

November 24, 1962

Mr. William Broadhurst
First National Bank
Tulsa, Oklahoma

Dear Mr. Broadhurst,

Thank you for sending me Curg Starkey's new book, The Work of the Holy Spirit. I was delighted to receive it since, although I know Curg well, I had not had a chance to order his book.

May I take the liberty of reciprocating by sharing with you a Bible study guide which I have recently written for the Methodist Student Movement. Should you have any comment to share with me in response to it, I would welcome it indeed.

Our Methodist students at the Phillips Graduate Seminary have informal luncheon meetings on the first and third Thursdays of each month to discuss our ministry in the Church and various theological issues in the light of the activity of God in the world. Would it be possible sometime for you to share with us some of your insights on Christian stewardship? It is my feeling that a new and imaginative approach to stewardship needs to be made in the light of the theological renewal in our time and I would like very much to hear what you have to say on this subject and our ministerial candidates certainly would, too.

I look forward to hearing from you concerning whether such a presentation might be possibly arranged. Give my regards to Rev. Bob Pierson.

Yours cordially and sincerely,

Thomas C. Oden

c/jcl

