Dear Dr. Bultmann:

I greatly appreciated and heartily concurred with your comments on Ogden and Kinder. I am sending you under separate cover the essay entitled "The Alleged Structural Inconsistency in Bultmann." You may be interested to know that this piece will soon appear in the Journal of Religion.

You might also be interested to know that in the course of revising Radical Obedience for publication, I added to the manuscript which you now have, an introduction entitled the "Malaise of Current Protestant Ethics" in which I attempt to delineate the quandary experienced by many leading Protestant ethicists in attempt to show how your contribution may provide some fundamental clues for transcending that quandary, and a concluding statement entitled "Whither Protestant Ethics." When the book is out in May, you may, if you wish examine that statement and in general, the revision of the whole manuscript.

Looking forward to an occasion when we can pursue our dialogue in person and wishing you good health, I remain

Gratefully and respectfully yours,

Thomas C. Oden
