aching sometimes and single pleasures;
My wife's long history to remember and her great love is full of:

Good words to read and many more and crafts to enlighten to:

So work this in work knowing and the truth, and
believe to work in:

These high thoughts that sustained this by mind
and now I am not without:

May many days, and that toward ends that flow
glow as in light of glory:

The years, passing understanding, that come from
days looking in my soul:

The faith that leads through death and the hope of a larger life beyond the grave.

I thank You, O Lord God, that through with laborious hands that have in all things obtained by His grace upon our human kind, you in Jesus Christ that has done greater things for us than we can ever understand:

Making man's weakness our friends' strength:

Turning sorrow into gladness and pain into the
will's victory:

Refusing death of the village:

Refusing sin of the power:

Knowing history:

Making man's weakness our friends' strength:

And in all things and hope with yours, Lord!
