered, and we were informed by the caterer that there was no way that a group of this size would consume as much water as we had ordered, and so the caterer won. We are promising you that will be increased significantly tomorrow, and think we have that all taken care of at this point. Ever onward to perfection. One final note. It's been mentioned several times today, but the Interjurisdictional Committee on Episcopacy will meet tonight immediately following the adjournment of this meeting in room A209. A209 for the Interjurisdictional Committee on Episcopacy.

BISHOP MINNICK: Well, I felt so good when Rex Bevins asked me to preside tonight, but it was not nearly as much fun as I thought it was going to be. [laughter] I can see, though, that you had a wonderful time. But again, I'm retiring in four months, four days, one hour, and 40 minutes. [laughter] So for everything that's in my heart and mind, stand and join me in singing "Praise God From Whom All Blessing Flow."

(song)

Go in the peace of Christ; go with it each one of you. Amen.

Strengthen your leadership skills

Focusing on leadership within church structures, Douglas W. Johnson contends that growing into a leader is a personal experience that can be aided—but never dictated—by someone else's experience. He offers directions, proposals, and suggestions from which laypersons can experiment and adapt until they find the patterns that work best for them.

Readers will learn how to recognize leadership traits in themselves and others, as well as how to develop the skills to use those leadership traits for the benefit of the church.

Friday Morning April 26, 1996

Bishop Dan E. Solomon, presiding

BISHOP DAN E. SOLOMON: Sisters and brothers, will you please take your place now? Will you please be seated as quickly as possible? Would you join with me in expressing gratitude to the choir from Latvia as they have come to sing in our midst. (applause) I'm asking you, please, to be seated as quickly as possible. We have a very heavy agenda for the day. I'm going to ask us to go immediately into a time of prayer and discernment. Will you please hear these words as they are being read from the second chapter of Philippians. Even as we're coming, someone has shared a word with me that the growth of the church continues in Latvia. The information I was previously given that there are three churches has already doubled since we've been here. It is now six churches, praise God. Will you hear these words?

(Scripture reading)

Will you simply find someone and share a brief moment of prayer with them as we proceed. May we conclude this prayer time with just hearing again the words, "Breathe on us, breath of God. Fill us with life anew that we may be this day those who in word and deed honor you. Amen."

You may be seated. Let me share with the house the procedure that we'll be using this morning. I want to remind us delegates that we have a very significant day ahead of us. And I want to begin by giving special thanks and inviting you to do the same, to Kathleen Forsberg, who has served as our organist and who will not be with us past this hour. And also to Johnetta Johnson-Page, who has been our pianist and will soon be returning to Atlanta. Won't you join with me in expressing gratitude to these persons. (applause)

Thank you very much. I must—excuse me, the holding of a card is sufficient for getting the chair's attention. I'll come to you in a moment. Now, may I proceed, please? A long time ago in a small rural church, I learned to sing a gospel hymn as a teenager, the truth of which has become freshly apparent to me this morning. It has a verse in it that goes, "Work, for the night is coming." We have gathered here to work this day. I must apologize to you in advance, that my allergies have kicked up aggressively, and my voice is a little scratchy, but I shall be responsive to the promptings of the Spirit and work with you, and we'll do our work. We have so much work yet to do this day, and I'm going to ask for your cooperation in doing that. I would like for us to address the calendar items and move through the morning and take motions of privilege and announcements as we come to the end of the time. However, if there's a matter of such critical urgency that it cannot wait until near the end of our session, then I'll try to be considerate as we approach that. Yes? Would you please go to microphone 8.

New UM Churches Started This Week

WILLIAM K. QUICK (Detroit): (unintelligible) to the church in Latvia, and as you have indicated, there are now six churches. And, Bishop, these are among the connecting congregations of world Methodist evangelism. And since we have been in session here, since the 16th, four new United Methodist congregations have been started, including two new ones in a country where there has been no United Methodist witness, in Macedonia. I'm tremendously grateful to world Methodist evangelism, to the Board of Global Ministries, to the staff of the board, and to all who are helping to open up churches and a witness for United Methodism, not only in countries of the former Soviet Union, but in Africa as well. And we express our appreciation. And I'm especially grateful to announce that this choir will be singing in the connecting congregation in Detroit on Sunday. Thank you, sir, and thanks to the music team that invited them here.

BISHOP SOLOMON: You're very welcome, and we rejoice in all that you have shared with us as it reflects the work of God in this place and, indeed, around the world. Consent Calendar, Sarah Miller, followed by Fitzgerald Reist.

Consent Calendar A06 Approved

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. This Consent Calendar A06 is before us. If you will vote when the light appears. [730 approved] All right, it is sustained. We turn now to the next item. Yes, would you state your point of order by going to microphone 1, please.

J. LAVON WILSON (Central Illinois): Bishop, my point of order is I have a question on clarification of two Calendar Items on two different Consent Calendars of two different days. In the blue book on page 309 and 310, item 851, number 6c, Native American Awareness Sunday in the general approve regarding church-wide Special Sundays with offering was approved April 24. I notice that in the Consent Agenda today on page 545, Calendar Item 2014, general approve regarding church-wide Special Sundays with offering, D point on Native American. My concern is that the Calendar Item 851 has an added line starting with the "providing supplementary scholarships," etc. My question is, which Calendar Item takes priority, the last Calendar Item which is today, or the Calendar Item on April 24. The policy of the Board of Higher Education and Ministry is to give scholarships per student. I just needed that clarification so that we did not have a conflict in the board.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right we'll turn to the Calendar Committee for a response.

SARAH S. MILLER: Bishop, we'll research this and get back.

BISHOP SOLOMON: With your permission this item will come back before us as we have a response.

MILLER: Thank you so much, Bishop.

BISHOP SOLOMON: You bet. All right. Now then, will you place before us the next Consent Calendar.

REIST: Consent Calendar B06 appears on page 557 of yesterday's DCA. There are no changes.

MILLER: Bishop, I move its adoption.

BISHOP SOLOMON: It is before us, please vote when the light appears. [794 approved] It is approved.

Consent Calendar C06 Approved

MILLER: Bishop, I move the adoption of Consent Calendar C06, with the exception of the one noted.

BISHOP SOLOMON: It is properly before us, please vote when the light appears. It is approved. [791 approved]

REIST: I recommend suspension of the rules to act upon Consent Calendars A07, B07 and C07 after 4 p.m. This would allow the normal amount of time for delegates to request removal of items from the Consent Calendar.

MILLER: Bishop, for the agenda for this morning...

BISHOP SOLOMON: Do you wish to make that motion as a delegate?

MILLER: Yes I do.

BISHOP SOLOMON: That motion is before us, the house understands the motion, I believe. Will you please vote when the light appears. [770 approved] The motion is approved, and you would have to act before four this afternoon to remove items from the Consent Calendar. Before three. Thank you for the correction.

MILLER: May I say something about...

BISHOP SOLOMON: Yes, please. Sarah Miller.

MILLER: For the agenda this morning, we'll be looking at the budget, followed by items related to the local church. We have decided to move the items on homosexuality that were tabled last evening to the first items on the agenda this evening.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Thank you very much. Let me share a word now of the items. I would like us all to have some clarity as to the road map that we are going to be following. And then as we proceed down it, I believe we'll be more comfortable in the approach we're taking. We're receiving this morning the report from GCFA. It comes directly to the floor of the General Conference. We're also receiving the report of the Legislative Committee on Financial Administration. The procedure that we'll be following is to hear the report of GCFA in its entirety. That will be followed by the report of the Legislative Committee on Financial Administration in its entirety, the purpose for which is to allow you as the house have the full picture before you before we proceed to try to perfect the budget for the general church.

Following the two presentations, then we will go back and take the items listed in the particular and specific reports. GCFA's report will be presented first. It will then be followed by a presentation from the legislative committee on Financial Administration. Having those two presentations on a specific report before us, we will then proceed, with the approach being taken that the Legislative Committee will have the right of first amendment should they choose to make it, in regard to the report of GCFA. These alternative proposals then will be before us. And it was the judgment of the chair that both the presenter for GCFA and the presenter for the alternative proposals, if those develop, will have the right of last speech before votes are taken on either amendments or on the report in its specific section of its entirety.

The reason I have tried to outline in this manner the approach that we're going to take is to assure you as a body that there will be ample presentation here from the podium as it relates to the nuances of both of these reports. In no wise is that intended to diminish your conviction as to an amendment that you would like to make. But be aware that the speeches that will be given here will gather up much of the concerns that I believe are already in our minds. And indeed, if we need to have extensive debate, realize that much of the time that debate is going to be about one figure as over against another. We may want to talk about why that needs to happen. But ultimately, it's going to come down to a choice of one figure over another in many instances. I hope you as a house will be aware that this is the procedure we will follow and you'll respond appropriately so we can move through the report as expeditiously as possible. We turn now to the presenters for the General Council on Finance and Administration. We'll hear from them at this time. Bishop Edwin Boulton will be making the introduction of the report.

Introduction of Lackore As General Secretary and Treasurer

BISHOP EDWIN C. BOULTON: Bishop Solomon and dear friends in Christ, the first presentation I make is a matter of personal privilege. You, because of your knowledge of the conduct and the doings of the church, are aware that we have a new General Secretary and Treasurer of our denomination who took office effectively the first day of January of 1996, but who in actuality was in office the first of December of the previous calendar year. Those of us in the GCFA have had the privilege of working with this person, and it is my happy privilege, brother chair, at this time to present to you Sandra Kelly Lackore, who is our new general secretary and treasurer of the denomination, and ask that you greet her as I know you would wish to do. (applause)

SANDRA KELLY LACKORE: Thank you, Bishop. It is an honor and a privilege to hold the office to which I have been elected. And I hope to do so to bring credit to the church and the information to you that you so desire. My desire is to serve you, and my staff will do that in whatever way you direct. Thank you very much. (applause)

BISHOP BOULTON: As the President of the General Council on Finance and Administration, I am pleased to present the council's report to the General Conference. In a moment, I will be presenting the members of the council who will make brief introductions and officially bring to you each of the several reports that will come.

New GCFA Processes

In the way of background, as Bishop Solomon has already laid the groundwork for our procedure this morning, I would like you to know that the process that has been followed within GCFA is significantly different than has been the case in our recent history. We spent the better part of two years with our council members visiting and listening to the concerns of the entire church as somehow was caught up and represented in 17 annual conferences. The bottom line recommendation that we have decided upon, have published, have brought to you, and have sought to define and will seek further to define this day, is that report which has euphemistically been called a 0-0-2-2 budget. Beyond that, we, of course, followed the process described in the Book of Discipline, whereby we heard the visions for mission and ministry from our general agencies and people from all over the church. The General Council on Ministries participated with us in the process. I would briefly note that 28 persons, both lay and clergy, spent two and a half weeks in a process of information gathering, discernment, and decision-making around the World Service requests. Thus, the budget recommendations you have before you are the outcome of a listening process that heard both the visionary hopes and dreams of people linked somehow to what is perceived to be the limits in available resources.

0-0-2-2 Budget

One of the decisive factors in the council's decision to have no increase in total apportionments for the first two years of the quadrennium was the conviction that, given the opportunity, the local churches and annual conferences would respond to this budget with an increased devotion and an increased resulting percentage of payment on the askings that we place before them. Another finding from our listening process was that our members want to support our connectional ministry. And so, if you vote in the final analysis as we hope you will to stay within the 0-0-2-2 budget, our shared responsibility will be to go back to our churches and annual conferences and to work fervently to increase the percentage of payment on all that which we believe forwards the ministry of our Lord Christ.

GCFA Presenters Introduced

Permit me now to introduce to you the persons who will be presenting the several reports this morning. They are Ellen Brubaker, a clergy member, the West Michigan Conference; Shirley Parris, a lay delegate, New York Conference; William White of the Wisconsin Annual Conference; Sally Brown Geis of the Rocky Mountain Conference; Zedna Haverstock, lay delegate, Central Pennsylvania Conference; Stanley Sager, lay delegate New Mexico Conference; and Tracy Merrick, lay delegate, Western Pennsylvania Conference. Two of these persons are not delegates to this General Conference. Bishop Solomon, I therefore ask the permission of this body that these two persons be granted the privilege of appearing at this dais. They are William White and Sally Brown Geis.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Is there objection from the house? Hearing none, that permission is granted.

BISHOP BOULTON: Thank you. We now proceed, sir.

ELLEN A. BRUBAKER (West Michigan): Good morning. The World Service Fund report is found in the red DCA, pages 286-290. As you find the page, I would like first of all to call your attention to the first sentences in the introduction. "When United Methodist congregations pay their apportioned askings, they participate in God's work around the world and right in their own parish. The World Service Fund is the heart of our church's ministry together." In the light of these two sentences, I bring you greetings from my brothers and sisters in my home congregation, the Aldersgate United Methodist Church in Grand Rapids, Michigan. This is a congregation that has indeed, throughout its history, paid 100 percent of its apportionments. I would also add that I come from a conference that paid 100 percent of its apportionments last year and in many years. (applause)

Just to say, why do we do that at Aldersgate? Because we believe and are inspired by what is in this report. We cannot go and be everywhere and do everything hands-on, but through faithful ministry of resources we are able to connect all around the world in ministry. And we are also able to connect with each of you who come from so many places and so many faithful congregations.

I would like secondly to call your attention to the general observations that are made in this report, particularly the sentence near the bottom of the first column which reminds us that, because of what our good president has said, our attempt to inspire you through coming in with a 0-0-2-2 budget, you need to be aware that there are many vital ministries which will not happen as effectively as they might in this next quadrennium. I want to say a word. I was a part of the varied team that listened and looked at the programs and budgets of all the boards and agencies. I've done that twice now, and I am inspired by what our boards and agencies are doing in ministry with the limitations of their own budgets and the downsizing that they have done. They are faithful, they are visionary, and so there's pain this year in presenting this budget to you. Nevertheless, as you look at the rest of the ministry described in report number 1, I commend it to you with pride and with excitement and with a passion for the world-wide ministry of our beloved church. Thank you.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. We go to report number 2.

Ministerial Education Fund

SHIRLEY PARRIS (New York): Thank you, Bishop Solomon. The GCFA report number 2, the Ministerial Education Fund, is found on page 291 of your Advance DCA. And I draw your attention to the preamble of this report, which was established in 1968 and with which we are all familiar. We know the value of the Ministerial Education Fund, and we recognize that it is only by meeting our apportionments in full that the work which is under the portfolio of the Ministerial Education Fund can really be done effectively. In accordance with paragraph 921.1, this report with its recommendations is being brought to you this morning for your prayerful consideration and support.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Thank you. Do we continue?

Black College Fund

PARRIS: Yes. The next report that I bring to you follows on page 293, and it is the report of the Black College Fund. And again I draw your attention to the remarks and the layout of this report. And as Ellen said before, it was a painful process having to cut into the budget of the programs which are so desperately needed in our church; but realizing the pain in our local churches, we responded to your thoughts and your directives, really, and we bring our report to you and our recommendations for funding in the hope that you will follow our direction and that you will support the report. This fund, as you know, was started in 1972 and continues to be a source of great pride in our United Methodist Church.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. We'll proceed.

Africa University Fund

PARRIS: And finally, report number 4, which is on page 294, the Africa University Fund, one of the pearls in United Methodist history. I bring this report to you again with its recommendations for continued support, and I ask you that in all three reports you look not just at the numbers, but at the work that these reports cover, and I commend this and the other two reports for your support and your caring. Thank you, Bishop.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Thank you. We turn now to Sally Brown Geis.

Episcopal Fund

SALLY BROWN GEIS: Bishop, delegates, I bring the Episcopal Fund report, which is report number 5, found pages 297 through 303 in the red book, the Advance DCA. I suppose it is redundant to remind delegates to the General Conference who are well versed in the bureaucracy of the church, that the bishops are not overtly a part of the annual conference budgets. All of the support for the bishops and their offices comes from the Episcopal Fund. The items of note in this year's report are reductions in the yearly episcopal residence support payments and in the yearly payments for the episcopal office support.

You have heard my colleagues explaining how hard we worked to get down to the 0-0-2-2 as a total budget figure. As one of the members of the Episcopal Service Fund said when we cut the office support, "I hope this doesn't, in fact, turn into an involuntary tithe by the secretaries who serve our bishops." Because their support comes in that part of our fund. The episcopal resident maximum of amounts have been reduced to the 1995 level, and will remain flat during the quadrennium. The office allowances increases are much less than increased budgets in the past two quadrennia. But these cuts were made to reduce the Episcopal Fund budgets over the next four years. And as you know, the general funds have been drastically restrained to keep within the bottom line. We have made every attempt to hold increases down in the Episcopal Fund as well. We hope we have not limited the bishops from carrying out their responsibilities.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right we turn next to the report dealing with the General Administration Fund. I believe that's on page 304. You be prepared.

General Administration Fund

BILL WHITE (Wisconsin): I'm a member of the of the Wisconsin Annual Conference which has paid 100 percent of it's apportionments for the last four years. I direct your attention to the Advance DCA, page 304, for the report and recommendations of the General Council of Finance and Administration for the General Administration Fund. Our recommendations on allocations within that fund are found at the bottom of that page. The purpose of this fund is to support those functions of the denomination which are deemed to be administrative in nature as opposed to ministerial or programatic. The groups supported by this fund are the General Commission on Archives and History, Historic Shrines, the Judicial Council, the General Council on Finance and Administration itself, the World Methodist Council, and the National Youth Ministry Organization. The money necessary to pay the expenses of the General Conference in the year 2000 in Cleveland, Ohio, are also included within this budget item. The legislative committee was unanimous in its concurrence with the GCFA recommendation for the General Administration Fund allocations.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right, and you have, I believe, the Interdenominational Cooperation Fund report.

Interdenominational Cooperation Fund

WHITE: Correct, Bishop. Report number 7, the Interdenominational Cooperation Fund, is found in the Advantage DCA at pages 305 and 306. Their recommendations are contained on page 306. The fund amounts within the Interdenominational Cooperation Fund are recommended to this General Conference by the GCFA and were developed after we considered recommendation developed by the General Commission on Christian Unity and Interreligious Concerns after their consultation with the Council of Bishops. The groups supported by this fund include the National Council of Churches, the World Council of Churches, and the Consultation on Church Union. In addition, this fund provides for travel costs for United Methodist representatives to ecumenical organizations. United Methodist financial support for the 1998 World Council of Churches assembly will also be paid from this fund. Those expenditures include travel and related expenses for Christians from third world countries. The legislative committee reviewing the Interdenominational Cooperation Fund unanimously concurred with the GCFA recommendations.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Thank you very much. We'll go to the next presenter. It's my understanding this report will be found on page 320, dealing with report number 12.

GCFA Budget

STAN SAGER (New Mexico): I'm glad to be here this morning. The report which I present is indeed report number 12 on page 320 of the red book. I don't want you to conclude, because of the fact that report number 12 follows report number 7 given by Bill White, that GCFA doesn't know how to count; it just worked out that way this morning. While you take a look at that report, I'd like to make a couple of observations.

One is that the work of the General Council on Finance and Administration is performed by fifty-six very dedicated staff members, whom we on the board have come to love and respect. They work in three offices: one in Evanston, Illinois, which is the principal office of the organization; there are smaller offices in New York and in Nashville to enable the staff better to work with agencies that are housed and located in those cities. There are forty-three board members from across this church. They are scattered from Henning Bjerno, who lives in Copenhagen, to Barbara Shaffer in the great northwestern part of the United States. Staff and the board endeavor to make the General Council on Finance and Administration a "user-friendly" organization. If you find it to be otherwise, I hope you will let Sandra Kelly Lackore know; she will fix it.

The budget, as it appears on page 320, does not conform to the 0-0-2-2 figure which we asked of all agencies. In an effort at self-control, it was held at 0-0-1-1. I lay it before you, Bishop and members of the conference. It is my understanding that the legislative committee has concurred with this particular budget.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right, thank you very much. We'll be prepared then to move to report number 8. You, as the delegates, would want to turn in your red DCA to pages 307-308, and that will prepare you to participate in their hearing and receiving of this particular report. This report, I believe, is now before us.

ZEDNA HAVERSTOCK (Central Pennsylvania): Thank you, Bishop Solomon. I, too, am proud to stand here this morning, to say that I am a member of an annual conference who paid their general church apportionments in full in the calendar year of 1995. The report that I am dealing with is report number 8, and as the bishop said, it will be found in your red DCA beginning on page 307.

The General Council on Finance and Administration, just as most of our annual conferences do, do continually look at the way we apportion the budget of our general church, but with the considerations during this past quadrennium, the report number 8, which you have before you, proposes no changes in the apportionment formula now in use.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right, thank you very much. We turn to report number 9, Ellen Brubaker. Turn in your DCA to 309, and you will be prepared.

Special Sunday Offerings

ELLEN BRUBAKER (West Michigan): The report is 309-311 with some material on page 315 that will report to you the Special Sunday offerings for this quadrennium. All I can say to you about Special Sundays with offerings, is that once again, with our partner relationship with GCOM, we did take a look at the Special Sundays, wondering if they should be reduced, increased, or changed. As you see before you, we have continued these vital ministries, and we regard them as opportunities for giving that inspire various persons in our churches. And so, the report is before you.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right, thank you very much. We are moving on to the next presenter, Bishop Boulton.

BISHOP BOULTON: Bishop Solomon and friends, when it comes time for you to take action on reports 10, 11, and 14, which appear respectively on pages 1059, 1060, and 1061 in your red book, and in the blue DCA, page 334, we are recommending that at the CASHAR EVANS (North Carolina): I'd like to call on Lovett Weems to present report number 1, 2, 3; thank you.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right.

Financial Administration Offers Revised Budget

LOVETT H. WEEMS JR. (Missouri West): Bishop Solomon, colleagues, I've been asked to present the budget approved by the Financial Administration Committee. It is somewhat different from the General Council on Finance and Administration budget. The committee's recommendation is found in the blue Daily Christian Advocate, page 462. Before presenting the details, some background may be helpful to understand the committee's changes.

First, the committee had great appreciation for the work of GCFA. The council and staff did a remarkable job over many months in preparing a budget under challenging constraints. We respect the difficult decisions made by GCFA. Indeed, as you will see, the committee's budget follows the GCFA budget in many respects. Second, the committee appreciated the work and cooperation of the GCFA staff, and especially the direction being provided by the new General Secretary Sandra Kelley Lackore. While the staff helped the committee with calculations on the revised budget, all changes made to the budget are the work of the committee. We were fortunate to have a gifted and strong Financial Administration Committee. I believe we all shared two values: one was for fiscal restraint; there was a sensitivity to the financial pressures on many United Methodist churches and conferences today. The other value was that United Methodism not only maintain a vital mission and ministry, but to expand our witness on behalf of Christ. However, committee members differed on which of these values required priority in the next four years. As different votes were taken, it became clear that a majority of the committee desired, indeed would insist upon, two things. First, there must be more equity within the budget. Second, the bottom line figures must not exceed the 0-0-2-2 formula. And just to make sure everyone is clear about what that means, using the 1996 apportionment figures as the base, the increase in 1997 for the bottom line would be zero percent; 1998, zero percent; 1999, 2 percent; 2000 would be 2 percent.

The budget before you on blue DCA, page 462, reflects an attempt to honor both of these values. Let me go over the changes. About two-thirds of the way to the right there is a column called "Amended Report." This column permits you to compare the quadrennial totals for this budget with the GCFA budget totals in the column to the right of it. The next column to the right entitled, "Change from GCFA Report" shows the dollar changes. Now, please go to the last two columns on the right. These columns are very important to the committee. These percentages represent the increase in each fund's apportionment over what it would have been if the 1996 apportionment had stayed the same for the next four years. I would like to work from the bottom up on the last two columns. You will notice that the bottom line stays the same. This maintains the 0-0-2-2 formula for a 1.6 percent growth over the quadrennium from 1996 apportionment levels. Moving up, Africa University is unchanged from the GCFA figure of $10 million which is part of an overall $20 million goal of which $10 million will come through an apportionment. The next two funds, Interdenominational Cooperation Fund and General Administration Fund, are unchanged from the GCFA budget. There is a reduction in the Episcopal Fund of between 0.04 percent and 0.05 percent over the original GCFA increase of 4.5 percent for the quadrennium.

The next three funds are revised to bring all three to a 1.3 percent growth for the quadrennium over 1996 levels. Our concern was to bring a bit more overall equity. It seemed to the committee that too much of our austerity was coming in two funds: the Black College Fund and the Ministerial Education Fund. These funds represent so much of our hopes and dreams for the future, for students at schools supported by the Black College Fund, and students at our seminaries, to know that we adopted a 0-0-2-2 budget, but for them and their schools it would only be 0.05 percent, .8 percent, would send the wrong signal. In hard times it is important for everyone to know that struggles are shared struggles.

You will find the detailed breakdown for the World Service line item on the next page, blue DCA, page 463. Some funds there remain the same, and some are reduced. By action of the committee, mission initiatives were not decreased. Also, no line item is reduced more than 0.05 percent from the original GCFA recommendation, except for the contingency which goes down by 0.06 percent.

Now, back to page 462. This is not the budget that any one of us on the Financial Administration Committee probably would have prepared originally. Some wanted a lower budget, some higher. But the amended budget is not really a compromise. It did not emerge from negotiation. We hope that, in good Wesleyan style, this is a third alternative, in which the strengths of two options are honored, while the most significant drawbacks are avoided. The final and most important, perhaps, thing I can say about this amended budget is that it comes to you with a unanimous vote of the Financial Administration Legislative Committee.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right.

WEEMS: Bishop, with that introduction I believe we are ready for report number 1.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Does this complete the overview of the legislative committee report in its entirety?

WEEMS: Yes.

BISHOP SOLOMON: The chair is going to do this. In just a moment we're going to adjust the time for the break, so that we'll be able then to proceed on addressing these two reports in the manner that you as the house choose. I want to clarify, or at least help us to be together as I understand it. And that is that the GCFA report brings in, as has been stated, the 0-0-2-2 budget. This report brings the same bottom line figure, but with some changes in the internal portion of the budget. That will be up to you to decide on. The third dimension of this is the GCFA report is bringing the recommendation that the almost $5 million that has been recommended by our actions here at this conference, be treated in an apportionment fashion, but as a special Focus 2000 line item, and you, as a house, will then be asked to decide how you want to handle that recommendation as well. Let's be clear. Those are the three items that are before us when we return from our break. I'm going to suggest to us that we will be in session promptly at 20 minutes until 11. You are in recess.

BISHOP RUEDIGER MINOR: Would you please turn in your hymn books to page 848 and let us begin together? Shall we pray Psalm 130? All right.

(prayer and Psalm)

Chernobyl Commemoration

ANTON ZAKHARCHENKO: [interpreted from Russian] Dear brothers and sisters, I would like to remind you of the tragic event which happened in Ukraine exactly ten years ago. April 26, 1986, a reactor exploded at the Chernobyl nuclear power station. Many people died. Many became crippled in body and spirit. And people are dying from the results of the radiation in the countries of Ukraine, Belarus and Russia even now. Unfortunately, the majority of the population in those countries has already forgotten this tragedy. Therefore, as a representative of the Russian United Methodist Church, I call upon you to remember those who died in the catastrophe at Chernobyl.

The Chernobyl accident has been a warning that we may produce our own apocalypses now. Think of the astonishment of the people in the former Soviet Union that have been living in Biblical illiteracy as they write in the Book of Revelation. I read from the 8th chapter: "The third angel blew his trumpet and a great star fell from heaven, blazing like a torch, and it fell on the third of the rivers and on the fountains of water." The name of this star is Wormwood. Did you know that the word for wormwood in the Ukrainian language is Chernobyl? "A third of the waters became wormwood, and many men died of the water, because it was made bitter." Let us pray, that God will show favor and forgiveness, pardon and restoration. Shall we conclude this moment and pray together with the words of Psalm 85? Page 806 in your hymn book.

(prayer)

BISHOP SOLOMON: Amen. Thank you for leading us in this time of memory that we may be people of vision and faithfulness in days yet ahead. Turn now to Bishop Edwin Boulton for the beginning motion as we proceed.

BISHOP EDWIN BOULTON: Mr. Chairman the understanding that GCFA has is that we have now laid before you and this house the entirety of our report. I would like to ask only that everyone remember that report number 16 will be dealt with as a separate item.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. The motion is before the house properly, and we are on report number 1 which is the World Service report. You'll find it on page 286, coming from GCFA, and we'll turn to the legislative committee for the right of first amendment.

WEEMS: Just so we will all be clear on these next votes that we're taking, if you will look in the blue DCA, page 462. The two columns, one entitled "Amended Report" and one entitled "GCFA Report," both end with the same bottom line. But remember, if you want to vote on these next petitions in such a way to give the result of a 0-0-2-2, budget, you need to decide which of these columns you want to follow. So if you want to follow the amended report, then in cases where the legislative committee has a substitute or an amendment for the GCFA recommendation, you need to vote for that substitute, when the figures are the same, then obviously to vote for that. If, on the other hand, you prefer the GCFA column, you need to vote for the GCFA recommendation and against the legislative committee's substitutes at each point where there is a difference, because if you choose one figure from one column, and then another from another column, you can do that, but we cannot assure that that will result in a 0-0-2-2 budget.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. I think that's clear.

WEEMS: Report number 1, blue DCA, page 461, Calendar Item 1810, and this refers, as Bishop Solomon has pointed out, to the red DCA, page 286, Petition 21111. The committee recommends concurrence as amended. The committee proposes an amendment by substituting the figures on pages 462 and 463 for the World Service Budget found on page 290 of the Advance DCA.

BISHOP SOLOMON: It's properly before us. Does anyone wish to speak to it? I see a delegate on this side. Please go to microphone 9.

ARNOLD A. RHODES (Western Pennsylvania): I rise to speak against the amendment. I received the report of CFA. In our decision making, sometimes its easier just to give everyone the same increase or decrease. However, CFA has studied, has heard the responses of local churches and annual conferences, they have seen the response that persons and local churches have made to the World Service apportionments, and the other apportionments of the church, and have brought forward to us, I think, a fair and reasonable recommendation. Therefore, I would be in nonconcurrence with the amendment.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. Yes, you may speak. Please go to microphone 3. Are you speaking for the amendment. A question?

Questions About Agencies Meeting Budgets

PAT STROMAN (Central Texas): I have a question, Bishop, and possibly an amendment. Those line items on page 463, under program reports. They reflect the same numbers basically as 1996. Now, we voted last month when we were here to reduce the size of the boards, it seems like last month anyway. Why do those figures not reflect the 3 zero percent reduction in meeting costs that I was told we would see?

BISHOP SOLOMON: We will turn to the committee for a response.

SANDRA KELLY LACKORE (general secretary): It was GCFA's understanding in the budgeting process, that because GCOM and the agencies that GCOM represents, that those figures were considered in the budget request that they put forward. That's what GCFA was told.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right.

STROMAN: Then I have a motion. I move that the 13 agencies affected by the downsizing of the membership, have their meetings' budget reduced by a 3zero percent figure, plus 10 percent for inflation, from their 1992-96 budgets. And if I have a second, I'd like to speak to it.

BISHOP SOLOMON: It is seconded. You may speak.

STROMAN: The budget for the meetings for the '92-'96 quadrennium was $11,579,741 and some change. Less 3zero percent, pulls that down to $8,105,819. Adding back 1zero percent will give $8,916,496. That's about three million dollars in savings that will almost pay for the new programs. That will get us back up and it doesn't seem to me to be a very honest thing to say that you're bringing in a zero budget, when you're actually bringing in a larger program budget, you just cut off your meeting budget.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. Is there, yes, you may speak. Go to microphone 2 please. Are you speaking against the amendment?

BETH CAPEN (New York): I think I'm speaking against the amendment, but perhaps this is more of a question. My guess is that the meeting costs, particularly in the Board of Global Ministries, is quite high, but my question is, hasn't the Board of Global Ministries already decreased their membership in line with the actions that we've taken, and if so, wouldn't that decrease already be reflected and taken into consideration? And if the answer to that question is yes, then I would speak against this amendment.

BISHOP SOLOMON: The chair is going to turn to our GCFA.

LAKORE: I would defer that to the Board of Global Ministries, Bishop.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. Is there someone from Board of Global Ministries that wishes to speak? Yes, I see, microphone 2, please.

RANDOLPH W. NUGENT JR. (New York): The budget of the Board of Global Ministries has already, in this area, been decreased by half. That's what the reduction in the reorganization has done. Furthermore, in the report, I think it's number 16, the GCFA has recognized that and has even said that because of that reduction, other costs can be assigned to that reduction. So the response to Beth Capen's question is, yes, it's in the budget already, at a reduced rate.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. I think that is a matter of information, and not a speech against. We're back on the amendment. Does anyone else wish to speak? I think we're ready to vote. Yes, please go to microphone 3.

JO EVA MCCLELLAN (Kansas West): Before I can vote intelligently, I need to have an explanation of why the episcopacy line item was increased so much more than any of the others in the committee's report, please.

BISHOP SOLOMON: May I inquire, as the chair, are you speaking of an inquiry in relationship to the Stroman motion to reduce the meeting expense, or do you want to defer that until we get back into the World Service report itself?

MCCLELLAN: I will defer that. I thought the other question had been taken care of.

BISHOP SOLOMON: That's all right. We'll come back to you. We're on the Stroman amendment, now, and we'd like to move on to vote on that. Yes, you may go to microphone 4.

SUSAN KERN KESTER (Peninsula-Delaware): I rise to speak against the amendment. I chair the finance committee for the Commission on Communications. For two years we've been looking at our budget. We've been eliminating things that we think we no longer should do, and putting in things that we think we should try new projects. To arbitrarily cut our travel budget and meeting budget, at this point, would be to not recognize what we had already done. I urge the conference not to do something like this that might have adverse effects beyond their knowledge on the individual agencies.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. Now I'm going to turn to the legislative committee presenter, and to GCFA for any concluding comments. I think the house is ready to vote on this amendment.

WEEMS: I'd urge defeat of the amendment. The understanding of the legislative committee is that these budgets include meeting expenses but many other things. Those expenses have been reduced, but what we're asking the program boards to do is just what you've done in many of your local churches and many annual conferences. Your budgets have stayed flat, but within that some things have gone up that you felt important to do, and you have paid for them by reducing other things. That's the kind of fiscal management we're asking of the program agencies.

BISHOP SOLOMON: I've been advised that GCFA doesn't see a need to make a comment. Would you please vote when the light appears?

[Results: yes, 274; no, 589] The amendment is defeated. We're back on the main motion, and that is the legislative committee recommendation that World Service be identified as per the figures you have on page 462. There is a card in the very back. Would you please go to microphone 15?

SUE SHERBROOKE (Pacific-Northwest): I was a member of that legislative committee, and I have to admit that since we adopted this report I have had a conversion experience. The committee's recommendation was the result of articulate, impassioned pleas from people who know a lot and feel strongly about MEF and the Black College Fund. We did not hear equally effective presentations on behalf of other funds. I respect the process that volunteers on GCFA use to hear and balance competing claims among other very worthy causes. Secondly, most apportioned funds received support in 1995 at 83 percent, 88 percent, 91 percent. It seems to me that the committee's amendment seeks to make up for lower payout less than 81 percent in MEF and Black college, seeks to make up this lower payout rate by raising MEF's asking at the expense of funds that are better supported.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. Now the chair is very aware...because I was not clear where our speaker was headed until she was on into the presentation she was making, that she was speaking against the amendment. There has already been one speech against the amendment. I'll be fair about it, and we'll allow for two, in sequence, for the amendment if that happens to be the case. There's a card over here on my far left. Please go to microphone 5.

DALE JONES (Kentucky): Bishop and members of the conference, I wish to offer a motion, and if there is second I would like to speak to it.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Please state your motion.

JONES: I move that the General Conference refer report number 1 along with reports number 2 through 7 from GCFA and report number 16 to the General Council on Finance and Administration, with directions that the total annual and quadrennial totals of these eight apportioned funds be the totals represented in the 0-0-2-2 proposals, the specific numbers to be determined by the General Council on Finance and Administration in connection with the General Council on Ministries.

BISHOP SOLOMON: The chair is going to rule your motion as out of order, the reason being that GCFA report is before us in its entirety, and what they are presenting reflects, in fact, the deliberations that have been undertaken that are consistent with your request. It is the responsibility of this General Conference to vote on this budget; we cannot make a reference. All right? May you turn to number 3.

RUTH HUBER-HOHLs (Central Texas): Thank you Bishop Solomon. We have heard a number of impassioned pleas on behalf of a wide variety of particular groups of people, and all have been in order, and we care for everyone. However, I think there is one group that is feeling forgotten, that the church has, in fact, gotten up and walked away from them and does not look back. There's a group that's feeling very disconnected, that's not here to hear all the rest of this. And those are the people in the local churches, the people in our pews. And I appreciate the effort that GCFA and this legislative committee are each making to try to hear those pleas.

It's unfortunate that the Local Church legislative committee reflecting those concerns will not be heard until this afternoon and, in fact, after the budget has been adopted. I appreciated what Shirley Parris said, and I believe it's true. The people in our churches want desperately to feel a part of our mission, they want desperately to meet the cause of mission in the name of Christ. But my friends, they do not feel that we're hearing them, and I want to submit to us, we must hear or we will be leading and no one will be following.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right, there is the opportunity for one more speech for on this particular amendment. I go to the mid section on the far side. Would you please go to microphone 6?

FRANK E. TROTTER JR (Baltimore-Washington): Bishop, I speak in favor of the committee report. I feel we had a good discussion and a fair one, but I think the body needs to know that we did feel there was the need of equity among the line items, and that the hit was coming at the expense of two of the most vulnerable line items: the Black College Fund and the Ministerial Education Fund. As a whole committee, we felt the church needs to take ownership of its seminaries and ownership of reaching out in terms of scholarship assistance to the Black College Fund. I encourage the members of the body to support the committee report to increase these line items in fairness to the whole budget.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right, we turn now to the report of the legislative committee. You may speak, followed by GCFA. All right, GCFA, do you wish to speak? We've had two speeches for and two speeches against. The amendment is before us, which is the committee report. Please vote when the light appears. The legislative committee amendment to the primary report prevails by a vote of 656 to 204. That becomes, as it were, then the substitute for the report number one. If you will make that the substitute for the report number one, will you vote when the light appears? Or you may vote not to do that, of course. [773 approved] All right, that becomes adopted as report number one. We go to report number 2.

Finance Calendar Items Presented and Voted

WEEMS: This is found in blue DCA, page 333, Calendar Item 1050. And it relates to the report in the red DCA, page 291, Petition 21112. The committee proposes an amendment by substituting the following amounts of the annual apportionments found on page 291 of the red DCA. 1997: $27,036,000; 1998: $27,036,000; 1999: $27,476,720; the year 2000: $28,001,280, for a quadrennial total apportionment of $109,550,000.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. That is before us. We did not have the opportunity to hear GCFA make any further comment on their report prior to that, but we will give that opportunity when we come back to this. This is an amendment, in essence, to the GCFA report. Is there someone who wishes to speak on either side? Then I believe it is before us. We'll turn to the committee. You've already made your statement. Would GCFA choose to make a statement? All right. It is before us. You understand, I believe, what you're voting on. Please vote when the light appears. [783 approved] Yes, you have adopted Calendar Item 1050, and we turn now to the next report.

WEEMS: Blue DCA, page 333, Calendar-Item 1051, which refers in the red DCA to page 293, Petition 21113. The committee recommends concurrence as amended as follows. The committee proposes an amendment by substituting the following annual apportionment amounts as found on page 293. 1997: $17,800,000; 1998: $10,780,000; 1999: $10,952,488; 2000: $11,169,512, for a quadrennial total of $43,682,000.

BISHOP SOLOMON: It's properly before us. I recognize the delegate in the back. Please go to microphone 8.

WEEMS: Excuse me, Bishop, there's a misprint. OK. What's printed in the blue DCA, page 333, Calendar Item 1051 is incorrect. The figures that should be included are those that are on blue DCA, page 462 for the years 1997 through 2000 for Black College Fund. Those are $10,780,000 in 1997-1998; and in 1999: $10,952,000; and $11,170,000 in 2000.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. Thank you, and I believe that was what was being called to our attention a moment ago. It's before us. Does anyone wish to speak? Does GCFA wish to make a comment? I think we're ready to vote. Would you please vote when the light appears? [830 approved] And you have approved Calendar Item 1051. May we proceed?

WEEMS: Cashar Evans will present.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. Thank you.

CASHAR W. EVANS JR. (North Carolina): The legislative committee accepts the report of GCFA. And that is found in, it's Calendar Item 1052 in the blue book. Red book, pages 294-296.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Have agreement between both of the committees. I would sense you are ready to vote. Please vote when the light appears. [881 approved] You have approved Calendar Item 1052. May we proceed?

WEEMS: Report number five is found on blue DCA, page 333, Calendar Item 1053. It refers to the red DCA, page 297, Petition 21115.

The committee recommends concurrence as amended by substituting the following annual apportionment amounts for those found on page 285. And again, the figures that are being proposed are the figures found on blue DCA page 462 for the Episcopal Fund. There was some rounding of funds that took place with the approval of the committee after the committee action. So those figures would be: in 1997 $15,059,000; in 1998 $14,945,000; in 1999 $15,699,000; and in 2000 $16,003,000.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. That's before us. I had already accorded a privilege of the floor to a delegate who raised a question in this regard a moment ago. I recognize this delegate now at microphone 3.

JO EVA MCCLELLAN (Kansas West): I would like an explanation of why the four percent increase for the Episcopacy Fund? From the committee report.

BISHOP SOLOMON: We'll turn to the committee for a response.

WEEMS: Perhaps someone from GCFA who worked on those figures might respond.

Explanation of Episcopal Fund Increase

SALLY BROWN GEIS (Rocky Mountain): If you will look back in the report that starts, you will see that the Episcopal Fund is a different kind of creature than any other report that is before you. The simplest answer, I think to your question, is that the main items that drive the Episcopal Fund are the benefits for the bishops and the number of Episcopal areas.

And we have no control. If you would quit raising the salaries of your own pastors, then we could lower the salaries of the bishops. But since you actually, in local churches...because, if you'll read the amount of salary, we are required to tie the bishops' salaries to the denominational average compensation. And this is how...then we have to squeeze everything else in the Episcopal office. Hope that answers your question.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. Thank you very much. We return to the committee's report. It is before us. I believe we are about ready to vote on this, so I'll turn to GCFA to, well, to the committee, any further word from the committee. GCFA do you have a report? Then what we are voting on is the Calendar Item 1053. The committee's amendment is contained in that calendar item, an amendment to the budget. Please vote when the light appears. [793 approved] You have approved Calendar Item 1053. May we proceed?

CASHAR W. EVANS JR. (North Carolina): Bishop, there is agreement in the report number 6. That is Calendar Item 1054 in the blue book. It refers to page 304 in the DCA.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right, you have heard the agreement between GCFA and the committee on that. Any comments or questions? I think we're ready to vote. Would you please vote when the light appears. [879 approved] You have approved Calendar Item 1054. May we proceed?

EVANS: There is agreement, also, in report number 7 which is found in the blue book, Calendar Item 1055.

And in the red DCA on pages 305 and 306.

BISHOP SOLOMON: It is properly before us. Comments or questions? Please vote when the light appears. [852 approved] You have approved Item 1055: May we proceed?

EVANS: Report number 12 is the budget of GCFA. There is agreement there, also. That is in the blue book, Calendar Item 1056. Refers to page 320 of the red DCA.

BISHOP SOLOMON: You've heard the word, agreement. Any questions or comments? Please vote when the light appears. [874 approved] You have approved Calendar Item 1056. All right. May we proceed?

EVANS: Agreement, also, in report number 8. It is Calendar Item 1057 in the blue book. Referring to pages 307 and 308 of the red DCA.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. It's before us. Please vote when the light appears. [861 approved] You have approved Calendar Item 1057. May we proceed?

EVANS: Report number 9 is Special Sundays With Offering. Agreement there, also.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Calendar item?

EVANS: Calendar Item 1058.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. It's before us. You've heard agreement on both parties. Please vote when the light appears. [861 approved] You've approved 1058. May we proceed? Bishop Boulton.

BISHOP EDWIN C. BOULTON: I move the adoption of reports number 10, 11, and 14 together, in single action, growing largely out of the fact that the legislative committee has recommended concurrence with these three reports.

BISHOP SOLOMON: These have all been agreed to. This is a motion that is now before us. I believe we're ready to vote. Please vote when the light appears. [872 approved] You have confirmed these reports 10, 11, and 13.

BISHOP BOULTON: Brother chair, and friends, as the result of the action you've just taken, I'd like to report that Calendar Item 1811 in your blue DCA, page 461, which contains an amendment to the GCFA report number 13, which has also had the concurrence of the legislative committee be adopted, sir.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Calendar Item 1811 is before us. We have agreement on all parties. I believe. Yes, please go to microphone 3.

DONALD E. MESSER (Rocky Mountain): I believe that's, to make sure I'm speaking 461, 1811?

BISHOP SOLOMON: I'll turn to Bishop Boulton.

BISHOP BOULTON: That is correct, page 461.

MESSER: If you'll turn to page 464, where the amendment continues, I move to delete three words in the third sentence; those three words being "or formally members for." So it would read, "None who are presently staff with any general board or agency will be considered." If I have a second, I would speak on it.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Is it seconded? You may speak.

MESSER: I opposed this originally, this insertion, and I do so again on the floor of this General Conference. For us to adopt those words has the impact of eliminating all persons who have previously served on any of our general boards and agencies since 1972.

This particularly would strike at our efforts to empower women and ethnic minorities who have served in any way, shape, or form during those many years. I believe this is not in the interest of our church, or in the informed action of the GCFA. The GCFA still has the power to appoint persons. I'm sure they will select persons who are informed, intelligent, active, local members; but it would not in any way discriminate against all those who have served in some way in our great church. Thank you.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. This is an amendment by deletion. Does someone wish to speak against the amendment. This card in the back, would you please go to microphone 13.

MORRIS F. MATTHIS (Texas): The manner about which apportionment funds are gathered is one of intense importance to local churches. It may affect local churches, our connection may affect local churches, no more importantly in that way perhaps other than the appointment of pastors.

The connectional issues study and the listing report of the GCFA both indicate that we may be winning the pocketbooks of members and ministers of local churches, but not necessarily their hearts. This set-up, this approach, allows adequate representation by members of the general boards; but it also ensures adequate representation of those who will view this particularly from the local church perspective. The legislative committee agreed with this approach, and I would encourage this conference to do the same.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. It's before us. Do you wish to speak for the motion? Go to microphone 9.

JEROME K. DEL PINO (New England): Bishop, I would take extreme exception to the notion that persons who have served faithfully on the general boards of this denomination, particularly since its inception of the structure we currently have since 1972, that their service is in any way, shape, form, or fashion antithetical with what it means to identify with the local church.

That logic, to me, seems to be, at best, spurious, and at worst, inflammatory. I would suggest that we, in our need of having experience, we are in need of having all persons at the table, and if we are not prepared to do that, the denomination itself will be the poorer for it. I would hope, as well, that as we cast this vote, we will be mindful of the fact that every source of division within the body is one that will have a ripple effect. I think the local church is amply represented in this General Conference, and will be represented exceedingly well on this Connectional Issues Study group. I would hope that we would affirm this deletion.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. Is there someone who wishes to speak against the amendment? Yes, you may go to microphone 4.

KARL K. STEGALL (Alabama-West Florida): Eight years ago a young layman from the Kentucky Conference, or state of Kentucky, brought a petition before this General Conference for a feasibility study. Little did he realize that over the past eight years we've spent over $1 million over the issue of whether or not we should relocate the General Board of Global Ministries.

Over the past four years this committee of site selection has been half of the cause the former chair of the General Board of Global Ministries committee to assassinate that report, became the chairman of the Site Selection Committee. And this may have been the greatest scam ever perpetuated on the life of The United Methodist Church because of the misunderstanding. I think we, as a General Conference, need to make sure that there's no vested interest on any former person who has served on general boards on issues such as these that might come before us, and I wanted to speak to that issue.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. Now let the chair see if I can help the house out. We, earlier this morning, it has been brought to my attention, approved this language exactly as it is printed here in this DCA, on the Consent Calendar. Without the knowledge of that, we have proceeded to have this discussion.

In all fairness, I'm going to return to Don Messer, and give him the opportunity, if he chooses it...and if he voted on the prevailing side for the approval of the Consent Calendar, to state a motion for the reconsideration of this particular item on the Consent Calendar for the purposes for which we have been involved in this parliamentary situation. Would you care to do that, Dr. Messer, if in fact you voted on the prevailing side of the Consent Calendar.

MESSER: I presume because of the vote, yes I did. I opposed it in the session, but later approved it. So, yes I would, and would make such an appeal.

BISHOP SOLOMON: The house is understanding that a motion has been made and seconded for reconsideration of this item on the Consent Calendar. If you will consider this, reconsider this item, please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 564; no, 336] Reconsideration is approved. Now the chair is going to take the liberty of suggesting that we have already heard the conversations on both sides of this. I'm going to turn to the committee chair and to GCFA chair and then call for the vote.

BISHOP BOULTON: GCFA stands by the language that we have inserted, sir.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right, and then the committee? No. The committee does not wish to...The amendment is before us, and the amendment is for the deletion of the words: "for formerly members are" and please vote when the light appears. If you favor the amendment, you will vote for it. If you are opposed to it, you'll vote against it. Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 467; no, 424] Let's hear the point of order, please. Would you go to microphone 9. I'm sorry, microphone 10 will be fine.

GLENN KOHLHEPP (Western Pennsylvania): Bishop, you're doing an excellent job, but it seems to me a referral motion takes a two-thirds vote.

BISHOP SOLOMON: We had a motion before us. If I stated it a referral, I stated it incorrectly, and I apologize to the house. The motion was for reconsideration. It takes a simple majority. We're in order. Now, then, we shall proceed to vote again, since there was some question prior to vote being raised. If you are in favor of this amendment, then you would obviously vote, "yes." Opposed, vote "no." Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 506; no, 415] The Messer amendment prevails.

All right, that becomes a part of the main motion of the committee report.

We're back on the main motion of the committee report. We'll invite either the chair or someone else to make a comment prior to our voting on this particular Calendar Item 1811 on page 461 in your blue book. Committee or the chair?

TRACY MERRICK: No, sir.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. It's before us. Please vote when the light appears. [793 approved] And it is approved. May we continue now on our report?

MERRICK (Western Pennsylvania): I would like to place before your report number 15. It is found in your blue DCA beginning on page 660. Again, just to make sure you're aware of what is in here. These are the referrals to GCFA based on your actions. So far this General Conference, and these particular items will be found, or we have found homes for them to cover them within the budget that you have already adopted at the 0-0-2-2 level. I would move adoption of this report.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right, this report is before us. Other committee reports? Did the legislative committee wish to make a comment on this? All right, it's before us. I believe we're ready to vote. If you'll vote when the light appears. [862 approved] You have approved these reports. We'll continue.

Debate on Focus 2000 Budget

MERRICK: I'd like to place before you now report number 16 for Focus 2000. It was the document that was on your desks when you arrived this morning. And just to make sure you're aware, again, of what we're talking about here. This is the additional apportioned fund which would total $4,760,000 over the quadrennium. These particular four items do not have a home in the 0-0-2-2 budget. But would be above and beyond that. Amounting to a total increase of 2.6 percent over the '96 level.

BISHOP SOLOMON: It's the chair's understanding that these items are properly before us. That they are coming as an apportioned, special line item and we can proceed now to discuss these. These are coming from GCFA. I'm going to turn first and ask the committee if they have any comment. None from the legislative committee. Certainly available to the house. I saw a card, here. Yes? The gentleman standing. Please go to microphone 9.

JAMES BRANSCOME (Virginia): I would like to propose an amendment that we change the title of this fund to "Missional Initiatives/Focus 2000" and I would like to speak to that if it's seconded.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Is it seconded? All right, it's before us. You may speak.

BRANSCOME: The reason I make this proposal is as treasurer of a conference that has 1,200 and some churches, I do not relish the idea of going back to the conference and trying to interpret the fact that we have, for the third quadrennium in a row, created a new apportionment. We did Africa University two quadrenniums ago, we did Missional Initiatives last time. This year, I would like to keep the title of Missional Initiatives so that it does not seem like we keep creating over and over, new apportionments.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. That's a speech for. Is there further conversation regarding this amendment? Yes?

MERRICK: On behalf of GCFA, I'd like to indicate that we accept this amendment of this change in term.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Well, I would have to put that to the house. Is there objection in the house to that being accepted? I do not hear an objection from the house. So then, with that being the situation, we will include this in your report, and we're back on the main motion. Missional Initiative/Focus 2000 is before us. All right. Would you? Yes? Second delegate over here, microphone 3.

NANCY CUCKLER (East Ohio): This is just a question concerning the focus on young people. Based on my assumption, I always thought GCOM was the oversight committee. Will they be developing the programs contained, or which will be contained, under the $3 million, or will they be assigning those funds to other agencies under them?

BISHOP SOLOMON: We'll turn to the committee for a response.

MERRICK: Would someone from GCOM respond to that?

BISHOP SOLOMON: Is there someone from GCOM who would wish to make...Can you answer that question for us? Please go to microphone 9.

PETER D. WEAVER (Western Pennsylvania): As you will recall, the proposal, the shared mission focus on young people has a shared mission focus team, which is independently composed through a nomination and voting process through jurisdictions and central conferences. It will report to the General Council on Ministries. As a shared missions focus, this involves all the boards and agencies as well as conferences of the denomination and the General Council on Ministries is the coordinating agency when we have matters which involve all of those various entities.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. Thank you. I'll take that as a question and an answer. Delegate, here, yes. You may go to microphone 9.

MONA MAE WAYMIRE (Oklahoma): I rise to ask a question, Bishop. It is in regard to the focus on the young people. I notice that in that there was a $2.4 million item for staff development, for staff training, as well as for pilot programs in ten different conferences. I would like to know more about what percentage of the pilot programs are of that $2.4 million.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. That is an inquiry.

MERRICK: Could we ask someone from GCOM to respond to that?

BISHOP SOLOMON: Ask GCOM representative to make a response, please?

MERRICK: Is Don Hayashi here?

BISHOP SOLOMON: Microphone 9.

WEAVER: I'd like to yield to those who made that motion. As you may recall, this particular extension of the GCOM proposal came from young people and workers with young people. It was developed independently, and I think those who developed that portion of what we're voting on ought to respond to that question.

BISHOP SOLOMON: If you are the one person to represent that group with this information, would you raise your card? Yes, you may go to microphone 7.

JEFF QUICK (North Arkansas): I may need to refer to June Wilson or to Jackie Euper at some point, but it is my understanding that the $2.4 million, which will be overseen by the Shared Mission Team, will be to develop pilot programs through funding trained staff persons in ten local churches and ten conferences, annual conferences, none of which would be the same annual conference, and that those programs would then come back together on an annual basis, those twenty individuals, and share together the ministry that has come out of their individual programs.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. Thank you very much. We're back on the main report. And I see a delegate, far side. Yes, would you go to microphone 7, or microphone 6 is fine.

Focus 2000 Budget Beyond 0-0-2-2

CHARLES COURTOY (Florida): First a question, then possibly a motion, Bishop.

Is it my understanding that this Focus 2000 will raise the bottom line beyond the 0-0-2-2?

BISHOP SOLOMON: The chair would understand that as a correct understanding.

COURTOY: Then I would like to move that we include this initiative within that 0-0-2-2 amount and reduce World Service and General Finance and Administration budgets proportionately in order to accomplish that. If I get a second, I'd like to speak to that.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Is it seconded? It is seconded. You may speak.

COURTOY: Bishop, we have to make hard decisions. When we begin to get excited about program and ministry, and it's evident that this General Conference has been very much interested in youth and the other three that are identified in this initiative, and that's great and fine. But we have to make decisions that we can live with back home. I come from a conference that requested through petition that we not raise budgets more than what we received in the last quadrennium. If we adopt this, we will have raised by 6.7 percent the amount over the last quadrennium. We will have increased by nine tenths percent the amount over which we had all agreed in the committee. I urge you to support this amendment.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Would you hold at the microphone for just a moment? The chair needs to make an inquiry, and that is whether your amendment affects everything related to report number 16 or only the youth portion of it that we have been discussing.

COURTOY: It would be everything in report 16.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right, it's properly before us. The chair would also point out that since we have already adopted the World Service budget, should you adopt this amendment when it will be necessary to reconsider the vote we took on the World Service amendment. We'll work this out parliamentarily; we don't need to be antsy about how we do that right now. Let's keep focused on the amendment that is before us, and that is the adoption of this report 16 to be folded into the report on World Service that we adopted previously. I recognize the delegate on this far side. Would you please go to microphone 5?

WILLIAM B. LUYKOWA: I stand to oppose the amendment that would reduce World Service. Some of us live and pray and are United Methodists because of World Service. I urge you to adopt this amendment.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right, that's a speech against. Is there a speech for that you wish to make? Very back. Delegate, will you please go to microphone 13, please?

Proposal to Take Focus 2000 Funds from World Service

DONALD W. UNDERWOOD (North Texas): I know that peoples' eyes tend to glaze over when we talk about dollars. But the 0-0-2-2 that we've already adopted represents a 2 zero percent increase over the 1995 dollars that were actually collected. The fact of the matter is that we have 19 annual conferences that in 1995 paid less than 8 zero percent of their apportionments. Using GCFA numbers, the total fund balances for our general agencies increased in 1995 from $294 million to $320 million. The report provided by GCFA indicates that the Board of Global Ministries had a surplus in 1995, using (unintelligible) numbers of $28 million. I would suggest that these initiatives are good initiatives, but they can be funded in two ways: through the extra reserves that are already present in our general boards and agencies, and through the actual payments by our annual conferences. If people want these, then let them go home and pay with their dollars, vote with their dollars, rather than voting here and then not funding them. Thank you.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. The delegate in the far back. Are you wanting to speak against the amendment? You may go to microphone 9.

GABRIELLE MALLORY (West Ohio): I'm speaking against this amendment. And I ask that you take the first step in making youth and young people a priority. Without youth and young people, we have no investment in the future of our church. Funds from the church have helped my development as a Christian and in career planning for Christian vocations. I urge you to support the increase of the youth and young adult focus.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. We're at two speeches for and two speeches against on this amendment. Let the chair remind the house that the amendment calls for the folding in of the entire total amount of Focus 16 Missional Initiative into the existing budgets we have already adopted. Those budgets would be World Service and General Administration budget. I turn to the chair of the committee and to the chair of GCFA for any comments they wish to make before we vote.

MERRICK: Oh, just comment that we do have the budgets we have already adopted. We in GCFA feel they are fair, and to try to fold these items in would put a real strain on some of those agencies.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right, does anyone from GCFA wish to speak.

ELLEN BRUBAKER (Western Michigan): For World Service, I beg of you not to do this. I am excited about the special initiatives that we have all talked about. I believe in the youth initiative program; I believe we can do it. But, I have heard all of the excitement about the funding that is already there in World Service that needs to continue in our world-wide ministry. We can do the extra if we only will understand that we have generous hearts.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. Now we're at the point...Excuse me, is there...yes?

WILLIAM WHITE: I'm the General Administration Fund. There is no money in the General Administration fund, and I don't believe the maker of the motion identified it, I think it's extremely important for the General Conference to understand that this is not a game that we have been playing here, but an attempt to honestly represent to this General Conference the financial situation of the general boards and agencies. And by making a motion doesn't make the money materialize in the General Administration Fund.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right, is this a question or a point of order that we had a card here? Point of information, we'll take that. Please go to microphone 2.

REBECCA C. YOUNGBLOOD (Mississippi): The point of information I would request relates to the comment that was made about reserve funds being available. It is not my understanding that there are unrestricted reserve funds available in the General Board of Global Ministries, and I would just like to have clarification on that.

BISHOP SOLOMON: It is properly before us. Someone wish to speak to that inquiry?

MERRICK: Bishop, Sandra is willing to address that.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Surely.

Report on Agency Fund Balances

LAKORE: Without getting into a complete analysis of the fund balance report, when this question was asked in the legislative committee, we responded that the implementation of federal accounting bureau standards, which The United Methodist Church has been very proactive in implementing in the financial statements of the boards and agencies, has resulted in changes in increased financial positions because of those accounting standards. Now we can have our comptroller speak to that if you would like more technical language.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. Would we have...The secretary will now read the motion that is before us. Let's please listen.

CAROLYN MARSHALL: The motion is that the Focus 2000 be folded into the 0-0-2-2 bottom line budget by reducing World Service and General Administration apportioned funds proportionately.

BISHOP SOLOMON: I believe the motion is properly before us, and I believe we are now ready to vote. Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 333; no, 585] The motion does not prevail. We are back to the committee report. Let's see if we can wrap this up. All right. Yes, you may speak at microphone 2.

CHARLES B. SIMMONS (Louisiana): I would ask that we would vote on this individually a seriatim—the motion that is before us.

BISHOP SOLOMON: That's a request to do that, but the chair would not presume to suggest that's a procedure we'll follow unless the house wanted to follow that procedure. So I'll just simply put the vote to the house. If you want to vote on this seriatim and not in its entirety as a whole, you'll vote yes; if not vote no. Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 319; no, 589]

So, you have chosen to take the report in its entirety. We'll proceed in that manner. I'll go to the very far back here. Please go to microphone 8.

Question $2.4 Staff Fund Use

JOE KILPATRICK (North Georgia): I just continue to be a little bit confused about what's going to be done with this 2.4 million and would like to ask for more information. If I understood the answer previously, we're talking about 10 churches being selected from across the conference and giving them each, what would be an average of $60,000 per year. That's an interesting number. I'm confused as to what—would you hire a youth minister, would you buy musical instruments, would you have trips for youth. I'd just like to know what the plans are to do with that $60,000 per year church.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right, we'll turn to the committee for any response they want to make.

MERRICK: This question was asked of GCOM rep. Don Hayashi. He addressed it before us, and we feel, if he is present, that he would be able to give the best answer.

BISHOP SOLOMON: We'll yield to Don Hayashi if he is present. All right, I think we'll proceed on then in the report. The report in its...

MERRICK: Don is coming.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Ah, Don is coming. We'll...is there any objection to hearing from Don Hayashi? Hearing none, will you please proceed to microphone 15.

DON HAYASHI: I'm on the staff of GCOM. It is our understanding that the explanation has been given by the person who made the motion, and that is the information which is available at this time to GCOM.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Thank you very much. The report in its entirety now is before us. We're dealing with it as a whole. You may speak to any portion of it; of course you may proceed to make decisions relating to it. Yes, in the middle here. Correct, would you please go to microphone 3.

AARON M. GRAY (Rocky Mountain): Bishop, I rise to speak in favor of what is before us, and I celebrate the change to Mission Initiative, Focus 2000. I really believe that we can leave this General Conference with a story to tell to our local churches of what happened in the past quadrennium as a result of the mission initiative. We can begin to talk about what happened with the Native American Awareness Plan, the National Hispanic Plan, the Shalom Zone, the Drug and Substance Abuse Program. Even though it wasn't funded to a hundred percent, some real ministry took place as a result of the Mission Initiative Fund. Now we can begin to share with our local churches a new adventure that will be happening, that will work to strengthen racial minority congregations, that will respond to local churches in terms of their concern of how we relate to the general church, and then most of all, a plan that really attempts to reach out and meet the needs of young people. I know that the money is a question, but I do not believe that the sun is setting on The United Methodist Church. I believe that we are heading toward the dawn, and I urge us to support this fund. Thank you.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right, I'm going to go to the very back of the plenary hall and ask the delegate to go to number 13. Are you speaking for or against?

EWING WERLEIN JR. (Texas): I propose to amend GCFA report number 16, on page 3, second paragraph, Item 3, where it reads, "$2.4 million for salary of trained and qualified staff to craft ministry with young people for the future and for these staff people to meet together on an annual basis for the review of the program," etc. And I wish to amend it by deletion of that item, number 3. And if there is a second, I would like to speak briefly to it.

BISHOP SOLOMON: It is seconded. You may speak.

WERLEIN: I know that yesterday when Jeff Quick brought this to our attention, we responded with enthusiasm for him and for the concept of doing something new and better for youth. That's something that all of us want to do. But when we get down to it, as we have seen in the responses made this morning, there's not a well-defined or clearly understood program to advance.

Second, we know that ministry is best done in the local church. $2.4 million for trained and qualified staff to craft ministry with young people is not really what the church needs now. Jeff was asked yesterday, where's the money going to come from? He was not sure, at the time, but the money comes from the churches, churches that need a youth director, churches that need youth programs, and are unable, due to these kinds of appointments, to afford them.

And I think we're better off leaving with our churches, this $2.4 million, at least until we see a better crafted program, a better devised program, as to how we're going to improve youth ministry by directing it from some several staff members that get together and meet from time to time about what they're doing.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. Thank you. I recognize, go to microphone 4, please. Are you speaking against the amendment?

Description of One Conference's Youth Ministry

DANIEL GRIFFITH (1st Ohio): Yes sir I am. As we sit here today, seeing the light at this end of the tunnel approach more and more quickly, I have been proud to have felt affirmed both here in this room and in all the other activities I have been privileged to be a part of. I thank you all for that. Many have stood at the podium here on the floor and spoken about something we all know is true, the youth and young adults throughout this denomination are not only the church of tomorrow, but able and willing to be a part of that ministry today.

As we look at such diverse issues as church growth and ethnic settings, increased participation in mission, and the fostering of future clergy, we find that they all have one definitive element in common. They all deeply depend on how much the church decides to commit itself to its young persons. Part of that commitment is the support that we feel when in these kinds of settings, and again I say thank you. But the other, equally as important half, is the fiscal commitment that must be made.

In East Ohio we have been gifted with a very strong youth program. One of the more primary reasons that ministry exists so effectively is because our annual conference has given us a full-time staff person who does $180,000 worth of programming after only being given $18,000 initially, something that not every annual conference here has. Just one example of the wonderful things that can be done with full support, the lives that can be touched, and further proof that the higher the expectation, the greater the achievement. We ask today, as we have asked before, and will ask again, that this General Conference give a full commitment, a full commitment, to those who are to carry on the message of Jesus Christ.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. The amendment has had one speech for and one speech against. Does anyone wish to speak on the amendment. Yes, a delegate here. Please go to microphone 8.

JAY BRIM (Southwest Texas): I rise to speak for the amendment. The problem here is not the program that we all support. The problem is the lack of planning that has gone into the presentation of this request. GCFA has gone to a great deal of trouble over this four year quadrennium to lead all the boards, commissions, and general agencies in a good planning process that allowed them to come forward with a 0-0-2-2 budget. What we're being asked to do today is to give $2.4 million to a very good idea that is not yet well planned. Delegates, we need to stand together to say to our churches that we have been good stewards while we were here voting, and that we looked not only to the goodness of the idea, but to the wellness of the planning.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. I recognize the delegate here. Go to microphone number 3. Are you speaking against the amendment?

Conferences, Local Churches Share Staff Training Funds

CAROLYN DOVE (Louisiana): Yes. I speak against the amendment, but I also come to speak to give information. This $2.4 million would be used in 10 conferences to train conference persons to in turn, train those churches within their conferences. It would also be used for 10 local churches to help train those personnel to work in the local churches.

When we speak of staff people, there are staff people on all levels that would be working together, so when we look at the number, I think the number was used 10 churches, $60,000. No. We're talking about 10 local churches, 10 conferences, and I don't know the number that that would include, that your $60,000 would go toward. So we're talking about a ripple effect of training and helping the youth of our General Conference.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. We've had two speeches for and two against. I'm going to turn to GCFA and to the committee for any concluding comments that you wish to make. This is on the Werlein amendment.

TRACY MERRICK (Western Pennsylvania): On behalf of GCFA, I'd just like to indicate to you, that in bringing this to you in this form, we are trying to be responsive to the vote of the General Conference.

BISHOP SOLOMON: GCFA, do you wish to make a comment? All right, we're on the amendment, by deletion, of this item number 3 on page 3. I believe it's clearly before us. The amendment is for the deletion of the $2.4 million. Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 436; no, 472]

You have defeated the amendment 48 to 52 percent. We're now on the main motion. There has been one speech for, there have been no speeches on the opposing side. The main portion is the entirety of report number 16. I go to the, yes, right here, yes, exactly so, please, would you come to microphone 7.

Proposal to Fund Portion of Focus 2000 Through Advance

SUSAN HASSINGER (Eastern Pennsylvania): I have a motion to amend. I move that $1.375 million of the mission initiative Focus 2000 be designated as Advance projects as follows: $300,000 for the Asian American Language Ministry Study, $70,000 of the Korean American Task Force dollars, and $1 million from the Focus on Young People dollars, and that the remaining $3.385 million be apportioned across the quadrennium, 1 percent, 2 percent, 1 percent, and zero percent. If there's a second, I'd like to explain the rationale.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Is there a second? It is a seconded properly before us.

HASSINGER: I think there's been a sense of excitement about the missional programs. We also recognize that among portions of our local church populations, there is excitement about designated giving as opposed to apportionment giving, especially where missional priorities are concerned.

My motion also takes into consideration both that excitement and concern for local churches and annual conferences in their financial pinch. Furthermore, it puts up dollars up front, as initiative begins and before Advance dollars would come in.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Would you stay for just a moment, and let the chair be clear? Are you recommending in your motion, that of the $3.8 million remaining, that that be apportioned on ratio through the items of report number 16.

HASSINGER: Yes.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right, thank you very much. It's before us.

HASSINGER: And may I also say, my dollars may be approximate on the number of millions.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. Yes, you may go to microphone 3. Thank you very much. We'll hear discussion if you wish to have it on this amendment.

CHARLES D. YOOST (East Ohio): I commend the General Council on Finance and Administration on their efforts to listen to the church and to hold the line on the budget of the general church. I would be happy to go home and tell my district that there will be no increase in the first two years of the quadrennium, and only a modest two percent for the last two years.

However, I cannot get out of my mind what Bishop Boulton said in yesterday's devotions. "The United Methodist Church is parked illegally in a handicapped parking zone." I believe that we are having financial problems because we are having spiritual problems. We have vast resources as a denomination and as individual persons. The report of the General Council on Ministries coming earlier in the quadrennium indicated that United Methodists have more disposable income now than at any other time in the history of the denomination. It's time to support the priorities that we have lifted up in General Conference and get The United Methodist Church out of the handicapped zone.

Our Asian American brothers and sisters are a growing edge of our church. Our youth cannot wait, they're growing up, whether we are influencing them in the church or not. I urge your defeat of this amendment. It will be hard enough to raise this money as an apportionment let alone as an Advance Special, and I urge your full support of Focus 2000.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right, that was a speech against. Someone wish to... yes, in the center here, go to microphone 8 please.

JUNE MCCULLOUGH (Southern New Jersey): Bishop, I move to suspend the rules and vote on all that is before us.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Is there a second?

One of the concerns that the chair has on that, and I just want the house to be clear, we've dealt with amendments we really haven't dealt with the report in it's entirety. Speeches before, speeches after. However, I think you're in order if you wish to suspend the rules. We're going to proceed to vote on that. If you favor suspending the rules in order to vote on all that is before us, meaning Report number 16, am I correct in that? Yes that is what I am understanding. Then would you please vote when the light appears? Requires two-thirds vote. [Results: yes, 660; no, 251] You have sustained suspension of the rules in order that we vote on all that's before us.

The first item before us now is the amendment. The amendment before us, as the chair understands it, would be that in relationship to Report number 16 of these total figures, $1.375 million would be used in Advance funding; $300,000, Asian language; $70,000, Korean language; $1 million for youth; the remaining $3.8 million would be apportioned. The apportionment formula would be 1 percent, 2 percent, 1 percent, zero. That's the chair's understanding of this amendment, and it is now before us. In keeping with our procedures, I am going to ask if the chair of either GCFA or the legislative committee wishes to make a comment.

MERRICK: Only that we place it before the body.

BISHOP SOLOMON: It's before the house. Would you please vote when the light appears? Yes? Is there a point of order? Please state your point of order. Go to microphone 2.

RANDOLPH W. NUGENT (New York): The Advance is designated by the Discipline to be a General Board of Global Ministries fund. These particular programs are not in the general—one of the programs is not a designated program. Therefore, I'm asking for ruling as to whether that action which we're facing would apply with reference to the third sector.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Chair would understand that the designation of the Advance actually occurs as a joint initiative between GBGM and GCOM, and there would have to be some enabling motion to provide for action on this if that's the will of the body to try to direct this. We can refer in appropriate manner. You as a committee are free to respond. All right. The amendment is before us. Would you please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 426; no, 493]

Focus 2000 Advance Proposal Fails

The amendment does not prevail. We are back on the main motion. The main motion before the house is Report number 16 in its entirety. I'll invite the chair of GCFA and the legislative committee to make any concluding comments.

MERRICK: Just that we would urge it's adoption, as it stands at this point.

BISHOP SOLOMON: That's from the legislative committee. Now from GCFA. All right. Am I understanding you're speaking for GCFA?

MERRICK: Yes that's, that's the understanding.

BISHOP SOLOMON: So this Report number 16 is now before us. Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 667; no, 258] It prevails.

All right. Now then I turn to the committee. Are there other items on the GCFA and legislative committee report that deal with this? Then the chair would entertain us to vote. You've adopted all of these items individually legislative committees. I believe that that covers it in its entirety. The adoption of the report as a whole has already occurred because we've adopted all the parts. We're going to move on in our calendar items unless there is a point of clarification or a point of order. Yes? Would you please go to microphone 3?

JEROLD W. VOGT (Kansas West): Bishop and members of the General Conference, I have a question, Bishop, that may be a motion that I'd like to ask if that would be in order.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Well surely. State your question and then we'll see where we go from there.

VOGT: My question is, if any place in the reports that we've received at General Conference, that there are any figures that let us know the amount of balances or reserves in the various boards that we've been talking about?

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. We'll turn to the General Secretary of GCFA for a response.

SANDRA LACKORE: Yes. Those reports were before you as requested by the last General Conference and they can be found starting on page 1146.

BETH TAYLOR: 1145.

LACKORE: This is Beth Taylor our controller. She's got laryngitis. And I apologize—1145, and they were in the DCA that you received on your desk when you arrived.

Changes in Accounting Procedures

BISHOP SOLOMON: Thank you. All right. And may the chair just take a moment to acknowledge in the reference a moment ago to changing in standard accounting procedures. Prior to this time our assets in our boards and agencies have been able to be listed as book value on the purchase. They now have to be listed as book value in regard to fair market price. It means that the assets appear to be significantly, as they are, increased over when they were bought. When you look at that, you see the resources of the boards and agencies to reflect more than they have ever reflected. It's simply an accounting procedure you might want to know that as the house. We're going to turn now, unless it's a point of order or inquiry, to the next calendar item which will be presented. Excuse me.

SANDRA LACKORE: GCFA is impressed, Bishop, with the level of expertise of the chair.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Well, all right. We're going to go on now. (ap- plause) Thank you. All right we turn now to, I believe there that there is a point of personal privilege. It was designed to be on the Calendar for 12:15 and the fact of the matter is we are at that point and we have agreed to honor this request. You have been a very wonderful and patient, and helpful body as we have worked through a major budgeting process this morning. I want to express appreciation to you, I want to express appreciation and gratitude to Bishops Oden and Blake who have backed me up, and I want to turn now to a calendar item that's really an order of the day and a matter of personal privilege relating to the EUB anniversary and we'll hear from Mark Conrad. Thank you. Excuse me, Mark Conrad. That is microphone 4 please.

EUB 50th Anniversary

MARK CONARD (Kansas West): Bishop, delegates and friends and visitors of this General Conference. I am vice president of the Historical Society of the United Methodist Church. I want to express appreciation for the recognition of the 50th anniversary of the formation of the EUB Church earlier this week. That is deeply appreciated. I also want to note that an action taken on the Consent Calendar that this General Conference has approved the designation of what is now First United Methodist Church in Johnstown, Pa., as a heritage landmark of the denomination. It was there in November, 1946, that the EUB Church came into being. And in recognition of this designation and in honor of this anniversary, I want to ask the greetings of the General Conference be sent to First United Methodist Church in Johnstown, to the Johnstown District, and the Western Pennsylvania Annual Conference.

Further, I would encourage that upon our return home, delegates to this General Conference take the opportunity, as it may become possible to make note of this anniversary in the sessions of their annual conferences and jurisdictional conferences. In so doing, we express our thanks to God for the lasting heritage and lively witness of the EUB Church, which is now a blessing for all of God's people known as United Methodists. Thank you.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. It's my understanding...[applause] Thank you very much. And we celebrate the word you share. It's my understanding that there is a need to suspend the rules for the allowing of cards to be shared regarding the next General Conference. At least for these to be placed on the tables during the lunch hour. By a show of hands, would you suspend the rules for this purpose? Opposed, would you register your dissent. And the rules are suspended for the purpose of allowing cards welcoming the next General Conference to East Ohio to be placed at the tables during the lunch hour. All right. Yes? In the very back, here. Please go to microphone 9.

LOVETT WEEMS (Missouri West): A question. When would a motion be in order dealing with what we have just dealt with and the process that we've used for future General Conferences?

BISHOP SOLOMON: Were it not for the fact that we have a few minutes, I would say sometime later today, but I think we have a few minutes, so I'll recognize you to make a motion.

Financial Proposal Deadlines for General Conference Approved

WEEMS: Yes. I move that the General Council on Finance and Administration and the appropriate committee of the General Conference develop, for the 2000 General Conference, deadlines for any proposals with financial commitments, so they can be considered by GCFA and the Financial Administration Committee during the first week of General Conference. If there's a second, I would like to speak to it.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Is there a second? It is seconded. You may speak.

WEEMS: Bishop and members of the conference, as we celebrate the important efforts that we have just funded, I do have a concern about the process. I'm thinking about the persons who over a long time have been a part of a budgeting process where budgets have been brought down and down and down, where person had to go back and reformulate plans for much smaller amounts of money than we've just voted, where meticulous questions were asked and tremendous accountability was required before any funds would get into the budget.

And here in the last few days of the conference, after the legislative committee has completed its work, and when GCFA has to meet during a mealtime to consider millions of dollars, that is a problem. Again, the concern is not with what we have approved, but I believe that if these matters had been before us, they would have been addressed. But I also believe we would have come out with budget shaped differently so that all the items could have been on the table at the same time for consideration.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. That motion is before us. Now, the chair has a sense of the body that you're either in favor of this motion or you're opposed to it, and you've come to your mind on that without further speeches. Please vote when the light appears. (laughter) [Results: yes, 756]

That motion is approved. All right. Yes? You may go to microphone 3.

BECKY HAASE (California-Pacific): I'd like to request a moment of personal privilege. This is the fifth General Conference I have attended either as a delegate or as an alternate. I came to this General Conference with a great deal of apprehension about what I thought might be happening during these two weeks. I'm very pleased that, although certainly not all the decisions have gone in the directions I would like them to, that the mood and the spirit of this General Conference has been one of being able to listen to each other out of our diversity.

There are two groups, however, that I feel I would like to lift up at this time, as two groups that I feel have particularly given us some prophetic leadership. I would like to lift them and express my gratitude and perhaps the General Conference would agree with me. The first is members of the Council of Bishops who I think have given us particularly prophetic word at this particular conference. And the second group is our youth and young adults. And I am grateful for the enthusiasm, which I use here in a theological term, that is leading us into the next quadrennium. And I thank you all for that.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Thank you for sharing that word. We receive it gratefully. (applause) All right. We had a delegate here to microphone 1, please.

Plea for Full Funding for Africa University

RICHARD E. REEVES (Central Illinois): Personal privilege. I'm also on African University Board of Directors, as you know. The joy and excitement we felt when the African University choir sang for us still fills our hearts, because we, under God's blessing and guidance, get to be involved in this great ministry and mission of the church. You already know the request for the 1997-2000 quadrennium is the same as the previous quadrenniums, $10 million from apportionment, $10 million from World Service and Special Gifts.

I think we need to know that after prior claims, the university received less than $8 million from our giving in each of the previous quadrenniums from apportionment, and less than $4 million each quadrennium from World Service. The university needs the full amounts requested from both sources if it is to grow as planned to fulfill the need. The amounts requested for both funds is approximately 60 cents per member, per year. The equivalent of a cup of coffee or a Coke once a year. There has been a wonderful response for buildings and from voluntary mission teams for which we are most grateful. The need for operation and endowment funds for scholarships and student aid continues.

When we return home, let's do these three things. First, make sure our own churches and conferences pay their apportionment for Africa University. Second, pay our share of our World Service Special Gift for Endowments. And third, pray for Africa University and especially for its students, now and in the future, that they may achieve their hopes and their potential.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. I have a card right here. You may go to microphone 8.

JOHN HOPKINS (South Indiana): I appreciate you for having the "wisdom of Solomon" in this session, but there's (laughter and applause)

BISHOP SOLOMON: Please proceed.

GCFA Help for Local Church Budget Balancing Requested

HOPKINS: You've done an excellent job of leading us through, but there is a motion I have on the financial aspects of the conference that I would like to make. I'm a local pastor and the chair of the South Indiana Conference's Council on Finance and Administration. South Indiana paid 10 percent of all its funds in 1995 for the first time in probably 8 or 10 years, and we did that in February, after we ended the year and saw our receipts, and sent our money in to pay in full.

This is my motion: I move that the General Council on Finance and Administration help annual conferences develop a plan to balance their budgets and move toward 10 percent payment of all general church funds with report of results to the General Conference in the year 2000. If I have a second, I will speak to it.

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. The chair understands that to be a request to be made. All right.

HOPKINS: Over the past year, five years actually, the amount paid on our general church funds has been just under 85 percent, ranging from some annual conferences in '95 paying at 67 percent, to one annual conference paying 101 percent. Special recognition ought to go to Wisconsin, Peninsula-Delaware, and the Red Bird Missionary Conferences for paying 10 percent for all funds for over the past five years. (applause)

We adopted a budget of $508 million. Actually, if we were honest, we adopted a budget of $432 million, because we expect to receive 85 percent. That means the budget pay out is really $832 million, and we've added $76 million to that budget, in order to collect the $432 million we expect to spend. Conferences paying 10 percent will have to pay almost 18 percent more to support the general church for those conferences that are not able to pay in full.

This means two things: 1) If every annual conference would pay 10 percent of its general church funds, we could lower the budget by $76 million. On the other hand, if we all paid 10 percent, we'd have $76 million more to spend on mission. To put it another way, for every 1 percent we increase our receipts, we have about $4.5 million to spend.

Annual conferences don't pay 10 percent because local churches can't balance their budget. If you look at page 270 in the red DCA, you'll know why. That's because they can't afford a pastor at the salary level they have and meet all their expenses. Most of our annual conferences have as many full-time clergy serving in local churches now as they did in 1968, in spite of the fact that membership has plummeted, and compensation has increased. We need to help our local churches balance their budgets if we want to balance the General Conference budget. Just like we have to help people in our local churches balance their personal budget, if we want them to tithe and give apportionately. I believe that God always gives us the blessings we need to do the work of the church.

BISHOP SOLOMON: Your time is up.

HOPKINS: If we have good stewardship, we'll have the money to do that mission. (applause)

BISHOP SOLOMON: All right. I think the motion is before us. This is a matter of request to GCFA, and I believe that you are of a mind to express yourself. Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 676; no, 144] It is approved. Thank you very much. We turn now to Carolyn Marshall for announcements.

CAROLYN MARSHALL: We have now been here almost 10 days. There have been times when we've been weary of the process, but this word has come to the platform this morning, and I think needs to be shared with all of us. It comes from the spirit in which delegates and visitors alike have interacted with those who have been serving us throughout this time.

Two quotes I bring to you: One from one of the custodial workers this morning who said, "I sure hate to see this conference end. There has been so much grace here, and we've never felt so welcomed and a part of any function held." (applause) And secondly, from a food worker downstairs who said, "Do you really have to leave today? This is the first time I've really enjoyed my job. This is a great group." (applause)

BISHOP SOLOMON: Thank you very much. Will you hold steady now for just a moment? Some years ago I had the opportunity to participate in the Bishops' Conference in Latin America and came to know the remarkable spirit and gentle, pastoral leadership, and yet the prophetic voice of Bishop Aldo Etchogoyen. He is with us, now, from Argentina, and I'm going to ask him to come and lead us in the benediction for this session, in his own language. And will you just simply remain seated for this benediction. Upon the ending of the benediction, we'll be in recess until 2 p.m. Bishop Etchogoyen.

(prayer)

BISHOP SOLOMON: Bishop, thank you so very much. God bless you.

LEARNING LESSONS FROM OUR NATION'S CHILDREN

It Takes a Village: And Other Lessons Children Teach Us, by Hillary Rodham Clinton. America's First Lady chronicles her quest to discover how we can make our society into the kind of village that enables children to grow into able, caring, resilient adults. By looking honestly at the condition of our children, by understanding the wealth of new information research offers us about them, and most importantly, by listening to the children themselves, we can achieve a more fruitful discussion about their needs. Ideal for anyone concerned with the welfare of our nation's children.

Friday Afternoon April 26, 1996

Bishop Judith Craig, presiding

BISHOP JUDITH CRAIG: Thank you very much. Now, delegates and friends, if you will find your seats. This is the last time we'll get to come together at sleepy time. By tonight it will be total nap time. So let's see if we can stay awake this afternoon, and be in good order. You've been a very good house this morning. It's time for us to be in order. And, I'm going to ask those that are coming in to come in quietly, please, because we're going to turn to that centering time that has been so rich for us across this week.

It has been beautiful to watch and to do, and I want to invite us once again to get in touch with our dreams and desires that rise out of our urge to be faithful, and see how close we can bring those to our awareness of God's loving desires of us. I want to suggest that we do it this way this afternoon. I want to ask those who are moving about to please cease your conversation and join us. Gallery, find a piece of paper and join us in this.

I'm going to suggest that as the questions come on the screen this afternoon, the first question, "What is my most earnest hope for the next few hours of this General Conference?" Will you sit quietly for a minute or two and reflect on that and write down, put it out there in front of you. "What is my most earnest hope for the next few hours of this General Conference?" See if you can put that in a sentence, in two or three phrases. Something that you can write concretely in front of you. And then in a moment I'll invite you to turn to a partner, and to share that, and say how close you think that is, or what kind of confession you need to make because it's not close, to what you really think God wants for us. We've been doing this so many times now, I hope these desires are coming closer and closer. But they will never quite be one until we always place ourselves in a position of prayer. So, will you contemplatively, honestly, find a way to put in a few words in front of you, what is your most earnest hope for the next few hours of this General Conference?

And now let me suggest you find a partner that perhaps you haven't spoken with a lot in this week and ask...speak to each other of what you believe God's most earnest desire is for us in these next few hours, conscious of what you have written on your paper. Please speak to each other.

Now, will you take the hand of that conversation partner, and remember the words we prayed in song this morning as we sang the closing hymn. "Come Spirit, come; our hearts control, our Spirits long to be made whole. Let inward love guide every deed. By this we worship and are freed. Amen." Thank you.

Now, friends, you have before you the agenda as its been printed on the front of the DCA. We're going to adhere to that as closely as we possibly can. We have several items that will precede the current Calendar Items and the chair is going to understand that everything that is on the agenda is in order of the day, and will be dealt with as an order of the day and, therefore not be very open to interruptions of any other kind, with your help. So we begin by turning to Bishop Edwin C. Boulton and the Rev. Kenneth Chalker, who have an invitation and welcome for us. Bishop Boulton, Ken. Let's be in order and give our attention to Bishop Boulton, please.

Invitation to Cleveland for GC2000 from East Ohio Conference

BISHOP EDWIN C. BOULTON: Bishop Craig and friends, I stand in a very privileged role before you in these next two or three minutes, for just by the very nature of things, there are not a great many annual conferences that will have the opportunity to entertain or make provision for a General Conference. And, the East Ohio Annual Conference, where I now serve, has been approved by you as the body that will be given the opportunity and the responsibility to do that in the year 2000. And I thank you. I thank the General Conference Commission which has given us this privilege.

I suspect this is one of those privileges that will end with a backache and a headache and a few other aches, but so be it. I'm a very courageous person, and about the first of September I'm going into retirement, and whoever, in the inscrutable wisdom of God, is to be assigned to my area is going to have it all to do. One of the fascinating things about being assigned to East Ohio eight years ago was the discovery of a wonderful new colony of people to me, that Betty Ann and I have come to feel at home with, and literally to adore. While my conduct as a retired bishop will have to be very, very carefully monitored, something of our profound affection for the area and the people is to be seen in the fact that we intend to retire there.

And so, we will drive less than 50 miles from where we now live to Cleveland so that I can be a retired bishop in the General Conference of the year 2000. And I'm looking forward to that. The East Ohio Area is one of the many great areas of the church. And Cleveland is one of the great cities of our country. It has had a kind of history, especially in the last number of years, that has caused people occasionally to make fun of it, referring to it, as sometimes, the "mistake on the lake." I've not found it so, I've not found it so. Nor will you. It's a great place, a great annual conference, a great people of God.

Kenneth Chalker, pastor of First Church in Cleveland, is a person that I've already appointed to chair the local arrangements that will be generated there. Ken and his colleagues have seen to it that there is a little purple-colored invitation at each one of your places. And madam chair, I am delighted, in behalf of Ken and all of my colleagues in East Ohio, to commend this to you that you might accept it as our formal invitation to you. We're going to have a party on the lake about four years from now. I hope to be there, and I hope you are, too. Thank you very much. (applause)

BISHOP CRAIG: Thank you, Bishop Boulton. I'm particularly pleased to be in the chair when that happens. Cleveland is the city in which I was ordained an elder, and it is the city in which I will attend my last General Conference as, what they call, an effective bishop. (laughter) And it will be a thrill to go home to the conference that found a way to get rid of me, nominate her for the episcopacy. They said, "That'll get rid of her." (laughter) And, so, I feel like it's a wonderful invitation to accept. Thank you very much, Bishop Boulton and Rev. Chalker.

Now, he's mentioned retirement. We want to turn to William B. Cook, who is going to lead us in a moment of grace, recognizing some faithful servants of the church. Mr. Cook.

WILLIAM B. COOK (Oregon-Idaho): It is my pleasure to introduce Bishop Melvin Talbert, who will introduce the 1996 class of bishops.

Bishops Retiring After GC 1996

BISHOP MELVIN G. TALBERT: Bishop Craig, delegates of the 1996 General Conference. It is my distinct honor and privilege now to present to you those members of the Council of Bishops who will be retiring this year, effective August 31. These servants of our church have provided exemplary leadership over the years. They have been faithful to the call of God and to the call of their church. Having reached the age of retirement, we now recognize them and honor them for their faithful witness and service, in the name of Jesus Christ and of The United Methodist Church.

As I call their names, they will join me here in front of the altar, starting here and going across. If you would hold your applause, after they all have arrived I will ask you to join me in extending to them our heartfelt thanks, appreciation, and love for who they are, and in so doing we will be asking God's continued blessings upon them in the years to come. Now starting with 1988: William B. Lewis, the Dakotas Area. And if you will just come and stand here and go across. Clay F. Lee, the Knoxville area; R. Sheldon Duecker, the Chicago area; H. Hasbrouck Hughes, the Florida area; Thomas R. Stockton, the Richmond area. Class of '94: David J. Lawson of the Springfield area; Forrest C. Stith—he had to leave today and couldn't be with us—of the New York area; L. Bevel Jones III, the Charlotte area; J. Lloyd Knox, of the Atlanta area; Richard B. Wilke of the Little Rock area. From the Class of 1980: Calvin D. McConnell of the Seattle area; C.P. Minnick Jr., the Raleigh area; William Boyd Grove of the Albany area; F. Herbert Skeete, of the Boston area; Edwin C. Bolton of the Ohio East area. And then of the Class of 1972: Joseph H. Yeakel, the Washington area. Delegates and friends of the General Conference, our retiring servants of our church. (applause) Thank you very much.

BISHOP CRAIG: Thank you, Bishop Talbert. Let me say this word to my episcopal brothers who are retiring. That applause wasn't "we're glad you're going." It was, "We're glad God gave you good life and health to serve us, and faith to lead us, and gave us this moment with you to thank you. Thanks be to God."

Marshall Re-elected General Conference Secretary

Now we have a few additional elections we need to attend to. If you'll turn first to page 25 in the blue book; that's the second page 25. It's in Volume 3, number 2, page 25. You'll see there a nomination for the secretary designate of the General Conference. You'll see the name of Carolyn Marshall. This nomination is before you, but the floor is open if there are other nominations for secretary designate of the General Conference. Are there further nominations? I see no cards. That makes me think you are ready to cast a vote, so we will give you an opportunity to elect Carolyn as secretary designate. Please vote when the light appears. [774 approved] (applause) Congratulations, Carolyn. Thank you, Carolyn, for your good service this year, and we look forward to your service in the future.

Now if you will turn in your blue books to page 652, 653, and 654. Blue books, page 652, 653, and 654. We have a series of nominations there that come to you by the rules of the General Conference and the order of the Discipline from the Council of Bishops. The nominations are there for you now to elect. Make sure you've got the pages: 652, 653, 654. Is this a question for clarification? We're in the midst of an election, if you can wait, thank you. Question for clarification? Microphone 8, please.

DAVID SEVERE (Oklahoma): Bishop, my question is, are the nominations open for additional nominations, or are we to vote this slate up or down?

BISHOP CRAIG: It is the chair's understanding that these come to you by rules of the council, and you are to vote the slate up or down. All right. Are you ready? Is it in relation to the elections? We're still in the electing process. All right, these nominations are before you. Do you have a question or a point of order? The floor is not open for further nominations. We are simply ready to act on the slate. What is the question in the back? By microphone 14, the woman in the blue, please.

PHYLLIS FERGUSON (Pacific-Northwest): On the Connectional Process Team, I'd like to ask if there is at least one nomination from each ethnic group? It has been brought to my attention, there are no Pacific Islanders on this team. This is in relation to the Connectional Process Team only.

BISHOP CRAIG: If you will notice on the right-hand column of page 652, there is a pool of names, and additional nominations and elections will be coming by the rules we adopted earlier in the week. And there are, I understand, persons available in that pool. I'm looking to a member of the nominating committee. So while it's not before you now, there will be additional opportunities for that at a later time by the rule.

FERGUSON: Thank you, Bishop Craig.

BISHOP CRAIG: Thank you very much. All right, I think you're ready to make...is this questions for clarification? We're on this election. Right here at microphone 3.

PATRICIA E. FARRIS (California-Pacific): Is a motion to refer back to the council in order?

BISHOP CRAIG: Yes, it is in order.

FARRIS: May I make the motion and then state my rationale?

BISHOP CRAIG: You may.

FERRIS: I would move to refer this back to the council for further consideration. Only 9 of the 24 nominated are women. There's only one clergy woman nominated, and I would respectfully request the council reconsider this list.

BISHOP CRAIG: Let me ask you to be very clear. Which list? We're on all three pages.

FERRIS: For the CPT.

BISHOP CRAIG: You're asking to refer only the CPT?

FERRIS: Yes.

BISHOP CRAIG: Is there support? I see support. The motion is to refer the nominations for the Connectional Process Team back to the Council of Bishops for further work for the reason stated. We're on the motion to refer. If you will refer, please vote when the light appears. Motion to refer. [Results: 315, yes; no, 509] Motion is not referred, so the whole slate is still before you, and all three pages are before you. I believe you are ready to elect these persons. Please vote when the light appears. [approved 756]

Thank you. These persons are elected. Thank you very much. Now we're going to turn to Calendar Items on the local church. And we're turning to Janice Riggle Huie for the committee. Good afternoon Janice.

Local Church Report Introduced

JANICE RIGGLE HUIE (Southwest Texas): Bishop Craig, members of the General Conference. We've been waiting for this moment. We are pleased to present our report to you of the Local Church Legislative Committee. If you concur with many of the proposals presented in this report, there will be some significant changes in the chapter in the Discipline on the local church. We believe that these changes will make our congregations more effective in mission and in ministry.

Our legislative committee received many calls for change. They ranged from eliminating most local church structures, to adding more local church structures and work areas. In a style that has become familiar to us, we listened for deepest concerns and highest dreams. We built consensus around proposals that addressed local church concerns and expanded horizons for mission. In regard to local church structure, we are proposing what committee members referred to as a "cafeteria plan." This is opposed to either "cook it yourself," or "eat what I give you and don't complain."

In the cafeteria plan, you may choose an organizational plan from one specifically named. Or you may create your own structure within the guidelines named by our tradition and our mission. If a congregation already has an effective structure for mission, whether that's an administrative council, an administrative board and COM, a nurture outreach witness model, nothing we will offer here diminishes that. There is no requirement for any congregation to change. There is the opportunity for developing new options as the need arises. There are 21 petitions for us to vote on. An overview of the whole may help us to move more quickly. I will be brief and I want to overview the major themes.

Overview of Local Church Themes

Number 1. United Methodists want to be in mission. Structure is simply a way to organize ourselves for mission. Everything we offer here is directed towards mission.

Number 2. The local church is the primary base for mission and for ministry. We appreciate and affirm this insight from the connectional issues study. We boldly claim that reality. One of the ways that some churches may choose to claim that identity is to change the name of their governing body. There are many people who find that the language, administrative board or administrative council, is more bureaucratic than biblical, more maintenance than mission. You will notice in what we present, that the basic governing body is called simply "church council." It claims who we are—church. You will also notice that we would no longer have work areas. As Jean Dowell, a lay woman who was a subcommittee chair, commented, "Nobody wants to be a part of work areas. They want to be in ministry." Those same functions are now referred to as ministry groups. "Ministry"—it claims who we are.

Number 3. Flexibility, simplicity, innovation. Beyond the foundational units, that is, charge conference, PPRC, trustees, nominating committee, ministries of nurture, outreach and witness, the language of the structure is permissive, encouraging congregations to reflect on mission from their context and to organize themselves in the most effective way to accomplish their mission. Therefore, there are many more "mays" than "shalls."

Many people in our legislative committee felt that the Discipline in the local church section leaves them swimming in a sea of words. The legislative committee identified traditional areas of ministry in the current Discipline. It retained the ministry by naming it and often deleted long descriptions. We preferred simplicity in the Discipline in the section on local church. Sometimes people said, "Well the local church can't do this, or the local church can't do that." Our legislative committee was made up of people from local churches, clergy and lay. And over and over again, those 80 people said, "We can do it. We can do it."

Number 4. Clergy and laity are partners in ministry. You heard it in the laity address, you will see it in the legislation.

Number 5. Connect, connect, connect—the language of much of the first week in our legislative committee. Inclusiveness was an extremely high priority for the legislative committee. Language regarding inclusiveness remains, and in some places is strengthened. In addition the legislative committee on the local church is deeply committed to the United Methodist connectional church, the body voted unanimously to nonconcur with all items related to optional apportionments. We want to utilize our annual conference and General Conference boards and agencies to resource our local congregations as well as to extend the mission of the church in broad ways.

Local Church Mission Statement

So these are the themes that will be woven throughout these 21 petitions which we will present to you. I begin by offering an item—the mission statement. You have already adopted it, but I want to call it to your attention. You will find it in the blue DCA on page 457, it is Calendar Item 1782. The underlined portions in that petition are the excellent additions which came from the Discipleship Legislative Committee. We thank them. We want you to celebrate with us this historic moment. We believe that this is the first mission statement in a single sentence, with the expansion statements under it, adopted in the local church section of the Discipline in more than a quarter of a century. Congratulations to all of you for that wonderful, wonderful adoption of that mission statement.

This statement is the beginning point now from which all our local church legislation flows. The first two reports will be given by Jim Harnish, clergy from Florida, Terry Clark, clergy from Southern [Central] Illinois. They are two subcommittee chairs. They will overview our first four major petitions, and then we will bring them to you for your vote. Thank you.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right. Thank you.

JIM HARNISH (Florida): Bishop, and members of the conference, we present to you the main entrees in this local church cafeteria. You'll find it on page 140 in the blue book, Calendar Item 194. It refers to Petition 20696 in the red book, but you really don't need to turn to that because the DCA folks have been gracious enough to print the entire paragraph the way that we are proposing it to you. So, I'll lead you to page 140 in the right hand column, you'll see the new paragraph 245 as it would read. And at this time I'll ask the folks to project the graph that we have on the screen. Since a picture is worth a thousand words, we've tried to give you an image of what this structure looks like.

Church Council and Four Mandated Committees

As Janice said, everything that we are attempting to do grows out of the definition of mission that has been developed and approved by this body. Our task is to fulfill that mission in whatever way is most effective for that particular congregation, meeting the needs of its particular community with the unique resources that it has. And so it's that sense of mission that drives us in this process. You'll see to the far left of the screen, the familiar form of the charge conference, which continues to be the connectional link for every local church to the rest of the body of United Methodism. Then in the center you'll see the new church council. The church council—it's a round table. And gathered around that round table are four mandated bodies: the Pastor-Parish Relations Committee, the Board of Trustees, the Committee on Finance, the Committee on Nominations and Personnel.

And then if you're looking in the paragraph on page 140, the words read, "and such other elected leaders, commissions, councils, committees and task forces as the charge conference may determine. Every local church shall develop a plan for organizing its administrative and programmatic responsibilities. Each local congregation shall provide a comprehensive program of nurture, outreach and witness, along with leadership training and the planning and administration of the congregation's organizational and temporal life in accordance with the mission of The United Methodist Church." See paragraph 101-114.

Nurture, Outreach, Witness

The three primary prongs of mission and ministry which are extended out from this church council table are defined as nurture, outreach and witness, which some of us have come to know as the NOW model. But the forms which those ministries and missions take will be determined by the church council. Around that church council table are the persons, we believe, who will be gifted by the spirit with the vision of the best way to fulfill that mission and that ministry in that local church.

Number 1 in the paragraph, you will note, that the church council and all other administrative and programmatic structures of the local church shall be amenable to the church conference. And the church council shall function as the executive agency of the church conference. Then item 2 is critically important and it underscores what Janice communicated to you about this cafeteria plan enabling churches to use those structures that are most effective for them. Alternative plans may be developed in accordance with the provisions of paragraph 248.2. Such alternatives may include: nurture, outreach and witness ministries; administrative council; or administrative board council on ministries.

In a real sense we see the work that the legislative committee has done as being a part of the process that began all the way back there when the Council of Ministries first came into what had been the Methodist Church into the new United Methodist Church, then was transformed and changed by the adoption of the plans for administrative council. And this continues that movement in the direction that we hear churches calling and asking for.

Structural Options

Now that is the primary petition that would establish the church council as the basic organizational plan allowing for all the other alternatives. If you'll turn in the blue DCA to page 456, I want to draw your attention to Calendar Item 1779 on page 456. This elaborates on this structure. You'll see the first part largely reinforces what we've said about the church council and lists the mandated membership, and then again says that the church council will be composed of all the folks that that local church needs to draw around its table. It defines the nurturing, outreach and witness ministries; says a word about meetings and the order of the structure. And then if you'll look in the right hand column, Item 4, "If a church chooses to have an administrative council or administrative board."

Because these forms of church structure have been effective in many congregations, we assume there will be many congregations who will want to continue their existence. And so the rest of this column picks up the disciplinary language which continues to define and describe the administrative board, administrative council structure. So that within the Discipline, those alternatives are defined and available to the persons who would want to use them. These two calendar items define the church council. You need to know that you've already approved Calendar Item 1779 on the Consent Calendar. Now Terry Clark will come and share with us the next two pieces of this outline.

TERRY CLARK (Central Illinois): Bishop Craig, and members of the conference, what we share with you is a variety; but it's important that we remember the variety is based on mission. Several years ago one of our daughters, in waiting for a date, out of parental curiosity I asked, "What do you expect of the evening," and she paused for a moment and said, "Well, dad, if the evening goes as I think, the purpose should, there won't be any confusion at the end of the evening." And that is how, I think, it is in ministry as we prepare this for you...is that there is no confusion, but a variety of which you can draw from.

Ministry Area Options

There are two major petitions that will be before you that we will look at. They are both found on volume 3, the blue DCA on page 455. They both deal with the elimination of work areas. One is specifically dealing with the work areas that we have come to know. The other deals with age level coordinators and family coordinator. Now, even though the headings talk about elimination, because that was the wording of the original petitions, we have made amendments to those. And you look very closely at that and see that the words there are "may," that a charge conference may continue those work areas that we have come to know. Of christian unity and interreligious concerns, church and society, education, evangelism, higher education and campus ministry, missions, you see a new one there that has been approved—prayer advocacy. Religion in race, role and status of women, religion and race.

Age Level and Family Options

And then on the far right column, the Calendar Item 1774, even though the heading says the elimination of the age level and family coordinators, please note, that here we also lift up again the "may." And the reason that is is because as churches think of their mission, there will be many as they continue to step out in new mission areas, feel very secure in using those categories of work areas as well as age level coordinators, to do that particular ministry. There are then four other petitions that will deal with that elimination also, of those. Let me again assure you that what is being done here is for the purpose of advancing the mission of the local church into the world.

The director of lay speaking for the district in which I reside, his name is Al Kochefski. Al is six feet seven inches tall, and weighs about 300 pounds, and a cartoon he has is most helpful, where a customer enters into a shop and there sees a sign that says "one size fits Al." He says to the salesperson, now, don't you mean one size fits all? And the sales personnel says, "no, Al." And she points over and there's a large man standing to the side. We hope that what is being presented here will not be one size that fits all, but will be in terms of many sizes that again gets at the thrust of the mission of the local church for Jesus Christ.

HARNISH: For our action, therefore, bishop and members of the Conference, we commend to you Calendar Item 194 on page 140. It comes to you with the recommendation of consensus of 76 for and 3 opposed.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right. Thank you very much. What is before us is on page 140 of the blue book. Calendar Item 194. Are you ready? All right, I see a card, right here in this section. Come to microphone 8, please. OK, you're coming over to number 9.

CHARLOTTE ABRAM (Nebraska): Bishop, I would like to make a motion to amend if that would be in order?

BISHOP CRAIG: It is.

ABRAM: Yes, Bishop, I would like to amend the point 2 under this motion. The words begin "alternative plan" following the words "such alternatives include." I move to insert the words "the interactive organizational process." If I get a second, I will speak to that.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right. Is there a second? I see support.

HARNISH: Bishop, we're willing to accept that.

BISHOP CRAIG: Jim is indicating that they'll accept that. Is there any objection in the house? If the committee accepts that? All right. It looks like it's acceptable.

ABRAM: Thank you.

BISHOP CRAIG: Do you mind not making your speech?

ABRAM: I don't mind. (laughter)

BISHOP CRAIG: All right. Calendar Item 194, Yes? right over here. Microphone 9, again.

Role of Pastor in New Structure

JEROME DEL PINO (New England): Bishop, I have a question. The question has to do with the deletion of the existing text regarding the pastor as chief administrative office of the local church in charge. My question is simply, what then is the role of the pastor in relationship to this new creation? Particularly vis-a-vis the whole matter of apportionments, the whole matter of accountability for the overall workings of the local church.

...when it comes to the appointing authorities in supervision and evaluation.

BISHOP CRAIG: Let's turn to the committee.

JAMES A. HARNISH (Florida): Yes, there was a petition relating to that paragraph. The legislative committee voted nonconcurrence, which would remove that language. I'm not sure if that petition ended up on the Consent Calendar? Yes. It ended up on the Consent Calendar. The sense of the legislative committee was, they were uncomfortable with that language. It sounded more like the language of secular business and of the secular world rather than the life of the body of Christ. That was the basis upon which the legislative committee voted in support of the petition that removed that language.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right. You've already spoken Jerome. Did he not answer your question? Let's come over here. Microphone 7, please.

THOMAS W. FLINN JR. (Baltimore-Washington): If I remember correctly, I was in this section, and the petition that was before us was not chief administrative officer. It was chief executive officer. And that was what we voted nonconcurrence. Isn't that correct? So understanding that and having the same concern that my colleague just mentioned a little while ago, I would like to move that we reinstate that printing that has been crossed out.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right. There is a motion to amend. I hear support. Would you wish to speak to it?

FLINN: Yes. It seems to me that as we go in plowing these new grounds in areas of vagueness, and this is in vagueness when you start eliminating all the work areas, areas that have been assigned to individuals within your church that know exactly what their job is and where they're supposed to go, into three basic areas, we certainly need a leader out there that will guide that, someone in charge, someone that can certainly show us the right direction. So that's it.

BISHOP CRAIG: Thank you very much. Now we're on the motion to amend, which would restore the language in the middle, bottom third of the column in the middle that has been deleted. The motion to amend. On that motion, right there. Come down to microphone 4.

CHARLIE O. DUNDAS (Minnesota): I speak against the motion to amend. I do not believe that pastoral leadership and administrative guidance depends on that being designated in the Discipline, but rather on trust and relational experiences within the congregation. And I believe that the pastoral role as shepherd and as prophet provides every opportunity for us to lead the church as pastoral servant leaders, and that we do not need to be shored up by having a designation of administrative executive or chief executive or whatever.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right. Thank you. There was a speech for and a speech against. I need now a speech for the amendment. For the amendment. Back there, far back. I'm sorry, behind you. The gentleman in the grey jacket. Yes. Microphone 9. Are you speaking for the amendment?

ARNOLD A. RHODES (Western Pennsylvania): Yes. It is very important in the life of the church to have a connection. And one of the places of connection in following the principles that were placed on the screen is the pastor. And the pastor as a chief administrative officer ensures the connection with that local church to the annual conference and to The United Methodist Church as a whole. When the local church makes decisions about its life and its mission, it's important that they have that connection and that there is a person in the life of that congregation that supports that connection and interprets that connection to the local church. And the pastor as a chief administrative officer can do that well.

BISHOP CRAIG: Thank you very much. We can have one more speech against. Way back in the back corner. Microphone 11. Are you against the amendment?

THOMAS J. BICKERTON (West Virginia): Our United Methodist Discipline is very clear about the responsibilities and duties of a pastor. Paragraph 439 on pages 236 and 237 state very clear what the role of a pastor is in the local church. I speak against the amendment.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, thank you. We've had two for and two against. By our rules we go to vote. We are on the motion to amend by restoring the text that is marked "deleted," in the middle of the column of Calendar Item 194. Please vote when the light appears. The motion is defeated. We are back on Calendar Item 194. All right, right here. I see a card. Come to microphone 3 please.

JEANNIE TREVINO-TEDDLIE (Central Texas): I have a question. On this petition, it says, "amend paragraph 3 by eliminating paragraph 245.2 as follows." Now that seems to indicate it's really amending the petition and not amending the Discipline. If you go back to the original petition, the original petition eliminates paragraph 245.2 and then substitutes that language. So my question is, what are we voting on?

HARNISH: That's specifically why we requested the DCA to print the entire paragraph. In the right-hand column the proposed paragraph coming from the legislative committee is in its entirety there. That's what the new paragraph would look like.

TREVINO-TEDDIE: OK, so that, what is in the Discipline then would not even appear, is that what you're saying?

HARNISH: That's right.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, are you clear? If you look at the right-hand column of Calendar Item 194, you have the perfected new paragraph 245. All right. We're on this Calendar Item. Yes, right here in the middle. The woman in red. There. Would you like to go back to microphone 8, please?

Inclusiveness in New Structure

LUCILLE V. VANZANT (Oklahoma): Bishop, I see nothing in there that holds the church accountable for its relationships to its racial obligations. We know that racism has reared its ugly head in so many ways until the church has gotten behind already in dealing with it. I feel that the church should be, someone said, in front of the parade. Why should we give opportunity for racism to creep into our congregations and we do not have any structure to deal with it. I only ask that, in its nurturing or in its outreach, that somewhere in here it is built in that there shall be some responsibility given to something in the church so that we can be aware where racism has taken over, and we as United Methodists becoming a global church will be ready and able to deal with it.

BISHOP CRAIG: Thank you very much. The chair takes that as an invitational speech against. Anyone else wishing to speak? Yes.

HARNISH: May I say a word to that. We're looking for the exact paragraph. By consent you have already approved a very strong statement about inclusiveness being a part of the mission of the local church. And so our position would be, we are in total agreement with this delegate, and that that is clearly expressed in the mission of the church. We're dealing now here with structures that grow out of that.

BISHOP CRAIG: Let the chair give the house some encouragement. We have adopted an enormous number of Calendar Items by consent. And it is probably true that there are many, many pieces of this larger plan that has been overviewed for us that we have already adopted. I'm sure that between 2 and 4 a.m. you haven't read all of those items. I've only gotten halfway through between 1 and 2. And so, I think from time to time we may need to give the latitude to the committee to help us know what we've already adopted. All right. Thank you very much for that clarification, Jim. And it reminds us that there's a good deal out here already in our pocket. All right. We're still on Calendar Item 194. Now I had seen a card way back there I was about to acknowledge. Go to microphone 13, please. I'll come to you in just a moment. Let's listen to the gentleman on 13.

SCOTT J. JONES (North Texas): I'm a member of the Local Church Committee. I want to support what you just said, Bishop, and respond to the previous speaker and call the body's attention to page 456, Calendar Item 1779. Jim Harnish called our attention to this in his presentation. It's important to remember that the witness missions of the church, I'm looking at paragraph 2C—actually it ought to be outreach ministries in 2B—which mandates that the church shall give attention to religion and race, and status and role of women. By listing these functions, we must not back away from any of these areas of ministry but allow local churches to adapt the particular ways that they deal with them.

BISHOP CRAIG: Thank you very much for that help. Now you had a point of information here at microphone 2.

WILLIAM D. REESE (Missouri East): It adds to that, and I don't know where it is in the blue DCA, but it is on page 953 in the red DCA. Our committee concurred 78 to nothing, and I assume it's on the Consent Calendar. And it addresses that issue very specifically. It says, "Seeking inclusiveness in all aspects of its life without regard to race, gender, age, national origin, and disabilities."

BISHOP CRAIG: Thank you very much. It's helpful to have these folks who are keeping the pieces together help us keep them together. Now we're on Calendar Item 194. Way over here, microphone 5.

JIM HOLSINGER (Kentucky): I'm aware that we have 21 such petitions to deal with, and if it's in order I would therefore move to suspend the rules and vote on all that is before us.

BISHOP CRAIG: That is in order. Is there support? It takes two-thirds. If you will suspend the rules and come to vote on Calendar Item 194, please vote when the light appears.

You're quite ready to vote Calendar Item 194 is before you. Please vote when the light appears.[837 approved] Thank you. You've adopted Calendar Item 194. Where do we go next?

Legislation Regarding Council on Ministries

JAMES A. HARNISH (Florida): As I stated, you have approved by consent on page 456, Calendar Item 1779. Now we go to page 210; there are four calendar items, all of which are dealing with actions which follow out of the action that you've just taken. Calendar Item 543 from paragraph 258 deletes the language regarding the Council of Ministries. We recommend consensus by 75-1.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, we're on Calendar Item 543, page 210, this is cleaning up after what we've done. You've found it? You look ready to vote. Please vote when the light appears. [848 approved] Thank you, it is adopted.

HARNISH: Calendar Item 545, regarding paragraph 259 deletes the membership description of the Council of Ministries. We recommend concurrence by 75-1.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, Calendar Item 545 is before you. Please vote when the light appears. [860 approved] It is confirmed, thank you.

HARNISH: Calendar Item 547, regarding paragraph 250 deletes the name of the Council on Ministries from the charge conference. We recommend concurrence, 76-0.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right. Calendar Item 547. Please vote when the light appears. It is adopted. [852 approved]

HARNISH: Calendar Item 548 regarding paragraph 249 changes the language about who can call the charge conference into the language of church conference, and simply makes that language change in that paragraph. We recommend concurrence 76-0.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, Calendar Item 548. Please vote when the light appears. It is adopted. [866 approved] Thank you very much.

HARNISH: Page 175 in the blue book, Calendar Item 461, regarding paragraph number 245. This is that portion of the connectional issues study which describes some of the function that the legislative committee feels was taken care of in the previous legislation that you've already approved. We recommend nonconcurrency by a vote of 53-24.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, Calendar Item 461 is before you. Yes, I see a card in the middle, coming to microphone 9.

CHARLOTTE ABRAM (Nebraska): Bishop I'd like to make a motion. I'd like to speak against it. This is some important language. It's language that comes and enables us to understand what is coming from the connectional issues study, and the CPT team, when they talk about the interactive organizational model or process, and I'd like to see it retained somewhere in the Discipline. It'll be a way of helping to point local churches and local church pastors towards what is coming on the horizon. One more menu opportunity as far as how a local church can organize interactively, being proactive, in making sure that the leadership team and the leadership ministries and the nurture, outreach and witness ministries and administrative ministries remain in dialogue and conversation.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, that's a speech against nonconcurrency. You may want to tell us where this is in the red book since the text we're deleting isn't there.

HARNISH: Yes, Bishop. It's on page 954 at the top of the left hand column, Petition 21643.

BISHOP CRAIG: The motion is for nonconcurrency. We've had a speech against nonconcurrency. Does anyone wish to speak for nonconcurrency? Are you for nonconcurrency? Come to microphone 7 please.

JAY BRIM (Southwest Texas): Bishop, I believe we've already amended paragraph 245. Wouldn't this overlay language that we've just adopted as a body?

HARNISH: That's the position of the legislative committee, is that although it isn't word for word what this paragraph says, that all the content of this paragraph has already been approved in Calendar Item 194.

BISHOP CRAIG: We'll let the house see how clear they are about that. We've got this calendar item before us. Yes, right here in the middle. Microphone, which way do you want to go? You want to come to 3?

KATHY AUSTIN MAHLE (Minnesota): When we added the accepting of the interactive process model in the action that we were taking before, we're really caring for all of that. I believe that the petition that we're looking at right now just lays it out more carefully.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right. We have this calendar item 461 before us. Are you ready to vote? I think you are. The committee recommends nonconcurrence. Anything further, Jim? All right. Vote when the light appears.

Thank you. You have adopted Calendar Item 461. Thank you. [764 approved]

UM Women Permissive Language

JAMES A. HARNISH (Florida): Page 482, Calendar Item 1998, you must remember that the committee must respond to every petition that is sent to it. And responding to the petition that came to us, this changes the language specifically regarding the United Methodist Women from "shall" to "may." The committee wants it to be perfectly clear that this is no lack of affirmation of the ministry and mission and importance and critical value of United Methodist Women, but the committee voted by a vote of 41 to 26 concurrence with the petition, so that we continue to be using more "mays" than we use "shalls."

BISHOP JUDITH CRAIG: Jim, let's be sure people know where we are in the other books. We've got some interest out there this time. You were doing so well cleaning house, what happened?

HARNISH: You see why saved this one.

BISHOP CRAIG: Yes, I do, where do we find this one?

HARNISH: It's on page 1416 in the white book, Calendar Item 1998.

BISHOP CRAIG: I was just about to invite you to come home with and clean my house! (laughter) All right, page 1416 in the white book. We're on Calendar Item 1998.

HARNISH: That's not harassment, is it?

BISHOP CRAIG: I hope it's not! (laughter) No, because my house isn't really that dirty, so we're OK. All right, we're on Calendar Item 1998. My, what a choice we have. Let's go all the way back in the back, in the center aisle, microphone 13, please.

BROOKE CONKLIN (Troy): Thank you. I would like to speak against. I believe we should retain the current language as in the Discipline.

United Methodist Women and its predecessor organizations have been the impetus and focus for mission for our total church through out the years. We are over one-million women strong. It is the largest women's organization in the world. We have the strength because of the members in the local units. They are the vitality behind the mission of our church and our outreach to women, children and youth. I ask for you to vote to retain the current language in the Discipline.

BISHOP CRAIG: Thank you very much. That's a speech against. Do we have a speech for concurrence? (laughter) I just dropped the cards like fury. Right there, please come to microphone 4, please.

New Paradigms for UMW

CHARLIE O. DUNDAS (Minnesota): I'm 60 years old, so I can risk it. (laughter) I just want to say that I serve as a pastor in a suburban congregation that has so many very young families and young women. And, I believe, with all my heart, that we need flexibility around organizational models for women's ministries. If we do not pass the permissive language, then I want to urge the United Methodist Women to look at some new paradigms for ministry with, to and for women in local churches. I'm going to tell you, friends, that in the church I serve, the young women who live in a totally different way, in many cases, than the model that has been in place for years, or can't relate to that model that has been in place for years, will not respond. That does not mean that they are not interested in mission. That does not mean they are not involved in the life of the church. It simply means that we need some new paradigms. I want flexibility at this point as well as several other points.

BISHOP CRAIG: Thank you very much. Now we can have a speech against. Let's go away here to the right, the second card back, the woman on the aisle. Microphone 1.

MARTHA MORRISON (Mississippi): I rise to oppose the recommendation of the committee. To make optional, the local unit of United Methodist Women will weaken the strongest mission area of our church. The local units of United Methodist Women offer the most effective, in-depth mission education program in our church. In light of the conversations around money that we had this morning, it is very important for this body to know that pledge to mission by local women exceed what this total church gives to mission through world service. That is very important. In response to what we do for young women, there has been a structure that has been made during this quadrennium that addresses the issue of young women. I urge this body to defeat the recommendation of the committee.

BISHOP CRAIG: Thank you. We can allow one more speech for the recommendation of the committee. Someone who speaks for the recommendation of the committee. Way back in the back there. Come to microphone 14.

Microphone 14, please. Are you speaking for concurrence?

MARY ANN GALLOWAY (West Ohio): Yes, Bishop. There's nothing in this statement that says we shall not have a United Methodist Women's. It says we have flexibility, we have a choice.

BISHOP CRAIG: Thank you. That's two speeches for, two against. This Calendar Item 1998 is before you, and we'll turn over here for a last moment.

JAMES HARNISH (Florida): Let me just underscore, since the bishop and I had some humor about it, but let me underscore, that the legislative committee did not enter into any evaluation or any questioning of the value and the significance of the United Methodist Women, that's number one. Number two, the committee had committed itself to a principle of flexibility in the local church, which is what led to this. Number three, to go back to the "shall," I speak on behalf of the majority, to go back to the "shall" at this point, opens a slippery slope, because next, we're going to hear from the United Methodist Men, who'll want their "shall" back. And then you'll hear from somebody else who wants their "shall" back. And so, they're totally on their commitment to allowing flexibility in the local church, they said this was where this would come. The fourth element is that if Janet Sorenson of Pottsboro, Texas, had not sent in a petition, you never would have heard about this.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, we're ready to vote. Having two speeches for and two against. Point of information? What is your point of information? I think the house is ready to vote on this, and knows its mind.

JAMES LAWSON (California-Pacific): I want to ask the question: Is the "shall" being removed from the United Methodist Men's paragraph?

UMW Mandated

BISHOP CRAIG: It never came before us. I think the house is ready to vote on this. Let's vote when the light appears on Calendar Item 1998. [yes, 407; no, 477] All right, the committee has been overturned.

HARNISH: OK, if you'll turn to page 895, I'm sorry it's 316, Calendar Item 895 on page 316. Calendar Item 895 is actually mis-titled. The content of the petition, which you'll find on page 1408 in the white book, actually has nothing to do with the rights and responsibilities of youth members of the church. It describes who has responsibility for nurturing, and for teaching, and for nurturing youth in the Christian faith in the church. The petition included the phrase, "professional staff." The committee, by a vote of 75-0, recommends concurrence with the removal of the word, "professional" from the phrase, "professional staff." It's the only change. The sense of the committee was that saying "professional staff" left out lay volunteer staff who may be involved in ministry, and that was their reason for removing the word, "professional." That was the only issue that we had with the petition.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, it's Calendar Item 895 on page 316 that's before us. Yes. Right there, microphone 8, please.

JEREMY VETTER (Nebraska): I move to amend this petition. I move to amend by inserting the following sentence at the end of paragraph 226: "It shall be the responsibility of the pastor to participate in this growth process through interaction and ministry with youth."

BISHOP CRAIG: I hear a second. All right.

Pastoral Involvement in Youth Ministry

VETTER: Can I address this?

BISHOP CRAIG: You certainly may.

VETTER: The original petition added several other categories of workers, such as diaconal ministers, Christian educators, and youth workers. I personally, and all the others I've talked to, have nothing wrong with adding these people to the list of those who have responsibility for working with youth in the church. However, as it presently reads, with the pastor as the only one listed, and I believe it is important to maintain a strong position that the pastor should be involved with youth. And I think it is of vital importance that all of the youth work not be pushed away completely from the pastors, that there be some kind of interaction, not only as a model of ordained ministry for prospective persons to be called into the ministry, but also to show that youth are an equal part of the church.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, thank you, that's an amendment by addition. Are you ready to vote on that? You understand where it is? Please vote when the light appears. [yes, 582; no, 308] All right, you've approved the amendment. Now the whole item is before you. Are you ready to vote? If you will adopt this item, please, just please vote, whatever you want to do, when the light appears. What language I've learned! (laughter) Thank you. That item is adopted. It's my understanding that Mr. Harnish has one more. The chair has passed an order of the day, hoping to finish his work. Then we're going to break in with two other items, and take a break before we come back and return to these Calendar Items. Take your additional one, Jim.

Pastor-Parish Relations Committee

HARNISH: Thank you, Bishop. Page 259, Calendar Item 790. It's found in the white book, on page 1410 in the lower right hand corner. The petition requested that we change in the Discipline from "pastor-parish relations committee," to "staff-parish relations committee" in all places that the committee is named. Our legislative committee felt that we should stay with the language of "pastor-parish relations committee." One, because we have a huge number of our churches for whom the pastor is about all the staff it has; and that the Discipline already provides the option for the church to call the committee the "staff-parish relations committee" any time that it wants to. So, that's what our recommendation was based upon. We recommend nonconcurrency by a vote of 66-11.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right. Calendar Item 790 is before you. Please vote when the light appears. [817 approved] You've agreed with nonconcurrency. Thank you very much for your good work.

Now friends, I'm going to turn to the secretary. She has some introductions to make, a couple announcements, and do you want to read this other item at this point, Carolyn? Do you want to read this item, also? We're just going to let you do several things, Carolyn.

General Conference Secretary's Staff Introduced

CAROLYN MARSHALL: You have all been most generous with your support of the work that has been done by the secretary's office, particularly here, at this General Conference, and prior to it. This time, I would like to ask those persons who are on the secretarial staff to please stand and come here in front of you. (applause) Thank you for your affirmation. You may go ahead and sit down, but I would also like to share their names with you, because you need to know them as individuals. These are the people who have really done the work. I may sit here, but these are the people who have really made it go, and for that, we're deeply, deeply grateful. I'm going to have to do a little turning around, and I hope the microphone will cooperate with that. On your immediate left is Preston Price.

BISHOP CRAIG: Carolyn, we're not going to hear you that way. Why don't you say their names, and let them step forward?

MARSHALL: All right.

BISHOP CRAIG: Have you got a list in front of you?

MARSHALL: No, I don't. Preston, David Wilson, John Ross Thompson, Erodio Valverde, and Odell Thompson, the person to whom you all sent all those thousands of petitions (applause).

I want to share one particular word about Odell with you. You probably saw her name and her family listed on your prayer list several days while we've been here. Some of you are aware that her daughter-in-law had a heart attack and died on the Saturday before General Conference started. She felt a deep commitment to be here, not only as a delegate from Wisconsin, but as a part of this staff and the commitment she had made to be the petition secretary, and to fulfill those responsibilities. So with a heavy heart and responsibility at home, she came on Sunday, and was here through Tuesday evening, in order to get us started to meet with the Committee on Reference and to get things going; then returned to Beloit for the funeral, and was back here the next morning after that. And so we share with Odell at this time, and are grateful to her for the commitment that she has made to her church. (applause)

I could really say something similar about all the rest of these people, but that particular one, I wanted to share. Continuing on, we have Lindy Lorescoe, Millie Hilts, Dorothy Caldwell, Arlie Brawn, Susan Brumbaugh, Randall Partin, Gere Reist, and John Brawn, the brain and the effort behind the computerization, which has been such a benefit to us all. Thank you very much. (applause)

In addition, there have been two volunteers who are not here to be introduced at this time, but whom, if you know them, should be recognized. Bea Cook had to return because of a local church and a conference responsibility, and we are grateful to her. She has given countless hours. And then also to Mim Porterfield from South Indiana. (applause)

At this time, which will give me time to get back over there to make some announcements, we turn to Roger Kruse who will introduce the business manager's staff.

General Conference Business Manager's Staff Introduced

ROGER F. KRUSE (Conference Business Manager): Thank you, bishop and members of the General Conference. As Carolyn indicated, there are literally dozens of people who make this conference work, not only these two weeks, but for several of them, many, many months in preparation.

Let me introduce, first, the chairs of our page and marshall team. They've led a cadre of approximately 150 volunteers who have spent many long hours delivering messages, packages, making sure there was water, keeping the appropriate people off the floor: Laura and Mark Wharf. (applause)

Our music at this General Conference, I think, has been second to none. And the persons responsible for that, first, our two co-directors of music, Cynthia Wilson-Felder, (applause) and the Rev. S.T. Kimbrough, Jr. (applause) and they have been assisted by Johnetta Johnson-Page who has had to leave, who was our pianist, and two very, very fine organists: Austin Lovelace and Kathleen Forsburg (applause). When I addressed you more than ten days ago, I indicated that we were translating into eight languages. That has changed and we are now translating into nine. We've added Indonesian this week. That translation and interpretation service is made possible by a cadre of 44 highly qualified individuals who do the actual interpretation and three technicians. And they have been very ably lead throughout this entire General Conference by a colleague whom I'm proud to count as friend, Nilda Ferrari. (applause) Carrying out a production such as General Conference in terms as lights, sound, the set-up, voting booth, keeping the TV monitors running...is not an easy task to do, and it has been ably handled for us throughout this General Conference by Jay Voorhees from UMCOM. He's here as a private contractor with us. (applause) And then, Bishop, last, but certainly not least, are three members of the staff of the General Council on Finance and Administration. Two of whom work for me full time, and one who is on loan. All of you have had contact with these individuals in one way or another, and let me tell you they have made my life a lot easier—Ronna Levy-Tritz, Steve Hellman, and Russell Elenz. (applause)

BISHOP CRAIG: Thank you very much. Thank you so much to all of you. Now Carolyn, you have some announcements?

Judicial Council Decision on Homosexual Union Paragraph

CAROLYN MARSHALL: During the plenary last evening, there was referral made to the Judicial Council, and I share with you their report. "We have received the referral raising the question: Does the statement ceremonies that celebrate homosexual union shall not be conducted by our ministers and shall not be conducted in our churches belong in paragraph 71C? Paragraph 2616 provides that the General Conference may petition the Judicial Council regarding constitutionality, meaning, application or affect of proposed legislation. This is a legislative placement decision. We do not have jurisdiction." April 26, 1996. Signed by Tom Matheny, President and Wayne Coffin, Secretary of the Judicial Council.

One other announcement. Perhaps you take confession, too. In as much as we were coming to the end of General Conference, and this announcement had been made last week, the secretary chose to ignore one that came up yesterday that would remind those of you who are not delegates to allow during our refreshment break, for delegates to get to the tables and refreshments first. But inasmuch as it has surfaced several times again, today, even for this last coffee break, refreshment break, we bring to your attention that if at all possible, please if you are a visitor, observer, would you let those persons who are here as delegates partake first in order that we may all be back to business. Thank you so much.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, thank you. Now, house you have done very well, let's take a 15 minute break. That means that in ten minutes you are on your way back to your seats. Thank you very much.

[song]

All right. Thank you. Thank you. All right friends, if you'll find your seats. That's a grand duet, isn't it? No, I didn't request the content of that song. But that's a grand duet. Now if you'll come to your seats, I'd like to tell you where we're going. The chair would like the privilege of telling you where we're going before we interrupt the flow. The house will come to order.

Let the chair suggest what we hope to accomplish between now and an hour and ten minutes from now when I'm going to sing "Free at Last"

(laughter and applause). Now this is fun. Thank you so much for being a good house. If you are coming to your seat, if you can come, if you can walk and not talk, then the chair will talk. Isn't that silly language, "the chair will talk." First, I want to acknowledge that we know there is a winged bird flying around in here. That is a real bird with wings. I'm assured that it is appropriately credentialed. Don't worry about it. (laughter). If it's within the bar, it's OK. Worry about other things.

Now here are the things we need to do. We've discovered that we have another set of nominations that have never been voted upon. So I want to turn first, when we begin, back to the General Conference secretary, who will help us with some nominations and elections. Then we want to return to the local church legislation. If we can move through a whole series of cleaning up items much like the series we've just finished, if we can move with some dispatch through those, they really are the actions that are necessary in order to have responded to petitions, to bring everything into conformance with the major piece that we've already done. We've already pretty well organized the local church. Isn't that marvelous? That's a wonder. And we need to kind of put some other things on the shelf and close a couple of drawers, and then we'll be in order.

Then we would hope to have time to go on to half a dozen such items from Discipleship and then turn to a few moments with the Central Conferences report. Now we can do all that if we'll just pay attention and move as well as we've been doing all day. So with that in mind, I want to turn to the General Conference secretary. Carolyn, if you will help us.

CAROLYN MARSHALL: We'd ask that you would open your blue DCA's to page 23. That would be the second 23 in that compilation, the one for April 17th.

Election of Clergy & Laity to Board's and Agencies

As you are moving to it, I would suggest that you look at those nominations which are listed there on page 23, and then the first column of page 24, just beyond the half-way point. Those are the clergy and lay person delegations to general boards and agencies as was contained in the Discipline before we arrived at General Conference. Those are nominations which come from the Council of Bishops and also from the colleges as had been specified in our Book of Discipline. While we have been here, we have made changes to that Book of Discipline. However, it has not been possible for adjustments to be made to this time. And so, therefore, we bring to the body a recommendation. And therefore, I move that we elect those persons so listed here, with the provision that the Council of Bishops make adjustments, be permitted to make adjustments, as necessary in order to conform to the new structure. Bishop, I so move.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, thank you, Carolyn. Now, in essence what's happened is that we're at Friday afternoon, and the opportunity to reconvene the Nominating Committee of the Council of Bishops and get material back in your hands is well nigh physically impossible. Yet we need to elect these persons and have some flexibility. I think you understand the situation in which we find ourselves. We're on pages 23 and 24 of the blue book, the items on page 23, and the first two-thirds of the left hand column on 24. There are some persons elected to some general agencies by the General Conference. We've nominated to an old structure. Since we've been here, we have been transformed. And then, the motion is to elect these persons with permission for the Council of Bishops to make adjustments as necessary to conform to the new structure. All right? I hear a question. Who's asking a question? Over here, I'm sorry. Clear over here. That happens when you are deaf in one ear, got a good hearing aid that lets you hear on that side, but you don't know where the side is. (laughter) Yes, microphone 5.

JIM HOLSINGER (Kentucky): Bishop, I'd like to just simply point out that we previously, on page 652, 653, elected the members to the General Commission on Archives and History, and we may not want to go past down to General Board of Pension and Health Benefits.

BISHOP CRAIG: Is that true, Carolyn?

MARSHALL: Yeah, I hope we've got them all. I hope so.

HOLSINGER: Midway down on the right-hand column of page 653, General Commission of Archives and History is listed there, and that represents the new size and structure of that agency.

BISHOP CRAIG: We think you're correct. Thank you very much, Jim. So we're voting for page 23 and the first two items on the top of page 24, Church and Society, Pension and Health Benefits, with that proviso as the General Conference secretary has said for us. All right. Please cast your vote when the light appears. [785 approved] Thank you. You have elected those persons and given the council permission to make necessary adjustments. Thank you so much. Let's return, then, to local church legislation. Who's up next?

Permissive Language for Work Areas

TERRY L. CLARK (Central Illinois): If you would to turn in your blue DCA, Volume 3, to page 313. We're going to be dealing with four petitions here that the vote of the committee was, on three of them, in favor of a previous petition which I pointed out to you in the first presentation. These were two petitions on page 455. They were Calendar Item 769 and 774. You approved those primary petitions on the Consent Calendar 805. So these petitions are coming, three of these, in preference to those petitions you have gathered. We're looking again at page 313, Calendar Item 862. Your primary reference is Volume 1; that's the red DCA, page 960. We're looking at Petition 20353, which deals with paragraph 262. This was with the elimination of the local church work area chairpersons. The vote of the committee was concurrence, 70, zero, zero in favor of the Petition 20352 that you approved on the Consent Calendar.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, thank you. Now, recognizing that we're dealing with the clean-up around the edges of the major legislation, we're on Calendar Item 862 on page 313. It is before us. Please vote when the light appears. [822 approved] The bird and the chair is declared confirmed. Not the bird in the chair, the bird and the chair. (laughter) Next item.

TERRY CLARK: Looking now, if you would turn to page 259. Again we're in volume 3, blue cover of DCA. On that page we're looking at Calendar Item 785, which is in the left-hand column, halfway down. The petition comes from the red DCA, Volume 1. We're looking at Petition 20672 dealing with paragraph 264. The vote of the committee was concurrence, 41, 33, 3. This petition, however, retains—if you will look at the red DCA—one is the church school, one also is the youth council, and then also, United Methodist Women.

It is adopted. Thank you. [813 approved]

TERRY L. CLARK (Central Illinois): We're looking, if you would, at page 316 in your blue DCA, Volume 3. And we're looking at Calendar Item 890. The primary reference is in your red DCA, Volume 1. It's Petition 20357. This is to eliminate the local church work area commissions. The vote of the committee was concurrence 61, zero, zero. Again in favor of the previous Petition, 20352, that you approved on the Consent Calendar.

BISHOP CRAIG: Very well, Calendar Item 890, page 316. Please vote when the light appears. It is adopted. [845 approved]

CLARK: Then, looking at page 316, again the same page, we're looking at 891 now. The primary reference is on page 962 of Volume 1, the red DCA. We're looking at Petition 20358 in reference to paragraph 268. This is to eliminate the local church task groups. The vote of the committee was concurrence, 62, zero, zero, in favor of the previous Petition 20352 that was on the Consent Calendar.

BISHOP CRAIG: Very well. We have Calendar Item 891 before us. Please vote when the light appears. You have concurred. [834 approved]

CLARK: And then if you would please turn to page 455 again in your blue DCA, Volume 3, we're looking at Calendar Item 1772, that's the middle column, the third item down, 1772. Your primary reference is Volume 2 of the DCA, that's the white cover, Volume 2, page 1417. We're dealing with Petition 22133. And if you'll look at that, you will see that the committee voted concurrence 64, zero to 3. And as you can see there in the wording is that we're moving to the chairperson of the Committee on Nominations and Personnel being a co-chairperson. That is the lay person being elected from among the membership of the Committee on Nominations and Personnel and being the co-chair of that committee with the pastor.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, 1772 is before you. Well now, which one of you really wants to speak. All right, the lay man in red. Microphone 13, please.

Chair and Vice Chair of Nominating Committee

RUTH PALMER (Texas): I would like to substitute the following words to those presently stated in paragraph 270.1. After "the pastor shall be the chair person," I would like to add these words, "A lay person elected by the Committee on Nominations and Personnel shall serve as the vice chair person of the committee." If I have a second to that amendment, then we'll speak to it.

BISHOP CRAIG: I see support, you may speak.

PALMER: I will yield to the gentleman behind me, my colleague, Rev. Caldwell.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right.

KIRBYJON CALDWELL (Texas): Bishop, if it is OK with you, we have a tag team match here today.

BISHOP CRAIG: That's quite all right. It's refreshing. Go ahead.

CALDWELL: We would like to urge the house to please support this amendment, primarily for three reasons. Number one, the nominations committee is the only committee that the pastor can chair, so in the spirit of a blessed balance, we think this would be healthy for the local church. Second, its not unusual for the pastor to have, shall we say, access to confidential information, which others may not be aware of, which may impact the election process of the nominations committee. Third, the Lord God Almighty and the bishop and the cabinet of the Texas conference have blessed me to pastor a two-point charge during the past 14 years, and during that 14 year period I've been able to pastor a small church, a medium church, two large churches; and throughout all of those evolutionary trends, one thing has remained constant, and that is, there's always a need for a pastor with vision, and there is always the need to have lay persons who are involved, equipped, and empowered to bring that vision to reality. We believe that having the pastor as chairperson, a lay person as vice chairperson can best implement that vision. Furthermore, it helps to wipe out internal civil wars which may erupt in some churches. Thank you.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right. The chair would like permission to treat this as an amendment to paragraph 270 rather than a substitute for what is before us so that we cannot get caught in substitute parliamentary procedure. Is the house amenable to that? We'll treat it as an amendment. Any objection? All right, the amendment before us would be to amend paragraph 270 to allow for the election of a lay person to serve as vice chair. I see somebody over here, yes. Microphone 4. On the amendment.

EARL RENSHAW (Southern Illinois): I would like to speak to this issue. As a pastor, I wish to live out the stance of partnership in mission and ministry with the laity of the churches I pastor. I am not afraid to share the chair with the laity. It's coming. Pastors will not permanently hold the chair of the Committee on Nominations and Personnel, its time has come, we are in ministry together. The parallel may not be perfect, but here is my witness. During my years as a full member of the Southern Illinois Conference, I've been on the conference nominating committee three quadrennia, one as chair, two as member. Frankly, I was able to influence the direction of the conference more when I was not in the chair. As co-chair of the local church committee, my philosophy of leadership will be to step out of the chair position on occasion to enable my perceptions to be better heard. We clergy don't chair other committees. Is our influence diminished by this fact? Why do we have to chair this committee? It's a matter of partnership. I support the committee.

BISHOP CRAIG: OK. That's a speech against the amendment which would allow for the election of a lay person as vice chairman of the nominating committee. Does someone wish to speak for the amendment? Yes, back here, are you for the amendment?

Nominating Committee and Spiritual Gifts

BRIAN BAUKNIGHT (Western Pennsylvania): One of my deepest convictions is that a church's strength is built on the spiritual gifts that are found within its people. And I believe that I could defend biblically and theologically the fact that the pastor or pastors of a congregation are the overseers of those spiritual gifts. So I would support the amendment. I would have no problem with a lay person as a vice chairperson of the committee, but I think in this particular office in the life of the church, the pastor in charge, as the overseer of the spiritual gifts, should be the chair of the committee. And I strongly support the amendment.

BISHOP CRAIG: Thank you very much. We can have one more speech against the amendment. Are you against the amendment? Yes sir. The gentlemen back there that's coming to microphone 6. I'm sorry, sir. He was behind you. Yes.

UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER: Yes.

BISHOP CRAIG: Microphone six.

LELLAND P. MCKEOWN: I helped all through the original bill that was before the committee. I speak against the amendment because I would like to see us return to the original legislation that's on page 1417 of the Volume 2. I feel like this answers the spirit of what we were trying to do, and I don't think we've had a chance to do that during this conference. I'm sorry I didn't get to attend the legislative committee when this was deleted. May I speak to it or should I just wait until this is either voted up or down?

BISHOP CRAIG: We need to deal with the amendment and see what we've got before us then, sir.

MCKEOWN: Well, I would like, I will speak against the amendment because I'd like to see us come back to the original legislation as it was written.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, thank you. Now, we've had two speeches for and two against on the amendment, which would in effect amend paragraph 270 to allow for the election of a lay person as vice chair of the nominations of personnel committee. By our rules, we are ready to vote on the amendment. Please vote when the light appears. The amendment is adopted. [Results: yes, 469; no, 429] That makes it the main motion now. Just a sec, let the chair make sure she says the right thing here. Hold on. It now becomes the main motion for 1772 that the nominating and personnel committee will have a lay person elected as vice chair. Do you understand where we are? That is now the substance of 1772. Are we clear? Calendar Item 1772. Yes? Back there. I see a card.

GARNETT M. WILDER (North Georgia): I would like to have a response from the chair. If this motion is defeated, does this leave the Discipline as is?

BISHOP CRAIG: It's chair's judgment, yes.

WILDER: I would like to speak against this motion.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right.

Nominating Committee and Control

WILDER: For 20 years, I have been working with local pastors in the Course of Study School. One part of the curriculum of the Course of Study School in which I work is a discussion group and case study situation where lay pastors, after five years in the Course of Study, bring their situations for discussion in the group. One of the things lay pastors observe in the smaller churches is that quite often there is a small cluster of people who control everything. No one on the nominating committee is going to change that leadership. The only one who can do so is the pastor, who must be willing to pay the price of being moved that year. (laughter) I do believe that leaving the Discipline as it is, keeping in mind that two-thirds of our Methodist churches, United Methodist churches, have fewer than 200 members; that many, if not most of these churches have situations where long-term office-holders need to be encouraged, one way or the other, to give up that and the development—to enable the development of a broader range of leadership. I believe that to leave the pastor as chairperson of the nominating committee will help to effectuate this in courageous moments.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, thank you. We're on Calendar Item 1772, which you have amended. That is a speech against. Does someone wish to speak for the amended Calendar Item 1772? Over here, microphone 1. Are you for?

ROBERT B. BRANDT (Northern New Jersey): I would speak in favor of the amended petition in the spirit that it at least moves us toward a partnership arrangement between pastor and lay people in the local church. Laity are in the church long before and many times long after a pastor comes into our presence. I am concerned when I hear someone say that the pastors are the, and I'm not sure what the exact words were, but those who oversee the spiritual gifts in a local church. As an individual who's been leading workshops in rediscovering spiritual gifts, I think each one of us have a responsibility in the spiritual gifts, and laity just as well as clergy, in a partnership relationship, can bring to the fore the best leadership that's needed in the local church. So I would urge us all to take a step toward partnership, rather than a step back, away from partnership, and vote in favor of this petition.

BISHOP CRAIG: Thank you. We've had a speech for, a speech against. Who is against? Point of clarification, microphone 9.

ROBERT D. PIERSON (Oklahoma): Because of the nature of the first speech a moment ago, I'd like the motion read again because I believe that it leaves the pastor as chair and the lay person elected as vice chair, and so I'd like that clarified.

BISHOP CRAIG: That's correct. What we have before us is the paragraph now in the Discipline that provides for the pastor to be the chair, with a new provision for the election from among the membership of a lay person as vice chair. That is the substance of Calendar Item 1772. I need someone to speak against. Yes.

HENRY RODDY (Central Texas): I'm not sure I'm speaking against, but I think what we've done is superfluous because the pastor is on the committee and no more than 10 lay people. If the pastor is chairperson, who is left to be vice chair except lay people? (laughter)

BISHOP CRAIG: (laughter) All right, are you ready to hear from the committee and vote on the new 1772? I think you're ready to hear from the committee. You have a question? All right.

PORTER WOMELDORFF (Central Illinois): The previous speaker made the statement that the pastor is on the committee. This may well be, but I want to know what we did with all the pastor's memberships in committees. I believe that we defeated the restoration of that language, and I'm not sure that the pastors are on any committee.

BISHOP CRAIG: The chair understands that before us is the paragraph that provides for the pastor to be on, and chair of the Nominating and Personnel Committee. The body has amended that to allow for a vice chair who is lay. That's what we're voting on. Does the committee wish to speak?

TERRY CLARK: Yes. Our intent was to move what we would see as a new partnership. One that in many ways has been there for years, but has some veterans on the committee who have been at their fifth and sixth General Conference have pointed out, this is something that has been lively debate every General Conference. As much as we would have liked to have seen you affirm the co-chair, and as much as the brother has pointed out who that leaves on the committee besides the pastor, the fact is that in many churches there is no designation of a vice chair. And so as a compromise in true United Methodist fashion, we would certainly give support. And hope that you will support this amendment that has now become the main motion to carry us further than where we presently are.

Nominating Committee Vice Chair Approved

BISHOP CRAIG: All right. We're ready to vote on Calendar Item 1772 as you have amended it. Please vote when the light appears. [750 approved] You have adopted it. All right, thank you very much. That is all. Thank you very much for your leadership. Janice?

JANICE RIGGLE K. HUIE (Southwest Texas): Bishop Craig, the remaining six calendar items will be presented by our vice-chair, Shirley Parris.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, Shirley. Welcome.

Facilities for Persons with Disabilities

SHIRLEY PARRIS (New York): Thank you, Bishop. If you will turn in your blue DCA to page 259, we will be dealing with Calendar Item 786, which is found in your white DCA. The petition, itself, on page 1405, and it's Petition 22105. It is an amendment to the petition as you see there. The amendment is given to extend and strengthen the definition of inclusiveness under the paragraph in the Discipline that describes the marks of inclusiveness in the church. And the amendment, Bishop Craig, is on page 259 in 786. We're adding, "a further mark of inclusiveness is setting of church activities in facilities accessible to persons with disabilities."

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, then. Calendar Item 786 is before us with the amendment as you see it on page 259. Please vote when the light appears. [829 approved] You have concurred. Thank you.

Other than Full Membership Status

PARRIS: The next item is still on page 259, Item 788, and it's found in your white book 1421; the original petition, on page 1421, Petition 22682. And we voted nonconcurrence on this because we feel the Discipline adequately provides for membership of other than full members in any local church. We did not see the need for this petition.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right. Calendar Item 788.

PARRIS: No, 787.

BISHOP CRAIG: I'm sorry, 787. Excuse me. Pardon me, 787, page 259. Yes, sir? You wishing to speak to this? Go to microphone 8.

JAMES GENTRY (South Indiana): Bishop Craig, the title should be "Consecration," not "Conversation."

BISHOP CRAIG: Jim, I think we are 787. We're on 787. I was confused, too. It's good to be in your company in confusion, Jim. That's all right. Calendar Item 787, Seasonal Local United Methodist Church Trustees. All right, please vote when the light appears. [822 approved] You have concurred with nonconcurrence. Thank you.

Dedication of Local Church Buildings

PARRIS: The next item is number 788, also on page 259, and that is on Conservation and Dedication of Local Church Buildings. And the committee recommends nonconcurrence. The petition may be found in your red DCA, page 966, and it is Petition 21091. The petition was asking to add a sentence at the end of paragraph 2545 about inviting the participation of clergy and lay representation from neighboring congregations. The legislative committee felt that this is a normal courtesy which does not need to be legislated, and therefore we voted nonconcurrence with the petition.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right. Now we're on 788 on page 259 with a recommendation of nonconcurrence. Please vote when the light appears. [861 approved] You have agreed with the committee. Thank you.

Church Universal

PARRIS: Still on page 259, in your blue DCA Calendar Item 789. The petition may be found on page 946 in your red DCA. And it is Petition 21084. We voted concurrence with this. It is adding the words "church universal," a member of the church universal which ties in with a language in our current constitution, division 1, part 4. We voted concurrence and ask your support.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right. Calendar Item 789, page 259. Please vote when the light appears. You have concurred. Thank you.

Membership of Building Committee

PARRIS: Now if you will turn to page 389 in your blue DCA. Page number 389, it's Calendar Item 1696. It refers to Petition 22149, which is on page 1426 in your white DCA. And the petition refers to the voting of the membership of the building committee. And it would change it from a simple majority to a two-thirds majority. The legislative committee felt that a majority vote as stated in the current Discipline is adequate, because this vote still needs charge conference concurrence. And therefore, we voted nonconcurrence with the petition.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, Item 1696 on page 389. The recommendation is nonconcurrence. Please vote when the light appears. You have agreed with nonconcurrence. Thank you.

Enabling Legislation for Basic Salary Plan

PARRIS: And finally, still on that page, Calendar Item 1697, Enabling Legislation For the Basic Salary Plan Option. It refers to Petition 22117 on page 1412 in your white DCA. And all the legislative committee did was change "basic salary plan" to "shared salary plan" in keeping with other languages, which is more commonly used now. We voted concurrence with the petition with that amendment, and we ask your support.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, 1697, page 389. Yes? I see a card back there. Microphone 13, please. Number 13, please.

SCOTT JONES (North Texas): Shirley, was it not the case that in a previous action we declined to put the basic salary plan someplace else. We were told in committee this was dependent upon another action, and I don't remember what the conference did.

PARRIS: OK, my records show, Scott, that it was an amendment that we had passed. I show no reference to another petition, but just let me check. Bishop, I've just been told that last night the petition that was suggesting a shared salary plan was rejected, so this is really a moot point.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right. You're saying then, that this should...we should simply ignore this one because we have already voted on it last night?

PARRIS: That's correct.

BISHOP CRAIG: Thank you very much. The house agree? Thank you.

PARRIS: I'll vote nonconcurrence with the legislative committee, which ever one is legal. Thank you, Bishop. That concludes the presentation.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, Janice.

HUIE: Bishop Craig, the legislative Committee on the Local Church, after it had spent more than two hours deliberating all the petitions, which had come to it regarding apportionments, and changes or potential changes in how the apportionments and the local church would be related to each other, nonconcurred on all those petitions. But in the discussion, they prepared a statement which was voted unanimously by the committee, which they asked me to read to the General Conference. With your permission, I shall read, it's a simple statement to be read, on behalf of the Local Church Committee, our sense of regarding those matters.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right.

Statement of Support for Local Church

HUIE: From the Local Church Committee: We have heard the passionate call of local churches throughout our denomination for relief from apportionments, which many of them perceive as a heavy burden. We believe that our local churches are deeply committed to the United Methodist connection system, and do not seek to break this inheritance and covenant. But we also believe that many of our local churches are struggling with the reality of the economic situation to which none of us is a stranger. We express our profound appreciation to the local churches for their faithfulness. The legislative Committee on Local Church, after consideration of many petitions, accepts no new proposals on local church apportionments to the 1996 General Conference. In true United Methodist tradition, we considered calling for another task force. But in true United Methodist reason, we didn't.

However, we would like to go on record reporting our encounter with much local church frustration around the following unresolved tensions. The need for annual conferences and general agencies to be sensitive to the financial demands they place on the local churches.

Two, the need for annual conferences and general agencies to be more accountable to local churches.

Three, the need for local churches to be given adequate support in interpreting and personalizing the causes of our church.

And four, the need for local churches to have greater voice and ownership in the mission work of the church.

We call on The United Methodist Church to enter into a period of prayer, dialogue, and action around these issues in the next quadrennium. We are unwilling to cast aside our covenant of connectional mission work. However, we do believe that it is time to translate our mission giving process into new terms for a new day and time. May God grant us the wisdom to discover the way forward. That concludes our statement and with your permission I'd like to introduce the other members of the committee.

BISHOP CRAIG: Go ahead.

HUIE: The secretary of the legislative committee, Herchel Sheets from North Georgia; Jean Dowell, seated out here, she chaired sub-committee number one, a lay woman from Minnesota, thank you Jean; Mary Brown Oliver, if you'd please stand, she chaired sub-committee number two, clergywoman (Baltimore-Washington). Thank you very much. This concludes our report. (applause)

BISHOP CRAIG: Thank you very much for your good work. All right, the chair would like to go to one item from Discipleship Legislative Committee and then come to the Central Conference Commission. Is it a question? All right, microphone 3 please.

KATHI AUSTIN MAHLE (Minnesota): I would like to move referral of Janice Riggle Huie's statement to the CPT for consideration. The issues that the Local Church Legislative Committee dealt with are issues that we heard very clearly in the Connectional Issues Study.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, it's a motion to refer. Help us with acronym CPT is, I haven't learned it yet.

MAHLE: Connectional Process Team.

BISHOP CRAIG: Connectional Process Team, yes, a new one for us. The motion is to refer this last statement we've heard there for their consideration in that. I heard support, yes, on microphone 9.

TRACY MERRICK (Western Pennsylvania) In one of the reports we adopted this morning, it was mentioned that GCFA is establishing a task force to study this exact matter, and I move that we refer this to GCFA.

BISHOP CRAIG: We have a motion for referral to the CPTs. Are you wishing to amend?

MERRICK: That's correct.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right. Is there support for the amendment to refer to GCFA? I hear support. Now what we have is an amendment to say, "Let's refer this to GCFA." Kathi, did you hear that speech? Maybe we...just better ask the house. I was just going to ask you if you thought it was a better place there. Microphone 3.

MAHLE: I would change my motion for referral to both GCFA and to the Connectional Process Team.

BISHOP CRAIG: Let me ask the maker of the amendment. Would you accept both? All right, we got both people saying that now the motion is a referral to GCFA and the Connectional Process Team. House clear? Please vote when the line appears. You've referred that. All right, yes.

HUIE: Bishop, I've made a significant error of omission. I did not introduce Robert Rosas (Pacific Northwest), chair of subcommittee number 5 from which you had no calendar items to deal with on this floor. And I want to ask him if he would please stand, and I apologize for leaving him out of the list.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, thank you very much. We thank the legislative committee for their work (applause). Now the chair would really like to move on. The chair wants to move. You're going to resist. Microphone 1. (laughter) What the chair wishes to do, following this, is to take us to one item from Discipleship, then come to the Commission on Central Conferences.

PORTER WOMELDORFF (Central Illinois): Bishop, I would like an interpretation from you. In Calendar Item 194, we refused, or we declined to reestablish the deleted language regarding the chief administrative officer. However, we did not discuss at that same statement, is the statement that establishes the pastor as an ex-officio member of many local church organizations. In my hasty survey, I cannot find any place else that we do that. And so my question to you, Bishop Craig, is have we disenfranchised the local pastor and excluded him or her from many meetings within the church?

BISHOP CRAIG: Janice, are you still within the sound of my voice? Janice, help. Here she comes. Look at this. At 4:00, 4:40 on Friday afternoon, the woman can still run. It's incredible. (laughter)

Janice, did you hear the question? OK. Can you help us.

JANICE HUIE: I think, Porter, we'll have to research that carefully. It is certainly, as you know, not the intention of the committee to disenfranchise the pastor. We will simply have to research that carefully. I can't refer immediately to the place where that would be cared for.

BISHOP CRAIG: Can you be patient with it, Porter? Thank you very much. All right, let's turn to Discipleship, Paul Ervin Jr. Paul, are you ready?

PAUL ERVIN JR.: Bishop, the one item we will take up is Calendar Item 1988 on page 478 of the blue book. This has a minority report, Bishop, which would really be treated better as an amendment, and the representative from the minority report is here to confirm that. But Duane Sarazin from the Minnesota Conference will present it.

Doctrinal Standards and Theological Task

DUANE E. SARAZIN (Minnesota): Our legislative subcommittee on doctrinal matters within legislative committee three on Discipleship had literally dozens and dozens of petitions, which came before us reflecting the intense interest in commitment to being faithful to "Our Doctrinal Standards and Theological Task." This is a petition which our legislative committee believes has merit as it is amended. It's on page 478 of the blue book, number 1988, third column in the bottom. There is a minority report reflected on page 479, but in the interest of conciliation and going on towards perfection, we have continued to speak one with the other. And so I'm prepared, Bishop, to lift the amendments which would be made to the majority report beginning on the bottom of page 478, and then allow Phil Wogaman to step forward, who headed the team that put together the minority report, to second it so that it can be open for discussion. Does that seem agreeable to you, Bishop?

BISHOP CRAIG: All right. So you are in effect moving the minority report?

SARAZIN: I would be moving the majority report with amendments.

BISHOP CRAIG: With amendments.

SARAZIN: Yes.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, that's fine.

SARAZIN: OK. So beginning at the bottom of page 478. The first paragraph would have several deletions. Beginning with the first line, you would strike the word, "of"; second line, you would strike the word "stand"; and then, in the third line you would begin striking the words, "these standards," and continue striking the entire rest of the paragraph. And then there would be insertions beginning with the first line. It would read: "The Doctrinal Standards and Our Theological Task found in The Book of Discipline, paragraph 65-68, places United Methodism in the broad stream of apostolic Christianity." I'll repeat how that paragraph should read: "The Doctrinal Standards and Our Theological Task found in The Book of Discipline, paragraph 65-68, places United Methodism in the broad stream of apostolic Christianity."

Then on page 479, dropping down to the fourth paragraph which begins, "Episcopal leaders are given responsibility to guard" and so forth, just beginning with an editorial correction, it should read paragraph 514.2 rather than 512.2 in the Discipline. And then, in that same paragraph, substitute the following sentence for the last sentence: "Such oversight includes providing leadership to the church in doctrinal matters." I'll repeat that: "Such oversight includes providing leadership to the church in doctrinal matters."

And then, dropping down to the bottom part of that column, in item number one, after the "Therefore, be it resolved," there is a one in the second line. After the word, "standards" would be the addition, "and our theological tasks." In the third line of that same paragraph, strike the word, "practice," and insert the word "observance." And then at the top of the second column on that page, we would change, "we encourage" to "we direct the secretary." Those then, would be the amendments to the majority report as agreed upon by the leader of the group which put together a fine minority report. And if there's understanding about these amendments, then I would like to call upon Phil Wogaman to step forward and make the second. Bishop.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, let's hear from Mr. Wogaman.

PHILIP J. WOGAMAN: Thank you, Bishop and fellow delegates. I wish to second the motion that has been made, and if I could say a word about that.

BISHOP CRAIG: You may.

PHILIP J. WOGAMAN: In the spirit of a prayer which appears on the walls of our church kitchen, which is as follows: "Dear Lord, when I am wrong help me be willing to change. And when I am right, make me easy to live with." We want to be easy to live with and to acknowledge a useful compromise to save the body's time. The concern of the minority in this group was not to replace the doctrinal standards or to show any disrespect for them. We join in a solid commitment to our doctrinal standards. The issue with us was how the doctrinal standards would be used. And therefore, we felt it very important to maintain the balance between the statement of doctrinal standards which are quite large and vast in our Book of Discipline and the statement, "Our Theological Task," which encompasses the quadrilateral and a way of using those doctrinal standards. We have arrived with an agreement with the majority, which preserves both of those interests, and therefore, we feel it unnecessary to maintain the language of the paragraph immediately before the "therefores," which was the major statement of our committee. And thus, Bishop, we are prepared to go along with that. If there is no objection from any of those who signed on to this within our group in the minority.

BISHOP CRAIG: Is there objection from anyone who is the signer of the minority report? All right.

SARAZIN: Are the amendments before us? I would like to speak before we would vote on the final motion.

BISHOP CRAIG: You have put the amendments before us as a whole.

SARAZIN: That's right.

BISHOP CRAIG: And once we have dealt with the amendments, we'll come back to the amended report. It's complicated, and he read it slowly and carefully. Let the chair ask, do you have a sense of what the amendments are?

Are you ready? I see a card way back at the back. Yes sir. Microphone 13.

JOHN "JACK" ALBRIGHT (Texas): I'm a signer on the minority report. And I concur with the amendments and will support this on the basis that it is not that anyone on the minority report was trying to negate doctrinal standards, but that we were seeking to place doctrinal standards in the context of having some form of understanding their place.

There was a time when we had very strong doctrinal standards. And those doctrinal standards gave us a clear sense of identity. And out of that community there came an individual that did challenge some of those doctrinal standards, by healing on the Sabbath, and feeding on the Sabbath, and touching lepers. And that individual was charged and convicted.

So I hope that we will learn from that, that we support the doctrinal standards, but that we also know the one that we are behind and who we follow, who is the one that leads us into the continuous, mysterious struggle of how we faithfully practice our beliefs. So I will support the changes that have taken place, and support this petition with its amendments.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, thank you. We are on the amendments. I saw a card back here. Microphone 9, please. That was a speech for.

JEFFREY GREENWAY (Western Pennsylvania): Bishop, I'd like to speak in favor of this as well.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right.

GREENWAY: I've been a member of this legislative committee and a supporter of the majority opinion throughout. This is one of the several resolutions that was sent to us from individuals and local churches, concerning doctrinal integrity. Several of us would say that we have no issues here, but others in The United Methodist Church family would beg to differ.

However, some on what was formerly the minority side would see this resolution without these amendments as an effort to squelch serious theological inquiry and reflection. This is not an effort to do such a thing. We live in a day when forces at polar ends of the theological spectrum might be pulling us so hard that it might tear us apart. In these days I believe that we need to affirm a centrist position, a dynamic center where we can live together and stand in ministry. If we're going to stay together as a vital force for mission and ministry, we must take our doctrinal standards and theological tasks seriously as we work together to fulfill the mission and ministry to which we have been called.

These amendments citing the Discipline would accomplish two things. They will affirm, as it says in paragraph 68, page 74, in the third paragraph on that page, "while the church considers this doctrinal affirmation as the central feature of its identity and restricts official changes to a constitutional process, the church encourages serious reflection across the theological spectrum." This language found in our theological task, affirms serious theological reflection. But, secondly, it would also affirm that we are a distinctively Christian church. We are Trinitarian, not unitarian. We believe in the resurrection of Jesus Christ. This language, as found in our doctrinal standards, helps to define who we are as the people called United Methodist. Thank you.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, thank you. Now we are on the amendments. Is there anyone who wishes to speak against the amendments? Against the amendments? Yes, sir. Question? Microphone 8.

JERRY HEARE (Southwest Texas): Could you tell me, please, where we might find the doctrinal standards published?

BISHOP CRAIG: They're in the Book of Discipline. In the early section of the Book of Discipline.

DUANE SARAZIN (Minnesota): Paragraph 65 through 68.

BISHOP CRAIG: Is there anyone wishing to speak against the amendments? Are you wishing to speak against the amendments? You wish to hear one of them read again? All right. Well, I'm going to ask him to read the amended paragraphs in just a moment, all right? I don't hear anyone else...see anyone else wishing to...you wish to speak against the amendments? You want to move an amendment to the amendment? All right. (laughter) Now we see in a glass darkly. Microphone 3, please.

MARY ELIZABETH MOORE (California-Pacific): Actually this is a very small amendment which I think is consistent. I move that at the bottom, on page 479 at the end of the last of the last sentence of the fourth full paragraph, after the word "doctrinal," the words "and theological" be added. And if I have a second I'll speak to it briefly.

SARAZIN: We would accept that.

BISHOP CRAIG: Would you accept that? I hear acceptance. Thank you. Now I'm going to ask you to read the paragraphs you've amended as they would be amended...just the sentences around them so we can get the sense of it.

Episcopal Leadership in Doctrinal and Theological Matters

SARAZIN: OK, the first paragraph on the bottom page 478 would read now: "The doctrinal standards and our theological tasks found in the Book of Discipline, paragraphs 65 through 68, place United Methodism in the broad stream of apostolic Christianity." End of first paragraph.

Paragraph four, on page 479, left-hand column, would now read, in its entirety: "Episcopal leaders are given responsibility to guard, transmit, teach and proclaim, corporately and individually, the apostolic faith as it is expressed in scripture and tradition, and as they are led and endowed by the Spirit to interpret that faith, evangelically and prophetically (paragraph 514.2). Episcopal leaders have the responsibility of general oversight and promotion of the temporal and spiritual interests of the entire church (paragraph 50). Such oversight includes providing leadership to the church in doctrinal and theological matters."

And then number 1 at the bottom of that page would read: "We affirm our doctrinal standards and our theological tasks, as set forth in the Book of Discipline, and encourage their observance at all levels of church life." And number 2: "We direct the secretary of the General Conference," etc.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, that's what is before us now to amend this report. Please vote when the light appears.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, the document is now before us as amended. [820 approved] There has been considerable discussion. I think you know what it says. Are you ready to vote? Please vote when the light appears. [864 approved] You've adopted Calendar Item 1988 in good spirit and good spirit from those who have worked on this. Thank you for the excellent work on that and the good spirit. That's right.

PAUL ERVIN: Bishop, will we be first up tonight (applause) or do you know? Will we be first up, so that I can let the people who'll be making presentations know?

BISHOP CRAIG: I'll have to refer that to the agenda committee. I don't have the authority to tell you.

ERVIN: Let me say that Aileen Williams and Christian Ricks—I'll need to see them here at 7:00, just in case.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right.

ERVIN: Thank you, Bishop.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, thank you. Let's turn now to the Central Conferences Commission, Bishop Nacpil, Request to Translate Official Resources from English

BISHOP EMERITO P. NACPIL: Bishop and members of the conference. I'd like for you to turn to page 477 of the blue book, Calendar Item 1977; 477, Calendar 1977. Petition 20021, the subject of which is a request to translate into Hausa, the language predominantly spoken in Nigeria, of portions of the Book of Discipline, Book of Worship, and the hymnal. The full text of this petition appears on page 542, top of the page of the same blue book. When this matter was considered in the commission, there were 29 of its members present. All 29 voted for it, none against. The recommendation of the commission is for concurrence and refer the matter to the publishing house.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, before us is Calendar Item 1977 on page 477, recommendation for concurrence and referral to the publishing house. Clear back at the back, right there yes, you sir, microphone—no I'm sorry it's the gentleman behind you, not the one in the blue shirt. I'm sorry I called on the man in the jacket. I'm sorry, sir. Microphone 11. I'm stuttering, I'm sorry. Eleven, please.

WILLIAM S. DEEL (West Virginia): Bishop, the publishing house is aware of this proposal and has some clarification we'd like to make. I'd like you to recognize Neil Alexander for clarification on this matter.

BISHOP CRAIG: Yes, please. Would the house allow that? Yes, please. Mr. Alexander?

NEIL ALEXANDER (President, UMPH): We'd be glad to receive this as a referral to be investigated, to be developed as far as possible. What we don't know are all of the implications relative to both cost and practicality. The material that's in The United Methodist Hymnal, much of that material is not owned by The United Methodist Church. It is licensed for a one-time publication in The United Methodist Hymnal. Similarly, there is material in The Book of Worship that is not owned by The United Methodist Church. So there are issues here of copyright, practicality, and other related factors in terms of cost, all of which need to be further investigated.

BISHOP CRAIG: Do you want to respond to that in any way?

BISHOP NACPIL: We have no problem with that.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, understanding those issues to be resolved, this item is before us. Yes? Microphone 4. I'm sorry, 5.

MEL BOWDAN (Kentucky): Nigeria is the largest country in population in Africa south of Sahara. You also have Ebo, Yorba, other tribal languages that are there that are also very competitive. Just a point of—a question. Has the committee considered that once we print something in Hausa that there may be some real requests for printing in other languages of Nigeria?

BISHOP NACPIL: There is that distinct possibility.

BISHOP CRAIG: Sounds like they've considered that. All right. Are you ready to vote on this item? Right back there in the center. Microphone 8, please.

ROCKY EUBANK (Southwest Texas): In view of what the gentleman from the publishing house said, I make a motion that this be referred to the publishing house rather taking action approving this request.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, this is a motion for referral, simply referral.

BISHOP NACPIL: We have no problem with that either.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, I hear the chair of the commission saying that's all right. Motion to refer. Please vote when the light appears. [860 approved] You have referred the item. Thank you. Bishop?

Laitly Added to Central Conference Executive Committee

BISHOP NACPIL: The other item appears in the special Consent Calendar, A08, which you received this afternoon on your desks. It is Calendar Item 2464, Petition 23082, the subject of which seeks to amend paragraph 2301.3 of the Discipline by adding a lay man and a lay woman to the composition of the Executive Committee of the Commission on Central Conference Affairs.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, this item is before you, are you ready?

BISHOP NACPIL: The recommendation is concurrence.

BISHOP CRAIG: Concurrence; the recommendation is concurrence. Please vote when the light appears. [866 approved] You have concurred, thank you.

BISHOP NACPIL: And while I'm on my feet, Bishop, may I just point out two major actions that you took through the Consent Calendar, namely the continuance of the Eurasia Episcopal Area in order to provide for the continuing increase of our mission work in the Commonwealth of Independent States. We have signs of that here. We had the Latvia Choir this morning; we have the representative from Bulgaria; we have a representative from Estonia; we have observers from Russia. This is in grateful acknowledgement that God continues to bless our work there. The other action that you took was your provision for an enabling act that would make Zaire become a Central Conference by itself, to be composed of seven annual conferences. When we came to you in 1992 requesting that that section of the Africa Central Conference was to be allowed to meet, they had 500,000 members. Now the report comes to us that they have 700,000 members. Again, this is a reason for celebration. (applause) Thank you.

BISHOP CRAIG: Thank you very much, Bishop Nacpil. Now the chair is aware that it's 5:00, it's the dinner hour. Let's see if the house would be willing to extend for two things: a report on the status of the delegation to the White House, which we asked for earlier in the General Conference, and one motion on Consent Calendar. Would the house be willing, is there any objection to extend the time for those two items? Then I call on Bishop Woodie White.

White House Delegation Announced

BISHOP WOODIE W. WHITE: Delegates and friends, I'd like to give you an update on the request that you made earlier in the General Conference.

For the last several days we have continued to be in touch with the White House and the security council. It appears that a meeting can be scheduled for next week. With that in mind, earlier in the week it was necessary to name delegates to this White House visit, in order that security clearance could take place on the persons who attend.

I've asked the following persons to be a part of that delegation: Delegate Ronald Bretsch from [North] Central New York, who is a specialist in Middle East affairs; Dr. Randy Day from the New York Conference; Paulo Phillipe Bunga of Angola, and if he is unable to be with us, we'll have Kristen Dowdy of Virginia; Jo Ann Fukamoto; and myself. It is our intent to have a report for you in the DCA roundup. Thank you very much.

BISHOP JUDITH CRAIG: Thank you Bishop White. Now let's turn to Fitzgerald Reist and Sarah Miller for a calendar item.

Consent Calendars Adopted

BISHOP CRAIG: All right.

SARAH MILLER: I move the acceptance of this calendar.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, This calendar is before us. I'm sorry, tell us the number again.

REIST: Consent Calendar A07.

BISHOP CRAIG: Page 665.

REIST: Page 665 of today's DCA. The one removed was 2421, found on page 667 of today's DCA.

BISHOP CRAIG: Consent Calendar Item A07 is before us with the exception of that calendar item. Are you ready? Please vote when the light appears. [812 approved] I think it passed. (laughter) I'm sorry. All right, anything else from the...Go ahead.

REIST: Consent Calendar C07 begins on page 668 of today's DCA, there are no changes.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, 668.

MILLER: I move the adoption of Consent Calendar C07.

BISHOP CRAIG: Calendar C07 is before you, please vote when the light appears. And, I'll look this time. [874 approved] That's approved. Almost perfect, you're going on to perfection.

REIST: Not quite yet, but that's why we're Methodists. United Methodists are always going on. I recommend suspension of the rules to act upon Consent Calendars A08, B08, and C08, which were distributed to the desks of delegates this afternoon after 7:30 p.m. That is the action after 7:30 p.m. The deadline for removal of items to be 7:00 p.m. This would allow almost the normal amount of time for delegates to request removal of items from the Consent Calendar.

BISHOP CRAIG: All right, the first motion is to suspend the rules, will you do this by hand, I think you will. If you will suspend the rules will you lift the hand? Thank You. Opposed? They are suspended. Now your motion.

MILLER: I so move.

BISHOP CRAIG: We're into good shorthand here. (laughter) All right, these special Consent Calendars are before you. Please vote when the light appears. What's the point of order, excuse me.

BECKY HAASE (California-Pacific) I believe the motion was that they would be taken up tonight at 7:30 p.m. and not before.

BISHOP CRAIG: Excuse me. You're correct. The chair has in error, thank you. All right. What a good house you are. I've been handed a couple of things here. One is, Bishop White failed to name that Bishop Dale White and Bishop Dan Solomon will also be in the White House delegation. I believe Jane Middletown, where are you? We're going to give you 35 seconds. Microphone 1.

Tribute to Bishop James K. Matthews

JANE MIDDLETON (New York): Thank you, bishop and members of the conference, I'll try to talk fast. When we acknowledged our bishops who are retiring, we failed to recognize yet another bishop who will retire again this year, Bishop James K. Matthews first retired in 1980, in 1985 he was assigned Bishop of Zimbabwe and retired for the second time in 1986. In 1990 he was yet again assigned to the newly-created Albany Area and retired for the third time in 1992. Last May he was assigned to the New York Area and has served with energy and wisdom, and we of the New York Conference have benefited enormously from his experience. He will retire for the fourth time at the end of August and what we hope will be a well-deserved rest. I have no historical data to support this, but we suspect this is a record.

BISHOP CRAIG: We'll put it to the Guinness Book of Records and see. (applause) All right, let's give our attention to the secretary of the General Conference for some announcements please.

CAROLYN MARSHALL: The first one is to ask that legislative chairpersons with items, which remain to be cared for this evening, would meet with Sara Miller, chair of agenda and calendar committee, near the platform immediately on adjournment this afternoon.

The question has come about the availability of pictures of the clergywomen which was taken here. The answer, which has been secured, is that the press office is closed at this particular point that was handling that. However, that picture will be available if you will contact United Methodist Communications in Nashville next week. Particularly ask for Lynn Scott.

Report on General Conference Offerings

Question also came as to sharing with you the amount of the offerings, which have been received here. The United Methodist Committee on Relief communion offering amount was $9,384.19. (applause) The native American Awareness offering was $3,579.00. (applause) And the offering most recently received, that for Pages and Marshals, amounted to $12,114.41. (applause)

Earlier during this session you were more than gracious in responding and affirming the work, which had been performed by two of the staffs, which have served you in preparation and during the General Conference. We now want you to be able to express your gratitude, our gratitude, to the local committee, Paula Johnston has chaired that committee. Unless you've done this, you have no idea of the amount of work that has gone into it. But we now present Paula Johnston to you, and Peggy Sewell, from the Rocky Mountain conference, who will share with you for just a minute.

Thanks from Local Hosts

PEGGY SEWELL: We in the Denver Episcopal Area, along with Bishop Mary Ann Swenson, have been twice blessed in the last nine months to be able to welcome our global family to our neighborhood. First with Youth '95 in Salt Lake City, and now these two weeks with General Conference in Denver. As we all prepared with great anticipation to receive family and friends into our individual homes, so had we in the Denver Episcopal Area, been filled with great excitement and anticipation to welcome you. We will continue to hold you in our prayers as you return to your homes and places of living out your faith commitment, just as we have prayed for you in our preparation and during the conference.

We thank you for the opportunity to be able to open our doors, our homes and our hearts to you. We have been greatly blessed and enriched by your presence among us. We pray that it has been for you a time of encountering the movement of the Holy Spirit in new ways, settings and relationships. Thank you for coming among us and living with us.

MARSHALL: Thank you. (applause)

BISHOP CRAIG: We thank you so much for your gracious welcome and hospitality. And, I want to thank this house for being a gracious and delightful house over which to preside. Thank you for the privilege. My thanks to Bishops Christopher and Lawson for keeping me straight. And, I'm happy now to say that at 7 o'clock, Bishop Hearn will be here to take us home. But in preparation for our evening meal recess, I've asked Bishop Ho of Singapore, who hosted the 1991 World Methodist Conference to come and give us our benediction. Let Us stand.

(prayer)

BISHOP HO (Singapore): Let us pray. Great and gracious God, we praise you for the day of opportunities and challenges. We thank you for the fellowship we share as the people of God. We acknowledge with gratitude your presence and guidance throughout the sessions of the General Conference. We now commit ourselves and all the resources of The United Methodist Church into your loving and sovereign hand. And as we continue to struggle with the very difficult issues that seek to frustrate and divide us, we believe and trust in your goodness and love that hold us together. So may we now go in your name with the assurance of your grace, peace and benediction. Amen.

Friday Evening April 26, 1996

Bishop J. Woodrow Hearn, presiding

(music)

BISHOP J. WOODROW HEARN: The delegates will please find their seats. The hour has come for us to begin this evening's session. If you will please be in order and find your places.

STEVIE KIMBOUGH: If you were in a church or Methodist Church in the Caribbean tonight, you might be singing, "Halle, Halle, Halleluia." If you will join Cynthia and me on this, when we sing the "Halleluia."

(song)

BISHOP HEARN: If you will be in order, please. I am going to call on Carolyn Marshall to make an announcement that needs to be made at this time before the house. If you'll give attention, please to Carolyn.

CAROLYN MARSHALL: David Severe, who is the chair of General and Judicial Administration Legislative Committee needs to meet with that legislative committee to the right of the platform immediately.

BISHOP HEARN: All right, if you will respond to that announcement. If everyone, now, will get in your seats, please. We need order in the house so that people can pay attention to the business. If all delegates will immediately make yourselves available to your seat, it will help everyone. As quickly as you can, now, if you will get in your seats, please. Now, if we can have silence in the hall, please so we can begin the business. Thank you.

This is the evening we've all been looking forward to for two weeks. So with your cooperation, and help, we'll make this a fine and joyful evening for our United Methodist Church. I want first of all to recognize Bernard "Skip" Keels for a matter concerning Liberia. Please, Skip. Where is Skip? Microphone 6.

Motion on Matter of Liberia

BERNARD "SKIP" KEELS (Baltimore-Washington): Bishop Hearn and members of the 1996 General Conference, in the spirit of holy conferring I bless the Lord with all my soul, my heart, my mind and my strength. We commend the General Conference for adopting Petition 21066 and the April 20th, 1996 edition of the Daily Christian Advocate, Calendar Number 248, page 153, subject Liberia. Based on the historical relationship between Liberia and the United States, and realizing the Liberian civil war has reached a point where resolution of the crisis within seems extremely difficult, I move, one: that the 1996 General Conference of The United Methodist Church call on the President of the United States and his national community to urge international arms embargo on the sale and delivery of arms to Liberia.

Two: ask the United Nations to expand the capabilities of the economic community of West Africa's State Monitoring Group: with a) the necessary resources to carry out the tasks entrusted to it by the August 1995 Abuja Peace Accord, especially the disarmament and demobilization of the warring factions; b) additional peace-keeping forces from other countries outside of the continent of Africa.

And three: that this statement be carried by the General Conference delegation headed by Bishop Woodie White, president of the Council of Bishops, who will meet at the White House next week. I move the adoption of this.

BISHOP HEARN: Is there a second to this resolution? It's been moved and seconded. The resolution is before you. If you will adopt the resolution, you will vote when the light appears. [529 approved] The resolution passes.

There is one other matter before we get to the calendar items. I would like to recognize Mr. John Thomas, on behalf on the Commission on the Conference. Microphone 8.

Thanks to Carolyn Marshall and Roger Kruse

JOHN THOMAS (South Indiana): Bishop and members of the conference, this afternoon, Carolyn Marshall introduced her staff, and we gave them proper recognition. Also, Roger Kruse introduced his staff, and we gave them proper recognition. I think that we need to give proper recognition here, now, to our pleasure with first of all, Carolyn Marshall as our secretary. (applause) ...and to Roger Kruse. I'm not sure whether he's here on the floor or down in his office, but anyhow, he has worked hard and diligently to be our director. And I say this on behalf of the Commission on General Conference.

BISHOP HEARN: Thank you very much for that announcement. Now I want to recognize the fact that we are under a motion that was passed a few days ago, that we will proceed with the calendar items that are put before us by the Agenda Committee. And any special privileges or other motions that you want to make will be cared for after these items have been taken care of. So we will proceed with hearing from the chairs of the various legislative committees and all of those items. Then if there is time left for any special privileges or other items, we will take care of those at that time. I now want to recognize Cashar Evans who is with Financial Administration. Cashar.

Finance for Promotion of Homosexuality Denied

CASHAR W. EVANS JR. (North Carolina): I call your attention to page 387 of the blue DCA, Calendar Item 1687. And in the white book on page 1322, the right column, a third of the way down, is Petition 22640. It has to do with monetary assistance to the promotion or acceptance of homosexuality. The committee's recommendation is nonconcurrence. That was by a vote of 54 for, 27 against, and zero abstentions. I ruled, and I certainly could have been in error, I ruled a substitute out of order. And hence, I have a minority report. So, Bishop, do you want to take the minority report first?

BISHOP HEARN: Yes. We'll need to have it presented.

DALE JONES (Kentucky): These lights are bright, aren't they? This is a rather unusual minority report in that our Financial Administration Legislative Committee passed by a 59 to 25 vote majority an amendment to this petition saying to add to paragraph 707 a new subsection 7: "No conference council, commission, board, agency, or committee shall give monetary or other assistance to the promotion or endorsement of homosexual practice."

Having passed that, we then discovered that paragraph 707 was not within the prerogative of the Financial Administration Committee to amend. And our chair very correctly, I think, ruled the amendment or the substitute, out of order. At this point, it was late at night, and we had mountains of important matters yet to consider. So rather than consuming additional committee time with reconsiderations and further amendments and that type of thing, we decided to address the committee's wishes as expressed in that initial substitute through this minority report. I suppose, had we known that it would be coming here at 7 p.m. on the last day, maybe we would have taken a little bit more time in the committee that night after all, to have saved a few minutes here in the plenary. But that's how the minority report came to be.

There is an editorial correction that should be made there in the first line under the word, "minority report." Insert new paragraph that should read, "710.16 and renumber." The paragraph 710.16 deals with the responsibilities of the Conference Council on Finance and Administration, and just insert this as the next to the last item in that section and would be essentially parallel with the language that is already in paragraph 906 regarding the General Council on Finance and Administration. Thank you.

BISHOP HEARN: Thank you. The majority report in this case is a non-concurrence on this item. So the matter is now before the house. Yes, over here. Microphone 7.

J. PHILIP WOGAMAN (Baltimore-Washington): Fellow delegates, we've had quite enough on this subject, have we not? I can think of no useful purpose for this, whatsoever, unless maybe to stifle honest debate within the life of our church and the expression of alternative points of view under the sponsorship of programs of the church. Nobody is using church funds to promote homosexuality. I think this is just one step too far.

BISHOP HEARN: A substitute is before you, which is the minority report. If you want to adopt the substitute, you will vote for it first, and then we will go to the main motion. If you are ready to vote on the minority report, a "yes" vote would sustain the minority report; a "no" vote would be against the minority report. Cast your vote when the light appears. The minority report is not adopted. [Results: yes, 307; no, 443]

The majority report is before us, which was for nonconcurrence from the committee. If you will act on the nonconcurrence item, you will vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 548; no, 201] You've agreed with the committee's recommendation. Mr. Evans?

EVANS: Now we come to Discipleship. Mr. Ervin.

PAUL ERVIN, JR. (North Georgia): We have another matter in Discipleship. Calendar Item 1987 on page 478.

BISHOP HEARN: If you'll give the page number first, it will help the delegates.

ERVIN: Page 478, Calendar Item 1987. [unintelligible] Minnesota Conference. There is a minority report but, Bishop, we're suggesting it be handled as an amendment.

BISHOP HEARN: All right.

Council on Youth Ministries

AILEEN L. WILLIAMS (Minnesota): Bishop, this, as Paul has said, is on page 478 in your blue book; Calendar Item 1987, Petition 20496. You'll find that in your red DCA, on page 243, in the right-hand column.

You'll find that in your red DCA on page 243 in the right hand column. In our committee, the structure subcommittee received over 20 petitions dealing with bringing flexibility into the annual conference, and this was dealt with prior to our passing the connectional issue study by the General Council of Ministries. We were looking for flexible language, and this language in this petition dealt with how to have the functions of the Youth Council possibly put into another structure—that there be an equivalent structure. So the committee accepted this language around flexibility prior to the work we've done in plenary about giving flexibility. After the concurrence, the minority report was filed which we would like to have presented to you as an amendment to the report, and Debra Wilcox will present the minority report.

BISHOP HEARN: And we are treating the minority report as simply an amendment to the material that's found in the Advance DCA.

DEBORAH WILCOCK (Eastern Pennsylvania): There is a misprint in the Advance DCA, which may lead to some confusion as to how the amendment would read. Let me attempt to clarify that. The phrase that we're inserting is the phrase that says "which follows the same membership requirements." That would make the petition read as follows: "In each annual conference there shall be a Conference Council on Youth Ministries, or the responsibilities outlined below may be assigned to such other organization which follows the same membership requirements as the annual conference provides pursuant to" and continuing. If I have a second then I'll explain the rational.

BISHOP HEARN: Is there a second to this amendment? It's before us.

WILCOCK: We believe that this would ensure that the vibrant joint ministry between youth and adults would remain intact. Basically there was some confusion in the committee as to whether or not some other structure that would be assigned the responsibility of the Conference Council on Youth Ministries would follow the same balance of youth and adults within the structure. This does still allow for flexibility in the name of the organization and the accountability of the organization. It ensures that youth ministry will continue to be a joint venture of youth and adults.

BISHOP HEARN: Would you point out the specific words, which you are adding.

WILCOCK: After the word "organization" in the petition as it reads in the Advance DCA, we're inserting a comma, and then the words "which follows the same membership requirements," a second comma, and then it continues.

BISHOP HEARN: This is the amendment to the original petition which the committee is recommending concurrence for. If you will adopt this amendment, or if you will vote on this amendment, you will do so when the light appears.

The amendment has been added and now the whole matter is before us, which is recommended concurrence, and then it has been amended. If you will vote on this matter, you will do so when the light appears. And it has been adopted.

WILCOCK: Thank you.

BISHOP HEARN: We'll go now to the ministry.

SANDRA W. LUTZ (Chair, Ordained, Diaconal Ministry): We have several items we need to reconsider, because the committee recommendation recorded in the blue DCA is incorrect, and does not record the actual vote of our legislative committee. I believe we need to work through these one at a time. I would first move reconsideration of Calendar Item 1580, blue DCA, page 377.

BISHOP HEARN: I would like to ask again that the chairpersons please give the page number first so the delegates can be looking up the number.

LUTZ: Page 377.

Correction of Concurrence/Nonconcurrence

BISHOP HEARN: Thank you.

SANDRA W. LUTZ (East Ohio): Its Calendar Item 1580. The true vote, I believe we have to vote reconsideration first, Bishop. Is that correct?

BISHOP HEARN: Is this an item that has already been acted upon by the house?

LUTZ: It was accepted on a Consent Calendar, and it was incorrectly accepted as nonconcurrence and it really should have been concurrence.

BISHOP HEARN: All right, we do need to reconsider it then. If you will reconsider this item, you will indicate voting when the light appears. [776 approved] You have agreed to reconsider. Please present it to us.

LUTZ: All right. I would move that we accept the committee's recommendation of concurrence, which was 72, 0, 0.

BISHOP HEARN: If you will agree with the committee for concurrence on this item, or if you will vote on what you want to do with this item, you will do so when the light appears. [773 approved] Your action has now been changed to concurrence.

LUTZ: Thank you. Second, I would move reconsideration in the blue DCA, page 555, Calendar Item 2125. The true vote of the committee—I'm sorry, I need to move reconsideration first, Bishop.

BISHOP HEARN: How many of these items do you have?

LUTZ: This is the second and I have a third.

BISHOP HEARN: If you will authorize the reconsideration of both of these items, she'll get the other one in a moment. Let's do it all at one time. Will you vote as to whether or not you will reconsider both of these items she is going to present in one vote? Please vote when the light appears. [813 approved] You've authorized both of them to be presented to the house.

LUTZ: Thank you. All right. This one, the true vote of the committee was nonconcurrence—85, zero, zero. That's Calendar Item 2125.

BISHOP HEARN: So this would be changing from concurrence to nonconcurrence?

LUTZ: That's correct.

BISHOP HEARN: Off of the Consent Calendar. If you will make your decision concerning this item, please vote when the light appears. [815 approved] You have now taken nonconcurrence action.

LUTZ: All right. The final item in this group deals—in the blue DCA, page 375. Calendar Item 1555. This references paragraph 38 and is therefore a constitutional amendment. The true vote of the committee was for concurrence by a vote of 94, zero, zero.

BISHOP HEARN: The matter is now before the house again.

LUTZ: Does the house want some discussion of that or not?

BISHOP HEARN: Would you like any more explanation than you have? I do not hear any call for it. The recommendation of the committee is for concurrence. If you will concur with them or not concur with them, you will indicate by voting when the light appears. This will take a two-thirds vote. [764 approved] It has received more than the two-thirds required for concurrence.

LUTZ: That's all I have at this time, Bishop.

BISHOP HEARN: Thank you. We go now to Conferences. Mr. Hunter.

GEORGE G. HUNTER III (Florida): We have a couple of priority items before we take some of our other items later in the evening.

BISHOP HEARN: All right. If you will present them to us.

Number of Western Jurisdiction Bishops

HUNTER: Yes. The first of these has to do with a mistake in the 1992 Discipline which, if left uncorrected, would give the Western Jurisdiction only one bishop, or something to that effect. Flo Sapp Martin will explain it.

BISHOP HEARN: Well, well, well. [laughter]

FLO SAPP MARTIN (South Georgia): I don't think that's entirely true, Western Jurisdiction, so do not panic. But if you will turn with me in your blue DCA to page 445, you'll see Calendar Item 1702, Petition 21720. And you will find this item in the red Advance DCA on page 178 in the top of the left-hand column. We lifted this item from the Consent Calendar to report an error in the line numbers that was made in the printing. And I understand that there are lots of people beside me and behind me on this platform that want to make sure that this gets corrected.

So, if you will look in your blue DCA on page 445 where it says line 3, it should read line 5; where it says line 6, it should read line 8. And where it says line 6 the second time, it should read line 12. And that's referring to the line numbers in the red DCA on page 178. We voted concurrence. This just allows the number of bishops in each jurisdiction to remain the same. It corrects the error in the 1992 Discipline and makes sure that all the folks up here have a place to go when July and August come.

BISHOP HEARN: OK. This matter of a correction of the '92 Discipline is before you. You will vote when the light appears. [810 approved] You have corrected the Discipline.

GEORGE G. HUNTER III (Florida): Bishop, another thing came up as we were going to supper, and I have not had time to get all of the pages related to this. But I simply want to correct a mistake that our committee made in good faith. Calendar Item 409.

BISHOP HEARN: Page number please.

HUNTER: I was given that, but it turned out to be incorrect. I only know that it is Calendar Item 409. This is the gist of it.

BISHOP HEARN: I'm going to ask you to step back for a minute and have the opportunity to find that page number 168. OK.

Reconsideration of Publishing Volumes of DCA

HUNTER: And the gist of the problem is this. We responded concurrence to a petition that came in, in essence, asking that the Advance DCA all be done in one volume and be done much earlier. Acting on the data that we had, Bishop, we concurred with that without a great deal of discussion. The staff simply tells us that they experience that petition as something like cruel and unusual punishment. And we love our staff. All we're asking them is to do what is humanly possible, to get the Advance DCA out to all of the people as early as possible. I would like to, therefore, propose reconsideration, and invite the house to vote nonconcurrence.

BISHOP HEARN: If you will reconsider this item, or you will take your action on reconsideration of this item when the light appears. [739 approved]

You have agreed to the reconsideration. Your motion then is that this be for nonconcurrence on this petition.

HUNTER: For nonconcurrence to that petition.

BISHOP HEARN: All right. Yes. Microphone 8.

WILLIAM B. THIELKING (Southern New Jersey): I don't care if the volumes come out in two volumes or three volumes or ten volumes. What I am concerned about is that we get all petitions at the same time. We were given weeks to look at the recommendations that came from the boards and agencies and hours to read the recommendations that have come from local churches. And would voting nonconcurrence mean that we'd go back to the way it was done this year?

BISHOP HEARN: We'll ask the chair to respond.

HUNTER: We haven't had time to discuss that or any other contingencies. But I think that desire could be accurately communicated to the staff.

THIELKING: Well, I'm for—never mind. (laughter)

HUNTER: I know the feeling.

BISHOP HEARN: The delegate who is standing by microphone 8 is out of order because you left your seat and went to the microphone. I'm sorry. Down here.

Microphone 3.

CAROL A. SMITH (Missouri East): I'm a secretary, and I know that you can't publish something until you have it. So, perhaps we're looking at deadlines that are impossible unless there's a way you can extend deadlines or make them earlier. But I appreciate the staff and what they have to do, because my faculty members sometimes ask me to do the impossible also.

HUNTER: Yes. Bishop, if I could, one of our delegates, Jack Stone, is in a position to interpret this for us. Could we call on him?

BISHOP HEARN: Be very happy to. Please. Now he's got to walk back to microphone 8. As the sleepiness of the evening continues, he'll be glad for this exercise. (laughter) Give us some information that will be helpful.

JACK VAN STONE (South Indiana): I would move that, after we've reconsidered it now, that we amend the petition to have the time limit of 150 instead of 120 days, and that's for consultation with the secretary and the staff, and that will give ample opportunity to get all the petitions at one time.

BISHOP HEARN: All right. There is a motion that it be... Well, actually, we have a concurrence before us, and this would be amending it to 150 days where it's 120 days.

VAN STONE: That's correct. Yes.

HUNTER: We would accept that, Bishop.

BISHOP HEARN: Very good. Then this matter is before us with the changing of those numbers. All right, I see you back in the back here. Yes, microphone 13.

ANTHONY ALEXANDER (Central Pennsylvania): While we're talking about the Advance DCA, I have a concern.

BISHOP HEARN: OK. I need to tell you that we have an amendment before us that we change the original petition to 150 days from 120 days. That's the matter that's before the house.

Request for Advance DCA to be Translated from English

ALEXANDER: Yes sir. But I'm concerned about our central conference delegates and the languages. I'm wondering while we're working on that if we could also ask the Bishops to confer with the central conferences so that they can get a language that they can understand, so that they could also have it in advance. Is that appropriate, sir?

BISHOP HEARN: If you wish to make an amendment to this amendment, it would be appropriate.

ALEXANDER: I so move that the Commission on the General Conference be required to consider the following steps for the central conferences for the year 2000: consult with the bishops from the central conferences to determine language needs of delegates to the General Conference; the central conference bishops should be asked to provide a list of recommended languages for translation; and to explore ways in which non-English speaking delegates can be provided written translations of the Advance Daily Christian Advocate, as well as daily summary of the Daily Christian Advocates.

BISHOP HEARN: Is there a second to this? This is an amendment to the amendment. It seems to me to be a rather simple straightforward thing. Would you like to vote on this now? If you will get ready to cast your vote on this recommendation here that will be passed on to the Commission of the General Conference concerning language needs of our persons from outside the United States. If you will get ready to vote on that when the light appears. Yes? Your point of order? Microphone 7.

CHUCK HEFLEY (North Indiana): Could we please check and make sure we're on the right petition? I don't think we are.

BISHOP HEARN: All right, we'll ask the chair of the presenting committee. He referred us to page 168.

GEORGE HUNTER III: Sir, I do not have my red DCA with me, let me fetch it.

BISHOP HEARN: Yes.

HUNTER: Has someone else found it? I think our colleagues have over to the left, sir.

BISHOP HEARN: I'm going to ask that this whole matter be put on hold, and then I ask the chair of this committee to take the time necessary to get the proper information to put this before the house. Don't you think this is the way we need to handle it so that we can have that information before us? So we'll ask Mr. Hunter if he please will do that, and I'll go now to presentation by David Severe to give you time, Dr. Hunter, to do that.

HUNTER: Thank you.

DAVID L. SEVERE (Oklahoma): Thank you. Our committee was reconvened for a moment because of a matter that we would like to bring back to you with our concerns. If you would please turn to your DCA, page 204, the right-hand column.

BISHOP HEARN: Blue book, 204?

SEVERE: Yes, sir.

BISHOP HEARN: OK.

Process for Electing General Secretaries

SEVERE: The Calendar Item 480. Now if you want to see this where it came originally, the Petition 20548, and it is on, in the red book, page 701, the right-hand column in the middle of the page, Petition 20548. This was one of the early petitions that was passed out of our committee. It calls for a reversal of our position on the way general secretaries are elected. This appears in a number of places, but this is a specific area that we were concerned about. The way we have done that is that the general secretaries are nominated by their various agencies, and the General Council on Ministries elects. It is a process which provides a certain amount of creative tension; it also is a safety-valve for our general secretaries to have some back-up, from time to time.

Unfortunately, it slipped through without a great deal of discussion in the full committee; and so we met a moment ago, and we have reversed our position on that in a unanimous vote of those who were present, which was not everybody, I would admit. But we would like to move non-concurrence with this, because we believe that for this next four years, at least, we ought to leave these matters pretty much the way they are and let that process move forward through the Connectional Process Team and see what that needs to look like in the future. So we would move non-concurrence.

BISHOP HEARN: So the vote of the committee on 480, on page 204, is now non-concurrence.

SEVERE: Yes, sir.

BISHOP HEARN: OK. Yes? Microphone number 7.

RUTH A. DAUGHERTY (Eastern Pennsylvania): Bishop, was this taken off of the Consent Calendar?

SEVERE: Yes, it was.

DAUGHERTY: OK, thank you.

BISHOP HEARN: Thank you for that inquiry, Ruth. The recommendation of the committee is for non-concurrence. Prepare to vote when the light appears. You have agreed with the committee. [768 approved]

SEVERE: We have one other item and that is—as we have operated with the process moving along, you will recall that we set a number for the number of people who would be on general agencies as directors and members. That had been done prior to our establishing the Methodist Men's Commission. That has necessitated us revisiting some of these matters so that we can correct the numbers. And so we would like to move reconsideration of that, and I've asked Jim Holsinger if he would please come and lead us through that.

BISHOP HEARN: All right. Good. Dr. Holsinger, if you will tell us where we are first of all, then we'll take the matter of the reconsideration before us.

UM Men Commission Requires Adjustment of 640 Member Agency Total

JIM HOLSINGER (Kentucky): Yes, Bishop, members of the conference. We have a situation, as you well know, where by an 80 percent to 20 percent vote we concurred with the formation of a General Commission on United Methodist Men with 43 members. You also recall that we concurred in the number of 640 as the maximum number of individuals to serve on general boards, agencies of the church by a vote of 70 percent to 30 percent.

With those two overwhelming votes, our legislative committee went back to work to see what we would need to do to conform the legislation that we have, that we have passed. Two of the pieces of material have passed. One was the legislation to create the General Commission on United Methodist Men. Another one that we have already approved on the Consent Calendar that would be affected is the size of the General Board of Discipleship. And we have had lifted from the Consent Calendar some days ago paragraph 805, which is the implementing legislation that would include the 640 member board—640 members of the general agencies. What I'd like to do is to walk us through the process by moving to open the item on page 386 in the blue DCA, and we will do everything that we need to do tonight in the blue DCA. Page 386, Calendar Item 1681 is the...

BISHOP HEARN: Let me interrupt just a minute, Jim. What he is presenting relates to action that has already been taken to the house. The committee is asking to come back to correct that, the correction being made necessary for other items that the house has also passed. So if you will vote reconsideration upon this so that it may be presented to you, you will vote when the light appears. We are technically in order for the reconsideration, so please proceed.

HOLSINGER: Thank you, Bishop. Our legislative committee met to try and see how we could reconcile these two very different numbers, and we have been able to come up with the process of being able to create a General Commission on United Methodist Men with 23 members, and at the same time, because of some internal shifting that would go on between the Board of Discipleship and the United Methodist Men's general commission and some slack that we had in the system, we can do that with an increase of only ten members to 650 from 640. What we'll do is walk our way through that series of items it would take to do that, and you're on page 386, Calendar Item 1681, the bottom right-hand column.

In this particular item, we would have to amend this new paragraph for the General Commission on United Methodist Men, which will probably be numbered in the 2300 series and is the paragraph entitled, "Membership;" and you will see it in the lower portion of the left-hand corner of that particular page, at the very bottom of page 386...

At the very bottom of page 386 we would need to substitute the first sentence of this paragraph to read as follows: "The commission shall consist of 23 voting members as defined in paragraph 805.2 in the general provisions and paragraph 635 for the 1997 to 2000 quadrennium." If there's a second to the motion, then I would just...

BISHOP HEARN: Does this come from the committee?

HOLSINGER: This does come from the committee, so we can move ahead.

BISHOP HEARN: It comes from the committee, so its properly before us.

HOLSINGER: This would allow us to set that level at 23, and it would allow us to move on then beyond the year 2000 quadrennium after we have finished the connectional process teamwork and have gone though this interim quadrennium to develop the size of this agency at whatever would come to us in 2000 General Conference from the CPT, or Connectional Process Team. Also, as part of this would be a requirement to amend, at the top of the next page, where it says, "The Council of Bishops: six members," would read instead "two members."

BISHOP HEARN: This item now is before us, starting on page 386 and going over to 387. Back in the back, microphone 14.

GILBERT HANKE (Texas): United Methodist Men concur with this action.

BISHOP HEARN: Thank you very much, Gil. The matter is now before you for these two changes in the numbers. Prepare to express yourself when the light appears. [821 approved] All right, you have concurred with the recommendation which has come from the committee.

Move Jurisdiction UM Presidents to New Commission

HOLSINGER: If you will turn to page 452, Calendar Item 1754, middle left-hand column. This particular legislation deals with the organization of the General Board of Discipleship. In order to conform this legislation to the size of the United Methodist Men's general commission, we would need to do the following things. We would need to amend paragraph 1204.1 to read as follows: "The Board shall consist of 58 members" instead of 63. And if you will go to the top of the next column, we would need to amend paragraph 1204.1a to read, and these are numbers: "North Central, 6," instead of 7, "Northeastern, 7," instead of 8, "South Central, 9" instead of 10, "Southeastern, 12" instead of 13, and "Western, 2" instead of 3. Follow the "3" of Western with a period and strike the remainder of the paragraph. What this effectively does is to move the five jurisdictional presidents of the United Methodist Men from the Board of Discipleship to the United Methodist Men's—General Commission on United Methodist Men, which is a part of their legislation to have them included in that general commission.

BISHOP HEARN: This amendment is before us. Yes, over here. Microphone 1.

HARRIET OLSON (Northern New Jersey): I'd like to try a substitute, if I may.

BISHOP HEARN: Please.

OLSON: Leaving the beginning of 1204.1 as it is so that it would remain 64 members, I would propose to make—that is leaving it the way it is in the DCA. I propose to make an amendment in 1204.1a, and the amendment would be after “Western, 3,” to place a period and delete the rest of the paragraph.

BISHOP HEARN: The amendment is before us. Is there a second? There is a second.

OLSON: The purpose of the amendment is to retain the board size of 63 members. I recognize that this would mean that the total number of board members in paragraph 805 would have to be raised to 655, but I think that we would benefit from having the additional members, that we would lose if we consider, if we were of the view that the jurisdictional men's presidents had not been full participants in the board. That's not how the board has functioned in the past quadrennium. We have a lot of program work, as you know, and we've been referred some very important items like the ministry of the laity, and following up on the bishops' work in that area, and I think that the representation would be very helpful to us. So that's why I would make the substitution.

BISHOP HEARN: The amendment is before us. Jim, do you wish to speak to that?

HOLSINGER: Harriet's motion simply would result in the action in petition 1754, simply the deletion of the five United Methodist Men's jurisdictional presidents. The rest of the size of the General Board of Discipleship would remain the same, and we would simply, when we get to the next item which it 805, we would amend the 640 to 655 instead of the 650.

BISHOP HEARN: OK. The amendment calls for raising the number proposed by the committee from 58 members to 63 members on the Board of Discipleship. Express yourself when the light appears. [Results: yes, 380; no, 502] The number remains at the recommendation of the committee at this time. If you are now ready to vote on the recommendation of the committee for the changes in the numbers, you will express yourself when the light appears. [Results: yes, 823; no, 63] That recommendation of the committee is concurred.

HOLSINGER: Bishop, recommendation number is done in order to conform paragraph 805 to meet the needs of the creation of the General Commission on United Methodist Men. You will find it on page 310 of the blue DCA. It's Calendar Item 856 at the bottom of the right-hand column. You will find just the title at that point, and then it runs on into the next page.

This item has been lifted from the Consent Calendar. It is my understanding that the individuals that lifted it from the Consent Calendar may be satisfied with the reasons for which they wish to lift that paragraph, Bishop, so I don't know if there is anything else we need to do other than to confirm it at this time. And perhaps whoever lifted it would want to say whether they are satisfied or not.

BISHOP HEARN: All right. What change is being recommended by the committee?

Correlate All Discipline References to Agency Membership Numbers

HOLSINGER: Recommendations by the committee are as follows. If you will look at paragraph 805.1a. By addition—you are looking at the top of the middle column on page 311. You will find the list of the 13 general agencies of the church. Following the General Commission on the Status and Role of Women would be a comma and the General Commission on United Methodist Men. And you would authorize that the Committee on Correlation and Editorial Review to conform all lists of general agencies in the Book of Discipline to this paragraph.

If you will go over to the right-hand column on page 311, come down two-thirds of the way almost to the bottom of the page, you will see paragraph 805.2e, which reads “a total of 119 at-large members for inclusiveness in experience,” and that number would change to 124. Paragraph 805.2f dealing with 51 episcopal leaders would go from 51 to 53. Paragraph 805.2g would be changed from 640 to 650. And if you would go to the following page, following item j in the middle of the left-hand column of page 312, we would need to add an additional paragraph 805.2k as follows: “A total of 16 persons, at least one of whom shall be a Central Conference member, will be elected in accordance with the legislation creating the General Commission on United Methodist Men.” I think that that would be changed, once we know the exact paragraph number, to read in accordance with whatever the paragraph is. But it's the way in which the individuals have been listed to be elected by the United Methodist Men in their legislation.

BISHOP HEARN: This is the recommendation of the committee to bring this legislation in conformity with legislation, which you have already adopted. So the matter is now before us. Yes? Back here. Microphone 7.

Membership of 23 Member UM Men Commission

BYRD L. BONNER (Southwest Texas): I have a point of clarification. It relates to the 16 members in subparagraph 2k that you just added, Jim. Referring back to blue DCA, page 387, I want to make sure that it's clear we have changed the number 3 on the top line of the left-hand column to 2, correct?

HOLSINGER: Six to two.

BONNER: Sorry, six to two?

HOLSINGER: That's correct.

BONNER: So now it reads, "two members elected by each jurisdictional conference upon nomination by the Jurisdictional Committee on United Methodist Men, which will include at least one clergy, one woman, ethnic representation, and the jurisdictional president of the United Methodist Men"?

HOLSINGER: Correct. That is the 15 in that 16, and it includes the five presidents that we have moved from the General Board of Discipleship, plus the one individual, one elected president of National Organization of United Methodist Men of a Central Conference or conferences, which is on down in the paragraph. That is the 16. We reduced this from 43 to 23, and those are the four members out of that six times five jurisdictions at the top of the page.

BONNER: Well, I just want to make sure when we get to jurisdictional conference and do this process we know what we're doing. Because two members from each jurisdictional conference that includes at least one clergy, at least one woman, and the jurisdictional president of the United Methodist Men may present a problem.

HOLSINGER: Well, but you go on, and there are five representatives of National Association Conference Presidents, including the national president. That's the five plus ten is fifteen. Then you have five members-at-large, one central conference member, and two bishops....

BONNER: Well, I understand that, but can you explain to me how two people elected at each jurisdictional conference to include at least one woman, at least one clergy, and the jurisdictional president of United Methodist Men works.

HOLSINGER: Yes. I can. There are two times five and, makes ten, plus the five in the middle of the page where it says five representatives of the National Association of Conference Presidents, including the national president. Those individuals might be presumed to be males.

BONNER: Well, I can understand that, but the five representatives of the National Association of Conference Presidents of United Methodist Men would not necessarily be the jurisdictional president of the United Methodist Men.

HOLSINGER: It might not be, but I would anticipate that that's what the United Methodist Men have in mind.

BONNER: Am I reading this wrong or does this present a conflict, that we've got two representatives elected in July at each jurisdictional conference that are anticipated to be divided three ways?

HOLSINGER: Well, I'll try it again. There are 15 individuals plus one from the Central Conference. That's the 16 in paragraph 2k. That includes the five jurisdictional presidents of United Methodist Men, plus one clergy, and one woman. I don't know how else to lay it out any clearer than that. We're trying to amend their numbers from 43 to 23 in a way that leaves their electoral process approximately intact. We could go back in and really try to revise that whole piece, but we're going into a quadrennium where we are going to be looking at a transitional quadrennium, and that's why we built into their paragraph the quadrennium 1997-2000 for this number, because we would anticipate that, as we go through the transitional quadrennium, the Connectional Process Team will be looking at all general agencies to determine exactly how they will be structured and how their membership will be assigned.

BISHOP HEARN: OK. In the back. Microphone 12.

JEFF QUICK (North Arkansas): Point of clarification. It's my understanding that General Commissions must have youth and young adult representatives. If that is the case, has that been cared for?

HOLSINGER: Yes. You will find in their paragraph that it includes two. Where they also will be—and since they are working under the same 10 percent rule that we'd announced when we talked about this earlier in the week, which is in this particular implementing legislation, 10 percent of 23 is roughly two. So that number seems to fall pretty well.

BISHOP HEARN: These matters have been presented to you by the committee. Are you ready to vote on this matter now? If you then will prepare your decision on Calendar Item 856 and vote when the light appears. You have approved that calendar item. [827 approved]

HOLSINGER: Thank you my friends. I can go home.

BISHOP HEARN: Dr. Jim, thank you.

DAVID SEVERE: I want to express appreciation, not only to Jim Holsinger but to Elaine Stanovsky and Anna Workman, and Byrd who has raised questions, but he's also worked late into the night. And Merl Griffith who has given us a lot of advice. We appreciate them very much.

BISHOP HEARN: Thank you David. Good. Thank you. (applause) I want to come back....

BISHOP HEARN: I want to come back after the conferences, Dr. Hunter.

Schedule for Printing of Petitions

GEORGE G. HUNTER (Florida): Yes, Bishop. Thanks for your patience. I think at last we are ready. If you will turn in your blue to page 130. You will find Item 98 had been placed on the Consent Calendar.

It is Petition 22168. In that version of the petition you will find it in your white book. The petition itself page 1263, and it's at the bottom left of that page. Petition 22168, this regards the schedule for the printing of petitions.

Our original for the publishing of the DCA...our original petition asks that it be published 120 days in advance. What we have worked out, that in fact confirms to the amendment that was offered, is for the office to receive petition from agencies and others 150 days before General Conference. It takes 60 days to do the editing, 30 days to do the printing, and that would permit them then to get it out 60 days ahead of General Conference for all of the delegates. And so we would support the amendment as a friendly amendment, bishop.

BISHOP HEARN: All right, if the house will allow then, we would just incorporate the 150 days, which was one of the amendments that we had before the house when we recessed this matter. Is there any objection in the body for the change of that to 150 days? I hear no objections. All right, if you will go on with your other matters.

All right what is your point of order? We also have another amendment that was resting on this matter concerning language that was there. Are you having the point of order back here? Microphone...to the gentleman coming across there toward microphone 6 is the one I am recognizing.

UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER: (through translation) We delegates from the Central Conferences. We are so grateful to this General Conference for the translation in Swahili. We thank you very much our brothers and sisters who accepted to do this translation so we may participate into this big event. And we look forward to the day that we will receive this material ahead of time into languages that we can understand. Thank you very much.

BISHOP HEARN: Thank you. I would like to clarify where we are. We need now to take time to be sure that Dr. Hunter has had the opportunity to put before us the matter that has come from the committee. And then we have another amendment, which will be on the matter after Dr. Hunter has explained it. So you just hold just a minute until we are sure what we have before the house. Dr. Hunter, any other remarks you need to make?

HUNTER: Yes, Bishop, in a nut shell, we are proposing an amendment with our colleague in the audience that the goal of having petitions and that the petition secretary 120 days prior to the opening session of General Conference be changed to 150 days. And the staff concurs that will be the main, and we commend it.

BISHOP HEARN: This is the main motion then that we change the 120 of the action that you took earlier to the 150. Now I want to remind you that we have another motion that is on the floor that goes with this, which is that the Commission on the General Conference be asked to pay attention to the possibility of providing the material in languages for the delegates. Now we have those...that is the amendment that is before us. OK, only the discussion of the amendment now until we have taken care of it. I recognize way back in the corner over here on this side, please. Microphone 10.

LINDA BALES (West Ohio): It's my understanding that if we change the time to 150 days that...

BISHOP HEARN: OK, that's not the matter that's before us now. It is the matter of the language that's before us now. Linda you come back and try again later.

Lets see I'll go here in the middle this time. Please, microphone 8.

THEODORE SMITH (Virginia): I want to ask Dr. Hunter if we just can't accept this as a friendly amendment?

BISHOP HEARN: The matter of the language? Dr. Hunter, what your response?

Proposed Referral to Commission on General Conference

HUNTER: I cannot presume to speak for what is possible for the staff in that regard. I would suggest that the matter be proposed to the General Conference Commission. It's probably the right thing to do.

BISHOP HEARN: It's my understanding that the maker of the motion, that was his intention, that it be a matter that would be referred to the General Conference Commission. If that is his motion, are you willing to accept that?

HUNTER: Yes

BISHOP HEARN: Is there any objections to the house for that amendment to be accepted as a part of the motion that's before us? I hear no objections. So the matter that before us now is that the changing of the 150 days and also the matter concerning the language. OK, Linda. Microphone 10.

BALES: Bishop, it's my understanding that if we change that to 150 days that may be very problematic for at least two of the general agencies GCOM and GCFA in terms of their annual meetings getting their petitions on time.

BISHOP HEARN: Someone wish to respond to this inquiry? Yes. Microphone 2

CARL SCHENCK (Missouri East): Bishop, in light of our complicated parliamentary position and in light of the fact we do not have sufficient information to understand all the implications, I move that we refer all that is before us to the Commission on the General Conference, which shall be instructed to bring a report and any recommended legislation on the subject to the General Conference in 2000.

BISHOP HEARN: Is this a motion for the referral for the matter that is before us. The only proper discussion now is whether or not to refer. Alright, back to your own dial.

REX BEVINS (Nebraska): I would like to speak against the motion to refer, that only delays it simply another four years. I believe it can be done now.

BISHOP HEARN: All right.

PHIL GRANGER (North Indiana): Bishop, I move to suspend the rules and vote on all that is before us.

BISHOP HEARN: All right. If you will suspend the rules and vote on the matter which is before us, which would be first of all the matter of referral, if you will suspend the rules, indicate whether you will or not as your light appears. Takes two-thirds vote, of course. [833 approved] You obviously are ready to vote.

150 Days and Language Translations Approved

If you will refer this matter to the Commission on General Conference, you will make your decision either

"yes" or "no." Vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 292; no, 605] The matter is not referred, so it is before us. We will now proceed to vote, and the major things that you're voting on has to do with the question concerning the language, and the 150 days. Prepare to make your decisions and vote when the light appears. [838 approved] And it has been approved.

GEORGE HUNTER (Florida): Bishop, the Rev. Paul Extrum-Fernandez from California-Nevada will present one other priority petition.

BISHOP HEARN: All right. We've changed identities, I believe, at the podium. Bishop Dew.

BISHOP DEW: Yes, let me explain. The General Council on Ministries is entitled to make presentations to the General Conference. There are two bodies that have that privilege. The other is the General Council on Finance and Administration. So I ask you to turn in the Advance DCA to page 196. You will notice on page 196, Petition 21618. It is dealing with paragraph 726 in the current Discipline.

BISHOP HEARN: All right, Bishop Dew.

BISHOP DEW: This matter was referred by the conference to the Legislative Committee on Conferences. The General Council on Ministries has presented to you a way they would like to see this chapter amended. The General Council on Ministries is very much in agreement with the goal of providing flexibility in the structuring in the local church in the annual conferences. However, sometimes in the interest of brevity and reduction of descriptive language, we may act too hastily.

We believe we're moving into a transition time in this quadrennium between 1996 and the year 2000. We are concerned that if certain matters become reduced for brevity's sake that they may not serve us well. The Committee on Conferences will share with you in a minute what they have recommended to you, and we want you to know what we as the General Council on Ministries are recommending in this matter on page 196. It lays out very carefully ways to care for flexibility. In other words, each annual conference will decide whether it wants to continue with a Council on Ministries or other structures to provide for the functions of the council and provide the connectional relationships. I will stop at this point and then after the committee presents to you their recommendation, I will have a further word.

Conference Council on Ministries Debated

PAUL EXTRUM-FERNANDEZ (California-Nevada): Thank you Bishop Dew. Some of you may not know this, but my dad serves as one of the district superintendents in the Oregon-Idaho Conference where Bishop Dew serves as the episcopal leader. So dad, if you're out there—he's one of the reserve delegates—I want you to know that after this minority report you can still come home to California. OK?

I want to direct your attention to page 543 in the blue DCA. Calendar Item 2001—kind of appropriate for the next century. That effectively there, the calendar item, is, I guess you could say the minority report. It is what the Legislative Committee is presenting to the body here. We voted for it 63, 7 against. I want to describe a little about the committee process that we utilized in the subcommittee. There was an open exchange of dialogue about the future of ministry for the annual conference. Members on the subcommittee included three Council on Ministry directors, other conference staff, at least two CCOM chairs, and representatives from each of the jurisdictions. It's interesting, members of the subcommittee didn't start debate on this item in the same place, but we reached consensus on the proposal before you today.

Janice Huie helped us this afternoon when she talked about mission, flexibility, and connection. Well, those were major themes that we discussed and that emerged in our discussion. Again mission, flexibility, and connection. The legislative committee proposal before you today is an offering to the church of an opportunity to organize missional structures that are appropriate for their regions. At the same time we wanted to ensure consistency in the relational and functional aspects of those missional structures. Our legislation identifies specific functions that need to be implemented at every annual conference. That is, administration and evaluation; advocacy; maintaining connectional relationships; organizing, developing, and strengthening ethnic ministries and ethnic local church concerns; and finally, coordination and support of ministries of nurture, outreach, and witness.

It is our position that the strength of connectivism is found in our common understanding of mission. The fundamental difference between the GCOM's proposal and the legislative committee's proposal is that the GCOM's proposal, although allowing for some equivalent structures, still maintains language related to a Council of Ministries that clearly defines the organization structure that body shall maintain. OK?

This is not the kind of flexibility that has been explored and expressed in previous actions of this general conference. The legislative committee proposal offers flexibility to an annual conference to develop organizational units to meet their unique needs. At the same time, we are keeping functional consistency throughout the denomination. Also, if an annual conference wants to maintain a Conference Council on Ministries, it can continue that form of structure. It is clear that one of the tasks of the General Council on Ministries, as a result of this legislation, would be to work directly with annual conferences in designing specific regional structures. We feel this would not only strengthen our conferences but would strengthen the connection between annual conferences and the General Council on Ministries.

BISHOP HEARN: All right, what we have here is the matter of the material on page 196 in the Advance DCA, being presented by the Council on Ministries, which is properly before us according to the rules. And then the matter in the blue DCA on page 543, being submitted by the legislative committee as an amendment to the report which has been presented by the Council on Ministries.

So this is the way we will proceed to deal with this matter, which is to consider the material on page 196 as the main motion that is before us and then the legislative committee has proposed that this material be amended with the material that they're presenting on page 543. Is this agreed? All right. We have then before us the amendment, which is the material on page 543, which is the recommendation of the committee. Right over here. Microphone number 4.

CHARLIE DUNDAS (Minnesota): As a member of the subcommittee and the legislative committee I want to say that Paul has done an excellent job in describing the process and the lengthy discussion that we had relative to this action brought by the committee. And I want to speak against the amendment. It was said that, or given the impression, that the primary motivation for this action is brevity. I want to assure you, friends, that that is not the primary motivation. The motivation for this is for the sake of flexibility and creativity. And it rests on trust and the commitment and the talent of the annual conference leadership in every annual conference. It in no way precludes what is in place now in any annual conference.

BISHOP HEARN: You have less than a minute left.

DUNDAS: And I just want to say that when I look out at this General Conference, and I reflect on our own conference, I'm confident that there is the talent in this church to make this kind of flexibility and creativity workable. And I trust we will vote for the committee's recommendation.

BISHOP HEARN: All right. That is one speech for the amendment that's before us. I'll come over here to this side. My backups tell me I've been ignoring this corner. So I'm going to try to make that up.

DAVID WILSON (Little Rock): I move we suspend the rules and vote on all that's before the house.

BISHOP HEARN. All right. If you will suspend the rules, you need to get ready to make your decision. All right. Let's have the point of verification and then I'll take the vote. You're going to have to go to a microphone. I can hear you but there are other people in the house that cannot. It's about the page numbers.

LARRY HODGES (Oklahoma): You told us it was on page 196 in the red. They showed and told us 193. Which page is it?

PAUL EXTRUM-FERNANDEZ (California-Nevada): The committee report and recommendation is Calendar Item 2001 on page 543 of the blue DCA, 543 of the blue DCA, is the committee report which is effectively the amendment to GCOM's petition which is on page 196 of the red DCA.

BISHOP HEARN: The 193 is wrong as it's printed in the blue book.

EXTRUM-FERNANDEZ: If you want to know the Calendar Item that GCOM is, it's Calendar Item...we'll let me say the page number first. Page 343, and it's Calendar Item 1151.

BISHOP HEARN: We have a motion that we suspend the rules and proceed to vote. You'll make your decision on that, please, when the light appears. [786 approved] You have indicated that you're ready to vote. The matter which is before us now is in the blue book on page 543, Calendar Item number 2001, which is a substitute for the matter which is on page 196 in the red book. All right, what is your question? Microphone 8.

WILLIAM THIELKING (Southern New Jersey): May we have a synopsis of exactly what we're going to be voting on, cause it's very confusing at the present moment?

BISHOP HEARN: All right. Let me see if I can help. If you will turn in your blue DCA to page 543 and look in the bottom of the left hand corner of that page. What you are going to be voting on now is printed in the bold-faced type. This is the recommendation that is coming from the committee, which is an amendment to the larger block of material on page 196 in the red book that has been presented by the General Council on Ministries. All right, we are now in the process of voting.

THIELKING: Do I get a final comment?

BISHOP HEARN: You can have one. If you do not have a point of order or inquiry, you'll be out of order when you get to the microphone. The house has all ready indicated by a big block of vote that it is ready to vote. So, All right, your point of order please. In the back, back there.

ROBERT T. CASEY (Virginia): Bishop, the petition on which we are voting is not on the page that was called. It's on page 193 rather than 196, according to the item here.

BISHOP HEARN: We'll ask the two chairpersons to clear this up for us.

EXTRUM-FERNANDEZ: Bob, what you're referring to is the original petition, but that was subsequently amended and the amended petition effectively appears on page 543 of the blue DCA. OK? That's what you're voting on, not that petition.

BISHOP HEARN: The matter which the committee has put before us is in the bottom of the column on page 543. Prepare yourselves to vote when the light appears. Oh, I'm sorry. Hold on just a minute. The chair has the opportunity to make a final word before you vote. Bishop Dew.

Bishop Dew.

BISHOP DEW: I think both what I have to say and what Paul has to say are very similar. Flexibility is provided. What we are concerned about is that in the next year or two each annual conference having conference council directors and staff need some time to move into new structures, and the flexibility is provided under this petition on page 196. If you vote the other report, you really eliminate paragraphs about the committee on Hispanic Ministry Plan and other matters that we think need to be looked at before we move to that very brief statement that minimizes a lot of concerns that the conference councils deal with. So we urge you to take a very careful look at this action that you are now about to decide.

BISHOP HEARN: Thank you. We will hear now from the chair of the committee, and then we will proceed immediately to vote.

PAUL EXTRUM-FERNANDEZ: I'll be brief. When the light appears, vote "yes." (laughter)

Vote on Conference Structure Taken

BISHOP HEARN: Cast your ballot when you see the light. The amendment which was proposed by the committee has been adopted [Results: yes, 623; no, 293] We now need to vote upon this amendment as the main motion, because it was actually replacing all of the material that was in the other report, as I understand it. So if you will now make this amendment the main motion, you will indicate by—no you won't. You just vote when the light appears. [750 approved] It has passed.

GEORGE HUNTER: (Florida) And Bishop, to complete our priority items, Beth Cook brings a matter that would require a constitutional amendment. And Don Avery brings a matter that would reconcile our proposal on an item with earlier legislation.

BISHOP HEARN: Good, Dr. Hunter.

BETH COOK (North Georgia): If you would turn in your blue DCA on page 477, Calendar Item 1979.

BISHOP HEARN: Would you give the page number again please?

COOK: Page 477.

BISHOP HEARN: Thank you.

Constitutional Amendment for Deaconess Membership in Annual Conference

COOK: You saw this earlier in the week as Calendar Item 416. But after some discussion here, it was referred back to our legislative committee, and now it returns to you with our recommendation to concur as amended.

You'll find the supporting information on page 1259 in the white DCA. And the action that this petition would bring would simply bring the constitution into alignment with the disciplinary provision in paragraph 1418 that allows a deaconess to be a member of the annual conference. And our committee's vote was 66 for and none opposing.

BISHOP HEARN: It is bringing a nonconcurrency on this item. It is now before us.

CAROLYN MARSHALL: Concurrence.

BISHOP HEARN: Concurrence. I was just testing to see if you were awake. Microphone 6.

DENNY WHITE: This is the second time I've spoken on this matter, and I apologize for that. But I would like to propose an amendment, or an additional amendment, to the one offered by the committee, that following the words "under episcopal appointment" there be inserted the words "within the bounds of the annual conference." And, if I can have a second, I'll explain why I want to try to do that.

BISHOP HEARN: Is there a second? It's seconded.

WHITE: Bishop and members, deaconesses do not relate to annual conferences exactly in the same way that diaconal ministers or other persons do. They don't, in fact, except by this provision, hold membership in the annual conference. I feel we need some specificity to indicate precisely to which annual conference each active deaconess belongs.

BETH L. COOK (North Georgia): Bishop, we would accept that amendment.

BISHOP HEARN: The committee is indicating that they would accept this. Is there any objection from the house that that be done? If there is no objection, then that is accepted by the committee and the matter is before us. You'll vote when the light appears. This will, of course, require two-thirds vote because it is a constitutional amendment. [805 approved] And it has passed by the sufficient number of votes. Dr. Hunter, is there another matter? Don Avery.

DONALD R. AVERY (Louisiana): To clear up two matters on similar Disciplinary paragraphs that ended up being reported out of two committees. The first is found on page 303 in the blue DCA, reported as Calendar Item 800. The full text of the petition is there. However, on Discipline paragraph 702, there was also a petition reported by the Committee on Ordained Ministry, and that petition was acted upon on the Consent Calendar earlier, and it deals with all of part one.

So if you would turn the page to 304, what we would like to do at this time is to delete all of the information from the bottom of the previous page down to, you see, add a new number two. The language there should be to renumber as follows and then to present before the General Conference that information which would deal with the lay membership of the annual conference and would be consistent with prior action that had already been taken by this General Conference. The prior calendar item taken up by the Ordained Ministry was Calendar Item 948, which is found on page 322 in the blue DCA, with the full text being in the red book on page 1021.

This deals with the matter of composition and character of annual conference. And we feel that we're in agreement with what has already been passed by this conference as proposed by the Ordained Ministry Committee. So in fact what we would be doing, is we would be voting for all of the information on page 304, beginning with the lay membership of the annual conference down to the middle and the top far right of that page. We place it before you requesting concurrence.

BISHOP HEARN: Don, when you start where it says, "lay membership of the annual conference" at the bottom of the first column on page 304, and then how far down on the middle column do you proceed with the material that you're putting before the conference?

Laity Vote on Board of Ordained Ministry

EVERY: You go through the complete...all the way up to the top "representatives from other denominations" the only changes there are in the bold from the present Discipline and also those areas where it was struck. But this was also in conjunction with the recommendations from the Ordained Ministry Committee, that lay persons on the Board of Ordained Ministry would be able to vote on matters of ordination and character.

BISHOP HEARN: The matter is before you with concurrence with the committee. Please prepare yourselves to vote for this matter that has been put before you by the committee. Excuse me, there's a question down here.

DAVID RICHARDSON: (California-Pacific): I have a question. Sorry, in my denseness at this time of night. With this change now from what we're doing is it that lay members on the Board of Ordained Ministry cannot vote?

EVERY: No, they will be able to vote.

BISHOP HEARN: All right, I see you in the back, back there. Please hurry to microphone 15 or 14.

SHARON HAUSMAN (West Ohio): I'm probably making a major mistake here. Because ...well...anyhow, I would like to amend...actually I think I'd like to sit down. (laughter)

BISHOP HEARN: You've got an inquiry up here somewhere. Yes? Thank you for your honesty back there at microphone 14.

DAVID WILSON (Little Rock): Have we already voted to recommend that the Constitution be amended to allow lay members to vote on character of pastors?

BISHOP HEARN: Will the committee respond to that?

EVERY: If my memory is correct that was handled by the Ministry Committee report. And in long conversations with representatives from that committee, we talked about this at length; and the information that was passed on to us was that this was in compliance with the material that they had acted upon.

WILSON: OK, sir.

BISHOP HEARN: All right it's my understanding now that this is material which we need to pass in order to have...so that it'll be in line with material, which you've already passed. Are you prepared to vote on this matter? Back here in the back. Over here.

CHARLES "DENNY" WHITE (Western North Carolina): Again at this hour I may just be expressing my own stupidity, but in the middle column on page 304 in the first full paragraph, which begins "each charge served by more than one clergy under appointment." I simply have a question for the committee representative. In the current discipline the wording is "each charge served by more than one clergy member under appointment shall be entitled to as many lay members as there are clergy members under appointment." And I wonder if the omission of the word "member" in two instances is intentional?

EVERY: No, and we'll be more than happy to add that for clarity. The intent was to reprint the Discipline as it presently is.

WHITE: So you do agree to the insertion of those...the word "members" in those two places.

EVERY: I'll agree.

BISHOP HEARN: If no objection to the house, the word "members" will be included in that section. Are you ready to vote now? If you will prepare yourselves for voting, and I believe that there's some material in here that probably relates to the Constitution, although it's not printed that way; and so we will look to see if it gets two-thirds majority. If you will prepare to vote and vote when the light appears. Let it be noted that it passed by 95 percent of the votes. [844 approved]

EVERY: The other item that we have that we would like to withdraw, is found on page 477 in the blue DCA, Calendar Item 1978. It deals with Constitution, paragraph 38 and by prior action...in fact, this evening on page 375 when we dealt with Calendar Item 1555. And so we're just wanting to make it clear that this matter is withdrawn in order to be in compliance and to be clear with the action that was previously taken this earlier evening.

BISHOP HEARN: If you will make your decision. If you will agree with the committee on the withdrawal of this item, prepare to vote when the light appears. [850 approved] You have agreed with the committee.

EVERY: Thank you, bishop. I've just been told by one of my fellow committee members that we have one more constitutional amendment.

BISHOP HEARN: All right.

JUDITH SIABA (Northern Illinois): I'll go at the beginning instead of the middle. If you would turn to your blue book page 384. Please look at Calendar Item 1671. This calls for a change in the Constitution. We voted, lay members voting on the Board of Ordained Ministry, we voted 66 for, zero against. And we...I move concurrence as amended, and you see the amendment right there before you.

BISHOP HEARN: The matter is before us from the committee with a recommendation of concurrence. Be prepared to make your decision when the light appears. You have supported the committee's recommendation.

SIABA: Thank you, Bishop.

BISHOP HEARN: Janice Huie, if you will come also to the platform to be prepared to present a matter. Go ahead. All right in the back. Microphone 9.

GREGORY STOVER (West Ohio): I have a question of parliamentary inquiry which refers to the blue DCA, the second page 38, rule number 21, "Tabling of Related Motions." According to this rule, no motion, which adheres to another motion or has another motion adhering to it, can be laid on the table itself. Such motions, if laid on the table, carry with them the motions to which they adhere or which adhere to them. Last night when we were discussing...

BISHOP HEARN: I'm going to ask you to hold this matter. The items that are on the ... coming from the legislative committees at this point have priority and we'll get back to you for later discussion of that.

STOVER: You'll call on me?

BISHOP HEARN: If I recognize you, I will.

PAUL EXTRUM-FERNANDEZ (California-Nevada): Thank you, Bishop. I have two items, two constitutional items to bring before you tonight. One we have already acted on and will need reconsideration. The other was deferred until this evening. Both of them deal, in some part, to General Conference delegate composition. In order...today you acted on several items in the Consent Calendar related to paragraph 602 in the Discipline; 602 describes the formula that is used to compute delegates for annual conferences to General Conference.

Effective Bishops as Members of General Conference

We, as a body, referred all of those petitions to the General Council on Ministries Connectional Issues Study. I imagine that becomes the CPT team now. In subsequent conversation in the legislative committee and among the legislative committee executive officers, and also with about 25 different delegations on the floor tonight, we are prepared to offer a possible solution for dealing with some of the inequity that is currently present because of the way the formula is applied. To do that I would need to move reconsideration of Calendar Item 34, which is found on page 96 of the blue DCA. It is on the bottom left-hand corner. You will notice that it says, as it's titled, "Effective Bishops as Members of General Conference." That will not be the intent of the amendment that I will suggest.

BISHOP HEARN: What is the number item?"

PAUL EXTRUM-FERNANDEZ (California-Nevada): OK, the Calendar Item 34, and that was found again in your blue DCA on page 96. We have already acted on this Consent Calendar, I believe it was last Saturday.

BISHOP HEARN: If you will reconsider this, you will need to make your decision whether or not you will reconsider it and vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 602; no, 267] It is reconsidered.

EXTRUM-FERNANDEZ: OK, if you will turn to page 175 in your red DCA. You will notice Petition 20556, it's the top left-hand corner, it's related to paragraph 12, says "effective Bishops as members of General Conference." I'm going to attempt something here now. The amendment that we are suggesting would read: "The General Conference shall be composed of" and then delete the words "the effective bishops of The United Methodist Church" and delete those bolded words. Continuing, "not less than 600 nor more than 1,125 additional delegates." I'm sorry, "delegates, one-half of whom shall be clergy and one-half lay members," and then so on. So again, the amendment would read, "The General Conference shall be composed of not less than 600 nor more than 1,125 delegates, one half of whom shall be clergy and one-half lay members." If I get a second I'll speak to it.

BISHOP HEARN: Please speak.

Annual Conference Delegations to General Conference

EXTRUM-FERNANDEZ: OK. One of the issues that was raised in discussion of this item, specifically in paragraph 602, was the inequity that was created when we had a 1,000-member delegate limit. What happens is, roughly 48 annual conferences, because of the 1,000-member delegate limit, are essentially reduced in their delegate count. The formula that is currently in 602, which relates to paragraph 12 and paragraph 14, is not able to be utilized to its fullest extent in those 48 annual conferences. This motion would rectify that to some extent. We understand that we need to look carefully at the complexity of isues related to equity. This is only attempting to address one issue of equity. There are several issues of equity that are important.

Funding Additional General Conference Delegates

Let me, I'm sure there are some questions about what are the financial implications of this. I spoke with Gary Bowen of General Council on Finance and Administration. The approximate cost per delegate is approximately 1,750 bucks. You multiply that, and by the formula that Bob Casey from Virginia and a couple of other members of the legislative committee worked out, it looked like this provision, and if we were to actually allow the fullest extent of the legislation to take place, would add about 100 folks to General Conference. Well, if you multiply 100 folks times 1,750 bucks—thank you—would be $175,000. That would need to be found in the current General Conference operation. Now there are a number of ways of addressing that. One would be, obviously, looking at the per diem. There are other economies that might be implemented by the Commission on the General Conference. But anyway, that's before you.

BISHOP HEARN: OK, the matter of changing these numbers, and this is a constitutional matter that would take two-thirds vote. All right, down close to the aisle here. Microphone 8.

WILLIAM QUICK (Detroit): I'd like to ask Paul, that will be 562 clergy, 562 laity. How are you going to divide up that 25th person?

EXTRUM-FERNANDEZ: Good point. How about at 1,120 then. I'll make an amendment on my motion.

BISHOP HEARN: OK, over here, close to microphone 7.

T. TERRELL SESSUMS (Florida): Bishop, members of the conference, I would speak in support of the action proposed by the committee after consultation with many delegations. The number is a limit. We don't fully reach our present limit. When the calculations are actually made, we may very easily, and probably will, accommodate the problem so there will be no need to divide any delegate. Earlier today, by the action of this General Conference, you gave the Florida Conference the privilege of paying the largest apportionment of any conference in The United Methodist Church. And we are pleased to have an opportunity to play a major role in our connexional church. We hope that you would permit this action to go forward so that we might be full partners along with some 47 other conferences in the deliberations. You will provide for a much more inclusive General Conference. You will bring equity and legitimacy to our decisions. And I would suggest to you that that increased feeling of partnership will energize many conferences so that you will more than make up any cost by the increased giving and payment of our apportionments. So we would encourage you to make all of our conferences equal partners in this endeavor and to vote yes for the committee proposal.

BISHOP HEARN: This is a speech for the committee's proposal...

BISHOP HEARN: This is a speech for the committee's proposal. Would you be willing to have one speech against and then proceed to vote on this matter? OK. Are you speaking against it, way back here in this corner? Only a speech against it is in order. Microphone 10.

GLENN B. KOHLHEPP (Western Pennsylvania): Bishop, I'd like to ask when the committee met and considered this and what the vote of the committee was?

BISHOP HEARN: Could we have the committee respond to that?

PAUL EXTRUM-FERNANDEZ (California-Nevada): It was really a discussion among the executive committee officers. It was not a legislative committee item.

BISHOP HEARN: Is there someone who wishes to speak against the proposal? I think that the chair made it clear, at the time that the matter was presented to the house, the origin of it. And that's the reason why he asked if there was a second on the house, did not consider it as a report from the committee. All right, over here on this corner. Microphone 4.

DON MENDENHALL (Iowa): I would really like to see this on paper, have a lot more discussion on it. I think this is too major of a decision to come this quickly. So I really would vote against this.

BISHOP HEARN: All right. We've had one speech for, one speak against. Are you ready to vote now? If you will prepare your decision and vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 483; no, 407] It does not pass. It would require a two-thirds majority.

EXTRUM-FERNANDEZ: OK, if you'll turn to page 167 in the blue DCA, to Calendar Item 408.

BISHOP HEARN: Paul, I need to ask, is this from the committee?

EXTRUM-FERNANDEZ: Yes, it is. Actually, I may be wrong on this one here.

BISHOP HEARN: All right, would you step away from the podium then until you find it?

Ratio of Representatives in Conferences Referred

EXTRUM-FERNANDEZ: No, it's right here. It's page 167, the bottom of 408, Calendar Item 408 there, "Ratio of Representatives in Central, General, Jurisdictional conferences," etc., and it continues on to the next page. The committee recommended concurrence as amended. The petition there, now, because of the referrals that we made on paragraph 602, we are not—we made the referrals after we took action on this particular item and realized that when we made those referrals that we no longer had a formula that would be in compliance with this particular paragraph. So the committee, in this case, did act to refer this item as it did paragraph 602. And it did so at the same count. If you look at pages 340 in the blue DCA, you'll see a number of petitions beginning with 1111, and continuing on through 1120. All of those items were recommended for referral to GCOM's Connexional Issues Study.

BISHOP HEARN: OK, so what are you putting before us now?

EXTRUM-FERNANDEZ: Well, we're recommending referral rather than concurrence at this point.

BISHOP HEARN: All right. You're recommending referral, then, of Item Number 408 to whom? Paul?

EXTRUM-FERNANDEZ: Yes, that's right, to GCOM, CPT team.

BISHOP HEARN: All right. The matter is before us then, not concurrence as printed in the DCA, but a referral item. If you will refer this item, you'll make your decision on referral when the light appears. [771 approved] It is referred. Dr. Huie has another item from the legislative committee that she represents.

JANICE HUIE (Southwest Texas): Several of us have researched this important question, which Porter Womeldorf raised at the close of the Local Church report regarding the role of the pastor in membership in The United Methodist Church. I believe we need to move reconsideration, and Bishop, I move that. If there's a second, I'll speak to it, and give the Calendar Item.

BISHOP HEARN: OK. OK. Are you willing to, if you are, want to make your decision on the referral, on the reconsideration, you will vote when the light appears, if you will reconsider this item.

BISHOP HEARN: It's reconsidered. [Results: yes, 576]

Qualifications for Membership on Church Council

HUIE: Thank you. Bishop, I move to amend paragraph 245. It will be the third column. Paragraph 245 in the petition is located in the third column. If you'll read down, we need to add a new number three, a new number three. And the new number three will read as follows, and the section I'm going to read you is the current concluding paragraph in paragraph 255 in the Discipline. This is the closing paragraph of 255 in the Discipline. It will now be in number three, and it reads as follows: "Members of the church council or other similar body, shall be persons of genuine Christian character who love the church, are morally disciplined, are committed to the mandate of inclusiveness in the life of the church, are loyal to the ethical standards of The United Methodist Church set forth in the Social Principles, and are competent to administer its affairs. It shall include youth members chosen according to the same standards as adults. All shall be members of the local church, except where Central Conference legislation provides otherwise. The pastor shall be the administrative officer and, as such, shall be an ex officio member of all conferences, boards, councils, commissions, committees, and task forces, unless otherwise restricted by the Discipline." I move this amendment.

BISHOP HEARN: It's been moved and seconded. It is before you.

HUIE: It's an important item that was inadvertently omitted, and it's before you for your vote.

BISHOP HEARN: If you will consider your vote, and vote when the light appears. [833 approved] It passes. David Severe.

DAVID L. SEVERE (Oklahoma): Bishop, we have discovered two items. One is an error that needs to be corrected. The other is an item that we really feel we need to bring up tonight. It has to do with the judiciary.

BISHOP HEARN: All right. If you will present those to the house.

SEVERE: Patricia Farris will present the first item.

PATRICIA FARRIS (California-Pacific): I appreciate the opportunity to bring before you a minor clerical correction. If you'll turn to page 473 of the blue DCA.

BISHOP HEARN: Would you give the page number again, please?

fact, the committee recommended concurrence with the same vote count.

BISHOP HEARN: This item is before you from the committee. If you will get your decision ready and vote when the light appears. [821 approved] Recommendation of the committee is approved. All right, we'll have the other item.

DONALD AVERY (Louisiana): Bishop Hearn and members of the General Conference, I call your attention to Calendar Item 854 in the blue DCA, page 310, Petition 21732, submitted by the Council of Bishops entitled, "Chargeable Offenses." The text can be found in the red DCA, page 1093. Dealing with paragraph 2623.1.

Bishop Hearn, this passed our legislative section 69 for, zero against, and zero abstention, and actually has been passed by the Consent Calendar. However, on page 483 of the April 24th record, it was removed from the Consent Calendar, and I've been in consultation with the person who would like to make an addition. Our legislative committee met in session, and we have agreed to the addition, and so to save the body a little time, I can either add that now, bishop, or move for reconsideration for an addition.

BISHOP HEARN: Are you willing for this to be reconsidered for this addition? If so, lift your hands. Thank you. Those opposed? It is done. Present it to us, please.

AVERY: Thank you. This is a friendly amendment, and it will add to 2623 the word "sexual misconduct," where it currently is listed as "sexual harassment or abuse." The new language, then, would read "sexual harassment, sexual misconduct, or sexual abuse." And, again, it's simply adding the word sexual misconduct to the Book of Discipline. We encourage you to support this action.

BISHOP HEARN: All right. If you will prepare your decision and when the light appears, if you will vote please. You have approved this recommendation. I want to call now for the Consent Calendar. Come forward to present the items which they need to present to us.

FITZGERALD REIST: Special Consent Calendar A08, B08, and C08 are all on the handout that was distributed this afternoon. There have been no deletions. If you adopt these calendars, we will have approximately 100 items left.

BISHOP HEARN: Consent Calendars are before you. If you will approve these Consent Calendars, or if you will make your decision, you will vote when the light appears on these Consent Items. [804 approved] You have approved that Consent Calendar.

SARA MILLER (Wyoming): Bishop, the committee chairs have agreed to present first, the Calendar Items that had more than 20 dissenting votes in the legislative committees for the remainder of our business. I have two motions that I'd like to present to facilitate our work tonight.

BISHOP HEARN: All right. Let's try those motions.

MILLER: I move that at the close of this session of the General Conference, we support the recommendation of the legislative committees for all remaining items. Now that's those that we haven't completed by the time of adjournment.

BISHOP HEARN: Yes? What is your point of order?

EUGENE WOOLRIDGE (Virginia): Last night we tabled Item 1668, and I move that we take from the table Item 1668 for consideration.

BISHOP HEARN: All right, I'll have to come back to that item because we are under direction that we are following the agenda as set before us. And we'll come back to that item when we come to that part in the agenda.

WOOLRIDGE: Thank you for your promise. (laughter)

MILLER: I did move it? We didn't vote yet.

BISHOP HEARN: State it before the house again, so they'll know what's before them.

MILLER: Sure. I move that at the close of this session of the General Conference, we support the recommendation of the legislative committees for all remaining items.

BISHOP HEARN: All right. Do you understand this motion? Question over here?

PHILIP GRANGER (North Indiana): Can you give us a handle how many of these are amendments to the Discipline and how many of these are non-Discipline petitions?

MILLER: We've tried to make the disciplinary ones priority, and I believe most of those have already been covered, but I'm not positive that they all have.

BISHOP HEARN: We would instruct the committee chairs that if they are Disciplinary; you're talking about Discipline or constitution?

GRANGER: Both, bishop. Before we move onto the non-Discipline or non-constitution items.

BISHOP HEARN: OK, we will ask the chairs that if they are constitutional items that they remove those and present them to us individually. Can we do that with the chairs?

GRANGER: Then, bishop, would it be proper for an amendment to this motion?

BISHOP HEARN: Yes, it is.

GRANGER: My amendment...I move that the non-disciplinary and non-constitutional items be referred to the General Conference in 2000.

BISHOP HEARN: All right. Is there a second to the motion? Motion is before you. The amendment is before us.

GRANGER: Bishop, I'd like to speak to that. Bishop, the items that do not affect our Discipline and do not affect our constitution quite frequently are items of Book of Resolutions, social conscious, etc., that there are always strong feelings on the floor. I feel it would be inappropriate to pass these by blanket motion without due consideration. Since the body will not have time to do that, the next time we meet is year 2000.

BISHOP HEARN: You have the motion that is before you. We've had one speech for it. Is there someone who would like to speak against it?

BISHOP HEARN: You have the motion that is before you. We've had one speech for it. Is there someone who would like to speak against it? All right, in the center back here. Microphone number 8.

REX BEVINS (Nebraska): A point of parliamentary information: Is this motion in order?

BISHOP HEARN: It would be in order by two-thirds vote, but it would require two-thirds vote, I believe. Are you talking about the amendment or the motion itself, Dr. Bevins?

BEVINS: No, I'm talking about the amendment.

BISHOP HEARN: Yes.

JAMES LAWSON (California-Pacific): I would like to amend the amendment. That would delete reference to the General Conference of the year 2000, and instead, the words, "that they will be sent to the appropriate boards and agencies of the church."

BISHOP HEARN: All right. Is there a second to this? This is an amendment to the amendment. So this is the one that is before us at the present time. Would send these matters to the appropriate general agencies of the church. Will you get your decision ready and vote, when the light appears, on this amendment? [Results: yes, 620; no, 249] It passes, so the amendment now is before us. The motion is before us as amended. Yes, over here?

CHRISTIAN RICKS (Missouri East): Bishop, I rise to ask a question about what the implications are if we do not get to a disciplinary item tonight. Does that mean it becomes disciplinary because of the action?

BISHOP HEARN: We will have those items that...

RICKS: I guess my point being...my point, bishop, is that we're going to take the items above 20; but there are at least two items that I'm very concerned about and some local churches concerned about that only had one negative vote. They were pulled from the Consent Calendar by five people, and we're not going to vote on those, but they're disciplinary. And I think this seems extremely unfair to the people back home who spent time to send this in, that we would debate things that had more than 20 negative, and throw away things that had one negative.

BISHOP HEARN: All right. All of them, of course, have received consideration in the legislative committees, and the motion that is before us now has to do with those that had...are you saying 20, or up to 20?

SARAH MILLER (Wyoming): That had more than 20.

BISHOP HEARN: All right. More than 20. All right. The motion is now before us as it has been amended. If you will prepare to cast your ballot when the light appears. [Results: yes, 658; no, 201] And it is approved.

MILLER: I have one more.

BISHOP HEARN: All right, we're going to have one more item, and then we're going to take a 15 minute break. I'll let you vote on whether you want to take a break or not. OK, go ahead.

MILLER: OK, in keeping with practices, I move that any unfinished business of the 1996 General Conference be referred to the Council of Bishops, the General Council on Ministries, and the General Council on Finance and Administration. That would be other than Calendar Items.

BISHOP HEARN: All right. Is there a second to this? Prepare to make your decision when the light appears. And this motion passes.

I want to consult with the house now. We have approximately 100 legislative items that are left. Following the action upon those, we will need then, to have the worship service that is scheduled. We, of course, are aiming to get out of this building by 10 o'clock. We're probably going to be a little after 10:00, but we can't be too much after 10:00. Do you want to take a 15 minute break, or do you want to continue in session? All right, those who would like to take a 15 minute break, you will vote "yes" when the light appears; those that do not, vote

"no" when the light appears. We got a...Yes? Over here?

While this gentleman is coming to the microphone, I would like to ask the chairs of the legislative committees that still have items to present to us, if they will come up onto the platform and be ready as we come to this place.

PORTER J. WOMELDORFF (Central Illinois): I apologize, bishop, but we had an amendment to the amendment, an amendment and a motion made from the podium. We voted twice and I think we never approved the amended motion to refer to the appropriate boards.

BISHOP HEARN: It was the chair's understanding that the amendment to refer to the boards was attached to the main motion. Is that the memory of the house? All right, thank you. Now if the... David Severe, do you have additional items that need to be presented?

DAVID SEVERE (Oklahoma): Yes sir, we do. We have one. DCA, page 255, middle column, toward the bottom of the page...

SEVERE: DCA page 255, middle column toward the bottom of the page. It is Calendar Item 765. You will turn to the white book, page 1328, right hand column, top of the page, Petition 22767. This defines types of boards at the general level. It is informational now, due to what we have already passed. And, therefore we voted to refer it to the GCOM by a vote of 57, 25, and 5. This is a process that needs to be passed along to the connectional process team for their consideration. We move concurrence for referral. Or rather, I'm sorry, we move for referral only.

BISHOP HEARN: The motion is for referral. Please vote when the light appears. It passes. [778 approved]

DAVID SEVERE: Bishop, this completes the work of the General and Judicial Legislative Committee. I again want to thank all of those who have helped us. This completes our work for this General Conference. Thank you very much. (applause)

BISHOP HEARN: Now I call on Judge Carl Stewart. Isn't it nice to see a judge have to run? (laughter)

CARL E. STEWART (Louisiana): Thank you, bishop. On page 257 of the blue DCA, it's Calendar Item 779, on page 1386 of the white DCA, is Petition 22020. The petition is entitled, "Small Membership Church Commission." It would amend paragraph 742 of the Discipline to require a small membership commission in every annual conference.

Now we took this same topic up before on Consent Calendar Item 15, page 94 of the blue DCA. In the Consent Item, we approved the mandate of the small membership commission in each annual conference. However, that mandate contained the flexible language allowing the annual conference to discharge those responsibilities through an alternate structure. Petition 22020, which is before you now, was originally nonconcurring by the legislative committee. But upon a vote of reconsideration, the committee voted 31 to 27 to concur on the mandate which does not allow the alternative structure.

So what is before you is Petition 22020 which the committee recommends concurrence. I would remind you that if you vote concurrence on this petition then that action would supersede the earlier action on the Consent Calendar. Bishop, I move that the adoption of the committee recommendation.

BISHOP HEARN: Recommendation is for concurrence. Microphone 8.

SUSAN RUACH (South Indiana): I have a question. We just passed a very flexible structure for the annual conference. And, would this then supersede that action?

STEWART: The matter simply before the body to vote up or down. The two items are, one has flexibility, the other does not. And it is simply a matter of the General Conference deciding what its preference is.

RUACH: So that if we vote in favor of this, we do in fact mandate a structure for the annual conference? Is that correct?

CARL STEWART: That's correct. It would obviate the alternate structure, which was already on the Consent Calendar. All right?

RUACH: Thank you.

BISHOP HEARN: If you will prepare your decision on this matter and vote when the light appears. Matter is not adopted.

STEWART: Thank you, bishop, as is my final item. I would just like to take the opportunity to thank Vice Chair Ressie Mae Bass of Florida, Secretary Betty Anderson, and all the legislative chairs who made my first General Conference a pleasurable experience. (applause)

BISHOP HEARN: We turn now to the Committee on the Ministry.

SANDRA LUTZ (East Ohio): Our first item is in the blue DCA, page 583, Calendar Item 2406, which refers to paragraph 533.5. It references material in the red DCA, page 1084, paragraph 533.5, Petition 21286. The committee recommended concurrence 63 for, 23 against, 2 abstained. And Ruth Daugherty will bring that to you.

BISHOP HEARN: All right.

RUTH A. DAUGHERTY (Eastern Pennsylvania): Bishop and delegates, if you would look in your DCA, the red one, for the material, page 1084, Petition 20118, the left hand column, first item on that page. You will need that in order to understand what the reference is to the item on page 583 in the blue DCA, number 2406. As was indicated, this was voted concurrence with 63 for, 23 against. Basically, this deals with the appointment process dealing with the consultative process, and spells out in detail what should be included.

BISHOP HEARN: The committee is recommending concurrence. Prepare to vote when the light appears. You have approved. [Results: yes, 668]

SANDRA W. LUTZ (East Ohio): Our next item is found in the blue DCA, page 482. It is Calendar Item 1999 referencing paragraph 1527.2. The original material appears in the white DCA, page 1484, paragraph 1527.2, petition 22098. And the committee recommended nonconcurrency, 70, 30, zero. And Bill Crouch will bring that to you.

WILLIAM CROUCH (North Texas): If you have the reference, then you will know that paragraph 1527 is related to the responsibilities of the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry. The other evening we had a similar petition which was directed toward the annual conference Board of Ordained Ministry, and it also requested us to include persons with disabilities. The rationale for our nonconcurrency in the legislative committee in this instance is the same as that, namely that we believe that this is a paragraph that should not be exhaustive of all the persons who should be included under the responsibility of the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry. And we recommend nonconcurrency.

BISHOP HEARN: The recommendation is before you. Prepare to vote when the light appears. [755 approved] You have supported the recommendation.

SANDRA LUTZ: All right. The next one is blue DCA, page 483. It's Calendar Item 2000, and it references paragraph 441. What did I do?

BISHOP HEARN: The page number is 480.

LUTZ: 482, I'm sorry. But it is paragraph 441? Thank you. The red DCA, page 1059, Petition 20298. The committee recommends concurrence, 44, 31, 2. And Earl Bledsoe will bring that to you.

BISHOP HEARN: All right.

Permissive Language for Salary Equalization

W. EARL BLEDSOE (Texas): You will notice in this particular petition, and the committee did concur, that it had to do with equalization of salary compensation for pastors, and the committee felt that that decision should be left up to each annual conference. It is permissive legislation.

And we'd ask that you would concur with the committee.

BISHOP HEARN: The committee is recommending concurrence. Yes, back here. Close to microphone 8.

JERRY SMITH (Southwest Texas): Bishop, it seems to me that I have a question that we turn down basic salary permissive legislation that came from, that was proposed first in the Financial Administration sub-committee, and then we voted nonconcurrency on it on the same issue. And I wanted to ask if that was not the case?

BISHOP HEARN: We'll ask the committee to respond.

BLEDSOE: Yes, that was the case.

BISHOP HEARN: Recommendation of the committee on this item is concurrence. Prepare to vote when the light appears. You have approved this idea.

LUTZ: Our final item, Bishop, is the item that was tabled last night, and I'm wondering if I can explain to the house where we are with that. Would that be all right?

BISHOP HEARN: OK. The first thing we have to do is ask the house if they wish to bring it off of the table. All right. So you'll make your decision as to whether or not you bring this item off of the table and make your choice known when the light appears. It's off the table. Proceed. [586 approved]

LUTZ: Thank you. Blue DCA, page 384, Calendar Item 1668, which deals with paragraph 402.2. It refers to DCA page 1048, paragraph 402.2, petition 21158. My question, I believe, is whether or not it's appropriate to bring it, because it really doesn't fit within that guideline that we established as a house. This item was voted nonconcurrency by the committee and was brought off the Consent Calendar, which I would presume was with less than 20 votes. We already have concurred in another paragraph for the language for that particular disciplinary paragraph. And that has been accepted on the Consent Calendar.

BISHOP HEARN: And your vote in the committee was what?

LUTZ: It was 95, zero, zero for non-concurrence.

BISHOP HEARN: All right. The chair would have to rule that this item comes under the adoption of the material which you—the decision that you have already made.

LUTZ: Thank you.

BISHOP HEARN: Point of order. Yes, what is your point of order?

JOY J. MOORE (West Michigan): I was a part of the legislative committee, and I speak to this conference still dazed from last night. But in the midst of last night, I believe many of us were confused as we attempted to hear why this legislation was removed. We began to speak of it in relationship to three different paragraphs. What was intended was simply that Calendar Item 1668 would be lifted from Consent, and in order that the words may be included "or proven by clear and convincing evidence to be." This request was made as we made the footnote. We were then told that the footnote meant nothing without the line we are now asking to be included. We were thoroughly confused last night, but I do believe an amendment was made to include those words, but we were never allowed to vote on that amendment. We did vote to include the words, but we did not vote on the amendment.

BISHOP HEARN: Where we are, parliamentarily at the present time, is that the house has indicated that items with the number 20 votes would be on the Consent Calendar. The only way that this item can be brought back to the house now is to set aside those rules. And that's a decision which the house would need to make. Yes, over here. Microphone 9.

STEPHEN C. MOTT (New England): I believe, Bishop, that this matter was tabled last night and, therefore, is in a different category than what we're talking about, since it's already on the table of the conference.

BISHOP HEARN: The chair is going to stick by the ruling that if you want to consider this item you need to set aside the action which you previously took. That'll be required for it to be on the floor tonight. OK. Here.

ROBERT L. HUCKABY JR (North Carolina): I move that we suspend the rules to consider this item.

BISHOP HEARN: All right. If you will make your decision concerning the suspension of the rules to consider this item, be prepared to vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 496; no, 366] It takes a two-thirds vote to set aside the rules. So this item is not before us.

LUTZ: Then that completes our business, and I want to express deep appreciation to our committee and sub-chairs and to this house for their graciousness on all these issues. Thank you. (applause)

BISHOP HEARN: I recognize the Legislative Committee on Church and Society. Don.

Science and Technology

DON PIKE (Central Texas): Thank you, Bishop. We only have one disciplinary item, and it's a little bit tricky. It's a kind of a double-barrel thing. Let me begin with you in your red DCA on page 117. I hope I'm getting this correct. I may have outfoxed myself; 117, Petition 20921. It's entitled, "Science and Technology," right-hand column. This first appeared as a matter of our business in the blue DCA on page 234.

It is Calendar Item 752. You will remember that what seems like an eon ago we were about to discuss this. Jeremy Vetter from Nebraska offered an amendment, or a substitute, and the text of his motion you will find on page 444 in your blue DCA. Now, Bishop, I may can help you if the point of order is about the vote, the next Calendar Item that really addresses this particular matter has a vote of 37, 23, 1, so it would fall within the purview of the previous action.

BISHOP HEARN: OK.

2404. Now the unusual circumstance the committee found itself in was that we have two items before us. The first Calendar Item, 752, we had already concurred with it. Jeremy's motion that exists on 444 was assigned a petition number, which meant that we had to deal with it. When we read his text, we kinda liked it, but we couldn't concur with his text because we had already concurred with another, so we very carefully crafted our vote to non-concur so that it could not appear on the Consent Calendar. And we simply suggest to this body that you look at the text on page 444, and you look at the text that was originally printed, and we vote one up and one down.

BISHOP HEARN: We would like for you to put one before us so that we'll have a specific item.

PIKE: All right, I believe I can speak for the committee when they would suggest that we prefer the text in 2404, and we recommend concurrence as printed in the text on page 444, Jeremy's substitute. Calendar Item 2404. The committee recommends nonconcurrence, but we only did that because we couldn't concur with two petitions. So if you would support the committee in that regard, you would not support us on 2404 in nonconcurrence. I know that's complicated, but that's the only way we could figure to get at it.

BISHOP HEARN: All right, Calendar Item 2404 is before us. Do I understand the committee is recommending nonconcurrence and then hoping that you won't vote that way. Is that what you said?

PIKE: That's right. If you'll vote no, you'll be in good shape.

BISHOP HEARN: I wasn't sure I was hearing right. Prepare yourselves to vote when the light appears.

PIKE: It is peculiar.

BISHOP HEARN: That calendar item is defeated.

[Results: yes, 96; no, 755;]

PIKE: Now, Bishop, can I assume since we've approved the text in 2404 that automatically negates Calendar Item 752?

BISHOP HEARN: How do they tie together?

PIKE: We voted concurrence on that, and so you'd want to vote no in order that we favor 2404, if you want to vote on 752.

BISHOP HEARN: All right, so which one are you putting before us now?

PIKE: Well the piece that's remaining is 752. We really could take it out of the loop, because it has less than 20 negative votes. We could just drop it out.

BISHOP HEARN: All right, it's out of the loop.

Basic Human Rights for Refugees and Immigrants

PIKE: Right. Very quickly, Bishop, if we might deal with two quick things of personal privilege, and I'd ask Bill Barney to go to microphone 13 while I share with you quickly an item which we have, a matter of a petition or rather a resolution. We were very fortunate to have representatives from Mexico in our conference. They have prepared a resolution they would like for you to consider. And they've asked me to present it to you so we don't go through translation.

"When a stranger sojourns with you in your land, you should not do him wrong. The stranger who sojourns with you shall be to you as a native among you, and you shall love him as yourself for you were strangers in the land of Egypt. I am the Lord your God.' Our Book of Resolutions states that we are called to ensure protection of the basic human rights of immigrants, both documented and undocumented, present or transient, refugees or immigrants. Events covered by the media continue to remind us of the brutality that our Latino brothers and sisters constantly suffer at the hands of persons whose sworn purpose is to protect and defend the human rights of every human being. Most recently we have seen a group of undocumented Mexicans brutally beaten by members of the California police force. These undocumented Mexicans were completely defenseless during the beating, and worse yet, one was a woman. This incident clearly depicts the violence of racism in which those in our society still live. This event in California is only one of the many examples where abuse as perpetrated against undocumented persons, especially those of Latino origin, is seen. Be it resolved that a letter from the 1996 General Conference of The United Methodist Church gathered in Denver, Colorado, be sent to the President of the United States, the governor of California, the speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives, and the majority leader of the U.S. Senate, and the Mexican Consulate in California, expressing our sadness and disbelief for the unwarranted brutality perpetrated by some members of the California police force. Be it further resolved that the General Conference urges the government of the United States and all its institutions to respect, defend, and protect the basic human rights of all people, regardless of their civil status." And I would move that we approve this.

BISHOP HEARN: The motion is before you is there a second for it? It's been moved and seconded. If you...yes. Over here. Microphone number 5.

CHRISTIAN ALSTED (Denmark): It is simply unfair for us from...with a different language to understand this was presented.

BISHOP HEARN: We appreciate that observation which we all identify with, with sensitivity. The resolution is before us. Prepare to cast your vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 625] The resolution is passed. Don.

DON PIKE: All right. Bill Barney on mike 13, if Bishop, he could give you a quick resolution on behalf of Cuba. Pastors for Peace.

BISHOP HEARN: All right, microphone 13.

Pastors of Peace Mission in Cuba

BILL BARNEY (Troy): Here's a resolution that will actually save some lives. Whereas, over two months ago Pastors for Peace attempted to transport over 200 computers to Cuba. Programs were used by the churches of Cuba to establish a health information network throughout Cuba in order to assist in tracking and utilizing medicines and medical support. Whereas, on the United States-Mexican border, Pastors for Peace were halted and their cargo was confiscated forcibly by the United States Treasury agents; and whereas, five Pastors for Peace constructed a 12 by 12 tent they called "the Wayside Chapel" and commenced to fast; and whereas, today the Wayside Chapel is now set up on land of the United Methodist building in Washington, D.C. across from the United States capitol. Four Pastors for Peace are now in their sixty-sixth day of fasting.

Therefore, be it resolved, that the General Conference send a letter to the Secretary of the Treasury calling for the release of the shipment of the medical computers and supplies for delivery to Cuba by Pastors for Peace as a humanitarian gesture; and that we send a letter to the four Pastors for Peace now fasting in their sixty-sixth day, to extend our prayers, greetings, thanksgiving for their witness, courage, and faith. And finally, that we urge President Clinton to immediately commence open and formal diplomatic negotiations with Cuba in the spirit of the General Conference Consent Calendar Item 581, page 217, previously adopted.

BISHOP HEARN: This resolution is before you. Prepare to vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 610; no, 194] Thank you. The resolution passes. I understand that these are all the items from Church and Society.

DON PIKE: Yes, the only remaining things we have, Bishop, are non-disciplinary. All passed with less than 20 negative votes. I'd like to thank Joe Harris, for vice chair; Terri Chattin, our secretary; William Scott; Dale Weatherspoon, Claudia Bloem, and Beth Capen for sub-chairing. Bishop, I read recently where a man said that his grandmother, at the age of 60, started walking five miles a day. She's now 96 years old. They don't have any idea where she is. We know where we are. We're through. (laughter)

BISHOP HEARN: We're not too sure where we are, but we're sure on our way. Cashar Evans is the next person to be recognized. Committee on Financial Administration.

CASHAR EVANS (North Carolina): I'd like to ask Grady Knowles to present a pensions item.

Streamlining Board of Pensions and Health Benefits

GRADY KNOWLES (California-Nevada): This one more disciplinary item that needs to come before you for a vote because it has been lifted from a Consent Calendar. In your blue book, please turn to page 307. The right column at the bottom. It is item number 834. The text of the petition is in the red book. It is on page 374. On page 374, it's in the left column at the bottom. It is Petition 21482. This is one of several paragraphs of the Discipline governing the General Board of Pension and Health Benefits, which is being re-written in order to restate the language and update it. This petition comes to the General Conference from the General Board of Pension and Health Benefits. It streamlines their committee structure, it allows the possibility of a board member to serve a third term; and in keeping with the overall goal of reducing the size of boards and agencies, the general board brought the petition with a reduction in the number of board members elected from jurisdictional conferences.

In the Financial Administration committee, this petition was amended in two ways. Additional words were added to strengthen the language calling on the board to be inclusive in its membership. Those new words appear in the blue book on page 308 at the top left corner. And the second and more significant amendment, and I am guessing the reason this has been pulled from the Consent Calendar, is that the legislative subcommittee and committee also redistributed the way that the jurisdictionally elected members of the General Board of Pensions come from jurisdictions. In the current Discipline there are four board members elected by each jurisdiction. The General Board of Pensions brought this petition, reducing that to three.

Proposed Change in Jurisdictional Pension and Health Board

In committee a paragraph was taken from a different petition from the Western North Carolina Conference, which distributes the jurisdictionally elected members according to the lay and clergy membership of the jurisdictions. A jurisdiction which has a higher membership has a higher number of members on the board. A jurisdiction which has a lower membership has lower membership on the board. The committee calculated, using the current memberships of the five jurisdictions, how these would change. And instead of having currently four from each jurisdiction, or the recommendation of the general board for three, this amended language, which appears in the blue book, would distribute 16 jurisdictionally elected delegates this way. The Southeast Jurisdiction, five; South Central, Northeast, and North Central, 3; West Jurisdiction, 2. Bishop it's before you.

BISHOP HEARN: The committee recommends concurrence. Yes?

JOEL E. HUFFMAN: (Desert Southwest): I would move to amend, at the very bottom of the page, "fewer than two," I would change the word "two" to "three." By making this change we would make... If I get a second I'll speak to it.

BISHOP HEARN: Is there is a second? There is a second.

HUFFMAN: By making this change we would make more equitable the representation of the five jurisdictions. The equality of jurisdictional representation is deeply embedded in our history and set in our United Methodist standard of fairness, and when it comes to representation on our general boards and agencies. This will not increase the size of the General Board of Pension and Health Benefits but more equitably distribute that membership through the jurisdictions. Ethnic representation on the board has historically best been served from the West with its rich diversity of membership. This change increases the membership of the Southeast but not at the expense of the Western Jurisdiction. I request your support in this amendment.

BISHOP HEARN: The amendment is before you. Yes, in the back. Way in the back. Microphone 12.

DELOS CORDERMAN (South Carolina): I rise to speak against this amendment and in favor of the committee's action. The legislative committee's action reduces the size of the Board of Pension and Health Benefits. It includes two bishops elected by the Council of Bishops, as is now the case in paragraph 1602.1; six members limited to no more than two per jurisdiction, elected by the General Conference on the nomination of the College of Bishops, as is now the case; eight additional members with special knowledge or background nominated by the General Board of Pensions and Health Benefits; and only 16 members from the jurisdictions.

This is a modified proportional basis. It would give five persons from the jurisdictional pools to the Southeastern Jurisdiction, three to the North Central, three to the Northeast, three to the South Central, two to the Western Jurisdiction. However, if you look, if you combine the populations within the jurisdiction, the Western Jurisdiction would have six percent of the membership and two members; South Central would have 21 percent and three members; Northeastern, 19 percent and three members; North Central, 20 percent and three members; Southeastern, 34 percent and only five members. I hope you will support the recommendation of the legislative committee. It's fair.

BISHOP HEARN: We've had one speech for, one speech against. Are you ready to vote? All right. We're on the amendment now, which would change the two to three. Make your decision concerning that. Vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 373; no, 505] The matter as presented by concurrence from the committee is now before us. If you'll prepare your decision on that and vote when the light appears. You have concurred with the committee.

GRADY KNOWLES (California-Nevada): Thank you.

BISHOP HEARN: Next item, Cashar?

Separation of World Service and Conference Benevolence

CASHAR EVANS (North Carolina): Page 387 in the blue DCA. It's Calendar Item 1686, and it refers to page 358 of the red book, Petition 20718. It's in the right column at the top. And the subject is "Separation of World Service and Conference Benevolence." The committee's recommendation is nonconcurrence. The vote was 59 for, 35 against with 3 abstentions. It is before you.

BISHOP HEARN: All right, the recommendation is for nonconcurrence. Please vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 679; no, 200] You have agreed with the committee.

Annual Conference Apportionment Procedures

EVANS: There are three other items that are very similar to this in that you have concurred with the committee here. You can vote nonconcurrence on these three items can clear them up. The first one, page 388 of the blue DCA, Calendar Item 1689, page 359 of the red book, the second column, third one down, Petition 20589, the subject, "Annual Conference Apportionment Procedures." Committee recommendation was nonconcurrence. The vote was 59 for, 28 against with 4 abstentions. You want us take all three at one time, Bishop?

BISHOP HEARN: Is there objection from the house that we take all three at once? See no objection, please proceed.

EVANS: Page 388 of the blue book, Calendar Item 1690, refers to page 358 of the red book, Petition 20412, found in the left column at the bottom. Subject again is "World Service and Conference Benevolence." The committee recommendation is nonconcurrency; the vote is 54 for, 32 against, 4 abstentions.

Annual Conference Budgeting Procedures

The third item, again on page 388 of the blue DCA, Calendar Item 1691, found on page 357 of the red book. It refers to Petition 20588 in the right column. Subject again is "Annual Conference Budgeting Procedures." Committee recommends nonconcurrency, vote 61 for, 32 against, 4 abstentions. Bishop, I move the three items.

BISHOP HEARN: These three items for nonconcurrency on the recommendation from the committee. If you'll prepare to vote, vote when the light appears, on all three items. [770 approved] You have concurred with the committee.

EVANS: Page 388 of the blue DCA, Calendar Item 1688, and it refers to page 362 of the red book. That's Petition 20591, found in the top of the left column. The committee recommendation is nonconcurrency by a vote of 48 for, 45 against, one abstention. The committee felt that it would eliminate the minimum salary and also was concerned about how the missional support would be defined. I move the item.

BISHOP HEARN: The committee is recommending nonconcurrency. Yes? Microphone number 7.

LOUISE R. OTT (Detroit): I would ask that you would vote against the committee's recommendation of nonconcurrency. I believe we can define this in our annual conferences. I have served small churches and presently serve a large downtown church as a member and now as the chair of the Conference Commission on Equitable Compensation. I have become concerned that we are forgetting our missional calling in Jesus Christ to make disciples in all the world. We must recognize the importance of pastoral leadership in small-membership churches, in both urban and rural settings.

We United Methodists are creatively faithful laity and clergy. We can find ways to provide pastoral leadership wherever it is needed, but let's be mission-minded with our financial and human resources. Let's serve the small church, the large church, wherever congregations are missionally focused. Let's grow new congregations and, most of all, make new disciples of Jesus Christ in the city, in the country and around the globe. Let's put the hand of mission in the hand of good stewardship. If you are mission-minded stewards, you will vote "no", against the legislative committee recommendation of nonconcurrency.

BISHOP HEARN: All right, that's a speech against. I see over here in this corner; if you'll go to microphone, 6 or 7, whichever one is closest. This will need to be a speech in favor of the recommendation of nonconcurrency. Changed his mind. Ready to vote? All right, the committee is recommending nonconcurrency; you'll prepare your decision and vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 523; no, 361] You have agreed with the committee.

CASHAR EVANS: Refers to page 373 of the red book, Petition 20374, and can be found in the first column, third from the top. The subject is to specify spiritual growth among the purposes of the MEF. Committee's recommendation is 74 for, 16 against, zero abstentions. Again, nonconcurrency. I move the item.

BISHOP HEARN: Vote when your light appears. [748 approved] You have agreed with the committee.

BISHOP HEARN: What is your point of order in the back? Microphone 8.

ALYS RICHARDS (North Texas): I thought we had just passed that any proposal that had less than 20 against would not be brought.

BISHOP HEARN: Lets ask the committee why they are bringing these.

EVANS: It was my understanding, sir, that we were dealing with disciplinary paragraphs. I'd be happy to sit down. (laughter)

RICHARDS: Thank you.

BISHOP HEARN: I almost said "all in favor," but that wouldn't have been fair.

(laughter) Cashar, go ahead.

EVANS: Let's start that again. Page 387 of the blue DCA, Calendar Item 1685, deals in the white book on page 1314 with Petition 22244, found in the second column, the second petition. Subject again is MEF. The committee's recommendation is nonconcurrency. The vote was 73 for, 13 against, and 1 abstention. I move the item.

BISHOP HEARN: Vote when the light appears. [777 approved] You have agreed with the committee.

EVANS: Calendar Item 306, found on page 159 of the blue book. And that refers to page 383 of the red book. The subject, "Trustees of Church Institutions." The committee votes nonconcurrency by a vote of 93 for, 4 against, zero abstentions. And I need to tell you that it is already provided for in the Discipline, and that was the rationale. I move the item.

BISHOP HEARN: Vote when your light appears. [844 approved] You have agreed with the committee. Microphone 2.

RICHARD PARKER (New York): Bishop, I realize these are disciplinary paragraphs that we're voting on, but they are all nonconcurrency items and many of them with a small negative vote in the committee. Could I try a motion?

BISHOP HEARN: You certainly may.

PARKER: I move that we accept the committee's actions of nonconcurrency, period.

BISHOP HEARN: Is there second to the motion? It is seconded. It's before us. If you agree to the motion, to accept the decision of the committee on these items that are being presented, you'll make your decision and you'll vote when the light appears. [822 approved] I was an optimist. I was packing up.

EVANS: I would like to take the opportunity to thank my vice-chair, Mollie Stewart; the secretary Zedna Haverstock; Grady Knowles, who presented with me frequently, and the two other committee chairs, Lee Sheaffer and Jeannie Trevino-Teddle, and of course the entire committee of this body and the presiding officer. Thanks. (applause)

BISHOP HEARN: We call on Discipleship, Mr. Irving. Yes what's your inquiry?

BISHOP HEARN: We'll call on Discipleship, Mr. Ervin? Yes, what's your inquiry? Microphone 4.

CHARLES LIPPSE (Holston): Bishop, I really want to make an appeal to the house for a Judicial Council decision on an action we took a few minutes ago.

BISHOP HEARN: All right.

Judicial Council Appeal on Equitable Salaries

LIPPSE: It's in regard to the action we took on the Equal Salary Task Force. In reference to paragraphs 248.13 and paragraph 702, those two paragraphs delegate to the charge conference the authority to set the salary. At the last General Conference, I made an appeal when the General Conference delegated to the annual conference or, excuse me, to the Board of Pensions to set the benefits for pastors; the similar issue. I think we're taking away from the local church the authority to set the salary. Therefore, I would like to ask the house to support me in appealing this decision to the Judicial Council.

BISHOP HEARN: Is there a second to this request? It has been seconded, it's before us. Will you cast your vote concerning this decision when the light appears. [566 approved] You have asked for the Judicial Council to rule on that. Mr. Ervin?

PAUL ERVIN (North Georgia): Bishop, we have three matters. The first is on page 306 of the blue book. It will be presented by Christian Ricks, Missouri East Conference.

Lay Preacher, UM Rural Fellowship

JIM RUSH (South Georgia): Bishop, the item we bring to you is on 306 in your blue DCA. It's Calendar Item 812. It has been brought off the Consent Calendar, and it is disciplinary. And I believe that your ruling said that we should bring it to you. This is Calendar Item 812, it can be found in the white book, page 1,280, Petition 22403. The subject is "Lay-Preacher, United Methodist Rural Fellowship." This item refers to the Discipline paragraph of 282. It is our understanding that the ministry study did not deal with 282, and that's why it's being brought forward. It's about lay-preachers.

This item was brought forth by United Methodist Rural Fellowship four years ago. It was passed by General Conference and was ruled unconstitutional because of the word "appoint" that was in it. United Methodist Rural Fellowship has brought that back to our committee. It passed our subcommittee, and passed the legislative committee, 100 for, 1 against. We bring it to you.

BISHOP HEARN: The matter is before us...Yes, in the back, back here? Microphone 8.

ROCKY EUBANK (Southwest Texas): I believe that the paragraph describing "lay-preacher" was deleted from by the Consent Calendar. It's a previous action.

BISHOP HEARN: Could the committee respond to that, please?

RUSH: When we asked about it, we were told it was not affected by the ministry study. It did not come from our committee to be deleted, it had to come from somewhere else.

BISHOP HEARN: Can someone else help us with that inquiry? You have an answer for the inquiry? Microphone 9.

DEBORAH L. PRITTS (North Central New York): Subcommittee in the Ordained Ministry Legislative Committee that dealt with this matter. If you were to turn in your blue DCA to page 555, Calendar Item 2117, Petition 21980 from the Ministry Study of the Council of Bishops, you'll see that this paragraph was deleted by a vote of 88 to nothing; and that it was approved on the Consent Calendar a few days ago.

BISHOP HEARN: So you're telling us that this paragraph has already been deleted? So the action that's being recommended here, is in opposition to the action that was taken earlier by the house? Is this correct? All right.

RUSH: Bishop, I'm not real sure where we are parliamentarily, but our legislative committee voted 100 to 1 for this.

BISHOP HEARN: OK, the chair would rule that this is out of order unless the house wishes to vote reconsideration of the item.

RUSH: I would move reconsideration.

BISHOP HEARN: All right. If you wish to reconsider, you'll need to make that decision. And you make your decision and vote when the light appears. [Results: yes, 408; no, 447] You have voted not to reconsider, so this item is not before us.

RUSH: Bishop, our other item was also in 282, reference "lay-preachers" and I would assume that we get the same results, so I won't bother you with it.

BISHOP HEARN: All right, thank you. Very considerate.

ERVIN: Aileen Williams of Missouri Conference will make another presentation.

BISHOP HEARN: All right. Welcome.

AILEEN WILLIAMS (Minnesota): I'm from Minnesota. (laughter) This is a non-disciplinary item, but it had 22 votes against it.

BISHOP HEARN: Would you tell us the page and the item please?

WILLIAMS: Yes, I will. It is in your blue DCA, page 478, Calendar Item 1986; you'll find it in the middle column. It's Petition 22557, and you'll find it in your white DCA on page 1,302 in the left-hand column. The title is, "Evangelism as a Missional Priority of The United Methodist Church for the Next Quadrennium."

In our committee, we discovered that this same language is in the 1992 Discipline; it passed in 1992 for the quadrennium. And as we discussed evangelism in our mission statement, we felt that the concept of it being a missional priority was much more than a missional priority. And so we felt that this language was not helpful in terms of the Book of Resolutions. And so we voted against it. We did, in a further action to make emphasis on the importance of evangelism, work on a paragraph in the Discipline, which is paragraph 1211; and you will find that information in your red DCA on page 250. What we did is we added a sentence to that paragraph indicating evangelism is central to the mission of the church.

BISHOP HEARN: Yes, what is your point of order? Microphone 8.

ROBERT COLEMAN (South Indiana): Did we not just pass, by Joe Parker's motion, that any nonconcurrence that's non-disciplinary would be approved?

WILLIAMS: That's right. That was my understanding, but we checked, and it, and they said, they said to present it. So...

BISHOP HEARN: OK, is nonconcurrence recommendation here? Can the chair just ask the house: If you support the committee and their nonconcurrence on this item, if you'll vote when your light appears and we'll clear the house of this matter. Thank you for that inquiry. We're in the process of voting.

BISHOP HEARN: Thank you for that inquiry. We are the process of voting. [810 approved] You have supported the committee.

ERVIN: Bishop I want to thank the greatest legislative committee at this General Conference, Discipleship. That's all we had, sir. Thank you very much. (applause)

BISHOP HEARN: Recognize George Hunter.

GEORGE HUNTER (Florida): Colleagues, when the dust settles, and we see all of the legislation we passed in these two weeks, we'll discover that much what took place through the Committee on Conferences is consistent with what happened in the Committee on Local Churches. And thus, we'll discover throughout our structure the word "shall" is found much less often. The word "may" is found much more often; and we have achieved much greater flexibility for the sake of our mission in a lot of different contacts. Many of our petitions will go on through now because they received less than 20 negative votes, but four need your consideration. Three of those will be presented by Bruce Ough from the Iowa Conference, and one by Judith Siaba from the Northern Illinois Conference.

BISHOP HEARN: All right, if they will come forward, please. Yes what is your point of order? Microphone 5.

Existence of Lay Pastors Questioned

OYVIND HELLIESEN (Norway): A minute ago we deleted paragraph 282. That means that we don't have any more lay preachers in the church. Is that right? I think that was something that we do...because ministers do it, that we have none. I think we have to reconsider this.

BISHOP HEARN: Let's get an answer to your question. Someone representing...all right, who can answer this for us? In the far back. Microphone 7.

WILLIAM CROUCH (North Texas): I am not an expert on this, but I am wondering if the question has to do with the distinction between lay preachers and local pastors. We certainly have local pastors, and a part of the reason that some of us believe that we should not have lay preachers was because we believe very strongly in local pastors, full-time, part-time and especially those who are serving as bi-vocational local pastors.

BISHOP HEARN: All right, this is an answer to the inquiry. We'll come back now to the legislative committee.

HELLIESEN: Bishop?

BISHOP HEARN: Yes.

HELLIESEN: I don't think this is answered, because I was in that legislative group. And I can't see that it has answered our meaning to not have the lay preachers in the church anymore. Local pastor are licensed, and they are something else. I think this is wrong.

BISHOP HEARN: Can we have further clarification?

CROUCH: One more comment, bishop. We have not had lay preachers because of the decision of the Judicial Council on paragraph 282. We have not had lay preachers.

BISHOP HEARN: All right, we are going to come back to the legislative committee now. If you want to pursue this matter, it can be done after we finish the legislative committees. Go ahead.

Criminal Justice and Lay Ministries

BRUCE R. OUGH (Iowa): Bishop and fellow delegates, I have three items that deal with the topic of Criminal Justice and Mercy Ministries. If you would turn in your blue DCA to page 233. The Calendar Item is 748. The text of the petition is found in the white DCA, volume two, on page 1271. It's Petition 22188. The committee recommends concurrence as amended. The amendments are as follows. On line one, delete "shall" and insert "is encouraged to." Also delete the second to the last sentence, which reads, "minimum of three lay and three clergy persons shall compose the committee." And finally, add a new last sentence which reads, "the results of the work in this area will be reported to annual conference."

The effect of this petition is to permit, not require, the formation of a Committee on Criminal Justice and Mercy Ministries within the annual conference. The majority of the committee felt that is a severely neglected area of Christ's ministry within The United Methodist Church, and that we need to lift it up to our people. The dissenting votes in the committee expressed concern over suggesting any new annual conference structures. The committee concurred, because the amendments allow for a great flexibility in forming this committee. I think it's fair to remind the body of your earlier action regarding the Conference Council on Ministries and its structures. Bishop, the committee moves concurs as amended.

BISHOP HEARN: Recommendation is before you. Vote when your light appears. [737 approved] You have agreed with the committee. Next item please.

OUGH: The next item is also on page 233 of the blue DCA. It's item 749. The text of the petition is also on page 1271 of the white DCA. It's the second item in the right hand column. The committee recommends concurrence with a vote of 49 for, and 24 against, with 4 abstentions.

The effect of this petition is to permit, again, not mandate, that a district coordinator of Criminal Justice and Mercy Ministries, if there is such a position, be a member of the District Council of Ministries. Bishop, the committee moves concurrence.

BISHOP HEARN: Recommendation is before you. Vote when your light appears. [720 approved] You have agreed with the committee.

OUGH: The final item related to this topic is also on page 233 of the blue DCA, Calendar Item 750. The text of the petition is again on page 1271 of the white DCA. It's Petition 22191. It's the last item in the right hand column, top of the page. And also it carries over the top of the page 234. The committee recommends concurrence as amended. The amendment is to change "shall" in the bold line, to "may."

The effect of this petition is to identify Criminal Justice and Mercy Ministries as a program responsibility of the District Council of Ministries. The committee wanted this to be permissive rather than mandatory, recognizing some annual conferences do not have district councils on ministries and that DCOMs are structured very differently in the various annual conferences. The committee voted 47 for, 25 against, and 5 abstentions. The committee moves concurrence, Bishop.

BISHOP HEARN: Recommendation is before you. Vote when your light appears. [759 approved] You have agreed with the committee. I now yield to Judith Siaba.

JUDITH SIABA (Northern Illinois): I just have two items.

JUDITH E. SIABA (Northern Illinois): I just have two items.

BISHOP HEARN: Thank you.

Elimination of Jurisdictional Council on Ministries

SIABA: If you would look in your blue book, page 384. Petition 1669. Petition 20560 in the red book, on page 182. It's entitled, "Eliminate Jurisdictional Council on Ministries." And the committee recommends non-concurrence, 36 for and 28 against.

BISHOP HEARN: Recommendation is before you. Yes, back here? Microphone 7.

STEPHEN P. WENDE (Southwest Texas): I was a member of the committee, and it was actually later Saturday night when this came to us than it is now. And a number of us mispoke ourselves on this petition; I was one of them. Since then many of us have talked about it. I'm bringing a plea to the conference, to the body, to clean-up what we have so well begun at the local church and annual conference level. This petition allows the jurisdictional groups to design and use the administrative groups they think best, without wedging them into categories that may or may not fit. Most of our jurisdictions have Council on Ministries. Most of those look absolutely nothing like each other. One of them meets once every two years and gives out money for good causes. That's great, but that's not really a COM. Let's honor our lay leaders and our pastors, and let's go ahead and let folks design the structures they need, and not run the risk of thinking they're all doing the same thing when they're using that name, when in fact they're not. I urge you to vote non-concurrence on this one petition before the committee.

BISHOP HEARN: All right. Committee is recommending non-concurrence with this item. Vote when your light appears. [Results: yes, 46; no, 357] You have agreed with the committee. Next item please.

SIABA: The next item is on the same page, 384. Calendar Item 1672, relates to, in the white book, page 1,268, Petition 22647.

BISHOP HEARN: Yes? Microphone 13.

SCOTT JONES (North Texas): Bishop, I'm confused about where we are. It was my understanding that earlier in the evening we voted that all committee actions would be supported on those petitions where the negative vote was fewer than 20. The chair of the committee, Dr. Hunter, referred to that as he opened up this set of petitions. It would seem to me that this petition, as well as all others with a vote fewer than 20, have already been dealt with by way of supporting the committee. Is that correct?

BISHOP HEARN: We'll ask the chair of the committee to respond.

GEORGE HUNTER III: Yes, that is correct, Bishop.

BISHOP HEARN: OK, do you want to put these on that list then? OK. You have this item. Actually, this item has already been presented to the house, so if you will agree with the recommendation of the committee, which on this item is for concurrence with the deletion of a sentence, you will vote when your light appears. You have agreed with the committee. [769 approved] Now we turn back to the committee.

HUNTER: Bishop, that's all of our petitions. I take this moment (applause) to thank all of those people in our committees, our committee and others, who led legislative committees and subcommittees and worked hard on legislation in this historic General Conference. I join those who were privileged to head legislative committees this month in saying, in the words of the English poet, "I can no other answer make, but thanks, thanks, and ever thanks." (applause)

plause*) Let the chair observe that we are a few minutes from the time that we will need to vacate this hall. We have run over our adjournment time by just a little bit; but if we proceed almost immediately to our worship closing this General Conference, we will be in good order. And so the chair would like to recommend to you that at this time I declare that the business of this General Conference is completed and that we proceed to (applause) and that we proceed then to the worship. If you will agree with the chair for this ruling, that our business has been completed, you will vote "yes" on your machine and "no" if you want to do some more business. (laughter) As you see the light, you will vote. [730 approved] Hallelujah! All right, we need to make some announcements and then we're going to move immediately to the worship. I call on the conference secretary for those announcements that need to be made. If you'll be in order, please. We have worship that is coming up to officially close our conference.

CAROLYN MARSHALL: There are several announcements which do need to come before us. One, if you're terribly anxious about helping to vacate this room, if you would please peel that white label that talks about General Conference and all that sort of thing off your voting box, you will save our help a great deal of time.

BISHOP HEARN: You can take that home as a souvenir.

MARSHALL: Right. And if you don't want to take it home for a souvenir, there are barrels, receptacles, at the end of each aisle, supposed to be at the back there. Please, if you would help us by clearing off your tables, including any souvenirs that you don't want to take with you.

We do want to express appreciation to Mr. William Dunbar of the Advent Organs in Omaha, Neb. who has graciously provided a custom-built Advent Organ for the entire General Conference. (applause) This was a generous gift for this two-week period. And also wanted to remind you that if, at this hour or any other, you are interested in any information on Advent Organs, they are available.

Committee on Correlation and Editorial Introduced

This afternoon, we had thought that there would be an opportunity to introduce the Committee on Correlation and Editorial Revision; those are the persons who have been sitting on the opposite side of the platform and have diligently been working with the legislation which we have been voting. Earl Riddle chairs that committee, Clelia Hendricks, Naomi Bartle, and Richard Evans, (applause) and ex-officio, the editor of the Discipline, Michael Lawrence from the Publishing House. (applause)

For the record, I would also like to add the fact that Gary Graves, a member of the secretarial staff, gave hours and hours of time, but in order to make another commitment had to leave prior to the introduction of the staff, and his name was not announced. But we certainly owe him a debt of gratitude.

The DCA sales booth is closed. Persons who have not turned in their form for sending final copies of the DCA should take these forms to the DCA editorial office in Ballroom "B."

Those of you who will be utilizing "DASH" in order to get from your hotel to the airport, are reminded that there is a special rate of $12 for those of you identifying yourselves as having been participants in the General Conference. It has come to our attention that several persons have called and have been told that the regular rate is $15. However, management has informed us to be sure to remind whomever is there that you are from The United Methodist General Conference and there is a rate of $12. If you pay any more than that, it is money that's being pocketed instead of going to the company.

We have been blessed throughout these two weeks with refreshment breaks. And if you're wondering about what is going to happen to all the leftover cookies—I'd no idea there were that many leftover cookies till I saw the boxes this evening—but I think you would be interested in knowing that they are being distributed to Warren Village Child Care, an inner-city after-school program; The Gathering Place, which is a day center for homeless women and children; and Safe at Saint Paul, a shelter for homeless teens.

This announcement came to me early this morning, and I was waiting for an appropriate time. I'm not sure that this one is any more appropriate than some others, but it really needs to be made fairly soon or it's going to be past a significant day. Many of you have celebrated birthdays or special days in your lives while we have been at General Conference, but today we particularly wanted to recognize Mrs. Mujinga Kayinda from Southern Zaire, who is celebrating her birthday with us today, a delegate from Southern Zaire. (applause)

And then two matters of interest to all of us, and concern for persons whom we will want to be remembering in our prayers. This is an update on the condition of Bishop William R. Cannon, who remains in intensive care at Presbyterian Saint Luke's Hospital here in Denver, following successful hip surgery a week ago. Several organic systems began to malfunction and his condition was critical until this morning. The situation has stabilized and the prognosis is more hopeful. Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Metters, cousins of the bishop, are here with him. They express their deep gratitude for the loving care that has come from friends and colleagues during these days of General Conference and ask for your continuing prayers.

And the last message for us is also one of concern. And that is that we extend our greetings and best wishes to Bishop and Mrs. L. Scott Allen who could not attend the 1996 General Conference due to Bishop Allen's illness. Bishop Hearn, that concludes the announcements.

BISHOP HEARN: Thank you. One other thing needs to be said. Grateful appreciation to all of you for the way in which you have participated in this conference, both in spoken word and by the spirit that you've had in these deliberations. We'll turn now, for the closing worship.

BISHOP WOODIE WHITE: You have been remarkably patient and rather well behaved, General Conference. I will not test your patience. I've been through enough General Conferences to know that one does not attempt to preach at 10:30 p.m. Yes, you may applaud. (applause)

The Grace of Our Lord Jesus Christ be with you,

And with you.

In all that we've said, approved, prayed, sung, and celebrated,

May God have been praised.

As we prepare to close this General Conference session and depart for our homes, We pray that God will continue to be our hope and that we will follow boldly as God leads us.

Hymn No. 545 "The Church's One Foundation"

BISHOP WHITE: You may be seated. And now hear the words of challenge from St. Paul.

"This is the ministry which God and God's mercy has given us, and nothing shall daunt us. We have set our faces against all shameful, secret practices. We use no clever tricks, no manipulation of the Word of God. We speak the plain truth and so commend ourselves to everyone's conscience in the sight of God. If our gospel is veiled, the veil must be in the minds of those who are spiritually dying. The God of this world has blinded the minds of those who do not believe and prevents them from seeing the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, the image of God, from shining on them. For it is Christ Jesus as Lord whom we preach, not ourselves. God who first ordered light to shine in darkness has flooded our hearts with his light so that we can enlighten others with the knowledge of the glory of God as we see it in the face of Christ."

This priceless treasure we hold, so to speak, in an earthenware jar to show that the splendid power of it belongs to God and not to us.

We are hard-pressed on all sides, but we are never totally frustrated. We are puzzled, but we are never totally in despair. We are persecuted, but we are never deserted. We may be knocked down, but we are never knocked out. Every day we experience something of the death of Jesus so that we may also show the power of the life of Jesus in these bodies of ours. Yes, we who are living are always being exposed to death for Jesus' sake, so that the life of Jesus may be plainly seen in our mortal lives. We are always facing physical death so that you may know spiritual life. Our faith is like that mentioned in the Scripture, "I believed, and therefore did I speak." For we, too, speak because we believe and know for certain that those who raised the Lord Jesus Christ from death shall also raise us with Jesus. We shall all stand together. We shall all stand together before God.

(Song)

Ben Wattenberg has written a book with the intriguing title "The Good News Is The Bad News Is Wrong." Our task as the people of God is to go back to those communities from which we've come, those cities, those towns, those villages, those suburbs and tell the people that the good news is that the bad news is wrong. The bad news of brokenness and fear and hopelessness, the bad news that we must live in our socialized worlds of prejudice and racism and sexism and hates. The good news is the bad news is wrong.

Harry Nouwen reminded us that the illusion of leadership is that people can be lead out of the desert by someone who has never been there. Now there is something about you that I know about you that you don't know I know about you. And that is that somewhere in life's journey you have been in a desert. And I don't know what that desert was, but you got out of that desert. And that desert may have been fear, loneliness, cynicism, hate. I don't know what the desert was, but you were in the desert. Despite how secure you look, despite how you place an image of security, you've been in this desert.

And your task and my task, the task of our church is to go back and find those people in the desert and tell them how you got out of the desert. That's what the resolutions are all about, that's what the budget was all about, that's what all of the caucusing was all about. If that was not what it was all about, then we wasted two weeks. It is about bringing people out of the desert and introducing them to the one who brought you out of the desert and gave you life, an abundant life.

We have labored here, you have labored two weeks, and we have made great strides for our church. But the work begins when we leave, when we go back to those places from whence we've come and find the lonely and hurt and the ostracized, find those who have given up on the church and religion, go to those who have lost the way and bring them out of the desert.

I'm proud of our church, I'm proud of what you have done these past two weeks. But I hope you won't go back home and just be bearers of bad news. Your people know enough bad news. They see it on the television, they hear it on the radio, they read it in the weekly magazines, they read it every morning. They don't need you, the people of good news, bringing them bad news.

If there was anything bad here this week, why don't you just leave it here? Something happened here you didn't like, why don't you just leave it here? But if you found some good news, I pray that you will share that good news that people might see the vision that we have captured during these weeks together.

The good news is that the bad news is wrong. I trust that in your days, in your moments of challenge and of ministry, that you will share the good news with those you meet, the good news with those with whom you work, the good news with those with whom you socialize on a daily basis, the good news.

In a world so broken as ours, good news is sorely needed. May God bless what we have attempted to do here, but may you bless others as you share the good news of Christ with all those you meet. Let us pray.

Blessed are you, God of all creation. You have drawn your church together for a great work. In this place we have labored long and passionately to do your will.

Lord, have mercy.

We came because we believe that Christ has the power to transform the world and to reform the church for the sake of the world. We confess that we have so focused on the church that we have forgotten the continents and islands and all the simple, ordinary people who long for love and hope, food and shelter, dignity and justice, God and neighbor.

Lord, have mercy.

Now you turn us homeward. Do not send us away weary at heart and numb in spirit. Restore to us the joy of your salvation. Send us in the power of your Spirit. Make love our controlling affection. Dare us to believe anew that the gospel of Jesus Christ is the power to change lives, the power to redeem the whole world, the power to sing and dance for the hope that is in us.

Lord, speak the word, and we shall be healed.

Triumphant Lord, your dominion has no end. You are champion of the despised and friend of the poor. You make the cross your throne, and wear a crown of thorns. You call us your friends. Send us now to take up our cross, to rejoin that company of disciples whose everyday life is humble service to mission in the world.

Lord, pour out your Spirit upon all the baptized and unleash your Church.

God, grant us the serenity to accept the things we cannot change, the courage to change the things we can, and the wisdom to know the difference. In all things, help us to pray, to watch, to attend to the means of grace, and to find you sufficient for all that is ahead.

Lord, in your mercy.

With all who have become children of the gospel, we join in yielding ourselves to you afresh, daring to pray:

Let me be your servant under your command. I will no longer be my own. I will give up myself to your will in all things. Lord, make me what you will. I put myself fully into your hands. Put me to doing, put me to suffering, let me be employed for you, or laid aside for you, let me be full, let me be empty, let me have all things, let me have nothing. I freely and with a willing heart give it all to your pleasure and disposal. O mighty God, the Lord Omnipotent, holy and blessed Trinity, you have become my Covenant Friend. And I, through your infinite grace, have become your covenant servant. So be it. And let this covenant I have made on earth be ratified in heaven.

(hymn)

BISHOP WHITE: And now, may the Lord torment you, may the Lord keep before you the faces of the hungry and the lonely and the rejected and the despised, and may the Lord give you courage and strength and compassion to make ours a better world, to make your community a better community, to make your church a better church. And may you do your very best to make it so. And after you have done your best, may the Lord grant you peace.

I declare the 1996 General Conference of The United Methodist Church to be adjourned.

A behind-the-scenes look at Russia

Who are the Russian United Methodists? What impact is all the change having on the people of Russia? What are the problems and opportunities faced by Russian women?

Lydia Istomina, lay pastor of the First United Methodist Church of Russia in Ekaterinburg, tells about the challenges and opportunities for the church in Russia. With a church 1,000 members strong, two soup kitchens, a prison ministry, a school, a special education program for the hearing-impaired, and an out-patient clinic, United Methodists are rising to the challenges of ministry in Russia in the 1990s. With special attention to the role of women in the new Russian society, this book will be especially suited for UMW groups.

You're here at the General Conference because you care about the church. No doubt, you also care about the earth.

What if one of the prophetic roles of the church at century's end is to stand up for ALL of creation?

"If the church doesn't, who will?"

That question was asked in an open letter to religious leaders from 35 leading scientists, including Carl Sagan. They said that fundamentally the environmental crisis is a spiritual one and must be addressed by people of faith.

This six-program video series helps us reflect on the spiritual nature of the problem and to reclaim our connection to all that God called good – in short to Love the Earth and Be Healed.

THE GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

Denver, Colorado

Saturday, April 27, 1996

Vol. 3 No. 12

In Essentials Unity, In Non-Essentials Liberty, In All Things Charity

There were high points:

- approval of new concepts of ministry and baptism;
- embracing a new ecumenical reality;
- the safe arrival of Bishop Arthur F. Kulah from war-torn Liberia;
- a historic address by U.S. First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton.

General Conference 1996 also noted painful moments: emotional debate on homosexuality and Bishop J. Alfred Ndurimpa's bittersweet phone call to delegates. The bishop was denied a visa to travel to Denver because of political unrest in his native Burundi. The 998 delegates to the church's highest legislative body did a lion's share of work on behalf of their 10-million-member denomination.

The conference opened with the first-ever presentation of the Episcopal Address by a woman, Bishop Judith Craig, Ohio West Area. Speaking for the Council of Bishops, she called for compassion, fervor and reconciliation, a challenge for an assembly facing 10 days of lengthy, often dull, legislative and parliamentary wrangling.

What's New?

* BAPTISM STATEMENT. Delegates clarified the denomination's historical position on baptism, affirming infant baptism as God's act of welcoming children to the body of Christ. However, membership in the denomination and a congregation depends on a profession of faith. Rebaptism was deemed "unWesleyan."

* COVENANT WITH EIGHT CHURCHES. After 30 years' discussion, United Methodists became the sixth of nine denominations to sign a pledge of covenant relationship. While this is not organic union, local churches will be encouraged to meet and worship with other churches in their communities who signed the covenant.

* METHODIST REUNION. Delegates also agreed to help fund and participate in a plan to reunite The United Methodist Church and three historically Black Methodist churches. The plan for union will be voted on in the year 2000 by the United Methodist, African Methodist Episcopal and African Methodist Episcopal Zion general conferences, and by the Christian Methodist Episcopal Zion Church in 2002.

* CHURCHWIDE BUDGET. A four-year, churchwide program budget of $508,260,000, was approved. The budget represents a 1-percent increase over the 1996 budget for 1997, no increase for 1998, and 2-percent increases each for 1999 and 2000. The conference appointed a committee to study the general-church structure and recommend a new structure in 2000.

* NEW ORDINATION PROCESS: After three decades of studying the nature of ministry, delegates affirmed two separate offices of ordained ministry: permanent deacons, who pledge to serve God and the church through word and service to the community; and elders, called to service, word, sacrament and order.

The new plan eliminates the two-step ordination process. Diaconal ministers may choose to pursue ordination as deacons.

* CELEBRATING ETHNIC DIVERSITY: The conference enthusiastically accepted a new Spanish-language

hymnal, Mil Voces Para Celebrar. Delegates also recommended church resources to ongoing Hispanic and Native-American ministries, agreed to study the need for a Korean mission conference and adopted an initiative to strengthen African-American congregations. They also approved a $20 million funding package: half apportionments, half second-mile contributions for Africa University, the denomination's first four-year college in Zimbabwe.

A Big Hand for the First Lady

Hillary Rodham Clinton, a lifelong United Methodist, gave a 30-minute message to General Conference, during which she urged the church to continue its witness for children. Her address was frequently interrupted by applause, and she was received by delegates with a standing ovation.

"In today's world, churches are among the few places . . . where young people can let down their guard," she noted. "Despite the problems of poverty and illiteracy and violence, there are solutions being born . . . in churches and communities throughout the world." Mrs. Clinton, who was introduced by Arkansas Area Bishop Richard B. Wilke, acknowledged the profound impact of the church on her own life. It was her childhood church, First United Methodist, Park Ridge, Ill., where she learned "the connection between my personal faith and the obligations I face as a Christian." Paying tribute to Sunday school teachers, she said a line from "Jesus Loves the Little Children," cemented her respect for diversity "more than any earnest lecture on racism."

Homosexuality Debate Continues

The homosexuality debate was preceded by a statement by 15 bishops, an action which drew much controversy. Although homosexuality has been the subject of fierce debate in every General Conference since 1972, attempts either to strengthen or to relax the church's condemnation of homosexual practice were voted down by delegates. Specifically, they voted 577-378 against a recommendation to exchange the "incompatibility" clause for an admission that United Methodists are "not of a common mind" on the issue. They also added a footnote to define a "self-avowed practicing" homosexual as "one who openly acknowledges his or her homosexuality to a bishop, district superintendent, district committee on ordained ministry, board of ordained ministry or clergy session" of an annual conference.

Of Form, Function and Finances

Answering a cry from local churches that Discipline-mandated work areas and other structural requirements are burdensome, General Conference approved allowing each congregation to organize itself. Delegates also discussed concerns about increasing budget demands placed on grass-roots United Methodists by the church's national and international agencies. (Churchwide program agencies are funded through local-church apportionments).

Subsequently, the conference approved strategy for reducing by about one-third the number of voting directors of the 13 U.M. agencies. Delegates also accepted a process for studying the overall structure, with a report to be presented to General Conference 2000.

The conference rebuffed a controversial plan to move the General Board of Global Ministries from New York to Reston, Va.

A separate Commission on United Methodist Men was formed by action of the conference. Supporters said no new funding will be required, as the new commission will draw on money currently allocated to the existing men's division of the General Board of Discipleship.

After three hours of wrangling, delegates adopted a 1997-2000 program budget totalling $508,260,000, reflecting an overall increase of $12.6 million, or 2.5 percent, over the current quadrennium. The adopted budget was about $5 million more than originally suggested by the General Council on Finance and Administration. However, with the adoption of four new, unanticipated programs, delegates voted the increase. Delegates debated, but ultimately rejected, a much-discussed proposal from the Western North Carolina Conference to make apportionments "the percentage of money that local churches give to support regional and churchwide ministries" voluntary.

In other actions, the conference:

- * condemned global violence, and prayed for the survivors of the 1995 Oklahoma City bombing and their families;

- * approved a churchwide emphasis on nurturing youth and under-30 adults;

- * celebrated the 10th anniversary of Disciple Bible Study, in which more than 400,000 worldwide have participated;

- * welcomed Cuban Methodist Bishop Gustavo Cruz, and reaffirmed the call for an end to the U.S. economic embargo against Cuba. The conference also expressed concern for people experiencing military, economic and other difficulties in Brazil, Liberia, Burundi and the Middle East;

- * renewed funding and support for a U.S.-based anti-drug, anti-alcohol education program and extended the program to Northern Europe.

Episcopal Address: God Will Break Into Our Prayers 'With Energy, Wisdom, Joy'

Delegates applauded Bishop Judith Craig's Episcopal Address, a technological "first" for the General Conference. Images that mirrored Bishop Craig's words and challenges were projected on a large screen behind the podium and on television monitors around the plenary hall. Photos and video of the first Shalom Zone in Los Angeles, the first multiracial free elections in South Africa, children starving in famines and children thriving in church ministries, tornado devastation, the site of the Oklahoma City bombing and the outreach of the United Methodist Committee on Relief gave the bishop's words a new dimension of power. Bishop Craig said the bishops are working on an episcopal initiative on children and poverty.

"As a Council of Bishops," she said, "we believe the church can offer no more powerful sign of steward responsibility than making the welfare of children and youth our first concern. They are the ones who will inherit the wind of our terror or the nurturing breeze of our care. Their needs are the most urgent cries to which we must respond quickly and without reserve. To that end, we urge this General Conference to keep the image of the most powerless... people—the poor, children, youth, women—always in the forefront as we do the work given us to do..."

While the Episcopal Address is written by the presenter, it is composed using the input of the Council of Bishops. While all bishops have approved the text, it does not reflect the view of every bishop at every point.

"The United Methodist Church is alive and well around the world," she said. "While many lament and wring their hands with worry and despair about the church, there are signs of God at work all around us and within us."

She went on to list signs of hope:

—29 graduates of Africa University, only six years after its beginnings. "It is the church alive, touching minds and hearts with knowledge and faith."

—More than 400,000 people have finished one or more courses of Disciple Bible Study.

—United Methodists participate in spiritual-growth movements such as the Walk to Emmaus, Covenant Disciple Groups and Wesley Classes, and Academy of Spiritual Formation.

—Most annual conferences are asking "with fresh urgency, what is our primary task? Where does God call us to focus our resources in this age?"

—Three events are designed to help youth and young adults discern calls from God to ordained and diaconal ministry.

—The National Plan for Hispanic Ministry is thriving.

—United Methodist presence is being experienced in new places: "Consider the Russia Initiative, where new congregations gather for worship, Christian education and service because of United Methodist invitation. The initiative also fosters major work in medical, economic, educational, industrial and agricultural growth for the people of the region."

—The church has been working "against oppression in government and seeking to bring justice to people without a voice."

—95 Shalom Zones have been established or are being developed.

—During the past four years, 103,000 Volunteers in Mission served in 46 countries, supported by nearly $39 million.

"In all these signs of hope," Bishop Craig said, "we see a marvelous linking of individual disciples, congregations, districts, conferences, and general boards and agencies. Signs of hope show the connection at work, doing together what we cannot do alone," she said.

Bishop Craig listed scientific and technological advances as a context for change and reminded delegates of John Wesley's unorthodox, even revolutionary, street preaching that he found necessary to save souls.

With that background, she then turned to what became the controversial portion of the address, as some read into her remarks a welcoming of gay and lesbian persons. She urged The United Methodist Church to "be an open house where Jesus sits at the doorway and welcomes all who come, regardless of whether the townspeople think it proper or not!"

"It is an offense to God," she continued, "to define so carefully and describe church so rigidly as to create a family tree that says most clearly who is not welcome."

Bishop Craig cited 40 years of "benefiting from the gifts of women as elders in full conference membership." She also noted 30 years of "having removed from our midst the scandal of formal segregation in the Central Jurisdiction."

"God watches us," she said, "perhaps with divine angst, to see if we—who claim to be faithful—will indeed act faithfully. . . . Can we speak God's forgiving, nurturing word in 21st-century language and practices? Oh, please God, make us able to answer with a resounding 'Yes!'"

Bishop Craig urged delegates to wrap the General Conference in "a mantle of prayer." She concluded: "We ask you to pray. . . . We go to our discipline of intercessory prayer with confidence God will break in with energy, wisdom and joy. We invite you to your moments of self-revelation and searching, equally confident that God will bless the church and the world through a General Conference earnestly praying and listening for God's guidance," she said.

Laity Address Celebrates Partnership

As the world prepares to enter the 21st century, United Methodist clergy and laity are called to join as true partners in ministry, reaching out to people, with hope, love and caring.

That's the vision for the church as presented by James W. Lane of Sherwood, Ark., in the 1996 Laity Address, "Partners in Ministry: A Vision of the Year 2000." Representing the church's 9.7 million lay members worldwide, the North Arkansas Conference lay leader gave the traditional address on April 17.

"As United Methodist Christians today, it is our time to see the visions, to dream the dreams and to prophesy," Mr. Lane said. And just as the Old Testament foretold in the story of Esther, "God has surely brought us to this place for just such a time as this," he said.

"Thrust open the doors of our churches," he continued. "Quit sitting around in meetings talking about what we ought to do, and get out ... and be in ministry." Effective ministry must revolve around sending people out, "equipped and prepared to offer Christ to the world."

According to Mr. Lane, a new model for church leadership is emerging. It calls for sharing in ministry and leadership between pastors and local church laity. "This requires a deep level of trust, commitment and communication on both sides." Congregations must be equipped with resources and skills to engage in shared ministry for Christ—both within the church and throughout the world. He called this shared ministry of offering Christ "the primary task of the church" that is both valid and urgent.

Mr. Lane called churches to become "full-service mission stations," centers for spiritual renewal and personal commitment. He envisions these as community centers of wholeness and healing, offering a welcome beacon to God's children, places filled with love, forgiveness, acceptance and haven.

Second, the church needs more "saving stations where love abides, and all God's children can find salvation, healing, wholeness and safety," Mr. Lane said. He challenged United Methodists to create exciting new programs of "ministry and healing for young, old, men, women, boys, girls, married, single, senior citizens, persons with disabling conditions, all persons who are hurting."

The third suggestion is for "empowering stations" to offer vital and exciting opportunities for worship and learning. Knowledge is essential in this endeavor, Mr. Lane said. For example, he believes "Disciple: Becoming Disciples Through Bible Study" should be a part of the yearly program in every parish.

He called for "jazzing up" worship services that communicate the gospel but also "lift up the excitement and call of the Pentecostal fires of a church in mission and ministry." He said that an opportunity for conversion and commitment should be present at every service, offered in tandem with exciting, vital worship.

A fourth possibility is for congregations to become "equipping and sending stations" for preparing persons for ministry and sending them into the community and the world. Mr. Lane envisions participatory training for ministry and skill-building events and churches with part-time or full-time directors of volunteers to equip persons for mission and ministry.

"We must learn to listen to all our people," he said. "Our best ideas for ministry come from those who live out their lives in the everyday world, who have seen the struggles and injustices, and . . . see ways out for those who are in need and who are hurting. We need to . . . translate their ideas, hopes and dreams into ministry."

Finally, United Methodist churches must become "community-outreach stations," Mr. Lane said. Such stations could offer programs for youth groups, scouting groups, community agencies and recovery groups, and assistance for people with immediate survival needs.

With the dawning of a new millennium ahead, Mr. Lane concluded, it is time to act, to be "God's station keepers . . . partners in ministry."

Basic Theological Stance Remains Intact

Unlike some previous General Conferences which had "Faith and Mission" legislative committees considering such proposals as "Our Theological Task," the 1996 General Conference had no committee concerned specifically with matters of theology. That does not mean, however, that delegates were indifferent to theology.

The doctrinal standards spelled out in paragraph 68 were kept unchanged. A petition calling for keeping the statement unchanged was passed by the conference's plenary session on a Consent Calendar, without debate.

Revised in 1992, the statement of "Our Theological Task" states that "United Methodists share with other Christians the conviction that Scripture is the primary source and criterion for Christian doctrine." The theological task of the church, therefore, "focuses on a disciplined study of the Bible."

While the adoption and reaffirmation of the primacy of Scripture was hailed generally, other parts of the re-approved description of the theological task seemed to some to open the door to affirming and adopting other theological traditions.

While affirming the primacy of Scripture, the statement says theological reflection may also be in tradition, experience or rational analysis. This leads to diversity in theological reflection which is claimed by some as a strength of the church while being decried by others as dangerous pluralism.

The General Conference addressed pluralism in United Methodist theological inquiry by refusing to approve petitions which called for ensuring that biblical, historical and theological studies at United Methodist theology schools are faithful to the church's petitions. Delegates turned down petitions calling for rejection of exaggerated attempts at "inclusive language that deny ecumenical trinitarian teaching in the name of God the Father, God the Son and God the Holy Spirit," and refused to approve a petition calling for a study of classical Christian theology and modern feminism.

In approving a church document on baptism which emphasized salvation by God's grace; restating the church's mission as making disciples of Jesus Christ; and adopting resolutions which call for love, justice and inclusiveness as expressions of faith, the General Conference left basic theological standards unchanged.

General Board of Global Ministries STAYS!

The General Board of Global Ministries will remain in New York City, at least for the quadrennium. Relocation will be considered by the General Conference in 2000. That same conference will incorporate a site-relocation decision into the broad discussion of restructuring general boards and agencies.

Delegates turned down a recommendation to move the board to Reston, Va., at an estimated cost of $72 million. The conference affirmed the unanimous recommendation of the General and Judicial Administration Legislative Committee rejecting the report of a Site Selection Committee authorized by the 1992 General Conference. The 1992 body mandated that the board move from New York City. The action of one General Conference is not binding on future conferences.

This General Conference also turned down a minority report from the committee asking for at least two alternate headquarters sites to be presented in 2000. The location of general boards and agencies is only one of many issues to be considered by a new Connectional Process Team (CPT). Succeeding the Connectional Issues Study group of this quadrennium, CPT will make a major study of domestic and international structures of the denomination.

The study is designed to lead to greater flexibility in organization and ministry for all parts of the church, while reducing the size of general church agencies. CPT is charged with facilitating "an interactive organizational process" to clarify the mission of general church agencies and define the most faithful structure to enable denominational ministries at all levels. Staffing for the CPT will be provided by the General Council on Ministries. Funding will come from the General Council on Finance and Administration.

General Conference members talked much of downsizing and permissive structure. It did, however, mandate a General Commission on United Methodist Men and a commission on communications—or equivalent structure—in each annual conference. The new men's organization will coordinate and provide resources for men's ministries within The United Methodist Church. It will support the office of scouting ministry, a telephone prayer ministry and the "Moving United Methodist" program which tracks members who move to new cities.

The new commission will replace a program unit now in the General Board of Discipleship. Although it mandated the communications commission in each annual conference, the General Conference gave regional bodies greater flexibility in how to organize for mission.

Councils on ministries will no longer be mandated—although they may be used if the conference wishes. Annual conferences must have structures to carry out the functions of administration and evaluation; advocacy; maintenance of connectional relationships; organization, development and strengthening ethnic ministries and congregations; and organization and support of ministries of nurture, outreach and witness.

Delegates Embrace the World Through Variety of Issues

Suffering caused by violence around the world was made apparent to General Conference delegates as they heard firsthand accounts from Bishop Arthur F. Kulah of Liberia and Bishop J. Alfred Nduricimpa of Burundi. Delegates also addressed the Israeli bombing of a Lebanese refugee camp, and paused in memory of the 168 people killed in Oklahoma City a year ago.

Bishop Kulah, who arrived in Denver April 24 after a harrowing journey from Monrovia to the border of Liberia, wept as he described the chaos in his country as beyond human description, understanding and reasoning.

Bishop Nduricimpa, denied a U.S. visa to attend the conference, spoke with delegates April 25 via telephone hookup. Because of the dangers of ethnic violence and lack of government control in Burundi, the bishop has established an office in Nairobi, Kenya. Both bishops, however, expressed hope for the future of their countries and said their churches have been growing, despite many problems.

Bishop Peter Dabale of Nigeria also told delegates about the human-rights violations which have occurred recently in his country. In one area, he said, a whole village was burned. At least 15 United Methodist churches also were torched. Through a resolution on "Africa Reconstruction and Development," adopted by consent, General Conference supported the denomination's ongoing "Campaign for Africa" and urged the General Board of Church and Society to advocate for U.S. policies, which address peacemaking and economic and human rights on the continent.

A separate approved resolution on Liberia urges a negotiated settlement of the civil war and commits the church to helping rebuild the nation.

General Conference voted to send a delegation—led by Indiana Area Bishop Woodie W. White, president of the Council of Bishops—to the White House to share a statement on the crisis in Lebanon and occupation of Palestine.

In other global-related matters, General Conference rejected a recommendation from the General Board of Global Ministries Site-Selection Task Force to move the board's headquarters from New York to Reston, Va. Instead, it approved a committee proposal recommending delay of any relocation because of possible restructuring of all the denomination's boards and agencies. The adopted proposal does not require the development of an alternate site recommendation.

General Conference delegates, including 138 international delegates, also:

- petitioned President Clinton and Congress to lift the economic embargo against Cuba by repealing the Cuban Democracy Act of 1992 as well as any additional restrictions or laws related to the embargo;

- voted to send a letter to officials in Brazil and the United States, voicing concern about a reported massacre by military police;
- celebrated the growth of Africa University in Zimbabwe from a handful of students to nearly 300 in the colleges of theology, business, education and agriculture;
- created a separate Central Conference for Zaire, which currently has seven annual (regional) conferences;
- encouraged continuing attempts at peacemaking, reconstruction of communities and protection of human rights in a resolution on "God's Shalom for the People of Central America";
- supported the establishment of a permanent fund, Encounter with Christ in Latin America and the Caribbean, for new church development and other evangelistic initiatives;
- called for a thorough investigation of all crimes and acts of violence committed by U.S. military personnel stationed in Okinawa and the reduction or removal of all U.S. military bases from the island;
- supported Christian witness in East Timor and the rights of the people there to self-determination and called upon the U.S. government to pressure Indonesia to withdraw its military occupation;
- addressed sustainable development, human-rights concerns, and peace and justice issues in the Middle East and North Africa;
- recognized Jerusalem as a city sacred to Jews, Muslims and Christians and requested the United States and other governments to urge Israel to lift the closure of Jerusalem to Palestinians and cease the confiscation of Palestinian lands;
- called upon the United States and other governments to fulfill their obligations of promised financial support to the Palestinians;
- expressed concern about the dwindling number of Christians in the Holy Land and urged organizers of United Methodist tours there to help strengthen the witness of the remaining Palestinian Christians;
- condemned the use of rape as a weapon in times of conflict and war;
- supported the demand for apology and reparations to the Korean "comfort women" who were forced to serve as sex slaves for Japanese troops during World War II;
- agreed, upon recommendation of the Council of Bishops, to enter into covenanting relationship with The Evangelical Church of Spain and the West African Methodist Church (of Sierra Leone).

Through Baptism Study, Delegates Welcome Infants as Members

"By Water and the Spirit," the Baptism Study document under construction for the past eight years was affirmed as the defining document on the sacrament of baptism for United Methodists.

The study clarifies issues of rebaptism, confirmation and church membership which have been discussed across the connection for the past two quadrenniums. The Rev. Mark Trotter, California-Pacific Conference, chaired the study committee and presented its report to the plenary session, assisted by the Rev. Gail Felton, Duke University Divinity School faculty member and study committee member. Mr. Trotter explained that, with the 1988 adoption of The United Methodist Hymnal, in which the service of baptism appears prominently, the issue moved to the forefront of church members' awareness.

Ensuing discussion across the connection revealed areas of conflict in the pastoral interpretation of the sacrament. As a result, the 1988 General Conference directed that an official study report be prepared. An initial draft of the study presented at the 1992 General Conference was remanded for further study across the church, and the Study Committee was directed to present a revision in 1996.

Ms. Felton explained that the study's interpretive document brings together both the sacramental and evangelical traditions of the church's history. It acknowledges through baptism God's prevenient grace to which all are entitled from birth and provides for a personal response to that grace in the form of an individual's profession of faith and commitment to discipleship, through the ceremony of confirmation.

Specific implications for the local church are as follows. Once baptized, individuals—even babies—become official members of the church and are designated as "baptized members" on church rolls. At confirmation or profession of faith, an individual becomes a "professing member." While baptism should happen only once, a reaffirmation of that baptism may be celebrated as many times as desired, so long as it cannot be construed as rebaptism.

Mr. Trotter emphasized that the manner in which local churches count members for the purpose of determining apportionments would not change. The rolls of professing members, currently known as "full members," will be used.

COCU: Faith and Order Ecumenism

"Imagine some scenarios that might soon become reality within this covenant," said Bishop William Boyd Grove as he introduced the Churches in Covenant Communion plan to the General Conference. "In a small town in Ohio, or in Nebraska, or in the state where you live, four of the covenanting churches have congregations. They decide that once a month, or four times a year or more, they will meet for a shared Eucharist, with all clergy as co-celebrants. They also decide that they will do all their baptisms together."

Local action like that will embody a covenant among nine Protestant denominations and moves "faith and order ecumenism" in the Consultation on Church Union (COCU) to the local, congregational level. "We will experience the life of the one church in a new and dynamic way," he said. Bishop Grove said ecumenism is primarily evangelism. "The division of the church confuses and repels people," he said.

Besides United Methodists, Bishop Grove said that four other COCU member denominations have committed themselves to covenanting: the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), United Church of Christ, Christian Methodist Episcopal Church (CME) and International Council of Community Churches. Presbyterian Church USA still must approve the necessary constitutional amendments.

The African Methodist Episcopal (AME) and African Methodist Episcopal Zion (AMEZ) churches are expected to approve covenanting this summer. The Episcopal Church, still considering the proposal, will take longer to vote, Bishop Grove predicted.

The proposal describes covenant communion as "both an act and a process. Covenanting is not designed to eliminate diversity. In covenant communion the churches may maintain, for so long as each may determine, their own church structures and traditions, including present forms of worship; systems of ministerial selection, training and placement; their international confession and communion relationships; and their mission programs. What covenanting means is that these now separated churches will resolve to live as one in the most basic things—in faith, sacrament, ministry and mission. Uniformity in structure is not essential to covenant communion.

There are eight elements of covenanting:

1. claiming unity in faith;
2. commitment to seek unity with wholeness;
3. mutual recognition of members in one baptism;
4. mutual recognition of each other as churches;
5. mutual recognition of ordained ministry;
6. celebrating the Eucharist together;
7. engaging together in Christ's mission;
8. formation of covenanting councils.

Covenanting councils—national, regional or local—will be formed as covenanting is affirmed. The councils will make church unity visible and "embodied in tangible form." On the local level, covenanting councils will enable covenanting congregations to "live and act as one covenant communion in that place, even while maintaining their distinct existences and traditions.

Delegates Try to Hold the Line on General Church Spending

During the final day of the 1996 General Conference, delegates adopted a budget for the next four years that will enable mission and ministry around the world and, at the same time, holds the line on general church spending.

At $508,260,000, the budget adopted is almost $5 million more than what the General Council on Finance and Administration (GCFA) had recommended. It is also more than $32 million more than the apportioned amount to local churches in the 1993-96 quadrennium.

General Conference delegates added to the budget by adopting the Mission Initiatives/Focus 2000 report, which will fund the Asian-American Language Ministry Study, Strengthening Korean Ministry, the Connectional Process Team and a Focus on Young People. The Mission Initiatives/Focus 2000 apportioned fund adds $4,760,000 to the budget.

Other line items in the budget were adjusted to try to maintain a 0-0-2-2 level. Those funds adjusted up included the Ministerial Education Fund and the Black College Fund. The World Service Fund and the Episcopal Fund went down. The Interdenominational Cooperation Fund, General Administration Fund and Africa University Fund were not changed from GCFA's original recommendation.

GCFA came to General Conference with a recommendation to keep the budget at the same level for 1997 and 1998 and establish a 2-percent hike for 1999 and 2000. With the addition of the new fund, the budget now reflects a 1-percent increase for 1997, 0 percent for 1998, and 2-percent hikes in 1999 and 2000.

Broken down by year, the budget translates into $125,190,000 for 1997 and 1998; $127,690,000 in 1999; and $130,190,000 for 2000.

General Conference adopted the budget in a series of reports, each dealing with a specific piece. The World Service Fund was amended in legislative committee, to $253,639,000 for the quadrennium. This figure is $1.01 million less than what GCFA requested. A proposal that would have reduced meeting expenses in this fund by 30 percent, then add 10 percent for inflation, was defeated on the floor. Report number one, as amended by committee, was adopted by 76.3 to 22.7 percent.

The Ministerial Education Fund was amended by committee to show an amount of $109,550,000. This represents a 0-0-1.6-1.9 percent increase over the four years. It was approved by an almost nine-to-one margin.

The Black College Fund was amended by committee to show $43,682,000. This represents a 0-0-1.6-2.0 percent increase over the next four years. The plenary voted approval 91.4 to 8.6 percent.

The Africa University Fund showed no increase in the GCFA proposal, and was approved by almost 98 percent of the voting delegates. The four-year total in the budget is $10 million.

The Episcopal Fund came under consideration for reduction during legislative committee debate and was reduced almost $300,000. The total approved by General Conference is $61,705,914, by an 88.3- to 11.7-percent margin.

The General Administration Fund went through committee and plenary without change, for a quadrennial total of $18,466,000.

The Interdenominational Cooperation Fund was approved with a plurality of 98 percent in the amount of $6,457,000.

The GCFA budget was set at a four-year total of $21,311,000. The plenary also continued six churchwide Special Sundays with offerings: Human Relations Day, One Great Hour of Sharing, Native American Awareness Sunday, Peace with Justice Sunday, World Communion Sunday, and United Methodist Student Day. In addition, annual conferences are authorized and may collect offerings for Golden Cross Sunday, Christian Education Sunday and Rural Life Sunday.

Apportionment formulas were reviewed, as the legislative committee rejected a proposal that would have removed membership from the equation. The legislative committee did concur with GCFA to include this in a GCFA Study of Connectional Ministry Funding Patterns.

A recommendation on staffing the task force for studying connectional ministry funding patterns was the subject of much debate on the General Conference floor. An amendment to delete the words "nor formerly members or" in report 13 was approved by a 54.9- to 45.1- percent margin. The language will now prohibit people who are currently members or staff of any general board or agency from serving on the task force.

During the legislative committee process, delegates also turned down several proposals that would have: combined the apportionments of World Service with conference benevolences; allowed local churches to decide what apportionments they would pay; and removed membership from being part of the formula for determining apportionments.

Cashar W. Evans Jr., lay delegate, North Carolina, chaired the Financial Administration Legislative Committee.

United Methodists Have a New Ordering of Ministry

Focusing on the theological tenet of the "ministry of all Christians," delegates reversed the bishops' plan, rejecting the two-step ordination of deacon to elder and offering two separate, distinct ministerial orders. The bishops' proposed "lay ministry steward," a specialized service ministry for laity, was rejected and referred to the General Board of Discipleship for study.

Most debate was directed toward the new, non-itinerant order of deacon that will no longer be a steppingstone to elder's orders. The role of deacon is one of servant leadership in the life of the church and community, which "extends the witness and service of Christ's love and justice." The ministry of the deacon parallels much of that of the elder. The sacramental privileges rest alone with the ministry of the elder, whom the deacon is permitted to assist. The elder's responsibility includes the ministry of service, word, sacrament and order.

The qualifications for elders and deacons are similar as they move through the steps of candidacy: inquiring, exploring, declared, certified. The educational requirements are relatively equal, requiring both bachelor's and master's degrees. Elders and deacons are under the supervision of the district committee and conference board of ministry, depending upon the stage in the steps toward ordination. Both are members of the annual conference with full privileges, including election to committees and boards as well as General Conference.

The limitation upon the deacon's right to administer the sacraments excludes deacons from the offices of superintendent and bishop. If a deacon is appointed as a licensed local pastor, the way is open for performing all the duties in serving a local church.

Deacons who feel the call to serve as elders must surrender deacon's orders and fulfill the requirements for ordination as elders. In similar fashion, if elders pursue a change in vocational choice that does not require sacramental duties, they must surrender their credentials and fulfill the requirements of the deacon's orders. The two orders cannot be held at the same time.

A deacon is not required to itinerate but serves only under the appointment of the bishop upon the initiative of the deacon, employment agency or superintendency. The appointment is annually reviewed and subject to reappointment. Reappointment depends upon several factors, including the deacon's employer. The Disciplinary language concerning elders has changed. "Every effective elder in full connection who is in good standing shall 'receive an annual' (old language)/'be continued under' (new language) appointment by the bishop." This so-called "guaranteed" clause does not exist for permanent but non-itinerant deacons.

When elders and deacons meet requirements for ordination, they are commissioned, enter a period of probation of no less than three years and no more than six years, and begin their ministry under appointment. Those who are currently consecrated as diaconal ministers can either enter into the process of becoming a deacon or continue in diaconal ministry, which will no longer be open to new candidates after Jan. 1, 1997.

Other decisions of interest:

- Clergy are now explicitly employees of the annual conference. This is awaiting an official ruling by the Internal Revenue Service.
- "Clergy" and "pastor" are separately defined.
- Bishops can once again invite lay persons to participate in ordination and the laying on of hands.
- Annual evaluations of pastors are the responsibility of the district superintendent in consultation with the pastor-parish relations committee.
- A new "fair process" toward protecting rights of individuals involved in grievance procedures, separating administrative complaints from judicial complaints, is created.
- Local pastors are now eligible to serve on the conference's board of trustees as well as all boards and committees except ordained ministry.
- Maternity/paternity leaves are now available to local pastors.
- "Integrity in all personal relationships" is another expectation for clergy, along with "fidelity in marriage and celibacy in singleness."
- A footnote defines the meaning of "self-avowed, practicing homosexual."
- All pastors who are reimbursed for expenses or given allowances must report them to the annual conference along with their base salary.
- Associate members who have reached age 55 and have served at least five years can be granted full conference membership upon 3/4 vote of the ordained clergy.
- Associate members are included in the privilege of sabbatical leave.
- Retired clergy who live outside of their conference bounds shall report annually any performance of pastoral services and the circumstances of their families.
- The pastor-parish relations committee, when presented with the cabinet's choice of a new pastor, "may request a reconsideration of the possible appointment...with specific reasons...."
- A petition to attach the following sentence to Para. 71C in the Social Principles was referred to the Judicial Council for a declaratory decision: "Ceremonies that celebrate homosexual unions shall not be conducted by our ministers and shall not be conducted in our churches." In the last hours of the conference, the Judicial Council declared that the placement of items in the Discipline is not in their jurisdiction.

Conference Holds Line on Policies Toward Homosexuals

The 1996 General Conference refused to change the church's long-held statement that "homosexuality is incompatible with Christian teaching" and that "self-avowed practicing homosexuals are not to be accepted as candidates, ordained as ministers, or appointed to serve in The United Methodist Church."

Debate was long, earnest, personal and painful for those on both sides in a church that prides itself on forward-looking Social Principles and openness.

On the other hand, the conference maintained policies that "affirm God's grace is available to all," "supports basic human rights and civil rights for homosexual persons" and "condemns violence against gays and lesbians." Delegates added a new statement opposing discrimination against homosexuals in the U.S. military.

The final vote to retain the "incompatible" clause was 60 percent to 40 percent, closer than on the same issue in previous General Conferences. Mutual respect for opposing points of view was stated repeatedly. As one delegate put it, "We meet near the Continental Divide. Like the rain, some of us fall on one side, some on the other, but all come from the same source."

Marriage Ceremonies Rejected

After lengthy debate, the conference overwhelmingly refused to approve homosexual "unions," "covenants" or "marriages," stating: "Ceremonies that celebrate homosexual unions shall not be conducted by our ministers and shall not be conducted in our churches." That action was challenged by some as inappropriate for the Social Principles since it was a legality. The matter was referred to the Judicial Council, which later ruled that it had no power to override the will of the conference. So the new legislation was retained in the Social Principles.

Clergy Policies

The longest and most involved debate on homosexuality revolved around efforts to strengthen the church's ban on appointments of "self-avowed practicing homosexuals" by adding the words "proven with clear and convincing evidence," and a footnote defining "self-avowed" as a person who "openly acknowledges to a bishop, district superintendent, district committee on ordained ministry, board of ordained ministry, or clergy session that a person is a practicing homosexual."

Financial Policies

A minority report from one committee would have softened the General Council on Finance and Administration legislation ensuring that no United Methodist funds be used to promote the acceptance of homosexuality. It proposed adding: "This restriction shall not limit the church's ministry in response to the HIV epidemic, nor shall this restriction limit the church's research, study and discussion of human sexuality." But the report also dropped the ban on funds going "to any gay caucus or group." This was not acceptable to the delegates so the initiative failed.

Mixed Emotions

Many delegates were genuinely troubled over the issues. Relieved that the conference had not created "problems back home" by opening doors to gays and lesbians, some delegates still expressed thanks for a church that affirms God's grace for all and commits itself to be in ministry for and with all people; and supports basic human rights and civil liberties for homosexual persons. All those positions remain church policy. The ambiguities were clear to all.

Pleas for Openness

One reason debate was less acrimonious and interest groups less demonstrative than at previous conferences was the constant plea for openness, acceptance and understanding of opposing views. Delegates were often reminded of that proud United Methodist heritage.

Delivering the Episcopal Address, Bishop Judith Craig said, "The church we order must be an open house, where Jesus sits at the doorway and welcomes all who come, regardless of whether the townspeople think it proper or not! It is an offense to define God so carefully and describe church so rigidly as to create a family tree that says most clearly who is not welcome . . ."

In the midst of the conference, 15 bishops (including men and women) released a signed statement expressing "pain . . . over our personal convictions that are contradicted by the proscriptions in the Discipline against gays and lesbians within our church and within our ordained and diaconal ministers." Nevertheless they affirmed their commitment to uphold the Discipline.

Some delegates and bishops were incensed, but others saw their words as courageous. After lengthy closed sessions, the entire Council of Bishops issued a statement saying they did not agree on all the issues but were "committed, collectively and individually, to teach and uphold our church's doctrine and discipline. . . . Together we remain open to God's continued guidance."

In her historic address to the conference (a major highlight of the two-week event) First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton said, "I know we have disagreements in society. We even have disagreements in the church. I think one of the reasons that I'm a Methodist is because I think disagreements are part of life. I think it's part of how we grow together . . ."

"In the name of Jesus Christ, we are called to work within our diversity, while exercising patience and forbearance with one another," she said.

Debate To Continue

As delegates, caucuses and interest groups left for home, all were sure the debate would continue, on all church levels, up to and through the 2000 General Conference in Cleveland.

Racial- and Ethnic-Minority Concerns Take Priority at General Conference

Epitomizing the world parish of John Wesley, the number of delegates from the church's Central Conferences increased by 22 people, from 116 to 138. In addition, 10 delegates represented autonomous churches that have concordant relationships with The United Methodist Church. These two groups constituted almost 15 percent of the 998 General Conference delegations

General Conference delegates responded to stories of civil unrest and strife. They cited unrest in many parts of Africa, massacres in Brazil, Israeli attacks upon Lebanon, widespread poverty in Cuba, and damage and heartbreak in the United States as a result of tornadoes in Illinois and Arkansas.

Throughout the quadrennial legislative assembly, nine languages other than English, plus American Sign Language, were represented. A team of 48 interpreters provided translations to 141 delegates in Chinese, French, German, Indonesian, Korean, Portuguese, Russian, Spanish and Swahili.

Music was a constant throughout the conference. Daily, the delegates were led in music by co-directors S T Kimbrough and Cynthia Wilson-Felder. Choirs representing racial- and ethnic-minority constituents of The United Methodist Church had delegates tapping their feet, clapping their hands and swaying to rhythmic music. Choirs were African-American, Hispanic, Indonesian, Korean, Latvian, intergenerational, and signing and deaf; other guests were a dance troupe representing Tonga, a Mariachi band and Native-American drummers.

Racial- and ethnic-minority persons and supporters attending the 1996 Conference also celebrated the success of the Shalom Zone, a concept created by the 1992 General Conference after riots broke out in Los Angeles to protest the verdict in the Rodney King beating case. Shalom, the Hebrew word for peace, is "on the loose" in 103 urban and rural communities, 24 annual conferences, 250 congregations, 50 community organizations and 71 ecumenical ventures, said Bishop Felton E. May, Harrisburg Area.

Delegates approved "Holy Boldness," a national urban-ministry plan that offers a way to organize and mobilize local congregations and organizations to work on urban-ministry goals. They celebrated the vision and reality which is Africa University. The institution, the first United Methodist university in Africa, boasts 300 students and three faculties, with colleges of theology, education, agriculture and business. Included in the celebration was a performance by the Africa University choir. The choir sang anthems of thanks to The United Methodist Church for access to education in their homeland. Delegates were able to further support Africa University by purchasing CDs and cassettes through Cokesbury.

Enthusiastically welcomed by delegates was a 1997-2000 priority aimed at "Strengthening the Black Church for the 21st Century." The plan, with a budget of $1.7 million, is designed to bring together struggling African-American congregations with growing, vital African-American congregations to stop the decline of African-American United Methodist churches.

The Native American Comprehensive Plan, created by the 1992 General Conference, was continued at $1.2 million through the 1997-2000 quadrennium to help The United Methodist Church reach grass-roots Native-American ministries.

Delegates and visitors contributed $3,579 in a special offering for Native American Awareness Sunday ministries.

Another matter related to racial- and ethnic-minority persons was the 1996 General Conference's apology to Native Americans for the 1864 Sand Creek Massacre led by a Methodist lay preacher.

Delegates congratulated and continued the National Plan for Hispanic Ministries adopted by the 1992 General Conference. Delegates learned that 66 annual conferences participate in some form of Hispanic ministry, 59 congregations had been revitalized and 799 outreach ministries had been created.

Mil Voces Para Celebrar, printed under the auspices of the General Board of Discipleship and The United Methodist Publishing House (UMPH), was formally recognized as the official Spanish-language hymn book. This hymnal is expected to bring a revival in worship in Hispanic congregations. UMPH president and publisher Neil Alexander offered a matching-gift offer to delegates, which provides a gift hymnal to the Hispanic ministry for every Hispanic hymnal sold during General Conference.

Delegates approved a resolution to strengthen Korean-American ministry. An inclusive task force, representing the five jurisdictions, will initiate a comprehensive study of the concerns and needs of the Korean constituency and report findings and recommendations to the 2000 General Conference. Also approved was the publication of resources in a variety of Asian-American languages.

Major decisions affecting the future of The United Methodist Church were also on the agenda for racial and ethnic minorities. They overwhelmingly voted to establish a commission to create a plan of union for four historically Black Methodist denominations. The plan would merge United Methodist, African Methodist Episcopal (AME), African Methodist Episcopal Zion (AMEZ) and Christian Methodist Episcopal (CME) churches. Each denomination would have six representatives on the commission. A plan of union is to be submitted to the 2000 General Conference.

Church and Society

"The Creator weeps over impoverished cities and villages, ravished lands, polluted streams, depleted soil, poisoned air, fractured humanity. The weeping God beckons us to become God's healing presence in human communities and all the created order." Bishop Judith Craig spoke these passionate words of healing and justice during the Episcopal Address.

The desire to be "God's healing presence" was evident as delegates adopted an apology to the Cheyenne and Arapaho people for the Sand Creek massacre Nov. 29, 1864, by the First Colorado Cavalry, whose commanding officer was a Methodist lay preacher. This was also apparent in the stream of policy statements adopted (mostly on the Consent Calendar), reflecting delegates' confidence in the intense committee work during the first week.

Delegates reaffirmed the church's position on abortion and replaced two sentences to state: "We commit our church to continue to provide nurturing ministries to those who terminate a pregnancy, to those in the midst of a crisis pregnancy and to those who give birth." Although the debate on abortion emerged around the rights of the unborn, delegates voted down an insertion of a new Social Principles paragraph on the subject.

Other revisions included language:

- Adding a new sub-paragraph to para. 72 describing the right to health care.
- Recognizing in para. 71A the damaging nature of family violence—"verbal, psychological, physical, sexual."
- Inserting concern about reductions of municipal waste to para. 70A on "Water, Air, Soil, Minerals and Plants."
- Adding to the second paragraph of 71F on human sexuality a concern about the destructive nature of "exploitative, abusive or promiscuous" sexual relations in marriage.
- Rejecting the "erroneous notion that one gender is superior to another" in a new sub-paragraph on "Women and Men" in para. 71.
- Expanding the discussion of divorce in para. 72 D, stressing that divorce is a regrettable alternative "in the midst of brokenness."
- Declaring that ceremonies celebrating homosexual unions "shall not" be conducted by United Methodist pastors and in United Methodist churches (referred to the Judicial Council, which later ruled they had no jurisdiction).
- Describing organ transplantation and donation as "an act of charity, agape love and self-sacrifice (in a new sub-paragraph to para. 72).
- Changing rights of "persons with handicapping conditions" (para. 72G) to "persons with disabilities."

As delegates adopted new resolutions, which will broaden the Book of Resolutions 1996, they also voted to limit the life of resolutions to 12 years, unless readopted.

New and updated resolutions, including health care, human rights, immigration and environmental concerns were prayerfully discussed and strongly affirmed by delegates.

Some resolutions approved by General Conference involved:

- Recommending United Methodists reassess their personal lifestyles with the goal of living "more simple, less consumptive" lives. A just lifestyle consists of sharing wealth with the poor because "we no longer need 'things' to give us worth." Abundant living is: when all people have their basic needs met; when work contributes to the common good; having time for family and community life; producing an environment where children are valued, cared for, and nurtured in families and communities; and protecting God's creation.
- Urging active opposition to anti-immigrant legislation and advocating human rights for all people including "strangers who sojourn in our land." The United Methodist Church should continue to work with community organizations to provide forums for citizens to voice concerns, and support communities and congregations by prayer and action where anti-immigrant measures may be implemented.
- Replacing the present resolution on "U.S. Agriculture and Rural Communities in Crisis" with language that emphasizes the adverse economic conditions affecting rural America and the response of the church to the crisis.
- Calling on cancer-research organizations to study the relationship between cancer and chlorine-based toxins in the environment in "A Dioxin-free Future."
- Opposing abusive treatment of persons with mental disabilities.
- Assuring basic human rights for all persons.
- Condemning clinic violence and seeking common ground between "those who call themselves" pro-life or pro-choice.
- Affirming the rights of homosexuals to serve in the military.
- Committing the church to a holistic approach to alcohol and other drug crises. The United Methodist Church's longstanding position on abstinence from alcoholic beverages was affirmed. This position is "relevant because excessive, harmful and dangerous drinking patterns are uncritically accepted and practiced." It favors eliminating all advertising and promotion of alcoholic beverages.
- Lifting up the National Coalition Against Legalized Gambling in an amendment to current legislation.
- Affirming membership in the Religious Coalition for Reproductive Rights.

Mission Possible? 'To Make Disciples for Jesus Christ'

"To make disciples for Jesus Christ." Six words now state the mission of The United Methodist Church and, by connection, each of its congregations who now have much more flexibility in how they will carry it out.

A church council, amenable to the charge conference, is the new basic plan of organization for congregations. However, churches in which the administrative board/council on ministries, administrative council or nurture-outreach-witness (NOW) model of organization is working effectively are free to continue using those structures to carry out their mission and ministry.

Each congregation must have a board of trustees and committees on finance, pastor-parish relations, and nominations and personnel. It must also have structures for carrying out ministries of nurture, outreach and witness. The flexibility comes in how those will be developed. Concerns to be addressed by bodies responsible for those areas are defined.

The term "work areas" will disappear from the 1996 Book of Discipline in favor of "ministry groups." Congregations will determine which ministry groups they will have and name specific responsibilities.

The General Conference retained mandatory provisions for a church school.

The Local Church Legislative Committee had recommended also keeping United Methodist Women (UMW) as a mandatory organization in each congregation. The conference agreed, and retained language to keep a UMW unit in each congregation.

Pastors will continue to chair the nominations committee. A vice chair will be elected from the membership. The committee had recommended co-chairs—the pastor and a lay person elected from the committee members.

Rejected by both the committee and the conference were petitions to give local churches choices about which apportionments they would accept. Responding to the concerns of many about apportionments, chair Janice Riggle Huie, clergy delegate, Southwest Texas Conference, presented a statement on behalf of the committee.

It was "unwilling to cast aside the connection," she said. It heard the "call of local congregations throughout our denomination for relief from apportionments" and the "heavy burden" they create.

After expressing "profound appreciation to local churches for their faithfulness" in supporting connectional mission and ministry, she said annual conferences and general agencies need to be "sensitive to the burden" of apportionments and to be more accountable and provide additional support to local congregations in the interpretation and personalizing of them. She also expressed the need for local churches to have more voice in determining the missions of the denomination.

Disciple Celebrates 10 Years of Transforming Lives

Delegates and Disciple graduates from around the world gathered to celebrate the 10th anniversary of Disciple Bible Study. In March 1986, a group of pastors, theologians, lay persons, a bishop, Christian educators, Bible scholars, publishers, editors, and marketers shaped the vision that is now known as "Disciple: Becoming Disciples Through Bible Study."

Disciple is now available in English, German, Korean, Mandarin Chinese and Spanish.

The impact of Disciple cannot be overstated. It was mentioned in the Laity and Episcopal addresses and in many conversations at General Conference. The leadership of The United Methodist Publishing House (UMPH) was commended for their vision in creating the study. Ten years after its beginning, Disciple is helping to shape the direction of the church.

Potpourri of Special Emphases Get General Conference Approval

After eight years of the denominational theme "Celebrate and Witness: Celebrate God's Grace—Witness for Jesus Christ," The United Methodist Church will not have a theme for the 1997-2000 quadrennium. However, in the spirit of a General Conference, a wide variety of special emphases and programs will engage United Methodists during the coming four years.

Higher Education and Chaplaincy

The end of the quadrennium brought the completion of the special program "Campus Ministry: Mission at the Center," which is resulting in the reformation of the United Methodist Student Movement in the United States, an organization of students who desire to participate in The United Methodist Church. The 1996 General Conference adopted the study document "Education: the Gift of Hope" and commended it to congregations for churchwide study. A copy of the document was given to U.S. Secretary of Education Richard W. Riley during his recent visit to Denver. Also adopted and sent to conferences for ratification was a Constitutional amendment which will make the chair of the annual conference college student organization a member of the conference by virtue of office.

New Special Emphases

"A Focus on Young People—Walking Together in the Way That Leads to Life" begins a four-year undertaking which asks The United Methodist Church "to reorder its priorities and focus on the needs of young people and to enable young people to be participants in the life and work of the church." Plans for the focus include 10 Dynamic-Issue Forums, the development of a comprehensive data bank to provide information on models addressing specific needs of young people, and the creation of a Shared Mission Focus Team of coordinators. "A Focus on Young People" will be funded by $3 million in the new Missional Initiatives/Focus 2000 Fund.

"Strengthening the Black United Methodist Church for the 21st Century" begins with a 19-member coordinating committee accountable to the General Council on Ministries. The $1.7 million program will identify and define vital congregations across the denomination and develop 25 of them into Congregational Resource Centers. These congregation-to-congregation centers will provide resource and training opportunities for 400 to 600 teams of lay and clergy to enhance all aspects of their ministries by the year 2000.

The conference also designated "Rural Crisis in the USA" as a special emphasis for the 1997-2000 quadrennium, including the establishment of new rural "Communities of Shalom."

Continued and Updated Emphases

The Native American Comprehensive Plan was approved for continuation through the 1997-2000 quadrennium. Composed of four elements: the north, symbolizing power, associated with denominational presence; the west, religious heritage, signifying Native American spirituality; the south, healing, representing the congregational-development program; and the east, new life, representing leadership development, it is intended to strengthen rural and reservation ministries.

With the acceptance of the new Spanish-language hymnal, Mil Voces Para Celebrar, the conference continued the National Plan for Hispanic Ministry for four more years. Continuation of the plan reduces the membership of the Committee on Hispanic Ministries from 29 to 18 members, calls on annual conferences to organize conference committees on Hispanic ministries and gives specific responsibilities to general agencies of the denomination. The $3.1 million program will be funded through the budgets of four different agencies. While the General Council on Ministries decided not to propose its own missional priority on urban ministries, the report on the "Special Emphasis on Reclaiming the Cities" named three continuing programs which already address the needs of urban areas in the United States.

A new initiative is "Holy Boldness: A National Plan for Urban Ministry." The plan was developed by representatives of urban, suburban and rural communities, congregations, conferences and national leadership. Its beginning came at the 1995 National Urban Ministry Convocation. "Holy Boldness" identifies seven goal areas: urban theology, evangelism and congregational development, eradication of racism, strengthening of multicultural relationships, leadership development, community economic development, and health and healing. Each goal has its own set of anticipated outcomes.

A continuing emphasis related to urban ministry is "Communities of Shalom." The Shalom Committee, related to the General Board of Global Ministries, has identified more than 100 Communities of Shalom in 16 conferences, and has more than 250 congregations involved in the program.

The other continuing, although not exclusively urban, ministry emphasis approved for 1997-2000, is the United Methodist "Special Program: Substance Abuse and Related Violence." Begun in 1992, the program coordinates drug and alcohol education and prevention initiatives across the denomination. The $1.4 million initiative was also approved for international extension to Northern Europe and the Baltic nations.

"Special Program: Peace With Justice" was also continued by the conference. Assigned to the General Board of Church and Society for implementation, the program includes coordinators in each annual conference, educators who serve as interpreters and resource people, and the development of a certification program. The program is supported by the Peace With Justice Sunday offering.

Media Coverage Expands, Thanks to Emerging Technology

An unexpected convergence of events related to the Oklahoma City bombing quickly propelled the 1996 General Conference onto the pages and screens of the Denver area news media.

Timing and location were both factors. The first anniversary of the Oklahoma City tragedy was April 19, the fourth day of the church's quadrennial conference. Denver is also the site for the trial of bombing suspects Terry Nichols and Timothy McVeigh.

Nineteen quilts on display for two days in the convention center lobby attracted media attention. Sewn by Susan Lucky, a United Methodist from Oklahoma City, each quilt memorialized a child killed in the bombing.

The media also carried interviews with Anne Marshall, whose husband, Raymond Johnson, was killed in the bombing. Ms. Marshall is a staff member of the denomination's General Commission on Christian Unity and Interreligious Concerns in New York.

As always, the conference attracted worldwide media attention on the merits of its own actions and activities. Accredited to cover the conference were more than 150 journalists, representing wire services, newspapers, radio, television, and secular and church press from around the world.

United Methodist News Service (UMNS), a unit of United Methodist Communications, and its predecessor agencies have provided news-room facilities at General Conferences for more than 50 years. In addition to Spanish- and Korean-language desks, the news room provided desks to serve the needs of the Native-American and international media for the first time.

Emerging technology enabled the news-room staff to file stories during the conference on United Methodism's new Internet home page. Reporters and others unable to attend the conference received stories on all major actions and activities at their individual e-mail addresses. Technology also enabled the electronic transmission of photographs to newspapers around the world.

UMNS director Tom McAnally said much has changed since his first General Conference in Pittsburgh in 1964. "There reporters huddled in locker rooms, which smelled like dirty socks, and we had to change ribbons on manual typewriters. This year we had 10,658 square feet in the Colorado Convention Center, where reporters brought their own portable computers and where we had instant communications around the world."

The Discipline

General Conference delegates make decisions that change the book that guides the ministry and process of the church. The Committee on Correlation and Editorial Revision, along with Michael Lawrence, The United Methodist Publishing House has the task of editing the 1996 Book of Discipline. The committee has appreciated the expertise of John Brawn who has assisted with the computerization process. The goal for publishing the new Discipline will be late September or early October.

Michael Lawrence, editor of The Discipline, The United Methodist Publishing House; Richard Evans, member, Committee on Correlation and Editorial Revision; John Brawn, computer specialist; Naomi Bartle, secretary; Neil Alexander, publisher; Clelia Hendrix, vice chair; Carolyn Marshall, General Conference secretary; and Earl Riddle, chair.

A Mantle of Prayer

*Thou who art over us,
Thou who art one of us,
Thou who art:
Give me a pure heart, that I may see thee;
a humble heart, that I may hear thee;
a heart of love, that I may serve thee;
a heart of faith, that I may abide in thee. Amen*

—"Prayer for a New Heart," Hymnal #392

With the request and the example of the bishops, General Conference was cloaked in a "mantle of prayer." Each day, delegates began their work by reflecting on two questions that appeared on the large screens: 1) What is my earnest hope for the next few hours of this General Conference? 2) What do I believe is God's most fervent hope for these next few hours?

After preparing themselves for the session with these questions, the delegates turned to someone near them, held hands and prayed. Throughout the General Conference, the bishops held a prayer vigil. A prayer chapel was prepared for use by the delegates and guests. Prayers were offered in song, in silence, in words and in movement.

In her benediction April 24, Bishop Leontine T.C. Kelly said: "And we thank you for all of your goodness to each one of us, as weary as we are, as tedious as the work is, as hard as the struggle is, as disappointed as some may be. We . . . believe that you have us here for your purposes. And your purposes will ripen fast, unfolding every hour. The buds may have a bitter taste, but sweet will be the flower."

Prayer. Benediction. Worship. We didn't always agree, but we prayed unceasingly.

Blessed Be! Blessed Be!

During the past 10 days, members of the General Commission on the Status and Role of Women monitoring team have listened to what was said in committees, groups and plenaries; who said it; how it was said; and how it was received. Monitoring was an important ministry to the General Conference in raising unconscious biases in decision-making to the level of conscious awareness.

What have we observed?

* Many committee chairs used feedback regularly to monitor their efforts. This resulted in increased participation by women and racial- and ethnic-minority persons.

* Clergy women were often the least participatory group during plenary sessions, though debate was closed with women still requesting to speak only in a few instances.

* Typical unconscious biased behaviors were: 1) interrupting and stepping on another's comments; 2) addressing men with titles and women by their first names; 3) men not waiting to be recognized before speaking.

What would we suggest?

* That the Commission on the General Conference incorporate monitoring for sex, race, age and disability bias into the design for General Conference 2000 in consultation with the General Commission on the Status and Role of Women and the General Commission on Religion and Race.

* That annual conferences who wish to replicate this monitoring ministry during their annual conference sessions contact the General Commission on the Status and Role of Women for information and assistance.

The Monitoring Team appreciates that this ministry of inclusiveness has been embraced and used by leaders, delegates and staff of the General Conference.
