Ernest Lee Wells' first sermon was based on 1 Corinthians 3:9, "We are laborers together with God." Why was this significant?

- A. It was the same scripture and theme as the sermon at the constitution of the church on March 27, 1817.
- B. It was his favorite scripture and he used it many times.
- C. It was requested by the deacons and church leaders.

OPERATION BANDANAS

Remember the urgent need for donations to supply thousands of Psalm 91 Bandanas to our deploying troops. Give and receive the blessing of serving and supporting our troops. Since we have ongoing deployments and ongoing requests, I will keep this need before us that we might pray and encourage others to give as we support the men and women that defend our freedoms. Learn more about this ministry at www.operationbandanas.org. Please make checks payable to Operation Bandanas. Thanks!

The Twelfth Sunday after Pentecost

“Hungry”

John 6:1-14

Our speaker this Sunday is Lou Ann Gilliam, Director of Church and Community Relations at Chowan University. In this position, she seeks to find ways that churches and the University can partner together. She coordinates Chowan’s annual SeniorFEST event and promotes the work of Campus Ministry. She especially enjoys her role of working with students through the Chowan Christian Service Association.

A North Carolina native, Lou Ann is proud to have grown up in the mill village town of Ranlo in Gaston County. She received both her undergraduate and Master of Divinity degrees from Gardner-Webb University.

Murfreesboro, NC is now her home. Lou Ann is a member of Murfreesboro Baptist Church, where she serves as a Sunday school teacher, deacon, and choir member. She volunteers as a board member for Hertford County Habitat for Humanity. Lou Ann is married to Trey Gilliam. They have one daughter.
